

5 questions to ask provider before getting a mammogram

By Donna Walker
Staff Writer

This year, approximately 175,900 women in the United States will be diagnosed as having breast cancer, and of those cases, 44,800 will be fatal, according to the American Cancer Society.

In Michigan, breast cancer is the second leading cause of death among women, ranking just under heart disease, said Jean Chabut, chief of the Michigan Department of Public Health's center of health promotion and chronic disease prevention.

She said that approximately 5,000 new cases of breast cancer are reported annually in the state, and that more than 1,500 Michigan women die of the disease each year.

Mammography exams can detect breast cancer early, before a tumor is large enough to be felt. The earlier the detection, the better the chances are that the patient will survive. But how can a woman be sure that her mammography test will be accurate?

The American Cancer Society and the National Cancer Institute (NCI) say that a woman should ask a staff member the following six questions before electing to have a mammography done at a particular facility:

- Are you certified by the American College of Radiology or the American Osteopathic Board of Radiology?
- Is your equipment certified by the state licensing board (the Michigan Department of Public Health)?
- Is your X-ray equipment dedicated to or specifically designed for mammography exams?
- Is your X-ray equipment calibrated regularly by a certified radiological physicist? (The NCI recommends that mammogram machines be calibrated at least once a year and checked against a standard to make sure that radiation doses and measurements are correct.)

• Have the radiologists who shoot and read the mammograms taken special courses in mammography? (They should also be licensed by the state or certified by the American Registry of Radiological Technologists, the NCI says).

• Is mammography part of your regular practice? (The NCI suggests that a facility should perform at least 10 mammograms a week.)

"If they don't answer yes to all six questions, I'd say go someplace else. It's way too important to risk not having the exam done correctly, or having it read wrong by the technologists," said Monalee Prange, director of education for the American Cancer Society in Southfield.

Locally, Bon Secours Hospital, Cottage Hospital, Lakeshore Mammography Center and Eastpointe Radiologist P.C. at St. John Hospital are some of the places that offer mammography exams.

How well do they measure up on the six questions posed by the American Cancer Society and the National Cancer Institute? Very well.

Bon Secours, Cottage, Lakeshore and Eastpointe are all accredited by the American College of Radiologists, as confirmed by the Cancer Information Service, a division of the National Cancer Institute.

In addition, their mammographic technologists receive continuing education in their field, and their mammography equipment is calibrated regularly by certified radiological physicists, spokespersons for the medical facilities said.

"Our exams are very accurate, because the people who read the exams are certified and so is our equipment," said Vanu Bagchi, vice president of

Schools pledge caution in spending

Assistant Editor

Grosse Pointe public school officials are breathing sighs of relief after the narrow passage of the millage renewal Feb. 11.

"We did it and we're relieved," said school board president Carol Marr. "On behalf of the school board, we're most appreciative of the support shown by the community."

"We realize these are difficult times. More than ever, we're going to be very, very careful in our spending."

The 27.55-mill renewal was approved 4,424 to 4,115 — a 309-vote margin. The 1.30-mill renewal for the libraries was passed by a wider 984-vote margin — 4,750 to 3,766.

A total of 8,539 ballots were cast. The voter turnout was about 20 percent.

The Park favored the school millage renewal by 424 votes, and Harper Woods voters were on the affirmative side by 130 votes. The Farms approved the renewal by just two votes. The City's margin of approval was 45 votes.

Shores, Grosse Pointe Woods and absentee voters came down against renewal of the school mills. The Shores and absentee voters also were on the negative side of the library renewal.

The results came in late on election night because two voting machines at Parcels Middle School broke down, Marr said. A repairman had been called from Sterling Heights.

She said the board members were not confident as they gathered at the school administrative offices early in the evening. It was not until 10 p.m. that the Grosse Pointe Woods vote was in and the board knew it had succeeded in convincing the voters of the need for the renewal.

Had the measure failed, the board would have been forced to schedule another election, possibly in June. Marr said that because the renewal was approved on the first round, the school board and administration have more time to devote to drafting a budget.

Earlier, the school administration was looking at a 1992-93 budget that would be 5.6 percent to 9 percent higher than this year's spending plan.

The increase would offset losses of FICA (Social Security) payments from the state and half of commercial property

SMART 'hopeful' about finding new cash

By Ronald J. Bernas
Staff Writer

March 27 is the day SMART is expected to make its last dropoff before parking its buses for good. But if acting director James L. Aho isn't optimistic, he's at least hopeful that the bus line may not have to close.

The bus company sent a report in November to all the municipalities in the three counties it serves telling them that on March 27, the company would close because of a lack of cash.

SMART officials asked for cities to come to their aid, but just what kind of help they wanted was never spelled out and the response was less than overwhelming, a SMART spokesman told city officials at a regional meeting of the Michigan Municipal League last month.

Since then, all the Grosse Pointe city councils have discussed or will discuss the situation soon, but none has taken action.

"We've received a number of calls from residents," said Tom Kressbach, city manager in Grosse Pointe City. "They're concerned but I don't know what's going to happen."

That sentiment was echoed by the managers of the four other Pointes. They said residents have called the city offices and registered their concerns, but nothing has been done yet, because no one is quite sure what action, if any, to take.

The Park city council has directed the city administration to look into options to provide some kind of bus service if SMART should cease operations.

Meanwhile, SMART officials have approached the state Legislature with a request to allow them to withdraw more than $10 million in surplus funds the bus company has in its pension fund. That money could get the firm back on its feet.

"The surplus comes from the money we have after some serious personnel cutbacks in the 1980s and from good investments," Aho said.

Because it can't simply withdraw the money, SMART is asking the Legislature for permission to end its association with the Municipal Employees Retirement System and then rejoin the pension fund the same day. In effect, it would be making a $10 million withdrawal, Aho said.

"We can do this and it would have no effect on current retirees or on current employees who will some day want to take advantage of the pension," Aho said.

"I'm not optimistic. But I'm hopeful. There's only a small window of time between now and March 27."

Matt Wirgau, chairman of the SMART board of directors, will make a presentation to the executive committee of SEMCOG, the Southeast Michigan Council of Governments, on Friday, Feb. 21, at 2 p.m. in the SEMCOG office at 600 Plaza Drive in Detroit. Wirgau will discuss proposed service cuts or discontinuation of service and the impact on local governments. The meeting is open to the public. Call 961-4266 for information.

Pointer of Interest

Eric Miller

By Donna Walker
Staff Writer

Eric Miller of Grosse Pointe Farms felt several callings while growing up.

He wanted to be a farmer, like his maternal grandfather and uncle. He wanted to be a musician and a teacher, like his father, and he wanted to go into the Lutheran ministry, he said.

Today, he does all of the e things.

Eric Miller

Miller, 38, is director of vocal music at Lincoln High School in Warren and the manager of District 16 of the Michigan School Vocal Association.

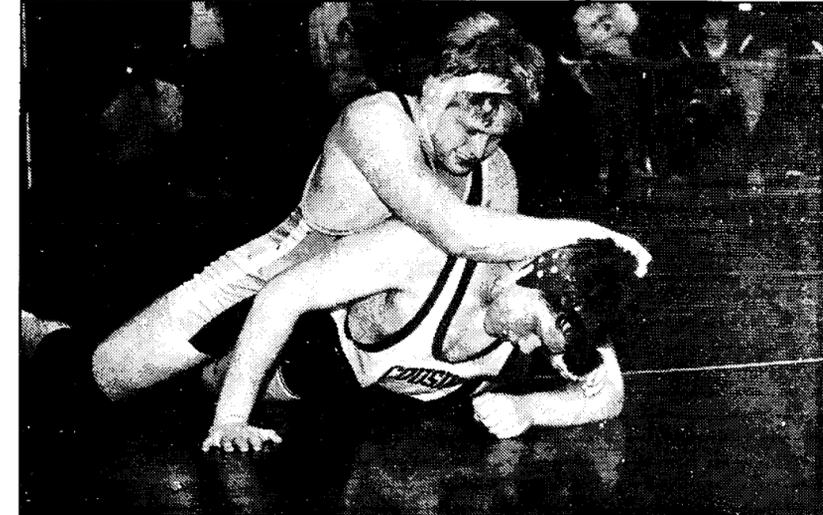

District 16 includes all of the Grosse Pointes and Macomb County and half of Oakland County. As manager, he is responsible for coordinating the association's School Vocal Association solo, ensemble and choral festivals for middle school, junior high and high school students in his district.

Miller, who composes music and plays four instruments, is also the pianist and music director for the contemporary worship service that's held at noon every Sunday at Salem Lutheran Church in Detroit.

"I think music is an international language that is able to touch everyone's soul," he said. "That language takes on many different forms, with the overall result being an enrichment of the soul."

In his own small way, Miller is also a farmer. He faithfully tends the 25-foot by 25-foot garden in his back yard each year.

Sportscaster gives students tall message

By John Minnis
Assistant Editor

At 4-foot-7, sportscaster Mark "Doc" Andrews gave Brownell Middle School students a tall message last week.

"You can be as big as you want to be," the diminutive Woods resident told the students. "You have to stand up and do something."

With that, the school's 450 students jumped to their feet for a standing ovation — to themselves.

"Stand up and give a standing ovation . . . to yourselves!" Andrews had urged.

Andrews, resident sportscaster for radio personality Dick Purton's show on Q-95 FM and part-time for WKBD TV-50, conducted a pep rally at the middle school. He regularly gives motivational talks for corporations, but he always relishes a chance to motivate kids.

"It's fun doing motivational-als," he said, "because I get more pepped up than the kids do."

Andrews' appearance at Brownell was sponsored by the Lakeshore Optimist Club of Grosse Pointe. The Optimists have retained Andrews to speak at all the middle schools in the Pointes, including the private and parochial schools, throughout the year.

Optimist Doug Cordier, noting that the club's slogan is "Friend of Youth," said, "Youth is our focus, and that's why we do this."

Well-known sportscaster Mark "Doc" Andrews gave Brownell students a tall message last week. He said they can be "as big as they want to be." On stage with Andrews, from left, are sixth-graders Lauren Severini and Kevin Hall, seventh-graders Joe Culik and Alicia Razzeto and eighth-graders Katie Kingsley and Jeff Halso.

one of several programs the Optimists conduct for local students.

"If I can help motivate these people to do what they want to do," Andrews said, "or at least make them feel good about themselves, then that's terrific."

He told the students that in third grade he wanted to be in the NBA, but by fourth grade, he knew that was impossible. So he decided the next best thing would be to become a sportscaster.

"I had that dream," he said. He read everything he could about sports, wrote letters to sportscasters he admired and practiced doing play-by-play.

"Whatever you want to do," he said, "learn everything you can about it. And if you have parents or friends doing what you want to do, ask for help."

In high school, he wrote a letter to then TV-2 sportscaster Ray Lane, who encouraged Andrews in his dream and even invited him to the station and let him tag along for several hours. Lane has been a friend and mentor ever since, Andrews said.

Among his many anecdotes, Andrews recalled that he once played Little League ball with a kid named Ernie Whitt, who even as a youngster said he wanted to be a major league ball player — despite the fact that his odds were a million to one.

Whitt wasn't an outstanding player then, Andrews said, but he worked hard, played ball in high school, then at Macomb Community College, and was finally signed by the Boston Red Sox. Andrews recalled that he covered a Red Sox-Tiger game when Whitt came to the plate as a rookie.

Whitt later was drafted by the Toronto Blue Jays, platoon as starting catcher, and made the 1987 American League All-Star team.

Andrews said he asked Whitt what drove him to succeed. The major-leaguer responded that it was people who kept telling him he couldn't make it that made him work even harder.

He said he is often asked what it's like to be short, and he responds, "I don't know, because I've never been tall."

Another story he likes to tell is about a friend who wanted to be a singer like James Brown. Of course, everyone said his dream was impossible. The friend later changed his name — it's now M.C. Hammer.

A successful professional in his own right, Andrews' beginnings in radio were humble. After college, he got a job with a small radio station in the Upper Peninsula, where he was billed as "Little Marco the Polka King."

"I wanted to be a sportscaster," he said, "and here I was playing polkas. But I knew that as long as I was working in radio, I was getting closer to my goal of being a sportscaster."

He advised the students to visualize their dreams, to cut out pictures, if possible, and hang them at home, school, wherever, to remind them of their goals.

"Believe in yourself. Believe that you're going to be great," he said. "You can be as big as you want to be."

Major crime falls in Woods, but auto thefts double

By John Minnis
Assistant Editor

Major crime dropped 2.1 percent in Grosse Pointe Woods last year, compared with the year before.

The Woods experienced 375 major crimes last year, according to the public safety department's annual crime report for 1991. There were 383 major crimes in 1990.

Major crimes include homicide, criminal sexual conduct, aggravated assault, robbery, burglary, larceny, auto theft and arson.

"Generally, we were in pretty good shape," said public safety director Jack Patterson. "We were down in everything except auto thefts."

The Woods' major-crime rate was the lowest in the metropolitan Detroit tri-county area in 1990, and last year's lower rate may maintain that standing as the "safest community" of 10,000 or more population.

"It's not something you can bank on," Patterson said of the low crime rate. He credited alert residents for reporting crimes and hailed his officers' vigilant patrols and street presence. "We're very proud of what they're doing," he said, "and I'm sure they will continue doing it."

There were no homicides, criminal sexual conduct incidents or aggravated assaults in the Woods last year or the year before.

Robberies dropped by one. There were 10 reported robberies (including attempts) in 1991 and 11 in 1990.

Burglaries dropped 40 percent last year compared with the year before. There were 40 reported burglaries in 1991, down from the 67 reported in 1990.

Larcenies declined slightly from 275 in 1990 to 265 last year.

Auto thefts more than doubled in 1991 compared with the year before. There were 58 cars stolen last year, up from the 28 taken in 1990.

Patterson said the increase in auto thefts occurred in the large parking lots around St. John Hospital and behind businesses along Mack Avenue. He said the size of the parking lots and the isolation of the alley parking behind businesses make the areas difficult to patrol.

Two arsons were reported last year, including one in which a man died.

Arrests were down in 1991, totaling 910 last year, compared with 960 the year before.

Traffic tickets issued last year totaled 8,107, down from 8,948 issued in 1990.

Drunken driving arrests hit a seven-year low. There were 71 such arrests in 1991, down from 78 the year before. Last year's drunken driving arrests were the lowest since 1984. A decade high of 195 drunken driving arrests were made in 1985.

Parking meter tickets totaled 15,145 last year, up from the 14,505 issued in 1990. The 10-year high in parking enforcement came in 1983 when 32,500 tickets were issued.

Auto accidents declined in 1991. There were 242 accidents reported last year, compared with 253 the year before. No motorist-pedestrian accidents were reported last year. One was recorded in 1990. A decade high of four such accidents occurred in 1988.

Woods paramedics made 567 ambulance runs last year, down from 600 runs in 1990. Of last year's runs, 198 (35 percent) required advanced life support treatment.

Fire runs were up last year. Ninety-nine fire calls were answered in 1991, of which 26 were working fires. There were 84 fire runs with 15 actual fires in 1990.

Breaking down the public safety activities, criminal complaints took 31 percent of the department's time; arrests, 9 percent; traffic complaints, 7 percent; ambulance runs, 6 percent; fire inspections, 3 percent; fire runs, 1 percent; and miscellaneous, 44 percent.

Recycling update: 6 months and program looks like a winner

By Ronald J. Bernas
Staff Writer

It's been seven months since Grosse Pointe and Harper Woods residents began filling their recycling bins with bottles, cans, plastics and papers.

And the verdict is in on the first six months of the program: It's a money-saving success.

Although it's difficult to pinpoint the exact figures, it appears the cities are sending fewer tons of solid waste to the Grosse Pointe-Clinton Refuse Disposal Authority. And because each city pays per ton of garbage incinerated, the less sent to the incinerator, the lower the bill will be.

For example, Grosse Pointe Farms' city administrator Rich Solak said his city pays approximately $58 to $62 a ton for garbage sent to the incinerator.

In 1990 — before curbside recycling began — the city sent 4,700 tons to the incinerator for a total bill of $251,942.21.

In 1991, the city sent 2,839 tons to the incinerator, a drop of almost 1,900 tons.

But getting the recyclables out of the waste stream accounts for only part of that reduction. Forced composting of yard waste such as grass clippings and leaves removed tons from the waste stream. Yard waste now is taken to a place called Indian Summer, which composts it into dirt.

Composting was instituted because wet grass lowered the temperature of the incinerator, forcing it to work harder.

Total participation of residents in Harper Woods, Grosse Pointe City, Farms and Park hovered around 40 percent, with the lowest in July — the first month of the program — at 38.5 percent, and the highest percentage of participation in August and November with 43.5 percent of households putting their recycling bins at the curb.

Those four cities recycled 2.8 million pounds of newspaper, 715,091 pounds of glass, 319,613 pounds of tin and 161,848 pounds of plastic in the first six months of operation.

Grosse Pointe Woods, which started recycling earlier than the rest of the Pointes, had an average participation of more than 50 percent.

In 1990, the Woods sent 11,247 tons to the incinerator and in 1991 that figure dropped to 7,639 tons. Yard waste accounted for more than 2,000 pounds of the 3,600-pound reduction.

Grosse Pointe Shores residents voted to have recyclables picked up every two weeks, and their participation is among the highest, averaging more than 65 percent. Shores residents collected 116,200 pounds of newspaper, 31,051 pounds of glass, 12,151 pounds of tin and 6,480 pounds of plastic from October through January, the only months for which figures are available.

Because the cities pay Efficient Sanitation, the recycling company, per stop, rather than per ton, the more recyclables picked up, the better for the taxpayers.

"The more people will recycle, the more they're going to save on their tax bill," Solak said. "They'll save money because we don't have to pay to have it incinerated, and they won't pay any more taxes."

Most cities, though, assessed residents a recycling fee that is tacked onto their water bills.

One concern is that if the cities don't send enough trash to the incinerator, the authority that runs it will raise the price. But Solak said the eight cities that make up the authority have been recruiting other cities to join, which will make up for the shortfall in tonnage. Fraser is one city that is now sending its garbage to the incinerator and more "customers" are being sought.

But city administrators seem to think the program is working, and is worth keeping.

Chris Bremer, assistant city manager of Grosse Pointe City, said the city is "absolutely pleased" with curbside recycling and is increasingly surprised by the participation of its residents. An unscientific survey showed close to 75 percent participation, she said.

Grosse Pointe Shores village manager Mike Kenyon said the Shores is happy with the program, but that it will take at least a year or two to develop a realistic cost-benefit analysis.

Where does it go? You name it

After the recyclables are picked up from the curb, what happens to them?

According to a memo from Efficient Sanitation to Grosse Pointe Farms City Manager Richard Solak, they go for different things across the country.

All are taken and prepared for distribution at Waste Management Inc. in Detroit. From there:

- The paper is shipped to paper mills throughout the United States and Canada. Paper mills in Monroe and in Mexico turn Grosse Pointe paper into newspaper, box board for food packaging, shoe boxes and shirt backing. Some 5 to 10 percent of what is collected is lost in processing.
- The tin is shipped to U.S. Steel in conjunction with the Container Recycling Alliance. It is processed in East Chicago and turned into wide flange beams and miscellaneous beams and channels. There is a 2 to 5 percent loss in processing.

- The plastic goes to outlets in Iowa and Ontario and is used to make plastic lumber for landscaping, drain tile for construction and laundry detergent bottles. Up to 10 percent is lost in processing.

- Glass is processed at Midway Cullet in Detroit, then distributed across the country. Brown glass goes to West Virginia, green glass goes to Atlanta and Chicago and clear glass goes to Chicago, Fort Wayne and Charlotte. Except for the 2 to 5 percent lost during processing, all of it is used to make new glass.

Schools, library receive gifts

The Grosse Pointe Library, Maire Elementary School and Grosse Pointe South High School were all the recipients of gifts recently.

The Friends of the Grosse Pointe Library donated a microfilm/microfiche reader-printer, a rotor display tower for audiocassettes and a CD-ROM catalog workstation. The gifts totaled $12,713.60.

The Maire PTO donated 15 computers and related software at a cost of $29,794.

The South Dad's Club donated $6,000 toward the $9,000 cost of a new trophy display case to be placed in the S hall at the high school. The remaining $3,000 for the case will come out of the school's budget.

Open house party roused

A 17-year-old youth was cited for conducting an illegal open house party at his home in the Farms Feb. 16.

Police responding at 11:30 p.m. to a report of youths partying at a home in the 400 block of Colonial Court near Mack arrived to find several cars containing teenagers leaving the area. Several youths were gathered in the front yard of the home drinking beer. The youths appeared to be arguing.

When police arrived, the youths ran into the house, leaving beer cans strewn across the lawn, driveway and street.

Police talked to the teen resident of the home and learned that his mother was out of town. He said he was having a small party for friends when rival high school students showed up and trouble began. He admitted that he and the others had a "couple of beers."

The youth would not allow officers to enter the home to break up the party, according to police reports.

The officers did, however, remain at the scene until all the youths left. Some 20 to 30 youths exited the home, police said, and all were questioned to determine if they were able to drive. While the youths were leaving, police spotted a plastic bag containing suspected marijuana lying on the landing just inside the side door of the home.

They confiscated the bag, as well as a 30-pack beer container with three remaining beers in it.

Railroded — and loving it

A sure cure for the mid-winter doldrums is a change of scenery. Even though brief, a break from our routine can give us an energy infusion and an emotional lift. Last weekend we hopped a train in Windsor, and for Toronto. My advice is to take the club car if possible, but don't eat and drink everything offered or you will want to sleep the entire weekend.

Before we even left the station, we were offered a choice of wine and assorted soft drinks, with peanuts, of course. We settled into our comfortable reclining seats and purred gently out of the station. There was very much like those on airplanes to hold our meals to use for writing. We took along plenty of reading material, as there is ample opportunity to catch up on homework or to start the book you've wanted to read. If you arrive at the train station early, I suggest you choose seats close to the back of the train, out of earshot of any boisterous tourists, and very quiet for the 4-hour trip. It was just plain relaxing and we were entertained from beginning to end.

We used a tour package to secure reservations at a hotel and for the theater. This enabled us to grease our way through the red tape checking in at the various places, eliminating waiting in lines.

Our hotel was part of a large international chain and offered a variety of restaurants from which to choose before heading off to the theater. We opted for light, still feeling stuffed after a luncheon on the train of filet mignon with all the accompaniments.

There will be no attempt to comment about "Phantom of the Opera." Suffice to say, it was a magical theatrical experience and you should do yourself a favor and make a point of seeing it.

On Saturday morning we walked around Eaton Centre in the downtown area and found it not unlike a thousand other malls; so we headed to Yorkville to savor its charm and peruse its chic and pricey shopping areas. An American isn't remotely tempted to buy, because the prices are so elevated as to be laughable.

However, it's fun to look and the people-watching is wonderful. A couple hours of window shopping in this enchanting old neighborhood is sufficient, especially in subzero temperatures. We headed back downtown and took a gamble that some good seats had been turned in for a Saturday matinee. Voila, fourth row center for "Aspects of Love." After a brief stop for a sandwich we were off to the theater once again. It was certainly no "Phantom," but enjoyable.

We still had plenty of time after the play to watch some of the Olympics back in our room before heading out for dinner. What a glorious way to spend a Saturday afternoon with no chores or telephones! We had plenty of time to nap, read and dress leisurely for a memorable repast at Toronto's finest, La Scala. Describing the meal is somewhat like reviewing "Phantom," no flaws in substance or performance, excellence all the way. Make reservations from this end a few days ahead and take your charge cards.

On Sunday, there was time to have a mid-morning brunch in the hotel before heading for the train and another easy trip home, arriving in our living room by 6 with tummies full and feeling totally restored. The weekend was such a success we are considering Chicago for the next mini-vacation. The airport situation and prices certainly make it an attractive alternative.

There are many options to these packages and also combinations you can design yourself. It is a great deal less expensive to drive and there are hotels that are very adequate for less money. We took the train because friends who had done so said it provided optimum in pampering and rest. We would have to agree.

Whether or not you choose to go to Toronto, a weekend trip is very restorative during these long gray months. If you have any other ideas, let me know.

Pointer

The son of John T. and Lila Miller, he was born in Rochester, N.Y. in 1953, where his father was attending the Eastman School of Music.

His parents were born and raised in Indiana and met at Valparaiso University, where his father was studying music and his mother was studying to become a teacher. Of their four children, Eric is the second oldest.

His older sister Karen is the choir director and organist at a church in Texas; his younger brother Kevin is an assistant professor at Eastern Michigan University and director of its orchestra; and his younger sister LilaJan moved to Texas to dance in a Houston ballet company and is now a full-time homemaker, Miller said.

When Miller was 4, his family moved to Detroit, where his father was called to serve as choirmaster at Our Saviour Lutheran Church. A year later, his father started teaching him how to play the piano.

"I loved it," Miller said. "I'd been bugging him for about a year to teach me. He had been giving my older sister lessons and it looked like fun. But he waited until I was five because I was the rambunctious one. I couldn't keep still."

His father later took a job as an instrumental music teacher in the Detroit public schools and in 1967 the family moved to Grosse Pointe Farms.

"Even though I've lived in the Farms ever since, I still consider Detroit as being my hometown," Miller said. "But I love the Farms, especially Pier Park."

Miller attended Grosse Pointe South High School, where he played the cello, trombone and piano in the school's bands and orchestras.

After graduation in 1971, he enlisted in the Army out of patriotism. He kept asking to be sent to Vietnam, but instead spent three years in Germany as a Spec. 4, working on helicopter turbine engines.

He also received what he calls a "valuable music education."

The 18-year-old Miller directed his unit's chapel choir and played the organ for a number of different masses and services. He also played the piano in the officers' club.

"That was an experience," he said. "I had a lot of privileges for an enlisted man."

He thought about making the military his career, but "I felt my calling was to be a teacher," he said.

After being discharged, he returned to Grosse Pointe Farms to live with his parents and began attending Macomb Community College. He enrolled in Oakland University in 1976 and graduated with a bachelor's degree in vocal music in 1981.

While attending college, Miller held a variety of jobs. He worked in a factory that made automotive parts, and held maintenance positions at Fernhill Village Apartments in Clinton Township and the Hotel Ponchartrain.

In 1974, he became the Youth Choir director at St. Mark Lutheran Church in Roseville, and in 1979 he was named director of music. He left the church in 1986, but his father is still there. A member of the Grosse Pointe Symphony and a resident of Grosse Pointe Park, his father has been the organist at St. Mark since 1979.

In 1981, Miller was hired by the Warren Consolidated School District as a vocal music teacher, and he's been at Lincoln High School ever since.

He directs five choirs, including a boys' ensemble called the (Lincoln) Continentals.

"We had fun coming up with that name," he said.

