Christmas cuffs

Well folks, it finally happened to me. I was arrested. Right in the middle of the newsroom, in the middle of the day and in front of my colleagues.

It was so embarrassing. There I was busily typing my little digits off when a female officer approached, confirmed my identity and slapped a pair of handcuffs on me.

I knew something was up when she began to take off her clothes. Yes, I was the victim of a Strip-O-Gram. Compliments of "Shemp," my brother-in-law.

And where were my co-workers during all of this? Mostly on the floor laughing their asterisks off. Some were even taking photos. I later learned they were all in on it. Even my cosmic soulmate Peggy "Benedict Arnold" O'Connor, who co-ordinated the whole thing with Shemp.

Anyway, Officer Feelgood activated her jambox (radio) and peeled out of her clothes. Before long I was draped with various black, fringed and lacy undergarments. The whole performance took about 10 minutes.

I'm told that I, Mr. Seen-It-All, Done-It-All, blushed. Furiously. The end result of a thousand generations of Anglo-Celtic inbreeding. What can I say?

Near the end, my lovely tormenter said she had something "special" for me. My ears perked up. "Close your eyes," she cooed. I perked a bit more. Then I felt her slip something around my neck. "Okay, you can look now," she whispered.

I looked and almost fainted. There it was — "The Thing." The Thing is the world's most hideous string tie. The sort of thing even Gabby Hayes wouldn't wear. The "knot" is a large chunk of pyrite — Fool's Gold. And therein lies the tale.

Ten years ago Shemp's slightly addled aunt bought this thing at a garage sale and gave it to her favorite nephew. He gave it to me for Christmas. I surprised him with it the following year.

We've been exchanging it since 1975. Each year the giver gets more imaginative. The get-ter gets more wary. Two years ago on Christmas Eve I came home late at night and saw a huge billboard on the roof of my home, complete with flashing lights. It contained a crude, cartoon-like caricature of me.

When I climbed onto the snowy roof, I found The Thing around the bearded, gray-haired caricature's neck. Last year I waited 'til Shemp and family left their home on Christmas Eve, entered their home and put The Thing in their bed. Around the neck of a plastic, inflatable love doll I'd bought in a funny sort of hardware store on Eight Mile Road.

Paybacks can be rough. The fun didn't end with the stripper's performance. She forgot the key to the cuffs. I thought she was joking. She wasn't. I stayed cuffed for about an hour until I was rescued by Marty Cattle, of the Village Locksmith.

I talked with my stripper and discovered a very personable young woman named Theresa Watt, who estimates she puts on 20 to 30 performances a week. Theresa usually works of-fice parties, promotions, bachelor parties and the like. All strictly on the up and up because she really is a very nice person. In fact she's so nice that every guy in the Grosse Pointe News wanted her phone number, but I'm the only one she gave it to. You can call Theresa at 939-0720 or 468-8914 if you feel like getting a little revenge on the Shemp in your family.

My revenge is writing this article and never once revealing Shemp's real name.

Okay, okay I'll tell you, since it is Christmas. Sorry, changed my mind. And I'll tell you why. A package of liquor has just been delivered to Peggy O'Connor. An accompanying note read "Dear Peggy, thanks for helping me put one over on Tom." It was signed by my brother-in-law.

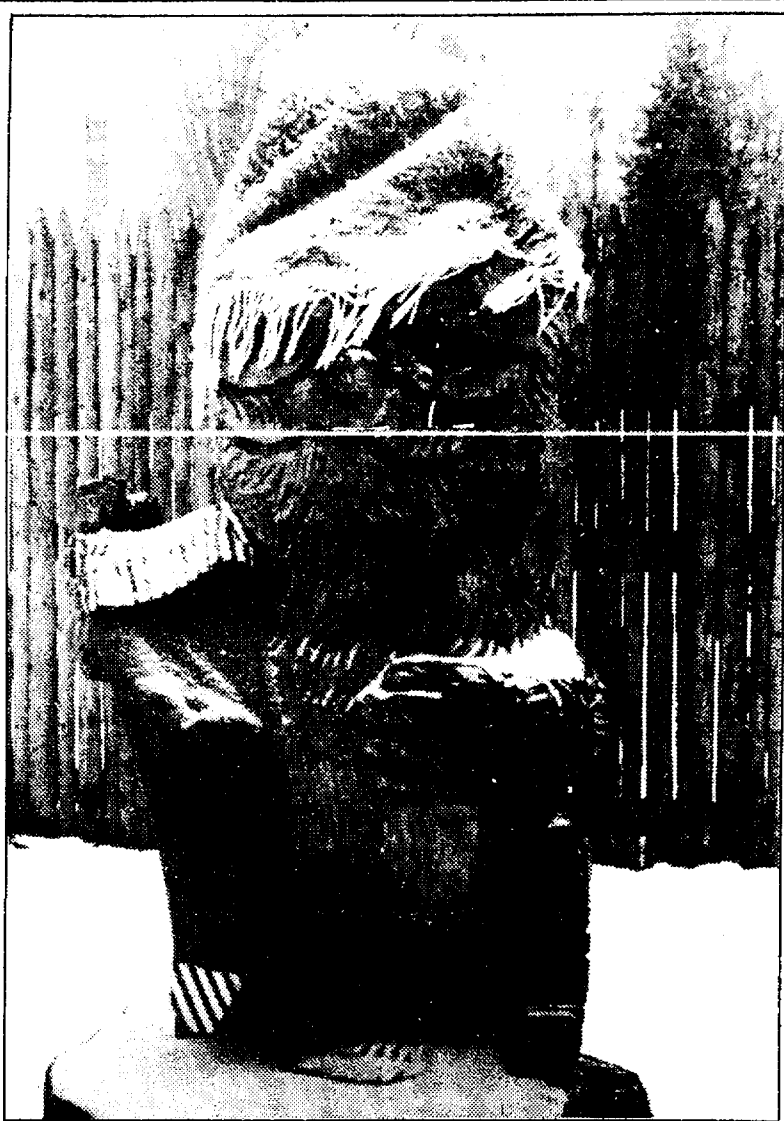

Forget it, Shemp. They'll never know your real name.

See you next year. When you'll be starring in "Return of The Thing."

Vikings, cats and Christmas

"And on the twelfth day of Christmas, my true love gave to me" . . . Hagar the Horrible and Garfield the Cat? Why not? Two of America's favorite cartoon characters appear larger than life, wrapped in scarves and holiday hats, in all their tree stumpy, wooden splendor along Jefferson Avenue in the Park. Hagar appears to be a bit slimmer than he is in the comics, but he's still the same friendly barbarian he's always been. Garfield, on the other hand, is fat and sassy and looks like he's just demolished another pan of lasagna.

Park plans to improve west end

By Pat Paholsky

The focus in the Park will be on the west end in the coming months. A set of proposals to ease traffic congestion in that corner will be presented to the planning commission Jan. 21. And the 1400 block of Wayburn is scheduled to become a demonstration block of what the administration would like to implement over a wider area.

A preliminary traffic study, begun last December, was presented to the planning commission in May. The study divided the Park into six areas. It was determined that Area 3 was the most critical in terms of traffic volume and sub-standard residential parking. The boundaries of Area 3 are from Wayburn to Balfour and from Mack to Charlevoix.

Since May the city has concentrated on Area 3, doing traffic counts and talking to residents and business owners about the problems.

Some of the proposals the planning commission will consider in January will be one-way streets, installation of a traffic signal light, signage and parking permits. City Manager John Crawford said.

Jeff Mueller, administrative assistant to the city manager, said the specifics of some of the proposals, such as parking permits, have not been decided. Possibilities include allotting a certain number of permits to an address or distributing them according to need. The problem now facing residents near Mack is that shoppers are using residential streets for parking rather than meter parking.

"We definitely need more parking on Mack for the businesses," Mueller said.

Shawn Tyree, a Lakepointe resident, helped with the traffic study by counting cars and parking spaces four times a day, at 8 a.m., noon, 5 p.m. and 10 p.m. She recorded license plate numbers of moving and parked vehicles on residential streets. The numbers were then run through a computer to determine how many belonged to non-residents.

The study, Mueller said, showed that 40 to 60 percent of the traffic is non-residential. Some of the percentage, however, can be attributed, he said, to renters who do not notify the secretary of state of their change of address.

Tyree said all of the ideas to improve the problems will be laid out before the planning commission "like a Chinese menu."

"This area is so busy, there's so many houses and then there's the business section," Tyree said. "We have to be so careful because (every proposal) will have an effect on so many people."

She added that whatever is finally implemented "will be a well-thought out plan."

Mueller said the good thing about the suggestions is that they can be tried out temporarily. "It doesn't cost much for signs," he said. "We can try it out and if it doesn't work, we can take them out. The same thing goes for one-way streets."

After the planning commission gets the results of the study, it will make a recommendation to the city council which will either approve, reject or adopt parts of the plan.

The next area scheduled for a traffic study will probably be Area 4, Mueller said, which encompasses the same blocks down to Jefferson.

In another development, the 1400 block of Wayburn is scheduled to become a demonstration block, at city expense, to improve property values and to increase citizen safety. The city will install 6 to 7 feet tall electric lights in front of each house, between the house and sidewalk, this spring. The project will cost about $7,500 City Manager Crawford said.

About a dozen residents of the 1400 block of Wayburn accepted an invitation to tour some northwest Detroit neighborhoods that have pedestrian lighting, Crawford said, adding that all of the residents were invited. They were unanimously in favor of the project, he said, and favored a Colonial-style light.

One of the residents who went on the tour, Kent Commer, said it adds more light and a sense of safety to the entire block. The difference between the blocks that had pedestrian lighting and those that didn't was "like night and day," he added.

"I think it would cut down on crime," he said. "There's a nice sense of community and a better sense of property. It would definitely help."

Administrative Assistant Mueller was enthusiastic. "I don't get too excited about things, but I'm just thrilled about this. It was almost not real — it looked so beautiful."

Crawford said residents will be responsible for the cost of operation, about $1 a month, and maintenance.

"I would like to do all of Wayburn down (to Jefferson)," he said, "and then do all of the six blocks (to Balfour)."

Another idea, for which he has been criticized, is to hire an architectural consultant for the Wayburn block.

"The consultant would look at the block and come up with a scheme of color-coordinating the trim of homes and landscaping," he said. "I'm suggesting we have some theme of preserving property in terms of appearance."

While some residents fear they would be told what color they could paint their homes, Crawford said that wouldn't be the case. Residents who wanted to paint their house would decide on a color. Then they'd refer to a master chart that would list all of the shades in that color and the contrasting trims that would go with the color.

The benefits to the residents is that they would receive free architectural services, Crawford said, and improve their property value.

Charges pending in police death

By Tom Greenwood

For the second time, the Wayne County prosecuting attorney has postponed a decision on possible charges for two Detroit youths involved in the on-duty death of Park police officer Steven Molitor.

Detectives from the City met with staff members of the prosecutor's office Dec. 18, then were told to return with copies of the file on Monday, Dec. 23.

"It looks like they're walking a very fine line on this one," said City Detective Sgt. John Drummond, officer in charge of the case. "They're sort of doing things backwards this time. They told me to make up a copy of the file for their prosecutor to look at first. Usually you make up a file, get a warrant, have an examination for the suspect, then an arraignment on the charges."

"They're doing it backwards this time. Now they're assigning a prosecutor who will look into the case first."

Officer Molitor died early Thursday morning Dec. 12, at Bon Secours Hospital. He was rushed there by police car after collapsing

Molitor memorial fund established

Grosse Pointe Park police say they have been receiving numerous calls from concerned citizens who want to donate funds to the family of Officer Steven Molitor.

To that end, a memorial fund has been established. Money should be sent to: The Steven J. Molitor Memorial Fund, c/o Chief Richard Caretti, 15115 E. Jefferson Avenue, Grosse Pointe Park, 48230.

in the parking lot of a Mack Avenue restaurant. He collapsed approximately 10 minutes after subduing one of two suspects that he and his partners believed had tampered with their scout car.

The Wayne County Medical Examiners Office said Molitor died of a fractured skull. In a phone interview, Dr. Werner Spitz said Molitor's heart fibrillated, causing him to faint, fall forward and fracture his skull just over the right eyebrow. His office ruled Molitor's death a homicide.

"That's what Dr. Spitz's report called it — a homicide," Drummond said. "It looks like the prosecutor's office doesn't feel it has a whole lot of choices in the matter."

Since no charges have been issued, City police have declined to reveal the names of the suspects, ages 19 and 20, who reportedly have never had previous contacts with the police.

Both Park Police Chief Richard Caretti and City Director of Public Safety Bruce Kennedy have described Molitor's death as a "senseless tragedy." "It was just a stupid prank that ended in the death of a good man," Kennedy said.

Drummond will present his case before the prosecutor's office Monday (after press time) and hopes a decision will be forthcoming.

"Eventually they'll make a decision," he said. "They'll have to. I'll get a warrant for something. I just don't know for what."

Shores to discuss school's fate

Village trustees are expected to discuss in the next couple of months what the Shores will do with Vernier School. Results of the village's survey of residents shows strong support for renovation, with either the aid of a non-profit organization or by the village itself.

Superintendent Michael Kenyon said that 369 of the 1,050 families in the village responded to the mailed survey conducted in October and November.

Of the 35 percent responding, 116, or 31 percent, favored the village's renovation of the building, 225, or 61 percent, said the village should enter into an agreement with a non-profit organization to achieve the renovation; six, or 2 percent, said the village should do nothing with the site; while 22, or 6 percent, said the school should be razed.

The village decided to poll its residents about the school building after the Grosse Pointe Historical Society approached the council in the fall with plans for renovation of the facility.

In exchange for raising between $250,000 and $750,000 to cover the interior work — matching the village's $80,000 to $120,000 on the exterior — the historical society would use two of the rooms as headquarters and display rooms.

Many of those saying the village should enter into an agreement with a non-profit organization for the building's renovation specifically mentioned the historical society, Kenyon said.

The village now uses the structure as a voting precinct and for storage. During the renovation of the village hall just east of the school, the Shores moved public safety and municipal offices into the 70-year-old Albert Kahn-designed building.

Vernier was one of the first schools closed and sold to a municipality by the board of education. The lot for the building was bought from the village in 1915 for construction of the new school.

Vernier School was originally built to replace the old Vernier School, then located at the corner of Michaux Lane and Vernier Road, which had deteriorated to an unsafe condition. The village sold the school board the 60-by-100 foot lot for $2,500 and the new school was erected the next year.

Park sued for $10 million

Grosse Pointe Park is being sued by the family of a man killed in a head-on collision with an allegedly drunken driver who supposedly was stopped and released in the Park two hours before.

The lawsuit, filed last week in Wayne County Circuit Court by the cousin and representative of the estate of Timothy Kelley, 32, of Newport, alleges the city maintained a "defacto" policy of not enforcing drunk driving laws against Grosse Pointe residents unless they were involved in a high speed chase or an accident.

Police Chief Richard Caretti called talk of such a policy "just ridiculous," adding such a thing "smacks of non-professionalism."

"I have inquired of top officers here and they assure me that there never has been such a policy," Caretti said. "It's not a policy here now."

The building was designed by Albert Kahn to complement the design of the village hall. Its interior features Pewabic tile, which adorns a fireplace in one of the main classrooms.

In 1956, the board of education decided to close the building as a school and leased it back to the village for $1 a year. The village bought the property and school in 1962 for $25,000.

The historical society considers the building an important part of the community worth saving and hopes over the next 1½ to two years to raise the money for renovation should it be asked by the village to aid in renovation.

Caretti became chief of police in the Park this year, taking over from Henry Coonce. Coonce is reportedly a co-defendant in the suit, along with the Park City Council, Mayor Palmer Heenan, the City Manager John Crawford.

Kelley was killed in November 1984, after his auto collided head-on with a car driven by Sara Elizabeth Conway, of the Park. Conway's 1977 Ford Pinto was traveling north in the southbound lanes of I-275 in northwest Monroe County at the time of the accident, according to published reports.

Kelley died two days later in Toledo Hospital. Conway was also injured in the accident, suffering a broken foot, according to newspaper reports.

According to the lawsuit, Conway was stopped two hours before the accident by a Park patrolman after she drove through a red light at Jefferson near Maryland.

The suit alleges she was visibly intoxicated at the time, but the officer ticketed her for failing to stop at the traffic signal and allowed her to drive away, according to newspaper reports.

