

Storm smacks Grosse Pointes; lightning strikes three homes

By Peter A. Salinas
Staff Writer

It was shortly after 3 p.m. Friday when a major thunderstorm rolled across the Grosse Pointe area, leaving in its wake downed wires, split trees, a roof fire and two other homes damaged by lightning.

"It was one of the worst storms for lightning I have seen," said one Farms officer.

Farms officials said there were numerous street floodings which quickly subsided.

The worst lightning strike occurred at the Ross residence at 25 Harbor Hill in the Farms. The call came in at around 3:15 p.m. after the roof of the home was struck by lightning punching a hole through the roof. The lightning caused a fire, and an automatic alarm summoned Farms firefighters, according to Fire Chief Sam Candela.

"We quickly went to a second alarm and the City was called in," Candela said. "Mrs. Rose injured her arm as she apparently stumbled walking down some steps in the house."

The fire caused around $30,000 in damage, which Candela called a conservative estimate.

In Grosse Pointe Shores, lightning struck a house at 54 Weber Place around 3:20 p.m. Shores Public Safety Director Daniel Healy said that the bolt struck the north side of the house near the eaves, and traveled through the home coming out in a bedroom. Three large holes were blown out of the plaster which was scattered all over a bedroom.

A home on North Deeplands in the Shores was also struck by lightning and apparently blew a plug receptacle out of a wall.

In Grosse Pointe Woods numerous reports of downed wires were called into the public safety department, and the traffic light at Mack and Cook roads was out, forcing officers to man the intersection until power was restored later in the afternoon.

In Grosse Pointe City, officers took reports of wires down on the 400 block of Rivard. One call came in around 3:30 p.m. that water pressure in the city's sewer system blew off a manhole cover on Mack in front of a landscaping company.

Grosse Pointe Park officials said that a large tree on Whittier was knocked down by the storm. Power was knocked out to the 1300 blocks of Audubon and Kensington as a result of the downed tree.

All over the Pointes burglar and hold-up alarms were triggered by the severe lightning and loud thunderclaps, which added to the problems experienced by the public safety departments.

Another busy Sunday

The scene at the foot of Kerby Road in the Farms early Sunday afternoon was a busy one. Boaters and sailboard enthusiasts took to the water as temperatures soared into the 90s and the humidity made the air seem like a hot tub. Traffic was heavy on Lakeshore, a result of the hydroplane races taking place on the Detroit River.

Crawford cleared

No violation, attorney says

By Pat Paholsky
News Editor

City Manager John Crawford received a narrow vote of confidence Monday night when the Park council voted 4-3 to accept the city attorney's report that there was no violation of the city charter regarding a renovation project.

Crawford's handling of the municipal court/council chambers redecoration project had been under investigation by the city attorney after the matter was first raised June 8 by Mayor Palmer Heenan.

At that time, Heenan charged that the charter was being subverted in the $25,000 renovation project. Some items totaled more than $5,000 and were listed separately, Heenan charged, to eliminate the necessity of getting approval from the council. The charter requires that any purchase over $5,000 requires council approval. The total project had been approved by council and was part of the 1987-88 budget.

At the next meeting June 22, Councilman Vern Ausherman passed out a report, which he said was the result of his own investigation into the matter, and charged Crawford with circumventing the charter.

In his report Monday night to the council, city attorney Herold McC. Deason said the matter was a "close question." The transactions in the $5,000 purchase orders "could be counted as separate," he said. "For these reasons, I'm unable to conclude there was a clear violation of the city charter."

The opinion came under close scrutiny by Heenan and Ausherman. Ausherman said he would have preferred not "to air dirty linen in public," but that after he and Heenan had attempted twice to get information on the project from Crawford, he had no choice. Ausherman also charged that the purchases were "obviously contrived and I'm asking the city attorney how he can justify the situation."

Deason said, "If you look at the city manager's characterization of the transaction and the use of McGovern and Urso as consultants and you see that no individual supplier received more than $5,000, it could be characterized as separate."

Ausherman, who is up for reelection this year, said he intends to make an issue out of the matter. "We'll see this November if it's acceptable to the voters."

Mayor Pro Tem David Gaskin said the issue is whether there was a charter violation. "From what I can see, there is not a clear-cut attempt to violate the charter and that's where we are in terms of the city manager. I see nothing wrong with using an interior decorator as a consultant. I don't want to be involved in the day-to-day operations — that's why we employ a city manager."

Under normal operating procedures, Crawford said, he would have bought some chairs, had carpeting installed and sent the benches out for reupholstering, but decided instead to use profes-fringe for all employees," she said. "But as time goes on, we'll be hiring younger staff. I understand the argument about residency, but we need to offer things for staff."

Neither Hanpeter nor Marr felt the board shied away from allotting space for employees' children out of fear of getting involved in a negotiable fringe benefit. "If this is a desirable benefit, I would think the union would ask for it," Hanpeter said. "It's a legitimate benefit to consider."

New trustee Jane Nutter voted against the program. "We have too many latchkey problems," she said. "We need to clean that up first."

Later in the week, she added, "I didn't expect to sway people — I just think we don't need to jump into something else until we get latchkey cleaned up."

Nutter said that Barnes is an "excellent facility," suited for getting a program started quickly. "We may start small," she said, "but that's not a disad-

Schools to start pilot day care center

The Grosse Pointe schools will enter the daycare business sometime this year. Warning sternly to "do it right this time," six of seven board members voted July 6 to approve the pilot project.

To avoid the mistakes made with the latchkey program, the pilot daycare class will not open until it is licensed by the Department of Social Services. The schools started a latchkey program without seeking licensure, then operated a program riddled with inconsistencies. Last fall two coordinators were hired to bring the program into compliance, but it is not licensed yet.

"The latchkey was an embarrassment," said trustee Joan Hanpeter, who supports the daycare program. She said she doesn't expect the new program to be like latchkey, which operated differently in each of nine elementary schools.

"This will be more controlled, more like all-day kindergarten," she said.

The plan calls for one daycare room to be set up in Barnes School, with eventual expansion to two rooms or possibly to North High School if demand warrants it. There is no plan to expand to each elementary school.

Nothing about the program is determined as yet. The enrollment limit will depend upon the Department of Social Services. Few materials have been purchased. A job description for the director has been posted, but no interviews have taken place.

"It's totally premature to say anything," said George Eddington, director of community education, under whose aegis the program will operate. "We don't know how many kids we'll have or when the program will start. It all hinges on DSS."

As the program was envisioned, 40 percent of the slots would have been allocated to children of staff. That proved to be a sticking point and eventually was deleted.

"Our first obligation is service to taxpayers," said Hanpeter. "I can't imagine turning down a taxpayer for an employee who doesn't pay taxes. That would be ethically wrong."

Secretary Carol Marr, who served on the childcare committee, said the idea was originally talked about as a program for employees. "We aren't anywhere near where we could offer it as a

Pointer of Interest George Deeb

By Nancy Parmenter
Staff Writer

One day a couple of years ago, George Deeb decided to write a symphony.

The fact that he had never written any other music was no deterrent to the then-16-year-old.

"He just decided one day he'd do it — and he did," said his mother, Joanne.

Symphony No. 1 was about four months in the writing, and another year passed before it was performed by the North High School band of which Deeb was a member. Deeb is matter-of-fact about the accomplishment.

"I didn't work constantly," he said. "It was strictly spare time, when I wasn't with friends, or if I was bored on a weekend."

But if he doesn't think writing a symphony is anything unusual, Deeb does get excited about playing, conducting and composing. His love of music is so obvious that North classmates dubbed him "Amadeebus," after his hero, Mozart.

But he has decided that when he enters the University of Michigan in the fall, he will pursue a more practical career in finance or business.

"It was hard for a while, deciding what to do," Deeb said. "As (my senior) year went on, I came to a decision — and I think I made the right choice."

"Music will still be my hobby and my love, but the business world has a lot of competition, and that's what I like."

A challenge is what got Deeb started composing. A friend sitting next to him in band listened to him griping about an assigned piece and challenged him to write a better one.

So he got out a small programmable keyboard and started making up melodies. Like any teenager doing homework, Deeb wrote the symphony with a tape playing in the background.

"I'd just go wherever I had a nice sound system and get a little Mozart in my ears and start writing," he said.

The melodies were the fun, creative part, followed by the drudgery of transposing as he set up the music for the individual

News Editor

It was a long time coming, and the appointment of an interim municipal judge in the Park will be longer yet.

The council voted down two candidates Monday night, nominated a third and withdrew that nomination in favor of a recommendation to have a state court administrator appoint a temporary judge.

With the general election less than four months away, it's not clear if the issue will again be raised. One councilman said he will bring up the matter at the next meeting.

The Judicial Search Committee, appointed by Mayor Palmer Heenan after the resignation of Municipal Judge Beverly Grob-bel, interviewed 10 of the 17 candidates who applied for the interim position. The committee, chaired by Councilman James Robson and consisting of councilmen Vern Ausherman and John Prost, came up with a majority and minority recommendation.

Robson proposed Kirsten Frank for the position and cited her involvement with the Downtown Development Authority and her experience in the municipal court as the court appointed public defender. The vote was 4-3 against, with David Gaskin, Mark Valente, Carroll Evola and Prost voting no, and Robson, Ausherman and Heenan voting for.

Gaskin, who circulated a memo Friday to the council, said, "I will be voting no and it has nothing to do with Kirsten Frank or any candidate. It's my understanding that we are dealing with an interim judge to serve until November. It's my view that the public is best served by having a state court administrator appoint a judge that we would pay on a per diem basis."

Gaskin added that giving a candidate the title of incumbency for serving four months "is an unfair advantage and one we should avoid if we can do so."

The next candidate proposed, Lola Graves, received top praise from Robson as "enormously impressive and eminently well-qualified." Graves is not a candidate for the elected position.

Gaskin said he didn't feel it made sense to appoint someone for four months with no judicial experience. "Let the electorate decide the issue," he said.

The vote for Graves was 4-3, the same as the vote for Frank.

Prost, who served on the committee and issued the minority recommendation, nominated Thomas McGovern, then withdrew the nomination and moved to accept Gaskin's recommendation to have the state appoint a judge. The vote was 4-3 again, with Gaskin, Evola and Prost on the losing end.

Frank, who had been nominated, charged that some council members were governed by "petty political nonsense." She urged the council to reconsider appointing Graves.

Further action was stopped by Heenan who moved on to the next agenda item.

No one is predicting how long it will take to get a license. "One room should be easier to license than nine latchkey rooms," said Alfrieda Frost, director of elementary curriculum, who sat on the committee. "But I'm pragmatic enough not to predict."

What is known about the program is that it will cater to children 2 1/2 to 5 years and that the tuition (which has not been set) will be high enough to cover expenses. The board set aside $5,000 as start-up money, but does not expect to allocate any further funds.

The program will operate during the school year. A decision whether to operate during school vacations will be based upon the needs of participants. It will be a full-day program, operating from 7 a.m. to 6 p.m.

The program will be play-based and will include developmental activities. Parents will provide lunches; the school may provide snacks.

"I think it's going to be very popular," Hanpeter said. "With the school system standing behind it, people will know it's a quality program."

Marr stressed the importance of obtaining a license before start-up, especially "on the heels of a latchkey program that wasn't handled well. You don't start a program without licensing," she said. "You have to make a commitment to working parents. You can't say 'we're still working it out - bear with us.'"

Nevertheless, she said she was disappointed that the program is not likely to start in the fall. "The committee (which prepared its report in March) felt there was no reason not to be ready by September," she said.

Much will hinge on the ability of the schools to find a qualified director. The cutoff for applications is today, but Eddington said he would accept telephone calls. The position pays $11 an hour for a 10-month work year and requires at least 60 semester hours of college, including 12 hours of childhood study.

sional consultants. "That was the entire intent behind it, not to circumvent the charter. We did obtain proposals from three firms and I hesitate to tell you the figures, because the quality differed.

"This is the first time we have done (anything like) this," he said. "Normally everything is done piecemeal."

Crawford said he did not give Heenan or Ausherman information because the matter had been referred to the city attorney for investigation and he did not feel that information should be given out in "bits and pieces."

"I should not have been tried, convicted and executed as I was at the last meeting," Crawford said. "I apologize to the city council for making this problem, but we had the best interest of the city at heart."

Heenan then proposed to postpone the matter, a suggestion that raised objections from the audience. Ausherman's motion to stop payment to the Mc-Govern and Urso firm was defeated 5-2, with him and Heenan voting for it.

Nearly two hours after the discussion on the matter began, a motion to accept the city attorney's report passed narrowly, with council members Mark Valente, John Prost, Evola and Gaskin voting for it, and James Robson, Heenan and Ausherman voting against it. Crawford was quoted in the Detroit Free Press as saying that he "fell in the middle of some politics," referring to the fact that the husband of one of the members of the interior decorating firm is a candidate for Park municipal judge.

Crawford on cable

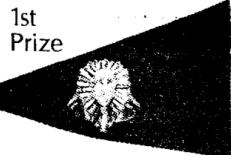

Park City Manager John Crawford will appear on Grosse Pointe Cable Monday, Wednesday and Friday, July 20, 22 and 24, at 7 p.m. on "Pointers with Prost."

He will discuss the renovation of Mack and Kercheval as well as the city's plans to provide new lighting on Wayburn and the upgrading of Jefferson Avenue.

Dual roles

Park public safety officer knows law's many facets

By Peter A. Sallnas
Staff Writer

When Sgt. Randall Cain slaps the cuffs on a suspect, he could probably recommend a good lawyer — himself.

At 37, Cain, a Grosse Pointe Park public safety sergeant, is one of the few police officers in the state who is a practicing attorney. Since he is a peace officer, Cain says he practices only civil law, because there may be an appearance of impropriety otherwise.

A Grosse Pointe Park native, Cain is known and generally well-liked among residents who know the tall, soft-spoken, mustachioed man. He has been with the Park department for 11 years. Cain said he was lucky enough to join the department just five years before several sergeant positions opened up. He has been a sergeant since 1981.

He graduated from Grosse Pointe High School in 1968, then from Michigan State University in 1972. He left the land of green and white with a tri-major in political science, social science and Russian studies in 1972.

He was always intrigued with police work, and while at MSU, he had a civilian undercover job with the Michigan State Police.

For three years after college graduation, Cain worked as a manufacturer's representative with his father, Albert. He sold furniture and covered the out-state furniture stores. During that time he had gotten involved with working for the Meridian Township Police Department near Lansing.

"One of the most difficult days of my life was the day I had to tell my dad that I was not going to work with him anymore, and that I was going to become a cop," he said, looking off in a distance reflectively.

The period he attended MSU was a period of great unrest among college students all over the country who were as opposed to authority as much as they were to the American involvement in the war in Vietnam.

Cain said he took part in the demonstrations on campus, and even became a member of the Students for a Democratic Society, a radical left-wing organization, but as an observer, not a participant.

"In 1969 I became involved with the Michigan State Police and they had me join SDS as a civilian working undercover," Cain said. "I had started working with the state police by lecturing adult and youth groups about drugs."

Cain said it would have been easy to get caught up in the radical movements of the era, but he said he didn't have an interest even though he didn't want to go to Vietnam.

"I just never considered myself a radical," he said. "With all the attempts to close the university...I was there to learn. Everyone was affected by what happened at Kent State."

When things began to worsen on college campuses, the state police sent Cain to infiltrate subversive organizations. He traveled to national level protests.

"I remember once when the state police had assigned me to attend the organizational meeting of a new radical group. Fliers had been placed all over campus, but only six people showed up at the meeting. When I reported what happened to the state police, my supervisor started laughing. He said the FBI, the East Lansing Police Department, MSU and the county sheriff's department each had someone there as well as the state police. There were five representatives from police agencies, and the organizer. We were all watching each other."

Cain had his police training at the Oakland Police Academy at Royal Oak, when he became a part-time officer for Meridian Township in 1975. He graduated second in his class.

Because it was a part-time position, he kept an eye open for a full-time job, and landed it with the Park's department.

Cain now lives in Northville on a small farm with his wife, Nancy (Noecker), a former Grosse Pointe, who is a flight attendant.

Cain's interest in becoming a lawyer was first aroused in 1978 when he attended Macomb Community College for an associate's degree in law enforcement.

"I had a course in criminal law and procedure," he said. "I had a professor who said I was wasting my time, and I should be going to law school. I said, 'Sure, I'll get right with that.'"

His interest in the field continued to grow, and after discussing the idea with former Park Municipal Judge John Urso, he applied to several law schools. He was later accepted to both the U of D law school and Detroit College of Law. He chose U of D in 1979.

Going to school at night, and taking a year off, he graduated with his law degree in 1984.

"When I started school in 1979, I wasn't sure I would accomplish it," he said, "but I was going to give it a try."

With all the courses and exams, and having to juggle his schedule while continuing to work as a Park officer, Cain said none of that was nearly as difficult as preparing for and taking his Michigan bar exams.

"I had to go to Lansing to take the two-day exams," he said. "When I came home, Nancy said I looked like I had died. When the envelope finally came, I held it up to the light. I saw the word 'passed' and I was sure it said 'not passed.' The only one home at the time was the family doberman, and after I cut myself with the letter opener getting the envelope open and learning I had passed, I started laughing, crying and dancing around the kitchen with the dog."

Working two sides of the law does have its disadvantages. He said he never considered working as a criminal lawyer while being a police officer, because there just might be a conflict of interest somewhere along the way. He said once when working for the Urban Law Clinic, which uses law students to defend poor people, he was instructed by his professor to take a criminal case. Cain told the instructor that he didn't think it was a good idea, and when asked why, told him he had arrested the defendant in the first place.

"He agreed it was a good point."

Cain said that while there is no law or ethical standard which prevents a police officer from practicing criminal law, he wants to at all costs avoid any possible impropriety.

"You're supposed to be impartial as an officer, and as an attorney you're supposed to zealously represent the client. It would be difficult to do both. I don't think I could ever represent someone who I knew was guilty."

Cain's Park duties require a lot of time. He is the city's crime prevention officer, and as sergeant, there are administrative responsibilities. He said that being a lawyer doesn't require a lot of court time, which would be during the day, and he meets with his clients after work, at home or talks with them on the phone.

Cain said he learned long ago that you can't take your work home with you, especially if you're a cop.

"People lose property, have a death in the family, or have an accident," he said. "Sure you are affected by that, but you can't hold on to it and feel as though it is your problem. It is not humanly possible to completely ignore what has happened to others and have no feelings about their problems, but you can't let it overpower you."

Around the department, he said, officers take to dark humor to alleviate some of the tension of the job.

"Someone may make a crazy joke. It helps. There's plenty of work to involve yourself with. The best thing to do is to talk to someone, a friend or even a professional."

Cain has seen his department change. This past year the Park

Cain said in his spare time, he built a computer which he uses to keep track of his legal cases and in getting out correspondence. He said he built the computer from scratch.

"I process legal documents and briefs," he said. "Building the computer was easy — anyone could do it."

Cain's police career hasn't been filled with a lot of action. He said he has had to pull his gun out, but has never shot anyone.

"I remember this one chase," he recalled. "I was riding with Jerry Kowiakowski, and we went to pull this car over and it took off. We started chasing the car south on Ashland, and all of a sudden Jerry yelled, 'The Ashland bump!' Well, I had forgotten totally about it, and we went airborne. I remember the radio fell out of the rack."

Cain said one of the functions as crime prevention officer that he feels best about is the work he's done with schoolchildren. He implemented a program several years ago, where Park Municipal Judge Beverly Grobbel swore in the elementary school safety patrol students, in an assembly before the whole school.

"It told these kids, that yes, they are important people. I may have heard about the idea from another department, but I was the first one to implement it here."

Getting old? Cain said he doesn't worry too much about that, but some of the kids he saw in school years ago, now come up to him as adults and say, "I remember you when I was in grade school..."

"That's scary."

Cain said he is constantly learning more about police work, and still has much to learn about the legal profession.

"There is a parallel between police work and the legal profession," he said. "In both professions you are helping people out, and have to do your best to correct the problems people have. Both jobs can be frustrating, too. Sometimes you don't prevail in the courtroom, and sometimes you can't get someone's property back."

Cain said he learned long ago that you can't take your work home with you, especially if you're a cop.

"People lose property, have a death in the family, or have an accident," he said. "Sure you are affected by that, but you can't hold on to it and feel as though it is your problem. has gone from a police to a combined police and fire department, and Cain said that has made for some big changes in his job.

"I am cross-trained and now qualified to fight fires," he said. "I am not an EMT (emergency medical technician) and I don't think I'll train for that. I don't like the sight of blood."

He said he was a volunteer firefighter when he lived in Meridian Township, so fighting fires is not totally foreign to him.

Now that the consolidation of the police and fire departments in the Park is complete, Cain said he believes there is more camaraderie in the department. Firefighters fought a long battle to stop the consolidation, but lost after an election.

"Everyone is getting along now," he said. "I think public safety was the only way the city could go."

He said he is not being prejudiced when he says the Park is a fantastic place to live.

"People have been writing the Park's epitaph for years," Cain said. "But each year it gets better and better. We have both the Kercheval and Jefferson developments, and new businesses coming in. There is a continual flow of fresh blood, which will make the Park a very healthy community."

"I still get pangs of homesickness. I do see it every day, but I don't live here. I miss burgers at Little Tony's and the perch platter at Pat O'Brien's at 9 and Jefferson."

Being an attorney does have its financial rewards, and Cain said income from his second pro-session helps a lot.

"I haven't found that one case that every attorney looks for that will put me on easy street, but I keep my fingers crossed."

"To start with I'd pay off my student loans. Then I'd probably go into a private law practice full time. That would give me more time to spend with my wife, our two horses, dog, cats and 25 chickens."

He really doesn't seem the type, but he talks a lot about work on his small farm.

"It seems all I talk about is getting home. I have a fence I'm putting up. I've got the posts in... One of the most pleasurable experiences I have is getting up at dawn, I watch the sun come up and breathe in the air. Thirteen thousand cups of coffee later, I am ready to go."

Banu Gibson and the New Orleans Hot Jazz Orchestra

New Orleans Jazz at War Memorial

Banu Gibson and The New Orleans Hot Jazz Orchestra will bring their show to the shores of Lake St. Clair Monday, July 20.

As the third attraction in the 30th Grosse Pointe Summer Music Festival, held on the grounds of the War Memorial, the group offers a versatile repertoire of material ranging from turn of the century rag-a-jazz to Bessie Smith, Betty Boop to razzamatazz, Jelly Roll Morton to Fats

Waller. The band is as much fun to watch as it is to listen. Led by the personable vocalist Gibson, who is also an accomplished banjo player, the group's enthusiasm is contagious.

Nominated for two Grammy awards in 1986, the group is based in New Orleans where it has hosted a national PBS series, "Dixieland Jazz from New Orleans", and appeared in movies. War Memorial grounds open at 6:30 p.m., concert at 8 p.m. Bring a picnic to enjoy prior to the show or order suppers, $6.75 each (reserved by Friday, 5 p.m.). Tickets are $10, reserved; $6.50, lawn admission and children under 12 half-price. Lawn ticket holders should bring a lawn chair or blanket. Rain date is Tuesday, July 21.

For further information, call the War Memorial at 881-7511.

Historical Society's proposal for preservation will be made to Farms council Monday

By Margie Reins Smith
Staff Writer

The Grosse Pointe Historical Society will present a proposal for a historic preservation ordinance to the Farms city council Monday, July 20.

Tish Colett, chairwoman of the society's historic preservation committee, said that the group is also asking its members and other interested citizens to call or write Farms council members with their opinions concerning preservation legislation.

