By John Minnis
Assistant Editor

Remember that "82-channel hi-tech television set" you ordered? Well, it's finally arrived at the warehouse.

Grosse Pointers and Detroit area residents were among 2 million people nationwide who received post cards by U.S. mail recently announcing that their merchandise had arrived.

If you don't recall placing such an order, you're not alone. "We've received zillions of calls on that one," said Pointer Fred Van de Putte, a U.S. postal inspector in Detroit. He said he and other postal workers also received the postcards at home.

The yellow postcards, addressed to the residents by name, look official — too official, postal authorities believe.

"If a consumer reads all the fine print on the postcard," Van de Putte said, "he may see the company informs the public, as required by law, that 'this item is not a bill' and the recipient is 'under no obligation' to pay for the offer unless the offer is accepted."

The items being offered include the so-called high-tech

TVs, strings of pearls, VCRs, gas grills, mink coats and telephone answering machines.

All postcards state a low dollar amount is required for "immediate release and insured delivery" of the merchandise.

The amount required to have the high-tech TV delivered, for example, is $68.77. The amount for the string of pearls is $28, and $148.77 is required to receive the VCR.

"Even if you're tempted to buy a string of pearls for a seemingly unbeatable price," Van de Putte said, "think about what a $28 strand of pearls is going to look like. Do you think a VCR can be of high quality when it costs only $148.77?"

It's unclear whether the dollar amount stated on the cards is the price of the merchandise or its shipping cost. Also, it's not clear whether the cards are invoices or solicitations.

Because of the ambiguity the U.S. attorney's office and postal officials in Boston have obtained a temporary restraining order directing the Back

Sailing aweigh

Good boating days are numbered. As August draws to a close, school begins, vacations end and days grow shorter and cooler, boat owners turn to the inevitable chore of preparing their vessels for winter storage.

Grosse Pointe Park residents took advantage of the last few sunny summer days recently by climbing aboard their boats and venturing from the Windmill Pointe Park harbor, left, and by getting an up-close look at a passing Great Lakes freighter, right.

Pointe mayors oppose district court in Park

By John Minnis
Assistant Editor

The mayors of the five Grosse Pointes are opposed to any district court in the Pointes, even if it is only implemented in the Park.

That opposition was made clear Monday night during a discussion concerning the proposed district court in the Park.

The lead speaker was Shores President Edmund M. Brady Jr., who addressed the council not only as a top elected official but also as a representative of the five mayors. He said all the Pointe mayors were opposed to a district court in the Park, or the Pointes as a whole.

"I am totally opposed to a district court in all the Pointes and in the Park," he said. "I cannot understand why an economical and efficient court has to be changed to a district court."

His main objection to a district court is that the judge and state have control over staffing, salaries, facilities and the budget.

Councilman Daniel Clark, who favors a district court in the Park, countered that state law stipulates that while the judge does have control of the court, the city elected officials set the court's budget and the judge is required to work within that budget.

Brady argued that any disputes between the district judge and city would be mediated by the State Court Administrative Office, thereby ultimately putting control of the court's budget in the hands of the state, not the local elected body.

He said that if there is one message he would want people to get from his presentation, it is that if a district court is adopted, the State Court Administrative Office would run the court, not the city council.

Park resident Herbert D. Levitt, regional administrator with the State Court Administrative Office, took issue with Brady's remarks.

"I think we're seeing goblins here that haven't been proven out," he said. "I certainly don't think the communities are abdicating control."

Taking issue with Pointe Sen. John Kelly's remarks quoted in a Grosse Pointe News editorial that he doesn't know of a single district court losing money, Brady suggested he look at Harper Woods and Inkster district courts.

He said that while Harper Woods District Court 32A looks profitable on paper, in actuality it runs a deficit when police overtime to appear in court is taken into account. The police overtime is not part of the court budget, he said, and is not readily apparent.

"Police overtime turns the district court from a profitable operation to a losing one," he said.

Councilman James Robson objected to Brady comparing Harper Woods' district court to the Park. He said the high number of incidents at Eastland Mall makes comparisons between Harper Woods and the Park inaccurate.

Furthermore, Brady said the Harper Woods court has one judge and nine full-time employees. He said the Park's court staffing would likewise swell if it went to district court.

Currently, the court has a part-time judge, and three employees, including the court administrator, and a part-time bailiff. Park Municipal Judge Kirsten Frank has said that the staff would remain the same under a district court.

Responding to Brady's comments, she said she was tired of people outside the Park saying how many court employees her court will need.

Current enabling legislation in Lansing, if passed, would allow the Park to convert to a district court Jan. 1. Frank would become the incumbent district judge pending an election in November 1991.

Brady also said the Park has neither the facilities nor the parking to accommodate a full-time, five-day-a-week district court. Councilman David Gaskin agreed.

Frank responded, "What's wrong with these facilities?"

She said the Park court now

Pointer of Interest Judith Adams

By Ronald J. Bernas

Several years ago Judith Adams returned late on a Saturday evening to her Atlanta apartment after an eight-day business trip. She put down her suitcase full of dirty clothes, looked through her empty refrigerator and then checked her calendar.

She had five hours before she had to be on a plane for another business trip, this one for two weeks.

"It was that day I decided I had to quit my job," Adams said.

Adams, who now lives in Grosse Pointe Woods with her mother, Algaee, said she loved her job as a designer of medical centers, but it was taking over her life and she wanted time to read books, go to the theater and simply sit back and relax.

Today, as an artist specializing in miniatures, she still travels a lot — she'll display her work in shows in New York, Pittsburgh, Boston, St. Louis, Atlanta and Chicago — but she's able to set her own pace and travel where she wants to when she wants to.

Adams majored in art history at the University of California in San Diego, fully intending to

Two more streets in the Park will be closed temporarily after Labor Day so that the planning commission can continue its traffic study.

Lakepointe and Beaconsfield will be barricaded Sept. 3 at the Mack alley. The barricades will be in place for two weeks. Also, Nottingham and Maryland will be designated one-way northbound streets.

The closings and changes in traffic patterns were ordered by the planning commission at its Aug. 18 meeting.

Many residents at the meeting said they wanted streets closed at Mack to reduce through traffic and crime. Some residents wanted to know why all the streets entering Mack could not be closed.

Commission Chairman Lee Carrick Jr. said there was not sufficient data to justify street closings. He said the effects of street closures, especially on neighboring streets, and public safety concerns have to be addressed.

"We have to look for trends," he said. "We'll crunch the numbers and look at it in a way that makes sense."

Also at the meeting, traffic counts obtained during the recent temporary closings of Beaconsfield and Lakepointe at the Mack alley were presented to the commission. Carrick, however, said he couldn't comment on the numbers until they were entered in the computer and studied.

The additional street closings will give the commission further data to determine the effects of street closings.

Traffic will be counted on Maryland, Nottingham and Balfour. The commission is concerned that street closings at the western end of the city will cause more traffic on city streets to the east, such as Balfour.

Feds pay Woods for aid in drug bust

The Grosse Pointe Woods Public Safety Department has received a hefty check from the federal government for its participation in a drug raid on Lochmoor Avenue last year.

The check, for $6,501.56, must be used for drug enforcement activities under federal law. Woods Public Safety Director Jack Patterson said the money will be deposited into the city's Drug Enforcement Fund and may be used for officer training and new equipment, such as pistols.

Originally, the city council set the 1991-92 Drug Enforcement Fund budget at $1,050.

The forfeiture funds and other money have increased that amount to $8,050.

Undercover agents from the federal Drug Enforcement Administration (DEA) and the Internal Revenue Service raided the home on Lochmoor last June, as part of a Los Angeles-Detroit drug investigation. Woods public safety officers assisted in the surveillance of the home and in getting a warrant to search it, said Johnnie O. Granados, spokesman for the DEA in Detroit.

The DEA seized more than $130,000 in cash in the raid.

and eventually seized and liquidated the home, which was worth more than $300,000, Granados said.

The DEA has the power to distribute a percentage of the forfeiture money netted from a drug raid to local law enforcement agencies that helped in the investigation. Granados said. The percentage awarded is determined by the level of assistance provided, he said.

The Grosse Pointe Park Public Safety Department also assisted in the case by arresting a suspect, Granados said.

Bon Secours gets go-ahead on parking lot

By John Minnis

Assistant Editor
Bon Secours Hospital got the approvals it needed Monday night to begin building a new parking lot on property it owns on Cadieux in Grosse Pointe City.

The necessary rezoning and variances were approved by the city council, sitting as a board of zoning appeals, by 5-1 votes, with Councilwoman Myrna Smith casting the lone no vote. Councilwoman Lisa Bradley was absent due to illness.

The approvals allow the hospital to raze eight homes it owns on Cadieux between Jefferson and Maumee.

Actually, only seven of the homes will be torn down at first. The eighth home is protected by a living trust allowing the residents to live there as long as they like. After they move, that home will also be razed for additional parking.

Mike Serilla, assistant vice president of operations, said the hospital plans to get as much work done as possible this year. The residents of the homes, who are renting from Bon Secours, agreed to 60 days' notification to vacate.

The 60 days expire in mid-November. Serilla said he hopes the houses can be razed and asphalt paving and landscaping started this year.

He said the project, which initially calls for a 112-space, below grade lot surrounded by a brick wall and heavy landscaping, will cost the hospital about $500,000.

The council's approval of the parking lot followed opposition from many residents, especially from the Park side of Cadieux. During the planning process, the hospital met with residents and adopted many of their recommended changes.

Most residents who spoke at a public hearing Aug. 19 expressed opposition to the parking lot, while a few favored the hospital's plans.

City planner Brandon Rogers recommended approval of the plan.

In approving the parking lot rezoning and variances, the council imposed several conditions, which covered drainage, lighting, traffic signs, lawn irrigation, traffic control and community-hospital communications.

Smith said she voted against the project because the hospital had not given any assurances that it will not seek to expand in other areas in the future. She also said the hospital did not agree to make up lost school and county taxes. Further, she said she was concerned that the hospital did not provide assurances that use of street parking would be reduced on Notre Dame and Cadieux.

She said drainage problems were not resolved in writing and air and noise pollution was not addressed.

Bon Secours officials have said the parking lot should meet the hospital's needs for the next 10 years. Whether more or less parking will be needed after that, no one can predict, Serilla said.

Building, demolition firms face crackdown in Farms

By Donna Walker

Staff Writer
New rules to protect neighbors from some of the obnoxious side-effects of building construction, demolition and renovation have been added to the Grosse Pointe Farms nuisance ordinance.

Under the newly-revised ordinance passed by the city council last week, the owners of a construction site and their contractors must do the following:

- Put all of the litter, waste material and other debris generated at the construction site into a garbage bin that must be provided at the site by the land owner or contractor. The bin must be emptied at an "appropriate and licensed disposal facility whenever the volume of litter, garbage, debris and/or waste material reaches the capacity of said receptacle or receptacles."

- Keep all construction materials within the confines of the site's lot lines.

- Sweep all streets, roads and sidewalks adjacent to or abutting the construction site or building under construction at least once a week, and more frequently if the city director of public service says it's necessary.

- Install temporary fencing around designated portions of the site, and provide temporary portable toilet facilities at the site, if the director of public service deems it necessary.

ordinance, construction site owners and their contractors can't do the following:

- Transfer any garbage, waste material, grass clippings, etc., from one construction site to another.

- "Dump, deposit, place, throw, leave, bury or cause or permit the dumping, depositing, placing, throwing, leaving or burying of litter, garbage, grass clippings, debris or waste material at any construction site or building under construction." The same goes for streets, roads, sidewalks and premises of adjacent property owners. Violators have 48 hours to remove the debris after receiving notice from the city.

Any person — whether it's a professional home builder or a resident who is just trying to fix up his house — who violates the ordinance will be fined up to $500 or imprisoned for up to 90 days, or both, for each day of the offense.

Also, "No temporary or permanent certificate of occupancy for any structure or improvement for which construction has been completed may be issued until all fines assessed under the provisions of this ordinance have been paid in full," the ordinance states.

Councilman John M. Crowley said the amendments were the council's response to residents throughout the city who have complained about the dust and debris from neighboring construction sites.

Churchgoer's purse snatched

A 64-year-old Woods woman's purse was snatched as she walked to a Farms church at 9:46 a.m. Aug. 25.

The woman was walking toward the side entrance of the church on Lothrop when the thief came up behind her and grabbed her purse. A 31-year-old Park man witnessed the incident.

He said the thief stopped his car on Lothrop, left the engine running, got out of the car, ran up behind the woman, grabbed her purse, ran back to the car and drove off. The Park man said he tried to stop the thief, but was unable to grab him.

Police ran a check on the license plate number of the car the thief was driving. The car had been reported stolen earlier that morning from a used car lot on Hayes in Detroit.

Red Cross blood supplies dwindle, local hospitals feel the pinch

By Donna Walker
Staff Writer

For the second week in a row, the American Red Cross blood supply is critically low and the situation is not expected to get better until after Labor Day, said Nancy Aitken, a spokeswoman for the Southeastern Michigan Chapter of the American Red Cross in Detroit.

She said the chapter likes to keep over 1,000 units of O positive blood — the most common blood type — on hand each day, and that the chapter was down to just 50 units last Monday. The supply of other blood types is also down.

Aitken said that last week, the Red Cross started to dip into its emergency reserves — blood that is set aside for special emergency situations, such as a liver transplant. However, through good fortune, the chapter was able to build the emergency reserves back up, she said.

"Last week was worse than this week," Aitken said on Monday, "but today we're still in a bad situation."

Sixty hospitals in Wayne, Oakland, Macomb, St. Clair and Washtenaw counties, including St. John Hospital in Detroit, Cottage Hospital in Grosse Pointe Farms and Bon Secours Hospital in Grosse Pointe City, get their blood products from the Southeastern Michigan American Red Cross.

Normally, when a Red Cross chapter is strapped for blood products, it can borrow or buy them from other chapters. However, most of the country is suffering from lagging blood donations, Aitken said, making borrowing difficult.

Hurricane Bob also put a strain on the nation's blood supply, Aitken said. Bob cut off electricity to chapters in the northeastern part of the United States, causing their blood supplies to spoil. Chapters across the country that had blood available loaned it to the affected northeastern chapters.

So far, Cottage, St. John and Bon Secours have not had to cancel any surgeries due to the blood shortage, spokeswoman for the three hospitals said.

"But there was a point last week where we were considering cancelling elective surgeries," said Dr. Martha Higgins, an associate pathologist and medical director of St. John Hospital's blood bank. "We normally have an inventory of 80 units of group O positive red cells, and at one point we were down to 30."

To put that in perspective, she said that a patient who suffered a gun shot wound in the chest might require 20 to 30 units of blood an hour in the emergency room. In an emergency situation like that, when the hospital staff doesn't readily know what the patient's blood type is, they will give the patient O positive or O negative blood, because they are the most compatible with other blood types, Higgins said.

Over the past week, the hospital has been able to increase its blood supply "so that we're in a more comfortable position now," Higgins said.

However, she said that she is worried about the Labor Day weekend.

Aitken, of the Red Cross, said that donations usually drop off during the Labor Day weekend and other holidays. People simply have other things to do.

It takes at least 24 hours for blood to be screened by the Red Cross, Aitken said.

First, the donor must answer a battery of questions to determine if giving blood will harm the donor, and if his or her blood may carry diseases or medicine that could be passed on to the patient. After the donor gives blood, the donation is tested at a Red Cross laboratory.

"Even if the donor is a relative or friend that the patient trusts very much, I will not use any blood that hasn't been screened by the American Red Cross," Higgins said.

Otherwise, she said, the hospital could lose its certification by the Food and Drug Administration and the American Association of Blood Banks, which have strict safety rules governing blood donations to protect patients.

Donors can't get AIDS by giving blood, because a fresh needle is used each time.

Locally, people can give blood at the American Red Cross Roseville Donor Center, 17955 East 11 Mile in Roseville, or at the Renaissance Donor Center, located in the Renaissance Center, Tower 100, Level 1, in Detroit. Call 1-800-582-4383 for an appointment at either donor center.

Alternative reapportionment plan keeps Park in 1st County District

By John Minnis
Assistant Editor

A county district reapportionment plan was introduced last week that keeps the Park in the same district as the other Pointes and Harper Woods.

The new plan follows an earlier "bipartisan plan" that calls for moving the Park out of the 1st District and into the 2nd District, which now stops at Alter Road. The 1st District currently comprises all the Pointes, Harper Woods and a portion of Detroit.

The new reapportionment proposal, called the "minimal change plan," was presented to the Wayne County apportionment commission last Friday, Aug. 23, by Commissioners William O'Neil of Allen Park, Kevin Kelley of Redford, and Brian Amann of Wayne.

O'Neil, representing the 14th District, said he and his two colleagues believe district boundaries should be changed as little as possible during reapportionment and that the Pointes should remain in the same county commissioner district.

"We never even considered not keeping the Pointes in one district," he said.

Instead of carving the Park out of the 1st District to make up for population loss in the 2nd District, as the bipartisan plan proposes, the minimal-change plan slices off some of the 1st District's Detroit neighborhoods to bolster the 2nd District.

The minimal-change plan will be well received in Grosse Pointe Park, where the city council Monday night unanimously approved a resolution calling for the Park to remain in the 1st District with the other Pointes.

Councilman James Robson recommended a "more reasonable, democratic plan" that would annex part of the Detroit sector of the 1st District into the 2nd. He believes that would ensure continued fair representation for Detroiters and Park residents.

Robson's resolution will be sent to the county board of commissioners and the apportionment commission.

Under the minimal-change plan, the five Pointes would represent 36.1 percent of the 1st District's proposed 136,000 residents. The Pointes and Harper Woods combined would comprise 47.1 percent of the district. Detroit would continue to make up the majority (52.9 percent) of the 1st District's residents.

Under the bipartisan plan, the suburban communities — the four remaining Pointes and Harper Woods — would make up 36.9 percent of the 1st District. The Park would account for only 9.2 percent of the 2nd District's population under the bipartisan plan.

O'Neil said he believes that about 10 of the county's 15 commissioners support the minimal-change plan. He said many commissioners are opposed to the bipartisan plan.

He also said his plan "passes the litmus tests" of the federal Voting Rights Act.

The apportionment commission will receive plans from the public until Sept. 6. It has until Sept. 27 to adopt an apportionment plan. It could adopt or amend one of the submitted plans or it could draw its own.

The commission's adopted plan can be challenged in court, and O'Neil vowed that if the bipartisan plan is adopted, there will be a court challenge — "guaranteed."

Car burgled in garage

A garage in the 400 block of Bournmouth in the Farms was entered sometime between 8 p.m. Aug. 24 and 9 a.m. the following day and the car inside was broken into.

The intruder entered through an unlocked side garage door. Once inside, the burglar tried to jimmy the car door and, failing that, broke out the driver's side window. A purse containing cash and credit cards was taken from the car.

The residents awoke in the morning to find their electric garage door open. It had been closed the night before.

Pot found

A 3 1/2-foot marijuana plant and four other smaller plants were found Aug. 21 growing behind a home on Lakeshore Lane in Grosse Pointe Shores.

A man doing yard work at a neighboring home saw what he thought were marijuana plants growing in a yard. Police investigated and found five plants — one 42 inches tall and two others in pots — growing at the Lakeshore Lane home.

Police confiscated the plants. No charges have been filed and police are continuing the investigation.

Cellular phone company acts to close 'gap' in Lakeshore service

By Donna Walker
Staff Writer

Ameritech cellular phone users should find it easier to "reach out and touch someone" while tooling down Lakeshore next year.

Currently, they sometimes get static on the line, or can't place a call at all, or get cut off, said John Riley zoning attorney for Ameritech Mobile Communications Inc. The problem is caused by a gap in the firm's cell system, Riley said.

In the system, antennas and computer equipment are spread throughout a region in a grid-like pattern to help direct customers' calls. On a map, the grid would look like a bunch of interlocking octagons, or cells, approximately 1 to 20 miles in diameter. Ideally, antennas and computer equipment are placed in the center of the cell area, Riley said.

The cell that includes Lakeshore in Grosse Pointe Farms doesn't have its own Ameritech antennas and computer equipment. That's why calls sometimes get garbled or lost, Riley said.

However, Ameritech, with the cooperation of the Farms, is working to correct the problem.

The Farms city council on Aug. 19 granted Ameritech a conditional use permit to erect antennas on top of the Bologna Building, located at 131 Kercheval.

Ameritech is going to install 12 antennas on top of the building, inside an existing metal frame on the roof. Then the firm is going to enclose the frame in fiberglass, to disguise and protect the antennas, Riley said.

Four of the antennas are 1-foot by 1-foot square panels. The other eight antennas are 1-foot by 2-foot panels, Riley said.

Ameritech will install its computer equipment in the basement, and run cables up through the building to the antennas. Riley said the company will lease space from the owners of the building.

Ameritech still needs to get a building permit from the city, Riley said. After that, the involved process of construction and computer and antenna installation can begin. Riley said the equipment should be operational — and that customers should see an improvement in service along Lakeshore — by next year.

