

Students, churches brown-bag it for the homeless

By John Minnis
Assistant Editor

North sophomore Chad Cherf could have been having fun with friends. So could his classmates Pat Cunningham and Scott Holcomb and junior Todd Teetaert and his dad, assistant principal Tom Teetaert.

Instead, the North students and administrator were bagging lunches for the homeless last week at the Calvary Center at Gateshead and Mack in nearby Detroit.

"For all the world's given me," Cherf said, "it's good to give the world something back."

Tom Teetaert said the Calvary Center needed help, and North activities director Karen Clein sent a list around for volunteers to sign up. North students came to the rescue and committed themselves to bagging lunches for the homeless for two weeks.

"It's nice for them to give back to those less fortunate," said the assistant principal as he deftly smeared peanut butter on bread slices and his students gobbled on copious amounts of jelly in an assembly-line process. "It's good to give back, rather than just take."

Since Nov. 24, Calvary Center has been housing and feeding 60 of Detroit's homeless every day, seven days a week. Volunteers, such as the North students and their peers at Harper Woods High School and area churches, have been lending a hand.

The homeless program at Calvary is sponsored by Lutheran Social Services through the Hospitality Interfaith Ministries — the group that set up the rotation program where churches housed homeless people for a week.

Nancy Manser of Lutheran Social Services in Michigan said the Calvary program is designed to accommodate the homeless that the rotation program is unable to handle.

Every afternoon, Calvary sends a bus and van down to the Cass Corridor and picks up 50 men and 10 women. They are brought back to the center near Mack and Moross, given a warm meal, a cold snack in the evening and a warm, dry mattress and sheets on which to sleep.

The women have their own room which they share and where they can leave their bags of possessions and clothing. The men bunk on mattresses spread out on the floor of the large senior center at Calvary.

"It's really sad," said one volunteer. "They bring with them all they have in the world."

At 6 a.m., the homeless guests are given a breakfast and a brown-bag lunch to take with them. They are then transported back downtown, where they will be picked up again in the evening.

The homeless must register and be screened at the Interfaith Drop-In Center on Cass to be eligible for the Calvary program.

North, South students call for smoking ban in schools

By John Minnis
Assistant Editor

Butt out.

That's the message from student leaders at Grosse Pointe North and South high schools who are petitioning for a statewide ban on smoking in all public and private schools.

"We don't want to infringe on anyone's rights," said Scott Wilcox, a member of the North Student Association and news editor of the school paper, the North Pointe. "But we feel this is necessary to protect the rights of everyone."

Currently, faculty, administrators and other adult employees at some Grosse Pointe schools are allowed to smoke in designated areas, while students, even those who are 18-year-old adults, are not permitted to smoke on school property.

The leaders announced their petition drive aimed at seeking state legislation at a press conference Tuesday at North attended by the major Detroit print and broadcast media.

They also informed the school board of their intentions at Monday night's board meeting.

Other student leaders involved in the petition drive launched last week are Eric Rentenbach, South Student Association president; Andrew Walter, South Student Association vice president; and Laurie Kolinski, North Student Association president.

While nearly everyone agrees that smoking should be forbidden in the schools, the main obstacle to a complete ban appears to be school employee labor contracts that prevent schools from becoming smoke-free as long as a single smoker works in the building.

Tom Whall, president of the teachers' union, said the contract does not call for designated smoking areas per se. Rather, the contract's smoking policy (paragraph 399) reads: "At such time that all employees in a building are non-smokers, the building shall be declared a smoke-free building. New hires or teachers transferring into a smoke-free building must honor the smoke-free environment."

"It's a negotiable item," he said, adding that he's concerned when the majority (non-smokers) try to impose their will on the minority (smokers). He said the number of smokers is rapidly declining.

School office workers, custodians and cafeteria workers and support personnel are also represented by unions.

The student leaders presented the board with legal precedents where other districts have successfully voided contract provisions and unilaterally imposed no-smoking bans in all their schools.

"I don't think you will find a board member who does not support you," school board president Carol Marr told the students.

She said some Pointe schools have voluntarily imposed a complete smoking ban. Once a school becomes a smoke-free environment, it stays that way, she said.

The students did their homework, citing legal precedents and surgeon general reports on the dangers of passive smoke inhalation. They also pointed out that employee smoking is costly to employers in lost work time and increased health insurance costs.

"Smoking costs this board and taxpayers a great amount of money," Wilcox said.

The students hope to collect enough signatures to convince state lawmakers to introduce legislation calling for a statewide smoking ban in all public and private schools, grades K through 12.

State Rep. William R. Bryant Jr., R-Grosse Pointe Farms, said he supports the students' efforts and is working on a bill that would ban all smoking in schools. He stopped short, however, of barring smoking on school grounds. He said a bill banning smoking in buildings would have a better chance of getting through the Legislature.

He said chances of getting a no-smoking bill passed by the House and Senate are "pretty good."

State Sen. John Kelly, D-Grosse Pointe Woods, is opposed to a bill that targets a specific minority group — teachers who smoke.

"We in government should keep a check on the excesses of the majority," he said. "When we go into individual offices, homes and lives, that's going too far."

He said there has been discrimination already against smokers in many areas.

Kelly was critical of the way in which the student leaders are going about seeking legislation. He said they should have first brought the matter to the school board, and the school board should have been the one requesting a law.

The students should also have gone to the teachers' union, Kelly said.

The students' pleas fell on receptive ears with the board and the audience at Monday night's meeting.

Board treasurer Carl Anderson said he is all in favor of a smoke-free environment. Vice president Gloria Konsler asked the students what the board can do.

Wilcox suggested a letter to Lansing in support of their cause. Rentenbach was more blunt: He asked that the board renegotiate the labor contracts to eliminate the pro-smoking provisions.

One resident called on the school board to unilaterally ban smoking in all schools, regardless of the labor contracts, and then take the heat and defend the smoking-ban in court, if necessary.

Superintendent Edward Shine said he will have the district's attorneys look into the contract language and the precedents cited by the students.

Marr asked the students if a smoking ban for adults would have an impact on the number of students who smoke at school.

Kolinski said that, in her experience, the attitude of 18-year-old students is that if the

G. Alden Smith can look out his living room window to his front yard in Grosse Pointe City and see his sculpture of wood, stone and cast bronze, which he has titled "Nuclear Family." Like its creator, it whispers rather than shouts its presence.

His presence, however, is felt throughout the area, from his sculptures that enhance the landscapes of college campuses and private buildings and a shopping mall to the untold number of students he has influenced during his decades-long tenure as art professor at Wayne State University.

His life's work can't be measured solely by the number of works in his house or in private collections or in the awards he has received. It's also in his vision of art that he's been able to transmit to patrons as well as students.

Smith was destined to be an artist. "I often thought about why people end up doing certain kinds of things, that certain things are predestined," he said. "You do things the way your parents do."

Born in Glencoe, Ill., a suburb of Chicago, to a father who was a civil engineer and a mother who was a painter, Smith's introduction to art came early. His father, who studied under Frank Lloyd Wright, solved engineering problems at the Art Institute of Chicago and helped build part of Grant Park in Chicago.

A house fire believed to have been started by a smoldering cigarette took the life of a 31-year-old Park woman Feb. 6.

Jayne Rizzo was pronounced dead at Bon Secours Hospital at 4:17 a.m. The Wayne County medical examiner determined the cause of death as smoke inhalation.

Her 12-year-old daughter, who became confused in the heavy smoke, had locked herself in a basement room of the home in the 1400 block of Somerset near Mack. Farms paramedics treated her at the scene and she was taken to St. John Hospital in stable condition, police said.

At 3:15 a.m., a Park police officer on patrol was flagged down by a resident who reported the fire. Officers found intense flames and smoke in the first-floor flat of the home. A second alarm was issued and Grosse Pointe City firefighters responded.

While firefighters extinguished the blaze, others searched the house and found the girl in the basement. Her mother was found in a bedroom. Efforts to revive her were unsuccessful.

Park and Michigan State Police arson investigators determined that a smoldering fire, probably caused by a cigarette, began in a couch.

Park police Lt. David Hiller said the girl's bedroom was in the rear of the home. Upon discovering the fire, she crawled to the basement. She told police that she learned at school to crawl to safety during a fire.

South group seeks mementoes, info

Preserving the past isn't easy when part of it is missing.

That's one of the problems facing members of the Grosse Pointe South Preservation Committee as they tackle the task of restoring Cleminson Hall, the school's first library, to its original design.

Members of the committee are looking for any information about the circular staircase that was dismantled in 1976 or 1977 or the three chandeliers that were removed and replaced with fluorescent lighting fixtures. These items disappeared when one end of the library was closed off and used to house the school bookstore on the first floor and a workroom on what was once the library's balcony level.

"We are hoping someone may have rescued one or more of the items or at least may know what happened to them," said Cynthia Warner, co-chair of the preservation committee.

In addition, committee members are searching for yearbooks before 1950, old editions of the Tower newspaper, and old photographs that show the high school's rooms in their original state. These items will be placed in some of the glass-front bookshelves in Cleminson Hall, which will be used partially as an alumni center when restoration is completed.

Anyone who has memorabilia to donate can send items to the Grosse Pointe South Preservation Committee, Grosse Pointe South High School, 11 Grosse Pointe Blvd., Grosse Pointe Farms 48236, or call Peggy Davis, 343-0807.

Parties change rules for March 17 presidential primary

By Donna Walker
Staff Writer

The state election board has been scrambling to get the word out about recent rule changes for the March 17 presidential primary.

Voters must still be registered by Feb. 18 in order to participate in the primary. However, they do not have to state their political party preference until the day of the election, and then only if they want to vote on the Democratic ballot.

Most elections in Michigan are open, but the upcoming primary was intended to be closed.

In a closed election, voters must officially file their political party preference (Democratic, Republican, or "no party preference") with their city clerk. Each voter then receives a ballot for the party of his choice. If the voter states "no party preference" he does not receive a ballot.

The voter's party preference is written next to his name on voter registration rolls and is public information.

In an open primary, voters do not file party preferences. Thus, the public can't find out if a person is a Democrat or a Republican or anything else but a registered voter by looking at voter registration rolls.

In 1988, the state Legislature passed a law making all presidential primaries in Michigan closed.

Under the state law, registered voters must file their party preferences 30 days before a presidential primary to participate in it. The deadline for filing party preferences was Feb. 18, but the state Democratic and Republican committees have changed that.

On Dec. 7, the Democratic State Central Committee voted for same-day party declaration. Thus, registered voters can file their Democratic Party preference on the day of the primary, or when they request absentee ballots, as long as they have not previously filed as Republicans for this primary.

Voters who have previously filed "no party preference" may file as Democrats.

On Monday, the Michigan Republican State Committee went a step further than the Democratic committee. It voted to make the primary open.

Any registered voter who wants to cast a Republican ballot in the primary may do so, even if he has filed a preference for the Democratic party.

So now, the primary is half open and half closed, and the Feb. 18 deadline no longer applies to the filing of party preference, although it still applies to voter registration.

Brad Whitman, director of information and voter registration for the Michigan State Election Board, said, "Michigan has more election officials than anywhere else in the country. We have 1,514 city and township clerks who run elections and when we have last-minute changes like this, it's difficult to get the word out. But we've done pretty well and I think we've reached everyone we needed to reach."

This is Michigan's first presidential primary since 1980. In 1984 and 1988, presidential candidates in Michigan were chosen by Republican and Democratic caucuses, which limited citizens' involvement.

From 1937 to 1988, the state had open presidential primaries. When the state Legislature voted to switch back from a presidential caucus system to a primary system, it decided to make the primaries closed, rather than open, because closed primaries are the only kind recognized by the Democratic National Committee.

The committee requires that presidential delegates be selected only by Democratic caucuses or closed primaries to prevent cross-over voters from other parties choosing the Democrats' presidential candidate.

Steve Gools, a spokesman for the Michigan Democratic State Central Committee, said this rule stems from the 1972 presidential election. George Wallace won the open Michigan Democratic primary, even though most state Democrats wanted "anyone but Wallace," Gools said.

"It is believed that he won through an avalanche of cross-over voters from the Republican Party," Gools said. "Why did the state Democratic party decide to extend the party-preference filing deadline to the day of the election?"

Gools said, "Our concern from the outset has been that there hasn't been a sufficient education campaign about the primary. We sensed that many voters would not start thinking about the primary until one or two weeks before the election, when the candidates start campaigning in Michigan."

By then, it would have been too late for those voters to file their party preferences.

"We wanted to make sure these voters were not excluded from the primary," he said.

Why did the Michigan Republican State Committee decide to make the primary open on its end?

Bryan Flood, press secretary for the committee, said, "Michigan enjoys a tradition of electoral independence. We don't think voters like having their party affiliations made public information. It's a real problem for people who are not supposed to be affiliated with any party."

Included among those people are non-partisan elected officials and journalists, he said.

As for the Democrats' claim that cross-over voters would sabotage their chances of choosing a winning presidential candidate in an open primary, Flood said, "We've always said that the odds of that happening on a large scale are not very good. We have very competitive primaries."

Also, if anyone tried promoting cross-over voting on a large scale, it would be difficult to keep it a secret, he said. Once the secret got out, Flood said, it would damage the party of the person promoting cross-over voting.

Both the Republicans and the Democrats would have preferred to change the presidential primary rules through legislation. However, the Republicans and the Democrats in the state Legislature could not agree, so they took it upon themselves to change their own party rules regarding the primary.

On Jan. 15, state Attorney General Frank Kelly said that political party rules supersede state election rules.

So, to re-cap: To vote in the March 17 presidential primary, you must be a registered voter. The last day to register before the primary is Feb. 18.

If you want to vote on the Democratic ballot, you must declare that the Democratic party is your party of preference. However, you don't have to do so by Feb. 18. You can file your preference when you go to vote.

Be sure to tell your city clerk that the Democratic party is your party of preference when requesting an absentee ballot, so that he or she knows which ballot to send you.

If you have already filed as a Republican, you can't vote on the Democratic ticket in the primary.

If you want to vote on the Republican ticket, the primary will be just like any other open election. Your party of preference will not be recorded anywhere. However, you will be asked if you want a Republican or Democratic ballot.

Want to vote Republican on an absentee ballot? Ask your city clerk to mail you an absentee ballot. If you do not want your party preference to become public information, be sure to say so.

Voters can only select candidates from the Democratic and Republican parties in the presidential primary.

According to state election law, a political party's presidential candidate must have received at least 5 percent of the total votes cast nationwide in the last presidential election in order for that party to participate in an upcoming primary.

The Democratic and Republican parties are the only political parties that meet that requirement.

He was generally considered to be a candidate by the national media and he appropriately filed an affidavit with the secretary of state saying he wanted to run in the primary.

"A review of the law clearly shows — and unfortunately, I may add — that David Duke has the opportunity to run in the primary," said Chris DeWitt, a spokesman for Kelly's office. "Several months ago he was the Republican nominee for the governorship of the state of Louisiana. When the Republicans say they don't consider him to be a Republican, they're forgetting that."

DeWitt said it would have been virtually impossible to keep Duke off the ballot, because he could have challenged the decision successfully in court, as LaRouche has.

The secretary of state did not think that LaRouche met the election criteria and was going to leave him off the ballot. LaRouche challenged the decision in court "and so far he's been successful in getting on the ballot," DeWitt said.

For more information about the primary, call your city clerk.

Schools offer programs for parents

As partners with parents, the Grosse Pointe Public Schools is offering six programs on raising children. There is no charge for most of the programs.

For parents of pre-kindergarten-2 kids, "Peaceful Parenting" will be offered Tuesday, Feb. 18, and "Nurturing Children in a Changing World" will be on Tuesday, March 24. Both classes will be from 7 to 9 p.m. in the Ferry school gym and will be presented by Wise Mothers Inc.

For parents of third- through fifth-graders, "Raising Young Children in the '90s" will be offered in three different schools libraries on various Mondays from 7:30 to 9 p.m.

Monteith will host the program for Kerby, Monteith and Richard parents on March 2. Maire will offer the program March 9 for Defer, Maire and Trombly parents. Mason, Ferry and Poupard parents can attend the class at Mason on Feb. 24 and March 16.

"Raising Children in the '90s" is presented by Prevention+.

Fifth- through eighth-grade parents can attend "How to Keep Being a Parent When Your Child Stops Being a Child" in the Brownell library from 7:30 to 9 p.m. on the following Wednesdays - March 18 and 25 and April 1 and 8. The program is presented by Cooper and McCoy Inc.

"Growing Parents, Growing Kids" is another program for parents of fifth- through eighth-graders. It will be offered at Harper Woods High School, 20225 Beaconsfield, from 7 to 9 p.m. on the following Wednesdays - April 30 and May 7, 14, 21 and 28.

For parents of eighth- through 10th-graders, "Raising

Your Children in the '90s" will be presented in South High School's Cleminson Hall from 7:30 to 9 p.m. on two Thursdays - April 2 and 9.

For all parents, "Talking with Your Kids About Alcohol" will be presented at Brownell school, Room B-6, from 7 to 9:30 p.m. on two Tuesdays - Feb. 18 and 25. This is a Department of Community Education program, and there is a $25 fee for one or both parents.

The program will be presented by Susan Pearce, student assistance coordinator for the schools. For more information on this program, call the community education office at 343-2178.

Student Spotlight

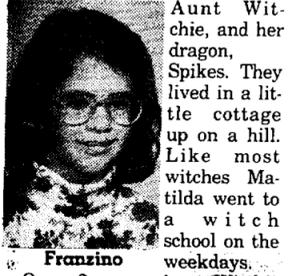

Jean Franzino

Each week in this column, we will focus on the work of a student. It can be a poem, a drawing, a short story, a picture of a scientific experiment or a wood-working project, a book review.

The following story was written by Jean Franzino, who is in the third grade at Richard Elementary School. She is the daughter of Robert and Barbara Franzino of the Farms.

Not a Regular Witch

Once upon a time there was a little witch named Matilda. Matilda lived with her aunt, Aunt Witchie, and her dragon, Spikes. They lived in a little cottage up on a hill. Like most witches Matilda went to a witch school on the weekdays.

One afternoon Aunt Witchie ordered Matilda to go catch some toads for the stew they were going to have for supper that night. Matilda didn't really like all the witchie things they had to eat. Really, Matilda didn't like being a witch. She decided she would not allow Aunt Witchie to make her eat all those horrible, yucky foods. Matilda ran down the hill humming a little tune. She couldn't do that while Aunt Witchie was around. She would say it was nonsense to be cheerful and hum tunes. Most witches are only happy if they are sad and gloomy and mean. On the way to the pond she stopped to eat berries. She needed something to eat so when supper came she wouldn't be hungry and have to eat her horrible dinner. Then she got some toads from the pond. She put them in her pockets, but they keep jumping out. Then Matilda would have to catch them again. It took a long time to get home.

"About time," Aunt Witchie snapped when Matilda got in.

"The toads kept jumping out of my pockets," explained Matilda.

"Its probably just a bunch of lies," grumbled Aunt Witchie. "Get me my cookbook. And NOW!!" Aunt Witchie hollered the words so loudly it sounded like thunder. Matilda stiffly walked over to the shelf. She got a book called "A Witches Best Cookbook" (which was filled with terrible things to eat) and brought it to Aunt Witchie. She snatched it out of Matilda's hands and began to flip the pages.

Then Matilda did her homework. Witch homework. All the time she was doing her homework (which was doing a worksheet on how to turn people into frogs) her mind kept wandering off to what it would be like to be like any normal kid. Matilda was sure she would like to be regular. But how? Aunt Witchie wanted Matilda to be a witch. And a witch only! She would never let her act normal. Matilda let out a sigh.

"Get up here and eat your supper," Aunt Witchie ordered. "I'm not hungry," replied Matilda.

"Oh all right, just starve yourself," said Aunt Witchie, "but tonight only!!"

"So far so good," Matilda mumbled under her breath. She had figured out a way to convince Aunt Witchie that being a person can be better than a witch. Aunt Witchie really didn't know how it was to be cheerful. She was used to always being grumpy and doing mean tricks. If Aunt Witchie was cheerful and normal, she would like it.

Then Matilda remembered a sign she had seen about a week ago. It was a dragon show, and for scheduled for tomorrow! Aunt Witchie would have fun and learn that normal people went to shows instead of turning others into frogs and things like that. Matilda went to sleep that night feeling excited. No longer would she and Aunt Witchie be the kind of witches that were mean.

The next day after breakfast Matilda brought Aunt Witchie and Spikes to the place where the show was to be held. Through the whole show Aunt Witchie was laughing, smiling and enjoying herself. When they got home Matilda fed Spikes and then she went over to Aunt Witchie.

"You liked the show, right?" Matilda asked.

"Yes," Aunt Witchie said slowly. "Then we could live like this forever!" she told Aunt Witchie.

"That is the type of thing normal people do instead of doing mean tricks or something."

And from that day on they didn't live like mean witches, but like normal people. They were still witches, but not regular witches. Nice ones, and really, they are much happier.

Psychological testing for learning disabled viewed

The Learning Disabilities Association of Grosse Pointe will present a program by Sue Pratt, of C.A.U.S.E. (Citizen's Alliance to Uphold Special Education) on "The Special Ed Evaluation - Understanding Psychological Testing." The program is scheduled for Tuesday, Feb 18, at 7:30 p.m. in the Brownell Middle School library.

One of the rules and procedures required by the special education laws is an initial psychological evaluation, to be followed by re-evaluations every three years. These tests are usually given and interpreted by the school psychologist, although parents also have a right to an outside evaluation.

The results of the special ed evaluation determine what, if any, special services a student is eligible to receive. For this reason, a thorough knowledge of the types of tests, the various subtests, and their significance is important for parents who want to be effective advocates for their children.

Pratt is one of only a few C.A.U.S.E. representatives with the expertise to teach parents on this subject. She is involved in a wide variety of state and national special ed organizations, including the Council for Exceptional Children and Michigan Society for Autistic Children. She is also past president of The Autism Society of America.

She will give an overview of the testing process, and explain the significance of the subtests within each test. The strengths and weaknesses of different tests will also be examined, and how they might be interpreted differently by different psychologists, making a difference in how the child is perceived in an educational setting. Parents are encouraged to bring psychological reports on their child if they have questions about them.

The program is not limited to an examination of learning disabilities, but looks at testing as it applies to any student who may or may not be eligible for special education services. LDA programs are open to the public at no charge. Refreshments will be served.

Geography bee

Eighth-grader Anne Sullivan won the school-level competition of the National Geography Bee for St. Paul Catholic School recently.

She will join winners from other schools in a written test to determine the up to 100 students eligible to compete in the state competition March 27.

The bee is sponsored by National Geographic WORLD and Amtrak and is designed to increase geographic knowledge among young people.

She is the daughter of Linda and Thomas Sullivan of Grosse Pointe.

Engler budget offers no end to arguments

Gov. John Engler's budget for next year already has started new debates about issues ranging from support for the schools to financing the arts.

In his statewide broadcast, Engler proposed a $7.9-billion budget, or 3 percent more than this year's, with a $131 million increase for education and $250 million more for social services.

The arts still get the back of the governor's hand, however. He now proposes that all state funding for the arts be lumped into one $30 million appropriation to be distributed by his hand-picked new state Council for the Arts and Cultural Affairs, as it might see fit.

Commerce Department Director Arthur Ellis said the administration would work with the Legislature to develop criteria for making the grants which the administration wants to focus on state support for artistic endeavor, whatever that might mean.

But even Republican legislators said there is little chance that Engler's program for support of the arts would be approved by the Legislature, which traditionally has played a key role, with the governor, in allocating funds for specific purposes.

The governor also proposed that the $400 million now used for school districts' Social Security payments be transferred to the school aid fund, which apparently would cost the out-of-formula districts such as the Grosse Pointes a total of about $120 million for the year beginning next Oct. 1.

In return, the governor said he would propose repeal of the controversial "Robin Hood" legislation that requires districts with high per-student support to share half of the revenue from their commercial and industrial assessment increases with poorer districts.

Actually, the tax-base-sharing law, already on appeal in the courts, does not have great effect in the Pointes because there has been little new commercial or industrial construction in recent years.

But the new allocation of Social Security funds apparently would end any recovery from the state of the FICA taxes the Grosse Pointe district and all other out-of-formula school districts are required to pay on their employees.

Under the FICA reallocation approved last year, the Grosse Pointe district lost about $1.8 million a year. If Engler's plan is approved, the Pointes would lose an estimated $1.2 million more, or a total of about $3 million, for taxes paid by the district on its employees.

As for the governor's proposed increase in social spending, the $150 million increase will apparently restore the 1990 level, according to a published report attributed to the Senate Fiscal Agency, but most of the funds will go to higher Medicaid health care cost for the poor.

With a budget deficit already indicated and state unemployment among the highest in the nation, a further squeeze on the services required by the needy and unfortunate could occur within the year — unless the long-awaited recovery finally arrives.

Like President Bush, who set a March 20 deadline for Congressional approval of his recent economic proposals, the governor also set a time limit of July 1 for the Legislature's budget decisions.

However, it is likely to be treated by the state's Democratic House just as the Democratic Congress is likely to treat Bush's request. Seen by Democrats in both Lansing and Washington as attempted political pressure by GOP chief executives, both deadlines probably will be ignored.

In both cases, however, compromises would be better solutions for the people.

A trial balloon on abortion?

When Gov. John Engler said he was considering a plan to deny additional state payments to welfare mothers who have more children, he started a new abortion issue in Michigan.

It promptly occurred to the Michigan Right to Life organization, which is strongly pro-Engler and anti-abortion, that the governor's proposed policy would penalize welfare women for having children and thus encourage them to have an

Primary next

With Tuesday's school millage vote now history, Grosse Pointers' next trip to the polls in this year of elections will be March 17 for the Michigan presidential primary.

Both political parties have abandoned the earlier requirement that voters register their party preferences 30 days prior to the election. But state law still requires people to be registered as voters by Tuesday, Feb. 18.

Under revised party rules, Republicans now will permit registered voters a completely open choice on election day regardless of any previous registration.

Democrats, however, will bar voters registered as Republicans and require registration of other applicants as Democrats at the time of voting.

The late party changes are expected to increase the statewide vote, assuming the majority of people expecting to vote are registered and get to the polls.

State election officials are drafting rules to prevent duplicated voting but differing party rules still threaten to make the primary voting a mess.

A view from the sidelines

by Wilbur Elston

Strolling through the University of Michigan law library the other day enroute to a public lecture, a couple of Grosse Pointers and I were surprised to find notices of more than a dozen student law organizations posted on the student bulletin board.

Among the organizations were the following:

Environmental Law Society, Health Law Society, Sports Law Society, International Law Society, Women Law Students Association, Native American Law Students, Hispanic Law Students, Black Law Students Alliance, Asian American Law Students Association, Arab American Law Society, Christian Law Students, Jewish Law Students Alliance and Lesbian Gay Bisexual Law Students Association.

