

Parcells Middle School wins national award

The official phone call came last Wednesday, only hours after it was reported on local television: Parcells Middle School was named an Exemplary School by the United States Department of Education.

"Parcells is the first Grosse Pointe middle school to be recognized," said school Principal William Christofferson. The two high schools have previously won the distinction.

The competition is stiff. Only five Michigan middle schools were named. Nationwide, 271 middle and high schools received the honor.

First state, then national inspectors praised the school for high academic scores, for major participation in Michigan's sesquicentennial celebration and for community involvement in school activities.

"The parents have been particularly active in the area of substance abuse," Christofferson said. "With the help of a parent in opinion research, we took a survey that gave us valid statistics from the students on their use of spare time and their attitudes and use of drugs, smoking and alcohol. It gave us a good focusing point."

Educators from North Carolina and Indiana conducted a two-day on-site visit to substantiate the claims made in the school's application. "They found we had understated our case," Christofferson said. "They uncovered more good things about us than we had listed."

School officials will go to Washington sometime next fall for a ceremony at the White House, but the satisfaction in winning the award starts now. "It gives everybody a sense of pride and accomplishment," Christofferson said.

Contract talks start

Negotiating teams for the teachers and school board sat down for the first time two weeks ago to lay out their positions. Neither side is currently predicting how long bargaining will take.

Last winter the administration proposed aiming for a settlement by the end of school, but teacher union by-laws frustrated early bargaining. Now talks can last until school starts in September if necessary.

All 16 districts in Local I are bargaining contracts this year. Armada has already settled what Grosse Pointe union President Doris Cook described as a "very good contract" — one that all the Local I districts can look to as a precedent and a standard. Armada reportedly won a 24 percent increase spread over three years, as well as other improvements. It has, however, been the lowest paid district in Local I.

In Grosse Pointe, both teachers and administration are keeping their discussion plans to themselves. Both teams continue to meet to work out details of their proposals. Bargaining is expected to go on throughout June, take the traditional break in July and resume in August.

North High air problem recurs

Human temperatures up

By Nancy Parmenter
Staff Writer

The air conditioning went off at North High School last week, but the worst casualty of the doldrums was staff good will.

Teachers remained angry several days later at the lack of communication. Administrators say they knew there was a problem, but were doing their best. The sultry atmosphere lasted only a day and a half, not long enough to call off school, they say.

Things began to go wrong when one of the two air conditioning units stopped working. Repairmen brought in Tuesday to work on it turned off the other unit to test the first one. Students flocked to the clinic, teachers called the office, central administration was brought in. By Wednesday midday, the second unit was turned back on, cooling the building just as administrators were considering sending everybody home.

But teachers say no one told them the repair work was scheduled. The classrooms just got hotter and hotter.

One hundred sixty students went to the school clinic; 120 of them had been there by 1:45 p.m.; 65 were there during one hectic hour.

What went wrong? Or, to rephrase the question, was anything handled wrong?

"If they have to make repairs, they should start in the afternoon when the students are ready to go home," said teacher union President Doris Cook. "Students and teachers have to be able to rely on having a reasonable atmosphere."

Many teachers felt that school should have been closed. "The question is: Who calls school off?" said North union representative Janice McCloud. "Everybody keeps passing the buck."

"It's easy to look back and second-guess," said David King, director of support services.

North Principal John Kastran said the problem was really only bad one day. "We were considering calling the superintendent to dismiss school (Wednesday morning), but we didn't have to because we got one cooler going," he said.

There is disagreement on how serious the problem at North is.

McCloud keeps a strip thermometer in her classroom and monitors the temperature daily. "If it's just normally atrocious, I don't bother writing it down," she said. Two weeks ago, her room was too cold; by Wednesday morning, it was 82 degrees the first hour.

"I must have gotten calls from just about everybody in the building," McCloud said. She said other staff had called the school office and central administration.

King says the building is actually one of the most comfortable in the system — most of the time. "When that building is operating correctly, it's comfortable," he said. "It's the only building in the system that's air-conditioned — at the others, you have to open a window. That's why we have summer school there."

"Of course, when the air conditioning isn't working, it's not a very pleasant place to teach."

Once the unit started up again, the building was tolerable, according to Kastran. "It was warm, but not too bad," he said. "It was comfortable enough to work in." Kastran said starting the unit up brought the temperature down to no more than 76 degrees in any room.

The disagreement may obscure strides made in improving the ventilation at the school. Kastran said the fans are now operating 24 hours a day — a long-standing request by the teachers. Before last week, a number of teachers said conditions were much improved.

But Dave King wasn't notified of the problem until late Tuesday afternoon, when Cook called him after receiving complaints. "They normally get me involved only if it's of a serious nature," King said. "I guess the building administration didn't think it was that serious. People have to feel they can make decisions."

King said that he tried to open the lines of communication after he hurried over to North on Tuesday afternoon. "I explained the situation," he said.

"There are some people who don't trust. I guess the only way we can build that trust is to get these things accomplished."

Superintendent John Whritner said he thought King had done all he could once the problem became known at the central office. But he agreed with the teachers that they should have been notified in advance of the repair work.

"That's a fair criticism," he said. "The left hand doesn't always know what the right hand is doing, and that was our problem this time."

Pointer of Interest

Paul M. Turkal, D.V.M.

By Peter A. Salinas
Staff Writer

It's a hot Friday. Dr. Turkal doesn't seem to mind. He stoops and reaches under the passenger seat of the large white van. Pulling out two cards from the file there, he carefully sips a frozen Coke while nodding at the cards. He starts the van and drives down the Hill, holding the cards in one hand and a map and the wheel in the other. The frozen drink sits precariously atop the interior engine housing, melting quickly as the engine heats the compartment.

Ever since he was a boy, the tall, blond graduate of the Michigan State University School of Veterinary Medicine has wanted to make house calls on sick dogs, rabbits, "kitties" and snakes.

Paul M. Turkal, D.V.M., 27, of the Woods has had a home veterinary service business for a little more than two years. He has only 500 clients at the moment, but he's been busy lately.

"I worked for the Michigan Humane Society when I left State," Turkal said as he made a right turn onto Ridge Road headed to the Woods for his first home visit of the day. "I didn't want to be cooped up in a building. It is a lot more personable to meet people in their homes. When you see an animal in the home setting, you can learn a lot about them."

Turkal's business, Home Veterinary Service Corporation, is the most important thing in the young man's life. He works out of his van. His office is actually a small room in St. Clair Shores that has an answering machine and one small desk. If you leave a four-second message on the machine, his pager will automatically be signaled and he can call in to get the message.

He does it all. He can perform everything from routine heart-worm bloodwork checks to emergency surgeries in the back of the van. He has anesthetizing equipment, a microscope, drugs, bottled oxygen — in fact, he has everything an office veterinarian has except an X-ray machine.

"Some animals, especially cats and birds, get a lot of stress from being taken out of the home," he said. "Sometimes they get more stress and it's worse for the animal than if you didn't treat it at all."

When he arrives at a home, he usually does not perform an examination in the back of the van. Aggressive animals may be

Neal Shine, president of the Detroit Press Club Foundation, presents a plaque to Wilbur Elston, Grosse Pointe News editorial writer who won the top prize in the Editorial/Opinion category.

Wilbur Elston, editorial writer for the Grosse Pointe News, received the top prize for editorial writing in the Detroit Press Club Foundation's annual journalism awards Thursday night.

He was awarded first place for a series of editorials he wrote on the then-proposed Grosse Pointe Park Public Safety Department. The club's police and fire departments were consolidated into one department July 1, 1986.

The criteria used by the judges in the Editorial Opinion category were clarity of thought, sound reasoning and the power to influence public opinion. Judging was done by 21 professionals from Detroit, Philadelphia, Washington, D.C., St. Louis and Indianapolis.

Elston received $500 and a plaque.

The awards dinner, in its 22nd year, was held at the Westin Hotel. Neal Shine, president of the foundation, presented 38 first-, second- and third-place awards in 13 categories to professional newspaper and broadcast journalists.

In addition, seven student journalists were honored for their work. Wayne State University student Maureen Aitken won first place and a $200 cash award for opinion. Aitken is the granddaughter of Marian Trainor, Grosse Pointe News columnist and movie reviewer.

The top prize, the foundation medallion, was given to the Detroit Free Press for its series on "The Young Outlaws," in which the state's juvenile justice system was examined.

Also receiving two first place awards was Grosse Pointe resident Mort Crim for television reporting and television documentary.

After 10 months first Pointe group home going strong

By Pat Paholsky
News Editor

It was a little more than a year ago when a local advocacy group bought a house in Grosse Pointe Park for mentally retarded adults. The group home — Grosse Pointe's first — has been in operation now for about 10 months and its half-dozen residents are thriving under the family home life setting, according to the manager.

Sister Barbara, who manages the home on Lakepointe, said one of the residents has been institutionalized for more than 50 years. "She's made a beautiful adjustment and has been a delight in the house. The staff has been good for her."

Of the six adults who moved into the house last year, one has gone on to the Supported Independence Program, a higher functioning program in which all of the residents work and require minimal supervision. Another mentally retarded adult has since replaced him at the Lakepointe home.

"You can see the difference from when they first came," Sister Barbara said. "They have companionship now and they get along pretty well. There's some friction, but that's part of family living."

They are doing things the institution reported they were not able to do, "but we found out they could," she added. "They dust, some of them vacuum. One of the guys likes to cut the grass. It makes them feel good because they are contributing."

The daily routine consists of the residents getting up about 6 a.m. Two go to special education classes at Brownell and four go to a work center. There are two people on staff during the day and one at night.

"We have programs we run in the house," Sister Barbara said. "We work toward goals and we teach them self-help skills and different options for leisure, so they don't just sit."

Some of the residents bowl and a couple are involved in a baseball league, she said. "One of the clients likes the Oakridge Boys and the staff took him to that. Another one went to Boblo with a staff member and the parents are active in scheduling events."

Four of the adults living at the home are Grosse Pointers who lived with their families.

But while the reports on the welfare of the residents are upbeat, the actions of their neighbors are mixed. One has been supportive and helpful and another has been "unpleasant," Sister Barbara said. "Most of the neighbors have just kind of ignored us, which is OK." Another neighbor brought over a three-piece sofa, which the group is using in the basement.

The home is sparsely but adequately furnished. The backyard could use a few more lawn chairs, however. And the staff dreams of a two-wheel bicycle that can be used when one of the residents takes his for a ride. A staff member has to run alongside now.

Sister Barbara, who regularly visits institutions like Plymouth Center, said group homes are necessary. It's not possible to get the nurturing one gets in a family home setting in an institution, she said.

The Supported Independence Program recently opened a home in Grosse Pointe Farms. Two male adults, who require a minimal amount of supervision, are living in the home on Moross.

"There are more than 100 people in Wayne County in S.I.P. in a variety of settings, primarily small homes and small apartments," said Denise Mogos, acting director of public affairs for Wayne Community Living Services, which is under the Department of Mental Health. "It's exciting to provide that next step and it's been pretty successful."

Recycling: A great idea waiting for some community support

By Nancy Parmenter
Staff Writer

Nobody in a position to do something about it is doing anything about the county recycling recommendations, but it isn't because they're opposed to recycling.

The Wayne County Planning Department issued a thick study last September and began to circulate a few copies among local officials around Christmas. Outside of a few council people with a special interest in trash disposal, the copies haven't circulated widely. A couple of city managers said they don't even know where the copies are.

Some city officials believe any move toward recycling would have to come from the Grosse Pointes-Clinton Refuse Disposal Authority — that's the incinerator — while the incinerator people say a program would have to start with the cities.

The reason for the foot-dragging is easy: Officials don't believe most people are willing to sacrifice convenience for environmental improvements. There is no immediate pressing need for recycling — the incinerator won't run out of space for some years, although it is generally agreed that it will definitely run out of space sooner or later — and most officials are unwilling to impose unpopular measures if they aren't absolutely necessary.

But the officials say recycling is a good idea.

"I know there's a lot of interest in it (in some quarters)," said Shores Village Manager Michael Kenyon. "(Elizabeth) Kuhlman, who was on our council, was very interested in it. But we never got anything going."

"It would be a problem in Grosse Pointe because of the inconvenience — you'd almost have to do it by ordinance. People are all for (environmentalism) until you ask them to help."

Farms City Manager Andrew Bremer envisions a major recycling program if the community would support it. "I'm talking about recycling more than paper," he said. "I'm thinking about metal recovery at the incinerator, some sort of separation there." Bremer said he was thinking on a grander scale than the metal recycling that already takes place at the incinerator site.

But getting the community support is the hard part. "There's a question whether people would want to pay for it," Bremer said.

Ed Whedon, general manager of the incinerator, keeps abreast of recycling information as part of his official duties. There is no reason the authority couldn't handle such a project, he said, but the impetus would have to come from the cities. And money would have to be spent.

"If the communities want to get together, they'd have to pay for it," Whedon said.

Since circulating the copies of the study, which named the Grosse Pointes as an ideal area for a pilot recycling project because of the high level of education of the residents, the county has kept a low profile as well. But the commitment to recycling is still there.

"We're waiting now for approval to hire a coordinator to get out and promote it," said planning director Maurice Roach. He said he is also waiting to see if the county receives any Clean Michigan Fund money from the state.

Roach said he hopes for approval of both in order to build a complete approach, but that he will go ahead even if he gets only one. "We have to — we need it," he said.

Starting a recycling project in the Grosse Pointes wouldn't be as easy as it sounds, according to Grosse Pointe City Manager Thomas Kressbach. The five communities and Harper Woods have different collection practices which would have to be integrated, and a new contract would have to be worked out with the refuse authority.

"The biggest question is the cost to the local community," Kressbach said. "Are citizens willing to pay more tax? Are they willing to separate at the source? Americans aren't used to that."

Kressbach said none of the local communities had discussed the study in a formal way and that recycling currently isn't a priority. At the same time, he said, "I'm sure the authority is interested in not polluting."

Robert Nugent, the City representative to the authority, discussed the subject several months ago. At that time, he said that all of the authority members were reviewing the study.

"The thrust of the report was recommending source separation," he said, "so I think the serious discussion would have to start at the communities. If they said they wanted to do it, the authority would have no problem with it. We would have to change the costing."

"You're dealing with an awful lot of people," Nugent said. "In my opinion, it will take a very skillful (public relations) presentation. The benefits will really have to be presented to the people."

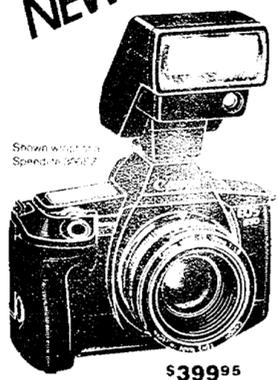

This summer could see the beginning of the county's push to convince the public of the benefits of recycling.

Suspect caught

A hit-and-run suspect was captured shortly after 7 p.m. Tuesday, May 26, and charged with leaving the scene of an injury accident in the Park.

Park officials said the accident occurred at St. Paul and Yorkshire. The suspect fled in his vehicle, and was chased by a witness.

As the two vehicles approached the Essex and Three Mile Drive area, the witnesses spotted several public safety officers who were on fire training exercises. The witness told the officers what happened and the man was arrested.

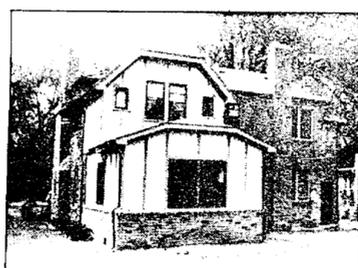

Ring stolen

Valente's Jeweler's in the City was the victim of a theft Friday afternoon, May 29, when a thief made off with a $450 wedding band.

According to City officials, the man entered the store and asked to look at wedding bands. He looked at several trays, and the storekeeper noticed one of the bands missing. When he confronted the customer about the missing jewelry, the man fled on foot.

The suspect was described as a black male, about 28 to 30 years of age, about 6 feet, 1 inch, with short hair.

New machine uses shock waves to break up kidney stones

By Peter A. Salinas
Staff Writer

By the end of this century, surgery will become less frequent, and non-invasive medical procedures will take its place, according to one of three Grosse Pointe urologists who are trained to use Michigan's first lithotripter.

Thomas Mertz, M.D., said that in his experience with the machine he has seen patients benefit enormously from its use.

Mertz, 39, who has admitting privileges at Cottage Hospital, recently completed the credentialing process offered by Henry Ford Hospital, which acquired the state's first lithotripter in 1985.

A lithotripter is a medical machine that uses shock waves to break up kidney stones while still inside the kidney. Some 85 percent of kidney stone patients could benefit from this relatively new machine, rather than have to undergo surgery.

Kidney stones can occur in anyone. People more likely to develop them are those with gout or a family history of stones or chronic urinary tract infections. Kidney stones are a concentrated crystalline material which builds on itself the way rock candy crystallizes on a string hung in sugar water. Nine out of 10 stones will pass through the urinary tract on their own and can be excruciatingly painful.

"I have seen stones range in size from a grain of sand to some four or five inches in diameter that actually fill most of the kidney," Mertz said.

A Farms resident, he and his wife Anne have three children. Raised in the Shores, he attended the University of Michigan and medical school at Wayne State University. He completed his residency at Henry Ford Hospital and has his office on East Warren in Detroit. He has been practicing urology for eight years and he trained on the lithotripter machine in January 1987 at Methodist Hospital in Indiana.

Stones too large to pass through the urinary tract can often be removed through conservative measures, however, a small percentage of stones required surgical intervention — that is until the advent of the lithotripter.

The machine has been generally available since February 1984, when the U.S. Food and Drug Administration approved the use of six machines in the country on a trial basis. Today there are about 60 machines in use.

"With surgical removal of a kidney stone, the average hospital stay was a week to 10 days," Mertz said. "The period of disability, no physical work, was four to six weeks. I have seen people go back to work the second day after having undergone lithotripsy. We generally recommend one week off from work."

