Caring keys

Here's a chance to get some new keys made and help the hungry at the same time. The boys down at the Village Locksmith, that's Bob Mowbray, Dave Markowitz and Mike Petkowitz, will be charging only 50 cents for keys that ordinarily cost a dollar, then will donate that money to the Capuchin Soup Kitchen to help feed the hungry.

The benefit will run from today through the day after Christmas. Their hours are 9 a.m. to 6 p.m. Monday through Friday and from 10 a.m. until 3 p.m. on Saturdays.

The lock shop is located at 18554 Mack Avenue in the Farms.

Wanderful, wonderful

Time for a Greenwood Good Guy Award. This week's goes to Paul DeRonne, of DeRonne's Hardware, on Warren and Outer Drive.

A Park woman called to tell us she had rented a carpet cleaner from Paul, only to discover she'd forgotten the cleaning wand. What to do, since the carpets had to be cleaned for the holidays and it was late Saturday night?

Simple. She called Paul at home, he lives in the Park, and he personally delivered the wand to her on Sunday, his day off.

It may not sound like much, but when you need a helping hand clutching a wand, Paul's your boy.

Look out GPHC!

It's not exactly what I would want for Christmas, but hey, whatever blows your skirt up.

The U.S. Department of the Interior's Northeast Wild Horse and Burro Adoption Center suggests giving a horse for Christmas. Preferably one of theirs.

The center describes the adoption of a wild horse fresh from the overcrowded ranges as a "one of a kind" gift of a living legend.

Without the $125 adoption fee, horses might otherwise have tough going foraging for food this winter on depleted rangelands. For more information, call 717-938-2560 or write Frank and Doris Goodlander at P.O. Box 178, Lewisberry, Pa. 17339.

Since 1982, the Goodlanders estimate that more than 1,600 horses and burros have been adopted from the center by caring people in a dozen states.

And they say they'll also add a "pretty red bow."

Cooking a book

I'll make this one short and sweet. There was a small fire in the City last Sunday.

Firefighters were called to a kitchen fire in a Rivard Road home. They put the blaze out rather quickly once they located it.

Seems the lady of the house had put a cookbook in the microwave, then turned it on.

Could have been worse. It could have been a Grosse Pointe News.

Christmas: A time of laughter and reflection

By Nancy Parmenter

Christmas has many meanings. For the Christian, it is filled with religious significance as the birthday of Christ. For the family member, it is a time when far-scattered relatives return to the home embrace, however fleetingly.

It's also the time to agonize over a gift for Aunt Sadie, who has everything and likes nothing. For the retailer, it's the year's biggest single opportunity to make money.

For the non-Christian members of the American community, Christmas may be an occasion to go along with the culture, buy a tree and presents, and have a party. It may trigger nostalgic memories of winter festivals in a former home. It may coincide with one's own religious celebration, but in a changed form.

For a hard-pressed worker, Christmas may be only a day off. For some workers, it isn't even a day off.

"Christmas Eve has always been very important to me," says Dr. Stanton Wilson of Grosse Pointe Memorial Church. "The very reason for my wanting to become a minister is bound up with Christmas Eve."

It was on a Christmas Eve in Korea almost 40 years ago that Wilson, then a young officer in the armored division, turned in early. He and a fellow officer were already sound asleep when the carolers came by.

"It was one of those glorious nights with bright stars," Wilson remembered. He and his friend leaped up and leaned out the window. The unbelievable cold clarity of the night, the sweet voices singing familiar carols in a strange tongue, the warm glow of candlelight on their upturned faces "made such an impact on both of our lives" that both men turned to the church for lifelong satisfaction, Wilson as a minister, the friend as an involved lay member.

When Wilson was mustered out of the army, he attended divinity school and returned to Korea, where he remained as a missionary for 30 years, participating in the huge flowering of Christianity that has taken place in Korea since World War II.

Sometimes Christmas has meant almost miraculous things. A favorite tale that sums up the warmth of Christmas for Dr. William Cummins of Ebenezer Baptist Church is a true one that happened in upstate New York.

The Rev. H.C. Slade of the Reform Church of Nyack had a small congregation and a dilapidated building, but they had visions for their church. Much labor, love and money were expended to repair and paint the church, but nature in her undifferentiated wrath blew a major Atlantic storm across Nyack, blasting a hole in the choir loft.

The saddened but unbowed congregation decided to hold an auction to raise funds to repair the building a second time. Among the items that failed to sell was an old embroidered tablecloth. Slade bought it himself and hung it over the hole in the choir loft.

One day when he was working in his study, the minister saw an old woman outside in the bitter cold waiting for a bus. He invited her inside to wait.

When she saw the tablecloth, she grew excited, saying it was just like one her husband bought for her in Brussels, just before the Nazi occupation. The war scattered her family and belongings, and she had seen neither home nor husband again.

The old woman went her way, applying for jobs as a housekeeper.

That night, after the Christmas Eve service, an old man came to the minister and said, "I can't keep my eyes off that tablecloth. It's just like the one I bought for my wife in Brussels before the war."

The minister and the old man combed the newspaper for ads for housekeepers, followed them up, and were able to find the old woman. And, yes, they were husband and wife, reunited after many years.

"That's a true story, and it happened on Christmas Eve!" Cummins said.

Dr. Irving R. Phillips of the Grosse Pointe Woods Presbyterian Church is fond of a little story about being full of joy. And of getting right down to saying what you mean.

Gateway to beauty

Standing in solitary splendor before the War Memorial, this tribute tree serves a beautiful, warm welcome to those visiting the center over the holidays. This view of the tree, located in the circular drive before the War Memorial's entrance, was taken through the ornate iron gates leading to the gardens in front of the Fries Auditorium.

Punch redevelopment gets Farms approval

By Nancy Parmenter

The redevelopment of the Punch and Judy is back on track. The agreement between the developers and the city was given unanimous final approval at the Farms council meeting Dec. 16.

Under Hill Enterprises, owned by developers Richard Crawford and Robert Edgar, was ready to start remodeling the interior of the old theater last summer. Lack of parking held up the project, while a committee worked off and on behind the scenes to effect an agreement.

Committee members worked "early mornings, late nights, dinner hours and weekends" to find a way around the ordinance requirement of 76 parking spaces, Edgar said.

The agreement requires Under Hill to pay $50,448 to reimburse the city for the cost of construction of 41 of the 71 parking spaces expected to be used by the project in the leased Richard parking lot. The amount represents the cost of improvements, such as asphalt and meters, according to city attorney Kathleen Lewis. Twenty-eight of the spaces will be made available to the Punch on a lease basis, for the use of future employees and patrons.

Under Hill will also have the option to lease 11 currently metered spaces in the alley behind the theater building. The lease will run to May 31, 1999, the date of expiration of the lease currently in effect between the city and the school district.

The agreement further stipulates that if the city decides to expand the Richard lot or make more parking spaces available to Under Hill, the developers will pay the cost exclusive of city overhead.

"This agreement was reached through a lot of compromises," Lewis said. Even so, committee member and former Councilwoman Nancy Waugaman remained dissatisfied with some aspects.

"The parking ordinance exists to ensure spaces for the businesses," she said. "The agreement is good in that it requires the developer to pay for the parking, but it doesn't go far enough. Nothing requires him to lease the additional spaces."

Waugaman said the city should have made an ironclad agreement similar to that extracted from Cottage Hospital and Standard Federal for development of the commercial space and parking garage at the corner of Muir and Kercheval. "I like to get things organized up front before problems occur," she said. "I think it's a mistake not to have (such an) agreement."

Heart attack, skull fracture fell officer

By Tom Greenwood

Dr. Werner Spitz, Wayne County chief medical examiner, confirmed Monday that Park Officer Steve Molitor suffered a heart attack as well as a fatal skull fracture following an incident with two Detroit youths in the parking lot of a Mack Avenue restaurant last week.

"Officer Molitor died of a fractured skull which occurred after his earlier altercation in the lot," Spitz said.

"He fainted because his heart was fibrillating and not providing enough oxygen to his brain. He fainted, striking his head on the cement of the parking lot, fracturing his skull. But Officer Molitor suffered a heart attack as well as a fractured skull."

According to police reports, Molitor and his partner, Park Officer James Smith, were eating breakfast in the Ram's Horn Restaurant early Thursday morning when a customer told them two young men were letting the air out of one of the tires of their police car.

Both officers ran outside and stopped the suspects, who were reportedly trying to drive away in their Mustang. One of the youths reportedly refused to identify himself and had to be removed from the vehicle. Police say a short struggle ensued, with no blows being exchanged.

The suspects, ages 19 and 20, were handcuffed and turned over to City police who transported them to their station. Molitor and Smith returned to the restaurant, paid their bills and were walking through the parking lot when Molitor said he felt faint.

He collapsed and was quickly transported by police car to Bon Secours Hospital, where he was pronounced dead at about 3:30 a.m.

"The whole case is confusing," said Bruce Kennedy, director of Public Safety for the City. "The first indication is Molitor died of a heart attack, then the medical reports say it was a fractured skull. By all descriptions, it wasn't much of a fight. Very brief with no blows exchanged. Just pushing and shoving."

No one can recall Molitor falling to the ground or into the suspect's car. And after the incident, he reportedly did not complain of any discomfort to his head, yet you'd think that if he'd fractured his skull, he would have complained of pain or something. We estimate there's a 10- to 13-minute time span from when the altercation occurred and Molitor collapsed."

In his interview, Dr. Spitz said it was possible for a person to walk around, unaware his skull was fractured, but "who said Officer Molitor was walking around with a fractured skull? The skull was fractured as a result of his fainting, not from the altercation."

City police are also puzzled about why the suspects decided to vandalize the Park scout car.

"By all accounts, there was no contact between the officers and the suspects when they were both in the restaurant," Kennedy said. "Was it a dare? Did one of them want to get even for a ticket? We just don't know."

Kennedy said he was not aware of reports that the suspects had been drinking and that neither youth was given a breathalyzer or blood test.

John Scandalis, owner of the restaurant, called the incident "tragic" and confirmed there was no report of any contact between the suspects and the officers.

"My night manager said there weren't any problems inside the restaurant," Scandalis said. "At that time in the morning most of the customers are people going to or coming from work. People like cops, milkmen, cab drivers and the like. We weren't that crowded that night."

Scandalis also confirmed that one of the suspects had previously worked at the restaurant and characterized the youth as a "super kid and a hard worker."

Police reported that neither suspect had any previous contact with the law.

"By all accounts they look like a couple of good kids who pulled a

Park police officer buried Saturday

By Tom Greenwood

For the second time this month, Grosse Pointe police gathered to bury one of their own.

On Dec. 6, it was for Woods Officer Patrick Pagan who died at 42 from cancer. On Saturday, Dec. 14, beneath cloudy skies and facing a bitterly cold wind, they came to St. Gertrude's Catholic Church to offer a last salute to Park Officer Steve Molitor.

Molitor, 41, died of a skull fracture following an altercation with two Detroit youths.

Joining Grosse Pointe police in an honor guard were more than 100 law enforcement officials from Michigan and Ontario.

They gathered from all over. Some wore the black leather jackets, shiny boots and silver spurs of the Detroit Mounted Division. Others wore the green uniform of the Genesee County Sheriff's Department or the Michigan Conservation Department. There was also the brown of the Wayne County Sheriff's Department.

But mostly they wore blue — police officer blue. "This is a tremendous loss to our department, our men and our community," said Park Police Chief Richard Caretti. "It was all so sudden. Steve was a picture of health, just in great, great shape. He watched his diet and lifted weights. Heck, he didn't even like to ride in a patrol car with a partner who smoked."

"He was a hard-working police officer who had the respect of his fellow officers, supervisors and the community."

Chief Caretti, who was formerly a precinct commander in Detroit, said it was the first time in his career that he'd known the pain of losing an officer.

"They called me at home," he said. "I rushed down to Bon Secours and was there with Steve's family, a priest and fellow officers when a doctor told us he was gone. They said there was nothing they could do. They'd tried everything."

"The grief was overwhelming. I've never felt anything like it before. It was a horrible sense of loss."

Officer Molitor was an 18-year veteran of the force, earning six departmental citations and more than a dozen letters of commendation. He was also president of the Fraternal Order of Police.

He is survived by his wife, Judith; a daughter, Kristine; two sons, Brian and Steven Jr.; his parents, Robert and Mary Louise; his grandfather, Joseph L. Molitor; two sisters; and two brothers.

More than 30 law enforcement agencies from across the state and the province of Ontario were represented at the funeral service for Park Officer Steven Molitor Saturday. An honor guard for Molitor, who died while on duty Dec. 12, was formed by the more than 100 police officers who came to pay their respects. Leading the Park delegation as it left St. Gertrude's Church was Officer Timothy Mink.

Haddad is outstanding grad

Wood resident Patrick J. Haddad was honored as the outstanding male graduate at Wayne State University, Dec. 12. He received the David D. Henry award during commencement exercises held at Cobo Arena.

He earned a bachelor of arts degree in English. Haddad served as vice president and fraternity education officer of the professional music fraternity, Phi Mu Alpha Sinfonia. He also served as president of the WSU Men's Glee Club, treasurer of the WSU Symphonic Band Council and he was a member of the university's marching band.

Haddad directed a fundraising campaign to support the glee club's recent European concert tour during which it captured first prize in the male Chorus Competition of the prestigious International Music Eisteddfod in Llangollen, North Wales.

As a member of the Symphonic Band, he also participated in the band's highly successful 1982 concert tour of the People's Republic of China.

Currently employed at the WSU Placement Services, Haddad plans to attend law school.

Faulty furnace cause of Farms fire

A faulty furnace overheated and started a fire in the kitchen of a home on Cambridge in the Farms Dec. 2. The limit control governing the heat output failed to shut off, according to Fire Chief Sam Candela.

The owner of the house, who had gone out, returned to find the house full of smoke, Candela said. The fire had already burned through a wood partition boxing in the furnace and was spreading through the walls to the upstairs.

Firefighters ripped the plaster off the interior of the upstairs walls to extinguish the creeping fire. Candela said the fire was under control in a short time, with most of the hour at the scene being spent on clean-up and making sure the fire didn't reignite.

Many of the antiques in the house were saved from damage by covering them with salvage covers, but Candela estimated the damage to the contents at $20,000 and to the structure at $25,000.

Meanwhile, Shores firefighters were called to South Deeplands Dec. 8 when a control switch failed and a furnace overheated

Doing business with the Japanese

Japanese business customs and the cultural heritage affecting business relationships will be the topic of two seminars to be given at the Kyoto Steakhouses in downtown Detroit and Troy. The seminars will be conducted by Glenn Mazur, president of Japan Business Consultants Ltd. of Ann Arbor.

A dinner seminar will be held Monday, Jan. 20, at the Troy Kyoto Steakhouse at 1985 W. Big Beaver. Dinner will be served promptly at 6:30 p.m., with the seminar following at 7:30. The fee is $30.

A lunch seminar will be held Wednesday, Jan. 22, at the Renaissance Center Kyoto. Lunch will be served at 1 p.m., with the seminar following at 2 p.m. The fee is $20.

Reservations may be made by calling 559-6311 or 649-6340. Special seminars covering a variety of topics may also be scheduled by calling 559-6311.

Customs that are tried and true for dealing with other American companies often do not translate well when dealing with the Japanese clients to bargaining, negotiating and entertaining the Japanese businessman.

Report says GP schools used to 80 percent capacity

By Mike Andrzejczyk

Despite losing almost half of its enrollment in 14 years, Grosse Pointe public schools are still being used at better than 80 percent of capacity. Smaller classes and increased use by community organizations and community education keep the schools full.

That's according to a report presented last week at the December Board of Education meeting by Superintendent John Whritner. The report compared room usage, programs and enrollments of 1971-72, the year enrollment peaked, to this school year's.

The report is part of the data being collected as the system begins developing a five-year facilities plan, one of the school board's goals for this school year.

Comparing Fourth Friday counts, there were 13,529 students in 1971-72, compared to 7,350 this year, a decline of 46 percent.

"Therefore, we have 46 percent more classroom available," Whritner said. "Wrong. Lots of things have taken place in the intervening years that have affected that figure and, indeed, the availability of classrooms."

"There have been major increases in uses by outside organizations of the schools," he added.

Services for Older Citizens, Inc. uses five classrooms in Ferry Elementary School, for which the system receives some rent and volunteers, Whritner said. The Grosse Pointe Historical Society uses a room in Monteith Elementary School, a community education jewelry class has a classroom in Poupard and the Health Education Council uses a room at Kerby to store materials, he added.

While Barnes has been closed as an elementary school since September 1984, nine of the classrooms are still used by the Community Education Department. Two kindergarten rooms have been rented to a pre-kindergarten provider, four classrooms are being used by the Instructional Materials Center and one room has been rented to the Grosse Pointe Education Association to be used as an office.

One major factor in the change in the use of classrooms at the elementary school level has been decreasing class size in the last 14 years, Whritner said. In 1971-72, 193 grade school classes had between 15 and 35 children, with 89 percent of the classes having between 25 and 35 children to a room.

In 1985-86, there are 118 grade school classrooms with 15 to 30 students, almost 70 percent of which had between 19 and 24 students.

At the middle and high schools, the system compared math and English class sizes from the two years, Whritner said. Smaller class sizes at all levels require more classrooms, he added.

In 1971-72, there were 78 English and 73 math classes at the middle schools, according to the report. Of those, 96 percent of the English and 97 percent of the math classes had between 25 and 35 students.

In 1985-86, there are 68 English and 65 math classes at the middle schools. In both cases, 92 percent of the courses have between 19 and 29 students, the report said.

At the high schools in 1971-72, 85 percent of the 209 English classes and 83 percent of the 149 math classes had between 25 and 35 students. In 1985-86, 45 percent of the English classes and 51 percent of the math classes had between 25 and 34 students. No classes this year have more than 35 students in those categories, according to the report.

Another factor changing room usage has been federal laws governing special education services, Whritner said. This school year, the system is using 24 classrooms for special education programs not in place in 1971-72, he added.

There are still classrooms available in the elementary schools, the report said. Considering all the possible academic and other uses, there are still 12 of 117 self-contained classrooms in the nine buildings that aren't used, the report said.

Determining use at the middle and high schools was more difficult, according to Whritner. Certain rooms, like industrial arts, home economic and art classrooms aren't designed for general instructional use.

In determining class use, the administration used certain objectives, according to the report. Each teacher scheduled full-time at a building was to have a classroom/office assigned for at least one period a semester. Teacher workrooms or lounges are also allocated for middle and high schools.

A general instruction classroom is considered fully used if occupied five or seven periods during a school day, Whritner said. Besides the one hour for a teacher's classroom office, the extra period allows for flexibility in scheduling, he added.

Considering all rooms, the secondary schools are used at about 80 percent of their potential, the report said. When special use rooms are excluded, that percentage moves closer to 90 percent, according to the report.

"There are some who say we should be using our building at 100 percent capacity," Whritner said. "The reality of working with schools is, the norm is 80 to 85 percent. That gives you the flexibility to schedule... work teachers in so they have assigned stations and the flexibility to use the building at the optimum."

The report concludes that the school system offers a more comprehensive program this school year than it did in 1971-72; overcrowding experienced in 1971-72 has been alleviated; community use of facilities has increased dramatically; and buildings are now at an adequate comfort level with slight room for expansion.

The system does face some unknowns, Whritner said. Those unknowns may have thrown a large monkey wrench into the system's forecasting for its population in five years.

The year's population increase may be a one-year glitch, but it may be something the district will have to take into consideration when it makes its projections for enrollment, Whritner said. The growth this year was unexpected and turned out to be the largest in the county, he added.

The system has decided to use a consultant to help it develop enrollment projections, Whritner said. It is expected the greatest change in enrollment will come at the high school level, however. It was estimated the system may lose 800 to 1,000 high school students in the next five years, but that estimate may no longer be valid because of this year's change, he added.

A helping hand

Bob Melling, a Park resident, spends one day a week helping others at the People in Faith United Food and Fellowship program at Faith Lutheran Church. Melling, the outgoing chairman of PIFU, said he believes churches should be as concerned with helping people in their own areas as in foreign countries. For more on Melling and PIFU, see the Pointer of Interest on page 12B.

A phone call can stop a crime

By Mike Andrzejczyk

One recent evening, a young Park man was barbecuing steaks on a grill on his back porch when his neighbor banged on his front door. Did the man know, his neighbor demanded, that there was a fire on his back porch?

The man explained what was going on when the faint sound of sirens could be heard. His neighbor sheepishly excused himself before the fire engines arrived.

While the call piqued him, that Park man may have thought better of his neighbor had he called police to report someone stealing that barbecue or even breaking into the house.

"What we're trying to do is to get people comfortable in calling us," says Park Police Sgt. Randall Cain, the city's crime prevention officer. "It's really a plus for police to have all those eyes and ears out there in the community."

The department offers crime prevention materials and services to residents and businessmen. Recently, Chief Richard Caretti and Herbert Kaltz from Detroit's Crime Prevention Unit met with representatives from the Grosse Pointe Business and Professional Association of Mack Avenue to talk about crime prevention for businesses and retailers.

One service the city has had for some time is the shopper's service, Cain says. A retailer can call police to report a suspicious shopper and officers will be dispatched to the store.

They may or may not stop and talk with the customer, Cain says. The idea is to make their presence in the store known so the suspicious character moves on.

Other services for businesses include how to identify bad checks, how to make a store a harder target for a thief and what to do in case of a robbery. Materials like "How To Crimeproof Your Business" and others are also available.

The department will also help residents form neighborhood watch groups, Cain says. Any interested group of residents can contact the department at 822-7400 to receive a presentation on ways to protect themselves and their homes from criminals.

Along with the oral presentation, the department will pass out crime prevention material and give each home involved a security check, which offers a number of suggestions for securing entry and exits, such as installing drill screws in windows so they can't be removed from their tracks.

The size of the group of interested residents doesn't matter, and the best way to find out how many people are interested is to check, Cain adds. Eight neighborhood groups have organized watch programs in the area so far, he says.

Things everyone can do to protect home and belongings from criminals is get to know your neighbors and their habits.

Another way to thwart burglars and to ensure return of stolen property is to engrave a driver's license or other identification number items likely to be taken in a break-in, like cameras, stereos and television sets.

Donations by the Exchange Club, Rotary and other civic organizations have enabled the department to purchase engravers and take part in Operation Identification, Cain says.

The cost of operating the department's crime prevention unit is minimal because much of the material is paid for with federal money, Cain says. Also, donations from organizations and materials published by legislators mean low overhead for the program.

It's difficult to measure the benefits of the program. Studies show that criminal activity drops in neighborhoods that organize watch programs, Cain says, but more importantly, the activity of the unit works on the fear of crime in the community.

