

Library patrons to lose if video tape rentals banned

By Margie Reins Smith
Staff Writer

Charles Hanson, director of Grosse Pointe Public Library, is opposed to a bill that passed the Michigan Senate last month and is currently in a House committee. The bill is intended to prevent public libraries from charging a rental fee for the loan of videotapes. "We (in Grosse Pointe) support the Michigan Library Association's position — that libraries may choose to charge for videotape rentals."

The bill was sponsored by Sen. Doug Cruce, who said libraries that charge for video loans are creating unfair competition for the growing number of video stores. State Sen. John Kelly, who voted for the bill, said, in a telephone interview, "Occasionally legislators are human beings who make mistakes and I just made a mistake. I didn't realize it until after the vote. There was no discussion on the floor. I'm sorry now that I voted for it."

State Rep. William Bryant Jr. said he hasn't made up his mind yet about the bill. "I have some sympathy for the argument that libraries should not be competing with rental stores. But the same situation occurs when renting tools and movies. I don't want libraries to become rental stores."

The Grosse Pointe Public Library has been renting tapes for about three years, Hanson said, and charges $2 per tape for a three-day loan. He said they have approximately 600 tapes, mostly the VHS format, which is becoming more popular than Beta. The main library has most of the tapes, with smaller collections at the two branches. Rentals at Central Library for March, according to Hanson, totaled 1,495 VHS and 211 Beta videotapes. Money from tape rentals, he said, go back into the library's general fund. "We have a budget set aside for purchase of new videos that is based on projected need and revenue."

"We try for an all-around good collection of tapes. We look at lists of top-selling videos, but our intent is to provide a service, not to put people out of business," Hanson said.

The library's list of VHS tapes includes some of the latest popular titles such as "Top Gun" and "Out of Africa," also five James Bond films; children's films such as "Charlotte's Web" and "The Cat in the Hat;" comedy classics such as "Animal Crackers" and "Some Like it Hot;" Jacques Cousteau films; drama: "The Deer Hunter" and "The Caine Mutiny;" exercise tapes; foreign films; seven Hitchcock films; five Christmas classics; a few horror movies; musicals such as "Chorus Line" and "The Wizard of Oz;" mysteries; National Geographic films; science fiction and fantasy; travel films; and westerns.

Ironically, Hanson said, circulation is down a bit recently. VHS rentals were down by 341 last month. "It could be that people are saturated with videos."

Raise a (non-alcoholic) toast to a safe, fun prom

By Elsa Frohman
Feature Editor

It wasn't cheap, but dream dates don't often come at a discount.

Last Saturday night, about 120 junior class boys from South High rented a tux, bought a corsage and took their current significant other to the junior prom. On May 24, the ritual will be repeated at North.

It's prom season again, and like last year and the years before, the main concern of parents, school officials and students is how can the kids have a perfect night to remember and come home safe — and sober.

"Most kids are understanding of why we are concerned," said Julie Bourke, co-sponsor with Judy McSorley of the junior class at South. "We're not so naive to think it doesn't go on."

The heart of the problem is hotel parties, and occasionally parties in individual students' homes, that precede and follow the prom.

"We want to keep them at the dance and not the hotel parties," said Bernard LeMieux, assistant principal at South. LeMieux is in charge of student activities at the school.

The problem of students leaving school dances to go to hotel parties the same night has led the school authorities to make the major events of the year "lock-ins" where students are not allowed to leave before a pre-arranged time.

"We do it for Homecoming, the Sadie Hawkins dance and the proms," LeMieux said. "But if we had to do it too often, we would have to take a long look at why we have school dances."

The policy was started last year, but according to LeMieux, last year's prom lock-in was not entirely successful.

"Because of the arrangements, we lost a lot of kids in the process," LeMieux said.

The 1986 South junior prom was held at the Hunt Club and restricted space made it necessary to send the students outside while tables were taken down to make the dance floor.

"The Hunt Club was just not conducive to housing 220 students," LeMieux said.

Bourke, one of the adults involved in helping to plan this year's event, agreed that security would have to be better this year.

"It was really crowded and hot (last year)," she said. "A lot of the kids left before dessert. Even the band left early. They went on to other parties in Grosse Pointe and at various hotels." The answer for this year's committee was to hold the prom at a larger hall — outside Grosse Pointe.

"There just isn't a club out here that can handle the number of kids we have," Bourke said. The class decided to hold its prom at the Roostertail, on the Detroit waterfront.

But if a lock-in sounds more like a prison sentence than a good time, the prom-planners had other ideas. (The prom was planned by a committee of the class officers with the assistance of two parent class sponsors and a faculty adviser, John Shafer.)

"We have the evening jam-packed with things to do," Bourke said. "They won't want to leave."

The evening began with appetizers and non-alcoholic mixed drinks. Dinner included a sparkling grape juice toast, a nonalcoholic beer course and an entree of beef flambe, set ablaze in the dining room before the students' eyes.

After dinner there were chocolate-dipped strawberries and records spun by a DJ. Dessert followed at about 10 p.m. with sundaes prepared at stations around the room, elephant ears and other pastries.

"We've designed the menu in case they have been drinking before they come," said Tom Schoenith, operator of the Roostertail and father of junior class member Michael Schoenith. "We've included plenty of starches and a heavy dessert." Schoenith was host to three proms Saturday night. "They are all different," he said.

As a parent, Schoenith said he was particularly concerned about teen-aged drinking.

"I'm terrified of drunk driving," he said. "When I was a teenager, I guess I was naive. We (the Schoenith family) owned a liquor license, and there was no question of us (the teens in the family) drinking. We were threatened with death. It never crossed our minds."

Bourke is philosophical about the teen-aged drinking problem.

"I have a senior, a junior, and an eighth-grader," she said. "We've talked about drinking and they tell me they don't feel peer pressure. They say nobody makes you. They say teens drink because it releases stress."

Of course, that doesn't ease many parental fears. As an extra measure to curtail hotel parties and the drinking that goes along with them, the sponsors sent out a letter to all junior class parents asking them not to have pre-parties and to enforce an appropriate curfew on their children after the prom.

Perhaps the most important barometer of the success of the prom was the students.

Pointer of Interest

Jean Rice

By Elsa Frohman

Jean Rice was concerned about trees. That concern led her to a seat on the Grosse Pointe Woods City Council. Now she's concerned about taxes, street and sidewalk repairs, park improvements and, of course, trees.

Her path to public office began with membership in a garden club.

"When we first moved here, we rented a house in Harper Woods," Rice said. "I joined the Harper Woods Garden Club. Then, when we bought in the Woods, (Grosse Pointe Woods, that is) I continued with the garden club."

But in 1976, when the nation's bicentennial plans were blooming in beautification projects at the local level, Rice began to wonder why she was spending her efforts in the next city over, not her own.

"This is crazy, spending all this time in another city, I said. So I joined the beautification commission (in Grosse Pointe Woods)."

The commission was new, just founded by Joan Mullan and Dr. Albert Howe. Rice immediately became interested in reforestation — the replacement of trees killed by Dutch elm disease.

"In 1977, Mr. Petersen (Woods city administrator) gave me an article in the newspaper about Michigan State University looking for cities for a training program in forestry," she said.

Under the program, forestry students would do a complete tree inventory of the participating city, charting the position and species of every tree. Such an inventory would be the first step to setting up a reforestation program. Rice went to work right away.

"We were the first city to participate in the program," Rice said. "It took two years to do the inventory and then the MSU grant allowed us to develop a master street tree plan."

Rice coordinated a force of 15 volunteers who took the data from the survey and computer-coded all the trees in the city by street and intersection. They put together a publication that was mailed to all Woods residents. "All About Trees," Richard Abbot of Davey Environmental Services was retained to give advice about how to reforest the Woods.

Between 1977 and 1981, Rice devoted herself to replacing the urban forest in the Woods, but as the years went on, frustration mounted.

"We started implementing the plan," she said, "but there never seemed to be enough commitment. There was never enough money in the budget. I understand that now."

So Jean Rice, the volunteer decided to run for council.

"I had a lot of visibility with the beautification commission," she said. "I had attended almost every council meeting since I had been on the beautification commission. They used to joke that I had a better attendance record than some of the councilmen."

Kids who fail can still play

Athletes will not need a 2.0 grade point average to play sports in Grosse Pointe, as was mistakenly reported last week.

The school board voted to remain in compliance with the Michigan High School Athletic Association's rule that any student who received 20 credits during the previous semester and is currently passing 20 credits may participate in sports. Board Secretary Carl Anderson had urged the board to adopt stiffer requirements.

"Anybody who passes four classes out of six can play," Anderson said last week. "That's four D's and two E's to stay eligible." Anderson had proposed the adoption of a 2.0, or C, average.

"My argument was that if we have so few kids under 2.0, why are we so reluctant to make it a policy," he said. "If people understood this clearly, they'd be supportive of it. Our mission is education."

The board voted six to one to stay with the lower requirements of the athletic association.

School staff plans ways to continue professional improvement

By Nancy Parmenter
Staff Writer

The nationwide call for increased excellence in teachers has not gone unnoticed in Grosse Pointe. Proposals for enhancing professionalism among staff were unveiled three weeks ago.

A comprehensive approach to professional upgrading of school staff has been a board goal for two years. Whether to implement the entire proposal is part of the budget debate now going on.

The package in its current form would cost the district $118,000 more than it has traditionally spent on staff development activities. Most of it would go to maintain a staff development office, one full-time and one part-time teacher (released from regular teaching duties) to run the program.

The board is not agreed to spend the entire amount. Budget concerns have already cut the half-time teacher from the initial year of the program.

"It's a lot of money," said board Treasurer Dorothy Kennel, who has said she has reservations about the program. "I want to know more — right now I'm opposed to the idea of having a teacher on special assignment."

Kennel, a former teacher in the Grosse Pointe system, said she believes current staff development offerings are probably sufficient. "I think we've done a good job in staff development," she said. "We seem to be adding so many new people — I don't know how far the taxpayers are willing to go."

Kennel said she wants more information on administrative aspects of the program. She also expressed concerns about whether the program would reach the people who need it most.

"Staff development has always been voluntary," she said. "You can't force them to take courses."

Her biggest concern, however, is that the program adds one more layer of people who spend their days divorced from the classroom. "I don't like to see people working away from the children," Kennel said. "We need people working with children, not sitting behind desks."

On the other side of the spectrum, several board members are completely enthusiastic. "If we commit to one thing this year, it should be staff development," said trustee Carol Marr at an April board meeting.

"I feel strongly about it and I see what we're not doing," she added this week. "Staff development is an investment in quality of teaching."

Marr said that increasing staff professionalism is a subject she has a particular interest in. She has attended several clinics and workshops on the concept and believes the school system owes it to its students to have better-trained teachers.

"Just because we hire a quality person, we can't think our responsibility ends there," she said. She listed courses in instructional methods and new teacher orientation as two neglected areas.

Although most of the discussion has focused on increased professionalism for teachers, the Grosse Pointe plan is nearly unique in that it provides training for all staff. "We haven't heard of a district that tries to cover the entire school system," said Eva Koch, co-chair of the staff development committee and South High English teacher. "But even though we have taken the stance to do total staff development, our budget is still less than other districts." She said that most school districts with a development program spend about 1 percent of the budget on it, where Grosse Pointe has traditionally spent only .6 percent — even with the proposed $118,000 in extra spending.

Proponents of the program say that the teacher on special assignment as co-chair is the best thing about it.

It's more that just our group feeling — it's the feeling across the U.S. that the TOSA is necessary," said Koch. "The person who knows best what we need is the classroom teacher. It can't come from the top down and it can't come from the outside. We're not interested in other models. We want a person who knows the teachers and who would be responsive to them."

The teacher on special assignment, or TOSA, would be responsible for running the staff development office, to find and establish courses, find funding, do training and keep in touch with staff both to learn what members want and to keep members informed of development opportunities.

"I don't think the program would be successful without a minimum of one full-time teacher working on it," said Maire Principal Jay Flowers, the other co-chair of the committee. "(S)he would initiate needs identified by the survey — and we'll have just as great a need for a TOSA after the program is organized, there will be so many wants and needs. (The position) will provide opportunities for a teacher to move into new arenas."

Superintendent John Whritner agreed that the TOSA is the key to success. "We need somebody on a full-time basis if it's to come to fruition," he said. "This draws on knowledge they have of their own needs."

The committee conducted a survey of staff members to find out what classes they are interested in. Teachers placed top priority on curriculum, instruction, teaching research and classroom management. A bit farther down the list are stress management, wellness, retirement and financial planning. Classified staff interests are in stress and time management, wellness, communications skills, financial planning, behavior management and understanding the exceptional child. One of the TOSA's first duties is likely to be to take a new, more detailed survey.

Finding out what the staff wants will be the key to high participation, proponents believe. A frequent criticism of staff development programs is that there is no way to require people to attend courses — and that the people who need professional improvement the most are the least likely to participate.

"There are always going to be teachers that don't buy into it," said Marr. "That's a fact of life. If there are a lot, you have to look at what's wrong with the program. . . The question of how to evaluate the program is a valid one. We'll see results in the classroom and in the numbers of participants."

The committee has not formulated a plan for evaluating the success of the program beyond that. Staff development courses are currently offered in the district, but overall statistics on participation are not kept.

Director of Secondary Curriculum Robert Welch says numbers don't tell the whole story. One hundred or 120 people may sign up for a course in language arts, but only 15 for ORFF or six for a special program on metals. Yet the last two represent almost 100 percent of the staff involved in those subjects.

"If you want to advance to the next step on the salary scale, you have to take credits either from in-service or college," Welch said. "Most people care about advancing — they'd be crazy if they didn't."

A vast majority of the staff does keep updating skills, according to Welch. "If in the teaching profession we can get to the point where people are thinking of constant updating, that's the ultimate," he said.

As far as Whritner is concerned, the process was as important as the product. "We had teachers and administrators working together," he said. "It advances trust in the system."

Marr also spoke highly of the process. "This committee really did its homework," she said. "I feel comfortable approving it. Any time we set a goal, we have to support it and commit ourselves to it. . . We have the responsibility to see that the money is well-spent."

DPW settles contract

By Peter A. Salinas
Staff Writer

After almost 10 months of working without a contract, the Grosse Pointe Farms Department of Public Works Teamsters Local 214 reached an agreement Monday with the city which will amount to a 15 percent increase in hourly wages. The agreement is retroactive and continues for the next 26 months.

The Farms city council voted unanimously May 4 to accept the contract after a short discussion with the administration.

A contract provision for DPW employees will be medical hospitalization insurance for retirees and spouses for those who retire after July 1, 1987. This should cost the city about two to three percent of the total DPW payroll, according to Controller Carrol Lock.

When asked by Mayor Joseph Fronum if the accord is in line with what other local municipalities are paying DPW workers, both Lock and City Manager Andrew Bremer Jr. indicated that the agreement put them "in the ballpark."

Asked if he was pleased with the agreement, Bremer said, "You are never totally pleased with everything. I'm sure that's the way they (DPW employees) feel. It's a fair deal for both sides." The 15 percent hourly increase is broken down by 4.5 percent the first year, 3 percent for the next six months, then 2 percent for the next six months and then 3 percent, and finally a 2 percent increase to take effect Jan. 1, 1989.

Currently a DPW employee earns $10.15 per hour. With the increases the employee will earn $11.48 an hour beginning in 1989.

There will be no cost of living allowance for the retroactive year, which offsets a small portion of the 4.5 percent first year increase, but there will be COLA lump-sum payments beginning July 1, 1987.

Lock called the medical benefit for retired employees a substantial improvement for the union. He said that many other municipalities have such a benefit, and that though the city argued against that provision in the contract because of the high cost, in the end it became an important issue in settling.

Negotiation of this contract at times became controversial. Last fall union workers picketed the DPW building, though not going out on strike. Unfair labor grievances were filed by both the city and the union. The DPW employees decided to change their union affiliation late last year from AFSCME to the Teamsters, which stalled talks for about two months as the new union took over.

About six grievances are still outstanding between the workers and the city.

Lock said it is difficult to put an entire dollar figure on what the agreement will cost the city. He said the city can only estimate, but indicated he felt the agreement was fair to both sides.

Woods Lake Front Park will have two entrances

By Margie Reins Smith
Staff Writer

When the Woods Lake Front Park opens May 1, residents will have to decide which side of the park they want to visit before they enter.

The Milk River, which flows through the park, divides the marina and boat docks from the pool, tennis courts, concession stand and picnic area. Demolition of the bridge over the river, the first step in the park redevelopment plan that was approved by Woods voters last November, is completed. Until the new bridge is done, the park will have two entrance gates. The new bridge is scheduled for completion in late August.

Woods residents who want to use the pool, tennis courts, picnic facilities, restrooms and concession area will enter the park at the customary entrance on Jefferson. Residents who wish to use the marina and the picnic area on the lake side of the Milk River will enter a new gate, farther east on Jefferson, beside the pumping station on the Milk River.

Guests of residents who want to go from one section of the park to the other will have to have their hands stamped, exit one gate, and re-enter at the other gate on the opposite side of the river. Residents will have to show their park passes a second time.

All Woods residents received notification of the new entrance procedures three weeks ago. Woods park passes have also been mailed and need to be filled out and validated at the Woods city offices by May 1 in order for residents to be admitted to the park.

The city of Grosse Pointe Woods has notified residents about new rules governing the use of the Lake Front Park pool. Diving will not be allowed in the pool, only in the diving well. Absolutely no flotation devices may be used in the pool or the diving area. This includes water wings, life preservers, inner tubes, floating mattresses and beach balls. Face masks and snorkels are also banned. Swimming goggles are allowed.

Beginning May 1, park hours will be from 6 a.m. until 1 a.m. The pool will be open for swimming on May 23, with hours from 10 a.m. to 9 p.m. daily.

It's about time to limit PAC campaign gifts

Rep. Dennis Hertel and Rep. George Crockett, the Democrats who represent the Grosse Pointes in Congress, are two of the 11 U.S. House members from Michigan who received 50 percent or more of their campaign funds from political action committees (PACs) in the 1986 election.

A report by Common Cause showed that PACs gave Hertel $120,549, or 60 percent of his total contributions of $199,969, while they gave Crockett $38,370, or 53 percent of his $71,787 in campaign receipts. The two representatives, Hertel from the 14th District and Crockett from the 13th, were among 194 of the 434 current members of the House to receive 50 percent or more of their funds from PACs.

Well, what is so bad about that? The point is that political action committees by and large represent special interest groups which now are dominating the election process in this country. It was not an accident that 98 percent of the 391 incumbents who ran for reelection won. PACs supported House incumbents over their challengers by a ratio of 4.6 to 1 and gave incumbents $65,514,435 as contrasted with only $8,657,485 to their foes.

"With the role special interest PACs are playing, the current campaign finance system of the House of Representatives has become the ultimate incumbents' protection system for Democrats and Republicans alike," according to Fred Wertheimer, president of Common Cause. Then he added:

"Special interest PACs are giving record amounts to House incumbents who in turn are becoming more and more dependent on and obligated to the PACs. The congressional campaign finance system is a national scandal. The institutional integrity and public credibility of Congress are being destroyed before our eyes."

So what should be done about this national scandal?

A fundamental reform of the congressional financing system is obviously needed, and a Senate bill has been introduced to pattern senatorial campaign financing on the public financing system used for presidential campaigns. The House is considering similar reform legislation.

In a 1986 study of the presidential election system, the Commission on National Elections, headed by a former secretary of defense and ex-GOP congressman, Melvin Laird, and a former chairman of the Democratic National Committee, Robert Strauss, came to this conclusion: "Public financing of presidential elections has clearly proved its worth in opening up the process, reducing undue influence of individuals and groups, and virtually ending corruption in presidential election finances."

The Senate bill would go beyond partial/public financing. It would also set overall campaign spending limits, limit the use of wealth in campaigns and set an aggregate limit on what a congressional candidate could receive from all political action committees.

Early action is imperative because PAC financing of congressional elections has raced ahead since enactment of a 1974 campaign financing law that unintentionally opened the door for their rapid growth. In 1976, for example, there were only 600 PACs. Today there are more than 4,000 and their use is growing in every election. In 1986, the record $130,296,926 contributed by PACs represented a 27 percent increase over the $102 million they gave to congressional campaigns in 1984.

Common Cause is leading a nationwide campaign to push the reforms embodied in the pending bill in the U.S. Senate and already has won wide support. The legislation has been endorsed by leaders from both parties and by conservatives such as former Sen. Barry Goldwater as well as liberals such as Majority Leader Robert Byrd.