The suit claims the city council, city manager and police agreed on a policy of not enforcing drunk driving laws against residents.

General damages sought against three defendants are in excess of $10,000. Exemplary damages sought against the city are $10 million.

"This city intends to actively defend itself in this lawsuit," Deason said. "To the best of my knowledge, no such policy now or has ever existed in Grosse Pointe Park."

Obituaries

Francis Robinson

Services for Mr. Robinson, 78, of the Farms were held Monday, Dec. 23, at Christ Church. He died Dec. 18 at Bon Secours Hospital.

As long-time curator of medieval and ancient art for the Detroit Institute of Arts, Mr. Robinson acquired a reputation as one of the foremost curatorial personalities in the history of the DIA.

He joined the staff in 1939 as curator of European art, then acquired his latest position as curator of ancient and medieval art in 1947. Among his most important acquisitions was a 30-piece exhibit called the "Treasures of Tutankhamon" from the Egyptian Museum in Cairo.

Also while at the DIA, he was responsible for staging the "Flanders in the 15th Century" exhibit in 1960. Partly because of his work on the exhibit, he was awarded the Knight of the Order of the Crown of Belgium.

Mr. Robinson received his bachelor's and master's degree from Princeton University. He did post-graduate work at Harvard, the Sorbonne, the University of Michigan and the University of Rome. He retired in 1972.

Mr. Robinson was also past president of the Detroit Society for Genealogical Research and he was a member of the Archaeological Institute of America.

Mr. Robinson is survived by his wife, Margaret; two nieces; and a nephew.

Interment was in Connecticut. Arrangements were by the William R. Hamilton Co., Groesbeck Chapel.

Madeline Platz

Services for Mrs. Platz, 81, of Fleetwood Road, were held Monday, Dec. 23, at St. Peter's Church. She died Dec. 19 at Cottage Hospital.

She was born in Windsor, Ontario. She was predeceased by her husband, Raymond, and is survived by a niece, Mary Lou Hogan.

Interment was at Mount Olivet Cemetery.

Arrangements were by the Verheyden Funeral Home.

Remi De Jonghe

Services for Mr. De Jonghe, 70, of Hollywood Road, were held Saturday, Dec. 21, at the Verheyden Funeral Home and St. Joan of Arc Church.

He died Dec. 19 at St. John Hospital.

Born in the Park, he was a tire builder for the Uniroyal Tire Co. Mr. De Jonghe is survived by his wife, Virginia; a daughter, Vicki Wood; a son, Michael; one sister; and one grandchild.

Interment was at Mount Olivet Cemetery.

Ellen S. Stoepel

A memorial Mass for Miss Stoepel, 73, of McKinley Road, was held Saturday, Dec. 14, at St. Paul's Catholic Church.

She died Dec. 11 at Cottage Hospital.

Born in Detroit, she was a floral designer with Grosse Pointe Florists, retiring three years ago. She was also part owner of Paskel's flowers and before that, DePetris Flowers.

Miss Stoepel was a member of Tau Beta Association, the Junior League of Detroit and the League of Catholic Women.

She is survived by her sisters, Fredricka J. and Anne; and a brother, Fredrick C.

Memorial contributions may be made to the Howlett Memorial Fund, 281 LaSalle Place, Grosse Pointe Farms, 48236, or to St. Paul's Church.

Cremation was at Forest Lawn Cemetery.

Thomas F. Cullen

Services for Mr. Cullen, 55, of Roland Court, were held Saturday, Dec. 21, at the Verheyden Funeral Home and St. Paul's Catholic Church.

He died Dec. 18 at Receiving Hospital, Detroit.

A native Detroit, he was a labor relations analyst.

Mr. Cullen is survived by his wife, Marilyn; two daughters, Susan LaBelle and Sally Cyacki; three sons, John, Thomas and Peter Staudt; one sister; one brother; and four grandchildren.

Memorial contributions may be made to the Michigan Heart Association.

Interment was at Mount Olivet Cemetery.

Lewis R. Miller

Memorial services for Mr. Miller, 68, of Vernier Road, were held Saturday, Dec. 21, at the Verheyden Funeral Home.

He died Dec. 19 at Harper Hospital, Detroit.

Born in Chicago, he is survived by a daughter, Donna C.; a step-daughter, Candace J. Crossley; a son, Peter R.; a step-son, Richard; and one brother.

Memorial contributions may be made to the Sacred Heart Rehabilitation Center, 569 Elizabeth, Detroit, 48201.

Cremation was at Forest Lawn Cemetery.

William E. Bradford

Memorial services for Mr. Bradford, 90, of the City, were held Tuesday, Dec. 17, at the Verheyden Funeral Home.

He died Dec. 15 at his home.

Born in Tyngsboro, Mass., he served as an aerial gunner instructor during World War I. Mr. Bradford was retired from Naugatuck Chemical, a division of the Uniroyal Tire Co. He was industrial relations manager at the local plant and coordinator of industrial relations for the chemical division.

He was also the chief negotiator on union contracts and represented the chemical division at all company-wide negotiations with the United Rubber Workers since 1946.

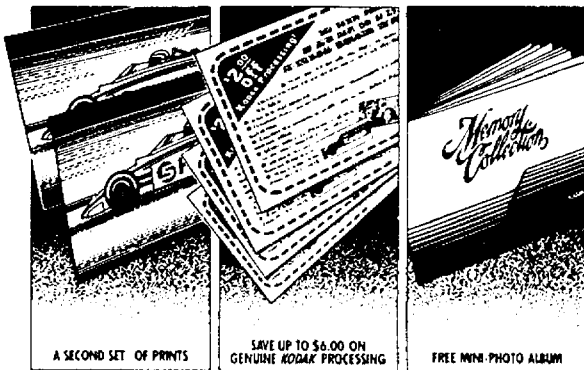

Mr. Bradford is survived by his wife, Virginia; a daughter, Joyce Coombe; a son, Philip Marshall; and two grandchildren.

Memorial contributions may be made to the American Diabetes Association.

Cremation was at Forest Lawn Cemetery.

This North High School homeroom class took some time Thursday to bear gifts to local families as part of the school's Adopt-A-Family program. More than 60 families from the Pointes, Harper

Woods and Detroit were recipients of gifts from the students, staff and administrators at the school.

North students make Christmas happier for 60 families

Everyone at North High got together this year to make Christmas merrier for more than 60 local families. Students and staff prepared and delivered holiday baskets of food, clothing and gifts Friday as part of the school's Adopt-A-Family program.

This is the 10th year the school has operated the program, according to the Donald Dungan, Student Association coordinator. This year, 15 families from Grosse Pointe and Harper Woods as well as 48 from the Guyton Elementary School in the Jefferson/Chalmers area were "adopted" by students, through their homerooms, administrators, teachers, counselors and the lunchroom staff.

"The kids are just wonderful," Dungan said. "They have taken to this project; they identify with it and really get behind it."

Adopt-A-Family is one of the activities sponsored and organized by the school's Student Association.

The program emphasizes gifts of food, winter clothing like coats, hats and mittens, and games and toys. Each delivery is accompanied by a basket of apples and oranges, paid for by the student group.

The money to purchase the food and gifts is raised by the adopting groups. Some homeroom students held fundraisers like bake sales to help collect money, Dungan said.

Because the program has been around for a number of years, donations also come from parents and residents who are familiar with it, he added.

There are about the same number of adopted families this year as there were last year, Dungan said. Local families are selected with the help of inquiries sent to elementary and middle schools.

The program is more than providing a warm holiday meal. One homeroom's delivery filled a station wagon and another car. The administrator's offering took up the best part of an assistant principal's office.

"This is just our way of reaching out," Dungan said. "We benefit more than the families from the spirit it engenders and the values that it teaches."

Three-car crash injures two in Shores

A three-car accident in the Shores Dec. 16 sent two people to the hospital with serious injuries.

A Woods man was traveling on Lakeshore when he lost control of his car, crossed the median island and hit an oncoming car head-on. A third car traveling behind was unable to stop and broadsided the second vehicle, according to Shores police.

Police say they have been unable to determine what caused the man to lose control. They surmise that he blacked out temporarily. The weather was not blamed.

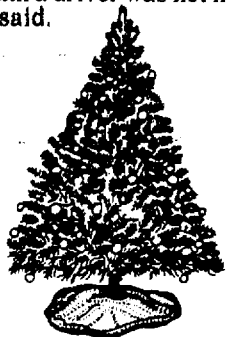

Trapped behind the steering wheel of the second vehicle was a St. Clair Shores woman, 49. She was only released from her car by a Hurst tool — or Jaws of Life — brought to the scene by the Harper Woods department.

She was taken to St. John Hospital with lacerations, possible fractured knees and a sharp object impaled in one knee, according to police reports. Later it was learned that she also sustained lacerations of the liver and lungs and had several broken ribs.

The Woods man was taken to Bon Secours with severe chest injuries.

The third driver was not injured, police said.

Vitale plans reorganization

Shores Public Safety Director Joseph Vitale has announced a departmental reorganization triggered by the retirement of Lt. Charles Wenrich of the special services bureau.

Wenrich, who has spent 34 years in the department, 16 of them as second-in-command, will retire Jan. 1. "He will be missed dearly," Vitale said. "We work well together and he is a good friend."

As a result of Wenrich's retirement, there will be additional movement within the department. Vitale said he maintains an eligibility list for promotions and new hires.

From that list, Corporal Gary Mitchell will be promoted to sergeant and will take command of a patrol platoon. Mitchell will also remain as supervisor of the department's youth division.

Patrolman Bruce Darlington will be promoted to corporal. His new duties will include supervision of a platoon, Vitale said.

To maintain the duties vacated by Wenrich, Sergeant Daniel Healy will be reassigned to the special services bureau.

Two other officers plan to retire during 1986. In preparation for that, desk officer David Younk is scheduled to start basic police training in late January at Macomb Community College.

One new patrolman has already been hired and will start work Jan. 1. He is Gary Boudreau of the Houston, Texas, police department. He is a certified emergency medical technician and has already passed his examinations and certifications for Michigan, Vitale said.

Christmas basket saves woman's life

A Christmas food basket delivery by Grosse Pointe Park Fire Department Lt. Lee Fallieres meant more to one woman than simply a happy holiday; it may have saved her life.

Fallieres tried to deliver a holiday basket to the woman, who lives on Camden, but was unable to get an answer when he knocked on the door. He talked with the woman's neighbor and asked her to call the woman to make sure she was all right.

After trying unsuccessfully to contact the woman that day, the neighbor checked with other residents on the street and found someone able to gain entry to the home. When they did, they found the woman lying in the living room, unable to stand.

She was taken to Bon Secours Hospital, where fire officials say she is doing well.

The woman apparently fell while doing some cleaning and wasn't able to stand, pull herself to the phone or respond when he was knocking at the door, Fallieres said. She may have been there for at least a full day, since two days of newspapers and mail were in her mailbox when he arrived, he added.

SELF EMPLOYMENT RETIREMENT INCOME PLAN (Better known as Keogh or HR-10) TO TAKE ADVANTAGE OF THIS IRS APPROVED TAX SHELTER YOU MUST ACT PRIOR TO DECEMBER 31, 1985

- Are you Self-Employed? Do you earn income as a dentist, doctor, attorney, or consultant? Are you a free-lancer, professional employee with clients of your own, an employee with a sideline business, a homemaker with services run out of your home such as typing or answering the phone, a director receiving fees, a farmer or clergyman, or a small business owner or partner?
- Do you currently have an existing or frozen pension Keogh (HR-10) Plan?
- Are you aware that with the passage of the federal law "TEFRA" you can now take advantage of the contribution and benefit limits previously provided only to corporations?

If you answered yes to any of these questions let New England Compensation Planning, Inc. help you design your own pension/tax shelter that will also earn tax deferred money for your retirement. Use the following chart to determine the deductions you could take on your 1985 INCOME TAX RETURN and the retirement fund you could accumulate tax deferred to age 65, (based on $10,000 annual gross earned income or less and a conservative 5% interest rate). If your earned income is greater than $10,000 the deduction and investment fund will likewise be greater. Please call us for an exact analysis.

Age	Deduction	Net Reportable Income	Investment fund at Normal Retirement Age 65*
30	$ 2,000	$9,000	$180,640
35	2,124	7,876	141,137
40	2,957	7,043	141,137
45	4,288	5,712	141,137
50	6,540	3,460	141,137

Police contract extended; firefighters refuse offer

An agreement the Farms thought it had with the police and fire departments for a six-month extension of the union contracts "fell apart" before it reached the council for approval, City Manager Andrew Bremer said. The 2 percent increase for police personnel passed without a hitch Dec. 16, but the firefighters union refused to accept the extension.

"We hope that further explanation by their business manager will convince the fire department," Bremer said.

The city is ready to move on consolidation of the two departments into a public safety department and has been holding discussions to that effect with the unions. The six-month contract extension was proposed by the police union in order to keep current, according to City

Clerk Richard Solak. "It was intended to try to get some money in their pockets — to catch up on the cost of living," Solak said. He said it is also aimed at keeping the focus on public safety, without getting sidetracked on economic issues during the current fire contract discussions.

Firefighters seemed uninterested in a settlement this week. The union members feel a new contract should have been negotiated and are opposed to a six-month extension of the old one, according to union board member Lt. Charles Backman. The old contract expired in July, so that a six-month extension would only bring it up to December in any case.

"We'll just keep negotiating," Backman said.

QUESTIONS TO ASK BEFORE YOU LEAVE YOUR COLOR PRINT FILM FOR ONE HOUR PROCESSING:

Before you drop off a role of valuable Holiday photos for one hour processing, ask the sales clerk these questions:

- Does the lab use genuine Kodak U.S.A. paper and chemicals? Many one hour labs are using Kodak paper imported from France, which is not genuine Kodak U.S.A. paper, and will not give you the best possible print from your negative, and won't even give you full size photos! Read the back of the print carefully make sure it's all in English!
- Is the lab a Kodak COLORWATCH lab? Kodak has set up rigid standards for labs who can qualify the Kodak COLORWATCH certification. Most labs cannot meet these standards . . . so watch out!
- Are the color prints 5 1/4" long? If they aren't, your print is missing part of the picture you took, and that's in your negative!

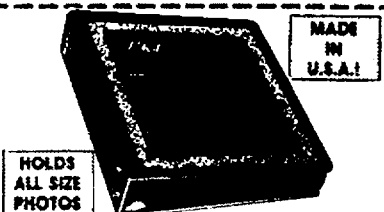

If the one hour lab you presently use doesn't "pass the test" on these three questions, come to Speedi Photo . . . Grosse Pointe's Kodak certified COLORWATCH processing lab!!

Farms clerical employees model their working-day uniforms. The public has responded positively to the efforts of Fleurette Schultz, Drew Ross, Barb Bassett, Marge Foster and Rosemary Jensen to professionalize their look.

Farms clerical employees get help with uniform

Clerical workers in the Farms received an across-the-board salary increase of 5 percent by council action Dec. 16.

"Based upon a review of increases and benefit adjustments provided to clerical personnel in surrounding communities, and the approximate increase in the only contract settled — DPW — I recommend (the 5 percent increase)," said City Manager Andrew Bremer.

One of the unusual fringe benefits in the clerical department is an allotment for clothing. Five years ago, the women working behind the two front desks on the main floor of city hall decided to adopt a uniform appearance for work. By a majority vote, they decided to wear a navy blazer with green or yellow in spring and camel or gray in winter. The city provides an insignia to sew on the blazer pocket.

Response from the public has been favorable, according to the women and city officials.

A year or two after the uniform was adopted, the city decided to chip in on the cost. At that time, council voted a stipend of $100 for each worker. Last week, the amount was raised for the first time, to $150.

"It has never been intended to cover their cost," said City Clerk Richard Solak. He said the sum is meant as appreciation of the workers' efforts to promote the city's image.

The long road to 1988

It turns out that the early start Michigan Republicans are making in the 1988 presidential campaign is even earlier than we had thought last week and that, indeed, the 1988 campaign is already under way in this state even though 1985 is still not at an end.

If our information now is correct, precinct delegate candidates must qualify by May 27 to run in the state primary next Aug. 5. To qualify they must certify their residency and collect from 15 to 20 signatures of registered voters in their precinct. These precinct delegates are important because they, in turn, will pick the delegates to the county and congressional district conventions in late 1987. Michigan then will become the first state to choose its 1988 delegates.