It is definitely a leap ahead both in the benefit to the patient and in lowering hospital stay costs.

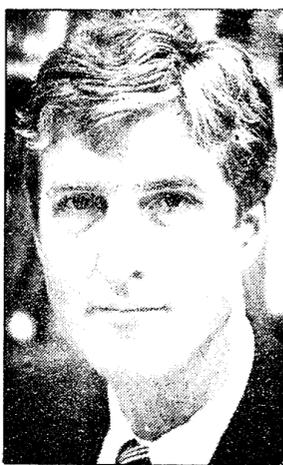

When it is determined a patient is a candidate for lithotripsy, a "stent" is inserted into the kidney through the ureter. This keeps the stone from entering the urinary tract and thus eliminates the pain. It also keeps the stone from blocking the flow of liquid.

The patient prepares for the lithotripter by following normal outpatient procedures. He undergoes a medical evaluation and also has an electrocardiogram in preparation for a general or a spinal anaesthetic.

The patient is secured in a specially designed chair and lowered into a shallow tub of warm water about chest high. The patient remains in the stainless steel tub for about 30 to 40 minutes while electrically generated shock waves pulverize the stones into small granules.

Twin X-ray units are used to position the patient precisely so that the maximum energy is focused on the kidney stones. With the X-ray machines, the doctors are able to monitor the stone's fracturing.

"The shock wave passes easily through water," Mertz said. "Because the body is mostly water, the wave also passes through the body tissue, including the kidney, and fragments only the stone."

Kidney stones are usually a recurring problem. Surgery can be performed several times to the same kidney, however, there is always the chance the kidney can become permanently damaged and must be removed. Lithotripsy can be performed numerous times with little chance of harming the kidney, according to Mertz.

With the stones pulverized, the stent helps to keep the ureter open and this allows for the sand-sized remnants of the large stone to pass easily. The patient is advised to drink two to three liters of fluid following the procedure to aid in the passing of the tiny fragments.

"This procedure is considered major surgery," Mertz said. "There is the risk of bleeding from the kidney and there is also a risk of infection. You can watch the stone on a fluoroscope, and you really have to see it to believe it. The stone twitches and then breaks apart. It is really amazing."

There was reluctance at first by some urologists to accept the machine as a useful tool. Because the machine, in many cases, eliminates the need for surgery, some urologists will lose a source of income.

Mertz would not say what the cost of surgery is, but noted that many urologists perform 150 to 200 kidney stone surgeries per year. That could translate to some doctors losing large portions of annual income if patients who would normally undergo surgery were able to use the lithotripter.

"Not all urologists will be trained on the machine," Mertz said. "For instance, I am the only one of four in our group to be trained on the machine."

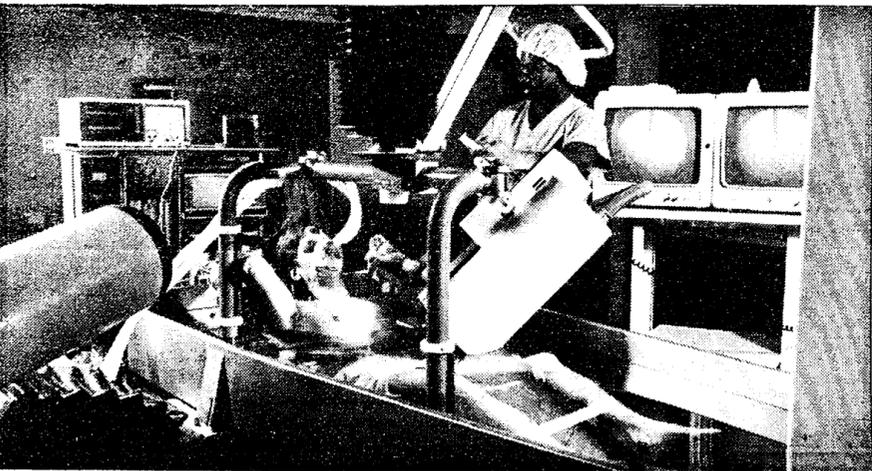

Mertz said some doctors were skeptical about using the machine, because they knew what they could do surgically, but weren't sure what they could expect with the lithotripter.

"People tend to be skeptical about anything new," Mertz said. "But I can say from experience that the results are dramatic.

There are few remaining skeptics. The media has had the story all over the place."

Mertz said he is constantly amazed at the new non-invasive surgical techniques, and said he believes that by the end of this century, a large percentage of surgery will no longer be necessary.

"We now have balloon angioplasty (a non-surgical treatment for clogged heart arteries), for instance," he said. "Soon everything will be done with guide-wires and catheters. It feels that doctors who don't learn and develop these new techniques will be missing the boat for the future."

The lithotripter, a medical device used to break up kidney stones, has been in use for more than five years.

Fund-raising efforts are under way for the Lakeshore District of the Detroit Area Council, Boy Scouts of America. Finance committee members have scheduled several activities, including a telethon and presentations to local organizations. Committee members are, from left, John Billings, Stroh Brewery; John F. Hagen, General Motors Corp.; Thomas Van Tiem, 36th District Court judge; Paul J. Norat, district executive, Boy Scouts of America; front row, from left, are Paul N. Decker, GMC and chairman of the finance committee and James W. Furlong, Chrysler Corp. Other members are Richard A. Christensen and Michael Lang.

Scouting fund-raiser planned

If you feel scouting provides a wholesome influence for young people, the Lakeshore District of the Boy Scouts of America is seeking your support. The district, which includes 22 Boy Scout and 33 Cub Scout troops, serving some 1,700 youths in the five Grosse Pointes, Harper Woods, part of Macomb County and a portion of the east side of Detroit — part of the Detroit Area Council — is holding its annual fund-raiser.

The annual budget for the Detroit Area Council is more than $3 million. Scouting officials are proud of the fact that it costs only $4 for a youngster to become a scout with a minimal yearly fee.

To provide the number and variety of programs, however, fundraisers seek donations from both scouting families and the community.

Lakeshore District Executive Paul Norat said community members from the district have volunteered to aid in the district's fund-raising efforts.

"We will be making personal contacts with community organizations and will also be holding a telethon where members of the community will be called on to donate money to the organization," Norat said.

The sustaining membership enrollment fund-raiser solicits donations and plaques are awarded to the donating individuals or organizations in recognition of the gift. Special plaques come with gifts of $100, $250, $500 and $1,000.

Historical society seeks donations

The Grosse Pointe Historical Society is often asked about the kinds of documents and memorabilia it collects.

According to Curator Jean Dodenhoff, the society's collections are developed primarily as a result of individual donations. The age of an item, she said, is less important than the fact that it pertains to Grosse Pointe or to Grosse Pointers.

Anyone wishing to donate the following types of items should call the society's office at Mason Elementary School on Tuesdays or Wednesdays between 10 a.m. and 4 p.m.: family documents, photographs, letters, maps, books, pamphlets, small artifacts, manuscripts, postcards, newspapers, magazines, oral histories, Indian artifacts, genealogies, clippings, slides, videotapes and artworks.

Preserving best of our heritage

The controversy over the recent dismantling of the Kanzler house on Lakeshore Road has aroused new interest in historic preservation and in proposed legislation to help save historic sites, homes and other objects in the Grosse Pointe community.

Under the leadership of the Grosse Pointe Historical Society's historic preservation committee, legislation now is being drafted to identify and protect historic homes and buildings in the Farms that could be considered for preservation and preservation control. If successful in winning approval of the proposal from the Farms council, the committee plans to seek similar legislation from the four other municipalities in the Pointes.

This is an encouraging move for the Pointes. For some reason, this community has not played an active role in historic preservation in the past, perhaps because the auto industry's policy of planned obsolescence permeates the area. Even so, some individuals have done much in this field, but now at long last many more Pointe residents are awakening to the cultural losses that are involved when historic homes and buildings come down.

The legislation is not expected to be unduly restrictive, but is intended to ban demolition and significant exterior alteration of homes and other buildings found to be of historic value. The purpose is at least twofold: to help keep a record of past achievements and, in the words of committee chairperson Tish Colett, to help maintain the quality of life in the Pointes.

"Unique, beautiful things should be saved for the enjoyment of future generations," Ms. Colett says. "But we can't take it for granted that this will happen. What this means for our community is that we can't take for granted our tree-lined streets, our pure lake water, our historic homes. If we want them to be part of our future and our children's future, we have to work to preserve them."

Some people have questioned the committee's purpose because so many of the great old homes that once graced this community already have fallen. But the committee's point is that there still are many first-rate homes and buildings, some large but some small, too, that should be preserved for future generations. As the committee points out, many are unique and simply cannot be replaced.

As the historic preservationists say, this generation obviously cannot be held responsible for what has happened in the past, but it can now try to take responsibility for what happens on its watch. They believe that without preservation, Grosse Pointe would lose many of the distinctive features that set it aside from other fine residential communities.

They point out that, in addition to serving cultural purposes, historic preservation in itself tends to help protect property values and in some cases can also yield federal tax benefits.

A few homes and buildings in the Pointes already are on the Federal Register because of their architectural distinction, the social significance of the people who lived in them or the historical significance of the property. Among them are the Alger home which houses the Grosse Pointe War Memorial, the Wardwell House and Grosse Pointe Academy's lakeshore building.

But listing in the registry does not always protect such homes from demolition or wholesale alteration. And that is one reason the Grosse Pointe Historical Society's preservation committee is seeking local legislation to carry out its goals.

The committee is anxious to get community reaction to its historical preservation proposals and urges interested people to get in touch with its members or write to the Grosse Pointe Historical Society which has its headquarters in Room 110 of Mason Elementary School at 1640 Vernier, Grosse Pointe Woods.

The society itself has only been re-established since 1980 and its historic preservation function was recognized only in 1985. But both the society and its committee serve important purposes and, in our opinion, deserve public support for their latest campaign on behalf of historic preservation in the Pointes.

Now it's the voters' turn

The role of the journalist in a democratic society was once described by the late Walter Lippmann in these words:

"If the country is to be governed with the consent of the governed, then the governed must arrive at opinions about what their governors want them to consent to. How do they do this? They do it by hearing on the radio and reading in the newspapers what the corps of correspondents tells them is going on in Washington and in the country at large and in the world.

"Here we perform an essential service . . . We do what every sovereign citizen is supposed to do but has not the time or the interest to do for himself. This is our job. It is no mean calling and we have a right to be proud of it and be glad that it is our work."

We have cited those words by an eminent journalist in previous discussions of the reasons the Grosse Pointe News covers the school board election campaign in its news and editorial columns. As Lippmann explained, we do it because there are people who have neither the time nor the inclination to obtain the information about the qualifications of the candidates they need to make informed judgments when they go to the polls. So the News does its best to provide that information for them.

We do not pretend that the newspaper is the only source of information. There are many other sources and we urge prospective voters in the June 8 election to get as much information as possible from all available sources. If they do that, they will be able to make informed judgments about the candidates when they go to the polls next week.

So far as we can learn, the campaign this year has been a quiet one with no major controversies or even sharp differences of opinion on the issues. The Grosse Pointe News last week endorsed two candidates, Vincent LoCicero and L. Jane Nutter, in the belief that their qualifications are superior to those of the other five. But other people have different views and prefer other candidates. We respect those views, too. Our choices reflect responsibility to provide our opinions as well as news reports on the election campaign.

But now it is up to the voters to pick two of the seven candidates to serve on the board for the next four years. The polls will be open from 7 a.m. to 8 p.m. on Monday, June 8, and we urge a large turnout of informed voters so that the choices are as representative as possible.

Hockey games

To the Editor:

I am a resident of Grosse Pointe and a student at Grosse Pointe North. I am writing about the temporary probation and possible cancellation of both of the high school's hockey teams (particularly North).

I think that the concept behind doing this is absurd. Some of the behavior like pennies on the ice was uncalled for, but for what other reason is this being done? Administrators don't seem to understand that students will not be interested in attending games after all these restrictions are placed upon them.

The question is — is the hockey team there for the kids or for the board of education? I know some of the hockey players and they too object to these recent restrictions — the fans' voices are not interfering with the players and their ability to play.

I think that there should be some serious reconsideration on Superintendent John Whittner's part as to the effectiveness of his plan of action. Grosse Pointe's hockey teams should not go to waste over a wasted matter like this.

Write more

To the Editor:

I am writing in regard to the lack of coverage Grosse Pointe North's track team is getting in your sports page. For a team that hasn't lost since 1985, our coverage has been less than trivial. After winning our region and sending 10 people to state, we deserve much more than a J.V. baseball team, a J.V. soccer team, or South's boys track team.

I have had enough of seeing South sports on the front page of the section and having to dig through the pages to find a microscopic paragraph about us. Please write more about our team and those special individuals who made it to the state finals in the future. We've earned it!

Watch your kids

To the Editor:

I respectfully submit my opinion and I feel compelled to write after a tense situation developed on Memorial Day. It made us realize that even in Grosse Pointe, we must look after our children. Memorial Day, 1987, was a day to relax — good friends, good conversation. But as we lounged in a friend's yard, we noticed a woman approach the neighbors next door.

"Do you know this child?" she asked, holding a toddler in her arms. No, we did not recognize the child. So we did our best to ask the child his name, age, where he came from, anything that could give us a clue. Yes, he was 2, and yes, he pointed in a particular direction when asked where he lived.

The woman who found the toddler on a busy thoroughfare was long gone. As we waited for the police, the child seemed cheerful and unaware of the apprehension we felt for the parents who at that same moment, could be frantically searching, going out of their minds when they realized he was gone.

The police arrived in force and began going house-to-house until a bike rider approached us. He recognized the child!

Detroit's new gambling plan

Now that a proposal to legalize casino gambling in Detroit has not really caught on in the metro area, Mayor Coleman Young of Detroit has proposed the development of a jai alai fronton and a dog racing track in the city. Both are gambling operations that Young believes would benefit Detroit by attracting tourist dollars.

From this suburb's point of view, these proposals might be better than the plan to permit casino gambling on Belle Isle, assuming that neither the jai alai nor the dog track operations would locate on the beautiful little island. But both still are forms of gambling that tend to attract not only tourists but professional gamblers who do not contribute to any community's public health and morals.

The mayor justified his new proposal on the grounds that he wants some equal rights for the city of Detroit. Present law bars Detroit from opening a horse racing track to compete with facilities now operating in Hazel Park, Livonia and Northville. Permitting Detroit to operate dog racing presumably would end that discrimination.

But the proposal would appear to have difficult sledding in the Legislature. The Detroit News reported that more than a dozen bills to legalize dog racing in Detroit have been shot down in the past 20 years, chiefly because of the fears of the state's powerful horse racing industry that the dogs might compete too successfully with the horses.

Jai alai, on the other hand, is a century-old sport that is played on a concrete court, about half the length of a football field, and is popular in Florida and in other resort areas around the world as another way to bring in gambling dollars from tourists.

It appears that the Legislature would have to approve bills to legalize both dog racing and jai alai, but the mayor's proposal immediately ran into trouble from Council President Erma Henderson who said she "didn't want any gambling on the riverfront regardless of what it is."

Mayor Young told reporters he hasn't given up on the idea of legalized casino gambling in Detroit and that he still intends to appoint a commission to study whether casino gambling would be a good thing for the city. But the opposition of the Friends of Belle Isle and civic leaders obviously has slowed down the efforts to develop casino gambling on the island. The mayor, who has been talking of the appointment of a commission for many months, apparently isn't yet ready to take on the opponents of the proposal and now sees jai alai and dog racing as possible substitutes.

What is the stake of the Pointes in all of these proposals about legalizing various forms of gambling in Detroit?

True, gambling might benefit some Pointers who own businesses and property in Detroit, but the crime, violence and other miseries caused by such operations, no matter how well policed, would tend to spill over into the Pointes and other nearby suburbs. And while some people claim they favor legalized gambling in Detroit as a last resort to help finance the city's operations, we are not convinced that other, less destructive ways could not be found to help the city meet its many needs.

Wanted: Some really big talkers

Nancy Parmenter's column in this space last week reminded me of when I was a kid. I don't think Nancy's very Irish, but her musings about her family sounded exactly like the days when my parents, grandparents, aunts and uncles would get into big, philosophical discussions during our family get-togethers. The topics were diverse, running the gamut from religion and politics to more religion and politics.

These family filibusters usually ended when my Grandfather Ryan made one of his sons angry or when my Aunt Kitty O'Connor decided that nobody was going to make her change her opinion... or until my folks decided that the language was a little too graphic for big-eared little pitchers. I always dreaded that moment when we kids had to vacate the premises. Aside from my grandmother's tendency to overindulge his grandkids by handing out silver dollars right and left, eavesdropping on those discussions was just about the only reason I ever enjoyed family gatherings.

My favorite discussion topic was religion. I could never understand how a roomful of Roman Catholics could have so much to disagree about when it came to discussing religion. But I loved it!

You haven't lived until you've sat spellbound for hours as a bevy of silver-tongued Irishmen debated over the role of the pope in the American church, why the church should/shouldn't have undergone the changes brought about by Vatican II, why women wouldn't make good priests, why priests wouldn't make good husbands and why non-Catholics would never make it into heaven.

Listening to them expound on their notion of heaven alone was worth more than the price of admission. I can remember one rare occasion when I forgot about being seen and not heard and piped up with a question from the back of the room. Thirty minutes later — after several answers to my question

"What is heaven going to be like?" had been offered, discussed, picked apart and discarded — I was told: "That's one of those mysteries of life that you'll find out all about when you die and go to heaven... if you're a good girl and go to church, that is."

Grandpa and Grandma Ryan and my Aunt Kitty are gone now. So's my Uncle Morgan J. "Mike" O'Connor, an effective debater and public speaker as ever lived. He once pretended to be Detroit Mayor Jerry Cavanaugh in a telephone conversation with his brother, my dad, and had my dad believing it.