We should point out that the Democrats representing the Pointes are not Michigan's worst offenders with respect to their acceptance of PAC campaign financing. The top Democratic recipient of PAC funds was Rep. Bob Carr, of the Sixth District, who was given $448,673 in PAC funds to boost his receipts to $733,879, while the top GOP recipient was Rep. Bill Schuette, of the 10th District, who collected $339,582 in PAC funds to bring his campaign fund to $844,613.

Overall, PACs contributed just over $3 million of the more than $5.5 million spent by Michigan congressmen and their opponents in the 1986 election. It's obviously time for a change.

Amnesty for drug addicts?

The man who was chiefly responsible for last year's tax amnesty that produced enough additional revenue to assure a state income tax cut now has come up with another "amnesty" idea. This time, however, it's an amnesty for drug addicts and alcoholics to help control teen violence and crime in such places as Detroit.

As Rep. William R. Bryant Jr. said in his column in the Grosse Pointe News last week, "So much of what influences teens in negative ways is the result of the drug and alcohol culture of the adults within the community. Not much will be done to help children unless we can find better ways to attack the problems of addiction and addiction-compelled crime."

So this is what Bryant proposed: During a short, one-time amnesty period, any drug addict or alcoholic who would turn himself or herself in would be promised that, upon completion of a year-long rehabilitation program, the addict would be given immunity from prosecution for any non-violent crime which he or she had committed prior to the start of the rehabilitation program.

As a result of the widespread revulsion against teen violence, shootings and deaths, the Grosse Pointe representative pointed out that an opportunity now exists which may not exist again and that "families, churches, neighborhoods and voluntary associations must be encouraged, trained and aided as mediating structures and positive influences."

In addition, he said, "Meaningful challenge and real hope for an escape from the numbing and disorienting nature and addictiveness of poverty must be provided."

Furthermore, he continued, "Schools need to be given the tools and the mandate to early identify the children headed for trouble. Disruptive teens need to be removed from regular classrooms so that the vast majority will know someone cares and is willing to assure a peaceful setting in which to learn."

While we search for new ways to attack and new answers to teen crime, Bryant also said "the old answers need to be bolstered, the old answers of family, church, neighborhood and voluntary associations."

There really may not be much new in Bryant's proposals, except for the amnesty idea, but it certainly is true, as he said, that we need new answers as well as the old answers supplied by the family, church, neighborhood and voluntary associations to battle these modern problems of teen-age violence and crime.

Detroit and especially its schools now seem to be taking a tougher line against disruptive teen activities and the approach appears to be winning wide community support. Perhaps Bryant's amnesty idea would be worth trying, too, as part of Detroit's new community-wide battle to save its youth from crime and violence.

Void at U of M

To the Editor:

Mike Wallace gave the 1987 University of Michigan commencement address. Five thousand, six hundred candidates for one or more of the 19 degrees from architecture to social work cheered to his message. Thousands of proud parents, relatives and friends filled half the stadium as attentive viewers and listeners.

Mr. Wallace, a 1939 University of Michigan graduate and success by many yardsticks, chose sensitivity as the theme of his address. It was a personal confession and revelation of his own pursuit of that virtue. His plea was for all present to develop and practice it in their own lives and future careers. His closing sentences regarding decent, thoughtful and sensitive behavior was received with a standing ovation by many in the audience.

As faculty, honored guests and other dignitaries left the stadium closing the ceremonies, I hoped that the many graduates, families, friends and others in attendance felt that something was left undone and unsaid.

The void I refer to was the apparent decision to omit asking for a moment of silence or prayer for the deceased Regent Sarah Power. Had Regent Power died in any other way than that suicide, I believe her memory and years of service to the University community would have been lovingly recalled.

I believe departing President Shapiro missed a rare opportunity to demonstrate sensitivity and recognize the reality of humanness. Human beings are imperfect; but living or dead, we are his creatures and deserve acknowledgement and love for our presence or absence by our families, friends and institutions.

Regent Power, we missed you at the Commencement 1987, and pray to God that you have eternal rest.

To the Editor:

A little over six months ago, board member Duncan MacEachern and I sat in the office of Pat Paholsky and began to tell our story. A story of struggle, of "getting by," of living in a proud old home in surroundings worn and frayed from years of use. We talked of the women, past and present, who had come through the door with their heads down and their hearts broken. And how these same women, months later, walked back out that door into their new lives with their heads up, looking the world straight in the eye and their hearts soaring with hope and faith. We talked of how this home had been the only haven for recovering women in Detroit for over twenty years, but our haven needed help.

Ms. Paholsky and the staff of the Grosse Pointe News listened to our story. She came to visit us in our home. Our story was then told to you, the people of Grosse Pointe, and the support and encouragement began to come forth. With your generous support we have refurbished the living room and A 55-mph limit for trucks?

Gov. James Blanchard has introduced two new and controversial factors into the legislative attempt to increase the speed limit to 65 mph on rural freeways in Michigan.

The governor told a news conference last week that he would be inclined not to sign the proposed bill to increase the speed limit to 65 mph unless it contained a ban on radar detectors and a 55-mph limit for trucks.

The state Senate already has passed the higher speed limit bill with both a radar detector ban and a continued 55-mph limit for trucks of more than 10,000 pounds. However, House leaders have said they doubt their members will support the prohibition on radar detectors. Furthermore, trucking interests are still pressing the Legislature to include trucks in the 65-mph limit. So the fate of the proposed legislation is still somewhat in doubt.

In expressing support for a higher legal speed limit for motorists, subject to the two conditions mentioned, the governor finally took a position on a subject about which he has equivocated for several months. Blanchard still expressed some concern, however, over the possibility that motorists will use a higher speed limit as an excuse to drive even faster.

That is the argument of most of those, including Secretary of State Richard Austin, who have contended that raising the speed limit to 65 mph on rural expressways will encourage motorists to drive even faster than they now do and continue at the higher speeds when they reach the urban expressways that will still be posted at 55 mph.

One problem with removing the radar detectors is that they were ruled legal in a 1982 Michigan Supreme Court decision that said a 1929 law making it illegal to monitor police radio frequencies in a car or truck did not apply to these devices. The Legislature has the power to rule them out but the question is whether it will do so.

It was disappointing that the governor continued to equivocate about whether more State Police patrols are needed to enforce a higher speed limit. If the Legislature does approve the higher limit for private automobiles on rural freeways but retains the 55-mph limit for big trucks, we think the state will need all the patrols it can get if it expects to enforce the new law.

True, putting more State Police on the highways would cost money but in our opinion it would be money well spent. Hiring additional State Police would improve law enforcement generally because Michigan has assigned other duties to these lawmen in addition to their responsibilities for enforcing the traffic laws.

Ohio is generally regarded as doing the best job in the Midwest in maintaining the present 55-mph speed limit. It achieves that record because its highway patrolmen enforce the law, as many Michigan motorists learn to their sorrow. If Michigan is serious about controlling motor vehicle speeds on its highways, it could profit by the example set by Ohio's patrolmen, whether the Michigan Legislature eases the speed limit for passenger cars or not.

What if my best friend has AIDS?

Mark Russell, the well-known political comedian, commented on his television program last month that President Reagan said the best way for young people to avoid contracting AIDS was to practice abstinence — now all he has to do is convince the Moscow embassy marines and the television evangelists.

It was a remarkably witty comment on current events, and funny by my standards, but the underlying topic is one that is indeed very somber.

Last week the NBC Radio Network broadcast a national AIDS call-in show. Daily we hear predictions of how serious and widespread this deadly disease will be in five years. We are getting weekly newspapers from around the country as part of an exchange program, and a common story among many of them is the problem of the disease.

I vaguely remember going to my local parochial school when I was about five years old to take my sugar cube filled with polio vaccine. I remember being frightened by the number of people in the school's gymnasium. I had a great uncle who fell victim to polio, and remember his leg braces quite clearly. So I had this added fear of connecting polio with my uncle, and with the sugar cube.

But today, things are very different. We are told many things almost daily about Acquired Immune Deficiency Syndrome, and yet on the national call-in show some people asked questions which I thought had been answered very clearly years ago.

I Say

Peter A. Salinas

They tell us that AIDS cannot be contracted from an infected individual by casual contact. That one must share blood or other bodily fluids with the infected individual.

The epidemic proportions of the disease are frightening to me. I believed that once the virus was isolated several years ago, that it would be just a short time before the scientists and the doctors would find a vaccine or cure for AIDS, now they tell me that maybe 50 million people in the United States may be carriers of the disease in the next four or five years.

I have a little trouble when trying to picture that many people, but I know what a full University of Michigan Stadium looks like, and when I multiply that by 500, the fear in the pit of my stomach grows.

We had a disagreement in the office the other day about the number of people in Michigan that had been diagnosed as having the disease. I had heard that the number of people in South-eastern Michigan alone was about 1,000. The other person claimed she heard that there were only 15 cases of full-blown AIDS currently in the state.

I called a Detroit number for an AIDS Hotline and learned that as of March 10, 1987, about 225 men and women (over 200 men) had died of the disease since its onset about six years ago.

Several weeks ago in another of our office discussions it was noted that officials have said that in five years everyone in the country will know someone that had died of AIDS. I thought to myself at the time that I knew of no one who had it.

Last week my mother told me of a friend of the family that had contracted the disease, gone through a terrible period of being ill and recently died. Not five years from that office conversation — more like five weeks.

It got me to thinking. I have two close friends who are, well, shall we say, promiscuous and have been for many years.

Could they be infected with the AIDS virus? Might they die that same lingering death that the friend of the family did? Might their faces be one of those in the 500 Michigan stadiums staring back at me with the pallor of death? Or even more frightening could I somehow have contracted the disease?

I suppose this dissertation about my fears is not what one likes to think about during spring. It is a time when people think about rebirth, growth and the chance for a beginning — not a time for concentrating on what evil or pestilence lurks around the corner. But last night, for the first time, I dreamed about the disease. With all the talk I have heard lately and the recent call I made to the AIDS hotline, it is no wonder that a dream would seep out of my unconscious.

Perhaps I am worrying unnecessarily, but when I was a kid I often had a recurring nightmare about nuclear war. That is not an unnecessary concern, and I have a gut feeling that my more recent nightmare is one that won't go away soon.

Gazebo alert

Be on the lookout for a gazebo roof. It is made of wood and is very important to the residents of St. Joseph Home for the Aged on Cadieux in Detroit.

State Sen. John Kelly donated the gazebo first to the Grosse Pointe War Memorial. Seems the War Memorial lent it to the Designers Show House, who used it and returned it to the War Memorial.

The War Memorial's insurance company advised the organization to not allow the structure to be set up on the property because it was more for private than heavy institutional use.

Well, Sen. Kelly's office found the gazebo a home at St. Joseph's.

According to War Memorial Director Mark Weber, home officials picked the gazebo up from the grounds last October. Now it turns out, as they get ready to install the gazebo at St. Joe's, the roof is missing.

Weber said that when the gazebo was set outside for the home to pick it up, it was all there. He added he hadn't even thought about the outdoor house for months.

Anyway, if the roof has been swiped, lost, forgotten somewhere or whatever, the St. Joe's home could really use it. If you have the roof or know where it is, call Sen. Kelly's office at 881-2822 or 881-0122 — no questions asked.

Gearin named finalist

A Grosse Pointe chef is among 11 creative cooks to have been named a finalist in the "All-Michigan Meal" contest sponsored by the Michigan Restaurant Association, the Greater Michigan Foundation and AAA Michigan.

Patrick J. Gearin chef at Cafe Le Chat in the City, was one of five professional finalists from a field of 44 who submitted recipes and photos of their ideal Michigan meal.

Gearin said his goal was to be one of the five professional finalists, and now hopes his recipe will win him top honors. He has a chance of winning a weekend at a Michigan resort or $500 cash.

An amateur category was also opened for the first time in the contest. There are six amateur finalists.

The contest was based on a menu of soup, vegetable, entree and dessert. Each was judged on simplicity, originality, innovative use of products, taste and eye appeal.

Gearin's menu sounds great, and we imagine it looks and tastes even better.

The soup is a light puree of leeks, potatoes, carrots and fresh rosemary. The vegetable is sauted fresh Michigan morel mushrooms with baby squash and zucchini. Gearin said he sautes the mushrooms and vegetables in butter and serves them in a crystal bowl with just a hint of salt and pepper to let the pungent morel flavor permeate the dish.

His entree is roasted rack of prime Michigan lamb with white bean and tomato in a fresh basil sauce. Dessert is a treat with dried Grand Traverse County cherries and macintosh apples in a sauce.

Gearin said the recipes for his menu will be available at Cafe Le Chat.

Hopefully, so will the rack lamb.

Kruger update

Last you may remember, Valerie and Verlen Kruger were paddling their way down the icy cold waters of the Detroit River in the early stages of a canoe trek from the Arctic to the Antarctic circles.

The Krugers are currently enjoying milder temperatures in Florida after having paddled more than 7,000 miles from the Arctic Circle.

The Lansing couple are being followed by stingrays in their Kevlar canoes. They were in St. Petersburg, Fla. on April 20, and were presented with the key to that city. They were canoeing to Fort Meyers, and planned to follow the Intracoastal Waterway across the state. By April 30 they planned to be in Indiantown, Fla. They are scheduled to reach Miami between May 7 and 10.

The stingray is capable of delivering a sting with its whip-like venomous tail. Heavy winds and high waves prompted the Krugers to catamaran their canoes to avoid capsizing, thus avoiding the saltwater beasts.

After traveling through Florida, the Krugers will make their way across the Caribbean Sea — island-hopping their way to Trinidad, Venezuela.

Yesterday's Headlines

Jan 1, 1959 —

The New York Times reported that the Allies refused to quit their sectors in West Berlin, while keeping doors open to negotiations with the Russians. A month earlier, the Soviets had proposed making the city a free, demilitarized zone.

The State Department notified the Senate that the collapse of the Battista regime in Cuba was imminent. Battista, however, announced on the radio that the rebel forces had been routed — and continued planning his daughter's February wedding in Havana.

Nelson Rockefeller took office as governor of New York amid speculation that he aspired to higher political office. Defeated Gov. W. Averill Harriman was pictured leaving the state capitol with his dog, Brum.

Court-appointed monitors of the International Brotherhood of Teamsters prepared to order James Hoffa to drop his drive to organize the police. The New York leader of the Hoffa campaign was put on notice that he could lose his $8,500-a-year job. "Against this tide of mounting official resistance to his invasion of the police field, Mr. Hoffa indicated he was sorry he had ever started his national drive to enroll police, firemen and other civil service employees in his scandal-scared union," the Times reported.

Queen Elizabeth honored race car driver Stirling Moss and actor Alec Guinness, who received his knighthood.

Men's wool worsted slacks were on sale at Bloomingdale's for $12.95.

Brush fires on the California coast forced thousands to flee their homes, as 1,000 firefighters battled the blaze that closed the Coast Highway between Malibu and Santa Monica.

President Eisenhower worked with aides on his State of the Union speech, sitting on the glass-enclosed porch of his Gettysburg farmhouse in 20° weather.

community's history (the $250,000 Buell fire) brought charges that the five separate Pointe departments were unable to muster enough men and equipment quickly enough to provide any real protection. Former Grosse Pointe Public Safety Director Clarence Blessed, who had resigned over his inability to convince the community to consolidate the departments, renewed his call to combine. He said that "silly pride" was the only thing standing in the way of one joint department.

A Park man was rearrested for passing "rubber" checks the same day he was given two years' probation for passing 17 bad checks. He was arrested at home, where he had gone after bouncing checks at two local party stores.

The "Grosse-Exaggerations" column in the Grosse Pointe News reported on the "amusing" new custom of sending cards without signatures, so the recipient can use it again when the occasion arises.

The community's "young set" danced "blithely" at the Yacht Club's junior prom the night after Christmas. Some of their parents kept a watchful eye from a short distance. "While the young people were partying in gay holiday fashion, a number of parents were noted in the clubhouse... (or) on hand to chaffeur the groups."

Grosse Pointe dentist Chester Bogan was reported to delight his patients by playing taped jazz piano — played by himself. It kept their minds off the old slow-speed drill.

Accounts at Peoples Federal Savings at nearby Harper and Outer Drive earned 3 percent interest and were insured up to $10,000.

Detroit area in our new car with dignity and pride.

For us, the recovering women at Grateful Home, life has been hard. We've been hit by a disease that many still blame us for. In the grasp of our disease of alcoholism many of us have lost our home, our families, our jobs. In addition there is the loss of self-respect, pride and hope. By the time we arrived at this door we believe that a happy life and a sense of dignity may have been lost to us forever.

Because Grateful Home is the safe cocoon that it is, we are able to rest, regroup and grow. When the growth is complete we step out of our cocoon, dry our wings and begin to fly again. Because of your support, the process is now undertaken in a warm, homey cocoon of dignity and pride.

We, the staff and residents of Grateful Home want to thank you all for your support and love. We will not forget you, as we hope you will not forget us. We welcome you to our cocoon whenever you would like to visit us.

All life is sacred

To the Editor:

A letter to the editor on April 16 by one of your readers stated there is no consensus on abortion by the medical community. She also stated that an embryo has the potential to be a human being similar to an acorn having the potential to be an oak tree.

I take exception to these statements. In 1980, the U.S. Senate conducted a hearing (under the chairmanship of Senator East) on the subject of when life begins. Many medical experts and scientists testified at this hearing. With few exceptions, the overwhelming consensus finding was that life, indeed, begins at the moment of conception. Also, any person attending medical school is aware of a well-known text, Williams Obstetrics. This medical school text devotes many pages to the fact that at the moment of conception, all necessary elements that create a new human being are present and that from the moment of conception to death, life is a continuum of various stages of development.

Before any other argument can be heard, for or against abortion, the simple truth about abortion must be acknowledged — this act kills a baby before he or she is born. This is not a matter of anyone's religion being forced on another or the thinking of a limited group of individuals. It is rather a confirmation of the conclusion drawn from testimony and facts as well as the reinforcement of a basic civil right which is accepted by a majority of Americans and a right which was guaranteed by our Constitution until the horrendous 1973 Supreme Court decision has eroded the moral-painful destruction of millions of unborn children since that decision was eroded the moral-fiber and social values of this country.

We can choose to ignore the facts regarding the matter of when life begins and stand idly by while others allow abortions, infanticide, and euthanasia to continue in this country or we might better choose to speak up and do something about protecting all life at all stages including the unborn child, newborn, handicapped, or disabled and our elderly citizens.

If we protect the right to life itself through our vote and good works, we will be protecting our most fundamental freedom.

New car stolen

A 1987 Plymouth Sundance was reportedly stolen from the Union 76 station on Mack in the Farms sometime between April 24-27.

Farms police said the vehicle belongs to Lochmoor Chrysler/Plymouth of Detroit.

Police have no suspects at this time. Value of the car was placed at over $11,000.

From the Capitol

Voters should choose on abortion

By William R. Bryant, Jr.

The issue of Medicaid paid abortions is coming back to the Legislature, assuming opponents have valid signatures on their initiatory petitions to outlaw the present law.

It is too bad the issue must come to this, to be presented in such a form that will preclude finding a sensible middle ground.

The result of a statutory initiatory petition is to put a resolution before each house of the Legislature saying, essentially, shall this be the law of the state?

Medicaid abortion has been severely abused, used as if it were a method of birth control. It is not, and because it is not, I have opposed the program since the mid-1970s, since it was found that over 700 women had two or more Medicaid abortions in a single year.

Recently the state supplement to Medicaid, abortions largely being banned in the program by Congress, has become the provider of the majority of reported abortions and used primarily by minority women. There is a serious question whether banning the program is discriminatory or whether allowing it is even more discriminatory.

The question will probably end up appearing on the November, 1988, ballot. To get there, if the Legislature adopts the prohibiting law as proposed by petition, proponents of the program will have to obtain referendum petition signatures sufficient to place it on the ballot.

If the Legislature refuses to give its assent to the ban of Medicaid abortion, the question automatically would go on the November, 1988, ballot.

Therefore, it appears the basic question is, the opponents having had to circulate petitions, should the proponents now have to have the same burden?

Since a clear majority of the Legislature, and really two-thirds of the general feeling that since one side was forced to go the route of getting signatures, it is not unfair to require the other side to also have to get signatures.

The other issue is that, if adopted by the Legislature, the burden of getting a majority of "yes" votes is then on those who would seek to allow continuance of the program.

