Press role in Hart's withdrawal could affect future candidates

By Nancy Parmenter
Staff Writer

The exposure of Gary Hart's private life in the national media will have a chilling effect on other political candidates, predicted a longtime Grosse Pointe Hart supporter last week.

"A candidate's sex life is not an appropriate subject" for media inquiry, said Nancy Resowski, who spearheaded Hart's 1984 campaign here. "Now it's not enough to have no skeletons — a candidate has to appear not to have any skeletons. I wonder if it will make some people sit it out."

It apparently did cause some candidates to make their family lives more visible. Democrats campaigning in Iowa over the weekend were reported to have prominently displayed their wives and children.

Resowski, who was in the process of deciding whether to support Hart this year when the sex scandal story broke, conceded that Hart almost asked for it.

"He issued the challenge and the press took him up on it," she said. "But the Miami Herald showed poor judgment. The rush to publish may have compromised the story."

Resowski refused to let individual newspapers off the hook. "We're talking about the whole press," she said.

The behavior of the media after the story was published was even worse than the Herald article. Resowski was particularly angered at the journalist who asked Hart if he had ever committed adultery.

"That went beyond the bounds of good taste," she said. "That riled me. He's a human being — every person in the world has a weakness."

The outcome of the exposure is sad both for the Democratic party and the press, Resowski said. "It makes me sad to see this happen. It's sad for the party, especially in a year when they had the chance to regain the White House.

"It's also sad for your profession," she told a reporter. "The press is taking a rap on harassing Reagan, then Jim Bakker, now Hart. It doesn't bode well — I don't think there'll be a rush to journalism school."

But Resowski thought Hart went out with style. The theme of his "classy" withdrawal speech was that his political supporters not give up on their dream of changing America.

"It's not often that you get a campaign that matches your ideas, that touches your spirit," Resowski said. "(His supporters) had a great emotional investment."

Auction raises doubts about future of mansion

Saturday's auction at the Kanzler mansion drew more than 200 people, in spite of the Grosse Pointe Historical Society's last-ditch plea to save the structure. An unidentified prospective buyer measures the wrought iron gate at the main entrance to the estate.

By Margie Reins Smith
Staff Writer

Tish Colett, chairwoman of the historic preservation committee of the Grosse Pointe Historical Society, said she's outraged when she realizes what is going to happen to the Kanzler house, the most recent Grosse Pointe mansion to face the threat of demolition.

Just three weeks ago, the Grosse Pointe Historical Society got wind of Edsel Ford II's plans to dismantle and auction bits and pieces of the Ernest Kanzler house, 241 Lakeshore. About a year ago, Ford and his wife, Cynthia, purchased the 25-room French baroque mansion, which was built in 1910 for the widow of Henry Stephens, one of Michigan's lumber barons. The house was later owned by Ernest Kanzler.

The Edsel Fords have not lived in the house. Ford was unable to be reached for comment.

Saturday, an auction drew about 200 people who bid on everything that could be pried off and carted away — stonework, wrought iron garden gates, bronze door knockers, wood paneling, crystal chandeliers, wall sconces, mantles, countertops, brass light fixtures, an elevator, tile floors, plumbing fixtures — even the dishwasher and the kitchen sink. The auction catalog listed exterior brick and roof tiles, including drain spouts, drain pipes and gutters, but there is some question as to whether anyone bid on these. DuMouchelle Art Galleries acted as agent for the sale.

According to a Detroit Free Press article April 19, the Fords said they were going to "auction off some of the ornate things we don't want...(and) keep the shell intact." They planned to remodel the home to suit their own tastes, according to the article.

Colett said she heard about the auction just two or three weeks ago. She saw an advertisement for the auction and later noticed that the roof and exterior bricks were included in the catalog. Colett and historical society President Lisa Gandelot got on the phone quickly to find out if the house was going to be demolished. "Nobody would give us a straight answer," said Colett.

Historical society springs into action

"We wrote a letter — a plea to the Fords to preserve this architecturally significant structure." W. Hawkins Ferry, architectural historian and honorary board member of the society wrote a letter also, and Colett and Gandelot hand-delivered both letters to Cynthia Ford last Friday afternoon.

"I sincerely regret the intrusion on the Fords' privacy," Colett said. "I don't like to make an issue out of this, but it must be brought to the public's attention. We really need changes in zoning ordinances — changes to prevent the wholesale alteration or demolition of historically significant residences."

Colett laments the recent destruction of the Weber house, Rose Terrace, the Alvan Macauley house, the Chapin house (which was owned by Henry Ford II), the Schlottman house and the Dodge-Ranger estate. "People don't realize that there are alternatives."

Colett said that the society's long-term goals are to work toward legislation to save the integrity of the Grosse Pointes."We're not just interested in individual houses and certainly not just the big houses. We're working for community pride in local history and in saving the integrity of the community."

With the reality of the Kanzler house demolition before them, she said they'd like to speed up their plans. "Our survey of all Grosse Pointe houses is in progress, but it's just a tool, and at the volunteer level, it will just take too long. We'll probably try to raise money to have the survey done professionally. We had planned to educate and inform the community about historic preservation as well. It's too bad the Pointes didn't think about this 20 years ago."

Farms, school to re-examine library parking requirements

By Nancy Parmenter
Staff Writer

Frustrated by apparent lack of movement by the city of Grosse Pointe Farms, school officials are ready to play hardball over library parking.

Parking is the city's problem, board members agreed at Monday's meeting. It may be time to consider terminating the lease on the Richard lot, suggested trustee Jon Gandelot.

"Would this be an appropriate time to talk to the Farms about reimbursement if we terminate the lease on the Richard lot?" he asked. The city currently has a lease from the school to provide additional public parking for Hill shoppers.

Library Director Charles Hanson took four Farms council members on a tour of the Central Library last week to show them the facility and plans for its expansion. The school system, which operates the library, is nowhere near able to provide the amount of parking required by the Farms ordinance.

The city agreed to look again at its ordinance requirement. Monday, a quote on a new study was received from Vilican-Leman, the planning firm that wrote the ordinance in the 1970s. Monday night, the school board grappled with the decision of participating financially in the new study.

"This is not our problem except that we want parking," said board Treasurer Dorothy Kennel. "I didn't see when the Punch and Judy came in that (the city) asked them to pay for a parking study. They just granted a variance.

"Why can't they just grant a variance without our paying $1,000 for a study first?"

"Their answer probably would be that they made an error," responded trustee Joan Hanpeter. "They wouldn't grant that variance again." The variance for the Punch and Judy was based partly on the availability of public parking at the Richard lot. It is not clear what would happen if the

Pointer of Interest
J.K. Abbs

By Pat Paholsky
News Editor

If you want to know anything about trees, ask J.K. Abbs. You can't miss his house. It's the only one on Cadieux with a berm in front, planted with trees and shrubs. Walking into his yard is walking into a small arboretum where the air is still and it's cooler and quieter. The noise of the traffic from a busy street barely intrudes in this green urban forest.

Abbs, who has been a member of the Grosse Pointe Park Beautification Commission since he retired in 1983, lives his passion.

J.K. Abbs

The house, which he and his wife Jane built in 1952, was designed with large windows in every room and even a couple of skylights. The house was ahead of its time, he says.

"Both my wife and I grew up in houses with stupendous bay windows and when I worked in Chicago, I lived in one of those limestone houses that had a bay window that looked out on Lake Michigan."

There's a large hanging bay window looking out the side yard and the scene -- planted with trees and shrubs specifically for viewing from inside — is magnificent. In fact, every window in the house offers a picture postcard scene.

Abbs calls it winter gardening.

"In the summer you're outside, but in the winter, you're pretty much confined to looking out," he said.

So one tree may frame a window and another will be pruned so the viewer can look through it to the bushes and shrubs beyond. But it was trial and error at first.

"We started planting deciduous stuff and that didn't work, so I got into Japanese yews. Early in the morning I used to walk along Lakeshore and I saw these crab apples that carried their fruit into the winter and I thought, boy, that's what I want in that bay

Tree trimmer falls to his death

A 49-year-old Detroit tree trimmer fell 30 feet to a driveway in front of a home on the 1200 block of Berkshire while trimming a tree at about 3 p.m. Tuesday, May 5, according to Park public safety officials.

Officials said Ioan Pruteanun was apparently a private contractor.

Reportedly, the man made enough noise when he fell to alert the residents who called the department.

Officers administered CPR and transported Pruteanun to Bon Secours Hospital where he was pronounced dead on arrival.

Apparently he was not wearing a safety harness officials said.

Man fatally shot in robbery

A 30-year-old man who had car trouble early May 2, at Mack and Lakepointe in Detroit, was shot with a shotgun and died a short time later, according to Park public safety officials.

Park officials said the man was approached by four men, and when he attempted to resist the robbery attempt, he was shot twice by one of the gunmen.

The man was transported to St. John Hospital shortly after 2 a.m. by the Grosse Pointe Park Medical Unit and he died in the operating room.

According to Park officials, Detroit homocide investigators have charged four juveniles with the crime. They are believed to live in the area of the incident.

Resident instrumental in producing local sitcom

By Peter A. Salinas
Staff Writer

They say it will be able to stand up to any network-quality situation comedy, but it will likely be a show that anyone outside of the metro Detroit area wouldn't understand.

"Hamtramck," Detroit's first major situation comedy, will air tonight, Thursday, May 14, at 9:30 p.m. on WDIV-TV Channel 4.

The show, which is a comedy about Detroit residents and the surrounding suburbs, features local neighborhoods, actors and celebrities, according to the show's co-producer, Henry Maldonado of the City.

The half-hour premiere show was taped recently in Hamtramck, and features the story of the Hamlin family in the midst of a tumultuous event, the marriage of Marian Hamlin to a "foreigner," a westsider from Farmington Hills, a place where "they don't have alleys."

Maldonado, 38, is a programming executive and has been with Channel 4 for six years. He developed several shows for syndication, including" Miss Manners," "The Music Machine," "The Freedom Festival Fireworks Show," news documentaries and numerous other local productions.

He said that in brainstorming with "Hamtramck" co-producer Tom DeLisle, they asked themselves what they should do next.

"The obvious next step was a local sitcom," Maldonado said. "So we started kicking around story ideas. We just finished editing and it looks very good."

Maldonado, who has a bachelor of science degree in broadcast and film from Boston University, came to WDIV after being an executive producer first at CBS and then for NBC. He was also a producer for WGBH, the Boston public broadcasting station.

WDIV-TV Channel 4 producers Henry Maldonado, left, of the City, and Tom DeLisle, middle, are co-producers of the new half-hour situation comedy "Hamtramck." They are shown here discussing a scene in the local special with actor Ry Hall of St. Clair Shores. Hall plays Harvey Hamlin in the show which will be aired tonight at 9:30 p.m.

"What we have always done (at WDIV) is to produce network-quality shows with a local angle," Maldonado said.

He said any Detroiter or suburbanite will immediately grasp the humorous references in the show about the city. He said driving down I-94 is likened to driving on a washboard, and there are many references to the east and west side of Detroit.

Maldonado said while Detroit's major problems such as crime and poverty are not completely ignored, there are no references to any major problems in a serious vein.

"We examine some of those problems by poking fun at things with a love/hate view," he said. "You are always treading on interesting ground when you are doing satire. There will always be some people for whom satire just doesn't work."

At least one Grosse Pointer, Tom Schoenith, will be featured in the show. Schoenith will play himself. Former Detroit Tiger Dave Rozema will be in the show as well as radio personalties Tom Ryan and Peter Carey, Tiger Manager Sparky Anderson and Detroit Renaissance President Robert McCabe.

The story was written by DeLisle about a year ago. Maldonado said it took about five days to shoot and five days to edit and about one full month to produce.

The entire show was shot in Hamtramck. He said it was selected primarily because it looks like could still be 1955 there, and one of the shows scheduled to be made is a flashback to the '50s. The first show is set in the present.

Maldonado said it is less expensive for a local station to purchase nationally syndicated shows such as "Wheel of Fortune," but that with this endeavor, expense was not the primary determining factor.

"It does cost more than normal for a local station to produce a sitcom of this nature," he said. "The first factor we had going for us was the writing talent. We had a tremendous script and that was 90 percent of the decision to go with this show. The other 10 percent was the acting. I remember early on in the discussions about this show, someone asked if there were enough local actors, and someone else said, 'certainly.'"

Maldonado said there is a wealth of talent in the Detroit area and it was tapped for this production.

WDIV will also be airing a behind-the-scenes look at the making of "Hamtramck" titled "Hamtramck Goes Hollywood," at 7:30 p.m. May 14. The program will be hosted by Channel 4 entertainment reporter Sylvia Glover and includes interviews with local actors and producers and scenes of the shootings in the neighborhoods of Hamtramck.

Maldonado said the success of this show and the future of shows like it depends solely on what the audience thinks. He said WDIV will monitor the audience closely and will see how much encouragement there is.

Because this kind of show has never been done in this market, or for any market that Maldonado knows of, there are some concerns about how well it will be received.

"We are taking some chances," he said.

Farms grants second Lakeshore pool variance

Peter A. Salinas
Staff Writer

A variance to allow the construction of a pool that will face Lakeshore Road was approved 5 to 1 May 4 by the Grosse Pointe Farms City Council.

The request for the variance was made by Gil Mains, owner of the home located at 217 Lakeshore. He had been denied a building permit for the pool because it was planned for the front yard of the property, a violation of the ordinance.

Mains' architect explained to the council why the pool would be better located in the front rather than in the rear yard. It was explained that the design calls for incorporating the pool and surrounding garden landscape into the dwelling. Because the property is elevated about four feet from Lakeshore and there is a hedge surrounding the property, the pool area would not be readily visible to passersby.

None of the neighbors, who were informed of the variance request, voiced any opposition to the plan, although several attended the meeting to ask how the pool area would be set up.

This pool, which will be set back about 220 feet from the road, is the second variance granted by the Farms council in the past six months. Last year Edsel Ford II requested and was granted a variance to construct a pool in front of his residence at 241 Lakeshore. That pool has not been constructed yet, but is to be set back about 340 feet from the road.

Council members felt there is enough room behind Mains' home for the pool. Mains said that that side of the house would not allow for incorporation of the pool into the dwelling, and that the pool would be visible to more neighbors there. He added that he has had to report trespassers who enter his property from that side. He felt it would be safer from the standpoint that it would less accessible to trespassers.

Mayor Joseph Fromm voted against the variance.

"I consider Lakeshore one of our nation's treasures," Fromm said. "That is why I am voting no."

Several people in the audience asked if, now that there have been two variances granted for pools in front of Lakeshore homes, anyone who requests a variance would be granted it.

Fromm told one audience member that it could happen, but he didn't feel it was likely.

Councilman John Crawley told the resident that there were not many of the new homes along Lakeshore that had enough lot frontage to construct a pool in the front yard and added he didn't feel there would be that many requests.

Two greens don't make a right

A $32,000 modernization of this, the Mack-Warren-Calvin intersection, has been negotiated between Wayne County, Grosse Pointe Farms and Detroit. Farms Police Chief Robert Ferber said both the Farms and Detroit will contribute $8,200, while the county share will be $16,400. The agreement was approved by the Farms city council May 4. Ferber said the modernization project will eliminate the traffic safety hazard of simultaneously green signals for Warren and eastbound Mack Avenue traffic at Calvin.

France meets Grosse Pointe Academy

By Nancy Parmenter
Staff Writer

The cultural exchange was mostly in one direction, but that didn't quench anybody's enthusiasm. Everything Sister Yvonne Moreau said was greeted with a chorus of "oui."

A few of the key words came through: "Une soeur de Bon Secours," "la cathedrale de Notre Dame," "le Moulin Rouge." The kids knew about Bon Secours ("my mother works there," one boy said) and "soeur" is one of the words they practice when they talk about sisters and brothers. Moreau acted out the singing and dancing that goes with the Moulin Rouge nightclub, although one boy could be heard puzzling over "windmills."

Moreau, the superior general of the Sisters of Bon Secours, was in town on a tour of facilities run by the order. She travels six months of the year from her home base in Rome ("ou habite le pape," she told the kids) on international visits to Bon Secours operations. "I don't like the word 'inspection,'" she said. "'International visiting' is better."

While she was in Grosse Pointe, it was arranged that she visit Grosse Pointe Academy, an institution steeped in Frenchness, to talk to the students about France. She met with third- and fifth-graders in varying stages of linguistic preparation.

Moreau launched into an explanation of her birthplace and religious order. Seeing furrowed foreheads, she stepped to a map of France to point out Orleans, the city where she was born. Near Paris, she told them. "Ah, oui!" Paris, they knew. She went on to explain that she is a nun — and pointed out the very Parisian street where the order's house is located.

'Une soeur — a sister! I understood!" exulted one student.

"I love to see their eyes as they try to understand," Moreau said after the class. She said school visits are not a usual part of her work, so meeting with the children was a special treat. She handled it like a born teacher.

Cinema League

The Grosse Pointe Cinema League will conclude the year with its 32nd annual banquet at 6:30 p.m. on Monday, May 18, at the War Memorial. There will be a short business meeting followed by 16mm movies by Robert Makara.

"Time Exposure" will feature a hike to the bottom of the Grand Canyon down the Bright Angel trail, with the Indian Gardens, the Inner Canyon of the Colorado River, a natural arch, the Box and Ribbon Falls — all of this from sunrise to sunset.

There will be more short films, including the award-winning "Chariot of Embers," a documentary of an old ailing dog and how his master tries to make the best of unhappy circumstances.

Tickets at $14 are available at the War Memorial.

Touche!

Jamie Wheatley, as Count Valvert, duels with Jeff Witzke, as Cyrano, under the watchful eye of fencing instructor Tom Johnson. Johnson, a local mime, was hired as instructor to the cast of "Cyrano de Bergerac" after he presented his mime show to the students at North High School. The fencing twosome may be seen in performance at North's Center for the Performing Arts when Theatre North brings Edmond Rostand's big-nosed hero to life at 8 p.m. May 20, 21, 22. Tickets are $4 at the door.

Grosse Pointe Woods Beautification Commission Chairman Angelo DiClemente and flower sale Chairman Clem Wicker show flats of impatiens and begonias that will be available at the annual flower sale tomorrow and Saturday.

Woods flower sale is this week

The Grosse Pointe Woods Beautification Commission will hold its annual flower sale tomorrow, Friday, May 15, from 5 p.m. until 8 p.m. and Saturday, May 16, from 9 a.m. until 3 p.m. at the Grosse Pointe Woods City Hall, 20025 Mack Avenue.

Flower sale Chairman Clem Wicker said flats of begonias and impatiens — 48 plants to a flat — will be sold for $10.50.

Flats of marigolds, petunias, snapdragons, salvia, dusty miller, verbena, ageratum, sweet alyssum and dwarf dahlias will be available at $8.50 for 72 plants.

Hanging baskets of Reiger begonias will be $16 per basket.

All profits from the flower sale go toward beautification efforts in Grosse Pointe Woods, according to Angelo DiClemente, chairman of the Woods Beautification Commission.

Employee robbed of $100 beaten, bound with tape

A 75-year-old man working in a store at 15408 Mack in Grosse Pointe Park was beaten and then robbed of $100 before the thief bound him with tape at about 11 a.m. Friday, May 1, according to Park public safety officials.

The man was approached by a black male in his early 30s and asked if he wanted to buy a watch. The thief struck the man with his fists and took $100 from the man's wallet. He then bound him with tape and fled on foot.

The thief was described as about six foot, 175 pounds and clean-shaven.

Con men working this area

An 83-year-old City resident on Notre Dame was robbed of an unspecified amount of money from her purse Wednesday, May 6, when she unwittingly was tricked into allowing two people to enter her home.

A man and woman team apparently convinced the woman that the man worked for the water company, and while he examined the water meter, the woman searched the house.

City police have no suspects at this time.

The pair were described as a white man in his late 30s wearing a suit coat and tie, and a white woman in her 20s with long blonde hair.

The couple apparently rang the door bell and when the woman answered, the duo just walked into the home.

Grand Am taken

A 1986 Grand Am was stolen in front of a residence on the 1300 block of Wayburn, according to Park public safety officials.

The car was taken sometime between 7 p.m., May 2, and 11:30 a.m., May 3.

It was found May 3 on Ashland in Detroit by Detroit police.

Opinion

Ex-candidate Hart and media both damaged by 'sex' stories

The withdrawal of Gary Hart as a candidate for the Democratic nomination for president seems to have divided the nation on two issues.

One is whether Hart really should have pulled out of the race because of the news stories linking him to a Miami part-time model and actress. The other is whether the press had, indeed, invaded Hart's privacy in pursuing the story, even though as a presidential candidate his actions were open to media scrutiny.

The candidate himself obviously believed that the news stories in the Miami Herald and other papers about his relationship with the Miami woman had damaged his candidacy to such a degree that he could not continue in the race. Since he still owed substantial sums for his 1984 presidential campaign, Hart also realized that he could not expect much success with his future fund-raising efforts in view of the increasing criticism of his supposed "womanizing" proclivities.

That being the case, should the media be criticized or applauded for their part in publicizing the activities that led Hart to withdraw?

Most columnists for the New York Times were highly critical of the press. Yet the Times itself said editorially that while the media's scrutiny may be among the many factors that deter some people from running for office, it is "no reason to avoid investigating Watergate, or the Iran-contra scandal, or puzzling behavior by prominent candidates."

In fact, a many newspeople, in addition to the New York Times reporters, believe the Miami paper went too far in its pursuit of the story.

Yet isn't it an indication of poor judgment when a married candidate for president begins dating a single woman even if the relationship is not as intimate as some of the stories hinted it was? Nobody in public office has to be held accountable for everything in his personal and private life, but surely a person's judgment in private matters should be evaluated in order to help predict how he might react in his public decision-making.

But we do not defend snooping, keyhole journalism that includes stakeouts of the kind conducted by the Miami Herald. We suspect that paper's eagerness to get into print before it had checked out all the facts was motivated in part by its visions of a Pulitzer Prize and its reporters' desire to emulate Woodward and Bernstein of Watergate fame.

Yet we also believe that since Hart had shown a character flaw in this episode, he was wise to withdraw, painful as that action was for him, his family and his many supporters. In the end, it was Gary Hart himself who destroyed his presidential candidacy and when he realized that fact, he withdrew.

No higher sports standard?

