

Park personnel get virus protection

By Donna Walker
Staff Writer

Lifeguards, school crossing guards, public safety officers and other Grosse Pointe Park personnel are getting special equipment to protect them from deadly viruses while on the job. Last week, the city began distributing disposable plastic gloves, breathing tubes, paper masks, and other protective gear to employees who work outside the office and who may be called upon to give a citizen cardiopulmonary resuscitation (CPR) or first aid. Sgt. Chris Powell of the Park public safety department was in charge of ordering and distributing the gear, and explaining its use to employees.

"This equipment has always been available to public safety officers here. The difference is now they're required to carry it on their person and in their scout cars," he said. Also, this is the first time that non-public safety department employees have been issued the protective gear. Powell said the city decided to distribute the equipment in anticipation of an Occupational Safety and Health Administration (OSHA) ruling that would require any worker who may be exposed to blood or bodily fluids while on the job to use "universal precautions." Certain Park employees will be required to keep a microshield mask and a pair of plastic gloves on their person at all times (in a pocket or purse). The mask has a one-way valve so that when an employee gives CPR to a victim, their mouths won't touch and fluid from the patient's mouth won't reach the rescuer's mouth. Some employees will be required to keep in their vehicles disposable masks, eye gear, surgical gowns, booties, special containers for the safe disposal of discarded hypodermic needles and other sharp objects and an absorbent powder (to safely clean blood and vomit from hard surfaces).

Universal precaution equipment will also be stored at city hall. Powell said the equipment cost the city $2,200. "The big bill will come next month, when we start vaccinating city employees with the hepatitis B virus," he said. "That will cost between $140 and $160 per person," he said. "We're making the shots available to all city employees. Most everyone in the public safety department was vaccinated a few years ago, so they won't have to get a shot this time." The city has also adopted a 10-page "Exposure Control Plan," which outlines precau-

Shores' Echo unit resounding success

By Ronald J. Bernas
Staff Writer

The Grosse Pointe Shores echo unit wasn't even one day old when it was used to save the life of an 84-year-old Shores woman who was having heart problems.

The woman called the Shores police shortly after 9 a.m. on Wednesday, July 22, complaining of chest pain and shortness of breath.

Responding were the Shores ambulance and the city's new echo unit — a van which contains all the gear and medications of a fully equipped ambulance, and is manned by paramedics. The echo unit had officially gone into service at about 7 p.m. the previous day.

Prior to approving the contract which allowed the Shores to rent the echo unit, the city had only basic emergency medical technicians. Paramedics provide the highest level of service and are able to intubate patients (open breathing passages with a special device) and administer medications. Basic EMTs are not allowed by law to perform those functions.

"The paramedics were told the intervention by the paramedics saved her," said Shores police chief Dan Healy.

The woman was taken to St. John Hospital and was recovering well.

Mary Francis Hush, O.P.

By Maureen McNulty
Staff Writer

Sister Mary Francis Hush, Order of Preachers, (Dominican) really knows how to kick an old habit — literally.

A year ago, after leaving her life as a cloistered nun, a life-style she had lived for over 35 years, to live as a nun on the outside of the monastery, she looked in her closet and discovered — she hadn't a thing to wear.

"It was a choice between old habits and older habits," she explained. She and a friend took a quick jaunt to a local mall, where she bought her first wardrobe in 37 years.

Hush's decision to leave the cloistered life was the natural result of a steady evolution of events that had been shaping her life both inside the monastery and out.

The motto of cloistered nuns of the Dominican Order, one of the strictest orders of the Catholic Church, is to "contemplate and share the fruits of that contemplation with others."

Traditionally, "sharing the fruits of contemplation" means helping others by praying for them and leading a life-style dedicated to silence, contemplation, solitude and the service of others through prayer.

But Hush, whose serene demeanor and gentle presence belie her sharp intellect, quick wit and vast knowledge of philosophies, religions and a classic educational background, was led to share her spiritual, theological and ecumenical knowledge with others.

Around 1980, Hush said, while recovering from surgery at Providence Hospital, a Eucharistic nun entered her room with intentions of just staying for a minute to say hello.

"She ended up staying three hours. She had a deep interest in spiritual life and profound

Woods to ask for 60 percent boost in ambulance funding

By Donna Walker
Staff Writer

A proposal to increase funding for the city's advanced emergency medical service will be on the Grosse Pointe Woods ballot Aug. 4.

If the proposal is passed, the city could levy up to .8 mills for the service, a 60 percent increase over the .5 mills residents have been paying since 1982, when voters authorized the city to switch from basic to advanced life support protection.