A number of us have sought, again and again, compromise on the issue. That has always been totally unacceptable to both sides, those who oppose all abortion and those who believe that abortion should always be a choice and publicly funded for women on Medicaid. I have challenged, continually, both extremes.

It is not the fault of those of us who acknowledge and believe both that human life exists in the fetus, and who, on the other hand, acknowledge and believe in the right of privacy of women, that both sides refuse to cure the present program of its severe abuse. The Governor has chosen to continue the program without limit or control. It is largely he who has brought about the crisis.

Ultimately, it appears, it will be the people of Michigan who must decide the issue in November, 1988. That may be unfortunate, to have such an emotionally charged issue on the ballot, but it is appropriate for the people to decide the question.

North High to present arts festival

May 12-13

The ninth annual Grosse Pointe North Festival of the Arts will be held Tuesday, May 12, and Wednesday, May 13, from 7 to 9:30 p.m., at the Center for the Performing Arts.

The festival this year will feature exhibits of painting, drawing, sculpture, woodworking, commercial art and photography. There will also be examples of computer art and demonstrations each evening.

Entertainment will be provided by vocal, instrumental and performing arts students. The Pointe Cuisine will serve desserts and refreshments.

ever before," said Courtney Hackathorn, class president. "I don't think there should be any concern. Everyone is behaving themselves."

And well they might. A ticket for two to this year's junior prom cost $70.

"If anybody really couldn't afford it, the Mother's Club offered to pay for them," Bourke said. "It's not so unreasonable when you consider what they are getting — drinks, dinner, non-alcoholic champagne and a dessert bar."

Dream workshop

The Center for Jung Studies of Detroit will offer a workshop on "Understanding Dreams" led by Nancy Pilzner-Dougherty and Lee Sturgeon-Day. These two psychotherapists will introduce participants to the ways in which their unconscious speaks to them in their dreams.

Participation in the workshop is limited to 20 persons. Suggested reading is James Hall's "The Jungian Experience: Analysis and Individuation," chapter 6. Workshop participants are also invited to bring one of their own dreams.

The workshop will be held Friday, May 15, from 7 to 9:30 p.m. and Saturday, May 16, 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. in Miller Hall, Christ Church, 61 Grosse Pointe Blvd. Members will be charged $35 and non-members, $45. Pre-registration $5 discount deadline ends May 8. Call Naomi Bowermann, registrar, at 885-8792 for further information.

Bourke said her own son, Kevin, earned the money for his ticket and tuxedo rental by doing odd jobs around the house.

While $70 may sound steep for a group of high school juniors, the price is in line with other proms around the area. North's junior prom has the same ticket price (see side story) and an article in the Observer & Eccentric Newspapers listed west-side proms with ticket prices ranging from $55 to $70.

And at North. . .

Plans for the North High School junior prom are well under way. The event will be held May 24 at Lochmoor Country Club. Like their counterparts at South, the North committee is planning a dinner dance.

"We felt we could cut down on drinking by having a pre-cocktail hour at the Lochmoor Club," said Cecil Keith, junior class sponsor. (Keith is equivalent to the faculty adviser at South. She is a social studies teacher at the high school. Two parents are also involved in the class leadership.)

North parents have received a letter from the school, like that mailed at South, asking that parents cooperate by not holding pre-parties.

"We suggested that they know where their kids are," Keith said.

Keith emphasized that North's prom will be held in the community, where she said more control could be kept on the proceedings.

The prom is being held on a Sunday evening, however, the students will not be expected back in school the next morning. May 25 is Memorial Day and the students will be able to sleep in.

"We were going to have it earlier in the month, but there were school conflicts and this was the date we could get Lochmoor for," Keith said.

The cost of a junior prom is pretty uniform between North and South. Both are charging $70 for a couple. For that price the North students will have free parking, hors d'oeuvres, a sit-down dinner, a live band and pictures.

"I think its a pretty reasonable price," Keith said.

Keith attributes the teen-age drinking problem to our culture.

"I think children grow up faster now," she said. "My children are fond of telling me that I went to high school in 'Happy Days.' Drinking was not a problem. Today, the media has such an impact on children's values. By the time they graduate from high school, they will have spent more time watching television than in school."

The security at the proms is just part of an overall effort on the part of the schools to tackle teenage drinking.

"This is a case of the schools working with the parents," she said. "We want to emphasize the safety of the students. One doesn't have to drink and take drugs to have a good time."

Assault attempt in Ghesquiere Park

A 21-year-old Harper Woods woman told police that a man attempted to rape her in Grosse Pointe Woods Ghesquiere Park Monday, April 27, shortly before 11 p.m.

Woods public safety officials said the woman said she had just finished jogging and was walking back home through Ghesquiere Park, when she was approached from the rear by a man who grabbed her hair and covered her mouth with his hand.

She said the incident occurred in the northwest corner of the park near a wooded area.

The woman said she never saw the attacker's face, but that the man produced a knife and threw her to the ground.

The woman said she heard a dog bark, then the man, who had partially disrobed her, ordered her to lie flat and fled on foot. She could not give police any description of the man other than the color of his brown shoes.

Detroit Zoo fact

Four of the 17 penguin species are exhibited at the Detroit Zoo. The large king penguin is named for its seemingly dignified and stately appearance. Macaronis, named for their facial plumes, and Rockhoppers that hop from place to place are medium-sized penguins.

Con men ransack Park house

An 89-year-old Park woman was in her rear yard Tuesday, April 28, around 4 p.m. when she was approached by a man who claimed he worked for the water department.

The woman was tricked into letting the man into her home to look at her sink. While she was talking with the man, at least three other men entered her home and searched every floor.

Park police were unable to determine what, if anything, was missing from the residence.

The men were described as white males in their 20s to 30s. A 1973 or '74 dark blue Chevy four door is believed to be involved with this incident.

Boat, outride reported stolen

Grosse Pointe City police are investigating two separate larcenies, one of a boat and one of an outride last week.

The boat was reportedly taken sometime between April 21 and 28 from a University residence.

The boat is a fiberglass 1985 Chris Craft with a power inboard outboard and trailer.

The outride was taken from the rear yard of a Rivard residence. The 1986 Mercruiser was valued at $3,800.

Prime Time for Senior Citizens

Advantages of the golden years

By Marian Trainor
Special Writer

The young glory in their youth. Confident, vigorous, filled with enthusiasm, they look forward to each day as an opportunity to make all of their hopes and dreams come true.

The middle-aged, mellowed by experience, have a more realistic view. They know that along the way to personal achievement, choices must be made, alternatives accepted and goals reassessed. Some arrive at this point content with their accomplishments. Others lament and look back with regret on the road not taken and what might have been. As Alice Longworth once said: "There's one advantage to middle age, you outgrow it."

Older people who have passed through that stage know that this is true. Middle age, like adolescence, is a trying time, a sort of limbo when one is neither young nor old, when children leave home but still expect dad and mom to stand by.

And then come the golden years, a time when the burden of making it in the world of work is over. The responsibility of taking care of a family is finished and keeping up socially is a matter of choice. It is a time when, regardless of your financial or social status, you are finally free to do what you want to do when you want to do it. Each day is a gift, not a demand designed to wear you out accomplishing what is expected of you.

Like all gifts, the gift of time must be used to fully enjoy it. It is important to keep active doing things you enjoy. Don't use the excuse of being too old for activity.

You can be old in years without being old in spirit. Keep those fires of youth flowing by firing them with new and old interests.

Being interested and interesting is the secret of a youthful old age. For even as we accept the role and privileges of being older, we really don't want others to think of us as old in the true sense of the word. We hold in our hearts the wish to be forever young. It is possible to project that image if we keep in touch with the world.

Some older people work hard at creating an illusion of youth. Unfortunately they go about it in the wrong way. They demean the image of being older by deceiving people about their age when they might better capitalize on how important years are when leavened with spirit and joie de vivre.

Some older people shave a few years off their birth dates because they are infused with the idea that young is good and old is bad. If you are investing an enormous amount of emotional interest in the trappings of youth, then you are putting your self-esteem as a person of worth on the line. The result is often unconscious self-hate and self-rejections. Self-acceptance is the key to aging if we are to live happily and that means accepting oneself at any age.

One psychoanalyst put it this way:

"I find it very sad when a man or woman refuses to admit their age. It is proof that they have been caught in a need to satisfy superficial vanity. To cling compulsively to youth is a vicious cycle. The more time and energy people spend trying to stay young, the older they become. A person dedicated to looking young to the exclusion of real interest in life is old indeed.

Another author says: "My observation is that men in great power love work and as long as they are fulfilled; their minds drags their bodies along. Hard work stimulates them."

Oddly enough as people get older, according to experts, their appreciation of humor broadens. They are able to laugh at more things that would have troubled them in earlier years.

One of the great joys of growing older is being able to look back on sensitive areas that were hurtful and see the fun as well as the hurt. When you grow older, you come to grips with life and you realize there's precious little that you haven't experienced and that there is much less in life that's going to hurt you.

Interests, whether work, hobbies or volunteering, plus a sense of humor, are important in keeping alive a youthful spirit.

There remains the precept of moderation as a guide to a youthful spirit. There are those who take pride in their stamina, their ability to outlast those who are years younger, whether working or playing. It's a good show, but in the long run, those who temper their activities will win.

It is difficult for some people to slow down. All of their lives, they were programmed to equal or surpass. Now they are told to adjust their lives to a slower pace. But when you stop to consider it, competition is a two-edged sword. It is fun to win but there is always a need for a repeat performance. There are advantages to age and the opportunity to get off the super-highways of life and wander the slower, more scenic and delightful roads of pressure-free living.

One final thought, one that is endorsed by general psychological principles: It is not advisable to spend too much time examining ourselves. It is more in our best interests to remain essentially involved with others and lose ourselves in the activities we share with them.

Park council to discuss flood plain

There will be a special meeting of the Grosse Pointe Park city council Monday, May 18, at Pierce auditorium. The council is expected to act on the report submitted March 23 by the Flood Plain Study Committee.

If the council decides to proceed with some or all of the recommendations made by the committee, the next step will be to schedule a public hearing, according to City Manager John Crawford.

If, to finance the improvements, the council decides to levy a special assessment on the properties in the flood plain, a second public hearing would be scheduled.

Crawford said he has received a number of phone calls from residents and has been meeting with citizens regarding the report.

The meeting will begin at 7 p.m.

Ford House opens kitchen doors

The Edsel & Eleanor Ford House has opened its kitchen, kitchen pantry, butler's pantry and flower room to the public for the first time, Executive Director Paul D. Alandt announced.

"These rooms previously were not part of our public tour program due to the fact that they served as a food preparation area during catering functions," Alandt said. "We have decided that these rooms will contribute greater historical insight to the house tour."

Visitors now can view the large kitchen's oven, refrigerators, sinks and cutting tables. The kitchen pantry contains a variety of pots, pans and utensils, while the butler's pantry features fine china, dinnerware and serving trays. The flower room includes a professional flower refrigerator, a marble sink, stone floor as well as shelving containing numerous vases.

Tour hours are scheduled Wednesday through Sunday, every hour on the hour, from 1 p.m. to 5 p.m. The last tour of the day begins at 4 p.m.

Tour fees are $4 for adults, $3 for senior citizens and $2 for children 12 and under. The guided tours last about one hour. Information regarding group reservations and other details can be obtained by calling 884-4222 or 884-3400.

The Ford House, built between 1926 and 1929, is located on Lakeshore Drive in Grosse Pointe Shores. The house was left by Eleanor Clay Ford upon her death in 1976 to be used for the benefit of the public.

Woods officer nabs alleged car thief

A Grosse Pointe Woods public safety officer chased and captured a 31-year-old St. Clair Shores man who was charged with car theft shortly before 9 p.m. Sunday, May 3.

The officer was responding to a radio broadcast that a car was stolen from the front of a Mack Avenue business. The car was spotted heading south on Mack, but as the officer approached the intersection of Tyrone and Bourne-mouth, he saw the vehicle turn south on Tyrone from Bourne-mouth.

The officer turned on his emergency flashers, but the vehicle accelerated toward Harper. The officer pursued the vehicle, and was able to stop it at Duprey and McCormick.

The man was charged with unlawful driving away of an automobile. He was processed and later turned over to Harper Woods police who had a warrant for him.

the council, the move to the other side of the council table was an eye-opener.

"I knew what was going on," she said. "But (after she became a member of the council) the issues were much more serious, more complicated and more expensive. There is insurance liability, clean water, hazardous waste and trash disposal. These things are starting to come on the agenda now. It's not easy."

Rice has maintained her commitment to reforestation.

"Since I have been on council, we have put $20,000 a year, except for one year, into the street tree program. We've planted 100 or so trees a year."

The street tree program provides for filling all the tree-less gaps left by Dutch elm disease. Trees are planted in the front strip of all houses that want them.

"If someone doesn't want a tree, we don't give it to them," Rice said. "There would be no point. They wouldn't water it and it would die. But we find that if someone doesn't want a tree, and later moves out, the new homeowner will often want the tree."

Rice estimates that in about three years, all the available tree planting sites in the city will have been filled. However, that doesn't mean the end of the reforestation program.

"In some areas, like Oxford Road, they still have a large number of elms," she said. "Despite everything we do, we have to face reality. Eventually, those areas will have to be done."

That is not to say that all the elms are doomed.

"When it is all said and done, there will be some elm trees left," Rice said. "They may be immune. The Michigan Department of Agriculture wants to know where those trees are so they can clone them and find out why they are resistant."

Rice gives trees a high importance among the concerns of the city government.

"The urban forest totally changes the area," she said. "The human animal needs that kind of environment for his well-being and peace of mind. You can go to a block that has no trees, then the next block has trees and the property value will go up by $10,000 or more."

Rice believes that being a councilwoman requires a lot more effort than showing up for meetings. She does a lot of outside research on issues before the council and spends close to three-quarters of the time that she would put in if she had a full-time job.

"You must realize the amount of work required," she said. "It isn't fun. It is serious, interesting and challenging." She says she has a lot to offer the city.

"I have the time," she said. "The men (on the council) can't do what I can do. They are involved eight to five. I don't think I could have handled this if I still had my family at home."

Rice and her husband, Laddy, have two children, Michael, a police lieutenant in Lansing, and Robin, a dietitian for a food service in Long Beach, Calif.

"I have a sense of accomplishment for the visible things I have seen accomplished," she said. "I've been associated with some very visible projects — flowers, trees and the upgrading of Mack Avenue. I think I can say that when I leave, I'll leave some visible things behind. Years from now, nobody's going to remember Jean Rice. They'll just say that a long time ago, a lady saw to it that we have a lot of trees."

Jean Rice

To present "Women in Michigan's History" at the War Memorial May 12 are, from left, Sue Carter, editorial director for WDIV-TV, Doris DeDeckere, president of Jade/Associates, and M. Jane Kay, vice president administration, Detroit Edison. The program is about women honored by the Michigan Women's Hall of Fame.

Program to highlight women in history

The women honored by the Michigan Women's Hall of Fame will be the topic of a program at the Grosse Pointe War Memorial by Sue Carter, editorial director for WDIV-TV, former press secretary to Governor Blanchard and member of the Hall of Fame's ad hoc committee.

The evening's program, initiated by the War Memorial Council of Sponsors, will highlight both historic and contemporary women who have made significant contributions.

Carter will take the audience through Michigan's history as she relates the stories and accomplishments of women such as Genevieve Gillette, who is largely responsible for the development of Michigan's parks including Sleeping Bear Dunes, Hartwick Pines, Porcupine Mountains, Pictured Rocks and the Metropolitan Park System. Her development of park lands has become a model for the nation.

Tickets for the program May 12 at 7:30 p.m. are $5 per person. A short film on the Hall of Fame will be included in the presentation. For further information, call 881-7511.

Newsbox taken

Grosse Pointe City police report the larceny of a Detroit News newspaper box from the corner of Fisher and St. Paul.

The incident occurred Thursday, April 23, shortly after midnight.

A nearby resident said she spotted two young white males get out of a dark colored van and load the box into the vehicle.

Police have no suspects at this time.

Chase ends in crash with bus

Park officers arrested a Detroit man after he led them on a chase through the Park and into Detroit before the stolen vehicle he was in slammed in to a Detroit DOT bus.

Park officers spotted a car driven through an alley at Maryland near Lakepointe at about 1:50 p.m. April 24. The officers continued to follow the vehicle until the license plate was checked on the department computer. The vehicle was reported stolen from Detroit and the officers activated the emergency flashers and siren to stop the car. The driver accelerated and a chase ensued. The chase ended at Mack and Lenox in Detroit when the car hit the bus and the men fled on foot. They were captured by Park and Detroit officers. One of the two men is wanted on a felony warrant as a habitual offender.

Two have bikes stolen by juveniles

Two Grosse Pointe Park youths were knocked off their bikes by assailants who picked up the bikes and rode away on April 24-25.

The first incident occurred on Fairfax at Pemberton. An 8-year-old was parted from his 20-inch bike.

The next day in front of a Middlesex residence a 9-year-old was pushed off of his bicycle.

Turn Back The Clock

If you've ever felt nostalgic about the old days, or wished that you could have lived in an earlier time, HERITAGE is meant for you. If you've ever walked down Lake Shore and imagined it as a narrow dirt road, when people rode in carriages and ladies wore high-button shoes, you'd love to read HERITAGE. If you value history and wonder about the origin of street names, you ought to collect HERITAGE.

HERITAGE is all about history. We send our writers to dig in old dusty boxes of records and attics full of memories. We invite our readers to share their family's histories. We've found that one person's story leads us to another wonderful tale begging to be shared.

HERITAGE provides a wonderful opportunity to escape to another era, if only for a little while. Our April/May issue, now available on local newsstands, talks about old farmhouses still dotting the Grosse Pointe landscape; about trendy carriage houses; about mansions, once magnificent, long demolished.

HERITAGE is a very special scrapbook of Grosse Pointe life, designed to be collected and treasured, by people who appreciate history. If you haven't begun your collection yet, start now. Back issues available in limited quantity.

The following poem was written by Marla Cummings, 9, a third-grader at Kerby Elementary School. She is the daughter of Bruce and Angela Cummings of Grosse Pointe Farms.

Spring

Skies are blue,
Grass is green,
Birds fly back 'cause they are keen.
Sunshine warms the soil so,
Hidden flowers start to grow.
Mice come out of their hiding places,
Only to find friendly faces,
Warm weather breaks the air,
Winter is harsh,
Spring is fair.

Tickets are on sale now for $3.50 and all seating is reserved.

The play will be dominated by veteran actors, including seniors Gretchen Kline as Martha and Christine Eskilsen as Abby.

Other outstanding cast members include seniors David Bryant as Mortimer, and Kim Barnes and Elaine, Mortimer's fiancée. Mike Dingeman, '87, as Jonathon is busy contending for the title of America's biggest murderer, while his brother Teddy, played by Erik Garr '88, believing he is Theodore Roosevelt, digs the Panama Canal in the cellar. Peter Zinn '88, will play the role of Einstein, Jonathan's accomplice, who specializes in making criminals unrecognizable to the police by means of plastic surgery.

Other talented cast members include Jim Huse as Officer O'Hara, David Shafadeh as Officer Brophy, John Ledyard as Officer Klein, Rick Lickfold as Lieutenant Rooney, Matt Letscher as Mr. Witherspoon, Dawn Kunkel as Mrs. Harper, and Doug Sutherland as Mr. Gibbs.

The set was designed by Tyson McNamara, an '86 South graduate, and mainly constructed by Paul Andreovich, the head of The Performing Arts Center, and Jennifer van Horne, '88, set chairman. Both worked steadily with the set crew during Easter vacation in order to finish on time.

Mary Martin directed the play, a hit which ran for three and a half years on Broadway.

Principal appointed

Brother Neil Keiffe, F.S.C., provincial of the Chicago Province of the Christian Brothers, has approved the three-year appointment of Brother Edward Fallon, F.S.C., as principal of Bishop Gallagher High School, effective July 1.

Fallon, serving as teacher personnel consultant for the Archdiocese of Chicago, has distinguished himself in several educational roles. Space camp

Sergio Santiviago of Grosse Pointe Woods spent a week at the U.S. Space Academy in Huntsville, Ala. Trainees used mockups of the space shuttle orbiter, Space-lab and a space station to perform experiments similar to those carried out by astronauts and scientists in space.

Many of the activities took place at the Space and Rocket Center, which operates the camp and is the visitors' center for NASA's Marshall Space Flight Center.

During the program, each trainee was assigned two roles: one in Mission Control and one in "space." The outcome of the missions depended upon teamwork and upon team members learning their responsibilities.