We asked ourselves whether today's law students seek an identification in smaller groups, united by ethnic backgrounds or personal interests, because a huge university's law school has become too big and impersonal for many of them.

After our return from Ann Arbor, we reached a law student who as a member of the Sports Law Society offered a more practical and professional reason for his organization's existence.

His organization, he explained, is made up of students who invite knowledgeable abortion.

Barbara Listing, president of Michigan Right to Life, could be both right and wrong in opposing the governor's proposal.

She is right that the governor's proposal could prompt some welfare mothers to desire abortions — but she probably is wrong to believe many of them could afford to pay for abortions themselves.

But if the governor would propose lifting the ban on state financing of abortions for women on welfare, then Ms. Listing probably would be correct, although she would oppose such a change, too.

Unfortunately, nothing the governor said included any proposal to lift or even ease the state ban on Medicaid financing of abortions, a reversal we would favor.

It may be, of course, that the governor has been floating another trial balloon and now will step away from his own proposal — just as he did recently when protests arose after he reportedly leaned toward an increase in both gasoline and cigarette taxes.

However, the governor's reform talk already has had one beneficial effect. It has brought to light the fact that Michigan's 225,482 welfare families have an average of 1.84 children each, which is slightly less than the average of 1.99 children for each of the state's 1,287,484 families.

That comparison answers the argument that welfare mothers produce additional children chiefly to obtain the extra welfare payment for an additional child. In fact, as one woman said, it is foolish to think a $60 payment would be enough to finance the cost of the additional child for a month.

speakers to the campus and make other efforts to learn more about their common professional goal which is to become agents or counsel for professional sports figures.

For other student organizations which seem to have ethnic, religious or common interest reasons for their existence, perhaps there is another explanation, offered by writer William Murphy in another context in a New York Times book review:

"It was finally when we became convinced, during the last generation, that the frontiers have been shut down and old dreams discredited... that we have begun to look backward, as if to reassure ourselves that we matter and can now make a stand on our heritage from the ancient civilizations that nourished our forebears.

"No longer Americans, we are now Native Americans, African Americans, Italian Americans, Jewish Americans, unequal citizens in a commonwealth of tribal cultures."

If Murphy is correct, does that conviction lead to a more divisive America at a time when greater national unity still appears to be a worthwhile goal?

The question is worth asking although we confess we don't know the answer.

Architecture

To the Editor:
I am writing in response to your recent article (Nov. 7, 1991) "Misunderstood house is really architectural classic."

The article indicated that "the International Style was strongly influenced by the ideas of Frank Lloyd Wright..." Wright and the disciples of early, modern European architecture (the International Style) were alike only in that both styles virulently rejected the stodgy architecture of the turn of the century. Wright influenced the International School in that design/living solutions for the day called for radical new architecture.

The Williams house (which is a beautiful example of its genus) is a testament to the International School philosophy; i.e., the house is a machine for living, and the line between the house and its setting should be clearly defined.

Wright's philosophy of organic architecture called for the house to be of the hill, not on the hill. Peter Blake, in his work "The Master Builders," wrote "what the International Style men were building in Europe was, to Wright's way of thinking, another kind of box — stripped of neoclassical ornament, but still a box — that ended up being just another sort of straitjacket."

I enjoy receiving your paper once a week, and I have fond memories of the author's house. If I appear to be critical of the article, please forgive me. My only concern is that some people might get the impression that Wright was the inspiration for the International Style and made a substantial contribution to its evaluation.

Affair?

To the Editor:

I'm writing this letter to correct a bit of misinformation in the Grosse Pointe News that should not pass without comment. I'm referring to Nancy Parmenter's column concerning fiction (Feb. 5).

In promoting Third Coast Booksellers and a fictional (or some might say "fantasy") piece of literature, Ms. Parmenter states the book "is about a 14-year-old boy who has a consensual affair with his physics teacher."

Regardless of whether the fictional teacher is a man or woman, Ms. Parmenter is mistaken in the use of the word "consensual." A more objective observer might refer to said "affair" as an unequal/explorative relationship due to the obvious immaturity of a 14-year-old early adolescent. State law may refer to this type of relationship as statutory rape.

Coincidentally, two years ago I grieved the death of a wonderful young man. "Jimmy" was the son of two alcoholics. One was brutal. Surprisingly, and against all odds, his pathetic family of origin did not deter his inherent artistic abilities. He was naturally gifted and quite resourceful. Consequently, he managed to obtain a full scholarship to pursue a degree in art.

Sadly, in his quest to find success, unconditional love and acceptance, he became involved with an older lover. A teacher, in fact. Jimmy died of AIDS two years ago at the age of 19. He died alone.

Outraged

To the Editor:

I was outraged after reading Nancy Parmenter's article in last week's Grosse Pointe News. She stated she would buy a Mercedes or a Honda, but would boycott Chrysler.

What has Mercedes or Honda done for the Grosse Pointe area? There are

Olympian efforts

Yeah, yeah, yet another columnist's cheap attempt to make pithy observations on what's happening in Albertville. But who asked you — we only get these opportunities once every four years so like everyone else I've got to take my shot.

Let's open with the opening ceremonies. Imagine the organizer's face when the choreographer said:

"Picture this: Dr. Seuss-like creatures on stilts with balloons on their heads walking in a huge formation. People dressed in wild colors attached to bungee cords from a pedestal performing a ballet. And, for the piece de resistance (of course they'd say that, they're French, you know), mimes."

Dissected like that it sounds even cheesier than most football halftime programs and all the "Circuses of the Stars." But — with the exception of the mimes — it was an incredible show. And Jerry Lewis wasn't even mentioned.

That beautiful little girl singing the "Marseilles" — not belting it out, but singing it like any child off the streets would — was one of the most moving things I've seen at any Olympics.

It sure beats Gloria Estefan and the rap version of "Frosty the Snowman" the Americans beamed to the world during the halftime of the Superbowl. That thing was even more embarrassing than the game.

We can put a man on the moon, but we can't put on a remotely entertaining spectacle. Well, I guess that explains Steve Guttenberg.

I Say

Ronald J. Bernas

And then there are the commentators. Yes they're (more or less) live; yes, they're suffering from jet lag and have to fill more than 100 hours of television time; and yes, it's hard talking to freezing, breathless athletes who don't speak English. But shouldn't tact be a prerequisite for the job?

For example, one said about a female pairs skater: "She's been seeing a counselor to get her head straight for this competition." Another, describing a ski jumper: "He looks like a geek up there, but he's a heck of a jumper." And then there was the guy who said a woman speed skater "might not be the prettiest, but she's sure one of the strongest."

The best commentators are the Canadians on Channel 9. Sure, they have their problems: they say "a-gane" for "again" and "bean" for "been" but it's nice to see the actual events for a change and not those up-close and personal interviews that seem like a condensed version of TV-movies-of-the-week.

I don't particularly want to know what disease this athlete or that athlete overcame to become an Olympian. Frankly, I think they're all heroes.

I'm also having a difficult time deciding who to root against.

It was easy when there were Godless communists to boo. But thanks to Gorbachev and Yeltsin I'm having a slight identity crisis. The United Team? It sounds so nice. So honest. Who can we despise now?

I could ride the tide of anti-Japanese feeling in the country now, but their athletes have put on such a dismal display it would be like booing a skier who fell on his way down the hill. And besides, Toyota's commercials say they're proud sponsors of the American Olympic team, so I can't take pleasure in their athlete's poor performance.

So far, my favorite athletes are the two Senegalese skiers. You know Senegal, that flat, snowless country in West Africa. Not the place you'd find a thriving ski culture. And their performances showed it: One never made it down the hill and the other ended up in last place among the skiers who finished. And in addition to participating, they have to do all the administrative work, fundraising, training and transporting that countries like the United States hire non-athletes to do.

But if you saw the smiles on their faces as they marched in the opening ceremony, you'd see two athletes who planned on having the time of their lives. And from the looks of it, they are.

And so am I.

Musical treat

The Grosse Pointe Symphony's new-fangled fundraiser was wildly successful, according to Ann Roberts of Grosse Pointe Farms.

The event took place in the ballroom of the War Memorial on the evening of Feb. 2 and featured a couple dozen talented local musicians performing all kinds of music — from operatic arias to a jazz trio to a bunch of Wiffenpoofesque selections sung by the Grunyons.

The Grosse Pointe Symphony also participated, en masse.

The best part, Roberts said, was when conductor Felix Resnick stood up — raised his baton — turned to the audience with a pleased expression and said: "This is the most unusual evening I've ever participated in."

The evening had ambience and eclecticism, she said. And it was a sellout.

Roberts said the event will probably become an annual fundraiser for the symphony.

Hi Mom

The third annual "Michigan Parades into the 21st Century" and the second "Salute to Michigan Mothers" is seeking nominations for 15 of Michigan's oldest mothers to ride in vintage cars in the parade and to be honored at a special brunch.

The parade will be on Saturday, May 9, the day before Mother's Day, in downtown Lansing, beginning at 11:30 a.m.

For an application to nominate an old mother, call 517-373-1734 or write to Sen. Debbie Stabenow, Parade Applications, P.O. Box 30036, Lansing, 48909-7536. Applications must be postmarked no later than April 1.

Funny Valentine?

Here's your last chance to send a unique Valentine to someone you love.

The East Pointe Sweet Adelines chorus will deliver live personal singing Valentines.

A quartet or octet of singers will deliver a greeting to your sweetheart at the location of your choice (within reason) for $25.

Or — for $10 — they'll sing greetings to someone anywhere in the United States, via Ma Bell.

Help from the IRS

Cost-cutting begins at home, doesn't it?

The IRS generally sends us a few press releases in February and March: pep talks for taxpayers — tips to save money — why we should all file early — blah blah blah.

The most recent one, one slim sheet of paper mailed Feb. 3, arrived encased in a heavy oversized envelope that could have been used to mail a thick pad of legal-sized paper.

We think they're wasting our money.

The gist of the press release was OK, though predictable: "File early, accurately and electronically."

Looking for a winner

The Epilepsy Center of Michigan is looking for a child to represent the organization as its 1992 "Winning Kid" poster child.

Any boy or girl between 6 and 11 is eligible if he or she has epilepsy.

Arlene Gorelick, executive director of the center, said, "About 750,000 children in this country have seizure disorders and there are over 90,000 people of all ages in Michigan who have this common neurological disorder."

The poster child will help dramatize the fact that many people with epilepsy can lead normal, productive lives with the help of medications and better public understanding of the disorder. Gorelick said that about 50 to 60 percent of those with epilepsy can achieve complete control of their seizures.

The Epilepsy Center is the state's only non-profit organization focusing solely on epilepsy. It provides medical, psychosocial and informational services to people with epilepsy and their families.

The "Winning Kid" will be announced in June.

For an entry blank, call Bob Sadler at 832-0500 or write to the Epilepsy Center of Michigan, 3800 Woodward Ave., Detroit, 48201.

Mango chutney — a delicious discovery

Mmmm, mmmmm ... mango chutney. Until December, I'd never even heard of it. Now I'm stretching out a friend's impromptu holiday gift, wiping up the remains on the plate, not missing even the smidgens.

The sweet tanginess is compounded by the knowledge that my pal Al grew the mangoes in his back yard in Miami (or Key West — the lucky guy has back yards in both places) and made the chutney himself.

Nancy Parmenter

Mango chutney is one of those regional treats people remember from when they were kids. My neighbor, whose family on both sides hails from pre-Civil War Florida, has memories of her grandmother making mango chutney.

"I never liked it as a kid, but I bet I'd love it now," she says, hinting broadly.

She sure would. My grandmother used to make pickled watermelon rind, a lovely sweet pickle that you never find any more, either. We used to eat it every summer when we visited my grandparents' "shack" in Pennsylvania, picnicking out on the porch.

And fried green tomatoes. I still make those once in a while. But I never thought of writing a movie about them.

If you're a devotee of Florida cuisine, you probably already know about Key limes. But did you know that if you eat the pie anywhere north of the 25th parallel, it's almost certainly frozen? Key limes don't travel worth a darn.

And if your Key lime pie is green, it's dyed. The fruit is white.

Remember Ann Landers' famous meat loaf recipe? I bet Detroit's own gourmand, Bob Talbert, has pulled an Ann Landers with his white chili formula.

At least, when we went to get some green chilies so we could try it out, hordes of chili fans had beaten us to the draw and the store shelf was empty. And empty again when we tried a couple of days later.

So we made the chili without the chilies — and it was still great.

But ol' Bob unwittingly supplied the secret to his heft: He says the recipe (with copious cornbread on the side) serves four. Whoa! We served four and still have half left!

Don't eat so much, Bob. If you missed the recipe, it involves chicken and white beans and chicken broth with standard chili seasonings. You'll have to go to the, uh, horse's mouth for the technicalities.

Some people thought I was being snarky last week when I said some of the stories in the U of D Mercy literary journal were good enough to keep reading. Not at all.

I used to feel obligated to finish what I started, a sort of literary clean-plate club. But one of the nice things that happened to me when I got older was that I decided it was OK to quit if something was boring or stupid or just not speaking to me.

So I do.

A telephone salesman was trying to interest me in a bestsellers' book club a few weeks ago.

"I don't read bestsellers," I told him huffily.

"Ooh, you lie," said my son when I hung up.

A reassessment of my position forces me to acknowledge that I do indeed read bestsellers — but not the ones he was trying to sell me. I've read "Prince of Tides" and "Bonfire of the Vanities," both of which I found riveting. And "Prairie-Erth" and Amy Tan's books about her family in China.

But not Alan Bloom's monstrous bore. I think most of the people who said they read that were fabricating.

And I can honestly say I've never read Danielle Steel, and only learned recently that there's no "e" on the end of her last name.

So call me a snob. It won't be the first time.

I think I'll give George Bush a call. I'd like to invite him to the Perambulating Future of the World Society, aka walking for exercise in the halls at the local high school (we don't do malls up where I live).

The problem and the opportunity in these walks is that the exercise and the scenery are in themselves not very interesting. So we hold a debate as we endlessly circle the corridors.

Since George apparently has an ongoing difficulty with the vision thing, and is being attacked all over again following his nearsighted State of the Union speech, I think he might pick up a few pointers from us "ordinary" citizens.

Remember when Jimmy Carter used to visit ordinary citizens? It was good for a chuckle, especially when some character in "Doodles" got huffy about being categorized as ordinary. But in retrospect, maybe it wasn't such a bad idea.

That's what my brother-in-law thought when he invited Ronald Reagan to his house. "Dear Ron," he wrote, "I live just 30 minutes from you by helicopter. Why don't you drop by for lunch, as I have some things I'd like to discuss with you."

Right. By the tone of the answer he actually got from the White House, we figure he's now on some sort of kook list down there in Washington.

Repeat after me: Ron is not Jimmy. Neither is George. And no one there has a sense of humor.

Business opportunity: Rent out teenagers to forlorn families whose kids have grown and now live too far away to program the VCR for old Mom and Dad. I would pay big money for this.

We are wearing out our "autosearch" feature, reprogramming channels that, in our misguided zeal, we have just zapped — all part of a search for electronic nirvana in the form of channel 62, which once aired something indispensable that I've now forgotten.

Life used to be so simple.

Farms historical committee a year old, still labors in obscurity

By Ronald J. Bernas
Staff Writer

Pest. Wanna know a secret? Grosse Pointe Farms has a historical advisory committee.

A what?
"We're an advisory commission to the Grosse Pointe Farms City Council," said Tish Collett, who co-chairs the group with Nancy Griffin. "But we have no power."

It's like the planning commission. It has no power, either, but it does the legwork for the council and recommends courses of action. The recommendations, however, are just that and are not binding.

The seven-member historical advisory committee was formed a little less than a year ago — their one-year anniversary meeting will be held Feb. 19. The members were appointed by the council. It sprang out of a historical and architectural survey the Farms funded two years ago which documented some 1,200 homes and buildings in the Farms that have some distinctive characteristic.

"In most cases, the buildings architecturally significant," Collett said. "We don't have any 'Washington slept here' places in the Farms. The point of the whole thing is to record what we have and let people know that there are unique things in the Farms and that we should save them."

So making Farms residents aware that the commission exists is a big part of what they want to do in the coming year.

"We're a resource — we want to educate the people and make them aware of what they have around them and to give the council input on decisions that may impact the historical places in the Farms," Griffin said.

One of the first things the group did was to get the Farms council to adopt a policy which created a 15-day waiting period from the time a demolition permit is obtained to the actual tear-down. Previously, demolition could begin as soon as a permit was granted.

"That gives us time to try to do something," Collett said. "Even if it is just talking to the person and trying to get him to change his mind."

The commission's other project is to get several Farms buildings on the Michigan State Registry of Historical Sites and the National Registry of Historic Places.

Nine sites that meet the criteria have been identified by a historical consultant who is also doing the background work of documenting the sites and filing the necessary forms with the proper committees.

The nine sites are Christ Church, St. Paul Catholic Church, Memorial Church, the city Waterworks, the Highland Park Pumping Station and the Department of Public Works and sewer filtration plant, Grosse Pointe South High School, Richard Elementary School and Cottage Hospital.

They hope to have the decisions from the state and federal boards by 1993 when the city celebrates its centennial.

Another centennial project is a booklet on the history of the Farms which will be written by local historian Mike Dixon.

"We hope to make it available to all residents to help make them aware of what is around them," Collett said.

Both projects are being partially funded by the Farms Foundation.

Other goals of the group are to promote awareness in neighborhoods that they determine are extremely significant for historical or architectural reasons.

And they want to put into place an ordinance protecting historical treasures.

"Birmingham has an effective ordinance, and we're one of the oldest communities in the area and we don't have one," Griffin said. "The Woods has the right idea by making all their Mack businesses conform to certain standards, but the Farms is behind in this."

"It takes a lot of time and a lot of education to tell people what they have around them," Collett said. "We have to let them know the importance of this area for themselves and their children so that the idea of an ordinance is not so threatening. An ordinance could be a way of encouraging stability."

The group meets the third Wednesday of most months — they try to keep it a loose organization. For more information, call Collett at 882-5208.

Don't dodge it — do it!

My uncle will be 89 on his next birthday. He retired and moved to Florida over three decades ago. He called me last week and wanted to plan a reunion at his birthplace, near our summer cottage. What a lucky man; fortunate to enjoy relatively good health, and especially to be the possessor of such a positive attitude. He said he was considering purchasing a new car for the drive up north. Atta boy, Unc!

After talking with him, I started thinking about all the plans and dreams that never come to fruition and why there appear to be so many detours in our lives. The professionals have written thousands of books dealing with these questions, with myriad explanations. This lay person's view is as follows:

Whether or not we inherit good genes, most of us tend to assume our tomorrows are limitless. Whether we are destined to live to 110 or to be hit by a truck tomorrow, we can be in charge of certain aspects of today. Therefore, if there is even an outside chance that it's a possibility, try it, whatever "it" is. If you have always wanted to take an art course, voice or piano lesson, a writing course, run a marathon, don't delay. Give it a go. Do it now!

If there is any way you can scrounge together the money to start that business you've dreamed about, try it. Do you still long to take that vacation, but think the money should be put aside for "something more important?" If it is at all within your reach, make the reservations.

Sure it's great to dream, but we are just as good at postponing our own happiness. We can always find excuses for why we shouldn't, can't, might not realize our goals. Some of us are experts in holding ourselves back. When there is a legitimate reason to do so, fine, but too often we simply fold to pressure from others or talk ourselves out of our goals.

In these tough economic times it is easy to say to ourselves, "rein in." But is this the prudent thing to do? There are many ways to nurture ourselves without spending large amounts of money.

I may sound like a middle-aged soul feeling her mortality and I admit some of that is valid. However, whether we squander our precious time on the Earth beginning at age 20 or 50, it is still a tragic waste.

Our views of success can and should vary with each individual. But, if we feel fulfilled in our own lives it will have a radiating effect on those around us. Positive attitudes can be contagious. We smile at a stranger and we receive a smile in return. When we project happiness, those around us catch the virus.

Let's forget denial, forgive ourselves, toss out guilt and infuse every day with the joy of being, feeling, going, giving, receiving and sharing. Do it!

hundreds of Chrysler employees and retirees who live in this area who deserve more respect than they are receiving from her.

She berated Iacocca, the only one who will stand up to Japan. They do not play fair.

I suggest she read The Detroit News' Friday article on Guardian glass trying to sell plate glass in Japan. They sell glass all over the world, but cannot sell in Japan. The article states the construction firms are scared to buy from Guardian and offend the local firms.

I would like her to try to write her article in Tokyo. Why does our media constantly knock our local industries? If the local auto industry fails, the whole area, including Grosse Pointe, will be a ghost town.

Jobless pay: Bush said it, where is it?

By Donna Walker
Staff Writer

Want to know the details of the 13-week extension of emergency unemployment benefits that President Bush mentioned in his State of the Union address?

The Michigan Employment Security Commission (MESC), which will administer those federal funds, would like to know, too.

"We've received very little information about it so far (from the federal government)," said Norm Isotalo of the MESC.

As a result, MESC branch offices can't answer questions about the new extension program, he said.

In Michigan, a person may qualify for up to 26 weeks of unemployment benefits from the state.

In November, Bush authorized an emergency unemployment benefits program, under which a person who had exhausted his state unemployment benefits could qualify for up to 20 weeks of similar benefits from the federal government.

That program is scheduled to end June 13, Isotalo said.

He said that he is under the impression that Bush's new 13-week extension will be combined with the previous 20-week extension program.

It looks as though people who exhaust their state benefits and apply for emergency funds before June 13 will be able to qualify for up to 33 weeks of federal benefits, Isotalo said. People who apply for the unemployment extension program between June 14 and July 4 may qualify for up to 13 weeks of unemployment benefits.

No applications will be taken for federal jobless benefits after July 4, he said.

"That's my understanding as of now," Isotalo said.

When will he know for sure, and when will MESC branch offices be able to provide information about the new extension program?

"As soon as we get more information from the federal government, which could be a while," he said.

Oldsmobile: All American and politically correct

If you have been seized with "Buy America" fever, but you don't want to sacrifice the quality, comfort, driveability or good looks of the upscale Japanese offerings, try an Oldsmobile Eighty Eight Royale.

What could be more American? Oldsmobile is the oldest American nameplate still in production. (The first Oldsmobile was built in 1897; volume production of the Curved Dash Olds, the "Merry Oldsmobile" of musical fame, began in 1901 in a plant in Detroit near the Belle Isle bridge.)

The Olds Eighty Eight is a traditional American-style family sedan, roomy, comfortable and smooth, with properly respectable levels of performance and luxury. All at a reasonable (or what has come to be thought of as reasonable) price.

Other nameplates, most notably Buick, have been getting attention in the press for Japanese-level quality, but the Olds Eighty Eight is built in the same plant in Flint as the Buick LeSabre and they share many design attributes. And the quality level in both cars seems as high as any cars on the market, American or Japanese.

Unlike numerous cars with American names or Japanese cars assembled in the United States, the Oldsmobile Eighty Eight Royale's engine and transmission are also made in the United States. The Oldsmobile is politically correct. It does everything well and in its bag of tricks are a few neat features the Japanese don't have yet.

For example, in the recent heavy snow, the Olds Eighty Eight plowed through in better style than some more rugged four-wheel-drive pickups because of its combination of anti-lock brakes and a General Motors option called traction control. The traction control uses the anti-lock brake system to stop the spinning upon acceleration on a slippery road.

The anti-lock braking system rapidly halts and applies the brakes when it detects wheel spin, so that when you want to stop on snow or ice, you simply hold the brakes down and the system does the "feathering" for you. On the other hand, when you accelerate the traction control system will cut acceleration and apply braking as needed to prevent wheel spin. The result is that you can drive in snow the same way you drive on dry pavement. It works remarkably well.

Oldsmobile has gone through a difficult period, as have most of the GM divisions, trying to define itself in the GM galaxy. Many car lines have changed roles over the years, but perhaps none so often as Oldsmobile.

Autos

By Richard Wright

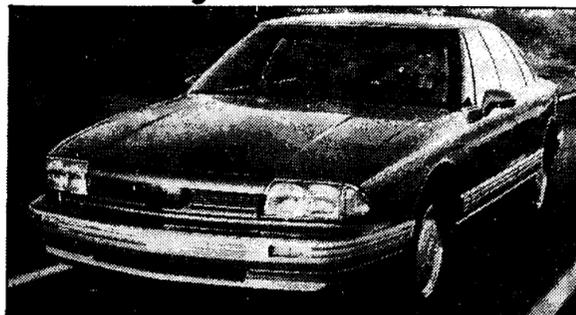

Back in the '30s and '40s, Oldsmobile was GM's cutting edge, experimental car line. When GM perfected the first automatic transmission that really worked, it introduced it on the '40 Oldsmobile. When it developed the high-compression V-8, it introduced it on the '49 Cadillac and Oldsmobile, the legendary Rocket 88. Among other innovations introduced first on Oldsmobile (often shared with other divisions) were power steering in 1952, 12-volt electrical systems and power brakes in 1953 and front-wheel drive in 1965.

As GM consolidated and rationalized its production, the car divisions gradually lost their engineering and design functions and became primarily marketing organizations. Since Oldsmobile shared bodies with the other four divisions and marketed virtually the same cars in the same price range as Buick, why have both Oldsmobile and Buick?

Well, for one thing, Oldsmobile dealers and Buick dealers need a line of cars to sell. And there are car buyers loyal to one nameplate or the other. So both divisions went through agonizing processes of redefining themselves. Buick decided to go back to its "doctor's car" image, an upper middle-class luxury car. In discussing the new Eighty Eight Royale, Larry Lyons, Oldsmobile's general engineering and planning manager, evoked the powerful image of the Rocket 88s of the early '50s.

"Back then, the 88 was the best performing full-size family sedan in the Oldsmobile lineup," Lyons said. "The same is true with the 1992 Eighty Eight. It has plenty of horsepower and a contemporary chassis, a smooth V-6, a very refined electronically controlled automatic transmission, available ABS brakes and a well-balanced, fully independent suspension."

Power is supplied by GM's 3800 V-6, rated at 170 horsepower (a gain of five for '92). GM's most advanced automatic transmission, the four-speed electronically controlled Turbo-Hydramatic, is standard on the Eighty Eight.

With its state-of-the-art power train, aerodynamic body styling and relatively light weight, the Eighty Eight gets a very respectable EPA fuel economy rating of 18 miles per gallon city and 28 highway, the best in the EPA's large vehicle class.

Anti-lock brakes are standard in the Royale LS and optional in the Eighty Eight Royale. Fifteen-inch wheels are standard, as is a shift interlock which prevents shifting out of "park" unless the brake is applied. The power train is mounted through its torque axis to block noise and vibration and the car is definitely smooth.

All exterior sheet metal except the roof panel is galvanized on both sides for corrosion resistance. The front fenders are made of a composite material to save weight and enhance dent resistance.