Lisa Elian, communications manager for Ameritech Mobile Communications Inc.-Detroit, said that the company has 350,000 mobile phone customers in Michigan, Wisconsin, Illinois, Indiana and Ohio.

According to a fact sheet presented by Elian, the first mobile communications system started Oct. 13, 1983, in Chicago, and compared to conventional phones and television, the mobile phone industry has grown phenomenally in the past five years.

For example, it took 20 years before a million people had conventional telephones, 15 years before a million people owned a television set, and only four years for a million people to have mobile phones.

As of March 1991, the fact sheet said, 5.3 million people in the United States and Canada had mobile phone service. Worldwide, there were 7.7 million mobile phone users.

Mobile communications works like this, according to information provided by Elian: Areas with mobile phone service are divided into cells, as described earlier. Located in the center of the cell is a low-power radio transmitter/receiver tower called a "cell site." (Ameritech has 4,768 cell sites nationwide, Elian said.)

When making a call from a mobile phone, a radio signal travels from the phone to the cell site. The site transmits the signal via a land line, microwave or fiber optics to a computer at the mobile telephone switching office. That office then transmits the signal to the local telephone company's main switching office.

The telephone company sends the signal out to a local switching office closest to the place being called, completing the connection.

As the caller drives through different areas, the phone call is automatically passed from cell site to cell site without noticeable interruption, due to a computer at the mobile telephone switching office that controls the transmitter power.

Cellular systems are different from two-way radio systems, the fact sheet says. Two-way systems, like Citizens Band radio, have a few radio channels that everyone must share. Cellular systems only have a few channels, too, but each cell site simultaneously reuses those channels so that customers don't have to share their conversations.

The cell sites do this by controlling the transmission intensity. Controlling the intensity shapes and limits radio frequencies to that individual cell.

Got all that? If you didn't, don't worry. You don't have to pass a test to use a mobile phone.

Major projects completed in school district

By Ronald J. Bernas
Staff Writer

Just because the kids weren't in school over the summer doesn't mean the district has been idle — in the last three months, more than $1 million worth of building and site repair projects have been completed on school grounds, according to Christian Fenton, assistant superintendent for business and support services.

One of the biggest projects this summer was replacing the windows at Maire Elementary School with more energy-efficient units. The cost was $225,000 and was part of a larger window-replacement project paid for by a 1989 bond.

Also part of that project was the $75,000 worth of new windows and a new entrance at the Woods branch library.

The library is connected to Parcels Middle School so with the completion of that work the window project at Parcels Middle School is completed.

Another major project completed this summer was roof repair at Grosse Pointe North High School. Smaller roof projects were undertaken at Barnes Elementary, Parcels Middle School, Ferry Elementary and Brownell Middle School, he said. The roofing projects cost some $600,000.

The schools took advantage of the four-day power outage that followed the July 7 storm to replace the outdated air conditioning at the Central Library. In mid- to late-September, the library's carpeting will be replaced. The library projects cost a combined $100,000.

The district contributed $35,000 to the cost of re-surfacing the tennis courts at Elworthy field. The courts are owned by Grosse Pointe City, but the schools' tennis teams use them extensively in season.

The football field bleachers at Grosse Pointe South were replaced. Also, some asbestos was removed from wind tunnels at South.

Fenton said some minor parking lot work was completed at Trombly and Defer elementary schools.

Some shifting of services also took place during the summer.

The Instructional Media Center was moved from Barnes to Grosse Pointe South High School.

Services for Older Citizens moved from Ferry Elementary School to Room 105 at Barnes Elementary School. Its telephone number is still 882-9600. The offices of the Grosse Pointe Historical Society moved from Poupard Elementary School to Ferry. Its number remains 884-7010, but its offices will be closed until after Labor Day.

"Some of these projects were carryovers from previous budgets," Fenton said. "But the total was down slightly from the year before because we're getting to the point that all of our major projects — like the roofs — are being completed."

Fenton said that while building and site projects continue throughout the year, most are completed in the summer to minimize class disruptions.

Wheelchair-bound suspect strikes again in the Park

The wheelchair-bound Detroit man charged in the Park with larceny last month has struck again.

At 3:08 p.m. Aug. 16, Park police responded to a report of a man in a garage in the 1200 block of Maryland. When police arrived, a man in a wheelchair exited the garage carrying several items.

He was the same man charged July 7 with two counts of larceny from a garage.

Park police processed him on a third count of larceny Aug. 16 and released him. At 4:41 p.m. on the same day, however, police saw the man wheeling his chair down the Maryland-Wayburn alley in the 1100 block. This time he was carrying off someone's bicycle.

He was again arrested and charged with a fourth count of larceny.

He's in the army now

A 31-year-old Woods man is taking seriously his oath to serve his country.

At 12:21 a.m. Aug. 25, Woods police received a report that a man was running down Hampton Road yelling a military cadence.

Officers investigated and found the report was true. They stopped the man and asked what he was doing. He said he will be entering the armed services shortly and he was preparing himself both mentally and physically.

He continued his pre-basic training regimen, albeit a little more quietly.

Mercury tally just a guess, state admits

By Ronald J. Bernas
Staff Writer

A briefing on mercury levels emitted by local incinerators prepared for Gov. John Engler by the DNR air quality division named the Grosse Pointe-Clinton Refuse Disposal Authority as the heaviest mercury producer in the state.

But according to the DNR, those figures may or may not be correct and the incinerator which handles the Pointes' trash does not pose an immediate threat to the environment.

Ed Whedon, general manager of the incinerator, said he had no idea where the figures came from, because no testing was done.

Rick Johns, assistant chief of the DNR air quality division, said the figures given to the governor were estimated because no study was conducted and no figures are available for the incinerator.

"The figures we gave were estimated based on what is the allowed mercury emission for that facility," Johns said. "We have not conducted any tests on that facility."

The briefing which contains the estimates was prepared for the governor to help him make a decision on a petition for a new incinerator in Oakland County.

Newer incinerator facilities must be tested for mercury, Johns said, and within five years he expects state or federal legislation will be in place requiring all incinerators to have mercury-emission treatment equipment.

How to dilute political clout in the Pointes

Most residents of the Grosse Pointes approve of their local municipalities, defend them against unfair criticism and praise the quality of life in the wider Grosse Pointe community.

Yet that privilege of living in five separate municipalities costs all of us something in terms of political clout for the five Pointes, as events have recently taught us again.

The reason was explained by the two sponsors of the so-called bipartisan plan to reapportion the 15 districts in Wayne County government when they were asked why they proposed that Grosse Pointe Park be split off from the other four Pointes which remain in Commissioner District 1.

The response of the Democratic vice chairman of the commission was predictable. "They are five distinct communities," Dr. Juliette Okotie-Eboh told John Minnis of the Grosse Pointe News staff.

Unfortunately for the Pointes, Wendy Lamb of Lincoln Park, the lone Republican on the apportionment commission, agreed with her Democratic colleague.

Opinion

"It would not be fair to Republicans in western Wayne County," she told Minnis, when he offered the view that the Pointes consider themselves one community.

What she meant by that somewhat unresponsive remark is that she was really more interested in finding a second Republican district in Wayne County's reapportionment of commissioner districts and that she thought she had done so in the western Wayne County area, which offers no help to the GOP here.

However, the Grosse Pointe News has learned that three Democratic county commissioners representing both city of Detroit and suburban areas have offered another redistricting plan that would leave the Pointes undisturbed in the 1st District.

Commissioner William O'Neil of the suburban 14th District told the News that he and his two colleagues agreed that the Pointes really deserved to remain part of a single district but also cited other differences between their "minimal change plan" and the bipartisan plan that would shift the Park into the 2nd District.

In fact, O'Neil promised a court fight against the bipartisan plan if it were adopted but said that the plan he and his two colleagues proposed seemed to satisfy at least 10 to 12 of the current 15 commissioners. He said, however, he had not received any response from David P. Cavanagh, the 1st District commissioner who represents the Pointes.

Legally, he said, the new plan "passes the litmus tests" of compliance with the Voting Rights Act as well as with court decisions such as those barring any plan from crossing municipal lines or breaking up communities.

Even though all the Pointe municipal governments were notified of the recent apportionment commission meeting, not a single official was present from the Pointes and apparently no Grosse Pointe residents except a Grosse Pointe News reporter attended the session.

If some Pointe officials had attended, perhaps they might have been able to refute the contention of Commissioner Lamb and her Democratic co-sponsor that the Pointes are separate communities.

As we know, the Pointes constitute one school district, with a little chunk of Harper Woods thrown in for good measure; are considered one community by Michigan Bell's white/yellow pages; are designated by law as one district court area (although it never has been brought to fruition); are served by a single probation department, and are regarded as a distinct community by most residents.

However, the five Pointes are seen officially as separate communities because they lack a unified municipal government. Yet we predict that some day it will become politically desirable to merge the Pointes and increase their clout to serve as a protective device against forces that threaten further damage to their separate interests.

In confronting the current problem, local citizens might help keep all the Pointes within a single commissioner district by writing to or appearing in person before the Wayne County Apportionment Commission at the City-County Building at 2 Woodward Ave., Detroit, Mich. 48226.

The next meeting is scheduled for 1 p.m. Friday, Sept. 6, in Room B-57 in the City-County Building and an expression of strong local opposition could possibly sidetrack the proposal to shift the Park into the 2nd Commissioner District or possibly lead to greater support for the "minimal change plan" that would keep all the Pointes in the 1st District.

7 days that shook the world

It is time that American John Reed's pro-Communist account of the 1917 revolution, "Ten Days that Shook the World," be replaced by a 1991 sequel, "Seven Days that Shook the World," to record the obituary of Russian communism.

When President Mikhail Gorbachev renounced his Communist Party leadership and called for the party's dissolution after his miraculous restoration to power, it marked the end of a movement that had held the USSR and much of Eastern Europe in bondage for more than 70 years.

The dawn of a new era in the Soviet Union was epitomized by the restoration in the Russian republic of the old czarist flag without the Communist hammer and sickle and by the toppling of the statues of Communist Party leader Vladimir Lenin and the founder of the USSR's secret police.

But it also was marked by Boris Yeltsin's surge to power as not only the democratically elected president of Russia, the country's largest republic, but as the nation's apparent political leader.

True, it is not yet clear whether chaos will now rule or whether in the USSR's difficult transition to democracy and a market economy order can be maintained. Nor is it yet clear whether the USSR as a nation is now finished.

At this writing, a majority of its 15 republics had either declared themselves independent or were making plans to break away from the USSR. No centralized power seems to be left to prevent them their departure.

Through the hectic week, President George Bush moved cautiously. He kept his distance from the leaders of the coup but counseled them to restore Gorbachev on the grounds that they had violated their constitution.

With Gorbachev's return to power, Bush expressed his relief and satisfaction, made available another $315 million in agricultural credits but warned that more U.S. aid would depend on the USSR's moves toward economic and political reform.

The sudden end of the ill-fated coup must be regarded as a triumph of the Russian people and their new desire to achieve democracy, or, as Secretary of State James Baker aptly put it, as recognition of the fact that today political power grows out of the people, not, as Communist leaders used to say, from the barrel of a gun.

Yet we also think Bush's approach, coupled with the junta's lack of support from our European allies, helped convince the revolt's leaders that they had no chance of winning control against the will of the people and the will of the West.

The question now is whether Gorbachev can divorce himself from his past quickly enough to stay ahead of the surging democratic wave sweeping through the Soviet empire. At the moment, Yeltsin appears to be the actual ruler not only of the Russian republic but of the tattered remains of the USSR.

Tax cuts seen as '92 issue

With both Republicans and Democrats gearing up to put property tax cut proposals on the 1992 general election ballot, it is clear that the issue will be a major one again in the 1992 Michigan election.

Yet the GOP proposal in particular brings back memories not only of the successful efforts to eliminate the sales tax on food and drugs more than a decade ago but also of the sponsors' contention that the cutback would not require any replacement revenues.

Instead, the sponsors said, the loss of revenue could be met by increased efforts to eliminate waste and inefficiency in state government.

With the benefit of that airy promise, the sponsors succeeded in selling the sales tax reduction package to the state's voters in a referendum.

And so what happened?

The savings couldn't be found and it soon became necessary to raise the state income tax to meet the revenue shortfall.

So why bring up this issue now?

Because it is so similar to current GOP promises to replace the cut in property taxes with the revenues to be produced by a reviving economy.

If the economy doesn't revive fast enough or far enough to help finance the loss in revenues stemming from a property tax cut, the solution would be either to cut services even further or to raise other taxes, as the Legislature was forced to do back when the sale tax coverage was reduced.

True, the Democrats have promised that they would finance the costs of their plan to cut property taxes by eliminating $750 million in tax breaks for business. Their tax plan would exempt the first $30,000 of a home's market value from school operating taxes and thus benefit chiefly small homeowners.

Democrats contend, with some justification, that a massive shift has occurred in property taxes in favor of business in the last decade. Their argument is that the current clamor about excessive taxes on business and industry is unjustified and that, instead, the state's business and industry interests have fared quite well in comparison with Michigan homeowners in recent years.

Yet in our view this is not the time to impose additional taxes on any one segment of the population. Nor, in fact, is it the time to cut state taxes, either under the GOP or Democratic plans, because of the revenues required to meet the many needs of the state and its people.

Park passes

To the Editor:

I read with interest the short article in last week's issue regarding forged park passes in the Farms. What a joke reading that Dick Huhn said he wants park personnel to be on the alert for the bogus passes.

Do you know how the employees verify that you are indeed a resident of Grosse Pointe Farms? They sit inside their station, and from that distance, nod at each driver as we hold up our pass.

They can neither see clearly what it is I'm holding up from that distance, nor whose name is on the pass nor whether it is an authentic anything. What a fiasco.

For years, I made sure I carried with me a pass for each member of my family who I was taking to the park on any given day. I would approach the guard with every pass in my hand.

I stopped doing that last year when I realized that they didn't care how many passes I was holding up, how many people were in my car, or, indeed, if it was a pass I was holding up. No one has even come near my car this year to verify what it is I'm holding up.

I now bring one pass for my whole family, and no one cares.

So much for security checks.

Make it safe

To the Editor:

It is sobering to realize that when our nation celebrates a holiday, hundreds of lives are lost and thousands of lives are irrevocably changed through carelessness and irresponsibility.

I am reminded of what the British poet A. E. Housman wrote, "A moment's thought would have shown him, but a moment is a long time and thought is a painful process."

Much longer times of greater pain from accidents and deaths due to holiday celebrations could be avoided if we gave a "moment's thought" to the consequences of our actions. Traffic accidents, violence, recreational mishaps and children's injuries often mar the end-of-the-summer Labor Day weekend.

During a typical Labor Day weekend, over 400 auto crash fatalities occur and about 20,000 people suffer disabling traffic-related injuries. These grim statistics are doubly tragic because most traffic crashes are preventable.

In fact, the overwhelming majority of motor vehicle injuries are not really "accidents" at all. But, by adhering to safety principles, crash-related fatalities and injuries can be reduced.

We can prevent needless fatalities by exercising

State fair only fair this year

The 143rd Michigan State Fair is pretty good this year, but it still lacks the excitement of the past.

But like many others, my memories of attending the fair as a youth may be distorting my current expectations.

As youngsters, my brothers and I spent an entire day and evening prowling around the fairgrounds. There probably wasn't a square inch of the fair that we did not trample.

While we ran around sticking our nose and fingers into everything, mom and dad relaxed, listened to musicians and munched on french fries — the kind that you can only get at the fair.

This year I, too, enjoyed the fries and a meatball sub. Some things haven't changed, fortunately. The agricultural displays were impressive as always, as were the pigs, cows, horses, chickens, rabbits, geese and on and on.

Of course, I have an interest in that sort of thing, having grown up on a farm. My brother and I even spent several days at the fair one year helping a neighbor farmer who was showing Holstein dairy cows. It was an exciting adventure for 12-year-olds, even if it meant three days of no sleep and little time to clean up.

Last Saturday was Dairy Day at the fair and the Michigan Milk Producers Association went all out, as usual. Fairgoers had the opportunity to drink chocolate milk from bottomless cups. It must have taken a lot of brown cows to produce so much chocolate milk.

Last year, former Congressman and U.S. Senate candidate Bill Schuette finally got his hands on something he could handle — he won the association's celebrity milking contest. This year, as state director of agriculture, he showed up to defend his title, but he lost to a professional dairy farmer. In Schuette's defense, however, he was stuck with a bum cow that reluctantly gave up her milk.

While some say city dwellers are no longer interested in the state fair, the same cannot be said for those living in the country. The best of Michigan's agricultural produce was represented at the fair, and it would be a loss if the fair no longer provided the forum for the wholesome competitiveness of rural life.

Some things were missing at the fair — some good, some bad.

Missing (at least I didn't notice them if they were there) were the two-headed calf; the world's fattest, tallest, thinnest men; the Amazon woman; and other oddities of nature. Perhaps we have matured some and are no longer titillated by others' misfortune.

Also missing were the large displays sponsored by the car companies.

Ford's perennial display building with the ramp near the band shell has been taken over by a spa company and the fair's information center. None of the other carmakers was represented either.

The big rigs were also absent. As kids we used to like crawling on the semi-tractors, pretending we were cruising the highways. Heck, even the men used to gape goggle-eyed at the huge truck engines, offering their expertise on the subject — or any subject.

Expertise on everything — or at least the willingness to speak expertly on any subject — must come from a gene in the Y-chromosome because it is universal with men.

I wonder why the automakers were absent. Surely, if they want to entice people to buy new cars they have to pitch them first. What better place than at the Michigan State Fair in the motor capital of the world?

Earlier reports were that this would be the last Michigan State Fair. Since then, the state has relented. After 143 years, it would have been a terrible loss to see the fair discontinued.

Some say crime is a factor. Actually, it's the perception of crime that is the problem. This year, I found the parking easy to get into and completely enclosed. Security was present everywhere. State, county and Detroit police patrolled the exhibits, the midway and the parking lots.

With the automakers' absence, the agricultural industry is the most widely represented.

Perhaps it is true that the fair has no more urban interest.

If that's the case, then maybe the state should consider moving the fair to Lapeer County or St. Clair County, closer to the people it serves. If it's still within an hour of the metropolitan area, it would be accessible to city slickers like myself who still enjoy an agricultural fair.

Of course, the loss of the fair would be another blow to Detroit at a time when it doesn't need more woe. I for one would not want to kick the city while it's down. But it is up to the city and its residents — and us in the suburbs — to convince the state that the fair belongs here.

The best way to show our support is to attend the fair. High attendance will prove that we still enjoy the fair and that it's a worthwhile expenditure of taxpayers' money.

The fair runs through Labor Day, so you still have a few more days to make it. Take the kids, they'll have an experience they won't forget, and they will in years to come share the nostalgia for the annual event that has been so much a part of all our lives.

Alumni officers

The Villanova Alumni Club of Detroit elected some Grosse Pointers to officers' positions at its annual meeting Aug. 7. Outgoing president James G. O'Connor has been elected vice president of the national alumni association. Philip K. Mebus III was elected president of the Detroit club, Carolyn Crawford Mebus was elected secretary and John McLellan was elected alumni representative to the board of governors.

Give blood

Southeastern Michigan needs blood.

The Red Cross has described the situation as "precarious" and at least one local hospital has said it may resort to postponing elective surgeries until the blood supply has been replenished.

Cottage Hospital will hold a blood drive on Monday, Sept. 9, from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m.

For the locations of nearby Red Cross Centers, call 1-800-582-4383.

Tune up

The Society for the Preservation and Advancement of the Harmonica (SPA) is a non-profit organization which promotes the art of harmonica playing.

The society is sponsoring a festival and international harmonica competition beginning Tuesday, Oct. 22, at the Radisson Hotel in Romulus.

The event will feature soloists, trios and ensembles from around the world and competition among the world's great harmonica players.

Seminars, workshops and lots of open playing time are part of the five-day event.

For more information, write to SPAH, PO Box 865, Troy, 48069, or call Bev O'Connor at 949-6235.

Zzzzzzzzzzz

According to the Snooze News, a publication of the Better Sleep Council, a non-profit educational organization supported by the bedding industry, people who sleep less think their lives are more stressful than those who sleep more.

In a research project involving 82 college students, those who slept from 9-15 hours a day reported fewer daily hassles and less stress.

Hey, this is probably because they slept through it.

Is that a fact? Don't bet on it

Just when you thought you understood something — gotcha! — things aren't what they seemed.

Take Christopher Columbus.

Nancy Parmenter

Old Chris "discovered" America and everybody thought it was the best thing since pizza. Just as we were about to celebrate the anniversary, somebody noticed that the arrival of Columbus brought disease, slavery, and genocide to our shores. Oops, Chris, at least Leif had the good grace to go away.

The conventional wisdom is that conventional wisdom probably isn't true any more. Newsweek even runs a weekly column to that effect.

Two new entries in the Things Aren't What They Seem category have to do with native peoples. What's being debunked this time (at least in two particular cases) is the belief that native people lived in harmony with nature and each other and that the Earth only started its downward environmental spiral when Europeans gained ascendancy.