Sounds of construction fill the Shores

Island curbing along Lakeshore in the Shores is going smoothly. Mike Wood of the City, left, and Sean Gosselin of Detroit, employees of Marion Co., a local firm awarded the curbing contract, prepare the forms before the cement is poured.

The lawns on Renaud Road are taking a beating, but that will be long forgotten when the new $250,000 sewer project paid for by the village of Grosse Pointe Shores is completed and basements remain dry. The work is progressing smoothly according to village officials.

Shores Village Manager Michael Kenyon, right, watches as workmen determine where to place new utility posts atop the new docks the Grosse Pointe Yacht Club has constructed for the village in exchange for dock use rights in an agreement made earlier this year. The 26 new dock facilities should be completed by the middle of May.

Charter proposal highlights Shores annual village election

By Peter A. Salinas
Staff Writer

So far, only one person has filed a nominating petition for the three Grosse Pointe Shores village trustee seats that will be on the Tuesday, May 19, ballot. The election will feature a proposed charter amendment which would allow the village to contract legal and other professional services from non-residents.

City manager Michael Kenyon said that the three trustee seats currently on the block belong to Daniel R. Beck, John Huetteman III and Elizabeth S. Kuhlman, who has stated she will not seek re-election.

The Shores village charter allows nominating petitions to be turned in until 10 days prior to the election. The village prints its own ballots.

"As far as I know Huetteman and Beck will both seek re-election," Kenyon said. He added he did not know of anyone else who had picked up nominating petitions for the upcoming election.

Beck, who took office in 1980, will be seeking his third term, if nominating petitions are turned in. Huetteman took office in 1985.

The only person to have formally filed a petition for the election is Rose Garland Thornton of Lakeshore Drive.

Thornton, 67, has been a resident of the village for 35 years. She has been a member of the village Board of Review for 10 years and spends her time between volunteering at Cottage and St. John hospitals and at her church. She is also on the board of directors of the Grosse Pointe Community Chorus.

"I have always been very interested in what goes on in the community," Thornton said. "I found the work on the board of review interesting, and if I win, I am looking forward to the challenge."

The village council unanimously approved the wording for the charter amendment ballot question at its regular meeting April 28. The Shores regularly sends out a newsletter to all of the village's residences, and the April newsletter had a lengthy item on the proposed amendment.

The newsletter said that the proposal will allow the council to utilize the expertise of particular individuals, as needed, without being restricted by the residency requirements contained in the current charter.

The flexibility in choosing professionals from outside the community, would help ensure that the village is able to utilize the services of individuals best suited to the particular job or assignment.

Kenyon said that the village has need for several different kinds of lawyers, for instance. The city has been utilizing Miller, Canfield, Paddock and Stone as its bonding attorney and partners in the firm are from the Shores.

Kenyon said that the city also has need of labor attorneys and a need for a larger law firm for the city's other legal affairs.

"It is important to us to be able to go outside the bailiwick to get the best people available for the particular job," Kenyon said. "This amendment would allow us to be able to do that." Kenyon noted that under the letter of the charter the village treasurer should be a resident of the community. Currently, Kenyon is the appointed treasurer, but is not a resident of the community. He resides in the Farms.

"This would bring the charter in line with what is actually taking place," Kenyon said.

Voters may go to the polls from 7 a.m. to 8 p.m. Tuesday, May 19, at the Old Vernier School, 36 Vernier Road.

Darlow receives WSU award

Five Wayne State University alumnae, whose achievements rated headlines in the media last year received the university's annual luncheon Saturday, May 2, at the Lansdowne, docked at 201 W. Atwater Street in downtown Detroit.

Given annually by the Women of Wayne organization at WSU, the Headliner Awards were presented to Julia Darlow of Grosse Pointe, the first woman to be elected president of the State Bar Association of Michigan; Christina Fugua, 94-year-old civil activist and president of her neighborhood organization; and Wilma Garcia of Ferndale, associate professor of rhetoric, journalism and communication at Oakland University.

Others are Barbara Levin of Detroit, director of women's agenda for the Center for Defense Information, a Washington-based, non-partisan organization which monitors the military sector; Ann Williams, Chicago, judge of the Federal Court for Northern Illinois and the first black woman appointed to the federal court system by President Reagan.

Another complaint filed against skateboard ramp

It didn't take very long.

Another formal complaint was filed Thursday, April 30, by a neighbor against the skateboard ramp behind the Cawley residence at 108 Muir in the Farms, and police are going to turn the matter over to the city prosecutor.

A jury of six Farms residents couldn't agree on a charge of boisterous activity against Nancy Cawley the homeowner, and the case was dismissed from Farms

Municipal Court last week. Less than a week later Cawley's son and a friend were using the ramp when the immediate next door neighbor called police.

The man said he would sign a complaint.

"As soon as the witness statements come in we are going to turn over the matter to the city prosecutor," Farms police chief Robert Ferber said. Prosecutor Matthew Rumora said he had no comment on the hung jury, and because the case is again active, didn't feel any comment would be appropriate.

A decision on whether the case will be prosecuted in court again, should be coming soon.

Control osteoporosis risks

National Osteoporosis Prevention Week is May 10-16.

The Dairy Council of Michigan and the Osteoporosis Foundation urges Michigan residents to be aware that this incurable, silent bone disease is one that affects 24 million Americans. One out of four women will have this major health problem by age 65.

Controllable steps will eliminate many targeted risk factors in this crippling disease:

- Bring your daily consumption of calcium up to the recommended level (800-1500 mg) e.g. 2-3 servings of dairy foods or secondary choices, sardines, tofu or dark green leafy vegetables;
- Participate in more weight-bearing exercises, (walking, cycling, dancing and jogging);
- Eliminate or cut back on smoking;
- Consume less caffeine and alcohol;
- Take a hormonal replacement if prescribed by your doctor.

There are still uncontrollable factors such as heredity, sex, race, bone structure and early menopause.

But during National Osteoporosis Week, focus on the positive and start controlling those risks that are in your power to control.

City of Grosse Pointe Michigan

NOTICE OF PUBLIC HEARING OF INCREASING PROPERTY TAXES

The City Council of the City of Grosse Pointe, Michigan will hold a public hearing at 7:30 p.m. on Monday, May 18, 1987 in the Council Chambers at the Municipal Offices, 17147 Maumee, on the proposed 1987 City tax levy and on the proposed 1987-88 City budget. Copies of the proposed budget are available for public inspection during regular business hours in the office of the City Clerk beginning May 8, 1987.

Last year (1986) the City levied 16.9800 mills ($16.98 per $1,000 SEV) for City operating purposes. Because of an estimated increase in the State Equalized Value of existing property in the City, state law (Act 5 of 1982) provides that the base rate for 1987 City operating taxes be decreased to 15.51 mills ($15.51 per $1,000 SEV). This is 1.4700 mills ($1.47 per $1,000 SEV) lower than the 1986 operating tax rate.

To fund the City's proposed 1987-88 budget and to maintain the present level of City services, the City finds it necessary to increase its operating tax levy. An additional millage rate levy of .42 mills (42 cents per $1,000 SEV) is proposed above the 1987 base operating millage rate. This provides an estimated 3.8% increase in City operating tax revenues.

Public comments, oral or written, are welcome at the public hearing on the proposed additional millage rate and on the proposed City budget.

T.W. Kressbach

Six South high school seniors plead guilty to November 1986 library break-in, vandalism

Six Grosse Pointe South High School seniors pleaded guilty Monday, April 27, to a charge of breaking and entering, a misdemeanor under the local Farms ordinance, and must pay restitution, fines and costs and spend eight days working in community service.

City prosecutor Matthew Rumora said he thought municipal judge Peter O'Rourke's decision was firm, but fair.

"We had to prosecute this case to show the seriousness of this offense," Rumora said. "It must also be a deterrent to prevent it from happening again." It was on November 21, 1986, when the six reportedly broke into the Grosse Pointe South library and knocked over books from shelves and dumped file cards from the catalogue. It took several days of work by school employees before the library could be reopened.

Reportedly the students meant the vandalism as a senior prank. It was not considered such by either school or police officials.

The six were punished by the school district. They were ordered to pay restitution, told they could not participate in any school-sponsored event and were banned from taking part in commencement exercises.

Judge O'Rourke added a few more penalties against the six.

The boys, all 18, of Grosse Pointe Park, were ordered to 18 months of non-reporting probation, told to pay $175 fines and costs, had the school-ordered restitution made a part of their probation, and given the choice of spending eight, eight-hour days

Allardice receives award

Margheritta S. Allardice of Grosse Pointe, a member of the state Commission on Services to the Aging since 1971, has won the prestigious Geneva Mathiasen Award presented by the National Council on Aging (NCoA).

Allardice, a first-time recipient, was presented the award recently at NCoA's annual meeting in Chicago. The award recognizes that one individual who has made major contributions to the development of programs sponsored by the national organization and to the growth of its more than 6,000 membership.

Allardice has been a long-time member of NCoA and has served the organization in several capacities including as a member of the board of directors for 14 years and as chairperson of the Board's Life Enrichment Committee.

with the Wayne County Alternative Services Program or working for the Farms Fire Department or Pier Park. All six opted for working for the city. Each was ordered to pay one-sixth of the total restitution, or $512.

The community service work can be done by working for eight consecutive days or four consecutive weekends. Officials said the boys would not be allowed to all work at one time. Both the fire chief and park manager will be filing reports with the court concerning the duties performed by the six for the city.

Any violation of law, except civil infractions, will be a parole violation which could end in even more penalties being assessed against them, according to Rumora.

Judge O'Rourke also ordered that the six sign a letter apologizing to the South student body, faculty and staff to be sent to the school newspaper.

"The credit goes to Farms Det. Daniel Jensen who was responsible for getting the six to confess to what they did," Rumora said. "Hopefully, we will not have a situation like this again."

BMW'S 325e IS ALMOST AS QUICK AS A SAAB TURBO. AND IT ONLY COSTS A FEW THOUSAND DOLLARS MORE.

According to the test results reported in Road & Track magazine, BMW's sports coupe is now nearly as fast as the Saab Turbo, ever since they abandoned the four-cylinder engine in favor of a larger six-cylinder power plant.

It's not quite as fast as the Saab, but it's close.

Of course, Saab has always felt that it was better to do the same job with a smaller engine and add the power with a turbocharger whenever it was needed.

It seems a lot more efficient. And the manufacturer's suggested retail prices indicate that it's a lot less expensive, too.

Meet the world through an exchange student

AFS International/Intercultural Programs is offering Grosse Pointe families the opportunity to meet the world face to face.

Families are being sought by the Grosse Pointe AFS Chapter to host foreign students for the coming school year. Each visiting student is between the ages of 16 and 19 and lives as a member of a family while attending classes at South or North High. Grosse Pointe hopes to host four students this year.

"The AFS program is extremely rewarding to the host family as well as beneficial to the student," said Ann Nicholson, chapter president. "Families learn and grow together by acquiring new perspectives about another culture."

A major quality desired in a host family is an openness to new ideas. Although many host families have children of high school age, families with young children or no children may host and are encouraged to apply. Host families are not asked to make special expenditures for their AFS student, but they do pay food costs and incidental expenditures as they would for any child. Host families may take a monthly tax deduction of $50 in accordance with provisions made by the IRS. "More important than the financial contribution a family makes is the interest and attention they provide the AFS student, which is usually more than compensated by the rewards they gain in return," Nicholson said.

Patrick E. Callan Jr., center, of Harper Woods, receives the Optimist's Citizen Award, for his effort to stop a robbery. Respect for Law Day Chairman Joseph I. Gualtieri, left, made the presentation April 29 as Harper Woods Police Chief Gary Ford, who nominated Callan for the award, looked on.

Optimists honor local man for effort to thwart robbery

By Peter A. Salinas
Staff Writer

He was a patron at the Har-dee's on Eight Mile Road in Harper Woods when he spotted a man walk up to a female restaurant employee carrying money pouches for delivery to the bank. The man threw the woman to the ground, and the patron sprang into action.

Patrick E. Callan, Jr., a retiree after 30 years at Chrysler, was given the Optimist Club of Lake-shore Citizen Award Wednesday, April 29, at the club's third Annual Respect for Law Award Breakfast at the Lochmoor Country Club.

Callan, a Harper Woods resident, saw that the man was trying to steal the money pouches, ran outside of the store and, as the man was running toward the parking lot, tackled the thief.

An accomplice then got out of a vehicle in the lot, approached Callan and kicked him in the ribs. The man pointed a gun at Callan and told him to let go of the other thief. Callan did.

In pain, Callan was able to get the license number of the getaway vehicle, and when police arrived, he said he was all right and sought his own medical attention.

From his description of the car police were able to locate the vehicle, but the thieves were not found.

"That the thieves were able to get away should not diminish what Mr. Callan did," Joseph I. Gualtieri, award breakfast program chairman, told the club members and guests.

Those guests included police chiefs and representatives of the five Grosse Pointes and Harper Woods and keynote speaker Kenneth P. Walton, special agent in charge, Michigan division, FBI.

Callan thanked the organization for the award, and commented that he felt the law enforcement agencies in Harper Woods and the Grosse Pointes were doing an excellent job of protecting residents.

Prior to the award Walton addressed the group, and told them that the number one criminal and social problem in the country is narcotics.

"Nowhere is that problem more prevalent than in Detroit," Walton said. He said the number one narcotics problem is crack, a concentrated form of cocaine that is highly addictive.

"You can trace the drug almost to the day it entered the Detroit market," Walton said. "It entered Detroit in Feb. 1986, and since then the number of personal crimes has risen dramatically.

Some 80 percent of bank robberies are related to drugs, Walton said. He noted that the drug is "self-marketing."

"We have found that 87 percent of first time crack users become addicted to the drug," Walton said. "Crack used to cost about $60 for a dime bag, now there are about 1,800 locations in the city where crack can be purchased at a cost of $12 to $17 a hit."

Many school age children have access to the smaller sum of money, and therefore can readily become addicted to the drug, Walton said.

Because the abuse of cocaine is so widespread and crosses all racial and social barriers, Walton said that all law enforcement agencies must join together to fight the sale and abuse of the drug.

"We have an obligation to the community to put parochial interests behind us and work together to combat the drug," Walton said.

Gualtieri thanked Walton, the club's guests and program organizer Michael A. Szmigiel.

Woods council votes to adopt 911

By Margie Reins Smith
Staff Writer

The Grosse Pointe Woods city council passed a resolution at the April 20 meeting rescinding the February decision that excluded the city from the 911 emergency telephone service plan.

Jack L. Patterson, public safety director, explained the change of heart. "After learning more about the plan from Michigan Bell, we discovered we were going to be part of the 911 area even if we chose not to join. Because the exchanges are shared by both Detroit and Grosse Pointe Woods, all of our subscribers would be paying the user's fee anyway. It comes to about 20 cents a month. Public Act 32 of 1986 allows the Wayne County Board of Commissioners to establish this service and allows them to levy a fee to every user in the area, whether they join or not."

Initially, the Woods decided not to join the enhanced 911 emergency telephone system because the present system works well in the Woods, Patterson said. "We have had very little problem for the last 30 years, since I've been here, with our direct response emergency system. I thought we didn't need 911."

Under the current system, Woods residents call 343-2400 for Woods police, fire and/or emergency EMS services. Response time is one to two minutes for a scout car, Patterson said. For a fire truck or ambulance, it's three to five minutes.

"With the enhanced 911 system," he said, "whenever a person dials 911 from a residence in Grosse Pointe Woods, the call will be directly routed to our switch-board for response." Without the 911 system, if a Woods resident inadvertently calls 911 during an emergency, the call goes to Detroit. The Detroit operator either manually switches the call to the Woods or tells the caller to hang up and dial the correct Woods number. Both actions add response time to the emergency.

Patterson added that Michigan Bell also provides a more elaborate variation of the enhanced 911 system in which a screen at the dispatch desk displays the caller's address and keeps it there, even though the caller hangs up. This version, however, costs between $35,000 and $50,000, with an annual fee of approximately $12,000 to maintain it. "It's not worth it," Patterson said.

Estimates are that the system will be in use within the next three years.

Local developers hope to attract national retailers to the Hill

By Peter A. Salinas
Staff Writer

With over 100,000 square feet of retail and office space due to become available on the Hill in Grosse Pointe Farms, there are indications that national retailers may locate in the new Bologna building and at the Punch and Judy Building.

Local developers Peter Bologna and Robert Edgar both indicated that they have had discussions with national retailers, but declined to name them while talks are still taking place.

Bologna said that fair winter weather has put construction of his building six to eight weeks ahead of schedule. Aside from the obvious cost savings, the other added benefit is that Standard Federal Bank may be able to move into the building sometime in August.

"As far as I can see, we are looking for an August opening for the bank," Bologna said. "We cannot announce our retail tenants as yet. We have been holding open a large retail area in the hopes of a strong anchor tenant."

The store would serve several purposes. A major chain would have the capital to maintain the business through the often-slow start many businesses experience at first, and would also serve as a draw for the other smaller retail outlets in the building.

Edgar said that the major national retail chains he has had discussions with about moving in his building on the south end of the Hill on Kercheval near Fisher have also had discussions with Bologna.

"We have no date as yet for a grand opening," Edgar said. "The contractor tells me that we could have a tenant in there in 90 days. The common areas such as the elevators and the lobby will be completed by then."

The Punch and Judy Building will have about 10,000 square feet of rentable retail space on the first floor and about 17,000 square feet of office space on the second and third floors.

While there may be some competition between the two developers for retailers, both feel there will not be going head to head to attract lessees.

"We have been approached by many of the same prospective tenants," Edgar said, "but many of them are not the type of tenant we would like to see in our building."

Bologna has designed his building for use by medical practitioners, while Edgar has not. Bologna said many people think that because of his building's proximity to Cottage Hospital, that most of his office space has already been leased.

"The leasing is going smoothly, but there is still much space available," Bologna said. "We have leased space to some doctors from Cottage, but the building is open to the general public."

"Right now we could fill our retail space twice if we leased to every one who has shown an interest," he said. "But we have tried to explain that we need clients who can afford to carry themselves for five years. We don't want to have empty spaces in a couple of years because the tenants were badly under-capitalized."

Edgar agreed. "Some of the people we have talked with have no bankroll and no business experience and they want us to lease them space," Edgar said. "We want tenants who are going to stay, and tenants who will enhance the building and the area."

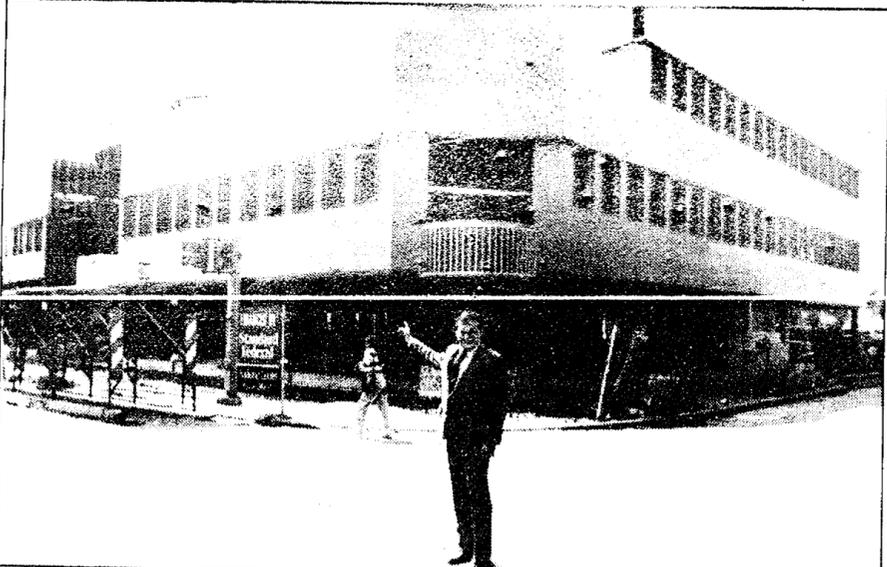

Neither Edgar nor Bologna would say which national chains they have talked with.

The Village in the City has had a number of new national retailers move into the business district in recent years. Stores such as Benetton's, Banana Republic, Waldenbooks and Talbot's have entered the scene and are now operating on Kercheval.

The developers said that caliber of retailer may be in the offing for the Hill.

"We are looking at the strong boutiques with a good name that will be recognizable to the consumers in the Grosse Pointes," Bologna said. "We hope to have one or two of those."

