

Local politicians assess Reagan's management style

By Margie Reins Smith
Staff Writer

President Reagan's handling of the Iran-contra arms affair has brought criticism at the national, state and local level.

As expected, most Democrats are pointedly critical of Reagan's management style and predict he will not be able to rebuild his credibility for the remaining two years of his term.

Republicans, while critical of his handling of the affair, tend to speak in gentler terms and tend to talk of methods the president can use to correct past errors and regain his former level of popularity.

Most Democrats and Republicans alike praised the Tower Commission Report as an accurate, fair and impartial assessment of the details of the Iran-contra arms deal. And most politicians — across the board — praised Reagan's choice of former Senate Majority Leader

Howard Baker as the new chief of staff, replacing Donald Regan.

Several Grosse Pointe elected officials were asked their reactions to the Tower Commission's findings, particularly in relation to Reagan's management of the presidency. Kel Smyth, chairman of the Grosse Pointe Democrats, reacted like most of those polled. "There is something to be said for the 'hands off' management style," he said, "but in this case the hands weren't even there.

Hands-off policy only works when you have good people."

Democratic U.S. Rep. George W. Crockett Jr. said, "Reagan's advisers are at fault. Reagan is not interested and is not finding out what he needs."

Democratic U.S. Rep. Dennis M. Hertel issued a statement to the press through his office. "(The Tower Commission Report) has determined that the president is responsible, since people involved report directly to him."

Democratic U.S. Sen. Donald W. Riegle Jr. issued a statement through his office. "The report shows a record of poor management, poor records and poor memories. This has devastating consequences for foreign policy . . . The Tower Commission pointed to Donald Regan as a major part of the problem and he has to be replaced in short order. Three immediate steps must be taken: 1. The president needs new management people. (He) has to stay on top of things. It's not enough to delegate. 2. The people must be told the truth. (Reagan) can't hide the truth or say one thing and do another. 3. The White House has to obey the law."

Democratic U.S. Sen. Carl Levin issued a statement to the press. "The Tower Report confirms our worst fears. The president allowed subordinates to lead him — and the nation — into a very embarrassing and dangerous

A bloomin' sight

For eyes weary of winter gray and eager for spring's color, a greenhouse is the place to visit. Here James Farquhar, grandson of the original owner of Grosse Pointe Florist, tends the spring flowers in the only commercial greenhouse in Grosse Pointe. Located on Kerby, west of Kercheval, it has 5,000 square feet and the third generation florist says this is the best time of the year for flowers.

Mort Crim

As Mort Crim walks into the Clairpointe restaurant for lunch, a woman approaches him.

"I really like what you're doing on the news," she says.

Crim thanks her, then moves to take a seat.

"Usually people are just being friendly," he said. "Once in a while someone will attack you for something you said that they didn't like, but most are just being friendly. It's something that goes along with being on TV. It's a very personal medium."

As senior anchorman on WDIV-TV's 5:30 and 11 p.m. newscasts, Crim has one of the most recognizable faces in the Detroit area. "It's living in a fishbowl," he said. "But it goes with the job and you know it going in. It's a lot like going into politics. You adjust to things and expect it."

Crim came to Detroit from a television news position in Chicago in 1978.

"That position just didn't work out," he said. "The person I was supposed to replace didn't leave." Before Chicago, Crim worked for ABC Radio in New York as a newscaster and commentator. He also founded a radio and television program production company, Alcare Communications, Inc., which continues to produce syndicated programs and features in Philadelphia, though Crim sold the company in 1978. From 1980 until 1984, he served as permanent replacement for national radio commentator Paul Harvey during Harvey's vacations. Crim is host and associate editor for "The New Tech Times," a program on the Discovery cable network, and he is a national correspondent for Post-Newsweek television stations. He rounds out his schedule by appearing frequently as guest host on the PBS series, "Latenight America," and the nationally syndicated public affairs program, "Agronsky & Company."

If that sounds like enough to keep about three people busy, Crim acknowledges that it is quite a heavy schedule. That is why he gave up the Paul Harvey broadcasts.

"I did that for four years," Crim said. "He took more and more time off, however. On my normal schedule, I get to bed at 1:30 or 2 in the morning. Then I'd have to get up and do the Paul Harvey Show. It was an eight-hour job on top of my 10-hour job."

Crim's schedule, dictated by the times of his evening telecasts, makes spending time with his family difficult, but not impossible.

"We can never have dinner together because of my crazy schedule," Crim said.

He and his wife, Nicki, substitute regular lunches together for family dinners. Their daughter, Carey, attends Our Lady Star of the Sea High School, and their son, See POINTER, page 10A

Schools mobilize to put imprint on reform

By Nancy Parmenter
Staff Writer

Everybody's talking about reform of school financing, but the public shouldn't expect many concrete proposals for at least a year. Committees in the state House and Senate, a commission appointed by the governor, a commission appointed by the state school superintendent, an alliance of business interests, New Detroit, and a flock of individual legislators are all investigating the problem and hoping to come up with a solution.

What exactly the problem is depends upon who's talking. It could be over-reliance on the property tax, it could be an out-of-whack school aid formula, or it could be that schools everywhere in the state just plain need more money. It could be that money tempt. "I expect an effort to place a constitutional limit on the property tax," said ISD Associate Superintendent Daniel Manthe. "The difference would be made up from some other statewide tax. The danger of (some of the proposed changes) is that they could drag the top down as well as the bottom up."

Within two weeks the board voted to rejoin the Michigan Out-of-Formula District Association, seeking strength in numbers.

Grosse Pointe was one of the founding members of the association in 1980. It started with eight members and has grown to 100 member districts. There are 165 Michigan districts which, for varying reasons, do not fit into the state aid formula because their state equalized valuation per pupil in the district is higher than the limit. Some are wealthy districts, some experienced severe enrollment drops, others have moved out-of-formula because of the location of expensive resort property or industry in the district.

"This group is particularly attuned to our needs," said school Superintendent John Whritner.

The school aid formula was devised in the early 1970s as an attempt to make education more nearly equal. As land values increased and state aid fell during the 1980s recession, more districts moved out of formula, felt a budget pinch, made cutbacks. Michigan is now below the median in state support for public education, Whritner said.

"From a philosophical point of view, it's easy to say some reform is needed," he said. ". . . From our own selfish point of view, we have done an outstanding job of supporting education — but it's all been done on the backs of local taxpayers."

Whritner said he views possible attempts to take away from the richest districts as "a very serious threat" with ramifications reaching beyond the local school district.

One is in the example they set. "These districts serve as models for others at no cost to the state," he said. ". . . It's an educational issue, a political issue, it's also a real estate issue. To the extent that we hurt education in Grosse Pointe, we hurt property values. A large part of the cost of housing in Grosse Pointe is the cost of education."

The out-of-formula association retains a lobbyist in Lansing. The group hopes to keep abreast of legislative thinking and be ready to buttonhole local legislators when key votes come up.

Manthe says it can work. "Putting a lid on districts like Grosse Pointe was tried once before," he said. "Through the efforts of a goodly number of Grosse Pointe people, that was set aside."

There doesn't seem to be much disagreement locally that the poorest districts need more money. But the threat of producing it at the expense of the rich districts bothers people.

"We need more money for the people at the bottom," Manthe said, "but to achieve parity by reducing somebody is unacceptable to a lot of us."

"Grosse Pointe is already contributing to the state in the form of income tax — it probably sends more to Lansing than we ever get back in services," Whritner said. "I would hate to see the balance changed even further."

Bryant: "The people in this community are willing to pay more for other people's schools — they just want the right to pay (as much as they want) for their own."

There are a lot of pressures on state legislators to reform the property tax. Huge industrial property owners like General Motors have started to fight their property assessments. There is some feeling in Lansing that assessment of such property should be done by the counties or the state, either of which is likely to have a more highly trained assessor than is available at the local level. And if the assessment is done at a higher level, the money is likely to be collected — and disbursed — at a higher level as

March is tax appeals month

By Peter A. Salinas
Staff Writer

Boards of review throughout the Grosse Pointes and Michigan will meet this month. Property owners seeking to reduce their valuation must appear before a local board before arguing the case before the state tax tribunal.

Getting a reduction in property valuation is no simple task, however. An owner must provide verifiable evidence to the three-member panel. A belief that someone else's property is valued lower isn't enough.

"Our biggest complaint is that they (property owners) are paying too much," Farms city Comptroller Carrol Locke said.

Although property valuations have a direct effect on the amount of tax a resident pays, the number of mills levied is what determines the tax. The board of review can do nothing to change the number of mills.

Since there is no way to raise or lower the levy except by popular vote, as in a school millage election or a municipal bond vote, many residents armed with real estate appraisals or sales figures attempt to attack high taxes through board of review property value reductions.

Locke said the best evidence one can bring in is sales figures from a Dec. 31 property purchase. Since that is the date the property is actually assessed, it would be the most accurate figure as to the value of the property.

"Since most people don't purchase land on that date the next best thing is a good, valid appraisal by a qualified appraiser," Locke said. He added that a resident shouldn't expect to impress the panel with cursory or hearsay evidence.

Jim Ellison, Park assessor, said many people come to the board of review complaining that their property is assessed above what they paid for the house.

Ellison said the Park has an ordinance which requires a homeowner to maintain the house in good condition. Therefore, if a home as deteriorated and is purchased at a reduced price, the new homeowner must bring the house up to meet the code as required by the ordinance, and therefore its value is increased.

"The board of review could grant a reduction in the valuation for one year," Ellison said. "But the following year the assessment would rise, because the homeowner would have been required to upgrade the condition of the home."

Aside from the structural and aesthetic value of a home or business, there are other considerations which have an effect on the value of property.

Ellison said nuisance problems, such as having a bar with a great deal of traffic or a school nearby, can reduce property's value.

"In most cases we have already taken that into consideration when we figure the value of the property," Ellison said. "There can be a new situation we are not familiar with, and a resident could bring that evidence to a board of review."

When nuisance situations like that come up, however, there is usually a considerable discussion between residents and the council, and the assessor has become aware of the situation.

Dennis Foran, City director of finance, said residents can make appointments to meet with the board of review.

Foran said that in 1986 some 130 appointments were made. He said that the high number of appointments was due to an increase in valuations throughout the city, which brought the valuations in line with what the state said they should be.

The city is planning a reassessment for next year, Foran said. He added that by allowing the state to continue to place a factor on the valuations, a move which raises the property values and thus, taxes, tends to distort assessments between high value and lower value properties.

"What happens is it eliminates equity," Foran said.

Meetings in the City are scheduled 10 minutes apart, but the length varies depending on each resident's need. Each city noted that the duration of the hearings is usually brief.

If a resident feels he did not receive satisfaction from the local board of review, he may take his case before the Michigan Tax Tribunal. Those meetings with the state are set up individually no later than June 30.

The board of review will meet in the City on Monday, March 16, and Tuesday, March 17, from 9 to 11 a.m. and from 2 to 4 p.m.

In Grosse Pointe Shores, (townships of Lake and Grosse Pointe) meetings will be held Monday, March 9, from 9 a.m. to noon and from 1:30 to 5 p.m.

In Grosse Pointe Woods, meetings are scheduled for Tuesday, March 10, and Tuesday, March 24, from 9 a.m. to noon and from 1:30 to 5 p.m.

Grosse Pointe Farms residents will meet with the board Tuesday, March 10, from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. and 6 to 8 p.m., and on Tuesday, March 24, from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m.

In Grosse Pointe Park, residents may attend the board of review from 8:30 a.m. to 8:30 p.m. with a noon to 1 p.m. and 5 to 6 p.m. recess.

Flood plain study near completion

By Pat Paholsky
News Editor

The Flood Plain Study Committee appointed by Park Mayor Palmer Heenan last October expects to submit a report to the council this month. Chairman Fred Olds said the means of financing any flood control projects will also be presented to the council for consideration.

Following that, the council will likely call for a public hearing on the matter, he said.

At the recommendation of the committee, the council in November approved an expenditure of $25,000 for an engineering report. Consulting engineers Hubbell, Roth and Clark subsequently made a study and submitted its findings and recommendations to the committee.

Some of the recommendations include immediate relief to the shoreline in the form of permanent earth fill in certain locations and replacing the existing seawalls along the shore with interlocking steel sheet piling.

"We are also examining what should be done on the western boundary — Fox Creek — and considering ways to finance that," Olds said.

The proposal last October to build a three- to five-foot high seawall along Fox Creek prompted charges of racial motivation. The seawall would block through traffic on five streets that connect with Detroit.

The director of Detroit's Engineering Department, Clyde Hopkins, subsequently attended a Park council meeting. He told the council he would recommend a $9 million dike around Fox Creek and adjoining canals to eliminate possible flooding. The dike was one of the recommendations of a consulting firm hired by Detroit to study the flooding problem.

Following a meeting between Heenan and Mayor Coleman Young when Young spoke recently to the Grosse Pointe Senior Men's Club, two copies of the Detroit report were released to the Park administration in exchange for two copies of the Park report.

"The Detroit report is more general and has many more options," City Manager John Crawford said. "Their flood plain is completely different from ours which is residential and some recreational."

Solutions to the problem involve more than the two cities, however. Fox Creek is a Wayne County drain. Also any plan to eliminate the flood plain designation would require the approval of the Federal Emergency Management Agency, FEMA, according to Olds, is favorable to the city's proposals, but formal approval has not been granted.

The Flood Plain Study Committee met every two weeks until a month or two ago, he said, when the group began meeting every week.

"We will continue meeting every week until it's finalized," he said. "I hope by the first of May that we will be done."

The committee consists of 10 citizens and Councilman John Prost and City Manager Crawford.

Hospital helps fathers beep in touch

Women who plan to deliver their babies at Bon Secours Hospital will soon be able to keep in touch with their husbands during the last three weeks of their pregnancies. A new system called Page for Dad will begin March 4 — the first of its kind on the east side of Detroit, according to Judy Lafata, R.N., director of obstetrical and gynecological nursing at Bon Secours.

It's an electronic beeper. "Dad carries it with him at all times and it's effective for 75 miles," said Lafata. It's ideal for fathers who can't be easily reached during the day by phone. "The wife dials the number on the pocket pager. When the husband gets beeped, he calls home." She calls the hospital to tell them she's on the way. If she has to leave home before her husband's call, he calls Bon Secours and gets her message.

Lafata said interest in the beepers came from the hospital's prenatal classes. The five-week classes for prospective parents attract about 100 couples each month.

"So far, we have 20 couples signed up for beepers," said Lafata. "We'll order more, as needed."

Subscribers pay a $10 deposit when they receive their beeper. 1795 Monday through Friday between 8 a.m. and 4:30 p.m.

Choir to present 'Superstar'

Following the success of "Godspell" and "Grease," the Grosse Pointe North Concert Choir will present the rock opera, "Jesus Christ Superstar," at 8 p.m. Friday, Saturday and Sunday, March 19, 20 and 21 at the Grosse Pointe Performing Arts Center, 707 Vernier, Grosse Pointe Woods.

The choir consists of more than 90 students under the direction of Ben Walker. "Superstar" tells the story of all the happenings in the last two weeks of Christ's life from the view of those around him, primarily Judas, Peter, Mary Magdalene and Pilate. Part of the cast of 90 are members Brad Keatts as Jesus, George Mashour as Judas, Scott Tenkel as Peter, Rosanne Loericchio as Mary Magdalene, and Brad Egan as Pilate.

This highly contemporary work will be even more enriched with unique staging and special effects. Two new songs written by the composer Andrew Lloyd Webber have been added to the show.

Tickets are $4 (reserved) or $3 (general admission) and will be available at All Pointes Book Shop, 20531 Mack Ave., two blocks south of Vernier.

Senior citizens are invited to attend the dress rehearsal performances on Tuesday, March 17, at 9:15 a.m. or Wednesday, March 18 at 1 p.m. To obtain tickets for all performances bring your gold cards to North High School in the cafeteria breezeway, on March 10 and 11 between 11 a.m. and 1 p.m. Gold cards will not be honored at All Pointes Book Shop.

New evidence of excellence of our schools

A new comparison of Grosse Pointe school district figures with those for the state and nation offers evidence to support local people's belief in the excellence of their school system.

Grosse Pointe excels in at least four respects. It stands higher than the state and nation on the American College Testing Program college entry tests, lower on the student-teacher ratio, higher on expenditures per pupil and higher on average teacher salaries.

These figures, reported in greater detail in the news columns today, illustrate two types of superiority for the Pointe district as contrasted with the state and nation. One is that the district through the high expenditures per pupil, which accounts for the low student-teacher ratio and the high average of teacher salaries, provides better financial support for its schools than do other district in the state or nation. The second is that the high ACT scores offer evidence that the students are profiting from the district's investment.

The Grosse Pointe system also does extremely well in another comparison even though the local figures are only estimates. That is in its high school graduation rate.

In the Pointes, it is estimated at about 96 percent, while in Michigan as a whole the graduation rate is 71.9 percent or 31st among the 50 states.

Yet as the state reviews the problems of public education, and ways to attack them, there is talk of putting limitations on the amount of money that districts such as the one in the Pointes could invest in students in a per capita basis.

The argument is that districts such as this one are "unfair" to districts that cannot afford to spend as much per pupil. One effect, the argument goes, is that districts such as this one "bid up" the level of teacher salaries and thus put an unwarranted additional expense on poorer districts.

Yet that kind of thinking, if implemented, could result in universal mediocrity. It could also end the kind of experimentation and research being done by well-financed districts that often results in benefits for all school districts.

Fortunately, there is not as yet great public pressure to penalize wealthier districts that are willing and able to invest more money in their schools than do poorer districts. In fact, there is more talk of raising state aid for the districts that need more help and Pointes in the past have been receptive to such proposals even when they do not bring more state money to the Pointes.

Yet since a proposal has been made to limit spending in some districts, Grosse Pointes ought to be aware of the dangers involved in such an idea, even as they see the new evidence of the excellence of their own system that evolved in part from their willingness to invest generously in it.

A JOA in Detroit's future

The public hearings called by the justice department on the request by the two daily newspapers in Detroit for approval of a joint operating agreement probably will delay a final decision by as much as another year and perhaps even more.

That estimate is based on the experience in both Cincinnati and Seattle where hearings were held on similar applications and where it took more than two years in each case from the time of application until approval finally was granted. It already has been more than nine months since the Detroit News and the Detroit Free Press filed their application.

True, the hearings were called in this case as in earlier situations because of public protests. Many people in the Detroit metropolitan area have expressed thoughtful reasons for opposing the JOA proposal. But the time it took the justice department just to decide to call public hearings does seem extreme, even considering the fact that the government bureaucracy seldom moves at more than glacial speed.

Yet if there is economic justification for the JOA, which both papers insist there is, then the government is ordering the applicants to continue to lose money for another year or so until a final decision is arrived at. That appears to be an odd move, especially for an administration that has been unusually receptive to corporate requests for deregulation and expansion. Yet, under the circumstances, we think it likely the papers will eventually get what they want even after a long delay to permit the public to sound off about the proposal.

Having said all that, however, we hope a case can be made for rejection of the JOA. Knight-Ridder and Gannett are the two largest newspaper chains in the nation in terms of daily circulation, and both have continued to make profits year after year, despite claims that both Detroit papers have continued to rack up losses almost every year. Indeed, one of the questions raised in the attorney general's order is what caused the Detroit News losses in 1986 after the paper made a small profit in 1985. A change in Gannett's allocation of costs of supervising the Detroit operation could itself account for such a shift.

In the end, however, if the two dailies prove that the Free Press is a failing newspaper under terms of the Newspaper Preservation Act, a joint operating agreement would be preferable to a one-newspaper city. Competition on a daily basis would be ended by the death of the Free Press or News. Competition would be eliminated in advertising and circulation efforts by the JOA and would be reduced in the news field through the circulation of joint papers on Saturdays and Sundays. But even limited daily newspaper competition would be better than none, from the standpoint of both readers and advertisers.

Either way, customers are likely to pay more for their daily newspaper service and for advertising. That has been the experience in the more than 20 other cities that have joint operating agreements. True, if the JOA is rejected, it is possible that the Free Press, or perhaps even the News, might die, but if they continue without a JOA both could be expected to raise circulation and advertising rates. True, they could not engage in the cozy JOA kind of relationship to do so without violating the anti-trust laws. So they would have to be circumspect about such moves.

So while we don't necessarily like it, we see a JOA in Detroit's newspaper future. The questions left are when it will happen and what it will cost us, not only in money but in reduced news coverage.

How to retire Crockett

In opposing Rep. George Crockett's reelection last November, the Grosse Pointe News said it was unlikely that Mary Griffin, his Republican opponent, could unseat him but that a strong showing by Mrs. Griffin "might alert the congressman to the criticism of his performance and persuade him to modify his views."

As he expected, the congressman was returned with 87 percent of the vote, and has shown little evidence of any change in his views. In Republican Grosse Pointe Park and Grosse Pointe City, however, his constituents did show their unhappiness with the congressman by giving a majority of their votes to his opponent.

Now a new campaign has been started by a coalition of conservative groups to have Crockett expelled from the House Foreign Affairs Committee on grounds he is "a Communist collaborator" as well as a "severe risk" to our nation's security.

