

Day care: It is not just for children any more

By Nancy Parmenter
Staff Writer

Change is stressful for older people, so starting to go to a day care program didn't please Susan Noethen's mother-in-law at first. The 80-year-old woman stood obdurately with her arms crossed over her chest, refusing to get dressed.

But by the end of the first week, she was laying out an outfit the night before and watching from the front window for the center's van, Noethen said. And the enthusiasm extends to her attitude at home.

"She's more alert, more helpful around the house," Noethen said. "Her confidence has taken strides. She needs the routine (the center provides)."

Noethen's mother-in-law wasn't always withdrawn. Until a year ago, she was active and busy — "she'd be the one helping out at a nursing home" — but then she had surgery and went into a deep depression. She became unable to live alone.

It was only a month ago that she moved in with her son and daughter-in-law in Grosse Pointe, with the expectation that she'd stay there until they could find a nursing home. Living together was harder than anyone had expected.

"After the first week, I was drained," Noethen said.

By a stroke of luck, she thought of day care. There are only two day care centers for senior citizens in the area (others are located in Warren and Hamtramck); Noethen opted for the program at Cottage-Belmont Nursing Center, which had only been open for a week.

"It's a good alternative to a nursing home," she said.

Day care for elderly parents or spouses offers a new alternative to their families. Whether family members work or just need a break, they can leave their elderly relative at a center for a morning, an afternoon, or for extended care from breakfast to dinner.

A decade ago, the idea of day care for adults was almost unheard of. There were no centers on the east side until Calvary Senior Center opened five years ago. Today there are only 26 centers statewide. And the idea still isn't planted firmly in the public's mind.

"Adult day care is so new in terms of society looking at it," said Calvary's Rev. Rodney Hill, who is the current president of the Michigan Association of Adult Day Care Centers. "When people run into trouble, they aren't thinking adult day care —

Battle for corner settled

Bid for outdoor flower sales approved

By Pat Paholsky
News Editor

A small flower war over a corner in the Village was settled last week when the city council voted to grant last year's seller the use of the space again.

Johan and Gina Grobben will be allowed to sell flowers and plants in the Village plaza, located at Kercheval and St. Clair, during the 1987 season. Last year was the first time the city granted anyone the right to sell at the corner.

The other bidders were Kevin and Janet Serba, who made the request last year shortly after opening Kimberly Flowers, the second store from the corner. They said a flower vendor so close to their place of business would create unfair competition.

The city asked for proposals from both bidders for the council's consideration. After examining the proposals and talking with both parties, six members voted in favor of the Grobbens. Councilman M. Jackson Morris dissented.

The Grobbens will pay the city an amount that has not been determined yet, according to Christine Matthew, administrative assistant.

They have also agreed to furnish and plant flowers in the existing 21 planters throughout the Village and increase the tubs to 50. They will furnish and plant annuals around the shrubs in the plaza flowerbed, at the entrances of the garage and provide planters for both Village signs on Kercheval.

Further, the Grobbens will provide hanging baskets at cost to merchants for the purpose of beautifying the Village. They've also agreed to help organize one or two flower days with the Village Association. Their nine-page proposal included a list of flowers and plants they plan to sell and the range of prices.

Their selling season will extend from April until Thanksgiving and their hours will be from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. Monday and Wednesday, from 10 a.m. to 9 p.m. Thursday and Friday, and from 9 a.m. to 6 p.m. on Saturdays.

Councilman Arthur Fetters Jr. complimented both bidders on their proposals and said, "I would hope the Serbas understand that my aye vote was predicated on the Grobbens doing an excellent job last year. I think they deserve another crack at it this year."

Boat well trade draws criticism

By Peter A. Sellnas
Staff Writer

Amid opposition at the special village council meeting in the Shores last week, unanimous approval was given to a plan which gives boat docks to the Grosse Pointe Yacht Club in exchange for the construction of 62 new wells in the harbor.

Since the late 1920s the Shores has leased an area of its 8.3-acre municipal marina to the yacht club. Over those years, the club has constructed and maintained 84 boat wells of various sizes in the leased area as well as the north harbor wall.

The lease, renewed every 15 years, expired last summer. There is a long waiting list for boat spaces in the municipal harbor and village officials decided to let the lease lapse. Officials wanted to negotiate an agreement with the yacht club that would alleviate the village's long list.

An agreement was reached after lengthy deliberations with the yacht club and was approved at the special meeting.

The agreement calls for transferring the use rights of 28 wells along the yacht club's north boundaries from the city to the club. The yacht club, in turn, will construct 62 wells along the north harbor wall for the village. The area currently consists of 32 large wells which were under lease to the yacht club. In addition, the club is to maintain the north harbor wall for 50 years.

The wells will be completed in three phases. The first phase, 29 wells, are to be completed by the end of June. They will be 20 to 25 feet long. The remaining wells will be constructed by the end of June 1989.

Residents complained that the future earning power of the leased wells exceeds the estimated $450,000 the yacht club will spend over three years to construct the new wells. That estimate came from Shores City Manager Michael Kenyon.

Former Councilman Arnold Fuchs, who was on the council when the marina was first constructed, argued against trading well space to the yacht club. Fuchs said boat well space is extremely valuable, and that giving up any of it is a disservice to the residents.

Others argued that giving up city-owned wells to a private entity shouldn't be done.

And others suggested that the village was acting too hastily.

Officials said the village's park and harbor committee met three times at public meetings with residents to discuss the matter, and also had three negotiating meetings with the yacht club.

Councilman Daniel Beck said that when negotiations began, the yacht club didn't want to maintain the north harbor wall, which he said is going to be costly. Through negotiations, the yacht club finally agreed to maintain the wall for 50 years, he said.

"We are not a rubber stamp for the Grosse Pointe Yacht Club," Beck told the audience.

One resident said he was renting a boat well at Jefferson Beach Marina for $1,700 per year. He said he would be grateful to rent a well at the municipal marina at twice the going rate. Boat fees in the Shores range from a low of $250 a year, to just over $1,000. Fees are based on a 90 cent per square foot charge.

The cost of new harbor construction, improving the leased wells and maintenance of the north wall would be a burden too great for the village to handle, officials said.

The cost of building a bridge and adding water and electrical power would be about $560,000, Kenyon said. He said running electrical lines to the north wall docks alone would be an additional $190,000, and would not include any construction costs for new wells in that area — now included in the plan.

Some residents argued that the village could handle those costs by raising boat well fees, taxing boat owners or having a vote on a bond issue.

Kenyon said that a referendum on a bond issue for harbor improvements would be rejected four to one. He said that the improvements proposed under the agreement with the yacht club will take care of the needs of the village for years to come, and

Kay Gee

By Pat Paholsky

Kay Gee is at liberty again — in a manner of speaking — and she's ready to begin a new chapter in her life.

She retired last week as a leader in a support group for the blind, a group she has been involved with for four years.

"It was so hard for me to let go of this group, but I have to let go to go on to other things," she said. "And I believe something wonderful happens when you let go."

Gee should know. Nearly five years ago she retired as a social worker with the Detroit public schools — a job she had for 36 years. It was not a joyous occasion. Gee had begun to lose her sight and it was "either retire or have a complete breakdown," she said.

She talks about the future as she sits in her living room, sipping a diet Coke. Her parents moved to the house in Grosse Pointe Park, in which she still lives, in 1935. Gee attended Grosse Pointe High School and went to Wayne State University where she earned a bachelor of science degree in education.

"It was very hard for me to decide, there were so many interesting things, so I had four majors — home economics, science, sociology and education."

The year she graduated, she and a friend got a summer job at the Methodist Children's Village, where they were in charge of recreation and teaching crafts.

"For five days a week, we lived there and had our meals and board and were available day and night," she said. "It was my introduction to foster home care for children and human tragedy in

Judge seeks pay increase; may ask courts to settle

By Pat Paholsky
News Editor

The Grosse Pointe Park municipal judge has threatened to sue the city for more pay. City attorney Herold McC. Deason told the council Monday night that Judge Beverly Grobbel told him she would "litigate the issue in court" if the council did not give her an answer to a request she made more than a month ago.

Grobbel, who is paid $6,000 a year to conduct court proceedings one day a week, told Mayor Palmer Heenan that an increasing case load has forced her to work more hours.

The statistics bear her out. The number of court appearances for traffic, ordinance and criminal violations have increased 44 percent since 1983 and there were 58 percent more civil cases filed in the three-year period.

The $6,000 salary is the ceiling set by the city charter, written in 1954. In comparison, Farms Municipal Judge Peter O'Rourke is paid $7,000 a year plus medical benefits. Woods Judge Patricia Schneider receives $6,000 annually and Judge Stan Kazul in the City is paid $3,675 a year.

Heenan said the matter was to be taken up by the Ordinance Review Committee Monday morning, but that the meeting was cancelled at the last minute by the chairman, Councilman Mark Valente, who flew to Washington.

"I'm disappointed that the committee did not address the judge's compensation," he said.

According to Heenan, the city attorney can seek an opinion from the attorney general on whether the judge's duties are unduly restricted by the charter and have the provision declared invalid.

"Then the council can set her salary, but I don't think that's the way," Heenan said. "I would rather give the people the chance to vote on it."

Attorney Deason was asked to draft a proposed amendment to the charter for the next council meeting, March 9, and City Manager John Crawford will research the number of hours the judge works in a week. Public Safety Director Richard Caretti said Grobbel has been on call to sign search warrants.

Deason said the council has several options in addressing the issue. There can be an amendment to the charter which would leave the decision to the voters. Deason said this is the "surest" method. Or the council can establish an Elected Officers' Compensation Commission which would set salaries of all elected officials. Or the matter can be taken to court as Grobbel proposes, Deason said.

Grobbel, whose term expires in December 1989, was unopposed in the 1986 election.

She was unable to be contacted before press time.

Boat wells

also allows the opportunity to add more docks in the future if the need arises.

Kenyon said that with the addition of 62 wells to the harbor, there will be one well for every five of the 1,030 households in the village — more than in any city in southeastern Michigan, he said.

When Beck argued that the property in question had a state equalized valuation of $137,000, some residents said that didn't reflect the earning power of the wells. Some wells, they said, generate $2,500 a year.

No one refuted officials who said that while the economy is strong today, it may not be the case one or two years from now.

Kenyon and Beck both noted that five years ago, there were many empty wells in the marina — with no waiting list.

"When times are tough," Kenyon said, "the boat is the first thing to go."

Another area of concern to officials is what course the state of Michigan will take in regard to the village's leasing activity.

Mo Nielsen, Department of Natural Resources, Great Lake Submerged Lands Management Unit, said the state is aware of the situation between the yacht club and the village.

Nielsen said that technically the village would be in violation of its agreement with the state by leasing wells to the yacht club. He said that under the new agreement, the state will become the lessor of the wells, that have been transferred and the yacht club will have to pay the state 5 percent of the going commercial rate for those boat wells.

He said that all Pointe municipalities got in "on the bottom floor" when the leases of submerged land for marinas were first awarded. He said that the state was not aware of the lease situation between the yacht club and the Shores until recently, but as he understands the new agreement, the state will go along with it.

The state had not argued against the lease of wells, which sit atop the state's bottom land until one month ago, according to Kenyon. Both he and Beck said the state recognized the special situation between the club and the village, but said now that the current lease was up, the village should clean up the arrangement.

According to Kenyon, it may not be legal for a municipality to lease the use rights of its marina to a private enterprise if the state owns the bottomland.

One of the questions that officials were unable to answer was the number of square feet of well space being traded.

Kenyon said the village is getting more square feet of space than the yacht club. He estimated that the north wall dock currently includes 36,131 square feet, while the yacht club's shoreline and tee dock have 33,348 square feet.

"Once the new wells are added to the existing wells on the north wall, the village will have even more square feet of space," Kenyon said.

Councilwoman Patricia Galvin said that no matter what decision was made, everyone on the waiting list could not be satisfied. After the meeting, she said that there has always been good relations between the yacht club and the village. She noted that village residents are allowed to use the gas facilities at the club.

Commodore Robert E. Yuhn said he feels the agreement satisfies the needs of both the yacht club and the Shores.

"I think it was an independent bargaining arrangement and a good solution to the Shores waiting list," Yuhn said. "It was a fair exchange."

Yuhn said that the yacht club has no immediate plan for expansion of its harbor, and noted that the club will now be tying up its cash flow in the development of the Shores harbor.

"It was an expense we had not anticipated in prior planning," he said.

The boat wells which have been traded to the Grosse Pointe Yacht Club by Grosse Pointe Shores are the Park and Shoreline docks on the north side of the club house. In exchange, the yacht club will construct 62 new boat wells in the area along the North Wall dock. Part of the Tee Dock will be leased by the village to the yacht club during the harbor construction period.

Maire computer lab: Moms helping kids

Volunteer Andrea Blaess watches over the shoulders of Bobby Masland and Eileen Pulis.

By Nancy Parmenter
Staff Writer

Four years ago, Robin Missant's husband gave her a computer for Christmas. It sat on the dining room table for six months while she figured it out.

Then, look out. "I'm a hacker," Missant says. "Now I sit up in the middle of the night playing games and he says 'you're sick.'"

Missant has transferred her "sickness" to hundreds of schoolkids at Maire, where she has taken on the job of computer lab coordinator — a 40-hour-a-week job with no pay.

It started when Missant's first child went to kindergarten. She went along with her computer. "I could make my own kids computer-literate," she said, "but I wanted to reach the whole school."

So, with two children still at home, Missant started around the classrooms with her computer on a cart. It wasn't long before Principal Jay Flowers found her a room.

"We had seven Commodore Pets — they're extremely obsolete — and some Commodore 64s," Missant recalled. She also had 25 volunteer helpers the first year, a number dwarfed only by the 40-plus she has now.

"I had to train all those volunteers on both computers," she said. "It was shaky."

They were just getting rolling, when someone broke in and stole the computers during spring break. The program shut down for the rest of the year.

But, as fate often has it, bad luck turns around and becomes good luck. The insurance reimbursed for all the computers — and the school board decided to spring for some more. "At the time, I was dying, but it was a windfall," Missant said.

Now Maire's lab has more computers than any other Grosse Pointe elementary school. It also has more volunteers.

The volunteers act as teachers' aides, according to Flowers. They are trained to use the computers — and the software, so that they can help students with the work. And they do more.

Volunteer Barb Teranes works as a software reviewer. She previews software, writes an anecdotal summary and conducts in-service workshops to acquaint teachers with the software content.

Volunteer Sue Smith works during the noon hour activity period, teaching keyboarding (typing, to those of us old enough to remember the typewriter). She helps the student journalists put together the school newspaper.

"You'd be amazed at how some of these first- and second-graders can type," Missant said. "Some Project coordinator Robin Missant boots one of the computers. Kids are doing 30 to 40 words a minute."

Not all schools utilize volunteers to the full extent of their capacities. Missant gives all the credit to Flowers. "It wouldn't be possible without Jay Flowers and the teachers," she said. "They have been so supportive. They're always willing to listen."

Flowers credits the parents. "We have a lot of parents who are willing to contribute," he said.

When the program started up the second time, Flowers found a full-size classroom for the computer lab. Missant decorated it with plants and posters and corralled all her old volunteers, and more. She says they are more enthusiastic than ever.

"There are even a couple who work full time, but come in anyway," she said. "Somehow they make arrangements — I'm glad to have them — I don't ask any questions."

No one is required to work more than one time a week for a couple of hours — although there are some who do. There are always at least two helpers in the lab at a time. The students come in as often as twice a week for a half-hour at a time. How often they come depends upon classroom activities and upon how much individual computer work they need or want.

The computer lab volunteers work with the school system's paid elementary school computer coordinator, who provides some software and works with program content. But the dedicated corps of volunteers allows Maire students to get even more out of the program.

The Maire PTO provides a budget of $1,500 a year for software and consumable equipment like printer ribbons. "I love it," Missant said. "When I run across something fabulous, I can buy it."

Missant does run across lots of fabulous ideas at computer group meetings. "It's like a religious cult," she said. "Everyone is in a frenzy to share information."

There's at least one sign of computer contagion. "Since we started this program," Missant said, "32 parents have bought computers for their kids."

Students stand mute to vandalism

Six Grosse Pointe South seniors were arraigned last week in Grosse Pointe Farms Municipal Court on three misdemeanor charges in connection with the November 1986 break-in and vandalism of the South High School library.

Each of the students stood mute to the charges and a statutory plea of not guilty was entered in their behalf, by Judge Peter E. O'Rourke.

The students are charged with illegal entry, trespassing and malicious destruction of property under $100. Each carries with it a penalty of $100 fine and or 90 days in jail.

Four of the six students were represented by counsel at the proceeding, which lasted about 20 minutes. One of the defendants is to be represented by his mother, who is an attorney. The other unrepresented defendant told the court he would have a lawyer for the trial.

The attorneys and city Prosecutor Matthew Rumora met separately in what was called a pre-trial conference for about an hour before the open court proceeding.

Another pre-trial conference between the attorneys and the prosecutor was set for March 11. A tentative trial date was scheduled for early May.

The students have already been punished by the school district and will not be allowed to participate in commencement exercises or any school-sponsored activities. Also the students must split the cost of the damage to the library, which is more than $3,000.

Kropf and Tony Lentine; "Violent Silence" with George Snow, John Mabarak and Paul Chase from Grosse Pointe South and graduates Alex Porbe and John Kennedy; "Anne B. Davis" with Julian Go of University Liggett and Ray Echling, Brian Stratton and Dave Harris of South.

Voting at the competition is done by paid attendance. Students are given the numbered half of their ticket stub upon entering the building and this becomes their voting ballot.

Tickets are $4.50. Advance sales are limited to high school students only and school I.D. is required at time of purchase. Band members will also be selling tickets. Any tickets left the day of the event will be sold to any Grosse Pointe resident or student, including middle school students.

Battle of the Bands scheduled for March 7

The 13th annual Battle of the Bands will rock the Grosse Pointe War Memorial Saturday, March 7, starting at 8 p.m. Five local bands will compete for top honors, with bands playing simultaneously in both the Fries Ballroom and auditorium.

For the past month, a student committee has been auditioning bands. To qualify, bands must be non-professional and consist of at least one-half Grosse Pointe residents.

The committee selected five groups: "The Hold" with Mike Sansoterra, Eric Miller, Kris Kurtz, all from Grosse Pointe North and Bill Kelmar from Grosse Pointe South; "Face Heads" with Ben Gaskin and John Gattorn from Grosse Pointe North and Matthew Cooke, a graduate of North; "Focuss" with Dom Macere of Bishop Gallagher High, Phil Schefferly and Rob Rochon of North, F.L. Collins of South and graduates Steve FunkRock, Adam Brady, Eric

City to reassess residential property

The city of Grosse Pointe will begin reassessing all residential property next month. The last time a citywide reassessment was done was 1978.

The process will take six to seven months, according to Dennis Foran, treasurer-assessor. He said notices would be sent to property owners next January or February.

The reassessment will cost the city $10,000, which the council approved last week. That includes the purchase of a computer program and the number of manhours it will take to complete the job. Foran said.