One mill equals $1 for every $1,000 of a home's state equalized value (SEV), which is roughly half its market value.

A Woods home with a market value of $120,000 would have a SEV of $60,000. Its owner would currently pay $30 a year for advanced emergency medical service, but that would increase to $48 a year if the proposal is approved and if the city levies the full .8 mills.

Woods acting city administrator Philip H. Belcher said that if the proposal is approved, the city probably will levy about .6 mills and gradually work its way up to .8 mills over several years.

"We'll only levy the amount that is needed to balance the budget," he said.

The increase is necessary because the cost of medical supplies and the services of paramedics has gone up dramatically over the past 10 years, Belcher said.

If the proposal is not passed, the city may have to start charging Woods patients for their ambulance runs, or form a partnership with a local hospital, as Grosse Pointe Farms and Grosse Pointe Shores recently did.

Until this year, the Woods was the only one of the five Grosse Pointes to have advanced life support service, in which ambulances are staffed by paramedics.

The rest had basic life support service, in which ambulances are staffed by emergency medical technicians (EMTs).

EMTs can administer sophisticated first aid treatment and, if licensed by the state, operate an automatic defibrillator to stabilize patients' heart rates.

Paramedics provide a higher level of care to cardiac and stroke patients. They are trained to operate a manual defibrillator/heart monitoring unit and administer intravenous drugs, and they are constantly in contact with a hospital's emergency room.

City tables bid to make 2 lots 4

By Ronald J. Bernas
Staff Writer

The Grosse Pointe City council tabled a request last week by a developer to split two lots into four and erect four new houses.

The City's action came after several local residents spoke out against the proposed lot split because new construction would include razing a possibly historic building.

The land in question is actually two 100-foot lots located on St. Clair between Jefferson and Maumee, adjacent to the school board buildings.

Owner Brad Elvidge would like to split the two lots into four 50-foot lots and construct one new home on each lot. According to the City's planner Brandon Rogers, the plan meets all the City's zoning requirements, but the request was tabled because so many residents raised objections.

Much of the protest centered on the structure which currently stands on the lot. After research one neighbor discovered the building is more than 100 years old, having been a road house which was one of the most talked-about rendezvous places in the Pointes until it closed in 1910.

A single-family dwelling would also need to be razed. That building has no historic value. Both buildings are vacant.

"We're getting rid of all our landmarks in Grosse Pointe," one resident bemoaned.

The residents also want to know what type of houses will be built on the lots and if there are any potential buyers.

Elvidge said the buildings would fit into the neighborhood, and that buyers have not yet been lined up. Houses would be built as buyers are found, he said.

Residents also questioned whether four houses would be too much for the neighborhood, and asked Elvidge if he had considered splitting the land into three 66-foot lots instead of four 50-foot lots.

Elvidge's attorney Bill Gilbride said that proposal is probably not economically feasible.

Gilbride also believes the City council must approve the request because it meets all the zoning requirements. The City's attorney disagreed.

"There are a lot of different parts to this issue," said councilman Dale Scrace. "And there seems to be enough questions that we could take some time here."

Councilwoman Myrna Smith asked Elvidge if he would discuss his plans with the neighbors before it is brought up to the council again, although he is not bound to that suggestion.

The council is expected to discuss the matter at its Aug. 17 meeting scheduled for 7:30 p.m. in the city council chambers.

The house has history

The dwelling located at 369 St. Clair has a long and colorful history, and some residents hope its checkered past might save the building.

According to material on file at the Grosse Pointe Historical Society, the house was originally built in 1885 for the Oxenhart family at the foot of what is now Jefferson and Kensington.

It was sold in 1897 to Matthew Kramer and was the second of his three famous road houses.

It featured boxing matches and the land it sat on was used to launch hot air balloons.

Elections were held there because it was one of the few public buildings large enough to hold a lot of people.

It is rumored to have been the first Pointe building to have electric lights, which Kramer secured through his connections with the company that ran the inner-urban.

In 1910 the house was moved to its present location and modified into a three-family dwelling.

It's go for pumping station

By Ronald J. Bernas
Staff Writer

Wayne County's new pumping station has received the go-ahead from the Farms council and construction is expected to begin next summer.

The station will be built on the site of the current pumping station at Kerby and Chalfonte.

The $4 million project will include a new building with new, more advanced equipment, a new storage shed, a fence and landscaping. In addition, the old building will be brought up to current building codes.

The project will be funded entirely by Wayne County.

The council's approval was contingent on the following provisos: that the builders follow a construction timetable set by the council; that the impact of construction on the playing field during the Little League season be minimized; and that the council approves the landscaping.

