

Diving in Lake St. Clair can offer untold treasures

By Ronald J. Bernas
Staff Writer

Turn-of-the-century Grosse Pointe was a thriving port as docks stretched hundreds of feet into the lake. Today, an important part of the history of this area lies at the end of those docks. It's a part of Grosse Pointe history not often seen or recorded.

But it's a part of history that the Sehoian brothers are slowly salvaging.

Alan and David Sehoian have been diving since they were in their early teens, learning the basics from their father, Leon, an expert diver who at one time gave diving lessons locally.

The Sehoians, including their father, have unearthed much of the lake's lore, in little pieces, during their diving excursions.

"A lot of people think it would be boring diving in Lake St. Clair," Leon said. "But it's one of the best places to dive in the world, and I've been diving everywhere."

In addition to the mostly worthless coins they find, there's a wealth of artifacts to be mined, such as a campaign button from a long-forgotten candidate that reads "Landon — Deeds not Deficits." There are marbles, long-lost rings and other mementos from a time gone by that someone must have mourned as they sank out of sight to the lake bottom.

And then there are bottles. The history of local brewing and bottling companies can be found underwater. Torpedo bottles, so named because of their rounded bottoms and thin body, litter the lake bed. They were made at the turn of the century and filled with soda pop.

A cobalt blue bottle bears the name Hays Hair Health. Such a bottle, in top condition can bring good money from a collector. Another bottle with the name A. Funke raises questions as to what was in it. Many bottles bear dates — some going back to the time of the Civil War. And they've found full Stroh bottles dating from the early part of the century. Leon Sehoian has found the same type of bottle on the bottom of Lake St. Clair and on the bottom of the sea in the Caribbean — testimony to America's maritime prowess.

Prohibition also left its mark on the bottom of the lake in a .38 caliber handgun that was used around that time and in the bottles of liquor — many of which are still full of whiskey, scotch, gin and whatever else that was smuggled across the lake from Canada and tossed overboard when Coast Guard boats got close.

In the lake just off St. Clair Shores there's a sunken barge full of toilets, bathtubs and other hardware that was most likely going to be installed in Grosse Pointe houses, but never made it. There are other wrecks where only the ribs of the ship's hull remain.

The most disturbing finds? Because the three Sehoian's are members of the Grosse Pointe Marine Police Rescue volunteer squad, the corpses they've found have that honor.

And then there was the time one of their diving partners

$1 increase set for basic cable service on Grosse Pointe Cable

By Jerome Allotta
Special Writer

Cable TV service will cost $1 a month more in Harper Woods and the Grosse Pointes starting next month.

The Grosse Pointe Cable board has approved the increase, effective April 1. Subscribers will be charged $20.95 a month for basic cable. Basic service cost $7.50 in 1980 when the company was formed.

The increase had some residents griping at a recent Harper Woods City Council meeting.

"I'm sick and tired of these costs always falling on the little guy," said one resident.

Mary Schultz, operations manager at Grosse Pointe Cable, said the new rate reflects the normal increase in cable operating costs.

Schultz said that sports channels — such as ESPN and TNT — are being charged more for the broadcast rights to games and events, and consequently the cost is passed on to the consumer.

"It's kind of like a domino effect," she said. "None of what (cable networks) do is given to them free, and the cost is passed on to us and we pass it on to the customers."

Similarly, the Cable News Network (CNN), whose popularity has soared since Operation Desert Storm, has raised its cost to cable buyers within the last year.

Schultz explained that cable pirating also contributes to higher costs for subscribers. The Grosse Pointe Cable board estimates that 10 percent of people who receive cable are stealing it in one way or another. Most cable theft is done by basic subscribers who manipulate home cable converters so that they can receive premium channels.

"Although there are people receiving cable from the pole that they are not paying for, in our system the high percentage (of theft) is from movie channels, because they are much easier to steal than climbing a pole and hooking yourself up," she said.

The board estimates that such pilfering costs Grosse Pointe Cable $400,000 a year.

Because Grosse Pointe Cable is not an addressable system — meaning cable converters cannot be controlled from the cable company's offices — boxes can be rigged at home through various methods by the subscriber to tune in premium channels.

An addressable system — which would require a massive revamping of Grosse Pointe Cable's technology, including the wiring to homes — would be very costly, Schultz said.

She said there will be an emphasis over the next month or so on heightening cable subscribers' awareness of how cable theft affects their own pockets.

"(Cable theft) is a felony in Michigan, but something that isn't taken too seriously," she said.

Manipulating cable boxes and selling them is a lucrative — but illegal — business. Last year a Michigan man was imprisoned for it.

Harper Woods city manager James Leidlein said that people who are upset about cable increases ought to write or call Congressman Dennis Hertel. Bills pending in both the U.S. House and Senate, if passed, would restore some federal control over the cable industry.

Meanwhile, the Federal Communications Commission is considering relaxing restrictions that prevent phone companies from competing with the cable industry. Some say that would likely drive down cable rates or, at least, keep them at present levels.

Congressman Hertel's local office is at 18927 Kelly Road, Detroit, 48224. His local phone number is 526-5900.

Park garage razed by fire

An unattended kerosene heater is being blamed for a two-alarm blaze Feb. 26 that destroyed a garage in the 1100 block of Yorkshire in Grosse Pointe Park.

Firefighters responded to a report of an explosion and fire at 7:13 p.m. The resident had lighted a kerosene heater in the garage about 45 minutes earlier and then had gone into the house.

Grosse Pointe City firefighters helped put out the blaze. Two cars in the garage were also destroyed.

Pointer of Interest Thomas Arbaugh

By Margie Reins Smith
Feature Editor

When he retires, Tom Arbaugh is going to write a play based on Grosse Pointe history. He's got several file folders crammed with hand-written notes about his main character, Ferdinand Rivard, a French farmer who actually lived in Grosse Pointe during the second half of the 19th century.

"I've found 63 characteristics so far," Arbaugh said, "based on historical information about Rivard. Like ... he stuffed his horse's ears with rags and tied the ears down, so the horse would concentrate."

Arbaugh concentrates on the play while he's running around his Grosse Pointe Park neighborhood.

"I run 50 miles a week," he said. "I've run practically every street in Grosse Pointe. I love the architecture on some of these streets — every home is different."

Arbaugh has run in the Boston Marathon, the New Orleans Marathon and four times in the Free Press Marathon.

History, however, is his forte. He's been teaching history for 32 years, the last 27 as a professor of American history at Macomb Community College. He's especially interested in the history of Grosse Pointe and Detroit.

For the last 13 years he's also taught a course called History of Technology, an exploration of the inventions that have contributed to the industrial wealth of the United States — like the steam engine, electricity, the automobile, telephone and telegraph.

Many of his students are not well-prepared for college work, he said. "They feel cheated. They want to do better than they're doing."

Some students are mothers who are resuming their educations after their children are grown or after their children are in school full time.

"Returning Moms. We love them, and boy, do they work," Arbaugh said. "They're the best students I have."

Arbaugh blames local school systems for producing high school graduates who can't write and don't know how to study. The students use the expression "mixmaster" to describe their own research methods.

"This means the kid gets sent to the library to look up some information," Arbaugh said. "He leaves the classroom and the teacher, goes down the hall to the library where he finds some information in an encyclopedia here — some information in a book there — some more information in another encyclopedia over there. He copies it all down and mixes it all up. He goes back to class and reads it out loud. The teacher sits and listens."

"I'm very opinionated," Arbaugh said with a smile.

"There are always exceptions, but high school kids seldom have to write papers that are truly corrected for grammar, spelling and so on."

Arbaugh has written dozens of articles about 19th century Grosse Pointe residents — the Joys, for instance, and the McMillans, the Newberrys, the Rivards and the Morans. Many of the articles appeared in Heritage magazine.

"There shouldn't be any difference between writing a scholarly history article and writing an article about history for a magazine," he said, explaining that the material should be presented in an interesting manner, with anecdotes with the reader in mind.

Arbaugh's most recent project was a 100-plus page history of Grosse Pointe Memorial Church, one of the church's 125th anniversary projects.

He started working on the book three years ago, and has logged hundreds of hours poring over the Detroit Public Library's Burton Collection. He also went through the church's archives.

"I read every page of every record of the Session and the trustees. I read all the Sunday

Thomas Arbaugh works at a manual typewriter in his tiny office at Macomb Community College. He teaches American history and a course he developed called History of Technology. He is especially interested in Grosse Pointe history and plans to write a play about an old French farmer who lived in the area in the 1800s.

bulletins and Carillons (Memorial's monthly newsletter)," he said.

It paid off with some fascinating tidbits about the church and about Grosse Pointe in general. For instance:

- The history of Memorial Church is not exclusively about rich people, he said. Rich people ran the church, but they went to great lengths to include others in church activities. He was also surprised at how religious most of the members were. "Many had nearly perfect church attendance," he said.

- Arbaugh may have found the oldest link between Grosse Pointe and the color combination pink and green. "We always hear that Grosse Pointers' colors are pink and green," he said with a smile. "Well, in the early 1920s, a group of young women at the church selected pink and green for their colors."

- "Grosse Pointe grew a great deal in the 1930s, during the Depression," he said. "And there was another incredible growth spurt in the late 40s, yet church donations declined. Contributions picked up again in the 50s."

- Arbaugh was impressed by the Women's Association of the church, which he said was actively involved in charity work in Detroit for many decades. In the days when women were most often stay-at-home wives and mothers, Arbaugh said, "The Women's Association started and supported such institutions as the symphony, the DIA, the Red Cross and local organizations like the Neighborhood Club and Cottage Hospital. During World War I, these women met troop trains, provided coffee and doughnuts, even gave dances and parties for the soldiers. These women of means were conscientious."

- "I think women were aware of how sitting at home could destroy them. So they did volunteer work. Sometimes 'volunteer' has a tinny sound, but it shouldn't."

The play that is taking shape through notes and sketches and dialogue in Arbaugh's mind is about a French farmer who lived in Detroit in the 1800s and died in 1893. Ferdinand Rivard (for whom the street in Grosse Pointe was named) owned 416 acres of farmland which stretched from the shores of Lake St. Clair to Gratiot Avenue.

When he talks about the play, Arbaugh leans back in his chair, stretches, clasps his hands behind his head...

Arbaugh uses different voices as he tries out lines from the script.

"Rivard was an interesting man because he represented the end of an era. He was lost in time. He was an old-time French farmer. A good farmer. A good businessman," Arbaugh said.

"He saw Grosse Pointe changing from a French farming community to a summer retreat for wealthy Detroiters and their families. He saw the simple life of the French farmer being replaced by a new kind of wealth and power and social status.

"Ferdinand Rivard had the longest will in Michigan's history. He disinherited most of his family, except for two sons. The rest of the children fought the will."

Arbaugh is particularly proud of his own children and his wife, Shirley. Framed photographs and family mementos are prominently displayed in the small, book-filled office he shares with another professor.

His oldest son Michael, 28, is a stylist for Ford Motor Co. Jeff, 27, works in the controller's office of Manufacturer's National Bank. Tom, 23, is a graduate of the naval academy and holds a degree in aerospace engineering, and his daughter Leslie, 17, is a senior at Grosse Pointe South High School.

"She is going to Michigan State University to study journalism and telecommunications. If she listens to her Dad, she'll get a solid background in history and literature," he said.

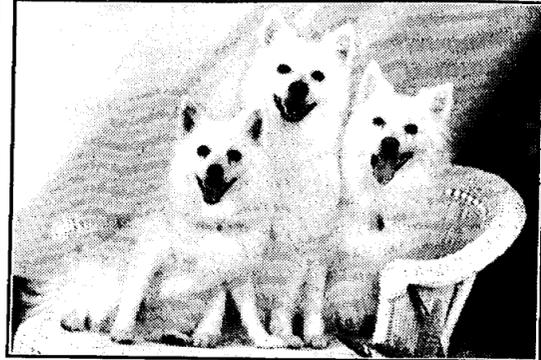

"My wife runs her own business — interior decorating. She's so successful, she's made our life comfortable."

Arbaugh graduated from Southeastern High School and earned a bachelor's degree from Michigan State University and a master's degree in history from Wayne State University. Shirley Arbaugh is a graduate of Denby High School and Wayne State University. All four young Arbaughs attended Grosse Pointe South.

"You can't get more local than the Arbaughs," he said.

"I love Grosse Pointe. It's still a community. In Michigan, there's probably no place like it."

Sloping sewer project outlined for Woods residents

By Donna Walker
Staff Writer

Starting this summer, a new sewer line will be installed along Cook Road in Grosse Pointe Woods to help alleviate pollution in the Milk River.

Representatives from the Wayne County Division of Public Works (DPW) and the Milk River Intercountry Drain Board's engineers outlined the project for residents last week at an informational meeting at city hall.

Jeanna Paluzzi, compliance director for the Wayne County DPW, said that the 54-inch-wide sewer will be located on the south side of Cook Road, stretching from Chalfonte to Mack.

Construction of the sewer will begin at Chalfonte and proceed westward. However, work won't start until June 15, after the two nearby schools — Monteith elementary and University Liggett School — have closed for the summer, Paluzzi said.

Paluzzi said that the sewer and temporary road repairs from Chalfonte west to Holiday Road will be completed by Aug. 22, before school resumes in September.

Work will then begin on the section west of Holiday Road to Mack. Construction of the sewer and repairs to this section are scheduled to begin Aug. 22 and end in late October or early November.

Residents at the meeting asked how the construction would affect traffic.

The contractor won't have to tear up the entire south side of Cook Road to install the sewer, they were told.

Rather, workers will drill into the road at seven points, creating shafts. Then they will tunnel underground, connecting the shafts.

The roadway will only be broken at the shaft sites. The north side of the road will remain intact.

Traffic on Cook may have to be limited to one lane, the Milk River engineers said, depending on the size of the shafts that are needed. They won't know that until they receive the contractor's work specifications, which may not be available for two or three months.

During construction, parking on Cook will be prohibited. Residents will be asked to park on side streets instead.

Most residents who have garages facing Cook should be able to get into them during construction. However, there may be a few residents who will be denied access to their garages for up to three weeks, depending on the size of the shafts that are needed, the engineers said.

The shafts will be covered, fenced and lighted at night for safety, they said.

In 1993, the drain board will have the entire width (north and south sides) of Cook Road repaved, as requested by Woods officials. The contractor will also place catch basins on the side of the road. During this time, there will always be at least one entrance open to Ida Lane. While the intersection of Ida Lane East is being repaved, the intersection at Ida Lane West will remain open, and vice versa.

By city ordinance, construction hours are limited to: 7:30 a.m. to 6 p.m. Monday-Saturday; and noon to 5 p.m. Sunday. The contractors will also clean the road every day, in compliance with the Woods' ordinance regarding dirt and noise pollution.

Paluzzi said the project should be no noisier than the pile-driving that took place last year for the new retention basin being built behind the Milk River Pump Station, and that no complaints were received from residents in that area regarding the noise.

Before construction starts, utility wires on the south side of Cook will have to be moved. One woman asked how long residents will be without electricity and telephone service during the move.

An engineer said that Detroit Edison and Michigan Bell have not been able to provide him with that answer yet, but that he expected there would be no disruption at all.

Wayne County will videotape the homes of residents who live along Cook Road before construction begins. A copy will be given to the resident and the county will keep a copy.

That way, if a resident claims the construction caused structural damage to his or her house, the Milk River Intercountry Drain Board and the resident can "enter into negotiations with the same information," Paluzzi said.

A resident may ask to have the interior of his or her home videotaped, in addition to the exterior.

"It's usually the basement and first floor walls that are videotaped, not your china," Paluzzi said. "We're more interested in the support structure of the house, and what kind of shape it's in."

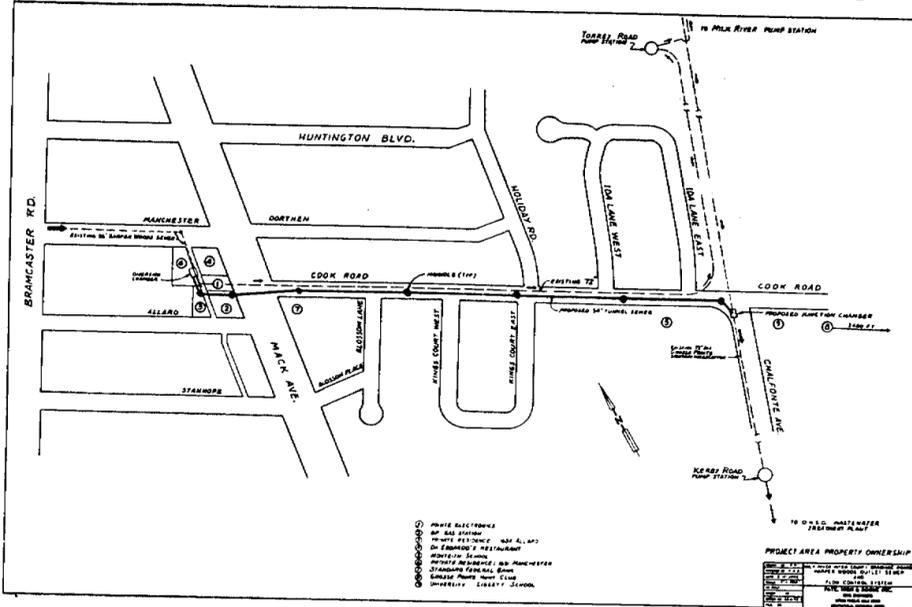

A homeowner asked Paluzzi how long the county will keep the tapes on file.

"I don't know," Paluzzi said. "We haven't really discussed it. I guess we'll have to get legal counsel as to how long we should keep them, to find out how long the statutes of limitations are."

As part of the construction, a shaft will be sunk in the alley between Pointe Electronics and BP Gas Station on the west side of Mack, between Allard and Manchester.

Another shaft will be sunk in the easement of a private residence at 1684 Allard. Also, an underground diversion chamber, an underground metering station and an above-ground power panel will be placed in the alley between Da Edoardo's Restaurant on Mack and the private residence at 1691 Manchester.

These homes and businesses will also be videotaped.

When the resident at 1692 Allard said that his house and garage were probably closer to the diversion chamber than the house at 1691 Manchester, Paluzzi agreed to have his house videotaped, too.

The owner of Pointe Electronics said that she was completely in the dark about what was being planned for the alley by her business.

Paluzzi said that's because the drain board has been talking only with the owner of the property so far. She said she would set up a meeting between the business owner, the property owner and the drain board's engineers soon to discuss the plans.

Woods Councilman Peter Gilezan, who was in the audience, said he was upset that the drain board had not notified the business owner of what was happening, and that the business owner should be apprised of all future plans.

"That's what we're going to do," Paluzzi said. "She promised to get answers to all the questions raised at the meeting and to present them at another informational session before construction starts."

She also said that the drain board will talk to the administration and parent organizations at Monteith and University Liggett School to alert them to possible traffic re-routing during construction.

The new sewer will hook up with a 36-inch-wide existing sewer, called the Harper Woods Sewer, at the diversion chamber that will be built in the alley behind Da Edoardo's.

The existing sewer carries human waste and stormwater from Harper Woods to a 72-inch-wide sewer that lies under the north side of Cook Road. That sewer makes a left at Chalfonte, carrying the wastewater to the Torrey Road Pump Station.

From there, the sewage is pumped to the Milk River Pump Station on Marter Road near Parkway. The Milk River Pump Station sends the sewage back down Chalfonte in a 72-inch sewer called the Grosse Pointe Interceptor. The interceptor, with the help of a pump station at Kerby Road and Chalfonte in the Farms, sends the sewage to the Detroit Wastewater Sanitary District wastewater treatment plant.

During wet weather, such as in a rainstorm or in the spring when the snow melts, ground water pours into the Grosse Pointe Interceptor, filling it to capacity. When this happens, the wastewater backs up at the Milk River Pump Station and is stored in an uncovered retention basin that can hold up to 3.8 million gallons. When capacity becomes available in the Grosse Pointe Interceptor, the stored water is pumped back into the system.

However, the 3.8 million gallon retention basin is not adequate. In the past, when the basin reached its capacity, untreated wastewater would be discharged into the Milk River drain and Lake St. Clair.

Since the construction of a treatment facility at the Milk River Pump Station last year, wastewater is chlorinated before it is discharged into the river and drain. Other improvements are being made to the system to reduce the number of overflows to 10 or 12 a year by 1994.

Those improvements include the construction of a covered 18.8-million-gallon, two-chamber retention basin to replace the existing basin; disconnection of downspouts in Harper Woods, St. Clair Shores and Grosse Pointe Woods (which Woods officials have opposed); and the installation of the new sewer under Cook Road.

The new sewer will take the wastewater from the Harper Woods Sewer directly to the Grosse Pointe Interceptor, bypassing the Milk River Pump Station. The new sewer will slope, accomplishing its task via gravity.

For more information about the new sewer or any phase of the Milk River cleanup project, call Hank Lundquist of the Wayne County DPW at 224-3625. The Wayne County DPW and the Milk River Intercountry Drain Board are working jointly on the project.

Pointes give $500 in continuing battle against gypsy moths.

By Donna Walker
Staff Writer

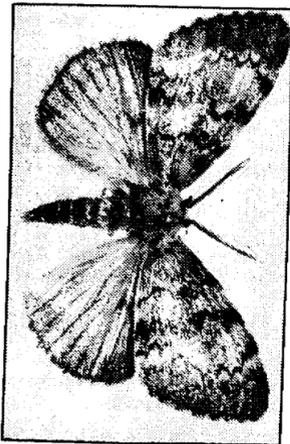

The Grosse Pointe Woods City Council last week gave $100 to the Shade Tree Council for the purpose of tracking the spread of gypsy moths in the area.

Donna Weinle, treasurer of the Shade Tree Council, said that the four other Grosse Pointes have also chipped in $100 each for the program.

The Shade Tree Council will use the $500 to pay Dr. Stuart Gage, a forest entomologist at Michigan State University, for his consulting services.

Gage enters into his computer the number of gypsy moths that are trapped in the Grosse Pointes each year and creates charts and graphs showing the most heavily infested areas. He then advises the Shade Tree Council about what steps should be taken to limit the spread, and keeps them informed of the gypsy moth situation throughout the state and country.

A non-profit organization, the Adult male

Shade Tree Council is dedicated to preserving the Pointes' urban forest and educating the public about the proper care of trees.

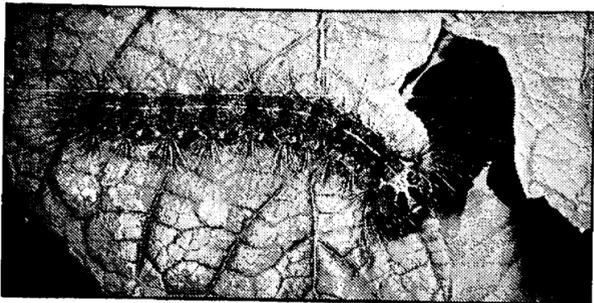

It started trapping gypsy moths in the Woods and the Shores in the summer of 1989, after one of its members learned that the Michigan Department of Agriculture was going to set up only one trap in the Grosse Pointe area, near Mack and Seven Mile in Detroit.

"We didn't think that one trap could adequately tell us how bad the situation was here," said Jean Rice, Grosse Pointe Woods' representative on the Shade Tree Council.

When the council contacted the Michigan Department of Agriculture to find out how to start its own trapping program, the group was put in touch with Gage.

He explained that a trap should be installed every so many miles, and toured the Grosse Pointes in October 1989. At his suggestion, all of the Pointes and Harper Woods were included in the trapping program the following year.

The Shade Tree Council paid Gage $500 in 1990 out of its dues money for making a grid map of the five Grosse Pointes and Harper Woods. The map was used to determine the placement of the traps.

Other than that, Gage has not charged the Shade Tree Council for his work; the state picked up the tab. However, Gage recently lost his state funding.

"We asked him how much it would cost to have him continue to work for us, and he said he'd do it for $500," Rice said.

The fee is reasonable, she said, because Gage now compiles the information on his own time, at his home, using his elaborate computer system.

Gypsy moths are insects that defoliate trees and shrubs. Hardwoods, such as oak trees, are their favorites, according to the United States Department of Agriculture.

Adult females lay their egg masses in mid July to August, attaching them to trees, stones, walls, logs and other outdoor objects. Each female can lay only one egg mass, which contains up to 1,000 eggs. The fuzzy egg masses are light tan or yellow.

Unless there is a really cold snap in the fall, the eggs survive the winter. Brown, hairy caterpillars hatch from the egg masses in late April or early May. The caterpillars are easy to identify when about half-grown because they have four or five pairs of blue dots and six pairs of red dots on their backs. Mature caterpillars are 1 1/2 to 2 1/2 inches long.

They feed on leaves at night and seek cool protection during the day in the bark of the tree or bush. When they eat, they defecate at the same time. In areas of heavy infestation, such as Midland, a person can hear the caterpillars munching and the sound of their feces — which are the size of peppercorns — falling to the ground.

