

Witness takes cue from TV, frees driver being dragged by car

By Donna Walker
Staff Writer

A simple thing like mailing a letter turned into a nightmare for an elderly woman and brought a hero to the rescue just the way it's done on TV.

The woman was leaning out her car door in the Grosse Pointe post office parking lot Dec. 21, putting letters in the drive-by mailbox. One of the letters fell beneath her car and as she reached down to pick it up, she took her foot off the brake. The vehicle lurched forward, causing the woman to tumble part way out of the car onto the pavement.

Grosse Pointe City Councilwoman Lisa Bradley, who was waiting in line two cars behind the woman, saw the mishap.

She also saw that the woman was still holding onto something inside the car, and that the slowly moving vehicle was dragging her toward the alley behind the post office.

Bradley quickly put her own car in park, ran to the woman's car, hopped in and put it in park.

"I don't know if I stepped on her or what," Bradley said. "All I knew was that the car had to be stopped, or it was going to run over her."

When the car came to a halt, the back wheels were about an inch from the woman's legs, Bradley said.

Bradley said she rolled the woman onto her back and asked a boy standing nearby to call 911.

As the boy went to make the call, a man stopped to help, Bradley said. He pulled the woman to a seated position and she got slightly dizzy, Bradley said.

"He shouldn't have done that," Bradley said. "When the EMT (emergency medical technician) arrived he said you're not supposed to move people who may have been injured, because you can make things worse. But anyway, I asked the man if he could hold onto her while I pulled her car around, thinking that maybe she could sit in the car until the ambulance arrived."

As Bradley moved the car, the man helped the woman to a standing position. The victim then said she felt dizzier and that her ankle hurt, Bradley said.

When the Grosse Pointe Farms ambulance arrived, the emergency medical technician urged the woman to go to the hospital, but she refused, a Farms public safety officer said. "She was embarrassed by the whole thing," Bradley said.

"After it was all over, my

G.P. City seeks to buy property for office space

By John Minnis
Assistant Editor

The City of Grosse Pointe has made a $260,000 offer to purchase a residential property abutting its municipal complex on Maumee to provide much-needed additional office space.

The property at 445/447 Neff contains a two-family, ranch-style dwelling. It fronts Neff and Maumee, and its rear property line is shared with the city hall/public safety building exit drive.

If the purchase offer is accepted and the property is acquired, the City will continue to rent out both housing units until redevelopment and renovation plans are approved. The city council will consider a future referendum on financing the renovation of the Neff house and property and municipal complex.

The City is considering financing the purchase, if completed, through a 15-year land-contract arrangement through a bank.

A recent study of the City's office needs by Robert C. Wakely Jr., who was the architect for the renovation and expansion of the Grosse Pointe Shores village hall, found that the municipal complex needs an additional 3,353 square feet of office space, including public-hearing facilities, general and police offices, municipal court space, more room for the finance and building departments and records storage.

The building department is now housed in the public works building at the rear of the city offices on Maumee.

Additional parking for the public and employees is also sorely needed.

Wakely is currently reviewing the feasibility of adapting the Neff house to provide city offices and renovating the existing municipal building for expanded city council, court and public safety facilities.

Wakely's study also stated that the current city hall may need improvements to meet state and federal public building requirements, including making it handicapped accessible — particularly the council and court facilities, which are on the second floor.

The Neff property has a land area of 19,725 square feet. The house is 3,560 square feet. The additional square footage would meet the office-space shortage cited by Wakely.

Where there's smoke. . .

...there's not necessarily fire. That's what Grosse Pointe Farms and City firefighters discovered Christmas Eve morning when they responded to an alarm at the Standard Federal Bank building on the Hill.

Someone reported the smell of smoke, and the two fire departments and a half dozen police cars responded. While rubber-necking motorists slowed traffic, no fire was seen. A fire official said the source of the odor was unknown.

1991 — The second half: Troops come home, new faces at city hall

By Ronald J. Bernas
Staff Writer

The year started under a cloud of war, but it was quickly forgotten as the servicemen and women in Operation Desert Storm came home victorious barely six months later.

July

A Fourth of July parade down Lakeshore welcomed home Desert Storm vets in grand style. Yellow ribbons festooned both sides of the parade route as hundreds of spectators cheered our fighting men and women.

The worst storm in Detroit Edison history swept through Southeastern Michigan leaving hundreds of thousands of residents and businesses, including the Grosse Pointe News, without power for more than a week. Toppling trees felled live wires. Residents with power ran extension cords to their neighbors without power. Village Foods on Mack suffered a loss of more than $20,000 in spoilage.

Grosse Pointe Farms residents were told they would find a $3.75 increase on their next water bill to help finance a study of the city's antediluvian water delivery system. The increase was to cover the $950,000 it would cost the city to study and repair the system to bring it out of the stone age.

Farms residents were able to relax in a new park on the lawn in back of the city's aging water delivery system. The Joy Bells, part of an old, wooden clock tower and building, were moved to the park area which was named, creatively enough, Joy Bells Park.

City residents were fretting over a new parking lot Bon Secours hospital planned to install. It involved purchasing and leveling seven of eight houses the hospital owned on Cadieux between Jefferson and Maumee. The new lot would provide more than 100 additional parking spaces. Neighbors said a parking lot would destroy the neighborhood atmosphere of the area and that it was ugly, besides.

A judge ruled that North principal Dr. John Kastran was the target of intentionally slanderous statements by two teachers. Kastran was awarded $100,000. The case is still in appeal.

The Milk River Inter-County Drain Board's engineers narrowed the list of possible new pumping station sites to two, both in Grosse Pointe Woods.

Park residents turned out in force to design, raise money then build a playscape in Patterson Park.

They finally decided they would not build a new station at all, but instead would use the force of gravity to get sanitary sewage to the treatment plant.

The Grosse Pointe Park city council provided some fireworks over the issue of whether the city should establish a district court to replace the city's municipal court. After months of debate the issue went before Park voters who turned it, and its supporters on the council, down flat.

Proponents of East Pointe, that 550-block section of Detroit abutting the Pointes on the north and west and which wanted to secede and become a sixth Pointe, launched a campaign in Lansing to allow them to carry out their plan.

After years of construction, Pointe Plaza at Mack and Moross finally had some tenants. A Blockbuster Video store opened, followed by Perry Drug and Winkelman's.

August

St. Paul Catholic Church's Monsignor Francis X. Canfield retired. Pastor of St. Paul since 1971, Canfield said he would miss the people, especially the children.

Wayne County officials verified that at least two home septic systems in Grosse Pointe Shores were discharging effluents into Lake St. Clair. There is no sewer line in front of those homes and residents have been allowed to continue to use their septic systems. The residents, including Shores council trustee Patricia Galvin, threatened to sue the city to force it to install a sewer line so they could be hooked up. "This situation constitutes a health hazard and corrective action is required immediately," said the Wayne County Health Department.

Other Shores residents asked the council to allow swimming in Lake St. Clair near the foot of Vernier, downriver from the malfunctioning septic systems. The council said it would study the petition.

SEMCOG, the Southeastern Michigan Council of Governments, issued a controversial report on Detroit City Airport, saying the facility needed a longer runway if it were to operate at peak efficiency. Pointers opposed to a bigger airport scoffed at the report and renewed their vow to fight any expansion.

Grosse Pointe Park discovered it was to be split from the in what is now Grosse Pointe Woods. At that time, the area was called Lochmoor Village, one of five villages in Grosse Pointe Township, she said.

Her father, Jules DePorre, was a builder and real estate broker, and was active in local government. He was president of the village from 1934-39 and served as a village commissioner for six years before that.

One night in the late 1930s, Zaranek said, she was sitting at the family dinner table with her two sisters, two brothers and parents when her mother observed that Lochmoor Village was a silly name, because it wasn't consistent with the other villages in Grosse Pointe Township. Their names all started with Grosse Pointe.

The Chinese Way: 'T'ai Chi'

Find out what the Chinese have long known about the "T'ai Chi" form of exercise.

The Chinese say, "Whoever practices T'ai Chi regularly will acquire the pliability of a child, the vitality of a lumberjack and the wisdom of a sage."

You will learn it is a thorough physical workout, without strenuous movement, that also increases your mental and physical energy through systematic stress reduction.

The class meets at the Grosse Pointe War Memorial on Tuesdays from 7:30 to 8:30 p.m., starting Jan. 14.

Instructor Stuart Hopkins has been a student of the Chinese martial arts, including T'ai Chi, Chi-Kung and the related healing arts, for many years.

He says, "T'ai Chi strengthens muscles, improves balance and relieves stress. It also stimulates the endocrine, digestive, respiratory, immune and cardiovascular systems."

The class is $81 for eight weeks. For more information, call 881-7511.

Real men tap; ballroom dancing back in swing

The warm weather is gone and it's not easy to keep active, so the Grosse Pointe War Memorial offers some dance and exercise classes to liven up your winter routine. Classes include tap, jazz, ballroom and aerobic.

Tap dancing gets you moving from head to toe. Try the "Tone Up With Tap" class on Thursdays, from 7:15 to 8:15 p.m. beginning Jan. 9. Instructor Mimi Lewalski will help you have fun with your workout. After warming up, learn basic tap steps and a tap combination. The class is $46 for eight weeks.

Gene Kelly, Fred Astaire, all the great ones knew how to tap. Did you know "Real Men Tap" on Tuesdays, from 6:30 to 7:15 p.m. starting Jan. 14. Instructor Teresa Giannetti will show real men how to be smooth and coordinated by letting the rhythm move them. The class is $40 for eight weeks.

The popularity of ballroom dancing is back in full swing. Dance into the new year with the panache to make it all work. Make your fox trot more flowing, your waltz more graceful, the latin rhythms more precise. Join instructor Lillian Forrest for "Social Dancing" lessons beginning Monday, Jan. 13. The introductory class is from 7:30 to 8:30 p.m. and intermediate steps and styling is from 8:30 to 9:30 p.m. Class is $48 per couple for six weeks.

Take this class in January and February and try out your new moves at Chet Bogan's Big Band Dance evening at the War Memorial on Feb. 21, or at the elegant Spring Viennese Ball.

Instructor Mimi Lewalski will help you jazz up your physique in "Jazzique" on Thursdays, beginning Jan. 9, from 8:15 to 9:15 p.m. It tones you and works you aerobically by incorporating dance and exercise movements. The energy of this class will help you through your hectic days. The class is $46 for eight weeks.

"Jacki's Aerobic Dancing" on Mondays and Thursdays, from 8:45 to 9:45 a.m. beginning Jan. 6, offers a complete exercise program which tones and firms skeletal muscles while strengthening the cardiovascular system. An optional light weight training workout has been incorporated into the warm-up routine to add further definition to muscle toning. Class fees range from $75 for 12 weeks (24 sessions) or $40 (12 sessions) and $60 for senior citizens. For more information, call 881-7511.

Teen beach party

The Grosse Pointe War Memorial is sponsoring a "Beach Party Dance" for Grosse Pointe students in grades 6-8 on Friday, Jan. 10, from 7:30 to 10:30 p.m.

Tickets are $4 per person. No tickets will be sold at the door. A War Memorial photo I.D. is required.

For more information, call the Youth Hotline at 881-8160 or the War Memorial at 881-7511.

NOW OPEN SUNDAYS

Want to relieve stress? Try a hobby

The Grosse Pointe War Memorial's January through February calendar of events offers a hobby for almost everyone.

Bring the chair you've been meaning to fix to "Chair Seat Weaving" on Saturdays, Feb. 29, from 9:30 to 11:30 a.m. and March 7 and 14 from 9:30 a.m. to 3:30 p.m. Instructor Mary Herbert will demonstrate techniques using different materials including caning, pre-woven cane, paper rush, flat splints and wicker repair. Class fee is $45 for three weeks plus supplies.

Perspective, values and nature's patterns will be emphasized in "Basic Drawing Workshop" on Tuesdays from 12:30 to 3:30 p.m. starting Jan. 14. Instructor Carol Lachiusa will demonstrate how to express an idea by relating to the subject through a graphic approach. Pencil, charcoal and ink will be used in rendering still lifes and landscapes. Class fee is $36 for four weeks.

"Watercolor Techniques," as influenced by the American Watercolor Society, encourage students to explore all approaches to transparent watercolor before beginning on their own experimentation on Thursdays from 9 a.m. to noon starting Jan. 9. Instructor Lachiusa will give demonstrations, critiques and private consultations in class. Inks, in conjunction with watercolor, will be introduced along with pigment combined with egg yolk. The class is $44 for five weeks.

"Contract Bridge Refresher - Morning" is on Wednesdays from 10 a.m. to noon, beginning Jan. 15. "Refresher - Evening" is on Mondays from 7:30 to 9:30 p.m., beginning Jan. 13. Instruction and playing time are interwoven in Standard American Bridge emphasizing basics in bidding, elements of play, conventions and sound defense. The cost is $30 for each six-week class.

Create an heirloom quilt in "Miniature Cross-Stitch Quilt" for a doll's house or miniature room or, if you prefer, frame the finished piece to enjoy as a work of art. The class meets on Tuesdays, Jan. 14 and Feb. 11, from noon to 4 p.m. Choose your design and complete the quilt by the second session. You will receive instruction on the finishing process and construct a dust ruffle and pillow. Cost is $60 per person and includes a kit.

"Anyone Can Watercolor" is on Tuesdays from 7:30 to 9:30 p.m. starting Jan. 14. Instructor Lachiusa will demonstrate brush techniques and help students develop individual style. Landscapes and still-lives will be included in the curriculum. The class is $27 for four weeks. Study composition while working from costumed and nude models in "Figure Painting and Drawing" on Mondays from noon to 3 p.m. starting Jan. 13. Instructor Daniel Keller devotes the first half hour of class developing students' drawing skills after which there will be a long pose where the students can work with media of their choice. Emphasis will be on what constitutes an interesting picture and how to achieve it through planning and good painting habits. The class is $68 for eight weeks plus a $3 model fee payable each week to the instructor.

For more information, call the Youth Hotline at 881-8160 or the War Memorial at 881-7511.

Booth library dedicated

By Ronald J. Bernas
Staff Writer

"This is a special moment in the life of the school," said Gary Ripple, headmaster at University Liggett School, on Monday, Dec. 16, when the John L. Booth Library was officially opened.