It is true, as Remer Tyson reminded his Detroit Free Press readers the other day, precinct delegates will not be bound to support any presidential candidate. But that has not stopped leading GOP candidates from beating the political bushes in Michigan to seek out and elect precinct delegates who will support county and district delegates favoring them for president. So that is why we say the nominating process already is under way in this state.

State GOP leaders see advantages for Michigan in this early start. Presumably it will increase interest in the presidential campaign and benefit the state and the Michigan GOP if the state backs the winning horse in his very first start of the 1988 race. Yet the opposite could also occur. There is strong evidence from political leaders and political scientists that political campaigns, and especially those for president, already are running so long that they bore the average citizen.

Republicans and Democrats alike said that the old presidential primary came too late to make much difference in the ultimate outcome and so, for once agreeing on a political issue, they repealed the presidential primary law.

It has been widely assumed that George Bush is still the leading candidate in Michigan even though he is taking no chances by returning often to this state. Yet the hard work of the Michigan backers to Rep. Jack Kemp reportedly is beginning to pay off with a number of officials already making public endorsements of the New York congressman. So Michigan may not be a cinch to go for Bush as in 1980.

Without an incumbent president seeking re-election and both parties fielding ample numbers of potential candidates, the 1988 race appears to be a wide open affair. Unfortunately, by starting the campaign this early, Michigan Republicans run the risk of widespread public fallout by the time the 1988 convention and campaign roll around. Politics is too important to be left just to the politicians, it is true, but asking the average voter to keep a sustained interest in the bidding for the next presidential nomination for more than two-and-a-half years is, in our view, just asking too much.

No tax cut for Christmas

It still appears likely Michigan's state income tax will be cut back to 4.6 percent some time early in 1986, even though the Lansing deadlock last week over the exact date deprived taxpayers of a tax reduction Christmas present.

Rep. William Bryant Jr. of Grosse Pointe can't be blamed, however, for the deadlock that occurred. He did his best, as the ranking GOP representative on the House Taxation Committee, to form a compromise with the Democratic chairman, Lynn Johndahl of Lansing, that would have permitted the income tax rate to revert to 4.6 percent by April 1, or earlier — even Jan. 1 — if the state's surplus permitted. The compromise went down the tube, however, when Senate Republicans refused to agree to it.

Instead, the senators went back to their original demand that the reduction in the tax rate be made retroactive to Nov. 11. Their insistence is based on their prediction that the state surplus will be found to be much greater than the Blanchard administration now estimates it to be. With the Legislature now in recess until early in January, there will be no action on this or any other compromise until 1986.

As we've said earlier, we still think the two parties in the Legislature finally will reach some compromise on a 1986 reduction in the income tax rate if for no other reason than next year is an election year. Neither party would want to take the blame for further postponing the reduction to the 4.6 percent rate that had been in effect for several years prior to the 1983 emergency increase. If no action were taken next year, the reduction to 4.6 percent would not come until Oct. 1, 1987.

There are other differences between the Democrats and Republicans on tax legislation. The governor wants more property tax relief but also an increase in certain banking and insurance company taxes as well as higher capital gains taxes. The Republicans in both houses for the most part oppose any additional taxes and contend the state's surplus should be able to finance the income tax cut if not any further property tax relief, too.

The debate over who is responsible for the failure of the Legislature to agree on the reversion to the 4.6 percent rate is already under way. The governor, who had supported the compromise, charged that "small-minded" Senate Republicans were to blame. Senate Republican Leader John Engler of Mount Pleasant accused Blanchard of being "miserly at Christmastime." It's obvious the public has not heard the last word of this controversy.

Some political issues, like candidates, tend to wither and die as conditions change. Perhaps that is happening to the income tax issue in Michigan. If so, then Republicans ought to be searching for new ways to combat the incumbent governor's re-election campaign rather than relying on an issue that no longer appears to capture public attention now that taxes are going down rather than up.

Free speech in shopping malls

In a divided opinion, the New York Court of Appeals last week ruled that shopping malls are not public places where citizens are free to distribute politically related pamphlets as they please. The ruling is being viewed as a restriction on both freedom of speech and freedom of assembly.

Yet the case is similar to one decided last year by the Michigan Supreme Court in which the court ruled in effect that shopping malls are private property and thus protected from public circulation of petitions and other political material by outsiders.

In its majority opinion, the New York court ruled that while the drafters of the New York state constitution "may not have envisioned shopping malls, there can be no question that they intended the state constitution to govern the rights of citizens with respect to their government and not the rights of private individuals against private individuals."

The majority opinion pointed out that the mall, described as a typical suburban shopping center, had always permitted "events that generate good will, consumer interest and patronage, but that it had uniformly barred all political activities," including an attempt by a former U.S. senator to campaign there.

What the cases boiled down to, in a general sense, is the issue now being debated by U.S. Attorney General Edwin Meese and legal authorities from around the country. It is whether or not the courts should interpret constitutional provisions in the light of changed conditions since the Constitution was written or whether they should try to interpret the Constitution narrowly in order to reflect the views of the Founding Fathers and the conditions of that day.

The majority opted for the narrow view that because the New York constitution protected people only against government action, not restrictions imposed by private property owners, shopping centers are free to enforce blanket policies against distributing handbills on their property.

Yet the dissenters quoted Chief Justice Marshall who said 166 years ago that a constitution is "intended to endure for ages to come and consequently to be adapted to the various crises of human affairs." And they argued that since privately-owned malls have become the primary public gathering places, the exercise of free speech by those who seek to communicate with the general public will be adversely affected by a complete denial of access to the mall.

The majority said, however, that "the willingness of courts to interpret constitutional provisions in light of changing conditions has safeguarded both our constitutions and the freedom they protect." And then it added that "there is a profound difference, however, between interpreting constitutional provisions and dispensing with constitutional requirements."

It is true, as the dissenters said, that the shopping mall now is a direct descendant of Main Street, has the attributes of a downtown business area and has become the primary public gathering place. As a consequence, the dissenters said, a group without funds for mass mailings of advertisements will be precluded from expressing its views to the public.

But the majority in New York held that the mall is not the functional equivalent of a government and its conduct is not the equivalent of government conduct. And it concluded that there was no showing of significant government participation in private conduct that limited the free speech rights of the plaintiffs.

So in New York and Michigan shopping malls remain private property so far as free speech and the right of assembly are concerned and the owners are free to enforce blanket policies in effect prohibiting free speech. In the end, it appears in this context that property rights are regarded as superior to the Bill of Rights, a conclusion that the public may not necessarily endorse.

One solution to opening parks

To the Editor:

Now that Dearborn has voted to exclude non-residents from their parks, attention is being given to the long-standing exclusion of non-residents from parks in the Grosse Pointes, St. Clair Shores and Harper Woods. It seems unfair that non-residents living close to these parks cannot use them — particularly Detroiters, whose parks remain open to all.

The situation on the east side differs from that of Dearborn, because from Alter Road north, the Grosse Pointes and St. Clair Shores occupy all the shore line, thus excluding non-residents from the lake. At the end of our street (Three Mile Drive), for example, is a park on the lake which we cannot use, because it belongs to Grosse Pointe Park.

I have a suggestion. The Grosse Pointes do allow us to use their libraries for a nominal fee. Why not similarly allow us to use their parks for a fee? This allows them to retain control of people in the parks, since park passes could be recalled from anyone misusing a park. However, I believe anyone who buys a park pass is a responsible person and is not likely to abuse park privileges.

Why not try it for a year or two? The cities could use the revenue, and more people could enjoy the lake.

Clown Corps should continue

To the Editor:

I am hopeful that the Grosse Pointe Clown Corps will still function in the future. Concerns by some members of the Grosse Pointe Woods City Council that use of the Clown Corps could subject a municipality to possible litigation in the event of injury to a Clown Corps volunteer or someone else are not ridiculous but must be kept in perspective.

We cannot do everything, or refrain from doing everything, because of fears of what might be. The Clown Corps is an important part of our community and should continue.

Thank you

To the Editor:
This letter is in response to the overwhelming outpouring of love and kindness shown to my family and myself during our time of grief.

I would like to thank both the business and residential community for their thoughtful expressions of support. Many of you are known to me personally, but I do not want to overlook the many other wonderful people who chose to share my loss.

With deep appreciation,
Judith Molitor and family

Thanks for loyalty, support

To the Editor:

As residents of Grosse Pointe Park and owners of The Book Shelf for the past thirteen-and-a-half years, we would like to thank our many customers for their loyalty and support. During these years of increase in self-service businesses, Betty and I have stood fast for personal service in offering our discerning reading customers a welcome atmosphere in which to browse and shop among a wide variety of books. Young and old have been served alike. It has been a challenge and a privilege to meet your needs. We shall miss your satisfied smiles and pleasant greetings.

A word of caution to the residents of The Farms: If you wish The Hill to remain an attractive location for a variety of fine retail shops, please take an active interest in your local government as well as the work of The Hill Association. Through the efforts of Rich Solak, The Hill Association and the Farms council, great strides have been made to improve the appearance of The Hill. However, that alone is not enough. The building owners who lease to retail establishments have very little interest in maintaining the area as a fine shopping strip. So long as higher and higher rents are paid, they are satisfied. A large number of these owners are not residents of the Pointes. The renovation of the Punch and Judy as well as the Bologna construction at Muir and Kercheval may help to "turn the tide." Good retail stores are diminishing in the area and will continue to do so, unless, as a vocal public, you are heard and you are involved.

Betty and I thank the Farms council for their support and cooperation, the Grosse Pointe News for its assistance, and, especially, the members of The Hill Association who work long and hard to keep The Hill alive and vital — a place that brings pride to each of us.

Best wishes for continuing growth and success.

Betty and Frank Sladen
Owners of The Book Shelf

Prime Time for senior citizens

By Marian Trainor

Christmas is a time for remembering.

We remember our loved ones with gifts, carefully selected, patiently wrapped and tied with ribbons of love. We hope with all our hearts we have chosen wisely. There is a special joy in holiday giving, a warm glow of anticipation as we wait for our present to be opened, a feeling of pride when we see the happy surprise in faces as the cover is lifted on the box. We are happy that we have selected the right gift as a token of all that this so loved person means to us.

Christmas is a time for remembering our friends by sending cards. Many times these cards are the only communication that remains between ourselves and those who were so close to us but now, because of distance and busy schedules, have drifted out of our day-to-day lives but never out of our thoughts and memories.

We write little notes about our doings and urge them to write us about their latest happenings. We make promises to write or visit, or call knowing that more than likely it will never happen because we are so bound up with our own doings that we can always rationalize that we are too busy, or tired, or we will do it tomorrow. We think that if my friend had a letter for everytime she comes into my thoughts, letters would be flying back and forth over the miles. But we settle for this once-a-year holiday greeting that says, "I'm still here and I still think of you."

Christmas is a time to remember Christmas past as we bring out the decorations. Most of them have a story to tell, particularly a hand-carved Nativity scene brought back from Germany by a father who is no longer here to celebrate Christmas. We remember how much he loved the holiday. It was for him the most important day of the year. All stops were pulled out to make the day memorable. There were dolls and bikes and games and books, all the gifts that children look forward to getting — so many that the living room looked like a toy store.

We remember him for many wonderful things he did for us but most of all for making Christmas so special. We remember with pride and wonder his last Christmas with us. He was terminally ill but his hospital room was decorated with garlands of green and bright red poinsettias. There was a tree with lights. Small gifts were presented by loving hands. It was a very special Christmas — and his last. There was not one of us that did not firmly believe that he had held onto life to share one more Christmas with us.

That very special memory fades into other memories of Yuletides when we were all together. Christmas Eve when we all went to midnight mass. Our feet made a crunchy noise in the frozen snow and we could see our breath in the frosty air. Overhead the sky was velvet blue with downy white snow clouds and silver blinking stars. Ordinary conversation was amplified in the chill of the night and we blinked off the snowflakes that danced against our cheeks. As we walked up to the church, we could hear the choirs' voices raised and we looked up thinking we might see that star of Bethlehem overhead.

As we opened the church doors, the music now amplified poured over us and we were at peace. The prophecy had come true, at this moment for this night — the Child had brought peace to the world. It was so complete; the manger scene, the altar decked with fir trees and poinsettias, the sonorous intones of the Mass. It was something to hold on to, a refuge of the mind for whatever the new year would bring.

Back home there was work to be done. The house was shiny and smelled of oil soap and furniture polish. The windows gleamed, making a perfect setting for garlands of wreaths and lights. Presents had been furtively wrapped, ready to be presented Christmas morning but there still remained tasks that could only be completed after the children had reluctantly gone to bed.

It was a set rule that the Christmas tree was not set up and decorated until Christmas Eve. It was also a tradition that the family make a trip to a Christmas tree farm, pick out a tree and cut it down. It was never a small one. It had to reach a six-foot ceiling and be wide enough to spread its branches the width of the room. Bringing it in and setting it in a stand was no small maneuver. It also took a considerable time to decorate but it was a thing of beauty when the light went on Christmas morning — somewhat like the center stage tree in "The Nutcracker Suite" productions.

As the children grew older, the custom was relaxed to permit some of them to stay up long enough to help with the tree. Each one had his or her favorite ornament and vied for the best spot to show it off. But, we remained true to the custom of waiting until Christmas morning to open gifts, partially to keep the illusion alive among the younger members that Santa did indeed bring them.

There were times when we fervently wished that there really was a Santa Claus. Some of the toys he was supposed to bring had so many parts and screws that it took hours to assemble them. There was always a secret fear that, tired as we were, we might fall asleep on the job and the toys would not get assembled. But we always persevered and the doll buggies, bikes and other various intricate toys that came in a box marked "easy to follow directions" did get put together well enough to work for a while, sometimes even through Christmas Day.

Christmas morning was a riot of joy followed by a hectic race to clear the house of tissue and ribbon and boxes so the house could be readied for dinner guests. The path from kitchen to dining room became an obstacle course as we dodged toy trucks, stepped over games spread out on the floor or reached over a erector structure in progress.

The day swirled on its merry way as friends and neighbors dropped by to see "The Tree." There were greetings and laughter and kisses under the mistletoe before

I say

Hurry, hurry, get them while they last — only five days left in 1985.

In five days you're going to start ruining half your checks by writing the wrong year. In five days you're going to make a bundle of resolutions that you'll break within about 10 days.

Have you ever wondered why we celebrate the New Year on Jan. 1? It doesn't have to be so. Jews celebrate Rosh Hashanah, the Jewish New Year, in the fall. The Chinese celebrate the New Year in the spring.

Since the earth goes around the sun in an unbroken circle, one can choose the beginning and ending at any convenient point. I think the fact that western civilization has chosen the middle of the winter to celebrate beginnings and endings says something about our general outlook.

If it were up to me to choose, I think I would go with the Chinese concepts of the New Year. For the largest population on earth, New Year's is a festival of rebirth. It is celebrated in the spring when the crops are beginning to grow and when the weather is turning warm and pleasant.

The traditional Chinese New Year celebration is based on a pun. People parade through the streets carrying signs with the word for spring written upside down. The joke is that the word for "arrives" and "upside down" sound alike (though they are represented by different characters). So "spring upside down" means "spring arrives."

In China, the New Year is a time for looking ahead with optimism on the prospects for the next year. It is a time of feasting, parading and singing.

Rosh Hashanah, by contrast, is a solemn festival. It is the conclusion of 10 days of fasting that began with Yom Kippur, the Day of Atonement. Jewish philosophy teaches that you cannot begin to discharge your obligations to God until you have filled all your obligations to your fellow man. Therefore, the good Jew prepares for the New Year by apologizing to anyone he has offended in the past year, paying his debts and righting any wrongs he has done.

Rosh Hashanah is the Day of Judgment, when the people of earth pass before God and are summon the people to their penitence.

Our New Year celebration comes at a time of neither beginnings or endings. I suppose we can blame the Romans for our calendar which begins in the middle of the worst weather our climate can muster.

The symbol of the New Year in the western world is Auld Lang Syne, the renewing of friendships. We hold parties to remind ourselves of how many friends we have and to give thanks for the human relationships that make our lives richer.

