

Moratorium on lot splits will hold, Farms officials say

By Peter A. Sallnas
Staff Writer

Farms officials say the city will stand firm on its moratorium on lot splits and subdivision requests for the Lakeshore district properties, despite a request by the Higbie family to subdivide their estate at Lakeshore and Moran.

City Clerk Richard Solak said a letter was sent to Hugo Higbie, owner of the estate, stating that any new subdivisions would fall under the new requirements of a proposed zoning ordinance amendment, and informed the owners that a public hearing on the amendment is forthcoming.

The city issued a moratorium about six months ago on new developments in the Lakeshore district, bordered by Lakeshore and Grosse Pointe Boulevard and Fisher Road and the north city limits. The city council felt that the city should examine the number of developments created from the subdivision of estates. Brandon Rogers and Associates, a city planning firm, was hired almost six months ago to study the situation and made its report at a council meeting July 20.

Public hearing on the creation of a new zoning classification has been set for Monday, Aug. 17.

Owners of the Higbie estate filed a subdivision site plan with the city on July 13. Hugo Higbie has gone on record as stating that the plan is only study, but added that if the property is subdivided, it should be subdivided under existing zoning requirements, not the proposed zoning changes.

Brandon Rogers said that since this study has been in the works for six months, and because it is a bona fide attempt by the city to re-examine and re-evaluate its zoning requirements for that area, the city is clearly within its rights in waiting until after new zoning requirements are in place before looking at the Higbie request.

Rogers said that the new standards, set forth in a new category called R-1 AAA, which requires an increase in lot size from 11,000 to 15,000 square feet and increases in side, rear and front yard setbacks, are an appropriate level of minimum standards.

"I really think that if you took a straw vote, there would be a great deal of support for this program," said Rogers, a resident of the Farms.

He added that he feels the city has a right to upgrade its zoning standards.

"This power has been found by the supreme court," Rogers said. "Of course, you must do it with reasonable standards and you can't make someone's property valueless or render a property unusable."

Rogers said that the Farms current ordinance, which will likely be amended, will still allow for physical hardships.

"The ordinance is written humanely," he said. "We are not out to stick it to somebody."

Noting that the Higbie request will be "an interesting test" of the city's intention to upgrade its ordinance, Rogers said that he feels it is not too late to make the Lakeshore district an even better place to live.

While there are only three major estates in the Farms which could be subdivided into major residential areas, Rogers noted there are many smaller properties which could be subdivided into four 11,000-square-foot lots. Under the proposed ordinance changes, there may be room for only two or three 15,000 square foot lots.

"What we have in many cases are tremendous homes being built on small lots," he said. "There is not a sacred house left in the Farms. Some of the developments we have seen have the homes all jammed together. The new zoning district would prevent that."

The public hearing scheduled for Monday, Aug. 17, will take place during the Farms regular council meeting, which begins at 7:30 p.m.

Contract talks go into high gear

By Nancy Parmenter
Staff Writer

Teachers and administrators are plunging into a heavy schedule of negotiating this month in an effort to get a contract settlement before September. After the traditional July hiatus, negotiators face almost daily bargaining if they expect to accomplish their goal.

Both sides say there won't be a strike.

"We haven't had a strike for many years," said Personnel Director Ronald Tonks, who heads the administrative bargaining team. "We've been able to get everything settled the last few years — I would hope that trend will continue."

"We're coming along fine," said Doris Cook, president of the Grosse Pointe Education Association. "We are planning to have a contract."

Five districts in Local One, the 16-district teacher association, have already settled. All have come in with hefty increases, ranging from 19.1 percent to 24 percent over three years. Several Oakland County districts have also come in at 21 percent or more.

Teachers are pleased at the precedent. "People have to understand that they have to look ahead and plan hefty increases now to avoid double-digit increases in a few years," Cook said. "They're needed to attract solid people. Otherwise people will say 'forget it, I'm going into business.'"

Administrators are less likely to view it as a precedent. "It sets an environment, a tone, that has to be reviewed," conceded Superintendent John Whritner. "But a large part of negotiating is comparing with other districts. We have to keep in mind where we stand. We've always treated our teachers fairly."

"We'll have to look more at Local One districts than at Oakland County," Tonks said. "That's the organization to which our teachers belong." Grosse Pointe teachers have been among the highest-paid in Local One, but receive comparable salaries to Bloomfield, Farmington and Birmingham, the Oakland County districts that have settled.

At this point, almost nothing has been settled in Grosse Pointe. The two sides have so far not even agreed on a starting date for school.

"We'd like to settle the calendar — at least opening day," Tonks said. "We haven't been able to reach agreement. We're getting phone calls every day (asking when school starts). People aren't very happy."

The board proposed to the teachers last winter that negotiations start early. The union by-laws governing time limits did not allow for an early start and now teachers say the other side is dragging its feet.

"They showed no interest in long hours of bargaining in June," Cook said. "Everything has been put off to August. But," she added, "there is time to have a contract by the end of the month."

Residents have feared that the lack of a firm date for starting See CONTRACT, page 12A

Correction

The 70-year-old man who had become incapacitated in Grosse Pointe Woods last week and was rescued after he failed to answer the public safety department's Compute-A-Care phone call was incorrectly identified as a Farms resident. The man is a Woods resident. The Woods only offers the service to its residents.

The way Francis Weskel sees it, life has dealt him a pretty fair hand.

that even includes one bad episode a few years back.

"Imagine this: I had no indication that I had a bad heart. No heart attack, no lingering illness, nothing," recalled Weskel, who taught at Grosse Pointe South High School for 24 years. "Then I went to school one day and wound up feeling ill. I went to a doctor, was examined and told that I was a walking time bomb."

The arteries to Weskel's heart had gradually deteriorated, doctors discovered. A cardiac catheterization revealed just how much: One artery was 100 percent blocked, two were 90 percent occluded and the other was 65 percent closed. Doctors recommended that Weskel undergo a quadruple bypass operation.

Youth party broken up

Charges of violation of the Farms party ordinance are being sought against a 22-year-old Farms resident who was host to between 150 and 200 youths, some of whom were found to be under age and consuming alcohol.

Police spotted a large number of vehicles on Cloverly near Kercheval shortly before midnight Friday, July 31, and investigated. As they approached the house where the party was occurring, a nearby resident confronted police claiming that the party was indeed a nuisance.

Upon investigation Farms officers spotted several guests drinking beer and determined they were not of legal drinking age. Officers also found large piles of empty beer containers.

The party was broken up and the party-goers were sent on their way.

Charges against the 22-year-old are pending.

Resident saved from drowning after driving car into lake

Lawrence DuMouchelle, noted art and auction dealer and Grosse Pointe resident, was rescued from his sinking car, which he had driven into Lake St. Clair, by an 18-year-old East Detroit man.

DuMouchelle's 1987 Lincoln Town car hit two six-inch thick ornamental trees on the median of Lakeshore just east of Kerby in the Farms, before it veered across the eastbound lanes and plunged into the lake around 2:15 a.m. Thursday, July 30.

DuMouchelle, who was alone in the car, was ticketed for operating a motor vehicle under the influence of liquor. He suffered several cuts and abrasions in the accident, but was not seriously injured.

Brian Kozlowski, 18, was in the area with Andrea Bauman, 17, of Detroit as they were returning home from work at a Detroit Coca-Cola bottling plant. They saw the car hit the trees and cross the eastbound lanes and go into the water.

"It was like a dream, Kozlowski said. 'I couldn't run fast enough. The car was sinking and I could see he was half out of the window and half in the car.'

Wearing only a pair of shorts, a baseball cap and socks, Kozlowski said he called out to DuMouchelle and asked if he could swim.

"He couldn't speak very well and I could see he wasn't going to swim to shore, so I jumped in," Kozlowski said.

Kozlowski, 6 feet 2 inches tall and 185 pounds, said he had a lifesaving course at Lutheran East High School. He was named to the second team on the Metro East Conference All-Star football team. He played both center and defensive end.

"When I swam up to him, I remembered my training," he said. "I didn't grab him right away because they can grab on to you and drag you under."

He said he asked if there was anyone else in the car, but DuMouchelle didn't answer. Kozlowski said he tried to calm him down, then swam with him about 10 or 15 feet to shore where Bauman was waiting.

Returning to the car, which was almost completely below the surface, Kozlowski looked for other passengers and felt around inside the car. Finding no one, he returned to shore and helped get DuMouchelle over the break-wall, as police arrived.

Farms Police Chief Robert

Ferber said DuMouchelle's lips were bleeding, making a breathalyzer test impossible. DuMouchelle refused a blood test and medical treatment. He was released after posting a $1,500 bond.

State law calls for an automatic six-month forfeiture of a driver's license if a breathalyzer or blood test is refused.

DuMouchelle released a statement July 30 through a spokeswoman, saying that he had been medically diagnosed as having the potential for blackouts.

"I have a medical problem and my doctor had advised me that it could cause blackouts," the statement read. "But, human nature being what it is, I put it out of my mind. Last night on the way home, I blacked out and temporarily lost control of my car. I had an accident and I thank God and am very grateful to the people who helped me."

Police said the DuMouchelle vehicle was eastbound on Lakeshore when it hit the island curb at Kerby.

Kozlowski said the car was traveling at a high rate of speed, and when it went into the lake, it turned around so the front end was pointing toward shore.

"He...went under water a couple of times before I reached him," Kozlowski said. "I thought he was going to drown."

Officer Thomas Sasiela wrote in his supplemental report that Kozlowski deserves a commendation.

Divers hooked up tow chains to the vehicle about 10:30 a.m. Thursday, and it was pulled from the lake, while traffic was blocked for a short time on east-bound Lakeshore.

Symphony, fireworks end music festival

The Grosse Pointe Summer Music Festival will complete its 30th season Monday, Aug. 10, with a performance of the Grosse Pointe Symphony Orchestra, under the direction of Felix Resnick.

A spectacular fireworks display is planned as the finale to the concert, which will be held on the lakeside lawn of the War Memorial, 32 Lakeshore Road.

Since its inception in 1954, the orchestra has performed throughout the community, offering a full season of fine symphonic music. Resnick, a graduate of Wayne State University and the Juilliard School of Music, has been at the helm since 1959.

A program of light pop music has been chosen. (Rain date is Aug. 11). Selections will include the works of Johann Strauss Jr., Leonard Bernstein, Richard Rodgers, Cole Porter, John Philip Sousa and others.

Tickets are $10, reserved; $6.50, lawn admission; and children under 12, half price. Lawn ticket holders should bring a chair or blanket. Concert-goers are invited to bring a picnic or may purchase suppers at $6.75 each. Suppers must be reserved three days in advance. For further information, call 881-7511.

Woods man charged with OUIL

A 23-year-old Grosse Pointe Woods man was arrested early Sunday, Aug. 2, after being pulled over for drunken driving on eastbound Lakeshore between Harbor Hill and Moross.

According to Farms police, the man became belligerent during the sobriety field tests, and after saying "I don't want to hurt you" several times, attacked the officer. The officer had already called for a back-up unit. Both officers were thrown to the ground once during the scuffle that ensued.

The officer taking the report strongly requested that assault charges be leveled against the man for his attack on the officers.

July 28 planning commission

Daycare question sent to council for interpretation

By Nancy Parmenter
Staff Writer

In an orgy of parliamentary procedure, the Grosse Pointe Woods Planning Commission July 28 passed the home daycare issue to the council. Backers of an ordinance amendment to allow residents to care for a limited number of children in their homes were told to petition council for a change — which would be prepared by the planning commission.

The hour's discussion was punctuated by complaints from commissioner Ray Lynch that the planning commission had "no business" even talking about the request. Lynch announced no fewer than five times that the entire proceedings were out of order — a view ultimately agreed to by the rest of the commissioners.

The issue arose when the city received complaints from neighbors that Sheila Temkow was operating a daycare center in her Shoreham home. Temkow was licensed by the state Department of Social Services to operate a family daycare home for a maximum of seven children — but she allowed her license to lapse. She is currently going through the re-approval procedure.

"There were no problems there before," said the DSS' William Puumala, "but they do have to start from scratch."

Neighbors complained that traffic from parents dropping off their children disturbs them.

About 30 backers of the two sides attended the planning commission meeting accompanied by attorneys. But the original request for an interpretation of the ordinance was confounded 10 minutes into the meeting when Stanley Kazul, attorney for the Temkows, handed the planning commission a model daycare ordinance for consideration.

"I resent getting a letter 10 minutes after the meeting starts," said commissioner Joseph Parthum. "I won't vote tonight."

But vote they did, on one motion after another. They voted to table the issue, then voted to reconsider the tabling when they found they couldn't legally consider the establishment of a subcommittee to look into day care. Just as they named two members to the proposed subcommittee, they decided not to set one up. They made motions and counter-motions and points of order.

Self-described "frustrated chairman" Peter Gilezan sighed at one point, "We've got a boat here. Hopefully we'll get the sail up; let's get the tiller in and we can steer."

Causes of the confusion were multiple. From the beginning, it was not clear that the planning commission was the correct body to interpret the ordinance. Then attorney Kazul made the last-minute change from the request for interpretation to a request for an ordinance change. Finally, the proper forum for public expression of opinion on ordinance changes is a public hearing, and this was only a regular meeting.

"The party should follow the protocol, which is to petition for a change," said Gilezan the next day. "Then a public hearing would be scheduled so that everyone concerned can speak."

Attorneys for the two sides were permitted to speak briefly at the meeting. Kazul explained that the Temkow home is not a permanent childcare facility.

"(Licensed day care) is intended by the legislature to answer a specific need in today's society," he said. "Seventy percent of women work outside the home. Society either provides day care for children, or we simply have to stop having children. My client is providing a service to the community."

Commissioner Robert Fraley said the real issue is whether an activity is an annoyance to neighbors. "I am aware of several people in this community who take care of business at home, as long as it doesn't bother the public at large," he said. "But she is bothering somebody, or we wouldn't be here tonight."

"We don't want to alter the ordinance every time a case comes up — and if we adopt a revision, we won't solve the complainant's problem."

Attorney Robert Leithauser, who represented several neighbors on the Shoreham cul-de-sac, told the commission that the Temkow daycare home is an incursion of commercial activities into a residential area. "The people who live there bought into the area thinking they'd find a nice, quiet little corner," he said. "Once you permit a commercial activity in a residential area, that's the first inroad. That's one big step for anybody else to come in and say 'what about me?'"

After the commission heard the complaints, one neighbor warned them that the city was wrong in challenging the home in the first place. "I don't agree completely with the Temkows," he said, "but the ordinance speaks to substantial disruption. I live there and there's not that much traffic. I have concerns as a taxpayer that a denial would lead to litigation."

Finally, Fraley told the commission that ordinance interpretation is the realm of the council and the courts. He moved that the commission direct the Temkows to petition council for an ordinance amendment.

"Obviously this is a larger issue than the four people in that cul-de-sac," he said the next day. "We're trying to satisfy more than just the residents on either side. The issue is whether we should grant carte blanche to home day care anywhere in residential areas."

Public hearing set on daycare issue

By Peter A. Salinas
Staff Writer

Someone at the Monday night meeting reminded Mayor George Freeman that it was an emotional issue.

"I can tell that," the Woods mayor said and tried to smile.

Injuries, not abuse

Last week the Grosse Pointe News reported that 13 children had been abused three years ago in a Park daycare home. According to the DSS' William Puumala, the children were injured, but there was no proof of abuse in all 13 cases.

"The departmental ruling was that there was neglect," Puumala said. "There were indications in two medical reports that the injuries could only have been caused by abuse." Puumala said all of the children in the case were too young to talk, so no details could be obtained from them.

Abuse of children in day care is always foremost on the minds of parents. Puumala said the best way to be sure is to report concerns.

"One of the safeguards of homes in the Pointes is that the community assists us," he said. "Parents do their homework."

Library parties

The Grosse Pointe Public Library summer reading program will conclude with parties at the three libraries next week. The Woods branch will host its party Tuesday, Aug. 11; the Park branch, Wednesday, Aug. 12; and Central Library, Thursday, Aug. 13. Times are from 10:30 a.m. to noon at all facilities.

Young readers who have participated in the reading program are invited to come to their libraries dressed as their favorite fictional characters and collect their certificates and prizes. Participants will also play games and enjoy a program of magic presented by Ming the Magnificent. Costumes are optional.

Further information is available from the children's librarians at the libraries.

Youth dance

Grosse Pointe students who have completed grades 6 through 8 can meet at the War Memorial Wednesday, Aug. 12, from 7:30 to 10:30 p.m. for a "Hot August Nite" dance, featuring music by J. R. Entertainment.

Tickets are $3.75 per person (limit two) and must be purchased by 5 p.m. the day of the dance. School, park or library I.D. required. No student will be admitted on War Memorial grounds the night of the dance without a ticket.

For further information about the dance, call the youth hotline, 881-8160. Parents, volunteers are needed. To chaperone, call 881-7511.

Voting unanimously with two councilmen absent, the Woods city council sent a request to change a city ordinance that bans operating a day care home in a residential area to the planning commission.

About 30 members of the audience, most of whom attended the meeting to discuss the day care issue, were told that the planning commission meeting Aug. 25 would only be able to set a public hearing on the issue at that time. The earliest a public hearing could be scheduled would be the fourth Tuesday in September.

A family day care home has been operated at the Sheila Temkow residence in the Woods for 10 years. Neighbors on Shoreham, a cul-de-sac, have filed complaints with the city stating the business is in violation of the city's ordinance, is a nuisance and should be terminated.

Parents of the children who stay at the Temkow home are furious at having their avenue for day care threatened.

After the complaints were brought to the attention of the city, Temkow was issued a cease and desist order, which she has ignored. She said at the meeting that she is currently caring for three and four children.

City attorney George Catlin said the cease and desist is a kind way of telling someone he or she is in violation of the city's ordinance. He said the city could have issued Temkow a court appearance for the zoning violation.

Residents spoke emotionally on both sides of the issue. Shoreham residents complained of car doors slamming at 7 a.m. when children are left at the Temkow home, and traffic on the otherwise quiet street both in the morning and afternoon.

Parents, all of whom also live in the Grosse Pointes, said there are few, if any, alternatives for them. The parents said that professional licensed day care centers have long waiting lists. They also said that they would rather have their children cared for in a home setting similar to what they provide.

Freeman let everyone who had something to say speak, but stressed that the council meeting was not a public hearing, and that the proper forum for such comments would be at the planning commission public hearing on the ordinance change request.

Later a motion was approved to send the ordinance change request to the planning commission for study.

During the discussion, the question of whether to enforce the current ordinance arose. Catlin said that unless instructed otherwise, the city building inspector would issue Temkow a violation and a court appearance.

Councilman William Wilson made a motion to enforce the ordinance. He strongly indicated that the current situation was a violation of city statutes, and the day care home should cease operations. Barring that, he said a single family dwelling should be just that, and the city should enforce the ordinance. The motion was seconded by Councilwoman Jean Rice.

That motion drew another round of lengthy discussion, especially from Temkow's attorney Charles Houston, who had requested a moratorium on the city's cease and desist order. Houston argued that the city should allow Temkow to continue her operation until the matter is decided.

Parents said that they would have nowhere to leave their children if the city forced Temkow to stop her operation the next day.

Councilman Paul Beaupre seemed to agree. He said that there is an undue hardship clause in the city ordinance, and it seemed to him that if the city would curtail Temkow's operation without a grace period, it would place an undue hardship on the parents of the children who are cared for.

Beaupre pointed out that since the operation was in effect for 10 years, it was unfair to simply pull the plug on the day care home, leaving the families with nowhere to leave their children when they go to work.

Freeman asked one of the residents how long it would take for the parents to find another place to leave their children.

"Would two weeks be long enough?" Freeman asked.

Parents let out a collective groan. Bill Wayman, one of the parents, said that at many of the professional day care homes, there are waiting lists of 20 to 30 names, and that their children couldn't get in in two months, let alone two weeks.

One of the opponents of the day care center shouted out from the audience.

"It will take six years," the person said, referring to the age a child starts school. Councilman Ted Bidigare said he was going to vote against Wilson's motion, not because he disagreed with it, but because he didn't feel it was necessary.

"We have an ordinance on the books," he said. "We also have a means to enforce it. I don't think the motion is necessary."

Catlin said that the motion would only serve to publicly state the council's position on the enforcement of the current ordinance, but added that without any additional instruction, the ordinance would be enforced.

Rice withdrew her support to Wilson's motion, and the motion died for lack of support.