Standard equipment on all Eighty Eights includes air conditioning, driver side air bag, tilt steering column, AM/FM radio, all-season white-strip radial tires, power steering, power brakes and power windows with lockout button to deactivate them when small children are on board. In addition, rear doors have child security lock mechanisms. (That's why your rear passengers can't get out; there's a switch on the edge of the door.)

The Eighty Eight Royale LS has all this equipment, plus cruise control, power outside rearview mirrors, AM/FM stereo with cassette player and anti-lock brakes. Options include traction control (a bargain at $175), leather upholstery, electronic instruments and electrically heated windshield.

Oldsmobile said its market research showed that many buyers interested in moving up from a smaller car are particularly interested in front-wheel drive. There are a number of cars, both American and Japanese, which meet this requirement.

So the question remains, why buy an Olds Eighty Eight instead of one of the many other large front-wheel drive sedans? The answer is that Oldsmobile just seems to have done it all a little better than most.

Nothing spectacular, but very agreeable. Especially with a price range that starts at $18,495 for the base Royale and $21,395 for the Royale LS. The very well-equipped test vehicle had a sticker of $24,751.

Travelers must have auto insurance to drive in Mexico

For travelers planning an auto vacation "south of the border" this year, there is now one more document that must be packed before leaving home — a copy of your automobile insurance policy.

"According to new entrance regulations issued by the Mexican government in January, a copy of the driver's auto insurance policy must be furnished along with the other documentation that has always been required to enter Mexico," said Peter Erickson, director of AAA

Michigan member services. "The auto insurance policy must have full coverage, with liability, comprehensive and collision coverage included."

Erickson said that the policy must be in effect for at least two months from the date of entry into Mexico.

Travelers to Mexico are still required to provide proof of nationality and a Mexican tourist card; a valid driver's license; and a copy of the vehicle title or an affidavit from the owner of the vehicle if the owner is not the driver, consenting to its movement into Mexico.

Drivers will also have to purchase Mexican auto insurance before entering the country. For AAA members, Mexican auto insurance can be purchased at AAA border offices in Arizona, California and Texas. Cost of the insurance is based on the value of the vehicle.

An automobile worth $3,000 would cost about $4.85 a day to insure. A $3 policy fee and 15 percent Mexico tax are additional.

None of the document requirements apply to vehicles traveling within 12 miles of the Mexican border or within the states of Baja California and Baja California Sur. However, motorists may wish to carry all required documents as a precaution against unforeseen circumstances.

The new requirement is intended to prevent vehicles from being imported into Mexico and illegally resold there in order to avoid applicable taxes and duties.

Homeless

Manser said the program, organized by Grosse Pointe City resident Roger Gutmann, vice president of programs for Lutheran Social Services, was initiated as an emergency response to state cutbacks.

"It's really been amazing how people have come together to make it work," Gutmann said. "We pretty much make it work with volunteers."

He said the program is also rewarding for those who give their time. "They have new respect for what they've got," he said.

Guttmann said the homeless have been very respectful and appreciative of the warm bed and food. He said there has been no trouble.

He also thanked the senior citizens for sharing their space with the homeless. In fact, while the homeless program has been adequately funded, the money for the seniors has fallen — though not through any fault of Calvary or its efforts on behalf of the homeless. He said donations for seniors are needed at this time.

Calvary will continue to house and feed the homeless daily through April.

"It's really been a remarkable effort," Manser said.

Volunteers have been coming from St. Paul Evangelical Lutheran Church in the Farms and from all the other local Lutheran churches, she said, as well as from many other organizations, such as St. Clare of Montefalco and Grosse Pointe United Methodist churches, Bon Secours Hospital and schools.

Some volunteers come from as far away as Imley City and Trenton, she said.

"People have been responding," she said. Many donate food and services; others give their time. All efforts are appreciated. One volunteer said more food donations are needed.

Guttmann said, "We can al-

Columbus debate to be explored

What image do you have of Columbus in 1992, the 500th anniversary of his voyage to the New World? The current debate will be explored and a number of scholarly studies examined in a new-for-winter class scheduled by the Department of Community Education of the Grosse Pointe Public School System.

Participants will be encouraged to look closely at the historical facts, to interpret those facts for themselves, and to arrive at their own personal positions.

The class will be conducted by Robert D. Welch, former English teacher and recently retired director of curriculum for the Grosse Pointe Public School System.

The fee for the single-session class is $7. It will be held at 7:30 p.m. on Tuesday, Feb. 18, in Room 203 of Barnes School, 20090 Morningside Drive, Grosse Pointe Woods. Prior registration is urged. Call 343-2178.

Concert tonight

South students, from left, Will Stephens, Tom Coyle, Ken Taylor and Keith Miller, practice their percussion quartet for Saturday's District Solo and Ensemble Festival. Before that, though, they join other members of South's Symphonic Band at its winter concert tonight, Thursday, Feb. 13, along with the South orchestra at Parcels Middle School. The concert begins at 8 p.m. Admission is free.

Laser, music combine for spectacular display

Laser light artist Timothy Walsh teams up with the Lake St. Clair Symphony Orchestra at 7 p.m. Sunday, Feb. 16, at the Macomb Center for the Performing Arts for a program of visual music.

eye perceives visual movement in a musical way — the meshing of sound and image adding a new dimension to music.

Not only does he create beautiful images, he choreographs them to musical accompaniment. What the audience sees includes clouds, bursting fire-works, cartoon-like animation, names, logos, messages and abstract shapes.

The Lake St. Clair Symphony, in its 30th year, will be conducted by Andrew Sewell.

Tickets at $20 for adults and $18 for students and senior citizens may be obtained at the center's box office or charged to Visa/MasterCard by calling 286-2222, Monday through Friday, from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m.

Macomb Center is located on the Center Campus of Macomb Community College at Hall (M-59) and Garfield roads in Clinton Township.

The voyage of Columbus

The Grosse Pointe War Memorial's Adventure Series celebrates Columbus' discovery 500 years ago by featuring "The Voyage of Columbus" in a film presentation by Robin Williams on Monday, Feb. 17. Follow the explorer's life from Genoa to Spain and the Canary Islands, across to the Atlantic to the Bahamas and back to Spain.

The evening is $4.25 for the film only; $14 for the dinner only; or $18.25 for a complete evening. The dinner menu includes chicken soup with lemon and mint, Spanish loin of pork with sherry, corn pudding, Canary Island fruit salad and pumpkin spice cake. Dinner is at 6:30 p.m. and the film begins at 8 p.m. For more information, call 881-7511.

Collins to speak

U.S. Congresswoman Barbara-Rose Collins, whose constituency includes Grosse Pointe Park and City, along with parts of Detroit, will speak to the Grosse Pointe Democratic Club Tuesday, Feb. 18, at 7:30 p.m., in the Grosse Pointe Unitarian Church, 17150 Maumee, Grosse Pointe City.

It will be her first address to a Grosse Pointe group. The public is invited.

As part of her talk, Collins will review bills currently before Congress that she feels are important. She will also spell out her own short- and long-term legislative goals.

Of special interest to Pointers not currently in her constituency is that whether the Democratic or Republican-backed reapportionment plan finally is adopted, the 13th Congressional District is expected to extend to the Macomb County line, taking in all five Grosse Pointe communities.

Hear ye

The annual Madrigal Feast, a Medieval dinner and fundraiser for the Grosse Pointe South Choir, will be on Saturday and Sunday, Feb. 22 and 23, from 6:30 to 11 p.m. in South's Cleminson Hall. The doors are closed promptly at 6:30 p.m. Get there early.

Advance reservations are required. Tickets are $35. Call the South choir at 343-2140 for reservations or more information. South High School's information number is 343-2130.

For some the finish line is a signal to run another lap

What makes a winner keep running? Why do men and women who have achieved their life goal, whether it be in business or the professions, choose to continue on, rather than sit back and enjoy a leisure they have earned?

We read of executives, retired because of age restriction, who start their own businesses, act as consultants to others or serve on several corporate boards.

The experience they bring is welcome and invaluable and the companies they serve are fortunate to have access to their hard-earned skills acquired over long years. But still the question prevails. Why don't they want to rest?

True, the urge to keep going rather than level off is not typical of all retirees. Fortified, theoretically, by Social Security, private pensions and investment income, many workers look forward to years of pleasurable activities, traveling and pursuing lifelong hobbies.

Why are these outlets not enough for those who look forward to more, not less, work at an age when employers say it is time to quit?

Perhaps from the time they entered the workplace they had to set their sights on being super-achievers. Their whole lives were wrapped up in what they did for a living and their personal happiness came second to success.

They were, psychologists would say, willing to take risks, convinced that they would succeed. The possibility of failure was never considered. They are propelled at retirement age by the same motivations that influenced them when they first entered the job market.

As one successful post-retiree explains: "I love work and I love making money. With experience, I have built up a backlog of decision-making and work values that taught me how to use my time and talents to the best advantage. I don't work as I used to because I can get more done now in a shorter period of time. I am not one to sit back and rest on my laurels once I've reached a goal. There are always other goals."

Prime Time

By Marian Trainor

Los Angeles psychologist Joe Rittenbacker explains this affinity for work: "Making one's mark in the world can be a stimulant. We all know people who can't quit. The more successful they are, the harder they work. Why? Integrity is linked to ambition, but so is power. Once a person has held the reins of power, it isn't easy to let go.

"Money, then, is not the primary factor. There are millionaires who never have enough. It is the wheeling and dealing that stimulates."

The "high" that comes from competition was described by one businessman, now in his 70s: "When I was a kid, I was always competing, trying to beat out the other guy. I got a big kick out of doing deals — even if it was trading marbles."

Another need is love and respect. People who succeed at any endeavor, at any age, want to gain the respect of their family and those who work for them.

Financial security may be important, particularly among older people who remember the Depression. Money and personal security are related.

Besides the competition of the world of business, there is another arena to which those who crave recognition and enjoy a sense of power are attracted. It is a world where the individual may work to become proficient enough to compete in a sport that hitherto may have been only a recreational outlet, or they may just compete against their own body to whip it into shape.

A retired dean of the school of fine arts at Stanford University now takes her swimming seriously. At age 70, she entered the Masters Swimming program and set eight national records in one regional meet and six more in the Masters Long Course Championship.

A mother of four from San Bernardino, Calif., was the first in her age group to finish the iron-man triathlon. The T-shirt she wore as she crossed the finish line read: "Insanity is hereditary. You get it from your kids."

In a survey of life after retirement, it was found that many retirees focus on physical conditioning. (Some scientists believe that many of the physical changes blamed on age are the result of inactivity.)

Idleness takes its toll in two ways. It dries us up and shrinks us. Stop moving and you stop pumping the fluids that keep the joints working and the muscles trim.

No matter what the proving ground, there are those who can't bear to drop out of the race. Years just add to the incentive to test limits and set records whether it be in business, the world of sport or just for self-improvement.

AARP 2151 to meet Feb. 24

Grosse Pointe AARP Chapter 2151 will meet at the Grosse Pointe Memorial Church, 16 Lakeshore in the Farms, on Monday, Feb. 24, at 1 p.m.

Elaine B. Bernstein, supervisor of the board of retired senior volunteer programs, will discuss what is available for volunteers in Wayne County.

Reservations for the annual spring luncheon, scheduled for May 20, can be made at the meeting. The travel chairperson has a riverboat gambling trip planned for April 28-30. Cost is $139, double occupancy; and a trip to the English countryside, Sept. 29-Oct. 6, for $1,199. Reservations must be made as soon as possible. Call 881-8380.

Seniors invited to forum

The Detroit Area Agency on Aging will host a public session to gather information on the needs of the elderly for plan development from 2:30 to 3:30 p.m. on Monday, Feb. 24, following its board of directors meeting. The session will be held in the Dave Miller Building, 1st Floor Conference Room, 8731 East Jefferson at Crane, Detroit.

The agency will solicit input on the special needs of older people before it develops the 1992-93 annual plan for senior services. Written and oral testimony will be of special importance because there may be proposed state budget cuts in services.

Older adults, policymakers, service providers, volunteers, caregivers and the general public are invited to attend the meeting. Written comments will be accepted through Feb. 28.

The Detroit Area Agency on Aging is a planning, advocacy and funding agency which serves the older population residing in the city of Detroit, the five Grosse Pointes, Harper Woods, Hamtramck and Highland Park. One of fourteen such agencies in Michigan, it receives federal and state funds from the Michigan Office of Services to the Aging to coordinate a variety of services for the elderly of its region.

For more information about the forum, call 222-5330.

Kristine Coddens
Kristine (Krissey) A. Coddens

More than 600 people attended the memorial mass that was held Feb. 4 at St. Clare of Montefalco Church in Grosse Pointe Park for Kristine (Krissey) A. Coddens, 24, of Grosse Pointe City. She died Feb. 1, 1992, at Macomb Hospital Center in Warren.

Born in Detroit, Miss Coddens graduated from Grosse Pointe South High School, where she earned multiple letters in basketball, volleyball and softball.

She attended Ferris State University and was employed by Creative Compensation Group in Detroit.

Miss Coddens was an avid skier, swimmer, and sports fan. Her favorite professional teams were the Detroit Red Wings and the Detroit Lions.

She was active in Neighborhood Club sports, including softball and volleyball, and participated in the Grosse Pointe Billiards League.

Affectionately known as "Beasie", she had a wonderful sense of humor.

Her organs were donated for transplantation and all of the operations were successful, according to the Organ Procurement Agency of Michigan.

Her heart and lungs went to a 37-year-old man who has a wife and two children. A mother who worked as a truck driver received her liver. One of her kidneys went to a 32-year-old married man who has two children, and her other kidney was given to a 19-year-old woman who lives with her parents.

The doctors noted that Miss Coddens was in exceptional health at the time of her death and that her organs were perfect.

Miss Coddens is survived by her parents, Robert and Naunee Coddens; sisters, Michelle, Naunee and Stephanie; and brothers, Rob and Eric.

Her family and friends are working toward developing a scholarship memorial fund in her name, with scholarships to be given to outstanding female athletes at Grosse Pointe South

High School who excel not only in talent, but in sportsmanlike conduct, thoughtfulness and wittiness as well.

Carol Ann Clay

A requiem eucharist was held Dec. 4, 1991, at Mariners' Church in Detroit for Carol Ann Clay, 32, of Rockville, Md. A former resident of Grosse Pointe Farms and Broomall, Pa., she died of natural causes Nov. 17, 1991, at her home.

Born in Lower Merion Township in Montgomery County, Pa., she graduated in 1977 from Marple Newtown High School in Broomall, Pa. She earned her bachelor's degree from the University of Michigan-Dearborn in 1983 and graduated from the University of Michigan Law School in 1987.

Miss Clay was employed by the Sovran Bank in Rockville, Md., at the time of her death. She was formerly employed by Lerch, Early, Roseman & Frankel Chartered, a law firm in Bethesda, Md.

She was a member of American Mensa Ltd., the International Order of Rainbow for Girls; and the American Bar Association and the Maryland Bar Association.

In high school she was a backstroke swimmer on a championship team, a National Merit Scholar finalist in 1977 and a semifinalist in the Campbell Moot Court in Michigan. She was also fluent in Spanish.

Miss Clay is survived by her parents, Henry A. & Christine B. Clay of Grosse Pointe Farms; brothers, Stephen H. Clay and Andrew R. Clay; maternal grandmother, Elizabeth F. Brooks; and paternal grandmother, Mary S. Clay. She was preceded in death by her maternal grandfather, Robert B. Brooks; and her paternal grandfather, Henry C. Clay.

Her body was cremated. Interment was in the Upper Room Columbarium at Mariners' Church in Detroit. Memorial contributions may be made to Mariners' Church Renovation Fund, 170 E. Jefferson, Detroit, Mich. 48226.

Beverly J. (Sweet) Kleinschmit

Services were held Wednesday, Feb. 5, at the Chapel of the Flower at White Chapel Cemetery in Troy for Beverly J. (Sweet) Kleinschmit, 64, of Grosse Pointe Woods. She died Feb. 3, 1992, at Bon Secours Hospital in Grosse Pointe City.

Born in Highland Park, Mrs. Kleinschmit was a homemaker. She is survived by her husband, Clarence; son, Chris; and two grandsons.

Arrangements were handled by the Chas Verheyden Inc. funeral home in Grosse Pointe Park. Burial was in White Chapel Cemetery in Troy. Memorial contributions may be made to the charity of the donor's choice.

George Richard Cook

Services were held Feb. 6 at the Lutheran Home in Frankenmuth and on Feb. 7 at the Muir Brothers Funeral Home in Almont for George Richard Cook, 87, of Detroit and Grosse Pointe. He died of cardiac surgery complications on Feb. 3, 1992, at Saginaw General Hospital.

Mr. Cook was born Dec. 24, 1904, the son of the late Theodor and Aoltje (Elsie) Cook. He graduated from Detroit Eastern High School and attended Hope College in Holland.

He worked for General Motors for 43 years, retiring in 1969 as the general director of purchasing for the Fisher Body Division.

In his youth he was an avid participant in sports, especially softball and basketball.

During much of his life, Mr. Cook was a member of First Reformed Church of Detroit. He was also a member of Almont First Congregational Church, and began attending United Methodist Church after moving to Independence Village, a retirement community in Frankenmuth.

He is survived by his wife, Florence Irene Armstrong Cook, whom he married in 1931. He is also survived by his sons, George Robert Cook of Almont and Ralph Richard Cook of Midland; four grandchildren; and his younger sister, Dorothea Elzerman of Kalamazoo. He was preceded in death by his younger brother, Edgar Theodore Cook.

Burial was in West Berlin Cemetery in Berlin Township. Memorial contributions may be made to the Henry Stephens Public Library in Almont.

Arthur C. Terhune

A memorial service was held Saturday, Feb. 8, at Christ Church in Grosse Pointe for Arthur C. Terhune, 78, of St. Clair Shores. A former resident of Birmingham and Grosse Pointe City, he died Feb. 3, 1992, at William Beaumont Hospital in Royal Oak.

Mr. Terhune was a retired vice president of Prudential Bache, formerly Merrill Lynch. He also was a financial analyst on WJR radio.

Born in Englewood, N.J., he graduated from Princeton University in 1934. He was an advertising manager for Minnesota Mining from 1940 to 1957.

He is survived by his daughters, Lyn Carns of Oshkosh, Wis., Ann Disser of Grosse Pointe Farms and Martha Day of Haslett; brother, James Terhune; 10 grandchildren and two great-grandchildren. He was preceded in death by his wife, Mary Ann.

Arrangements were handled by the A.J. Desmond & Sons funeral directors in Troy. Memorial contributions may be made to Tau Beta Camp for Diabetic Children, 1826 Hunt Club Drive, Grosse Pointe Woods, Mich. 48236.

Ethel Elizabeth (Betsy) Worley

A memorial service will be held at 3 p.m. Wednesday, Feb. 19, at Grosse Pointe Memorial Church in Grosse Pointe Farms for Ethel Elizabeth (Betsy) Worley. She died Jan. 24.

U.S. Army Signal Corps in World War II.

The board of review is scheduled to meet from 9 a.m. to 8 p.m. March 10, 19 and 24.

Because property taxes were frozen state-wide at 1990 levels, and because of two recent Michigan public acts, new limits have been placed on the board.

The board can adjust assessments on property the owner acquired after Jan. 1, 1991 either by will, foreclosure or purchase. Reviews will be based on the property value as of Dec. 1, 1990.

If none of these conditions apply, the board has no jurisdiction to make any changes in the assessment. However, the Michigan Tax Tribunal does have such power.

But before any property owner can file an appeal with the tribunal, he or she must first go to the board of review.

Thus a property owner must still go to the board of review, even if it does not have the jurisdiction to lower his or her assessment, in order to protect the owner's right to file an appeal with the Michigan Tax Tribunal.

To schedule an appointment with the Woods board of review, call 343-2435.

Rene M. Robert

Rene M. Robert

Services were held Feb. 11 at St. Ambrose Church in Grosse Pointe Park for Rene M. Robert, 63, of Grosse Pointe Park. He died Feb. 7, 1992, at his Ford Motor Co. office in Dearborn.

Mr. Robert was born in Chateau-Thierry, France. He graduated from St. Cyr Coetguidan, the French equivalent of West Point, and served as a lieutenant in the French army during the war in Algeria.

He was decorated with the highest military award given by the French government for repelling a band of rebels in spite of being wounded and greatly outnumbered. French President Charles De Gaulle signed his military release papers.

Mr. Robert worked in Ford Motor Company's truck operations for 31 years.

He was a founder and past president of the Pentanque Club of Detroit, and a member of Alliance Francaise de Grosse Pointe, the Engineering Society of Detroit, the Society of Automotive Engineers, and the L'Union de Francais A L'Estranger.

Mr. Robert was a photographer and enjoyed reading.

He is survived by his wife, Elizabeth; and sons, Frank, Michael and Marc. He was preceded in death by his brother and sister.

Memorial contributions may be made to Crossroad, the Capuchin Soup Kitchen, or the Society of St. Vincent De Paul.

Richard D. Robbins

Richard D. Robbins, 67, a former Grosse Pointe resident, died Feb. 3, 1992, in Winston-Salem, N.C., where he had lived since retiring in 1990.

Mr. Robbins graduated from Grosse Pointe High School in 1943 and served in the Air Force during World War II.

After the war, he attended Indiana University and then returned to the Grosse Pointe area, where he lived for more than 40 years. He lived in Grosse Pointe Park, Grosse Pointe City, Grosse Pointe Farms and Grosse Pointe Woods.

Mr. Robbins is survived by his wife, Wanda J. Robbins; sons, Greg, Doug, Richard Jr. and Eric; and sister, Dorothy Ann Mauger.

Memorial contributions may be made to Hospice of Winston-Salem, 11000 S. Stratford Road, Winston-Salem, N.C. 27103.

Ernest Phillip Lamb

A memorial service will be held at 12:30 p.m. Feb. 16 at Church of the Palms in Delray Beach, Fla., for Ernest Phillip Lamb of Delray Beach. He died Feb. 8, 1992, at his home.

A former resident of the Grosse Pointe area, Mr. Lamb moved to Delray Beach in 1973.

An executive engineer for the Chrysler Corp., he held eight patents on automotive devices. He was influential in military designs and supervised the design of a radar battery used in the successful defense of London during World War II.

Mr. Lamb was an elder and clerk of the session of Grosse Pointe Memorial Church, past president and a member of the board of governors of St. Andrew's Club, a trustee of the Church of the Palms in Delray Beach, and a fellow of the Engineering Society of Detroit.

The board of governors of the Engineering Society of Detroit presented him with the Distinguished Service Award.

Mr. Lamb was also chairman of the finance committee of the Detroit Society of Automotive Engineers, a member of the board of governors of the National Society of Automotive Engineers, vice chairman of the Rackham Foundation, and vice chairman of the board of trustees of the Detroit Institute of Technology.

He is survived by his daughter, Marilyn L. Holm of Columbia, Mo.; five grandchildren and two great-grandchildren. He was preceded in death by wife, Ceola C. Lamb and his son, Dr. Thomas W. Lamb.

Arrangements were handled by the Scobee-Ireland-Potter Funeral Home, 300 Northeast Fifth Ave., Delray Beach, Fla.

Henry Gildner Jr.

Visitation will be held from 4 to 8 p.m. on Sunday, Feb. 16, at the Chas Verheyden Inc. funeral home in Grosse Pointe Park for Henry Gildner Jr., 57, of Grosse Pointe City. He died Feb. 10, 1992, in Ormond Beach Hospital in Florida.

Born in Detroit, Mr. Gildner received his bachelor's degree from the University of Michigan and was employed by Prudential Life-Bache.

He was a past president of the Detroit Boat Club and the Detroit Racket Club, and was a member of the Detroit Athletic Club and Chi Phi.

Mr. Gildner is survived by his sons, Henry III, Gregory, Gordon and Geoffrey; a grandchild; father, Henry S. Gildner Sr., and sisters, Constance Gildner and Gretchen Brian. He was preceded in death by his wife, Pamela.

His body will be cremated and interment will be in Traverse City, where a memorial service will be held. The date and time of the memorial service have yet to be determined. Memorial contributions may be made to the American Heart Association.

Fritzi (Munro) Shillabeer

Fritzi (Munro) Shillabeer, 92, died at her home in Toronto on Feb. 1, 1992.

A former Grosse Pointe City resident, she was the widow of Dr. Frederick W. Munro, a pediatrician who practiced in the Village in Grosse Pointe City.

She is survived by her sons, Barry of Toronto and Neil of Halifax.

Services were held in Toronto.

Assessment reviewer appointed in Woods

By Donna Walker
Staff Writer

The Grosse Pointe Woods City Council has appointed Ted Mrozowski to serve on the city's board of review.

The five-member board checks the city assessor's work and then meets to hear protests from property owners regarding the estimated market value of their homes and businesses.

Board members are paid $100 for each day they work more than four hours, and $50 for each day they work four hours or less.

A 13-year resident of the Woods, Mrozowski retired last year after eight years as a Michigan Tax Tribunal judge.

He was a Wayne County auditor from 1983-91; a Wayne County legislative agent in Lansing from 1973-76; a state representative from 1969-72, serving as vice chairman of the education and taxation committees and as a member of the judiciary committee; an administrative assistant to Congressman Lucien N. Nedzi from 1961-66; and an assessor for Hamtramck.

Mrozowski received his bachelor of arts degree from Wayne State University (WSU) in 1951, and his law degree from WSU in 1957. He served in the Road changed

To ease construction of the new addition to Cottage Hospital, the traffic pattern on Muir Road between Kercheval and Ridge has been temporarily changed. A barrier will be built down the center of the road, eliminating one traffic lane. The road will be primarily one way, west, from Kercheval to Ridge. Those using the attended lot south of the parking structure will be able to turn right or left and those using the parking structure can turn onto Muir from Ridge, but will not be able to go past the parking structure. The traffic pattern will be in effect while the hospital digs a basement and prepares to construct the building. Although hospital construction isn't expected to be completed until May 1993, Muir Road will return to its normal traffic pattern in October.

Police group feeds nearly 1,000 families

Nearly 1,000 needy families were fed during the Thanksgiving and Christmas holidays through an effort led by a Grosse Pointe Shores officer.

Public safety officer Stephen Poloni said his "Feed a Family" program was able to provide meals to 450 families at Thanksgiving and 500 at Christmas. He especially thanked Shores resident Douglas Weiss for purchasing the hams for the Christmas meals.

"As in every year that we have had the Feed a Family program," Poloni said, "we feel as if we were the ones who have been blessed. We would like to thank all those who were so generous in giving to this cause."

It was the fourth year Poloni has organized the program.

The program also provided food for a Christmas party for Cass Corridor children. While Poloni and others were delivering food, they learned about those who needed winter clothing, and with the cooperation of some churches, were able to fill those needs.

The Feed a Family program annually solicits $12 donations. With the help of local grocery stores, each donation fed a family.