The amount is in contrast, he said, to the $60,000 to $80,000 it would cost to hire an outside consultant for $34 a parcel.

The procedure will involve pulling the file sheets on each property and applying new 1986 tax manual values to such factors as square feet. The manual is issued by the state Tax Commission. The data will be put into the computer for the new assessment.

Foran said when that's completed, the new assessments will be compared to sale prices of homes sold. The city will also consider neighborhood economic conditions in the process.

"If sales in a particular neighborhood are 5 percent higher than the state tax manual, we'd bring the assessment up to sales," he said.

"We don't go out to look at each individual house," he said, adding that notices will be mailed early enough to give property owners time to compare them.

general and social workers." After the first week, the cook fell and broke her leg and Gee and her friend, as home economics majors, were drafted into service.

"Here we were in this big institutional kitchen, cooking for the staff, the children and some parents. We had to do the shopping for the day and we had a converted hearse. Just learning how to drive and how to park that hearse on Grand River was no small potatoes."

Gee taught home economics in the Detroit schools for two years and then earned a master's degree in social work at Columbia University. The Detroit school system through state funding added a new service to its program.

"They wanted people to work with latchkey children," she said. "They were beginning to be concerned with juvenile delinquency, trying to find ways to prevent it and treat it."

Gee started in February 1946. In July 1981 she began to have problems with her vision.

After several frustrating months, she learned she had macular degeneration, a progressive disease that leads to blindness. It was a period of extreme emotional upheaval, compounded by a doctor who understood the disease, but didn't know how to treat the person.

"I said what am I going to do and he said I have a whole shelf of books you can read. I said I can't read and he said you brought a friend with you. I said she can't read a whole shelf of books for me.

"I said I can't stop crying and he said he'd give me Valium. I said how about a support group. My social worker's mind was working. You have the patients and I have the skills. He didn't hear a word I said. I still can't get over the difficulty he had in dealing with this."

It takes, Gee said, an average of seven years between the time a person will learn he has the disease and the time he gets practical help on living with it.

Finally, through a friend, she learned about the Michigan Commission for the Blind. She was assigned to a counselor, Peter Hewitt, a former Highland Park policeman who lost his sight. Hewitt got her started in a rehabilitation program at Receiving Hospital. That's when she decided to retire and help others in the same situation "so that that awful period of not knowing where to go for help should not have to happen to anyone else."

Gee approached Dr. Philip Hessburg of the Detroit Institute of Ophthalmology who put her in touch with the Friends of Vision. Out of a number of meetings with then-President Marleine Ricca came the support group and recording the news on tape for members.

In its short existence, the Friends of Vision has become a model for similar groups in the country. Besides meeting regularly at the Neighborhood Club, the group offers workshops on mobility training, self-defense and other topics. Another workshop on mobility, communications skills and daily living is planned for April.

"We are saying to these people, at a time of great despair, that your lives are not over, that we think you're important. We need your skills. It doesn't depend on how much you can see."

One area ophthalmologists frequently don't tell their patients about is low vision aids, Gee said. The group sponsors an annual exhibit called Magnify your World. The next exhibit will be held in October at Eastland Center.

One of the goals of the Friends of Vision is to make the visually impaired aware of various services to allow them to continue to live independently. According to John Crews, a supervisor of the Senior Blind Program of the Southeastern Michigan Center for Independent Living, there are 34,000 blind people in Michigan. Of this number, 22,000 are 60 or over. The cost to institutionalize elderly blind people in Michigan is $88 million annually. The cost nationally is $4.9 billion a year.

Gee says the hard part about losing one's sight is "you do have to give up a lot. My reading has been a painful experience and I try to accept the fact that I don't do what I used to."

What she does do, however, is impressive. She recently stepped down as president of the Detroit branch of the Women's International League for Peace and Freedom, a post she held for five years. The organization, founded in 1915 by Jane Addams, is the oldest women's peace group in the world, she says.

The league is sponsoring a conference March 20-21 on sexism, militarism and racism. Gee will speak on increasing violence toward women and children.

She is proud that she has been nominated to the board of the U.S. section of the Women's International League for Peace and Freedom, although she is hesitant about going to Philadelphia, doing research and recognizing people. With blindness comes a loss of self-confidence, she says.

Other similar organizations she belongs to are the Detroit Area Nuclear Weapons Freeze Group, the Fellowship of Reconciliation, the Episcopal Peace Fellowship and the Center for Peace and Conflict Studies at Wayne State University.

On her longtime association with peace groups, Gee says, "I don't know how much a pacifist I am. I think war is legalized murder and it has got to stop. It has been going on a long time, I know, but the weapons have become so out of control, we stand in peril of annihilating the whole world."

"I think everyone has to do something to promote peace, whatever little bit it is," she added.

Gee is also a member of the Detroit Women's Forum, the Women's Economic Club, the League of Women Voters and the Friends of Asian Art at the Detroit Institute of Arts. She is a charter member of the National Association of Social Workers and the Women's Association of the Grosse Pointe Symphony.

While she's lost her sight, she hasn't lost her sense of humor. She talked about traveling to Kalamazoo on the Amtrak with five other women, all visually impaired and all over 60 years old, with three of them in their 80s. "There we were stumbling around with our canes," she said, explaining that when a person graduates from mobility training, it's traditional to name one's cane. She named hers Yessi (Yes-eye) Cane from the song, "I Can Do Anything Better Than You Can" from "Annie Get Your Gun."

Why we support library addition in the Pointes

Like the school system, the Grosse Pointe library system is a community resource that is highly prized by the majority of Pointe residents. They have reason to be proud of it. But they also use it and want it to provide even more services.

That explains why the school board, which runs the library system, has now hired an Ann Arbor architectural firm, Osler & Milling, which prepared an earlier study that recommended the expansion, to draw up plans for an addition to the Central Library building.

When the preliminary designs are ready, the community will also get cost estimates that will determine the size of the bond issue that would have to be floated to finance the new construction. Speculation currently is that the bond issue would be in the neighborhood of $2.5 million.

As another community institution, the Grosse Pointe News strongly supports the community's library services. And while it is too early to express support for any specific bond issue that may be put on the ballot next June, this newspaper believes there are strong arguments in favor of the expansion.

As the Grosse Pointe News reported last fall, Pointers love their library to death. A survey by the Friends of the Library showed that 91 percent of the adult population uses it, 42 percent once a month at least, as compared with national figures showing 10 percent frequent usage and 28 percent occasional use.

The Friends survey also found strong sentiment for expansion of the library, whether by building at the Central Library or at the two branches, or by remodeling, consolidation or starting over with a new library building.

Library space for the Pointes now falls far below the standards set by the American Library Association. It recommends one square foot of space per resident. Yet in the Pointes, with 58,000 residents, the main library and its Woods and Park branches provide only 28,000 square feet of space, about half the ALA standard.

As a result of the heavy use, the limited amount of space and the rising expectations of the users, the library system needs expansion to accommodate more books, more reading space, more computers and even more parking and restrooms. Such is the price of success for a fine community institution.

One of the problems involved in expanding the Central Library building is that it was designed by Marcel Breuer, a famed architect, and has a reputation as an excellent representation of his work. But there appears to be agreement that the building has a historical significance that should be protected.

That idea already has the support of Hawkins Ferry, whose father, Dexter M. Ferry Jr., gave the community the Breuer library building with no strings attached. Hawkins Ferry says he believes expansion is necessary and supports it — so long as the original Breuer building is preserved.

The school board has appealed for gifts to help finance the expansion but it is apparent that a bond issue will be needed to raise the bulk of the construction costs. If residents contribute to the fund, they will reduce the size of the bond issue. But Grosse Pointers never have been reluctant to provide excellent support for their school system, and they are unlikely to change their views about an important adjunct of the schools, the library system.

Furthermore, this would mark the first bond issue for library construction in the Pointes. The Breuer building was a gift, as we've said, and the two branches are located in school buildings. So if the architects and the board come up with an appropriate design and financing that would not be extravagant, there is every likelihood the community would give the library addition bond issue the same kind of support voters have given to millage proposals for the schools and library system in the past.

Bush loses a skirmish

Michigan Republicans apparently took another step to the right last week when a coalition of forces supporting Rep. Jack Kemp of New York and the Rev. Pat Robertson of Virginia took control of the Republican state committee at the party's annual convention in Lansing.

The coalition forces not only claimed a majority of the state committee but also won chairmanships of a majority of the congressional district committees. Kemp's people captured nine of the chairmanships, Robertson backers claimed three and the forces of Vice President George Bush and Sen. Robert Dole of Kansas took the remaining six, according to one compilation.

Michigan will not elect its delegates to the 1988 Republican National Convention until early in 1988 but the convention outcome obviously represented a setback for Bush, who had captured the state's presidential primary in 1980, and a victory for the Kemp and Robertson forces. Bush had hoped to enhance his chances of winning a majority of Michigan delegates in the first batch of delegates to the 1988 convention to be named next year. Now his opponents on the right may hold the upper hand.

Some observers wonder whether Michigan Republicans, in appearing to swing right, are not moving counter to current state and national political trends. They say the easy victory of moderate Democratic Gov. James Blanchard last November, the capture of the U.S. Senate by the Democrats in the national election and the recent troubles of President Ronald Reagan all offer evidence that the pendulum may be swinging away from the right and toward the moderates, even moderate Democrats.

Others respond, however, that the GOP, regardless of whom the party nominates for president, is likely to center on four non-ideological issues to win support in 1988. Those issues would be job creation through new tax incentives and new tax reform; continuation of the Reagan doctrine in foreign policy that supports people seeking freedom and democratic values; continuation of the campaign for deployment of the Star Wars program to make nuclear weapons obsolete, and efforts to improve education through greater accountability by both teachers and students.

If those are the GOP directions for 1988, and not the reiteration of the right-wing social policies favored by some conservatives, it is perhaps true that it wouldn't make much difference who becomes the GOP nominee. Bush, Dole and Kemp probably could accept those ideas without too much dissension but Robertson appears on occasion to have his own agenda.

The Kemp-Robertson alliance also may be somewhat uneasy, even though Kemp is making gains among conservative Republicans. Robertson is talking about running on the same ticket with Kemp, either as No. 1 or No. 2, while Kemp's people say he's only interested in running for president. Kemp's early choice for his running mate, his people say, is Jeanne Kirkpatrick, the former U.S. ambassador to the United Nations.

Last week's GOP convention was only an early skirmish and not a major battle in the 1988 campaign but it seems clear it was a loss for the vice president. Whether he can survive as the front-runner with other candidates ganging up on him in new skirmishes in other areas now appears to be a major question.

Easing access to justice

Whether one agrees with him or not, Grosse Pointer W. Clark Durant must be given credit for courage in carrying his campaign for reform of the legal system right into the mid-winter meeting of the board of governors of the American Bar Association in New Orleans.

Durant is in the curious position of calling for ending the federal agency he serves as chairman, the Legal Services Corp. In another anomaly, he serves by appointment of a president who has recommended zero funding for the corporation again this year as he has done since 1980.

Yet Durant emphasized in his speech, and in an interview in the Grosse Pointe News last week, that he did not call for abolition of the services his agency provides. Instead, he called for replacement of the agency with adequate funding and reform to encourage "entrepreneurs, para-professionals and lay people to be part of the delivery of legal services for the poor and for all people."

His contention is that he is not debating whether there should be legal services for the poor but he is calling for reform because "the status quo doesn't meet the legal needs of the poor or anyone else." In effect, he wants to open doors to a wider participation of people capable of delivery of legal services. He thinks, for example, that services to the poor could be delivered better through competitive bidding for service grants.

In a debate on public television and in other appearances, ABA President Eugene Thomas called for Durant's resignation after the Grosse Pointer had repeated his criticism of the lawyers' control of the delivery of legal services and his appeal for a new agency to replace his own.

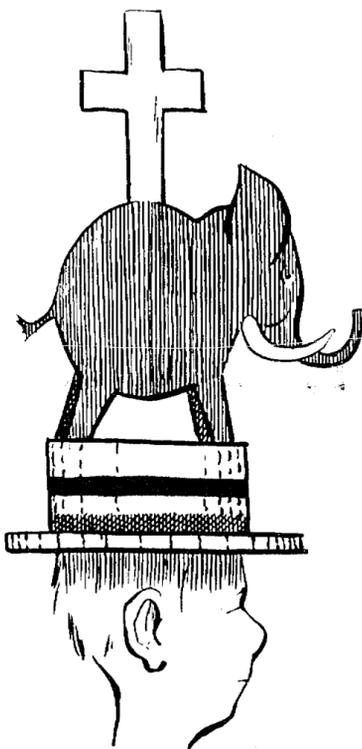

Durant has insisted he is not going to resign and plans to continue with his campaign. So far as the average layman is concerned, Durant probably will get some backing for his contention that the legal system operates under laws that limit or distort supply, increase prices and create dislocations in the marketplace.

Yet it is doubtful that there will be as much backing for his complaint that many in the federally funded legal services movement want to use it for political purposes and especially for the redistribution of wealth and income in this country. That, of course, is the kind of argument often used by those who oppose welfare grants or similar help for the needy.

However, it is difficult to argue with Durant's contention that there ought to be easier and cheaper access to justice not only for the poor but for everyone. The question is whether his panacea would assure the goal of "maximizing access to justice" that he seeks.

Financing public education

By William R. Bryant Jr.
State Representative

Education finance for the public schools and reduction in the present degree of reliance on property tax to fund schools is a major focus of legislative activity this year.

There is no shortage of old and new ideas about ways to change school finance or to reduce property tax.

Problems enter partly because simple answers have proved difficult to come by and complex ballot proposals tend to lose. Simple answers which the legislature could enact itself have not been found.

Another problem has been that changes almost always end up with there being some losers as well as some winners. This may make a proposal more expensive if it seeks to alleviate the negative impact on those who somehow lose in the change. It also means there is likely to be organized opposition from those who would lose if change occurs.

In past proposals and in some of the proposals being considered now, the Grosse Pointe area would be a loser. This assumes that the residents of the Grosse Pointes and our Harper Woods neighbors who are part of our school system, will continue to wish to fund a very well-financed school system.

The loss could come from any proposal which would limit the number of property tax mills which be levied for schools.

Why would anyone want to limit a Grosse Pointe in their ability to tax and spend more than others might?

There are four reasons given, none of which I feel is valid.

First, there is the basic question of whether people should have the right to gather together in a community and use a tax mechanism to raise as much money for schools as they may want. That right now exists but is attacked as unfair, elitist, rewarding protected, perhaps racially discriminatory, elitist bedroom communities. "Why," some ask "should the education of a child depend on where the child lives?"

Second, some question whether it is fair to allow a majority of voters in a community tax without limit not only themselves but the minority who oppose more taxes. Should not there be some protection for the minority, some limit?

Third, there are those who feel that it is essential for equal protection reasons to try to more nearly equalize school expenditures in the various districts. The state constitution says the state must support and maintain a system of public schools and they see this, too, as intending equality. It is felt by those who seek such equality that it cannot be attained if districts are allowed to spend as much as they want, without limit.

Fourth, there are those who feel that higher-spending districts create envy on the part of parents and teachers and bid up the price of teachers thereby making the cost of education greater in all school districts.

All of these arguments have some validity. None, to me, is correct, on balance, and collectively they are not persuasive.

The right of people to live where they wish and to use a tax system to pursue their own vision of excellence in education is a very important one. We will not wish to see that right lost or damaged without awfully good reasons. I haven't seen such a reason.

Confessions of a cable junkie

This great nation now faces one of the greatest threats to its security of its glorious history. Our children, our parents, our elderly — every citizen from the day he is old enough to crawl into the living room and pull himself into a sitting position to the day he goes to his final rest — all of us are mainlining on the most insidious drug ever to gnaw away at a national psyche, the mother mainline itself — cable television.

Like many other innocents, I once believed the mainline to be an innocuous convenience. For a nominal charge, I could hook my receiver to a black shielded wire that would improve my reception and broaden my television viewing horizons.

I worked for a newspaper in Ohio back then. I was in one of those towns just far enough from several cities large enough to have television stations to give the television viewer a choice of two fuzzy, snowy stations — affiliated with the same network — and a UHF station that faded out in certain weather.

I waited anxiously for the installer to give me my key to a whole world of exciting entertainment options. All right, so there wasn't much to do in Bellevue, Ohio, after sundown.

At first, the mainline only meant 12 stations — two each from the three networks, two PBS stations, a weather channel that consisted of a camera panning back and forth over a thermometer, a wind-speed dial and a barometer, a local origination station that showed elementary school pageants and high school concerts, and channels 50 and 9 from the Detroit area.

But that's how addictions start — first you're demurely nibbling on a potato chip, then before you know what happened, you're licking the crumbs out of the bottom seam of the bag.

As soon as everyone was good and hooked on clear reception and a choice of what to watch, the cable company appeared with a new proposal — 39 channels. Of course, this splendid new service would mean a rate increase.

The city council debated the proposition for several sessions. After all, what could possibly fill up 39 channels? And would the new line-up include — gasp — MTV? (Small town Ohio councilmen all know that when you play MTV backward, you hear and see Satanic messages. They just haven't figured out how to play it backward.)

But the progressives won and by summer the new mainlines were being hooked to homes throughout the city. At first, I was fascinated by the variety of channels offered. Not only that, but there was a remote control thrown in for free for the first two months.

I sat entranced, flipping back and forth from 700 Club, to the Jim and Tammy TV Ministry Hour, to Regis Philbin's Lifestyles, to Masterpiece Theater. I didn't even have to get up and go over to the set. The mainline was taking care of me.

Then I started looking for another level of high. The Superstation wasn't enough. I had to have something else — a movie channel. I found myself rewriting my budget to make room for a premium service. But it still wasn't enough.

There were shows being piped into my home by the powerful mainline that I couldn't watch. Try as I might, I couldn't stay awake 24 hours a day, and I had to keep going to work to keep paying the mainline's tribute. And even when I was watching, there were other programs on the other stations that I couldn't see.

With my hands shaking and my budget careening into red ink, I stumbled into the local department store and purchased a VCR.

At first it was wonderful. Not only could this wonderful device help me keep abreast of the mainline, it relieved me of responsibility. When there was a show I felt I should be watching, I could turn on the machine and forget it.

I think that's how I discovered my predicament. You see, I was recording baskets of tapes — and not watching them. I was puzzled.

What could this mean? I sat down one evening and attempted to analyze the problem. I flipped through channel after channel and discovered that there was NOTHING ON TV!

Oh yes, there were pictures and sound that went along with them. They were playing the usual Satanic messages, backward and forward, on MTV. Jim and Tammy Bakker were promising to save my soul if I would send them $15 a month (a bargain if you ask me), but if you really looked and attempted to think about what you were looking at — it suddenly became very clear that there was nothing there. It was no more than white noise for the eyes.

I turned off the television. It changed my life. I discovered I could read a book, wash my hair, write a book, wash the dishes, put a book back on the bookshelf, wash the kitchen floor. I could read my hair and wash a book — all in the time I used to spend watching television.