At one point, one of the parents said that there were 12 licensed day care homes in the area, and that the use of day care homes was widespread.

"If they are breaking the law," Freeman said, "then you should tell us."

The parent said that the residents in those areas were not complaining, and he was not about to say where they were.

She's a modern-day Michelangelo

By Nancy Solak
Special Writer

People don't always work in a way that is considered normal. Pharmacists stand up while they type, firefighters sleep on the job, and Joan L.W. Hendrix, a former tree-climbing tomboy, lies on her back to paint.

Since mid-June Hendrix has been painting the plaster reliefs on the ceiling of the Great Hall of the War Memorial, lying a little more than two feet away from the ceiling atop a large scaffold. At the behest of the center's board, she is giving the Renaissance-style mouldings the colors the original 1910 designer had envisioned. She is using gold, blue, red, white, aqua and green, breathing new life into the fish, pheasant, vases, flowers, ribbons, berries and flying horses with fishtails that adorn the ceiling there. The scaffolding alone causes visitors to stop dead in their tracks. Then, automatically, they look up, amazed at what had been there all along, but was seldom noticed.

Three years ago War Memorial volunteers were cleaning the attic when they discovered a framed oil painting of the entranceway ceiling mouldings. About a year later plans called for revamping the foyer. They wanted to transform it into a

The ceiling on which Hendrix is working has a lot of detail. Photos by Peter A. Salinas

"real knockout," Executive Director Mark Weber said. It was at this time, when the area was under intense scrutiny, that the connection between the painting and the ceiling was made. Weber says no one knows why the ceiling wasn't painted when the house was built.

Hendrix, who has studied art part-time for six years at the Center for Creative Studies, loves her work. Her first job was last summer, at the Whitney, where her initial climb onto the scaffold was filled with trepidation. She didn't give any thought to her back that first day. "But the next day," she says, "I woke up and my back was sore. I had bruises all over it." Today she lies on a foam rubber mat used for camping.

She has an impressive work center up there, complete with spotlight, palette, paint, brushes, turpentine, a cup of coffee and a radio. Michelangelo should have had it so good. Hendrix says she learned during her studies of restorative art that Michelangelo really viewed himself as a sculptor, and resented having to paint the Sistine Chapel at the request of Pope Julius II.

From the way she talks about her work, it is clear no one is forcing her to do it. Yes, she admits, it does get tedious — sometimes she works up to five hours straight — but the satisfaction comes in its completion as well as in people's interruptions.

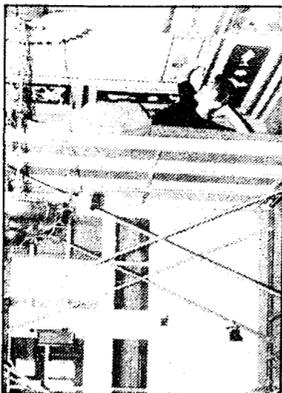

"Oh look," a visitor will say to a companion. "There's a man painting the ceiling." Hendrix delights in peeking over the edge and seeing the surprised look on their faces when they find out she's a woman. The mother of three, she gets a kick out of doing something unique for her living. She's not afraid of heights, nor is she claustrophobic, but she admits a slight fear of falling. Sometimes she concentrates so hard she gets frighteningly close to the edge.

After she descends the scaffold, she says she feels dizzy, as if she's been lying around in bed all day. She thinks the fumes from the oil paints may contribute to her light-headedness.

She is using oils because, she says, they will last longer. Right now the colors are much brighter than the original plan called for, but in time, they will fade, she says.

She hopes to complete the job by the end of August, and then move into the reception room to touch up the beams — they are cement, painted to look like wood. When she has time at home, she paints pictures in oils and watercolor, her favorite mediums. She has also done marbelizing and freehand ceiling painting. During her 1,000 hours of labor at the Whitney restaurant, she had the opportunity to add her own flowers, clouds and sky to the music room's ceiling. She hopes the future will find her part of Orchestra Hall's restorer project.

And to think there are some people who wonder what earthly good tree-climbing can come to!

Man arrested on fraud charge

After a lengthy chase that ended in Grosse Pointe Park, City officers arrested a 30-year-old Mount Clemens man on fraud charges.

The man was going door-to-door in the City Tuesday, July 28, on Washington, while his 24-year-old brother followed along in a car.

Apparently, the 30-year-old man was telling residents that he was involved in an accident, his wife was injured, and he was in need of $28 for a tow truck.

One woman gave him the money, and the man left. He later returned saying he needed an additional $38 to get the car towed. The woman became suspicious, refused and called police.

Later when a description of the vehicle was broadcast, the car was spotted in the Park on Yorkshire. The 30-year-old bailed out and a foot chase ensued. The man led police through several yards, and was even spotted hiding atop a garage. He was later captured and taken into custody.

City officials are seeking a warrant on the man for obtaining money under false pretenses. Officials were not sure if his brother would be charged.

Kids who take hard courses could get higher grades under proposed new system

By Nancy Parmenter
Staff Writer

Weighted grading is controversial — even the committee recommending it to the school board can't agree. In a compromise proposal presented Monday, the committee backed weighting the grades in advanced placement courses.

At issue is whether students who take tough classes should be rewarded through a system of weighting their grades. Currently a student receiving an 'A' in an easy course and a student with an 'A' in a hard course both get a 4.0 grade. With weighted grading, the advanced placement student would receive a 4.4.

Two committees worked on the question for a year, finding that while there may be a general consensus favoring weighted grading, working out the details is nearly impossible.

"It would be an understatement to say this is an emotional issue with the faculty, who jealously and properly guard the right to decide which classes receive the advanced placement designation," committee chair Frances Carnaghi told the board Monday.

Carnaghi, a counselor at North, and Robert Welch, director of secondary curriculum, were two of four committee members who issued a minority report favoring the inclusion of honors classes in the weighted grading system. But Carnaghi said she can support the main committee report.

"It became clear that we'd never get a majority vote for including honors classes without a trial run," she said. "Rather than see the whole program shelved, we decided to go for what we could get."

The rationale for weighted grading is that other schools do it, making competition for college unfair. Pressure to institute a plan came from parents and students, as well as some staff.

"Not every college knows Grosse Pointe," Welch said earlier. "The fear of parents is that they'll just look at the grade point average (without realizing the quality of the education). I personally believe it will be valuable in encouraging students to take more challenging courses."

Welch said his views on weighted grading have changed over the years. "I used to oppose it from the idealistic point of view," he said. "You ought to take stuff because you want to improve yourself. But the fact is that some students don't do that."

That's because they're afraid to, in many cases.

"There's a significant number who are very concerned about their grade point average," Carnaghi said. "They're strategically plotting a curriculum based on where they can get the best grades — and shying away from classes because they just can't risk not getting an 'A.'"

Some of the impetus for that caution is parents, who are determined to see their offspring in the best colleges. And the most selective colleges are starting to demand that their freshmen be among the top 10 in their graduating class, according to Carnaghi. That's the top 10, not the top 10 percent.

Apparently, a weighted grading system was used in Grosse Pointe until about 10 years ago. No one remembers why it was dropped. But letters to the superintendent and to the press made it clear that there were students who would like to see it reinstated.

"For the most part, it's popular among the students," Carnaghi said. "Some kids feel it's elitist. They feel the average student could be penalized. It won't stop them from getting a 4.0, but it does mean they won't be valedictorian again. The kids who are college-bound will like it."

Not all the members of the school board liked it. Trustees Carl Anderson and Jon Gandelot argued that weighted grading won't help college admissions because most students take advanced placement courses during their senior year, while most colleges admit freshmen based on their grades as high school juniors.

Anderson said he agreed with the minority report that more classes should be included in the system. Gandelot called the proposal a "compromise to satisfy the staff rather than helping the kids."

"Where this will have impact is four or five years down the road when students begin to plan their courses and take some advanced placement classes in their junior year," Carnaghi said.

Pointes protect both the past and the future

Grosse Pointe Farms officials now are considering amendments to the zoning ordinance, a new proposal for the development of another estate in the Farms and a new plan to help preserve historic homes in the Farms.

Those three proposals appear to be contradictory in some respects. But they also reflect the need for the Farms and other Pointe municipalities to consider the importance of the past in planning for the future. Obviously, the best of the past should be preserved if at all possible, because that will help assure an excellent housing environment in the future. Yet planning for the future requires more than preservation of the past. It also requires consideration for the rights of current property owners, including those of developers.

The Farms council has been considering its own role in planning future housing developments for some time. Earlier this year it put a moratorium on approving new housing developments and plans for new subdivisions in large estates. Now it has called a public hearing for Aug. 17 on its zoning amendments which would require, among other things, a substantial increase in the minimum lot size from 11,000 to 15,000 square feet and in width from 100 to 120 feet in certain one-family residential areas.

The proposal to develop the 8.5-acre Harley G. Higbie estate, which has been inherited by Harley G. Higbie Jr. and Hugo Higbie, is only in the preliminary stages, but it obviously would be affected by amendments in the zoning ordinance. Realtor Hugo Higbie told the News, in fact, the family had submitted the plans in an effort to place them under the current ordinance, rather than the more restrictive amendments.

The council, however, apparently is going ahead with its hearing on the amended ordinance before taking any action on the Higbie estate request. Under the circumstances, a good many other Farms residents also are expected to attend the hearings to learn what impact, if any, the amendments would have on their properties.

In one respect, the Higbie proposal is in line with the desires of the Grosse Pointe Historical Society to preserve the most significant older homes in the Farms and the other Pointe municipalities. Hugo Higbie said the family has no plan to demolish the existing mansion which he described as one of the last fine lakefront homes of a liveable size and located on probably the highest piece of land in the Pointes.

The historical society seeks to save such homes to preserve the community's heritage, help retain the beauty of the Pointes and possible offer housing opportunities not now currently available in the Pointes. By subdividing a large estate and preserving the house and grounds, the group feels that the environment can be maintained and a unique housing alternative can be offered.

Whether the interests of both the Higbies and the historical society can be served is doubtful. However, the society's proposal at this point remains only a proposal under consideration by the mayor's advisory council. And there is obviously a need to consider the interests of the estate owners as well as those concerned about preserving significant older homes.

Many of the best of the old Grosse Pointe mansions already have fallen to the developers' ambitions, but it is not too late to try to preserve the few that remain. Similarly, it is wise for the Farms council to seek improvements in its zoning ordinance that will help protect the community against housing developments that do not contribute as much as they could to the beauty of the Pointes and the pleasure of living here.

Reflections on a vacation

For an editorial writer, one of the benefits of a vacation trip is recalling what he has heard, seen and learned that might interest his readers. In this writer's case, the reflections concern the Midwest reaction to the 1988 presidential campaign, the televised Iran-contra hearings and the new 65 mph speed limit in effect on rural freeways in the area, except in Michigan.

1988 just a blur

In visiting with people and in reading the local papers in Indiana, Ohio, Illinois, Wisconsin and Minnesota, we found no more unanimity about the Republican and Democratic choices for presidential nominations in 1988 than we had found earlier in Michigan. True, it is more than a year until the November 1988 election, but there is little enthusiasm, even for the leaders who seem to be emerging.

Vice President George Bush still maintains his lead for the GOP nomination in the public opinion polls although by a narrowing margin over Sen. Robert Dole of Kansas, with Rep. Jack Kemp of New York and the Rev. Pat Robertson, the TV evangelist, leading the rest of the field. The GOP leaders seem to be better known than the Democratic entries, but a recent Harris poll indicates more support for a Democratic than a Republican candidate in 1988.

Among the Democrats, none of the announced or about-to-announce candidates seems to have made much of an impression in the Midwest. David S. Broder, in a recent syndicated column, reported that his own soundings in two Democratic precincts in Cleveland convinced him the serious candidates are "simply a blur to the voters."

Perhaps because of the failure of any of these candidates to catch the public's fancy, others are now testing the presidential waters. In Michigan, Gov. James Blanchard has been mentioned as a possible favorite son in 1988 and in Minnesota the state's dentist-governor, independent Democrat Rudy Perpich, is talking privately about going to Iowa to campaign for president in the fall.

Blanchard, as we know, is governor of the "comeback" state and has just been named chairman of the Democratic Governors' Association. But Perpich isn't even a member of the association, has no ties to the national Democratic Party or its chairman, Paul Kirk, and is widely regarded at home as a political loner. Yet his lack of national political experience may be no great detriment. Our two most recent presidents, Jimmy Carter and Ronald Reagan, proved that a governorship can serve as a successful presidential campaign launching pad.

North losing halo?

As for the Iran-contra hearings, Lt. Col. Oliver North emerged as a popular hero, although the testimony of other officials later tarnished his halo. Letters to the editor in Midwest papers recently contained as much criticism as praise for North. Even some fellow Vietnam veterans could not condone his testimony. One wrote, "However heroic he might have been in combat, his present actions are not the stuff of heroism." Other letter-writers still eulogized North, however, and blamed the news media for the criticism of the Marine officer.

We found few viewers who accepted the hearings as a modern recurrence of the historic debate over the respective powers of the executive and legislative branches of government. Many still seemed to back the president in his efforts to win the release of the U.S. hostages by selling arms to Iran and accepted his word that he didn't know about the diversion to the contras of the profits from the arms sales. Others tended to write off the hearings as "just politics." Yet while the polls showed a rise in support for the contras since the hearings began, they also showed that a majority of the public still thought the president has been lying.

There is little likelihood of impeachment or other serious charges being lodged against the president, although it has become clear he did not supervise his staff closely and did not get as involved personally in what was going on as he should have done. Yet people seem to agree that he has suffered a loss of prestige and standing that will weaken the rest of his presidency and give the Democrats, now in control of both houses of Congress, better opportunities to set the political agenda until November 1988.

Speeders not slowed

Every motorist has his views about the new 65 mph speed limit in effect on rural freeways in Midwest states, except Michigan, but this driver believes the idea of increasing the speed limits on part of the freeways is unworkable.

In Wisconsin, almost 31 percent of the drivers on rural interstates are violating the new 65 mph limit. And the average speed has risen from 59.6 mph to 62.5 mph on the rural interstates. But in Minnesota the state highway patrol reported general compliance with the 65 mph limit.

In Minnesota, however, troopers reported having difficulty in controlling speed limits on urban interstates and other four-lane highways where the limit remains at 55 mph. One reason is that motorists are aware that Minnesota law provides a 10 mph cushion before the speeding violations go onto their driving records.

In fact, it's difficult to find the signs that tell you in most Midwestern states whether you are driving in a 55 mph or a 65 mph zone. That might be another excuse for the fact that motorists seldom slow to 55 mph when they leave the rural interstates and enter the urban stretches of the interstates. In Michigan, motorists are still exceeding the 55 mph limit, apparently on the assumption the state police will forgive any violation up to 65 mph even though the law still says that 55 mph is the maximum limit everywhere in the state.

If new laws have done little to control speeds, perhaps the OPEC nations will have more influence. The increasing cost of gasoline at the pump may persuade some motorists to slow down to save money. The law of supply and demand thus may become operative, even if legislative laws setting speed limits have been widely disregarded.

No objections

To the Editor:

I am writing to you in regards to the article that appeared in last week's Grosse Pointe News concerning daycare homes in Grosse Pointe and specifically the daycare home run by Sheila Temkow.

I live directly next door to Mrs. Temkow. Our homes are 10 feet apart and our house is adjacent to the Temkows' driveway. We are her closest neighbors. We have never been bothered, annoyed or disturbed by cars bringing children to her home. We have never been annoyed, bothered or disturbed by the children that she cares for. We feel that it has been a joy to live next door to such a loving, kind woman.

The residents of Grosse Pointe Woods should be proud to have a woman of this caliber giving such a service to our community. Instead, at a meeting of the Grosse Pointe Woods City Council held on Monday evening, Aug. 3, it was agreed that Sheila Temkow was indeed in violation of a city ordinance prohibiting a business to be operated in a home. And because of this violation, Sheila must stop babysitting immediately!

What a shame that the three new residents and a few elderly retired residents of Shoreham Road did not take time out of their leisurely days to acquaint themselves with Sheila. Perhaps if they knew this woman, they would not have been so hasty to take her life's work away from her.

Since the issue at hand has gone from the original complaint of traffic in the Temkow driveway to the issue of daycare homes in the city of Grosse Pointe Woods, I feel I must speak in favor of daycare homes. I do believe that all children should be at home with their own parents. When this is not possible, a daycare home is the next best thing. I cannot believe that the residents of Grosse Pointe Woods would prefer their small children to be massed together in a storefront on Mack Avenue and be called a daycare center.

Our children are our future; it is time we give considerable thought to their care. Small children thrive in loving homes such as that provided by Mrs. Temkow. It takes a special talent and a lot of love and kindness to care for small children. It is time that the talent of Mrs. Temkow and many other people like her be recognized as a community service.

Support day care

To the Editor:

Under the present zoning ordinance within Grosse Pointe Woods, a parent cannot hire a sitter within the community to 1) watch their pre-school child in the sitter's home while the parents work and/or 2) watch their school-aged child after school. This would be considered a "business" in an area zoned "residential" and is considered illegal. Either the school-aged children attend Latchkey, or parents must hire a sitter from Harper Woods, East Detroit, Detroit or St. Clair Shores to pick their children up from school. This is ludicrous!

Grosse Pointe Woods has long been termed a "family community." Children are an important resource, and we need to change in order to handle their needs. In order to remain a progressive

Of cars, guitars and violins

Every three years or so, the auto companies and the unions get together to negotiate a contract. Sometimes, with or without a major strike, both sides reach a mutually agreeable decision and work goes on for three more years. Usually the workers will earn a little more money, the company groans and two years down the line posts record profits.

That's great. I couldn't be happier for them. But damn it, consumers should be allowed to negotiate with the auto companies too.

The way it stands right now is that the rich get richer and the poor buy cars.

I drive a 1986 Ford Tempo

GL. I hate to be a name-dropper, but I figure the make and model of the car are important facts to this story.

I have this problem. It is no one's fault but my own. I accept full responsibility for the high amount of mileage I have put on my car.

Because of these high miles, my wife and I decided to look into buying a new car. I made a few calls.

I found out that the retail value of a Ford Tempo GL, even with low miles and in perfect condition, was worth about $150 less than I still owe on it. Even though I purchased it with all the goodies, changed the oil, hosed the salt and snow off from underneath and spent enough on ArmourAll to reupholster a living room couch, I would have to pay money out to trade it in or sell it outright.

After a little more checking, I also discovered that if the car were totaled in an accident, caught on fire or were stolen, my wonderful insurance company would pay me only the Blue Book retail value for a car with high mileage, which would mean

I would owe the credit company significantly more than the $150 difference mentioned earlier.

Talk about your Catch-22s. Next year, the vehicle will have even more miles on it, and in turn, have become more valueless. I feel as though I am drowning and someone has thrown me a tire rim for a life-preserver.

I have a few friends who are musicians. They own several very old guitars and violins. The way it has been explained to me, guitars lose value when they are purchased. Over the years they gain back their value, and some guitars become collector's items and gain back their value and then some. Violins, in some cases, become worth thousands of dollars and remain useful for decades.

Cars rust. They look nice for the first week, then you take them into a supermarket parking lot and $200 of body work later, the car is worth $1,500 less than you paid for it.

Dealers are not your friends. If you ask for the bulletins the car companies have sent out on problems with the make and model of car you are interested in buying, the salesman looks at you as though you were from the Island of Dented Fenders, and asks if you are interested in buying an extended warranty that doesn't cover any of the things that are likely to go wrong with the car during the period the warranty covers, but does cover the things that shouldn't go wrong for 10 years.

Then the thing doesn't run properly. Parts are loose or parts are missing. How many times have you brought your car for repair, only to have the repairman say that he never heard of that problem, but it could probably be fixed after about week of serious labor-intensive research.

"Give me the keys to your car and you can pick it up next Thursday."

"But, but . . . how do I get home?"

"Not my problem, buddy. Let me ask you, would you rather walk for a week, or pay a big expensive repair bill and have your car run right for a few hours."

"Well, I'd like to have it fixed..."

"Good, give me the keys. See ya."

It's all over after that. There is some law that requires the repairman to call you if the estimate is lower than the actual repair bill. Sit by the phone, because the call will come. If you aren't there to answer it, your car sits off to a side, getting covered with dust from some grinding tool.

Have you ever noticed that people who are successful never actually own a car? There has to be some relationship between financial success and the use of a company car. When you take into account payments, insurance, maintenance, fuel and the cost of the newspaper ad to sell the car, a large percentage of the average person's income is expended on the car.