And while I miss them for their wit and wisdom, I miss them even more these days because I'm dying to know what they would have to say about Jim and Tammy Bakker.

I'm sure that the Bakkers and their saga of greed, sex, extravagance and hostile takeovers would have been good for literally days of discussion at one of those bygone family gatherings. Oh, we talk about it here at the office and sometimes, we really get rolling on the subject. Somehow, though, it's just not the same when the hot-tempered Irishmen are outnumbered, 5-1. Plus, journalists aren't very good debaters since they have to expend a lot of energy being non-committal, sarcastic, droll and detached.

So, I'm reduced to merely imaging how my grandfather, who knew no such constraints, would change his mind every 15 minutes, siding with Bakker one time, Jerry Falwell the next and beating each argument into the ground, just as long as whatever position he took was the exact opposite of everyone else's. And I can see my grandmother, smiling and shaking her head at the intensity of the argument, telling everyone that they should just pray for the poor, troubled Bakker family.

My Uncle Mike would most likely speak contemptuously of the dunderheaded Bakker P.R. people who let Jim and Tammy get into a mess this bad. And I think my Aunt Kitty would probably say that Tammy ought to wash her face and comb her hair before she had the right to go around asking for forgiveness. And that would start a whole different argument.

They'd probably come to a consensus that if Jim and Tammy were Catholic, they could have done whatever they wanted and no one would have known. There'd be plenty of raucous laughter about Jim's impotence and Tammy's love affairs and lots of wondering about who would bear the cost of all those St. Christopher medals for the Bakkers' many luxury cars.

Sooner or later, somebody would get angry and the topic would change to politics. My grandfather would probably start calling Gary Hart a horse's derriere for letting some little sweetie bring his presidential campaign to a crashing halt. Then one of my uncles would wonder aloud if Hart was a Catholic and we'd get to start all over again on religion.

It's just killing me — all of this great fodder for a good, old-fashioned family discussion and no one left to do the discussing. I suppose that what my grandfather, aunts and uncles would have to say about Jim and Tammy, Oral Roberts turning panhandler and a pope who has a frequent flyer pass AND his own car, is just one of those mysteries of life that I'll find out about one day... if I'm a good girl and go to church. I'll brush up on my debating techniques in the meantime.

I Say

Yesterday's Headlines

Nov. 21, 1957 —

The New York Times reported that Betty Corstorphine of Newark, N.J., blind for 18 years, detected flashes of light in a Los Angeles hospital test in which wires were implanted in her brain. The wires, attached to a transistor amplifier, were attached in turn to a photocell serving as an eye.

Secretary of State John Foster Dulles said that if an attack were made on NATO forces "like the one on Pearl Harbor," the decision to shoot back would be made by the commanders on the spot. He said such an attack would almost certainly involve United States troops because the forces are "so intermingled."

Mao Tse-Tung and other leaders of world communism left Moscow, where they had been meeting for two weeks to celebrate the 40th anniversary of the Bolshevik Revolution.

The U.S. Air Force announced that it would try to break Great Britain's world flying speed record of 1,132 miles per hour. Officials said they would send the new supersonic F-101A Voodoo jet over a 10-mile course at Edwards Air Force Base in California. The Voodoo, a fighter-bomber capable of delivering atomic bombs, would try to surpass the American record of 1,015 miles an hour.

Billy Martin, the fiery infielder who plays for pennants "because that's the only way to play," was signed by the Detroit Tigers in a 13-player trade with the Kansas City Athletics.

Nat King Cole left NBC because of commitments to personal appearances here and abroad. NBC said it would replace Cole's show with "Treasure Hunt." Cole was the only prominent black entertainer with his own network show.

A Soviet radio spokesman said the Soviet Union spent more than 30 billion rubles on its research institutions, with military research receiving the majority of the funds.

In Grosse Pointe, the driver training program inaugurated at the high school in 1952, reported teaching 1,250 students in five years. The program used only one car at its inception and students practiced at the Farms Pier Park, not on the open road. Grosse Pointers who attended a PTA meeting at Richard School heard Lou Gordon and college officials discuss the job

"Hold the starch on those cuffs," might have been what a felony suspect arrested May 26 may have uttered as Park and Detroit officers resisted the likely overpowering urge to flip a switch.

The suspect was wanted in connection with a string of burglaries in the Park last winter. Police got wind that he was back in town and secured a warrant to search an Alter Road residence. Both Detroit and Park officers made a search of the home, and were coming up empty.

Then one officer heard a noise, and sure enough, they found him — hiding in the dryer.

Park officials said the man will face preliminary examination in Park municipal court, but other than that, there were no new "wrinkles" in the case.

Obey the rules

Farms Police Officer Jack Patterson said he has been noticing young bicyclists disobeying the rules of the road.

Patterson said youngsters driving in the city, especially around the areas of Chalfonte and Fisher and Chalfonte and Moross, have been doing things like driving through stop signs and not signalling while turning.

Warnings have been issued to several of the bicyclists, but they have apparently gone unheeded. Patterson said he will have no alternative but to issue tickets.

The most important thing to remember that bicyclists must obey the rules of the road just as a car driver must.

From the Capitol

In pursuit of excellence

By William R. Bryant Jr.
State Representative

Various efforts to concoct property tax cut, school finance change proposals continue.

The primary danger is that those who are considering what proposal to dream up and advocate do not want to deal with myriad highly complex and tremendously crucial policy questions involved.

Too many of those involved want easy, quick answers, simple proposals. Too many of those involved also want to include concepts, provisions, which has virtually nothing to do with property tax relief. One of those extraneous concepts, one which would cripple our own school system, is a proposal to prohibit local voters from voting as much money for their schools as they wish.

The impatience and frustration being shown by the state commission and various groups of legislators examining the issues is very dangerous. It concerns me a great deal, because the probable result is adoption by these groups of proposals damaging to presently good school systems. The danger is simplistic proposals imposing a universal mediocrity on all the schools of our state.

I have told, again and again, all those I can reach, that I am certain the residents of wealthier communities want, and are willing to help pay for, good schools for those who now can't afford good schools, but that we insist on the right to continue to be able to generate locally voted school taxes to pursue our own version of excellence.

Letter

viously wandered away from home and crossed at least two streets in the process. Minutes later, his sibling arrived, simply asking, "Where did you go?"

I thought later of our own 2-year-old, more precious than life itself. And then I remembered a flyer I had received a week earlier from the Adam Walsh Child Resource Center. The Walsh Center was founded by the courageous parents of 6-year-old Adam Walsh.

You see, their child Adam had not been so lucky. He had been abducted and murdered. They had not believed that such a thing could happen to their family. This Grosse Pointe toddler may have opened a door or gate. And, very likely, the parents are still thanking their lucky stars that an honest, caring motorist had found their beautiful child.

I fervently hope that every child will be so lucky and that we, as loving parents, will do our best to protect them from unknown danger.

We must never wait for something to happen. Just ask the parents of Adam Walsh.

Prime Time for Senior Citizens

Memories of downtown Detroit

By Marian Trainor
Special Writer

The dictionary defines nostalgia as a "wistful yearning for one's home, country or city." There are only a few who have not experienced that sad, sweet feeling, even among those who still live in the city of their birth, probably because there is so little left of the city that they hold dear in memory. Not that they pine for it. Change is inevitable, and being progressive, thinking individuals we accept it and adjust to it.

But every once in a while, the ashes of memory are stirred by a meeting with an old friend, an incident or a news item and our hearts are warmed as we go back in time to people and places that were once so important in our lives.

I'm sure it happened last week to many of our older residents who read of the closing of downtown Siegel's and the sale of the Kresge stores.

In memory, one stood once again on Woodward and State, admiring the beautifully dressed mannequins in Siegel's windows. They were the forecasts of what the well-dressed woman would wear. Inside was style and affordable luxury. Having a charge account at Siegel's was a reward a working woman gave herself and the extra worked into the budget of the homemaker.

There were other fine stores, Himelhoch's, Healy's and the Washington Boulevard shops, but they were considered carriage trade shops. Kern's, Crowley's and the all-inclusive Hudson's were department stores. Siegel's was unique, a woman's store where the average shopper was not intimidated by prices.

Directly kitty-corner to Siegel's was another favorite store -- Kresge's, more often referred to as the ten-cent store. It's probable that Kresge did have some items that sold for 10 cents, but no one ever went in there looking for items at that price. It did, however, have any number of items for less than a dollar.

Down the street was another Kresge store. That was known as the dollar store. It had high-priced merchandise but relatively so. The dollar store could well have been the seed from which K mart grew. The growth of an enterprise to a giant K mart chain that stocks designer clothes is an interesting phenomenon.

Kresge is no more, but the concept of the five and dime and dollar and up is not dead. It will live on under the sign of Jupiter, which bought Kresge, and more than likely be remembered years from now by some who will recall shopping there when they were young. The importance of these and other downtown stores in the lives of older Detroiters should be recognized in the context that there were no neighborhood counterparts.

Part of the problem of looking back at a certain place is that it refuses to be isolated and soon you are calling to mind other favorite haunts.

One was Vernor's. Farther down Woodward, it was a stopping off place to have a frosty, sparkling glass of ginger ale, not from a bottle or can, but straight from the fountain. It fizzed and bubbled and tickled your nose. It was sweet and tasty and never again equaled.

And there was Sanders' with a long counter of various chocolates where you could order one of this and one of that and put it in a bag, providing you didn't spend your 15 cents for a hot fudge sundae instead.

Memories hold so much that is important, happy times and sad times, important events and little happenings, traveling to other states or countries and a day "downtown."

But most important of all, memories bestow upon us the precious power to be once again with those who shared those memories; a mother who loved downtown Detroit and led us by the hand through all the sights and sounds of its stores and shops; a father who introduced another aspect of going downtown, the theater, the movie houses, the library, the museums; an aunt who babysat and made it possible for a young mother to revisit favorite downtown spots.

There are memories of taking children to see Santa Claus on Hudson's 13th floor and seeing their first movie, "Snow White and the Seven Dwarfs," at the United Artists. Fun times. Happy times.

Once there was no finer place to go than downtown Detroit, and while most of what we knew is gone, it lives on in memory. All it takes to bring it back is a meeting with an old friend, an incident or an item in the newspaper.

The Grosse Pointe Central Library honored its two most outstanding volunteers of 1986-87 — Tom Getz, left, and Peg Upmeyer. With them are Charles Hanson, director, and Blaine Morrow, coordinator of automated services. Getz was honored for his contribution to the library's public access computer training and Upmeyer's contribution was in children's services, including participation in videotaped story hours. put in the van, because Turkal says the change of environment makes it easier to handle the animal.

He turns the van into the driveway of his first patient. When he knocks on the door and is let in, the first thing the young doctor does is remove his Reeboks. A large long-haired house cat is going to get a clipping, and the owner has asked that Turkal prescribe a tranquilizer so that it can be done without too much stress to the cat.

Getting the cat to come to Turkal is a problem.

Carol Ann Brophy, Pretty's owner, says she knew where the cat was a few minutes before, but now that the doctor has arrived, Pretty is nowhere to be found. When the cat is located, Turkal checks its heart rate and respiration and writes out the prescription. He carefully explains the effects the drug will have on the animal.

"It is so terrific not to have the stress of taking a cat to the vet," Brophy said. "They (her two cats) are just scared fitless going to the vet."

Brophy said she has been going to veterinarians for 23 years, and has nothing against her previous vets, but no one else has ever made home visits.

Turkal grew up on the east side of Detroit. After graduating from MSU, he moved in with his parents while working for the Michigan and then the Macomb County humane societies. He now lives with his attorney in a Woods home. Turkal said the arrangement is a matter of convenience for the time being as his practice grows.

Maintaining a strictly professional relationship at all times is something Turkal said he works at and it can be difficult. People are constantly inviting him to have a cup of coffee, a soft drink and, in some cases, lunch or dinner.

"I remember one house call where I had an emergency problem with a dog," he said. "As I was winding up around 2 a.m., the client was making breakfast. When I got ready to leave, the guy sets out a plate and tells me I am going to eat with him. Some people are really offended if you don't accept their offer, so I ate breakfast, when I really wanted to get home and go to sleep."

At his next stop, a large Irish setter needs a routine examination, a rabies shot and a distemper booster. The fees are similar to a regular veterinarian's, except he charges an extra $10 for the house call.

"Oh, it's worth it," said Jeanette Williams, a Woods resident who owns Ginger, the four-year-old setter. "It is a lot easier on the dog. She is OK in the car, but the minute you pull into the vet's parking lot, she starts to pull away and it's a constant fight."

Turkal has his clients help to hold their animal. He says often the person likes to have the examination performed on the kitchen table, and he has the person hold the animal's head and help out wherever possible.

"It is a lot better for the animal to be held by someone he knows, and the client gets to know what to look for and a better understanding of the animal's problems."

Turkal, though he doesn't like to admit it, is a soft touch. He says he often gets calls to go to areas where the clients are poor. The house call fee usually goes out the window.

Photos by Peter A. Salinas

His van is fully equipped with everything a veterinarian with an office might have. Here Dr. Turkal examines a blood sample under a microscope.

"They don't have a car and there is no way for them to get the animal to a vet, so they call me," he said. "They also don't have a lot of money. The animal means everything to them. I'll tell you one thing though. Everything I tell them to do to make that animal well, they do. It's a real shame, but they really love the animal."

He's paying his student loans right now and keeping up with his bills, but that's about it as far as his income goes. He lamented that if he saw all 500 of his clients, he could probably do it in a month or so.

"Let's face it," he said. "How often does an animal get sick? I don't get a lot of the gray work like the vaccinations. I get the emergency calls." Turkal will perform only emergency surgeries in his van. He handles elective surgeries in an operating room he has available to him.

"I have performed c-sections and surgeries after an accident of some sort," he said. "In many cases people don't have any other avenue open to them. The 24-hour emergency animal hospitals require cash up front, and people don't always have the money with them, so they call me."

Turkal said only one client in two years has not paid him, but that doesn't worry him. He said making sure the animal is OK is the bottom line.

He also barter. He trades his skills for mechanical work on the van, legal services and even rent. He said were it not for his bartering, what he is doing now may not be possible.

"As far as I know, I am the only one around here offering this service," he said. "And people love it. Sunday is my busiest day, believe it or not. The whole family gets together and has the vet come over. It's different for them, and they like to do it."

Turkal said he hopes to have his own clinic one day, but that he will continue to offer the 24-hour mobile vet service.

"I can't see me doing anything else," he said.

With clients like Brophy, perhaps Turkal has a start on big things ahead.

"I recommend him to everyone I know," she said. "He's the only vet I have ever seen that gives the cats a kiss on the nose when he's done examining them."

South students donate $2,300

South High School students presented a $2,300 check made out to Detroit Zoological Society's Chimpanzee Exhibit Campaign Fund.

For the 12th consecutive year, students of Greg Heffner's environmental science class raised money for the zoo through a combination of bake sales, a bowl-athon, pledges taken on the amount of runs scored by the Detroit Tigers during spring training.

"What impresses me so much," Heffner said, "is that the students raised the money after school and on weekends. In addition to being so generous, they took time within their busy schedules for this project."

Heffner's course stresses the growing dilemma of wildlife depletion in Africa. "For breeding purposes, a zoo is often needed as a last resort," he said.

Charles Hammond, left, in dark suit, executive director of the Detroit Zoological Society, and instructor Greg Heffner of South High, in light jacket with glasses in hand, pose with a group of South students who visited the zoo to present a check for $2,300.

Brownell students excell at science fair

Mary Beth Mitchell, an eighth-grader at Brownell Middle School, won a second-place prize for her entry in the Metropolitan Detroit Science and Engineering Fair, held at Cobo Hall at the end of March.

Mitchell's entry investigated the use of colored fences as a deterrent for insects — a way to garden without using pesticides. She competed against other eighth-grade life science projects and has been invited to the Honors Convocation to celebrate her success.

Nearly 2,000 students from the metropolitan area entered the science fair. Other Brownell entries were eighth-graders Peter Ellison, the physics of the paper airplane; Yanni Kouskoulas, the effects of light intensity on colloidal suspensions; John Nickles, the distillation of different types of water; and Mark Bonanni, an experiment with the windings on electric motors. All won honorable mentions for their projects.

Eighth-grader Robert Milligan and seventh-grader Rebecca Damm received "outstanding" for their project entries. Milligan studied the effects of thermal pollution on algae growth and Damm worked on the effects of vitamins on plant growth.

The students are all members of the Brownell science club, sponsored by science teacher Arlene Hicks.

Artist

Eighth-grade Christian Fagerlund created the cover of Pierce Middle School's yearbook.

Earlier this year the young artist received a gold key in the Scholastic Art Awards, and had his work on display at the Southeast Michigan Art Awards show titled, "Still Life with Armadillo," was created in Art 2D class at Pierce School.

Two additional drawings created by Christian have been recognized to be displayed at the Detroit Institute of Arts from the middle of May and into June. The drawings were created at the College Center for Creative Studies and are pencil drawings.

Student Spotlight Julie McLaughlin

Each week in this column, we will focus on the work of a student. It can be a poem, a drawing, a short story, a picture of a scientific experiment or a wood-working project, a book review.

The following poem was written by Julie McLaughlin, a fifth-grader at Richard School. She is the daughter of Paul and Margaret McLaughlin of the City.

Excitement

Excitement looks like red scattered on a picture. It sounds like people laughing. It tastes like something good in a pretty box addressed to you! It smells like sweet roses in a beautiful garden. It looks like a clown dancing in a circle. It makes me feel like squashed jelly beans.