Oh, I still watch some television. I think it's important for some of us with rational minds to monitor what is happening on the mainline. Suffice it to say that I find it significant that the Russians took over the United States for 14½ hours last week. Verry interesting.

Valentine rescued

Someone spotted it Feb. 21. There it was, as plain as day — a dayglow life preserver on the lake at the foot of Provincial in the Farms.

Police were notified. They could see it too. Better call the Coast Guard.

When the Coast Guard arrived, they said it was too tricky to get a helicopter out there, so they attacked the problem from shore.

Two men donned their cold-protecting wet suits, and carried out their lifesaving equipment onto the ice — lifelines to shore in tow.

Closer inspection, however, made a few people see red. It was a red balloon, partially hidden by the ice with this message: "Happy Valentine's Day."

Well, at least it was a pleasant message.

Surrogate video

Two Grosse Pointers have participated in the creation of a video presentation, which will help couples through the many steps of surrogate parenting.

Mike Mullinger of the Park plays the biological father and CKLW's Bob Charlton of the Woods does the voice-over narration of the dramatization.

Noel Keane, a Dearborn attorney, is known for his expertise in the area of surrogate motherhood. Keane will distribute the tapes free of charge to his clients and others interested in surrogate parenting.

The dramatization is a typical story of the not-so-typical way of having children. A couple is followed through the entire surrogate process to a happy conclusion.

Mullinger has been seen on the stage with the Grosse Pointe Theater, the Michigan Opera Theater and on television.

All that brass

Some 240 guests attended the retirement party held for recently retired Grosse Pointe Shores Director of Public Safety Joseph Vitale Feb. 18 at the Grosse Pointe Yacht Club.

Yacht club Commodore Robert Yuhn joked that the compasses weren't working properly in the building, "because of all the brass that's here."

Among the guests were, representatives of the police departments of the five Grosse Pointes, St. Clair Shores, Harper Woods, Detroit and various law enforcement associations.

Vitale was the recipient of a Model 77 Ruger hunting rifle.

"The awards and letters portion of the evening took about an hour," said new Shores Director of Public Safety Daniel Healy.

Committee members for the evening's function included City Manager Michael Kenyon and Shores employees Jan Pretty and Angela Regelbrugge.

Village President Gerald Schroeder honored Vitale with the following:

"What a person does for himself, dies with him — what a person does for his community lives forever."

That's a whole lot of paper!

Ten Cub Scouts from Kerby School's Den Six surprised everyone by collecting 2,533 pounds of newspaper — over 2,000 pounds more than expected.

To fulfill a badge requirement on protecting the environment, the scouts were given two weeks to save their families' newspapers. Normally, this amounts to about two paper sacks of newspapers per household — or about 25 pounds.

When collection day came, however, the paper weighed in at 10 times more than expected.

In working toward the badge, the boys learned about waste handling in the Grosse Pointe communities and about the benefits of recycling.

They took the newspapers to St. Matthew's Church at 6021 Whittier at the corner of Harper Avenue in Detroit. St. Matthew's newspaper collection bin generates eight to 10 tons a week and brings in revenues of roughly $6,000 each year.

Bob Sherry, director of the program, expressed his appreciation, saying that this is one instance where "you truly get something for nothing." Proceeds from newspapers that would otherwise be thrown away are making it possible for the church to offer youth activities and sports programs.

The drop-off bin is open 24 hours every day in the parking lot across from the church.

JUST WHO WAS IT . . .

that had the greatest influence on your life? When asked the above question, more than half of all adult Americans will name an elementary school teacher. Two out of ten will say a coach. Others name a parent, relative, youth group leader, peer or clergy. Rarely is a secondary or college teacher mentioned.

Think about it! In a year's time an elementary teacher can spend up to 1,200 hours with a child. A high school teacher spends 180 forty minute periods a year with students. This is a tenth the time a child spends with an elementary school teacher. A college professor typically meets with a student for 12 to 14 weeks for 3 hours per week or less than 5% of the contact time of a grade 1 teacher. Only a parent has more potential contact time with a child. It's an old cliché that high school teachers teach subjects like science, algebra or English literature, while elementary school teachers teach children. Why then would parents wait until the high school or college years to find a "good school" for their children?

For the past two decades, we at The Grosse Pointe Academy have been specializing in high quality education for elementary school children. We have 380 students in grades pre-kindergarten (age 2½) through grade 8. We are small and intend to stay small, deliberately, so that we can continue to offer the excellent programs for which we are known. Our student/teacher ratio is 10:1. Our teachers have the teaching environment and the teaching materials needed to enable young children to get a firm foundation in the 3 'R's. Our Library contains over 8,000 books, or more than 40 books per child, and we add books to the Library every month. We have one of the best elementary school environments to be found.

Why not visit us to see for yourself? Enable your son or daughter to get the very best start possible.

Daycare

they're thinking nursing home. Society isn't trained to think of this as one of the options."

According to a national health survey, 11.3 percent of the population older than 65 and who are not institutionalized are potential candidates for senior day care.

That translates into about 3,000 people on Detroit's east side, according to Hill. But there are only two centers, with a combined capacity of 49. Neither is at capacity — testimony to the fact that the service isn't yet well known.

"Cost is probably a factor," Hill said. Most adult day care costs about $25 for a full day, with additional services like vans and beauticians extra. Calvary received a grant three weeks ago from the Detroit Area Agency on Aging that will make possible a sliding fee scale. The grant was too recent for the center to know if it will increase enrollment.

The centers provide more than just a place to stay, although they are that, too. They provide opportunities for socialization to clients who are lonely or depressed or suffering from the first stages of Alzheimer's disease.

"We focus on people with cognitive impairment," explained Cottage-Blemond day care Director Cristie Hicks, an occupational therapist. "Other populations that would come would be stroke victims, people with Parkinson's and hospice patients."

Conversation is a staple at the center. Volunteers encourage group reminiscing every day. Hicks conducts an assessment of skills, abilities, background and interests — information which is used in chatting with the clients.

Their skills are put to use as well. Two weeks ago the men at Cottage-Blemond built shelves to store center materials. Once a week, the clients cook their own lunch, everybody helping to crack eggs, chop vegetables, brown meat.

"Last week they baked a cherry pie for Washington's Birthday,"

Susan Noethen and center Director Cristie Hicks look over progress charts.

Hicks said. "They needed a little help with the measuring, but they did it."

Cooking is a good sensory experience for older folks whose senses have dulled. A favorite project is popping corn — and before they eat it, they smell it and talk about it.

"It doesn't matter if everybody says the same thing (in describing the popcorn) — they're getting a good whiff of it," Hicks said. "It enhances what perception is there."

Some of the "early birds" with working families arrive at 7:30, make breakfast and read the morning paper until the rest of the clients get there.

"(This program) provides a quality of life for the elderly and respite for their families," Hicks said. "These people may have lost their home, their family, their ability to cook, clean house, earn a living. We kind of replace that." With a staff ratio of one to six, it is fairly easy for the center to carry out complicated activities. Outings are planned for those who want to participate.

"The men have been asking to go to Belle Isle," Hicks said. Other popular destinations are the Detroit Historical Museum, where the folks looked at old cars and toys from their youth, and the Edsel & Eleanor Ford House. Next month, the group will go to the circus.

Even if her mother-in-law never improves enough to live on her own again, the day care center is still beneficial, Susan Noethen says. "I have a pre-schooler and we're still quite active. Some of my friends are surprised (we're keeping her with us). They think I'm Joan of Arc."

"But I'm not. We just take one day at a time."

NOTICE OF HEARING ZONING BOARD OF APPEALS

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN THAT the Zoning Board of Appeals will meet in City Hall at 90 Kerby Road, Grosse Pointe Farms, Michigan on MONDAY, MARCH 2, 1987 at 7:30 p.m.

to hear the following:

1. The appeal of Richard E. Russell of Russell Homes, Inc., owner of the premises located at Lots 7 & 8 of the proposed subdivision development of 207 Lake Shore, from the provision of the Zoning Ordinance that parcels located in an RIAA District have frontage on a street equal to the minimum lot width of 100 feet. Lots 7 & 8 are located on a cul-de-sac and have lot widths of 40 feet and 60 feet respectively, thereby requiring a variance from Sections 1513 and 1300 of the City's Zoning Ordinance.

2. The appeal of Mr. Dennis Egan, owner of the premises known as 160 Lakeview (previously incorrectly published as 194 Lakeview), who has applied to the City of Grosse Pointe Farms for a lot split. Section 1516 of the Zoning Ordinance provides that a lot may not be divided unless the Director of Public Service finds that the remaining lot, as well as the parcel created meet applicable regulations of the Zoning Ordinance. The Director of Public Service has determined that the proposed lot split would create a non conforming condition with respect to the new lot, for which Mr. Egan is seeking a variance from the requirement that parcels located in an RI District have frontage on a street equal to minimum to 50 feet in width, as the frontage on Lakeview of the new lot is 33.9 feet in width.

The Hearings will be public. Interested property-owners or residents are invited to attend.

Sunday night is for teens at Farms nightspot

By Margie Reins Smith
Staff Writer

Last Sunday at 9:30 p.m.: Mack Avenue between Moross and Moran was semi-deserted. On the last few hours of the weekend, most Grosse Pointers were at home — watching the final episode of "Amerika," dozing in front of the fireplace, or preparing for an upcoming week of work or school. Mack Avenue's traffic was sparse. There were dozens of empty parking spaces. A couple of joggers. A lone dog-walker.

Cracker Jax, 18696 Mack Avenue, with its pink neon lighted tower, was the brightest spot on both sides of the street. Behind its moist and foggy 300-square-foot streetside window, the shadows of youthful dancers bounced and gyrated silently to the beat.

For $5 and the flash of a school I.D. card, 180 Grosse Pointe teenagers gathered to socialize, dance, drink soft drinks and eat at the local nightclub in Grosse Pointe Farms.

"Most of the kids don't eat. They have a coke and talk and dance," said Jenny Whiteside, a 10th-grader at Grosse Pointe South. "It's lively. Not rowdy. I've been there twice. Each time I enjoyed myself a lot."

"We sit and drink pop and dance," said Stephanie Szmrecsanyi, a 10th-grader at South. "I've gone all four times. I've met lots of kids from all over."

Cracker Jax owner Mark DiMaso said that he has opened the club to teenagers every Sunday evening since Feb. 1. He removes and covers all the liquor, stocks up on soft drinks and French fries, hires a disc jockey and eight chaperones. Adults are not welcome, he said. Parents may stop in for a minute or call, but admission is restricted to ages 13-19.

"Parents are probably glad for a few hours of peace and quiet at home," DiMaso said. "This gets the kids off the streets. It's a good environment. It's chaperoned. We have five adults walking around, one in each john and one at the door."

Cracker Jax is an adult nightclub Tuesdays through Saturdays. The bubble-gum pink building with its neon circular tower opened June 4, after a $250,000 overhaul. (It was formerly Shield's Pizza and Piper's Alley.) The newly decorated interior is art deco — all pink and burgundy

House ransacked

A home on Notre Dame in the City was broken into and ransacked sometime during the day Feb. 17, according to police.

Upon returning home, the resident noticed lights on and called police.

The rear door was found unlocked and the entire house ransacked. Nothing appeared to be missing.

City police are investigating.

Locksmith robbed

Village Locksmith Inc. on Mack Avenue was burglarized sometime overnight Feb. 21-22.

Farms police said a safe was removed and cash was taken from inside the shop. Value of the loss was put at about $200.

Police said the rear door of the business was left wide open by the thief.

Officials noted there is a suspect.

and gray — lots of mirrors and neon — high-topped tables and stools. The focal point of the club is a raised wooden dance floor which is surrounded on two sides by huge windows. Streetside passersby can watch the dancers and the activity within.

Josie MacLean, mother of children at Maire, Pierce and Grosse Pointe South, and an active member of Pierce and South parent support groups, said she heard about a similar situation — a successful nightclub for teens — in Lake Forest, Ill.

"We liked the idea of an alternative activity for teenagers that didn't involve drinking, or drugs or driving — someplace nearby for those who like to dance. Mr. DiMaso took it from there," she said. "He spent $500 to print some clever posters advertising the dances."

DiMaso's posters refer to Cracker Jax' Sunday evening gatherings as "Four-hour detention." The posters say, "Attendance mandatory. Minimum 50 laps around the dance floor — followed by dining at Cracker Jax cafeteria." The advertisement also warns, "Any alcoholic beverages on premises constitutes suspension."

According to DiMaso, on Feb. 1, 40 kids showed up. On Feb. 8, 80 came. The third Sunday, Feb. 15, was the day before a school holiday, and 452 teenagers lined up at the door. They had to be admitted on a rotating basis, since Cracker Jax' legal capacity is 306. Last Sunday, Feb. 22, 180 teens attended the event.

Dee Szmrecsanyi, of the South parent support group, said, "The kids have been very positive about this. It's nice to see kids having a good time without drinking. The kids say they need something like this on Fridays and Saturdays too."

DiMaso said he'll continue to hold the dances as long as the kids continue to behave. "It costs me $800 just to open the place," he said. "The evening is profitable, but not by a lot."

"Parents must think quite a bit of Cracker Jax," he said, "to let their kids come out and have a good time. They drive their kids over here and drop them off, so we must have their consent."

The only problem, according to 10th-grader Jenny Whiteside, "Seventh- and eighth-graders are allowed in. They get pushed around. They should have to wait until they're older."

St. Paul preschool to have open house

St. Paul Lutheran Co-op Preschool will have an open house Saturday, Feb. 28, from 10 to 11:30 a.m.

The school offers classes for 3-year-olds, 4-year-olds and young 5s.

For more information, call 885-6488.

$500 cassette stolen

A driver's side window was smashed and a radio/cassette player was stolen from a car parked at a Lakeshore Road residence, some time between 7:30 and 11 p.m. Feb. 10 in the Farms, police said.

Total value of the damage and the loss was set at $500.

Lillian Coelius

After 63 years of living in the Park, she celebrates her 96th birthday with family

By Elsa Frohman
Feature Editor

More than 60 years ago, before Jane Fonda was born, before aerobics were in style, Lillian Coelius was attending an exercise class at Defer School. Coelius believes the fact that she always took out time for exercise may be one of the things that have kept her healthy for so long. She turned 96 the first week in February.

"Maybe it is because I've always kept busy," she said of her longevity. "I used to go to a gym class for ladies at Defer. We wore black bloomers and sailor tops." The class met every week until the current South High School building was built, when it was moved to the new location where the participants could take advantage of the swimming pool. "I think it did me a lot of good."

She moved into the Park with her young family in 1924. They built one of the first houses on their block of Bedford.

"We thought it would be a nice place for the children," she said. "There were a lot of open spaces. You could see all the way to Mack. The streets weren't paved. They built the other houses around us."

Today, her oldest daughter, Bernyce Rayment, lives with her. Coelius has been widowed for more than 20 years.

Rayment was 14 when the family moved to Grosse Pointe from the west side of Detroit. She remembers that transportation was more difficult then.

"We didn't have the Kercheval bus then," she said. "You had to walk to Jefferson to catch the Jefferson bus. They had double-decker buses then and there were the interurban street cars."

Gershwin concert

A Gershwin concert Sunday, March 1, at 3:30 p.m. at Orchestra Hall will benefit the Children's Center, Michigan's oldest provider of mental health and related services to children and their families.

Pianist Fedora Horowitz and the Lyric Chamber Ensemble will perform as well as singer Sheri Nichols and the Brazeal Dennard Chorale and others.

Tickets are $50 and include valet parking and a buffet supper on the luge. For reservations, call 831-5535.

The interurbans traveled from the metro-Detroit area to many outlying communities in the early part of the century. The Coelius family used to ride the cars to Lake Orion for picnics on the weekends.

"There were a lot of services then," Coelius said. "The Mills Bakery truck would stop here every day with fresh baked goods and there was a Switzers Creamery wagon. I used to take four quarts of milk for 18 cents a quart. There was a vegetable man with a horse and wagon, too."

Mail was delivered twice a day and there was a delivery truck from Hudson's department store that would deliver items the same day they were ordered.

"We were always within walking distance of the groceries and the butcher," Coelius said.

Her first refrigerator was a marvel.

"The motor was in the basement," she said. "Then there was an ice box in the kitchen that was connected to it. That was an electric refrigerator in those days. You didn't have these nice metal boxes."

During World War II she and several of her neighbors cooperated on a Victory Garden on a lot near their homes.

"We took up a big piece of ground behind four families," she said. "That was a lot of fun and it helped out on food. It got the neighbors out. It was a friendly, personal time."

Coelius has four children, 10 grandchildren and 18 great-grandchildren. She drove a car until she was 92. "Then I just said, I'm not taking any more chances," she said.

She says that a calm disposition has helped her hold on to her health.

"I try not to worry too much," she said. "I just have to be happy inside. I like things to go smooth."

Her birthdays have been special highlights. Last year, when she turned 95, Mayor Palmer Heenan of the Park declared the day "Lillian Coelius Day." He came to her house to wish her a happy day.

"The excitement was almost too much," she said.

This year's birthday was a little more low-key, with a family dinner party.

"And I like music," she said.

A Symphony of Names

The names of Oriental rugs are often difficult to pronounce and confusing to the beginning rug buyer. They conjure up images of faraway lands and exotic locales such as Sarouk, Kashan, Kerman, Bokhara, Peking, Samarkand, Heriz and Tabriz. The names originally referred to the cities, villages or nomadic tribe which specialized in a specific weave or pattern. But using the cities to identify specific rug styles is no longer a rule of thumb. Many patterns are now woven in cities and countries other than their origin. The names are now more useful in describing a pattern than in discovering the area where a rug was made.

Firm to rehabilitate convent for senior citizen apartments

By Nancy Parmenter
Staff Writer

The pieces are falling into place for the conversion of the old St. Ambrose convent on Alter Road into a senior citizens' apartment building. Bank approvals of financing, expected within weeks, are all that stand between senior citizens and the first local congregate living home.

American House-St. Ambrose is not a nursing home and not exactly an apartment building. Residents will live in one-bedroom or studio apartments with kitchenette and take two meals a day in the central dining room.

"It's a complete small niche that takes care of a segment of society that needs it," said developer Frank Piku of Grosse Pointe Shores.

Piku Management — and specifically Piku's son, Chrystem — has been looking for an appropriate piece of property since July. Hand-in-hand with American House Retirement Residences, which has experience with 10 similar centers, Chrystem Piku settled on the convent.

The Pikus, who specialize in east side developments not necessarily related to senior citizens — they just finished a development of luxury condos with boatwells on the Clinton River and are working on luxury townhouses in St. Clair Shores — are handling the details of the project for American House, which will operate the residence.

The Pikus are the real estate partner, former Grosse Pointer Robert Gillette of American House is the operating partner, and architect/gerontologist Nathan Levine is the architectural partner, according to Gillette.

"(Levine) is one of only seven people in the country who is not only an architect, but has a Ph.D. in gerontology," Gillette said. "We're not just passive investors — we're people who make this our profession."

Gillette said that the effort to keep the conversion an all-Grosse Pointe project extends even to the bank. The investors have applied to Colonial Federal Savings and Loan, which holds a mortgage on another Gillette property.