"The mayor's advisory planning commission asked us to submit a recommendation," she said. The society went to the planning commission in May in an unsuccessful attempt to prevent the demolition of the Ernest Kanzler house at 241 Lakeshore. The 77-year-old house, now owned by Edsel Ford II, was dismantled May 9 when parts of the structure were auctioned — tile floors, door knockers, wood paneling, chandeliers, plumbing fixtures, exterior brick, gutters and wrought iron gates, and more.

Colett said her committee has been working at top speed, contacting experts in other communities for advice on how to put together preservation legislation. "We've spoken to the National Trust for Historic Preservation, and the assistant director of their midwest office is coming to Grosse Pointe this week. We've visited Lansing. We've contacted many other communities, individuals and historic preservation societies for advice," she said.

Colett said that such legislation needs to be considered by all five Grosse Pointes in order to enhance property values, foster civic beauty and pride, educate the community about the past, and to maintain Grosse Pointe's unique character.

After presenting their plan in the Farms, she said the society will approach other Grosse Pointes with similar proposals.

The first step in the Farms legislative plan, according to Colett, would be a historic preservation study committee which would recommend sites of historic significance. The sites would be identified after a public hearing. A historic preservation commission, appointed by the mayor, would review all building permits for those sites. The goal would be to prevent demolition or significant exterior alteration of significant sites.

"We're talking about a small percentage of homes," said Colett. She said that the Farms has about 10 important houses on Lakeshore Road, as well as four or five off the shore line and some on Provencal Road.

The historical society has mailed about 250 letters to members who live in the Farms, asking them to call council members — to write a letter endorsing the proposed ordinance — or to attend the July 20 council meeting.

Colett cited other communities that have preservation ordinances: Birmingham, Franklin, Farmington Hills, Romeo, Ann Arbor, Grand Rapids, Flint, Detroit, Brighton, Bay City are just a few, she said.

THE SAAB 900. THE ONLY THING THAT'S MERELY AVERAGE ABOUT IT IS THE PRICE.

There's no reason at all why a healthy respect for a dollar should condemn you to owning a merely average car.

According to the National Automobile Dealers Association, the average retail selling price of a new car last year was about $11,500. For very little more than that, you can have a new Saab 900.

The modest price of a Saab 900 buys you a front-wheel drive European sports sedan that's protected by a 3-year, 36,000 mile limited factory warranty and fitted out with air conditioning, rack-and-pinion steering and station-wagon-like cargo capacity, along with a long list of other comfort and engineering features that often aren't available at all on other cars in this class.

Instead of settling for a depressingly "average" car, come in soon and see how much more you can get for your money.

Fulton named sports editor

Grosse Pointe News Publisher R.G. Edgar has named Rob Fulton as sports editor. Fulton replaces Peggy O'Connor Andrzejczyk who moved to the position of feature editor, filling a vacancy created when Elsa Frohman accepted a job with another newspaper.

Fulton, 23, was sports editor at the Marshall Chronicle for 1-1/2 years. While he was with the Chronicle, he shared editorial duties for Southwest Michigan Farm News, a monthly agricultural publication.

Fulton earned a bachelor of arts degree in journalism in May 1985 at Central Michigan University. During that time, he freelanced as a sports reporter/photographer for C & G Publishing and he wrote local, national and international sports and news for radio station WCHP. He also wrote sports news for Central Michigan's student newspaper.

Fulton, who says he is a sports fanatic, enjoys umpiring, college basketball and going to Detroit Tiger games. Mostly he enjoys being with his fiancée, Sandy Gierada, who, he said, "is learning to like baseball." They plan to be married in June 1988.

Best of series on local cable TV

The series, "Pulling Together," will be shown again on Grosse Pointe Cable Channel 32 seven days a week at 11 a.m. and 1 a.m. It will also be shown at 7 p.m. on Tuesdays, Thursdays and Saturdays.

The show is aimed at providing alternatives to addictions of all types, but primarily deals with alcohol and chemicals. Producer and host is psychotherapist David Lankford.

Now that the Farms seems to be nearing the end of its negotiations with its police officers and firefighters for a consolidated department of public safety, it appears that all five of the municipalities in the Pointes in the foreseeable future will be served by combined departments.

It is appropriate that the Pointes should eventually arrive at this position. It was Grosse Pointe Shores that started the idea back in 1912 when it adopted what is believed to have been the first combined police and fire department in the nation. Over the years the other Pointes became sold on the idea, with the Park finally opting for the plan and voting down a challenge to the combined department in an election in June 1986.

The Park's plan, the most recent adopted and now in effect for a year, apparently has been well accepted in that municipality. In interviewing candidates for the city council in the Aug. 4 primary and in covering the campaign to date, we have heard little criticism and much praise for the Park's combined department.

It may be too early to make a final judgment, but certainly the evidence to date supports the view that the combined department makes it possible for the Park to put more police on the street and thus lessen to some extent the public's apprehension about crime. At the same time, the cross-training that is being provided increases the efficiency of the department's firefighting capabilities. Both of these aims are being achieved in line with the pledge that the combined department would offer increased services at less cost, or, at least, at no increased cost.

In the Park, another factor has become apparent. The caliber of the people in charge helps win public support. The former chief of police, Richard Caretti, who now heads the combined department, has been a major factor in reorganizing the staff in such a way as to win public confidence and retain good morale in the department.

It is also true that the council and Mayor Palmer Heenan, who do not always agree on every issue, did eventually endorse by unanimous vote the recommendation of a special City Commission on Public Safety. So the new unit obviously has strong official endorsement as well as the public support expressed in the 1986 referendum.

Yet it is also true that not everyone in the Park is completely satisfied with a unified department. Some firefighters are still unhappy and will continue in their current capacities until they retire. A few criticisms have been heard about the emergency medical service. But few actions by public bodies escape all criticism from citizens and others who fear their own interests will be hurt by change.

Under the public safety departments in the Pointes, there already is a good basis for cooperation and coordination of both police and firefighting capabilities. In the future, when the Farms finally achieves its public safety department goal, the cooperation and coordination ought to continue to improve. Eventually, the Pointes might even organize a single department of public safety to serve all five municipalities.

Implementing such an idea may be some distance down the road, but it has been talked about in some departments and among some officials. Since the Pointes pioneered in the joint public safety department idea, it would be fitting if they could at some future time further improve the service and protection provided by consolidating all of the police and firefighters in this community into a single unit, assuming such an idea could be determined to be feasible.

Creation of a single public service department might come about as part of a consolidation of the five municipalities into a single government or as a move to combine only the the public safety departments. Until the Farms achieves the merger of its police and firefighting units, it is probably premature for the officials involved to consider a wider consolidation. However, it is not premature for the people of the Pointes to begin thinking about the idea.

Oliver North: heroic fall guy

Lt. Col. Oliver North portrayed many roles in his testimony before the congressional committees investigating the Iran-contra affair. Intended or not, he came through to many in the television audience as a heroic character who not only defended the Reagan administration's secret support for the contras in Nicaragua, but accepted his role as a fall guy willing to take the political consequences if and when the administration's efforts became public.

For some viewers, however, his testimony that he had only been following the orders of his superiors to provide and later cover up secret aid for the contras echoed the testimony of German industrialists at the Nuremberg war trials 40 years ago that they had only been "good Germans" who "followed the orders" of their government in producing war material for the Nazi war machine.

There are vast differences between North's appearance before the congressional committees and the German industrialists on trial in Nuremberg, of course. The latter were on trial for their lives before an international tribunal that sought to punish those responsible for Nazi war crimes and crimes against humanity.

Yet in both cases the defense was somewhat the same. North said he only followed orders. The German industrialists said they could do nothing except to follow orders.

This is not being said to equate North's conduct with that of the Nazis or the German industrialists, but the rough parallel is cited to show that even loyal soldiers have to accept responsibility for their conduct when it involves possible violations of law, even if they are following orders.

However, the larger responsibility in North's case still rests on his superiors who gave him the orders that led to actions that Congress and others now believe violated the law. This is a country of laws, not of men. In contrast, in Nazi Germany, Hitler even took control of the courts in his efforts to stamp out any resistance. One man decided what was the law.

Despite North's impressive appearances before the congressional committees, it is too early to predict what will happen to him. But his testimony has made it clear that while he was willing as a loyal soldier and American to accept the political responsibility for his actions, he was not willing to become the fall guy for criminal prosecution because he said he only followed the orders of his superiors.

Yet he admitted having lied to Congress and others to protect the secret operation to aid the contras. He acknowledged having shredded hundreds, perhaps thousands, of documents. He conceded he had misled many people through his personal statements and memos. But it is not yet clear just how much of such deception was authorized and if it was, who approved it. As this is written, we still don't know how high the blame will go or what if any criminal prosecutions will result from the current investigations. Perhaps, however, there may emerge in high places in government a new respect for obeying the law, even when it may be distasteful to the officials involved. In the end, that is the ultimate test of whether ours really is a government of laws, not men.

Not a wonder of the world

Discovery of relics of antiquity attracts the interest of many people who live in the modern world. Such relics often tell us more about the past than we had known earlier. And what we learn from the past often influences our actions in the present and the future.

Our general interest in the past helps explain why many people were disappointed in the ending of one of the more unusual stories of recent weeks. We refer to the report from archeologists in Athens that a lump of rock fished out of the Aegean sea was not a giant fist from the famed Colossus of Rhodes as it had been reported to be.

Instead of a find from antiquity, the fist, the experts said, had been created by a mechanical digger whose jaws had scoured out the knuckle-like shape before dumping it into the sea a couple of years ago.

Until the archeologists spoiled the story, some people thought that divers had found a fragment from the 98-foot statue of the god Apollo that straddled the harbor at Rhodes from 280 B.C. until it was destroyed by an earthquake in 225 B.C.

Even the first report of the find had raised some questions about its authenticity. The statue was said to be of bronze while the fist is of limestone. But that discrepancy hadn't stopped the Greek government's merchant marine minister, Stathis

Alexandris, from exulting that if experts confirmed the find, "Greece will be in a position to offer humanity one of the seven wonders of the ancient world."

However, after the archeologists completed their examination, the minister of culture, Melina Mercouri, quickly ended such speculation by pointing out that the fragment was not from the Colossus but a stone object, apparently accidentally fashioned into the rough form of a fist by a piece of modern mechanical equipment.

As we now know, it was not a find from antiquity, although we still do not know whether the deception was planned or accidental. What we do know is that the story about the recovery of the fist from the Colossus became just another one-day sensation that proved to be false when the experts had a chance to examine the lump of rock.

So, unfortunately, in this instance truth was not stranger than fiction and the reported discovery had nothing to contribute to our knowledge of the past. But we hope that the search will continue for the remnants of the Colossus of Rhodes destroyed more than 22 centuries ago. If such relics are found, they would have their own story to tell to people anxious to learn more about the generations who preceded them.

To the Editor:

My hat is off to the Optimists Club for the wheelchair roundup on Saturday. It was a beautiful expression of service to the community.

My husband is a nursing home patient. The wheelchair that we use for his recreational outings was much in need of service. The group did such a great job of repairing and cleaning. It is much easier to handle now.

Thanks, Optimists.

Sympathize

To the Editor:

And to Dick Schroeder (in last week's issue):

I sympathize with your frustration at the way someone who has worked hard in the system has been treated, but this is only the tip of the iceberg.

Have you ever wondered why principals and administrators go off to out-of-state schools to recruit teachers when there are teachers and substitute teachers who have been waiting for years for the privilege of working in this system? They are continuously passed over, especially the substitute teachers who deserve the first open jobs available but are kept waiting until they give up and go elsewhere. A fine thank-you for a thankless task.

There are also teachers who only teach a few classes a day, the rest of the time, they are in the labs, which is basically another free hour. Or a department head who schedules himself labs all day long. All these are easily checked and in fact are approved of. But no one seems to demand any accountability, so why should things change?

I sympathize and agree with Mr. Schroeder's assessment of Mr. Hepner's treatment, because I also know him, but I'm also thinking, fair or not to Mr. Hepner, that perhaps this was a way for Grosse Pointe to try to correct some imbalances that have possibly occurred in the past.

I have interviewed twice and, both times had a great interview with a female administrator or department head, only to end up with two males doing a pathetic attempt at trying to give me a fair interview when it was obvious that I was the wrong sex.

I'm sure there are some fair men doing good jobs at hiring, but I had the misfortune to not get them so I am also teaching elsewhere now, but I have plenty of inside knowledge on how this school system operates as I also have several friends that still teach and a few die-hards that still "sub" because they really believe that sooner or later they'll get hired.

I could go on with dozens of examples, but all of that is not to the point, which is that this is only one example of the many injustices that have occurred and will continue until the parents unite for teacher and administrator responsibility. It won't happen and that is why these abuses will continue. It takes effort to effect a change and parents won't do it but at these school taxes, I sure don't know why. Money, but no time for children? To find out what is going on is easy enough but it does take a little effort.

Mr. Schroeder, you only found out what you did because of a friendship, can you imagine what you'd uncover if you looked? Thank you at least for making that phone call but I'll bet no one else did because they don't care. Everyone hoped things would change with Dr. Whritner but nothing has of yet and doesn't look like it will. Let's just hope we can hang on to a principal like Mr. Shine, but I doubt it, because I think he'll leave to get away from the hassle. That's the biggest teacher fear at Grosse Pointe South.

It's only a number, right?

My husband Mike has a cute little phrase he uses to describe things which are what he calls "underwhelming." When one of these situations comes up, Mike just says "Oh, boy" and we all get the idea of just how little these things excite him. For example, last week I'd forgotten to tell him about a party we'd been invited to until the morning of the event. I earned myself a great, big "Oh, boy" for that one. I've been using Mike's catchphrase a lot lately, mostly in connection with my birthday. See, I turned 30 last month. And while it wasn't a date which will live in infamy, it was certainly enough to elicit a whimpered "Oh, boy" from me.

Several older cousins reached that magical age. Some handled it quite well; others, well, "going off the deep end" aptly describes their reaction to having completed three decades on earth.

So I had a variety of role models from which to select a reaction appropriate to my feelings upon reaching 30. And I settled on hesitancy bordering on reluctant acceptance.

1987 dawned with my brother-in-law, six months my junior, taking extraordinary delight in reminding me that I would turn 30 this year. And this was at about six seconds after midnight. He left me alone for a while, then as he prepared to give me away at my April wedding (hey, I never hold a grudge), my dear brother-in-law whispered to me "Just think, Peggy, you're getting married and turning 30 all in the same year!"

As B-Day (June 22) drew closer, I began to make comments about my advancing age. I used it as an excuse for sleeping later on Sunday mornings, missing backhand shots on the tennis court and for forgetting where I put my car keys. Unfortunately, nobody bought it since I'd been doing similar things for years before I was scheduled to turn 30.

About a week before my birthday, I was at a party with friends when the question came up: "Would you be satisfied with only 20 more years of life if it meant that they would be incredibly happy, peaceful, successful years?" I pondered the question for a while, then one of my oldest friends (fully aware that the median age of mortality among a great number of my ancestors is 45) piped up with "Hey, take it, Peggy. Since you're pushing 30, you've only got 15 years now!"

I spent the last few days of my 20's worrying, fretting and bemoaning my advancing age. After all, I reasoned, wouldn't I now fit into that age group which is not to be trusted? Isn't 30 the beginning of a downward slide to middle age? And worst of all, doesn't 30 mean I have entered into a whole new section on those demographic surveys for everything from toothpaste to TV programs... meaning I would no longer be with the 18 to 29s, but with the 30 to (yuck) 45s?

At this point, I dropped the grudging acceptance routine and headed straight for the deep end. The only thing that rescued me was my family treating me to an exquisite birthday weekend. I was wine, dined, feted and cheered. I got scads of funny birthday cards, a delicious cake and three — count 'em, three — evenings out. Even my brother-in-law had to ease up on me, since my birthday meant that he was edging ever closer to the big Three-Oh himself.

Mike was my strength during the entire time. He had arranged the whole wonderful weekend and was kind and patient enough to listen to my ravings about reaching 30, nodding sympathetically all the while. (Which was easy for him to do since he won't turn 30 until 1988.)

To help me feel better, Mike kept telling me about all the things I could do now that I was 30. Like being able to tell people

I can remember an incident from 20 years ago and really appear to know what I was talking about. And not having to worry about acne or braces. And being in what many people consider to be a well-respected, yet up-and-coming group of movers and shakers.

In fact, my dear husband spent most of my birthday (which, of course, fell on a Monday) building my ego and assuring me that reaching 30 only meant that I was getting better, not older.

By the end of the day my self-esteem was again on solid footing and I felt, well, almost not bad about reaching 30. Just as I was about to drift off into the satisfied sleep of those who have seen three decades come and go, Mike remembered one more thing about the number 30.

My journalist husband rolled over and whispered into my ear: "Hey, isn't '30' what we used to write at the end of a story when we wanted to signify that it was 'finished'?"

Oh, boy.

Yesterday's Headlines

Aug. 1, 1974 —

The New York Times reported that the House of Representatives approved a major education bill that contained a compromise provision aimed at limiting the busing of children to achieve school segregation. It was apparent that the U.S. Supreme Court decision banning the busing of children across school district lines in Detroit had made it easier for the House to accept the compromise.

The British government announced plans for the nationalization of the shipbuilding, ship repairing and marine engineering industries, and the stock market immediately sank to a 15-year low.

Congressional leaders met in closed sessions to plan the next moves in both houses that eventually could remove President Nixon from office. The purpose of the meetings was to examine the alternatives for the next official step of the impeachment process; placing debate on the impeachment articles under a rule, the formal procedure under which the matter would be argued.

Turkish forces violated a cease-fire by shelling the Greek central northern coastal village of Lapithos from a warship and then advancing on it with ground troops.

Legislation making French the only official language of the Province of Quebec, where French is spoken by more than 80 percent of the population, became law after a long, bitter and divisive controversy.

The United States government advised East German representatives that because of continuing incidents hampering traffic on the access routes to West Berlin, it could not begin diplomatic relations with East Germany at that time.

Ron LeFlore, a 22-year-old minor league outfielder who learned to play baseball while serving a four-year prison sentence for armed robbery, was called up by the Detroit Tigers to replace the injured Mickey Stanley.

Lee A. Iacocca announced that the Ford Motor Co. earned $168 million for its 1974 second quarter, a decline of 57 percent from the previous year. Ford said the decline was caused by lower car sales and rising costs, despite price increases.

John D. Ehrlichman, formerly President Nixon's chief adviser on domestic affairs, was sentenced to 20 months to five years in prison for his role in what Judge Gerhard A. Gesell called a "shameful episode in the history of this country."

Cupcake diplomacy

Perhaps the Contras in Nicaragua won't have to worry about whether or not the U.S. Congress decides on further military aid.

Several local residents have entered into a private enterprise to raise money for the "freedom fighters."

Hope, 11, Maggie, 9, and little Clark, 7, Durant of the City made and sold cupcakes last weekend to raise money for the Contras.

Dad Clark Durant, a leader in the Grosse Pointe Republican Party, said Hope even got into a political debate with an obviously Democratic landscaper who was working next door.

"I was very proud of her,"

Durant said. "She was able to hold her own in the debate, and even sold him a cupcake. He paid her a dollar for it, and they were only charging a quarter."

The very young Republicans canvassed their entire Washington Road block, and netted $17 which they plan on sending to Lt. Col. Oliver North.

There goes the weekend

Officer Rick Good of the Farms Police Department had a scare last week.

While on patrol he spotted what looked like a body floating near the Crescent Sail Yacht Club. He could see hair bobbing in the water and thought his weekend was going to be tied up with the lengthy investigations that result when a body is found.

Good returned to the department to get a pair of binoculars, and though it was a sad sight, he was relieved to learn that what he saw in the water was a dog.

The animal was retrieved from its watery resting place and properly disposed of.

Good going!

Let's hear it for the Grosse Pointe Shores Public Safety Department and the staff of the Grosse Pointe Yacht Club.

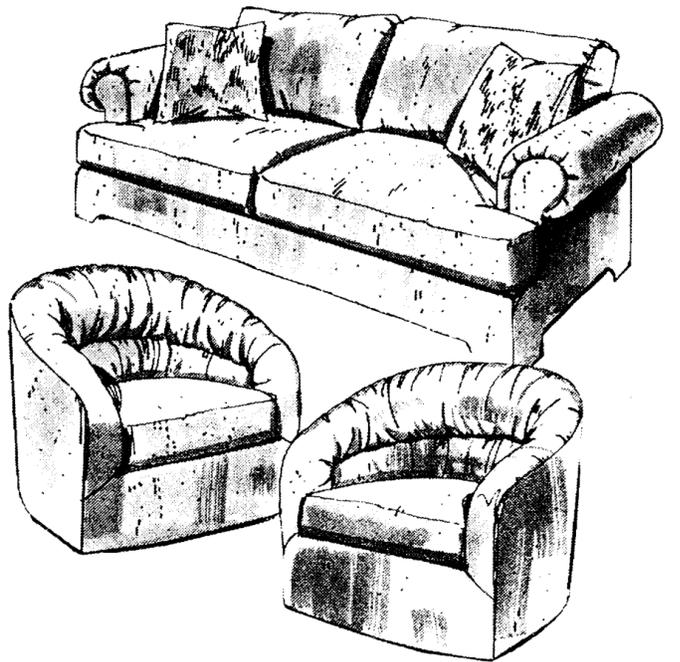

Last Sunday two transformers located in the basement of the historic and prestigious club failed, and very possibly a catastrophic situation was avoided.

Yacht Club and village public safety officials worked fast and took no chances with personal and material safety.

In the absence of Farms Municipal Judge Peter O'Rourke, school Business Manager Christian Fenton was pressed into service to issue the oath of office to new school board members. Newest trustee Jane Nutter was sworn in on a Bible held by her children, Mac and Jenna. Outgoing president Vincent LoCicero was also sworn in — for a second term. LoCicero held his own Bible. "My children are all out of town," he joked.

In Grosse Pointe, perfect weather and a record crowd made the 1974 Grosse Pointe Farms Boat Regatta at the Farms Pier Park the biggest success ever. Parks and Recreation Director Ed Lauer said 12,800 people attended the three days of events at the park, the biggest attendance recorded at the time.

Voters in the Woods were asked in the general primary election if the city of Grosse Pointe Woods should borrow about $1,980,000 for the purpose of acquiring and constructing improvements at the Lakefront Park. Improvements were to include a new swimming pool complex, tennis courts and additional parking if approved.

Every member of the Park Fire Department was awarded a certificate attesting he had completed 66 hours of in-service training which added to his skills in the firefighting trade. The Park department was the first in the Pointes and the first in Wayne County to complete the full 66 hours and win their certificates.

Grosse Pointe Park said the loss of elm trees on public property will reach 100 during the summer of 1974. Then-City Manager Robert Slone said every tree cut down would be replaced with another, either ash, maple or locust. At the time, about 6,000 elms remained on public property.

The City's only unpaved alley became the topic of debate at the council meeting when Fisher Road residents were angered by the lack of movement toward paving the drive adjacent to their properties, running parallel to Mack Avenue, between Fisher and Lincoln roads. City Manager Thomas Kressbach said he thought the residents should pay for 15 percent of the cost and businesses 85 percent as others did to pave an alley near them.

Irene Sutton, chairwoman of the Woods Senior Citizens Commission, was presented with a special tribute by the Michigan House of Representatives honoring her for her work in behalf of senior citizens.