J.J. Hile of the Farms and Peter Hart of the Park are new Eagle Scouts. They had to earn 21 merit badges and complete a service project to reach the new level. Hart's project was to plant a grove of native Michigan tree species that had been removed through logging. The seedlings are planted at Seven Ponds Nature Center in Dryden. Hile organized and carried out a general clean-up and repair project at COTS temporary shelter in Detroit.

Chaperones needed for youth dances

Once a month, 500 middle school students pack the War Memorial Fries ballroom for three hours of music, dancing and socializing with their friends. Each monthly dance has a special theme and students dress for the occasion.

From January's Winter Beach Party to the Christmas Dress Dance, the White Party with its black light decor to the Spring Safari event, the War Memorial dances are an important social activity for middle school students; but their future is in jeopardy.

Parent chaperones are desperately needed to keep the dances going. Jack Dotson, youth coordinator for the War Memorial, said, "The available staff cannot handle 500 students without parental support. We have police, security and staff chaperones, but we must have parents to insure the students' safety. Though we have experienced little trouble and 90 percent of the students are well behaved, we would rather be prepared than caught off guard.

"We are constantly making changes to improve the rules and policies of the dances, with most suggestions coming from attending parents and staff. We need their ideas and support," Dotson added.

Any parent willing to donate his or her time should call the War Memorial at 881-7511. Parents with questions or comments, call Thursday evenings between 7:30 and 9 p.m. or leave a message during regular War Memorial hours, Monday through Saturday, between 9 a.m. and 9 p.m.

The next scheduled youth dance, the "School's Out Summer Celebration Party," will be Wednesday, June 17, from 7:30 to 10:30 p.m. Tickets are $3.75 per person and must be purchased in advance at the War Memorial, 32 Lakeshore Road.

Block grant fund requests submitted

Four Grosse Pointe cities and Harper Woods will collectively share more than $365,000 in proposed federally funded block grants for various local community improvement projects, according to Wayne County Commissioner David P. Cavanagh.

The county commission approved a tentative 1987 Wayne County Community Development Block Grant application in the amount of $3.4 million to be distributed among 31 communities.

The proposed block grant application must still be submitted to the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development for final consideration.

Locally proposed projects and allocations are:
• Grosse Pointe, $61,398, for street improvements, home repair and administration.

- Grosse Pointe Farms, $75,979, for removal of architectural barriers and home repair.
- Grosse Pointe Park, $75,979, for street improvements, home repair and administration.
- Grosse Pointe Woods, $75,979, for street improvements, home repair, administration and planning.
- Harper Woods, $75,979, for street improvements, park improvements, home repair and administration.

This is the county's 11th year of participating in the program, which organizes willing communities of less than 50,000 to submit a joint grant request to HUD with detailed plans for expenditure of the funds in each community.

If confirmed by HUD, communities could start receiving funds in three to four months.

the public schools were doing. They agreed unanimously that modern methods are better than old-fashioned methods. Richard students had recently taken a test administered to their parents' generation 25 years previously. They scored one grade ahead on their reading.

The Woods treasury was $100 richer when 7-year-old Linda Charvat found a $100 bill while she was out catching butterflies with her new net. Although officials originally told her she could have the money if nobody claimed it, legal advice ordered the cash stashed for seven years, just to be on the safe side. Meanwhile, there was no shortage of claimants to the money. Public Safety Director Vern Bailey said it was one of the biggest headaches he had ever had.

More than 1,000 Grosse Pointers dropped by Pierce Junior High to check out the new pool. Students were already taking classes in the new facility.

Farms police were cracking down on speeders on Moran. A resident wrote to complain that he had been trapped by a scout car using a timing device and hiding behind a parked car. Farms police said the speed trap had been set in response to complaints about speeders from residents.

A Detroit resident was fined $10 for burying his dead cat in Grosse Pointe Shores.

The Grosse Pointe News was delighted with GM's 50th anniversary television show, mentioning it in two separate col-

All we can say is that if they spent that much of their profits to produce a masterpiece like that for public enjoyment (if you own a TV set) they deserve plenty of credit. We felt like rushing out and buying a Cadillac that very night."

Swinging Seniors

We all have our favorite songs that we like to sing or hum, but can you imagine knowing 300 to 500 songs well enough to perform them?

It's no small feat, but that's the repertoire of the Music Makers, and as can be expected, it takes constant practice.

The 19-member subgroup of the Senior Men's Club of Grosse Pointe practices every week for several hours at the War Memorial, as they are seen here at one of their sessions.

As a group they have been delighting audiences in the area for more than 12 years with the music of the '20s, '30s, '40s, and even some new material from the '50s. Some of their favorites that they perform on a regular basis are "Hello Dolly," "Ma, He's Making Eyes at Me" and "Margie."

They entertain regularly at the Calvary Senior Center, the War Memorial and other institutions on the east side. They recently played at the groundbreaking ceremonies for the new St. John-Bon Secours Continuing Health Care Center on East Warren in Detroit.

The group is so well-received in the area that they're booked well into 1988, according to Albert A. Beste, public relations director.

The Music Makers range in age from the young guy of 61 to the older fellow of 83. "We're just a bunch of good old boys who enjoy getting together and pleasing people with our music," said Frank Seydler, pianist.

A resident of Whittier Towers, after a recent Music Makers performance, said, "They were the best thing to happen here in a long time. They were great."

The Music Makers is one of 18 subgroups that together make up the Senior Men's Club, which boasts a total membership of 1,100 and may well be the largest senior organization in the country.

All proceeds from the group's performances are donated to the War Memorial.

Frank Seydler, the pianist for the group, practices one of the songs.

Keeping the rhythm on drums is Donald Pohorny.

By Nancy Parmenter
Staff Writer

Nearly 80 Grosse Pointers braved heat and a faulty air conditioner May 28 to hear Detroit NAACP President Arthur Johnson tell them to pitch in to help solve Detroit's problems. Johnson spoke at a gathering sponsored by the Grosse Pointe Inter-Faith Center for Racial Justice.

The legal barriers to integrated housing may be down, but areas like Grosse Pointe stay nearly all-white because of a long-standing set of social mores, Johnson said. "There is a whole array of informal practices that are still intact and prevent a significant number of blacks from moving in," he said after the meeting. "The restrictive covenants are gone, but the feelings are the same. The instruments are different."

This kind of barrier is even tougher for minorities to crack than the legal ones were, he cause the practices are so subtle. "They operate with precision," Johnson said. "They need no discussion. They are understood."

Johnson said at the beginning of his speech that he and the NAACP are not trying to stop people from living where they choose.

"I don't question in any sense the right of the individual to live where he wants to," he said. "The problem is that we tend to carry with us attitudes... about the city that are not only unbecoming, but damaging."

Johnson blames Detroit's problems on white economic disinvestment "unparalleled in the country." It has resulted, he said, in a vast gap in income, employment and mortality statistics between black and white.

There are some things whites can do to change the deteriorating picture, he said. He recommended that people start to talk more openly about the problem, expressing disapproval of the racism around them. Speak up when neighbors or friends or co-workers use racial slurs.

"If blacks and whites knew each other better, they would operate less out of fear," he said. "Conditions have to change whether we like each other or not," Johnson said.

Farms committee begins beautification efforts

By Peter A. Salinas
Staff Writer

Since its inception several months ago, the Grosse Pointe Farms Beautification Committee has been active, especially in the area of coordinating efforts of the several groups interested in making the city a more beautiful place to live.

Committee efforts have included getting the Hill Association involved in adding mulch to the greenbelt areas along Kercheval, coordinating efforts with the Council of Grosse Pointe Garden Clubs to plant trees along Lakeshore and has strongly recommended to the

Strongbox taken

A cash box with between $500 and $1,000 in it was reportedly stolen from Hamlin's, a grocery store, Friday morning, May 22, according to Farms police.

Apparently no one saw the cash box being removed from behind a counter, and police have no firm suspects at this time.

Farms city council the hiring of a college graduate in urban planning and landscape architecture to work for the city with beautification efforts.

"We've started out very well," said committee chairwoman Frisky Hickey. "A lot of our early efforts has been educational work and research. We have been studying what can be done with the Moross and Mack situation and we have been working to come up with a plan for the Pier Park entrance."

Hickey said the city's residents should be aware that the Farms has been granted an official Tree City, USA, designation for the second consecutive year.

"We have a commitment to beautification of the city through the planting of trees," she said.

Hickey said the committee has organized some work to be done on the Hill and has coordinated with the Hill Association. At its monthly meeting the Hill Association noted it has hired a local employee to be caring for the greenbelt areas along Ker-cheval and at Richard Park.

Garden Club volunteers will be planting impatiens in the beds in front of the businesses. The store owners will be responsible for weeding, while watering should be taken care of by the hired employee.

The beautification committee has had general discussions as to how to improve and beautify the islands at Moross and Mack. Hickey said the discussions have centered on what, if any, signs to locate there, what to plant and how to get water to those plantings.

"We have no firm recommendations at this time," she noted.

According to Richard Kay, media liaison, the committee has strongly recommended retaining the services of Barry Burton.

Burton, 24, is a Farms resident and will be graduating from Michigan State University with degrees in urban planning and landscape architecture this June. The Farms city council tabled the suggestion earlier this month, but a decision should be forthcoming soon.

Kay said Burton would plan and implement several beautification projects in the city. Funding for this project would come from money granted to the committee by the council, therefore the council has final authority in the hiring of the employee.

Kay said there are as many ideas on what and how to beautify the city as there are groups interested in the city.

"The Farms Foundation has ideas, the Council of Garden Clubs has ideas and the beautification committee has ideas," Kay said. "Our main concern is to co-ordinate efforts to eliminate any conflicts and duplication of work." One of the things that has many people excited about improving the landscape in the Farms is how nice the Shores looks because of the beautification efforts there.

"The contrast between the two communities is appalling," Kay noted.

"While an insurance policy is a legal contract that expresses our minimum responsibility, there are many occasions when equity demands that we recognize a moral obligation beyond the strictly legal terms - and this is always a consideration in our settlements."

Hospital offers speech program

The annual Cottage Hospital Summer Speech and Language Program for children with communication disorders will be held June 22 through July 29.

The summer program supplements individual speech and language pathology sessions offered to children and adults throughout the year at Cottage Hospital. The program is held on Cottage Hospital's fourth floor.

The six-week program includes individual work with youngsters from three to 15 who are being treated for speech, language, or hearing problems. The total cost of the program is $60.

The program is for children with communication disorders including delayed language development, articulation disorders, stuttering, cleft palate, cerebral palsy, voice disorders, mental impairment and hearing impairment.

The summer program can help some children maintain and continue progress begun in school speech therapy programs. It also can help parents identify and obtain guidance in the early diagnosis and treatment of communication disorders. Early application is encouraged since enrollment is limited to 60 children.

For further registration information, call the Cottage Hospital Speech Therapy department at 884-8600, ext. 2187.

A tribute to W. Hawkins Ferry

W. Hawkins Ferry, architect, architectural historian and patron of modern art, was honored at the Detroit Institute of Arts May 31 with a dinner and reception marking the opening of the W. Hawkins Ferry exhibition, and the unveiling of Moonmad by Max Ernst, the DIA's newest addition to its collection of modern art, donated in Ferry's name by the Friends of Modern Art, which Ferry led for more than 20 years, and the Ferry Acquisitions Fund. At the left, a cocktail reception is held in the Diego Rivera Court featuring the sculpture, Moonmad, displayed on the platform over the fountain. Above, G. Mennen Williams chats with Margo Kessler in the gallery. Williams was on hand to convey Gov. James Blanchard's greetings to Ferry on the occasion. Below, Ferry greets friends at the reception. The Ferry Collection will be on display throughout the summer.

Launch day delayed

A family of robins has forced at least one Grosse Pointe to delay the launch of his boat. Shores resident Dr. William Rice has decided not to move his 21-foot Wellcraft until these robin-children have grown up and left Mother Robin with an empty nest. The robins built their nest on the winch, which is used to launch the boat from its trailer. Rice estimates the babies will be on their own in about two more weeks.

Woods to try one-way traffic for portion of Bournemouth

The Woods city council approved a proposal Monday night by Public Safety Director Jack Patterson for a trial solution to complaints of excessive traffic on Bournemouth.

On a trial basis, Patterson suggested making Bournemouth one way, traveling west, between the alley near Mack Avenue and Raymond. Cars would still be allowed to exit the St. John Hospital parking lot traveling east, and two-way traffic would resume on Bournemouth west of Raymond into Harper Woods.

Bournemouth residents have been attending council meetings

Man assaulted

A 37-year-old Farms man was reportedly assaulted Friday afternoon, May 22, after an altercation with a carload of high school students.

According to Farms police, the man said he argued with four youths in a car about their driving recklessly.

The man said the youth got out of their car and tackled him in the street, and began kicking and punching him. The man suffered an injured ankle and numerous bruises and abrasions.

Police said they had a description of the vehicle and its occupants and were investigating the incident.

for several months, seeking a solution for what they say is an excessive amount of traffic traveling at high speeds on their street. They had proposed making Bournemouth into a cul-de-sac. Patterson had voiced reservations about the cul-de-sac solution because it would limit access to the street by emergency vehicles — police, fire and EMS.

Council members also had reservations about the cul-de-sac because it would transfer problems to other streets in the area.

The trial period for one-way traffic would be 90 days or less and would include a study of how the changes affect traffic in the area.

About 12 Bournemouth residents attended Monday's council meeting. Resident Dan Chicklas said, "This is a start."

Mike Maurer, who was representing a group of Newcastle Road residents, expressed their concerns about why they had not been notified of the Bournemouth Road problem and allowed to participate in searches for solutions.

The council approved plans to notify people living on Bournemouth, Newcastle, Prestwick, Raymond, Linville and Leslie about the temporary changes in traffic and the study of its results.

Hill businesses upset by traffic proposals

By Peter A. Salinas
Staff Writer

Traffic plan proposals sent to Goodell-Grivas, traffic engineers, by the Farms traffic advisory committee for cost analysis and possible consideration, has individual Hill business owners and the Hill Association upset.

At a meeting Monday, May 11, the Farms Traffic Safety Advisory Committee discussed four proposals that would directly affect traffic flow and parking in the area in and around the Hill.

These proposals were first suggested by Goodell-Grivas several years ago when the city commissioned an earlier study. However, according to Farms Police Chief Robert Ferber, that study didn't take into account the new business developments on the Hill, the Punch and Judy project and the Bologna building. Both were granted variances to the Farms parking ordinance, which would have required more available parking before the businesses could have been developed.

Ferber said that the four proposals, originally generated by the engineering firm, have been sent to the firm for cost analysis. Once the firm determines how much it will cost to restudy the proposals given the new developments, the city council will decide what expenditures for the study will be made.

The four proposals sent to Goodell-Grivas include: 1) removal of 42 metered parking spaces on the north side of Kercheval between Muir and Fisher roads; 2) making the Kercheval alley on the north side one way eastbound; 3) making the Kercheval alley on the south side one way westbound; and 4) create 15 or 16 permit parking spaces on both sides of McMillan between Kercheval and Ridge beyond the alley way.

Several of these proposals have caused concern in the Hill business community.

Letters were sent to the traffic committee from both the Hill Association and Standard Federal Savings Bank, which will be locating in the Bologna building.

Each of the proposals sent to the engineering firm were turned down by the organization, except making the south Kercheval alley one way. Of special concern to the association was the removal of the north Kercheval metered parking spaces.

Standard Federal Executive

Vice President Garry G. Carley wrote the traffic committee that though a planned Cottage Hospital parking deck, which will hold more than 400 cars, will alleviate some Hill parking problems, it will not be ready until after the Bologna and Punch and Judy projects are completed.

"In the meantime," Carley wrote the traffic committee, "parking will be at a premium. In addition, as the Punch and Judy renovations are completed, additional demands will be placed on the available parking, to the point that any loss of existing parking spaces would create an intolerable situation." The Hill Association's letter echoed those feelings. Its letter stated that it "strongly objects" to the elimination of the metered spaces on the north side of Kercheval.

At its regular meeting Thursday, May 21, Hill Association President Dutch Hendricks said that he felt that by opening up Kercheval through the removal of parking on the north side, speeds would be increased.

"Our primary concern should be to the safety and well-being of the residents of this community," Hendricks said.

Both the association and Standard Federal offered its support to the traffic committee and asked that they be kept informed of any meetings or changes in the plans.

Ferber, who did not attend the Hill Association meeting, said that the problem of traffic and parking on the Hill has been a difficult situation for a long time.

"It is a no-win situation," Ferber said. "No matter what you do, you are not going to please everyone."

Ferber said that there are many competing interests on the Hill. Most recently, the Grosse Pointe library wants to expand and plans are being held up in part because under the Farms parking ordinance, there wouldn't be enough parking space required by the ordinance. Also there are school, church, businesses, both retail and service-oriented, and residential interests.

Hill Association members argued that the city has been dragging its feet on this issue, because of its highly political nature.

Ferber said he felt that because of the host of competing interests and need for all sides of the situation to be heard, the process has been slowed.

Hill representatives have long argued the need for a parking enforcement specialist. Currently, the Farms is using a patrol officer to write tickets at metered spaces. Several years ago, there was a parking enforcement person, but that position was curtailed.

Ferber said he would welcome having civilian personnel for meter enforcement.

"I agree with that," Ferber said. "I would rather have the uniformed officer on the road."

Ferber noted that the budget is voted on by the city council and if there is no money in his budget for meter enforcement, he must handle the situation with the personnel he has on staff.

The chief said he feels that the proposals will accomplish one main task — keeping Hill traffic from using east and west residential streets and keep them using Kercheval.

"When we discuss residential area concerns, we get a lot of residents," Ferber said. "When we discuss the business area we get a lot of business people at the meeting. This last meeting we had had the fewest people on hand of any of the meetings."

Local students winners in first social studies olympiad

By Nancy Parmenter
Staff Writer

Thirteen students from South and Regina high schools won prizes in the state's first social studies olympics contest May 2. The competition was the brainchild of Grosse Pointer George Farmakis, a teacher in the Highland Park schools.