"It is unlikely that any construction will begin until mid-to late-summer next year," said Rich Solak, Farms city manager. "Construction should take about a year and a half."

The project, which was prompted by the upgrading of the Milk River pump station, must be completed by December 1994.

3 foes face Conyers in 14th District Democratic primary

By Donna Walker
Staff Writer

Three candidates are challenging U.S. Rep. John Conyers Jr. for the Democratic nomination in the 14th U.S. Congressional District primary Aug. 4.

They are: state Sen. John Kelly, Martha Scott and Frederick H. Strickland.

The winner will face John Gordon in November. He is running unopposed on the Republican side.

Because of a shift in population as recorded in the 1990 census, the congressional districts were remapped. Parts of the 1st, 13th and 14th Districts were combined to form the new 14th District, which covers Grosse Pointe Woods, Grosse Pointe Shores, Harper Woods, Highland Park, part of Dearborn Heights and part of Detroit.

Previously, Grosse Pointe Woods, Grosse Pointe Shores and Harper Woods had been in the old 14th District and were represented by Congressman Dennis M. Hertel, who decided not to run for re-election.

Conyers represented the former 1st District, and Barbara-Rose Collins represented the former 13th District.

All four candidates in the Democratic primary agree on at least one thing. They all said they are pro-choice on the issue of abortion.

Conyers' three challengers all said they are running for office because they believe he has not done enough to increase the 14th District's share of federal dollars and that he doesn't listen to his constituents. Also, they said they believe Congress will be more receptive to new ideas and change after the November election because the composition of Congress is changing. Many incumbent congressmen have decided to either retire or not seek re-election.

Conyers said he doesn't know how anyone who is not in Congress could possibly know better than he does the federal programs that are available to help his district, and that he has brought more federal programs back to the state than any other congressman, with the exception of John Dingell.

He said he is running because he can "significantly affect the country's priorities on behalf of the citizens in this district" as chairman of the House Government Operations Committee.

John Conyers Jr.

Background: Conyers, 63, of Detroit, has been a congressman for 27 years and is chair of the House Government Operations Committee, which oversees the procurement of government contracts.

An attorney, he earned his law degree from Wayne State University in 1958 and was a legislative assistant to Congressman Dingell from 1958-61. He also served as a referee with the Michigan Workers Compensation Department.

Issues: Conyers said he wants to see a universal health care system for all Americans, and introduced a National Health Care bill last month that is awaiting consideration by the House Ways and Means Committee.

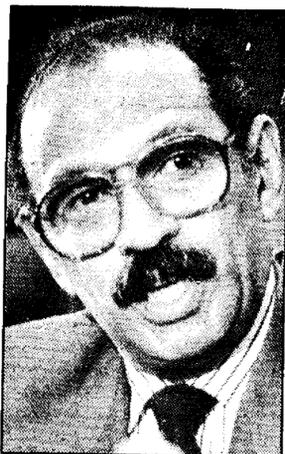

"What I want to do is what every industrialized nation but us has already done — take it (the burden of paying for health insurance) off the employer's back," he said.

Under his plan, every American would be covered by health insurance; there would be only one health insurance provider in each state; and citizens could go to whichever doctor or hospital they choose.

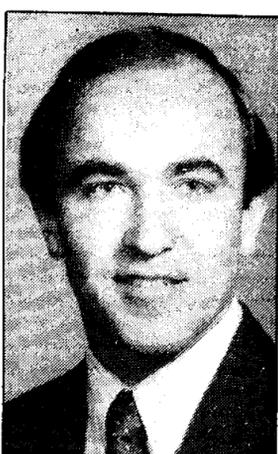

He also wants to take money from the defense budget and funnel it directly to cities, townships and counties, based on their population, unemployment level and tax effort. He said this was outlined in the Local Partnership Act bill he authored, which was rejected by one vote in the House Government Operations Committee.

He said the bill is scheduled to come back before Congress before its summer recess, which runs from Aug. 8 through Labor Day.

Since it passed the budget act of 1986, Congress has not

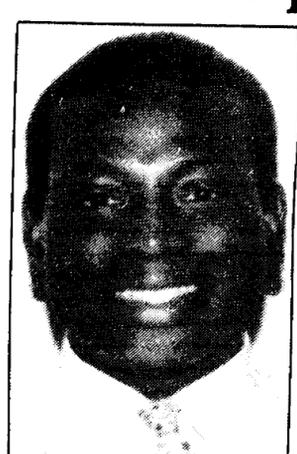

John Conyers Jr.

John Kelly

Martha Scott

been able to transfer funds between the foreign aid, military and domestic spending budgets.