Certainly there is value to the miles you drive. What is it though? Is it the thrill you get when you are cut off by a guy driving a rusted out 1973 Chevy with a bumper sticker which reads, "Don't laugh it's paid for." Is it the enjoyment you get from feeling a cool breeze in your face when the heater goes out in the dead of winter? I know what it is. It is the warm feeling you get in the pit of your stomach when the payment book arrives. You know, the one with the 10 percent interest you got, the week before the auto companies offer 2.9 percent interest and $500 cash back.

community, we must offer quality day care. Over 20 years ago, Grosse Pointe Woods community leaders enacted an ordinance pertaining to the needs and projections of the time. We're sure had they known of the two-family income earners of the 1980s, provisions for residential child care would have been enacted. Within our community, every family should have the option to choose between a daycare center and care within a residential home.

The city is undergoing a turnover from longtime residents who have retired and moved from the community. The children of these older residents have made a commitment to remain in Grosse Pointe Woods, and many other younger families have moved in. These families are committed to the high quality schools and activities our community has to offer. We must realize, however, that without our children, a community cannot grow. At Monteith Elementary for the upcoming school year, the Grosse Pointe Board of Education is predicting an increase of 41 children who will be entering kindergarten.

For every resident who has lived within the community for a number of years, think back for a minute. . . In the '50s, '60s and early '70s, Grosse Pointe Woods was full of children! There were children on every block, and it was a wonderful place to raise a family. Perhaps you were raising your own children at this time. School enrollment was high, and extracurricular community activities were abundant. Then your children grew up, married and suddenly there were few children living on your block. Now your married children are having families of their own, and many of them have decided to live in this community. There's a sudden rebirth of children in the neighborhood! (The older residents of my block were ecstatic to see trick-or-treaters at Halloween again!)

Now, there's one thing different. You provided a quality education for your sons and daughters. Many of your daughters are now professionals who have careers of their own. Some may have chosen to remain at home and plan to return to work within a few years. Therefore, we must provide quality day care for their children.

By not allowing residential day care within Grosse Pointe Woods, the city is saying, "Have your children attend our schools, participate in community events. But, if you happen to have pre-school children or your children need care after school, send them to St. Clair Shores, Detroit or Harper Woods if you need a sitter!" Also, it has been reported in recent issues of the Grosse Pointe News that the school district's Latchkey Program has been disorganized and is not consistent within each school. Therefore, it should be our choice whether or not we want to send our children to a daycare center and/or Latchkey vs. care in a residential home.

Many people have said to me, "You'll need a lot of luck on changing this ordinance. Grosse Pointe is a 'bedroom' community." That is what we find frightening — that the community may not be open to change and respond to the needs of our times.

We hope that every family within the community comes forward to support an amendment to the zoning ordinance. Our children deserve the best care possible.

Some clubs

Let's start off by saying that this isn't just another hole-in-one story, it's more a story of a set of clubs that have earned the space. Bob Parmenter, husband of staff writer Nancy Parmenter, placed an ad in the paper several weeks ago to sell a set of men's golf clubs. Bob, an avid golfer, hated to give up the set since they had once earned him a hole-in-one. It was the six-iron on a par three hole that won him the honor, but as any golfer knows, the better the clubs, the better the golfer. . . so he sold the clubs.

Grosse Pointer Chris Murray, 19, bought the clubs and since then has had nothing but good luck.

Chris said he was at the Lakeview Country Club in Lexington this past weekend when he approached the tee at the number 12 hole. Chris took out his seven iron on the 150 yard hole and aced it.

Par residents Keith and Cameron Muir witnessed the hole-in-one. Bob muttered something about wishing he never sold the clubs, and Chris called Nancy to say he was as happy as a birdie!

Speaking of birdies

Five of Detroit's newest residents, the peregrine falcons, which are now living atop MichCon's downtown headquarters, now have names.

Four local radio stations held contests in which their morning listeners suggested names for the birds. The names Sesqui, Bogey, Ollie, Sparky and Freedom were chosen by the Audubon Society, WXYT, WOMC, WHYT and WCXI respectively.

Apparently, the names fit well with the personalities of the birds. Each bird is marked with its own special color on a wing in addition to being banded.

Sparky, which has its left-wing colored orange, is much like the Detroit Tiger Manager Sparky Anderson. Reportedly, the falcon is feisty and energetic, just like the Tigers' Sparky.

Ollie, the bird named after the now-famous Lt. Col. Oliver North has its right wing painted orange. Ollie, the oldest male, and like his namesake, went out on a limb as the first flyer, got into some trouble, but eventually bailed himself out.

Freedom, the large bird, which has its left wing painted white, protected the younger birds while they were in the hawk box and is the strongest flyer. She often soars out of sight and makes frequent trips to Windsor.

They're like gold

A Woods senior citizen had a serious complaint for the city council at its Monday meeting.

She told the council that she pays taxes on her house, also pays special park taxes, never uses the park and can't get park passes for when her children and grandchildren visit.

She said that the office staff wouldn't allow her to get a guest pass for Lake Front Park unless her daughter physically brought in her identification.

Councilwoman Jean Rice said that she can go to the bank and move her husband's bonds around to different accounts by bringing in a photostatic copy of his driver's license.

That's probably very true, but we're not talking about mere bonds or a piddly 90-day certificate of deposit here. We're talking a Grosse Pointe Woods park pass. Though the analogy is somewhat similar, it's like comparing a pound of feathers to a pound of gold.

The matter was quickly solved when administration officials said they would accept a copy of a driver's license, and office staff would be made aware of that in the future.

Wonder if we could get in the park with a copy of a park pass? Nahhhh!

Trim your locks for Casa Maria

Paul Azar of Morgan's, a Grosse Pointe salon, has volunteered his and his staff's haircutting services to benefit Casa

Maria, a Detroit center for young people.

Chris Ferrin, member of the Junior League of Detroit, is the chairperson for the event, which will be held Monday, Aug. 10, at Morgan's, 16822 Kercheval, from 9:30 a.m. to 5 p.m. A $15 donation to Casa Maria will be the price for a cut and style. Customers can call 885-2760 for an appointment or simply walk-in.

Ferrin's two children Julie, 9, and Dan, 6, have made the first appointments for their back-to-school cuts.

Casa Maria is now open only three days a week. The center is currently trying to open for a fourth day, and needs $40,000 to do that for an entire year.

Centenarians recognized

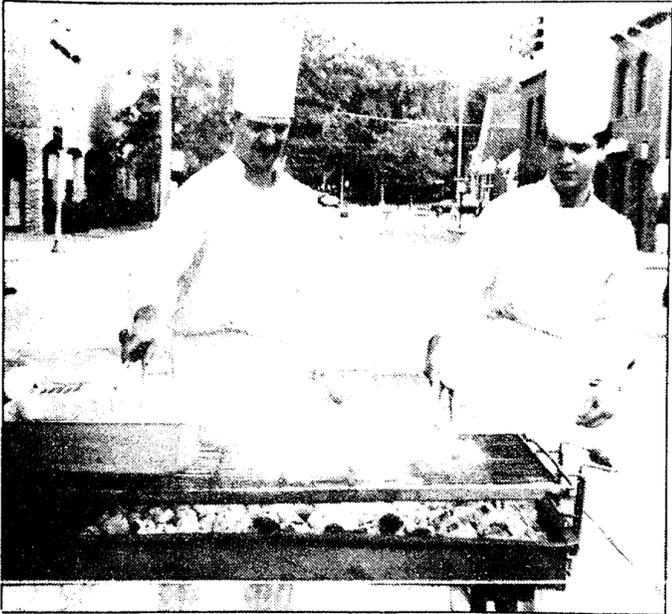

Saluting Michigan centenarians goes hand in hand with the state's 150th birthday celebration this year. Older adults are representative of the pioneers and stewards and the Commission and Office of Services to the Aging are presenting a special certificate of recognition to each Michigan centenarian signed by Gov. James J. Blanchard, Commission Chairperson Al Rightley and Office of Services to the Aging Director Olivia Maynard.

The over-100 age group has been reported to be the fastest growing segment of our population. There are nearly 25,000 centenarians in this country, and about 2,000 of them are Michigan citizens. By the year 2000, the Michigan population is expected to increase to more than 6,500 centenarians. Nationally, the figure is likely to exceed 100,000.

Persons interested in having a certificate of recognition presented to a Michigan citizen 100 years old or more should write to OSA, P.O. Box 30026, Lansing, Mich. 48909 or call 517/373-8230 and give the centenarian's name, address and birthdate.

For more information, call Larrestine Trimm, at (517) 373-4081.

lonely, very scary feeling. The tears are starting now just thinking about it."

The operation was a success, but complications left Weskel with a partially paralyzed arm and shoulder. Physical therapists at St. John Hospital worked with Weskel during his time off from work — November 1983 through April 1984 — and were able to help him regain 95 percent use of the arm.

Although Weskel's heart and arm were in good shape by June of that year, his spirit wasn't. He retired from the English department at South.

"I felt that I couldn't function well enough to put into teaching what one must in order to do some good. I enjoyed teaching tremendously and I do miss it very much," Weskel said.

Teaching had actually been a second career for the tall, rugged-looking Detroit native. "Before that, I'd been a manufacturer's representative making three times the amount I made teaching. I had a company car and expenses accounts. I really thought I was king of the hill. But it wasn't enough."

So he went back to school, relying on the help of his wife, Mary Ann, in order to complete work on his degree.

"Mary Ann is deserving of a 'Ph.D. degree' — Putting Hubby Through school," Weskel said with a grin. "She made many sacrifices so I could finish."

Once he did, there was no stopping him. He went on to earn two more degrees, including a masters in English. Weskel taught English, creative writing and speed reading at South; he also taught part time at Macomb Community College and at Wayne State University. During the school year, he'd rush from one teaching job to another.

"It was a 12-month job for me.

I really, really loved it," Weskel said.

And when it was over, he had a hard time adjusting to the fact that he wouldn't be in the classroom anymore.

"Well, you have to realize that my retirement brought on sort of a sad period for me. My three eldest had left the nest and the baby was in college. Coupled with that was the fact that my mom had developed Alzheimer's Disease and, very reluctantly, we had to place her in a nursing facility. It was a rough time for all of us," Weskel remembered.

He visited Clara Weskel every day, even though many times she wasn't aware of who he was. And as difficult as it was for Weskel's mother to accept her situation, it did brighten her day to have a visitor, Weskel said. Many other residents never enjoyed that same privilege.

"It used to just tear my heart to see those people with so few visitors. They really are the forgotten people."

Enter Weskel's mother-in-law, Mary Ruppel, and her Christmas gift: a miniature electric piano keyboard. Weskel, who also holds an undergraduate degree in music, took keyboard lessons from David Lindsay of Hammell Music. He quickly became proficient on the mini keyboard, then traded it in for a larger, portable model which he began to take with him on his daily visits to Cottage-Belmont Nursing Center. Weskel would entertain his mother with her favorite tunes from the 1920s and '30s.

Those daily jam sessions for Weskel's mother and her roommates turned into a twice-per-month "booking" at Cottage-Belmont. Word of his performances spread to other nursing facilities and soon, Weskel was a traveling musician, taking his show on the road to 11 metro-area nursing homes.

"Nursing homes are such sad and depressing places. Many people have no visitors and the staff just can't take the time to entertain the residents. And many of their minds are still active, even though their bodies are weak and worn. It just seems to make them so glad to relive those happy moments by playing some of their favorite songs," Weskel said.

He plays his own favorites and takes requests for songs from the 1920s through the 1940s. He also brings a microphone and sings along with the music. Weskel even sings in Italian and Polish.

"It's a very gratifying feeling to see what my music means to these people. At Abbey Convalescent Center, there was a woman who hadn't been out of her wheelchair for two years. She told the aides, 'Please help me up, I just have to dance.'

"Do you know how wonderful that feels?"

It isn't always easy for Weskel to make his daily trips into the facilities. It is sad and depressing and sometimes, all-too-reminiscent of his own experiences with ill health.

"During my performance I keep telling the residents how sharp they look, how beautiful they are. And some people might not think they looked so beautiful. But so what? It only takes a little effort on my part and it means a lot to them.

"And sure it's depressing in some of the homes... but I get to leave at the end of the day. They don't."

Weskel said now that he's found his third "career," he'll keep at it as long as he's able and as long as he's needed. "I've got my health back. I've got great kids, a terrific wife and what all enjoyed the fruits of what this community has to offer. It's nice to be able to give something back, you know?"

"Besides, how could I resist

Weskel also performs at street fairs and festivals; here he is at last month's festival in the Village.

Teen attacked on Mack

A 17-year-old Detroit woman told Woods police she was attacked while she was walking on Mack between Littlestone and Broadstone around 11:43 p.m. Thursday, July 30.

After being stopped for a traffic violation and having her car impounded in the Farms, the woman began walking with her nephew, whom she carried in her arms.

She said she was grabbed by a black man, about 25, 5 feet 8 inches, and weighing 165 pounds.

The man grabbed the child from her arms, then began tearing at her blouse. The woman said she struck the man in the eye with a radio she was carrying, then took her nephew back and began running.

She didn't report the incident immediately, but returned to the Woods public safety department after returning home and changing clothes.

Woods officials are investigating the complaint.

Photographs from "Main Street," a book portraying small-town Michigan by Detroit Free Press photographer Manny Crisostomo, will be on display at the WDIV Gallery through Friday, Aug. 28. The artist's exhibit can be viewed from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. weekdays at the Gallery located at 550 West Lafayette in Detroit.

Crisostomo, 27, a resident of Grosse Pointe, says he has always been drawn to people — especially the folksy, ebullient types with endless stories and simple wisdom. The exhibit includes more than 30 photos depicting people at work and at play, and scenes of festivity and serenity.

"Main Street" represents Crisostomo's visits to approximately 110 small towns in Michigan. He traveled 60,000 miles over two years, and took more than 20,000 pictures for the book.

He overcomes a lifetime of obstacles in one year

By Pat Paholsky
News Editor

Last year on July 23 in the morning, Tom Combs witnessed the birth of his second son, Michael Patrick. Then he drove himself to another hospital where his doctor had reserved a bed for him. He was told that afternoon he had leukemia.

In the year since, he has experienced a lifetime of obstacles, overcoming each one and in the process, adding to his string of victories. His sister, Nancy Werneken, calls him a real champion.

The 31-year-old Combs grew up in Grosse Pointe Woods and graduated from North High in 1973. His parents, Larry and ferred several severe cold viruses and a sinus infection, strep throat and a stomach virus as well as the side effects of the chemotherapy.

One week before he was to enter the hospital in Seattle, he developed pneumonia. Chest X-rays revealed a spot on his lung, and his sister said neither problem could be addressed in one week.

In order not to lose his place in Seattle, he decided to make the trip, and his doctor advised the staff there of his condition. Combs was accompanied by his wife Tina and two children, parents, his sister and her young daughter.

The family rented two apartments near the hospital and testing for a bone marrow transplant began immediately. His pneumonia was treated and cleared in the first week and he began tests on an outpatient basis five days a week for six to eight hours a day until early March.

The spot on his lung, a fungus infection, was removed in March when he underwent major open lung surgery. The transplant was postponed while he recuperated for four weeks from the surgery.

During this time, Werneken says her brother was treated as an outpatient with a highly potent anti-fungus antibiotic in order to eliminate the infection from his entire system. The drug, which produces extreme fatigue, fever and chills, is known by its non-medical name of Shake and Bake, Werneken said.

Then 10 days before the transplant, Combs was admitted to the hospital for chemotherapy and radiation treatments in extremely high doses to eliminate all of the white blood cells from his body.

In the meantime, his father had been undergoing numerous tests, including sessions with cardiologists, since he had suffered a heart attack five years ago.

On April 22, marrow was taken from Larry Combs in the morning. The process involves large tubes inserted in the pelvic region and it took the elder Combs a week to recuperate from the surgery.

The marrow was transfused in the afternoon. According to Werneken, all indicators say the transplant is a total success, however, her brother's overall recovery has been slow.

He has had numerous severe infections and other problems. Since the transplant more than three months ago, Combs had been fed intravenously. In June, he contracted chicken pox, followed by a disease common to transplant patients, followed by a bacterial infection in his blood and fluid around his heart.

Through it all, Werneken said her brother has maintained a positive attitude, pulling his family through the ordeal and joking constantly with the medical staff. "Hell, I'm just glad to be alive," Werneken quoted him as saying recently.

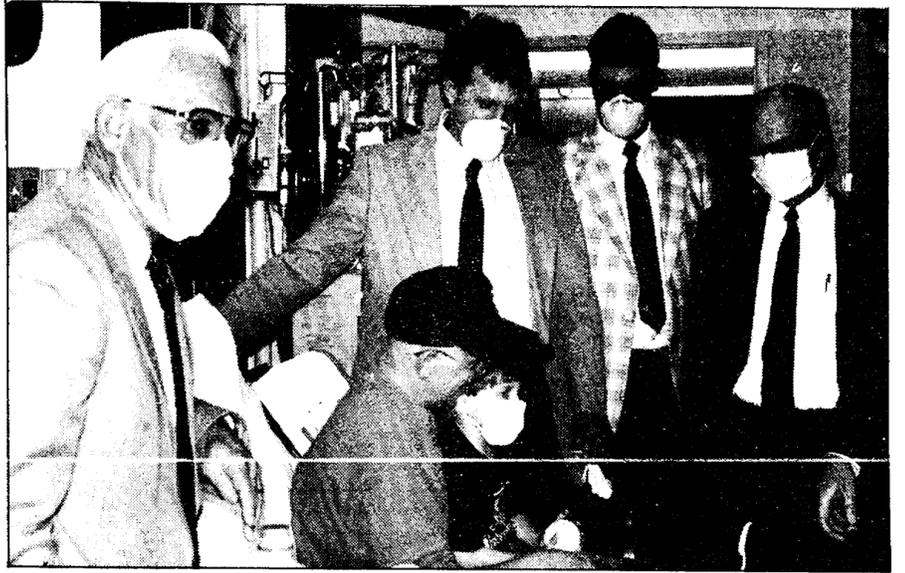

Last week, after nearly six months in Seattle, Combs came home. Besides his life battle, he now has another fight — medical costs. The transplant alone was $100,000, Werneken said. The family's stay in Seattle cost them about $10,000 and his diet will cost $150 every day.

He is nearing the cap on his insurance and the company where he was employed for 10 years terminated him July 23, their policy for a lengthy illness.

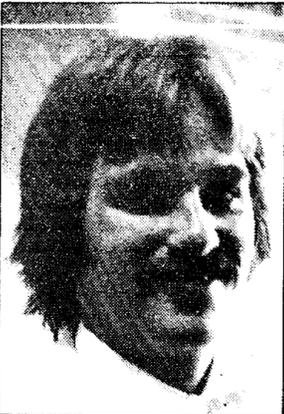

Through shrewd investing, Combs was able to accumulate a substantial savings, Werneken said, which is now depleted. His only income is Social Security.

Werneken said her brother will not be able to work for a year and every time he leaves his house, he'll have to wear a mask to guard against infections. The white cells are still growing and it will take a year for them to mature to fighting cells, she said.

In the meantime, she has established a fund to help him. Checks can be made to Thomas M. Combs and sent to Nancy Werneken, 428 Madison, Grosse Pointe Farms 48236. Her phone number is 882-5067.

Marion Combs, moved to Leland two years ago, and his sister and brother Steve live in the Farms.

The day after he was diagnosed as having leukemia, he started chemotherapy. His doctor recommended a bone marrow transplant, the only known cure for the blood disease, and the donor search began immediately.

All the members of the family were tested and about the middle of August, it was discovered that he and his father matched in all antigens except one, which was acceptable if further tests were positive.

Over the next few months, father and son underwent extensive blood testing and by Thanksgiving, it was confirmed that Larry Combs was a suitable donor. The family obtained a February 1987 admitting date to the Fred Hutchinson Cancer Research Center in Seattle, the leading marrow transplant center in the country, according to Werneken.

In the meantime, Combs suf-

TRAVEL TIPS

by Winnie Manley

Las Vegas never sleeps. Those with stamina can keep moving for as long as their eyes remain open, enjoying breakfast at 3 a.m. or at 5 in the afternoon, gambling 24 hours a day and seeing a top name entertainer every night. You can even get married at one of the many wedding chapels which are also open 24 hours a day.

Top notch hotels offer mid-week packages at surprisingly low rates. The city has a unique atmosphere which appeals not only to gamblers, but to those who enjoy the entertainment, warm weather and reasonable restaurant prices.