Case in point: An American archeologist studying Mayan ruins in Belize has developed a new theory about the decline of the Mayan empire. He believes the Mayas destroyed themselves by polluting rivers with sewage and garbage and failing to realize their dependence on each other and the environment.

"I believe it began when one city polluted the rivers, causing massive death and illness in the cities downstream," archeologist Peter Dunham told the Cleveland Plain Dealer. "When the downstream cities were gone, the upstream cities died out for lack of trade."

The Mayas didn't disappear, of course, any more than the Romans or the Incas did, but their distinctive trading culture eventually vanished.

Similarly self-destructive was the cataclysmic near-end of the civilization on Easter Island, as reported in August's World Monitor.

The latest theory about that land of puzzling stone heads is that the society blew up in a confrontation between a tiny ruling class and a large subjugated group.

Poor farming methods had already stripped the land of trees and brush (and habitat for food animals). The last bits of forest were cut and the logs were piled as a barricade against the rebellious serfs, who, however, set the brush afire and incinerated the rulers. Then, anarchy broke out, tribal groups warred, people refused to work the fields, the food supply dwindled. Cannibalism became widespread, epidemics flared, and the original population of 8,000 was reduced to about 300.

The lesson here may be only that no population group is immune to self-destructive ways. Modern Americans have fallen again into the 18th century habit of idealizing and romanticizing the Noble Savage. Could it be that the reason Indians had so little negative impact on Earth and its creatures is that there just weren't very many Indians?

Conventional wisdom, on some sides at least, held that lots of kids would want to opt into Grosse Pointe's new gifted magnet classes. Of course, wisdom on the other side believed all students would want to be treated the same.

So the enrollment seems to have some surprises for everyone. More of the older kids want the gifted classes; more of the younger kids want the regular classes. I don't know what to conclude from that.

Teaching young boys in a sex-segregated public school isn't as legal as it seemed. The Detroit schools received a major setback in the plan for the male academies when a federal judge ruled them unconstitutional.

It's a disappointing outcome for a good idea that tried to buck the old conventional wisdom with a new wisdom; with any luck, a plan to salvage it may soon be worked out. Why not accelerate plans for a female academy?

Society seems to be coming around in a circle on the subject of sex segregation. Only a generation ago, Catholic schools, in particular, commonly educated students in that setting. The Ivy League, the Seven Sisters, and the prep schools that fed into them, were all segregated by sex.

Apparently, no sooner was that system abolished than we've become interested again.

The decision against the boys' schools is particularly ironic because it comes at a time when my alma mater, one of the few holdouts for single-sex education, is reassessing that commitment. The market for women's colleges just isn't there any more, some officials at Mount Holyoke fear. Young women want to go where the guys are.

I'm not so sure that will be true in a few years. If schools, public or private, start offering

Leave the door ajar

Grief doesn't always wear the face of tragedy. There is comfort to be derived from happy remembrances. The grieving process can take us on a variety of journeys, going down wonderful roads, weaving intricate patterns with our mind's eye, summoning comforting thoughts and warm feelings.

Some personal experiences this summer have caused me to examine more closely the whole process of grieving. On the surface, grieving would appear to be an extremely emotional, gut-wrenching experience, fraught with pain and tears. At close range it can indeed be complicated; however it can also be exquisitely simple.

I think that grief is mostly about loss. We mourn the loss of our ability to share with those who have been close to us. We miss the exchanges, both emotional and physical. When we try to capture a moment from the past and find it to be elusive, grief results.

This was especially evident to me the first time I returned to enter my mother's cottage, almost two years after her death. Tangible evidence of her presence was everywhere. As I lovingly touched things that were special to her, the memories evoked were almost overwhelming. Her coat to shield her from the chilly lake nights still hung in her closet. The painting purchased on a summer excursion to an art fair was in its place over the mantel. Little reminders of visits to antique shops adorned the walls and shelves, all as she had left them. At first there was a feeling within me of trespassing. That feeling was soon replaced by a feeling of closeness and comfort.

Similarly, there is a chair at our cottage that was my father's. He always sat there next to the fireplace and after his death, it took me awhile before I was able to sit in that particular chair. Now as I settle into that warm space, I can almost feel protective arms around me as I read by the fire on cool summer evenings.

At times it is difficult to distinguish grieving from reminiscing, and perhaps they are not totally separate. Professionals assign varying time periods for "acceptable" grieving. It is my opinion that unless one spends an inordinate amount of time wallowing in grief, little harm will occur and perhaps healing benefits will come more quickly than if grief had been denied. Closing emotional doors can be fine, but what is wrong with leaving the door ajar for an occasional return visit when the need occurs?

Some of us grieve for family members, friends and beloved pets decades after we have been separated. It would seem to me that a walk down memory lane, a daydream of things lost, a tear shed mourning the loss of a loved one or even a job are all within the realm of normal human behavior. However, we should not permit grief to rule our lives. So if we occasionally look back and remember we will probably feel better for the experience. But, let's not neglect today and tomorrow. The true tragedy would be the squandering of the precious gift of life.

common sense in our holiday celebrations. Jerry Cheske from the American Automobile Association says, "The keys to a safe and happy Labor Day holiday are 1) avoid alcohol 2) wear your safety-belt when traveling 3) drive the speed limit, and 4) be extra careful when traveling close to home or on two-lane roads. One or more of these elements are ignored in the majority of fatal holiday accidents."

Alcohol is a "grim reaper." Nearly half of all traffic fatalities are alcohol-related. Drunk driving continues to be one of the nation's most serious public health and safety problems.

Seat belt use is critical to survival in automobile crashes. Tragically, 90 percent of the fatalities in traffic crashes are not wearing seat belts. Child-resistant seats have been required for children under age 5 for the past 10 years. Because of that law, 1,500 babies are alive today.

Speed was the most prevalent driver-error-related cause contributing to automobile crashes and one-third of all fatal crashes are speed-related. Clearly, speed is a killer.

Even though people travel long distances over a holiday, the National Safety Council reports that three out of four traffic accidents occur within 25 miles of home.

A holiday danger that is increasingly more prevalent is violence. Violent incidents are usually the result of angry, emotional outbursts fueled by alcohol and other drugs. Americans would be wise to avoid holiday situations that might get out of hand.

With the focus on fun, holidays are a prime time for recreational mishaps.

There are more than 60 million recreational boaters in the United States.

In recreation as in driving, alcohol is a deadly companion. The National Transportation Safety Board estimates that alcohol use is associated with between one-third to two-thirds of recreational boating deaths. Drownings and diving injuries center on the deadly combination of water activities and drinking — more than 8,000 drownings occur each year and about half of these involve drinking.

Each year as many as 1,000 spinal cord injuries result when persons dive into too-shallow water. The drought of this summer has produced record low-water levels and thus has increased the risks of diving injuries. Even in familiar waters, divers should test the depth of the water before considering it safe.

Drowning is a leading cause of death among children — most happen in swimming pools, but around 10 percent occur in bathtubs and another 10 percent happen in buckets, toilets and ponds.

Above all, on this Labor Day weekend use your common sense. Keep your end-of-the-summer holiday safe by adding a bit of caution to your fun, picnics and barbecues.

Nothing ruins a holiday more than a trip to a hospital emergency room.

sex-segregated education, it could change the demand at the college level.

Studies have indicated that boys and girls mature academically at a different pace. In the early years, girls tend to do better than boys, but by the high school and college level, girls have been socialized to defer to males.

Mount Holyoke (to continue with that example) is justifiably proud that it has graduated more women who go on to Ph.D. than any other undergraduate institution in the country. And they attribute that to the fact that women are educated separately there.

"Women attending women's colleges develop measurably higher levels of self-esteem, score higher on standardized tests, are more likely to enter traditionally male professions, and are more successful in their careers..." says scientist Evelyn Fox Keller, who has studied women in science.

Extrapolation can be dangerous, but might not this suggest that single-sex education can be beneficial at any level?

Mount Holyoke's quandary is economic, not legal. That's the difference between public and private education.

I appreciate the distinction, but I guess I don't see why the public schools shouldn't offer both. Variety is healthy.

Honda has great expectations for its U.S.-built Accord wagon

What do you do when you have to write a story — and not just a shorty, but one longer than six paragraphs — about a car so well-built that it has no glaring problems? So carefully designed that it does everything it was intended to do? So good-looking it elicits smiles from BMW-owning neighbors?

The car is: the new Accord station wagon. The answer to the question(s) is: call Honda's PR people.

Roger Lambert is a company spokesman down at American Honda Motor Co. in Marysville, Ohio. He had lots to say about the fabulously successful company and its products, which include the Accord, the top-selling nameplate in the United States in 1990.

In the late 1980s Honda began exporting Accord coupes — built exclusively in this country — to Japan, he said. To everyone's surprise, they became hot items among certain buyers, especially young people with money to spend and a desire to make a statement with something different to drive. These '88 and '89 Accord coupes were indeed different because they had left-hand drive, plus nifty radios and leather seats and all.

"Buyers could really impress their friends — the left-hand drive had a certain snob appeal," Lambert said. "The Accord became the largest-selling U.S. import in Japan."

This model year it was joined in the market by the American-designed and built Accord station wagon, which bowed in the United States last December. Honda says the wagon should account for about 10 percent of its Accord sales in the United States this year. The wagon is being exported to Europe and the Far East. As many as 10,000 may go overseas this calendar year.

Since 1989, Lambert said, Accords for export have been built with both right-hand and left-hand drive on the same line in Marysville. While the two types aren't scattered randomly in the production schedule, the associates (workers) are likely to have to build both types on any given day, so they have to be carefully trained, alert and flexible. Can't put an instrument panel for a right-hand drive car in one being built with left-hand drive.

Cars are assembled in 60-unit lots, Lambert said. So cars slated for export to right-hand-drive destinations like the UK or Japan will be built in this rather large batch. The lot is likely to include wagons and coupes.

The wagon, he explained, is not just a box-backed version of the Accord sedan. It was designed through the clay model stage at Honda's California studios; prototype work was done by Honda in Marysville. The wagon has 500 exclusive "new" parts — none of them shared with the sedan. They include everything from glass to the rear-window wiper motor, rear bumper and even the carpeting in the cargo area.

"The station wagon is the first Accord with driver-side air bags," Lambert said. Air bags will begin showing up in other Accord models in the 1992 model year.

The wagon also features the largest single stamped metal body panel on any U.S.-built vehicle, he said. The wagon's side piece, which stretches from front-end lights to the taillights is one piece. There are no welded seams along the 186-inch stretch. "We felt we could control body accuracy better this way," said Lambert.

By the time I talked with Lambert, it was too late. The Accord wagon had been returned safely to the garage. There was no chance to inspect and appreciate the side panels. It had been noted throughout the test week, though, that this was an extremely tight and quiet car. Wagons used to be known for their tendencies to rattle and squeak. Granted, this one had only a couple thousand miles on the odometer, and probably had not endured kids, spilled beverages, basement paneling, used furniture, melting snow and groceries in its cargo area.

But it had an unanticipated rough day one Monday, and its suspension proved excellent. In the span of an hour, the Accord wagon traversed the cobbled surface of Detroit's Canfield Street between Second and Third; the washboard stretch of southbound Third just north of West Warren; and a whole curb at an Amoco station, following a refueling stop. Canfield is rough enough to shake fillings from your teeth. The little wagon was smooth and quiet. The tarred mending strips that make a section of Third just like a corduroy road didn't seem as jolting in the Accord as they are in other vehicles.

Now about the curb at the Amoco station. How did that get there, anyway? It was supposed to be a driveway. We survived.

The five-speed Accord LX with its 2.2-liter, 125-horsepower engine should deliver about 24 mpg in the city and 29 mpg highway. While it's not a powerful engine, it showed surprising acceleration moving from fourth into fifth.

The Accord Wagon LX features a 16-valve 2.2-liter 125-horsepower engine. The EX model's engine is tuned to get 140 horsepower. Standard features in both include air conditioning, cruise control, power windows and locks and driver-side air bag.

The cabin is bright and cheerful, thanks to generous use of glass — and in this case, a power sunroof. Beware, those of you who haven't driven Japanese (or Japanese-American) cars in damp weather. It seems the only way to clear fog from the windows is to turn on the air conditioner along with the defroster. The defroster alone doesn't work, and you quickly find yourself driving blind.

The power locks, a convenience and safety feature that can baffle the most experienced drivers, are of an interesting design in the Accord. Use the key in the driver's door and it will open only that door. Use the key in the passenger's door and all four doors are unlocked. That'll remind you about proper manners if you're providing a ride (open your passenger's door first, please). And it'll give you security if you are traveling alone and want to keep it that way.

Because this is a compact wagon, don't expect a lot of legroom in the second seat. It's adequate but not outstanding. There is, however, generous headroom. And the large windows all around give one a feeling of space. The storage area is reached through a lift-up tailgate. It accommodated four folded, webbed lawnchairs plus one angel food birthday cake on a glass plate, along with four adults and some assorted sacks of gifts and other necessities.

For comparison's sake, here are Accord wagon measurements vs. those of a top rival, Ford's Taurus wagon. The Accord is 186 inches long vs. about 192 inches for the intermediate-size Taurus. Accord is about 68 inches wide; Taurus is about 71 inches wide. Accord rides on a 107-inch wheelbase; Taurus has a 106-inch wheelbase. Accord holds up to five people, Taurus holds eight. Accord has a 4-cylinder base engine, Taurus a 6-cylinder. And — oops — Accord's base sticker with automatic transmission is $19,000; Taurus is about $14,800. (Our numbers are from Automotive News.)

Coupe for six

The midnight-black Phantom Corsair coupe, designed by Rust Heinz of the H.J. Heinz family, completes its brief stay at the Henry Ford Museum in Dearborn on Labor Day. On loan from the National Automobile Museum in Reno, the 1938 Phantom Corsair has a 190-horsepower 8-cylinder engine with a reported top speed of 115 mph. It holds four passengers in front, two in the rear. Equipped with barometer and altimeter, the one-of-a-kind coupe appeared in the 1938 sentimental comedy "The Young at Heart."

Neil Shine to address senior men

The Grosse Pointe Senior Men's Club will not meet Aug. 27.

The next meeting will be Tuesday, Sept. 10. The speaker will be Neil Shine, of the Detroit Free Press.

Senior men retired and living in the Grosse Pointe area are invited to attend the meetings.

Pointe AARP set for fall

Grosse Pointe Chapter 3430 of AARP will begin its fall meetings on Monday, Sept. 9, at the Grosse Pointe Neighborhood Club.

"A View of the Zoo" will be presented by Jean Marson, retired assistant prosecutor of Wayne County. For the last two years, Marson has been a volunteer docent with the Detroit Zoo, conducting tours of the Detroit and Belle Isle zoos.

There will be color slides and a talk about zoos in general — why we have them, where they get the animals and how they are cared for. It will be a half-hour program with 15 minutes for questions. The program begins at 2 p.m. following the business meeting at 1:30 p.m. Refreshments will follow the program. Members and guests are welcome.

Other programs planned for fall have a musical theme: "The Barbershoppers" on Oct. 14; the "Pointe Singers" choral group (ambassadors of Grosse Pointe South High) on Nov. 11, and the annual Christmas party on Dec. 9, featuring entertainer "Johnny Chase - King of the One-Man Keyboard Show."

Mary Cross, hospitality chairman, is in charge of refreshments. She will be assisted by volunteers.

Ice cream social

The Sept. 4 meeting of the Neighborhood Club senior adults will be the annual Ice Cream Social.

Reservations are necessary at the reception desk. Please call 885-4600 for further information.

Senior men

meetings televised

Proceedings of the Grosse Pointe Senior Men's Club meetings can be seen on Grosse Pointe Cable Channel 32 everyday at 10:30 a.m. on Monday, Wednesday and Friday and on Sunday at 5:30 p.m. and late night at 12:20 a.m.

Prime Time

By Marian Trainor

Recently thousands of spectators gathered at Oakland Hills Country Club to watch some of the greatest names in golf, all of them over 50, compete in the U.S. Senior Open. It was thrilling all the way. Scores were close and the tournament ended in a playoff between Jack Nicklaus and Chi Chi Rodriguez. Despite a late bid by Chi Chi, Jack won and almost set a course record in the process. The seniors put on quite a show.

In Syracuse, N.Y., more than 5,000 athletes competed in the U.S. National Senior Sports Classic III — the Senior Olympics — for men and women age 55 and older. The 60 to 64 age category had the most participants (almost 1,300) and there were 15 athletes in their nineties. One of them, swimmer John Fleck, is 99. (Another 99-year-old who was entered in the 100-yard dash had to withdraw at the last minute because of a leg problem.)

The 17 sports categories included archery, badminton, basketball, cycling, field events, football, volleyball and a 10 kilometer road race. The next National Senior Sports Classic will be held in June 1993 in Baton Rouge, La. Anyone interested can write for information to USNSO, 14323 South Outer Forty Road, St. Louis, Mo. 63107.

Interesting and encouraging items, but ones that might raise questions such as: where do these "young" older people get their energy, their endurance, their strength and why are some people vigorous at 80, while others seem old at 60?

For one thing, aging is not uniform. Another variable is the increase in life expectancy today compared with that of earlier times. In 1890, life expectancy in the United States was only 42 for men and 45 for women, so that 65 seemed — and was — a venerable age. Average life expectancy did not rise to 65 until 1940. Today people may regard themselves as still middle-aged in their late fifties and sixties. People in their seventies and older often retain their health, their energy and their zest for life.

Exercise is an important factor in maintaining youthful vigor. Major studies have indicated that exercise prolongs life.

Eat right, exercise and you'll be in the lineup a long time

In one study of 16,000 men, those who walked nine or more miles a week had a lower mortality rate than those who walked three miles or less. In another study, conducted at Washington University School of Medicine in St. Louis, heart function in men and women in their sixties improved by 25 percent to 30 percent after a year of endurance exercise. Men in their seventies showed increased muscle strength after just eight weeks of strength training. A recent report from the Medical College of Pennsylvania cited growing evidence that older people can start an exercise program at any age and receive physiological benefits as well as reduced incidence of chronic diseases.

A study in the University of California at Berkeley's Wellness Letter points out that good nutrition is important. It contends that it's just not true that older people need nutritional supplements or lose their ability to digest high-fiber foods, or should stop eating protein or have to swallow laxatives.

Older people, they say, need the same diet as any healthy adult — plenty of fruits, grains and vegetables which supply not only vitamins and minerals but fiber as well. You don't need supplements of zinc or vitamin C.

It is also not true that retirement can take years off your life, although many worry about being bored or feeling useless when they are no longer part of the workaday world. But studies support the idea that deterioration after retirement, when it occurs, is usually caused by some prior illness or disability. Many people thrive on a more leisurely way of life. Retirement for many presents an opportunity to reexamine their life goals and do new kinds of work.

Examples of men and women for whom age was no barrier to achievement abound. Verdi composed "Ave Maria" at age 85; Martha Graham performed on stage until she was 75 and choreographed her 180th work last year at 95. At age 98 the noted pianist Mieczyslaw Horowitz played a full program and three encores to a sold out house at Carnegie Hall last year. Titian painted in his nineties. Admittedly, added years may slow your pace but you need not drop out of the race. By following a sensible program of exercise and fueling your body with good nutrition, you can remain a contender for as long as you wish.

SOC volunteers Hector Montpetit, Ann Gerow, Christopher Angelo and Betty Rusnack testified at hearings recently.

SOC volunteers testify at hearings

Volunteers from Services for Older Citizens (SOC) testified at hearings sponsored by Michigan organizations during the past three months and gave support for several senior citizens' programs.

Ann Gerow, Grosse Pointe Woods, and William Ludwig, Grosse Pointe Farms, spoke at a meeting sponsored by the Michigan Commission on Aging held at the Royal Oak Senior Center on June 13.

SOC volunteers Gerow and Ludwig deliver meals to home-bound residents. Meals-at-Home is funded through the Detroit Area Agency on Aging and administered by the Detroit Department of Health.

Gerow twice a month delivers meals to about 17 people who are not able to get out of the house and have no other means for obtaining a well-balanced diet. She said she did not know how they could remain in their homes without this service.

Through SOC, a limited number of residents over 60, who meet other eligibility requirements, receive free meals five days a week.

On April 3, SOC board members Sandy Fisher, Grosse Pointe Farms, and Betty Rusnack, Grosse Pointe Woods, testified at a meeting held at the Walter Reuther Senior Center, sponsored by the Detroit Area Agency on Aging (DAAA).

J. Herbert Baker

Services were held Wednesday, Aug. 28, at the Chas Verheyden Inc. funeral home in Grosse Pointe Park for J. Herbert Baker, 87, of Grosse Pointe Park. He died Aug. 25, 1991, at Bon Secours Hospital in Grosse Pointe.

Born in Chicago, Mr. Baker graduated from Northwestern University in Illinois. Mr. Baker was retired. He had been a salesman for Northern Paper Mills in Wisconsin and its successor, American Can Co. He was also a salesman for Bockstanz Brothers, an industrial supply company.