"Reading and math and science are getting a lot of attention," Farmakis said. "Social studies is in the background. I see athletes get big trophies while kids who work hard on social studies don't get any credit."

So about three years ago he began to think about how to rectify that. Last month his plans bore fruit in the form of a competition involving 430 students from 55 schools, participating in poster contests, monologues, quiz bowls and essays testing knowledge of history and current events.

The idea caught fire. A student from Rochester who moved to Ohio in the middle of it made her parents drive her back to Detroit for the final competition.

Farmakis said.

The competition serves several purposes. Farmakis said he hopes it will give teachers new ideas and interest students in their history — and the history of the world around them.

"We're very parochial," he said.

We also don't have very much history to learn compared to some countries and our students have to learn about 1,000 years of their past.

With a grant from Gannett, Farmakis is already planning next year's event, to take place at Greenfield Village.

Social studies students in grades 4 through 12 were eligible to enter the contest, sponsored by the state Board of Education and the Michigan Council for the Social Studies.

From South, Peter Hannert and Shelly Kritzman won gold and silver medals for their poster entries. Chris Brow and Val Ziebron won silver medals for their television newscast, a historical broadcast on videotape, covering events around the world in 1837; Lynn Anslow and David Spitzley won silver medals in the Library Grand Prix, a race to look up library references. The social studies quiz bowl team of Elena Cavillo, Steve Trowern and Tim Weng won a bronze medal.

Twenty-two South students entered the competition.

Regina winners were Colleen Nowlan, third prize for poster; April Hinz, third place for poster; and Paula Bangela and Susan Sullivan, first and second places for poetry.

The social studies quiz bowl team from East Detroit High School won first place. Team members were Lee Cobb, Karen Pier, Shandana Durrani and Jim Watson.

Exchange student openings available

The American Field Service is accepting applications from high school students wishing to participate as exchange students to Australia, New Zealand, South Africa, Thailand or South America, leaving January 1988.

Applicants must be in high school, be no older than 18 when they leave, and have a C+ grade average. Students will be gone 11 months, will attend the local high school in the new country, and live with a family.

There are limited spaces for a one-semester program to South America, leaving February 1988.

Students may apply between now and Oct. 1, but applications completed before July 1 will be guaranteed the 1987-88 fee.

The American Field Service has been active in Grosse Pointe for nearly 20 years, and is one of the oldest and most reputable exchange programs in the country. For additional information call Ann Nicholson, 884-4637, or Betty Buffa, 885-6166.

Brazen thief steals purse

A 37-year-old Park woman had a scare last week when after arriving home, a man pushed his way into her house, grabbed her purse and ran out.

The woman arrived at her Wayburn residence shortly before 11 p.m. Wednesday, May 27, and left her rear door open. After a few minutes when she returned to lock the door, the man forced his way into the house, and grabbed her purse from the dining room table.

The victim's screams alerted neighbors who arrived at the house just in time to chase the man as he was exiting. The neighbor chased the man but lost him at Philip, south of Kercheval.

The man was described as a black male in his early 20s, about 5 feet, 9 inches, 150 pounds, with short hair.

The victim lost a $40 money order and other items.

Four teens arrested for larceny

Three or four teens were spotted driving their vehicle near a Mack Avenue party store in the Woods Friday, May 29, shortly after the driver of a beer truck making a delivery noticed his truck had been broken into and nine cases of Coors were missing.

Woods officers responded to the call, and checked Grosse Pointe North High School to see if they could find a vehicle matching the description.

While the officer was talking to a school employee in the parking lot, a vehicle matching the description drove into the lot.

The officer stopped the car and questioned the two occupants.

The 18-year-old Shores woman and a 16-year-old Woods youth gave police two names and warrants were sought for the two and two others.

Some of the beer was found in the car, and police were told that the rest was at the woman's home.

John P. Bissa

Bissa commissioned

John P. Bissa graduated from the United States Naval Academy May 20 and was commissioned an ensign in the United States Navy.

Bissa completed four years of intensive academic, physical and professional training, culminating with a bachelor of science degree with a major in political science.

He is the son of John and Mary Bissa of Grosse Pointe Shores.

WSU professor's therapy helps improve stutterers' speech

By Margie Reins Smith
Staff Writer

For a stutterer, life is charged with anxiety. A stutterer constantly anticipates the terror of being expected to speak — whether it's as simple as answering the phone or buying a Coke; whether it's responding to a teacher's question or asking directions; or whether it's as complicated as telling an anecdote or speaking to a roomful of people.

A stutterer is constantly planning ways to avoid speaking. He's doing mental gymnastics, scanning ahead, planning ways to minimize his misery. If he knows he has difficulty with certain initial consonants, he will take great pains to avoid using words that begin with these sounds. He may alter his speech, using words and phrases that are unusual. He may hold his breath before speaking. He may use one or several physical or vocal mannerisms to avoid a speech block. Although he knows what he wants to say, a stutterer's words never tumble forth effortlessly, in the proper order and at a normal speed, as other people's do.

William Leith, professor of Communication Disorders and Sciences at Wayne State University, helps those who stutter become less severe stutterers. "There is no cure," he said. "It's like diabetes. We can't cure it but we can control it."

"Furthermore, we don't know what causes stuttering."

Leith has a Ph.D. in clinical psychology and speech pathology as well. He teaches at Wayne, supervises therapy, and maintains a small private practice of his own. He specializes in therapy for children — some as young as 4 or 5 years old. He's written three books which are used by speech pathologists all over the world and he recently spent three days lecturing at the University of Oulu in Finland. He's working on another book.

The best that can be done for stutterers, he said, is to make the stuttering less severe, a task that is not unsurmountable. "Today we can take a severe stutterer and make him a mild stutterer. And we can maintain that," Leith said.

William Leith's specialty is treatment of stutterers. The speech disorder affects about one percent of the population. Of those who stutter, men outnumber women four to one.

Leith said stuttering affects close to one percent of the population, or about two million people nationwide. For an unknown reason, male stutterers outnumber female stutterers four to one.

"Stuttering is like a two-layer cake," said Leith. "The first layer is repetitions. The second layer is prolongations. The stutterer doesn't want to stutter and will do anything to stop. He struggles. He adopts secondary mannerisms to release the blocks in his speech." Some people blink to release the block, he said. Some jerk their heads or click their tongues. These tics work for a while, he said, but within a few months the tics cease to release the block and the stutterer adopts another mannerism. "Stuttering is finally an aggregate of a whole bunch of behaviors — as many as 20 or 30. A well-known professor of speech pathology said once, 'stuttering is what the stutterer does to avoid stuttering.'"

Leith said traditional therapy, begun in the '30s, assumed the problem was cognitive — based on emotional conflicts and fear. Later, therapy zeroed in on the behavior itself, using the laws of learning to alter the stuttering. Treatment was based on the assumption that the stutterer was talking too fast or that he lacked control of his larynx.

Leith doesn't completely subscribe to either of these theories. He has developed a cognitive behavior therapy, which, he said, is a nice combination of traditional cognitive theory and newer behavioral theory.

"I work with the stutterer and the stuttering. I say both theories are right. Rate control is extremely important. But vocal onset is also a factor. I'm a cautious, pragmatic person. I teach people what I refer to as REEF — rate, enunciation, easy onset, and flow."

In the mid-'60s, a psychologist in Chicago discovered, quite by accident, a way to stop a stutterer from stuttering. He used a small tape recorder called a DAF (delayed auditory feedback). The DAF records the speaker's voice and provides a quick echo of his words. The delay between spoken word and feedback can be adjusted from .25 of a second to zero. "Quite by chance," Leith said, "a stutterer used this machine. It caused him to talk differently. He talked slowly. He paid careful attention to articulation. He carefully controlled his flow of speech. He stopped stuttering. The DAF began a new era in stuttering therapy."

Leith typically uses a DAF very briefly, for only a few minutes in the first stages of therapy, to show the stutterer that he can talk without stuttering.

The rest of the therapy involves practice. "I compare the type of practice I advocate to the practice someone would do to become a professional tennis player," Leith said. "The tennis player would work on his serve, his backhand, his forehand. His tennis game would improve. He can be a pro. But even then, he can't stop practicing. He has to maintain his skills.

"In my therapy, I ask my clients to practice one minute a day — to decide what they're going to say, then concentrate on talking."

John Whelan, chairman of the Teachers of Speech and Language Impaired for the Grosse Pointe School System, which serves children in all public and private schools in Grosse Pointe, said he is working with approximately three stutterers this year. He works with children two or three times a week, in grades K-12. "Stuttering is generally stress-related," he said. "It is not curable. The brain is like a tape recorder, but it can't erase. We can control stuttering, but can't cure it."

Leith, whose specialty is stuttering, said anyone who needs therapy for stuttering and wants to see an expert should call a state university and ask them to recommend a therapy program. "Beware of claims of cures," he said.

"There is no cure. My goal is controlled fluency. And that's not only possible, it's probable."

1. The appeal of Marsha Harrison, owner of the premises located at 258 Vendome Ct., from the denial of the Building Department to issue a Building Permit for the construction of an addition to the rear of her existing dwelling located at the foregoing address. Such permit issuance was denied for reason that:

a. The residence located on the foregoing premises is non-conforming for reason that it is in violation of the rear yard provisions of Article XIII, Section 1300 of the City's Zoning Ordinance, and in accordance with the provisions of Article XV, Section 1502, Item 4-A of the City's Zoning Ordinance, no such structure may be enlarged or structurally altered unless a variance is granted.

b. The proposed addition on the rear would further infringe upon the maximum rear yard requirements of 30 feet, leaving a rear yard of 9 feet thereby requiring a variance from the provisions of Article XIII, Section 1300 of the City's Zoning Ordinance.

2. The appeal of Mr. Fred Miller, owner of the premises located at 316 Moran, from the denial of the Building Department to issue a Building Permit for an addition to the rear of his existing dwelling located at the foregoing address. 3. The appeal of Mr. Wendall Anderson Jr., owner of the premises located at 450 Kercheval, from the denial of the Building Department to issue a Building Permit for the construction of a tool shed in the side yard of his property located at the foregoing address. Such permit issuance was denied for reason that Section 1503, Item 2 of the City's Zoning Ordinance prohibits the erection of an accessory building in a front or side yard, thereby requiring a variance from such provision to permit that construction of the tool shed in the side yard.

4. The appeal of Mr. S.S. Livingston, owner of the premises located at 207 Lake Shore Drive, from the denial of the Building Department to issue a permit for the construction of a detached garage with living quarters located at the foregoing address. Such permit issuance was denied for reason that the building plan at the proposed structure shows the detached garage with a height of 25 feet with 2 stories, while Section 1503, Item 1 of the City's Zoning Ordinance states that accessory buildings shall not exceed one (1) story or 14 feet in height, thereby requiring a variance from such provision to permit the construction of the proposed garage.

5. The appeal of Mr. E. Philip Adamaszek, owner of the premises located at 418 Champine Place, from the denial of the Building Department to issue a permit for the renovation and extension of a detached garage located at the foregoing address. Such permit issuance was denied for reason that the building plan of the proposed structure shows a portion of the detached garage with a height of 17 feet, while Section 1503, Item 1 of the City's Zoning Ordinance states that accessory buildings shall not exceed one (1) story or 14 feet in height, thereby requiring a variance from such provision to permit the construction of the proposed garage.

Conference to address self-advocacy

For years, persons with developmental disabilities across the country did not have input on services planned for them. Now, there is a national movement called self-advocacy by consumers that is demanding a voice in planning and improving services.

The first conference in the tri-county area to address the self-advocacy movement will be held Wednesday, June 10, at the San Marino Club, 1685 East Big Beaver, Troy, from 9:30 a.m. to 2:30 p.m.

The theme of the conference, "The Retarding Environment," will focus on ways, both blatant and subtle, in which the growth, integration and rights of persons with developmental disabilities in the community services system are inhibited.

Three nationally known consumers will speak. In addition, a local panel of consumers from the tri-county area will be featured.

The conference represents a unique opportunity to learn about the service system from the perspective of the consumer. It should be of interest to professionals, service providers, advocates, foster parents, parents, and consumers — anyone interested in

What makes Stroh's flow? Computer chips 'n beer, of course!

By Peter A. Salinas
Staff Writer

Getting that brew from them to you just ain't what it used to be.

Stroh Brewery Company has grown from a small family-owned operation, which delivered wooden barrels of beer in horse-drawn wagons, to the third largest brewing company in the United States.

With six breweries, two container manufacturing plants and a huge world headquarters on the banks of the Detroit River near downtown Detroit, the need for coordinating and assimilating vast amounts of information is obvious. Not so obvious, however, is how crucial the computer has become to the many facets of running one of the nation's leading beer, cooler and soft drink manufacturing corporations.

"Just 10 years ago, Stroh's was dealing with just one product and several packaging containers," said James Avery, Stroh vice president in charge of operations, planning and control.

In 1981 the 130-year-old Detroit brewery acquired the F. & M. Schaefer Corporation and the following year purchased the multi-plant Jos. Schlitz Brewing Company. Today the third-largest beer producer fills almost 23 million barrels of brew annually, produces a large variety of beverages, both alcoholic and non-alcoholic, and uses more than 1,600 different packages.

Avery said he came to the Detroit headquarters from Schlitz in 1982. One of his first tasks was to coordinate the computer change-over between the two corporations. Stroh had a Honeywell system and Schlitz had IBM computers. Since the two were incompatible, a decision had to be made as to which computer system to choose. IBM made the cut.

When he worked at Schlitz, one of his first jobs was to establish a computer system at the plants.

"We went through and replaced the old Burroughs machines that were used for such things as payroll," Avery said with a shake of his head.

Moving a brewery's computer system into the 21st century is the task of Mike Shapiro, seated, a City resident who heads Stroh's computer upgrading program. His boss, James Avery of Rochester Hills, standing, is vice president in charge of operations, planning and control.

Now computers touch every facet of the corporation's brewing and manufacturing processes. The systems are used for just about everything. Sending reports from the six brewing plants to headquarters, ordering product from suppliers and even computer-aided design and manufacturing of bottling or packaging lines are all performed with the aid of powerful computer chips.

Avery said that as far as the actual brewing process is concerned, there is little need for computers.

"There are seldom problems with the brewing process," Avery noted. "There is about a two-week fermentation process, and two weeks of aging. All the while the product is in large vats, and it sort of takes care of itself."

"There are many different brands now and in each brewery we are running can, bottle and keg lines," Avery said. "This is where things become more complicated."

Stroh now has more than 5,000 employees nationwide and a number of different employee contracts. Computers are used to keep track of employee wages and to help ensure the company is living up to various aspects of the contracts.

The IBM mainframe is located at the world headquarters at Stroh River Place. All reports are sent via the computer to the various department heads located in Detroit.

With all of the improvements in the corporate systems in the past five years, there are still some problems, according to Avery. He laments that the information coming to Detroit is "batch-type." That means that the reports from various plants around the country are fed into the computer system during the afternoon. The reports are not available to administrative personnel until the following morning.

"We still have some systems where we are using IBM punch cards, if you can believe that," Avery said.

Many facets of the Schlitz computer system are now 15 years old, and Avery said the company is examining the potential for an entirely new system which will bring the corporation up to date, and carry it into the next century.

Plant On-line Processing System, or POPS as it is called by the employees, would be an on-line, real-time computer system which would allow the instantaneous monitoring of all facets of operations at the corporation plants around the country.

The POPS project is being headed by Grosse Pointe resident Michael Shapiro, director of special projects.

Shapiro said one of the major tasks is to identify exactly what they want the system to do.

"We have to determine just what is feasible and what is practical," Shapiro said.

He noted that right now one processing problem the company has is no centralized way to track inventory as it is loaded into trucks. A POPS system would allow the continuous monitoring of inventory. Therefore, if a truck driver were to grab a shipment of beer that was not in proper rotation, warnings would be sent out and the correct shipment of product would be delivered.

Avery was quick to note that the company is doing very well with the equipment it has, but said that a POPS system would be an invaluable asset to the corporation, especially in the years to come.

STROH

One of the problems Shapiro is facing in designing such a system is trying to predict what the company's needs will be in the next five or 10 years. Right now, per capita consumption of beer and liquors is down a bit, said Avery. Stroh has already moved into the cooler market, with a malt-based line of beverage called White Mountain Cooler, produced by the Stroh-owned Colorado Cooler Company, and a new-to-Detroit fruit juice with 70 percent juice and no alcohol, called Sundance Natural Juice Sparklers from Stroh Foods, Inc.

"Whatever system we design today must be flexible to allow for whatever changes the company may go through in the future," Shapiro said.

Shapiro said a POPS system would enhance dealing with wholesalers. If, for instance, a line were to break down and it was going to remain down for 12 hours, there would be orders that would be delayed.

If the wholesalers were tied to the company by computer, instant decisions could be made as to which wholesalers may be completely out of product, which ones could get by on a few days delay and who is not in desperate need. Right now, when such a situation occurs, individual calls have to be made to the wholesalers before decisions can be made.

"In a case like this, we may have to wait 24 hours before we can make a decision," Avery said. "With POPS we would be able to make those decisions within minutes."

Shapiro sees computers with artificial intelligence capabilities aiding in the decision-making processes of the future.

"These would help people to make more and better decisions," Shapiro said. "Such a computer program would be another tool people would have with which to make decisions."

Association to preserve Lakeshore beauty

By Peter A. Salinas
Staff Writer

A new homeowners association, which represents about 60 homes in the area between Lakeshore and Grosse Pointe Boulevard from Winthrop to Carmel Lane, formed in late April. Its main objective is to preserve the beauty and quality of life of the Lakeshore area.

The group, called the Carmel/Winthrop Homeowners Association, was formed April 28 at the War Memorial. J.V. Clemente, a Winthrop resident, was instrumental in its formation.