We normally do not like to kick dead issues around, but we confess to some sympathy with school board member Carl Anderson in his recent unsuccessful effort to raise the grade requirement for sports participation in the Grosse Pointe public high schools.

Anderson sought to raise the sports participation standard to a C or 2.0 grade average to replace the Michigan High School Athletic Association rule that permits a student to take part in athletic programs if he or she has passed 20 credits in the previous semester and is passing 20 credits in the current semester.

But that state rule, to which the Grosse Pointe schools still adhere, permits a student who receives four Ds and two Es to take part in sports activities. Anderson argued that the Pointes constitute a "lighthouse" district and should have a higher standard than the one imposed by the state organization. In fact, he would have preferred high standards for participation in all extracurricular activities, not just sports.

The high school athletic directors in the Pointes argued against increasing the standards on the grounds that such action would limit rather than broaden sports participation. They contended that students who are dropped from sports for poor grades tend not to improve their academic performance.

They also made the argument that it is important for students of varying capacity to take part in sports and especially for poorer students to rub elbows with kids who have higher grades.

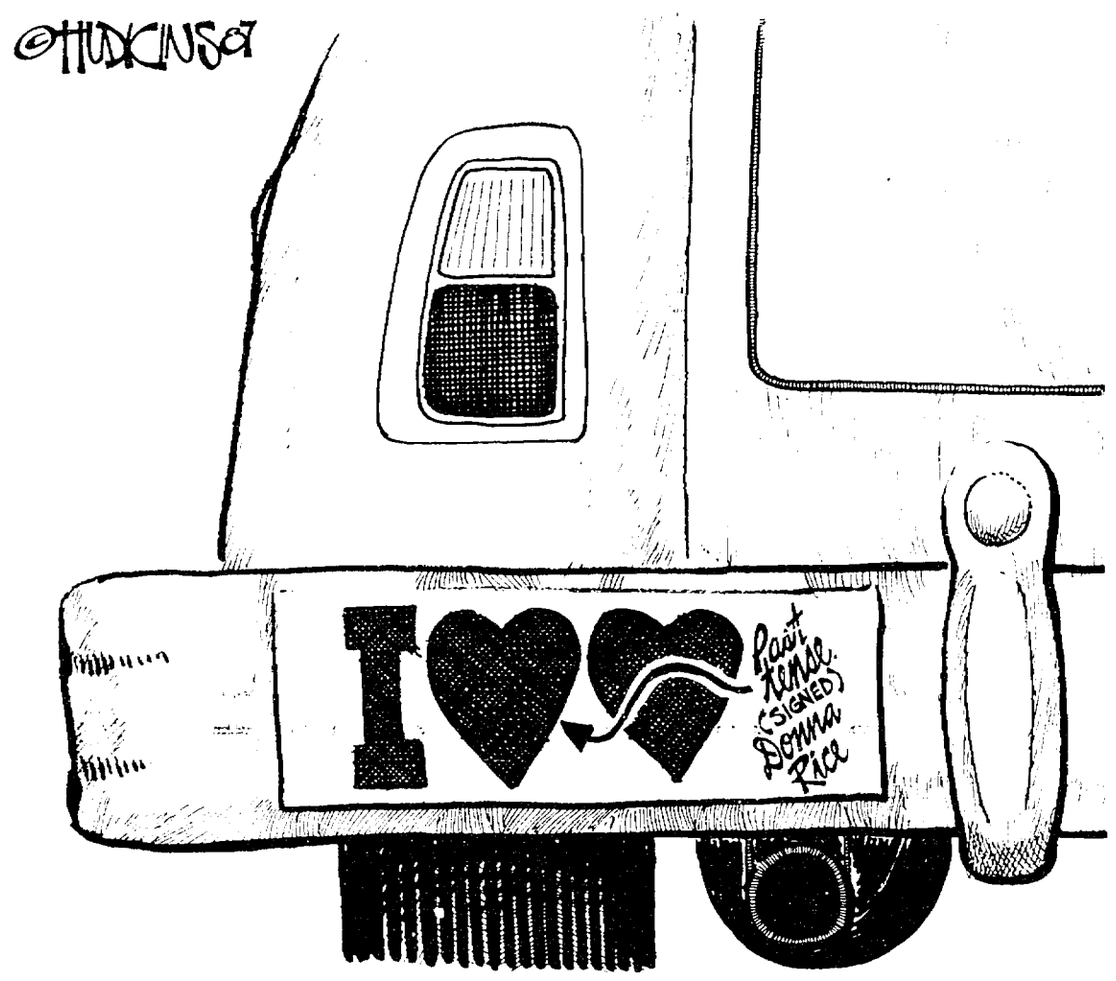

It is true that we are talking about a comparatively small number of athletes when we consider the number who would be dropped by increasing the grade requirement to 2.0. Only 8 percent of the Grosse Pointe athletes had a 1.0 to 1.9 point average in 1985 and only 5 percent had comparable records in 1986. Put another way, 92 percent of the student athletes had at least a 2.0 average in 1985 and the figure rose to 95 percent in 1986.

Yet isn't it possible that the poorer students who participate in athletics could raise their grade averages if they concentrated their full attention on their studies rather than dividing their time between their course work and athletics?

That's our major point, even though we concede that there are other arguments in favor of keeping the present rule. One is that some poor students who have the physical abilities to achieve in athletic competition can improve their own self-esteem. Another is that it would be unfair to impose a higher standard on Grosse Pointe athletes than is imposed on their foes from other state high schools.

Such arguments do have merit and we readily concede that there are two sides to the question of setting a higher standard for athletic competition in our high schools. The reason we raised the question, after the school board had reiterated its policy, was to agree with board member Anderson that as a "lighthouse district," Grosse Pointe ought to set higher standards for athletic competition just as it does for other programs in the public schools.

Now that we have flogged this dead issue, however, we obviously accept the decision of the majority of the school board to stick with the Michigan High School Athletic Association rule unless new support for a change is found.

News messengers attacked

The president of the Central Business District Association is a bundle of energy named Diane Edgecomb who does an excellent job of promoting the city of Detroit and its business opportunities.

The other day, however, she stubbed her toe when she contended that the local news media were responsible for Detroit's bad public image because they were putting the emphasis on negative rather than positive news 80 percent to 90 percent of the time.

Even worse, Ms. Edgecomb added that she had monitored the Detroit news media for several months in order to arrive at those percentages. As might be expected, Ms. Edgecomb was promptly taken to the woodshed by various media types, including Pete Waldmeir of the Detroit News.

Pete gave Ms. Edgecomb credit for having made a number of distinct contributions to downtown Detroit such as her promotion of the lighting of the Ambassador Bridge, the illumination of many of the key buildings and landmarks downtown and the Christmas sing-a-long at Cobo Hall.

But, he contended, she had fallen into the old trap of blaming the messenger for the bad news when she criticized the Detroit news media for their negative coverage of Detroit.

Pete might well have added that news is often described as coverage of events that depart from the norm. Since many of the happenings of life are rather commonplace, they do not rate coverage. But it is also true that departures from the norm are often unpleasant. So the question really is who should determine what news should be covered?

Should it be Mayor Coleman Young and Ms. Edgecomb who have their own reasons to seek to limit the negative news about Detroit? Or should it be the professional news people who are trying to cover the bad news along with the good?

On this issue, we sympathize with Ms. Edgecomb but agree with her media critics. We sympathize because there is a lot of bad news reported from Detroit, but the trouble is with the perpetrators of the bad events who make news and not with the people who report it.

Just a day or so after Ms. Edgecomb had written her criticism of the news media in her CBDA newspaper, the Detroit media reported the touching tale of the elderly Toledo couple who had been held up and robbed twice in Detroit after they had lost their way and asked for directions.

That news event was bad publicity for Detroit but we doubt that even Ms. Edgecomb would suggest that it should have been suppressed in the interests of protecting Detroit.

In fact, it could be argued that the recent tough actions to combat the wave of shootings of young people in Detroit came about because there had been so much publicity about the attacks that the community's powers-that-be finally realized something should be done.

That coverage should be regarded as a plus for the media because they often lose sales and advertising because of the bad news they report. They continue to report adverse news because they regard it as their job to give a fair and balanced presentation of what has happened in Detroit.

But the media should not be too hard on Ms. Edgecomb. She, too, is just trying to do her job even though her task is to promote Detroit, not to report all the news about what is going on there.

Letters

Danger

To the Editor:

Regarding the letter April 30 from Mothers Against Potholes from Grosse Pointe Farms — I as well as these mothers are happy to see Lakeshore being repaired and proper curbs being added.

But I have to agree that much danger is risked. The lake is very dark and a person unfamiliar with the area may end up in the lake. The road has many curves and it is hard to follow in the night.

It is completely understandable that no one wants the beauty of the lake ruined by guardrails or walls. The mothers did have good suggestions on other ways to help drivers, such as reflectors or painting the curbs with luminous material.

I don't want the beauty of the lake ruined and it doesn't need to be, but we do need to guide the drivers.

Abortion

To the Editor:

Regarding a letter to the editor on abortion in the April 16th edition: The concern about abortion has become great, more so within the last few years. Miss Woodhouse states that an embryo, after conception, "in no way leads to the conclusion that it is a 'human being'." It is. After six weeks, it is visibly clear that the embryo is a human being. The heart has started to develop and the head, hands, legs, even toes and fingers are visible. Yet in some states, it it legal to have an abortion up to six months after conception.

The fact that "the majority of Americans do not agree that abortion is murder," doesn't mean that it isn't. Even though we do live in a pluralstic society and we are able to make our own choices, that does not mean that anyone has the right to kill another human being. I don't think (as she does) that murder is one of our most "fundamental freedoms." An innocent being should not have to pay for a selfish mistake.

JOA will hurt

To the Editor:

Your editorial opposing any state investment in a possible purchase of the Detroit Free Press by employees makes the naive and misguided assumption that only private business people can adequately protect our First Amendment rights.

The Newspaper Guild of Detroit, Local 22, is rightly concerned about the massive loss of jobs the JOA would cause among employees of both dailies. We estimate that as many as 1,500 jobs would be wiped out by this proposal.

But the Guild is equally concerned about the loss of competition and free enterprise the JOA would create in Detroit. The News and Free Press already are among the 10 largest newspapers in the country and are owned by the two largest newspaper chains in North America — Gannett and Knight Ridder.

Gannett currently owns 93 newspapers and Knight Ridder 34, but your paper is strangely unconcerned about this tremendous concentration of economic and political power.

Both of these corporate giants have billions of dollars at their disposal to continue competing for readers and advertisers in Michigan, but they realize their profits could soar dramatically by ending competition through a JOA.

The suggestion by the Guild and several other unions that employees buy the Free Press is a serious idea in the quest to maintain journalistic and publishing independence in Detroit. Union or state loans to help finance a newspaper purchase would not influence the coverage of news any more than current investors and corporate officers.

In fact, the overall record of private businessmen owning newspapers in this country is a sorry account of publishers censoring reporters and editors in favor of advertisers or of other vested interests.

If the Free Press and News are allowed to merge business and production operations, readers and advertisers would see the following:

- Only one joint newspaper on Saturday and Sunday. No competition between news departments. Elimination of one Sunday Magazine, and TV magazine.
- A sharp rise in newsstand

In the eye of the beholder

I Say

Pat Paholsky

The pussy willows are first. Then the buttery daffodils and the grapey hyacinths begin the color parade. Overnight the red tulips make their debut and the deep yellow forsythia bursts forth in wild sprays. The pristine spirea brightens a dark corner on the side of the house. A snowball bush, gnarled with age, produces a multitude of heavy blooms, not as many as years past, but enough for a remembrance. With the color comes the sweet scent of the cherry blossoms and the lilacs.

And so it goes. The spotlight shines on one part of the yard at a time as each plant awakens from its winter sleep. When one fades, another blooms. There is never a fallow period during the growing season. The grounds were planned that way and the credit belongs to the people who owned the house before us. They planted the bushes and the trees that bloom, one after the other, in a synchronized manner.

The flowers, however, are my husband's. There are annuals and perennials and there is color everywhere. He spends almost all of his time outdoors in the spring and summer. He cuts the grass, weeds the flower beds, trims the bushes, tends the vegetable garden and wildflower patch, thins out the bulbs and rhizomes which he replants in other areas so that every year the color show expands. And when he's not working the land, he's enjoying its beauty. The everyday stress melts away and is replaced with nature's bounty. Some people are calmed by the water on the lake or a fire in the fireplace.

When I grab my scissors and gather a bouquet for the house, it's better that I do it when he's not around. Don't cut from that clump, he'll say, I'm still enjoying them there. Or, he'll say, you should cut them when they're ready to die. I don't want to hear it. He enjoys them outside. I enjoy them inside, and as long as I do it when he isn't a witness, he tolerates it.

Now there are lots of men who enjoy gardening, but Rich is probably the most unlikely candidate. This is the person who grows dahlias as big as footballs, but can never remember their name. The peonies are magnificent. He stakes them and when one is to be transplanted, he knows they like a shallow hole, but he can't remember their name either. The irises that began on one short stretch of land now surround the house and garage, and every year he cultivates the milkweed in their midst as carefully as the fragrant orchid blooms. Every year, I pull the milkweed and every year, he cultivates another crop.

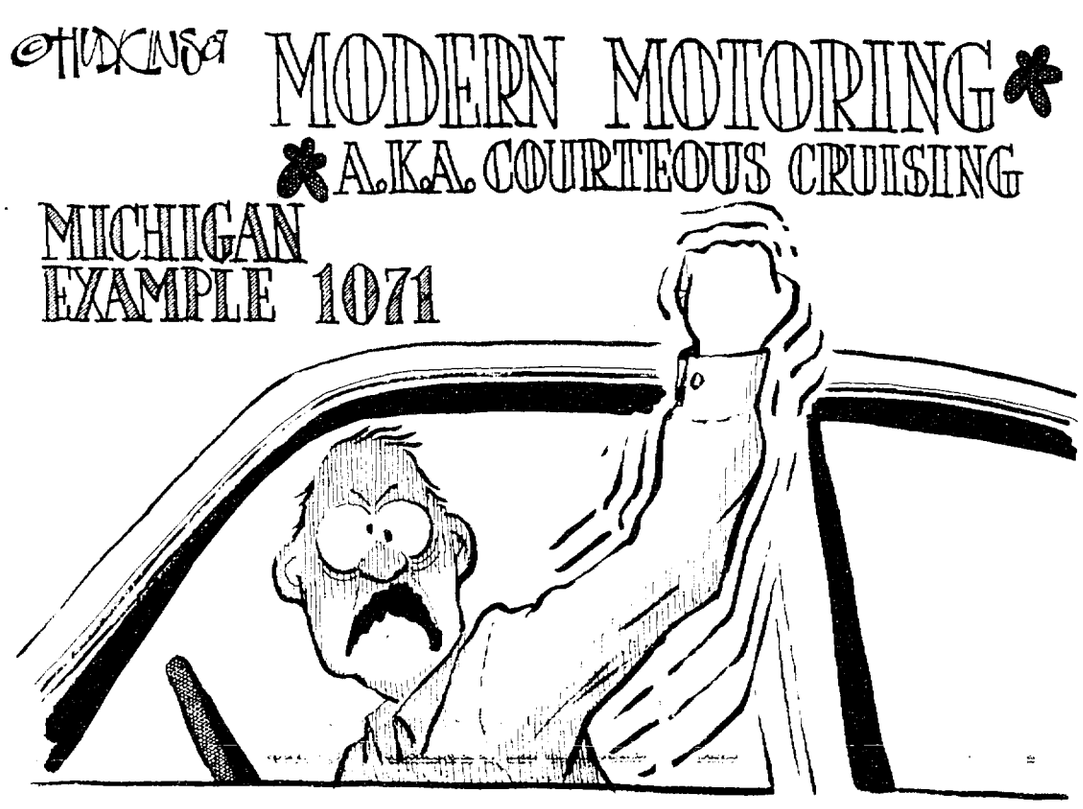

The nicotiana and the honeysuckle are memories. Those were weeds, he believed, and he finally wiped them out. Ditto the daisies and the mint. I used to have a clump of chives. I think the comfrey is headed for extinction, but I'm sure that's a planned, systematic extermination. He doesn't like those big, hairy leaves choking his flowers, but since I regularly cut the leaves and boil them and use them for everything, he keeps his dark thoughts to himself. I don't want to get started on the value of comfrey. Lately whenever I talk about its miraculous healing powers, people avert their eyes. It's OK. I know better. It probably cures cancer too. The comfrey stays, you hear me?

This is the person to whom the word plant meant a factory when he was growing up. When we were first married, we rented a small house in California that had been neglected, inside and outside. He worked nights and I worked days. One morning I left him a package of zinnia seeds with a note to plant them if he had time. (This story is a classic in our family and it's true — nobody could make this up.) When I came home, he told me he planted the zinnias — dug a hole, opened the package, emptied it and covered the hole. I couldn't beleive anybody would do such a thing. Rich did. He's come a long way since then.

Our neighbor across the road — to whom growing things is a religion — kids him all the time. This woman is the only person I know who actually grows cotton in her yard. And popcorn. Before I met her, I didn't know popcorn grew on a plant. When she gets a seed catalog, she just orders one of everything. Hey, Rich, she yells, what kind of weeds are you growing this year? Yet she comes over and raids our yard for flowers she wants to add to her collection. And she gives him plants, by the wheelbarrow full. Our two properties are ablaze with color. And she keeps teasing him. It's the supreme compliment. So to him milkweed is a flower. Maybe it is.

June 22, 1944 —

War news dominated the New York Times. Three headlines, one under the other, were: American troops battle to enter Cherbourg; U.S. carrier planes attack fleet in Pacific; Britain-Russia shuttle air raid hits Berlin.

The battle for the French port of Cherbourg was being waged with advance American elements within one mile of the harbor's main basin. The Germans halted their two-day retreat to fight back.

British-based planes landed in the Soviet Union completing the shuttle triangle hemming in the Reich.

U.S. carrier planes struck the Japanese fleet near the Philippines.

Berlin was heavily attacked by an armada of more than 2,200 American bombers and fighters in the greatest assault of the war on the German capitol. The mass of American planes crossed the face of Berlin in 30 minutes and the weight of bombs dropped was estimated at 2,000 tons.

The Allies — British, French and American troops — were advancing in Italy and it was reported that the German armies were making the Allies fight for every gain, but were paying a high price in men, guns and horses.

The archives and library of the Abbey of Mount Cassino, taken to the Vatican for safekeeping, were put on display in Rome. They were to remain there until the abbey was rebuilt. The Vatican saved another library of world-wide fame — that of the Cardinal of York, brother of a Stuart Pretender, which was in the Episcopalian Seminary of Frascati. The seminary was destroyed but its 15,000 volumes and many precious manuscripts were dug out of the ruins and brought to the Vatican.

Ninety-four German prisoners of war at a camp in Wyoming went on a bread and water diet following a strike. They refused to work in the beet fields, complaining that the trucks transporting them to and from work lacked benches.

The army began an experiment in vocational therapy by having convalescing soldiers make parts for fighter planes. The experiment was being carried out in the army's new Birmingham General Hospital in Van Nuys, Calif. Instead of obtaining mental relief by weaving baskets, they were put to work in a sheet metal and machine shop school with the latest in equipment. The program was designed to get the men to fight the war on the home front and get jobs later. They received salaries as trainees. Even bedridden soldiers participated, by sorting bolts, washers and fasteners.

Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt made her first visit to an American Red Cross POW packaging service in New York. The packages were sent to American POWs in Nazi camps and contained dried prunes, sugar tablets, milk powder, oleomargarine, candy, five packages of cigarettes, chocolate, powdered coffee, two bars of soap, vitamized biscuits, cans of meat and vegetable stew, Man saves dog!

It is not a twist on the old man bites dog definition of news, but it is certainly newsworthy.

Among James Ryszewski's daily chores is coming home from school to feed the family dog.

Jim, 17, a junior at South, filled the dog's dish with food and water last Monday and left the room. He heard some strange noises coming from the kitchen and ran back into the room.

There was his 70-pound black labrador running around in circles and drooling at the mouth. Jim could tell that Mandy was choking and did the only thing he could think of to help his pet.

He grabbed the dog, got around behind her, found her rib cage and performed the Heimlich maneuver, a medical technique designed to clear an object from the windpipe of a person.

A piece of dog food was ejected from Mandy's throat and she calmly went back to eating her dinner.

Jim's dad, Dr. Richard Ryszewski, called to note his son had learned the Heimlich procedure as a sophomore at South, and wanted us to know how important it is for people to learn lifesaving techniques. Without it, the Ryszewski's would have lost their 10-year old family member.

It's only rock 'n' roll

If you're a teenager living in a less affluent urban area, one Wayne State University researcher says the chances are you don't consider The The, Echo and the Bunnymen or The Smiths rock 'n' roll.

Doug Chalgian, a graduate student in Wayne State University's radio and television film department, performed a study questioning almost 400 students from three metro area high schools about what they consider rock 'n' roll. The schools were from three areas where the median family incomes varied by as much as 100 percent.

From his study and data interpretation, Chalgian found students from the more affluent high schools were much more likely to identify New Wave music (from bands like those mentioned earlier) as the music they like to hear and identify as rock 'n' roll.

Students from the poorer school district, he found, were 54 percent more likely to identify Heavy Metal bands, including Iron Maiden and Ratt, as the music they prefer.

George Young, co-owner of Village Records and Tapes in the City, said there is definitely some truth to Chalgian's findings, but he doesn't feel the correlation between money and music tastes explains everything.

"We have been here for about six years now, and I have always said the high school kids at South have the musical tastes of college kids," Young said. "I think musical taste is a matter of exposure." Young postulates that because older brothers and sisters are away at school, the younger high school kids are treated to the college campus music when their siblings return home.

Young said college radio stations have long been leaders in pointing the way to new trends in music.

One interesting point Young made was that as a Ticket World outlet, employees at his store get to see all kinds of concert-goers from opera to Psychedelic Fur fans.

He said that when kids who line up to see a band like Motley Crue, (a riotous heavy metal band) they are among the most well-behaved he has seen.

"You would think that Motley Crue would produce the most unruly kids in our lines," Young said. "They were the most well-behaved. They even cleaned up their own messes." Chalgian's study found that students from all three economic groups did not give rock 'n' roll status to pop performers like Whitney Houston, Wham! or Janet Jackson. Almost all the students agreed that heavy metal bands were rock 'n' rollers.