It is unfortunate that an important part of our New Year ritual involves imbibing to excess. It is even more unfortunate that the Romans stuck us with this lousy weather for our New Year celebration. Though it is not founded in any philosophy, too many of us will drink past our limit, then climb into cars to drive home over roads that may be icy and difficult to negotiate. I find it difficult to reconcile the custom of destroying an expensive automobile, not to mention maiming or killing a human being, with any sane philosophy.

I'd like to celebrate the New Year as a combination of all three. Let us look forward to the coming year with a sense of optimism like the Chinese. It may not be spring, but with winter well under way, can spring be far behind? Let us also spend some time considering ourselves. Have we done the best we could for ourselves and our fellow men? Last, but certainly not least, let us appreciate our friends and family, but let's not drive home from the party in a drunken stupor.

Have a safe and happy New Year.

Arbitrator rules for union

By Mike Andrzejczyk

An arbitrator has sided with the Grosse Pointe Education Association in a grievance filed last year by a school social worker who was denied a vacancy at South High School.

The ruling by arbitrator Doug Whiting means that social worker Lynn O'Connor, currently operating at Parcels Middle School, is to be appointed to the post at South, now held by Gail Erickson.

The grievance came of events beginning in the spring of 1984 when the school social worker at South announced retirement. The school system posted the job, for which O'Connor applied.

That June, O'Connor was told she would get the South post. That August, that commitment wasn't honored and the job was reposted. The two major requirements in both cases were a master's degree in social work and experience with substance abuse counseling, according to Director of Labor and Personnel Ronald Tonks.

The system chose Erickson over O'Connor because of Erickson's extensive experience in substance abuse counseling. She is certified as a social worker by the state of Michigan, but she doesn't have a master's. She has a specialization in drug counseling work as well.

The system chose Erickson over O'Connor because her experience in substance abuse counseling was so overwhelming the district decided to forego its degree requirement to award her the position, Tonks said.

The GPEA filed a grievance, arguing that, under provisions of the contract, applicants for positions who are currently employees should receive preference over other candidates if experience and other factors are equal, local President Doris Cook said.

Cook said she was pleased with the decision. "This sustains us in our contractual rights to apply and be transferred to vacant position," she added.

O'Connor said she was also pleased with the ruling. "What they did was a disservice to all of us," she added.

While she hasn't the same experience in substance abuse counseling as Erickson, that wasn't the position for which she applied, O'Connor said.

"I'm not a drug counselor. If they had posted for a drug counselor, I wouldn't have applied," she said. "But they posted for a school social worker."

The school system made a mistake by trying to turn the school social worker position into a drug counseling job, staffers say. That mistake was compounded by not hiring someone who could handle the duties of a school social worker and substance abuse counselor.

To gain a master's in social work, a person must complete a two-year education and work experience program. A school social worker must have a master's degree to hold the title, O'Connor said. In addition, a social worker who holds a master's degree can perform certain special education duties and certify emotionally impaired students, which a certified social worker can't perform.

The school system was forced to juggle social workers to cover special education duties that Erickson could not perform while she worked toward her degree, O'Connor said.

Part of the reason she wasn't given the South position was because of her opposition to the moving of sixth-graders into middle schools, O'Connor said.

While the district intends to appoint O'Connor to the South post, it will take some time, Tonks said. The district is studying the matter to see what has to be done to comply with the arbitrator's decision.

Selective Service

On Jan. 1, 1986, men who were required in 1980 to register with Selective Service will be turning 26. The service does not have the authority to accept registrations of men after 26. Those who failed to register will have permanently forfeited their right to certain federal student aid and job training benefits as well as federal government. In addition, registration with Selective Service is a requirement in some states for various employment opportunities, such as law enforcement agencies and permission to practice law.

Non-registrants may be unaware of the requirement. Some have served in the military but failed to register either before entering the Armed Forces or after leaving active duty. Others may have been incarcerated at the time of their 18th birthday and not realized they were required to register if released from custody prior to age 26.

Men age 18 to 25 who have not yet registered should do so to avoid prosecution and/or loss of benefits. It takes five minutes at any post office. Failure to register is a felony, punishable by a fine of up to $25,000 and/or up to five years imprisonment.

Italian Renaissance Sculpture in the Time of Donatello

An exhibition to commemorate the 600th anniversary of Donatello's birth and the 100th anniversary of The Detroit Institute of Arts

Donatello
Madonna and Child with Four Angels (Chellini Madonna)
before August 27, 1456
Bronze, parcel-gilt

Nearly 100 international loans, never before assembled in a single exhibition, evoke the innovative and modern spirit of the Italian Renaissance. This ambitious and scholarly survey is a tribute to the artists who in the early 15th century led Italian art away from the religious abstraction of the medieval Gothic period to a direct connection with man, nature and the humanities in the Renaissance.

The exhibition was organized by the Founders Society Detroit Institute of Arts in association with the Kimbell Art Museum. The exhibition and tour are made possible by the generous support of the National Endowment for the Humanities and the National Endowment for the Arts, Federal Agencies; the Founders Society Detroit Institute of Arts and the Kimbell Art Foundation. The exhibition is supported by an indemnity from the Federal Council on the Arts and the Humanities. Corporate support provided by American Express Company.

High schools form TV club

Grosse Pointe will have an extracurricular cable television club ready to start meeting by mid-January at the public high schools if all goes well.

The development of the club activity, under discussion since October and actively pursued since the beginning of December, began with the search for an adviser to coordinate the activities. The postings were made two weeks ago at the schools.

The club will help train students to perform camera, production and technical work, according to Deputy Superintendent Joseph Spagnoli. Students will get experience working with equipment and have access to the studio and cameras at Grosse Pointe Cable, he added.

Details of the program should be settled by the middle of next month once an adviser is appointed, according to North Assistant Principal Katherine Herschelman, coordinating activities at that school. The system may have an adviser for a program at each of the high schools.

Aerobics for kids

The Bon Secours Hospital Health and Fitness Center in St. Clair Shores is offering an Aerobics for Kids class starting Jan. 18.

This 10-week class includes games and activities to improve fitness and aerobic, muscular and flexibility exercises. Aerobics for Kids meets on Saturday mornings, from 9 to 10 a.m., through March 22.

Registration deadline is Jan. 6. For more information, call 779-7040.

commitment from the cable company of use of the studio and equipment, Herschelman said. It is hoped a period will be made available for each high school, she added.

If only a single adviser is chosen, North will "piggy-back" its activities with those of South, Herschelman said. Such a move won't affect participation greatly, she added. Students from both schools have taken part in activities that met in a single building.

The purpose of the club will be to give students technical knowledge they need to begin producing cable programming, according to South Assistant Principal Bernie LeMieux, coordinator at that building. Students will be able to work both in the cable company's studio and on location in filming.

The school system hasn't begun to look for students interested in joining the club. It will wait until after the holidays before advertising the activity, he added.

Use of the equipment will require training to be provided by the cable company. Students who go through the program will have to be willing to commit time and effort to use that training, Herschelman added.

With formation of the Grosse Pointe public school club, each school system within the coverage area of Grosse Pointe Cable will have a student-run production team. Harper Woods public schools has a group that produces "Harper Woods Happening," while the area's private and parochial schools, belonging to the Association of Non-Public Educational Community, produce "Something Original." In addition, Bishop Gallagher High School has its own cable television production team.

Three Farms homes robbed during day

A rash of daytime burglaries hit two streets in the Farms Dec. 16. It is not known if they were connected.

A neighbor saw a young man in a late '70s car with a dirty license plate drive up to a house on Allard, according to police reports. He parked the car in front of the house, knocked on the front door and looked in the windows at the front of the house. He then walked around the back and disappeared for 15 to 20 minutes. When he reappeared, he was not carrying anything, the witness reported.

However the house was entered by breaking a glass pane in the side door, according to the report. Someone searched the house and took some jewelry and china and two shotguns.

On the same day, someone entered a house on Bournemouth, also by breaking a pane in the door. Kitchen and bedroom were ransacked, with drawers opened and some of the contents scattered, the report stated. Guns were the apparent objective.

The thief took two handguns, two rifles and a shotgun, in addition to a Polaroid camera, a portable television and some jewelry. A Smith and Wesson .38 caliber five-shot revolver, a Walther 380 seven-shot automatic, a Winchester rifle with scope, a second rifle and a 12-gauge automatic shotgun were taken, according to the report.

At the third house, located on Bournemouth Circle, a thief entered by breaking a pane in a door, searched the kitchen and took a Litton microwave oven. Police found prints of cowboy boots leading to the house and away again. They also found a cigarette butt, which was entered into evidence.

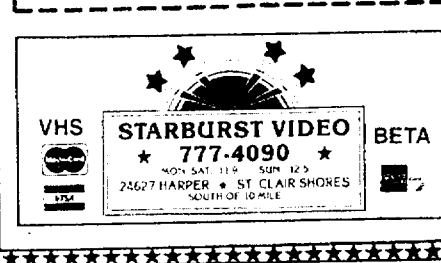

Police continue to investigate the robberies.

Lake level

Lake St. Clair at the end of October was at elevation 575.50 feet or 46 inches above chart datum. This was about seven inches above one year ago, and the October monthly mean of 575.48 feet was 25 inches above its long-term average for October. The Great Lakes forecast shows that Lake St. Clair is expected to be 42 inches above chart datum or at elevation 575.17 feet at the end of November.

Shores will update master plan

Shores trustees last week took the first step to updating the village's 30-year-old master plan. The council asked the engineering firm of Hubbell Roth & Clark to take aerial photographs of the village as part of the three-phased project.

Armed with the photos, the village can begin work on an updated plan. It will first consider property north of Vernier along Lake St. Clair. The second phase will be the village north of Vernier and west of Lakeshore Road. The south end of the Shores will be the third part.

Trustee Elizabeth Kuhlman said the planning commission, on which she serves as council representative, felt it needed help in developing the plan. Some proposals have been received by the village, including one from Brandon Rogers, a long-time Grosse Pointe resident and planner.

The engineering firm has estimated it will cost about $5,800 for the photographs and its work on the plan, village officials said.

The aerial photographs will be used for more than just work on the master plan. They will be "helpful to the Shores' sewer record project," according to Trustee Edmund Brady Jr., who chairs the council's public works committee.

The company wasn't sure when it could begin taking the photos, saying it wanted to wait until some of the snow had melted off roofs so buildings are more identifiable, according to Superintendent Michael Kenyon.

The major expense of the photography and update work will probably come in the village's next fiscal year, which begins at the end of March, he added.

In looking over the 1956 master plan, trustees discovered that some of the Shores' newer subdivisions weren't on the map.

Trustees said they were going with Hubbell Roth & Clark because the company handles engineering needs of the village. The company would be able to maintain continuity if it did the work, they added.

The first target of the plan is the village's north lakeside properties, where accretion of property and a lawsuit have stirred up controversy.

A suit now in Wayne County Circuit Court between four property owners seeks to decide how property lines should be drawn onto the accreted lands. It is possible the state Attorney General's Office will intervene for the Department of Natural Resources. The Shores has also filed an appearance in the case and is now studying whether it wants to get involved and on whose side. Other residents of the area are also considering whether they should file an appearance, since the decision may affect ownership of future accretion.

The lawsuit stems from attempts by a group of residents to gain deed and title over property that has accreted over the years. Prevailing winds and water flow have dumped sediment over the years along the shores of some of the homes there, and residents hope to gain title over the newly formed properties.

The council tried to mediate the dispute earlier this year, when, as part of the process of obtaining title, residents came before the council for approval of the application. The discussion stretched for hours at two meetings, with appearances by homeowners and experts from the U.S. Corps of Engineers and the DNR.

Further information and copies of the contest rules are available to most college and university art departments, or from the Michigan Youth Corps office (517/373-9675) or write: Michigan Youth Corps, Poster Contest, 202 Civic Center Office Building, Lansing, Mich., 48913.

Entries will be accepted starting Dec. 2, and must be postmarked no later than Feb. 14, 1986.

Prime Time for seniors . . .

they left to go back to their own homes.

There was a short lull, broken when grandma and Aunt Annie arrived for dinner. They sat down to receive their gifts. Eager eyes watched to see if their favorite people liked what they had chosen. They need not have worried. The smallest token was lovingly received.

As I watched the older people and the children sitting in the light of the fire exchanging gifts, I thought what a perfect picture and one that portrays the spirit of Christmas. One generation was free of life's struggle because of what they had achieved. The other generation was free because their life ahead was unknown to them. One in their wisdom and the other in their innocence — surely they would know the true meaning of the day.

It was no small task to persuade an excited family to come to the dinner table. Quickly as they could, the young ones finished and got back to their toys, leaving the adults to sit around the table talking until it was time for grandma and Aunt Annie to leave for the quiet and peace of their own home. BUT we knew they would talk together about that Christmas day for weeks to come.

And then it was over. Tired out, the children went to bed with their most favored toy but we sat in the light of the Christmas tree, our hearts full of gladness and gratitude for a wonderful day.

Memories that bless and burn, like Marley's ghosts, they all come back at Christmas. For those who have lived them there is a sadness that they are gone and a longing to live them over, but there is a joy that such memories are ours to recall. Memories of Christmas past make precious Christmas present. God bless us every one.

Week

By Peggy O'Connor

1986?

Now there was a year

With only a nickel's-worth of 1985 left, I thought it was about time to pull out my crystal ball, read my baseball cards (you want tarot cards, see Madame Zelda) and predict 1986. Take it (but don't believe it) from me, 1986 was a terrific year.

JANUARY: Detroit Tiger free agent Kirk Gibson surprises baseball followers everywhere by announcing that he will sign a 14-year, $400 million contract with the Cleveland Indians. No one is more surprised than the Indians, since they hadn't even offered Gibson a contract and since it will take them an estimated 18 years to come up with a down payment. In the meantime, the Indians sign over the Lake Erie boating and fishing rights to Gibson as collateral.

"I told the Tigers I wanted a long-term contract and they didn't listen. Now they'll just have to put up with me and the Indians tearing up the American League East. No kidding, we could be good. All we need is eight or nine pitchers, a shortstop, two-thirds of an outfield and a new manager and we'll be in the race," he says.

FEBRUARY: The big North-South hockey showdown is played Feb. 5. Not one single fan shows up at the game, to the bewilderment of players and school officials. "Oh, I thought they were talking about another one of those TV mini-series about the Civil War and I know how that came out," one hockey fan says later.

MARCH: South High baseball coach Dan Griesbaum gets his varsity squad ready for the baseball season. The owner of the Cleveland Indians, a tall, blond, muscular fellow with a lefthanded swing, sees the Devils practice and tries unsuccessfully to sign half the team. Failing that, he attempts to make the South lineup.

APRIL: Stating that its newly-refurbished playing surface makes Parcels' Field the "jewel" of southeastern lower Michigan playing fields, Parcels School officials submit a bid to host the 1992 NFL Super Bowl Game.

MAY: The University Liggett School boys' tennis team wins a Class B-C state championship and earns itself another spot in the record books. ULS now holds the record for being "the only school to lose its string of 13-straight state titles, then come right back and win the championship the next year." The Knights already hold the record for most consecutive state championships (13), and with the new mark, now threaten the record for "most words used in describing a record held."

JUNE: The graduation ceremonies at South and North high schools are disrupted by varsity coaches who leave the viewing area and begin dragging themselves along, hanging onto the legs of graduating senior athletes and yelling "Please don't go, please don't go."

JULY: Local sailors prepare for the 1986 Bayview Port Huron to Mackinac sail race by repeatedly putting themselves through the rinse/spin cycle in the machines at nearby laundromats, thereby approximating the conditions of the 1985 race.

AUGUST: The Super Bowl Site Committee awards the 1992 Super Bowl Game to Parcels School. School officials are ecstatic, as are Woods city officials. "This game will bring in at least a million dollars or so for our community, and all we have to do is raise property taxes 389 percent to cover the cost of the extravaganza. But our citizens will see, it's well worth it," an official says.

SEPTEMBER: The Detroit Lions stun the football world by refusing to open the 1986 NFL season unless they are allowed to forfeit all their road games ahead of time. "Why should we go through what we went through last season?" a team official says. "This way, we'll save on travel costs, cut down on injuries and lessen the disappointment of our fans... all with the same outcome as last season."

OCTOBER: North High fullback Mike Miller runs for 1,098 yards in the first game the Norsemen play this month. "He wanted to get them all out of the way, just in case he gets hurt and has to miss a few games," a North coach explains. "Really, it was nothing. He probably could have done it in the first game of the season, but we don't like our football players showing off."