To better serve you, we've built on four new additions to our Emergency Room.

An Experienced Emergency Team.

Having a Henry Ford Health System physician team in the Cottage Emergency Room brings years of valuable critical care experience to the comfortable and familiar surroundings of your own neighborhood hospital. These physicians all are specially trained or board certified in Emergency Medicine.

The Team That Works For You.

When you or someone close to you needs Emergency care, it is comforting to know that our team of physicians, emergency care nurses and technologists, is ready to respond at any time, day or night.

Their advanced emergency and critical care expertise is supported and enhanced by admitting personnel and patient advocates who put the needs and concerns of the patient and family first — by answering questions and keeping you informed during those difficult times.

Matching The Team With The Technology.

In the coming year, Cottage Hospital will continue to improve its Emergency service to the community by enhancing its facility and expanding its capabilities while treating each patient with the privacy and dignity you should expect from your neighborhood hospital.

During the construction, access to the Emergency Room will be made easier than ever, with specially designated parking just outside our doors on Kercheval Avenue.

Organ donating: Gift of life too seldom bestowed

By Ronald J. Bernas
Staff Writer

Joe DeFoe was given five to 10 days to live.

His liver had for all intents and purposes stopped functioning; cirrhosis had taken its toll. The 48-year-old Farms resident weighed only 145 pounds and had been completely bed-ridden for months before he received his death sentence.

Doctors said if he didn't have a liver transplant he wouldn't see the end of the week. His name was put on top of the list of people in Michigan waiting for an organ transplant.

He was lucky. After just five days on the list, a liver that matched his blood and tissue types became available.

That was 3 1/2 years ago. Today, DeFoe weighs a strapping 190 pounds and from all outward signs is completely healthy. He walks with a cane, but that's because he had his hip replaced recently.

DeFoe says he owes his life to the 20-year-old Dayton man whose liver is now functioning inside his body.

And he can't thank the Organ Procurement Agency of Michigan enough for raising awareness, encouraging donations and doing the legwork to help provide organs that gave 176 people in the state a new lease on life last year.

Thomas O'Mara is a registered nurse and a coordinator for the procurement agency. He is the one who must go to the hospital and ask the family of brain-dead accident victims if they would donate their loved one's organs.

April is National Organ Donor Month and O'Mara is hoping to raise awareness of the need for organs. Although last year's figure of 176 transplants is a state record, it's only a fraction of the 1,200 Michiganders and 25,000 people nationally who are waiting for organs.

The Organ Procurement Agency of Michigan is the only organization in the state that matches organ donors with recipients. A private non-profit agency that's certified by the federal government, it gets federal funds through Medicare and also receives private donations.

From the moment a person is declared brain dead, and the decision is made to donate the organs, the agency picks up the hospital bills.

While there is a law requiring hospital personnel to ask families if they want to donate the organs, often the family is not asked, or is asked in a way that turns them off.

"We approach the next of kin and talk to them, even if they have filled out the donor sticker and put it on the back of their driver's license," O'Mara said. "Even though it's a legal document, we still get permission from the next of kin."

He's heard stories of people who were asked, "You don't want to donate the organs, do you?" or "The law says we have to ask you if you want to donate."

"It's a very delicate situation," he said. "The family is grieving and they aren't always thinking about donating organs; they are thinking about their tragedy."

And considering the fact that the average age of a donor is 23, it's often a tragic death that provides organs.

Recipients of organs never meet the donor's families. The donor's families, in turn, learn only enough about the recipient to provide a human touch. They may be told the recipient is a 40-year-old father of two, or an 18-year-old honor student. Recipients get only the same basic information about the donor. If the families want to correspond, the Organ Procurement Agency of Michigan acts as an intermediary.

"Studies have consistently shown that families of all economic backgrounds feel they have gotten some comfort from donating the organs," O'Mara said.

"The families were helped in their grieving because someone was helped and part of their loved one is living on."

The state of Michigan has laws governing the age of donors. Until recently, the upper limit was 60, but because of the demand, the age limit was raised to 65.

"That's low," O'Mara said, in comparison to the national statistics. "Michigan is conservative, and to be fair, their success rate is very high. But while they're turning down organs, people on the list are dying."

Other than age, there are teachers are allowed to smoke, then they as adults should also be allowed to smoke.

At the press conference, she estimated that one-quarter of the students smoke.

North principal Dr. John Kastran, who supports the students' proposed smoking ban, said only five teachers at the school smoke. He said some custodians and other personnel smoke.

Rentenbach said considerably more employees smoke at South.

Kastran favors a ban on smoking on all school property, not just in the buildings. He said teachers or administrators standing outside smoking would present negative role models for students.

"If we're going to ban smoking," he said, "let's do it on all almost no restrictions for donors.

In addition to the traditional organs suitable for transplant — the heart, lungs, liver and kidneys — the eyes, corneas, skin, and even the veins in the legs can be transplanted.

The veins are used in heart bypass surgery.

Bones can be donated and used in facial reconstruction surgery or even to save a leg or school property."

If students are caught smoking in school, regardless of their age, they get a three-day suspension. If they're caught smoking outside, they are subject to substance-abuse counseling.

The anti-smokers hope to collect 800 student signatures to send to Lansing. They have also collected more than 100 faculty and administrator signatures. Kolinski said the superintendent, deputy superintendent, a majority of the administrative staff and the principals of both high schools support a smoking ban.

the FBI Academy in Quantico, Va. He will be the second officer on the Farms force to attend the prestigious training academy.

Others in the Pointes who have attended the FBI Academy during the past few years are Park public safety deputy director William Furtaw and City public safety Lt. Al Fincham.

The most dangerous intersections in the Farms last year for motorists were at Mack and Moross and at Mack and Warren. Each intersection experienced seven accidents last year. There were six accidents at Lakeshore and Moross.

Other accident locations included Mack-Kerby, Lakeshore-Moran, Moran-Grosse Pointe Boulevard and Kercheval-Kerby, all with four; and Kerby-Grosse Pointe Boulevard and Chalfonte-Kerby, each with three.

Again last year, as in every year since 1970, the Farms received an award for its pedestrian and traffic safety programs from AAA Michigan.

The Farms received 172 fire calls last year, up from 162 the year before. Of last year's calls, 52 were false alarms and 45 were at homes.

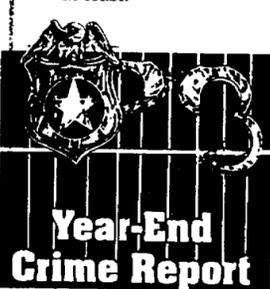

The Farms ambulance made 421 runs in 1991, up from 375 runs the year before.

Farms major crime up 4.9 percent

By John Minnis
Assistant Editor

Major crime in Grosse Pointe Farms rose 4.9 percent in 1991, and the increase is being blamed on shoplifting at two stores at Mack and Moross.

"Otherwise," said public safety director Robert Ferber, "we had a pretty good year. Burglaries were at a 25-year low — at least."

In his annual crime report for last year, Ferber said that had it not been for shoplifting crimes reported at the A.L. Price and Sears stores, major crime would have decreased 8.3 percent in the Farms in 1991, as compared with 1990.

Major crimes — also known as part 1 or index crimes — include homicide, criminal sexual conduct, aggravated assault, robbery, burglary, larceny (including shoplifting), auto theft and arson.

Ferber said shoplifting — retail fraud — is difficult for a police department to control, other than providing in-store crime prevention tips. Also, the actual number of larcenies from stores is impossible to determine, he said, because reporting depends on the stores' willingness to hire security personnel and to prosecute.

He credited A.L. Price and Sears for taking a tough stand on shoplifting.

"One thing about the crime of retail fraud," he said, "is that it is real, it affects every one of us as a cost increase in everything we purchase. Therefore, A.L. Price and Sears are to be complimented for taking a major stand during 1991 against shoplifters and, hopefully, spreading the message that 'shoplifting will not be tolerated by Grosse Pointe Farms merchants.'"

There were 363 larcenies reported last year, up 28.7 percent from the 282 reported in 1990. Of last year's thefts, 147 were shoplifting incidents, up from 93 the year before.

There were no homicides or first-, second- or third-degree criminal sexual conduct incidents in the Farms last year or the year before. One fourth-degree criminal sexual conduct incident and one molesting incident were reported in 1991.

Aggravated assaults dropped from four in 1990 to three last year.

There were 11 robberies reported in 1991, up from nine the year before. All the robberies except one were armed.

Burglaries fell 40 percent, from 53 in 1990 to 32 last year.

Auto thefts dropped by two-thirds. Twenty cars were stolen in the Farms last year, far below the 59 taken in 1990.

There were no arsons in the Farms last year. There were two in 1990.

Of all the major crimes, nearly half (49.4 percent) were solved. That compares with a national average clearance rate of 21.6 percent, Ferber said in the annual report.

Also in the report, Ferber announced personnel changes expected this year. I.A. Backman, chief of police operations, may retire after 45 years of service with the department. After Backman's retirement, the position of chief of police operations will be dropped and replaced by a deputy director of public safety, who will be in charge of both police and fire operations.

During the past four years during which the Farms has been merging its police and fire operations into a single public safety department, the firefight-safety and police have had separate chiefs. The position of deputy director completes a major portion of the transition to a unified public safety department, Ferber said.

Also expected to retire is Sgt. Otto Glanert, with 35 years on the force.

arm that might otherwise have been amputated.

Skin donations are taken from the abdomen and the thighs and are only the thickness of a sunburn peel. They are used as dressings for burn patients and reduce healing time by 50 percent.

If a heart is too damaged to be transplanted, the valves can be used and even have been known to grow with children who have had valve replacement surgery.

The cost of a transplant is steep — upward of $25,000, most of which is covered by insurance. Medicare pays for kidney transplants because it's cheaper to pay a one-time fee of $25,000 for a kidney transplant than it is to pay the $30,000-a-year cost of dialysis.

"We worry about saving their lives first, and about how it's going to be paid for later," O'Mara said.

DeFoe was lucky, and he knows it. He gives talks about his experience to hospital groups and other organizations.

"They asked me if I would talk about it and I thought, 'Well, you gave me a liver, it's the least I could do,'" he said.

He remembers waking up the morning after the transplant feeling better than he had in years.

"I think I have a better outlook on life, now," he said. There are no limitations on what he can do but he will have to be on medication for the rest of his life.

He spends more than $500 a month on the five medications he must take every day. One of the medications is cyclosporine, a drug that is most responsible for the sharp increase in successful transplants. There are side effects, he said, but they're nothing he can't live with. Especially when he realizes the alternative.

He sees a doctor every six months for a routine checkup.

O'Mara urges people to fill out the donor sticker and put it on the back of their driver's licenses. The stickers are available at Secretary of State offices.

He also encourages people to talk with their families about becoming organ donors.

"All you have to do is to look at me to know it works," DeFoe said.

Woods rezones 1.75 acres for condominium development

By Donna Walker
Staff Writer

Since October 1989, builder Richard E. Russell has been asking the Grosse Pointe Woods City Council to rezone a 1.75-acre parcel of land in the city so that he can build condominiums on the site.

Last week, he got his wish. The council voted unanimously to conditionally rezone three lots from R1-E (one-family residential) to R-2 (two-family residential). It is the city's first attempt at conditional rezoning, said city attorney George B. Catlin.

The lots, which total 1.75 acres, are located off Vernier, one block west of Wedgewood.

Russell must stick to the site plan approved by the planning commission, and there must be "visible confirmation that work is proceeding at the site" within six months, according to the conditions of the rezoning.

Otherwise, the property will revert to R1-E status.

Already approved by neighbors at a recent planning commission public hearing, the site plan calls for 13 free-standing, single-family condominiums on the property. They will be similar to the Windemere Place Condominiums in Grosse Pointe Farms, which were built by Russell Homes Inc.

Two types of condominiums are planned: an approximately 2,000-square-foot, two-story Colonial; and an approximately 1,800-square-foot Cape Cod.

Each condominium will have an attached garage.

A green belt will surround the condominiums. The name of the complex will be Lochmoor Village Condominiums.

Russell, president of Russell Homes Inc., said he hopes to sell the condominiums for $250,000 to $275,000 each.

"It's my hope I won't need a model, and can just sell them from blueprints," he told the council. "If I can pre-sell half of the units, then I'll put in all the basements and build them all at once."

Marketing the condominiums will begin this summer and construction will start by Labor Day, he said.

Russell initially wanted to build two-family condominiums, but changed his mind and decided to go with single-family units. He could have built the single-family units in an R1-E district, but he wanted the R-2 zoning status so that he could have more flexibility over the placement of the condominiums on the property.

No public hearing was held at the council meeting regarding the rezoning request, nor was one required, because several public hearings had already been conducted by the planning commission, Catlin said.

Russell said his purchase of the land hinged on the rezoning of the property. He said he began his push to get the land rezoned in October 1989.

Firm teaches clients to cut the cord, manage their own finances

By Donna Walker
Staff Writer
Corporate parternalism is out, personal financial planning is in, said Susan G. O'Rourke of Grosse Pointe Farms.

O'Rourke, 48, is a partner in Vance & O'Rourke, a financial and retirement planning firm in Troy. She conducts pre-retirement and financial planning workshops and seminars for corporations and individuals.

Her corporate clients include Comerica, Chrysler Corp., Toledo Edison and Manufacturers Bank.

"Years ago," O'Rourke said, "a businessman would tell a job-seeker, 'Come work for me, and I'll take care of you for life. I'll give you benefits, like health insurance.' But that kind of corporate parternalism is over."

Now, she said, corporations are more interested in seeing their employees become financially independent. They want to encourage their workers to save for retirement and rainy days, because they can no longer provide the pensions and benefits that they once did, O'Rourke said.

However, she said many people don't know how to organize their personal finances and adequately plan for the future. Some don't even know where they stand financially, O'Rourke said.

"So much of their time is spent working," she said, "that when they get the time to sit down and make a cash flow-sheet, they'd rather be doing something else. If you had the chance to play golf or pore over your financial records, what would you do?"

Also, because financial matters are often confusing, many people put off learning about them, she said.

"But you have to learn about them sometime," she said, "and the longer you procrastinate, the fewer options you have."

Her company helps people recognize their options when planning for retirement, debt management, their children's education, or other financial goals.

One of the first things she does with a client is help him or her make a cash flow report for the past year. The report lists the client's assets and liabilities over the previous 12-month period, as well as how much the client earned and spent.

Next, she asks clients if they have an emergency fund in some form of liquid asset. Such a fund should equal three to six months of personal expenses, and more if the person is facing lay-off or unemployment, she said.

O'Rourke also asks clients what kinds of insurance and pension plans they have.

Once she has all of that information, she enters it into her computer, which adjusts the data for inflation. She then gets a printout of what the client can expect to earn in retirement or x number of years down the road.

This helps clients learn what they have to do to reach their financial goal, and if the goal is attainable. It can also help a client decide if he or she should take an early retirement or buy-out offer from his or her company.

When should people start planning for retirement? In their early 20s, to get the most for their money, O'Rourke said.

"If you start putting away small sums when you're 20 or 25, that money will appreciate greatly during the 30 or 40 years until your retirement," she said.

However, it's never too late to start planning for retirement, she said.

She said she knew little about personal financial management when she married her husband, Peter, right after graduating from Boston College with a bachelor of arts degree in history. Still, he put her in charge of paying their bills.

After several years, their finances were a mess and she decided she needed to learn how to manage them properly, O'Rourke said. She began attending financial workshops, some at the Grosse Pointe War Memorial.

Susan G. O'Rourke

Eventually, she went back to college, taking financial courses at the University of Detroit. In 1985, she was designated a certified financial planner (CFP) by the College of Financial Planning in Denver.

She is also licensed by the Securities and Exchange Commission (SEC).

O'Rourke is a member of the International Association for Retirement Planning and the Institute of Certified Financial Planners (ICFP). She was treasurer of the Michigan ICFP chapter from 1988-89.

After receiving her CFP designation, O'Rourke began working for the accounting firm of Pannell Kerr Forster, which merged with BDO Seidman in 1988. She was director of financial planning when she left the company four years ago to form Vance & O'Rourke.

O'Rourke said she met her business partner, Lynn M. Vance of West Bloomfield, through the Institute of Certified Financial Planners. Vance was director of financial planning for Cambridge Financial Service Inc. and director of money management services for Cambridge Capital Inc.

Most of Vance & O'Rourke's corporate clients offer the firm's consulting services free to their employees.

Vance & O'Rourke also offers workshops and in-depth counseling to individuals. In addition to financial counseling, the firm can help people prepare for the lifestyle changes retirement will bring.

The cost for individual consultations varies. A 15-hour workshop could cost $400. A shorter workshop would cost less.

Workshops can be conducted in Vance & O'Rourke's office, suite 221, 5435 Corporate Drive in Troy, or at a client's home or business.

O'Rourke offered this parting piece of advice for retirees: Don't be overly conservative when investing your money.

She said that many people, when they retire, sell their stocks and put most of their money in certificates of deposit and municipal bonds. That's fine when interest rates are high; however, when interest rates drop, the investor can't get out of these long-term agreements without paying a heavy penalty, she warned.

"The tragedy is that with interest rates coming down, most of the community will be benefiting from it," O'Rourke said. "But people who have their money tied up in CDs and municipal bonds will be getting a 4 or 5 percent return on their investment, instead of the 9 or 10 percent they were counting on, and it will seriously affect their income."

"So don't just think of the volatility of investments, think of interest rates."

For more information about Vance & O'Rourke, call the firm at (313) 641-2634.

At Evanston High School, the young Smith was art editor of the yearbook. "We did have the best teachers," he said. "I had very good training in art."

Smith went to Northwestern University for a year and then transferred to the Art Institute of Chicago, where he met his future wife, Jean May.

Upon graduation, he was awarded the James Nelson Raymond scholarship which allowed him to travel around the world. He and a friend began in Japan, where they lived for six weeks, and then traveled westward to Hong Kong, the Philippines, the Dutch East Indies, Singapore, Saigon, Indochina and India. They traveled up the Persian Gulf to Baghdad where they crossed the desert by bus to Damascus and Jerusalem.

In Greece, they lived in monasteries for two weeks. "They didn't allow any female higher than the order of a chicken there," Smith said, adding that the monks were not permitted even to keep cows. "There were no roads," he said. "We walked from monastery to monastery."

Then the pair lived in Italy for several months. The grand tour was capped when his fellow student and future wife joined him in Paris, where they were married in 1938. The couple selected June 9, the same day her twin sister had been married, "because we thought it would be easier to remember anniversaries," Smith said.

"It was a wonderful time for us," Jean Smith said. "We had no money and we just walked around Paris." She recalled that her husband bought a spoon for 18 cents and felt so guilty about spending the money that he returned it.

War was imminent and the couple returned to Chicago and to the Depression. "When we got back, absolutely the bottom had dropped out," he said.

They both worked for the WPA (Works Progress Administration, a government program that provided employment) — she on a toy project and he on making models of public buildings. He then got a job with a company that made religious items and he created models of Michelangelo's "Pieta" and diptychs, among other things.

In 1940, he was offered a teaching position at what was then Wayne University. The campus, at that time, consisted of one building, Old Main, and a scattering of houses.

One of his first classroom studios was a two-car garage with a wooden stove and, of course, no running water. Teacher and students had to carry in buckets of water.

With the war, there were only female students in class for three years. "It was somewhat difficult," he said. "The balance (of a single-sex class) doesn't work."

In 1962, Smith was named chairman of the department of art and art history, a position he held until 1978. "I reorganized the department in areas and designated people in charge," he said. "It grew until we had close to 50 people."

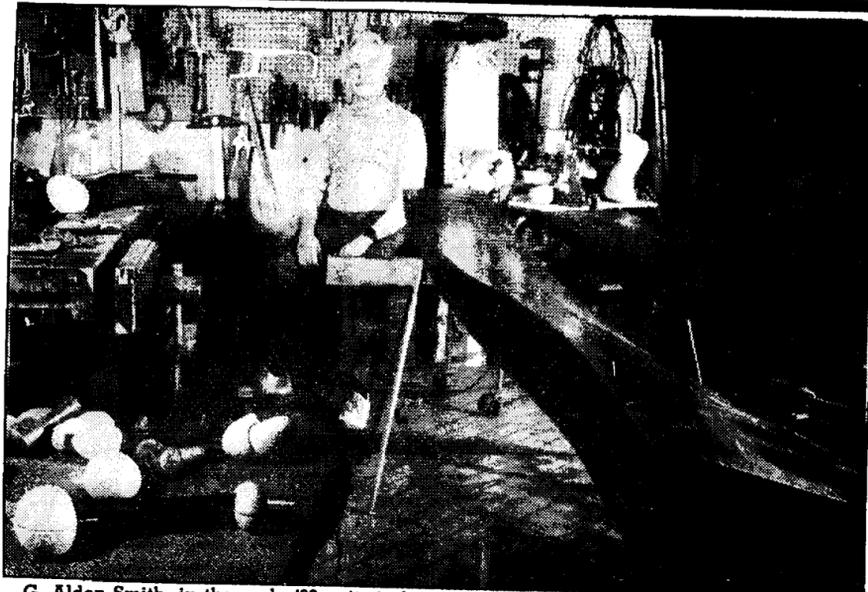

Smith helped lay out the physical requirements of the

The Grosse Pointe Park City Council has reappointed Margaret Breitenbecher, Valere Huvaere, Claudia Somand and Bonnie L. Wood to the city's Tax Incentive Finance Authority.

The following citizens have been reappointed to the Park's recreation commission: Arthur H. Getz, Louis Cerre, Rita Gazarato, Clinton R. Andrews, Robert Brownell, Ellen M. Chapin, Mark Elliot, Vincent LoCicero, Gerry Schilling, Joseph T. Wierzbicki, Robert E. Klaczka, Kevin P. Sullivan, Dr. John Burrows and Phil Costa.

Colleen Stevenson has been appointed to the recreation commission for the first time.

G. Alden Smith, in the early '80s, sits in his studio on Beaubien located above Detroit Focus Gallery.

Community Arts Building which opened in 1956.

During this time, Smith was involved with various organizations, including the Mid-American College Arts Association that consisted of art departments from throughout the country except for the East and West coasts. He served as president and continues to serve on the board.

"Running the department at that time was one of the most pleasant things to do," Smith said. "It was a very lively department. That was a time when people did slightly wacky things."

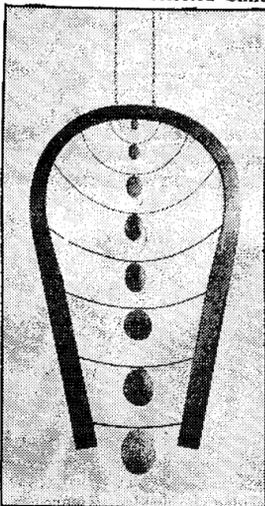

He recalled that during one seminar, each student had to plan a program. "I came into the office and all the furniture had been moved out and the room was filled two feet deep with autumn leaves," he said. "We all sat down in the leaves."

He became involved with Common Ground of the Arts, which he said was one of the first groups to get federal funding. The group moved several times, settling on Cass. It reformed as the Cass Corridor artists.

Detroit Focus Gallery was created in 1978 to offer opportunities for exhibits and its board consisted of artists, museum curators and business professionals. Smith maintained a studio above the gallery at 743 Beaubien for about eight years.

In 1984, Detroit Focus initiated a program to honor one artist a year for his or her contributions to the community. The committee selected Smith as its first honoree and the exhibit, "G. Alden Smith, A Sustained Vision," opened with a 20-page catalog of testimonials from colleagues and former students. Joy Hakanson Colby, art critic for The Detroit News, wrote in the introduction: "Smith is one of Detroit's less obvious resources. Never a self-promoter, he has worked steadily in his studio, placing art above ego and producing a sustained body of sculpture that would be impressive anywhere."

Smith retired from Wayne State three times, he said, the last in 1984 or 1985.

He received the Arts Achievement award from the university as well as several awards from the Detroit Institute of Arts, where he had an exhibition in 1969.

The couple have lived in Grosse Pointe for about seven years. Their home is filled with their art works — his wife is a painter. Their two adult sons, Quinn and Todd, are also involved with the arts, as a poet and a graphics artist. There is one grandson.

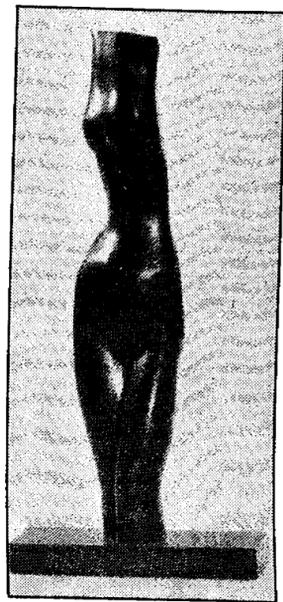

To complete the art connection, his wife's identical twin sister is also a painter and her husband was chairman of the art department at the University of Florida at the same time Smith headed Wayne State's art department.

Smith had heart bypass surgery several years ago, but he continues to create. He has made lamps and tables for his house. Lately, in his basement studio, he has been making walking sticks and canes —

My dog/snake/bird/turtle/rat/cat/ gerbil ♥ me

Sylvester

They pulled plows or herded sheep or provided transportation or kept the barn mouse-free.

"As we became more sophisticated and more urban, people have taken more interest in pets just for companionship," he said.

"Dogs, for instance. Dogs provide a lot of love and attention in return for very little output from their owners. Dogs don't care if you're fat or thin, rich or poor, happy or healthy or handsome.

If you've had a bad day at work, who's there with lots of love and attention and companionship?

"Your dog."

Dr. Richard Nurse of Moore Veterinary Hospital in St. Clair Shores agreed that dogs and cats show affection for humans and for each other.

"They get on your lap. They follow you around. Dogs wag their tails. Cats talk to you, rub against you and purr. Cats are very independent. They show affection only when — and if — they want to," he said.

Other pets, like birds or snakes or turtles — Nurse said it's questionable if they actually show love, or if they're responding to instinct or anticipating food or if they've just learned some tricks.

In addition to the rat pack, Blauet and his wife have four dogs and three cats. The animals have established a pecking order, he said, and the cats don't dare hurt the rats.

"The cats might come over and sniff the rats, but they know who the boss is, and they know what the boss thinks is acceptable. My wife is the boss," Blauet said.

All the dogs sleep in the Blauets' bedroom. "One sleeps under the bed; one on a cushion; another under the nightstand; and Noodles, a Chihuahua/dachshund mix, sleeps under the covers," he said.

"The kitties show affection too, but they're more aloof. When they want attention they come and sit on your lap. They'll face you, nose to nose. They'll rub their faces against you."

He said cats show love by marking the objects of their affection with scent glands on their cheeks. That's what the rubbing is all about.

Nurse has two golden retrievers, Taffy and Keeper; two cats, Flo and Fig; and a box turtle, Speedy.

Bonding between pets and owners is especially valuable for some elderly people, he said.