"We have a nice track record with them," Gillette said.

This is only the first of many projects that the investors plan to complete together. "We're now working with city administrators all over the east side, because there's a need in all those cities," Piku said.

The Pikus and Gillette envision older people within a five-mile radius of the site being attracted to live there.

"The key is the security and companionship," Gillette said. "It's hard for senior citizens to make new friends, and all their old friends are dead. Here they can come together and form a new nucleus... The beauty of this is the ability of the son and daughter to get in and visit on a routine basis."

"I think it's especially nice being located so close to Jefferson," Chrystem Piku said. "People drive by on their way to work downtown — now they can stop for a half-hour and visit Mom."

Grosse Pointe Park City Manager John Crawford described himself as "excited" about the project. He said it is likely to appeal to local residents.

"There's a need here," he said. "With this place right on the border, it should attract some Grosse Pointers. It's going to be very well done."

Crawford said one of the best aspects of the project is that it makes use of a sound older building. "Church and school buildings used to be seen as one-use structures," he said. "Any time you find a new use to revitalize and restructure an old building (that's good). I'm really pleased it's not the wrecking ball."

There is a practical reason for using the convent. In an established community like Grosse Pointe, there is very little vacant property to develop. In addition, most property is zoned residential. So American House has made a practice of rehabilitating elementary schools or other large existing buildings with appropriate zoning.

"I'd buy any Grosse Pointe elementary school in a minute," Chrystem Piku said. "We've looked at some big old houses, too, but they present more of a zoning problem."

The group plans to leave the exterior of the convent intact, with the addition of an elevator tower at the Alter Road entrance. Even the chapel windows on the side wall will remain, to end up in some lucky person's apartment.

Father-and-son development team Frank Piku of Grosse Pointe Shores, right, and Chrystem Piku of the Farms look over architectural drawings for the St. Ambrose convent project.

A vacant lot next to the convent will allow space for an addition to create a U-shaped building, leaving the rear courtyard as it is.

Inside, the present division of the floors into dormitory rooms with communal bathrooms will be eliminated. The entire interior will be gutted and refitted with 43 units — one third efficiencies, two-thirds with one bedroom. All will have a kitchenette, but two meals a day will be served in the central dining room.

It's an expensive way to construct senior housing. "Outfitting the kitchen will cost $70,000 alone," said Frank Piku.

The units and the people they attract are expected to be carbon copies of the units and residents in 10 other American House projects around the metropolitan area. Gillette says residents are mostly in their late 70s and early 80s and mostly female.

"There are some couples," he said, "but one of the hard facts of life is that one spouse dies earlier."

They will also have to be people who can afford the approximately $1,200 a month rent. The project is entirely privately financed and has no sliding fee scale or Social Security reimbursement. The rent includes meals and 24-hour security.

Piku says the project will provide some employment in the area, perhaps during construction and certainly afterward, when the center will hire maintenance and security people and kitchen help.

"We hope we'll help bring that area back up," said Frank Piku, who confessed that he had once let a project in that area go by because of concerns about the neighborhood — and has been kicking himself ever since while the person who did develop it has made money.

Construction is scheduled to start this spring, with occupancy by early 1988.

Correction

The tuition rates for the Grosse Pointe Cooperative Nursery School quoted in last week's story should have been $250 a year for 3-year-olds, who attend twice a week, and $350 a year for 4-year-olds, who go three times a week. The story incorrectly listed the above figures for a semester, which would be half the amount.

Good neighbors

The retrofitting of the St. Ambrose convent is a popular idea in the parish and its neighborhood.

"We're happy to have them as members of the neighborhood," said the Rev. Timothy Pelc. "It's a good project for all of us." Pelc said the St. Ambrose parish council was unanimous in approving the sale of the convent and that the "very active" Alter Road block club favors it as well.

Selling any archdiocesan property means the proposed use has to fit into the church's scheme. The appropriateness of the use, the fair market value and the relationship of the parcel to other church properties are taken into consideration before the sale is approved, Pelc said.

The convent stands in the middle of the St. Ambrose complex. Across Alter is the elementary school, across Hampton is the empty lot where the high school once stood.

"It's a mutually beneficial arrangement between the parish and American House," said developer Chrystem Piku. Residents of the center may avail themselves of parish activities, while the parish is able to bank the sale price for some future parish project.

Frank Piku added, "We feel like we're in a moral partnership with the church."

The building at the corner of Mack and Nottingham was sandblasted as part of the restoration that was done both inside and out. The Indiana limestone and brick was restored so that it is similar to its 1929 appearance.

Building's history dates back to 1929

Longtime residents may remember the building on the corner of Mack and Nottingham as the neighborhood pharmacy with a soda fountain that was a meeting place for kids. Doctors' offices occupied the upper two floors. That was 1929.

After the Depression, the lower floor was used by a dry cleaning company and the upper floors become offices, according to the building's current owner, Richard Trottier, who has researched the structure's history.

Then during World War II, the building was renamed the Engineering Building because much of the engineering for the U.S. Army Tank Automotive Command was done there. The building has subsequently been home to an architect and an accountant.

Now named the Professional Building, Trottier has spent four months and more than $50,000 restoring the exterior and interior of the building.

With sandblasting, "we have restored the Indiana limestone and brick so that the exterior is similar to its original appearance," Trottier said. "We have removed 50 years of modernization in the interior so the simple beauty and integrity of the original structure is preserved."

Trottier, who is a manufacturer's representative for medical supplies, will occupy the lower floor and rent the upper floors.

Mack Avenue group to meet

The Grosse Pointe Business & Professional Association of Mack Avenue will hold its annual town hall meeting and cocktail party at the Grosse Pointe Hunt Club Tennis House on Tuesday, March 10, at 6:30 p.m.

Invitations have been sent to the businesses and professional offices along Mack Avenue to come and mingle with other Mack people and enjoy informal discussions about common concerns. Hot and cold hors d'oeuvres will be served and a cash bar will be available.

Association committee chairman and local government officials will be present to talk about parking on Mack Avenue, group health insurance, the association's member discount plan, new business ventures, grants for facade improvements and the association's annual fireworks celebration.

Bob Mowbray, of Village Lock & Contractors, is chairman of the meeting for which there is an $8 fee. Reservations are necessary. For further information, call Lee Meyer at 881-9007.

All about wine

An introduction to the world of wines is set for Thursdays, March 5, 12, 19 and 26, 7:30 to 9:30 p.m. at the War Memorial.

Anthony and Bonnie Delsener, proprietors of Vintners Ltd., will guide participants through the various regions, grapes and methods of production during this four-part class. There will be slides and maps of the regions as well as a sampling of four to five wines each evening.

The March 5 session, "France's Hidden Gems," will uncover the wines of the Alsace, the Loire and the Cote du Rhone. Other topics are "California Gold," "Entertaining with Wine" and "Discover Michigan Wines."

The series is $48; single lecture, $15. For further information, call 841-7511.

There are 14 offices on the second and third floors. He invites the public to an open house Sunday, March 1, from 1 to 4 p.m. and those residents who have fond memories of sipping a chocolate soda at the long counter are especially welcome to come and reminisce.

School system honored for budget preparation

The Government Finance Officers Association of the United States and Canada has honored the Grosse Pointe Public School System with its Award for Distinguished Budget Presentation. The award is the highest form of recognition in governmental budgeting.

Under the direction of Christian Fenton, director of business affairs, the budget is a year-long project involving the school board, community and staff. The formal process of budget development begins in September and is completed with the board's approval in June.

The award represents a significant accomplishment by the Grosse Pointe schools. To receive the award, the school system submitted its budget document for review by a panel of independent experts. Using extensive criteria, the reviewers evaluated the effectiveness of the budget as a policy document, an operations guide, a financial plan and a communications device. To receive the award, the budget document was rated in all four categories.

Grosse Pointe Council of Square Dance Clubs:

A small, active group enjoys round dancing

By Margie Reins Smith
Staff Writer"Rock-recover-change-two-apart-recover-change..."Fourteen couples are making perfect sense out of these cues and the accompanying music on a Thursday evening in the gym-nasium of Richard Elementary School.They're round dancers. (The term refers to the formation of dancers on the floor, not the shape of individuals.) Bouffant petticoats and colorful skirts swirl in unison as the circle of dancers follow Alice Hill's amplified cues.Between dances, participants relax briefly on bright blue folding chairs that have been placed against the walls of the gym.
Some socialize, some practice a step or two or nibble on a small piece of hard candy. But not for long.It's clear that this congenial group is here to DANCE.At the microphone, Alice Hill alternately cues the steps, teaches some step sequences,
then demonstrates the most complicated steps on the floor with her partner, husband Joe Hill."Round dancing is ballroom dancing," said Ursula Scharoll, the group's coordinator. "It's done with a partner, to cues. It's choreographed. It's different than square dancing, which is done in a square formation where each person also dances with others in the square."The Grosse Pointe Council of Square Dance Clubs and Grosse Pointe Continuing Education co-sponsor classes for square dancing as well as beginning, intermediate and advanced round dancing. The classes have been offered continuously since 1952.Most of the round dancers are dressed in traditional squaredance attire — lots of fluffy petticoats, colorful ruffled and tiered skirt and soft-soled shoes for women — western-cut shirts and string ties for men.Most are also proficient square dancers. Many will gather again on Tuesday at Monteith School for an evening of square and round dancing.The popularity of square dancing has held steady, generally speaking, for the last 35 years, according to Hill. "We have our cycles. There was an increase in the '70s. Right now, round dancing is becoming more popular."Round dancing is actually a specialized type of square dancing. It's part of the square dancing program, according to Hill.Rounds and Squares are active in a variety of dance-related activities. Scharoll said there are 35 clubs and five teaching couples in the metropolitan Detroit area and 28 teaching couples in the state. A monthly magazine, Michigan Square Dance News, is published in Dearborn, she said, and lists dances, classes and activities for each month and the names of the callers (for square dances) and cuers (for round dances.) Sometimes dancing is combined with other activities, such as camping trips, cruises — even a vacation trip to Hawaii.Alice and Joe Hill are involved with dancing five days a week.
They teach round dancing on Mondays and Thursdays. They cue classes on Tuesday. They cue dances on Fridays and Saturdays.
State and national conventions

Barbara and Jim Elliott are part of a group of round dancers. Round dancing is choreographed ballroom dancing. Round dancers often wear colorful western-style clothes — ruffled skirts, full petticoats, western shirts and ties.

will attract some local dancers — to Ontario in April — to Lansing for the Michigan Performing Arts Festival in June — to Houston in June. "In 1982, the national convention was held at Detroit's Cobo Hall and attracted over 20,000 people," Scharoll said.
"Michigan always is among the top five for attendance at national conventions," she said.On Thursday, most couples brought their own tape recorders, which they lined up beside Hill's microphone. They recorded her cues and music and they'll practice at home during the week. All Michigan clubs teach the same dances — called rounds of themonth, said Hill, so that Michigan dancers are learning the same dances at the same time and can easily travel to other clubs."Often you'll find a cuer or a caller you like, then follow him to other dances and classes," said one dancer."There's no prizes or competition, just fun," said another.Nobody wastes much time between dances. "When you go to a square dance, you're going to go home sober," said Joe Hill.For more information about the Dance Clubs, call 521-1384.

The folklore of March 1

Do you say "Rabbit! Rabbit!
Rabbit!" when you hop out of bed? Do you wash your hair, put leeks in your hat, wear a red and white thread around your finger, and dunk doughnuts with your friends?If so, you are properly observing the first of March.These tips come from Professor James T. Callow, director of the Computerized Folklore Archive at the University of Detroit. With the help of his students he has fed thousands of superstitions and customs into a data bank which he uses to alert people of upcoming days rich in folklore.You can say "Rabbit! Rabbit!
Rabbit!" on the first day of any month, especially if the month contains the letter "r." But you should do it before eating and before saying anything else. A North Carolina informant advises getting out at the foot of the bed rather than at the side, while an informant from Utah recommends jumping up and down on the bed. Other variations come from such places as England, where people prefer to yell or mutter "White Rabbit!" three times. Whatever the ritual, all agree that it produces good luck
— for the rest of the day, the rest of the month, or the rest of the year. Folks in New Mexico think it also brings you money.Italians advise washing your hair on March 1 so you won't go bald, and other people recommend shampooing with the water from March snow as a way to have beautiful hair. Poles and Russians claim you can get rid of freckles by washing in dew on the first of March.If you're Welsh, you should wear leeks in your hat. Even if you're not Welsh, be sure to offer your best wishes to a Welshman, since March 1 is the feast of St.
David, the national saint of Wales.If you're German this is the day to dunk doughnuts with your cronies. By doing this you'll not only promote friendship but will also guarantee good luck throughout the year.Canadian government makes grants to WSU facultyThe Canadian Government has awarded $10,800 in grants to Wayne State University faculty members through the Canadian Embassy in Washington, D.C., under the embassy's faculty enrichment program.Funding will be used to develop three new courses at Wayne State with substantial Canadian content. History Professor Melvin Snell of Royal Oak will use his grant to develop a course in "Canadian-American Relations."Bryan Thompson of Grosse Pointe Park, associate professor of geography, will create a course in "Regional Geography of Canada." Henry Pratt, director of WSU's Canadian studies, Frank R. Place, associate professor of history, and Janet Langlois, associate professor of English, will jointly develop a course titled "Introduction to Canadian Studies."Pratt said he hopes that students will eventually be able to minor in Canadian studies.

Memorial looks at American Indian culture

Third of three ecumenical ministers speaks of the problem of educating American Indian clergymen

Dr. Cecil Corbett is the third of three Indian ministers to spend time at Grosse Pointe Memorial Church as part of the 17-year-old ecumenical minister program. Corbett is the president of the Charles Cook Theological School in Tempe, Ariz.

By Elsa Frohman
Feature Editor

Cecil Corbett was an adult before he learned his Indian name which translates into English as Speaking Eagle. It was given at birth but seems quite appropriate for the president of the only mainline Protestant theological school exclusively for Indians in the world.

Corbett is a member of the Nez Perce tribe centered in north central Idaho and eastern Oregon. If Corbett doesn't sound like a particularly Indian name, blame the early Christian missionaries.

"When they converted the Indians," Corbett said, "they tended to give them the names of their friends in Scarsdale, N.Y."

Corbett's mission at the Charles Cook Theological School in Tempe, Ariz., is to increase the number of ordained American Indian clergy.

"A study we did in 1975 showed that within the seven mainline denominations, in 499 Native American churches, there were only 68 ordained Native American ministers," Corbett said. "There were only two Indian professors at 201 seminaries, and only four Indian students among 28,000 students studying at seminaries. Native American ministers had an average age of 52. If something were not done soon, there would be no leadership."

The Charles Cook School addresses the shortage of ordained Indian leaders indirectly. The school was founded in 1911 by the Presbyterian church. It trains Indian lay leaders, but some students elect to go on to a seminary after graduation.

Corbett attributes the shortage of Indian clergy to the attitudes found in most seminaries.

"We didn't find any seminary that was preparing students for the unique cultural ministry of the Native American community," Corbett said. "For overseas missions, they were aware of the need for orientation in the language, history and governance within other nations. But this was not being done for the Native American community."

During his week in residence at Grosse Pointe Memorial Church, Corbett said he hopes to bring Grosse Pointe parishioners an appreciation for the differences that exist in American Indian culture.

"The Indian people have always felt they have a responsibility as stewards of the gift of creation," Corbett said. "There is no concept of individual ownership. We are all responsible to the creator. There is less emphasis on materialism and more on kinship within the tribe and sharing."

For several hundred years, the story of the meeting of the Indian and white cultures has been the story of the whites attempting to eradicate Indian culture and substitute European values.

"The early missionaries didn't take time to study the culture (of the Indians)," Corbett said. "To them, it was just pagan. But when they took it away, they found it was the glue or cement, that kept our culture together."

Until very recently, it was the policy of most mainline Christian missionaries, as well as the government, to discourage the practice of any aspect of Indian culture. Speaking any of the Indian languages was prohibited. Indian children were sent to special schools that focused on assimilation.

These policies have been devastating to Indian communities.

"They try to get into the race for personal gain and alienate themselves from their own cultural system," Corbett said.

In the Sioux language, the word for white man, wasicu, can be literally translated as "one who gathers the choice," or "grasping," Corbett said. The meeting between the Indian culture based on sharing and generosity, and the European culture, based on personal gain and achievement, was not a gentle process.

"What we are beginning to do now is look at the values inherent in Indian culture," Corbett said. "We want to see what can be enhanced in the meeting of two cultures. An American Beauty rose can't exist without being grafted to a wild rose. We want to see what can be grafted in terms of our Christianity."

Maintaining an Indian culture in the midst of America is difficult even if children are allowed to speak their own language and study their own tribal customs. The tribes as government units face difficult questions about their resources in coming years.

"Living in harmony with nature and not exploiting it presents problems," Corbett said. "Until recent years, the tribes were not permitted to manage their own resources. Seventy percent of the coal in the United States is on Indian reservations. There were deals under the table with mining concerns (before the tribes were given control). It's too early to see if the same mistakes are going to be made. Whenever you talk about land to an Indian, you are talking about a theological question. The land, its gifts and its bounty are to be used by all the people."

Corbett said he believed that Indian culture may have messages for urban Americans.

"I hope it (his engagement at Memorial Church) will be an exchange of ideas," he said. "We've only been re-exploring Indian culture since 1972. We're finding parallels with the scriptures that industrial society has departed from somewhat."

"The philosophy of the industrial revolution has been exploitation," he said. "John Locke was critical of the Indians, saying they had so much land, but lived no better than a day laborer in England. He thought we should exploit our resources as if they would never run out."

The American Indians, even while clinging to a simpler existence, have suffered from the white man's exploitation of the mineral resources of the reser-

Spring Feast

Hospice Foundation benefit features wild game, wildlife art

The second annual Hospice Foundation benefit Wild Game Dinner and Wildlife Art Show and Auction, this year called a "Spring Feast," will be held on Thursday, March 19, with proceeds benefitting Hospice of Southeastern Michigan's east-side programs of patient care. Chairpersons for the event are Mr. Mrs. John F. Staub, of Grosse Pointe, and Dr. and Mrs. Harry Spector of Farmington Hills.

The Hospice Foundation is a non-profit organization founded in 1984 to raise the additional funds necessary to support Hospice of Southeastern Michigan's programs of care for terminally ill patients and their families.

Hospice of Southeastern Michigan is recognized as one of the top five hospice programs in the U.S. Since its founding in 1980, it has influenced the standards and methods of hospice care and training nationwide. It has since been designated as one of only four Training and Education Centers, worldwide, by the International Hospice Institute headquartered in Washington, D.C.

"During the past seven years, more than 4,000 terminally ill patients and their families have received that specialized care which addresses their physical, emotional, social and spiritual needs," says Ronald Streitz Jr., Hospice Foundation executive director.

"At Hospice, each patient and family is provided skilled medical care and counseling, together with warm, loving support on a highly personalized basis. There are no numbers in our program, only persons, for whom we strive to maximize the control, dignity and quality of life remaining. The values and skills provided by a program such as Hospice of Southeastern Michigan's is of great importance to the community," said Streitz.