"We're hardening the target, making it more difficult for the burglar to get him to go somewhere else," Cain says. Turning the burglar away saves the cost of insurance and replacement to residents and the costs of investigation, processing of evidence and courts for police.

The department will use people from Detroit's Crime Prevention Unit and community resources as well, like locksmiths and alarm companies, to answer questions it can't, Cain says. It's up to residents to take the first step to organize their neighbors, however.

For more information about how to get involved in residential or business crime prevention activities, call the Park police at 822-7400 and ask for Cain.

QUESTIONS TO ASK BEFORE YOU LEAVE YOUR COLOR PRINT FILM FOR ONE HOUR PROCESSING:

- Before you drop off a role of valuable Holiday photos for one hour processing, ask the sales clerk these questions:
1. Does the lab use genuine Kodak U.S.A. paper and chemicals? Many one hour labs are using Kodak paper imported from France, which is not genuine Kodak U.S.A. paper, and will not give you the best possible print from your negative. Read the back of the print carefully... make sure it's all in English!
 2. Is the lab a Kodak COLORWATCH lab? Kodak has set uprigid standards for labs who can qualify the Kodak COLORWATCH certification. Most labs cannot meet these standards... so watch out!
 3. Are the color prints 5 1/4" long? If they aren't, your print is missing part of the picture you took, and that's in your negative!
- If the one hour lab you presently use doesn't "pass the test" on these three questions, come to Speedi Photo... a Kodak certified COLORWATCH processing lab!!

For the record

In an editorial last week, "George Mason's memorial," regarding the Bill of Rights, it should have said that Mason's home at Gunston Hall, Va. is maintained by the National Society of Colonial Dames and that the colony of Virginia adopted a Bill of Rights 15 years before the first 10 amendments were added to the U.S. Constitution.

An article last week, "Use the computer at Central Library," should have read that microcomputers are available to anyone with a library card in good standing who is at least 8 years old.

In the Dec. 5 story titled "Park group honors residents, businesses," Dan Moonan of the Maryland Vernor apartment building was left off the list of winners of certificates for outstanding garden or property improvements.

FLEC quarters approved

By Nancy Parmenter

Better late than never. The Family Life Education Council has asked and received official Farms approval to maintain office space in the former Cottage Hospital nurses' residence. FLEC has occupied the space since April.

"We apologize for the after-the-fact request," said FLEC board member John Urso. FLEC was required to come before the council for a special approval because the area surrounding the nurses' residence is zoned residential and has been specifically approved for Cottage Hospital use only.

"We're there (in the residence) because Cottage Hospital responded to our dire need," Urso told the council. "We're the poor cousin. Our rent is $200 a month — and that includes heat and light. They're not making a profit."

FLEC rents a six-room suite with a total of 975 square feet. It is usually occupied by the director, an assistant and one or two of the 20 volunteers who rotate office hours, Urso said.

The space was once approved for use as a day care center for children of hospital employees, but that program was never instituted. The remainder of the first floor is occupied by hospital administrative offices and the second and third floors stand empty.

Council voted 5-1 to approve the request, but stipulated that it is an exception to be granted only to FLEC. Councilwoman Mary Anne Ghesquiere was opposed to the request on the grounds that any uses besides the hospital should be prohibited in the residential area.

FLEC to offer parenting workshop

A Creative Parenting Skills Workshop sponsored by FLEC/Center Point is scheduled to begin Wednesday, Jan. 15, from 7 to 9 p.m. The workshop will run for ten consecutive Wednesdays at Cottage Hospital in the 4th Floor Conference Room.

This course was developed to help parents who are having communication problems with their adolescent children. It teaches parents ways to establish cooperation with teenagers and discipline skills. The workshop allows parents to share feelings and experiences as well as learn valuable parenting skills.

The Creative Parenting Skills Workshop was originally designed to provide support services to parents of children being counseled through the Juvenile Offender Program. FLEC/Center Point has been offering the course for three years.

A limited number of participants will be enrolled. The fee is $25 for individuals and $40 for a couple. Call 885-5222 to register.

WHY FRESH TURKEY FOR CHRISTMAS? BECAUSE THEY TASTE BETTER!

The flavor isn't "frozen" out. The fresh turkey doesn't stay for days or even weeks locked in a freezer. VILLAGE FOOD MARKET fresh turkeys are on our counter twenty-four hours after they're dressed. And all of that succulent aroma and flavor remains. Our turkeys are oven-ready and U.S.D.A. Grade A. Advance order will be appreciated.

That enrollment increase

Even though the long-term enrollment decline in the Grosse Pointe Public Schools may have been reversed this year, it obviously is too early to make any definite forecasts for the future or to consider budget increases to prepare for a new rush of students.

It is true that for the first time since the peak enrollment was reached in 1971-72, the enrollment in the fourth-Friday (of September) count was up in 1985. But the net gain of 41 students boosted the overall enrollment to only 7,350. That total reflects a decline of 6,179 or 46 percent since the peak was reached 14 years ago.

In a school system release, David King, assistant director of support services, was quoted as saying that the gain this year is the "beginning of a reversal" in the declining enrollment. Well, maybe so and maybe no, unless King knows something he is not saying. He did add, however, that the decline will continue until kindergarten classes are as large as graduating classes.

The school handout tended to emphasize the 24 percent gain in the number of students new to the system this year as compared with last year. In other words, there were 569 new students last year and 703 this year. They included students from families who had recently moved to the Detroit area, students whose families had moved into the district from nearby areas such as Detroit, Harper Woods and St. Clair Shores, and students transferring from local parochial and private schools.

Yet, graduations and transfers out of the district for one reason or another reduced the net gain to 41, which at this moment in time is the significant figure.

If the increase in the school enrollment continues for a year or two, then we ought to have a better basis for predicting the future. When that time comes, the school system may have to reverse direction and start planning for an enrollment revival such as that which occurred in the 1960s.

That would mean additional instructional and operation funds to meet increasing needs. But as the board and administration now prepare for next summer's millage renewal campaign, it appears they are thinking chiefly of holding the present millage line unless new factors indicate a continuing enrollment increase.

In commenting on the enrollment rise, Dr. John A. Whritner, the superintendent of schools, pointed out that the school system "is one of the important reasons families continue to choose to live in Grosse Pointe." True enough. Yet from the schools' viewpoint, the number of students is more important than the number of families.

But regardless of the size of the enrollment, the continuing goal in the Pointes is the maintenance of the excellence of the school system. That goal is so widely shared in the community that the great majority, in our view, want it maintained even when and if more funding would be required to achieve it.

They will be missed

The deaths of two Grosse Pointe police officers in the first two weeks of December remind us again of the essential community service performed by the people who staff our police and fire departments.

In some ways, the job of policeman or fireman in a community such as Grosse Pointe is even more difficult than it is in a huge city such as Detroit. It may not be as consistently dangerous as in more crime-ridden communities, but here the officers know many of the residents on a personal basis. That means that while they sometimes have to invoke the law against their friends as well as against outsiders, they also have to be diplomats who are familiar not only with the people but with the mores of the community.

It is true, however, that few of us realize the responsibility we put on these law enforcement officers on a day-by-day basis. They are our first line of defense against crime and fire but they are more than that. They serve as public safety advisers who help us protect ourselves and our property and the members of our families. Their presence on the street and in the fire station reminds us they are ready to respond when needed, whether the call involves a minor accident, a major crime or a disastrous fire.

Woods Public Safety Office Patrick M. Fagan died Dec. 3 after a year-long battle against cancer. Only 42, he had served the community for 16 years and was a highly regarded officer who in 1981 was the first recipient of the "Crime Prevention Practitioner" award from the Crime Prevention Association of Michigan. He was also past president of the Fraternal Order of Police.

Patrick Fagan

Steven Molitor

Grosse Pointe Park Officer Steven Molitor, 41, died after a scuffle last Thursday in the parking lot of a Mack Avenue restaurant in Grosse Pointe. He, too, was a seasoned and respected police officer, having served 18 years on the Park's force and was the current president of the Fraternal Order of Police in the Park.

One of the men died of the ravages of a deadly disease, the other after an incident that occurred while he was on duty. Together the two officers had put in 34 years of service to the Grosse Pointes. They deserve community recognition for helping maintain law and order in the Pointes and for putting their lives on the line on many occasions to protect their fellow citizens. They will be missed not only by their families and immediate friends but by the people they served so well.

Will GOP miss the bus?

Michigan Republicans joined with Democrats several years ago to repeal the Michigan presidential primary law because the primary came too late in the campaign to influence the choice of the nominee in either party.

Now, in their efforts to play a more important role, Michigan Republicans have adopted a plan under which party precinct delegates will be elected in August 1986 to start the nominating process. That would give Michigan Republicans the distinction of opening the 1988 presidential campaign.

It will be recalled that George Bush won the 1980 Republican presidential primary in Michigan over Ronald Reagan, but pulled out of the presidential race in the week after his biggest victory because Reagan had the nomination cinched by that time. That was strong evidence that the Michigan primary had been scheduled too late in the campaign.

But now Michigan Republicans, in their attempt to get an earlier voice in the GOP nominating process, may have erred in the other direction. They may have set their process in motion so early that nobody will know who the front runners will be or, in fact, who all of the serious candidates will be more than two years before the 1988 election. So Michigan Republicans once again may miss the bus on early backing of the 1988 nominee.

The theory is, of course, that the earlier a state announces its support for the candidate who emerges as the party nominee, the better the prospects for carrying the state for the nominee and the better the payoffs in patronage and other benefits for the state if the nominee wins the election. And while Michigan Republicans may be able to identify the front runner by next August, the betting is that it will be too early at that time to make firm commitments for the summer of 1988 when the next GOP national convention will be held.

It is true, however, that most of the better known Republicans who are considering the 1988 presidential race already have been seeking support in Michigan. Vice President Bush has been in the state several times in recent months and so has Rep. Jack Kemp of New York, generally regarded as Bush's top foe for the GOP nomination at the moment.

But Sen. Robert Dole of Kansas, former Sen. Howard Baker of Tennessee and evangelist Pat Robertson of Virginia also have been testing Michigan's political waters. There also has been Michigan talk about Gov. James Thompson of Illinois, former Delaware Gov. Pierre du Pont IV, former UN Ambassador Jeane Kirkpatrick and several other U.S. senators.

As exciting as it may be for Michigan Republicans to entertain and talk about these potential candidates, the state's GOP in starting the nomination process so early appears to be moving in the opposite direction from that recommended by a number of politicians and political scientists. They contend the presidential campaign already is excessively long and are recommending moves to limit its length.

Among those proposals is one to require presidential primaries to be held between mid-March and mid-June of election years and another to establish six regional primaries in March, April and May. This plan would require that all states participate instead of sponsoring their own individual presidential primaries or other methods of expressing support for presidential candidates.

Iowa with the first caucuses and New Hampshire with the first presidential primary have been getting a lot of publicity in recent years for starting the official presidential campaign. Michigan Republicans argue that a big Midwestern state would provide a more representative opportunity to test the popularity of candidates than either Iowa or New Hampshire. They have a point there. But Michigan Republicans may have gone too far with their effort to be No. 1 in the 1988 race. They are taking a chance that once again they will miss the presidential bus.

To the Editor:

Each year at this time a holiday tradition is reenacted. Christmas Seals® from the American Lung Association of Southeastern Michigan arrive by mail at thousands of households in Grosse Pointe Woods.

Most of us grew up knowing the fun of opening our seals when they arrived in the mail and proudly sticking them on holiday packages and envelopes as they went off to friends and loved ones. Somehow, even as children, we knew we were doing something good for others during a season dedicated to giving. And there are those of us who are old enough to remember when those pretty bits of paper funded a great crusade against tuberculosis, which for decades was the leading cause of death in this country.

Today donations to Christmas Seals® are still funding a great crusade — against all lung diseases. The work of the American Lung Association of Southeastern Michigan is more vital, more urgent with each passing year. Because the sad fact is that the death rates from lung diseases are up 25 percent since 1970 with an alarming 33 percent increase in lung cancer alone. Lung diseases are accelerating while those from other forms of cancer, heart disease and even accidents are leveling off or even decreasing.

Christmas Seals® have been an enduring holiday custom for 78 years, so it's easy to take them for granted. But they still symbolize the American Lung Association's ongoing and profound commitment to the lung health of this nation.

That is why we ask once again the citizens of Grosse Pointe Woods to contribute to Christmas Seals® and join in this truly great effort to control and prevent all lung diseases.

Egg-tossing is unneighborly

To the Editor:

This type of thing has been happening in Grosse Pointe Farms (McKinley Avenue area) where on several occasions eggs have been thrown at residence property (front doors and nearby areas) causing damage and nuisance to remove the residue.

Two certain boys have been observed by nearby residents near the scene on one occasion and are known by residents as being from the area.

This type of thing is a very unneighborly, malicious, sick and un-American way to enjoy life, and the police and neighbors in the area have been alerted to such happenings.

Any further happenings of this type can be made very embarrassing and perhaps costly to the boys and their parents or others because such will not be tolerated.

New edition of 'Know Your Grosse Pointe' available

The fourth edition of "Know Your Grosse Pointe" was in the stores Saturday. It updates and replaces the previous edition published in 1973.

Published by the League of Women Voters of Grosse Pointe, the 154-page book includes a fold-out street map of the five Grosse Pointes. The book is an encyclopedia of the area, from its beginning to the present. There are chapters on churches, schools, local governments, taxation, the judicial system and the libraries.

It has been completely rewritten and expanded. Frances Schonenberg, co-chairman of the project, said. The 26 chapters includes a new chapter on non-public schools.

The book is one of the main purposes of the League of Women Voters throughout the country. Schonenberg said, and it's published approximately every 10 years after a census. The cost of publication was financed with the help of contributions from Manufacturers National Bank and the Grosse Pointe Rotary Foundation. Schonenberg said, adding that the principal writer was Barbara Thompson.

Cost of the book is $4.50 and it is available at the following stores: in the City — Book Village and Schettler Drug; in the Farms — League Shop, Mail Boxes Etc. USA and the War Memorial; in the Park — Park Pharmacy and Corky's Surf Shop; and in the Woods — American Speedy Printing, Hedy's Book & Gift Shop and Merit-Woods Pharmacy.

Threat of flooding from Lake St. Clair Potential flooding problems exist primarily along the shores of Lake Erie, the Detroit River and Lake St. Clair, according to the Dec. 3 monthly bulletin put out by the Army Corps of Engineers.

All of the Great Lakes, except for Lake Ontario, remain extremely high, with Lakes Superior, Michigan-Huron, St. Clair and Erie setting new monthly record high levels again in November. It is predicted that all of the upper Great Lakes will remain high for the next six months.

The level in November for Lake St. Clair was nine inches above its previous record of 575.18 feet, set in 1972. The Lake Erie level was five inches above its previous record, also set in 1972, of 572.17 feet.

The heavy rainfall is the reason for the record levels and storms will continue to be of concern since the high levels could compound storm damage to shoreline property.

Nicaragua: A student's impressions

Woods resident Kathleen Sengstock wrote a paper, "Life, Politics and People in Revolutionary Nicaragua: Impressions of an American College Student," after spending five weeks in Nicaragua this summer. This is the last of three articles.

Contra War:
The contras' methods consist almost exclusively of attacks on civilians. According to Yan Van Bilsen, a Belgian journalist who documents contra activity in the countryside, all 48 commanders are former members of Somoza's National Guard. The contra frequently torture their victims before killing them and are also known for making recruits by kidnapping young Nicaraguan men and forcing them to fight. They also attack the economy of Nicaragua by killing transportation workers and agricultural producers and destroying the transport vehicles and the produce.

According to economist Debbie Barry, far from supporting free enterprise and the private sector, the contras are just as likely to attack the private agricultural producers as the state farm workers. Over 45 private production centers were attacked in 1984, and the attacks have been increasing in 1985. This is a fact which rarely reaches the media in the United States.

As a matter of fact, the contras do not seem to support or advocate anything, and one may wonder if their leadership actually intends to accomplish anything at all through the war. On the contrary, evidence of their destruction is widespread. Van Bilsen, who has also been in El Salvador, Afghanistan and Lebanon, describes the contra war as the cruelest war he had ever seen!

As I had mentioned before, while in Nicaragua, I did volunteer work with a local agricultural cooperative. This project was not my first choice of a volunteer placement. My first choice was to work with "IRENA," a reforestation project. One day each week, I would have accompanied the IRENA workers deep into the mountains to plant small seedling trees in deforested areas. The "responsible" who gave us an introduction to IRENA, specifically mentioned Switzerland as a major source of funding for the project.

Later, however, the American staff of the NICA school informed me that I was not going to be able to work with IRENA for personal safety reasons. The IRENA workers in the mountains frequently have been targets for contra attacks. The irony of the situation was inescapable. A U.S. citizen could not do volunteer work for a project that was funded by Switzerland, because she might be killed by an army that was funded by the United States!

A group of Americans participating in the NICA school program were able to see the brutality of the contras for themselves. Unfortunately, I was not with them at the time. They had an opportunity to view the bodies of some soldiers caught by a contra ambush. One soldier had his legs cut off; another had his hands and tongue cut off, and his eyes gouged out.

The general Nicaraguan population is intensely afraid of the contras, at least partially on a subconscious level. A former student with the NICA school had an article on his trip to Nicaragua published in a local newspaper in his home town in the U.S. The article included a picture of the Nicaraguan family and the names of the family members.

After receiving a copy of the article, the mother of the house became very upset. She was afraid that the contras might obtain the American newspaper and hunt down the family in the picture. If they were found, she feared they would all be murdered — for no other reason than the fact that they had some form of access to the American news media! I assumed that her fears were exaggerated, and I tried to reassure her that it was only one of thousands of local newspapers in the United States and that hardly anyone would see the picture. I do not know if she was convinced or not.

Nevertheless, I intend to honor her wishes not to have the names of her family members published as a precautionary measure to protect their safety — just in case this article does fall into the hands of the CIA or other supporters of the contras.

I have always believed in the concepts of freedom, democracy, and self-determination. As such, I am very proud to be an American. However, when innocent civilian mothers of a Third World nation must refuse to allow their family pictures to be seen in print for fear that their children will be massacred by a U.S.-funded mercenary army, it is time that we as Americans re-evaluate our policies so that they will actually reflect the principles and the values that so many of us hold dear.

I say

Christmas is for kids — like me

With less than a week until the day itself, I think I'll tell you why I like Christmas. Actually, it's a law in newspaper writing that we have to tell you why we like holidays. 'Tis the season and so forth. If you don't believe me, just look at any other newspaper.

It's really not that hard to say why I like Christmas. The whole season appeals to me. I can smile at snow falling without first worrying about shoveling it. It's carols, crowded malls, Santa's Castle, shopping, Salvation Army kettles and bells and lights on everything.

Actually, I'm glad Christmas is finally here, seeing how the decorations went up after Halloween and the buy-or-die-of-social-leprosy commercials started the next week. Two months of that could turn Mother Teresa into Idi Amin.

It's said because the only way I knew Thanksgiving was coming was because the newspaper changes deadlines. There were more Halloween specials on television than Thanksgiving specials.

The slighting of Thanksgiving is easy to understand. Looking around my home, I know why retailers love to jump straight into Christmas.

Take, for instance, the Christmas tree and sundry attendant items. Thanksgiving isn't that flashy. Put up a couple pilgrim hats and a cornucopia and that's it. There aren't $25 natural pine wreaths, $60 plastic trees, flashing season's greetings signs, strings of lights or life-size illuminated lawn figures.

What's a day of thanksgiving compared with 40 days of ringing cash registers, anyway? Now, I have nothing against ringing registers. The money retailers spend to advertise their latest death toys pays for the typewriter, paper, light and heat I now enjoy to write this.

I know how to save Thanksgiving. Next year, let's send Thanksgiving cards and gifts and sing Thanksgiving carols surrounded by expensive Thanksgiving decorations. Merry Thanksgiving.

Despite weeks of unrelenting hype, I think Christmas remains fun because it's aimed at the child in us. It's time to watch kids' faces light up in front of toy stores; watch and remember when we, too, played football in the snow because school was out; chuck and duck snowballs at each other; and give the neighbor's kids $10 to scrape the half-inch of new snow off the sidewalk.

It's time for adults to relax their unusually staid mores and customs and wish each other happy holidays without worrying about who ordered first at the last power lunch, who's wearing the best power-tie or what the latest trend in office backstabbing means.

I don't consider myself adult and I'm proud of that. I cultivate tenderly that child-like something in me and protect it from the world as much as possible until Christmas when I let it out. That's the part of me that makes me misty-eyed listening to Christmas carols or walking around the neighborhood at dusk watching the Christmas displays.

It's not easy to keep that little guy alive. Take, for instance, December's Board of Education meeting at Maire Elementary School that opened with a Christmas program for the school's first-graders.

I didn't want to be there that night. I wanted to be drugged, in a fetal position under four down comforters getting rid of the congestion that made me feel like I was wearing a fishbowl over my head. I didn't want to be breathing, let alone sitting on a folding chair through a school board meeting.

Once the kids started singing their original tunes in "Boo Bears and the Night Before Christmas," I stopped worrying about the thudding and sloshing in the left side of my head and the bed sheet agenda.

The kids were cute as they worked their way through the program. There were missed cues and muted voices, but no one expected Broadway. Santa and Mrs. Claus sang, followed by choruses of reindeer, snowmen (snowgirls, more accurately), toy soldiers and elves. There was even a brown Teddy Bear who lamented falling from Santa's sleigh, postmen delivering letters to the North Pole and a group of little girls in nightshirts singing about their Teddy Bears.

Watching them made the evening tolerable. Their fresh faces, without a set of puffy, blood-shot eyes in the bunch, were refreshing. This wasn't the time to run through national statistics on alcoholism and drug abuse, mental illness, child abuse and molestation and suicide to winnow out from those faces on stage the future victims of those tragedies.

This wasn't the time to wipe the happiness off those children's faces and put the world into their eyes and across their foreheads. It was time to enjoy them enjoying Christmas.

Christmas will always be for children in spite of toys that cost two weeks' grocery money or a month's car payment. It's time to let that little kid in us run berserk for a couple weeks before we lock it away and act like grown-ups again: playing politics, dressing for success, swallowing morals for money, selling dreams for groceries and plastering conformity across our lives to stay in line for that big break.

Christmas means warm cookies and hot toddies. It's the season to love our fellow person. It's the season to ignore the lady writing a check for the Salvation Army kettle, the laments of manufacturers who couldn't get the latest movie star-maimer into toy form for the holidays and the warnings of horrible death by toys from consumer groups.

Now, if you'll excuse me, I'm going to go out with the neighborhood kids and chuck snowballs. Then I'll gather some of my fellow child-like friends and do some carolling. Merry Christmas.