"Older people who live alone, whose children have moved away, often feel like they have no purpose. They vegetate," he said.

"If they have an animal that has to be taken out, and fed, and walked, and cared for — both the owner and the pet benefit."

Kitty Kubalak lives in Grosse Pointe Woods with her son, Kris, and three cats, Ginger, Muffin and Sylvester, a black male with a white chest like the lispig cartoon character.

"Each cat shows love in its own way," she said. "They all sense my moods. When I'm blue, they'll curl up on my lap. They all greet me when I come home.

"And Sylvester is almost like a dog. He follows me around. He's great entertainment. He chases his tail until he falls off the bed. He pounces on anything plastic and plays with it. He nudges me awake before the alarm rings. He greets guests and just generally acts lovable.

"I even re-decorated my family room around the cats. The fabrics are the same colors as the cats."

Nancy and Howard Trowern of Grosse Pointe Park have had dogs longer than they've had children. Currently, they have two dogs, a 50-pound beagle-like male named Skip and a female German shepherd-malamute mix named Bo.

"I tell my wife I want to be reincarnated as one of her dogs," Howard Trowern quipped. "She treats me well, but she treats the dogs better."

Trowern believes families should have two dogs or two cats so that the animals can keep each other company when the family is not around.

and for each other," he said. "Skip needs his hugging time. Bo needs to be scratched. They're like people with their own personalities. They become part of the family.

"We introduce them to our friends and to other dogs. We take them on trips. We talk to them. Sometimes we have to spell words because their vocabularies have gotten so large.

"People think we're a little nuts."

A Harbor Place Cluster Home Has Everything You Need On One Floor... And Then Some

The "Some" we refer to is the entire second floor which consists of two large bedrooms and a full connecting bath. This floor may be used on a daily basis or utilized occasionally when family or friends come to visit.

There's "some" thing else too, a large unfinished storage area and additional optional storage.

First floor accommodations are totally complete. A great room with an 11' ceiling, master bedroom suite with walk-in closet, luxurious bath, kitchen with top-of-the-line appliances and cabinets, breakfast room, library, first floor laundry room, and a two car garage. Total one floor living with a little extra built in.

"Some" more things to be considered are an old world style fenced in courtyard entry and rear yard with all the privacy you desire.

This may be purchased for the affordable "sum" of $259,000 to $294,000, "some" thing to think about. Visit

Hospice of Southeastern Michigan seeks volunteers

Volunteers are needed to help Hospice of Southeastern Michigan provide compassionate care to the dying.

Volunteers help patients and their families by running errands, lending support and being a friend. Some may perform simple patient-care tasks such as giving baths, transferring patients and changing linen.

Volunteers also participate in the hospice bereavement program, making calls and visits to families after a patient's death and helping with bereavement support groups.

"On-call" volunteers are willing to be available whenever a patient or family needs their special skills or talents. Services include driving, barbering and hairdressing, lawn care, snow shoveling and simple home maintenance.

Office volunteers provide clerical support. Volunteers with computer or medical transcription skills are in great demand.

Tri Delta, Delta Gamma alumnae meet

The Grosse Pointe alumnae chapters of Tri Delta and Delta Gamma will meet at Talbots in the Village for a fashion show from 7-9 p.m. on Monday, Feb. 24.

Speakers bureau volunteers tell the hospice story to groups in the community.

Anyone over the age of 16 is welcome as a volunteer. Many assignments are for evening and weekend work, so students and people who work during the day shouldn't hesitate to volunteer.

Volunteers are asked to work at least two to four hours a week and to commit their services for a year. Orientation and training are provided.

Hospice of Southeastern Michigan, the first licensed hospice in Michigan, opened in November 1980 to provide a compassionate setting in which terminally ill individuals can die with dignity. Hospice is committed to providing care and comfort for the ill and support for their families. More than 2,000 patients receive hospice services every year.

For more information on hospice volunteer opportunities, call Betty Pejakovich at 445-6855 or Shirley Moore at 559-9209.

Coffee and dessert will be served. For more information, or to make a reservation, contact Barbara Reynolds at 881-6766.

Fashion Show

New groups at Eastwood Clinics

Eastwood Clinics has announced three new support groups:

- A sibling bereavement support group is for adolescents who are grieving the death of a brother or sister. It's led by social worker Linda Gold and meets from 4:30 to 5:30 p.m. on Wednesdays. The cost is $10 a session.

- An eating disorder support group will discuss the feelings associated with compulsive overeating and other problems regarding food, recognizing that our society focuses on thin images and that many individuals have difficulty with food.

- A support group for those caring for aging parents recognizes that the role of caregiver can be very complicated. Many normal feelings can create tension and guilt for adult children. This weekly support group will provide a safe place for support regarding concerns all adult children have. Social workers Sue Little and Donna Bradley will lead the group.

For more information on any of the groups, call 882-8860.

Eastwood Clinics is a health-care partner of St. John Hospital and Medical Center.

Support is available in Macomb for alcohol, drug abusers, families

Self-help recovery groups for individuals and their families affected by alcohol or drugs are offered weekly at St. John Hospital — Macomb Center:

- Alcoholics Anonymous, a support group for alcohol-dependent individuals, holds closed meetings Wednesdays and Fridays at 8 p.m. and open meetings Saturdays at 2 p.m. in conference room A.

- Alanon, a support group for families of alcohol abusers, meets Wednesdays at 8 p.m. in the cafeteria.

- Narcotics Anonymous, a support group for drug-addicted people, meets in conference room A Saturdays at 8 p.m., Sundays at 7 p.m. and Mondays at 8 p.m.

- Alateen and Alatot, support groups for teens and children of alcoholic parents, meets Wednesdays at 8 p.m. on Two-West.

For more information, call 465-5501, ext. 312.

St. John Hospital — Macomb Center is located at 26755 Ballard Road (one block west of Jefferson) in Mount Clemens.

Garden Center plans orchid sale

The Detroit Garden Center in historic Moross House will present its seventh annual orchid display, slide lecture and sale on Saturday, Feb. 22, from 11 a.m. to 4 p.m., and Sunday, Feb. 23, from 12:30 to 4 p.m. Ron Ciesinski of Taylor Orchids will return with his display of outstanding varieties and a large collection of blooming plants for sale. A slide lecture and potting demonstration will begin at noon and 3 p.m. on Saturday; and at 1 and 3 p.m. on Sunday.

Admission is $1. Call 259-6363 for further information. The Garden Center is located at 1460 E. Jefferson, a half mile east of the Renaissance Center.

Cancer education meets once a month

St. John Hospital and Medical Center sponsors a monthly cancer education series for patients and their families. The sessions are held the first Tuesday of each month from 6 to 7:30 p.m. in the hospital's Medical Education Conference Room. On March 3, the topic will be "Coping with Cancer." On March 3, Coping with Cancer will be the topic.

The series provides information about cancer's development, diagnosis, treatment options and how to manage side effects. Psychosocial issues related to communication and stress and coping strategies will be addressed, as will exercise, nutrition, spirituality and survival issues.

Pre-registration is encouraged. Call 1-800-237-5646 Monday through Friday between 8 a.m. and 5 p.m. to register.

Plans for Academy's 25th Action Auction are under way

Volunteers have vowed to make the Grosse Pointe Academy's 25th Action Auction the most successful fundraiser ever.

Auction planners got together for a champagne reception on Feb. 5 at the home of Daniel and Libby Follis, who, with Sheldon and Chris Wardwell, are co-chairmen of the benefit, scheduled for Wednesday, May 6, and Saturday, May 9, on the academy's grounds.

Several of the auction's acquisitions were on display, including paintings by Michigan artists Marlee Brown and V. Durbin Thibodeau, and a sapphire and diamond ring donated by Edmund T. Ahee Jewelry Co.

Other donations so far include a luxury safari to Tanzania, a 22-foot 1947 Chris Craft boat, four nights at the Grand Hyatt Wailea on Maui and a Lincoln Continental donated by the Ford Motor Co. as a memorial to Lionel B. Chicoine Jr., a former Ford executive.

A raffle will offer a $10,000 grand prize and a bonus prize of $2,500. Raffle tickets are $100 each and will be on sale through May 9.

A new spin on the 25-year-old auction, the most successful school benefit of its kind in the nation, will be an afterglow party on the grounds of the academy after the event. Chairmen of the afterglow are Mrs. William Clay Ford and Mrs. John Jagger.

All funds raised at the annual auction are used for scholarships, teaching aids, equipment and restoration projects for the historic campus at 171 Lakeshore in Grosse Pointe Farms.

Chic accessories: The Detroit Institute of Arts exhibit, "Chic to Chic: 100 Years of Fashion Accessories from the Collection of Sandy Schreier," was previewed by more than 200 guests on Jan. 31 in the DIA's Rivera Court.

Support is for cancer patients

A support group for breast cancer patients meets the first and third Wednesdays of each month from 2 to 3:30 p.m. at St. John Hospital and Medical Center on the fourth floor of the St. John Professional Building-II.

Donna Butala and Sandra Melanson will coordinate the group. The next meetings will be March 4 and 18.

The St. John Professional Building-II is located at the west end of Pointe Plaza shopping center at Moross at Mack, one mile east of I-94. For more information, call 343-3684.

ROMP to meet

Recovery of Male Potency (ROMP), a support group for males who are having difficulties with impotence or incontinence, meets at St. John Hospital and Medical Center the third Tuesday of each month from 7:30 to 9:30 p.m.

The program was developed by Grace Hospital in Detroit. The next meetings are Feb. 18 and March 17. St. John Hospital and Medical Center is located at 22101 Moross at Mack, one mile east of I-94. For more information, call 1-800-332-7036.

Pride of the Pointes

Randall Osann of Grosse Pointe Park was named to the dean's list for academic achievement during the fall trimester at Johnson & Wales University. He is majoring in culinary arts.

Tim Mitchell of Grosse Pointe Farms, son of Dr. and Mrs. David Mitchell, is a guitarist with Gloria Estevan and has recently returned from a tour of Australia and the Far East.

Action Auction volunteers attended a champagne reception recently to report progress on the annual fundraiser for the Grosse Pointe Academy. From left are Chris Wardwell and Libby Follis, general chairmen of the event, and Carol Gagnon and Elizabeth Klein, acquisitions chairmen. In the background are two of the paintings that will be offered at the auction.

Among those who attended a preview of the DIA's exhibit "Chic to Chic: 100 Years of Fashion Accessories from the Collection of Sandy Schreier" were, from left, Grosse Pointers Peter and Anne Spivak, Judy and Randy Agley, guest curator Schreier and DIA director Sam Sachs.

boutique hosted the event with the Associates of the Founders Society.

Among those who attended the reception and preview were Grosse Pointers Anne and Peter Spivak, Stephanie and Frank Germack, Mado and Kim Lie, Diane and Tom Schoenith, Sue and Bill Vittoe and Gayle and Andrew Camden.

The exhibit, the first costume exhibition to focus on fashion accessories as art, includes about 200 items by designers such as Chanel, Dior, Balenciaga, Saint Laurent, Picasso and Detroit's own Kenneth Jay Lane. Items include shoes, scarves, hats, jewelry, perfume bottles, sketches, photos and illustrations.

God's Valentine

By the Rev. Gregory Sammons
Christ Church Grosse Pointe

Valentine's Day couldn't come at a better time. During an endless succession of gray winter days, Valentine's Day is a welcome red and pink intrusion, reminding us of one of life's greatest treasures. It moves our attention from counting things to the things that count — the shared love of human beings.

Valentines often picture a heart with an arrow piercing it. That is such an honest picture of love. There can be no real love without pain. A song from The Fantastics gets it right: "Without a hurt, the heart is hollow."

To commit ourselves to a friend, a spouse, our country or to humanity opens us to the deepest joys — but it involves the greatest risks.

Love may start as an emotion. But authentic love becomes a motion. This is why it is possible to love even one's enemies.

Do you remember Valentine's Day in grade school? The rule was that everyone had to exchange valentines with everyone else, regardless of how you felt about them. Even the class bully would get valentines that read: "Hey, big guy! Be mine!"

It was comical — but it was somehow right. Even today, I can remember how those less-than-heartfelt valentines cast a magic spell, softening tensions and creating a social armistice in our classroom. Love-in-motion, even imperfectly expressed, has this mysterious power to heal the hurts in our world.

Considering this, it is odd that a cross is the symbol of Christianity. Invented by the Persians and adopted by the Romans, the cross stood for cruelty and contempt. Yet Christians cherish this symbol. Why?

It's because of the insight that the cross is somehow God's valentine to us — a movement of faithful love toward us that was like an arrow through His own heart. The cross shows a God who loves His creation enough to bleed and die for it.

It would be amazing to receive such a valentine from your closest friend. But it is staggering to realize that God offers this valentine to each of us, especially when we are at our worst.

When we think about God in this way — with a cross piercing His heart — it begins to move us in strange ways. It leads us to mend a broken relationship, to make room in our lives for the hurts of others, and to care for the vulnerable.

Even more, it allows us to forgive and accept ourselves.

Sister Verence McQuade, left, will be St. John Hospital's new director of community/patient services. Sister Jacqueline Wetherholt, right, is director of funds development, a position which has been expanded to include responsibility for the Fontbonne Auxiliary, the Guild and Second Chance Heartline Unit Inc.

St. John Hospital fills two posts

Sister Verence McQuade will assume new responsibilities as director of community/patient services for St. John Hospital and Medical Center. McQuade is in charge of promoting patient satisfaction.

Glenn Wesselmann, president and CEO of the hospital, said, "Sister Verence is well-qualified to fill this role. She has been at St. John for 20 years and knows many people in the area. She is tremendously familiar with hospital services and staff and she is also linked with a large number of community resources."

The post of director of funds development, held by Sister Jacqueline A. Wetherholt, will be expanded to cover responsibility for the Fontbonne Auxiliary, the Guild and Second Chance Heartline Unit Inc.

Christ Church elects new leaders

Christ Church Grosse Pointe elected the following leaders for 1992 at its annual parish meeting in January: Howard Tischler, senior warden; Mrs. William Ludwig, junior warden; Allen Ledyard, secretary; Norman Barker, treasurer; and Bruce D. Birgbauer, chancellor.

Other members of the vestry, the church governing board, include: Robert Atkinson, John W. Coe, Mrs. Gaylord Creedon, Mrs. Helen Santiz, J. Michael Smith, Donald N. Sweeny III, Edward White, Mrs. John Williams, Richard Williams and Dr. Calier H. Worrell.

Redeemer Methodist Church offers contemporary nativity

Redeemer United Methodist Church, 20571 Vernier in Harper Woods, will present "Dream Light," a contemporary interpretation of the Nativity, at 6:30 p.m. on Sunday, Feb. 16, at the church.

Cast members are from Cass Community United Methodist Church. They're under the direction of Michael Lee, a mime artist and choreographer. The play places Mary and Joseph in the present. Instead of being turned away from an inn 2,000 years ago, they are denied beds at a shelter for the homeless. Instead of being born in a stable, the baby Jesus is born in a refrigerator box in an alley in Detroit.

"Dream Light" is sponsored by Redeemer's council on ministries and by other east side United Methodist churches, including Grosse Pointe, Zion, Mt. Hope, Christ, Jefferson Avenue, Peace and Emmanuel.

A free-will offering will be collected and the proceeds from the evening will go to the Cass Community Church and Center, which serves many homeless people in Detroit.

Christ Church presents forum

A forum for adults on the role of the church will be held at Christ Church Grosse Pointe, 61 Gros Pointe Blvd., on Sunday, Feb. 16, at 10:15 a.m. The Rev. Ted Cobden will lead a discussion of the following question: In light of the American experience of separating church and state, what is the appropriate voice of the church in the public square — particularly when it comes to debating issues of social welfare?

The discussion is especially timely in view of the recent state budget cuts, particularly in the area of general assistance. The forum is open to the public, at no charge. For more information, call the church at 885-4841.

Explore spirituality in fast-paced world

St. Paul Catholic Church will present "Rush House Spirituality," two interactive evenings for adults, on Tuesdays, Feb. 18 and 25, beginning at 7:30 p.m. in the church at 170 Grosse Pointe Blvd., Grosse Pointe Farms.

The programs will explore ways to promote Christian roots in a fast-paced contemporary world.

The facilitator will be Todd Rey, a seminarian in his third year of graduate studies at Sacred Heart Major Seminary in Detroit.

The public is invited.

Alzheimer's support group will meet

The Warren area Alzheimer's support group will meet on Monday, Feb. 17, from 10 a.m. to noon at A Friend's House Adult Day Care Center in Warren, 28111 Imperial, one block east of Hoover and one block south of 12 Mile.

The group provides support and information to family members who are caring for relatives with Alzheimer's disease or other dementia.

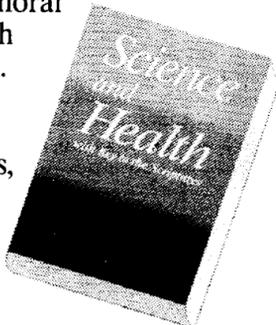

Group co-leaders are Ilene Zakul-Krupa of the Detroit chapter of the Alzheimer's Disease and Related Disorders Association, and Suzanne Szczepanski-White of A Friend's House.

For information, call 751-6260. A Friend's House is a program of Catholic Services of Macomb and Generations Inc.

If there is one thing I could recommend to someone who feels forgotten on Valentine's Day, it is this: picture the ache in your life as occurring within the pierced heart of a God who cherishes you eternally. Dwell in the gift of that love, and let God begin to heal your wounds.

"As the Father has loved me, so have I loved you. Dwell in my love." (John 15:9)

Mr. and Mrs. Craig M. Baetz

Moehs-Baetz

Katherine I. Moehs, daughter of Peter and Judy Moehs of Freeland, married Craig M. Baetz, son of Janet Baetz-Ferguson and Lowell Ferguson of Grosse Pointe Farms, on Oct. 19, 1991, at Grosse Pointe Memorial Church.

The Rev. Gordon A. Mikoski officiated at the 11 a.m. ceremony, which was followed by a reception at Alcamos in St. Clair Shores.

The bride wore a white satin gown which featured a beaded bodice and a ruffled skirt. She carried a cascade of white gardenias, white roses and two-tone dendrobium orchids.

The matron of honor was Heidi LaMarr of Paw Paw.

Bridesmaids were Sharon Whitman of Birmingham, Kristin Anderson of Milford and Karen Fenner of Plainwell.

Attendants wore iridescent plum-colored dresses with black velvet bodices and carried single white roses.

The best man was the groom's brother, Robert Baetz of Grosse Pointe Farms.

Groomsmen were Andy Scott of Pittsburgh, Scott Irwin of Birmingham and Peter Toenjes of Grosse Pointe Farms. Ushers were the bride's brother, Douglas Moehs, and Tom Veselenak.

The mother of the bride wore a black chiffon dress with a silk underlay and a white rosebud corsage.

The groom's mother wore a flowered mauve silk dress and a white rosebud corsage.

The bride earned a bachelor's degree in social work from Western Michigan University. She is a child care worker at the Children's Home of Detroit.

The groom earned a bachelor's degree in computer science from Western Michigan University. He is a systems manager for Quality Computers.

Horner-Buda

Jennifer Angela Horner of St. Clair Shores, daughter of Joanne Wilson Horner of Winter Park, Fla., and Charles Hemstead Horner of Warren, married Thomas Walter Buda of Grosse Pointe Farms, son of Betsy Buda Armstrong of Grosse Pointe Farms and the late John W. Buda, on Sept. 28, 1991, in front of the fireplace in the clubhouse of the Grosse Pointe Hunt Club.

The Hon. Michael J. Connor of the Michigan Court of Appeals officiated at the 5 p.m. ceremony, which was followed by a reception.

The bride wore a blush satin two-piece floor-length dress with a slim skirt and a double-breasted top which featured a shawl collar decorated with lace and seed pearls. She carried a bouquet of white orchids, mountain lilies, Lady Di roses and trailing ivy.

The maid of honor was Caroline Hoski of Grosse Pointe Park.

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Walter Buda

Bridesmaids were Katherine Gardella of Washington, D.C., and Robin Halter of Seattle.

Attendants wore tea-length grape silk off-the-shoulder dresses with sarong skirts. Their flowers were stargazer lilies tied with satin ribbons.

Groomsmen were the groom's brother, William Buda of Grosse Pointe Farms; Daniel Cooke of Grand Rapids; and Thomas Carson of Portland, Ore.

The mother of the bride wore a magenta silk crepe chemise trimmed with sequins.

The groom's mother wore a petal pink silk dress with a dropped waist and a tiered skirt.

The accompanist was the groom's brother, William Buda, who played the piano. Elizabeth Wilberding read from the Christian Science hymnal. Thomas Carson read a short story, "Off to Sea."

The bride earned a bachelor of arts degree in English from Michigan State University. She is a sales representative for Pitney Bowes Mailing Systems.

Diabetes control in children

For the child with diabetes, a balanced diet, regular exercise and daily injections of insulin are the components of diabetes control. Control means keeping their blood sugar level as close to normal as possible, so they can feel good and keep up with their friends.

Dr. David Transue, of Grosse Pointe Park, director of the Pediatric Diabetes and Growth Clinic at St. John Hospital and Medical Center, says that with supervision, children can monitor their sugar levels and learn to master the components of self-care.

"Sometime between 6 and 10, the child will start to do some of their own testing. The responsibility for the diet requires an adult involvement right up through teenage years since there are too many attractive hazards. As far as giving their own injections, usually as they start to approach 10, we begin to talk to them about this. A few children may do it earlier, but that's unusual, and they should never be giving it without adult supervision," he says.

"Exercise burns energy or sugar in the body, and that keeps sugar levels down," says Transue.

"We want the children to exercise on a more regular basis. Kids under 10 aren't really motivated to get out and push themselves. When they get past 10, they start to worry about fitness and different types of sports. But between 6 and 10, it's just difficult to get them moving. I think the biggest factor is just to turn off the TV set," he says.

Council of Garden Clubs holds final meeting, joins Garden Center

and to review its 44 years of accomplishments. Betty Frankel, garden editor of the Detroit Free Press, showed slides of past garden tours. It was the last meeting of the council.

Members will join the Grosse Pointe Garden Center, which will maintain the same values held by the council.

President Ann Cook thanked committee members Mary Lou Boresch, chairman; Marie Mainwaring, reservations; Susan Zuger, decorations; and Margaret Borden and Lucy Grenske, nametags. Cook announced that in 1991, $11,299 was allotted to the beautification commissions of Grosse Pointe Farms, Woods and Park, the Shade Tree Council, Grosse Pointe South High School, Grosse Pointe War Memorial and the Detroit Garden Center.

Clara Schumann, the council's first president from 1948-50, reviewed its early history. In 1948, representatives of seven local garden clubs formed a council to promote civic improvement and beautification. In 1986 the name was changed to The Council of Grosse Pointe Garden Clubs.

Early concerns of the council included Dutch Elm disease, city planning and beautification. Public forums were held on these subjects and yearly clean-up campaigns were instituted. In 1955 the council won second place in a national Cleanest City contest. In 1964, it received a $250 Sears Award for city beautification and the council held free lectures on the use of outdoor Christmas lighting.

Through the funding of the garden clubs, the council sent 30 Grosse Pointe teachers to conservation school at Higgins Lake during its first 10 years.

Margaret Hefler, president from 1961-66, spoke to the group about the council's annual sales of crab apple trees. In 1955 they planted 738 trees. By 1963, more than 2,300 trees had been planted. With funds from the sale of trees, donations from the garden clubs and the Sears Award of $250, the council began planting flowering trees on Lakeshore. This and the replacement of shrubs and trees continued for more than 20 years. Winter winds and salt from the road make it necessary to constantly replace the trees and plant larger ones on Lakeshore.

Mary Lou Boresch, president from 1971-74, reviewed accomplishments of the council up to the present. The tree sales continued, she said, enabling the council to plant eight Snowdrift crab apple trees along the Charlevoix side of Elworthy Field. Money was also donated for perennials, and environmental books were placed in the Grosse Pointe schools.

A new set of slides featuring indoor Christmas decorations was taken by Jane Kohring and used for programs by garden clubs.

In 1974, the first of 18 garden tours was sponsored by the council. During these years, 104 gardens were viewed by the public and a profit of $84,777 was used for beautification. Over $5,000 was spent on the landscaping and redesigning of the entrance of Grosse Pointe South High School.

Other donations were made to the Grosse Pointe Shores

Lakeshore planting project, the Grosse Pointe Farms beautification committee, the Farms park Recreation Building and the landscaping of two islands on Lakeshore in memory of Margaret Gram and Jean Lowe, former active members of the council.

Other funds were donated to the Grosse Pointe Woods beautification commission for landscaping the Veterans Parkway, Fairford Road and the island on Mack Avenue in front of city hall.

Louisa St. Clair, NSDAR, to honor students

Louisa St. Clair chapter, NSDAR, will meet at the Jefferson Avenue Presbyterian Church on Thursday, Feb. 20, at 10:30 a.m. to celebrate American History Month. Sponsors are Elizabeth Ryckman and Patricia Sawyer. Hostess is Marion Mountz.

Chairman Andrea Weyhing will present pins, certificates and dictionaries to the winners of the American History Essay Contest. The topic was "Famous Women of the American Revolution." From metro Detroit schools, the sixth through eighth graders to be honored are: Kathleen King of Our Lady of Victory; Gretchen Moore of Greenfield Peace Lutheran; Toohie Verma, of University Liggett School, Jackie Korreck of Our Lady of Victory; Raymond Jones of Greenfield Peace Lutheran; Greg Moore of Greenfield Peace Lutheran; Chrystie Dawn Richards of St. Anselm; Lisa Zwierinkowski of St. Anselm; Paul Moore of Our Lady of Victory; and Tiesha Marie Walker of The Dominican Academy.

Chairman Joan Moorman will present awards to Detroit high school seniors who submitted essays on "Our American Heritage and My Responsibility to Preserve It," and were selected by their teachers and peers to be "good citizens." They will receive pins, certificates and books.

Regent Dorothy Brown will greet students, counselors and parents attending the luncheon.

For reservations, call Harriette Wheeler, Louise Reading or Louise Colter.

Questers to hear lecture about quilts

The Grand Marais chapter of Questers will meet at the home of Margaret Thompson on Friday, Feb. 14, at 9:30 a.m.

Crit Leibbrand will be the speaker. Her subject will be "Quilts," which are considered to be America's special contribution to the world of art. Not only did quilts give women an opportunity to reveal their creativity and imagination but often quilts are the only remaining records of their existence. They are often dated and signed by the creator and are collectible items.

Woman's Club will honor presidents

Members and guests of the Grosse Pointe Woman's Club will gather on Wednesday, Feb. 19, at 12:30 p.m. in the Crystal Ballroom of the Grosse Pointe War Memorial to honor present and past presidents of the club and of the Federation of Women's Clubs of Detroit.