This year, his students received five first divisions, seven second divisions, and two third divisions at the District 16 Solo & Ensemble Festival.

He's been the manager of District 16 for four years, and says he'll stay as long as the teachers in the district keep electing him and as long as he continues to enjoy it.

"I really like it," he said. "I feel I've grown into the job. It continues to get easier and easier."

Miller is also a member of the American Choral Directors Association and past president of the Detroit Lutheran Church Musicians' Guild. He plays in some brass ensembles and composes music. For example, he composed the music for Pierce Middle School's alma mater. The title of the song? "Alma Mater."

Recently, Miller gave up directing the senior choir at Salem Lutheran, which he was doing on an interim basis, so that he can spend more time with his family.

He and his wife, Dana, a nurse in the pediatric intensive care unit at St. John Hospital in Detroit, are expecting a child in June. They met at St. Mark Lutheran Church and were married four years ago.

They each have children from previous marriages. She has two daughters, Danielle, 16, and Nicole, 14, who attend Grosse Pointe South. Miller has an 8-year-old son, David, who lives with his mother and visits his father on alternate weekends and in the summer.

Two cats, Laura and Cuddles, and a dog named Abbie round out the family.

Besides being "the person you'd most want on your Trivial Pursuit team, because he has such an amazing memory for details," Miller is "the most sensitive person I know and my best friend," his wife said. "He has a really nice sense of humor. I always have a good time when Eric is here."

Their favorite activities include going for long walks, bike riding, working in the garden, traveling and camping.

As for the future, they said they would like to fly to Germany to attend the wedding of a foreign exchange student that Dana hosted several years ago.

Concerning his career, Miller said, "I envision my life's work as being teaching, and where it will lead me, I'm not sure."

Voters send 2 signals on school taxes

The narrow 309-vote margin of victory for the school millage renewal is being read this week as offering two possible signals to the Grosse Pointe Board of Education as it considers its future financing plans.

One signal could be that the people who voted for the renewal did so knowing its possible cost but also expecting continuation of present programs as a result of its passage.

But the second signal could be that opponents, deeply concerned about the continuing rise in school taxes during the recession, want to call a halt to greater demands on their pocketbooks.

The election results show that the Shores and the Woods actually voted against the three-year renewal of the 27.55-mill levy while the Farms approved it by a margin of two votes.

The Park, however, approved renewal by 424 votes, or enough to supply the winning margin. The City narrowly supported renewal while the portion of Harper Woods in the district gave it solid

Superintendent Edward J. Shine told the Grosse Pointe News that he and the board are very concerned about the future, the taxes that will be required and the possibility of the loss of even more district revenue.

He pointed out that because of the site-budgeting plans in the local schools, the system was able to offer the public a fairly good prediction, prior to the vote, on what it would cost the taxpayer to maintain current school programs.

Yet it is true that the specific budget items will not be available until June after completion of budget hearings and the levy will not be actually set until September. By that time Lansing's intentions and the prospects for one or more November referenda on proposed property tax cuts ought to be clear.

Despite the approval, however, some Pointers think the board should now consider scaling back on next year's budget to avoid the 5.6 percent to 9 percent increase that apparently would be required just to keep pace with financing the schools' current programs.

Such an action could mean, of course, cutbacks in quality programs but critics made the argument, during the campaign, that the schools should be required to match the spending reductions that many families and businesses have been forced to make as their incomes have declined.

Even though the 1992-93 budget and levy figures won't be known until later in the year, what is known is that the district has lost some revenue and faces the possibility of even more reductions in income.

The revenue losses occur because interest income from the schools' investments has declined, the state has cut its aid to Grosse Pointe and other out-of-formula districts, Gov. John Engler has proposed further cuts in such aid and other limits on property taxes might be imposed under referenda likely to be on the November ballot.

At the same time, the schools have joined in a court appeal of state cuts in FICA (Social Security) payments for district employees as well as questioning the constitutionality of the new state law requiring the Grosse Pointe district and other wealthier districts to share part of their tax bases with poorer districts.

It's true, too, that the schools will be in the third year of their teachers' contract which requires another 7 percent increase. In addition, other school expenses continue to keep pace with the ever-rising cost of living.

The current situation means that the schools will apparently face a hard choice: either increase the millage levy to near the maximum permitted by the renewal vote in order to maintain programs at their current level, which is apparently desired by the voters who approved the renewal, or cut back on quality to a limited extent to avoid any tax increase.

It's not an easy decision but the close margin of victory suggests to us that the board and the school administrators should recognize both election-day signals.

That means giving consideration not only to simply continuing present programs but also to the possibility of some cutback in quality for a limited time if that proves to be necessary to avoid any tax increase next year.

When the voters set taxes

It is to the credit of the voters of the Grosse Pointe School District that they approved the proposed school and library millage renewals despite the growing unpopularity of all taxes.

Local school tax issues are more vulnerable to public pressure than other specific tax proposals because the people themselves often are called upon to pass judgment on them and, in effect, set the tax rates.

As a consequence, some voters who are critical of local, state and national taxes will vote against school taxes simply because the school financing vote offers them their best and most direct chance to express their opposition to what they regard as all burdensome taxation.

True, in Michigan we often have the opportunity to vote on state referenda, and apparently will have several more on the ballot in November. But those state proposals seldom seem as close to the average taxpayer as that school tax bill he is asked to renew and usually increase every few years.

In effect, the only way we voters can express our criticism of federal taxation, whether it is the federal income tax, the federal boat tax or some other U.S. levy, is through our votes for president or members of Congress. Usually, those votes depend on a wide range of issues, with taxation being but one of many.

So when we and other Detroit metropolitan area districts approve school millage renewals and/or higher levies, we are again exhibiting our belief in the importance of preserving and protecting our most treasured national resource, our children, despite the cost in taxes.

Such approval, however, seldom extends to services for some other element of society which often means that the poor and needy become easy marks for the economies ordered at the state and national level in periods of recession.

But who can argue with the priorities of voters who, however reluctantly, approve school millage renewals that apparently will mean higher taxes but oppose other spending plans to benefit different elements of society?

U.S.-bashing, Japan-style

Some of Japan's bashing of the United States these days is being undertaken simply as a rebuttal against U.S. Japan-bashing — but some also is being expressed for domestic political purposes in Japan.

It is no secret that many Japanese workers want to enjoy more of the fruits of their labor, not so much in money as in shorter hours, better working conditions and, above all, an improved standard of living.

True, the Japanese opened a barrage of tough U.S.-bashing only after President Bush and his touring entourage of Big Three and other industrial leaders had landed in Japan to heat up the pressure on Japan to open its markets to U.S. goods.

That visit really set off the bashing back and forth, with U.S. critics emphasizing the closed markets in Japan and the Japanese not only defending themselves but finding fault with lazy U.S. workers and their highly overpaid bosses.

Such messages also carry overtones to the Japanese workers that they ought to continue to accept their lot, get aboard the cooperative effort of business and government and quit expressing publicly their dissatisfaction with the quality of their lives.

The unexpectedly strong U.S. reaction to the newly strident U.S.-bashing from Japan apparently has had some effect. Japan's leaders have backed off from their criticism of U.S. workers and managers and from their contention that the figures in the trade agreement are just "a target."

The Japanese obviously are not responsible for all of the U.S. trade deficit but figures showing U.S. output per worker still lead the world also refute the Japanese claim that U.S. workers are too lazy to compete.

So it seems to us it is time for each side to call a halt to bashing the other and, instead, to sit down together and quietly negotiate their trade problems.

A Ford in Tigers' future?

Two major sports questions of the week are whether Edsel Ford II is really interested in buying the Tigers and whether Tom Monaghan is really interested in selling them.

Whether Ford, the son of the late Henry Ford II and great-grandson of Henry Ford, is even negotiating with Monaghan hasn't been verified but the rumor makes for interesting reading.

For Tiger fans, even the talk revives a sense of optimism about the future which, without some change of ownership and direction, is not all that bright as we approach the opening of the season with a team that will have to answer a good many questions when it takes the field in less than a month.

If the deal goes through, the Ford family and the Pointes could increase their bragging rights in professional sports. But wouldn't it be grand if a Pointer could help the Tigers win the American League title and perhaps even bring another World Series to Detroit?

Media

To the Editor:

In response to your Feb. 6 article titled, "News media merit a spanking," I definitely agree with your views about the media.

The media often make up uninformative garbage about events that have not even taken place, such as the numerous Elvis sightings and phony photographs of celebrities.

And when events do happen, the media add rumors to the story. An example of this is the incident involving Newsweek's report on Gov. Bill Clinton where the reporter stated several false accusations.

Your article was clearly written and presented many good points that were properly supported.

Parking

To the Editor:

I am writing in agreement with the article, "Proposed sandwich shop rejected; lack of parking cited."

I think that there would be too much traffic around the residential area. Because there are already stores in the area, there is a lot of traffic and litter in the alley behind the shopping strip.

The Subway Sub Shop owners claim that they will be responsible for any litter in and around the shop. Residents who live behind the alley don't think that is enough. The shopping strip has a Dumpster that is always overflowing, and there is no fence to block the garbage from view and from going onto the property.

There will also be limited parking space because of the other stores' traffic. It will cause problems since they want the restaurant to be dine-in as well as take-out.

I know that I wouldn't want the extra traffic and garbage near my home.

Trade

To the Editor:

Regarding Nancy Parmenter's column Feb. 6, "Made in Michigan cars and fiction": Nancy, I can see that it wouldn't take much of a Japanese journalist to replace you on your job. Wake up and smell the coffee!

We are playing the economic trade game by two different sets of rules — the world's and Japan's. With a $41 billion trade deficit in 1991 alone, I can certainly see why Lee Iacocca is mad, as well he should be and so should you and I.

You only need to look at the statistics and the reasons for the lopsided imbalance. I think Japan-bashing is 10 years overdue.

But instead, the Japanese confuse the issues like all shrewd businessmen and blame the problem on "lazy and stupid" American workers.

How about lazy and stupid American journalists? When a writer from Japan replaces you and your job, then maybe you'll see what Lee is talking about.

Slip-sliding away

Suppose we humans are climbing an evolutionary ladder. Suppose we're about midpoint.

Suppose — like progress of all sorts — our pace is uneven and fraught with setbacks. We hoist ourselves up three or four rungs, then slide back two. We clamber upward, effortlessly, one rung; stop to catch our breath; plunge six; haul ourselves up 10; skid two; and so on.

This concept would explain a lot of silly inventions and ideas.

Like Chia Pets, Velveeta, fake fur, fake fireplaces, fake bacon, Sweetest Day, and Stairmaster.

The fall of communism was a giant leap up the ladder.

Air conditioning seemed like a good thing until we realized it was searing a hole in our ozone layer.

Microwave ovens are good. Orthodontia is good. Seat belts, diet pop, Alcoholics Anonymous and automatic teller machines are definite advances.

Velcro is iffy. It's good for keeping children connected to their clothing and it's nice for holding shoulder pads on shoulders. But if you're trying to put a mitten-clad hand into a velcro-flapped jacket pocket, it will grab you and make you look foolish.

Have you ever washed several items with velcro closures together in your washing machine? They gel into one huge lump, requiring an hour and a half and a great degree of patience to peel everything apart.

One of the landmark backslides on the evolutionary climb

I Say

was when somebody started fiddling around with holidays.

Remember when Abraham Lincoln's birthday was Feb. 12? Remember when George Washington's birthday was Feb. 22? Elementary school children drew pictures of cherry trees and Emancipation Proclamations and read stories about Abe and George and on George's birthday somebody's mother brought cherry tarts and cherry-flavored Kool Aid for a classroom treat.

Now we have some sappy thing called Presidents' Day. It's an ordinary Monday in February — not even a predictable Monday — and its sole purpose is to give some people a three-day weekend. Maybe schools will be closed and maybe they won't. Maybe the post office will deliver your mail. Maybe not. Some banks will be closed. The stockmarket will shut down and the truck may or may not pick up your trash. It depends on where you live.

We used to look forward to attending a once-a-year fireworks display on the Fourth of July. It didn't matter if the Fourth was a Monday or a Tuesday or a Saturday or a Sunday.

Now some communities shoot off their fireworks the weekend before the Fourth. Others wait until the actual day. Still others fire up on a day somewhere in between, whenever they think they have the best chance of attracting a crowd.

If we wanted to, we could see fireworks in St. Clair Shores on a Sunday, watch a Detroit/Windsor extravaganza on a Wednesday, then get the hometown version in Grosse Pointe on a Thursday, rendering the Fourth of July just about as unusual as it can possibly be.

Smoke alarms have improved the human condition.

Snooze alarms have not. Snooze alarms encourage procrastination. We can swat our clocks, roll over, pretend it's Saturday, drift off, get startled another three or four times, and still be late to work.

Stone-washed jeans, pre-washed jeans and jeans with factory-installed rips and tears are setbacks in the evolutionary ascent.

So are down vests. If it's cold enough for a thick, down-filled vest, won't your arms get cold too?

My kids keep asking me to buy a Stairmaster, so they can exercise at home.

We've already got two, I say. They came with the house at no extra charge.

One connects the basement to the first floor; the other one runs between the first and second floors.

Use 'em, I say.

And while you're going down, take the dirty laundry with you. Separate the velcro-encrusted items and when you come up, bring the clean, folded clothes.

A rose is a rose is a . . .

In a recent "I Say" column, Pat Paholsky wrote about all the different names people give their remote controls from slipper to puncher to clicker to git-chee-goomee. She invited you to tell us what you call your thing and here's what you said:

Grosse Pointers Suzy and Chip Berschback call it The Box; Janet Hooper asks for The Buttons; and Marilyn Morgan calls it the Potato, for the couch potato who is operating the control.

Robert Herbertson of Detroit calls it The Kid. And why is that, you ask? Because, he answers, in the old days before remote controls, a parent would ask his or her kid to get up and change the station.

The benefits of health and public safety

Joe DeFoe is a great guy. He's pleasant, he's fun, he's wittily self-deprecating. He's healthy.

Lunching on the Hill, a stone's throw from his Farms home, a couple of weeks ago, he surveyed the menu and noted that he could eat whatever he wanted.

Nancy Parmenter

It wasn't always that way, of course. Joe DeFoe has a new liver, a new attitude, a new lease on life. As reporter Ron Bernas wrote last week, Joe DeFoe is one of the lucky ones who received an organ transplant.

"I was looking at the grim specter," Joe said. "This not only saved my life, but gave me a new way to look at life."

And isn't that the way it should be for everyone? Technology has raced ahead of the wildest imaginings, as techniques are perfected for transplanting hearts, lungs, livers, kidneys, pancreases, skin, and blood vessels from cadavers to living, breathing people who will consequently have years of future life.

But not everybody has access to the promise. There's a supply problem and a financial problem.

The demand has far outstripped the supply. For a variety of reasons, many people remain uneasy about the concept, so there just plain aren't enough organs available.

Last year was a record year for the Organ Procurement Agency of Michigan (OPAM) as 176 people donated their organs.

Yep, you read that right. A record year netted only 176 organ transplants in this state. There are 1,200 people on the state waiting list and 25,000 nationwide. So 176 doesn't go very far.

If that isn't frustrating enough, consider that you can only receive a transplant if you have a way to pay for it.

Maybe you have a good insurance policy; maybe you're on Medicare, which funds some transplants. There's some funding through certain support groups.

That's about it. If you don't fall into any of those categories, you can go to the local newspaper and ask for publicity. But if you aren't a cute little kid, you might not get much money that way.

Things are better than they used to be. Knowledge about organ transplants is more widespread. And until 1985, all transplants were considered experimental, which meant they weren't funded by anybody.

Still, people like Joe DeFoe and Tom O'Mara, an organ procurement coordinator with OPAM, still have to make the rounds, talking to service clubs, employee groups, newspaper staffs, putting the word out, trying to raise awareness.

But even if they're 100 percent successful — and heaven knows, seeing Joe's success story makes you want to sign a donor card — the operation is still financially out of reach for vast numbers of people.

Some observers think the supply problem could be alleviated if donors' families were compensated. It's a subject that is under discussion among transplant professionals, O'Mara said, but it's only discussed with a 10-foot pole.

Which is to say that compensation is a v-e-r-y ticklish proposition. Nobody likes the idea of buying organs.

Not that anybody is seriously suggesting an organ market. But O'Mara doesn't even like the idea of offering, say, $1,000 toward funeral expenses. He'd rather rely on the generous impulses of the families of accident victims (which is where most donated organs come from).

That generosity is a real thing. Two of my personal friends find their only solace in their son's sudden and premature death from a car accident in the fact that they were able to help someone else with donated organs. And it's a small solace in a sadness that will never go away for them.

But that obviously isn't enough. Their generosity plus Joe DeFoe's glowing health plus Tom O'Mara's hard work still only resulted in 176 donations.

O'Mara is leery of compensation because he — and other professionals — are afraid it could lead people to bump off Granny.

To argue that people will donate organs out of the goodness of their hearts, but would kill their relatives for a thousand bucks, puzzles me. To argue that a system of compensation would mean that only the rich or fortunate could receive organs is circular, when only the rich and fortunate can receive them now.

As things stand now, any extra costs incurred by maintaining a donor body on a support system (what we usually call "life support" is hardly appropriate here) are paid by OPAM. Why not add some funeral expenses if it would increase the number of donations (as critics say it would)?

It's one of several examples in which our technical ability has gotten ahead of our social and ethical standards — that is, we can carry out all manner of whizbang operations, but haven't worked out in our own minds whether (or how) it's OK to do so.

Meanwhile, it's working on a limited basis. Joe DeFoe has progressed to a full life, when a few years ago he was physically and mentally debilitated. Unable even to get out of bed by the time the liver surgery was scheduled, now he drives and gives talks and plays his trumpet over at Marge's on Mack once a month.

Go, Joe!

Chief Dan Healy was being modest when he declined to take credit for the incredible crime stats announced in the Shores this month. It's pretty clear to me that that kind of low crime rate stems precisely from the fact that criminals know the Shores police are all over town like a blanket.

If there are 3,000 residents and they live two to a house and the police made 12,935 house checks in a year, then that's eight per house. Eight plus.

Of course, he's right that things can go sour fast. One murder would increase the rate by 100 percent. But the Shores and the other Pointes keep their low crime rates because of vigilant neighbors and lots of police.

You get what you put into it.

Taxes

To the Editor:

Regarding your Opinion article in the Feb. 6 Grosse Pointe News, perhaps it would be better if you told the whole story.

You state that the Grosse Pointe School District negotiated its labor contract with 12 other school districts.

1) Please name the 12 other districts.

2) How did the 12 other district's wages and benefits compare with Grosse Pointe? Were they higher, similar, 10 percent less, 30 percent less?

Since it is a known fact that the Grosse Pointe teachers are among the highest paid in the state, why do they not negotiate on their own?

We keep hearing that good schools enhance a community and this is true; however, excessive property taxes can destroy a community.

Regarding how Grosse Pointe schools compare with other school districts, it would appear that any economically advantaged district should do better than poorer districts due to better facilities, equipment and newer books.

There are many good teachers in the Grosse Pointe system, but there are also some teachers who shouldn't be teaching, yet all we ever hear is: "They have tenure so we can't do anything about it." If this is not so, then why do teachers refuse to be evaluated on their performance.

Our school board has for years wasted our tax dollars. Over the past five years, the increase in revenue to the schools due to increases in property assessments has many times exceeded the cost of living. Why wasn't this money put away for a rainy day?

The board has continued to give away the store, not only in wages, but in benefits. Social Security and pensions are expensive benefits previously paid by the state of Michigan, but now that the state is changing this practice, the school board is hollering wolf.

Even if the state continued to pay these benefits, where does the board think that the money comes from? I'll tell them, it comes from our property, income and sales taxes, all paid by Grosse Pointe's over-burdened taxpayers.

If and when you print this letter, the voters will have already decided with whom they agree — hopefully, it will be me.

John Gross

Consensual

To the Editor:

I'm writing to absolve your columnist, Nancy Parmenter, of blame. When she interviewed me by telephone at Third Coast Book-sellers, I described my novel, "Playing Soldiers in the Dark" (Bagman Press 1992), as "the story of a 14-year-old boy who has a consensual affair with his teacher." Ms. Parmenter simply left the quotation unmarked.

The word consent derives from Latin: con from cum meaning together, and sentire, to sense, or to feel. Consent literally means to feel with or to feel together.

For me, for my novel, my 14-year-old character, who is coincidentally named Jim, truly feels the same way his teacher feels — he literally consents to the feelings they share together — if not by the legal definition, then by his definition of love.

AIDS cannot count the birthdays of its victims. AIDS kills without consent. All who love are victims of AIDS, too — left behind to number broken hearts. Not one book, not one law, can fix the limits of love, but if you will consent to read my novel, I feel you will better define your feelings about one of the most difficult ways of love.

Melting pot

To the Editor:

Your Feb. 13 issue's Opinion page was of particular interest. It featured another of the always-thoughtful pieces by Wilbur Elston — this time on his discoveries at the University of Michigan law library. And the page led off with a discussion of Governor Engler's problem with welfare and abortion. I would like to comment briefly on each issue.

Mr. Elston's editorial touched on a subject that has troubled me considerably of late. That is the slow dissolution of America's traditional role as the melting pot of the world. At the U of M law library, Mr. Elston found no less than 15 separate and distinct associations of students in the law school allied — and thus separated — by race, ethnicity, sexual preference, religion, cultural and athletic interests, and other groupings.

This comes at a time when we are banishing Haitians, illegal boat people, sending them to an unknown, possibly dire, fate despite their pleas for traditional asylum. In a sense we are somewhat responsible for Haitians, whose country we ruled from 1915 to 1934. But, with a minimal discussion of the problem, out they went.

We are having trouble with Mexicans entering illegally. We have diverted Russian Jews. We have both accepted and banished boat people from Vietnam. We have blacks in gangs "warring" with Hispanic gangs in New York. We have racial, ethnic and cultural clashes between Orientals, blacks and Hispanics in California and Florida. We simply are not able to effect our traditional programs of assimilation which made this country singular — and great — on a global scale.

After centuries of apparent harmony in Canada, we are seeing French Quebecois asserting their sense of nationalism in a reach toward a separate French nation.

Mr. Elston's observations lead to a question: Is assimilation a failure in the United States?

As to the "Trial Balloon" editorial on abortion, the most significant message in the whole editorial may have been the second last paragraph: "However, the governor's reform talk already has had one beneficial effect. It brought to light the fact that Michigan's 225,482 welfare families have an average of 1.84 children each, which is slightly less than the average of 1.99 children for each of the state's 1,287,484 families.

"That comparison answers the argument that welfare mothers produce additional children chiefly to obtain the extra welfare payments for an additional child."

Those figures could cost the pro-abortion group a goodly number of adherents. Many of my friends and acquaintances — and some non-friends — have declared that their support of abortion is based entirely on the welfare-cheat-child argument, usually expressed as, "I'll be damned if I'm going to support any program that encourages birth of more children to go on welfare, and live at my expense." A torrent of profanity, racially tinged, generally follows.

This group is, of course, the same group that votes self-interest on every single social issue, no matter what the effect on the citizenry, the state or the nation. Yes, they probably kick their dogs, too.

It might be appropriate to conclude this discussion on abortion with a finding of a recent survey. It showed that — consistently — a majority of Americans would limit access to abortion to the so-called "hard cases" — rape, incest or the protection of the mother. This position would, in effect, withdraw legal sanction from at least 98 percent of all currently performed abortions.

That means, if the population at large could be reached with the truth about reasons for abortion, the number of abortions performed yearly in this country would be reduced from a present 1,600,000 to a total of 32,000.

And that would be good news to those who recognize and value the basic sacredness of human life.

Chamber music concert Sunday

The Fries Ballroom of the War Memorial will be the setting for a concert sponsored by Grosse Pointe Chamber Music on Sunday, Feb. 23, at 2:30 p.m.

The opening work will consist of five piano duets by Maurice Ravel, performed by Alice Ellison and Lawrence LaGore.

Two songs by Brahms will follow: "Gestillte Sehnsucht" and "Geistliches Wiegenlied." This work is scored for mezzo soprano, viola and piano. It will be presented by Patricia Junker, Ray Demeulemeester and LaGore.

John Miller, piano, and Lee Noble, clarinet, will perform Noble's own composition, Sonata for B-flat clarinet and piano.

Vivaldi's Concerto Grosso in A minor, opus 3, No. 8 will be the concluding work on the program. It will feature Grosse Pointe Chamber Music president Donald Littlefield on string bass, Anthony Theodore on cello, Rolf Wunderlich, viola, and violinists Paul Champion and Gerda Bielitz.

The public is invited. Admission at the door is $5, and members attend free. There will be an afterglow.

'Steel Magnolias' is Grosse Pointe Theatre offering

"Steel Magnolias," Robert Harling's award-winning, tender comedy about life in a Louisiana town, continues Grosse Pointe Theatre's 44th anniversary season when it opens Tuesday, Feb. 25, in the War Memorial Fries Auditorium.

The play will run each evening through Saturday, March 7, with the exception of Monday and Tuesday, March 2 and 3.

"Steel Magnolias" looks at life in Chinquapin Parish, La., through the lives of six women and the relationships that exist between them.

The production opens as Shelby Eatenton, daughter of one of Truvy's regulars, is getting her hair done for her wedding later in the day. Shelby's mother, M'Lynn, soon appears.

Truvy has just hired Annelle, a new assistant, and is also tending to two other regulars, Clairee Belcher, widow of the former mayor, and Ouiser Boudreaux, local gadfly with a heart. What develops is a "genuine feeling of community through the cheerful camaraderies of these ladies of the town."

The production is directed by Michele Karl. Marcia Proven is producer. Stage manager is Emma Jean Evans and technical direction is provided by Art Thompson. Set design is by Jackie DiSante.

The cast includes many long-time Grosse Pointe Theatre members and one newcomer to the group. Lois Bendler takes on the role of M'Lynn Eatenton. Terri Turpin-Amato will portray Shelby. Barbara Roney will appear as Clairee, and Carol Purdon takes on the role of Ouiser. Carolee Castle will portray Annelle and newcomer Jane Ozment will portray Truvy.

Tickets may be obtained by calling the Grosse Pointe Theatre ticket hotline at 881-4004. Good seats are still available.

Have dinner before the play

Enjoy dinner at the Grosse Pointe War Memorial at 6:30 p.m. on the following dates before the 8 p.m. performance of "Steel Magnolias": Wednesday-Saturday, Feb. 26-29, and Wednesday-Friday, March 4-6.

Performance tickets to "Steel Magnolias" may be purchased through the Grosse Pointe Theatre by calling 881-4004. Have your performance tickets confirmed before ordering dinner.

Tickets are $12 a person and include tax and tip. Dinner tickets are limited, so order early. Checks for buffet dinners only should be made payable and mailed to the Grosse Pointe War Memorial with a stamped self-addressed envelope. All orders mailed without self-addressed stamped envelopes will be held at the door. Indicate date desired.