The renovations were approved by the ULS board of trustees in the fall of 1990 and work began in June of this year.

The project included nearly doubling the useable space in the library by providing access to a previously unused lower level. The construction involved the addition of a skylight, as well as new windows, construction of new work and study spaces, new and refurbished carpeting, furnishings and fixtures, a new entrance and an outdoor terrace.

During renovation, a basketball floor from 1925 was discovered in nearly mint condition, protected by carpeting for decades. The floor, which had large sections removed during previous renovations, was covered up once again.

The new library was made possible by a $500,000 gift from the John L. Booth family and Booth American Co. Booth, of Grosse Pointe Farms, first entered the school in 1911 and graduated from Detroit University School, which is a predecessor of ULS, in 1925.

The family remains active in the school and has been instrumental in generating funds for improvements at ULS, including the construction of the Booth Science Center, which opened in September 1988.

Booth is the father of Doreen, a 1950 graduate of Grosse Pointe Country Day School (another predecessor of ULS); Jacklyn, a 1960 graduate of Grosse Pointe University School (yet another predecessor school); John, GPUS Class of '68; and Ralph II, ULS Class of 1971. And he is the grandfather of current ULS students John, '98, Charlotte-Louise and Whitney, '01 and Lacey '03.

Booth's gift covered nearly all the renovations; the remainder will be paid for as part of a $7 million capital campaign which the board of trustees began officially with the library opening.

The $7 million, of which $3.8 million has already been pledged, will be used for endowments and scholarships, renovations at the Briarcliff campus, a new pre-kindergarten building and to purchase new technological tools.

Milk River neighbors asked questions, got answers at special meeting

By Donna Walker
Staff Writer

So what's the latest on the Milk River retention basin project?

Jeanna Paluzzi, representing the Milk River Inter-County Drain Board, conducted a public informational meeting Wednesday night at the Grosse Pointe Woods Community Center to update residents on the project.

Neighbors of the retention basin were notified of the meeting by mail, Paluzzi said. Sixteen attended.

Paluzzi and Dick Force, vice president of the project engineering firm McNamee, Porter & Seely Inc., said the following progress has been made:

- A temporary fence has been set up between the Grosse Pointe Woods Department of Public Works yard and the Milk River property along construction easements.

- An asphalt construction access road has been constructed on the Milk River property, off Marter Road.

- A brick screen wall along the back yard property line of several River Road residents is under construction. The wall was requested by the residents this summer. Other River Road residents requested that a cyclone fence and shrubbery be installed behind their homes instead of a brick wall. That will be done later.

- Excavation for the new retention basin and pile driving is under way.

The new 18.8 million covered basin will consist of two tanks. Together, they will be about five times as large as the existing uncovered basin and will reduce the amount of sanitary and storm sewage that enters the Milk River drain by about 480 million gallons a year.

The pile driving is being done to create a metal framework to hold back the earthen walls of the retention basin. After the framework is completed, the concrete walls and floor of the basin will be poured.

"We were concerned, along with the city, about what the noise (from the pile driving) would be, but so far, we haven't heard any complaints," Paluzzi said.

Thomas Whitcher, Grosse Pointe Woods department of public works director, has an office right next door to the pile driving site.

"There haven't been any vibrations. We only notice the noise when we go outside and then it's nothing bothersome," he said.

Bank robbed

Farms police and the FBI are searching for the man who robbed the NBD branch at Moross and Mack in Grosse Pointe Farms between 1:40 and 1:43 p.m. Friday, Dec. 27.

A teller told police that the man waited in a long line inside the bank. When he got to her window, he handed her a note demanding money and saying that he was armed.

The teller was able to activate the security alarm and cameras during the three-minute robbery without the thief's knowledge.

He received a small amount of cash and fled.

The city set up a special phone line and told residents who to contact should they have complaints about the project. So far no one has called, Whitcher and Phil Belcher, assistant city administrator, said Thursday.

Force said the cold weather may have helped the situation, because people might notice the noise more if they had their windows open. However, the drain board is doing everything possible to make the pile driving as quiet as possible, and called in special noise reduction equipment for the job, Force said.

The Grosse Pointe Woods City Council has passed an ordinance limiting pile driving hours to 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. Monday through Saturday, and noon to 5 p.m. on Sundays. The council has also limited construction hours to 7:30 a.m. to 6 p.m. Monday through Saturday, and noon to 5 p.m. on Sundays.

One woman at the meeting asked if construction would be done seven days a week on a regular basis. Force said that most workweeks will consist of five or six days. At critical phases of construction, work may be done on Sunday, but that will only happen occasionally, Force said.

An Eastbrook resident wanted to know why trucks from the Milk River site always travel down Marter Road and not Parkway. Force said Grosse Pointe Woods specified that construction traffic be limited to Vernier and Marter roads.

A videotape of Marter Road was made before construction began. When the project is completed, the condition of the road will be compared to the videotape. Any damage to the road that appears to have been caused by the construction project will be repaired by the construction contractor, Force said.

Earlier this year, the drain board offered to videotape the homes of residents in the immediate vicinity of the construction site as a "before" record. Some of the residents took the drain board up on its offer. Paluzzi said the videotapes have been completed and that she will mail each homeowner a copy of his or her tape soon. The drain board will keep the originals for its records, she said.

Other residents asked questions about the drain channel, which was a river until its flow was blocked many years ago.

Should neighboring residents wait until the channel is dredged before doing anything to make the banks look better? When the channel is dredged, will its sides be made uniform? Will trees that are growing on the sides of the banks and falling over into the channel be removed? Is the material in the channel toxic?

Paluzzi and Force said that those questions could not be answered yet because the river-recirculation part of the project is still in the study phase. That component will consist of dredging the drain bed and installing a system that will circulate fresh lake water through the now-stagnant channel on a continuing basis.

Sludge samples were recently taken from the channel bed, but the drain board doesn't know if they contain hazardous materials because the laboratory results haven't come back yet, Force said.

One resident asked if the Milk River will really be clean enough for swimming, fishing, and boating when the project is completed, as Jim Murray, one of the drain board members, has said in the past.

"Well, certainly I'd wait until 1994 (when the entire Milk River project is scheduled to be completed) before I'd do any of those things," Paluzzi said. "But when everything is completed, the Milk River will be a lot cleaner than it is now."

One man wanted to know how much residents' sewage bills will go up to pay for the cleanup.

Paluzzi said she could not answer the question because the Michigan Department of Natural Resources is in the process of reviewing the drain board's procedure for allocating the cost back to the affected governments.

The cost of the entire cleanup has been estimated at $25 million. In June, the drain board decided to apportion the capital improvement, operation and maintenance costs of the Milk River cleanup to the affected governments in the following way, based on the amount of sewage they send into the system: Grosse Pointe Woods will pay 60.5 percent; Harper Woods, 35.1 percent; the state of Michigan, 2.3 percent; Wayne County, 1.7 percent; and St. Clair Shores, .4 percent.

When and how the governments pass along the costs to their residents is up to them, Paluzzi said.

Chester E. Petersen, Grosse Pointe Woods city administrator-clerk, said that Woods residents will not be billed for the improvements until 1993 or 1994.

Paluzzi is the division compliance director for the Wayne County department of public works. She assists Murray, who is director of the department. Murray is one of three members of the Milk River Inter-County Drain Board. The other members are Michael Gregg, Michigan Department of Agriculture representative; and Tom Welsh, Macomb County public works commissioner.

Anyone who has concerns or comments about the construction can call Woods public works director Whitcher, at 343-2462. For emergencies after business hours or on holiday weekends, contact the Woods public safety department at 343-2410.

rest of the Pointes when the county reapportioned its commission districts. The Park was placed in the largely Democratic Second District. The rest of the Pointes, primarily Republican, were to remain in the First District.

September

Kermit Haynes, the 18-year-old man who admitted he fired the shot that killed Grosse Pointe Benjamin Gravel was sentenced to probation and placed in the custody of the state Department of Social Services until he turns 21. Haynes, who was 16 when the incident occurred, was part of a gang of four juveniles and two adults that allegedly attacked Gravel because they wanted a car to go to a party. Haynes was the second juvenile to be sentenced to DSS custody in the case.

heart was going 100 miles a minute and I figured she must be even more shook up. She was all muddy and dirty from being dragged, and I didn't want her driving by herself. So even though I was late for work, I offered to drive her home, but she didn't want me to take her."

Bradley credited the television show "Rescue: 911" for her quick response.

She said she recently saw an episode about a woman who saved some little boys who were in a car by themselves. They had shifted the car out of park, causing it to roll toward a highway. The woman ran to the car, opened the door, and put the car in park.

"If I hadn't seen the show, I probably wouldn't have thought to do what I did," Bradley said.

When she got to work, she told her boss what happened at the post office.

"Is that a good enough excuse (for being late)?" Bradley said she asked.

Her boss told her it was.

Farms and City residents were upset over the possible sale of Schettler Drug Co. on Fisher Road. The residents feared the family drug store would become a party store and destroy the quality of the neighborhood around it. That, and the fact that Grosse Pointe South High School is directly across the street and residents didn't want teenagers hanging around a liquor store. The City police chief recommended that the state Liquor Control Commission deny a request to transfer the liquor license to the potential new owner. The LCC agreed and the sale of the store fell through. It closed, however, in December.

A months-old debate over which food businesses can have seats in their stores on Mack in the Woods was finally over. Alinoti Ice Cream, which had recently opened but was not allowed to have seats, was allowed to install them. Joseph's Bakery, which had to remove its seats when it was discovered they violated a city ordinance, was told it could hold onto them.

Parents in the Maire Elementary School area got to express their opinions on the proposed student dropoff which would include selling land to Kroger for expansion. Most who returned the petition said they liked the plan, but the Maire PTO board recommended that the board of education reject the plan. The board obliged.

The Cadieux farmhouse, saved from demolition and restored by a group of Pointe history buffs, was finally refurbished and open for tours. The home was then put on the market.

After 27 years as Grosse Pointe Farms city manager, Andy Bremer retired. Assistant city manager Richard Solak was appointed to succeed him.

Zebra mussels, the greedy mollusks that are slowly destroying the ecosystems of the Great Lakes, were the next opponent for state Senator John F. Kelly. Kelly said he would try to convince his fellow politicians in Lansing to start funding projects to deal with the latest threat to the Great Lakes.

October

Wayne County commissioners were going to court to get Grosse Pointe Park put back into the First District. Park Mayor Palmer T. Heenan joined in the litigation. It's still in Michigan Court of Appeals.

Grosse Pointe Shores, in updating its master plan, discussed, among other things, annexing Lake Township (a little portion of the Shores located in Macomb County), housing for seniors, and enacting laws to guard against further division of large residential estates.

A new survey of students in the Grosse Pointe schools showed an alarmingly high rate of alcohol use among teens. Six of 10 seniors admitted being drunk within two weeks before filling out the survey. Half of the eighth graders said they had used alcohol in the past month.

The Grosse Pointe Park playscape attracted more than 1,200 volunteer workers to Patterson Park where the ultimate children's playground — designed partially by Park kids — was erected.

Woods judicial candidate Lynne Pierce filed a complaint with the police charging that one of her opponents, incumbent Herbert Huson, distributed inaccurate campaign literature. Huson, who had asked the Woods council earlier for a substantial raise, claimed he was endorsed by several other judges. The other judges said they did no such thing. Huson lost handily to Pierce in the November election.

The two adults who were allegedly part of the group that killed Benjamin Gravel were acquitted by a jury. That meant at least four of the six originally arrested won't do prison time. Two remain to be sentenced.

In election news, Grosse Pointe Woods residents re-elected Mayor Robert Novitke, sent two other incumbents back to their seats and elected one new member. The City returned all its incumbents to office — not difficult because nobody ran against them. Park voters re-elected Mayor Palmer T. Heenan and council member Vernon K. Ausherman, but sent Daniel Clark, the main force behind the push to get a Park district court, back to private life.

East Pointe, that 550-block area of Detroit that lies north and west of the Pointes and wants to secede and become a fifth Pointe, was upstaged when residents of East Detroit voted to change that city's name to Eastpointe.

Despite the fact that Gail Kaess is one of the longest-serving councilmembers in the Farms, relative newcomer Gregg Berendt was chosen mayor by the councilmembers. Kaess, along with Harry T. Echlin, has served on the council since 1979; Berendt was beginning his second four-year term. John Crowley, who had been on the council for six years, was elected mayor pro-tem.

The Grosse Pointe Farms council decided to get out of the ambulance business and privatize its ambulance service, contending it would save money and provide better service to residents. The official vote is expected early next year.

December

The Michigan Department of Natural Resources told three Shores homeowners they would have to eliminate their faulty septic tanks and stop discharging sewage into Lake St. Clair. One homeowner still threatened a suit, rather than hook up, at her own expense, to the village sewer.

Bon Secours Hospital completed a $1.4 million renovation of its emergency room. Its new parking lot was under construction.

State Rep. William R. Bryant Jr. submitted a bill that would allow East Pointe — the area in Detroit that wants to secede, not the former East Detroit — to secede. At year end the measure was in committee.

Grosse Pointe City tackled a problem that it's dealt with before and will most likely face again in 1992. The council, sitting as the zoning board of appeals, denied a variance to allow a house to be built on an undersized lot. The owners, with an unbuildable lot they've paid taxes on for 50 years, were contemplating a lawsuit. The City lost in a similar situation that began in November 1990.

Grosse Pointe Shores village trustee C. Bradford Lundy Jr. retired from the council after nearly 30 years of service. Shores President Edmund M. Brady Jr. is expected to make an appointment this month.

Chester Petersen, Grosse Pointe Woods city administrator-clerk since 1961, retired. He agreed to stay on in an advisory capacity until a new administrator-clerk, or administrator and clerk could be found.

Purses stolen

Purses were stolen from two shoppers in the Farms and City recently.

A Roseville woman was shopping at a store at Mack and Moross at 7:30 p.m. Nov. 30 when she stopped to talk to another customer. When she got to the cash register, she discovered that her purse, which was in a shopping cart underneath her coat, was missing.

At 3:03 p.m. Dec. 6 in the Village, a Detroit woman's purse was taken from a shopping cart while she was loading groceries into her car.

