

Retired but active: Senior housing a blessing

By Nancy Parmenter
Staff Writer

Who is living in a retirement home?

It's more often a woman than a man. Frequently she is looking for safety from crime. Sometimes, companionship. Less housework. Maybe after cooking 71,700 meals, number 71,701 is just one too many.

It's your mother and my mother — and, if we live long enough, it could be you and me.

But retirement housing isn't what many of us imagine. It doesn't have to be high-rise storage for people waiting to die. In an age when adult children are busy with family and career, older people often band together to find their own companionship and fun.

"I don't design congregate living for 65-year-olds," said developer and consultant Gary Gintzig. "I'm looking at the mid-70s. There are more options to day. People used to retire and head straight for a rest home."

Now a 70-year-old is just as likely to be playing tennis as resting.

At Park Place, a complex for seniors in Harper Woods that opened three years ago, Monday morning means doughnuts and coffee in the community room. Not everybody comes. Mr. Gibson is in the cheery, sunlit laundry washing clothes.

"I'll be glad when my wife gets better," he says. One understands that he isn't referring only to the laundry.

Downstairs in the community room, Veronica Day bustles around getting the refreshments organized. "I don't know where all the girls are," she fusses. Actually, there are about 20 women gathered, a bit of a small turnout which is put down to the fact that Mother's Day was the day before.

"This place was really empty yesterday," someone says.

Day is the president of the tenants' association, balancing those duties with her daily volunteer work at the Warren senior citizens' center. She's an organizer. She is coy about her age, but proud that she can still drive the daily 18-mile round trip to Warren.

"I'm small, but I'm mighty," she says with a grin.

Several of the women have lived at Park Place since it opened. The waiting list is currently eight years, but a woman from Grosse Pointe Park says she moved in only a few months ago.

"I'm not a good mixer, but I'm learning," she says.

A disagreement about mixing breaks out. One woman says it's hard to get acquainted when you first move in. Another says there's pressure to mix. Someone disputes that.

"There's no pressure to join things," she says. "You can be as active as you want to be."

"I enjoy my privacy," says another.

"Some people never go out of their homes, either," adds another. "They like to keep on that way, with the same lifestyle they had when they were younger. People don't change when they get old — they just get more the way they were."

"I've always liked to be with people — I'm still that way."

High school pranks — the bane of officials

By Peter A. Salinas
Staff Writer

Some teachers and school officials don't like to publicly discuss high school pranks, because an otherwise tranquil student body may turn ugly. But each spring, with or without media attention, a Volkswagon or Elias Bros. Big Boy may appear on the roof of the school, a greased pig may squeal down a hallway or library furniture may be checked out.

Last week, five University Liggett School students were suspended and three seniors will not be allowed to take part in commencement exercises for dumping horse manure in hallways and in office files. Also at least one live chicken was dismembered, and parts were left on a librarian's desk. A sixth person — a former graduate — also took part in the incident.

Last year, six Grosse Pointe South students were prosecuted for dumping over bookshelves and card catalogs in the high school library. Those students were suspended for two weeks, not allowed to participate in any extracurricular events and banned from commencement exercises.

The school district also chose to prosecute the students who had to pay fines and make restitution when they entered into a plea agreement with the Farms municipal court.

Coincidentally, on the same night the South library was broken into and vandalized, the North library was also vandalized. Subsequently, the students were caught, but did not face criminal charges. They did have to pay restitution and undergo counseling.

Over the years at both public and private Grosse Pointe high schools, pranks have ranged from the deviant (tying firecrackers to a cat's tail and letting it go in the halls) to the clever (seniors dressed in army fatigues storming the end of an assembly).

"What you have to remember," said North Principal John Kastran, "is these are not always senior pranks. We have a very, very fine group of seniors this year."

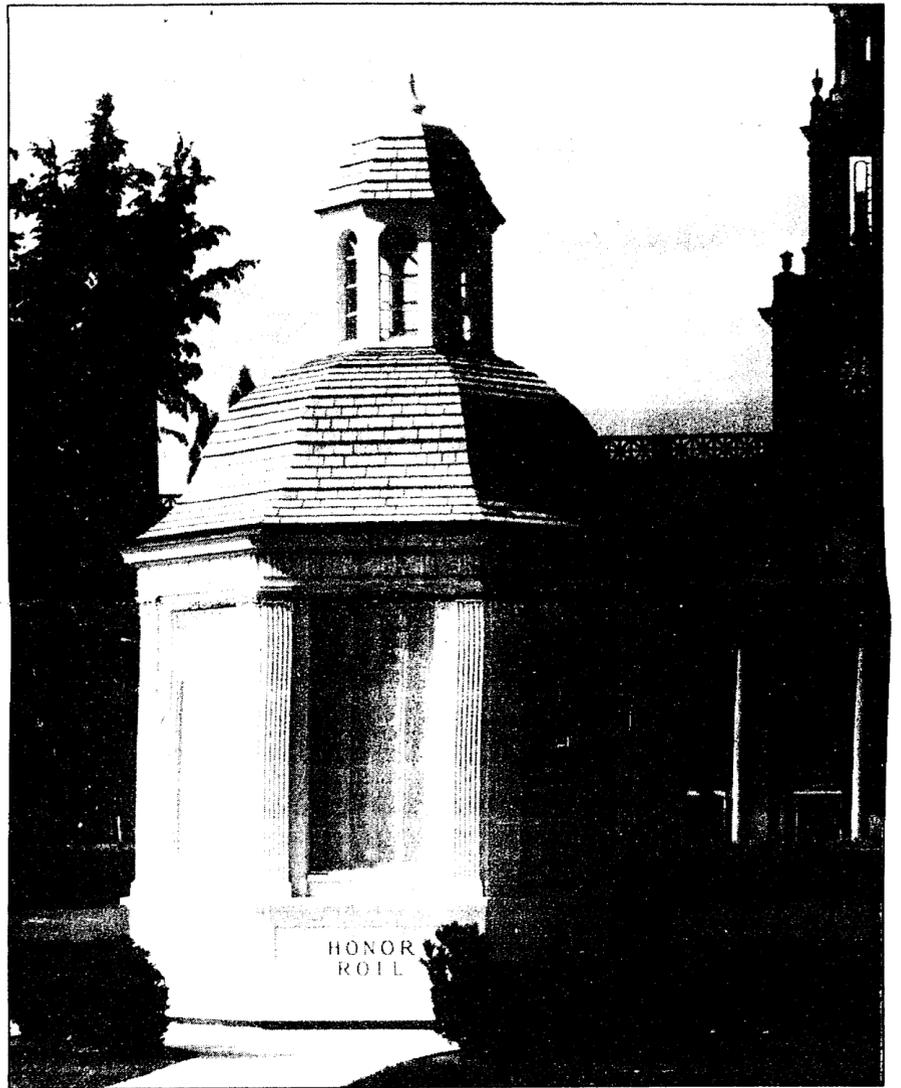

Kastran said that in the last two years at North, there have been no student pranks that warranted comment. He said it has been the school's policy for the past several years to hire security guards during the last few weeks of school to patrol the grounds in the evenings and on weekends.

"Students need to find alternative ways to express themselves," Kastran said. "I don't mind something that is funny, but cruelty to animals or damage to property is something else."

Kastran said he has been the victim of some pranks over the years. He has had his office filled with balloons on one occasion and old tires on another. He said he found these humorous, but added that it did cost the taxpayers money to have custodians clean up his office.

South Principal Ed Shine said he recently sent a letter to all South parents, letting them know the school's policy against pranks and urging parents to have their children find an alternative way to leave a mark on

In remembrance...

Memorial Day 1988

Nearly 45 years ago, on Dec. 27, 1943, a committee of Grosse Pointers met. Their goal was to honor the servicemen and women of World War II.

Known as the Grosse Pointe Honor Roll Association, the group decided on the memorial above. The site they proposed — Grosse Pointe High School — was approved by the school board.

The committee had 1,900 names at the beginning. Through coupons in the Grosse Pointe News and Grosse Pointe Review and the help of air raid wardens who went house to house, the group ended up with 3,114 names. The names of those who died while serving — 32 — were inscribed in gold lettering.

The project, which was started in April 1944 and completed and dedicated on Memorial Day 1944, was funded entirely by donations. Then-Gov. Wilbur Brucker, who presided over the unveiling, spoke about the war and the importance of the home front.

The Grosse Pointe Honor Roll consisted of William J. Watkins, president, and Norbert Neff, Judge Kenneth Thomas, Paul Morland, Florence Severs, Alger Shelden, Arnold Diesing, Sgt. Julius Stork, George L. Schlaepfer, John J. O'Brien, Clarence Blessed, Frances D. Shelden and George Elworthy.

Frances Shelden continues as a honorary member of the board of directors of the War Memorial. Paul Morland was honored for his continued service to the War Memorial at last year's annual meeting.

The committee continued to meet until 1949 when it dissolved. By then, the memorial had been moved to the War Memorial with the promise that all of the names would be copied on brass.

Thanks to Carrie Maliszewski of the War Memorial for locating the photo and looking through the records for the above information.

A new column, Photography, by Monte Nagler makes its debut in the Grosse Pointe News today.

Nagler, who studied with Ansel Adams, is an award-winning photographer whose works are in private and public collections across the country, including the Detroit Institute of Arts, the Center for Creative Photography in Tucson, the Brooklyn Museum, Nikon Int., the Ford Motor Co. and IBM.

Nagler says technique is second to content. The camera doesn't make photographs — people do. Photographers should communicate feelings that are inside of them. Through his photographs, a photographer should be saying: "This is what I saw and felt and I would like to share that!"

He teaches classes at the War Memorial, the Birmingham Community House and the Farmington Community Center. He also writes a photography column for the Observer/Eccentric newspapers.

Photography will run every other week. The first column on page 9A.

The Rev. James A. McLaren

By Margie Reins Smith
Staff Writer

The Rev. James A. McLaren, of Grosse Pointe Park, executive director of Crossroads, would like to be obsolete.

Barring that, he said that he'd settle for 100 new volunteers and a broader base of support so that the agency can do what they're doing more effectively. He'd especially like to strengthen Crossroads Jobs, the employment office arm of the organization.

"It's a commonly held perception that the crisis of poverty is over in this country," he said. "That's just not true. Abject, grinding poverty is not only increasing, but the situation is becoming worse for some people."

Crossroads is a non-profit ecumenically-based social service ministry that was begun by the Cathedral Church of St. Paul, an Episcopal church in downtown Detroit, in 1971. Crossroads Main is still serving the neighborhood on East Forest at John R.

In 1982, a branch office, Crossroads East, opened on East Jefferson and Manistique near the Grosse Pointe Park city limits. In 1984, Crossroads Jobs, a full-scale employment office opened in the same building on East Jefferson.

All together, the three Crossroads offices dispense food, counseling services, assistance with utility bills, rent and prescriptions; they provide advocacy, employment assistance, educational services and even operate a Sunday soup kitchen at the downtown location. All for the

In Flanders Fields

In Flanders fields the poppies blow
Between the crosses, row on row,
That mark our place; and in the sky
The larks, still bravely singing, fly
Scare heard amid the guns below.
We are the Dead. Short days ago
We lived, felt dawn, saw sunset glow,
Loved and were loved, and now we lie

In Flanders fields.
Take up our quarrel with the foe:
To you from failing hands we throw
The torch; be yours to hold it high.
If ye break faith with us who
We shall not sleep, though poppies grow
In Flanders fields.

Political realities deter senior housing

By Nancy Parmenter
Staff Writer

It's easy to say that Grosse Pointe should have housing for senior citizens. But there's a long step from that good intention through a thicket of political opposition.

About 15 years ago, Grosse Pointe Woods voters were asked to authorize sale of a part of Ghesquiere Park to a developer who wanted to erect senior housing. The voters responded with a resounding 'no,' choosing recreational land over the elderly.

"There have been various other proposals that never got off the ground," said Woods City Administrator Chester Petersen. The Mack Avenue plan recently done for the city by planner Gerald Luedtke includes some low-rise cluster housing. "It's currently just a planner's proposal, but there is widespread interest," Petersen said.

"Developers think this is a good market if we can find some land."

Land isn't the only problem. "No one wants a high-rise in their neighborhood," said Ann Kraemer, director of Services for Older Citizens (SOC). "If you go for low-rise cluster housing, it takes up more land. Is there a city council that wants to touch that?"

Biases are at work, too. "You know what happened in Birmingham," said Grosse Pointe City Councilman William Montgomery. "That's what a lot of people in Grosse Pointe are afraid of." Birmingham was charged with racial discrimination after it refused federal funding for a senior citizens' housing project. After years of delay and litigation, the project is now almost ready for occupancy.

Kraemer agreed with Montgomery's assessment. "Some people feel that if there's federal money, they'll be inundated with 'outsiders.' They don't understand that there's a major reluctance to relocate — people like to stay in their own neighborhood."

Harper Woods Mayor James Haley remembers the struggle to build that city's project, Park Place, with federal funds. He almost lost his job over it.

"I took a lot of flak over that," he said. "There was concern about the kind of people who would live there. I was willing to take the flak because I thought it was important."

Three years after Park Place's completion, most of the applicants have been local people from along Detroit's border and from the eastern suburbs. The building is tremendously popular and, Haley said, "we could fill up another one."

In Harper Woods, the city condemned land for the project. There is no enthusiasm for condemnation in Grosse Pointe.

"The city of Grosse Pointe Woods would limit its involvement to rezoning," said Mayor George Freeman.

Park Mayor Palmer Heenan concurred. "You're looking at taking somebody's property," he said. "We're not in the business of favoring one group over another."

Developer Gary Gintzig is currently planning a project somewhere in the Pointes. He knows what he could be up against.

"I know there could be resistance," he said. "The location and the project have to minimize the negative impact. You have to confer carefully with the community to learn its needs."

'The community is at a crossroads on a lot of issues, many of which are impacted by a lack of open space.'

—John Bruce

"I can understand the historical resistance to turning estates into apartment buildings. But we're not talking nursing homes. We all want to protect the bedroom community atmosphere, but this type of place doesn't harm it.

"We're trying to respond in a tactful way. Cities can very carefully modify their zoning to allow slightly increased density."

Focus on Seniors, an ad hoc committee studying senior issues, wants to conduct a study to find places suitable for senior housing. John Bruce, director of the Neighborhood Club, is a member.

"We're trying to act as a catalyst to have senior adult issues treated as a priority," Bruce said. "We want to see what roles might be played by councils, what roles might be played by the community, what roles by developers."

The community is at a crossroads on a lot of issues, many of which are impacted by a lack of open space." He mentioned the library expansion, the shortage of playing fields and senior transportation. "Most of them can be best addressed through dialogue," he said.

Some developers have already shown an interest in renovating existing buildings to senior housing. This gets around the space limitations. But rehabbing isn't an easy project to get off the ground, either.

Nobody knows that better than Piku Management, which, with American House, tried unsuccessfully to nail down a project to renovate the convent at St. Ambrose parish, along the border between the Park and Detroit.

"It isn't because we didn't try," said Father Timothy Pelc of St. Ambrose. "I spent a year of my life working on that."

The problem with the project was financing. Even though Piku and American House had proven records as developers and market studies indicated that the building would be easy to fill, banks were reluctant to make loans.

"There's a real reluctance of Detroit banking institutions to make loans for Detroit projects," Pelc said. "We had to get out-of-state and foreign sources."

"It's very shocking that Europeans are willing to loan money for our older citizens (and our banks won't).

"That was a real frustrating summer. We probably could have filled the place just with our own parishioners, without advertising."

As financing floundered, Patrick Sperti, a principal of Financial Management Advisors and a St. Ambrose parishioner, was brought in.

"My involvement with the project was late in the game," he said. "They had already been turned down by a couple of local investors. I tried to find something out of state."

"There's no question that local lenders in Detroit are not the best source."

Sperti said the problem is that banks in general are not real estate lenders and tend to make loans on unfavorable terms, if at all. He looked for money in the insurance and mortgage field.

"The Detroit location doesn't enter into their thinking," he said. "They're interested in cash flow. If the cash flow is there to support the project, they don't care where it is."

'We probably could have filled the place just with our own parishioners, without advertising.'
—the Rev. Timothy Pelc

Nevertheless, the project was not funded, and Sperti described the parties as "pretty disgruntled."

Chrystem Piku said he and American House have moved on to other projects. "Lending institutions are eager to lend on senior citizen housing, but it has to be in a good location," he said. "If we could have moved the convent 10 feet, we could probably have pulled it off."

Their latest project is in St. Clair Shores.

Eberhardt: Detroit has a bright future

By Jesse Wick
Grosse Pointe News Intern

Detroit City Councilman David Eberhardt is a man who speaks his mind. He also is a firm believer in the future of Detroit.

Eberhardt recently appeared on Grosse Pointe Cable's "Johanna Gilbert Interviews" program, where he spoke optimistically about the regeneration of the city.

"The problem with Detroit is that we're our own worst enemies," Eberhardt said. "We always want to make comparisons with other cities. Detroit has a lot going for it."

"We recycle cities. The other day I was down at St. Aubin park where they're building a marina and I could see five layers of cities where they were digging."

Eberhardt sees the Riverfront area as a successful start to this recycling. He said the city is now turning its attention to Woodward Avenue, hoping to turn it into a commercial area to draw businesses back into Detroit.

In spite of these projects, Eberhardt said, the city is not neglecting its neighborhoods.

"Three out of every four dollars spent in the city of Detroit are spent on our neighborhoods," he said. "Some things citizens have to do."

"The city was built for over two million people. We now have less than a million people, which means we now have more facilities than we have people to live in them."

Eberhardt also spoke in defense of the police department. "It's a myth that officers are being laid off because of attrition," he said.

According to Eberhardt, there are some 286 positions in the Detroit Police Department that have not been filled for the last 10 years. The attrition plan is designed to eliminate those positions rather than lay off officers.

The only problem Eberhardt sees with the Detroit Police Department is that there are not enough officers on the street. Out of 5,000 officers employed by the city, only 200 to 300 are actually patrolling neighborhoods at any given time, he said.

Eberhardt avoided taking a clear position on casino gambling, but said he didn't think it would hurt Detroit as much as critics say it would.

"We always want to make these comparisons," he said. "Everybody wants to compare us to Atlantic City or Las Vegas."

According to Eberhardt, the difference between Detroit and those cities is that, in Las Vegas and Atlantic City, gambling is the most important industry. "Gaming will not be the major industry in Detroit," he said. "It will be a leisure activity."

Eberhardt also has confidence that casinos will not draw crime to Detroit. He said Detroit has 5,000 police officers, while Atlantic City had only 17 officers when gaming was approved. With only 17 officers, he said, crime was assured. Atlantic City had to add an entire police force at great cost, he said. There are now 397 officers on its force.

In spite of his confidence, however, Eberhardt refused to take a stand for or against casino gambling. "I'm not the one who has to vote on it," he said. Regardless of the gaming commission's report, the state legislature has the final say on gambling in Detroit, he said.

Eberhardt is a firm believer in the future of Detroit. "We sure like to pick on ourselves," he said.

"Johanna Gilbert Interviews" with David Eberhardt can be seen on Grosse Pointe Cable Channel 32 at 10 a.m. Thursday through Sunday, May 26-29; at 8:30 p.m. Thursday and Saturday, May 26 and 28; and at midnight Thursday through Saturday, May 26-28.

War Memorial plans Memorial Day event

A special Community Memorial Day Observance will be held on the lakeside lawn of the War Memorial, Monday, May 30, at 10 a.m.

The service, held annually at the Center, honors those who have given their lives in service to their country.

This year's program will include the dedication of a new plaque, recognizing those Grosse Pointers who, through acts of heroism and courage, gave their lives in the service of their country in non-war years. This plaque, bearing the name of Captain Frederick M. Maddock II, will be permanently displayed near those honoring Grosse Pointers who served in World War II, Korea and Vietnam.

The service will include color guard by the U.S. Marine Corps, volley by members of VFW Post 1146 and jet flyover by the 127th Air National Guard, Selfridge Air National Guard Base.

The program will also feature music by the 70th Division Army Reserve Band under the direction of Robert C. Sherman and a concert by the Grosse-Pointe Barbershoppers. Also participating will be scouts, American Legion representatives, local dignitaries and clergy.

The program will be followed by the first public showing of the 33-minute color film, "D-Day plus 40/A Candid View." The film will be narrated by former Grosse Pointer and World War II veteran, Bob Hurley. The documentary retraces Hurley's return to Europe 40 years after the war.

In case of rain, service will be held indoors. For information, call 881-7511.

4 able people competing for school board

Once again the Grosse Pointe community is fortunate in having four excellent candidates running for the two positions on the Grosse Pointe Board of Education that will be filled in the school election June 13.

All four have lived in the Pointes for some years. All four have or have had children in the Grosse Pointe public schools. All four have shown their interest in school problems by serving on the board or by service to parent-teacher organizations or committees studying school problems. And all four back Superintendent John Whritner and the board on major issues, although some would emphasize different priorities and different concerns.

One is a retired business executive and government official. One is himself a school administrator in Detroit. Another who has had long PTO experience is employed at a nursing home. And another is a lawyer with special experience in employment relations and other matters that would be helpful to the board.

Asked a series of questions in their separate interviews with a Grosse Pointe News reporter and an editorial writer, three of the four candidates agreed that the board had handled the recent confrontation between the superintendent and his deputy as well as could be expected. One demurred on the grounds the board had resolved the controversy and he thought it would be unfair to make a judgment. None of the four, however, had any specific faults to find with the superintendent or past board decisions.

(Their specific answers to the series of questions will be found in reporter Peter Salinas' story in the news columns of next week's issue of the Grosse Pointe News.)

All four supported the increase of four-tenths of a mill in the library levy to be voted on at the school election June 13. And, in general, all four supported expansion of the school library system, although there were differences in the approach to a future vote on the issue.

With respect to future problems, all four agreed that funding will be an important issue whether the state Legislature is able to reform school aid requirements or not. In one way or another, all expressed support for the retention of local control over the financing of the local schools and opposition to any proposed state cap that might limit the district's ability to continue to support an excellent educational program.

Under the circumstances, we found it difficult to make a strong endorsement of the two best candidates although we finally did so on the grounds that two of those running, Fred W. Adams and Ernest Buechler, have had valuable experience on the board.

Adams, currently the board president, is seeking a second term and Buechler, who was defeated for re-election four years ago, is trying to return to the board. Both were on the original committee that recommended Whritner for the job and both expressed strong support for the superintendent's record here.

We emphasize, however, that Gloria J. Konzler and Timothy J. Howlett also would be acceptable board members. Both would bring to the board experience that would be helpful to the holdover members and beneficial to the system as a whole. Their presence on the ticket also assures competition and a better discussion of the issues than would be the case with only two candidates.

As we said at the outset, Grosse Pointe has had a tradition of attracting good candidates for the school board, people with excellent backgrounds who are interested and well informed and who recognize that the board sets the policies that the superintendent, as the top administrator, carries out with its advice and consent. We believe that is the case again this year.

Libraries need higher levy

Approval of a four-tenths of a mill increase in the levy for the Grosse Pointe library system on June 13 would raise an additional $450,000 and enable the libraries to continue to operate at their current level.

To some citizens, it may appear odd that the school board, which runs the libraries, had apparently budgeted a deficit for the libraries. But that is not what the board did.

Instead, it budgeted in the expectation that the voters would approve the additional mill that was on the ballot last November along with the proposed $8.6 million bond issue to finance the expansion program. If it had been approved, the millage would have financed current as well as expanded operations.

So when the additional levy was defeated, along with the expansion program, the board was faced with the prospect of asking for additional millage in June or making cuts in the library budget. It did cut the budget by $40,000 but proposed to seek the millage increase to avoid any greater cuts.

To date, we have not heard of any organized opposition to the proposed millage increase. All four candidates for the school board have endorsed the proposal and most people we've talked with seem to think the increase is a good idea at this time.

As for the expansion program, that is a different matter and not connected with the proposed levy increase. A special study committee is reviewing the library system's needs and expects to come up with some recommendations later this year to answer such questions as if and when to propose another vote, the extent of the expansion and whether to revise plans for a proposed addition to the Central Library to avoid invasion of the South High athletic field.

Two major factors contribute to the increased costs of operating the libraries. One is the higher pay for personnel, which has gone up along with other salaries in the school system to offset continuing inflation. The other is the increased cost of materials and the expanded services provided by the libraries these days.

Another point to keep in mind is that if voters reject the increase, which would cost the owner of a home valued at $100,000 about $20 more a year in library taxes, the libraries would be forced to cut back on personnel costs. One way would be to reduce library hours at both the Central and the two branches in the Park and the Woods.

So to assure continued service at the current level and avoid cutbacks that otherwise would be required, the Grosse Pointe News recommends approval of the four-tenths of a mill increase in the library levy at the school election June 13.

A state's role in gambling

As if Michigan hadn't heard enough about gambling from Detroit's casino backers, the Bureau of State Lottery last week mailed to all homes in the state an expensively printed piece of propaganda calling for wider participation in Michigan's lottery games.

The brochure explains the various ways in which Michigan residents can participate in lottery games, the strategies to use, the payoffs to be made, the method of participating in a subscription bonus and, of course, where to collect the winnings in each case.

About the only adverse information in the brochure is the warning that "You must be 18 or older to play." But we found nothing about the odds against winning, the danger of becoming addicted to gambling or the possibility that some of those who invest in the lottery can't really afford to play. No, it's obvious that the Bureau of State Lottery stresses the positive and ignores the negatives.

And so, obviously, do the backers of casino gambling in Detroit, from Mayor Coleman Young on down. The mayor, after contending for several years that he really is neutral on the issue, has come out strongly for casinos even before his special commission has reported its recommendations. His major argument is that introduction of casino gambling will bring thousands of jobs to Detroit.

But last week the mayor was upset when a study committee of the Greater Detroit Chamber of Commerce recommended by a 20-to-3 vote that the business group oppose legalized gambling.