NOVEMBER: A mob of North and South sports fans sets upon the offices of the Grosse Pointe News, angered by what they feel is unfair coverage of (pick one) North/South. Nearly 45 minutes pass before the mob realizes that they are attacking the OLD, empty offices of the News. They mumble stuff like "Ooops," "Sorry," and "We knew it all the time, we were just trying to make a point," as they hurry away.

DECEMBER: Faithful readers of the Grosse Pointe News' sports section file suit in Wayne County Circuit Court seeking an injunction against the paper's sports editor. The plaintiffs' request is that the editor be prohibited from "writing anything as silly as phony predictions for new years" as she frequently does in the paper's year-end editions.

The court, in its infinite wisdom, refuses to grant the injunction. And a Happy New Year is had by all. Or most, anyway.

It was a very good year...

Championships won and records broken in Pointe in 1985

I think we're going to be strong...

— North baseball coach Frank Sumner

By Peggy O'Connor

It might have been the year of the motto — like North's "Seven for 7 in 1985." Or South's "Against All Odds." Or, you could call it a "Keep It Alive in '85" kind of year — at least for some teams in search of championship repeats.

No matter what you call it, 1985 like most years, had its sports ups and downs. State tennis championships at South High and University Liggett School. An unbeaten football team and the return of the football playoffs to the Pointe. The end and the beginning of an era at ULS.

Rock. The protest, lodged with the Michigan High School Athletic Association against a game official, whom Star coaches alleged acted improperly, is not upheld.

North junior diver Mike Reynolds finishes ninth in the state championships. He lost two dual meets all season, one to South High rival Peter Nicholson.

APRIL: "I think we're going to be strong... probably the favorite in the league. And we want that title. District-wise, it'll be up to the draw and what happens to us when and if we run up against Bishop Gallagher." — North baseball to happen." — Wood

North's girls' soccer team puts up a valiant fight, but loses to Troy Athens, 2-0, in 85-degree temperatures. "The kids gave it all I could ask of them." — North coach Guido Regelbrugge.

JUNE: Bishop Gallagher beats South, 15-2, and North, 10-2, in the baseball districts en route to a Class A championship.

ULS's string of 13 state tennis titles — a national record — ends when Kalamazoo Hackett outpoints the Knights, 24-20. "We did our best. The players and I were more relaxed because we knew it was just a matter of time." — Wood.

North's gutsy softball team loses in the district finals to East Detroit, 3-2, in 12 innings. The Lady Norsemen were 16-8 overall.

John Clem, a member of the 1980 North High state baseball championship team, signs a pro contract with the Seattle Mariners. Clem is the fourth player from the '80 squad to turn pro.

JULY: Babe Ruth championships come home: The Park's All-Star squad wins a district title and the Woods-Shores 13-year-old Babe Ruth All-Stars win the state championship.

Local sailors weather the roughest Mackinac race in memory: only 44 of the 56 Pointe boats registered finish the race. Resident Charles Bayer and the crew of "Old Bear" rescue the crew of Tomahawk, after it sinks in the middle of the race.

AUGUST: Crescent Sail Yacht Club hosts the Snipe Nationals and a pair of CSYC sailors, Fred and Jan Rozelle, win their series event.

SEPTEMBER: "... They want to defend their league title and they want to be the first team from North to make the playoffs... I can't argue with attitudes like that." — North football coach Frank Sumner.

Varsity football returns to ULS after a one-year absence.

OCTOBER: South High beats North High, 1-0, in a soccer rematch to win its first league title.

South's girls' cross country team beats rival North and runs its record to 11-0.

State tennis trophies returned to ULS and South: the sixth straight state title for South and the 10th consecutive championship for South's girls. Freshman Dawn Martin, a transfer student, wins the No. 1 singles title.

In the "biggest game in North's history" the football team beats league rival and previously-unbeaten Clintondale, 39-0, to win the Bi-County championship and earn a spot in the state playoffs.

NOVEMBER: South High transfer student Donald Berschback challenges the MHSAA's transfer eligibility rule in court and wins the right to play football for South.

The Norsemen beat South, 37-0, to finish the football season with a 9-0 record. Things look a little less bright in North's first playoff game, but the Norsemen storm back to score 11 points in the last three minutes to take a 19-18 victory over Murray-Wright.

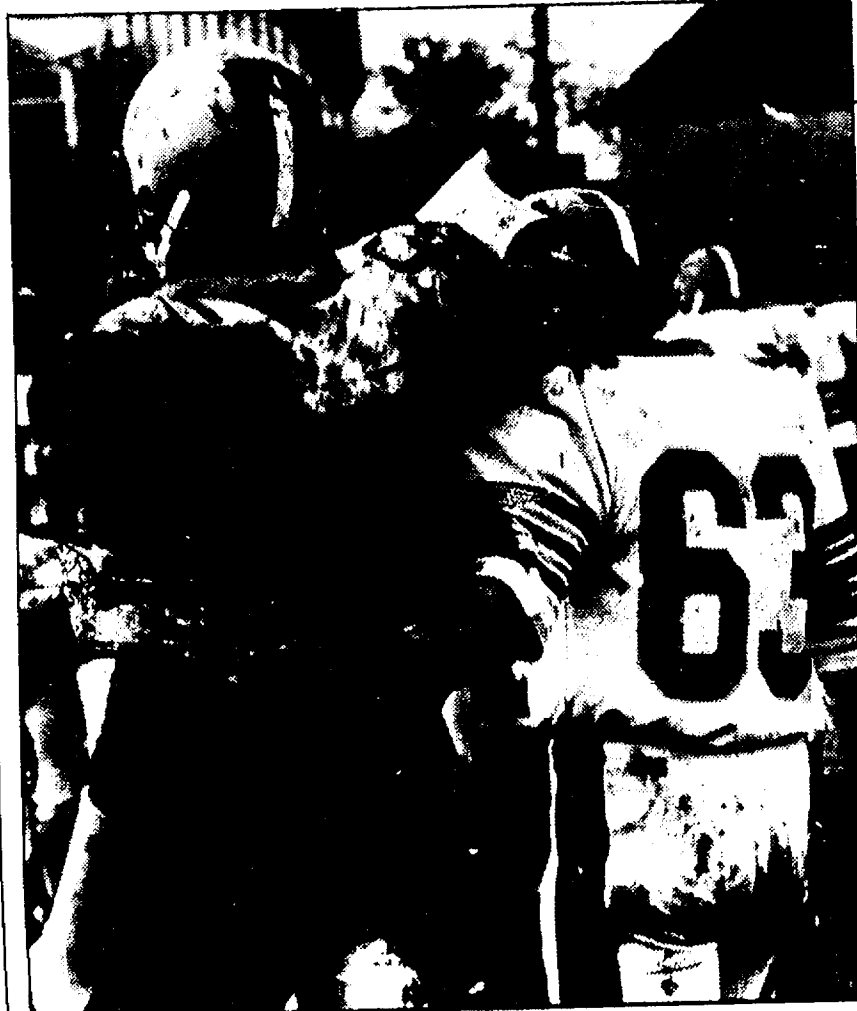

The 17-game win streak North has fashioned comes to an end the next week, however, when Catholic Central shuts the Norsemen out, 21-0.

South's girls' basketball team goes farther than any team in school history, beating North High, 42-41, and Southeastern, 61-32, in the districts before falling to district champ Bishop Gallagher, 70-56.

DECEMBER: North starts its third hockey season by winning four of its first five contests.

Meanwhile, a very young South team — wearing practice jerseys bearing the motto "Against All Odds" — takes some measure of revenge and surprises top-ranked Trenton, 4-3. It was Trenton which ended the Devils' hockey season with playoff victories in the first two seasons.

A 26-year-old Park man, Mark Szymanski, is chosen for the crew of Courageous as it mounts an assault on the America's Cup by participating in the world 12-meter championships in Australia.

One of the highlights of 1985 was North's undefeated football season, which included an appearance in the state playoffs — a first for the Norsemen. That's North's Tom Shehab (63) consoling Tom Augustinus after a playoff loss.

We had it all in 1985...

JANUARY: South High's varsity basketball team begins the new year by running off an 8-0 record, before a surprising loss to league-rival Mount Clemens, 69-57.

North's cagers have a surprise for one of their league foes: they beat Clintondale, 75-73, when Dan Kopitzke hits a jumper with seven seconds left in the game. It is the Dragons' first loss of the season.

In hockey, unranked North comes back from a two-goal deficit to beat South, a pre-season top-10 favorite, 3-2. The game is marred by an injury to North's Casey Quick, who slides into the boards and breaks an arm.

FEBRUARY: South turns the tables on North, winning 3-2 after scoring two goals in the last 40 seconds. Anthony Eugenio's goal with 12 seconds left does the trick.

Neither North nor South can pull off any last-second heroics in the state playoffs, however, North falls to Fraser, 7-3, and South loses to Trenton, 9-0.

The Woods' Jimmy Carson breaks the Quebec Major Junior Hockey League rookie record held by NHLer Mario Lemieux (96 points) by more than 10 points.

In North's basketball match with Clintondale, the "highlight" of the game — a bench-clearing brawl — overshadows the outcome: a 63-61 win for league-leading Clintondale in overtime.

MARCH: South High's volleyball team beats North in the districts before falling to Bishop Gallagher. And over at Star of the Sea, the volleyball season ends strangely when Star coaches protest the Tunas' district final loss to Flat coach Frank Sumner.

(North was strong, winning 30 games and capturing that "Seven for 7 in 1985" — a seventh straight Bi-County baseball title for No. 7: Sumner).

"We're young and I think people see us as being one year away. I don't want to wait around for a year. I think we can do something this year." — South baseball coach Dan Griesbaum.

(They did — finishing at 21-10 and in second place in the league).

"As long as we are prepared mentally and physically, we'll be winners whether we succeed on the court or come up short. And I can assure you, we will be prepared." — ULS tennis coach Bob Wood.

(The Knights were prepared. What they weren't was blessed with nationally-ranked players in the top singles spots — for the first time in 11 seasons).

MAY: South's boys' team beats North boys' track team for the first time in history, 68.66-68.33.

North and South finish one-two in the Class A tennis regionals, but perennial regional champ ULS falls to second for the first time in 13 seasons. "I guess it was bound

It took a last-second jumper to boost the North varsity basketball squad to a 53-52 victory over South last week. North had trailed through most of the game, but the gutsy squad kept coming back. At far left, North's Rod Skuras goes up for the jumper as Gordie Langs tries for the rebound. That's Tom Shehab at Skuras' side. Left, Bill Miller is watched by South's Ed Gramling and Langs as he tries to get the ball to Skuras.

Revenge! South High hockey squad skates past Trenton

By Jennifer McSorley
The Blue Devil hockey team conquered Trenton, the No. 1-ranked team in the state, 4-3, on Dec. 18. It was South's fourth straight victory.
The game began with two goals from senior Rob Wood, the first unassisted, the second assisted by sophomore Rodney Goin. Trenton scored one in the first period.
Goin scored South's third goal from Wood but by the end of the period, Trenton had caught up.
Senior goaltender Bill Tecos held Trenton to three goals throughout the rest of the game, and with 3:53 left to play, junior John Nicholson scored the winning goal, from Goin.
It was a rather clean game, — less than 10 total penalties, but all of the Trenton goals were scored on power plays.
South fans will remember that it was Trenton which ended the Devils' 1985 season with a 9-0 thrashing in last year's playoffs.

JV is even
South's junior varsity basketball team won a tight one over North last week, 36-35, to even its record at 2-2.
Andre Bielski scored 13 and stole 2 balls from the Norsemen, while Mike Finch's 9 points, 6 rebounds, and 2 steals earned him the player of the game title. Other participants in the win were Lance Harding, 5 points, 8 rebounds and 2 steals, and Andy Ament with 5 points and 4 rebounds.
The JV will start off the new year at Fraser, on Jan. 7. (By Stephen Ebner) raised its record to an impressive 4-0 last week, beating rival North, 49-42, on Dec. 17 and L'Anse Creuse North, 58-50, on Dec. 19.

"We played in flashes," explained coach John Jones. "For a few minutes we were hot, the next few we were cold." In both games, South jumped out to significant leads, but then struggled until the final quarter. A high-point in the L'Anse Creuse North game was that 12 of 15 players scored.
The leading scorers in the North game were forwards David McCormick, 14 points, and Chris Rowan, 12 points. Rowan also led the Blue Devils in rebounds, while guard Chris Markus topped the chart in assists.
After the L'Anse Creuse North game, McCormick and Markus headed the scoring with 12 and 8 points, respectively. Under the hoop, Rowan grabbed 10 rebounds; Gramling had 5 assists.

South will go up against Notre Dame on Jan. 7. (By Stephen Ebner)
Awards night
Awards Night for girls' basketball and swimming was held on Dec. 11. It was an event which ended nice seasons for both teams. South's varsity basketball team won more games in the district playoffs than ever before, and the swim team finished with a final record of 7-2.
Senior Heidi Albrecht, who consistently led the basketball team, was awarded Outstanding Offensive player, as well as qualifying for the All-League first team. Senior Lynn Vismara earned Outstanding Defensive honors. Albrecht, Vismara and Missy Dinverno were also named to EML All-Academic team.
Nancy Vettorello was awarded Most Valuable swimmer and freshman Germalyn Bocci was named Most Improved. Senior Christy Weinberg received the Coach's Award. Seven seniors are EML All-Academic and there were 33 letterwinners on the team.
The members of these teams were able to balance their time between their sport and their school work as 54 percent of the girls participating in swimming and basketball carried grade points of 3.0 or better. (By Jennifer McSorley)

Cagers drop pair
By Stephen Ebner
South High
The Blue Devil varsity basketball team dropped to 2-3 last week, after losses to North, 53-52, and Sterling Heights 70-68.
At North, South led for most of the game, but fell behind late and lost it on a Norseman 15-footer, with less than 10 seconds left in the game. "As a team, we played poorly and executed poorly. They played aggressively," commented coach George Petrouleas.
Forward Tim Hudson led the Blue Devil scoring with 19 points; guard Sean Bruce followed with 17 points. Hudson and center Gordie Langs reached for eight rebounds, while guard Ed Gramling assisted on seven baskets.
Last Friday South faced an accurate Sterling Heights, but continued to struggle late in the game. By the final buzzer, Sterling Heights had netted 67 percent of its shots.
Bruce and Langs topped the scoring with 19 and 17 points, respectively. Hudson added seven rebounds and Bruce assisted on five netted shots.
South will continue its schedule at Fraser, on Tuesday, Jan. 7.

Tankers unbeaten
South's swimmers pushed their dual meet record to 2-0 last week after defeating Redford Catholic Central, 86-80, and placing third in the Troy Athens Relays.
Against Redford, individual winners were Dick Clark in the 200 and 500 free; Rick Leonard in the breast stroke and 50 free; Matt Smith in the 100 fly; and Billy Thompson in the 100 free.
Among relay winners were Jeff Centner, Dick Clark, Matt Smith, and Billy Thompson in the 400 free relay; Jeff Clark, Matt Smith, Scott Frame and Rick Leonard combined to touch first in the 400 medley relay, which qualified them for states. Other state qualifiers are Dick Clark in the 500 free and Rick Leonard in the breast-stroke.
The Blue Devil swimmers will dive into 1986 on Jan. 10, against Ann Arbor Huron, at home.

Ring in new year with a run

Runners of all ages are invited to participate in a unique New Year's Eve celebration: the Little Caesar's New Year's Eve Run through the streets of downtown Detroit on Tuesday, Dec. 31, beginning at 4 p.m. at Cobo Arena.
The annual event includes a one-mile run, also open to all ages. A traditional spaghetti dinner follows.
Hosted by the Belle Isle Runners and the Detroit Recreation Department and sponsored by Little Caesar's Pizza and Miller Lite, the annual event has attracted up to 5,000 participants and its one mile fun run is one of the largest children's running events in Michigan.
The run/spaghetti tradition began with just a handful of people invited to celebrate the New Year with the Jeanne Bocci family of Grosse Pointe Park in 1970.
Unlike a marathon, the Little Caesar's New Year's Eve Run is open to anyone who can run or walk the course. Individuals and families are welcome to participate, as are novice and serious runners. The registration fee is $5 for the one-mile children's run and $8 for the four-mile run, and includes the spaghetti dinner and T-shirt.
Every child 12 and under who crosses the finish line in the one-mile event will receive an award. Commemorative plaques will be awarded to early finishers in the four-mile event and all registrants will receive a T-shirt. The first male and female finishers in each event will be awarded special trophies.