Take a breather

Specialists at Henry Ford Hospital's Pulmonary Medicine Department will offer free lung function (breathing) tests to smokers aged 35-59 at the Fisher Building on Tuesday, July 21, and the New Center One Building on Thursday, July 23, from 11 a.m. to 4 p.m.

The test takes about 15 minutes and simply involves blowing into a machine called a spirometer. The screenings are open to the public and can help detect early signs of chronic lung disease, including emphysema and chronic bronchitis.

The Fisher Building and New Center one are located on West Grand Boulevard at Second, just east of the Lodge Freeway in Detroit.

Some of the participants in the lung function test may be asked to participate in a nationwide study aimed at improving treatment of chronic lung disease. For further information on the study, call 876-1900.

Parental closeness important as peer pressure mounts

The best predictor of whether kids will use drugs depends on their perception of closeness and trust to their parents, according to Stephen Glenn, Ph.D., family psychologist who lectured on "Developing Capable Young People" at St. John Hospital recently.

Glenn said many parents are concerned that their child will be influenced by peer pressure to engage in drugs and other destructive habits.

"Kids who are close to their parents tend to resist peer pressure," he said.

Glenn, who was honored by first lady Nancy Reagan, as one of the nation's most outstanding family life and prevention professionals, spoke to approximately 250 people, including clergy, family therapists, social workers and parents. He offered the following suggestions to parents and others who are responsible for guiding youths into functional adulthood.

Learn to promote dialogue with each other.

Openness combined with firmness is the key in guiding youths. According to Glenn, being strict is powerful but kids tend to get rebellious and resistant. On the other side, being lenient may make the child become manipulative and disrespectful.

When the child does something disturbing, instead of getting upset right away, ask the youth what his or her understanding of the situation is and encourage the child to explain why the act was done.

Try to attend support groups or sessions on parent/child relationships and development.

If both parents work fulltime, it's essential to spend some time every day to see how the child's day went and offer to help with homework or anything else that's on his or her mind.

He also added that developing youngsters to their full potential takes a lot of patience and time, but it's worth it in the long run.

"Relationships are like bank accounts, if you don't put deposits in when you need to, you'll end up with nothing when you want to have the cash," he said.

Sunglasses that filter ultraviolet rays can prevent certain eye problems

By Peter A. Salinas
Staff Writer

When choosing a pair of sunglasses, many people pick the pair they feel will make them look the coolest on the beach and in the heat. Comfort and style are, of course, important considerations when buying a pair of sunglasses, but protection from unseen ultraviolet radiation is important as well.

Lylas G. Mogk, M.D., an ophthalmologist with Grosse Pointe Ophthalmology, says that in the last 10 years, it has become generally accepted that ultraviolet rays contribute to cataract formation.

Cataracts are an opacity of the lens in the eye. Once they have become part of the lens and obscure proper vision, the only solution is to remove the lens by surgery.

Since ultraviolet rays are in part responsible for cataracts, it is wise to protect the eyes from the unseen rays, especially if there is a family history of cataracts, if cataracts have already become a problem or if a person spends a lot of time outdoors.

Mogk, a Park resident who is affiliated with Cottage, St. John and Bon Secours hospitals, said there are several purposes for wearing sunglasses. The primary reason is comfort. Sunglasses should cut down the visible brightness by blocking light reflected off flat surfaces such as water or a highway. They also provide visual comfort so the wearer does not have to squint while wearing them, and they should provide ultraviolet filtration.

"Unfortunately just about every pair of sunglasses sold have some sort of tag which says the glasses provide ultraviolet filtration," Mogk said. "There is, however, no governmental requirement to state the percent of protection."

To fully protect the eyes, the glasses should filter out 98 percent of the ultraviolet rays. Many of the sunglasses on the market may filter out only 40 or 50 percent.

Infrared radiation (heat) could also play a role in selecting sunglasses. A pair of glasses selected for the beach, for instance, should be of plastic frames. Metal frames would conduct the sun's rays, and could heat up enough in a summer sun to be uncomfortable.

Consumers are at a definite disadvantage when buying ultraviolet filtering sunglasses, because even an eye specialist can't tell if the glasses filter enough of the ultraviolet rays.

"The only way to know for sure is to check with the manufacturer before purchasing the glasses, or to buy them from a reputable optical shop," Mogk said.

There is a price to pay for protecting the eyes. Sunglasses with the full ultraviolet filtration usually range from $40 to $70. If you already own a pair of sunglasses you like with a plastic lens, a dye can be added at an optical shop that will provide the extra protection. The price for the treatment varies, but can be about $15.

Mogk said that yellow, amber and green lenses, as a rule, tend to be better at screening ultraviolet rays, but that is not always true. She added studies show that six out of nine pairs of sunglasses on the market provide up to 90 percent ultraviolet filtration, but that leaves one-third of the sunglasses on the market providing less than 50 percent filtration.

Some people like to wear sunglasses both day and night, because they feel the look is stylish or they like to wear them for the anonymity they provide. Mogk doesn't see this as being detrimental to the eyes, except if they are very, very dark.

If the glasses are very dark, they allow the pupil to open up wide the way they would in shaded or dark conditions. If the glasses do not provide full ultraviolet protection, then more of the rays make their way to the lens which could speed up the process that causes cataracts.

"It doesn't hurt to wear sunglasses at night," Mogk said, "unless, of course, they are too dark to see properly."

For those who wear glasses already, and can't afford an expensive pair of prescription sunglasses, there are clip-on sunglasses at optical shops that provide 99 percent ultraviolet filtration at around $10, Mogk said.

A good pair of sunglasses that are comfortable, stylish and provide ample filtration can be expensive, Mogk noted, but there is no value that can be placed on a lifetime of healthy sight.

Bicyclists led the way to good highways

Driving on any crowded highway or freeway today makes it hard to believe that bicycles once ruled the road in Michigan.

And it takes more imagination to believe that the bicycle — not the motor car — led Michigan out of the mud onto the paved roads of the 20th century.

For a brief period of time from 1880s to shortly after the turn of the century, anyone who could afford a "wheel" was king of the road.

The first bicycles, known as "wheels," were simply a big wheel with pedals coupled to a small wheel. Not for everyone, they were hard to mount and harder to ride. Most of the weight was directly over the big front wheel, causing the riders to be thrown over the handlebars on rough roads or going downhill.

The bicycle, invented by a game warden in Germany in 1816, soon spread to America and by 1868 enjoyed growing popularity, particularly among younger and more athletic groups.

The original bicycle, with two wheels of equal size, resembled modern bicycles more than the subsequent bicycles produced in 1860s and 1870s. In 1885, an Englishman named J. K. Starley invented the so called "safety bicycle" with two equal wheels that was easier and safer to ride. This set the stage for the bicycle craze that hit the United States during the "gay nineties."

Today, most bicycles look alike, but toward the end of the 19th century, every manufacturer, inventor and bicycle mechanic tried to outdo each other designing and producing a better bicycle.

There were bicycles with big wheels in front and in back, bicycles with two wheels in front and one in back, bicycles with four wheels, tandem bicycles, bicycles with seats between the wheels and bicycles with steam and gasoline motors.

The military developed bicycle divisions with folding bicycles, bicycles to carry machine guns and fast bicycles to carry messages. Telegraph companies, with miles of line to patrol, used bicycles fitted with maintenance gear. Circus performers used special bicycles for high-wire acts and trick riding and thieves and pickpockets used them for fast get-aways on crowded streets.

A new industry sprang up to provide bicycle accessories, including carbide lamps, clothing and medical treatment for bumps, bruises, broken limbs and sore muscles. Around 1888, women began to ride, ushering in new concepts in dress. Manufacturing techniques, including production lines, electric welding, improved metals and wider use and demand for road maps prepared the way for development of the automobile.

For the first time in the history of the human race, the bicycle offered mobility for recreation and work to those whose previous range of travel was bounded by trolley and railroad lines, the cost of maintaining a horse and buggy, or by aching feet.

But beyond the bone-jarring brick and cobblestone paving the city streets of the time, touring bicyclists faced mud, sand, loose gravel, angry farmers and, more often, no roads at all.

To improve roads, Michigan bicyclists organized into the League of American Wheelmen (LAW). Under direction of president Horatio S. Earle of Detroit, the militant LAW began a campaign to promote and organize road-building bees and prod local governments into improving existing roads. Before 1905, roadbuilding responsibilities were shared by townships, cities, counties and, sometimes, private organizations.

Earle lost no time campaigning for a law to establish a state highway department to coordinate a statewide system of highways.

In 1901, he and the LAW founded the Michigan Good Roads Federation and he became known as "Good Roads" Earle. After passage of LAW-supported legislation to establish the state highway department, he became the first state highway commissioner. His first act was to declare war on what he called "King Mud," the ruler of the unpaved roads of the era.

This intensive campaign early in the century convinced voters to support good roads in Michigan and led directly to Michigan's present all-weather, paved system of highways — well ahead of most other states.

What happened to the bicycle? During the 1890s, the first "horseless carriages" began to appear on Michigan roads. At first considered a toy, within a few years it replaced the bicycle as a means of transportation and recreation.

Present day estimates show three to four million bicycles in Michigan, or approximately half of the number of registered motor vehicles. But the only state highway still ruled by the bicycle — and shared with horses — is M-185 circling scenic Mackinac Island, where motor vehicles are banned.

Jeanette Hersey (Nettie) Duffield

A memorial service will be held at 9 a.m. Saturday, July 18, at Grosse Pointe Memorial Church for Jeanette Hersey (Nettie) Duffield, 58. Mrs. Duffield was best known by her Detroit Free Press byline, Nettie Duffield. She was a Grosse Pointe City councilwoman and Detroit Free Press food editor. She died July 9, 1987 at her Grosse Pointe home.

She was born in Illinois and graduated from the Westridge School for Girls in Pasadena, Calif., then from Bryn Mawr College in 1950 with a degree in English literature.

She had been with the Detroit Free Press since 1979, and also ran its test kitchen. She had been on the city council since 1974, the first woman to hold that position. She was also the city's legislative coordinator for 12 years, a member of the Neff Park renovation and improvement committee and the Shade Tree Council. In addition, she was active in Grosse Pointe Women in Government and was a founder and former vice president of Environmental Action Now, a Michigan ecology group.

"She was a super person. We will certainly miss her," said Grosse Pointe City Manager Tom Kressbach. Mayor Lorenzo Browning said, "We will miss Nettie. She has been a most effective and very worthy representative on the council."

According to a Free Press article, of the three regular features she wrote for their food section, the most popular was the Trade Off column, in which readers helped each other find recipes. "She enjoyed the give-and-take with Free Press readers," according to the article, "although her high standards caused her to good-humoredly disapprove when

Eleanor S. Walter Landry

Services were held for Eleanor S. Walter Landry, 84, of Grosse Pointe Woods on July 13, 1987 at Christ Lutheran Iroquois Avenue Church. Mrs. Landry died July 10 at Cottage Hospital in Grosse Pointe.

She was born in Michigan and was a member of Cottage Hospital Auxiliary and the Grosse Pointe Garden Club.

Survivors include a sister-in-law, Mildred Walter. Burial was at Gethsemane Cemetery.

Memorial contributions may be made to Christ Lutheran Iroquois Avenue Church.

Arrangements were handled by Matthews Funeral Home.

Cancer tests for women

During July, the Michigan Cancer Foundation will screen for cancer at the East Regional Center in Warren. A pap test is scheduled for Monday, July 20. A breast exam will be given Monday, July 27. Conducted by trained nurses, the pap test is $8 and the breast exam is $15.

Located at 15111 13 Mile Road at Hayes in Warren, the East Regional Service Center serves cancer patients, their families and members of the communities of eastern Wayne and Macomb counties.

For more information or to make an appointment, call the center at 294-4430.

William H. Melcher

A memorial service will be held for William H. Melcher, 81, July 18, 1987, at 1 p.m. at White Chapel Cemetery, 621 W. Long Lake Road in Troy. Mr. Melcher died June 6, 1987 in Sun City, Ariz.

He retired in 1977, after a 47-year banking career. He was a vice president of Manufacturers National Bank.

He was a member of the Grosse Pointe Senior Men's Club, the Detroit Yacht Club, and the Palmbrook Golf Club in Sun City.

He is survived by his wife, Florence; and nine nieces and nephews.

Burial will be at White Chapel Cemetery in Troy.

Lauretta Ruth O'Neill Boell

Services for Lauretta Ruth O'Neill Boell, 91, of Grosse Pointe Park were held Monday, July 13, at St. Mary's Catholic Church in Detroit. Mrs. Boell died July 9, 1987 at Cottage Hospital in Grosse Pointe.

She was born in Detroit and was a homemaker. She was a former member of the St. Joseph Mercy Hospital Auxiliary.

Survivors include two daughters, Mary Ruth Calvert and Barbara Anne; a son, Joseph; six grandchildren; and two great-grandchildren. She was predeceased by her husband, Arthur F. Boell, M.D.

Interment was at Mount Olivet Cemetery in the family lot.

Arrangements were handled by the Eppens-Van Deweghe Funeral Home.

James (Junior) King

Services for James (Junior) King, 73, were held Wednesday, July 8, 1987, at the Chas. Verheyden Funeral Home. Mr. King died July 6 at Bon Secours Hospital.

He was born in Grosse Pointe Park and was a mechanic for the city of Grosse Pointe Park.

He was a member of Bruce Post -1146 and the Grosse Pointe Metropolitan Club.

Survivors include a sister, Sarah Darbe; three brothers, Harvey and Godfrey Rivard and Benjamin Darbe; three nieces; and four nephews.

Burial was at Forest Lawn Cemetery.

Arrangements were handled by the Chas. Verheyden Funeral Home.

Lester W. Vetter

Services were held at the Verheyden Funeral Home Wednesday, July 15, 1987, for Lester W. Vetter, 42, of Grosse Pointe Park. Mr. Vetter died July 10 at Annapolis Hospital in Wayne, Mich.

He was born in St. Louis, Mo.

He graduated in 1969 from the University of Michigan with an engineering degree and in 1983 from Michigan State University with a masters in business administration, summa cum laude.

He was vice president of engineering for Awrey Bakeries, Inc. for 10 years. He previously worked as director of engineering for Fred Sanders Confectioners. He designed innovative production assembly systems used in baking manufacturing.

He was a member of the American Mensa Society and Beta Gamma Sigma, an honorary business fraternity.

Survivors include his wife, Sydney; his mother, Alma G. Vetter; and a brother, Howard.

Cemetery.

Memorial contributions may be made to the Anti-Cruelty Association, 13659 Joseph Campau, Detroit 48212, or to the Cranbrook Institute of Science, 500 Lone Pine Road, Bloomfield Hills.

Arrangements were handled by the Chas. Verheyden Funeral Home.

An unknown number of lethal cluster bomblets — some of the 2 million tons of bombs that U.S. warplanes dropped on Laos during the Vietnam War — still remain in the soil of Laos, ready to kill or maim, says National Geographic.

Club averts near disaster; transformer failure causes blackout

By Peter A. Salinas
Staff Writer

High temperatures, coupled with a huge demand for power at the Grosse Pointe Yacht Club, caused a near disaster as two 4,800-volt transformers began to fail and overheat Sunday, causing a disruption of all electrical services for both the building and boat wells.

Fred Schriever, rear commodore and resident harbor engineer for the yacht club, said there was a complete failure of two approximately 40-year-old transformers located in a small crypt-like room in the basement of the club.

"They were overheated due to overloading by the intense demand for electricity at the yacht club Sunday," Schriever said. "An employee smelled smoke, informed management and we immediately shut down part of a portion of the club."

Grosse Pointe Shores public safety officials were called in immediately. An earlier attempt was made to open the door to the transformer room, but the door was too hot to open. Public safety officers got the door open, and were greeted by the two seething hot, bubbling transformers.

One of the officers knowledgeable in the electrical field realized that the situation was indeed serious and potentially catastrophic. The rest of the yacht club's facilities, including the lift bridge, which allows vessels into the north harbor, were turned off.

According to Public Safety Director Daniel Healy, the department took all necessary measures to protect the property by deploying its fire equipment in the event of an explosion.

"We had the power shut down to the entire club, and called Detroit Edison to assist," Healy said. "We also called in the Woods to bring in foam in the event there was leakage of the hazardous chemicals contained inside the transformers."

Transformers, which change 440-volt electricity to 220 and 110 voltages, contain oil, and older ones usually contain polychlorinated biphenyls (PCBs), a known carcinogenic toxin.

Healy said that ventilation fans were brought down to the room, but even though the electricity was shut off, the fans were left on all night.

"We're very fortunate," Healy said. "If those transformers were to have exploded, they would have gone off like a grenade."

Schriever said that food for a 200-person party for the Shores Improvement Foundation, which was held outdoors, had already been cooked. That party was not disrupted as a result of the emergency. Guests who had anticipated dining at the yacht club, however, had to be turned away.

Schriever, who was attending the function, said yacht club Commodore Robert Yuhn and Vice Commodore Ted Smith worked together to handle the situation well into Monday morning.

A back-up generator from Detroit Edison provided about 90 percent of the club's electrical requirements by 2 a.m. Freezers and refrigerators kept food from perishing until the temporary power was on-line.

"We took no chances whatsoever," Schriever said. "We called the U.S. Coast Guard and explained that our navigational lights would be out, and they transmitted a security broadcast explaining the situation to boaters."

Schriever said that by Monday afternoon, one of three new transformers had been installed and the two others would be on-line by Monday night.

"These three new transformers will give us exactly twice the power we had," Schriever said. "The cost is unknown at this time, but we were not able to get bids. It was a time and material job."

Schriever commended the yacht club staff, particularly harbor master John Pullen and his staff, for the fine job they did controlling the overflow in the south harbor as boats returned from the lake in the evening. He also praised Shores public safety officials.

"They did a superb job," he said. "They were on the scene immediately and provided all the equipment necessary in the emergency situation."

Channel changes

Effective July 1, Grosse Pointe Cable made the following changes in its channel lineup:

- MTV is moved from Channel 30 to Channel 8;
- ESPN is moved from Channel 26 to Channel 10;
- USA Network is moved from Channel 25 to Channel 11;
- VH-1 (new service) is on Channel 13
- Electronic Program Guide moved from Channel 10 to Channel 21;
- C-Span is moved from Channel 32 to Channel 25;
- Home Shopping Network (now 24 hours) moved from Channel 34 to 26; local origination moved from Channel 11 to Channel 32.

These changes were made to facilitate viewing of the most significantly watched services.

Paint a landscape

Join watercolorist and sculptor, Carol Lachiusa Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday, July 28 through 30 from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. for an intense workshop in landscape painting.

Sponsored by the War Memorial, the class will offer students the opportunity to experience painting outdoors at a different site each day, using the medium of their choice.

Pre-registration is required. Class fee is $45 for three sessions; $20 for a single session. Students will carpool to painting locations each day. In case of rain, class will be held at the War Memorial. Bring a sack lunch, a folding chair, and paint supplies. For further information, call 881-7511.

Way up there

The steeple on St. James Lutheran Church won't leak after the workers are finished stripping, scraping, filling, fiberglassing and painting it again. The old wood will be protected with the layer of fiberglass to seal out moisture and keep it in tip-top shape for many seasons to come.

VA benefits expanded for former prisoners of war

Recent legislation has expanded veterans benefits to include disability compensation for former prisoners of war who suffer from frostbite or osteoarthritis.

Other diseases for which compensation had been previously approved for former POWs are avitaminosis, beriberi, chronic dysentery, helminthiasis, malnutrition, pellagra, nutritional deficiency and almost all forms of neurosis or psychosis.

Unless there is contrary evidence, for veterans detained or interned for 30 days or more, these disabilities for compensation purposes are presumed to have occurred or been aggravated during military service.

For further information on VA benefits or medical treatment, former POWs should call the nearest VA regional office or medical center.

Compensation rates, which apply to all service-connected disabled veterans, were increased effective Dec. 1, 1986.

Former POWs also are eligible for free medical care at VA hospitals and outpatient clinics.

A national toll-free hotline, 800-821-8139, assists former prisoners of war.

Free AIDS test

Free testing for exposure to the HIV virus is being offered to recipients of blood transfusions from 1978 to late spring 1985 by the Southeastern Michigan Chapter of the American Red Cross. The HIV virus (formerly called HTLV-III) is associated with the cause of AIDS (acquired immune deficiency syndrome).

Individuals who received blood during that time period and who want to be tested are asked to call Red Cross at 494-2863 between 9 a.m. and 4:30 p.m., Monday through Friday, for an appointment.

Tests will be offered on a rotating basis at Red Cross regional offices in Bloomfield, Dearborn, Detroit, Livonia, Roseville and Southgate. All test results will remain confidential.

Funding for the initiation of the testing program has been provided by the United Foundation and the United Way of Pontiac-North Oakland. It is estimated that it will cost $25 to test and counsel each individual.

A positive test result does not mean the person will get AIDS. However, it indicates the individual has been exposed to the AIDS virus and is capable of transmitting the virus to others. People whose test results are positive will be personally counseled regarding the implications.

Pointer

instruments. Deeb has never studied music theory.
"I got a lot of help from Mr. (Nathan) Judson," he said. The band teacher gave him advice — and some transposition tables to work from.
Deeb's biggest concern wasn't the tedium of the project; it was making sure his melodies were original. "When you're making it up in your head, you start to wonder if you've heard it before," he said. "I don't want to sound like somebody else."

"I don't like to characterize myself. I like the sound of the 18th and 19th centuries." Forced to describe his music, he said it sounded "a little like Mozart and a little like Von Suppe," a composer of operettas and overtures.
Deeb likes his second composition, the David and Goliath Overture, better than the first. It started out as a programmatic piece, but he abandoned the storyline after a while. "I tried to go for spirit and energy," he said.
The piece has a martial air, with lots of brass and kettle drums, in contrast with the symphony, which has Middle Eastern themes punctuated by plaintive clarinet and bassoon solos.

Both pieces were performed by the North band, the overture after only two rehearsals. Deeb conducted.
"Conducting is my real love," he said. It hit him like a ton of bricks when he spent two weeks at Interlochen last summer.
"I saw Larry Rachleffe conduct and he was fantastic," Deeb said. "That had me hooked right then."
Learning a conducting technique takes a lot of practice, combined with a sense of abandon that lets the conductor go with the flow on the podium. Many novices conduct in front of a mirror to see how they look.
Deeb practiced before he went public.
"The band was playing it all wrong and I had to fix it. So I listened to a recording and made notes — then I could go back and say 'you missed the double forte.'"
As to his conducting style, "he's very animated," according to his mother. "They think he's doing aerobics on the podium."
As interested as Deeb is in music, he likes a challenge of any kind. He played in the North production of "Cyrano de Bergerac" this spring because he had never been in a play before. He became commencement speaker for the same reason.
"It was my first major talk," he said. "With a couple of thousand people out in front of me, it was really exhilarating."
He graduated from North with highest honors, was named most outstanding band member all four years and was voted "most talented" by members of the graduating class.
"I had a ball — are you kidding?" he said of the four years.
Deeb sees no reason why his years at U of M shouldn't be just as good. His enthusiastic anticipation matches his reaction when he first won first chair clarinet in eighth grade:
"Wow, this is neat!"

Woods seeks beautification award nominees

The Grosse Pointe Woods Beautification Advisory Commission is seeking businesses, churches, schools and individual residents to be nominated for 1987 beautification awards. Contenders include those persons who have made extensive renovations, repairs or additions to their buildings, homes or landscaping between Aug. 1, 1986 and Aug. 1, 1987.
Nomination forms are available at the Woods City Hall and Public Safety office. Or simply jot down the name, address and phone number of your nominee, along with a short description of the improvements, and send it to the Beautification Commission, 20025 Mack Plaza, Grosse Pointe Woods, Mich. 48236. Photos are helpful but not necessary. The deadline for submitting nominations is Aug. 1.