The Chamber's study group based its opposition on its own findings that casino gambling would damage the city's image, business climate and quality of life. Specifically, it said that casinos would discourage business from locating in Metro Detroit, would worsen crime and would not provide jobs for the chronically unemployed. It examined casinos' impact on crime and social problems but focused on the economic impact.

We think that it is bad enough for the state to legalize and promote a state lottery and gambling on horse races without adding another form of gambling by permitting casinos in Detroit. Perhaps the Legislature will finally say enough is enough, when it is asked to authorize Detroit's proposed casinos. Most of the legislators, after all, have a different perspective than the mayor does as a result of their own knowledge of the social and governmental costs of gambling and its constant companion, crime.

Support library

To the Editor:

Please support your three public libraries in the June 13 election. The libraries are important to all of you from preschoolers to senior citizens, and especially crucial for the education of your youth.

I worked at the Park Branch from 1964 to 1973 as children's librarian and now that I'm living in Brighton, I appreciate even more the excellent service and superior book collection that many of you take for granted.

Please vote yes to continue this excellent library system.

Art lover

To the Editor:

I appreciated the excellent article in the Grosse Pointe News about Richard Axsom written by Ronald J. Bernas. I had the honor and privilege of having Dr. Axsom as my professor at the University of Michigan-Dearborn.

While attending college, the Detroit Institute of Arts in Detroit wanted to install an escalator in the Diego Rivera murals and place a gift shop just below. Dr. Axsom strongly objected to this and was successful in obtaining the support of art lovers all over the world to voice their objections. The project was abandoned.

I will never forget the appreciation for art that was instilled in me by this learned professor.

Learn who wants to serve — and why?

To the Editor:

As the June 13th election approaches here in the Pointes, the serious question of voter apathy needs to be addressed. Those of us who give lip service to the advantages of a free electoral process often fail to remember that, with that franchise, comes the responsibility of making an informed choice. This year, in the aftermath of the school-system fiasco of early spring, we must make a singular effort to analyze the strengths and weaknesses of those candidates who are making bids for trusteeship.

Never again should this community be embarrassed by its insensibility, as it was when a mean-spirited posse of school officials was manipulated into railroading Dr. Joseph Spagnoli, its most dedicated and longest-serving central administrator. Had enough of us been more interested than in the workings of our school district, more insistent that the board represent us, who place our trust in them, we would not now be blushing in shame at our own dereliction.

At the very least, we owe it to ourselves and our children to know who wants to serve as a board member — and why. The office-seekers will be available for questions and discussion at the League of Women Voters Candidates Forum tonight at the War Memorial. Their positions can be examined, as they should be, and now is the time to do just that.

In the end, it is to us, the community, that the school board owes its commitment, and only our enthusiastic participation in the selection of candidates will prove that we neither want nor need rubber-stamp panels directing the future of our schools.

Turn signals keep the gestures coming

One of the most unfortunate circumstances in life has made its way under my skin — a car accident.

Three weeks ago my car was the blocking dummy for a Chevy S-10 pickup truck. While driving through rush-hour traffic, I was clipped on the passenger side of the car for more than $1,300 worth of damage.

Getting hit wasn't a disaster, until I found out that I had to change my tire and put on the spare tire I commonly refer to as a balloon. The balloon, as some of you may know, is a temporary tire that allows you to drive the car until you can get the original tire fixed or replaced. In my case, I didn't have to replace the tire, but had to change it because the quarter panel on the car was gouging my tire. That's when all the fun started.

I filed the accident report with my insurance company, called the claims office to make an appointment to get my car assessed and then found out I couldn't get it looked at until a week's time expired.

So to make the best of a bad situation, I was bound to drive the damaged goods. First of all, driving a banged-up car makes me feel like dirt. Secondly, I don't like to even look at cars with "ouch" marks on them, and thirdly, I'm tired of getting looked at all the time while driving down the highway.

My trek into work each day covers 25 miles — 20 of it highway driving. With the balloon spare acting as a proxy for my actual tire, I couldn't drive over 45 mph. Forty-five! Have you ever tried to go 45 on a highway? It's bad enough when you don't drive 65 on I-94. I felt like I was standing still. I felt like I was spinning my wheels in mud. I even yelled at myself, "If you go any slower, you'll be going backwards." I was even prepared to put my feet through the floor board and build some speed as Fred and Barney do.

So, after one week of driving on I-94 and 696, I have evaluated the types of faces or scowls people give to slower cars. Let me describe them to you.

I Say

Rob Fulton

The "What are you doing?" face — This face is simple. The upper lip is tucked tightly to the plate of the upper gum, and the chin is dipped toward the chest. Don't forget about the hand gesture. Why do people wave at me with one finger?

The "Hey, buddy, get off the road" face — This is a discouraging look. It entails a swing of the right arm to motion you toward the exit ramp, the driver slides across the seat about two feet, has his/her face turn a pretty shade of red, and yells unmercifully at you. I still can't hear what they say.

The "Put the pedal to the metal" face — This face comes from the person who is constantly checking his watch as he dips in and out of traffic. If he gets behind you, his head jerks back toward the headrest as the eyes roll to the sky. His bumper becomes hidden as he gets closer to driving you off the road, and he repeatedly puts his hand over his face and rubs it in disgust.

The "side-to-side gesture" — The head turns left and right with words of criticism or vulgarity spurring from the mouth. The driver squirms in his seat and as he finally passes you, he looks at you like you've got the plague. I look back at them and blow them a kiss. That really gets their goat.

Last, but not least, the "Revenge look." This requires only a simple maneuver of the neck and a twitch of the mouth, and it's performed by the driver of the car driving at a turtle's pace. As the driver behind you flashes his lights, boops the horn, waves at you with one finger and verbally chews you out for driving the minimum speed limit, you casually recline in your seat, tip the rearview mirror down and show the trailing driver your pearly whites. As that car passes you, you simply look at him/her with a nice smile and the politely wave back — preferably with all four fingers and a thumb.

After I dropped off my car at the bump shop, I had another set of wheels waiting for me. I was borrowing a nice, clean and well-maintained Cutlass Supreme from my fiancée's brother. The car rides well, has a nice stereo, and like any big car, goes through gas quicker than a stone goes through glass.

However, I am thankful that I have a car that can go 45 mph if need be, and I'm pleased that I can drive 60 with the other cars. The only problem is that I'm still getting the hand gestures delivered my way, and the verbal attacks haven't ceased. I think I better chip in some money to get those turn signals fixed on that Cutlass.

Ducks in luck

Woods police received a call from Douglas Sargent last week about impending danger.

Officer Daniel Koskinen immediately responded to the call and helped to save the day.

Seems a large family of ducks was attempting to cross Vernier between Canton and Helen, without the aid of a traffic light.

Koskinen arrived at the scene an assisted Harper Woods officers who were already directing traffic.

The ducks were "rallied up," put into the patrol unit and transported to the lakeshore and left along a beach area without further incident.

Hmmmmmmmm!

The Lakeshore Chorus of the Grosse Pointe Barbershoppers performed the National Anthem before a jammed Tiger Stadium May 14, prior to the nationally telecast Tigers and Minnesota Twins game.

The Barbershoppers are a chapter of the Society for the Preservation and Encouragement of Barbershop Quartet

Singing in America which is celebrating its 50th anniversary nationally.

If you're into belting out choruses of "Sweet Adeline," the Grosse Pointe Barbershoppers meet every Tuesday at 8 p.m. at the Neighborhood Club, 17150 Waterloo. The club invites men of all ages who love to sing to contact Dale Barber at 885-6500 for further information.

Let's talk trash

Grosse Pointe Park officials are experts on trash, and are pleased with a recent U.S. Supreme Court decision which overturned a California police/trash case and supports a Michigan Supreme Court Case which resulted from a Park trash lawsuit.

Seems the law has never really been clear as to who trash belongs to.

Park Detective James LaPratt talked trash with us last week.

He was the officer in 1976 who spotted wallets, later found to have been stolen during an armed robbery, in a bag of trash that had been torn open by a dog. He spotted the wallets while walking up to a residence to question a man. The evidence in the trash, which was set by the side of the street, led to a conviction of the man on four counts of armed robbery.

LaPratt said the case went all the way to the Michigan high court. The court ruled that once set at the side of the street, the owner of the trash loses his right to privacy concerning the trash.

The California Supreme Court decided that the opposite was true, and that case went to the U.S. Supreme Court. There the majority ruled similarly to what the Michigan high court ruled.

"I get calls from police officers all the time about what to do concerning trash," LaPratt said. "The rule is once the bag has been set by the street, it can be searched. We recommend having the public works employee pick up the trash in the usual manner, then give it to the police once it has left the premises."

Yesterday's Headlines

Oct. 8, 1953 —

The New York Times' lead story announced the discovery of the body of six-year-old kidnap victim Bobby Greenlease. The child's body was found three days after a record $600,000 ransom had been paid. Bobby had been kidnapped by notorious criminals with a long record, the paper said. He had been taken from his private school in Kansas City through a ruse, then shot.

The government of Vietnam pledged to the United States that it would quickly create 135 new battalions to fight the Communist Vietminh guerillas. The American administration had given Vietnam $385,000 in military aid.

A sale on Dan River shirts promised less than 2 percent shrinkage owing to the man-made miracle fiber, rayon. Men's broadcloth shirts were selling for $3.95 at B. Altman's.

Florence Chadwick scored again by swimming the Straits of Bosphorus from Europe to Asia and back. Her next objective was to swim in the Dardanelles. In a sign of the times, Chadwick posed for the newspaper photographer looking more like movie star Esther Williams than the long-distance athlete she was.

The Long Island Railroad put two new electric commuter coaches into service. They were the first of 20 luxury coaches slated for commuter use. The cars were equipped with thermostatic controls for heating and cooling and featured foam rubber seats.

New York City began an inquiry into campus Communism in a number of city colleges. Nothing had been done since 1941, although state law called for dismissal for misconduct or refusal to answer questions.

Hysteria over black widow spiders in Babylon, Long Island, was calmed when the health department announced a spraying campaign. County health officials were sent to the township to reassure housewives that the spider rarely attacks.

the council ordering agents to use only one sign — and none of the popular "open" signs. Mayor Paul Rowe said that real estate dealers had been "guilty of over-enthusiasm" in sign placement. The complainant was congratulated by more than 100 callers, she told the council.

Under a headline, "Pointe Again Spurns Pleas for Blood," it was noted that for the third time in a row, donations failed to reach 200 pints, the minimum needed to make a bloodmobile successful.

Nash dealer Rose Edwards opened for business at Kercheval and Alter roads. Edwards was one of the few women automobile dealers in the United States. She announced plans to offer service for all car makes at the new garage.

Approximately 150 Pointe Boy Scouts enjoyed a campout at Ray Township's Camp Rotary. The troops enjoyed the fall colors and fine autumn weather and weren't done in by the Saturday night downpour. Competitive campouts would be held again — in spite of the disappearance of somebody's ax, folding camp stool and a "fine army type compass."

The pick-up crew for Christ Church's big rummage sale was pictured in the Grosse Pointe News, wearing suits and heels as they loaded their station wagon.

A Pryor's column had to retract the item about the maid too busy watching the soaps to make the family's breakfast. Seems she was not watching the soaps — she was watching Arthur Godfrey. The same maid was later caught serving at a fancy luncheon with her back hair done up in curlers.

The cities aren't talking, either. Any development plan must go through a city building department and city council, yet several mayors say senior housing in any form is just an idea, not under serious discussion.

Focus on Seniors, an ad hoc committee with representation from the five Pointes and Harper Woods, has for the last three years tried to pull together the threads of communication and information on senior issues. The committee is particularly interested in senior housing, but it owns no property, isn't a developer and has no legal status. What it would like to see is a planning study.

hands," he said.

Kenyon said he has taken an interest in the problem. "We have quite a few senior citizens who have lived in large houses all their lives. Now their families are grown and they're stuck with these big houses. I don't like to see them leave."

William Montgomery, Grosse Pointe City councilman and member of Focus on Seniors, said the group came up with the idea of studying the problem "to get some facts and possibilities to the point where we could ask the private sector to come and take a look."

Slowly, the cities are reaching the conclusion that working together may be the answer.

"The latest philosophy on it is that the five Grosse Pointes have been talking," said Woods Mayor George Freeman. "That's the direction we can go — come up with something between us. It's just starting to be talked about."

Park Mayor Palmer Heenan also mentioned the difficulty of going it alone, although he did not go so far as to suggest that the cities get together. "When you break up our communities into small components, every city is missing something," Heenan said. "It's difficult to cover the whole spectrum."

Heenan also put his finger on the crux of the problem as many see it: lack of space.

"There's always a general concern about housing for people who want to remain in Grosse Pointe," he said. "Getting it from the theoretical down to the practical (is a problem). You have to have land."

The Woods' Jean Rice, a strong advocate of housing, is also concerned about the land shortage, but hopeful that a planning study could identify some.

"I would like to see alternative housing," she said. "I'd like it for my husband and me. But when you have your back up against the water and your belly against Detroit and your property is all filled up, what can you do?"

A dream

What does the perfect Grosse Pointe retirement living consist of?

"Think of the lobby of a good hotel — with an apartment building above it," says Gary Gintzig of the Gintzig Group.

"It should have valet parking, shuttle shopping, laundry area, beauty shop. A dining room. But it doesn't have to be expensive. Residents pay a flat fee for an apartment and services. They are able to shape their lifestyle to their desires."

These dream castles would probably be one-bedroom apartments ranging from 800 to 1,000 square feet and costing $1,100 to $1,300 a month.

"I know that doesn't sound very big, but believe me, they're plenty," Gintzig said. "These people are down-sizing — a large house is what they left."

Gintzig describes the typical tenant as physically independent, but enjoying personal service.

"If people think of this as a nursing home, they're way off base," he said. "These people just want to share community with people with their same experiences and physical limitations. We're talking about healthy seniors."

No surprises in Shores election

All five candidates running unopposed in the Shores annual village election were re-elected Tuesday, May 17, to their seats on the village council.

Only 72 of 2,248 voters, or 3.2 percent, cast ballots.

Trustees Edmund M. Brady, Patricia Galvin and C. Bradford Lundy were all re-elected to their posts with 65, 64 and 68 votes respectively.

There were two write-in votes, one for Sherwood L. Clifford and one for Daniel DeClerq, both of Woodland Shores.

There were 37 who cast ballots in Precinct No. 1 and 35 votes cast in Precinct No. 2.

Schroeder became a village trustee in 1955, and became village president in 1971. This marks the beginning of his ninth elected term as president.

Woods boy stable after accident

An 8-year-old Woods resident was listed in stable condition Monday afternoon at St. John Hospital after being struck by a car Sunday and suffering head and other injuries.

Ryan C. Sheffield of Vernier Road apparently darted out from between parked cars on his bicycle on the 2100 block of Beau-ing from the head when the Woods ambulance arrived. Police said Sheffield suffered other assorted injuries after being tossed against the windshield of the car.

The driver, a 17-year-old Harper Woods woman, was unable to stop or swerve in time to avoid hitting Sheffield and was not issued a citation.

He was unconscious and bleed-

Think of yourself as a poet

Did you know that there is a powerful and meaningful universal language spoken by everyone, young and old, rich or poor, from all parts of the world? What I'm referring to is the "language" of the photographic image.

And just as a knowledge of basics is essential to communication and understanding in any language, so is this true in photography.

For example, we all know about grammar and punctuation in the English language. We know where the periods and commas belong. Similarly, in our photography we need to know the basics, such as how to set the shutter speed and how to determine the correct aperture and how to read the depth-of-field scale.

But as creative photographers, we must go a step beyond this. In short, we must learn to become poets with our cameras. You see, a poet makes grammar a secondary thing. What is primary to him are the words flowing from his creative self. The poet is tuned into his innermost feelings, and through his words he expresses these feelings. His poems are written expressions of himself.

A photographer must strive to do this, too. We must make the mechanics of photography a secondary thing and concentrate on becoming a photographic poet. It's easy to get correct exposure with our cameras. Now let's work toward getting proper exposure with our photographic feelings.

Remember that as photographers, we have the ability to make visible what others can only sense. This is an exciting concept. Begin to think of your feelings as the true lens of the camera. Realize that a photograph, and as the photographer, can reach out and stir human emotions that often go beyond what the spoken or written word can do.

Remember, the lens that truly sees the beauty of a flower, the innocent smile of a child, or a dramatic sunset isn't the lens attached to the front of the camera. Rather, it's the lens inside us!

Learn never to underexpose your feelings. Remember that it's not the brush of the artist that produces the painting, nor the bow of the violinist that makes the melody, nor the pen of the poet that writes the sonnet.

Similarly, it's not the camera that produces the photograph — it's really you!

Put your inside lens to work for you and become a poet of the photographic language.

Timmis to participate in first liberty summit

Farms resident Michael T. Timmis will take part in a ceremony June 25-26 in Williamsburg, Va. to celebrate the fundamental right of the First Amendment — freedom of religion. President Ronald Reagan and other national leaders will participate in the ceremony, which is the capstone of the work of the Williamsburg Charter Foundation, of which Timmis is a trustee.

As part of the celebration of the 200th anniversary of the Constitution, the foundation was formed by the Bicentennial Commission to provide a series of activities to celebrate freedom of religion.

The work of the foundation is to reaffirm, restate and publicize this right and to forge a consensus about the proper place for religion in public life. To that end, a charter proclaiming this right was written.

Early this year, the foundation engaged the Gallup organization to conduct a poll on religious attitudes in America. The results received widespread recognition in newspapers across the country. A series of conferences and forums on religion are also being held throughout the country.

Other trustees of the Williamsburg Charter Foundation include Dr. Billy Graham, evangelist and author; Archbishop John L. May, president, National Conference of Catholic Bishops; and Rabbi Joshua O. Haberman, president, Foundation for Jewish Studies.

Timmis, a senior partner in the law firm of Marco, Eagan, Kennedy and Timmis as well as vice-chairman and general counsel of Talon Inc., has been designated as a signer of the charter.

"This is a high honor," he said. "In my travels in Europe, Africa and Asia, I have become convinced that the uniqueness of America emanates from the freedom of religion we enjoy to the greatest extent of any country in the world. "If this freedom ever erodes, then all other freedoms begin to fall. This is a freedom, however, that is taken for granted, and hopefully, the charter will encourage us to have greater respect for and work harder to protect our freedom of religion."

Other organizations and projects Timmis is active in includes serving as director of the Michigan Parkinson Foundation, the University of Detroit Jesuit High School and FOCUS-Grosse Pointe. He is also an honorary trustee of the Grosse Pointe Academy and a founder of the Executive Leadership Foundation in Atlanta, Ga.

He recently spoke at the National Prayer Breakfast in Washington, D.C.

hungry, forgotten and friendless, according to McLaren.

He emphasized the purpose of Crossroads: "We try to build bridges. The need is deeper than food," he said. "Hunger is a symptom — often a symptom of lack of education, of crime, of unemployment, of discrimination.

"Each person comes in and sits down and talks about what is happening in his or her life. People describe how we can help them best. They come here with symptoms and often don't recognize the real problem that needs to be solved.

"For instance," McLaren said, "a man came to our office for food. He was out of work after holding a job for 26 years. He had used up all his unemployment benefits. He had tears in his eyes.

"We helped with food," he said. "We got to know him. We found other ways to help. House payments. Utility bills. We helped him find another job. It wasn't exactly the type of job he wanted, but it's easier to find a job when you're already employed. He eventually found a better job."

McLaren has been a parish priest for 32 years. He was rector of St. Andrews parish in Livonia; then came to St. Michaels Episcopal Church in Grosse Pointe Woods. When Crossroads opened 17 years ago, he served as volunteer director, but soon had to resign his parish duties to devote full attention to Crossroads.

McLaren oversees a $300,000 budget, a five-member full-time staff and a volunteer corps of

The Rev. James A. McLaren, executive director of Crossroads, said the east side office of the agency dispenses about two tons of food each month to people who are hungry. The Jefferson Avenue office offers classes in business English, business math, typing, and clerical procedures and courses for those who want to earn a G.E.D.

110 people for all three Crossroads offices. Funds come from individuals, parishes and private charitable organizations. The Episcopal Diocese of Michigan contributes $20,000 a year. "Grosse Pointers have been very supportive. Some say that affluent people don't care — and that's just not so. Many Grosse Pointe churches serve us various ways: volunteers, staff, food, funds."

McLaren said the eastside office of Crossroads sees about 20 to 35 people each day, distributes more than a ton of donated food each month, and purchases about an equal amount of food each month.

"In the 17 years of its existence, we at Crossroads have touched the lives and the families of 37,000 people," he said.

One of his wishes is for more job openings.

"So many people in Grosse Pointe are in positions to influence hiring," he said. "I'd like to see more of them call Crossroads Jobs and ask for qualified people. We've got qualified people."

Mike Beasley, employment specialist at Crossroads Jobs, underlined McLaren's plea. "We badly need job openings," he said. "We do the first steps for the employer. We pre-screen applicants and the employer can rest assured that we match his needs with the employee. We do a thorough check of references and we get to know the applicant.

"We need good permanent employment opportunities — not temporary work or revolving-door jobs."

A little-known service that Crossroads provides for its clients, McLaren said, is help in finding identification for people. "Probably $6,000 to $8,000 a year of our budget goes toward helping people get Michigan state ID cards and build an ID package.

"Many people spend a night in the slammer because they're stopped on the street by a policeman and can't provide identification. You also need ID to pick up food stamps or to open up a case with a social service department.

"We also spend thousands every year on prescription assistance."

McLaren said counselors and volunteers help people by speaking for them. "A lot of time we speak for people who have no one to care about them. They're tangled in red tape and they need assistance.

"We have a lot of success stories. One young woman came to us because she was hungry. We got to know her. Discovered her potential. She got into a G.E.D. class and completed the business classes. She got a job. The day she got her first paycheck, she came in and gave us 10 percent of her check.

"It's a treat to see people come back from an interview with a job. They're literally dancing. It's exciting to see eyes light up. It's exciting to give hope to people who had no hope.

"We're not just in the business of treating symptoms," McLaren said. "We're in the business of loving people."

Watch out, Dorothy, it's tornado season

By Ronald J. Bernas
Staff Writer

It's springtime again — time for tomato planting, baseball, young love, allergies and tornadoes. And it's time to refresh our memories what to do to save ourselves from a fate like Dorothy's.

Channel 2 weatherman Mike Lyons recently spoke to a group of students at Barnard School, located on the grounds of the Children's Home of Detroit, and answered questions ranging from his salary to why tornadoes are gray.

Although there are many facts and figures concerning tornadoes, Lyons said scientists are not quite sure what causes them, why some stay on the ground or how fast they travel.

"Springtime is the tornado season," Lyons said. "As warm air moves in with cold air, they fight, causing the tornadoes."

The hot air rises, it displaces the cold air, which in turn becomes hot and rises, forming clouds and thunderstorms. The rapid up and down friction of these air masses is what scientists believe cause the funnel-shaped clouds to form, he said.

Although there is documented evidence of tornadoes that have remained on the ground for hours, the average tornado in Michigan remains on the ground only for a minute or so, he told the students.

Just as scientists are not sure why tornadoes are caused, they are not sure why they disappear or why some last longer than others.

Everyone should know the difference between a tornado watch and a tornado warning, because it could save your life.

A watch, Lyons said, is issued by the National Weather Service's headquarters in Kansas, and is issued when the conditions are right for a tornado to be formed, but no tornado has been spotted. It is usually issued for a large area and is in effect for several hours, he said.

A warning is issued by the local weather service when a tornado has been spotted in the area. It is issued for a smaller section and is usually in effect for only 45 minutes, he added.

When a warning is issued, one should take cover immediately in a basement storm cellar. If you're outside, lie down in the lowest place available and stay there until the danger is over. If you're in a car, leave it, and take cover in a building or a ditch.

More interesting facts about tornadoes:

- Tornadoes on water are called waterspouts, and are very rare.

- Tornadoes are the color of the debris they pick up. White tornadoes (which aren't usually very clean, contrary to commercials of old) pick up white debris, and grey ones pick up dark debris.

- There are documented cases of people (other than Dorothy) being carried long distances by tornadoes, and set down with minimal injuries.

- Michigan tornadoes are nowhere near the strength or ferocity of those in Texas, Oklahoma and Kansas, an area known as "tornado alley."

- A tornado touched down in the same city in Kansas, on the same date three years in a row in the early 1920s. (On the fourth year, no one hung around to see if there was another.)

Academy is honored

The Grosse Pointe Academy was one of 13 Michigan elementary schools and one of 287 elementary schools nationwide named by Secretary of Education William Bennett as winners of the 1987-88 School Recognition Program as an exemplary elementary school.

"This recognition verifies our belief that we have long been one of the top elementary schools in Michigan and, indeed, in the nation," said Dr. Sidney I. Dupont, headmaster. The Academy was the only independent, private school recognized in the state.

This national competition among 16,000 public school districts, 20,000 church-operated schools and 1,000 independent schools began with more than 6,000 nominations last fall. The first elimination left 600 schools, of which more than 400 were visited for a one-day evaluation by representatives of the secretary of education's office.

The Grosse Pointe Academy, along with the other schools recognized, will be presented with this prestigious award at a White House ceremony during the summer.

Tooth implants

Dental implants are the latest technology in tooth replacement.

A community education class in this dental alternative will be held on Tuesday, June 7, from 5 p.m. to 7 p.m. at Saratoga Community Hospital.

This free course will be presented by Zenon Kossak, D.D.S., one of southeastern Michigan's authorities on dental implants.

Pre-registration is necessary. Call 245-1555.

Outdoor concert, ice cream social

The annual Outdoor Band Concert and Ice Cream Social, presented by band students from Grosse Pointe North and South high schools, will be held Thursday, June 2, at 7 p.m. on the front lawn of South.

This year, almost 200 students from bands at the two schools will combine to perform the entire concert together as a massed band. The ensemble will play mostly light music, including selections from the "Wonderful World of Disney," "Annie," "Man of LaMancha," "The Wizard of Oz," "National Emblem March" and a collection of jazz standards titled Big Band Showcase.