They want their business to go to the dogs

By Tom Greenwood

For Philip Edwards, it all came together in a dream: Build a better dog bone, and the world (and its pets) will beat a path to your door.

So he and his wife Elka, founded Phydeaux (pronounced Fido) Enterprises, Inc. and began marketing Bite-A-Bone, a polyurethane bone impregnated with a beef stew flavor.

Apparently sales have been going to the dogs, because business is brisk and picking up.

"I know it sounds strange," said

Edwards, 28, a sales representative for the C.J. Edwards Co., "but I had this really bizarre dream about a dog bone. I woke up, went for a walk and thought it over. This was about four years ago. I told someone about my dream and they said why not go for it? I decided that's just what I'd do."

Because he was familiar with the properties of polyurethane, Philip decided to make his new bone from that material. "It's soft, chewable and yet pretty tough," he said. "It never dries out like nylon does. Because it stays moist, we were able to mix a beef-flavored oil into the material so the bone is completely impregnated with the smell and taste."

"Nylon bones have been around for a long time," said Mrs. Edwards, 28, who describes herself as vice president and janitor of the company. "But they dry out and can break into sharp pieces when they're bitten. A dog swallowing one of those pieces can get hurt. Our's stays moist, so if it's swallowed, it just works its way safely veterinarian who specializes in animal dentistry. "I didn't know it, but animals, especially dogs, can get cavities too, just like people," Mrs. Edwards said. "Chewing strengthens their teeth while also cleaning them. These bones are a medical device as well as a toy. Chewing is natural in the wild, where chewing on bones can act as a natural floss. Things are different in captivity."

"We're contemplating marketing a super large model for zoos," Edwards said, "for their large carnivores, especially the big cats. Maybe something four feet long. It would be good for them, plus it's good p.r. for the zoos. People don't like to see lions and tigers chewing on bloody bones. Our bones would be cute and beneficial."

The Edwards also consulted an engineering friend who helped design the bones.

"They're made higher on one end so a dog can flip it up with just one paw," Edwards said. "It's also easier for the animal to hold between his paws while he's gnawing."

The Edwards received an American patent on Bite-A-Bone last March and are concentrating their sales efforts mostly on pet stores.

"We haven't approached the grocery stores or chain outlets yet," he said. "We're in about 1,000 pet shops all across the country. So far we've sold about 20,000 bones at $3.98 and $4.98 each. Right now we're applying for the Canadian and European patents and in five years we hope to market the bones all throughout Europe."

"We're not getting rich from this yet, although the sales have been good. Our initial investment was $30,000 and we're looking at more than that now because we have to re-tool some of our machines. The bones are made in Warren and packaged locally. It keeps us very busy. When I come home I just change clothes, eat and start on my second career. We've enjoyed it, but it's a lot of work."

According to the Edwards, there are 50 million dogs in the United States. Forty percent of all households have one or more dogs, which amounts to a $6-billion-a-year industry.

"We're aiming for 100,000 sales next year. If, in five years, we can capture two percent of the market, that'll amount to one million sales. "One million Bite-A-Bones," he said. "That would really make my dream come true."

What better testimony to the popularity of Bite-A-Bone than the happy looks on Elka and Philip Edwards' two dogs, Sammy, left, a golden retriever, and Sierra, a chocolate labrador. The two City residents said they've received unsolicited testimonials from their pets that the beef stew-flavored bones are the best they've every chewed.

Essay contest for scholarships

The Southeast Michigan chapter of MENSA announces its 1986 scholarship essay contest in conjunction with the MENSA Education and Research Foundation. Awards of $1,000, $500 and two of $200 each will be made in each of the group's nine regions. Southeast Michigan will also award a scholarship of $1,000 to the winning entrant within its area and up to five second place grants of $100 each.

In addition, two special awards will be given on a national level. The Rita Levine Memorial Scholarship of $600 awarded to a female returning to school after an absence of seven or more years and the Howard M. Turney Financial Aid Program which will provide $1,000 to study for a career in engineering, mathematics, medicine or the physical sciences. This latter award requires that the recipient score in the top 2 percent of the general population on a standard IQ test.

Awards are unrestricted as to age, race, sex, level of post-secondary education or financial status. Membership in MENSA is not necessary. The sole requirement for the scholarships is that the applicant be enrolled for the year following the award in a degree program in an accredited American institution of post-secondary education.

The awards are made on the basis of an applicant's essay of about 500 words which describe how receipt of the scholarship will aid the applicant in reaching his career, vocational, academic or other goals.

For further information concerning this scholarship and to obtain application forms, contact Walter Gannon, 1925 Alexander Drive, Troy, Michigan 48063. A stamped, #10, self-addressed envelope must accompany the request.

MENSA is an international organization whose purpose is to identify and foster human intelligence, encourage research into the nature, characteristics and use of intelligence and to provide a stimulating intellectual and social environment for its members. The only criterion for membership is having an IQ in the top 2 percent on a recognized IQ test.

through the system. Plus our flavor lasts forever. Nylon bones are flavored, but it washes off quickly."

Bite-A-Bones come in small, medium and large in the chewable bone, and large only in a "extra tough" bone.

"The large bone is for your really heavy-duty chewers," Edwards said. "The dobermans, German shepherds, pit bulls and that type. They're pretty aggressive. When they get a bone they can wear it down to nothing. Some can exert 800 pounds of pressure per square inch. The soft, chewable bone wouldn't last with them."

Before marketing the bones, the Edwards consulted with a leading

Report drunk driving toll-free

Michigan citizens are urged to help the State Police combat the drunk driving problem by calling 1-800-525-5555, a special toll-free hotline, to report suspected drunk drivers.

The toll-free number will be in operation 24 hours a day for citizens to report intoxicated drivers. This is the first time a hotline has been used in the state to increase the opportunity for removing drunk drivers from the roadways. To report a suspected drunk driver, citizens can call 1-800-525-5555. They should provide the location and direction of travel, vehicle description, license number, and be able to describe the type of erratic driving observed.

Although this program is new to Michigan, 10 other states are currently using this concept. Funding for the program is provided through a federal grant.

How to lose a friend — permanently

By Nancy Parmenter

The campaign against drunk driving has roused more public awareness of the problems of drunkenness than anything since Prohibition. There are students' and mothers' organizations against drunk driving, designated driver plans, media campaigns. But it's still a hard thing to actually face a friend or relative and tell him or her he can't drive.

"Our whole society, adults included, is under tremendous peer pressure," said Woods youth officer, Detective Jack Harwood. "Not many people are willing to go out on a limb and risk losing a friendship."

What most people fail to realize, Harwood says, is that they may lose that friendship anyway — and permanently — if the friend is killed driving while drunk.

Harwood spoke earlier this month to a group of high school students enrolled in a FLEC alcohol training program. When their training is complete, they will conduct discussion sessions with elementary students in an effort to stave off drinking problems before they start.

It is particularly difficult for adolescents to say unpopular things to friends — and even harder to report a friend's problem to parents or other authorities, Harwood said. Even when they realize intellectually that such a report is for the friend's good, they still perceive it as "telling" or "ratting."

"It's a dilemma for the kids," Harwood said. "We have no answers, except that they have to understand that it's their responsibility."

High school students in the Pointes have started their own designated driver program — Safe-Ride. "It's a good service," Harwood said. He said it doesn't go far enough, however, a point he made to the FLEC class.

"I don't want to discourage the program," he said, "but it could just turn into a chauffeuring service for kids who want to go out on weekends and get drunk." The program offers rides to people who are too drunk to drive or who don't want to ride with a drunk driver, but it does not require that parents be told of the drunkenness.

"It could happen that a problem drinker wouldn't surface. No one knows because there are no questions asked," Harwood said.

Drinking is usually a bigger problem in December than in other months, because of the holiday celebrations, according to the National Safety Council. There are 23,000 people killed each year in drunk driving accidents — 4,000 of them teenagers. More than 100 million adult Americans drink.

"Nobody is capable of driving unless they are sober," Harwood said. "Drink affects everybody, no matter how much they've had to eat or if they're short or tall, fat or thin. It does affect people at different rates."

That's one of the problems. People find excuses to demonstrate that alcohol affects them slowly — claiming that if they eat something first, they won't get drunk, for example. According to Harwood, two drinks is probably enough to make anybody unfit to handle an emergency.

The American Medical Association has proposed lowering the legal blood alcohol concentration limit to .05, half what it is now in Michigan. Only two states have a legal limit lower than .10, according to Harwood.

A normal 160-pound person will reach a blood alcohol concentration of about .04 by drinking two drinks in an hour, the National Safety Council says. The body eliminates alcohol at the rate of approximately one drink per hour.

A drink is not only a mixed drink. You cannot avoid a high concentration of alcohol in your blood by drinking beer. The safety council defines a drink as 12 ounces of beer, five ounces of wine, or 1½ ounces of liquor.

The courts have been broadening interpretations of liquor "suppliers" — a definition once applied only to bar owners. In some states, private citizens may now be held liable for accidents involving drunken guests. The Farms recently passed such an ordinance, extending the liability to parents of adolescent partygivers.

According to the National Safety Council, a California court ruled that an employer who served liquor at an office Christmas party must pay damages to an employee who was involved in an accident on the way home. A Texas court ruled that a company which sent a worker home because he was too drunk to work is liable for the accident he had.

Alcohol is not the only drug that impairs driving. A variety of medications for pain relief, motion sickness, colds and allergies can act on the same area of the brain as alcohol. Some are even more potent when taken in conjunction with alcohol.

Experts suggest that patients should ask their doctors or druggists if it is safe to drive after taking a prescribed drug. They should also read warning labels and ask about potential effects if combined with alcohol.

It's a diet riot at St. John Hospital

By Tom Greenwood

At St. John Hospital nowadays, the employees are seeing more of the patients, but the patients are seeing less of the employees.

A lot less.

Sound confusing? Not once it's realized that 430 St. John employees have lost nearly a ton of excess weight, thanks to the hospital's recent "Weight Off" contest.

The contest began Sept. 7 and invited employees to lose extra pounds in time for the holidays. The hospital goal was to drop 2,000

There were 43 teams, of 10 persons each, vying for the $250 grand prize for team loss. Winners, after 10 weeks of strenuous dieting, were the "Flab Fighters" of the Outpatient Clinic. Together they lost a total of 125.5 pounds.

"It was great to win, but it was tough staying on the diet," said Barbara Washington, a double winner. "I put myself on a 1,200-calorie-a-day diet. Thanksgiving was tough. I limited myself to small portions and no stuffing. A little turkey, raw vegetables and jello.

"Hopefully, I'm going to keep this off forever. I'm still on the diet, even though the contest is now over. It was good for morale here, too, because we worked as a team and supported each other."

The rivalry between groups sometimes got pretty intense, according to Terry Paola, registered nurse. "The weekly winning teams were posted in the cafeteria, so we kept tabs on everyone," she said. "Data processing would check the scales to make sure everything was accurate. The day before the final weigh-in, they brought over two boxes of candy for us. Chocolate turtles, my favorites.

"They didn't just bring it over. They opened them for us and put them in front of everyone. We sent a sympathy card to the cardiac catheterization unit, another of our rivals, telling them we were sorry they were going to lose and would they care to forfeit? They wouldn't concede and in return sent over five boxes of candy. We had candy everywhere. That was really tough."

Most of the group considered Margaret Moore to be their "secret weapon."

"Every week she came in with a different diet for us to try out," said Paola, giving Moore a hug. "One time it was peanut butter and toast, then it was green beans, hard boiled eggs and hot dogs. They all seemed to work. They must have, because we're the winners."

Because the contest was such a success, the hospital is considering a second contest once the holidays are over.

That would be just fine, according to the Flab Fighters, who were missing a team member as they lined up for a team photo.

"Christine Bousson is on a cruise," said Paola, with a smile. "Probably working hard on gaining it all back."

No programming because of Christmas

All programs are subject to change without notice.

Adrenalin to perform at benefit

The rock group Adrenalin, which consists of three Grosse Pointe residents, will perform with others at the Premier Center, 33970 Van Dyke, Sterling Heights, at 7 p.m. Monday, Dec. 23. The other acts include the Wings of the Morning inspirational chorale ensemble, magician Tom Plunkard, and musicians Deni and Frank Ricci.

All proceeds will go to Mother Waddles Perpetual Mission. Donation at the door is $3 and a canned good or $4. The event is the 9th annual "I Gave a Kid a Christmas" benefit sponsored by WRIF Radio and Tubby's Sub Shops.

Woman foils scam

Farms police report a suspected attempted pigeon drop scam in the alley behind Kroger's at Seven Mile and Mack Dec. 11.

A Detroit woman on her way to the parking lot found a small white case. When she picked it up, two men approached to claim it. An argument over the ownership ensued, according to the report.

The woman suggested calling the police. As witnesses began to gather, the men fled. One of them was later identified by the witnesses, the report stated.

The woman jumped into her car, locked the door and went first to the Harper Woods police station, then to the Farms. Police there speculate that the men had tried to set up a pigeon drop, which was foiled when the woman confiscated their bait.

Polish carols

Polish Christmas carols will be sung by the Polonaise Chorale at 7 p.m., Sunday, Dec. 22, at Our Lady Star of the Sea Church, 575 Ballantyne Road.

A cassette with Polish carols recorded by the group will be available after the concert.

Admission is free, however, donations will be accepted. For more information, call 464-7996 or 939-3407.

Repairman keeps woman's vehicle

A Farms woman who asked the friend of a friend of a friend to repair her car is apparently out some money and the car, according to Farms police. Eight weeks ago she gave her car to a Hamtramck man with the expectation that the job would be completed in 10 days to two weeks.

The man gave her an estimate of $400 to repair and paint the car. She paid $150, plus an additional $150 when he returned the next day with a list of extra parts to be bought.

The repairman has failed to return telephone calls from the car owner and the police, who have now listed the man and the missing car in the law enforcement information network as the unlawful driving away of an automobile. That's car theft.

Park meeting cancelled

The regular meeting of the Grosse Pointe Park City Council, scheduled for Monday, Dec. 23, has been cancelled due to the holiday. The action was taken at the Dec. 9 meeting.

The next regular council meeting will be Monday, Jan. 13.

Boys join girls in hospital volunteer work

By Pat Paholsky

The Candystrippers at Bon Secours Hospital are still there — only their name has been changed. They are now known as junior volunteers.

Gail King, supervisor of Volunteer Services at the hospital, said the name was changed to the Junior Volunteer Program about two years ago when boys began joining their ranks.

One such volunteer, Rudolph Stomisch, 15, said he got into the program because he plans to be a doctor.

"My mother heard about (the program) and knew I wanted to go into medicine," he said. "I said that sounds good and I went to orientation. There were four to five guys and probably 20 girls at the orientation."

"If you want to go into medicine, it's interesting to see behind the scenes, the background of a hospital," he added.

Rudy, who is a sophomore at University of Detroit High School, has been working at the hospital since September. He said he tries to get in every Saturday for four hours.

"I get a lot of satisfaction seeing the people and thinking I'm helping out," he said.

His basic duty is to transport patients to X-ray and back. "I like it a lot. Most of the patients we have are older people and they like talking to you."

He said it was difficult at first relating to older people, but as he watched the interaction between them and other volunteers, he learned to be at ease and enjoys when he gets a repeat patient who remembers him.

The volunteers wait in a dispatch room for calls from nurses. While they generally transport patients by themselves, they will go in pairs when the person is on oxygen.

Sometimes they take dead bodies to the hospital's morgue. "It was an awkward experience at first, but it's part of the job," Rudy said.

The girls still wear red and white stripes — a tunic over white slacks. The boys wear red blazers and all of the volunteers buy their own uniforms.

Rudy has two older sisters, one of whom also worked at Bon Secours as a volunteer when she was in high school.

While he enjoys his work, Rudy says he wouldn't want to be a hospital doctor, and that he plans to be a pediatrician. He participates in baseball, lacrosse and swimming at U of D and was involved in volunteer work for Focus: HOPE at the school. He is the son of Rudolph and Gloria Stomisch of the Farms.

Christmas Tea

The concert choirs of the North and South high schools got together Dec. 4 for the annual Christmas Tea. The choirs performed separately and, as in the past, combined for "The Hallelujah Chorus." The decorations were supplied by the Mothers' Club with the help of the Grosse Pointe North Valkyries. Directors were Ben Walker for North and Charles Gleason for South.

Grosse Pointe Cable adds four shows

By Mike Andrzejczyk

Local origination programming has grown by four shows this month on Grosse Pointe Cable. Three of the selections are new while the fourth is a return.

New listings are "Tableside Cooking," with Detroit Boat Club maitre d' Gregory Potts; "Something Original," a student magazine from the Association of Non-Public Education Community, the area's private and parochial schools; and "Music Makers," an hour of danceable music played by the Senior Men's Club Music Makers.

Returning to cable is "Sports Rap," Fay Howenstein's local sports program.

"Tableside Cooking," which airs in five-minute segments weekday afternoons and a half-hour show Monday and Wednesday evenings, is shot on location at the Boat Club, providing a fancier setting for Potts' preparation of meals flambe style.

The show, whose second segment began running this week, is the first production effort by Maureen T. Galeota, soon to be a graduate of Eastern Michigan University. Galeota, of the Farms, spent the past couple of months as an intern at Grosse Pointe Cable, part of her degree requirements for telecommunications and journalism. She did such a good job, the company decided to hire her, according to Wally Scotten, programming director.

"Something Original" is the culmination of AN-PEC's efforts to establish a system-wide cable club that uses students in grades six through high school to put together a weekly newsmagazine on the area's non-public schools.

The show is the result of the work of students, from filming and editing all the way through to negotiating a time slot for the show, according to production consultant Greg Delauro.

"It's a great learning experience for any student interested in learning about mass communications," Delauro said. "The basic techniques are the same here as they are for broadcast television."

The program has already done segments on Notre Dame, Regina, St. Paul, University Liggett, Bishop Gallagher, Our Lady Queen of Peace and Our Lady Star of the Sea schools.

The video production clubs at the schools are always looking for interested students who are willing to learn the technical end of programming, he added.

"Music Makers" will feature the 19-member band playing a variety of tunes from its repertoire, according to chairman-director Frank Seydler. The band is a sub-club of the larger Senior Men's Club, and members include former professional musicians and those who play as a hobby, earning their livings in more traditional careers like dentistry and medicine.

Besides Big Band tunes, the Music Makers perform tunes from Broadway hits, show tunes and Prohibition-era pieces. The group has done six tapings so far, according to Scotten.

"Sports Rap" first aired last year. This year's return will still feature Howenstein as anchor for the sports show, but will not include the round-up of scores it has in the past, Scotten said.

The first two shows this season include an interview with the director of scouting for the Detroit Red Wings and members of the University Liggett hockey squad.

All the shows, except for "Something Original," appear on local origination Channel 11. "Something Original" airs on education Channel 19. For more information about days and times, check the weekly cable guide that appears in Section A.

Family escapes smoke-filled home

A smoke-filled home early Wednesday morning, Dec. 11, almost spelled tragedy for a Windmill Pointe Drive family, according to the Park Fire Department.

The homeowner awoke at about 3:30 a.m. to find the bedroom filled with smoke. He awakened his wife and two children and hustled them outside, then returned to extinguish a smoldering chair in the living room.

The smoke was so thick that officers entering the building had to put on breathing equipment, according to reports.

Had the man not awakened when he did, it's possible the family would have died, according to Fire Chief Phillip Costa. Smoke detectors in the home didn't sound an alarm because the batteries were dead, reports said.

The incident is believed to have been caused by a candle left burning when the family went to bed. The candle burned down and may have fallen into the chair, causing it to smolder and fill two floors of the home with smoke. Extensive smoke damage was reported to the two floors of the home.

(Under authority of Act 230, P.A. 1925, as amended)

SIZE LIMIT ON BASS

Under the authority of Act 230, P.A., 1925, as amended, (being 300.1 through 300.5 of the Michigan Compiled Laws) the Natural Resources Commission, at its meeting on October 11, 1985, set the size limit on smallmouth and largemouth bass at 12 inches for a period of five years beginning January 1, 1986, through March 31, 1991, on all Michigan waters including the Great Lakes and connecting waters.

This order supersedes the previous order entitled "Size Limit on Bass," dated July 11, 1980, CFI-121.81.

Pheresis donors honored

The Southeastern Michigan Red Cross Blood Services' paid tribute to more than 1,500 special blood donors at the ninth annual Pheresis Recognition Ceremony last month.

Pheresis is a procedure in which blood is drawn from a donor, passed through a cell separator machine that removes a certain component — plasma, platelets or white cells — and the remaining components are then returned to the donor. The entire process takes between 90 minutes and three hours.

The following residents were among those honored:

Grosse Pointe Woods

Richard K. Gross, Dwite Walker, Michael Savant, Elaine Hitch, Marjorie Tanczyn, Hazen VanVliet, Susan Lasak, David Perry, Patrick Sweeney, James Truba, Jacqueline Wuerker.

Life at the Flats
Volume I
When Bedore Was King
By Michael M. Dixon
Mervue Publications, $25

It started out to be a scrapbook project, as Michael Dixon described it. Several years and hundreds of hours of research later, it turned into a 165-page book, "Life at the Flats, Volume I."

The seed for the project was a scrapbook that was among his mother's belongings.

"My mother had a big box of stuff," he said. "There was one scrapbook that was beautifully put together. There were pictures that I didn't know anything about and it mystified me."

Dixon, whose family has been involved with Harsens Island and the St. Clair Flats for five generations, first thought his only connection with the Flats was through the Mulford family on his mother's side. He then discovered that his grandmother on the other side was a Butler.

"As I was researching, the Butlers kept coming up and I did a family tree on them and it turned out they were the first or among the first people to have a cottage on the island," he said. "All branches on my family ended up being involved."

The scrapbook that intrigued him turned out to be a Butler scrapbook and when his grandmother died, he came into possession of more original material on the early history of the Flats. "I decided to start organizing it."

The result is a chronicle of the development of the Flats at the turn of the century and the hotels that made it a major resort area. It brought people from all over the country.

"Nothing has been done on the old hotels," Dixon said. The history of the Mervue, the Kushmere, the Star Island, the Riverside, the Idle Hour as well as the men who pioneered the development are told.

The rosters of members who belonged to the various clubs are a who's who of early Detroit. One of the famous names to frequent the Flats was President Teddy Roosevelt who considered the hunting and fishing there unparalleled.

According to the book, three excursion boats made the round trip from Detroit to the Flats every day. A person, in 1891, could board one of the boats at 3:30 p.m., have a fresh fish supper at one of the hotels and be back in Detroit at 9 p.m. — all for the grand sum of $1. During the course of a season, 200,000 people would visit the Flats when Detroit had a population of 300,000. And the Tashmoo Amusement Park, which opened in 1897, continued to operate until 1951.