The coalition charged that as the new chairman of the Foreign Affairs subcommittee on Western Hemisphere Affairs, with jurisdiction over legislation concerning Central America, Crockett will have increased access to classified documents whose misuse could jeopardize U.S. foreign policy.

Yet Crockett's record should be no surprise to his district. In last fall's campaign, Mrs. Griffin accused the congressman of being a "red apologist," as well as being out of step with his district on domestic affairs. The congressman said in response he didn't know what the "red apologist" term meant but in a recent statement he added:

"I've never collaborated with the Communist Party as such. Admittedly, some of the positions I've taken, dictated by the U.S. Constitution, have coincided with the desires and positions of the Communist Party, like supporting freedom of speech."

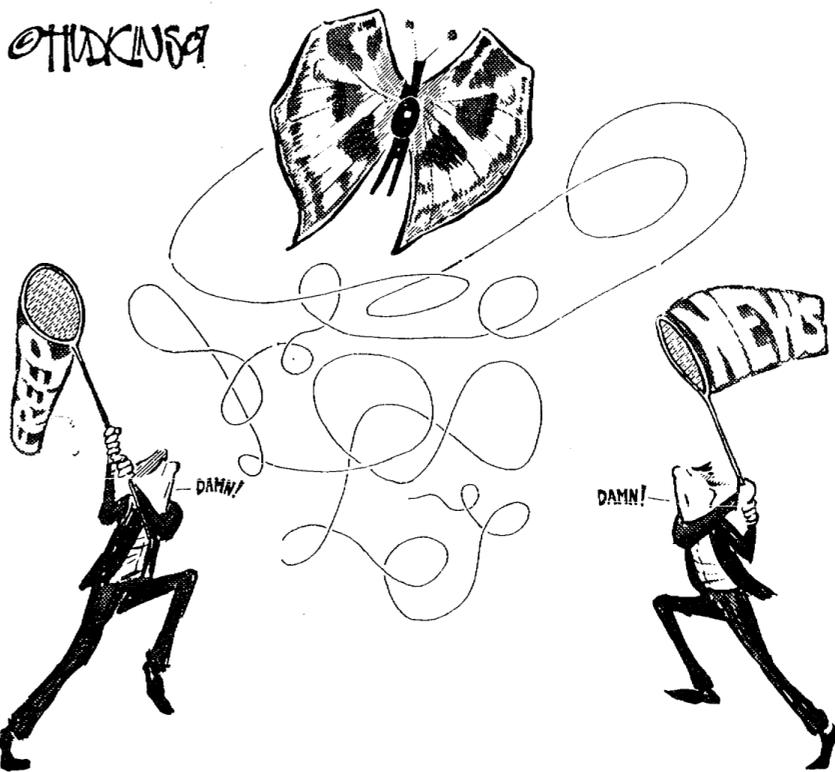

Nor is it any secret in Washington that the congressman has consistently opposed U.S. foreign policy under the Reagan administration and has maintained left-wing positions on many issues since 1949 when he was jailed for four months for contempt of court for his defense of 11 members of the New York Communist Party.

He recently told the Washington Post he has not introduced a single bill in his six years in Washington, although he has supported many. He contends "we have enough legislation now to take care of just about every situation that arises, if we will just enforce it and apply it."

Despite his record, he apparently has not broken the law and thus is guilty only of holding views that are anathema to the conservative coalition seeking his ouster and to many of his constituents in the two Grosse Pointe communities he represents. Yet he continues to get heavy support from the Detroit part of his district.

Under the circumstances, his critics who seek his ouster from his committees could use their time better learning how to rebut Crockett's views — and finding and supporting a candidate who could do a better job of proposing alternatives to them.

In short, the place to attack Crockett is still at the ballot box.

Letters

To the owner of a golden retriever

To Whom It May Concern:

I met your beautiful male golden retriever yesterday. You could say we met almost by accident — literally. My car just missed him as he crossed Jefferson from Cameron Place to Roosevelt Place yesterday at about 2:45 p.m. I parked on Roosevelt and attempted to return him to you. That's a friendly dog you have there. He saluted the street signpost and then sat beside me and visited. He's the strong, silent type. I did all the talking. He wouldn't speak, didn't offer a paw to shake and couldn't show me any I.D.

A young man driving a mini-trash pick-up truck for the city stopped and offered to drive over to the police station to report him. A gentleman named Tim and his dog, Gus, stopped to chat. Your guy was a perfect gentleman and I continued to scratch his ears and try out every name I could think of that would fit. He showed no response beyond leaning against me for a few more scratches.

When the officer arrived he showed no particular reaction until the policeman reached for his collar. He snapped and bolted across Jefferson forcing cars to stop in both directions. Perhaps it was the uniform or maybe he has a "rap sheet" already and didn't want to add to it. When last seen, he was ambling down Cameron Place.

He's a handsome, charming fellow. His manners are perfect and his grooming impeccable. I know you love him. I could easily love him too. I hate to even think of how close he came to getting killed yesterday. So, please, if I meet him again, let it be at the end of a leash so I can meet you too.

Tuition correction

To the Editor:

As reported Feb. 19 on the business page of this newspaper, Grosse Pointe Cooperative Nursery School is celebrating its 35th anniversary this year. In the same article, however, our tuition was incorrectly reported . . . in fact it was doubled. It is vital to set the record straight.

Tuition at Grosse Pointe Cooperative Nursery School is only $350 per year for the 4-year-old program. This class meets three days a week. Tuition is only $248 per year for the 3-year-old program. This class meets two days per week.

We are proud to have been a viable and unique business for 35 years and we plan to be in business for at least another 35. We offer a quality program at an affordable price. We hope everyone who read about our fine school is reading this letter and will tell a friend about the tuition correction.

Unfortunate

To the Editor:

Regarding the article about Kathryn Gee in the Feb. 26th edition of the Grosse Pointe News:

The article was nicely written about a woman of talent and abilities, but how unfortunate . . . The Women's International League for Peace and Freedom of which she served as president of the Detroit chapter for five years, has been described in two different books ("The War Called Peace," published by Western Goals, of Alexandria, Va., in 1982, and "Target America," published by See LETTERS, page 8A

Innocents abroad

My brother-in-law is writing a book. He has plenty to say on a variety of topics, as evidenced by the files overflowing from cabinets all over his office, but in this case he is going to unburden himself on the subject of traveling with children.

He's had experience. For a total of at least two years, he's traveled by train, van and bicycle over the United States and Europe from England to Greece. With kids.

But I know these kids. Hey, I'm their aunt.

These are not kids who say "are we there yet?" as soon as you drive out the driveway. They don't go on a diet of hamburgers and corn on the cob as soon as you hit foreign soil.

These are kids who made up the back half of a team on tandem bicycles, who enjoyed France even though thieves disguised as helpful redcaps stole all their clothes. Kids who are satisfied with yogurt and fruit for lunch.

They don't eat Twinkies.

I can't wait to read Kirk's book. If his advice manages to turn regular quarreling, complaining, whining, punching kids into yogurt-eating travelers, it'll be a bestseller.

But it's too late for me. My kid is all grown up and already giving advice to me.

What I'd like to see Kirk do for his next project is a book called "Weird Stuff That Happens to Traveling Americans Because They Don't Understand What They're Getting Into." That's something I could use.

It could have sections on how to eat beef tendons without gagging, and how much to tip for a service you didn't need in the first place. How to get along guiltlessly and without going broke — in a poor country where everyone is convinced you are incredibly rich. We're all rich in experiences where we have floundered in dire need of this kind of advice.

My first time was years ago as a college student when I decided to work in Switzerland specifically because I could speak some French and German. My first morning at work, I walked into the hotel kitchen with a beautifully composed German introductory speech that met with blank stares. My co-workers were all Italian. Nobody had told me about guest workers.

My most recent time was on a trip to Jamaica where most of the Americans spent half the time whispering behind their hands — wondering how then to tip for services we never even knew existed. We finally discovered by accident that the secret lies not only in the amount, but in the timing.

Our friend Mel made the mistake of tipping his headwaiter the day before we left. Penuriously, apparently. The next morning, the man's revenge was clear when the rest of the departing visitors breakfasted at tables covered with hibiscus blossoms. Mel, hibiscusless, couldn't get anybody to wait on him.

What do you do when your Greek neighbor goes down to the harbor daily to dynamite fish? Kirk's book could recommend that you not report the illegal act to the police if you plan to continue your vacation alive.

In fact, the police would have to constitute an entire chapter. In most Third World countries, the police have the last word, as well as the first and every other word if you get into a dispute. But in a few places like Crete, the natives are so fierce that even the police don't cross them. That same fish dynamiter used to flash diabolical grins at wimpy Americans as he stalked their cat with a high-powered rifle.

Nudism at the beach is de rigueur in some countries and verboten in others. Better find out which is which.

For that matter, it's a good idea to check out the local flora and fauna. After we sorted out beach nudism in Jamaica, we had to cope with the beach itself, which was sand only to the water, where a pocked limestone shelf took over for about a hundred feet. An English friend told us the stuff was so hard to walk on that he had perfected a technique of kind of slithering on his hands, knees and belly across the rock to the deeper area.

Happy to know the secret, we were however saved from putting it into practice when one of the locals warned us the very next day never to walk on the rocks, which are home to stinging sea urchins. (Guess our friend had just been lucky so far.)

But along with the lesson in marine biology came one in folk medicine.

"If an urchin stings you, no problem," he told us in that laid-back Jamaican way. "Just pee on it."

I bet Kirk doesn't know that.

Whoa, boy!

Several weeks ago we reported here that there was an inordinate number of births appearing in our society section, due perhaps, we thought, to the heat wave and large storm that had passed this way nine months ago.

But now we need new answers. Jim Simon, owner of Hill & Hill Tobacconists Ltd. in the Woods, said he has been having a run on "It's a boy" and "It's a girl" cigars for the past three months, and that there has been about three times the normal amount of "It's a boy" cigars (both tobacco and chocolate) sold of late.

"I don't know what it is," he said. "We usually sell a few more boxes of 'It's a boy' cigars, but this — this is incredible. I haven't seen such a run in 12 years."

Generous gift

A former longtime Grosse Pointe resident and her husband recently made a sizeable donation for a library in the Florida community of Citrus Springs.

Dr. John and Virginia (Hoelze) Buelke made the donation for a new library building as a memorial to their parents.

Virginia said the new library has two wings: Buelke Center for ideas and concepts and Hoelze Center for arts and forms.

Virginia, who lived in Grosse Pointe for 48 years, graduated from Grosse Pointe High School and went on to teach at Pierce and Brownell schools for 27 years. She was assistant principal at Brownell.

Her husband, John, is a retired professor from Western Michigan University.

She said that Howard Lawrence, a former South High social studies teacher who now lives in Citrus Springs, is one of the library's directors.

With many friends still in Grosse Pointe, the couple wanted us to say hello and make note of the new library. Virginia left Grosse Pointe in 1975, but the couple has a summer home in South Haven.

Barely believable

We received a totally loveable stuffed Michigan sesquicentennial bear at our office last week. He's sooo cute. The loveable little guy is a black bear who's wearing a blue and white sesquicentennial T-shirt.

Then we started looking at the toy a little more closely.

He is hand-washable and made of all-new material — synthetic fibers, shredded polyfoam and he's "Sewn in Haiti."

Suddenly, the Sesqui-bear was a lot less adorable.

We also discovered that there are sesquicentennial key chains which have been distributed around the state — they're made in Italy.

Now let's see — bears from Haiti, key chains from Italy, moose from Canada, pheasants from China and cars from Japan. What's next?

Yesterday's Headlines

March 20, 1947 —

The New York Times reported that United Mine Workers head John L. Lewis yielded to the U.S. Supreme Court and withdrew his contract termination notice to the U.S. government which resulted in a coal strike the previous fall and threatened to bring another strike in April.

The secretary of state warned the Soviet Union and France that the rebuilding of German industry to pay for reparations would endanger peace. The warning was delivered as the deadlock in the Council of Foreign Ministers over Germany's economic future seemed to give way slightly.

President Truman, in a message to Congress, requested extension of government controls over exports for a year beyond the expiration date in June. He said controls should be continued over the export of products in critical short supply here and abroad. This, he said, was in order to protect the economy of the United States as well as to discharge our international responsibilities.

Anna Dodge Dillman, 70, filed for divorce from ex-actor Hugh Dillman. Mrs. Dodge, residing in a Palm Beach, Fla. hotel, brought the suit in Wayne County Circuit Court. She was the widow of Horace Dodge, one of the Dodge brothers, who left her a fortune of more than $50 million.

Charles "Lucky" Luciano, former New York gangster, was put aboard a Turkish ship in Cuba by police for deportation to Italy. Luciano, who entered Cuba as a tourist, was arrested following announcement by the U.S. Narcotics Bureau that all shipments of drugs to Cuba would be banned owing to his presence there. The Cuban president ordered Luciano's deportation as an undesirable alien.

The Irish government announced it would ration firewood to meet the crisis in domestic fuel supplies. It said householders could expect only a half ton of peat and firewood for April and May.

In Grosse Pointe, Woods officials closed a land contract deal March 14 for 43.7 acres of the Edsel Ford estate. At noon March 15, the plot was declared a park of Grosse Pointe Woods for the use of residents. The move was made with promptness to provide a legal stay against the Woods payment of further taxes to St. Clair Shores. The Woods paid $60,000 for the land.

Following a meeting of the Victory Garden Council in the school board offices, it was announced that community garden space would be made available to residents who were interested. Residents were advised to notify their municipal clerks so sufficient land could be made available.

The following police story was reported: "Further questioning coupled with some well-place threats of a trio of thieves caught by Detroit police has brought about the recovery of some of the loot stolen from a Grosse Pointe Farms home. A Farms sergeant put the heat on a suspect to tell what happened to a platinum and diamond wedding band stolen from the home . . . Patient persuasion finally coaxed the ring out of the suspect . . ."

Another police story related that the manager of the Kresge store on Kercheval called on police to help him round up three small boys who were darting in and out of the store, squirting patrons with water guns. The police rounded up a gun bearer "who was almost too small to mention, but the patrons testified the water he used was just as wet as that which might have been used by a much larger sharpshooter."

The county road commission surveyed traffic on Kercheval between Cadieux and St. Clair and Neff. The commission was opposed to the angle parking in the area. It was expected that when the commission's report was concluded, the practice would be discontinued.

The City and the Park began studying the necessity of planning future development. The store began: "Whether it be the spirit of spring when the birds start building their nests and the farmers planting seeds, or from some other unexplained source, it is noticeable that at least two of the Grosse Pointe municipalities have been giving thought recently to the greater beautification and development of their communities."

A letter from Christ Church was read at the Woods council meeting requesting permission to establish a mission of the church in the old Renmore Country Club property located at Lochmoor and Fairway. The owner of the property, John Sweeney, donated it to the church.

Chicken pox topped childhood diseases in the Pointes in February, it was reported, with 81 cases.

An ad placed with Ryons Juvenile and Sports Footwear read: "Will the person who pilfered a pair of patent strap slippers from our display window please return with the child for whom they were taken, in order that we may correctly fit the child? Regardless of how procured, we definitely do not want any footwear to leave our store if improperly fitted."

Just checking

It was at the beginning of the Grosse Pointe City council meeting when Mayor Lorenzo "Red" Browning said it was time to pay the bills.

After the council authorized its payments, Browning, who noticed Farms Mayor Joseph Fromm in the audience, welcomed him to the meeting.

Fromm stood up and said, "I came to make sure you pay your bills."

Surprisingly, no one asked him if he'd like to make a donation.

CF chairwoman understands illnessBy Pat Paholsky
News Editor

When Tracy Taber Wiczerza was three months old, she was diagnosed as having cystic fibrosis. Doctors told her parents she would probably not live past 5.

She then completed 12 years at University Liggett School, living, she said, a normal childhood. The first time she was hospitalized was when she was 17 and in her last year of high school.

Parents who discover their child has cystic fibrosis "are in a panic until they meet me," the 23-year-old woman said.

Wiczerza was named state chairwoman for the Kiss Your Baby campaign that was actively promoted during the month of February. The campaign, which began last September, is primarily concerned with making the public aware of cystic fibrosis, since early diagnosis can lengthen

She still has miles to travel en a child's life.

"A lot of people aren't diagnosed until later in life," she said. Even doctors overlook the symptoms, she added, which masquerade as asthma, allergies and colds. One of the symptoms of CF is a salty taste to the skin, hence the Kiss Your Baby campaign.

Other symptoms are recurrent wheezing, persistent coughing with excessive mucus, pneumonia more than once, excessive appetite with poor weight gain, enlargement of fingertips, perspiration which leaves a salty residue on the skin, persistent, bulky, foul-smelling stools and nasal polyps.

A simple test, called a sweat test, is available at Children's, Harper Grace, Henry Ford and Sinai hospitals, among others.

Wiczerza said one in 20 people have the CF gene and since it's a recessive trait, it takes two carries to produce a baby with CF.

The problem is people don't know they're carriers until they have a child. "We're getting closer in research to test for carriers," she said.

Treatment consists of taking enzymes to aid the digestive process. CF produces mucus which blocks the pancreatic ducts so that food goes through the system without leaving any nutrients. The youngster with CF literally starved to death years ago.

Now the lung infections are what kills, Wiczerza. Treatment consists of chest physical therapy or postural drainage, a procedure of clapping the back with a cupped hand to break up the mucus.

A physical therapist comes to Wiczerza's home every morning. The process is repeated once or twice more during the day and Wiczerza's husband Steve takes care of that. "He's my major therapist."

Then there is periodic hospitalization that can last several weeks in which the patient is given antibiotics intravenously. Wiczerza was released from the hospital last week after 11 days of treatment.

"We started the (Kiss Your Baby) campaign in September and I have been in the hospital about four times since then," she said. "So the campaign shifted from my house to my hospital room. It was kind of neat. I do more now than when I was working."

She laughs when she talks about her "big working career" that lasted nine months. She worked in a doctor's office, which she said she enjoyed very much. It wasn't realistic, she admits, since she was surrounded by sick people and she is highly susceptible to infection.

"I like working with people and working with the foundation is a good replacement," she said. "I feel pretty popular. I get to meet all these celebrities and go to banquets."

She has met members of the Detroit Tigers and Detroit Lions who are involved with clubs called 65 Roses. The name comes from a little girl with cystic fibrosis who, when asked what she had, replied, "Sixty-five roses."

The life expectancy today for people with CF is 23 years. And Wiczerza, who is 23, says, "It's hard to think, gee, I could die. I want to have a baby. I want to do all kinds of things. It's just statistics. I've got a ways to go."

From the CapitolStudying self-esteemBy William R. Bryant Jr.
State Representative

Cartoonist-cynic Gary Trudeau, as well as more than a few media types, has had great fun panning and poking fun at a new California commission.

California may be la-la land. Who could deny it? Right?

The commission is to study the relevance of low self-esteem to social problems, a Commission on Self-Esteem.

What possible relevance could there be in low self-esteem, low respect for self-worth, for the possibility of making opportunity work, low respect for the body, mind and spirit?

How could low self-esteem be relevant to poverty, crime, poor performance in school or job, alcohol and other drug abuse, teenage pregnancy, juvenile delinquency, divorce, spouse and child abuse, school drop-outs, suicide, mental and physical illness and other social problems?

How could it be relevant? Easy! How one views oneself, whether one feels worthy of succeeding, of being viewed as competent or likable or lovable, whether one honors his or her own capacities, and body, mind and spirit is a basic determining factor affecting health and behavior.

Regnery Gateway, of Chicago, in 1981) that describe that organization in some detail.

The following quote is but one small example: "WILPF for many years has been thoroughly penetrated by members and supporters of the Moscow-line Communist Party, U.S.A. and partisan radicals who look to various Soviet-backed 'terrorist national liberation movements' as models of a future revolutionary Utopia. WILPF works intimately with two Soviet-controlled international fronts, the World Peace Council (the major Soviet-controlled international Communist front organization)

Some politicians and, I hope, even more non-politicians, are getting angry at policies and programs of government and charities that, year after year, with millions after millions of dollars, poke and prod at symptoms of societal ills and fail to solve problems, fail to solve them because they fail to deal with causes, root causes.

Yes, one needs to ask what, in turn, causes lack of self-esteem? For one thing, actual lack of opportunity, in education and jobs, we all know, can easily result in low self-esteem. Even a harsh word, though, can precipitate a loss of self-esteem. Human spirit can be so strong and brave and resistant, at times, and so fragile and subject to such great damage at other times.

We need better education for all children. We need more jobs and more good jobs.

We also need to recognize that there are ways of letting people know they are miracles, they have great worth, and that there are others who will honor that worth and fight for their right to find and fully realize all their capacities.

Teens can learn to so respect their own bodies, minds and spirits they will be far more resistant to the ravages of teen pregnancy, alcohol, drugs, crime and self-fulfilling prophecies of failure in school and beyond school.

At least California is giving exposure to these issues. I wish we were in Michigan. Do you think that could be possible?

Man arrested after foot chase

A 36-year-old Detroit man was arrested Feb. 23 by Detroit police in the Farms, for allegedly stealing three leather jackets from Sears at Seven Mile and Mack.

Farms police reported that an off-duty Grosse Pointe Park detective spotted the man walk into a restroom with several coats, and come out wearing only one.