Conducting will be North/South instrumental music directors Ralph Miller and Ann DiFiore, and South Concert Band Director John Donnellon.

The traditional ice cream and strawberries will be served during intermission and after the concert. Admission is free and the concert will be held in the South gymnasium in the event of inclement weather.

Natural history school

Teachers or scout leaders with a desire to improve their natural history background, or a parent wishing to impart the love of nature to his or her children, can attend Seven Ponds Nature Center's field school.

Adult Natural History Field School will be held Tuesday through Friday, June 7-10, from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. Slide introductions, instructional walks and activities, and a review of available resources will help develop identification and observation skills.

The class is available to anyone 16 years or older. The cost is $20 for nature center members and $25 for non-members. Pre-registration is necessary. Seven Ponds is a non-profit environmental education facility of the Michigan Audubon Society located just west of Dryden.

Canada trip

The War Memorial's annual schedule of theater trips to Canada begins Thursday, June 23 with a day trip to the Huron Country Playhouse for a performance of "A Funny Thing Happened On The Way To The Forum."

Reservation deadline is Friday, May 27 for this popular trip, which will take travelers, via deluxe motorcoach, north along Canada's Lake Huron shoreline.

First stop will be The Thirsty Fox Restaurant for lunch. The rustic English Pub-style atmosphere will help create a carefree mood before the matinee performance in the restored 100-year-old barn that houses the playhouse.

The trip will leave the War Memorial at 9:30 a.m. and return at 7:30 p.m. Cost is $34 per person. Make luncheon choice of fish and chips or ham and cheese quiche at time of reservation. Proof of citizenship is required for all trips to Canada.

For information or reservations, call 881-7511.

Fisher home robbed

Jewelry valued at $350 was stolen from a Fisher Road residence in the Farms Wednesday, May 18, between 1 and 2 p.m. when the resident left.

The thief gained entry to the home through a bedroom window.

An investigation continues.

Grosse Pointe's Greatest

...Garage Sale will be held Sunday and Monday, May 29-30, in the carriage parking garage behind Jacobson's in the Village. Times are from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. and the sale will feature all sorts of treasures from various households, craftspeople displaying their specialties and antiques. The Lake Shore Chorus of the Grosse Pointe Barbershoppers will perform at 11 a.m. Monday, and local cartoonist Arkie Hudkins will sign autographs.

Sponsored by the Grosse Pointe Village Association, the sale raises money to sponsor the Santa Claus Parade held the day after Thanksgiving.

What we're made of

The second installment of "The Grosse Pointe Public Schools — What We're Made Of" will air at 8 p.m. Monday, May 30, on Channel 32. The show will be repeated at 8 p.m. Wednesday, June 1; Friday, June 3; and Sunday, June 5.

The May program, "Chances To Excel," will focus on three extracurricular enrichment programs available to Grosse Pointe public school students — Odyssey of the Mind, Math Pentathlon, and the Fine Arts Festival. Odyssey of the Mind and Math Pentathlon are problem-solving competitions; the Fine Arts Festival is a daylong program of music, art, movement and dance for elementary students throughout the school system.

Interviews with Jane Nutter, regional director of Odyssey of the Mind, John del Regato, originator of Math Pentathlon, and Paula Miriani, one of the organizers of the Fine Arts Festival, will be featured, along with film clips from the three events. Superintendent John Whritner hosts the program, with Corry Gazepis, a student at North High School, and Ashley Moran, a Pierce Middle School student.

"The Grosse Pointe Public Schools — What We're Made Of" is produced under the direction of Julie Corbett, instructional television coordinator, assisted by Chris Brow and David Birnbryer, members of the Grosse Pointe South Television Production Club. Technical assistance is provided by Chuck Saad and Kirk Schmidt, media technicians for the Grosse Pointe Public Schools.

City, Park break-ins solved

A recent string of 11 break-ins in the City and the Park are believed solved with the May 19 arrest of a 26-year-old Detroit man, who police feel was cutting phone lines prior to enter homes.

City Detective Sgt. John Drummond said cooperation with Park police led to the man's arrest. City police issued a search warrant at a Berkshire residence in Detroit which the man was known to frequent.

"We discovered numerous items such as VCRs, silver, business supplies and stolen long guns in the house," Drummond said. "Many of the items were from break-ins in our city."

City police had to deal with a rash of eight break-ins since the beginning of May, and Park police feel they can tie this suspect to at least three break-ins.

Park officials said the suspect was in Wayne County jail on other charges, and had to appear in Recorder's Court on a traffic warrant. He was inadvertently released on his own recognition, otherwise he would have remained in jail.

City police are preparing warrants against the man, for the City break-ins.

He was arrested by Detroit police, who found him in a stolen car, Park officials said.

"It all began with a stolen car from Grosse Pointe found in Detroit," Drummond said. "We found some pawn tickets and were able to track this down."

Drummond said he feels the department will be able to clear all eight burglaries with this arrest.

Assumption Nursery to begin day camp

Assumption Nursery will begin a summer day camp June 20 to continue through Aug. 12 with weekly special interest offerings.

For children 12 months to 2 1/2, and 3 to 6, theme weeks center around Nursery Rhymes, Tenting, "Let's Build Something," Trailblazers, My Five Senses, Music Makers, By the Sea, and Animated Characters. Classes are from 9 a.m. to noon and full day child care is available from 6:30 a.m. to 6 p.m.

Angela Kennedy's Creative Dance classes for 3-5 year olds will be held on Thursdays at 1 p.m. from June 23-Aug. 11. Computer classes for children ages 4-6 sponsored by Computer Learning Paths are available for an eight-week session beginning June 20. Class size is limited to six children.

A kindergarten brush-up course will be offered for children who will be attending kindergarten in the fall. The class will be held from 9 to 11 a.m., Aug. 15-19.

Assumption is now registering for the fall season and offers programs for toddlers, transition, preschool, young fives and kindergarten.

Landscape design

A new offering, Landscape Drawing, has been added to the War Memorial's line-up of art classes. Taught by Carolyn Swift Armitage, the class will meet Wednesdays, June 1-July 20 from 6:30 to 8:30 p.m.

Working on the grounds of the War Memorial, students will explore a variety of landscape elements: light and shade, trees, foliage, sky, water and buildings. Drawings will be done in the students' choice of color or black and white media, including pencil, pastel, ink, charcoal and watercolor.

Class fee is $64 for eight weeks. Advance registration is suggested as class size is limited. Supply list is available at time of registration. For additional information, call 881-7511.

The Assumption Nursery School and Toddler Center is located at 22150 Marter Road. For registration information, call 772-4477.

Few choices for alternative housing

Grosse Pointers don't have a lot of options when it comes to retiring fairly close to home. There's the Whittier in Detroit (fairly expensive) and Park Place in Harper Woods (sliding scale). There are Grosse Pointers at both.

Grosse Pointers also make frequent inquiries at St. Clair Shores' Leisure Mansions I and II, also sliding scale.

"If you don't live in St. Clair Shores, you really don't have a chance," said Housing Director Beverly Oliver. "But we do keep a separate list for non-residents. We have people from Grosse Pointe coming all the time to get on the waiting list. You wish you could help them, but we're restricted — we just don't have the space."

The waiting time for St. Clair Shores residents is three years (longer for outsiders) — for Leisure Manor's very modest apartments. The rent is 30 percent of income and "people with an income of $25,000-$30,000 could find a better place for 30 percent of their income," according to Oliver.

But still they keep applying. There's an eight-year waiting list at Park Place, now owned by National Church Residence and open to anyone. In fact, however, almost all the residents come from the east side of Detroit and the eastern suburbs, or have family nearby.

You have to be 62 to get on the waiting list; statistically speaking, a number of the people waiting will probably die before they get in.

There's no waiting list at Whittier Towers, but you do have to have money. Studio apartments rent for $730 a month; large three-bedroom, three-bath suites are more than $2,000. Not that this is out of market range — it is said that a St. Clair Shores high-rise scheduled for completion in six years will start at $2,000.

The Whittier offers more services than most senior housing. Leisure Manor offers no services; Park Place has a community room and a few activities, but residents are responsible for their own meals. The Whittier has three dining rooms, beauty and barber shops, security guards, valet parking, an activity program, round-the-clock nursing, a library and grocery store.

"Residents don't have to leave the building if they don't want to," said Marketing Director Shirley Vasquez.

A brand-new facility right under Grosse Pointe's nose is the St. John-Bon Secours Senior Community at Warren and Mack. Phase One is expected to open in June and will consist of a 100-bed assisted living residential care area. Still to come are a nursing home (July) and congregate living apartments (1989).

The assisted living studio apartments will cost in the mid-range of market rate, according to Dale Pelton, chief executive officer of the community. That translates to $800-$900 a month. They will offer centralized dining and recreational programs.

Congregate care will cost more. The apartments, with separate bedrooms and kitchen, will offer some central facilities which residents may use — or not. One main meal a day will also be included in the $1,600-a-month rent.

"There's definitely a need for this," said Pelton. "People have to go downtown now — and they don't want to do that."

Pelton has already received 500 inquiries. He said the hospitals are now exploring the possibility of building another project somewhere in Grosse Pointe or St. Clair Shores.

Space at premium; developers circle

Historically, little has been done about senior housing in the Pointes, but suddenly, everyone is interested. As the cities have grown, vacant land is in shorter and shorter supply, so potential developers are in serious competition for what is left.

Rob MacGregor, project manager at The Blake Co., says his company has been looking for suitable property for a year and a half. "The market is certainly there," he said. "When you look at the demographics, it's kind of appalling that there isn't anything here already."

But it's hard to find enough land. The Blake would want several acres to provide for pleasant grounds as well as facilities like a dining room, MacGregor said.

Like other developers, the company would only be interested in market-rate housing. "The demand is out there and would support that," MacGregor said.

The recent announcement by University Liggett School that it plans to sell its middle school property in Grosse Pointe Woods has triggered developer enthusiasm. Board President Eugene Gargaro said inquiries had been received even before the announcement, but that the school is not ready to make a decision.

But rumors fly that every developer on the east side is putting together some kind of proposal, some for reuse of the building, some for its demolition.

"When you get a piece that large, it could become a bidding war," said MacGregor.

Developer Robert Gillette, a Grosse Pointer and principal in American House, a senior citizen housing company, said he will definitely look at the Liggett property. He agreed that it's a hot property, adding that "we're hot developers — it's a perfect match."

He has already put out feelers to the Grosse Pointe schools about buying the administration building on St. Clair, but has had no firm reply. He is working with Frank and Chrystem Piku of Piku Management on the project.

"It would be our fourth school conversion," Gillette said. He said schools lend themselves to conversion.

"The typical classroom is 900 square feet," he explained. "That works for two studio apartments or one one-bedroom apartment."

Gary Gintzig is still mourning the loss of the big Lakeshore estates, any one of which he feels would probably have made a perfect conversion to senior housing. Gintzig, a developer, consultant and principal in the Gintzig Group, is not wasting his time weeping for the impossible, however. He's working on a project that he expects to reach the announcement stage in early summer.

"Property is expensive in Grosse Pointe," he said, "but the depth of the market is so great that the project is feasible."

Gintzig said his project will charge market rates, but that housing need not be super-expensive. "I would not believe there's a great economic need for a sliding scale in Grosse Pointe," he said. "But costs in congregate care are coming down. There are enough out there that there's no excuse for a poorly designed, poorly operated one."

"There are beautiful projects being built that cater to the middle of the road. If you want more services, you pay for them."

Developers have also been interested in Grosse Pointe Shores property. Village Manager Michael Kenyon says he gets calls at least once a month, asking about the vacant land on Lakeshore opposite the Edsel & Eleanor Ford House.

"It would be suitable for cluster housing, but it's in private

See SPACE, page 8A

University Liggett's middle school campus in Grosse Pointe Woods has been the focus of intense competition among developers since the school announced it would be sold. No concrete proposals have been advanced as yet.

Growing old in Grosse Pointe

So long as you keep your money and your health, you're all set. You can retire, keep your big old house, get another one in Palm Springs or Palm Beach, trot back and forth and to Cannes for a break.

But sooner or later, for most real people, either money or health runs out. A partner dies and the zest for the Palms and Cannes just isn't there.

What do you do then? If you live in the Grosse Pointes, you're on your own. You can hire live-in help, and if you can't afford that, you can move. Out of the city you may have lived in all your life, away from your support network, your church, your neighbors, your friends, your shops.

Because there's nowhere to go in Grosse Pointe if you need help with day-to-day living.

Not that some governments haven't tried to help. Grosse Pointe Woods, in particular, has worked to provide the support necessary to allow old people to stay in their homes. There is a home maintenance assistance program, a computerized telephone contact system, meals delivered to the home. Services for Older Citizens (SOC), available to all Grosse Pointers but subsidized only by the Woods, provides everything from exercise classes to bingo to counseling.

But that isn't necessarily enough.

Stories by Nancy Parmenter

What do seniors want?

No comprehensive study has been done to find out what alternatives appeal most to Grosse Pointe senior citizens. Plenty of opinion exists, however.

"I don't think there will ever be subsidized housing in the Pointes," said Jean Rice, a member of Focus on Seniors, the Woods council, SOC and the Woods Senior Citizen Commission.

"The problem is manifested in some other things we've done. For instance, the Woods Compute-a-Care system has the potential for reaching 4,300 homes, but only has 12 participants. In other parts of the country, there are waiting lists. I can't understand why people won't use it — it's a genuine service. You don't have to pay for it..."

"I believe there are a lot of people here who have money, who would go for an alternative way to live, by rolling over their house investment into a condo or apartment."

"The people I've talked to want to stay in the Pointes. Nearby isn't good enough. What they want are the benefits of Grosse Pointe Woods — the park, the senior programs."

"This area seems to attract people interested in the good-life style of living. They're very independent-minded people. As long as they can make it on their own, they will — even when they're past the point mentally of being able to make the decision."

People are going to great lengths to accomplish this, says Ann Kraemer, director of Services for Older Citizens. People are moving in with their adult children and even sharing their homes with strangers.

"I'm seeing two groups — both want to stay (in Grosse Pointe), but one wants to keep the home and the other wants out of the house," Kraemer said. "Income is the key to this, but even people living on Lakeshore are concerned about replacing their house for the price they would get for theirs."

"There are people at all financial levels who are having trouble making these decisions."

That's because the problem is only partly financial. Kraemer spoke of an 80-year-old Grosse Pointe woman in relatively good health, but who couldn't drive any longer.

"She got to feeling unable to stay in her home," Kraemer said. "Every single thing became an issue. When you can't walk more than a couple of blocks and there's no transportation, what can you do?"

The woman looked at assisted living housing in Sterling Heights and Franklin, then chose Ann Arbor for its cultural opportunities.

The problem is compounded when finances enter the picture. Although the number of people in Grosse Pointe with financial problems is no doubt less than in other communities, the problem still exists.

"Anybody who can't afford apartment rent (usually at least $600 in this area) needs a subsidy," Kraemer said. "There are a few people in Grosse Pointe living on $400-$600 a month from Social Security and a small pension. And if there's a medical catastrophe, anybody can get wiped out."

Right now, Kraemer is dealing with five people in that category.

Financial need is a touchy subject. Not one of the people Kraemer is helping was willing to discuss her case with the newspaper, not even anonymously.

"People don't want their situation known," said Rice. "It's embarrassing to them. It's too bad — their only crime is living too long."

"They did everything right. They saved their money and worked for their retirement. They might sell their house, but they have no place to go."

"People get to be very fond of their own cave."

Bogen takes third in library contest

A sixth-grader at Parcels Middle School loves his library card so much that he won third place nationally in the American Library Association's "Why I Love My Library Card" contest.

Marty Bogen's prize-winning poem won first place in the Grosse Pointe Park Library contest before being entered in the nationwide competition. More than 750 libraries participated in the national contest.

Other local contest winners were Heather Hill, a fourth-grade student at Richard School, who won first place in Central Library's contest, and Lisa Wiegand, a third-grader at Mason School, who won first place at the Woods Branch.

Honorable mentions were awarded to Bryan Wride, Steve Fontana and Patrick Cunningham, all students at Parcels.

The three Grosse Pointe winners received stuffed Garfields wearing "I'm a Library Cat" T-shirts.

Bogen's winning entry follows:
*I have a special treasure
That takes me to far-off places.
I learn the customs and about the*

Records, tapes, movies and tools

ULS seniors compile record for admissions

The University Liggett School Class of 1988 has compiled an exceptional record for itself in one of the most competitive years for college admissions.

In an April 21 article, the New York Times reported that the number of college applications in 1987-88 jumped radically for the second straight year. Because of this increase, the Times reported, many American high school students in the top 10 percent of their classes, who had combined Scholastic Aptitude Test scores over 1300, were rejected by selective colleges previously thought appropriate.

ULS's Class of 1988 had no such problems. Twenty-five percent of the 86 students were honored by the national Merit Scholarship Corporation with Commended, Semifinalist or Finalist status. Four ULS seniors are among the 6,000 winners of $2,000 NMSC scholarships awarded this year.

The class's mean SAT verbal score of 552 was above the national mean of 430 for college-bound seniors, as was their mean SAT math score of 569 (national mean: 476).

Based on their SAT scores, grade point averages (mean GPA: 2.89), extracurricular activities and faculty recommendations, the 86 ULS seniors have compiled an exceptional list of college acceptances.

Five seniors were accepted by the University of Pennsylvania; four by Princeton; three each by Harvard, Brown and Columbia; two by Barnard, and one each by Yale, Dartmouth and Cornell. Thirty-two acceptances came from the University of Michigan (including two to Inteflex and several to the honors program), 17 from Michigan State and seven from Kalamazoo College.

Other acceptances to highly selective colleges and universities include: Amherst (1), Bryn Mawr (3), Georgetown (6), Johns Hopkins (1), Northwestern (7), Notre Dame (1), Smith (1), Stanford (1), Tufts (4), Vassar (1), and Wellesley (4).

Student Spotlight

Tom Smith

Each week in this column, we will focus on the work of a student. It can be a poem, a drawing, a short story, a picture of a scientific experiment or a wood-working project, a book review.

The following was written by Tom Smith, a third-grader at Maire School. He is the son of Susan and Thomas Smith of Grosse Pointe Park.

The Rabbit Who Got Caught in a Snow Storm

Once upon a time, there was a dumb rabbit who had no friends. He was not very smart. He was in first grade and he did not pass the Easter Bunny test. So he got held back.

Next year he passed and he was an Easter Bunny. He was a very dumb one. He forgot a lot of houses on Easter.

But as the years passed, he got smarter and smarter. He did not miss any houses. One Easter he got caught in a snow storm. He could not find his way around and they had to cancel Easter that night. So they had Easter on Monday. He did not miss any houses again.

Soon he turned out to be the smartest rabbit in the world. But one day he got too old to be an Easter Bunny anymore. They hired a new rabbit who was very, very dumb. He was the dumbest rabbit in the world. They called the old Easter Bunny to see if he wanted to come out of retirement. So he did. He never retired till he died. Then he was the smartest Easter Bunny in heaven.

Courtney Schafer

The following was written by Courtney Schafer, a third-grader at St. Paul School. The poem was an assignment in "senses." Courtney is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Stephen Schafer of Grosse Pointe Farms.

Mad

Mad is gray,
It tastes like leftover stew.
It smells bad, like garbage.
It looks like a gray cloud.
It sounds like thunder.
It feels rough.

This space is open to any student in the Grosse Pointe public or private school system from grades 1 through 12.

Send your entry along with a picture to Student Spotlight, Grosse Pointe News, 96 Kercheval, Grosse Pointe Farms 48236, or drop it off at the office. If you would like your photo returned, enclose a stamped and self-addressed envelope.

French honors

Summer day camps offered by Living Science Foundation

During the summer the Department of Community Education will co-sponsor a series of eight day camps with the Living Science Foundation.

The "Science Sampler Day Camp" will begin the week of June 27. Each day highlights one area of discovery and covers

Birgbauer earns Spanish scholarship

Beth Birgbauer, a senior at University Liggett School, has been awarded a $1000 college scholarship by the National Spanish Honor Society. Birgbauer, who will attend Princeton University in the fall, is the daughter of Bruce and Anne Birgbauer of Grosse Pointe.

a sampling of activities from each of the in-depth camps to follow during the summer.

The "Science and Nature Day Camp" will begin on July 11, and is one of the most popular of the series.

New for this summer is the "Marine Biology Camp" which starts on Monday, July 18. During this week campers will experience ocean life, including the smell of salt and surf with the Living Science Foundation's new mobile marine study lab.

Also new this year is the "Discovery Day Camp — An Arts and Science Camp" to begin the week of July 25. This emphasizes the science process.

"Animal Safari Day Camp" will begin Aug. 1. Student-explorers will meet crabs from cold arctic waters, birds and snakes from dense steaming jungles, reptiles and plants adapted to desert conditions and kangaroo-like wallaby.

"Air and Space Day Camp" will begin Aug. 8. Students will journey into the skies with the Living Science Foundation's Starlab Planetarium, build and launch their own rockets, build a working model hovercraft and study the mechanics of flight with the help of kits, airplanes and live birds.

In the "I Dig Dinosaurs Day Camp" planned for the week of Aug. 15, children will get the full living picture of dinosaurs.

Last of the series is a new-for-1988 "Backyard Science Camp" to be held the week of Aug. 22. Focus is on the physical processes at work in things you can find around the house.

Designed for children ages 5 through 11, the fee for each week-long camp is $185. Camps will meet from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. daily at Barnes School.

Campers should wear comfortable indoor and outdoor clothing and bring a sack lunch. Snacks will be provided.

A deposit of $100 will hold a place in camp until two weeks prior to the beginning, at which time the $85 balance must be paid.

Call 343-2178 for information. A descriptive flyer on the series is available and will be mailed on request.

Five win state honors

Five University Liggett School students have placed among the top scholars in the state after taking the National Spanish Examination on March 16.

Among first-year students, freshman Greg Sanchez, of Grosse Pointe, was third in Michigan, while junior Rachel Kneeshaw, of Detroit, took fifth place in the state.

Sophomore Michael Coello, of Grosse Pointe, took first place for second-year students in the state of Michigan. Melissa Simon, also of Grosse Pointe, placed fifth in the state.

For fourth-year students, senior Pam Ali placed fourth in the state. Ali, a resident of Port Huron, will attend Princeton University in the fall.

Wick awarded scholarship

Jesse Wick, a senior at University Liggett School, won a $2,000 National Merit Scholarship to attend Northwestern University in Illinois.

Wick is the son of the Rev. David and Patricia Wick of Grosse Pointe.

Of the more than one million American students who entered this year's National Merit competition, Wick is one of only 14,000 finalists nationwide, and one of only 6,000 actual scholarship winners.

There are three categories of the 6,000 National Merit Scholarships: those sponsored by private corporations, those sponsored by the National Merit Scholarship itself, and those sponsored by colleges and universities.

Wick's scholarship is of the third type mentioned above.

He joins fellow ULS seniors Sanders Chae, David Lombard and Jennifer Van De Graaf as National Merit Scholarship winners.

Pranks

Shine said that after the situation at the school library last year, both the administration and the students seemed to have a very strong feeling against pranks.

He said that breaking into the school to do pull a prank is wrong, no matter what the prank.

"What is a prank?" he said. "You would have to tell me what the students did, and I would make up my mind using my value system. Breaking into a building or going up on the roof where someone could fall and injure themselves? No. Giving a teacher a gag gift — depending on the gift — probably."

Shine said that perhaps administration officials have cultivated the tradition of student pranks through benign neglect. He, too, said that it is not fair to lump a group of students together by calling a deed a senior prank.

"I do not condone any kind of pranks because they get out of hand," he said.

So far this year South has not experienced any pranks, and Shine said that security guards have been hired to watch the school for the next several weeks.

"We announce it so the kids understand," Shine said. "It helps protect the taxpayer's property, but there is always the potential that this becomes a challenge (to the students)."

Shine said he doesn't find any kind of prank humorous or creative.

"There are a lot of things kids can do that are bright and creative," he said. "Putting a car on the school roof is dangerous. If someone were to fall off the roof and be killed, we would then bring our hands and ask, 'How did this happen?' It's just better left not done."

Pedro Arango, upper school principal at ULS, said he couldn't comment on the recent incident at the school, but in general, he feels that pranks occur because young people have a need to express their high feelings.

"Sometimes this is anger and sometimes it's just giddy excitement," he said.

Arango said ULS has also hired a security guard to patrol and protect the school.

He said some pranks are well-received, because they are witty or inventive.

"It is the prank that causes us to look at ourselves, society or the school in a way we haven't before," he said. "We laugh because of the shock of recognition. "But from a school administrator's standpoint, there is no such thing as a good prank. They are disruptive and almost always involve some sort of clean-up."

Arango added that there is always the chance a prank will inspire competition from other students to top it, and that students can get caught up in a prank.

"There is a danger that once a prank begins, judgment can get questionable," he said. "The prank may go far beyond that which the students intended."

Grosse Pointe Superintendent John Whritner said that when the actions of students endanger property or individuals, the school district must press charges. Then a situation can arise where the student might affect his career or jeopardize his immediate future.

"Many of these can easily go beyond childish pranks," Whritner said.

Kastran said that he couldn't give a list of pranks that would or would not be acceptable, but if he had a choice, he would rather see kids turn their energy into more positive outcomes.

"You have to try and show some sensitivity to adolescent behavior," Kastran said.

Hill merchants pitch in for limo service

By Ronald J. Bernas
Staff Writer

If you saw a beautiful white stretch limousine around the Hill during the past few weeks and wondered if there was anyone important in it, there was: Hill customers.

A group of Hill merchants found a way to bring visitors from the Junior League Designer's Show House to the Hill and not have them worry about finding a parking space.

At the suggestion of some Hill Association members at one of its recent meetings, 16 stores donated funds and hired a limo and a driver to shuttle visitors to and from the Hill and the Show House. At the end of its second week, however, there was no tally of people who availed themselves of the free service.