Both men feel that their projects and other projects on the Hill will benefit the local business climate and the consumer.

Peter Bologna points to his new building at the corner of Kercheval and Muir in the Farms. Barring any unforeseen problems, Bologna expects the first tenants to move in in August.

"People are fixing up their buildings because they know now that they can get the kind of rents they should be getting here.

Edgar said that the introduction of major retail chains on Mainstreet, America is a notion that is not unique to Grosse Pointe.

"Some people have an aversion to malls," Edgar said. "In many cases the real estate simply isn't available for new mall developments, and in other cases, people don't want to shop at large malls because of problems such as crime."

Bologna said that local residents are pleased that major retail chains have decided to come to them.

"I think people have begun to realize that their own backyards are a good place to be," Bologna said. "It is their taxes that help support these businesses."

R.G. Edgar is co-owner of the newly renovated Punch and Judy Building. Edgar said that he hopes to have at least one national retailer locate in the store which will be ready for occupancy in the next 90 days.

Congress cuts business loopholes

Business people who work out of their homes should know that the Tax Reform Act created by Congress last fall curtails the abuses of homeowners who used their homes as a tax deduction, the Michigan Tax Information Council says.

Since Jan. 1, a home office deduction is limited to net income from the trade or business. Congress took this action to prevent taxpayers from deducting expenses that would reduce their taxable income to less than zero.

Taxpayers, however, will be allowed to carry disallowed home office deductions forward to later years. As an example, if a taxpayer had a deduction that could not be fully claimed in 1987, but the taxpayer's 1988 net income exceeded that deduction, then the full amount could be deducted in 1988.

Congress also ended the practice that permitted taxpayers to deduct that portion of their homes that are rented to their employers. Formerly, an employee could take this deduction regardless if the home office was the principal place of business.

Congress did not change the basic rules that the portion of your home you claim as your office must be used regularly and exclusively for business.

Another project halfway up the Hill

With all the construction going on at either end of the Hill on Kercheval, it's easy to miss some of the other new developments.

Cathy Champion Dillaman, vice president and associate broker at Champion & Baer Real Estate at 102 Kercheval, said that the firm that merged in July 1985 has outgrown its building and will be expanding its office to include the adjoining 104 Kercheval.

Dillaman said that an expanding real estate market has required the additional space. The office will almost double its total floor space from 1,700 to 3,200 square feet.

"We are currently in the second smallest building on the Hill," Dillaman said.

She said that the two buildings will be joined by knocking out a large section of the front area wall to create a large reception area. The facade of the two buildings will be bricked to make for one large building front facing Kercheval.

Construction has already begun in the two buildings and should be completed in about 60 days.

Dillaman said she is excited about the recent growth on the Hill and feels the two large developments point to the strength of the economy.

"Grosse Pointe's needs are changing," she said. "I think the new developments will better serve the public. It looks a lot better than having the boarded-up buildings from a few years ago. It shows we are a strong area and growing."

Dillaman said that as a real estate salesperson, she feels that the new developments will be a selling point for certain customers, and that the added tax base will help the community.

"As a property owner, I am glad because the developments will help bring up property values," she said.

Terry Leighman, a partner of the Dodge Investment Co. that bought the Standard Federal Building at McMillan and Kercheval late last year, said that last week new marble was installed on the main floor of the 30,000 square foot building.

Leighman, who is also a regional manager of Offerman and Co., a brokerage located in the building now called Dodge Center, added that there will be more improvements both inside and outside.

A small awning will be installed and run the length of the north shops, Leighman said, and new lighting, new carpeting and stucco walls will be added on both the first and second floor.

Standard Federal will move when the Bologna building is completed later this year, and Leighman said he has been contacted by several banks and a credit union about locating in the first floor office.

"Everything will be completed by June 1," Leighman said. "We should have an open house in early June and Gordie Howe (former Detroit Red Wing forward and partner in Dodge Center) will be on hand."

Leighman said he feels there will be a lot of movement among businesses in this area, when the Seven and Mack shopping center closes for the construction of a large office and retail complex scheduled to begin next year. He feels the need for office and retail space will continue to grow, and doesn't feel that the addition of more than 100,000 square feet of rentable space on the Hill will affect what he has available for lease.

"I am getting many calls from businesses in the Bloomfield and Troy area who want to locate here," Leighman said. "The new developments will make for a much more desirable area."

NOTICE OF PUBLIC HEARING ON INCREASING PROPERTY TAXES AND ON THE PROPOSED 1987-1988 CITY BUDGET

The City Council of the City of Grosse Pointe Farms, Michigan will hold a public hearing at 7:30 p.m. on Monday, May 18, 1987 in the City Hall at 90 Kerby Road, on the proposed 1987 city tax levy and on the proposed 1987-1988 City budget. The proposed budget is on file in the Office of the City Controller for public inspection during regular office hours, 8:30 a.m. until 4:30 p.m., Monday through Friday.

The following is a summary of the proposed Budget:

GENERAL FUND
BUDGET ACCOUNTS	EXPENSE APPROPRIATION
Administrative	$ 547,350.00
Police	$1,497,000.00
Fire	$ 762,700.00
Public Service	$ 145,600.00
Public Works	$1,461,500.00
Recreation	$ 394,900.00
Municipal Court	$ 81,700.00
Sewage Pumping	$ 326,400.00
Major & Extraordinary	$ 582,225.00
General	$ 726,900.00
Total Expenses	$6,526,275.00
FINANCING
Other Funds	$ 280,000.00
Estimated Revenue - State
Shares Fine, Permits
Licenses, Fees, Etc.	$1,619,875.00
Surplus Appropriated	$ 733,000.00
Tax Levy	$3,893,400.00
TOTAL FINANCING	$6,526,275.00

PROPOSED TAX RATE - 12.60 per thousand - Based on Est. State Equalized Value of $309,000,000.

Last year (1986) the City levied 12.55 mills ($12.55 per $1,000 SEV) for City operating purposes. Because of an estimated increase in the State Equalized Value of existing property in the City, state law (Act 5 of 1982) provides that the base rate for 1987 City operating taxes be decreased to 12.05 mills ($12.05 per $1,000 SEV). This is 80 mills ($.80 per $1,000 SEV) lower than the 1986 operating tax rate.

To fund the City's proposed 1987-1988 budget, provide for the City portion of resurfacing Lake Shore Road, and to maintain the present level of City services, the City finds it necessary to increase its operating tax levy. An additional millage rate levy of .55 mills (.55 cents per $1,000 SEV) is proposed above the 1987 base operating millage rate. This provides an estimated 4.5% increase in City operating tax revenues.

Public comments, oral or written, are welcome at the Public Hearing on the proposed City Budget.

Parcells, Pierce celebrate state's sesquicentennial

By Nancy Parmenter
Staff Writer

Good ideas are contagious. This one migrated from Birmingham to Grosse Pointe, from Parcells to Pierce, and ended up as great fun and good education for hundreds of kids.

In honor of the Michigan Sesquicentennial, the two schools decided to create a celebration with a bang — one that won't soon be forgotten. They succeeded.

For a full day at each school a few weeks ago, students were treated to an outside field trip for half the day and in-school exhibits and talks for the other half. They struggled with choices between Craubrook and the Dossin marine museum and old Fort Wayne and Greenfield Village — and even a trip to the state capital.

In-school choices were even tougher: fossils and paleontology, Indians, horse-shoeing, decoy-carving, fishing. Each a lesson in a craft or skill practiced throughout Michigan history and still in use.

The kids seemed to love it.

"They applauded like it was a movie," marveled the fossil man, Cameron Oglesbee of Dearborn.

Indeed, they swarmed around the displays, brandishing the rock hammers, exclaiming over the fossil ferns and teeth, the delicate flower-like crinoid marine animals with fine stone tentacles and cilia.

No less enthralled were the student blacksmiths. They watched quietly while Doug Seay, a contracted blacksmith with the Detroit Police mounted division, applied the shoes. They winced when he filed the hoof (never mind that it's just like a big toenail — it grates like fingernails on a blackboard.) They admired the patience of the horse as it lifted foot after foot and allowed its teeth to be examined.

And they peppered the smith and the mountie with questions. Why do you wear the leather apron? Has a horse ever been shot in the line of duty? Aren't male horses meaner than females? They grimaced and groaned at the description of veterinary techniques.

And they remembered.

They learned that even in recent years, some Indians have been reluctant to divulge their ethnicity for fear of prejudice. Benashe Eqwe, or Bird Woman, a Chippewa who grew up in the Pontiac area, told how her family had passed for French. "Don't tell anybody — people don't like Indians," they always said.

Staff at the two schools worked for months lining up trips and visitors. "We wanted to seize the teachable moment," said Parcells Assistant Principal Suzanne Klein. "We wanted to enrich the kids' lives."

The schools came up with eight out-of-school field trips (but not the same eight) and a potpourri of different in-school activities, ranging from Michigan cooking to Michigan on computer.

"They might find out things they never knew about Michigan before," said Parcells teacher George Pamerleau, who led the organizing. "The value will depend on the youngsters' interests."

Bill Bakeman at Pierce was one of the original brainstormers who came up with the concept. He took part in the presentations as well — as a decoy carver. He brought in Gary Hanson for the really fancy stuff and explained his own techniques in carving service decoys.

"Because it's an event that doesn't happen very often, we're trying to make it something the community can take part in," he said. "It's something we're doing for the whole student body."

Students at Parcells Middle School made traditional Michigan recipes during the Sesquicentennial Celebration held at the school. Students made an old Michigan sugar cookie recipe and everyone's favorite — Michigan pasties. The Opera Ball

First event at Stroh River Place echos the golden age of opera

First is the word to describe the Opera Ball held last Saturday evening at Stroh River Place. It was the first event to be held at the Stroh corporate headquarters, the first Opera Ball for the Michigan Opera Theatre, introducing its first Spring Grand Opera Season and it was a social event of the first echelon.

But first, it was an evening of excellent music in a splendid setting.

General chairmen were Mr. and Mrs. Peter Cooper and Mr. and Mrs. Roger Fridholm. Honorary chairmen were Mr. and Mrs.

Peter Stroh. They presided over a committee of more than 100, planning an event for less than 400 guests. Needless to say, every detail was considered and reconsidered.

The first atrium at Stroh River Place was the setting for the cocktail reception that started off the first Opera Ball.

The atrium was decorated as an outdoor cafe, with ficus trees and cafe tables in gold, blue and blush. The atrium is surrounded by six tiers of balconies looking over the office floors above.

Mary Kay Crain, left, and Stephanie Kemp, right, were co-chairmen of the decorations committee for the first Opera Ball. Henrietta Fridholm, center, was one of the general chairmen. The decorations committee worked several thousand fresh flowers, flown in specially from Holland, into the floral arrangements on the dining tables.

The party took place in the two atriums of the ground floor of Stroh River Place. Each square court is surrounded by six tiers of balconies looking over from the office floors above. In the second atrium, where the 35 dining tables were set up, the balcony ledges were lined with 700 votive candles.

Flowers on the tables were arranged by the decorations committee headed by Mary Kay Crain and Stephanie Kemp. Several thousand fresh flowers were flown in from Holland for the tables.

Gilded chairs for the dining tables were rented from a Chicago agency. Ernest and Larry DuMouchelle of DuMouchelle Art Galleries provided several pieces of antique furniture including a Louis XV desk and commodes, and Imari porcelain vases.

The ball raised more than $75,000 for the Michigan Opera Theatre and served to introduce the company's spring opera season. Following dinner, patrons were entertained by artists from the company's production of "Tosca" to open May 9. Carol Neblett, Ruben Dominguez and Charles Long were accompanied by Suzanne Acton.

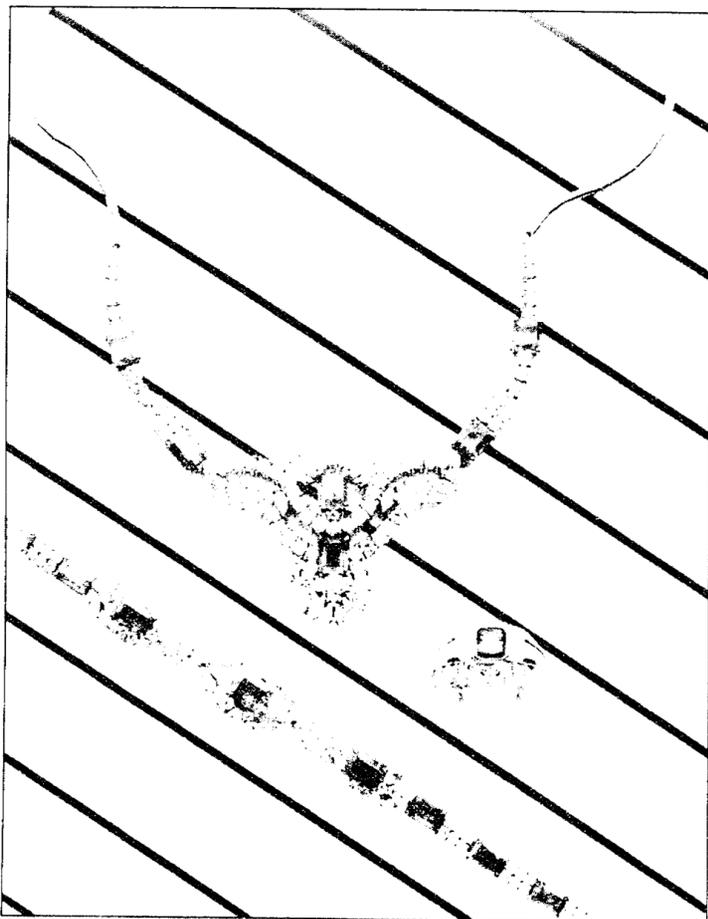

Michigan Opera Theatre's 1987 Spring Grand Opera Season features three works, Rossini's "The Barber of Seville" and George Gershwin's "Porgy and Bess," in addition to Rossini's "Tosca."

The spring season is the company's new initiative at expanding its mainstage offerings beyond its traditional format of three productions in the fall at the Fisher Theatre.

Those interested in opera tickets should contact the box office at 874-SING. Tickets are also available through Ticket Master outlets.

Local writer Peters has first drama produced

'Mensa Meeting' has its debut at real Mensa meeting

"Mensa Meeting" an original one-act play by T.R. Peters of Grosse Pointe Farms, premiered Saturday, May 2, at the Southfield Hilton Hotel before the annual meeting of the real Mensa organization.

Featuring a cast of seven local actors, the drama spotlights a fictitious group of highly individualistic and vocal Mensa members who meet one Tuesday a month to discuss anything and everything — with the emphasis on philosophy. The hour-long drama takes a broad swipe at the 20th century with each character providing special perspectives related to his background.

The cast included: Francis E. Brossy III, Maureen Bruce, Arthur W. Gohle, Kimberly A. Hoskins, Peter F. Murphy, Jennifer L. Peters and Stephen R. Shrader.

Besides "Mensa Meeting," Peters is the author of one published novel, "The Education of Tom Webber," (1977) and has another on the way, "Two Weeks in the Forties."

He and his wife, Lee, have lived in the Farms for 20 years. They have three children, Jennifer, Tom Jr., and Sarah.

the talents of the club's photographers. There will be a varied selection of favorite 35 mm slides of some of the club's members.

The audience will be treated to scenes of far away places, close-ups of familiar and unfamiliar objects, portraits and images with special effects — all accompanied by soft background music.

The annual awards presentation will follow the program.

Antique show benefits Greenfield Village

Henry Ford Museum and Greenfield Village will be the setting Friday through Sunday, May 15-17, for the Village Antiques Show, considered to be one of the top five antique events in the country.

Forty-five exhibitors from Maine to California will participate in the show, organized and sponsored by the President's Society of Henry Ford Museum and Greenfield Village.

According to J. Jordan Humberstone, show manager, all items are for sale and will reflect the quality and scope of the museum collections. Included among the selections will be furniture and accessories, paintings, jewelry, tows, glass and ceramics, textiles, clocks and watches and automotive ephemera, priced to appeal to a variety of tastes and budgets.

Adding to the excitement in the show's third year will be something new — a Young Collectors Booth presenting antiques priced for the beginning collector. All the affordable antiques in the booth, from accessories to larger items, will be provided by the show exhibitors.

For those wishing an opportunity to view and purchase the assembled antiques before the show opens to the public, a Preview Night is planned for Thursday, May 14. Benefactors ($100 per person) will be admitted at 6 p.m. and Patrons ($75 per person) one hour later at 7 p.m. Both will enjoy a buffet dinner and cocktails served in Lovett Hall, the show site. As a special thank you for their support, Benefactors and Patrons may sign up for any of four special museum tours to be conducted by museum personnel Friday, May 15: Furniture, Textiles, Domestic Arts or the Young America: A Folk Art History exhibit.

Also scheduled is a lecture, Saturday, May 16, by Wendell Garrett, editor and publisher of "The Magazine Antiques." The $5 ticket includes a coffee and pastry reception preceding the 10 a.m. program in the Henry Ford Museum Theater.

All proceeds from the show and related events go towards Henry Ford Museum and Greenfield Village educational programs benefiting school children. For more information about the Village Antiques Show, Preview Party or lecture, contact the Development Office, Henry Ford Museum and Greenfield Village, P.O. Box 1970, Dearborn, Mich., 48121, or call 271-1620, ext. 214.

Jill Williams, left, of Grosse Pointe and Stephanie Germack of Grosse Pointe Farms help address 4,000 Preview Night invitations to the Village Antiques Show, sponsored by the President's Society to benefit Henry Ford Museum and Greenfield Village. The show will be held in Lovett Hall, May 15-17, with Preview Night May 14.

Middle East is topic for AAUW-GP meeting

Barbara Gepford, a member of the AAUW Dearborn Branch, will be the guest speaker at the American Association of University Women-Grosse Pointe Branch dinner meeting on May 14, at 6:30 p.m., at Grosse Pointe Memorial Church.

"Newcomers in Our Midst: The Middle East Comes to Detroit" will be the topic covered by Gepford. In 1979, she and her husband were called to work at the Littlefield church in Dearborn because of their background and experience with Arabic cultures. For 10 years, they had lived and taught in Presbyterian schools in Beirut, Sidon and Tripoli. Their current church has become a center for recent immigrants to learn English and other skills needed to cope with living in the United States.

Following the business meeting and installation of officers, the AAUW Chorus will entertain the group with a few Broadway favorites.

New officers are: Kay Kirby, president; Trudy Rhodes, membership vice president; Carla Tegan, program development vice president; Vicki Adik, general program vice president; Julia Read, corresponding secretary; Margaret Kaiser, recording secretary; Jane Turnbull, treasurer; and Julie Demchak, president-elect.

Judelairs to present golden music

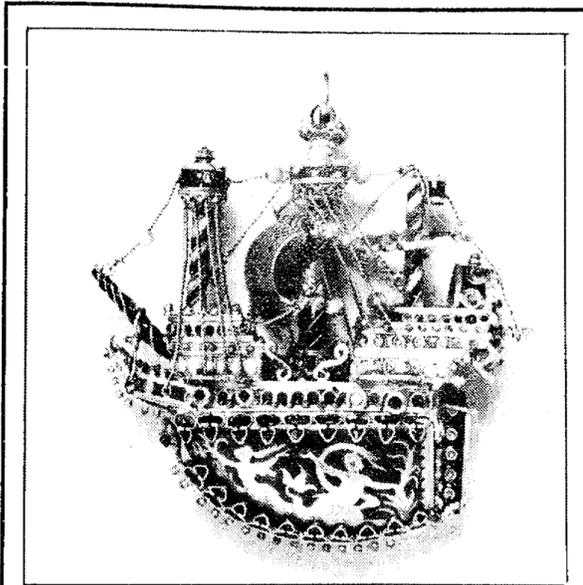

The Judelairs, a 24-member show choir, will present their 33rd annual spring performance, "24-Karat Gold," a musical revue for the entire family, at the Grosse Pointe Community Performing Arts Center, at Grosse Pointe North High School, 707 Vernier Rd., Grosse Pointe Woods.

Performances will be on Friday, May 15, at 8 p.m., and Saturday, May 16, at 8 p.m. Tickets are $7 on the main floor and $6 in the balcony. Seniors and students receive a $1 discount.

"24-Karat Gold" will feature many of the best-loved popular songs requested over the years, combining dancing and singing.

By the Rev. Harvey W. Reh
Grace United Church of Christ

Several weeks ago we celebrated Easter, a high point of Christian worship everywhere. The Resurrection of Jesus of Nazareth is the most exciting event in human history, consider it well. Sometimes even church members take this too much for granted, and are timid about the presentation of the Good News of God in Jesus Christ.