Program chairman Mary

Ann Schwartz will introduce Vincent Syracuse of Leader Dogs for the Blind, who will bring a dog with him.

Members planning to invite guests must make reservations by contacting the hospitality chairman no later than Saturday, Feb. 15. Call 885-8232 or 885-4994.

Charles Mitchell, deputy national and foreign editor of the Detroit Free Press, will speak at the Grosse Pointe War Memorial on Friday, Feb. 21, at 7:30 p.m., under the auspices of the Alliance Francaise de Grosse Pointe.

Mitchell was bureau chief for UPI, stationed in Moscow from 1986-1989. Before that, he worked in Nairobi, Johannesburg and Beirut. He will speak about the breakup of the Soviet Union and its immediate and longtime impact on Eastern Europe, Western Europe and the United States. He will also answer questions from the audience.

The program is free to members; $2 for guests. There will be refreshments. Reservations are requested. Call 881-9729.

Republican women hear Engler, Binsfeld

The Republican Women's Business and Professional Forum will host a reception and dinner in honor of Michigan's First Lady Michelle Engler and Lt. Gov. Connie Binsfeld beginning at 6 p.m. on Tuesday, Feb. 18, at the Birmingham Community House, 380 S. Bates, Birmingham.

Engler will discuss her life as the wife of Gov. John Engler; Binsfeld will talk about what is happening in the state Legislature.

Tickets for the dinner and reception are $110 each; $50 for the reception only. For reservations, call 681-1990.

Men's Garden Club to meet on Feb. 20

The Men's Garden Club of Grosse Pointe has invited the public to hear Dan Castner talk about the easy way to get started growing orchids.

The meeting will be at 7:30 p.m. on Thursday, Feb. 20, at Brownell Middle School. Coffee and doughnuts will be served. There is no charge.

AAUW to host roundtable discussion on educational equity

The Grosse Pointe branch of the American Association of University Women (AAUW) will sponsor an Educational Equity Roundtable on Thursday, Feb. 20, at 7:30 p.m. at the Grosse Pointe War Memorial, 32 Lakeshore. Participating will be 15 men and women, leaders in education and the community, who will discuss the status of girls in today's classrooms. The panel will view the AAUW video, "Shortchanging Girls, Shortchanging America," and respond to questions guided by Kay MacDonald, president of the Grosse Pointe branch of the League of Women Voters.

The community is invited. Reservations are not necessary.

Participants will include the Rev. Charles Boayue Jr., pastor of Jefferson Avenue United Methodist Church; Hank Burakowski, principal of St. Clare of Montefalco School; Frances Carnaghi, counselor, Grosse Pointe South High School; James G. Cook, consultant to

Sinkel
James G. Cook, consultant to corporations worldwide, former president of the Thomas Edison Foundation and senior adviser of the National Science Foundation; Terese Duell, president of the Grosse Pointe PTO Council and associated groups; Betty Grady, Detroit Edison Co., human resources department; Kathleen Herschmann, assistant principal, Grosse Pointe North High School; Gloria Konler, vice-president of the Grosse Pointe Board of Education and certified by the Michigan Association of School Boards; Roger McCaig, director of research and evaluation, Grosse Pointe public schools; Janis Morrison, elementary science consultant for the Grosse Pointe schools; Sally Roberts, mathematics education professor at Wayne State University; Jean Rusing, principal at Trombly Elementary School; Paula Sinkel, University Liggett School mathematics department; Margie Reins Smith, feature editor of the Grosse Pointe News; and Arthur Weinle, Earth science/geology teacher at Grosse Pointe North High school and executive board member and president-elect of Michigan Earth Science Teachers Association.

The video is based on the results of AAUW's nation-wide poll on education and equity which included interviews with 3,000 4th- to 10th-graders, examining gender differences in self-esteem, interest in math and science and career aspirations.

"Persistent patterns of gender-related differences in self-esteem, student performance and interests, and role models must be addressed in our schools, said Rosemarie Dyer, president of the Grosse Pointe branch of AAUW. "The forces creating these patterns steer girls away from the courses of study, particularly math and science, that will prepare them for jobs of the 21st century."

By presenting the roundtable, the AAUW hopes to be a catalyst for systematic change and a leader in the field of educational equity, to implement change and draw local attention to the educational needs of girls.

Sharon Schuster, national AAUW president, said we have a "window of opportunity" to do something for girls. "While other groups may report our research, we are taking action," she said.

Bridge

HAVE A PLEASANT TRY AT PERFECTION
BRIDGE BY WOODY BOYD

To be honestly conscious that one has much to learn about our magnificent game is the initial step to becoming an excellent student. Conversely it is impossible for a bridge player to improve if he thinks he already knows.

The engagingly favored Sheila Book recently commended me on a column well done with a submissive admission that much that was written was beyond her.

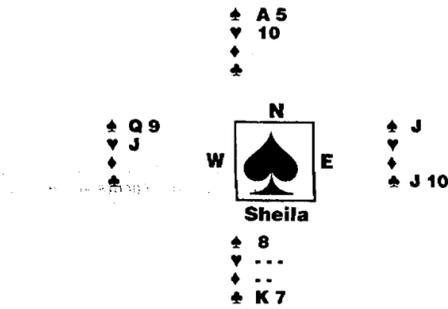

This prompted me to inquire whether she would be willing to walk with me thru a hand that at first glance seemed troublesome, but in effect required reason and seasoning only a shade above the average good player. Sheila, for those who don't know, is from that wonderful dimension that is usually willing to undertake any challenge that will advance her intellect and accepted my tender enthusiastically. After all it was the first day of the new year and if bridge was to become her diversion in '92, she wanted to get off to a good start.

A coup is an experimental attempt at performing a successful stratagem usually related to card games. A coup d'essai is a first attempt at the same.

I seated Sheila south with the following hand after first introducing her to her partner, Homer Omen, who had a notorious habit for over-stating his values.

E	Sheila	W	Homer
-	1C	-	1D
-	1S	-	3D

			W. led H K

Six no trump was obviously a shot. One of Homer's humdingers from some make-believe land where they weave rope out of sand, but the cards before us would have to do. As Sheila and I agreed, there were only eleven winners; five diamonds, three clubs, two spades and a heart. West's lead gave us no time to develop a third spade in the event the six missing broke three/three. Finally, she turned to her teacher with her hand held high and asked to be excused, but I would have none of that. It's difficult moments like this that I always pass the buck and asked her what she intended to do? With a glance of disenchantment she answered, "I'll duck the heart king, that may induce West to abandon the suit." Unfortunately he was persistent and continued with the queen. It hardly seems necessary to point out that this was no time to concede a second loser in that suit so Sheila own her ace. After she had deliberated some do's and don'ts, she concluded the time was upon us to win a few tricks and this received my blessing. From trick 3 thru 10, she won the next eight tricks in this sequence. The queen of diamonds then overtaking the jack to run four more in that suit and the ace/queen of clubs. Next a small spade to her king and even a blockhead could spot the ending. Sheila had developed a double squeeze which was appropriately christened the Coup d'Essai. Note the three card ending!

At this point, my new found start decided to play get even games with me. She fingered first her club seven and then the spade eight which produced a Labrador cold sweat and ghastly facial disfigurement upon this kibitzer. Recognizing my discomfort, she finally laid down the club king which immediately restored my life signs.

What was West to do? He had to play ahead of dummy's heart ten threat card. There was no salvation. For those who thought East misplayed by not pitching a club and holding the spade jack small the same consequences. South now wins two clubs and the spade ace.

Any player who can correct the count at trick one which sets the stage for a double squeeze can no longer behind novice alibies. So fair warning to you Madame Hustler, we have your number!

BirthCare™ at Bon Secours.

It's a child's game, but it's also good advice.

Bon Secours was the first hospital in the Detroit area to offer single-room maternity care. This alternative to traditional childbirth allows the mother-to-be to stay in the same warm, comfortable room throughout her delivery. We call it BirthCare, and when we first introduced it, other hospitals were still wheeling their laboring mothers from one room to another.

We thought it was a good idea to design a delivery around the mother, not a delivery around the hospital. That's why BirthCare has become so popular. And that's why a lot of women have chosen Bon Secours as their hospital. Maybe you should, too.

For more information about BirthCare, a tour of the unit, or referrals to qualified obstetricians who can answer questions about your pregnancy, call 779-7911.

Nobody does it better. Nobody's done it longer.

Chuck O'Connor and Heidi Guthrie in "Greektown Story," one of 11 vignettes in the Attic's "Cruisin' Detroit...the Hard Way."

When 'Cruisin' Detroit', A little humor goes a long way

By Ronald J. Bernas
Staff Writer

A character in one of the 11 vignettes that make up "Cruisin' Detroit...the Hard Way" asks his friend, "Why did you get so serious?"

And that's what anyone who's followed the short life of the Detroit Playwrights Initiative wants to know.

What started out as a way to look at the issues of race, violence, apathy and boredom in the city has become "Art." When it began, most of the playlets were comic looks at serious issues. It wasn't that serious issues were made light of, rather, they were presented in a way that made the audience think. Now, judging from the production at the Attic, it seems they're trying to "say something." That's kind of a drag.

The Detroit Playwrights Initiative (DPI) is a small and hopeful group of four talented playwrights. Formed in March, before Gov. John Engler started slashing funding for the arts, the group got a state grant and created three evenings of entertainment.

They're not exactly plays, they're a series of vignettes set in and around Detroit. The first was called "Detroit Stories," and was presented as a staged reading, first at 1515 Broadway, and then was included in this year's season at the Detroit Repertory Theatre. The second collection was called "Cruisin' Woodward," and played for several months at the Magic Bag Theatre in Royal Oak. The third grouping had a holiday theme and was called "Jingle Bells...the Hard Way."

"Cruisin' Detroit...the Hard Way" is a collection of the best from each of the shows.

And while some of them are excellent, there's music and mood lighting that only seem to halt the forward progression that is so necessary when presenting a series of short, unrelated sketches. You get the feeling you're in a coffee house and it's an uncomfortable you-don't-really-belong-here-because-you're-not-this-hip feeling. Although you sometimes have to open an audience's eyes, it's not good to turn off more than half of them.

Most scenes are monologues. They deal with everything from being the only unattached person at a New Year's Eve party, to a yuppie couple that gets stranded in their brand new car in a terrible Detroit neighborhood, to a connection made by two people riding the Peplemover alone on Christmas Day.

The best scenes could be set anywhere, but have a few Detroit references thrown in: "Boy, she's lucky she lives on the waterfront — if you didn't know it was built on a toxic dump you'd never know."

And most are very funny. But then you get those that "say something." And, well, let's be honest, it's disconcerting to pay money to be preached at about the brotherhood of man when you're out for an evening of entertainment.

That said, it's important to point out a few things.

First, DPI is one of the brightest new ideas to hit Detroit's theater scene since the Fox reopened. It's just getting a little too serious.

Second, one of the actors had an emergency and couldn't make the Saturday evening performance. His parts were read by other actors, script in hand. That accounts for most of the lack of pace in the more than two-hour show.

Two of the best scenes are by Janet Pound. Her talent for getting inside the heads of her characters is amazing. Her monologue of a young Chaldean woman whose dreams have to be deferred while she works to save money to bring her aunt to Detroit from Baghdad rings as true as the despair the female police officer feels that causes her to take the law into her own hands.

Her pieces are proof that you can be preached at without knowing it.

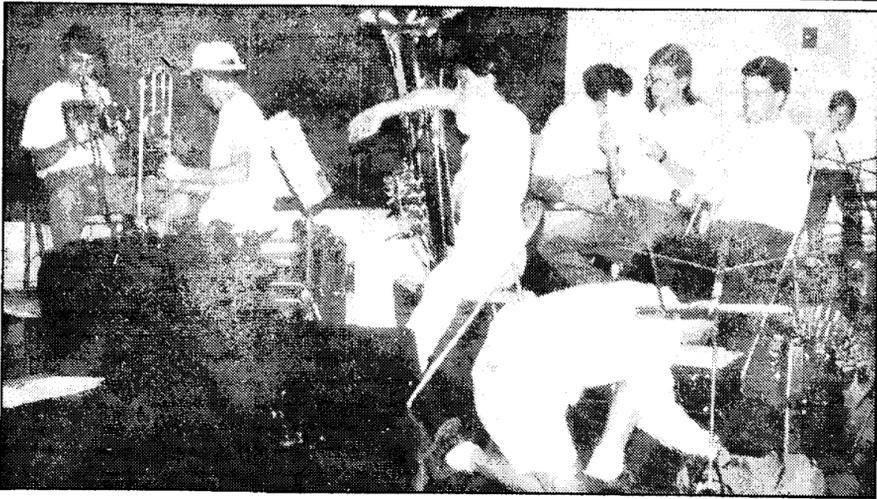

And then there's "Resolution" by Kim Carney, author of five of the pieces. The hilarious monologue is about a frumpy woman at a New Year's Eve party. Grosse Pointe's Donna DiSante walks the tightrope between hope and self-pity in what is the evening's best performance.

Two other Grosse Pointers also turn in good performances. Peter Bellanca and Heidi Guthrie show great versatility portraying different characters. And Chuck O'Connor is also quite funny.

We really want DPI to work and with talented playwrights like Carney, Stephen Mack Jones, Janet Pound and Frank Provenzano, it will. They just need to get back to their roots and back to the humor.

There's more healing in humor than there is in pathos.

The show runs Thursdays through Sundays at the Attic through March 1. Call 875-8284 for ticket information.

Members of the Metropolitan Youth Symphony spend their Saturday mornings rehearsing the music of Mozart and Beethoven, not watching cartoons.

Youth orchestra lets youngsters shine

By Ronald J. Bernas
Staff Writer

Each Saturday 260 young musicians gather at Southfield Lathrup High School to play in the Metropolitan Youth Symphony.

They come from as far away as Windsor, Ypsilanti, Flint, Grand Blanc, Grosse Ile and as near as Grosse Pointe. Under the baton of three professional conductors, the young musicians perform works like Berlioz' "Symphony Fantastique," and Sibelius' Second Symphony.

It's hard work, and it takes a lot of practice at home, but it's worth it, the young musicians say.

Maria DiFiore, a junior at Grosse Pointe South, has played the oboe for four years. She liked the idea of playing in a symphony like her father, DSO cellist Mario DiFiore. She sat in on a few rehearsals and auditioned last summer. She was placed in the Concert Orchestra, the middle of the three playing levels.

"I like it very much," DiFiore said. "I get to play challenging music I don't get in school."

That's not to discount the school's music program, she said. It's only that students who are willing to give up their Saturday mornings to rehearse are more focused on their music.

John Rutherford, also of Grosse Pointe, agreed. He's been playing his trombone for seven years and for the last two has played with the Metropolitan Youth Symphony.

"Everyone in it has the same desire and the same love of music," he said. "I get a good feeling when I play with people who feel the way I do."

John Wei, 15, heard about the group from his private cello teacher.

"We get a little more challenging music and it's more fun," Wei said. His little brother, Benjamin, also plays cello in the group. Other Grosse Pointers in the group include Peter Jacobs, Catherine Nairn, James Olzmann and John Ross.

The Metropolitan Youth Symphony is 10 years old and this year consists of 260 youngsters in grades five through 12. Once a child graduates high school, he graduates from the youth symphony, too.

Auditions are held in the summer and the students are put in one of three groupings, based on their talent level, said Elaine Thorpe, a representative of the symphony.

The String Orchestra is the lowest level and is led by Jacqueline Coleman, department head and director of the middle school music program at Detroit Country Day School.

"She's a stickler for tone and she's great with the kids," Thorpe said. "She gets good sound out of those kids. That group plays pieces that are arranged and simplified, but the older groups play from the original scores."

The Concert Orchestra is conducted by Richard Pippio, a teacher and conductor at Wayne State University; the Symphony Orchestra, the highest level, is directed by Alan McNair, concertmaster and assistant conductor of the Rochester Symphony and orchestral director at Troy High School.

The quality of the individual groups is quite high, Thorpe said. The Michigan School Band and Orchestra Association named the Symphony Orchestra the best in the state a few years ago.

And Hans Vonk, a DSO guest conductor last year, stopped by rehearsals and was so impressed he took over and gave the students a quick tune-up. He said when he comes back again, he would like to spend time with the students.

"I think that says a lot for the group," Thorpe said.

Although the conductors are professionals, there is a huge contingent of parents that tends to the day-to-day administrative and secretarial duties. All are parents of the young musicians.

"We couldn't do this without the parents," said Mary Howarth, president of the symphony's board. "We're unique because we have such a separation. We don't get involved with the music end of it at all."

And although it's a lot of work — renting rehearsal space, writing and printing programs and tickets, hiring adjudicators for auditions, looking for grants and just getting their kids to rehearsal on time — she says it's not difficult recruiting the parents to participate.

"A lot of parents are willing to make the sacrifice because the opportunities for musicians are few and far between," Howarth said.

Students must pay a yearly membership fee of approximately $150, but it is waived for those who can't afford it. Some students are given jobs — setting up chairs or cleaning up afterward — to offset the cost. Scholarships are awarded every year to musicians who want to continue their musical studies in college.

The group is not necessarily designed to create tomorrow's symphony musicians, Thorpe said. Instead, it is designed to compliment their school music program and their private lessons.

"Many of these kids will never make a living playing their instruments," Thorpe said. "But they love it so they stay with it. And many of them are the orchestra-goers of the future."

The Metropolitan Youth Symphony will play Sunday, Feb. 16, at 7 p.m. at Orchestra Hall. The youngest group will play selections from Double Concerto for String Orchestra from the Concerto for two Violins in A minor by Vivaldi, the "1812 Overture" by Tchaikowski and "Don't Cry for me Argentina," from "Evita." The Concert Orchestra will play Tchaikovsky's Second Symphony and the Symphony Orchestra will play Sibelius' Symphony No. 2.

Tickets are $15 for box seats, $10 for main floor and dress circle and $8 for balcony and are available at the Orchestra Hall box office. The money raised at this concert helps the group meet expenses throughout the year. For more information, call 644-8105 or 375-0206.

DSO report:

Concerti and suite make a concert of contrasts

By Alex Suzyk
Special Writer

For his last appearance with the orchestra until April 9, Maestro Neeme Jarvi programmed a diverse combination of music that made for some thought-provoking connections.

As different and contrasting as were the premiere of Leslie Bassett's Concerto for Orchestra, Haydn's Cello Concerto and Gustav Holst's suite "The Planets," they share conceptual features that lend theoretical meaning to their combination on one program.

Commissioned by the DSO, U of M professor Bassett's Concerto for Orchestra is an expression of his own well-developed personal idiom in orchestral composition. Bassett avoids melodic themes, creating instead moods and effects that evoke emotional response. But these appear to be his themes and he develops them and creates variations of them much as we heard Haydn do with simple melodies in the cello concerto that followed.

One cannot listen directly, much less analytically, to the elements that make up Bassett's music, however. They only make sense in the overall effect that they create, except rarely when he indulges in a brief canon or statement of a few notes.

His art is in the many tonal colors he creates through ingenious and innovative orchestration and the constantly changing moods. Some listeners described it as a dramatic score looking for a drama. Young listeners of an earlier decade might have found in it music to run on to. Its feature in the repertory will depend considerably on the ability and willingness of audiences to listen and enjoy it on its own terms.

These impressions were put into deep perspective by the Haydn Concerto for Cello in C major. Soloist was Marcy Chanteaux, assistant principal cellist of the orchestra. The elegant and mathematically logical melodic lines and developments stood in stark contrast to the swelling chords and sound effects that preceded. But another point of interest took precedence.

Chanteaux's tone and technique on the cello are much to marvel at. She plays with strength and assurance and with an assertive style that served much of the concerto very well. It was at the same time graceful and often moving.

Her entry in the second movement repeating the theme introduced by the orchestra had grace and a tenderness that was sustained through the movement with the touching effect of a lover's refrain — a level of passion not often associated with the early classical style.

It was rendered all the more moving by its contrast with the Bassett work, despite two difficulties. The first was a brief bobble in the first movement cadenza. The last movement was more of a problem, however. Maestro Jarvi led it off and Chanteaux fell in with the orchestra at an even faster pace than usual for this already tricky and demanding section. The result was to make the music cloudy and labored, detracting from an otherwise delightful performance.

Holst's suite that ended the program, portraying the mythical character of Earth's seven sister planets that were known at the time it was composed, proved to be the crowd pleaser of the evening. Interestingly, it seemed to represent a transition between the concepts of the two preceding pieces, alternating between the creation of pure mood, and the development of melodic thematic ideas.

Recognizing and musing over the character of each planet as its music unfolds is pure pleasure when it is played as well as in this performance. The warlike vigor, somewhat satiric in feeling, of the opening portrayal of Mars is irresistible, raising visions simultaneously of ancient armies and special effect starships. The airy and ethereal music of "Venus, The Bringer of Peace" inspires reverie and on it goes.

Holst's orchestrations, ranging from delicate, detached playing by the strings to massed unison of powerful themes, provided a highly satisfying and sensual demonstration of the great acoustics of Orchestra Hall. The rafters rang and the back wall echoed richly in this performance. The DSO sounded absolutely magnificent.

And all this was capped by another Jarvi demonstration of his remarkable rapport with the orchestra in an expressively phrased performance of "Pete Polanaise" by Chabrier. It raises the thought that one of those CDs that Chandos has contracted to record of Jarvi and the DSO should be a collection of his encores. With a little more rehearsal, this one is a blockbuster.

Tonight, Friday morning and Saturday evening bring conductor Christopher Seaman and pianist Horacio Gutierrez for a program of Davies' "Orkney Wedding with Sunrise," the Rachmaninoff Piano Concerto Number 3 and Sibelius' Symphony Number 1. For tickets and times, call the box office at 833-3700.

Give your Valentine a hearty, but Heart Smart treat

February is National Heart Month — just the occasion to start using Henry Ford Hospital's recently released "Heart Smart Cookbook."

Heart Smart is a community-oriented health promotion program of the Henry Ford Heart and Vascular Institute.

It began five years ago as a cooperative effort between Henry Ford Hospital and local retail food outlets. The purpose of the program was to provide nutritional information to the consumer at the point of purchase, allowing him to make a more educated choice regarding his food selections.

Last fall, Henry Ford Health System's Heart Smart program and the Detroit Free Press published the long-awaited "Heart Smart Cookbook," filled with nearly 200 kitchen-tested recipes that are as delicious as they are good for you.

All of the dishes meet Heart Smart guidelines for low fat, cholesterol and sodium.

Unfortunately, many people believe that low-fat, low-cholesterol dishes are low on taste and too much trouble to prepare. But switching to a heart-healthy way of eating and living doesn't have to be dull or difficult. This cookbook proves it by providing:

- Tempting recipes for a wide variety of dishes, including appetizers, soups, salads, entrees, desserts and beverages. There are even meatless and ethnic specialties to try;
- Nutritional information per serving for every recipe;
- Information for planning a Heart Smart diet, including diabetic exchanges;

The cookbook, which is spiral-bound and has wipe-clean covers, is available at Hudson's, Pointe Pedlar and local bookstores. You also can place your order by calling 1-800-245-5082 (outside the 313 area code) or 962-6657, Monday through Friday. Visa and MasterCard are accepted. The price of the cookbook is $14.95 plus $2 shipping and handling.

Health lectures will be offered as part of Grosse Pointe Community Education. They include: Heart Smart cooking demonstrations from 1:30 to 3:30 p.m. on Feb. 14; "Consumer Approval to Medical Care and Understanding Medications" from 1:30-3:30 p.m. Feb. 21; and "Stroke Education" from 1:30-3:30 p.m. Feb. 28. The lectures are free to seniors 60 and older and will be at Barnes school. To register call 343-2178. The lectures are sponsored by the Henry Ford Heart and Vascular Institute.

Pork Chops with Raisins and Apple Brandy

Lean tenderloin pork chops get a distinctively sweet flavor from the apple brandy and raisins in this recipe.

- 1/4 cup raisins
- 2 T Calvados (also known as apple brandy or apple-jack)
- Vegetable cooking spray
- 4 lean tenderloin pork chops (4 ounces each) trimmed of excess fat
- 1/4 t salt
- Freshly ground black pepper to taste
- 1/3 t dried thyme
- 1 clove garlic, pressed or minced
- 1 medium carrot, sliced
- 1 small onion, chopped
- 1/2 cup chicken broth, defatted, low sodium
- 1/2 cup dry white wine

Elegant Eating

By Irene H. Burchard

In a small bowl, marinate raisins in Calvados. Coat a large skillet with vegetable cooking spray. Add chops and saute, turning, until browned on both sides. Sprinkle with salt, pepper and thyme. Add garlic. Reduce heat to moderately low, cover and cook 20 minutes. Add carrot and onion and cook 20 minutes. Add raisins and Calvados marinade and cook 5 minutes more. Remove chops to a warm serving dish, allowing excess grease to drain by using a slotted spoon. Arrange vegetables and raisins around chops; cover to keep warm.

Drain fat, if any, from pan. Add chicken broth and white wine to skillet. Heat sauce, stirring frequently, until it boils and thickens slightly, approximately 10 minutes. Pour over meat and vegetables and serve. Makes 4 servings.

Diabetic exchanges: 3 lean meat, 1 vegetable, 1/2 starch.

Chocolate Valentine Cake with Raspberry Filling

- 1 1/4 cups sugar, divided
- 1/2 cup cocoa, sifted
- 1 cup buttermilk, divided
- 1/2 cup soft tub margarine
- 4 egg whites
- 2 cups cake flour, sifted, plus one teaspoon for pan
- 1 t baking soda
- 1/8 t salt
- 1 t vanilla
- Vegetable cooking spray
- Raspberry filling (recipe follows)

Preheat oven to 350 degrees. In a medium bowl, beat until well blended: 3/4 cup sugar, cocoa and 1/2 cup buttermilk. Set aside.

In a large bowl, beat margarine, gradually adding remaining 1/2 cup sugar. Add egg whites and beat until blended. Beat in cocoa mixture. Re-sift two cups cake flour with baking soda and salt. Add two cups of cake flour in three parts to the margarine mixture, alternating with remaining buttermilk and vanilla. Beat batter after each addition until smooth.

Spray bundt or tube pan with vegetable cooking spray and dust with remaining teaspoon of flour. Pour batter into pan and bake 40 to 45 minutes. Let cake cool in pan about 10 minutes on wire rack, then remove from pan: Let cake cool an additional 30 minutes. With a sharp knife, slice cake horizontally through center so you will be able to spread raspberry filling inside the cake. Spread filling evenly on bottom half of the cake and carefully replace top half. Be sure to line up ridges if you are using a bundt pan. Makes one cake.

serve 1/4 cup juice and discard remaining juice from berries. In a small saucepan, combine berries and 1/4 cup juice; cook on low heat until slightly thickened. While berries heat, mix cold water and cornstarch and stir until cornstarch is dissolved. Add cornstarch to berries and continue heating until mixture becomes the consistency of jam. Remove from heat; refrigerate until ready to spread, at least 20 minutes.