"There's just no parking on the Hill and the philosophy behind the limousine was that if the people from out of town came to the Hill to shop and drove around and didn't find a parking place, they would go somewhere else," said Sandy Gillespie, one of the organizers.

"This was a way of keeping them here."

Sue Adelberg, another organizer, said, "It was a way to introduce people to the Hill who have never been here before. It was also kind of exciting for them to get a ride in a limo."

"The Hill has gotten a lot of negative attention lately because of the parking situation," said another organizer, Kathie Harness. "It was a positive way to get people thinking about the Hill.

"Unfortunately, I don't think we do enough public relations for the Hill," she added.

Harness said the driver of the limousine made the trip special for the visitors by talking to them and telling them which shops to go into and where to look for certain items.

"The people who came in really loved it and thanked the Hill immensely," Gillespie said.

The service was stopped after eight of the 16 funders decided not to continue it for the rest of the month, but organizers termed it a big success.

Swimming, tennis lessons rescheduled

The Grosse Pointe Park Recreation Department has rescheduled swimming and tennis lessons to coincide with the local schools' summer break. The following reflects the dates for each session. This replaces the schedule printed in May 19 issue of the Grosse Pointe News.

- First session: Monday, June 20-Friday, July 1
- Second session: Tuesday, July 5-Friday, July 15
- Third session: Monday, July 18-Friday, July 29
- Fourth session: Monday, Aug. 1-Friday, Aug. 12 (tennis only)

All times of classes will remain the same as previously printed. The classes held during these sessions include all tennis and swimming lessons, Basic Rescue and Water Safety, and Advanced Lifesaving. The swim-team schedule will remain the same as printed in the previous article.

Correction

The Grosse Pointe Historical Society operates out of Poupard School, not the War Memorial as was reported in the May 19 issue of the Grosse Pointe News.

Summer hours

The Harper Woods Public Library will change to summer hours Friday, May 27. The library will be closed on May 28-30. Summer hours are Monday-Thursday 9:30 a.m. to 8 p.m. Friday, 10 to 5 p.m.

Gehrke inducted

The late Hans Gehrke, a Grosse Pointe home builder, was inducted into the National Housing Hall of Fame during the National Association of Home Builders' recent spring Board of Directors meeting.

The National Housing Hall of Fame, located at NAHB's Washington headquarters, was established 12 years ago to honor home builders and others who have had outstanding, lasting contributions to housing America.

Gehrke, who died earlier this year, played a central role in providing financing for development in the Detroit area for more than 50 years. He joined First Federal Savings and Loan in 1937 as an appraiser in the mortgage finance department and in 1979 rose to the institution's top position of chairman of the board and chief executive officer. Active in community and civic affairs, he also held leadership positions in a number of service organizations.

Annual canine carnival

The fifth annual "My Dog's Better Than Your Dog" competition will be held at the War Memorial Sunday, June 5 from noon to 2 p.m.

This all-breed fun event is a perfect opportunity to show off your favorite pooch. First, second and third place ribbons will be given in such demanding categories as youngest dog, oldest, smallest, largest and most unusual breed. There will also be winners named in a dog/owner look-alike event, cutest mutt competition, friendliest pet event and more.

Emcee for the day is Mark Weber, War Memorial President, who will be ably assisted by a panel of judges made up of War Memorial board members and community dignitaries.

There is a $1 entry fee per dog; advance registration requested. The event is open to the public at no charge. Pop and ice cream available at a nominal cost. For additional information, call 881-7511.

JEFF CARROLL

Jeff has been a managing partner of the Jim Saros Agency since 1985. He has continually strived to be a real estate professional since his affiliation with our firm in 1979.

His real estate education has included obtaining a graduate of the Real Estate Institute designation, as well as continuing education classes in Real Estate Investments and Broker Practices & Principles.

His community activities include coaching baseball for the neighborhood club girls teams and also sponsoring his team financially. He has also been the company coordinator for setting up autograph sessions and meetings for the youth of Grosse Pointe with professional baseball players.

Jeff is an extremely hard worker and came to the Jim Saros Agency after owning his own home improvement company. Thus, his knowledge of construction is very valuable to himself and his clients.

We are proud to have an associate who, not only is knowledgeable in his field, but also has a great attitude toward what a client deserves from a Realtor.

Jeff is a shining example of the type of Realtor our company wants representing us — one who truly cares about his clients needs.

So if you're looking to buy or sell a house or building... deal with a proven professional... Jeff Carroll.

Forum to offer support for cancer survivors

By Ronald J. Bernas
Staff Writer

Due to new medical techniques and new drugs being tested, the number of cancer survivors is growing, and with them, new concerns related only to cancer survivors and their families.

Under a new definition of cancer survivors — encompassing all people who have been diagnosed with cancer, to those who are undergoing treatment, to those who have been disease-free for five years or more — they number more than 5 million and it is expected they will reach 6.2 million in the next few years.

As if living with cancer is not challenge enough, cancer survivors are finding themselves discriminated against when they return to the work force, are passed over for promotion and face not having health benefits provided for them by their employer.

Harper-Grace Hospital, under the direction of an oncology task force, is sponsoring a one-day forum to address these concerns and help cancer survivors deal with the challenges they face.

Ann Cracchiolo-Caraway, of Grosse Pointe Woods, is a member of the task force, and one of the planners of the June 18 workshop. She said the time is right for a workshop.

"This is an issue that's relevant not only to the cancer patient, but to every one of us, because chances are everyone has a family member, or a friend or knows someone who has cancer, and that number is growing," said Cracchiolo-Caraway, an oncology case manager at Harper-Grace.

Ann Cracchiolo-Caraway

More than 50 percent of those diagnosed with cancer are surviving and living with it, she said, and with new treatments and early detection, that number will grow.

"There is a stigma attached to cancer survivors," Cracchiolo-Caraway said. "People don't seem to realize cancer is not contagious."

There is the feeling among many survivors that when they enter the 'healthy world' again, they will always live with the puzzle piece of 'cancer survivor' attached to them." She said it extends not only to those who are undergoing treatment, but also to those who are considered cured, which means those who have been disease-free for five years.

In addition to the emotional stigmas associated with cancer, such as fear of recurrence and the effects the treatments have on their bodies, for example, hair loss and sterility, both temporary and permanent, she said, economic concerns are also entering the picture.

Upon entering the job market again, many cancer survivors face discrimination, dismissal, are passed up for promotion and have their benefits cut because of high medical costs for those with cancer, she said. Studies have shown that some companies actually had policies which said they should not hire cancer survivors.

Many also feel what has been termed "the locked-in syndrome." They are hesitant to leave a job because they fear they are uninsurable and will not receive benefits at their new position or with a new company, she added.

Attached with the stigma of cancer is the idea by certain employers that those with the disease are often absent from work, have lower productivity, and file a higher percentage of medical claims, but studies have been done as far back as 1980 which indicate cancer survivors produce more, have lower absenteeism and fewer medical insurance claims.

"I think it's because they feel they have to prove to themselves and others that they are as good as everyone else," Cracchiolo-Caraway said. "They have a renewed sense of living, and it shows through their outlook on life and through their work."

There are currently bills pending which would make it illegal to withhold benefits, not promote and generally discriminate against cancer survivors, both at the state and national levels, she said.

With the rise in cancer survivors comes a greater awareness and education about cancer patients and more active participation by the survivors and their family and friends in the treatment and recovery process, she added.

"Cancer survivors are learning to ask questions, and they and their family and friends have become an active part of the medical team," Cracchiolo-Caraway said.

Also, with the growing number of cancer survivors, there comes an increase in support groups and programs for cancer survivors and their family and friends. Everything from support groups to intensified weekend retreats for this population are springing up everywhere, Cracchiolo-Caraway said.

For more information, check with your local hospital.

"This population is increasing," she said, "and there's a need for this kind of forum. We need to re-educate the public. There's a lot we can learn about life from cancer survivors."

At the Harper-Grace-sponsored forum, titled "You Can Survive: Living With Cancer," health care professionals and other experts will provide information on the social, legal and economic needs of those living with a history of cancer. Cancer survivors will also share their experiences.

The forum runs 8:30 a.m. to 1 p.m., Saturday, June 18 at the Southfield Civic Center. Cost is $15. For reservations and more information, call the hospital at 745-8902.

Police arrest tire slashers

Both Park and City police believe that the arrest of four juveniles May 13 has solved a recent wave of tire slashings in both cities.

Park officials said that six cars in their city were slashed overnight May 12-13.

City officials arrested four suspects who were spotted running through yards by a patrol unit.

The tire slashings occurred on St. Paul, Audubon, Whittier, Grayton, Lakepointe and Kensington.

Foster homes needed

Judson Center of Royal Oak needs families to consider opening their homes to children whose family problems preclude them from living in their own homes.

Foster families of all religious faiths, racial and ethnic backgrounds are sought. Foster care families are licensed by the state of Michigan and are reimbursed for their services.

A pre-service foster parents training session will begin June 1 at 7 p.m. Pre-registration is required. For more information, call 443-5000.

Visit historic Grosse Ile

Due to the popularity of the War Memorial's day trip to Grosse Ile, a second date, Wednesday, June 22, has been scheduled.

Travelers will depart at 9 a.m. aboard a deluxe motorcoach for a trip downriver to the island community. After guided tours of the old railroad depot and the Customs House, there will be stops at Westcroft Herbal & Flower Gardens and St. James Episcopal Church to view its Tiffany glass.

Lunch on the island at The Hungry Crab will conclude the activities before the Return to the War Memorial at 4:30 p.m.

Fee is $25 per person and includes transportation, guided tour and lunch. Make reservations early to avoid disappointment. For further information, call 881-7511.

AN ORDINANCE TO AMEND SECTION 22-17 OF THE CODE OF THE CITY OF GROSSE POINTE PARK.

THE CITY OF GROSSE POINTE PARK ORDAINS:

Section 1.

That portion of Section 22-17 of the Grosse Pointe Park City Code relating to the addition of Section 5.15(a)(3) of the Uniform Traffic Code as adopted by the City of Grosse Pointe Park is amended to read as follows:

(3) Except in a prosecution relating solely to a violation of section 5.15(2), the amount of alcohol in the driver's blood at the time alleged as shown by chemical analysis of the person's blood, urine, or breath shall give rise to the following presumptions:

(a) If there was at the time 0.07% or less by weight of alcohol in the defendant's blood, it shall be presumed that the defendant was not under the influence of intoxicating liquor.

(b) If there was at the time in excess of 0.07% but less than 0.10% by weight of alcohol in the defendant's blood, it shall be presumed that the defendant's ability to operate a vehicle was impaired within the provisions of section 5.15(b) due to the consumption of intoxicating liquor.

(c) If there was at the time a 0.10% or more by weight of alcohol in the defendant's blood, it shall be presumed that the defendant was under the influence of intoxicating liquor.

Section 2.

This Ordinance shall take effect on June 2, 1988.

Historic Punch reopens as office, retail complex

A dedication for the newly remodeled Punch and Judy Building was held last night in the building's center atrium.

Sponsored by Robert G. Edgar and Richard S. Crawford, partners in the Punch and Judy Realty Co. which owns the building, and their tenant, Brooks Brothers, the celebration served to show off the building as well as mark the first six months of operation.

Brooks Brothers opened for business Nov. 7, 1987, and to date, is the only retail tenant in the new building.

With almost half of the office and retail space leased, Edgar said it was time to invite city officials, Hill business owners and prospective tenants to see what the building has to offer.

Construction on the former Punch and Judy Theater began in 1986. With a total of almost 30,000 square feet, it ranks with the largest office and retail buildings in the Pointes.

One of the highlights of the building is the glass-capped atrium that rises the full three floors from the Fisher Road entrance.

"The decor has a hint of Art Deco, highlighted with the glass enclosed elevator and a fountain," Edgar said.

Still searching for a retailer to complement the upscale Brooks Brothers clothiers, Edgar said the retail space can be designed and constructed to meet the needs of the tenant.

"We are being selective in who we choose," he said. "We want a client who will be here for years and one who will complement the other businesses on the Hill."

About 200 guests visited the building during the three-hour celebration.

Mack gets special attention

The Grosse Pointe Business & Professional Association of Mack Avenue held its annual beautification project — Brooms and Blooms — on Mack Avenue May 14.

This year the area worked on was between Maryland and Nottingham, on both sides of Mack, where the groups provided large flower barrels, top soil and flowers for business people to plant in front of their stores or offices.

Members Karen Warren, Philip Andrews, Jeanne Robbins and Jim Rocker formed teams to plant flowers, as did the owners of Sarah's Flowers, Maryland Beverage, Cusworth Electric, Baskin & Robbins, Colony Shoe Repair, Eastside Cab and Marge's Bar. A group of young people from the Warren-Conner Coalition helped man the brooms, rakes and rubbish bags, and Gail Kaess and Helen Geisbuhler helped pass out the flowers.

Bob Mowbray, of Village Locksmith, and Don Jensen, of The Arrangement, saw that the barrels and dirt were in place and Bill Lauppe, of Detroit Automotive Parts, and Al Snella, of S&S Dental Lab, shopped for and delivered the flowers.

When all the flowers were planted, the workers were treated to pizza and pop donated by Little Caesar's and Maryland Beverage.

The project is one of the many projects of the business association that works to make Mack Avenue a pleasant and viable place to do business.

The next project will be the annual fireworks display during the July 4 weekend.

Tourism record predicted for state

The Memorial Day holiday weekend is expected to launch a summer tourist season which should be about four percent above a year ago.

The travel season is already off to a strong start as AAA Michigan reports lodging bookings up five percent in the state for the first four months of 1988.

Additionally, state park campground reservations are up 14 percent. Sixty-seven percent of the private campgrounds recorded an increase last year and they expect that trend to continue this summer.

Motorists should log a record 865 million miles on state roads this Memorial Day holiday, 45 million more than last year, ac-ording to the Michigan Department of Transportation. The 78-hour holiday officially runs from 6 p.m. Friday (May 27) through midnight Monday (May 30).

Last Memorial Day holiday, 15 persons died on state roads compared to 16 the year before and 23 in 1985. Ten 1987 victims had safety belts available but only two people were buckled up.

State Police have allotted 1,500 additional hours of patrol time to Operation CARE (Combined Accident Reduction Effort). Also, State Police patrol cars will travel with headlights on this holiday to remind motorists to buckle up, reinforcing the "Safety Belts — a bright idea" campaign.

Orten honored by medical alumni

The Wayne State University School of Medicine Alumni Association has named James M. Orten, Ph.D., as the 1988 recipient of the Lawrence Weiner Award. The award, which recognizes distinguished service of a non-alumnus, was presented at the Medical Alumni Reunion Dinner May 14, at the Radisson Hotel in Southfield.

Orten, 83, cited for his "commitment to Wayne State University School of Medicine as an educator and a scientist," joined the WSU faculty as a professor of biochemistry in 1956. He was director of graduate affairs at the school from 1971-75, and presently is a professor emeritus. He was named honorary assistant dean of graduate programs in 1975.

Orten earned his doctorate in 1932 from the University of Colorado School of Medicine, and was a research fellow at Yale University from 1932-37. During his career, he has been granted numerous awards and recognitions. He has held office in many professional and honor societies, and has published five books and more than 100 original articles and abstracts.

The Weiner Award was established by the school of Medicine Alumni Association to honor non-alumni who have contributed significantly to science or medicine.

Orten is a resident of Grosse Pointe Farms.

Park development named

David G. Miles and Beachum & Roeser said that the office development in the City of Grosse Pointe Park, selected by the city council and the Downtown Development Authority, will be named The Pointes Office Centre.

Miles said plans were being prepared and construction will begin in late summer.

The Pointes Office Centre, located at the corner of Westchester and East Jefferson, will consist of two buildings of approximately 4,000 square feet and 7,000 square feet.

Travel books available

Travelers bound for Europe can plan ahead by ordering tour books from AAA Michigan Travel Agency which provides motoring and walking tour maps and guides to camping areas plus bed and breakfast inns.

The easy-to-read guides — compiled for novice and frequent travelers by AAA and the Automobile Association of Great Britain — sell from $2 for walking tour maps of major European cities to $19.95 for "Secret Britain," a guide takes readers to the country's hidden corners.

Travelers planning to drive Europe's winding, scenic roads can benefit from "Motoring Europe," which includes fuel facts, conversion tables and special tour routes.

The "Big Road Atlas Europe" and the "Big Road Atlas Britain" detail points of interest and information on weather and international road signs.

Outdoors and camping enthusiasts will find the "Camping and Caravanning in Europe" guide useful, with a description of 4,000 campsites in 19 European countries.

For those seeking honey accommodations, the "Bed and Breakfast in Britain" and the "Bed and Breakfast in Europe" books can guide travelers to quaint farmhouses, guesthouses and inns.

"Britain for Free" lists more than 1,000 cost-free sites.

The books can be ordered from AAA Michigan by dialing 335-1100 in metro Detroit and 1-800-AAA-1116 elsewhere in Michigan.

Fifth grader Paul Kowalski, 10, models a clay mask he made himself.

Second graders Nicole Rondini, 7, and Justin Kawa, 7, check out the fourth grade's recycled art city.

St. Paul's seventh graders produced clay pots and above, pen and color examples of the "Elements of Design." This is the work of, among others, young artists Erin O'Connor, Patrick Helminck, Catey Kotz and Matt Stentz. And at right, assistant principal Shirley Batche and fifth grader Derek Meier, 11, view a display of clay masks and collages.

You've got to have art!

St. Paul Grade School was living proof of that last week when students in grades kindergarten through eight exhibited their artistic efforts.

The Grosse Pointe Farms school was a miniature Detroit Institute of Arts for three days, May 18 through 20. And there was something for everyone: drawings, paintings, printmaking and textured collages, recycled art and ceramics.

The exhibit was directed by art teacher Halyna Konopada.

Here are the mediums in which each class worked:

The kindergarten made drawings of birds and flowers. First graders used tempera to create butterflies and birds. Second graders filled three rooms with prints they made, as well as textured collages and sun designs in mozaic.

Large decorated birds and self-portraits were the third grade's contribution to the fair. And fourth graders used recycled items to create cities, army bases, buildings and designs. Fifth graders created clay masks and textured and winter collages.

Working with ceramics and with the concept of elements of design, one sixth grade section made three dimensional figures. The other section created plaster sculptures and acrylic paintings.

The junior high effort resulted in large collages. Seventh graders experimented with clay pots, pen and color drawings and charcoal. Eighth grade students created self-portraits, portrait drawings of class notes, drawings of fruits, Indian sand paintings, "seasons" designs and clay faces.

Carnations — and their incarnations — in history

By Ellen Probert
Special Writer

A visit to the Detroit Institute of Arts is always a delight. But there is always so much to see that it is hard to focus on detail unless one thinks of just one aspect, or exhibit, at a time. Have you ever looked at the paintings with just flowers in mind and observed how many paintings of any period incorporate flowers in their composition? Or, focusing on just one species, how many times carnations, or pinks, are used?

Fifteenth century paintings by Carpaccio and van der Goes almost always have a vase of carnations somewhere and in the 16th century, Holbein frequently used them. Often, a young man or woman is portrayed holding a carnation, which in medieval times was a sign that the person was betrothed since the carnation was the symbol of romance and engagement.

Portraits of young people holding carnations are common until the late 18th century, and they are always shown somewhere in paintings of weddings.

Literature is full of carnations, too. There are many references to them in Shakespeare's plays, although at that time they were called "pinks," or "gillyflowers," but even earlier, in the time of Chaucer, they were called "sops-in-wine," and figure in the Canterbury Tales.

Edmund Spenser linked carnations with drinking and merriment in the Shepherd's Calendar where he calls them gillyflowers, coronations and sops-in-wine all in the same paragraph.

In earlier centuries, varieties of carnations called "ruffling robin," "purplish murrey," "great tawny," and "Master for Empress Josephine, have many varieties.

In the 20th century, carnations took on a new dimension, playfields will soon be enhanced by blossoming gardens. The boundaries of the park, marked by groups of boulders at the corners, have been transformed into rock gardens with new and interesting plants.

Various garden clubs and civic organizations have made this project their current enthusiasm, but more help is needed. If you'd like to be part of this community effort and meet a lot of fellow garden enthusiasts, call Dick Huhn at 343-9050.

The Trial Gardens at the Grosse Pointe War Memorial were planted this week by members of 14 area garden clubs and will soon again be the fragrant and beautiful place which has attracted thousands of visitors during the past 30 years.

The Trial Gardens, supported by the DePetris Memorial Fund of the Grosse Pointe Garden Center, will be included in the array of gardens offered this year by the Grosse Pointe Garden Council on its annual Garden Tour, set for June 24, 25 and 26.

The Gardener's Shed

Tuggy's princess," were popular. Modern carnations usually have names like "Doris" or "Elsie" and reading the list sounds rather like roll call in a girls' school, a far cry from yesterday's "lusty gallant" or "Bristol blush."

Many famous people in history have loved carnations. The Prince de Conde, imprisoned in the Bastille during the early 17th century, passed the time by growing carnations on the windowsill and when Marie Antoinette was a prisoner, messages were smuggled to her in carnations.

It was in the early 18th century that pinks or "coronations," reached a level of popularity that has never been surpassed before or since, and florists' clubs abounded. The most famous of the carnation clubs was founded at Paisley, England, in 1782 and the fields of carnations surrounding the town were legendary. In the 19th century, at the height of the fashion for Paisley shawls — made there in imitation of the beautiful shawls imported from Kashmir — the factory workers held competitions in raising the most beautiful carnations.

Napoleon loved pinks and the gardens at Malmaison, created becoming the official flower for Mother's Day in 1907. In the flower calendar, white carnations are the symbol of pure and ardent love.

Carnations are used in the manufacture of the liqueur Chartreuse and are widely used in the making of perfumes and pot-pourris. They can be an exotic ingredient in cooking and can be used in salads, jellies and jams, desserts and sauces.

You may find carnations among the floral and herbal offerings at the Grosse Pointe Garden Center's mini-fair on June 10 at the Grosse Pointe War Memorial. This annual membership event will feature a lecture by herbal expert Marilyn Hempstead of Fox Hill Farm at 10:30 a.m., followed by a gourmet picnic basket lunch and an opportunity to browse among the many booths of herbal treasures at the membership mart. Reservations are necessary. For more information, call the Garden Center at 991-4594.

Baker Street

"Baker Street," a musical mystery adapted from the Sherlock Holmes stories, will be the final show of the Grosse Pointe Theatre's 40th anniversary season. Performance dates are Tuesday through Sunday, May 31 through June 5 and Tuesday through Saturday, June 7 through 11 in the Grosse Pointe War Memorial's Fries Auditorium. Curtain time is 8 p.m. Tuesday-Saturday; 7 p.m. Sunday. Tickets are $9 and may be obtained by calling the GPT ticket hotline at 881-4004. Group rates are available for Tuesday performances through June 7. The War Memorial will offer candlelight buffet dinners prior to most performances; call 881-7511 for more information.

Fashion show/dance will benefit scholarship fund

On Saturday, May 28, Rhonda Kidd-Love will host a fashion show and dance to benefit the scholarship fund at University Liggett School (ULS) which honors her son's memory.

The Fashion Show and Dance will take place at the University of Detroit School of Law, 651 E. Larned, Detroit, from 8 p.m. to 2 a.m. Fashions will be provided by Fashion of Distinction. A light buffet will be served. Music will be furnished by a deejay and a live band, "Johnny Kidd and Fifth Avenue." Tickets, at $15, are available from Kidd-Love, 834-2069; Shirley Kidd, 934-8324; or Sandra Reed, 834-5005. All contributions will directly benefit the educational fund at ULS.

Christ Church Antiques Show helps choirs make a joyful noise

A favorite with collectors and dealers alike, the fourth annual Christ Church Grosse Pointe Antiques Show returns Saturday and Sunday, June 4 and 5, in the gymnasium of Grosse Pointe South High School, 11 Grosse Pointe Boulevard (adjacent to the church). Entrance fee is $4 at the door. Ample free parking is available.

The show will open with a patrons preview Friday, June 3, at 7 p.m. Those interested in becoming a patron — and enjoying the champagne reception and preview — should call 885-4841 from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. weekdays.

Doors will open to the public at 10 a.m. Saturday, June 4 and noon Sunday, June 5 and remain open to 6 p.m. each day. A Victorian Tea Room located in the undercroft of the church building will operate each day of the show, offering tea and homemade scones with Devon cream and jam.

Quality dealers — limited to 39 from 10 different states — will feature furniture, silver, linens, jewelry, china, glass, quilts, toys, folkart and prints from workshops in England and the United States.

The major portion of proceeds from the Christ Church Antiques Show will go to the support of the choirs of Christ Church.

Since 1930, the Christ Church Choir of Men & Boys has been a fixture at the 11:15 a.m. service Sunday mornings. The choir consists of 26 choristers ages 8 to 16 and 16 men. The choir is trained to sing in the English Cathedral tradition, a style with a distinct head tone known for its special sweetness in the higher pitches.

In 1981 and again in 1985, the choir enjoyed performance tours of Europe. Highlights of the 1981 tour included singing Evensong in St. Paul's Cathedral, London, before 3,000 people the day after the wedding of Prince Charles and Lady Diana Spencer.

The 1985 tour included a stay in Paris where the choir sang in Notre Dame and the American Cathedral, followed by 18 days in England performing at Salisbury Cathedral, Christ Church Oxford, Westminster Abbey and in residence as deputy choir of Yorkminster Cathedral.

Christ Church's Choir of Girls provide music for the 9:15 a.m. service Sundays. During a 1984 tour of Europe, the girls sang in the cathedrals of Venice, Florence and Siena, as well as St. Peter's Basilica and the Sistine Chapel.

Last year, the Choir of Girls and the men singers undertook an extensive, 2,700 mile performing tour of Scandinavia.

All of the choirs are under the direction of Frederic DeHaven.