If you tire of the casinos and night life, you might want to take a tour of Hoover Dam, spend a day at one of the many shopping centers or visit Liberate's Museum with its fabulous collection of jewels, cars, clothing and other memorabilia. There's no question that you'll find plenty to do.

Many of the top hotels are within walking distance of each other on the strip, but there are also fine hotels at lower prices downtown. Las Vegas is especially popular with those who enjoy the casinos, but it can also be used as a base or two or three day tours to the Grand Canyon, Zion and Bryce National Parks, the Arizona Ghost Towns, Desert Tours and Lake Mead. Most tours operate year 'round and are easily arranged.

Excursion air fares make Las Vegas a great place for a quick getaway, a mini-vacation or a base for a tour of the National Parks. We'll help you find the right packages based upon your own preferences, so give us a call and starting saving your quarters.

Even if the machines don't pay off, you'll hit the jackpot by letting us be of service.

Summer mini-courses begin Aug. 11

The Grosse Pointe public schools are offering mini-courses beginning Aug. 11 for eight days, Tuesdays through Fridays. Some of the classes include testing strategies, study skills sections for middle school, high school, high school learning disabled and the college-bound, language arts and mathematics for elementary school.

Classes are two hours in length and tuition is $24 for residents and $36 for non-residents. Register at North High School weekdays from 8 a.m. to 2 p.m.

For more information, call 343-2203.

The regular five-week session of Summer Experience, the summer school program, ended July 24. The first open house was held July 22 and more than 200 residents and 700 students attended.

Youth held up at gunpoint

A 15-year-old Park resident was held up at gunpoint Friday, July 24, and forced to give up his Moped to four black males at St. Paul near Wayburn.

While riding his Moped, the youth was stopped by a vehicle's occupants, and a blue steel revolver was leveled at him.

The youth was told to get off the bike and run. The incident occurred around 6:20 a.m. There are no suspects at this time.

ULS wins foundation grant

A $40,000 grant to establish a program in Chinese language has been approved for University Liggett School by the trustees of the Geraldine R. Dodge Foundation in Morristown, N.J.

The Dodge Foundation had invited Chinese language proposals in 1983-84, which led to the original funding of 39 programs. In the 1987 round, 81 proposals were received.

Twenty-one additional schools, including ULS, were chosen to receive grants. The latest grants bring the Dodge Foundation's financial commitment to Chinese language instruction at the secondary level to $2.6 million over a seven-year period.

Funds awarded are directed toward enabling committed high schools to launch Chinese studies programs. ULS will receive $20,000 upon selecting a teacher and the balance after the program has been in place for two years.

ULS Headmaster Ted Whatley said the school is currently looking for a teacher for the fall of 1988. The teacher will teach Chinese language and East Asian history in the upper school and some introductory courses in the lower and middle schools.

THE NEW SAAB 9000S IS HERE. (AT LEAST IT WAS A FEW SECONDS AGO.)

Saab's definition of abundant supply is not like other carmakers' definition of abundant supply. So anyone who finds the idea of owning this naturally-aspirated, 16-valve version of the Saab 9000 appealing would do well to behave like the car. And move fast to take a test drive in the car whose only imported rival in the interior space department is the Rolls-Royce Silver Spur Limousine. Because despite its reputation for quality, there's one thing Saab's never been able to make last: The opportunity to take immediate delivery.

Leisure classes for fall

The Department of Community Education of the Grosse Pointe Public School System has planned a total of 82 new non-credit, leisure-time classes for adults for the fall term beginning Sept. 8. Of this number, 39 are popular, single-session offerings.

Among the diverse new offerings are opportunities to learn (or to review) Latin, taught by Elizabeth Ferguson, retired from the University Liggett staff, in a class called "Latin - How It Works"; to study "Fingerprints - Signature of a Crime," taught by a member of the Detroit Police Department. Other new and unusual classes include "Mime: An Introduction," taught by a disciple and protege of Marcel Marceau, "Japanese: An introduction to Language and Culture," "Shaker Oval Box Workshop," "Printmaking: An Introduction," "Remodeling and Additions: Are They Cost Effective?", and "Wallpapering."

Other new-for-fall offerings will be described fully in the brochure which will reach all homes in the Grosse Pointe school district the week of Aug. 24.

The Department of Community Education's fall brochure containing all the classes and activities planned for September, October, November and December, will be available at the Central, Woods and Park branch libraries in late August, as well as at Barnes School, 20090 Morris Drive.

War Memorial summer closing

The Grosse Pointe War Memorial will be closed to the public at the end of the day, Saturday, Aug. 22, to 9 a.m. Tuesday, Sept. 8.

The War Memorial staff uses the annual summer closing to make repairs to the facility, the Italian Renaissance mansion, built in 1910 for the Russell A. Alger Jr. family.

The center will reopen after the Labor Day holiday with a full schedule of classes, trips and special events. Watch for the September/October activities calendar for a complete listing. If you are not currently receiving the calendar, published six times yearly, and do not live in the Grosse Pointe school district, a donation of $10 will put you on the mailing list. All Grosse Pointe residents receive the calendar. If you are not, call 881-7511, Monday through Saturday, 9 a.m. to 9 p.m.

Getting accustomed to customs

Passing through customs when entering a foreign country or returning to the United States need not be the dreaded task that many travelers fear, reports AAA Michigan.

For example, some nations prohibit travelers from entering or leaving with certain amounts of currency, products made of particular materials (such as ivory) or archeological or historical items. Checking with the consulate of the country to be visited is advised.

Going through customs can be as simple as an officer asking you if you are bringing anything in or as complicated as a complete search of your belongings. Here are some suggestions to ease the process:

- Do not pack passports or other travel documents in luggage. Carry them with you.

- If taking expensive jewelry or cameras out of the United States, register them with the customs office to avoid being charged duty upon return.

- Keep receipts in an envelope for purchases outside the United States - especially expensive items. Take along a lightweight tote bag and keep souvenirs together. It makes it easier when asked what is being brought into the country.

- Answer the customs official's questions courteously and concisely. Even if meeting a connecting flight, telling the official, "I have to catch a plane," will not hurry the person examining the belongings. Plan for customs delays when booking connecting flights.

- Ignorance is no excuse. Some foods and plants are not allowed into the United States.

- Do not rely on advice from persons outside the Customs Service. Unwittingly violating customs laws can lead to costly penalties. If in doubt about declaring an item, ask the customs inspector for assistance.

- Do not try to sneak anything by customs officials. They are trained to discover hidden merchandise.

- Carry all medicine in original containers from the pharmacy, with the contents clearly marked.

Travelers are allowed to bring in $400 worth of articles duty free if abroad at least 48 hours. Those entering from the U.S. Virgin Islands, American Samoa or Guam, may bring in $800 worth of goods duty-free.

Duty fees must be paid in U.S. currency at the point of entry or the items must be surrendered to customs.

The U.S. Customs Service has prepared "Know Before You Go," an informative pamphlet to alert travelers of what to expect at the customs areas. Copies may be obtained at the AAA Travel Agency at 19299 Mack Ave., Grosse Pointe.

Photos and text by Jeffrey Hogan

She's no dummy!

Heads have been turning on Mack Avenue for more than a year as passersby take second looks at the ever-changing mannequin in front of Village Locksmith.

Bob Mowbray, co-owner of the business and a Park resident, said the mannequin was originally intended to be a temporary attraction, but has received so much attention and favorable comments that it's turned into a Mack Avenue landmark.

"There's not a day when someone doesn't come in or call commenting on the outrageous mannequin," Mowbray said.

The clothing used to come from his wife's closet, but that came to an end after she saw her clothes on the mannequin too many times as she drove past the shop.

"It got to the point where she wanted to check my briefcase to see if I was sneaking any of her clothes out of the house," he said.

Now the mannequin's wardrobe comes from people who pass by and donate articles, including the wedding dress on the front page. Mowbray said the bathroom in which the clothing is stored resembles a resale shop.

For those seeking some deep meaning behind the crazy outfits, Mowbray says there isn't any. "The idea is just to be a funny and outrageous as possible."

Prime Time for Senior Citizens

Medical coverage for senior citizens

By Marian Trainor
Special Writer

There is hardly a subject of more interest to older citizens than Medicare. This despite the fact that they are so healthy and vigorous that they have established a new age group and are not so likely to be in need of more than Medicare now provides. Sixty-five years was once regarded as old. Now that group has been pushed back into the category of young-old. To be classed as old, you have to boast of 75 birthdays or more. Soon being 65 will no longer qualify you for Social Security. You will have to log off two more years. Sixty-seven will be the coming of age point.

Why, then, is there so much concern among the young-old citizens? Because looking ahead, they see the possibility that while they feel as good as new now, added years could bring health problems and the need for long-term care, a possibility that is not covered by Medicare.

Retirees who survived wars, the Depression and family tragedies say their greatest fear is being a financial burden to their children should they be stricken by Alzheimer's disease or another lingering ailment.

They worry that long-term illness will deplete a lifetime of savings, converting self-providers into paupers.

Nursing home care, not covered by Medicare, averages $22,000 a year, a sum that could eat up an average retirement savings in no time. Some older people buy supplemental health insurance policies that cover prolonged care of the chronically ill, only to find that it only insures them for one year.

Another fallacy is that the more insurance you have, the better. One in four people on Medicare buy useless duplicate insurance, plans that merely clone coverage already provided by Medicare.

A Congressional committee says that older citizens waste $3 billion a year buying unnecessary medical policies, hoping to prevent catastrophic illness from bankrupting their families.

Seniors' champion Rep. Claude

D. Pepper, D-Fla., who is 86, recently turned down a $600,000 offer to appear in a TV ad promoting the idea that older people should have insurance to cover what Medicare does not. It was rejected after staff members on Pepper's House Subcommittee on Health and Long Term Care examined the company's insurance plan and found a clause excluding any claim from a person who had visited a doctor within 12 months of buying the policy.

Pepper's committee has been investigating the marketing of medical policies for more than 10 years. He has been an outspoken critic of many policies.

The subcommittee gets 100 letters a day from people with complaints and queries on policies, plus another 200 telephone calls.

One was from a 79-year-old widow with a limited income. She had purchased eight health insurance policies covering the same things over a four-year period.

It was estimated that in 1985 she paid $6,300 in premiums and made no claims. All of the policies were sold by one agent.

The individual commissions on such sales are 50 to 60 percent, while renewal commissions are 10 to 20 percent.

Another example reported to the subcommittee involved an 83-year-old woman who owned 28 health insurance policies when she died. None covered nursing home care and therefore did not cover the expense of her last 18 months spent in a nursing home.

The pressure on older people to buy insurance to supplement Medicare has increased in recent years as the government has shifted more health costs to individuals through co-payments and deductions. Medicare now pays less than half of the total health bill for people 65 or over.

It is obvious that there is a need to expand Medicare coverage. The most frequently heard criticism of expanding coverage to cover nursing home care is the cost. Those who oppose such a measure contend that it is the province of private insurance companies, because it would be too expensive for the government to finance.

A Congressional proposal to finance Medicare coverage for nursing home care through Medicare would result in additional premiums on each of the elderly of around $100 a month or over $1,000 a year.

The president wants to charge Medicare patients an extra $4.92 for a pay-as-you-go plan giving unlimited hospital care after a $2,000 deductible. The House Ways and Means has rejected that.

Instead it approved a similar self-financed plan giving unlimited free hospitalization after a $520 deductible. Medicare enrollees would be charged $1 a month extra. In addition, older citizens with incomes above $15,000 a year would be docked a supplemental fee of up to $580 per year.

Neither of these plans cover nursing home costs. It would be short-sighted to expand Medicare without covering nursing home cost. What is needed is legislation that includes a long-term care in both hospital and nursing homes.

New board establishes itself within community

By Pat Paholsky
News Editor

The Grosse Pointe Board of Realtors, one of the newest of the 51 boards in Michigan, is establishing itself as a strong presence in the community, with some 450 members.

Since it was sanctioned by the National Association of Realtors in November 1985, the group has hired a director who oversees the administrative and educational functions and two other full-time employees. In June, the association moved into its own quarters on Notre Dame, a facility that boasts several offices, a board and conference room, a training center and a small kitchen.

Before the Grosse Pointe board was formed, Realtors in the area belonged to the Detroit board, which was one of the founding boards of the National Association of Realtors, the largest trade association in the world.

The move by local Realtors to form their own board was bitterly opposed by the Detroit group, since one-third of its membership was based in Grosse Pointe. But in the end, the split was approved unanimously by more than 500 representatives of boards across the country.

Cathy Champion Dillaman, who served as the first president when the board formed in January 1986, said a serious petition drive to separate from the Detroit board began in January 1984.

She was one of the six people who, with the backing of local Realtors, was instrumental in preparing the group's case. The others were Skip Baer, Paris DiSanto, Kathy Clawson, Hugo Higbie and Tom Youngblood. Clawson is currently serving as the board's second president.

Dillaman said that when the Detroit board was formed about 75 years ago, Grosse Pointe was non-existent.

"As Grosse Pointe developed, the needs and concerns became distinct from Detroit," she said.

So a group of Realtors, mostly men, met monthly to discuss real estate in the area. A quasi-board was developing, she said, in which information on marketing in Grosse Pointe and serving the community was exchanged.

At that time, most of the brokers had offices in Detroit and over the years, they relocated to Grosse Pointe. The group began a multiple listing service and started offering educational programs for the community. Banks and savings and loans began locating in Grosse Pointe.

Finally, the members began questioning the dues they were paying to the Detroit board and the fact that the only services they were receiving were due to their own efforts. The dues averaged $150 a year per person.

"Detroit had no multiple listing and no educational services (for the Grosse Pointe community)," Dillaman said.

The first step was to petition the Detroit board. It refused. The group gathered enough evidence to support its case, about an inch thick, Dillaman said.

In July 1985, they petitioned the state board, which granted their request.

The next step was the national board in November 1985. In what she described as a minimal, Dillaman said she, Clawson and Youngblood testified before representatives from every board in the county that was gathered in New Orleans for the national convention.

"It was before that board that they felt Grosse Pointe had everything in place," Dillaman said. "We were acting like a board of Realtors for years, but we didn't have the official sanction."

The vote in Grosse Pointe's favor was unanimous. And in January 1986, the group had its first general membership meeting. The 400 members have grown to about 450, and probably 90 percent of real estate firms in Grosse Pointe belong to the board.

The new board hired Thomas Kotzian in July 1986 to handle administration and education. Kotzian, who recently earned a juris doctor, said the board is an association that benefits its members mainly with its multiple listing service. There are also educational offerings, lobbyists at the state and national level, group insurance, exchange of information through publications, advertising and the important social aspect.

The community benefits through classes on home repair and marketing tips for selling a house. The board also acts as its own enforcement system, Kotzian said. If a buyer or seller feels he or she was treated unfairly, that person can appeal to the local board. In the year-and-a-half that the board has been operating, Kotzian said it has received 20 to 25 complaints. "All but one has been resolved," he said.

The group also selects two houses a year as a paint-up, clean-up, fix-up project handled by its members. The recipients have been people on fixed incomes who are unable to keep up all the necessary maintenance.

The Grosse Pointe board is one of the few, Kotzian said, that has a state-approved community education course. The course, which is six hours of mandatory education, is required to be taken annually and it's offered every few months, he said.

The board will be offering a Safety through Songs program to all first-graders in the district this fall. "We are purchasing kits and spending thousands of dollars on the program," Kotzian said.

Business Notes

Check your earnings

People who receive Social Security checks and who also work should take time to check their earnings, according to Verlyn J. Rebelein, district manager, of the Social Security office located at 17420 Mack.

Those who earlier estimated that in 1987 earnings would not exceed the annual limit, should check to make sure they have not earned more than they anticipated. The 1987 annual limit is $8,160 for people 65 through 69 and $6,000 for people under 65 all of 1987.

If a person's annual earnings exceed the limit, $1 in benefits is withheld for each $2 of earnings above the limit. A person will have to repay any benefits that were incorrectly paid.

More information about the annual earnings test can be obtained at the Social Security office, located at 17420 Mack or by calling 963-1500, the general information number.

Michigan Mutual Insurance Co., headquartered in Detroit, celebrates its 75th anniversary this fall. It was formed as a result of a new Michigan law designed to compensate employees for injuries sustained in the course of their employment. Previously workmen had no recourse for indemnity except in cases of employer negligence.

Michigan Mutual has been a leading underwriter of workmen's compensation insurance in Michigan since its beginning. Today it is the parent organization of the Amerisure Companies.

E. L. Cox of Grosse Pointe Woods is president and chief executive officer and has spent most of his professional career with Michigan Mutual Insurance Co. Cox began with Michigan Mutual in 1952 in the credit department at Detroit. He was elected president of the company and its affiliates in 1980; chief executive officer in 1981.

Cox is a director of the Alliance of American Insurers, the Property Loss Research Bureau, IRM Insurance, the Michigan Association of Insurance Companies and Michigan Manufacturers Association.

NOTICE OF HEARING
ZONING BOARD OF APPEALS

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN that the Zoning Board of Appeals will meet in City Hall at 90 Kerby Road, Grosse Pointe Farms, Michigan, on:

at 7:30 p.m. to hear the following:

1. The appeal of Mr. Richard Mancini owner of a parcel of the property currently known as 269 LakeShore, who has applied to the City of Grosse Pointe Farms for a lot split. Section 1516 of the Zoning Ordinance provides that a lot may not be divided unless the Director of Public Service finds that the remaining lot, as well as the parcel created meet applicable regulations of the Zoning Ordinance. The Director of Public Services has determined that the proposed lot split would create two non-conforming conditions with respect to the remaining lot owned by Dr. Aeneas Guiney, for which Mr. Mancini is seeking the following variances:

(a) a variance from the 75 foot setback requirement for LakeShore Road, as Dr. Guiney's residence on the remaining parcel is setback only 19 feet from the proposed front lot line; and

(b) a variance from the requirement that parcels located in an R1-AA District have frontage on a street equal at minimum to 100 feet in width, as the frontage on LakeShore of the remaining lot owned by Dr. Guiney is only 30 feet in width.

2. The appeal of Mr. Timothy McGahey, owner of the premises located at 453 Calvin, from the denial of the Building Department to issue a Building Permit for the construction of an addition to the rear of his existing dwelling located at the foregoing address. Such permit issuance was denied for reason that the residence located on the foregoing premises is non-conforming for reason that it is in violation of the side yard provisions of Article XIII, Section 1500 of the City's Zoning Ordinance, and in accordance with the provisions of Article XV, Section 1502, Item 4-A of the City's Zoning Ordinance, no such structure may be enlarged or structurally altered unless a variance is granted.

3. The appeal of Mr. S.S. Livingstone, owner of the premises located at 207 LakeShore Drive, from the denial of the Building Department to issue a permit for the construction of a detached garage with living quarters for domestic help, located at the foregoing address. Such permit issuance was denied for reason that:

1) the building plan of the proposed structure shows the detached garage with a height of 19 feet while Section 1503, Item 1 of the City's Zoning Ordinance states that accessory buildings shall not exceed 14 feet in height, thereby requiring a variance from such provisions to permit the construction of the proposed garage; and

2) The proposed structure contains complete living quarters with full kitchen facilities which is considered a dwelling unit under Section 201, Item 14, Section 400, Item 1 provides that only one single family detached dwelling may be constructed or maintained on any lot, thereby requiring a variance from such provisions.

The Hearings will be public. Interested property owners or residents of the City will be invited to attend.

G.P. Theatre ends season

Grosse Pointe Theatre held its 31st annual Awards Dinner Dance recently at the Westin Hotel, marking the conclusion of the 1986-87 season.

Terri Turpin-Amato and Tony Amato conducted the program, during which 24 "Clarence" awards were presented in both acting and technical categories. The prized Clarence awards are named for GPT's first production in 1948. Awards recipients are chosen by a vote of the membership and have been presented annually since 1956-57.

Lead acting awards were presented to Mirjana Urosov and Ciro Vitale for their portrayal of Elizabeth and Freud in "A Far Country." Michele Karl was named best director for "The 1940s Radio Hour." Arlene Marie Schoenherr and Dean Erskine received Worker-of-the-Year awards.

Additional acting awards included Donna Rutledge and Tony Amato in supporting roles and Terri Turpin-Amato and Ed Guay in featured roles, all for "The 1940s Radio Hour." Non-featured acting awards went to Jacqueline DiSante for "Kiss Me Kate" and Don Ciluffo for "The 1940s Radio Hour."