State's bigger but not better for the poor

As the old year wound down, Michigan became a central figure in two national stories that inadvertently emphasized two of the state's major problems.

One was the story that through changes in the U.S. Census Bureau's interpretation of what constitutes the area of each state, Michigan jumped from 23rd place to 11th place in size in comparison with the other 49 states.

The other was the report of a study which showed that Michigan slashed more programs to aid the poor than did any other state in 1991, a year that set a 10-year record for nationwide cutbacks in such spending.

Because of the new statistics resulting from the Census Bureau change, Michigan's area increased more than 65 percent, to 96,810 square miles from 58,527 square miles. The state now officially includes the area up to the state line rather than just to the water line of the four

Great Lakes that abut the state: Michigan, Huron, Erie and Superior.

In effect, the change should strengthen Michigan's claim to being "the Great Lakes State" and the publicity about its status should improve the "Say Yes to Michigan" appeal being made to vacationers from other states.

The question, however, is whether the Engler administration is prepared to take advantage of this new appeal in view of the low priority it seems to have given spending to promote the vacation industry.

The second national story about the cutbacks emphasizes again Michigan's economic slump and the hardships the state government has been forced to impose on its poor, homeless and other needy people.

The study, "The States and the Poor," was co-sponsored by the Center on Budget and Policy Priorities and the University of New York's Center for the Study of the States.

Julie Strawn, a welfare policy specialist at the budget center, said that Michigan is one of just nine states that cut Aid to Families with Dependent Children and one of just 14 that cut general assistance, (which in fact it eliminated).

Among the minority of states trimming such programs, she said Michigan "stands out as—by far—the most severe in terms of both the breadth and depth of the cuts."

But John Truscott, a spokesman for Gov. John Engler, called the report misleading because it compared Michigan's benefits now to those the state used to offer rather than with the programs Michigan and other states still provide.

In most cases, he contended, Michigan still offers "above and beyond what any of our neighboring states offer."

Such a conclusion is hardly much consolation to the people affected by the cuts, however. In fact, the severity of Michigan's cuts no doubt helps explain the bitterness of the complaints that were voiced against them.

Strawn also warned that the long-term social impact of the reductions in such programs as general assistance, homeless housing and aid to low-income families may exceed the short-term gains for Michigan and other budget-cutting states. She saw, in particular, increases in homelessness, spouse and child abuse, crime and emergency room admissions.

Truscott's response to that particular criticism, according to The Detroit News, was that the long-range effect of the cuts will be increased productivity.

His contention was that the current state administration concentrates on a "long-range strategy to get people working and make them productive and to train them and to find them jobs."

Such long-range goals, laudable as they are, offer little hope of immediate aid or even express much compassion for people who currently are jobless or living in poverty and in some instances on the edge of starvation.

So while Michigan apparently is now bigger than ever before, it is obviously not better for the many people suffering in the continuing recession.

A boost in road user's fee?

Gov. John Engler's hint last week that he might endorse a gas tax increase to help finance Michigan's highway needs is good news for good roads.

In an interview with The Detroit News, the governor outlined a strong case for a tax increase, and even though he did not specifically endorse such a move, he acknowledged that Michigan needs money to rebuild its roads and bridges.

However, the governor prefers to call the gas tax a user's fee, which is what it really is. But that means that an increase in the current 15-cent-a-gallon tax would not violate his campaign pledge against any new taxes.

Anyone who drives for any distance in Michigan knows that many miles of the state's highways are in dreadful shape. To finance improvements, a majority of the state's motorists probably would accept an increase, whatever it might be called.

The governor reminded his interviewer that there is a second reason for boosting the state's take from gasoline. It stems from the recently enacted federal transportation package.

The appropriation would provide the state with an additional $960 million in federal funds for transportation projects if it can provide $20 for every $80 that Washington pays.

Thus, that expanded road program in Michigan could produce as many as 5,000 jobs in the construction and related industries which would not only support Engler's job-building goal but would also cut down Michigan's jobless totals.

Engler's tentative backing, plus earlier indications that state legislative leaders would support a tax increase of 5 or 6 cents a gallon, ought to brighten hopes for approval even though it would bring the state take from the gasoline tax to 20 or 21 cents a gallon.

That's obviously a big increase but it is the price of improved highways which benefit all users, including businesses and industries.

As Gorby and USSR bow out

Few tears will be shed in this country for the USSR as it bows out of history along with the year 1991, but many Americans will feel some sympathy for Mikhail Gorbachev.

Democracy once again has proved superior to one form of dictatorship, but Gorbachev, the man who did more to undermine Soviet communism than any other individual, has been ousted and almost ostracized by his people.

It was Gorbachev who unleashed the twin appeals of glasnost and perestroika for the people of the Soviet Union who had been dominated by an authoritarian leadership for 74 years.

The openness and restructuring that Gorbachev recommended quickly became the battle cries of the masses who had learned from their own experience that the idealistic promises of communism had failed to produce even enough food for the people.

It was Gorbachev's fate to understand his country's need for freedom and political change but not to comprehend that the country's economic woes were so desperate that they had to be met promptly, too.

Yet all Americans owe him a debt of gratitude. It was Gorbachev who in effect halted the Cold War when he realized his nation's inefficient economy could no longer afford to compete in the armaments race. His signing of new arms control agreements made it possible for this country, too, to divert more of its resources to domestic needs.

Yet there is a lesson for U.S. leaders in what has happened in the new Russian Revolution. Many Americans also lack such basics as food, clothing and housing. The prompt diversion of more defense funds could help meet these and other domestic needs.

There is no new American Revolution in the offing. But demagogues could stir up trouble and revive isolationism in the 1992 campaign if basic domestic needs remain unmet.

Why Americans express fear

For a man who graduated with Phi Beta Kappa honors from Yale University, President Bush on occasion can sound almost stupid about conditions in his own country.

At his press conference last week, he expressed his perplexity at the public's anxiety over the nation's economy in these words:

"I haven't really been able to sort out exactly why there has been this degree of pessimism."

Hasn't the president read the reports about the numerous layoffs and plant closings slated at General Motors? Hasn't he seen the headlines about other major American manufacturers who are carrying out huge layoffs and cutbacks in production schedules?

Haven't his advisers briefed him about conditions in such states as Michigan where unemployment has been among the highest of the industrial states and where deep cuts in state and federal programs have left the needy and unfortunate in desperate straits?

True, the president and many of his top advisers are wealthy, but doesn't George Bush still regard himself as president of all the people?

He still seems slated for an easy ride to re-election but he ought to recall that in the past even popular presidents have been beaten—sometimes by lesser-known opponents—when the people decide it's time for a change.

Let's hope the U.S. auto industry and other business executives accompanying him to Asia can enlighten him about the economic conditions at home.

Letters

You cared

To the Editor:

Using this public forum, I want to express my appreciation to the hundreds of supporters who have made this holiday season one of the happiest for the children at the Children's Home of Detroit in Grosse Pointe Woods.

These are difficult times for charitable organizations with the troubling combination of limited state and federal resources and the spiraling need for human services. In this difficult climate many individuals, groups, and foundations have stepped forward to answer the call for help.

On behalf of the many agencies in our community and southeastern Michigan who are serving the troubled and needy, I want to thank each one of you who cared enough to care.

Pay raise

To the Editor:

Regarding the article titled, "In other new business, Farms manager gets raise," by Donna Walker, I believe that there is important information omitted.

The article states the new salary of the Farms' city manager and compares it to the salaries of the city managers in the other Pointes. It is my contention that other important figures have been left out.

I feel that the public has the right to know not only these officials' base salaries, but also their bonuses, and fringe benefits, such as expense accounts, the use of a city-owned vehicle, insurance coverage, pensions, etc. The taxpayers have the right to be more fully informed on how their money is being spent over and above the simple base salaries mentioned.

I feel that we are entitled to more information regarding how much of our tax money is being spent on these officials in addition to their base salaries.

Recycled DNR

To the Editor:

After previously belonging to Grosse Pointe Citizens for Recycling, working at each G.P.C.F.R. once-a-month, collecting and delivering approximately 600 pounds of waste paper from various businesses on a bi-weekly basis, gathering hundreds of petition signatures supporting curbside recycling, why then do I feel so empty? Is it because Gov. Engler is dismantling Michigan's Department of Natural Resources? Is it because DNR Director Rolie Harmes seems to be making it very difficult for average citizens to participate in a democratic bureaucracy?

Is it because I know that I must take special college courses to even begin to read a "DNR Permit," then another course to learn the "permitting process" and "environmental impact statements?" Golly, where will I, the "average Jane," find time for my family? My volunteer work?

Make no mistake, the closest I've ever personally come to an "environmental disaster" was when I suggested to a group of recreational motorcyclists that they might want to snip the plastic rings from their six-packs to protect Michigan's fish and waterfowl. Boy, was that a mistake.

City-smarts (Detroit, that is) and gut feelings now tell me that what I may perceive as a bog, or wetland if you will, another person such as a developer might just see as a "stink-hole" just waiting to be filled.

A beloved meadow in northeast Michigan, now frequented for observation of frogs and dragon flies, might cruelly hold oil or natural gas beneath its seemingly peaceful facade — oil and natural gas just lurking underground, ripe for human exploitation.

Freedom of religion comes first

This is the third in a series of articles about the Bill of Rights, courtesy of the Commission on the Bicentennial of the U.S. Constitution.

Although the First Amendment is perhaps best known for granting the people freedom of speech, freedom of the press, and freedom of petition and assembly, the First Amendment begins with the command that "Congress shall make no law respecting an establishment of religion, or prohibiting the free exercise thereof . . ." Why did the First Amendment first guarantee the people freedom from a government-sponsored church and freedom to worship as they pleased? Two hundred years ago, people vividly recalled how government and religion had been combined in the countries of Europe, and how government-sponsored religions had made it impossible to enjoy true religious liberty. When the Bill of Rights was adopted in 1791, some states — such as Connecticut — had established state churches, but a growing number of Americans wanted no part of that. Thus, by 1791 Virginia had adopted laws prohibiting state government from sponsoring a particular religion or denying citizens the right to practice any religion that they wished — or none.

The First Amendment guarantees that "Congress shall make no law respecting an establishment of religion" is commonly known as the "Establishment Clause." In general, the Establishment Clause prohibits the government from supporting, by financial assistance or otherwise, any particular religious faith. For example, the Supreme Court has held that the Establishment Clause prohibits states from using public school facilities to promote religious instruction during regular school hours (McCormick v. Board of Education, 333 U.S. 203 (1948)), or requiring students to recite "official prayers" in public school classrooms (Engel v. Vitale, 370 U.S. 421 (1962)). On the other hand, if the state activity in question does not amount to preferential treatment or endorsement of religion, it may not violate the Establishment Clause. For example, the Supreme Court has held that a state may provide free bus transportation to all schoolchildren, including children attending parochial schools, if the purpose of the program is simply to provide safe transportation to all children traveling between home and school (Everson v. Board of Education, 330 U.S. 1 (1947)), and that states may lend non-religious textbooks free of charge to parochial school pupils (Board of Education v. Allen, 392 U.S. 236 (1968)).

The second clause in the First Amendment that guarantees religious freedom — "Congress shall make no law . . . prohibiting the free exercise (of religion)" — is commonly known as the "Free Exercise Clause." Within certain limits, the Free Exercise Clause prohibits the government from interfering with an individual's observance of his or her religious beliefs. For example, the Supreme Court has ruled that followers of the Amish faith cannot be compelled against their religious beliefs to send their children to public school beyond the eighth grade (Wisconsin v. Yoder, 406 U.S. 205 (1972)), and has struck down a state law that prohibited ministers from serving in the state legislature (McDaniel v. Paty, 435 U.S. 618 (1978)). The Supreme Court has upheld regulations that infringe on the free exercise of religion, however, when it has considered the government interest at stake sufficiently important. For example, the Supreme Court has ruled that the federal government may require an Amish carpenter to collect Social Security taxes from his employees and pay his share of such taxes even though his religious beliefs forbade him to do either (United States v. Lee, 455 U.S. 252 (1982)), and that the federal government may deny tax benefits to educational institutions that engage in racially discriminatory practices based on their religious beliefs (Bob Jones University v. United States, 461 U.S. 574 (1983)).

Like the guarantees of freedom of speech and freedom of the press, the First Amendment guarantees of religious freedom often require governmental interests to be balanced against the interests of individual citizens and religious groups. Typically, the balancing process requires public officials and courts to make difficult choices. By forcing careful consideration of the competing interests at stake, however, we have successfully maintained a society in which religious liberty has flourished.

Cut-rate Auld Lang Syne

John Conn of Grosse Pointe Woods said that due to Detroit's recession, many people scaled back their end-of-the-year celebrations. No wonder, he said, with the average price of a New Year's Eve party ranging from $30 to $50 a person.

Conn and Alex Miller of Mount Clemens are 1982 graduates of Grosse Pointe North High School.

They rented the Roostertail and threw an inexpensive party on New Year's Eve.

For $22.50 a person, they offered a DJ, gourmet pizza, valet parking, party favors, breakfast and a cash bar. They planned to break even, but if any money was left over, they promised to donate it to a local charity.

About a year ago, Conn and Miller put together a similar fundraiser for Children's Hospital of Michigan. They called it The Perfect Week. About 350 people showed up and they raised $2,500.

"I want this to be what I

Margie Reins Smith

think a New Year's Eve party should be," Conn said last week. "I hate open bars. And I want the party to be glitzy and fun. The Roostertail will lend that atmosphere."

Conn expected most ticket sales to be at the last minute. About 200 would make it a break-even party. Stay tuned.

Share with a senior

This holiday season help one of the tri-county area's elderly who gets by on a poverty level income. Join Focus: HOPE's Share with a Senior program.

The program, now in its tenth year, provides holiday food baskets for the oldest and neediest seniors enrolled in Focus: HOPE's supplemental food program, Food for Seniors.

A similar Focus: HOPE program, Family to Family, reaches out to single heads of households who have three or more children and are receiving public assistance. Like Share with a Senior, Family to Family benefits the neediest families in Focus: HOPE's Food Prescription program. There are four recommended ways to share:

1. Shop with or for a senior or family — Call Focus: HOPE for the name of a senior or family. Focus: HOPE will let the senior or family head know you will be phoning to find out special dietary needs. You may even want to take the individual to your supermarket to make his or her own food selections. Buy approximately $50 to $60 worth of groceries, perhaps a gift, and deliver them in person.