The Antiques Show Committee includes Mr. and Mrs. William Clay Ford, honorary chairman; and Mrs. Joseph N. Jennings Jr., and Mrs. F.W. McMillan II, co-chairmen. Others are Mrs. John A. Bryant II and Mrs. George Sutton, artwork and graphics; Mrs. Maurice Bossler, dealer hospitality; Mrs. George H. Zinn Jr., mailings; Mrs. Bruce D. Birgbauer, patrons; Mrs. Richard Best, phoning; Mrs. John Albrecht and Mrs. George Hawkins, plants; Mrs. Dennis Day, Gail Reagan, Mrs. Roger Fitch, and Mrs. Charles Kinnaird, preview party; Mrs. Richard Braun, preview party floral donations; Mrs. Timothy Fox and Mrs. Robert Malecek, program advertising; Mrs. Dewey Norton, Mrs. Robert Johnston and Mrs. George Sutton, program production; Mrs. A. David Jones, Mrs. Gaylord Creedon and Mrs. Zinn, publicity; Mrs. Charles Huebner, tearoom; and Mrs. Fred Lounsberry, volunteers.

Turn back the clock:

On Wednesday, June 1, the Renaissance Center will commemorate the completion of its $27 million, three-year redevelopment with a "turn of the century" gala to benefit the Detroit Institute for Children. All ticket donations from the benefit are earmarked for the Institute, Michigan's largest out-patient care facility for disabled youngsters.

"Turn A Chapter In Detroit's History . . ." will feature live music from the 1900s, period automobiles and decorations and life-size vignettes of old Detroit. Guests will enter the Westin Hotel lobby and make their way to the atrium, where they will be entertained by turn-of-the-century performers and music as they wind their way to more than 10 food and beverage stations.

Honorary committee members

include Mr. and Paul D. Alandt, Mr. and Mrs. Ronald K. Dalby, Mr. and Mrs. Frank A. Germack Jr., Mr. and Mrs. Alfred R. Glancy III, David and Roberta Lawrence, Hon. and Mrs. Peter E. O'Rourke, Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd A. Semple, Michael and Nancy Timmis, and Mr. and Mrs. Louis A.

Weil III.

Tickets are $75 per person and are available by contacting Julie Buttler at the Detroit Institute for Children, 832-1100, ext. 278.

Black-tie benefit:

More than 1,300 people attended Michigan Cancer Foundation's sixth annual dinner May 6 at the Westin, raising in excess of $300,000 for the institute's cancer research, prevention and patient programs.

"Under the Moonlight," was the most successful MCF dinner to date, according to dinner chairmen Gene and Marcia Applebaum. MCF chairman of the board of trustees David Hermelin said that "The dinner's overwhelming success is due, in large part, to the hard work of many individuals, most notably chairmen Don and Jody Petersen."

Included in the evening's program was a presentation of MCF's Distinguished Service Award to WDIV-TV anchor Mort Crim of Grosse Pointe.

Now that's romantic:

We searched and searched, thought for days and finally came up with a spot for this announcement submitted to us last week, (which, as you'll see, defies categorization):

"Catherine Mary Nilan (Gillis) of Harper Woods and Paul Henry Kerby of Grosse Pointe, announce their engagement. Summer nuptials are planned. Through the grace of God, these two sheep were reunited with the flock at the 20th reunion of the 1967 graduating class of St. Paul High School. The children of Nilan and Kerby — Paul Jr. and Stacy Kerby and Renee, John and Joseph Nilan — are joyful.

"And the Vicar vows to vacate the Vatican and venture to their village for a visit . . . if he's invited."

Here are those two crazy kids, circa 1967:

The Pastor's Corner

The community

By The Rev. John F. Child
Our Lady Star of the Sea Church

In the Roman Catholic tradition, last Sunday was celebrated as the Feast of Pentecost. The Pentecost event, itself, is recorded in the first 11 verses of the second chapter of Acts. The marvelous transformation that took place in the faith life of the 12 was the direct outpouring of divine life and strength that the Spirit gives to those who faithfully love Jesus.

In a very real sense, that event marked the fulfillment of Jesus' promise that he would not leave them orphans, but would send the Holy Spirit who would make all things clear to them. It would be the gift of the Spirit that would make them strong and fearless in preaching the "Good News." They would be instructed in everything and would be reminded of all that he had told them. The resulting transformation surprised even the disciples themselves.

The full impact of Jesus' command to teach all nations, to baptize in the name of the Father, the Son and the Holy Spirit began to dawn upon them. Their first attempt was amazingly successful. Some 3,000 were added that day. Peter's challenging words to his astonished listeners caused them to devote themselves to the apostles' instruction and the communal life, to the breaking of the bread and the life of prayer.

The community was taking form. Reading on in the book of Acts, that history of the infant church, that "gospel of the Holy Spirit," one finds that Jesus' promise of divine guidance and protection was realized. So too, was his promise that his followers would share in his cup of sorrow. Victories were hard won and often paid for by the blood of the martyrs. But for 2,000 years, the church has survived. Each time that the world seemed to threaten to overcome, the power of the spirit prevailed, for nothing is impossible with God.

As the descendants of those first disciples, as the recipients of their gospel message, we, the church of today, can count on the presence of that same Spirit to guide and direct, to strengthen and encourage, to work signs and wonders for all to see.

We, the modern community of believers, are called to be, like the community of old, of one heart and one mind. Each step toward Christian unity is the work of the mercy and love of God. Aided by the ever present Spirit, we who profess one faith, one Lord, one baptism, must strive harder and harder to find one church where we can be one people as we are called to be.

Wayne State University's Rev. Arnold will receive award

The Rev. Duane W.H. Arnold

The Rev. Duane W.H. Arnold of Grosse Pointe is a recipient of a Governor's Minuteman Citation during Michigan Week festivities, May 20-28. Michigan Week is sponsored by the Greater Michigan Foundation.

The Rev. Arnold currently serves as the Episcopal chaplain at Wayne State University. He holds degrees and diplomas from the University of New York, Concordia Theological Seminary, the University of Cambridge, England, and completed his Ph.D. research at St. Chad's College, the University of Durham. Arnold was appointed as an Officer of the Order of St. John by H.M. Queen Elizabeth II in 1987. Before becoming an Episcopal priest, Arnold was minister at First Congregational Church in Detroit, where he promoted the cause of historical preservation in the city. Working with the Michigan Council for the Arts, Arnold promoted new touring productions in the church for low-income neighbors. He has lectured on local church history and has started the renovation and restoration of historic St. Andrew's Memorial Church on the WSU campus. Arnold will give the invocation at the 1988 Minuteman Awards ceremony at Lansing's City Hall today, May 26.

Church Events

St. Joan of Arc spring concert

The St. Joan of Arc Chorale and the St. Joan of Arc Handbell Choir will present a spring concert at 7:30 p.m. Sunday, June 5, at the church, 21620 Greater Mack in St. Clair Shores. The groups will be directed by Pasquale Pascaretti.

The concert will feature Mozart's "Coronation Mass." Admission is free.

St. Sharbel ethnic festival

St. Sharbel's Catholic Church (an extension of St. Maron Church) will host a "Multi-Ethnic Goodwill" festival Friday through Monday, May 27 through 30, at the church, 31601 Schoenherr in Warren.

The event will feature games, rides, prizes, music, dancing and more. For more information, call 824-0196.

'Oh, Jonah!' at Peace Lutheran

Peace Lutheran School will present "Oh, Jonah!" at 9 a.m. Wednesday, June 1, and 11 a.m. Sunday, June 5, at the church, 15700 East Warren Avenue at Balfour in Detroit.

The community is invited to attend this musical adaptation of the biblical story of Jonah told with a sense of humor.

The very young

Twenty-five three- and four-year-olds of Christ the King Lutheran Preschool of Grosse Pointe Woods learned about handicapped children and then had an opportunity to help them during their MDA HOP-A-THON the week of March 14. The children learned that many children have illnesses that make it difficult to walk, run and hop as they can.

Each child then got pledges from family and friends and then hopped for two minutes while their teacher, (above) Dana Vanick and teacher-aide Sherry Schultz, counted the number of hops each child did. The children raised over $800 for MDA. This was enough to allow for the purchase of a hydrolic lift for a child with MD.

Shecky Greene, Gaylords headline SJH Guild's fundraiser

Guild dinner co-chairman Gerald Peck (left) accepts keys to a 1988 Eagle Premier from Kenneth G. Meade, who donated the car as grand prize for the June 2 event.

Comedian Shecky Greene and the singing-comedy duo The Gaylords will headline the 28th annual St. John Hospital Guild Dinner on Thursday, June 2, at the Weston Hotel in Detroit's Renaissance Center.

Cocktails will be served at 6 p.m., followed by dinner at 7 and entertainment at 9 p.m. Tickets are $175 per person. Proceeds will go toward the purchase of a kidney lithotripter to benefit Michigan Mobile Lithotripsy, a shared entity between St. John Hospital in Detroit, Oakwood Hospital in Dearborn and Sparrow Hospital in Lansing.

Grand prize for the evening will be a new 1988 Eagle Premier, courtesy of the Meade Group and Kenneth G. Meade. Twenty other prize-winners will take home a 20-inch RCA color TV.

Not long ago, surgery was the only treatment for patients with kidney stones that could not be passed from the body normally. With the recent medical breakthrough of Extracorporeal Shock Wave Lithotripsy, a shared entity between St. John Hospital in Detroit, Oakwood Hospital in Dearborn and Sparrow Hospital in Lansing.

High pressure shock waves are directly focused on the kidney stone. Without harming the body's normal tissue, the shock waves gradually disintegrate the stone into sand-sized particles, which can be passed in the urine.

The newer units, like the one whose purchase is being aided by proceeds from the Guild's annual dinner, have some marked differences from the lithotripter currently in use. Patients can often use these new units with little or no anesthesia and there is no water bath tub needed to transmit the shock waves. In addition, the newer models can be used for some patients with severe cardiac difficulties because of the method by which the shock waves are triggered.

The lithotripter is also capable of assisting in other urologic procedures such as cystoscopies, where a stone is pushed from the bladder into the kidney, then fragmented by shock waves.

The St. John Hospital Guild was organized in 1948 by the Sisters of St. Joseph and business and community leaders to raise money for the opening of the hospital.

Since its beginning, it has raised more than $2.5 million for hospital equipment and programs. In 1986, the Guild received a testimonial of appreciation from the American Hospital Association's Volunteer Excellence program.

Guild president is Gennaro DiMaso, M.D., of St. Clair Shores. Sister Verence McQuade, S.S.J., is Guild director. Gerald Peck of St. Clair Shores and Lawrence Scott of Harper Woods are co-chairmen.

Entertainment chairmen are Kenneth Adler and Leo Kalyvas of Grosse Pointe Shores. Dinner chairman is James Scott of Grosse Pointe Shores. Other chairmen include Robert LeFevre of Grosse Pointe Woods, door prizes; Steve Flemion of Grosse Pointe Woods, publicity; Donald Mattes of Grosse Pointe Woods and Herbert Schervish of Grosse Pointe Shores, reception; Byron Perry of Warren, programs; Robert Valice, D.D.S., reservations; Richard Filippelli of St. Clair Shores and Clifford Carpenter of Grosse Pointe Park, transportation; and George Cuetter of Grosse Pointe Woods, ticket sales.

Ticket sales captains include John Adamo of St. Clair Shores, Benjamin W. Capp of Grosse Pointe Woods, John Cuetter of Mount Clemens, DiMaso, Jack Liang of Grosse Pointe, Alexander Nick of Grosse Pointe Shores and Charles Stumb of Grosse Pointe Woods.

For more information or reservations for the June 2 gala event, call the Guild office at 343-3674 weekdays from 8 a.m. to 4:30 p.m.

Show House beats Mother Nature

The assignment was simple: make the already-lovely grounds of the 1988 Junior League of Detroit Designers' Show House even more beautiful with spring flowers and lots of green growth. And do it despite Mother Nature's chillier-than-usual springs so well-known in Michigan. Not so simple.

With the help of professional landscape companies from the metro area, the JLD's landscape committee — led by Liz Brown and Martha Cameron — began planning and pruning back in February to create a beautiful setting to be viewed from every window of the Show House at 315 Washington Road in Grosse Pointe.

Dogwood, rhododendron and azaleas grace the front of the home, courtesy of Greater Detroit Landscaping of Warren. Ore Creek Farm of Fenton designed and provided materials for the backyard herb and perennial gardens. Horticultural Services of Rochester planted the bed of flowering shrubs which skirt the back of the house. And colorful flowers planted by Junior League members enhance an inviting grillwork of winding stone and brick pathways which lead visitors through the gardens to a fountain patio. Show House patrons can enjoy a Garden Cellular Tea Room luncheon in this setting.

The efforts of the JLD's landscape committee were so successful that one visitor from the west side of the state tried to hire co-chairs Brown and Cameron to landscape his home.

The JLD sent its thanks for the donations and support of nurseries, landscape, fencing and wood suppliers, pool services and "lawn pet" shops from metro Detroit to Imlay City.

This is the last chance to share the ideas and inspirations — and get a peek at the lovely landscaping — of Show House '88, which closes Monday, May 30. Tour hours are 11 a.m. to 3 p.m. and 6:30 to 8:30 p.m. weekdays and 11:30 to 3:30 p.m. weekends. Tickets are available at the door.

Junior League of Detroit Show House '88 landscape co-chairmen Liz Brown and Martha Cameron got the jump on spring.

Navy League Ball

Finalizing plans for the Detroit Women's Council of the Navy League's 38th annual Navy League Ball, set for Saturday, June 11, at the Lochmoor Club, are, left to right, chairman Mrs. James Glander of Huntington Woods, Mrs. Jack Qualey of Grosse Pointe and Eileen Doyle of Harper Woods, the ball's official hostess and president of the Women's Council of the Navy League.

Cocktail hour begins at 6:30 p.m., followed by a color guard ceremony and dinner. Dancing will be to the Jack Qualey Orchestra. Tickets are $40 per person and may be obtained by sending a check made out to Detroit Women's Council of the Navy League of the USA to: Eileen Doyle, 20862 Country Club Drive, Harper Woods, Mich., 48225.

Assisting the committee are Mrs. John Lavrakas of Birmingham, in charge of mailing invitations to members and guests; and past president Mrs. Anthony Kunert, door prizes.

The Navy League Ball is held to raise funds to assist Sea Services and Sea Cadets with their programs in this area. The Detroit Women's Council of the Navy League was founded by Mrs. Thomas K. Fisher of Grosse Pointe. Recently, the Council "adopted" the U.S. Coast Guard Cutter "Bristol Bay," bringing goodies and necessities to the men on board the craft, berthed at the Coast Guard Station at the foot of Mt. Elliott.

Village Garden Club

The Village Garden Club will meet on Friday, May 27, at the Grosse Pointe Hunt Club. Mrs. Carolyn Stekete, hostess, will be assisted by Mrs. Lou Guler, Mrs. Virginia Ladd and Mrs. Ellen Quinlan. Following the luncheon, Betty Frankel will present the program "What's Wrong With Any Landscaping?"

Progressive Artists' Club

The next meeting of the Progressive Artists' Club, 7:30 p.m. Friday, May 27, will feature a watercolor demonstration by Betty Tenney. The group meets at the Spindler Recreation Building, 194 at Stephens in East Detroit.

Windmill Pointe Garden Club

The Windmill Pointe Garden Club will meet at the Lakeshore Road home of Pat Erikson on Wednesday, June 1. Out-going president Doris Woerner will conduct the annual meeting. She will turn the gavel over to new president Joyce Blumenstock. Following the business meeting, Eleanor Wickson will serve a summer luncheon.

G.P. Woods Garden Club

Grosse Pointe Woods Garden Club members will meet in the dining room at Hudson's for a noon luncheon Tuesday, June 7. Luncheon will be followed by a business meeting.

CREW

CREW, Commercial Real Estate Women, Inc., will hold a general meeting Wednesday, June 8, in the St. Clair Room of the Renaissance Club. Cocktails will be served at 6 p.m., followed by dinner at 6:30. Speaker will be Harriett Saperstein, head planner for Detroit's Parks and Recreation department. Her topic will be "The Art of Networking."

Cost is $40 (members only). Pre-paid reservations must be made by June 3. For more information, call Kathleen Valenstein at 462-2020 or Barbara McGee at 262-1831.

Metropolitan Rose Society

The Metropolitan Rose Society will meet at 2 p.m. Sunday, June 5, at Olivet Lutheran Church, 19521 Van Dyke in Detroit. The public is invited; admission is free.

The program will feature a slide presentation titled "Old Garden and Shrub Roses Belong in Your Garden, Too."

Suburban Women Golfers

The Suburban Women Golfers had an optional day of golf at Partridge Creek. New members were welcomed. The club's 1988 rosters were distributed and members were able to sign up for opening days, May 4 and 11. Members who were unable to attend these dates are asked to contact Marion Bockstanz or Marie Sabol for tee-times.

Rehab Institute Auxiliary will raise funds with party

Dr. and Mrs. Kim K. Lie will host the Rehabilitation Institute Auxiliary's annual benefit cocktail party on Sunday, June 5, from 5 to 7 p.m. in their Windmill Pointe Drive home.

Guests will include auxiliary members, friends and staff of the Rehabilitation Institute. Monies raised from the event will be donated to the Special Services Department of the Institute to purchase assistive listening devices to be used by hearing impaired patients.

As a member of the Detroit Medical Center, the Rehabilitation Institute is the largest non-profit adult rehab facility in the Midwest.

Auxiliary president Mrs. Joseph C. Smith of Grosse Pointe Park is the 1988 recipient of the Institute's Volunteer of the Year Award. Benefit chairman Mrs. Thomas F. Long Jr. of Grosse Pointe Park is the Auxiliary of the Year.

Anyone interested in becoming an auxiliary member, learning more about the Institute or in donating to the benefit may call the community relations department at 745-9850.

Fox Creek Questers

The Fox Creek Chapter of the Questers will spend the morning of June 2 touring the Commandant's House and the grounds of Fort Wayne. A picnic lunch at the Grosse Pointe Shores home of Rita Brennan will follow. Mrs. Brennan's daughter, Fox Creek Chapter member Theresa Klassen, will be co-hostess.

The Rehabilitation Auxiliary members involved in planning the June 5 benefit cocktail party include, from left, Mrs. Joseph C. Smith, Mrs. Kim K. Lie and Mrs. Thomas Long Jr.

SOMETHING FOR EVERYONE

FIRST OFFERING

JUST IN CASE this new listing hasn't already been sold you had better check it out. In the Farms on CLOVERLY ROAD appears a four bedroom Colonial with three full baths and a first floor laundry. Of course it has a den, family room with fireplace and enclosed screened porch. Now you see it, now you don't. Unless you call we're sure you won't.

FIRST OFFERING

MERRIWEATHER ROAD IN THE FARMS. This classic center entrance Colonial features three bedrooms, one and a half baths, attractive kitchen with breakfast bay, library, formal dining room and hardwood floors.

FIRST OFFERING

THERE'S MORE THAN ONE SHOWHOUSE on WASHINGTON ROAD. directly across the street from this year's Junior League Showhouse is a magnificent Georgian Colonial which is in Bristol condition. You will be impressed with what you see from the curb, but the interior is even more pleasing. A separate carriage house with apartment is at the rear of the grounds. Truly a property of quiet elegance.

ONE OF FEW ESTATE PURCHASES AVAILABLE in Grosse Pointe. Located on the shore of Lake St. Clair, this larger home and grounds encompass an entire city block and therefore offer subdivision opportunities. In addition to the main house is a two story structure which was a private home now being used for garage and storage. The swimming pool and pool house is located between the main house and breakwall.

AUTHENTIC FRENCH COUNTRY HOUSE on a dead end street leading from Jefferson to the lake. Located on an acre of land this property is surrounded by brick walls and hedges. Many rooms have a view of the lake, swimming pool, carriage house, and six fireplaces.

MAGNIFICENT GEORGIAN COLONIAL. designed by Robert Derrick, architect of Henry Ford Museum. Marble floor entrance hall, four fireplaces, center circular staircase, four master bedrooms, two additional bedroom suites and an apartment over the four car heated garage should garner your attention.

BEAUTIFULLY MAINTAINED ENGLISH HOME located very near the Three Mile Park and Lake St. Clair. When you enter this home you will appreciate the owner's concern for near perfect maintenance. Natural woodwork and floors throughout the main floor. Bright music room off living room, family room, formal dining room, updated kitchen and butler's pantry, four bedrooms and three baths on second floor. Beautiful landscaping.

NEW CONSTRUCTION. Have a brand new home for yourselves! This four bedroom, two and a half bath home is ready for your inspection. Beautiful oak cabinet kitchen (14x19 feet), family room, dining room with natural floors, lovely ceramic tile flooring in certain areas of home.

CHARMING DUTCH COLONIAL ... extensive remodeling in this older four bedroom, three and a half bath home. Features include garden room, glassed and screened porch, family room, large kitchen, second floor laundry room in excellent location near Village. PRICE REDUCED.

MUIR ROAD in the Farms ... and favorably priced in the seventies. This older home is awaiting your creative touches to reach its full potential. Spacious living room, cheery kitchen with plenty of eating space, large den and bath on first floor.

CLASSIC AND SPACIOUS ... This center entrance Colonial features four bedrooms and two baths on the second floor and two bedrooms and bath on the third. Updated kitchen with breakfast room, formal dining room, large Florida room as well as bright family room.

ST. CLAIR SHORES CONDOMINIUM. Updated condominium in Lake Shore Village. Two bedrooms, newer carpeting, revitalized bathroom.

A RARE FIND IN THE FARMS for $118,900. This four bedroom, two bath home with newer kitchen and decorating is definitely not a "drive-by!" Be sure to make an appointment to view this home.

EAST DETROIT Three bedroom, one and a half bath ranch with year-around Florida room, large country kitchen.

ANOTHER CONDOMINIUM IN ST. CLAIR SHORES Rent this almost new condominium for one year and decide whether to buy then. Living room with fireplace, large eat in kitchen, den, two bedrooms and two baths.

DETROIT - Two bedroom brick home just waiting for your purchase. A real "dollhouse" perfect for the first home buyer.

DETROIT - Attractive bungalow featuring three bedrooms, wonderful updated kitchen, refinished hardwood floors, newer roof.

Architectural Diversity As the great variety of home sizes and styles suggests, growth has continued slowly over many years. It continues even today. Old estates are subdivided for building contemporary homes, making the mansions that still survive (and many do) all the more treasured by their owners and tradition-minded residents. At the same time, the area includes homes of just about every style and size — from townhouses, two-family units and other small homes to gracious English Tudors, colonials, executive mansions, contemporary ranch styles and a variety of modern designs, including condominiums.

This diversity has helped make Grosse Pointe attractive to all who value well-maintained quality which far exceeds its price.

THE JIM SAROS AGENCY

JEFF CARROLL

Jeff has been a managing partner of the Jim Saros Agency since 1985. He has continually strived to be a real estate professional since his affiliation with our firm in 1979.

His real estate education has included obtaining a graduate of the Real Estate Institute designation, as well as continuing education classes in Real Estate Investments and Broker Practices & Principles.

His community activities include coaching baseball for the neighborhood club girls teams and also sponsoring his team financially. He has also been the company coordinator for setting up autograph sessions and meetings for the youth of Grosse Pointe with professional baseball players.

Jeff is an extremely hard worker and came to the Jim Saros Agency after owning his own home improvement company. Thus, his knowledge of construction is very valuable to himself and his clients.

We are proud to have an associate who, not only is knowledgeable in his field, but also has a great attitude toward what a client deserves from a Realtor.

Jeff is a shining example of the type of Realtor our company wants representing us — one who truly cares about his clients needs.

So if you're looking to buy or sell a house or building... deal with a proven professional... Jeff Carroll.

Symptoms of stress — they aren't limited just to younger adults anymore

"What's wrong with me? These headaches won't go away and I don't know what it's like to feel good anymore."

Older adults with these symptoms may be suffering from the effects of stress. According to Christopher Goldsby, M.D., of Grosse Pointe Farms, director of family medicine at St. John Hospital, stress is often the cause of many older adults' health problems.

"In extreme cases, stress can lead to high blood pressure, peptic ulcers or severe depression.

But by identifying what causes stress and by learning to cope, a person can keep the effects of stress from going that far," Dr. Goldsby said.

He identified some stresses that frequently affect older adults:

- loneliness or fear of being left alone;
- the death of a spouse or friends;
- fear of one's own death;
- fear of illness and/or losing independence;
- financial worries;
- worry about not having enough to do.

"In addition, older adults also face every day stresses such as personal relationships or family problems, inflation, political problems or fear of war," Goldsby added.

"Most people worry about too many things, causing themselves to feel stressed. Always thinking the worst may indeed make the worst things happen."

Goldsby suggested these techniques to help older adults cope with stress:

- Exercise.
- Get involved in group activities such as card clubs, community center functions, church or volunteer programs.

- Eat a nutritious diet.
- Tell a friend or family member what's bothering you.
- Practice relaxation techniques such as deep breathing, exercising or taking a hot bath.

The Social Work Services Department at St. John Hospital is available for information on stress and its effects. For more information, call 343-3684.

Volunteers

NEGC's series for seniors, families continues at Saratoga

"Family Relationships in Later Life — An Intergenerational Approach," will be presented at 7 p.m. Tuesday, June 7, at St. Joseph's Home, 4800

Cadieux. This is the second in a series of programs for seniors and their families which is sponsored by Northeast Guidance Center and St. Joseph's Home.

Carol M. Zielinski, MA, CSW, will conduct the program. She will discuss relationships between members of multi-generational families. The major emphasis will be on positive interaction between family members, based on communication, understanding and cooperation. Zielinski is director of the Retired Senior Volunteer Program and co-author of "As Parents Grow Older." The program is part of the Lambert C. Snyders Memorial Series, honoring Burt Snyders, former director of administration at Northeast Guidance Center.

The program is free. For reservations, call St. Joseph's Home at 882-3800 or the NEGC community relations office at 824-8000.