"Our object is the preservation of the Lakeshore area in the state it should be maintained," Clemente said. "There is a way that it should be like. We do not want to see Lakeshore become a Sterling Heights or Warren on the lake."

Clemente said one of the main goals the organization has is to try and establish a consensus viewpoint on how the Farms Lakeshore area should be developed in the future on both public and private lands.

By keeping its residents abreast of current variance requests and maintaining an informed citizenry, Clemente said he hopes the association can participate in decision-making processes by working with elected officials.

"We've got a lot of homes in the area that have been left to disrepair," Clemente said. "There has also been a lot of cluster housing going in and we feel there has been some inconsistency of the buildings." Some 26 mansions have been torn down in the last 26 years and this is of concern to groups like the Grosse Pointe Historical Society, Clemente said.

"The newly formed Farms Beautification Commission has been working with several organizations and we feel this is a great step," Clemente said. "We want our residents to get involved in governmental decision-making." The group has appointed a board of directors which will serve one-year terms. The directors are Judith Attie, Fred J. Somes, Anne F. Ford, Delphine Klein, David W. Allard Jr. and Clemente.

"I feel very strongly that organizations such as this are needed," Somes said. "We have to make certain that the city council is aware of how the residents feel on certain issues. The council is hammered all the time by developers, and gets very little or no voter input."

Somes said issues such as setbacks along Lakeshore, consistency in architecture along Lakeshore and the Detroit incinerator are all topics with which the association intends to grapple.

Both Somes and Clemente argue that other homeowner associations are needed. Clemente said one of the efforts the Carmel/Winthrop organization intends to take on is establishing a council of homeowner associations. The association has already discussed the idea with the Harbor Hill See ASSOCIATION, page 18C

Commercial food students will have muffins in the oven

Apple Court baked goods to come from South high vocational class

By Elsa Frohman
 Feature Editor

Mini-Muffins, Lemon Bread and brownies don't seem like much of a problem, but when members of the Assistance League to the Northeast Guidance Center realized how many mini-muffins, Lemon Breads and brownies they were talking about, they knew they were going to need some help.

"Last year, the members did all the baking," said Pat Pompei, chairman of the Apple Court, the league's lunch concession at Art on the Pointe, to be held June 13 and 14 at the Edsel & Eleanor Ford House grounds. "But it was a real undertaking. It (the number of visitors eating at the Apple Court) has gotten so much bigger every year." The Apple Court is one of the league's main projects within the scope of Art on the Pointe. The annual art festival, has become one of the major art fairs in southeastern Michigan and the Apple Court is the league's main food concession, though there will be hot dogs, soft drinks and county fair-type concessions throughout the fair.

"This year, we expect to serve about 600 lunches," Pompei said. "There will be two luncheon plates (a Turkey Croissant or a Fruit and Cheese Plate) available at $3, desserts for 50 cents and beverages including iced tea, coffee and hot tea for 50 cents. There will also be wine available."

The Fruit and Cheese Plate will include fresh fruit and three types of cheese with two mini-muffins on the side. Last year, members baked the muffins, and some were larger and some were smaller. Many had to be baked weeks in advance and frozen until the weekend of the fair.

To bring greater consistency to the baked products and to take pressure off the league members, Pompei decided to look for professional help with the baking chores.

"I knew John (Shafer, the South High commercial foods teacher)," Pompei said. "I've substituted in his class."

The commercial foods program at South prepares students for jobs in the restaurant industry. Shafer has 48 students in three sections. Beginning students spend two hours a day in commercial foods class, learning kitchen techniques, sanitation rules and serving etiquette. Advanced students are in the co-op program and spend at least 20 hours a week working at local restaurants.

The commercial foods students operate a staff lunchroom at the school three days a week and cater school banquets and lunches.

"Our program is geared toward the finer restaurants," Shafer said. "We are aiming to give the students a skill they can use after graduation."

Shafer's students will bake some 600 muffins, 40 loaves of Lemon Bread and numerous brownies during the last week of school for Art on the Pointe. The Lemon Bread will be offered for retail sale.

"We wanted to have the Lemon Bread as a tradition," Pompei said. "It was very popular last year." It is a dessert bread with a cream cheese filling.

The Apple Court will be open from 11 a.m. to 4 p.m. both days of the fair. It will be held under a tent with seating for 160 people. The food offered will be light, but satisfying.

"We wanted to go with light entrees," Pompei said. "It's June and it will be warm outside. This is more healthy."

In addition to the Lemon Bread and brownies, baked by the commercial foods students, a variety of baked desserts from league members' kitchens will be offered, including Toffee Bars, Applesauce Squares, Shortbreads and fancy cookies.

Art on the Pointe is the Assistance League's major annual fund-raising project. Proceeds will go to benefit the Northeast Guidance Center, a comprehensive community mental health agency located on East Warren in Detroit. There is also a branch office serving the Grosse Pointes.

Art on the Pointe is a juried art fair that will feature more than 150 artists and artisans displaying and selling their wares. There will be a variety of entertainment attractions, foods and the wonderful ambiance of the Ford House grounds overlooking Lake St. Clair. The hours will be 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. both days.

The Ford grounds include almost 90 acres of tall trees and well-manicured lawns surrounding the Albert Kahn-designed, Cotswold-style house, where the Gold and Silver Treasures of the Betty Loeher, left, general chairman of Art on the Pointe, and Pat Pompei, chairman of the Apple Court food concession committee, inspect the commercial foods kitchen at Grosse Pointe South High School where the baked goods to be served and sold at the Apple Court will be prepared. This is the first time that commercial foods students have baked for the art fair concession.

Thyssen-Bornemisza Collection are on display. Guided tours of the house and collection will be available during Art on the Pointe for the usual fees. Admission to the grounds will be a $1 donation to the league. There will be ample free parking located outside the gate, with shuttle bus transportation to the fair.

On the grounds, there will be strolling musicians, a barbershop quartet, magicians, demonstrations, folk singers, clowns and balloons for the kids.

On Saturday evening, June 13, there will be a gala art auction under a tent. Dress will be casual. Awards will be presented to six outstanding artists selected by the jurors. An elegant, but hearty buffet will be served and there will be music for dancing.

Betty Loeher is general chairman of Art on the Pointe. Tina Mayk and Flo Kliber are in charge of publicity. Beth Moran is chairman for the artists and is president of the Assistance League.

The Pastor's Corner

Life is a gift

By the Rev. Paul F. Keppler
First English Lutheran

"Then the Lord God formed man of the dust from the ground, and breathed into his nostrils the breath of life; and man became a living being." - Gen. 2:7

One issue of society has increasingly confronted us, and disturbingly so. It is the issue of human life. Every day we see on television, we read in the newspapers, of a disregard for it. The disregard occurs in the form of suicide and murder and drug use and abortion and child abuse and personal assault. Life itself has become more devalued -- more threatened.

Perhaps individuals have not usually noticed, but that disregard of human life has occurred most of all in respect to younger people. They suffer most from an unconcern of the word -- "Thou shalt not kill." As a society, we seem to be satisfied that those least able to defend themselves -- to understand themselves -- are being victimized by life being treated so casually and so cruelly.

The greatest wonder of all creation however, is described like this: "Then the Lord God formed man out of the dust of the ground and breathed into his nostrils the breath of life and man became a living being." The unmistakable emphasis here is that life is a gift. In a secular time (our world is everything), in a materialistic age (our things are everything), the idea of life as a gift is no longer understood.

Life as a gift (actually the first article of Christian faith) speaks of the wondrousness and the worthiness of myself. The living God hasn't intended me to be insignificant and irrelevant. Through His creating of me, I am a wonderful person. The miracle of an eye to see, a mind to think, a heart to beat, a hand to use, a lung to breathe, a foot to walk -- is to be appreciated.

That isn't being communicated on television or in stereo, in sports events and shopping malls. Unfortunately, it isn't even heard all that much in church either. The fact, however, is crucial -- life is a gift. As a creation of God, I'm wonderful, and so are you.

This column is written on a rotating basis by members of the Grosse Pointe Ministerial Association.

Opera Breve program scheduled

On Sunday, June 7, a group of local singers will offer abridged versions of "La Traviata" and "La Boheme" at the First Unitarian-Universalist Church in Detroit's Cultural Center. Known as "Opera Breve" (we resisted the temptation to call it "Listener's Digest" or "Opera McNuggets"), the performers are under the direction of Joseph Mazzolini, teacher of voice at the Center for Creative (CCS) Institute of Music and Dance, who also produced the program. This presentation at 3 p.m. is part of an ongoing Mosaic Music Series to benefit the restoration of the 75-year-old E.M. Skinner organ at the church. General admission is $5; $3 for students and low-income. Tickets may be ordered by mail to 4605 Cass, Detroit, MI 48201 or purchased at the door.

The option of 1 p.m. luncheon (Italian menu) is available at $6 per person, advance tickets only. For more information, call the church at 833-9107.

Shopper's paradise

The Christ Church Antique Show was held this past weekend in the Grosse Pointe South High School gymnasium. Here, Gold Angel patrons get the first look at the wares of the 39 vendors participating in the show. Patrons got a preview of the show on Friday evening at a champagne reception held in the church undercroft; and in the gymnasium. Other features of the show were an English tea room and an outdoor food tent. Proceeds from the show went to the Girls' and Mens' choirs' trip to Scandinavia this summer.

Teleconference to place focus on evangelization

An estimated 60,000 Catholic laity, religious and clergy are expected to participate in Pentecost '87, a one-day national teleconference on evangelization, to be aired on Saturday, June 6, from 10:45 a.m. to 6 p.m.

Locally, it is hoped that 2,000 will take part from the 27 vicariate teleconferencing sites in the Archdiocese of Detroit.

The day will consist of video presentations, major talks presented via satellite, prayer and local on-site discussion. It will begin with a presentation by Archbishop Edmund C. Szoka.

Evangelization is defined as proclaiming the Gospel in order to bring others to Christ and His Church. The Rev. Edward Farrell, the archbishop's representative for evangelization, notes that over the past 20 years, it has come to be thought of as "not as a specialized ministry, but the common call of every Catholic."

Pentecost '87 will focus on five areas of evangelization: active Catholics, inactive Catholics, ecumenical relationships, non-Christian and the unchurched. According to James Murphy, director of the Detroit Catholic Charismatic Renewal Center, the inactive Catholics group is "bigger than any active Protestant denomination," but, he notes, "evangelization must also reach out to those active in Catholicism and the unchurched, who have no connection with Christian faith."

Archbishop Szoka has written to the pastors of the Archdiocese requesting they make plans to include participation from their parishes at Pentecost '87.

"The theme of our Holy Father's visit to the United States in September is 'unity in the work of service, building up the body of Christ.' Catholic evangelization in all its aspects is a means of fulfilling that theme. It is also a fitting preparation for the visit of one of the greatest evangelizers in the world today," said Szoka.

Evangelization efforts in the Archdiocese of Detroit will be highlighted in a local segment of the Pentecost '87 teleconference. Farrell will moderate a panel which will include: the Rev. John Phelps, CSSR and Gayle Koyton of Life Search, the Rev. Robert Blondell of St. Ephrem Parish, Sterling Heights; Gloria Lewis of St. Agnes Parish, Detroit; the Rev. John Christ, OSC, of St. Dennis, Royal Oak; the Rev. Clarence Williams, CPPS of St. Anthony Parish, Detroit; Raul Feliciano of the Office for Hispanic Affairs; and Wyatt Jones, Jr. of the Office for Black Catholic Affairs.

St. Paul Lutheran

Pastor emeritus, the Rev. Charles W. Sandrock, will be the guest speaker at St. Paul Evangelical Lutheran Church on June 14. The congregation will be celebrating with Sandrock on his 50th year in the ministry.

On June 14, the congregation will switch to the summer schedule with one service at 10 a.m. Special music will be provided by the men's chorus.

Following the service, all will have an opportunity to visit with the Sandrocks at an all-you-can-eat pancake brunch in the fellowship hall.

Tickets must be purchased in advance at $2.50 each or $8 a family.

Pentecost '87 is being produced by the Paulist National Catholic Evangelization Association. Locally, registration is $5 per person which covers programming and the cost of materials. Participants are asked to bring their own lunch. For more information, call the Detroit Catholic Charismatic Renewal Center at 865-1336.

Aglow Fellowship

Rosemary Eberhard will be the guest speaker at the Tuesday, June 9 meeting of the Women's Aglow Fellowship, from 7 to 9 p.m., at the Mount Clemens YMCA. The meeting is open to all women and there is no charge to attend.

Refreshments are served until 10 p.m. For further information, call Diane Ward at 949-6368.

Termite proof

The hazomalany tree of Madagascar is so resistant to termites that, decades after one topples in the forest, its trunk remains almost intact, says National Geographic.

THE UNITED METHODIST CHURCH

Some of the AAUW members helping with the pick up of books for the Sept. 29-Oct. 4 Used Book Sale are Paula Preuthun, Linda Wheller-Jones, Louise Darlington and Charlotte Adamaszek. The two young hands giving moral support are Brianna Jones and Cheryl Mackechnie.

AAUW prepares for used book sale

The Grosse Pointe Branch of the American Association of University Women has the barrels in place and ready to be filled with old and new books for their Used Book Sale.

This will be the 25th year for this annual event, scheduled to take place on Tuesday, Sept. 29 through Sunday, Oct. 4, at the Salem Memorial Church, 21230 Moross Road, Detroit.

Now is the time to clean out those shelves of books you no longer need and donate them to a good cause. Proceeds from the AAUW Book Sale will go to AAUW national, international and local scholarships.

AAUW welcomes books in good condition (throw away the musty ones), such as children's literature, hard covers, paperbacks, mysteries, fiction, encyclopedias, biographies and cookbooks. Magazines of good quality are also acceptable.

Books not wanted are Reader's Digest Condensed books, National Geographic and textbooks over five years old. Unfortunately these items do not sell.

Barrels for books will be placed at the following locations: Dammann Hardware in Grosse Pointe Village; Kroger's on Marter Road; at two Farmer Jack locations, at Harper and Moross and Mack near Vernier.

If it is inconvenient to drop off books at the various depots, a pick-up service is available by calling the following numbers: for June, 882-0966 or 882-4659; July, 331-8211 or 884-0936 or 885-6238; during August, 886-4726 or 885-6220. No books will be accepted after Aug. 31.

Auction set at Federal Mogul

Put in your bid today for the International Institute's International Auction '87 and have a chance at coming away with some real bargains on Oriental rugs, European vacations, handcoats and fine jewelry from the far corners of the world.

On Sunday, June 7, from 4 to 6 p.m., the atrium of the Federal Mogul Corporation's World Headquarters in Southfield (at Northwestern Highway and Labadie) will be on loan to the International Institute for this second annual auction extravaganza to raise funds for the institute's growth and social service programs. This year the institute faces a particularly heavy caseload counseling illegal immigrants who may be eligible for amnesty under the federal government's new legalization laws.

On the auction block will be a wealth of items including a year's tuition for a new student at the Birmingham/West Bloomfield Montessori School, a trip for two to Athens, Greece with a cruise via Olympic Airlines and Epirus Lines, a dinner for 12 by Chef Duglass in his home, Lavender Jade from the House of Sheng, a trip for two to London, England donated by British Airways and J.C. Penney's, a personal computer from UNISYS and Oriental rugs from Hagopian & Sons, Inc. The minimum bid accepted for is $15. For reservations information, call the International Institute at 871-8600. Erick P. Currier and Amy Currier of Detroit are honorary chairs of the International Auction '87. Co-chairs are Joyce and Robert Bannion of Detroit, Joyce and Robert of Birmingham and Teryl of Birmingham. Auctioneer Thomas Angott of Orland Lake will keep the goods moving. This is the first time that Federal Mogul Corporation has offered the use of its building for a fund-raiser held by an outside organization. By allowing the International Institute, a United Foundation agency, to stage the auction at their world headquarters, Federal Mogul Corporation is demonstrating its support of ethnicity and the American immigrant experience.

FACTS YOU SHOULD KNOW ABOUT PLASTIC SURGERY.

FACT 1: FREE CONSULTATION WITH A SURGEON IS IMPORTANT. When it comes to plastic surgery, we operate a free consultation. A time to discuss your private questions in a private setting. Call 881-1800 for details.

FACT 2: EXPERIENCE AND TRAINING MAKE A DIFFERENCE. In Michigan, any licensed physician can put "cosmetic" on a business card. But at Cottage Hospital, your doctor has completed extensive postgraduate training, including a board certified plastic surgery or orthopedic (F.A.C.S.). All cosmetic procedures don't meet these strict standards.

FACT 3: COSMETIC SURGERY HAS MANY BENEFITS. Why? It lifts (rhinomy), we perform breast contouring, suction (removing deposits) and more, without an overnight hospital stay.

FACT 4: HOSPITAL ENVIRONMENT REASSURING. Whether or not your surgery requires a hospital stay, it's important to know you have the care of Cottage's expert staff, including highly trained nurses. If you do need an overnight stay, at Cottage you'll enjoy all the services you expect from a quality hospital, and more.

FACT 5: THE LUXURY OF A HOTEL IS YOURS. At Cottage, you'll stay in a hospital that's actually hospitable. Our optional "Five Pointe Service" includes a special suite for cosmetic surgery patients and a VIP menu. You can even invite a guest for dinner.

Project Hope League salutes Michigan sesquicentennial celebration

The Project HOPE League's spring fund-raiser will be held at the Scarab Club on Saturday, June 13, at 8 p.m. Located at Farnsworth and John R in the heart of the Cultural Center, the Scarab Club is just east of the DIA and directly north of the Science Center. This evening of Michigan Magic is Project HOPE League's salute to two great institutions celebrating milestones: Michigan with its Sesquicentennial Year, and Project HOPE League with 20 years in supporting the world medical relief.