Hospice emphasized caring for patients in their own homes whenever possible. But if patients experience pain or other symptoms which inhibit the quality of life at home until they die, patient can receive care in the "homelike" environment of Hospice of Southeastern Michigan's Southfield facility.

Maintenance of a very large home care program and inpatient support facility is costly. HSEM's plans to expand its program of care into the community further with satellite programs such as those at Bon Secours and Seaway hospitals will provide the community with even greater access to comprehensive hospice care. Some of this care will be covered by insurance but all other funding must come from the contributions of individuals, foundations and corporations.

That kind of support is precisely why Binson's Hospital Supplies, Inc., which hosts the dinner and art show auction each year, has become involved.

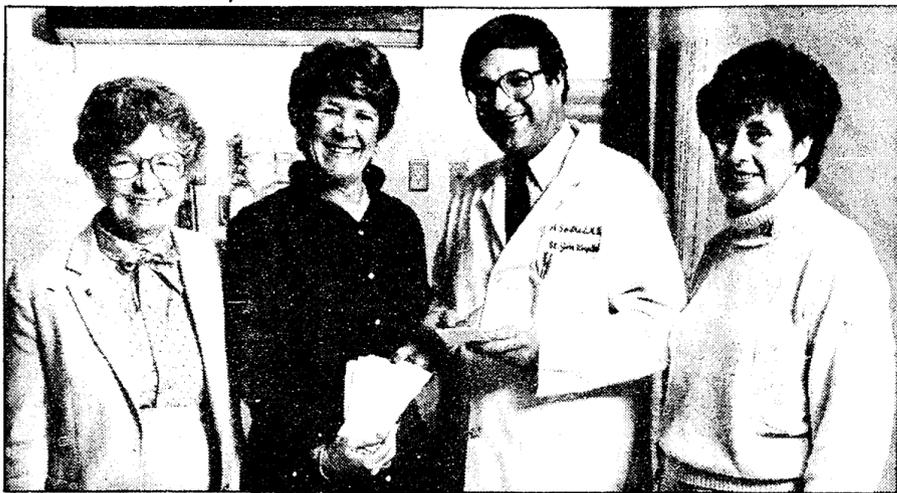

The event begins with an open bar at 6 p.m. Dinner will be served at 7:30 p.m., with the art show, auction, drawings and raffles running throughout the evening. Emceeding the evening will be Gary Cubberley, host of Channel 2's Sunday Magazine.

The evening will emphasize a spring theme this year, with a menu featuring pheasant, spring vegetables and light desserts.

It will be held at Austin Hall, 18000 E. Warren (east of Cadieux) in Detroit (attached to the Mallard Pub).

Tax deductible tickets are $50 per person and must be obtained in advance. Those wishing to attend the event or simply make a donation to Hospice should make checks payable to Hospice Foundation of Southeastern Michigan and send to Hospice Foundation, 22401 Foster Winter Drive, Southfield, Michigan 48075. Tickets and donations may also be charged by calling Pam DeSantis at 755-2300.

Fontbonne fashion show planned for April

Michigan blizzards are no obstacle to the St. John Hospital Fontbonne Auxiliary in making plans for its annual fashion show.

While the rest of us are still shoveling snow and bundling up to keep warm, the St. John Hospital Fontbonne Auxiliary members are thinking spring.

General chairman Sally Shield, of St. Clair Shores, and other auxiliary members are busy making plans for their upcoming annual fashion show and luncheon, "Spring Spectacular, Happy Birthday Michigan," scheduled for Thursday, April 30, at the Cobo Hall Riverview Ballroom. Cocktails will be served at 11 a.m. with lunch at noon followed by modeling of the latest fashions from Crowley's.

In addition to door prizes and favors for everyone, there will be a mini drawing for 10 prizes and then a maxi drawing for 14 outstanding prizes totaling $18,000.

Proceeds are going to buy equipment for the new St. John Hospital Emergency Center which serves 46,000 people annually.

Tickets to the fashion show and luncheon are $25 a person. Reservations can be made through the Fontbonne Auxiliary, at 343-3675. Free parking will be provided.

Tribute Fund celebrates 45th year of helping in need

The Tribute Fund Council of United Community Services recently marked the completion of its 45th year of service at an annual meeting held at the home of volunteer coordinator Mary Evelyn Self, of Grosse Pointe Park.

Founded in 1941, the Tribute Fund continues to provide emergency financial aid for residents of Macomb, Oakland and Wayne County. In 1986, $66,000 was granted to individuals through professionals who make requests for clients.

Elected as chair was Louise TeWalt of Grosse Pointe City.

Grosse Pointers elected to Council membership were Patricia Young and Martha Wylie. Edward Allardice, also of Grosse Pointe, was elected an associate member.

The Tribute Fund raises money for distribution through the solicitation of contributions from individuals and groups, memorial tributes, and the sale of notecards and cookbooks.

For more information about contributing to the Tribute Fund, call Tribute Fund Manager Virginia Peattie at 833-0622, Tuesday, Wednesday or Thursday.

FACTS YOU SHOULD KNOW ABOUT PLASTIC SURGERY.

FACT 1: FREE CONSULTATION WITH A SURGEON IS IMPORTANT.

When it comes to cosmetic surgery, we operate a little differently at Cottage Hospital. For example, our physicians offer a free consultation. A time to discuss your private questions in a private setting. Call 881-1800 for details.

FACT 2: EXPERIENCE AND TRAINING MAKE A DIFFERENCE.

In Michigan, any licensed physician can put "cosmetic surgeon" on a business card. But at Cottage Hospital, your doctor has completed extensive post-graduate training, including a residency in plastic surgery or otolaryngology (ENT). All cosmetic surgeons don't meet these strict standards.

But your surgeon at Cottage Hospital does.

FACT 3: COSMETIC SURGERY HAS MANY FACES.

That's why besides face lifts (rhytidectomy), we perform breast contouring, liposuction (removing fatty deposits) and more. Often without an overnight hospital stay.

FACT 4: A HOSPITAL ENVIRONMENT IS REASSURING.

Whether or not your surgery requires a hospital stay, it's important to know that you have the care of Cottage's expert staff, including highly trained nurses. If you do need an overnight stay, at Cottage you'll enjoy all the services you expect from a quality hospital...and more.

FACT 5: THE LUXURY OF A HOTEL IS YOURS.

At Cottage, you'll stay in a hospital that's actually hospitable. Our optional "Five Pointe Service" includes a special suite for cosmetic surgery patients and a VIP menu. You can even invite a guest for dinner.

Cosmetic surgery at Cottage Hospital. At a cost that compares favorably with other programs. Call us at 881-1800.

Come see how the beautiful people lived . . .

. . . and died

Ancient Near Eastern peoples lived in a rich and diverse culture. When they died, their bodies were kept in large vaulted tombs called hypogea, decorated on the outside with a carved sculpture of the deceased. Sometimes friends and family were pictured along with indications of occupation, wealth and lineage.

The Pastor's Corner

The heroic image

By the Rev. Greg Sammons
Christ Church - Grosse Pointe

A few years ago, a group of young people were asked to name their heroes. There was a limp silence, followed by a roster of soap opera stars, rock musicians and athletes. These heroes were distinguished in no way except by their fame and wealth. It was disturbing to think that this is the image of the heroic in the 1980s.

By contrast, a few days ago I was privileged to be with another group of young people — my high school youth group — and see another image of the heroic held up. Susan, a member of our parish, is about to graduate from a prestigious eastern university. She came home last weekend to share with my class what she is going to do next year.

Is she going to land a high-powered position on Wall Street? Perhaps she plans to marry the perfect young professional and begin the inevitable social ascent that accompanies privilege. No, not at all. She is going to Liberia. West Africa, for a year to work in a mission school. She will teach children who live on one meal a day, absorb the simple beauty of an impoverished land and share her faith in God.

Why would Susan give up creature comforts to live in a shack with a corrugated tin roof in the jungle? Because she has come to believe that learning to serve others is what defines life at its best. "Lately, it has grown increasingly clear that the Lord intends for me to become more than just another yuppie," she said.

It is this dimension of heroic service that our young people are ripe to hear once more. After our decade-long retreat into the me-first mentality, our young people deserve to hear once again the pure trumpet of idealism. They need to be encouraged to find the deep joy of sacrificial service to others.

Amitai Etzioni, a professor at George Washington University, has recently authored a book on rebuilding America. He has written that it is time to end America's shallow "party" attitude. He says, "We idolize conspicuousness, from designer apparel to oversized cars." He believes our heroes should again be those who model voluntary simplicity, instead of cruising about in stretch limousines.

Speaking to role models, Etzioni says, "Youngsters in schools and colleges must be taught that their future is best served not by seeking to make as much money as possible but by doing something of lasting value." Where will our young people hear this, if not from us — their parents, their teachers and their churches?

Susan's visit to our class filled me with hope. Imagine, going from Yale — not to Wall Street — but to Liberia. I observed the faces of my young people, and what I saw made me want to leap for joy. Even amidst the skepticism, there were flickers of fascination, shadows of new possibilities. In front of us that morning, the curtain was rising on a new image of the heroic.

We need consciously and often to place this image of unselfish service before ourselves and our young people. We need heroes of servanthood to remind us that compassion and unselfishness are not signs of weakness — they are signs of strength.

Who better to do this than the churches? Our vision of the heroic is forever informed by the cross. We believe that the One who gave Himself there in heroic self-sacrifice has demonstrated to us the path to life in its fullness.

This column is written on a rotating basis by members of the Grosse Pointe Ministerial Association.

CROP Walk: Marchers hope to raise $27,000 for the hungry both in local programs and around the world

The seventh annual CROP Walk will be held on Sunday, April 12. CROP is an agency of Church World Service that gives individuals and families an opportunity to raise money for programs that serve the needs of hungry people in our own community and around the world.

This CROP Walk is again supported and sponsored by the member churches of the Grosse Pointe-Harper Woods Ministerial Association. Over the past six years, walkers have raised more than $135,000 for people in need.

This year's goal is $27,000, 20 percent of which will go to local food programs at Crossroads East, People in Faith United, Calvary Senior Center and the Coalition on Temporary Shelter.

An additional 5 percent will be combined with proceeds from other local CROP Walks and given to feeding programs sponsored by the Archdiocese of Detroit and Detroit Christian Communication Council. The rest will go the Church World Service to improve food production and living standards around the world.

The walk will begin on Sunday with registration at 1 p.m. in the University Liggett parking lot, Cook Road. Walkers will leave at 1:45 p.m. for a 10-mile walk through the Grosse Pointe communities and return to University Liggett by 5 p.m. Stops for rest, refreshments and first aid will be provided at check points along the route. There will also be transportation available to those who are unable to complete the walk.

There will also be a Mini-Walk on the circle drive at University

Liggett for those who wish to walk a shorter distance. This walk supervised by the sophomore class of University Liggett.

Sponsors forms for walkers are available at Grosse Pointe and Harper Woods churches and schools. Your help is needed to provide food to hungry people here at home and around the world. Co-chairpersons for Hunger Walk VII are Sr. Eileen Meyers, St. Paul Catholic Church and Joann Chilingirian, First English Lutheran Church.

Memorial series presents music of England's golden age

The Waverly Consort will present "Welcome Sweet Pleasure: Music of England's Golden Age," on Sunday, March 1, at 7:30 p.m., at the Grosse Pointe Memorial Church. Tickets are adults $10 and students $3.

The Waverly Consort has spearheaded a now burgeoning revival of "early" musical styles through its tours of North and South America, appearances at major music festivals, including the Casals Festival and the Madeira Bach Festival, and in its recordings, workshops, and television broadcasts.

Drawing on a long-neglected repertoire of great music from the 12th through 18th centuries, the Waverly Consort — six singers and four instrumentalists employing more than 50 unusual wind, string and percussion instruments of the medieval, Renaissance and baroque periods — is considered to be the foremost professional organization in the early-music field.

Currently, the Waverly Consort, under the direction of Michael Jaffee, appears 25 times a year in New York City, selling out annually two subscription series of four concerts each at Lincoln Center's Alice Tully Hall, as well as special Christmas and Easter concerts.

The Waverly Consort was organized in 1964 at New York University, where Michael and Kay Jaffee encouraged a small group of fellow graduate students in musicology to join them in some performances of medieval and Renaissance music. Taking its name from Waverly Place (which runs by NYU's Washington Square campus), the group made its highly acclaimed public debut at Carnegie Recital Hall on April 23, 1966.

This will be the third appearance of The Waverly Consort on the Musica Series of Memorial Church. For tickets and information, call 828-5330.

St. Paul's offers two Lenten programs on spirituality

St. Paul Religious Education Office is offering two programs geared to Lenten considerations. The Rev. "The Holy Week Event" is on Wednesdays, 7:30-9 p.m., March 11, 18, 25 and April 1 in Room 210 in St. Paul School.

The second offering is "American Spirituality; The Prophetic and Personal Dimensions of Christian Faith, Hope and Love." Sister Charlita Brady, IHM, facilitator for Adult Education, Retreats and Workshops will be presenting the series on Thursday mornings, March 5, 12, 19, 26 April 2 and 9 in Room 210 in St.

Paul School.

Way of Life; March 19, John Shea: Religious Experience and Religious Response; March 26, North American Liturgical Music: Sustenance and Joy for Our Journey; April 2, New Directions and New Hopes in American Spirituality: Women Contributors; and April 9, Holiness is Flesh and Blood: Impact of the Black Religious Experience.

Indians

Corbett said.

"Navahos have more cancer now than there has been open pit mining of uranium on the reservations," Corbett said.

Corbett sees value in exposing Grosse Pointers to different cultures.

"There is a mutuality in mission," he said. "The American Protestant churches now realize that God does not reveal himself only through Americans and Europeans. The ecumenical ministerial program at Grosse Pointe Memorial Church is a prime example of this. For 17 years they have invited ministers from other countries and other cultures to share their understanding."

Even among the different tribes of American Indians, there are differences in the understanding of God, Corbett said.

"There is no one Indian theology," Corbett said. "There is a unique understanding among the different tribes. Their understanding of the great mystery is different as are their environments. The plains Indians may see God in the mountains, while the southwestern Indians see the kivas in the ground. But running through all the philosophies is a desire to live in harmony with nature, as well as kinship, sharing and generosity."

The Charles Cook Theological School works through extension courses throughout the southwest, western Canada and the Marshall Islands. As a program of the Presbyterian church, until recently the school was not encouraged to seek its own funds and support. Today that has changed and Corbett hopes to find support for the school.

For more information on the school, write to Corbett at: The Charles Cook Theological School, 708 S. Lindon Lane, Tempe, Ariz., 85281.

Episcopal monks

Christ Church to present seminar covering the nature of Protestant monasticism

The leader of an Episcopal monastery based on Three Rivers, Mich., will bring his unique vision of the Christian life to members and friends of Christ Church - Grosse Pointe (Episcopal) during a three-day parishwide Lenten teaching mission March 8-10.

The Rt. Rev. Benedict Reid, OSB, abbot of St. Gregory's monastery of the Order of St. Benedict, is among the most prominent leaders in the Episcopal movement for the religious life. That movement, an outgrowth of the 19th Century Catholic revival in the Church of England, has inspired 37 orders of monks and nuns, priests and lay associates now functioning in the Episcopal Church, the U.S. branch of the worldwide Anglican communion.

Benedictines first came to England in 597 with St. Augustine, first Archbishop of Canterbury. Suppressed in the 16th Century under King Henry VIII, Anglican Benedictine life was successfully revived in England after World War I and transplanted to the U.S. in 1939.

Benedict and his community of monks operate a farm and lead an up-to-date life of prayer, study and labor directed toward the contemplation of God through observance of the Benedictine rule.

Benedict and the 'monk-mobile' in which he travels are also no strangers to Grosse Pointe. His engaging humor and thought-provoking sermons and addresses in past visits have endeared him to parishioners at Christ Church, located at 61 Grosse Pointe Boulevard in the Farms. Benedict describes the parish as one of the largest in the Diocese of Michigan, as "very alive, and yet facing huge issues in our culture."

The teaching mission, based around the theme "Our Christian Pilgrimage," begins March 8 with sermons by Benedict at the regular Sunday services of 8, 9:15 and 11:15 a.m. and at the 10:20 a.m. Adult Forum in the church undercroft.

That afternoon, he will lead a 3 p.m. discussion in the undercroft on how to know, speak with and listen to Jesus Christ in prayer. And in the evening, Benedict will answer questions submitted as "Dear Abbot" letters from high school students at a 6 p.m. Pizza Party in Miller Hall, directly behind the church.

On Monday, March 9, Benedict will speak to downtown business men and women on the price Christians must pay for living their faith in the corporate world. The program, at the University Club on East Jefferson, begins with a noon luncheon.

The abbot will then speak at a 6:30 p.m. dinner at the church on the personal costs of Christian pilgrimage, such as how living the Christian life affects a person's relationship to sex, money and power.

Benedict winds up his teaching mission on Tuesday, March 10, with a 7 a.m. meeting with the parish Men's Bible Study Group and a 9:30 a.m. celebration of the Holy Eucharist, Bible Study and luncheon with members of the Christ Church Episcopal Church Women's group.

That evening, his final address on "Discovering Our Union with Jesus Christ" will be during a 6:30 p.m. potluck dinner hosted by the Christ Church Folk Choir in the parish undercroft.

Reservations are requested for the March 8 Pizza Party, the March 9 programs at the University Club and the church and the March 10 luncheon and dinner.

The programs are open to Christ Church parishioners and other Episcopalians as well as members of other churches and faiths and serious inquirers without formal religious affiliation. The Christ Church office may be contacted by phoning 885-4841.

Benedict, a Denver native, was educated in California. After service in World War II and university graduation, he took vows as a monk, was ordained priest and became prior at St. Gregory's in 1955. He was elected abbot in 1969 when the monastery became fully independent of its English mother house.

In addition to their life of prayer and farming, St. Gregory's monks extend the famous Benedictine practice of hospitality for men and women guests and retreat groups.

For more information, contact: Richard Walker (o) 961-8370 (h) 923-0404; or the Rev. Greg Sammons (o) 885-4841 (h) 882-2848.

St. Clare plans parish retreat

A pre-Lenten parish retreat will be held at St. Clare of Montefalco Parish, 1401 Whittier Road, Grosse Pointe Park, on Sunday, March 1 through Ash Wednesday, March 4, 1987.

The retreat will be conducted by Augustinian priest, the Rev. Michael P. Sullivan. Sullivan is a dynamic preacher and retreat director. Born in New York City in 1940, he received a bachelor's degree from Villanova University and his master's in theology from Augustinian College.

Sullivan did graduate work at the Catholic University of America and also received a master's degree in counseling from St. John's University. Ordained in 1967, he spent three years as an associate pastor in Brooklyn.

He has been a member of the executive council and the executive board of Worldwide Marriage Encounter; and in this capacity, he has traveled extensively throughout the United States, Canada, and Australia. In 1980 he was appointed to full time retreat work and parish renewal preaching.