The caterpillars produce a foul odor and their feces can cover everything: houses, sidewalks, patios, and swimming pools. Some roads have had to be closed in heavily infested areas because the caterpillars had made them too slippery for traffic. People, especially children, can be allergic to the caterpillar feces, and the defoliation of trees can cause up to a 25 percent decrease in property values, Rice said.

In late June or early July, the caterpillars enter the pupal or cocoon stage. Ten to 14 days later, they emerge as moths.

The females are white with a wingspread of about 2 inches, but they can't fly. The males have dark-brown forewings and a 1 1/2 inch wingspan. They fly in zig-zag patterns, and can only be identified as gypsy moths by their antennae, which look like combs.

The moths don't eat. Their sole purpose is to mate. The female emits a pheromone, or smell, that can attract male moths from miles around.

The earlier a community knows that it has a gypsy moth problem, the better it can be controlled, Rice said, explaining the importance of tracking the insects.

Right now, the Grosse Pointes and Harper Woods do not have a serious gypsy moth problem, Rice said. However, she said there are a couple of hot spots — one in the Farms and one on the Grosse Pointe Woods/St. Clair Shores border that should be controlled. If no action is taken, the Pointes could have a major infestation in two years that could only be checked by aerial spraying, Rice said.

In the Shade Tree Council's trapping/tracking program, each participating city places a trap in the same designated areas each spring. The trap looks like a green milk carton with slits in its sides and a wax paper porch over the slits. A pesticide lines the bottom of the carton, and there is a pheromone inside that causes the male moths to fly through the slits into the trap.

The traps are taken down after Labor Day and the number of moths inside them is recorded.

If there are 100 moths in a trap, it's a warning that if the problem is not checked with ground spraying, the gypsy moth population may be so large the following year that aerial spraying is the only recourse, Rice said.

Grosse Pointe City has five gypsy moth traps. In 1990, a total of 37 moths were caught, with the highest number in one trap being 17. In 1991, a total of 106 moths were caught, with the highest number in one trap being 39.

Grosse Pointe Farms has 12 traps. In 1990, a total of 156 moths were caught, with the highest number in one trap being 42. In 1991, a total of 123 moths were caught with the most in one trap being 31. However, one trap was unaccounted for; it was either stolen or blew away.

Grosse Pointe Park has 12 traps. In 1990, a total of 105 moths were caught, with the most in one trap being 16. Last year, a total of 154 moths were caught, with the highest number in one trap being 32.

Grosse Pointe Shores has seven traps. In 1990, 51 moths were caught with the most in one trap being 12. Last year, a total of 97 moths were caught with the most in one trap being 25.

Grosse Pointe Woods has 15 traps. In 1990, a total of 116 moths were caught, with the most in one trap being 15. Last year, a total of 196 moths were caught with the most in one trap being 22.

Harper Woods has 11 traps, and in 1990, a total of 68 moths were caught, with the highest number in one trap being 11. Last year, a total of 51 moths were caught, with the highest number in a trap being 10.

Rice said that Harper Woods was asked to contribute money for the program this year but so far it has not.

Egg masses can be destroyed by scraping them off the place to which they are attached and dunking them in gasoline or certain pesticides, Rice said. However, the Shade Tree Council asks residents not to touch insects. Rather, the council would like anyone who sees a gypsy moth egg mass, caterpillar, cocoon or adult to contact his or her city hall.

The city will then contact the Shade Tree Council and send someone out to investigate. The location of gypsy moths — whatever their stage of development — is important in determining the origin of an infestation, so it's important that the insects are not moved or destroyed until an investigator sees them, Rice said.

Laser surgery is today's gentler way to eliminate kidney stones.

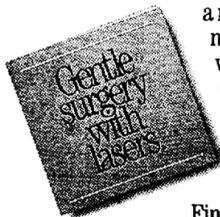

Kidney stones can now be treated without all of the discomfort and recovery time associated with conventional surgery.

Specially trained doctors at St. John Laser Center of Southeast Michigan are using gentle pulses of laser light to fragment kidney stones and allow them to pass naturally.

The procedure is relatively easy and offers a much quicker return to normal activities than with many other methods of treatment. In fact, many patients are discharged the same day and fully recuperated within 24 hours.

We still need more industry diversification

For years, promoters of Michigan have been stressing the importance of industry diversification to limit the effects of the auto industry's cycle of boom-and-bust.

Now at last the state is reaping the harvest from its failure to put that recommendation into effect.

As a consequence, Michigan is taking by far the hardest hit of any state from GM's latest efforts at downsizing to eliminate its excess production capacity. Michigan's job losses are estimated at 9,100 of the 16,000 total in the dozen plants to be closed.

Like the rest of Michigan, the Pointes will feel the impact of the plant closings in terms of job, business and investment losses from plant closings and the inevitable decline in industries serving the Big Three.

Additional effects will include tax revenue losses for the state government and its services, including the public schools in communities throughout the metropolitan area and the entire state.

Opinion

It's easy to find scapegoats for what happened. But it's more difficult to find solutions that do not in the end come down to the same old recommendation: the state's need for more diversification, plus a new demand to improve productivity and the product at the present auto plants.

In a larger sense, it is the enlargement of the world economy that is chiefly responsible for GM's plight — and Michigan's. It is no longer good enough for the Big Three to try to compete from a purely American base. Now they must seek to lead in an international market that is full of new competitors.

GM came late to downsizing that Ford and Chrysler already had undertaken. Perhaps its leaders were too captivated by the benefits of short-term profits — and too little interested in long-range planning. For whatever reason, it was obvious that GM had to cut back sharply when losses hit a record $4.5 billion in 1991.

We might argue that GM should not have taken so much production out of Michigan and cost this state so many jobs in the current cutback. Yet it is true that older facilities tend to be less efficient and older workers tend to be less willing to accommodate themselves to demands for greater flexibility in work rules.

The United Auto Workers complains bitterly that the company is seeking to gain union concessions on plant-by-plant comparisons that they claim violates the UAW contract.

Such a comparison apparently contributed to the victory of the Arlington, Texas, plant over Willow Run. Yet GM cannot be faulted for seeking contract changes to improve efficiency and increase productivity in order to regain its profitability.

If the union has alternatives to achieve such goals, they, too, should be reviewed, but it is clear that GM cannot afford to stand pat in its current losing ways.

Gov. John Engler was upset with GM for failing to tip him off to the surprise decision to close Willow Run. But when he prematurely put most of the blame on the UAW — even before he had met with GM officials to get their official explanations — he was showing his frustrations, which also have been felt by UAW workers and others impacted by the closings.

Overall, it's true that GM's downsizing will have a tremendous ripple effect in all of Michigan.

The number of people on the unemployment and welfare rolls will sharply increase; business in general as well as the state and its services will be further buffeted by the continuing recession, and, worst of all, there will be a new brain drain from Michigan as the unemployed and people holding seniority seek work elsewhere.

It's not a happy prospect but the slight gain reported in domestic auto sales in mid-February offers a hint of some light at the end of the tunnel.

However, the GM downsizing again points up the importance of an all-out effort by the state and its industry, business and labor components to achieve two purposes:

Speed up industrial diversification in Michigan and at the same time improve productivity and meet the other challenges ahead in order to reduce future "Willow Run" closings to a minimum.

Hertel wants all the Pointes

Rep. Dennis Hertel, who lost Grosse Pointe City and Grosse Pointe Park to the 13th Congressional District in 1982, now wants to bring them back into his 14th District.

Hertel made his wishes known in a press release announcing he has been permitted by the U.S. District Court to intervene in the pending Michigan congressional reapportionment case.

Hertel said he filed the motion to intervene on behalf of the people of the 14th District and especially to support the reunification of the five Pointe communities into that district.

We suspect he is intervening to protect his own interests as well, since his district has been mentioned as one of those likely to be sliced up in the 1992 reapportionment that will cut two representatives from Michigan's 18.

Whatever the reasons for his intervention, we welcome the congressmen to the Pointes' reunification cause even though he often has been cited as one of those responsible for splitting the Pointes between the 13th and 14th districts in the 1982 reapportionment.

Not SMART to lose buses

SMART, the regional bus service that serves the Grosse Pointes and other suburban communities, appears to be breathing its last this month.

While steps to save SMART are still being discussed by its board of directors, it appears increasingly doubtful that sufficient funds can be obtained to keep SMART's buses running past March 27, when the agency is scheduled to close down.

SMART's directors and municipal governments in the Pointes have been among those discussing ways to prop up the agency or provide some substitute service, but so far no concrete plan has been developed.

The only optimistic note to emerge from recent board meetings has been the appointment of Michael Duggan, deputy Wayne County executive, as the agency's

New blow aimed at Belle Isle

With the city of Detroit grasping at straws to win more financial support, we suppose it was inevitable for Detroit to seek some financial return from Belle Isle.

Not satisfied with permitting the 1992 Grand Prix to be raced on the island, the city is even proposing to charge admission to the park. That alternative, along with a better idea to turn the park management over to the Huron-Clinton Metroparks, has been suggested recently.

Yet the citizens of Detroit, and the entire metro area, would suffer from any requirement for an admission fee, especially if it were imposed on children. For years, visiting the children's zoo and hiking through other park attractions were among the ways metro area residents en-

However, Hertel staff member Ray O'Malley told the Grosse Pointe News again last week that Hertel had nothing to do with the 1982 decision that put the City and the Park into the 13th District and left the Farms, Shores and Woods in the 14th.

In his release, Hertel said that "both the Republican and Democratic plans submitted to the court are seriously flawed" and thus "needlessly and arbitrarily disrupt the 14th District."

Regardless of what happened in 1982, we agree Hertel's reasoning which led him to point out two facts: "The Grosse Pointes and Harper Woods have a shared sense of community" and "There is no reason to split them up."

The fact is that the Pointes and Harper Woods not only have "a shared sense of community," as Hertel says. They also have a much greater community of interest with Detroit's other suburbs than they have with Detroit which supplies the great majority of 13th District voters.

That means that most Pointers would surely support Hertel's attempt to reunite the Pointes in the 14th District.

new general manager, succeeding James L. Aho, who resigned. Duggan, who is expected to keep his county job if a conflict of interest doesn't arise, has a reputation for getting things done.

In the past, several Pointe councilmembers have expressed general support for an area-wide tax to keep the buses running but, so far as we know, there is no current plan on the table even for such support.

Yet the demise of the SMART buses could cost the Pointes an important service for people who have been riding buses to and from the Pointes for years, first with a private company that failed, then with SEMTA and until March 27 with SMART.

The fact is that it wouldn't be SMART for the Pointes to permit the agency to die without a fight.

tained themselves and their families with little or no charge.

True, an area firm, ITT Automotive of Auburn Hills, an international supplier of systems-oriented products and components, is the new sponsor of the Grand Prix. The race events are scheduled for June 5, 6 and 7, with the main event, a world series race, scheduled for the closing day, Sunday, June 7.

It's only a three-day event, the sponsors remind critics. But the effects of the use of the island for the auto races undoubtedly will be seen and felt the year around.

Unfortunately, imposition of an admissions charge would be an even more serious blow to the families of the Metro Detroit area who have long enjoyed the pleasures of Belle Isle.

Letters

To the Editor:

Perhaps like many a citizen, I am not alone in my confusion as to the economic problems currently facing the nation.

May I share with your readers a book I recently read by William Gruder, "Secrets of the Temple: How the Federal Reserve Runs the Country."

Although it's a rather long book, you don't have to have a knowledge of economics to read it. The author takes the reader by the hand and walks the reader through the Carl Volcker years at the Fed (1979-86). It does much in explaining the shake-up and liquidation of the nation's banks and subsequent shake-up and liquidation of American industry.

I truly feel if we are to survive the '90s with a just banking system and honest money, this book is must reading. It is a New York Times bestseller.

Efficient

To the Editor:

I wrote to the Grosse Pointe police department to congratulate them on their great efficiency — I was overparked at a meter in the area of Norte Dame and Kercheval for four minutes and received a ticket.

I thought I was going to be with my dentist for about 15 minutes, but put in enough money for 45 minutes; unfortunately, more work had to be done, so I was four minutes late in getting back to my car. Of course there was no way I could hop out of the dentist's chair and run down to put another nickel in the meter.

I would think that this to-the-minute policy of issuing parking tickets would discourage people from shopping in the areas — I know it has ended my shopping there. We used to shop at Jacobson's and the Perry Drug Store — but no more.

Aid

To the Editor:

This year's crop of presidential candidates — both parties — are a strange lot. I couldn't, as yet, vote for any one of them unless I had a line-item veto on the program they represent.

One thing bothers me on a "sticks-out" basis, however. That's the craftily planned campaign to tag Pat Buchanan as an anti-Semite. This term is tossed about by pro-Israeli people like confetti and rice at a wedding.

It has to do currently with Prime Minister protem Shamir and his demand for $10 billion in loan grants. We give an automatic $3 billion to $4 billion to Israel annually.

Let me tell you about my grandkids

Being a long-distance grandma is no fun.

It's like having a wonderful title with the word honorary in front of it — you don't do any of the grunt work so you can't get the satisfaction that comes from contributing something. Mostly you miss being a part of their daily lives.

It's a condition that afflicts more of us than ever in this mobile society and there isn't too much we can do about it, except to visit as often as possible and keep in touch through letters and phone calls.

I wrote about my first-born grandbaby two years ago. And now there are two. It's time, I would say, for an update.

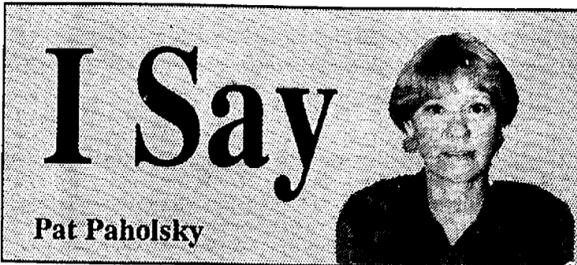

It was two years ago when we saw our David for the first time. He was a 6-month-old, 18-pound hunk of love. He had just been given probation from the hospital where he had been since he was born. At that point he had undergone seven operations.

We became acquainted. We delighted in his wide-eyed wonder at all the new sights and sounds of the outside world.

For his first birthday, he flew to Michigan, bringing his parents with him. He charmed everyone with his ever-present smile and good nature.

At that time, he was tethered for about 20 hours a day to a battery pack that contained lifesaving nutrients for his intravenous feeding. It was the equivalent of dragging a ball and chain around.

When we went to visit him

I Say

in California about six months later, the nurses had converted the battery pack that resembled a softside briefcase to a back pack vest.

He carried the 10-pound pack as if it were a normal thing to do. He walked and ran and crawled and very carefully lowered himself into his little chair by leaning forward slightly so the extra weight wouldn't topple him backward.

It only took a couple of heartbeats to pick up where we had left off. To his brand-new brother, however, we had to introduce ourselves. Nathan thought we were OK people — he let us carry him and feed him and change his diapers without fussing.

Almost a year had passed before we made the trip again a couple of months ago. Nathan is now walking and he still thinks we're OK. He is an easygoing child.

We had both of them for two days all to ourselves and it was wonderful. I have two hours of videotape that only parents and grandparents could watch from beginning to end without fidgeting.

David is holding his own. He eats but the food is not being absorbed, so he still has to be hooked up for about 10 hours at night when he's asleep. During the day, he's as free as a kitten and he makes the most of it.

He has a smile that's worth an admission charge. It's a half-smile that spreads slowly across his mouth while he's looking at you out of the corners of his eyes. It's an irresistible come-pick-me-up smile that he practiced on us a lot.

Sadly, the antibiotic he has to take every day to prevent infection is strong stuff — toxic, in fact — and it has destroyed his hearing. It's sad, yet it's impossible to feel anything but up around this joyful child who has two strikes against him.

So now he is learning to sign, along with his parents. The teachers are hopeful that since he was born with hearing, he can be taught to talk. He is going to classes with his mom, so that when he's 5, he'll be able to go to a regular kindergarten with all the other kids.

Brother Nathan is learning to sign as well and his parents say it's a sight to see.

David's prognosis is not good. He's a candidate for a bowel transplant which is still in the experimental stage. At this point, he would be considered only if his liver and other organs failed and there was no hope.

It isn't easy, but it's not depressing. Children like David teach us that life is fragile and precious. Each time we see him, it's a celebration of life. Every day is another river crossed, another mountain climbed.

He's a special kid. So is his brother. So are his parents.

Leap year baby

Justin Christopher Dennis is five days old today, but he won't celebrate his first birthday for another four years.

Justin's parents, Suzanne and Garret Dennis of Marine City, welcomed him nine days earlier than expected — at 9:02 a.m. on Leap Year Day, Feb. 29, 1992, — at Bon Secours Hospital. Justin weighed 6 lbs. 14 oz.

Suzanne Dennis said there were about four Leap Year babies born that day at Bon Secours.

Justin's grandparents are Robert and Rosalie Horn of Fair Haven and David and Diane Dennis of Grosse Pointe Woods.

Justin's big sister, Ashley Dennis, is 4 years old. "He'll be forever young," Suzanne Dennis said.

Cookie caper

The Grosse Pointe Woods Public Safety Department got a call from a Detroit police dispatcher at 1 p.m. Wednesday, Feb. 26. A Detroit police helicopter had observed some pretty suspicious-looking activities going on near Grosse Pointe Woods. Someone was unloading large boxes from a moving van into another truck.

The Woods' men in blue investigated.

They caught a 35-year-old female St. Clair Shores woman ... uh, well, ... unloading Girl Scout cookies in the parking lot of St. Joan of Arc Church.

The official police report noted: "Lot used with church's permission. All in order."

OK. We're still glad to know our cops are on top of things.

Search party

A reunion committee is looking for some special people who may be living in or around the Grosse Pointe News' circulation area.

World War II USN personnel from patrol craft (PC, SC, AM, UMS, etc.) are invited to an annual reunion to be held in Charleston, S.C., April 29-May 2.

For information, contact Bob Lisey at 264-6664.

Talent scouting

Michigan TasteFest, a Memorial Day weekend festival of food and entertainment that takes place in the New Center area, is looking for some talented kids.

The TasteFest talent search committee will choose the best performers in three age divisions in the categories of dance, vocals/instrumentals, jazz vocals/instrumentals and other performances. Age groups are 4-7, 8-13, and 14-18. Birthdays must be as of March 31, 1992.

Semifinalists will be chosen from tapes submitted to a panel of judges and finalists will be chosen after live auditions.

For more information about the talent search, call Mary Chris Titus at 872-0188.

Children's books sought

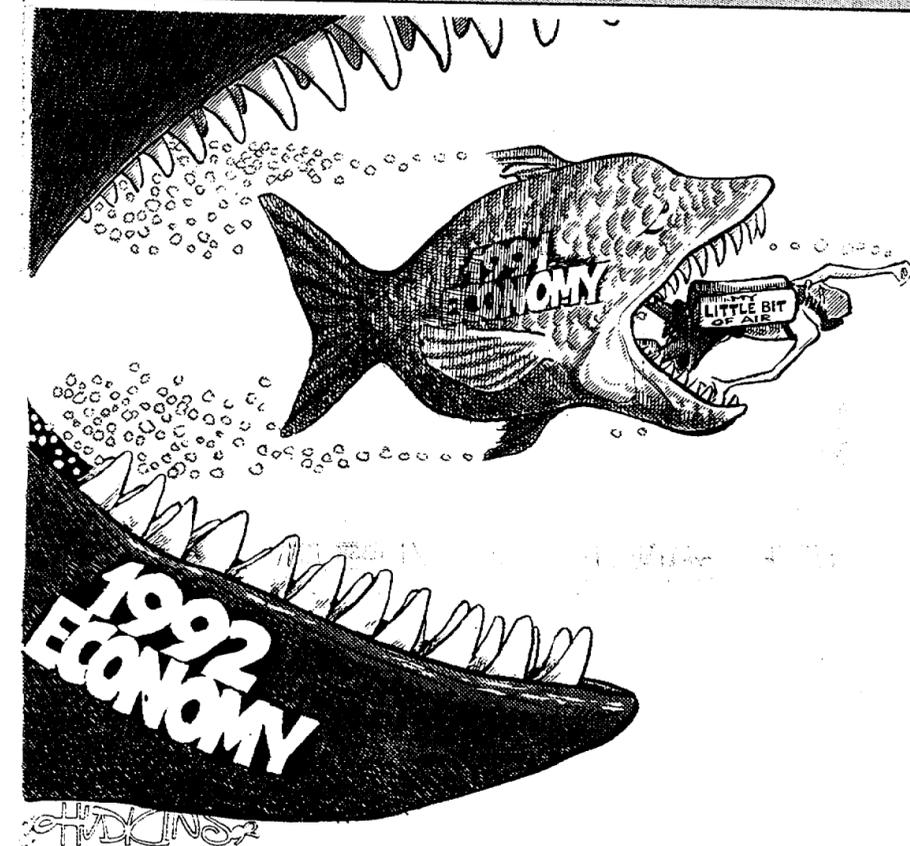

Open the world to metropolitan Detroit youngsters by contributing to Focus: HOPE's Gift of Reading program. Old or previously read books in good condition, for infants to children up to age 7, will be accepted throughout the year at any of the five Focus: HOPE Food Centers. Monetary contributions are also welcome.

Children enrolled in the Focus: HOPE Food Prescription Program visiting the centers' reading rooms may select any of the donated books. Youngsters may either read while they wait for their mothers to shop for monthly food items, have a story read to them by a Focus: HOPE volunteer, or select books to take home.

Gift of Reading was initiated by Detroit Free Press columnist Dr. Louise Ritchie in 1987. Since its inception, more than 41,000 books have been shared or selected by 49,000 children enrolled in the Food Prescription Program.

For more information, call 883-7440, or drop off books at the eastside Focus Hope Food Center, 9151 Chalmers near Harper Ave.

Pointers are involved by their nature

It says here that there are 37 kinds of wild cats in the world. Of course, until recently, we humans were convinced that cat skins looked better on us than they did on the cat, so there aren't nearly as many cats out there as there used to be.

not being an Audubon member. For 10 bucks you can go to eight workshops, and for $17.50, they'll throw in quiche and apple pie and a speaker on Russia's Lake Baikal.

(Saturday, March 14; call 545-2929 for information.)

The environment is big "business" in Grosse Pointe. Between the Detroit and Grosse Pointe chapters, Audubon has close to 300 members in the Pointes. Five Grosse Pointers are members of the Detroit board.

A Grosse Pointe family was instrumental in establishing Seven Ponds Nature Center, which operates under the auspices of the Michigan Audubon Society.

And that's just Audubon. If memory serves me right, the Michigan Nature Conservancy boasts about four Pointe board members and the East Michigan Environmental Action Council has a couple. Sierra Club doesn't list its officers geographically, but I wouldn't be surprised to find some Pointers serving there, too.

It would be interesting to know just how many groups are represented here. Send any information you may have to me at the Grosse Pointe News office.

A charge dogging the heels of environmentalists is that they only care about birds and untrammeled nature, that actual humans scarcely count. The environmental movement has so far been largely middle-class and First World, as minorities and underdeveloped nations grapple with other social issues.

One of the speakers at Audubon's program will address these issues. Dr. Bunyan Bryant, an organizer of the National People of Color Environmental Leadership Summit held last year in Washington, plans to discuss why environmentalists don't seem very sympathetic to people who live in heavily polluted inner-city areas.

Never heard of the People of Color Environmental Leadership Summit? I haven't, either — and I suspect that is precisely Dr. Bryant's point.

Michigan's Civil War historian Bruce Catton is a favorite son in Ohio, too. He served as a headline writer at the Cleveland Plain Dealer in the 1920s, a fact that was fondly noted in the special edition celebrating that paper's 150th anniversary last month.

Like all Michiganders (even transplanted ones), I'm vicariously proud of Bruce Catton. But this was the first I knew that he was also an expert on Southern whiskey.

According to the Plain Dealer, Catton won his 1954 Pulitzer for "A Still at Appomattox."

Boy, talk about east-west rivalry — Detroit was never this bad. In that same anniversary issue, the PD reminisced about the "Battle of the Bridge," a weird historical incident in 1836 that makes Detroit's checkered history look downright peaceful.

Seems that a ravine divided the villages of Cleveland and Ohio City, with a jointly owned floating bridge as their only connection. A group of real estate developers (which included Cleveland's mayor) decided to build a real bridge — bypassing Ohio City.

Well, you can't take a slight like that sitting down, and the Ohio Citians didn't. They boycotted the new bridge, whereupon the Cleveland Council got mad and tore out its half of the old floating bridge.

So there! Well, the west-siders hacked away at the new bridge's supports, dug holes to impede the approach, and tried to blow it up with gunpowder. Then 1,000 of them, armed with sticks, rocks, crowbars and axes, marched on the bridge, guarded on the Cleveland side by an armed militia.