The spaghetti dinner, co-sponsored by Pastissiam, will be held immediately following the race. Guests are also welcome to register for the dinner.
Entry forms will be available to participating Little Caesar's Pizza outlets. Runners also may receive entry forms by sending a stamped, self-addressed envelope to: Belle Isle Runners/Jeanne Bocci, P.O. Box 15294, Detroit, Mich. 48215. The mail entry deadline is Dec. 24.
Late registration (and T-shirt pick-up for early registrants) will take place from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. on Saturday, Dec. 28, and Sunday, Dec. 29, at Cobo Hall. Late registrants also may enter from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. on race day at Cobo Hall. There will be a late registration fee, so runners are encouraged to register early.
Further information may be obtained by calling the Detroit Recreation Department Special Activities Office at 224-1184. Entry forms also will be available at the Recreation Department.

Mite Division

MAJOR MAGICS-CHIEFS
The Magics edged the Chiefs, 3-2. Chiefs' goalie Jonathan Romine and Magics' netminder Kevin Baskel played well. The Chiefs' Stephan Owens opened the scoring, but the Magics' Billy Faber came back with two goals on assists from David Collins and Donny Tocco (two each). Alex Bieri added another goal for the Chiefs, but Collins notched the winning goal in a last minute scramble. Faber and Tocco earned assists. Kevin Collins, Mike Collins and Chuckie Schervish were outstanding.

MAJOR MAGICS-SEALS
The Magics skated to a 3-0 win over the Seals. Mike Collins earned the shutout in goal, with help from Paul Megler. Tocco scored from David Collins and Faber added two unassisted goals. Schervish's three shots from the blue line hit the post every time. Also making outstanding players were Jonathan Bayko and Aubrey and Matt Elich. The Seals' Robbie King, Doug Semack and Matt and

Ben Debski played well.

OILERS-CANADIENS
The Oxford Oilers topped Benson's Canadiens, 4-2. Peter Blake opened the scoring; Ryan Robson (two) and Kevin Kasiborski added goals for the Oilers. Bobby Rahaim was outstanding in goal and C-liners Richard Eldridge and Ryan Oren skated hard for the Oilers. Canadiens' goals were scored by Kevin O'Malley and Jeff Huebner. Leo Salvaggio was outstanding in goal for the Canadiens.

BRUINS-OILERS
The Bruins squeaked by the Oilers, 2-1, in a hard-skating, well-played hockey game. The Bruins' Todd Dunlap and the Oilers' Geoff Kimmel played strong games in goal. Blake opened the scoring for the Oilers, with Rahaim assisting. The Bruins tied the game on Matt Lariscy's unassisted goal and Phil Descamps scored the winning goal on a pass from Greg Ryan. Chris Gibson, Nick Miotke and Ian McMillan played well for the Bruins, as did Joey Berger, Billy Crandall and Brian Kasiborski for the Oilers.

RAIDERS-OHIO

The GPD Raiders topped Parma Heights, Ohio, 3-2, in a see-saw battle. Mike Anway opened the scoring for the Raiders; Lucien Hudson and David Pulis drew assists. After Parma Heights tied the game, David Ferguson scored the second of his two goals to give the Raiders the win. Tommy Taylor, Andy Baskel and Anway also earned assists in this game.

RAIDERS-TRENTON

Ferguson's first hat trick of the season led the Raiders to a 4-1 victory over Trenton. Anway chipped in with a goal and two assists. Taylor, Baskel, Hudson and Joe Pierce also drew assists. Rick Gokenbach was strong in his goaltending debut.

RAIDERS-WINDSOR

The Raiders traveled across the border to take this 3-1 victory over Windsor, sweeping their home-and-home series with the Canadian team. Ferguson was again the offensive spark, scoring two goals. Carl Rashid also scored. Nate Bayko was strong on defense and Tim Tracy was a persistent fore-checker.

RAIDERS-SPEEDY PRINTING

The Raiders stepped up a division to post their fourth straight victory, a 3-1 win over AAA Speedy Printing. After Speedy Printing scored, Rashid tied the game with his quick wrist shot. Lucien Hudson banged home a rebound to put the Raiders on top and George Christiansen's scoring shot from the point iced the victory. Jamie Buffalino was outstanding in goal for the Raiders. Chris Leimbach also played a strong game.

Squirt Division

ISLANDERS-MONROE'S

The Islanders topped Monroe's, 2-1. Goaltenders Tom Best and Geoff Miller were outstanding in the nets for their teams. Peter Gracey put the Islanders on the scoreboard, assisted by Nick Giorgio. Giorgio scored the winner on nice passes from Gracey and Garrett Ryan. T.R. Youngblood notched the goal for Monroe's; Gary Olson and Jason Chevalier drew assists. Mike Owens, John Wise, Robbie and Scott Wiecezkowski played strong games for the Islanders, as Bill Burns, Eric Lindsay, Matt Smith and Peter Spivak for their team.

ISLANDERS-CHARGERS

Ryan and Gracey led the Islanders to a 6-2 win over the Chargers. The Islanders took an early lead with three goals by Ryan and one by Tracey. Giorgio earned four assists and Robbie Wiecezkowski, Gracey and Ryan one each. Eric Demeulemeester put the Chargers on the scoreboard; Mike DeNardis and Beau Dossin drew assists. Ryan and Gracey added late goals for the Islanders on assists from Giorgio and Gracey, before Mark Waterman closed the scoring for the Chargers. Smyth and DeMeulemeester assisting. The Islanders' Tom Best and the Chargers' Jon Paul played well in goal. Geoff Everham, Tommy Lee and Peter Megler played well for the Islanders, as did Jeff James, Jamie Brock and Tanya Brewer for the Chargers.

Pee Wee Division

RAIDERS-RED WINGS

The Raiders played excellent team hockey against the Shores Red Wings, earning a 6-2 victory. Mike Kisskalt opened the scoring toward the end of the first period on assists from Jack McSorley and Peter Cueter. Derek Smith scored the first goal of what turned out to be a hat trick performance midway through the second period, following set-up passing play by Kisskalt and Dan Grundman. Zack Van Auker scored his fifth goal of the season, from Smith and McSorley. Kevin McCracken notched the Raiders' third goal when he converted passes from Gabe Benvenuto and Van Auker. Smith added his second goal. Kisskalt, assisting; then topped off his hat trick, again from Kisskalt and McSorley, who earned playmaker awards.

BLACK HAWKS-RAIDERS

The Raiders' hopes of an undefeated season were dashed 3-1. Kisskalt scored for the Raiders from McSorley and Dino Ricci.

Robert Maniscalco: Actor, musician, painter, singer — local man strives to be an Artist with a capital 'A'

By Elsa Frohman

Robert Maniscalco isn't content to be just one thing. Instead, he finds himself reaching in all directions. He has a chameleon talent that won't express itself in a single field. His restless muse refuses to be limited to a solitary pursuit.

Who is Robert Maniscalco? He is an accomplished portrait artist who accepts commissions from all over the United States. He is an accomplished musician who plays clarinet with a local chamber music group and holds a degree in performance from Wayne State University. He is an accomplished actor, acclaimed for his portrayal of Mozart in last year's production of "Amadeus" with the Grosse Pointe Theater. He is an accomplished singer, working professionally with a major downtown church. He teaches portraiture at the Grosse Pointe War Memorial and has taught music in the Grosse Pointe Schools.

Who is Robert Maniscalco? Whomever he wants to be — today. "My goal is not to get rich," Maniscalco said. "It's just to do what I want to do. I have an inclination toward the arts. I imagine that if it ever comes to it, I'll settle down to one thing. But I enjoy them all so much. I can't seem to let go. It's frustrating but rewarding. One provides respite from another." At age 26, he still has time to set his final course.

Maniscalco's serpentine trek among the arts begins with painting. His father, Joseph Maniscalco, is a well-established and well-known portraitist. Apprenticed to his father, the younger Maniscalco learned painting as a craft. However, it isn't a craft practiced mechanically.

"I'm a realist, and then a poet and an artist," he said. "There is an attitude toward realism (in art) as being easy and not imaginative. I agree that most realists fall into that trap. You have to analyze photos or reality. There has to be a synthesis in the mind. A lot of people react to portraits as being deeper than photos. It's not something you can contrive. There is an intuition required that is unique. You need a feeling for what a person is like."

Maniscalco generally works from photographs of his subjects, but the portrait is not a simple reproduction of the photo. He may study several photographs then paint a portrait that is a combination of the characteristics in each, or he may paint a portrait that shows the subject as younger or older than the photograph. He often takes his own photographs to get a feeling for the personality of the subject.

"There are characteristics in people that they are not aware of," he said. "Through the subjective process of painting a portrait, those qualities emerge. I don't try to interfere with the process. I'm into the whole human experience. It is the dichotomies that make life interesting."

One of the man dichotomies in Maniscalco's life is that his intuitive feel for painting and his effortless skill led him away from the art rather than toward it.

"For years I belittled my art as too technical," he said. "The things they teach you are very simple, very step-by-step. But certain people have more pizzazz than others."

Partially as a rebellion against his father's profession, Maniscalco chose a different field of art for his education. Studying clarinet at Wayne, he decided to try for a career as an orchestra musician. Though he has come close to abandoning that ambition, he still plays regularly with the Warren Symphony Orchestra and the Concert Art Chamber Players.

As Maniscalco began to settle down to make a living with his portraits, another muse caught his fancy. After winning the title role in the Grosse Pointe Theater's production of Amadeus last spring, he became inflamed with a yearning for the actor's life.

His portrayal of Mozart was a smash hit and he won a "Clarence" award. He started attending acting classes at the University of Detroit and has become involved with several theater groups around the area.

"Acting is for me," he said. "I'm really into it at the moment. I'd like to do professional acting and commercials."

He ties a single thread through his talents for music, painting and acting "Art is non-performance, but the symbols are more concrete. Acting combines the two. It has a literary concreteness. It is complete and immediate. You create a whole world," he said.

Maniscalco said he believes that talent is only part of what is necessary to be an artist.

"Three things are required to be a creative person," he said. "Talent, motivation and audacity. The most important part is audacity. You have to have the conviction that what you are expressing is important. You have to believe you have the ability before you attain the ability. But you also have to have honesty. You must be able to assess whether you really are any good. I can be totally unrealistic and say I'm wonderful, then be totally realistic and realize that I'm not."

His confidence in his message infiltrates all his work.

"Whatever mode I'm in, art, painting or music, that intensity and spark will come through — even if my technical skill is not as polished as in my paintings," he said.

Maniscalco admits he is a show off. "I need to share what it is I'm saying," he said. "It doesn't mean anything if no one is enjoying it. I require the feedback — maybe a little too much for my own good as an artist."

In the next few months Maniscalco will be taking part in several plays around the area, including "Holy Ghosts" with a University of Detroit theater group. He will be teaching portraiture at the War Memorial again beginning in January. He will continue his freelance clarinet work, singing and portraiture.

For the long term, he isn't even attempting to predict his future.

"In 10 years I may be working behind the counter at McDonalds," he said. "But I don't see a negative future. I just might be doing something I've never thought of yet. Maybe one of my talents will bring more success than the others. But that might seem like I'm putting my fate in arbitrary hands and I like to think I have control of my life."

"Who cares what I'll be doing in 10 years?"

Exchange Club donates funds

The Exchange Club of Grosse Pointe/St. Clair Shores recently donated $2,000 to the Center for Urban Studies for the services of a social worker from the Northeast Guidance Center.

The Social Worker provides counseling services to the Jefferson/Chalmers Neighborhood Family Resource Center under a program "Nurturing Infants and Families Together." The program is administered by the Council on Early Childhood Center for Urban Studies, at Wayne State University.

Accepting the check from Kevin Granger, president of the Exchange Club was Charlene Firestone, director of the Neighborhood Family Resource Center.

Nine families with a total of 13 children, received services during the funding year of October 1984 - June 1985. The program included parenting classes, parent/child creative activities, counseling, children's developmental programs, home visits and indirect services.

"The endorsement of the Exchange Club fits perfectly into the Neighborhood Family Resource Center's goals of providing a locally based and cost-efficient program which strengthens families with special concerns for the prevention of child abuse and neglect," said Firestone. Granger said, "With this contribution our club has now donated $6,000 to the Neighborhood Resource Center. We are proud that we can be of help in preventing child abuse and neglect wherever we can."

The Exchange Club of Grosse Pointe/St. Clair Shores meets each Tuesday at 7:30 a.m. at Gilberts Restaurant on Harper Avenue in St. Clair Shores. For information on membership contact Mike Reynolds at 271-5080.

Detroit Review Club plans meeting

The Detroit Review Club will start its 1986 program year with a talk by Judy Cornellier of Troy on "The Victorian Women."

The meeting place will be the Recess Club on the 11th floor of the Fisher Building. Mrs. Win Emery, DRC president, will act as hostess. Mrs. Robert Gerisch, program chairman, will introduce the speaker.

Following the luncheon, Cornellier will speak on the culture of herbs, a favorite pastime of Victorian women.

Christmas Walk is success

The 1985 Christmas Walk, "In the Classic Tradition" was again a very popular and successful event. Now, in its 26th year, it was sponsored and organized by members of the Detroit Symphony League. This holiday home tour was held on two consecutive Thursdays in the Birmingham-Bloomfield area and the Eastside-Grosse Pointes.

This year the group enjoyed record attendance on the Grosse Pointe date with 1,100 people counted on the tour.

Clair Shores Country Club, 22185 Masonic Boulevard, St. Clair Shores, featuring the music of Mark Verbecke.

On Sunday, Dec. 29 at 4 p.m., Lido on the Lake (upper level) will be the location of the group's Pre-New Years Eve Dance Party, featuring the music of Doug Di Maria.

Any single person, 35 and up, living in the area is invited to attend these functions. Call 445-1286 for information.

Clinton River Boat Club

Flag officers of the Clinton River Boat Club for the year 1986 were elected at the board of director's meeting conducted on Dec. 11. They are as follows: commodore, Leonard H. Williams of Clarkston; vice commodore, Larry Carlen of Fraser; rear commodore, Fred J. Seng of Troy; treasurer, Donald G. Vonk of Mt. Clemens; secretary Douglas E. Busbey of Grosse Pointe Farms.

The Clinton River Boat Club is a Michigan corporation that was organized on March 11, 1940. The club was founded by a group of local boaters interested in cruising, good fellowship and boating safety. The club site, now known as Club Island, was secured early in 1957 at a location just off Lake St. Clair between the Middle Channel Waterway and Muscamoot Bay. The club is a member of the Inter-Lake Yachting Association and the Anchor Bay Yachting Association.

Cornellier is an avid gardener and spent 13 years teaching gardening in Troy Adult Education. She is a member of the Southern Michigan Unit of the Herb Society of America and has been the keynote speaker for the group. She is a past president of the Troy Garden Club, the Woman's National Farm and Garden Association and is a member of the Cranbrook Bee Club.

Mrs. Norman Henderson is handling reservations.

Mr. and Mrs. Mark Hayes

Baer-Hayes

Ann Marie Baer, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Edward Baer Jr. of Bloomfield Hills, and Mark Dawson Hayes, son of Mrs. Neil Burgess Hayes and the late Neil Hayes of Grosse Pointe Farms, were married Sept. 21 at the Academy of the Sacred Heart in Bloomfield Hills.

The Rev. James Michael Hayes, S.J., brother of the groom, officiated at the 4 p.m. ceremony where the bride was given in marriage by her father.

The bride wore a silk, basque waisted gown. Her veil fell from a wreath of lilies of the valley. She carried a bouquet of roses, dam-roses and lilies of the valley.

The matron of honor was Betsy Costello, sister of the bride, Bainbridge, N.Y. Bridesmaids were Susan Baer, sister of the bride, Bloomfield Hills; Jane Brown, Grosse Pointe Farms; Catherine McCuish, Detroit; Carolyn Babcock, Chicago; Carolyn Phillips, Chicago. They wore royal blue satin gowns with puff sleeves and dropped waistlines. They carried bouquets of stargazer lilies and dam-roses and orchids.