Janet Burke, manager of the Harmony House record store in Grosse Pointe Woods, said they get a cross-section of record listeners from Detroit, Roseville and the Grosse Pointes. She said the store handles large sales of what is considered New Wave or New Age music.

"We sell a lot of the Echo and the Bunnymen and U2, but our Bon Jovi sales are out of sight," Burke said.

What that means is there are a lot of New Wave albums being sold, but Bon Jovi is considered by many to be a little more mainstream rock 'n' roll.

The Beastie Boys, a white rap punk group, which encompasses several rock 'n' roll genres, are a very hot item now.

"That would tend to shoot down the study," Burke said. "Everyone is buying Beastie Boys albums whether they are white, black, rich, poor or whatever." Perhaps the study didn't take into account the old adage, "There's no accounting for taste."

prices and massive increases in ad rates for businesses and individuals. Probably cutbacks in outstate paper deliveries by both papers.

- Elimination of the News morning edition on weekdays and Saturday.

- Reductions in news budgets by both papers. Under the JOA plan, both papers would be guaranteed 50 percent of the agency's profits for the next 100 years. The incentive is actually to reduce expenditures since profits are guaranteed.

The First Amendment would be better served by employees trying to preserve competition between two large, potentially profitable newspapers instead of absentee landlords like Gannett and Knight Ridder carving up the Detroit newspaper market like a Thanksgiving turkey.

That is the real issue of the contemplated union offer to purchase the Free Press, rather than see a JOA or a closing of the morning paper, is to maintain a free and unfettered press here. We have it now. Let's not follow the dark publishing path so many other cities must now endure.

Kresge closing

To the Editor:

I am quite saddened by the news of Kresge's in the Village closing.

Seems as though "big business" is too greedy — has no concern over keeping us, the consumer, happy. I have enjoyed my shopping at Kresge's and especially enjoyed the friendliness of all the ladies who work there. We are losing touch with humane values. I speak for many who will sorely miss this fine, unique and friendly store.

Hope someone changes their minds. You are really upsetting a lot of people.

Kmart's is huge, indifferent and requires lots of time. Kresge's in the Village was just right.

These are my strong feelings and I hope they help.

We want jobs

To the Editor:

This is a follow-up letter concerning the treatment of the employees of the Grosse Pointe Kresge store. Because we believe that you were instrumental in helping us, we thank you, as some leeway has been made, and we are grateful.

On Wednesday, April 29, the company arranged for an emergency meeting with the employees. (Meetings, as a rule, are only held on Saturdays.) The district manager announced to us that the store will close the doors to the public on June 20. He also informed us of the Blue Cross coverage.

Still there will be no store-to-store transfers for any employees. He did say that he would inform the neighboring K-marts, that this store has been given the opportunity to have interviews and fill out applications. So far every girl who has followed up on this has been told that the store is not hiring at this time.

We want to work. We want jobs.

A joke

To the Editor:

This is in response to a letter to the editor titled "Do not withhold news." It's about withholding the names of the six seniors who vandalized South's library.

I was disturbed to read a five-paragraph letter to the editor about how the public has the right to know the names of the seniors, and it is ended by "Name withheld by request."

When I first read it, I laughed because I though it was a joke. If this person thinks he or she has the right to know the names, why does he/she request that his/her name be withheld, unless it IS a joke?

Good story

To the Editor:

I am writing in response to your article on John D. (April 23, 1987.) I want to congratulate you on this article. There are many people my age who are experimenting with drugs and alcohol. We need to be reminded of what can happen to abusers.

The young man may have given an interview for the article with the intention of lessening his sentence. But my peer group needs to hear, see and read about things like this, especially former South High School students.

Although John D. did something wrong, maybe his experience will tell people my age not to do the same thing that ruined his life.

Bill to improve business climate

By William R. Bryant, Jr.
State Representative

A major compromise workers' compensation reform bill was passed by the House two weeks ago. The bill was a substitute developed by a coalition of business and labor interests brought together by the fact that Michigan's troubled existing law will expire May 15 if there is no action.

I would have preferred the Republican Senate version of Senate Bill 67 in the form it was sent to us by the Senate in March, and Republicans in the House did vote unanimously to support the stronger Senate version. The Senate version was defeated and then the compromise bill was enacted on a bi-partisan vote.

The compromise does not deal with the question of whether the State Accident Fund is a public or private entity. A Senate-passed package of bills which would clarify its status as a private business has not been considered by the House Labor Committee. An amendment tying passage of those bills to the Workers' Compensation bill failed, also on a near straight-party line vote.

The bill has been returned to the Senate for consideration of the House version. It's still possible that a stronger bill can be negotiated in the Senate. In any event it does seem likely now that a decent Workers' Compensation bill, which will improve our business climate, will be on the governor's desk ahead of the May 15 deadline and that he will sign it.

Memorial Nursery accepting students

Memorial Nursery School in Grosse Pointe Farms is accepting applications for the fall semester for the 3-, 4- and 5-year-old program.

The school was founded in 1957 as a cooperative and will celebrate its 30th anniversary this year. The school's objective is to help youngsters make an easy transition from home life to elementary school by encouraging parents' involvement in their child's activities and in the school's operation.

The students have been involved with activities and field trips, such as monthly visits to the library for story hour, a hospital tour, attending special events at the Detroit Institute of Arts and a future visit to Belle Isle.

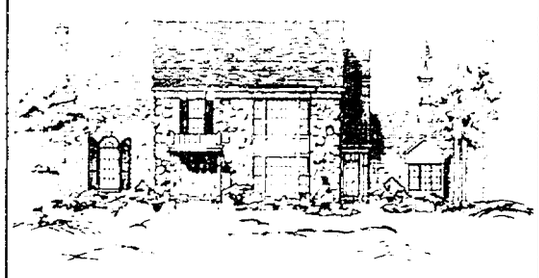

Hours are from 9 a.m. to noon and tuition ranges from $342 for the 3-year-old class and $468 for the 4- and 5-year-old program.

salmon, liver pate, cheddar cheese, jam and a package of ascorbic acid for lemon or orange juice. The assembly line plant produced 14,000 packages daily. It was one of three in the United States. Others were in Philadelphia and St. Louis.

The Senate passed a bill that would make available to the army $49 billion.

In Grosse Pointe, the big news was the swimming ban. Residents were waiting impatiently for some relief while the councils of the various municipalities discussed the situation and waited for the Department of Health to take action. The beaches were closed because Macomb County sewage was pouring into Lake St.Clair. A Macomb County commissioner charged that Wayne County was "trying to soak" Macomb for sewage treatment. The Pointers Club, consisting of more than 800 youths, had a meeting at the Neighborhood Club to combat the ban. St. Clair Shores defied the edict and opened its beach for swimming, but the council there ordered the beach closed.

The unseasonably hot weather and the ban brought headaches to pool owners throughout the Pointes. Youngsters traveled in droves from private pool to private pool, begging owners to allow them to swim. Police were kept busy shooing the children out of pools where they had been sneaking in. According to the story, many of the children were reported as being very surly when refused permission to swim. They should realize, the article continued, that residents with private pools are entitled to their privacy and that they too have a health problem. Small private pools would soon be polluted if they were thrown open to the public, the paper reported.

A battle Grosse Pointe Farms had been waging for years, to collect taxes since 1936 from the city of Detroit for the Alger museum property on Lakeshore, ended. Village trustees voted to cancel the taxes, which totaled $21,769.87 and to strike the current year's assessment of $189,600 from the tax rolls. The council's action came after it was notified that the case had been tossed out of court.

Joseph Trombley, who had been acting chief of the Farms police department for six months, was named permanent chief.

1st Lt. William L. Newnan, Grosse Pointe member of the world-famous American Rangers, who was reported missing following the Operation, "Beachhead Alamo" at Cisterna, Italy, in January, was reported alive and well. According to the story, he would probably be on his way home at any time. His story was one of the stirring epics of the war, the story continued. "Four thousand boys, the flower of young American manhood, were recruited in the First, Third and Fourth Ranger battalions and trained as perhaps no soldiers have ever been trained, under Col. Bill Darby, founder of the Rangers. Today there are 160 of these 4,000 left."

Assigned one of the toughest jobs they were told to take Cisterna, with orders to filter through the German lines, take the town and hold it until infantry support arrived the following day. They did. However, their position was considered so hopeless that support was never sent and the news reports came through that the Rangers had been wiped out. Five men, however, had made their way back to the lines.

Four men from the area were inducted into the Army. They were Charles F. Rousseau, Clifford R. Goodner, Ralph J. Wieneke and James A. Doot.

A petition signed by more than 100 residents protesting the widening of Fisher Road was presented to the Grosse Pointe Farms council. Trustees promised the residents that nothing would be done without a public hearing which would come, if ever, some time after the war ended.

Get ready for the garage sale

For the sixth year, Grosse Pointe's Greatest Garage Sale will take place over Memorial Day weekend in the Carriage House Parking Garage behind Jacobson's in the Village.

To be held from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m., Sunday and Monday, May 24 and 25, the garage sale will feature individuals selling household white elephants and treasures, craftsmen displaying their specialties, antiques, T-shirts and flea market fancies.

Over the past five years, church groups, hospital auxiliaries, neighborhood groups, community service clubs and individuals from all the area have participated.

Sponsored by the Grosse Pointe Village Association, the sale's aim is to raise enough money to sponsor Grosse Pointe's Santa Claus Parade, held the day after Thanksgiving each year.

Profits come from the rental of 9x18 foot spaces. Rental for the two days is $60, plus a refundable $10 clean-up fee. There will be an additional charge for electrical outlets. Additional profits come from the 50 cent admission fee, with children under 12 years old admitted free. Local cartoonist Arkie Hudkins will be on premises from noon to 2 p.m. on Sunday, May 24, to autograph T-shirts which will be for sale.

Any individual or group wishing to rent space should call 885-1900, leaving name and telephone number. A member of the Village Association will call back with detailed information.

Cable show gives residents chance to quiz police on crime

By Peter A. Salinas
Staff Writer

The three most important factors a thief will look for when considering whether to break into a home is the posting of Neighborhood Watch signs, double deadbolt locks on doors and the presence of a dog.

That's according to Farms Detective Daniel Jensen, who provided the crime prevention tips May 6 during a special live Grosse Pointe Cable television talk show sponsored by the Exchange Club of Grosse Pointe/St. Clair Shores.

Jensen, along with three other public safety department officials, two members of the press and host John Prost, appeared on the hour-long program designed to provide information concerning crime prevention directly to residents. Viewers were invited to call in their questions and at least 25 took the opportunity to ask the experts.

Park crime safety officer Sgt. Randall Cain told the audience that the most important tool a public safety department has are the eyes and ears of the residents it serves.

Cain said that members of Neighborhood Watch groups or any citizen who notices anything suspicious should call police with the information. A unit will respond, he said.

All of the officers on the show noted that auto theft is up in nearly all the Grosse Pointes. City Detective Dennis Van Dale said that one of the best ways to provide for the safety of an automobile is the installation of a kill switch, which can cost from $40 to $70. A kill switch prevents the car battery from sending a current to the starter until the car owner flips the hidden device. A car thief won't spend the time searching for a switch, according to the officers, and will move on to another vehicle.

Woods youth officer, Detective Daniel Koerber, told the audience that many of the stolen radar detectors taken from vehicles in the Pointes end up in the hands of high school students.

Koerber has an office at North High and also at Parcells Middle School, and is the only officer assigned to the Grosse Pointe school system on a permanent basis.

Koerber said it took a while before the students realized what he was doing at the school, and that after they realized he's there to help them, they have been willing to discuss things with him.

Koerber said he hears a whole range of topics from the students, including tips on criminal activity, discussions about suicide, questions about law and help in solving problems.

Jensen said that because there is no youth officer at South, he feels put at a disadvantage. He said that years ago there was an officer at the school, but that program was ended. Funding, he said, seemed to be the problem.

A time-honored crime prevention tip that the officers said seems to have been forgotten is etching one's belongings with an identification number.

Van Dale said the identification number now being used is the driver's license number, because it can be traced through police computers.

Koerber added that keeping a record of the serial numbers of items, such as radar detectors or VCRs, helps police when it's time to prosecute. All of the officials agreed that keeping the numbers in a safe place, such as a safe deposit box or in a fireproof safe, is a good idea.

All of the departments keep a list of people who are on vacation. Those homes are watched more closely. Cain said department personnel will not make a physical search of the home every day — that would attract attention. Officers are more likely to keep an eye out for things such as cars parked where they don't belong and suspicious persons in an area.

Other ideas to keep in mind before going on vacation are to ask trusted neighbors to pick up mail, make sure the lawn gets cut, set up timers to turn lights on and off and perhaps even leave a car parked in the drive to make it appear as much as possible that someone is home.

Williams to be honored by Civic Searchlight

Civic Searchlight's Distinguished Public Service Award will be presented to former Chief Justice G. Mennen Williams at the organization's 75th anniversary dinner Tuesday, May 19, at the Detroit Institute of Arts. A reception from 6 p.m. to 7:15 p.m. will precede dinner.

Previous recipients of the award were Martha W. Griffiths, Wade H. McCree, Stanley S. Kresge, Philip A. Hart, James H. Lincoln, James M. Roche, Ray W. Macdonald and Alfred M. Pelham.

Toastmaster will be Neal Shine, managing editor of The Detroit Free Press, also a Grosse Pointe resident.

Tickets at $35, covers the cost of the dinner and a hosted bar starting at 6 p.m. For information, call 961-1330.

Blood drive

The Grosse Pointe Community Blood Council will sponsor a blood drive Thursday, May 21, at St. Michael's Episcopal Church, 20475 Sunningdale Park, behind Bonanza Restaurant, from 2 to 8 p.m.

Babysitters and transportation will be available. This is a community-wide drive for the benefit of all. Walk-ins are welcome. For further information, call 881-8407.

Auction action

The 20th Grosse Pointe Academy Action Auction was an unqualified success, according to general chairman Ardis Gardella. When all the receipts are totaled, the event is expected to have raised more than $500,000. "We know the live auction totaled $320,000, and that puts us over the top," Gardella said. The two silent auctions, one on auction night and one at the preview party, had yet to be totaled at presstime.

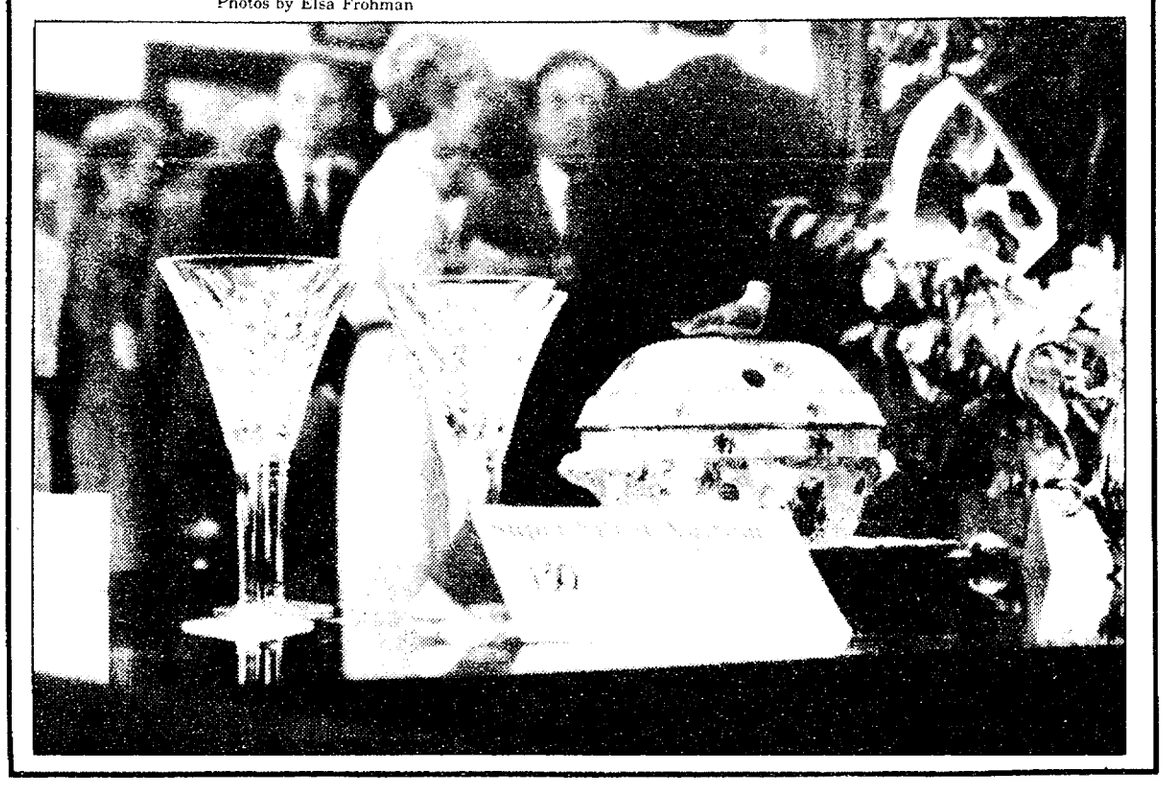

The 2-year-old thoroughbred, Bay Filly, brought $14,000. One of the cruises brought in a stunning $25,000. The DeLorean sportscar went for $13,000 and the two replica Mercedes went for $9,000 apiece. At the right, Sean Gardella, son of the auction chairman, holds one of the shar pei puppies, which brought $1,500. Below, merchandise is set out for examination at the preview party.

The preview, which included the silent auction of some 200 items, was held May 6. The main auction was held May 9.

"We've really been blessed," Gardella said. "The weather was perfect."

Going, going, gone!

A Grosse Pointe house is sold at auction

There was a county fair atmosphere — bright sunshine and cool shade under tall trees, families wandering over the broad green lawn, sun glasses and broad-brimmed hats — everything but an ice cream and hot dog vender in the courtyard.

It was an auction, but a rare auction indeed, because on this day it wouldn't be furniture and personal belongings on the block. It would be the house itself — the paneling and flooring and light fixtures and fireplaces and finally even the copper roofing and rain gutters.

Many of those who came were spectators only. They wandered through the empty house and touched the French wood panelling, examined the crystal and brass chandeliers and sconces and peeked into the servants' quarters.

But others were there on business and went through the house like shoppers, measuring the fireplace mantle, checking the wiring in the chandelier and taking detailed notes in their catalogs.

Then, at the appointed hour, 11 a.m., the buyers and the spectators settled on folding chairs in the courtyard. Lawrence DuMouchelle conducted the sale, divided into some 130 items that encompassed the substance of the house.

It began with the stone front entrance with its carved cornices, cherub masks and wrought iron railing above. Two hours later, it was over, and all that remained was for the buyers to claim their merchandise.

The dismantling continues through this week. On Monday, lighting fixtures, doors, fireplaces, bathroom fixtures and other surface details were removed.

On Tuesday, the dining room, drawing room, kitchen and second floor bedrooms were to be taken. The stairways and exterior items were scheduled to be removed by Friday.

By next week, the marble goat sculptures will be gone from the lake side porch and the cement palace urns will be gone from the posts above the driveway and the numerous pairs of wooden shutters will be gone from the windows.

The French bronze door knockers will be taken off the doors and the doors and transom window will be removed.

The house is nearly 75 years old, serving first the widow of Henry Stephens, then the Ernest Kanzler family. It was designed by Charles A. Platt, who was also the architect of the Russell Alger House.

At the right, Lawrence DuMouchelle acknowledges a bid from the audience, as Elizabeth DuMouchelle stands by with a clipboard. Below, a bidder holds up his bidding paddle, a numbered piece of cardboard, to indicate interest in an item.

window.

"I knew absolutely nothing about trees," he said. "So I went to a nursery and they trotted out a crab apple I planted that was spectacular, but it drew the cedar waxwings and they cleaned out the fruit in three days."

His search took him to the Wayne County Highway Department for the species of crab apples on Lakeshore, but the records were lost and the trees began dying of old age.

"So I began reading and went to the library and finally got in touch with the person who heads the arboretum at Harvard. He put me in touch with a man in Des Moines, and this kind gentleman sent me three Ormiston Roys in 1958 which were a couple of inches high."

The Ormiston Roys were exactly what Abbs was looking for and he began experimenting with other crab apple trees.

"I was being carried away by trees. It became an all-consuming passion."

He was working for an advertising agency and in his business travels, he would visit botanical gardens. His favorites include Central Park in New York, Missouri Botanical Gardens in St. Louis, Audubon Park in New Orleans, Hyde Park in London and Matthei Gardens in Ann Arbor.

"So now I'm getting into landscape architecture as well as trees and I'm discovering all of these marvelous trees," he said. "I think I drive nurserymen crazy, because I'm always in the back looking for something different."

He couldn't resist a Washington Hawthorne he bought in a nursery in Marine City, but when he got it home, he had no place to put it. "So I took it over to Bon Secours Hospital and today it's a massive tree."

In fact, the grounds fronting Cadieux display several trees, courtesy of Abbs, who says his motive is selfish as well, since it gives him something pleasant to look at.

The area is wonderful for growing trees, he said, like the Kentucky coffee tree and the tulip tree. "Five miles away they can't grow the things we grow," he said, attributing it to the lake which he said has a tempering effect.

His wife doesn't share his passion for trees to the same degree. "She just says, go ahead."

Abbs prunes the scotch pines, trimming branches, so that it is possible to look through them. As to the best time to prune, he says: 'Whenever the fancy strikes you."

On one of his trips to Boston, he was taken with the sycamores on the Veteran's Memorial Highway. "It was landscaped with gigantic sycamores in the middle and it was absolutely smashing looking. In New York City, they grow in concrete. That's why we planted sycamores on Jefferson — they withstand city conditions."

The Beautification Commission planted some hedge maples in the Park as an experiment, because of a stand of about six or seven or them on University and Jefferson that are about 60 years old, Abbs said.

"You wonder why more of these trees aren't planted," he said, referring to unusual species. "People tend to ask for what they know and they know maples and oaks."

Trees lead to landscaping, he said. "I'm not a landscaper, but I fool with it."

He walks through his yard, naming the trees and pointing out the differences. There's a Japanese black pine, a cork tree, a sweet gum, a yellow wood, a Swiss stone pine. He points to a lace bark pine. "By the time I'm 100 years old, this will be a great tree.