Mr. Baker was a member of the Grosse Pointe Rotary Club, the Senior Men's Club, the University Club, the Masonic Lodge 519, the Shriners and the Sons of the American Revolution.

He is survived by his wife, Rhoda Dennison Baker; and sisters, Dorothy Petersen and Mildred Heskest.

Burial was in Rice Cemetery in Milan. Memorial contributions may be made to the Grosse Pointe Rotary or another charitable organization.

Daniel W. McCarron

Services will be held at 10:15 a.m. Thursday, Aug. 29, at the A.H. Peters Funeral Home in Grosse Pointe Woods, and at 11 a.m. at St. Margaret of Scotland Church in St. Clair Shores for Daniel W. McCarron, 83, of St. Clair Shores. A former resident of Grosse Pointe Farms, he died of a stroke on Aug. 25, 1991, at Bon Secours Hospital in Grosse Pointe.

Mr. McCarron is survived by his wife, Edith (Allor) McCarron; daughter, Sallie Van Coppenolle; and son, David McCarron.

Burial will be in Mount Olivet Cemetery in Detroit.

Helen I. (Cronin) Pfeffer

Services were held Monday, Aug. 28, at the A.J. Desmond & Sons Funeral Home in Troy for Helen I. (Cronin) Pfeffer, 72, of Detroit. A former resident of Grosse Pointe City and Birmingham, she died Aug. 23, 1991, at Bon Secours Nursing Care Center in Detroit.

Born in Detroit, Mrs. Pfeffer was a homemaker.

She is survived by her daughters, Mary Kay Miles and Barbara Smith; sons, Robert J. Pfeffer Jr., Charles, Thomas and Mark C.; and 15 grandchildren.

Burial was in Mount Olivet Cemetery in Detroit. Memorial contributions may be made to the American Heart Association.

John Alexander (Jack) Hendrie

Services were held Tuesday, Aug. 27, 1991, at St. Paul on the Lake Catholic Church in Grosse Pointe Farms for John Alexander (Jack) Hendrie, 62, of Grosse Pointe Farms. He died Aug. 24, 1991, at St. John Hospital in Detroit.

Mr. Hendrie had a 35-year advertising career at Ross Roy Inc., and retired as senior vice president.

A member of one of Detroit's oldest families, Mr. Hendrie was named for the first governor general of Canada. His family began the rail transit system in Detroit and several streets in the city are named after his ancestors.

Mr. Hendrie was a graduate of Portsmouth Priory and the University of Detroit. He was an avid sailor and ice boater, and also enjoyed playing tennis. Sailboat racing was his favorite sport. He crewed on boats of all sizes and participated in 39 Port Huron to Mackinac races. He also spent several years sailing and racing his own Cal 25 with his sons.

In recent years Mr. Hendrie became a piano technician and a member of the Piano Technicians Guild. He was also a member of the Society of Lubrication Engineers, the Country Club of Detroit and the Grosse Pointe Little Club, where he served on the board.

He is survived by his wife, Arlene Roy Hendrie; daughters, Susan Elizabeth Rohde, Sara Alexandra Sessions and Mary Arlene Hendrie; sons, David William, Philip Roy and John A. Hendrie Jr.; brothers, George Hendrie Jr. and Michael Hendrie; sister, Mrs. Peter F. Kennedy; father, George S. Hendrie; and 11 grandchildren.

Memorial contributions may be made to the Capuchin Monastery or the American Cancer Society. Arrangements were made by the Wm. R. Hamilton Co. funeral home in Mount Clemens. Burial was private.

Eugene L. Casazza Jr.

Services were held Tuesday, Aug. 27, at St. Margaret's Catholic Church in St. Clair Shores for Eugene L. Casazza Jr., 69, of St. Clair Shores. A former resident of Grosse Pointe Farms, he died Aug. 23, 1991, at St. John Hospital in Detroit.

Born in Chicago, Mr. Casazza moved to Detroit in 1943. He was a leading cosmetologist in Grosse Pointe for approximately 40 years until he was stricken with a stroke in 1985.

He is survived by his wife, Margaret; sons, Eugene III, Richard, James and Robert; daughters, Mary Lou, Anne, Margaret and Catherine; a brother; two sisters; and 10 grandchildren.

Arrangements were made by the Kaul Funeral Home in St. Clair Shores. Interment was in Mount Olivet Cemetery in Detroit. Memorial contributions may be made to the Capuchin Soup Kitchen in Detroit.

Merrel J. Hodgson

Services were held Aug. 24, 1991, at the Chas Verheyden funeral home in Grosse Pointe Park for Merrel J. Hodgson, 85, of Grosse Pointe Woods. He died Aug. 22, 1991, at Harper Hospital in Detroit.

Born in Altoona, Pa., Mr. Hodgson was an automotive supervisor at the Budd Wheel Co., where he worked for more than 25 years. He also worked as a security guard at Lakepointe Towers in St. Clair Shores.

An avid sportsman, he enjoyed hunting, fishing and golfing, and was a member of the National Rifle Association.

He is survived by his daughter, Yvonne S. Peters; four grandchildren; 14 great-grandchildren; sisters, Nelle Larimer, Isabelle O'Donnell and Mary Louise Pykrel; and brother, Stuart Hodgson. He was preceded in death by his wife, Florence, and brother, Jack.

Interment was in Mount Olivet Cemetery in Detroit.

Napsackers

Summer at the park was exciting this year, especially with the addition of the Park Napsackers.

The Napsackers are 3- to 6-year-olds who reported to the Windmill Pointe Park from 9:30 a.m. to noon on Tuesdays, Wednesdays and Thursdays for three weeks of enjoyment.

The Napsackers were supervised by Sue Reik, Joann Morandini and Donna Phillips, all experienced teachers at Mother's Day Out programs and child care workers.

Study to help Woods find missing water

By Donna Walker
Staff Writer

A study to detect leaks and faulty meters in the Grosse Pointe Woods water system will begin after Labor Day, said city clerk-administrator Chester Petersen.

The city council on Aug. 19 hired Pitometer Associates to conduct the $8,600 study, which will be paid for out of the city's Water Enterprise Fund.

Petersen said the study is needed because the number of units of water for which the city charges residents is far less than the amount of water the city buys from Detroit.

In fiscal 1989-90, the Woods could not account for 14,143.6 units of water it bought from Detroit. In 1990-91, that figure was down, but still high at 11,795.1 units, said Woods comptroller Clifford J. Maison.

The Woods pays Detroit $2.61 for each unit of water. So in 1990-91, the city could not account for $30,785.21 of its Detroit water bill.

Petersen said the city has a pretty good idea where a lot of the missing water went. The sprinklers on the medians on Mack Avenue, Vernier and Lochmoor, and around the baseball diamonds at Ghesquiere Park are not metered. Neither is the water used in firefighting and firefighting training, Petersen said.

The study will determine how much water is used for those activities, and then those units will be subtracted from the number of unbilled water units. The difference should tell the city how much water is escaping through leaks in the system, and the study will determine where those leaks are and if meters are working properly.

Petersen said the study will take about two weeks. During that time, Pitometer employees will use sonic detection equipment on the city's entire water distribution system, consisting of approximately 60 water mains. They will use the equipment on hydrants and main valves throughout the city to listen for leaks.

Most of the work will be done during normal working hours. But in high traffic areas, leak detection may have to be conducted during late evening and/or early morning hours.

The city plans to repair whatever leaks are found as soon as it can, on a priority basis, with major leaks being repaired first.

Children's theater schedules enrollments

Grosse Pointe Children's Theater will hold enrollment for the fall season on Saturday, Sept. 8, at the War Memorial.

Times are 10 a.m. for new elementary school students; 11 a.m. to noon for new junior high and high school students; 12:30 p.m. for former elementary school students; and 2 p.m. for former junior high and high school students.

Students from 6 to 18 will receive training in all aspects of acting, including mime, movement, voice and diction, characterization, stage technique and terminology, and creative drama.

They will have the opportunity to try out for the regular season, depending on age and experience.

This is the 38th season. Sally Reynolds, founder, will direct and produce all shows as well as instruct classes.

For more information, call 881-7511 or 885-6219.

Woods' cut is $130 for mowing lawn

Grosse Pointe Woods now has someone it can charge for yard work the city performed on a house on Edmonton that was left vacant for several months.

In June, Woods Department of Public Works employees cut the grass and weeds in the yard in response to neighbors' complaints. Previously, they had tried unsuccessfully to get the owner of the house to perform the work.

However, the property had no clear owner at the time. Several people had financial interests in the property, making it difficult for the city to get work on the house accomplished.

One of the men who held an interest in the house recently acquired clear title to the property. A $130 fee will be added to his city tax bill for yard work the city performed on the property, Grosse Pointe Woods city clerk-administrator Chester Petersen said.

NOTICE OF HEARING CITY COUNCIL

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN that the City Council will meet in the City Hall, 90 Kerby Road, Grosse Pointe Farms on

at 7:30 p.m. to hear the appeal of Michelle Taylor, from the provisions of the City's Zoning Ordinance as they pertain to the building at 84 Kercheval and the proposed second floor addition.

Sufficient off-street parking would not be available on the property to meet the requirements of the City's Zoning Ordinance under Section 1504, Item 9. Sixteen (16) parking spaces are required according to building use criteria under Section 1504, Item 9 of the City's Zoning Ordinance, whereas the plan of proposed construction provides no parking spaces. Under the provisions of Section 1504, Items 4 and 9, the Council may grant exceptions to off street parking requirements where it determines after a hearing that the requirements are excessive or unduly burdensome for any of several reasons specified, including that publicly owned parking facilities are available reasonably nearby.

The Hearing will be public. Interested property owners or residents of the City are invited to attend. Written comments may be mailed, or delivered to the City Hall, 8:30 a.m. - 4:30 p.m. Monday - Friday. A drop box for mail delivered after hours is available at the Police Department.

St. Clare reunion

It's been 65 years since the first eighth graders walked across the stage to receive their diplomas at St. Clare of Montefalco school in Grosse Pointe Park.

The first all-alumni gathering and celebration will take place at St. Clare Church on Sunday, Sept. 8. Over the years, nearly 4,000 youngsters have graduated and yet only a small percentage have been able to keep in touch after their high school years.

The event is intended to raise support and money for Catholic schools, and St. Clare in particular.

The celebration begins at 9 a.m. with Mass and will be followed by a reception in the church hall and school.

ULS students help save rain forests

Members of the University Liggett School Class of 2001 are now the proud owners of 4 1/2 acres of rain forest.

As part of a unit on ecology this spring, students in Ruth Bond's second-grade class studied about the world's rain forests. They learned about the ecological dangers the rain forests face and the land's impact on mankind. As a response to their studies, Bond's class collected bottles and returnable cans and raised $137.60.

The money was donated to the Nature Conservancy, which sponsors a program called "Adopt an Acre." A $30 donation will help protect an acre of tropical rain forest for one year.

Book 'em

The St. Clare of Montefalco P.T.O. will hold its 7th annual Used Book Sale Sept. 18-22 in the St. Clare Church Social Hall on Mack and Whittier in Grosse Pointe Park. Pre-sale hours are 6:30-9:30 p.m. Wednesday, Sept. 18; 9 a.m. to 8 p.m. Thursday and Friday Sept. 19-20; bargain day hours are 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. Saturday, Sept. 21, and bag day is Sunday, Sept. 22, from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. The sale features more than 50,000 titles. Hardcover and paperback books can still be dropped off at the carport entrance of St. Clare Church any day. No textbooks or magazines will be accepted. All proceeds from the sale will benefit the St. Clare pre-school and elementary school enrichment programs. Above, St. Clare students Bo Betzler, Walter Capulong, Theresa Franzinger, Kate Calandro and Clara DeGalan organize books collected for the sale.

North begins accreditation process

Grosse Pointe North High School has initiated a North Central Association/Outcomes Accreditation (NCA/OA) evaluation program in preparation for the 1991-92 school year.

"North High School was last evaluated in 1984-85," Principal John Kastran said. "The NCA requires each member school to undertake a comprehensive evaluation once during each seven-year cycle, as a major impetus for school improvement."

tant will also work with the staff throughout the evaluation process.

The evaluation committee is headed by Ray Ritter. Francis Carnaghi, Marie Parzych, Madeline Salonen, Thomas Smith, Scott Roberts, Diane Zedan and Kastran make up the rest of the committee.

During the evaluation, every aspect of the school is reviewed — curriculum, student activities, personnel services, health services, instructional materials, physical facilities, financial support and control.

"The evaluation results in suggestions for changes that will help the school do an even better job of educating our students," Kastran said.

He estimates the self-study will take from eight to 10 months. Faculty reports from various committees and sub-committees will be distributed in the fall. These reports will include North's mission statement, student profiles materials, teacher-generated materials and community-generated materials. The committee members will then identify and establish the final goals for the school.

The first visitation of the North Central Evaluation team is scheduled for spring 1992. If you have any questions or would like more information, Kastran can be reached at 343-2200.

North staff has already held several developmental meetings which have resulted in a mission statement and materials addressing the area of student goals. An independent consul-

Language masters

Five Grosse Pointe North High School students were among the top scorers in both the state and nation in recent national foreign language examinations. From left, in front are Heather Henning in Level 3 French and Ann Marie Matouk in Level 4 Spanish. In back from left are Natalia Rodriguez in Level 3 Spanish, Renee Dwaihy in Level 2 German and Lisa Lillich in Level 3 German. Their teachers are Jeannine Palazzo and Linda Mitchell for Spanish, Guido Regelbrugge for French and Madeline Salonen for German.

Honored

Erica Mondro, a Grosse Pointe South High School junior, received the Society of Women Engineers Certificate for highest honors in science and mathematics. She will be a senior this fall.

3 win medals

Rensselaer Polytechnic Institute has announced that Paula-Rose Stark of University Liggett School, Magi ElAlayi of Grosse Pointe North High School and Jeremy J. Gajewski of Grosse Pointe South High School have been awarded Rensselaer Medals.

Each year Rensselaer presents medals to high school students for outstanding achievement in the study of mathematics and science during their junior year. One junior from each of approximately 1,700 high schools is selected to receive the award.

Writers honored

Katie Esselink and Rebecca Opdyke, both 11-year-old students at Parcels Middle School, received honorable mention in the May 1991 Cricket League international writing competition.

Entrants were asked to write about themselves and a brother or sister.

The two writers' names appear in the August 1991 issue of Cricket magazine.

Denby plans 40th

The January and June 1951 classes of Denby High School plan a 40th reunion for Oct. 26.

To buy tickets or for more information, call 758-4219 or 681-8294.

Kindermusik classes begin

Classes in Kindermusik, a unique program of music learning and enjoyment for children, will be offered at Barnes School in Grosse Pointe Woods beginning in September.

Kindermusik is a structured and sequential curriculum which nurtures the development of the whole child through speaking and singing, movement, listening and creating. Children also learn about writing and reading music and to play various percussion instruments.

Kindermusik, which is now being taught to more than 12,000 children in 45 states and three provinces in Canada, will be taught by Kindermusik specialist Linda Mackool, who received her Kindermusik training at Eastern Michigan University in June.

"The Kindermusik program is committed to a holistic and integrated approach to music education," Mackool said. "It aims to give the child a total music experience at a time when the developmental stage is set. Whether listening or moving, vocalizing or playing an instrument, creating or reading music, or enjoying an ensemble, the focus is on a process, not a performance."

City businessman takes guesswork out of check approval

By John Minnis
Assistant Editor

Nearly a third of all checks written are intentionally fraudulent.

That's the word from TeleCheck, the nation's largest check acceptance service.

But retailers can eliminate the risk of bad checks, according to Arthur A. Nitzsche of Grosse Pointe City, president of Southfield-based TeleCheck Michigan.

"As we sit here," he said, "calls are coming in and checks are being cleared."

In fact, a lot of calls are coming in.

TeleCheck Michigan's more than 4,200 retail and banking subscribers made more than 2 million calls last year to verify checks totaling more than $280 million.

TeleCheck Services Inc., the world's largest check acceptance system and franchiser, has more than 100,000 retail subscribers in the United States, Canada, Puerto Rico, New Zealand and Australia.

In 1986, TeleCheck Services took 60 million calls and cleared some $6 billion worth of checks.

What makes the check verification possible is TeleCheck's huge computer data-base that contains names and identification numbers of more than 1.5 million people with checks outstanding. Some of the bad checks are innocent, accidental overdrafts, but some are deliberate and habitual. These are the bad-check writers who cause retailers uncollectible losses and check paranoia.

The TeleCheck data base grows as retail and banking subscribers report bad checks to TeleCheck. As the collection of names and identification numbers of those passing uncollectible checks grows, chances are good that habitual check abusers will be stopped.

When receiving checks, retailer subscribers ask for a piece of identification, such as a driver's license. They then tie into the TeleCheck computer data base via a touch-tone phone, electronic cash register or TeleCheck terminal.

The check-writer's identifying information is run through TeleCheck's huge data base. If no matches are found, that means there are no unpaid checks listed in the data base and the check is approved. If there are checks outstanding, the retail clerk is told to contact their TeleCheck authorization center to verify that the information was entered correctly.

Some systems are more automated so that the clerk does not have to call TeleCheck. In all cases where checks are refused, the check-writer is told how to contact TeleCheck.

To get off TeleCheck's risk list, all one has to do is pay the check and make sure TeleCheck is informed, Nitzsche said.

In some cases, TeleCheck collects for bad checks from retailers. If a store subscribes to the full guarantee service, TeleCheck stands behind all checks it approves.

If an approved check bounces, TeleCheck buys it. It is then TeleCheck's job to collect. Depending on the type of business, there is a limit on how large a check TeleCheck will guarantee. But in most cases, the retailer has nothing to lose if a TeleCheck-approved check bounces — provided the retailer has subscribed to the full guarantee service.

Since TeleCheck operates nationwide and in Canada, local retailers do not have to refuse out-of-state and Canadian checks.

Of course, nothing is free. Similar to retailers who accept credit cards, TeleCheck subscribers pay a percent of the value of each check that is called in for verification. The percent depends on the type of TeleCheck service they subscribe to and the type of business. Some businesses have a higher risk of receiving bad checks.

If retailers don't want to pay for the full guarantee, they can subscribe to check verification only, but in that case TeleCheck will not buy bad checks.

Banks can also subscribe. They can use TeleCheck to screen new accounts. That way, if an individual has outstanding bounced checks, the bank can estimate the risk before it issues checks.

"It does help hold down the number of bad check writers who are able to keep opening new checking accounts," Nitzsche said.

Bank TeleCheck subscribers can also get fraud protection on lost or stolen checks, and account holders are urged to call the TeleCheck Alert toll-free number (1-800-926-5678) if their checks are lost or stolen. In fact, anyone with lost checks can call the toll-free number to help reduce the risk of someone using the checks before the bank can stop them, Nitzsche said.

As the number of retailers and banks subscribing to TeleCheck increases, the more reliable its data base becomes and the fewer the number of bad checks that slip through.

Grosse Pointer Arthur A. Nitzsche left a 25-year career with NBD to start his own company, TeleCheck Michigan. Today he has more than 4,200 retail subscribers to the check acceptance service.

It must be working for Nitzsche.

TeleCheck Michigan has been listed in Inc. magazine's top 500 fast-growing companies, he said. He also has created a new company, Automated Collections Systems Inc., which will act purely as a check collection service.

Nitzsche said that TeleCheck's enormous data base on check writers will make it possible for his new company to collect on checks that regular collection agencies won't handle.

When he opened his TeleCheck franchise in 1979, Nitzsche left a 25-year career with National Bank of Detroit. He began with NBD as a management trainee in 1953 after he had earned his bachelor's degree in economics from Ohio State University. He moved to Detroit from Cleveland, and has lived in Grosse Pointe City for more than 25 years.

Within 10 years at NBD, he was named assistant vice president of the mortgage division, and in 1968, he was promoted to vice president, loan administration, in the mortgage division, where he administered a mortgage portfolio of more than $600 million.

But he got his retail credit experience when he was put in charge of NBD's charge-card department in 1971.

At the time, Ford Motor Co. asked him to help set up nationwide credit-card and check-acceptance procedures and guarantees for its dealerships. The Ford program was a quick success and the other car companies soon followed with credit card and check acceptance at their dealerships, Nitzsche said.

"I really didn't know much about check guarantee until I worked with Ford on it," he said.

Though he was reluctant to discontinue working with NBD's retailer customers, Nitzsche found he couldn't refuse a promotion in 1976 to chairman and president of the newly formed NBD-Troy Bank.

But a couple of years later, he learned about TeleCheck and liked what he saw.

"I thought maybe I should get back into the retailer payment guarantee business," he said. "I was convinced it was the right thing to do, so I went out on my own."

"It was just an opportunity I could not afford to pass up."

His is one of just a few TeleCheck companies in the nation that has a sole owner.

He said there were some rough years at first, especially because the Michigan data base on check writers had not yet been developed. Of course, the nationwide data base was available to him then, as it is now.