When the man left the building, the Park detective followed him outside. He spotted a Detroit police car, flagged it down and a chase ensued.

The suspect fled on foot through Kerby Field and then jumped a wall at the Mack alley and Hillcrest. As he went over the wall, nearby residents were outdoors. The man called out to them and said his brother was being beaten.

As he approached the Hillcrest resident, the suspect knocked him down, causing the man back injuries and a cut to his hand.

The suspect was then apprehended by the Detroit police officers and turned over to Farms police, who had arrived at the Hillcrest scene.

The man was reportedly found to be carrying a hunting knife and wearing three coats under his top coat.

Albert Kahn, architect of the Edsel & Eleanor Ford House, designed a rambling, asymmetrical English manor after those of Cotswold, England. The house is warm, elegant yet informal — a sprawling jumble of dormers, gables, chimneys and arches that are studded with the finest workmanship in leaded glass, stone, iron and wood. It's filled with antiques, art treasures and family mementoes. Tours are conducted by trained docents Wednesdays through Sundays. Call 884-3400 for information.

A Ford legacy

The pale green walls of the drawing room provide a background for Eleanor Ford's collection of 18th century French furniture, crystal chandeliers, French impressionist and post-impressionist paintings. The original paintings in this room have been donated to the Detroit Institute of Arts or passed on to family members. They've been replaced by reproductions.

The original, unvarnished Matisse painting, Anemones, still hangs in Eleanor Ford's sitting room. Maintenance and refurbishment is a continuing effort, according to Director James Bridenstine. This painting has been cleaned recently.

The Edsel & Eleanor Ford House, 1100 Lakeshore, is offering some new points of interest on its 1987 tours. Several rooms — the kitchen, the butler's pantry, the kitchen pantry and the flower room — are open to the public for the first time.

Hours have been extended and tours are scheduled for 1 p.m., 2 p.m., 3 p.m. and 4 p.m., Wednesdays through Sundays. Many Ford family accessories have been added to the decor in an effort to restore the interior to its appearance as it was during Eleanor Ford's long reign as family matriarch.

James A. Bridenstine, director of the Ford House for the last 13 months, said guests have been filling out questionnaires after they've toured the house.

"Comments have been favorable 50 to 1," he said, "but people have for a long time expressed interest in seeing the back of the house — the kitchen, the pantry and the work rooms."

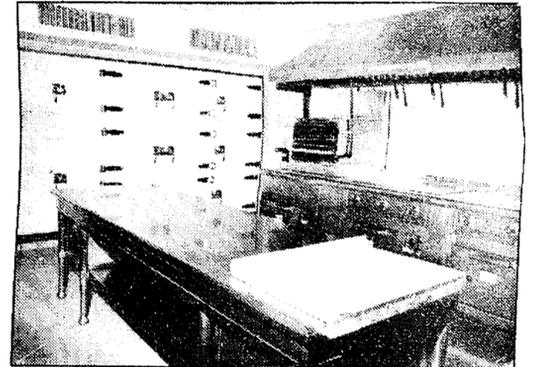

Informal family photographs hang in the back hallway — photos of Edsel and Eleanor and their four children: Henry II, Benson, Josephine and William — photos of brides and pets and grandchildren and vacations and boat trips.

Favorite books are piled on bedside tables. Towels and water pitchers are displayed in bathrooms. Fresh flowers are arranged in bowls. A breakfast tray is set up in the kitchen, as if it is ready to be taken up to Mrs. Ford's bedroom. Small photos, trinkets and accessories are arranged to give the house a lived-in look.

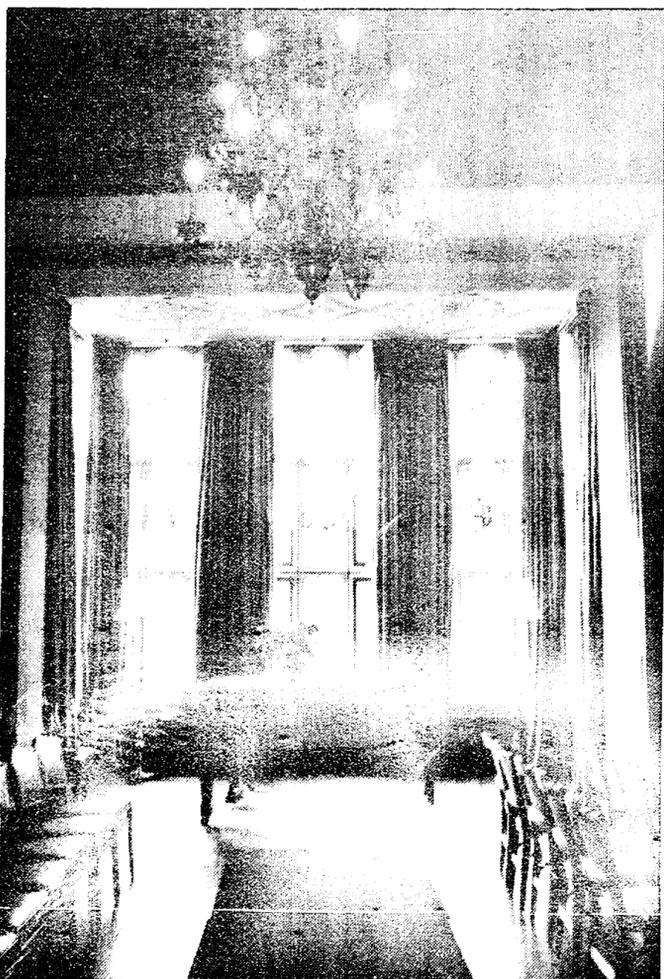

The cozy paneled study with its massive stone fireplace and carved oak paneling remains as it was when Edsel used it. The walls are lined with framed, autographed photographs of Franklin Delano Roosevelt, Douglas Fairbanks and Mary Pickford, John D. Rockefeller, Admiral Richard Byrd, Herbert Hoover and others.

Bridenstine said there is a constant cycle of maintenance and refurbishment to keep the house in tip-top repair. Paintings are cleaned, furniture is polished, upholstered and repaired, china and crystal displays are rotated, fresh flowers are replaced, and gold leaf is touched up.

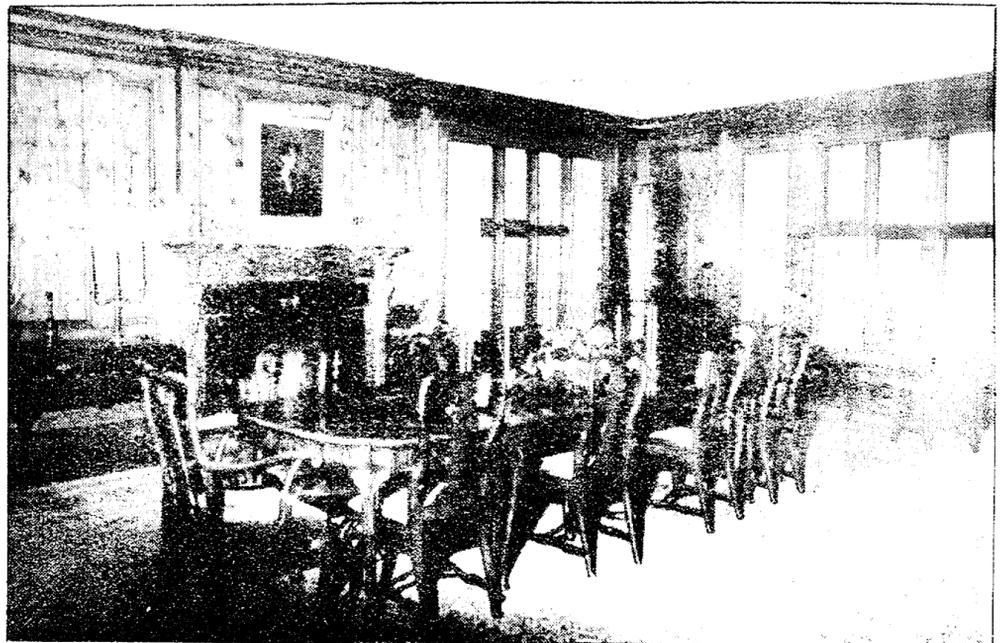

The contents of the house, he emphasized, are collections of taste and value. "Edsel and Eleanor were true connoisseurs, not accumulators."

The kitchen of the Ford House, now part of regular tours, is a no-nonsense, kitchen with huge ovens and vast refrigerators, lots of stainless steel countertops and ceramic tile. The cupboards display cookbooks, spices and baking ingredients typical of the era. The butler's pantry is lined with square, glass-paned cupboards displaying some of the Ford crystal, china and crockery.

The Great Gallery features a barrel-vaulted ceiling, a 17th century Dutch brass chandelier, and tall leaded glass windows studded with 15th and 16th century English colored armorial glass in heraldic designs. The room is often used today for concerts and recitals.

Dark pine paneling from an 18th century English estate, an ornate carved mantle, and a spectacular view of Lake St. Clair are the best features of the Ford dining room. Recently the long table has been set for a formal dinner party, displaying delicate lace placemats, monogrammed china and silver. Eleanor Ford insisted on no electricity — only candlelight — at her dinner parties.

Parcells Principal William Christofferson, Superintendent John A. Whritner, Assistant Principal Suzanne Klein and board of education member Fred Adams look over the letter of congratulations from state Superintendent Phillip E. Runkel.

Parcells is national finalist in excellence

Parcells Middle School has been selected by the state Department of Education as one of 20 representative secondary schools from Michigan to receive state level recognition as an exemplary school. As a state finalist, Parcells will continue in the national competition for Schools of Excellence offered by the U.S. Department of Education. The announcement of schools selected for national recognition will be made in late May.

Principal William Christofferson was pleased that his school had been selected a finalist in the first year the program has been open to middle schools.

"This is the highest honor that a school can receive today and I am delighted that our students and teachers have been recognized this way," he said. "The outstanding performance of our students in other competitions like the Detroit Free Press writing contest and in the Math Counts contest over these past several years shows the fine work our students have been doing."

Both of Grosse Pointe's high schools have been honored in the previous years: South, in 1984, the first year of the competition; and North, in 1986.

Fourteen attributes of success were used in judging the overall quality of competing schools in addition to student performance on standardized achievement tests and other awards and honors received by the school and its students. In the 1987 competition, special attention is being directed to programs and courses that teach about democracy and American history in honor of the celebration of the bicentennial of the U.S. Constitution.

Award winner in musical

University Liggett School student Jon Hammond, winner of both the prestigious Maccabees Vocal Scholarship Competition on Feb. 17 and also a First Division rating in the Feb. 7 Regional Vocal Competition at Oakland University, stars this weekend in "A Funny Thing Happened on the Way to the Forum."

The musical will be performed in the auditorium at ULS, 1045 Cook Road, Grosse Pointe Woods, on Thursday, Friday, and Saturday, March 5-7 at 7:30 p.m. Tickets are $2 for adults.

IT SEEMS HIGHLY UNLIKELY YOU COULD DRIVE A CAR THIS LONG A DAY AND NOT GET TIRED.

100 MILES PER DAY

YOU MUST IN CASE YOU DO.

Late last year, three standard-production Saab 9000s were taken to the Alabama International Speedway in Talladega, Alabama for an unusual test drive: Twenty days straight at top speed. The result? Twenty-one new world and international records including the highest average speed (132 mph) ever recorded for a production car driven this distance. Of course, you probably shouldn't directly apply these results to your everyday driving. But the fact remains, not one, but all three Saabs finished. Which would certainly seem to say something about their performance and endurance abilities. Abilities you're invited to test drive yourself. Albeit over a shorter distance. And preferably at a much reduced speed.

ULS debaters Adam Levinson, Kavita Sood, captain Pamela Colby, Tom Vallone and coach Lestina Colby display their trophy for the class C-D state debating championship.

ULS debate team wins state championship

The University Liggett School debate team, coached by Upper School science teacher Lestina Colby, traveled to Ann Arbor Feb. 5 to win their last and most important tournament of the year, the state tournament.

Going into the quarterfinal round, Ann Arbor Greenhills was seeded first, with ULS a close second. Junior Adam Levinson and senior captain Pamela Colby, who were ULS's top team, took an easy victory over Elk Rapids High School and proceeded on to the semifinal round. Levinson and Colby then crushed the team from Grandville Calvin Christian High School.

In the final round, they met

Ithaca High School, who was running a case advocating that the United States keep agricultural supplies in nuclear shelters, so that, after a nuclear war, agriculture could continue. With solid arguments attacking the feasibility, effectiveness and need for the case and presenting numerous disadvantages to it, Levinson and Colby were able to beat Ithaca and come away as state champions.

Student Spotlight

Sue Georgi

Each week in this column, we will focus on the work of a student. It can be a poem, a drawing, a short story, a picture of a scientific experiment, of a woodworking project, a book review.

Following are two poems by Sue Georgi, an 11th-grader at University Liggett School. She is the daughter of Neil and Beverley Georgi of Grosse Pointe Shores.

A Drink of Wisdom

Fill my glass with love and kindness
Drop in friendship too.
I'll sip until I've had enough,
And then I'll pass to you . . .

Sketches in the Dark

Life shown through a key hole, was very small to see.
The little light outside the door, viewed in mystery.

My eye pressed against the hole,
so much there was of me.
I didn't understand at first,
searching for the key.

The door was locked inside —
I had to break through.
Behind the door my life stands guard,
I took another view.

Seeming so bright and beautiful,
so good to take away.
Times like these when I'm alone, wondering if to stay.

Looking down the hallway, debating if I should.
Behind the door I stood waiting, finally, pounding on the wood.

The feeling tingled my body, falling on my knees.
The tears that stained so sadly,

Sue Georgi

searching for the key.

My mind focused on the door, desperately wanting in.
The key was so hard to find,
had always been waiting within . . .

This space is open to any student in the Grosse Pointe public or private school system from grades 1 through 12.

Send your entry along with a picture to Student Spotlight, Grosse Pointe News, 96 Kercheval, Grosse Pointe Farms 48236 or drop it off at the office. If you would like everything returned, enclose a stamped and self-addressed envelope.

They won't mention you're getting a better deal with Household's great new home equity line of credit. And that it's called the "Better Than a Bank" equity credit line. Nor will they tell you how highly competitive our interest rate is.

Prime rate. You can count on prime — an introductory 7.5% APR — when you open your account.* Banks, even Savings & Loans, have a tough time beating that. And our rate is far lower than most credit cards and personal loans.

More money. HFC can lend you up to 75% of equity, not the 70% many banks allow. That means you may lose out on thousands of dollars. You get your money faster, too. If you call today, we can often approve you today. Over the phone. No committees. No delays.

Placing piping in the existing sewers on one block of Lakeland is a tricky task. Carol Smalish, of McNamee, Porter and Seeley, looks on as John Baily of Ryerston Steel works on the plastic fusion unit. The unit connects large segments of plastic pipeline. That pipeline is then inserted into an old storm sewer line without having to dig up and replace the entire line.

Here Baily gathers shreds of plastic that have been sheared off the thick plastic tubing to make both sides of the joint fit flush together.

Tricky task

The plastic pipeline can be seen here through a hole in the existing sewer on the north side of Lakeland.

Woman raped

A 31-year-old Detroit woman was raped in Grosse Pointe Park Sunday evening, Feb. 22, on Goethe near Wayburn, according to Park police.

Lt. William Furtaw said the woman was walking on Goethe when she was approached by a man, who asked her if she wanted to buy marijuana.

When she continued to walk away from the suspect, another attacker appeared and she was thrown to the ground.

The suspects are both black males. One man is dark complected, about 6 feet and 205 pounds. The other is 5 feet, 9 inches, light complected and 160 pounds. Both fled on foot.

The woman was transported to Bon Secours Hospital where she was treated and released.

Police have no suspects at this time.

Raynaud victims

Researchers from Wayne State University/Lafayette Clinic are looking for persons with idiopathic Raynaud's disease to participate in a study in which they will receive free behavioral treatment for the disorder.

Symptoms of Raynaud's disease are white, cold and numb fingers and toes. Treatment involves participation in 12 one-hour sessions at the Lafayette Clinic. Subjects will receive cash compensation for their participation.

Contact Dr. Robert Freedman at the Lafayette Clinic, 256-9520, for more information.

Home run

Steal home? No way.

An attempted burglary was thwarted Saturday, Feb. 21, when a burglar attempted to enter a Grayton residence in the Park.

The resident heard the door bell early Saturday, then heard glass breaking.

He saw the perpetrator's hand come through a window in the door, and then swatted it with a baseball bat.

The suspect fled on foot.

East Detroit man escapes serious injury

An East Detroit man escaped serious injury late Saturday, Feb. 25, when the car he was driving allegedly failed to negotiate a curve at Mack between Cadieux and Notre Dame, went over a curb, sheared off a large electrical pole at its base and slammed into a small tree, according to Grosse Pointe police.

The Jaws of Life tool had to be used to extricate Brett M. Banfield, 27, from the 1978 compact stationwagon.

Police said Banfield sustained assorted minor injuries including about five stitches to the head. He was treated at Bon Secours Hospital, and later arrested on a charge of operating a motor vehicle under the influence of liquor.

City police estimated the base of the electrical pole was 26 feet from where it was in the ground. Edison had to be notified.

Prime Time for Senior Citizens

The television soaps are serving a purpose

By Marian Trainor
Special Writer

People apologize, deny and secretly indulge, but there is little doubt that most people do it — watch television, that is. Americans rank first in the possession of television sets. Surveys show that there are an average of two televisions in every household.

When you think about it, why shouldn't people admit that they watch the "boob tube" as it is scathingly referred to?

What's wrong with watching the news to learn what's going on in the world? True, it doesn't give the whole picture. You need to read a newspaper to get that, but it does provide a good overview.

As for movies, if you can take them in bits and pieces, a film interspersed with advertising is usually available. You will see many of the movies you missed at the theater. Some of them you will be glad you didn't pay to see.

For the elitist, public television provides special programs featuring the major symphony orchestra, operas and great artists. Great classics of the theater with outstanding stars are also offered.

Even those who claim they never turn on their television will have to admit that the selective viewer can successfully mine gold if he or she sifts through the ashes of sitcom banality.

Yet one hesitates to downgrade such programs. They amuse, they divert and provide an escape into a world of adventure and suspense.

However, if you really want to hear protests against the quality of television, just bring up the subject of soap operas.

Again one has to wonder why these programs are blocked into prime time if no one watches them, and if they do watch, why viewers only reluctantly admit it.

Their numbers are many. Statistics show that more than 55 million Americans watch soap operas. They live in all regions of the nation, rural and urban. They are housewives, students and blue collar workers. They are professors, doctors, stockbrokers, writers and politicians. Soaps are not the sole province of lonely older people sitting at home.

Ignore those who claim that soap operas have no place in their lineup of pastimes. These same deriders have been at it for 50 years and the soaps have survived. These people are the same ones who scorned radio soap operas and you know what an outlet those programs provided for yesterday's mothers. That was when the "World Turned" around husband, home and babies. Soaps on radio were great to listen to while washing dishes, clothes, floors, walls and kids. Women then laughed at the antics of Fibber McGee and Ma Perkins or agonized over episodes in "As The World Turns." It didn't bother them one bit that radio soaps were filled with stock characters involved in improbable incidents. They were in contrast with television soaps which are sometimes too realistic as they deal with recognizable people wrestling with problems of the world we know.

Watching the soaps is a form of visual daydreaming. We may not live in the never-never land, but for half an hour we can visit them in their perfectly appointed homes, admire their beautiful designer gowns, listen in on their stimulating conversations and take part in their highly charged lives.

Even the most loyal fan wouldn't argue that they are educational. None of them explore issues, just personalities and goals. In the process, however, there are some practical lessons to be learned.

They can, through the emotional confrontations that make up their plots, teach people of all ages to cherish and respect their own feelings and those of others. They bolster our faith in the future.

"Cold turkey" clinic to help smokers kick habit

A Stop-Smoking Clinic will be held at St. John Hospital March 30-April 3, from 7 to 8:30 p.m. in the auditorium, 22101 Moross at Mack.

The five day "cold turkey" withdrawal program will be coordinated by cancer specialist Dr. John Burrows. He and other physicians will focus on training techniques for smoking withdrawal success. The clinic has a 75 to 78 percent success rate.

Cost is $40 and registration is necessary. For more information, call Camille Klimecki at 343-3870.

City plaza to get benches

Shoppers in the Village will be able to rest their feet this year in the plaza located at Kercheval and St. Clair.

The Grosse Pointe City Council approved the expenditure of $4,570 for five outdoor benches and two litter containers. They will be paid for with Community Development Block Grant funds.

The benches, at $740 each, are made of Alaskan yellow cedar slats with a black cast iron frame. They will be bolted down. The containers, made of matching materials, are $435 each.

Since the completion of the plaza in spring 1986, the city has planted flowers and added lights to the trees. The purchase of the outdoor furniture continues the beautification plan.

4-wheeler stolen

A third GMC Jimmy 4 x 4 was taken in as many weeks from Grosse Pointe Farms.

The vehicle was taken from in front of a Merriweather Road residence, overnight Feb. 27-28. This is the second Jimmy taken from Merriweather, police said.