"You can measure a community's civilization by the trees, because you're planting for the next generation — you're leaving a legacy."

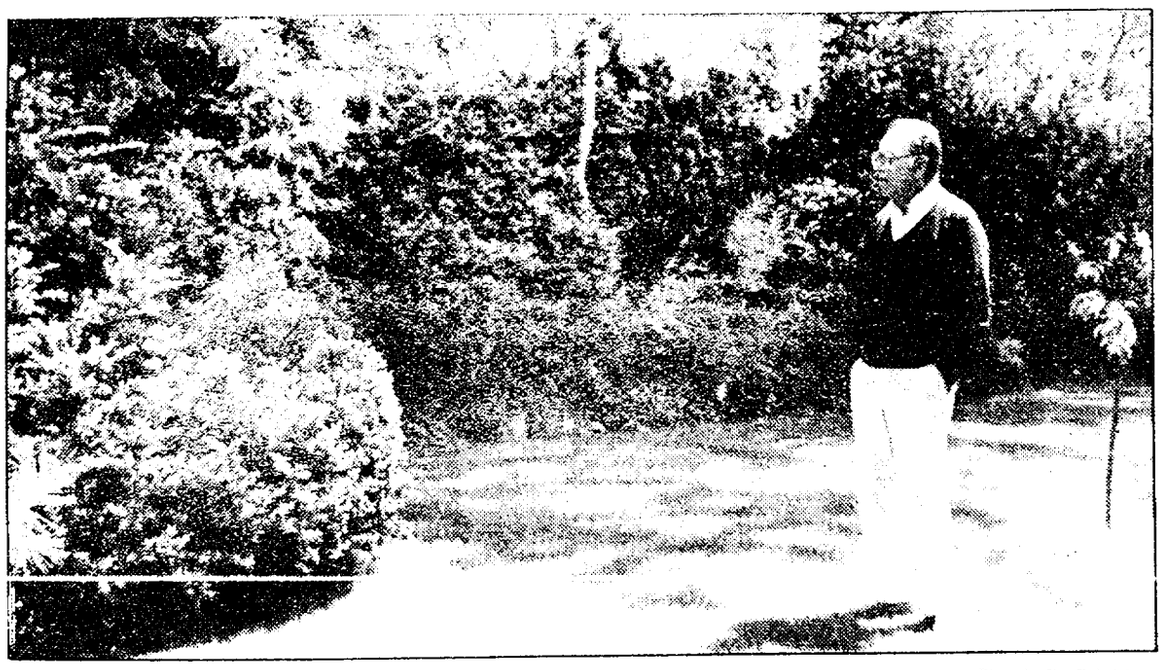

And he has passed on his interest to his children. All four of them — a son who teaches in Texas, and three daughters, a medical technician, a lawyer and a registered nurse, all of whom live in Grosse Pointe — are interested in landscaping.

When he retired in 1983, his company, Otto & Abbs, handled the Frito Lay account. While the current company, Baker, Abbs, Cunningham & Klepinger bears his name, he no longer has any connection.

And he enjoys his retirement. "I can't figure why I didn't start sooner. I figured when I retired, I would become a docent at the Detroit Institute of Arts, but I haven't had a chance yet."

He walks a lot and rides his bike all over. He enjoys reading. "The only problem is I'm an omnivorous reader. I'll read anything and I get carried away into crazy researches, like trees, antiques, paintings."

His other interest is his grandchildren, six of them from 3 to 14.

Jerry Abbs stands in his yard.

the Kanzler House to the public's attention "firehouse preservation." The society heard about the possibility of demolition, then it was as if gongs were ringing and whistles blowing and people were rushing around frantically to save something worthwhile.

Michael Kirk is an architect with Kirk & Koskela Architects. He's interested in historic preservation, is a founding member and past president of Cityscape Detroit. Kirk said he's dismayed by the apparent loss of the Kanzler house. "Obviously, the intent is to demolish the building." If they didn't want the house as it was, he said, "they would have been better off starting with a blank piece of land. There are lots of things that can be done with an estate this size (besides tearing it down.) An old house is more flexible because the roof is already on and people can spread their costs out over a long period of time. The Fords are setting an unfortunate example.

"It's deplorable," said Kirk, "to quote W. Hawkins Ferry's book, 'The Buildings of Detroit, A History' on the first page of the auction catalog, out of context." The quote praises the French baroque residence for its distinction because of its simplicity of design and refinement of detail — the exquisite details and ornate work that make the house a work of art. "Then they remove and auction off all the valuable details that are what makes the house so unique."

W. Hawkins Ferry's letter, which was delivered personally to the Fords along with the historical society's plea said, in part, "Even if you alter the interior of the house, hopefully the exterior can remain unchanged as a historical monument of old Grosse Pointe and as evidence that we as civilized people respect the priceless and irreplacable heritage of the past."

John Defoe, Grosse Pointe Farms building director, said that no demolition permit had been requested for the house yet.

board reclaimed possession of that lot for library use.

No amount of money has been specified publicly for the parking study. City Clerk Richard Solak said Monday morning that the Farms council was still deciding whether or how the costs would be split with the schools. Hanson and board President Vincent LoCicero both said earlier that the city had told the board it would be asked to participate in the cost.

Several board members questioned the desirability of helping to pay for the study.

"I'd like to see some dollar amount," Gandelot said. "I've heard it will be $1,000, but what will we get for that $1,000? We may have to contract our own study.

"I sense there's more urgency on this board than on the part of the Farms to solve this problem."

Ultimately the board agreed to participate financially in order to guarantee a more objective study and to obtain a copy of the study when it is completed. But an ordinance variance may not be necessary in the end, LoCicero hinted.

"Maybe we don't have to do anything with the city of Grosse Pointe Farms," he said. "Maybe this whole thing is controlled by the Department of Education. We're looking into that."

Meanwhile, library plans are on hold until an understanding can be reached. School and library officials say the city isn't communicating.

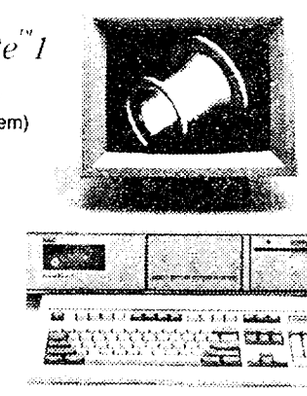

"We're eager to plunge forward," Hanson said last week.

Because municipal library parking requirements vary widely from city to city, the Farms decided to take another look at its ordinance, according to Solak. Vilican-Leman has the background and familiarity with the city necessary to assess its needs, he said.

Vilican-Leman will be asked to meet with library personnel to discuss needs and plans. The firm will also research current parking standards in similar communities and prepare recommendations.

The Farms ordinance now requires one parking spot for every 100 square feet of usable space. If that were adhered to, it would mean approximately 330 spaces, or nearly half of the South High School athletic field. South officials have protested any potential loss to the library needs committee.

Dorothy Scherer Higbie

Services were held Saturday, May 9, 1987 at Grosse Pointe Memorial Church for Dorothy Scherer Higbie, 85, of Grosse Pointe. Mrs. Higbie died May 6 at Cottage Hospital.

She was the daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Hugo Scherer, prominent Detroit business leaders in the early 1900s. She was the granddaughter of Traugott Schmidt, the furrier whose tannery is now Trappers Alley.

According to her grandson, Mark, she was devoted to her family and was an all-around sportswoman and horticulturist. She was the first woman inducted into the Michigan Golf Hall of Fame. She won the state Amateur Golf Tournament five times, the Women's District Golf Association six times, and she qualified for the U.S. Amateur Team 10 times — every time she entered. As the quarter-finalist in 1929, she went on to win the qualifying medal in 1931. She had the distinction of retiring both the state and the district trophies after three successive victories, according to her grandson. She was Country Club of Detroit champion 19 times and was a member of the first U.S. Curtis Cup team which played against Great Britain in 1932.

Mrs. Higbie's volunteer career began in 1941, with the American Red Cross and she was appointed to the board in 1944, continuing actively on numerous committees until her death. Her greatest interest was the Blood Bank program, he said.

Retiring principal looks back with fondness, few regrets

By Nancy Parmenter
Staff Writer

Don Bassett has been so busy all his life that there's a good chance, come June, he might not even notice he's retired. Except that he likes his job.

"I ask myself every summer how I ever find time to go to work," Bassett said. "But every day I enjoy coming here."

"Here" has been Pierce Middle School for the last nine years. Before that, it was Maire and before that it was Brownell and Mason and Barnes. And Ferry and Trombly — for a total of 33 years in the Grosse Pointe schools.

Now it's time for the next step in Bassett's life. "You never really know what it's like till you try it," he said. "There are concerns and excitement — I don't plan to just sit."

What he's more likely to do is tinker with his bechives at the cottage up at Port Sanilac or travel around visiting his far-flung family. Bassett is an enthusiastic investor and hopes to have more time to study the market. And he thinks he'll go back to school.

"I have enough major projects to keep me busy for years," he says.

Being excited about retirement doesn't distance him from the task at hand, however. He waves the latest issue of the Detroit Free Press, marked all over with yellow highlighter showing the names of Pierce students who excelled in a recent writing contest. He walks through the office, talking to the students.

"Who are you here to see?" On hearing the name of a counselor, he says, "Uh-oh" — with a smile. "Do you work at a bank?" he asks a late arrival. "You must, with the hours you keep."

Bassett is fond of the traditions that still exist at Pierce. While keeping up with the times, the school hasn't thrown out all of the old.

"It's working hard, giving extra, doing things you don't have to do — things like the big sesquicentennial celebration — I'm so darned enthusiastic about that," he said.

It's also little things like teachers monitoring the halls between classes and the principal trying never to let administrative duties keep him from mingling with the students.

"It's so stimulating working with these teachers," Bassett said. "I have to stay on top of things or these people will eat me up."

There have been some changes since Bassett first got into the educational field. Some are good, some not so good, in his opinion.

The biggest one is the age of computers. Bassett is delighted to see Grosse Pointe in the forefront.

"At first I thought we were really dragging our feet, but now we're out in front," he said. "We used to have trouble getting people to use them. Now everybody wants to take them home."

A less positive change is in the attitude of some of the public. While most parents are as supportive of education as they ever were, Bassett said there's a growing minority with different ideas.

"We're doing more parenting things than we should have to. There are more and more people who want to impose their own system of values. Sometimes as many as 20 percent of the kids are out of school the day before vacation. It's frustrating for a teacher to do all that work and preparation — what's a teacher to do?"

Frustrations aside, there are no regrets about spending a lifetime in teaching. Bassett's wife Fran, his "daily inspirational," is a Grosse Pointe teacher too. "We bounce ideas off each other," he said. "We get home and the first question is, 'how was school today?'"

There are hardly any regrets about leaving, either. "The one regret I have is that I'd like to have stayed on longer with the new superintendent," Bassett said. "I see such positive changes in the schools. He'll call up for lunch and I wonder what he wants, but it turns out he just wants lunch. He does that to get his fingers on the pulse. It's hard to get used to that.

"I feel good about leaving when things are going so well.

"I've had nothing but good years. I feel lucky to work in a district like this. Everywhere I go, people know Grosse Pointe.

"It's nice to have positive things to look back on."

Bassett says he looks forward to retirement with very few regrets.

About kids

"One of the satisfactions is running into former students bringing their kids around to see the school," Bassett said. "It's interesting how many of the kids I can remember — what they did, who their brothers and sisters are."

"Kids have changed a lot in a positive way. About 10 years ago, we hit a low in terms of their attitude. It's been upward since then."

"There's a constant concern about drugs. We do a good job of recognizing it and not sweeping it under the rug. There are so many school and community groups working on it.

"I think it'll turn around just like smoking did. You know, smoking is not so acceptable any more."

Bassett makes an unscheduled visit to a sixth-grade classroom to see what the students are doing. He looks over Amanda Ault's paper as she gets ready to take a test.

Grosse Pointe doctor studies ways to reduce hypertension

By Margie Reins Smith
Staff Writer

If you've been finishing your milk, eating your yogurt, or taking your calcium supplement, you may be doing more than keeping your bones in good repair and preventing dowager's hump. You may be lowering your blood pressure — perhaps warding off a heart attack or a stroke as well.

Grosse Pointer James R. Sowers, M.D. is chief of endocrinology and hypertension at Harper-Grace Hospitals, professor of medicine and physiology at Wayne State University School of Medicine, and director of the hypertension program at the VA Medical Center in Allen Park. He's interested in the treatment of hypertension, or high blood pressure, a health problem that affects 60 million people in the U.S.

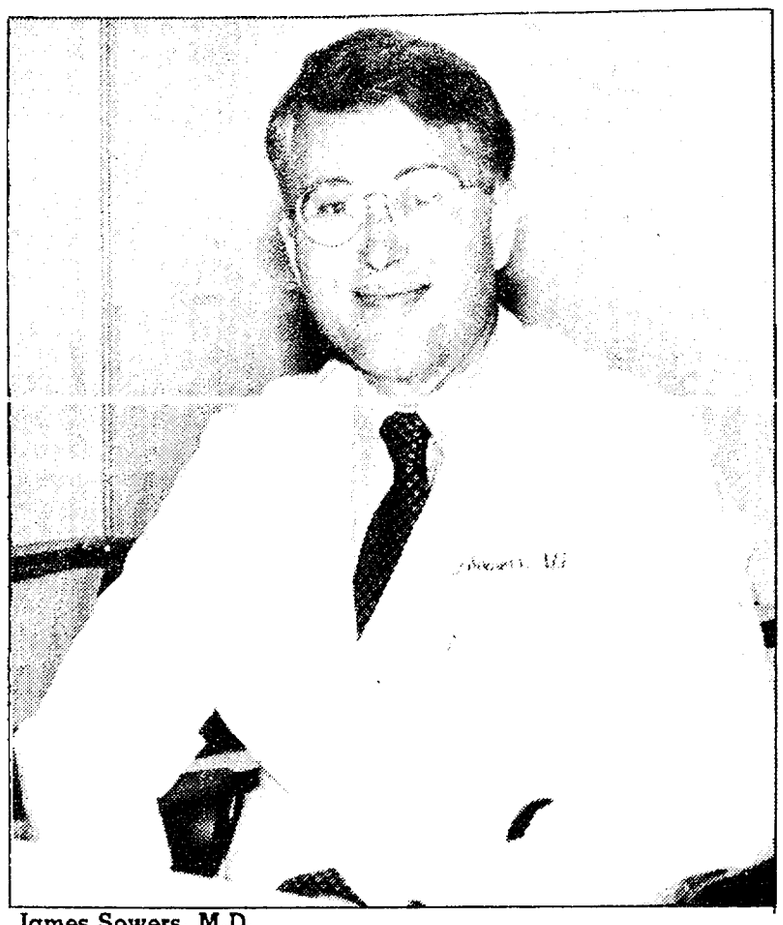

He has found that calcium is an important part of the treatment.

"High blood pressure is mostly asymptomatic," he said. "That's the problem in recognizing it. Most people with hypertension feel fine. Many feel lousy after they begin taking medication to correct it."

Sowers' research has turned up evidence that high blood pressure can often be treated with changes in diet, instead of with drugs.

Sowers began his research eight years ago while working with obese patients who also had high blood pressure. "I was interested in nutrition and how it was related to hypertension. I wanted to find out why obese people have high blood pressure and why, as they lose weight, their blood pressure generally comes down."

Sowers is a native of the Kansas City, Mo., area and went to the University of Missouri Medical School. He did his fellowship training at UCLA, in endocrinology; then he joined the faculty at UCLA; later he was on the faculty of the Medical College of Virginia.

James Sowers, M.D.

Sowers moved to Grosse Pointe 2 1/2 years ago, settled with his wife and three children in Grosse Pointe Farms, and continued his studies at Harper-Grace.

He began his research on hypertension at UCLA. "We discovered that obesity and salt intake were independent factors that contributed to high blood pressure," he said. "About 60 to 70 percent of the population is salt sensitive," he said. "That is, salt induces hypertension. We also discovered that when calcium was added to their diets, their blood pressures fell. This has broadened our understanding of how nutrition is involved in high blood pressure.

"Five years ago, we became interested in other aspects of nutrition, especially calcium and magnesium and how they counter the effect of salt-induced high blood pressure. Now, he said, research is finding that other nutrients — trace elements such as zinc and chromium may be involved in the treatment of hypertension.

This research, he said, will probably be of most benefit to older people and the black population because, statistically, these two groups are most likely to consume less calcium and be salt sensitive.

The studies are particularly valuable, Sowers said, because it is generally easier to add something — like calcium — to your diet than to restrict something — like salt — or to take medicine.

Sowers emphasized that low fat dairy products are better sources of calcium than calcium supplements because dairy products provide other nutrients that are important as well. He also recommends that people have their blood pressure checked at least once a year, as part of an annual physical examination. Blood pressure is measured with two numbers, systolic over diastolic pressure. Diastolic, the lower number, Sowers said, should be 90. Eighty is better. The systolic number depends on the individual's age, he said. "A middle aged person should be 140 or below. An older person can be 160 or below."

He's currently looking for volunteers to participate in a project involving hypertension and magnesium. "We think magnesium holds promise for lowering blood pressure and protecting against heart disease." Anyone with high blood pressure who would like to volunteer should call 745-3306.

An ice cream social with music and a door prize will be held Wednesday, May 20, to benefit the mental health services of the Northeast Guidance Center. The ice cream fest will go on rain or shine at the Cannon Recreation Center, Cadieux at Warren, between 6:30 and 8:30 p.m.

For information, call the Guidance Center at 824-8000.

Colitis program at Cottage

"Coping with Ileitis (Crohn's disease) and Ulcerative Colitis" will be the topic of a four-week program at Cottage Hospital that will begin Thursday, May 21, from 7 p.m. to 9 p.m. Sponsored by Michigan Chapter, National Foundation for Ileitis and Colitis, the program is open to patients, their families and interested others.

The purpose of the program is to give patients an opportunity to meet in an informal setting to learn how to overcome the fear and the social isolation that come with the diseases.

To register for the series or to obtain information about ileitis and ulcerative colitis, contact the National Foundation for Ileitis and Colitis, 17000 West Eight Mile Road, Suite 238, Southfield, Mich. 48075, telephone 424-8656.

Desserts for weight loss

Chef Janice Fennell will prepare "Dessert Delights" at an open Weight Watchers meeting Monday, May 18, 9:30 a.m., at the War Memorial.

This is an open Weight Watchers meeting and is free to all visitors.

Handwriting analysis

Ruth Holmes, a certified graphoanalyst, will explore the intricacies of handwriting analysis Thursday, May 21, from 7:30 to 9:30 p.m. "Your Script Is Showing," will be presented at the War Memorial.

Find out what personality traits are revealed by handwriting and how a trained expert detects them. Once considered a part of the occult, graphology is becoming an accepted means of screening job applications and selecting jurors.

An instructor at Oakland Community College, Holmes specializes in analysis for business, legal and private clients. Class fee is $10 per person. For additional information, call 881-7511.

Tower staff wins awards

The Tower dominated Class A newspaper competition at the annual convention of the Michigan Interscholastic Press Association with South students taking at least one award in 15 of 21 categories and first in five areas.

The performance won The Tower one of four Spartan Awards, given to any newspaper scoring at least 18 points in the contest. The Tower scored 35 points. Other Spartan Award winners in Class A were Grand Haven, Jackson and Southfield High Schools.

Additionally, Linda Gaglio, editor of The Tower, was one of three runners-up to the winner of the All-MIPA award for the state's outstanding student journalist.

First place winners included Taylor Lincoln for sports feature story, Debby Cho for feature column, Joe Helminski for editorial page, Lisa Fromm for front page, and the special spring edition published a year ago for best magazine.

Second place awards went to Lisa Fromm for editorial writing, Ian McLaren for news/feature biography, and for overall newspaper design. Third place winners were Joe Helminski for editorial page and Taylor Lincoln for sports page.

South students won seven honorable mentions: Sara Wasinger for in-depth/informative feature, Reba Uthappa for human interest feature, Linda Gaglio for news story, Reba Uthappa for personality profile, Ian McLaren for portrait photography, Craig Vogt for illustration, and the Imprints staff for literary magazine.

Village of Grosse Pointe Shores

WAYNE AND MACOMB COUNTIES

NOTICE OF PUBLIC HEARING ON INCREASING PROPERTY TAXES

The Village Council of the Village of Grosse Pointe Shores will hold a public hearing at 8:30 A.M. on Tuesday, May 26, 1987 in the Council Chambers of the Village Hall, 795 Lake Shore Road, Grosse Pointe Shores, to receive comments and discuss a proposed additional 1987 Village operating millage rate.

In 1986 the Village levied 14.32 mills ($14.32 per $1,000 State Equalized Valuation) for Village operating purposes. Because of an estimated increase in State Equalized Valuation of existing property within the Village, State Law, Act 5 of 1982, provides that the base tax rate for 1987 Village operating taxes be reduced to 13.52 mills ($13.52 per $1,000 SEV). This is .80 mills (80¢ per $1,000 SEV) lower than the 1986 operating rate.

In order to fund the Village's proposed 1987/88 budget and maintain essential services, and to make necessary repairs to its infrastructure system, the Village finds it necessary to increase its operating levy for fiscal year 1987/88 by 1.84 mills ($1.84 per $1,000 SEV) above the 1987 base tax rate (13.52). This will provide an estimated 13.61% increase in Village operating tax revenues and would result in a 1987 operating tax rate of 15.36 mills ($15.36 per $1,000 SEV). Under its Charter and State law, the Village has complete authority to establish the number of mills to be levied within its fully authorized millage rate.

Public comments on the proposed increase, oral or written, are welcome.

Student Spotlight

Catherine Guastello

Each week in this column, we will focus on the work of a student. It can be a poem, a drawing, a short story, a picture of a scientific experiment or a woodworking project, a book review.

The following was written by 9-year-old Catherine Mary Guastello, a fourth-grader at University Liggett School. The essay was the final result of a dinosaur research unit conducted by science teacher Mike Bowden. Catherine is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Guastello of Grosse Pointe Woods.