Let us consider what life would be like if Jesus had not come. There would be other gods to worship — made of stone, wood, metal and imagination — Isis and Osiris, Baal, Zeus, Thor, Manitow. Or we would have a different concept of God — one of fear, unapproachability, off in the remote distance of the galaxy.

If Jesus had not come there would be no Gospels, nor Beatitudes or Sermon on the Mount. Paul would not have written his description of love in I Corinthians 13 and there would be no story of "Footprints in the Sand." There would be no message of hope in the presence of adversity.

If Jesus had not come, I can visualize society as brutal, fearful, anxious, frustrated, hungry, thirsty and in despair.

The Rev. George Allen, in Steilacoom, Wash., suggests it this way: "If Christ had not come, there would be no Handel's 'Messiah,' no 'And the Glory of the Lord.' In fact there would be no glory of the Lord. There would be no Bach 'B minor Mass' or Mozart 'Requiem,'...only Wagnerian opera and program pieces. There would be no hymns or spirituals songs to lift the heart. We would trade 'Amazing Grace' for 'Yankee Doodle' and 'Pass It On.' for 'Rocky Mountain High.'"

If Jesus had not come, we would all despair and wring our hands over the plague of illicit drugs and sex, terror on the city streets, vandalism of our homes and killings in our schools.

If "Coke" really is the "Real Thing" and if the only answer is to "Get all the Gusto we can" and "If that's all there is," then we are in real trouble.

Because Jesus did come, that part of our innate nature to fight and squabble has at least been suppressed and the horrors that we've experienced have at least not been worse. We can be thankful that there have been people with the vision to love and hope and people who have had the willingness to be peace-makers and arbitrators and people who have encouraged us to wait and reconsider an angry outburst or impulsive decision.

Because Jesus came, we understand God to be a caring, compassionate parent — who listens when no one else will, who speaks to us when no one else will, who hears our complaints and cries and who rejoices when we celebrate with a soul full to overflowing with thanksgiving.

Because Jesus has come, we know of forgiveness, salvation and the blessing of eternal glory. And it is there whether we deny it, miss it, resist it or accept it as our very own.

Because Jesus has come, we know that there is a peace which passes all understanding. We know that there is good in nearly all situations. We know that people have been inspired to make beautiful things, write beautiful music and noble thoughts and bring dignity to every aspect of life.

Because Jesus has come, we are assured that there is the Holy Spirit in the world to lead us into the realm of perfect love, divine compassion and new life.

What is your life like because Jesus has come.

Calvary plans balloon release

On Tuesday, May 12, at 11 a.m., Calvary Center, 4950 Gateshead at Mack, will celebrate Older Americans Month with a balloon release. Participants from the Day Care for Adults program and the Senior Center will join together in Calvary's garden to release a rainbow of balloons, each bearing a friendship message to the person who finds it.

The balloon release commemorates Older Americans Month, which Calvary Center is observing throughout May, to call attention to the special needs, contributions and achievements of older citizens. The month has been designated by presidential proclamation every year since John F. Kennedy announced the first observance in 1963.

Calvary Center, a unit of Lutheran Social Services of Michigan, has been serving older citizens residing on Detroit's east side as well as the Grosse Pointe area, for the past 10 years.

Older residents in the area are invited to join the Calvary Center group for the balloon release and take time to learn about the programs available.

St. Joseph Home for the Aged marks golden anniversary

The Carmelite Sisters of the Divine Heart of Jesus and the guests of St. Joseph's Home for the Aged extend an invitation to attend the open house celebration, Friday, May 8, from 3 to 6 p.m. The event is being held to mark the 50th anniversary of the home.

The Carmelite order which operates the home was founded by the Venerable Mother Marie Teresa of St. Joseph in Germany in 1891.

In 1919, St. Joseph's Home was established on Leland Street in Detroit. As the nuns and guests outgrew the Leland Home, a new home was opening on May 8, 1937 at 4800 Cadieux Rd., near Warren in Detroit.

The foundress once said that St. Joseph's Home, "is not an institution, but a home for the elderly in which they can spend a quiet evening of life, lighted up by peace and warmed by love."

The home is staffed by four Carmelite Sisters, and houses 104 residents.

Elizabeth Ketchum Group to meet

Pro Mozart Society presents 200th anniversary of opera

The 28th annual concert of the Pro Mozart Society of Greater Detroit will be presented on Sunday, May 17, at 3 p.m. in the Fries Auditorium of the Grosse Pointe War Memorial, 32 Lakeshore Rd.

The program is under the artistic direction of the society's founder, Marguerite Kozenn Chajes, and the musical direction of Lawrence LaGore of Grosse Pointe.

This year, the program will commemorate the 200th anniversary of the composition of Mozart's opera "Don Giovanni," which was premiered in Prague on Oct. 29, 1787, under the composer's direction. Generations of musical scholars have concluded that "Don Giovanni" is one of the greatest operas ever written.

The artists performing arias and ensembles from the opera will include sopranos Roma Riddell, Earnestine Nimmons and Nada Radakovich and Peter Groom, baritone. There will also be numbers from Mozart's opera, "The Marriage of Figaro," premiered a year and a half earlier, in May 1786.

Great chamber works will also be performed by the Ventura String Quartet, consisting of DSO players Stacey Woolley, violin; Marguerite DeSlippe, violin; Vincent Leonti, viola; and Mario Di Fiore, cello.

Alice Lungershausen and Johanna Gilbert will be hostesses for an afterglow.

Tickets are $8 and may be obtained ahead by calling Mrs. William Palmer at 884-5113, or may be purchased at the door prior to the concert at 2:30 p.m. Students and senior may purchase tickets for $4.

One dish meals save precious time

Elegant Eating

The one dish meal is especially cherished at this fast-moving pace we call everyday living. It will always be popular because we can add a vegetable, a special salad, our favorite bread or hot rolls, a simple fruit or an elaborate dessert — and it is ready for a family dinner or a friendly gathering.

The following recipes come from the low-calorie, low-cholesterol, budgetwise kitchens of Thyra Grey Howard and Helena DeWitt Roth.

Fish Stew

An ideal dish for Sunday or Friday night, served with whole wheat hard rolls and assorted pickles.

1/2 cup thinly sliced celery
1 clove garlic, minced
1 Tbsp. margarine
3/4 cup chopped onion
1 can (10-1/2 ounces) cream of mushroom soup
1 pound fish fillets (flounder or halibut) cut into 1-inch pieces
1 can (12 ounces) whole kernel corn
1 cup drained, coarsely chopped tomatoes, fresh or canned
1/4 cup dry white wine (divided)
1 soup can of water
1/4 tsp. thyme
1/2 tsp. caraway seeds (optional)

In a Dutch oven, melt margarine and saute celery, garlic and onion until lightly browned and tender. If it becomes too dry, add two tablespoons of the wine.

Stir in the remaining ingredients, cover and cook over low heat for 10 minutes, or until the fish flakes easily with a fork. Makes 1-1/2 quarts or six cups.

Calories per cup, about 182. Cholesterol about 47 mgs.

Pasta Rodolfo

PASTA RING:

6 ounces thin spaghetti, broken into 1-inch lengths
1 pound ricotta cheese
1/2 cup egg substitute, well beaten
1/4 tsp. salt
2 Tbsp. Parmesan cheese, grated
Dash of pepper
Dash of nutmeg

Cook spaghetti according to package directions, following minimum cooking time. Stir together ricotta, well beaten egg substitute, cheese, pepper and nutmeg; fold in drained spaghetti. Pack into a well greased six-cup mold. Bake in a 375° oven for 40 to 45 minutes or until set. Turn out onto a heated platter and fill with sauce. Makes eight servings.

SAUCE:

1 pound ground beef
1/2 fresh mushrooms
1 small onion, chopped
1 jar (15-1/2 ounces) Spaghetti sauce
1/2 cup red or white wine
1 Tbsp. chopped parsley
1/4 tsp. basil
4 green onions with tops, very thinly sliced (garnish)

In a large skillet, brown ground beef and drain off excess fat. Add mushrooms and onion and continue to cook, stirring until onion is soft.

Stir in spaghetti sauce, wine, parsley and basil. Bring to a boil, reduce heat and simmer for 15 minutes or until thick and flavors are blended.

Pour into center of pasta ring. Sprinkle with the thinly sliced green onions. Makes eight servings.

Calories, about 318 per serving. Cholesterol, about 53 mgs.

Veal Stew Milanese

2-1/2 pounds boneless shoulder or shank of veal, trimmed of all fat
2 Tbsp. flour
1/4 tsp. pepper
1/2 tsp. salt
2 Tbsp. margarine
1 cup chopped leek or onion
1/2 cup finely diced celery
1/2 cup finely diced carrot
1/4 minced parsley
3/4 cup dry white wine
1 can (16 ounces) whole tomatoes

1 pkg. (10 ounces) frozen green peas
2 tsp. chopped yellow rind of lemon
1 small clove of garlic, chopped
1 Tbsp. parsley

Cut veal after it is trimmed, into 2-inch cubes. Shake in a mixture of flour, salt and pepper in a plastic bag, to coat evenly.

Heat margarine in a Dutch oven. Brown veal pieces on all sides, removing pieces as they brown. Saute leek, celery and carrot in same pan, until soft, about five minutes. Stir in parsley, basil and wine. Bring to boiling. Simmer uncovered, until slightly reduced, four minutes. Add veal and tomatoes and cover.

Bake in a preheated 325° oven for one hour and 45 minutes, or until meat is tender. Stir in peas. Bake five minutes longer, or just until peas are tender. Transfer to a serving bowl. Makes eight servings.

Calories, about 281 per serving. Cholesterol, about 104 mgs.

Toasted Parmesan

French Bread

Toast slices of bread under the broiler lightly on one side. Turn, spread with margarine and sprinkle with Parmesan cheese. Return to broiler until browned.

Orchids

Nearly 1,000 unique species of orchid grow in Madagascar, says National Geographic.

Accidents of nature create gems

By Vicki Moeser
Smithsonian News Service

It's about as big as a gem can be and still fit on a ring. The nearly 38-carat Chalk Emerald is said to have the ultimate color for such a gem — a brilliant, transparent green. While this emerald's history may not be as well known as the Hope Diamond's, there is a certain notoriety surrounding it just the same.

The emerald reputedly is one of a set of earrings worn by Cleopatra and was once the property of an Indian maharajah. More recently, it belonged to the wife of a Washington, D.C., financier, Mrs. O. Roy Chalk.

Several years ago, Chalk wore her emerald ring to a reception at the White House during a state visit by Britain's Queen Elizabeth II. Afraid her emerald might outshine the Queen's jewels, Chalk tactfully twisted the ring around her finger to hide the gem in her palm. Shortly after that episode, the emerald ring was donated to the Smithsonian Institution, where it now sits on display in the Hall of Gems at the National Museum of Natural History.

The Chalk Emerald is in good company. The legendary Hope Diamond, an extraordinary blue diamond weighing 45.5 carats, is nearby. So is the Logan Sapphire. Weighing 423 carats, the Logan is about the size of an extra-large hen's egg and one of the largest blue sapphires known to exist. Another neighbor is the Rosser Reeves Ruby, quite likely the world's finest star ruby.

According to John White, curator in charge of the National Gem Collection, "The Smithsonian's gem collection is probably the best publicly exhibited gem collection in the world." Aside from the crowd-gathering aspect, White says, "it's perfectly reasonable, and in fact traditional, for natural history museums to display gem collections, since gems are cut and polished bits of minerals.

"There are close to 9,000 pieces in the Smithsonian's gem collection," he says, "but they're not all on display. Typically, the most 'important' gems are on exhibition. In our case, that's about 2 percent of the collection."

White hastens to note, however, that the national collection of gems is not mainly jewelry. "The vast majority of exhibited gems are unset, faceted pieces that best illustrate the desirable characteristics of each type. Set gems are displayed only if the jewelry is historically important or its beauty is greatly enhanced by the setting."

The National Gem Collection celebrated its 100th anniversary in 1984. "But it wasn't until 1958 when the new gem and mineral hall opened that the collection experienced spectacular growth," White said.

That was also the year the Smithsonian received the Hope Diamond. The public's imagination was captivated and, shortly afterward, the institution received the Vetlesen collection of carved Chinese jade objects — one of the finest private collections of carved jade in existence. "Over the next few years," White says, "the gem collection grew from being merely a very fine public exhibit to one of great stature."

To Jeff Post, the Smithsonian's associate curator of mineralogy, gems are "the best crystals from different types of minerals. To be useful as a gem, a mineral must have characteristics such as beauty, brilliance, durability and rarity. The harder a gem is, the larger and more perfect the crystal, and the more intense its hue and tint, the more valuable the specimen."

There are about 3,000 different known minerals found in the Earth's crust, each a natural substance having a definite chemical composition and specific physical characteristics by which it can be distinguished from others. "Several hundred kinds of mineral species account for the most familiar minerals," Post says. "Of those, only a couple dozen, including quartz and feldspar, make up the vast majority of the Earth's crust. Fewer than a hundred mineral species are traditionally used as gems." Some gems, such as pearls, coral and amber, technically are not minerals; rather, they are derived from living organisms.

There are a number of reasons why most mineral crystals do not make good gemstones. "Some are too rare," Post explains. "Some minerals don't form nice crystals — they may either be very small or not very clear. Some minerals just aren't attractive. Others may be pretty, shiny and colorful but very soft, or the minerals may not cut easily or polish nicely — unlike the diamond, which has a lot of pizzazz."

A fine-quality diamond is widely regarded as a top-of-the-line gemstone, since it possesses — in abundance — the characteristics that determine value.

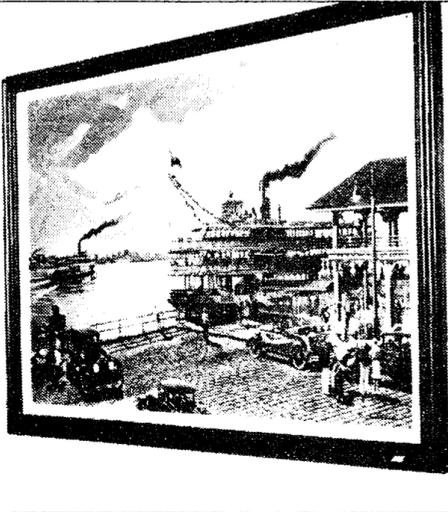

Japanese flower class scheduled

An additional session of the popular class, Ikebana: the ancient Japanese art of flower arranging, has been scheduled for Tuesday, May 12, from 12:30 to 2:30 p.m., at the War Memorial, 32 Lakeshore Rd., Grosse Pointe Farms.

Akiko Sherman will again demonstrate the elegant yet simple designs in the Sogetsu School style. Class fee is $10 per person. A supply list is available at the time of registration. For further information, call 881-7511, Monday through Saturday, 9 a.m. to 9 p.m.

Grosse Pointe artists

Artist Clarence Day Jr. and his wife Norma are clearly pleased that his painting, "Patterns in Winter," won the best traditional award during the 49th exhibition of the Grosse Pointe Artists Association. The event was held at the War Memorial this past weekend. Below, Jean and Henry Cornillie look over a painting by Paul Gillan, titled "Good Old Sumertime." It was awarded an honorable mention. Seventy-three works were entered in the annual event, which was judged by John VanHaven, the head of the art department at Eastern Michigan University.

O'Connor

Stick around, okay?

My sister Pat, 18, is probably the only high school senior north of Toledo who didn't go on a senior trip last month. Okay, so maybe that's a bit of an exaggeration, but her high school classmates who did head for Florida and other points south far outnumbered those who didn't.

When they got back to school last week, they spent a few days regaling others with tales of their high old times (no pun intended) on vacation. I, in turn, heard all about it from Pat. Seems the kids brought back lots of photos from their holidays, as well.

Naive old me wondered if my sister's classmates had gone to Disneyworld or Epcot, or maybe even stopped in at Busch Gardens. When Pat stopped laughing, she was able to tell me that her classmates had spent most of the 10-day break in various states of unconsciousness.

They even took pictures of their fun: refrigerators packed to the walls with beer and wine coolers. And they had plenty of fun vacation stories, too. About whole 24-hour periods they couldn't remember. About wondering how they drove from one of Florida's garden spots to another in one piece because they couldn't remember doing it. And about how they went for a week without eating anything but pizza because they wanted to make sure they had enough money for a beer run.

Pat, to her credit (although I'm sure some of her classmates think she's a wimp) didn't think too much of their stories. I'd like to believe that it was something in her upbringing that did it; actually, Pat is very pragmatic. She hates waste. It really bothered her to think that people went all that way and spent all that money just to get drunk ... and tan. I mean, if you're going all that way, you might as well take advantage of what Florida has to offer, right? A party store is a party store and when you're drunk, one motel room looks just like another. But there's only one Disneyworld, you know?

Anyway, I was kind of proud of my sister's attitude. You risk a lot when you cop that kind of stance at 18, in front of your peers. And she's no angel, either. She's managed to slip past me with a beer or two at family weddings. But she doesn't drive when she drinks and I don't think she ever sets out for an event with the idea that getting cockeyed drunk is the sole purpose of attending.

Why do I bring this up, you ask? Probably because I realized (while Pat was relating the above information to me with a look of incredulity on her face) that this is prom and graduation season. And, try as they might, the parent groups and student councils and folks-against-drunk driving aren't going to get through to everybody.

Somebody is going to go to a prom or to a graduation party with the intention of getting as drunk as possible in order that they might have the best time of their lives. And that really bothers me, you know?

In this job, I deal with kids a lot — in and out of sports. But I could write forever and still not

Retiring AD will leave rich legacy

By Peggy O'Connor
 Sports Editor

When South High Athletic Director Chuck Hollosy retires from his 35-year career in coaching, teaching and athletics on July 1, remaining behind will be a solid sports program, lots of fond memories and more than a few people who will miss him.

Hollosy's well-deserved retirement signals an end of an era, not only in Grosse Pointe, but on Detroit's east side, where he first made his mark as a successful high school basketball coach.

Hollosy was born in New Jersey and as a high school track star there, hoped for a college scholarship from Duke or Yale.

"But I tore a muscle in my leg in my senior year and I never heard a word from either school. So, I went to a school which took a chance on a runner with a bum leg," Hollosy recalls. That school was Eastern Michigan University, where Hollosy earned his Bachelor of Science degree in Physical Education — after taking time out from school to serve in the Pacific in World War II. He later received his Masters from the University of Michigan.

While at Austin Catholic Preparatory from 1952 to 1961, Hollosy coached the boys' varsity basketball teams to some of the most successful seasons in the school's history. The Detroit Free Press named him Coach of the Year in 1958 and following his career at Austin, he was admitted to the Catholic League Coaches' Hall of Fame.

Chuck Hollosy

coach. He was again chosen coach of the year in 1969, after his boys' team ran off a 17-1 record.

Hollosy took on full-time athletic director duties at South High in 1979.

"I've always been partial to coaching. In this (athletic directors' job, you have to deal with adults all of the time. I'd rather deal with kids, I enjoy working with them," Hollosy says. "But I'm at an age where I want to get out while I'm still healthy and can still move around," he adds, chuckling.

Hollosy says he's toyed with the idea of getting back into coaching on a part-time, volunteer basis, perhaps with ninth graders. "I've missed it," he confesses.

But first, he'll spend some time with his wife, Mary Ellen, their children and four grandchildren. "I think we'd like to travel a bit. We're not European jaunters, but we'd like to drift around this country a bit. There's a lot to see. We just want to do some unscheduled things.

"I've been sticking to a schedule for a long time and I'd like to live a while where I did things when I felt like it."

But Hollosy admits that he'd find it hard to sit still and do nothing. "I'm just not like that. I don't want to work, but I have to do something," he says.

Looking back, Hollosy has done a lot. His low-key approach has continued a standard set in South's athletic department many years ago. It is a style which both the community and outsiders have come to expect from South.

"We've had almost an Ivy League-type approach here. Let's face it, kids here are playing for the fun of it, not to get college scholarships or play in the pros. I remember when I came here and I ran into a kid who was a pretty good athlete. I told him I could try to help him get a scholarship and I remember him looking at me kind of funny and telling me that college was already taken care of.

"Then it hit me: kids in Grosse Pointe don't have to worry about playing sports to get an education. So you can give them a positive sports experience just for the fun of it," he says.

"If I had to tell my successor one thing what would it be? Probably that this is a great school system to work in. That the community is excellent in its support of the program and that the parents are bright and interested in their kids.