Of concern today is the sale by credit card companies and others of information on the buying habits of cardholders. Nitzsche said TeleCheck's data base is not designed to collate that sort of data, and the company does not sell information.

"We don't know anything about anyone," Nitzsche said, "except ID or checking account numbers."

TeleCheck also provides a "good check writer" file for its retailer and banking subscribers. That way, the conscientious check-users can gain preferred-customer status with the retailers they patronize.

Your Check
Is Welcome

"We don't want to be known as the bad-check people," he said, "but as the good-check people."

While there have been predictions that the United States would become a checkless society, Nitzsche doesn't think that's going to happen. He said many people cannot get credit cards and must rely on checks. Others simply prefer to use checks, he said.

Some of TeleCheck's major retail subscribers include J.C. Penney, Meijer, Target and Builder's Square.

"While we get satisfaction out of the large customers," Nitzsche said, "I get better satisfaction with the small retailers."

One such retailer is Harvey's Compleat Traveler on Fisher in Grosse Pointe City. Owner Maryanne Harvey said the small percentage she pays for TeleCheck's full-guarantee service is well worth it and pays for itself in bad-check prevention.

"It's a wonderful service," she said. "We just never have any bad checks. I've just been very pleased with it."

"It's well worth it, especially when you're presented with a large check. It's very comforting having the service."

Bay postmaster there to intercept all mail directed to National Notification Clearinghouse Inc., the company to which postcard recipients were directed to send their checks or money orders.

Under federal law, solicitations in the guise of invoices cannot be legally mailed unless they bear a specific disclaimer. Although the postcards did contain the required disclaimer, postal authorities believe it is not displayed in the conspicuous manner required by postal regulations.

The Boston company is actually a commercial mail receiving agency. Mail that is delivered to the firm is forwarded to Hong Kong for processing.

Postal authorities have intercepted some 15,000 responses to the postcard solicitations. If the Postal Service establishes that the advertisements violated the postal statutes, the mail orders will be returned to consumers.

Reflecting the large number of postcards mailed in the United States, J.M. Boswell, postal inspector-in-charge of the Boston division, said the U.S. Postal Service and consumer groups have received more complaints than generated by any mail campaign in recent memory.

Wayne A. Budd, U.S. attorney for the district of Massachusetts, said the restraining order was obtained to protect the public from a massive, deceptive advertising campaign.

Though it has not been determined if the solicitations are fraudulent, a Postal Service affidavit filed in Boston federal court said the postcards give the appearance that recipients can obtain merchandise by merely paying shipping and handling charges and tells them that they are getting merchandise at a nominal price due to "unknown, fortuitous circumstances."

When Boston postal inspectors obtained the products offered on the postcards, according to the affidavit, they found the high-tech TV to be a 5-inch, black and white set with neither batteries nor an AC adaptor; the pearls were oblong stones on a string with a flimsy catch; the mink coat was a small, scratchy fur; the VCR was a black-and-white recorder; and the answering machine was a standard model.

Postal inspectors advise consumers to carefully read any "bills" they receive. Before paying them, check with other family members to see if anyone actually ordered the merchandise.

Above all, according to the Postal Service, remember, if it sounds too good to be true, it probably is.

Armed robbery suspect charged

One of two men suspected in the May 18 armed theft of a West Bloomfield man's car at the Amoco station at Mack and Moross has been charged.

Aubrey DeVon Harris, 17, of Detroit, was arraigned before Farms Municipal Judge Matthew Rumora Aug. 24 on a charge of armed robbery. An innocent plea was entered on Harris' behalf.

The robbery occurred at 1:25 a.m. while the West Bloomfield man was pumping gas into his 1991 Plymouth Sundance. Harris and another man allegedly approached the man and told him to hand over his car keys.

One of the men then opened his coat and revealed a semi-automatic weapon. When the West Bloomfield man hesitated, the gunman put the Uzi-type weapon to his chest. The victim handed over his car keys.

The investigation is continuing in an effort to bring charges against the second suspect.

Rumora set Harris' bond at $60,000; he has yet to pay the required 10 percent ($6,000) for his release. He was in Wayne County Jail Monday awaiting his Aug. 28 preliminary examination in Municipal Court.

Judith and Algalee Adams work together at their loom.

Pointer

pursue a career in teaching. But during school she worked for a one-man architectural firm, handling everything from answering the phone to reading blueprints. When she graduated she planned to get a master's degree in art history but was talked out of it by the architect.

Her background landed her a job at Good Samaritan Medical Center in Portland, Ore., where she was a designer.

The job entailed everything that had to do with the physical aspects of several multi-million dollar construction projects. She chose everything from color schemes to plant species to pieces for the corporate art collection.

From there she went to Atlanta and from Atlanta she returned to Portland, looking for a new direction in her life.

"My life was totally involved in my work," Adams said. "I was doing important work — designing medical centers — and I liked it and there was a lot of job satisfaction, but I thought that there had to be more than this. There's more to life than building buildings."

An unexpected accident gave Adams the direction she was looking for.

She tripped over an extension cord and took a nasty spill, causing severe nerve damage in her wrists and elbows and soft tissue damage in her shoulders.

She moved to Grosse Pointe to live with her mother, who had recently retired, while she underwent extensive physical therapy and had several operations to repair the damage.

One day, about three years ago, the two were going to a French restaurant in Roseville for lunch. They parked the car and on the way to the restaurant saw a doll house in the window of a shop.

"I looked at my mother and this gleam came into her eye," Adams said. "So we went in just to look around."

They emerged a little while later lugging a doll house kit with gleams in both their eyes.

"We never did get to the restaurant," Adams said. "We still haven't been there."

"I had always wanted a doll house," Algalee said. "It's not a toy. People always think they're toys for little girls to play with, but they're not. They're works of art."

That kit kindled a mania in the two Adams women. Although the house is far from being finished, they have already added two wings and created a 14-room house for a family circa-1895. The family that lives there has a history written by the two women. It's a very savvy family — the house will be decorated with Impressionist paintings, long before Impressionists were commonly seen in American homes.

But as they started gathering the furnishings, they realized they couldn't get some of the items as authentic as possible. So, like any artist, they started to make them.

Judith had always been a weaver, having learned from her grandmother. She also taught her mother to weave. She weaved bedspreads, using original patterns, with materials as authentic as possible.

Although the miniature bedspread — or rug, Adams has weaved many miniature floor coverings — is at a one foot equals one inch scale, they are weaved on one of the five full-sized looms the Adams have in their house. And, they take more time, too.

"You have to be super-pernickiness," Adams said. "Because it's miniature, the flaws show up more than in a full-sized piece."

She also weaved upholstery fabric and built a miniature wing-backed chair that was on display recently at a national show. A reporter for Nutshell News, a magazine for miniaturists, was so enamored with the chair it will be featured in an upcoming issue.

Although their work is small, there are two words that set Adams' blood boiling.

"Don't say these things are 'cute,' or 'darling,'" she said. "These are miniature works of art. You wouldn't say a full-sized one of these is 'cute.'"

Both daughter and mother have been named artisans of the International Guild of Miniature Artisans, an honor given after experts in the miniature field judged three pieces of their work. There are fewer than 150 people in the world with that title.

They recently started using their looms for bigger projects and now make full-size clothing. After they decide what the item of clothing will be, they create a fabric that will be used for only that garment. They weave only enough fabric for one piece of clothing.

At a recent show, Adams decided that she had made the right career choice.

"To have someone see a piece you've made and see them fall in love with it and buy it and take it home, it's like a little piece of me goes with it," she said. "And that makes me feel wonderful."

Judith Adams with some of her miniature weaving work. Adams made the chair using fabric she weaved.

Court

is open five days a week. And while court is officially held on Thursday, she said jury trials are held on other days and she comes in whenever arraignments or other matters require her presence.

"We are not a part-time court," she said. "We have a heavier caseload (than the Shores)."

One argument of those favoring district courts is that they allow cases to be heard up to $10,000 in jurisdiction. Municipal courts are limited in jurisdiction to $1,500.

Brady, however, said he thought the number of cases involved is very few, and Pointe residents who do have cases higher than $1,500 in value can have them heard in Wayne County Circuit Court.

"Admittedly, they (juries) would not be Grosse Pointe Park residents," he said, "but they would be Wayne County residents. And I think the number of those cases would be very small."

Clark responded that he did not share Brady's confidence in Wayne County juries and besides, he would rather see Park cases tried by Park juries.

He also feared that if the Park did not create its own court, the state could put it under the jurisdiction of 36th District Court in Detroit.

"Some people argue it's never going to happen," he said. "But I take the opinion, why take a chance?"

He pointed to the Park being absorbed into the 13th Congressional District and possibly being shoved into Detroit's 2nd County Commissioner District as examples of the Park being absorbed by Detroit politically.

Park Mayor Palmer Heenan, who was once pro-district court but now is opposed to the system along with the other Pointe mayors, countered that Clark was using the threat of being absorbed by the Detroit district court as a scare tactic.

Clark said his fear of Detroit's 36th District Court gaining jurisdiction over the Park is not original. He recalled that Heenan himself expressed those concerns when he campaigned for mayor in 1983.

Those on both sides of the district court issue, however, agreed on one thing: The municipal courts are highly profitable for the Pointes.

But state court regional administrator Levitt said he was concerned that he did not hear anything expressed concerning quality of justice while he heard a lot about profitability.

"It sounds like we're running the best cash drawer in municipal courts," he said.

He also pointed out that in district courts the judges are full time and cannot practice law. Therefore, they don't run into the possible "buddy-buddy" conflicts of interests where a part-time municipal judge/full-time lawyer is representing a client before a fellow municipal judge.

Forty-sixth District Judge Stephen Cooper of Southfield spoke on behalf of the district court. He said he also had once served as a city councilman, and he saw no budget conflict between the court and city government.

He said court costs are paid with fines and fees, therefore there is no negative effect on the city budget. He said municipal courts are an anachronism.

Councilman Gaskin pointed out that he has not received a single complaint from a Park resident stating that justice was denied because of the municipal court. Brady concurred. And Farms Mayor Joseph Fromm said that in his 18 years on the council, he has not received one complaint concerning the court system.

Following the lengthy discussion, several residents said they were concerned about the lack of facts presented. They wanted to know how many

Park approves ballot language

Ballot language for an advisory question asking residents if they want the municipal court replaced by a district court was unanimously approved by the Park city council Monday night.

The ballot language now goes to the state attorney general and governor for their approval or proposed revisions. If the proposal is not approved, the council can still place the question on the ballot by a two-thirds vote of the council.

The proposed ballot language reads:

"Shall the City Charter be amended by addition of a new Section 15.16 to authorize the City Council, if permitted by law, to take such action as required to abolish the Municipal Court and establish a District Court in such manner and with such authority as provided by law or ordinance? A 'yes' vote is a vote in favor of establishing a District Court to replace the existing Municipal Court."

If approved by voters, the addition to the charter would allow the Park city council at any time in the future to go to a district court, provided that the Legislature has authorized such a move. Currently, district court enabling legislation for the Park and East Detroit is in a Senate judiciary committee.

The ballot question is not binding on the council. If voters say they do not want a district court, the council could still create one if the necessary legislation were in place. Mayor Pro Tem Vernon Ausherman, a staunch district court supporter, said that it would take a council member with a lot of guts to go against the will of the people.

He vowed that his vote on the issue will be determined by the outcome of the November ballot question.

cases the Park court handled, and how many could have been more efficiently handled with a district court.

They wanted to know how many cases would fall into the $1,500 to $10,000 jurisdictional range and how many municipal court cases are appealed — or retried — in circuit court.

Currently, any case tried in municipal court can be retried in circuit court upon request, Frank said, and even if the circuit court rules the same as the municipal court, the circuit court gets all fees and fines. The municipal court ends up with nothing even though it incurred similar costs, she said.

Brady said he didn't know about the Park, but the number of cases appealed out of the Shores, City and Farms were few.

Councilman Gaskin agreed with residents, saying the Park has not done its homework concerning district court.

Brady concluded his remarks by quoting former New York Yankees catcher and manager Yogi Berra, "If it ain't broke, don't fix it."

Cottage Hospital Auxiliary presents its annual kitchen tour

By Margie Reins Smith
Feature Editor

Seven spectacular Grosse Pointe kitchens will be featured on Cottage Hospital Auxiliary's annual kitchen tour on Sunday, Sept. 15, from noon to 5 p.m.

Chairmen Nanette Quinones and Mary Nolan said the tour is on a weekend day for the first time, in answer to requests from working women and husbands who would like to attend. Last year's tour was held on a Thursday.

The seven kitchens represent styles ranging from traditional to modern. Some are large, family kitchens. Some are small, efficient kitchens. Most were designed with an eye for easy maintenance.

The Grady kitchen, 8 Higbie Court, serves as the hub for a busy young family. Dr. Kevin Grady and his wife, Cathy, have three youngsters — Courtney, 4; Kimberly, 3; and Michael, 15 months. Cathy Grady said she spends about 50 percent of her day in the kitchen.

"I wanted space. I wanted a butler's pantry. I wanted lots of cupboards," she said. "This kitchen is great for entertaining because it can be closed off from the rest of the house. It's also spacious enough for family use. And it's big enough so the children can sit at the table and do their homework when they're older."

The country French feeling includes nine-foot ceilings and oversized hickory cabinets finished with an oak stain and brass knobs. The oak floors are accented with colorful rag rugs which echo the muted blues, soft roses and creamy whites of the wallpaper.

The backsplashes are imported Spanish ceramic tiles decorated with a floral design. The central island serves as a preparation area for meal-making.

The Grady's included a complete set of convenient appliances in their kitchen plans: two wall ovens, microwave, dishwasher, side-by-side refrigerator-freezer, ice maker and trash compactor.

The eating area features an antique table refinished in muted blue and surrounded by matching ladder-back chairs with rush seats. A basket of silk gerber daisies and two framed prints of vegetables repeat the colors.

On one side, French doors open onto a back-yard patio. On the other side, a butler's pantry connects the kitchen to the dining room and features tall, glass-paned cabinets that let the Grady's collection of crystal and glassware shine through.

The Grady kitchen, right, features a center island and backsplashes made of imported ceramic tiles.

The Hollerbach kitchen, 31 Newberry, is part of a two-story addition and renovation of the 32-year-old home. The whole renovation project took two years to complete.

Nancy and Mike Hollerbach have two children, 9 and 6, and a dog. The couple grew up in Grosse Pointe, moved to Colorado for 10 years, then moved back a few years ago.

"I wanted a kitchen with lots of light, lots of space and white cabinets. We also wanted to take advantage of the nice view in the back," Nancy Hollerbach said.

The old kitchen was roughly 12 by 13 feet. The Hollerbachs knocked out a wall and extended a new portion about 20 by 15 feet into the rear yard. They converted the old kitchen into a butler's pantry with built-in wine storage and unique decorative glass-and-brass cabinet doors for crystal and glassware. A desk, planning and storage area was also carved out of the old kitchen space.

The new kitchen is designed for easy maintenance with gray speckled granite countertops, a large center island, light-stained oak plank floor, spacious eating area and oak cabinets, stained white.

Windows on three sides permit an expansive view of the back yard and patio. The wallpaper is flecked with flowers in shades of French blue, mauve and green and the windows are accented with French blue and cream-colored striped balloon valances.

"We both like to cook," said Nancy Hollerbach. "My husband likes to barbecue and I like to bake. Sometimes we both cook at the same time."

The Sanders kitchen, 271 Kenwood Court, is Colonial, like the Georgian Colonial style of the house, Carol Sanders said.

"We gutted the old kitchen last spring," she said. "We moved plumbing and heating ducts. We moved walls and the bathroom. It took 10 weeks."

Carol and Richard Sanders wanted a larger kitchen and more counter space — with minimum upkeep. They both work and they have two children, 6 and 8. They do not enjoy cooking, she said.

"Now we have dark stained oak floors, cherry cabinets, off-white Corian countertops, a center island with a deep royal blue granite top and very simple curtains in a wedgewood blue. It's very simple, not much clutter," she said.

The kitchen has a pass-through counter to the family room, she added, including space for people to sit at the counter to eat.

The Blake kitchen, 10 Dodge Place, is an example of a warm country French design featuring raised-panel hickory cabinets custom-stained and distressed. William and Ann Blake included a built-in china cabinet and a lowered cooktop in their plans.

Another Blake kitchen, 352 Neff, is a blend of contemporary and traditional styles. According to Chris and Ann Blake, the hardwood floor was salvaged from the Dodge mansion and has been restored — a bit of Grosse Pointe history that has been incorporated into a new home.

Also featured are a built-in pantry wall and custom-height countertops which provide a higher, more comfortable work surface.

The Pierce kitchen, 225 Ridgemont Road, is a galley kitchen featuring tex-

Grosse Pointe Questers No. 147

The Grosse Pointe chapter of Questers No. 147 will hold its first meeting of the season on Friday, Sept. 13.

The hostess, Elfrieda Palmentier, will entertain the group with a breakfast of their choice at the Jefferson Colonnade Restaurant at 10 a.m.

The group will then proceed to the Palmentier home where the hostess will present a program, "Wedding Bells in the White House." The first wedding officially recorded in the White House took place in 1812 when a widowed sister of Dolly Madison, Lucy Payne Washington, married a Supreme Court justice.

Members should telephone Palmentier by Sept. 7 for reservations.

Windmill Pointe Garden Club

The Windmill Pointe Garden Club will meet at 11:30 a.m. on Wednesday, Sept. 4. Maryhelen Feighner, hostess for the day, will be assisted by Sharon Mertz.

After the luncheon, Beverly Manick, executive director of Greening of Detroit, will describe the work her agency is doing in Detroit.

Members of the club are asked to bring flower, fruit and/or vegetable arrangements in any combination, using products only from their gardens.

tured bone doors, black hardware and sleek bone Corian countertops. Marge and Richard Pierce opted for a sophisticated up-to-the-minute '90s look and maximum use of every bit of space.

The Randazzo kitchen, 20155 Morningside, was designed for a family with busy, full schedules. Janet and Sam Randazzo both work.

The old dark cabinets were removed and custom Formica cupboards, Corian counters and ceramic tile flooring were installed. It was all planned for low maintenance as well as good looks.

Proceeds from the 1991 kitchen tour will be used for renovation of the emergency room at Cottage Hospital.

Tickets for the Cottage Hospital Auxiliary kitchen tour are $8 a person; $6 a person groups of 15 or more. Tickets are for

Grosse Pointe Ski Club holds annual Western party

The Grosse Pointe Ski Club will hold its annual western roundup and steak roast on Saturday, Sept. 14, at 6 p.m. at the Grosse Pointe War Memorial.

The party will feature music, square dancing, food, information and sign-up sheets for all the forthcoming ski trips, and plenty of socializing.

Call party chairman Virginia Becker at 882-0464, or co-chairman Dick Campbell at 771-3868 for reservations. The cost is $12, due by Sept. 10 to Dick Campbell, 21916 Maxine, St. Clair Shores, 48080.

There will be a discount on ski club dues if paid before Oct. 15.

The big trip of the year for the club will be Snow Bird, Utah, Feb. 23-29. Deposits of $50 are due now — the trip is filling fast. The complete package includes seven nights at the Cliff Lodge Hotel which features a pool, hot tubs, and gourmet dining. Also included in the price is round trip airfare on Delta Airlines and ski lift tickets. Snow Bird is noted for having over 30 feet of snow all season and mild temperatures. Send deposit to George Peterson, 1168 Bedford, Grosse Pointe Park, 48230 or call 882-2983. There will be a second week of skiing at Park City, Utah, March 1-7, with a complete package including accommodations at the Yarrow Hotel.

Singles and couples who enjoy sports and socializing are welcome. For information on membership, call Dick Wick at 884-6879. Call Virginia at 881-0909 for news of the club's year-round social activities.

Eastside Handweavers Guild donates doll house project to children's home

For the past year the Eastside Handweaver's Guild has been working on a project which it took to the 1991 Michigan League of Handweavers' Guild's biennial conference in June. Each guild member was encouraged to weave something specific, help with decorating and add furniture and various items for a doll house.

All of last year's programs were centered on weaving techniques used for interior items in a home. Members worked on rug techniques, talked to interior decorators, and tackled tapestry techniques.

The group effort generated much enthusiasm. The purpose was not to create a perfect miniature doll house, but to create an exhibit of handwoven items.

The doll house, a good portion of the furniture and most of the woven items will be donated to a children's home. During the month of August, the doll house is being exhibited at the Grosse Pointe library. The Eastside Handweavers Guild's favorite room is the loom room on the second floor.

The guild is an association of people interested in various fiber arts including weaving, spinning and basketry. Anyone is welcome. The guild meets from September through June from 7 to 9:30 p.m. on the third Monday of each month at the King's Pointe Apartments community center, 14979 12 Mile, in Warren.

Fash Bash: A bright, brassy fascination with fashions

Fash Bash, a benefit for the Detroit Institute of Arts sponsored by the DIA's Founders Junior Council, Hudson's and Northwest Airlines, drew 4,800 people to the Fox Theatre on Aug. 7 for an evening of seeing and being seen, fashions, food and entertainment.