Catherine Guastello

Anne the Anatosaurus

Anne was an Anatosaurus. My name, Anatosaurus, means duck lizard. We are called that because we have a duck-like bill. One day I was eating a breakfast of tasty plants when I saw a Tyrannosaurus, Uh Oh!! I've got to hide!! I don't want to become his breakfast. Hiding is kind of hard because I'm 30 feet long, 14 feet tall and I weigh 3-1/2 tons. I finally found a bunch of trees and underbrush in the tropical forest I live in.

I got to choose where I wanted to live. I could have lived in North America, Montana, Alberta, Wyoming, Canada, Europe, Asia or Japan. I picked Japan because I heard there weren't as many Tyrannosauruses.

I run rapidly with my tail outstretched. I love swimming because I'm a super swimmer. I've got a flat crocodile tail which helps me swim very fast.

I have sharp teeth and a bill. I use my teeth to chew tough plants. The males have larger horny beaks than us females.

My nose is high on my snout and I have very large eyes. My teeth are replaced. . . Shh!! the Tyrannosaurus is coming towards me!!. . . when they wear out.

I have a large flat wide bill which is perfect for eating plants. My front legs are almost as strong as my back legs and so I can run very fast. I have large three-toed feet and my fingers are webbed.

I lived in the cretaceous period. I was one of the last dinosaurs alive.

Well, the Tyrannosaurus is gone, I can finish my breakfast now. Good-bye.

This space is open to any student in the Grosse Pointe public or private school system from grades 1 through 12.

Send your entry along with a picture to Student Spotlight, Grosse Pointe News, 96 Kercheval, Grosse Pointe Farms 48236 or drop it off at the office. If you would like everything returned, enclose a stamped and self-addressed envelope.

South journalists honored

Two South seniors are among only 15 in the nation who will be honored by the National Federation of Press Women in Williamsburg, Va., next month for entries in the organization's 16th annual High School Journalism Contest.

Taylor Lincoln placed first in sports writing competition for a story published last May in The Tower on student athletes and alcohol.

Sara Wasinger placed third in news writing for a survey of student drinking and substance abuse patterns. Following publication in The Tower in January, the survey and related stories were reprinted by the school team and mailed with the Mothers' Club newsletter to the parents of all South students.

The two students who placed first in their categories of a statewide contest sponsored by the Michigan Press Women in January qualified for the national contest.

Lincoln, a senior, is The Tower's managing editor for sports. Wasinger, a junior, is managing editor for news and will be editor of the publication next year.

South to test financial program

Frances Twiddy

Frances Twiddy, certified financial planner and managing executive for Integrated Resources Equity Corporation will introduce financial planning education to South High School students through a specially designed curriculum.

Known as the High School Financial Planning Program, the new curriculum — the first of its kind developed — is part of a nationwide effort by the financial planning profession to provide young adults with much of the basic information and techniques necessary to cope with the strong economic pressures of today's changing society.

The program curriculum has been designed as a two-week intensive course that emphasizes such concepts as earning income, using credit, protecting against financial risks, investing and planning to meet financial goals.

The program was developed by the Denver, Colo., College for Financial Planning. In helping to implement the High School Financial Planning Program, Twiddy will work with Tom Wolverton at South. She will assist with the presentation of program materials and also will be available to answer questions from the students.

South is one of 24 schools throughout the country selected to test the program before it is made available nationwide.

Car wash

The South High School freshman class will hold a car wash Sunday, May 17, between noon and 4 p.m. at the school parking lot on Grosse Pointe Boulevard.

They will charge $2 for cars and $4 for vans. Proceeds will go to a yet-undesignated charity.

Ice age

The White and Green Mountains of New England were covered by at least 4,000 feet of ice at the height of North America's most recent glaciation, says National Geographic.

TRAVEL TIPS

by Winnie Manley

Travel is a subject which interests most people whether they're the "armchair" or "get-up-and-go" variety of traveler. I'm going to offer these Travel Tips columns on a regular basis to keep you informed on every aspect of travel. I hope you'll find them interesting and informative.

This one will deal briefly with the functions of a travel agent and explain how our service is the last bargain left in today's economy. It's strange how many travelers don't know that a travel agent's services are usually free or how valuable they are. You don't pay any more to book through us, for we earn our commissions from the airlines, steamship companies, tour operators, hotels and car rental companies with whom we do business. Inasmuch as we represent all companies, we're able to make the best arrangements for you in what might be considered "one stop shopping". In the case of custom itineraries or services for which we don't earn a commission, it might sometimes be necessary to make a small service charge, but this will always be spelled out in advance and these charges never apply on normal reservations.

We travel frequently ourselves to gain first hand knowledge and every client gets our best attention. We'll book your one way air ticket with as much care as your Round the World itinerary, and you'll receive the same time, personal service regardless of your destination. One phone call to us will give you the fares and schedules for all carriers and your tickets will be issued right in our office. You may even charge them on a credit card if you wish.

Your business is important to us, but your total satisfaction is of even greater concern. Let us book your next trip and see that in today's hurried, impersonal world there's still a place where service counts and the customer is King.

Contractor eliminates maintenance; retains detail

By Pat Paholsky
News Editor

His business is covering up and Bill Koczara says he's the only contractor he knows who does what he does. What he does is cover wood with aluminum. The hard part comes when the wood is ornamented with dozens of architectural details that the owner wants to retain — minus the maintenance.

Right now, Koczara's company, Charing Cross, is in the midst of major exterior work at Manufacturer's National Bank at Mack and Lochmoor. His company is wrapping 9,400 square feet of wood trim with aluminum, adhering faithfully to the colonial architecture. In addition, workers are replacing 275 dentil blocks — an architectural design of small rectangular blocks that are arranged in a row and look like teeth. Koczara said bank officials wanted to retain the colonial design of the building — built in the mid-'50s — but wanted to eliminate the constant maintenance.

"Every five years, they had to paint," he said. "Six contractors came in and looked at it and they couldn't duplicate the details."

With one month on the job, Koczara figures it'll take another two months to complete. There are two to three employees working full time plus overtime on the job. Redoing the drive-up teller windows, for instance, has to be done after hours.

For every 10 hours on the job, about three or four are spent back at the shop. The company also has a shop on wheels, a van equipped with tools including a 12-foot long Porto-brake, a machine used for bending the aluminum.

David Kaatz, the foreman, explained how the wooden railing surrounding the entrance to the building would be wrapped. The entire railing will have to be disassembled, cut away from the columnar posts to which they are attached, and each spindle will be wrapped with aluminum by hand. Some are tapered and not perfectly square, he said, and each of the 30 spindles will require individual fittings.

David Kaatz forms aluminum into a dentil block with a tool in the company van.

The cornice surrounding the upper part of the building has considerable detail. Koczara said it takes at least 18 steps to complete a section of the cornice which consists of the fascia, soffit, frieze and dentil blocks. There are eight components in one dentil block. Kaatz said it take two workers about four hours to cover one 12-foot section.

A gable at the back of the building is vented with wooden slats. Koczara said a contractor might replace it with a sheet of siding and put slits in the aluminum for ventilation. His company, however, will cover each slat with aluminum, he said.

It's an expensive process, he admits, but he says there is a market for his specialized work.

"Until five years ago, 90 percent of my business was residential — Grosse Pointe, Birmingham, Farmington — people who wanted the job done the right way and had the money," Koczara said. "My company posture changed in the last five years. Now 90 percent is multi-family, cluster homes and condominiums."

Charing Cross did the Coventry Park Homes in Royal Oak, 350 units.

"Most recently we finished Woodcreek Village for which the Woodcreek Association received a beautification award from Farmington," he said.

In a job similar to the bank, the company in the early '70s did the centennial building on 12 Mile in Warren owned by Chamberlain Real Estate.

Koczara, who started the business in 1969, began on Chandler Park and Moross. His office now is on East Warren.

He started out by studying pharmacy at Wayne State University, but got sidetracked and worked as a production buyer at G.M. Truck & Coach in Pontiac. He then worked as a manager of purchasing for another company and sold storm windows part time. That was his introduction to the business.

He and his family live in Grosse Pointe Woods.

MichCon to install remote reading system in Park, City, Farms

Early this summer, Michigan Consolidated Gas Company will install an outside remote meter reading system in the Park, City and Farms. The installation of the new computerized system will affect customers with inside meters only.

The company is currently installing the system in the Grand Boulevard area between the Detroit River and the Edsel Ford Freeway. Upon completion of the Grand Boulevard area, MichCon will work eastward to the Grosse Pointe area.

"Once the system is installed, MichCon meter readers will obtain actual readings of indoor gas meters from outside customers' residences," said Robert Sirkle, director, Field Service and Metering Operations. "The system will eliminate estimated bills."

MichCon expects 10,000 indoor meters in the three Grosse Pointe communities to be converted to the computerized system by the 1987-88 winter heating season. In the second year of a five-year meter conversion program, the company has already converted 158,000 of 600,000 indoor meters to the system.

Installation of a remote meter reading system requires a small, electronic sensor to be attached to the front of an indoor meter. A wire, connected to the sensor, is fed through the building wall and attached to a transmitting disc. The disc is then installed on the outside of the house.

Once installation is completed, a meter reader touches a data wand to the transmitting disc and obtains actual figures without entering a customer's home.

The meter read is recorded on a micro-cassette tape. When a meter reader finishes the route, the data on the tape is sent over telephone lines from a MichCon meter reading station to the company's main computer for bill processing.

Installation takes about 20 minutes and is free.

The company doesn't have to turn off gas service to do the work. If the meter is an older model, however, the company may need to replace the meter before installing the new system. In these cases, service will be shut off temporarily.

"Indoor gas meters are being converted to the remote meter reading system based on the customer billing dates," Sirkle said. MichCon expects the system to be fully functional in its Detroit, Ann Arbor, Grand Rapids and Muskegon service areas within the next three years.

St. Paul Catholic Church looks to future, remembers past

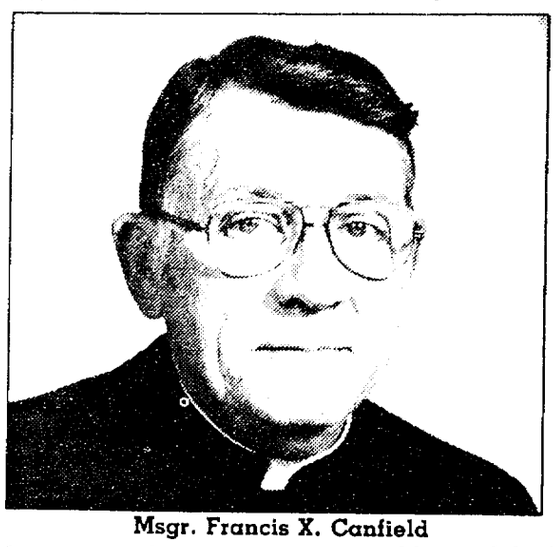

Editor's note: With this initial story on St. Paul's, we begin an occasional series on the churches of Grosse Pointe. By looking back at their beginnings — whether humble or grand — we hope to increase the reader's knowledge of the rich heritage of the area. Your comments or suggestions are welcome.

By Margie Reins Smith
Staff Writer

St. Paul Catholic Church, 157 Lakeshore, the oldest church parish in the Grosse Pointes, sits squarely on a prime piece of lakefront property, commanding a spectacular view of Lake St. Clair. The lake probably looks much the same as it did in 1848, when the first church building was erected on the site. But the swoosh of traffic along Lakeshore replaces the clip-clop of horses' hooves. Parishioners no longer have to be reminded, as they were in a turn-of-the-century church newsletter, to knock the mud off their boots before entering the church.

Msgr. Francis X. Canfield has been pastor at St. Paul for 16 years. He's keenly aware of the 19th century roots and the French influences that are part of St. Paul's heritage, holdovers from early Grosse Pointe French farmers who founded the parish. He's also seen some dramatic changes.

"I see an influx of younger families today. Also, during the last 16 years I've seen a stronger sense of outreach to the less fortunate," Canfield said. "In addition, today's parishioners are ready to respond to contemporary problems of the '80s."

The parish was established in 1834. Before that, Grosse Pointe Catholics were visited regularly by a priest from St. Anne's, which was established in 1722 as Detroit's first Catholic parish. From about 1819 until 1825, masses were held in the home of of Pierre Provencal, a 19th century French farmer whose ribbon farm stretched west from the shores of the lake, approximately where Provencal Road is today.

According to Theodore H. Mecke Jr., in his booklet, "A Brief History of St. Paul's Parish," a small log chapel was built in 1925 overlooking the lake, just beyond today's Vernier Road. In warm weather, parishioners walked to church carrying their shoes in their hands. They washed their muddy feet in Lake St. Clair, then put their shoes on for mass.

In the 1840s, the present church property was purchased for $200. The first St. Paul Church on this site was finished in 1848 — a simple frame building with no foundation. Later a square tower and a cross were added. Still later, the church was raised up and a foundation was added. The cemetery was behind the church, where the parking lot is today. In 1868, after the church bought 1.86 acres of land on Moross Road, bodies in the crowded cemetery were moved to the new site, just west of Kercheval. In 1848, St. Paul's consisted of fewer than 100 families.

During the 1890s, the Grosse Pointes were changing from a tiny community of French farmers — mostly Catholic — into a fashionable summer resort area, populated by wealthy Detroit businessmen of a wide variety of religious faiths. About 225 families made up the St. Paul parish register in 1895, when Father John F. Elsen began supervising the design and construction of a new church — the one that still stands. The first service in the new church was Father Elsen's funeral, on Jan. 7, 1899.

Parishioners are conscious of St. Paul's rich local history. On the 150th anniversary of the establishment of the parish, they researched the exact location of Father Elsen's grave, which had been lost, due to re-grading of the cemetery grounds and inattention to the details of record-keeping. In 1984, the remnants of his coffin and some bones were found and a new granite marker was placed over his grave.

After a fire in the church in June 1978, church members decided to return the interior to its original appearance. They kept the marble altars, the communion railing, even the blue and gold cross and the French fleur de lis motif on the walls behind the main altar.

The church registry, begun in 1846, has been preserved with its carefully recorded notations of baptisms, marriages and burials written in Latin, in the careful elaborate script of the time. Bound issues of the church newsletter date back to 1900.

Canfield said today St. Paul is made up of 2,400 families. "There were 1,600 families in 1971, when I came here," he said. "This is a more heterogenous group than most people realize. This is not a wealthy group. St. Paul's church is made up of higher middle class people and young families."

He's observed some very specific trends during the last 16 years, notably a recent influx of younger families. "The next generation is returning," he said. "I've noticed also that our parishioners have a great deal of concern for one another, despite some obvious economic and social differences. People work together. If there's a death, the exchange of notes and condolences — the offer of meals and help to the family is amazing. Also during illness. Some members donate funds anonymously for tuition for the children of families who can't afford to send their children to St. Paul School."

Canfield said the strong faith of the people of the parish is expressed by their attendance at mass. Seven weekend services draw 3,000 people. "That increases to about 5,000 on Christmas and Easter. We also have approximately 150 in attendance at our two daily morning masses. We probably have a higher percentage of regular attendees than most churches.

"The parishioners in the last few years are more ready to respond to contemporary problems," Canfield said. "They're concerned not only about the morality of abortion, but how to offer options to the women with the problem. They're concerned about racism. They're concerned about creating a more helpful attitude toward AIDS. We don't necessarily have answers, but our people's response is not the negative one of denouncing — but one of trying to help." They're involved in the problems of unemployment and infant mortality; solutions to hunger and housing and adequate health care for less fortunate people. They're involved in the Interfaith Center and People In Faith United; the clergy is active in the Grosse Pointe Ministerial Association.

St. Paul Church was completed in 1899, the second church building to be erected on the Lakeshore Road property. After a fire in 1978, the interior was restored to its original late-Victorian appearance.

"Today our people are working to study the problem of teen suicide and the teen alcohol problem, through SAC². St Paul's has hired a youth minister who will start to work full time on June 15. He will focus on teens and will strengthen and broaden what's going on for teens," Canfield said. "We have about 45 or 50 people who visit the homebound and ill each week. We didn't have as many 16 years ago."

As he looks toward the future, Canfield said the most pressing long-term problem facing St. Paul's — and the Catholic church in general — is the decreasing number of men who are entering the clergy. He said this is an international phenomenon. "I spoke to some fifth graders at the school just last week," he said. "Whenever I speak to children, they ask me the same questions. They want to know if I think that, in the future, women will be able to become priests — if priests will be able to be married — and if, once you become a priest, you have to stay a priest."

The most pressing short-term question, Canfield said, is how to distribute the tickets St. Paul's Church will get for the pope's mass at the Silverdome Sept. 19. "We may get as many as 200 tickets. I'll probably have to pull names out of a hat."

Prime Time for Senior Citizens

Social Security has given dignity to seniors

By Marian Trainor
Special Writer

A cartoon appeared recently in a newspaper showing a family looking at a painting. It was Whistler's "Arrangement in Black and Gray," more often referred to as "Whistler's Mother." The caption read: "His mother did OK without Social Security."

It was a silly, rather pointless commentary. It is not known whether Whistler's mother was rich, poor, dependent or sufficient unto herself. However, the cartoon did alert older citizens that there exists a low rumbling among some groups, one that could erupt into a groundswell unless means are taken to correct the misconception that federal money is being unfairly distributed to support Social Security, Medicare and Medicaid. Dissidents contend that the young are being shortchanged.

This concept of intergenerational inequity is threatening to divide advocates, policy-makers and families. The thesis based on future increases in the number of elderly persons versus the number of working-age people purports that there will be an insufficient number of working people to support seniors.

The truth is that there are currently 19 dependent elderly for every 100 workers. It is also true that when facts are presented, thinking young people support programs for the elderly.

In a report, "The Common Stake; The Interdependence of Generations," published by the Gerontological Society of America, one of the authors, Barbara Hirshorn, Ph.D., points out that citizens of all ages ranging from 18 to 65 said they would prefer cuts in defense spending over cuts in Medicare.

There has been some grumbling also about the economic status of seniors. It is true that the poverty level among seniors has decreased over the past 25 years, as it has for all Americans, regardless of age. However, there are still millions of older people who continue to live at near-poverty level, and who are also suffering from chronic, debilitating diseases.

"Some people incorrectly generalize that because some seniors are better off financially, all seniors are financially independent, Hirshorn writes. "This is not true, but the proponents of intergenerational inequity would like to make it the new stereotype of elderly people. Once a stereotype is established, it is difficult to break down."

This concept that seniors are takers, not givers, leaves out some important considerations. Seniors have contributed and continue to contribute through their taxes, through the rearing and education of their children and through assisting their friends and relatives, all their lives.

Everyone requires assistance from others at some point in their lives: as children when the most help to survive is required, in the event of serious illness or economic catastrophe, in the middle years, in the event of debilitating illness in later years.

One study showed that more than 80 percent of older people felt an obligation to provide a college education and housing to their adult children who could not afford it.

It would be interesting to conduct a survey among those who feel that they are unjustly burdened by Social Security taxes to ascertain if they would prefer going back to the days before Social Security.

As late as 1920, many states felt it necessary to strengthen existing statutes requiring grown children to support their parents because they either couldn't or wouldn't.

The old-fashioned type of family has become rare, that intergenerational household where elderly parents reside with their adult children and grandchildren.

The elderly say they don't want to be burdens on their offspring. Their adult children say they would rather not have Mom and Dad move in with them.

It is a hard pill to swallow for older people who have been independent all of their lives to be dependent and try to change their ways to suit the lifestyle of others. Mixing the generations is a catastrophe, even when the empty nest fills up again with children who return home because they can't afford housing.

It takes a lot of doing to maintain harmony with a generation that sees nothing wrong in having a friend of the opposite sex spend the night.

The plain fact is kids owe it to their parents to help them through their old age. Social Security and Medicare help the working generation to repay their debt to their elders.

It is important to focus on people and their needs throughout life, to take care of both the young and the old, instead of arguing over inequities.

Certainly no one should be zeroing in on a system that has dignified old age by giving back some of what older citizens have contributed over long years.

There are many who have given so much that they have nothing left.

War Memorial honors volunteers

At a luncheon April 27, the War Memorial honored volunteers who donated their time to the Center over the past year. Special recognition was given to individuals who had given 20 or more hours.

Volunteer groups are an important part of the War Memorial, a non-profit organization, serving the community in memory of Grosse Pointers who gave their lives for their country.

The entire community benefits from the efforts of these volunteers, as each year more than a quarter of a million people come through the doors to participate in a wide variety of classes, programs, events and trips; to take advantage of services such as the hospital loan closet and safe rides, or just to enjoy its beautiful lakeside setting.

Friends of Vision plan Clear View III May 28

"A Clear View III: A View from Inside Out" will be presented by the Friends of Vision of the Detroit Institute of Ophthalmology Thursday, May 28, at 7 p.m. at the War Memorial.

The program, held for the third year, is an evening to entertain, enlighten and encourage the sighted and visually impaired. Organizers describe it as a cloudless view of visual impairment.

Clear View I addressed with laughter, tears and music the emotional impact of visual impairment on the family. Clear View II focused on the community's response to the visually impaired and how businesses, agencies and individuals can make a burden lighter.

Clear View III will address everyone. It will highlight the preservation and/or improvement of sight. Entertainment will be provided by Bernie Katz on the piano and The Grunyons with vocals. The skit this year by the Groping Groupies will be "Coping not Groping."

Dr. Miriam Ridley, a retina specialist, will give a slide presentation on macular degeneration, the leading cause of blindness among the older population. She will define the disease and outline the steps that can be taken to identify it in its early stages and the treatment available to arrest further deterioration.

Dr. Philip C. Hessburg has some new ideas he will present in "Ocular Poppycock" and he will dispel many old wives' tales about what is good or bad for sight.

Michael Patten, who is visually impaired and a mobility instructor at Visually Handicapped Services at Detroit Receiving Hospital and the University Health Center, will be master of ceremonies. He is also the current president of the Grosse Pointe Woods Lions Club and an avid skier.

Admission and refreshments are free, but reservations are required. Call 824-4710.

Caring for aged to be discussed

The topic, "How Do I Care for my Aging Loved One at Home?" will be discussed at the support group meeting of Calvary Day Care for Adults, 4950 Gateshead at Mack, on Thursday, May 21, at 7:30 p.m.

On hand to answer questions will be a home nursing care agency, medical equipment experts, Calvary's social work specialists in gerontology, and the director of the program.