The vehicle was found running Feb. 28 on Flanders in Detroit. Its steering column was broken and a cellular phone was missing.

Lake level

Lake St. Clair at the end of January was at elevation 576.14 feet or 53 inches above chart datum. This was about three inches above one year ago. The January monthly mean of 576.05 feet was 39 inches above its long term average for January. The Great Lakes forecast shows that Lake St. Clair is expected to be 47 inches above chart datum or at elevation 575.60 feet at the end of February.

son, Albert, is away at William and Mary College.

"My family enjoys its privacy," Crim said. "We tend to stick around home territory where we're not viewed as celebrities. Here, we have friends and neighbors. It's not like when I stop someplace I haven't been where everybody recognizes me from television and I don't know anybody."

Crim likes to brag about his children. Carey wants to become an actress and is very active in the Grosse Pointe Children's Theatre. Albert is studying philosophy, but wants to become a movie producer. Crim can't resist adding that his son earned a 4.0 grade point average last term at college.

"We knew he could do it all along," Crim said.

Television journalists are often criticized for the superficiality of the medium. Crim believes that much of that criticism is unfair.

"It's superficial if you try to make it (television news) what newspapers are," he said. "It's like comparing your two children. They defy comparison. You get in trouble when you try to compare. We have to be judged by our own standards."

The time allotted to television news is extremely limited, he explained.

"When you remove the commercials, the sports and the weather, our entire newscast for a day would barely cover one page in the Grosse Pointe News," he said. "But what we do, we do extremely well. We have immediacy and emotional impact. That makes up for what we lack in breadth."

The technical differences between newspapers and television determine their respective roles, Crim said.

"We don't have to set the news in type, print it and deliver it," he said. "If the weather changes suddenly, your morning Free Press has already been put to bed. We present it live. It's not superficial or trivial if you understand what we do."

Crim said he believes a certain amount of marketing or packaging for the news is necessary and does not injure the news organization's credibility.

"We want a large audience," he said. "We believe it's important to have the widest circulation possible. That requires promotion. As long as it is not offensive or in poor taste, it's a matter of degree. We live in a media age and packaging and marketing should not be looked at as dirty words."

The informal banter between the newscasters on the air is part of making the viewer feel comfortable with the people on the screen, Crim said.

"It's an informal medium," he said. "There may be 100,000 people tuned in, but I'm talking to a man and wife as they sit in their living room. We communicate one on one. For Carmen (Harlan) and me to sit there and keep everything formal would not work. Network newscasters seem more serious, but that is because the anchor is usually alone. There is nobody to have interplay with."

Not everything on an evening's newscast should be treated in a completely serious manner, Crim said.

"I think it's appropriate to joke about the weather," he said. "It's not appropriate to joke about something serious, but if it is tasteful and gracious, it can help make people comfortable. You can crack a corny joke. People need a tension release."

Crim said he believes Grosse Pointe will be his permanent home.

"We're very comfortable here," he said. "There are things I have ambition to do, but it won't be necessary to leave the area. With the technology now, you don't have to chase after it."

In his spare time, Crim is a commercial pilot. He used that skill recently to fly between stops while doing his series and documentary on Black Muslims for WDIV.

"One of the things we love about this area is the flying," Crim said. "It's my one big passion. This is one of the greatest areas for a flyer."

The Crims spend their weekends flying around the state.

"On a Saturday morning, we might fly up to Port Huron then fly the coast up to Mackinac Island," he said. "It's a nice day trip. There is gorgeous scenery."

Crim's love for flying determined where he would live when he came to Michigan.

"One of the first things I did when I came here was to time how long it would take to drive from my house to City Airport," he said. "It takes 15 minutes."

Crim is frequently heard lecturing throughout the Detroit area. Next Monday, he will be the featured speaker for the ecumenical World Day of Prayer observance at Our Lady Star of the Sea Church.

"Sharing my faith is a privilege and a responsibility," he said. The son of a minister, Crim once planned to become an Air Force chaplain. Though he never attended seminary, Crim did take some religion courses in college.

"I think that's an awfully good background for life," he said.

ous morass. Lack of leadership here resulted in a rogue operation which is extremely dangerous to our security and the security of people who ultimately might be taken hostage because we appeared to be negotiating with terrorists and hostage-takers."

Republican state Rep. William R. Bryant Jr. was predictably kinder in his assessment of Reagan's guilt. "This mainly shows the necessity of having someone close to the president who has a different viewpoint. That kind of person could be called a devil's advocate or a cynic or whatever, but the worst thing that can happen to anyone in a position of power is to have only 'yes' people around him or her. . . . He needs a number of people around him to challenge advice he's being given. Not even Weinberger and Shultz were seriously challenging White House staff. They objected, but didn't attempt to stop it."

Democratic state Sen. John F.

Kelly noted that the Iran-contra arms affair and the subsequent Tower Commission Report is serving as an excellent backdrop for exploring American foreign policy with his students. Kelly teaches a course in American foreign policy at Mercy College titled "Spies, Guerrillas and Terrorists."

Most legislators and politicians agree that Reagan will be able to surmount this crisis, regain steam and recover his popularity. Kel Smyth said Reagan will probably recover. "He's been a magician. He can take a blow and recover."

Barbara Gattorn, coordinator for the Bush campaign in the area, said the crisis has peaked and the worst is over for the president. "The short run will hurt," she said, "but in the long run, history will be kind to Reagan."

Mark Valente III, Grosse Pointe Park councilman and acting director of the liaison department for the Republican National Committee, said, "Reagan can regain steam. He never intentionally misled the American people. Misinformation was provided by his staff and he believed it was accurate. He's shown he will return to diligence."

Sen. Levin said Reagan will have to clean house, run a tight ship, and "get more involved in critical details, changing his style and his key staff people."

Rep. Bryant said, "He's a good communicator. I don't know if he can recover. It depends on if he can believe it himself. The rest is up to the folks."

Sen. Kelly believes the American public is fickle. Once turned off, they'll never again be completely behind the president. "They've heard critics for years say that Reagan is not in control. They didn't believe it because he hadn't botched anything yet. Now they believe it."

Brownell home ec teacher Lynne Mogk samples some of the goodies made by class chefs Brian Duignan and Laurie Furay.

Whatever it is they say about too many cooks just can't be true. Matt Hix measures the flour, Mike Mumaw is in charge of the muffin papers, Steven Konieczki spoons out baking powder and Laura Hutton stands by with the mixer.

Eat up!

Eating is the most fun part of home economics, but it's only a tiny part now, with the new focus on life skills that is now at the heart of most home ec classes.

The state of Michigan has become interested in the content of home ec, in a push to increase the enrollment and make the subject matter more relevant to daily living. For years, home ec's cooking and sewing was "for girls only" — and it's still leaning that way in spite of today's less sexist society, says Robert Welch, Grosse Pointe's director of secondary education.

Now a home ec class is just as likely to teach household budgeting, nutrition, how to buy sturdy clothes, or how not to overextend yourself on your credit card.

But the brownies are still the tastiest.

Pete Gillespie, Chad Hepner and Nathan Eriksen prove cooking can be a man's world too. Taste-tester Eriksen puts his seal of approval on the guys' cookies.

Bon Secours to sponsor poster contest

March is National Nutrition Month and Bon Secours Hospital invites children ages 3 through 12 to enter a good nutrition poster contest. The posters should be drawn by the children themselves depicting their knowledge and ideas about good nutrition.

Hospital dietitians will select three finalists from entries submitted by these age and grade groups: 3 years old through kindergarten, first grade through third, and fourth and fifth grades. Winning posters will be displayed at Project Health-O-Rama Sunday, April 5, hosted by the Bon Secours Hospital Health and Fitness Center, 22300 Bon Brae, between 10 and 11 Mile roads, St. Clair Shores.

The guidelines for poster entries are:

1. Posters should be submitted on 12x18 inch paper with the child's name, age, grade and address on the back.

2. One winner will be named from the three finalists in each age group. Winners will receive a $50 savings bond. Other finalists will receive a recognition ribbon.

3. The first place posters will be sent to the Dairy Council of Michigan, where one statewide poster winner will be selected.

4. Deadline for postmarked entries is Tuesday, March 31. Mail entries to Bon Secours Hospital, Food Service Department, 468 Cadioux, Grosse Pointe, Mich. 48230, Attn: Paula Gerow, R.D.

District compares favorably to state, U.S.

Teaching, learning conditions are good

By Nancy Parmenter
Staff Writer

The environment for learning excels in Grosse Pointe compared to districts across the state and throughout the nation.

Statistics compiled by the U.S. Department of Education and released three weeks ago compared schools in all 50 states. The department's fourth annual report shows a national trend of improvement over the last four years, based on college entrance exam scores, teacher salaries, class size, graduation rates and per-pupil expenditures.

Not unexpectedly, Grosse Pointe ranks higher than the state average in every category.

Teachers here earned on the average $7,000 a year more than the average Michigan teacher. This reflects not only a higher starting salary ($18,884 for a bachelor's degree), but also the fact that the staff is older.

"We have more people at the top -- and probably more with advanced degrees," said Personnel Director Ronald Tonks. Eighty percent of the staff has an advanced degree. Tonks said the average salary does not include pay for extracurricular activities, which would add about another $600.

Classes in Grosse Pointe are substantially smaller on the average than classes elsewhere in Michigan and the nation. Although there are still some classes at the elementary schools large enough to cause concern, the ratio of students to teachers in the Grosse Pointe system is 15.3 to 1, compared to 20.6 to 1 for Michigan as a whole.

Per-pupil expenditures in Grosse Pointe are substantially higher than in most of the rest of the state. The district spends more than $5,000 to educate each student, compared to a state average of $3,800.

Last year's scores for the American College Testing Program college entry test averaged 20.2 at North High School and 22.3 at South, out of a possible score of 35. "More kids take the ACT than enter college because we use it for guidance and counseling," said Roger McCaig, director of research and development. "Almost everybody in school takes the test."

McCaig said one or two students a year may achieve the perfect composite score of 35, just as the occasional student gets an 800 on one of the SAT college tests. To put the scores in perspective, he explained that 23 or 24 is in the range for acceptance to one of the Michigan colleges.

Michigan ranks fourth in the nation in teacher salaries, but 47th in pupil-teacher ratio. Its college test scores rank 17th highest and the graduation rate of 71.9 is 31st in the nation.

Statistics on the graduation rate in Grosse Pointe are not available. McCaig and Curriculum Director Robert Welch said the data provided in the federal study may not be entirely reliable. "I don't know how (the national report) came up with those numbers," said Welch, after many minutes of totaling up figures. "There are just too many variables."

Counting the number of entering ninth-graders and graduating seniors is too simplistic and doesn't account for the students who move, re-enroll, or enter a school after ninth grade," he said. Welch said there were 413 members of the senior class at South in September and 408 of them graduated in June. He said the graduation rate is currently in the high 90s.

"If you assume a 1 percent loss each year, the most you could get would be 4 percent," he said.

Figures released recently showed an average dropout rate from the two high schools of about 2 percent over each of the last five years.

	U.S.	Michigan	Grosse Pointe
ACT scores	18.8	18.9	20.2 (North) 22.3 (South)
Expenditure per pupil	$3,449	$3,848	$5,110
Student-teacher ratio	17.9:1	20.6:1	15.3:1
Teacher salaries (average)	$25,313	$30,168	$37,264

All figures are for the 1985-86 school year except the state and national figures on per-pupil spending.

well.

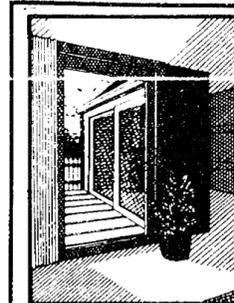

It is a prospect that delights some districts that have no industry and would like to benefit from a pooled assessment. It scares districts that depend on their local industry for operating revenue. And it concerns Dan Manthe.

"If there's a switch, the state (is likely) to be more involved in education locally," he said at the January meeting. "A tax shift shifts leadership to the state and results in greater sameness in districts statewide. . . . There's good diversity in the local districts -- I'd hate to see the bureaucracy take charge."

"At the same time, though, the lowest districts are disadvantaged," he said. There is some disagreement among officials as to whether the state could come up with the money to bring the poorest districts up without pulling the top ones down, but Manthe says the possibility is "not unrealistic."

"I don't think the state has better answers to what Grosse Pointe needs than the citizens in Grosse Pointe do," he said.

An editorial on the subject is on page 6A.

Health Education Council sponsors school health programs

The Health Education Council of Grosse Pointe is an organization made up of representatives from each of the public, private and parochial schools in the Grosse Pointe area. Formed in 1945, the purpose of the council has always been to address parents' concerns about their children's health -- and to provide programs of health education and service through the schools.

"The Health Education Council provides services that should be included in the school, but, for various reasons, the school cannot provide," said past-President Jan Dahl.

"It's a link between school and home," said Eula Hoover, current president. "It was formed by mothers because mothers are concerned and mothers know best what the problems are."

Today, 42 years later, the organization is about 85 members strong -- and is not entirely made up of mothers. It's comprised of delegates from all local schools, plus individual members who are concerned about school health issues.

Back in 1945, at the first meeting, 15 mothers gathered to hear a speaker talk about nutrition. Over the years, the council has sponsored a variety of aids to schools on various health issues. At various times, the council has:

- provided in-school fluoride treatments for students
- provided volunteers for blood drives
- served as a welfare committee -- collecting food and clothing for needy families in the area
- helped with vaccination programs
- trained volunteers to staff school health clinics
- formed a nutrition committee to evaluate school lunches
- provided training and volunteers to teach sex education
- provided dental health workshops for teachers

"It's a flexible organization," Hoover said. "Programs phase in and out. We have speakers who are often springboards for new programs. Our scoliosis screening began this way."

Currently, the council is active with five programs: breast self-examination, cardiopulmonary resuscitation (CPR) training, nutrition education, scoliosis screening and testicular cancer education.

The breast self-examination program was begun 10 years ago. Volunteers instruct all 10th-grade girls in the correct method of self-examination. Teachers, films and brochures are provided by the American Cancer Society.

The CPR training began eight years ago in cooperation with the Grosse Pointe Public Schools and the American Red Cross. All 10th-graders receive training in CPR.

The nutrition education program is currently carried on chiefly by sponsoring elementary school nutrition fairs. The council provides materials to help implement these, enabling children to sample new foods and learn about proper nutrition. Monteith, Ferry and St. Paul schools will have nutrition fairs in March. Richard will have one in April.

Scoliosis screening began in 1982 as a pilot program in the middle schools. Now it is a yearly screening by council volunteers for all 5th-, 6th-, 7th- and 8th-grade girls and all 6th-, 7th- and 8th-grade boys. Last year, 260 5th-grade girls were screened. Volunteers recommended that 23 girls receive a second screening by a doctor.

The scoliosis program began after passage of a legislative resolution strongly recommending that all middle school students in Michigan be examined annually for spinal deformities, according to Dahl.

The most recent council program -- testicular cancer education -- began in 1985 and is an educational program for all 10th-grade boys and includes films, visual aids and instructions for self-examination.

All meetings are open to the public. The next meeting will be Monday, March 23, at 1 p.m. at the Central Library. At 1:45, Farms Detective Daniel Jensen will discuss crime prevention and safety.

For more information about the Health Education Council of Grosse Pointe, call 884-0843.

Aviation ground school to begin

Aviation ground school, a 12-week course designed to prepare students for the private pilot written examination will begin Wednesday, March 11, at the War Memorial.

The class, which meets for three hours once a week will be taught by Richard Matis, president of Michigan Aero Corporation and an airline transport pilot.

The 12-week course is $65 plus textbook fee.

For information, call 881-7511.

A CHILD LEARNS THROUGH EXPERIENCE.

In the Montessori classrooms at The Grosse Pointe Academy Early School, you will not find the teacher's desk in front of the classroom. In fact, you probably can't figure out where the front of the classroom is. Our teachers (really called Directresses) simply do not have desks because we attempt to avoid a focal point of attention. Learning comes from the total classroom environment, the practical life area, the sensorial materials and the academic areas including reading, arithmetic, science, physical education and geography. To accommodate the variety of abilities of children and the diverse interests of learning stages, The Grosse Pointe Academy Early School classrooms are well stocked with structured Montessori materials and equipment. Students at age 3 are taught to take materials from "child height" shelves and return them when they are done. Activities and experiences include polishing shoes, cutting vegetables, pouring liquids, using dressing frames, arranging shortest to longest rods, color tablets, lightest to heaviest tablets, object for feeling and musical instruments for sounds and, of course, Math manipulatives are available, as are several varieties of alphabet letters for reading, spelling, phonics and writing. The classroom environment is creative, adventurous and spontaneous and children are encouraged to make decisions and solve problems.

How does learning take place? Our teachers interact by observing the children, demonstrating, recognizing the moment for intervention or readiness. Mistakes are, of course, permitted, and we believe that much is accomplished by self-correcting. Tom Peters, the author of In Search of Excellence and A Passion for Excellence and teacher at the Stanford University Business School, has a term for how a Montessori classroom is run. It is referred to as "M.B.W.A. -- Management By Wandering Around." This theory of management surely works in business as Peters points out in his best sellers, and for 40 years it has been very effective in the Montessori classrooms.

Come and visit The Grosse Pointe Academy Early School. Watch our children and excellent teachers in action. It is not too late to involve your 3 to 5 year old in the experience that will form his/her learning base for a lifetime.

NOTICE OF HEARING
ZONING BOARD OF APPEALS
NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN that the Zoning Board of Appeals will meet in City Hall at 90 Kerby Road, Grosse Pointe Farms, Michigan on:
MONDAY, MARCH 16, 1987
at 7:30 p.m. to hear the following:
1. The appeal of Mr. & Mrs. Walter Simmons, owner of the premises located at 274 Merriweather Road, from the denial of the Building Department to issue a building permit to construct an addition to his residence at the foregoing address. Such permit issuance was denied for reason that the residence located on the foregoing premises is non-conforming for reason that it is in violation of the side yard provisions of Article XIII, Section 1300 of the City's Zoning Ordinance and no such structure may be enlarged or structurally altered unless a variance is granted.
2. The appeal of Mrs. Edwards, owner of the premises known as 35 McKinley Place, who has applied jointly to the City of Grosse Pointe Farms for a lot split with Mr. Gabriel J. Courey, prospective purchaser of the newly created lot. Section 1516 of the Zoning Ordinance provides that a lot may not be divided unless the Director of Public Service finds that the remaining lot, as well as the parcel created meet applicable regulations of the Zoning Ordinance. The Director of Public Service has determined that the proposed lot split would create a non-conforming condition with respect to the new lot in that the width of the new lot would be 79.8 feet, while Article XIII, Section 1300 of the City's Zoning Ordinance requires a minimum lot width of 100 feet; also the lot area of the new lot is 10,111 square feet while the Zoning Ordinance requires 11,000 square feet in an RAA District. Furthermore, the newly created side yard of the existing dwelling at 35 McKinley Place would be 10 feet, in violation of the minimum side yard requirements of the City's Zoning Ordinance of 10% of the lot width or 14.5 feet. Variances would need to be granted to the foregoing violations of the City's Zoning Ordinance.
The Hearings will be public. Interested property owners or residents of the City are invited to attend.

Annual police report

Larcenies up; auto theft, violent crime down in Farms

By Peter A. Salinas
Staff Writer

Larcenies increased significantly in Grosse Pointe Farms during 1986, but auto thefts and violent crimes, robberies in particular, decreased.

Police Chief Robert Ferber reported 324 larcenies in 1986, up 33 incidents or 11 percent, from 1985. On the other side, there was a 50 percent decrease in the number of robberies — there were seven last year.

Automobile thefts, not included in the larceny figures, amounted to 12 incidents from 1985.

One area of great concern, Ferber said, is that the number of break-ins to schools and churches exceeded the break-ins to businesses. He added that there was a decrease in the number of home break-ins.

"I have suggested two main ways to bring the number of school burglaries down," Ferber said. "First, prosecute everyone arrested. The school system has been following this. Secondly, improve the protection systems."

Increased patrols have helped to keep the number of home burglaries down, but Ferber said that according to an FBI study, the number of home break-ins nationwide is increasing.

He points out the FBI estimates that over a 10-year period, one of every four residences in the country is likely to be burglarized.

With that in mind, Ferber suggests increased emphasis on collective crime prevention efforts, such as neighborhood watch programs. He said they have been shown to be effective in reducing the number of break-ins in a given area.

The report notes that 38 percent of the felony arrests in the city are of juveniles. Of the adults arrested and charged with felonies, only 5 percent were Farms residents.

"Continuing a seven-year trend," the report stated, "the city of Detroit was the place of residency for 51 percent of all persons arrested for felonies during 1986."

Another area of concern is substance abuse among local juveniles, Ferber said.

Alcohol consumption and use of marijuana and cocaine has become tolerated by some of the population, and young people, as a result, have come to believe that the use of these drugs is socially acceptable, according to Ferber's report.

Ferber pointed to the loss of the Farms Youth Services Division as the reason for not being able to get a good picture of how serious substance abuse is locally. He said when the program ended, the resulting loss of personal contact between police, school faculty and students made the department's job more difficult.