"Life at the Flats" has an abundance of pictures, many previously unpublished. The book is available at the Book Shelf and the Book Village.

ment to one of the three academies.

Chaired by Bishop Gallagher Principal Brother Glenn Neiner, the committee held its organizational meeting Nov. 13. It will now review the qualifications and interview each of the 30 applicants in early December.

After reviewing the applicants' academic records and interview performance, the committee will present its recommendations to Congressman Hertel regarding the candidates most qualified for nomination. In all, the committee will recommend individual nominees for acceptance to the

Hertel appoints area residents to academy committee

U.S. Naval Academy at Annapolis, Md., the U.S. Military Academy at West Point, N.Y. and the U.S. Air Force Academy in Colorado Springs, Colo. Announcement of the committee's selections is expected sometime in January.

Commenting on his reasons for employing the committee approach in making his appointments, Hertel said: "Using the committee approach assures me that each applicant is thoroughly screened by a group that is representative of all segments of the community. In light of the growing complexities of our national defense, I feel that it is very important to train some of very best young people as the leaders of our military forces."

In addition to Neiner, the committee is headed by Executive Vice Chair M. Lorraine Ozment of Detroit, Army Committee Chair Joan Woodhouse of Grosse Pointe, Navy Committee Chair Rich Denewith of Royal Oak, Air Force Committee Chair Dr. Joseph Posch of Grosse Pointe Shores and Secretary Dennis Kwitkowski of St. Clair Shores. The three service committees focus on the applicants for each of the three academies.

Among those serving on the Air Force Committee are the following Wayne County residents: Al Auletto of Detroit, Albert Combs of Harper Woods, Jack Ford of Grosse Pointe, Leonard Halas of Harper Woods, Jan Hanshaw of Detroit, Norma Laskey of Detroit, Jim Pollack of Detroit, Clarence Rice of Detroit, Kirk Ryan of Detroit, Ellen Schreuder of Detroit, State Rep. Virgil Smith of Detroit, Anthony Soave of Grosse Pointe, Gloria Spath of Grosse Pointe, Frank Stella of Detroit, John Strom of Detroit and Frank Wasinski of Hamtramck.

Wayne County residents who serve on the Army Committee are: Bill Aust of Detroit, Harold Bondy of Detroit, Helen Buier of Hamtramck, George Dakmak of Grosse Pointe, James Friesema of Harper Woods, Walter Gibbs of Detroit, Freeman Goodrich of Grosse Pointe, Bob Grosscup of Grosse Pointe, Hugh Jarvis of Detroit, the Rev. Breaking ground

Our Lady Star of the Sea is expanding again and the ground-breaking ceremony took place Dec. 16 at the elementary school. There will be an addition of four rooms which will provide classroom space and office space for elementary and high school auxiliary staff and youth/adult religious education program staff.

Since the parish was founded in 1954 by the Rev. Ralph V. Barton, the facilities have grown from an eight-room elementary school in 1955 to its current high school, kindergarten classes and religious education programs. Current pastor of the church is the Rev. Ralph Kowalski.

Library study proposes new computer system

By Mike Andrzejczyk

It may cost as much as $900,000 over the next several years to improve the libraries' currently obsolete computer system, according to a consultant hired to review the system.

Dan Iddings of RMG Library Consultants gave the Board of Education a preview of his upcoming written report at the December conference meeting. The district budgeted $10,000 this year to cover the cost of the study.

The libraries are at a point where they must consider doing something about the current system, which will reach capacity in six to nine months, Iddings said. Also, the equipment the library owns is out of date and the manufacturer will no longer sell the maintenance contracts for it.

"The system currently in place is five or six years old. That system has reached its capacity," Iddings said. "You are at a point where you have to upgrade. In six to nine months, you will be limping with that system."

The manufacturer of the computer the library owns, Computerized Library Systems, Inc., will replace the current equipment with one it will service at no cost to the district, Iddings said. But the new computer will have no more capacity than the one it replaces, which is now 83 percent full, he added.

Hardware in place now doesn't allow any growth and no additions of terminals. The system's database will be filled in six to nine months at the libraries' current level of activity, Iddings said.

Iddings has met with Libraries Director Charles Hanson and a committee over the past couple of months to study what kind of system the libraries needed. A written report is expected for board members before Christmas. The report will include recommendations on what hardware the system needs, in what sequence the project should be bid out and over how many years the system should consider spreading the cost.

Much of the cost of the new system is replacement and upgrading of the current one, providing increased storage capacity and room for expansion for the school and public libraries. The rest comes from installation of a computerized card catalog system that will replace the cabinets now in place with computer terminals, Iddings said. Library patrons will electronically search the libraries' catalog of items.

Computerized public access will be "the most visible aspect of the system to the public," Iddings said. It will also be about one-third of the cost of the system over the current system, which is very labor-intensive, he added.

The libraries are now working on a requirements report, an 80- to 90-page document that outlines the system's functions and needs. Completion of that report is important in determining equipment needs, Iddings said.

A number of decisions have yet to be made, Iddings told the board. A final decision needs to be made on the size of the new system, how fast data can be retrieved and displayed, how to finance the work and how many years that expense should be spread over.

The project could conceivably be broken into eight phases, the first two being replacement of the current system, Iddings said. The specifications for bidding would be developed so the system would not buy anything more than needed to complete that phase, he added.

Iddings cautioned that the final dollar figure would most likely change. For his proposal, he used retail prices, not bidding prices for the equipment, which could run 10 to 25 percent lower. Also, the proposal showed to the board was for a 89-terminal system, which the committee decided to expand to 101 terminals throughout the school and public libraries. Also to be built into the budget is funding to replace the system every five to six years, he added.

No date had yet been set for the board now to proceed, school officials said. While some of the proposals may become part of the 1985-86 budget process, alternative forms of financing are being investigated.

Prime Time for senior citizens

By Marian Trainor

November is a month that has never yet found its identity. It flirts like spring, alternately bestowing smiles of sunny days with the petulance of those that are dark and gray. It tries on various garbs, mixing the golds and greens and reds of rustling leaves and then stripping itself down to the drabness of wilting brownness. It has moods of warmth but can suddenly turn cold and mean.

Now it has gone, leaving behind a mixture of regret for its passing and relief that we will not have to deal with such an unpredictable presence for another year.

We regret its passing because we know as November moves out, all chances of relief from the cold and wind are gone. Besides we are grateful for the holiday it brought. We are still basking in the warmth of family reunions, the wonderful dinner and the joy of good conversation and fun of Thanksgiving day.

As we tear the November page from the calendar and see the bold letters of December that head up the month to come, we know what to expect.

December is a no-nonsense month. It's consistently cold. It doesn't fool around trying to mislead you into the notion that maybe it will relent and let in a little warmth. December is strong-minded. It knows its place in the calendar of the year. You don't leave any of your lightweight clothes in the closet on the chance that maybe you might need them. You know it's time to put them away and bring out the boots and woollies.

December can afford to be rough because it brings with it a glorious reward — the wonderful magic of Christmas, the excitement of shopping; the fairland of decorated streets and stores.

Eagerly we respond as we rush around searching for just the right gift to please each special person in our lives. No time to slow down. No time to eat properly. No time to baby minor ailments.

Yet if we are to be in shape to have a truly merry Christmas, it is necessary to pace ourselves and not become too worn out to enjoy the festivities of the season.

For all its possibilities as the year's most wonderful holiday, the preparations leading up to Christmas have some built-in stresses.

This is particularly true for older shoppers. When you were 25, you could shop all day, go to a party at night and get up the next day ready to go again. Now you get tired before you have completed even half of your list. If you don't get to bed by eleven, you're irritable and still tired the next day, making that day's shopping even more frustrating.

It is better to plan short, early trips to the shopping malls and return home before the crowd gathers. It will take more days but probably less time to complete your shopping. You will arrive at the store fresh and alert and have less trouble making decisions about your purchases. Everyone has had the experience of being so worn out that they had trouble making up their minds about something they were sure of before they got bogged down fighting the crowds.

Getting out early is a good rule to follow on other counts. Merchandise is neatly folded and displayed. You know this is a plus if you have ever dug into a pile of articles that have been picked up and tossed back on the display tables until it has become a jumbled mass. All you can do is reach in and hope you come up with what you are looking for.

Eating wisely is another precautionary measure to ward off mid-shopping let-down. You won't get far on reducing that Christmas list on a coffee and doughnut breakfast. The addition of a small glass of orange juice and a dish of fortified cereal will get you farther along on the completion of your appointed tasks. The lift you get from sugar in the doughnut and the caffeine in the coffee is temporary, but the protein in the milk will stay with you providing the needed stamina to walk the malls and to endure standing in line to purchase an article that has already taken more time than you had planned on.

If you are like most shoppers who stand in line, you begin to resent this form of merchandising. Here you are, if you are lucky, maybe eighth in line. You take no comfort in that fact that you are not at the end as you shift packages around to avoid dropping them. You sympathize with the lone clerk who must do whatever it takes to complete each sale; run the credit card through, verify checks, make change if it is a cash transaction.

If there is any mercy, she has someone to put the purchase in a bag. If not, she must do that too, all the time answering questions about whether the merchandise comes in a different color, size or if it is marked down or if it will be discounted next week.

Then there is the battle of the boxes. No way will a size 46 robe fit into that box meant for a medium-size sweater, but that's all there is.

To add insult to injury, the overworked computer breaks down. Call the floor manager, get out a pencil and paper and add up the sum and don't forget the sales tax — where is the chart — is it 2 or 3 cents on 75 cents? Who knows? Who cares? Forget it! You didn't want it anyway. You relinquish your place in line to a more patient and persevering individual.

Yes, Virginia, once upon a time there was service with a smile. That was when sales people stood behind the counter and helped you find what you really wanted. Back then, you didn't settle for what you could find on your own.

Your purchase was neatly folded in tissue and put into a real-honest-to-goodness box. You were not handed one of those folded up puzzles that took the sure-handed dexterity of a pianist to assemble without tearing the corners. And even more astounding, you could have it sent! It was delivered to your door.

In those days, you didn't run back and forth to your car to put purchases in the trunk. The alternative to that is to walk from store to store, juggling and dropping purchases, fervently hoping you haven't lost any of them.

One more thing. If you didn't have the cash and you didn't dare charge another item or write another check, there was a system called lay-away. You could put a small amount down and retrieve your article when the monetary situation improved.

All of the above is true. It's not made-up. What happened? Progress, I guess.

There is an unwritten law built into progress. You can't go back, which takes us back to the contention that the only way to endure in this new and improved shopper's world is to fortify the body with long periods of rest and the kind of food that stays with you and gives you stamina and endurance. You need patience also, but for that you have to call on other resources, such as a charitable attitude and empathy for those who are struggling along with you.

Another barometer of how well you will come through the Christmas rush is how much time you allot to physical exercise. Shopping is strenuous but it is not body-toning exercise. If you have been attentive to the importance of getting exercise and have faithfully followed a routine, try to allot time in this busy season to follow some form of workout.

Exercise doesn't always mean jogging or calisthenics. There are many strategies for fitting exercise into your busy schedule. Brisk walking is one. Instead of driving up and down the lanes of the malls' parking lot looking for the closest slot to park, leave your car in the furthest one and walk to the entrance. Walk up the stairs in your house three or four times. It is superb exercise, considering the fact that your legs are lifting the total weight of your body at every step.

Finally drive carefully. Statistics show that not only at the holiday season but on any Friday-to-Sunday period, 350 to 500 people die on American roads.

Shopping can be enjoyable and exciting if it is approached with caution and careful planning and the firm conviction that the twenty-fifth of December will find you beaming with pride as you hand out your perfect gifts.

Tower, Imprints win highest award

The Tower, South's student newspaper, and Imprints, the newspaper supplement of students' creative work, rank among the finest in the nation, according to the school.

In evaluations of issues last year, four national journalism organizations gave the publications their highest honors.

The National Scholastic Press Association named the Tower a five-star All American with Marks of Distinction in all five aspects of the evaluation.

Giving the Tower its Medalist Award with 975 points of a possible 1,000, the Columbia Scholastic Press Association at New York's Columbia University awarded All-Columbia honors in three of the four evaluation aspects.

The Tower also received 935 of a possible 1,000 points and the George E. Gallup Award from Quill and Scroll, based at the University of Iowa.

The American Scholastic Press Association gave Imprints its first place award with special merit. Given special praise were the full-color cover by Kathleen Judge on the May issue; overall artwork; the sense of style and general visual pattern; and overall quality.

Top editors for the Tower last year were Amy Andreou, Peter Ecklund and David Loffredo. Ken Harris, Leslie Jeffs and Renuka

Uthappa headed the editorial staff for Imprints, with Lexa VanDoren leading layout and design staff.

Brownell students discuss problems

The jungles of the Amazon, the Everglades of Florida, or perhaps the Serengeti Plain of Africa — any of these faraway places might be on the itinerary of 15 Brownell Middle School students who meet on day a week at 8:15 a.m. to discuss the global problems of the endangered species.

As participants in the Future Problem Solving Program by the PTO, these students will meet throughout this year to research a total of three major problems that will continue to face the world in the future.

Students were divided into teams by their sponsors, Nancy Salamas and Barbara Sjolander. They hope to research, and their subsequent group solutions, will qualify their team for the state competition to be held in Ann Arbor in the spring.

Don. Messing, principal at Brownell, welcomed the public during Nov. 17 to 23 for American Education Week and cited the enthusiasm for the Future Problem Solving Program as just one example of the caring attitude he has come to expect in the student body since he came there two years ago.

Messing based his comments on the smooth transition in moving three special education classes to Brownell from Poupard this year. "It has exceeded my best expectations," he said, describing the interaction of these 30 new students with the more than 425 sixth, seventh- and eighth-graders enrolled at Brownell.

These three classes, composed of trainable mentally impaired, severely multiply impaired and severely physically impaired students, have earned the admiration of students and faculty for their accomplishments despite the severe problems they face.

"While our teachers emphasize the basic 3 Rs of traditional education, it always makes us very proud to see that our students are also developing the values that will make them responsible, caring adults," Messing added.

U of D to sponsor mock trial

Teams are now being formed for the 1986 Michigan High School Mock Trial Tournament to be held May 10.

The trial, sponsored yearly by the University of Detroit Law School and the Detroit Street Law Project of Wayne County Neighborhood Legal Services, is an opportunity for high school students throughout Michigan to learn about the law by participating as an attorney or witness in a mock case. The trials are held in real court rooms, follow authentic rules of procedure, and use actual judges and lawyers as the judges.

To participate a team must have at least four high school students and an adult sponsor. Teams are not limited to a particular high school but may come from youth organizations as well.

Winning team last year was University Liggett in Grosse Pointe. Runner-up was Plymouth-Canton High in Canton.

The tournament has the support of the Michigan Lawyers Auxiliary, the Barristers Association of the Detroit Bar Association, and the Frank Murphy Chapter of Phi Alpha Delta International Law Fraternity.

Anyone seeking information about the tournament should write to Mock Trial Tournament, 651 E. Jefferson, Detroit 48226; or call U of D Professor Alan Saltzman at 961-5444.

Essay contest

The State Bar of Michigan opened the 1986 Law Day Essay competition to all seventh, eighth and ninth grade students in the state.

Students are invited to submit original essays of not more than 300 words on this year's Law Day Theme, "Foundations of Freedom."

Awards for the top essays include U.S. Savings Bonds of $200, $150, $100 and $50, engraved plaques and dictionaries. Winners, their parents and their teacher will be guests at the statewide Law Day luncheon to be held May 1, 1986 at the University Club, Lansing.

Entries must be postmarked no later than March 1, 1986. More detailed information may be obtained by writing: Mrs. Karen Adams, State Bar of Michigan, 306 Townsend Street, Lansing, Mich. 48933.

They must be composed entirely by the student and may not consist of quotations from other works.

SEMCOG touches everyone in seven-county metro area

By Nancy Parmenter

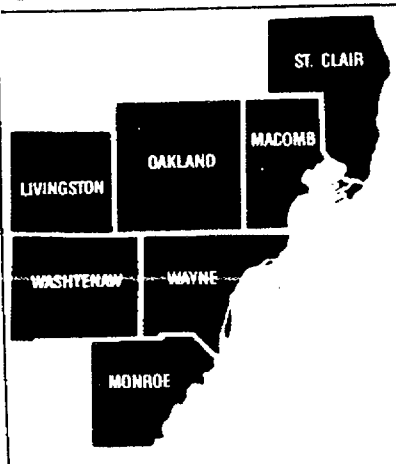

It's pie-in-the-sky, it's an unattainable ideal, it's a great example of people working together to accomplish something concrete, it's a pernicious leaching-away of individual rights, a mini-UN right here on southeastern Michigan soil. It is the Southeastern Michigan Council of Governments and what you think of it depends on who you've been talking to.

One thing is certain: There is probably not anyone in the seven-county SEMCOG area who has not been touched by at least one SEMCOG activity. The agency's project review function means that SEMCOG essentially has the last word on whether major roads, sewers and other development projects will get off the drawing board.

SEMCOG has been designated as the review agency for federal and state planning and development agencies. It has its finger in the pie whenever tax-funded housing, water and air quality, transportation, economic development, solid waste disposal or public safety is on the agenda.

Gail Kaess is high on SEMCOG. When she first ran for a position on the Farms council six years ago, she volunteered to be the city's liaison to the regional agency. Running for a third term in November, Kaess continued to cite the Farms' relationship with SEMCOG as one of the pluses of her candidacy.

Kaess acknowledges that sometimes the advantages of the regional group are difficult to see.

"It's hard for the Farms to understand why we should belong," she said. "They don't see any immediate benefit. But it's my contention that we need to know what's going on." Membership fees are assessed according to population. The Farms pays $1,100 a year.

"The impacts are more general than direct," agreed Farms City Clerk Richard Solak. "The review function is one of the most important things."

Specifically, SEMCOG has helped the Farms obtain a $94,000 Community Development Block Grant, which was used for street improvements, playground development and home repair for the elderly. And currently, the "St. Clair Six" (the Pointes and Harper Woods) are working on a joint system for computerizing police and fire records.

SEMCOG, through the Metropolitan Affairs Corporation, put up $20,000 in seed money for the computer project. MAC helped the cities obtain private foundation funding, hiring a consultant to shepherd them through the process, and provided staff assistance. The six cities anted up $5,000 between them for software development.

"They saved $95,000 by doing it together," said Dave Sanders of MAC.

The Woods, where the system is already in use, was the pilot project. The group bought compatible equipment and software and formed a joint police-fire data committee, with the long-range goal of interconnecting, Sanders said.

"Our goal is to help local governments save tax monies and spend efficiently. This could be a statewide model," Sanders said.

Another potential model is MAC's 13-city Oakland County project to address health-care costs for municipal employees. MAC, the cities and Blue Cross are jointly studying more effective ways to use the cities' health-care dollar. Individually, the cities would not be able to afford an extensive program, "but put them all together and you have a much larger animal," Sanders said.

And SEMCOG is "a marvelous forum for dispute resolution," according to governmental relations director Pauline Mengebier. "We provide a structure for local governments to work together." She agreed that in most communities, "only one or two" officials are interested, but those few work hard and participate fully.

One SEMCOG benefit is the nationwide computer network that allows communities to search the entire country for models and data

Citizens tend to complain about one more layer of government, but SEMCOG tries not to be an intrusive and obstructive bureaucracy, but rather an agency to which both officials and citizens can turn for assistance. The review process, for example, is not simply a government agency giving the nod (or not) to a project. SEMCOG notifies local planning officials about proposals in which they may have an interest and tries to provide opportunities for discussion and improvements of projects before they are graven in stone. Likewise, or block grant programs. It goes on to recognize that the state "has, in the past, lacked sensitivity and responsiveness to local concerns," but that SEMCOG membership can maintain and expand home rule powers.

SEMCOG sees itself as a bulwark against economic encroachment by the Sunbelt states. "Our role becomes increasingly important and significant as the region pulls together during this time of strong competition from the Sunbelt states and dwindling state and federal funds," the paper states. The to help them deal with specific local problems or issues. The agency also maintains a library of books, pamphlets and microfiche for use by area officials.

One of the most immediately useful pieces of information is the small area forecast, which predicts where the jobs and households will be in order to help communities decide where to put the roads, sewers and schools. "It's a set of assumptions," Mengebier said. "We can say that, based on these, this is what we project for your community."

citizens and officials are encouraged to contact SEMCOG boards whenever they feel that agencies are unresponsive.

A SEMCOG white paper on membership benefits addresses local fears about loss of autonomy through transfer of federal programs to the states. "The creation of such state block grant programs could seriously harm the home rule powers of local governments," the paper states. "SEMCOG will be working closely with the Congress and the State of Michigan to help insure that local officials have a significant voice in the administration agency works with area representatives in Washington and Lansing to ensure legislation favorable to southeastern Michigan.

Closer to home, SEMCOG reaches out and touches every resident of the tri-county area. It worked long and hard to educate public officials to the need of approving auto emissions tests, scheduled to begin next month. Through MAC, it is already studying the rebuilding of the Ford expressway from Dearborn to Vernier — a major project equal to the current Lodge expressway construction.

Needs of homebound elderly reach the crisis point

Helen Carter, a 68-year-old Lincoln Park resident, has been on a waiting list for home-delivered meals since September. Mrs. Carter, whose name has been changed to protect her identity, suffers from severe rheumatoid arthritis and osteoporosis. She is widowed, lives alone, and has a family that lives in the Southwest.

Her only income is Social Security and a small allotment of food stamps. As the winter approaches, it will be nearly impossible for her to make it out-of-doors to shop for groceries or to take care of other tasks. Frustrated with her fruitless quest to obtain services, she can only make do and wait.

The facts in this real life scenario, like countless other stories, exemplify the need for expanded in-home services for the elderly at a time when waiting lists for those services are placing the chronically ill or frail elderly months away from receiving help.

The Michigan Legislature acknowledged the need for new and expanded services for the homebound with the passing of a resolution making Dec. 15-21 as Keep Our Elders at Home Week. The resolution recognizes the critical role of the 14 Area Agencies on Aging as well as other aging organizations and commemorates the fourth anniversary of the Older Americans Act of 1981.

The two area agencies on aging serving the elderly of Wayne County are encouraging the development and expansion of services for the homebound. The Detroit Area Agency on Aging and the Senior Alliance, Inc. provide an array of in-home and supportive services to 355,294 senior citizens in the county.

DAAA serves the city of Detroit, the Grosse Pointes, Hamtramck, Harper Woods and Highland Park.

The Senior Alliance, Inc. serves the remainder of the county. Both agencies provide Older Americans Act monies to subcontractors who provide the services to the aging community.

Virginia L. Crowthers, executive director of DAAA, says the graying of Wayne County, the early release of older persons from hospitals (due to Medicare DRG policies) and inadequate resources have stretched the capacity of available in-home services to address the growing needs of the elderly.