A riot ensued — naturally — and total disaster was averted when an Ohio City man with a few wits left rushed the bridge and sabotaged the Cleveland cannon.(!)

It's good to have a few stories like these (the Toledo Border War also comes to mind) to remember when doomsayers start claiming that we're going to hell in a basket. I'd be the last to say that everything is fine, but at least we no longer duke it out when we disagree.

Consider the Civil War. More Americans were killed in that dispute than in all of our other wars combined. Now Canada is actually considering a secessionary move; no shots are expected — only a series of monumentally arcane economic disquisitions.

These days we reserve the duking-out for newly inconvenient foreign dictators (Panama, Iraq, Japan — oops! I didn't mean to mention that). That's progress.

Nancy Parmenter

But there are still 37 kinds.

One of the things I do in my spare time is give slide shows about a community-owned nature sanctuary in Belize (yes, I know, I already told you about it). Five species of spotted cats live in Belize, so people always ask if I've seen a jaguar.

Heck, I've never seen a bobcat — and they live right here in Michigan.

Like most people, television and the zoo are the closest I've come to these secretive animals.

Anybody who wants a closer view of a bobcat can get it at the War Memorial next weekend, when the Detroit Audubon Society holds an all-day environmental program surrounding its annual meeting. Cats are only part of a program that also includes presentations on environmental hazards, urban sprawl, hawks, and the U of M solar car team.

The program is open to everyone, so don't be shy about Why? With the USSR out of business, the last excuse for propping up Israeli with ever-growing grants is gone.

But for his honest questioning of all foreign aid grants by the United States and particularly this outrageous demand for $10 billion in guarantees, Buchanan is tagged an anti-Semite.

Actually, polls show three-quarters of the people of the United States oppose loans, grants or gifts to Israel. This massive and outrageous demand is supported only by a lickspit Congress, grown accustomed to having its re-election campaigns financed — an "either-or" basis by the American-Israeli lobby and their PAC. This has been declared and denounced by President Bush. This foreign-based lobby spent $4.8 million in the 1988 Campaign.

This whole $10 billion loan guarantee deal is fraudulent and deceitful. It's intended to finance importation of one million Russian Jews, to settle in the West Bank, in a prelude to a declaration of annexation. They call it humanitarian aid. More deceit. Humanitarian aid in this instance would be a grant to the Palestinians to protect them from their oppressors, under leadership of that intransigent extremist Shamir.

An anti-Semite is dictionary-defined as "one hostile toward Jews." Can we not disagree with the Israeli government without being smeared? Are Buchanan, Baker and Bush anti-Zionism? Anti-Judaism? I haven't heard of it.

Baker has proposed a sort of compromise — $2 billion a year in guarantees if Israel puts a freeze on settlements, this aid to continue five years, up to the demanded $10 billion. In my opinion — and that of three-quarters of all Americans — that's too much. Since the reason for aid to Israel in the first place has disappeared, so should the aid. Reject the $10 billion outright, and negotiate the settlements issue on the basis of continuing or dropping the present, automatic $3 billion to $4 billion annual grant.

Zionism is a worldwide movement for supporting a Jewish homeland in Palestine. The same United Nations resolution that supported this program provided equally for establishment of a Palestinian homeland in — of all places — Palestine.

Let's dump the name calling, stop the illegal settlements, forget the $10 billion, study the issue of a Palestinian homeland, and start doing right by these harassed, humiliated victims of a cruel oppressor.

Incidentally, how can a nation with a $4 trillion national debt, a national budget $400 billion out-of-balance, a S & L debt of $500 billion, yearly interest payments on the national debt that represent one-third of the budget and growing annually — how can such a nation guarantee, loan or give $10 billion to anybody?

As for humanitarian aid for financing a program — a program we oppose — that's a form of insanity. Ever hear of America's homeless, jobless, sick, poor, uninsured health-wise?

Let's start a priority list — with our own people and their needs at the top. Oh yes, Pat Buchanan's not an anti-semitic. Trust me.

Has bins

To the Editor:
Thank you for the article on recycling in your Feb.

20 issue. Grosse Pointe Citizens for Recycling would also like to express its appreciation to all the residents who are helping to make our community a leader in recycling.

We would like to clear up what may be a misunderstanding by your readers of what "recycling participation rate" means, however. We believe that 80 to 90 percent of Grosse Pointe and Harper Woods households recycle — a much higher rate than you indicated.

The problem is that "participation rate" means the total number of households that put out their bins at all. Our cities encourage us to wait until our recycling bins are full before we put them out, to make the collection more efficient. So many of us put out bins every two or three weeks. The only accurate way to find the exact participation rate is to go out and count bins every week for four to six weeks. Grosse Pointe Woods did that a year ago and found 87 percent of households participated. The Woods estimates that more than 90 percent recycle now.

That brings us to the fact that the roughly 40 percent recycling rate given to your reporter is actually the set-out rate — the percentage of recycling bins that were set out at the curb on any given week.

Experts estimate in most cities the average household sets out a bin every other week, so one way to estimate the participation rate is to multiply the set-out rate times two. With a set-out rate of 40 percent that would give the Grosse Pointe and Harper Woods a recycling rate of about 80 percent.

Grosse Pointe City, as your article pointed out, did an informal count of bins and estimates about 75 percent participation.

Grosse Pointe Citizens for Recycling's original REACT pilot study, 2 1/2 years ago, covered a statistically valid sampling and found a participation rate ranging from 83 percent in Harper Woods to 97 percent in Grosse Pointe Woods.

Our recycling residents have good reason to be proud of themselves.

Disabled

To the Editor:

Voice of the Retarded (VOR), a nationwide association of individuals and parent groups who advocate for developmentally disabled persons, has been advised by its members in Michigan that the state of Michigan plans to close the Caro, Coldwater and Newberry regional health centers, and the Muskegon Regional Care Center.

It would appear that the state of Michigan is violating its covenant to establish and maintain "institutions, programs and services for the care, treatment, education or rehabilitation of those inhabitants who are physically, mentally or otherwise seriously handicapped."

This is provided in the Michigan constitution (1963), art. 8, para.8. The covenant by Michigan and other states, which is evidenced both in constitutions and statutes throughout our land, has led to the creation of many institutions for serving disabled persons.

VOR contends that the state of Michigan may be in violation of its constitutional and statutory obligation to assure that adequate and appropriate mental health services are provided to its citizens throughout the state. Unlike Michigan, many states do recognize that institutions are an integral part of the array of residential services.

Deinstitutionalization programs have been promoted and sold to the people on the pretext that there were opportunities for cost savings. Anyone familiar with the complex problems of supporting severe and profoundly disabled clients in community homes, and the costs required, should recognize the fallacies in these predictions.

Providing the same level of care in the community as exists in the larger facilities is more costly, as it is less efficient. The state will save money only by cutting services. The services and support systems will decline. The disabled populations will suffer for it.

VOR is a non-profit organization. Any parents or friends of mentally handicapped individuals in opposition to the closing of these Michigan facilities should contact Voice of the Retarded (VOR), 2800 West Central Road, Rolling Meadows, Ill. 60008. Phone (708) 253-6020.

Right to bear arms: The real purpose

This is the sixth in a series of articles about the Bill of Rights, courtesy of the Commission of the Bicentennial of the U.S. Constitution.

The Second Amendment very briefly provides that, since a "well regulated militia" is necessary to the security of the state, the people's right to "keep and bear arms" is guaranteed.

Few things have been more vigorously debated — and distorted — in recent times than the meaning of this clause, and very few subjects have been as cluttered and confused by calculated disinformation circulated by special interest groups.

To really understand what was intended, it is necessary to look back and recall that in those days people had a great fear of a standing national army. They knew that the monarchs of Europe had held power at the expense of the people by having standing armies to preserve the status quo.

In addition, before the Constitution, the 13 colonies were not really the "united states" we know today, but 13 wholly independent, sovereign nations.

For example, before the Constitution was adopted, the State of Virginia was virtually as independent of the other states and of the union established by the Articles of Confederation as France was independent of all the other countries of Europe.

Before the adoption of the Constitution, each state could and did have its own army, and each state could also maintain its own navy, as some of the seaboard states did.

The real purpose of the Second Amendment was to ensure that the "state armies" — "the militia" — would be maintained for the defense of the state. In order to do that it was necessary to grant each citizen the right to maintain arms.

Of course, 200 years ago, the musket — which was the principal military weapon in use — was a common fixture in most American households, because many Americans depended on hunting game for food.

Today the "state armies" that were prevalent in the 18th century have effectively been replaced by the National Guard, and hunting has basically become a recreational activity.

The very language of the Second Amendment refutes any argument that it was intended to guarantee every citizen an unfettered right to any kind of weapon he or she desires. In referring to "a well regulated militia," the framers clearly intended to secure the right to bear arms essentially for military purposes.

In the late 18th century, the "militia" was the aggregate of all able-bodied men, and the word "militia" was defined as "a body of troops; soldiers collectively." Moreover, even where the militia was concerned, it is clear that the framers contemplated that the use of arms could be "well-regulated."

If an 18th century militia was intended to be "well-regulated," surely the Second Amendment does not remotely guarantee every person the constitutional right to have a "Saturday Night Special" or a machine gun without any regulation whatever.

There is no support in the Constitution for the argument that federal and state governments are powerless to regulate the purchase of such firearms so that they do not get into the hands of persons with significant criminal records or mental impairments, or persons who are engaged in criminal activity.

By analogy, although there is not a word or a hint in the Constitution about automobiles or motorcycles, no one would seriously argue that a state cannot regulate the use of motor vehicles by imposing licensing restrictions and speed limits based on such factors as a driver's age, health condition and driving record, and by recording every purchase or change of ownership.

Of course, some of these observations will be challenged by weapons and ammunition manufacturers and other members of the so-called "gun lobby." That there should be vigorous debate on this subject is a tribute to our freedom of speech and press, but the American people should have a firm understanding of the true origin and purpose of the Second Amendment.

Go and sin some more

The New York Times recently ran an article stating that "sinful delights are not as bad as feared" — so indulge!

For openers, the writer reported that naps are good for us. Sure, we knew that. Churchill, Edison and JFK are just a few of those who swore that a brief nap provided a quick fix for midday letdown.

Other nuggets of wisdom proclaimed that moderate coffee consumption not only makes a person more alert, but can even affect the sex lives of those over 60 in a positive way. We have known that chocolate is a good source of energy, but now we are told that it has little effect on blood cholesterol and can be a mood elevator. However, it still rots the teeth and adds to the waistline.

Further news to delight us states that it is better to be mildly overweight than too thin. A pound a year after 30 is considered within the low-risk area. Also, moderate alcohol consumption, a glass or two of wine or beer, is good for circulation.

Healthful ways to relieve anxiety included gossiping as a form of bonding relationships. We would assume malicious gossip would be excluded as too stressful. Walking in the rain is also considered good for us. We catch colds from viruses, not from exposure to cold and dampness.

It was a relief to read that talking to ourselves was a stress-reducer as well as chewing gum. It would probably be advisable to do both in privacy. I would venture to say that singing in the car, shower or around the house just has to be healthy because it feels so good.

My favorite piece of information garnered from the article concerns smiling. It seems that "smiling forces you to breathe through your nose and it exerts pressure on certain muscles in the face. This forces cooler blood to a region of the brain called the hypothalamus, which in turn may cause the release of endorphins, the brain's natural feel-good opiate."

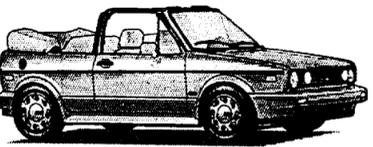

Now if that isn't a good reason to grin, what is?

Woods awards sidewalk contract to Lacaria

By Donna Walker
Staff Writer
Lacaria Construction has once again been awarded the contract to replace sidewalks and driveway approaches in Grosse Pointe Woods.

The Woods city council awarded the contract to Lacaria at last week's council meeting. M.G. Christian Builders Inc. was the low bidder, proposing to do the job for $116,198.

Thomas White, department of public works director, and John F. DeBusscher of Pate, Hirn and Bogue, Inc, the city's engineers, met with Christian's president and checked out the company's work. They said the company could adequately meet the Woods' needs and recommended that it be awarded the contract.

The council, however, rejected Christian's proposal because the company had no experience working for a municipality.

Lacaria was the second lowest bidder, saying it could perform the job for $117,103. Having a good history with the city helped Lacaria win the contract.

It received the sidewalk and driveway contract from the city last year, when it underbid all other applicants.

Philip Belcher, assistant city administrator, said the work will begin in July and will be part of the 1992-93 budget, which the city is now preparing.

Last year, municipal workers canvassed the city and marked the sidewalk slabs and driveway approaches that need to be replaced this summer, Belcher said.

Residents must pay for replacement of the sidewalk slabs or driveway approaches on their premises. The city is responsible for replacing sidewalks and driveways elsewhere, such as around public schools, Belcher said.

Residents can hire their own contractor to perform the work, or have Lacaria do it, Belcher said.

Most sidewalk slabs are 4 inches thick and have a surface area that is 4-feet-wide by 4-feet long, or 16 square feet, Belcher said.

Lacaria said it will charge $2 for each square-foot of 4-inch-thick concrete it installs. Thus, a typical sidewalk slab would cost $32.

The Woods told bidders that 25,408 square feet of 4-inch-thick sidewalk needed to be replaced in the city. Lacaria said it could replace it all for $50,816. However, some residents may have already replaced concrete that was marked by the city last year, Belcher said.

To take the heavy weight of cars, driveway approaches are thicker than most sidewalk slabs. Most driveway approaches and some sidewalk slabs in the city are 6-inches thick, Belcher said.

The Woods told bidders that 17,043 square feet of 6-inch-thick concrete needed to be replaced in the city. Lacaria said it would charge $2.60 for each square foot, for a total of $44,311.80.

Channel 62 reinstated on cable

The Grosse Pointe Cable board has decided to reinstate Channel 62 to the cable network, an action that should please some but may annoy others.

Channel 62, which corresponds to cable Channel 30, was restored on Feb. 17. In January 1991, Channel 62 was eliminated from cable to make room for C-Span II, which now has been bumped off the system.

Grosse Pointe Cable has limited channel capacity and therefore both channels cannot be offered at the same time.

Last year a local group expressed interest in watching the Senate debates on whether American troops should go to war against Iraq.

"Everyone (on the board) felt that it really was a community service for people to be able to see that in action, so the board voted to put C-Span II on," said Mary Schultz, operations manager at Grosse Pointe Cable.

The board is made up of Harper Woods and Grosse Pointe city council members and representatives from the Grosse Pointe War Memorial.

"We had a lot of complaints about dropping Channel 62, but we had a lot of good calls about C-Span II," Schultz said.

C-Span II airs taped House and Senate proceedings and floor debates of England's parliament.

Orphaned wildlife: Don't touch, call an expert

Every year as spring arrives new flowers bloom, birds sing and baby animals are born. It is also the time of year when the Michigan Humane Society begins getting many calls regarding orphaned wildlife. But, in truth, most of these youngsters are not orphaned or helpless.

The society encourages anyone who finds a juvenile animal without its mother not to touch or approach the animal. Most likely the animal has not been abandoned; rather the parents may just be out searching for food for their new family members. It is not unusual for adult animals to leave the nest or den for hours at a time. If you don't see an adult bird caring for the young, you can try a little trick to determine if the baby bird is really orphaned. Place a cross of small twigs or yarn on the top of the nest and keep children and animals away.

If the twigs or yarn have been disturbed in the morning, it's quite certain that the mother has been around to feed her young. If there has been no disturbance by the next morning, it is possible that the baby birds have been abandoned. Carefully gather them up and bring them to your nearest humane society shelter or call a nature center.

Young rabbits may also present a problem in the early spring months. When doing the first yard cleanup and mowing of the year, rabbits nests are often disturbed. Baby cottontails, like baby birds, are better off left in their natural habitat. It is stressful for the rabbits to be handled and transported. It is also extremely difficult to raise young rabbits. Their survival rate is much greater if they are left alone.

There are two signs to look for when determining if a rabbit is old enough to be on its own. If the young animal is 4 or more inches in length, it is safe to leave it. A young rabbit will have a white spot on its head. When this spot disappears, the rabbit is old enough to be alone.

If you are certain the animals are orphaned, take them to the nearest animal shelter or nature center where experienced workers can care for them.

The Michigan Humane Society is a non-profit organization serving animals since 1877 with three full service shelters and charitable animal hospitals in the Detroit area.

Woods council won't butt in on smokers

By Donna Walker
Staff Writer

Grosse Pointe Woods Mayor Pro Tem Thomas J. Fahrner didn't know what he was getting himself into.

A businessman had written a letter to the council, saying he was considering moving his firm from Grosse Pointe Farms to Pointe Plaza in the Woods, and that he would like the city to adopt an ordinance prohibiting smoking in office buildings.

"Although we do not allow smoking in our offices," the businessman wrote, "air in most office buildings is recirculated, or shared, throughout the facility. So, smoke in any part of the building is quickly distributed into every part of the building. A law that would prohibit smoking in office buildings in Grosse Pointe Woods would make this and all offices in the city more attractive, not only to us, but to others as well."

Fahrner, at last week's council meeting, made a motion to refer the request to the committee of the whole, a discussion group consisting of the members of the council.

Councilman William W. Wilson seconded the motion. Mayor Robert E. Novitke, following usual procedure, asked the council members if they wanted to make any comments about the motion before voting on it.

Councilman Peter R. Gilezan

House ransacked

A home in the 400 block of Bournemouth Circle was ransacked during an attempted burglary in Grosse Pointe Farms about 11:30 a.m.

Police responded to a call of a possible burglary and a report that two men were seen running from the residence. Officers found a kitchen door ajar and a glass pane broken. Upstairs bedrooms and the ground floor rooms were "rummaged through," according to police.

Nothing was reported taken.

said, "I'm a pipe smoker, and some people will probably come down on me for it, but I think it would be wrong for us to tell people what they can and can't do in private buildings."

Novitke agreed, saying he did not think the committee of the whole should waste its time discussing the smoking ban request.

"I would be absolutely opposed to dictating what a landlord can or can't do on private property . . . I hear us up here complaining all the time about the state eroding the home rule of communities like ours, and this to me seems very similar," he said.

Home rule is the authority a city, town or other form of community has to govern and make decisions for itself.

"I agree with the mayor," Councilwoman Jean B Rice said. "I believe that up here and in everyday life we see people's choices being taken away. If people want to smoke and kill themselves by that means, that's their business. And if I don't want to be around them and breathe their second-hand smoke, I'll get up and move."

Councilman James Alogdelis took a more middle-of-the-road stance. He said he is in favor of home rule, but that he's also a strong supporter of businesses along Mack Avenue.

"I feel that if there are business owners out there who don't want smoking in their buildings, and (a lack of a no-smoking ban) is preventing them from relocating to our city, I think it's something that should be considered," Alogdelis said.

Fahrner said he would not be in favor of a smoking ban in private buildings.

"I only made the motion because I thought that if we were going to discuss it, we'd do so in the committee of the whole.

But since we've discussed it here, I guess I'll withdraw the motion."

"Then I'll withdraw my support," Wilson said. "That way, there'll be no need for us to take any action."

Since Fahrner and Wilson withdrew the motion, there was nothing to vote on, and the businessman's request was filed away.

After the meeting was over, a man in the audience asked Novitke if the council was going to discuss the skateboard situation in the city.

Novitke told him that the committee of the whole was going to discuss it later that night.

"When does that meeting start?" the man asked.

"In about 10 or 15 minutes," Novitke said. "I need to smoke a cigarette first."

Financial realities of growing old are grim

In times of economic stress, it is only human for those who are bearing the brunt of the slump to look with envy on those who have the ways and means of sailing through bad times.

Envy is one thing. Resentment is another, particularly if it is grossly misplaced.

Recently there have been some unkind observations that the elderly are shielded from the economic fallout because they receive Social Security.

What is forgotten is that Social Security is earned income. Recipients worked many years and contributed hard-earned dollars to the system so that when they grew old, they could count on it as a cushion to keep them out of breadlines.

Prime Time

By Marian Trainor

Everyone knows that Social Security was not meant to be a pension. But for many, it is their only income.

True, there are some who augment their Social Security with dividends from investments, but for single older women living alone, minorities and those over 85, Social Security is it.

AARP legislative director John Rother contends that the older people get, the poorer they become, and if you live long enough you'll find your income curving down. Two of five older people — some 12 million persons — live in poverty or close to the edge.

Paul Ryscavage, a census bureau economist, points out that not everyone within the ranks of the elderly population shared in the income gains of the '80s. Those who did are the real winners. They are the recently retired who were at their peak earning years in the 1960s and '70s when real earnings rose sharply.

Those who bought pension plans and others who got interest, dividends and rental income benefited from the surge in home values and stock prices and from high interest rates in the '80s.

The bottom line is there are older people who are doing well. For others the opportunities were not there.

This led to a situation where the overall redistribution among the elderly is more unequal than among the nonelderly.

Two million women 65 and over who live alone, more than one in four, are below the poverty line.

While 3.7 million older persons are officially declared poor by government definition, another 8.1 million are considered "near poor." Their incomes are too high to qualify for Medicaid, food stamps and other assistance programs but too low to provide a comfortable living. When they are combined with older people below the poverty line, they comprise an enormous group.

Even those at the top — the retirement winners — can expect to lose ground eventually from ebbing earning power, loss of pension benefits when a spouse dies, chronic illness and dwindling purchasing power due to inflation.

Median household income in 1990 was $28,773 for those 60 to 64 but only $13,150 for those 75 and older. Without Social Security, the elderly poverty rate would be 46 percent, according to Urban Institute economist Marilyn Moon.

Critics argue that the elderly are much better off than these statistics suggest because they pay proportionately less in taxes, allegedly have lower consumption needs and receive assistance such as Medicare. Others contend that such logic is flawed because health care is not a substitute for cash incomes. "Medicare and Medicaid are useful but they don't replace food, clothing and housing," Moon said.

This observation could become more relevant in the future, according to a report, "Extending Life, Enhancing Life; A National Research Agenda on Aging" by the National Academy of Sciences Institute of Medicine.

The comprehensive plan calls for a near doubling of government and private sector funding for research on aging.

If implemented, this would put research on aging in the same funding range as cancer and AIDS.

Just as many companies devote a percentage of their budget to research and development, Medicare could do the same and wind up saving. The only solution to the escalating cost is the application of new knowledge.

The plan has come at an ideal time. Revolutionary concepts and methods of medical research are at hand. But developing a plan is one thing.

Gaining support and implementing it are the challenges. All of us who are older or plan to grow older should do everything possible to ensure that Congress, the Bush administration and the private sector commit funds to carry out this plan. The 20th century, in which mankind has added some 25 years in life expectancy, could benefit from medical research and at the same time gain income if the burden on Medicaid is lifted.

Expert regales SRO crowd with auto industry forecasts

For the hundreds of people hungry for information on the automotive Big Three, the evening last week in Dearborn with auto analyst Ronald Glantz was a feeding frenzy.

The Dean Witter senior vice president drew a crowd that filled a ballroom at the Hyatt Regency, and even his extensive use of graphs shown via overhead projector didn't dull the crowd's enthusiasm for his auto industry facts and forecasts. The black-and-white visuals, with their sharply rising and declining lines, looked like calligraphy lessons for the letter "W." Or the EKG readings of an ailing industry. To wit:

- The industry has been in a five-year slump; Glantz sees combined car and truck sales climbing from 12.5 million last year to 13.5 million in 1992, and maybe as high as 15 million in '93 and 16.3 million in '94. The downturn began after the '86 sales peak of 16.0 million.

- Look for new-vehicle sales increases every 10-day reporting period for the next four months, he says, combined with a decline in import market shares. "The sales improvement won't be as rapid as the improvements after the last two recessions," he cautions.

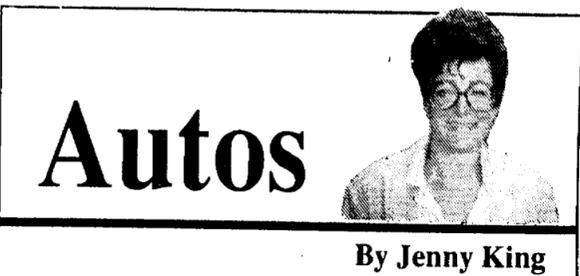

- The Japanese automakers already are assembling cars in Europe. Their activity will increase in 1993 when new European Community rules take effect. The Japanese can build cars in the United States and ship them to dealers here for $600 to $1,100 apiece less than the Big Three.

- The Japanese may be willing to accept a lower Voluntary Restraint Agreement quota for cars and trucks they ship to the United States for 1992-93, to help reduce inventories. But it will only be a temporary decrease. In Japan, where a parking ticket can cost hundreds of dollars and proof of a parking space has been required for registration of a new car, the market has little room for growth. "You can't park and you can't drive in Japan," he says. "The average car in Japan only goes 4,000 miles a year." Therefore, Japanese automakers need new markets.