"That's half the battle."
NORTH ATHLETIC director Tom Gauerke has worked with his crosstown cohort since 1962, when they taught physical education together at Grosse Pointe High.

"Some schools have a reputation of a 'throw out the ball' philosophy towards sports. We agreed that that wasn't what physical education should be. And I think that South has a real sound physical education program ... Chuck Hollosy felt that there was more to the job than just talking basketball," Gauerke says.

"We've never had conflicts. Chuck is an extremely professional individual. In this business, you have to be flexible. If you are hard-nosed and unwilling to bend it will come back to haunt you.

"I think the basis for Chuck's success is his concern for kids. He wants what's best for the kids and that's that."

Sometimes, though, that sort of approach doesn't always sit well with the other people involved. And Hollosy has had to deal with that, too. "Say I've got a coach who made an error. Well, the parents involved want him fired. I have to sort of sit back and listen, then try to explain that we just

Things must be in order at the border

Boaters who enjoy an occasional jaunt to Canada to enjoy a pleasant repast at one of the lakeside eateries may find themselves faced with U.S. Customs problems when they try to return to the United States. And Canadian boaters visiting our shores may find the same customs officers waiting for them.

Difficulty with U.S. Customs stems from Public Law 99-272. That law enacted in 1986 and revised since then, established a user's fee to be assessed to those who used the U.S. Customs Service. The law was very broad and established fees that covered every aspect of the Customs Service, from commercial shipping to commercial aircraft; and from the railroad ferry to the recreational boater.

The portion of the law of particular interest to the recreational boater is the part that establishes a user's fee for pleasure boats 30 feet and larger. The fee helps defray the costs of having customs officials on duty for foreign boaters entering the U.S. clearing customs, as well as duty officers available for the returning American boaters.

The law went into effect in July 1986. It was not enforced locally and only a partial fee was assessed. However, 1987 promises to be a different situation altogether.

"Customs officers will not be stationed in each and every marina, but they will be visible," said Inspector Reary, of the Detroit Customs Office. "Boaters need to be aware that they could have trouble if they do not comply with this law. They are responsible," he added.

"This will be our first full year of operation under the new law. Our department will be enforcing it as rigorously as manpower constraints will allow us. We have been spot-checking in marinas for the last few years. This year, we will be working with the Coast Guard and hope to do a more thorough job," Reary said.

In order to be in compliance with this law, owners of private pleasure craft 30 feet and larger will be required to purchase a decal that must be placed in a conspicuous place on the vessel. The decal will be similar to the ones issued by the state which are affixed to the boat near the registration numbers. "It will be a peel-off type decal, with a gummy backing," Inspector Reary said. "It is similar to the ones the state uses and boaters are already familiar with. They should put it some place where it can be very easily seen."

Failure to purchase the decal could result in seizure of the vessel, issuance of a summons to appear before a federal magistrate, or at the very least, a warning to purchase the decal the next day.

Inspector Reary said he doesn't want people to panic if they forget about the decal, go out for a boat ride and wind up in one of the Canadian restaurants on the Detroit River or Lake St. Clair... and try to re-enter the U.S. and are stopped by customs and asked about the decal. "Each officer decides what course of action he will take, but if we think it is a simple oversight, we'll probably issue a warning and insist the decal be purchased the next day," he said.

"But don't get caught twice."

The Inspector further emphasized that the user fee is only for boats which have landed in Canada and are returning to the U.S., as well as Canadian vessels visiting the U.S. Reary didn't want to give away any trade secrets, but said "We know if you have been in Canada and the Canadian Customs people know when Canadians have been here."

The user fee does not apply to boats which have been anchored in Canadian waters for fishing, for example. Nor does it apply to guests on board. (But they'd better have their I-68s — more about that in a later column).

The decal cost is $25. It is valid for one calendar year and can be purchased in person or by mail at: The McNamara Building, Cashier's Cage, 477 Michigan Ave., Detroit, Mich., 48226.

Include a copy of your registration because it contains all the information needed to issue the decal. Be specific if you apply by mail; remember that you want the user fee decal for private vessels and if your vessel is under 30 feet, you are exempt and don't need one at all.

can't do that. People make errors. That's one of the hardest things about this job: dealing with errors people make. Especially if someone gets hurt.

"You have to kind of minimize the damage, correct the error and then serve as a mediator. Sometimes that's hard, but you have to be able to swing with what's happening. You can't program yourself. I feel sorry for kids who program their lives. I sure didn't. I was going to be a runner and then I was going to coach football and track.

"Well, I didn't get to be a runner and I wound up coaching basketball and doing very well. You just have to be able to roll with it."

Hollosy has done that, despite the number of changes he's seen over the years... not all of which he enjoyed.

"I guess I get a little concerned with the looseness and carelessness of today from every aspect of life from eating habits to morality... and coaching is different, too.

Little League season opens

The 1987 Little League season opened in Grosse Pointe last weekend, with plenty of action all around the community. Following are the results submitted Monday to the Grosse Pointe News:

In the Park Majors, the White Sox shut out the Orioles, 9-0. Fritz Coyro pitched a one-hitter, striking out 10 and walking just three for the Sox. He also chipped in at the plate with two hits in three at-bats — including a home run and a double for five RBI.

Andy Bramlage also went two-for-three with a homer and a single for three RBI. Joey Michael, Scott Lupo and John Prom pitched for the Orioles.

In the Farms-City AAA League, the Cubs opened the season with a narrow, 6-5 victory over the Padres. Tom Veda and Matt Dakko each homered. Leading the Cubs was Bo Dossin, with a triple. Nate Kuhl and Galen Dossin were outstanding on the mound for the Cubs, and Jason Santo (catcher) and Veda contributed fine defense. Veda made a spectacular catch of a Padre line drive to save the game.

For the Padres, Nate Smith pitched well; Dave Tipple went three-for-three, including a triple. James Robinson was outstanding behind the plate. Alan Leitch stole home in the first inning for the Padres' first run of the season.

The Grosse Pointe News is happy to publish results of Grosse Pointe Little League games. Deadline is 9 a.m. Monday — no exceptions. Copy should be typed or printed, and should include the names of the teams, the league, the final score and a paragraph or two about the game. be able to sway every single one of those kids who think that way. I could stand at the door of every prom, every party, and try to persuade kids not to drink. But I couldn't do it.

People are going to drink. Heck, I drink sometimes. I drink at parties and weddings and occasionally, while watching hockey games on big screens in bars. But you know what? I don't drink as the sole purpose of my outing. And I don't drive when I've been drinking.

I've read too many horrible stories about people who did. I've seen smashed up cars and torn up bodies and ruined lives because people did. And all I can think of when I hear stories like the ones my sister Pat told me is this: Drinking and getting drunk and not remembering what you said or did and then bragging about the whole thing isn't the best time of your life.

The best time of your life is playing a doubleheader on a sunny Saturday in May. And looking at your prom photos and laughing about how silly your boyfriend looked in his tux. And buying stuff for your very first dorm room. And meeting your college football coach for the first time. And graduating. And planning and hoping for long, happy, successful lives. All the stuff that you just might miss while you are outdrinking your friends enroute to the "best time" you've ever had.

Do me a favor, okay? Skip it just this once and stick around for the really good stuff. I promise you it'll be worth it.

will remain in his post as head of South's physical education department.

"The AD's job is somewhat attractive to me... being able to follow someone as organized as Chuck as been is what makes it so attractive," Hepner said.

The veteran grid coach said he made the decision to leave his coaching duties in part because of Hollosy's retirement. "Chuck hired me and I've had so many good years here. But I felt that I'd carry out my coaching duties until Chuck decided to leave. Also, I've got a daughter, 9, and a boy, 12, who are very involved in sports. I'd like to have some time to enjoy their activities," Hepner explained.

"Sure, I'll miss it. But I've thought about leaving for the last couple of seasons and I think I'm ready to go. Then again, that's easy to say now... I'm sure I'll feel a twinge or two when it's time to put the pads on this summer," he added with a laugh.

Hepner said that the loyalty of his coaching staff and the strength of South's program will probably be the memories was to jump when the coach said jump. It's so much more difficult now because of the time schedules. When I coached, practice was over at 5:30 then the coach would get in with the kids and shoot baskets and horse around.

"Now there's a demand for that gym space and the coach has to tell the kids to go home as soon as practice is over. I'm not sure I could deal with that now."

That sort of closeness that coaches could develop with their players years ago is one of the fondest memories of Hollosy's career. He talks about the time some former players showed up at his home during Christmas break and spent a Friday evening with Chuck and his family.

"You know guys 21 or 22 have better things to do on a Friday night than spend it with us. But they chose to spend it with us. That kind of warmth, those interpersonal relationships with the kids I dealt with; that's what I'll always remember."

Chances are, he won't be the only one.

Arts degree from Olivet College and holds a masters in education from Wayne State University.

"He's an excellent coach," Hepner said. "He's really handled the entire defense for the last 12 years."

According to school system officials, the deadline for applications has passed and interviews for the athletic director's position will begin as soon as possible. There is no timetable for the appointment.

'Big inning' takes Blue Devils to first place in EML

Grosse Pointe South's varsity baseball team exploded for the "big inning" in a pair of games last week, registering victories over Port Huron Northern, 14-3, and L'Anse Creuse North, 10-4.

Coach Dan Griesbaum's charges now boast a 4-1 Eastern Michigan League record, which puts them in first place by one-half game. South's overall record is 10-3.

The Devils came up with nine runs on just two hits in the first inning against Northern. But four walks and five Huskie errors helped South put the game away early. Marcus Wysocki went the first five innings on the mound and gained his fourth straight victory. He struck out eight and gave up just three hits and three walks. Doug Lucas pitched the final two innings.

Lucas and Sean Bruce each notched a single and a double for the winners; Lucas' blows drove in two runs. Wysocki, Marty Saad and Mark Carl also had doubles for South.

The Blue Devils staged a seven-run sixth inning rally to overcome a 4-3 deficit in their decision over L'Anse Creuse North. Tim Nugent tripled and homered to drive in three runs to pace the Devils at the plate. Saad went three-for-four, Mike Paul had two RBI and Lucas and Dave Arnold collected doubles for the winners. Bruce's triple produced the go-ahead run in the sixth.

John Joliet (3-1) was the winning pitcher. He went the distance, yielding seven hits and four walks and striking out seven batters.

South travels to Anchor Bay for a 4 p.m. contest on May 8. On Saturday, the Devils will participate in a round-robin tournament at Fraser, along with North, Roseville and the host team Fraser. The Devils will play North at 10 a.m., face Roseville at noon and tangle with Fraser at 2:30 p.m. On Monday, May 11, South travels to East Detroit for a 4 p.m. doubleheader.

and Tedesco in the 3200, the 400 relay team of Nicole Tocco, Julie Burke, Uthappa and Lee, and the 1600 relay team of Song, Berger, Burke and Uthappa. Traci Lee also took second overall in the 100 dash and DeMercurio was second in the 300 hurdles.

The win over LCN featured many fine performances, including a first place finish in the 400 dash by Sarah McCabe. McCabe then came back to anchor South's winning 1600 relay with teammates Therese Zanglin, Laura Grego and Amy Albrecht. Others placing for South were Jenny McSorley, Debbie Solterisch, Tara Lulis, Beth Hoye, Kelly Hackathorn, Linda Tinkey, Elizabeth Lazarowitz, Cindy Mello and Rebecca Wasinger.

This week, South faced Anchor Bay (after press time) and will host Mount Clemens at 4 p.m. today, May 7. The girls will compete in the Troy Athens Relays this Saturday, May 9.

Kickers win three

South's varsity soccer team is on a roll after winning three games in three tries last week. The Blue Devils topped rival North, 4-0, on April 28; they beat East Detroit, 11-1, on April 29; and on May 2, South trounced Detroit Country Day, 9-1.

Against North, senior Kim Wood led the offense with three goals. Jennifer Smith had the other goal. Sarah Dow notched a pair of assists; Smith had the other assist.

"It was a good game, but I think North was missing three of its top players," said coach John Case. "I was pleased with our defense."

The next day, South bombed Eastern Michigan League foe East Detroit, 11-1. Wood again led the scoring with five goals; Dow had three and Katie Finazzo, Racquel Chapin and Amy Hawkins had one apiece. Casey Steffes set up four goals; other assists went to Wood and Dow (two each). Jennifer Standish and Mary Lou Stone. In that game, the Shamrocks were awarded a penalty kick as time ran out. Goalie Hawkins stopped the penalty shot, then was forced to make another fine stop when the referee called for a second kick.

South senior Kim Wood scored three goals against the Lady Norsemen in South's 4-0 win last week.

Dow was the scoring star on Saturday against Country Day. She had three goals and was helped on offense by goal-scorers Wood (two), Standish, Steffes, Finazzo and Chapin. Stone, Standish, Dow and Wood each had two asists and Steffes had one for South's potent attack.

Volleyball tryouts

Macomb Community College's athletic department will be conducting tryouts Sunday, May 17, for women who would like to play on the varsity volleyball team this fall.

Those interested should contact head coach Robert Hill at 268-4700 or 784-5876, or sports information director Diane Choma at 445-7208 for information regarding times and location.

Erin Kershaw, South's senior track co-captain, leads off a winning 400 meter relay in action against L'Anse Creuse North. South's girls remain unbeaten at 5-0.

Tracksters unbeaten

South's girls' track team remained undefeated and atop the EML after a successful week that included a 101-27 win over L'Anse Creuse North and a 65-63 victory over Port Huron Northern.

South also finished third overall in the Sterling Heights Invitational, which featured several of the Detroit area's top teams. Sophomores Traci Lee and Laura DeMercurio took first place finishes in the 200 meter dash and 100 meter hurdles, respectively. Both performances established meet records.

Other medal winners in that meet were Darrin Grelling in the discus, Lucia Bridenstine in the high jump, Kellie Buchanan in the shot, Erin Kershaw in the hurdles and the 3200 meter relay team of Toni Tedesco, Vicki Groustra, Wendy Berger and Micha Song. Also taking home medals were Megan Smucker and Song in the 1600 run, Reba Uthappa in the 400 dash, Berger in the 800 run, Ann Llewellyn

Regalado breaks strikeout mark as North wins two

Grosse Pointe North's varsity baseball team won its third consecutive Alpena Tournament last week, in a two-game, seesaw battle that featured a record-breaking pitching performance by hurler Rick Regalado.

"I told the kids: you're going to kill me with having to come back to win like that," said North coach Frank Sumner. "But I'll take the wins. It sure made for a nice ride back home."

In the first game of the tournament, North broke open a 2-2 tie with Bay City Handy High with three runs in the fourth on consecutive hits by Rob Marshall and Mike Miller. After Handy took a 5-4 lead in the fifth, North added two more on Regalado's double and a Dave Kopitzke single.

But Handy scored one in the sixth and four in the seventh to take a 9-7 lead. Miller's two-run single tied it up for the Norsemen in the seventh, but Handy still wasn't through. They tied took an 11-9 lead in the top of the eighth. The Norsemen battled back again, loading the bases in the bottom of the inning. And Kopitzke ended it with a three-run triple to give the Norsemen the win. Pitcher Eddie Wood got the victory; he pitched one and one-third inning, striking out all four men he faced.

In the championship game against Alpena, the host team scored two runs in the first inning, but North answered with two runs on Chuck Thomas' double and Miller's home run in the first. The Norsemen took a lead in the third, thanks to an RBI-single by Pete Kilcline. Alpena tied it up in the fourth, 3-3, then added two runs in the seventh to take a 5-3 lead.

The Norsemen (designated the home team by virtue of a coin flip) tied it in the bottom of the seventh after Regalado was safe on a fielder's choice and Miller hit a run-scoring double. Alpena again came back, scoring one run to take a 6-5 lead, but Jack Williams' lead-off single was followed by a Russ Rice sacrifice bunt and a two-run homer by Kopitzke to give the Norsemen the tournament championship, 7-6.

Regalado went all the way on the mound, upping his record to 3-0. He also struck out 19 batters, breaking the old record of 18 set by Bill Babcock in 1980.

Kopitzke was named tournament MVP; he had six hits, scored five runs and had nine RBI.

Earlier in the week, North took its first Bi-County League win of the year, beating Lakeview, 9-8. It was senior Mike Miller's day at the park, going four-for-four at the plate, including two doubles, a triple and a home run for a total of six RBI. Williams had three hits for the Norsemen.

The squad faces L'Anse Creuse tomorrow, May 8, at 4 p.m.

A softball loss

North's softball team was overpowered by a hard-hitting East Detroit squad, 15-1, on April 15.

Mary Lex scored North's only run after her infield hit accounted for North's lone scoring threat. Lex also pitched a scoreless inning.

The girls travel to L'Anse Creuse for a 4 p.m. game on May 8.

Kickers split

North's varsity soccer team split a pair of contests last week, losing to crosstown rival South, but coming back to defeat Warren Fitzgerald.

The Norsemen were unable to break South's defense, falling 4-0 on April 28. But the squad bounced back to destroy league rival Fitzgerald, 6-1. Shanna Sine and Christy Mack had three goals apiece to lead the Lady Norsemen.

The JV soccer team saw its string of victories end on April 28 with a 4-2 loss to South. Christy Mack and Carrie Werschki had one goal each.

The JV rolled to an 8-0 victory over Bloomfield Hills Andover on April 30. They face Detroit Country Day at home, today, May 7.

Netters fall

North's varsity tennis team finished a disappointing eighth in the eight-team Ann Arbor Huron Tournament on April 25.

Fit

What's average?

Do you want to be an "average" American? Below average? Above average? Or don't you really give a hoot?

I don't like averages and I don't like norms. Furthermore, I never wanted to be "average". The full range of what the population can accomplish in terms of norms is considerable. It occurred to me during the Cottage Hospital Walk/Run while passing out water at the two-mile mark.

None of the people entered in the race would be considered average... since they were doing something for their fitness and 80 percent of the population is not!

The differences among this non-average group were numerous. The first component of runners were the "tigers." They had calculated just how long it would take them to run this 3.1 mile race and they were out to win awards, top honors.

The second group consisted of those running a good pace; they would be considered "fit." They, too, earned awards.

Then came those who really needed the water. They were listening to their bodies and drinking water as needed. It's difficult to go a distance of three miles, whether you're walking, jogging or running, and all of the participants are to be congratulated... even the man who smoked while he walked.

I hope this was a new beginning for many, a new start to get into fitness or to push a little harder. Congratulations to the 67-year-old grandmother of 14 who won a medal. Isn't that an incentive? Best of all were the parents walking, jogging and encouraging their children.

What better way than to set an example? If you are interested in your children's fitness, it's a sure bet that you are helping them in other areas of their development.

Walkers did a fantastic job. Isn't it great to be alive and well and aware of our bodies and be able to use them?

So what is average? I can tell you one thing for certain: if you don't stay active, you will be an average statistic. Your weight will remain the same, but your percentage of body fat will increase. The statistics are: people of standard weight who maintain their same weight as they grow older still gain fat and lose muscle tissue.

For example, a person who weighs 160 pounds at age 20 has 16 pounds of fat (10.3 percent) and 144 pounds of everything else (bones, muscles, organs, etc.). But at age 55, this same person who still weighs 160 pounds, has 40 pounds of fat (25 percent) and 120 pounds of everything else. This deterioration does not have to happen. Excess body fat is now considered to be one of the factors in cancer, diabetes, high blood pressure and heart disease.

Even at age 25, the typical American has lost 3 percent of his total body weight in muscle tissue and replaced it with a corresponding increase in percentage of body fat. This is for those who maintain their weight. What about those who gain weight as they grow older and become inactive? No wonder the norms are horrendous.

Don't be a norm, don't be average. Be a star. Love yourself. The law of life is movement... so move!

Tofu!

People everywhere are discovering what the Chinese found out 2,000 years ago: Tofu is a superior source of protein, vitamins and minerals. This incredible, versatile product provides complete protein to those who wish to restrict their diets from a meat-eating regimen (such as vegetarians) or those who want to reduce saturated fat and cholesterol.

What is tofu and where did it come from? Tofu is a vegetable product made from soybeans, soy milk and water. For people who have trouble digesting soy products, crude fiber and water-soluble carbohydrates are removed from the soybeans during processing and the resulting curd — tofu — is made. This product is an excellent choice for those with special digestive needs. Tofu, eaten throughout the day, may also help stabilize a fluctuating blood sugar level.