"Our information feedback, as limited as it may be, appears to indicate that marijuana, cocaine and . . . crack use among 15 to 23 year olds, may be more prevalent than any of us know, admit or would like to believe," the report said.

Ferber said he is beginning to develop existing resources to improve crime prevention programs and return a youth service division concept to the department. He said the youth program could be similar to a program developed in Grosse Pointe Woods, where an officer regularly spends time in the middle and high schools.

The major accomplishment Ferber sees in 1986 was the induction of the two-man, two-car traffic control bureau.

Ferber said the department had achieved its goal of reducing speeds on north-south streets from Mack to Kercheval, and would now be expanding the bureau's scope to include east-west thoroughfares.

The department has been meeting with a citizen advisory group concerning traffic problems, and other enforcement and traffic control device changes are planned.

Farms orders land-use study for Lakeshore developments

By Peter A. Salinas
Staff Writer

A 90-day moratorium on issuing lot splits for developments along Lakeshore was initiated in the Farms earlier this month, until a commissioned study of land-use in the area is completed.

The Farms has no current requests for lot splits or new subdivisions in the corridor, which runs from Fisher Road to the Shores village limits along Lakeshore, and from Fisher to Provencal along Grosse Pointe Boulevard.

Several city councilmen, including Mayor Joseph Fromm and Councilman John Crowley, called for a study of the area, given the interest in residential cluster housing construction along Lakeshore.

City council voted unanimously earlier this month to have the city planning firm, Brandon M. Rogers and Associates P.C., perform the land-use study of the area. Firm officials requested the moratorium — until the study was completed.

New development along the Lakeshore corridor, such as this at Rose Terrace just north of Fisher Road, will be studied by Grosse Pointe Farms. The city has called for a 90-day moratorium in the granting of new permits for cluster-type housing until the study is completed.

There have been several large properties, located in this corridor, which have been subdivided and turned into cluster-type condominium dwellings. Among them are the Briarwood, Rose Terrace and Windemere developments.

Crowley pointed out after a discussion on the subject at a January meeting, that the city should study this topic, because decisions made now will affect the city's development for many years to come.

City Manager Andrew Bremer Jr. told the council that a master plan for development, completed about 25 years ago has not been followed at all. He said the ideas behind the plan were good, but a constant problem is that parcels noted in the master plan do not always become available as the plan suggests. Instead, the parcels that do become available are developed according to the interest of investors.

The study will look at several land-use situations in the corridor. It will generate a land-use map, which shows current property ownership, including recent and pending lot splits. The study will also make recommendations for land-use for the area, and suggest how current zoning laws in the Farms need to be changed or maintained.

The study is scheduled to be completed within the 90-day framework of the moratorium.

Free shade trees available

The National Arbor Day Foundation is giving 10 free shade trees to people who join the non-profit foundation during March.

A sugar maple, weeping willow, red oak, green ash, thornless honeylocust, pin oak, sycamore, tulip tree, European mountain ash and red maple will be given as part of the foundation's campaign to encourage tree planting.

The trees were selected because they provide flowers, berries and nuts, in addition to shade and beauty.

The foundation will give the trees to members contributing $10 during March. The six-to-12 inch trees will be shipped between March 1 and May 31 when conditions are right for planting. They will be sent with enclosed planting instructions, and are guaranteed to grow or they will be replaced free by the foundation.

To become a member, and to receive the trees, a $10 membership contribution should be sent to Ten Shade Trees, National Arbor Day Foundation, 100 Arbor Avenue, Nebraska City, Neb. 68410, by March 31.

Dinner, art sale

There will be a dinner and art sale Thursday, March 19, in the Polish Century Club to raise money for completion of the Polish Room in Wayne State University's Manoogian Hall.

Funds raised at the March 19 dinner will go toward furnishing the room.

Reservations for dinner at $100 per person may be made through Polish Festival chairman Jacob Sobieraj, 19219 W. Warren, Detroit, Mich. 48228, or by calling 271-2100. Interested persons may also call Frank Corliss at the WSU Slavic department, 577-3024.

Employers here treat maternity leave as an illness

By Margie Reine Smith
Staff Writer

Should a working mother-to-be have to choose between her job and motherhood? How about a father-to-be?

Job-protected pregnancy leaves have been placed under the spotlight because of a recent U.S. Supreme Court ruling. The court's decision upheld a 1978 California law requiring businesses with more than 15 employees to offer four months unpaid maternity leave to pregnant women and to guarantee the same, or a comparable job, upon their return.

Although there is no federal law concerning maternity leave, nine states have laws similar to the one in California. Michigan is not one of these.

A survey of five Grosse Pointe employers found that all treated pregnancy as a temporary disability or illness.

Bon Secours Hospital employs 1,300 people. Ninety-two percent of these are female. Bon Secours' policy is to allow up to six months unpaid leave to pregnant women under their regular disability plan.

"The Supreme Court's ruling concerning the California law is a sign of the times," said Tom Conley, director of human resources for Bon Secours. "Michigan's law will probably change. The question is whether Michigan will improve on it or not."

Conley said that mothers-to-be who work for Bon Secours receive 60 percent of their hourly wage for six weeks (for a normal delivery) and eight weeks (for a Caesarian section.) They are guaranteed a return to the same or similar job after six or eight weeks. For a longer leave, employees are guaranteed the first available position similar to the one they left.

The same policy would be applied to paternity leave, Conley said, but so far, nobody has used it.

The Grosse Pointe School system has 850 full-time employees. Personnel Director Ronald Tonks said that the policy for school employees has been the same since 1978.

Pregnancy is considered an illness, and if a woman's doctor says she is disabled, her leave is considered sick leave. Pregnant women may use accumulated sick leave and may borrow up to 20 days from future sick leave.

They receive full pay during their time off. Most maternity leaves, according to Tonks, are about 10 weeks. Tenured teachers get what is referred to as "unlimited sick leave" he said, which amounts to 120 days per illness.

Beyond this, a woman may wish an unpaid extension of her leave. Tonks said that her request then becomes an individual matter and she must write a letter to the Board of Education to arrange such a leave.

Cottage Hospital employs 750 people; 85 percent of them are women. Kathleen Maslanka, director of personnel at Cottage, said women may take a maximum of 13 weeks leave, with pay, for sickness or accidents. They are guaranteed a job upon return, but not necessarily the same job. If she wishes to remain at home with her baby longer, Maslanka said, "she may apply for an unpaid extension. She may use vacation time, if the department can live without her. There would be no guarantee of her old job, however."

Maslanka said there is no paternity leave, but fathers may apply for an unpaid one-month leave. "It has been done for other reasons," she said.

Aline Lafferty works in the personnel department of Cottage Hospital, and is expecting her second child July 2. "Barring complications, I plan to take off two weeks prior to my due date and six weeks after the baby is born," she said. "That's what I did four-and-a-half years ago, when my first child was born." During her absence, she'll receive disability pay — 65 percent of her salary.

Jacobson's, which employs about 400 people in Grosse Pointe, classifies pregnancy as an illness. Jim Delaney, corporate director of personnel for Jacobson's, said, "Pregnancy is treated like any other illness. Our policy takes into account the amount of time needed and the number of years the employee has been with us."

Grosse Pointe Park has about 100 employees, but no written policy concerning maternity leave. Pam Kondziolka, clerk-treasurer, said they are flexible, because it's a small office. "The employee requests a leave, based on her doctor's recommendation of the number of weeks she needs."

She uses sick time, and when that is exhausted — unpaid leave. There is no loss of benefits or seniority, according to Kondziolka.

Assessment too high? Here's how to appeal your valuation

If you suspect that your property tax assessment is too high, you may have a legitimate complaint and there is something you can do about it.

The assessment process determines the true cash value of property for the purpose of calculating property taxes. It is up to each of Michigan's 1,531 different units of local government to fairly assess the value of taxable properties within their jurisdiction.

True cash value is the "usual selling price" of property. If you think your assessment is too high, you should begin by inspecting your records at your city assessor's office.

Make sure:

- Recorded dimensions of your house and lot are accurate.

- Portions of your house, such as unfinished attics and basements, have not been misrepresented in the description.

- The appraisal worksheet did not miss defects that would reduce the house's value such as settling foundations.

Each jurisdiction has its own citizen Board of Review which hears assessment appeals and renders decisions. Most boards of review begin meeting on the second Monday of March, with meeting time and place advertised locally.

Nonresidents may file a written protest, but appeals generally must be made in person or by designated representative. In your presentation before the board, be sure to document your case with examples of comparable housing sold at lower prices than your appraisal or of sales patterns in your neighborhood.

Also, your appeal should be limited to questioning the validity of the tax assessment and cannot include any arguments regarding the tax rate. By limiting your remarks in this way you'll improve your chances for a favorable judgment.

If after the appeal you are still dissatisfied with the decision, your next step is to write the Michigan Tax Tribunal (Treasury Department; P.O. Box 30230; Lansing, Mich. 48909; phone 517/373-8850). Appeals to the Tax Tribunal must be preceded by appeal through the Board of Review process and received no later than June 30 each year.

The letter should include the name and address of the property owner, the legal description of the property, the country and township or city where the property tax is located.

For more information, send a stamped, self-addressed business envelope to: MTIC, 115 W. Allegan #540; Lansing, Mich. 48933.

is expecting her second child Aug. 5. "I'll probably work until July 31," she said, "if I feel good that long. Then I'll take two-and-a-half months off." Blahut estimated she has about eight weeks of paid sick leave accumulated.

Grosse Pointe Woods, which has 84 full-time and 30 permanent part-time employees, treats maternity leave as an individual matter. Woods city Administrator Chester Petersen said they would try to follow the Supreme Court's guidelines.

According to a recent Time Magazine article, 65 percent of women of childbearing age are now in the work force, and 90 percent of these will have or have had children during their careers.

Tom Conley, of Bon Secours said, "We don't have a law (concerning maternity leave) in Michigan. We're anticipating one, however."

Coming out is coming back

Grosse Pointe is once more producing a crop of debutantes

By Elsa Frohman
 Feature Editor

The very word conjures up visions of Georgette Heyer novels where a beautiful young heroine glances up into the eyes of her handsome but mysterious escort and finds true love.

A cotillion.
 But there are more immediate associations. Many Grosse Pointers remember the glory days of local society when the cream of society's young girls came out at the country club or a private party.

Indeed, a Ford daughter's Grosse Pointe debut made national news and teenaged girls nation-wide sighed and wished they had been born among those privileged few who were presented in a cloud of white organza, to dance before their parents' friends with a handsome escort in a black tuxedo.

Somewhere between then and now, that rare breed of debutantes died out. Young girls started dreaming of rewarding careers and advanced education rather than splendid ball gowns and ravishing escorts.

Or did they?
 Last Saturday night, two Grosse Pointe girls proved that any obituaries for the cotillion are premature, to say the least. Quietly, but steadily — coming out is coming back.

Hedi Sucek and Donnell Stocker are only two of a number of Grosse Pointe girls to become debutantes this year. They were presented among a group of 12 16-year-olds from all over the Detroit area at the Viennese Strauss Ball of the Austrian Society of Michigan. On May 15, five more Grosse Pointe girls, Michelle Dakho, Alice Rashid, Cathy Obeid, Lisa Thomas and Andrea Thomas, will be presented among a debutante class of 27 at the United Christian Lebanese Association Ball at Thomas Crystal Gardens.

But in surviving, the tradition is changing to adapt itself to the '80s and the kind of girl who is coming of age in this decade. Most of the girls in this year's debutante balls attend public rather than private school (Hedi Sucek is the exception, attending University Liggett School.) And the requirements for becoming a deb don't include fabulous wealth or a membership in the proper country club.

"They just have to be nice girls," said Josephine Saigh, general chairman of the United Christian Lebanese affair. The UCL Debutante Ball is a scholarship fund-raiser.

If becoming a debutante is more egalitarian than it used to be, it is no less elegant.

The Strauss Ball debutantes appeared in hoop-skirted cotillion gowns, each on the arm of an undeniably handsome escort in tuxedo and black tie. They made a Grand March around the edge of the Cobo Hall ballroom then did a stately Polonaise — wide skirts swishing in time to the music, chins held high in an aristocratic pose, feet barely brushing the floor as they swept along through the complex patterns of the dance. (The Polonaise resembles nothing more than an extremely elegant drill team exercise. The dancers walk a complex criss-cross figure around the ballroom — miraculously avoiding collisions as they weave in and out around one another.)

When the Polonaise is complete, the girls' fathers take the floor and dance a waltz with their daughters to open the ball.

Hedi's father, Alexander Sucek, is in charge of teaching the girls and their escorts to dance the Polonaise. Preparation takes up several long Sunday afternoons prior to the ball.

This year's ball was the fifth cotillion for the Austrian Society. (It was the 40th Strauss Ball. The debutantes are a recent addition to the Strauss Ball tradition which echoes the great Opera Ball of Vienna.) While Sucek has trained the deb's and escorts since the beginning of the cotillion, this was the first year when he had the thrill of dancing with his own daughter after the Polonaise. He will repeat the pleasure next year or the year after when his second daughter, Yohanna, makes her debut.

"It is one of the rites of passage," Sucek said of Hedi's debut. "But as an incidental, we teach them something more about being ladies and gentlemen. They won't forget that they bowed or curtsied to their partners. You should see them at the first practice. They can't dance a step. Then the night of the ball, it all comes together. It's magic."

Donnell became involved in the cotillion because of her family's friendship with the Suceks.

"We went to Vienna a few years ago and found several hundred Stockers in the phone book," said Donnell's father, Terry Stocker. "But we've been in this

Squirrels provide entertainment for the wildlife watcher

By Ellen Probert
Special Writer

Sometimes it does seem as if there are more squirrels than there are people in Grosse Pointe. The fluffy-tailed little critters come in all colors — red, black, brown, grey and sometimes combinations of the above — and we see them everywhere running up and down trees, playing tag with each other, dashing across streets just in front of oncoming cars, and robbing bird feeders, busier than anybody.

Any day now you are likely to see them wrestling with crumpled sheets of newspaper and other substances because it is nest-building time, and while any kind of paper will do, newspaper is preferred. Printer's ink has long been noted as a moth and vermin repellent. So is cedar bark which the squirrels also love to use to line their nests. Could it be that these little animals know instinctively that cedar bark and newsprint make their homes free of injurious parasites?

Squirrels are smarter than you think. One local resident whose roof gutters were overflowing discovered that a squirrel had neatly corked the openings into the downspouts with corn cobs which fitted exactly and dammed up the water in the gutters. And there is the lady who had been giving one gray squirrel cookies with nuts in them. One day she propped a cookie against the inside of the window and the squirrel spent several days trying to figure out how to get at it and finally began to tunnel through the window frame. Chips, splinters and gouges had to be puttied and painted and she has decided that jokes played on squirrels are not a good idea.

The Gardener's

March is the month that heralds spring and bows in the direction of St. Patrick, the patron saint of Ireland, and proudly wears the shamrock, or oxalis, the national flower of Ireland.

Oxalis was an old druidic mystic emblem in Ireland, the symbol of Celtic sunwheel, long before 432 A.D. when St. Patrick arrived teaching Christianity. The Irish legend tells that when St. Patrick preached before a powerful chieftan and his people he was asked "How can One be Three?" St. Patrick, searching for a simple answer, looked down and saw a shamrock. He gathered it up and held it before the chieftan. "Here in this leaf," he said, "three in one, the old, lucky symbol of the sacred sunwheel, three parts in one, divisible yet indivisible, the point was made."

In the Chinese flower calendar the flower for March and Spring is the tree peony, symbol of love and affection. In Japan the cherry blossom is the flower for March.

If you look closely you can see the buds appearing on the trees. Most of us can hardly wait for the first green leaves of spring (forgetting all about what a pain it was to have to rake them all up last fall). March is a tricky month and the possibility of blizzards is still with us, but even in the face of this depressing thought we look for signs of spring in the treetops.

According to Professor T. M. Das of the University of Calcutta, in India, a tree living for 50 years will generate $31,750 worth of oxygen, provide $62,500 worth of air pollution control, control soil erosion and increase soil fertility to the worth of $32,250, recycle $38,500 worth of water and provide a home for animals worth $31,250. This figure does not include the value of the fruits, lumber or beauty derived from trees. So a tree could be worth nearly $200,000.

Those fascinating facts and many more derive from the newsletter of the Grosse Pointe Shade Tree Council, whose doors are always open for new members. Contact Donna Weinle at 882-2569 for more information about the council, or visit the extensive collection of books, periodicals and other materials which the council maintains as part of the reference library of the Grosse Pointe Garden Center. The Garden Center is located on the second floor of the Grosse Pointe War Memorial and is open on Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday.

If you like watercress in salads why not grow your own on the kitchen windowsill? You can have it the year around just so long as you keep the soil it is growing in forever damp.

Buy a bunch of fresh watercress at the supermarket, strip the bottom leaves off and put it in rainwater or water without chemicals. Keep the cress in bright sunlight or very bright artificial light and change the water every day. Roots should appear in two to four days. When they are about two inches long you can plant the watercress. Keep the soil wet all the time, and keep the container in which your watercress is growing in a saucer filled with water.

And speaking of salad, did you know that nasturtium leaves chopped very fine are a marvelous substitute for salt and pepper for people on restricted diets? The leaves have a very peppery flavor, and if you use them instead you will find you don't need salt either.

FACTS YOU SHOULD KNOW ABOUT PLASTIC SURGERY.

FACT 1: FREE CONSULTATION WITH A SURGEON IS IMPORTANT.

When it comes to cosmetic surgery, we operate a little differently at Cottage Hospital. For example, our physicians offer a free consultation. A time to discuss your private questions in a private setting. Call 881-1800 for details.

FACT 2: EXPERIENCE AND TRAINING MAKE A DIFFERENCE.

In Michigan, any licensed physician can put "cosmetic surgeon" on a business card. But at Cottage Hospital, your doctor has completed extensive post-graduate training, including a residency in plastic surgery or otolaryngology (L.F.). All cosmetic surgeons don't meet these strict standards.

But your surgeon at Cottage Hospital does.

FACT 3: COSMETIC SURGERY HAS MANY FACES.

country so long, we're not really sure we're Austrian."

"One of the functions of the Austrian Society is to preserve and teach the traditions of Austria," Sucek said. "Teaching these young people to waltz is part of the process. But we also want to give these young people the feeling that they have come of age. We want to give them an important new sense of their identity and dignity."

Hedi's grandmother, Charity Sucek, was in the audience watching her granddaughter make her debut.

"Things have changed," she said. "Things go out of style. But tradition is a wonderful thing. It helps to restore balance. People suffer from this modern world. Without reverting to old fashioned things, man has a hard time in this world."

Mrs. Sucek grew up in Vienna before the fall of the Austro-Hungarian Empire. Her father was the governor-general of the province that is now Yugoslavia. She remembers her parents attending the court balls of the Emperor Franz Josef.

"My mother and father would go to the court balls in Vienna," she said. "Mother would come into the nursery to say good night to me. It was a wonderful thing."

Mrs. Sucek's own cotillion debut never happened because the war changed the world she grew up in. She looked across the ballroom to where her granddaughter was preparing to make her grand entrance.

"I remember when she was a baby," she said. "I never thought I would live to see her dance the Polonaise."

But Hedi and Donnell aren't relics of another era. Both are active American teenagers. Hedi squeezed her Polonaise rehearsals in between Grosse Pointe Children's Theatre rehearsals, school, athletic events and music lessons. Donnell is no less involved with the present, according to her father.

"I'd like to believe that she's rather typical," Stocker said. "But she's also rather special."

The girls were in seventh heaven Saturday night.

"This is something very special," Hedi said. "It's part of my heritage."

"It's wonderful," Donnell agreed. "It's so exciting to be introduced to society in front of 2,000 people."

"Turning 16 is one of the biggest birthdays," Hedi said. (She will be 16 on March 9.) "You get your (driver's) license, you are legally allowed to date. Life goes in stages."

The escorts are young men from the families of the Austrian Society members. They range in age from 16 to their early 20s. Many agree to be escorts for several years in a row because the event is such fun. Experienced escorts are in high demand, according to Sucek.

"My escort is one of the best dancers," Hedi said. "I'm really lucky. He's really sweet."

Hedi doesn't believe the cotillion is an elitist institution.

"If only certain people could be in it then it would be snobbish," she said. "But the people in this are so diverse. It's anything but snobbish."

There are hitches to preparing for a cotillion. For one thing, cotillion gowns are not available at the local discount store.

"It is horrible to find a cotillion dress," Sucek said. Donnell's gown was a slightly modified wedding dress. Hedi's gown was made to be a cotillion dress, but it wasn't easy to come by.

"Hedi's dress came through Maria Dinon from the man who supplies cotillion dresses for Elizabeth Arden," Sucek said. "Apparently, there has been a big market for cotillion dresses in Texas. At least when oil was high."

The UCL Debutante Ball differs from the Austrian Society event in that it stresses community involvement more than dancing. The UCL debutantes are the daughters of families that primarily belong to St. Maron's and Our Lady of Redemption Church. They are mostly of Lebanese extraction, through some are of Syrian descent.

Josephine Saigh explained that the girls attend several functions preparing for their debut. They begin with a mother-daughter tea (held last Sunday) and later serve a senior citizen luncheon at St. Maron's Church. A pre-ball party rounds out their debutante season and leads up to the big event in May.