Three mayor's trophies and three honorable mention certificates will be awarded at the discretion of the commission. Also, special presentations may be made for an outstanding home renovation and a previous Mayor's Trophy winner who has consistently contributed to the beautification of the city for at least 10 years. The awards are given at a reception held in November.
The mayor, on the recommendation of commission, has honored business owners since 1975 for their efforts to keep the city's commercial area neat, attractive and in keeping with the colonial theme.

Divorce seminar

The Women's Justice Center will sponsor a free seminar to explain the legal process of divorce. The seminar is open to the public and will be facilitated by attorney Sharon L. Edwards.
The seminar will be held Thursday, July 30, 9:30 a.m. to 12:30 p.m. at 651 East Jefferson, Room 343. For more information, call 961-7073 between 10 a.m. and 2 p.m.

Shores dovetails into delayed Lakeshore road repair project

By Peter A. Salinas
Staff Writer

Apparent engineering problems have pushed back the start of the $1.35 million Lakeshore Road repair and resurfacing project in the Farms until after Labor Day, but the Shores has worked out an agreement with Wayne County which will allow the village to have about $65,000 in recurbing work performed as part of the same project.

Farms City Manager Andrew

Bremer Jr. said he spoke with Wayne County public works officials last week. He was informed that the county engineering section was still waiting for specification paperwork, and that the project which was to have been started by now would be delayed until late summer.

"I am not totally unhappy that it will begin after summer," Bremer said in reference to the detours and other traffic problems which will occur as a result of the construction.

The Farms entered into an agreement with the county this spring which will allow for the much-needed recurbing and resurfacing of the county road along the Farms Lake St. Clair shoreline.

The Farms will pay about $320,000 of the $1.35 million price tag put on the project. The county will bear the total cost of some areas of the project, and others will be shared with the county on a 50-50 basis. The engineering has taken longer than was anticipated, according to Bremer, but he sees no trouble with having the road resurfaced prior to the winter.

Shores Village Manager Michael Kenyon said the council approved an agreement with the county in late June. Under that agreement the county will pay the total cost of recurbing the eastern side of Lakeshore south village limits to Vernier this year, and the village will split the cost of the island and west side curbing next year.

"Our road is in good shape," Kenyon said, "so there will be no resurfacing involved."

State regulations call for a nine-inch curb when the distance between the road and the lake is less than 50 feet. The curbs in the Farms will be nine inches, and in the Shores, the curbs will be tapered to six inches whenever regulations permit.

Kenyon said the village anticipates spending around $75,000 in its 1988-89 budget for the recurbing effort. He added that the Shores Improvement Foundation has committed to recrowning an sodding the islands in the stretch next summer at a cost estimated around $100,000.

Kenyon said that the additional work for which the village has negotiated this year will not affect the three-phase program it has under way for the work on Lakeshore north of Vernier. That stretch of road in the Shores belongs to the village. This year the island curbs were replaced north of Vernier. In 1988 the village intends to replace the outside curbing there, and in 1989 the road will be resurfaced.

If all the plans come to fruition on schedule, by 1989, Lakeshore will have been resurfaced and recurbed from the Farms city limits in the south, to the Shores north village limits. This should be welcome news to Grosse Pointers who have complained about road conditions along Lakeshore for over a decade.

Star search

Lynne Taylor, a dancer from Canton, auditioned before a group of judges Friday, July 10, from the Angela Kennedy Dance Studio in Grosse Pointe Woods. The auditions were held as part of the nationally syndicated television program "Star Search," which is hosted by Ed McMahon. The auditions were held at the Assumption Cultural Center in St. Clair Shores. Claudia McMahon, McMahon's daughter, will be here next week to judge the finalists selected at this week's auditions.

Therese Jamieson

Jamieson awarded St. Paul scholarship

Therese Jamieson, a recent graduate of St. Paul Catholic Elementary School, has been chosen as the recipient of the 1987 St. Paul Parish Scholarship. As the winner she will receive $500 a year toward her tuition at Regina High School provided she maintains a B.

She was active in the Forensic Club, the Service Squad and she was copy editor for the student newspaper.

The St. Paul Parish Scholarship is given each year to a deserving eighth-grade parish member who plans to continue his or her education at a Catholic high school. The runners-up for this year's competition were Catherine DeFauw of Grosse Pointe Farms and Paul Deller of Detroit.

Funds for the scholarship are from the St. Paul Educational Trust.

She is the daughter of Bill and Roseanne Jamieson of Grosse Pointe Farms.

Doctor helps smokers quit the habit

Making a decision to quit smoking can be one of the hardest and most important choices an individual can make, according to Dr. John Burrows, director of Oncology at St. John Hospital and a Grosse Pointe resident.

He has been conducting a stop smoking clinic at the hospital for 19 years and emphasizes behavior modification in the program.

According to him, if a person has decided to kick the habit, the following tips should be used:

- Understand that there is a problem.
- Go cold turkey and do not just reduce the amount of cigarettes you smoke, partial withdrawal makes the situation worse.
- Absolutely do not drink any caffeine or alcohol. Studies have shown that people who use these two substances have much less of a chance of success because they associate the caffeine or alcohol with smoking.
- Drink lots of fluids and eat lightly.
- Get involved in other activities, which will take your mind off smoking.
- Be aware that there will be a physiological withdrawal for at least a couple of months.
- If you fail, do not get discouraged; try again.

Burrows does not believe in hypnosis as a treatment for smokers.

"I have found that it is usually not helpful, it can be dangerous and has short term effects on the smoker," he said.

"I also do not encourage people to use nicotine gum. It does help individuals to quit smoking but they are just getting the nicotine from a different source and it does not help in reducing the chance of getting heart disease."

The harmful long term side effects of smoking is what Burrows would like to point out to individuals who have continued the harmful habit.

"Smoking is the sole identificable cause of lung cancer and emphysema. If people would understand all of the respiratory problems that arise from smoking, it may help them quit," he said.

The next clinic is scheduled for January 1988, but if an individual would like to quit before that time, a one-on-one session is available by appointment. The cost for the individual session is $66. Call the Patient and Community Education department at 343-3870 for more information.

Early enrollment

New students will be enrolled at Grosse Pointe South High School during a special five-day summer enrollment period, beginning Thursday, Aug. 13.

High school students who are new to the South High attendance area should call 313-2151 between 8 a.m. to 4 p.m. to schedule an enrollment conference with a counselor who will be on duty during August.

Students who do not enroll during the special summer session will have to wait until the Aug. 24-27 pre-school registration period. At that date students may experience more difficulty in scheduling their preferred course selections.

Bankstahl chosen

Thomas Bankstahl, a junior at Bishop Gallagher, was chosen by faculty and administration to attend Boys State, a government program at Michigan State University held in June.

Bridget Murray, a safety patroller from Our Lady Star of the Sea School, spent a day at Boblo Island during AAA Michigan's recent annual Safety Patrol Recognition Day. She was among more than 6,000 Michigan students who were honored for donating more than 300 hours of volunteer time each to protect fellow students at street crossings and on school buses during the 1986-87 school year.

Journalism students honored

The award was presented at the Michigan Interscholastic Press Association Convention at Michigan State University.

Rayos will be a freshman at the University of Michigan at Ann Arbor.

Andrew Jackson, also co-editor, was awarded a third place Award of Merit for feature column. He will be a freshman at Emerson College in Boston.

Scott Smith, co-feature editor, was awarded two third place awards for best cartoons. Smith will be a freshman at Boston University.

Student Spotlight

Mike Klobuchar

Each week in this column, we will focus on the work of a student. It can be a poem, a drawing, a short story, a picture of a scientific experiment or a wood-working project, a book review.

The following class assignment, written by Mike Klobuchar when he was in the sixth-grade at Parcels Middle School, received an award from the Elizabeth Cass Chapter of the Daughters of the American Revolution. Mike is the son of John and May Klobuchar of the Woods. The following is titled, "A Letter to the Editor, September 1787."

Dear Editor:

Some of the men who participated in signing the Constitution with me urged me to write this letter. The people must understand how important it is to ratify this Constitution and give it as much support as they can. This Constitution will establish a form of national government that will consist of three branches: a Legislative branch, having the function of making laws and consisting of a Senate and a House of Representatives, an Executive branch, which will enforce the laws, and a Judicial branch, which will interpret these laws if any questions should arise.

The Constitution will set forth the nation's fundamental laws. Our citizens will have freedom of the press and freedom to buy and sell things with other states with a unified currency value. The Constitution defines rights and liberties. This means that we'll have the right to bear arms, that we will not have to house soldiers without our consent, and that our homes will not be searched without a proper warrant. This Constitution will also provide us with a strong national government.

Our past leaders established our current national government under the Articles of Confederation. This gives independence to each state, but lacks the authority to make states work together to solve problems. Under these articles, our political conditions have been deteriorating. States are taxing each other. Great Britain refuses to trade with us, debts from the Revolutionary War have not been paid, and men are taking up arms in rebellion. These problems led us to thinking of changing the ways of our government. Recently Mr. Alexander Hamilton revised the Articles of Confederation in Philadelphia. But a majority of the delegates at the convention wanted to make up a new plan of government. The Constitution of the United States outlines this plan of government, and the other signers, along with myself, think we have found a better way to achieve our freedoms and to have more rights. Of the 55 delegates at the convention signed the Constitution. Those who didn't sign, were in disagreement with some parts of it, but the Constitution is well supported by many famous people such as George Washington, Alexander Hamilton and Benjamin Franklin.

I strongly urge all of the people to support and to ratify the Constitution.

Respectfully submitted,
James Madison

Winners in state flag contest

More than 400 students from across the state entered the state flag design contest sponsored by Sen. John Kelly.

The winners, selected by a panel of local community leaders and representatives from various art schools, received special recognition from the state. All entries were displayed at Eastland Center for public viewing.

The following local students were selected as winners in various categories: Grade 2 — Quincy Minor and John Skovran, St. Ambrose Academy; Grade 3 — Yvonne Fox, St. Ambrose Academy; Grade 4 — Nichole Norris, Richard School; Grade 5 — Emily Shapiro, Richard School, and Eric Lindauer, Defer School; Grade 6 — Joseph Pfaff, St. Peter School.

Jewel

Meghan Keller, Grosse Pointe South High School junior, received a special first place award in the jewelry division of the Scholastic Art Awards competition held in New York City. Keller is a student of Gene Pluhar, South art instructor.

Bedard named Insignis Scholar

Ann Marie Bedard, a graduate of North High School, is one of 21 high school seniors named Insignis Scholars by the University of Detroit.

The students will receive four-year, half-tuition and full-room scholarships for undergraduate study. To qualify for the scholarship, students needed to graduate in the top 10 percent of their classes and score in the top five percent on the national college board examinations.

Their extracurricular activities and leadership abilities were taken into consideration as well as interviews by a panel of judges.

Lombardini receives du Pont scholarship

Albert W. Lombardini III has been named a recipient of a 1987 Eugene du Pont Memorial Distinguished Scholar Award by the University of Delaware.

Lombardini

A graduate of North High School, he is one of nine students selected to be awarded a du Pont scholarship based on merit. The recipients are ranked in the upper one percent nationally on the basis of SAT scores, and they are at the top of their graduating classes.

Sanders takes Grosse Pointe companies to court

By Nancy Parmenter
Staff Writer

Fred Sanders, Inc., has charged F&M Distributors and its holding company with civil extortion and wrongful interference with business when an F&M owner tried to force Sanders out of its store in the Village so his wife could open a clothing boutique.

According to a suit filed June 9 in Wayne County Circuit Court, F&M part-owner Randolph Agley tried to terminate the Sanders lease more than a year before it expired because his wife, Judith Agley, wanted to move her Judith Ann clothing store into the building. When Sanders refused to leave, the lawsuit charges that F&M stopped carrying Sanders' goods in its outlets and threatened to force Sanders out of its Lincoln Park location in a mall where Agley is part owner.

Judith Agley refused to comment on the lawsuit. "It will all be clear in court," she said. It is believed that she purchased stock for the store and has been selling it out of her house. It was reported that she plans to hold a sale July 20 on the Entrepreneur, a yacht in which her husband has part interest.

Agley's attorney called the charges "much ado about nothing."

Sanders filed four charges against the Agleys, F&M Distributors, F&M attorneys Marco Eagan Kennedy Timmis, the firm's partner Michael Timmis, Judith Ann clothing store, Talon Inc., the holding company, and others.

Sanders has asked for $6 million in damages for the loss of revenue from sales formerly made through F&M's 34 stores. Before the sales were stopped in September 1986, they were worth approximately $500,000 a year and would now be worth $700,000, the suit estimates.

Judith Agley bought the building where Sanders has been located for 53 years, intending to move her business in. She notified the candymaker to vacate by the end of 1986. The lease does not expire until October 1988.

According to the suit, when Sanders refused to leave, Agley, through F&M, cut into Sanders' income by dropping the line of candy and toppings from the distribution network.

In August 1986, Timmis, vice chairman and general counsel for Talon, Inc., and part-owner of the mall in Lincoln Park, wrote to Sanders stating that the company was in default on the rent, that the lease would be terminated and that their future business relationship would be based on Sanders' cooperation.

"... There will be no renewals of the lease," Timmis wrote. "Any future business relationship between Fred Sanders, Inc. and any companies owned by us is fully predicated on a satisfactory arrangement concerning the termination of this lease in January 1987. The reason I have enumerated these points is that I want to make it absolutely clear how much this means to us for personal reasons."

In September, F&M cut off Sanders' business.

Sanders' attorney, Jamie Reynolds, denies that Sanders was in default. More important, he says, is that the rent "is a non-issue in this case." He declined to comment further on details of the lawsuit.

The Agleys' attorney, Eugene Driker of Barris, Sott, Donn & Driker, said Sanders is a poor

Sanders has operated a bakery and lunch business at this Village location for 53 years.

tenant and always has been. "The rent is invariably late," he said. "It was four months in arrears when the Agleys bought the store."

Sanders frequently paid late and paid with bad checks, Driker said. The owners more than once had to resort to starting eviction proceedings in order to collect the rent. "Each time Sanders ran in at the 11th hour with a check," he said.

Driker said it is the Agleys' right to decide they do not wish to do business with a given tenant. "They're entitled — it's the American way of doing business," he said. "This fol-de-rol about driving them out of business is just conversation."

Mary David, manager of the Sanders store in the Village, says the suit is on the minds of her customers. "I don't know what will happen next," she said. "All I know is what I read in the papers. But I don't feel like closing another store." David said she used to manage the store at Seven and Mack, now closed.

David said she assumes Sanders will have to move out when the lease is up in October, but that the main office has not told her anything definite. Lori Lipton, Sanders public relations director, declined to comment, except to say, "It is not determined that we will move out of that location."

The company doesn't want to move, David is sure. "It's a lucrative spot and the neighborhood will never change," she said. "If we had a bigger store, we could do three or four times as much business."

"There aren't a lot of other stores like this," she added. "There are lots of dress shops."

Home Health Aide program offered

The American Red Cross will offer a Home Health Aide program to train individuals in the skills necessary for employment with an agency specializing in home health care. Students will be certified after successfully completing the course.

The Home Health Aide program teaches individuals how to care for the ill, disabled and elderly in the home; how to find community resources for health counseling and medical treatment; how to detect common symptoms of illnesses; how to handle medications and provide simple treatment; and how to measure temperature, pulse, blood pressure and respiration. In addition, Home Health Aide students will become certified in CPR and first aid and at the same time, benefit from clinical experience.

The course will be offered at a Red Cross regional office to be announced. Classes will be held from 9 a.m. to 3:30 p.m. from July 28 to Sept. 4.

The cost of the course is $130 per person. Ability to pay should not discourage interested individuals. Pre-registration is required. For more information or to register, call Red Cross at 494-2876.

Consumer protection group starts up in Pointes

By Peter A. Salinas
Staff Writer

A newly formed consumer advocacy group that intends to be a better business bureau-like organization for the five Grosse Pointes has run into some start-up problems, but its founders say they are determined to get the "much-needed" organization off the ground.

In mid-May, a Michigan non-profit corporation known as the Grosse Pointe Chamber of Commerce, was formed by Steven and Shawna Chapman, who currently reside in Grosse Pointe Park. On May 27 the Chapmans filed for an assumed name for the not-for-profit corporation, calling it the Consumer Protection Bureau of Grosse Pointe.

After making numerous contacts with local businesses to secure founding memberships and explaining what their organization intends to do, the Chapmans have begun working toward establishing the consumer agency.

The corporation, however, has run into a few snags, including having its July 2 half-page advertisement pulled from placement in the Grosse Pointe News by Publisher Robert G. Edgar, whose real estate company was listed as a founding member of the organization.

"I had never given authority for the use of the name of my company in connection with any advertisement," Edgar said, "and I wondered if there were any others who had not given authority for the use of their names."

Chapman admits there may have been some confusion regarding her organization, but says there are problems in getting anything brand-new off the ground.

In its incorporation papers, the organization's statement of purpose states that it was formed to effectively promote and support good and reputable business located within the boundaries of the five Grosse Pointes...and to receive inquiries and complaints concerning any business located in the five Grosse Pointes or any business soliciting for business to Grosse Pointe residents and to maintain records of these businesses concerning their legitimacy and reliability, combating consumer fraud and maintaining ethical practices in the advertising and selling of products and services in the Grosse Pointes.

Edgar said he was first contacted by Shawna Chapman in May concerning the formation of a local chamber of commerce. He was asked if he would be interested in the formation of such a group.

"That is like asking if you like apple pie and motherhood," Edgar said. "I said I was interested and asked for the corporation's board of directors, incorporation papers and statement of purpose."

Edgar said several weeks went by without hearing from the Grosse Pointe Chamber of Commerce. Sometime in June, he received at his real estate office an invoice for $125 from the Consumer Protection Bureau of Grosse Pointe. Edgar says there was no reference in the cover letter that accompanied the invoice that the Consumer Protection Bureau of Grosse Pointe was related to the Grosse Pointe Chamber of Commerce which had been registered by the Chapmans in mid-May.

He added that he had never heard of a Consumer Protection Bureau of Grosse Pointe and was concerned because the name of his real estate company was to be included in a list of founding members which was to be incorporated in a promotional advertisement the Chapmans planned to run in the July 2 issue of the Grosse Pointe News.

"I believe one of our duties as a newspaper is to make the readership aware of what's going on in the community," he said. "If we have a question about a proposed organization or activity, we have a duty to investigate before lending credence to it through advertising or editorial comment."

Shawna Chapman said that the organization was originally formed as the Grosse Pointe Chamber of Commerce, but after getting some feedback from other business organizations, she felt a name that better stated the purpose of the organization was necessary. She said that is why some of the businesses she first contacted for founding memberships were told of a chamber of commerce and her later contacts were told about a consumer protection bureau.

There are some questions concerning the organization. When Edgar saw the mailing address for the agency, he recognized it as being that of a prominent Grosse Pointe church. That triggered some questions in his mind.

Shawna Chapman said she inquired about a post office box and learned there was a waiting list. She then made several contacts in Grosse Pointe for a mailing address because she felt that a Grosse Pointe street address might lend more credibility to the bureau than a post office box.

The Mack Avenue post office in the Farms confirmed there is at least a two and possibly three week or longer wait to get a post office box.

"We didn't want to use our home address because we only want to take phone solicitations," she said. She added that after discussions with the state attorney general's office, consumer protection division, she determined it might be dangerous to have the address of her agency publicized, since some of the people the bureau would be dealing with would be irate because of the consumer problems they had.

Chapman said she agreed that the name of the church would not appear in the ad or in any information the consumer protection bureau published. This was confirmed by a church official who agreed that the church could be used as the bureau's mailing address until September.

In its application for tax-exempt status from the Internal Revenue Service and in the proposed advertisement with the Grosse Pointe News, the Chapmans stated that "the Bureau has thus far established a relationship with the State Attorney General's office, which welcomed the agency as a much-needed link to Grosse Pointe consumer problems." The ad also stated that the bureau will work closely with the Federal Trade Commission, various state licensing boards and other governmental and like agencies.

Fred Hoeffcker, assistant-in-charge of the attorney general's office. Consumer Protection Division, said he had never heard of the Consumer Protection Bureau of Grosse Pointe. Later, however, he stated that a clerk in the office had talked with the Chapmans and had sent out information to them. Other than that, there was no relationship with the organization. He told the Grosse Pointe News that no organization has the right to use the name of the attorney general's office in advertising to lend credence to it.

In its application for tax-exempt status, the Chapmans state that the agency was formed, in part, to lessen the burden on the small claims court and the Consumer Protection Division of the attorney general's office.

"It is true we are burdened," Hoeffcker said, "but I don't know that a lot of our complaints are coming as a result of business practices from the Grosse Pointe area. Someone may have sold the wrong shade of green pants one day, but as far as I know we have no serious problems coming from Grosse Pointe."

Chapman said that lessening the burden on small claims court is not something she discussed with any of the municipal or district court officials in the area.

"Everyone knows that the courts are overburdened," she said.

She said that 11 of the 20 founding members she had included in the advertisement have sent in their checks to her bureau. Several of those who mailed checks said the purpose of the organization and what the founding membership would mean for them was clearly explained.

Dave Reygaert, owner of Grosse Pointe Radio and Television, said that Shawna Chapman explained that the bureau would mediate problems between consumers and businesses. He said he was encouraged by what the organization intends to do.

Frank Forster, owner of Forster's Interiors in Grosse Pointe, said the organization was explained as a better business bureau.

"In all honesty, I do not feel I was being misled in any way," Forster said. "I was told that the agency could eventually act as a clearinghouse and a mediator for disputes. She (Shawna Chapman) was very up front, and asked if our store wanted to be a founding member."

Edgar's was not the only business, however, that felt uncomfortable with the Chapmans' approach.

Cynthia Ruffner, of Gryphon Gallery on the Hill, said she was first contacted about five weeks ago, concerning a local agency which would be analogous to the Better Business Bureau of Southeastern Michigan.

"I told her that we were interested in promoting the community and we wanted more information," Ruffner said. "We were also told that Mr. Edgar was going to be a founding member."

Ruffner said she never agreed to be a founding member, and the next thing she knew Gryphon was invoiced for $125 as a founding member. Edgar said he never gave any authority for using his name in phone solicitations or for inclusion in the advertisement.

One other Grosse Pointe real estate firm was contacted about joining a chamber of commerce, and was later invoiced from the consumer protection bureau.

"We were contacted about a chamber and then got an invoice from the bureau," the real estate broker, who didn't want his name used, said. "We didn't know what it was about and filed it in the circular file."

He said that he later discovered the connection, but wasn't interested in becoming a founding member of a local consumer advocacy group. He added that he had business dealings with the Chapmans in the past, and said they were always honest and fair, and that he had always "had a very good relationship with them."

This real estate broker was also included as a founding member of the bureau in the proposed advertisement.

In its request for tax-exempt status, and in its proposed budget, the bureau lists its main source of income from the sale of calendars of historic Grosse Pointe, which Chapman said she and her husband have been putting out for two years. It has been a profitable business, she claims. She said she believed that the proceeds from the sale of the calendar would greatly benefit the funding of the organization.

"At first we had planned to keep the two businesses separate. Then we thought that the bureau might need more money, and worked out a lease agreement for the bureau to publish the calendar." In its proposed budget the agency anticipates generating about $20,000 from the sale of the calendars, and about $12,000 in business and professional memberships.