In the technical categories, Clarences went to Marie Devlin, producer and Tim Higgins and P.J. Chaney, choreographers, for "Kiss Me Kate," and Wally Maher, stage manager, for "Barefoot in the Park." Other technical awards were presented to Blair Arden, lights; Arlene Marie Schoenherr, make-up; Eleanor Tuttle, set dressing; and Lois Constant and Ric Selke, costumes, all for their work on "A Far Country."

Technical director Arthur Thompson, set designers Paula DiSante and Jacqueline DiSante, sound chairman Don Lockwood, properties chairmen Dorothy Kotcher and Sue Petz, and musical and vocal director John Dickenson received their awards for work on "The 1940s Radio Hour."

At the conclusion of the awards program, Dick Vreeland, 1986-87 president, passed the gavel to the 1987-88 president

Wally Maher, who then announced the upcoming 40th anniversary season for GPT.

The 1987-88 season will open in November with the Gilbert and Sullivan operetta "The Pirates of Penzance," to be directed by Lois Bendler. Tennessee Williams' classic drama, "A Streetcar Named Desire," to be directed by Barbara Bentley, will be presented in January. In March, Ed Guay will direct a favorite American musical, "1776."

Shirley Shepard will direct the comedy "A Company of Wayward Saints" in April and in June, Gwenn Samuel will close the season with "Baker Street," a musical adapted from the stories of Sherlock Holmes.

Season ticket renewal information will be mailed in mid-August. New season ticket subscriptions and other ticket information can be obtained by writing to: Tickets, Grosse Pointe Theatre, 32 Lakeshore Road, Grosse Pointe Farms, 48236.

The glory of gardening is reflected in many ways

By Ellen Probert
Special Writer

A little research often turns up some interesting trivia. One is the fact that people who like gardening often reflect their careers in their plantings.

There is the geologist who has a very fancy rock garden; the wine merchant with the mini-vineyard; the pharmacist who grows herbs with medicinal uses. But so far, no one knows why so many doctors have extensive rock gardens.

Rock gardens are popular among non-geologists, too. They can provide interest and, in a sense, texture to any garden. Rock gardens originated in attempts to grow plants that were natives of high mountains (chiefly Alpine) and to accommodate them in a natural setting. Of course the principal feature of this kind of garden is rocks. They may be natural to the site, or brought in and arranged appropriately and can be very small and simple or elaborate constructions of terraced hillsides.

The art of rock gardening was developed in England and has reached a high degree of perfection there where the climate is well suited to this kind of planting.

During the past 50 years, rock gardening has become extremely popular in America and a very active society, the American Rock Garden Society, has made it a special project to promote this art in Canada as well as the United States.

Rock gardens, simple or elaborate, contoured, terraced, natural or constructed, have infinite variety and infinite possibilities and can be living museums of mountain and desert plants. Most rock gardeners say that they had no idea in the beginning that the rock garden would become such an absorbing interest and lead to so much fascinating research or the acquisition of so many unusual plants.

There are a surprising number of authoritative books about rock gardening. The Grosse Pointe Garden Center includes a number of them in its extensive library located in the Center on the second floor of the Grosse Pointe War Memorial. The library is a circulating one for Garden Center members, but everyone is welcome to come in and browse.

With the beginning of August, we enter the Maize (Corn) Moon of America's original inhabitants. It is the time of ripening corn, wild asters, heleniums, tur-tleheads, early goldenrod, gentians and Rose-of-Sharon with the buzzing of the cicadas supplying background music.

In the Chinese Flower Calendar, the flower for August is the Pear Blossom, the symbol of purity and longevity. In medieval Europe, August was always depicted as the month of harvest.

Among the giant steps forward into knowledge that have been taken in recent years by the medical profession and related fields, is the comparatively new science of Horticultural Therapy. In 1971, the Kansas State University's Department of Horticulture — in cooperation with the C.F. Menninger Foundation in Topeka — established the first bachelor of science degree program in Horticultural Therapy in the United States. A masters specialization in Horticultural Therapy was later approved in 1975.

Both degree programs offered in Kansas are the only such programs in the country. Graduates are qualified to be registered Horticultural Therapists through the National Council for Therapy and Rehabilitation. This program was planned to train professionals to help people having psychological, education, social and/or physical problems. This has been especially successful in working with handicapped children.

Sir Arthur Conan Doyle, author of the ever-popular Sherlock Holmes books, wrote, "Our highest assurance of the goodness of providence seems to me to rest in the flowers. All other things, our powers, our desires, our food, are really necessary for our existence in the first instance. But the rose is an extra. Its fragrance and its color are an embellishment of life, not a condition of it. It is only goodness which gives extras and so I say again that we have much to hope for from the flowers."

August is the month to cut ivy for indoor use before the stems toughen in the fall. Leave the ivy you cut outside for several weeks in containers filled with water before bringing it into the house. This will prevent the leaves from turning brown and dropping off.

If your wisteria did not flower this year, prune new shoots back to about six inches from the old wood. If that does not produce flowers next year, your wisteria may be in too much shade.

A marvelous, very fat book called the Gardener's Directory, first compiled in 1960 and updated from time to time, defines a garden center as "a focal point for a community's horticultural interests and activities, which frequently becomes a powerful force in civic betterment and beautification."

This definition is one with which the Grosse Pointe Garden Center most heartily agrees. The Gardener's Directory currently lists 14 garden centers of importance in Michigan, including Grosse Pointe's. Of our own Garden Center it says: "Grosse Pointe Garden Center: 32 Lakeshore Road. Professional horticulturalists. Volunteers. Individual members and member Garden Clubs. 600 volumes. Trial Gardens. Speaker's File. Lectures. Workshops. Flower Shows. Tours."

This little resume should perhaps conclude by saying "New members always welcomed."

Celebrating a noble heritage: 'Art in Poland'

The Detroit Institute of Arts commemorates three centuries of Poland's cultural legacy in the exhibition "Art in Poland, 1600-1930" running now through Sept. 6. A cross-section of art created in Poland is revealed in 50 paintings, sculptures and decorative objects from the DIA's permanent collection and loans from private collections.

A country influenced by the artistic movements of both the East and West, Poland has remained true to its own traditions. Works of art in the exhibition illustrate the skill of Polish craftsmen and the originality of its painters who often drew on the history and legends of their homeland. Several of the works were created by non-Polish artists, primarily French, who were commissioned by the Polish Crown of the wealthy aristocracy.

The Friends of Polish Art, a

Detroit-based cultural organization, have presented the DIA with a gift of $25,000. The gift is to be used toward the possible purchase of a work of Polish art or in support of a future Polish exhibition. Three years of fundraising by the group's pledge committee has resulted in a gift that is hoped to benefit both the DIA and the Polish community.

Art in Poland, 1600-1930, is sponsored by the Friends of Polish Art, the Foundation for Polish Museums and through a contribution from an anonymous donor.

A guide to the exhibition will be available at the entrance to the exhibition in the Farnsworth Exhibition Area (Ford Wing). It will be open free to the public during regular museum hours: Tuesday through Sunday, 9:30 a.m. to 5:30 p.m. For information call 833-7900.

Childbirth group selects 1987-88 board of trustees

Childbirth Information Service (CIS) has selected its new board of directors. It includes Mary Hoste, president; Sue Perron, vice president; Barb Mercier, treasurer; Lois Battjes, recording secretary; Joan Koerber, publicity; Doreen Wiczorek, instructor liaison; and Debbie Myers, fundraising.

CIS is a non-profit corporation founded to provide childbirth preparation classes in the Lamaze Method for expectant parents in east-suburban Detroit and northern Macomb County. CIS is a member of the International Childbirth Education Association and is composed basically of volunteers who want to help expectant couples have the best possible birth experience for themselves.

Classes are offered on a continuing basis in Lamaze Method childbirth, Cesarean childbirth and vaginal-after-cesarean-birth. Class locations are Cottage Hospital in Grosse Pointe, Bi-County Hospital in Warren, Family First Medical Center in Mount Clemens and Triumphant Cross Church in St. Clair Shores.

CIS speakers and instructors also invite any interested party to view a film about a Lamaze birth. "Nan's Class" is shown on the first Friday of each month at Bi-County Hospital at 8 p.m.

To register for any of the above mentioned classes or to receive more information about CIS, call 263-6700.

Faces & places

Starting the month out with a celebration are George J. and Delphine Verbeke, longtime area residents who now make their home in East Detroit. The Verbekes marked their 40th wedding anniversary on Aug. 2. The Verbekes are probably best remembered in Grosse Pointe as the proprietors — for almost 40 years — of V. Verbeke Poultry on Mack Avenue.

Snow in summertime? Only in Michigan and only for the benefit of Children's Hospital of Michigan.

The snow — and the celebrities — were out at "Christmas in July" the July 29 preview of November's Festival of Trees benefit for the hospital. The Festival of Trees committee held the gala as a thank-you for sponsors and decorators who will help provide 100 trees for display at Cobo Hall. "Celebrity Santas" included Grosse Pointers Neil Shine and Jeanne Whittaker, of the Detroit Free Press and the Detroit News, respectively; and Tom Schoenith, one of the event's sponsors.

Festival of Trees begins with a preview party on Nov. 24. It's open to the public Wednesday, Nov. 25 through Monday, Nov. 30, in the Riverview Ballroom.

Festival proceeds are raised through corporate sponsorship of trees, exhibit areas, special events and activities, donation of goods and services, sale of trees, wreaths, gingerbread houses and special displays from the festival and a limited cash prize raffle.

The sole beneficiary of Festival of Trees is the Evergreen Endowment Fund at Children's, established in 1985 to fund research in the causes and cures of childhood diseases.

Santa Claus (in summer garb), and celebrity Santas Neil Shine, Jeanne Whittaker and Detroit Police Inspector Gil Hill, prove that Michigianians never forget what to do with snow . . . even in the summer.

Travel and pregnancy: Use good common sense

Whether on the road for business or pleasure, many of today's travelers are expectant mothers. Although every woman experiences pregnancy differently, most doctors feel that with few qualifications, traveling is generally okay during all but the last month of pregnancy.

Most women find that traveling is most comfortable during the second trimester — months four through six of pregnancy. By then, you are over any feelings of fatigue and morning sickness and are less likely to risk miscarriage. You will have more energy and be adjusted to your pregnancy.

By the third trimester, your bulky figure can make moving around and sitting for long periods of time uncomfortable. Also, toward the end of pregnancy, you may start labor unpredictably.

The best way to travel really depends on what the expectant mother enjoys and how she feels. For long distances by car, wear loose clothing, use a pillow for back support and plan to stop frequently to stretch. Limit each day's drive to about five or six hours to avoid fatigue. Always wear a seat belt, with a snug shoulder harness and lap strap that fits under, never over or on, the bulge of the abdomen.

Flying is safe throughout most of a normal pregnancy. Most domestic and international airlines permit women to fly until the sixth month of their pregnancy. After that time, regulations vary according to the airline. Check with the travel agent or airline before your flight.

Reserve an aisle seat so you can easily get up and walk around to stretch. You may want to board early to avoid the crush of the crowds. Airlines will try to cater to any dietary needs, so if you wish, order a special meal in advance. Always eat lightly to avoid airsickness.

If you travel by train or by bus, remember that long bus trips during pregnancy can be uncomfortable because the aisles are narrow and you cannot control rest stops. Trains usually have more space for leg stretching.

Whenever traveling while pregnant, you may find that you feel nauseous and that you tire easily, but you can prevent many problems by eating sensibly, resting often and exercising regularly. Walking is the best form of exercise during pregnancy and helps prevent swollen legs. And walking can be done anywhere without special equipment.

If you do plan to travel during pregnancy, talk to your doctor. He or she will be able to give you good common sense advice. Then relax and enjoy the trip.

It's becoming more popular each week, the newly-instituted Early Bird Service at Grosse Pointe Memorial Church. The service runs from 9 to 9:30 a.m. each Sunday. One recent Sunday, there were between 100-150 people in attendance despite the heat. Everyone is welcome to attend; dress is casual.

The Pastor's Corner

Trust God and Trust Yourself

By The Rev. Bruce G. Ingles
Interim Pastor, Grosse Pointe
Memorial Church

It's what the Bible is all about. It's what the nation, the church and we as persons are hungering for. It's trust.

Our defenses are up. We look for techniques to deal with people. We practice strategies on how to influence and manage people. We hire P.R. experts to project a better image. We "sell the idea" that there is an energy shortage or that we need a billion dollar deterrent. We are motivated to want new things. We insulate ourselves with "plausible deniability." We become so cynical that we resist all efforts at communication.

We allow this cloud of pervasive distrust to separate us into lonely fugitives, looking out for ourselves and eventually unable to listen, to speak, or to act without the distraction of distrust. And the distrust that spreads like an epidemic reveals itself through ulcers, sleeplessness, irritability, lack of concentration, impotence, alcoholism, allergies, etc.

The saddest casualty is the victim of self-distrust. A young man is pulled back by police attempting to jump off a bridge. Behind the attempted suicide is his wife's shrill cry, "You're a lousy father!" There is a wide and comfortable place between self-distrust and egotism.

I remarked to a friend about the humility of one of this community's leading lights and my friend said, "Well, he comes from a large family." There was a kidding, a jostling, a give-and-take within this family which never let a person think too highly of himself. But there was also the obvious bottom floor of respect and encouragement.

A fifth-grade boy asked his father, "Dad, did you go to Sunday school when you were little?" "Certainly," the father replied, "I never missed a Sunday." "See, mother, that proves it," said the son. "It won't do me any good either." That's the kidding and easy flow of banter in a family or group where there is security and trust.

Where does this trust start? Where will it end? Trust as a word comes to us from a German word "Trost", which means comfort. It implies an instinctive reliance upon something or someone. When we trust, we are ready. A good athlete is so relaxed before a major contest that he is almost asleep. He's in tune with himself and his abilities to meet the expectations of others. He gets up for the big series or crucial moment because he enjoys the challenge and has confidence in himself.

Muriel Hughes and Robert Schneider

Hughes-Schneider

Muriel D. Hughes, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John J. Hughes Jr. of Grosse Pointe Woods, married Robert N. Schneider, son of Mr. and Mrs. Lyell A. Schneider of Port Huron, on May 9, 1987, at St. Paul Catholic Church.

The Rev. Timothy Langley officiated at the 11 a.m. ceremony, which was followed by a reception at the Grosse Pointe Yacht Club.

The bride wore a gown of candlelight heavy silk-satin, featuring a V-shaped back and full length train. Her cathedral length illusion veil was trimmed with pearls. She carried a cascade bouquet of gardenias, stephanotis and ivy.

Matron of honor was the bride's sister, Rosemary A. Tompkins of Grosse Pointe Farms. Bridesmaids were Camille Rudy of Philadelphia, Pa.; Coralee McDowell of Millersburg, Ohio; Mary O'Neill of Chicago, Ill.; and Ann Daugherty of Newport Beach, Calif.

They wore fitted dresses of peach silk and carried long-stemmed Sonia roses tied with an ivory satin ribbon.

Gerald V. Padilla of Grosse Pointe Park was best man. Ushers were Charles Leahy of Grosse Pointe Park; John Frank of Grosse Pointe; the bride's brother, John J. Hughes III, of Detroit; and John S. Schneider of Port Huron.

The mother of the bride wore a tea length dress of taupe silk. Her peach-colored picture hat was accented with a taupe-colored trim.

The bridegroom's mother wore a tea length dress of periwinkle blue and chose a matching hat.

The bride's brothers, J. Michael Hughes and J. Patrick Hughes, were scripture readers for the ceremony. Among the congratulatory greetings the couple received was a note from President and Mrs. Reagan.

The bride is an alumna of St. Mary's Notre Dame, where she earned a degree in business administration and philosophy. She received a law degree from the University of Detroit Law School. She is a partner in the law offices of Hughes and Hughes and also holds a Michigan real estate broker's license.

The bridegroom is a graduate of Central Michigan University, where he received a bachelors degree in marketing and a masters in business administration. He is an account executive with McCann-Erickson.

The newlyweds honeymooned in London, England. They will reside in Grosse Pointe Park.

Mr. and Mrs. David S. Wilgarde

Verghese-Wilgarde

Vinita Elizabeth Verghese, daughter of The Rev. and Mrs. Mathew Verghese of South Williamsport, Pa., married David Stephen Wilgarde, son of Ralph Wilgarde of Grosse Pointe Park and Frederika Spiewak of Brooklyn, N.Y., on April 25, 1987, in South Williamsport.

The Rev. Charles Reynolds and the bride's father both officiated at the 5 p.m. ceremony, which was followed by a reception at the Gennetti Lycoming Hotel.

The bride wore a fingertip veil with her white satin dress, which featured puffed, long sleeves, a beaded bodice and a chapel length train.

The bride's sister, Sunita Cooke of Arlington, Va., was matron of honor. Bridesmaids were Leslie Sippie of Cedar Knolls, N.J.; and the bridegroom's sister, Karen Wilgarde of Grosse Pointe Park.

Attendants wore floor length, fuchsia-colored dresses with an off-the-shoulder style and a drop waist. Each carried a bouquet of daisies, pink roses and babies'-breath.

Carl Berndt of Harper Woods was best man. Ushers were Tom Wadsworth of Ohio and John Woytowicz of New Jersey.

The mother of the bride pinned a gardenia corsage to her traditional Indian sari.

The bridegroom's mother wore a tea length dress of floral print. Her corsage was also a gardenia.

Soloist for the ceremony was the groom's sister, Wendy Wilgarde.

The bride holds a bachelor of arts degree from Lycoming College, Williamsport, Pa., and an M.D. from the Medical College of Pennsylvania in Philadelphia. She is a practicing internist in Livonia.

The bridegroom is a graduate of the University of Michigan. He earned a masters degree in biology and an M.D. degree from Wayne State University. He is currently in his residency in internal medicine at Sinai Hospital.

The couple honeymooned in Cancun. They will reside in Farmington Hills.

Mr. and Mrs. Mark J. Weber

Giesecking-Weber

Lori Marie Giesecking, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frederick C. Giesecking, former Grosse Pointe Park residents who now live in Salem, N.C., married Mark James Weber, son of former Grosse Pointe Woods residents Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Weber of Troy, on April 11, 1987, at First Lutheran Church of Detroit.

The Rev. Richard Walston officiated at the 5 p.m. ceremony, which was followed by a reception at the Lochmoor Club.

The bride wore the wedding dress worn by her sister, Kathy Smith. It was white marquisette styled with a high neck of embroidered lace, long sleeves embroidered with flowers and a slashed oversleeve of marquisette. Her headpiece was a band of pearls and lace. She carried a bouquet of star flowers, miniature carnations and tea roses.

Maid of honor was another of the bride's sisters, Janice Giesecking of Middleport, Ohio. Bridesmaids included Cathy Hicks of Grosse Pointe Farms; Mary Proffit of Grosse Pointe; and Tamar Banks of Traverse City. They wore floor length dresses of peach satin, styled with cuffed bodices and spaghetti straps. Each wore a short peplum jacket with gathered sleeves, buttoned at the waist. They carried bouquets of peach and white carnations and tea roses and wore babies'-breath in their hair.

Flower girls were the bride's niece, Lisa Smith, and the bridegroom's niece, Jennifer Bernard. They wore boat-necked dresses of white organdy trimmed in white satin and carried bouquets identical to those of the attendants.

Mark Miller of Grosse Pointe served as best man. Ushers included the bridegroom's brothers, Michael Weber and Steve Weber, both of Troy; Doug Miller of Madison Heights; and the bridegroom's nephew, Jeffrey Bernard. Ringbearer was the bride's nephew, Bradley Smith of Pontiac.

The mother of the bride wore a street length dress of silver-gray silk. Her wrist corsage was fashioned from white and peach miniature carnations.

The groom's mother wore a street length dress of cream and apricot, with beige lace. She also wore a corsage of white and peach carnations.

Organist for the ceremony was Wesley Fishwick.

The bride is a graduate of Grosse Pointe South High School and Northwestern College, where she received an associates degree. She is an insurance representative for Allied Underwriters, Inc.

The bridegroom is also a Grosse Pointe South High School graduate. He is warehouse manager for Great Lakes Food Management.

The couple honeymooned on Kauai, Hawaii. They will live in East-Detroit.

Bible School at Christ Church

"Jesus is Having a Party and You Are Invited" is the theme of this year's Vacation Bible School at Christ Church Grosse Pointe, 61 Grosse Pointe Boulevard, Aug. 17 through 21.