Saltz will discuss the history of the institute and the role of many Grosse Pointe citizens in making it a world-renowned center for improving the lives of children and families.

He also relates the role that key Pointers played in saving Merrill-Palmer from extinction by making it an institute of Wayne State University.

German travelogue

The Travel Photography Club of Grosse Pointe will present "Germany," a 35mm slide program by Michael and Herna Hodnicak on Friday, Feb. 21, at 8 p.m. in the auditorium of Parcels Middle School at Mack and Vernier.

The tour will include a visit to the Black Forest region and the quaint villages of Triberg and Treiburg. Then it's on to Trier, Germany's oldest city, which dates back to the days of the Roman empire. Idar-Oberstein will take viewers 214 steps up a cliff to the famous rock church built in a cave.

The travelogue series is sponsored by the Senior Men's Club of Grosse Pointe and is open to the public. Admission is $1 and includes refreshments after the show.

fund development and community services at Bon Secours Hospital.

Bon Secours has three dedicated mammogram machines. Two are located at the main hospital in Grosse Pointe City and were certified by the Michigan Department of Public Health on Jan. 10, Bagchi said.

The third mammogram machine is located in the Bon Secours Out-Patient Diagnostic Center in Roseville and was certified even more recently, he said.

"Mammography is part of our normal practice; we usually do at least one a day," said Dr. Francis Shea, medical director of Bon Secours' department of radiology.

Bon Secours has been offering mammography exams since 1968, Bagchi said. Last year, the hospital did just under 6,000 mammographies, and "we expect to do over 6,000 this year," he said.

Cottage Hospital in Grosse Pointe Farms has had a dedicated low (radiation) dose mammography machine since 1986, said Janet Duster, spokeswoman for the hospital.

The machine was last certified by state examiners in September 1991 and received an A rating, she said.

The American Registry of Radiological Technologists recently began a testing program to certify radiologists in the specialized area of mammography. Some of Cottage's radiol-ogists are scheduled to take the examination in March, Duster said.

Last year, 3,415 mammograms were performed at Cottage Hospital, she said.

Lakeshore Mammography Center, located at 20931 Mack in Grosse Pointe Woods, has been in practice for almost six years and performed between 7,000 and 8,000 mammography exams last year, said director Judy Sutherland.

The center has two dedicated mammography machines and they are calibrated by certified radiological physicists twice a year, once by the center's own radiological physicist and once by a state examiner, Sutherland said.

The machines were certified by the state a year ago, and when the Grosse Pointe News called last Friday, the state examiner had just walked out the door, Sutherland said. The examiner indicated that the machines would probably get a certification with an A rating from the state, she said, but that the official results would not be available for a few weeks.

St. John's Eastpointe conducted approximately 6,000 mammograms last year, said Dr. A. Christine Watt, head of the hospital's mammography division.

The hospital has two mammogram machines and they were tested by the state last April, she said. One of the machines received a failing grade. However, Watt said the settings used by the Michigan Department of Public Health for that test are never used during a patient examination.

The machine was immediately re-tested using settings normally used in patient examinations and it received a passing grade, she said.

A Feb. 14 press release issued by the hospital said,

"While Dr. Watt supports the quality of mammograms at St. John, the mammograms of patients who underwent the procedure around the time of the Michigan Department of Public Health inspection have been reviewed. The time period (April 1-10) includes the days between the hospital's last documented quality assurance check (March 31), when both units met the American College of Radiology requirements, and MDPH's visit (April 10).

"If there is a question about the technical quality of the examination, the patient will be notified and offered a repeat mammogram at no charge."

Following a mammography test, women at Bon Secours, Cottage, Lakeshore and St. John are not allowed to leave until their X-rays have been reviewed by radiological technologists. That way, if more X-rays need to be taken of the patient, she is right there.

The Michigan Department of Public Health advises women who have questions about previous mammography exams to contact their doctor.

Who tests mammogram equipment?

By Donna Walker
Staff Writer

Before having a mammogram, a woman should ask the hospital or clinic she is considering if its mammography machines are licensed by the Michigan Department of Public Health.

Also, she should ask if the facility is accredited by the American College of Radiologists.

Why is it important to ask those two questions?

Because all mammogram machines in Michigan must be licensed by the state, and because mammographic facilities must meet certain quality standards to be accredited by the American College of Radiologists.

The Michigan Department of Public Health conducts an annual spot check of mammogram machines as part of its licensure program, said Jean Chabut, chief of the Michigan Department of Public Health's center of health promotion and chronic disease prevention.

During the spot check, the health department examiner has the radiological technologist X-ray a "phantom" — an object that is the same shape and consistency as a woman's breast. The phantom contains a number of tumor-like substances. The mammogram machines are graded on the quality of X-rays they produce and the amount of radiation used, with "A" being the highest grade.

The grading process is fairly new. As a result, Chabut said, some mammography facilities may have been confused about the testing criteria during their last spot check by the health department, causing their machines to receive a failing grade.

Most of the failing machines had their grades changed to passing almost immediately, after being adjusted and retested, she said.

A recent story in another newspaper reported the names of mammography facilities whose equipment had failed the health department's test. However, it did not say that most of those machines received a passing grade after being immediately retested, or that most of the facilities which had a failing machine also had others that received passing grades, Chabut said.

Since that story appeared, the health department and mammography clinics have been inundated with phone calls from women wondering about the accuracy of past and future mammograms.

"The overall quality of mammograms in Michigan is among the best in the country, and I think that one of our strengths is that all of our facilities are eager to work with us," Chabut said. "If there is a problem, we work together to get it right. It would be awful if that story made women think that the quality of our mammograms is poor in comparison to the rest of the world, because that isn't the case. And it should absolutely not deter women from getting a mammogram, because that's the earliest means of detection for breast cancer."

Currently, the health department only has rules regarding the performance of mammography equipment. It does not have criteria for measuring other factors, such as the performance of the technologists who position the women on the mammography machine, or who read the X-rays. However, such rules are being developed by the state, Chabut said.

Unlike the state health department, the American College of Radiology measures the accuracy of the entire mammographic process, including patient placement, breast density (to get a clear X-ray, the mammography equipment is supposed to squeeze the patient's breast so that it is the same density throughout), and the development and reading of the X-rays.

The American Cancer Society and the Michigan Department of Public Health recommend that women have their first mammogram (called a baseline mammogram) between the ages of 35 and 39.

From the ages of 40 to 49, they should have a mammogram every one to two years, and over the age of 50, they should have one every year, the organizations recommend.

If there is a history of breast cancer in a woman's family, she should have a baseline mammogram even earlier.

Who are likely candidates for breast cancer? Women over 50 who have a history of breast cancer in their family and who never had children or who had their first child after the age of 30.

To find out if a mammography clinic is a member of the American College of Radiologists, call the Cancer Information Service, a division of the National Cancer Institute, from 9 a.m. to 10 p.m. Monday-Friday at 1-800-4-CANCER. Service representatives can answer questions about all kinds of cancer, not just breast cancer.

Love, dedication: 2 most important notes on scale of success

And the beat goes on, not as fast and furious as it once was, but slower and more harmonious. The discordant notes of inexperience have been replaced with the sure touch that comes with knowledge accumulated over the years, the maturity of knowing limits, and an acquired sense of performance. All of these are notes on the scale of success, whether it be music or any other chosen life work.

But first and foremost are love and dedication. Dedication leads to perfection, but it's love that keeps us striving and sometimes makes it difficult to let go. There are those who never do. When they retire, they continue on in a voluntary capacity.

A few weeks ago, there was a retirement gathering honoring Mary Georgilas Ball, the director of the International Institute of Metropolitan Detroit since 1978. If ever there was an enthusiastic, dedicated worker who loved every minute of the many important civic positions she held, it was Mary, probably because they brought her in contact with people. Everyone she met was her friend. Her career as a civic servant and civic leader has spanned 40 years.

She is credited with helping launch such projects as the riverfront festivals, developing the 250-acre Cultural Center near Wayne State University, expanding the International Institutes' number of represented ethnic groups from four to 60 and establishing the International Hall of Fame in Cobo Center.

Officially Mary will no longer head the institute but will join its board and The Friends of The International Institute to help raise funds.

Another notable instance of woman who so loved her work

Prime Time

By Marian Trainor

that she stayed with it on a volunteer basis was recently voted New York's outstanding "young" lawyer for 1992 by the New York Bar Association. She is 62-year-old Ruth Adler, a legal aid lawyer in Buffalo, who began her career in 1983. She qualified for the honor under the associations rule that if a lawyer is under 37 or has practiced fewer than 10 years, he or she is eligible. She has the idealism and independence necessary for such difficult work, as well as the youthful energy, enthusiasm and commitment.

She has created procedural protections for water users facing cutoffs; helped assemble a group of lawyers to aid the poor in obtaining Medicaid benefits; and set up a coalition of doctors and lawyers to discuss health care benefits.

Her reaction on winning was, "I know I'm young. I just can't believe I'm a lawyer. Like many women my age, I'll never know what I could have been or could have done."

And then there is Marjan Houghton, who at 78 writes features by the dozen in Little Jaffrey. She got her start in newspaper business just six years ago, but she is fast making up for lost time.

Pick up the 1,500 circulation weekly Chronicle and there is Marjan Houghton's byline splashed all over the front page, and most of the pages that follow.

"I try to limit myself to 10 stories a week plus the columns," she says, stressing that she's a part-timer.

It is only a few miles from Jaffrey to Peterborough, N.H., immortalized in Thorton Wilder's, "Our Town." In these parts, a line from that play is as true today as it ever was: "In our town we like to know the facts about everybody."

During the 1988 presidential primary, when Sen. Robert Dole made a swing through Jaffray, Mrs. Houghton got to observe the big media firsthand; the AP, the New York Times and the TV people all piled in their tripods, lights and video cameras. She didn't ask a question, but she got the senators picture.

It is said that there are 5,000 stories in the town and Mrs. Houghton is determined to ferret them out. "Everybody has a

Volunteers needed for osteoporosis study

Volunteers are needed to participate in a two-year study to determine the effectiveness of a new drug which may reduce the rate of bone loss and increase bone strength in some patients with osteoporosis.

Doctors are looking for women who are postmenopausal by at least five years, between 60 and 85 and who are in good general health but have low bone density (osteoporosis).

All study-related care, including tests, will be provided free. For more information, call Pat Ortega at 876-7135.

Senior men to meet Feb. 25

The Grosse Pointe Senior Men's Club will meet at the War Memorial at 11 a.m. Tuesday, Feb. 25.

The speaker will be Pat Ott, administrative director, cardiac catheterization laboratory, St. John Hospital. Her topic will be, "The Galloping Technology in the Treatment of Heart Disease."

The presenter will be Joe Callahan.

The Valentine party was cancelled because of lack of interest - only 70 reservations were made.

The next event will be a musical comedy to be produced by The Fine Arts Society on Thursday, April 9, at the Players Club Theater on Jefferson Avenue. Protected parking is free one building east of the theater.

The play will be preceded by a wine and hors d'oeuvres social period at 7:30 p.m. in the upstairs directors room.

After the musical, there will be a gourmet supper with beer, wine, soft drinks and coffee. The cost is $19 a person. Only 200 people can be accommodated, so make your reservations early with Art Hollar, phone number in the membership book.

Members who need a ride can call Harold Padesky.

Training to serve older learners

The Southeast Michigan Older Learner Forum, to train anyone who wants to provide education and learning experiences for older adults, will be held Friday, Feb. 28, at Madonna University in Livonia.

The training session, from 9 a.m. to 3:30 p.m., is sponsored by the Michigan Office of Services to the Aging, the Michigan Department of Education, Madonna University, and the Southeast Michigan Older Learner Committee.

The forum is designed to provide useful information and skills to anyone who wants to conduct or expand learning opportunities for older adults. These include volunteer workers and paid staff from adult and community education programs, colleges and universities, senior centers, recreation programs, churches, unions, the media, corporations, hospitals, credit unions, nursing homes, literacy programs, government agencies, libraries and museums.

The training fee is $15 ($10 for retirees) which covers registration, parking, conference packet, lunch and refreshments.

For more information, call Theresa Mousour in Southfield at 1-800-852-7795, or Carol Marsh in Birmingham at 642-1040.

Tax info for seniors

Tax Information for Senior Citizens is a non-credit class offered to adults by the Department of Community Education of the Grosse Pointe Public School System.

This is an opportunity for senior citizens to understand the ramifications of the federal income tax laws which most affect them. Topics covered include pension income, annuities, the taxable portion of Social Security, IRA withdrawals, medical deductions, taxes on the sale of property and more.

Taught by tax expert Ted Clough, the class begins at 7:30 p.m. on Wednesday, March 4, in Room 202 of Barnes School, 20090 Morningside Drive, Grosse Pointe Woods. The fee for the four-session class is $19. Prior registration is urged.

story," she says. "There's something in there that they didn't know they had until you let them talk."

Robert Denz was a counter-intelligence agent chasing spies for the FBI. Now he's poised to help push health care onto the agenda of every presidential candidate.

Retired and living in New Hampshire, site of last Tuesday's presidential primary, the 67-year-old Denz is organizing senior citizens to put the heat on the 1992 presidential candidates.

"We're going to bird-dog the candidates, go to every auditorium, every kitchen, every living room where these candidates are speaking," says Denz.

When Winifred Brand retired years ago her from her PR job it provided her with an opportunity to devote more time to writing poetry, an avocation she had followed throughout her working years. Now she has put her poems in a book, "At the Edge of Forever," and made the dream of a lifetime come true. Mrs. Brand Lives in Lincoln Park.

A man who in retirement has made immense contributions to the growth and welfare of our community is our own Walker Lee Cisler, retired chairman of the board at Detroit Edison. He heads overseas Advisory Associates, not-for-profit company provides energy consulting services to countries overseas. More than two dozen honors have been conferred upon Cisler by grateful nations.

And so the beat goes on as long as you keep in the groove doing what you like to do best.

When you need emergency care, come to Bon Secours Hospital. Every one of our emergency physicians is board-certified and specially trained in emergency medicine. Each has had advanced cardiac life-support training as well. And all of our emergency room nurses have long-term experience in the emergency department.

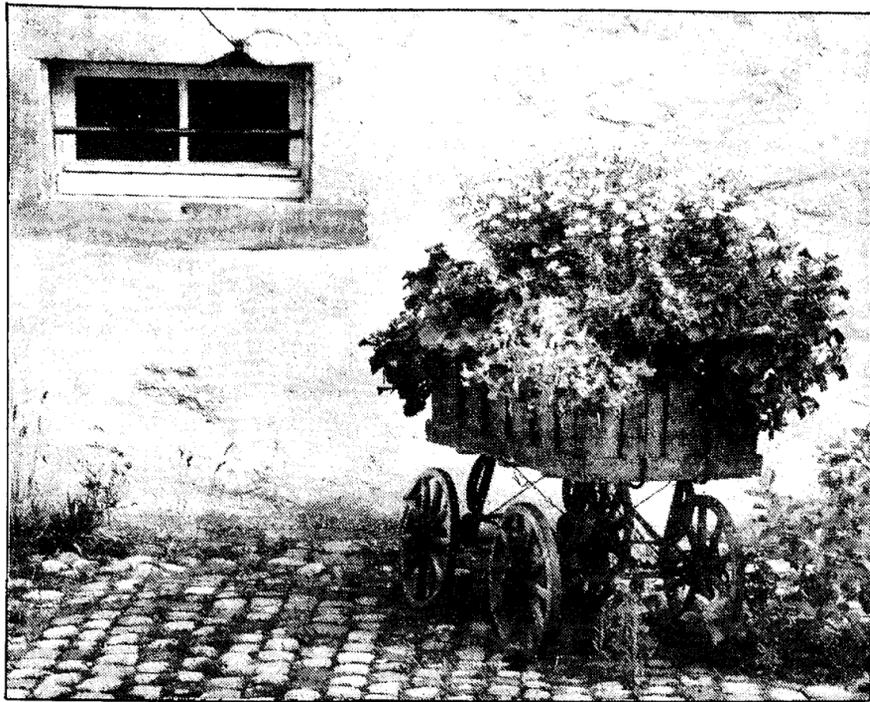

To make your emergency care even better, we've expanded our Emergency Department: four new general treatment rooms, a mini-laboratory and radiology room right on site, and additional orthopedics and gynecology specialty rooms. We have pediatricians and obstetricians available 24 hours a day, and we've doubled the size of the triage area so we can treat you faster. Plus we're adding more state-of-the-art equipment to the department, including new cardiac telemetry units which will enable us to monitor up to 20 critical patients even while they're being transported to different areas of the hospital for necessary testing.

All of these improvements, combined with the most qualified emergency staff in Michigan, means outstanding care for you and your family. And that's our ultimate goal. In fact, we won't stand for anything less.

Did you ever take what you knew was a prize-winning shot and then wondered if it could capture first place in a photography contest?

Well, there's a competitive spirit in all of us and unless you enter your picture in a contest, you'll never know how you'd do.

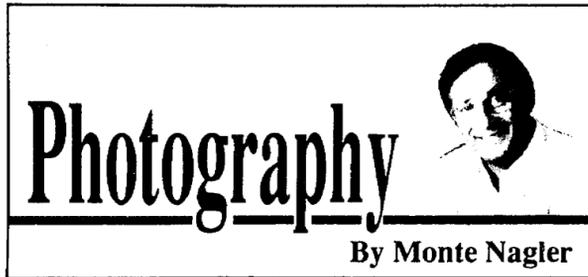

Here's some advice about photo contests — where to locate them and how best to go about entering the competition. You could win an exciting trip, new camera equipment or some useful cash.

The best source for finding contests is the news media. Your local newspapers always announce photography contests and quite frequently sponsor their own contests. Check out one of the many photography magazines available. They always announce contests, too.

Major shopping malls in the area often conduct contests and, of course, camera clubs in the vicinity welcome your best shots in their competitions. And your favorite camera store can also keep you up-to-date on photo happenings.

Knowing what judges look for in a good photograph can be a valuable guide when entering a photo contest. Usually, judges base their scores on three criteria.

First is subject matter. A judge will ask, is the subject unusual, or, if commonplace, is it treated in an unusual way? Does it stand apart from other entries and command attention? Are my emotions stirred and is the picture communicating anything to me? In short, does the image have impact and "stopping power"?

Secondly, judges will take a critical look at composition to determine if all the elements of the picture are arranged in the most effective way. They'll ask themselves, is this photograph simplified and uncluttered? Is there a strong idea being expressed and does the composition complement the subject?

Thirdly, and equally important, is the technical quality of the photograph. A judge will look for sharpness, proper exposure and good color saturation. He'll look for a clean slide or print, and, if matted, he'll want to see neat, well-cut mats.

Make sure you read all the entry rules carefully and abide by them. You wouldn't want that special shot to be disqualified on a minor technicality.

Very important, shoot the subjects that interest you. By putting your own feelings and emotions in your photography, you most certainly will increase your chances of producing a prize-winning photo with imperfect. Shooting for the judges and not for yourself will result in pictures that lack that all-important ingredient — you.

Keep it fun, enjoy the competition, and try to use photo contests as a means of improving your own photographic skills and interest.

Man turns self in, gets surprise

When a conscience-stricken 37-year-old Detroit man turned himself in to Park police Feb. 7 on an outstanding traffic warrant, he got more than he bargained for.

While processing the man's traffic warrant, police discovered he was also wanted on a felony warrant in Detroit for cocaine possession. He was arrested and turned over to Detroit police.

Photo classes

Three photography classes will be held by members of the Grosse Pointe Camera Club at 7:30 p.m. on Thursdays, March 5, 12 and 19, at Barnes school, 20090 Morningside Drive, Grosse Pointe Woods. The offerings will benefit both the novice and the experienced photographer.

On March 5 the "Point and Shoot Basics" class is for owners of simple, compact auto-focus cameras to familiarize them with the capacities and limitations of their camera's internal controls. Discussion and demonstrations will include exposure, shutter speeds, types of film, flash, plus pointers on improving technique and composition for better pictures. A printed summary of the course will be available. Bring camera and manual.

"Travel Basics" will be given on March 12 for travelers with 35mm cameras, either simple point and shoot or SLR types, who would like to commemorate their trips with good pictures. Practical information will cover what equipment to pack, kind of film to take in either print or slide category, plus useful lenses and filters.

Discussion will include airline security (x-rays), batteries, flash and other useful accessories. A slide presentation will stress good composition and technique to guide the traveler when taking pictures of people, places and things.

"Photographing the Spring Season" will be given on March 19 for those who would like to learn the basics for taking beautiful pictures with SLR cameras. The focus will be on a variety of spring activities in the out-of-doors.

The course will encompass close-up photography of spring flowers and insects plus landscapes, birds, and ideas for Easter cards. Basic knowledge of SLR cameras is recommended.

For more information, call the Grosse Pointe Department of Community Education at 343-2178. The fee is $7 for each session. Early registration is urged.

House burgled

A home in the 1800 block of Roslyn in the Woods was broken into sometime before 1 a.m. Feb. 15.

The resident returned home and discovered someone had removed a bathroom screen and window and crawled in. There was mud in the bathtub. The burglar replaced the window, but put it in upside down. Nothing was taken.

Accord: '91 popularity king; remember when it was Impala?

Honda Accord was the most popular car in America last year. More than 320,000 Accords assembled in Marysville, Ohio, passed from dealers to eager buyers — that was more sales than were racked up by all Mercury models combined. It edged Ford Taurus by about 24,000 units.

What's to like about the Accord sedan? Better question is, what's not to like? Based on our experience earlier this month with the EX sedan, it's easy to see why so many buyers opt for the Accord. It's quiet, smooth, highly maneuverable and reasonably peppy.

The EX interior looks just a little old-fashioned but is nicely finished; the seats are firm and comfortable, and deep windows give a bright, airy feeling to the cabin.

Under the hood is a 2.2-liter aluminum-alloy 16-valve fuel-injected engine. It's rated at 130 horsepower. Even in cold weather, the five-speed manual transmission was so easy to shift it might have been done with just the fingertips. Fuel economy numbers for the manual transmission range from 24 mpg city to 29 mpg highway. The extra-cost four-speed automatic has slightly lower figures.

The DX and LX Accord sedans come with 14-inch wheels; the EX and top-of-the-line SE models feature 15-inch wheels. The SE, which joined the sedan family in 1991, also gets higher horsepower (140) from the 2.2-liter engine and has a leather-trimmed interior and ABS brakes.

Add to all of the above the fact that if you have an Accord, you really feel like you belong. So if you've got between $13,500 and $19,000 to spend, go for it.

But you might want to keep in mind what Jack Gillis says in the recently published "The Car Book 1992." The auto writer and consumer-sector analyst says he finds Accord's high repair costs and its rank on a warranty and complaint index keeps it from his recommended list. Honda Accords and Civics built in North America and sold in the United States totaled 482,000 in 1991. In addition, 74,000 Civics and 76,000 Accords were imported and sold here.

Some bestsellers from the past

Confused and frustrated about all the hullabaloo regarding what's made in the U.S.A.? Concerned about which vehicles are not politically correct to take to Kroger for a head of lettuce?

C'mon, let's take a trip down memory lane with a look back at some bestsellers many of us can remember (and may wonder how they ever managed it). Back to a day when the U.S. industry dominated. Back to, say, 1973.

According to our Automotive News Market Data Book, the Chevrolet Impala ruled in '73. New registrations for Impalas numbered 475,942. Fold in 153,000 full-size station wagons and sprinkle on 192,000-plus Caprices and we're talking serious sales.

A full 222.7 inches long and weighing 4,281 pounds, the Impala featured a 145-horsepower 350 V-8. A 400-inch engine in the Caprice Classic and Chevy wagon developed up to 180 horsepower. (Today's Caprice is 214 inches long, weighs 3,907 pounds and has a 5.0-liter 170-horsepower V-8 under the hood.)

Full-size Chevys were assembled in places like Janesville,

Autos

By Jenny King

Honda's FX-S (Future Sports Sedan Experimental) aluminum-alloy concept sedan features a high-efficiency, 3.5-liter 280-horsepower V-6 which transmits power through an all-wheel drive traction control system, splitting torque between front and rear wheels. It was displayed at the Acura stand at the auto show last month.

Wis., St. Louis, South Gate, Calif., Tarrytown, N.Y., and Wilmington, Del. Prices for America's favorite car ranged from about $3,700, to $4,600 for the four-door, three-seat wagon, no air conditioning. (A Corvette convertible was about $5,700, in case anyone wants to know.) Current price on a basic Caprice sedan: $17,300.

Of the 826,000 full-size Chevys delivered to customers in 1973, 88 percent had radios, none came with factory-installed bucket seats, 19 percent had an adjustable steering column and 9 percent had cruise control, according to our Market Data Book. Eight out of 10 buyers ordered air conditioning, virtually everyone opted for an automatic transmission; likewise for the standard V-8 engine.

Here's some more fun stuff from 19 and 20 years ago. Ford Pinto sales reached 304,000 cars in 1972. It was Ford Division's biggest seller, followed by the Ford LTD. Chevy sold 265,000 Vegas that year and 320,000 Chevelles.

Then there was 1974, the aftermath of our first "oil crisis." Remember the long lines at filling stations back in '73? Remember how many filling stations there used to be then? Remember the Plymouth Valiant? The Valiant, dear friends, was the hottest U.S. nameplate in '74, its 338,000 sales beating out Chevrolet Impala's 312,000 and Nova's 303,000.

The Valiant Duster looked something like this: Its overall length was 196 inches, it weighed about 3,050 pounds, its base engine was a straight six that cranked out 95 horsepower. A couple of V-8s were available, including a 230-horsepower 4-barrel. (See you at the gas station.) Valiant prices started around $3,200.

In 1982 the front-drive Chevrolet was ousted from first place by Ford Escort. The Euro-American subcompact captured buyers' imaginations and pocketbooks and held onto its Numero Uno title for several years during that decade. It was top-seller again in 1987 and 1988, and kind of the top-seller in 1983 and 1984.

"Those years EXP sales were listed separately," explained Joel Pitcoff, a keeper of numbers at Ford Motor Co. "If they were added in as they were in later years, Escort would have been first in '83 and '84."

"As it was, Escort was the top-selling nameplate among cars for the decade by maybe 700,000 units."

And in a country like ours, that thrives on polls, ratings, lists, and the ability to be top banana, that's something. We'll see how long the Honda Accord can stay balanced on the top of the heap.

Check the children

Tax season is here and most people find filing a burden. There is an alternative, however, a way that you can feel positive about doing your taxes.

On the Michigan state income tax form, there is a special box that you can check that will help the children of the state. The box is identified with a Help Stop Child Abuse logo.