"There needs to be an expansion of public and private resources as well as increased coordination," she said. "Surely it is more cost effective to support in-home services than institutional care. Our clients prefer to remain in their homes rather than be admitted to nursing homes prematurely."

In Wayne County, there are more than 1,000 individuals on waiting lists for home-delivered meals and approximately 400 persons on waiting lists for personal care, home-maker and chore services. Service providers attribute this gap in service to the increasing number of elderly persons who need the assistance after illness or hospitalization. They explain that funding has not increased with demand.

DAAA has been successful in reducing the meals waiting list of 2,000 a year ago to 1,000. Management changes and assistance from local churches helped to decrease the magnitude of the problem, but the waiting lists still linger on.

"Simply visiting a parent or helping an older neighbor with chores can help the elderly to remain in their home," Crowthers said. "Supporting community service agencies can help too."

Individuals interested in making contributions should contact the Detroit Area Agency on Aging at 222-5330 or the Senior Alliance, Inc. at 722-2830.

prank and it resulted in the death of a good man," Kennedy said. "It's a tragedy all the way around."

Detectives from the City approached the Wayne County prosecutor's office Dec. 13 for charges against the suspects, who were being held at the City and Farms jails on open charges. When the prosecutor's office postponed a decision until Wednesday, Dec. 13 (after press time), the youths were released to the custody of their attorneys.

The Park scout car, which was towed to the City for examination, was returned to the Park Friday afternoon. Police searched the vehicle for fingerprints, and reported that one of its tires was flat.

Several council members disagreed. "The marketplace will take care of it," said Councilman Harry Echlin.
"What Under Hill has here is something that makes development more attractive," said Councilman Bruce Rockwell. "The exclusive right to parking right across from the building is a good selling point to tenants."

Christmas: A time . . .

School play. He had only one line to learn: "Behold, I bring you glad tidings of great joy!"
He studied his part for weeks, but just couldn't seem to remember it. It was too hard to understand. He asked his mother what "glad tidings" means. She told him, "good news," which was a help. He practiced some more.
When the night of the performance arrived, even though by then he knew his lines inside out, he got flustered and blurted out, "Listen everybody, I've got good news for you!" Which about sums it up.
On a more irreverent note, John Corrado of the Grosse Pointe Unitarian Church is partial to the poetic fable he says is written by his "altar-ego." It cuts to the heart of Christmas and demonstrates that you, too, can be tough.
Mary (virgin, the story goes) wrapped her babe in swaddling clothes and though she was without a sin, was refused room at the inn. With Joseph, husband strong and able, she then proceeded to a stable where, that night so cold and deep, she hoped to get a good night's sleep.
But 'twas proven in that stall the bromide, "You can't win 'em all."
Ev'ry time she closed her eyes in would come a few more guys. First the shepherds (and their sheep!), then some angels came to peep. Such a patient mom and dad somehow kept from going mad. (Wouldn't you at least remark, "Joe, if I hear one more hark from those angels there on high, I will either scream or cry!")

Then, to really drive 'em bats, some drummer kid "rat-a-tat-tats."
It's hard enough to raise a boy without all of the hoi polloi joined in noise and merry song fright'ning junior all night long. "Joe," said Mary with a kiss, "I cannot believe all of this!"
Then, 'sif that were not enough, she endured the Wise Man stuff. They, three kings of Orient, came, each one with a weird name, bringing gifts the babe could use 'bout as much as thumbnail screws.
Now I ask this serious thing: would some real wise persons bring gifts that were so "off the wall" for a family in a stall?
How about a casserole or a bucketful of coal to warm a trio so distressed?

No, these wise guys strangely dressed thought not like the common dad or mom or babe. How truly sad! But, as told in the "Good Book," these three folk were hardly shook by the strange things they beheld while in Bethlehem they dwelled.
So, when you're inclined to brood at the seas'nal sight and mood and trip the storekeeps lay on you, take a moment or a few to muse upon this family who no one put out of their tree. They could take it - so can you.
Happy Chanukah. Merry Christmas.
Happy New Year, too!

Schools institute adolescent suicide prevention programs

By Nancy Parmenter

Christmas, that time of good cheer and warm friendship, can actually be a time of increased depression. The extra emphasis on the fun most of the world is having only exacerbates loneliness.

"It is a problem for people who come from an empty environment," says Dr. Alfred Topico of the Psychiatric Institute of Michigan. "You're going to see a lot of people who aren't getting enough support for their emotional needs." And that can mean an increase in suicide attempts.

At least 50 people turned out last week for a public forum on teen suicide. They heard some good news and some bad news and some disagreement among experts as to the scope of the problem.

Dr. Emanuel Tanay, a psychiatrist affiliated with Wayne State University, addressed the title of the forum, "Teen suicide — Why?" with a question of his own. "Why not?" he said. "Why should teens be exempt? People from the beginning of time have engaged in self-destructive behavior." Tanay said there is "absolutely no epidemiological evidence" of an epidemic of teen suicide and therefore no "justification" for panic.

Tanay urged the audience to respond to a suicide threat as if they were rescuing a drowning person. "You must have courage to take action," he said. "We are so concerned with freedom that we'll let people die just so we don't interfere with their freedom."

Dr. Beth Ann Brooks, also a Wayne State University psychiatrist, said that teen suicide can be blamed on the alienation that may occur as families move frequently and fail to put down roots. This transient lifestyle can lead to a sense of despair and feelings of rejection, hostility and aggression. Add to that the fact that "parents are pursuing as many goals as their teenagers in terms of lessons and activities," and have less time to devote to their children, and Brooks sees an epidemic.

"The statistics are grossly under-reported," she said.

So-called epidemics often occur on a small scale within a school or a peer group, Brooks said. "There get to be stories that idealize the teenager who committed suicide, a romanticization of death."

Brooks said school teachers are the first line of defense, a point the schools are anxious to make as well. A newly formed school-based advisory committee had its first meeting this week. Its 17 members represent public and independent schools, administrators, social workers, parents, students, clergy and community groups.

Dr. Claire Hunt, chairperson of the committee, said background data-gathering has already taken place. "The first thing we want to do is establish the proportions of the problems," she said.

The committee will look at existing suicide programs in other parts of the state and nation and put together a plan not only for coping in case of a suicide, but for helping students to better self-esteem and coping skills and helping teachers and other staff to recognize the signs.

"It's a challenge to do it right," Hunt said.

The public schools have a staff of eight social workers. One is on full-time assignment at each high school, leaving the other six to divide their time among the three middle schools and 10 elementary schools. Their goal is to be available to students with problems from grades to personal relationships to suicide and everything in between.

The public forum brought out the point that the program needs a higher profile. "You keep saying help is available," noted one anonymous comment at the end of the program, "but I'm a third-year student at North and I didn't know there was a social worker until I heard it tonight."

Teachers at both the public and independent schools have already started participating in training offered by the county Intermediate School District. Five teachers at University Liggett, which experienced a suicide two years ago, are involved in suicide prevention training currently, according to counselor Jacqueline Maher.

Liggett's counseling program is designed to reach every high schooler every day if he or she needs and wants it. In addition to four teacher-counselors, who are available on short notice at any time, every high school teacher has had some training to alert him or her to potential problems, Maher said.

Homerooms are kept deliberately small, with only six to eight students, so that teachers may hold discussions and interact with the group to look for an early warning of trouble. They are trained to note changes in personality and behavior and communicate possible problems to the teacher-counselors. The entire program is monitored by a consulting psychologist who visits the school every two weeks to advise appropriate course of action.

"The teachers have credibility with the students," Maher said. "they see them every day. They are sometimes shy to come in, but it's better than somebody visiting half a day a week." Maher says the problems cover an infinity of areas: drinking, drugs, sexuality, family relationships, grades, friends, parents, divorce, working parents.

Pierce Middle School experienced a suicide two years ago. In an effort to continue reaching the students, a suicide prevention program was held in November by the Suicide Prevention Center. Several students responded afterward by coming to the counselors.

"Some came in small groups just to talk for a while," said Principal

Donald Bassett. "Nobody ever gets hurt by getting a little attention and it's important to continue touching base with the kids from time to time."

Students who seemed to be having trouble were referred to more extensive counseling and their parents were advised, Bassett said. The degree of student response was an eye-opener to school staff.

"The staff got better recognition of the stress the kids are under," Bassett said. "Everybody's under more pressure than they were 10 or 20 years ago. We all want to make sure we're doing the right thing. The end result (of the program) is that we're more sensitive — and that's a benefit to the kids."

Mary Leonhardi led the Pierce program. Potential suicides feel that their life is out of control, she says. Some of the signs to be aware of are: depression, changes in eating or sleeping patterns, carelessness about appearance, tardiness, quitting a job or school.

The important thing is to watch for a pattern. As Brooks told the forum audience, "Every kid who combs his hair straight up on top or wears crazy clothes is not a potential suicide."

A typical sign, Leonhardi says, is the effort to organize life. "They start planning and taking care of business," she said. "They start giving away valued possessions, apologizing for long-forgotten arguments, saying goodbye to friends. It's important for people not to ignore it. Check it out — ask how they're doing."

No one should be afraid to mention suicide. It is a myth that mentioning it will put the idea into a depressed person's head. Experts agree that open discussion is more likely to prevent a suicide than precipitate it.

"Parents need to encourage their children to talk when they have problems," Leonhardi said. "They can't afford to lose touch with their kids."

The same advice holds true for friends. "If a friend talks about suicide, tell somebody," she said. "Keep telling somebody until someone takes action."

Liggett Upper School head Stephen Clem agrees. "One of the things that is so hard for survivors is that they knew and didn't take it seriously," he said. "We have that responsibility."

Plans under way for fireworks event

The Grosse Pointe Business & Professional Association of Mack Avenue will receive $500 from the Park for next year's Fourth of July celebration. Robbie Curry, co-chairperson of the event, made the request at the Dec. 9 council meeting.

The date next year is set for Sunday, June 29, and will include a fireworks display and a band concert at the Parcels School playground.

To date, the group has received a promise of police, fire, ambulance and public service personnel from Grosse Pointe Woods as well as a $500 donation. The association will be seeking the same contribution from the other Pointes.

Holiday deadlines

Early deadlines will be in effect for the Dec. 26 and Jan. 2 issues. For Dec. 26, they are:

Nutcracker

By Elsa Frohman
The curtain goes up and a graceful beauty dances across the stage on the very tips of her toes. Her feet barely touch the floor — she seems to float on a cushion of music.

What little girl hasn't dreamed of being a ballerina?
Mary Lederman, a freshman at Grosse Pointe North High School, has done more than dream. She has danced. And this year she will dance in her ninth production of Tchaikovsky's "Nutcracker" ballet with the Detroit Symphony Orchestra at Ford Auditorium.

This year, Mary will dance the part of Clara, the little girl who rescues the Nutcracker Prince, for the evening performance on Dec. 22 and for the matinee on Dec. 29. She will dance two supporting parts in every other performance.

Mary has spent a lot of time preparing for the part of Clara. The road to her first principle role began nearly 10 years ago when she was just 4½ years old.

"I liked to watch ballet and wanted to start dancing," Mary said.

Mary's parents went along with her wish and got her into ballet lessons with the wife of Jacob Lascu, the leader of Dance Detroit which stages the Nutcracker for the DSO each year.

In 1976, when Mary was 5 years old, she danced in her first Nutcracker as one of the children in the opening Christmas party scene. Since then, she has participated in the program every year.

When Mary was 8 years old, she came to the attention of Lascu and was asked to join his classes as part of the Lascu School of Ballet and the Marygrove College Continuing Education Program.

Ballet is a demanding vocation. Mary takes lessons six days a week — 1½ hours a day on weekdays and 3½ hours on Saturday. Nutcracker rehearsals are in addition to her regular dancing schedule.

For Mary, the pleasure of dancing is not without its sacrifices.

"There is the time and the injuries," she said, "and the dieting."

The time spent in lessons and rehearsals means she has little opportunity to get involved in school activities or to develop a social life.

The injuries are endemic to ballet. She has suffered tendonitis in her ankles severe enough to put her on crutches for a while earlier this year.

And the dieting — in order for the lifts to seem effortless when dancing with a partner, a ballerina must be a featherweight.

"Our ballet teacher always thinks we have to be skinnier than we are," Mary said.

But she perseveres — icing her ankles after she dances and turning down pizzas — all to dance for just a while at center stage.

"I don't know if I want to be a professional dancer," she said. "I'll try out this summer for the summer schools from the major ballet companies. Then I'll decide."

Mary Lederman dances with her Nutcracker in the role of Clara. Her costume was sewn by her mother. The nutcracker doll is a souvenir of a previous performance in the Nutcracker Ballet with the Dance Detroit company.

Mary attends ballet lessons 1½ hours a day on weekdays and 3½ hours on Saturdays to perfect her technique. The heavy schedule of lessons and rehearsals takes its toll in tendonitis and ingrown toenails, but Mary says it is worth the pain for the opportunity to perform.

Substitute nutrition for calories in cookies

Healthful cookies that offer a choice over the empty sugar cookies are a plus for all members of the family. You will find they are a welcome substitute at teas as well as for snacks for friends and neighbors.

The following is a selection of nutritious cookie recipes from the low calorie, low-cholesterol, budget-wise kitchens of Thyra Grey Howard and Helena DeWitt Roth.

Cocoa Kisses

3 large egg whites
1/2 tsp. cream of tartar
1 cup sugar, sifted
2 Tblsp. unsweetened cocoa

Raisin Newtons

Raisin Newtons are a delicious, new, chewy slant on an old time favorite. Instead of the traditional fig, these cookies are made with raisins, orange juice, whole wheat flour and honey — all highly nutritious ingredients containing a wealth of iron, selenium and other valuable minerals. Try freezing the raisins for greater ease in chopping.

1/2 cup margarine
1/2 cup brown sugar
1/2 cup honey
1 egg, well beaten
1 cup flour
1 cup whole wheat flour
1 tsp. baking powder
1/2 tsp. soda
1/1 tsp. salt

Raisin Filling:
1 box (15 ounces) raisins, chopped
1 1/4 cups orange juice
1/4 cup sugar
1 beaten egg
Sugar

In a large mixing bowl cream butter and sugar. Beat in honey and well beaten egg. Combine dry ingredients and gradually stir into creamed mixture, mixing well. Shape into two 3x7-inch rectangles, wrap and chill for at least two hours.

For Filling — In saucepan combine raisins, orange juice and sugar. Bring to a boil and simmer 8 to 10 minutes, stirring, until liquid is absorbed. Chill.

Spoon half of filling lengthwise down center of rectangle of dough in a 2-inch wide strip, to within a half-inch of ends. Fold long sides of dough over filling, overlapping slightly. Press gently to seal.

Place on greased baking sheet, seam side down (dough may crack some). Brush with beaten egg, coating cracks generously. Sprinkle lightly with sugar. Repeat with remaining dough and filling. Bake in preheated 400-degree oven 12 to 15 minutes, until golden. Let stand 10 minutes. Remove to cooling rack to cool completely. Cut into bars. Makes 24.

Calories about 145 per bar. Cholesterol about 12 mgs.

Spiced Apple Cookies

A really toothsome cookie that is chock-full of healthful ingredients.

1 cup raisins
1/2 cup unsalted margarine
1 1/4 cups brown sugar, packed
1 egg
1/1 cup skim milk
2 1/4 cups flour
1 tsp. baking soda
1 tsp. cinnamon
1/8 tsp. salt
1/2 tsp. ground cloves
1/2 tsp. ground nutmeg
1/2 cup chopped walnuts
1 cup finely chopped unpeeled apples

In small saucepan cover raisins with water. Bring to a boil; remove from heat. Cover and let stand for five minutes. Drain.

Meanwhile in large mixer bowl beat together margarine and brown sugar until light and fluffy. Beat in egg and milk. Stir together flour, soda, cinnamon, salt, cloves and nutmeg. Add to shortening mixture and beat until well blended. Stir in nuts, apples and drained raisins. Drop by rounded teaspoons onto ungreased cookie sheet. Bake in preheated 375-degree oven for eight to 10 minutes. Immediately remove from cookie sheet. Makes four dozen cookies.

Calories about 77 per cookie. Cholesterol about 5 mgs.

Mary has spent two summers at Blue Lake Fine Arts Camp in Muskegon, on scholarships. She also won a gold medal in the Scholastic Olympics for dancing while she was a student at St. Joan of Arc School in St. Clair Shores.

Mary has the full support of her family in her pursuit of excellence. "It takes a lot of discipline," her mother said. "But it pays off. He (Mary's teacher, Jacob Lascu) always tells his dancers that these are not recitals, they are performances that people pay money for. It's very professional."

For Mary's family, the Christmas season is the Nutcracker season. Her mother is the secretary at St. Joan of Arc School and her father is an organist at a local church, but the family spends its Christmas vacations going to Nutcracker performances and taking Mary back and forth to rehearsals. Mary takes off from school during the last week before the ballet opens to rehearse full-time.

The rewards of Mary's labor have been great. At 14, she has danced with several of the top performers in the world, including Cynthia Harvey and Ross Stretton, in the Dance Detroit production of "Swan Lake" in 1984 at the Macomb Community College Center for the Performing Arts, and this year's Nutcracker headliner, Merrill Ashley, who will dance the Sugar Plum Fairy.

"Cynthia Harvey was wonderful," Mary said. "She's very down to earth. Ross Stretton was terrific."

When she dances Clara on Dec. 22 and 29, Mary will be achieving a dream that her whole family has shared in. Her mother sewed her Clara costume and the entire family has been behind her.

"We're typical stage parents," her father said. "We try to help along any way we can. It's wonderful to watch the kids improve."

Though she has achieved one dream, Mary hasn't stopped looking to the future.

"I'm looking forward to next year," she said. "Performing — yeah, it's worth the pain."

The Nutcracker opened on Dec. 17 and will continue through Dec. 31. For tickets, contact the Ford Auditorium box office.

Goodwill Thrift Store offers bargains for Santas on a budget

Goodwill Industries' Roseville Thrift Store, 26510 Gratiot Ave., is making a special effort this holiday season to provide quality merchandise for their budget-minded customers. Many new toys and gift items have been ordered to supplement the items available for sale which have been donated by the community. The store, located directly north of Eastgate Shopping Center, is open Monday through Saturday from 10:30 a.m. to 5:30 p.m.

Carolynn Andren, manager of donated goods and retail sales, said, "The single parent can find her family a multitude of merchandise ranging from toys and clothing to furniture and housewares for the home. Families on a fixed income, senior citizens, single parents, collectors and trend-setters alike can always find bargains. The Thrift Store is an excellent place to shop for designer fashions and children's clothing and the clean store, friendly staff and courteous service make it a pleasant place to shop."

Clean usable goods are always welcome and will be accepted at the two Attended Donation Centers and also at the rear of the store. The Donation Centers are located in Warren at 13 1/2 Mile and Van Dyke in the Pak-N-Save Plaza and in Utica at 23 Mile and Van Dyke, also in a Pak-N-Save Plaza. For further information please contact the store at 777-4410.

Amber Whittney Clark

Christopher and Robin Clark of Detroit are the parents of a daughter, Amber Whittney, born Dec. 5. Maternal grandparents are Paul Greene of Detroit and Sharon Baker of Roseville. Paternal grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. Charles Clark of Grosse Pointe Park.

Betty Durkin, right, president of the Alpha Mu chapter of Delta Gamma, welcomes Kathryn and John Whritner to the Delta Gamma Christmas Tea.

Sorority honors Whritner

On Sunday, Dec. 8, members of the Alpha Mu chapter of Delta Kappa Gamma honored Dr. and Mrs. John Whritner at the annual Christmas Tea. Whritner, Grosse Pointe's new superintendent of schools, was part of a special event held yearly by Delta Gamma.

The occasion provided members with the opportunity to meet the Whritners, to gather together for Christmas cheer, and to bring gifts for residents of Father Murphy's Home and for patients of the Hillcrest Nursing Home.

The group's next meeting, Jan. 21, will have an international theme and will include displays of artifacts from Mexico, Finland, England, Norway, Sweden, Canada, Iceland and other nations members have visited.

Lovejoy reaches century mark

Louise Lovejoy, a former teacher at Grosse Pointe South High School, celebrated her 100th birthday on Nov. 29. Lovejoy currently resides in Redlands, Calif.

She became a teacher at South in 1928 when the school opened. She taught history there until her retirement.

Vatican Christmas draws visitors worldwide

By Mercer Cross
National Geographic News Society

By the thousands they stream in to St. Peter's Square, from all parts of the world, eagerly queuing up before the home sanctuary of Roman Catholicism to join in a colorful observance of Christ's birth.

The throngs begin to assemble hours before the mass, celebrated by Pope John Paul II, begins at midnight on Christmas Eve.

Tuxedoed ushers, volunteer "gentlemen of His Holiness," escort up to 25,000 ticket-holding visitors to their seats in portable chairs arranged around the high altar of the basilica.

The gold in the mosaics of the ceilings and the great dome glows in rich splendor under lights turned on only for special occasions. Multicolored flowers add a festive touch to the cavernous baroque structure.

As the Pope mounts the altar, the excited crowd rises and applauds, then grows silent as the service begins. The Vatican choir sings, in Latin, the music of the church. A "people's choir" sings carols from another part of the basilica, creating a stereophonic effect.

The international crowd joins the pontiff both in prayers and songs, following text and music in illustrated booklets distributed at the start of the service. The basilica rings with words and music recited or sung in Italian, English, Latin, German, Polish, French, Portuguese, Spanish, Chinese, Indian and Hausa.

At the conclusion of the mass the Pope takes a carved wooden statue of the Christ child from before the altar, carries it to a creche in a side chapel, and places it in a crib.

Under John Paul II, "there's a much greater spirit of hospitality" at the midnight mass than in the past, says Monsignor Thomas Banick, pastor of St. Mary's Church in Wilkes-Barre, Pa., and former vice rector of the Vatican's North American College. "He has what I would call a populist sensitivity to ordinary persons."

John Paul II, who is credited by Vatican officials with the increased use of flowers at the Mass, has also left his imprint on other facets of the church's celebration of Christmas.

Starting Christmas Eve, the center of the massive square, near its Egyptian obelisk, is radiant with the lights from a tall evergreen that has been trucked in with fanfare from West Germany. Near Christmas in St. Peter's Square: An illuminated creche, flanked by a gaily decorated evergreen from West Germany, greets yuletide visitors to the Vatican. In the background is the Michelangelo-designed dome of the great basilica, where thousands of worshippers from around the world attend masses on Christmas Eve and Christmas Day. The decorations in the square are innovations of John Paul II, who has been Pope since 1978.

The tree is a large creche, also from Germany, occupied by figures of the Holy Family, 1½ times life-size.