Evening services will be held from 7:30 until 9 p.m. The themes each day will be: "Baptism and Confirmation," March 1; "Reconciliation and Healing," March 2; "Fidelity and Commitment - Holy Orders, Matrimony, Religious and Single Life," March 3; and "Eucharist," March 4.

The Rev. Michael Sullivan

Exhibition of 10,000 years of Syrian art introduced with a flair at DIA

By Elsa Frohman
Feature Editor

Penny Slough of Grosse Pointe felt a special attachment to the pieces of ancient Syrian art in the Ebla to Damascus exhibition at the Detroit Institute of Arts, from the first moment she saw them being unpacked.

"It was very exciting," she said. "Just seeing the pieces come out of the case and handling them. I've been seeing pictures of these items in books all my life. It's the first time any of these things have been in the country."

Ebla to Damascus is a retrospective of nearly 10,000 years of Near Eastern art and civilization. It includes prehistoric artifacts dating back to 8,000 B.C. and moves through successive civilizations from the Third Millennium to the Old, Middle and New Syrian periods, to the Hellenistic and Roman Period, through the Byzantine and Islamic periods.

"It gives you the incredible historical sweep of the civilizations of the Near East," said Elsie Peck, associate curator of Near Eastern art for the DIA.

The show has been touring the United States under the guidance of the Smithsonian Institution. Detroit is the second from the last stop on the tour.

"The Syrian government has sent its greatest masterpieces," Peck said. "It is quite incredible. It takes an extraordinary generosity to send their patrimony away on tour for two years to travel the world."

The exhibition opened with a black-tie reception on Feb. 16 in the galleries of the DIA.

Grosse Pointers Lucille Wertz and Stephanie Germack were co-chairmen for the affair. A special guest at the reception was Bashara Kanafani, charge d'affairs for the Syrian embassy in Washington, D.C.

"This show was planned and assembled years in advance," said Slough, assistant curator of ancient art for the DIA. "It takes a long time to put together an international show like this. You have to get funding and permission from all the governments. It's not something that happens in a couple of weeks."

The Smithsonian took responsibility for packing and transporting all the objects from one location to another.

"It all came in huge steamer trunks packed with layers of foam," Slough said. "They have holes cut out for each object. It took a long time to get it all out."

The pieces ranged from tiny gold and lapis lazuli beads to huge stone statues that took as many as six men to unload.

"There is something for everybody," Slough said. "There are neolithic, Arcadian, Classical and Islamic pieces. It's a big show."

Slough has worked at the museum for more than 20 years, though most of that time was as a volunteer.

"I was a volunteer for 20 years before they put me on the payroll," she said. That was in 1983. "It just changed my parking place."

Ebla to Damascus will be at the Detroit Institute of Arts until May 3. For more information, call 833-7900.

Operation LINC

Christmas giving efforts successful

After finally finding our office typewriter which was buried under the 17,600 gifts that LINC received at holiday time, we are able to communicate once again.

Before we move ahead however, Operation LINC would again like to thank everyone in the community who made it possible for us to distribute 1,600 gifts to the Wayne County Social Service's Foster Care children. For our Gifts and Toy Chest program we were able to collect and distribute more than 16,000 gifts to 25 agencies in the metro Detroit area. This figure is three-fold what LINC has previously received from the public, who made it all possible. There are many happier people in the community, both those who gave and those who received. Thank you all from the happy volunteers at LINC.

As we move into a new calendar year much planning is going on at LINC. With that, there is much work to be done. If you have a specific interest or would like to develop a skill, we have a spot for you. Many of our donors are now giving the gift of time and we would like to see you at our annual general membership meeting. Come find out what makes Operation LINC tick - you will be surprised. Our meeting will be held March 19. Please call the office at 882-6100 for more details and reservations. Babysitting is available.

Future fund-raisers are also in the works at Operation LINC. We do have to make ends meet (like everyone else). Some of our volunteers energies must go into keeping us afloat so that we can continue to help others. Fund-raising chairperson Peg Upmeyer and her committee have plans for a third annual flower sale in May. We will be participating in the Garage Sale at the end of May also. Rumors about a beer booth at the Grand Prix and/or Renaissance Festival are just a few of LINC's upcoming fun - Fund Raising efforts. More details will follow on these and other projects as they develop.

Ever expanding and changing are the grassroots organizations that we support. These organizations are struggling to make their efforts heard and LINC tries in many ways to help them grow. One of our newest groups is the Detroit Sign Company deaf theatre founded in 1972 the group is currently supported by donations, grants and ticket sales. The purpose of the organization is to promote deaf awareness. To present exhibition. To educate the general public on artistic talents, skills and abilities of the hearing impaired through shows, interpreters and workshops.

The company has performed throughout the Midwest and Canada.

Detroit Sign Company has many needs for setting up its office and to promote and continue its mission. One request LINC was able to fill was for a video camera. Now able to record performances, Detroit Sign Company can use the video tape to promote its work. Other items DSC is looking for include a copy machine, file cabinets, office furniture, television, tape recorders, microphones, costumes and props.

This worthwhile organization is just one example of the many new agencies we accept each year. All walks of life, all forms of needs and all sincere in their commitments. You can help by watching the weekly Missing LINK column in the classified section of the Grosse Pointe News. If you see a need you can fill please call us at 882-6100.

Harpicord and organ concert planned

On Friday, March 13, at 7:30 p.m. Joanne Vollendorf will present a concert of works for harpicord and organ in the sanctuary of Central Church, Detroit. Included will be the premiere of a new work for harpicord, flute and saxophone written by Geoffrey Stanton, a composition student at the University of Michigan.

The work celebrates the mesh of different cultures and people at Central United Methodist Church. Other works to be presented include "The Storm" by Lemmens and "Fanfare" by Lang. Also, we will welcome Charles Greenwell from WQRS to narrate "The King of Instruments" by William Albright.

The 72-rank organ was built by E.M. Skinner in 1915, and later rebuilt by the M.P. Mohler Company. In January of this year the solo tuba was repaired by Robert Dial of Springfield, Ill. It will be featured in this concert.

The program promises its audience the good luck of fun and fine music.

Tickets are $4 and $2 (Seniors and students); available at the door. For more information, please call 965-5422.

Dear Cheesecake . . .

If there's a Chuck "Cheesecake" Peters out there who just happens to be a middleweight boxer, we have some mail for you.

Seems there's a guy by the name of Gerd Riethenauer — of the Frankfurt, West Germany, Riethenauers — who is very fond of you. Gerd wrote a letter and since he didn't have your address sent it to us here at the Grosse Pointe News and asked us to very kindly forward it to you.

The only problem is, Mr. Cheesecake, we don't have your address, either. So we thought we'd publish the letter here, hope you read it and respond to your buddy Gerd real soon. Here it is:

Dear Sir,

May I extend today my very sincere compliments and congratulations on you and your own fine and outstanding boxer life and career in USA.

I have been following always all my life so far Boxing in USA your own Michigan home state and thus became too very much delighted and thrilled and impressed with your start into professional boxing, last year 1986 in Michigan and will sure continue too in future to cheer and follow up your career and bouts. I have great faith and hope into you and your career in future.

Today I'd like to ask you too a personal request and am really hoping too that you will be so kindly to oblige:

Please have the great kindness and do send me as lasting remembrance one photograph of you (in stance please) with your personally signed autograph and dedication on the photo please, truly signed by you too. Please have comprehension for my sportly plea.

Very cordially greetings and compliments, stay well and sound and happy and successfully there, many more great bouts and wins and am really looking forwards too to hear very soon again from you from USA.

Very sincerely and very sportingly yours,
Gerd Riethenauer

Now, being the good little reporter I am, I tried and tried to locate the whereabouts of Cheesecake Peters. There's only one C. Peters in the Grosse Pointe phone book, but that one's address isn't listed and his phone number has been changed to an unpublished number.

The Michigan State Boxing Commission wasn't any help, either. After making three calls and waiting 20 minutes, I was told by a nice lady that they didn't know any Chuck Peters. Or for that matter, any Cheesecake Peters.

I called my sports buddies, coaches and contacts all to no avail. Not being a boxing fan myself, I didn't know where else to turn. It seems that no one around here has heard of Chuck Peters, Grosse Pointe middleweight boxer.

But Gerd has. And Gerd wants a picture. And remembering how much I wanted a picture of my childhood hero Pete Rose (personally signed and dedication on photo, of course), I just couldn't toss old Gerd's letter into a drawer and forget about it.

So I'm asking for some help. If anyone knows Chuck Peters, or Cheesecake Peters, or even someone who is a friend of a friend of Chuck Peters, let me know. I'd like to get a picture of Cheesecake (no smart remarks), get it autographed and send it back to Gerd.

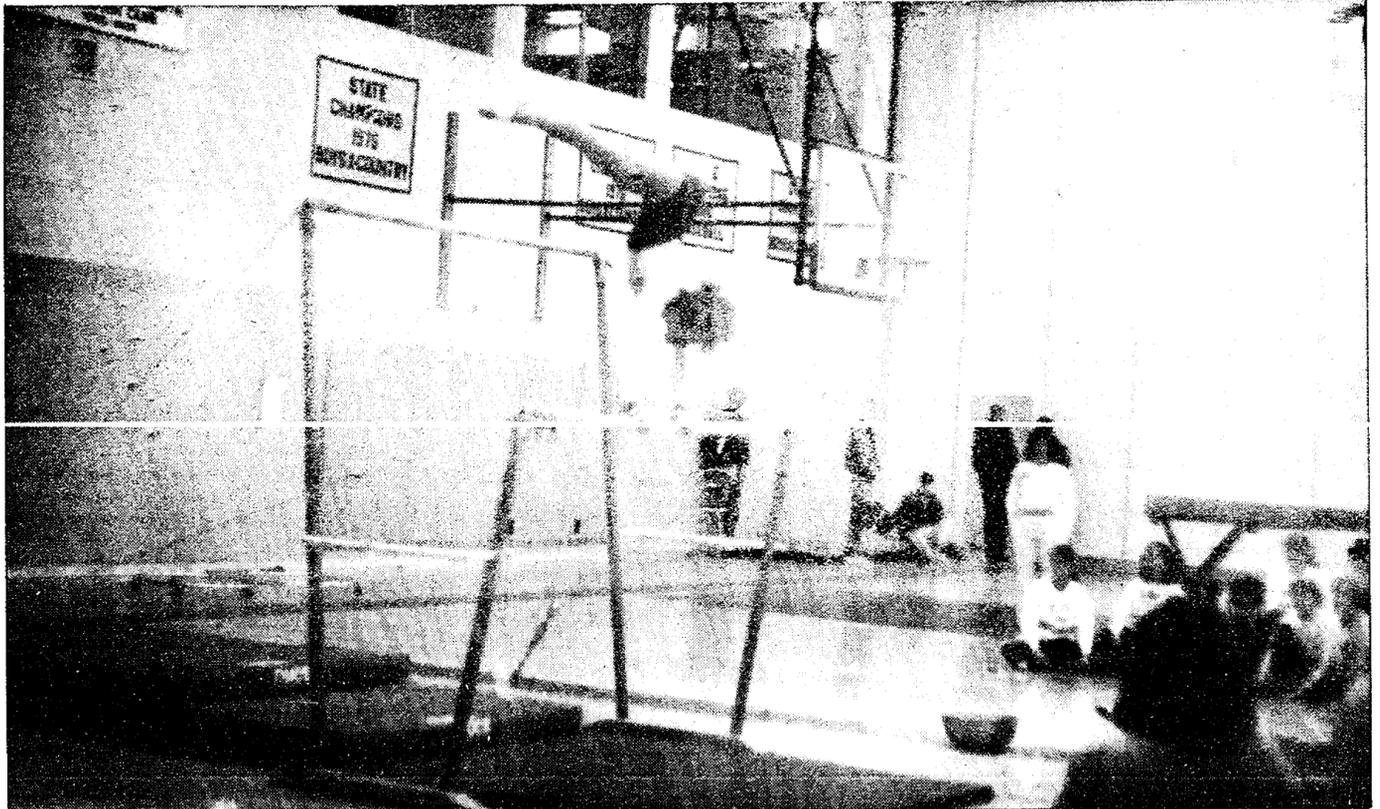

I'll even take the photo myself, if Cheesecake just happens to be out of 8 x 10 glossies.

We've got Gerd's letter and a return envelope here, just waiting for a response. So give me a call, Mr. Cheesecake. As Gerd would say, please have comprehension for my sportly plea.

Behind every successful big brother is a quiet, unassuming little sister (I ought to know, I have a successful big brother).

One such little sister who is very proud of her big brother these days is Catherine Yancey, who doesn't mind that her basketball-playing brother gets his name in the paper a lot. I'm told Catherine is an excellent student and that back in North Carolina, was a pretty good little tennis player . . . reasons enough to get HER name in the paper.

Wouldn't you say, Catherine?

Steady improvement marks NH gymnasts' year

By Peggy O'Connor
Sports Editor

The best barometer of the success of North's gymnastics team this season might be the fact that in 12 meets, the Lady Norsemen have made regional qualifying scores nine times. Many of those meets came against teams made up of "club" gymnasts, those who have competed year-round in gymnastics for more than seven years. North has two club gymnasts, the rest are really novices to the sport and compete only from November through March.

"That, I think, is really a more accurate measure of our success this season," says first-year coach Mary Dube. "I'm very pleased with our results this year. The girls are working hard and it's paying off."

"Actually, I'm very proud of each and every member of this team. This is a very intense sport which requires a lot of hard work, a lot of time and a great deal of concentration. I applaud the girls and their courage . . . it takes a lot of courage to get up there and do what they do," Dube says.

Joining Dube, Boardman and Tsangalias on North's squad this season are Simone DiLaura, Michelle Dittrich, Cristin DuRoss, Tina Francis, Kim Gilbert, Carrie Gutow, Sue Haskell, Ashley Joondeph, Andrea Lane, Deanna Leech, Laura Locricchio, Shannon McMahon, Laura Mott, Patricia O'Grady, Christine Snow, Heather VanTiem, Michelle Zablocki and Jennifer Ziomek.

The Lady Norsemen will host the five-team league meet at 10 a.m. March 7 at North High. The public is invited to attend.

North has just one senior this year, veteran Jill Boardman. And Dube, whose daughter Jennifer is in her first year of high school gymnastics, thinks that her young team has exceeded most people's expectations. (North has been ranked in the top 10 in the state at one time or another this year).

"We've improved by two full points in every meet. And we've also met some individual goals we set at the beginning of the year. For example, there are some girls who had never been on a specific apparatus who are now scoring well in that event," Dube explains.

One of those girls is junior Stacy Tsangalias, who had never performed on the vault before this season and is now North's third highest North scorer on the vault.

"I've encouraged the girls to work on their all-around performance; it helps them when they go to compete at their usual events. And when they feel the success from making that step to another event, that helps the whole team," Dube adds.

Team-wise, Dube says she thinks that North's girls can make it to the states in March. The top three regional teams advance to the states.

"I think that gymnastics is beginning to expand in Michigan. For many years, the state really didn't offer gymnastics as a competitive sport, leaving it to the club teams. It's really been growing in the last seven or eight years, probably because of the Olympics. We're beginning to see more and more girls competing at the high school level because that's where they can enjoy the greatest success," Dube says.

Jennifer Dube had some success at the club level, but has also blended in well as a prep gymnast, Dube says. "I've learned a lot from Jennifer and it really is enjoyable to coach her. I do find that I expect more from her and she probably gets a lot more lectures from me on the way home in the car," Dube says with a chuckle.

"Still, it's a real experience for her to compete on the team level. She hasn't had the opportunity in this area before."

And Jennifer has responded well, notching state-high scores on the beam and leading the Lady Norsemen to victories in several meets. She also has helped choreograph several routines and, despite the fact that she is only a freshman, has fit in well with the older members of the squad.

14th annual championship event

Hunt Club hosts mixed doubles

The Grosse Pointe Hunt Club is sponsoring the Western Open Professional Indoor Mixed Doubles Tennis Championships March 4 through 8.

Over the past few years the Western Open has become the foremost mixed doubles professional tournament in the mid-west, attracting professionals and top-ranked juniors from all over the United States and Canada.

Participants have included Aaron Krickstein, Susan Mascarin, Lisa Bonder, four-time Canadian singles champion Harry Fritz (who won the Open in 1985 with Karen Dewes), Christine Gilles

(1986 USTA National Amateur Singles Champion and 1986 USTA National Amateur Hard Court Singles and Doubles Champion), Candy Kopetski (1986 Rolex International Team) and Amy Frazier (1985 USTA Girls 16's Indoor Singles Champion and 1986 USTA Girls 18's Indoor Singles finalist and doubles champion).

Western Open chairpersons Jim and Barbara Alle report that last year's winner, Murphy Jensen, is returning to defend his title. Jensen, of Ludington, is No. 1 ranked in W.T.A. Boys' 18 Singles, and is the 1986 Boys' 18's National Indoor, National Clay Courts, National Grass Courts, and Boys' 18 International Doubles Champion. Also entered this year is Carrie Cunningham of Livonia, ranked No. 1 in Girls' W.T.A. 14 Singles. Cunningham was a finalist in the 1986 National Indoor Girls 16's Doubles and winner of the National Indoor Girls 16's Singles. Amy Frazier is also returning and professional player Rosie Casals has entered with partner Pat Trapnell of Dearborn.

In addition to great tennis, the tournament promises some special attractions to make this year's Western Open an enjoyable family event. During matches on Friday, March 6 and Saturday, March 7, the Hunt Club will present a National Coney Island Party, serving authentic Coney Islands and other refreshments. A fashion show, courtesy of Beverly Green & The Courtside Shop, of the Square Lake Racquet Club, Grosse Pointe Hunt Club and Country Club of Detroit, is also planned for Friday night.

Tickets are available now at the Grosse Pointe Hunt Club. An all-event ticket is $25 at the door, $20 in advance. Junior all-event tickets are also available for $5; tickets can also be purchased for each day of the tournament. For details, call the Hunt Club at 884-9090.

Stanley Clark wins Liggett invitational hockey tournament

The inaugural University Liggett School Independent Middle School Invitational Hockey Tournament took place on Feb. 6 and 7 at ULS's McCann Rink.

In the first game Friday night, Detroit Country Day School defeated Cranbrook 9-2, with both Brian Senkowski and Brian Najor registering hat tricks. Friday's second game was a well-played defensive game with The Stanley Clark School of South Bend, Ind. prevailing over the ULS Knights 2-0, despite being outshot 19-12.

In the consolation game, Cranbrook opened the scoring in the first period on a goal by Alex Mooradian. Coach Ted Dickson's ULS squad then scored two goals in the second period to take the lead. Mike Whelan scored the first goal of his career to tie the game and Gary Corona scored the go-ahead goal. In the third period, Mooradian tied the game for Cranbrook, forcing an overtime period. Both teams had numerous chances to win the game. With one minute left in the overtime period, co-captain Billy O'Keefe fired a wrist shot from the point into the upper lefthand corner of the net to give the Knights the win and third place in the tournament.