The best man was John O'Mara Hayes, brother of the groom, Chicago, Ill. The ushers were Dennis Hayes, brother of the groom, Trenton, Mich.; Charley Baer, brother of the bride, Bloomfield Hills; Steve Gaitley, San Francisco, Calif.; Tom Else, Santa Monica, Calif.; Bob Schmitt, Fairview Heights, Ill.; Aaron Stubs, Grand Rapids, Mich.; Timothy Thoits, Bloomfield Township.

The flower girl was Elizabeth Costello, niece of the bride, Bainbridge, N.Y.

The Katey Lords String Quartet with Jim Underwood, trumpeter, played for the wedding.

The couple honeymooned with a trip to Ireland. They will live in Beverly Hills Village.

The bride is a graduate of the Academy of Sacred Heart and the University of Michigan with a degree in economics.

The groom is a graduate of Bishop Gallagher High School and the University of Michigan School of Business.

Mr. and Mrs. William Kennedy

Knoblock-Kennedy

Linda Louise Knoblock, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Walter H. Knoblock of Grand Blanc, Mich., and William Mark Kennedy, of Grosse Pointe Shores, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. Alex Kennedy of Palm Harbor, Fla., were married on Aug. 3, in Grand Blanc, Mich.

Ronald Young officiated at the 5 p.m. ceremony which was followed by a reception at Warwick Hills Country Club in Grand Blanc.

The bride wore a dress of white organza trimmed with re-embroidered Alencon lace, seed pearls and sequins. The skirt featured a cathedral-length train trimmed with Alencon lace. A fingertip-length veil fell from her wreath of silk flowers. She carried a bouquet of Sterling silver roses and freesia.

The matron of honor was Susan Bartling, friend of the bride, Dubois, Wyo. Bridesmaids were Wendy McWhorter, sister of the bride, Lansing, Mich.; and Lisa Knoblock, sister of the bride, Dallas, Texas. They wore tea-length dresses of periwinkle blue taffeta with matching hats. They carried white lilies tied with silver ribbon.

The best man was Gregg Catalano, friend of the groom, Spring, Texas. Ushers were David Harding, friend of the groom, Farmington Hills; and Mark Talmadge, friend of the groom, Waterford, Mich.

The soloist and accompanist were the bride's aunt and uncle, Mr. and Mrs. James Knoblock of Flint, Mich.

The bride is a registered dietitian. She holds a bachelor of science degree in dietetics from Michigan State University, and an MPH from the School of Public Health at the University of Michigan.

The groom is a district manager for the J.T. Posey Co. He holds a bachelor of arts in business from Central Michigan University.

Jeff Knoblock, brother of the bride, was a scripture reader during the ceremony.

Treder-Lang

Mary Carol Treder, daughter of Carroll and Mary Lou Treder of Grosse Pointe Woods, and Paul Cameron Lang, son of Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Lang of Davison, Mich., were married on Oct. 26 at Our Lady Star of the Sea Church.

The Rev. Al Hillebrand and the Rev. Frank Kenney officiated at the 5:30 p.m. ceremony which was followed by a reception at the Grosse Pointe Yacht Club.

The bride wore a dress of white silk with a high lace collar and a cathedral-length train accented with pearls and lace flowers. Her fingertip-length veil fell from a pearl beaded band. She carried a bouquet of white gardenias, stephanotis and baby's breath.

The maid of honor was Amy Louise Treder, sister of the bride, Grosse Pointe Woods. Bridesmaids were Linda Treder, sister-in-law of the bride, Grosse Pointe Farms; Mary Alice Boller, friend of the bride, New York, N.Y.; Janet Herrman, friend of the bride, Bridgewater, N.J.; Karen Molison, friend of the bride, East Detroit; Molly Murray, friend of the bride, Pocatello, Idaho; Carole Stines, friend of the bride, Grosse Pointe Woods; and Janis Lang, sister of the groom, Davison, Mich. The attendants wore teal colored silk dresses with short puff sleeves. They carried bouquets of white lilies, teal carnations, stephanotis and baby's breath.

Mr. and Mrs. Paul Lang

The best man was David William Treder, brother of the bride, Grosse Pointe Farms. Ushers were Bob Lang, brother of the groom, Holly, Mich.; Keith Lang, brother of the groom, Lapeer, Mich.; Jim Lang, brother of the groom, Davison, Mich.; Dan Treder, brother of the bride, Grand Blanc, Mich.; Paul Treder, brother of the bride, Grosse Pointe Woods; Mike Kimble, friend of the groom, Nederland, Texas; Keith Layzell, friend of the groom, Kalamazoo, Mich.; and Gale Stephens, friend of the couple, Portage, Mich.

The mother of the bride wore a silver gray silk dress and a wrist corsage of white orchids and stephanotis.

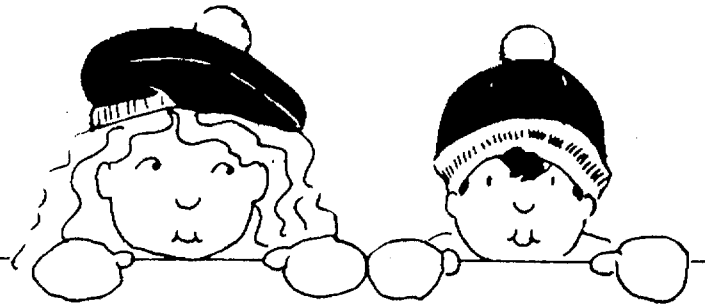

The mother of the groom wore a tan dress with a similar corsage.

The couple honeymooned with a trip to Hawaii. They will live in Grosse Pointe Woods.

The bride is a certified public accountant for the Michigan Bell Telephone Company. The groom is an industrial sales representative for the Young Supply Company.

William Stockman, uncle of the bride, Barbara Burger, friend of the bride and Timothy Conroy, friend of the bride, were readers during the ceremony.

The bride's grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Carroll B. Treder, Sr., of Sarasota, Fla., were guests.

'A Chorus Line' — it should crackle, but it thumps instead

By Elsa Frohman

I may be the single person in the English-speaking world who didn't see "A Chorus Line" on the stage. So let it be known here and now that I am reviewing a movie — not a film of a stage play. I can't be disappointed because the movie isn't as good as the stage production it was based on, because I have no idea what the stage production was like.

I'd like to repeat that last line. I have no idea what the stage production was like — even though I have just seen the movie.

But before you decide I'm flatly condemning this movie and skip on to read something else, let me say that it isn't all bad. The movie has its moments of infectious energy, heart-touching emotions and stunning visuals. Unfortunately those moments are scattered among long stretches of pedantic, boring, murky and inexplicable scenes that leave the viewer wondering if the filmmakers have the slightest understanding of drama, music or dance.

"A Chorus Line" is a movie about dancing, at least it tries to be. But rather than turning its dancers loose and letting them do their thing, it teases — giving us a glimpse of the action, then cutting away to something we couldn't care less about.

With the exception of Michael Douglas, in the role of Zach, the choreographer, and Audrey Landers, as Val, the girl who is as pretty as modern surgical techniques can make her, the cast is filled out with relatively unfamiliar faces. That is as it should be. The story is about "gypsies," the faceless dancers who make up the chorus lines in Broadway shows. With the exception of Douglas and Allyson Reed, who plays Cassie, the director's former lover, the performances are first rate. Unfortunately, this works against the film, as the audience is frustrated every time the camera cuts away from one of the dancers to linger on the unconvincing romance between Zach and Cassie.

There is so little chemistry between Douglas and Reed's performances that at one point you begin to wonder if Douglas' character is gay. Believe me, in an effective screen romance, you should never wonder if the hero is gay.

Reed's wimpy, weepy Cassie is so unappealing that you wonder why these two people would ever become lovers. Her character comes across on screen like wet Kleenex. Again and again the camera cuts away from an affecting dancing performance by one of the gypsies to one of Cassie's static flashbacks.

The flashbacks themselves are puzzling. A flashback should give us some information about a character. Cassie's memories are as lifeless as her present. Nothing happens. Cassie's memories are a lot like amnesia.

Douglas' performance is inconsistent and lazy. His character is never defined beyond a set of hackneyed mannerisms and Scrooge-like discipline alternated with sloppy sentimentality.

But that's the bad stuff. There is good stuff in this movie. Every once in a while, the filmmakers make a mistake and let us watch the dancers dance for a little while. The cinematography is amateurish, often leaving the viewer with the feeling he is watching the action through a peephole. You cry for a wider camera angle that will let you see the dancer's whole body. But there are moments — like the driving opening sequence when a mass of hopeful gypsies dance during the first stage of the audition. Gregg Burge, the only black dancer selected for the final audition, gives a bright, energetic performance that reaches out and infects the audience. Vicki Frederick, the aging survivor, is affecting as she hangs in — in a business dominated by the young. There is the kernel of a good movie here. Unfortunately, most of it got left on the cutting room floor. If you want to see great dancing on film, rent a video cassette of any of the Fred Astaire musicals of the '40s and '50s. Hollywood seems to have lost the recipe for a good dance picture. Maybe they should call up Fred and ask him how it was done.

Guatemala, Yucatan featured

The "Mysterious Mayalands," a travelogue featuring the lost civilizations and photogenic regions of Guatemala and Yucatan, will be presented at 8 p.m. Thursday, Jan. 9, at the Macomb Center for the Performing Arts.

The film and narration, presented by world traveler and Pasadena Playhouse graduate Romain Wilhelmsen, is part of the Center's popular Travel Series, coordinated by lecturer and TV personality Dennis Glen Cooper and sponsored this season by the Automobile Club of Michigan.

Wilhelmsen's portrayal of Guatemala and Yucatan, which he describes as "two of the most photogenic lands on earth," focuses on the great Mayan civilization that flourished over a period of 800 years, from 300 to 1100 A.D.

He contrasts primitive villages and agricultural areas with such modern cities as Merida, Guatemala City and the resorts of Lake Atitlan, considered one of the most beautiful high altitude lakes and dubbed the "Riviera of Yucatan."

In exploring the remains of Mayan culture, he documents archaeological areas that challenge the preeminence of Greek, Roman and Byzantine accomplishments.

Tickets for all Travel Series programs are $4 for adults and $3 for students and senior citizens. They may be obtained at the Center's box office or reserved on credit card by calling 286-2222, Monday through Friday, from 9 a.m. to 6 p.m. The Center is located on the Center Campus of Macomb Community College at Hall (M-59) and Garfield roads in Clinton Township.

MOT, Bach come to Trombly

Trombly Elementary School students got a taste of Bach Friday morning, thanks to the Michigan Opera Theatre, the Grosse Pointe Foundation for Academic Enrichment and the Trombly PTO.

Co-sponsored by the foundation and the PTO, members of the MOT's Overture to Opera Division brought its "Let's Play Bach" program to the school. The work was commissioned by the MOT in celebration of the 300th anniversary of Johann Sebastian Bach's birth, according to MOT Director of Community Programs and co-founder Karen DiChiera.

This is the first year the 50-minute program has been performed by Overture to Opera, DiChiera said. MOT performers made multiple costume changes during the presentation, which weaves together the composer's music and life to give students an overview of the composer.

The MOT has presented "Let's Play Bach" to a number of community groups during the past year, DiChiera said. It is very popular with Lutheran church groups, she added. Bach's Lutheran beliefs strongly influenced his life and music.

The appearance at Trombly will most likely be the last this year of "Let's Play Bach," DiChiera said. It may be reworked and revived in another couple years, she added. Ironically, that last performance almost didn't happen.

A breakdown of the van carrying props threatened to cancel the performance. School staff donated a vehicle and the program hit the stage as planned, albeit a half-hour late.

Principal Sheila Joyce called the program "educational as well as enjoyable. Bach became a real person to Trombly's students through the MOT performance."

Overture to Opera is one of three divisions of the MOT. The others include mainstage performance and a touring group, performing throughout the state.

The MOT performance is one of several projects funded each school year by the Foundation for Academic Enrichment, which attempts to find programs that supplement the normal classroom regimen.

'Angel Street' opens at Meadowbrook

"Angel Street," the Gothic thriller better known to classic movie buffs as "Gaslight," opens a four-week run at 8 p.m., Thursday, Jan. 2, at Meadow Brook Theatre on the campus of Oakland University near Rochester.

Bethany Carpenter plays the terror-filled wife, the part that won an Oscar for Ingrid Bergman in 1945.

George Gittto portrays the diabolical husband who conspires to drive his wealthy bride mad.

New York actor Richard Easley will play the part of the inspector who discovers the evil plan and the housekeeper will be played by New York-based actress Barbara Barringer.

Tickets may be reserved by calling the box office at 377-3300.

'Singing Birds' to premiere Jan. 9

"Singing Birds" will premiere at the Detroit Institute of Arts Thursday evening, Jan. 9. The film will be screened in the DIA Auditorium, and a reception will follow immediately in the Kresge Court.

The by-invitation-only premiere is being made possible in part by the support of the Detroit Council for the Arts. Charles Victor Moore, the last surviving member of the McKinney Cotton Pickers — a 1920s Detroit band whose music is heard in the film — will provide entertainment for the evening with his New Orleans Dixieland Band.

A 16mm short film of feature-length quality, written and produced by two filmmakers, "Singing Birds" is the story of two families of European immigrants in Detroit of 1928. Set against a backdrop of Prohibition and bootlegging, the title is taken from an old Lithuanian folk song ("Pankusciai Giesmininkai"). The filmmakers, director Kimberly Conely of Birmingham and production designer Michele Poulik, of Grosse Pointe Woods, are both of Lithuanian heritage.

"Singing Birds" began shooting last May in a 90-year-old house located in the historic Woodbridge neighborhood of Detroit. Exterior scenes were later shot around Indian Village and Rivertown, and a Prohibition speakeasy sequence was filmed at B'Stilla restaurant on the east side.

All cast and crew members are local professionals who volunteered their time to the project. The film was shot in Lithuanian as well as English, and the production is completely in period, using old sets, cars, music, costumes and hair styles.

The evolution of English country houses

By David M. Maxfield
Smithsonian News Society

Holiday hosts pressed by the tasks of the season might pause to consider the responsibilities of their counterparts in the day of Henry VIII. On Dec. 30, 1562, history records, 235 "strangers" dined with England's Duke of Norfolk at his Framlingham Castle, the party consisting of 35 knights, gentry, priests and their servants and 200 "persons of the country."

Then, as now, the December holidays were the climax of the year's hospitality, although great feasts were held at other times of the year to demonstrate the power, wealth and solidarity of the nation's noble landowners. In the fall of 1465, a fête honoring the new Archbishop of York was attended by some 2,500 people, who consumed, one historian reports, 113 oxen, six wild bulls, 1,000 sheep, 11 porpoises and 2,000 each of geese, pigs and chickens.

In terms of prestige and customs, life nowadays in the British countryside is but a faint reflection of those earlier times. Yet for 20th-century visitors, it is possible still to catch a glimpse of the vast scale of the years of glory. One place is in the rolling Derbyshire countryside at Chatsworth, ancestral home of the Cavendish family since 1552. There, the roof covers 1.3 acres; below are 175 rooms.

The Duke and Duchess of Devonshire call this massive pile home. Deborah Devonshire, now 65, her blue eyes full of sparkle, recently greeted a group of American visitors with a caution that the vastness of the house can easily be confusing, even to its residents. "A bag put down in a rare bit of house can be lost for months," she says, and for an animal lover like herself, "It is a terrible place to house-train a puppy."

Day-to-day life is carried on now in just a few rooms of the house. These comfortable and personalized quarters are a "relief," the Duchess admits, from the "lofty" rooms elsewhere, among them ornate "state apartments" designed years ago for visiting nobility but occupied only occasionally in modern times.

Chatsworth, like scores of other old homes in England, always has been a great showcase and is open to the public most days. The house is filled with priceless collections — paintings, Oriental and continental porcelains, rare books and engravings, sculpture by the galleryful, exquisite crystal, hairloom silver and gold, exotic "conversation" pieces and textiles, tapestries and furniture of countless descriptions.

"In many ways," says J. Carter Brown, director of the National Gallery of Art in Washington, D.C., host of the exhibition, "Treasure Houses of Britain," (Nov. 3 through March 16, 1986), "the country house of Britain can be seen as some of the longest-running museums in the world. Standing in (architect) Jeffrey Wytville's sculpture gallery at Chatsworth, we seem already to be in the world of the public collection."