The funds that you contribute go to the Children's Trust Fund. Half of the amount contributed each year goes into a trust that will become self-perpetuating after the amount reaches $20 million. The other half of the funds goes to support child abuse prevention programs in Michigan.

What makes the trust unique is that it will only fund programs that work with families before abuse occurs — it is exclusively a prevention organization.

Airbags, car seats don't mix

Air bags and child safety seats are both good ideas. Both save lives and reduce injury. But the two aren't designed to work together.

In fact, putting a child safety seat in the front passenger seat where there's an airbag could do more harm than good. The rapidly expanding airbag could displace the safety seat, especially if the safety seat faces backward.

The best place for a child safety seat is in the backseat of the car. Airbags still aren't available on most cars, and those that have them usually only have them on the driver's side. Still, if you own a car with a passenger-side airbag, and if you have a small child, remember: Safety seats and airbags are two good ideas which aren't great together.

License plate fees can be deducted

AAA Michigan reminds motorists preparing their 1991 federal income tax forms that Michigan's license plate fees are deductible.

Taxpayers who itemize can deduct license plate charges, which average $46 a vehicle, as a personal property tax on Schedule A. The fees are deductible for 1984 and newer models since charges are based on the value of the vehicle. Fees for 1983 and older models are based on weight and are not deductible.

Taxpayers also should remember that interest payments on personal loans used to purchase vehicles are no longer deductible, having been completely phased out for 1991 returns.

The Honda Accord EX sedan rides on a 107-inch wheelbase. Its 4-wheel double wishbone suspension includes large hydraulic shock absorbers and front and rear stabilizer bars.

Schools kick off programs to help parents get through to their children

June Cleaver had it made. Her only worries seemed to be burning the pot roast and wondering whether the milk and freshly baked cookies Wally and Beaver were eating would spoil their dinners.

She never grappled with third grade boy-girl parties or sleepovers. Never worried about the R-rated videos her boys might be seeing at the house of the friend down the street (whose parents were "cool"). And just how many hours a day do you think she would have let The Beav play Nintendo?

Then what would have happened when they entered middle and high school? What would June do if Wally came home with cigarettes in his pocket, or drunk? Would Ward advocate "safe" sex? What about AIDS? Should they let Beaver rent a limo in the eighth grade? Should Wally go to Cancun during spring break! (That one's easy: Not if Eddie Haskell is going!)

And even if June did still know the perfect thing to say in all of these situations, how would she dispense this wise counsel in the midst of the logistical nightmare of getting everyone to hockey practice, basketball practice, Cub Scouts and piano lessons?

No, June's serenity wouldn't last a week in middle America 1992. The dilemmas only seem to increase, to get more difficult and more risky. In fact, the only things that don't seem to be increasing exponentially with each day's newspaper headlines are our parenting skills and our confidence that we are making the right decisions for our children.

Well, I doubt that we'll return to the idyllic 1950s — assuming they ever existed. And while parenting is certainly more challenging now than ever before, I don't think we need to give up hope. Perhaps our biggest problem is a crisis of confidence (something Ward and June had no time for in a half-hour sitcom).

It's true that we cannot control our children's behavior. And it's also true that — because of the culture we live in — each of them will have to make decisions before they graduate from high school about whether they will smoke, drink, use cocaine, or have sex ("safe" or otherwise). However, study after study confirms that

Sober thoughts

parental influence is still one of the strongest factors in our children's decisions — through adolescence and early adulthood.

Of course, peer influence and the affects of the media increase as they grow older. But we only lose our ability to influence when we don't use our influence effectively and allow those other messages to fill the vacuum we have created.

These comments are all part of an invitation to take advantage of a series of Programs for Parents now being offered by the Grosse Pointe public schools. These programs are open to all parents in the Grosse Pointe and Harper Woods communities, public and private schools, and are designed for parents of children at different grade levels.

None of the programs try to browbeat you into believing that there is only one way to parent or one choice to make in a given situation. Each of them challenges you to clarify how you feel about the issues that you and your children will confront as they grow, and gives you the opportunity to interact with other parents who are struggling with the same concerns. And each program suggests specific ways that you can effectively communicate your values and beliefs in ways that make it more likely that you will be heard by your children.

For example, for parents of pre-kindergarten through second graders, Wise Mothers Inc.,

will present a program titled "Nurturing Children in a Changing World" on March 24 in the Ferry school gymnasium from 7 to 9 p.m.

Parents of third- through fifth-graders will have the opportunity to participate in "Raising Young Children in the '90s," presented by Prevention Plus. The second part of this two-part program is being offered at Monteith (for Kerby, Monteith, and Richard) on March 2, and at Maire (for Defer, Maire and Trombly) on March 9.

You need not have attended the first session at those schools to participate. Mason will host Part One on Feb. 24 for parents at Ferry, Mason, or Poupard, or those from any other school who may have missed the first part at their school. Part Two will be offered at Mason on March 16. All programs will meet in the respective school libraries from 7:30 to 9 p.m. Call your individual school if you are interested in attending.

If your children are in middle school — take heart! It is certainly one of the most challenging times for you and your child, but two outstanding programs are being offered by Human Dynamics Inc. that will help you not only cope now, but hopefully also pave the way for a less stressful high school experience. "How To Keep Being a Parent When Your Child Stops Being a Child" will meet on four consecutive Wednesdays, beginning March 18 in the Brownell Middle School library from 7:30 to 9 p.m.

A second program for middle school parents is also being offered by Human Dynamics Inc. "Growing Parents, Growing Kids" is an innovative approach to learning to better communicate with your middle school-age child. The parent(s) and their child must both participate in this five-session process, which will include activities for parents alone, adolescents alone, and some joint activities. This program is modeled after the successful "Lifeline" weekend conducted at Pierce Middle School last spring. It will take place at Harper Woods High School from 7 to 9 p.m. on consecutive Thursdays, beginning April 30.

Finally, parents of high school students will have an opportunity to look at the issues their children are confronting now and as they prepare for college during two programs titled, "Raising Your Children in the 90s," again offered by Prevention Plus. Those sessions will take place in the South High School library from 7:30 to 9 p.m. on April 2 and April 9 and are open to North and South parents.

While this year these programs may not be located in the school your child attends, you may call your child's school for details. You are welcome to attend any or all of these programs, free of charge.

I know that June and Ward would want you to be there.

Detective warns of bad checks

Grosse Pointe City detective Sgt. John Drummond sat at his desk shaking his head in disbelief.

In front of him were photocopies of bad checks turned over to him by merchants for investigation and prosecution. What bothered the detective was that many of the uncollectible checks losses could have been avoided.

In fact, in one case, a store employee recalled having sufficient cause for believing the check writer was not the person whose name appeared on the check. But the employee did not ask for identification.

Drummond urges all merchants to take precautions. Ask for a driver's license, and be wary of Michigan identification cards, he advises.

For one thing, a driver's license picture can be matched up with the check writer. Second, if the driver's license is recorded, police have a better chance of tracking down the check bouncer. Also, if the employee recalls matching the driver's license picture with the check writer, it will be easier to prove the case in court.

Finally, services, such as TeleCheck, are offered that will help reduce the chances of getting stuck with a bad check. The investment may pay for itself.

Virginia Yerger Robb

Services were held Feb. 17 at Christ Church in Grosse Pointe Farms for Virginia Yerger Robb, 60, of Grosse Pointe City. She died of cancer on Feb. 14, 1992, at her home.

Miss Robb was born in Detroit, the daughter of Dr. and Mrs. J. Milton Robb. Her father was a Grosse Pointe physician.

In addition to the Grosse Pointes, Miss Robb had lived in Detroit and Birmingham.

She received her bachelor's degree from Sweetbriar College in Virginia and her master's degree from the University of Michigan. She taught advanced mathematics in high school settings, first at Kingswood, then at University Liggett School, and finally at the Madeira School in Virginia before retiring in 1989.

She was a member of Sigma Gamma, the University Liggett Alumnae Association and the American Association of University Women.

She is survived by her brother, David Robb of Grosse Pointe, four nephews and two nieces.

Arrangements were handled by the Wm. R. Hamilton Co. Groesbeck Chapel in Mount Clemens. Burial was in Woodlawn Cemetery in Detroit.

George H. James

A memorial mass will be held at 11 a.m. Friday, Feb. 21, at St. Clare of Montefalco Catholic Church in Grosse Pointe Park, for George H. James, 71, of Grosse Pointe City. He died Feb. 17, 1992, in Detroit.

Born in Detroit, Mr. James was an accountant for an auto dealer.

He is survived by his wife, Virginia; and son, Joseph W. James.

Cremation took place at Evergreen Cemetery in Detroit.

Roger Foster Stevens

Services were held Feb. 17 at the A.H. Peters Funeral Home in Grosse Pointe Woods for Roger Foster Stevens, 80, of Grosse Pointe Woods. He died Feb. 13, 1992, at his home.

Born in Dearborn, Mr. Stevens was founder and president of Poly Supply Co. and Pointe Area Nurses Registry, located in Grosse Pointe Woods.

He is survived by his beloved friend and companion, Beatrice Palmer; sons, Roger Vincent, Robert Bruce and Michael John; and a grandson.

Memorial contributions may be made to the Parkinsons Foundation, 3990 John R, Detroit, Mich. 48201.

Virginia (Baker) Colby

Virginia Baker Colby

Services for Virginia (Baker) Colby, 81, of Grosse Pointe Farms will be held at 10 a.m. Friday, Feb. 21, at Grosse Pointe Memorial Church in Grosse Pointe Farms. She died Feb. 17, 1992, at Cottage Hospital in Detroit.

Mrs. Colby was born in Detroit, the daughter of Gertrude Dean and George Sumner Baker.

A graduate of Liggett School, she married Frederick Lee Colby Jr. in 1930. Soon thereafter they built their residence in Grosse Pointe Farms.

Mrs. Colby was active in many organizations and served on several boards, including the Sigma Gamma Association, the Junior League of Detroit, the Neighborhood Thrift Shop, the National Society of Colonial Dames of America, the Grosse Pointe Garden Club and the Junior League Gardeners.

She is survived by her husband, Frederick Lee Colby Jr.; daughter, Wendy Dean Colby Krag; and two grandchildren.

Arrangements were handled by the William R. Hamilton Co. Groesbeck Chapel in Mount Clemens. Memorial contributions may be made to the Detroit Institute for Children, 5447 Woodward Ave., Detroit, Mich. 48202. The institute is sponsored by the Sigma Gamma Association.

Hilda Maud (Hastings) Ferguson

Hilda Maud (Hastings) Ferguson, 104, a longtime resident of Grosse Pointe Farms, died Jan. 30, 1992, while visiting her son in Annadale, Va. She had been ill for a short time.

Born in South Creak, Norfolk, England, she moved to Canada in 1910 and then to the United States in 1924.

"A woman of remarkable intelligence and imagination, she combined the charm and standards of the Victorian Age with wide-awake interest in the modern world," wrote her friend, Mariela Brown. "She made her family the center of her life."

Mrs. Ferguson is survived by her daughter, Elizabeth Ferguson of Grosse Pointe Farms; son, Frederick Noel; a grandson; and twin great-grandsons. She was preceded in death by her husband, Frederick William Ferguson, who died in 1946.

A funeral service was held at St. Barnabas Episcopal Church in Annadale, Va. A memorial service will be held in the spring at Christ Church in Grosse Pointe Farms. Memorial contributions may be made to Recording for the Blind, 20 Roszel Road, Princeton, N.J. 08540-9983.

Freda Kruger

Services were held Feb. 12 at the Eppens-Van Deweghe Funeral Home in Detroit for Freda Kruger, 88, a longtime resident of Grosse Pointe Woods. She died Feb. 9, 1992, at her home.

Born in Germany, Mrs. Kruger was a homemaker.

She is survived by her daughter, Eleanor Obermeyer, two grandchildren and two great-grandchildren. She was preceded in death by her husband, Carl R. Kruger.

Interment was in Cadillac Memorial Gardens East cemetery in Clinton Township. Memorial contributions may be made to Cottage Hospital Hospice or the Alzheimers Disease Association.

George Joseph Martin

Services were held Feb. 13 at Grosse Pointe United Church in Grosse Pointe Farms for George Joseph Martin, 70, of Grosse Pointe Farms. He died Feb. 9, 1992, at his home.

Born in Rivesville, W.V., Mr. Martin was a self-employed electrician.

He is survived by his wife, Madlyn.

Cremation took place at Meadowcrest Cemetery in Detroit. Arrangements were handled by the Eppens-Van Deweghe Funeral Home in Detroit.

City of Grosse Pointe Park, Michigan
County of Wayne
State of Michigan

NOTICE OF INTENTION OF THE CITY OF GROSSE POINTE PARK TO ENTER INTO A FULL FAITH AND CREDIT GENERAL OBLIGATION CONTRACT OF LEASE WITH THE CITY OF GROSSE POINTE PARK BUILDING AUTHORITY AND NOTICE OF RIGHT TO PETITION FOR REFERENDUM THEREON

TO ALL ELECTORS AND TAXPAYERS OF THE CITY OF GROSSE POINTE PARK:

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN, that the City Council of the City of Grosse Pointe Park, County of Wayne, State of Michigan, has authorized the execution of a full faith and credit general obligation contract of lease with the City of Grosse Pointe Park Building Authority. The contract of lease provides, among other things, for the acquisition, construction, furnishing and equipping by the City of Grosse Pointe Park Building Authority of a project consisting of municipal complex and public safety facilities and the site thereof to be located in the City of Grosse Pointe Park. The contract of lease further provides that the City of Grosse Pointe Park Building Authority will finance all or part of the cost of the project by the issuance of building authority bonds pursuant to the provisions of Act 31, Public Acts of Michigan, 1948 (First Extra Session), as amended, in anticipation of the receipt of cash rental payments to be made by the City of Grosse Pointe Park to the City of Grosse Pointe Park Building Authority pursuant to said contract of lease. The maximum amount of bonds to be issued is $2,600,000.

FULL FAITH AND CREDIT AND LIMITED TAXING POWER OF THE CITY OF GROSSE POINTE PARK PLEDGED

NOTICE IS FURTHER GIVEN, that in said contract of lease the City of Grosse Pointe Park obligates itself to make cash rental payments to the City of Grosse Pointe Park Building Authority in amounts sufficient to pay the principal of and interest on the bonds to be issued by the City of Grosse Pointe Park Building Authority and that the full faith and credit of the City of Grosse Pointe Park will be pledged for the making of said cash rental payments as a limited tax first budget obligation. Pursuant to said pledge of its full faith and credit, the City of Grosse Pointe Park will be required in each fiscal year to include in its general fund budget and to appropriate such amounts as shall be necessary to make such cash rental payments. In no event may the City of Grosse Pointe Park levy an ad valorem tax for the purpose of paying for the project in an amount in excess of the rate permitted by the Constitution and laws of the State of Michigan. In addition to its obligation to make cash rental payments, the City of Grosse Pointe Park agrees, in said contract of lease, to pay all costs and expenses of the Authority incidental to the issuance and payment of the bonds to the extent such expenses are not payable from the proceeds of the bonds and to pay the expenses of operating and maintaining the project.

RIGHT TO PETITION FOR REFERENDUM

NOTICE IS FURTHER GIVEN that this notice is given to and for the benefit of the electors and taxpayers of the City of Grosse Pointe Park in order to inform them that the City Council has authorized the execution of the above described contract of lease and also to inform them of their right to petition for a referendum upon the question of entering into such a contract of lease. The City of Grosse Pointe Park intends to enter into said contract of lease without a vote of the electors thereon, but the contract of lease shall not become effective until 45 days after publication of this notice. If, within said 45-day period, a petition for referendum requesting an election on the contract of lease, signed by not less than 10% or 15,000 of the registered electors of the City of Grosse Pointe Park, whichever is less, has been filed with the City Clerk, the contract of lease shall not become effective unless approved by a majority of the electors of the City of Grosse Pointe Park voting thereon at a general or special election.

This notice is given by order of the City Council pursuant to Act 31, Public Acts of Michigan, 1948 (First Extra Session), as amended. Further information may be secured at the office of the undersigned City Clerk.

Come on over

The community is invited to attend the third annual Brownell "Boast" on Thursday, Feb. 27, from 7:30 to 9 p.m. The jazz band and choir will perform; all classrooms will be open with displays of students' work; and the various departments will make presentations. The French class will serve a coney dog dinner from 6:30 to 8:30 to raise funds for its trip to Quebec.

Parcells school to hold evening of 'excellence'

Every student at Parcells Middle School will be recognized for his or her achievements in a special program on Thursday, Feb. 27, from 5:30 to 8:30 p.m. at the school.

The "Celebration of Excellence" provides teachers and students an opportunity to highlight the achievements of each student, regardless of grade level or special interests.

The evening will feature instrumental and vocal music groups and a grade-level team will present a play, "Into the Woods." The computer, technology and science labs will be open, as well as classrooms displaying students' works. There will also be a book fair in the library, and student video productions will be shown.

The recognition night will be held in conjunction with the PTO's Coney Island supper, also at the school from 5:30 to 7:30 p.m. The cost is $3.50 for one hot dog and $4.50 for two, which includes chips, salad, ice cream and pop.

In addition to Parcells students and parents, youngsters and parents from any of the four elementary feeder schools also are invited.

Edison sponsors poster contest

Kindergarten through sixth grade and special education students can illustrate ways to help protect the Earth's environment by entering Detroit Edison's 1992 Environmental Poster Contest by Feb. 28.

Posters must address one or more of these environmental issues:

- Recycling.
- Planting the proper tree in the right location — away from power lines.
- Conserving the world's natural resources.

Each entry must be marked with the child's name, address, school, school address, teacher's name, school phone number and grade level. All entries will be acknowledged with a small gift and will become the property of Detroit Edison.

Prizes will be awarded in five categories: kindergarten, first and second grades, third and fourth grades, fifth and sixth grades and special education. Semi-finalists will receive a savings bond and overall award winners also will choose prizes from selected items.

In addition, Detroit Edison will plant a tree at the overall winners' schools and present tree seedlings to each student in any school that has 100 percent participation in the contest.

For a copy of the contest rules or further information, call Detroit Edison at 237-7187.

ULS has untraditional King Day celebration

Upper school students commemorated Martin Luther King Jr. Day at University Liggett School in an untraditional way.

Rather than focusing specifically on King and his movements, Upper School Head Rich Krohn tailored the assembly to include five speakers who lectured on passive resistance.

The speakers consisted of students and teachers who lectured briefly on Henry David Thoreau's "Civil Disobedience," Gandhi's actions to right wrongs in India, Rosa Parks' simple yet persuasive act of not relinquishing her bus seat, Dr. King's dream of attaining equality, and the Catholic Right to Life Movement's use of passive resistance tactics.

After the assembly, students engaged in group discussions regarding ways in which to deal with conflict based on four fundamental options — tolerate, negotiate and reform, engage in direct conflict or escape.

"The assembly included a theme that Martin Luther King Jr. was very much known for but transcended him," Krohn said. "By expanding the scope to Thoreau and Gandhi, passive resistance became an issue that not only included but also went beyond race and nationality. Ultimately, this did more honor to Dr. King."

Hindelang wins spelling bee

Sixth-grader Michael Hindelang won the Scripps-Howard National Spelling Bee for St. Paul Catholic School. He will join winners from other local schools in an area competition at a later date.

The spelling bee is sponsored by Lawrence Technological University and The Detroit News.

Anne Sullivan was the St. Paul runner-up.

Brownell magazine first

The American Scholastic Press Association has awarded Brownell Middle School's student literary magazine, Scroll, first place with merit for its 1990-91 edition.

First place with merit is given to a publication that scores more than 900 points and is, in the opinion of the judges, "an outstanding overall example of a scholastic publication in format, content and presentation."

Scroll's content coverage and organization received perfect scores.

Brownell students submitted 531 entries to Scroll staff for consideration; 114 were accepted for publication.

Editors Laurie Mayk and Titi Palchadhuri point out that the stories, poems and drawings are more serious than in the past, reflecting middle school students' concerns about the environment, war, drugs, crime, love, family and friendship.

Along with Mayk and Palchadhuri, six other Brownell students served as editors: Betsy Hrtanek, Christy Schumacher, Eric Neveux, Dave Shock, Ann Halpin and Sara Nordlund. Twenty-six students worked on staff. Teacher Peggy Ptasznik was student adviser.

Student Spotlight

Liisa Bergmann

Each week in this column, we focus on the work of a student. It can be a poem, a drawing, a short story, a picture of a scientific experiment or a woodworking project, a book review.

The following poem was written by Liisa Bergmann, a fifth-grader at Ferry Elementary School. It was prompted by the recent snowstorm. Her parents are Dietrich and Phyllis Bergmann of the Woods.

Bergmann

Lost in the Storm

Falling gingerly is the snow,
When will it stop? No one can know.

Enticing me to go out and play,
I'm exasperated when Mom says, "Another day."

After I sneak outside the storm hits,
Blowing all the snow into drifts.

Suddenly the wind blows snow into my eyes,
I can't see and the wind drowns out my cries.

As the cold sinks in I start shivering,
My whole body seems to be quivering.

Aimlessly I wander around,
Tripping and stumbling over the ground.

Slowly I make my way back to the house.
And knock on the door as timid as a mouse.

Mom opens the door wide,
I slowly tramp inside.

Mom said, "Take off all of your wet clothes, dear.
Then come sit by the fire in here."

Unusually, Mom didn't scold me.
She just wanted to lovingly hold me.

"You know what you did was wrong," she whispered in my ear.

"But now I'm glad to have you back safely with me here."

Temperature notwithstanding, it's still a Warm Memorial

Nancy Swartz's second grade class at Richard Elementary School got a guided tour of the War Memorial recently from the president of the War Memorial Association himself.

Mark Weber told the students that although one should have a warm feeling when inside its walls, it is really a War Memorial (some students thought it was a warm memorial) honoring those Pointers who gave their lives for their country.

They toured the Fries building and told jokes from the stage. They belled up to the barre in the ballet room, they worked with Grosse Pointe Cable's equipment and filmed a talk show. For a group tour, call the War Memorial at 881-7511.

Business hardship licenses now harder to get in the Woods

Donna Walker
Staff Writer

Under a recently amended ordinance, the Grosse Pointe Woods City Council can no longer grant a hardship business license to someone without first holding a public hearing on the matter.

Adopted Feb. 3, the amendment was proposed after the council received flak for granting a hardship business license Nov. 4 to Carol Sossi, owner of L'Vogue Boutique on Mack. Sossi already had a business license issued by the city to operate a retail store. However, she also wanted to offer manicures and pedicures in her boutique, and to do so legally, she needed another business license to operate a nail salon.

In the Woods, nail salons and hair salons are classified under the same category — beauty salons. There is a city ordinance limiting the number of businesses that can operate in a given category. The maximum number of beauty salons that can operate in the Woods is 17.

When Sossi applied for a beauty salon license, she learned that all 17 licenses were taken. Her only other option was to ask the council for a hardship business license, which she did.

Under the ordinance, the council may decide that a business owner would suffer an undue hardship if he or she were denied a business license. In such cases, the council can authorize the city clerk to issue a hardship business license to the owner.

The maximum number of hardship licenses allowed in the Woods is five.

Sossi told the council that she wanted to offer a new, virtually odorless nail technique that was not available in the Grosse Pointes. She said that there wasn't much pedestrian traffic in front of her store, and that she hoped the new service would draw customers to her shop.

"I would no way want to do hair on the premises even though I'm a licensed barber," she wrote in a letter to the council.

The council granted her a hardship license, with the conditions that she only offer two stations for nail technicians, and that hairstyling services would not be offered.

Subsequently, the council received a letter dated Dec. 10 from Ronald and Debbie Wendt, owners of Gloss Nail Salon on Mack, who objected that the hardship license was granted without a public hearing, and asked that the license be revoked.

In the letter, the Wendts wrote, "As a beauty shop owner (one of 17) abiding by the laws of Grosse Pointe Woods, we must bring this issue to the council's attention. All business owners must be allowed to operate in a 'fair and competitive' business climate."

On Dec. 16, the council considered the Wendts' request to revoke Sossi's hardship license. City attorney George Catlin told the council that if it revoked the license, Sossi could sue the city. The council decided not to revoke the license.

However, several council members said they thought it was a mistake to have granted the hardship license without holding a public hearing, even though one was not required under the city ordinance. That discussion led to the enactment of the new amendment.

Under the amendment, an applicant seeking a hardship business license must pay a fee to cover the cost of publishing public hearing notices.

hundreds attend parenting workshops for the '90s

More than 300 parents have attended the first of the "Raising Your Children in the 90s" workshops being held through April 9.

The workshops, presented by Prevention Plus, teach parents of elementary school students in grades 3 through 5 about alcohol and other drug awareness and prevention programs.

The goal of the research-based program is to help parents become more aware of problems caused by alcohol and other drugs and to begin thinking about and developing strategies for prevention.

A steering committee made up of parents from all Grosse Pointe elementary and high schools worked to put the programs together.

The workshops are supported and endorsed by the Substance Abuse Community Council (SACC) and are based on the booklet "As Parents, We Will..." They are presented by Prevention Plus and conducted by alcohol/drug prevention education experts trained at the Henry Ford Hospital Maple-grove Center.

The programs have already been conducted at Monteith and Maire elementary schools. One more session will be held Monday, March 9, at Maire for parents of students in Defer, Maire and Trombly schools.

Mason will host its first session of the program on Feb. 24 and will hold its second workshop on Monday, March 16, from 7:30 to 9 p.m. in the school library. Mason is the host school for parents of students at Ferry, Mason and Poupart.

Organizers of the workshops said there has been an overwhelming response from parents. The programs follow national and local surveys of students that found that a high percentage of teenagers are abusing alcohol.

Locally, 59.5 percent of seniors, 40.3 percent of sophomores and 22.9 percent of eighth-graders said at the time of the survey that they had more than five drinks in a row during the past two weeks. In answer to the same question, 40 percent of 12th-graders nationwide said yes.

When asked if they have had a drink in the last 30 days, 85.2 percent of the seniors, 64 percent of the sophomores and 50.6 percent of the eighth-graders said yes. Nationwide, 57 percent of the seniors questioned responded affirmatively to the question.

"These numbers indicate that the problem in Grosse Pointe is much greater than the nation's average," according to Prevention Plus.

Parents of Grosse Pointe high school students will also get a chance to attend the workshop in Cleminson Hall at South on Thursdays, April 2 and 9, from 7:30 to 9 p.m.

Grosse Pointe's gardens, streets bear Japanese imprint

By J.K. Abbs
Special Writer

Look carefully — the Japanese have invaded Grosse Pointe's gardens and streets. We're speaking, of course, of Japanese plant materials. Consider:

More than 90 percent of our ornamental flowering crabs are of Japanese ancestry.

Most of our flowering cherries, like the popular Kwanzan, are migrants from Japan.