Because it is made from soy, tofu contains no saturated fat and no cholesterol. Rich in vitamins and minerals, this product provides as much calcium as milk, helping those who must restrict their intake of dairy products or who have lactose allergies.

Tofu contains the eight essential amino acids that classify it as a complete protein. Although other protein sources may also contain these amino acids, tofu does so with about one-third the calories. The versatility and convenience are the best reasons to use it. Because tofu has the unique quality of taking on the taste of whatever it is combined with, it can be used as a substitute for meat or cheese.

There are some guidelines you need to follow, but preparing and caring for tofu needn't be a hardship. Once opened, tofu should be rinsed, excess water pressed out (place it between paper towels and

She is a student in the Oakland Community College exercise physiology program and while she works with special needs groups like recovering cocaine addicts and cardiac patients, her favorites are the women in the pre- and post-natal classes.

"When I walk in and see those beautiful little babies, even if I'm having a rotten day, I feel great. Who wouldn't with a class full of little cuties like these?" Merrifield says with a smile.

Both the pre- and post-natal classes meet twice weekly for 45 minutes per session. The post-natal session lasts 10 weeks, the pre-natal for five. Pregnant women may begin the program any time after their third month (with doctor's permission) and stay in the class as long as they wish. And women in the post-natal class are welcome to attend until their babies reach 6 months of age.

"That's the neat thing about these classes: that these women meet each other in the pre-natal class and develop relationships which carry them through. When you can go and find out that other women feel the same way you do, physically and mentally, and you can discuss similar situations, that's special," Merrifield says.

"It's hard for new mothers because many times they assume that they'll be the same as they were before they were pregnant. And they're not. It helps to find out that there are others like you."

The pre-natal class incorporates stretching, limbering and strengthening moves to energize and tone muscles. It also includes deep relaxation techniques. It is a very low-impact class which is comfortable for most women right up until they deliver. In fact, in attendance at the April 29 class was a woman scheduled to deliver her baby on May 2.

"They must, of course, have their doctor's permission. And if they are uncomfortable at any time, we encourage them to slow down and stop. Our biggest concern is to keep their heart rates down. A lot of moms who are used to aerobics come in and want to work out like they did before they got pregnant. They can't because the baby can't take the heat... mom can sweat but baby can't. So we have to keep that core temperature down," Merrifield explains.

Pregnancy is not a time to build up, so the class goal is to maintain fitness as much as possible and keep the women comfortable. Many women find the stretching exercises to be helpful in reducing back pain and strain which often accompany pregnancy.

The time to work toward getting back in shape is in the post-natal class, where exercises are geared toward developing upper body strength and toning those areas of the body most affected by pregnancy: abdomen, buttocks and thighs. New mothers are welcome to bring their babies, who are included in the workouts by means of massage and stretching techniques.

Jane Zinkand, a recent "graduate" of the pre-natal class, stops by to visit the post-natal group — nine days after delivering her son

Any leftover chunks should be covered with fresh water and refrigerated in a sealed container. The water should be changed daily and the tofu used within four to five days.

Freezing the tofu will give it an interesting, spongy texture. If you purchase the tofu which is packaged in a plastic bowl, drain the water and wrap the tofu in layers of plastic wrap. Tofu packaged in a sealed box, such as Mori-Nu-Tofu, can be frozen in the original container.

Leave the tofu in the freezer for at least two days, then allow it to defrost at room temperature. Take it to the sink and wring out the excess moisture like wringing a sponge. Next, tear the tofu into chunks, saute lightly and add to sloppy joes, spaghetti or other hearty recipes as your source of protein.

Freshness is the key to success with tofu. People who have had a negative experience with tofu have likely not had a fresh product. When purchasing the tofu, don't hesitate to ask the seller about the freshness of the product.

Recently, the Mori-Nu Tofu Company developed a revolutionary "aseptic" packaging process that guarantees freshness every time. Because of by Caesarean section. "I never would have been up and around so soon if it wasn't for the exercise class. I went to class the whole nine months; Nancy even told me what exercises I should do with the C-section. I did them and I feel pretty good," she said.

The post-natal class is relaxed and informal. If the babies cry while their moms are working out, Merrifield will pick them up one at a time and carry them around with her while she leads the exercises. "I think that sometimes, the mothers try to get the babies to cry when its time for push-ups so they won't have to do them," she says with a laugh. "But it won't work. I'm on to them."

The new mothers who attend the class are unanimous in their support for the War Memorial's offering. "I wouldn't be able to go if this class wasn't offered," said Peggy Rettof. "I just wouldn't want to leave a newborn even with the babysitters they have at the exercise studio."

Shelly Gillette King has been attending the post-natal class since 7-month-old Kelly Marie was just a few weeks old. "I gained too much weight during because of this class. "Nancy's great and I can't say enough about the class, but Kelly's too old now for me to keep coming and I'd like to see the War Memorial offer a class at the next level."

"I really think there's a need for it."

Merrifield agrees that a class like that is definitely a necessity. She enjoys working with the mothers and their babies and watching a definite relationship grow between the mothers, who worry when their fellow classmates fail to show up for a class or two and sign congratulations cards when their friends from the pre-natal class deliver their children.

"The next step is to have a low-impact program for new mothers. We have one at the studio, but the moms would like one here so they could continue to bring the babies."

"Sure, I'd love to teach it. That's a personal goal of mine: To have the moms and babies be fit for life. And I'd like to help them."

'Creepshow II' is trashy, irresistible fun from King/Romero

By Michael Chapp
Special Writer

"Creepshow II" breaks just about every rule of good cinema in the book. It cuts corners to save money, it has a very predictable and corny script and it has absolutely no redeeming value.

But darn it all if this little creature feature doesn't bring back some of the old-time fun of going to the movies. Give credit to Stephen King, George A. Romero and Michael Gornick. As story creator, screenwriter and director respectively, these three horror-meisters may not know how to make an artistically sound film, but they sure do know how to make an entertaining one.

This film, like the 1982 "Creepshow," is a compilation of short stories. There are three live-action tales this time (instead of five), plus an animated epilogue at the end. Though none of the stories here are as horridly satisfying as those in the first picture, each has its own charm.

First up is "Old Chief Wood'n Head," starring George Kennedy and Dorothy Lamour as a married couple who run a general store in a tumbleweed town — a town where the only people left are those who have fallen on hard times, and therefore are unable to pay their bills. When a young group of hoodlums rob the store, Old Chief Wood'n Head, a friend of the couple, is none too happy.

He takes matters into his own hands and straightens the boys out. Sound routine? Old Chief Wood'n Head is a statue that stands in front of the store.

Just when you thought it was safe to go back in the water, the second yarn is spun. In this one, a group of teenagers get stranded on a swimming raft when a slimy mass surrounds them. What they initially think is an oil slick eventually turns out to be a very viscous — and extremely hungry — monster. Here too, there is a perverse sort of justice served. And if you look closely enough, there's probably a lesson to be learned.

And finally, the movie presents a hitchhiker story to end all hitchhiker stories. A woman leaving the home of her extra-marital lover accidentally hits and kills a hitchhiker on the road. That's bad enough. But then the hitchhiker, a very grateful type, keeps popping up to thank her for the ride she gave him on the hood of her car. Both the woman and the hitchhiker are in pretty bad shape by the end of the segment.

If there's anything the three stories have in common, it's a theme of comeuppance for wrongdoing. The boys in the first segment were troublemakers, the teens in the second story were trespassing and the woman in the third tale was having an affair. Perhaps the movie is trying to take a different approach to teaching morality?

That's not likely. Indeed, the only aspiration of "Creepshow II" is to entertain the audience at any cost. If that means inserting happen... well, that just adds to the fun, right?

You bet your funnybone. This is not a children's movie, despite the comic-book approach it uses in its narration. There's plenty of blood and guts, none of which will be too much for even the most queasy adults, but all of which is probably more than young ones will be able to handle.

"Creepshow II" is the kind of horrible trash your parents warned you about. It's the kind of trash you will warn your children about. Funny thing though: Despite the generations of warnings, this kind of material is still irresistible when you're in the mood for fun.

My Demon Lover' spoofs monster movies

By Marian Trainor
Special Writer

Fairy tales are not usually considered adult fare, but in "My Demon Lover," director Charles Loventhal and screenwriter Leslie Ray have concocted a film that has all the elements of those childhood favorites.

There is a handsome young man who is under an evil spell; a lovely young girl who falls in love with him despite his unconventional manner and appearance, and a storybook ending in which the young man is released from his spell and boy and girl supposedly live happy ever after.

The film, however, is not quite as innocent as the traditional Grimm. It is a thoroughly modern comedy laced with horror, sex and special effects to give it zip.

The hero is Kaz (Scott Valentine) a shaggy-haired and disheveled but wildly attractive character with mesmerizing eyes, boundless energy and a charming, carefree manner. He roams the streets of Greenwich Village, the opposite sex. The only way he can be released from it is by performing some heroic deed.

Kaz struggles to control it but every once in a while it gets out of hand with dire results. It is a worrisome situation and becomes more so when he meets Denny (Michelle Little) in a health food restaurant.

Denny is as cute as they come and quite an individual herself. Kaz may be a free spirit but she is a blithe spirit. She thinks Kaz is wonderful and he is quite taken by her. Feeling as he does, he lives in dread that he will spoil their friendly relationship by getting too close to her and turning into a monster before her eyes.

In his portrayal of the unfortunate Kaz, Valentine is called upon to assume the guise of not one demon but many different ones. Each time he assumes a different voice and mannerism to match whatever demon has taken possession of him.

From the time Little appears on the screen wearing a bowler hat and jauntily carrying a long loaf of French bread until the end of the film, she lights up the screen with her elfin charm and disarming smile. She is reminiscent of a young Goldie Hawn.

"My Demon Lover" is a mixture of comedy, suspense and horror, but the most prominent motif remains that of the fairy tale. It's not to be taken seriously but enjoyed instead for its nonsense and humor. Forget reality. Forget logic and have fun watching a tongue-in-cheek spoof of monster movies in general.

About this singing, dancing plant with the big appetite . . .

By Michael Chapp
Special Writer

There's plenty to like about "Little Shop of Horrors." There's a wonderful cast, good music and an interesting storyline. But even if those things don't suit your fancy, there's an irresistible plant named Audrey II waiting to steal the show. This plant, if you'll pardon the expression, really grows on you. And it's the plant that makes "Shop" more than just an average stage presentation.

"Little Shop of Horrors," originally a 1960 film by Roger Corman, has been running on stage off-Broadway for five years. Last December, Frank Oz brought the show back to the big screen in a large-scale remake of the movie starring Steve Martin and Rick Moranis. The film was able to do many things that the stage does not allow.

But most of these things will not be missed in the current production of "Shop," running through May 31 at the Birmingham Theatre. The production, directed by Victor Valentine, keeps intact all the good-natured, tongue-in-cheek fun that makes the story something to be cherished.

Theater

Still around for the fun is Seymour Krelborn (Stuart Zagnit), the somewhat-less-than-macho assistant at Mushnik's Skid Row Flower Shop. Seymour is the man responsible for all the excitement. Finding a bizarre looking plant resembling a Venus Flytrap, he brings it back to the flower shop with the hope of stimulating business. As things turn out, the presence of the plant brings about much more dire consequences.

Still around for the craziness is Audrey (Marsha Waterbury), the flower shop assistant with great intentions and a good heart, but not much to offer in the intellect department. Audrey is the object of Seymour's emotional desire and the plant's voracious appetite. In fact, everybody is the object of the plant's incredible appetite.

And that, of course, is where the difficulties begin. One can imagine the problems caused by a plant with intentions of world domination. First it convinces Seymour to kill Audrey's sadistic boyfriend Orin Scrivello (Peter Edmund Haydu). And it only gets worse from there.

Worse for the characters, that is. Better for the audience, which will delight to everything the plant says and does. Imagine, before long, you will believe this plant is alive. It dances with the precision of Fred Astaire and it sings with the emotional soul of James Brown. When the plant bursts into the signature piece, "Feed Me," it's hard not to take this big green piece of horticulture seriously. Give credit to Jonas Cole, who provides the manipulation of the plant, and James Stovall, who provides the voice. Their work is exceptional, and complements the very credible work done by the rest of the cast.

All are in fine voice for the show, especially the three-member chorus (LaTonya Sue Welch, Angela Hall and Kimberly Harris) who function as a ubiquitous voice of reason for other characters very much in need of such. They hit their notes with precision. As does the rest of the cast.

The staging and choreography are noteworthy, if only because the play manages to maintain a balance throughout, even though there's a giant plant at the center of the stage. We don't feel overwhelmed by anything happening until we're supposed to. The romantic songs are romantic and the full-cast songs, such as the hilarious "Skid Row," are played with a remarkably natural feel.

Granted, "Little Shop of Horrors" is not "Death of A Salesman." There's not a whole lot to say in terms of characterization or plot development or any of the other conventional theater-type elements. But "Shop" is anything but conventional. It's a play written to be audience-pleasure. And it stops at nothing short of complete lunacy to accomplish this.

It should be obvious that a play about a giant plant does not take itself too seriously. Audiences who share such a mindset will find nothing but joy in this "Little Shop of Horrors."

DSO program features debuts

The Detroit Symphony presents a program featuring two debuts at its concerts on May 7, 8 and 9. Music Director Gunther Herbig conducts the orchestra in its first performance of contemporary Polish composer Witold Lutoslawski's Livre pour Orchestre, and Canadian soprano Edith Wiens makes her first appearance with the orchestra.

Edith Wiens performs in operas, solo recitals, and orchestral engagements around the world. She is known for her interpretations of the works of Bach, Haydn, Mozart, Mendelssohn, Schumann, Brahms and Mahler. She will perform Mahler's "Rueckert-Lieder" with the Detroit Symphony.

Lutoslawski's composition, Livre pour Orchestre ("book for orchestra") is a lively and unique work that is divided into four "chapters" separated by very brief interludes played ad libitum by the orchestra. It is considered one of his most successful orchestral pieces.

Also included on the program is an audience favorite, Schumann's Symphony No. 1, the Spring symphony.

Tickets are available at the Ford Auditorium box office (567-1400) and at Hudson's and Ticketmaster outlets.

Art fair

The seventh annual Mount Clemens Art Fair will be held Friday, May 8, from 10 a.m. until 8 p.m. and Saturday, May 9, from 10 a.m. until 4 p.m.

More than 75 artists will participate, according to Mary Large, co-chairman of the event. Pottery, oil and watercolor paintings, weaving, stained glass, baskets, original crafts, jewelry, photography and ceramic tile will be featured.

The artists will be located on Macomb Place, an outdoor shopping plaza located just west of Gratiot at Walnut and Macomb streets.

SOSAD play is fundraiser

The group of parents, concerned citizens and friends of all the children slain in Detroit, organized under the name "SOSAD," will present a play titled "When Mama Cries . . . Why?" on Mother's Day, Sunday, May 10, at 4 p.m. at the Latin Quarter, 3067 East Grand Blvd. (near Woodward). The one-act play, written and directed by Detroit P.C. Jenkins, will be a fund raiser for "SOSAD." Ticket prices, which include a complete sit-down dinner, are $25 each. Students, senior citizens and the unemployed may purchase $10 tickets and a number of tickets have been reserved for corporations at $100 each. Reservations and more information may be obtained by calling "SOSAD" at 345-2700.

STATE SCARLET
by David Aaron

STATE SCARLET is a very satisfying novel for those who read "thrillers" regularly, and it is a good book from the genre for those who don't usually like the intrigue-spy-cliff hanging type of book.

With enough convolutions to satisfy those who regularly feast on this type of story, the author of STATE SCARLET has allowed those who usually read other types of novels to enjoy without becoming confused.

The story involves a fanatic who has stolen an atomic weapon, and who threatens to destroy the NATO alliance unless the U.S. removes all of its weapons from European soil. We watch the inner workings of the National Security Council, the Soviet Chairman and his staff, and the U.S. nuclear defense establishment, and we become privy to the attempts of the President and his staff to conclude the crisis without (or with) a world war. STATE SCARLET handles all of these without mass confusion, while working with several "cliffs" from which we readily hang.

Liggett kickers devastate Kingswood, now ranked No. 4

The University Liggett School girls' varsity soccer team continued its march to the top of Class B-C-D with three strong performances this last week.

On April 28, the Lady Knights decimated Kingswood School, 10-1, behind Laurie Khelokian's four goals. Five other players shared in the goal scoring: Shelly Tibbitts, Sarah Haggarty, Meghan Brady, Lynne Connor and Lexi Lepard. On April 30, ULS continued to wear down the opposition with an overpowering offense. This time, Khelokian scored three, as did Connor. Khelokian's were her 19th, 20th and 21st of the season. Other goalscorers were Beth Birgbauer, Brady and Tibbitts.

On Saturday, May 2, ULS faced its toughest opponent to date, rival Grosse Pointe North High School. North, with only one loss on its record, presented an incredible defense which eventually shut down the ULS offense.

The Lady Knights did manage to score the game's first goal early in the contest when midfielder Cindy Paul scored her third of the season on a chip shot that eluded the North goalkeeper.

Later in the first half, the North center forward slipped behind the ULS defense and scored the tying goal. In the second half, both teams had scoring opportunities but failed to capitalize. Both defenses were superb. North's goal was only the second goal scored against the ULS defense in the last five games. Standouts on May 2 were Paul, Tibbitts, Birgbauer, Eva Dodds, Sylvia Ristic, Allana Stark and goalkeeper Susan Judge.

Coach David Backhurst's squad, now ranked fourth in Class B-C-D with a record of 6-0-1, travels to Troy High School on Saturday, May 10 at 9 a.m. On Monday, May 12, the team travels to Lutheran East to play its first district tournament game. The winner advances to play Star of the Sea at 4 p.m. May 14 at ULS.

ULS wins classic

It was a great week for ULS's track and field team. On April 28, the ULS girls defeated Michigan Independent Athletic Conference (MIAC) rival Southfield Christian School (SCS) 84-44, and the boys downed SCS, 78-59. The Knights traveled to Ann Arbor Greenhills on April 30, earning a 90-34 win for the ULS girls, and a 98-39 triumph for the ULS boys. Both ULS teams now sport 6-1 dual meet records.

The highpoint of the week was a first-time victory for ULS at the annual Blue-Gold Track Classic held at Macomb County Community College on May 2.

The Lady Knights scored 135 at the Blue Gold.

The ULS boys won with 129 points, followed by Orchard Lake St. Mary (120).

Seven school records were broken at the Blue-Gold by ULS: by the girls, the 300 hurdles — Sophia Park; the 400 relay — tri-captain Lydia Alexander, Elena Hunt, Rae Goolsby and Tonya Clawson; and the 1600 relay — Park, tri-captain Miriam Mueller, Chris Knight and Jennifer Van De Graaf. Records broken by the ULS boys were the 110 hurdles — Tony Hill, John Dodds, Mehul Patel and Peter Hardy; and the 1600 relay — co-captain Blasko Ristic, Dodds, Davis and Nwosu.

Girls' tri-captain Nora Staebler scored a meet record with her first-place discus throw of 92 feet, 3½ inches. Alexis Collins tied the meet high jump record of 4 feet, 10 inches.

High scorers of the week were Nwosu, with 52.75 points for the boys and Alexander with 48.5 points for the girls.

ULS travels to Southfield Christian on Thursday, May 7 and hosts the MIAC championship meet at 10 a.m. Saturday, May 9.

Netters bounce back

The ULS boys' varsity tennis team had an excellent week. On April 28, the Knights defeated Grosse Pointe South, 7-0. Coach Bob Wood's squad downed Detroit Country Day School, 6-1, on April 29. On May 2, ULS won the 20th annual ULS Tennis Invitational.

On May 2, the individual flight winners for ULS were: John Yancey, No. 1 singles; Alex Tringali, No. 2 singles; Sean Byrne, No. 3 singles; Mike Fozo and Ashu Nautiyal, No. 1 doubles.

Throwing a change

That's baseball talk for tossing an off-speed pitch to a batter. And since Little League time — coming right up this week as this Woods Little Leaguer and other local players swing into action — is the perfect time to talk baseball, here's a reminder about a "change" the Grosse Pointe News is throwing to folks who submit Little League results to the paper.

New deadline for Little League copy is 9 a.m. Monday. Information submitted after that time will not be included in that week's edition of the News. All copy should be brief and concise — typewritten or printed — and should include correctly-spelled names of players, in addition to the final score. It should be clear which team won the game and from which city the teams originate.

Further information on submitting Little League summaries and highlights may be obtained by calling the sports editor at 882-0294 during regular business hours.