Community ed sponsors spring tour to Europe

"Spring Enchantment," a tour personally conducted by Jan Arndt of Skylight Travels of America, will visit Holland, Belgium, Luxembourg, and Germany, and feature a multi-night visit to Berlin. Sponsored by the Department of Community Education, the tour is scheduled for April 28-May 12.

A special information night has been planned beginning at 7:30 p.m. on Wednesday, Feb. 26, in Room 108 of Barnes school, 20090 Morningside Drive, Grosse Pointe Woods.

The evening's program will include a video presentation and will provide opportunities to ask questions about "Spring Enchantment" and to receive details of the itinerary. In addition, it will afford would-be participants the opportunity to meet others with whom they will travel.

The tour features "Floriade," the special Dutch horticulture show which takes place only once every 10 years and is known as the "Greatest Flower Show on Earth." The tour includes visits to numerous cities of interest to history buffs with special emphasis on World War II and the recently ended Cold War.

Points of interest in Germany which the group will visit include Trier, Koblenz, Cologne, Hamelin, Berlin, Dresden, Hamburg, and Bremen.

Highlights of the Belgian portion of the trip include Bruges, Ghent, and Brussels. During the tour of the Netherlands, the group will visit Amsterdam, Aalsmeer, Haarlem, the Hague, Maastricht, Groningen, Leeuwarden, Sneek, and Apeldoorn.

The basic price of the tour is $2,500, with a reservation deposit of $500 payable by Friday, Feb. 28 to Skylight Travels. Final payment is due Thursday, March 12.

Included in the price, in addition to airfare, are admission to the Keukenhof Gardens, Madurodam, Floriade, Charlottenburg Palace, Pergamon Museum, Zwinger Complex, canal cruise in Amsterdam and Het Loo Palace and Gardens.

Also included are guides in The Hague, Bruges, Brussels, Ghent, Luxembourg, Berlin, Dresden, and Hamburg. Daily breakfasts are included in the price, as are eight dinners, and rooms in first-class hotels.

For further information and space availability, call Skylight Travels at 881-2200.

In the mood

Whether you dance or not, there's plenty of fun to be had to the music of Glenn Miller, Benny Goodman, Harry James and Tommy Dorsey as played by Chet Boggan and the Wolverine Jazz Band at the Grosse Pointe War Memorial on Friday, Feb. 21, from 8:30 to 11:30 p.m. Bring your own beverage, or buy soft drinks at the War Memorial. Tickets are $10 or $75 for a table of eight. Light nibbles are included. Call 881-7511 for more information.

Creative process on display

"Caught in the Act: Live from Detroit Focus III," is an evening of art and entertainment to benefit Detroit Focus Gallery, Detroit's non-profit artists' alternative space.

The event is from 7 to 10 p.m., Saturday, Feb. 15, at The Loft in Trappers Alley, located on the third level next to the people mover station.

As with previous "Live from Detroit Focus" fundraisers, a number of area artists will be on hand to create works of art during the evening which all patrons will have an opportunity to win. The fundraiser will include refreshments and music. There will also be free valet parking for benefactor ticket-holders.

Featured artists are painters Kiersten Armstrong and Stephen Goodfellow, cartoonist Draper Hill of Grosse Pointe, sculptor Jim Pallas and photographer Lisa Spindler. Master of ceremonies will be state Sen. Jack Faxon.

Learn to cook

"Fish Cookery," a new offering by the Department of Community Education, will be presented at 7 p.m. on Wednesday, Feb. 26, at Barnes school, 20090 Morningside Drive, Grosse Pointe Woods.

The fee for the class, conducted by Edwin Schmidt, owner and manager of Grosse Pointe Fish Market, will be $15.

People are eating more fish and seafood today, but many are hesitant because they don't know what to look for when they buy fish and they often don't know how to cook it. Learn the basics of microwaving, broiling, baking, sauteing, and poaching - enhanced with some imagination.

Charity Suczek, Grosse Pointe's acclaimed master cooking teacher, will continue her current Tuesday evening winter series of single-session classes with "The Classic Cuisine of France: An Introduction" on Sunday, Feb. 16.

She continues with "French Provincial Cooking" on Feb. 25, "Delights from the Deep" on March 3, "Secrets of Sauces" on March 10, and concludes with "Palate-Pleasing Casseroles," on March 17.

Classes are also at Barnes school. Prior registration is urged for all classes. Call 343-2178 for more information.

All ticketholders will be eligible to win a work of art. Tickets are $50 for benefactors, which includes five chances to win, and $25 for patrons, which includes one chance to win. All ticket purchases are tax deductible. For more information, call 962-9025.

Vandellas concert

There will be swingin', swayin' and records playin' and dancin' in the streets as the Radisson Plaza Hotel at Town Center teams up with Martha Reeves and the Vandellas and WMXD "The Mix" for a Valentine's Motown spectacular on Friday, Feb. 14.

The show will take place in the Algonquin room, with concert times at 8 and 10 p.m. Partial proceeds from the event will go to the Motown Museum.

For $50 a couple, sweethearts will enjoy a concert and an afterglow sweets reception. Women will receive a long-stemmed rose.

Call 827-4000 for reservations.

Also available Feb. 14 is a special dinner at Tango's European Bistro in the hotel. The $37.95 cost per couple includes a prime rib dinner and a bottle of champagne.

Call 827-1382 for reservations.

Lady Devils ramble past foe

By Chuck Klonke
Sports Editor

It's tough enough to play Fraser once a week in volleyball, but Grosse Pointe South got a double dose of the Ramblers last week.

"They can be tough because they play defense so well," said Lady Devils coach Cindy Sharpe after her team posted a 15-13, 11-15, 15-9 triumph over Fraser in the championship game of the Wayne State Invitational tournament.

"They're always hustling for the ball and they do a good job of setting so there are some long volleys. You just hope they make a mistake before you do, but we kept our wits and were able to beat them."

Earlier in the week, South improved its Macomb Area

Conference White Division record to 9-0 with an 11-15, 15-1, 15-10 victory over Fraser.

South breezed through pool play at Wayne State. The Lady Devils downed Bishop Gallagher 15-3, 15-6; beat Bloomfield Hills Lahser 15-5, 15-11; handed Melvindale a 15-7, 15-5 defeat; and crushed Madison Heights Lamphere 15-4, 15-1.

South survived some poor serving to beat Port Huron 15-10, 15-9 in the quarterfinals and beat Villanova, a team from Windsor, 13-15, 15-11, 15-6 in the semifinals.

"We missed 18 serves against Port Huron and it continued in the first game against Villanova," Sharpe said. "When you can't serve it's contagious. Then the girls get so careful, they're afraid to throw the ball in the air. Fortunately, we got through that little trauma and played pretty well."

Angela Drake had 69 kills in the tournament and added 29 blocks for points or sideouts. Stephanie Coddens had 43 kills and Ashley Moran added 25. Sue McGahey served 13 aces and had 19 kills.

"Sue Faramouth had a great tournament," Sharpe said. "She had 165 assists and I can remember only three errors all day. She's doing a good job of moving the ball and is getting it to the right people. She's aware of the positioning on the court and distributes the ball accordingly."

South's league victory over Fraser was a thriller.

"They couldn't do anything wrong in the first game," Sharpe said. "We couldn't stop their big kid, but in the second game we blocked her four times."

The deciding game tested Sharpe's patience and the team's mettle.

"We were down 6-1 and I'd used both of my timeouts," the coach said. "It was a very grueling and emotional match, but we really came together as a unit."

One of the factors in South's success was the back-row play of Vicky Spicer.

"She made a couple great saves that gave us an emotional lift," Sharpe said. "Some of her defensive plays really frustrated Fraser. Vicky showed that it isn't always the front row players who get the glamour."

Spicer also served nine points and had only one error in 13 attacks.

Coddens led the Lady Devils with eight kills and Drake had six. McGahey and Moran each had four kills. Faramouth had 25 assists and served 13 points.

South opened the week with an easy 15-7, 15-7 victory over Anchor Bay.

Drake had 10 kills and Liz Binder, playing her best game, contributed six kills and did a good job blocking. McGahey and Coddens each had four kills.

"We're playing better than we had been," Sharpe said. "The girls are playing well as a unit and during the tournament they were really into the games, mentally and physically. They were checking the scores of the other matches themselves, instead of relying on me."

South, which is ranked eighth in Class A in the state coaches' poll, improved its overall record to 26-1.

Ex-Tiger offers good advice

Bill Freehan didn't need a second look at Jon Simmons to realize that the son of former St. Louis Cardinals star Ted Simmons wouldn't follow in his father's footsteps.

The younger Simmons was trying to make Freehan's Michigan baseball team as a walk-on, and Freehan knew it was going to be a waste of time.

But first, Freehan decided to give the elder Simmons, who was then the farm director for the Cardinals, a call.

"I asked Ted if he wanted me to keep his son on the team as a favor to him, otherwise I was going to cut him," Freehan related. Simmons' reply surprised Freehan.

"If you cut him, you'll be doing my wife and I a big favor," Simmons said. "Now he can concentrate on his engineering degree. If I'd have thought he had a future in baseball, I'd have signed him myself."

Freehan, who spoke at a joint meeting of the Moms and Dads clubs at Grosse Pointe South last week, told that story to illustrate that eventually youngsters — and their parents — have to stop chasing a dream.

The former Tiger catcher, who is now in his third season as Michigan's baseball coach, seems like too nice a guy to play the part of a heavy, but every year he has to burst the dream world of many former high school stars.

"It's difficult to cut a kid, but in my heart I know it's the right thing to do so he can get on with the rest of his life," Freehan said. "Sometimes it's hard to get across that they haven't failed through any fault of their own. Usually those are the kids who have always tried hard and maybe overachieved, but now the talent pyramid gets smaller. I try to tell them that they'll be further ahead in the long run if they redirect their time."

Freehan offered several suggestions to athletes who might be planning on playing sports after high school.

"Learn the game," he said. "Play as many positions as you can and don't put if the coach moves you to a position that isn't your favorite. Don't even get too sport-specific. I get upset with high school coaches who try to talk athletes into specializing in one thing. Competition is what's most important at that level."

"I grew up in Royal Oak and there was a beautiful field within walking distance of my house, but I played my summer ball in Detroit where I could play against Willie Horton, Dave DeBuschere, Fergie Jenkins, Alex Johnson and guys like that. The fields might have been rougher, but the competition was a lot better."

Freehan said that it's important for prospective college athletes to hone their skills against the toughest competition possible. He and his scouts scour the best summer leagues for potential Michigan players.

"I look for the God-given abilities like speed and a strong arm, but I also look at a kid's work ethic. I'm not going to spend my time teaching a kid to hustle. I have only three scholarships a year to give, so I'm not going to waste one on somebody I have to discipline, no matter how talented he might be."

Freehan warned athletes that the new NCAA rules on scholar-athletes have made it more difficult to obtain a scholarship.

"By 1993, I have to see that a high school athlete has passed his ACT or SAT and has at least a 2.0 (grade-point average) in 11 core classes before I can invite him for a visit," Freehan said. "In 1995, it will require a 2.5 in 13 core courses. When a high school coach tells me a kid was timed at 90 miles-an-hour on a radar gun, I'll say, 'That's nice, but has he passed his ACT or SAT tests?'"

Freehan cautioned parents about using computer resume services to alert college coaches of their youngsters' abilities.

"Spend the $200 or whatever it costs on something else," Freehan said. "Parents who use those services are getting ripped off, because those packages get tossed in the wastebasket. The same thing goes for tapes. We find our players through coaches making personal contacts, through scouts, alumni and other interested people. Coaches pre-screen the players and then we watch them during the summer in the American Legion and Connie Mack leagues."

"I can't stress enough the importance of playing in the best summer leagues. My parents would take vacations in the summer, but I stayed behind to play ball."

There are three players from the east side on Michigan's baseball team. University Liggett grad Kevin Crociata is a shortstop prospect and there are two Notre Dame grads on the pitching staff, Brian Santo and Ray Ricken.

"I want to do a better job of recruiting in Michigan," Freehan said. "Last year's Big Ten Player of the Year was Minnesota's Brent Gates, who is from Michigan, and Indiana won the conference championship with five starters from Michigan."

Park league is starting over

By Chuck Klonke
Sports Editor

Starting over is a way of life for Greg Hacias.

The new president of the Grosse Pointe Park Little League is a high-ranking official with Saturn, the automobile company which is trying many innovations in producing and marketing cars.

Hacias is taking the same approach in his new position with the Little League.

"We're starting over, just like Saturn did," Hacias said. "We're taking a clean-sheet approach in operating the league this year."

There are several projects that Hacias and his 12 other board members have planned before the season opener in late April.

"We're looking at the purchase of a batting cage and we're going to upgrade the fields and fences," he said.

"We're going to rework our uniforms and buy new equipment to improve the appearance and safety. We're also working on ways to improve the umpiring in the league."

"Our coaches are going to have to earn their jobs. They'll have to show that they know the game and possess teaching skills."

The board includes Hacias, vice-presidents Doug Cheek and Lon Morawski, treasurer Ross Braun, secretary Chris Otto and consultants Greg Werley and Angelo Tocco. Werley and Tocco were league officers last year.

"They'll help with the transition period," Hacias said.

Other board members are Dick Schroder, Chris Mo-

Joe Louis experience a thrill for ULS skaters

By Chuck Klonke
Sports Editor

University Liggett School's hockey team wouldn't trade the experience of playing at Joe Louis Arena, but they were happy to return to the friendly confines of McCann Rink.

"I don't know how the NHL players do so well here," said Knights' co-captain Bill Robb after ULS dropped a 4-2 decision to Sault Ste. Marie in a preliminary game before last week's contest between the Red Wings and Toronto Maple Leafs.

"It just shows that you have to be pretty darn good to play in the NHL. It was fun to play here, but I'll take McCann."

Goalies Chris Eldridge and Tom Best, who divided the duties in the nets against the Blue Devils, didn't feel at home at Joe Louis.

"It seemed a lot different," said Eldridge, who had played in the arena before in a youth hockey game. "The ice seemed really soft and it was hard to get my footing. I don't know how they make the ice, but it wasn't like water ice. It was hot, too."

Best, who entered the game midway through the second period, had a chance to soak up the surroundings before he had to play.

"The most striking thing was just stepping on the ice for warm-ups and looking around at how big it is," he said. "Once you're playing you have to stop looking around because if you don't your head won't be in the game."

"I noticed it was difficult to see the high shots and the puck comes off the boards different than we're used to."

Although it took some adjustments, Best was delighted with the opportunity to play on the same ice as his NHL heroes.

"The next time I watch a Red Wings' game from here and I see (backup goalies) Greg Millen or Vince Riendeau on the bench I can say, 'I sat there, too,'" Best said.

ULS coach John Fowler said the experience was one the teams would never forget.

"We played here four years ago," Fowler said. "It takes some adjustments because you play 10-minute periods and there's no resurfacing between periods, but it's great for the kids. It's good of the Red Wings and the Ilitches to make this opportunity available. I'm sure there aren't many NHL teams that do this."

A Red Wings' spokesman said only two other NHL teams have regular programs which allow youth and high school teams to play preliminary games.

Sault Ste. Marie, ranked second in the state in Class B-C-D, scored three times in the final 2:20 of the first period to open a 3-0 lead. Defenseman Nick Poliski scored the first Blue Devils' goal and Ryan Lamma tallied twice in the last 25 seconds.

ULS sophomore Eric Kisskalt scored from the edge of the crease at 1:38 of the second period on assists from Stefan Teitge and Andy VanDeweghe.

Kisskalt cut the Blue Devils' lead to 3-2 at the 18-second mark of the third period when he picked up a loose puck at the blue line and broke in alone for his second goal of the game.

Best made a spectacular save on a breakaway during a Blue Devils' power play to keep the Knights a goal behind, but Sault Ste. Marie sealed the victory when Lamma completed his hat trick with an empty-net goal with 14 seconds to play.

The Knights' return to McCann was a scoring celebration as ULS rolled to a 12-1 victory over Saginaw Nouvel in a rematch of the 1990 Class B-C-D state championship game.

"We played with the intensity and emotion we need every night and which we didn't have against Sault Ste. Marie," Fowler said. "We jumped on Nouvel and didn't let up. They regrouped after the first period and played much better, but we were jumping all day."

ULS, which outshot the Panthers 50-12, took an 8-0 lead in the opening period, with sophomore Kip Gotfredson scoring three times.

Kisskalt led the Knights' attack with five goals and an assist. VanDeweghe had a goal and four assists and Mike Whelan collected four assists. Jay Ricci, Teitge and John Maycock each had a goal and an assist. Robb assisted on three goals, Alex Crenshaw had two assists and Nick Giorgio, Bill Burns and Omar Sawaf added an assist apiece.

Grosse Pointe South's gymnastics team did a lot of growing up between its meets with Fraser and Livonia Clarenceville.

"Clarenceville was a victory for us from the time we left school until the time we returned," said Lady Devils' coach Al Trombley after South's 121.1-113.2 victory.

"We looked like a team and acted like a team against Clarenceville. I wasn't pleased with our performance against Fraser in our first meet away from home so I laid down a few rules. We're a very young team and maybe I expected too much of them."

South's performance against Clarenceville gave the Lady Devils one of the four scores of 115 points or more it needs to qualify for the state regional tournament.

Jogan sets new pace

Tim Jogan finished second in the 500-yard freestyle in the state Class A swimming meet last year and the Grosse Pointe South swimmer is hoping for better things this year.

"He's about six seconds ahead of last year's pace," said coach Fred Michalik. "He's been working real hard to get his time down."

Jogan won the 500 freestyle in 4:41.97 to highlight South's performance in a 116-70 loss to Ann Arbor Pioneer last week. He also won the 200 freestyle in 1:47.76 and swam a 47.1 leg in the 400 freestyle relay.

Senior Robin Ebright turned in another outstanding performance for South as she was first in all-around with 35.70 points. She scored 9.2 in vault, 9.1 on the parallel bars, 8.7 on the balance beam and 8.7 in floor exercise.

Andrea Reynolds was second in all-around with a 28.90 score. She had a 7.4 in vault, 6.5 on the bars, 7.4 on the beam and 7.6 in floor exercise.

Shannon Keefe became an individual qualifier for the regional with an 8.0 in vault. She also scored 7.3 on the balance beam.

Melissa Grego had a 7.3 on the beam and sophomore Janiece Anderson had a personal best of 7.5 in floor exercise.

Earlier, South beat Fraser 113.3-99.2.

"Pioneer has a good kid in the 500 and Denny Hill (Pioneer's coach) wanted him to swim against Tim so he'd get the competition," Michalik said. "They were close at the start, but Jogan really took off after the 250 mark."

Last year, Jogan swam a 4:37 at the state meet, but finished second to East Lansing's Ian Moll, who recorded a 4:30.

South's Chad Hepner won the diving against Pioneer with 280.80 points and Andy Walter won the 50 freestyle in 22.7.

North victory features unusual tie

Nothing could be further from the truth.

The two Norsemen wound up tied for first in the event in North's 125-58 victory over Utica, but that's where the similarity ends.

"They swam totally opposite races," said coach Les Roddis. "One started out slow and came on real strong. The other one started fast and slowed down. But they wound up in the same place at the same time. It was really an unusual race."

The winning time for Ditty and Galvin was 1:12.27.

North had several other winning efforts in the Macomb Area Conference American Division meet.

Steve Williams took the 200 freestyle in 1:51.24; Craig Wil-iams won the 50 freestyle in 24.11; Steve Chevalier won the diving with 156.5 points; Charlie Roddis was first in the 100 butterfly in 56.53; Jeff Dungan had a winning time of 5:37.36 in the 500 freestyle; and Rusty Milne won the 100 freestyle in 1:03.3.

The Norsemen swept the three relays. Milne, Ditty, Roddis and Craig Williams won the 200 medley relay in 1:50.56; Steve Williams, Mike Collins, Galvin and Craig Williams took the 200 freestyle in 1:40.8; and Steve Williams, Paul Reaser, Roddis and Milne teamed up for a 3:40.2 in the 400 freestyle relay.

Other strong performances came from Paul Swan in the 200 freestyle (2:08.38); Steve Williams in the butterfly (1:00.26); Reaser in the 500 freestyle (5:58.51) and Dennis Lex in the 100 breaststroke (1:21.45).

Earlier in the week, North dropped a 128-58 decision to powerful Birmingham Groves.

Win over Rice caps Devils' week

By Chuck Klonke
Sports Editor

It was Showcase Sunday in the Michigan Metro Hockey League and Grosse Pointe South put on quite a show.

The Blue Devils, who are ranked fifth in the state in Class A, got a goal from Steve Solaka midway through the third period to edge No. 1 Brother Rice 2-1.

"It was a real good game," said South coach John LaLonde, who saw his team win three times last week. "We were missing four players, too, because of injuries and illness, but the other kids worked a little harder to make up for it."

Showcase Sunday matches the teams in the two divisions according to their position in the standings and it's designed to provide an opportunity for college coaches to see all the teams in the league at one site.

Brother Rice opened the scoring at 9:47 of the first period and neither team scored again until the Blue Devils' Kris Hoglund tied the score at the 46-second mark of the final period with assists from Todd Frederickson and Kevin Brennan.

"That goal seemed to pump some new life into us," LaLonde said. "We lost a little of our pizzazz after their goal, but both teams played well in the second period."

Each team had only three shots in the final period, but South broke the deadlock when Solaka got the puck eight feet in front of the net, turned around and shot it in. David Tucker drew the only assist.

"Steve actually had his back to the play," LaLonde said. "Fortunately, the goalie was out of position."

Jason Hall played a strong game in goal for South, which was down two men when the Blue Devils drew a penalty after the Warriors pulled their goalie for an extra attacker in the final minute and a half.

The Blue Devils won't have much time to savor their victory over Brother Rice because they meet crosstown rival Grosse Pointe North tonight, Feb. 13, at 7:30 at the Shores Civic Arena.

"That game really scares me," LaLonde said. "North will be ready and we'll be playing in front of a bigger crowd than usual. All the fans will be from one end of Grosse Pointe or the other and it's tough for the kids to keep focused. Lots of times they'll try to do something fancy to impress their friends."

South posted two other impressive victories last week as it improved its record to 13-4 overall.

Frederickson scored three goals and Marcel Chagnon added two in leading the Blue Devils to a 10-1 romp over Allen Park Cabrini. Kevin Watt had a goal and four assists, Brennan had a goal and three assists, Brian Crane scored once and assisted twice and Solaka had a goal. "I've been telling Frederickson not to worry about not scoring because he's been playing such a strong all-around game," LaLonde said. "It was good for him to get a few goals."

Frederickson continued to find the range in South's 5-3 victory over Ann Arbor Pioneer.

Pioneer scored 19 seconds into the game, but Frederickson tallied the first of the Blue Devils' three first-period goals and set up Brennan for the third. Paul Hadad also scored in the period.

Brennan and Crane notched second-period goals for South.

Tucker, Crane, Tom Rajt, Hall and Hadad also had assists for the Blue Devils.

"We ran into some penalty problems in the third period," LaLonde said. "We have to show more discipline when we're ahead."

Klobuchar sets good example for mates

The next time Grosse Pointe North hockey coach Dan Abraham talks about how a team can make its own breaks, he can use Mike Klobuchar as an example.

Klobuchar scored his second goal of the game with 4:21 remaining in the third period to lift the Norsemen into a 4-4 tie with Ann Arbor Pioneer in the Michigan Metro Hockey League's Showcase Sunday.

"It was a lucky goal because it wasn't shot very hard, but Mike made it with hard work," Abraham said. "I tell the kids to play through the man who's checking them instead of just digging the puck out of their skates. That's what he did and it resulted in a goal."

Canadians are still spoilers

Grosse Pointe North's volleyball team can handle the American teams pretty well in Wayne State's tournaments. It's those Canadians that drive the Lady Norsemen crazy.

North has been ousted from the last two Wayne State tournaments by a Canadian school. Several weeks ago it was Windsor Brennan. Last weekend it was Villanova that handed the Lady Norsemen a 10-15, 15-10, 15-3 defeat in the quarterfinal round.

"We were tired because we had to play our first-round match and the quarterfinals without a break," said North coach Leslie Harwood. "Villanova is a scrappy team that really hustles."

North had several fine performances in its final match. Stephanie Gore served seven points, had 25 hits and three kills; Missy Bania served 10 points and had four kills among 16 hits; Jenny Shapiro played well in the back row and Tricia Campau and Laura Cartwright did a good job setting.

In the first round after pool play, the Lady Norsemen breezed past Troy Athens 15-7, 15-8.

Melissa Drouillard served 16 points, including six aces. Gore had 15 hits, two kills, three blocks and two saves and Campau and Cartwright continued their strong setting.

"We could have made it a little closer, but we were disqualified in two relays and Brett Collins was sick and only swam one event," Les Roddis said. "He'd have helped in the 500 freestyle and in the relays."

North's only winners were Charlie Roddis in the 100 butterfly (55.40) and Steve Williams in the 500 freestyle (4:56.9).

"That's the second time Charlie's just missed the state cut," said his father and coach. "He needs a 55.29. Hopefully, he'll get it Saturday in the MISCA (Michigan Interscholastic Swim Coaches Association) meet at Eastern Michigan."

North had several strong performances against Groves. Milne swam a 2:00.54 in the 200 freestyle and a 53.31 in the 100; Swan was clocked in 2:30.01 in the 200 individual medley and in 1:07.06 in the 100 backstroke; Dungan had a 5:39.71 in the 500 freestyle; and Rob Ament swam a 1:19.65 in the 100 breaststroke.

"Mike had a few games where he didn't score, but through hard work he's come back and will help us the rest of the season. He had a very strong game against Pioneer."

Klobuchar scored his first goal at 9:27 of the first period to tie the score at 1-1, but Pioneer scored with 1:26 left in the period to take a 2-1 lead.

Pioneer led 3-1 with a goal at the 13-second mark of the second period, but defenseman Brad Marshall returned the favor to bring North back to within one.

Pioneer scored at 2:40 of the third period to raise the margin back to two goals, but Joey Sucher answered for the Norsemen at 9:45 to make the score 4-3.

Gary Corona and Brian Quinn each had two assists for North and Jeff Jensen and Paul Megler collected one apiece.

"My only complaint is that we took some bad penalties," Abraham said. "We can't afford to take the lazy penalties that put us in a hole. That's where we have to show more maturity."

Earlier in the week, North dropped a 3-0 decision to Southgate Anderson.

"Our intensity and work ethic just weren't there," Abraham said. "We left it all in Chuck's (goalie Chuck Schervish) hands."

North plays two emotional games this week. The Norsemen meet Grosse Pointe South tonight, Feb. 13, at 7:30 at the Shores Civic Arena and will host Riverview Gabriel Richard on Saturday.