Conyers introduced a bill to break down those budgetary walls, but it recently lost by 80 votes in the House, he said. He said he will continue to advocate making domestic investments the number one priority in the federal budget, and that those investments should focus on education, infrastructure, revitalizing the country's urban areas and retraining workers.

He faulted the Department of Commerce and the president for focusing on free rather than fair trade agreements with other countries, and for not publicly exposing those foreign countries that are violating the General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade.

"We're in a high-tech, international arena," he said, "and the fastest thing we've got going is service jobs. Most of them only pay minimum wage, and that makes us a second-rate country."

On the issue of crime, Conyers said that his committee created the Federal Drug Policy Office (of which William Bennett was appointed czar) and that the war on drugs is going very badly.

"We're failing on all fronts but one," he said. "The casual use of drugs by the middle class is declining. But the importation of drugs is rising, the purity of drugs is increasing, the cost of drugs is decreasing, and the effectiveness of interdiction measures at our borders could be viewed as increasing slightly, because our agents are confiscating larger amounts of drugs, but we view that as meaning larger amounts are being shipped to our country, which is bad." He said the United States is spending about 70 percent of the money allocated for the war on drugs on law enforcement, and 30 percent on education, prevention and treatment. He said those figures need to be reversed.

John Kelly

Background: Kelly, 42, was first elected to the state Senate in 1978 and was re-elected in 1982, 1986 and 1990.

He serves the 1st State Senatorial District, which includes Harper Woods, the five Grosse Pointes, and part of Detroit.

A member of the state Senate's special committee on export trade, he is vice chair of the government operations, health policy, and judiciary committees.

He received his law degree from the Detroit College of Law in 1983 and was admitted to the State Bar of Michigan in 1984. He also has a master's degree in public administration from Wayne State University, and is a candidate for a doctorate in political science at WSU.

He has been a member of the U.S. Army Reserves since 1972, and is currently a major.

Issues: Kelly said that "rebuilding our major urban areas has got to be our number one goal. Southeastern Michigan sent $988 million to Washington, D.C., last year, and got back $60 million. If we just received half of what we put in, we could hire 14,000 more public employees."

Those jobs would not only improve Michigan's economy, but would enhance the safety of its cities, he said.

"Detroit's problems could be solved if it had 1,000 extra police officers establishing some order in the city," he said.

If Detroit's crime rate were significantly lowered, he said, then businesses might be lured back to the city, especially if they were offered tax incentives to relocate and hire neighborhood workers. Kelly said he is for creating enterprise zones in Detroit and other urban areas to offer such incentives.

Rather than encouraging urban sprawl and the destruction of green spaces, Kelly said he would advocate using federal dollars to repair existing roads, not to build new ones.

He said he supports the international treaty on the environment that was promulgated in Rio de Janeiro, and that environmental regulations in the United States need to be looked at in a more practical light.

He cited as an example work that was done at the old Chrysler Jefferson Assembly Plant in Detroit. He said that tons of earth were removed from the site and dumped somewhere else because the soil contained elements that may have been toxic at one time. A parking lot was then built over the former site.

At the Jefferson plant, the material was suppressed by a natural, underground clay cap. Digging it up and exposing it to rainwater was a greater threat to humans than leaving the material where it was, Kelly said.

He has put together a proposal, called the Universal Health Care Act, which would provide all working people with access to basic health care insurance for a minimal fee. Preventive and routine doctor visits would be covered under the program.

Under his proposal, an employee, his employer and the state would each contribute 3 cents to the health insurance program for each $1 the employee earned. Also, the state would contribute to the program funds that are currently allocated for Medicaid.

The insurance contract would be put out for bids, to make the prices competitive, he said.

He said he supported the free trade agreement with Canada, but does not support a free trade agreement with Mexico because it has a third world economy, a corrupt government and no concern for the environment.

More specifically, he said he supports the removal of tariff barriers between the United States and Mexico, but that he has problems with the immigration portion of the proposed free trade agreement.

"I'm not being elitist or biased, but when Canadians immigrate to this country, they have usually had the benefit of a good education and have jobs," he said. "They bring an investment to this country. Most Mexicans can't."

Kelly also said that companies that relocate part of their business to a foreign country should not receive federal tax credits for re-investing in equipment.

Martha Scott

Background: Scott, 56, of Highland Park, was elected mayor of that city in 1988, and lost her bid for re-election in December.

She was president of the Highland Park City Council from 1984-88, became the first African-American woman to serve on the state's civil service commission in 1980 (she served four years and was vice chair from 1980-82), and was elected to a two-year term on the Wayne County Board of Commissioners in 1978, after being appointed to fill a vacancy on the board in February 1977. Before that, she served as a precinct delegate in Highland Park from 1972-76.