"We have the senior citizen luncheon because we want to remind them to respect their elders," Saigh said.

The UCL has been holding debutante balls for 12 years. More than 40 students have benefited from UCL scholarships.

"When we started off, we worked with the Consul of Lebanon on this," Saigh said. "We want to teach these girls about their heritage. We want to give them a secure feeling of what their life is about. We bring in the grandparents and get the family involved."

The UCL debs are high school seniors rather than 16-year-olds, Saigh said. The group does not solicit each year's class of debutantes. News of the event spreads by word of mouth.

"Many of the girls have had older sisters in the ball," Saigh said. "Every time, before the ball, we have a list of names."

Cathy Obeid said she wanted to be in the cotillion because of her sister's participation last year.

"It was the highlight of her senior year," she said. "It's part of being Lebanese. We are proud of our heritage."

Cathy said her friends at Grosse Pointe North High School were excited about the cotillion.

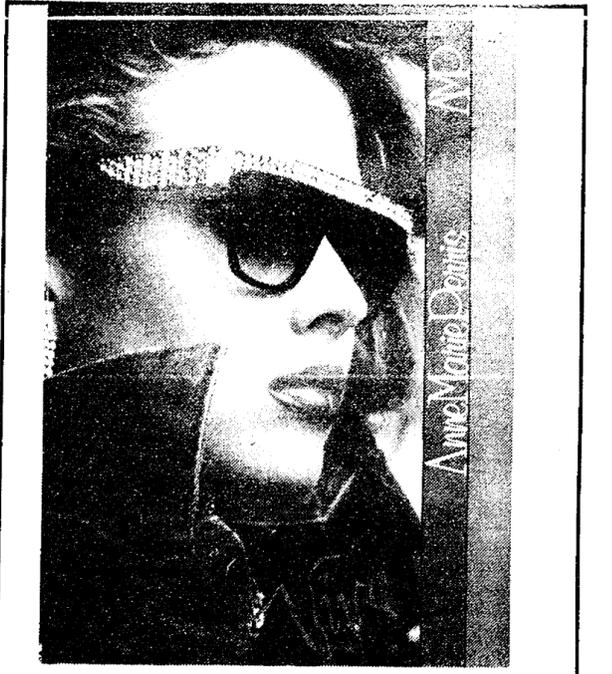

"They are so enthused, they wish they were Lebanese," she said. "Everyone wants to wear a long white dress and be a debutante."

At the Strauss Ball, 14-year-old Yohanna Sucek watched her sister do the Polonaise with rapt attention. Is she looking forward to her debut?

"You bet," she said.

The United Christian Lebanese Association has been holding a debutante ball for the past 12 years. Among this year's debs will be, from the left, Lisa Thomas, Grosse Pointe North High School; Cathy Obeid, North; Michelle Dakho, North; and Kathy Elibri, Our Lady Star of the Sea High School. The Pastor's Corner

Which side is this side?

By the Rev. J. Phillip Wahl
St. Paul Ev. Lutheran Church

It has been clear to me for some time now that I am a political misfit. My friends have said, "We just don't know where you are coming from anymore."

For years I have worked and spoken for a greater commitment to the rights of minorities. I have worked and witnessed against war and for peace, against the death penalty and for prison reform. I was known as a liberal.

Suddenly a few years ago, I was confronted with the position that to truly earn the label of liberal, I had to be "pro" on just about any issue introduced by other "liberals," whether they clashed with my understanding of Christ's teachings, or not. Had I now become a conservative? But what conservative would cozy up to someone who wants to ban the bomb and have a sharing of the wealth with all of God's people? Don't I "belong" anywhere anymore?

Then within the span of a couple of months, I found out I belonged.

It started when a fellow from the American Civil Liberties Union wrote me a note that began, "The ACLU is not for everyone, but we are writing because you have made clear that you share our concern for civil liberties in the United States." A few weeks later, George Bush wrote a deeply personal letter. "Dear John," he began (I must have neglected to tell him that I go by my middle name.) "May I call upon you for a personal favor?" (It is hard to say no to a good friend like George.) I got stopped by the next line: "You have demonstrated your support for President Reagan's agenda for America..." and I knew our friendship was on shaky ground. I knew that the fellow from the ACLU didn't really understand me, either. I have respect for many causes championed by the ACLU, but it's my opinion that it has an anti-church bias. As for the support I have demonstrated for Ronald Reagan's agenda, my good friend George needs a better source.

Like so many others, I want to be part of a group. I want my friends approval of my values, but not at the expense of my Christian conviction.

I admit that my opinions on issues continue to change, especially as the shaped of the issues change. I recognize that other Christians have struggled with the same issues and come up with different answers. My task is to ask God to guide me and not to worry about who is pleased with my decisions, or whether I am "belonging."

Thank God that I am able to live in a country and belong to a Christian community that allows me to be the person I am; allows me to grow, to change, to struggle.

To live and struggle with the life God has given me is indeed a great gift. During this season of Lent, when the Christian church places great emphasis upon the meaning of Jesus Christ, I know that Jesus Christ has given freedom to me by his death and victory to me by his resurrection, and I continue the struggle in a position of renewed and affirmed hope.

I know where I belong.

GP United plans program

The Women's Association of the Grosse Pointe United Church (formerly called The GP Congregational/American Baptist Church) will meet at 11 a.m. on Tuesday, March 10. The day's events will consist of a business meeting and luncheon followed by a speaker.

The featured speaker will be Mona Stonefish, North American Indian culture consultant. Stonefish is with the Plymouth office of the North American Indian Association. She will speak about Indian contemporary history, concepts and education.

The church women are asked to bring canned foods and new or used clothing which is in good condition. These things will be sent to the North American Indian Association. Reservations must be made by Monday, March 9, by calling the church office 884-3075, or stopping by the church at 240 Chalfonte, Grosse Pointe Farms.

A new name for a familiar congregation

With a new name and a new associate minister, the Grosse Pointe United Church, formerly the Grosse Pointe Congregational and American Baptist Church, is looking forward to an exciting future.

Combining the diverse heritages of Congregational, Christian, Evangelical and Reformed, as well as American Baptist traditions, the congregation worshipping at 240 Chalfonte Road, has decided to change its name to identify itself more closely with the surrounding community.

"We felt the name had become unmanageable," said the Rev. Roy R. Hutcheon, senior minister of the church.

The jaw-breaking moniker, Grosse Pointe Congregational and American Baptist Church, grew out of the merger of the Grosse Pointe Congregational Church and the Jefferson Avenue Baptist Church 11 years ago, Hutcheon explained. The Jefferson Avenue church was an American Baptist congregation with traditions not unlike the Congregational group. The two churches united under the auspices of the United Church of Christ.

"This (the name change) has been in the works for a long time," Hutcheon said. "Finally, at this year's annual meeting, we voted to do it."

The church had long suffered from misunderstandings resulting from the complicated name, the pastor said.

"We had people calling and asking which service was Congregational and which was American Baptist," Hutcheon said. "We needed a name that said something about what we are."

While the church will henceforth be known as the Grosse Pointe United Church, it will remain the Grosse Pointe Congregational Church officially, because of a state law concerning the church's charter.

Along with its new name, the church is welcoming a new clergyman this month. The Rev. David Kaiser-Cross will become the congregation's first associate minister.

Kaiser-Cross comes from Zion United Church of Christ, Kansas City, Mo. He is a native of Chicago, raised in Pasadena, Calif. His undergraduate work was taken at San Diego State University, followed by profes-

Currently, Kaiser-Cross is serving the church on a part-time basis. On May 1, he will be joined by his wife, Debbie, and daughter, Annie. At that time, he will assume full-time duties.

Capuchin Community Center needs assistance

The Capuchin Community Center/Soup Kitchen today announced that since the beginning of 1987, the agency has had an increased demand for food and clothing services for the poor and hungry, while experiencing a severe drop in donations.

"We are very concerned about this situation. We believe that the slow down of in-kind donations that we are experiencing is directly related to the new 1987 federal tax law and its ramifications regarding deductibility of donations. Our mission to serve the poor will be seriously hampered if donations continue at such a slow pace," said the Rev. Lloyd Thiel, director of the soup kitchen.

In order to clarify the confusing tax deduction situation, the Capuchin Community Center has asked the Detroit Certified Public Accounting firm of Herman and MacLean to simply and succinctly address the deductibility of in-kind donations under the 1987 tax law.

Ronald Tank, C.P.A., member of Herman and MacLean explained the situation.

"For individuals who claim itemized deductions and for businesses, the new tax law made no trucks, once busy collecting donations of beds, stoves, etc., are now idle while the poor suffer.

According to Thiel, cash contributions have remained somewhat stable, but in-kind donations of clothing, used furniture and functional appliances have dropped substantially. The Capuchin Community Center's phones are ringing continuously with requests for help from persons who have been burned out or are attempting to start a new household as a result of some life catastrophe. They are unable to meet the demand of requests for services. The Soup Kitchen's changes as to the deductibility of cash or in-kind contributions. The only change under the new tax law affecting the deduction for charitable contributions was that the deduction for non-itemizers was allowed to expire and is therefore no longer available. Additionally, the new law classifies the appreciation on capital gain property as a preference for purposes of the minimum tax. This change would not normally apply to donations of clothing, furniture or appliances," Tank said.

If you have useable clothing, furniture or other household items please call us at (313)579-1330, ext. 134.

Christ Child Society looks for outstanding person for award

Since 1912, the Christ Child Society of Detroit has directed its time, attention and resources to caring for the needs of disadvantaged children. Recently, officers of Christ Child Society announced plans for the celebration of their landmark 75th Diamond Jubilee Anniversary this year.

A major event on the calendar will be the presentation of a specially donated diamond to the reipient of the newly established Christ Child Society Merrick Award. This once-in-a-lifetime honor will be determined from the recommendations of a selection committee comprised of local business and community leaders.

Serving on the committee are Lem Barney, of Michigan Consolidated Gas Co.; Doris Biscoe, WXYZ-TV 7 news anchor; the Rev. Malcolm Carron, S.J., former president of the University of Detroit; Jane Kay, vice president of administrative services for Detroit Edison; Detroit Free Press publisher David Lawrence; community volunteer Sue Nine; as well as noted industrialist David Hermelin.

Named for Mary Virginia Merrick, the foundress of the National Christ Child Society, the award will be presented to an individual who has made enduring accomplishments, contributions and service toward the welfare of children in metropolitan Detroit and/or Michigan. Nominations can be made by individuals or groups.

New projects undertaken by the Christ Child Society were also disclosed at a recent news conference. The Christ Child Society sponsors Christ Child House for children from six to 10 years of age who have been placed there by the courts or Social Services because of abuse or neglect. Currently 20 children reside at Christ Child House.

In addition, Christ Child Society conducts an outreach program designed for potentially abusive parents with children five years of age or younger. Called Joy Place, this prevention program is conducted at Christ Child House.

The group also contributes to Boys Hope, Ronald McDonald House, St. Francis Home for Boys, Pregnancy Aid and supplies layettes through social service agencies. Scholarships and camperships are also given. Recently the Society took on the Oxford Institute and the Judson Center as volunteer projects.

CROP Hunger campaign organization had best year ever in 1986

Michigan Church World Service-CROP concluded 1986 with its second consecutive million-dollar-plus year. The $1,274,732 cash total placed Michigan as the nation's leading region for CWS and the highest total in its 39-year history, announced David C. Bower, the Michigan director. Preliminary reports indicate that $223,000 has been distributed to local community hunger agencies in Michigan, and $94,000 is allocated for the purchase of CWS blankets for refugee families.

Ninety-four Michigan communities successfully walked for hunger, many in rain for 10 miles, to achieve the highest walk income total ever for a year at $1,040,000. The leading family-oriented local walk in Michigan, for the fourth consecutive year, was Holland with income of $111,306. There were 14 new walks in Michigan in 1986, with Royal Oak and Farmington leading that category. Traverse City and Ann Arbor Walks provided the largest increases from the previous year, while the Plant Hope Walk of Grand Rapids contributed $65,214 to CWS.

CWS/CROP in Michigan is celebrating its 40th year on Saturday, March 28, in Lansing. CROP (then Christian Rural Overseas Program) was initiated in 1947 by Michigan farmers collecting corn and beans from their neighbors to be shipped to European refugees and displaced people.

Huron County has continued the tradition all 40 years, with the Laker High School FFA and the Unionville-Sebewaing High School FFA leading their communities in collecting funds to purchase Michigan-grown beans. Michigan CWS/CROP continues to work with farm agencies including FFA, Michigan Milk Producers Association, Cooperative Extension Service, Michigan Farm Bureau, Family Farms Concerns Coalition and the Governor's Conference on the Future of Agriculture.

In the 39-year history in Michigan, CWS/CROP volunteers have collected $10.5 million of farm commodities, clothing, blankets and cash. Cash is often used to buy food products, milk powder, hand tools for gardening, vegetable seeds, or to provide grants for village agricultural programs or public health programs.

CROP (now the Community Hunger Appeal of CWS) Walk funds are used in CWS emergency and self-help programs in 70 counties, including the U.S.A. this past year resulted in CWS coordinating farmer-to-farmer hay shipments and $5.5 million of seeds for family farmers.

CWS/CROP has expanded its service ministry from emergency food provider in the late 1940's to include program outreach in refugee resettlement, advocacy for the poor and global education within the 32-members denominations of CWS and Church Women United.

In Michigan, CWS/CROP sponsored a Global Education Seminar for public schoolteachers and Christian educators, and itinerated Noemi de Espinoza, a Honduran woman lawyer.

Memorial Women's Association

On Tuesday, March 10, the Women's Association of Grosse Pointe Memorial Church will hear "A Woman's View of the Middle East" from a recent traveler to that area. Guest speaker Carol Hylkema is immediate past president of Detroit Presbyterial, an organization of 81 Presbyterian women's associations in the Detroit area.

Beginning at 10 a.m. there will be a business meeting conducted by president Joyce Edwards in the lounge. Marion Wilson will give the morning devotions. The speaker of the day will be introduced by Jane Warren, a member of the program committee and first vice president of Detroit Presbyterial.

In February 1986, Hylkema was one of a group of 20 to tour Jordan, Israel, and the West Bank, talking with Arab Muslims and Christians at every opportunity. A resident of Dearborn, she is a graduate of Western Michigan University.

A noon luncheon will be served in the fellowship hall. Visitors are welcome. Reservations can be made by calling the church office at 882-5330. Child care is available.

Sullivan to appear at Woods church

The Grosse Pointe Woods Presbyterian Church, 19950 Mack Avenue is pleased to announce the appearance of Kathie Sullivan in a Christian concert this Sunday evening, March 8, at 7 p.m.

Sullivan was a featured soloist on the popular Lawrence Welk Show. She is now devoting her vocal talent to Christian music. She was recently voted the Angel Award for best Female Gospel Singer of the Year.

Sullivan is making this special Grosse Pointe concert appearance at the Grosse Pointe Woods Presbyterian Church in an "Evening of Music" and will also appear in the 11 a.m. worship service this Sunday.

Kathie's warm personality, beautiful singing voice and versatile musical styles, make for a truly enriching and enjoyable listening experience for all. Her radiant and winsome Christian spirit comes through her talented voice as she sings the traditional "The Lord's Prayer," to contemporary Gospel songs of today.

Dr. Irving Phillips, senior pastor, extends a cordial invitation to the community to join with the Grosse Pointe Woods Presbyterian Church congregation for a delightful and inspirational "Evening of Music" with Kathie Sullivan this Sunday evening at 7 p.m.

The meetings are usually held the first Wednesday of each month, but the March meeting is the exception due to the fact that the club will be enjoying a week's skiing at Steamboat Springs, Colo.

The regular meeting of the Grosse Pointe Crafts Guild will be held Wednesday, March 11, at 7:30 p.m., in the upstairs meeting room of the Grosse Pointe Central Library. Following a brief business meeting, those present will try their hand at "scherenschnitte," the art of paper cutting. This craft, probably of German origin, was popular with the Pennsylvania settlers, who adorned marriage and birth certificates with elaborate cutting. Those attending are asked to bring a pencil and a small pair of scissors such as embroidery or cuticle scissors. Other supplies will be furnished.

The craft guild meetings are held the second Wednesday of each month, and anyone who is interested in crafts is invited to attend.

Lisekewycz has B.A. and M.A. degrees from Wayne State University. She started with the D.I.A. in 1978 as an intern in European Art. She is now assistant curator of European paintings specializing in illuminated manuscripts.

She says illuminated manuscripts are little understood by the general public. She explains what they are, how they are made and what role they have in the context of western art. She says the manuscripts are so fragile they can be shown only in short periods of time, in very low light, in order to preserve their colors.

There will be no admission charge for members; $2 for others. Light refreshments will follow the presentation. For more information call Stella Stone at 882-9651.

An open letter to student/athletes

Editor's note: A professional athlete with one of Detroit's sports teams has given the Grosse Pointe News permission to publish this letter he wrote to a former coach. It contains a message he wishes to share with student/athletes in Grosse Pointe and elsewhere. His message is thoughtful and eloquent and even though it is one which has been written about many times in this space, we think it is well worth publishing again.

Dear coach,

You know as well as I that baseball has been very good to me, but as we all know, baseball does come to an end for everybody. There are no exceptions to this rule. We as athletes have a tremendous tendency to live in a dream world rather than the real world. While we are in the dream world everything seems to be fun and carefree. Our responsibilities seem to be centered around our particular sport. We go through a good portion of our lives conditioned this way and then all of a sudden, it's over.

'the . . . athlete who disciplines himself in his sport and in the classroom can put himself into a category not too many other people can.'

The following day the real world grabs us by the throat and begins to tell us how foolish we are not to recognize that the dream world we are in is not what life is all about. I would like to thank you for being very concerned about your athletes graduating from Illinois State. I know that we had our differences of opinion when I attended Illinois State and even after I graduated from Illinois State, but now that I look back, the best thing that you could do for an athlete is to let him know to the best of your ability how important an education is.

The garbage I hear that there is not enough time to study and to participate in sports is hogwash. If you can develop disciplines while in college, they can carry over into the real world and we as student/athletes have a much better chance of surviving in the real world.

My credentials are: business degree from Illinois State University, real estate license in Illinois, stockbroker license to sell throughout the U.S. and the world. Not because I am a professional athlete did I obtain my current positions, but rather, it is because I was a student/athlete that I acquired enough qualifications to obtain these positions.

What I am trying to say in summary is: not everybody can be a collegiate athlete, but those who are . . . anyone can be an unmotivated collegiate athlete and unfortunately in our world, the unmotivated collegiate athlete falls flat on his face.

On the other hand, the collegiate athlete who disciplines himself in his sport and in the classroom can put himself in a category that not too many other people can get into. He should be extremely proud of himself and he can most assuredly feel that after his college days are over, he will succeed in whatever he chooses to do.

I am sitting here at my desk feeling very good about my life. I never reached stardom in my sport at the professional level, but I feel total peace within myself because I know that in my life, I will be able to provide for my family after my baseball days are over because of the disciplines I acquired at Illinois State University.

Thanks for kicking me in the rear . . . hoping this message finds you and your family in good health. Good luck to you and your team in the upcoming season.

God bless you.

Sincerely,
 Your former student

Ice is nice . . . maybe

Everyone knows that you must crawl before you can walk . . . and before you can play hockey, you must learn to skate. That's what this group of youngsters has been doing for the last two weekends at the Grosse Pointe Community Rink. The Grosse Pointe Hockey Association, as it has for several seasons, is conducting a Pre-Mite Skating Clinic which began Feb. 21 and will conclude March 8. Children 4 to 9 are taught the basics of ice skating by trained GPHA instructors.

The confident-looking fellow at left is obviously an old hand at this . . . or is he? And above, South High hockey players Ilya Snyder and Jim Smith lend a steady hand to future hockey hopefuls.

Top junior hockey teams will play locally

The nation's finest high school hockey players will be showcased in the Dodge-Little Caesars Junior Olympic Hockey Tournament set for the Detroit area April 8 through 11.

The tournament, an Amateur Hockey Association of the United States (AHAUS) event, will be held at St. Clair Shores Civic Arena, as well as Yost Ice Arena in Ann Arbor and Munn Arena in East Lansing.

Minnesota minor hockey representative Dave Peterson told media representatives at a Feb. 12 Joe Louis Arena press conference that the event will "bring together some of the best high school hockey players in the United States.

"The caliber of this tournament is such that it will almost certainly draw scouts from every National Hockey League team, as well as from colleges and from the Olympic federation," Petersen said.

Among current NHL stars who played in previous AHAUS Junior Olympic Tournaments are Waterford's Pat LaFontaine of the New York Islanders and Detroit's John VanBiesbrouck, New York Rangers' goaltender and a graduate of Harper Woods Bishop Gallagher High School.

"This event has become very important to our player development program as we prepare for the 1988 Winter Olympics in Calgary," said AHAUS president Walter Bush. "We're pleased to be expanding our current relationship with Dodge and welcoming Little Caesars through a joint involvement with the Junior Olympic Tournament."

Little Caesars has promoted minor hockey in the Detroit area for more than 25 years.