Like his predecessors, the Pope celebrates another mass in the basilica on Christmas morning. Then he appears on a balcony overlooking the square and delivers a brief Christmas message to the world, bestowing blessings in more than 50 languages. That occasion can attract as many as 100,000 people to the square.

The Vatican's observances begin before Christmas and extend beyond it. A few weeks before Christmas, Pope John Paul II, in celebration of the Feast of St. Nicholas, blesses the statues of the Christ child that are brought to St. Peter's Square by thousands of Roman children.

At the Feast of the Epiphany on Jan. 6, traditionally a day of gift-giving among European Catholics, the pontiff again blesses children and their families in the square.

On Christmas Eve 1984, John Paul II, who is Polish, held an emotional audience for a group of Polish families and their brightly costumed children. A Vatican spokesman says it is not known if the Pope will have a similar audience this year.

Job seminar set at Oakland University

Employers and job seekers can benefit from Oakland University's free Job Opportunities Seminar, offered by the Division of Continuing Education, at 7:30 p.m., Jan. 7, on campus near Rochester.

Focus will be on the fast-growing accounting assistant paraprofession for individuals who seek new careers or need to update office skills. Employers will learn about courses specifically geared to help develop and maintain accounting and financial records for their businesses, including a thorough course in preparing personal income tax returns.

Information about OU's 15-month Accounting Assistant Diploma Program, starting its winter term on Jan. 20, and about jobs available to graduates will be presented at the free seminar. Admission to the program is not required to take selected individual courses, providing qualifications are met for the courses. To reserve space for the seminar, call the Continuing Education office, 370-3120, between 9 a.m. and 8 p.m., weekdays, before Dec. 21 or after Jan. 1.

Grosse Pointe Singles

Grosse Pointe Singles will have an Afterglow dance at the Jefferson Yacht Club, 24505 E. Jefferson, Friday, Dec. 20, at 9:30 p.m., featuring the music of Mark Verbecke.

Sunday afternoon dance parties are planned for this very active singles group on Dec. 22, Dec. 29, and for Jan. 5 and Jan. 12 at Lido on the Lake (upper level) from 4 to 7:30 p.m. The live music of Jerry Robotka is featured.

The flyers describing the Jan. 25 weekend train trip to Toronto, Canada, will be distributed at upcoming club functions. Prepaid reservations must be made by Jan. 10.

Regular programming will resume at the group's new location, the Grosse Pointe Academy, 171 Lakeshore, Grosse Pointe Farms, on Friday, Jan. 17, at 7:30 p.m. The speaker will be Richard Walker of Reuters News Service. His topic will be "Reporting Detroit — For the Rest of the World."

Any single person (35 and up) is invited to attend all GPS functions. Call 445-1286 for information.

First English Lutheran Church

Christmas Services are arranged at First English Lutheran Church, Vernier and Wedgewood, at three convenient times. On Christmas Eve there is a Scripture Service at 6 p.m. Participating in this worship are the Lord's Company Singers, also comprised of youth. In addition, there will be a presentation with puppets on the story — "St. Nicholas."

At 7:45 p.m. on Christmas Eve the choir will begin the Family Service with the singing of various carols. As a part of worship the choir will also sing "On Christmas Night" and "Lovely Child." Two bell choirs are also to provide familiar selections of Christmas music. Rev. Paul Keppler will preach for the service.

On Christmas Day worship is planned at 11 a.m. with Rev. Bruce Quatman preaching. The choir will also participate with the singing of "Break Forth, O Beauteous Heavenly Light" and "A Virgin Most Pure."

Pear Tree Questers

The Pear Tree chapter of Questers will hold its Christmas luncheon and auction on Dec. 19 at 11:30 a.m. The event will begin with a gathering at the Oxford Road home of Mrs. Augustus Christie. The group will then go to the Georgian Inn for lunch. The auction and dessert will be held at the Rivard Road home of Mrs. Oscar Teeg.

United Methodist Women

The Grosse Pointe United Methodist Women celebrated Christmas with a dinner at the church. The Doris White Fellowship, Dorothy Greer, chairperson, served the Wassail Bowl in the church parlor. Dinner in the fellowship hall was prepared and served by the AM Fellowship, Barbara Brasseur, chairperson.

Later, in the sanctuary, a short business meeting was conducted by Betty Reas, president, and devotions were given by Kathy Hershey, Vice president and program chairman, Carol Ann Maleitzke, introduced the speaker, the Rev. Ronald K. Fulton, associate minister of Birmingham United Methodist Church. As part of an inspiring message, Fulton sang and accompanied himself on the guitar to bring "A Musical Message" to celebrate the holiday season.

Delta Gamma Alumnae

The Grosse Pointe Alumnae Association of Delta Gamma celebrated its annual Christmas auction on Dec. 9, at the home of Marge Peabody of Grosse Pointe City. Mary Anne McMillin of Grosse Pointe Woods and Joanne Brown who traveled from West Bloomfield served as co-hostesses.

Members donated numerous hand crafted items which were auctioned off throughout the evening while bidders enjoyed tea and desserts.

Upcoming events include the Mother-Daughter Christmas Tea on Dec. 27, from 2 until 4 p.m. at the Grosse Pointe Park home of Priscilla Martysz. Mothers and daughters of both alumnae and colleagues are all welcome. Any Delta Gammas interested should contact Ann Brady Baxter at 886-0538, any time.

Women in Communication

The Detroit chapter of Women in Communication, Inc. will celebrate the holidays to the tune of a Boogie Woogie Bugle Beat on Thursday evening, Dec. 19, when they gather for refreshments at 6 p.m. at Fisher's 666, on Lothrop Ave., and then move to finish the gala evening by attending a performance of the acclaimed "The 1940s Radio Hour" play at the Attic Theatre, located on Third and West Grand Boulevard, in Detroit.

This festive evening represents the mid-season break for this organization, whose many members are active in the fields of journalism, public relations, advertising, video, television, corporate communication and related fields of communication. Members and guests are requested to call 791-1277 for information.

Scrabble Club

Scrabble players can meet in the city of East Detroit to play scrabble on a regular basis.

Beginning on Jan. 9, 1986, Scrabble players will be able to meet on the second and fourth Thursdays of every month. This will take place at Spindler Park Building, 19400 Stephens, (9 1/2 Mile Rd.), East Detroit, Mich., 48021.

Please come before 7 p.m., as that is when play begins, and time is needed to match you with a partner. Three games will be played per evening. There may be a variety of players from novice to expert. All are welcome. Hopefully, you will be matched against a player of equal skill.

There are also tournaments throughout the year in various cities far and near. Lists of upcoming tournaments will be available and announced at meetings.

The East Detroit Scrabble Club is for fun. There are no dues or fees to come and play.

If you have any questions, please call the East Detroit Parks and Recreation Department at 445-5080. They can give you directions to the playing site, and answer questions.

Mr. and Mrs. Craig Defelice

Garska-Defelice
Pauline Clare Garska, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence J. Garska of Grosse Pointe Farms, and Craig Gordon Defelice, son of Mr. and Mrs. Norman Defelice of St. Catharines, Ontario, were married on Aug. 10 at St. Paul's Catholic Church in Grosse Pointe Farms. Msgr. Francis X. Canfield officiated at the 2 p.m. ceremony which was followed by a reception at the Georgian Inn in Roseville. The bride wore an off-the-shoulder dress of silk organza with a fitted bodice, full skirt and cathedral-length train. The fingertip-length veil fell from a wreath of pearls and silk flowers. She carried a crescent bouquet of white japhet and oncidium orchids, stephanotis, yellow sweetheart roses, baby's breath and pearl clusters. The maid of honor was Linda Garska, sister of the bride. Bridesmaids were Laurie Cotton of Atlanta, Ga.; and Sue Grinvalsky of St. Clair Shores, both sisters of the bride; and Lisa French of Toronto, sister of the groom. The best man was Harry Defelice of St. Catharines, Ontario, brother of the groom. Ushers were Craig McIntosh of Bloomfield Hills; Gordon French of Toronto, Ontario; and Marshall Ricker of Gogama, Ontario. The bridesmaids wore dresses of yellow embroidered Georgette over yellow taffeta underslips. They carried crescent bouquets of cymbidium and oncidium orchids, yellow sweetheart roses, miniature carnations, purple statice and baby's breath. The mother of the bride wore mint green pin-tucked Georgette trimmed with matching satin. She wore a wrist corsage of japhet orchids and Sonia sweetheart roses with baby's breath. The mother of the groom wore a full-skirted, tea-length dress of pink Georgette with a matching cummerbund. She wore a wrist corsage of japhet orchids and pink sweetheart roses with baby's breath.

Schmitt-Creech
Susan Elaine Schmitt, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Schmitt of Grosse Pointe Woods, and Michael Zelotes Creech, son of Mr. and Mrs. Zelotes Creech of Roseville, were married on June 8 at Our Lady Queen of Peace Church. The Rev. Daniel Compto officiated at the 1:30 p.m. ceremony which was followed by a reception at the Vintage House. The bride wore a white taffeta gown with a train and dropped waistline. The sweetheart neckline was accented with a ruffle of Schiffler lace and taffeta. Her finger-

Mr. and Mrs. Michael Creech

tip-length veil fell from a lace and pearl derby hat made by her sister, Kathy Rheume. She carried a bouquet of silk flowers featuring white roses, small carnations and live green ivy, originally from her mother's wedding bouquet. The maid of honor was Marilyn Schmitt, sister of the bride, Ann Arbor. Bridesmaids were Kathy Rheume, sister of the bride, Harper Woods; Mary Schmitt Smith, sister of the bride, Birmingham; Anna Schmitt Heatlie, sister of the bride, Ann Arbor; Diane Morton, sister of the groom, Clinton Township; Jeanie Cook, friend of the couple, Ann Arbor. They wore dusty rose taffeta gowns with bustles. They carried bouquets of white roses and dusty rose flowers. The best man was Mark Markel, friend of the couple, Ann Arbor. Ushers were Mark Schmitt, brother of the bride, Cedar Falls, Iowa; Daniel Schmitt, brother of the bride, Oregon City, Ore.; Douglas Schmitt, brother of the bride, Grosse Pointe Woods; Michael Lauhoff, friend of the groom, Roseville; Kevin Morton, nephew of the groom, Clinton Township. The mother of the bride wore an aquamarine gown with a pleated skirt and sheer top over a sleeveless bodice. She wore a yellow and white wrist corsage. The mother of the groom wore a light green gown with a sleeveless bodice and sheer overlay. She wore a yellow and white silk flower wrist corsage. The couple honeymooned with a trip to the Bay of Islands, outside Manitoulin Island, Canada. They will live in Warren. Andrew Schmitt and Larry Morton, brother-in-law of the groom, read the first and second readings during the ceremony. Kurt Rheume, nephew of the bride, was the altar boy.

DIAMONDS are still a good INVESTMENT

After you've passed on your furs and traded in your car, your diamonds will still be beautiful and very valuable. Diamonds outlive the whims of fashion. Their settings may age, but these can be renovated for a very modest sum. If you're intrigued by diamonds, as so many people have been throughout history, we're American Gem Society jewelers, dedicated to consumer service and protection. We have several beautiful 1 carat diamonds. Specially priced for 1 week only. Come in and save for Christmas.

St. Ambrose plans winter concert

St. Ambrose Parish in Grosse Pointe Park is preparing for the third annual Winter Wonder Concert scheduled for Sunday, Dec. 22, at 7 p.m.

This annual festival of Christmas music features three outstanding musical ensembles in addition to the talents of the St. Ambrose Liturgical Choir. The Chapel Bells, one of metropolitan Detroit's most accomplished handbell choirs, will be performing along with the 70-voice Youth Chorale of Detroit's Second Ebenezer Baptist Church.

The Chapel Bells feature a five-octave set of cathedral handbells and are under the direction of June Harting of Orchard Lake Community Church, Presbyterian. The Ebenezer Youth Chorale, which won the 1984 Gospelfest Award, is under the joint direction of the Rev. and Mrs. Edgar Vann.

This year's Winter Wonder Concert will also feature for the first time a distinguished choir of eight French horns under the direction of Glenn Price of Bloomfield Hills. The Southeast Michigan Horn Society will be performing alone and in concert with the handbells and choirs.

Winter Wonder will also showcase the work of the St. Ambrose Liturgical Choir under the direction of organist and choirmaster, John J. Findlater. Together with associate directors Fritz J. Bohlmann and Patrick J. Wagner, the 40-voice St. Ambrose Choir will present a varied program of sacred and secular Christmas music.

The Winter Wonder Concert each year has played to enthusiastic audiences from all over the metropolitan area. Since St. Ambrose Parish straddles the border of Detroit and the Grosse Pointes, the Winter Wonder Concerts have always attempted to blend the talents of ensembles from both city and suburb.

The result has been an invigorating and exciting musical experience for both audience and performers. Traditional Christmas melodies have been wedded to the power of Gospel singing along with the beauty of handbells and the majesty of brass to provide a very special program for the season.

Portions of this year's Winter Wonder concert will be seen Christmas Eve on WXYZ-TV's "Good Afternoon, Detroit" program from 4 to 5:30 p.m. on Channel 7.

Tickets for the concert will be available the night of the concert at the door and also during the week at the St. Ambrose Rectory. Adult tickets are $4 and tickets for senior citizens and children under 12 are $3.

The St. Ambrose Liturgical Choir's annual stereo cassette tape recording, "St. Ambrose Sings," will also be on sale at the concert for $6. Proceeds from both the concert and the tape recording go to support the St. Ambrose Organ Endowment Fund.

Pride of the Pointes

Kosanke ordained

On Dec. 14, Charles G. Kosanke, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Kosanke of Grosse Pointe Woods, was ordained to the priesthood by Archbishop Edmund Szoka at the Blessed Sacrament Cathedral. Kosanke attended St. Raymond's Grade School, De La Salle High School,

Kosanke

Sacred Heart Seminary and St. John's Provincial Seminary where he received a master of divinity and a master of theological studies. He had a Mass of Thanksgiving at St. Raymond's Church on Dec. 15, followed by a reception at the Barister House. He will have a second Mass of Thanksgiving at St. Robert Bellarmine on Dec. 22. He will be associate pastor at St. Robert Bellarmine Church, Redford.

Shulte is treasurer

Mark Shulte of Grosse Pointe has been named treasurer of the American Marketing Association at Northern Michigan University. He is a senior majoring in marketing. He is the son of George and Carol Shulte.

Puleo takes titles

Elizabeth Ann Puleo, daughter of Mr. and Dr. Peppino Puleo of Grosse Pointe Woods, has garnered several prestigious titles recently. She is Miss Grosse Pointe for 1985, Miss Kalamazoo County for 1986 and Miss Michigan Dance for 1986. A graduate of Bishop Gallagher High School, she is currently pursuing studies in pre-law at Kalamazoo College.

Robert Melling: working to help revitalize neighborhoods close to home

By Elsa Frohman

"Whenever there is a natural disaster, I have the feeling that churches respond more quickly to foreign countries than when there is a disaster right under our noses," said Robert Melling, the outgoing chairman of People in Faith United, a coalition of 13 church and community organizations working to revitalize depressed neighborhoods on the east-side of Detroit.

Melling has headed up PIFU for the past year. As of this week, he has turned over the reins of the organization to the Rev. Edward Cobden.

Melling is one of the original architects of PIFU. When the organization was first formed five years ago by three churches, the First Christian Reformed, Grace United Church of Christ and St. Ambrose, Melling was the representative of his church, the First Christian Reformed.

"I've always been active in my church," Melling said.

PIFU's first project was taking headquartered in the activities building of Faith Lutheran Church, at Jefferson and Philip, just a few blocks out of Grosse Pointe Park.

As PIFU grew and accepted new member organizations, its programs grew as well. Another important program is the PIFU Soup Kitchen, which serves a hot meal on the last three or four weekdays of each month when people on general assistance have begun to run out of money.

"We have served up to 2,000 meals," Melling said. "We serve a 'fork soup' or stew. It's a full meal."

However important PIFU's food programs are, Melling points to the PIFU Housing Corporation as the most active and important program the group runs.

"We are trying to renovate the community, to renovate the homes and bring in new housing," he said.

The housing corporation is working to improve living conditions within Census Tract 5130, bounded by Alter Road, East Jefferson, Chalmers and Kercheval.

According to the PIFU program description:

"This is an economically depressed area characterized by vacant lots, vacant houses and dilapidated houses. The goals of PIFU are: to stimulate economic reinvestment, to make homeownership affordable for low income persons and to construct new homes and rehabilitate existing homes."

"We have completed three homes," Melling said. "They are now occupied by people in the community. They stand out like a shining star in the neighborhood."

The program works by purchasing dilapidated houses and renovating them, using volunteers, grants and borrowed funds. The people who will someday occupy the houses are expected to volunteer their time to help with the work. By volunteering, they can "work off" part of the cost of the home.

PIFU's goal is to renovate 100 houses and sell or rent them back into the community.

"We expect some shift in the emphasis of the program," Melling said. "Initially it was for the non-working poor. We also want to help low income families that otherwise could not qualify for a mortgage."

PIFU has worked with a budget of more than $400,000 this year, but has little money in its bank account.

"It is our goal never to maintain a large bank balance," Melling

Robert Melling dishes out dinners at the Food and Fellowship program on Fridays at Faith Lutheran Church. A program of People in Faith United, the weekly meal provides companionship and nutrition for senior citizens.

said. "We want to put our money to work."

Working with PIFU has been more than a small undertaking for Melling. An insurance agent by profession, he has arranged his working hours so he can spend all day with PIFU on Fridays. He helps with the kitchen work for Food and Fellowship every week, and is on the board of the housing corporation and is a member of the PIFU personnel committee.

He explains his involvement in PIFU as a commitment to his home community — even though he is a Grosse Pointer.

"Churches are active in foreign missions, but right here, when you go one block across Alter Road, there is a difference like East and West Berlin. My priorities tell me that I should be working right here, rather than in some foreign field. Many others feel the same way."

As a Park resident, Melling has seen his community change over the years.

"The neighborhood has changed," he said. "I've seen the crime rate go up. We started looking around to move away from it. But then we asked ourselves, do we as Christians have the right to walk away from an area that is so desperately in need?"

Melling said PIFU is an attempt by the churches and community organizations that straddle the border between Grosse Pointe and Detroit to halt the urban decay and bring new life to the area.

"Everything else has failed," Melling said. "Maybe we will too — but I hope not. If we make a mistake, the Lord is telling us that that doesn't work, so we move on to something else."

Melling doesn't see the task as impossible.

"Some people say that there is no sense in this — the area is too far gone," he said. "They say that the people here don't care. Yet, studies indicate that that attitude is also-lutely erroneous. We have a jobs office and any day you will find 25 or 30 people sitting over there who want to work. They may make less than they did on assistance — but they want to work."

In the five years since it was established, PIFU has grown by leaps and bounds. The original three members have grown to include 13 organizations and more are joining all the time. St. Paul's Catholic Church and Grosse Pointe United Methodist Church are now in the process of joining PIFU.

"Our bylaws specify that an organization must attend at least one board meeting before they commit," Melling said. The commitment is for volunteer hours as well as financial support.

Today, more than 275 volunteers work with PIFU to maintain the Food and Fellowship program, the soup kitchen, the youth program, the employment program, the tool lending library and the housing corporation.

The members of PIFU are Bon Secours Hospital, Christ Church Episcopal, Crossroads, the Detroit Anti-Hunger and Youth Advocacy Center, Faith Lutheran Church, the First Christian Reformed Church, Grace United Church of Christ, Grosse Pointe Memorial Church, the Grosse Pointe Woods Presbyterian Church, Jefferson Avenue United Methodist Church, St. Ambrose Catholic Church, St. Columba Episcopal Church, and the Grosse Pointe Unitarian Church.

For the Christmas season, PIFU is delivering 200 food baskets. "We hope to have a turkey in each," Melling said.

Anyone who would like to assist PIFU, can contact the organization at 824-8442. Melling said cash donations would be appreciated, as well as promises of volunteer help. He would also like to see employers contact the employment program with job openings.

Pointer of Interest

senior citizens to the polls in the 1980 election.

Early in 1981, PIFU's first continuing project, the Food and Fellowship program, got off the ground. Food and Fellowship, provides a hot noon meal to senior citizens every Friday. Eighty to 90 people attend the meal each week. A freewill donation is collected, but those who cannot afford to pay are not obligated.

"This program is needed as much for the fellowship as the food," Melling said. "The simple meals we serve are the most popular because they are the kind of thing you can't fix for one person. Some of the people come at 10 a.m. and stay until 3 p.m. For some, it will be the only hot meal they will have all weekend."

Sports Week

By Peggy O'Connor

Have I been good? Well...

Okay, so I haven't been all that good. And I don't care if Santa Claus does find out whether I've been naughty or nice; I stopped believing in that jolly old elf around the same time the Detroit Red Wings won their last league championship.

But I still believe in Christmas lists and if you've all been little girls and boys, I'll show you my list.

Lumps of coal for coaches who lull me to sleep with their dire pre-season predictions about how poorly their teams are going to do. Then when I print that, the teams invariably go off on 16-game winning streaks. Which doesn't exactly make me look like Grantland Rice.

The all-star sports version of Trivial Pursuit, so I can memorize all the answers and challenge all comers. For money.

A row of seats from soon-to-be-demolished Olympia Stadium. I figure they owe it to me after all those games I paid to see there.

Instant replay at every high school sporting event.

The ability to go one place — just one — without somebody asking me what I think of the Kirk Gibson situation.

A chance to cover the National Hockey League's amateur draft this June when the Woods' Jim Carson is sure to be one of the top picks.

A "Yes, I'm Covering This Game For The Grosse Pointe News" T-shirt.

A pair of shorts like the ones that are popular at North and South.

The guts to wear them.

A heavy-duty calendar. After I griped about not having anything to do on Monday or Thursday nights during the winter sports season, the nice folks at Star reminded me that most of their volleyball games are on Mondays and Thursdays. Yippee.

A mouth guard. It gets pretty dicey writing with my tongue in my cheek all the time.

A South High baseball shirt or hockey jersey to wear with my North High baseball cap and my University Liggett School socks. (A Tuna sweat band from Star of the Sea wouldn't be too bad, either).

For the people of Grosse Pointe to realize what they've got here in terms of coaching. Coaches who care. Coaches who put in more hours than they can remember — each and every week — for somebody else's kids. Coaches whose eyes shine when they talk about their players.

Patience. To use when people call me up and ask why their article didn't get in and I have to tell them, for the 4,978th time, that it was a matter of space. Or when I look in three different dictionaries and still can't find the proper spelling of skis. Or when parents, students, fans or just plain folks call or write to accusing us a bias for/against North High and/or South High. Or for coaches who don't return my phone calls. For the 10-day Christmas break when nothing — ABSOLUTELY nothing — goes on, sports-wise. And especially for those times when strangers I speak to on the telephone call me "honey", "dear" or "sweetie".