Scott worked for Michigan Bell and AT&T for 26 years before retiring in 1986.

She has an associate of arts degree from Highland Park Junior College, and an honorary doctor of humanities degree from the Detroit extension of the Tennessee School of Religion.

Issues: Scott said that when she hears of a government program that can help her city or district, she goes after it, and pointed to projects she undertook as mayor as examples.

"When I first took office, people on the council said, 'What are you going to do about the homeless?' My idea is that you don't put families in big buildings together, you put them in homes," she said.

She and the head of the department of social services got together and came up with a plan in which Highland Park got a federal grant to buy back the homes of five mothers who were receiving Aid to Dependent Children (ADC) and who had lost their homes because of missed payments.

The city sold the homes back to the women for a $1 down payment, and gave them between $5,000 and $15,000 to perform needed repairs. The women were required to make low mortgage payments to the city over five years.

"It's five years later, and the last I heard, four of the five women had gone back to school," she said. "They're trying to make a better life for their children, and that's how you break the circle of poverty."

She also received a $4.8 million federal grant to construct a shopping center in Highland Park, of which Sears was supposed to be an anchor. The new mayor did not follow through with the project, which would have brought jobs to the city, and Sears recently pulled out of Highland Park, she said.

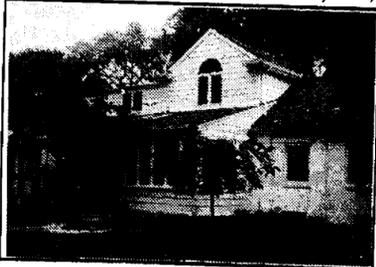

"I would certainly try to come up with innovative ways to bring jobs back to the community," she said. "There are different things we have to look at, such as shopping centers and refurbishing homes. I will know what needs to be done because I will listen to the mayors at the local level."

She said she favors offering health insurance to children and their parents through the schools, and that that is one way to decrease the drop-out rate.

She said she would also work toward providing more housing for senior citizens, and work hard to prevent companies from moving out of her district.

The improvement of child care would be one of her top priorities, she said.

"You have kids going to school without breakfast, and teachers have to spend half their time dealing with social problems," she said. "So you have to start with Head Start. That program has never been funded properly. Of course, we'll need to put some mechanisms in place so that that money is spent wisely," she said.

Frederick H. Strickland

Background: Strickland, 38, of Detroit, is a teacher at the Boynton Magnet Middle School in Detroit.

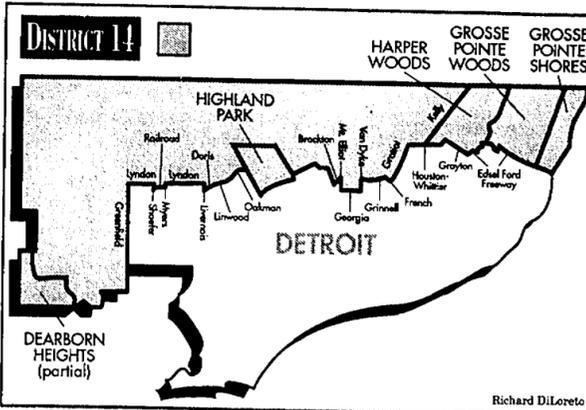

He received his bachelor's degree in political science from Wayne State University in 1983, and is pursuing his master's degree in teaching from WSU.

He has run for office only one other time — for precinct delegate in his neighborhood. He won, and served from 1984-86.

Issues: Strickland said he made up his mind to run for office after attending a public meeting at Hartford Memorial Baptist Church earlier this year, at which he asked Conyers to explain why he bounced 273 checks at the House Bank.

"This was just after the Rubergate Scandal," Strickland said. "Conyers wouldn't answer the question and his aides tried to throw me out."

If he were elected, he would advocate getting rid of congressional perks, such as the House Bank, unless they were necessary to keep constituents informed. For example, he would not do away with free mailing privileges, as long as those privileges are not abused.

Also, he would try to rid Congress of special interest money, he said.

"In my opinion, it has ruined effective legislation and it's causing a gridlock in Congress," he said.

Strickland said he favors limiting congressional terms and supports using federal money to fund the campaigns of congressional candidates, as long as the candidates raise a certain amount first, as is done in the presidential race.

"Right now, the system favors the incumbent, and from what I've seen, incumbents seem to think they have certain privileges, that they're no longer equal to us. That's why we need to level the playing field," he said.

On the issue of health care, he said he would like to close down Medicaid, and replace it with a universal health care system. The program would require additional funding other than what is already being put into Medicaid, he said.