For those who attended the 1991 version of the annual fundraiser, "What should we wear?" was the question.

Anything was acceptable, from cutting-edge to classic, Baroque to broke, trendy to timid, avant-garde to Sunday-go-to-meeting. Fash Bash is an unabashed display of fashions — on-stage and off.

Ticket sales, raffle items and a live auction brought in more than $160,000 for the DIA. The VIP reception at Clubland for patron ticket holders raised $56,000 with auctioned items, including a limited edition jacket offered by model Cindy Crawford, who made a special appearance at the benefit.

Broadway actor/singer Mandy Patinkin performed onstage at the Fox. The fashion show/performance put on by Hudson's featured more than 300 outfits, 60 models and 24 dancers. The choreographer was Myron Johnson.

JLD project: The Junior League of Detroit joined hands with Grateful Home, one of Detroit's longest-running substance abuse treatment programs for women, to address the critical needs of chemically dependent women and their children.

JLD members have begun work on a five-year project with Grateful Home's Dreamweaver POWER (Proud of Women Enjoying Recovery) program. When it becomes operational, the POWER program will be the only substance abuse treatment program in Detroit for women and their children up to age 17.

Masquerade: The Detroit Yacht Club's annual Venetian Night was held on Aug. 10. This year's event was a masquerade ball. Grosse Pointers who attended included Michael and Suzanne Tuite, John and Colleen Tompkins, Ray and Betty Jeanguenat and Randy and Marty Voorhees.

Also attending were Commodore Douglas Baker and his wife, Anne, Vice Commodore Bill Lynch and his guest, Mary Lynn Becker, and Rear Commodore Ron Dawes and Betty Jeanguenat.

The donation by the Junior League of Detroit enabled Grateful Home to exercise an option to purchase property for the new home of the Dreamweaver's POWER program, a treatment facility for chemically dependent women with children.

Pear Tree Questors to meet Sept. 4

The first meeting of the season of the Pear Tree chapter of Questors will be on Wednesday, Sept. 4. The 1991 season will begin with a field trip to many popular antique shops in Royal Oak.

All members are requested to meet at 10 a.m. at the Grosse Pointe Woods home of Mrs. A. J. Christie.

After the antiquing expedition, the group will meet at Peabody's restaurant for lunch. Peabody's is the oldest restaurant in the area and was once the barn on the Peabody farm.

Among the Grosse Pointers who attended the DYC's annual Venetian Night were, from left, Daryl Ann and Rear Commodore Ron Dawes and Betty and Ray Jeanguenat.

Gowanie holds tournament

The Gowanie Ladies Golf Club of Mount Clemens held its two-day member-member tournament July 17 and 18. Chairmen were Lorraine Tarasi and Camille Malloy.

First place winners of the first flight were Tarasi and June Wiegand. Second place winners were Georgia Brooks of Grosse Pointe Farms and Wendy Pemberton. Third place honors went to Bonnie Scratch and Marion Maurer of Grosse Pointe.

Winners of the second flight were Grosse Pointer Betty Reaser and Carol Radlinski. Second Third flight winners were Ann Scholl and Sandi Koester. Second place finishers were Shirley Kretzschmar of Grosse Pointe and Inez Rice. Third place went to Melissa Schade and Linda Schade of Grosse Pointe Woods.

Fourth flight winners were Grosse Pointer Joan McShane and Donna Sogge. Second were Trudy Vincent and Shirley Beloumo. Third were Lynn Christel and Yvonne Bagans.

Overall winners were Scholl and Koester with a score of 129.

Weddings

Mr. and Mrs. Brian Robert Carion

Nesburg-Carion

Kellie Ann Nesburg of Le-Moore, Calif., daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Nesburg of Vancouver, Wash., married Brian Robert Carion of Le-Moore, son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Carion of Grosse Pointe Woods, on June 1, 1991, at Calvary by the Sea Lutheran Church in Honolulu.

The Rev. David Hustoft officiated at the 11 a.m. ceremony, which was followed by a reception at the Willows restaurant in Honolulu.

The bride wore a white floor-length short-sleeved dress with a short train, a lace bodice and a tulle skirt. She carried a bouquet of white roses with three white and purple orchids in the center.

The matron of honor was the bride's mother, Ann Nesburg of Vancouver.

The best man was Joseph R. Carion of Grosse Pointe Park, the groom's brother.

The mother of the bride wore a coral silk dress.

The groom's mother wore a yellow linen dress.

The bride is a graduate of Clark College in Vancouver. She is employed by Transamerica Financial Services in Visalia, Calif.

The groom is in the U.S. Navy and attends West Hills College.

The newlyweds honeymooned in Hawaii. They live in Le-Moore.

The Couple to Couple League will sponsor two series on natural family planning.

The first begins on Sunday, Sept. 15, from 2 to 4:30 p.m., at St. Vincent Ferrer, 1075 E. Gardinia, Madison Heights. The series continues monthly with meetings on Oct. 13, Nov. 10 and Dec. 15.

Another series begins on Sunday, Sept. 22 from 2:30 to 5 p.m. at St. Joan of Arc Church on Mack between Eight and Nine Mile in St. Clair Shores. The series continues monthly with meetings on Oct. 20, Nov. 17, and Dec. 8.

Private counseling also will be available. A registration fee includes all materials for class. To register or find out more about natural family planning, call Jim and Carol Berch at 778-4980.

New Friends and Neighbors

The New Friends and Neighbors Club, formerly the Welcome Wagon Club of Grosse Pointe and Harper Woods, will continue welcoming new residents to the Pointes and offering an opportunity to meet new people in a relaxed and friendly setting.

The Club meets the first Thursday of the month at the Grosse Pointe War Memorial, 32 Lakeshore. There are small activity groups with a variety of interests, including bridge, theatre and crafts. For further information, contact Susan Hoffman at 884-5756, or Maribeth Dear at 822-8159.

Everyone is welcome to attend the luncheon and fall fashion show by Talbots on Thursday, Sept. 5, at 11 a.m. in the Crystal Ballroom at the Grosse Pointe War Memorial. Cost is $12 a person. RSVP by Aug. 30 to Helen Saxton, 885-9106.

Single parenting

"Single Parenting in the '90s," a six-week program for single parents, begins Tuesday, Sept. 10, from 6 to 7:30 p.m., at A Friend's House, 28111 Imperial, Warren.

Presented by Catholic Services of Macomb, the program will examine the stresses of single parenting and help participants identify and develop the strengths they need for successful parenting. Free child care will be provided.

Social worker Tracey Chartier will be the facilitator.

Cost is $5 a session. For information and registration, call Chartier at 558-7551.

St. Paul Lutheran Church members who attended a workshop at Luther College in Iowa recently were, from left, Harold and Helen Fick and Roger Peterson.

Grosse Pointers attend workshop

More than 160 people from 68 church congregations, including a group from St. Paul Lutheran Church in Grosse Pointe Farms, took part in the Congregation Heritage Workshop July 21-23 at Luther College in Iowa.

Workshop participants learned about planning church anniversaries, writing histories, organizing archives and renewing the parish ministry and mission.

Among the Grosse Pointers who attended the workshop were Harold and Helen Fick and Roger Peterson.

Group for daughters without moms

A treatment group for women raised without mothers as nurturing role models when they were children — and who now find they are either over- or under-involved with their own children — begins Thursday, Sept. 12, from 1 to 2:30 p.m. at the Warren office of Catholic Services of Macomb, 12434 12 Mile.

Social worker Patricia Bres-ton will help group members learn healthy ways to nurture their own children, share the loss of their mothers as role models, and support and nurture each other.

Cost is $16 per session. Pre-evaluation is required. For information, call 558-7551.

Support group for people from dysfunctional families

An eight-week treatment group for adult children from dysfunctional families begins Tuesday, Sept. 10, from 6:30 to 8 p.m., at the Warren office of Catholic Services of Macomb, 12434 12 Mile, east of Hoover.

Social worker Patricia Bres-ton will help the group members to examine the roles, rules and relationships that surrounded them as they were growing up.

Fees are $16 per session. Pre-evaluation is required.

For information, call 558-7551.

Cancer care information, hospice volunteer training

Educational seminars are presented by Cottage Hospice for anyone who wishes to learn more about cancer. An extended program includes training for individuals who wish to become hospice volunteers. The Caring Person program will be offered beginning Monday, Sept. 16, and continuing through Monday, Nov. 18. The 10-week course meets every Monday from 7 to 9 p.m.

The program offers instruction in many aspects of patient care and comfort. Chemotherapy, radiation therapy, prescription management, nutrition, pain control and respiratory therapy will be discussed by experts in these fields. Participants may select the sessions that are of interest to them.

Participants will learn how to lift and position bedridden patients, as well as how to cope with the emotional problems related to living with a cancer patient. The goal of the program is to provide basic information and to act as a support group, providing participants with a framework for healthy dialogue and an exchange of ideas.

Those who plan to become hospice volunteers are required to participate in the full 10 weeks of training to prepare for a wide range of family situations and patient conditions. Hospice volunteers are trained to provide physical, spiritual and emotional support to terminally ill people and their families throughout the periods of illness, death and bereavement. The hospice volunteer is part of the support team of physicians, nurses, social workers, therapists and spiritual care advisers, providing a crucial link between the family and the hospital caregivers.

For more information about the next Caring Person program and hospice volunteer training, call Kathy Ritsema, hospice volunteer coordinator, at 884-8600, ext. 2467.

Cottage Hospice is a program of Cottage Hospital of Grosse Pointe, an affiliate of Henry Ford Health System. Cottage Hospital is located at 159 Kercheval, between Moross and Cadieux, in Grosse Pointe Farms.

Cottage Hospice is licensed by the state of Michigan and certified for Medicare and Medicaid benefits.

Support for childless

A six-week support group for couples, "Childless — Not By Choice," begins Thursday, Sept. 12, from 7 to 9 p.m., at the Utica office of Catholic Services of Macomb, 45100 Sterritt, Suite 103, west of M-53 and north of Hall Road.

Therapist Hazel Maxwell, will discuss ways to cope with the stress, anxiety and loneliness of infertility.

Topics will include examination of the cultural and psychological effects of infertility, decisions about infertility testing, and the importance of parenting in a couple's life.

Cost for the series is $75 a couple. Call 254-2900 for information.

Macomb Reading Partners

Anyone interested in becoming an adult reading tutor or learning more about Macomb Reading Partners is invited to an orientation session on Wednesday, Sept. 18, at the Mount Clemens Library, 150 Cass Avenue, from 7 to 9 p.m.

For more information, call 286-2750.

Bridge

HAVE A PLEASANT TRY AT PERFECTION
BRIDGE BY WOODY BOYD ♠♥♦♣

One evening this past July, my good friend Gail Stroh called to say her mother Mary Robertson was coming to town for a few days and would I make up a game. Such a handsome invitation is, to me, pre-eminent for Mrs. Robertson is a vintage limb of the famous Regency Whist Club of Manhattan. You could be sure that Gail's gracious tender assured the participation would be commendable and entertaining. It was, therefore, no surprise to find upon my arrival that the foursome embraced Bliss and Jon Clark whose play is known to only a few. In the course of just a few deals it was readily apparent that their flair for the game was the best kept secret in Grosse Pointe bridge. Both were a tidy bit rusty in the early going as neither had been at the table in some time, but their aptitude was evident and I suggested they never let it lag again.

Of course, Mrs. Robertson, who is one of the most aggressive contestants I ever matched wits with, was at her enjoyable best forcing the issue on almost every deal. As she said, "I'm fortunate to hold a handful of high cards often and I'm not reticent about bidding them."

Little by little she captures the pack, leaving fodder for others if any in fact, she bids them and plays them searching her due, bequeathing what's left for the other two, who damnably starve on the residue.

In today's hand from that contest, the gals put me men to shame all because yours truly had to foolishly alert declarer to the dangers that lay ahead and they found an excellent alternate road to glory.

A word about the bidding. Jon might have made a preemptive call of three spades which would have taken away valuable bidding space from N/S. Mrs. Robertson might have used the popular duplicate bid of a negative double which showed cards in the two unbid suits instead of three diamonds which suggested greater length, but she was under pressure. As earlier stated, West's double was a display of delinquent development. Five diamonds had merit as four hearts had no play for success.

Declarer ruffed the third spade in dummy noting West showed out which gave East seven spades to start with. At trick 4 thru 7, Mary drew trumps which was her only play for eleven tricks. Again Mrs. Robertson noted that East followed to all four and this accounted for eleven of Jon's thirteen cards. What were the other two? In the probability that West had five hearts and four clubs plus the missing honors in those two suits at trick 8, she next successfully finessed West's club queen by playing her jack. This was extremely dangerous, for if East had the club queen, still a possibility, he could run the rest of his spades for down at least four. When the club jack held Mary played a heart to the ten and East showed out. Now a small club from dummy to her king and a heart to dummy's queen. The heart and club ace were declarer's tenth and eleventh tricks which earned Mrs. Robertson a boisterous commendation from everyone.

Summer ends with another great jazz fest

By Ronald J. Bernas
Staff Writer

For the last 12 years, Detroit's summer has been laid to rest to the music of jazz. This year will be no different as hundreds of thousands of people are expected to fill Hart Plaza to hear some of the country's best jazz artists as part of the 12th annual Miller Lite Montreux Detroit Jazz Festival.

The festival begins tonight at 5:30 p.m. and continues through 10:30 p.m. Monday. Filling those four days will be more than 100 free open-air jazz concerts.

High school, college and military jazz bands will play alongside internationally known artists offering all types of jazz sounds for all types of listeners.

Tonight's headliner is drummer Elvin Jones, whose 7 p.m. concert on the Amphitheatre Stage is the official opener of the festival.

Jones is regarded in jazz circles as the father of free improvisation drumming, most often associated with the jazz music of the '60s and early '70s.

Afro-Cuban jazz headlines Friday's free concerts as trumpeter Mario Bauza takes the Amphitheatre Stage at 7:45 p.m. Born in Cuba, Bauza emigrated to the United States in the late '20s and recorded with the great Cab Calloway. He helped discover such talents as Ella Fitzgerald and Dizzy Gillespie. It is Bauza's first visit to the Montreux-Detroit festival.

Later on Friday, another trumpeter, Jon Faddis, makes his second appearance at the festival. Inspired and tutored by Dizzy Gillespie, Faddis has toured extensively with Lionel Hampton and cut several albums as both a leader of his own quartet and as featured soloist and musical director of Gillespie's big band.

Saturday at 8:30 p.m. pianist Marcus Roberts makes his Montreux-Detroit debut. It's part of the "Young Lions" evening featuring another rising star, saxophonist Christopher Hollyday, who plays at 7 p.m. Roberts was born in 1965 in Florida, and lost his sight at age 4 to a degenerative eye disease. His mother, a gospel singer, introduced him to music and he began formal piano training at the age of 12. He's played with Wynton Marsalis' band and in 1987 won the first Thelonious Monk International Jazz Competition.

Hollyday will lead his quartet in two performances Saturday. At 21, he is part of a new generation of jazz musicians who are returning to the sounds made famous by jazz legends Dizzy Gillespie and Charlie "Bird" Parker in the '40s. The self-taught musician picked up his first saxophone at age 9 and by 14 had memorized most of Parker's recorded solos and made his professional debut. He has five albums to his credit.

Pianist Jay McShann performs his legendary blues and boogie-woogie on the Pyramid Stage on Sunday at 7 p.m. and on the Amphitheatre Stage on Monday at 9 p.m. to close the festival.

Also as part of the festival, jazz artists of all styles will join in the New RAPA House Jam Sessions at the Top of the Pontch. Tickets for the sessions are $7.50 and can be purchased at the door or at the festival box office, 100 Renaissance Center.

Open rehearsals and jazz clinics will be offered free at the Top of the Pontch; schedules are available at the festival box office.

If you can't get there each night, WDET-FM, 101.9, will broadcast the concerts all day.

For more information, call 259-5400.

Capitol Steps aren't afraid to tread on anything

By Ronald J. Bernas
Staff Writer

A female senator sings (to the well-known tune): I met him at my campaign dinner And thanks to all his bucks I was a landslide winner — that's when I fell for the leader of the PAC.

George Bush sings: I'll drop a bomb on Saddam Saddam Saddam.

I'll drag a bag over Bag-a Bag-a Baghdad.

ADMIT ONE
Theater
ENJOYMENT

No one is safe when the Capitol Steps sharpen their wit and aim their poisoned pens at everyone from politicians to today's youth to celebrities.

They'll bring their hilarious brand of parody to the Attic Theatre for two shows nightly, Friday and Saturday, Sept. 6 and 7.

Based in Washington, D.C., the Capitol Steps took their name from the favorite legendary make-out place of former Rep. John Jenrette and his wife Rita.

And, as you might expect, no subject is sacred.

They've found the best use for the Hubble telescope (to the tune of "We've Got Trouble" from "The Music Man"): it can be used to find minuscule things like new ideas from the Democrats, a solid S&L and Rosanne Barr's perfect pitch.

Former Washington, D.C. Mayor Marion Barry says "everything goes better with coke" and now he's "goin' up the river" to the tune of "Proud Mary."

Although nothing's sacred, nothing's an insider joke, either. All their topics have to be on front pages or on the nightly news for several evenings.

The group members, all former congressional aides, aren't above their own humor and they even parody themselves: "The Hardest Rhyme" tells of their search for a word that rhymes with Yeltsin.

The Capitol Steps have appeared on several television programs including "The Today Show," "Nightline," and "Good Morning America." Additionally, their songs have been featured on National Public Radio's "All Things Considered" for the last four years.

They have eight albums with titles which include "We Arm The World" and "Thank God I'm a Contra Boy!" and according to the liner notes to their latest album, "Sheik, Rattle & Roll," they've appeared "in 34 states, Canada, Puerto Rico and New Jersey... for three presidents, but so far no dictators."

Their two-night stand at the Attic is the beginning of the Attic's 1991-92 Guest Artist Series. It is the group's first performance at that venue.

Tickets are $23 for all four shows — 7:30 and 10 p.m. on Friday, Sept. 6, and 7 and 10 p.m. on Saturday, Sept. 7 — and can be ordered by calling the Attic Theatre box office at 875-8284 or TicketMaster outlets at 645-6666.

The Capitol Steps perform at the Attic Sept. 6-7.

Golden Lion releases 'Prisoner of Second Avenue'

"The Prisoner of Second Avenue," Neil Simon's comedy about the trials and tribulations of urban living, is the first show of the new dinner theater season at the Golden Lion Dinner Theatre.

based with the prospect of having to become the breadwinner of the family, even as Mel is approaching a nervous breakdown. The story is filled with Neil Simon's witty observations on modern life, and showcases his ability to take serious subjects and apply his own special brand of humor to them.

Mel is played by local actor Nick Dara. Dara can be seen in a variety of local television commercials and industrial films. He was recently seen in Grosse Pointe Theatre's production of "Chicago" as Amos Hart. His portrayal earned him a best supporting actor award at GPT.

The role of Edna will be played by Olivia Wickline. Wickline has been seen in several productions at the Golden Lion, including performing in the female version of "The Odd Couple" as Olive Madison.

Filling out the cast are Molly Johnson-Dodge, Jann Hight and Richard Davis as Mel's two sisters and his brother, Pearl, Pauline and Harry.

The production is under the direction of Maureen Bruce, local actress and director. Most recently she was seen as M. Lynn in "Steel Magnolias" at the Golden Lion, and directed the restaurant's production of "The Phantom of the Opera" last season.

Price for the evening is $24.95 a person, which includes dinner, show, tax, and gratuity. Cocktails begin at 7 p.m. Dinner is at 7:30 p.m. with the show following dessert at 8:30 p.m.

Gift tickets and group rates are available for all dinner theater productions at the Golden Lion. Special senior citizen group rates are also available for Friday performances only. The Golden Lion restaurant is located at 22380 Moross, near Mack, in Detroit across from St. John Hospital.

For further information and reservations, which are suggested, call 896-2420.

ENJOYMENT

Opening on Friday, Sept. 13, and running Friday and Saturday evenings through Saturday, Oct. 26, the comedy begins the 12th season of dinner theater by Dennis Wickline Productions Inc., currently metro Detroit's longest-running professional dinner theater production company. It is also the company's 10th season at the Golden Lion restaurant.

"The Prisoner of Second Avenue" is the story of Mel and Edna Edison. Mel is approaching mid-life and his crisis comes with the added burden of being faced with the possibility of losing his job. Edna becomes Olivia Wickline and Nick Dara star in "The Prisoner of Second Avenue" at The Golden Lion Dinner Theatre.

Lake St. Clair Symphony turns 30

The Lake St. Clair Symphony, which serves the tri-county area, marks its 30th anniversary when it begins its new season in October.

There are many things happening to make this 30th year a musical success. First, the orchestra will introduce its new conductor, Andrew Sewell, a young New Zealander who has an impressive background.