Driver improvement course offered

Saratoga Community Hospital will offer "55 Alive/Mature Driving," a driver improvement course for adults 50 and over, on Monday and Wednesday June 6 and 8 or Wednesday and Thursday, June 22 and 23 at the hospital, 15000 Gratiot Avenue between Seven and Eight Mile roads.

Cost is $7; checks should be made payable to the American Association of Retired Persons. All classes meet from 9:30 a.m.

to 2:30 p.m. and include a lunch break.

The class was developed by AARP to meet discount requirements of insurance carriers in several states. Michigan does not provide for this discount, but a law is pending before the state legislature. Participants who complete the full eight-hour classroom study will receive a certificate. Pre-registration is necessary and may be made by calling 245-1555.

AARP chapter will meet June 13

Chapter 3430 of the American Association of Retired Persons (AARP) will meet at 1:30 p.m. Monday, June 13, at the Neighborhood Club, 17150 Waterloo in Grosse Pointe. Cost for a picnic lunch is $3.50; bingo is $1. All future meetings will feature blood pressure testing with the assistance of St. John Hospital staff. There is no charge. Members are asked to remember the group's on-going project, gifts for veterans.

For more information, call H. Masten at 884-2013.

It's a tragedy

No sooner do the Red Wings tarnish their season does the University Liggett School tennis team carry a tarnished reputation as well.

It's not only the tennis team, but the entire school that is paying for the antics of a few. Senior pranks, understandably, are a part of the final days as a student. Things begin innocently, but more often than not they turn to tragedy. In the case of five current University Liggett School students a night of jokes and fun turned sour. The intentions weren't to bring ULS to its knees, but before the five current students and one 1987 graduate could think of that, ULS was placing band-aids over its scars.

Three of the students reprimanded for being a part of the chicken/manure incident were tennis players. This is a blow in itself. I understand that the regional title and the bid to win another state tennis title aren't something to be concerned with at this point, but you can't ignore the fact that the other players were devastated by the dismissal of three of the top five players on the team. It isn't justice to the kids on the team, but for the school, the "separation from the school" (what the committee called its judgment) was quite warranted.

I'm sure the kids who remain on the team have got to gather around one another and give an effort to pick up the slack. When a team loses three quality players it's difficult to maintain a shattered nucleus. But, knowing the dedication and willingness these kids have to get a third-straight tennis title, it wouldn't surprise me if the players' presence isn't missed.

See FULTON, page 2C

State title in jeopardy

Pulling a prank affected ULS, but how will the boys' tennis team cope with it?

By Rob Fulton
 Sports Editor

A senior prank at University Liggett School sent the school spinning on May 6, but on the tennis courts, the move may cost the school a state tennis title.

ULS, which holds the nation's top honor for winning 25 state titles, is trying to defend its boys' 1987 Class C-D title, but it could prove quite elusive after three of their top five players were dismissed from the team.

The three players were not identified by ULS sources, but it was learned that two of them were seniors and one was a sophomore. On May 6, ULS officials discovered manure spread in a hallway, on a desk of a science teacher, in a few files, and blood from chickens was also found in the hallway.

Six people, one who was a 1987 ULS graduate, were held responsible for the prank and reprimanded by the school's Disciplinary Committee on or about May 10.

After several days of review, the committee handed down stiff penalties, but felt that they were very fair in their decisions.

"We reviewed it very carefully and we're satisfied with what we did," said Ted Whatley, ULS headmaster. "We did what we could do and have no regrets."

Whatley claimed the damage was "none of any consequence," but did state the incident drew much attention.

"The total effect got a lot of attention," he said. "It (the combination of manure and chickens) was a mess and it needed to be cleaned up."

The committee "separated" the seniors from ULS. Two senior tennis players are not allowed to participate in commencement ceremonies, couldn't participate in a senior project, and were banned from campus.

A third senior, who does not play tennis, was given the same punishment as the two senior tennis players. The sophomore tennis player was hit with a three-day suspension, and a fourth senior was barred from school, but is able to walk through commencement exercises. All three tennis players were also dismissed from the tennis team.

"It makes it difficult to compete, but we're still going to participate," said Bob Wood, ULS athletic director and tennis coach. "It severely hurts our chances to win another regional title and a state championship, but we feel we still have an outside chance."

"Each one of our kids will have to raise his game a level or two," Woods added.

The tennis team has several holes, but Wood is confident he has the players who can fill them.

"Coach Wright (Chuck Wright) and I are still working our kids very hard," said Wood. "In my 23 years, we have always had the kids give it all they've got and I don't think this will be any different. We can't say if it'll be enough right now, but we're hopeful."

Wood, who is obviously very close to the situation as a coach and administrator, spoke on behalf of the team and stated, "It's devastating, but we're doing everything we can to go on and do what we can."

ULS, which has won the regional tournament two consecutive years, made a bid for it this past weekend, but finished behind Detroit Country Day School (No. 2 in C-D). Despite finishing second, the Knights still qualified for the state tennis championships in Holland on June 3-4.

The entire school dealt with the initial shock and must still carry the burden of the prank.

"It's very painful for everyone," added Whatley. "Everyone is quite put down by it and everyone shares it in some way."

'Coach Wright and I are still working our kids very hard . . . In my 23 years, we have always had the kids give it all they've got . . . We can't say if it'll be enough right now, but we're hopeful.' — Bob Wood.

Boating

By Cristina Staats

Be prepared

The marinas are almost full now, and more boaters are out enjoying the pleasant weather we've been fortunate enough to experience lately.

Memorial Day weekend is one of the busiest boating holidays of the season, along with the Fourth of July and Labor Day. It is time to remind ourselves of a few safety precautions that could mean the difference between a minor mishap and a disaster.

We need to remember that although the weather is warming the water does not change temperature as fast. Lake St. Clair is still very cold. In fact, from a survival point of view, all water is cold, even during the hottest days of summer. But water temperatures below 70-degrees as they are now, are very dangerous because loss of body heat is very rapid. We need to stay out of the water and avoid sudden immersion. If there is a risk of falling overboard, then we all need to be mindful of how to keep ourselves on the boat, and in the event that the worst does happen and one of our party falls over, how to get that person back on board as quickly as possible. So we need to practice our man-overboard maneuvers. We need to make sure all instructions are clear to our guests and crew. We must think ahead and anticipate what problems may arise. How, for instance, would a 125-pound wife get her 200-pound husband back on board a cabin cruiser? What if he was hurt?

We need to have life-jackets for all passengers. Not only is it common sense, but it is the law. Guests need not wear them, but they must be accessible. Life jackets, or personal flotation devices (PFD's) must be checked for wear and tear each year. Old and worn PFD's need to be replaced. These life saving accessories are expensive, and many a boater has put off replacing them when the time came. But the cost is minimal, considering the alternative. Children and small adults need to have PFD's that are appropriately sized. A life jacket that is too big may not help at all. There are even life jackets for babies and pets!

Special rules of conduct and dress aboard a boat need to be reviewed with guests. There are reasons that leather soled shoes, for instance, are not appropriate for boating and should not be worn, and glass containers are unwelcome on many boats. Children running and forgetting to hold on need to be discussed as well. Although everyone is reluctant to talk about such delicate matters, proper operation of the head (toilet) should be discussed in order to avoid costly and unnecessary repairs, not to mention the embarrassment to a guest. Marine heads do not operate as smoothly and easily as the shore-side variety.

We need to review proper operation of the VHF radio. There are subtle changes from time to time that each skipper needs to be aware of. This year channel 70 is no longer available to pleasure crafts for voice communication. It is now reserved exclusively for a new form of digital communication utilizing the latest technology. If you should forget and attempt to use this channel you may be subject to a fine from the FCC.

We need to be mindful that we share the water with others. Courtesy and consideration are key components to a safe and enjoyable outing.

By reviewing a few safety rules each year, everyone can have a pleasant boating holiday. The old adage still holds true — "An ounce of prevention is worth a pound of cure."
Have a wonderful Memorial Day!

Bob Kaiser soars to second straight win

Bob Kaiser, racing the Swiftsure Motor Yachts 38-foot Cougar catamaran, roared to his second straight overall win in as many races as he covered the 150-mile course in Fort Meyers in an average speed of 97 mph.

Kaiser, a Grosse Pointe, battled 95-degree temperatures and foggy conditions to outlast "Special Edition" by three seconds.

"It was very hot and balmy and it was foggy the whole race," he said. "The water was as smooth as glass, but we didn't want to choke off the engines. In that kind of heat you have got to let the engines breathe."

Kaiser, who claimed it was a "cat and mouse game with navigating the fog and calm waters," was the first finisher of 68 boats.

"This was a great race," Kaiser, 31, said. "Errol (throttleman Errol Lanier) and I were leading most of the race, but from nowhere came Special Edition. We were both running in front at times, but then we opened it up to win."

Kaiser, who almost didn't take the checkered flag because of a discrepancy at the end of the race, was glad to see victory number two.

"At the end of the race they said I jumped the start of the race and was penalized three minutes," Kaiser explained. "I knew I didn't so I got some of the tapes and showed the judges and they awarded me first place."

Kaiser will look for victory number three when he races in New Orleans on June 4.

"I'm looking forward to it as usual," he said. "The boat doesn't have a flaw right now and everything is going well. I only hope we can continue to do very well."

Saratoga holds exercise classes

Exercise can work wonders for the body and mind, and it doesn't have to be strenuous.

Saratoga Community Hospital is offering "Exercises for the Young at Heart," a free community education class for older adults, on Thursday, June 2 from 4 to 4:45 p.m. This easy-going session of sit-down or stand-up exercises can get participants started on the road to good health.

After the class, people who attended may wish to eat dinner in Saratoga's Rossini dining room.

Pre-registration is required. Call 245-1555 for reservations and more information.

Lupus Foundation golf benefit

The Michigan Lupus Foundation will be holding a golf benefit on June 10 at Hickory Hollow Golf Course in Mount Clemens.

Two cars will be given for a hole-in-one contest. Other prizes to be offered include a two-night weekend package at the Westin Hotel and a Vic Tanny membership.

Registration fee is $75. Each participant will play 18 holes of golf, will be provided with continental breakfast, buffet lunch, a sit-down dinner, live entertainment and a golf cart.

The golf benefit will help fund research to further attack the chronic, inflammatory disease that can be life threatening.

Anyone wishing to sponsor a hole should call 771-7810. Many tee times are still available.

North advances despite South protest

By Rob Fulton
Sports Editor

Some people may protest the fact that North's baseball team beat South, 2-1 in a pre-district qualifying baseball game last week, but others may simply take it in stride.

South coach Dan Griesbaum is taking it in stride, but a few steps are rougher than others. Griesbaum, who isn't crying foul over the loss, protested the game in the seventh inning after being disturbed by a few calls and a rule interpretation that was not known by the umpires.

"I can take a loss if a guy hits a home run, or we lose on a single, but it's difficult to take a loss when the decisions of the umpire take away the opportunity to win a game," said Griesbaum. "I know a couple calls were judgment calls, but one call that may have proved costly was a simple rule interpretation."

Griesbaum was referring to a call in the top half of the seventh with his team trailing, 2-1. Nick Saros walked to open the inning, and Marty Saad followed. Saad was allegedly hit by a pitch that bounced in front of the plate and was not awarded first base. Saros went to second and remained there after the umpire ruled the pitch a wild one. Griesbaum argued that Saad should be awarded first base even if the ball hit the ground first, and the umpire vetoed that call; forcing Saad to bat and later striking out.

"To lose is one thing," said Griesbaum, "but to have it contributed to negligence by an umpire for not knowing a rule is too bad."

It was clear that Griesbaum wasn't disappointed about losing to North, a team the Devils knocked out of postseason play one year ago as Marcus Wysocki beat North's Rick Regalado, 4-1.

"I am very happy for Frank (North coach Frank Sumner) and his team," said Griesbaum. "I hope they can continue on in the playoffs and keep the district and regional trophies in Grosse Pointe." South took both trophies last year and advanced to the state's final four.

The protest was not upheld by the Michigan High School Athletic Association. Therefore, North will face Lake Shore on May 27 in a pre-district game. North will host the game at 3:30 p.m.

A tournament manager was not on hand at the game, which many people thought was not appropriate, but according to the MHSAA, a tournament manager does not have anything to do with protests in a pre-district qualifying game, or a pre-district

ULS sports

Barnes qualifies for state meet

For the University Liggett School girls' and boys' track and field teams, the highlight of the Class C regional meet was sophomore Mike Barnes' gritty performance in the 800-meter run.

Barnes slashed more than five seconds off his own school record as he ran a 2:00.48 at Detroit Country Day School. Barnes will head to the state meet in Alma on June 4.

Also winning a medal for ULS was Alexis Collins, who tied for fourth place in the high jump (4-10). Laura Rizzo captured a fifth place with a discus toss of 96-10. Shannon Burrows was fifth in the 3200 run with a personal-best time of 12:38.13.

Besides Barnes' 800, three other school records were set. Junior Paul Brigolin ran a school-record time of 10:24.86 in the 3200 run. Rizzo added half a foot to the girls' shot put record with a throw of 29-1. The girls' 400 relay team of Angela Mitchell, Holley Ellis, Rae Goolsby and Tonya Clawson sprinted to a 54.06.

Other personal-bests for the girls were recorded by Ellis (100 meters), Mitchell (200), Diann Imbriaco (800), and Lynn Sinkel (800). For the boys, personal-bests came from Dan Shanley (400), Eddie Patten (100), Derek Van De Graaf (110 hurdles) and Tarik Lester (long jump).

Soccer

game. According to MHSAA rules, the umpires should have stopped the game and made a ruling immediately.

Wysocki, a senior right-hander, and Regalado, a senior left-hander are two of the state's top pitchers. This was only their second meeting in two years and it should rank as a game to remember. Regalado gave up three hits, walked four and struck out six, while Wysocki yielded only two hits, walked two and fanned 10.

"Both pitchers threw well," said Sumner. "I think Regalado was sharp and had a very crafty performance. He was in the game the whole way. Wysocki is a great competitor and he crossed us up more than once."

Regalado picked up his sixth win in eight tries, and Wysocki was tagged with only his third loss of the year.

"Marcus was outstanding," said Griesbaum. "You can't take anything away from his performance. He pitched well enough to win."

Neither pitcher made many mistakes as they hurled their way into the record books. Regalado gave up two hits to South's Mike Paull and one to Bryan Jones, but Wysocki's two mistakes made the difference.

North's Steve Neiman (.456, 35 RBI) took advantage of Wysocki's first mistake and drilled a 3-1 pitch over the left field fence to give the Norsemen a 1-0 lead at the end of one frame.

"Marcus made a mistake and if you make a mistake to a good hitter, he's going to hit it out," said Griesbaum.

After two scoreless innings, South tied it in the fourth, but had potential to do more damage.

Paull doubled and Jones followed with a walk. On the next pitch, North's third-baseman Jason DeYonker was handcuffed on a ground ball and fell to the ground as the ball scooted into left field. As he proceeded to get to his feet he and Paull collided, causing Paull to stay at third base, as well as causing conflicting reports.

"It was clearly interference but neither umpire called it," said Griesbaum. "Mike should have been awarded home and everyone else should have moved up a base."

Paull later scored on a bases-loaded walk, but that wasn't enough.

"Even though he scored on the walk, the whole situation was different from that point. We should have had two runners in scoring position, but we didn't."

"From what I saw, Jason tried to get up and the runner was breaking for third base," said Sumner, "and it just so happened that they both ran into one another."

In the top of the fifth and the score tied (1-1), South made a base-running mistake that took them out of another potential big inning.

Paull moved Doug Lucas, who walked, to third with his second hit of the game and as the throw went to third, Paull broke for second. Regalado, backing up the play, snagged the overthrown and drilled a strike to Dan Unger at second to nail Paull.

"That was a big out for us," said Sumner. "That just goes to show you how much Regalado was in the game. He definitely helped his own cause."

In the bottom of the fifth, Marty Pochmara took care of Wysocki's second mistake by cranking a home run and giving North a 2-1 advantage headed into the final two innings.

With momentum on its side, North sent the side out in order in the sixth, but it wasn't easy. DeYonker leaped high into the air to snare Jones' line drive. Kevin McCarron went deep up the middle from his shortstop position and made a major league play to cut down Matt Montagne, and Regalado retired Marty Van Almen on strikes.

"That's definitely a key to the game," said Sumner. "We got the go-ahead run in the fifth and came back with some heady defense to shut them down. If we don't make those plays, it could have been a long inning."

With one out in the seventh, Regalado and Wysocki faced one another for the last time. Regalado won the battle as he got Wysocki to fly out. Lucas took Regalado to a full count, but lined out to Unger at second base to end the game.

"This was a big win for us," said Sumner. "The kids really

Fulton

It's a shame something like this had to happen. It's not a tragedy in the truest sense of the word, but for players who wanted that trophy and disciplined themselves to stay away from trouble, that dream may now turn into a nightmare.

You may think that losing three of your top five players isn't that big of a deal, but in retrospect, it is. The rapport, the nucleus, the confidence they've gained, is now tainted with a story about chickens and manure.

The current players are being cheated. I understand that performing "foolish" antics is all part of the "senior mystique," but I guess it all comes back to the words, look before you leap.

For a few minutes the student athletes played a unique game. A game that resulted in probably the biggest loss they will ever suffer. It was a challenge they tried to meet, but when all was said and done, they played their final match.

Two of the three tennis players not playing now are seniors. They don't have any future at ULS, but the last three weeks of their senior year are now tinged with dirty laundry that may take years to air out. It wasn't a very smart thing to do, but haven't we all done something foolish or immature and paid for it later? These two seniors have been stripped of everything. I'm not saying the decision the Disciplinary Committee took with each individual was wrong, but I don't know if it was proper either.

Four of the culprits, the two senior tennis players included, were banned from campus for the final three weeks. Three sen-believed in themselves and wanted to prove a point by winning the big game."

It was the fourth time North and South went head-to-head this year, and it was the second win for North.

"We went to their place for a doubleheader and beat them once," said Sumner. "That gave us a lot of confidence that we could beat them. It just carried over into the qualifying game. The kids really worked hard."

"I just hope we can continue playing this well in the playoffs," Sumner added.

So does Griesbaum. "When two good teams are playing in a single-elimination qualifying game, anything can happen," said Griesbaum. "Sure I'm disappointed we lost. I think the kids were looking forward to possibly going back to the final four, but now I hope North can do very well in the playoffs. I wish them plenty of luck."

Champions

With a 14-2 win over Warren Woods-Tower, the Norsemen baseball team won the Macomb Area Conference's White Division with a 6-2 record.

Rick Regalado went the distance, striking out 10 and giving up six hits. North led 6-1 at the end of five after Regalado, Russell Rice and Kevin McCarron all drove in runs. In the sixth, North scored eight times, the big blow coming on Scott Schorer's three-run homer. Rice, Regalado, Marty Pochmara, Chuck Thomas and McCarron all drove in runs in the sixth.

North finished the regular season at 19-9 overall.

"It's a great feeling to get into the division for the first year and win it," said Coach Frank Sumner.

Two tennis players and one other, can't walk through commencement exercises, can't participate in a senior project, and can't be affiliated with ULS in any way. That's harsh treatment. But, maybe it's justified and maybe it's not. I'm just glad I didn't have to make the decision.

Tennis, by all means is an individual sport, unless you're playing doubles. In most cases, you have to rely on your own abilities and your own decisions. The three players, as well as the others, made a poor choice.

The tennis team will try to regroup, as will the school, but what about the tennis players still on the team and the kids who wanted ULS to win a nation-leading 26th tennis title? (They currently have 25 tennis titles). As stated earlier, it's not important to keep the tradition of winning tennis titles intact. The purpose of the reprimands was to punish the individuals for the damage they did. They did more than damage a hallway and a desk, they defaced University Liggett School and forced the tennis team to carry some of the burden as well.

It's a shame to think that such an innocent trick could turn into a nightmare, but for all intents and purposes, the school did its part — after the students did theirs. It's a tragedy, a burden, a cut that may never heal. But, the kids will have better days, the tennis team will be just fine, and the school should be back to normal.

The school set a precedent by dismissing the involved kids, and hopefully it's a lesson that everyone will learn from.

More awards

Jolynn Schneider, a Shores resident, who plays on the University of Iowa women's basketball team, has been awarded the 1988 Robert F. Ray Faculty Representative Scholarship at the 71st annual Finkbine Dinner on the campus of Iowa on April 19.

Schneider, a communications major, has been selected four times as Academic All-Big Ten and United States Achievement Academic All-American. She has twice been a UI Board in Control of Athletics academic award recipient as well.

The Ray scholarship was established in 1981 in honor of Dean Robert F. Ray, the UI faculty representative to the Big Ten Conference; a post he held for 26 years.

The scholarship, which provides up to $1,500 for one year, is given to a student-athlete who is considered outstanding in athletics, academics and leadership.

A YOUNG gymnast

Lisa Young, a gymnast with the Artistic Gymnastics Academy, took top honors as the overall winner of the Class IV Sectional meet with 32.15 points.

Young also received second-place medals for the floor exercise (8.55) and the vault (8.50).

A helpful hand

Lawrence Paolucci, a graduate of University Liggett School, earned his fourth letter as a member of the Kenyon College basketball team. Paolucci has been a student-assistant coach and manager for the past four years. Lawrence is the son of Dr. and Mrs. Benjamin Paolucci of the Shores.

Deacon runner

Dana Deacon, a Woods resident, is a member of the 1988 Taylor University women's track team. Deacon, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Dave Deacon, is majoring in psychology. The Lady Trojans are 17-1 and the N.A.I.A. District 21 champions.

Perfect performance

Marla Cummings, of the Farms, finished with the bronze medal in the Class IV Gymnastics Championships in Grand Rapids.

Cummings took third in the vault (8.4) and a fourth in the floor exercise (8.95). To help her attain third place in the all-around, Cummings finished fifth (8.95) on the beam.

As a team, the Artistic Gymnastics Academy of Roseville won the state championship.

Briton player

Amy Leverenz, a graduate of South, has completed her senior season as a member of the Albion College women's tennis team.

Leverenz posted a 2-2 dual meet mark in the MIAA. Overall, Leverenz was 3-2 and was named to the MIAA's second team.

Getto competes

Kenyon College freshman Christie Getto, a South graduate, has been a participant on the Ladies lacrosse team.

The Ladies completed the year with an overall record of 9-5.

Christie is the daughter of Peggy and David Getto of Grosse Pointe Park.

First letter

Liz Ament, a 1987 South graduate, has earned her first collegiate varsity letter as a member of the John Carroll University women's softball team.

Ament was the Blue Streaks' primary pitcher this season, starting 13 games and completing 11. Ament pitched 69 innings surrendering 76 earned runs, while striking out 16 batters. She posted a 4-8 record.

Boomer booms

Cackie Boomer, a graduate of Cranbrook-Kingswood and a resident of Grosse Pointe Farms, has completed her junior season as a member of the Albion College women's tennis team.

Paired with a trio of partners at various times in the season, Boomer held an outstanding 6-2 dual record, 3-2 against MIAA foes. In addition, Boomer had a 2-5 singles record.

The Britons were fifth overall in the final MIAA standings.

Ottoway scores 59

Amy Ottoway, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Palmer Ottoway of Walloon Lake, formerly from the Farms, was presented the Class of 1977 Award for volunteer service to varsity sport at the recent Varsity Sports Awards ceremony held at Sweet Briar College.

Tennis star

Amy Shields, a graduate of Cranbrook-Kingswood and a resident of Grosse Pointe, has completed her senior as a member of the Albion College women's tennis team.

Shields posted an excellent 6-2 dual meet mark in doubles play, as well as an overall 4-4 standard in singles competition.

Mackey finished

Leslie Mackey, a ULS graduate, concluded her career as a member of U of M's women's tennis team.

Mackey posted a season mark of 15-15 at number five singles this year. Her 47 wins place her in seventh place on Michigan's career list.

Adults, children learn to sail

Classes in basic sailing will be offered by the War Memorial, weekdays, weekends and evenings throughout the 1988 boating season.

Novice sailors, as well as those with limited time on the water, will benefit from the instruction provided by professionals from the Jack Leverenz Sailing School. Students will acquire the skills necessary to participate in this popular warm-weather sport.

All classes will be taught on specially designed 23-foot boats with no more than four students per boat. Students ages 12-and-under should be accompanied by a parent. Class fees range from $145 to $225 per person depending on class time selected. There is a 10 percent discount for more than one student signing up together.

Call the War Memorial, 881-7511 for more information.

Biking through

On Monday nights you can kick-up the kickstand of your bike and join cyclists for a bike ride through the Pointes.

Starting at 7 p.m. at the Kickstand Bicycle Shop in the Park, riders will spin their wheels for a healthy form of exercise.

For further information, call Todd at 822-5222.

Vanden Plas began building coaches at a time when elegance and craftsmanship were hallmarks of exquisite custom carriages. Today, the most honored coachbuilding traditions are carried forward by Jaguar in the 1988 Vanden Plas sedan.

Rich, redolent leather covers the specially contoured Vanden Plas seating. Resplendent burr walnut graces the dashboard, door panels, center console and the fold-down picnic tables fitted to bulks of the front seats.

In the best coachbuilding tradition, the Vanden Plas sedans are driver and passenger's with a host of special amenities. Floor-mounted throw rugs cover the passenger footwells. There are high intensity lamps for reading, mood lighting, seats and computerized climate control for comfort, and a wait stereo system for your listening pleasure, an optional headlamp washer system, and much more.

DeManigold takes two at regionals, netters take second

By Rob Fulton

Sports Editor

Marc deManigold, who will play football at the University of Notre Dame next fall, captured regional track titles in the discus and shot put.

DeManigold qualified for the state meet on June 4 by landing the shot put at 58 feet, and tossing the discus 170-feet, 1-inch at the regional track meet at South last weekend.

As a team, the Norsemen finished second with 83 points; 10 behind Detroit Denby in the 16-team event.