- Steve Miller, who left his job as vice chairman and chief financial officer of Chrysler Corp. last month, "deserves a gold star" for his work with the company, says Glantz, who also gives Robert Lutz high marks. For all practical purposes, he says, Chrysler is bankrupt.

- There will be no dividend increases from General Motors or Ford Motor Co. this year — or in the foreseeable future. He says neither will earn over $6 a share and Chrysler won't beat $3 a share. As for stock prices:

Autos

By Jenny King

"Get out of GM and Ford at $40," he advises. "Remember, I'm bullish. You should listen to me when I'm bearish," he quipped.

- Seventy percent of today's new-car purchases involve a change of "brand," he said. There is no nameplate loyalty. Price is usually the determinant. As for dealerships, only 20 percent of today's customers return to the same dealership for a subsequent purchase. The domestic industry feels it has to build and sell models that aren't profitable in order to give its dealers full lines to sell. "Chrysler doesn't make money on its cars but it does on trucks," Glantz said. Same goes for United States subcompacts and compacts: They're a drain. It's the full-size/luxury cars that put money back in the industry's pocket.

- The United States automakers are bloated, slow-moving bureaucracies. "At the beginning of 1990, GM had more white-collar employees than Toyota had in its entire employment," he said. "But Chrysler's Viper project proves that the industry can bring a new model to market fast and economically."

- Chrysler now has more retirees than active employees. Downsizing the corporation won't help it support its growing pension obligations. Speaking of burdens, Jaguar will haunt Ford for years to come, Glantz predicts.

- While the domestic automakers have come a long way in recent years, this is not the time to relax, he says. We're patting ourselves on the back for introducing multi-valve engines; Honda already has a variable valve engine in a Civic. Honda also has a mini-van and sport utility vehicle ready to go into production.

Ditto for Toyota and a full-size pickup truck.

- Detroit is fighting "with one arm behind its back," he said, when it comes to supporting a large retired workforce. The Japanese auto industry really took off within the last 15 to 20 years, and is based on a younger corps of blue and white-collar employees.

- How about automotive suppliers and related industries as investment opportunities? The Big Three are going to outsource more, Glantz says. This is good news for companies like Masco Industries (bodies, components), Superior Industries (aluminum wheels) and Excel Industries Inc. (window assemblies), all of which he gives thumbs-up ratings. Makers of airbags can look forward to continued growth. Glantz says 95 percent of cars and trucks will have airbags on both sides in front within a few years; luxury models are including them for backseat passengers, and bags may eventually be put inside doors for side impact safety.

Dean Witter broker Joseph Jennings, of Grosse Pointe, hearing Glantz for the second time in one day, was impressed with the turnout and the talk. "He spoke to a group of auto industry suppliers at lunch, and even though this was pretty much the same talk to night, it was fascinating," Jennings said. Dean Witter may bring experts in other investment areas to the Detroit market in the coming months, he said. Detroit and Dearborn Dean Witter staff on hand at the Hyatt seemed very pleased at the standing-room-only attendance and warm reception for San Francisco-based Glantz.

For those who may wonder what the analyst himself drives, we asked. His answer: a Mazda RX-7 for himself, a Saab 9000 Turbo for his wife, a Honda Civic for his daughter, and a Ford Explorer for his son.

"Actually, I drive to the bus and commute," he says.

Race driver to push belts

Jaguar Cars Inc. has developed its own buckle-up advertising and promotion campaign, using Bud Light Jaguar team race driver Davy Jones.

"Since 1983, seat belts have saved 25,000 American lives," Jones said at a recent press conference. "Yet even today, only a little more than half of us wear them."

Jones said last March at Sebring he hit a concrete barrier head-on at about 140 mph. "If it weren't for my seat belt, I wouldn't be standing here today," he said.

Jaguar has been focusing on its safety features in recent press releases. In addition to passive belts up front and three-point belts for outboard rear passengers, the company says its 223-horsepower engine, four-wheel disc brakes with ABS brakes and four-wheel independent suspension add to overall safety and handling of the sedan model.

The National Highway Traffic Safety Administration provides additional facts about belt use:

- 41 states require seat belt use

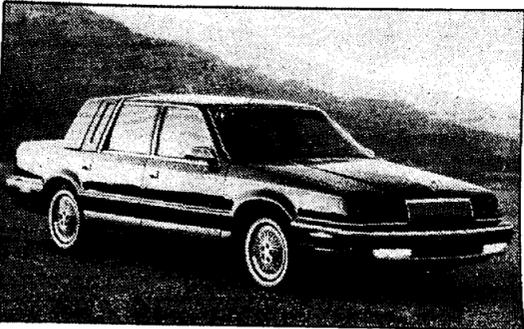

- Current usage of belts is close to 60 percent

- Belt use laws have reduced fatalities by 7 percent

- Seat belt usage in Australia is estimated at 95 percent

- Studies indicate properly applied lap and shoulder belts can reduce the risk of fatal or serious occupant injury by between 44 percent and 55 percent.

New Yorker

Starting at about $21,800, the Chrysler New Yorker Fifth Avenue may be one great buy for those seeking a roomy, luxurious, comfortable, smooth, four-door front-drive sedan. In fact, the press-fleet Chrysler New Yorker was in such demand that we had only 24 hours in its company — enough time to appreciate its formal good looks, smooth transmission, extra-wide-opening rear doors that provide excellent access to a roomy rear-seat area and the 3.3-liter fuel-injected V-6. The Fifth Avenue rides on a 109.5-inch wheelbase (hence, that rear-seat leg room); the New Yorker Salon has a 104.5-inch wheelbase. The Fifth Avenue's standard features include air, driver-side air bag, tinted glass, power seats up front, ingenious little cupholders in the mid-seat arm rests up front and — double ugh — speed-activated power door locks that keep you in whether you like it or not. For an additional $900, you may order ABS brakes on the New Yorker.

The two-act play runs approximately 2 1/2 hours and will be an all-student production. Costumes, set construction and design and choreography are all created with student input. Several of the costumes will also be actual vintage clothing from the 1930s and '40s.

WE COULD BUILD AN AUTOMOBILE WITH AN EVEN SMOOTHER RIDE, BUT THAT WOULD MAKE US UNCOMFORTABLE.

It seems the relentless pursuit of the plushiest possible driving experience has blinded some of the world's carmakers to a very important point:

If you completely insulate the driver from the realities of the road, you've removed his ability to safely contend with the realities of driving.

First and foremost, a driver must always remain in control of his automobile. And the false luxury of an ocean-liner-like ride can never come at the expense of driver safety.

AN AUTOMOBILE MUST COMMUNICATE WITH ITS DRIVER.

The ability of a car to hold the road — and consequently, the ability of a driver to maintain control over his automobile — is largely dictated by the car's suspension system. Which is why every new BMW is designed not from the engine down, but rather, from the suspension system up.

The BMW 5-Series, for example, is equipped with highly developed, internationally patented front and rear suspension systems so refined, "the communication with the driver is perfect" according to the editors of Sports Car International.

▲ To achieve its outstanding ride quality, the 5-Series is tested and refined on all types of road surfaces.

The unique double-pivot front suspension increases stability, minimizes dive and provides improved control under all driving conditions.

ACHIEVING AN OPTIMUM BALANCE BETWEEN HANDLING AND COMFORT.

All this is not to say that the ride in the 5-Series is unnecessarily demanding or rough. As AutoWeek magazine has pointed out, what sets the 535i apart from other cars is its "combination of performance and luxury."

Automobile Magazine agreed, naming the BMW 535i, "one of the best sedans ever built."

Like all BMW's, the 5-Series is backed by a 4-year/50,000-mile bump-to-bumper warranty,* as well as a Roadside Assistance program.†

For information, just call 800-334-4BMW. Or come in for a test drive. It will give you an opportunity to experience what we've known all along. That feeling in control at the wheel is the most comfortable feeling an automobile can convey.

Brown a winner in Senate exchange program

U.S. Sen. Donald Riegle, D-Mich announced that Grosse Pointe South High School junior Amanda Brown has won a full scholarship in the 1992 Japan-U.S. Senate Youth Exchange Program.

"Amanda competed with top students from throughout Michigan to receive this award," Riegle said. "She'll undoubtedly benefit from participating in this cross-cultural program, and I hope she will share her experience with others when she returns home."

Brown will spend six weeks this summer with a host family in Japan. She will meet top government officials from Japan, and will travel to San Francisco to attend a special seminar on Japanese language and culture.

She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Malcolm Brown of Grosse Pointe. She is a member of South's basketball, track and debate teams. She also plays viola in the school orchestra and performed last year in the school's production of the play "Anything Goes." Outside school, Brown studies ballet, volunteers at a local soup kitchen and is a referee for a local soccer league.

The Japan-U.S. Senate Youth Exchange Program, established in 1981 by the Japanese government, is administered in the United States by Youth for Understanding (YFU) International Exchange.

High schools in each state were invited to nominate one student to the program. The top 12 students from each state were then interviewed by a state selection committee, composed of representatives from the National Association of Independent Schools, the National Council for Social Studies, YFU International Exchange, and one representative of Japanese background or education. The two top students are officially nominated to the program by their U.S. senators, based on the recommendations of the selection committee.

For more information on the Japan-U.S. Senate Youth Exchange Program, write Youth for Understanding International Exchange: 3501 Newark Street NW, Washington, D.C., 20016, or call toll-free 1-800-424-3691.

The Time Machine

One day when the grass was swaying, I saw a leprechaun. It was packing its gold in a pot. I asked for some wishes, and he said I could have two wishes.

I asked for a time machine and the pot of gold he packed. I looked to my right and there they were. With that, he was gone.

I went right to the time machine. It was made out of the same kind of gold. First it took me to the nine planets and the Star Trek ship. Finally it took me to the basketball all-star game. I turned out to be on Combining panning techniques with a "speed" filter produced this exciting shot of a race car for Nagler's camera.

Get a piece of the action

Most of us are used to seeing action shots where the subject is "frozen" at the peak of the action. And, of course, there's nothing wrong with depicting subjects in this way.

But if we could intentionally blur the subject or the background to produce a feeling of motion, imagine the exciting results! After all, being creative as a photographer means that there may be times you'll want to transcend the face value of your subject and instead bring out its true essence.

You can do this with action shots using a technique called panning. In short, panning means following the action through the viewfinder of your camera and then shooting at a slower shutter speed than that required to stop the action.

Here's how it's done. Prefocus on a spot in front of you where you'll want to make your final exposure. Stand firmly with the upper part of your body twisted in the direction from which the action will come. Follow the subject with your camera as soon as it's visible in the viewfinder much like a marksman will follow a moving target.

When the subject reaches your preselected spot, gently squeeze the shutter release and continue tracking the subject with your camera as a sort of "follow-through." Keep in mind that your movement before, during and after the release of the shutter should be one continuous, smooth motion.

Consider use of a tripod when panning to help get a smooth, uninterrupted movement, especially with a slower shutter speed.

What shutter speed should you use? A good rule to apply is to select a speed two increments slower than that required to freeze the action. For example, to take a pan shot of a speeding race car, use 1/125 second (normally you would use 1/500 second). To give a feeling of motion to a moving bicycle, try 1/30 second; a walking individual, 1/15 second. Remember that the slower the shutter speed the more blur will appear in the finished picture.

Practice makes perfect. Before releasing the shutter, try following the action several times in order to get the rhythm of the motion. If you do, chances are you'll be re-

Home burglarized

A home in the 20700 block of Toles in Grosse Pointe Woods was broken into about 3:10 p.m. Feb. 20.

A resident who was home alone heard a loud noise on the second floor and went to investigate. When she pushed on the door of her daughter's upstairs bedroom, someone pushed back, preventing her from opening the door. She then left the house and called police.

When officers arrived, they found pry marks on the back door, and the scuttle door to the attic was ajar. Police searched the house, but no intruder was found.

Nothing was reported taken.

By Ronald J. Bemas
Staff Writer

Grosse Pointe Farms will continue its successful Dutch elm disease treatment program this year by spraying its trees this month.

The city has again hired Shock Brothers Inc. to do the spraying. The price of $20 a tree for city-owned trees and $23 for privately owned trees has not changed since 1989.

The Farms feels its spraying program helped keep elm loss to less than 1 percent last year. Only nine of the 950 elm trees in the Farms were removed last year due to infestation.

One reason for the success is a city ordinance which requires residents to spray their elm trees. The Farms is sending work orders to residents should they decide to use the city's contractor. If they don't use the city's contractor, they must show proof that their trees have been sprayed.

The Shores is the only other Pointe that sprays its elm trees. Both cities inject the trees if they feel they have caught the disease in time.

The Farms also has an inspection procedure that determines which elms are infested. If a tree is beyond help, it is cut down and destroyed within 15 days.

Spraying is expected to be completed before the leaves come out, if the weather cooperates.

Controlling diabetes in children

Featuring Dr. David Transue, director of the Pediatric Diabetes and Growth Clinic at St. John Hospital and Medical Center.

Dr. Transue, a board-certified pediatric endocrinologist, received his medical degree from the University of Michigan and endocrinology training at Children's Hospital of Pittsburgh. His office is in the St. John Professional Building in Detroit, near Grosse Pointe.

Q: How should parents handle a diabetic child?
A: For a child with diabetes, a balanced diet, regular exercise and daily insulin injections are the components of diabetes control. Control means keeping their blood sugar level as close to normal as possible, so they can feel good and keep up with their friends.

Q: Should children be allowed to manage their own diabetes treatment and monitoring?
A: With supervision, children can monitor their sugar levels and learn to master the components of self-care. Some time between the ages of 6 and 10, the child will start to do some of their own testing.

Q: What about insulin injections?
A: We usually begin to talk to children about this around age 10. A few children may do it earlier, but that's unusual, and they should never be giving it without adult supervision.

Q: Are there some things a diabetic child shouldn't be expected to manage on their own?
A: Responsibility for the diet requires adult involvement right up through the teenage years. There are just too many temptations.

A history of Grosse Pointe and the Detroit area can be found at the bottom of Lake St. Clair.

Leon, Alan and David Sehojan show off some of the more interesting things they've uncovered from the bottom of Lake St. Clair.

found what appeared to be a human skull. Upon closer examination, they saw it was simply a ceramic decoration. The most interesting find? Perhaps it is the rifle a partner of theirs found off the foot of Alter Road that can be traced to George Washington's regiment.

The state owns the lake's bottom and therefore owns what is found on it.

"They don't care if you take bottles and other smaller items," said Alan, "but anything of any historical value you have to check with the state before you keep it."

They recently donated many of their finds to the Grosse Pointe Historical Society and to the Michigan Historical Museum in Lansing.

"This is Grosse Pointe history here," Leon said.

And the Grosse Pointe Historical Society is excited about the donation.

"It is of great value to us," said society president Olivia Mandel.

"We really do appreciate the donation and we think it will make a fantastic addition to the collection," said historical society curator Jean Dodenhoff. "I'm really very enthusiastic about it."

The Sehojans have been diving for years — after receiving instruction and being certified by passing standardized tests. Classes are offered by several local dive shops and although prices vary, the cost will run a couple hundred dollars.

"The lake has changed," David said. "I've been diving here since I was little and I see things have changed."

For one thing, there are fewer fish lately and the lake is clearer. The reason for both of these changes is zebra mussels.

The mollusks, which established a stronghold here several years ago after being carried over in the ballast of ocean-going vessels, are disrupting the food chain and eating the algae that used to be the main staple of smaller fish.

The zebra mussels, which reproduce at an alarming rate, are also destroying historical artifacts under the water.

They'll invade anything and reproduce so quickly they cover and destroy whatever they latch onto.

"There's a ton of stuff out there," Alan said. "And before long it's going to be lost because of the zebra mussels."

As for David, he'd rather dive in Lake St. Clair than anywhere else, and he's been diving around the world.

"People go all over the world to find treasures, but it's right under our nose," he said.

Warrant issued for armed robbery suspect

A warrant has been issued for a suspect in the Feb. 26 armed robbery of a woman at Wayburn and Jefferson in Grosse Pointe Park.

The 54-year-old woman had been driving on Jefferson at 12:17 a.m. when her car broke down. She was then approached by a man who offered assistance. She refused his offer and walked to a nearby service station.

The station, however, was closed, so she went to a pay phone. The man who had earlier offered assistance approached the woman again. This time he pulled a handgun and took her purse, which contained a small amount of cash. The woman was not injured.

Police know the identity of the suspect and have obtained an armed robbery warrant against him. The man was still at large Monday.

Youth cited for party — twice

A Grosse Pointe Park teenager has been cited for conducting an illegal open house party. In fact, he allegedly did it twice, two weekends in a row.

At 11:15 a.m. Feb. 22, police received a report of a large disorderly party in the 1000 block of Yorkshire. They found about 100 teens apparently consuming alcohol.

While police were attempting to disperse the gathering, two youths interfered and tried to fight with the officers. One of the youths will be charged, police said.

The youthful resident apparently wasn't dissuaded by the police putting a damper on his plans and held another bash last weekend, for which he will again be cited, police said.

Car stolen, found stripped

A 25-year-old Shelby Township man told Grosse Pointe Woods public safety officers that his black GMC "Jimmy" was stolen from the St. John Hospital parking lot the night of Feb. 29.

The man said the car doors were locked and that the vehicle was equipped with an anti-theft alarm. Officers searched the area but could not find any broken glass, which would have been an indication that entry was gained by breaking a window.

Detroit police found the vehicle about 12:40 p.m. March 1 on Mapleridge in Detroit.

The steering column had been damaged and the tires, battery and radio were missing.

Quilting has rich, colorful history

Quilting is an ancient art which scholars believe began in the Far East or North Africa. Europe learned of the art and warmth of quilts in the 11th and 12th centuries from Crusaders returning from the Middle East who wore quilted material beneath their armor.

Quilting began with the discovery that two layers of fabric could form a warm coverlet if separated by an insulating filler and held together by sturdy stitches called counterpoints or quilt points. As the art evolved, these stitches were worked into elaborate decorative patterns.

The first quilted bedcovers produced in America were ascribed to their English prototypes as memory and a limited supply of imported yard goods dictated. The high cost and scarcity of materials led to improvisation.

Thrifty women of the New World recycled every usable scrap of retired clothing, bedding and upholstery fabric. The result was a "hit and miss" or "crazy quilt."

When cheap, colorful fabrics became available, the crazy quilts were joined by complicated pieced and patched designs. The quilt became a "canvas" on which a woman could paint with fabric, expressing her innate sense of color and form.

The settlers along the middle Atlantic coast are credited with the ornamental phases and the vigor of expression manifested before and after the Revolutionary War.

In Colonial America, during the confinement of winter, women spent their spare time piecing and patching quilt blocks in the kitchen. When spring came, the blocks were assembled and a border was added. Invitations were then sent to the neighbors for a quilting bee.

A quilting bee was second in importance only to meetings of a religious nature. The women would breakfast at 5 or 6 a.m. and arrive early. Work would begin at once. At 11, the workers were called to dinner.

Afterward it was back to the quilt which had to be finished before the men returned for supper at 5. The fiddler would arrive and dancing would begin.

Specialty quilts were made as keepsakes, for betrothals, friendships and ministers. Each patch of material in a keepsake quilt told some part of a family's life. A betrothal quilt was the 13th of a baker's dozen of quilts made for a young woman's dowry.

Quilts made in recognition of a friendship or a minister (album quilt) were of similar design. Each woman made a block with her name embroidered in the center. The talk at the quilting bee was usually of a religious or philosophical nature. Susan B. Anthony gave her first talk on equal rights at such a bee.

In the mid-18th century applied quilts came into favor. Quilting in the North was a necessity, but in the South, it was the epitome of refinement. The pieced quilt was then considered inferior to the elaborate applied quilts which were being done by plantation mistresses. Applied work reached its peak around 1850.

In the middle of the 19th century, the crazy patchwork of silk and velvet, handpainted and embroidered with silk and metal threads, became popular. This patchwork was done in the North and South.

To own a silk crazy quilt was a status symbol. People too poor to own one were pitied. Embroidery was used so exclusively that the patches were almost obliterated. These quilts were fine enough to be used in the parlor and were called "slumber robes" or "couch throws."

Patchwork lagged in the early 20th century, but had another revival in the 1930s due to the Depression. During that period it reached a perfection of color combination and needlecraft that surpassed earlier works. There were quilt shows across the country and the county fair stimulated competition.

Today, early quilters would be astonished to see their work hanging on museum walls. The story of the quilt is the record of the human family. It is a legacy for future generations.

Thanks very mulch

Thousands of Christmas trees were turned into mulch late in January as part of Grosse Pointe Farms' first city-wide tree-mulching run by a volunteer corps recruited by Ken George. Residents brought trees to Pier Park and left with mulch. Sears set up a display of its new environmentally friendly yard equipment and all the shredding was done free of charge by local tree companies. The program is expected to be expanded next year.

Learn the ancient art

Quilting began with the discovery that two layers of fabric could form a warm coverlet if separated by an insulating filler and held together by sturdy stitches called counterpoints or quilt points.

On Saturday, March 21 and 28 from 10:30 a.m. to 2:30 p.m. Romona Hammond will teach beginners the quilt-as-you-go method. This two-part workshop will be held at the Detroit Historical Museum. It is designed for those with minimal or no experience.

Participants must be 14 and up. Attendance at both sessions is required to master the skill of quilting. There is a $20 fee for the workshop. To register or for more information, call Walter Weaver at 833-1263.

The Detroit Historical Museum, a Detroit Historical Department institution, is at 5401 Woodward at Kirby in the University Cultural Center. Free parking is available in the museum's lot on Kirby.

Moir's Automotive Service: A touch of pomp at the pump

By Donna Walker
Staff Writer

When Ron Moir leaves Moir's Automotive Service this month, he'll be closing a chapter of his family's history.

The service station, located on the southwest corner of Fisher Road and Grosse Pointe Boulevard in Grosse Pointe City, has been owned and operated by his family for more than 42 years.

But starting this month, it will have a new owner.

Moir, 52, of Warren, who has run the business for the past 23 years, recently sold it to Ed Schocker, 52, of St. Clair Shores.

The sale was to become final this week and the company's new name will be Fisher Road & Maumee Automotive, Schocker said.

"I'll stay on for a couple of weeks to help with the transition," Moir said. "My last day here will be March 13."

His father, Zack Moir, started the business in October 1949. Before that, he repaired trucks for Detroit Edison and worked at Farm's Market, which at the time was owned by his brother, Bill Moir.

In 1954, during his freshman year at St. Paul High School in Grosse Pointe Farms, Ron Moir went to work at his father's station.

"I pumped gas, repaired tires, and picked up and delivered cars," he said. "That's something we still do — pick up and deliver cars. We've always built our business on service, and we continue to give the same quality of service we did more than 40 years ago."

When he started there 38 years ago, gasoline was 25 to 30 cents a gallon, and he said he remembers it dipping as low as 16 cents a gallon during the late 1950s or early 1960s.

Last Thursday, his gasoline pumps read $1.54 a gallon for regular unleaded and diesel fuel, and $1.64 for super unleaded. However, that was for full service; Moir's never had self-service pumps.

Ron Moir, right, and his service station on Fisher across from Grosse Pointe South High are a familiar sight to numerous residents. After 42 years, Moir has sold the business. He's shown with his son Jim.

At Moir's, attendants pumped the gas and cleaned customers' windshields. They also checked the oil and tire pressure upon request.

Moir said most people used to enjoy getting full service, but in the past five or six years the trend has been toward self-service.

Another change he has noticed: "I used to see a lot of people pull up in chauffeur-driven cars. We still get one every now and then, but it's not like before — before they tore down the large estates in the area and subdivided them."

Moir's Automotive Service truly has been a family affair.

Before Ron Moir started working there, his older brother, Alec, helped their father at the station. Alec Moir, 62, is now a sales manager for Richards Automotive, his brother said.

In 1965, their father suffered a heart attack and four years later he retired, selling the business to Ron.

Zack Moir will celebrate his 86th birthday on March 31 and lives in Pompano Beach, Fla.

Ron's youngest son, Jim, 29, of Detroit, began working at the station in high school. He left last week to take a job at Modern Hard Chrome, where he will supervise the maintenance of the plating equipment.

Other family members who have worked at the station include Ron's older son, David, 30, of St. Clair Shores; his sons-in-law Jim Robert (the husband of his daughter Linda) and Tim Duncan (the husband of his daughter Laurie); and his nephew, Ken Moir, who now has his own service station.

"Some of my sons' friends also worked here," Ron Moir said. "It was a nice stepping stone for them."

Moir is also using it as a stepping stone.

He said he plans to take a vacation for a few months and visit his father. After that, he said he'd like to try a career in sales.