Administrative salaries for the first year, which would be shared by Shawna and Steve Chapman, would amount to about $14,400. Since the Chapmans are operating the agency out of their Park home, rent amounting to $1,200 would be paid to them. Other estimated expenses for the first year include $7,000 for advertising, $7,000 for printing, $2,000 for postage, $1,000 for professional services and $1,000 for office supplies.

Shawna Chapman said that sales from the calendar are seasonal.

"We felt that the bureau would be a way to generate income for us during the rest of the year, but most importantly, we felt there is a need for this community service," Shawna Chapman said.

The original board of directors and officers of the not-for-profit corporation were listed as Steve Chapman, president, and Shawna Chapman, director of operations and treasurer. Chapman told the Grosse Pointe News that Edmund Tropp, of the Woods, and Raymond Saucier, of the Park, have been added as directors.

"We have had suggestions that we should appoint other business people to the board," Shawna Chapman said. "We have been selling the calendar here for two years, and consider ourselves business people, but we are considering adding more local business people."

Shawna Chapman added she would never have placed an ad in the Grosse Pointe News, Edgar's newspaper, using Edgar's name in the ad, if he had not agreed.

"My last statement to everyone was, 'Can I put you down as a founding member,'" she said. "I wouldn't do such a ludicrous thing as to use Mr. Edgar's name in his own newspaper without having him agree to it."

Edgar said that the use of his name without his permission was a reason for not running the advertisement.

Chapman said in every case she explained that statements for dues would be sent, but only after the businesses agreed to become a founding member.

She also said she has made contacts with other local newspapers to run her her advertisement announcing the new consumer protection bureau. Because Edgar declined to publish her ad in the July 2 edition of the Grosse Pointe News, she contacted every one of the businesses that had agreed to be founding members, and explained the delay.

The Grosse Pointe News has learned that one local business has asked that the Grosse Pointe Farms police department investigate possible fraud by the Chapmans. A complaint is on file in the Farms, and the Farms detective bureau is investigating.

Shawna Chapman said she does not believe anything she and her husband have done in the creation of the consumer bureau or in soliciting founding memberships was misleading or in any way illegal.

She added that saying the bureau had a "working relationship" with the state attorney general's office was perhaps, a "poor choice of words," but said it was not misleading.

She stated there is definitely a need for a consumer protection bureau in Grosse Pointe.

"I felt there are many articles published which are relating to scams," she said. "In many cases senior citizens do not know where to go for help. I think it is good for a wealthy and trusting community to have some place to contact before doing business."

She said since the bureau's phone was installed, it has received numerous calls from people who want information about Grosse Pointe businesses. She said that, in part, shows the need for the kind of service she and her husband wish want to provide.

Chapman admitted that the bureau has little specific information on Grosse Pointe businesses, but she emphasized that the organization is in the process of gathering as much information as possible. She added that the bureau has phone numbers of other consumer protection agencies in the area, and can either obtain information from those agencies or refer any complaints to them.

Local coalition offers alternatives to abortion

By Margie Reins Smith
Staff Writer

When the Michigan Legislature halted Medicaid-paid abortions July 1, Madeline Scranton, president of Pregnancy Centers of Southeastern Michigan, called a press conference aimed at providing information about the coalition of 13 pregnancy centers.

Scranton, a Grosse Pointer, said the coalition is concerned about young women who are pregnant and poor, and who cannot obtain a tax-paid abortion. Scranton said that often these women don't want an abortion, but feel trapped and see no other way to deal with the unplanned pregnancy.

"We are a support group for women who are pregnant," she said.

The Michigan Court of Appeals reinstated Medicaid-paid abortions Friday, just 10 days after a lower court ruled a halt of the state payments. Medicaid will continue to pay for abortions until the courts settle a pro-choice challenge to the ban — either by a new panel of judges — or by the state Supreme Court. Pro-choice groups have also organized a petition drive that began Monday, seeking to place the issue on the ballot in November 1988.

In spite of the recent ruling, Scranton said the centers are seeking higher visibility for all pregnant women. The Pregnancy Centers of Southeastern Michigan offer a variety of services, free of charge, to women with unplanned pregnancies. Each center is autonomous, according to Jane Hanzel, past president of the coalition, and each one is staffed by volunteers who offer pregnancy tests, maternity clothes, layettes and cribs.

The centers also offer help for other needs of pregnant women: financial counseling, medical care, help with housing, legal problems, counseling, continuing education, adoption options and food. Hanzel said they refer women to other agencies when necessary and other social service agencies refer women to them. "The referrals work both ways."

Pregnancy Aid, one of the 13 centers in the coalition, is located at 17215 Mack Ave. in Detroit, near Grosse Pointe. Other centers are in Wixom, Utica, Royal Oak, Redford, Rochester, Lincoln Park, Southfield, Monroe, Lathrup Village and in several Detroit locations.

Scranton said the coalition sees as many as 4,500 women each year and handles thousands of phone inquiries.

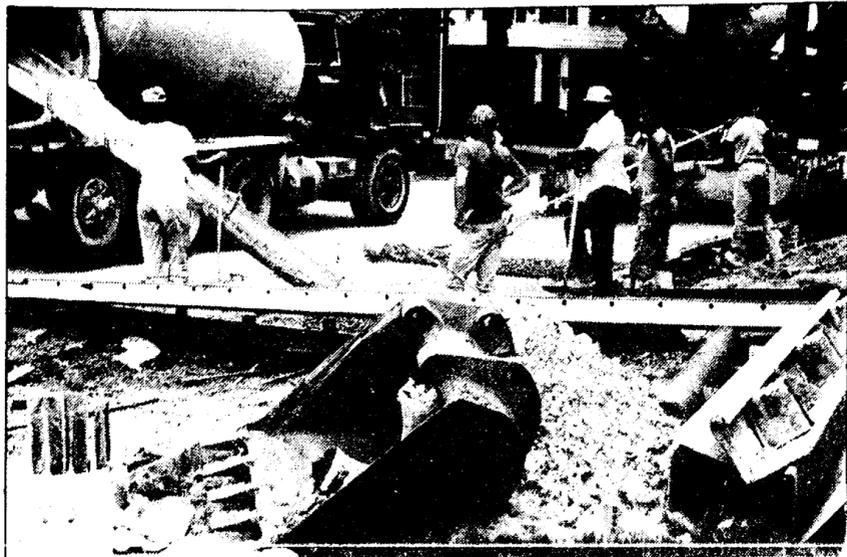

In spite of the autonomy of the 13 centers, the coalition has a single purpose and philosophy. Scranton said they are non-profit, non-political, non-discriminatory, non-judgmental and self-supporting. All money comes from donations. "At one time, toward the end of Detroit's recession," she said, "we were down to our last $300."

Hanzel said that, in addition to individuals, many churches donate funds for the coalition. "In the beginning, it was mostly Catholic churches. Now people across the board are realizing needs and realizing that abortion is not the answer. There are other ways to help these women." Scranton said that health department figures count 1,500,000 abortions each year, nationwide. "It has become a form of birth control. People are now saying (abortion) is not what we thought it would be." She said Michigan's abortions number 42,000 each year.

Hanzel and Scranton emphasized the non-judgmental philosophy of the pregnancy centers. Some women come in, she said, asking for a pregnancy test. "They're young and scared and not sure if they're pregnant. They tell us right off they're going to get an abortion." She said the pregnancy centers are committed to helping pregnant women in need.

All services are free.

Twenty-three of the 25-member honorary board of Pregnancy Aid are Grosse Pointers, as are many of the volunteers. The center on Mack is open Mondays through Saturdays from 10 a.m. to 1 p.m. and Monday and Wednesday evenings from 7:30 to 9 p.m. Phone: 882-1000.

Prime Time for Senior Citizens

Shattering the myths of aging

By Marian Trainor
Special Writer

The first U.S. National Senior Olympics held in June of this year in St. Louis affirmed what senior citizens have known for a long time. It is possible to add fun as well as years to your life.

Some 3,000 athletes, age 55 and over, gathered in St. Louis for a weekend showcase of sports.

Participants were the best among 50,000 older athletes who competed in 60 Senior Olympics in 30 states. They were divided by age groups. There were five-year brackets between 55 and 70 and one group of 80 and up.

Seeing them perform shatters every stereotype on aging. As one participant who ran a 10-kilometer run in the Rockies remarked: "Old grandmas don't die, they just keep running."

Another participant who drives his "elderly" Chevy Impala to the event and competes as a bowler, brags that he'll take on anyone. His self-confidence is not misplaced. He beats men half his age. He's 92.

A retired farmer runs the 100 meter in 22.5 seconds. Not bad for a man 87 and missing an arm.

Retired gerontologist John Williams, 77, competes in 10 swimming events and has been in the Masters top 10 for seven years. He too says the stereotype of aging has reversed itself in the last 20 years because people say, "If he can do it, I can do it."

Such assurance by examples works in other fields besides sport competitions. Just as individuals gain self-confidence by watching others compete, so can they be encouraged to try whatever interests them because others have succeeded.

Not everyone is sports-minded. There are those who would like to continue in a chosen field or venture into a new one but hesitate because they think it's too late. Not so. There are role models that prove otherwise.

In the entertainment world there is George Burns, who quips: "I can't die. How can I die? I'm hooked." Movies, television, and hit records bear him out. And then there is Bob Hope who continues year after year, performing with the best of them.

In the art world, there is Chagall. At 90 he continued to work. "Even when I'm not working," he said, tapping his temple, "I'm working."

The Chagall Biblical Message National Museum in Nice is filled with his work.

In May 1977, a series of stained glass windows for the Chicago Art Institute, which he had done in collaboration with Charles Marq, was installed. His collaborator said of him: "He has endless energy and is always enthusiastic as a child."

In painting, Chagall has lots of company. Matisse, Picasso, John Benton, Gainsborough, Michelangelo, Da Vinci — all worked at their art in their late years.

Many writers worked until their death. P.G. Wodehouse wrote one of his most comic novels the year of his death at 93. Somerset Maugham wrote when he was 92. Carl Sandburg, Robert Frost, Archibald MacLeish all continued to publish poetry in their 80's.

On the political front, there is Florida Congressman Claude Pepper who has fought and continues to fight for senior citizens.

At 72 Maggie Kuhn organized the Gray Panthers, traveling across the country, averaging two lectures a day, 300 days a year. She argues the mythic stereotypes of age. "I don't know why people believe them and younger people are taught to accept them," she said.

"We act on the discovery of gerontologists that the harder we work, the more likely we are to stay alive and well. Total rest is almost a sure way to being subject to physical and mental degeneration."

In addition to the Gray Panthers, there are at present 300 organizations that concern themselves with the problems of aging. Legislators are listening and they should. The over-60 group is potentially the most powerful in the land because it has the highest voting percentage of any bloc.

Some older citizens, if they could, would return to work either at their former jobs or at some other type of work. For those who would like to try something different, there should be free training for new skills, or if an older person just wants to study for the joy of learning, there should be free tuition. Gerontologists agree that there is no reason an older person cannot acquire new knowledge and new skills.

Dr. Richard L. Spott, a psychologist working in behavioral studies at the Jackson Laboratory in Bar Harbor, Maine, on the basis of experimental evidence, says: "Age itself is not detrimental to learning ability or I.Q. The key factor is the health of the individual."

The question of how an individual spends his or her later years is a personal one, whether it be pursuing sports, hobbies, studies or work. The key factor is the opportunity for doing whatever he or she enjoys.

Before you buy or refinance your home, consider the advantages of our Adjustable Rate Mortgage (ARM).

Many of our ARM loan customers have saved a lot of money in mortgage interest costs over the past few years. And, at present interest rates, borrowers are finding our ARM loans to be an even better bargain. The first-year interest rate on our 15-year ARM is now only 7.25% compared to much higher rates on fixed-rate loans. What's more, with the 2% annual and 6% lifetime interest rate caps that we have placed on our ARM loans, you'll pay less interest and have greater principal reduction over at least the first four years of your loan.

The lower initial interest rates on our ARM loans result in lower initial monthly payments. And, the lower monthly payments mean that it will be easier for you to qualify for the loan that you need to buy or refinance your home.

So, come to any Standard Federal branch office and learn more about our ARM loans. We'll help you find the loan that is just right for you.

*All annual percentage rates are calculated based on a 2% loan discount fee, a loan amount of $50,000.00, a 20% down payment, and monthly principal and interest payments of $456.43 for the 15-year loan and $349.81 for the 30-year loan. These estimated annual percentage rates are subject to increase or decrease on an annual basis after the loan is closed based on the formula set forth in the loan contract.

Women's Economic Club celebrates 25th

W.E.C. members recall club's humble start

By Jenny King
Special Writer

It was difficult to get it growing, but once it was finally started, it expanded in numbers and influence. Today, the Women's Economic Club of Detroit is one of the largest organizations of its kind in the country, with more than 1,300 members on the official roster. They come to regular luncheon meetings and evening seminars from all over southeastern Michigan.

The W.E.C. celebrates its silver anniversary this year. Grosse Pointers Mary Ellen Tappan and Ann Reed Simpson were among the 20 disenchanted women who founded the professional women's organization in 1962 in response to the "no" they received when they asked if they could attend Economic Club of Detroit meetings.

"We come directly from the Economic Club's no-women rule," says Mary Ellen Tappan. "Since then, of course, things have changed, but women were not invited to their regular meetings, not even as guests. Several of us got together and said: 'Let's form our own group,'" recalls the former advertising agency administrator who is now on staff at Mr. Q Travel.

It was a kind of "Catch-22" situation for a while, Tappan says. The young organization needed to attract members so it would, in turn, draw top-flight speakers. And if it didn't offer good speakers, there was no compelling reason for prospective members to join.

Ann Reed Simpson, a charter member who served as fifth president of the W.E.C., confirms the original objective: "We wanted to hear informative speakers and do what is now called 'networking' — talking with one another about jobs. Unlike the existing, more traditional women's business clubs, we were not service-oriented. We didn't want to go out and sell pecans."

Simpson says she spent many after-work and weekend hours writing personal notes to area women the group thought might enhance membership. She would comb the newspapers for names, Simpson says.

Early meetings were often held in a private room at Michigan Bell Telephone Company. Eventually, the group would move on to larger settings like the Sheraton-Cadillac Hotel, the Veterans Memorial Building and Cobo Hall. Tappan says lunch-hour time restrictions were an early problem; many businesses frowned on W.E.C. members taking more than their allotted 60 minutes. Today, noon meetings are held at least once a month in a large banquet area of the Westin Hotel. They last around 90 minutes if one stays for the open question-and-answer session with the day's speaker.

Tappan admits she isn't as involved with the organization as she once was. Her own presidency came 11 years after the founding; she had been heading the Women's Ad Club in the early 1960s.

"It was during my presidency, 1973-74, that the Economic Club of Detroit finally opened its doors to women. I remember having to field all the media phone calls that day. Every radio and TV station, every newspaper in town was calling to ask if that meant the end of the Women's Economic Club," she says, the look on her face recalling the frustration of that time.

"I was furious. 'Why would our members leave?', I asked

Networking: The appeal is obvious

Whether employed by a large company or engaged in more solitary freelance pursuits, local Women's Economics Club members appreciate the same thing: The opportunity to meet professional women from a variety of occupations.

The appeal of "networking" is immediately evident when talking with active W.E.C. members who have become affiliated with the group since 1980.

Martha Richardson of Grosse Pointe Park saw the advantages of making wider professional contacts through the organization shortly after she moved to this area. A member of the marketing staff at Coopers & Lybrand, she recalls being impressed with the caliber of speakers at luncheons and the diversity of professions in the membership ranks.

"In fact, my W.E.C. contacts have been beneficial to our business," she says. "We've gained new clients from people I've met."

Richardson, a member of "about six or seven" years, has immersed herself in the organization's activities. Currently a board member, she has chaired the membership and public relations committees and has sat on the program committee.

"This is the way to really maximize membership," she said.

Detroit Edison promotes involvement of its management-level employees by encouraging membership and by partially subsidizing annual membership fees, says Kay Hunt, community affairs specialist at Edison.

"The Women's Economic Club is an excellent vehicle to get to know people in other professions," Hunt says. She admits her schedule doesn't allow her to attend every monthly luncheon or seminar. When she does go, she says, she prefers to sit at a table of strangers instead of joining her colleagues.

Hunt says she appreciates the option of limited involvement. Grosse Pointe Park freelance writer Joanne Murphy chose the opposite path, having served on the seminar and public relations committees and now chairing the new scholarship subcommittee of the latter, all in the short space of a few years.

"Because I work outside the mainstream, I miss having women and men to relate to," she admits. There are many others like herself, Murphy says, who gain from the larger membership. Women who run small businesses, for example.

"I also like the diversity of the Women's Economic Club membership, compared with organizations that specialize in areas like advertising or communications. There, the members all tend to do the same thing for a living," she adds. Women who work for pay and manage households share constraints which come with the territory, Murphy says. It has been important for her to share those experiences with others.

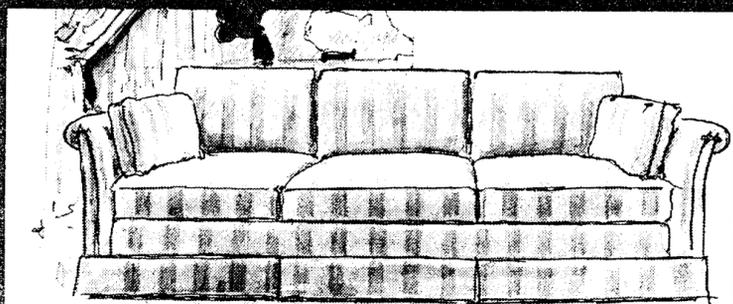

This fall, the Women's Economic Club will award its first scholarship to a member attending a public university in Michigan.

DBC women plan aqua follies

The D.B.C. Women's Committee is planning a gala evening for the Wednesday, July 29, "Wednesday Adult Night." Cocktails begin at 5:30, followed by dinner and a special program.

A special synchronized swim group from Ann Arbor will perform in the Boat Club pool. Comprised of swimmers of all ages, the group will perform solos, duets and team swimming feats. The Pete Baltrus Trio will provide music for dancing. The buffet will feature beef Stroganoff, poultry, fish, fresh vegetable, fruit salad, cole slaw and tossed salad, topped off with apple pie.

Co-chairing the party are Donna Adams and Dorothea Bush, with an assist from Kay Baird, Ella Lewis, Mary Lou Miller, Theone Psihas, Marge Smith, Alice Stoll and Mary Helen Yost. Ella Lewis will conduct a raffle.

Cost is $18 per person. Reservations are necessary and may be made by calling 331-0020.

Fun and scholarships

The Dominican Alumnae Association held an afternoon of cocktails and music for all Dominican alumnae and friends. The event was chaired by Judy Kniffin and Nancy Neat to support the association's scholarship funds. It was held June 28 at the Lake Shore residence of Roger and Doloris Rinke. Pictured are planners Nancy Neat, Roger Rinke, Doloris Rinke and Judy Kniffin.

Garden rose awards given

The Grosse Pointe Rose Show awarded honors to rose arrangements and to garden-grown roses. In the Horticultural Division, Steward Baber took top honors.

Baber won Queen of Show for his rose, Die Welt, and King of Show for Uncle Joe.

Awards for miniature roses were: Mrs. Charles Cantin, Queen of Minatures, Minnie Pearl; Eleanor Kressbach, King of Minatures, Rise 'n' Shine; Eleanor Kressbach, Princess of Minatures, Over the Rainbow.

American Rose Society certificates were given to Debbie Leslie's climber, Dawn; William May's shrub, Country Dancer; and Paul Desmet's Polyanthia, Triomphe Orleannais.

The Braille Volunteers of Grosse Pointe held a luncheon on June 4 at the Grosse Pointe War Memorial to honor members who recently completed the course in Braille transcription over the past year. They are: Carol Bosley, Betsy Court, Olga Gilbert, Blanche Kefgen, Patricia Nelson, Sue Steiger, Janet Stofflett, Thomas Thomas and Jeane Zeck.

The party for over 34 volunteers and guests was planned by Mrs. John McNamara, with the assistance of Mrs. Dale Steiger. Special guests were Lucy Papa, Anne Wheatley, Alicia McKibben and Margaret Pesler. The program began with an invocation given by Mrs. George Betzing.

Guest speaker was Linda Stoetzer, teacher consultant for the visually impaired in Sanilac County. She earned a bachelor of arts degree from Eastern Michigan University and her masters degree from Wayne State University.

The Grosse Pointe Braille volunteers transcribed nearly 5,000 pages during the past year, including textbooks, poetry, scripts for plays, telephone directories, letters and fiction works for children and adults.

The group sent its thanks to Mrs. Earl Peeler, Preceptor Alpha Eta of Beta Sigma Phi; Catherine Gibbons, Mr. and Mrs. George Santoro and Mrs. Edith Smith, for their contributions which enabled the members to produce a greater volume of books without interruption.

Braille transcription classes resume at the War Memorial in late September under the direction of Mrs. John McNamara. Those interested in participating in the project for the winter should contact Mrs. McNamara at 881-9566.

Founders Junior Council taps officers

Founders Junior Council, the largest auxiliary of the Founders Society of the Detroit Institute of Arts, has elected officers for 1987-88. Cara L. Kazanowski of Orchard Lake was elected president; Douglas Dossin of Grosse Pointe, vice president; Sue Kaufman, Bloomfield Hills, secretary, and Michael J. Zieck, Birmingham, was reelected treasurer.

Founders Junior Council, along with Hudson's, annually sponsors the Fash Bash, set this year for Wednesday, Aug. 5, at 5 p.m., at The Westin Hotel Renaissance Ballroom, Level 4. Highlights of Fash Bash '87 include a Hudson's men's and women's fall fashion extravaganza, live and silent auctions, raffle, dancing and cocktails. Last year's event raised $96,000 for DIA acquisitions and programs.

Tax-deductible tickets at $25 each are on sale at the DIA Ticket Office, at Hudson's and other Ticket Master outlets and at the door.

Spencer is Grosse Pointe AAUW's foundation honoree for 1987

The Grosse Pointe Branch of the American Association of University Women has honored Eloise Spencer with a gift in her name to the AAUW Educational Foundation. A $1,500 Grosse Pointe Branch American Fellowship Endowment was made in her name; the group bestows this honor on a deserving member each year. Spencer has served as AAUW legislative chairman and has been third vice president for the first two years. Her guidance and planning has involved large numbers of members in creating two years of general meeting programs including a community venture, "Shifting Gears," a pre-retirement workshop.

Spencer is a native of Nebraska, where she received her undergraduate degree. She earned a masters degree at New York University and a master of social work degree from the University of Michigan with a major in community organization. Her work in AAUW reflects her strong belief in women's ability to cope with changing conditions, in their capacity to lead and in their role as full partners in the quest for a better world.

On the local level the Grosse Pointe Branch AAUW has awarded four scholarships. These 1986-87 $1,000 scholarships are awarded through Michigan colleges and universities to women wishing additional training. The current recipients are Eva A. Carababas of Grosse Pointe Park, University of Detroit; Lynn Marie Shier of Grosse Pointe Park, Marygrove College;

Bonnie Schubert of St. Clair Shores, Madonna College; and Marion Spitzley of Grosse Pointe Park, Center for Creative Studies. An additional recipient, Fern Stoffer from Dearborn, has been awarded a $2,000 Research and Projects grant from the Grosse Pointe Endowment Grant established on the national level.