Tickets for the event are $5 for adults, $3 for students and may be obtained at Detroit Red Wings home games, at all Ticketmaster outlets and at the three event sites prior to the games.

St. Clair Shores games include the Michigan-Massachusetts contest at 8 p.m. Thursday, April 9 and the West-East (regional All-Star teams) game at 8 p.m. Friday, April 10. The championship game will take place at 8 p.m. Saturday, April 11 in Ann Arbor.

It isn't always easy to make the transition

From the locker room to the classroom

By Peggy O'Connor
Sports Editor

On the soccer field, varsity coach Guido Regelbrugge is vocal, animated, impassioned, demanding and thoroughly immersed in the activity. In his Honors French classroom, he is every bit of that. But there is also a third Regelbrugge that few people ever see.

"In the classroom and on the soccer field I must take on a pose that really isn't me. I come on strong. I yell. I get mad. Sometimes, I hear people on the other side of the field yelling about what a maniac I am. But that really isn't me.

"If you were to ask my wife she'd tell you that I am a softy. In my person life, I'm a quiet, brugge says.

Almost the exact opposite of Regelbrugge is his crosstown coaching counterpart David Backhurst, of University Liggett School. On the field, Backhurst is quiet and calm. In his classroom — which is decorated with newspaper clippings, Buffalo Sabres bumper sticker and soccer flags obtained on soccer trips to Europe — the same laid-back approach is obvious. Backhurst's popular seniors-only class on Viet Nam is more like a college class, with the eight students free to participate in a sort of give-and-take, open forum on the topic.

"With all of the things going on in Central America and the constant references to Viet Nam, kids are starting to ask questions more conducive to that style of teaching, since little of the course is taught from texts. His ninth and 10th grade health course combines sections on first aid, personal health, substance abuse, stress and other topics with which students deal in daily living.

Helping students learn the material and apply it to their everyday lives is a natural process for a coach, Griesbaum says. "I think high school coaches have to do more teaching than anything else. We have to deal with kids, we have to teach skills and we have to help teach them about life."

A difficulty for many coaches who teach is keeping the jobs separate. Teaching is, of course, their primary duty. But the time and emotion involved in coaching often makes it hard to keep one area of a coach's life from slipping over into the other.

"As much as I try to keep them separate, I think that when things go well, it affects my work in the classroom. When you are winning, it's sure a lot nicer to get up in the morning and go to school," Griesbaum says.

By the same token, one job often complements the other. "I don't think you can be a good coach without being a good teacher," says South varsity hockey coach Tim Zimmerman. "Teaching demands organization, it demands your being a good role model and the ability to communicate... everything that makes a good coach."

"But you do have to remember not to take the school — or the sport — home with you," says Zimmerman, who teaches emotionally impaired students at Neil Reid School.

"Sometimes, that's hard to do. You figure that you are the one who's going to get through to a kid. You get close to him to help him... and because he has the problems he has, you can get hurt. You have to remind yourself to care, but not to become too attached," Zimmerman said.

"But I love teaching... I see myself teaching and coaching for a long time."

ZIMMERMAN IS one of the 50 percent of Grosse Pointe high school coaches who do not teach in the Grosse Pointe school system. Only 22 of the 102 high school level coaches teach at North or South; an additional 30 coaches are teachers outside the high schools, but within the system.

"There's no question about it... I'd love to be in the building," Zimmerman says. "When I think of the number of trips I take to South in a season. I'm there at least three times a week, not counting the times I'm there for banquets and staff meetings."

"It makes a tremendous difference in terms of communication," agrees University Liggett School co-athletic director Bob Wood. "Communication between the coach and the athletic department is so much easier. More importantly, each faculty member coach is totally involved in the school picture. He's aware of academic pressures, social pressures, etc. He understands what the child is going through... and has a better overall understanding both in the class and on the field."

"And that makes for a better English class and a better football practice."

Oddly enough, coaches can also get a better handle on the athletic talent available when they work in the school building during the day.

"It sounds funny, but when I think back to when I coached track, I can remember times when (coach) Jack Edwards and myself pulled all kinds of quality kids into the program right out of the hallways," laughs North High athletic director Tim Gauerke.

"Really, though, it's such a significant thing to have the coach right in the school. I've always said that before I retire, I'd like to get it back to where the coaches are right there in the building all the time," Gauerke says.

coach who, if he put the same time and effort into a money-making venture, couldn't do very well at it.

"Our coaches make between $2,000 and $3,000 for a full season. Divide that by the number of hours they put into their sport and you'll agree that coaching isn't the sort of activity to adopt if you want to get rich," Gauerke says.

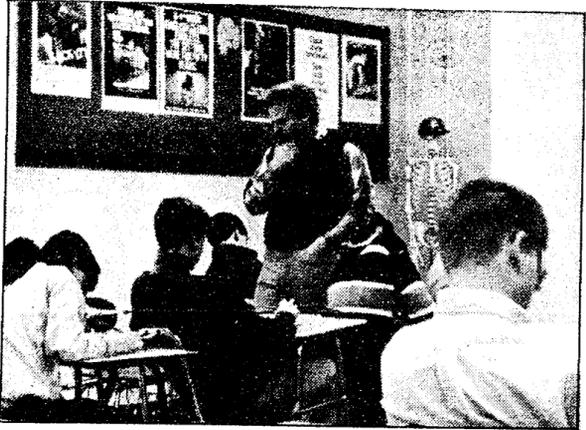

So why do they do it?

ULS varsity basketball coach Chuck Wright did it because, after years of knocking around in the service as a sports writer, college tennis and baseball player, 7-7. I was really proud of that team... I'll never forget that.

"Or when a kid gets the concept of borrowing down in third grade math and you can see the look in his eyes when he realizes he can do it."

"My best moment as a teacher comes when I get to parents' night and a parent or a child will come up to me and say 'I appreciate what you've done.' Everybody likes to get a pat on the back. It's the same with coaching. When kids I used to coach keep in contact with me, that tells me that they value my opinion enough to keep in touch," Griesbaum says.

South's Dan Griesbaum has found that teaching means more than just lectures and exams.

calm guy who reads a poem and gets a tear in his eye. I'm not the guy you see on the field," Regelbrugge says.

What Regelbrugge is is a school teacher who happens to be a coach. For him, the combination was a natural.

"It's funny, but throughout my childhood I really only spent my time on two things: my studies and soccer. My parents wanted me to concentrate on my studies first, then I could get out and run all day. I soon learned that that's the way I wanted it, too.

"My professional life became an extension to that childhood," Regelbrugge recalls.

He attended teachers' college in Belgium, taught there for several years and has taught in parochial and public schools in the United States since 1961. Since 1966, he has taught language and humanities in the Grosse Pointe School system. He is also the only soccer coach North's girls and boys' teams have ever had.

"I've always enjoyed teaching and coaching. You don't do either of those because you want to make money," Regelbrugge says. "And it shows. Kids know if teaching and coaching is an adventure to you... just as they are very aware of it if you are just putting in time and killing the clock."

REGELBRUGGE'S students and players know him to be firm, fair... and very demanding. "Sure I'm demanding. I demand a lot from myself, so why shouldn't I demand things from my students? Listen, I made a commitment. I plan my classes carefully and I plan my practices carefully. If I do this and I see the kids getting sloppy, I say 'hey, we're in this together. I don't get paid less if you get a C or a D. I'm up here for your benefit... it's your life.'

"I get mad sometimes, but two seconds after it's gone. My kids know that about me," Regel-about Viet Nam. The course has three parts, incorporating the chronology of the country, the way the war was fought and the ramifications it has had on Viet Nam and on the United States.

"I became curious about Viet Nam myself because I was in the service, but never saw action in Viet Nam. I learned all I could about it and began teaching it as a senior elective in 1981. It has turned out to be a very rewarding experience because the kids are very interested in it," Backhurst says.

That helps make a class for a teacher, much the same way a successful season does for a coach, he adds.

"As a coach, I can't afford to be too laid-back, even though I have that sort of personality," Backhurst explains. "I've got to convey that emotion and enthusiasm to my players. And every so often, there's a student who just needs a kick in the tail to get going in class.

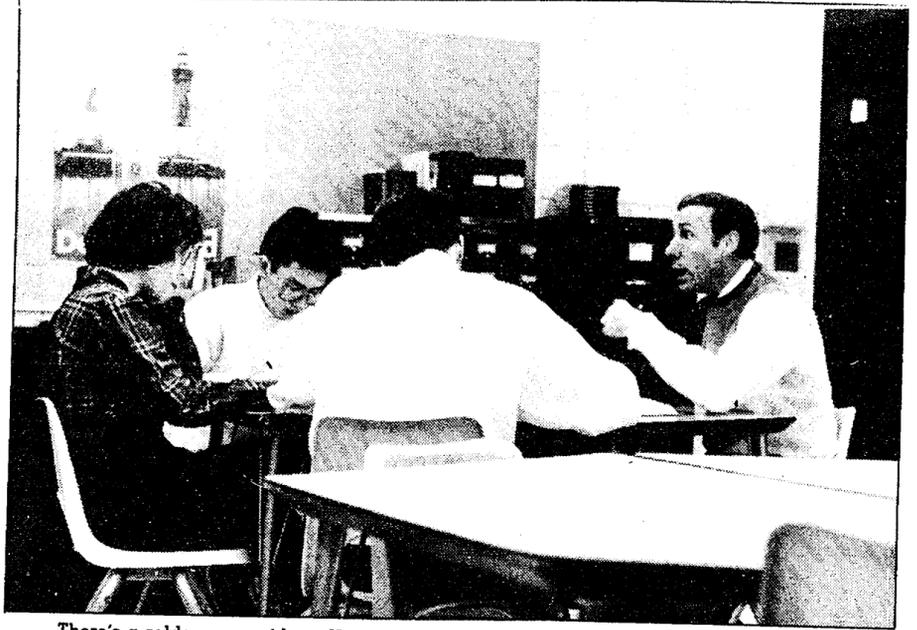

"And, I'll admit that history for some can be boring. I have to get myself excited about the subject in order to keep the kids excited about learning.

"That's what's enjoyable about coaching and teaching — when a kid tells you that he really enjoyed a class or when you take a bunch of kids in the pre-season and mold them into a cohesive unit on the field... you really feel like you've done something," Backhurst says.

THAT CAN be a little more difficult for teachers who instruct underclassmen, many of whom have yet to find their niche in high school.

"You have to be sort of an entertainer," says South High health teacher and varsity baseball coach Dan Griesbaum. "It isn't enough that the material is good, it has to be put across in a manner that will hold their attention."

Griesbaum's class is a little

There's a seldom-seen side to North soccer coach/French teacher Guido Regelbrugge.

DECLINING enrollment of the last decade forced layoffs for many young teachers... exactly those who are the type who can handle the 10-12 hour days, six days per week that coaching demands.

"Coaching is a young person's job. It doesn't take a genius to figure out that it's very difficult to ask a teacher to work from 8 a.m. to 3 p.m., then become enthusiastic about working with young people in a positive way for three or four more hours — not to mention Saturdays," Gauerke says. "You certainly can't be concerned about money when you are a coach. I don't know of a single he found that he could combine his biggest strengths — enthusiasm and the ability to motivate — into a career as a teacher. His love of sports made coaching the next natural step.

The kids he teaches are third graders, not high school seniors, so the transition from teacher to coach is a little more difficult than that of his coaching peers. But the effusive Wright seems to handle it with ease.

"The bottom line is the equipment I have when I have a team like the one I had in Charlevoix, where no kid had ever played basketball before and we were 0-4 at Christmas and wound up at "That feels good."

North's Regelbrugge says he feels that a teacher/coach gets out of a job what he puts into it.

"If you take the approach that what you are doing is fresh and new then you will enjoy your work... no matter how many hours you put in," Regelbrugge says.

"As excited as I get about a game, I get just as excited about a class, or showing a film on French art, or reading a poem to the class. The only time I'd leave is if I felt my heart wasn't in it. As long as my heart stays in coaching and teaching... I'll be here."

ULS basketball coach Chuck Wright has a different teaching challenge — third graders.

Port Huron-Mackinac solo sail set

The Great Lakes Singlehanded Society will present the ninth annual Port Huron to Mackinac Island Singlehanded Challenge, beginning Saturday, June 20. Yachts ranging from 25 to 42 feet will compete in several monohull and one multihull divisions, starting from Port Huron and proceeding to a mark off Goderich, Ontario, then to Mackinac Island.

Over the past eight years, 100 skippers have met the challenge of sailing the 256-mile course alone, often in gale conditions, dense fog and 30-degree temperatures. More than one-half of those sailors have returned to take the challenge again and some have completed all eight events.

To compete in the challenge, all entrants must have completed 1,000 miles of offshore cruising or racing experience and must also complete at least one singlehanded nonstop passage, under sail, of at least 100 miles with a passage time of no less than 24 hours. Participating yachts must meet safety requirements and will be inspected.

Requests for an application and the rules for the Port Huron to Mackinac Island Challenge should be directed to Fred Locke, corresponding secretary — GLSS, 5464 Lakeshore Drive, Port Huron, Mich. 48060; or call 385-3253 (evenings) or 649-7311 (weekdays).

Seminar on safe shorthanded sails set

A fun family cruise could become a shorthanded or even a singlehanded sail if the skipper suffers an injury or a sudden illness. Learning what to do in a situation like that is just one of the topics which will be discussed at a seminar on safe shorthanded sailing, set for Sunday, March 8, at 1:30 p.m. at Edison Boat Club in Detroit.

The Great Lakes Singlehanded

Society is sponsoring the free seminar. For more information contact Cristina Staats at 882-6071 (evenings) or Phil Rubright at 544-8823 (evenings).

Lewis wins wrestling regional; icers, cagers in first

North High junior William Lewis won first place in the 145-pound weight class in the state wrestling regionals at Troy High School Feb. 28. Lewis, who has 40 victories this season, will advance to the state wrestling finals this Friday and Saturday, March 6 and 7 at Lansing's Eastern High School.

"This is quite an accomplishment for an 11th grader to reach the state finals," said Lewis' coach Bill Fleming. Lewis is co-captain of North's wrestling squad, which had a successful season despite not having a single senior on the team.

There are four regions in the state. North belongs to the region consisting of eastern Wayne County, the eastern half of Oakland County and all of Macomb County. There are 35 Class A schools in North's region; the top four wrestlers from each of the four regions advance to the state finals in their respective weight classes.

Lewis will face difficult competition this weekend, but coaches say it will be a beneficial learning experience for the junior.

Icers win in playoffs

North's varsity hockey team finished a successful season by beating Howell last week, 9-4. The Norsemen were the Michigan Metro League-East champs with a 12-3 record; they were 17-5 overall. North also won the Gabriel Richard Christmas Tournament.

The Norsemen topped Livonia Franklin, 7-6, in the regionals Monday.

Against Howell, Brian Nettle notched a hat trick, converting nice set-ups from Link Bessert and Bob Poulos. Poulos, (power play) Dan Spitz, Chris Matyn (shorthanded goal), Rob Marshall, Tony Giunetti and Bessert notched the other goals; Andary assisted.

Cagers take pair

North's varsity basketball squad won its 10th straight game, downing L'Anse Creuse on Friday, Feb. 27, 59-52. North also beat Dearborn, 58-53, and entered play this week with a 9-1 Bi-County record, 15-3 overall.

The Dearborn contest was a see-saw affair until the visitors took a 49-43 lead midway through the third quarter. Then North senior guard Dave Justice took control down the stretch, canning two long jumpers and a pair of free throws. Justice keyed North's 15-4 run to give the Norsemen the win. He had 15 points and nine assists. Senior forward Scott Reiter and C.J. Anderson had 13 points apiece. Reiter added nine rebounds.

Three nights later, North topped a scrappy Lancer squad. L'Anse Creuse stayed close, trailing 29-27 at halftime, but North ran away in the second half for the win. Junior center Kirk Lowry dominated down the middle and added 28 points. Reiter had 16 and Justice, 10.

North's JV basketball squad knocked off Dearborn and L'Anse Creuse to raise its mark to 14-4. On Feb. 24, North beat Dearborn, 56-38, as Scott Schorer led the way with 19 points; Scott Clein added 16. On Feb. 27, the JV decimated L'Anse Creuse, 70-31, as freshman Andy Dudeck and Clein notched 16 points each. (By Josh Abbott)

North was impressive in topping South Lake, 15-5, 15-3, Feb. 24. Amy Grierson and Kelly Gianunzio led the serving attack. The next day, the Lady Norsemen JV had to struggle in winning No. 15 over Lake Shore, 15-13, 20-18. Kari Andrewes led North with seven service points.

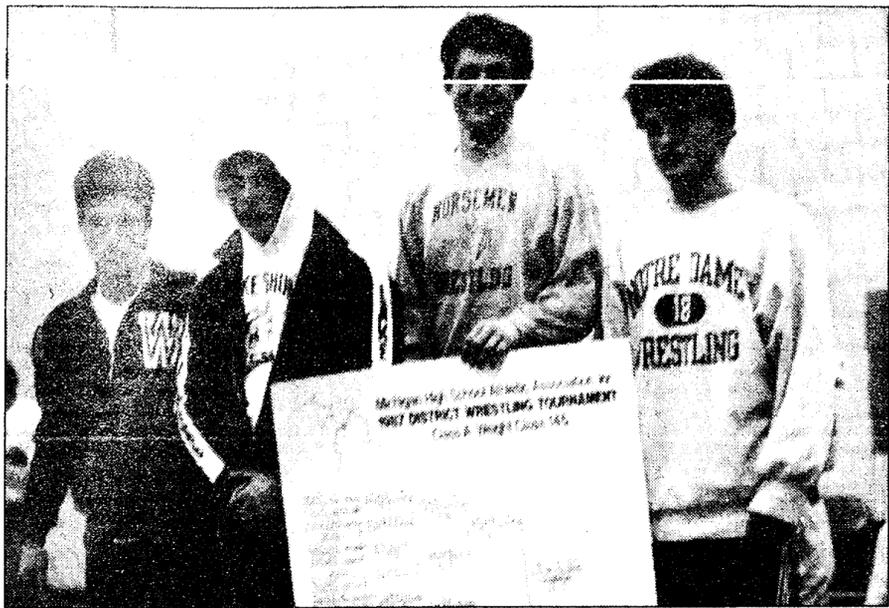

The JV and varsity play in the Bi-County playoffs and pre-districts this week.

North's freshman cagers ran into a tough South High squad, losing 54-42. Jon Kessman led with 15 points, Kevin Endres had 13 points and 14 rebounds and John Mank added five points and 10 rebounds. On Feb. 27, the frosh got 15 points from Mark Salkowski and beat L'Anse Creuse, 62-52. The team wraps up the 1986-87 season this week with games against Lake Shore and South Lake. (By John Guibord)

Easy wins for spikers

North's varsity volleyball team added a pair of easy victories over South Lake and Lake Shore last week. On Feb. 24, the Lady Norsemen handled South Lake, 15-12, 15-5. Tammy Donahue had seven service points in the first game to get North off and running. The next day, North downed Lake Shore, 15-3, 15-10, as Mary Beth Seagram had six service points and Monique VanAssche had an excellent all-around game.

The JV spikers won their 14th and 15th in a row, blowing away South Lake and Lake Shore.

Cagers win MIAC title; notch regional hockey victory

The University Liggett School varsity basketball team won its first league title in five years by capturing two victories last week. The Knights first traveled to Huron Valley Lutheran and struggled to a 56-40 win on Feb. 24. Then on Feb. 27, ULS closed out its home schedule by clipping Oakland Christian 38-31 in a fierce defensive struggle.

"Coach Pacciolla and I are so proud of these young men!" said Coach Chuck Wright. "They have struggled offensively the last few games but have become much tougher athletes. Obviously, our defense has become so much better than earlier in the season."

That was certainly true on Friday night. Led by Michigan Independent Athletic Conference All-League center Charles Fed, Oakland came to the ULS primed for an upset. On Tuesday, Oakland had defeated Plymouth Christian, knocking Plymouth out of its first place tie with ULS in the MIAC.

Both teams started slowly as turnovers dominated the first few minutes. Then, ULS got a short spurt and went ahead 10-4. The lead stayed between four and eight points throughout the rest of the contest. Kandia Milton did a fine defensive job on Fed, forcing him to take hurried, off-balance shots. John Yancey controlled the boards with 16 big rebounds and David Chilingirian dove all over the gym for loose balls and rebounds.

ULS had a chance to put Oakland away, but missed 11 free throw opportunities in the second half, many of them the front end of one-and-ones. However, it was the total team defense that saved the day. Yancey led ULS with 15 points.

The Huron Valley game found the Knights down 15-6 late in the first quarter. After a time out, the ULS cagers settled into a tough man-to-man defense and outscored Huron Valley 22-5 the rest of the half.

Yancey again was the dominant force with 24 points and 10 rebounds. Milton and Kevin Crociata chipped in with 10 each. Wright also had some special praise for Crociata's overall floor game.