Classes run from 9:30 a.m. to 12:30 p.m. and include Bible stories, drama, crafts, songs, games, worship and more. Children 5 to 11 may be registered by calling Christ Church Grosse Pointe at 885-4841. Deadline for registration is Friday, Aug. 14.

A donation of $10 per child is suggested to cover the cost of T-shirts and crafts.

Christ Church will again host the Blessing of the Pets at 12:30 p.m. on Wednesday, Aug. 19.

Historic honor for church

The Grosse Pointe Woods Historical Commission observed the 50th anniversary of the Grosse Pointe Woods Presbyterian Church with a certificate of recognition.

Commission chairman Colleen D'Agostino, vice chairman Suzanne Dempsey Kent and treasurer John Parthum, presented the certificate to The Rev. Jack T. Ziegler, the church's fifth senior pastor, in the library of the church.

Pastor

Consider the story of the battle between the Philistines and the Israelites, between Goliath and David:

The opposing armies were encamped on hillsides with a valley and river in between. This was really to have been a battle between Goliath and Saul. There is no little irony when an older brother says to David, "What are you doing here? This is no place for boys. I know, you've sneaked away from home to see the battle!"

It occurs to me that we have before us three alternative ways to trust ourselves: There is the Goliath way of trusting in size, record, force, weapon, bluster. There is the Saul way of trusting in role, things, fear, avoidance, delay. And there is the David way of trusting in God to give his puny, unmarked body fresh infusions of strength.

At Saul's bidding, David tried on his armor. Saul was 6-5 and David about 5-11 and he couldn't even move, let alone see out of the helmet. Besides, that day he was not to put his trust in things, but in God.

Saul was king. He went downhill from that moment on, when it became evident that he was simply trying to shore up his position, when he became secretive, scheming and distrustful.

Goliath could trust himself only if he could control the environment. He was the original King of the Mountain. He held all the good cards. He believed that the art of staying on top was the art of keeping others down. He wrote the rules. The law was on his side. He did not trust anyone. He stood alone.

Then there was David who had no desire to keep others in their place or to protect his role. He was able to trust God who had given him a great task. He was able, therefore, to trust himself. Jack Gibb in his book on the TORI theory (Trusting, Opening, Realizing, Interdepending) says: "The more personal I become, the more significant people are to me. Trust is the catalyst of life. Trust is letting life flow through me."

It is not that we should become sufficient for God. It is rather that God should become sufficient for us. So do not shrink back. Do not lose that confidence of yours. Happy are those who trust in God.

Grosse Pointe A Unique Community

A Cultural Cornucopia Appreciation of the arts begins at an early age for Grosse Pointe children. The public library, a division of the Grosse Pointe Public School System, offers, at no cost, a variety of children's reading programs at its three locations.

For adults, the library programs range from travel films to informative presentations on subjects of current interest. These, too, are free to residents of all the Grosse Pointes.

Another great source of local culture is the beautiful War Memorial Center, the former mansion of the Russell A. Alger family. With its subsequently added ballroom and theater overlooking Lake St. Clair, the center is a community attraction that rivals the many private clubs in the area. Here—open to all residents—are offered art classes and exhibits, lectures, concerts, plays, ballet and social dancing instruction, and children's theater, as well as membership in a long list of special-interest clubs whose focus is either cultural, informative or just plain fun.

A more recent addition to public property is the Edsel and Eleanor Ford House. Designed by architect Albert Kahn and supported by a $15 million endowment, this gracious replica of an English manor house is now open for tours and is used for meetings, fund-raising events and several series of "house" concerts.

Helpful Hints For The Home

How Much Do You Spend Each Night Cooling Your Home?

The sweltering heat of a summer day doesn't always disappear when the sun goes down. And to sleep more comfortably on those sticky, hot summer nights, many of us operate air conditioning units while sleeping. You may be surprised to learn, however, that it can cost as much as $4.00 per night to cool your home, depending on how you use your cooling equipment.

What's the solution for saving money on utility bills while keeping cool this summer? One answer is to upgrade your home's insulation to today's energy standards. By having a professional insulation contractor reinsulate your attic and sidewalls with a blown-in fiber glass insulation such as CertainTeed's Insul Safe III, you can reduce your cooling bills by as much as 30 percent during the cooling season. Insul Safe III provides high thermal efficiency, is noncombustible and noncorrosive and will work just as hard in the winter months, helping to increase your comfort while reducing your heating bills.

Another way to cut down on your energy costs this summer is to caulk your windows and weatherstrip your doors to prevent valuable cool conditioned air from escaping. Caulking comes in tubes and can be easily applied through use of a "caulking gun." Weatherstripping, however, comes in several different types, so be sure to check with the sales person at your home center store to determine the type and amount of weatherstripping you'll need for a particular project.

Your home is your castle, and you should be as comfortable as possible there, no matter what the temperature is outside. By following these tips for reducing this summer's energy bills, you will be better able to afford the luxury of operating your cooling unit on those hot summer nights.

For more ideas on how to reduce cooling and heating costs and to make your home more energy efficient, write to the CertainTeed Home Institute, P.O. Box 860, Valley Forge, PA 19482 for a copy of the "Cool Summers, Warm Winters" brochure.

The following chart offers rough estimates of the operating cost of fans and air conditioners for a typical night:

Cooling System	Wattage to Run	Cost
Circulating Fan	88	13.2¢
Ceiling fan	55	8.4¢
	100	14.4¢
Window fan	200	28.8¢
Whole House fan	300	43.2¢
	500	72¢

Window air conditioner
5,800 btu/hr. EER=8.7	665	96¢
12,800 btu/hr. EER=8.7	1415	$2.05

Central air conditioning
36,000 btu/hr. SEER=8.4	4300	$6.23

*Costs are based on average summer rates for households using more than 500 kWh per month. Typical night is based on 12-hours.

First, but not last

Rookie. Amateur. Novice. I am somewhat nautical, but the sailors in and around the Port Huron to Mackinac Race are hard core.

I witnessed my first, but not last, Port Huron to Mackinac Race and I have to tell you it is a sight for sore eyes. Never before did I see a lake filled with more boats than water. Not actually, but somewhere underneath those spectacular boats was the water.

All the boats lined the Black River in anticipation of the year's biggest sailboat race and before they knew it, they were docking on the shores of Mackinac Island; 298 miles later.

From a spectator's standpoint, those sailors are one big family battling for the family crown. They like one another and can share their drinks with each other, but when it comes down to it it is a battle of speed, endurance, and nautical intelligence.

It didn't matter that the more colorful spinnakers weren't out in full bloom due to the lack of wind. It didn't bother me that the day started, and ended, with rain. Nothing was going to put a damper on my parade.

If you have never been to the start of the Port Huron to Mackinac Race, you have greatly neglected one of the more colorful outings in Michigan.

It was my first race, so I was a bit nervous, yet relieved. Relieved because I was on the press boat knowing I would see the starts, and didn't have to travel the oceanic ways for 298 miles. However, the first move that gave my neophyte image away was my apparel. I didn't wear any nautical clothing, nor did I even don a pair of boat shoes. All I wore was my basketball shoes and some coaching pants. Boy did I stick out like a sore thumb, but it won't be the last time.

After stepping aboard the press boat, Tobermory, I discovered that I forgot my dramamine. Motion sickness is the name, and keeping the stomach and head in tact is the game. But, I didn't falter as the day progressed.

As I sat eagerly waiting for the boats to depart their docks, I kicked back and checked up on the crowd. A drove of people turned out, on what ended up to be a beautiful morning, just to see boats shove off the docks. You wouldn't see that happen at just any ol' race. This was the race that put Port Huron on the map.

A deflated sail

With all the competing boats running full steam ahead, we followed. I immediately withdrew my camera from its case and frantically shot some photos. People in funny hats, sailors in funny shorts, skippers in some drab T-shirts and me in my polo shirt, made for quite a clash. We arrived at the starting point, only to discover the 63rd running of the race had been delayed for the lack of wind. Well, this was a setback for the crews, but as for myself, it literally took the wind out of my inspired spinnaker.

As I sat perched on the stern of the boat, the start drew closer and boats began to jockey for position like prize fighters. As the different colored flags adorned the race committee boat, anticipation of the start escalated and suddenly one loud bang after another ignited the boats. The racing fever was quickly engulfed in my blood and I was now feeling a bit more nautical as I moved toward the port side of the boat; boy if my mom could have only seen the slick move I made to impress those boaters.

Anyway, I watched as the boats surged forward trying to knock their opponents' sails back into the canvas and I finally realized the competition that surrounds this race. However, it also seemed like a very friendly, yet stubborn, style race.

It was a race for the finish line. Stamina vs. stamina, strength versus strength. However, in this battle, the winner wasn't the last one left standing; it was the first one to land 298 miles later.

The race is an awesome spectacle of color, hype, and beauty. It is, however, not a once-in-a-lifetime chance because on July 16, 1988, your next opportunity will arrive.

Just remember that if you do attend it, you will need one dose of dramamine, one pair of boat shoes, and most of all, some nautical clothing. Until next time, may the wind continue to swiftly move over your shoulder.

'Triumph' victorious! Gagne captures IMS to lead Grosse Pointe sailors

By Rob Fulton
 Sports Editor

Ah, the sweet taste of victory and the cool water breeze still tantalizes several of the Grosse Pointe boats which competed in the 63rd annual Bayview Yacht Club Port Huron to Mackinac Sailboat Race.

Although Sassy, a Holland 78-footer, chopped the water to win the overall race, Steve Gagne's "Triumph" won the International Measurement System Class A in a corrected time of 39 hours, 20 minutes, 51 seconds.

Steve Gagne couldn't be reached for comment before press time, but crew member Dale Marshall recalls the winning sail.

"Great race," he boasted. "I would classify it as a nice ride. Of course when you win it's always a nice ride."

Triumph, which is the sister ship to the old Sassy, carried a crew of 17 members to an elapsed time of 39 hours, 21 minutes, 53 seconds for the 298-mile race; third overall.

The C & C 61-footer was in a neck-and-neck battle with Heritage up until Cove Island, but some heady moves by the Triumph crew eventually made them the first to cross the finish line in the IMS Division.

"The first feeling is that you think you did well, but then you start looking at the clock," explained Marshall. "Once we found out the corrected time and discovered we had the overall win everyone was elated. We were very proud."

According to Marshall, Triumph trailed Heritage by approximately 17 minutes at Cove Island, but a swift wind change and a quick turn enabled Triumph to move ahead.

"We headed north looking for a favorable wind shift and at dusk Sunday (July 26) we got it," said Marshall. "At that time Heritage wasn't in sight, but at day break we saw them again in the straits. The move we made was definitely the turning point for us. It was a big lift."

Steve Shumaker, who is responsible for putting the majority of the Triumph team together, agreed with Marshall, but added one special feeling.

"It was definitely an exciting race, but I think I got the most excitement when we knew we had beaten Heritage," he said proudly. "There is very little doubt in my mind that (the move) made the difference in us beating them."

Fred Detwiler's boat, "Trader", had a similar battle in the International Offshore Rule Division where he won his class (C) in a corrected time of 37 hours, 13 minutes, 11 seconds.

"We were battling it out with "Aggressive" but the difference was Saturday (July 24)," said Detwiler, who resides in Grosse Pointe Park.

Detwiler, who skipped his crew to an overall win in the Chicago-Mackinac Race on his 40-foot One Ton, credited his nine-man crew with the win.

"When we got to Cove Island we knew we were in pretty good shape because we couldn't see our competition," he recalled. "Good crew work made the difference for us. It was a pretty tight race, but on Saturday night we sailed very strong and it has to do with the crew. They had to work hard because we were right into the wind, but the excellent crew made the difference and made it possible for us to win it. We are very fortunate."

For "Walloon", which competed in the PHRF Division, the first place finish in Class F was the fifth Port Huron to Mackinac victory for the Grow brothers of Grosse Pointe Farms.

"I think it's pretty remarkable to win five Mackinacs in the same boat," said Rick Grow. "It was a lot of fun for us."

Walloon and Apache are the only two boats in the 63-year history of the race to win five races under the same ownership.

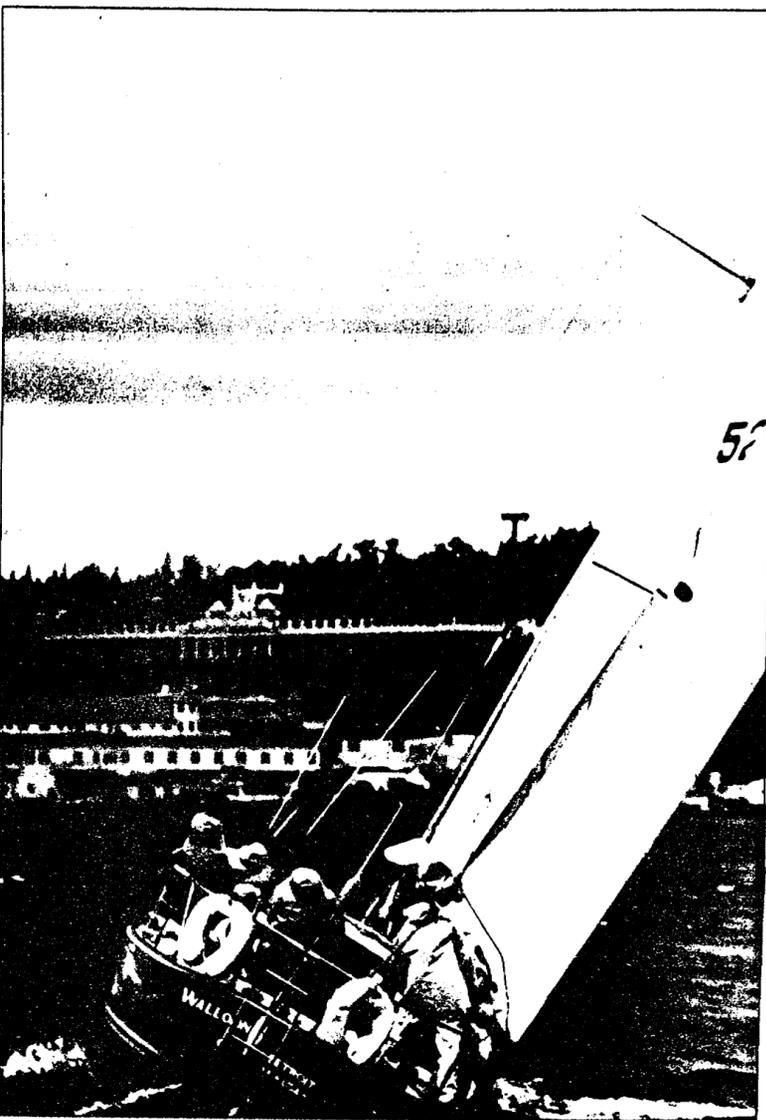

According to many of the skippers, the race starts out with everyone battling for the top spot, but when it comes down to it, more often than not, it becomes a two-way challenge.

"We had a real close battle with Cygnus," Grow explained. "They were 10 minutes ahead of us at Cove Island, but we just tried to stay with them. After the Duck Islands (approximately 70 miles from the finish line) we tacked to the north shore and pulled in front and then just tried to stay between them and the finish line."

Grow, who has owned his C & C 35 Mark II for 17 years, reached his destiny in a corrected time of 45 hours, 1 minute, 34 seconds to pick up his fifth red, white and blue flag.

"It is really a big thrill," he said happily. "It is a great race to be a part of as well as to win."

"Outer Limits", owned by David Connolly, competed in the PHRF Division and used a corrected time of 46 hours, 14 minutes, 41 seconds to win Class D. In the PHRF Class G competition, William McGraw skipped Irish Mist II to a class win in a corrected time of 45 hours, 47 minutes, 2 seconds. Connolly and McGraw were unavailable for comments on the race. Both skippers are from Grosse Pointe.

"Walloon", skippered by the Grow Brothers captured their fifth Port Huron to Mackinac win with a corrected time of 45 hours, 1 minute, 34 seconds. The Grow Brothers picked up their red, white and blue flag in the PHRF Division, Class F. They had an elapsed time of 54 hours, 5 minutes, 48 seconds. Walloon is one of two boats, the other being Apache, to win five Port Huron to Mackinac sailboat races under the same owner. Rick Grow has owned the C & C 35 Mark II, which is pictured above, for 17 years. He is a member of the Bayview Yacht Club in Detroit. Sassy, a 78-footer owned by Russell Schmidt, won the 63rd annual Bayview Yacht Club Port Huron to Mackinac Sailboat Race with a corrected time of 32 hours, 20 minutes, 35 seconds.

BABE RUTH PLAYOFFS

After finishing the regular season in first place with a 10-5 record, the Grosse Pointe Farms-City-Park Indians went on to become the playoff champs by defeating the Athletics in two games, 7-6 in 8 innings and 21-3. Game one was a classic pitchers' duel. Ed Kinnard, Keith Baer and Tim Nolan shared the slab for the A's and gave up only four hits in the eight inning contest. Mark Bonnani, Fred Turner and Alex Turner combined wits for the Indians and also gave up only four hits. Baer and Chris Koenig doubled for the A's while Jay Van-

Dwyngearde singled. The Indians' Alex Turner tripled, singled and stole second base to go with three runs scored. Teammates, Peter Bourke and Jeff Jogan each collected singles for the Indians. Game two was delayed for two weeks due to rain and conflicting field schedules. The delay proved to be costly for the A's as the Indians collected 21 runs off of 11 hits, while the A's used three hits to push three runs across the plate. Chris Harwick led the way for the Indians with six RBI on four doubles, while Fred Turner went two-for-five including a double. Jay Berschbach collected two singles and two RBI and Scott VanAlmen collected three RBI on two singles.

Keith Baer smashed a double and scored the A's first run while Darrin Havern and Jeff Schmidt each collected a hit.

Tim Nolan, Darren Havern, Matt DeBets and Brandon Farmer shared the pitching duties for the A's. Alex Turner pitched the first six innings for the Indians, giving up all three runs and striking out 10. He was relieved by brother Fred who closed out the contest by retiring the A's in order.

State tourney

In a seesaw battle for the State Babe Ruth pennant at Lansing, Grosse Pointe Woods-Shores twice recovered the lead to finally clinch third place in the State Tournament.

After beating top-seeded Niles 2-1 in the opening game, the Woods-Shores All Stars lost decisively to Alpena 10-7 in a seven inning battle of errors.

Recovering quickly from this loss, Woods-Shores followed a 16-9 rout of Berkley with a victory over the host Grand Ledge team to take the third game 8-7 after eight innings of play. Finally, in a game which began with Woods-Shores leading 4-1 at the finish of the second inning, Grosse Pointe dropped behind 7-6 after the top of the seventh. However, Grosse Pointe rallied in the bottom of the seventh when, with two away and a full count, Scott Schorer drove the ball over the left field fence for a solo home run placing Woods-Shores squarely back in the game and the race for the pennant at 7-7 after seven innings of play. But destiny was to write the finish for Grosse Pointe, and in a series of events Lansing Kildea went on to take the final inning to win 11-7; leaving Grosse Pointe to finish a respectable overall third in the State 15-16 year-old Babe Ruth Championships. Representing Grosse Pointe Woods-Shores in The Babe Ruth All Stars were from the Cardinals: John Cartwright; Brad Crowmar; Andy Dudeck; and Chris Meathe. From the Cubs: Scott Collins; Kevin Endres; Scott Schorer; and Bob Thomas. From The Pirates: Louis D'Angelo; Dave Monette; and Mike Rancilio. From The Reds: Jayson Deyonker; Tony Jaboro; Kevin McCarron; and Dave Senter. Coaches were Phil Hage; Bob Kutscher; and Larry Stevens.

The Indians completed the regular season with a first-place record of 10-5 and then went on to win the playoffs. (Front row) Fred Turner, Mike Rowady, David Cogan, Alex Turner, Peter Bourke. 40 years... Creating the Competition!!

Sun is fun, but be warned

By Cristina Staats

Having just returned from a sailing vacation, I am again reminded of the hazards of over-exposure to the sun.

Each year, after my sailing trips, my doctor takes one look at me and suggests, again, that the sun is my enemy and I should not be coming home with glorious, deep suntans.

We have all heard these warnings time and time again. Each summer there are numerous reminders on television as well as in the newspapers and magazines that warn of the harmful affects of the sun's potent rays. The question for those of us who spend most of our spare time on the water is, what exactly can we do to prevent overexposure? Somehow, no matter what we smear on our bodies, we end up the season with indented crow's feet around our eyes, puckered upper lips, peeling earlobes, perpetually red noses and weathered hands. The sun, for us on the water, seems to bounce off the lake and up onto our protected faces.