2. Donate food — Focus: HOPE's holiday volunteers welcome donations of non-perishable foods which are assembled into holiday gift packages and delivered to persons not matched with donors.

3. Donate money — Seniors and families who are not matched with donors will receive supermarket gift certificates. Your cash gift will help ensure these needy seniors and families are not forgotten.

4. Volunteer your time — Hundreds of people are needed to answer phones, mail out information or make holiday deliveries with their own transportation.

To participate in Share with a Senior or Family to Family, call the Focus: HOPE volunteer department at 883-3131.

Auto accidents

Air bags must be used in conjunction with a safety belt to realize the maximum benefits. The only type of crash that air bags protect against is frontal. Safety belts provide the best protection in rear, side and rollover crashes. (NHTSA)

State's bad news travels far and wide

The word has gotten around. At a conference in Boston just before Christmas, I was relaxing with a cup of coffee when a colleague ran up to me and blurted, "Nancy, I just heard what happened in your state!"

Somewhat nonplussed, as a great many things have happened in Michigan, many of them worth blurring about, I had to ask her. It turned out to be the general assistance cuts and other welfare scale-backs that were on her mind.

She lives in Massachusetts, a state with a severe case of the blues over its own economic problems. A state where the governor has announced plans to enforce old laws (still inexplicably on the books) requiring mandatory Bible reading in the public schools. A state that has decided to keep David Duke off the ballot. A state that only a few years ago thought it was invincible and is now learning some very hard economic lessons that Michigan has understood for decades.

And she was still shocked. A study released a couple of weeks ago found that although six states have instituted sharp safety net reductions, Michigan's are the most severe by far — though there is also some evidence that our net was more thorough to begin with. That is, despite our cuts, some states still offer less to their poor.

Breaking the cycle of dependency, as Gov. Engler professes to be doing, is a worthy goal. But one can't help worrying that there is also a pervading drop-dead attitude that sweeps the homeless and helpless out of our line of sight and off our conscience.

New England may be suffering the dire consequences of high flying in the '80s, but we still couldn't get reservations in a trendy Yankee restaurant on Saturday night. If you've still got a job, there isn't a recession.

And there's still a longer waiting list to get into the better private clubs in Boston than there is in Detroit. Gee, our waiting time is down to a mere 15 months, raising fears that the dregs will soon be admitted.

Flying home with a young Detroit-area woman, a student at MIT, we extolled downtown Boston, Cambridge, the waterfront, Beacon Hill, the Common. "I love to go to all those places," she said. "I can't think of any place in downtown Detroit that would make me want to go there."

That's a pretty harsh judgment, one I don't share, but it reflects reality for a lot of folks in Michigan.

Downtown Boston is still a people place. Even though in December, it's dark at 4:30, the streets are thronged well past the dinner hour. And in spite of the building boom in the '80s, Boston remembers its history better than we do. We have to remind ourselves that Detroit is very nearly as old as most East Coast cities — but what evidence of that can we see as we walk its streets?

We don't even have much of the 19th century left. Coleman Young finished off the demolition, but it was started and carried out by many administrations before him.

The Boston conference, like any other, was marked by bureaucratic blather, monotony, and the occasional flash of brilliance. One participant eventually expressed himself by placing his bare feet on the conference table, a surreal gesture that somehow seemed in keeping with my mood.

Surreality dogged me on my return when, paging through back issues to catch up, I discovered that hizzoner has gas. Of course, he's asking for it, with that diet, but perhaps he could ask our Margie Reins Smith for advice. She is the possessor of important flatulence information, documented in the Dec. 19 issue detailing the wonders of Beano.

Visit from the Tooth Ogre

Which is more uncomfortable, the birth or the death of a tooth? In my day our mothers would rub Dr. Hand's teething lotion on our gums as the new tooth made its debut. When my children cried out in the night during the "tooth-birthing" process, we rubbed whiskey on their gums.

In most cases, the demise of a tooth isn't so simple. Often it takes days, weeks and sometimes months to complete the painful journey to the beyond. The price of saving or preserving what is left of the tooth rivals the expense of a full-blown funeral.

If one wants to keep the tooth, one must go through the truly fun procedure of a root canal. This can take several dental appointments and leaves you feeling like you have been run over by a train, with hot fiery fuel searing and stretching your mouth. Mercifully, this only lasts a few days.

But just when you think the worst is behind you, it is time to visit the other "specialist" to begin construction of a new gold crown costing only slightly less than the one Queen Elizabeth wears. Meanwhile, your old gold filling has been thrown unceremoniously into the dentist's wastebasket, and was probably retrieved soon after your departure from the office, to be melted and recycled. (Would it have been chintzy to request the old filling?)

Then there is the period of adjustment, that time when you can stand neither hot nor cold on one side of your mouth. When you are finally able to handle the pain of temperature changes, the bills start to arrive and you are at risk of developing another health problem — be still my heart! There are still many of us who are not employed by companies with dental insurance.

Perhaps worst of all, the majority of dental work is never seen or appreciated by an admiring public. It's somewhat like dumping thousands of dollars into a new hot water heater or furnace. You want to hang out a sign announcing to the world the fine improvements to your home or in the dark recesses of your lopsided mouth.

So if you see someone walking around the Hill with an apparently severe adenoid condition, I'm merely attempting to give you a good look at some truly splendid handiwork.

Families needed for foreign students

Foreign high school students will be coming to the Grosse Pointe area for homestay programs, and the sponsoring organization needs local host families.

According to Pacific Intercultural Exchange, the students are all between 15 and 18, have their own spending money, are fully insured and are anxious to share their cultural experiences with their new American families. The agency has programs that range in length from two weeks in the summer to a semester and full academic year, where the students attend local high schools.

Representatives match stu-

Andrew Catholic Church, 1500 Inglewood, Rochester, on Thursday, Jan. 2, 1991. Mr. Pasny died Dec. 29, at Crittenton Hospital in Rochester Hills. He was 87.

Mr. Pasny was a graduate of Wayne State University in 1945 and was a member of the Wayne State Alumni Association, the Michigan Association of Professionals and the Michigan Pharmaceutical Association.

He was a pharmacist and owner of Boulevard Prescription Drugs in Detroit until he retired in 1970.

Survivors include his wife, Vera; a daughter, Diane M. Scott of Rochester Hills; and a brother, Adam Pasny of Mount Clemens.

Burial will be at Holy Sepulchre Cemetery in Southfield.

Memorials may be made to the Michigan Cancer Foundation.

On the other hand, we fine Michiganians all know by now that special interest groups can't entice appointed officials into making decisions based on exploitation, greed or political contributions. Whew... what fine "eco-warriors" we continue to retain in Michigan's Legislature.

I'll no longer feel the need to ask "Why the trees John?" I'll now darn well know that the trees will soon be "paper mill fodder." Oops, I almost forgot, as the Forestry Association's "scientific" evidence proves "clear cutting is good" and those darn shade-givers (trees) actually grow to be "harvested." That is just the type of logic from the same kind of people who feed deer apples and carrots diligently until Opening Day, then POW.

Have voters forgotten that the original intent of our founding fathers/mothers, was "a government of the people, for the people, by the people"? Nowhere is it stated "of special interests people" for "political access committee people" or "by people with no regard for the future." If Engler successfully dismantles the DNR, the fine citizens of Michigan are bound to suffer the consequences.

Rather than the current "slash and harvest" mindset, aggressive efforts should be made to provide Michigan facilities that are capable of converting post-consumer waste (i.e., glass, aluminum, newspapers) into recovered resources that can be used again. This may provide jobs for the unemployed.

It seems rather asinine to have to transport these materials outstate for processing. It's not economically feasible, in the long run, either.

Ironically, the only downside of my personal efforts in environmental volunteer work has been the addition of my name to an odd array of non-political "special interest" groups. Perhaps, coincidentally, I've received numerous pleas from groups such as Z.P.G., N.O.W., P.E.T.A., Planned Parenthood, NARSL, Right to Die, National Gay Lesbian Task Force, etc., to name just a few.

As stated previously, perhaps this is merely a queer coincidence, but what do these groups have to do with clean air and clean water? These mass mailings actually force me to discard approximately two pounds of junk mail per week. This doesn't seem logical. Nor have I seen any positive societal results from the aforementioned groups. Generating "junk mail" and begging for money aren't high on my list of worthwhile accomplishments.

Additionally, it seems these quasi-radical groups detract from the legitimate concerns of mainstream Americans.

My choices in volunteer work run more toward rational groups such as "Save The Children," "Youth With A Vision" and "Boysville of Michigan." In short, groups committed to positive change.

Now is the time for rational people to let our state legislators know how we feel about the reorganization of Michigan's DNR.

How many parents of young children (most at risk from toxins) are going to be able to attend "public comment" meetings in Lansing? How many parents possess the training required to comprehend a "DNR permit"? Not many, I'd guess.

Like the song goes, "Don't it always seem to go, you don't know what you've got til it's gone. They paved paradise and put up a parking lot."

NOTICE OF LAST DAY OF REGISTRATION OF THE QUALIFIED ELECTORS OF THE GROSSE POINTE PUBLIC SCHOOL SYSTEM WAYNE COUNTY, MICHIGAN FOR THE SPECIAL ELECTION TO BE HELD ON TUESDAY, FEBRUARY 11, 1992

TO THE QUALIFIED ELECTORS OF SAID SCHOOL DISTRICT:

PLEASE TAKE NOTICE that a special election for The Grosse Pointe Public School System will be held in said School District on Tuesday, February 11, 1992.

Act 451, Public Acts of Michigan, 1976, as amended, provides in part as follows:

The inspectors of election at an annual or special election shall not receive the vote of a person residing in a registration school district whose name is not registered as an elector in the city or township in which the person resides.

The last day for receiving registrations for the special election will be Monday, January 13, 1992. Persons registering after the Clerk's office closes, on Monday, January 13, 1992, will not be eligible to vote at the special election. Persons planning to register must determine when the appropriate City or Township Clerks' Offices will be open for registration.

Under the provisions of Act 451, Public Acts of Michigan, 1976, as amended, registration will not be taken by school officials, and only persons who have registered as general electors with the appropriate Clerk of the City or Township in which they reside, or through registration at a Secretary of State drivers license bureau, are registered school electors.

The following proposals will be submitted to the Electors at the election on Tuesday, February 11, 1992.

School Operating Millage Renewal Proposition

As a renewal of millages previously approved by the electors which have expired, shall the limitation of the amount of taxes which may be assessed against all taxable property in The Grosse Pointe Public School System, Wayne County, Michigan, be increased, for a period of three (3) years, the years 1992 to 1994, inclusive, by twenty seven dollars and fifty five cents ($27.55) (27.55 mills) per one thousand dollars ($1,000.00) of the state equalized valuation of all taxable property in the School District, for the purpose of providing funds to meet operating expenses of the School District?

Public Library Operating Millage Renewal Proposition

As a renewal of a millage previously approved by the electors which has expired, shall the limitation of the amount of taxes which may be assessed against all taxable property in The Grosse Pointe Public School System, Wayne County, Michigan, be increased, for a period of three (3) years, the years 1992 to 1994, inclusive, by one dollar thirty cents ($1.30) (1.30 mills) per one thousand dollars ($1,000.00) of the state equalized valuation of all taxable property in the School District, for the purpose of providing funds to meet operating expenses of the Public Library System operated by the Board of Education in the School District?

Registration of unregistered qualified electors of said School District will be received at the following places:

- Residents of the City of Grosse Pointe Park shall register at the office of the Clerk of the City of Grosse Pointe Park, 15115 East Jefferson Avenue, City of Grosse Pointe Park, Michigan.
- Residents of the City of Grosse Pointe shall register at the office of the Clerk of the City of Grosse Pointe, 17147 Maumee, City of Grosse Pointe, Michigan.
- Residents of the City of Grosse Pointe Farms shall register at the office of the Clerk of the City of Grosse Pointe Farms, 90 Kerby Road, City of Grosse Pointe Farms, Michigan.
- Residents of the City of Grosse Pointe Woods shall register at the office of the Clerk of the City of Grosse Pointe Woods, 20025 Mack Avenue, City of Grosse Pointe Woods, Michigan.
- Residents of the City of Harper Woods shall register at the office of the Clerk of the City of Harper Woods, 19617 Harper Avenue, City of Harper Woods, Michigan.
- Residents of the Township of Grosse Pointe shall register at the office of the Clerk of the Township of Grosse Pointe, 795 Lakeshore Drive, Village of Grosse Pointe Shores, Michigan.

This Notice is given by order of the Board of education of The Grosse Pointe Public School System, County of Wayne, Michigan.

"we have around here," Zaranek said. "One of the last things my father did as president was put the name on the ballot for the people to vote on, and they voted to change the name to Grosse Pointe Woods."

John Hammel, who serves on the Grosse Pointe Woods historical commission, said that a lot of names were considered in the late 1930s, including Grosse Pointe Heights.

"I don't know why, because there aren't any heights," Hammel said.

As for Zaranek's claim that her mother came up with the name Grosse Pointe Woods, "all we have is her word," Zaranek said. "We don't have anything to dispute her story."

In a booklet that Grosse Pointe Woods gives to new residents, it says that Lochmoor Village was incorporated in 1927; its name was changed to the Village of Grosse Pointe Woods in 1939; and on Dec. 11, 1950, it became a city.

Zaranek has always called it home, except for the first six years of her married life, when she lived in St. Clair Shores.

She and her husband, Casimir, live in the house on Anita where she grew up. Her father built the home when she was 2 years old, and the Zaraneks bought it when he died about 40 years ago.

When Zaranek was a girl, Anita was a dirt road that went from Mack (a two-lane road) to Goethe. The woods and the Milk River creek prevented Anita from extending to the lake and there was a big elm tree in front of Zaranek's house, right in the middle of the road.

"People had to drive around it," she said.

The Milk River was a flowing creek then, but treacherous, Zaranek said.

"There was a lot of quicksand around it and when I was young, one of my classmates drowned because of it," she said.

Zaranek attended kindergarten at Kerby school. A janitor at Kerby drove her and about five other children in her neighborhood to and from school every day.