Honorary Chairman of the evening is the Honorable Roman S. Gribbs, judge of the Michigan Court of Appeals, who will be on hand to draw the winner of the grand prize: a two-night package for two donated by the Grand Traverse Resort Village to Jack Nicklaus resort). Amid the art on exhibit in the gallery, Peggy Bogart and the Velvet Touch will provide musical magic for the dancers. Michigan artist, Eldon Roths, will be featured in the lounge where cocktails and an hors d'oeuvre buffet will be available.

Scarab Club co-hosts Francine Kachman and Larry Smith have arranged for strolling club accordionist Vincent "O" to entertain to the garden and during band intermissions with Michigan trivia and magicians to entertain throughout the evening. The $20 tax deductible donation includes one complimentary cocktail. Donation for members is $15. Annual dues are payable at the door.

Project HOPE is a national organization dedicated to health, education and medical services and training throughout the world. The Project HOPE League is a group of primarily single, professional Metropolitan-area Detroiters who have chosen Project HOPE as their public service contribution towards improved world health and new HOPE for our disadvantaged neighbors at home and abroad.

If everyone needed the same kind of mortgage, they wouldn't need one from Comerica.

When it comes to getting a home mortgage, some banks give you the feeling that everybody is buying the same house.

They sit you down. They show you the same mortgage they show everybody else. They have you fill out the same forms. And then they let you leave.

Well, that's not the way we work. Because at Comerica, we understand that everyone has different financial needs.

And that's why we give you a choice.

For instance, if you're looking for a simple, convenient way to pay for your home, we might show you our popular 15 and 30 year fixed rate mortgages.

If you need a lower rate to start, we might show you our 1 year adjustable rate mortgage. Or our 5 year balloon mortgage.

There's even a jumbo-sized loan for those of you who are planning on buying a jumbo-sized house. With it, you can borrow up to $500,000. That's $150,000 more than most other places offer.

And no matter which type of mortgage you choose, you'll have a Comerica representative helping you all the way, offering advice, and making sure you choose the best mortgage for your needs.

So call 1-800-292-1300 for the name of your nearest Comerica Mortgage representative, or stop in at any Comerica branch office.

Unless, of course, you really do want the same house everyone else has.

Make dinner dramatic with a ham at center stage

Most of the hams on the market today are fully cooked. Therefore, they require only enough cooking to warm the meat all the way through for a rich ham flavor.

This Celery Topped Baked Ham is an easy method to prepare any ham that yields dramatic results. The Elegant Gourmet Ham Sauce is a delightful addition to any ham slice.

The following recipes come from the low-calorie, low-cholesterol, budgetwise kitchens of Thyra Grey Howard and Helena DeWitt Roth.

MENU:

Cranberry Juice Cocktail Ice
Celery Topped Baked Ham
Elegant Gourmet Ham Sauce
Parsleyed New Potatoes
Sunny Carrots
Honey Baked Whole Wheat Bread
Mushroom and Sprout Salad
Mile-High Apricot Pineapple Souffle

Cranberry Juice Cocktail Ice
3 cans (6 ounces each) frozen cranberry juice cocktail concentrate
1-1/2 tsp. grated orange peel
3/4 cup orange juice
3/4 cup water

Stir ingredients to thoroughly blend. Pour into large bowl of mixer and freeze until firm. Beat until smooth. Freeze again, then beat again. Spread in a chilled 8 x 8-inch metal pan or two ice trays. Freeze until firm. Cover tightly. Makes about 1-1/2 quarts.

Calories, about 85 per 1/2 cup serving. Cholesterol 0.

Celery Topped Baked Ham

1 canned ham
1/2 to 1 cup celery leaves
Place ham in an 8 x 8-inch baking pan. With your hand, mince celery leaves on top of ham. Insert meat thermometer into center of ham.

Bake in a 325° preheated oven for about 35 minutes for a small ham, or until thermometer reaches 140°. (Cover ham loosely with foil during last part of baking time if topping browns too rapidly.)

Allow 1/4 to 1/2 pound of ham per person.

A six-ounce serving, without sauce, yields about 125 calories. Cholesterol, about 42 mgs.

Elegant Gourmet Ham Sauce

1 jar current jelly with port wine
3 Tblsp. orange juice, fresh or concentrate
1/2 to 1 tsp. grated orange peel
1/2 to 1 tsp. fresh or preserved ginger, finely diced
1/8 to 1/4 tsp. dry mustard
Dash freshly ground nutmeg

Place jelly in a sauce pan and add orange juice, peel, ginger, dry mustard and nutmeg. Heat to blend. Simmer to sauce consistency and to blend the flavors. Spoon over hot sliced ham for a very exotic flavor.

Parsleyed New Potatoes
1 pound new red potatoes
1 Tblsp. margarine
1/4 cup chopped fresh parsley
1/8 tsp. salt

Scrub potatoes. Cut each in half and cut halves in 1/4-inch slices. Put potatoes in a steamer basket over boiling water. Cover and steam for 12 to 15 minutes, until the potatoes are tender. Put in a serving dish (or the pan in which they were steamed) and add margarine, parsley and salt. Toss until margarine is melted. Makes four servings.

Calories, about 92 per serving. Cholesterol 0.

Sunny Carrots

2 cups thinly sliced carrots
1/4 cup beef broth
1 tsp. cornstarch
2 Tblsp. sauterne
1 cup seedless green grapes
1 Tblsp. unsalted margarine
1/2 tsp. lemon juice
Dash white pepper

In a sauce pan, cook carrots in broth for eight to 10 minutes, until crisp tender. Blend cornstarch with sauterne. Stir into carrots and add green grapes, margarine, lemon juice and pepper. Cook and stir until boiling. Makes four servings.

Honey Whole Wheat Bread

3-1/2 to 4 cups unbleached flour, divided
2-1/2 cups whole wheat flour
2 packages dry yeast
1 Tblsp. salt
1 cup skim milk
1 cup water
1/2 cup honey
3 Tblsp. margarine
1/4 cup egg substitute, well beaten

In a large mixing bowl, combine one cup of the unbleached flour, the whole wheat flour, yeast and salt. In a sauce pan, heat the milk, water, honey and margarine until warm (margarine does not have to melt). Add to the flour mixture. Stir in beaten egg substitute. Beat for three minutes on medium speed on an electric mixer. Stir in the remaining flour by hand.

Knead for 10 minutes or until dough is firm and elastic, adding more flour if necessary. Place in a greased bowl, turing to grease all sides. Cover and allow to rise for one hour.

Punch down and knead briefly. Shape into two loaves. Place in greased loaf pans and let rise for one hour. Bake at 375° for 35 to 40 minutes, or until bottom loaf sound hollow when tapped. Turn out onto a rack and cool. Makes two loaves, 27 slices each.

Calories per slice, about 58. Cholesterol, a trace.

Mushroom and Sprout Salad

2 cups alfalfa sprouts
2 cups sliced mushrooms
3 cups small or torn spinach leaves
1/4 cup green onions with tops, thinly sliced
1 tsp. prepared mustard
1/4 cup salad dressing

In a salad bowl, combine sprouts, mushrooms, spinach and green onions. Mix mustard and salad dressing and toss with spinach mixture. Makes four servings.

the fruits. Cholesterol, 0.

Mile-High Apricot Pineapple Souffle

1 can (1-2/3 cups) evaporated skimmed milk
1 can (16 ounces) dietetic apricot halves
1 can (15-1/2 ounces) dietetic pineapple chunks
3 envelopes low calorie orange gelatin
1/2 tsp. almond extract

Pour evaporated milk into a freezer tray until ice crystals form around the edges. Drain fruits, reserving liquid. Add enough water to make four cups.

Heat one cup of the liquid to boiling. Add to gelatin and stir until dissolved.

Add remaining liquid and chill until the consistency of unbeaten egg white. Dice fruits. Whip evaporated milk until soft peaks form. Fold into the gelatin with the fruits.

Make a collar which extends three inches above the rim of a one-quart souffle dish. Fasten securely with transparent tape. Spoon souffle into dish. Chill until firm. Remove the collar carefully.

Spoon into serving dishes, or present souffle garnished with whipped topping and thin slices of apricot.

Makes eight to 10 servings.

Hazardous

Although 65,000 commercial compounds — some of them proven carcinogens — enter the environment each year, only eight chemicals are listed as hazardous and regulated at their source by the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency, says National Geographic.

Foul air

Cubatão, Brazil, its air fouled by at least 75 pollutants from scores of industrial plants, may be the most polluted community on earth, says National Geographic.

Just wondering. . .

Why is it that no matter how many times we explain it, people still don't know how a newspaper works?

From time to time, we get letters from disgruntled readers who complain about sports coverage. Usually, they're peeved about one school getting more coverage than another in the sports section, or that we didn't write about their softball team or their tiddly-winks tournament or whatever.

In their anger, they start accusing us of everything from favoritism to communism to responsibility for the disappearance of Jimmy Hoffa. I think perhaps it's time for another of Peggy's Primers on Newspapers' Needs.

"R" is for favorites, which we can't play. It may be hard to believe, but we don't like one team or sport more than another. We can't afford to. It would destroy our credibility and make it awfully difficult to deal with the coaches and athletes we must deal with in order to do our job. Basically, it just isn't smart. And we pride ourselves on being smart.

"R" is for rely, which is what we must do for the general information on sports teams. If you don't see it in the paper, it's because we didn't get the info from the schools, coaches, players, team managers or an organization's publicity people. Pretty simple, huh?

"C" is for call. If you don't see your sterling sports achievement in the paper, perhaps you might consider giving US a call and letting us know what's happening. There are something like 10,000 people involved at all levels of sports in Grosse Pointe and as amazing as it may seem, we can't be everywhere at once. Your input (beyond letting your blood pressure get the best of you or making nasty phone calls) is appreciated.

Why is it that I start missing hockey season right about now? I mean, in March, I can't wait for it to get warm and for hockey to be OVER, but when the weather heats up, I'm dying for a good hockey game.

Why is it that I'll watch high school and college basketball all the live-long day, but I have never watched a single NBA game on television from start to finish. Maybe because it's just plain boring to watch 10 tall guys lope up and down the floor for three hours. I say, change the rules and make the winning team the first one to reach 50 points in four, 10-minute quarters.

Why is it that we never get any letters from grunted readers?

What are grunted readers, anyway?

Why is it that no matter what, the baseball teams at North and South have solid, talented, winning teams year in and year out? There aren't many teams that have put 20-win seasons together nearly every year like North has. And South looks like it's building an equally impressive reputation.

And, like baseball dads tell me all the time, they've done it without the added benefit of being able to recruit, like private schools can.

Why is it that even when you don't know them personally, you can always tell the athletes among the kids posing in cap and gown for graduation pictures? And no, they aren't all wearing Reeboks.

Champions and challengers

They won their 15th state championship in 16 years and their 18th title in 22 seasons. And after last week's victory in the Class C-D state tennis championships, the varsity tennis team at University Liggett School also earned the national record for all-time state high school boys' tennis championships with 25.

And over at the South, there are some very happy baseball players after the Blue Devils' district championship victory last Saturday. South beat North and East Detroit to earn the title and a berth in Saturday's regionals at North High.

There were also challengers last week, as the girls' softball teams and boys' baseball squads at North and South tried for district titles. Only South's boys emerged victorious, although the rest gave it a good effort. That's South's Mary Bruce (below, left) on the mound against East Detroit. North's Lynda Rayos crosses the plate against Regina (center) and at right below, North's Pete Kilcline is safe at first in the Norsemen's battle against South on Saturday. More stories and photos are on Page 3C.

PFDs: One jacket that's always in style

I have a girlfriend who refuses to sail without wearing one. She says she feels more comfortable. She is not a good swimmer and says she feels more confident out on the water when she's wearing one.

My daughter had a potentially disastrous experience turn into a merely unpleasant splash and nothing more, because she was wearing one.

You guessed it — I'm talking about what the Coast Guard refers to as Personal Flotation Devices (PFDs). The rest of us call them life jackets. And they are just what the name implies.

In my daughter's case, she was required to have her life jacket on every time she came up on deck. It was a firm rule and she always conformed. One evening, she was walking around decks munching on a cookie when she lost her footing and slipped between life lines. We heard the splash, looked frantically around and saw a startled little girl bobbing around in the water near the boat . . . still munching the cookie.

We cannot contemplate the consequences of that tumble had she not been wearing her life jacket. My daughter has grown up since then, but still remarks about the night she fell into Georgian Bay. She gained new respect for that jacket and never had to be reminded to put it on after that.

The Coast Guard has classified Personal Flotation Devices by type. The number and type required aboard a vessel depends upon the length of the boat.

Recreational boats — boats that do not carry passengers for hire — of less than 16 feet, as well as canoes and kayaks, must have one (1) PFD aboard of Type I, II, III or IV for each person. Boats 16 feet or longer must have a Type I, II or III for each person aboard and one Type IV aboard the vessel.

All life jackets must carry the Coast Guard approval number and be in good condition. They need not be worn, but must be easily accessible for guests and crew.

A Type I PFD is designed to turn an unconscious adult in the water from a face-down position to a vertical or slightly backward position with the face up. It must have more than 20 pounds of buoyancy. There are Type I PFDs designed especially for children. These life jackets have been designed to be easy to put on in an emergency and to give the greatest measure of protection to the wearer. However, this type can be cumbersome to the wearer because of this design.

A Type II is also designed to turn an adult into a head-up position as well as vertical, but does not have as much buoyancy. It has 15.5 pounds of buoyancy and is a bit less cumbersome to wear.

A Type III PFD is designed to keep a conscious person in a vertical position in the water. It also has at least 15.5 pounds of buoyancy. But because this life jacket is designed to maintain only a conscious person, it does not have the same ability to turn a victim face-up in the water; but it permits a more comfortable design for water activities like water skiing.

A Type IV PFD is a throwable device. It might be round or horseshoe-shaped. It is designed to be thrown to a person in the water and it is not designed to be worn. A Type IV device must have at least 16.5 pounds of buoyancy.

The human body has a tendency to float. If we didn't have some buoyancy, we could not swim, we would sink like rocks. When more buoyancy is added and positioned, then optimum buoyancy is achieved and lives are saved. Personal Flotation Devices are clearly marked with a Coast Guard approval number, so people contemplating the purchase of life jackets will see the type of PFD and the approval number.

Remember: you need one approved PFD for each person aboard your vessel. It could be a matter of life or death.

Kids are winners. . .

Knights break all-time mark with 25th state title

The University Liggett School boys' varsity tennis team won its 18th Class C-D state tennis championship in 22 years last week in Kalamazoo. ULS has been runner-up three times in that period. The state title was the 25th in ULS history, breaking the all-time national record of 24 set by Winfield High School in Winfield, Kansas.

Individual state champions for ULS were John Yancey at No. 1 singles, Alex Tringali at No. 2 singles, Frank Karabetos at No. 4 single, Mike Fozo and Ashu Nautiyal at No. 1 doubles, Mike Niccolini and Andrew MacLeod at No. 2 doubles and Anthony Abiragi and Doug Wood at No. 3 doubles. Sean Byrne was runner-up at No. 3 singles.

"This championship climaxed a dream season," said coach Bob Wood. "During the regular season, we defeated Brother Rice, the 1987 Class A champs, and Cranbrook, the 1987 Class B champions. How would ULS have fared in Class A this year?"

"I'm not sure," Wood continued. "It all would have depended upon the draw. I'm sure we would have finished anywhere from first to fourth."

Wood also credited coach Chuck Wright with much of ULS's success. "I'm sure that the singles players know how much he meant to them and I know how much he means to our total program," Wood said. "The success of this program for so many years is also due to the tremendous support we have received from the school administration, the parents and most importantly, the dedication and commitment of the players," Wood said.

"Next year — who knows what will happen," Wood added. "I'm sure we'll be very competitive."

To states

Sophomore Alexis Collins and senior Agu Nwosu competed for ULS in the state Class C track finals in Bangor last Saturday. Nwosu ran the 300 meter hurdles in a personal best and school record time of 40.99. Collins' high jump of 4 feet, 10 inches put her in a tie for 12th in the state.

"I'm extremely proud of both athletes," said coach Josh Schmidt. "Nwosu ran his best, finishing an excellent track and field career at ULS. Collins is just a sophomore and already performing well. We look forward to continued success for Alexis next year."

Fine finish

ULS's fine soccer season came to an end in the regional finals on May 23, with a 2-1 loss to a rugged Bishop Foley team.

In a very physical game, the Foley defenders covered ULS forwards Laurie Khelokian, Shelly Tibbitts and Lynne Connor and the ULS defense of Sylvia Ristic, Eva Dodds, Beth Birgbauer and sweeperback Cindy Paul contained the Foley strikers.

With 19 minutes to go in the game, ULS center Meghan Brady drove the ball toward the Foley goal. After the goalkeeper made the save, converted left-wing Shelly Tibbitts hustled after the ball and managed to tip it in.

Eight minutes later, Foley came back to tie the game and with the score tied at 1-1, Foley poured on the pressure and with five minutes to go scored what proved to be the winner. Foley's Sands stole the ball on the right and passed to All-Stater Roxanne Kress, who eluded a ULS defender and blasted the ball into the net.

ULS had several scoring opportunities, but Foley managed to thwart each attempt. The loss ended ULS's best season. With a record of 11-2-3, ULS finished in fifth place in the state's Class B-C-D rankings. The girls also finished in third in the 16-team Expressway League.

The Michigan Soccer Coaches Association selected senior Laurie Khelokian for the first team All-State (B-C-D). Khelokian scored a school-record 33 goals this season. On the second team were senior defender Cindy Paul and sophomore Sylvia Ristic. Senior defender Tibbitts earned honorable mention.

Blue Devil batters win district, head for regionals

Tim Nugent is safe at second in last Saturday's district title game against East Detroit.