Where would the additional money come from? He proposes eliminating the $54,000 income cap on payroll taxes that funds Social Security. Currently, workers are not taxed for the amount over $54,000 that they earn.

He said he would advocate creating enterprise zones for small businesses in distressed economic areas. Businesses that relocated to those zones and hired local people would get a tax break, under his plan.

To help fund the enterprise zones, he would phase out the capital gains tax over six to eight years, he said.

The only way to lower the crime rate in this country is to expand and improve educational opportunities, he said.

"We have to start with Head Start, which has been underfunded in the past," he said. "We also need an urban education agenda that's going to address young black males."

Also, he said he's in favor of letting Michigan children attend any public school in the state, whether or not they live in that school district.

The state's parole system needs to be shored up and repeat offenders need to be put away for good, he said. Also, he said he would try to reduce the number of appeals allowed in criminal cases through legislation, and that he's in favor of the death penalty in some cases.

"I feel I know a little bit about human nature because I'm a teacher," he said, "and in order to be a good teacher, you have to be somewhat of a psychologist. Some people do bad things because that's what they want to do. And they should know that the state will take their life if what they want to do is kill people."

He said he favors a free trade agreement with Mexico, because it could strengthen that country's economy, and if that happened, then the United States could cut back on the monetary aid it gives Mexico each year.

Now that the Cold War is dead, some spending cuts should be made in the defense budget and that money would be used to help fund public works and an urban aid package to rebuild America, he said.

WCCC prexy: Millage vote is critical

By Ronald J. Bernas
Staff Writer

If Wayne County voters don't approve a proposal to allocate 1 mill to finance Wayne County Community College, the facility will probably be out of business in a few years.

That's what WCCC president Rafael L. Cortada said last week about the proposal on the Aug. 4 ballot. The college is seeking to levy 1 mill for 10 years which will give it financial stability despite massive cuts in state funding.

The 1-mill levy will raise $14 million a year and will replace the 25 mill currently being levied to operate WCCC.

Currently the college is operating with a $4 million deficit, due in large part to a $5.5 million reduction in state funding last year.

"Of the 29 community colleges in this state, Wayne County is the only one which doesn't have at least 1 mill dedicated to it in perpetuity," Cortada said. "We're asking for less than what other community colleges already have."

Cortada admits the college is suffering from an image problem due to years of mismanagement and said he is instituting changes that will make the institution more accountable and improve its reputation.

The college has been reorganized to centralize control, cutting, in the process, 50 non-teaching positions. An assessment program has been started, which will show taxpayers what and how well students are learning. The assessment tests will be used to help strengthen the curriculum where it is necessary.

Each of the college's five campuses will be restructured to specialize in specific academic areas and an inter-campus shuttle has been instituted.

"We want to be totally accountable to the taxpayers," Cortada said. "We want to be able to show them where their tax money is going."

Since it opened in 1967 the college has graduated more than 300,000 students, 60 percent of whom go on to four-year colleges. WCCC turns out half the nurses in Wayne County and most of the dental hygienists, Cortada said.

Some 70 percent of the students and 85 percent of the graduates are women, and Cortada sees a need to reach out to the men of Wayne County.

"We can help," he said. "But we have to exist to do it and we have to be stabilized to do it."

Cortada agrees that the college hasn't effectively cultivated the Pointes, but adds that displaced workers, wives re-entering the workforce and people who just want to further their education have been taking advantage of the relatively low tuition the college charges.

Cortada said the college's student senate is also campaigning to get the ballot proposal passed.

"We can make a difference," Cortada said. "But (operating without stable funding) is like a high wire act. We need the mill or the school will close."

Kelly stands chance of win over Conyers

For the first time in years, a Grosse Pointe is given at least an outside chance of winning the Democratic nomination for Congress in the reapportioned 14th District and sending Rep. John Conyers Jr. into retirement.

The Pointer is Sen. John Kelly of the Woods who is one of three Democratic candidates challenging Conyers in a race that is giving the incumbent one of the toughest campaigns he has faced in his 27 years in Congress.

The other challengers are Martha G. Scott of Highland Park, a former county commissioner, former county civil service commissioner and former mayor of Highland Park; and Frederick W. Strickland of Detroit, a teacher at Boynton Magnet Middle School in Detroit.

Kelly's chance for an upset stems in part from the fact that the reapportionment has added to the congressional district the Woods, the Shores and Harper Woods, which are part of Kelly's senatorial district, and that some of the Detroit area in the congressional district is in the senatorial district.

What adds to Kelly's hopes of an upset is that some observers think Conyers has lost touch with his district, and, in fact, is not acquainted with many residents of the new communities added to his district.