According to the American Academy of Dermatology, 500,000 new cases of skin cancer will be diagnosed this year. The sun is the undisputed major culprit, because 90 percent of the skin cancers are found on parts of the body not covered by clothing. The head and neck area seem to be the most vulnerable.

My doctor, yearly, suggests to me that I am a prime candidate for skin cancer. I fit all the criteria; I am fair-skinned, regularly expose myself when the sun rays are most dangerous (10 a.m. to 2 p.m.). I have been doing this for years and been advised that people receive about 80 percent of their lifetime exposure to the sun by the time they are 20, so I am on borrowed time. I am amazed I haven't gotten a spot of cancer yet!

My doctor continues to suggest to me (he has almost given up, but figures — maybe, just maybe I'll listen and take heed) that I can prevent any further damage to my skin if I will only use a sunscreen and cover up.

Damage to the skin, says the doctor, shows up as premature wrinkling, dryness, a thickening of the skin which gives it a "leathery" look, and is preventable!

We boaters should routinely use a sunscreen with the highest sun protection factor (SPF) we can find. I found some with a SPF 29. In any event, we should use sunscreens with at least a SPF of 15. We also need to wear hats that protect our faces as well as our ears and our necks if at all possible. If we can't get out of the sun during the most intense time of the day, then we need to put on light-weight clothing for protection. Maybe I can borrow some ideas from sailors who regularly sail in the Caribbean and other such places and develop a sun-shade for my sailboat so the cockpit can be in shade when needed. My doctor assures me that this is not the last I will hear from him on this topic. Skin cancer has reached epidemic levels in the USA. One in seven people will become a victim; that is the bad news. The good news is that the two most common types of skin cancer, basal cell and squamous carcinoma are curable. The warning signs are a sore that does not heal, or a spot or growth that continues to itch, scab, bleed, or reopen.

My glorious suntans are not healthy — they are anything but!

Bike Mackinaw with ALASEM

Do you need to get away, but can't come up with the funds to do so? Are you interested in getting some great exercise and toning a few muscles? If you answered "yes" to either question, then the American Lung Association of Southeast Michigan (ALASEM) has what you're looking for.

If you've got $20, a bike (borrow one if necessary), and want to raise some funds for a good cause, join ALASEM the weekend of September 19-21, at Mackinaw City, Michigan for the "Tip O' the Mitt," bike trek and see and experience firsthand the beautiful landscapes of Michigan.

Highlighted by a free night at the historic Mackinac Island Hotel, your weekend biking itinerary includes shopping in both downtown Cheboygan and Mackinaw, a sightseeing tour of the shores of Lake Michigan and a trip through rustic Old Mill Creek State Park.

To take part in this economical, three-day "Tour de Michigan," participants must register with the Lung Association (all inquiries should be made prior to August 31, 1987). The registration fee is $20 and is the only out-of-pocket cost (except for incidentals and transportation) to the biker. Also, each participant is required to raise a pledge minimum of $200 for ALASEM. As an added incentive, all participants will receive prizes based on total pledges collected. For example, participants earning $200 will receive a commemorative t-shirt.

In addition to the benefits of economical travel and exercise, there is the extra benefit of knowing that each pledge will help fund the many FREE programs and health services offered by ALASEM to aid lung disease sufferers and their families in southeast Michigan. Also, the Lung Association has made the collection of those pledges easier on the "treker" as it will bill confirmed sponsors after the event.

For more information about the "Tip O' the Mitt" bike tour or to reserve your spot on this tour of Michigan you can't afford to miss, contact ALASEM at 559-5100.

Kaiser captures classic

Offshore powerboat driver, Bob Kaiser, of Grosse Pointe Woods, won the Trump Castle Offshore Grand Prix Classic on July 28. It marked the second consecutive year in which Kaiser won the New Jersey offshore race.

Kaiser, driving ACR SYSTEMS, a 38-foot aluminum Cougar catamaran, averaged 75 miles-per-hour and was leading the Open Class field on the 160 mile race course when the event was "black flagged" because of hazardous race conditions.

Kaiser currently holds second place in the national point standings with three national races remaining; all of them within the state of Michigan.

Safe boating class

It's never too early to plan on being a safe boater, says the Grosse Pointe Power Squadron, which will offer classes in Sail Boating and Power Boating, beginning Monday, Sept. 14, in the cafeteria at Grosse Pointe North High School.

Class begins at 7:30 p.m.; everyone is welcome. Topics covered will include knowing your boat, boat handling, equipment regulations and safe operation, charts and aids to navigation, elementary seamanship, weather and Great Lakes boating, boat trailering, piloting and more.

Hall of Fame

Rose Marsh of Grosse Pointe Woods is in some pretty elite company these days — she's among 112 others who have been inducted into the Greater Detroit Bowling Hall of Fame. She was inducted into the Hall of Fame this spring in recognition of her many contributions to the sport. Marsh has been with the Detroit Women's Bowling Association since 1946 and is currently its secretary/treasurer. Most of her work is done behind the scenes, organizing tournaments and activities. She also spends many hours at tournament sites conducting events.

"It's a tremendous thrill to be named to the Hall of Fame," Marsh said. "This is a great recognition for me, especially to be named for doing a job I enjoy so much."

Family fishing rodeo set for Aug. 22

The 39th annual Grosse Pointe Farms and City Family Fishing Rodeo has hooked Saturday, August 22 for the annual fishing event.

All boys and girls, age 17 and under, who live either in Grosse Pointe Farms or Grosse Pointe City are eligible to enter the Rodeo.

At no cost, each fisherman has one hour to compete for biggest fish, most fish, first fish and many other categories. For those who win in the different styles of competition, awards will be presented. Also, prizes and refreshments are available to all parties, including moms and dads.

As usual, the early bird gets the worm. The event will commence at 8 a.m. with free coffee and donuts at the Farms Concession. Enter at the Farms Pier Park Gate and receive your prize ticket.

Starting at 9 a.m. and concluding at 10 a.m. will be the actual fishing competition. Fishermen will cast from the Farms Pier (rain or shine), but not near the boat docks.

Immediately following the Rodeo, everyone is invited back to the Rodeo headquarters for an award ceremony and a lunch. At the awards ceremony, all Rodeo winners will receive their prize, and all participants will also receive a free prize. Parents who attend will not be neglected. They will be eligible to draw for free prizes also.

The Rodeo is free of charge and is said to be a day filled with fun and relaxation. Last year there were approximately 1,000 participants, and this year Dick Graves, Jr., general chairman and coordinator for the Rodeo, is hoping to draw many more fishermen this year.

"This is a totally free day that stresses fun and fishing," said Graves.

This is the second year that the Grosse Pointe Farms-City Fishing Rodeo will not benefit from the presence and sponsorship of Dick Graves, Sr. Graves joined forces with Ed Lauer in 1961 and continued to work on this family event until his death in April 1986. It was because of Graves' continuing efforts that still make the Rodeo a special function for youngsters and their parents.

Buhl continues to shoot for first

Robbie Buhl

After an "up and down" season so far, 23-year-old Robbie Buhl of Grosse Pointe, was hoping a west coast trip would bring a long, sought-after first victory, but it didn't.

Buhl, a rookie driver who amazed the Barber Saab contingency in his first race at Lime Rock on May 25 with a record setting pole position and huge lead before a gearbox malfunction, recently grabbed an eighth place in his final west coast race at Sears Point International Raceway.

Buhl's second race of the season at Mid-Ohio on June 7, saw him gain the pole position with a record setting speed, but he dropped out of the race after a throttle cable pin fell out. In another race on July 12 at Summit Point International Raceway, he qualified second before finishing fourth — a good showing for someone who never raced the West Virginia facility.

Called a "very talented young driver with a lot of potential" by Barber Saab Pro Series Manager Mike Rand, Buhl also competes in the Sports Renault Series in which he has picked up two victories at Sebring and Lime Rock.

In his first race on the west coast at Portland, Buhl kicked up his heels to finish second in front of a crowd of over 40,000.

Buhl will now take his car and crew to Watkins Glen, New York for a race on August 8.

Red Barons gear for '87

The Red Baron teams will start preparation for the 1987 season when practice opens on Monday, August 17 at Kerby Field in Grosse Pointe Farms.

Hopes are high that the upcoming season will be as successful as last year when both the varsity and junior varsity went undefeated. Of interest, the freshman team tied five games while losing two by close margins.

All boys, age 9-13 (born between December 1, 1973 and December 1, 1978) who live in Harper Woods, the Grosse Pointes and neighboring areas are eligible to play. Registration will be held on August 8 and 15 from 9:30 a.m. to noon at Kerby Field, which is located behind Hardeco at Mack and Kerby. All players are required to have a physical.

The Red Baron teams will be made up of boys of similar age, weight and ability. Each team will be coached by several experienced coaches who have been involved in the Red Baron program for several years.

For more information contact Rich Moore (881-7675) or Randy Stebbins (882-7014).

North girls' tennis practice to begin

The girls' tennis team at Grosse Pointe North will begin practice on August 10 at 8 a.m.

All girls interested in joining this year's team are encouraged to meet by the four courts near the football field on Monday, August 10, 1987.

BABE RUTH PLAYOFFS

After finishing the regular season in first place with a 10-5 record, the Grosse Pointe Farms-City-Park Indians went on to become the playoff champs by defeating the Athletics in two games, 7-6 in 8 innings and 21-3. Game one was a classic pitchers' duel. Ed Kinnard, Keith Baer and Tim Nolan shared the slab for the A's and gave up only four hits in the eight inning contest. Mark Bonnani, Fred Turner and Alex Turner combined wits for the Indians and also gave up only four hits. Baer and Chris Koenig doubled for the A's while Jay Van-

Dwyngearde singled. The Indians' Alex Turner tripled, singled and stole second base to go with three runs scored. Teammates, Peter Bourke and Jeff Jogan each collected singles for the Indians. Game two was delayed for two weeks due to rain and conflicting field schedules. The delay proved to be costly for the A's as the Indians collected 21 runs off of 11 hits, while the A's used three hits to push three runs across the plate. Chris Harwick led the way for the Indians with six RBI on four doubles, while Fred Turner went two-for-five including a double. Jay Berschbach collected two singles and two RBI and Scott VanAlmen collected three RBI on two singles. Keith Baer smashed a double and scored the A's first run while Darrin Havern and Jeff Schmidt each collected a hit. Tim Nolan, Darren Havern, Matt DeBets and Brandon Farmer shared the pitching duties for the A's. Alex Turner pitched the first six innings for the Indians, giving up all three runs and striking out 10. He was relieved by brother Fred who closed out the contest by retiring the A's in order.

Also, each participant is required to raise a pledge minimum of $200 for ALASEM. As an added incentive, all participants will receive prizes based on total pledges collected. For example, participants earning $200 will receive a commemorative t-shirt.

In addition to the benefits of economical travel and exercise, there is the extra benefit of knowing that each pledge will help fund the many FREE programs and health services offered by ALASEM to aid lung disease sufferers and their families in southeast Michigan. Also, the Lung Association has made the collection of those pledges easier on the "treker" as it will bill confirmed sponsors after the event.

For more information about the "Tip O' the Mitt" bike tour or to reserve your spot on this tour of Michigan you can't afford to miss, contact ALASEM at 559-5100.

Hall of Fame

Rose Marsh of Grosse Pointe Woods is in some pretty elite company these days — she's among 112 others who have been inducted into the Greater Detroit Bowling Hall of Fame. She was inducted into the Hall of Fame this spring in recognition of her many contributions to the sport. Marsh has been with the Detroit Women's Bowling Association since 1946 and is currently its secretary/treasurer. Most of her work is done behind the scenes, organizing tournaments and activities. She also spends many hours at tournaments sites conducting events.

"It's a tremendous thrill to be named to the Hall of Fame," Marsh said. "This is a great recognition for me, especially to be named for doing a job I enjoy so much."

Kaiser captures classic

Offshore powerboat driver, Bob Kaiser, of Grosse Pointe Woods, won the Trump Castle Offshore Grand Prix Classic on July 26. It marked the second consecutive year in which Kaiser won the New Jersey offshore race.

Kaiser, driving ACR SYSTEMS, a 38-foot aluminum Cougar catamaran, averaged 75 miles-per-hour and was leading the Open Class field on the 160 mile race course when the event was "black flagged" because of hazardous race conditions.

Kaiser currently holds second place in the national point standings with three national races remaining; all of them within the state of Michigan.

Safe boating class

It's never too early to plan on being a safe boater, says the Grosse Pointe Power Squadron, which will offer classes in Sail Boating and Power Boating, beginning Monday, Sept. 14, in the cafeteria at Grosse Pointe North High School.

Class begins at 7:30 p.m.; everyone is welcome. Topics covered will include knowing your boat, boat handling, equipment regulations and safe operation, charts and aids to navigation, elementary seamanship, weather and Great Lakes boating, boat trailering, piloting and more.

Family fishing rodeo set for Aug. 22

The 39th annual Grosse Pointe Farms and City Family Fishing Rodeo has hooked Saturday, August 22 for the annual fishing event.

All boys and girls, age 17 and under, who live either in Grosse Pointe Farms or Grosse Pointe City are eligible to enter the Rodeo.

At no cost, each fisherman has one hour to compete for biggest fish, most fish, first fish and many other categories. For those who win in the different styles of competition, awards will be presented. Also, prizes and refreshments are available to all parties, including moms and dads.

As usual, the early bird baits the worm. The event will commence at 8 a.m. with free coffee and donuts at the Farms Concession. Enter at the Farms Pier Park Gate and receive your prize ticket.

Starting at 9 a.m. and concluding at 10 a.m. will be the actual fishing competition. Fisherman will cast from the Farms Pier (rain or shine), but not near the boat docks.

Immediately following the Rodeo, everyone is invited back to the Rodeo headquarters for an award ceremony and a lunch. At the awards ceremony, all Rodeo winners will receive their prize, and all participants will also receive a free prize. Parents who attend will not be neglected. They will be eligible to draw for free prizes also.

The Rodeo is free of charge and is said to be a day filled with fun and relaxation. Last year there were approximately 1,000 participants, and this year Dick Graves, Jr, general chairman and coordinator for the Rodeo, is hoping to draw many more fishermen this year.

"This is a totally free day that stresses fun and fishing," said Graves.

This is the second year that the Grosse Pointe Farms-City Fishing Rodeo will not benefit from the presence and sponsorship of Dick Graves, Sr. Graves joined forces with Ed Lauer in 1961 and continued to work on this family event until his death in April 1986. It was because of Graves' continuing efforts that still make the Rodeo a special function for youngsters and their parents.

Buhl continues to shoot for first

Robbie Buhl

After an "up and down" season so far, 23-year-old Robbie Buhl of Grosse Pointe, was hoping a west coast trip would bring a long, sought-after first victory, but it didn't.

Buhl, a rookie driver who amazed the Barber Saab contingency in his first race at Lime Rock on May 25 with a record setting pole position and huge lead before a gearbox malfunction, recently grabbed an eighth place in his final west coast race at Sears Point International Raceway.

Buhl's second race of the season at Mid-Ohio on June 7, saw him gain the pole position with a record setting speed, but he dropped out of the race after a throttle cable pin fell out. In another race on July 12 at Summit Point International Raceway, he qualified second before finishing fourth — a good showing for someone who never raced the West Virginia facility.

Called a "very talented young driver with a lot of potential" by Barber Saab Pro Series Manager Mike Rand, Buhl also competes in the Sports Renault Series in which he has picked up two victories at Sebring and Lime Rock.

In his first race on the west coast at Portland, Buhl kicked up his heels to finish second in front of a crowd of over 40,000.

Buhl will now take his car and crew to Watkins Glen, New York for a race on August 8.

Red Barons gear for '87

The Red Baron teams will start preparation for the 1987 season when practice opens on Monday, August 17 at Kerby Field in Grosse Pointe Farms.

Hopes are high that the upcoming season will be as successful as last year when both the varsity and junior varsity went undefeated. Of interest, the freshman team tied five games while losing two by close margins.

All boys, age 9-13 (born between December 1, 1973 and December 1, 1978) who live in Harper Woods, the Grosse Pointes

and neighboring areas are eligible to play. Registration will be held on August 8 and 15 from 9:30 a.m. to noon at Kerby Field, which is located behind Hardoon at Mack and Kerby. All players are required to have a physical.

The Red Baron teams will be made up of boys of similar age, weight and ability. Each team will be coached by several experienced coaches who have been involved in the Red Baron program for several years.

For more information contact Rich Moore (881-7675) or Randy Stebbins (882-7014).

North girls' tennis practice to begin

The girls' tennis team at Grosse Pointe North will begin practice on August 10 at 8 a.m.

All girls interested in joining this year's team are encouraged to meet by the four courts near the football field on Monday, August 10, 1987.

Fit

What's the best diet?

I know you're tired of hearing about diets. Summertime, however, is a time of fun, frolic and food. Hopefully, it's also a time of fitness! Just don't panic when you've discovered that you've gained a few. Instead, follow these guidelines. This is some of the best information I've come across regarding a healthy diet.

There are hundreds of popular diets which tout quick ways to lose weight. Most of these do not address the importance of maintaining an adequate intake of the over 50 nutrients (other than calories) needed every day. Just as important as losing weight, is maintaining good nutritional status while you are reducing. There is only one way to lose weight, stay in good nutritional status, and keep off lost pounds — it is called slow and steady weight loss, i.e., about 2 pounds a week.

This is the weight loss method of choice for health-conscious people. Weight loss is gradual; neither good health nor "energy for play and work" are sacrificed.

The best diets are ones that include 2 servings a day of dairy foods; 2 servings a day of meats, beans, eggs, or nuts and legumes; 4 servings of fruits or vegetables; and 4 servings of whole grain breads or cereals.

Beware of diets that do not have the minimum number of servings from each of the Four Food Groups.

Beware of diets that dish out single foods.

Beware of diets that are liquid and provide less than 600 calories a day. They can be dangerous when self-administered; liquid protein diets should be carefully monitored by a physician.

Beware of any diets promoting 10 pounds lost in 10 days.

Losing and gaining weight is probably as dangerous as carrying several excess pounds of fat. Popular diets tend to perpetuate this "roller coaster" effect because they don't teach you to eat in moderation.

Beware of diets and programs promoted by individuals who call themselves "nutritionists". Find out where this "nutritionist" received his/her degree — was it an accredited college or university? Was the degree in foods and nutrition or dietetics? "Diploma mills" abound and your health is too important to risk it over the advice of an unqualified person.

Pedal on down to Detroit

On August 22, Stewart McMillin, a world traveler and avid tour guide, will be leading a tour of bicyclists through Detroit to tour some of the fine churches.

The tour will include visits to five beautiful downtown churches and information about many more will be provided.

The tour will be run in conjunction with the Detroit Parks and Recreation Department and is open to everyone, free of charge.

The tour will start at 10 a.m. at Chene Park in Detroit and will conclude about 1 p.m. For more information about the tour, contact Stewart McMillin at 882-9940, or call 224-1122.

Pokorny-McHugh becomes aerobic judge

By Rob Fulton
Sports Editor

Here comes the judge might be the most common words spoken these days at Super Shape, Inc.

Valerie Pokorny-McHugh, owner and program director at Super Shape, Inc. was appointed the Head Judge of the Crystal Light National Aerobic Championships in May 1987. Her appointment will run for one year.

"This is just an incredible honor," said the energetic Pokorny-McHugh. "I am very proud to be able to do something of this caliber."

The International Dance Exercise Association chose Pokorny-McHugh, but it was something that came totally unexpected.

"I never even thought I'd be considered," she said. "I was a judge in Chicago before, and I guess they were impressed with my work then. I think that's how I was nominated and then chosen to be the head judge."

Since picking up the gavel, Pokorny-McHugh has traveled to Pittsburgh, Miami Beach and New York. Up until late July she was traveling within the United States, but her international calling came on the week-end of July 25-26.

"I am now an international judge because I went to Canada for their national championships," said Pokorny-McHugh. "This is a great job. One of the best things about it is the fact that I have a golden opportunity to see the cream-of-the-crop in my profession as well as meet people from all over the world."

Back in the early 1970s, Pokorny-McHugh wasn't thinking about any national attention, she was more concerned with the physical condition she had backed herself into.