Joining deManigold at the state meet at Eastern Michigan University will be North's top distance runner Bob Straske. Straske won the 800-meter run (1:57) to qualify. Junior Matt Brady finished second in the high jump (6-3), and will go to the state meet as well because in order to qualify, an athlete must finish in the top two spots of the event. Ted Stephens and Jim DeYonker monopolized the pole vault as they finished first and second, respectively. Stephens' jump (12-9) earned him a regional championship, and DeYonker's jump (12-5) was good for a trip to Ypsilanti.

Earlier in the week, North drilled Woods-Tower, 83-30, to win the White Division of the Macomb Area Conference. Jason Channel highlighted that afternoon with a winning shot put toss of 40-8. North finished 4-0 in the league, and 7-1 overall.

Girls' track

By John Guibord

Special Writer

With 76 points, the girls' track team took third place at the regionals at South.

Liz Bolden is headed for the state meet after qualifying in the 200 dash, the 400 dash and the long jump. Bolden was a regional champ in the long jump with a leap of 16-8 1/4. Joining Bolden at the state's in the long jump will be Tina Strader (15-11 3/4). Nicki Van Oppens was second in the 3200 run (12:20.4), qualifying for the championships. Shannon Andrewes was a regional winner in the 800 run (2:23.4).

A few days earlier, Bolden broke the school record in the 400 (58.2) as North finished tied for second (52 points) at the Groves Invitational.

The 3200 relay team of Andrewes, Katie Loehr, Missy Carson and Bolden just missed the school record by one second. Van Oppens was second in the 1600 and 3200-meter runs.

Tennis

In Region No. 6, one of the toughest regions in the state, the Norsemen finished second with 20 points. With the finish, North qualified for the state Class A championships in Midland on June 3-4.

Regional finalists for the Norsemen were, John Scagram (No. 2 singles), Pat Hopper (No. 4 singles), Greg Cooksey and Bob Hetchler (No. 1 doubles), and Ben Gaskin and Scott McSkimming (No. 2 doubles). Rohit Krishna (No. 3 singles) and Mike Sharkey and Paul Anderson (No. 3 doubles) were regional winners.

Softball

Kerri-Sue Kelly tossed a two-hitter and struck out five as the Lady Norsemen beat Lake Shore, 4-1. North remained in second place with the win.

Lucy Barry and Gail Marlow led North with two hits each.

North earned a "kiss your sister" tie with Cousino a few days later. Marlow continued to hit the ball well as she collected two hits.

Soccer

Nancy Schulte picked up her eighth shutout as North beat Lakeview, 7-0.

Laura Ferguson clicked for a hat trick, Beth Stevenson had two goals, and Paige Pelok and Jennifer Galvin provided one goal each.

In their next game, the Lady Norsemen beat ULS, 4-0; it was

Baseball

North struck for five runs after two innings and then hung on to take an 8-5 victory from Cousino in eight innings.

North, 5-2 in the league and 18-9 overall, scored four runs in the second as Kevin McCarron's two-run single got things going. Chuck Thomas and Rick Regalado also had RBI singles.

The Patriots tied it in the sixth, and Mike Rancio departed for the services of Dino Vento. Vento shut down Cousino and then received the win when McCarron's two-out double pushed home Marty Pochmara, who doubled, in the eighth. Bases-loaded walks to Jason DeYonker and Dan Unger gave North the margin of victory.

Baseball team splits, tracksters second

By Rob Fulton

One week after losing to North in a pre-district qualifying baseball game, the South Blue Devils bounced back to win one and lose one at the Home Plate Sports Center Tournament.

South, who has at least a share of the Eastern Michigan League title, lost to Lake Shore, 2-1, in the opening game, but beat Fraser, 14-7, in the consolation bracket.

Perit Nazarko took the loss, but only yielded four hits, while striking out six. However, Lake Shore's Frank Witcer held South to only three hits. Marcus Wy-socki collected one of those hits with an RBI double, while Mike Paull and Bryan Jones picked up the other hits.

DeLaSalle, the tourney champ, dropped Fraser into the consolation bracket, where they faced South's Rust Knowles.

Knowles, who picked up the win after pitching three innings, was given a 10-run cushion in the first inning as the Devils pounded the ball. Doug Lucas, Bill Leonard, Jim Johnson and Wysocki each had RBI hits in that inning. Leonard and Wysocki finished with three hits each, while Johnson had two.

Dan Monahan finished up to earn the save.

South (20-9, 10-4) tied for the E.M.L. with Port Huron and East Detroit.

Softball

Mary King allowed only five runs in South's 8-4 loss to Mount Clemens, but she didn't get any offensive support as the Blue Devils mustered only three hits and stranded 13 runners.

King, who was relieved by Darcy Jones, gave up seven hits. Erin Bruce, Becky Wysocki and Leigh Leonard each had one hit.

At home against Roseville, Jones went the distance, striking out eight and walking only two, in South's 12-2 win.

The win pushed South to 10-16 overall and 6-7 in the league entering Monday's game with Port Huron (the final regular-season game). Jones aided her own cause with her second home run of the year. Wysocki had a home run, a double and three RBI. Leonard had two hits, Laurel Wolfe was 2-for-3, Mary King drilled two hits and Bruce and Lisa Vantassell each had one hit.

Fit

Water sports

It's that time of year! The parks are open, the sun is shining and soon the water temperature will be warm enough for the hearty among us to take that first plunge. Michigan, being a water wonderland, offers many options when it comes to having fun on the water. Not all of them will provide methods of becoming fit, but all will provide an opportunity to be outdoors, smelling fresh air while basking in sunshine.

Hopefully, all watersports will provide an opportunity to get rid of unwanted stress. Here are some things to think about. Did you know that ...?

- The gondoliers of Venice, Italy, were the first to organize regular boating competitions, probably during the 15th century.

- The first time an American college boat racing crew went abroad was in 1869 when Harvard University challenged Oxford University. Oxford defeated Harvard in that race.

- The word canoe is derived from a French word cannot meaning "hollow log," and John MacGregor was the man who pioneered canoeing as a sport in 1965.

- The first man to pioneer powerboat racing was Ole Evrude, an engine manufacturer of Milwaukee, Wis.

- The longest jump ever achieved by a powerboat was made in a sequence for the James Bond film Live and Let Die. On an isolated Louisiana waterway at 56 mph, Jerry Comeaux jumped his craft 110 feet in the air for the longest powerboat jump ever.

- The first World Surfing Championships were held in Sydney, Australia in 1964.

- The first surfer to win two World Surfing Championships was a woman, Joyce Hoffman of the United States.

- The oldest man to ever swim the English Channel was William E. "Ned" Barnie in 1951 at age 55. It took him 15 hours and 1 minute to swim across the 21 miles of ocean.

- The American crawl is the fastest of all swimming strokes.

- Swimming is probably one of the world's oldest sports. Cave drawings made in the Libyan Desert more than 11,000 years ago show people swimming. An Egyptian nobleman recorded that his children took swimming lessons about 2160 B.C. (Not much is new is it?)

- Can you name the five basic swimming strokes? American crawl, backstroke, the breaststroke, butterfly and sidestroke.

- When water skis were first developed in 1922, the tow rope was attached to the skis; therefore, the boat pulled the skis and not the skier. It wasn't until the 1930s that the tow rope was taken off the skis and held by the skier himself.

Now go out and have a good time. The YMCAs have had the right idea all along. Being fit is not just physical, but encompasses body, mind and spirit.

Looking for fitness on the road is helpful

Keeping up your fitness program when you travel no longer is a major challenge. Whether you're on the road for business or pleasure, it's easy nowadays to fit in a workout. With a little advance planning, adding exercise to your schedule can even make your trip more enjoyable.

Too many hours spent in an airplane, bus, train or automobile can give you tired muscles and a lazy mind. That's not the best way to start, or end, a trip.

Exercising while traveling has many benefits, from reducing the tension of a hectic schedule to giving you more energy during your days away from home. It's also important to maintain the fitness level you've previously worked so hard to achieve.

By following a few "pre-trip" planning tips, and keeping a flexible schedule and open mind, you can keep your fitness level up or, if you're a beginner, find a more interesting way to exercise. If nothing else, a little exercise while on the road will help you counter one of the great temptations of travel - overeating.

Tip 1 - Select a hotel with or near a fitness club and/or pool. Many hotels now have tennis courts or a golf course. Ask your travel agent to book you into a hotel with some type of exercise facility, or call in advance to see what is available.

Tip 2 - If you walk or jog for exercise, choose a hotel with safe scenic trails nearby. Ask for a local map when you check-in and directions to safe areas to walk or run. Some hotels and facilities offer running course maps detailing trails of varying distances. It's a good idea to carry some form of identification card with you, just to be on the safe side.

Tip 3 - Make your exercise clothes a priority when packing. Don't leave them until last or they may be left at home. Check the climate of your destination so that you'll be prepared and pack appropriately.

Tip 4 - Consider taking along some portable workout gear. A jump rope, rubber exercise tubing, or light weights may come in handy if you're confined to your room for lengths of time. If you're a swimmer, don't forget your goggles. Hotel pools often have high levels of chlorine.

Tip 5 - Check the television guide where you are staying for exercise programs. Stations often run exercise programs in the early morning, noon and before dinner hours. You can get in a half-hour workout in the privacy of your room, which will keep you alert and full of energy for an important meeting or presentation. Some hotels even sponsor their own closed-circuit exercise program.

Tip 6 - If you're planning a vacation, consider the many new fitness-themed packages sponsored by hotels and cruise lines. Here, you'll have your workouts planned into your itinerary and offset such luxuries of vacation travel as buffet meals and poolside cocktails. You can take these opportunities to try a new activity or exercise class. And make new friends.

Tip 7 - Look for hidden opportunities to be physically active. Use the stairs instead of the elevator and walk to meetings when possible. Take a walking tour of local attractions and scenic highlights. You'll really get to know the area best when you explore on foot.

At the very least, finish each day with some curlsups, pushups, and other exercises you can do easily in your room, ending with a relaxing series of stretches. From Maine to California, and elsewhere, it's easy to stay fit when you're on the go.

Drink to your health—water

Water. What a wonderful, marvelous liquid. In Michigan we have been more than blessed. Swim in it, cruise, sail or float on it, bathe in it, play in it, grow a garden with it. Marvelous water. Just looking out over a body of water can bring us feelings of peace and comfort. But when it comes to drinking such a wonderful commodity, we often respond with reactions that can be summed up in one word, yuck! Oh, we don't mind getting in our liquids for the day, but please make sure they are in the form of coffee, tea, soda pop, (diet pop, thank you, I'm trying to lose weight), beer, alcohol, powdered mixes we stir up to camouflage old, boring water. But the fact is, the most essential nutrient to human life is good, plain water.

Our bodies can survive a deficiency of all the other nutrients (such as protein, fats, carbohydrates, vitamins and minerals) for long periods of time, some of them even for months or years, but they can survive only a few days without water.

The body itself is comprised of approximately 60 percent water. This remarkable fluid is not only the major constituent of blood, but it is also involved in almost every bodily function. Water serves as a supplier and carrier of nutrients, a medium and participant in chemical reactions, a disposer of waste products, and a regulator of body temperature by its continual bathing of the body's cells. Some of this water supply will come from the water in foods, and some from the metabolism of foods after they are eaten. The majority must come, however, from the pure liquid in order to maintain the body's fluid balance to prevent dehydration.

The daily recommendation is to drink six to eight (8 oz.) glasses of water. Some of this liquid can come from beverages other than water, but they are not highly recommended. Some may act as a diuretic; pulling too much water from the body, or have just the opposite effect, and make the body retain excess fluid in the system. Either way, both result in preventing the body to function at peak performance and in balance.

For those of you who are trying to lose weight, the following reasons should build up an even stronger case in favor of drinking those eight glasses of water. Every day of your diet, right through maintenance of your new goal weight and in fact, for the rest of your life.

Water suppresses the appetite naturally and then aids the body as it metabolizes stored fat.

- Recent studies have shown that without the proper intake of water, fat deposits will increase, and Drinking plenty of water will actually help to reduce those fat deposits.

- Water is one of the primary sources to relieve constipation. The body will pull water from within when there is not enough given to it from outside sources. Therefore, major organs must give up their water supplies, and in the case of constipation the colon is effected. But when you return to drinking enough waters once again, normal bowel function usually follows.

- During those times you may experience water retention, the best method to rid your body of the extra fluids is to drink more water. It may seem like a contradiction, but if you pull back on your water intake the body will actually sense that it is being threatened, and will hold on to the water even more. You are now in a literal fight with your body and the excess water will appear in the feet, ankles and hands, and sometimes even under the tender areas of your eyes. Diuretics are only a temporary solution; if too much is excreted, you body will try to replace the water loss as soon as possible. So drink more water, and the stored water will be flushed out.

Another important point to remember when you experience water retention is the amount of salt you may be consuming. The body will retain water to try and dilute the salt. Cut back on your salt intake (not only what you use at the table, but also in the foods you are eating), and again drink more water and the salt will be taken out of your system.

Water is the main force to aid the liver in breaking down stored fat into usable energy for the body. The overweight person has a larger metabolic overload, and needs more water than a thin person to help metabolize this extra fat.

- As you lose weight, water will help maintain good muscle tone. If you are worried about wrinkling or sagging of the skin during your weight loss - you guessed it - drink water. The water will help fill out shrinking cells and leave your skin looking and feeling healthy.

- If you think that you can still get the proper amount of water into your body by using it in the form of other drinks, think again. Your body has to work twice as hard to cut through all of the other chemistry of what you are drinking in order to get to what it really needs; good, clean water. (Read the ingredients list on your favorite beverage).

- Water serves as a carrier of all of those good, wholesome foods you are eating. If you want them to be broken down and utilized in the most efficient way, drink your water. How can all those wonderful nutrients get around your system if they cannot be transported by water?

- As you incorporate an exercise plan along with your eating program, drink those waters to replace loss through perspiration and the added workload you are putting your body through.

So the next time you reach for a thirst-quencher, reach for a cool, refreshing glass of water. (It was the "real thing" since the beginning of time.)

winning goal with only seconds remaining. Doug Marschke earned the win in net. In a losing effort, Darke, Meade, Bethell, and Daly played well.

Cornhuskers 1, Demons 0
The Cornhuskers defeated the previously unbeaten Demons on a penalty kick. Mike Magri and Ricky Klotz played well for the Demons.

Travel

Eagles 5, Royals 0
Richard Berri scored for the Eagles on a pass from Mike Verlinden. Karabetsos, Mertz, Soltis and Weinberg also tallied for the Eagles. Mertz, Moisesides and Soltis anchored a great line.

Eagles 1, Bullets 0
Berri banged home the winner and Ptasznik turned in a strong game to beat the Fraser Bullets.

Hawks 3, Lions 2
Brian Roney, Craig Williams and Frank Miller scored to lift the G.P. Hawks over the Washington Lions.

Blazers 3, Rebels 2
Nicholas Rutan and Sean Schotthoefler scored for the Rebels. Agnone, Wier, and Aaron ZurSchmiede assisted. Thomas-Jahnke and Joiner played well defensively for the Rebels.

Boys' track

Despite losing to Mount Clemens, 83-54, on the final dual meet of the year, the Devils finished 4-3 in the league and 6-5 overall.

Kyle Schomaker, who will be going to the state meet on June 4, won the high hurdles in a time of 15.31 and Mark Sonnenberg, also a state qualifier, won the 1600-meter run. Tony DeLuca won the 800 run (2:04), Joe Reynolds, a state-qualifier in the discus, won that event, and Pat Bruce a state-qualifying high-jumper, was number one in the high jump.

Fifth place was as high as the Devils could get with their 52 points in the regional meet last Saturday. However, individually, South will have a very good showing at the state meet.

Leading the way was Pat Bruce. Bruce cleared the high jump bar at 6-feet, 7-inches to become a regional champion.

Mark Sonnenberg qualified for the state meet in both the 1600 and 3200 race. In the 1600, Sonnenberg ran a 4:27 and then dashed to a 10:10 in the 3200. Kyle Schomaker finished second (15.2) in the 110 high hurdles and will also go to the state meet. Joe Reynolds whirled the discus 144.2 to take second, and will also represent South in the state championships.

Detroit Denby won the meet with 93 points and North was second with 83.

Tennis

For the fourth consecutive year, South's tennis team will go to the state meet as a regional champion.

The Blue Devils, coached by Don Zysk who will retire at the end of the year, had four regional champions. They included, Lee Lorenzini (No. 1 singles), Jeff Giraldo (No. 2 singles), John Lamb and Ben Bayko (No. 1 doubles), and Bill Huntington and Ray Tumacder (No. 2 doubles).

"We won it by two points over North (20), but every one of our players scored points," said Zysk. "Without those guys scoring points, I don't think we would have won it."

The state championships, which North qualified for also, will take place in Midland on June 3-4.

Girls' track

South's Traci Lee qualified for the state meet in three events and helped the Lady Devils to their highest finish ever in a regional track meet.

Lee teamed up with Wendy Berger, Elizabeth Kraft and Toni Tedesco to win the 3200-meter relay, and then came back to anchor the 400 and 800 relay (rejoined Denise Brown, Julie Burke and Reba Uthappa in both of those events. South will take the 400 and 800 relay teams to the state meet as well on June 4 at Eastern Michigan University.

Kraft and Julie Nichols qualified for the state meets as well, in the 800 and 1600 runs, respectively.

Earlier in the week, South beat Mount Clemens to win its unprecedented, third straight league title. South scored 102 points and the Butlers had only 26. South finished 10-0 overall.

Comedy scheduled for dinner-theater

"Sex on the Sixth Floor," a comedy by John Patrick, is a special summer production by Dennis Wickline Productions, Inc. at the Golden Lion Dinner Theatre.

Running Saturdays only during June and July, the comedy opens Saturday, June 4, and runs through Saturday, July 30.

"Sex on the Sixth Floor" is three vignettes about life in three apartments on the sixth floor of a New York City apartment building.

"Tenacity," the first vignette, tells the story of a young accountant who is still trying to have his first romantic liaison with his girlfriend after going with her "since Lincoln was shot."

"Ambiguity," the second vignette, tells the story of a New York City police officer who is preparing to go on an undercover assignment dressed as a woman, when a burglar enters his apartment and becomes attracted to the "woman" he finds.

The third and final vignette, "Frustration," is about a wealthy man who hires an unemployed actress to determine his son's true sexual preferences.

Directed by Dennis Wickline, "Sex on the Sixth Floor" is comprised of four local actors — Lance Bosley, Judy Gieseking, Richard Vreeland and Molly Johnson-Dodge.

The Golden Lion Restaurant is located at 22380 Moross, near Mack, in Detroit across from St. John's Hospital. Price for the evening is $21.95 per person including dinner, show, tax and gratuity. Cocktails begin at 7 p.m., dinner at 7:30 p.m. with the show following dessert. For more information and reservations, call 886-2420.

Broadway, Movies, TV Concert

The Metropolitan Symphonic Band will present a Broadway, Movies, and TV Concert, on Sunday, June 5, 3:30 p.m., at the Macomb Center for the Performing Arts on the Center Campus of Macomb Community College, Hall Road and Garfield in Clinton Township.

The 50-piece band, under the direction of Dr. Martin Stella, will present many familiar Broadway, movie, and TV themes, including music from "Chorus Line," "Bolero," "Star Trek" and "Superman." A medley of popular songs from the 70s will also be presented.

Special guest artists will include radio-TV personality Sonny Eliot, tap dancer Bill Wilson, and emcee Davis Gloff. Sonny Eliot will narrate the children's piece "The Man Who Invented Music" by Gillis. Bill Wilson will dance to music from the Broadway musical "42nd Street" and a medley of George M. Cohan favorites.

Tickets are $6 for adults, $5.25 for students and senior citizens, and $4.25 for groups of 20 or more. They are available at the box office or by telephone at 286-2222.

Auditions for Open Door

The Open Door Theater Company will hold auditions Saturday, May 28, to cast two one-act plays to be performed in September.

Open Door is a non-profit troupe of deaf, hard-of-hearing and hearing actors which performs dramatic and musical works in sign language and voice, for hearing and deaf audiences.

Deaf, hard-of-hearing and hearing actors are encouraged to audition. Sign language skills are desirable, but not required. Those interested in auditioning are asked to bring an audition piece, resume and photograph (to be returned).

Auditions will be held at 3 p.m. at St. John's Deaf Center in Warren.

For additional information, call Pat McKay, at 443-2308 (evenings, voice/TDD).

'Shakedown' is almost continuous action

By Marian Trainor
Special Writer

"Shakedown" begins with violence and noise and never slows down. Credit lines are displayed against a surrealistic display of flashing lights of a city ringed by neon signs while heavy music blares. The few instances when the film is not filling the screen with exploding colors and wracking the ears with sound, the background becomes dark and ominous.

It is at one of those intervals that a shadowed figure, wearing blue jeans (an important item in later developments) appears in Central Park. He approaches a drug dealer. There is some rapid exchange of words regarding money. Guns are drawn. Shots fired. One is wounded. The other dead.

Fatally shot is an undercover narcotics officer. The wounded man is a twice-convicted drug dealer. From all appearances, it looks like murder to avoid arrest. It is far from that as viewers learn when Roland Dalton (Peter Weller), public defender, is assigned to defend the drug dealer.

Weller's client (Richard Brooks) insists that he thought he was dealing with a drug-crazed individual who was about to murder him for drugs and money, and that he shot in self-defense. He also maintains that if the officer had identified himself, he would have handed over his cash because he was accustomed to sharing his income with the law.

Film

Looking for help in this difficult case, Weller turns to his friend, Richie Marks (Sam Elliott), who works as an undercover narcotics officer. Elliott is reluctant to accept Weller's story, but when a red Porche (price tag, $89,000) is found in the dead officer's high income condominium garage, he waives. When he learns that the officer wore nothing but designer jeans, he is convinced and agrees to assist Weller in getting evidence, although he knows that it will incriminate many of his fellow-officers.

Another complication surfaces when Susan Cantrell (Patricia Charbonneau) enters the scenario. She is an assistant D.A. in charge of prosecuting the case. She is also a former love of Weller's. Now in spite of past differences and opposing roles, the flame is rekindled and burns brighter than ever.

This situation spins off into another complication. Weller, fed up with defending clients, who if they are not guilty of the present crime, are such a menace to society that they should be locked up, wants to get out of this facet of the law.

The opportunity to do so presents itself when he is offered a position in a prestigious law firm at big bucks. The offer comes as a result of his engagement to the daughter of the president of the firm. This leaves Weller fighting a war on two fronts, personal and professional.

The love triangle does little more than provide a respite from the violent action involved in trying to clear Brooks. The team of Weller and Elliott discover that while drug kingpins are tough to bring down, it is much harder to track down those protected by a badge and the power vested in it.

They prove equal to the task but not without some harrowing adventures.

"Shakedown" is an action-packed film made more so because the characters involved are tough and ruthless.

Weller and Elliott make an excellent team. Weller gives a good performance as the lawyer torn between what he really believes in and his yearning for the better things in life. Elliott is outstanding as the street-wise cop, tough enough and quick enough to be equal to any crisis.

'Friday the 13th, Part VII . . .': More of the same

By Michael Chapp
Special Writer

"Friday the 13th, Part VII: The New Blood" is like its six predecessors in a number of ways. Horny teenagers and others at Crystal Lake get sliced, diced and impaled by Jason the Horrible for no apparent reason. Meanwhile the soundtrack whistles "ch-ch-ch-ha-ha-ha" and the audience is split between those who laugh at such material and those who scream.

Jason is pretty much the same in this episode as in the others — ugly and vengeful. He's beginning to look a little worse for wear through. His skin is decaying, ribs are showing through in some spots, and his face — hidden most of the time by a hockey mask — is losing his boyish charm.

So perhaps his physical abnormalities explain his unfriendly disposition. Or maybe not. After all, here's a guy who's been dead on the bottom of the lake for years, and the first thing he does when he's miraculously brought back to life is spike a girl to a tree. And it doesn't get any prettier. Before long, Jason has killed everybody within walking distance.

But this time, he's got competition. A young girl with telekinetic powers has come to the lake with her mother and therapist. This is a girl who can send docks crashing into the water just by staring hard and thinking. So you just know there's not enough room in town for two freaks of nature.

Film

Somebody's got to go. Those who've seen any of the previous episodes know that Jason will not be that somebody. Oh, sure. You can electrocute him, burn him, shoot him . . . heck, even blow him into a million pieces, and he'll still be back for more. Jason Voorhees is one of the screens most resilient — and redundant — characters.

But quite frankly, the "Friday" series is one of the most redundant sets of big screen works anyway. The film opens with flashbacks to the other movies in the series, while a narrator explains that "many have tried to stop Jason, but none could."

There's a blatant irony in that statement. Be watching for "Friday the 13th, Part VIII: The Even Newer Blood" at a theater near you.

Performing arts classes available this summer

The Detroit Center for the Performing Arts is accepting registrations for openings in the Adventures in Performing Arts summer program for students ages 7-18.

A variety of learning opportunities will be presented, including instruction in beginning acting, dance, voice, stage movement and more.

Children and teens will be grouped according to age, and all groups will present a final show at the end of the session. Two four-week sessions are scheduled: June 27-July 22 (excluding the 4th of July) and Aug. 1-26.

Fees are $265 ($235 if paid by June 15 or July 20). For more information and registration forms, call 961-7925 during business hours.

West Village art fair June 11

The West Village Invitational Art Fair will be held Saturday, June 11, from 11 a.m. to 6 p.m. on Agnes between Parker and Van Dyke.

The art fair will feature Michigan artists and musicians. Food will be served by Sarah's Catering on Agnes.

Historic West Village is located north of East Jefferson and west of Historic Indian Village.

The art fair is held in conjunction with the Indian Village Walking Tour of Historic Homes.

The Michigan artists will display pottery, watercolors, fibers, photography, jewelry oils, silk painting and sculpture.

Annual student show at Pewabic

Pewabic Pottery will host its annual Student, Faculty and Staff Show June 3 through July 2.

This exhibition will highlight work produced at Pewabic during the 1987-88 school year. An opening reception, to which the public is invited, will take place on Friday, June 3, from 6 to 9 p.m.