Music

Sewell moved to the United States in 1983 to study conducting at the University of Michigan under Gustav Meier. Upon graduating with honors with a master of music degree, he was appointed music director of the Scandinavian Symphony Orchestra of Detroit — a post he still holds. He also continues a keen interest in youth music organizations as music director of the Livonia Youth Philharmonic of Michigan.

In May he was one of five finalists selected to conduct a master class with Daniel Barenboim, of the American Symphony Orchestra League Conducting Workshop in Chicago. In June he returned to New Zealand to guest conduct the Dunedin Sinfonia and he has been invited back for several concerts in 1992.

Hugh Brous, the only original orchestra member and head of the conductor selection committee, said that he asked all candidates the same question, "What do you feel personally that you could bring to the orchestra?" Sewell responded, "Enjoyment — music should be a pleasure to everyone involved."

Andrew Sewell

Along with Sewell, the orchestra plans an enjoyable experience with the program year titled "Series International '91-'92." The concert dates are Oct. 19, Dec. 7, Feb. 16 (Macomb Center for the Performing Arts) and May 2. Until Sept. 30, tickets for all four programs can be purchased for just $30 — a special price to celebrate the 30th anniversary.

Call the symphony office, 776-1012 for more information.

'Clothed in Majesty' features rare and seldom-seen textiles from yesterday's churches

The collection of European textiles and costumes in the Detroit Institute of Arts (DIA) consists of more than 15,000 pieces and ranks among the most important of such collections in the United States.

A rare and seldom-seen segment of this collection will be featured in "Clothed in Majesty: European Ecclesiastical Textiles from the Detroit Institute of Arts," on view in the museum's special exhibition galleries from Sept. 14 through Feb. 9.

The exhibition will include 35 exquisite textiles made for use by clergy from the 12th to the 19th centuries. Medieval and Renaissance weaving and embroidery skills are represented in vestments, altar frontals and covers for such ecclesiastical furniture as lecterns and tables. Fabrics were often recycled; in later periods, from the baroque to the 19th-century, liturgical vestments were often refashioned from the garments and furnishings of the secular elite.

Highlights include a 14th century white-on-white embroidered lectern cover; an early 16th century orphrey and shield representing the seven sacraments embroidered in gold and silk thread; a 17th century ceremonial shroud from what is now the Soviet Union; and a large 18th century silk cope acquired with funds donated in memory of John Cardinal Dearden, archbishop of Detroit from 1958-80.

"Although less familiar than chalices and other ecclesiastical vessels, these textiles are no less precious. Many were intricately embroidered with gold and silver thread and were carefully stored away from damaging extremes of temperature, and public view," says Samuel Sachs II, exhibit director. "Clothed in Majesty" represents a rare showing for a number of little-known masterpieces of unsurpassed quality."

The exhibition will be on view at the DIA during regular hours (9:30 - 5:30 Wednesday-Sunday). The exhibition was made possible with support from the National Endowment for the Arts, the state of Michigan, the city of Detroit, and the Founders Society.

Three pioneering women who didn't monkey around

Walking with the Great Apes
By Sy Montgomery
Houghton Mifflin. 280 pages. $19.95

The Dark Romance of Dian Fossey
By Harold T. P. Hayes
Simon & Schuster. 351 pages. $21.95

I have always been intrigued by man's resemblance to monkeys and particularly gorillas, so it was with eager curiosity that I read two fine books on this subject. "Walking with the Great Apes" by Sy Montgomery is an excellent and informative account of three women who study man's closest relatives: the chimpanzees of Tanzania, the mountain gorillas of Rwanda, and the orangutans of Borneo. "The Dark Romance of Dian Fossey" by Harold T. P. Hayes concentrates on one of these women with fuller details of her life, career, and sad ending.

The great anthropologist, Louis Leakey of Africa recruited three young women for careers in primate research: Jane Goodall of England, Dian Fossey of the United States, and Birute Galdikas of Canada. Montgomery illuminates with many fascinating details how, one-by-one, each of these intrepid "ape ladies" bravely marched off to meet their destinies with the apes. Jane Goodall was sent to Gombe Stream Reserve in Tanzania in 1960 to observe chimpanzees; Dian Fossey arrived in Africa in 1967 to study the mountain gorillas; and Birute Galdikas, in 1971, found herself in Borneo living among the orangutans.

Each of these women bravely entered inhospitable jungles, set up camps and research stations, organized the routines of native workers, and finally performed the scientific observations of the last of the great primates now in existence. Their territory, sadly enough, was being continually diminished by the inroads of poachers, hunters, and farmers. When they commenced their life's work, none of these women had Ph.D., but Leakey, through connections with the National Geographic and other wildlife organizations, was able to provide funding for each of his three recruits to eventually attend Cambridge University in England, write their theses and receive their doctorates, an important qualification needed to attract professional respect as well as additional funds from scientific organizations world-wide.

Jane Goodall's field of concentration was the chimpanzees, and she worked calmly and patiently to acclimate them to her presence. Later she was able to distinguish individual chimpanzees, naming them, and assiduously following their day-time routines from sunrise to nightfall. Now, after almost 30 years in the bush, Goodall is busy on another crusade — to save the chimpanzees from extinction. The inroads of civilization and the demands of medical laboratories have decimated the chimpanzee population, and Goodall is determined to do all she can to stop it or, at least, ease the pressure.

The great mountain gorillas became the focus of Dian Fossey's concern, and she was careful in her initial approach to them. After they became accustomed to her presence, she was able to recognize individual gorillas and she was thrilled when they accepted her. When she and a gorilla looked directly into each other's eyes, she felt truly that she was one of them. During her 18 years in Rwanda, Fossey turned into a ferocious warrior to protect her gorillas from slaughter or capture for zoos. As a result, she made many enemies among the poachers. Fate caught up with her one Christmas when she was found brutally murdered in her bed. To this day, her slayer remains unknown and is still at large.

Leakey's last recruit in his endeavor to explore the close relationship between apes and humans, Birute Galdikas found herself in steamy, tropical Borneo to study and observe the orangutans. To this day, she remains in the Indonesian wilds and champions the causes of her apes against the continual encroachment of land cultivation. Like Goodall and Fossey, she has won the trust of her animals, and she, too, recognizes individual traits among the orangutans.

These remarkable "ape ladies" who began their adventures with no experience have succeeded as scientific observers. Their animal subjects were not numbered; they had names; they had different personalities, they revealed imagination as well as intelligence — all characteristics leading to eye-opening insights into human behavior.

At his death, Harold T. P. Hayes left an almost-complete manuscript of his last book, "The Dark Romance of Dian Fossey," to which he devoted several years of careful research. In Montgomery's book we received glimpses of Dian Fossey and her life with the mountain gorillas, which only whetted our appetite for more. So, thankfully, we have Hayes' book covering Dian Fossey completely from childhood to her unsolved murder 53 years later, and it is an excellent follow-up in the life of this star-crossed anthropologist who was so often misunderstood, derided and criticized. Even though he presents his subject in a sympathetic light, Hayes is careful to balance his portrait with accounts of her detractors and enemies, of whom she had many. We have to admire the gritty determination of Fossey to persist against all obstacles, man-made as well as natural, to discover the secrets of the gorillas and how their traits so closely resemble those of man.

Audition Notices

The international award-winning Detroit Concert Choir will hold auditions for its 1991 fall/winter season on Sept. 9, 14, 16 and 21. Auditions will be by appointment only and will be at Grosse Pointe Memorial Church, 16 Lakeshore. Openings in all sections are available for singers with a musical background. For audition requirements and more information, call 882-0118 and ask for Christine.

The Langford Singers male choir and mixed choir are accepting auditions for the 1991-92 season. The 50-voice choirs, under the direction of Harry M. Langford, are planning a two-week concert tour of Great Britain in July 1992. Singers must have a pleasant voice, some sight-reading skills and must prepare a solo. Auditions will be held Thursdays, Sept. 5 and 12 from 7 to 8:30 p.m. at the North Congregational Church in Southfield. For more information and an audition appointment, call Dianne Cragg at 881-5499.

Auditions for the Lake St. Clair Symphony Orchestra for the 1991-92 season will be held on Saturday, Sept. 7, from 2 to 5 p.m. at the Lakeshore Presbyterian Church, 27801 Jefferson in St. Clair Shores. For more information, call 776-1012.

The Greasepaint Players will hold auditions for the Agatha Christie thriller, "The Unexpected Guest," at 7:30 p.m. on Monday and Wednesday, Sept. 9 and 11, in Room 164 at Grosse Pointe South High School. For more information, call 774-0309.

The Macomb Symphony Orchestra will hold auditions for vacancies in the following sections: violin, viola, cello, oboe, bassoon, French horn and percussion. For more information, including audition dates and times, call the symphony office at 286-2045.

The Europe-bound Madrigal Chorale of Southfield, a 50-voice choir, will hold auditions for male voices on Tuesday, Sept. 3, from 4:30 to 8 p.m. at Southfield-Lathrup High School. For more information, call 253-0072.

Dennis Wickline Productions Inc. will hold auditions for "The King and I" and "The Last Great British Sex Farce Ever" on Friday, Sept. 6 at 7:30 p.m. and Saturday, Sept. 7 at 11 a.m. in the lower level of the Golden Lion Restaurant, 22380 Moross, near Mack, in Detroit across from St. John Hospital.

"The King and I" will run Fridays and Saturdays in November and December including a New Year's Eve performance on Tuesday, Dec. 31. The role of Anna has already been cast, but nine additional roles are available including two young men age 12-16, four older men age 25-50 and three additional women age 25-50.

"The Last Great British Sex Farce Ever" will run Fridays and Saturdays from Jan. 10 to Feb. 22. All roles are open. Two men and four women age 25-45 are needed. Payment upon casting is $20 a performance. For more information, call 773-5914 between 6:30 and 8:30 p.m. Monday through Thursday.

Chene Park gets funky with hip-hop, reggae

It's going to be a night of funk, hip-hop and reggae when the Budweiser Concert Series at the Chene Park Music Theatre presents Ziggy Marley and the Melody Makers, Queen Latifah and Crystal Waters for one show only Saturday, Aug. 31 at 7:30 p.m.

Ziggy Marley and the Melody Makers, featuring siblings Stephen, Cedella and Sharon Marley, are redefining and reshaping the reggae sound their father, Bob Marley, helped to create. While remaining true to the deep spiritual roots which anchors the reggae tradition, Ziggy Marley and the Melody Makers infuse hip-hop, rap, pop, R&B and gospel elements to make music that is guaranteed to keep you listening, dancing and shouting for more.

Queen Latifah has proven herself to be a powerful new musical voice. Born Dana Owens, she was nicknamed Latifah (which means delicate and sensitive in Arabic). She added Queen to acknowledge that black people come from a long line of kings and queens. She was voted "Best Female Rapper" in the 1990 Rolling Stone magazine Readers Poll, and was named "Best New Rap Artist" at the 1990 New Music Seminar. An outspoken feminist, Queen Latifah is committed to spreading the work of peace, unity and brotherhood and has stayed busy with projects ranging from lecturing at Harvard University to fundraising for AIDS research and various ecology related projects. She appeared in Spike Lee's "Jungle Fever," Ernest Dickerson's "Juice" and will be in the upcoming film "House Party 2." She has also appeared on television's "The Fresh Prince of Bel Air."

Crystal Waters comes from a long line of musicians and entertainers. Her father is jazz musician Jr. Waters and she is the niece of the late Ethel Waters. She has found her own road to stardom with her hit "Gypsy Women (She's Homeless)," aka "LaDaDee, LaDaDa."

Tickets for the concert are on sale now at all TicketMaster outlets and the Fisher Theatre box office (with no service charge). Tickets are priced at $22.50 (pavilion) and $20 (lawn). Tickets will be available at the Chene Park box office on the day of the show only. For more information, call 393-0066.

Birmingham opens season with 'Lend Me a Tenor'

The 1991-92 Birmingham Theatre season-opening comedy "Lend Me a Tenor" begins an eight-week engagement Sept. 10.

"Lend Me a Tenor," starring Broadway's Barry Nelson, Ron Holgate and Jane Connell, is a zany, outrageous, award-winning comedy that had a lengthy Broadway run two years ago. The plot revolves around the one-night-only performance of the world's greatest tenor in Verdi's "Otello" in 1934 Cleveland.

When the tenor becomes indisposed an hour before curtain and a replacement must be found, the ensuing confusion, augmented by six slamming doors, a ringing telephone, swooning females and singing bellhop, leaves the audience limp with laughter.

Ron Holgate and Jane Connell will repeat their Broadway roles; Holgate as Tito Merelli, known to his fans the world over as "Il Stupendo," and Jane Connell as the socialite Opera Guild chairwoman. Barry Nelson recreates the starring role he played in the national tour, opera impresario Saunders.

Tickets are available now and range in price from $17.50 to $32.50. Call 644-3533 for more information.

Camper Van plays

Musical nomads Camper Van Beethoven and eccentric experimentalist Eugene Chadbourne bring their diverse musical talents (country to blues to psychedelic) and wacky performance art to the Majestic Theatre for an unpredictable show Sunday, Sept. 8, at 8 p.m.

Tickets for the performance are available for $10 at The Record Collector, 28143 West Eight Mile Road, Livonia, and all TicketMaster outlets, and at the door. The Majestic Theatre is located at 4140 Woodward in Detroit. For more information, call 833-9700.

Travel Trends

By Phyllis Hollenbeck

Comparison shopping

It is really hard to tell when and if you have the lowest available price for a given airplane seat or hotel room. Those who travel frequently on business have staff members who may spend a good part of their workday chasing the "best" deals. The primary concern of business people on the go is comfort; the primary concern of the companies that "pay the way" is the cost of the trip. Travel costs can make a big difference in a business's bottom line. Today "full fares" and "rack rates" are just about a thing of the past. These tariffs are most often quoted as a place to start negotiating. Fare wars, air ticket consolidators, discount cruise agencies and hotel specials and packages have all but eliminated the need to pay the full fare when you travel.

But where to start? How does one go about finding the best rates? The most efficient way is to find the best travel agent you can. A good travel agent will be able to save you a great deal of money throughout your travel years, and the lowest airline fares are available through the agent's computer system.

The best hotel rates may be a bit harder to pin down. Individual hotels and hotel chains often offer "special" or "package" rates at their various facilities. Always ask for the very best rate available for the period of your stay. Often a travel agent can arrange a "corporate" rate even for the leisure traveler. This can be done because many agents are members of consortia, reserve through wholesalers or consolidators, or subscribe to computerized booking services that allow them to book the lower corporate rates.

The same thing applies when you are renting a car. Always request the best current deal. You may find that the midsize or luxury model is available at the same or just slightly higher price than a subcompact.

Special hotel rates are also available through a variety of travel clubs. If you are a member of the American Association of Retired Persons or the American Automobile Association you may be entitled to hefty hotel discounts at your destination. You will want to check your club's membership details to determine if you will be able to take advantage of hotel discounts at your destination. Another option would be to purchase an Entertainment Publication coupon book. The cost is $25-$40 each and they cover individual cities and metropolitan areas across the United States, Europe and Canada. There is also a nationwide "Travel American at Half Price" book that offers a variety of discounts. Information is available by calling (313) 637-8400.

Travelers looking for comfort will have to "pay" for first class or business class — unless they are members of the airline's frequent flyer club. Since all airline frequent flyer clubs are available to the flying public at no cost, it is a good idea to pick up and complete an application for your airline's club. You may never travel on that carrier again — but you never know. As a member of an airline's club you will find that accumulating mileage credit will happen quickly even if you only travel two or three times a year, if you can arrange to use the same carrier.

Many leisure travelers do not realize that these clubs were created to foster airline loyalty among leisure travelers as well as business travelers. There is no distinction made between the two and once mileage credit is accumulated, there are a multitude of choices for all travelers. You will find that the best frequent flyer deals are those offered by airlines that allow their frequent travelers to purchase low cost coach/economy excursion tickets and "upgrade" to a business or first class seat. These upgrades are earned more quickly than "free" tickets and go far to make a trip pleasant. If you travel from an airport that is served by several airlines, take the time to check with your travel agent for the various carriers' frequent flyer club rules and when you find yourself with a choice between two carriers, consider choosing the one with the best frequent flyer program.

DFT presents the 23rd International Tournee of Animation this weekend

The 23rd edition of the all-ways-popular International Tournee of Animation will settle in for a weekend's run at the Detroit Film Theatre (DFT) of the Detroit Institute of Arts on Aug. 30, 31 and Sept. 1.

The Tournee is a collection of short animated films gathered from film festivals, international competitions, gifted students and proudly independent animators the world over. Featuring humorous, serious and poetic examples of the animator's art, the 23rd International Tournee of Animation is a celebration of imagination which the Boston Herald's Nat Segaloff said "gets better and better every year."

Showtimes are Friday and Saturday at 7 and 9:30 p.m., and Sunday at 4 and 7 p.m. Tickets are $5 general admission and $4 for students with full-time I.D., and are available in advance at the DIA ticket office or at the door.

The DFT's Crystal Gallery Cafe is open one hour before each performance for light snacks, freshly baked pastries, and a wide selection of teas, coffees and other beverages.

For more information or to obtain a new season schedule, call the ticket office at 833-2323, from 9:30 a.m. until 5 p.m. daily.

Comic Short comes up short yet again

By Chris Lathrop
Special Writer

Martin Short is living proof that bad things happen in threes, at least in the movie business. Just look at his track record:

"Three Amigos." Flop.

"Three Fugitives." Flop.

Even "Innerspace," probably Short's best film, can only be considered a video or television favorite at best. In that one, he was the odd man out in a trio that also included Dennis Quaid and Meg Ryan.

This unfortunate pattern persists in Short's latest dog,

"Pure Luck," in which he's embroiled in another ridiculous plot that involves three main characters.

But perhaps more significantly, Short once again finds himself on the outside looking in, not in the film itself, but in the industry. He keeps getting stuck with lousy scripts while other less talented comedians are earning big bucks.

In "Pure Luck," Short gets top billing as a bumbling idiot named Eugene Proctor. With private eye Raymond Campa-nella (Danny Glover) in tow, Eugene is sent to Mexico in hopes that his inherent bad luck will lead him to his boss' missing daughter, who also happens to be cursed with recurring misfortune.

That's right. The plot revolves around three characters. And you know what that means: this thing was doomed from the start.

Actually, the boss' daughter is a fairly nondescript character, leaving the bulk of the so-called funny stuff to Short and Glover. And there are a few good scenes.

The trouble is, almost all of them are in the movie's trailer and commercials, so by the time you get to the theater, you've already seen the best "Pure Luck" has to offer. There's nothing left to laugh at, certainly not the fact that you just blew six bucks on this trash.

So you're left wondering why anyone even slightly resembling a reputable movie star would associate himself with this project. Glover's been on a major losing streak lately; his previous films were "Predator 2" and "Flight of the Intruder." Enough said.

But at least he has "The Color Purple" and the "Lethal Weapon" movies to his credit. We've seen proof that he's a good actor who can realize his potential when he's not in it strictly for the money.

Too bad we can't say the same (yet) for Short, who was one of the few bright spots on "Saturday Night Live" during that show's lean years in the mid-'80s. His film career has been a major disappointment, especially in comparison to the credits racked up by other "SNL" alumni.

It would be a shame to see Short likened to the abrasive Joe Piscopo, the only other notable "SNL" cast member whose attempt at being a film star went belly up (Anthony Michael Hall doesn't count). Unlike Piscopo, Short has talent. He just needs a chance to show it.

Needless to say, "Pure Luck" falls woefully short of providing such an opportunity. It is merely a display of Short's physical comedy skills and Glover's willingness to be type-cast as a by-the-book kind of guy. Both routines are rapidly wearing out their welcome.

Surgeon learns compassion as a patient

By Marian Trainor
Staff Writer

Intensely focused and wholly absorbing, "The Doctor" stunningly portrays one man's shattering encounter with what it means to be placed in the hands of capable but uncaring health care professionals.

The man is Jack MacKee (William Hurt), a brilliant and arrogant San Francisco heart surgeon who no longer sees his patients as real even as he's saving their lives. He has acquired so much clinical distance that it now rules his personality. He no longer sees his wife (Christine Lahti) or his son (Charlie Korsmo) as human beings at all.

The opening scene is telling: MacKee is about to cut into a nameless patient. He exchanges a few jokes with his colleagues, and although he displays impeccable skill, his manner is that of a butcher — he is simply doing his job.

Residents who follow in his wake during hospital rounds listen to him intently. When one of them questions his detachment, he answers: "Surgery is about judgment and to have judgment you have to be detached."

MacKee is a model of a successful, arrogant surgeon, affable with his colleagues, distant and coldly professional with those who come seeking his help.

Ironically, when fate turns the tables on him, and he is diagnosed with cancer of the larynx, he turns to a surgeon who is just like him: brisk, efficient and completely detached.

Adapted from an autobiography by Dr. Ed Rosenbaum, "The Doctor" follows the painful journey of a man who regains his compassion through his brush with disaster.