In addition, he is under fire for having signed 273 "bad" checks in that House banking scandal, which makes him one of the 22 worst offenders, even though he claims he had "overdraft protection."

As for his accomplishments, Conyers stresses he is chairman of the Government Operations Committee, which has broad jurisdiction over many legislative matters. He also says he probably has brought more federal programs to Detroit's metro area than any other Michigan congressman except John Dingell.

As an example, he cites the $2 million in federal loan guarantees he obtained from the federal Department of Housing and Urban Development that enabled an outstate Michigan firm to reopen last Monday and start creating 200 jobs in a closed GM metal stamping plant in Detroit.

Some Conyers' supporters are spreading the rumor that Kelly had asked Ms. Scott and Strickland to enter the race to split the black vote. Kelly, however, denies the story and accuses the perpetrators of "lies" in raising the banner of racism.

In fact, some Conyers' backers have sought to persuade Ms. Scott and Strickland to withdraw to avoid a major split in the black vote, although Conyers denies any part in such an effort. He did get the endorsement of the Council of Baptist Pastors that apparently raised the withdrawal issue with Ms. Scott.

On civil rights, Kelly says he has no quarrel with Conyers but points out that whites as well as blacks have supported such rights, and, in fact, the laws that protect civil rights have been enacted by chiefly white legislative bodies.

Kelly points with pride to his record as a state senator. He was the author of the bill that in 1980 led to the adoption of a Wayne County charter that required government reorganization and the election of a county executive.

Just this spring, the state Legislature approved Kelly's resolution, first introduced in 1987, to endorse a constitution amendment to bar Congress from giving itself mid-term pay raises. By becoming the 38th state to approve such a resolution, Michigan brought the 27th Amendment to the Constitution into being.

In Washington, Kelly would champion his Universal Health Care Act that he has introduced in Michigan and that would increase access to preventive and routine visits by the uninsured by expanding the base coverage of working people.

He would further cut defense spending support more federal funding for public transportation and intrastate rail systems, back an urban Marshall plan to conserve existing investments and preserve open space, and work for population control and family planning programs.

Like other Democrats seeking support in the Pointes in the primary, Kelly faces the problem of persuading Republican Pointers to vote for him. Yet many will want to vote in their own primary because three Pointers are seeking the GOP nomination for county commissioner.

Kelly is called a "loose cannon" by some Democrats but he has been an independent senator in Lansing who usually has supported the interests and values of the Pointes. In Washington, we think he could do the same.

Vincent and Barrow favored

Seeking her second term, Rep. Barbara-Rose Collins of the new 15th Congressional District faces strong opposition from four challengers in the Aug. 4 primary.

In the Democratic primary in 1990, Rep. Collins won only 25 votes from Grosse Pointe Park and Grosse Pointe City, while 1,654 Democratic votes in the Pointes went to Tom Barrow and 558 to Dr. Charles Vincent. Both are running again this year although Vincent is seeking the GOP nomination this time.

In her first term, Collins won no friends here by her support for federal funds to expand the Detroit City Airport, a project strongly opposed by many Pointers.

Her major concern in Congress, she says, is a $110 billion domestic Marshall Plan to improve transportation facilities in America's cities. If Congress adopts this program, she claims support for funds to finance a light rail system to serve the Detroit area.

A case can be made for federal funds to improve the nation's infrastructure, but in these times it is highly doubtful that even a Democratic administration in Washington would fund a 10-year domestic Marshall plan of such magnitude.

Barrow, her only opponent on the Democratic ticket, appeals to Grosse Pointers on the grounds that the suburban communities in the new 15th District will constitute 31 percent of the votes to be cast Aug. 4 and could have an important impact on the outcome.

He claims Rep. Collins is by and large an ineffective member of Congress who has missed more votes and has been absent more often than any other freshman congressperson and has had more staff turnover than any other member.

Money magazine in its August issue also confirmed Barrow's criticism that Rep. Collins had been the worst offender of all House members in abusing the franking (postage-free mailing) privilege this year. She spent 116 percent of her mail allowance, or $164,872.

Barrow's No. 1 priority is to revitalize and rebuild the big cities of the country and stimulate business development to provide jobs. He also would work for affordable health care with limits on costs which he believes now are getting out of control.

He expresses concern about the environment, sees the need for more grants and low interest loans to enable more needy students to attend college and favors increased job training with the cooperation of the private sector to assure trainees of jobs.

Dr. Vincent, a physician now head of obstetrics and gynecology at Detroit's Riverview Hospital, believes he has a chance to win as a Republican this time after his strong race in the 1990 Democratic primary.