Mini-size members of the same genus as our native maples, the Japanese, with names like Oshio Beni and Sango Kaku, are almost ubiquitous in the Pointes and readily recognizable because of bright summer foliage colors, interesting branching and the dissected or "lacy" leaves of some species.

Early arrivals on our shores include the Japanese tree lilacs, syringa reticulata. There are a number of these on Lakeshore near Moross, planted in the early 1900s.

Most of our widely used yews, such as taxus hicksii can trace their ancestry back to the land of the rising sun.

The Japanese black pine, notable for its picturesque habit of growth, has been around these parts for some time and, more recently, the Tanyosho or umbrella pine with its light green needles and unique spreading form has been appearing in new gardens featured on the Grosse Pointe garden tours.

More recently, too, a number of Grosse Pointe municipalities have been planting varieties of the Japanese zelkova serrata as street trees. Dutch elm disease-resistant but with a similar branching habit, the zelkova is often used as a replacement for the American elm. It is valued in Japan as a source of fine furniture wood.

Relatively new in the Pointes and a good textural foil for needle-leaved shrubs, the Japanese holly ilex crenata, with round glossy leaves about the size of a U.S. dime, stays ever green in our area and presents a lower profile than the native American holly, which belongs to the same genus or family.

Interestingly, Japanese plant materials, like Japanese cars, tend to be a little smaller than their indigenous American counterparts.

Other Japanese "imports" recently arrived in the Pointes include the pagoda tree, so-called because it is frequently planted adjacent to pagodas, and the katsura tree, useful as a street or fine-textured specimen tree with bright orange-tinted autumn foliage.

And, alas, there's the Japanese beetle which, perversely, has quite a yen for some indigenous American plants as opposed to those of Japanese origin.

Call Bulldog Alarm and you're calling the cops

By John Minnis
Assistant Editor

John "Bulldog" Drummond can't recall a single major burglary or fire at a home equipped with a reputable alarm system. Neither can his partner, Chuck Petrie.

That observation means something coming from two men who have spent 50 years between them as police officers.

Drummond is a detective sergeant for Grosse Pointe City. Petrie retired from the Grosse Pointe Park detective bureau in 1985 after more than 23 years as a cop.

The two police veterans have started a new company in the Park — Bulldog Alarm Systems. "Bulldog" comes from a nickname hung on Drummond. "Bulldog Drummond" was a radio show detective some years ago, he said.

Petrie is not new to the alarm business. He started his first company in 1968 while working as a police officer. In the '70s, the state decided it no longer wanted police in the alarm business, so Petrie had close up shop.

That's changed today. Both Petrie and Drummond are licensed alarm system installers as well as licensed private investigators.

"I know a lot about the business because I've been doing it so long," Petrie said. "I was an electrician before I became a policeman."

Drummond said alarm systems do work. While they are billed as "burglar alarms," they are much more, he said. Good systems not only detect someone attempting to break in, they also detect fires, power loss and just about anything else in the house that the owner may want monitored.

"It's amazing the capabilities of systems today," Petrie said.

Drummond worries a lot about fires. Having seen so many major fires, many of them fatal, he knows how easily a fire can spread and overcome a home's occupants. An alarm system that detects smoke and heat can give a family those crucial few seconds to escape.

He said the battery-operated smoke alarms are better than nothing, but they don't compare to a professionally installed system with a power backup and no batteries to change.

Petrie said some customers ask for special options, such as climatic monitoring. If the temperature in the house drops to a certain level while residents are away, Bulldog Alarm will be notified and can investigate. Also, such things as sump pumps and freezers can be monitored, Petrie said.

Bulldog Alarm also provides a portable or fixed police emergency button. The resident can wear the device, carry it from room to room or have it installed at bedside for emergencies.

"Peace of mind," Petrie said. "That's what we're offering."

While Bulldog's systems are not unique among the better alarm companies, Drummond and Petrie are banking on their years of police experience as well as that of their hired, licensed installers — all of whom are retired Grosse Pointe police detectives.

Everyone working for Bulldog Alarm Systems has a clean record, Petrie said.

"That's important," Drummond said, "because who else besides you knows your alarm code? Your alarm company."

He and his partner stress that home and business owners deal only with licensed alarm system installers, like Bulldog, who are bonded and insured.

Both men live in Grosse Pointe and have raised families here.

Retired Park detective Chuck Petrie, left, and Grosse Pointe City detective Sgt. John Drummond have put their years of law enforcement experience to work for them by starting their own company, Bulldog Alarm Systems Inc., in Grosse Pointe Park.

"We know Grosse Pointe," Drummond said, "and a lot of them know us. We think we can work with everybody and all the police departments."

"We have every intention of being here a long time."

An alarm system does not have to be expensive. Petrie said a basic system could cost as little as $450. Of course, depending on the options the customer requires in a system, the cost could go up.

"We attempt to tailor systems to the house and the people living there," Petrie said. "Let's face it, everybody lives differently."

"Who would you want designing and installing your alarm system?" asked Drummond, referring to the law enforcement background of the Bulldog staff. "Obviously someone who has seen 10,000 burglaries during his career."

No matter how many monitoring options that a property owner chooses, the monthly fee is $16 — and that's monitoring 24 hours a day, seven days a week, Petrie said.

Petrie said that while Bulldog Alarm Systems is a new company (it's been incorporated for three years), it is ready to do business.

"We'll meet or beat anybody's price," he said.

Sahakian lives in Grosse Pointe Park.

Radcliffe

Grosse Pointe City resident Eleanor Radcliffe has been named account executive for self-insured workers compensation and group health plans at Consolidated Risk Management Services. She had been senior account executive for Omni Care Health Plan for four years. Prior to that, she spent 23 years as a registered dental hygienist.

Grosse Pointe Farms resident Timothy J. Grajewski, executive vice president of corporate services at St. John Hospital and Medical Center, has been elected a member of the Conference Board's prestigious Chief Administrative Officers' Council. Conference Board Councils provide forums for high-level executives to exchange information and ideas with their peers in other companies, other industries and other countries. Members are elected on the basis of their individual contributions to their respective fields and on the innovativeness of their companies' programs.

Grosse Pointe Farms resident Peter A. Schweitzer was featured speaker at the National Automotive Advertising Strategy Conference held in February in Marina Del Rey, Calif. The topic of his address was "The Value Equation." Some 250 advertising executives attended.

Schweitzer

The Prudential Grosse Pointe Real Estate Company announced their fourth quarter award winners for 1991. Anne "Nikki" Andrus of Grosse Pointe Woods and an associate broker with the company was named top sales agent for the period. Jeff Darnell was named the top listing agent. He lives in Grosse Pointe Park.

Former Grosse Pointer Cynthia Burt has been promoted to information systems analyst in the engineering laboratory of Dow Central Research and Development. Burt joined Dow in the development group of the SimuSolv computer program. Her activities have included creating a testing suite, implementing quality and configuration management processes, developing and distributing a technical newsletter and developing new data management commands.

Jerome Gajeski of Grosse Pointe was recently honored by United Parcel Service for completing 25 years of service with the company. Gajeski, who is a delivery driver with UPS in Harper Woods, was cited for his loyal service contributions to the company.

Secretaries to meet

The Detroit Chapter of Professional Secretaries International will meet on Wednesday, Feb. 26, at The Golden Lion, 22380 Moross in Detroit.

Networking will begin at 5:30 and dinner will be served at 6:30 p.m.

Robert S. Berg, associate professor at the University of Detroit-Mercy, will talk about "Potential for Women in Legal Careers."

PSI promotes competence and recognition of the secretarial profession, and the Detroit chapter is an active group which meets the fourth Wednesday of each month.

Cost of the dinner meeting is $19. For more information and/or meeting reservations, call Helen Nichols at 757-1530 during business hours.

Federal sentencing seminar planned

The law firm of Dykema Gossett will sponsor a free seminar, "The New Federal Sentencing Guidelines for Organizations." The seminar is designed to explain the sentencing guidelines recently created by the United States Sentencing Commission for corporations and other business organizations.

The program will be from 3 to 7 p.m. on Tuesday, Feb. 25, at the Ritz-Carlton in Dearborn. A cocktail reception follows. One of the featured speakers will be Fred L. Woodworth, president of the State Bar of Michigan.

The program will include a review of the guidelines, the criteria for an effective compliance program and the effects of the guidelines on internal corporate investigations of possible criminal conduct and collateral civil litigation.

For more information, call Tom Porter at 568-5423.

SATURDAY, THE 22nd 7:18 a.m. - 6:14 p.m.

50 years on the corner

The Verheyden funeral home has stood on the corner of Mack and Outer Drive in Grosse Pointe Park for 50 years. The building on the outside appears to look the same except for the new sign that was added to commemorate the 50 years of service to the community. Inside, the building has been completely redecorated.

Charles Verheyden died in 1985, leaving Joseph K. Miller as the only employee from the original staff. Now president, Miller chose David Otto, a 30-year employee, to be vice president and general manager. A new service in the last couple of years is the addition of Betsy McCormick, bereavement counselor.

Edison awards grants to educational groups

Sixteen non-profit educational organizations in southeastern Michigan have been recognized by the volunteerism of 20 Detroit Edison employees and by $16,500 in grants presented to them by the Detroit Edison Foundation.

The grants are part of the Walter J. McCarthy Jr. Volunteer Service Grant program established in April 1990 to recognize and encourage the utility's employees who participate as volunteers in pre-college, education-related activities.

Named in honor of Edison's former chairman and chief executive officer, the program is open to employees who have donated 50 or more hours of unpaid volunteer service to education-related organizations in the previous year.

Employees who receive the recognition may designate the organization for which they volunteer or any non-profit community service group in the Detroit Edison service area to receive a grant.

Local residents awarded grants were:

- Michael G. Cronk of St. Clair Shores directed $750 to the Detroit Area Council, Boy Scouts of America. Cronk is involved with scouting fundraising activities.

- Frank D. Stellingwerf of Grosse Pointe Woods chose Grosse Pointe North High School as the recipient of a $1,000 grant. Stellingwerf serves as the treasurer of the North Parents' Club.

Business Notes

The Social Security Office, serving the east side of Detroit and the Grosse Pointe area, has moved to Pointe Plaza, 19251 Mack Avenue, Suite 333, Detroit, 48236. The telephone number will remain 1-800-772-1213.

Six designers will be involved in a trunk show at Judith Ann, 17045 Kercheval in the Village. The designers — Lorrie Kabala, Daymor Couture, George F. Couture, Asuman, Jeanne Marc and Gary Fabrikant — will present mother-of-the-bride and special occasion dresses. The showing will be held Thursday, Feb. 27, from 10 a.m. to 8 p.m.

Children's Home honors staff

The Children's Home of Detroit's second Staff Recognition Day Feb. 13 honored employees for their service, with Fran Farrow, child care worker, receiving the 1991 Presidential Award as Employee of the Year.

Staff members with five, 10 and 15 years of service were awarded pins and the 12 Employees of the Month for 1991 were also honored.

Receiving five-year pins were Sharon Harper and Craig Perkins, child care workers, and cook Mary Theophanous. Ten-year pin recipients were Marge Chrisman, child care worker, Doris Mulligan, health center attendant, and Debbie Smith, social service secretary.

Celebrating 15 years were Eugenie Frodien, purchasing agent, Patty Rhoton, child care worker, Alice Ross, administrative aide, and Nancy Zajac, administrative assistant.

Andrea Bledsoe, unit living supervisor at the Secure Program located in the Carlyle Centre for Mental Health in Warren, also celebrated 15 years at the Cook Road campus before transferring to the new program.

Train to volunteer

Georgian East Nursing Home will host a "You Can Make A Difference" volunteer orientation seminar on Saturday, Feb. 29, from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. at the nursing home, 21401 Mack.

The seminar is free and focuses on training community members in a nursing home setting.

Pre-registration is required. Call Patricia Harney at 778-0800 or register in person.

taxes that are being diverted to poorer school districts.

The losses in FICA funds and property taxes are being challenged in court.

Also, interest earnings have been some $325,000 less than had been anticipated when this year's budget was drafted.

Throughout March and April, the school board will be hearing budget proposals from individual schools through the on-site budgeting process. The actual budget will be approved in June. The tax rate necessary to balance the budget will not be levied until September.

Marr said the school-finance juggling going on in Lansing makes it difficult to determine what to expect from the state — or, more accurately, what more the state will take from the wealthier school districts.

"It's like trying to hit a moving target," she said.

The Legislature is talking about rescinding the so-called "Robin Hood" legislation that strips wealthy school districts of 50 percent of their commercial taxes. Gov. John Engler has also called for a 30 percent cut in school property taxes, which would be offset by the state. It is not clear where the governor plans to get the money to reimburse the school districts for the property tax cuts.

Thirty percent of the Grosse Pointe school taxes is about $15 million — the amount that would be raised by an 8.3-mill tax.

Motorist found packing gun

When a 52-year-old Detroit man was stopped at Mack and Audubon in the Park at 10:45 a.m. Feb. 13, he was loaded.

No, he hadn't been drinking. Rather, the officer noticed a 38-caliber blue steel revolver protruding from the driver's pocket. The loaded gun was confiscated.

Police also found a small quantity of suspected narcotics in the car.

Visiting theologian describes new-found freedom of Romanian churches

By Margie Reins Smith
Feature Editor

The Rev. Aurel Jivi and his wife, Liliana, live in Sibiu, a city of 200,000 people in the province of Transylvania, almost exactly in the center of Romania.

Besides visiting old friends Mary and the Rev. V. Bruce Rigdon of Grosse Pointe Memorial Church, Aurel Jivi said he has a twofold purpose for their month-long visit to Grosse Pointe:

He hopes to raise our collective consciousness about what's happening in post-revolutionary Romania. And he is learning how American churches are successfully helping the unemployed, homeless, hungry and troubled people in the United States.

"On the one hand we'd like to learn more about the social involvement of the church here. On the other hand, we hope to share with people here information about religious life in Romania and the needs of our churches and our people," he said.

Since the December 1989 revolution, he said, Romanian churches are enjoying a new sense of freedom. Churches are actively promoting new social programs in Romania.

"During the Communist regime," he said, "the church was not involved in social activities. We couldn't even make hospital visits. We couldn't teach religion in the schools. The church was just barely allowed to survive. We were like a ghetto. We were hidden away."

"The church is completely free now. We can choose people for important positions, like bishops, with fair elections. In the past, the Communist government appointed them."

In the past, he said, Romania had a limited number of theological schools — very few.

"The schools were only allowed to accept a certain number of students. Now there are a lot of new theological schools and no limit on numbers of students."

Now the church can publish literature freely. "This was not possible in the past," he said.

The Jivis are participating in Grosse Pointe Memorial Church's ecumenical minister program, which sponsors a pastor from another country or culture each year for a month long visit.

Aurel Jivi earned a bachelor's degree from Sibiu Theological Institute, a master's degree in theology from McCormick Theological Seminary, and a doctorate from Bucharest Theological Institute. He teaches theology and church history at the University of Sibiu. He's also a deacon in the Romanian Orthodox Church.

Liliana Jivi teaches English at Avram Iancu High School in Sibiu, a public high school with about 1,000 students in grades nine through 12. She majored in English at the University of Cluj in Transylvania.

"Most of the students are well-disciplined," she said. "They don't have to wear school uniforms any more. They like to wear jeans — bleached jeans — what you call stone-washed jeans. They like short skirts. They're good students."

"English is foreign language No. 1 in Romania. Some start learning English in kindergarten."

Aurel Jivi described Romania's current economic woes. "The crisis is severe, but not as bad as in Russia. We have a shortage of basic foodstuffs — milk and meat and bread. These things are available, but at much higher prices, sometimes 10 times the former prices," he said. "Admittedly, there has been some increase in salaries also, but not a tenfold increase."

The bloody revolution in December 1989, when Romanian dictator Nicolae Ceausescu was executed, resulted in the deaths of 1,000 people, Aurel Jivi said, "and that's a conservative estimate."

"The people who came to power after the revolution were the second echelon of the Communist party. For a long time there was great uncertainty about the Communist party. Nobody talked about it. Many Communists held important positions, so pretty soon former Communists began to re-emerge. They became vocal and demanded the restoration of the party."

In spite of the continuing Communist influence, Aurel Jivi said there have been many positive changes since the revolution.

"We have freedom of the press now; and freedom of religion. But a growing number of younger people want to distance themselves from the Communist past," he said.

He described some new services initiated by Romanian churches:

"The Catholic church runs day care centers and orphanages for handicapped children."

"Churches have soup kitchens; they visit the elderly and the ill; they're planning programs for young people."

"There are some new projects in the theological schools, like a theology and linguistics program for people who teach religion in the public schools," he said.

Aurel Jivi said abortion is an issue of concern for the churches of Romania. "It was illegal in the past. It is no longer illegal. During the last 1 1/2 years, there have been more than a million abortions in Romania, which has a population of 23 million," he said.

Liliana Jivi said she's enjoying Grosse Pointe, especially the new people she's met.

"People are more interesting than museums," she said.

Liliana Jivi wrote her dissertation in 1970 on "Slang in Modern American Drama." As a hobby, she has continued collecting and translating American slang.

She's picked up a few dozen new slang expressions in Grosse Pointe.

Like, "Holy cow."

Other expressions she'll take back to Romania are: "Chill out," "Leaded or unleaded," (referring to coffee with or without caffeine), "Let's blow this pop stand," meaning "Let's get out of here," and "Take it down a thousand feet," meaning "Calm down."

How can Grosse Pointers help Romanian churches?

"Money may be sent to the Romanian Church earmarked for the hospital that the church runs in Bucharest," Aurel Jivi said. "We need religious and theological books for our libraries and we need money for scholarship assistance for students."

The Jivis will be in Grosse Pointe until March 5. For information about classes Aurel Jivi will teach while he's here, call 882-5330.

A Harbor Place Cluster Home Has Everything You Need On One Floor... And Then Some

The "Some" we refer to is the entire second floor which consists of two large bedrooms and a full connecting bath. This floor may be used on a daily basis or utilized occasionally when family or friends come to visit.

There's "some" thing else too, a large unfinished storage area and additional optional storage.

First floor accommodations are totally complete. A great room with an 11' ceiling, master bedroom suite with walk-in closet, luxurious bath, kitchen with top-of-the-line appliances and cabinets, breakfast room, library, first floor laundry room, and a two car garage. Total one floor living with a little extra built in.

"Some" more things to be considered are an old world style fenced in courtyard entry and rear yard with all the privacy you desire.

This may be purchased for the affordable "sum" of $259,000 to $294,000, "some" thing to think about. Visit

HAVE A PLEASANT TRY AT PERFECTION BRIDGE BY WOODY BOYD

Alvin Roth and Tobias Stone were two of our games most innovative theorists some thirty odd years ago. While neither played competitively today, many of their conventions will remain a standard of exceptional bidding technique for bridge history. Two of their most radical developments when first introduced were the negative double and the unusual no trump which today are a basic part of every duplicate players bidding bag.

The unusual no trump over-call is one of the most colorful bids ever devised. This rascal has caused much partnership confusion when improperly used so today we're going to try and clean up it's use.

The definition of unusual is quite precise... different, unlike, not the same, out of the ordinary. Therefore, its use is principally limited to a hand of a certain texture and shape. In practice, it is a take-out double for minors and most often doesn't contain many high cards. Usually its greatest strength is its shape and unless well fortified with high cards, shouldn't be used unless the vulnerability is favorable. Etch in cement that a no trump bid by opener or responder is never, never unusual. It is the prime bidding property of the over-caller and must be as easy to read as this paper's front page.

The question then becomes imperative. When is a no trump over-call standard and when is it unusual?

1S	1NT	-	-
1H	2NT	-	-
1D	-	1NT	-
3C	-	3NT	-

South has a flat hand 16-18 H.C.P.
South has a flat hand 19-21 H.C.P.
North has a flat hand 14-18 H.C.P.
North has a flat hand 19+ H.C.P.

E	S	W	N
1S	-	2S	2NT
1H	-	1S	2NT
-	-	4H	4NT

North has both minors. At least 12 H.C.P.
North has both minors. At least 12 H.C.P.
North has both minors. At least 15 H.C.P.
North has both minors. At least 18 H.C.P.

KQ X A10XXX QXXXX

A pass is preferred for if your left hand opponent has the balance of power, you could be carried out. It is best your minors hold most of the H.C.P.

Occasionally the unusual no trump over-caller has significant equipage in H.C.P. then there's often fire works that equal the fourth.

Such was the case on the first Friday of this year's St. Clair game. Your columnist had a front row seat sitting east when Ann Paddock and Mel Cunningham were the beneficiaries of today's extraordinary pastboards.

One must wonder what Ann was thinking with twenty-one high and heard West open a no trump. I witnessed this clear headed thinkers consternation before taking any action. You knew she had concluded that East and South must be almost barren of high cards. She also knew that she sat in the power position strategically seated behind all the opponents strength. Ann must have then decided that if Mel had cards in either minor, they belonged in game and therefore the unusual no trump even at such an extended level. I got my two cents in with my eight card heart suit, but that only seemed to motivate the lovely Mrs. Paddock to be more persistent as she certainly had the power to be so. Mel was obviously in shock when it was next her turn. Her expression remained impassive, but you knew she was asking someone to forgive her her sins. She knew she couldn't pass, but six clubs with her bag of left over low cards seemed nearly insane. Finally she took the vulnerable plunge with not much more than a supreme confidence in her partner's projected power.

The play for twelve tricks was no cake walk especially if West had the three missing clubs. In that event, trumps would have to be led toward dummy twice and this could only be achieved by repeated diamond plays. Fortunately clubs behaved and the spade finesse was an expected success.

Most of the field was defending four or five hearts for a plus three or five hundred. Today's lady's 1370 was a clear top which was a just reward for their well-judged daring.

Bal Polonais will benefit MOT's production of 'King Roger'

Honorary chairmen of the ninth annual Bal Polonais include the Most Rev. Adam J. Maida, archbishop of Detroit; Michigan Gov. John Engler and Michelle Engler; David DiChiera, general director of the Michigan Opera Theatre, and Karen VanderKloot DiChiera.

The traditional dinner dance — this year on Saturday, Feb. 22, from 6:30 p.m. to 12:30 a.m. at the Detroit Athletic Club — will benefit the Michigan Opera Theatre's presentation of the Polish opera "King Roger" on May 2, 6 and 9. The event will also support the Polish art collection at the Detroit Institute of Arts.

"Given the current budget situation of the state of Michigan . . . I applaud you . . . who have raised private funds for the arts," Gov. Engler said.

Tamara Madeleine Lie, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Kim Lie of Grosse Pointe Park, will be one of the participants in the third Presentation of Debutantes of Bal Polonais.

The evening will also include dinner, dancing, the Grande Polonoise, strolling musicians, a dance ensemble and soloists from the cast of "King Roger."

Tickets are $125 each; $175 for patrons; $250 for benefactors.

For more information, call 642-2730, 352-1968 or 822-7085.

Members of the Bal Polonais committee include Grosse Pointers Mr. and Mrs. Frank A. Germack Jr., Mrs. Thomas Schoenith and Mrs. George Slezak.

Concerts begin: The Detroit Symphony Orchestra will begin its third decade of mini-musicals, "Preludes East," presented by the Detroit Symphony Orchestra Hall Volunteer Council. The first concert will be on Friday, Feb. 28, at the Grosse Pointe War Memorial.

After lunch, the program will feature the Detroit Woodwind

The Pastor's Corner The Season of Lent

By the Rev. Walter A. Schmidt
First English Lutheran Church

Wednesday, March 4, is Ash Wednesday, the beginning of the Season of Lent. This season in the Church's calendar is a time of preparation, reflection and repentance. It is preparing for the awesome events of Holy Week and the suffering, death and resurrection of Jesus Christ.

It is a time of reflection as the Christian remembers that Jesus' suffering and death is for us for our forgiveness, for he bore our sins upon the cross at Golgotha.

It is a time of repentance as the word repentance literally means "return to the Lord," that is, turning away from sin and turning to God; to His mercy, to His love and to His will.

The responsory, which comes from scripture that is used during Lent in many of our congregations, summarizes this emphasis very well: "Return to the Lord, your God, for He is gracious and merciful, slow to anger and abounding in steadfast love."

A traditional discipline during the Season of Lent is to "give up" something. This takes a variety of forms, such as giving up sweets, or alcohol, or cigarettes, or dancing, just to name a few.

If this is your tradition and it helps you to reflect upon the true meaning of Lent — well and good. I certainly would not be one to discourage that discipline.

However, I would like to suggest an alternative or an addition to "giving up" something for Lent — to "take on" something for Lent as our spiritual discipline.

What each of us could "take on" would vary. Let me suggest a few items to spark your thinking:

One could take on a commitment to regular worship during the Season of Lent. Many churches have mid-week Lenten services which could be especially helpful for those who must work on the weekends.

Another could be a commitment to visit that neighbor or relative or friend who is in a nursing home.

Maybe we could volunteer time and energy to assist with the homeless ministry or some other worthy volunteer service.

Lent could be the time to patch up that long-standing feud between you and a former friend or relative.

This season could be the time when you begin a daily Bible reading or devotional program for yourself and your family. The list of suggestions could go on and on, but the idea is to choose something that would be meaningful for you. Then do it!

In the final analysis, the response of the child of God to God's gracious love — a love so great that he was willing to become one of us and suffer and die for us — is not in what we refrain from doing but rather, guided by God's love and Spirit, in what we do.

Rehearsing a scene from "Fiddler on the Roof" are, from left, Tim Donegan as Motel, George More as the Rabbi and Amy Ruston as Tzeitel. The play will be presented on Friday and Saturday, Feb. 28 and 29.

First English Lutheran Church presents 'Fiddler on the Roof'

The Open Door Series at First English Evangelical Lutheran Church will present "Fiddler on the Roof" at 7:30 p.m. on Friday and Saturday, Feb. 28 and 29.

Dinner will be served in the fellowship hall from 6:30 p.m. First English is located at 800 Vernier at Wedgewood in Grosse Pointe Woods.

"Fiddler on the Roof," a classic in the American theater, is based on a book by Joseph Stein, with music by Jerry Bock and lyrics by Sheldon Harnick.

"The First English players have worked hard to do justice to this remarkable work," said Karen Ford, director. Robert Foster, director of music at First English and accompanist at Grosse Pointe North High School, is musical director. Marlisa Miller and company have done the choreography. The cast includes Dan Setchell as Tevye and Monica Setchell as Golde. Tevye's five daughters are Amy Rushton, Sandi Owens, Marlisa Miller, Gail Glovak and Allison Glovak. Kathy Wessering is Yente, Tim Donegan plays Motel, Joel Grumm is Perchik, John Joseph plays Lazar Wolf and Don Ford portrays Morcha. George More is the Rabbi and Mendel and Gerry Michoski plays Avrahm and Nachum. Beth Tetreault portrays Granma Tzeitel, Chris Judson is Fruma-Sarah, Bruce Udell plays the Constable, Chris Tetreault is Fyedka and Barb Stustman portrays Shaindel.