Reason. So I can dole out hefty doses of it to sports moms who can't understand why we print the fact that "Junior" dropped a pass or booted a grounder. Or to sports dads who insist that their kid's game or team was the most important, never mind what the other guys did. And, so I can have a little left over to use on myself... to help me to understand sports moms and dads.

A better memory. So I don't forget the courtesy of kids like Claire Busse, a South High soccer player who never fails to thank me for my interest in her and her team. Or the shy smile that seems so common to the most talented athletes. Or the coaches and administrators who always seem to find the time to talk. And most of all, the warmth I've seen develop between teammates on all the teams.

Shock absorbers. For those times when I go blithely along, thinking all the world is thrilling last-second finishes, beating the best and blocking field goals, last minute goals and extra-inning home runs. And when I suddenly remember that it isn't.

Courage. To get through those times.

I guess that's about it. Unless I can slip in those two little words that for me, make this season worthwhile: LeBaron Convertible.

(Nah, just kidding. Merry Christmas).

Can spikers top '85 success?

Pointe teams were 75-23-1 in 1985

By Peggy O'Connor
North High Lady Norsemen
1984-85: 22-7, Bi-County champs
Coach: Ann Anderson

Going into the 1985-86 North High volleyball coach Ann Anderson lost three starters from last year's squad which, although it finished with a 21-7 record and won a Bi-County championship, failed to make it through the district playoffs. So why is Anderson smiling? "I've got a lot of talent returning. When I look at what we've got, I'm happy," Anderson said last week.

North (in practice) returns most of last year's line-up, which won a Bi-County League volleyball championship before falling to rival South High in the districts.

In fact, two weeks before the season opener (Dec. 28), Anderson wasn't quite sure where each starter would play.

Leading the setting corps will be senior returners Virginia Sanders; (a co-captain), Julie Cook and Barbie Loeher. North's hitters are senior Cindy Bowman, junior Laura Vittoe, and Mary Beth Seagram. Anderson said she expects big things from those players, as she does from senior co-captain Brooke Bessert, senior Sharon Edgar, sophomore Mary Lex, a transfer student from Regina High, junior Beth Nixon, Missy Preston, Leslie Talos, Lisa Van Hollebeke and Tammy Donahue.

"We're not as tall as we were last year, but I think we have more depth and will be more well-rounded," Anderson said.

North's strength, she added, seems to lie in its attitude. "This is a together group. Their desire to win will certainly be a strong point." That's particularly evident, she said, among the juniors who have played together since their freshman year and who possess a great desire to win.

Offensively, Anderson points to North's passing game as a strong point. "And the defense is scrappy. These kids don't want anything to hit the floor on their side."

The Bi-County League team most capable of doing just that against the Lady Norsemen is L'Anse Creuse, according to Anderson. The Lancers have a young, strong core and are bringing up several players from last season's very successful JV team.

"OUR ONLY tough competition outside the league is going to be in the tournaments. We'll be playing teams which did well in the state playoffs last year, beginning with Dearborn on Dec. 28. We'll really start off with a bang," Anderson said.

"I think we'll progress faster that way. In the tournaments, we play stronger teams and it's a let-down to just go back to play in the league. Good competition keeps us ready."

Ready for the goals which North has set for itself so far this year.

Anderson said she'd like to see her squad win as many games as possible in a season which sees an increase in the games scheduled, and to win the league tournament, something North didn't do in 1985.

As early as it is, Anderson seems to feel she's got the team to accomplish that.

"I am excited. This is going to be a fun season."

South High Blue Devils
1984-85: 19-5-1, EML champs
Coach: Jan Hooper

Pardon Jan Hooper if she's a bit concerned about the height of her volleyball team. Seems it keeps getting shorter every year.

"Two years ago we had 5-10 and 6-0 starters, last year, we were looking at 5-10, and this year, we're down to 5-8," Hooper said with a laugh.

But the 5-8 starter, Maryanne Montagne, packs plenty of punch in her role as South's setter and "quarterback" of the squad. Montagne, a senior, is one of two players returning from last year's district runner-up team. The other, Theresa Schulte, has been in a school co-op program and needs to practice with the team before her spot on the squad is set.

(However, help in the height department is on the horizon, in the form of JV spikers Dunree Greiling, 6-2, and Barb Denler, 5-10).

Schulte is penciled in as a spiker for South, Hooper said. Junior Heather Imel, a transfer student from Indiana, will be one of South's big hitters, as will junior Barb VanWynGaard (middle hitter), junior Sarah Dolan (outside hitter), junior Patty Hess (outside hitter) and May Youness another junior outside hitter. Junior Shannon Burns is a setter and sophomore Megan Keller moves up to the JV this season. Just getting into the swing of volleyball practice is 5-9 junior Patti Molloy, a South High swimmer who was involved in state competition until last week.

"Realistically, I'd be happy finishing third in our league," Hooper said of South's chances this season. "I think Anchor Bay is going to be really tough. L'Anse Creuse North should be strong, but they graduated almost as many as we did. And Mount Clemens always has good athletes.

"But then, you never know how well we'll do because you can't be sure how the transfer students and the younger players will come around. For example, how will they react against an East Detroit team that has a player like Gina Menta?" Hooper added.

THAT HEIGHT factor is a problem. Hooper said, because it's easier to block shots coming from a shorter offense. "We're not tall, so we have to be smart and think, instead. Defensively, we've got some quickness. But I believe that the best defense is a good offense, so we've got to get our hitters going, too," she added.

Hooper said South hopes to improve its individual skills at the same time it practices working together as a team. She added that although the Blue Devils will miss last year's All-EML players Anne Schwartz and Kerry Bruce — they were the heart of last year's lineup — there is a benefit to South's "new look" this season.

"I look at it as a plus. This gives us a chance to develop a team identity, a unity, separate from last year's team. And overall, we've got some great kids. They work hard, do everything you ask of them.

"You can't find a better group of kids. That's what makes coaching fun."

ULS Lady Knights
1984-85: 10-2 in MIAC,
12-8 overall

Coach: Shelley Owens

The bad news is that seven of coach Shelley Owens' starters from last year's Michigan Independent Athletic Conference runners-up graduated this past June. The good news is that it could have been worse.

"We lost seven and have three coming back. That's not quite as drastic a loss as the basketball team had this year," Owens said. "I think we'll still be competitive."

Kara Van Dellen is the only senior on the 1985-86 squad and one of the three players returning. The others are juniors Kathy Bianchi and Cindy Paul. Rounding out the team which Owens said is about average in height, are juniors Laura Khelokian and Sue Clee, sophomore Julie Ferris, and freshmen Sylvia Ristic and Dana Warner.

Khelokian, an excellent athlete and top field hockey player, returns to the volleyball program after one year off. Ferris moves up to the varsity from the JV team. "We should be a strong serving team," Owens said. "Kara is a strong hitter, as is Laura, and Kathy Bianchi is strong in both setting and hitting. That helps a lot in the middle."

"We should have a decent offense. We still need to work on bringing the ball up and on our consistency and accuracy with the ball, but it's still early. I think we'll come along pretty well."

OWENS SAID that Southfield Christian, which won the MIAC by one game last season, should again be strong. Lutheran Northwest and Detroit Country Day School are two other opponents who should be tough against ULS. But Owens said she hopes the Lady Knights will be ready.

"Right now, I'm satisfied with good, strong practices," Owens said before ULS began its season Dec. 12. "But I want us to be tuned up for the league season which begins after Christmas. They'll be shooting for us in the league because we're the runners-up."

"But I think we'll have a good year. The girls seem up for the season," she added. "The three returning girls are in the position to be leaders and motivators. They seem willing to make that effort and the younger girls seem to appreciate the situation."

"With attitudes like that, we have the potential to have a very good year."

Our Lady Star of the Sea Tunas
1984-85: 22-3

Coach: Valerie Johnson

"You won't recognize our squad," Star coach Val Johnson said. "That's what happens when you lose three All-Catholic League selections."

Actually, the situation at Star is not all that dire, Johnson assured. Despite the loss of Anita Pugliesi, Cindy Winiarski, Mary Ellen Sattler and Cindy Allor to graduation, the main ingredient in the Tunas' success last season remains intact: spirit.

"We've got a lot of heart. We have the ingredients to make this a successful season. I didn't pick this team just for its strength; I went for the intangibles. Those are what made last year a success. We're two inches up in 'heart' and heart wins volleyball games every time," Johnson said.

STAR HAD its best season ever in 1985, racking up 22 victories and making it to the Class C district finals before a controversial playoff loss ended the Tunas' hopes for a title. That just fired up the returning girls' hopes for this year.

"These girls are going to fight for every game. They understand that there are people who aren't perfect, who don't always make the right calls. They fought hard last year and these kids are going to fight hard this year."

"They know what teamwork can do and they're going to go after every match."

Leading the way in that effort will be setter Jeanne Purrenhage, who steps into the big shoes of Pugliesi, last year's All-League setter. "She can do it. She works hard and she's hungry. Jeanne has increased her jumping ability and her setting ability tremendously," Johnson said.

Marissa Bautista, Meghan O'Toole, Tracey Walker, Kelly Kiefer, Michelle Calcaterra, Karla Rendz and Katie Gebeck return from last year's talented squad. They'll join freshmen Nancy Schulte and Chris Kasprzyk, transfer student Doreen Pellegrom, Chris Widgren, and a trio up from the JV squad, Beth Allor, Buffy Stumb and Julie Mott.

Star has been beset by injuries in the pre-season, so the final lineup has yet to be set. The Tunas host St. Anne Jan. 6 in the season opener.

"We look for them to be tough. And everybody is sure Pontiac Catholic will be the team to beat. They've got height, power and jumping ability. We hope to be in that position by next year. But we're not looking at this season as a rebuilding one," Johnson said. "We'd like to be very competitive and able to surprise a few people."

"And we've got the kids who can do it. Doreen is a digger, as is Julie Mott. Buffy Stumb brings height into the line-up and our power will come from O'Toole, Bautista, Kiefer and Calcaterra. And Widgren should be real strong for us in the back," Johnson added.

Right now, though Johnson said what the Tunas need is health and time. Time to get healthy and to learn to play well together. If they can manage that, look out, Johnson said.

"We'll win some and we'll lose some. But one thing is for sure: we've got heart. That's the necessary ingredient for a Tuna — a strong heart."

North sports

North varsity hockey skaters split pair, win streak ends

North High's unbeaten string ended at five last week when the varsity hockey team was upset at home, 7-6, by Gabriel Richard. North bounced back to end the week's action on a winning note with an impressive victory over Ann Arbor Huron in Ann Arbor, 7-2. The Norsemen begin play this week with a 5-1 record.

Against Gabriel Richard, North dominated play, outshooting the visitors, 50-31, only to let down at several key points and lose the contest. North broke out on top early when John Russell opened the scoring on a pass from Kevin Tisdale. Russell then fed Rob Kohler, who put the Norsemen up 2-0 and after Gabriel Richard scored, Rob Marshall added two goals on nice passes from Casey Quick.

But North's 4-2 lead evaporated in the last 40 seconds of the first period and the teams went into the intermission tied at 4-4. Gabriel Richard scored twice in the second period and started the third period with a goal to take a 7-4 lead before the Norsemen could come back with goals from Russell and Tom Ugval to make it close. Quick and Wayne Houle set up the final North tallies.

At Ann Arbor Huron on Dec. 14, North came out flying and took command early, building a 3-1 lead by the end of the first period. Junior John Quinlan led the Norsemen with two goals and senior captain Ugval added a goal and two assists. Scoring single goals were Dan Spitz, Peter Guzzardo, Russell and Quick. Marshall led the playmakers with two assists.

North plays at Port Huron tonight, Dec. 19, in a non-league contest and will compete in an exhibition match at 7:20 p.m. Saturday, Dec. 21 before taking a holiday break.

Cagers bounce back

North's varsity basketball team salvaged a tough week, bouncing back from a 31-point lashing by Utica Ford to barely nip a weak Dearborn squad.

Against Utica Ford on Dec. 10, North trailed by 10 points after being run into the floor in the first quarter. The second quarter was a little brighter, but the Norsemen were still outscored, 21-15. They trailed at halftime, 35-19.

But Utica Ford cruised in the fourth quarter, taking a 71-42 win and leaving North at 0-2. Dave Bryer led North scorers with 12 points.

"Utica Ford played with much more intensity than we did tonight," coach George Olman said after the contest.

In the Dearborn game, North started out slowly, trailing Dearborn at the end of one quarter, 11-10. Things turned around in the second quarter when the Norsemen scored 23 points and led, 33-21, at halftime.

Then North went cold again, scoring just two points in the entire third quarter. "We simply quit shooting out there," Olman said.

Junior Chris Dudeck saved the day and got North its first victory of the season when he sank a 12-foot jumper at the buzzer to give North a 45-43 victory. Bryer again led with 13 points and 10 rebounds; Bill Miller had 10 points.

"We played with pretty good intensity, but we made it harder for ourselves than it should have been," Olman said after the victory.

North's next action is at 7:30 p.m. Friday, Dec. 20, at home against Port Huron. (By Mark Moore)

Matmen improve

North's young wrestlers bounced back from their rocky start, demonstrating that they are a promising team. Although only five wrestlers participated, North finished seventh in the Lutheran East Tournament. The Norsemen then went on to defeat both Roseville and Bloomfield Hills Andover in a tri-meet on Dec. 10.

In the Lutheran East event, Kevin Mack, Phil Shefferly and Bill Lewis each earned fourth place honors.

North beat Roseville, 33-28, behind the victorious performances of Shefferly, Dean Demetropoulos, Dan Korzeniewski, Eric Eder, John Shefferly and Mack.

The Norsemen also outpointed Andover, 36-33, as John Shefferly, Demetropoulos, Dave Van Dale, John Klostermeyer and Mack pinned their opponents. Mack's pin of Andover's Todd Kroll came in just 1:22.

The JV wrestlers dominated their match against Notre Dame, 80-45, on Dec. 12.

Paul Attar, Chuck Schultz, Paul Lozella, Korzeniewski and Klostermeyer each had two victories against Notre Dame. In the Utica Ford JV Tournament, J. Shefferly, Schultz and Korzeniewski were the tournament champs; Klostermeyer and Joel Rajos also won their matches.

The JV ended the week with a 3-3 record. (By Jamie Wheatley)

Devils sweep pair, run hockey mark to 4-2

By Jennifer McSorley
South High

The South High hockey team swept two games last week, defeating both Lakeview and Southfield.

The Devils beat league rival Lakeview, 8-3, on Dec. 11. Junior Andrew Roy led South with a hat trick, scoring one goal in each period. He opened the scoring on a power play, assisted by sophomore Lance Erikson. Senior Rob Wood gave South a 2-0 lead on his goal from junior John Nicholson.

South dominated the second period, scoring four goals while senior goalie Bill Tecos kept the Huskies off the board. Sophomore Tim Jerome scored two goals, one unassisted and one on a pass from Wood. Roy scored his second goal from sophomore Bill Huntington and junior Bill Gryzenia ended the second period scoring with his unassisted tally.

Against Southfield on Dec. 14, Tecos notched his first shutout of the year, as South beat the Blue Jays, 4-0.

Three of South's four goals came in the first period. Sophomore Rodney Goin scored on a pass from Wood just two minutes into the game. Wood scored next, from Roy and less than a minute later, Roy added an unassisted goal of his own. Jerome completed the Devils' scoring 12 seconds into the second period: Wood assisted.

The Devils clearly dominated the contest, outshooting Southfield, 41-9. Southfield played nearly the entire third period shorthanded after receiving two 10-minute misconducts and a bench penalty for unsportsmanlike conduct.

South is 3-1 in the Michigan Metro League, 4-2 overall. The Devils played Trenton Dec. 18 (after press time) and are off for the holidays until Jan. 3.

Cagers bounce back

South High

South's boys' varsity basketball team finished last week with a 2-1 record, winning two consecutive games at home after an opening game loss on the road.

On Dec. 13, South topped Utica Ford, in overtime, 59-48. The Devils fell behind early, but battled back to take a two-point lead at halftime. The second half saw the Blue Devils ahead by as much as eight points until a stubborn Utica Ford team evened the score at 45-45 at the end of regulation. A lucky break and a foul, helped South to a three-point lead in overtime. For the remaining time, the Blue Devils held Utica Ford to three points, consisting of a one-point foul shot and a last second shot at the buzzer.

Forward Tim Hudson and guards Sean Bruce and Ed Gramling lead the Blue Devils' scoring with 23, 16, and 9, respectively. Coach George Petrouleas praised Hudson's work. "He played excellent, especially since he had been sick with a fever just the day before," he said. Petrouleas also commented on the team as a whole. "The kids came to play, and they played well... we have outperformed all of our opponents... we are going to win some ballgames," Petrouleas added.

On Dec. 10, South opened its home schedule with a win over the Fighting Irish of Notre Dame, 58-32.

South led for most of the game, and was ahead by 16 after three quarters. Then the momentum swung to Notre Dame, as the Irish fought hard in the last five minutes of the game. It was to no avail, as the final buzzer signaled a Blue Devil victory.

Bruce had 23 points, 8 assists, 2 steals, and 1 blocked shot; Hudson had 18 points and 10 rebounds. Center Gordie Langs had 17 rebounds.

The Blue Devils will play at Sterling Heights tomorrow night, Friday, Dec. 20, before they break for the holidays.

JV wins, too

The JV squad won its first game 45-43, in overtime Dec. 13, over Utica Ford. South had lost its first two to Highland Park, 74-27, and Notre Dame, 65-50.

Andre Bielski was the star of the game, scoring 12 points and netting the game-tying basket along with the game-winning shot in overtime. Under the basket, Lance Harding leaped for 12 rebounds, while Andy Ament had 3 assists and 3 steals. Against Notre Dame, Marty Saad shot for 11 points and stole 3, and Roger Drabant jumped for 9 rebounds.

Coach Al Devine commented, "We are improving with every game, especially on our shooting and free-throw percentage."

The JV, 1-2 before the Dec. 18 game against North (after press time) will play at Sterling Heights tomorrow night, Friday, Dec. 20.

South's freshmen opened their season last week, with wins against Notre Dame, 55-43, and Kelly, 59-33. "A real good night... we are off to a good start. Right now we are going to take one game at a time," said coach John Jones of the Notre Dame game.

Leading South scorers were Mike Pote with 13 points, Chris Rowan, 11 points, and Chris Markus, 10 points.

In the Kelly game, 11 different players scored; Rowan and Gil Waitkus led the way with 13 and 10 points, respectively.

Upcoming games for the frosh include North and L'Anse Creuse North, before they break for the holidays.

Matmen fall

The Blue Devil varsity wrestlers saw their record fall to 2-4 last week, with a loss to Port Huron, 59-6.

Coach Larry Carr commented, "They are improving with every match, despite the record of 2-4."

Previous matches for South were Dearborn, Allen Park, Livingston Clarenceville, Lincoln Park and Redford Union. Livingston Clarenceville and Redford Union have been the only victories for South.

The Blue Devils will meet Mount Clemens Dec. 19 before breaking for the holidays. They wrestle rival North High on Jan. 5.

Tankers take one

South's boys' swim team downed Brother Rice last Thursday, 95-74, in its opening meet.

Jeff Clark, Rick Leonard, Matt Smith and Scott Frame qualified for states, finishing first in the 200 medley relay. Individual winners were Dick Clark, 200 free; Billy Thompson, individual medley; Scott Frame, 50 free; Matt Smith, 100 fly; Billy Thompson, 100 free; Bob Owens, 500 free; Jeff Clark, 100 backstroke; and Ryan Hoeh in the 100 breast.

South meets Catholic Central today, Dec. 19 at 4 p.m. at North High and travels to the Troy-Hampton Relays this weekend.

Crissman 2nd

Coach Tim Kennary's girls' swim team wrapped up its 7-2 season at East Lansing on Dec. 6 and 7.

In the Michigan State Invitational, Blue Devil Allison Crissman took second in the diving competition. She had finished first in all of her dual meets this season.

Knights impressive in hockey win, losses

The University Liggett School varsity hockey team shut out St. Clair High School, 9-0, on Saturday, Dec. 14, ending a very busy week which saw the Knights extend their record to 3-5 on the year.

U.S. goalies Ed Brady, Steve Stoyka and Jeremy Belenky, combined with a stingy U.S. defense to blank St. Clair, which managed only 13 shots on goal for the game. "I'm pleased with the progress of our team's total defensive game, and I can't say enough about the strong goaltending we're getting from Brady, Stoyka and Belenky," praised coach John Fowler. "Defense is the most important aspect of ice hockey and the most difficult to perfect; we work very hard on it in practice."

In the one-sided victory over St. Clair, the Knights had a balanced scoring attack, with only one unassisted goal out of nine. Junior assistant captain Bob Jewett and senior standout defenseman John Birgbauer each scored three goals against St. Clair; captain John Petrilli, senior Mike French and junior defenseman Andrew MacLeod each added a goal. Eleven players figured in the scoring, with MacLeod registering three assists, Birgbauer, two, and one each by French, Petrilli, juniors Brandon Pelok, Chip Davis, Bill Reuther and Andrew Galsterer, and sophomores Ted Evans and Bill Jewett.

Earlier in the week ULS lost two closely contested games at McCann Rink. On Wednesday Dec. 11, the Knights played Northview, a Class A Toledo high school. Commenting on the Knights' loss, sophomore center Gordie Maitland said, "Even though we lost 3-2, it was a great improvement on our earlier 9-2 defeat to Northview." Brady continued his red-hot play in the nets, turning aside 39 Northview shots and upping his save percentage for the year to an impressive 91 percent.

"Once again the team demonstrated a commitment to improve its play, and the loss to Northview was clearly a victory for everyone," Fowler said.

Fowler feels that playmaker Maitland, who centers an explosive line with wingers Bob and Bill Jewett, is a tremendously talented hockey player with a "fantastic work ethic."

On Thursday, Dec. 12, Maitland scored one goal and assisted on another by Bob Jewett in a 5-2 loss to Southview High School. Stoyka played well in the nets with 39 saves, and even though the Knights managed to generate 68 shots on goal, they ran into a tough Southview goaltender. "Our team looks forward to the rematch with Southview next month," Brady said. "We have much to prove to them and ourselves."

In previous action, the Knights trounced Birmingham Lahser, 13-0, Dec. 5, behind the strong play of goaltenders Brady and Belenky. Maitland led the attack with four goals, junior Andrew Galsterer netted three, Bob and Bill Jewett had two each and seniors John Birgbauer and Michael French had one apiece. The Jewett brothers were playmakers, with three assists each.