Calvary Day Care for Adults, a unit of Lutheran Social Services of Michigan, hosts the monthly support group meetings to inform and educate caregivers of the aging, as well as to familiarize residents of the east side and the Grosse Pointes with the Center.

The meetings are open to the public. Call 881-3374 for further information.

An English tea room in Grosse Pointe

Christ Church Antique Show features cream tea and scones in a Victorian-style setting

After an exciting afternoon of perusing the wares of 39 antique vendors from seven states what could be more refreshing than taking a break in an authentic English tea room? You could sip tea and nibble scones with homemade jam and a topping of fresh whipped cream, in a setting of Laura Ashley tablecloths, rose trellises and china tea pots.

At the Christ Church Antique Show, May 30 and 31, English cream tea will be the order of the afternoon in the Angel Cafe in the church undercroft. Rosalie Moore is the tea room chairman, and she has patterned her tea room after a favorite afternoon gathering spot in her native England — the Polly Tea Room in Marlborough, Wiltshire.

"It was so popular, that if you didn't get there early enough, there would be a queue outside and you would have to wait and wait," Moore said.

The Polly Tea Room specialized in homemade jams, Moore said.

"She would always have five kinds of jams in stone crocks," she said. "She had a Victorian iron pram (baby buggy), with a board on top to display them."

The United States has no equivalent to English tea rooms, Moore said. The tea room is a place to go for a light snack and a cup of tea in the afternoon or during shopping. They usually offer several varieties of tea, along with tiny finger sandwiches or cakes and sweets.

"High tea is different," Moore said. "For that, you might go to a cafeteria or restaurant. This is a nice light refreshment for a day's shopping."

The light tea offered in the Angel Cafe will be deliciously simple, Moore said. The menu consists of tea, scones, jams, whipped cream and lemonade for the children if they want it.

A scone, by the way, is much like a biscuit, but sweeter and shorter (not in length, but in shortening). The scones will be freshly baked by members of Moore's committee.

"The tea will be made fresh in the English style with boiling water and warmed pots," Moore said.

The waitresses will be members of the Girls Choir wearing Laura Ashley dresses. There will be miniature roses on the tables and roses and lattice work decorating the walls. There will be displays of tea room memorabilia, tea pots and tea cozies.

The price will be $3 per person and the tea room will be open from 2 until 5 p.m. on Saturday and Sunday. Because of the popularity of last year's tea room, the hours have been extended this year.

This year's antique show will benefit the Girls and Men's Choirs which will be traveling to Scandinavia next year. To highlight that trip, the food tent, open from noon to 3 p.m. both days, will feature Swedish pancakes prepared by Charity Suczek, along with hamburgers, hot dogs, popcorn and soft drinks.

During the hours of the tea room, there will be church tours available, starting from the undercroft. All day, there will be a plant sale like the popular one held two years ago.

All these things surround the main event, the antique show. This year, like last, there will be 39 vendors offering some of the best antiques available.

"They save back good items for the Grosse Pointe show because this is such a good show," said Wendy Jennings, co-chairman of the show with Susie McMillan for the third year. Jennings and McMillan, antique buffs in their own right, established the show and have devoted many hours to making it one of the top shows in Michigan.

"Thirty of the venders are returning from last year," McMillan said. Nine of the vendors are new to the show. Among of the favorites that will be returning are the Linen Ladies from Rochester, N.Y. There will also be an Indonesian folk art dealer, oriental rugs and English watercolors.

Garden Center plant sale is one harbinger of summer

By Ellen Probert
Special Writer

The Gardener's Shed

Now that it is mid-May and full summer is just around the corner, the calendar lists a variety of lovely things to do in the coming weeks. One of the nicest promises to be the Grosse Pointe Garden Center's annual spring membership event which will be held on Friday, June 5, from noon to 2:30 p.m., at the Grosse Pointe War Memorial.

A lavish plant sale is planned and you may bring a favorite container, or buy a new one, and have it filled with fresh potting soil and the plants or flowers of your choice while you enjoy your lunch. Before you pick it up you'll want to visit the bonsai show and sale which will be another feature, and perhaps visit the Trial Gardens which are newly planted for the summer ahead.

Reservations for the luncheon may be made by check for $5 for members or $7.50 for guests to the Grosse Pointe Garden Center by May 29.

The Detroit Garden Center, too, plans a spring event at historic Moross House on Saturday, May 16, from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. with coffee and open house. There will be a book sale, a sale of perennials and an exhibit of collectors' "Poor Pearl" dolls. All this for a donation of $3. Call 259-6363 for more information.

The annual Tulip Festival in Holland, Mich., is in full bloom and the cherry blossoms in Traverse City herald the annual Cherry Festival soon to come.

The Mother's Day Flower Show which will remain on display at the Anna Scripps Whitcomb Conservatory on Belle Isle until early in June, is a delight with banks of colorful giant pink, white and blue hydrangeas, schizanthus and snapdragons and beautiful Martha Washington geraniums in many shades.

May is the month for planting everything. Seed catalogues are the most popular items in the Grosse Pointe Garden Center library these days and books on garden planning and planting are in great demand.

In 1629 John Parkinson writing his book, "Paradisi in Sole," says of tomatoes, "They grow naturally in the hot countries of Barbary and Ethiopia; yet some report them to be first brought from Peru, a Province of the West Indies. We only have them for a curiositie in our gardens, and for the amorous aspect or beauty of the fruit."

While a little later, in 1676, John Rea, Gentleman, writing his book, "Flora, Ceres, and Pomona," says, "Apples of Love are of an orange-red color, full of waterish, slimy pulp wherein small seeds are contained. The root dieth in winter."

Transplant tomato seedlings into the garden on a cloudy day or just after a shower. Shade them for a few days with inverted baskets or folded newspaper while you anticipate a bumper crop of "apples of love" to come.

Don't water tomato plants from above when they are in bloom or you may wash away the pollen needed to set the fruit.

Most house plants can now be set out in the garden. If they have outgrown their pots re-pot them now in fresh soil and larger pots and plunge them in a shady part of the garden. To prevent plants from rooting over the rims of pots or through drainage holes, keep the rims above soil level and surround the base of each pot with gravel.

Now is the time too, to prune early-flowering shrubs, cutting a few of the old canes down to ground level to stimulate new growth for next year's flowers.

There weren't as many April showers this year as there should have been and a goodly number of the City Fathers (and Mothers) in Grosse Pointe Park are concerned about the venerable trees which grace so many of the streets and ornament the grounds of the comfortable and gracious older homes of the area. Grace Harrison as their spokesperson suggests and occasional soaking of tree roots with your garden hose to give them a less thirsty start towards a long, hot summer.

At the beginning of hot weather it is a good idea to raise the blades of your lawm mower so that the grass will not be cut as short as it was at the beginning of the season. This will prevent its drying out too much and is a deterrant to crab grass which thrives in dry, hot sunlight. A good idea, too, is to prevent grass from growing too close to trees, so that your lawn mower doesn't bump into the tree trunks and injure the bark which is harmful to any tree.

It is one of the fascinating facts about trees that the oak was the most widely venerated of all sacred plants in pre-historic times because it was generally believed as part of the mythology of many ancient tribes that it was the first tree created and mankind sprang from it.

The Hebrews venerated it because Abraham received the angel of Jehovah under its branches; the Greeks dedicated it to Zeus because his oracle in an ancient town in Epirus was located in a grove of oaks; the Romans called it the Tree of Jupiter; and the Teutonic tribes called it the Tree of Life, sacred to Thor. It was the celestial tree of the Celtic Druids and was the sacred tree of the ancient Irish gaelic pagan creator god, Dagda.

Acorns, the fruit of the oak tree, were a staple food in all the European countries in very early times and were a symbol of fecundity and immortality.

If you should be traveling to Israel you might want to plant a tree there, following the example of thousands of other tourists who have planted more than a hundred million trees there over the past two generations through the Jewish National Fund. If you can't go there and plant it yourself you can arrange to have one planted in your name by calling the Jewish Community Center in Southfield Leviticus 19:23 says, "and when ye shall come into the land and have planted all manner of trees there . . ." You will be given a tag upon which is written the location of your tree and if you do go to Israel in the future you may visit it.

Floral arts festival set next Sunday at Historic Trinity Church

Flowers are an intrinsic part of church decorations. They set a romantic mood for a wedding, a somber mood for a funeral. They mark the special days in the church calendar — lilies at Easter, poinsettias at Christmas.

Flowers suitable for ecclesiastical occasions will be displayed in a Festival of Floral Arts noon to 7 p.m., May 16, and 10 a.m. to 5 p.m., May 17 at Historic Trinity Church, 1345 Gratiot. It will be in conjunction with an art show and banner display.

Located at the southwest corner of Detroit's Eastern Market, Historic Trinity Church has planned the floral arts display to coincide with the market's annual Flower Day, May 17.

"This is an opportunity for people to buy their plants at the Market and then come over to the Church and see how to arrange the cut flowers," said the Rev. David Eberhard, pastor. "Or, they can come here first and see the many flowers and then go into the market to buy the plants that produce those particular blooms.

"To our knowledge there is no exhibition of the floral craft for ecclesiastical settings in the metro Detroit area," said Eberhard. "We want to offer a place for florists to display and people to view live flowers that may be used in a sacred setting."

Several florists are participating in the Festival of Floral Arts. Admission is free.

The Pastor's Corner

The shadows we cast

By the Rev. Robert E. Neily
St. Michael's Episcopal Church

Many of us can recall the women and men who have had a share in shaping our lives — parents, teachers, public figures we have idolized, sports stars, friends we have admired, a spouse or significant other, who, through contact with us over the years, have contributed to the way we approach life. They have cast their shadows upon us, and through contact with them our lives have been changed.

Red Barber, the famous sportscaster, in his autobiography, "Rhubarb in the Catbird Seat," says, "When I look back . . . I always think of the phrase from 'The Book of Common Prayer:' 'Amid the changes and chances of this mortal life.' I think of the people and the incidents coming in and out that profoundly affected my life . . . It's like looking back over the score sheets of ball games you have seen and recalling who did this in the first inning and who did this in the second, and the effect each of those things had on what eventually happened in the fifth and the sixth and the eighth. You look back and you realize that every person who was in your life had a bearing on it, and if you changed any one person your life would be changed beyond your comprehension."

To put this another way, an older friend who influenced me greatly when I was a child, is fond of saying that if he were to write his autobiography, there would be nothing in it about himself at all. Instead, the whole thing would be made up of chapters on the lives of the various people who have made him who and what he is.

The New Testament book of Acts speaks of the impression and the influence that Peter and John had upon those people with whom they came into contact. People even carried their sick "into the streets, and laid them on beds and pallets, that as Peter came by at least his shadow might fall on some of them" (Acts 5:15).

This belief in the power of Peter's shadow was most likely a superstition, the result of Peter's fast-growing popularity among the people, but there is a very real sense in which our shadows have a far-reaching influence and lasting effect. By this, I mean we rarely know where and when our shadows fail. We often are not aware of how our most casual word or action may affect another person. We frequently are not conscious of how a person's life may be changed for good or for ill because of their contact with us.

Likewise, we would not be the people we are today if it were not for a number of people whose shadows have crossed our path. Have you ever made an effort to express your gratitude to some of these people? Red Barber dedicated another of his books this way, "To two people I loved very much and I am glad I told them so before they died."

Some of the people whose shadows influenced us may no longer be living. But some of them are. They are as close as our telephone, pen or typewriter. Why not let them know what they have done for you? It will make them feel good, and it will give you a lift, too.

This column is written on a rotating basis by members of the Grosse Pointe Ministerial Association.

Choir concert to honor Johns

On Sunday, May 17, the clergy, choir and vestry of Christ Church, Detroit, will present a festival concert of choir and orchestra in honor of Malcolm Johns, in appreciation of his 12 years as organist and choir director at Christ Church, and more than 50 years of musical contribution to Detroit.

Before joining Christ Church, Johns was at Grosse Pointe Memorial Church for 35 years.

The Kyrie and Gloria from "Mass in B," by J.S. Bach, will be performed with Richard Householder, conductor, and James Hohmeyer, organist.

The concert will be presented at 3 p.m., Sunday, May 17, at the church, located on East Jefferson at the Chrysler Freeway.

Tickets are $6 per person at the door. All proceeds will benefit the Johns Choir Scholarship Fund.

Breakfast and auction planned

The United Methodist Women will have its traditional May Breakfast and Auction on Tuesday, May 19, at the Grosse Pointe United Methodist Church, 211 Moross Road, Grosse Pointe Farms.

At 9 a.m. everyone will gather in their respective fellowship groups for their last meeting of the season, then assemble at 9:30 a.m. for breakfast served by the AM Fellowship Group, chaired by Bea Fraser. Devotions will be led by Dorothy Greer. Auctioneer Lois Batten will keep the bidding brisk for members' donations of baked goods and treasures. Proceeds will be divided equally between United Methodist Retirement Homes and The Methodist Children's Home Society.

As an added attraction, the women have been asked to wear an item they have purchased at one of the church's rummage sales and U.M.W. President Carol Ann Maleitzke has promised a prize or two.

Reservations may be made by calling Florence Strong, 882-4796.

Prayer Breakfast

Edward H. McNamara, Wayne County executive, was the guest speaker for the first Mayors Prayer Breakfast, held at the Grosse Pointe War Memorial last Thursday morning. The event coincided with the National Day of Prayer, declared by President Ronald Reagan. There are plans to make the breakfast an annual event, rotating through the five Pointes for the location. In addition to McNamara's speach, there was a performance by the Pointe Singers, from Grosse Pointe South High School, under the baton of Ellen Bowen. There was also a responsorial prayer led by the Rev. Edward A.M. Cobden Jr. of Christ Church, Grosse Pointe.

Fish and seafood salads brighten up a spring lunch

Elegant Eating

Hot muffins or fluffy yeast rolls are excellent accompaniments for these special seafood and fish salads.

The following recipes come from the low-calorie, low-cholesterol, budgetwise kitchens of Thyra Grey Howard and Helena DeWitt Roth.

Shrimp Stuffed Artichokes

Surprise your family with these unusually delicous artichokes. It's the delicately seasoned garlic oil that imparts that special flavor.

4 artichokes, boiled and trimmed of chokes
3 Tblsp. unsalted margarine
2 Tblsp. olive oil
3 cloves of garlic, finely minced
3 Tblsp. green onions, minced
1 pound shrimp, shelled and deveined, or frozen
Salt and pepper to taste

Cook the artichokes, remove the fuzzy choke and spread the leaves apart. Melt the margarine in a skillet and heat with the olive oil. Add the garlic and onion and stir for one minute. Add the shrimp and stir until they are pink. This should take only a few minutes. Add the seasoning. Fill the artichokes with the shrimp mixture. Makes four servings.

Calories, about 380 per serving. Cholesterol, about 140 mgs.

Shrimp and Poached Fish Salad

1 pound frozen flounder fillets, slightly thawed
Water
1/8 cup vinegar
1/4 lemon
1 carrot peeled and cut
1 onion peeled and stuck with 3 cloves
1 sprig of parsley
1 2-inch bay leaf
4 or 5 peppercorns
1/2 tsp. thyme leaves
1/4 lemon
1/4 cup lemon juice
1 6-ounce pkg. frozen shrimp, thawed and drained
1/4 pound spinach leaves

Place the fish in a large pot. Add enough water to barely cover fish, then remove fish to a plate. Add the vinegar, carrot, onion, parsley, bay leaf, peppercorns and thyme to water in the pot. Cover and bring to a boil over moderate heat. Reduce heat to medium low and simmer 20 minutes to make stock.

While broth simmers, rub the fish with lemon quarter, squeezing to release juice. Place fish in hot broth, cover and simmer over medium low heat for 12 to 15 minutes (five to seven minutes if fish is completely thawed). Do not let water boil. Check fish for doneness. Flesh should be white and opaque in the middle.

If not quite cooked, simmer three to five minutes longer. Remove fish from liquor and cool slightly. Flake fish into a bowl, removing any bones. Sprinkle with lemon juice and toss gently. Just before serving, toss with shrimp and serve over spinach.

Makes about three cups.

About 253 calories per serving of 3/4 cup of fish mixture and one ounce of spinach, garnished with 1 tablespoon low calorie mayonnaise. Cholesterol, 94 mgs.

Scallop Salad

1 pound sea scallops, fresh or frozen
1/2 pound macaroni shells, cooked and chilled
2 cups cherry tomatoes, sliced
1/2 cup diced green pepper
1/2 cup sliced radishes
1/3 cup sliced stuffed olives
1 medium onion
1/3 cup sliced gherkins
Lettuce leaf or salad greens

Thaw scallops, if frozen. Simmer five to seven minutes, drain and chill. Slice scallops. Combine all ingredients, except for salad greens. Toss until well blended or mixed. Heap on lettuce leaf or salad greens. Serves six.

Calories, about 222 per serving. Cholesterol, about 111 mgs.

Dilly Salmon Salad

1 can (16 ounces) red salmon, drained and flaked
1 pkg. (10 ounces) frozen green peas, cooked and drained
1/2 cup diced celery
2 Tblsp. finely chopped onion
2 Tblsp. chopped dill
2 Tblsp. vegetable oil
1 Tblsp. cider vinegar
1/4 tsp. salt
1/8 tsp. freshly ground pepper
8 lettuce leaves
2 medium tomatoes, cut in wedges

In a large bowl, combine all ingredients except lettuce and tomatoes. Cover and refrigerate about two hours, or until well chilled. Spoon into lettuce-lined salad bowl. Garnish with tomato wedges. Makes four servings.

Calories, about 360 per serving. Cholesterol, about 42 mgs.

Cook to speak at Memorial

The Book Review Group of Grosse Pointe Memorial Church will meet Tuesday, May 19, at 1 p.m. in the church lounge following a noon luncheon in fellowship hall.

Harry Cook, editorial writer and columnist for the Detroit Free Press and instructor in journalism at Wayne State University, will review "Arab and Jew: Wounded spirits in a promised land" by David K. Shipler, the New York Times' Jerusalem Bureau Chief from 1979 to 1984.

He traveled extensively throughout the area and his book traces the threads of several individual terrorist acts to show how profoundly they affect people — not only Jews and Arabs, not only victims and their relatives and friends, but those far and near.

His book has been described as "one of the keenest and most incisive looks at the midwest and the standoff between the Arab and Jewish communities available today." Shipler was awarded the 1987 Pulitzer Prize for general non-fiction for this work.

Visitors are welcome to either/ both of these functions, however, reservations are requested for the luncheon and may be made by calling the church office, 882-5330. Child care will be available.

special benevolence fund for 1987. The program plan is to have three monthly collections from which funds will be allocated to an international, national and local recipient.

The international collection will be made in May and will be given to Lutheran World Relief to help feed starving people throughout the world.

The June collection will be used to become a mission partner with Lord of Life Lutheran in Bradenton, Fla., the mission congregation the Rev. Paul Christ is now serving.

Finally, September's collection will go to Truth Lutheran, locatged in a unique community in Detroit, at State Fair and I-75. Truth has committed itself to continuing a neighborhood congregation even though their community is experiencing many changes.

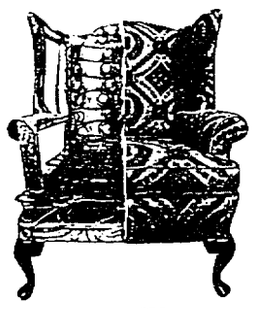

Mendelssohn

On Sunday afternoon, May 17 at Jefferson Avenue Presbyterian Church, the chancel choir and organists Dorothy Holden and James Hammann will present music of Mendelssohn and Karg Elert. The choir will sing the cantata "Hear My Prayer," which features an extended soprano solo sung by Julie Wright, soprano quarter member at JAPC. Holden and Hammann will perform the fourth and fifth organ sonatas of Mendelssohn, and Holden will also play "The Soul of the Lake," by Sigfried Karg Elert.

Tickets are available at the door for a $5 donation; students and seniors are half price. There is plenty of guarded parking in the lot at the rear of the church. Jefferson Avenue Presbyterian is located on East Jefferson at Burns, in Indian Village.

Jenny Lind Club celebrates 50 years

The Jenny Lind Club of Detroit, an organization for women of Swedish descent, celebrated its 50th birthday with a black tie dinner dance at the Grosse Pointe Yacht Club on April 25.

The founders, Signe Karlstrom, Ingrid Koebel and Irene Franzen reminisced how some 50 years ago they responded to a trustee at the Swedish American Museum in Philadelphia to start a local Jenny Lind organization that would help support a commemorative Jenny Lind room at the museum. The club came into existance on April 12, 1937, at the home of Ingrid Koebel in Grosse Pointe. The first president was Irene Franzen — still a Grosse Pointe resident.

From these beginnings grew an active membership that has not only supported the museum for these past 50 years but also raised funds for Save the Children and the Red Cross during the war years as well as scholarships and the Swedish Department at the University of Michigan.

Enjoying the 50th anniversary party are Ingrid Koebel, chairman, left; Irene Franzen, honorary chairman; and Ruth Clifford, co-chairman.

Some of the local area residents that were present to hear the current director at the museum, Clarissa Solmssen, personally thank everyone for the generous contributions were charter members Irene Franzen, Ingrid Koebel and Kathryn Beuhrig. Also there were Walter and Jane Wood with daughter Mary and her husband Ted Nichols and Joseph and Janis Ekeberg.

GP Woman's Club luncheon is setting for annual scholarship award program

The Grosse Pointe Woman's Club will bring its club year to a close with the annual luncheon and installation of officers, Wednesday, May 20, at 11:30 a.m., at the Grosse Pointe Yacht Club, sponsored by out-going president Ann Gerow. In attendance will be our scholarship recipients of North and South High Schools and their mothers. Also in attendance will be honored guest, Mrs. Carl Baum, Federation of Women's Clubs president.

A cocktail hour will preceed the 12:15 p.m. luncheon. Following this, Mistress of Ceremonies, Elaine Micklethwaite, will introduce Winnie Murphy, parliamentarian, who will conduct the installation of Rosemary Elias as president for the new term. Also to be installed are: Adair Alexander, first vice president; and Dorothea Blum, second vice president; Janet Rosin, recording secretary; Caryl Kerber, corresponding secretary; and Ann Gerow, treasurer.