"I relate well with people and enjoy meeting the public,"

he said. "That's why I think I'd make a good salesman."

He said he decided to sell the family business because, "after 38 years of working here, it was time. I wanted to get out while I still had my health and try my hand at sales."

He said that he and his wife, Suzanne, plan to stay in Michigan, where they can be near their children and four grandchildren.

"And we have a lot of friends around here," Moir said. "I grew up in Detroit and I live in Warren, but I feel like I'm a Grosse Pointer. I went to school in Grosse Pointe and I've worked here most of my life, so I feel like I'm part of the community."

Moir has been a member of the Grosse Pointe Rotary since 1969 and chaired its benefit auction two years ago. His office last week were two gift baskets he packed for the group's upcoming auction, which will be held March 7 at Assumption Cultural Center in St. Clair Shores.

He said he plans to remain in the club for as long as he can. Rotary requires its members to attend a minimum number of meetings, and Moir said he doesn't know if he'll be able to comply. It depends on his future job situation.

Although he'll miss his customers and friends, Moir said he won't miss having to wake up at 5:30 every morning to go to work. During his first 10 years at the station, he worked from 7 a.m. to 7 p.m. six days a week, and he didn't take a vacation for the first seven years.

"I was too busy. I wanted to help my father get this place off the ground," he said.

For the past several years, Moir has worked 7 a.m. to 5 p.m. Monday through Friday and 7 to noon on Saturday. The station's hours have been 7 a.m. to 6 p.m. Monday through Friday and 7 a.m. to 1 p.m. on Saturday.

The new owner, Schocker, said he plans to keep the same hours and continue to offer both automotive repair service and gasoline.

He's bringing with him a mechanic he's known for about 15 years, and keeping four of Moir's employees. The only two who are leaving are Ron and Jim Moir.

Schocker said he doesn't know yet if he'll offer self-service pumps.

"I haven't really thought about it, but there'll be some changes," he said. "Everyone runs their own business a little differently than others would."

Schocker ran the 9 Mile & Jefferson Shell station in St. Clair Shores for more than 16 years. He recently sold it to Bill Nalu of St. Clair Shores. The sale became final March 1, Nalu said.

Schocker said he is looking forward to moving to Grosse Pointe City.

"I'll be happy to get out there and meet the people," he said.

Alcohol warning labels not very effective, study shows

A federal law took effect in November 1989 requiring all alcoholic beverages to carry a warning of the health risks of drinking, including dangers of birth defects among women who drink during pregnancy.

But the warning label is not effective among pregnant women?

Not really, said Janet Hankin, associate professor of sociology and obstetrics and gynecology at Wayne State University.

Hankin and psychology Professor Ira Firestone are studying the effects of alcohol warning labels on pregnant women's drinking habits.

Hankin says alcohol abuse during pregnancy has been linked to a variety of birth defects in babies born to women who consume large quantities of alcohol while pregnant.

"Fetal alcohol syndrome is very specific and involves severe mental retardation and facial deformities," Hankin said. "One of the problems is that damage may occur around the time of conception and women may not know when they're conceiving, and so prevention efforts need to emphasize that."

The study, funded by a five-year grant from the National Institute on Alcohol Abuse and Alcoholism, is just one of the research projects of the Fetal Alcohol Research Center headed by school of medicine dean Robert Sokol, who is recognized nationally for his expertise on fetal alcohol syndrome.

Project researchers studied and collected data on women receiving prenatal care at the University Health Center between 1989 and 1991. That information will be compared with data already compiled on more than 9,000 women seen at Hutzel Hospital since 1986.

Hankin's study group consisted of black women from lower socio-economic backgrounds believed to be at risk of drinking during pregnancy. About 5 percent of the study group were heavy drinkers, consuming an equivalent of an ounce or more of hard liquor daily.

"Those are the women who are at greatest risk for alcohol-related birth defects," Hankin said.

Researchers interviewed 3,075 women seeking prenatal treatment six months before and 18 months after the warning label law was enacted. The women, who were interviewed just before their first prenatal visit, were questioned on their attitudes about drinking during pregnancy.

Hankin said that even before the label law took effect, between 31 and 42 percent of the women tested believed alcoholic beverages carried a warning label. Although awareness of the label increased slightly from 31 to 59 percent after the warning label law took effect, Hankin said that it didn't have much of an impact on the amount of alcohol women reported drinking.

Researchers found that women who already believed drinking was harmful to the health of the child were likely to consume less alcohol than women who believed drinking alcohol wouldn't have much effect on the unborn child.

Other factors were greater in the decision to drink than knowledge of the warning label, including prior history of heavy drinking, older age, and personal attitudes, Hankin said.

Hankin adds that alcohol warning labels alone are not enough. She believes labels should be accompanied by greater public awareness.

"Our argument is that since we have not found a dramatic decrease using standard methods such as the warning labels and the warnings women receive in the clinic, we need something more intensive.

"For example, the cigarette warning labels haven't made a differences in and of themselves, but you couple that with billboard ads, laws against smoking in public places and various health education programs and employers giving bonuses for people to stop smoking...all that has added up to an overall decrease in smoking in the U.S. population," Hankin said.

Above all, she said, prevention is the key to deterring fetal alcohol syndrome. Hankin and Firestone recently submitted a grant proposal on "Protecting the Next Pregnancy."

Researchers will attempt to reach the mother as soon as she delivers a baby and encourage her to moderate her drinking to protect future pregnancies.

Because researchers still don't know just how much a woman can drink during pregnancy without endangering the health of her baby, Hankin said, "The advice is don't drink."

Institute tops $1 million goal

The Journalism Institute for Minorities at Wayne State University celebrated its $1,182,000 fundraising effort and honored the men responsible for its success.

Wayne President David Adams and Ruth Seymour, director of the institute, commended Bob Giles of Grosse Pointe Farms, editor and publisher of The Detroit News, Heath Meriwether of Grosse Pointe Woods, executive editor of the Detroit Free Press, and Mark Trierweiler of Brighton, division manager of Field Public Relations, AT&T.

During the celebration, student Vidya Sekhar, host of Club Connect on Channel 56, placed garlands of flowers around the necks of the honorees.

In addition, Ben Burns of Grosse Pointe, visiting professor at Wayne State and formerly with The Detroit News and Adams Newspapers, was recognized. Burns has been a major force in developing the institute. He read excerpts from congratulatory letters including Mayor Coleman Young and Detroit School Superintendent partnership designed to recruit and train top minority talent for the communications field.

Deborah McGriff. The institute, founded in 1985, is a media and university

Purse snatched

A purse belonging to a 66-year-old Canton woman was snatched Feb. 25 while she was leaving a restaurant parking lot on Mack in Grosse Pointe City.

She had parked her car in the lot and was walking toward the restaurant when a man came up behind her and grabbed her purse, knocking her down in the process.

The purse snatcher escaped in a car driven by a second person.

The woman was not seriously hurt and refused medical attention.

2nd Division ex-Marines being sought

A search is on for former marines who have served with or been attached to, the Second Marine Division, the division famous for its participation in historically significant engagements such as Guadalcanal, Tarawa, Saipan, Tinian, Okinawa, the Cuban crisis, Dominican Republic, Lebanon, Grenada, Panama, and more recently, Desert Storm.

The Second Marine Division Association is attempting to locate participants in the above actions, plus those who served with or were attached to the division at any time, or are currently in the Corps.

Although many friendships have been renewed and old buddies located through reunions and other activities, the association is not merely a social organization. Among its other activities, is a scholarship program for deserving dependents of both active and former Second Division Marines. The 1992 association reunion will be held in September.

Any person who is in, has ever served with, or been attached to the Second Marine Division, is requested to contact: Bill Smith, 21500 Lassen St., 168, Chatsworth, Calif. 91311; phone is (818) 341-0504.

Outreach librarian delivers mindfood to homebound

by Margie Reins Smith
Feature Editor
"I'd like a biography of Elvis Presley, please; 'Wuthering Heights' by Emily Bronte; two trashy romance novels; the Time magazine that announced the Man of the Year for 1987; Margaret Atwood's latest collection of short stories; and Gloria Steinem's new book about self esteem. My address is..."

A bit exaggerated, for sure. However, homebound Grosse Pointers who like to read — and who can't get to the Grosse Pointe Public Library because they're elderly, handicapped or ill — can order books almost as easily as they can order a pizza.

Delivery within 30 minutes is probably out of the question, but Helen Leonard-Malis, outreach librarian for the Grosse Pointe Public Library, could probably fill the above order and deliver it within a few days.

And the price is right. "This is food for the mind," she said.

Visits to homebound clients (who must live within the Grosse Pointe school district) make up the major portion of Leonard-Malis' work. She currently has a list of 80 clients and visits about 40 of them each month.

"The frequency of visits and the kinds of books I take depend entirely on the reading needs of the individual," she said.

Leonard-Malis interviews

each client about his or her reading preferences and interests.

"It's easy to find books for someone who says he likes to read biographies of Civil War generals; or for someone who likes Danielle Steel and Victoria Holt and Phyllis Whitney; or someone who wants to read certain magazines," she said. "Others are a little harder. I usually take a bag of selected books. I like to give the client the same experience that I have when I select books from the shelves at the library."

She recalls an elderly client who was reading a spicy novel and confided that she hid it from her grandson. She also remembers a man she called because his wife thought he'd like to use the outreach services of the library.

"The poor man was hurting. He had severe arthritis and some other problems as well. I don't want any of your damn books," he said.

"He called back later and said, 'Well, maybe I could use one book; I found a series of books he loved and he read them all.'"

Some of Leonard-Malis' clients are visually impaired. She helps them apply for Talking Books, a national program of the Library for the Blind and Physically Handicapped which provides books on tapes or records, along with talking book machines (tape players or phonographs). She helps each reader learn to operate the machine and assists with the selection of materials.

"Reading is therapeutic," she said. "And it's important to have someone at the library to help."

"One of my favorite success stories is a young man, a veteran, who is blind.

"He enrolled at a local community college and he needed to get information from textbooks."

Leonard-Malis helped him register with Recordings for the Blind, a national non-profit voluntary organization in Princeton, N.J. He was able to have his textbooks recorded on tape at Wayne State University so that he could read and study along with the rest of the class.

"Last spring he earned an associate's degree and now he's enrolled at Wayne State University," she said.

Another important part of Leonard-Malis' outreach program is presenting lectures and book reviews, and leading book discussions with various community groups.

"I really enjoy doing these. I can take the same piece to different groups and get totally different responses," she said.

She had been working with the Food and Friendship program, part of Services for Older Citizens (SOC). "Unfortunately, it ended Jan. 1 because of lack of funds," she said.

She also works with a Great Books group that's been together for 15 years. It now meets at the Neighborhood Club. "This group recently chose a topic, 'Words and Music,' which is about Broadway musicals. We read excerpts from the plays and listen to some of the music. It's a perfect way for adults to learn," she said.

She also works with a group of people in the residential unit at Cottage Hospital. "Some want to read. Others can just sit and listen."

Leonard-Malis said her purpose is not to convince people that reading is valuable.

"I don't expect any converts. But it's quite dramatic to see someone to whom reading is important discover that he or she can still read," she said. "Some people live by themselves and I may be the only person they see in several days. The opportunity to talk about what they've read is also valuable."

The library also has a substantial collection of large print books that was started 15 years ago. Leonard-Malis said she often directs clients to other community resources, such as information agencies or organizations for the visually impaired. She makes use of the interloan service among libraries throughout Michigan in order to find specific books people request.

Anna Sanom of Grosse Pointe Woods and her late husband, Sam, heard about the outreach program through their daughter-in-law.

"Mrs. Leonard-Malis has been very kind to us," she said. "Sam died last October. He had been using Talking Books. Then one day he asked for a recording of the Bible in his native language, Arabic."

"We were able to track it down for him," Leonard-Malis said. "It wasn't easy to find."

"He listened to the whole Bible," Anna Sanom said. She continues to use the outreach services of the library. "I tell her autobiographies, magazines, Readers' Digests. Sometimes she has a hunch about what I'd like. She's like a friend, too," she said.

Leonard-Malis would like people to know that the outreach program is available to those who need it. "Just because someone is homebound, this should not mean the end of his library usage or service," she said. "I'm never afraid of having too many people to visit. I've seen the change that reading can make in people — time after time."

Leonard-Malis doesn't make cold calls. Anyone who would like more information about the library's outreach program should get in touch with her. Call 343-2316 and ask for Helen Leonard-Malis.

Photos by Margie Reins Smith

Helen Leonard-Malis, outreach librarian for the Grosse Pointe Public Library, takes books to about 40 homebound residents every month. She also helps visually impaired residents find recordings and tapes of books — even college textbooks. She also leads book discussions and presents book reviews for community organizations.

National, local chefs cook up fundraiser to fight hunger

Share Our Strength (SOS) is a nationwide network of chefs working to provide a sustained source of funding for groups that aid the hungry.

Grosse Pointe's Jimmy Schmidt, owner and chef of the Rattlesnake Club, is a member of the national SOS board of directors and will serve as the local chairman of the annual SOS fundraiser which takes place simultaneously in cities all over the nation.

"Taste of the Nation" will be held Monday, March 30, at the Rattlesnake Club in the Riverplace atrium in Detroit.

"This is the most important fundraiser for SOS, with hundreds of chefs and professionals joining in the fight against hunger," Schmidt said. "Note that 100 percent of the proceeds are earmarked for recipient organizations."

Three Michigan agencies will benefit directly from Detroit's fundraiser. Gleaners Community Food Bank will receive 45 percent of the proceeds; Hunger Action Coalition will get 25 percent; and Food Gatherers will get 10 percent. The remaining 20 percent will go to national and international agencies.

Other planners of the event include Tom Schoenith and Frank Newman of Grosse Pointe, Michael Ilitch, Frank J. Vega and William Henry.

Others participating include Tom Brandel of Tom's Oyster Bar and Tom's Steamer and Zachary Smith of ONE23.

Tickets for "Taste of the Nation" are $125 for patrons; $50 for benefactors. To order tickets or get more information, call 923-7855.

Joyce Hague of Bloomfield Hills, far left, holds one of the orchid baskets she created as centerpieces for a recent DSOH Volunteer Council fashion show fundraiser. Martha Volpe, Mado Lie and Harriet Wu were a few of the Grosse Pointers who attended the 58th annual benefit for the DSO.

League to the Northeast Guidance Center is throwing a glamorous fundraiser, "Passport to Monte Carlo: A Millionaire's Party," on Saturday, March 14, from 8 p.m. to 1 a.m. at the Barrister House in St. Clair Shores.

Tickets are $45 a person and include $1 million in gambling chips (just to get started), hearty hors d'oeuvres and an open bar.

"Because of funding cuts, our financial assistance is even more vital. That is why contributions to this event are even more essential," said Kathy Heitman of Grosse Pointe Farms, president of the Assistance League board of directors. "As volunteers, we have pledged our commitment to the organization and work toward its vitality."

Bonnie Semple is chairman of the event. She's been a member of the Assistance League since 1974 and is currently serving on the board of directors.

On the steering committee for the benefit are Lynne Ruppe, Laurie Jensen, Bethann Kirk, Sharon Vasher, Mary Shafer, Mary Carey, Kathy Letscher, Jovanna Cisco, Bonnie and Tara Perry and Michelle Semple-Shaheen.

The Northeast Guidance Center provides service to people of all ages who have serious emotional problems and mental illnesses. The Assistance League was founded in 1964 to inform the community about mental and emotional health programs available at the center, to sponsor fundraisers and to provide hands-on assistance to the center.

For more information about the Millionaire's Party, call 824-8000.

The Pastor's Corner Looking for spring

By the Rev. R. Michael Foley
Grosse Pointe Memorial Church

There are definite signs that spring is around the corner. If you haven't noticed, take a look.

The other day I discovered a brave daffodil breaking through the cold dirt, an early announcement of spring's arrival. Some of my neighbors are beginning to rake their lawns and clean out flower beds. Even the stores are clearing out spring fashions in order to make way for summer wear. From what I see going on in the community I would have to conclude there are definite signs that spring is not far off.

Anyone who has lived here for a while knows that even though winter may be more than half over, it still has one more good storm for us.

I know of a church in northern Michigan that worked for months planning an outdoor Easter sunrise service — only to have it canceled because a foot and a half of snow fell on Easter Day.

This makes me ask how wise it is to put our trust in the signs of spring around us. They can be deceiving. Perhaps someone should warn the daffodil to watch out and tell my neighbor to keep his snow shovel handy.

Metropolitan Detroit, our nation, even the world seem to be in the grip of a long cold winter of economic decline. The announcement of plant closings and layoffs by GM last week was not welcomed by those who are searching for signs of recovery.

The presence of homeless neighbors holding signs "Will work for food" are nagging reminders that we are far from being the land of opportunity for all citizens.

Therefore, it doesn't surprise me that it's difficult for us to see the pain in the faces of the poor who stand on our street corners and wait in unemployment lines.

We would rather hear the upbeat announcement of forecasters who promise that all the signs point to recovery. We would rather be cheered with news that economic spring is on its way. The fact is — some will not live long enough to see spring, much less recovery.

Where is the church in the midst of all this? What sign should we look to for answers amid all this pain? As we enter into Lent, I suggest that the central sign and symbol for the Christian church is not the Easter lily that makes its debut once a year at springtime, but the cross which hangs there day in and day out.

The cross reminds us that Jesus was abandoned by his friends. He was homeless and, at times, hungry. He was often unwelcome and in the end, He suffered death for crimes he didn't commit.

Jesus entered our world not to avoid suffering, but to walk with us in the midst of suffering.

What all this means for those who call themselves Christians is that if we're looking for a sign that Christ is with us in the world, don't look for Him exclusively in a stained glass sanctuary or a beautiful sunset. Look for Him in the places where the homeless gather and where the hungry beg for bread and the unemployed wait their turn in line.

While you're looking, take time to look into the face of that brother or sister, for you may, in fact, find that it is the Christ looking back at you.

Special music will be provided by Jane Dornbrock at the organ and Johanna Gilbert, soloist.

Members of east side churches will take speaking parts in the service and will serve as greeters, ushers and hostesses for a fellowship hour following the service.

World Day of Prayer was instituted by women in the United States as a day of prayer for missions. It has since grown to be a common day of prayer celebrated by millions of Christians in 170 countries and regions of the world as an expression of Christian unity.

All are invited to participate in this unique ecumenical service.

AAUW presents career learning workshop

Students in grades 4 through 8 and their parents will learn about career choices from the experts at a career learning day workshop from 6:30 to 8 p.m. Thursday, March 19, at Parcels Middle School, Mack and Vernier in Grosse Pointe Woods.

The evening will feature a special assembly for parents, breakout sessions for students, and keynote speaker Molly Brennan, a General Motors engineer and driver of the winning car in the GM/UM Sunrayce Solar Car race.

The purpose of the seminar, sponsored by the Grosse Pointe branch of the American Association of University Women, is to encourage students, particularly girls, to continue to take math, science and computer courses throughout their high school years and to foster an understanding of the limitations of career options without this basic foundation.

Currently, when compared to boys, the proportion of girls in math, science and computer classes decreases significantly after girls leave middle school. Part of the seminar is directed at parents to increase their understanding of the importance of encouraging girls to take these classes.

Some of the experts who will be on hand to speak to the students are Grosse Pointers Ellen Cahpin, research scientist in nuclear medicine; Beth Ayn Deutsch, sports trainer; Donna Huntington, CPA; Ardis Maciolek, planetarium director; and Dr. Mohammad Saberi and Dr. Zahra Moaltari, physicians.

Other professions represented include engineer, pharmacist, veterinarian, dietician, attorney, clinical nurse specialist, physical therapist, computer technologist, builder/contractor, occupational therapist, sports medicine expert, banker, environmental scientist, small business owner, airplane pilot, architect and graphic designer.

The program will begin at 6:30 p.m. with registration and refreshments. The whole group will convene at 6:50 to hear the keynote speaker. Students then may attend three smaller group sessions to hear three career speakers.

Parents will remain in the auditorium where a panel of Grosse Pointe school counselors will discuss their roles in helping students to make class choices and the responsibilities of parents and students in this process. There will also be a film dealing with a recent national AAUW study of "Girls and Self-Esteem" and its effect on career choices.

Cost of the career learning day activities is $5 per family by a check made payable to Grosse Pointe AAUW. Fliers are available at any Grosse Pointe school or library. Registration is due by Thursday, March 12. Late registrations will be accepted on an availability basis. For further information, call Fran Catalfio-Truba at 881-9585.

HAVE A PLEASANT TRY AT PERFECTION
BRIDGE BY WOODY BOYD ♠♥♦♣

The year is still young, yet I have already been an attestant to two deals that would be exciting reading in anyone's bridge column. The one I'm reconstructing today is a puzzler to play for nine tricks in no trump. You will enjoy declarer's way of getting there as he was one of the very few who did so. The other which will appear next week was a beauty to bid in order to reach the pinnacle position of the partnership's cards and you will delight in that one too.

In the three years I've been writing this column, only the remarkable Ira Rubin has graced these pages for two consecutive weeks, but today's star will match that feat. Not that Willie Winokur ever suggested there was any coincidence in their artistry or playing station, but I believe Ira would be pleased to applaud the doctor's efforts for his back to back exceptionally well handled exploits.

East won the heart lead and returned the queen to declarer's king. Let's get into the huddle with today's star before he played to trick three. There were fifteen H.C.P. out against him and East had already shown seven of them with the play to the first two tricks. It was reasonable to conclude that the other red ace was with West and most of the remaining high cards were there too. Based upon the assumption that if East held the spade queen protected, he couldn't make the contract Willie placed that card with West. Because there were transportation problems between the two hands to supplement key out card concerns South's plight didn't look bright. Best he decided to play it as a double dummy problem... So be it at three he laid down the spade jack, West's queen and dummy's king. (As the cards are, it might have given declarer the shivers if West played low, but there was nothing to gain as he would have let it ride.) Next the spade ace and a not noticeable smile when the ten appeared from East. Trick five, the club queen over-taken by declarer's king followed by the ace, jack and seven putting East in for the first time with his club ten. The handwriting was already on the wall and to West it was clearly legible. He was end played in diamonds and spades. At trick nine, West played the spade six which was won by dummy's seven and then the spade nine. At eleven, dummy's diamond jack won by West's queen and again he was ended trading off the last two diamonds. In all, Willie won four spades, a heart, three clubs and a diamond for a brilliantly shared top with only three other declarers who didn't get as difficult a defense.

Autograph hounds, take note

By Ronald J. Bemas
Staff Writer

It is said that for every object there is someone, somewhere who collects it.

It's disconcerting to think there is someone, somewhere who collects used dental floss or Partridge Family albums.

But Tom and Cordelia Platt of New Jersey are a little more on the mainstream. They are two of the biggest collectors of autographs and they will bring their inventory of more than 200,000 items to the Meadow Brook Pavilion on the Oakland University campus Friday through Sunday, March 13-15.

Being history buffs got them interested in autographs. Tom collects Civil War items and Cordelia collects art and original sketches by famous people.

They have been dealers as well as collectors for more than 20 years and are members of the Universal Autograph Collectors Club, an association of people who collect autographs.

Over the years, they've had a number of unusual signatures including those of several Native Americans and even Buffalo Bill. The autographs most requested by collectors and other individuals are those of two American icons — Abraham Lincoln and Marilyn Monroe. The rarest autographs? Those of Christopher Columbus and William Shakespeare, whose signatures have cost some wealthy collectors several million dollars.

In their traveling display the Platts have signatures from more than 20,000 entertainers, 200 presidential items, items signed by Civil and Revolutionary war participants and several favorites like Henry Ford, Harry Houdini, Clark Gable, Babe Ruth, Charles Lindbergh and Elvis, in addition to the signatures of thousands of composers, artists, scientists, inventors, authors and cartoonists.

Prices range from $4 to three-figures. Not only do the Platts sell autographs, they spend time explaining the value of certain items and talk with children about how and what to collect.

Although they travel to more than 30 autograph shows a year, this is their first time to the Detroit area.

The Platt's display will be just one of more than 100 exhibits of antiques, furniture, glass, jewelry, pottery, Civil War items and much more available at the Spring Antique Show put on by Scorpio Events.

Hours are Friday, 5 to 9 p.m., Saturday, 11 a.m. to 9 p.m., and Sunday, 11 a.m. to 5 p.m. Parking is free, and admission is $3. Young collectors of all kinds are admitted free.

With Art to the Schools, everybody wins

By Ronald J. Bemas
Staff Writer

To paraphrase that old song, you gotta have art. But when schools face cutbacks and reductions in funding it's usually the first to go. And now with the state cutting funding not only to the schools, but especially to the arts, the Detroit Institute of Arts' perennial Art to the Schools program is becoming ever more important.

"We're real proud of the program," said staff adviser Nancy Jones.