The Fiddler is Tim Donegan. The villagers are played by John Kalogerakos, Brandon Tambourine and Brian Buhlinger; the Russian villagers are Harry Kalogerakos and Walter Schmidt.

Tickets for dinner and the play are $15.50; $10.50 for students. Tickets must be reserved by calling the church office at 884-5040 by Monday, Feb. 24. Tickets for the play only are $6.50; $4.50 for students. They may be ordered by phone or purchased at the door. All seats are reserved. The Rev. Walter Schmidt is senior pastor of First English Church and the Rev. Paul Owens is assistant pastor.

'Tru' is a bittersweet Christmas present

By Marian Trainor
Special Writer

Watching Robert Morse portraying one of the literary celebrities of our time, Truman Capote, at the Fisher Theatre, is more than just a chance to see a well-written play.

It is an opportunity to see "Tru" reincarnated. Morse brings him to life right down to his puffy looks, his childish swishy manner, his gurgling voice and peremptory ways. But he also makes Capote surprisingly poignant.

The play is set on Christmas Eve 1975, nine years before his death at 54. He's at the peak of his TV celebrity when he was a frequent guest on talk shows and was sought after by the rich and famous.

But now he is alone. He has alienated all his socialite friends with an article in Esquire in which he detailed their private lives. It was to be a chapter in his first book since "In Cold Blood" brought him fame and fortune. Titled "Answered Prayers," it was an attempt to rekindle interest in dows with both arms raised as though he is saying to himself, "So what?" It is a gesture that gains a world of meaning as the play progresses.

In his musings, he talks about how the apartment is meant for company and then looks around at emptiness. He puts on a Louis Armstrong record, "The Sunny Side of the Street" and stops it to tell us how he danced for Armstrong when he was 8 years old. "I was a pretty child," he says. "I was always pretty."

He goes on to tell how his mother drove off and left him with an old aunt whom he loved. "We were two of a kind," he says. "Outsiders, but we had each other."

He recalls how he stole his grandmother's necklace because he wanted to meet a woman in New Orleans who was said to be able to grant one wish. When he told her with great hesitancy that he wanted to be a girl, she laughed at him and jeered, "No wonder your mama drove off and left you!"

After a bad night, he wakes up on Christmas Day firmly resolved to drink no more. That pledge makes for some funny business as he walks over to the liquor cabinet, reaches for the bottle, walks away, then looks back with more yearning than resolve.

The little boy lost comes out when someone knocks on the door and hands him a bag of penny candy, a ritual Christmas remembrance. Happy, he walks around with a grape sucker, his favorite, in his mouth.

There are enough funny lines to keep the audience laughing and every once in a while, a philosophical bon mot is thrown in, such as: "Life is a moderately good play with a badly written third act." For Capote, that was true. He died an outsider.

Morse successfully conveys a man at war with himself — the impish, once beautiful boy still eager to dazzle, and the jaded man.

"Tru" is not a one-man show like Hal Holbrook's "Mark Twain Tonight." It is a play with many characters. Although you see only one, there are voices on the phone and other sound effects.

Written by Jay Pressen Allen, all the words in "Tru" are Capote's, gleaned from 40 years of writing fiction and reportage.

Creating a fictional character on stage is one thing. But to create a true-to-life character — his look, his words, his mannerisms — and to convey the quicksilver character of Capote, who was so much of an individual, is a tribute to Morse who succeeds brilliantly.

"Tru" is a memorable experience.

It plays at the Fisher through March 1. Call 872-1000 for tickets.

him as a writer, an effort that cost him the friends he had finally come to value.

At the slightest provocation he would rattle off their names. Babe Paley, Lady Slim Keith, Princess Margaret, Grace Kelly, Ava Gardner. He would even eerily boast of being the only man on Earth to have known Sirhan Sirhan, Robert F. Kennedy, Lee Harvey Oswald and John F. Kennedy.

Shuffling around his high-rise apartment with a spectacular view down the East river, he waits for someone to call.

In the meantime, he fills us in with comments on his life, throwing in acerbic quips as he goes, such as the one about Los Angeles: "It's a scientific fact that for every year you stay in California, you lose two points of your IQ." And "Christmas is going to be expensive this year. I'm giving Tiffany as presents and I'm getting poinsettias in return. He follows this with, "Poinsettias are the Robert Goulet of botany."

As the evening wears on, some of that early bravado dissipates as he aimlessly wanders about the apartment, fingering objects, pouring himself drinks, turning on the stereo and switching it off in the middle of a song.

A bit of stage business that gets a laugh every time occurs when he turns his back to the audience, goes over to the win-

BIG TIME

They're on their way, they're making it

By Ronald J. Bernas
Staff Writer

If Mark Summers, David Regelbrugge and Robert Jeup achieve their goal and turn their band Beat West! into the next big thing to hit the airwaves, they will be the unlikely of pop stars.

Summers, 27, is a graduate student in finance at Wayne State University. The 25-year-old Regelbrugge is a broker at Charles Schwab and Co. and is working toward becoming a certified financial planner. ("I do this to get dull," he jokes.) And Jeup, 27, earned degrees in music and engineering and works at EDS.

A sign in the basement room where they do all their recording shows a cigarette with a line through it. The caption reads, "The only thing that smokes in this room is the music."

They were drinking tea during the interview. One quoted Marx. And not Groucho, either.

And although they admire "the artists" — musicians who make statements, or advance the state of the art or take chances — that is exactly what they don't want.

They want to be stars.

Summers and Regelbrugge formed Beat West! several years ago with the intention of hitting the big-time. They had played with other bands and found each other.

"Mark was in a band and he was the only one who wanted to write music, and I was interested in that and we started talking..." Regelbrugge said.

"And we just clicked," Summers said, finishing Regel-brugge's comment.

So they played together for a few years. The name served not only as a short, easy-to-remember, punchy name like those of the bands they aspire to be — Wham! is one — but it also served as a reminder.

"Every time we said the name it would remind us that we wanted to go west to L.A. to make it big," Summers said.

But in their eyes, they had one problem.

"In Top 40, image is important, maybe even more so than the music," Summers said. "We needed a really good-looking front man."

Summers found him in EDS worker/part-time model/part-time singer, Jeup, whom he met when he sat in for on a gig as a substitute guitarist. Jeup was the lead singer and Summers decided he was exactly what Beat West! needed.

He formed the perfect final third to the triangle, they said. And, with his degree in music and his knowledge of theory, he also added a legitimacy to the song writing, creating the band's own sound.

Summers likes the Top 40: "Not for the artists themselves, but for everything else that's going on in a Top 40 song. You can listen to some of these groups and they take people with minimal talent and package them into a great sound. The production is what interests me."

Regelbrugge brings a harder edge to the group thanks to the heavy metal he listened to as a teen. He also is able to incorporate ideas gleaned from the classical music his father always played.

And that's how their music is formed. Summers writes the skeleton of a song, Regelbrugge fleshes out the background and the arrangement and Jeup, who is a lover of jazz, spices it up.

They put together a demo tape and sent it to a New York producer, much to Regelbrugge's amusement.

"We called ourselves Beat West! with an eye toward L.A. and what do we do? We go to New York," he said. That producer and a few others are interested in the group. The trio is looking over the deals offered.

One of their songs, "Temptation Girl," has received airplay on WNIC-FM 100 and they got some positive feedback on it.

But they knew they would. It is, they say with complete modesty, a perfect pop song — the hook is good, the production is as good as it could be with the equipment they have and the music is simple.

Before Jeup joined the band, Summers and Regelbrugge played live gigs for a while, but only because they wanted to know what the people liked. And only in Chicago.

"They have a better feel for what's going on in the country," Regelbrugge said.

When they found what worked, they went home and focused on that sound. And they packaged it.

"Pop music is a product," Summers said. "We have to be marketable. It's a business." But it sounds like they're just in it for the money. "Oh, unabashedly so," Summers said. "We want a career in this business. And we know that pop groups come and go, but pop producers stay for a long time."

But that's not all they're after.

"We want to be part of people's lives," Regelbrugge said. "And it's pop music that is the soundtrack of the best times of your life."

"That's true," Summers said. "That's really good, Dave."

They watch the pop market like they watch the stock market, Regelbrugge said. They know what's hot and what's going to be and then use enough of it in their music to be "now," but not too much, which would make them trendy.

That's why they want to learn how to write music, produce it and how to find and market new bands, because they know if they make it they'll have a four- or five-year run before they're replaced by another hip group with a hot new sound.

And they're not worried about it, either. That's the nature of the business and that's why Regelbrugge is working toward his CFP and Summers is a graduate student in finance.

The timeline for all this success, of course, is yesterday. But tomorrow isn't out of the question.

"We have a drive," they both say. "We're going to make it."

A tape of six Beat West! tunes is available for $6 by writing P.O. Box 24731, Detroit, Mich., 48224.

DSO report:

Rachmaninoff meets his match in Gutierrez

By Alex Suczak
Special Writer

Two guests brightened the symphony scene last weekend. Conductor Christopher Seaman, principal conductor of the UK's BBC Scottish Symphony Orchestra and Northern Sinfonia, demonstrated outstanding musical leadership, and pianist Horacio Gutierrez gave a stupendous performance of a knuckle busting concerto.

As curtain-raiser for the performance on Thursday, "An Orkney Wedding and Sunrise" by Peter Maxwell Davies was a perfect one-act sketch. In picturesque detail, Davies' music portrays guests coming in from a gusty Scottish storm to cut loose in a welcome celebration with a drink of whiskey and a night of dancing and revelry. The musical picture is painted in clear strokes of melody with a recognizable Scottish lilt. Sometimes it mimics the skirl of bagpipes and sometimes the maudlin singing of tiring celebrants.

The ethnic scene was climaxed with the work's now famous conclusion when bagpiper Nancy Crutcher Tunnicliffe strode down the main aisle in full regalia and with pipes in full cry. The exuberant, barbaric sound is an effective musical metaphor for the sunrise it is supposed to represent, witnessed by the wedding guests as they finally leave the party. It was also an altogether delightful experience, especially for any Scotsmen in the audience.

Rachmaninoff's piano music is notorious for its challenge to pianists whose hands are not as large as the composer's. But the Third Piano Concerto met its match in Gutierrez. And the beautifully tailored orchestra accompaniment found its talisman in conductor Seaman.

Gutierrez produces a big, rich, powerful tone and plays with a clean, well-delineated style. Every phrase is crisp and clear. Great crashing chords and rapid runs and trills come out with superb precision and phrasing that expresses all the exciting, moody Russian character of Rachmaninoff's music.

This was enhanced by a balanced and accommodating handling of the orchestral accompaniment which takes an unusually restrained supportive role in this concerto. In the last movement particularly, Gutierrez' wonderful phrasing really put Seaman to the test, but the ensemble remained smooth and well-balanced and the finale brought a cheering audience to its feet.

When Jan Sibelius wrote his first symphony, the form was already being called outdated by outspoken critics of the time. The originality of this work and its significance as an example of the uniqueness of Finnish culture breathe new life into composing in this classical form.

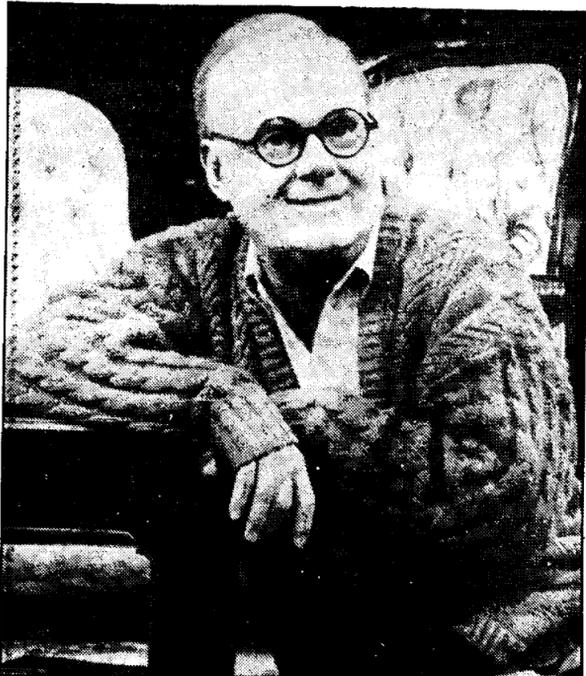

Seaman and the DSO made this seem fresh and new all over again last week in a performance that was full of the ardor and individuality of Sibelius' feelings of nationalism. Kowtowing to his nationality, it is almost too easy to see visions of Finnish forests and horsedrawn sleighs rushing across frozen northern lakes.

Seaman appeared to enjoy excellent rapport with the DSO musicians. And while his style suggests a certain amount of reserve and self-restraint, his conducting of the Sibelius symphony was eloquent and brought a moving performance from the orchestra. It was full-flavored and impassioned.

The program for this week's concerts, starting tonight, features associate conductor Leslie B. Dunner and a work selected from the 1992 Unisys African-American Composers Forum. However, that may be eclipsed by a multi-cultural, multi-lingual composition in two acts, "African Portraits," by Hannibal Peterson. Scored for jazz quartet, gospel singer, blues singer, narrator, drums, chorus, soprano, tenor and two baritone soloists, this work was inspired by Peterson's discovery of spiritual roots in Nairobi. It provides a rich artistic insight into African musical traditions.

Also on the program are "Alborado del Gracioso" by Ravel and "Variations on a theme of Haydn" by Brahms. Performances are scheduled tonight, Feb. 20, and Friday and Saturday evenings. For tickets, call the box office at 833-3700.

3 sisters and 6 marriages make for juicy reading

The Sisters: The Lives and Times of the Fabulous Cushing Sisters

By David Grafton

Villard Books. 316 pages. $22.50

"The Sisters" is a high-class tattle-tale book guaranteed to captivate a certain segment of the reading population which eternally thrives on such eye-lifting revelations.

The noted surgeon, Dr. Harvey Cushing, and his social-climbing wife had five children, two sons and three vivacious daughters, who grew up largely under their mother's proprietary supervision. Each of the daughters had two marriages to socially prominent or wealthy men. Through the divorce courts, Minnie Cushing shed wealthy Vincent Astor to wed artist James Fosburgh; Betsey Cushing was wed happily to John Hay Whitney, the philanthropist and United States ambassador to Great Britain, after unloading shiftless James Roosevelt, eldest son of President Franklin D. Roosevelt; and Babe Cushing first wed socialite Stanley Grafton Mortimer before finally marrying the brash entrepreneur, William Paley of CBS fame.

The author of these revelations, David Grafton, is a gossip insider in New York's cafe society, particularly when it was in its heyday in the '50s. Obviously, as a habitue of this clannish social circle, he knows very well of what he spills about the Cushings, and he does not suffer any reticence about the details of their turbulent lives, their divorces and romantic entanglements. It may be too great a coincidence, but I wonder about David Grafton's last name being the same as Babe Cushing's first husband's middle name? Does this mean that he, the author, as a family member, had a front row seat to all this drama?

In spite of his eminence, Dr. Cushing's income was deemed by Mrs. Cushing not to be sufficient for the proper enhancement of their daughters. Therefore, she immediately set forth to expose them to the limelight of monied society. Betsey, the middle daughter, was the first to capture a notable name, James Roosevelt, and she quickly became the favored daughter-in-law of the president. After siring two daughters, Betsey and Jimmy parted, which saddened FDR. However, he kept a fond relationship with Betsey and her girls even after her second marriage. Her 43-year union with Jock Whitney turned out, by far, to be the happiest marriage of the six that the Cushing sisters made. Now a widow, Betsey is the only surviving sister of the fabulous trio.

The youngest daughter, Babe, with her mother's eager connivance, landed man-about-town Stanley Mortimer. World War II intervened, separating the couple while Stanley was off to the war front. Upon his return the couple drifted even further apart. After their amicable divorce, Mrs. Cushing again scurried around to find another suitable mate for her beautiful daughter.

During her work at Vogue, Babe came upon William

Paley, the future TV mogul. This was hard for Mother Cushing to swallow — this new son-in-law was a son of Russian Jewish immigrants and, furthermore, his money was self-made, not "old money" like that of the aristocrats of New York. Money won out, and Babe took Bill Paley for better or worse; as it turned out, this was a most unsatisfactory marriage, a pairing of two extremely diverse individuals, but it lasted until Babe's death of cancer in 1978.

Minnie, the eldest daughter, was the last to be wed. After being Vincent Astor's mistress for 10 years, she persuaded him to divorce his wife to marry her. Despite his great wealth, Astor was a moody eccentric, unsociable and difficult. Minnie put up with it as long as she could. Finally, in desperation, she connived for him to meet and fall in love with another woman.

After their divorce, Mother Cushing again went on the trail to find another suitable husband for Minnie, but Minnie, who had wide intellectual interests but none of the physical charms of Betsey and Babe, managed to acquire her second husband on her own. James Fosburgh, a well-to-do painter, was a notorious homosexual, but their shared mutual interests in the arts succeeded in keeping them together until their deaths of cancer in 1978.

According to the publisher's announcement, David Grafton based his work on extensive inside interviews and research. "The Sisters" is, without question, a highly interesting and entertaining saga of how these sisters swept onto the New York scene and seized the media's attention. Although somewhat repetitious, Grafton offers such scintillating portraits of Minnie, Betsey, and Babe, that we grow to understand and sympathize with them.

Elizabeth Walker's Biblio-file column and Irene Burcharth's Elegant Eating column run on alternate weeks in this space.

Americans' love affair with technology explored

American's unquenchable delight in machines, gadgets and do-it-yourself projects is showcased in a new exhibit opening at Henry Ford Museum on Saturday, Feb. 29 — "Possible Dreams: Popular Mechanics and America's Enthusiasm for Technology."

Using 250 20th-century objects that range from a 1901 Riker Electric Racer to a 1990 cellular phone, the exhibit employs the magazine Popular Mechanics as its lens to focus on the many faces of our fascination with technology.

The heroes of this exhibit are not only famous innovators like the Wright brothers or Marconi; they also include the pilot who carried the first pouch of U.S. air mail between his knees on 1911 flight over Long Island, and the 1920s enthusiasts who put together their own radio sets to test the promise of wireless communication.

"As Popular Mechanics celebrates its 90th anniversary, we can see how it has tapped into attitudes and aspirations that are at the core of the American experience," said Mary Seelhorst, the exhibit's curator.

"Henry Haven Windsor (the magazine's founder) never intended for PM to be history. Yet its 90 years of reporting forms a sort of unintentional history, laced with the popular opinion and attitudes that are as important a part of our past as any single technological accomplishment."

Designed by Staples & Charles, Ltd., of Washington, D.C., the exhibit features poster-size PM covers, article excerpts, photographs and do-it-yourself diagrams as a framework for displays of historic objects representing technologies the magazine helped popularize.

A 1909 Bleriot monoplane hovers over the exhibit's entryway to introduce Flying Fever (1902-19), a fervor that raged before flight became a mainstream mode of transportation.

Electricity Wins! (1917-35) depicts the vision of a life of ease that prompted urban and rural Americans to equip their homes with electrical appliances that promised to end household drudgery.

In Building the Good Life (1946-75), dozens of enthusiasts' efforts are displayed in a cutaway "dream house" that was built for the exhibit from PM plans. The house is also furnished with projects made from PM plans, including furniture, toys, a hi-fi set and a reader-built "Hydro Dynamic" boat.

A hickory chair hand-crafted by former President Jimmy Carter using traditional tools and techniques captures our renewed passion for old technologies in Recycling the Classics (1975-92). Other exhibit "rages" are The World is Radio Mad (1919-30) and Planning the World of Tomorrow (1930-50).

Visitors will also discover several themes that PM has covered throughout the 20th century. Using 1920s luminous watches and a 1957 microwave oven, Invisible Rays follows technologies from the laboratory to the living room. Man's Quest for Speed examines the zeal to get there faster on the race course (with the Lotus that won the '65 Indy 500) or the highway. And Irresistible Force utilized PM illustrations and popular toys to track developments in weapons technology.

Although technological enthusiasm has taken many different forms since the turn of

Michigan Annual XX at The Art Center Feb. 7-27

The Art Center in Mount Clemens presents Michigan Annual XX Feb. 7-27.

Contemporary American painter and Scarab Club member Carol Wald juries from nearly 500 entries in all media to produce a provocative showing of work by Michigan's finest professional and up-and-coming artists.

Throughout the past 20 years, The Art Center's Michigan Annual has supported the state's artists by providing an attractive exhibition space in the historic Carnegie Library Building and by engaging jurors whose credentials are respected by the competing artists.

Wald has established a powerful presence in contemporary American painting. She recently exhibited a series of major oils at The Butler Institute of American Art in Youngstown, Ohio.

Michigan Annual XX provides further support to artists by awarding cash prizes. The $1,000 first place award is provided by the Arts Foundation of Michigan. The $500 second place award, $300 third place award and three other awards of $100 each are funded in part by sponsors First National Bank in Macomb County and the Michigan Council for Arts and Cultural Affairs.

Hours for the exhibit are Tuesday through Friday 11 a.m. to 5 p.m. and Saturday 9 a.m. to 2 p.m. The Art Center Gift Shop, offering finely crafted jewelry, framed prints and paintings, and collector-quality ceramics, is open to the public during the Michigan Annual exhibit.

Theatre Company presents Criminal Hearts

"Criminal Hearts," the latest play by Obie Award winner Jane Martin, will be given its world premiere this spring by the Theatre Company of the University of Detroit Mercy.

The Theatre Company's track record with Jane Martin's previous works includes a Best Play Award from the Detroit Free Press for last season's "Vital Signs," and a citation by the Detroit News naming 1984's production of "Talking With..." one of the ten best plays of the decade. Both productions were directed by the Theatre Company's artistic director David L. Regal and played to sold-out houses in the intimate, 150-seat Earl D.A. Smith Theatre.

Martin's plays usually premiere at Actors Theatre of Louisville's annual Humana Festival of New American Plays in March, and are directed by ATL producer Jon Jory. Scheduling conflicts prevent Jory from doing so this year. The Theatre Company's success with Martin's other plays prompted Jory to offer "Criminal Hearts" to Regal and his group.

"Talking With..." and "Vital Signs" addressed women's concerns through a series of monologues. "Criminal Hearts" deals with similar issues in the format of a full-length play. It combines Martin's customary bittersweet, eccentric humor with touching characters dealing with critical circumstances. The play tells the story of an agoraphobic woman trapped by fear in her empty Chicago apartment, abandoned by her philandering husband. A break-in attempt by a street-wise female thief evolves into an unlikely alliance between the two women.

Detroit favorites Miriam Yezbick and Jennifer Jones will be featured. Both have received awards for their previous work with the Theatre Company, Detroit Repertory Theatre and the Jewish Ensemble Theatre.

"Criminal Hearts" replaces "Women in Bars" by Detroit playwright Kim Carney on The Theatre Company agenda. "Women in Bars" will be rescheduled for the 1992-93 season.

"Criminal Hearts" opens April 24 with a special world premiere event, and runs through May 10 in the Earl D.A. Smith Theatre on the University of Detroit Mercy's McNichols campus at McNichols and Livernois.

For more information, to receive a brochure, or for reservations call The Theatre Company at 993-1130.

'Abundance' opens at Strand Theatre

"Abundance," Beth Henley's saga of love, lust and betrayal in the Old West, will receive its Michigan premiere when it opens tonight, Feb. 20, at the historic Strand Theatre in downtown Pontiac. Directed by Pat Ansuini, the play runs through March 22.

The Attic Theatre and the city of Pontiac are collaborating to bring the Attic's mainstage production to the Strand, which the city hopes to eventually restore as the cultural centerpiece of a revitalized downtown. By working with Pontiac to produce "Abundance," the Attic will be able to see if there is an audience in Oakland County for the type of theater that has won the Attic critical acclaim for the past 16 years in Detroit. At the same time, the Attic will have an opportunity to bring some exciting new programming to its home base in the New Center Area.

In "Abundance," Henley leaves the southern gothic settings of her "Miss Firecracker Contest" and Pulitzer Prize-winning "Crimes of the Heart" to explore the West. But it's the interior terrain of human souls that most concerns the author.

Macon Hill wants riches and adventure, freedom and love as boundless as the western sky. Bess Johnson seeks her "one true one." They are mail-order brides, waiting to be picked up by their respective husbands-to-be, when they meet by chance at a train depot somewhere in the Wyoming Territory. And they're about to embark on a 25-year odyssey — through blizzards, drought, Indian kidnappings and bouts of fortune and famine — to the frontier of primal emotions.

As New York Times critic Frank Rich wrote, "Abundance" is a revisionist western that no one will confuse with the classics of John Ford and Howard Hawks."

Director Ansuini, who won the best director award from both the Detroit Free Press and The Detroit News for the Attic's production of "Sand Mountain" in 1989. This is her fourth directorial effort for the Attic.

Playing the intrepid Macon is Kate Willinger, who recently made her debut on the Attic stage as Arsinoe in "The Misanthrope." A former member of the Hilberry Company, she won the 1989-90 Detroit Free Press Theatrical Excellence Award for best featured actress for her performance in Hilberry's production of "Uncle Vanya." Veteran actress Dinah Lynch plays the winsome Bess. Lynch, the recipient of best actress awards from both the Detroit Free Press and The Detroit News, has performed at the Meadow Brook Theatre and Hilberry Theatre. She also directed the Attic's last mainstage production, "Thursday's Child."

Joining this team on stage are: Jim Porterfield as Bess' handsome but brutal husband Jack Fahn, and Tom Mahard as Macon's spouse, the plodding one-eyed farmer Will Curtis. Porterfield recently appeared on the Attic stage as Ken Bradshaw in "Thursday's Child." Mahard, last seen on the Attic stage as Dr. Rank in "A Doll House," also appeared in the Attic's production of another Henley play, "Miss Firecracker Contest."

Rounding out the five-member cast is Tom Suda as the opportunistic Professor Elmore Crome, who appears in Act II to give the play one of the more startling of its many surprising plot twists.

A special "Pontiac Night — Meet the Attic" is scheduled for Thursday, Feb. 27. Following an 8 p.m. performance, there will be an afterglow featuring the finest from local Pontiac restaurants including Griff's Grill, Mama Fanano's and Appleby's Pub. An open invitation and a $5 ticket discount are extended to anyone who lives or works in Pontiac. The special discount will be extended to Pontiac residents and employees for any Thursday evening performance.

There will be a Talk-Back Forum on Wednesday, March 4, where audience members have the opportunity to ask questions of the cast, crew and production staff.

Performance dates and times are Wednesdays, Thursdays and Fridays at 8 p.m., Saturdays at 5 and 9 p.m. and Sundays at 2 and 7 p.m. through March 22. Tickets range from $10-$27. The Strand Theatre is located at 12 N. Saginaw.