Luncheon arrangements have been made by Corliss Marowske and Marion Koch. Reservations and tickets are handled by Avis Beemer and Matilda Haelewyn. Programs were designed by Corliss Marowske. Beverage tickets will be handled by Caryl Kerber and Helen Honderich. Dorothy Craig is in charge of programs.

Following the lunch a "Lavender and Lace" Fashion Show will be presented by Mrs. Victor Curatalo, modeled by club members: Fran Ahee, Adair Alexander, Virginia Bavol, Evelyn Bogan, Marion Cardwell, Helen Endres, Gloria Gelders, Matilda Haelewyn, Dottie King, Corliss Marowske and Norma Nobel. Accompanist at the piano will be Mrs. Calvin Gauss.

Janice Van Tiem and Pauline Anderson have made arrangements for bridge following the fashion show.

Tickets to luncheon at $16 each may be obtained by calling 881-3615 by May 18.

Exchange Club gives Freedom Shrine

A Freedom Shrine, an inspiring display of American Historical documents, was recently presented by the Exchange Club of Grosse Pointe/St. Clair Shores to the students and faculty at Pierce Middle School located in Grosse Pointe Park. Accepting on behalf of the school was Donald Bassett, principal of Pierce and Grosse Pointe Public Schools Superintendent John Whirtner. Grosse Pointe Park Mayor Palmer Heenan was also in attendance on behalf of the city.

Wayne Defour, president of the Grosse Pointe/St. Clair Shores Exchange Club, said, "The Freedom Shrine is an exclusive project of the Exchange Club and is an important part of the service club's American Citizenship program. The Freedom Shrine documents carry a vital message to people of all ages, reminding them of the high price of freedom that our forefathers paid."

Reproductions of the Declaration of Independence, the Constitution, and the Gettysburg Address are among the 28 documents included in the permanent Freedom Shrine collection. The local chapter of the National Exchange Clubs has now presented Freedom Shrine displays to all of the middle and high schools in the Grosse Pointes. Nationally, the Exchange Clubs of America have presented more than 8,500 Freedom Shrines in public locations throughout the country.

The local Exchange Club chapter is part of the National Exchange Club which consists of local clubs throughout the United States and Puerto Rico. Each club serves their communities with efforts in American Citizenship, crime prevention, and the prevention of child abuse.

The Exchange Club of Grosse Pointe/St. Clair Shores is currently seeking new members. The club meets each Thursday mornings at 7:30 a.m. for a breakfast meeting at Gilbert's restaurant in St. Clair Shores.

Members invite guest speakers to speak on topics of concern and interest in the communities. For more information about the club or membership, contact Mike Reynolds at 336-9633 during the day or at 343-0176 during the evening.

Fash Bash set

Fash Bash '87, Detroit's premier fashion show and auction to benefit The Detroit Institute of Arts, will be held on Wednesday, Aug. 5, at 5 p.m., in the Westin Hotel Renaissance Ballroom - Level 4.

The 18th annual gala is sponsored by Founders Junior Council and Hudson's. Evening highlights include a fall fashion show featuring designs from Hudson's Oval Room, an auction presented by DuMouchelles, music and cocktails.

Tax-deductible tickets are $25 each and will be available beginning June 1, at The Detroit Institute of Arts Ticket Office, Hudson's and other Ticket Master outlets.

Michigan produce season is off to a good start

May will be the start of something big and good — Michigan's fresh produce season. The month will begin with the start of Michigan fresh asparagus and end with the start of Michigan fresh strawberries.

The Michigan asparagus crop is pegged at 21,000 acres this spring — 500 acres more than a year ago. Michigan asparagus may be priced as high or higher than asparagus from other states, but the local product is still a better value. The reason being that Michigan asparagus spears are all-green, all-usable.

Look for quantity asparagus packs of 10 to 30 pounds to be marketed during the harvest peak. This supply peak will occur around Memorial Day, give or take a few days.

Fresh strawberries are now coming from California. While berry prices are a bit lower, freight costs are up, so May prices will stay near or slightly below end-of-April prices.

Michigan's juicier, more flavorful strawberries will show up by the end of May, barring weather problems. The Michigan strawberry crop will peak by early June. Be aware that there is at least one U-Pick strawberry operation in many Michigan communities. A strawberry outing is an excellent opportunity to indulge yourself and children with a trip to the country.

Other produce items will be coming from sources nearer to Michigan. This will mean lower prices and greater variety of shoppers. Lower prices will be most evident on lettuce and other salad greens, cucumbers, green peppers, green beans and sweet corn. Don't expect tomato prices to move much lower this month. Cantaloupe and watermelon quality will improve while prices move lower.

Meat prices are changing slightly. Large total meat and poultry supplies are holding down beef price increases. The supply of beef will likely be 6 to 8 percent less due to reduced cattle inventories and an end to herd liquidation. Look for the greatest price increases on rib-eye, porterhouse, T-bone, sirloin and loin steaks.

It looks like pork prices will decline moderately this summer if not before.

MOT receives Bal Polonais funds

At a recent luncheon, Zofia Kafarski, founder of the Bal Polonais, a fund-raiser for Art of Poland Associates, presented David DiChiera, general director of the Michigan Opera Theatre, with a check for $10,000 in support of a projected 1989-90 production of a Polish opera in cooperation with the Grand Opera of Warsaw.

"Bal Polonais has become an important annual event in Detroit, representing a wonderful celebration of Polish music and art, while providing the important funds necessary for a future presentation of another Polish opera," said DiChiera. Through ongoing support of the Bal Polonais and the Polish Opera Committee, I am very pleased that Michigan Opera Theatre will be able to continue its presentations of such renowned national operas."

Bal Polonais V is set for Saturday, Feb. 6, 1988 at the Detroit Athletic Club.

If everyone needed the same kind of mortgage, they wouldn't need one from Comerica.

When it comes to getting a home mortgage, some banks give you the feeling that everybody is buying the same house.

They sit you down. They show you the same mortgage they show everybody else. They have you fill out the same forms. And then they let you leave.

Well, that's not the way we work. Because at Comerica, we understand that everyone has different financial needs.

And that's why we give you a choice.

For instance, if you're looking for a simple, convenient way to pay for your home, we might show you our popular 15 and 30 year fixed rate mortgages.

If you need a lower rate to start, we might show you our 1 year adjustable rate mortgage. Or our 5 year balloon mortgage.

There's even a jumbo-sized loan for those of you who are planning on buying a jumbo-sized house. With it, you can borrow up to $500,000. That's $150,000 more than most other places offer.

And no matter which type of mortgage you choose, you'll have a Comerica representative helping you all the way, offering advice, and making sure you choose the best mortgage for your needs.

Of Wings and other things . . .

Do you know what the most amazing thing is about the Detroit Red Wings' resurgence this season? Not the fact that they made it to the semifinals of the NHL playoffs. Not the fact that they improved their regular season point totals by more than 30. Or the fact that they more than held their own with the best team in North America, the Edmonton Oilers.

No, the most amazing thing is the fact that the Wings have managed to increase the number of their "lifelong" fans by about 99 percent in just under three weeks.

You don't think that's much of an achievement? Just remember that most of the people sitting in the seats at Joe Louis Arena and those who talk about hockey these days as if they were Phi Beta Kappa graduates of Howie Meeker Hockey School, are the same people who, last year when the Wings were the worst team in the 50-plus year history of the organization with a paltry 17-57-6 record, wouldn't touch them with a 10-foot hockey stick.

Ah, the magic of a winning team. It can turn plain, ordinary people into rabid hockey fanatics.

But that's okay. That bandwagon has been gathering dust since the Tigers made it to the World Series in 1984. Every once in awhile it should be hauled out and road-tested. We wouldn't want anybody to fall off the next time there's a wholesale bandwagon-jumping in the city, would we?

Readers will recall that I am personally acquainted with the man often termed the "Unluckiest Fisherman in the Great Lakes." Actually, I'm married to him. It was more out of pity than anything — I couldn't stand to see him out in the boat alone (I knew there wouldn't be any fish there to keep him company).

Well, I'm more than happy to announce that Mike has passed on that dubious title to his father John Andrzejczyk. My father-in-law earned it by catching a beautiful, three-pound bass. . . three weeks before they were in season.

Add this name to the list of high school athletes I'm going to miss when they graduate this June: Katy Turner.

Katy is doing her best to keep softball fun for South High's girls' varsity team and its spectators. She's also setting school records on offense this season for the Lady Blue Devils. But what I like the best about Katy is that she goes out there and plays every game like she's having the best time of her life. And I think that's neat.

Tirikian's back

Former North High, Kalamazoo College center-forward is still making magic on the soccer field

'It had been my goal to go to Europe for so long . . . and someday, I'll go back . . .'

By Peggy O'Connor
Sports Editor

What ever happened to Mark Tirikian, the high school and college All-American soccer player who led North High to a league championship the first year it had varsity soccer and then went on to Kalamazoo College?

Europe called and Tirikian answered.

At the age of 20, the kid who grew up in Grosse Pointe and played some of his best soccer on its fields, knew that if he wanted to make a career out of soccer, he'd have to go to Europe. It was a difficult decision to make, but one Tirikian couldn't ignore.

"I'd always planned to one day go to Europe to play soccer. The occasion came up during my second year at Kalamazoo, when my uncle, who lives in France, was able to get me tryouts with some local teams," Tirikian recalls. That was in November of 1985, the first step toward the achievement of Tirikian's ultimate goal.

He won a spot almost immediately with a third division team in Avignon, Olympique d' Avignon. His adjustment to the European style of soccer took a bit longer.

"I'd expected the difference in style and teams in Europe . . . but it was quite, quite different," Tirikian said, shaking his head at the memory of his early attempts to crack the defenses of veteran French opponents."I knew there'd be a period of adaptation, and it took me about four months to adjust."

Helping him make that adjustment was his coach at Avignon, who pointed out some basic differences in the style of play at the center-forward position where Mark had played since he began organized soccer at the age of 6.

In North America, a center-forward takes the ball and heads straight for the net. In Europe, there are many more facets to the center-forward's game. He is supposed to help create opportunities for others, distribute the ball, come back to help set up so that someone from the midfield can come up field with the ball and attempt to score.

"At first it was difficult. I had times of frustration when I played the old way, the way I'd always played, and failed. When I finally saw what I had to do and began to do it, little by little things began working out. By the time the 1986 season began I was a starter," Tirikian says. And soon, he had moved up from the third division to Avignon's team in the first division.

Tirikian says he was able to adjust to life in France a little quicker than to the changes he made in soccer. Tirikian's parents were born in France; his father played amateur soccer in France before coming to Detroit, where he met Mark's mother at a local soccer game. "I loved living there. It had been my goal to go to Europe for so long . . . and someday, I'll go back. I know I will."

There were some problems in France, such as the requirement that teams have only two foreign players per team. Avignon had three and Tirikian was the least experienced of the trio. And visa problems surfaced, forcing him to return to Detroit last December.

Tirikian didn't waste much time brooding. He enrolled in Wayne State University's architecture program and began spending his free time playing indoor soccer with friends at the Lakeshore Soccer [illegible]

It was there that Dino Mollica, general manager of the Windsor Wheels soccer team of the National Soccer League of Ontario, saw him play. He asked Mark to try out; he did and made the team immediately.

Tirikian jumped at the chance to play for Windsor not only because he could play soccer again — and close to home, at that — but because of the reputation of Wheels' coach Mirko Bazic. "I had heard of him and knew that he has great experience in Europe at the first and second division level. He knows the European game very well. I'm just so happy to have the opportunity to play this kind of soccer here in North America," Tirikian says.

"You can't really call the kind of soccer we play here in Windsor 'Canadian'. The attitude of the coach and the players is more closely related to European soccer which [illegible]

America to adopt the club team philosophy for the development of young players. In Europe, the kids start out in low club teams which are affiliated with the first division squads. They know that if they play well and progress, they will someday have the opportunity to move up through the ranks to the top.

"It's the sort of thing we should have here, where kids start out and move up through the feeder system. This is what they're trying to develop in Windsor," he adds.

THAT MAY NOT be possible* in the U.S., because soccer doesn't enjoy the type of devoted following it does in Europe. "Soccer there is the main sport. Nothing compares with it in the minds of Europeans. It's a cultural thing. Generations grow up with it and pass the love of the game down to

Sailing through a sea of red tape

Boaters on the Great Lakes are finding that when they travel to Canada, re-entry into the United States brings with it a complicated series of forms, procedures, user fees and decals.

Last week, we discussed the U.S. Customs Service User Fee. The Coast Guard is considering inaugurating its own user fee. And we cannot forget the three-year-old I-68 program run by the Immigration and Naturalization Service.

It is easy to understand why so many boaters just quietly slip back into their berths with nary a word to the authorities. Many don't realize that by doing this, they are illegally entering the U.S. . . . unless they have their I-68 forms.

Re-entry into the U.S. is actually a two-fold process: clearing customs, then clearing Immigration and Naturalization. This re-entry business has been made simple for vehicular travel crossing the Canadian border to the U.S. When driving across, one may be interviewed by either a Customs Service officer or an Immigration and Naturalization officer. They have dual authority and can clear you through both facets of re-entry into the country.

It isn't as simple for boaters.

James Montgomery, district director for the Immigration and Naturalization Service office in Detroit, said "Each time you re-enter the USA, you have to be inspected by Immigration and Naturalization. For boaters, the I-68 form is a waiver of that inspection in our area. If you do not have the I-68, you are to be cleared back into the country through the bridge or tunnel."

Obviously, this could pose a problem for boaters because they do not know where to temporarily tie up and clear through both Customs and Immigration and Naturalization. An alternative might be to berth the boat in its home marina and drive to where you can inform the authorities of your re-entry.

Many boaters feel this is an unnecessary governmental bureaucratic attempt to control boaters . . . not to mention a great deal of hassle. So many choose to surreptitiously re-enter the country.

That drastic measure isn't necessary, Montgomery explained. "You don't have to do any of that if you get an I-68. I-68 forms are easy to obtain. You simply present yourself at the Immigration and Naturalization office at either the bridge or tunnel with proof of citizenship, or proof that you are a resident alien, and you will be issued a form.

"It doesn't cost a thing and it may save you a great deal of time and grief in the long run."

The I-68 form was developed for areas of the country where there is a large boating population traveling back and forth between the Canadian and American borders. That includes the Great Lakes and Puget Sound.

"It is a relaxation of the re-entry requirement in these areas," Montgomery said. "People often get confused about us," he continued. "Immigration and Naturalization and Customs are very different governmental services. Customs deals with goods — merchandise. If you do not bring merchandise into this country, you really don't have to report to Customs. However, Immigration and Naturalization deals with people and if you are a person returning to the United States, then you have something to tell us. You need to report in."

The I-68 forms are required of all passengers aboard pleasure vessels visiting Canada, not just the "captains." Vessels are subject to seizure and/or passengers 18 and older are subject to fines (minor children are covered on the parents' forms). "Much depends on the officers at the scene," Montgomery said.

"Those officers are in the best position to know what the situation is at the time."

The Immigration and Naturalization Service has vehicles spot-checking in marinas and yacht clubs all through the boating season. The Service also has methods of knowing which vessels have visited Canada. "We don't want you to get caught by us, so either check into the USA or have your I-68," Montgomery said. "That makes our job much easier all the way around."

Boaters who have an I-68 from previous years do not need to obtain a new one. The older issues are still valid for all U.S. citizens and resident aliens (those with "green cards"). However, people who are not permanent residents or U.S. citizens will need to have the 1987-edition of the I-68. They can be obtained at either the bridge or tunnel at the Immigration and Naturalization Service office.

"Most boaters are aware of the I-68 program," Montgomery explained. "We sent information to every marina and yacht club that was effected in the state about three years ago. Now we need to inform boaters."

Since we never know when the impulse to visit Canada by boat for an evening or an afternoon will strike, it behooves us to have the proper documents in order to re-enter the U.S. with the least amount of trouble.

I stopped to think: right after Bergman presented JoAnne with the bat, he went on a tear at the plate. Pretty eerie, huh?

I'm not sure what this means, but I'm sure glad Bergy is back to doing what he can do on offense. (And I'm also glad that JoAnne doesn't bat clean-up for Detroit. Not with that bat!).

Speaking of baseball, here's a reminder about Little League and Babe Ruth deadlines:

The News is happy to publish results of Little League and Babe Ruth games in the Park, Farms, City, Shores and Woods (happy, Woods?). Copy may be submitted by coaches, players, moms, dads or anyone involved with the teams who can get the scores, highlights and names down on paper correctly. Absolute deadline is 9 a.m. Monday. (Deadline changes for holidays will be published in the paper).

Easy, huh? I'll answer any further questions at 882-0294 between 9 a.m. and 5 p.m. daily.

The Astros were strong on defense and got clutch hitting by Mark Rossman and Jay Harrington (double, two RBI) in the final inning. Rossman also had an RBI-double. the next generation. It isn't that way here."

But Tirikian recalls the way it was for him in France and he misses it. He would walk down the street in Avignon the day after a victory and stop to receive handshakes, pats on the back and offers of free drinks in local bistros. "It isn't as nice when you lose. When you win, they shake your hand. When you lose, they throw things at you. They take losing very badly," he says with a slow smile.

Still, he'd go back in a minute. And someday, he may, although he refuses to make any long-range plans at the moment.

"In the immediate future, I'd like to have a good season with Windsor. There's going to be a big upsurge in interest in Canada in the near future and I wouldn't mind being part of it. And it is nice to be able to play soccer at that level so close to home.

"That was the hardest thing: to leave my family — my mom didn't want me to go — and go to Eurpoe. But to get a good start in soccer you have to go to Europe when you are young. I had to do it when I did.

"I'd do it all over again."

Tirikian's first regular season game with the Windsor Wheels is this Sunday, May 17, at 6 p.m., against the Mississauga Lakers at Windsor Stadium. Tickets are $4 for adults, $2 for children.

Norsemen teams battle heavy late spring schedules

North's varsity baseball team has had a heavy schedule in the past two weeks, competing in two tournaments and continuing Bi-County League action.

Hot on the heels of North's victory in the Alpena Tournament, North split a doubleheader with league foe Lake Shores, winning 5-3 and falling, 11-7. Junior left-hander Ed Wood continued his fine pitching, scattering six hits and striking out nine enroute to the victory. Junior Dan Unger's two-run single provided the winning margin.

Last Friday, May 8, North outlasted Bi-County rival L'Anse Creuse, 1-0, in eight innings. Over that same weekend, the Norsemen competed in the Fraser Tournament for the second consecutive year, beating Roseville Brablec, 4-0, but losing to South High, 5-4, and to Fraser, 12-10.

The Norsemen have a bye in the first round of pre-district competitions. They will play Warren Lincoln High on May 22 in pre-districts. This Friday, May 15, they travel to Lakeview for a 4 p.m. contest. They host Brablec on Monday, May 18 at 4 p.m.(By Josh Abbott)

The JV team had an excellent week, taking three out of four games. The Norsemen fell to Lake Shore, 8-5, on May 4. Kevin McCarron, Dan Crociata, Mike Rancilio and Jamie Accord each had two hits to pace a well-rounded attack. Eric Zenow pitched six strong innings, allowing five hits.

North topped Notre Dame in a doubleheader on May 5, winning the first game, 3-1, and taking the second, 3-2. Scott Schorer hit a home run in the first game; Crociata had two hits and Accord went the distance and got the win.

In the second game, John Kennedy and Chris Gordon each had two hits to lead the way. Dan Rashid pitched five innings, allowing one run and striking out six. Schorer came on to pitch the final two innings.

North pulled out a 7-6 victory over L'Anse Creuse on May 8, but needed extra innings to do it. Schorer collected two hits, one a two-run homer and the other, a clutch, two-out single to drive in the winning run in the bottom of the ninth. Schorer and Zenow combined the pitching chores to chalk up another Norsemen win.

The team's record stands at 4-4. (By Dan Rashid)

The Shorians made it three straight losses for North with a 10-8 victory. Preston had four hits against Lake Shore pitching. Two days later, South did the Lady Norsemen in with a hard-fought, 9-5 victory. North had a 3-2 lead through four innings, but failed to hold on. Girls clinch second straight EML track championship

The Grosse Pointe South girls' track team clinched its second straight Eastern Michigan League title last week with wins over Anchor Bay (97-313) and Mount Clemens (95-33). Last Saturday, the girls traveled to Troy Athens and enjoyed a fine day of competition, establishing the seventh school record this season. South now stands at 7-1.

After winning the 800 meter relay in 1:50.10, sophomores Nicole Tocco and Traci Lee and juniors Julie Burke and Reba Uthappa came right back to set a school record in the spring medley relay. Others placing for South at the 20-team Troy-Athens meet were high jumpers Sara Liliensiek, Sara McCabe and Lucia Bridenstine; the hurdle relay team of Wendy Berger, Micha Song, Erin Kershaw and Laura DeMercurio; and distance runners Toni Tedesco, Song, Berger and Ann Llewellyn.

South dominated both dual meets last week, including record-setting performances by sophomore DeMercurio. Her times of 16.9 and 49.3 in the 100 and 300 hurdles, respectively, are all-time South bests.

Lee and Uthappa continued to shine, winning all spring events. Dunrie Greiling, Bridenstine and Kellie Buchanan gave South firsts in the field events, while other fine performances were turned in by Elizabeth Lazarowitz, Julie Nichols, Vicki Groustra, Debbie Solterisch, Tara Lulis and Megen Smucker.

This Saturday, the girls will host the state regional meet at South. Preliminaries begin at 10 a.m.; finals start at 1:30 p.m. at the South track. Eighteen metro-area high schools will compete. The top two competitors in each event will advance to the state championship meet on May 30 at Alma College.

South junior Micha Song enjoyed a fine week of competition last week. The three-year veteran won the 3200 meter run against Anchor Bay, the 800 run against Mount Clemens and earned three medals at the prestigious Troy-Athens Relays last Saturday. Song and her South teammates clinched their league title for the second straight year.

Boys win Fraser tourney

South's varsity baseball team ran its season record to 16-5 last weekend, with three victories enroute to the Fraser Invitational Tournament championship on May 9. Coach Dan Griesbaum's Blue Devils defeated North, 5-4, Roseville, 6-4, and host Fraser, 14-8, and are now ranked No. 10 in Class A.