Included are works by students in the adult, children's, and Detroit Public School System classes, as well as work from outreach programs conducted throughout the year. These clay works will demonstrate a multitude of techniques and firing processes taught in the studio at Pewabic.

This exhibition is made possible in part by the National Endowment for the Arts and the Michigan Council for the Arts. Pewabic Pottery is located at 10125 East Jefferson, across from Waterworks Park. Gallery hours are Tuesday through Saturday 10 a.m. to 5 p.m.

Henry Ford Museum offers annual pass

Henry Ford Museum & Greenfield Village is offering an annual pass — a one-price ticket that allows the holder unlimited visitation to both museums everyday of the year, except for Thanksgiving and Christmas.

Throughout May, the annual pass will be offered at a special reduced rate of $18 for adults and $9 for children ages 5-12 — a price that averages out to one dollar less than a one-time, regular admission to both museums.

Included in the price for the annual pass are numerous special events and exhibits held at the museum and village. The pass is proving especially popular as a gift idea for birthdays, anniversaries and graduations.

For more information, call 271-9363 or stop at the entrance of Henry Ford Museum at 20900 Oakwood Blvd.

West travelogue June 9

Dennis Glen Cooper, veteran lecturer, world traveler and TV personality who coordinates the monthly travelogues at the Macomb Center for the Performing Arts, will present one of his own at 8 p.m. on Thursday, June 9.

His program, "Vacation in the West," will be the final film and narration in this season's Travel Series, sponsored by AAA Travel Agency. The series will resume in the fall with another lineup of 10 monthly programs produced by well-known speakers and film-makers.

In his tour of the West, Cooper's cameras focus on sites like Yellowstone Park, Rocky Mountain National Park, the Grand Tetons and Monument Valley.

The audience also goes on a horseback ride to the floor of the Grand Canyon, a boat trip across Lake Powell and a rubber raft voyage down the raging Yampa River past the majestic cliffs of Dinosaur National Monument.

Tickets are $4 for adults and $3.50 for students and senior citizens. They may be obtained at the Center's box office or reserved on credit card by calling 286-2222, Monday through Friday, from 9 a.m. to 6 p.m.

Auditions for Renaissance Festival

The ninth annual Michigan Renaissance Festival will hold talent auditions Wednesday, June 1, 7 p.m. to 10 p.m. at the Ann Arbor Inn, 100 S. Fourth Street in Ann Arbor; Saturday, June 4, noon to 4 p.m. at the festival's Hollygrove site in Holly; Wednesday, 8, 7 p.m. to 10 p.m. in Varner Hall at Oakland University in Rochester; Saturday, June 11, noon to 4 p.m. at the Waterstreet Pavilion in Flint.

Street performers, musicians, dancers, singers, jugglers, mimes, puppeteers, storytellers and general revelers are encouraged to audition. High school students interested in gaining entertainment experience are asked to try out for the Renaissance Academy.

All auditioners should bring a resume, wear or bring a costume (if you have one), or a detailed sketch of your intended Renaissance attire.

The ninth annual Michigan Renaissance Festival, located in Holly, will be held for seven consecutive weekends, Aug. 13 through Sept. 25, from 10 a.m. to 7 p.m. For more information, contact the Michigan Renaissance Festival, 700 East Maple, Birmingham, Mich. 48011, 645-9640 Monday through Friday from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m.

Your GROSSE POINTE PUBLIC LIBRARIES

Serving you well and presenting ways to serve you better

BOOK BRAIN ENCOURAGES YOUNGSTERS TO READ

The Book Brain, an exciting new book finding computer program for youngsters in grades 4 to 6 has been acquired by your library. Librarian note that it prompts "interest in reading through something a kid loves — computers."

Book Brain is a colorful graphics-filled data base of 2,000 titles designed for the Apple II Computer. It was created by reading expert E.H. Hass, known to millions of children as "Dr. Rita Book" on the Kids America program, which is carried nationally on the American Public Radio Network. "Dr. Book" tours the country regularly on behalf of the "Reading is Fundamental" project.

Book Brain is a personalized system which, after getting acquainted with the child by asking questions, is promptly on a first name basis with the youngster.

Book Brain and the reader then team up to create stories based on the child's imagination. Then Book Brain pinpoints fiction titles best suited to the particular interests and reading level of the individual child.

The system provides exciting annotations of the well known books in its data base. These "mini-reviews," designed to "sell" the youngster on good reading, were personally written by "Dr. Book."

Book Brain's hands on approach is fun for everyone! It promises even more than fun, though. It is a tool which can be effective in generating children's interest in reading and then guiding them towards making appropriate selections. This can encourage them in a life-long pursuit of the pleasures of books.

THIS INSERT has been prepared by The Friends of the Grosse Pointe Public Libraries and the Library Staff.

We hope you can learn more about our services. They can help you, your children, your business, your organization, and your shut-in friends to enjoy life more fully.

The Outreach Program Gets Books & Tapes to Shut-ins

Written by Howard Hush

Most of us are healthy and active, and more or less free to use our leisure time as we choose. Moreover, we would quickly dismiss the notion that we might some day be homebound — and have little choice about the use of our leisure time.

Many homebound people are avid loyalists of libraries and long-time readers. There comes a time, however, when for reasons of health they can no longer go to the library, or see the print, or even hold a book. Others, cut off from their former activities, turn to the world of books for new interests and stimulation.

How does a sensitive, caring community respond to these people? This community, through the Grosse Pointe Libraries, has responded by setting up an Outreach Program. Simply stated, it is a program for taking library services to the homebound. Books are selected, delivered and perhaps discussed with each individual according to his or her interests.

For the visually handicapped, books with large print are available. If such books still cannot be read, then "talking books" are made available through the Library for the Blind and Physically Handicapped, a national program.

The Outreach Program, also, "takes" the libraries to existing groups of retired people, or other special interest groups. Books, films and other library materials are used as a basis for adult discussions.

And who are the homebound? Who are the members of Outreach programs? For the most part, they are long-time residents, they are readers — and they have paid and are still paying their share of taxes!

The Outreach Program directly touches only a few hundred people each year, but it is a tangible recognition of our commitment and respect for those people who have helped to make the Grosse Pointe Public Library System what it is today.

Helen Leonard visits Mrs. Selden with a group of new books.

Marty Bogen with Peggy Kitchel
Childrens Librarian - Park Branch

OUR WINNER

The contest was nationwide conducted by the American Library Association. The topic was "Why I love my Library Card."

Marty is a 6th grade student at Parcels Middle School. He entered the contest at the Park Branch and won 3rd Prize nationally.

Here is the poem:

"I have a special treasure
That takes me to far off places
I learn the customs and about the lands
Of all the different races.

Records, tapes, movies and tools
Are some of the things you can borrow
If you dont find what you're looking for
It could be there tomorrow

This treasre allows me to study in peace
Or to read just for pleasure and fun.
I can copy from references on their machine
For a report that has to be done.

The clues I have given have helped you I'm sure

The puzzle was not very hard
The treasure that means so much to me
You've guessed it - my library card."

All Kinds of Reference

The duties of a reference librarian could never be described as "ho-hum." Helping a patron eager to find an appropriate diet for his pet worms, to by pass an encyclopedia article on that important 1521 religious event, The Diet of Worms, takes some skill and understanding. It turns out there is an excellent book on appropriate diets for worms, and it was obtained for the eager patron through an inter-library loan.

Although these types of requests are made all the time, we thought a listing of the current books and reports owned by the Library would be more helpful.

Travel plans?

Armchair travelers, as well as those embarking on "dream Vacations" to distant spots, find the library a source of great help. While a wide array of excellent travel guides, maps, and books are available, there are some excellent videos too. In addition to the traditional travelogue type video, there is an exciting series called "Laura McKenzies travel tips," which offers timely information on where to go, where to stay, what to expect, historical sights, and shopping. Another series called "The Taveloguer" offers in-depth portraits of many European countries.

Audio Travel cassettes are especially useful for preparing enroute. The Library's collection includes Stephen Birnbaum's well known Travel Information Series, as well as several informative walking and dining tours of major cities in the United States and Europe.

Brushing up on foreign languages, so important for people travelling abroad, can be accomplished with the help of foreign language records and cassettes. The Library's collection includes the Berlitz Traveller Series, geared for individuals needing language for travel purposes. And for persons wanting to perfect language skills, The Living Language program are especially recommended.

Many Library patrons report that their car travel has been greatly enhanced through listening to books on tapes. The extensive collection of cassette tapes offers pleasure "on the road" from Humor (Bob & Ray or Monty Python) to factual information provided by Money Magazine. Or you can choose classic or modern novels which will surely make the miles go faster.

Talks by Michigan writers continues to stir interest

Three of Michigans talented writers were featured in this years Library Speakers Series. Loren Estleman, Elmore Leonard, and Balthazar Korab provided stimulating and rewarding discussions of their own creative works. Estleman, a versatile writer of mysteries, westerns, and novels discussed the evolution of mystery writing and suggested that the reason for the many successful Detroiters practicing this form lies in the violent past of the city itself.

Leonard, who lives in Birmingham, has achieved national prominence. His current books have consistently shown up in the New York Times Best Seller List. He describes his work in the context of a broad philosophy of writing. His unique gift for dialogue is used as a means to advance the plot and define the characters.

Balthazar Korab's slide presentation was based on his two current books "Detroit" and "Michigan." We were treated to the very broad spectrum of Korab's talent. His audience sat rapt while he wandered from Michigan down to Columbus, Indiana, all the while showing examples of both architecture and nature.

Jacqueline Michaels, coordinator of the Speakers Series, announces that next years program has already been arranged.

Nola Tutag will discuss her new book "Discovering Stained Glass in Detroit." Kurt Luedke, the talented writer of the screen play "Out of Africa" will speak, and J. Patrick Wright, known for his insider views of General Motors, will be the final speaker.

Children at story hour

Open, Shut Them, Open, Shut them, Give a little Clap Open, Shut them, Open, Shut them, Foid them in your lap

With finger plays like this designed to help the preschoolers, and also to get their busy little hands quietly tucked away, library story hour begins. Every week in each of three libraries, mothers bring three to five year olds to the popular sessions for stories, games, songs, and fun. There are now 500 little ones taking advantage of these programs sponsored by the Library. They come for the half hour sessions and often go away happily clutching a selection of books their mothers and they have chosen for their home reading.

In addition to the preschool programs, the central library has an innovative Toddler program for 2-year-olds and their parents. This is a short 20 minute session which exposes little ones to reading stories and group experiences. It also provides them with a warm, happy experience at the library.

Lucky children who have learned to write their own names can apply for their own library cards, and can then take out books on their own. What an exciting step for a child to be presented with that very special card by one of the workers at the circulation desk. From then on he or she is launched as an independent reader, ready for a lifetime of happy experiences with books.

COMPUTERS USHERED IN THE INFORMATION AGE

How It Helps You THE PATRON

A. CLSI

1. It tells you where the books are stored, or if they are checked out.
2. For reference, it locates specific materials. This includes books, audio visual and some periodicals.

B. Laser Scanner

1. It saves you time when you check out books.

C. Public Access

1. As a word processor, you may type letters or reports at no charge. Both dot matrix and letter quality printers are available.
2. Use for education tutoring programs. There are programs available. The Book Brain (see page 1) is an example.
3. For graphics, make signs and banners.
4. For file management, make labels, reports, etc.

D. INFOTRAC

1. This is a basic publication index. It should locate what you need in a publication from either a title, subject, or author. Please ask the person at the reference desk for help.

E. GEAC

1. This has records of all holdings in the other libraries of Wayne and Oakland Counties. You can place an order and the book will be sent here.

F. On Line Searching

1. This through a phone line modem has access to other computers around the world. You can get the latest information stored in other computers about specific topics in business, education, politics, stocks, medication, and more. For instance if you are concerned about a drug that has been prescribed, you can get information, good and bad, published about that drug. This service has a charge.

A. The Circulation System CLSI

Introduced in 1979, located at Circulation and Reference desks.

B. The Laser Scanner was added to the CLSI in 1983.

C. Public Access

Apple II Computers (a gift of The Friends)

D. INFOTRAC With CD ROM Data Base

E. G.E.A.C. Interloan

F. On Line Searching

How It Improves Library Efficiency

A. CLSI

1. Keeps inventory control.
2. Records which patron has a book and when it is due.

B. Laser Scanner

1. Much more accurate than former methods.
2. Speeds inventory control.

C. Public Access

1. These computers are for patrons only.

D. INFOTRAC

1. Helps locate needed periodicals.

E. G.E.A.C.

1. Saves time locating books for patrons.

F. On Line Searching

1. This also saves time locating information for patrons.

ABOUT THE FUTURE

A. All of the school libraries will be added to the Public Library CLSI system.

B. The card catalog will be indexed in a computer when funds are available for the switch. The advantages will be:

1. It is easier to find books.
2. It will give information in addition to what is on the file card.
3. It will record the branch in which the book is located.
4. A print out will be made.
5. It will be faster.

6. From the administration standpoint it will save money because maintenance of card files is very costly.

C. Personal Computers

1. The library is hoping to add IBM personal computers to the Apple II for public access. The IBM has a larger memory and is compatible with most business computers.

D. Some day we may have community access. There may be a community network of computers that tie into all community functions so that a patron could access the library's computers and information from home.

HISTORICAL NOTES ON THE DEVELOPMENT OF THE GROSSE POINTE LIBRARY SYSTEM SINCE 1922

Early library service in Grosse Pointe was provided by small stations administered by the Wayne County Library but situated here. The first station in 1922 was located in the Village Hall of Grosse Pointe Shores, following a request from George Osius.

A few years later another station was added in the old Neighborhood Club on Oak Street (Muir Road), thanks to Club director George Elworthy.

When the Neighborhood Club moved to new quarters In-The-Village, the D.M. Ferry, Jrs. offered the use of a cottage they owned on Waterloo, adjacent to the Club. This became library station number three. The Edward Whitcombs paid for remodeling; Neighborhood Club for heat, light and services while the County Library System supplied furniture, books, supplies and salaries.

In February, 1922, Miss Florence Severs was appointed Branch Librarian of the Village Branch and Grosse Pointe had the first library building and first professional librarian apart from the Main Headquarters of the Wayne County System.

In 1922 another library station was opened with a very limited collection in The Goodrich Confectionary Store on Mack Avenue and Lochmoor.

Grosse Pointe Park was next to get a station and it was situated in the basement of the Municipal Building. Known as the Park Branch, and under Miss Severs' supervision, it soon became popular in spite of its location.

In 1929 at the Annual Meeting of the Grosse Pointe Board of Education, approval of the establishment of a library to serve the entire school district was given. The Park Branch became the Main Library with Miss Severs and her staff, including Mrs. Helen Finster, as assistant and cataloguer. Patrons began to use it eagerly.

The library on Waterloo became the Village Branch of the newly formed Grosse Pointe Library System, Jean A. Taylor, head librarian. Miss Taylor was also director of the Children's Department for the entire system, in which capacity she served for several decades.

Of all the early locations or our library, the original Village Branch evokes the most nostalgia. This small cottage had a cozy atmosphere with bright windows, soft colored walls, attractive plants and flower arrangements (due to Ruth Bundy's green thumb and artistic touch), and on a cold night the crackle of the fire in the space burner. Sometimes this necessitated the emptying of a coal scuttle by the librarian. This setting was enhanced by the book collection temptingly displayed in the three small rooms.

By 1937, increased use forced a move to larger quarters. Two cottages were joined and now became the City Branch (the Village had been renamed Grosse Pointe City). This was on the present site of the Maire School. The black and red painted shelving gave it a fresh bright look. Then when the Maire was built, the library was moved over to Notre Dame.

In 1938 the Lochmoor Branch became overcrowded so a new area was opened in a converted store at Vernier and Mack. So many patrons came to the opening on a beautiful Fall afternoon that we had to move the table to the sidewalk. This old store had an oil stove for heat in the winter and the librarians sat with their backs to the stove and their coats on. The flat tin roof provided far too much heat in the summer before air conditioning.

In October, 1939, the Main Library moved to the new John D. Pierce Junior High School. This resulted from great community interest and a petition drive. At last there was space for a book collection to meet the interest and needs of our patrons. The attractive library with lovely paneling was furnished in Williamsburg period furniture. It soon became a very popular spot.

At the time we had what was laughingly called a bookmobile. It was a converted station wagon. The librarians would set up an umbrella at Moran and McMillan Roads to check out books.

When it rained all got in the wagon along with the smell of wet wool and wet sneakers.

In January 1949 the Wood's Branch was established in a wing of the new Charles A. Parcels Junior High School. This library, with its attractive light furnishings, soon proved that enlarged library service had certainly been needed all along!

The present Central Library opened in 1953. At this time, all of the small stations were closed and the former Main Library became the Park Branch and the City Branch was closed. The Central Library was a gift of D. M. Ferry, Jr. and furnishings and contributed by Murray Sales, and a number of organizations. This wonderful gift has been appreciated by the thousands of Pointers who have used it. Besides its many facilities and services, it is noteworthy for its examples of modern art, gifts of Hawkins Ferry.

Millage Rate Requested by Library

The registered voters of Grosse Pointe and Harper Woods will have an opportunity on June 13 to demonstrate their commitment to the Grosse Pointe Public Library System. The passage on that date of a .4 operating millage increase for a period of six years will help to assure the continuance of the current library services and programs to the community.

This is the first time in over 20 years that the Grosse Pointe Public Library has requested an increase in the Library millage rate. While it is true that revenues to the Library have increased as "State Equalized Values" have risen, those increases are strictly limited to the cost of living thus preventing any potential for "Windfall" revenues being generated by increased property assessments. The simple fact is that revenues to the library have not kept pace with the ever increasing demands for Library services and the rising cost of providing those services.

The following summarizes the main issues about this most vital Library Millage Election:

lance Election:

- A 0.4 increase in the library's operating millage rate is essential to maintain library services at their present level.

- A 0.4 mill amounts to $20 a year for a homeowner whose house has a $100,000 assessed valuation ($50,000 SEV).

- While the increase in SEV's for the Grosse Pointes and part of Harper Woods is projected to be 8.5 percent, this does not equate to an 8.5 percent increase in tax dollars. The Headlee Amendment strictly limits tax revenues generated by increased assessments.

- The Headlee Amendment limits tax increases to Cost of Living increases. As a result, income to the library has failed to keep up with the demand for increased services and the rising costs of providing those services.

- During the past twenty years, the library millage rate has not increased. In fact, the library has voluntarily reduced its tax levy beyond the Headlee requirements in order to keep tax bills as low as possible.

- Twenty years ago, the Grosse Pointe Public Library's book collection was larger than it is today.

- Twenty years ago, cassettes, videotapes, and computer research services were not available through the library.

- Although the population of Grosse Pointe has declined over the past twenty years, use of the library by residents has increased. Circulation has grown, as has the number of people holding Library Cards.

- The cost of new books has risen faster than the Consumer Price Index. Unfortunately, it costs more just to stay in the same place.

- Passage of the 0.4 millage on June 13, 1988 is essential if the library is to continue its current level of operation.

- Polls will be open June 13, 1988, from 7 a.m. to 8 p.m. If you do not know where to vote, call 343-2016 to find out the location of your polling place.

The mission of the library is to serve people of all ages by actively providing easily accessible information, materials, services, and programs designed to meet

Our goal is to continue to maintain the current high level and quality of service the community now enjoys. Please join us in making this goal a reality.

Service to you

Your Grosse Pointe Public Library places high value on service to you. The key words are involvement and communication. There is involvement by many to help provide for your library needs. Public library staff are eager to communicate with you so that your library can provide better services.

Your libraries provide access to materials and programs that enrich lives, to information that answers questions, and to the connections between knowledge and the human spirit. They are links to your quest for truth and understanding, and reflect a commitment to community ideals.

It is always a pleasure to meet new users and new Friends of the Grosse Pointe Library and to share in the words of the poet W. B. Yeats:

Library Building Advisory Committee at Work

In February the Library Building Advisory Committee was appointed by the Board of Education. The goal of this committee is to develop an expansion plan for the Grosse Pointe Public Libraries and recommend that plan to the school board and the public.

These thirty-six members, which include interested citizens, school board members, school administrators and library employees, formed five subcommittees to study: 1. facilities, architects and architecture 2. library needs 3. library options and alternatives 4. budget and finance 5. community involvement and support.

After the initial organizational meeting, Doris Brucker was appointed chair of the Library Building Advisory Committee. She is working with Dr. Charles Hanson, director of Libraries, to coordinate the recommendations of the five subcommittees.

Over the past three months each subcommittee has been delving into its own list of complex questions, examining issues germane to the expansion program. During May the subcommittees are sharing results of their research with the committee as a whole. The public is invited to attend these meetings held at the library exhibition room.

In the months ahead the committee hopes to devise a plan for library expansion and improvement that will be recommended by the school board and will be enthusiastically supported by the community.

During this process the committee welcomes suggestions and comments from all citizens.

A Friend Publishes a Book

A beautiful new book "Discovering Stained Glass In Detroit" is the work of Nola Huse Tutag, a member of the Friends of the Grosse Pointe Library. Working with Lucy Hamilton, Dr. Tutag has produced a book describing in both words and pictures, some of Detroit's loveliest stained glass.

Our city, the book states, boasts many fine examples of stained glass representing a variety of periods and styles. Some glass panels were brought from Europe and date from the fourteenth century. Others are the work of such contemporary masters as Henri Matisse and Frank Lloyd Wright.

Besides the works at The Institute of Arts, the author includes some of the notable examples of stained glass found in local churches and synagogues. She also features glass found in such public buildings as the Detroit Public Library, Cranbrook House, The Guardian Building, and the house of David Whitney Jr., now a public restaurant. The book also presents work from contemporary local collections, such as the heraldic panels in the Edsel and Eleanor Ford House. Much historic information, as well as facts on the production of the lovely art form of stained glass is included in the book.

The two women responsible for this remarkable book have both had a long-time interest in stained glass. Dr. Tutag is a professor emeritus of Humanities at Wayne State University with an advanced graduate degree in Art History. Mrs. Hamilton worked with the Detroit Historical Society and founded the very popular Church Tours in Detroit. Dr. Tutag and Mrs. Hamilton have devised a unique plan for using the proceeds from the sale of "Discovering Stained Glass in Detroit" to develop a revolving fund which will provide loan money to churches which seek to refurbish their stained glass treasures.

Next year's Speakers Series at the Library will include a talk by Dr. Tutag in which she will discuss Detroit's legacy of rare and beautiful examples of stained glass. The audience will have an opportunity to learn more about the history and processes of stained glass production from this enthusiastic and knowledgeable educator.

A MESSAGE FROM NED CHALAT, PRESIDENT OF THE FRIENDS OF THE GROSSE POINTE PUBLIC LIBRARIES

Our communities, Grosse Pointe and Harper Woods, stand forth as a citizenry of readers. Our library system circulates more books per capita than any other in southeast Michigan. We have a substantial library, an excellent director in Dr. Hanson, a splendid staff and a good collection. We can be extremely thankful for these assets.

It is here my pleasure to describe the Friends of Grosse Pointe Public Library to you. For 42 years, we have acted as an organization of volunteers within the Grosse Pointes and portions of Harper Woods. We function entirely to support our local libraries with good deeds and with fund raising. Much of the actual work of the Friends is accomplished through its Board of Directors which currently has fifteen members composed of lawyers, bankers, teachers, realtors, physicians and long time residents, all devoted to benefit our community through its libraries.

We live during changing times and these periods often bring along changes in attitudes. We seem now to be caught up with counting, computing, calculating, "ticking off." This holds true in athletics, especially baseball, but also in building, accounting and even sex. We keep track of everything from averages to records, both good and bad. Even our friendships are involved in these changes. It is no longer uncommon to ask questions about "whose turn is it?"; and "What have you/we done for us lately?" becomes a reasonable query.

Thus, we shake off embarrassment and give in to urges to crow a little. Our Friends organization has contributed much support of our libraries.

The Friends membership dues and membership gifts provide the money for these projects.

Our principal activity is to support the book budget, $66,000 over the last three years. Perhaps half of our resources go toward this purpose.

Over the past several years we have been supplementing the computer services with; computers, nine in the last three years; laser scanners; a laser printer; ink jet printer; an Infra Trac; disc drives; diskettes; labels; software systems and display cases. Printed communication is most important and it must be fast and accurate, so the Friends Board expedited these efforts.

In addition, we have paid for the publication of the Library Pointes.

We have sponsored many adult education programs including photography, cooking, ships, genealogy, financial planning, authors and an annual dinner program.

For children, we have provided story hours, movies and a splendid summer reading program.

We commissioned a sculpture by the renowned Glen Michaels in honor of retiring director William Peters.

DR. NED CHALAT

We purchased three VHS-VCR video playback units to enhance this collection.

Annually, we provide promotional material for National Library Week and Children's Library Week. Often, we give the prizes for contests, eg. essay writing, poster and book mark design.

We provide plastic bags for rainy days, book marks, and sponsor the tote bag sale.

We also provide honoraria for conferences, workshops and seminars for staff development, and enrichment programs for our director and his staff.

With help from other garden groups in Grosse Pointe, we provide plantings and replacements for landscaping about the library.

Recently too, we tried to help in the expansion efforts. First we contributed toward the studies by King Research of the community expectations and the needs of our library program. We found we had about half enough space and half enough books to serve our reading community. The space for new books means old books must be retired.

Then we helped support a facility study and provide funds for architectural studies. We even helped to provide educational information during the millage campaign.

We are condemned now to relive some of our history. In 1965 and 1967, the School Board and the Board of Friends went through the same processes and the proposed changes were projected at 1.5 million dollars. It was up to the Friends President then to thank all those who worked so hard and hope for better days. That was twenty years ago, and tonight we are still in the same position with the same libraries and the same problems. We will continue to work hard and hope for better days. In looking at our library situation, there are many positives. We have a strong Friends organization, yet we always welcome more. Don't lose faith and do continue to support your Friends.