"I became very ill," she explained. "I had a major circulatory disorder that was causing muscle spasms in my legs. It was very disturbing."

Along with the spasms, Pokorny-McHugh gained 50 pounds and suffered from acute depression.

Valerie Pokorny-McHugh

"It was a chronic disorder and the doctors told me the only way for me to handle it would be to exercise," she said. "I never did exercise. But now exercising is a great way to relieve some depression. You can use it as a relaxing technique."

After her three-year bout with the physical drawbacks and other dilemmas, Pokorny-McHugh set out to discover a place for her exercising, and it didn't take her long to become engrossed in the exercising world. In 1982 she opened up her studio and the rewards have been nothing shy of "fantastic."

"I work at this 24 hours a day, seven days a week," she said smiling. "I have put a lot into it (approximately 60 hours a week) and I've also gotten a lot out of it. It gives me energy and self satisfaction."

She got the physical help needed to bounce into the exercising world and that played an important part in her life as she got her studio off the ground.

"I wanted to open up an exercising studio and there really wasn't one on the east side," she recalled. "I thought there was a need for specialized different groups of exercise. I also wanted very much to help people become fit and continue to exercise. I saw what the lack of exercise can do, so I wanted to see how much I could help someone exercise properly."

After her one-year stint as head judge, Pokorny-McHugh hopes to remain active in the aerobic field.

"After I finish my one-year position, I would like to travel internationally," she stated. "I enjoy traveling to different areas of the world while doing something I enjoy."

Eat

Defensive Eating Habits

In sports, it is often said that the best offense is a good defense. The same is true for weight control.

It is important to plan for what Diet Center likes to call defensive eating. If you wake up in the morning saying, "I hope I don't over eat today," and then you let every whim control you, chances are, when you go to bed, you are going to be saturated with sugar and laden with calories.

To develop wise eating habits, make a plan. Just as a coach makes a game plan for the team before the game begins, so you must be prepared for your new eating program. This can be done on a day-to-day basis; leaving yourself open to alternative methods if your first "defense" doesn't work out as you had anticipated. Following are some simple, but important practices to help you toward long-term commitment and success.

• The best way to resist temptation is to avoid it. If you have sworn off sugar-laden snacks, don't keep cookies in your kitchen cupboard. You will save yourself a lot of time trying to be strong, if there are no cookies to tempt you in the first place! If you don't buy it — you can't eat it.

• If you're preoccupied with food, make sure you have activities to keep you busy and fulfilled. Involve yourself in your favorite hobby or develop a new interest. Find something that will replace eating as your favorite pastime.

Change your immediate environment and it will help you change your mind. If, for example, you are sitting in front of the T.V. and everyone else in the room is snacking, get up and leave the room for 10 minutes. You could use this time for a short walk, a relaxing bubble bath, etc. The situation may remain the same when you return, but you will have given yourself a "break" and it will no longer bother you.

• Establish a "safe room" in your house. This room will be the one room in the house you will not eat in, ever. Then use this safe room as a retreat when you are feeling overwhelmed with food. Delaying eating a junk food for as short a time as twenty minutes gives your craving time to fade.

• Develop the habit of reading labels. Check the ingredients of the prepared foods you buy. You may be getting more than you bargained for. Many of the prepared foods that claim to be nutritious may be high in sugars and saturated fats.

• When you shop for food, go on a full stomach; you will less likely buy impulsively. As an added protection, avoid those aisles that give you the greatest temptation. Shop from a prepared food list, and concentrate your selections on the outside aisles of the market. No matter what store, these aisles are where you will find protein sections and fresh fruits and vegetables.

• Often times you may consume the bulk of your calories during food preparation as you unconsciously sample your recipes. Plan ahead and cut up an apple to snack on as you prepare meals. It's a nutritious snack that may also help you cut down on calorie consumption during the dinner. If you don't go to the table absolutely ravished, chances are you will not over eat at the meal. Nibbling on leftovers may be avoided as well. Brush your teeth immediately after eating or chew a piece of gum as you clear the table and clean up the kitchen.

• Avoid frying foods. You can enjoy the flavor of the foods, minus the cholesterol, fat and calories by choosing to bake, broil, or poach foods.

• Using a small plate will help you eat less. Usually, much more is eaten than is physically necessary. If the plate is small but filled, you will become "psychologically" filled as well, with less food. Also, measure your food portions. "Guesstimating" food servings usually gives you more calories than you think you are getting.

• Eat slowly. Put your fork down between bites. You will enjoy your meal more, and you will also give your body time to signal fullness.

• Eat three meals a day, using fresh fruits as in-between snacks. Don't kid yourself or your body into thinking you will consume fewer calories by skipping a meal. Most likely, when you finally do eat, you will end up eating a lot more because you are so hungry.

• Whether you are dieting or choosing to change your eating habits, remember to drink eight, eight-ounce glasses of water a day. Not only does it help you to lose or maintain goal weight, but it is also one of the easiest and least expensive practices to improve overall health.

• Choose your restaurants carefully. If you are planning to eat at a restaurant that you are unfamiliar with, call ahead of time and kindly ask them to give you an idea of their menu. You will be better prepared to make wise food choices.

• Never eat to be polite, or merely because others are eating. These next six words work like magic, "No thank you, not right now." By using the words, "not right now," you give people the message that you just aren't ready. These words can be used over and over again in the same evening, and it doesn't give the impression that you are not eating or drinking; you're just not ready right now.

• Don't let your eating habits take charge of you. There is something you can do about it. By planning ahead and guarding against your areas of weakness, you can develop wise eating habits that will direct you to a satisfying, healthy lifestyle.

Hockey history!

The GPD Mite Minors, coached by Mike McCarthy, traveled to Ontario for a 48-team hockey tournament in mid-April and skated through to win the trophy. A United States team has not won the Mississauga Tournament since Detroit's own Jimmy Carson, now playing with the Los Angeles Kings, won it back in 1975. Carson, left, is pictured with Timmy Tracy. Tracy was on the GPD Selects who just became only the second U.S. team to ever capture the tournament. When Carson was on the first U.S. championship team, Timmy Tracy wasn't even born yet. The two got together to compare trophies from their respective tournament wins.

Joe Louis Arena to host Hockey Preview

Joe Louis Arena will be the proud host of a nationwide 1988 Olympic Hockey Preview featuring Team U.S.A.

A series of four games will be played at the riverfront venue in preparation for the 1988 Winter Olympics in February, in Calgary, Alberta, Canada.

Team U.S.A. will face:

— Detroit Red Wings - Saturday, September 26, 1987 at 7:30 p.m.

— Michigan State University - Friday, November 20, 1987 at 7:30 p.m.

— U.S.S.R. - Saturday, December 19, 1987 at 8 p.m.

— Canada - Saturday, January 16, 1988 at 2 p.m.

Team U.S.A. Series Tickets are now on sale at the Joe Louis Arena Box Office. The Series Ticket, priced at $40, offers choice seats for all games at a discount. Individual game tickets will go on sale at a later date.

Team U.S.A. will be chosen from 80 hockey players who attended the U.S. Olympic Festival '87 from July 21-26. The Amateur Hockey Association of the United States (AHAUS) will assist in training and preparing the club as a means for selecting the team representing our nation in Calgary. Thirty of the Festival players will be invited to the U.S.A. team training camp at Lake Placid, New York, from August 7-14. The final 22-man roster will be selected from that group after a 60-game schedule beginning August 14.

It's never too late to sail

Want a great way to escape the summer heat? Nothing could be cooler than feeling the breeze aboard a sailboat on Lake St. Clair. It's not too late this summer to experience what sailing has to offer.

All instruction is done in 23-foot sailboats designed especially to the sailing school's specifications. A very comprehensive format is covered during each class and everything needed to confidently sail a boat is taught. Whether you have little or no sailing experience or just need a refresher course these classes are perfect for you.

Classes are offered in three different time periods. Weekends ($145), Weekdays ($225), and Evenings ($175).

For more complete information, contact Jack Leverenz Sailing School, 17640 Mack Avenue, Grosse Pointe, MI 48224. (313) 886-7887.

Bocci 'walks' to championship

Jeanne Bocci, of Grosse Pointe Park, recently won the Womens' Masters National 10K Race Walking Championships in Niagara Falls, NY.

It was Bocci's first national competition in over two years after suffering from a broken foot, but she proved she could still be on top at the national level after her closest opponent finished two minutes behind her in the July 11 race.

Bocci is racing for a new team this year, Wolverine Pacers, and teamed up with Valerie Stowe and Roberta Boyle to take the second place team award.

"I was a little disappointed because we lost to the Potomac Walkers by only 12 seconds," said Bocci.

Bocci did add she was excited about her return to competitive athletics.

Bocci won the Free Press Marathon Walking Division last year, and in 1984 she won the race walk in the New York City Marathon.

'Summer School' has amiable charm

By Marian Trainor
Special Writer

It's fluff and fun and no strain on the brain. It's Director Carl Reiner's "Summer School," a light and lively comedy about a group of misfits condemned to spend the summer learning English grammar instead of cavorting on the beaches.

They are quite a motley crew. One is a giant football player who barely fits through the door. He announces that he had better pass the class, leaves to go to the bathroom and doesn't return until the final day. Another is a night person who comes to school to catch up on his sleep. Then there is Chain Saw (Dean Cameron), who takes his nickname from the movie of the Student, faculty show

John Bussey and Debbie Grafius of Grosse Pointe are two of the featured students at Pewabic Pottery's Student, Faculty and Staff Show, now through Aug. 8.

For sale will be work from the pottery's artists, featuring original functional and sculptural pieces by Pewabic's faculty and staff as well as work that students completed during the six-week class. The class teaches adults and children, from beginners to advanced students, techniques in hand-building, throwing, glazing and experiencing with different fire processes.

Pewabic Pottery, located at 10125 East Jefferson across from Waterworks Park, is open from 10:30 a.m. until 5:30 p.m. Monday through Saturday. For more information, call 882-0954.

same name, and his sparkplug friend Dave (Gary Riley), two clowns who keep the class in an uproar.

Film

The others are a pregnant girl who practices her breathing exercises in class, a dreamy young surfer who sets her sights on the teacher and a Spanish girl who not only has trouble with English, but runs into everything on the road during driver's training.

And then there's the teacher, Freddy Shoop, played by Mark Harmon, who was voted the "sexiest man alive" last year by People magazine. He would rather be in Hawaii with his present significant other, but under threat of not getting tenure, he is drafted into teaching remedial English I when the assigned teacher (Carl Reiner) wins the lottery and takes off.

The problem is, Freddy has never been in a classroom.

"I'm not a real teacher," he protests. "I teach phys ed."

He is told it's all right because they're not real students.

With this meeting of the minds, Shoop and his charges are content to while away the summer with field trips that take them to carnivals, drag races and beach parties.

It's all fun and games until one of the parents complains, at which point Shoop is told he'll be fired if even one member of the class fails the test at the session's end.

Shoop gets the message. He will teach. It's quite a shock to his teen delinquents when he walks into the classroom, formally dressed in a suit and tie, lesson plans in hand and a stern no-nonsense expression.

As he and the class work together, Shoop realizes that the students are not stupid, they simply believe they are because that's what they've always been told. At the same time, he discovers he's not really a bad teacher.

Besides being good, light entertainment, "Summer School" gains points by portraying kids who are basically good, and its emphasis on the sense of achievement that good grades can bring. The scenario of disparate students coming together is much like John Hughes' "The Breakfast Club," but more like "Welcome Back, Kotter" in spirit, theme and amiable charm.

Gene Hackman rescues Superman from banality

By Michael Chapp
Special Writer

Logic dictates that Hollywood should be able to produce a whole slew of "Superman" movies and not lose any quality in the process. After all, "Superman" comic books have been around for half a century and are still going strong. But alas, Hollywood is not the most logical of towns, and therefore it's not surprising that the fourth installment in the "Superman" saga is something less than a masterpiece.

Still, one might hope for something a little better than "Superman IV: The Quest for Peace." Two things can be said for it. One is that it's not as bad as "Superman III;" the other is that Gene Hackman is more fun than ever to watch as Lex Luthor.

As for the rest of the piece, not even the Man of Steel himself can save the day. The film alienates its audience faster than a speeding bullet, is wrapped around a plot whose stupidity hits harder than a locomotive and is able to make extreme leaps of logic in a single bound.

It's quite obvious from the beginning that things are all a big joke now. Clark Kent has become a parody of himself and Superman is looking less human and more like a character from the funny pages with every scene. And the plot, its unabashed anti-nuclear propaganda notwithstanding, is about as far out as you can get.

how to breathe in space without a helmet. Indeed, half of the movie plays like a poorly done Blake Edwards routine and the other half plays like a poorly written, highly illogical piece of fiction.

The problem of course is that, with the exception of "Superman III," we've come to expect a certain degree of quality from this series: Gone are the unbelievable — yet intriguing — plot structure of the first film and the carefully exploratory character developments of the second. In its place are slapstick routines and laughably ridiculous storylines.

If there is anything else that makes "Superman IV" viewable, it is the lighthearted joviality with which Hackman plays Luthor. He plays the "greatest criminal mind in the history of mankind" routine for everything it's worth, and comes up a winner in every scene. In fact, there are times when viewers may find themselves cheering for the bad guys for the sheer joy of it.

This is fine for a detective comedy or some such nonsense. But when we're dealing with the greatest hero on earth, there must be a problem somewhere.

And this time, you can't blame the problem on Kryptonite.

Film

Lex Luthor (Gene Hackman), again a prison escapee, has figured out a new way to destroy Superman (Christopher Reeve). Since Super has already agreed to rid the earth of every last nuclear weapon by personally hurling them into the sun, Luthor's job is easy. He cleverly devises a way to recreate Superman's genetic structure and generate a nuclear-powered behemoth of evil. This child of the sun is equal in almost every way to the Last Son of Krypton.

Meanwhile, reporter Clark Kent is busy fighting off the advances of Lacy, his new publisher's daughter (Mariel Hemingway) while — as Superman — he puts his own moves on Lois Lane (Margot Kidder). During the course of the movie, he's able to teach Lois how to fly and Lacy

'Alice' extended at Attic

The Attic Theatre announced that the current production, "A... My Name is Alice" has been extended for two additional weeks, and will run through Aug. 9.

The 12 additional performances are scheduled to begin on Thursday, July 30. Performance days and times are Thursdays, 8 p.m.; Fridays, 8 p.m.; Saturdays, 5:30 p.m. and 9 p.m.; Sundays, 2:30 p.m. and 6:30 p.m.

The award-winning all women's musical revue, conceived by Joan Micklin Silver and Julianne Boyd, was first produced by the Women's Project of the American Place Theatre in Manhattan.

For reservations, call 875-8284.

NOVENA TO ST. JUDE TO ST. JUDE
May the Sacred Heart of Jesus be adored, glorified, loved and preserved, throughout the world, now and forever. Oh, sacred heart of Jesus, pray for us. St. Jude, worker of miracles, pray for us. St. Jude, helper of the hopeless pray for us. Say this prayer 9 times a day, by the 8th day your prayer will be answered. It has never been known to fail, never. Publication must be promised. Thanks to St. Jude for prayer answered. M.S.

101 PRAYERS

PRAYER TO THE HOLY SPIRIT Holy Spirit, you who make me see everything and who shows me the way to reach my ideal. You who give me the Divine Gift to forgive and forget the wrong that is done to me and you who are in all instances of my life with me, I, in this short dialogue, want to thank you for everything and confirm once more that I never want to be separated from you no matter how great the material desires may be. I want to be with you and my loved ones in perpetual glory. Amen.
Thank you for your love towards me and my loved ones. Pray this prayer 3 consecutive days without asking your wish, after third day your wish will be granted, no matter how difficult it may be. Then promise to publish this prayer as soon as your favor has been granted. Thank you for favors received. DTM/MLM

NOVENA TO ST. JUDE
Apostle and Martyr great in virtue, rich in miracles, kinsman of Christ, intercessor of all who invoke you to use your great God given power to aid me in my urgent petition. In return I promise to make your name known, pray for us who ask for your aid, St. Jude, Say 3 Our Fathers, 3 Hail Marys, 3 Glorias. This Novena has never been known to fail. Say Novena for 9 days. My request was granted. DTM/MLM

The Missing LINC
Linking individuals to Needs in the Community is a non-profit organization whose purpose is to coordinate needs with resources. This is accomplished by placing goods no longer needed by individuals and businesses into the hands of Metropolitan Detroit charitable agencies. Operating since 1971, LINC is proud of the accomplishments it has made and strives to increase its resource base. If you have recyclable items, no longer of use to you, Operation LINC knows who can and will use them. Please call LINC at 882-6100 with your donation. KEEP IT MOVING!
DETROIT AMERICAN INDIAN HEALTH CENTER is seeking office equipment and furniture: VCR; STACKING CHAIRS, conference table, BOOK-CASES, TV and filing cabinets. This would greatly enhance their office and counseling center where they provide assistance in dental and medical services, substance abuse.
ARTS & CRAFT ITEMS, Board GAMES, and outdoor PLAY EQUIPMENT sought by UNITED SISTERS OF CHARITY. These and more items would be used in their summer program for ages four to twelve and in the latest key program during school year. Any EDUCATIONAL MATERIALS such as story books, tapes, records and materials for math and reading can also be put to good use here.
CYSTIC FIBROSIS FOUNDATION is desperately in need of a "heavy work load" COPIER. Operating budgets are cut and most funds generated go to research in finding a cure. An ELECTRIC TYPEWRITER and inexpensive office space in being sought.
CEILING FANS, large wall MIRRORS (4x6) and latex flat PAINT would be put to good use at the PARADIGM DANCE THEATRE where teaching the arts of dance and performances are held regularly.
PEOPLE IN FAITH UNITED, a housing cooperative, is searching for any items to update homes for their Beautification Project. PANELING, HOT WATER TANKS AND LUMBER are especially important to the program's success.
BASEBALL BATS, SOFTBALLS, GLOVES, CROQUET SETS, WATER TOYS, BOARD GAMES for all ages and CRAFT SUPPLIES desperately sought by CHILDREN'S HOME OF DETROIT. CURTAIN for a theatre stage would also be greatly appreciated.

Netters honors!

Mike Fozo, John Yancey and Alex Tringali were each voted to the Michigan High School Tennis Coaches Association's all state tennis team. Each player represented the University Liggett School in Grosse Pointe Woods. Coach Bob Wood, Mike Fozo, John Yancey and coach Chuck Wright are pictured in front of the ULS tennis records board. Tringali is not pictured.

GPYC tradition continues

The Grosse Pointe Yacht Club's swim team, under the leadership of Fred Michalik and his daughters Mary Ann and Laurie, won their 74th and 75th consecutive swim meets.

On June 14, they clinched a victory over Lochmoor Club and on June 16 they defeated Red Run Golf Club's swim team; ending their 12th year of consecutive wins in the dual-meet competition in the Michigan Inter-Club Swimming Association.

Winning first places in these two meets were; Brady Schoenheer, Rebecca Murray, Brian Brown, Susan Cornille, Shera Teigte and Scott Gregory in the 8-and-under group.

Winners in the 9-10 category were; Lauren Kordus, Kyle Zeller, Suzanne Toledo, Tim Raynaert, Kathy Storen, Stephanie LaFond and Ryan Zeller.

Pat Kirchner, Brenn Schoenheer, Ashley Moran, Jon Sieber, Katie Tompkins and Jamie Mertz placed first in the 11-12 age group. In the 13-14 age group, first places went to Ted Stedem and Chris Keane. Anne Tipp and Chris Nevison were the blue ribbon winners in the 15-16 age group.

At the Lochmoor meet, coach Michalik commended the following swimmers on their fine swims, which brought winning points to the team; Kathryn Tusa, Alicia Cytacki, Sean Gardella, Courtney Youngblood, Amy Gmeiner, Eric DeMeulemeester, Mark Bickenbach, Tricia Morrow, Julie Wheeler, Jenny Smith, Buffy Stumb and Peter Mertz.

Adding points to the Red Run meet were; Katie Huetteaman, Katie Blake, Charlie Tompkins, Emaire DeMeulemeester, Missy Kordus, Peter Anthony Brown, Kai Bickenbach, Carrie Gardella, Kelli Haarz, Eric Steiner, Brad Stedem, Jamie Nevison, Lauren Rashid, Jeannine Taylor, Peggy Storen, Lindsay Youngblood, Robin Wheeler, Erika Teigte, Elizabeth Sieber, Erin Quinlan, Megan Thomas, Jeff Volmer and Alex Toledo.