She attended first grade at Vernier school, which was within walking distance from her home. In the winter, men would use horses to plow a path through the snow so that the students could walk to school, she said.

When Mason school opened, Zaranek was there, in the second grade class. She attended Mason through the sixth grade.

From the seventh through the 12th grade, she attended St. Paul High School, where she was a member of the Young Ladies Sodality and sang soprano in the choir.

Until recently, she also sang in the choir at St. Joan of Arc church.

What did youngsters in Lochmoor Village do for fun?

"We used to play on the (Lochmoor) golf course — the hills seemed so high, and we went sledding down them in the winter, Zaranek said.

There was also ice skating on the Milk River and when my dad was president he had six different spots in the village flooded for ice skating. Also, he made arrangements for residents to use the Grosse Pointe Yacht Club two days a week."

The village held a community Christmas party each year and Santa Claus would give children stockings filled with candy and nuts, she said.

In the summer, Zaranek went swimming in Lake St. Clair and watched her father play polo at the Hunt Club.

Residents could borrow books from two libraries — one was located in the back of a candy store on Mack near Anita, and the other was inside the Grosse Pointe police station, Zaranek said.

An old-fashioned picnic capped each school year, she said.

"Everyone in the village was invited," she said. "Residents would decorate their cars and there was a contest for the best one. People would drive through the city honking their horns. Then they'd go to the woods for a big, old-fashioned picnic, and there were games for the children."

Casimir Zaranek heard Juliette DePore sing and she won his heart. Forty-seven years later, they're still married.

After Zaranek graduated from high school, she attended Detroit Business College, where she received her legal secretary's certificate.

She was working for a lawyer in 1941 when one of her cousins got married. Zaranek didn't want to go to the wedding, she said. It was in Chicago, and she had too much work to do.

"But my father came down to the lawyer's office and asked me to go," Zaranek recalled. "He said it was the first wedding in the family in this country, and that it would mean a lot to him if I went."

So she did. She even sang at the ceremony. When the best man, Casimir Zaranek, saw and heard her singing, he vowed to win her heart.

"That's what I said then, and I wouldn't trade her now for a 20-year-old," Casimir said.

For several months, Casimir, a cartographer for the Army Corps of Engineers, courted Juliette by mail, because he lived in Chicago. Occasionally, he would call. Then on New Year's Day 1942, at the invitation of Juliette's parents, he came to Grosse Pointe Woods for a visit.

While there, he received notification from the Army Corps of Engineers that he was being assigned to its lake survey office in Detroit. That, Casimir said, made courting a lot easier.

He was drafted in 1943 to serve in World War II, and married Juliette in 1944 in Fort Lewis, Wash. They celebrated their 47th wedding anniversary in November.

After the war he returned to the Detroit lake survey office, making maps of the Great Lakes and the St. Lawrence Seaway. He retired in 1976, when the Detroit facility closed and merged with another office in Maryland, he said.

Juliette Zaranek gave up her career when she got married. She and her husband have five sons: Robert, an attorney; Rick, principal of Fox Elementary School in Clinton Township; Louis, who owns a remodeling business; Steve, a track coach at Grosse Pointe South High School and athletic director at St. Clare of Montefalco Church in Grosse Pointe Park; and Pierre, a computer systems analyst with Ford Motor Co.

"They kept me busy when they were younger," Zaranek said. "I was a room mother, a den mother, every kind of mother you can imagine."

Now she's a grandmother. She and her husband have eight grandchildren and a great-grandchild.

"We're a very close family and enjoy spending time with each other," she said.

Zaranek enjoys needlework, and her home is filled with pictures and sayings she has stitched. In 1967, she won two second-place awards for her original needlepoint floral designs.

She also loves to travel, and has been to Europe, California and Florida.

Zaranek said she's sorry to see Grosse Pointe Woods lose its abundance of trees over the years. But all in all, the changes that have occurred in the Woods since she was a child have been for the better, she said.

"I've been all over the world," she said, "and it's always nice to come back home to Grosse Pointe Woods. It's a great place to live and I hope I never have to move from here."

Mobility Resource Associates Inc.'s mission will move you

By Pat Paholsky
Editor

Just the thought of packing up one's belongings and moving to another house or another state or another country can cause a rational, intelligent person to go into a tailspin. Moving, like war, is hell.

American businesses move a half million employees and their families a year, the federal government transfers 50,000 civilian workers a year and an untold number of families will just pick up and move from here to there every single day, according to Harry Kurtz, president of Mobility Resource Associates Inc. "We are a very, very transient society," he said.

With his relocation management firm, Kurtz can assure his customers they will live through the process by offering them professional moving assistance. The company provides individuals and corporations with anything from a full line of relocation services to a self-managed program for transferees with limited budgets.

Mobility Resource Associates was just awarded a major government contract to provide its services for a potential 5,000 moves, which translates to $15 million in business, based on the average cost to the government of $3,000 to move household goods only. The contract followed a two-year bidding process.

cess.

"Government bidding is very tricky," Kurtz said. "There are a tremendous number of technicalities."

The company, however, is not simply sitting back to reap the rewards of a fat contract. It is currently bidding on another project for the federal government, teaming up with a subsidiary of Manufacturers National Bank and General Motors Acceptance Corp., Kurtz said.

The firm, located at 15318 Mack in the Park, takes care of local business as well. It recently moved desks and computers at University Liggett School for an auction, and last week was involved in moving an 80-year-old woman from California to Grosse Pointe.

"We provide quality control service in that we monitor the mover," Kurtz said. "There's nothing like having your airplane tickets in hand and not having the movers show up."

If there are any problems during the moving process, Mobility Resource Associates acts as an advocate for the customer. "An individual can call me and he becomes my client, but the mover is dealing with me," Kurtz said.

"We can introduce people to Realtors who specialize in dealing with transferees and we have working relationships with companies that will purchase a home on behalf of the employer."

Through its program called Smart Move, Kurtz said the company encourages customers to get pre-approved mortgages before moving to another state.

"There are so many things they can do, not only to save money, but to alleviate stress," he said. "An employer will hire us to see that the person's questions are answered and we introduce them to professionals who can see to their needs."

Kurtz, whose background includes being a partner in a local moving company, said his firm can arrange for spouse employment counseling and job-hunting assistance.

"It's very difficult to get quality employees to relocate today with both couples in high-paying jobs," he said.

Mobility Resource Associates will arrange for real estate agents to give the transferee a tour of the city.

"We can do one-way rental trucks for entry level people," he said. "We will arrange for packing and unpacking — all they have to do is drive."

The company, which Kurtz established in 1989, has, besides its sales and marketing office in Grosse Pointe Park, sales offices in Portland, Ore., and Dallas as well as a representative in Washington, D.C. Operations are based in Saginaw. There are about a dozen employees in all, he said.

Mobility Resource Associates also arranges for international moving, dealing with a whole new set of requirements, particularly when it involves sending or shipping back cars.

Kurtz, who travels around the country a lot, is glad to have his office in Grosse Pointe, his hometown.

He attended Trombly Elementary and Pierce Middle schools and is a 1968 graduate of Grosse Pointe High School. He married Lynn McGarvah, a 1969 graduate of Grosse Pointe High, who currently works part time as a vocational rehabilitation counselor. They have two children, Lindsey Ellen, 3, and Sarah Louise, 5, who is in kindergarten at Defer Elementary School.

"We are currently working on a program to provide self-move services for production personnel who may be moving to another factory," Kurtz said. "We provide one-stop shopping for corporations who used to manage these functions individually and were forced to deal with a variety of vendors."

Mobility Resource Associates also keeps up to date with IRS regulations affecting relocation. Providing these services to corporations is the wave of the future but so far there aren't many companies like his around, Kurtz said.

Another service the company offers is relocation policy consulting. "Corporations may not have relocated employees in the past but may be making a group move," he said. "We will have one of our experts come in and explain the tax implications and entitlements."

The average cost today for a corporation to relocate an employee is $41,000, Kurtz said. "We help them identify ways to contain these costs," he said.

The phone number of Mobility Resource Associates is 884-2300 or 1-800-431-1400.

Boblo Island offers summer jobs

College students home for the holiday recess are able to apply for many seasonal positions available on Boblo Island amusement park.

Jobs include ride operators, food service and games personnel and merchandise shop clerks. Behind-the-scenes jobs include grounds maintenance, landscaping and administrative work. On-the-docks positions, such as ticket sellers and takers and parking attendants, are available. Jobs begin at a minimum wage and increase with responsibility and areas of expertise.

Area students home for the holidays should mail a letter of interest or resume to: Boblo Island Summer Jobs, 4401 W. Jefferson Ave., Detroit, Mich. 48209.

Appointments may be scheduled for spring break for local students. All staffing is scheduled to be completed by mid-May. Boblo Island opens on Saturday, May 23.

Detroit College of Law celebrates 100 years today

The Detroit College of Law, the nation's oldest independent, continuously operating law school, will celebrate its 100th birthday today, Thursday, Jan. 2, at the college, 130 E. Elizabeth, in Detroit.

This date is the exact hundred-year anniversary of the college, down to the time the festivities begin at 6:30 p.m. At that hour, exactly 100 years ago, the college opened its doors at the old Detroit College of Medicine on Antoine Street (which shared its space), and members of the first class and their families entered to hear an address by Michigan Supreme Court Justice Charles Long, first president of the college. That address will be recreated by an actor impersonating Justice Long. Other actors, members of Grosse Pointe Theatre, will portray the first dean, professors and founding students.

According to an article from The Detroit News of Jan. 3, 1892, "The college begins its existence with 30 enrolled students, among whom are six practicing lawyers, who are to take special courses. As it happens, the Orient is represented with the Occident. Japan is represented by one student, and there is also one Afro-American." The class also included "the pitcher of the baseball club of the University of Michigan."

The college was founded by a group of young men who were "reading the law." In 1892, to learn the law in the absence of a college of law, a young person usually worked in the office of an attorney and went through a type of "apprenticeship." A group of young men in Detroit, headed by one Walter Denton Smith, wanted a more scholarly approach and, assisted by a group of local lawyers and a legal scholar named Floyd Mechem, founded their own law school. Several of these students also became members of the first board of directors of the college.

All current and recently enrolled students are invited to the celebration, as are all donors to the college, members of the state, federal and local judiciary, representatives of the state, City of Detroit, county and federal governments, representatives of the press and others involved with the current management of the college.

Hosting the festivities will be dean Arthur J. Lombard, college President Richard Heiss and the members of the current board of trustees.

Business People

By Ronald J. Bernas

State Supreme Court Justice Dorothy Comstock Riley has been awarded the Law Enforcement Commendation Medal of the National Society of the Sons of the American Revolution. Riley, of Grosse Pointe Farms, is being honored by the organization for her "outstanding efforts as a justice of the Supreme Court of Michigan" and for her service as chief justice from 1987-91. Riley has been a judge for 20 years, first as a Wayne Circuit Court judge and then as an appeals court judge. She has been a member of the state's highest court for more than seven years.

Joseph A. Tolari, of Grosse Pointe Farms, will retire from NBD Bank after a career spanning 42 years. Tolari is first vice president and director of the Grosse Pointe region of the bank's northern metropolitan regional banking division, with responsibility for 13 branch offices. Tolari joined NBD at the Warren-Alter office in 1949. He held progressively more responsible positions in the branch network until his transfer to the Grosse Pointe office and his appointment as manager in 1960. He was named first vice president in 1986.

Osann

The Michigan Recycling Coalition recently elected Sheila Osann to its board. Osann, an environmental communications consultant and vice president of Osann Creative Services, is past president of Grosse Pointe Citizens for Recycling and is a Grosse Pointe Park resident. The MRC was established in 1983 to provide a cooperative forum to support and promote waste reduction and material recovery programs in Michigan for industry, non-profit organizations, businesses, government and community recycling programs.

Former Grosse Pointer Trent Navarro has been promoted to front office manager of the Dearborn Marriott. He joined the Marriott Corp. in 1983 and has worked at the Burlington Marriott in Massachusetts, the Marco Island Marriott in Florida and the Tampa Marriott West Shore in Tampa.

Mary Schwartz, formerly of Grosse Pointe Woods, has joined Rosner & Liss Public Relations as senior account executive. Before joining the Chicago-based company, Schwartz was an account executive at Golin/Harris. She received her master's degree in corporate public relations at Northwestern University in 1990 and a B.A. from the University of Michigan in 1983.

Robin Chrumka has joined the Jeep/Eagle National creative group at Campbell-Mithun-Esty Advertising as senior art director. Most recently, Chrumka worked for Leo Burnett as senior art director on the Oldsmobile. She lives in Grosse Pointe.

Grosse Pointe Farms resident William P. Vitoe has been elected to the board of trustees of the Hudson-Webber Foundation. Vitoe, president and chief executive officer of ANR Pipeline, serves on numerous civic and charitable boards. The Hudson-Webber Foundation was established in 1943 to support the development of the Detroit Medical Center, the economic development of southeastern Michigan and the physical revitalization of downtown Detroit, among other projects.

S. Kinnie Smith Jr., of Grosse Pointe, has been elected vice chairman of CMS Energy Corp. He is also vice chairman of Consumers Power Co., the principal subsidiary of CMS Energy. Also, Alan M. Wright was elected senior vice president and chief financial officer of CMS Energy and Consumers Power Co. He has been vice president of finance for Consumers Power.

Knights surprise Irish

By John Miskelly
Special Writer

The writing on the Notre Dame High School gymnasium wall reads, "Old Notre Dame will win over all."

Obviously, the University Liggett School basketball team wasn't in a reading mood when it took the court against the Fighting Irish last weekend.

The Knights fought back from a nine-point third-quarter deficit to beat Notre Dame 51-46 in a semifinal game of the Notre Dame Christmas Tournament.

"This is a great building stone. We were the underdogs tonight," said ULS coach Chuck Wright. "We played with tremendous intensity."

It looked like the Knights had three strikes against them before the game even started. The team's tallest player, 6-foot-3 Vernon Pernell, was absent; guard Dave Martin hadn't played since the first game of the season opener; and the starting lineup was totally revamped from last year.

But with Martin playing his first full game, the Knights were able to counter the Irish's height advantage and advanced to Monday's championship game.

Martin came off the bench and tallied 15 points on five three-point field goals, including two in the final quarter.