Now in its 26th year, Art to the Schools, affectionately called ATS, grew out of a Junior League project. The idea, Jones said, is to pique interest in the DIA and by doing that, get children and their families to visit the museum. Get them interested when they're young and they'll stay that way forever, Jones said.

The program provides a free art appreciation talk — generally lasting 45 minutes to an hour — on a variety of subjects, using slides of artifacts and items in the DIA.

The talks are given by specially trained volunteers who are screened and must successfully complete a course which focuses on art history and public speaking.

Then, depending on the volunteer's area of interest, they get specialized instruction.

The final exam for the class — which lasts from September to May — is to do a presentation like one that will be given to students.

"Quality control is very important," Jones said.

That's why, even after graduation, the volunteers get continuing training.

"The idea is that the more you know about art, the more you know about your own subject," she said.

Arlene Lewis of Grosse Pointe Farms said she remembers the rigorous training course even though she took it eight years ago.

"It was a hole in my education and I really learned a lot," she said.

Another volunteer from the Farms, Jean Doelle, took the class five years ago and said it was as challenging as a college class.

Although Lewis and Doelle focus their efforts on the ATS outreach program, the training allows them to volunteer in the museum, too — another advantage of taking the class.

"This is a great program," Lewis said. "I like to see how excited the kids get."

Doelle also said the thrill she derives out of seeing the children respond is what keeps her involved.

The program is designed to fit in with the schools' curriculum and recently it was updated to mesh better with newer ideas in education. It focuses on children in the fourth, fifth and sixth grades, because the younger kids don't have as much background and the older kids are too blasé, Jones said.

"Much of the material dovetails into their curriculum," Lewis said.

Barbara Heck, a teacher at St. Clare of Montefalco school, in Grosse Pointe Park, agrees. She has taken advantage of the free program for years.

"It reinforces what they learn in class," Heck said. "The sixth graders get ancient art because in their social studies they study ancient history. The fifth graders get American art because they study American history. They think it's really nifty that they can answer the questions."

Of the 75 active volunteers, there are former teachers, housewives and retired businessmen who give talks. Each year more than 30,000 students in 600 schools are reached by ATS volunteers in the tri-county area.

"We try to match the volunteers with areas near them," Jones said. "But that's not always possible and I have to say the volunteers have been very willing to travel substantial distances. These people are the salt of the Earth."

Although there's no way of knowing what percentage of students who have an ATS program in class actually follow it up with visits to the museum, Jones says the feedback is extraordinary.

"We have teachers say the volunteers inspired the children to learn more about a certain subject and actually do certain art projects based on what they learned during the program," Jones said.

And to encourage family involvement, each student gets a postcard of something that was discussed during the program. The idea is that the students will go home, show their parents the card and talk about it, sparking parental interest, too.

"But you can't force people to go, you can only encourage them," Jones said.

"I think of it as a three-way benefit. The volunteers love it, the students enjoy it and at the same time, the museum is served."

Perhaps the best measure of how well the program works is the response from the students themselves. Students in Doelle's and Lewis' most recent talks — at St. Clare of Montefalco — were jumping in their seats, hoping to be called on to answer questions. After Doelle's discussion, the children gathered around her, telling her which slide was their favorite.

And in Lewis' class, one girl turned to the girl behind her and whispered, "This is cool."

From Bach to Morton, Ciosoni trio reaches for the stars

By Alex Sucek
Special Writer

The concert circuit is peopled today with artists who are above all performers of music in well-defined styles by composers whose names are already well known to audiences. The performers concentrate on reinterpreting again and again a well-established and acknowledged great repertory of crowd pleasing works.

Three artists presented by Pro Musica last Friday at the Detroit Institute of Arts, the Ciosoni Trio, turned the tables totally on those conventions. Their effect was to open the door to contemporary frontiers in music for the fortunate friends and members of the 65-year-old concert society who filled the museum's intimate Recital Hall.

Music

To begin with, while virtuosi in their own right, all three are educators and theoreticians of the first rank. Bassist Michael Cameron is professor of bass at Illinois University, flutist Tim Lane is on the music department staff at the University of Wisconsin and clarinetist Eric Mandat (also a composer) is a professor at Southern Illinois University. All have won top honors as performers, too.

A "combo" of flute, clarinet and bass is more likely to be found in a jazz club than a recital hall, but this trio knows no limits in repertory. It includes the standards. They also admire and perform jazz. But their primary interest is in the ferment, novelty and creativity of contemporary composers who are also educators and performers and whose names are still rare on standard programs. The fascination is that these composers are pushing concepts of tone production, harmony, form and style into new territory with full acknowledgment of the traditions that have gone before.

But frontiers in the arts, as in other fields, have a way of seeming strange and unintelligible, unless the lay listener gets a little guidance along the way. This trip with the Ciosoni Trio proved to be an eye opener from the start.

They began with one of the great historic examples of counterpoint, Bach's "Musical Offering," composed appropriately for the performers' choice of instruments. They followed it with a stark analogy, John Cage's "Sonata for Two Voices" and "Composition for Three Voices," which also make instrumentation the players' option and are exercises in counterpoint. Though the similarities ended there, the link over a three-century span of music was clearly established.

In every work there were exciting discoveries. In Luciano Berio's "Sequenze for Solo Flute" (1959) Lane introduced the audience to the flute's capacity for accenting with clicking keys and a flutter tone. In "Iberique Peninsulaire" by Fancois Rabbath, Cameron displayed a lyrical quality that made one think of the bass as a big cello. His response to that idea, however, was to describe the cello as a little bass. Along with the revelation that the bass fiddle is capable of beautiful and expressive solo playing was the enjoyment of discovering the engaging Spanish rhythms and melodies of Rabbath's piece rendered with appropriate verve by Cameron's performance.

The Salvatore Martirano work, "UTUS & Jest Fa'laffs," 1991, scored for trio plus audiotape, proved to be a highly appealing example of the use of high-tech electronic sounds in conjunction with conventional instruments. Not all such efforts have been as pleasant. The work displays both high musicianship and craft as well as a sense of humor.

Relating Martirano's reluctance to explain his inspirations in their very helpful comments delivered between pieces, the performers revealed their own speculation as to the composer's possible use of ideas from Verdi's opera "Falstaff." Some listeners suggested background music from an early comedy movie by Chaplin or the Marx Brothers. More important is the fact that the effect was impressive, highly musical and often amusing.

Two high points, occurring in the second half, were especially rewarding. "Capriccios Opus 142," 1989, is by composer Michael Cunningham, who was formerly at Wayne State University. It included exceptionally beautiful duets for the flute and clarinet which were played with superb ensemble by Mandat and Lane. The notes cascaded in highly original runs that were vaguely reminiscent of French impressionist music and equally beautiful.

And the finale brought the program full circle with the well-known and eternally appealing blues of Ferdinand "Jelly Roll" Morton. In the spirit of the entire concert, exploring and providing insight into music's evolution, the trio played "Buddy Boldens Blues" and the "Jelly Roll Blues" with a clarity and sophisticated elegance that gave a clear appreciation of the way that this remarkable, highly spontaneous music is put together. Not the performance you would expect to hear in a smoke-filled jazz club but a treatment that only heightened appreciation of Jelly Roll's very special musicianship.

Pro Musica's next musical adventure at the DIA will feature that rare operatic phenomenon, the Heldentenor, by bringing a young American, Keith Mikelson, from his fast-rising career success in Europe for an exclusive recital. He will fly in from Germany, between engagements in Wagner's opera "Meistersinger" and Beethoven's "Fidelio," for a Pro Musica evening on Friday, May 1. For more information, call 886-7207.

Fascinating characters make this history book come alive

Brave Companions: Portraits in History

By David McCullough
Prentice Hall Books. 240 pages. $21

What a splendid cornucopia of a book this is. David McCullough's "Brave Companions" overflows with riveting character sketches of amazing people who have accomplished amazing things. Although some of these people are relatively obscure, others are noted figures in our historic landscape.

Who among us has heard of Miriam Rothschild, David Plowden, Harry Caudill or Washington Roebling? Others, of course, are more familiar to us, such as Alexander von Humboldt, Louis Agassiz, Frederic Remington, Harriet Beecher Stowe and Teddy Roosevelt. Altogether, their lives and achievements brightly illuminated various nooks and crannies of our history, and McCullough's stunning portraits showcase these individuals for our enjoyment and benefit.

The author was born in 1933 in Pittsburgh, and educated at Yale. His previous books have twice won the National Book Award as well as several other prestigious prizes. He has also been the Newman Visiting Professor of American Civilization at Cornell and the host of two highly acclaimed Public Television series. This latest collection of his work is a compilation of essays written for a number of distinguished magazines, The Smithsonian, Audubon, American Heritage, Life and The New York Times Magazine. McCullough's sprightly essays introduce us to people we should know more about in such an entertaining fashion that we are not likely to forget them. As he so tellingly states in his preface: "It is a shame that history is ever made dry and tedious, or offered as a chronicle almost exclusively of politics, war, and social issues, when, of course, it is the full sweep of human experience: politics, war, and social issues to be sure, but also music, science, religion, medicine, the way things are made, new ideas, high attainments in every field, money, the weather, love, loss, endless ambiguities and paradoxes and small towns you never heard of. History is a spacious realm. There should be no walls."

First we are introduced to two scientists who have made their indelible mark on the world. In 1804 the young intrepid German-born explorer, Alexander von Humboldt, arrived in Washington to meet President Thomas Jefferson. The two men took an immediate liking to one another, and the president was fascinated by Humboldt's audacious plan to travel the largely unmapped interiors of South America to study the geography, climate, animals, plants and the natives. Humboldt wrote extensively of his explorations and his books greatly influenced scientists of his time. However, in spite of winning veneration, when he died at 90 he sadly concluded that by that time "most of his ideas became old hat" and "that his chief contribution had been to influence younger men."

One of these was the Swiss-born Louis Agassiz whose speciality was the study of glaciers. He taught natural history at Harvard where "like Humboldt before him, he took the greatest pride in the influence he had on the next generation of scientists."

Another unusual scientist is a scion of the noted Rothschild dynasty of international bankers, Miriam Rothschild, who lives year-round at Ashton Wold, an overgrown estate two hours' drive north of London. An entomologist of world renown, she studies bugs, her first love, but she is also an eminent microbiologist with many scientific papers to her credit. In spite of her enormous wealth, she has won deep academic respect and impeccable credentials. As one admiring professor of microbiology stated, "People talk about genius and use the term loosely, but this is really it."

McCullough devotes several essays to writers. He explains how Harriet Beecher Stowe and her "Uncle Tom's Cabin" helped to alter the course of our history, in part causing the Civil War. Another essay traces the aerial and writing exploits of Antoine de Saint-Exupery, Anne Morrow Lindbergh and her husband Charles, and the South African Beryl Markham. As McCullough asks: "Were they aviators who wrote or writers who took up flying? That is difficult to say, although I suspect that Saint-Exupery and Anne Lindbergh would have written under any circumstances. The appeal of aviation as they knew it and the appeal of writing were much akin."

A special friend of McCullough's was Conrad Richter, the author of frontier stories, who is the subject of an admiring sketch. As McCullough explains his tribute, "But Conrad Richter was my friend, and this is a personal reminiscence, not a review or literary appraisal. It is one man's homage to an authentic and exceedingly modest American artist about whom too little has been said."

More colorful characters are presented. Here are Frederic Remington, the cowboy artist; rough-riding Teddy Roosevelt in Medora, North Dakota, where he first fell under the spell of the untamed west; the Roeblings, father and son, who created the magnificent Brooklyn Bridge; Harry Caudill of Kentucky who fought long and hard against those who would despoil his state's lovely forests through ugly strip-mining; David Plowden, the itinerant photographer; and others who vibrantly glow upon McCullough's pages. Through the lives and deeds of these people, history springs alive for us and we can appreciate how individuals can influence the turn of events.

With McCullough's artful resurrection of the past, we realize that history is not a dull subject full of dates and boring facts. My only disappointment with his book is that it was not at least twice as long.

Fox presents a Broadway classic — 'Gypsy'

The glittering and gaudy world of show business at the end of the vaudeville era is the setting for "Gypsy," the musical comedy hit based on the memoirs of burlesque star Gypsy Rose Lee. The national tour of "Gypsy" comes to the Fox Theatre Tuesday, March 17, through Sunday, March 22, for eight performances.

"Gypsy" is the tale of Gypsy Rose Lee and her headstrong, ambitious stage mother Mama Rose, who will let nothing stand in the way of seeing her daughter become a star. With blond moppet "Baby June" and the less attractive "Baby Louise" in tow, Mama Rose sets out to turn her daughters into singing and dancing theatrical ingenues.

When vaudeville falls on hard times and "Baby" June elopes, Mama Rose turns her attention to the previously neglected Rose Louise. In a burlesque house where she practices the art of lady-like striptease, the ugly duckling changes into the witty and alluring "Gypsy Rose Lee," who's growing independence sparks fireworks when Mama Rose struggles to maintain control of the daughter whose talents she nurtured, cajoled and demanded.

"Gypsy" has captivated audiences since its first run in 1959. Featuring celebrated songs like "Everything's Coming Up Roses," "Let Me Entertain You," "Together Wherever We Go" and "If Momma Was Married," "Gypsy" captures family drama beyond the footlights.

"Gypsy" at the Fox Theatre features a critically acclaimed cast. Karlah Hamilton portrays Mama Rose. In the role of Gypsy Rose Lee is Jeannette tables on the main floor, theater seating in the mezzanine and ornate crystal chandeliers and wall sconces, The Gem is truly a jewel for Detroit's Theatre District.

"The All Night Strut!" is a

rage Theatre, 137 Park Street in Chelsea.

"More Fun Than Bowling" began previews at the Purple Rose Theatre Company on Jan. 23 and has played to capacity audiences, prompting the demand for additional performances. The play centers around the life and past loves of Jake Tomlinson, owner of the Dust Bowl Bowling Alley in the fictitious midwestern town of Turtle Rapids.

Reservations can be made by calling the Purple Rose Theatre box office at (313) 475-7902. Reservations are recommended. The box office is open Tuesdays and Fridays from noon to 6 p.m. and weekends of performances beginning one hour before curtain.

Macomb offers 'Kiss Me Kate'

"Kiss Me Kate," called Cole Porter's best musical, will have a three-day run at 8 p.m. Thursday, Friday and Saturday, March 19-21, at Macomb Center for the Performing Arts.

"Kiss Me Kate" is the story of a recently divorced actor and actress who are paired as the leads in a touring revival of Shakespeare's "The Taming of the Shrew." Their backstage bickerings parallel the shrew and tamer roles they play on stage.

The show enjoyed an opening run of 135 weeks, ranking it among the longest-running Broadway productions.

The show's hits include "Another Op'nin', Another Show," "Wonderbar," "I Hate Men," "Too Darn Hot" and "So In Love."

Tickets are $22 for adults and $20 for students and senior citizens and may be obtained at the center's box office or charged to Visa/MasterCard by calling 286-2222, Monday through Friday. Macomb center is located on the center campus of Macomb Community College at Hall and Garfield roads in Clinton Township.

Prize car designs on display

"Auto Design," an exhibition by seven Michigan artists and designers, is on display now through March 12 at the UAW-GM Human Resource Center, 2630 Featherstone Road, Auburn Hills.

The show is sponsored through Joint Ventures, a partnership of the UAW-GM Human Resource Center with the Creative Arts Center, Pontiac, and with the Paint Creek Center for the Arts, Rochester.

While much of the show casts a nostalgic look at the past, Ford automotive designer, artist and Grosse Pointe Camillo Pardo looks ahead in his "Concept 1, 2 and 3" creations. These masterful drawings of futuristic cars show that automotive design continues to capture the imagination of artists and designers.

Other works are by Betty Ruedisueli, Bill Mitchell, Jack Juratoric, Ben Salvador, Bill Castner, Belinda Durve and Ken Taylor.

The public is welcome to visit the show, but only limited times are available. For more information, call the Human Resource Center, 8 a.m. to 5 p.m., Monday through Friday, at 377-6624.

Stallone pulls another funny-boner

By Marian Trainor
Special Writer

It's a giant step from playing macho man Rocky Balboa and one-man army Rambo to being the son of a meddlesome mother who tries to run his life.

For Sylvester Stallone, the star of the comedy, "Stop! Or tents they demand to know if Stallone has the money. "What ya think I got," growls Stallone, "foodstamps?" Once inside he single-handedly collars the thieves and when they try to escape, shoots them. Stallone, in a victory gesture, blows smoke from his gun barrel.

The next scene is more in keeping with the rest of the film. Stallone is on the phone, frantically trying to reach someone who doesn't answer. He's calling his Mom in Newark. His girlfriend Gwen (Jo Beth Williams), whom he doesn't bother to call, is furious. A major mistake on his part. She is his boss. He's a sergeant, she's a lieutenant.

In the meantime, while he tries to set things right with Gwen, his mother Tutti (Estelle Getty), who plays Sophia on "Golden Girls," is packing her suitcases preparing to pay him a visit.

Getty is as feisty on screen as she is on TV. She still thinks of him as her little boy. When he meets her at the airport she is busy describing his bed-wetting prowess to passengers and flight attendants.

On the way to his apartment they see a crowd gather in front of a building. Out on an upper ledge a young man is threatening to jump. While police on bullhorns try to talk him out of it, Stallone pulls over, jumps out, rushes into the building and climbs out on the ledge. Before he can deliver his speech that has always worked in such a crisis, a voice on the bullhorn is heard. It's his Mom's. You're right, Mom talks the boy out of jumping.

And so it goes. She accidentally ruins her son's gun and, determined to set things right, hires a taxi and goes into a no-holds-barred neighborhood to buy him another. There she witnesses a murder.

The rest of the movie focuses on Tutti's attempts to meddle in the case as her son tries to solve it.

A rather silly and improbable story, it loses a lot because it's difficult to imagine Stallone as a put-upon-son.

Getty as Tutti is much like Getty as Sophia — lovingly dictatorial. And of course she gets all the funny one-liners.

"Mom" is not a good movie but it's not a bad one either. There are enough laughs to make it amusing. However, whether you enjoy it or not, stay to the end or you'll miss the best line in the film.

The Lyric Chamber Ensemble continues its "From Spain with Love" season with "Kaleidoscope," a diverse program of instrumental music and dance on Sunday, March 8 at 7:30 p.m. at Detroit's Orchestra Hall, 3711 Woodward.

It will include Vivaldi's "Concerto for Two Violins" performed by DSO artists Emmanuelle Boisvert and Geoffrey Applegate, along with "Scene Andalouse for Viola, Piano and String Quartet" by Joaquin Turina, Ravel's "Introduction and Allegro for Harp, Flute, Clarinet, and String Quartet," Tchaikovsky's "Souvenir de Florence" for string sextet, and "Miranda on the Veranda," choreographed by Peter Sparling and danced by Peter Sparling and Sandra Torijano of Ann Arbor Dance Works to music by Portuguese composer Carlos Paredes.

Other artists include DSO members James Van Valkenburg (viola), Patricia Masri-Fletcher (harp), Shaul Ben-Meir (flute), Marcy Chanteaux (cello), Lenore Sjoberg (violin), Adam Stepniowski (violin), Theodore Oien (clarinet) and Deborah Fayroian (cello). They will be joined by pianist Fedora Horowitz (LCE artistic director) and violinist Itzhak Schotten (professor at the University of Michigan School of Music).

Tickets are $22, $16, $12 and $8 ($2 discount for students and seniors). Group rates are available, and Visa and Mastercard are accepted. For tickets and information, call the LCE at 357-1111.

My Mother Will Shoot!" it is a giant step backward.

Stallone, who climbed to the top with his super-hero roles in the thrill-packed "Rocky" series and later as Rambo, does not fall easily into comedy but he keeps trying even after such vacuous attempts as "Rhinestone" and "Oscar."

This film starts off with the promise that along with a few laughs there will be some action. In a dark and threatening alley, police officer Joe Bomariski (Stallone) is staking out a warehouse loaded with stolen merchandise. When the crooks arrive to exchange cash for con-

The sun seems to shine a little brighter in Bermuda and the water looks a little bluer. And everywhere, color fills your eyes from resplendent gardens blushing with blossoms to pastel cottages crowned by glistening white roofs.

With four days docked in Bermuda, there's time to leisurely explore the island on a Grosse Pointe War Memorial-sponsored trip.

There will be a trip information night held on Thursday, March 12, at 7 p.m. at the Grosse Pointe War Memorial, 32 Lakeshore Drive in Grosse Pointe Farms. The trip is scheduled for June 27-July 4.

Taxi drivers double as guides and are eager to show their island. The British customs continue to prevail and lend an unmistakable charm and ceremony.

To protect Bermuda's infrastructure from crowding, the government chose four ships to call weekly and gave them exclusive 10-year contracts. Two are Celebrity ships, Horizon and Meridian. The War Memorial has chosen the sleek, sophisticated and spacious Horizon. Built in Germany at a cost of $185 million, 80 percent of its cabins are outside. It emphasizes comfort, luxury and style.

Pre- and post-cruise packages are available for one or two nights in New York City. For a trip flier, call 881-7511.

Price includes round trip air from Detroit to New York, transfers to and from the pier, port/service charges of $90, even-night cruise double occupancy, all meals on ship and round trip airport transportation from the War Memorial. There is a $450 deposit per person.

Final payment is due April 10. For more information, call 81-7511.

Local favorite Ruth Burczyk will be joined by her daughter and granddaughter in a "Concerto for Three Pianos" by Bach. The program concludes with "The Young Person's Guide to the Orchestra" by Benjamin Britten, narrated by WQRS' Dr. David Wagner. The concert will be at the Macomb Center for the Performing Arts, M-59 at Garfield in Clinton Township. Tickets are $7, $6 for senior/student and can be obtained by calling the box office at 286-2222. For information on a dinner/concert special, call the symphony office at 286-2045.

South skates past North in regional opener

By John Miskelly
Special Writer

The Grosse Pointe South and Grosse Pointe North hockey teams usually meet twice a season in games often punctuated by excitement and emotion.

Last Monday, the crosstown rivals met for a third time in the Class A state regional opener at the St. Clair Shores Civic Arena. While the atmosphere was surprisingly subdued, there was no doubt about the game's importance.

South's 7-4 victory sent the Blue Devils into the second round against Notre Dame. A win over the Irish would put South in the regional final Saturday night at 7.

The Blue Devils dominated most of the contest against North.

"We wanted to dump it and make them chase the puck," LaLonde said, explaining his strategy.

Norseman coach Dan Abraham had some strategy of his own which North employed well during the first period.

"I wanted to play conservative," he said. "I wanted it to be the longest and most boring period. We wanted to frustrate them."

Although South did seem frustrated at times, the Blue Devils avoided taking bad penalties and came out of the period with a 2-0 lead on goals by Brian Crane and Tom Rajt.

North changed its plan in the second period.

"Our goal was to come out flying," Abraham said, "but we made some costly mental errors."

South struck quickly in the second period when sharp passing by juniors Paul Haddad and Marcel Chagnon and senior Kris Hoglund resulted in a goal by Haddad.

North, which had only two shots on Blue Devils' goalie Jason Hall in the first period, had a power-play shortly after Haddad's goal, but South capitalized with a shorthanded tally by Kevin Brennan, who also had four assists in the game.

"That's our No. 1 line," LaLonde said of the unit consisting of Brennan, Crane and Rajt, which combined for 11 points. "We expect scoring from them."

The Norsemen continued to make mistakes and took a penalty at 8:30 of the second period. South's Ted Hanawalt scored 23 seconds later on assists from Rajt and Brennan to boost the Blue Devils' lead to 5-0.

The lead reached 6-0 with about two minutes left in the second period on a goal by Hoglund from Chagnon and Hall. Hall had stopped a two-on-one rush by the Norsemen moments before Hoglund's goal.

North scored on a wrist shot by Brian Quinn during the final minute of the period.

Only two penalties were called in each of the first two periods and there was a total of eight for the game.

"The game was too important for that," LaLonde said, referring to the lack of penalties.

North perked up midway through the final period. Gary Corona scored on a power play, with Donny Tocco assisting. Freshman David Ferguson cut the Blue Devils' lead to 7-3 at 11:23 and Corona notched his second power-play goal of the

North qualifies two for state

Grosse Pointe North's Keith Giannico is heading into the home stretch in his quest to become the Norsemen's second state wrestling champion.

Despite a painful rib injury, the senior 130-pounder took first place in last weekend's Class A individual regional tournament at Troy to bring a top seeding into the state finals in Battle Creek on March 13-14.

"He did a fantastic job," said North coach Art Roberts, who coached three previous state champions at Madison Heights Bishop Foley. "He won 1-0 in the final, but he really controlled the match."

Sophomore Dave Sandercott, the Norsemen's other regional qualifier, also made it to the state meet by finishing fourth at 103 pounds.

Giannico, who raised his record to 43-0, will face some stiff competition in the state meet.