The championship game was just as exciting. DCDS took the lead on a goal by Jason Emery in the first period, but that lead was erased in a wild second period. Stanley Clark's Jon Bankoff tied the score, then DCDS's Jamie Latimer gave the Yellowjackets their second lead. Stanley Clark's Jeremy Freid tied the game again, then Ben Medow (only a fifth grader) gave the Stanley Clark Tigers a 3-2 lead. The third period was very exciting with Stanley Clark's goalie Zachery Gallagher frustrating many DCDS scoring opportunities to preserve the victory.

ULS to host ice tourney

University Liggett School will host the 12th annual Pee Wee and Bantam Fellowship Cup Ice Hockey Tournament at McCann Rink, 1045 Cook Road, during the week of March 2.

The purpose of the tournament is to present competitive play in an atmosphere of friendship and good sportsmanship. In each division Pee Wee and Bantam teams will play four games each. Points scored in the first three games will decide which teams play in the consolation and championship game on Saturday, March 7.

Times for the finals: 10 a.m. — Pee Wee consolation; 11:30 a.m. — Pee Wee championship; 1 p.m. — Bantam consolation; 2 p.m. Bantam championship.

The ULS Knights are the defending champions in their division.

Sir Speedy on win streak

Grosse Pointe Sir Speedy Senior A hockey team has two wins and a tie in its last three games.

Against the Lagers, Sir Speedy moved in front 4-1 in the second period on a couple of goals by centerman Tom Weiss. The Lagers came back to tie, but Sir Speedy got a late goal to pull off a 5-4 victory. Eric Weiss also had a goal and an assist for Sir Speedy.

In the second game of the week,

Sir Speedy tied the Bulls 4-4. Sir Speedy led 3-2 in the third period, but the Bulls scored two goals to pull ahead, 4-3. Sir Speedy tied it with 17 seconds remaining on Joe Plotzke's goal. Dan Weiss, Jim Davenport and Tony Alfonsi also scored for Sir Speedy.

In the third game, Sir Speedy crushed the Devils, 9-5. The game was a wide open, fast skating affair with the teams trading goals often. Rick Davenport, Jim Davenport and Alfonsi each had two goals. Gordie Muchez and Jim Kollar each had a goal and two assists. Sir Speedy is unbeaten in its last six games, with an overall record of 18-14-3.

Goalies Brian Dennis and Greg Semack made outstanding saves in the net.

Squirt Division

BLADES-DEVILS

The Grosse Pointe Michigan Blades topped the once-beaten St. Clair Shores Blue Devils 4-1 at McCann rink on Feb. 18. Blades' coach Denny Campbell said he was proud of his 8-5-4 team's performance. Paul Megler (two), Omar Sawaf and Matt Spicer were goal scorers. Chuck Scherwish was outstanding in the nets. The Blades have three games remaining before the Metro League playoffs, which will include four teams from St. Clair Shores, two from Fraser and two from Grosse Pointe. (By Gail Melchior)

Bantam Division

CHIEFS-PORT HURON

Port Huron's F.O.P. Bantam team traveled to GPCR last weekend and wound up taking a 5-0 thrashing from the Chiefs. Port Huron was assessed 39 penalty minutes and two game misconducts. Jeff Blum earned his eighth shutout of the season as Ed Barbieri (two), Kevin Nugent, Brad Russell and Scott Soule scored. John Olmsted, Mike Kisskalt, Brad Hea, Juan Ganum (two), Nugent and Barbieri drew assists as the Chiefs maintained their cool and cruised to the win.

CHIEFS-RAIDERS

The Chiefs played well enough to take a 2-0 win and remain undefeated in the Metro Series League (16-0-2). Russell and Soule scored on passes from Kisskalt and Ganum. The steady defensive play of Hea and John McGlone kept the Raiders' shots to a minimum.

FLAMES-KINGS

This inter-city rivalry stayed scoreless until the final minute of the game, when goalie Jim Bunn made a great save, flipped the puck to Nick Black, who fed Adam Tanielian for the winning goal. Blake Crawford, Andy Bond, Black and Grundman were outstanding on defense; also playing well for the 23-9-2 Flames were Frank Lucido, Renato Roxas, Scott Collins and Andy Vyletel.

FLAMES-CAPITALS

The Flames met an all-girl team in an exhibition game, emerging with an 8-1 victory despite the great play of former GPHA player Nancy Alcott, who assisted on the Capitals' third period tally. #### FLAMES-PORT HURON and Tanielian made it 2-0 from Lucido and Bond. Lucido converted passes from Roxas and Tanielian to make it 3-0 before the Port Huron squad came back with a pair of goals on the power play. Roxas scored from Tanielian, Vyletel and Crawford, but the Port Huron team came back for two to get the tie, despite the Flames' excellent play.

CHIEFS-PIZZA ONE

The Chiefs improved their record to 24-8-2 with a 6-4 win over St. Clair Shores' Pizza One. Kevin Nugent (two), Soule, Kisskalt, Barbieri and Ganum scored goals; Brad Russell, Ganum (two), Barbieri (two), Olmsted, Nugent and Soule drew assists.

CHIEFS-ROYAL OAK

The Chiefs dominated the Royal Oak Police Team in the third game of the district playoffs, 4-0. The win sent the Pointers to the district finals. The game featured a team effort as each line scored and the entire defense helped protect the shutout. Russell, Kisskalt, Brendan Rohan and Olmsted scored. Nugent, (two) McGlone, Russell, Vince Palazzolo, McSorley, Barbieri and Soule earned assists. Blum earned his fifth shutout in goal.

Sabres on a roll

The Century 21-East Sabres moved to within one point of second place in their over 30 hockey league with a 6-2 victory over J & D on Feb. 5.

The Sabres played a close-checking game and made the most of their chances, pulling away in the third period. Goal scorers were Rob Gilroy (two), Tony Moricz, Tony DiFalco, Mark Rajter and Bob Nowaczewski.

The Sabres moved into sole possession of second place with a convincing 4-0 victory over Active Tool on Feb. 19.

Hockey team wins MML title; cagers lead Bi-County

By Jay Messner
Special Writer

North's varsity hockey team made hockey history last week by clinching its first-ever Michigan Metro League-East championship. North's win over rival South, 8-3, on Feb. 9, and last week's 6-4 victory over Gabriel Richard turned the trick.

Against Richard, goals by Link Bessert and Dan Spitz gave the Norsemen a 2-1 first period lead. Senior forward Dave Justice made it 3-1 with the first of three, but Richard tied it 3-3. Rob Marshall's unassisted goal made it 4-3 in the third period. Nettle scored the final two goals to ice the game; Marshall assisted on both goals and earned "play-maker" honors from his teammates.

North continued its impressive streak by toppling Ann Arbor Huron, 9-2, and crushing Southfield, 10-0. Bessert had a hat-trick in the first game, while Justice made a pretty passing play from Nettle. Tony Giunetti, Dave Johnston, Joe Andary, Spitz, Brian Schweitzer and Nettle also scored.

North got off to a red hot start against Southfield, scoring five goals in the first period enroute to the highest offensive output in North history: 14. Marshall continued his great offensive game with four goals; John Quinlan added three. Nettle, Bessert, Bob Paulos, Lester, Jon Henchel, Andary and Schweitzer contributed to the win. Kris Kubulak and Matt Krieg combined for the shutout in goal.

North hosted Howell after press time on Feb. 25. The Norsemen begin district competition on Monday, March 2, taking on Livonia Franklin at Yack Arena in Wyandotte at 8 p.m. Call North's athletic department at 343-2214 for directions to the arena.

points, Scott Clein and Scott Schorer had 14 and Matt Brady added 10. The following week, the JV fell to Clintondale, 62-48, as Brady netted 14 points. The JV got back into the win column on Feb. 19 with a 65-35 thrashing of Lakeview. Derek Lawson led all scorers with 21 points; Brady had 16 and Stump, 11. (By Josh Abbott)

Cagers in first

North's basketball team is on a roll after winning another pair of Bi-County contests last week. North is now an impressive 13-3, 8-1 and in first in the league.

At home Feb. 17, the Norsemen ended a long drought against league foe Clintondale, beating the Dragons, 45-43. Clintondale ran out to a 9-2 lead, but North came back with eight consecutive points to take a slim lead at the end of the first quarter. North nursed the lead throughout the game until the Dragons led 43-42 with less than one minute to go. Then North junior center Kirk Lowry pulled down a rebound and nailed a quick basket to give the Norsemen the lead for good. North missed six of seven free throws in the last 30 seconds, but senior forward C.J. Anderson's shot from the charity stripe with three seconds left sealed the win. Lowry led scorers with 15 points and 10 rebounds.

Two nights later, North trounced Lakeview's Huskies, 71-46. Senior forward Scott Reiter paced the Norsemen with 16 points. Senior guard Dave Justice had 13 and junior forward Karl Schultz added 11.

North's JV cagers have won two of their last three to raise their record to 12-4. On Feb. 13, North destroyed Brablec, 74-48. Frosh Charlie Stump netted 19

The freshmen overwhelmed Lakeview, 66-23, to raise their record to 7-2 in the league, 9-7 overall. On Friday, Feb. 13, North blew past Brablec, 50-27, as Louis D'Angelo had 10 points and 12 rebounds. Jon Kessman had 10 points and Kevin Endres turned in 10 points and 15 rebounds. A total of 11 players got on the board.

North took an easy win over Clintondale, thanks to Kessman's 16 points. Angelo Gritsas had 10 points and Endres chipped in nine points and 14 rebounds. John Mank had seven points and six rebounds. Against Lakeview, Chris Meathe's 16 points led the way. Endres had 13 points and 12 rebounds, Kessman had 12 points.

Spikers win again

North's varsity basketball team earned another victory Feb. 18, defeating L'Anse Creuse, 15-7, 15-10. North was led by Mary Lex's 11 service points; Missy Preston added eight. The win gave the Lady Norsemen a first place spot in the Bi-County at 7-2.

The JV also beat L'Anse Creuse, 13-15, 16-14, 16-14. The girls remain undefeated with two games to go. Kelly Gianunzio had 17 service points; Kerry Andrewes had 11 and Mary Spiewak, nine.

The freshman spikers lost three contests last week, to Chippewa Valley, 15-9, 14-12; to L'Anse Creuse, 15-12, 11-15, 15-17; and to East Detroit Oakwood, 15-5, 15-13, 13-15, 15-6. Lauren Schultz had five service points against Chippewa Valley. Pam Thomas had 14 service points against L'Anse Creuse and in the Oakwood match, Schultz had 11 service points and Shelly Miller, eight.

This week, the varsity and JV close out the schedule against South Lake and Lake Shores; the frosh play Chippewa Valley and Romeo Junior High.

Matmen qualify

North junior wrestler William Lewis won the district championship in wrestling in the 145-pound weight class at Hazel Park High school last Saturday. Sophomore John Shefferly was third in the 126-pound weight class and junior Dave Vandale was third in the 198-pound division at the districts. All three advance to the regional tournament set for this Saturday, Feb. 28, at Troy High School.

The top four wrestlers in each weight class at the regionals will go on to the states, set for Lansing on March 7.

Gymnasts impressive

North's girls gymnastics team reeled off an impressive win over Lakeview, 119.30-106.20. Jennifer Dube led with a state-high score of 9.4 on the balance beam. Jill Boardman added an excellent all-around performance of 33.55. Christine Snow reached a personal high with a 7.2 on the vault and Kim Gilbert and Deanna Leech performed on bars and floors, respectively, for the first time this year. (By John Laskarides)

Norseman Chris Dudeck shrugs off pressure by the Clintondale defense to take a shot in last week's 45-43 Bi-County League victory over the Dragons. The win gave North sole possession of first place in the league with three Bi-County contests remaining.

Yancey's 29 couldn't do it — ULS drops first game

It's crowded at the top! University Liggett School lost its first game of the season, 64-58, to the inspired Plymouth Christian Eagles on Feb. 20, in front of a standing room only crowd. The loss dropped ULS into a first place tie in the Michigan Independent Athletic Conference with Plymouth. Both teams sport 15-1 records.

Plymouth jumped out to an 18-15 first quarter lead, thanks to Pat McCarthy's 10 points. The Eagles extended the lead to 33-26 by halftime. John Yancey, ULS' high scoring guard, kept the Knights in the game with 15 first half points.

ULS outscored Plymouth 15-10 in the third quarter to trail by only two, 43-41, going into the fourth quarter. After knotting the score 43-43, the Knights lapsed into several mental mistakes which resulted in turnovers and Plymouth baskets. ULS had chances to tie but the costly turnovers continued, resulting in the heartbreaking loss.

Yancey paced ULS with 29 points and 12 rebounds. Kandia Milton chipped in with 13 points. "Naturally, we're extremely disappointed with the loss," Coach Chuck Wright said. "But we have no excuses. We were out-hustled and outcoached. Plymouth was the better team on this night. I am proud of the class and character shown by this ULS team, however. These young men, while hurting deeply, showed great dignity after the game."

Earlier in the week, ULS had destroyed Troy Zion, 74-27. Kevin Crociata paced the balanced attack with 13 points, while Yancey (playing only in the first half) and Bill Lucken had 12 apiece.

ULS has its last home game of the season Friday night, Feb. 27, against tough Oakland Christian. It will be the last home game for seniors David Chilingarian, William Middlebrooks and Bill Listman.

The ULS JV basketball team has been on a tear lately. The boys haven't lost since Dec. 9 when they got trampled by Ann Arbor Greenhills by 41 points. ULS had to play the Greenhills Gryphons again on Feb. 11, and they had an eight-game winning streak that they didn't want to lose.

At the half, ULS, which had been down 35-14 at the last half when the two teams met, led by two. ULS poured it on in the third quarter, taking a 16-point lead. They let it slip in the fourth, but still won, 52-51.

The streak went to 10 when ULS beat Zion Christian, 52-20, on Feb. 17. Sean Byrne scored a season-high five points and was one for two from the line. John Gordon hit the boards hard with a team-leading 12 rebounds.

On Friday, Feb. 20, ULS fought Plymouth Christian tooth and nail, and came out with an impressive 66-52 victory. Mike Nicolini led the team with 17 points, followed by Ti Juan Kidd and Anthony Abiragi with 16 points each.

Overall, Coach John Wienshienk's J.V. Knights are 12-2, with an 11-game winning streak. ULS hosts Oakland Christian at 6 p.m. on Friday, Feb. 27. (By Arne Knudson)

Icers No. 7 in state

The ULS boys' varsity ice hockey team has a 14-7-1 record, and is ranked No. 7 in the state (Class B-C-D) after wins over Port Huron Northern (3-1) and St. Francis Toledo (5-4).

The Knights played Port Huron Northern on Feb. 18 at McCann Rink in an exciting game. After Northern opened the scoring, co-captain Bob Jewett tied the game at 6:55 of the first period on a goal assisted by linemates Doug Wood and Shannon Nowowiecki. Wood slammed the second ULS goal home halfway through the second period, after picking up a Jewett rebound. Mike McCracken also assisted. Steve Stoyka was again solid in the nets, stopping 21 of 22 shots. Freshman defenseman Mike Coello, assisted by center Gordie Maitland, scored an empty net goal with 12 seconds left to seal the Knights' victory. Goaltender Jeremy Belenky led ULS to another win against St. Francis on Feb. 21. For Belenky, it was his sixth win in eight starts. Co-captain Pahl Zinn registered three assists and Jewett recorded his 15th and 16th goals of the season. Other ULS goals were scored by Maitland, Andrew Galsterer and Bill Jewett. The Knights outshot their opponents from Toledo, 50-22.

Coach John Fowler's squad finishes its regular season by playing St. Clair Shores Lakeview on Saturday, Feb. 28 at the SCS Civic Arena at 4:30 p.m. The Knights charge into regional action the following Monday, March 2, in Southfield, where they will again face Lakeview at 7:45 p.m.

Spikers No. 2

ULS's girls' varsity volleyball team split with Oakland Christian in the two matches they played Feb. 20, taking over second place in the Michigan Independent Athletic Conference behind leader Southfield Christian.

ULS took the first match 15-12, 15-9, but had a disappointing loss in the second after giving up a seven-point lead in the third game. Laurie Khelokian never missed a serve and Sue Cleek and Sylvia Ristic hammered away at the ball. There was fine setting by Kathy Bianchi and Cindy Paul, with Lexie Crain getting in a couple of great blocks.

Earlier, Coach Shelley Owens' team played the Academy of the Sacred Heart, winning 15-3, 15-9, 15-11. Bianchi and Khelokian again served well, with Khelokian serving almost a whole game. Diann Imbriaco and Delia Price had strong hitting games and Dana Warnez and Shirley Kim contributed with their setting.

Girls win

On Saturday, Feb. 21, ULS's girls' ice hockey team won its second and last game of the season against Garden City, a club team, 20-0.

Cathy Petzold had seven goals, and Meghan Brady, six. The remaining goals were scored by Dana Christian, Pokey DuPont, Sakura Gasser, Lynne Connor and Lexi Leopard. Lesley MacLeod also played a strong game, notching several assists.

Beth Birgbauer played a solid game in the nets, earning the first shutout ever recorded by a female goalie in girls' high school ice hockey in Michigan. Birgbauer had help from the defense, consisting of Liz Prus, Kim Owens, Stacey Westley and Leopard. (By Kim Owens)

Tankers place

The ULS swimmers placed seventh in the unofficial Class C-D state swim meet held at Erie-Mason High School, Feb. 21.

Fit

Body types

Body types affect the way we look and the way we perform.

There really isn't too much you can do about the hand nature has dealt you. Each of us has a specific body type (somatotype) which determines outline and general proportions, but the distribution of fat and muscle on top of that is a result of lifestyle. To add more muscle and reduce fat, selecting a sport that suits your personal body type best will be much easier than struggling with a sport to which you are physically ill-suited.

To determine your body type, check your shape in a mirror without holding yourself in! Compare with the body types listed below. If you don't have an extra layer of fat but you aren't long and thin, don't lament. You will never be a fashion model type. We all want to look good, but the way you feel is so much more important.

Body shape is only an indication of fitness. If you smoke, you may have very little body fat, but be extremely unfit. The fact that you have short legs or large hips or small shoulders does not mean that you should want to change them or that you cannot be as fit as someone with the classic athletic figure. The look of your body should always be secondary to its feel. Check it out. Concentrate on the soft tissues (muscle, fat and skin). These can be changed — bone cannot.

Ectomorphs are notable for their endurance and agility, i.e. good cross-country runners and basketball players. A tendency to linearity.

Mesomorphs are suited to many sports, their muscular frame being capable of developing strength, endurance, power and agility in equal lots. A tendency to muscularity.

Endomorphs will find the most difficulty in sports. A tendency to soft roundness.

Also, we can be a combination of body types, such as Ecto-Meso or Meso-Endo. An Ectomorph may not be successful at weight training, whereas an Ecto-Meso would. Endomorphs are more suited to swimming than Ectomorphs.

As your skills and fitness increase, so will your enjoyment and confidence, and the range of sports open to you.

Exercise your options. Feeling fit is what it's all about.