AAUW scholarships and grants are funded by the annual AAUW Used Booksale. This year is the 25th for this successful event, which will run Tuesday, Sept. 29 through Sunday, Oct. 4, at the Salem Memorial Church, 21230 Moross Road, Detroit. Books are now being collected in barrels at four locations: Damman Hardware in Grosse Pointe Village, Kroger's on Mylar Road, and the Farmer Jack stores at Harper and Moross and at Mack near Vernier.

A pick-up service is available by calling the following numbers: for July, 331-8211 or 884-0936 or 885-6538; during August, 886-4726 or 885-6220. No books will be accepted after Aug. 31.

AAUW Branch chairman Fran Schonenberg (left) presents Eloise Spencer with a $1,500 gift in her name at AAUW's education foundation. Also receiving scholarships are Eva A. Carababas and Lynn Marie Shier, both from Grosse Pointe Park.

The Pastor's Corner

The Bible and illness

By David H. Wick
Pastor, Grosse Pointe Baptist Church

I didn't sign the Grosse Pointe Ministerium Statement on AIDS and I'd like to explain why. No doubt many people assume that, because some Baptist preachers hold the view that AIDS is always God's punishment on sexual deviates, I would automatically agree with them.

Actually, it's a terrible mistake to assume that Baptist preachers are in agreement on anything. Remember that Jesse Jackson and Jerry Falwell are both Baptist preachers. My reason for not signing the statement was related to one aspect of it: The statement that God does not use illness as a punishment for the sin of an individual.

I agree wholeheartedly that we must show compassion on the victims of AIDS, that we should not judge them (or for that matter anyone who becomes terminally ill with any disease); and in general I thought the statement on AIDS was very well intentioned. But I cannot agree that God never uses illness as the punishment for the sin of an individual.

The Bible teaches that there are in fact three reasons for sickness. First, there is a sickness unto death: "...it is appointed unto men to die once, and after this comes judgment" Hebrews 9:27. Put bluntly, we all have to die of something sooner or later.

I've always been somewhat amused by those who maintain that "Jesus wants you well." How are they planning to die? The sickness unto death, however, leads beyond death to resurrection and eternal life.

During that time of final sickness, many people who have never given spiritual things a second thought come to faith in God. The sickness unto death, while a grim reality, can thus also impart an eternal blessing. Every AIDS case is, tragically, a sickness unto death. But it may be more than that.

The second Biblical reason for sickness is the sickness unto chastisement. This is precisely the reason precluded by the Ministerium's AIDS statement.

There are numerous Old Testament examples of such sickness, but perhaps the clearest doctrinal presentation of this category of sickness is found in I Corinthians 11:29-32. The Corinthian Christians who did not "discern the body" in the Lord's Supper were being chastised with illness, and even with death.

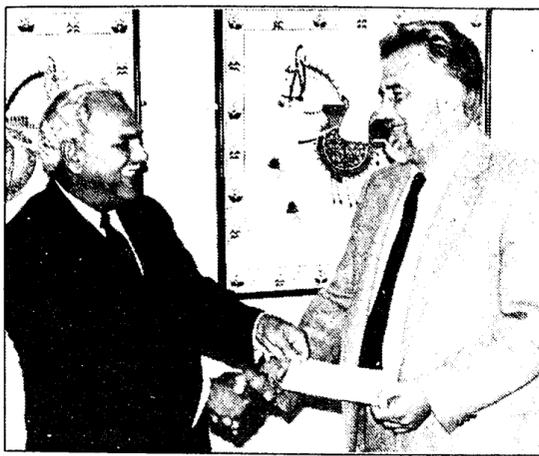

This does not mean that every time a person gets sick, God is punishing them or disciplining them for some sin they committed. In fact, I think this type of sickness is the exception rather than the rule.

But our Sovereign God has every right to use sickness as a rod of chastisement if He chooses. He does not so punish every sin, and in fact it is a mark of His special favor when He does (Hebrews 12:6).

In James 5:14-16 the anointing of and prayer for the sick includes dealing with the possibility that the sickness is a discipline for sin; healing will come with confession.

It would be very presumptuous for me or anybody to judge for someone else whether they were sick for reasons of discipline, but it isn't a bad idea at all for us to examine ourselves spiritually when we become ill. Thus AIDS could be a chastisement, whether or not it resulted from engaging in sexual perversion.

The third Biblical reason for sickness is the sickness unto the glory of God, such as that of the man born blind in John 9:1-5. This sickness may glorify God through his miraculous healing of it, or it may glorify God through being endured in God's grace, as was the case with Paul's "thorn in the flesh," II Corinthians 12:7-10. It seems likely to me that this is the category under which most of the illness we experience falls. An AIDS victim enduring to the death his or her illness with strength and courage in the grace which God supplies, could certainly be suffering illness in order to bring glory to God. Whenever any kind of illness strikes someone else the example and Spirit of Jesus directs us to address it with compassion, redemptive love, and efforts to promote healing. AIDS may be a terrible illness, but it is only an illness after all, and the grace of God is greater than any illness, just as it is greater than all of our sin.

Guild fund-raiser

Hutzel Hospital President Frank P. Iacobell of Grosse Pointe Woods recently accepted this donation of $50.00 from Ron Urbanczyk, of New Baltimore, president of the Hutzel Hospital Men's Guild.

The check represents a year-long effort by the Men's Guild which raised the money sponsoring various activities like its annual Stag Night and Golf Invitational.

Pointe churches will collect food for poor next weekend

A special collection for the poor has been organized in conjunction with the upcoming visit of Pope John-Paul II. An Archdiocesan-wide food drive will take place the weekend of July 25-26. Bags printed with the papal logo will be available at local Catholic churches this weekend, July 18-19, to take home and fill with cans and boxes of food.

Gleaners Community Bank and the Food Bank of Oakland County will assist in the distribution of the food collected at local churches. Some 230 emergency food depots, shelters and soup kitchens throughout the metropolitan area will benefit from the collections, which will be made in honor of the papal visit.

The idea for the collection originated with the Spirituality and Catechesis Committee organized for the papal visit. A letter from Archbishop Edmund Stzoka which outlined the plan was read at all masses in the archdiocese last weekend.

St. Paul Church, which has been directing similar collections to Detroit's St. Bernard's parish for 10 years, will also accept financial donations at the St. Paul rectory and forward them to St. Bernard's.

they paid six times that figure two years ago when Democratic vice presidential candidate Geraldine Ferraro spoke.

A pre-luncheon press conference was an early addition. It helped attract public attention to the organization, Tappan says. And that has been important, since it has been a struggle to get off the traditional "women's pages" and into the business sections of newspapers, Simpson says.

This month, both former officers will be invited to attend the annual president's luncheon where they'll have a chance to meet with and counsel newly-elected W.E.C. head Marie Farrell-Donaldson. In spite of an extensive network of committees, the president wields plenty of power. Tappan says she thinks that the City of Detroit Ombudsman will be a strong leader.

In addition to the luncheon meetings with press conferences and speakers, the organization offers its members regular seminars on subjects like women's health concerns, how to start and manage one's own business and personal finance. There's also an annual golf and tennis outing, weekend seminars away from Detroit and occasional trips. Two years ago, Tappan arranged for a group of 21 members to fly to Belgium and France. In Brussels they met with professionals who explained facets of the European Common Market System to them. Paris, she admits, was just for fun. The dollar was exceptionally strong at the time and shopping replaced the more serious conference aspect of the sojourn.

Did the founders envision such a large, diverse membership involved in wide-ranging activities? "We hoped it would grow," Tappan answers.

Mr. and Mrs. Gary Wittenberg

Bassett-Wittenberg

Mary Lenore Bassett, daughter of Lenore Bassett and the late Arthur Bassett of Grosse Pointe Farms, married Gary Thomas Wittenberg, son of Janice and Ronald Wittenberg of Grosse Pointe Farms, on March 14, 1987, at the Grosse Pointe Academy Chapel.

The Rev. Terry Langley officiated at the 4:30 p.m. ceremony, which was followed by a reception at the Grosse Pointe War Memorial.

The bride wore an ivory satin dress with an organza beaded bodice and a long train. Her fingertip veil had matching beading. She carried ivory gardenias with ivy and off-white roses.

The matron of honor was the bride's sister, Elizabeth Ann Palombit of St. Clair Shores. Bridesmaids were Doris Ann Wittenberg, sister of the groom, St. Clair Shores; Susan Lee Bassett, sister of the bride, Grosse Pointe Farms; Sheila King Winter and Martha Berry, friends of the bride, both of Grosse Pointe. The flowergirl was Jenna Anne Wittenberg, niece of the groom, Grosse Pointe.

The best man was Ronald Eugene Wittenberg of Grosse Pointe, brother of the groom. Groomsmen were Mark Christopher Babich, brother-in-law of the groom, St. Clair Shores; Marc Palombit brother-in-law of the bride, St. Clair Shores; Barry Stapleton, friend of the groom, Grosse Pointe; and Mark Diem, friend of the groom, Detroit. The ringbearer was Scott Matthew Lambert, nephew of the bride, Harper Woods.

The mother of the bride wore a peach chiffon daytime-length dress with a satin belt. Her corsage was an ivory gardenia.

The mother of the groom wore an ivory fluted dress and a peach corsage.

A string quartet played during the wedding procession and communion service.

The bride is a graduate of Henry Ford Hospital School of Nursing. She is employed as a registered nurse in the hospital's operating room.

The groom is vice-president of Eastview Aluminum.

O'Donoghue-Proteau

Deidre Fahey O'Donoghue, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William J. O'Donoghue of Grosse Pointe Park, married Gregory Proteau, son of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Proteau of Clearwater, Fla., on May 9, 1987, at St. Clare of Montefalco Church.

The noon ceremony was followed by a reception at the Grosse Pointe Hunt Club.

The bride wore a gown of white satin with lace sleeves and a train trimmed in lace. Her bodice was beaded with pearls. She carried a bouquet of Eucharis lilies with stephanotis and ivy.

The matron of honor was Mavourneen O'Donoghue, sister of the bride, of Wilmington, Del. Bridesmaids were Mary Ann Dombrowski, friend of the bride, Colts Neck, N.J.; and Cathy Wood, friend of the bride, Bozeman, Mont. They wore teal-length, periwinkle blue dresses and carried bouquets of silk flowers in periwinkle and mauve.

The best man was Charles Greer, friend of the groom, Naperville, Ill. Groomsmen were Nelson Wold, friend of the groom, Wilmette, Ill.; Jacques Proteau, brother of the groom, Southport, Conn.; Jonathan Groesbeck, friend of the groom, Pasadena, Calif.; and Patrick O'Donoghue, brother of the bride, Grosse Pointe Park.

The bride is a graduate of the University of Michigan. She is employed as director of inventory control at Sears Mortgage Corp.

The groom is a graduate of the University of Illinois and works as director of public relations at National Marine Manufacturers Association.

DAR member researches Old Ironsides

Mrs. Ralph Ranney of Grosse Pointe Woods has written a playlet about the Bicentennial of the U.S. Constitution for her Louisa St. Clair Chapter of the Daughters of the American Revolution. As research, she has read copies of "We the People," the official newsletter of the Commission of the Bicentennial.

The June issue contained information about the USS Constitution, Old Ironsides, of particular interest to Mrs. Ranney because her great-great-grandfather, Prince Athearn, was a shipbuilder in Cincinnati who was sent to the woods of Maine to select the most sturdy trees for the construction of the ship.

American Cuisine: A melting pot of culinary influences

By Ink Mendelsohn
Smithsonian News Service

If you still think of tacos and pizza as "junk" food, you may want to reconsider. Regional American specialties like the taco and such European borrowings as pizza, blended with the spices of personal creativity, are the ingredients of an emerging eclectic American cuisine. The taco, it seems, is one of America's most historic dishes, and today in this country's top restaurants, pizza is not only hot but "haute."

"Haute cuisine" — French classical cooking — has been a bone of culinary contention in America at least since Patrick Henry accused Thomas Jefferson of having become "so Frenchified that he had abjured his native victuals." In truth, the president was ever seeking the best in food and was always ready to try anything. Jefferson took pride in serving his ever-present dinner guests Virginia's regional foods along with such European "curiosities" as macaroni and cheese.

After 200 years, America's culinary establishment and much of the citizenry are shedding rigid ideas of what an American cuisine should or should not be and coming around to Jefferson's broad-minded way of thinking. Culinary historian Michael Batterberry recently explained to a Smithsonian Resident Associate Program class the difficulty of defining America's style of cooking: "A cuisine is a living thing and that's sometimes a problem for historians." Continual interchange and mingling of food customs were inevitable in the American melting pot.

When the first Europeans arrived in America, they found Indian tribes in several parts of the country who were sophisticated cooks. Some delicious Indian gifts to American cooking are clam chowder, cranberry sauce, roasted peanuts, hominy, corn bread, pumpkin soup, Brunswick stew, maple syrup and "Boston" baked beans. The Powhatans "invented" Smithfield ham with their hickory-smoking technique. But they couldn't have done it all. Spanish explorer Hernando de Soto hadn't brought 13 hogs to Florida in 1542.

The marriage of American Indian and European cuisines began in the 16th century with the torrid union of Indian cookery featuring the chili pepper and highly spiced Spanish medieval cooking, according to culinary historian Ariane Batterberry. "One of the most ancient foods you can eat is a good old-fashioned taco," she told the Smithsonian class.

The tortilla, once a staple in the Aztec kingdom of Montezuma, was an Indian contribution to this handy, wholesome dish. Mexican Indians brought their cornmeal cake to the American Southwest in the early 17th century. Inside the tortilla's protective shell, Spanish lettuce, cheese and beef mingled with Indian tomatoes and peppery chili sauce.

"The Mayflower carried spices," James Baker, another lecturer in the Smithsonian series of culinary history classes, pointed out. According to Baker, research librarian at Plimoth Plantation, Mass., it's a myth that early New England's "English yeoman cuisine" was bland. "The Pilgrims ate hearty, plain meals, but for special menus, they enjoyed spiced dishes and artful presentation." With or without flavorings and frills, English culinary traditions would become a dominant force in middle-class American home-cooking.

In the homes of the very wealthy and in much restaurant cooking, however, French standards of gastronomy would prevail. The Franco-American culinary alliance dates from the American Revolution when such prominent Americans as Jefferson and Franklin called attention to French cooking and it became fashionable among the elite. To show sympathy with the American cause, the French began eating turkey — stuffed with truffles.

After the French Revolution began in 1789, the Reign of Terror propelled aristocratically allied chefs and pastry cooks to America. These skilled refugees and others who followed over the years introduced French cooking techniques and spread such Gallic tastes as soups, salads, and bon bons. They opened cafes and restaurants — two of the words of a new language, "culinary French." Filet, soufflé, fricassee, puree, consommé, pâté, — but not hors d'oeuvres — rolled merrily from many American tongues. Way out west, a Denver hotel by mid-19th century was serving "bear's paws en gele."

Many Americans, however, were not exactly swept away by Gallic gastronomic gusts. Harriet Beecher Stowe, author of Uncle Tom's Cabin, sniffed, "O, we can't give time here in America to go into niceties and French whimsies." Stowe's concern reflected the mid-19th-century regionalism in American cooking. Before refrigeration and railroads, Americans depended on seasonal local ingredients and family culinary traditions.

By the sea in New England, clam chowder was a favorite. In the coastal South, a rice-growing region, "Hoppin' John" — rice with bacon and red peas — was a specialty. Maryland crabcakes emerged from the bounty of Chesapeake Bay. The thrifty Pennsylvania Dutch produced scrapple from butchering scraps. Corn, the staff of life of the American Indian, was featured in regional dishes everywhere from Rhode Island "jonnycakes" to posole, the classic New Mexican stew. And Texas chili was legendary.

A fiery Louisiana combination was Creole cuisine — New Orleans city cooking — and its Mississippi Delta country cousin, cajun cooking. The two cooking styles teamed up to make a distinctively American culinary statement. The contributors to this Louisiana-French style of cooking were American Indians, Spaniards, Africans, French Acadians, West Indians, Germans, Mexicans, and Chinese. No wonder that Louisiana specialties are multi-versioned mixed delights such as gumbo and jambalaya. Paul Prudhomme, chef of New Orleans' K-Pauls Louisiana Kitchen, says, "You would find a different gumbo on every stove."

Space continually had to be made in the American culinary kettles as immigrants from the world over came to these shores, some bearing dishes that would become daily fare. German arrivals to Midwestern farmlands and such cities as Chicago, St. Louis and Milwaukee brought hamburger steak, sauerkraut, hot dogs and potato salad. Macaroni, once a feather in Jefferson's cap but mistaken for onions by one of his guests, was by the late-19th century called "a favorite American food." In New York City in the Gay Nineties, spaghetti began to wind its way around American hearts. But the big love affair with Italian food began after World War II when GIs returned from southern Italy dreaming of Neapolitan pizza, and pizzerias began to pop up around the country.

Millions of Americans became more adventurous eaters as they encountered exotic dishes during wartime service and postwar travel in Europe and Asia. During the 1950s and '60s, "gastronomic gurus," — as food writer Ellen Brown describes New York Times food editor Craig Claiborne, Julia Child and the late James Beard — began to write and talk about, not the nourishing qualities of food, but its pleasures. Brown stresses Child's electronic influence: "Three million people learned to debone chicken from Julia Child."

Meanwhile, out West a young woman was reinventing the meal. In 1971, Alice Waters opened her Berkeley, Calif., restaurant, Chez Panisse, founded on her culinary philosophy of faith in fresh ingredients and respect for the seasons. She recalls today "lettuce with the snails still on it" and "trout that tried to jump out of the sink." At the time Chez Panisse opened, thousands of "Continental" restaurants in America were serving meals reheated from a frozen state, prompting one wag to decide that the continent in question must have been Antarctica. Sunny California's new cuisine flowered in the San Francisco Bay Area and in Los Angeles and soon affected chefs and restaurants across America.

"People today have more educated palates because they eat out more," Thomas Peer of the Culinary Institute of America says. Peer trains chefs of the future in the American Bounty Restaurant of the Hyde Park, N.Y., culinary academy. This CIA is filled with eager students who are looking forward to creative careers and even possible stardom.

Eating out today has become a form of entertainment for the 1980s lifestyle with its growing population of singles and working couples. Kitchens are often front and center in the restaurant, offering diners a culinary show. Chefs, too, are coming out of the kitchen and into the limelight to mingle with admirers in the dining room. Wolfgang Puck, chef and owner of Spago and Chinois on Main in Los Angeles, smiles a puckian smile when asked about the demands of celebrity. "It's easy to be a showman if you love what you do."

Puck, one of America's most renowned chefs, has a specialty — pizza. Puck's pizzas are topped with duck sausage, smoked salmon, golden caviar and California goat cheese. Chefs around the country are practicing personal pizza panache typical of the new American cuisine using squash blossoms, salad greens, truffles, mussels and quail eggs. From Santa Cruz, Calif., comes word of Chinese pizza with Szechwan or sweet-and-sour sauce.

"Food is to nourish, but it should also comfort, nurture and have a sense of humor," Anne Rosensweig thinks. Rosensweig, chef and owner of New York City's Arcadia, is one of a growing number of female chefs in America. She acknowledges "a passion for food."

The "mother" of the evolving and experimental new American cooking style is still passionate about it. Alice Waters enthuses: "We could come up with something fantastic."

Grosse Pointe
A Unique Community

A Cultural Cornucopia Appreciation of the arts begins at an early age for Grosse Pointe children. The public library, a division of the Grosse Pointe Public School System, offers, at no cost, a variety of children's reading programs at its three locations.

For adults, the library programs range from travel films to informative presentations on subjects of current interest. These, too, are free to residents of all the Grosse Pointes.

Another great source of local culture is the beautiful War Memorial Center, the former mansion of the Russell A. Alger family. With its subsequently added ballroom and theater overlooking Lake St. Clair, the center is a community attraction that rivals the many private clubs in the area. Here—open to all residents—are offered art classes and exhibits, lectures, concerts, plays, ballet and social dancing instruction, and children's theater, as well as membership in a long list of special-interest clubs whose focus is either cultural, informative or just plain fun.

A more recent addition to public property is the Edsel and Eleanor Ford House. Designed by architect Albert Kahn and supported by a $15 million endowment, this gracious replica of an English manor house is now open for tours and is used for meetings, fund-raising events and several series of "house" concerts.

Grosse Pointe
A Unique Community

Architectural Diversity As the great variety of home sizes and styles suggests, growth has continued slowly over many years. It continues even today. Old estates are subdivided for building contemporary homes, making the mansions that still survive (and many do) all the more treasured by their owners and tradition-minded residents. At the same time, the area includes homes of just about every style and size—from townhouses, two-family units and other small homes to gracious English Tudors, colonials, executive mansions, contemporary ranch styles and a variety of modern designs, including condominiums.

This diversity has helped make Grosse Pointe attractive to all who value well-maintained quality which far exceeds its price.

Grosse Pointe A Unique Community

A Romantic Past As a Grosse Pointe resident, you'll walk upon grounds that were once the swamp, marsh and meadow haunts of deer, buffalo and beaver. It was this profusion of wildlife—plus fish from the 460-square-mile Lake St. Clair—that attracted the French farmers who first settled the area in 1701.

During the century that they fished, farmed and traded with the local Indians, many legends began. And many infamous locations were indelibly named: Fox Creek, graveyard of the Fox Indian nation; Bloody Run, where a company of British soldiers from Fort Detroit were ambushed and killed.

From Pristine to Prosperous After a brief period under British rule, the area began its history as an American settlement. Its beauty and bounty made it an ideal resort area for families from the growing city of Detroit. Between 1875 and 1925, Grosse Pointe became the elegant summer residence—and then permanent home—of families who had amassed fortunes in lumber and automobiles. In the midst of the lavish mansions, farm cottages and resort ambiance, there gradually grew a year-round community of quality homes for families from all walks of life.

Oriental Veal and Sprouts Ginger-Mandarin Orange Mold Fruit Compote Salad Italiano Endive with Lemon-Walnut Dressing

Oriental Veal and Sprouts

1½ lbs. lean veal, cut into thin strips
3 Tbsp. safflower oil, divided
3 green onions, sliced
1 can (4 oz.) mushrooms, drained
1 clove garlic, finely minced
1 Tbsp. flour
2 Tbsp. soy sauce
1 can (16 oz.) bean sprouts, drained
Brown veal strips in two table spoons hot oil. Add onions, garlic and drained mushrooms;

sauté five minutes, stirring constantly. Sprinkle flour over veal mixture, stirring until well blended. Add soy sauce. Cover and cook about 15 minutes or until veal is tender. Should more moisture be needed add a little mushroom liquid.

While meat cooks, stir-fry bean sprouts lightly in remaining one tablespoon of oil until well heated. Serve meat with sauce on a bed of sprouts. Makes six servings. About 260 calories each.

One serving = three medium fat exchange and one vegetable exchange.

Ginger-Mandarin Orange Mold

1 env. + 2 tsp. unflavored gelatin
1 cup boiling water
1 can (6 oz.) frozen orange juice concentrate
1 can (6 oz.) cold water
1 can (11 oz.) mandarin oranges in light syrup, drained
2 Tbsp. deglazed crystallized ginger, finely minced*

Dissolve gelatin in boiling water, stirring until thoroughly dissolved. Add frozen juice and cold water; mix well. Divide drained oranges among eight 6-ounce individual or one large mold. Stir deglazed ginger bits into gelatin and divide among the eight cups. Refrigerate. When gelatin is almost set or the consistency of raw egg whites; stir to distribute the orange segments. Chill the gelatin until it is set. Makes eight servings.

One serving = 1½ fruit exchanges. Calories about 69.