Grosse Pointe South's varsity baseball team advanced to this Saturday's Class A regional baseball tournament at North High by taking both ends of a district tournament doubleheader on May 30 at North. It was the second straight district championship for coach Dan Griesbaum's squad.

The Blue Devils ousted North, 4-1, in the first game and followed that with a 6-2 triumph over EML rival East Detroit in the championship game. The Shamrocks had reached the final round by defeating Notre Dame, 6-4, earlier in the day.

South (27-6) now faces Sterling Heights (26-6) champion of the Macomb Athletic Conference and winner of the Fraser district, this Friday, at 2:30 p.m. The winner advances to the final game at 5 p.m. to play the winner of the Berkley-Detroit Southwestern game which will be played at noon at North. The regional winner advances to the "final four" at Lansing-East Lansing on June 11 and 12.

After spotting the Norsemen a run in the second, the Devils tallied once each in the third and fourth innings, then iced the game with two more runs in the sixth. In the third, Sean Bruce started things going with a walk. He moved to second when Marty Saad walked, then came home on Doug Lucas' single. Pitcher Marcus Wysocki led off the fourth with a single, then went to second on an overthrow and scored on the first of two Mike Paull singles.

Dave Arnold notched the second of two hits to open the sixth inning. He advanced on Adam Mocerri's bunt, then scored on Paull's second hit. Mocerri came home on Dan Cimini's single moments later.

Wysocki turned in a two-hit performance for his ninth win against one defeat. He gave up just two hits and three walks, striking out nine.

After a shaky start (two first inning runs on three hits and two walks), Scott Tucker settled down and gave up just three hits the rest of the way as South bested East Detroit, 6-2, in the final. Tucker gave up six walks and fanned six, registering his seventh victory of the season.

He got great support from his teammates, who belted out 11 hits, including solo homers by Saad and Lucas (back-to-back in the third) and Tim Nugent. Lucas also doubled and Nugent added a single. Dan Cimini came up with two hits and two RBI. Bruce, Paull, Arnold and Mocerri produced the other hits.

Wysocki (MVP), Bruce, Lucas and Saad were named to the EML's All-Conference team. Nugent, Paull, Tucker and John Joliet received honorable mention.

Girls lose to ED

South's varsity softball team faced No. 2-ranked East Detroit in the district semifinals last Saturday, losing 12-2 despite taking an early 1-0 lead. Katy Turner had two hits, Holly Asmus and Darcy Jones each had one. South finished its season with a 13-18 record and a fourth-place EML finish.

In the final week of the season, the Lady Blue Devils lost to L'Anse Creuse North, 3-0, on Tammy Bogedin's one-hitter. Jones had South's only hit. The Blue Devils also were beaten by Trenton, 15-11. Erin Bruce was two-for-two and Shannon Burns, Becky Wysocki, Katy Turner and Patty Molloy had solo hits.

Earning top individual honors for South are: Katy Turner — All-EML, All-District and winner of the Thursby Award as South's Female Scholar Athlete; Carmina Amezcua — All-EML; Holly Asmus and Darcy Jones — All-District.

Turner also set new season records with 47 hits, 35 stolen bases, 44 runs scored and nine doubles, as well as career records with 88 hits, 93 runs and 16 doubles. Amezcua set a season mark with 64 assists and Asmus established a career record 21 sacrifice bunts.

All-Academic players are Turner, Patty Hess, Lisa Van Tasell, Amezcua, Asmus, Mary King and Laurel Wolfe. Turner won the 1987 Best Offensive Player award and Hess, the 1987 Best Defensive Player honors.

Bittersweet ending to Norsemen's baseball season

It was a sweet and sour week for the North High varsity baseball team. On May 27, the Norsemen took a doubleheader from Clintondale and clinched the last-ever Bi-County baseball championship. It was North's eighth league title in nine years.

But last Saturday, the Norsemen fell to South High, 4-1, in the district finals. The loss ended North's season.

Earlier in the week, North beat L'Anse Creuse, 4-0. Senior Rob Marshall blanked the Lancers on four hits. Pat Kilcline had two hits and two RBI. (By Josh Abbott)

Girls lose, too

The 1987 season also came to a sudden halt last weekend for North's varsity softball team. The Lady Norsemen dropped the opening round game of the district to Regina, 4-1.

Seniors Julie Cook and Missy Preston each had two hits; senior Lynda Rayos scored the lone run against Regina. North finished the year at 8-15; 4-8 in the Bi-County.

Earlier that week, the Lady Norsemen split their last two league contests. On May 26, North fell to L'Anse Creuse, 5-4. Rayos, Cook and Angie Domi-enik each banged out two hits. The next day, North spoiled Clintondale's bid for a Bi-County title and knocked it back into a tie for first. Freshman Kerry Kelly fired a two-hitter while she and junior Monique Van Assche had two hits apiece. (By Josh Abbott)

Great track year

North's girls' and boys' track teams each finished the 1987 season undefeated in dual meets. The boys added championships in both the Bi-County and the state Class A regional to their 9-0 record.

Against South High, the boys' team raced away to an 81-55 victory. Jim DeYonker took a first in the pole vault with a 12-foot leap. Baik Hur placed first in the 110 high hurdles with a time of 15.7 and Mike Wujack ran away with the 400 (52.77).

That same day, the girls beat previously unbeaten South, winning three of four relays and taking firsts in the 200, 300, 400, 800 and 1600 runs.

The North's boys' squad and two members of the girls' team — Liz Bolden and Barbie Loeher — traveled to the state finals last weekend. While no Norseman placed in the top three, each turned in a fine performance. (By Steve Langs)

Close games highlight Ruth action

In the Farms-City-Park American League East, the Orioles edged the Red Sox, 7-6. Matt Wysocki led the Orioles at bat and on the mound; Jamie Osborne, Denny Hoag and Jim Bunn also had hits. The Sox were led by Renaldo Roxas, David Asker, Jason Wiessert and Ned Johnson.

The Red Sox nipped the Blue Jays, 8-6. The Jays got strong relief pitching from Mark Jungwirth. Tim Clarke shut down the Jays' hitting attack over the last four innings. Tim Gramling got on base three times for the Jays. Steve Wisniewski scored three runs for the Sox. Catchers Kelly Graves (Jays) and Wiessert (Sox) had good games for their teams.

The Farms-City Park Angels squeaked past the Woods Shores Rangers, 5-3. Sherif El Alayli tripled and scored two for the Angels. Winning pitcher Peter Griem struck out five; reliever Jason Steffes threw three scoreless innings and struck out two. Rangers' pitcher Lelli struck out seven; he also double, singled and scored. P. Bogos doubled and scored a run. Fleming struck out three in relief.

The Tigers topped the Orioles 11-7. Tom Moellering had three hits. Brett Riccinto and Mike Montagne had two each to lead the 13-hit Tiger attack. Brian Leetscher scored three runs and doubled. Moellering, Tim Molloy and Mike Oliver pitched for the Tigers; Molloy got the win. Jamie Osborne had two hits and Kevin Nugent picked up two RBI with a double for the Orioles.

The Tigers continued their winning ways, beating the Blue Jays, 10-4, behind the strong arm of pitcher Montagne, who struck out 11. Riccinto, Eddie Suzor, Montagne and Billy Leins had two hits each. Chris Stebbins had two hits and Bill Isbey tripled for the Jays.

The Tigers then defeated the Red Sox, 7-6, in extra innings. The Tigers got timely hits in the eighth, including Leetscher's two RBI and two hits each by Leins, Oliver and Leetscher. Renato Roxas had two of the Sox' five hits. Jeff Joliet of the Sox and Oliver of the Tigers pitched well.

In the Prep League, the Yankees topped the Pirates, 6-5, when Gary Spicer scored in the eighth. Dan Ninadeo went four-for-four and scored three for the Yanks. Lickfold, Aardema and Osborne each had three hits for the Pirates. Jay berschback and Scott Van Almen combined to strike out 13 Pirate batters.

Charlie Lickfold and Randy Aardema struck out 13 Yanks.

The Yankees beat the Royals, 9-4. Winning pitcher John Maycock struck out nine and also had two hits. Minadeo stole four bases and scored two runs. Michael McLaughlin had two hits and an RBI for the Royals.

The Yankees used Kyle Hoye's excellent stint on the mound to shut out the Rangers, 8-0. Hoye struck out 10 and game up one hit in seven innings. Ryan Molitor, John Jungwirth and Andy VanDeweghe each made excellent defensive plays for the Rangers. Zack VanAuken's double was the Rangers' only hit. Tim Jogan, Maycock, Steve Keating and Hoye had one hit each for the Yanks.

Sabres win

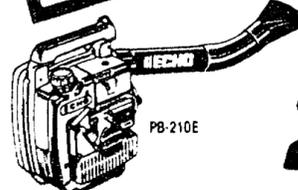

The Century 21-East Sabres scored two third period goals to edge the Huskies, 5-3, on May 17. The victory allowed the Sabres to hold on to the fourth (and final) playoff spot heading into the stretch drive.

Goal scorers were Chris Popliss (two), Gary Loughton, Sam Clogg and Kevin Roseborough.

Art of manipulation explored in the nude in 'L'Annee des Meduses'

By Michael Chapp
Special Writer

Viewers looking at the first five minutes of "L'Annee Des Meduses (The Year of The Jellyfish)" would expect a film packed to excess with nudity and sexual innuendo.

And they'd be right. Funny thing though; for all the gratuitous shots of breasts and behinds, the thesis of "Meduses" has nothing to do with sex. Rather, it's a calculatedly Neofreudian film about psychological manipulation and devious deception.

Set in a posh French resort area, the piece takes every chance it gets to allow its female stars to bare it all before the cameras. And while none of the nudity is done in a tasteless or otherwise offensive way, one could very well question the choice of a nude beach as the chief location. The answer, it seems, gives insight into a basic faux pas of the picture. Director Christopher Frank makes the assumption — much like analyst Sigmund Freud did — that all human behavior is rooted in sexual desire. Frank therefore sets his film on a nude beach and puts things into motion from there.

French star Valerie Kaprisky plays Chris, the film's center of attention, an 18-year-old girl on vacation with her middle-age mother. In the film's early moments, Chris is stung by a jellyfish. That attack carries a symbolic significance that is metaphorically revisited throughout the entire picture. Chris is a master manipulator; she knows what she wants, she knows how to get it, and she knows how to destroy people's lives in the process. Before the closing credits roll, Chris has "stung" — either physically or mentally — a friend of the family, a young couple on vacation at the resort, and anyone else by whom she feels threatened.

Counter to Chris is Romain (Bernard Giraudeau), the resort's biggest lady's man. Romain is no slouch at manipulation himself. He's smooth enough to bed any woman he likes and then have them prostitute themselves with others, for which he collects ample rewards.

The conflict between Romain and Chris eventually becomes the picture's main subject, but it takes a long time before this becomes clear. A full hour passes before we realize the direction the movie is taking, and a good deal more time goes by before Chris and Romain finally come head to head. Ample time is spent in between, developing the two characters and setting various subplots, each of which tie into the story by the climax.

Kaprisky and Giraudeau are engaging performers; each has a charisma on the screen that adds to the individual performances. Kaprisky doesn't stretch more than she needs to though, choosing instead to let her classically molded body and penetratingly deep eyes tell her story.

Frank doubtlessly has the nucleus of a fine piece of work in "Meduses." There's a lot to be said for anyone who's ambitious enough to tackle a battle of psychological wits in two hours of film. By resorting to blatant voyeurism to add punch to the formula though, Frank does himself a double disservice. He forces viewers to second-guess the necessity for nudity in the work, and he accentuates his limited knowledge of human psychology.

Slapstick reigns in 'Ernest Goes to Camp'

By Marian Trainor
Special Writer

It's a big jump from a 30-second spot on TV to starring in a feature movie, but when you're Jim Varney whose rubber-face is familiar to everyone who has ever turned on a television, then it's worth a gamble — "Know what I mean, Vern?"

Unfortunately Varney is not quite as funny on film as he is on TV, largely because of the material.

Even the beginning is confusing. It opens with an Indian ceremonial rite showing a young Indian brave tied to a tree. If he is truly brave, he will withstand a rock, a knife and an arrow hurled at his person. The segment is long enough to cause the viewer to wonder if he has wandered into the wrong film.

It doesn't seem to have much connection until we discover that the land on which the ceremony took place is now a camp where boys come to spend the summer having fun and learning about Indian lore.

Part of their fun is unintentionally provided by Varney, the handyman and would-be counselor.

Unfortunately Varney is not the stuff of which counselors are made. He is a bungler of the first order, but when word comes that there will be a group of "last chance" boys coming from a nearby detention home, Varney gets the assignment.

They are a rough, tough little group and they make Varney the butt of their jokes.

Actually Varney doesn't need any help getting into goofy situations. Each time he comes up laughing until he learns that the camp is to be closed and it's his fault.

For most of the film, Varney plays the clown, albeit a kindly one. He is the only person at the camp who is kind to the "last chance" boys. He is genuinely fond of them. He works with them and he protects them from the taunts of the others.

As a film, "Ernest Goes to Camp" is not much, but you can't quarrel with box office success. It made $11 million the first week and was second on the list of top films.

country, former Gov. William Milliken conferred upon him the title of "Ambassador of Michigan Tourism."

In his Isle Royale travelogue, his cameras take in a boat ride from Houghton to the Lake Superior wilderness island and then focus on its array of wild flowers, its wildlife in natural habitat, picturesque beaches, hiking trails, abandoned copper mines of the past century and mysterious copper diggings that give evidence of an unknown people visiting the area thousands of years ago.

Book Of The Week
AT GROSSE POINTE Book Village
We would like to share our most recent reading with you
INDIAN COUNTRY
by Philip Caputo
"Indian Country" is many things: it is, first, a novel about a man dealing with the anguish of his service in Vietnam, struggling with his own particular demons, nameless and terrifying; it is a study of the return from mental illness; it is the story of a strong, loving woman trying to deal with spectres she doesn't even know exist; and it is the description of a man's synchronicity with his surroundings.
The setting is the Upper Peninsula of Michigan, and we are struck with awe at the sometimes quiet, sometimes soaring rendering of this place.
Caputo has not given us an entirely likeable protagonist, and he makes us work to understand this particular man's terrors. That we care, and eventually strive to know him, is a tribute to the writer's strength.

101 PRAYERS

MAY THE SACRED Heart of Jesus be praised, adored and glorified throughout the world forever and ever. Say six times for nine days and publish without fail. Your prayer will be answered, no matter how difficult. M.K.F.

PRAYER TO THE HOLY SPIRIT

Holy Spirit, you who make me see everything and who shows me the way to reach my ideal. You who give me the Divine Gift to forgive and forget the wrong that is done to me and who you are in all instances of my life with me. I, in this short dialogue want to thank you for everything and confirm once more that I never want to be separated from you no matter how great the material desires may be. I want to be with you and my loved ones in your perpetual glory. Amen. Thank you for your love towards me and my loved ones. Pray this prayer 3 consecutive days without asking your wish, after third day your wish will be granted, no matter how difficult it may be. Then promise to publish this prayer as soon as your favor has been granted. Thank you for favors received. S.D.

NOVENA TO ST. JUDE

May the Sacred Heart of Jesus be adored, glorified, loved and preserved, throughout the world, now and forever. Oh, sacred heart of Jesus, pray for us. St. Jude, worker of miracles, pray for us. St. Jude, helper of the hopeless pray for us. Say this prayer 9 times a day, by the 8th day your prayer will be answered. It has never been known to fail, never. Publication must be promised. Thanks to St. Jude for prayer answered. M.M.

"We are very interested in getting developers to work with us so we are not at loggerheads with them," Somes said.

Somes said that establishing uniform and consistent ordinances governing the establishment of a cluster development or in remodeling a home will work toward enhancing the Lakeshore area.

"If that is done I can move into the area and know what to expect after I purchase," Somes said.

"This will reflect on the value of the investment."

Somes said that in Florida, many areas have adopted these kinds of stringent rules and homeowners welcomed the move.

"You go into buying a home or property knowing what the rules are and knowing what your neighbors are expected to do," Somes said.

Homeowners Association and it is talking with other Farms residents in hopes of encouraging new groups to form.

Clemente said that recent decisions by the Farms council to approve pools in front of Lakeshore homes don't really bother him.

"Personally, I am not opposed to anything that would beautify the area," Clemente said. "I think Gil Mains (one of two granted a variance for a front yard pool) is doing an excellent job on his home," Clemente said. "Everyone has their own opinion though.

With some variances, you start to take away from the beauty of the area."

Because the organization is new, the directors will meet often over the next several months and "keep a close eye on the planning commission."

"Why can't we salvage some of the old estates by trusts or other ways," Clemente said. "We should maintain the prestige of Lakeshore rather than tear down all these old mansions."

EVOLUTION OF THE SPECIES

The New Breed Jaguar XJ6

The 1988 Jaguar XJ6. It is totally new. Yet it reflects the most superb qualities of its legendary forebears.

Its new, fuel injected, double overhead cam six cylinder engine has 24 valves for enhanced power and high-speed response. Patented "pendulum" isolation enhances the renowned ride of Jaguar's surefooted fully independent suspension.

Supple leather and polished burl walnut maintain the Jaguar tradition of handcrafted interior luxury. However, the new XJ6 also reflects the most enlightened engineering. For example: The new XJ6 incorporates seven microprocessors to regulate mechanical and driver information systems—including a trip computer and a Vehicle Condition Monitor, which continually checks 27 vehicle functions.

A most advanced species, the new XJ6 is also the most thoroughly proven sedan ever introduced by Jaguar. It is protected by an extensive 3 year/36,000 mile warranty, and Jaguar's new Service-On-SiteSM Roadside Assistance Plan. We can provide details on this program and Jaguar's limited warranty. And we invite you to experience the evolution of a legendary species—the new breed Jaguar XJ6.