For Americans, the English country house is more than a nice place to visit. The origins of Mount Vernon as a self-sufficient estate can be found in George Washington's family's modest country house, Sulgrave Manor and Washington Old Hall. The cultured atmosphere of Thomas Jefferson's home, Monticello, finds a spiritual ancestor at Chiswick outside London, and the Smithsonian Institution's roots reach back two centuries to a family still owning a Northumberland castle. Today, American architects, museum curators and conservators find the houses virtual encyclopedias of information.

Who lived in the country houses and why? At their prime, lasting through the late 19th century, the houses were owned by families who effectively ran the British government, locally as well as nationally, from their traditional seats in Parliament. The owners' prestige and power, their income and way of life were based on land, usually vast acreage that provided rent payments along with produce. The majority of owners inherited their estates from the late Middle Ages on, though newly affluent captains of commerce, among others, soon invested in the country house life.

Simply put, before the 20th century, land was paramount. Power and money, country house historian Mark Girouard observes, could be acquired by other means, such as trade or services. "But money unsupported by power was likely to be plundered, power based only on personal abilities was at the mercy of time and fortune, and the power to be won through trade or commerce was limited."

The houses themselves were everything but cookie-cutter architecture. From the 1400s onward, styles varied, overlapped and finally resurfaced in various revivals during the 19th century. The elaborate 17th-century facades at Chatsworth give way to a severe classicism at Chiswick several decades later. And many of the country houses took on something of the layered look when remodeling altered the castle fortresses of the Middle Ages and then the windowed, "outward-looking" houses of the Elizabethan era.

Inside these great houses, life went on in ways that reflected the world beyond their walls, and changes in the use of rooms mirrored the great political and social changes in England. Until just before the reign of Henry VIII, entire households — nobles and servants alike — gathered for meals and gossip in the great hall of the lord's manor house. These households, Girouard points out, were formidable and largely closed groups, the members sticking together for mutual protection.

About the time of Elizabeth I's long rule in the 16th century, however, these "families" began to break apart. The lord began to seek more privacy, and he and his closest circle began meeting in "great chambers" deeper in the interior of the house. The move precisely followed a shift in political power in England. As a stronger central government emerged under Henry, then Elizabeth, there was less reason for the local lord to offer protection and to associate with people of all ranks.

The late 17th century presented new opportunities to those once bound by a manor's borders; many served the English monarchy, at its most powerful until about the time of the American Revolution. To be sure, life in the country, reflecting that power, became more and more elaborate. The state apartments within a house like Chatsworth were the peak of fashion, and a visiting nobleman would pay a formal call on the host in his part of the house, the host returning the visit later in the day.

By the mid-1700s, as a passion for knowledge and information fueled the Age of Enlightenment, satirists were mocking such rituals. Now in the new era of classically educated gentlemen, books were of the greatest importance, as much so as their belief in political liberty. Country houses began to boast impressive libraries with works by some of the greatest English philosophers and writers — Hobbes, Locke, Pope, Gibbon and Burke, themselves frequent house guests. Daily life settled into these clublike rooms.

This was the great age of collecting. For the sons of the manor, the Grand Tour of Italy, the indispensable educational climax, was a good time to purchase "souvenir" painting and sculpture to display in new galleries back home. At Holkham Hall in Norfolk, there were marble figures and busts — some of exceptional importance, and "some," British historian Francis Haskell notes, "removed from Rome by highly questionable means." Impressive scientific collections were also formed, one owner's specimens including even an oddity or two: a woman's breeches from Abyssinia and Henry VIII's dog's collar.

In the 19th century, its last great age, the country house began changing again, becoming the center of weekend parties involving a complex social whirl. In a way, things had come full circle, a reminder of the Middle Ages. In contrast to privacy afforded by the 17th-century's formality, Victorian visitors were expected to spend their days together in rooms set aside for everything from breakfast to billiards.

As a center of undeniable significance, the days of the country house were clearly numbered. Political reforms throughout the 19th century weakened the lords' power, and the ancient faith in land as strength was eroded during Britain's agricultural depression of 1873 to 1896, deepened by cheap grain imports from America.

The introduction of steep "death duty" taxes in 1884, followed by a period of philistinism when it was considered bad form for an owner to talk or even know about his collections, World War I's losses and the Great Depression, all took their toll.

That the country house survives today at all is the legacy of new tax policies, efforts of organizations such as the National Trust, the millions of paying visitors and the concerns of the house owners themselves, whose power now seems to stem from a passion to preserve these historic homes and collections. "Without any doubt," Gertrude Jackson-Stops, organizer of the treasures' exhibit asserts, "British country houses now give more pleasure to more people than at any other time in their history."

Band audition

The voluntary Metropolitan Symphonic Band is holding mid-season auditions. Monday evening rehearsals and Sunday afternoon concerts take place at the Macomb Center for the Performing Arts, on the center campus of Macomb Community College, located at Hall Road and Garfield in Clinton Township.

Interested musicians should send a summary letter of their past and current experience to: Metropolitan Symphonic Band, c/o Dr. Martin Stella, P.O. Box 45, Sterling Heights, Mich. 48311-0045. Deadline is Feb. 1.

'White Nights' stars brilliant dancing

By Marian Trainor

One of the most magical moments in "White Nights" occurs at the beginning of the film. Nikolai Rodchenko (Mikhail Baryshnikov) is lying in his bed smoking. He rises and in what appears to be a dream, dances in a presentation of Roland Petit's "Le Jeune Homme et la Mort." It is an unforgettable performance.

In a quick change of scene, we next see Nikolai on a plane with his manager Ann Wyatt (Geraldine Page) headed for Tokyo. The plane crashes. Nikolai is frantic. Some years before he had been a superstar in Russia. When he defected to the West, he was sentenced in absentia to 15 years at hard labor. After the crash, he finds himself in a hospital and also in the hands of KGB Colonel Chaiko (Jerry Skolomowski).

The colonel is delighted to see him. He is anxious to score a propaganda coup by blackmailing the recaptured star and have him appear again in Moscow. Nikolai wants no part of it.

In an effort to persuade him, the colonel appoints Raymond Greenwood (Gregory Hines) a black American hooper who has defected to the Russians, and his Soviet wife Darya (Isabella Rossellini) to get Nikolai to dance again.

If they do, they will be permitted to return to Moscow. If not Ray will be banished to the salt mines. While there is enough suspense to keep the story moving, the real focus of the film is the dancing.

While Baryshnikov gives a splendid performance as Nikolai and has a powerful personality and charisma, it is the brilliance and emotional appeal of his dancing that really counts.

Hines, when he is not expressing his bitterness over his early life in America, makes a good partner for Nikolai.

Actor-director-writer Jerzy Skolimowski is brutal, slick and sometimes amusing as the KGB agent.

Helen Mirrer, a fine English actress, gives an appealing and emotional touch to the portrayal of Galina and Geraldine Page is sprightly as Ann.

In her first American appearance, Isabella Rossellini, the daughter of Ingrid Bergman, has the same aura of tranquility that made her mother a winning actress.

But story, characterization, the background scenes of Siberia and Moscow all amount to little in a film that brings to audiences the brilliant dancing of two stars of widely different talents, but both distinguished in their own field. Of the two, Baryshnikov is the most distinguished. But the two together provide a prime treat.

PRAYER TO THE HOLY SPIRIT

Holy Spirit, you who make me see everything and who show me the way to reach my ideal. You who give me the Divine Gift to forgive and forget the wrong that is done to me and who are in all instances of my life with me. I, in this short dialogue want to thank you for everything and confirm once more that I never want to be separated from you no matter how great the material desires may be. I want to be with you and my loved ones in perpetual glory. Amen.

Thank you for your love towards me and my loved ones. Pray this prayer 3 consecutive days without asking your wish, after third day your wish will be granted, no matter how difficult it may be. Then promise to publish this prayer as soon as your favor has been granted. Thank you for favors received. M.A.T.

REPORT TO ADVERTISERS:

In-teg-ri-ty
(in-'teg-rät-ē) n. rigid adherence to a code of behavior, honesty.

Integrity is critical to a newspaper. It begins with ethical news gathering and reporting and extends to the advertising sales department as well. Advertisers must believe in the integrity of circulation information—the basis for intelligent advertising buying decisions. That's why we subject our circulation records to independent verification by the Audit Bureau of Circulations. ABC is the oldest—and largest—not-for-profit circulation auditing organization in the world. Nearly 5,000 advertisers, advertising agencies and publishers have joined together to make ABC the standard for circulation integrity. Before you buy any advertising, ask to see a copy of the latest ABC Audit Report. We'll be pleased to show you ours.

Ring in the New Year with this super supper

Pork and cabbage are the traditional good luck dishes for the first meal of the New Year. In some parts of the country, black-eyed peas are added to this menu.

To celebrate the bright new beginning of 1986, why not enjoy this elegant menu that combines the traditional foods with an eye to sensible nutrition.

The following menu and recipes comes from the low-cholesterol, low-calorie, budgetwise kitchens of Thvra Grev Howard and Helena DeWitt Roth. Happy New Year, and enjoy!

Menu

Mulled Apricot Juice
Super Tossed Green Salad
Pork Crown Roast
with Stuffing
Baked Sweet Potatoes
Green Beans
with Parsley Butter
Creamed Onions
Sauteed Sauerkraut
Orange-Cardamom Apples
Corn Puffs
Lemon Bisque

Mulled Apricot Juice

1 can (46 ounces) apricot nectar
1/2 lemon sliced
2 sticks cinnamon
15 whole cloves
8 whole allspice berries

Combine all ingredients and slowly bring to a boil; let simmer for five minutes. Strain before serving. Makes seven servings.

Calories about 112 per serving.
Cholesterol 0.

Super Tossed Green Salad

1 cup romaine lettuce, torn
1 cup red lettuce, torn
1 cup spinach leaves, torn
1 cup watercress, chopped
1/4 cup parsley, chopped
1 Tbsp. grated Parmesan cheese
1 tsp. toasted sesame seeds
1/3 cup Low Calorie Herb Dressing

Elegant Eating

4 red bell pepper rings
1/2 cup alfalfa sprouts
1/3 cup grated raw beets

Toss together the first eight ingredients. Divide into four salad bowls or plates, and top with red pepper rings. Fill rings with alfalfa sprouts and top with beets. Makes four servings.

Calories about 70 per serving.
Cholesterol 0.

Pork Crown Roast with Stuffing

1 pork crown roast (10 pounds)
Salt
Pepper
7 cups dry bread cubes*
4 Tbsp. margarine
2 Red Delicious apples, peeled and minced
2 stalks celery, minced
1 onion, minced
1/4 tsp. thyme
1/4 tsp. sage
1/3 cup slivered almonds
2 eggs, beaten
1 tsp. salt (or less)
1/4 tsp. pepper
Paprika
Cherry tomatoes
Parsley sprigs

Place roast in shallow roasting pan. Sprinkle roast with salt and pepper. Fasten small pieces of aluminum foil around bone ends. Soak bread cubes in cold water 15 minutes. Gently squeeze bread to remove excess water.

In skillet, melt margarine. Stir in apples, celery, onion, thyme and sage. Cook just until onion is tender. In large bowl, combine apple mixture, bread cubes, almonds, eggs, salt and pepper and mix well. Spoon stuffing into center of roast. Sprinkle with paprika.

Cover roast with foil. Roast in 350-degree oven two hours and 15 minutes. Remove foil and continue roasting 45 minutes, or until meat thermometer inserted in thickest part of roast registers 170 degrees. Garnish with tomatoes and parsley. Makes 10 servings. (and left overs.)

*To make dry bread cubes, cut white bread into cubes. Arrange in single layer on jelly-roll pan. Bake in 250-degree oven about half an hour, stirring occasionally.

Green Beans with Parsley Butter

4 pkgs. (9 ounces each) frozen whole green beans
4 Tbsp. unsalted margarine
1/3 cup chopped fresh parsley
1/2 tsp. salt
1/4 tsp. pepper

Cook green beans according to package directions and drain. Toss with melted margarine, parsley, salt and pepper. Makes eight cups or 12 servings.

Calories about 56 per serving.
Cholesterol 0.

Corn Puffs

2 1/4 cups boiling water
1 cup yellow corn meal
1 Tbsp. sugar
1/2 tsp. salt
2 Tbsp. unsalted margarine
2 egg yolks, thoroughly beaten
2 egg whites, stiffly beaten

Pour boiling water over the cornmeal stirring constantly to avoid lumps. Slowly stir in sugar, salt and margarine. Cook and stir over low heat until the mixture becomes a thick mush. Preheat oven to 425 degrees.

Cool mush mixture and beat well; gradually stir in the well beaten egg yolks. Fold in the stiffly beaten egg whites. Drop the batter from a teaspoon onto a hot greased baking sheet. Bake the puffs about 20 minutes. Makes about 20 puffs, 2-inches in diameter.

Calories about 45 per puff. Cholesterol about 24 mgs.

Creamed Onions

2 glass jars (16 ounces each) of very small cooked onions
2 to 2 1/2 cups medium white sauce
1/2 tsp. Worcestershire sauce
3 drops Tabasco sauce
2 level Tbsp. catsup
1/8 tsp. salt
1/8 tsp. pepper

Mix seasoning into hot white sauce until well blended. Drain onions. Very carefully stir onions into white sauce and place in top of double boiler to keep warm. The onions are rather fragile, so stir as little as possible.

Serve onions lightly sprinkled with paprika. Makes six to eight servings.

Calories about 154 for each of eight servings. Cholesterol 0.

Sauteed Sauerkraut

4 cups sauerkraut, drained and rinsed
3 1/4 cups fresh or canned tomatoes
1 Tbsp. margarine
1 small onion, chopped
1/4 cup brown sugar
1/8 tsp. black pepper

Saute onion in margarine until lightly golden, add the tomatoes which have been chopped in blender, sugar, pepper and sauerkraut. Place in oiled casserole and bake covered about one hour in a 350 degree oven. Uncover for last 20 minutes. Before serving dust very lightly with very fine dry bread crumbs and imitation bacon bits. Serves six.

Calories per serving about 42. Cholesterol 0.

Orange-Cardamom Apples

3 medium (1 pound) cooking apples, peeled, quartered, cored and cut in 1/2-inch slices
2 Tbsp. honey
2 Tbsp. frozen orange juice concentrate thawed
1/2 tsp. ground cardamom
1 Tbsp. margarine

Arrange apples in circles in greased 9-inch pie plate. Stir together honey, orange concentrate and cardamom. Pour over apples and dot with margarine. Bake in preheated 375 degree oven, basting once with pan juices, 25 to 30 minutes or until tender. Makes four servings.

Calories per serving about 133. Cholesterol 0.

Lemon Bisque

So light — so luscious — this marvelous dessert justifiably deserves all the raves it receives. The just finale for that very special guest dinner.

1 pkg. (3 ounces) lemon flavored gelatin
Juice of 1 1/2 lemons
Finely grated rind of 1 lemon
1 1/2 cups boiling water
1 cup of sugar
1 can (1 1/2 cups) evaporated milk
12 graham crackers finely crushed or thin chocolate cookies crushed

Mix first four ingredients. When mixture starts to jell set in a bowl of ice water and whip until frothy. Whip evaporated milk until stiff, combine with gelatin mixture and whip. Oil bottom and sides of 9x9 or 8x10-inch pan. Sprinkle with half of crumbs. Pour in above mixture and cover with the remainder of the crumbs. Refrigerate lightly covered until ready to serve. Makes 10 servings.

Calories about 184 per serving. Cholesterol about 17 mgs.

Directory

Michigan's new 1985-86 Public Transportation Directory is ready for distribution.

Published by the Michigan Department of Transportation, the directory shows the routes and locations of all public transportation services throughout Michigan. It complements MDOT's Official Transportation Map, which is used chiefly by highway travelers.

Maps in the new Public Transportation Directory, the first published since 1978, show all commercial air service airports and routes, intercity bus routes, passenger rail lines and local county and city public transit services.

The 22-page booklet includes an extensive directory of Michigan communities served by public transportation. The list identifies carriers serving each community, and their addresses and telephone numbers where information on schedules and fares can be obtained.

The Public Transportation Directory will be distributed free at MDOT's 11 Welcome Centers and nine district offices, as well as at all bus, air and rail passenger terminals, local transit stations, state government buildings and through the Michigan Travel Bureau.

Calories about 45 per puff. Cholesterol about 24 mgs.