To order tickets or for more information, call the Attic's box office at 875-8284 or Ticketmaster at 645-6666. For group sales and subscriptions, call 875-8295.

Melodramas performed

The Greasepaint Players will present "Curse You, Jack Dalton" and "Virtue is its Own Reward," two one-act melodramas, on Friday and Saturday Feb. 28-29 and March 6-7.

The shows begin at 8 p.m.

each night at the UAW Local 203 hall, 14217 Nine Mile in Warren. Tickets are $6 in advance and $7 at the door and include beer and other beverages. For more information, call 774-0309.

'Merchant of Venice' opens at Bonstelle

"The Merchant of Venice," William Shakespeare's classic romance, will play at the Bonstelle Theatre March 6-15. Performances will run Fridays and Saturdays at 8 p.m. and Sundays at 2 p.m.

Shakespeare combines comedy and drama in his tale of love, loyalty, friendship, revenge and hatred. One of the theater's most controversial characters is the play's Jewish money lender, Shylock. Through the ages, his portrayal has changed from a grotesque clown to a terrifying, ferocious villain to a tragic hero.

Todd Hoffman will play Shylock; David Wolber and Rachel Loisselle will play the lovers Bassanio and Portia; and Mark Graham will play Antonio, the merchant of Venice.

The play is directed by Robert Emmett McGill. Set design is by M. Loren Roblee, with lights designed by James P. McHugh, sound design by Yvonne Pelgus and costumes by Mary Copenhagen.

Tickets are $8 for adults and $6 for students and seniors. Special group rates are available. For more information, call 577-2960.

Youtheatre presents musical 'Freedom Train'

"Freedom Train" is a special Black History Month production to be presented Saturday, Feb. 29, by Youtheatre at the Detroit Institute of Arts. The dramatic musical will be performed by Theatreworks/USA at 11 a.m. and 2 p.m. The show will also be performed Feb. 25-28 for schools and organized groups at 10 a.m. and 12:30 p.m.

"Freedom Train" tells the story of Harriet Tubman, who was born a slave and became "the Moses of her people," eventually guiding more than 300 slaves to freedom over the perilous route of the Underground Railroad.

This was the escape route to the North that she first experienced at the age of 25, when she made her own escape from a Maryland plantation to Philadelphia. She later repeated the route 19 times. The difficulties involved nighttime travel over back roads and unmarked terrain, and hiding out with the help of sympathizers in churches, barns, cellars and homes. Tubman's secret missions were compared to leading the children of Israel out of Egypt.

The show uses a series of highly theatrical scenes that include dance, dialogue, mime and music of the pre-Civil War period. Music was the creative communication of the Underground Railroad — through coded spirituals and other songs with double meanings, slaves received word of times of meetings and methods of escape.

"Freedom Train" is essentially a story about self-sacrifice, dedication and survival; it also contains warmth and humor that celebrate the human spirit and make it a universal story.

Tickets are $6, $5 for groups of 10 or more. Performances are at 11 a.m. and 2 p.m. in the DIA auditorium. "Freedom Train" is recommended for youngsters age 9 and older (children under 5 will not be admitted). Tickets are available in person at the DIA office; MasterCard and Visa are accepted for phone orders. Call 833-2323.

'Medicine Man' needs healing

By Marian Trainor
Special Writer

There are two pluses to the rain-soaked romantic comedy "Medicine Man." One is Sean Connery, who as a young lady-killer amazed audiences with both his athletic prowess and his talents for charming lovely women. He has lost none of his athletic ability, swinging from the branches of 100-foot-high most of the scenes.

But if he even bothers to notice, Dr. Robert Campbell (Connery), a distinguished biochemist, doesn't seem to mind being soaked most of the time.

Six years back, he left the laboratories and latest equipment of a pharmaceutical company in Los Angeles to settle in this untamed territory to try to find a cure for cancer. For six years he experimented with hundreds of formulas. When he finally found one that worked, he lost it.

Back in Los Angeles, the company wonders why they haven't heard from him. Nevertheless, when he writes a letter requesting new equipment and the services of a well-known scientist as an assistant, his request is honored, but not entirely.

In his letter he had cited the names of three bio-chemists he would consider worthy of working with him. He gets Dr. Rae Crane (Lorraine Bracco).

Campbell tells her he has found a cure for cancer, but only one vial of the serum remains. He has lost the formula and can't duplicate it. He is convinced that a major ingredient is in the leaves of the hundred-foot trees that grow in the area.

This leads to one of the most spectacular sequences in the film with Campbell and Crane dramatically suspended high above the rain forest by ropes and pulleys. In another striking sequence, they make their way deep into the jungle to find the tribal medicine man who might have a clue to what is missing in the formula.

Something of a romantic comedy, "Medicine Man" also concerns itself with weighty subjects such as cancer cures, rain forests and primitive values and cultures.

When a boy lies dying of cancer, Campbell wants to administer the last vial of the formula. Crane talks him out of it but then changes her mind. The act takes on dramatic significance when Campbell confesses that he wanted to administer the serum not for the boy's sake but for his own because he didn't want to lose face with the tribe. This act of sacrificing the possible cure of many for one raises an interesting moral question that's not easy to answer.

Another problem looms throughout the film as we see smoke smudging the sky and hear the rumbling of bulldozers. The day they reach the village, Campbell and Crane are sure they are getting close to duplicating the serum, making for a suspenseful ending.

There is much to applaud in "Medicine Man," but it's missing cohesiveness and doesn't rate a standing ovation.

trees with ease. And he charms Lorraine Bracco, who is young enough to be his daughter.

The second plus is the spectacular scenery. National Geographic could not have done it better. Supposedly set in the Amazon rain forest but actually shot in Mexico, the camera takes the viewer into unbelievably rugged territory of tangled growth, magnificent mountains and sparse villages where natives lead primitive lives and practice the same rituals that have come down through generations. Apparently they have inherited a tolerance for rain, also, it because it pours during

1992 Shrine Circus steeped in tradition

Detroit loves a good circus. Just ask the members of the Moslem Shrine Temple, who will host their 89th annual Shrine Circus, March 13-29, at the Michigan State Fairgrounds in Detroit.

The Detroit Shrine Circus, the oldest event of its kind in the United States, traces its roots to a carnival.

"We actually began as a carnival," explained William Wagar, 1992 circus director for the Moslem Temple. "This year will mark the 77th year we've been at the fairgrounds. Our goal is to offer wholesome family entertainment at reasonable prices."

The all new 1992 Shrine Circus will feature a variety of acts including a return of the Flying Wallendas, a family of high wire artists who have entertained Detroit circus-goers throughout the years.

Ticket prices vary from $3 to $10, depending on the day of the week and show time. Advance tickets will be on sale Monday, Feb. 24, at all Ticketmaster outlets and at the advance ticket office in the Ford Building at the fairgrounds.

Proceeds from the circus are used to support Shrine activities such as marching bands, performing motorcyclists, clowns, and miniature cars, which regularly appear at parades and other civic functions in southeastern Michigan. The Shriners also participate in the Shrine Children's Hospital program, providing free transportation and medical care for more than 1,000 Detroit-area youngsters each year.

Three champs lead South to MAC mat title

By Chuck Klonke
Sports Editor

Larry Carr felt a strange sort of confidence before his Grosse Pointe South wrestling team took the mat for the Macomb Area Conference Blue Division tournament.

"We've been up and down all season and we were down Thursday so I figured we were due to wrestle well on Saturday," Carr said.

The Blue Devils didn't let him down.

South placed seven wrestlers in the championship finals and four others made the consolation final as the Blue Devils edged dual meet champion Grosse Pointe North. South had 167 1/2 points and North finished with 159. Romeo was a distant third with 119 points.

"It wasn't unexpected," Carr said of the championship. "I thought we could get eight kids into the finals."

"We know how good we can be, but we've been such an erratic team. After our double dual on Thursday (a 61-6 loss to Royal Oak Kimball and a 54-16 victory over Southfield) we had a lengthy discussion. Friday we took it easy in practice because everyone was down to weight. I had the kids think about what they could do, so they were prepared mentally going into the conference tournament."

The Blue Devils held a one-point lead over the Norsemen at the start of the finals and wrapped up the team title with individual championships from heavyweight Don Leal, Paul Kelley (112 pounds) and Scott Cairo (140).

"Larry's kids wrestled well, especially a couple of them that weren't seeded real high and still earned places," said North coach Art Roberts. "I couldn't have asked anything more from my kids. We took 10 to the meet and all 10 of them placed."

A broken hand suffered last week by North's 152-pounder, Tony Romolino, was a costly blow for the Norsemen.

"I'm sure he would have placed," Roberts said, "but we have no excuses. You play with the hand you're dealt."

North's Keith Giannico edged South's Cairo in the coaches' voting for the Most Valuable Wrestler.

Giannico won his first two matches by pins, then nipped John Sickelsteel of Warren Woods-Tower, 8-7, in the championship bout at 130 pounds.

"John has given Keith as much trouble as anybody this year,"

Roberts said. "Both of them were really fired up for their match. John put a couple counter moves on Keith who was a little sloppy and almost got into trouble, but the true mark of a champion is finding a way to win and Keith did that."

Sicklesteel, who lost a 5-4 decision to Giannico in the dual meet between the two schools, got three points for a near-fall in the first period and led 4-2 after the period. Giannico got a takedown and a reversal in the second period to tie the match at 6-6 and he won it with a takedown in the third period.

Cairo was dominant in his three matches. He pinned two opponents and won his other match, 19-3.

"Nobody touched him all day," Carr said. "He's been one of our most consistent wrestlers all season."

Cairo, a junior, was leading Romeo's Simon Bradin 11-0 in the championship match at 140 when he pinned him with a second remaining in the second period.

Leal took the league's heavyweight championship when he beat Cousino's Luke Howey 8-6 and Kelley pinned North freshman Tim McPherson at 2:50 in the 112 final.

"Paul finally got his weight down to 112," Carr said. "We had focused on him wrestling at that weight. He didn't go to our dual meet Thursday, so he came into the tournament well-rested."

Four of South's finalists earned runner-up medals. Nate Erikson dropped an 11-3 decision to Warren Woods-Tower's Mike Sayer at 119; Tom Hunyady of L'Anse Creuse beat the Blue Devils' Chris Gianino 8-3 at 145; Romeo's Jim Migliano pinned Jesse Culver at 2:41 in the 171-pound final; and Woods-Tower's Scott Greathouse got a 27-second fall against Rich Reynolds at 189.

South's Dan Klaasen got a first-period pin in the consolation final to take third place at 152 and the Blue Devils' Rob Sharrow earned third place with a second-period pin at 160. Sharrow dropped his first match, 20-5, then came back and pinned his next three opponents.

The Blue Devils had fourth places from Mark Francese at 125 and John Cugliari at 135.

"Cugliari earned some important points for us when he got a pin in the consolation semifinal," Carr said. "He was losing badly in the third period but kept working and got a pin."

North's other individual champion was sophomore Dave Sandercott, who beat Cousino's Jason Sowinski 12-3 in the title bout at 103.

"Shorty was ready," said Roberts. "He did well all day." In addition to McPherson, North got second-place medals from Brian Kerber, Dan Skuce and Mike Gagala.

Kerber dropped a 5-1 decision to L'Anse Creuse's Eric Hetzenbuhler at 125 and Gagala was pinned by Romeo's Mark Lawson at 2:45 of the 160-pound final.

Skuce was the victim of a controversial disqualification in the 135-pound final with Cousino's Mark Boccaccio.

"Dan didn't wrestle well, but the official gave (Boccaccio) every one of his points," Roberts said. "In 23 years of coaching, I've never had that happen. The kids should be allowed to decide the match."

Roberts was especially unhappy with three stalling calls against Skuce.

"The kid leads us with 23 pins," the coach said. "He goes after people. He's not a staller, especially not that early in the match."

North wound up with three third-places. Jeff Rizzo won a 7-0 decision in the consolation final at 119; Dave Pierno took third at 189 with a 7-2 win; and heavyweight Duane Leininger got a pin in 1:41.

The Norsemen's Joe Geibel dropped a 4-2 decision in the consolation final and took fourth at 145.

Earlier in the week, North beat Marysville 48-16 and downed Avondale 43-28 in non-league dual meets. Kerber, McPherson, Gagala, Skuce and Giannico each recorded two victories for the Norsemen.

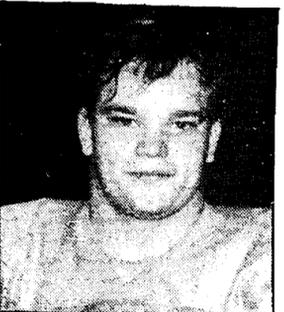

South's victory over Southfield featured pins by Klaasen, Sharrow and Culver. Cairo's pin at 140 was the Blue Devils' only victory in the Kimball match.

One minute's lapse costs ULS a victory

One minute must have seemed like an eternity to University Liggett School's hockey team last week.

Livonia Churchill scored three times in the span of a minute midway through the second period to tie the Knights, 3-3.

"Except for that one-minute lapse we played a good, consistent game," said ULS coach John Fowler.

Andy VanDeweghe

"We regrouped, caught our breath and didn't let ourselves get down after they scored those three goals. We just kept fighting back. We've tried to impress on the kids that the game is longer than one minute or even one period. There's time to come back."

Churchill scored its first goal at 5:44 of the second period to tie the game at 1-1. The Chargers took the lead 11 seconds later and stretched the margin to 3-1 at 6:44.

Eric Kisskalt's goal at 9:08 of the second period pulled ULS within one goal of Churchill and the Knights tied the score with 5:49 left in the game when Andy VanDeweghe notched his second goal of the contest while ULS was on power play.

"We had a 4-3 manpower advantage so I sent my four best puckhandlers out and told them to move the puck faster than Churchill's three guys," Fowler said.

It paid off as VanDeweghe, who had opened the scoring with 3:37 remaining in the first period, put the puck in from the side of the net. Stefan Teigte and Kisskalt drew the assists.

"We were buzzing, but couldn't get the winner," Fowler said.

The Knights outshot Churchill 12-5 in the third period.

Goalie Tom Best had a strong game for ULS as he turned away 27 shots.

Bill Robb and Kisskalt each had two assists for ULS and VanDeweghe had one.

Fowler said Bill Burns played well on defense in the third period while Robb was serving a 10-minute misconduct penalty.

The Knights began a busy week by hosting Cranbrook on Wednesday. They play at Port Huron tonight, Feb. 20, and host Port Huron Northern on Saturday, Feb. 22.

"Three games in a week — we feel just like the Red Wings," Fowler said.

Blue Devils ready to hit the road

By Chuck Klonke
Sports Editor

Grosse Pointe South's basketball team goes on the road for four of its last six games, but coach George Petrouleas isn't concerned with the schedule.

"We just have to gear ourselves mentally to play away from home," he said. "If you're mentally prepared it shouldn't make any difference whether you're home or away. We just have to be ready to play every game."

The Blue Devils were ready last week as they notched two more Macomb Area Conference White Division victories, defeating Anchor Bay 61-49 and then rolling past Fraser 67-45.

"Those were two games we were supposed to win, but you still have to go out and do it," Petrouleas said. "You have to play to your potential in games like that or you could get beat."

South has had two games in each of the last three weeks and Petrouleas thinks the heavy duty helped his squad.

"We needed to play," he said. "For a while we had too much time off."

South raced to a 10-0 lead against Fraser and the Blue Devils were never headed. Mike Armstrong had two dunks in the first quarter, which provided a spark for South and deflated the Ramblers, who have won only one game this season.

The Blue Devils led 16-8 after the first quarter and that was the closest Fraser would get.

"Our starters played about half the game so it gave us a chance to let the other kids see some action," Petrouleas said. "Andy Warner and Aaron Letscher did a good job off the bench and Fritz Coyro and Paul Motley had some extended playing time and worked hard."

Mike McLaughlin led South with 15 points and Blair Hess and Armstrong tossed in 12 points apiece. Hess and Armstrong combined for 13 rebounds.

Matt Recht had five assists and Petrouleas said he "did a good job of working with some new combinations."

Armstrong poured in 26 points and also grabbed seven rebounds to lead South to victory over Anchor Bay.

McLaughlin had 17 points, Hess collected nine points and 10 rebounds and Recht dished out 10 assists.

"We wanted to go to the people who could hurt the opponent the most and Matt executed the offense very well," Petrouleas said.

The Blue Devils held a 29-20 halftime advantage and stretched the margin to 22 points in the second half.

"We're continuing to do things better defensively and that creates some easy baskets," Petrouleas said.

The two victories improved South's record to 10-4 overall and 6-2 in the MAC White.

Norsemen keep their spirits high

Two defeats haven't dampened the enthusiasm of Grosse Pointe North's basketball team: "Our attitude is still good," said coach George Olman. "We had a couple good days of practice after losing to Romeo. We all realize we have to keep working. There are six games left and we think they'll all be close. Whether we win or not depends on us."

Unbeaten Sterling Heights Ford rolled to a 69-44 victory over the Norsemen and Romeo escaped with a 52-45 victory in last week's action. The two defeats in the Macomb Area Conference White Division left North with a 3-5 league record and a 7-7 overall mark.

"We're going in streaks," Olman said. "Every game has been close except for Ford and Port Huron Northern."

Romeo held a 24-21 halftime lead and enjoyed a 33-31 advantage after three quarters. North stayed close, but couldn't overtake the Bulldogs.

"They had one more three-pointer, one more two-point basket and two more free throws — that was the difference," Olman said. "Romeo shot 54 percent and had a very good second half."

D.J. Reynolds led North with 17 points, Adam Lowry scored 16 and Adam Korzeniewski added eight points and pulled down six rebounds.

Turnovers were costly in the loss to Ford.

"We were down 18-8 after the first quarter and then just caved in," Olman said. "They scored a lot of their points against our offense. And we didn't help ourselves by shooting 36 percent."

The Falcons, who lead the White Division and are ranked in the state Class A polls, built a 36-13 halftime advantage.

Loss teaches Knights a valuable lesson

University Liggett School's basketball team is learning some valuable lessons this season.

"The one we learned this time is that you never want to give the momentum away," said coach Chuck Wright after the Knights dropped a 76-68 double-overtime decision to Southfield Christian.

"These kids haven't played much basketball so this season has been a learning experience for them. We've had some nice wins and some bad losses, but it's been a great group to work with. It's the closest team I've ever been associated with."

ULS held a 12-point lead early in the fourth quarter when the game turned around.

"We just lost our momentum," Wright said. "Southfield Christian went ahead by three points and our kids showed a lot of character to come back and tie the game."

The Knights got the basketball with 20 seconds left in regulation time, but didn't get a good shot away.

Dave Martin hit two free throws late in the first overtime to force a second extra period, but by that time three ULS players had fouled out and the Eagles took command of the contest.

Ken Hubbard led ULS with 16 points and six assists. Vernon Pernell scored 14 points and Louis Johnson added 12 points and hauled down 17 rebounds.

"Louis' rebounding has really come along," Wright said. "He's averaged 11 a game over the last five games. His jumping ability is awesome and now he's learning how to compete for the rebounds."

The defeat left ULS, which hosts Rochester Hills Lutheran Northwest on Friday, with a 7-8 record.

Consistency fails North

By John Miskelly
Special Writer

The sign of a successful athletic team is consistency.

Some teams beat their weaker opponents and lose to the powerhouses. Others do the opposite. One is as frustrating as the other.

At the moment, Grosse Pointe North's hockey team seems to be in one of those predicaments.

In recent games, the Norsemen played well against highly ranked Livonia Stevenson and a good Detroit Country Day squad and came away from the two contests with a tie and a victory.

Last week, North avenged an earlier defeat by fourth-ranked Grosse Pointe South by posting a 6-3 victory. South won the first meeting between the cross-town rivals, 5-3.

Two days after beating the Blue Devils, North entertained Michigan Metro League rival Riverview Gabriel Richard and suffered a 6-2 defeat.

After playing at an emotional high against South, the Norsemen appeared drained and sluggish. The fog outside the Shores Civic Arena seemed to envelope North's enthusiasm.

"We didn't do what it takes to win hockey games," said North coach Dan Abraham, who is an alumnus of Gabriel Richard. "Our whole game was slow."

The Pioneers took advantage of their opportunities in a slow-moving first period and came away with a 2-0 lead.

Richard displayed some tenacious forechecking and hard defense in the second period, but North scored the only goal when Brian Quinn converted a centering pass from Joey Sucher. Brad Marshall also had an assist on the goal, scored at 2:30 while the Norsemen had a two-man advantage.

The third period was all of fense for Richard, while North became a study in frustration.

"We were outworked," said Abraham, putting an exclamation point on his team's performance.

The goal light didn't come on after Richard's first goal of the third period, but the officials gave the Pioneers credit for it after a brief discussion.

A little more than three minutes later, Richard scored on a power play. The Pioneers' fifth goal came on a stuff-in after North's goalie was pulled out of position.

North's Marshall scored a power-play goal on a slap shot from the point, with Jeff Jensen drawing the assist, with just under five minutes left to cut Richard's lead to 5-2. The Pioneers completed the scoring on a power play with 32 seconds left.

North goalie Chuck Schervish had to leave the game during the penalty-filled third period when he was slashed during a skirmish after the whistle.

The split last week dropped North's record to 7-10-2. The Norsemen's final three games are on the road. North returns home to host a Class A regional beginning Monday, March 2.

Walter's quick in the water

There's nothing like the chance for a college scholarship to push a swimmer to greater achievements.

Grosse Pointe South's Andy Walter is a perfect example.

"The pressure's on Andy right now to get that scholarship," said Blue Devils' coach Fred Michalik. "He's working real hard to bring his times down."

Walter, a senior, qualified for the state meet in two events at last weekend's Michigan Interscholastic Coaches Association meet at Eastern Michigan University.

He was clocked in 22.42 for the 50-yard freestyle and came back to swim a 49.1 in the 100 freestyle.

South's Brenn Schoenherr also made a state cut in the 100 backstroke when he was clocked in 55.93.

"That's two seconds better than he's done before," Michalik said.

Chad Hepner was second in diving with a score of 400.80 points.

"He was outstanding," Michalik said. "Dearborn's Chris Good was 15 points ahead of Chad, but Chad beat a real good diver from East Kentwood. Most of the best divers in the state were at the meet."

South also got a strong effort from Matt Millikin, who had the opportunity to swim the 500 freestyle when Tim Jogan missed the meet because of illness.

"He did a 5:12.55, which is four seconds faster than he's ever done," Michalik said. "He went out fast and held his stroke the whole race."

Earlier in the week, the Blue Devils breezed past Sterling Heights 135-49 in a Macomb Area Conference National Division meet.

Freshman Kyle Zeller was a double-winner, taking the 200 individual medley in 2:25.3 and posting a first-place time of 1:01.69 in the 100 backstroke.

South's 200 freestyle relay team of Tim Harmount, Schoenherr, Jogan and Walter qualified for the state meet with a winning time of 1:31.43.

The Blue Devils' other individual winners were Ryan Milligan, 200 freestyle, 2:00.57; Walter, 50 freestyle, 22.63; Millikin, 100 butterfly, 1:02.5; Hepner, diving, 289.05 points; Norm Rice, 100 freestyle, 54.95; Chuck Ruifork, 500 freestyle, 5:39.45; and Rob Bacon, 100 breaststroke, 1:10.3.

Ruifork, Robert Docherty, Bacon and Eli Ruhf won the 200 medley relay in 2:00.71 and the 400 freestyle relay team of Harmount, Schoenherr, Jogan and Walter took first in 3:28.59.

North thrives on competition

Tough competition brought out the best in several of Grosse Pointe North's swimmers.

"Everybody we took to the meet swam well," Norsemen coach Les Roddis said after the Michigan Interscholastic Coaches Association (MISCA) meet last weekend at Eastern Michigan University.

Steve Williams made the best showing with a second-place time of 4:50.79 in the 500-yard freestyle. Williams also finished 11th in the 200 freestyle with a 1:50.03.

Brett Collins was ninth in the 500 with a personal best of 4:54.5.

Charlie Roddis qualified for the state meet in the 100 backstroke with a 57.29 and just missed making the cut for the 100 butterfly when he swam a 55.66. "He needed a 55.59," the coach said. "We're counting on him getting it in our next meet."

The Norsemen were scheduled to swim against Sterling Heights Ford in a tough Macomb Area Conference National Division meet last Tuesday.

North's 400 freestyle relay team of Craig Williams, Rusty Milne, Collins and Steve Williams dropped six seconds off its best time with a 3:30.86 and the 200 medley relay team of Milne, John Galvin, Charlie Roddis and Craig Williams swam a 1:50.2, its second-best effort of the season.

Earlier in the week, North crushed Stevenson 150-32 in a conference meet.

Individual winners for the Norsemen were Jeff Dungan, 200 freestyle, 2:01.8; Paul Swan, 200 individual medley, 2:32.93; Craig Williams, 50 freestyle, 23.28; Steve Chevalier, diving, 143.8 points; Steve Williams, 100 butterfly, 1:00.77; Chris Janutol, 100 freestyle, 60.9; Charlie Roddis, 500 freestyle, 5:11.88; Milne, 100 backstroke, 1:02.37; and Rob Ament, 100 breaststroke, 1:21.56.

Mike Collins, Chris Ditty, Emmett DeGuvera and Ryan Gallagher won the 200 freestyle relay in 1:48.45.

Other strong performances by North came from Paul Reaser in the 200 freestyle; Dungan and Galvin in the 500; Brett Collins in the butterfly and backstroke; and DeGuvera in the 50 freestyle, the butterfly and the medley relay.

"We had our divers swim the 200 freestyle relay and Larry Lloyd, Chevalier, Heath Terice and J.P. Gamrot did a good job," coach Roddis said.

Grosse Pointe North goalie Chuck Schervish sprawls to make a save during the Norsemen's 6-3 victory over crosstown rival Grosse Pointe South.

Higel sets state swim mark

Kim Higel just keeps adding to her swimming accomplishments.

The Grosse Pointe South junior, who won the 200-yard individual medley in the state Class A meet last fall, set a United States Swimming-sanctioned state record in the 200 backstroke with a 2:01.05 clocking.

Higel set the record for the 15-18 age group at the Ann Arbor Mid-winter meet while swimming for Pointe Aquatics.

"It was an excellent swim because she's in the middle of tapering for next week when she'll try for the Olympic trial cut," said Pointe Aquatics coach Mike O'Connor. "She did better than I expected."

Two other Pointe Aquatic swimmers qualified for the Junior National meet in Nashville, Tenn. Jennifer Paolucci swam a 2:06.96 in the 200 butterfly and Suzette Atrasz recorded a 1:06.97 in the 100 breaststroke.