Center Eric Berlinski (four points, five rebounds) and forward Matt Schultz (nine points, four rebounds) looked like they might overpower ULS with their size advantage, but the Knights had other ideas.

"We were a better team because we were persistent," Wright said. "They haven't seen our guys before."

Wright felt that Notre Dame's unfamiliarity with his team allowed the Knights to take several shots from three-point range.

Guard Terronte Porter scored

13 of the Irish's 18 points in the second quarter to help Notre Dame take a 22-19 half-time lead.

ULS came out firing in the third quarter, but the Knights still trailed 36-31, entering the final period.

Notre Dame started the fourth quarter with a tall lineup to prevent ULS from attacking inside, but the Knights took advantage of the tactic by using perimeter shooting to catch and pass the Irish.

"We also took advantage of our speed," Wright said.

Another key factor was foul shooting. Notre Dame missed all four of its attempts from the line in the fourth quarter, while ULS went 11-for-16. The Irish had to make several substitutions when its players, including Berlinski and Schultz, got into foul trouble.

The Knights took the lead for good with 5:23 to play during a run of seven straight points. Notre Dame still had a chance to tie the game at 48 apiece with 28 seconds left, but the Irish missed two free throws.

Jason Drook had 10 points, including seven in the fourth quarter, for ULS. The Knights improved to 2-2 overall.

North matmen handle tough competition

By Chuck Klonke
Sports Editor

Grosse Pointe North's wrestlers may be out of their class, but they certainly aren't being outclassed.

"We've been wrestling our kids up a weight class in dual meets," said coach Art Roberts. "That way they don't have to be cutting weight all season. It might also give them some tougher competition, which doesn't hurt anything."

The Norsemen have a 32-32 tie with Madison Heights Madison and a 34-29 victory over Dearborn Edsel Ford to show for their first two dual meets.

"I've been pleased with the way we've wrestled," Roberts said.

Roberts added a couple non-league dual meets to the schedule this season with an eye toward the Norsemen's Macomb Area Conference White Division opener on Thursday, Jan. 9 against Grosse Pointe South.

"South was our first dual last year and some of our freshmen didn't even know what a dual meet was all about," Roberts said. "This year we decided to let the kids experience a couple duals before we meet South."

North has a young team (there are only two juniors and two seniors on the squad) but Roberts is hoping to improve on last year's 14-5 season, which also included a championship in the MAC White tournament.

Dave Pierno's 12-2 victory at 189 pounds and a 2-2 tie by heavyweight Duane Leininger sealed the win over Edsel Ford after the Norsemen had built a big lead in the early bouts.

Dave Sandercott (112 pounds), Dave Zoltowski (119) and Keith Giannico (135) each won on pins against the Thunderbirds. Freshman Bill Pollard took an 11-3 decision at 103 pounds; Jeff Rizzo won 5-2 at 125; and Brian Kerber posted a 10-5 decision at 130.

Zoltowski (119), Giannico

(135), Dan Skuce (140), Tony Romolino (145), Mike Gagala (160) and Pierno (189) were North's winners against Madison.

"We had one match where our kid was in control, but made a mistake and wound up getting pinned," Roberts said. "That was a nine-point swing, but he learned a lesson he won't forget. That's why I don't get that concerned about winning and losing dual meets. I'd rather use them as a learning experience."

Some freshmen please South's swim coach

Coach Fred Michalik used the Troy Relays as something of a shakedown cruise for his Grosse Pointe South boys swimming team.

The Blue Devils finished ninth in the 12-team field, but Michalik wasn't concerned.

"We have a real young team and I wanted to use this meet to look at some of the newer swimmers and see how they'd do," Michalik said. "I was pleased with several of them. Some freshmen who did well were Chris Ollison, John Spain, Kyle Zeller, Morgan Mathew and Michael VandePutte."

Michalik stacked one relay team with his top veterans and it just missed erasing a meet record that had stood since 1980, while taking South's only first place. Fitz Ollison, Brenn Schoenherr, Andy Walter and Tim Jogan teamed up to swim a 7:56.5 in the crescendo relay. The crescendo event consists of one leg each of 50, 100, 200 and 500 yards.

The meet record is 7:54.02. "We were shooting for the record and we should have had it," Michalik said.

The Blue Devils got a strong performance from divers Chad Hepner, Tim Campbell and Robert Tiede, who took third in the diving relay.

South opens the dual meet season on Thursday, Jan. 9, against Grosse Pointe North.

South grad fits in well in Merchant Marines

Grosse Pointe South grad Chris Paul didn't waste any time becoming a key member of the soccer team at the United States Merchant Marine Academy (Kings Point).

Slimnastics" aerobic exercise program, which is scheduled to begin in Grosse Pointe Woods and Harper Woods the week of Jan. 6.

Classes will be held at Christ

Paul, a freshman fullback, started all 19 games for the Mariners at outside back. He recorded two assists and was a mainstay on a defense that posted five shutouts for the season.

Paul, who lettered in soccer, hockey and lacrosse at South, is an engineering major at the academy.

Here are people we met, places we went, things we did

By Margie Reins Smith
Feature Editor

We found 51 new people to meet, places to go and things to do in 1991. January through December, we put a new one on the front page of the features section of the Grosse Pointe News each week.

With one exception. The second week in July found the offices of the News, like many Grosse Pointe homes and businesses, without electric power for several days. The result for us was an abbreviated version of the paper on July 11. The feature article designated for page 1B was saved for July 18.

During 1991, the most frequent feature articles were profiles of creative Grosse Pointers and descriptions of forthcoming fundraisers.

We profiled a dozen artists, designers, writers, volunteers, collectors and patrons of the arts, starting with our very own staff writer Ron Bernas.

Bernas wrote a play, "A Little Murder Never Hurt Anybody," which he described as a 1930s-style screwball comedy. The Grosse Pointe Theatre produced the play in January and counted it as one of its most successful two-week runs.

A small corps of Grosse Pointe women (Jane Meade, Diane Schoenith, Mado Lie, Bettejean Ahee, Stephanie Germack, Mary Lamparter and Dale Austin) represent the movers and shakers of Detroit's organizers and volunteers for charity fundraisers. These women talked about the big business of charity fundraising and told us some of their secrets for making sure their auctions and balls and various money-raising events are ready on time and within budget.

They also gave us some insight into why they donate dozens of hours each week to volunteer projects.

Grosse Pointe artist Joanne Sartor described her specialties — miniature Victorian architectural designs and oshi e, an ancient Japanese art form.

Meade and Ahee were involved with a number of charitable fundraisers during the year. Canfield retired after serving as pastor of St. Paul Catholic Church for 20 years. DeFour is a charter member of the Exchange Club. Massnick was chairman of the Detroit Review Club's 100th anniversary party. Derbyshire is a watercolor artist.

Marjorie Jewell reminisced about the highlights of her 60 years as a patron of the Detroit Symphony Orchestra.

In June, traditionally the beginning of the bride season, three of Lynn and Tom McGann's four daughters announced their plans to marry.

The parents of the brides shared some of their thoughts on the complex arrangements and preparations involved in planning weddings in triplicate.

Monsignor Francis X. Canfield, pastor of St. Paul Catholic Church since 1971, decided to retire. Just before his retirement celebration, this familiar Grosse Pointe figure discussed the many highlights (and a lowlight or two) from his 20 years at St. Paul Church.

Special writer Jenny King wrote a diary of her successful quest to become a full-fledged carillonneur, and also told about Grosse Pointers Jim and Andrea Krausmann's collection of antiques, including a dozen jukeboxes.

Grosse Pointe watercolor artist John Derbyshire gave us some insight into the creative process. He was the featured artist in the Grosse Pointe Artists Association's annual Fall Art Festival.

Grosse Pointer Anne Thompson, a news reporter for WDIV-TV, described the challenges of reporting from the scene of breaking news stories.

The Dyles of Grosse Pointe City walked us through their latest renovation project. They've restored more than a dozen old homes and they're currently working on a Colonial revival home built in 1910.

Robert and Alice Callaway discussed some of the Christmas traditions their family has adopted during the last two dozen years and they shared their spectacular Christmas tree and its 700-plus handmade one-of-a-kind decorations.

We wrote about fundraisers. Twelve of them.

St. John Hospital and Medical Center announces today's gentler ways to eliminate kidney stones.

Starting January 1992, St. John Hospital and Medical Center plans to offer laser surgery in addition to its existing sound wave method of treating kidney stones. Both treatments reduce the discomfort and recovery time associated with conventional surgery. ♦ Specially trained doctors will use gentle pulses of laser light to break up kidney stones and allow them to pass naturally. ♦ The procedure is relatively easy and offers a much quicker return to normal activities than with many other methods of treatment. In fact, many patients are discharged the same day and fully recuperated within 24 hours. ♦ Find out more about how a tiny laser beam can make kidney stones disappear. Call now for a free booklet and arrange a consultation.

Our Seminar Leader

Dave Carpenter

Dave has been a public speaker for over thirteen years. His background in psychology and theology has helped him reach people in all stages of life. He has over ten years of counseling experience, and has himself gone through the tragedy of divorce. His warm and compassionate approach to helping people recover and start life over will add to your life and give you insight into the healing ministry of divorce recovery. Dave has recently led successful programs at Our Lady of Good Counsel Catholic Church and Ward Presbyterian Church.

This seminar is a community service open to all persons who are divorced or in the process of divorce. It is presented each Fall and Spring as an outreach of the people of the Grosse Pointe United Church. Please telephone 884-3075 ahead of time if you plan to use our free childcare services.

Sessions will begin and end promptly and on time. Refreshments and a book table will also be provided. We are dedicated to providing an open, welcoming, non-judgemental, and healing atmosphere for all who attend. For more information, call Glenn Howland at 778-1333.

The Grosse Pointe United Church is located at 240 Chalfonte in Grosse Pointe Farms. One block east of Mack, on the corner of Chalfonte & Lothrop, next to Brownell Middle School.

Weddings

January 2, 1992
Grosse Pointe NewsMr. and Mrs. Stuart Neal
Zimmerman

Grifo-Zimmerman

Ann Marie Grifo of New York City, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jack Gene Grifo of Grosse Pointe, married Stuart Neal Zimmerman, son of Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Zimmerman of Lock Haven, Pa., on Aug. 31, 1991, at the Lochmoor Club.

The Hon. William J. Giovanofficiated at the noon ceremony, which was followed by a reception at the club.

The bride wore a full-length white French silk taffeta gown with a bodice of Alencon lace and an overlay of embroidered seed pearls and muted pink sequins. The embroidered hemline extended around the modified chapel-length train. She wore a bouffant veil trimmed with seed pearls and carried a nosegay of gardenias and Lady Di roses.

The matron of honor was the bride's sister, Emily Gilbert of Chappaqua, N.Y.

Bridesmaids were Donna Emery of Grosse Pointe; Christine Huntington of Silver Springs, Md.; Cynthia Sullivan of Tewksbury, Mass.; and the groom's sister, Cheryl Zimmerman of Deming, Wash.

Attendants wore floral cotton dresses with boat necks and open back crisscross styling. They wore straw boaters and carried nosegays of crimson miniature roses.

The best man was Thomas Myers of Allentown, Pa.

Groomsmen were Craig Coleman of Carol Stream, Ill.; Dr. Gerald DelGripio of Frederick, Md.; the bride's brother, Peter Grifo of Syracuse, N.Y.; and John Larney of New York City.

The mothers of the bride and groom wore chiffon dresses in shades of pink.

Music was performed by Rina Ersad, violinist, and Mary Trent, flutist.

Marriage enrichment course to be at Grosse Pointe Baptist Church

"Better Marriages — God's Way" will be the title of the new curriculum being offered by Grosse Pointe Baptist Church's family life class.

Dr. Marvin Faust, psychiatrist, will teach on Sundays beginning Jan. 12. Faust has presented marriage seminars and retreats throughout the United States. His presentations are a unique blend of psychological insight and biblical teaching.

"This class will help those with troubled marriages,"

Faust said, "but it will also help make good marriages even stronger. It's designed for any couple desiring a better marriage."

The family life class meets Sundays from 9:45 to 10:45 a.m. in the lounge of Grosse Pointe Baptist Church, 21336 Mack Ave. in Grosse Pointe Woods. The class is free and visitors are welcome. For more information, call the church at 881-3343.

Career women will focus on image

The National Association of Career Women-Metro Detroit chapter will hold its regular monthly luncheon meeting from 11:30 a.m. to 1 p.m. on Thursday, Jan. 9, at the Steak & Ale restaurant on Orchard Lake Road and I-696, in Farmington Hills.

"Focus on Image" will be the topic for speaker Peg Treacy, president of Churchill Associates Inc. Price for members is $12; guests, $15. For reservations, call 626-0752 by Tuesday, Jan. 7.

Lawyers' Auxiliary tea

Post-adoptive birth parents to meet

A free support group for birth parents who have released their babies for adoption will meet Wednesday, Jan. 8, from 7 to 9 p.m. at Catholic Services of Macomb, 235 South Gratiot, Mount Clemens.

Group members, which include birth fathers as well as birth members, share experiences, discuss loss and conflict issues and gain support.

For more information, call 468-2616.

Catholic Services of Macomb is a United Way service with offices in Mount Clemens, Warren, Utica, Roseville and New Haven. It provides complete counseling services, including free pregnancy counseling and adoption placement, to any person who lives or works in Macomb County.

Windmill Pointe gardeners to meet

Members of the Windmill Pointe Garden Club will meet at 11:30 a.m. on Wednesday, Jan. 8, at the home of Andrea Rasmussen. Co-hostess is Frances Fleming.

Each member will bring collectibles, antiques or interesting artifacts with a gardening motif. Grosse Pointe artist, estate appraiser and antique collector Kay Van De Graaf will discuss the history of the items.

Bridge Association holds tournament

The Michigan Bridge Association will hold a district sectional competition at the Oak Park Community Center.

The tournament opens on Thursday, Jan. 9, and runs through Sunday, Jan. 12. All flights of players are welcome and partnerships are available. For information, call Art Golumbia at 737-3340.

Auto Show preview party will benefit 8 local charities

The North American International Auto Show will kick off its fourth annual event with a preview party from 7 to 9 p.m. on Friday, Jan. 10, at the Cobo Conference/Exhibition Center. Those who attend the party will get a chance to donate a portion of their ticket price to one of eight local children's charities and organizers anticipate raising about $1 million for children. Guests at the black tie event will include actor Robert Ulrich and singer Anita Baker.