Reminiscent of "Regarding Henry," the story of a hard-driving lawyer whose laborious recovery from a severe head injury proved to be a humanizing experience, "The Doctor" is more honest; it's almost clinically cold, warming along with its stricken protagonist.

What really pushes MacKee a long way on the road to becoming a compassionate human being is his meeting with June (Elizabeth Perkins), a beautiful young woman who is suffering from an advanced brain tumor. She cherishes life and regrets what she will miss. Through her he learns that patients need more than medical skill. They need to be listened to and recognized as fellow human beings.

"The Doctor" presents a very real picture of hospital life and what it's like to be a patient. Everyone is subject to the same rules, the same wheelchair when you can walk, the same cheery but impersonal air when doctors make their rounds.

Director Randa Haines, who directed "Children of a Lesser God" which was nominated for five Oscars in 1986, is an imaginative director who works well with Hurt, who always leaves out just enough to allow the viewer to complete the picture. It's a technique that lends credibility to his transformation. His wonderful performance lends a gravity to a film that is exhilarating, funny, dramatic and intensely observant. He brings an inquisitive intensity to every scene and by the end we feel like we've been through a journey of emotional discovery.

He is accompanied on the journey by a great supporting cast including Lahti who gives a classy performance as the wife who suffers through his ordeal with him, Perkins who is great as the terminally ill young woman and Mandy Patinkin who lends a light touch.

"The Doctor" is both satisfying and entertaining.

Mustangs are happy about third-place finish

Championships are nice, but sometimes third place will do.

The Pointe Girls Soccer Association's Under-14 Little Caesars team, the Mustangs, finished third in its age group in the Superamerica USA Cup international tournament held in Blaine, Minn.

The Mustangs faced the Mountain Brook Angels of Birmingham, Ala., in their fourth and final game and the Angels won in double-overtime 2-1. The next day, the Angels captured the Under-14 title with a 2-1 shootout triumph.

"This was a typical game between two great teams. It's a pity someone had to lose," said Mustangs coach Rick Grenzke. "Our girls made a great run. They deserved to finish third. We knew Alabama was going to be our toughest test. We felt if we got by them, our chances were good to go all the way."

"It was an exciting tournament. I hope the girls will remember it for years to come."

DeGutis makes Iowa team

After 10 months of tryouts, former Grosse Pointe Woods resident David DeGutis of Dubuque, Iowa, was named to the Under-13 Iowa Olympic Development Soccer Team.

DeGutis, 12, played left wing and right fullback for the squad, which competed against other state Olympic Development teams in Bowling Green, Ohio, earlier this summer.

The son of Dr. and Mrs. John T. DeGutis, David also is a member of the Dubuque Travel Soccer Club's Under-14 Team. He's the squad's No. 1 goalie and left striker.

Our program is definitely competitive at the highest level of any program in the country."

Robyn Maples' goal midway through the first half gave the Mustangs an early lead against the Angels, who placed the highest of any U.S. team at the prestigious Gothia Cup International tourney before competing in Minnesota.

A goal in the second half by the Alabama squad and the winner in double-overtime were the only goals allowed by the Mustangs in their four games.

Mustangs keeper Rebecca Hessen did an outstanding job in the nets. She was aided by fullbacks Cassie Pangborn, Robyn Dold, Carla Legwand and Joanna Catalfo and stoppers Lauren Kordas and Kim Hepner.

Leading scorers Maples and Laurie Ness, along with Shera Teitge and Kate Moloney-Egnatios, made up the front line. Center-half Molly McKenzie and outside halfbacks Emily Grenzke, Tera Chevalier, Maggie Durant and Jenny Dahn patrolled the midfield.

The Mustangs were the lone girls team from Michigan at the USA Cup, the largest international youth soccer tournament in the United States. More than 450 squads took part in the tourney including contingents from the Soviet Union, Brazil, Japan, Hungary, Denmark, Italy, Sweden and Nigeria.

After participating in the opening ceremonies in front of more than 20,000 spectators at the Metrodome in Minneapolis, the Mustangs began play at the 30-field National Sports Center with a 4-0 triumph over the Arctic Knights of Fairbanks, Alaska.

A 4-0 win over Minneapolis United Mystery and a 2-0 blanking of the Rosemount Irish set up the Mustangs' showdown against the Angels.

Hessen joined with Maples, McKenzie and Kordas to represent the Mustangs in a 3-on-3 competition and they made it to the semifinals before bowing to a more experienced team from Minnesota.

Lakeshore Striders break course record

The Lakeshore Striders, a Grosse Pointe based running club, broke the course record in the second annual Race to Mackinaw (city) to win first-place honors.

This was the second year in a row the running club has won the 334-mile relay.

On July 26, one day before the 250 boats sailed for Mackinac Island, 25 teams of 10 runners each left the course starting line in Novi, and traveled through subdivisions in Farmington, Bloomfield Hills, Clarkston and Ortonville, where the course turned into a more rural setting. Passing through Frankenmuth, the teams and their support groups finished the first day in Bay City logging 118 miles. The second day featured a 112-mile leg through Pinconning, Standish and the AuSable State Park.

After traveling through scenic lakes, past the Pigeon River, and another 120 miles, the race culminated on Sunday, July 28, in Mackinaw City. The winning time for the Striders, who had entered two teams, was 31 hours and 41 minutes.

Nick Papas, president and team captain, said, "The Mackinaw relay is a grueling, yet fun-filled event, lasting three days and draining every ounce of energy from your body. Yet, we can't wait until we can be back out there next year. Hopefully, we can make it three wins in a row."

Members of the first place team were Paul Aufdemberge, Jim Fitch, Greg Gillson, Dale Hart, Chris Karas, Jeff Kelke, Jeff Kelly, Al Paciorek, Nick Papas and Jeff Parker.

For more information, or to join the Striders, call 882-1325.

Chocolate lore, garden marauders and more

Where would the world be without chocolate? There are so many chocoholics that chocolate is a household word around the globe.

No one knows exactly when it was first discovered that the seeds of the rather lumpy, melon-shaped fruits produced on the trunks of a certain species of trees in South America were edible. Certainly whoever it was never dreamed that his discovery would become the confectionary delight that we know today.

When Columbus returned to Europe from his first voyage to the New World, he brought a few cacao beans with him. King Ferdinand was unimpressed, and Columbus was not really certain what to do with them.

However, another explorer, Hernando Cortez, rescued the cacao bean from oblivion during his conquest of Mexico. He had tasted a cold, frothy beverage called xocolatl, meaning "bitter water," that the Aztec emperor drank from a golden goblet.

In Spain the concoction was known only to a few of the nobility until around 1600 when some traveler brought it to Europe. It quickly became the most fashionable drink and in 1657 the first of many English chocolate houses opened to serve hot chocolate.

Cocoa as we know it appeared in 1828. It was in 1876 that chocolate in a solid form first appeared, leading to the marvelous chocolate confections that are a major industry today.

Chocolate comes from the cacao tree, theobroma cacao, the plant that also supplies the flavoring for cola beverages. It is a South American tree which normally grows 15 or 20 feet tall and is a broad-leaf evergreen. It has glossy oval leaves almost a foot long and clusters of tiny white waxy blossoms along the trunk and older branches.

The fruit takes four to six months to mature and is shaped like an elongated melon about a foot long. As it ripens, it changes color from green to yellow to scarlet. Inside are the white seeds, or beans, which change to a purple color when exposed to the air.

The first chocolate maker in America was the Walter Baker Co., founded in 1780 in Massachusetts and still in business. And if you have ever been in Hershey, Pa., you know how the marvelous scent of chocolate fills the air for miles around the Hershey plant.

There is an old wives' tale to the effect that chocolate will soothe a broken heart. This may actually have a foundation in fact, since chocolate contains a sizable amount of an amphetamine-like substance much like that produced by the human brain during periods of emotion.

Garden SHED

By Ellen Probert

Now is the time of year when cut flowers from the garden can be used to great effect in every room in the house, providing color, scent and coolness on hot summer days. (Did you ever notice that flowers and leaves are always cool to the touch?)

And now is the time to get out your prettiest vases and containers that might be used in original ways. Try a silver gravy boat as a vase for an arrangement of roses, or a crystal pitcher for something with stiff stems, or a green ceramic bowl in which you can float hollyhock blossoms. Anything from a demi-tasse cup for miniature roses to an umbrella stand filled with 3-foot-tall larkspur is a possibility.

Flowers can be combined in original ways to enhance the color scheme of a room, bring out the blues or reds of an oriental rug or complement a painting on the wall.

Here's a new way to scare marauding raccoons or rabbits out of your vegetable garden. Put a small portable radio in a plastic bag to protect it from the weather, turn the volume up a bit loud and tune it to a 24-hour news station. Place it in the middle of your vegetable garden. The midnight news will probably be bad enough to scare everything away.

Another possibility in this department would be to visit a pet store and find a product designed to keep pets from leaping into your favorite chair or onto your best upholstery and spray it lavishly around the edges of your plantings. Not on the plants themselves, just around the edge. This may provide an invisible barrier which hungry marauders will not cross. Sometimes it works!

Root weevils present no threat to humans, but they are a nuisance

If root weevil adults stayed outdoors, most people would probably never know the insects were around.

In early to midsummer, however, they tend to migrate into homes, where they may turn up in cupboards and bathtubs, on walls and on ceilings.

Root weevil adults don't attack food, furnishings or woodwork, according to Sandra Richards-Goeddeke, home horticulturist for the Macomb County Cooperative Extension Service. They also pose no threat to humans or pets. They are strictly a nuisance invader.

The strawberry root weevil adult begins to migrate into homes in early to mid-July. For the next month or two, you may find the small (5-6mm), brownish-black, hard-backed insects anywhere in the house.

Like the similar but larger vine weevil (10-12mm), the strawberry root weevil adult has a hard-shelled body and a short, blunt snout. Because their hard wing covers are joined together, these insects can't fly. To get indoors, they crawl or hitchhike on plant materials.

The number of weevils in the home is generally low, and individuals are usually found in widely scattered places, so indoor control with insecticides is not practical. Richards advises removing invading beetles with a vacuum cleaner or a broom and dustpan.

Outdoors, removing wild strawberries, brambles and related plants may help reduce the local population. A barrier spray of a crawling insecticide containing diazinon, malathion or Sevin may help keep the weevils out.

She advises spraying at the first sign of weevil activity, and treating the foundation of the building, particularly around steps and porches, doorways and basement windows. Also treat the grass for a distance of 10 feet out from the foundation.

If weevils persist or reappear, repeat applications may be necessary.

RAINBOW 2

OVERALL DIMENSIONS: 110'-0" X 38'-6"
LIVING: 2432 square feet
GARAGE: 693 square feet

Charm blends with practicality

The Rainbow 2 offers 2,432 square feet of prime living space, plus a 693-square-foot attached garage that has space for three cars or two cars plus a generous workshop area. All this is wrapped up in a stylish brick-faced exterior which makes the Rainbow 2 a study in aesthetics as well as practicality.

A large recessed covered porch leads up to the double-door main entrance to the home. Just inside is a generous entryway, with a coat closet and a display cabinet immediately in view. To the visitor's right is the entryway to the large country kitchen, which features a stovetop island, a large pantry, a separate oven, and plenty of counter and storage space.

The large main kitchen window is a planter, and the other window looks out over a garden spot which abuts the front porch. Just off the kitchen is a utility area, with room for a separate freezer. The large dining room (which features multiple large windows) is located just above the kitchen.

Directly ahead from the main entry is a generous living room. This unique space is separated from the large family room by a fireplace wall. The open hearth provides a fireplace in both rooms. (A double-door woodbox completes the hearth wall.)

The living room is also set off by an unusual and compelling feature: the outer wall is a full greenhouse. The greenhouse gives access to the raised rear terrace of stone flagging, which is flanked by raised garden spaces.

To the visitor's left from the main entryway is the hall leading to the family's private quarters. A large den/study is entered through impressive double doors, and features ample storage and a built-in desk/working area. The main hall also gives access to the main bath (with linen storage) and two medium-sized bedrooms, both with plenty of closet space.

At the head of the hall is the impressive master suite. This area features windows, a huge U-shaped walk-in closet, a double sink with vanity in a private space, and a separate bath with toilet, linen storage, and a raised oversized soaking tub in its own nook, which features overhead windows, a skylight, and a window wall overlooking a private garden.

Unusual, compelling, and offering a wealth of unique features, the Rainbow 2 is designed to become an active part of the surrounding terrain. This combination of privacy and open entertaining and living space is in keeping with modern living styles.

For a study kit of the RAINBOW 2 (222-32), send $7.50 to Today's Home, P.O. Box 2832-T Eugene, Ore. 97402. (Be sure to specify plan name and number when ordering).

Tax rules govern rental properties

Once you rent a vacation home to others, you enter a maze of tax law. Depending on how often it is used for personal pleasure and how often it is rented, the tax treatment will vary significantly.

According to the Michigan Association of CPAs, if your vacation home is used strictly for your pleasure you can deduct your mortgage interest and real estate taxes, just as you do on your primary residence. You can even rent your vacation home for less than 15 days a year and collect the rental income tax-free. You don't even have to report it. But any related rental expenses cannot be deducted.

What happens when you rent your home for more than two weeks? Here, the answer becomes a little more complicated.

If your personal use of the home exceeds the greater of 14 days or 10 percent of the time it is actually rented at fair market value, your vacation home is still considered a second residence. As such, the mortgage interest and property taxes you can attribute to your personal use remain tax-deductible. Other expenses — including a portion of the cost of utilities, repairs and insurance related to the time the house is rented — are deductible rental expenses.

However, the deductions for rental expenses are basically limited to the income received from the property. In other words, if you run up $20,000 in rental expenses and receive $15,000 in rental income, you can deduct only $15,000 in expenses. The extra $5,000 can be carried forward to a future year to offset any excess rental income.

In addition, the IRS requires that rental expenses be deducted in a prescribed order — you must deduct interest, taxes and casualty losses first; then insurance, utilities, repairs, and other operating expenses; and finally, depreciation.

The story is quite different if you limit your personal use of a vacation home to 14 days a year, or 10 percent of the number of days the home is rented at fair market value — whichever is greater. In this case your home is deemed rental property.

In addition to deductions for mortgage interest and property taxes, owners of rental properties may be able to deduct utilities, maintenance, insurance, depreciation and other operating expenses. You must still allocate your expenses based on the ratio of rental days to total use days. You should also note that the portion of the mortgage interest attributed to your personal use is considered consumer interest, which is no longer deductible.

If your home qualifies as a rental property in the eyes of the IRS, you may be able to deduct rental expenses in excess of rental income. To qualify, your adjusted gross income must be under $100,000 and you must actively manage your property. If you meet these requirements you can deduct $25,000 of passive losses against other kinds of income — including salaries. The $25,000 allowance is gradually phased out by the time an investor's adjusted gross income reaches $150,000.

The rules governing vacation homes can be tricky — but knowing them allows you to make the most of your second home.

Architects help redesign homes so seniors can 'age in place'

By Stephanie Stubbs
AIA News Service

Skyrocketing costs have caused the people of the United States to reevaluate the country's overall approach to health care — how high the quality is, how it is delivered, who the beneficiaries of the current system are.

No matter which path we choose to our health systems in the future, it is certain that the growing number of elderly persons, as well as the increased longevity of the individual, will change the way we define health care. Consequently, we must redefine the buildings through which we deliver health care.

This does not have to mean skyscraper hospitals or acres of monotonous nursing homes for seniors. In fact, architects and builders are working with health professionals and researchers to give architectural form to the idea of "aging in place."

Although "aging in place" is relatively new terminology in the world of health care facilities design, in practice it has been around since folks have made a practice of growing old.

The concept is simple: People live in their homes for as much of their lives as they can. The execution can be complex without adjustments to the house that allow homeowners to deal with the changes that aging brings to their physical condition.

Research also shows a growing appeal among the public for the concept of aging in place. The American Association of Retired Persons (AARP) conducted a survey last year revealing that 86 percent of the respondents 60 years or older preferred to remain in their current homes, as opposed to 78 percent just five years ago.

This spring, Katrina Smith Sloan, representing the AARP, reported to the American Institute of Architects' seminar on facilities for the aging that "aging in place does not need to be achieved. It exists — in single family homes, public housing, and in specially built environments for the elderly... Safety is at stake, and so is the quality of human dignity and the quality of life."

Sloan pointed out that designers need to understand the implications of aging in place when no physical adjustments are made to the existing environment: older people who sleep on their sofas to avoid climbing stairs to their bedrooms; those who store their food on the countertop because they can't reach the cupboards without climbing on a footstool; and still others who live in darkness because they do not have the strength or the balance to change a light bulb.

In other words, the very environments that architects strive to make comfortable and life-enhancing can become a petty tyranny for seniors experiencing the chronic conditions of aging.

Gerontologists base the ability to lead an independent life on the capacity to perform Activities of Daily Living (ADLs). These include walking, cooking, house maintenance, personal hygiene, dressing, etc. Stacked up against chronic conditions common to the aging process — arthritis, and visual, hearing or other impairments — the ability of the individual to perform ADLs can diminish considerably.

Fortunately, there are many adjustments — ranging from major remodeling, such as installing a small lift, to introducing small pieces of hardware, such as a lever adapter for hard-to-turn doorknobs — that can make a world of difference to the senior who chooses to age in place.

A local architect or builder knowledgeable on the subject can advise the homeowner of the best paths to choose. Some national organizations, including the ITT Hartford Insurance group in Hartford, Conn., and the National Association of Homebuilders' National Research Center in Upper Marlboro, Md., offer inexpensive guides for aging-in-place improvements.

Guide offers tips for safety of seniors

By Stephanie Stubbs
AIA News Service

Housing the growing numbers of elderly persons in the United States is a concern that spans a broad spectrum of social issues. Consequently, many professionals — from architects to insurance companies to builders — are seeking new and innovative solutions to the wide range of care that must be provided.

For instance, the physical solutions that enable seniors to "age in place" often involve modifications that can be made simply and with little cost.

To educate homeowners and architects alike, the ITT Hartford Insurance Group has built a full-scale transportable house exhibit, named Hartford House, that incorporates 120 simple modifications that can help the elderly stay in their own houses as they age.

The traveling exhibit, which made its public debut at the 1990 AIA convention in Houston, is updated every year. To supplement the house exhibit, the ITT Hartford Insurance Group publishes a guide that contains the 120 tips, as well as product and supplier lists. The guide can be obtained by sending a stamped (75 cents), business-size envelope to: The Hartford House, PO Box 4460, Hartford, Conn., 06146.

The guide divides its hints into categories that address particular problems that come with aging. For instance, under the category of "compensate for limited strength and dexterity," the guide recommends that the homeowner add a detachable, flexible sink hose for filling pots on the counter, thus eliminating the need to lift heavy, water-filled containers from the sink to the stove or counter. The approximate cost is $16.

The guide is filled with similar, low-cost hints that can make a world of difference to elderly residents.

Design and decorating tips make up another portion of the guide. For instance, the authors point out that the lens of the eye may yellow with age, making it more difficult to distinguish between colors. This can affect safety in the house in subtle ways. The authors recommend choosing countertop colors that contrast with the color of the kitchen floor, making the edge of the counter clearly visible.

Numerous types of hardware discussed in the guide also can make life easier for the elderly, including thermostats with large numbers and raised temperature settings that click when the thermostat is adjusted, lever adapters that can be clamped onto round door knobs, and portable chairs with backs and rubber feet that can be placed in the bathtub to allow people who are unsteady on their feet to bathe while seated.

The Hartford group also sells or rents a recently completed 28-minute video that details the Hartford House and its modifications. Narrated by actor Hal Linden, the film's highlights include a Hartford House walk-through, discussions with design professionals, and an interview with five generations of a family who have incorporated some of the modifications into their own house. For more information, contact: Hartford House, c/o Modern Talking Pictures, 5000 Park St. North, St. Petersburg, Fla. 33709.

Following a similar line of thinking, the National Association of Home Builders' National Research Center, located in Upper Marlboro, Md., recently published a guide titled, "A Comprehensive Approach to Retrofitting Homes for a Lifetime."

This manual, sponsored by the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development, offers tips to both consumers looking for remodeling services and to professional remodelers and architects. The NAHB Research Center offers the guide, plus a 60-page catalog of accessible products for $10. Send your request, plus a check made out to NAHB Research Center, 400 Prince George's Boulevard, Upper Marlboro, Md. 20772-8731.

101 PRAYERS

PRAYER TO THE HOLY SPIRIT

Holy Spirit, you who make me see everything and who shows me the way to reach my ideal. You, who give me the Divine Gift to forgive and forget the wrong that is done to me and you who are in all instances of my life with me. I, in this short dialogue want to thank you for everything and confirm once more that I never want to be separated from you no matter how great the material desires may be. I want to be with you and my loved ones in your perpetual glory. Amen.

Thank you for your love towards me and my loved ones. Pray this prayer three consecutive days without asking your wish, after third day your wish will be granted, no matter how difficult it may be. Then promise to publish this prayer as soon as your favor has been granted. Thank you for favors received. F.F.