U.S.'s second victory came on Dec. 7 at the expense of Southfield Lathrup, 8-3. Birgbauer (two goals, two assists), John Petrilli (one goal, three assists) and Bob Jewett, Ted Evans, Maitland, Bill Reuther and Andrew MacLeod (one goal each) led the offense. (By John Petrilli).

The ULS varsity basketball team dropped two decisions last week to run its record to 0-4.

The Knights lost to Greenhills, 64-50, Dec. 10, and to Oakland Christian, 60-34, Dec. 13. "We simply have to keep working harder. We are getting badly outbounded and beaten to the ball," coach Chuck Wright said.

After Greenhills jumped out to a 39-22 halftime lead, the Knights made a blazing run. The lead was sliced to a 47-41 going into the fourth quarter. ULS trimmed the lead to three points, 51-48, and then went cold. Sophomore Kevin Darby paced the ULS scoring with 17 points.

Against Oakland Christian, the Knights played one good quarter. Switching to a zone defense after unsuccessfully trying to stop Oakland with a man-to-man, ULS went off at halftime trailing, 26-20. The Knights cut the lead to 26-22 before Oakland repeatedly got second shots and began to score with almost every possession. Meanwhile, the Knights began turning the ball over.

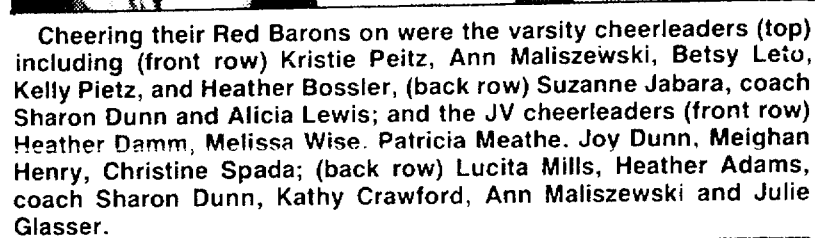

Once again, Darby paced the ULS scoring with 14. The Knights will try to get that elusive first victory at 6 p.m., Friday night, Dec. 20, against Lutheran Northwest at the ULS gym.

The ULS JV basketball team had

It's still six months away, but plans for the 1986 Detroit Grand Prix V are underway. The race is set for the streets of downtown Detroit on June 22.

However, Christmas shoppers can get a jump on Grand Prix ticket-buyers. Tickets are currently available by mail order; the box office at the 300 Tower, Detroit Renaissance Center, will open April 6. Ticket information may be obtained by calling 259-7749.

The official Grand Prix poster was unveiled last week. It printed in full color on a black background, with the Detroit Grand Prix V logo emblazoned in a gold and red metallic foil and sells for $14. A list of outlets selling the poster may be obtained by calling Trackside Souvenirs at 271-5230.

A 14-man "Battle Royal" and two championship matches will highlight a holiday extravaganza professional wrestling event at Bishop Gallagher High School on Friday, Dec. 20.

Featuring six matches in addition to the Battle Royal, and such wrestlers as Bobo Brazil, in the Fabulous Kangaroos and Luis Martinez, the action will get underway at 8 p.m. in the Bishop Gallagher gymnasium, 19360 Harper in Harper Woods.

Tickets for the event, sponsored by the Bishop Gallagher Fathers Club, are $7 ringside and $5 general admission. Tickets are available in advance at the school or by calling 886-0484. Any remaining tickets will be sold at the door.

The Battle Royal will feature 14 wrestlers, each trying to eliminate the others by throwing them over the top rope out of the ring. The last wrestler remaining in the ring will be awarded the Battle Royal prize. A triple main event will also be featured, including the Fabulous Kangaroos, Al Costello and Mickey Doyle, defending their International Tag Team Championship against the tandem of Nick DeCarlo and All-American Dennis Kasprowitz.

Midwest Heavyweight Champion Bobo Brazil will defend his title against former champ Malcolm Monroe.

Also on the triple main event, Bulldog Don Kent will take on Metropark permit fees increase

The 1986 Metropark annual vehicle entry permits will increase in price, while the daily permits will remain at the same $2 rate, according to James J. Pompo, Director of the Huron-Clinton Metropolitan Authority.

The new 1986 vehicle entry and boat rates for annual permits are: regular — $10 (increased from $7) and senior citizen — $5 (increased from $2), which will be in effect Jan. 1, 1986. Daily permits remain at the same $2 rate, in effect for the past six years.

Annual permits are on sale at these offices: Metro Beach Metropark near Mount Clemens; Stony Creek Metropark near Rochester/Utica; Indian Springs Metropark near Clarkston; Kensington Metropark near Milford/Brighton; Huron Meadows Metropark south

Red Barons wrap it up

The Grosse Pointe Red Barons recently ended another youth football league season. The Barons were led by freshman coach Steve Gilbert, junior varsity coach Joe Spada and varsity coach Rick Moore.

The freshmen posted a record of 4-5, with victories over the East Detroit Tiger Cats (two), the Shelby Lions and the Mount Clemens Barracudas.

The junior varsity team turned in final mark of 3-5-1 in what team officials called a rebuilding season. The JV beat the Northeast Detroit Shamrocks, the Shelby Lions and the Roseville Broncos.

Moore's varsity squad lost its first four games, but bounced back to win four of the last five contests to finish at 4-5. The senior team scored victories over the St. Clair Shores Green Hornets, the Shelby Lions, the Sterling Heights Redskins and the Mount Clemens Baracudas.

On hand at all the games were the varsity and junior varsity cheerleading squads led by Sharon Dunn and Sue Koch.

Mexican wrestler Luis "Ariba" Martinez

Other matches will include Ricky "Crusher" Cortez against Troy Alexander, Iron Mike Anthony versus Bubba Hawkins and the Masked Assassin against Brian Costello. Also featured will be a karate exhibition by the Michigan Karate Association, directed by Ismael Bermudez and featuring Chris Gillam.

of Brighton; Hudson Mills Metropark near Dexter/Ann Arbor; Lower Huron Metropark near Belleville; Oakwoods Metropark near Flat Rock; Lake Erie Metropark in Brownstown Township; and the HCMA administrative office, 3050 Penobscot building Detroit, MI 48226. Christmas Ball

Grosse Pointers gathered at the gigantic Christmas tree in the rotunda of the Detroit Historical Museum the evening of Dec. 3 for the Detroit Historical Society's annual Christmas Ball. The event netted $28,000 for the museum. Shown from the left are Bill and Sue Vittoe, Marian Mitchell, general chairman, and her husband Bill, and Gwen and John Griffin.

'Rocky IV' is full of energy

By Marian Trainor

From the startling opening introduction showing two mammoth gloves uncurling like a giant beast and finally clashing in an explosion of sound and color, "Rocky IV" never loses a moment's interest. The story, the action, the rock-beat background grabs the viewer's attention and never lets go until the finish. It is a film so full of energy that it spills out into the audience. One does not sit back and passively watch. The momentum of the film doesn't allow it. Audiences are carried along with the action.

To say this is the best of the Rocky films is saying a lot. Rocky is a fighter who never loses a fight. Sylvester Stallone who plays Rocky and is the writer and director of this and three previous Rocky productions has never had a loser.

From the first movie showing Rocky as a struggling young fighter to the current one showing him enjoying an affluent life as a retired fighter, the films just keep getting better.

"Rocky IV" will be a hard act to follow but Stallone will undoubtedly keep trying. And why not? You can't discount success. "Rocky IV" will be the biggest money-maker of all. It grossed $31.7 million in the first five days of release.

It has a lot going for it — near-impossible odds against Rocky winning a fight against the Soviet Union's 6-foot-6-inch tall

Ivan Drago (Dolph Lundgren); an exhibition fight between Drago and Apollo Creed (Carl Weathers); an on-location view of Russian terrain; warm family scenes showing Rocky with Adrian (Talia Shire) his wife; clowning around with his son and having fun needling Paulie (Burt Young). One of the segments shows Paulie celebrating his birthday where Rocky gives him his very own robot to wait on him. This is no ordinary robot. It is not only programmed to serve, but to deliver messages and sashay away with a provocative swing.

Rocky as always is an honest, sincere, simple individual who loves his family and is happy that his son can use his head to learn

'Equus' opens at Hilberry Theatre tonight

Peter Shaffer's "Equus" will open at the Hilberry Theatre Thursday, Dec. 19, at 8 p.m., following previews Dec. 13 and 14.

"Equus" focuses on a psychiatrist, Dysart, suffering from what he describes as "professional menopause," and his latest patient, Alan Strang, a 17-year-old who has rammed a metal pick through the eyes of six horses.

Dysart's curiosity is aroused by Alan; not because he is horrified by him, but because he knows that passion that Alan feels. The case leads us into a psychiatric detective story of mounting tension and almost myth-like scope.

The "Equus" cast includes Jeff Dolan (Dysart), David Fritts (Alan), Lynne Kadish (Jill), Larry Greer and Dinah Lynch in major roles.

"Equus" is directed by Anthony Schmitt, with scenery designed by Tom Macie, costumes designed by Anthony C. Dobrowolski and lighting designed by Loren Brame.

Tickets and information are available at the Hilberry Theatre box office, Cass and Hancock, 577-2972. Tickets are also available at any metro AAA office or J.C. Penney stores.

Pastissima

Italian gourmet specialty shop.

More Italian words you can't say without your hands.

Congratulations! You all passed Italian lesson #1 at Pastissima with very high grades and clean plates. Except for one man who tried to eat fettucine with his feet. He has to take a refresher course. For the rest of you though, get your hands ready and get over to Pastissima for Italian lesson #2.

Fresh Pasta

Available in egg, spinach, or whole wheat noodles, cut to order.

Lasagnette & Tagliatelle—wide noodles, very good with meat sauces or lots of veggies. Named after an old Italian juggling team.

Tortellini—very small, squarish pasta

(they look like hats the Pope wears)

Ravioli—larger looking Pope hats stuffed with similar things.

Round, hollow noodles, shells, "angel hair." Good in salads, soups, and club sandwiches.

Sauces

Prepared fresh daily.

Ragu Bolognese—tomatoes, ground beef, minced veggies and Italian white wine. The classic Italian tomato sauce with meat.

Pesto—Pureed fresh basil, olive oil, garlic, pinenuts, grated cheese.

Tomato Dolce—sweet tomato sauce.

Cured Meats

Genoa Salame—cured pork, great for submarines or other cruise ships.

Prosciutto—air-cured Italian ham to

Cheeses

hard cheese.

Fontina—nutty,

semi-soft cheese.

Taleggio—semi-soft,

yellowish mild

cheese.

Torta with figs—

dessert cheese.

Bel Paese—yellowish, semi-soft cheese good in salads.

Gorgonzola—Italian blue cheese as in "Nel Blu Dipinto Di Blu"

Mascarpone—soft, sweet Italian cheese.

Pecorino Romano—sharp, grating cheese for pasta and salads.

Topo Gigio—Italian mouse cheese, good for watching Ed Sullivan reruns.

End of lesson. Now come in and pick up your homework.

"Taste the Spirits of Pointes East" coming in January

Meet a great horned owl

The final movie in the Fall Family Film Series at Seven Ponds Nature Center in Dryden will take viewers on a trip to Canada and give them the opportunity to meet "Boo," the center's resident great horned owl.

The first film to be shown Sunday, Dec. 22, will be "Point Pelee" and will discuss this unique peninsula located in Lake Erie that attracts countless migrating birds and thousands of visitors annually. This film will show the delicate balance that must be maintained between recreation and the preservation of an important natural area. The second film, "The Lady and the Owl," features Catherine McKeever, the famous "owl lady" of Canada. The breeding and rehabilitation center that she and her husband operate for injured owls will be shown. As a special treat the nature center's great horned owl "Boo" will be present for people to meet and photograph.

These films are open to the public and begin at 2 p.m. Admission to the nature center is 50 cents for adults and 25 cents for children. Members of the Seven Ponds Nature Center are always free. For further details, call the nature center at 796-3200.

Seven Ponds Nature Center is an outdoor education facility of the Michigan Audubon Society and is located on Crawford Road three miles west of Dryden.

Nothing in the federal regulations would prohibit the making of gin from old grapefruit rinds or asparagus stems or even waste lettuce. However, most distillers make it from grain neutral spirits.

Hunger Project

'Fourth Deadly Sin' is first-rate mystery

By Marian Trainor

The Fourth Deadly Sin
by Lawrence Sanders;
Putnam — $17.95

There are authors like Lawrence Sanders who have only to write a book, who can be assured that it will probably end up on the best-seller list. With more than 15 novels to his credit, he has, beginning with "The Anderson Tapes," seen 10 of his books on the coveted list.

This new one, besides presenting a murder mystery that leads readers down a labyrinth of solutions to dead ends, has the added attraction of taking them into the offices of an eminent New York psychiatrist and his psychologist wife. There is always something intriguing about learning about the why and wherefore of those who have problems contending with their lives and society in general.

In this novel we become well acquainted with six people, all of whom have been patients of Dr. Simon Ellerbee.

Dr. Ellerbee was known as a kind, understanding and generous man. All of his patients loved him. All of them related so well to him that they could not manage their lives without his guidance. And yet someone, committing the fourth deadly sin of anger against him, bashed in his head with a hammer.

Because of his prominence, Dr. Ellerbee's murder makes the New York headlines, and creates a pressure in the police department to solve the strange and hideous crime.

To aid in the solution, Edward X. Delaney, retired chief of detectives, is called in. He is advised that the case must be cleared up as soon as possible because the fate of the deputy commissioner and acting chief of detectives, who is hoping to be assigned to the top spot, is on the line.

So in addition to the psychiatric angle, we also get a close look at politics within the police department. It is an area which Delaney knows well.

He recalls that as deputy inspector he was thrown into a cockpit where the competition was fierce, where a single misstep could mean the end of a 20-year career and combatants swigged Maalox like Beaujolais.

In his review of the case, Delaney sees it as an odd kind of crime with no clues to go on.

He turns to Dr. Ellerbee's widow for help. She is a gorgeous, intelligent woman who is independently wealthy. At Delaney's urging she agrees to break her professional silence and provide him with a list of the late doctor's most potentially violent patients. Delaney organizes a crew, outlines a procedure and the frustrating hunt begins.

Each of the people on the list is tracked down. Each has serious mental problems.

One of them is an ex-professional boxer who enjoys beating up his victims. He has an iron clad alibi. Another is a woman who is afraid to leave her apartment and goes out only to visit Dr. Ellerbee. A third is a sub-normal boy who lives with his drunken mother in squalor but has the artistic talent of a genius; the fourth a Vietnam veteran who cannot forget that experience; a fifth is an effete gentleman who suffers intense sexual guilt; and the sixth is a shy, meek girl with a monstrous overbearing mother and a history of suicide attempts.

A good share of the interest of this book is the story behind the lives of the suspects. In the course of the investigation, they are presented as people who with different experiences might not have had problems.

The police officers who work on the case are also given space to flesh them out as people with their own problems just as those with whom they deal.

The author provides substance to the story and it is just not another murder mystery that needs to be solved.

"The Fourth Deadly Sin" is a first-rate mystery, nicely knitted with no dropped stitches. It is also a book where the stories of the suspects and other characters could have made an interesting book. The combination of both gives it that added attraction that makes it and other books by Lawrence Sanders repeats on the bestseller lists.

World of television stars revealed in 'Secrets'

By Marian Trainor

SECRETS
by Daniele Steel
Delacorte, 246 pages
Nineteen down and still going strong — that's Daniele Steel's record for best-sellers. Fifty million of her books are in print. She has had five novels top the New York Times best-seller list ("Once In A Lifetime," "Family Album," "Full Circle," "Changes" and "Thurston House") and has had at least one book on the list for the past four years. Four of her books were among the top ten on the New York Times Top Sellers of 1984. ABC is filming a mini-series based on her novel "Crossings" (to air in February) and is developing a script for a second series based on "Thurston Place."

What makes her books so popular? Just about the same ingredients that make the top-rated serials on television so interesting — glamorous characters, descriptions of beautiful places and clothes, an uncomplicated plot that reads as though it has been made up as the author went along, and some high-powered sex scenes that are titillating without being explicit.

In "Secrets," the glamor is that of the world of television. The reader is taken on the set to watch a sure-fire success series "Manhattan," being filmed. The actors who portray the characters are handsome and charming. The actresses are luscious and seductive. Their wardrobes are spectacular.

Against this setting, the private lives of the six people who have been chosen for the series are told. What goes on in the screen story is slightly less intriguing than what these personal profiles reveal. All of them have secrets. Wel Wechsler, the producer, is rich, successful and has never had a professional failure, but has had an unforgettable personal tragedy. He devotes his time and energy to his work.

The novel begins as he is casting for what he is certain will be his biggest hit. To that end, he searches out the best talent available.

One is Sabina Quarles, who at 45 has managed to maintain the body of an 18-year-old by enormous determination and some surgery. Due to her beauty, she has survived 20 years in Hollywood but has never been an outstanding star. "Manhattan" will give her that opportunity. Sabina is a tough character, but she too has a secret sorrow.

Another who is chosen is Jane. She is 39 — this novel is a great ego-builder for readers who think there is no room at the top for the near-forty group. Jane is a natural beauty who has two disagreeable teenage daughters and a brutal husband. When the chance comes for her to play opposite Sabina in "Manhattan," her husband forces her to choose between her career and her family.

Bill Warwick is a handsome struggling young actor who is also chosen for this special cast. It is a big break for him to be featured as the nation's new heartthrob. Eager to get the part, he lies about one issue in his background, jeopardizing not only his own future but the success of the whole series.

The cast is completed when Gabriel Thorton-Smith is chosen. She is beautiful, talented and an enigma. No one knows where she comes from or what her background is and that's the way she wants it.

Besides the personal problems and secrets of this group of talented people, another layer of interest is added. As they progress through the days and hours of filming, they begin to react on a personal level to each other.

One by one, their tangled pasts become unravelled. Obviously, "Secrets" is escape reading, but it is entertainment to rest your brain and have a look-see into the sophisticated never-never land of luxury, glamorous living, beautiful people and success. "Secrets" provides a wide-lens view of that world.

'Young Sherlock Holmes' is total entertainment

By Marian Trainor

There's nothing elementary about this fresh and inventive film that imagines how Sherlock Holmes and John Watson come together as schoolboys. It is well-made and well-directed.

Written by Chris Columbus who gave us the "Gremlins" and the "Goonies," directed by Barney Levinson noted for "Diner" and "The Natural," and produced by Steven Spielberg, who has a penchant for the fantastic, it is part mystery, part love story, part fairy tale and totally entertaining.

The film goes back to 1870 Victorian London where Sherlock Holmes (Nicholas Rowe) is attending school. He is a brilliant, articulate, self-confident student but also an impatient one. When John Watson (Alan Cox), a new student in the school meets him, Holmes is fuming because he has not mastered playing the violin in three days.

John, a round-eyed stolid sort of fellow, has a unique understanding why Holmes should expect to become an expert player in such a short time. He understands why after Holmes relates Watson's entire background to him after a brief glance, all deduced from observation. The pattern is set. The boys become friends, with Holmes leading the way and Watson following behind.

Holmes demonstrates his uncanny ability again when he wins a bet with one of the school snobs that he can't find a hidden trophy. He does, and in revenge, the boy frames him and he is expelled.

Before he leaves, a mysterious death of an old man claims his attention. Holmes decides to investigate. He hides out in the school laboratory where a retired slightly-off-the-wall professor works on inventions, one of them being a flying machine. The professor has a niece, the lovely angelic looking Elizabeth (Sophie Ward), with whom Sherlock falls in love.

The three are baffled by the mysterious death of the victim. They bring it to the attention of Sgt. Lestrade (later Inspector Lestrade). Rather indolent, Lestrade ignores the youngsters. He even refuses to move when three more fall victim to wild hallucinations that cause them to commit mayhem against themselves.

Sherlock and his friends pick up a small clue when Watson finds what looks like a small pea-shooter dropped by a shrouded figure fleeing from the scene of a death.

The trio discover that it is some sort of weapon that shoots a small dart dipped in a drug that causes those who are hit by it to have violent hallucinations which drive them to their deaths.

Their efforts to seek out the source of these strange happenings leads the young people to a temple where exotic rituals are performed, including human sacrifice.

We are told that several thousand young actors auditioned for the roles in the film. Nicholas Rowe, the 19-year-old British actor who landed the role, is the son of Andrew Rowe, a Conservative Party Member of Parliament.

Cox is just what we would imagine as a young Watson. Devoted to Holmes but still his own person, adding balance to the partnership with this questioning and slower approach.

Sophie is lovely to look at with her golden hair and dreamy eyes. For her delicate appearance, she is as adventurous and willing to take chances as Holmes is.

The film succeeds also in establishing its identity as a bonafide story of young Sherlock, as we learn how Holmes early in his life acquired the trademarks of the two-peaked cap, checkered cloak and curved pipe. We know also why Holmes never married.

For solid entertainment, this film is a winner. And like some of the other successful films, it will probably have a sequel. We are led to believe that at the film's end, as the two boys part, Holmes remarks that they will probably meet again. An incident that follows the rolling of the credits also substantiates that belief. Don't leave until you see it.

1C. PRAYERS

PRAYER TO THE HOLY SPIRIT
Holy Spirit, you who make me see everything and who show me the way to reach my ideal. You who give me the Divine Gift to forgive and forget the wrong that is done to me and you who are in all instances of my life with me. I, in this short dialogue want to thank you for everything and confirm once more that I never want to be separated from you no matter how great the material desires may be. I want to be with you and my loved ones in perpetual glory. Amen.

Thank you for your love towards me and my loved ones. Pray this prayer 3 consecutive days without asking your wish, after third day your wish will be granted, no matter how difficult it may be. Then promise to publish this prayer as soon as your favor has been granted. Thank you for favors received. D.M.

REMEMBER, O MOST gracious Virgin Mary, that never was it known that anyone who fled to the protection, implored thy help or sought thy intercession, was left unaided. Inspired with this confidence, I fly unto thee, O Virgin of Virgins and Mother: to thee do I come before thee I stand, sinful and sorrowful: O Mother of the Word Incarnate, despise not my petitions but in thy mercy hear and answer me. Amen. Say this Novena for 9 days. Thank you for favors received. D.M.

JAGUAR FALVEY JAGUAR

Vanden Plas

From a heritage of coachbuilders to kings and the sporting aristocracy of Europe comes the most exclusive Jaguar sedan you can own.

The Vanden Plas is a limited edition of the Jaguar Series III sedan. It shares the Series III's superb racebred double overhead cam six, its athletic handling equipment, its uncanny smoothness and silence in motion. Inside, however, the Vanden Plas is unique even among Jaguars. It cossets you with soft leather, exotic burled walnut panels and individually contoured seats front and rear.