The club also qualified its medley relay team when Higel, Christine Jamerino, Paolucci and Michelle Vasapoli, a seventh grader at Parcels Middle School, teamed up to swim a 3:58.57.

In the boys competition, Steve Williams swam a 4:46.67 in the 500 freestyle.

ULS swimmers do well

University Liggett School's swimming team had two strong showings last week as the Knights beat Auburn Hills Avondale 110-45 and finished third in the Erie-Mason Invitational.

In the Avondale meet, Jon Sieber, Beth Weyhing and Katie Tompkins finished 1-2-3 in the 200-yard freestyle. Andrew Dempz and Antwan Fuller recorded personal bests in the 50 freestyle with a 27.97 and a 32.48, respectively.

Sieber missed the state cut in the 100 butterfly by four seconds with a 1:02.77 and Tompkins swam the 500 freestyle in a personal best of 6:48.14.

Betsy Belenky, Anne Petz, Weyhing, Sean Gardella and Sieber helped ULS record relay victories.

Gardella won the 100 breaststroke and Lesley Thomas took second in the event with a personal best of 1:27.86.

There were several outstanding performances in the Erie-Mason Invitational.

Sieber was a candidate for the outstanding swimmer award as he won the 500 freestyle and took second in the 200 freestyle.

Petz improved her time in the 200 individual medley and finished 11th. Belenky also swam well in the same event.

Zhenyu Zhu cut 30 seconds off his 200 freestyle time and just missed winning his heat. Liam Ryan swam his best 500 freestyle and Gardella recorded a personal best of 1:00 in the 100 freestyle.

Tompkins cut her backstroke time to 1:10.49, a personal best, and Belenky and Weyhing finished fourth and fifth, respectively, in the 100 butterfly. Anita Warner was third in the 500 freestyle.

Earlier, ULS dropped a close meet with Cranbrook-Kingswood.

Gardella had the only individual first for the Knights when he won the 100 breaststroke in 1:16.37.

Petz, Belenky, Warner and Sieber finished first in the 400 freestyle relay. Dempz was third in the 50 freestyle and fifth in the 100 freestyle.

Other highlights were Sieber's 1:59 in the 200 freestyle and a 1:11 by Tompkins in the 100 backstroke.

Blues 11, Redford Rangers 8

Goals: Bill Denner 3, Andy Klein 5, Michael Trewyn 3 (Blues).

Assists: Denner 5, Klein 4, Trewyn, Jeff Maxwell 2 (Blues).

Comments: Blues' goalie Chuck Myslinski played well in the playoff contest. Dan Horstokotte, Tommy Manion and Billy Thompson were also standouts for the Blues.

MITE

Habs 3, Penguins 2

Goals: Justin Graves, Jacques Perreault, Blake Goebel (Habs); Matt Broderick 2 (Penguins).

Assists: Jeff Schroeder, Scott Vallee, Andrew Scarfone, Jordan Winfield, Matt Scarfone (Habs); Elizabeth Auty, Adam Doughty (Penguins).

Comments: Goalies Jeremy Holifield of the Habs and Joey Solomon of the Penguins each played well. Dana Rosen, Jon Graves, Steven Berger and Tom Campbell had strong games for the Habs. Brian Cosio, Robbie Solomon and Nichole Brown were standouts for the Penguins.

Whalers 3, Kings 2

Goals: Joey Sullivan, Anthony Ahee, Michael Kasprzak (Whalers); Jason Capaldi, Stuart Cooper (Kings).

Assists: Brent Franklin, Peter Barker (Whalers); Adam Zielke, Benjamin Karle (Kings).

Comments: Kevin Smith played an outstanding game in goal for the Whalers. Other standouts for the Whalers were Greg Smith, Patrick Schaefer and Rick Courson. Top players for the Kings were Johnny Genovesi, Capaldi, Katie McMillan and Cooper.

Blackhawks 3, Maple Leafs 2

Goals: C.T. Thurber 2, Calder Gage (Blackhawks); Charlie Keersmaeker, Drew Kiskalt (Maple Leafs).

Assists: Daniel Stahl, Trevor Stahl (Blackhawks).

Comments: Blackhawks' goalie Ryan Kramer played an excellent game as the Maple Leafs held a shooting edge. Taylor Morawski and Brett Fletcher also played well for the Blackhawks. Standouts for the Maple Leafs were Mark Callert, Steven Seyler and goalie Andrew Beer.

Bulldogs 6, Jayhawks 1

Goals: Trevor Mallon, John Matteson 3, Todd Lorenger, Chris Getz (Bulldogs); Chris Waigand (Jayhawks).

Assists: Matteson, Rich Giffin, A.J. Jovanovski 2, Christian Gawley, Bryan Sullivan, Prescott Murphy, Lorenger (Bulldogs).

Comments: Bulldogs' goalie Chip

Fowler just missed his third shutout. The Bulldogs' defense was anchored by Sullivan, Andrew Glancy and Tim Bledsoe. Brandon Lukacs had several shots on goal for the Jayhawks.

PEE WEE

Canucks 2, Lakeland Wolves 0

Goals: Charles Thomas, Chris Holloway.

Assist: Holloway.

Comments: Thomas snapped a scoreless tie midway through the third period. Mike Gellasch, Joe Arnone and Brian Leroy kept the pressure on the Wolves throughout the game. Joey Messina had another strong performance in goal to earn the shutout.

Canucks 6, Redford Whalers 2

Goals: Chuck Thiel, Dan Nikesch, Chuck Thomas 2, Tom Stroble, Kris Cernok (Canucks).

Assists: Chris Holloway, Jim Peterka, Stroble, Cernok, Matt Gorczyca 2, Thiel, Mike Gellasch (Canucks).

Comments: After a 1-0 exhibition victory against the Michigan Capitals a day earlier, 12 Canucks' players scored points. Fine play by Drew Miller, Joe Arnone, Brian Leroy and goalie Joey Messina also contributed to the victory. Cernok scored his first career goal.

Pointe players helped Silver Stick champions

Two youth hockey players from Grosse Pointe Woods are headed for a spot in the Hockey Hall of Fame.

Center Joseph Simon and left wing Scott Vandekerckhove were members of the St. Clair Shores Mite AA Saints, who won their division in the North American International Silver Stick tournament earlier this month.

No team from the St. Clair Shores Hockey Association had won a Silver Stick title in 16 years.

beam. Brooke Borden was ninth on the parallel bars.

State qualifiers from Grosse Pointe were White, with a score of 32.50; Bianca Bommarito, 32.30; Borden 32.30; Robbie Langlois, 32.15; and Suzi Blackwell, 31.80.

The club's Level 6 girls competed in an earlier sectional meet in East Lansing and Rebecca Duke scored a 31.1 to qualify for the state meet.

CARD SHOW: Grosse Pointe Christian School will host a sports card show on Saturday, Feb. 22, from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m.

Proceeds from the show will go toward the school.

Call 821-6159 for information or to reserve a table. The school is located at 1444 Maryland, Grosse Pointe Park.

Admission to the show is free.

TWO VICTORIES: University of Pennsylvania senior Bill Thompson, a Grosse Pointe South grad, won the 200-yard backstroke in each of the Quakers' dual swimming meets with Swarthmore and Army.

Penn beat Swarthmore 109-69 but lost to Army for the 19th consecutive time, 133-110.

HOCKEY GAME: The Macomb County Sheriff's Department will play the Detroit Red Wings Old-Timers in a benefit hockey game on Saturday, Feb. 29, at the Fraser Ice Arena.

Proceeds from the game, which will begin at 7:15 p.m., will benefit the Muscular Dystrophy Association.

Tickets are available at the door or in advance by contacting William Krul at 469-5803 or the MDA at 228-0000. Tickets are $5 for adults and $4 for

Lady Knights come back to win two

University Liggett School's volleyball team was pushed to the limit in its recent matches with Harper Woods and South Lake.

The Lady Knights improved to 3-6 with the 12-15, 17-15, 15-11 victory over Harper Woods. ULS trailed 11-5 in the second game before beginning its comeback.

Magda Chojnacka had five kills and six aces. Freshman Julianne Grant had two kills and five aces and freshmen Stacey Corbin and Laura Haggerty played well in the back row. Carrie Birgbauer was 13-for-15 serving.

ULS also had to come from behind in its 15-8, 8-15, 16-14 victory over South Lake. Strong serving was a factor as the Lady Knights had 11 aces. Corbin served five aces and was 17-for-21 in serving. Jamila Hoard led ULS with nine attacks.

senior citizens and students. Children under 5 are admitted free.

The Fraser Ice Arena is at 34400 Utica Road, between 14 and 15 mile.

South looks forward to Bedford tournament

Grosse Pointe South's volleyball team isn't making any social plans for Saturday night.

That's because the Lady Devils hope to be competing in the finals of the Bedford Invitational tournament.

"We're really excited about playing at Bedford," said coach Cindy Sharpe. "Some of the best teams in the state are going to be there. It will be a real good test for us. We need a challenge to see where we are with the state tournament coming up in a couple weeks."

Host Bedford is ranked No. 4 in Class A. Hanover-Horton, rated No. 1 in Class C, is in the field along with perennial powers Walled Lake Central and Battle Creek Central.

Last week, the Lady Devils beat Romeo 15-4, 16-14 in their only match.

South was trailing 14-10 in the second game before coming back to post the victory. The Lady Devils are 10-0 in the Macomb Area Conference White Division and 27-1 overall.

Angela Drake led South with seven kills, Sue McGahey and Liz Binder each had five and Ashley Moran contributed four. Kelly Baker served 12 points and bolstered the back-row defense. Sue Faramouth had 22 assists.

"McGahey and Binder played real well and so did my freshman, Amanda DeFever," Sharpe said. "Amanda didn't have a lot of impressive statistics, but she played errorless. She made some real strong hits and blocked well. She hasn't played a lot, but she's done a good job filling in when we've needed her. She'll be a very good player as she gains experience."

Tougher week ahead for North

Grosse Pointe North's volleyball team had an easy time last week, but this week promises to be much tougher.

Coach Leslie Harwood's Lady Norsemen are entered in the tough Bedford Invitational, which annually draws some of the best high school teams in the state.

Last week, North breezed past Utica 15-4, 15-10 to improve its record in the Macomb Area Conference White Division to 8-2.

Stephanie Gore led the Lady Norsemen with 18 service points, including six aces. Tricia Campau assisted Jenny Shapiro on seven hits and two kills.

WATER WORKOUTS: Macomb Community College's physical education department is offering several water exercise classes for adults, senior citizens and special groups.

Sunrise water aerobics will begin Monday, March 16. Classes will meet every Monday, Wednesday and Friday from 7:30 to 8:30 a.m. The cost is $35 for 27 sessions.

Several water exercise programs will be offered in the afternoon.

Senior swim will be held Tuesdays, Thursdays and Fridays from 1:30 to 3 p.m. through May 6. The cost is $1 per person per visit.

Water exercises for individuals with multiple sclerosis will be held Mondays and Wednesdays from 1:30 to 2:30 p.m., beginning March 16. The cost is $35 for 18 sessions.

Water exercises for arthritic individuals will be held on Tuesdays and Thursdays from 3:15 to 4:15 p.m., beginning March 17. The cost is $35 for 18 sessions.

Adult swim lessons are scheduled for Mondays and Wednesdays from 2:30 to 3:30 p.m., beginning Monday, March 23. The cost is $20 for 12 sessions.

Water aerobics will be offered Mondays through Thursdays from 5 to 6 p.m., beginning March 16. The cost is $35 for 27 sessions.

MCC's Physical Education Center is located near the corner of Martin and Hayes roads in Warren.

For more information on the water workout programs, call 445-7476.

BASEBALL WORKSHOP: Macomb Community College will hold a baseball coaches' workshop on Saturday, Feb. 29, from 8 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. at the school's Physical Education Center.

The workshop, directed by MCC head coach Len Perkins and assistants Rudy Furchak and Brian Groch, will help parents and volunteer coaches master the techniques of the game and will demonstrate ways to teach baseball.

The cost for the workshop is $30, which may be paid in advance or at the door.

South staff holds mini-camp

Grosse Pointe South's baseball staff and players will hold an instructional mini-camp for youngsters from the fourth through eighth grades on Saturday, March 28, from 12:30 to 5 p.m.

Pre-registration is required and registration will be limited.

"We'll cover all aspects of baseball — hitting, infield and outfield play, catching and pitching," said Dan Griesbaum, head baseball coach at South. "We've held several outdoor camps, but this is the first time we've had an indoor camp."

The camp will be held in the field room and all three gymnasiums at the high school.

There is no residence requirement for attendance at the camp.

The registration fee is $20 and must be submitted by Saturday, March 21. Checks should be made payable to the GPS Baseball Club.

Youth coaches may also attend the camp for a $10 registration fee.

All proceeds will go to South's baseball program.

Registration and fees should be sent to Dan Griesbaum, Grosse Pointe South, 11 Grosse Pointe Blvd., Grosse Pointe, MI 48236.

For more information, call Griesbaum at 884-7834 or leave a message at the school (343-2130) and the call will be returned.

Scott Vandekerckhove

Joseph Simon

A plaque honoring the Saints will be displayed in the Hall of Fame in Toronto.

GYMNASTS SHINE: The Level 5 girls from the Grosse Pointe Gymnastics Club finished fifth among 16 teams in a recent sectional meet in Flint.

Lindsey White was 20th in a field of 117 gymnasts in the all-around competition and she was fourth on the balance

Pastor

As one author said: "Christianity is not a spectator activity but a participatory activity."

Jesus puts it very well when he says: "You shall love the Lord your God with all your heart, and with all your soul, and with all your mind. This is the great and first commandment. And a second is like it, you shall love your neighbor as yourself. On these two commandments depend all the law and the prophets." (Matthew 22:37-40)

As a response to God's love, what will you "take on" for Lent?

Botanical prints are as treasured as real thing, and last longer

Seed catalogs are beginning to appear in the mail with color photographs of the magnificent flowers, fruits and vegetables they promise to deliver for our gardens next summer. Magazines and beautiful books on garden subjects are replete with photographs of flowers and plants which seem so real that one can almost feel their textures and smell their varied scents.

But photography is a comparatively recent art, especially such true-to-life color photography. Did you ever wonder how these things were portrayed before the invention of the camera? Through drawings, engravings and unbelievably accurate botanical prints, that's how.

And today these beautiful pictures are collectors' items. It has become almost as much of a mania as it was in the 18th century when botanical prints were collected with passionate zeal by botanists, plant collectors, gardeners and libraries at great expense and with tremendous competitive enthusiasm.

Collecting exotic plant specimens was a status symbol and a national passion among the wealthy landowners in England at the time when the great country houses were being surrounded by elaborate and extensive gardens. Designed by such landscape artists as Capability Brown, the gardens were enhanced with pergolas, pillared "folies" or summer houses, and with extensive glass houses where rare and tropical plants could be collected and nurtured.

Collecting such plants became a competitive hobby with the wealthy landowners, and was a spin-off of the voyages of exploration in the Pacific which were being carried out by such valiant seamen as Captain James Cook and the intrepid and infamous Captain Bligh. A quest for breadfruit trees, in an attempt to find a new staple food to offset hunger and poverty, was the purpose of his ill-fated voyage, immortalized in the story of the Bounty and the colonizing of Pitcairn Island by the ship's mutineers.

Botany was a national craze and plants were carefully drawn from life and rendered as accurately as possible with the plants being portrayed in bloom but with foliage and seed pods included.

William Curtis was one of the foremost publishers of botanical prints and Sydenham Edwards and James Sowerby were among the botanical engravers who produced the plates from which the prints were made.

Each print was carefully colored by hand with watercolor or gouache with the colors mixed and compared to the exact specimen from which the plates were made.

This was the same process used by James Audubon in creating his famous prints of birds, and James Sowerby is sometimes called the Audubon of botany. His botanical prints brought him fame and prosperity in his lifetime, and are now treasured by collectors around the world.

Currently, botanical prints are increasingly popular and many decorators are using them to create groupings (and sometimes whole walls) to accent garden rooms, country kitchens and libraries. Framed, or unframed, these are colorful additions to any room.

Antique shops and galleries are featuring them.

One of Grosse Pointe's most knowledgeable botanical print enthusiasts is Marlene Hamel. If you'd like to know more about them, or how and where to start your own collection, call her at 884-7550.

There is an enormous amount of symbolism connected with flowers. In all ages, flowers have been used to signify such qualities as purity, love, constancy, faith and hope. Every country has its significant flowers and most cultures have a flower calendar for which certain blooms represent the different months of the year and the cycles of planting and harvest with their attendant festivals.

In art, flowers have important significance. During the Renaissance, the carnation, or "pink" as it was then called, signified betrothal. In portraits of the period, many show the subject holding a single carnation, or show one carnation in a vase in the foreground to indicate the occasion was an engagement.

Flowers form the background designs of medieval tapestries from all the countries of Europe, and lace, which was made in Spain, France, Belgium and Switzerland during the 16th and 17th centuries, is filled with flower motifs. In India the lotus flower holds a prominent place in art and in sacred writings.

The Victorians developed a language of flowers which everyone understood. The recipient of a bouquet would know at a glance whether the sender was suffering from jealousy or gratitude or love or despair. The type of flower and its color were the key symbols.

Many charming little books were published depicting the flower language in steel engravings tinted with watercolor (botanical prints in a different context) with equally flowery text. They, too, are collectors' items today.

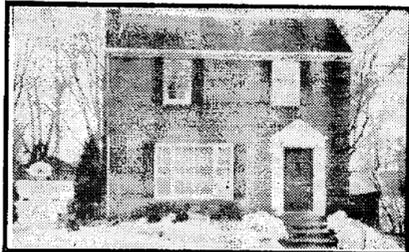

Flower shapes appear in the patterns of classic American patchwork quilts, in the lovely silvercrafts of India, and of southwest Native Americans. The peasant embroideries of Eastern Europe and the beadwork of Eastern Woodland Indians, especially that of the Leni Lenape tribe, and the flower medallions of Irish lace have much in common.

One of the common meeting grounds for people all over the world has for centuries been a love of flowers. Nothing really changes over time, after all.

School days

Dads experienced the sights, sounds and activities of their pre-kindergarten children as part of University Liggett School's annual "Pre-K Fathers Night" last month. For about 10 years, the pre-kindergarten classes have hosted their fathers by baking them a special snack and creating artwork and other masterpieces that serve as mementos of their time together.

At the left, Thomas Beck and his son, Evan, demonstrate teamwork by making a pine cone bird feeder.

Gardening: Good all the way around

When times are tough, many families start to cut down on outside leisure activities. Instead of going out to the movies or for a bite to eat, many Americans choose inexpensive activities they can do at home.

Once such activity — gardening — can help save a little money and take a step toward improving the environment at the same time.

And planting a garden offers other benefits. It can provide good physical exercise and save money on the family food bill. Gardening also is one activity in which the whole family can participate.

With a little planning and care — and a small investment

— a garden can provide months of enjoyment.

Having a successful garden does not require extensive knowledge — or a green thumb. Here are some simple tips beginning gardeners need to follow:

- Use composts, mulches and organic fertilizers to help soil stay healthy. Good soil is essential to the growth of any plant because it holds vegetation in place while retaining moisture and nutrients for it to use.

- Prune plants by removing dead stems and leaves. It is important to the development and maintenance of your garden. By cutting away diseased areas and thinning out sections to permit more sunlight, flowers will continue to blossom and provide plenty of opportunities for photos.

- Add to the look of the garden by using a trellis or night-lighting. Stone statues and strategically placed benches will also add to the design of your yard.

- Keep records of your horticultural successes and failures. If a particular plant blooms well in your garden, take a photo of it and keep it in a journal for future reference. If a flower doesn't grow well, keeping a photo of it will help keep you from repeating the mistake.

Flower, garden show shifts to Washtenaw

A pond blooming with water lilies, a moss bog, a southwestern cacti garden and nearly 100 other exhibits will replace horses and antiques April 2-5 at the Washtenaw Farm Council Grounds, the new site of the Ann Arbor Flower and Garden Show.

Sponsored by the University of Michigan's Matthaei Botanical Gardens, the third annual flower and garden show has changed its location from Yost Ice Arena on the U-M campus to the fairgrounds on Ann Arbor/Saline Road.

Show planners say the six-building complex with large parking areas should comfortably accommodate the exhibits and garden marketplace as well as an expected crowd of 20,000.

This year's theme, "A Touch of Country," capitalizes on the rustic location, which is complete with pole barns for farm animals.

"There is no way to mask the casual atmosphere, so we decided to turn it into an asset with a playful country theme," said Michael M. Hommel, flower show designer and superintendent of the Matthaei gardens. "The roomy barns provide ample space for visitors to walk, push strollers or just sit and enjoy the beauty around them." Since last June, staffers have been designing and constructing the show's elaborate staging. Visitors will enter through a grove of conifers and stroll along sod-covered country lanes edged with goldenrod and authentic remains of Americana such as "Burma Shave" signs. As building connectors, the lanes will be exhibits themselves of native and alien plants seen along rural roads during each of the four seasons.

"We're trying to reduce the Clydesdale scale of the barns while using every opportunity to incorporate greenery into the staging," Hommel said. "Our challenge has been to create an outdoor environment with indoor comforts, such as heating and rest rooms."

Judith Corkran Katch, flower show manager, describes this year's show as "definitely more family-oriented than previous shows." Strollers are permitted for the first time and the price of children's tickets has been dropped from $6 to $3. Several children's categories have been added to the horticulture and design classes, including "garbage gardening" for plants grown from kitchen refuse like avocado pits and potatoes.

Children and adults alike should appreciate the colorful windmill and animal sculptures to be interspersed among the conifers near the entrance. Sculpted by Jerome Kamrowski, the nationally known abstract expressionist and professor emeritus in the U-M School of Art, the slightly whimsical pieces are Kamrowski's donation to the flower show.

New this year is a landscape exhibit entered by the Ann Arbor Parks and Recreation Department that demonstrates how city volunteers can create an "island of green" within an urban environment. A lily pond under an arched bridgeway will represent water gardening, another first-time landscape exhibit. While landscape exhibits vary widely, major awards go only to those that display predominantly Michigan plant material, according to Katch.

As in past years, design classes require entrants to interpret themes such as "Up a Lazy River" and "Country Kitchen" by building upon one or two "props." For example, Hommel's staff is applying the finishing touches to the bow halves of wooden rowboats for the "Up a Lazy River" category. Exhibitors start with the boats and a few cattails, then fill in the rest of the scene with their own plant materials, accessories and imaginations.

In addition to the landscape exhibits, design class arrangements and horticultural specimens, the show offers lectures and workshops by educational and environmental groups and a marketplace of plants and gardening accessories.

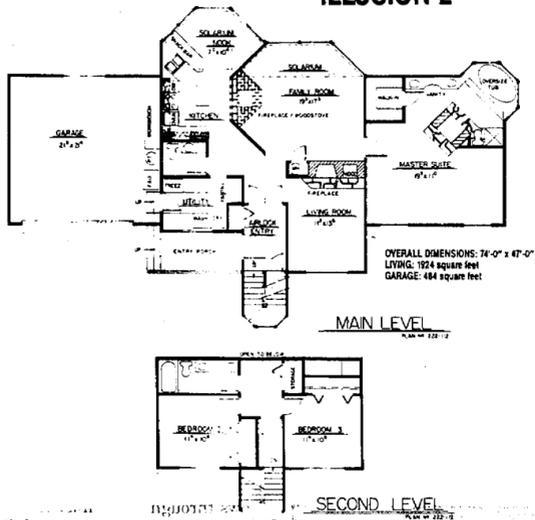

Amateur gardeners and first-time exhibitors are again invited to join in the competition. Prospective exhibitors should call 998-7061 for information about consultants, entry forms and other details.

Advance tickets are $6 for adults ($7 at the gate) and $3 for children age 12 and under. To charge tickets by phone, call 998-7002 or buy walk-in tickets from the Matthaei gardens at 1800 Dixboro Road, Ann Arbor, 10 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. Monday-Sunday.

More than 400 volunteers are contributing to this year's show, an annual fundraiser to help the gardens maintain and improve its exhibits and educational programs.

ILLUSION 2

House has height, space

The Illusion 2 is a striking home whose combination of vertical and horizontal lines allows the structure to complement and blend into almost any landscape. The soaring center section of the home almost demands use of bold-grained woods which can take advantage of the height and space offered by this design.

The main floor has a large airlock entry, featuring a coat closet and an open stairwell in its own two-story bay window. To the visitor's right is a living room with large window and fireplace with woodbox.

To the left is a hallway leading to a utility room with pantry space, a freezer, a washer and dryer, and an exit to the garage. Also off the hallway are a half-bath and the stunning large kitchen, which features a center island, a snack bar, and a solarium/dining nook in an expanded bay-window design.

Off the family room is the master suite, offering an oversized sleeping area, a large walk-in closet and a see-through fireplace with hearth openings into the sleeping area and the private bath. The bath features double wash basins with a central vanity, a separate shower, and a raised oversized soaking tub in its own glass-encased bay window.

The stairwell opens onto an airlock landing above. Just ahead on the landing is a balcony overlooking the family room solarium below. The landing also features a large storage closet. There are two bedrooms on this floor, both with large windows and large closets. A full bath with double basins is also offered.

The Illusion 2 is a unique home in natural style. The recessed main entry offers protection from the weather, and provides yet another feature.

Steeply sloping roofs allow for maximum drainage and minimum snow build-up. Compact and comfortable, the Illusion 2 is truly a "dream home".

For a study kit of the Illusion 2 (222-112), send $7.50 to Today's Home, P.O. Box 2832-T Eugene, Ore. 97402. Be sure to specify plan name and number when ordering.

LOVABLE dogs and cats need good homes. For adoption information call: Northern Suburbs Animal Welfare League Volunteer. 754-8741, 463-7422.

PLEASE DON'T DELAY! SPAY OR NEUTER YOUR PET TODAY!

An altered pet is a healthier and happier companion. Also, it spares you the grief and pain of having puppies and kittens destroyed when no homes can be found. Countless numbers of sweet, innocent little ones are euthanized every day in shelters across the country because a pet wasn't spayed or neutered. If we cut down on the numbers of unwanted litters being born, we will also cut down on the number of abandoned, lost and unwanted animals to destroy.

HOW TO USE THE HOMEBUYER GRID

Select your preferred location, price or style of home. The listings will show the address, bedroom/bath, description of home, price, and telephone number. REALTORS and OPEN SUNDAYS will be indicated in bold.

Welcome to the Real Estate Resource!

In an effort to make your search for that next house easier, the Grosse Pointe News is initiating a new page where you can find in a few minutes what the market is offering today, in the five Grosse Pointes, St. Clair Shores, Harper Woods, Detroit and other municipalities. This source will pinpoint what the up-to-date price of a property is, what are its features and when it will be available for viewing.