In the opener against North, Marty Saad had three hits, scored two runs and had two RBI. Doug Lucas added a triple in the fourth, scoring Saad with the game-winning tally and capping a thre-run rally. Scott Tucker (3-1, 2.63 ERA) went the distance, chalking up the win. He struck out three and walked three, giving up six hits. Southpaw Ed Wood was tagged with the loss. Dave Kopitzke had two hits and an RBI for the Norsemen.

Dave Arnold's two hits, including a solo homer in the third, highlighted the decision over Roseville. Bryan Jones also had two hits; Marcus Wysocki's triple accounted for two runs. Rusty Knowles (2-0, 1.00 ERA) scattered five hits, struck out six and issued just one walk. All of Roseville's runs were unearned, as the Devils made five errors.

South exploded for five runs in the third and six more in the fourth inning to hand the host Fraser Ramblers their first defeat in the day's final game. Saad and Arnold each had a double and a single; Saad's blows drove in three runs and Arnold's two. Dan Cimini beat out two infield hits; Lucas had two RBI for the Blue Devils.

Adam Franco (2-1, 3.78 ERA) and Lucas shared the pitching duties, with Franco earning the decision. He struck out four, walked one, hit two batters and gave up six hits in four innings.

Five South players — infielders Saad and Lucas, outfielder Arnold and pitchers Knowles and Tucker — were named to the All-Tournament team.

South also won three of four EML games earlier in the week, but fell into second place by one-half game after losing, 6-5, in an upset to Anchor Bay on May 8. The Devils are now 7-2 in league play. Port Huron tops the standings with a 7-1 mark. The teams were slated to meet on Wednesday (after press time).

On May 4, Wysocki hurled a five-inning, two-hitter, striking out 12 as South shut out Mount Clemens, 17-0, in the first game of a doubleheader. Saad had three hits and two RBI; Lucas homered and doubled for three RBI; Wysocki, Arnold and Sean Bruce had two hits apiece for South.

The Devils also took the nightcap, 9-4. Lucas and Bruce had two hits and two RBI. Matt Montagne doubled. Tucker went the route, fanning nine, walking four and yielding seven hits enroute to the win.

Home runs by Saad and Derek Evans highlighted South's 13-2 rout of Roseville on May 6. Tim Nugent added two hits. Lucas and Matt Montagne contributed two-run doubles to the cause; Mike Paull had two RBI. John Joliet (4-1, 1.65 ERA) was the winner. He fanned eight, walked three and gave up three his in the first five innings. Knowles threw the final two innings, striking out five of the six batters he faced.

Bishop Gallagher ralled for four runs in the bottom of the sixth to hand South an 8-5 setback in a non-league tussle. Franco took the loss. Lucas had two hits, including a double and an RBI. Paull and Nugent also had doubles. Saad turned in an unassisted double play.

Paull also belted a two-run homer, and Bruce and Saad had two hits apiece in the loss to Anchor Bay. Wysocki (5-1, 1.45 ERA) suffered his first loss of the season. He gave up six hits and three walks, fanning seven.

The Blue Devils meet Detroit Finney at home at 4 p.m. today, Thursday, May 14, in the qualifying round of the state tournament.

Boys make mark

South's boys participated in the Troy Athens Invitational track meet last Saturday and did well. Senior Kevin English placed in the 4 x 1600 meter relay (4:32), the distance medley 1600 (4:43) and the Athens Relay (800 meters at 2:02).

Other medal winners were senior Tony Murdock, junior Dave Nicholson, sophomores Phil Orton, Scott Shaupeter and Kyle Schomaker and freshman Dave Kerfoot.

Brian Stratton also had a fine day, running his 800 meter portion of a relay in 2:01 and his 400 meter cut in 49:75 for two third place medals.

The Blue Devils also ran a competitive meet against Mount Clemens, but lost the May 7 meet, 80-56. South won eight events, but came up short on second place finishes. Stratton ran the 400 meters in a school-record time of 50:06. Schomaker won the high hurdles, but the most impressive finish was English's easy victories in the 1600 (4:44), 3200 (10:09).

Joe Reynolds won the discus (136 feet, 2 inches), Dave Nicholson (800 meters in 2:08.46) and Jeff Maccagnone and Wayne Besler in the pole vault (10 feet) also had fine days.

Feeling Fit

Dressing for success?

Want to look great and feel good at the same time? It helps to try to look your best while exercising.

Of course, what we want to strive for in dressing for exercise class is comfort. But looking good makes feeling better about yourself ever easier!

Here are some tips for dressing to your best advantage and helping disguise some figure faults:

• If you have large legs, don't draw attention to them by wearing light-colored tights — especially white. I'm not sure why they even manufacture white tights, except maybe for those in the nursing profession, but they are definitely not for exercise class.

Pink tights are also no-nos. They tend to make one look as though they are suffering from a bad case of sunburn. Leotards come in a variety of colorful, wild designs now. But forget the horizontal stripe unless you weight 105 pounds. How many of us want a horizontal line across our bottom making us look wider than we are?

• Are your arms flabby? A bat-wing leotard does wonders for this problem, as does a T-shirt over the leotard. But stay away from the sleeveless variety of leotard.

• Saggy bottom and large legs? Buy the heavier weight, lycra, opaque tights. They hide a multitude of sins. They are more expensive, but they don't run and will last much longer. A tie belt with the tie worn in front helps disguise a little pot belly.

• Small shoulders, large bottom? The ideal outfit combines black opaque tights, a black leotard with high-cut legs, with a lighter-colored design in the shoulder area or a horizontal stripe across the bust.

Contrary to popular belief, the high cut on the leg of the leotard is flattering to all. What is unflattering is the leg that is cut straight across. That type of cut emphasizes bulging thighs.

Also, don't be concerned if you take a large-sized leotard when you've never worn anything in that size before. Remember to try the leotards on in the store before you buy. Manufacturers seem to be cutting the sizes smaller; sizes also vary considerably between manufacturers.

For summer coolness, tights and leotards are offered with a high cotton content. There are also a lot of "electric" colors on the market now . . . for those who are comfortable with a neon look.

One last tip: wash leotards and tights in cool water and never put them in the dryer. They'll last longer and won't shrink.

Next week, we'll discuss proper footwear. In the meantime, here's to feeling great and looking good.

Camping interest is ahead of strong 1987 activity

Michigan's mild spring weather should help propel camping activity to even greater heights than in 1986 when 40 percent of the state's private campgrounds established revenue records, reports AAA Michigan.

State park reservations are 18 percent above last year while advance bookings at private facilities also are up through the first quarter of 1987. Above-normal temperatures and slightly below normal precipitation so far this year are cited by many campground operators as major reasons for the increased reservations.

AAA Michigan's 1987 private campground guide includes 388 facilities which have between 30 and 2,400 sites. Most of the 39,871 campsites listed have direct access to a pool or a lake and nearly all facilities accept telephone reservations.

The average daily cost for a campsite with electricity is $9.51, 84 cents higher than last year. Daily prices run from $2 for electricity-only sites to $20 for sites offering such amenities as showers, flush toilets, trailer sanitation disposals and at-site water hook-ups.

Approximately 60 percent of all Michigan campsites are in private facilities. Seventy of the 89 state parks offer camping, with 14,423 campsites available, a slight increase over 1986.

Approximately 8.5 million of the 22.7 million state park visitors in 1986 used camping facilities. Three state parks along Lake Michigan in southwest Michigan — Grand Haven, Holland and Warren Dunes near St. Joseph — topped more than one million visitors each last year.

All state campgrounds take reservations, but at least half of the spaces at each facility are available for campers on a first-come, first-serve basis. The minimum number of nights needed to reserve a campsite is two in the Lower Peninsula and one in the Upper Peninsula.

Nightly state park fees, unchanged from last year, are: $8 for a site with electricity; $6 semi-modern site; $4 rustic site; $4 reservation fee; $2 daily park entrance; and a $10 annual park entry permit.

Campers can reserve a state park site by either mailing a check and reservation form to the park or telephoning in advance.

ULS conducts a very special clinic this Sunday

This Sunday, the students will become the teachers at University Liggett School.

The varsity tennis team and coach Bob Wood will conduct a clinic for Special Olympics athletes. Some 50 Special Olympians from all across Michigan are expected to participate in the clinic, which runs from 1 to 4 p.m. on the varsity tennis courts.

The clinic is the brainchild of Wood, who is also the school's co-athletic director. "I thought it would be neat for us to give something back to kids and adults who maybe are not as fortunate as we are," Wood said. "We're excited and looking forward to it."

The clinic will begin with a 20-minute demonstration-lecture about basic stroke techniques. Following that, ULS varsity players will help drill the Special Olympians on basic strokes, using two courts for each of the strokes. The Wilson Company is supplying the tennis balls and the USTA will supply the racquets for the clinic, Wood said.

"We think it'll be sort of neat. It's something I've thought of doing for years, but it was just really became possible this year.

"I think it's an excellent opportunity for our kids who are gifted athletes to thank the man upstairs for everything they have," he added.

Those who wish further information may contact Wood at 884-4444.

St. Clare tops St. Jude, but falls to Queen of Peace

Kyle Hoye pitched a complete game, striking out seven as St. Clare of Montefalco's baseball team downed St. Jude, 5-4, last week. Matt Recht had two RBI and played a flawless game at first base. Adam Brozo had two hits. Jeff Kerfoot and Tim Gramling also played well for the Falcons.

Earlier in the week, St. Clare lost to a good St. Matthew team, 11-3. Bill Saylor pitched well enough for the win, but his teammates could only put three hits on the board. Brozo, Kerfoot and Matt Jacklyn each had one hit.

The Falcons also lost to Our Lady Queen of Peace, 4-1, on May 10. Saylor again pitched well, striking out five and giving up just six base hits. Saylor and Brian Van Gorder each had a hit.

St. Clare will take its 3-3 record to St. Veronica this Saturday, May 16. On Sunday, the Falcons will host St. Joan of Arc.

'Gardens of Stone' seems to pick up where 'Platoon' left off

By Michael Chapp
Special Writer

At virtually any other time, "Gardens of Stone" would have been seen by viewers for what it really is — a generally worthwhile film plagued by a few thematic difficulties. Coming as it does hot on the heels of last year's immensely popular "Platoon" though, it automatically ranks a few notches higher than it otherwise would have. There's nothing wrong with this, of course. Quite often one piece of art picks up where another one left off. Specifically, "Gardens" provides a nice complement to "Platoon." It brings the circle to a close.

The film's title refers to Arlington National Cemetery, the burial place for soldiers who gave their lives in the Vietnam conflict. And even though the picture's ultimate thesis is about the horrors of war, there is no combat footage, save for the news coverage that the characters see on their television screens. Instead, the movie takes an intimate approach to the flip side of the coin — the soldiers based in America at the height of the conflict. These military men, who call themselves the "toy soldiers" of the U.S. Army, are responsible for burying their compatriots who are shipped home dead. Their daily routine is to perform numerous "drops," or funerals. And when they aren't burying the dead, they're baring their souls.

It's easy to see how this picture could be, in a sense, as powerful as "Platoon." It's filled with soldiers fighting with their feelings and their consciences, trying to make sense out of everything going on. In fact though, the picture is nowhere near as powerful as "Platoon." It lacks the sheer brutality and visceral impact that Oliver Stone's award-winning picture contained. But the approach "Gardens" takes does have merit. And for those who saw "Platoon," this becomes a very credible companion piece.

The picture's point of dramatic departure is Sgt. Clell Hazard (James Caan), a morally upstanding soldier who feels he could do more for the war effort if he was allowed to train soldiers going into combat. He hates the war, and he hates burying the product of the war. His is a neverending intellectual battle with himself to justify what he's doing with his life.

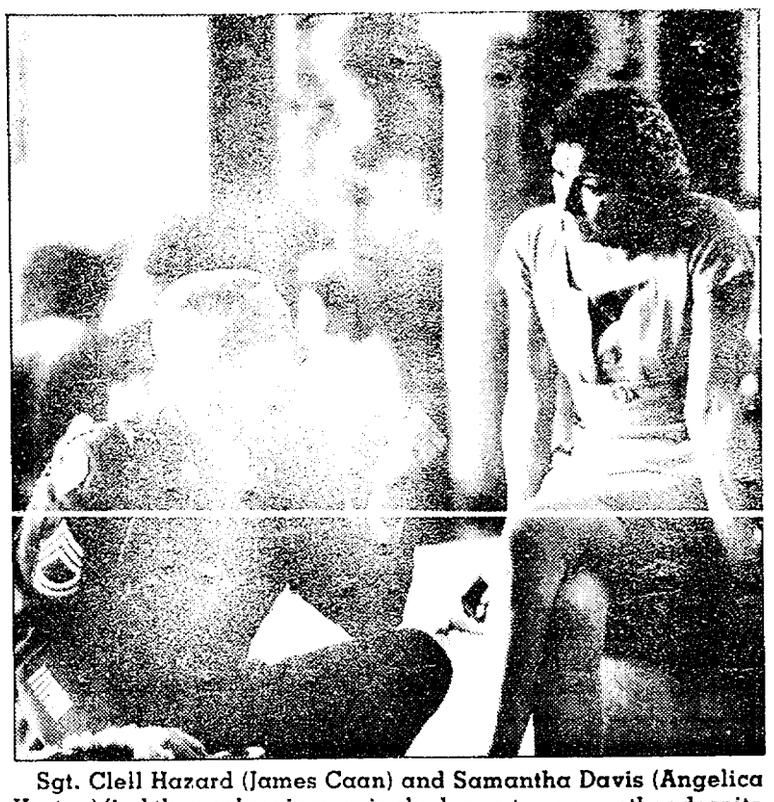

Counter to Hazard is young Pfc. Jackie Willow (D.B. Sweeney), an upstart hotshot assigned to the cemetery detail. Willow yearns to fight in Vietnam because he believes that "a soldier in the right place at the right time can change the world." Willow's bleary eyed optimism is challenged throughout the picture by Hazard, with whom he becomes good friends, and by the events in Willow's own life.

There's no ideological struggle between the two soldiers. A sense of being able to make a difference is in constant battle with a sense of knowing that America is involved in a war it cannot win. At the same time, there's a personal growth in the relationship between the two men — a relationship which eventually is stronger than anything the war can produce.

Indeed, "Gardens of Stone" contains both an epic sweep and an intimate appeal. The intimacy of the story is its strong point, since the weighty social and political ideas are presented in a somewhat hackneyed way. Though it is easy enough to emphathize with the some of the human struggles the characters are facing — such as Willow's attempts to hold on to his girlfriend (Mary Stuart Masterson) and Hazard's attempts to do the same — we cannot share the impact of their statements about the war, since the war is not real to us in this picture. Most of the things said about the struggle, such as the proclamation by Hazard's girlfriend (Angelica Huston) that "men come home from the war broken and cold" come off as hyperbolic assumptions, not realistic comments. More than a few scenes in the piece suffer from that basic difficulty.

Though it may seem that such an integral thematic error would destroy the impact of the entire film, it does not. Sweeney turns in a riveting characterization, as does James Earl Jones, who plays Hazard's army buddy Goody Wilson. Too, Mary Stuart Masterson again shows that she can play in the big leagues, holding her own spot admirably opposite Ms. Huston in a few scenes.

Director Francis Ford Coppola demonstrates here as he did in "Apocalypse Now" that he has a much better handle on the philosophical and human aspects of war than on war itself. This is fine. For those who saw "Platoon," Coppola's "Gardens" will give a sense of cinematic completion. For those who didn't see "Platoon," "Gardens" will come off as an admirable — albeit flawed — look at what went on in the hearts and minds of those involved in the Vietnam war.

Sgt. Clell Hazard (James Caan) and Samantha Davis (Angelica Huston) find themselves increasingly drawn to one another despite their ideological differences about the war in "Gardens of Stone."

Burt Reynolds changes his image in 'Malone'

By Marion Trainor
Special Writer

In a recent television interview, Burt Reynolds talked about himself, his two-year absence from films and his recent movie, "Malone."

In assessing it, he remarked that he was ambivalent about the film; that he hadn't made up his mind about it one way or another.

Film

It was a good observation. "Malone" is no better than the other violent adventure films that have been produced lately, but it is no worse.

He continued with: "I never said I was better than anyone else." Although he didn't elaborate on that statement, it is possible he was thinking of his earlier successes when he was the biggest box office draw of any of his contemporaries.

He concluded with, "But I am the best Burt Reynolds," and then with humor, "I'm the only Burt Reynolds."

However, it could be said that in his previous film, "Heat," and now in "Malone," he is not the Burt Reynolds we remember.

It is possible that he has deliberately changed his style to suit an older, more mature Reynolds. If that is so, he doesn't seem to have thoroughly worked out the image he wishes to project. He seems to be incorporating into this new Reynolds a combination of John Wayne and Stallone's Rambo.

"Malone" is a weary, disillusioned ex-CIA agent who decides to leave his past behind. He burns all of his identification, gets into his car and takes off in an aimless drive across the country.

When his car breaks down in a backroad in Oregon, he pushes it into an isolated garage run by a handicaped Vietnam veteran who lives with his teen-age daughter in a house behind the station.

Set apart from the world where there are no other buildings or houses, just mountains and breathtaking scenery, it might be expected that theirs is a tranquil life. Far from it.

A group of New Rights have set up headquarters in the nearby town of Comstock. They have an elaborate organization with branches in every state. Their purpose is to terrorize the local residents into selling their land to them, with the idea that eventually they will have enough power to take over the government. Their leader is a wealthy survivalist, Delaney (Cliff Robertson). Those who refuse to sell become victims of an unexplained car accident, an explosion or some other more creative act of violence.

"Malone" is not anxious to become part of the feud, but is drawn into it when the fanatic become suspicious of his presence

Cliff Robertson as the power-crazed Delaney is an interesting character. Ruthless in his dealing, he is still almost evangelistic in his belief in his cause.

Whether "Malone" is the best Burt Reynolds or not, he is still Burt Reynolds and for many fans, that's enough.

Spring season opener

The Michigan Opera Theatre opened its new spring grand opera season Saturday at the Masonic Temple with Puccini's dramatic opera, "Tosca." Among the 3,500 attendees were Grosse Pointers Dr. Donald and Dale Austin, Diann and Guido Regelbrugge and Sue Vititoe, pictured here in the General Director's Circle Lounge during the first intermission. Dale Austin and Sue Vititoe chaired a pre-opera dinner for 250 patrons at the Detroit Club. "Tosca" continues on Saturday, May 16, at 8 p.m.

A home movie

The Benfer residence on Lakeland in the City was turned into a set for the filming of a Perry Drug Store commercial which will be aired regionally later this month. The home was chosen at random by Somers and Somers Production Company of Indianapolis, Ind. The David and Mary Benfer living room and upstairs bathroom were used in two filming sequences. Television personality Stephen Hurst, who portrays Axelrod on "St. Elsewhere," was filmed in the Benfer living room on April 29. Hurst posed for the photo at right with Mary and two of her children, Andy on Hurst's shoulders, and Emily. At left a film crew and actors get ready for the filming in the bathroom.

We would like to share our most recent reading with you
A YELLOW RAFT IN BLUE WATER
by Michael Dorris

First we meet fifteen year old Rayona, tall, ungainly, deserted by her mother, left with a plastic trash bag full of outgrown clothing.

Then the mother, Christine, consumes our attention — impetuous, rings on fingers, carefully permed, looking forward only to each day's pleasures.

Aunt Ida is the grandmother, taciturn, living on the reservation, wearing a Walkman as she mows the grass, devoted to her television programs.

Here is a moving three-part narrative that reveals the amazing fibre of all three women. We learn of hidden angers, unexpected joys, surprising resiliency of spirit. In addition, author Michael Dorris skillfully evokes rain-swept Seattle, the bleak terrain of Montana. A YELLOW RAFT IN BLUE WATER is a compelling first novel.

ULS sports

Khelokian outstanding for ULS kickers

The University Liggett School girls varsity soccer team battled through its most challenging part of the spring schedule, playing three Class A teams last week, as well as a well-coached Class B team.

On Tuesday, May 5, the Lady Knights took on Grosse Pointe rival South High. The opposition scored first, just four minutes into the game, on a goal by former ULS student Kim Wood. ULS came right back, however, on two goals by Laurie Khelokian and took a 2-1 lead at the half. South tied the game seven minutes into the second half on another Wood goal. The ULS defense withstood South's repeated attacks and wound up with a 2-2 tie, assuring a second place finish in the Expressway League.

On Thursday, May 7, Coach David Backhurst's squad traveled to play Brighton, a team that had lost just once. After a scoreless first half, the Lady Knights rallied to create several good scoring opportunities in the second half. Outstanding Brighton goaltending thwarted ULS, until with just four minutes remaining in the game, Khelokian passed the ball over to Lynne Connor, who gave ULS a 1-0 shutout victory, the team's fourth of the season.

On Saturday, May 9, ULS traveled to play in the Troy Invitational Tournament. In the first game, the Knights played tenacious defense against Troy, the second best team in Class A, holding it off the scoreboard through the first half and halfway into the second. The Lady Knights eventually lost, 2-0. ULS was forced to play most of the game without key defender Eva Dodds, who suffered a leg injury in the first half.

In the tournament's consolation game, the Knights, now ranked No. 4 in Class B-C-D, took on Saginaw Eisenhower, ranked No. 5. Eisenhower had more shots on goal and corner kicks (13), but could manage only one goal against the Lady Knights' rugged defense of Shelly Tibbitts, Cindy Paul, Beth Birgbauer, Sylvia Ristic, Allana Stark and goalkeeper Susan Judge. ULS' offense was sporadic, but scored once to tie the game on a great shot by Khelokian, her school record 24th goal of the season, salvaging a 1-1 tie. For her efforts in the tournament, Khelokian and teammate Ristic were voted by the coaches to the All-Tournament team.

Track teams win

The ULS track and field team experienced more successes last week, as it prepared for the May 16 Class C regionals.

On May 7, the girls downed Southfield Christian, 73-55, and trounced Lutheran Northwest, 110-19. The boys took home wins over Southfield, 85-52, Plymouth Christian, 113-24, and Lutheran Northwest, 127-10.

ULS hosted the Michigan Independent Athletic Conference league meet on Saturday, May 9.

The boys were first with 110 points; the girls were second with 84.

On Saturday, May 16, ULS travels to Detroit Country Day School for the Class C regionals. The top three in each event go on the state championship meet at Bangor High School on May 30.