*To deglaze crystallized ginger pieces... place discs in cup, cover with actively boiling water for about two minutes. Rinse in cold water so that all sugar has been removed; dry thoroughly in paper toweling; with very sharp knife mince into small bits.

Fruit Compote

1 can (16 oz.) unsweetened pineapple chunks, drained

1 can (1 lb.) unsweetened peach slices, drained
2 tsp. grated orange peel

Preheat oven to 400 degrees. Arrange fruit in an eight-inch baking dish. Sprinkle with coconut and orange peel.

Pour boiling water over three or four pieces of crystallized ginger, let the ginger stand in the water for a couple of minutes; then rinse with cold water; pat dry with paper toweling. Cut into small pieces and sprinkle over the fruit.

Bake for 10 to 15 minutes or until hot. Serve warm to four.

One serving = 2 fruit exchanges. Calories about 97.

Salad Italiano

12 leaves romaine lettuce

1 large tomato, cut into wedges
2 scallions, chopped
6 anchovies, cut into 1/2-inch pieces
1/4 cup olive or vegetable oil
3 Tbsp. red wine vinegar
1/2 tsp. oregano
12 black olives

Wash chicory and romaine and blot dry on paper toweling and tear into bite-size pieces and place in salad bowl. Add tomato, scallions and anchovies. In a cup, stir together the oil, vinegar and oregano. Pour over salad; toss well to thoroughly blend ingredients. Garnish with olives.

Makes four servings.
One serving = 2 vegetable exchanges and 3 fat exchanges.
Calories about 195 per serving.

Hello Grosse Pointe!

One week ago today, I planted some of my roots in the city of Grosse Pointe Farms and no sooner did I arrive here did I learn to climb "The Hill."

The climb has been nothing but uphill, but I'm sure that after a few short days or weeks, the battle will become slightly downhill.

Taking on the sports editor's post has been a challenge. I have some pretty big shoes to fill, but I am confident I can continue to give top coverage to a top community.

I guess you could say that I am a Grosse Pointe import. I grew up in the city of Warren (where I reside now), so I am somewhat familiar with the east side. I graduated from Warren Fitzgerald High School in the summer of 1981, and the following fall I attended Central Michigan University where I earned my bachelor of applied arts degree in journalism in May 1985.

I am enjoying the profession and I intend to continue to do so and there is no better way to get involved in sports than in a great athletic community such as Grosse Pointe.

In March 1986, I took on the sports editor's job at the Marshall Chronicle where I worked until I was hired here at the News. Marshall was a great little city, and it reminds me a lot of the Grosse Pointes. However, some of the rivalries are not as heated, nor do they seem to carry the same meaning. But I am happy to be involved in the community as a sports writer.

Many of my expectations are currently unfulfilled, but with time and patience they will become reality. I have already learned plenty about the athletic programs and the like, but I will also need some help in discovering what most of it means. One of the most important facts I have learned is the sports rivalry between South and North. It has been compared to the Michigan-Ohio State matches, but I won't know that until I witness it first-hand.

Nobody said it would be easy taking over for Peggy O'Connor, but then again I never anticipated it would be. What I do anticipate, however, is a great 1987-88 sports year throughout the Pointes. I am a fanatic when it comes to sports and I truly believe the Pointes will bring out the best in me. They say that Ann Arbor is a great sports city, but nothing seems to compare to the athlete reputation and tradition the Pointes carry.

This job is a challenge and I am ready to tackle it. I am looking forward to working with the coaching staffs and others involved with sports.

Busy July at 'Y'

The Lakeshore Family YMCA is planning a full schedule of sports and fitness classes in July. Registration is being accepted now for classes beginning the week of July 6.

Adult classes include swimming, fitness, body toning, yoga, aerobic dance, women's weight training, karate and aikido (self-defense). Youth classes include swimming, parent and tot together time, pre-school sport readiness, fit by five, wigglin' book worms. New for this summer is judo for boys and girls 7 through 14.

There is a special summer membership offer good through the end of August; fees are $70 for the family, $48 for adults and $16 for children.

The Lakeshore Family YMCA is on Jefferson near Nine Mile in St. Clair Shores. For more information, call 778-5811 weekdays.

Jon Rice takes over South football

By Rob Fulton
 Sports Editor

After 13 years as an assistant varsity football coach at South, Jon Rice will step into the head coaching post for the Blue Devils when the 1987-88 campaign kicks off.

Rice will fill the post left vacant by Russ Hepner, who retired from coaching in May with over 100 career wins.

"I will have some pretty big shoes to fill," said Rice. "Rice will be greatly missed and I hope I can have the same type of success he had."

Rice, who graduated from Grosse Pointe High School in 1960, feels that a life-long dream has finally become reality.

"I can remember growing up and always wanting to be a head coach of football," said the 45-year-old Rice. "My dad was a head coach at Denby so I guess you could say it's been in my blood ever since I was a kid."

Rice, who was groomed under Russ Hepner during his 13-year stint, realized his potential to become a head coach, but he never thought the opportunity would arise.

"I came here 13 years ago with Russ and during the time I spent with him I never thought I would get the chance to become a head coach," he said, "but now it's something I know I can do and I am very excited about it."

Although Hepner will not be present on the field working his wonders of the game, Rice will not let Hepner's accomplishments go astray when he begins his first full season as the Devils' coach.

"Russ built up such a great program here and one of his best facets was his organization," Rice said. "I will not change any of that. It was absolutely fantastic what he did for the program at South."

Rice, who graduated from Olivet College in 1966, knows about Murphy's Law, but he is a firm believer in 'Hepner's Process.'

"We are going to change a few X's and O's, but the concept will remain the same just as if he were coaching," said Rice. "Russ has groomed a lot of these kids, as well as myself, into a set pattern and I feel we need to stick with that in order to be successful."

When Rice steps onto the field for the first kickoff of 1987, he will be trying to improve on a 5-4 record. Not only will he be trying to eclipse last season's mark, but Rice will be attempting to grab the Eastern Michigan League crown; something the Devils haven't had since the 1984-85 season.

"I like realizable things," said the first-year coach. "I like the concept of beating everybody you should beat. If you can do this, then you hope the rest will take care of itself."

Realistically, Rice is aiming for at least five wins in nine attempts. With the stiff competition in the league, as well as in non-league play, the Devils have their work cut out for them, but Rice is ready for his inaugural challenge.

"I can remember growing up and always wanting to be a head coach of football"

Orioles-White Sox
The Orioles and White Sox battled in the National League Minors World Series and it took only two games for the Orioles to upend the White Sox.

Matt Bentley grabbed a 9-8 win in the opener for the Orioles, and John Prom recorded a 10-9 win in the finale to give the Orioles the 1987 crown. Tom Rajt pitched the final three innings of both games for the Orioles and picked up two saves.

Fritz Coyro and Andy Bramlage pitched in both games for the White Sox.

The Orioles punched out 12 hits in game one and then followed with a 10-hit barrage in game two. The big blow in game one came from the bat of Joe Lisak. Lisak tagged a home run and later singled to tally two RBI.

Prom rapped out two singles in the opener and Scott Lupo, Charlie Severn, and Chris Wilde each added singles for the Orioles. Matt Bentley laced a double as did Rajt and Don Leal. Rajt and Leal also drilled singles. Bentley, Rajt and Lisak were the top RBI collectors for the Orioles in game one with two apiece.

The White Sox only had six hits in the first game, but Scott McCain contributed 'quite heavily as he smacked a home run, added a double, and knocked in five of the eight Sox runs. Bramlage, who pitched the final three innings, was the only other Sox batter to gather two hits. Paul Haddad and John McNaughton each added singles.

In the championship game, Joey Michael cranked a grand slam to pace the Orioles. Scott Lupo also drilled a home run and had 4RBI in the Oriole cause. Lisak and Bentley collected two hits apiece for the Orioles, and Prom grabbed a double and single. Don Leal added a single.

Fritz Coyro, who tried valiantly to help his own cause, collected four RBI with a double and two singles for the White Sox. Paul Hadad ripped a home run and added a single to gather one RBI.

Andy Bramlage, McCain, Mike Verlingen and Robbie Bacon each added singles to a nine-hit game for the White Sox.

All-American

Ann G. Sherer, a 1983 University Liggett School graduate, was named to the 1987 All-American Lacrosse Team in recognition of her efforts on behalf of the University of New Hampshire women's squad. Sherer, of Grosse Pointe, credits ULS Middle School teacher Romilly Stackpoole (left) with generating her interest in the sport. Stackpoole coached Sherer for four seasons.

World Series Champs!

The Buffalos, of the Grosse Pointe Woods and Shores National League Minors, won the National League Championship and went on to play the American League July 8 for the World Series title and came away with an 8-6 "Series" win.

Each member of the Buffalos, and their manager, received their World Series Championship trophies on July 9.

South's Connie Mack team wins two

Grosse Pointe South's Connie Mack baseball team won two of its three games last week, while a fourth game was suspended after three innings due to rain. Coach Dan Griesbaum's squad now sports a 5-8 win-loss record.

On July 7, the Blue Devils shut out the Mt. Clemens Merchants, 5-0 behind the one-hit pitching of Marcus Wysocki. Wysocki fanned eight and walked three. Wysocki also aided his own cause with two hits and three RBI.

Sean Bruce and Dan Cimini also notched two hits. Marty Saad, Doug Lucas, and Matt Montagne garnered the winners' other hits.

The re-match with Mt. Clemens on July 9 was suspended at the end of the third when the rains came and South trailing 4-0. It will be resumed at a later date.

The Devils split a double header with St. Clair Shores on July 11, losing the opener, 6-2 then bouncing back to take the nightcap, 6-3.

Doubles by Bruce and Cimini accounted for South's only hits in the first game. Cimini's blow knocked in both runs.

Wysocki went the first 6 1/3 innings and was tagged with the loss after yielding eight hits and four walks while striking out nine.

Grosse Pointe Park's 34th annual fishing rodeo was a success, with over 60 anglers setting their lines for perch, bass, sheepsheads and other Lake St. Clair fish.

Edward Safadi caught the largest fish in the June 27 rodeo;

Bruce homered and singled to drive in four runs, while Adam Mocerri knocked out a solo four-bagger in the second game. Cimini, Saad, and Dave Arnold collected the other hits for the Blue Devils.

Lucas went the first four innings in the nightcap to gain the victory. He struck out two and gave up five hits without issuing a walk. Rusty Knowles and Adam Franco tossed the remaining three innings.

the catch of Andrew Steiger and Liz Behler tied for smallest fish honors. Safadi also took home prizes for reeling in the first and last catch of the day. He also caught the most fish. James Voss won the prize for craziest catch.

captures win -73

The Grosse Pointe Yacht Club won its 73rd meet in a row with a win over the Country Club of Detroit on July 8.

GPYC tallied 594 points compared to CCD's 393. Thirty-two first places were won by GPYC.

Eight and under winners were: Dana Mertz (breast), Jamie Taylor (back and free), Scott Gregory (back and free), and Susan Cornille (fly).

The winners in the 9-10 group were: Lauren Kordus (breast), Kyle Zeller (breast, back, and fly), Suzanne Toledo (back and free), and Tim Reynart who set a new club record in the freestyle at 31.50.

In the 11-12 category, blue ribbons were won by Alicia Cytacki (breast), Pat Kirchner (breast), Jenny Smith (back), Peter Mertz (back), Ashley Moran (fly and free), Jon Sieber (fly), Brenn Schoenherr (free).

In the 13-14 age group, the winners were: Courtney Youngblood (breast), Ted Stedem (breast and fly), Katie Tompkins (back), Chris Keane (back), Erika Teitge (free), and Mike Kirchner (free).

Winning in the 15-16 age group were: Ann Tipp (breast), Eric Steiner (breast), Chris Nevison (back and fly), and Brad Stedem (free).

Capturing second places for the team were Jennifer Paolucci, Brady Schoenher, Peter Anthony Brown, Stephanie Lafond, Jamie Mertz, and Jamie Nevison, Hadley Creech, Shera Teitge, Megan Moran, Brian Brown.

The finals will be held at the Dearborn Country Club on July 25-26.

PGSA teams play well

The eighth annual Wolverine Youth Soccer Tournament was held July 3-5 and Pointe Girls Soccer Association teams fared well in this top-rated tournament.

At the under 16 level, girls from University Liggett School and St. Clair Shores joined South High players in a late entry that won its flight before bowing to the SE Cincinnati Cardinals, 3-1, in the semifinals. Playing well despite the 83-degree heat and a player shortage due to injuries and illness, the Mustangs got strong defensive efforts from goalie Michelle Kovalcik and fullbacks Julie Gayman, Kathy Gayman and Kathy Foley. The eventual tournament champs, Sycamore Arsenal, were shut out by the local contingent and rated Kovalcik above the two best goalies in the 13-state midwest region of the Junior Olympic Development Program, both of whom they faced and defeated in this tournament.

PGSA's other entry, in the under 12 group, also played well. Tied for second in their flight, they were eliminated from further play by the fourth tie-breaker: goals against. They defeated the Canton Angels, 2-0, tied the Cincinnati Cardinals, 0-0, and lost to the Livonia Hawks, 2-1.

Former Farms racer sets mark

John DeVos, owner and driver of "In Cahoots", has come a long way since entering his outboard boat in competition at the Farms Regatta.

DeVos now holds the UIM (Uniform-code of International Motorboating) world competition speed record for the 2.5 litre modified hydro class. On April 11, DeVos roared to the record by establishing an average speed for three laps of a 1 2/3-mile course of 103.413 miles per hour - bettering the old record by 1 1/2 miles per hour. The record was set in St. Petersburg, Fla., in front of more than 10,000 racing spectators.

"In Cahoots" was named by former financial and legal partners DeVos and crew chief Mike Ambrogio. That partnership was dissolved in 1983, but the cooperative effort has continued, hence the name "In Cahoots". Chief mechanic is Rodd Yamashita, of Diamond Racing Products in Mount Clemens, who has labored to develop the BMW engine which powers the craft. The other crew members are also Grosse Pointe natives: Val DeGalan and Michele Ambrogio.

"This is truly a fulfillment of a life dream: To be the best in the world," DeVos said after the record run.

Hole-in-one

Carol Alfonsi's big day on the golf course was Friday, June 26, when she netted her very first hole-in-one. Alfonsi, of Grosse Pointe Woods, was golfing at Rammler Golf Club when she carded her ace on the eighth hole. By the way, she used a seven wood to do the trick.

EVOLUTION OF THE SPECIES

The New Breed
Jaguar XJ6

The 1988 Jaguar XJ6. It is totally new. Yet it reflects the most superb qualities of its legendary forebears.

Its new, fuel injected, double overhead cam six cylinder engine has 24 valves for enhanced power and high-speed response. Patented "pendulum" isolation enhances the renowned ride of Jaguar's surefooted fully independent suspension.

Supple leather and polished burl walnut maintain the Jaguar tradition of handcrafted interior luxury. However, the new XJ6 also reflects the most enlightened engineering. For example: The new XJ6 incorporates seven microprocessors to regulate mechanical and driver information systems—including a trip computer and a Vehicle Condition Monitor, which continually checks 27 vehicle functions.

A most advanced species, the new XJ6 is also the most thoroughly proven sedan ever introduced by Jaguar. It is protected by an extensive 3 year/36,000 mile warranty, and Jaguar's new Service-On-SiteSM Roadside Assistance Plan. We can provide details on this program and Jaguar's limited warranty. And we invite you to experience the evolution of a legendary species—the new breed Jaguar XJ6.

User fees are in the news

By Cristina Staats

Just as all of us are adjusting to the revisions in the income tax laws — and hoping all the while that the government doesn't sock us with more tax problems — we find that a thinly-disguised tax law has been proposed to Congress. It will require recreational boaters to pay over $200 million per year in "user fees". It is, in other words, a boating tax.

The U.S. Department of Transportation submitted a proposal to the Congress on April 9 that will require every boater using the nation's waterways to pay an annual fee of $37. Boaters already pay hefty taxes on marine fuel and now more tax is proposed.

The Coast Guard estimates that there are over six million boat owners in the United States. This includes canoes, kayaks and other small boats that might never be in position to use Coast Guard services. Such a tax would hit hard here in Michigan. We have the densest boating population in the country right here on our doorstep in the greater Detroit area.

Perhaps boaters would not get terribly upset if they knew for a fact that the revenue collected would go directly to the Coast Guard. But that is not the case. The funds which are collected are not earmarked for the Coast Guard, but go directly into the government's general fund.

The Transportation Department has proposed the user fees in the past, but the idea has always been defeated by Congress. This new attempt may meet with a different outcome, however, unless boaters protest. Since "revision" is in the air with the new tax structure and the pressure created by record deficits, Congress may be more inclined to pass such a "boating tax."

Boaters who do not approve of the fees should write to their local congressman and to the U.S. Senate. Letters and telegrams should be sent to: Representative Earl Humo and Representative Bob Davis, c/o the United States House of Representatives, Washington, D.C., 20515; Senator Ernest Hollings and Senator Ted Stevens, c/o the U.S. Senate, Washington, D.C., 20510.

If you do not support such a new "tax", let these gentlemen know how you feel.

Cristina Staats is the News' freelance boating writer. She welcomes questions and comments and may be reached by writing to her in care of 96 Kercheval, Grosse Pointe Farms, Mich., 48236.

Stay safe — don't just dive in Summertime is time for fun in the sun; unfortunately, it's also the peak time for spinal injuries which result from diving accidents. The Aquatic Injury Safety Group, a national, non-profit organization formed to promote safe diving and chaired by Grosse Pointe resident Ronald R. Gilbert, offers some simple safe diving rules for a safe summer.

- Know the depth of the water and realize that depth can vary at different locations within the same pond, lake or river.
- Always jump feet first on the initial plunge even if you believe it's safe to dive.

- Never dive head-first into an above-ground pool.
 - Never dive head-first into five feet of water or less.
 - Never dive off the sides of diving boards, ladders or pool equipment.
 - Always have a swimming buddy with you.
 - Never drink alcohol and dive or swim.
- The AISG reminds swimmers that with 1,000 quadriplegics per year resulting from diving accidents, diving should be taken seriously.

AYH sailing trips

Sailing trips are being offered weekly during July and August by the American Youth Hostels, Inc. Those 18 and older may cruise the northern reaches of Lake Huron, Les Cheneaux Islands and the North Channel country on a low-cost, five-day cruise aboard an AYH 30-foot sailboat. Each trip has a limited number of spaces. Expert, informal instruction is offered to those who are not already sailors. For a free brochure, call the Michigan Council of AYH at 545-0511, or write to AYH at 3024 Coolidge, Berkley, Mich., 48072.

BYC hosts big boats

Bayview Yacht Club will host the 50-foot Great Lakes Championships Aug. 13-16 on Lake St. Clair. Members of the International 50-Foot Yacht Association have agreed to make this event — and the Port Huron to Mackinac Race — part of their 1987 racing calendar. Bayview expects as many as 15 boats to participate, including 11 which were in the 1987 SORC.

This troupe tried a triathlon

Mothers whose kids complain of nothing to do in the summer should point them toward University Liggett School senior athlete Brendan Dundas and friends.

Dundas and fellow juniors Brian Schmidt, Armistead Burwell and Bob Scoville and senior Ross Roy found themselves with time on their hands last month. So they did what any normal, athletic kid would do: They held their own triathlon. They ran two miles, swam the distance from the Farms Pier to Crescent Sail Yacht Club and back twice and rode their bikes on a winding, haphazard course of almost eight miles through Grosse Pointe.

Dundas, who plays soccer, swims and runs track at ULS, came up with the idea last year. "It was just a fun thing. I tried to think of people who were good in at least two of the events and tell them about it. It wasn't an organized thing, really. Just word-of-mouth," Dundas said.

So on June 29, Dundas and his buddies — each participates in at least one varsity sport at ULS — met at the Farms Pier for the swim portion, which all agreed was the toughest. Scoville won that event. Friends of the group waited on land at Crescent with the bikes for the second portion of the triathlon. Those four friends, by the way, included a certified lifeguard who monitored the swim event; they also doubled as the triathlon's spectators.

The group never really established who won the cycling event, but they all remember who finished first in the two-mile run at South High: Dundas. "Yeah, but he runs track," joked Burwell, a starter on the lacrosse, soccer and hockey teams. And Schmidt doesn't; he couldn't finish the running event despite a valiant effort.

Dundas was the triathlon's overall winner and is already planning for a second triathlon in August. "We'll definitely make this an annual event. Just between friends and just for fun, though," Dundas said.

That'll relieve the organizers of Hawaii's Ironman Competition, who won't have to worry about the challenge of the triathletes from ULS... yet.

Helping pace South's girls' track team to its second straight league title and two invitational championships this year were sophomores (left to right) Laura DeMercurio, Toni Tedesco and Traci Lee. DeMercurio set school records in the 100 and 300 hurdles and was South's No. 3 point-scorer. Tedesco qualified for the state finals in three events, was a member of the school-record 8,000 meter relay team and was South's fifth highest scorer. Lee, the girls' top sprinter, currently holds eight school individual and relay marks, was a state finalist. All-League in three events, All-Region (as were Tedesco, Micha Song and Wendy Berger) and was South's top point-getter with 153, second highest single-season point total in South's history.

South earned numerous honors in addition to the aforementioned EML title, and DeLaSalle Invitational and Port Huron Northern Husky Relay championships. The girls finished third in state regional competition and were 8-1 in dual meets.

Vismara a hit

The University of Michigan women's softball team set a school record for victories at 39-17 this spring and contributing to UM's success was freshman Lynn Vismara of Grosse Pointe Farms. Vismara provided the Wolverines with speed off the bench, scoring six runs in 13 games.

"Lynn is a fine player. She learned a lot this season and I'm looking forward to having her back next year," said head coach Carol Hutchins. Vismara was an All-League and All-Regional selection at South High.

Cavanaugh played

Former Pointer Walter Cavanaugh was selected by the United States Tennis Association to represent the U.S. against Europe in the Age 70 division at Chandos Lawn Tennis Club in London June 22-23.

Cavanaugh competed in the singles and doubles events. Organizers of the Tournament hope that this will be an annual event; in 1988 the teams will compete for the Bitsy Grant Trophy. Grant was winner of several national championships and was also a regular — as is Cavanaugh — on the super senior tennis tournament until his death in 1986.

Wilson will play

Registered to play in this week's 1987 Western Junior Golf Championship at Michigan State University is Brad Wilson, 16, of Grosse Pointe.

Letter-winner

Stephanie Schulte, of Grosse Pointe, was awarded a letter for her participation on the Western Michigan University women's varsity tennis team.

Sports People

Fordon letters

Kenyon College sophomore Fred Fordon, a graduate of Grosse Pointe South, has earned his second varsity letter as a member of the Lords tennis team. Fordon finished the season with an 11-5 record in the No. 5 singles spot. He teamed with Bob Zabel in the No. 1 doubles spot, where they compiled a record of 7-7. Fordon is the son of Martha and Frederick Fordon, of the Farms.

Lacrosse leader

Grosse Pointe's Mark Blake led his 1987 Cranbrook varsity lacrosse team to a state championship and a third place ranking in the Midwest Lacrosse League. Cranbrook finished the season at 15-4. Blake played attack for Cranbrook, scoring 29 goals and 22 assists. He finished as Cranbrook's leading scorer, was named to the second team, All-Midwest and first team, All-State. Blake was also selected to play in the Michigan High School All-Star Lacrosse Game. The son of Jerry and Marilyn Blake, of Willow Tree Place, Blake will attend Denison University next year.