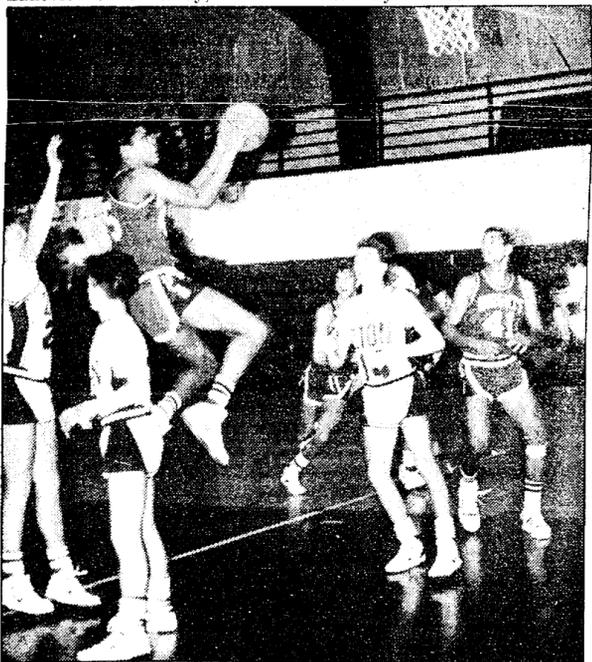

The Knights close their regular season at Southfield Christian on Friday, March 7.

Icers win regional

The ULS varsity ice hockey team concluded its regular season with a record of 15-7-1 following

Icers win; JV cagers lead league

By Jennifer McSorley

Completing regular season competition, the Blue Devil varsity hockey team conquered Saginaw Arthur Hill, 7-5, last week, to improve their overall record to 12-7-3.

The first period of play against Saginaw ended in a 2-2 tie thanks to South goals by Roger Romine and Evan Frakes, assisted by Frakes and Andy Roy. Rodney Goin added two goals in the second period, both assisted by Andy Busse, and the period ended with the Devils ahead, 4-3. Saginaw came back to tie the score in the first minute of play in the third period, but South came out on top as Roy, Pat Clavel and Jeff Lefebvre scored from Bill Huntington and Goin.

JV in first

South's JV basketball team clinched first place in the EML by trouncing Port Huron, 62-51, on Feb. 27.

The Blue Devils started out strong, taking an 11 point lead to the locker room at the half. Throughout the game, Port Huron kept chipping away at South's lead, but was unable to close the gap.

"They (the kids) played the best man-to-man defense this year," said coach Al Devine. "Both teams got very physical during the game, while the referees let the kids play their game." At one point in the game, South had a 19-point lead.

Leading South was sophomore Chris Rowan with 21 points and 14 rebounds. Freshman Joe Caldwell did a good job offensively scoring 12 points and dishing off four assists. Crashing the boards for the Devils were sophomores Andy Ayrault with nine rebounds and Dave McCormick with six rebounds; he also scored 11 points. Chris Markus had 10 points. All five played extremely well. The team compiled a 63 percent shooting average from the field.

Freshmen cruise

South's freshman basketball team cruised to an easy win over crosstown rival Grosse Pointe North last Tuesday, 54-42.

The frosh jumped to a 20-6 first quarter lead and showed excellent offense and defense. Excellent free-throw shots during the fourth quarter also contributed to the win.

Ed Suzor led South with 16 points, Rob Khoenle had 14, Brian Letscher, 10, and Dane Lupo, eight.

Tankers take one

South's varsity swim team defeated De LaSalle Feb. 20, 91-81, in one of the final dual meets of the season.

The medley relay team of sophomore Paul Wilson and juniors Chris Nevison, Ian Thompson and Bill Thompson made the state cut and took a first. Other first place finishes included B. Thompson in the individual medley; freshman Ken MacLean in diving; a tie for first in the 100 free by I. Thompson; Wilson in the 100 back; and Nevison in the 100 breast, also making a state cut.

South went on to take fifth in the Brighton Invitational Feb. 28. The only first place taken by South was by I. Thompson in the 100 fly. Freshman Craig Winger made a state cut in the 100 back.

Coach Fred Michalik commented, "As a whole, we swam well. The kids did a good job for a rebuilding year. We've really got a good group of kids going to state this year and I think we're all set for next year now."

South finished its season with a record of 6-4-1. (By Heidi Heilman)

Gymnasts qualify

South's varsity gymnasts beat Lakeview Feb. 25, 103-88.55.

On vault, sophomore Karen Trefzer made her second regional qualification and took third place. On bars, senior Amy Tyrer took a second with her third qualification; Trefzer was third. On beam, junior Heidi Heilman took third, and on floor Tyrer took third with her third qualification.

The gymnasts will compete in the league meet this Saturday, March 7. The gymnasts' overall record is 2-6. (By Heidi Heilman)

March is National Nutrition Month

Make your food choices count, ADA says

Has this ever happened to you? You vow to lose weight and feel better by eating more nutritiously. Then, the boss — a culinary connoisseur — invites you out to lunch. Your tongue tingles as he requests garlic bread. Your mouth moistens at the mention of Thousand Island dressing. Then he orders the fettuccine alfredo and rich dessert, and guiltily you mutter, "I'll have the same". Eventually, your guilt subsides, because after all, you really had no choice ... or did you?

The American Dietetic Association says: "yes". It's your food ... your life ... your choice.

This March, in recognition of National Nutrition Month and its theme, "Good Nutrition: A Personal Choice," ADA offers dozens of practical suggestions to dispel preconceived notions that circumstances beyond our control "trap" us into what we choose to eat.

Departing from the notion of "right" and "wrong" foods, the ADA stresses that almost any food you select can be "right" in careful quantities, prepared properly and considered in relation to your consumption for the rest of the day. It all boils down to choices, and your choices do matter.

Scoring political points when "power-lunching" is still possible for the dieter faced with this high-calorie menu. Enjoy your pasta but consider a non-cream based sauce, like tomato or red clam.

Order salad dressing on the side, so you control quantity, and ask if they have skim-milk mozzarella cheese instead of parmesan to sprinkle on top.

Don't think "no substitutions" means "no special requests allowed". And if the pressure is on to join in for dessert, try a fresh fruit bowl or Italian ices. Remember that in the restaurant as in your own kitchen, it's your choice. Consider balancing this hearty lunch with a light dinner — a bowl of soup or chef salad. Remember ... you're the boss when it comes to your good nutrition.

RECOGNIZE YOUR need for a late-night treat and consider several choices. Save your dessert from dinner or stock up on nutritious "nibblers" like fruits, low-calorie popsicles and frozen fruit or pudding bars. Keep sherbet, crispy veggies and fruit juice on hand, and have a large supply of unpopped popcorn in the pantry, but go easy on the salt and forego the butter when you prepare it.

If you absolutely crave something sinful, indulge your sweet tooth occasionally, allowing yourself a small serving of your favorite treat. Share it whenever possible, and chew slowly, savoring each delicious mouthful.

As a National Nutrition Month "special", registered dietitians have agreed to divulge their favorite party survival "secrets". Some of these insider's tips include:

- Eat a light but filling snack before a party to avoid arriving famished and inhaling the buffet table.

- Wear a snug-fitting outfit to discourage yourself from filling up.

- Spend the evening away from the buffet table after you've made your food selections.

- Alternate alcoholic beverages with non-alcoholic drinks to cut down on calories.

The choices in all situations are endless ... it's simply a matter of recognizing them and taking a moment to choose before you chew. Because nutrition is such an important aspect of your good health, registered dietitians hope you'll make good nutrition your personal choice during National Nutrition Month, and every month.

The Chicago-based American Dietetic Association, a 55,000 member organization of nutrition professionals, has been celebrating National Nutrition Month in March for 14 years. The goals of this month-long celebration are to raise the public's awareness of the important role nutrition plays in their lives, and to provide information to maintain optimal health through good nutrition. Grosse Pointe native Allison Boomer, R.D., is a local ADA representative.

Does your refrigerator look like this? The American Dietetic Association hopes that it does in March, National Nutrition Month.

Dance benefits Heart Association

Exercise enthusiasts from all over metro Detroit will participate in "Dance for Heart," an aerobic exercise event set for Sunday, March 22, from 11 a.m. to 2 p.m. at the U of M - Dearborn Fieldhouse. The event is sponsored by several local aerobic studios, Ford Motor Company,

I.D.E.A., Streamers, and A Frame Awards and benefits the research and educational programs of the American Heart Association of Michigan.

Dance for Heart is part of a nationwide effort to fight heart disease and stroke. Aerobic dancers collect donations from friends, relatives and co-workers for every minute they exercise. Each participant can win prizes based on the amount of money collected.

Dance for Heart demonstrates dance - exercise as a benefit to cardiovascular health and the American Heart Association. According to Detroit Metro co-chairpersons, Dottie Georges, Sue Podany, Valerie Pokorny-McHugh and Ivy Arlock-Schwartz, "Dance - exercise is a popular activity because it emphasizes fun and fitness. Participation is not limited to age, sex or shape, so anyone can try it. Through Dance for Heart, we have the opportunity to help in the fight against heart and blood vessel diseases, as well as show that dance-exercise is fun, easy, and heart-healthy."

This year's Detroit Metro event features aerobic exercise (low impact and regular aerobics), prizes, entertainment by body builders and aerobic dance performers and much more.

Since the event began, thousands of women, men, and children from all over the metro Detroit area have danced and exercised in the Dance for Heart event to support the American Heart Association.

Balancing act — minerals

Minerals are nutrients and exist in the body and in foods as inorganic and organic combinations. Approximately 17 minerals are essential to human nutrition.

They are necessary factors in strengthening skeletal structures, in all body processes and in preserving the vigor of the heart and brain as well as all muscle and nerve systems. They also maintain the delicate water balance essential in keeping blood and tissue fluids from becoming too acid or too alkaline, and also help draw chemical substances in and out of the cells, and aid in the creation of antibodies.

All of the minerals needed by the human body must be supplied in the diet.

It is important to note that all minerals are interrelated, no one mineral can function without affecting the others. A varied and mixed diet of foods chosen from all of the basic food groups will help to meet the needs of the normal, healthy body.

Calcium: Calcium is the most abundant mineral in the body, 99 percent of which is deposited in the bones and teeth, the remainder in the soft tissues. The major function of calcium is to act in cooperation with phosphorus in building and maintaining bones and teeth.

Calcium also eases insomnia and helps regulate the heartbeat. It assists in the process of blood clotting and plays a part in muscle growth, muscle contraction and nerve transmission. Sources of calcium include dairy products such as milk and cheese, dark, green, leafy vegetables, molasses, yogurt, beans, almonds, peanuts and beef liver.

Magnesium: This mineral is essential for the metabolism of carbohydrates and amino acids, and helps regulate the acid-alkaline balance in the body. It helps promote absorption and metabolism of other minerals, mainly calcium, phosphorus, sodium and potassium.

Magnesium seems to be widely distributed in foods, but good sources are: green vegetables, bran, nuts and oil-rich seeds, soybeans, figs, corn and apples.

Phosphorus: This is the second most abundant mineral in the body and is found in every cell. The healthy body maintains a specific calcium-phosphorus balance necessary for the minerals to be effectively used by the body. It is important in the utilization of carbohydrates, fats and proteins for the growth, maintenance and repair of cells and the production of energy.

Foods rich in protein are good sources for phosphorus. Meats, eggs, fish, poultry, plus whole grains, nuts, and seeds are primary sources.

Potassium: This mineral works with sodium to help normalize the heartbeat and nourish the muscular system. It is necessary for normal growth and unites with phosphorus to send oxygen to the brain and functions with calcium in the regulation of neuromuscular activity. Potassium and sodium help regulate the water balance in the body.

Sources of potassium include all vegetables, especially green, leafy choices; also, bananas, potatoes, (especially in the skins), oranges, honeydew melons and canteloupe, sunflower seeds, dried apricots, dates and figs.

Sodium: The teammate to potassium in the necessary functions of the body, sodium also works with choline to improve blood and lymph health, purge carbon dioxide from the body and aid in digestion.

Sodium is found in virtually all foods and choosing foods in their natural state will insure our daily requirements.

Sulfur: This is a non-metallic element that occurs widely in nature, and is present in every cell of animals and plants. It aids both the skin and hair, having an important relationship with protein.

It is found in protein-containing foods such as meat, fish, and eggs; other natural sources include cabbage, nuts, wheat germ, dried beans and Brussels sprouts.

Zinc: This is one of the trace minerals found in the body, but in larger amounts than any of the other trace minerals. It is related to the normal absorption and action of vitamins, especially B-complex.

Zinc also plays a part in carbohydrate digestion and the metabolizing of phosphorus. It has also been discovered to be important in the healing of wounds and burns. Diets that contain good balances of protein, whole-grain products, brewer's yeast, wheat bran, wheat germ, seafood, spinach, mushrooms, will have provided adequate amounts of zinc.

'Some Kind of Wonderful' preaches the gospel according to Hughes

By Michael Chapp
Special Writer

To anyone who has seen a few John Hughes movies, two things become extremely evident. The first is that Hughes must think being a teenager is about as fun as getting the runs on prom night. The second is that Hughes lives in a world where things can always be wrapped up into a tidy package at the end.

Both are the curses of "Some Kind of Wonderful," a new Hughes film which is about as different from his previous works as a strawberry sundae is from a chocolate sundae; it's the same thing under a different coating.

In "Wonderful," everybody is facing some type of conflict, whether it be kids vs. adults, kids vs. enemies or kids vs. friends. Keith (Eric Stoltz) is up against a Johnny-One-Note father who wants college for the boy. He's also up against fellow students at school. Keith likes art, works in a gas station and has a tomboy for a best friend. As he says, "These things don't fly too well at the American high school."

Amanda (Lea Thompson) is just another pretty face who gives in to peer pressure and becomes a stuck-up socialite, against her nature.

And Drummer Girl (Mary Stuart Masterson) is Keith's best friend who's afraid to express her romantic feelings for him because it will complicate things. She's different from the rest of the crowd because she plays drums and cuts her hair really short and puts up a tough front.

Oh, the trials and travails of being a teenager, Hughes seems to be sighing from behind the scenes. What a complicated time in one's life. If only the world were a better place.

When outcast Keith asks beauty Amanda for a date, the world as the characters know it begins to crumble. Amanda is castigated by her friends, Amanda's boyfriend plots to beat Keith up and Drummer Girl doesn't know what to do. When Keith learns of the plot to beat him up, he proclaims that he's not afraid of his aggressors and that he got to do what he's got to do. When he takes Amanda out, he confronts her with the problems of their social imbalances with the verbal precision of a civil attorney. And she rebuts him with the same skill.

As a result, Hughes gets exactly the opposite effect than he planned. Though some of the situations he creates are real, the characters' methods of dealing with said situations are very fictitious. The film becomes a fairy tale — replete with bigger-than-life characters and an ending in which everybody lives happily ever after. Not only does this make for very frustrating viewing, it makes for a redundant time at the movies if you've seen any of Hughes' other pictures.

Stoltz and Thompson walk through the motions and do what they must; they can look perplexed and angry on cue, and in a pinch they can even cry. But Masterson is a cut above the others. Her performance rises above the melodramatic predictability of the rest. Hers is not the chief conflict in the movie, as things turn out, but a strong argument can be made that it is the most engaging one. Masterson is the most fleshed out and well defined character in the lot.

"Some Kind of Wonderful" is a gospel according to Hughes. Teenage life may be terrible, he says, but in a perfect world, the ending can be happy.

The problem is, of course, that Hughes doesn't operate in a perfect world, so his movies wind up becoming parodies of themselves.

Lionel Hampton to perform

Lionel Hampton and his band, whose infectious jazz stylings drew a standing ovation and four curtain calls during their first visit to the Macomb Center for the Performing Arts last season, will be back for an encore performance at 7 p.m. on Sunday, March 8.

A name synonymous with musical excellence for more than 50 years, Hampton, known universally as the "Vibes President, U.S.A." and less conspicuously as a man dedicated to helping others, will perform as part of the Macomb Center's Jazz Series.

Hampton, who learned to play the vibes in high school, began his excursion into the "big time" in 1930 when he signed on for a Louis Armstrong recording session in California. He formed his own band four years later and toured California until a chance meeting hooked him up with Benny Goodman.

The list of Hampton graduates is among the most honored in jazz. Since he left Goodman in 1940 to launch another band, artists like Quincy Jones, Joe Williams, Fats Navarro, Dexter Gordon and Dinah Washington are among the scores who have passed through the Hampton ranks.

Tickets are $12 for adults and $10 for students and senior citizens. They may be obtained at the center's box office or reserved on credit card by calling 286-

2222, Monday through Friday, from 9 a.m. to 6 p.m. The Center is located on the Center Campus of Macomb Community College at Hall (M-59) and Garfield roads in Clinton Township.

Sen. Kelly to host St. Pat's party

State Sen. John Kelly will host his eighth annual St. Patrick's Day Party Friday, March 13, at Austin Hall/Mallard Pub, 18000 East Warren.

The event will run from 7-11 p.m. and will feature a complete Irish traditional meal plus unlimited beer and wine. In addition, Irish entertainment will be provided throughout the evening.

Tax-deductible donations of $10 per person will help cover costs and includes the meal, beverages and entertainment. Tickets are available at the door or in advance by calling 881-2822 or 881-0122.

Sharpen bridge skills

Beginners and veterans will benefit from Contract Bridge: Refresher or Beginner at the War Memorial.

Frank Welcenback will conduct the class Mondays, March 9-April 29 from 10 a.m. to noon.

Fee is $32 for each eight-session class. For further information, call 881-7511.

New Yorker retrospective

"The Art of The New Yorker: A 60-Year Retrospective" is at the Detroit Institute of Arts through April 26.

More than 60 of The New Yorker's best known artists are represented by 105 cartoons and cover illustrations — all original works on paper lent by private collectors and galleries.

From the sophisticated images of Saul Steinberg to the fuzzy creatures of Edward Koren, the featured artists are a diverse lot, yet all share a singular sense of humor immediately identifiable with the magazine. The exhibition displays the upper-middle-class suburbanites of Charles Saxon, George Booth's irascible dog, James Thurber's men, women and animals — which New Yorker founder Harold Ross dubbed "Thurber's doodles," and Roz Chast, who currently expands the definition of what a cartoon can be.

The exhibition is free and open to the public during regular museum hours: 9:30 a.m.-5:30 p.m. Tuesday through Sunday; closed Mondays and holidays.

I AM THE ONLY RUNNING FOOTMAN

by Martha Grimes

Martha Grimes, who titles all of her mysteries with the name of an English pub, now brings us I AM THE ONLY RUNNING FOOTMAN.

This time Richard Jury tries to determine who killed two young women by garrotting. Along the way we are treated to sketches of an amiable dealer in astrological devices, a nubile teenager with hair "like a Tijuana sunset" and an innkeeper family of collective and colossal ineptitude.

As in all her mysteries, Grimes offers a mix of plodding detection and character studies of some depth with a helping of mildly excessive farce. These elements combine smoothly with her careful attention to detail and provide diverting reading on a dismal winter's eve.

GOAL

'Hoosiers' satisfies

By Marian Trainor
Special Writer

"Hoosiers" interweaves a nostalgic view of a midwestern small town and a rousing story of a basketball team that throws everything they have into winning. The result is a satisfying story that goes straight to the heart without dissolving into sentiment or pathos.

Most of the credit for the strong appeal of this film is due to Gene Hackman who brings to his role as Coach Norman Dale a down-to-earth performance and authority that makes it seem as though the part was written for him. He has the manliness, a toughness and a belief in himself that reaches out and convinces viewers that if anyone can solve the problems of men shows up on the floor and tries to take over, Hackman throws him out. Two of the seven players quit and a protesting delegation arrives. After some discussion, they agree to back off and give him a chance to prove himself.

There are other crises, particularly when Hackman applies his theory of "break them down and build them over," but gradually his efforts pay off and the fans in Hickory and the audience are treated to some exciting basketball sequences.

Adding to the excellence of the film is Dennis Hopper's performance as "Shooter." Once a star player, he is now the town drunk and an embarrassment to his son.

What might have been an apathetic role, Hopper turns into an appealing one. Along the way, he injects a good measure of humor into some of the do-or-die situations. He has been nominated for an Academy award for his performance.

Barbara Hershey as Myra Fleener provides the romantic relief to what is essentially the story of two men and a group of boys struggling to overcome the odds against them. A teacher, she makes no secret of her dislike for Hackman.

Like "The Bad News Bears," "The Natural" and others, "Hoosiers" maintains a level of suspense as to whether or not the Hickory High team can make it to the state finals.

Director David Altpaugh and writer-producer Angelo Pizzo have added depth and interest to the film by integrating into the story the feeling, the interests and the life of a small town of the '50s.

"Hoosiers" is a treasure of a film. Not only that, it is one of the rare ones that come along that can be recommended without reservation to the entire family.

Film

whipping a team into shape, he can.

The film is based on the story of an outstanding Indiana high school basketball team. The year is 1950.

The film opens with Hackman arriving to take on the job of coaching the high school team. Once a big-time college coach, his outbursts of temper have barred him from the ranks. The principal of the school, an old friend, gives him an opportunity which Hackman knows is his last stop. If he doesn't make it, his career as a coach is over.

It is a tenuous situation which becomes more pronounced because of the townspeople. Newcomers are suspect.

Moreover, basketball is not only the town's claim to fame, but some of the parents consider it their province to mastermind the game.

Interference does not set well with Hackman. When one of the