Fit family started early

By Peggy O'Connor
Sports Editor

Julie and David DeGutis are anxiously awaiting this year's Belle Isle Y.M.C.A. run. It'll be Julie's fourth appearance in the run and her brother David's third time. Julie and David are 6- and 8-years-old, respectively.

And even at those tender ages, the DeGutises' list of sports and fitness activities would put many healthy, active adults to shame. Julie, who won her first Belle Isle YMCA run last year, has taken racquetball lessons, played indoor soccer and tennis, been a member of the Lakeshore YMCA T-ball team for two seasons and completed one year with the Grosse Pointe Soccer Association.

Her big brother just won the Junior 8 and under division of the Michigan Super 7 Racquetball Tournament; he's also played indoor soccer and tennis, participated in the Blue Water Festival Run in 1986, played T-ball for three years and in the GPSA for three years. Last spring, David's team finished second in the GPSA's 8 and under division.

"We started David in the YMCA's exercise program at 3 months and in swimming at 6 months," recalls his mother, Jill DeGutis. "I was concerned about my own fitness, wanting to get back in shape after David was born. So I thought I'd get back into exercising and provide him with some early fitness experience at the same time."

And David took it from there, the DeGutises say. The smiling, talkative 8-year-old they call

"Champ" is just "naturally enthusiastic about all sports," his father John says.

"He got himself involved in everything. We wanted to give David and Julie the opportunity to play whatever they wanted. When they don't want to play anymore, they don't have to," DeGutis explains.

John DeGutis is an educator in the East Detroit school system. He had an extensive sports background as a youngster, in college and in recent years. Jill DeGutis didn't have the same sports experience her children enjoy and says that watching them participate has made her realize what she missed.

"I think sports are fantastic opportunities for children to build self-image and self-esteem. I was always told sports weren't important, and I think I lacked a lot of the confidence I could have gotten if I'd participated. I see the difference in Julie and David. They see a gymnasium and they think it's their's to play in."

"And they just have so much more confidence than I had at that age," Jill DeGutis says. "Because of their involvement in sports, they are able — even as young as they are — to walk right into most situations and cope."

The kids' involvement in fitness has also gotten them into a routine that many parents would envy. "Julie and David motivate themselves," John DeGutis says. "They know that if they've got a game at 9 on Saturday, they've got to get themselves up at 7 a.m. and get dressed and have breakfast. And they do."

All in all, it adds up to a pretty positive experience, particularly when parents stay in the background and remain supportive, like the DeGutises, rather than push their children.

"If it's a non-pushy situation and the sport is more for the children's pleasure, where the parents merely open the door rather than push the kids through, it's surely beneficial for the kids," says Andrew Maltz, Ph.D., of the Grosse Pointe Center for Individual and Family Therapy.

"That's the biggest thing," John DeGutis says, "that the kids try something, get involved and if they don't like it, they can leave and make a choice to do something else."

"Plus, they're in a situation in sports where they learn that you don't always win, that things aren't always perfect."

Julie and David wonder what all the fuss is about when folks question them about their involvement in sports. Julie, who likes to read and work with computers when she's not playing sports, says that her favorite part of running is "winning"... then changes her mind and says that her real favorite is the "getting oranges and apples at the end of the race."

And David, who is giving his father a run for his money in the trophy department, says that his favorite sport is soccer. Or racquetball. "Or maybe basketball. I don't know," he says with a grin.

Free fitness programs offered by CHAMP

A number of free sports fitness programs remain on the schedule as part of the Cottage Hospital Athletic Medicine Program (CHAMP) Safe Sports series underway at Macomb Community College.

The next session is titled "Lower Leg/Foot Ankle Injuries - Footwear" and is planned for Tuesday, March 3, from 7 to 9 p.m. in Room P-130 at MCC. The lecture will cover care and prevention of common lower leg/foot and ankle injuries. Emphasis will be placed on prevention and determining when to return the athlete to action. A spokesperson from a local running store will be on hand to discuss footwear and equipment.

Balancing act: Part One

There are six nutrients — carbohydrates, fats, proteins, vitamins, minerals and water — that function through the foods we eat to furnish the body with heat, energy, material for growth and repair of body tissues, and assistance in the regulation of body processes. All of these nutrients must be present in the body in varying quantities in order for the body to maintain basic life processes. Although all persons have a need for the same nutrients, the amounts vary according to the age, sex, environment, body size, and level of activity of each individual.

In today's column we will concentrate on vitamins. There are about 20 substances that are believed to be active as vitamins in human nutrition.

Vitamins help regulate metabolism, help convert fat and carbohydrates into energy, and assist in the formation of bone and tissues. Your body cannot digest, reproduce, read a book or take a walk without requiring the use of one vitamin or another.

With the importance vitamins have to our health it is no wonder that they have become a source of discussion and controversy. One of the best ways to ensure that we are getting the necessary vitamins in our daily eating pattern is to a) eat foods as close to their natural state as possible, and b) eat a wide variety of foods.

Vitamins are usually distinguished as being either water soluble or fat soluble.

Vitamin A: A fat-soluble vitamin, it aids in the growth and repair of body tissues and helps maintain smooth, soft, disease-free skin, helps protect the mucous membranes of the mouth, nose, throat and lungs, is essential for proper digestion, strength of bones and teeth, and the formation of rich blood and maintenance of good eyesight.

Sources of vitamin A include green and yellow fruits and vegetables, milk, milk products, fish liver oil, (example — carrots, 10,000 I.U. one medium raw, spinach 8,000 I.U. 1 cup, cooked).

Vitamin B-complex: All B vitamins are water-soluble substances that can be cultivated from bacteria, yeast, fungi or molds. The grouping of these compounds under the term "B-Complex" is based upon their close relationship to each other. The B-complex vitamins are active in providing the body with energy, helping metabolize fats and proteins, and are probably the most single important factor for health of the nerves.

Sources of B-Complex vitamins are whole grains, brewer's yeast, brown rice, fish, soybeans, legumes, nuts, liver, and blackstrap molasses.

Vitamin C: Also known as ascorbic acid, vitamin C is another water-soluble vitamin. It plays a vital role in healing wounds, forming red blood cells, fighting bacterial infections and reducing the effects on the body of some allergy-producing substances. This is why vitamin C is often used in preventing and treating the common cold.

Sources of vitamin C include citrus fruits, canteloupe, broccoli, green peppers and strawberries.

Vitamin D: This is a fat-soluble vitamin and can be acquired by ingesting the vitamin through food or by exposure to sunlight. Vitamin D aids in the absorption of calcium, is valuable in maintaining a stable nervous system, normal heart action, and normal blood clotting. Sources of vitamin D include milk, egg yolks, sunlight, organ meats, bone meal, salmon, tuna. (Examples: milk, 100 I.U. per 1 cup, tuna, 300 I.U. per 4 oz.)

Vitamin E (Tocopherol): This fat-soluble vitamin is an anti-oxidant, which means it opposes oxidation of substances in the body. It acts as a healing agent not only for the skin surfaces, but within the body as well. It helps bring nourishment to the cells, and protects red blood cells. Vitamin E also guards against the damaging effects of many environmental hazards in the air, water and food. Sources of vitamin E include dark green vegetables, eggs, organ meats, wheat germ, vegetable oils, oatmeal.

Vitamin K: This vitamin can be manufactured in the intestinal tract in the presence of certain intestinal flora (bacteria). Vitamin K<sub>3</sub> is produced synthetically for those unable to utilize natural occurring K<sub>1</sub> and K<sub>2</sub>. This vitamin helps to heal bruises, prevent hemorrhage, and helps correct menstrual problems. Sources of vitamin K are green leafy vegetables, blackstrap molasses, safflower oil, yogurt and oatmeal.

Vitamin F: Another fat-soluble vitamin consisting of the un-saturated fatty acids. Fatty acids help regulate blood coagulation, make it easier for oxygen to be carried into the bloodstream, and help maintain resilience and lubrication of all cells. Some sources of vitamin E are safflower oil, soy oil, corn oil, wheat germ and sunflower seeds.

The best answer to the vitamin question is to eat as many varieties of foods possible.

'Mannequin' is limp, lifeless

By Michael Chapp
Special Writer

"Mannequin" follows the basic romance formula: Boy meets girl, boy falls in love with girl, boy marries girl. The twist here is that the girl is a mannequin, and the boy is the only one who can see her as a living person. Sound interesting?

It's not. Indeed, for a film which has so much potential for fun and lightheartedness, it's amazing how joyless the picture actually is. Most of its 90 minutes are filled with terrible jokes, completely implausible video sequences and extremely boring chase scenes. Only the ending contains some remotely worthwhile material, and even that is buried in syrupy melodrama and schlocky comedy.

Meet Emmy (Kim Cattrall), a nice, girl-next-door type who was born in 2514 B.C. in Edfu, Egypt. Emmy prays to be released from her impending marriage to a dung salesman. She asks the gods to free her from time's constraints so that she can see the world and do new and interesting things that nobody else has ever done.

Meet Jonathan (Andrew McCarthy), a perennial loser living in modern day Philadelphia. Jonathan can't hold a job or a girlfriend because he's so wrapped up in his artistic impulses. One thing he can do though, is build beautiful mannequins. And one day he molds a piece of wood that comes to life. As Emmy.

Now Emmy's no dummy. She's been traveling through time for centuries trying to find the right man. She dated Christopher Columbus and she had a thing for Michelangelo. But none of her lovers had what Jonathan does. Exactly what that is the film only reveals in the last few frames. Still, viewers are asked to suspend any disbelief and go along with the premise that a girl who has the ability to travel in time at will would want to hitch up as a piece of wood with a guy who can't hold a job.

Viewers will choose to subject themselves to such a premise of course, but only for awhile. It's only funny to see Jonathan caught kissing a piece of wood once, then it becomes routine. It's only slightly amusing to see an inept night security man (G.W. Bailey) trip over himself once, then it becomes redundant. It's only worth one chuckle to see a quirky window dresser (Meshach Taylor) fly into a homosexual fit once, then it becomes overkill.

And the subplot about a conniving department store executive (James Spader) and his plans to thwart Jonathan never does quite gel with the rest of the picture.

What's left is the screen quality of the lead performers. McCarthy does his best with the terribly weak material he's given; it's obvious that he deserves better than dumpster material like "Mannequin," however. And Cattrall is nice to look at. That's lucky, because she's asked to do little more in this picture than look good.

There's been a trend in the movies the past two years to do projects similar to "Mannequin." Two of the more prominent films are "Creator" and "Weird Science." Neither of them were particularly good, and both received criticism for perpetuating a sexist attitude that a "dream girl" could be created by a man, and that such a creation is nothing more than the playing of some especially enterprising individual.

"Mannequin" isn't quite as bad as "Weird Science" but it's a little worse than "Creator." No matter how one chooses to look at it, however, "Mannequin" is about as limp and lifeless as its namesake.

And contrary to the theme of the film, it's doubtful that there will be anybody who finds something special to be salvaged.

'Nonsense' breezes along on laughter

By Marian Trainor
Special Writer

There is a delightful musical comedy at the Birmingham Theatre that is too good to miss. It is a fun-filled production that breezes along on laughter and merriment. There are no fancy sets, elaborate costumes or electronic devices to grab the audience's attention. That the au-

Hubert, mistress of Novices. They are a wise and witty pair who occasionally jostle each other for authority.

Helen Baldassau is Sister Mary Amnesia. She was hit on the head with a falling crucifix and can't remember who she is.

Sister Mary Leo entered the convent to dedicate her life to God through dance. Some people thought she took her name from leotard, but that's not true. Actually she is named after Uncle Leo, a notorious gangster. She thought if she took his name, the Lord would go easy on him.

Sister Mary Robert Anne (Angelina Fiordellis) comes from a disadvantaged family. She is popular with the inner city kids where she teaches because she speaks their language. With her knowledge of stripping cars, she is able to keep the convent car going.

As the sisters explain in the opening scene, the group has a problem. They had to give up their missionary work in a remote area because 52 nuns died in a fire from a diabolical plot.

There was enough money to bury the nuns but Mother Superior used part of it to buy a Beta Max. As a result, four of the nuns had to be put in the freezer. Faced with the problem of arranging interment for the remaining deceased, the nuns decided to put on a variety show.

There are solos, duets and songs sung by the cast and jokes and skits in between.

Dan Goggin, who wrote the play, is from Alma, Mich. And it's evident that he was educated by nuns. He captures their mannerisms as thoroughly as their habits clothe them.

The play runs through March 6.

Theater

dience has a good time and goes away feeling happy seems to be its goal.

The jokes are corny. The play on words is shameless and the slight plot that holds it together is ridiculous. But it works, largely due to the outstanding talents of five actresses, all of whom are cast as nuns.

There is Sister Mary Regina (Peggy Cass) as Mother Superior, Marcia Lewis as Sister Mary Marcia Lewis and Peggy Cass star in "Nonsense" at the Birmingham Theatre.

ECHOES IN THE DARKNESS
by Joseph Wambaugh

Once upon a time in an exclusive Philadelphia suburb there lived two Susans. One was the middle-aged mistress of a handsome and charming man with the amorous proclivities of a Don Juan, who sees her hopes for marriage and children slipping through her fingers. The other Susan was a younger woman, divorced with two small children, an object of "Don Juan's" affections, and marked for murder. The principal of the exclusive school where they all taught was known by the staff as the "Prince of Darkness" — with good reason. With such characters in its cast, Joseph Wambaugh's ECHOES IN THE DARKNESS rivals any Gothic horror story. But Wambaugh doesn't write Gothic horror and this isn't fiction.

ECHOES IN THE DARKNESS is the account of the so-called "Main Line Murder Case" in Pennsylvania of several years ago. The excellence of the narration and detailed character analysis are the results of exhaustive research on Wambaugh's part.

It is a definite must for all Wambaugh fans, living up to the high standards set in his other non-fiction works. It is also proof positive that truth is far stranger than any fiction written.

Michigan Annual XV, a juried exhibition of Michigan art, opens today, Feb. 26, at The Art Center in Mount Clemens.

Jurist Michele Rowe-Shields, of Cranbrook Academy of Art Museum, sorted through nearly 200 entries to select the 38 pieces that make up the exhibition.

The exhibit's first place award went to Brian Fekete, of Grosse Pointe Park, for his oil painting titled "Offshore." Second place was awarded to Fekete's wife Nadine Slowic for her oil painting called "Earthbound."

Executive Director Jo-Anne F. Wilkie said "This is the first time a husband and wife have been winners in the competition." Wilkie also noted that Fekete took top honors in 1985's Michigan Annual and second in the 1986 exhibition.

Another local exhibitor is Carl of A. Sinclair of Grosse Pointe Woods. Her sculpture, "New Guinea Men's Hut" is on display.

The exhibition opens with the traditional Varnishing Night Reception tonight and continues through March 19.

Terror fills 'Dead of Winter'

By Marion Trainor
Special Writer

Two goldfish, a player piano that is activated by the owner's heartbeat and a bitter winter storm are important items that help to make Arthur Penn's "Dead of Winter" reminiscent of the Hitchcock school of terror.

From the beginning there is no doubt that the elderly psychiatrist in the wheelchair, Dr. Lewis (Jan Rubes) and his sinister accomplice, Mr. Murray (Roddy McDowall), are dangerous psychopathic killers. With that clearly established, it is only a matter of waiting to see what evil deeds they have in mind and how many moments of terror they evoke before the film ends.

Now that the film has our attention, we are introduced to Katie McGovern (Mary Steenbergen), a Broadway actress who is out of work. She is thrilled when she is picked to audition for a part that will be shot in an isolated farmhouse.

When she arrives at her desolate destination, she is welcomed by an obviously sinister Rubes. She becomes suspicious when she discovers that she has been cut off from the world. The phone wires have been cut, her I.D. is stolen and burned and she is brought back by force when she tries to escape.

These incidents build up to a series of grim happenings that go down to the last tense moments.

One of the distinguishing features of the film is that there are only three performers, all of whom turn in noteworthy performances. Rubes, as the psychiatrist is calm, deliberate, matter-of-fact thus adding to the suspense and terror. McDowall is equally frightening as he slinks about seeing that nothing goes wrong with the devious plan the two have set up.

Film

But it is Steenbergen who is both the victim and the focus that merits the lion's share of applause.

"Dead of Winter" contains suspense, atmosphere and good characterization.

We don't care if you paint your hair blue, rip the sleeves off your shirt or pierce your ear.

But don't smoke just to be like your friends
Or to be different from your friends.
Or to be anything at all.
Because with everything we know about cigarettes today, there's only one thing you'll be if you start smoking now.
And that's sorry.
Sorry you can't get up in the morning without coughing your lungs out. Sorry you can't climb a single flight of stairs without getting winded. Sorry that every time you light one up, your risk of heart disease goes up.
If you're already a smoker, take some time to stop and think it all the way through.
Right now, it's your decision.
In the long run, it's your life.

Snow Bird skiers have day in sun

The Snow Bird Club's "Parent Guest Day" on Feb. 7 featured warm temperatures, bright sun, good snow and no wind.

The Snow Bird's Father of the Year award was given James Greenfield, who joined his daughter, Amy, for a fun day on the slopes. Congratulations also go to the skiers who passed their ski test and moved up in the ranking.

Skiers who achieved the green patch are Katie Spicer, Seth Zorick, Dan Conroy and Heather Bossler. Skiers who achieved the yellow patch are Amanda Brown, Anne Maliszewski, Kathryn Kinard, Greg Ryan and Ben McGarvah.

Last weekend, the Snow Birds had another near perfect day for its club race, and all participants were great sports.

The Fun Race consisted of a short slalom, climbing uphill, chewing crackers, whistling, stopping for a drink of pop, ducking under two gates and finally a mad dash for the finish line. Surprisingly good times were turned in by all skiers in both the learner group, white through yellow patches, and the more advanced skiers, blue through black patches.

Winners in the white through yellow included: Anne Corona, first; Shawn Black, second; Amanda Brown, third.

Honors in the blue through Black went to: Meredith Dahl, first; Lindsey Holvick and Alex Wehmeier, second; Anne Petz, third.

The advanced skiers also had the opportunity to race the Nastar course. Final adjusted scores gave a gold medal to Mike Verinden. Siivers were awarded to Mike Whelan, Jamie Mertz and Amy Gmeiner.

Tina McKean, Melissa Ryan, Lauren Kordas and Courtney Youngblood took home the bronze.

Best times for the skiers with-out handicaps placed Michael Whelan in first place, Jamie Mertz in second and Amy Gmeiner in third place.

The following Snow Birds passed their patch test: black — Jamie Mertz and Courtney Youngblood; red — Tina McKean and Melissa Ryan; blue — Benjamin McGarvah, John Solobodowski, Amanda Brown, Steve Chevalier, John Dingeman and Hillary Eady; yellow — Shawn Black; green — Lauren Simmons.

"FUN DAY", Saturday, March 7, is the last scheduled trip for the year for the Snow Birds. Events for the day will include: fun contests and games on the slopes. If the weather permits, a skiers' picnic on the mtl with special treats will be included.

The Snow Birds' lost and found is beginning to bulge with hats, gloves, neck warmers, house keys, etc. Please call 824-4703 regarding any lost items.