The charities to choose from: Boys & Girls Clubs of Southeastern Michigan, the Children's Center, Children's Service of Northeast Guidance Center Assistance League, Detroit Institute for Children, Detroit Police Athletic League, Easter Seal Society, March of Dimes Birth Defects Foundation and Barat Human Services.

Several Grosse Pointers are serving as honorary chairmen for different charities represented at the preview party. Dr. Donald and Dale Austin are honorary chairs of the Northeast Guidance Center Assistance League portion; Darlene Soave is honorary co-chair of the Barat Human Services portion; Cynthia and Edsel B. Ford II are honorary chairs for the Detroit Institute for Children.

Tickets are $125 a person; $250 a couple. For ticket information, call Nanci Ballantyne at 833-1525, Judy Rutan at 882-1607, or Cheri Dowdall at 656-1771.

The auto show continues through Sunday, Jan. 19. Regular admission prices are $6 for adults, $3 for children 12 and under, and $3 for senior citizens. For general admission tickets, call 643-0250.

Holiday Spree winner

Debra McCarty, right, of St. Clair Shores was the winner of a pair of pearl and onyx earrings, the door prize at the Fontbonne Auxiliary of St. John Hospital and Medical Center's Holiday Spree held Nov. 10 at the Grosse Pointe Yacht Club.

Gayle Boutros, left, of Grosse Pointe Woods was the general chairman of the fundraiser, which netted more than $25,000 for the purchase of five infant heart rate/respirator monitors for the hospital.

For information about the Fontbonne Auxiliary, phone 343-3675 weekdays during regular business hours.

Community chorus needs singers

The Grosse Pointe Community Chorus is accepting new singers. No auditions are required.

The chorus rehearses on Tuesday evenings at 7:45 in the Grosse Pointe North High School choral rehearsal room.

The first rehearsal of the new season will be on Tuesday, Jan. 14. The chorus will present a spring concert in April, with music from "Phantom of the Opera," "The King and I," "Camelot" and "My Fair Lady."

The chorus is in its 40th consecutive year and is under the direction of Robert Wolf. For information, call Barbara Chase at 885-2546 or Wolf at 278-4654.

— or took place within the boundaries of the Pointes — or benefited Grosse Pointe organizations.

Antiques shows seemed to be the most popular vehicle for raising money in 1991. Christ Church Grosse Pointe featured goods from 47 different dealers at the beginning of June. Proceeds from the yearly event finance several church programs, especially its choirs.

University Liggett School revived its antiques show in October, after a 10-year hiatus.

And the Junior Group of Goodwill Industries put on its 44th annual antiques show in November.

Auctions were popular, too. Grosse Pointe Academy's annual springtime two-day fundraiser, Action Auction, offered some unusual, custom, one-of-a-kind items.

In October, the Grosse Pointe South Preservation Committee held its first-ever Sentimental Super Sale and Auction. Not only were some good things up for bids, but the committee also sold some old, worn-out, used, broken-down, outdated uh... (sort of) antiques that they found in the attics and basements of South High School. The evening's sales raised money to restore the school's Cleminson Hall.

We told you about the eighth annual Art on the Pointe, a summer art fair sponsored by the Assistance League to the Northeast Guidance Center which sprawls across the lawns and gardens of the Edsel & Eleanor Ford Estate for two days in June.

The Detroit Institute of Ophthalmology's annual benefit, "Eyes on the Classics," still holds the distinction of being the only fundraiser of its kind in the world because its focus is automotive design.

Tours are still a popular way to raise money for charity. The Council of Grosse Pointe Garden Clubs took us on a preview tour, giving us a peek into six local gardens. We also previewed the yearly tour of Grosse Pointe kitchens which is sponsored by the Cottage Hospital Auxiliary. A fundraiser for the Detroit Symphony Orchestra put a new spin on the designers' showhouse theme by evolving into a tour of nine different townhouses at Stroh River Place.

The Fontebonne Auxiliary of St. John Hospital put on its annual fancy formal event, the White Christmas Ball; and the Grosse Pointe Historical Society repeated its popular seasonal concert, "The Sounds of Christmas," held this year at Christ Church Grosse Pointe and Grosse Pointe Memorial Church.

We covered several religious topics. The Rev. Elias Chacour, a priest in the Melkite Catholic Church in Israel, visited Detroit for a few months to serve as an ecumenical minister at Grosse Pointe Memorial Church. He shared some of his concerns about war and peace, the Middle East's problems, America's problems, and communication among Arabs, Jews and Christians.

We rounded up several Grosse Pointe pastors who told us how they observe the Lenten season.

We interviewed some volunteer tutors and some children at Detroit's Guyton School. The volunteers were participating in a literacy program sponsored by People in Faith United.

Then, shortly after school started in September, we asked a couple of churches to share their successful campaigns to encourage adults to return to Sunday School while encouraging children to participate in regular worship services.

Proceeding with our plan to profile every single club, organization and support group in the area, we learned more about eight organizations in 1991, including Goodwill Industries, the Cottage Hospital Auxiliary, Fathers for Equal Rights, Meals on Wheels, the Detroit Review Club, Questers, the Exchange Club and a support group for parents with Children with Attention Deficit Disorder (ChADD).

We also explored a variety of subjects like massage therapy, pampered pets, airline discounts and organizations for singles. We talked to Jeffrey A. Ditty, a Grosse Pointer whose business is rehabilitating people with closed-head injuries.

We asked some prominent people some provocative questions: What do Grosse Pointers do on Saturday night? What's in a name? How will a Supreme Court ban on excluding women from high-risk jobs affect you? Are the skies friendlier? How do you conquer stress?

We offered two photo essays: one on Grosse Pointe weather vanes and one by freelance photographer Karin Langmesser on the coming of spring.

We listed some local organizations that were looking for new members; and we rounded up some ideas on how to help the hungry and homeless.

If you have any suggestions for feature stories for 1992, write them down and send the information to Margie Smith, 96 Kercheval, Grosse Pointe Farms. Give a brief description of the person, club or topic and be sure to include a name and a phone number for us to contact.

Bridge

HAVE A PLEASANT TRY AT PERFECTION
BRIDGE BY WOODY BOYD ♠♥♦♣

Seldom do those who supposedly abuse the bidding of a bridge hand get hauled into court for criminal negligence at the card table. Today I'm going to tell you about one such mythical instance which caused a doodle bag full of disruption and a hilarious amount of hapless laughter.

The Defendants were two brilliant Britishers, Winston Flint Fog and Phineous Fudflucker who were arraigned for bidding conduct beyond normality and pretending to have what they hadn't.

The Plaintiffs were their opponents one boggy day in a late May play at the fancy French Finesse Club. It seems the rendezvous had been accomplished following a challenge from two of Europe's swish misses, Greta Gobart Gayballs and Honey Hips Hehooohader. Both were talented bridge mistresses who had sat in some of the great stake games of Europe. The arraignment stated that the Britishers had deployed their mediocre forces in such a bidding manner that their declarations were illusive, fabled and tended to misrepresent their shape and quick taking trick strength. This the ladies vehemently argued wasn't in keeping with acceptable European methods and the cause of calamitous losses.

The Plaintiffs had retained the famous five hundred dollar an hour American law firm of Bellows, Burgish, Boredom and Lord. Moe Lord, a life master of sequential playing eminence had agreed to personally represent them. To protect their integrity, Winston Flint and Phineous had chosen a young barrister named Lybieshyster from the distinguished London firm of Prognosticator, Preposter, Pleadpleaser and Witnessfixer. Because the Plaintiffs were particularly popular with European judiciary it was decided that a justice would be selected outside of the continent and that is how Judge Julius Boozysnoozer bribed his way to rate the case. Many surmised that his intimate link with fast money and the fancy free jet set had helped, and certainly it did, but money under the table won him the trial and that didn't bode well for the British or bridge. Julius was without doubt the most imperfect public justice ever appointed. His offensive reputation for slowpokeness caused by constant recesses to imbibe in a nip and a nap were well known. Lybieshyster was hopeful Julius would snooze thru a better part of the hearings and decide the merits in a state of fuzziness and then there was a fifty-fifty chance.

First the bidding and hand were presented. This diddled away two days as Julius took a record breaking twenty-one recesses for judicial refreshments.

Moe Lord argued for the Plaintiffs that after Mr. Fudflucker had made his first preemptive call he was entitled to no further bids. Lybieshyster countered that his client was just continuing to describe the preemptive nature of his hand. Mr. Lord then accused Mr. Flint of purposely making a series of psychic bids that only he and partner Fudflucker had secret agreement to. Again Lybieshyster differed insisting this was the aggressive nature of their bidding style. In conclusion, Mr. Lord asked for damages as six hearts was almost a laydown causing a minus 1650 score for his clients. Such a result would never have been achieved if the Britisher were restricted to standard techniques. Lybieshyster summed up his argument for the defense stating that the plaintiffs had ample opportunity to bid their spade slam if they hadn't of gotten hung up in a series of penalty doubles which clouded the shape and trick taking strength of each of their hands.

We must conclude that Julius Boozysnoozer became incapable of rendering a decision probably because of the excessive number of refreshment recesses so you'll have to be the judge.

Pride of the Pointes

Barry Kirk Martins of Grosse Pointe Park was honored as one of eight outstanding young alumni by Pittsburgh State University. Martins earned a bachelor of science degree in education from the university in 1971 and a master's degree in public administration from the University of Tennessee in 1972. Kids will love 'atmufere' created by Hoosier poet

Adults who enjoy reading books to a small child that have cadence and a particular rhythm will be drawn to "When the Frost Is on the Punkin" by James Whitcomb Riley.

Publisher David R. Godine has reissued Riley's classic poem to commemorate the 75th anniversary of the death of Indiana's noted poet. The illustrated book is for children 3 to 8.

Beloved by generations of children, "When the Frost Is on the Punkin" is an exuberant ode to fall on the farm. Its bouncy Hoosier dialect makes it fun to listen to and read aloud. Exclaiming that "They's something kind o'harty-like about the atmufere," Riley celebrates the crisp air of an autumn dawn and the sights and sounds of the harvest season.

Children will identify with the poem's main character, a curious child who revels in the beauty of an October day.

Books

The poem is written in the dialect of the rural folk of Indiana in the last century. Cambridge, Mass.-based artist Glenn Lang has illustrated it with a colorful picture-narrative, done in gouache watercolor.

A character reminiscent of both P.T. Barnum and Mark Twain, James Whitcomb Riley was an authentic American phenomenon. Born in 1849 in Greenfield, Ind., and a longtime resident of Indianapolis, Riley was hailed as "the Hoosier Poet."

He began his career as a roving minstrel and gypsy sign painter with a traveling patent medicine show, publishing poems occasionally in Indiana newspapers.

In 1879, the Indianapolis Journal launched Riley's writing career when it hired him to write weekly poems and prose sketches. His poems, often in the dialect of plain Midwestern farmers, soon caught on, and Riley's popularity soared.

Inspired by Charles Dickens, Riley returned to the stage, reading his own works. He toured the United States repeatedly, giving dramatic presentations of his work in local theaters and at civic and memorial events, much as Dickens had done. He quickly gained a reputation as an actor and entertainer.

At the height of his career, the Hoosier Poet corresponded with literary figures of his day, like Henry Wadsworth Longfellow, and read his poems to audiences across the country.

In 1911, the state of Indiana designated Oct. 7, his birthday, as Riley Day, to be observed across the state. Riley died in 1916.

Originally published in 1882 in the Indianapolis Journal, "When the Frost Is on the Punkin" became one of Riley's "most favored recitations."

The 32-page book is 8-3/4 inches x 11 inches with 14 full-color illustrations. It retails for $15.95, from David R. Godine, Publisher, Inc., Horticultural Hall, 300 Massachusetts Ave., Boston, Mass. 02115.

Vienna: Even the trash plant is a work of art

By Alex Suczek
Special Writer

In contemporary Europe, there is a new candidate for "City of Light." It may come as a surprise to many people, however. Too far East to be in the main stream of western European travel and business, impoverished by two world wars, deprived of most of the empire it once ruled, Vienna has had staggering handicaps to overcome. But a visit there a few weeks ago, and a chance to compare Vienna with other major cities in Europe, proved to be a revealing, even dazzling experience.

While postwar Germany became the industrial powerhouse of Europe, France strove to fulfill DeGaulle's sense of "grandeur," and England adapted gracefully to a non-empire status. Meanwhile, Vienna struggled for many years with its neutral balancing act between East and West, seeking ways to develop its economy as a small, economically frail competitor in international markets.

Perhaps all those problems really were an advantage. Vienna today is a sparkling, lively city. Its streets are clean and safe, alive with busy, prosperous-looking people. The shops are filled with gorgeous merchandise. The services, arts and entertainment are high quality and satisfying. The food is scrumptious. And perhaps because of the economic difficulties that Austria faced in its years of recovery from World War II and its enforced separation from the West by its treaty with the Soviet Union, the treasures of the city's architecture and layout remained locked in amber, and were restored in their traditional forms.

The drastic changes of redevelopment and modern transportation systems did not alter the gracious and beautiful appearance of the Vienna that reached its peak of glory more than a century ago. Not until recently, that is, and not until the movement in many industrial countries to tear down and build anew had lost its momentum. The modernization that has taken place, in fact, is hidden in Vienna's infrastructure, leaving this elegantly beautiful city in its full historic glory. Truly a city of light.

Not that Vienna is behind the times. It has an efficient modern subway system completed in the past decade. The central old city, now closed to traffic, is an elegant pedestrian mall. And there is a city-wide recycling program that could be a model for the world. Curbside trash containers at every corner in serene, tree-shaded residential areas receive sorted trash, neatly and conveniently. And streets throughout the city and its environs are immaculately clean.

Moreover, Vienna has recently built a trash burning power plant that should be a role model for Detroit's troubled facility. In addition to producing heat and electricity that may one day recoup the cost, the plant is fully non-polluting and efficiently disposes of previously troublesome wastes that no longer had a place to go. A large bulge on the chimney contains the scrubbing facility that removes whatever last pollutants remain in the exhaust gases. The white clouds streaming from the top of the stack are steam alone.