"I told the kids that Saturday's game is my South," Abraham said. "I graduated from (Richard) and I want to beat them. Besides, if we win, we have a good chance to pass them in the standings."

Defense revives Devils

By Chuck Klonke
Sports Editor

Good defense can cure a lot of ills for a basketball team.

"If you play good defense, you'll still be in the game if you're not having a good game offensively," said Grosse Pointe South coach George Petrouleas. "We worked on a lot of fundamental things to improve our defense, especially in protecting our defensive basket."

"Defense is hard work and sometimes your offense will suffer because of it, but we have intelligent kids and they understand what we're trying to do."

The Blue Devils' defense sparked twice last week as South beat Romeo 52-37 and edged L'Anse Creuse North 53-45 in overtime in a pair of Macomb Area Conference White Division contests.

The two victories lifted South's league record to 4-2 and its overall mark to 8-4.

South plays at Fraser on Friday after completing the first half of the league schedule with Anchor Bay on Tuesday.

"The kids knew they could play better than they did last week (when the Blue Devils lost twice)," Petrouleas said. "It's one thing when you don't have the talent to do better, but we have talent."

South broke open a close game in the second half against Romeo, extending a 21-17 lead to 34-23 after three quarters. The Blue Devils' margin eventually reached 23 points early in the final quarter.

Mike McLaughlin led South with 24 points and Mike Armstrong tossed in 11.

"Matt Recht did a good job of running the offense," Petrouleas said. "He had half a dozen assists."

The Blue Devils' game with L'Anse Creuse North was tight from start to finish. South led 5-4 after the first quarter, but the game was tied 17-17 at halftime and deadlocked at 30-30 after three quarters.

A pair of costly turnovers by the Blue Devils late in the final period enabled the Crusaders to take a nine-point lead with two minutes left, but a furious comeback by South sent the game into overtime. Paul Geist hit a three-point shot with 11 seconds remaining in regulation to knot the score at 45-45.

"We capitalized on every mistake (LCN) made," Petrouleas said. "You have to be a little lucky to come back like that, but our kids executed well. We work on situations with a time element in practice, so they stayed very poised when it came down to the final minutes."

South dominated the overtime period. Blair Hess put in an offensive rebound to give the Blue Devils the lead and they kept expanding it by hitting six of seven shots from the foul line. Hess, who finished with 19 points and 14 rebounds, made three of the free throws and Recht dropped in two.

"Blair was very instrumental on the glass in the second half," Petrouleas said. "It was one of his best all-around games."

McLaughlin led South with 21 points and set up Geist's tying basket.

Blue Devils pin league rival

Larry Carr hopes the right Grosse Pointe South wrestling team shows up for Saturday's Macomb Area Conference White Division tournament.

"We're unpredictable," Carr said after the Blue Devils split a pair of dual meets last week. "We're either up as a team or down as a team. If we're up we'll be in the tournament all the way. If not, we'll be in trouble."

Carr was pleased with South's performance in its 38-30 victory over L'Anse Creuse.

"We wrestled real well as a team," the coach said.

One of the top performances was Chris Gianino's 8-7 victory over Tom Hunyady, who had finished fourth in the Macomb County Invitational at 145 pounds.

"Chris wrestled a strong match," Carr said. "He was on top for much of the match, and he got a reversal with about 30 seconds left to win the match."

South won three bouts on pins. Nate Eriksen (119 pounds) got a fall at 2:16; Mark Francese (125) pinned his man in 3:26; and Dan Klaasen (152) won by a pin in 3:32.

Scott Cairo posted a 15-1 decision at 140; Jesse Culver won 9-1 at 171; and Rich Reynolds took a 4-0 decision at 189.

South dropped a 39-24 decision to Dearborn Edsel Ford in a non-league match.

Eriksen got a pin in 53 seconds at 119 pounds and Reynolds pinned his 189-pound opponent in 3:40. Gianino won 7-1 at 145 and Culver notched a 4-0 decision at 171.

The division tournament will be held at Grosse Pointe North. Wrestling begins at 10:30 a.m. and the finals are scheduled for 4 p.m.

Knights are kings in Maumee

No one could blame University Liggett School if it asked to have its name associated with the Maumee Valley (Ohio) Invitational basketball tournament.

After all, the Knights practically own the event.

ULS beat Ann Arbor Greenhills 68-51 in the championship game last weekend to win the tournament for the sixth straight season.

Point guard Ken Hubbard, the tournament's Most Valuable Player, led the Knights with 24 points and seven assists. Senior Jason Drook scored 13 points and Dave Martin added 12.

Louis Johnson and Martin joined Hubbard on the all-tournament team.

"This was very satisfying," said coach Chuck Wright. "We have a real close team — one that is very good when we play as a single unit. Our bench is beginning to complement the first unit nicely."

ULS had a tougher test in the semifinals, beating the host Maumee team 70-63 in overtime.

The Knights trailed 46-33 after three quarters, but Martin came off the bench to score 13 points in the fourth quarter, sparking the comeback.

Hubbard fouled out with 2 1/2 minutes left and ULS trailing by six points, but freshman Joey Grant took over the offense and hit Vernon Pernel for some key inside baskets. The Knights rallied to a 58-57 lead with 12 seconds to play, but Maumee tied the score on a free throw to force the overtime.

Pernel and Johnson combined for ULS' first 10 points in overtime and junior guard Gary Spicer iced the victory with two free throws with 23 seconds remaining.

"It was an incredible comeback," Wright said. "Martin is a terrific shooter when he gets in that 'zone.'"

Hubbard led ULS with 19 points, Johnson had 17 points and 14 rebounds and Martin and Pernel added 16 points apiece.

North wins game; loses key player

Grosse Pointe North's basketball team played only one game last week, but the Norsemen still had a loss and a victory.

The victory was a 56-43 triumph over Fraser that improved North's record to 3-3 in the Macomb Area Conference White Division and 7-5 overall.

The loss was backup forward Matt Westbrook, who suffered a sprained ankle in practice which forced him to miss the game with the Ramblers.

"It was a pretty bad sprain so he might not play this week, either," said coach George Olman. "Matt had been playing well for us, so his loss hurts quite a bit."

The Norsemen played unbeaten Sterling Heights Ford on Tuesday and they'll host Romeo in a rare Thursday game.

"It'll be interesting to see what happens with the Thursday game," Olman said. "You never know how the kids will react when you break the routine."

North turned in a solid defensive effort against Fraser. The Norsemen led 29-15 at halftime and held the Ramblers to only 21 points through the first three quarters.

"Fraser isn't very big, but it has a couple of good shooters," Olman said. "We felt that if we put pressure on the kids who can shoot, we'd still be OK going to the glass."

The strategy worked as the Ramblers struggled offensively and North still held a 25-18 edge in rebounding.

Adam Lowry scored 19 of his 21 points in the first half for North and Adam Korzeniewski continued his strong play with 16 points. Lowry also pulled down 11 rebounds.

"Mike Haskell had nine rebounds and played very well defensively," Olman said. "Dan Devlin continues to give us consistently good minutes off the bench and Jason Rio had another good floor game."

Norsemen set for league meet

Coach Art Roberts isn't worried that Grosse Pointe North's first dual meet defeat will affect the Norsemen in their quest for a second straight Macomb Area Conference White Division wrestling championship.

"I think we're ready for Saturday," Roberts said. "The kids weren't down after losing. In fact, the pressure was off."

North hosts the division meet Saturday, beginning at 10:30 a.m. The championship round is scheduled for 4 p.m.

North dropped a 46-17 decision to a strong Farmington squad as part of a triple-dual competition with Southfield and Berkley. The Norsemen won the other two matches to finish 10-1-1 overall in dual meets.

"We were ahead 17-13 after seven matches, but then it was my sophomore boys against Farmington's senior men," Roberts said. "Their last six guys scored 33 points. That's basically a senior team and we didn't have their experience or physical strength with our young kids."

There were some highlights for the Norsemen. Keith Gianico ran his record to 30-0 with a 5-1 decision at 135 pounds and Dan Skuce improved to 27-4 with a fall in 1:26 at 140.

Another bright spot for North was the performance of freshman Tim McPherson, who took over for Charlie Vasapoli when Vasapoli suffered a broken elbow.

McPherson won an 18-3 decision at 112 pounds in the Farmington match and won two other bouts during the week.

North's other winner against the Falcons was Dave Sander-cott, who had a 12-2 decision at 103 pounds.

North overpowered Berkley 42-16. McPherson won by a pin in 4:45 at 112 and Skuce pinned his man in 1:48.

Winning by decisions were Sander-cott, 15-0 at 103; Dave Zoltowski, an 11-4 winner at 119; Jeff Rizzo, 6-3 at 125; Brian Kerber 2-1 at 132; Gianico, 2-0 at 135; and Fran Irwin, a 4-1 decision at 171. Joe Geibel wrestled to a 1-1 draw at 145 and Mike Gagala had a 4-4 tie at 160.

All but one of North's victories in a 60-12 win over Southfield were forfeits. Tony Romolino won by a pin at 152.

The Norsemen finished the league season with a 6-0 record after beating Lake Shore 57-15.

McPherson (112) won by a fall in 1:26; Kerber (125) had a pin in 1:29; Gianico (135) pinned his opponent in 2:26; Skuce had a 58-second fall at 140; Romolino (152) had a pin in 3:16; Gagala ended his 160-pound bout in 1:09; and heavy-weight Duane Leininger had a 61-second fall.

Sander-cott won 15-0 at 103 and Rizzo had an 11-1 victory at 125.

Michalik was also pleased with the effort of several of his young swimmers. Freshman Kyle Zeller swam a 1:02.6 in the 100 backstroke; Mike VandePutte recorded a 2:09.8 in the 200 freestyle and a 5:50.5 in the 500; and John Spain was clocked in 1:09.8 in the 100 backstroke.

Earlier last week, South rolled past Sterling Heights Stevenson 112-71 in a Macomb Area Conference American Division meet.

Jogan was first in the 200 freestyle in 1:46.6; Zeller won the 200 individual medley in 2:27.66; Norman Rice took the 50 freestyle in 24.6; Matt Millikin won the 100 butterfly in 1:03.1; Ryan Milligan was first in the 500 freestyle in 5:29.6; Brenn Schoenherr outdistanced the 100 backstroke field in 58.7; and Chris Jeffries had a winning time of 1:08.9 in the 100 breaststroke. Hepner won the diving with 195 points.

South also won the 200 medley relay as Schoenherr, Rob Bacon, Millikin and Tim Har-mount were clocked in 1:49.9.

Two victories by Jogan highlighted the Blue Devils' effort in a 115-68 non-league loss to Dearborn.

"We've selected some of the most dedicated parents and coaches we could find to put on the board," Hacias said. "We (board members) have 42 children of our own, who have been through or are in various stages of the program. We've been logging some long hours to get ready for the season. What we're working on is a team effort. I'll bet we've put in 60 hours a week between us, but nobody minds. Everyone is excited about what we're doing."

"The community is helping us advertise by putting up posters in the stores and the schools and we've received a lot of donations from people who are volunteering their professional skills."

Hacias, 42, is a former All-State quarterback at old Detroit St. Ambrose High. He received a full scholarship to the University of Nebraska and was a member of the Cornhuskers' national championship team in 1971.

"I understand sports and I have four sons, so I realize the importance of having a strong Little League program," Hacias said.

Hacias is open to suggestions from residents about how the program, which last year included 228 youngsters aged 8-12, can be improved.

"My address is 1013 Balfour, and I hope people will write to me with suggestions on how we can improve the league," Hacias said. "I'll respond to anyone who offers a suggestion."

Registration for the Park Little League will be held on Wednesday, Feb. 26, and Thursday, Feb. 27, from 6 to 9 p.m. at Pierce Middle School.

Tryouts will be Sunday, March 15, from 1 to 5 p.m. in the gym at Grosse Pointe South.

"The tryouts will ensure that our teams are as balanced as possible," Hacias said. "We're emphasizing development, not winning."

Fuller's 'Dymaxion House' donated to Ford museum

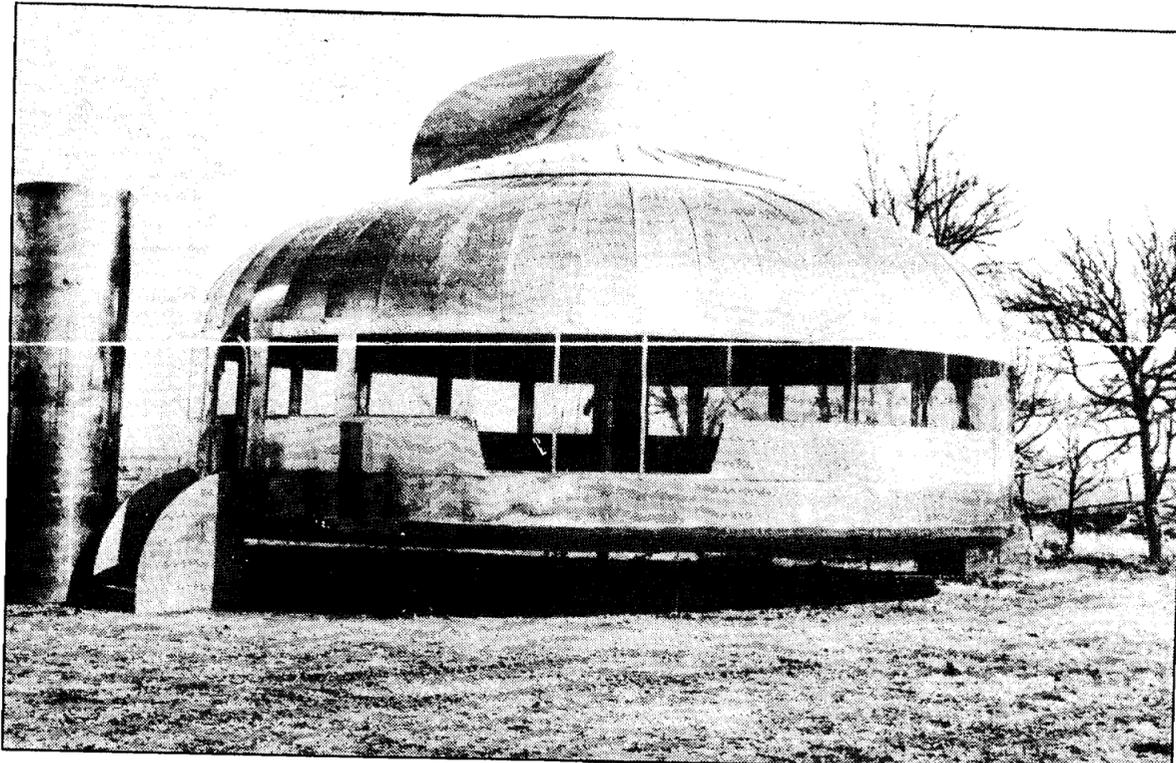

The only existing prototype of R. Buckminster Fuller's "Dymaxion House" has been donated to Henry Ford Museum & Greenfield Village by the Graham family of Wichita, Kan., the original owners and residents of the unique historic structure.

During 1992, the museum will analyze Dymaxion House's preservation requirements and arrange for its disassembly and shipment to Dearborn.

Conceived in 1927 and built in 1946, Dymaxion House was Fuller's proposed solution to the global problem of providing safe and affordable housing for large numbers of people. His philosophies and technical expertise contributed to a design that addressed the human need for comfort as well as the social need to conserve natural resources.

The circular-shaped, 1,075-square-foot structure was designed to be mass-produced in factories using assembly-line techniques. Lightweight and portable, the aluminum and Plexiglas two-bedroom house was suspended from a central mast and weighed only three tons, or about 1/50 as much as a conventionally constructed house. When packed for transportation, Dymaxion House occupied less than 300 cubic feet and could be shipped by air anywhere in the world.

Fuller originated the idea for Dymaxion House in the 1920s as a new approach to low-cost housing. Abandoning traditional ideas of shape and materials, Fuller developed plans for a house that could be made in a factory, then shipped to a site and set up in a matter of days. The name "Dymaxion" was coined from the words dynamic, maximum and tension — all key words in Fuller's vocabulary.

The only existing prototype of Buckminster Fuller's Dymaxion House — a landmark 20th century "dwelling machine" designed by the visionary scientist — will be moved from its site

A major drawback to production in the 1920s was the lack of suitable building material. Fuller's design specified an aluminum alloy, but aluminum producers argued that no alloy then in existence was strong enough to support a house.

In the waning days of World War II, however, the aluminum alloy that had been developed and found suitable for airplanes made building a prototype feasible, while the anticipated post-war housing and job shortages made Dymaxion House's re-introduction a possibility. Beech Aircraft produced the components for two prototypes of Fuller's Dymaxion House design in 1945 at its Wichita facility.

During the late 1940s and early '50s, Dymaxion House was the object of much media attention, with articles on Fuller and his creation appearing in news, science and business publications. Although some architects and builders were critical of the design, magazine and newspaper readers contacted Fuller with more than 30,000 requests for the proposed mass-produced houses.

Despite the publicity and apparent enthusiasm of consumers, however, Fuller and his Dymaxion House team were never able to finance the manufacture of the houses.

The two prototype houses were purchased by William L. Graham, a Kansas entrepreneur, in 1958. Graham modified the plans for the house to suit his own family's needs and had one erected on acreage he owned outside Wichita. He kept the second warehouse for spare parts. Graham, who died in 1981, lived in Dymaxion House with his wife and six children until the mid-1970s. "Growing up in a round house seemed normal to us," said Jack Graham, the youngest member of the family. "It was just our home. And it was great for running around when we were kids."

"The house attracted a lot of attention and my father enjoyed showing it off. He would even invite passersby to come inside and look around. We're happy that Henry Ford Museum & Greenfield Village plans to make Dymaxion House available for public viewing."

Museum officials are working to formulate a plan for the eventual interpretation and display of Dymaxion House, with assistance from the Buckminster Fuller Institute of Los Angeles. "It is logical and fitting that Henry Ford Museum & Greenfield Village is to be the new location of the Dymaxion House," said Donald G. Moore, a trustee of the Buckminster Fuller Institute. "The fact that the museum is focused not only on the past but also on the future is key to our enthusiasm."

Henry Ford Museum & Greenfield Village is a national museum of American history and technology founded by Henry Ford in 1929. Its mission is to collect, preserve and interpret to a broad public audience the American experience, with special emphasis on the relationship between technological change and American history. The museum is an independent, non-profit, educational institution not affiliated with the Ford Motor Co. or the Ford Foundation.

Keep 'em happy

How to develop winning relationships between contractors, homeowners and suppliers will be discussed at a seminar on Wednesday, Feb. 19, sponsored by the Builders Association of Southeastern Michigan's Remodelers Council.

Glenn Haeghe of the WXYT "Ask The Handyman" show will discuss strategies and concepts designed to make a potentially disagreeable situation into a mutually satisfying experience.

The seminar will be held from 8 to 10 a.m. at the Northfield Hilton, 5500 Crooks Road (at I-75). Registration fee, which includes a continental breakfast, is $20 for BASM members and $35 for non members.

For registration information, call 737-4477.

Environmental landscaping to be discussed Feb. 27

Environmental landscaping will be discussed at Grosse Pointe Citizens for Recycling's meeting at 7:30 p.m. Thursday, Feb. 27, in Cleminson Hall, Grosse Pointe South High School. The public is welcome.

Wayne Wilson, environmental landscape consultant, will focus on reducing chemical dependency, correct selection and use of plant materials and how to plant to attract wildlife in areas like Grosse Pointe.

Wilson will illustrate his talk with slides covering 20 years of working with his own acre of lake property in Waterford.

Viewers will follow its transformation to a wooded urban wildlife oasis with ponds, waterfalls, 180 species of trees and shrubs and 15 species of birds.

A graduate of Michigan State University with a degree in environmental education and a minor in landscaping, Wilson is an avid gardener and water garden specialist.

Citizens for Recycling will also update the community on current recycling activities and plans.

Lifetime design

Daniel Clancy, noted metropolitan area interior designer, will present "Interior Design for a Lifetime" sponsored by the Department of Community Education of the Grosse Pointe Public School System at 7 p.m. Thursday, March 12, at Barnes school, 20090 Morningside Drive, Grosse Pointe Woods.

"Quality interior design does not have to become dated," Clancy said. "Plan a long-range program of acquisitions that will enable you to use color and furniture styles that will last. Learn where to find and how to use good reproductions of antiques."

The fee is $10. Advance registration is advisable. Call 343-2178.

Very nice income property in Grosse Pointe City just 1/2 block off of Jefferson. Both units have same room sizes, separate entrances, all separate utilities, hardwood floors, three bedrooms, and lower unit has screened-in porch.

Newspaper-recycling storage unit easy to build

Now you can keep your old newspapers neatly corralled until you're ready to bundle them up for recycling. With its simple styling and natural wood finish, this handsome storage unit will look right at home in your living room, family room or den.

And by laying twine across the bottom of the empty container, it's also easy to tie and remove the papers when the bin is full. The unit will hold up to a month's supply of newspapers.

The container is made from standard-size western softwood lumber and requires no special woodworking skills or tools to build.

For the top and bottom frame you will need four lengths of 1 by 2, each 15 inches long, and four more lengths 16-1/2 inches long. Assemble the frames to form two rectangles 15 inches wide by 18 inches long. Glue the joints and secure with 1-1/2 inch screws.

(Tip: When you're working with small-dimension lumber, it's a good idea to predrill both nail and screw holes to avoid splitting the wood.)

Cut 14 lengths of 1 by 1s for the sides, each 14-1/2 inches long. (For a more finished appearance, you might want to cut the tops of the posts at an angle.) Mark the location of four 1 by 1 posts across the front and back of the lower frame and the three 1 by 1 posts at each end, allowing approximately 3 inches between posts.

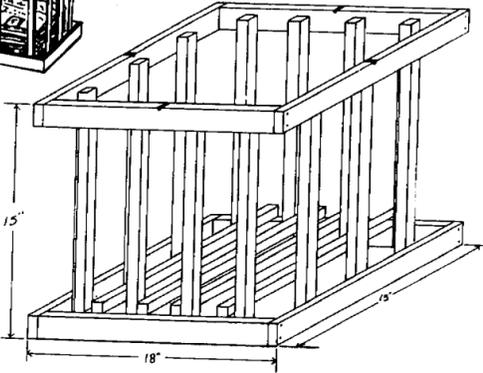

To be certain the posts will be vertical, transfer the marks to the upper frame. Glue and nail the 1 by 1s to the inside of the frame so the bases of the posts are even with the bottom of the lower frame. Position the tops of the posts 1/2 inch below the top of the frame.

To complete the base, cut four lengths of 1 by 1, each 15 inches long. Space the 1 by 1s evenly across the base, as shown, then glue and nail to the bottom frame. Finish the wood with one or more coats of polyurethane varnish.

Optional: To keep the twine in place as you load the newspapers, make small saw cuts in the outer edge of the upper frame. Make the cuts approximately 1/4 inch deep in the center of all four sides. Then, before you start putting in the papers, lay two lengths of twine across the bottom and secure the ends in the slots. For more projects you can build with wood, write to Western Wood Products Association, Dept. 192, Yeon Building, 522 SW Fifth Ave., Portland, Ore. 97204-2122.

101 PRAYERS
NOVENA TO ST. JUDE
May the Sacred Heart of Jesus be adored, glorified, loved and preserved throughout the world now and forever. Oh, Sacred Heart of Jesus, pray for us. Worker of miracles, pray for us. St. Jude, helper of the hopeless, pray for us.

Say this prayer 9 times a day. By the 8th day your prayer will be answered. It has never been known to fail, never. Publication must be promised. Thanks St. Jude for prayer answered. Special thanks to our Mother of Perpetual Help, K.S.

NOVENA TO ST. JUDE
May the Sacred Heart of Jesus be adored, glorified, loved and preserved throughout the world now and forever. Oh, Sacred Heart of Jesus, pray for us. Worker of miracles, pray for us. St. Jude, helper of the hopeless, pray for us.

Say this prayer 9 times a day. By the 8th day your prayer will be answered. It has never been known to fail, never. Publication must be promised. Thanks St. Jude for prayer answered. Special thanks to our Mother of Perpetual Help, J.D.

PRAYER TO THE HOLY SPIRIT
Holy Spirit, you who make me see everything and who shows me the way to reach my ideal. You, who give me the Divine Gift to forgive and forget the wrong that is done to me and you who are in all instances of my life with me. I, in this short dialogue want to thank you for everything and confirm once more that I never want to be separated from you no matter how great the material desires may be. I want to be with you and my loved ones in your perpetual glory. Amen.

NOVENA TO ST. JUDE
May the Sacred Heart of Jesus be adored, glorified, loved and preserved throughout the world now and forever. Oh, Sacred Heart of Jesus, pray for us. Worker of miracles, pray for us. St. Jude, helper of the hopeless, pray for us.

Each day, we live, in rain or sun,
Your lovely face it cheers me here,
As life rolls on, I know not where,
One thing is sure, how much I care.
My love for you, you can rely,
To make it grow I ever try,
To equal your great love for me,
I see it thrive so like a tree.
A tree that's rooted firm and deep,
This love that in my heart I keep,
And evergreen 'twill always be,
So from your side I'll never flee.

500 ANIMALS ADOPT A PET

SIAMESE mix- female, short hair, 1 year old, very loving. She prefers to be in a single pet family- she wants her companion to be devoted to her alone. Anti-Cruelty, 891-7188.

LOVABLE dogs and cats need good homes. For adoption information call: Northern Suburbs Animal Welfare League Volunteer. 754-8741, 463-7422.

PLEASE DON'T DELAY! SPAY or NEUTER YOUR PET TODAY!

An altered pet is a healthier and happier companion. Also, it spares you the grief and pain of having puppies and kittens destroyed when no homes can be found. Countless numbers of sweet, innocent little ones are euthanized every day in shelters across the country because a pet wasn't spayed or neutered. If we cut down on the numbers of unwanted litters being born, we will also cut down on the number of abandoned, lost and unwanted animals to destroy.

WE WILL BE HAPPY TO PROVIDE ADVICE as well as a LIST OF ECONOMIC SERVICE SOURCES

HOW TO USE THE HOMEBUYER GRID

Select your preferred location, price or style of home. The listings will show the address, bedroom/bath, description of home, price, and telephone number. REALTORS and OPEN SUNDAYS will be indicated in bold.

Welcome to the Real Estate Resource!

In an effort to make your search for that next house easier, the Grosse Pointe News is initiating a new page where you can find in a few minutes what the market is offering today, in the five Grosse Pointes, St. Clair Shores, Harper Woods, Detroit and other municipalities. This source will pinpoint what the up-to-date price of a property is, what are its features and when it will be available for viewing.

Don't Miss Your Opportunity

Here's the opportunity you've been waiting for. It's your chance to advertise in the one resource that area buyers will be consulting when they're ready to take action. Along with your advertisement, readers will find informative articles on buying and selling real estate. Be a part of the Real Estate Resource page being featured weekly in the...