"Everybody's good now because you're down to the 16 best in each weight class, but there are two other undefeated kids at 130 pounds," Roberts said. Giannico hurt his ribs during the district tournament and the injury hampered his workouts, but the new format for the state tournament will help him get healthy for his championship bid.

In past years, the state individual tournament was held the week after the regional, but this year the state dual meet championship will be held between the individual regionals and finals.

"It's perfect for Keith, because he can take a few days off," Roberts said.

Giannico had a second-period escape for the deciding point in his victory over Port Huron Northern's Ryan Radigan in the regional final. Giannico had beaten Radigan 2-0 in the district final a week earlier.

Giannico's other victories were a 6-1 decision over Hazel Park's Kevin Dunaway and a 6-4 verdict over Eric Barnes of Troy. Giannico trailed Barnes 3-2 going into the third period, but got an escape and a near fall to win the match.

Sandercott split four matches in the regional to improve his record to 34-10.

"Seven of the 10 losses have been to three guys and two others were when I wrestled him at 112," Roberts said. "Shorty's been doing a great job. If he can win two matches at the state, he'll get a medal. He's so mentally primed I wouldn't be surprised if he did it."

Sandercott opened the regional with a 9-2 victory over Redford Catholic Central's Bill Lamb. He then lost to Roseville's Devon Gray for the third time this season, but bounced back with a 4-2 overtime victory over Anchor Bay's Rich Sykes.

Sandercott dropped a tight 2-1 decision to Hazel Park's Josh Bauman in the consolation final.

Grosse Pointe South's three regional qualifiers, Scott Cairo, Chris Gianino and Jesse Culver, failed to advance to the state meet. Gianino suffered a hand injury in an early bout at 145 and had to default.

The Red Wings' Jimmy Carson, who grew up in Grosse Pointe and attended University Liggett School, will be a guest instructor, along with Mike Hartman of the Winnipeg Jets, Mike Hudson of the Chicago Blackhawks and Brad Schlegel, the captain of the Canadian Olympic Team.

Red Wings' associate coach Doug MacLean will also be at the school.

Returning to lead the on-ice sessions is Don MacAdam, who was an assistant coach of the Red Wings under Jacques Demers. MacAdam is now coaching in the American Hockey League.

The Great Lakes Hockey Skills School is designed to develop players between the ages of 6 and 14. Emphasis is placed on improving skills in power skating, puck control, shooting and deking. A daily video tape analysis allows students to see themselves improve and it helps correct weak points.

Red Wings' scout Chris Coury, professional power skating instructor Stefany Fanelli and several Ontario Hockey League and college players are part of the coaching staff.

The cost is $195 per player and includes 12 1/2 hours of ice time, a jersey, autographed pictures of the pros and a snack between ice sessions.

SKI STANDOUT: Megan McRill, a seventh-grader at Pierce Middle School, repreber and December at the Killington (Vt.) Mountain School under a cooperative agreement between the Grosse Pointe public schools and the Vermont school system.

During the summer, McRill trains at Mount Hood (Ore.) Government Ski Camp with other young downhill racers and the Olympic Training Team. She also works with the Hurricane Race Team.

CAREER BEST: Former Grosse Pointe North gymnastics standout Jennifer Dube scored a career-high 9.60 points on floor exercise for Michigan State last week in the Hobbie's Spartan Invitational gymnastics meet.

Dube's performance helped Michigan State win the team championship in the meet. The Spartans are 11-2-1 overall and 4-0 in Big Ten action.

GOLF LESSONS: Assumption Cultural Center in St. Clair Shores will offer a six-week series of golf instructions, beginning Monday, March 16.

The classes are taught by golf pro Ulysses (Dish) Saros, who will cover complete fundamentals of the sport. Beginners will be taught the basics, while experienced students will receive advanced instruction. All students should bring a five iron to class.

Day and evening classes will be offered and will be held indoors.

Norsemen search for hot streak

Grosse Pointe North's basketball team has been running hot and cold all season and coach George Olman hopes there's one more hot streak left in his club.

The Norsemen, who fell to 3-9 in the Macomb Area Conference White Division and 7-11 overall after losses to Sterling Heights Ford (80-58) and L'Anse Creuse North (64-32) last week, close the regular season Friday at Fraser. North has dropped its last six games.

State tournament play begins next Monday when North plays Hazel Park at 7 p.m. in the East Detroit district.

"We're playing hard, but we aren't getting any scoring," Olman said. "We shot only 26 percent against L'Anse Creuse North."

Adam Lowry, who is North's leading scorer, didn't play in either game because of a strep infection and point guard Jason Rio continues to be sidelined with a sprained ankle.

Cold first quarters plagued the Norsemen in both games. They trailed Ford 21-7 after one period and faced a 13-2 deficit in the LCN game.

"That's a deep hole against good teams," Olman said.

North matched LCN point-for-point in the second quarter and sliced the Crusaders' lead to eight points early in the second half before LCN went on a 14-0 run to wrap up the victory.

D.J. Reynolds led the Norsemen with 13 points and Adam Korzeniewski added 11.

North never recovered from its slow start against undefeated Ford and trailed 40-21 at halftime.

Reynolds led the Norsemen with 14 points. Korzeniewski had 12 points and nine rebounds.

Knights are optimistic

University Liggett School's basketball team slipped three games under .500 with a pair of defeats last week, but coach Chuck Wright remains optimistic about the Knights' chances in the state tournament.

"We have been a growing, learning team all season," Wright said. "We have developed to the point where we can give any Class C or D team all it can handle. Our team, led by (Ken) Hubbard's and (Jason) Drook's toughness is ready to surprise a few people."

ULS, which ends the regular season tonight, March 5, at Center Line St. Clement, was assigned to the Class C district at Detroit DePorres. The host Eagles, who have been ranked No. 1 in the state for most of the season, and Lutheran East are among the favorites to take the district title.

Last week, the Knights dropped a 66-61 decision to Detroit Evangel, which was ranked No. 6 in Class D, and they bowed to Oakland Christian 64-59 to fall to 8-11.

Against Evangel, ULS jumped ahead early and led by as many as 11 points. Hubbard had six points and five assists in the first quarter.

Evangel closed the gap to four points at halftime and the Knights were clinging to a three-point advantage after three quarters. A 13-point fourth quarter won the game for Evangel.

Hubbard led ULS with 18 points and Drook added 11.

In the Oakland Christian game, ULS erased a 13-9 first-quarter deficit with a 23-point explosion in the second period and the Knights held an eight-point halftime lead.

Oakland Christian scored 24 points in the third quarter and forced ULS to play catchup the for a surprise if they look past the tournament hosts when they play them in the tourney opener next Monday at 7 p.m.

"We're capable of playing with anybody in the state," said South coach George Petrouleas after Sterling Heights Ford beat the Blue Devils 76-65 last week to clinch the Macomb Area Conference White Division championship.

The Blue Devils are 8-4 in the league and 12-6 overall.

"We played hard against Ford, but we didn't finish off our plays in a few critical situations," Petrouleas said. "There was one stretch in the third quarter when we missed six straight shots from within six feet of the basket."

Ford coach Jim Barker, who is two victories away from his first 20-0 regular-season after several 19-1 campaigns, was expecting a stiff test from the Blue Devils.

"We made some big defensive plays when we had to," Barker said. "We knew we'd get tested by South."

South led Ford 19-17 after one quarter and the Blue Devils were clinging to a 33-32 advantage at halftime after sophomore Paul Gentile, who played a strong game, sank a pair of free throws with four seconds remaining.

South's lead at the end of the first quarter would have been even greater if the Falcons' Andy Brodi, who led all scorers with 26 points, hadn't hit a three-pointer from beyond half-court at the buzzer.

Brodi's shot hit a cable suspended from the ceiling, but neither official saw it.

"If the ball doesn't hit the wire it hits the ceiling," Petrouleas said. "It changed the flight. That play brought them right back into the game."

Ford finally took the lead during an eight-point run early in the third quarter while South was having trouble putting the ball in the basket. The Falcons led 49-44 at the end of the period and extended the lead to 11 points early in the final quarter.

The Blue Devils mounted one more comeback, cutting Ford's lead to 58-51 on four straight free throws by Blair Hess, but Hess drew his fifth foul on a questionable call with 5:03 remaining and the Falcons countered with a 7-0 spurt to lead 65-51 with 2:22 left.

"Losing Blair took away some of our inside game," Petrouleas said. "And they were having trouble stopping us inside. We were going to keep going at them."

Mike McLaughlin led South with 25 points and Mike Armstrong tossed in 15. Armstrong led the Blue Devils with 11 rebounds and McLaughlin pulled down six.

Ford's 6-foot-5 senior center, Jeff Ruprecht, had 18 points and 10 rebounds and Chris Thomas added 10 points for the Falcons.

Earlier in the week, Anchor Bay stunned South 50-48 in a MAC White game.

"We made some mental mistakes and we didn't execute well," Petrouleas said. "It was a matter of doing everything wrong that we could do wrong."

The Blue Devils had a chance to win late in the game, but failed to convert their opportunities.

"We fouled them three times in the last couple minutes and they missed the first of their one-and-ones each time, but we never scored on our possessions," Petrouleas said.

McLaughlin led South with 16 points and Armstrong had 14. Hess was the leading rebounder with seven.

Devils roar back to beat ULS

By Chuck Klonke
Sports Editor

John LaLonde has spent nearly a full season with his Grosse Pointe South hockey team, but sometimes his squad still baffles him.

"We work on certain things in practice and when we're playing a game it sometimes looks like we've never even touched on the subject," LaLonde said.

That's what happened for one stretch during the Blue Devils' non-league game with University Liggett School last week.

The Knights overcame a 5-1 South lead, tying the game on Stefan Teitge's goal at 10:47 of the third period, but the Blue Devils got late goals from Brian Crane — his third of the game — and Kevin Watt to escape with a 7-5 victory.

"We took a lot of bad penalties in the second period," LaLonde said. "We let them get back into the game."

ULS coach John Fowler wasn't thrilled with his team's performance, either.

"We didn't play as well as we can as a team," Fowler said. "The power play moved the puck well and there were instances of good team play, but you can't beat a good team if you don't play well for 45 minutes."

The first period was well-played by both sides. South's Kevin Brennan scored the only goal of the period when he knocked David Tucker's rebound into the net with 1:21 remaining. Each team had 10 shots and goalies Tom Best of ULS and the Blue Devils' Jason Hall both made some good saves.

South dominated the first half of the second period. Tom Rajt scored at the 39-second mark after a giveaway in the Knights' zone. Crane scored his first goal during a power play at 4:57 and boosted the Blue Devils' lead to 4-0 at 7:36 when he converted a centering pass from Marcel Chagnon.

Defenseman Bill Robb put ULS on the board with a power-play goal at 8:50, but Brennan boosted South's lead back to four goals only 57 seconds later.

Then trouble struck the Blue

Devils. ULS scored three times in the final 2:57. Andy VanDeweghe triggered the outburst with a shot from the side of the net. John Maycock beat Hall on the far side at 13:49 and Eric Kisskalt cut South's lead to 5-4 with 12 seconds remaining in the period when he scored off VanDeweghe's rebound.

Andy Brewer replaced Hall in goal to start the final period and he made several outstanding saves before Teitge scored the tying goal from a scramble around the net.

"It wasn't Andy's fault," LaLonde said. "He made three saves before they scored. We just didn't clear the puck."

The Knights outshot South 14-6 in the final period, with Brewer doing an excellent job of keeping them at bay.

Watt completed the scoring with 1:10 left when he picked up a loose puck at the blue line and broke in alone on Best.

"It wasn't as scary as it could have been," LaLonde said of North's comeback.

"We know we're not the most talented club," Abraham said. "We're role players. That's where our success comes from. I'm happy with these kids."

North ended the regular season with a 3-1 victory over Ann Arbor Huron.

Jeff Jensen, Joey Sucher and Corona scored for the Norsemen, who finished with an 8-13-2 record.

"There's a lot to be proud of," Abraham said.

South closed out the regular season with a 5-2 loss to No. 1 ranked Brother Rice. The Warriors avenged an earlier 2-1 defeat at the hands of the Blue Devils.

"We made three very bad mistakes," LaLonde said. Rice scored three of its goals on breakaways.

Hoglund and Frederickson scored the South goals.

South gymnasts take second

One step up the Great Lakes Eight Gymnastics League ladder made Grosse Pointe South coach Al Trombley a happy man.

"This is the most points we've scored in a league meet," Trombley said after the Lady Devils finished second to Trenton with a score of 126.00 points. The Trojans had a winning score of 128.15.

"I'm not convinced (Trenton) is better than we are, but I'm happy with the second-place trophy. We made some mistakes but we moved up from last year's third-place finish. I wouldn't have been happy if we hadn't moved up," he said.

As usual, senior Robin

Ebright led the way for South, but several other Lady Devils had personal best performances.

Ebright was second in all-around with a 34.95. She won parallel bars with a 9.2 and vaulting with a 9.0, was second in floor exercise with an 8.45 and took third in balance beam with an 8.3 score.

"We cut Robin to three events because of everything else she's involved in at school," Trombley said. "She didn't start competing on the beam until three meets ago, so that's why her score wasn't higher."

Belleville's Shannon Tarris was first in all-around with a 35.80 score.

South sophomore Hilary Andrei was ninth in all-around with a 30.60. She took seventh in vaulting with a personal-best 8.4 and also recorded personal bests on the bars (7.35) and in floor (7.75). She had a 7.1 in beam.

Janece Anderson had three personal bests, including a sixth-place 8.25 in floor exercise. She scored 8.05 in vault and 7.05 on bars.

Melissa Grego had a personal best 7.5 in floor exercise and 7.6 on the beam.

Senior Andrea Reynolds had two personal bests, scoring 7.8 in floor and 7.55 in vault. She also had a 7.0 in beam and 6.7 on the bars.

Trombley was pleased with the efforts of three freshmen. Shannon Keefe scored 8.0 in vault; Kati Pata had a personal best of 7.4 in floor; and Jaimie Cornwith recorded her personal best of 6.95 in beam.

"I think we can do even better next year, even though Robin will be graduating," Trombley said. "We have a lot of real good freshmen and sophomores."

Host Clarenceville was third in the team standings with 123.85 points, followed by Dearborn Edsel Ford 120, Belleville 117.9, Grosse Pointe North 115.35, Wayne Memorial 113.40 and defending champion Fraser 104.75.

Grosse Pointe North's volleyball team is doing all the right things at the right time of the season.

"Our mental attitude is totally there," said coach Leslie Harwood after her Norsemen posted Macomb Area Conference White Division victories over Anchor Bay and Fraser last week.

"They thought they could beat South earlier in the season, but now they know they can do it if they play well. When South lost to Ford they knew that this can be the time to do it."

The two crosstown rivals were hoping to meet twice this week. They completed the league season on Wednesday and could clash again in the Class A district championship at South on Saturday.

Two Detroit schools assigned to South's district dropped out of the state tournament, leaving only Regina, North and South. South will play Regina at 10 a.m. and the championship match between the Lady Norsemen and the winner of the earlier match will follow.

A strong showing in the Bedford Invitational also helped boost North's confidence.

The Lady Norsemen suffered close defeats at the hands of Temperance Bedford and Livonia Churchill during pool play, but beat Carleton Airport 15-5, 15-6 in the first round of the finals before bowing to Burton Atherton 11-15, 15-8, 15-2 in the quarterfinals.

"Those are some of the best teams in the state and we can compete with those people if we want to," Harwood said.

North's 15-5, 8-15, 15-10 victory over Fraser featured continued strong play from Stephanie Gore, who had 20 hits, four kills and 14 blocks. She also served seven points.

Tricia Campau served 12 points; Missy Bania had 15 hits, four kills and six blocks; Linda Krieg had five blocks; Melissa Drouillard and Amy Sacka each had 11 hits and Campau and Sacka combined for seven assists.

The Lady Norsemen breezed past Anchor Bay 15-1, 15-11 as Campau served 14 points and Jenny Shapiro served seven.

Gore had 16 hits, three kills and four blocks. Missy Bania also had three kills and Shapiro did an excellent job of passing. Campau was the leading setter for North.

Several players compiled impressive statistics in the Bedford tournament. Campau had 73 good serves out of 77 and scored 50 points, including 14 aces. Drouillard had 28 points and Gore served 27. Laura Cartwright and Drouillard each served nine aces.

Gore and Bania were the leading hitters and defenders.

Gore had 79 hits, 29 kills and 22 blocks. Bania graded 80 percent on passing with 12 blocks.

Campau was the top setter with 127 good sets out of 134. She had 26 assists. Cartwright was 64-for-69 setting and had nine assists.

"Our starters have done a good job, and the bench has been fabulous," Harwood said. "They're all playing their roles."

North's junior varsity kept rolling along, too, beating

Fraser 15-2, 15-1 and downing Anchor Bay 9-15, 15-5, 15-5 to improve to 26-0 overall and 13-0 in conference matches.

Tricia Morrow served 13 points and Jenny Wirsing added 12 in the Fraser match. Jody Costello had four spikes and Morrow, Lindsay Mergos and Maureen Zolik added three apiece.

Morrow served 10 points and Dawn Frontera had eight against Anchor Bay. Kristen Loehner and Julie Wit led the hitting attack.

Struggle looks over for South

Cindy Sharpe hopes the days of struggling are over for her Grosse Pointe South volleyball team.

Last week's 15-1, 15-1 victory over L'Anse Creuse North, which came on the heels of a 15-2, 15-5 triumph over Utica, gave Sharpe cause for optimism.

"We didn't mess around against L'Anse Creuse," the coach said. "We had a lot of good movement, we read better and we picked up whatever they hit at us. Our movement was just fantastic — by all six people we had on the floor. We did a good job of playing the ball up to the front and gave the front row people an opportunity to hit. If we have the opportunities to hit, we're real effective."

South played crosstown rival Grosse Pointe North on Wednesday to decide the Macomb Area Conference White Division championship. Sharpe was also hoping for another meeting with the Lady Norsemen on Saturday.

It will happen if the Lady Devils beat Regina in the semi-final game of the Class A district at South. South and Regina clash at 10 a.m. and the championship game against North is scheduled for 11:30.

The Lady Devils' two victories last week improved their record to 31-3-2 overall and 12-1 in the conference.

Angela Drake had seven kills, Stephanie Coddens six and Sue McGahey added three against LCN. Vicky Spicer served 11 points and did an excellent job in the back row.

"She's being a leader," Sharpe said. "She reads the hitters well and makes the calls that help her teammates get to the ball. The back row players don't get the glory the hitters do, but one good save can turn a game around. Coaches appreciate their efforts."

Drake had 10 kills in the Utica match, while Coddens picked up seven and McGahey added four. Sue Farnmouth served 11 points and had 17 assists.

"We've had to make a lot of lineup changes for one reason or another and it has affected our play," Sharpe said. "Now, hopefully, we've got the right combination to carry us into the tournament."

ULS ends its skid; begins winning streak

The Lady Knights posted victories over the Academy of Sacred Heart and Oakland Christian.

Highlights of the matches were the attacks by freshman Laura Haggarty and Juli Grant and sophomore Magda Chojnacka. Consistent serving by junior Carrie Birgbauer and sophomore Jamila Hoard also helped ULS beat its two opponents. Earlier, the Lady Knights lost 15-10, 15-11, 16-14 to Ann Arbor Greenhills and dropped a 15-10, 15-2 decision to Lutheran Northwest.

ULS had strong performances from Stacey Corbin, Grant, Chojnacka, Hoard, Birgbauer, Tameka Golden, Sharonda Curry and Yumna Jafri.

ULS closed out the regular season at Lakeview last Tuesday.

Robin Ebright of Grosse Pointe South took second in all-around at the Great Lakes Eight Gymnastics League tournament last weekend.

Blue Devils closer to MAC swim title

One more victory and Grosse Pointe South's swimming team can claim superiority in the Macomb Area Conference American Division.

The Blue Devils completed a perfect dual meet season last week with a 110.5-74.5 victory over Sterling Heights Ford. Now they're looking for a first place finish in the division meet, which will be held Friday and Saturday at Washington Eisenhower.

Saturday's finals are slated to begin at 2 p.m.

"The kids swam real well against Ford," said coach Fred Michalik. "A couple of them did better than I thought they would."

One of them was Pat Ollison, who missed several weeks with a shoulder injury. Ollison took second behind teammate Andy Walter in the 50-yard freestyle with a 22.7 clocking that missed qualifying him for the state meet by only one-hundredth of a second.

Ollison also swam on the winning 200 and 400 freestyle relay teams. The 400 team, which included Brenn Schoenherr, Walter and Tim Jogan, was clocked in 3:20.3, beating the state cut by nearly 2 1/2 seconds.

"That team should be in the top 10 in the state," Michalik declared.

Jogan was also a double winner, taking first in the 200 freestyle in 1:48.84 and winning the 500 in 5:08.6.

"We had him set the pace in the 500," Michalik said, explaining why Jogan's time was much slower than usual.

South's Matt Millikin tied for second in the 500 with a 5:09.2. Chad Hepner was first in diving with 253.90 points.

South's team of Schoenherr, Chris Jeffries, Walter and Jogan won the 200 medley relay in 1:43.3 and Millikin, Ollison, Norman Rice and Tim Har-mount took first in the 200 freestyle relay.

Schoenherr finished a strong second in the 100 butterfly in 57.25.

The Blue Devils took second, third and fifth in the 100 backstroke behind Kyle Zeller (1:01.3), Chuck Ruifork (1:08.76) and Mike Vandeputte (1:08.9). South took the second through fourth spots in the 100 breaststroke with Rob Bacon (1:09.5), Jeffries (1:09.59) and Rob Docherty (1:11.45).

North expects to battle for first

Les Roddis doesn't expect his Grosse Pointe North swimming team to win a lot of first-place medals in this weekend's Macomb Area Conference American Division meet, but he thinks the Norsemen will battle Grosse Pointe South and Sterling Heights for team honors.

"It'll be a three-team race and I think we'll win the fewest firsts of the three teams," Roddis said. "That's why we'll have to swim well from two through six and seven through 12. We have to get as low as we can with as many kids as we can to counter South's and Ford's firsts."

South completed the league dual meet campaign with a perfect record. North's only MAC defeat was to the Blue Devils. Ford lost close meets to both Grosse Pointe schools.

The league meet will be held at Washington Eisenhower on Friday and Saturday with the finals scheduled to start at 2 p.m. Saturday.

North tuned up for the conference meet with a 123-62 victory over Fraser that gave the Norsemen a final dual meet record of 10-4.

"It was one of the worst situations I've ever been in as far as motivating a team goes," Roddis said.

"There were no starting blocks because of the depth of their pool, so you couldn't compare times. It was a meet we knew we should win. Also, the entries for the league meet had to be in a day earlier, so nothing the kids did against Fraser would help their placing next week."

Despite the circumstances, the Norsemen had some impressive performances.

Sophomore diver Steve Chevalier set a personal record with a winning score of 195 points.

"He has improved his degree of difficulty this season," Roddis said. "Last year he was using dives with a 1.7 or 1.8 and this year he's diving 2.3, 2.4 — even a 2.5."

"Lisa (diving coach Lisa Gierschick) has done a good job teaching and motivating Steve and he's been very hungry this year. He wants to improve. He's reached two of his goals, which were to earn a letter and go to the regional. Now he'd like to go to the state meet."

J.P. Gamrat, who has been bothered all season by a slipped disc in his back, had a personal best of 1:02.81 in winning the 100-yard backstroke and Craig Williams had an impressive first-place time of 22.93 in the 50 freestyle.

Steve Williams won the 200 freestyle in 1:51.13 and the 100 butterfly in 1:03.95.

North's other individual winners were Charlie Roddis, 200 individual medley, 2:08; Rusty Milne, 100 freestyle, 53.21; Brett Collins, 500 freestyle, 5:01.55; and Chris Ditty, 100 breaststroke, 1:10.57.

The Norsemen swept the relays. Paul Swan, Gamrat, Ditty and Paul Reaser swam a 1:55.74 in the 200 medley relay. The Williams brothers, Milne and Charlie Roddis took the 200 freestyle in 1:38.41 and won the 400 freestyle in 3:38.84.

Several other North swimmers turned in their best times. They were Dennis Lex, 50 freestyle; Mike Collins, 100 freestyle; Jeff Dungan and Ryan Gallagher, 500 freestyle; and Rob Ament, 100 breast-

PRAYER TO THE HOLY SPIRIT
Holy Spirit, you who make me see everything and who shows me the way to reach my ideal. You, who give me the Divine Gift to forgive and forget the wrong that is done to me and you who are in all instances of my life with me. I, in this short dialogue want to thank you for everything and confirm once more that I never want to be separated from you no matter how great the material desires may be. I want to be with you and my loved ones in your perpetual glory. Amen.