The incinerator's crowning glory, however, is a touch that may be uniquely characteristic of a people aware of their special values and that they have to try harder to preserve them. When the government built the incinerator, it also commissioned an artist to create a design for the exterior. It stands today as an eye-catching, colorful sculpture, so aesthetically pleasing that it is becoming a tourist attraction.

Does Austria have any problems, then? Certainly. In the course of a visit with this little country's astute and gentlemanly Chancellor (equivalent to our president) Franz Vranitzky, the troublesome problems of unemployed refugees, revolutionary disturbances in neighboring Yugoslavia, and political criticism of the chancellor for his recent visit to the United States where he hobnobbed with celebrities, came into focus.

Chancellor Vranitzky, who visited Grosse Pointe in the '70s, looks ahead eagerly to stronger ties and more interchange with the United States. On his visits here, he explained, he concentrates each time on a specific part of the country in an effort to know and understand us better, region by region.

Judging by the glittering, bustling and apparently very prosperous life in his capital city, however, it might be worthwhile for America to know Vienna better and figure out just how they do it. Our impression on this visit was that Vienna now may well be the world's most delightful, enjoyable and civilized town.

Enterprise crew flies off at warp speed in 'Star Trek VI' film voyages since Captain Kirk took the helm but the enthusiasm never lags in what they say is their last adventure.

During a trademark moment of comradely bonding, Spock (Leonard Nimoy) asks Capt. James T. Kirk (William Shatner), "Could it be that we've grown so old and so inflexible that we have outlived our usefulness?" Later on, Chekov (Walter Koenig) says simply, "So this is goodbye."

"Star Trek VI," directed by Nicolas Meyer, is as lively a tale as any Trekkie might want. Meyer, an avowed Trekkie himself, was involved with the two best episodes in the Star Trek film series — he directed the action-packed "Star Trek II, The Wrath of Khan" and he co-wrote the script for "Star Trek IV, The Voyage Home."

Although "Star Trek VI" is a fast-moving tale with a number of plot twists, it never loses its central theme — building a bridge between the Star Trek of Kirk and Spock and TV's current "Star Trek: The Next Generation."

The "Star Trek VI" Vulcan and human heroes struggle to make peace with their old intergalactic nemesis, the Klingons. A mining disaster has poisoned the Klingons' air supply, forcing them to scale down their military force and patch up the ozone.

As a gesture of good will Capt. Kirk and his crew offer to help. Both sides feel the war has been going on too long and agree to discuss a way to peacefully end their long-time differences.

It backfires, though, when mysterious space invaders assassinate the Klingon chancellor and the Klingons accuse the Enterprise of launching the attack. Captain Kirk and his crew vow to find the real culprits before the peace conference.

Following a long-standing tradition of allegorically commenting on current issues, the collapse of the former "evil empire" mirrors recent events in the Soviet Union.

Also following tradition are the colorful special effects, the most dazzling of which is the attack on the Klingons. But as in past adventures, the film is more concerned with relationships, both among the crew members and the audience.

The film ends on a note of doubt, with Kirk writing in his log: "I never trusted the Klingons and I never will. How on earth can history get past people like me?"

Like the other films, humor is a main ingredient. "Once again we have saved the world as we knew it," says Captain Kirk at the conclusion of the last adventure. "And the good news is they are not going to press charges," says Bones.

In addition to the regular, interesting characters are brought to life by Christopher Plummer, who plays a Shakespeare-quoting Klingon, and Kim Cattral as Spock's protegee.

And so a fond farewell to the Star Trek crew and the Enterprise. We'll miss those visions of silver ships in the starlit sky, the adventures, the sly references to world problems, but most of all, we'll miss the characters.

"Star Trek VI" has added one more fanciful chapter for devotees to remember and more than upholds the tradition.

Painters 'fool the eye' with special techniques

By Donna Walker
Staff Writer

Forget what your parents told you. It's OK to fool people, at least when it comes to decorating your home.

With some paint and glaze, you can trick people into thinking that an ordinary plaster wall is made out of some other material (marble, for instance). That type of work is called a "faux finish."

Or, you can make people think that an object — a pillar or ivy, for example — is attached to a wall. The object looks three-dimensional, but it isn't. It's painted on the wall. That painting technique is called "trompe l'oeil," a

French phrase meaning "fool the eye."

Two local firms that specialize in faux finishes are Mr. Paint, based in Grosse Pointe Farms, and Michael's Painting and Refinishing of Grosse Pointe City.

Mr. Paint, which also specializes in trompe l'oeil and sculpted wet plaster ceilings, was founded 14 years ago by Mark Pattyn, now 31, of the Farms. He's the business manager, responsible for scheduling projects and giving customers accurate and detailed estimates.

His brother, Mike Pattyn, 37, also of the Farms, is the artistic director and studied faux finishing and trompe l'oeil techniques at a school in New York for a year. He oversees the firm's painters and is at a job site from start to finish.

The Pattyns work mostly in the Grosse Pointes, and have painted many of the larger homes along Lakeshore. The majority of their jobs involve residential properties, although they have done some commercial work, they said.

"We do a lot of straight painting, but we're getting more and more people asking for faux finishes and trompe l'oeil. We also do sculpted (wet plaster) ceilings," Mark Pattyn said.

In the sunroom of one Lakeshore home, they painted an ivy vine and an engaged pilaster on a plain plaster wall. At first glance, as one walks into the room, the ivy looks real.

Other memorable jobs, they said, have included painting the solar system on a child's bedroom ceiling (using glow-in-the-dark paint for stars), painting a pool table so that it appeared to be made of marble, and refinishing a porch railing so that it matched the customer's granite desk.

The Pattyns mix their own colors before starting work at a job site and can match almost any sample a customer gives them.

"If we can have a throw cushion or a piece of wallpaper or anything like that, we can match the color," Mark Pattyn said. "We once picked the outside color of a house from a box

Tax benefits when selling a home

These are typical of questions asked by taxpayers and are presented as a public service of the Grosse Pointe News and the IRS.

Q. I understand that, if individuals 55 or older sell their main home, they may be eligible for a tax benefit. If this is true, how does it work and are there any requirements to be eligible for this treatment?

A. You can choose to exclude from your income up to $125,000 of gain on the sale of your main home ($62,500 if you are married at the time of the sale and file a separate return) if you meet certain requirements:

- You must be 55 or older on the date of the sale.
- You must have owned and lived in your main home for at least three years out of the five-year period ending on the date of the sale.

• Neither you nor your spouse has excluded gain on the sale of a home since July 26, 1978.

Q. If I sell my old main home at a gain, and then buy a more expensive main home, what is my tax liability for the gain?

A. The tax on the gain is postponed, not forgiven, if you buy and live in a new home within two years before or two years after the sale of the old home and the cost of the new home is at least as much as the adjusted sales price of the old home. Any gain that is not taxed in the year you sell your old home is subtracted from the basis of your new home.

This gives you a lower basis in the new home. Generally, if you sell the new home in a later tax year and again replace it, you can continue to postpone tax on your gain.

Example:

You sold your main home in 1990 for $50,000 and had a $5,000 gain. Within two years you bought another home for $60,000. The $5,000 gain will not be taxed in 1990 (the year of the sale), but you must subtract it from the $60,000. This makes the basis of your new home $55,000. If you later sell the new home for $66,000, and do not buy and live in a replacement home within the required time, you will be subject to tax on the $11,000 gain ($66,000 minus $55,000) in the year of sale.

Laramie provides a sweeping view

Broad panoramic views a hallmark of the Laramie.

This informal ranch style home, with more window than wall space along the mid level of its back side, makes it easy to appreciate every nuance of the changing seasons. Building on a country site will, of course, offer the best possible vistas.

At the apex of this flying wing-shaped home, spreading out opposite the vaulted double entryway, is a spacious sunken living room with a wet bar. The room is flooded with natural light and crowned by a masonry fireplace.

Low planters are all that separate the living room from the broad entryway and dining room, and only waist-high counters divide the dining room from the large chef's kitchen. This openness makes for easy conversation and movement, giving a relaxed informal feel to the family living area. A row of stools placed on either the kitchen or dining room side of the kitchen counter turns it into a snack bar and further unifies the rooms.

Two or three chefs can combine talents in this large kitchen with its cutting block island and pantry. The den could just as easily be a private office, studio, or family computer room and study, not to mention a guest room or another bedroom for a growing family.

The large garage accommodates three small cars, a car and a truck, or even a small boat. Tool storage is neatly contained in the shop area, and a utility room is equally convenient to the kitchen and bedrooms.

Double vanities provide plenty of space to spread out in the master bath and the bathroom serving the other two bedrooms. High gabled windows brighten both the master bath and the full bath at the opposite end of the house. The master suite has an extra closet for storage space, in addition to the large walk-in closet.

For a study kit of the LARAMIE (208-20), send $7.50 to Today's Home, P.O. Box 2832-T Eugene, Ore. 97402. (Be sure to specify plan name and number when ordering.)

Paint

of Pepperidge Farm cookies."

He said that Mr. Paint always has steady work, even though the company doesn't advertise. It gets its customers by word of mouth, he said.

Service is what makes his company special, Mike Pattyn said. Mr. Paint does only one job at a time, but the assignments go relatively quickly because there are usually 13 painters working on each one.

Mr. Paint painters try to keep a low profile. They work around the customer's schedule, usually starting about 9 a.m. and leaving about 5 p.m.

The Pattyns run a tight ship. Their painters are not allowed to bring radios to the job site and must follow a dress code which includes "no taking your shirt off" — even when it's 90 degrees outside. The painters must also be on time and remove their shoes when entering a customer's house to avoid tracking dirt on the carpets.

"I tell all the guys that I think this is the secret to our success," Mark Pattyn said. "Bad news travels faster than good news, so let's give customers the best service that we can."

Michael Meda has been in the painting business for about 16 years.

He said he started out doing regular house painting jobs. Then one day about 10 years ago, a customer asked him if he could marbelize a room three months from then.

Meda said yes.

"Actually, I didn't know anything about faux finishes, but I figured I could learn," he said.

Soon after, Meda went to get a haircut wearing his work clothes. The barber had never seen Meda in painting clothes before, and asked if he knew how to do faux finishes.

Meda explained the pickle he was in, and the barber said not to worry, because he used to be a painter in Italy and could teach Meda how to create faux finishes. Meda learned enough in three months to keep the promise he made to his customer.

He went on to study painting techniques at schools in New York and San Francisco, he said.

In addition to marble, he has painted surfaces (including walls, woodwork, cabinets and furniture) to look like leather, wood grain and metal. He also does gold and silver leaf on ceiling and wall trims, he said.

Meda said he usually uses seven to 10 painters on a job and that they must follow certain rules.

"They have to be courteous to the customer, maintain cleanliness in the homes, be prompt and on time, and have good communication with the customer," Meda said.

Also, he said his painters must wear clean painter's pants and a clean white shirt, and they can't listen to radios or smoke at a job site.

Like the Pattyns, Meda mixes his colors before starting a project. He gives clients an 18-by-24-inch sample board of each color that will be used.

Most paint stores sell faux finishing kits. Meda and the Pattyns said that there are several steps to creating faux finishes.

For a marble finish, one to two coats of primer are applied to the painting surface. Sometimes, additional coats of primer may have to be applied.

Next, two to three coats of base paint are applied, followed by about two coats of glaze. Before the glaze dries, a feather or brush is drawn across the surface in uneven horizontal and vertical lines to create a "veining" effect. Then the surface is sealed with varnish.

Mark Pattyn said most libraries and book stores have how-to books on how to create faux finishes and trompe l'oeil for the do-it-yourselfer.

Builders to forecast home building outlook

What the nation's home building industry can expect in 1992 will be predicted at a seminar sponsored by the Builders Association of Southeastern Michigan at 11 a.m. on Thursday, Jan. 9 at the Northfield Hilton in Troy.

Dave Seiders, chief economist of the National Association of Home Builders, will discuss the various economic factors expected to affect the industry in 1992, and offer suggestions for preparing businesses to capitalize on the projected economy.

Tabletop exhibits of a broad range of building products will be on display throughout the seminar.

A cash bar will be open from 11 a.m. until noon. The seminar will continue until 2 p.m. Registration fees, including lunch, are $25 for BASM associates, and $40 for non-members. BASM builders and Apartment Association of Michigan members may attend at no charge.

The Northfield Hilton is located at 5500 Crooks Road (at I-75). For more information, call 737-4477.

Plan tree-planting with booklet

Now is the time to plan ahead for your spring tree-planting project, and a free booklet is available from The National Arbor Day Foundation to assist.

The booklet, called "Conservation Trees," includes these sections:

- How to use windbreaks and shade trees to save energy in your home
- How to attract songbirds to your yard
- How to save trees during construction
- How to save topsoil and help farm profits with shelter-

belts

- The right way to plant trees
- The right way to prune trees

The National Arbor Day Foundation's "Conservation Trees" program encourages Americans to plant and manage trees to conserve soil, energy, water, wildlife, and the atmosphere.

To order the booklet at no charge, send your name and address to: Conservation Trees, The National Arbor Day Foundation, Nebraska City, Neb. 68410.

101 PRAYERS

PRAYER TO THE HOLY SPIRIT

Holy Spirit, you who make me see everything and who shows me the way to reach my ideal. You, who give me the Divine Gift to forgive and forget the wrong that is done to me and you who are in all instances of my life with me. I, in this short dialogue want to thank you for everything and confirm once more that I never want to be separated from you no matter how great the material desires may be. I want to be with you and my loved ones in your perpetual glory. Amen.

Thank you for your love towards me and my loved ones. Pray this prayer three consecutive days without asking your wish, after third day your wish will be granted, no matter how difficult it may be. Then promise to publish this prayer as soon as your favor has been granted. Thank you for favors received. G.A.W.

SPAY or NEUTER
YOUR PET TODAY!

An altered pet is a healthier and happier companion. Also, it spares you the grief and pain of having puppies and kittens destroyed when no homes can be found. Countless numbers of sweet, innocent little ones are euthanized every day in shelters across the country because a pet wasn't spayed or neutered. If we cut down on the numbers of unwanted litters being born, we will also cut down on the number of abandoned, lost and unwanted animals to destroy.