Solterisch honored

Nancy L. Solterisch, has been honored for her sports achievements on behalf of the women's cross country team at Macomb Community College at the school's annual athletic awards banquet. Solterisch, a freshman, earned All-Region, All-State and All-Conference honors. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ronald Solterisch, of Balfour Road.

Surmont recognized

Grosse Pointe Woods' native Paul Surmont was presented with Ferris State College's "Willie Bouyer Leadership Award" at FSC's recent awards brunch. Surmont, a graduate of FSC's automotive and heavy equipment management program, has dedicated the last five years of his student life as the school's Bulldog mascot at every Ferris sporting event possible.

Surmont, a 1981 graduate of Warren DeLaSalle Collegiate, has also contributed countless hours to the Ferris and Big Rapids community in promoting banquets, fashion shows, fundraisers, etc. He was selected for the leadership award by a vote of the head coaches for FSC's 17

Exercise hit list

There are many common exercises which can lead to permanent injury. To help keep you abreast of what's right for you, the following should be avoided.

Yoga plow

Although this maneuver is recommended by many running books and magazines, it is exceptionally dangerous. It can cause a stroke by pinching off one of the essential arteries in your neck.

The arteries travel through holes in the cervical vertebrae and the plow will cause the arteries to kink, resulting in cut off circulation and possible stroke.

It is also very devastating on the vertebrae themselves. This exercise puts inordinate amounts of pressure on discs and ligaments throughout the entire spinal column. In this position you take away the natural protection of each interlocking vertebrae so pressure on bones and connective tissues are tremendous.

This exercise technique is the cause of many knee injuries.

When a deep knee bend is performed, it puts enormous pressure on the lateral cartilage, which are crucial ligaments in the knee and can cause a tear of the cartilage or ligaments — which may result in permanent disability and requires surgery.

Sit ups

Double front leg lifts

These two exercises and their numerous variations are the subject of much controversy at this time. Many experts believe that they are the major cause of low back problems in later life.

Do not do sit ups: 1) fast 2) straight-legged 3) with feet hooked under something or 4) with arms behind the head.

Correct torso curls or curl downs are performed like this: lying on your back with knees bent and arms forward or placed across your chest. The goal is to keep them passive and not let them lift your torso. Pull in your abdominal muscles (posterior tilt) and "hold it in" during the entire exercise. Tuck your chin to chest then continue coming up — flexing the upper back and progressing down to the lower back. Now, slowly uncurl the spine down to the floor and keep your chin tucked in and abdominals held tight.

You must also do these slow curl up/downs to the right and left as well as straight forward in order to work the entire abdominal muscle group correctly. Do not jerk your body during any part of this exercise. Do this exercise in a slow, steady, sustained manner.

Always protect your spine by putting your body in a safe, non-straining position. Stabilize your position with good body alignment. Exercise safely and STOP IF IT HURTS!

It's a fact. If you work out hard, you'll sweat.

Some people used to think that sweating meant that you were out of shape. The fact is, sweating shows that your body is regulating its own temperature by getting rid of excess body heat.

So generally, sweating is good for you. But working out in extremely hot weather — like we've been experiencing in Michigan this spring and summer — creates a lot of body heat and this can be dangerous. Although the body has the ability to control its own temperature, you need to take extra precautions against heat stress, which increases dramatically as the thermometer rises.

On a normal day, we lose and must replace, up to 2.5 quarts of water. With heavy exercise on a hot day, that amount can increase to 3 quarts per hour. Marathon runners may lose more than 5 quarts during a competition — that can mean as much as five to 10 percent of the runner's body weight!

Since heavy perspiration causes a major loss of water, some salt and other important fluids, those who exercise need plenty of fluid to keep their muscles working smoothly, to prevent fatigue and to keep their body temperature from rising too high.

You can't rely on thirst to tell you how much water you need. By the time you're thirsty, you already may have lost enough fluids to affect your performance and possibly, your health. Drinking 12 ounces of water 10-15 minutes before working out and 4 to 8 ounces at 15-minute intervals throughout the duration of the workout, is recommended.

And, contrary to popular belief, cold water is best. Cold fluids (refrigerator temperature) leave the stomach and get to your muscles faster than warm ones. Sodas, fruit juices and some athletic drinks with too much sugar take longer to reach the muscles than plain water and may also cause cramps.

There are some warning signs to watch for that will tell you if you are suffering from too much heat. Sweat contains salt and when you lose too much salt, heat cramps result. When your body's temperature-regulating mechanisms can't keep up with heat loss, heat exhaustion occurs.

If this happens to you, stop your workout, take plenty of fluids and rest.

The most severe form of heat stress is heat stroke. This occurs when your temperature-regulating mechanism breaks down. Your skin becomes flushed, hot and dry. Sweating actually stops and your body temperature can rise as high as 106 degrees.

To safely exercise in hot, humid weather:

- Drink plenty of appropriate fluids
- Wear light-colored, loose-fitting clothes
- Avoid the peak sun hours (noon to 3 p.m.)
- Allow yourself time to adjust to the temperature
- Don't be a hero — slow down if you feel symptoms of heat stress.

Eat

By Mary Busse

Smart

Natural vs. Refined

As morning progresses into the afternoon, you begin to experience a "druggy" feeling and can't seem to concentrate. As you glance at the clock, you realize it's time for your afternoon candy bar. In 15 minutes, you feel alert and energetic. However, in less than an hour, you again find yourself needing another "pick-me-up."

Unfortunately, these quick "pick-me-ups" do not last very long and the food choices we make to "re-energize" usually lead to excess pounds. So how do we get the extra energy without the "jet-lag" cycle and without adding extra pounds? By eating a diet rich in unrefined, natural carbohydrates.

What Are Carbohydrates?

Many people think of a carbohydrate as a food (such as an apple or a potato). However, carbohydrates are nutrients found in such foods as fruits, vegetables, whole grains and milk. Many foods high in carbohydrates are also rich in other nutrients. For example, a potato contains carbohydrates, protein, fats, vitamins and minerals.

The main function of carbohydrates is to supply energy to the body. The brain relies almost exclusively on the carbohydrate and glucose to provide it with fuel to operate. Carbohydrates also assist in bodily functions, digestion, and muscle exertion, while helping a person to think more clearly and to maintain a good energy level.

Because carbohydrates are digested and absorbed more rapidly than proteins or fats, they can supply the body with immediate energy.

Blood Sugar and Carbohydrates

If large amounts of carbohydrates are absorbed too rapidly, as in the case of the candy bar or other foods high in refined sugar content, the blood sugar will rise far above the normal level. The body reacts by releasing insulin to collect the extra sugar, but because of the drastic increase, it usually overcompensates and too much sugar is removed from the blood, causing the blood sugar to fall below a normal level. The initial burst of energy that resulted from the consumption of the refined carbohydrate wears off rapidly, and the person begins to feel more drained than before. Hunger, irritability, and headaches may often occur. The body again will crave sweets to raise the blood sugar, to obtain that "quick fix."

If more refined, sugary foods are eaten the process repeats itself. On a graph, the blood level begins to resemble a roller coaster ride! This "roller coaster" effect can be avoided by eating a variety of carbohydrate-containing foods that are more gradually and naturally absorbed by the blood stream.

Consider the effects of an apple as an afternoon snack in comparison to the candy bar. First of all, it takes much longer for you to eat an apple than it does the candy bar. Therefore, your brain has a chance to register physical fulfillment while you are still eating. This comprehension provides mental satisfaction, which many times is as much a cause of hunger as a physical demand.

Because an apple also contains fiber, it is digested more slowly than the candy bar. The carbohydrate and fructose is released little by little and is absorbed by the bloodstream at an even rate. No drastic jump in blood sugar occurs, only a gradual, steady increase. And the unrefined, natural carbohydrate-containing foods maintain the energy level for a longer time, while simultaneously satisfying your appetite — their secret; fiber and bulk!

"Staying Power"

Fiber and bulk not only help to control the release of fructose into the bloodstream, but also provide "staying power." Because they cannot be broken down by the body, they supply a feeling of fullness and satiation. Fiber and bulk also help to keep the stools soft, decreasing the occurrence of constipation, and even aid the body in decreasing the amount of cholesterol in the blood and lowering the incidence of diseases such as colon cancer and diabetes.

Choosing and Using the "Right" Carbohydrates

• Buy fresh fruits and vegetables in preference to canned and frozen. They contain fewer calories, salts, sugars and preservatives, while being your best nutritional buy.

• Eat a variety of green vegetables. The naturally darker green the vegetables, the more nutritious.

• Have a large salad with a variety of vegetables everyday. Raw veggies contain all of their nutrients and are more filling than cooked.

• Make it a point to eat the skins of fruits and vegetables. It is the skin that contains the majority of vitamins.

• Choose the heavy, grainy breads. Read the bread label. The first ingredients should list whole wheat (for example) before the flour listing.

• Shop the outside aisles of your grocery store. Avoid the middle aisles full of candy, snacks and refined products.

• Check labels for "hidden" sources of refined sugars, including honey, molasses, maple syrup, corn syrup, brown sugar, and any ingredient ending in the letters OSE. (i.e. maltose, sucrose, dextrose, etc.)

• And most important, remember to count nutrients, not calories!

Personal floatation devices preserve summer fun

In conjunction with National Safe Boating Week June 7-13, the National Safety Council is encouraging boating enthusiasts to wear personal floatation devices (PFDs) — life jackets — when taking to the water. Nearly 80 percent of the 1,200 boating-related fatalities per year involve people who fail to use PFDs, according to the U.S. Coast Guard.

The Council offers these suggestions to keep your PFD functioning, fitting and floating properly:

- Try your wearable PFD on and adjust it until it fits comfortably in and out of the water.
- Try the PFD out in the water. Your PFD may perform differently under different conditions, such as in swift water, with bulky clothing, etc.

- Do not alter your PFD. If it doesn't fit properly, get one that does. An altered device is no longer Coast Guard-approved.
- Your PFD is not intended for use as a boat fender, kneel- ing pad or seat cushion.

- Keep your PFD away from sharp objects which may rip the fabric or puncture the flotation pads.

Bodenmiller will speak at USTA conference

Gary Bodenmiller, of Grosse Pointe Farms, will be a speaker at the 1987 United States Tennis Association National Tennis Teachers Conference, to be held at the Roosevelt Hotel in New York City Sept. 2-4.

Bodenmiller will address the topics "The Many Faces of a Teaching Pro," and "Sharing Ideas: Tennis for Pee Wees." Bodenmiller is one of 52 members of this year's faculty who will share the latest tennis news with teaching professionals, team tennis coaches, physical education teachers, tennis program directors and recreational tennis leaders who annually attend the event.

Bodenmiller is owner of the Eastside Tennis Club in Detroit. He is a member of the Professional Tennis Registry and a past president of the USPTA Southeastern Michigan District. Gary is also the co-director (with University Liggett School tennis coach and athletic director Bob Wood) of an annual tennis workshop in Detroit. During the summer, he is director of the Grosse Pointe Club, the University Liggett Tennis Club and Camp and the Academy Tennis Camps in Grosse Pointe.

For a brochure containing details on the conference and registration information, write to the USTA National Tennis Teachers Conference, 729 Alexander Road, Princeton, N.J., 08540 or call 609-452-2580.

Extra-special effects in 'Innerspace' are exceptional

By Michael Chapp
Special Writer

"Innerspace" is outrageously funny. It is "Fantastic Voyage" taken to a new extreme. It's a ho-hum core of a story given just enough of a push to gain its own momentum.

And it's one of the season's best movies. No real surprise there, since the director of this guys who go to great difficulty to track down and steal it. It's about racing the clock while a human life hangs in the balance. And it's about the love relationships that develop in the meantime.

All the rest of "Innerspace" — including every comedy bit and, especially, the special effects sequences — is a sheer joy to watch. Dante taps into our fascination with the human body and makes that the cornerstone of his picture. Everything else is just icing on the cake.

Poor Jack Putter (Martin Short). The doctor has ordered him to get away from it all because his stressful job as assistant manager of a grocery store has him on the edge. Simple enough, but before he can go ahead with his plans for a cruise, he gets it in the behind. Literally. A fleeing scientist injects a miniature manned space-ship into his posterior in an effort to keep the ship from being snatched up by bad guys. Just like that, Putter's body becomes uncharted territory to be explored by hotshot pilot Tuck Pendelton (Dennis Quaid).

At first, Putter thinks he's going crazy. As do those around him. He wails in pain when Pendelton fires a sight sensor into his eyeball. He thinks he's possessed when he hears a voice inside his head telling him that his body is now home to a little visitor. And very quickly, he finds himself being pursued by the same evildoers that were chasing the scientist who started it all. Meanwhile, Pendelton is running out of oxygen, and it's up to Putter and Pendelton's girlfriend (Meg Ryan) to figure out how to save him.

It all sounds very contrived, and for the most part it is. What you see in "Innerspace" is certainly very predictable material. To be sure, there's not a whole lot of suspense about how the picture will end up. But that's not the point. The only thing this movie asks from its viewers is for them to have a good time. Nothing more.

Be in awe of the exceptional special effects that make you believe you're really traveling through the bloodstream and next to the heart of a human being. Laugh at the zany hijinks of Short, a performer with no place to go but up.

'Adventure in Babysitting' is lots of good-natured fun

By Marian Trainor
Special Writer

Frivolous and cute, "Adventures in Babysitting" is an entertaining film that captures the viewers' attention and never lets go, right up to the last scene. Wacky and freewheeling, it seems to be aimed at teenagers looking for a cool spot to beat the summer heat and a film they can relate to.

Actually, adults will like it too, watching the far-fetched mishaps that four kids from the rarefied social climate of a Chicago suburb encounter when they venture into the big, bad streets of nighttime Chicago. There's nothing harrowing or violent about the action. It's all good-natured fun and the kids involved are delightful. They have a naturalness that's irresistible.

Chris, 17, (Elisabeth Shue) is the babysitter who takes on the job of sitting with Sara (Maia Brewton) and Brad (Keith Coogan), after she is stood up by a boyfriend.

Sara, 7, is a typical younger sister. When she isn't poring over Marvel comics, following the exploits of her idol, the thundergod Thor, she is embarrassing Brad, 13, who has a crush on his babysitter and yearns for her to take him seriously.

What looks like a long, boring evening for all begins to look up when Chris's best friend, Brenda will be held prisoner by gangsters, attend a fraternity party, walk a catwalk two stories above ground to escape their kidnappers, scale a building from the outside, be in the center of a gang war on the subway and appear as guest performers in a crowded bar that features Albert Collins, guitarist blues singer.

This scene is one of the highlights of the film. The place really rocks as Chris and her friends improvise on "I Got the Babysitting Blues."

When the night of adventure finally winds down and Chris retrieves her friend from the bus station, the group heads down the freeway, determined to beat the kids' parents home. They had lived out a fantasy and in the process, grown up a little, particularly Chris, who has had reason to rethink her values. Brad becomes more mature and Daryl learns that flippancy is not the answer to all problems.

"Adventures in Babysitting" is a lively film suitable for all ages.

Film

make the telephone booths in the station their home. She wants Chris to come for her.

Chris is apprehensive about going, but she can't let her friend down. She piles her two charges and their mouthy friend, Daryl (Anthony Rapp), into her mom's station wagon and off they go.

Once in the city, the kids' eyes are opened by a series of adventures with nutty characters; a towtruck operator with a hook nose and a grudge, a friendly young car thief, a villainous crew of chop-shop buddies and Prince Charming in the form of a college student.

Before the night is ended, they

Student show at Pewabic

Pewabic Pottery will host its annual Student, Faculty and Staff Show through Aug. 8. The exhibition will highlight work produced at Pewabic during the 1986-87 school year. An opening reception, to which the public is invited, is Friday, July 17, from 5:30 to 8:30 p.m.

This exhibition is made possible in part by the National Endowment for the Arts and the Michigan Council for the Arts. Pewabic Pottery is located at 10125 East Jefferson, across from Waterworks Park. Gallery hours are Tuesday through Saturday 10 a.m. to 5 p.m.

Macomb Center expands season offerings

The Macomb Center for the Performing Arts announced an expanded 1987-88 professional entertainment lineup that features a new piano series, the revival of its Family series and a bigger injection of country-western to complement the traditional musical fare of classical, pop, and jazz.

Offering a total of 65 events in 11 series categories, the season begins Aug. 30 with a concert by bluegrass singer-guitarist Emmylou Harris.

"The new-season lineup is aimed at covering as full a spectrum of professional theater as possible," said Laurence L. Teal, executive director.

Teal said the new "Piano Plus" series, so named because its performers "offer that extra special something that goes well beyond their keyboard artistry," consists of Dave Brubeck, George Shearing, Roger Williams, Peter Nero and Marian McPartland.

He pointed out that reinstatement of the Family series again will enable patrons to take in show like a "A Christmas Carol" and puppeteer Shari Lewis at bargain series prices. Another new wrinkle is the addition of the word "Ballroom" to the Big Band Bash series, inviting the audience to join in on-stage dancing as part of the Sunday evening concerts.

In addition to Emmylou Harris, the country-western entourage will feature Louise Mandrell of Mandrell Sisters fame, the singing Forester Sisters from Lookout Mountain, Georgia, and the return of Larry Gatlin and the Gatlin Brothers.

For connoisseurs of the dance, there will be the harbinger Dance Company and the Jeffrey II Dancers performing in the Classical series along with the Detroit Symphony Orchestra, The Canadian Brass and guitar master Carlos Montoya.

The all-new Broadway series is made up of fully-staged nationally touring productions of "Chorus Line," "Funny Girl," "The King and I" and "Show Boat," plus a presentation of "Anything Goes" by the Macomb Community College Music Theater Department.

Among the other newcomers to the Center will be Al Hirt, Eddie Daniels, the Modern Jazz Quartet and the Preservation Hall Jazz Band in the Jazz series.

Also new to the local scene will be the Norman Luboff choir, Eddie Fisher, Connie Stevens, Billy Eckstine, Jack Jones, Carman, the Glenn Miller Orchestra and the Big Band Galaxy of Stars featuring vocalist Jimmie Rodgers, Maxene Andrews of the Andrews Sisters, the new Ink Spots and Harry Babbitt leading the Kay Kyser Orchestra.

Returning to Macomb Center are the Rovers, the Lettermen, Frankie Laine, the Harmonicats, Boots Randolph and his "yakety sax," Rob McConnell's Boss Brass, the Mantovani Orchestra, the Vienna Choir Boys, the Tamburitzans and Stars of the Lawrence Welk Show, this time including singers Joe Feeney and Jo Ann Castle in addition to accordion virtuoso Myron Floren.

There also will be a continuation of the popular 10-part Dennis Glen Cooper travelogue series and the Saturday Sunshine (children's) series.

Scriptwriting taught

Harvey Ovshinsky, member of the film and television industry, will conduct a weekend seminar on scriptwriting for theatrical films and made-for-television movies from 9:30 a.m. to 5 p.m. Saturday and Sunday, July 25 and 26 at Cranbrook in the Student Commons room, Kingswood campus.

"Screenwriting: A Survival Course," is designed for college students, journalists, film and video producers, advertising copywriters, film and media instructors, aspiring screenwriters and anyone who has an idea for a movie but lacks the basic skills to write a script.

Participants will learn a simplified approach to the scriptwriting process, as well as tips from a working professional on how to deal with agents, producers and production companies.

Areas to be covered include: getting started; know your characters; screenplay as structure; they don't call it a first draft for nothing; and selling your script.

Fee of $150 includes a complete biography of screenwriting books and publications, a sample script and information about computer software for scriptwriters. Participants are asked to bring their own lunch. Coffee and tea will be provided.

For information and registration, call Cranbrook P.M. at 645-3635.

Introducing 1-hour home mortgage loan approvals.

The ins and outs of getting a home mortgage loan approved do not have to take weeks. Or days. Or even hours.

Because we at First Federal of Michigan, the people who approve more mortgage loans than anyone else in Michigan, can approve them faster.

In just one hour. Subject to appraisal and your qualifications, of course.

We offer a variety of plans to meet your needs. And the timing couldn't be better. So why wait?

Call 1-800-342-5336 between 9 a.m. and 9 p.m. weekdays.

We'll set up an appointment at your convenience and advise you what to bring along to expedite your loan approval.

When it comes to home mortgage loans, it pays to think First.

First Federal of Michigan.

Juniors earn points in DRYA Wednesday sails

Every Wednesday during the summer, member clubs of the Detroit River Yachting Association (DRYA) offer inter-club competition for the children in the Junior Sailing Program. The clubs take turns hosting the weekly regattas, where sailors 10-17 race in 15-foot Flying Junior sailboats. Each sailor earns points which go towards trophies to be awarded at the end of the season.

This year, the first regatta was held June 24 at Bayview. There were 34 boats in the first race; the minimum three races were held and the fourth cancelled due to falling winds and a strong river current. First race winners were: Division I (17 and under) — Grosse Pointe Yacht Club's J. Palm, skipper, C. Murray, crew; Bayview Yacht Club's T. Wake, skipper, and M. Uznis, crew; and BYC's B. Valka, skipper, and G. Uznis, crew.

The top three finishers in Division II (14 and under) — BYC's

D. Balcirak, skipper, and W. Schlaff, crew; GPYC's S. Teitge, skipper, and C. Leith, crew; and GPYC's M. Moroun, skipper, and A. Gmeiner, crew.

Thanks to strong winds on July 1, the junior sailors enjoyed a good, fast regatta at the Grosse Pointe Club (Little Club). A record number of boats (35) participated in five races, with each boat's low finish thrown out for scoring. The top three finishers in each division were:

Division I (17 and under) — GPYC's Palm-Murray; BYC's Valka-Uznis; GPYC's S. Schaufpeter, skipper, and S. Swarhout, crew. Division II (14 and under) — BYC's Balcirak-Schlaff; BYC's S. Young, skipper, and J. Kimmel, crew; and Crescent Sail Yacht Club's G. Lie, skipper, and P. Pozo, crew.

The standings after two regattas are: 1. Bayview; 2. Grosse Pointe Yacht Club; 3. Crescent Sail Yacht Club; 4. Grosse Pointe Club; 5. North Star Sail Club; 6. Great Lakes Yacht Club.

Upcoming regattas include the GLYC (at Great Lakes) on July 22; NSCC (at Crescent) on Aug. 5.

Other important dates for juniors are Aug. 3-4, DRYA Quarterfinals of the Sears, Bemis, Smythe Championships (Flying Scots, Flying Juniors, Lasers) at the Grosse Pointe Club; Aug. 10-12, the Area E Semifinals of the Sears, Bemis, Smythe Championships at GLYC. The DRYA season finishes with the River Championships on Aug. 14 at CSYC.

The origin and purpose of huge, 2,000-year-old sandstone urns that lie on the Plain of Jars in central Laos remain uncertain, says National Geographic.

WE'VE PULLED OFF A MAJOR COUPE.

There is very little about the Acura Legend coupe that will remind you of other cars. Perhaps it's because we've managed to create something that doesn't already exist. Quite unusual for the automotive industry. It's in our engineering. Our styling. Surprisingly, it's also in our price. Starting at around $23,000,* you can get from 0 to 60 mph in a mere eight seconds, and on the test track, it's then only a matter of course to a top speed of 134.

But not to worry. You won't be taking any chances with the Legend coupe. Its Anti-Lock Braking† (ALB) system coupled with double-wishbone suspension, front and rear, ensure stability and comfort no matter what the conditions. And with the Automatic Climate Control,† you can even change those conditions — on the inside at least.

We're here to offer you the seat of power. The Acura Legend coupe. The first real blow to the Europeans.