Thank you for your love towards me and my loved ones. Pray this prayer three consecutive days without asking your wish, after third day your wish will be granted, no matter how difficult it may be. Then promise to publish this prayer as soon as your favor has been granted. Thank you for favors received. R.M.S.

1991 home sales reflect ups, downs; '92 optimistic

By John Minnis
 Real Estate Editor

Home sales and prices were up and down among eastside communities last year, reflecting the economic uncertainties in 1991.

Realtors, however, are predicting 1992 will be a good year for home sales.

Sales for the first two months of 1992 have already been positive, said Shirley Kennedy, president of the Grosse Pointe Board of Realtors, and she expects the upward trend to continue throughout the year.

"The market has been very strong," she said. "We're going to experience a good market (this year). We do feel pretty positive about it."

Sales soared in affluent Grosse Pointe Shores -- at least, they went up a lot for that small community of less than 3,000 residents and little more than 1,000 households.

Members of the Grosse Pointe Board of Realtors sold 23 homes in Grosse Pointe Shores in 1991 -- 35.3 percent more than the 17 houses sold there in 1990.

Also, the prices of the houses bucked the slow economy. The average selling price in Grosse Pointe Shores last year was $403,228, up 24.3 percent from the average 1990 price of $324,353.

Kennedy said the Shores has bigger, higher-priced homes that can push the average selling prices up.

By contrast, the other "Shores" -- St. Clair Shores -- saw home sales fall 3.1 percent from the 1990 level. Homes sold by members of the Macomb County Board of Realtors in St. Clair Shores in 1991 totaled 727, down from the 750 transactions the year before.

The average selling price of homes in St. Clair Shores remained flat, with only a 1 percent rise. The average home selling price in the Macomb County "Shores" was $79,725, up slightly from the 1990 average price of $78,896.

Back across the county line, sales dropped 9.2 percent in Harper Woods in 1991, compared with the year before. Realtors sold 197 homes in Harper Woods last year, down 9.2 percent from the 217 sold in 1990.

The Harper Woods average home price kept pace with inflation, rising 4.8 percent. The average sale price was $69,090 in 1991, up from $65,944 in 1990.

Builders Show celebrates year of the home

"We're hunkering down, holing up, hiding out under the covers... we're home," says Faith Popcorn, marketer and trend forecasting guru who coined the term "cocooning" in the late 1970s.

Once again, Popcorn has successfully predicted the current trend of "burrowing" in the 1990s.

The current trend has caught fire as people are talking about 1992 as "the year of the home." And what better place to learn all about innovative new ideas on the home improvement front than the 74th anniversary of the International Builders Home, Flower and Furniture Show slated for March 14 through 22 at Cobo Center in Detroit.

The idea of 1992 as "the year of the home" — and home as a "reality retreat" — has taken on new meaning as more people today continue to seek solace in the nurturing comfort of their homes and refinancing and reinvesting their savings back into their homes through remodeling, redecorating and restoration projects.

The central theme for the 1992 International Builders Home, Flower and Furniture Show will capture these 1990s trends, along with other lifestyle trends running the gamut from environmental protection and energy efficiency to lifestyle simplification, among others. Everything from recycled decks, "SMART" homes of the future and "earth friendly" furniture milled from fallen logs will be featured at this year's show.

Following is partial list of this year's scheduled events:

- Best Bird House Builder Contest: A longtime favorite at the Builders Show, the third annual Best Birdhouse Builder Contest is co-sponsored by The Builders Association of Southeastern Michigan (BASM) and The Observer & Eccentric Newspapers. The contest is open to seventh- and eighth-graders in Wayne and Oakland counties and is coordinated through the schools. Judging will take place prior to the Builders Show with the winning birdhouses displayed in a garden at the show.

- House of Nails Contest: In commemoration of the 40th anniversary of the House of Nails Contest, students from Lawrence Technological University will design and build this year's new Plexiglass House of Nails. All regular ticket-holders have a chance to win the $20,000 prize by estimating the number of carpenters' nails in the clear plexiglass house at the '92 Builders Show. Before the show, the house will be on exhibit at the National Bank of Detroit (NBD) at Fort and Woodward avenues in Detroit.

- Parade of Homes: This display is a joint marketing program co-sponsored by BASM and Comerica Bank. Enlarged renderings of beautiful homes built and designed by local builders and architects are displayed in a lush garden setting. A magazine published in conjunction with this display will provide consumers with floor plans and renderings of the fine homes in Livingston, Macomb, Oakland and Wayne counties.

- Michigan State Carpenters Competition: The Michigan Carpenters Competition will feature the state's most proficient carpenters as they compete for the state title from the floors of 1992 Home Builders Show. The competition will take place Saturday, March 14, and Sunday, March 15, from 10 a.m. to 7:15 p.m. both days. Saturday's competition will feature four millwrights and two resilient floor layers, and Sunday's competition will feature nine carpenters. Four Michigan finalists will go on to compete in the National Carpenters Competition, scheduled for October 4-5 in Detroit. In addition, a Nailing Contest will invite showgoers to compete with apprentices in hitting the nail on the head.

- Allied Florists/FTD Display: Area within the show where florists display floral arrangements. Allied/FTD sponsors a contest for best display and awards various prize ribbons. Most floral arrangements are left for auction on the last day of the show for the benefit of the Multiple Sclerosis Association.

- Chain Saw Carver: Massive woodcarving displays and live demonstrations held daily by local woodcarving artist Jeff Beckett of Keego Harbor. Beckett has been carving up metropolitan Detroit for more than five years and draws raves from the crowds who gather to watch his mastercrafter perform his art.

- Detroit Edison's all New "1992 SMARTHOUSE": Detroit Edison's 1992 SMARTHOUSE recently made its debut in Las Vegas as a 6,000 square foot, 30 foot high working exhibit, Detroit Edison will bring a scaled down version of its magnificent display to the Builders Show to educate and demonstrate its new technology to the public, the latest thing in the electrical field since circuit breakers. The exhibit includes a 30 inch x 40 inch theater which will demonstrate how this new integrated wiring works. Much like microwaves became readily available to the general public, so too will the "SMART HOUSE."

- Glenn Haege Saturday, March 14, and Sunday, March 15: Master handyman Glenn Haege, popular talk show host of "Ask the Handyman" on WXYT and author of "Fix It Fast And Easy!" will be broadcasting live from an elaborate garden setting vantage point. Haege will entertain audiences as he interviews exhibitors and field audience home improvement Q's and A's.

- Jeff Ball, Lawn Care Expert of NBC's Today Show, March 14, 15, 16: Monsanto Residential Products Division of St. Louis is sponsoring Ball — known as the "gardening" expert on NBC's Today Show which is hosted by Bryant Gumbel. Ball makes complex subjects such as yard waste recycling and soil management easily understood for even the non-gardening homeowner. Ball will give his 45-minute workshop titled, "The Perfect Lawn." The workshop is designed to give non-gardening homeowners good tips about how to have a good-looking lawn without having to break their backs or their pocketbooks.

- Faith Popcorn Friday, March 13: Author of "The Popcorn Report" and considered "The Nostradamus of Marketing" by Fortune Magazine. Popcorn will speak publicly about the future consumer landscape and trends in the home improvement arena and the building industry-at-large. Popcorn is scheduled to speak to the Women's Economic Club.

- Bob Thompson, former host of PBS "Victory Garden" TV Series March 19-21: AmeriFlora 1992 will open an 88-acre exposition site in Columbus, Ohio, as the first International Flower and Gardening Exhibition ever held in the United States. Modeled after the successful international events held for years in Europe, AmeriFlora 1992 is expected to attract more than 4 million visitors during its six months of operation. AmeriFlora 1992, endorsed by the Christopher Columbus Quincentary Jubilee Commission, is scheduled to open for a six-month run April 20 through October 12.

- Chevy Truck Chevrolet will exhibit for the first time this year at the 1992 Builder Show. The exhibit will feature the exciting new debut of the 1992 Chevrolet Suburban, completely redesigned from last year and not yet available in this market.

- Local Chefs Cooking Demonstration: Daily from 2 to 8:30 p.m., cooking demonstrations will feature culinary arts students and members of the Chefs de Cuisine Association. A working size kitchen will be erected at the show and cooking demonstrations will be performed every hour throughout the show. Various Detroit restaurants and restaurateurs will be participating, including chef Skip Julius of the Wagon Wheel in Troy.

- Stage Show Activity: All day long throughout the show's nine-day run, local performers and entertainers will demonstrate their talent on two stages. Following is a partial listing of scheduled activity: Wisla Polish Dancers, Main Street Cloggers, Ford Motor Chorus, Country Cuzzins Production, Sava Croatian Folklore, Ferndale Foot Stompers, Detroit Edison Glee Club, City Lights Chorus, Wavel Polish Dancers, Sarisan Slovak Dancers, Silver Strings, Mexican Folklorico, Henderson Dance Academy, Sound Track Quartet, Accolade Quartet, Great Lakes Express, Masters of Dance, Henderson Dance Academy and fashion shows.

- Nation's Largest Indoor Garden Wedding, Thursday, March 19, at 4 p.m.: To be conducted at the show in the lush garden/gazebo setting. The daring couple will receive donated gifts from local merchants that will include the following: a wedding engagement set by Ahee Jewelers in Troy, wedding gown by Anthony Jordan's Bridal in Waterford, wedding cake by Home Bakery in Rochester, wedding photography by C.P. Studio with nine locations in metro Detroit, tuxedo for groom from Steve Petix in Livonia, honeymoon night by the Hyatt Regency in Dearborn, flowers by Allied Florist/FTD-4, and limousine service by Michael's Limousine in Livonia.

Discounts from exhibitors of up to 50 percent are available only to showgoers during the nine-day period at Cobo Center. In addition, giveaways and contests are offered throughout the show by various exhibitors.

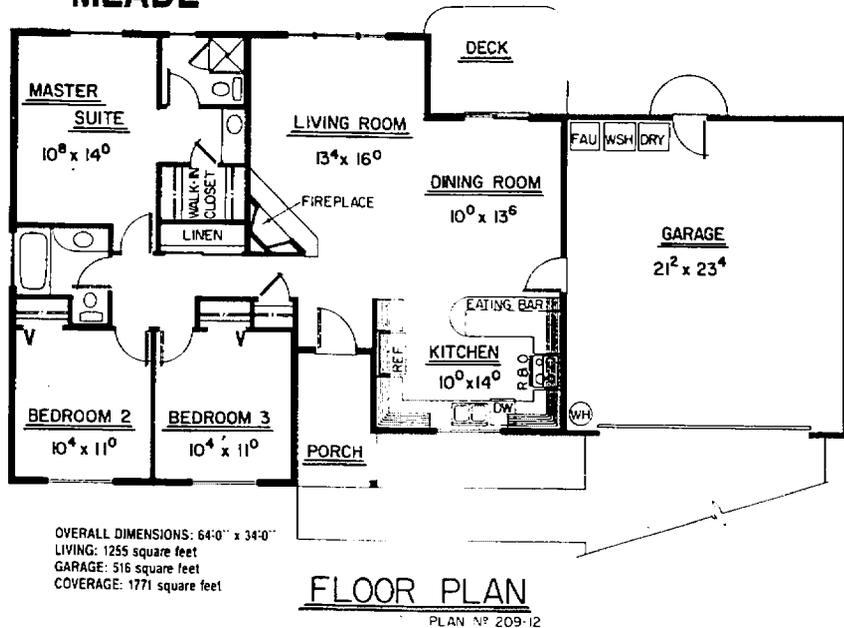

Show hours are Monday through Friday, 2 p.m.-10:30 p.m.; Saturdays from 10 a.m.-10:30 p.m.; and Sundays from 10 a.m.-9 p.m. Box office tickets for adults are $5.50, $3.50 for senior citizens, and $3.50 for children 6 to 12 accompanied by an adult.

A special "Family Ticket," admitting two adults and accompanying children will be offered for $8 through Farmer Jack/A&P supermarkets. $1-off coupons will be distributed by Detroit Edison and Consumers Power with their monthly billing during mid-February through mid-March as well as through the offices of various exhibitors. Coupons will be honored weekdays only.

MEADE

Meade: Small home, big spaces

Its spacious and rambling great room gives a big country feel to the ranch-style Meade.

The lack of walls separating the kitchen, dining room and living room creates an overall impression of roominess in a home that is actually considered small. It's a good starter home.

The country kitchen has plenty of counter space along with an eating bar for meals on the run.

Families can choose either to build a fireplace or install a woodstove in the nook provided. This would depend on whether preferences run to the entertainment of watching a fire or to more efficient heat production.

The dining room is a hub of sorts, located just a few steps to the right inside the front door. At the opposite side of the room, sliding glass doors open onto a small deck.

The dining room borders on both the kitchen and living room, and another door into the two-car garage at the right provides easy access to the utilities at the back of the garage.

The master suite has a dressing area with separate vanity between the shower/toilet cubicle and the large walk-in closet. This allows owners the luxury of keeping out of each other's way during rush hours.

Unlike many homes, the other two bedrooms are identical in size — no fuel here to fire up ever-smoldering sibling rivalry. Unfortunately, as in all but the largest homes, the kids will have to share a bathroom.

For a study kit of the MEADE (209-12), send $7.50 to Today's Home, P.O. Box 2832-T Eugene, Ore. 97402.

It's a jungle in there

He's not an exterminator, but allergy and asthma specialist Dr. Paul J. Hannaway, of Boston has declared war on an insect that's been found to be a leading cause of respiratory discomfort and disease.

It's the house dust mite, a nearly invisible pest that when enlarged looks like something from a late-night horror movie. According to Hannaway, the mite and its remains are one of the more allergenically harmful elements of common house dust.

"People allergic to house dust mites can suffer nasal congestion or sneezing when they encounter them, or even attacks of asthma if the creature's particles are inhaled," says Hannaway, author of "The Asthma Self-Help Book."

The favored cuisine of house dust mites is human skin debris, which they seek in bedding, rugs and stuffed furniture.

As more is learned about allergens, it is being recognized that staying indoors isn't necessarily any safer for asthma or allergy sufferers than braving outdoor air pollution. Besides the house dust mite, indoor air pollutants include other insects such as the ubiquitous cockroach plus all the family pets except the goldfish.

"I'll probably get a lot of mail from cat lovers, but the fact is that cats and allergic asthma are a bad news combination," Hannaway says. "Cat allergen is extremely powerful and remarkably stable."

Just about everything about a cat can be allergenic, including its hair and dander and even the saliva the cat secretes when grooming itself.

The allergen is easily deposited on furniture and other surfaces. When inhaled, it penetrates deeply into the lungs because it is extremely small.

Most common allergens can be captured by portable air cleaners. The most effective use the same kind of high efficiency particle arresting filters found in air cleaning systems for operating rooms or scientific clean rooms.

Animal and house dust allergens may also be reduced in bedrooms by housekeeping measures such as:

+ Encase pillows and mattresses in zippered, dust-proof covers.

+ Remove carpeting or treat it periodically with the mite-killing chemical acaricide.

+ Use window shades instead of insect-harboring drapes or fabric blinds. Also avoid fabric or macrame wall hangings.

+ Wash blankets often and avoid wool or down.

+ Air condition in the summer to prevent the heat and humidity preferred by dust mites.

PACKING PEANUTS — I've discovered another use for those awful packing "peanuts." I sprinkle them with a few drops of perfume and use them in my potpourri jars. They seem to hold the scent for about 10 days.

COUPON EASE — I happened across this handy idea by accident. I was looking for a sheet of paper to write my grocery list on, and all I could find was an envelope.

As I finished the list, I realized I could put my coupons for the shopping trip inside the envelope. When I come to the item I have a coupon for, I remove it from the envelope and place it in my purse. No more juggling coupons at the checkout counter. Hilda T., Garden Grove, Calif.

Q. I have a nine-inch high tin cutout figure of an alligator chewing on his tail. He is dressed in a jacket and top hat. He holds a box of "Bee pepsin chewing gum." It it an old ad?

A. You have one of the set of figures known as the Chiclet Zoo. There are 12 different animals. You alligator is holding a pack of Beeman's Pepsin Gum. The animals were made about 1915 and were displayed in store windows. They advertised a special offer by the company. If a customer sent in five gum wrappers and a 2-cent stamp, the company sent a printed piece of fabric that could be cut and stuffed to make a child's toy that looked like the tin cutout.

* * * *

Q. My doll is marked "R&B" in an oval. Does that help identify it?

A. The mark may be one used by the Arranbee Doll Co. of New York City. They imported dolls and dolls' heads about 1922 to 1925.

* * * *

TIP: Sometimes when there has been damage, an armchair is reworked into a side chair. The new chair can be detected because an armchair would be wider than a side chair and the incorrect proportions reveal it's a fake.

Q. My mother gave me a very strange antique table or shelf that she has owned for many years. It is triangular, with three legs, and fits in a corner. The top shelf has a 12-inch-diameter hole in the center. There are also three small holes in the shelf. About two feet lower, there is a solid shelf with a drawer beneath it. We always called it the plant stand. How was the drawer used?

A. Your table is probably a washstand. Before the days of indoor plumbing, one was kept in each bedroom. The large hole held a wash basin and probably a pitcher for water. The smaller holes held a bowl for waste water or a cup for soap or toothbrushes. The lower shelf probably held the covered commode bowl. Towels were kept in the drawer.

TIP: Never allow water to evaporate in a glass vase. It will leave a white residue that may be impossible to remove.

Household Help by John Amantea

Q. I have a problem with one of the ceilings in my house. It is a half-inch thick drywall, and it's drooping badly. The area over the ceiling contains mineral insulation. As a result, removing the insulation and replacing the drywall would be quite a messy job. Do you know what I could do to fix this?

A. The first thing you need to address is the cause of your problem so that once you do repair it, you won't have a recurrence.

From the way it sounds, I'd say your ceiling joists somehow got damp and started to sag. If there's no leak in your roof, then you most likely need a vapor barrier in the ceiling. By installing this vapor barrier, the joists should stop any further sagging. You can then hang a new ceiling directly over the old one.

Now to the fun part — how to do all this:

Staple a four-mil plastic sheet over your old drywall. This is your vapor barrier.

Apply a new layer of drywall over your vapor barrier for your new ceiling. I don't recommend you do this alone, because it's a complicated job. You have to run 1x2 furring strips across the ceiling at right angles to your joists, spaced 16 inches apart (on the centers). Next, screw 1/2-inch drywall to the furring strips, tape, and finish the joints.

Be aware that the two crucial parts of this job are, getting the furring strips level and flat over the entire ceiling, and insuring electrical safety.

To those ends, stretch mason's twine tightly across the ceiling to find the high and low spots. To ensure that the furring strips are level, put pairs of shims under the low spots and screw through the furring strips to hold them place.

Electrical boxes have to be deepened so that the lower edge of the box is even with the new drywall. This will keep sparks from reaching any combustible material inside the ceiling. You must cut the power off at the box and screw on a metal extender and/or plastic rings (get these at an electrical supply house) for the extra depth you'll need. If the box is plastic, your extender should be grounded. If you're the least bit unsure on this, consult an electrician.

March: The month of the 'wakening moon'

William Shakespeare's statement that a rose by any other name would smell as sweet is perfectly true, but just the same, it's fun to trace some of the ways by which familiar garden plants come by their popular names.

Many of our favorites have names just slightly changed from their Latin origin, such as rose, lily, tulip, peony, violet, and lavender. And many of the standbys of our herb gardens come to us in the same way, including mint, borage, fennel, coriander, thyme and chervil.

Carrots, beets and cauliflower and others have been a part of the English language for so long we have forgotten that these are their Latin names just rounded off a bit.

Nobody now talks about gillyflowers, which we call carnations, and the medieval eglantine is now known as sweetbrier.

The names of many of our grains, such as wheat, oats, barley and rye and also hemp, flax, hazel, oak, yew, thistle, holly, daisy and daffodil are pure Anglo-Saxon in origin. The Greek helianthus has become the sunflower.

Many of the rollicking medieval names for plants have been lost (some in favor of more prosaic names.) but how exuberant a garden would seem planted with such things as "Bobbing Joan" or "Bouncing Bet," "Lustie Gallant," "Sweet Sultan," "Gardener's Garters," "Pale Pageant" or even "Glare of the Garden."

Some flowers have names referring to biblical incidents, such as Aaron's Rod, Jacob's Ladder, Solomon's Seal and Star of Bethlehem, but what has become of Grace-of-God, Gethsemane and Hallelujah?

Garden Shed by Ellen Probert

Sometimes confusion prevails. Why do we call those bright flowers nasturtiums, which is the botanical name for watercress? And why is the mock orange usually called syringa, which is the botanical name for lilac?

In some areas of rural England, people refer to all flowers as lilies and all weeds as docks, which makes everything much simpler. And then there is the cheerful yellow flower that grows around many farmhouses, which the same folks call "welcome-home-husband-no-matter-how-drunk."

People have garden-related names, too. Most of us have known people with the surnames of Farmer, Gardener, Thresher or Flower.

Many girls answer to the names of Rose, Lily, Violet and other flower names, and think of all the boys called Bud.

Right now when the dark days of winter seem endless and an occasional sunny day seems like a present wrapped in gold paper, the appearance of bunches of daffodils for sale in the supermarket is a real spirit-lifter. even before the crocus has made its appearance, the daffodils, arriving from a much more southerly place, reassure us that spring is not an impossible dream.

The confusing thing is that daffodils, narcissus and jonquils are all the same thing and furthermore, they are all members of the amaryllis family. There are many varieties of daffodils. The ones we see in the supermarket are the yellow, trumpet-shaped blooms that Wordsworth had in mind in his famous poem.

Daffodils are native to the mountains and valleys of Spain and Portugal and have been known and loved since very ancient times. They were used to decorate temples in ancient Greece and are mentioned in literature from Caucer to the authors of today. Columbus knew and loved daffodils, and Shakespeare refers to them many times.

It was mostly wild daffodils that our ancestors brought to this country in the days of the first colonists, but it was in England about 1870 that the crossing of what were called "Lent-lilies" produced the daffodils we know today.

In the Victorian Language of Flowers, the daffodil is the symbol of egotism and conceit. On the other hand it is also the emblem of the Annunciation. It is the Greek plant of nemesis, the Chinese emblem of winter and of good fortune, and the Japanese symbol of formality, mirth and joy.

Now that we are into the month of March and the days are growing longer, the thought that spring is really almost here takes on reality. It won't be long until daffodils will be in bloom in our gardens.

But first we must welcome the crocus, that first sign of spring. Crocus has a venerable history too, both in fact and in legend. There are more than 75 species and almost as many shades and variations of color in the crocus family, which is the same as the iris. They grow wild in the Mediterranean region and extend from there into southwest Asia.

In ancient Rome, in the time of Nero, the crocus was considered to be a tonic for the heart and a potent aphrodisiac. The Romans of that time became so fond of this flower that they used to strew the blooms throughout their banquet hall and courtyards and on small streams that flowed through their gardens, thereby scenting the air.

Returning Crusaders in the early Middle Ages introduced the saffron crocus to the court of King Henry I of England. He became fond of it. When the court ladies discovered that saffron was also a good hair-coloring substance, they began to use up the available supply. The king was so annoyed that he issued an edict forbidding this use of his favorite spice under threat of severe punishment.

The month of March in the Native American calendar was called the wakening moon, recognizing that the most significant thing about this month is that in it the first stirrings from winter dormancy of flowers, trees and animals takes place.

Sales

Besides Grosse Pointe Shores, home sales rose in Grosse Pointe City, Park and Woods last year, while average selling prices decreased in the City, Farms and Park.

The City experienced a 24 percent increase in home sales, compared with 1990. There were 98 homes sold in the City last year, up from 79 sold the year before. The average selling price of $196,321 in the City last year was a drop of 6.9 percent from the 1990 average price of $210,993.

The Farms experienced a 13.1 percent decline in the number of homes sold last year compared with the year before. Homes sold totaled 146 in the Farms in 1990, down from the 168 sold in 1990. The average selling price dropped 2.9 percent to $214,389 last year. In 1990, the average selling price was $220,220.

Kennedy was surprised by the decline in home sales in the Farms.

"It was surprising the Farms didn't lead the pack," she said. "It's such a popular area."

Eleven more homes were sold in the Park last year than in the year before. The 7.3 percent increase in home sales reflects 161 transactions in the Park in 1991, compared with 150 the year before.

The Woods saw home sales and prices go up in 1991. Homes sold numbered 220 last year, up 2.3 percent from the 215 sold in 1990. The average selling price increased 9.3 percent from $140,058 in 1990 to $153,144 last year.

Pointe-wide, 648 homes were sold last year, up 3 percent from the 629 sold the year before. Among all the Pointes, the average home selling price was $193,218, up 1.5 percent over the $190,329 average price in 1990.

Kennedy said it's a good time to buy a home. Interest rates are low, consumer confidence is up and there are people out there looking to buy or sell, she said, noting:

"There are good offerings out there."