He is running again because he regards improvement of the nation's health care and public education as the major issues of our time.

He would expand Head Start, back the Bush administration's voucher plan to permit parents to send their children to schools of their choice, and support new efforts to reduce the federal deficit.

Two other Republicans are in the race for Rep. Collins' seat. One is John Savage of Detroit, a veteran office seeker, and the other is Tim Theodore of Grosse Pointe Park, an impressive young businessman who could surprise his opponents.

Two years ago, the Grosse Pointe News endorsed Barrow for the Democratic nomination but also gave a high rating to Dr. Vincent, then running as a Democrat. This year, we endorse them both, Barrow for the Democratic nomination and Vincent for the GOP nominee.

We believe either one would be a distinct improvement over the incumbent who has shown little interest in representing the interests of Grosse Pointers.

A good word for a good duo

With its limited news and editorial staffs, the Grosse Pointe News has been unable to interview many candidates seeking nomination in the Aug. 4 primary but we do have excellent impressions of two men based on our knowledge of their records.

George Ward, the chief assistant county prosecutor for the last six years, is a highly experienced candidate for the Michigan Court of Appeals and we cite two good reasons to support his nomination:

First, his service as president of the Home Rule Charter Commission which led to reforming county government.

Second, his appeal of a judge's decision not to impose adult incarceration on Kermit E. Haynes, one of the defendants charged with the murder of Grosse Pointe businessman Benjamin Gravel, because the judge erred in saying he was "not concerned" about whether releasing the defendant to the Department of Social Services "makes anyone safer or not."

John D. O'Hair, the Wayne County prosecutor who backed Ward's brief, is also an excellent public servant who deserves renomination and re-election after nine years on the job.

His record shows he supports the independence of the prosecutor's office, more effective crime prevention programs for the county's youth and is critical of the irresponsible practice of the Department of Corrections and the Michigan Parole Board in releasing predictably dangerous felons into our communities.

They're two good law enforcement men who deserve our good words and ought to be supported Aug. 4.

THINKING

Making his list, checking it twice.
Gonna find out who's naughty or nice.

A mill for WCCC? Yes!

Two weeks ago, the Grosse Pointe News editorially questioned the Wayne County Community College's request for approval of a 1-mill operating levy in the Aug. 4 primary.

We said we couldn't support the tax hike "without genuine evidence of both need and improved management."

Since then, we have been given plenty of evidence of both need and improved management, and, consequently, we now think that the college makes a strong case for getting the 1-mill levy in order to survive.

What convinced us to change our mind? It was a visit from two WCCC officials, President Rafael L. Cortada and Kenneth A. Harris, dean of research, planning and assessment, and, incidentally a Grosse Pointe resident, and the mass of evidence they offered to support their case.

They explained the college's need for the levy to replace the annual $10 million subsidy that had been voted in the past by the state Legislature but is now being phased out, with a reduction of 30 percent in the state appropriation for the current year.

They emphasized the new WCCC mission to offer improved training not only to prepare employees for jobs in new high-tech industries but also to provide remedial training for older workers laid off because their jobs have changed.

And they are offering WCCC courses at a cost of $54 per credit hour, as contrasted with a charge of from $150 to $200 a credit hour at most of Michigan's four-year colleges and universities.

In addition, a follow-up audit review from the state's auditor general reported optimistically that the new administrators "have made good faith efforts to comply with the recommendations of (an earlier) audit report."

Specifically, the report found WCCC had made "significant improvements in its enrollment and screening procedures," and adopted new policies that "preclude instructors from manipulating class sections enrollments" and from being paid for classes they didn't teach.

In short, Cortada and Harris brought ample evidence to prove that the college has cleaned up its act and will be headed for full recovery if it wins approval of a 1-mill levy.

The proposed levy would replace the quarter mill now in effect, so that the net tax increase would be three-quarters of a mill. That would mean, on a home with a $200,000 market value, a net increase in taxes of about $75 a year.

That is not a small increase, especially in view of the heavy tax load being borne by Pointe property owners, but we recommend a "yes" vote on the WCCC millage request on the basis of need.

We're something all right

As a senior member of the twentysomething generation — the apathetic, cynical, divorce-affected, television-addicted generation — I would like to take it upon myself to defend my brethren to the masses.

A recent news documentary discussed the "problems" of our generation and tried to prove that a good chunk of our attitudes stems from watching too much television. The obvious irony was that the message was being broadcast on television.

We were told that our delicate little psyches were formed by daily bombardment of images of the Vietnam War on the evening news. I'm 28; when the Vietnam War ended in 1975 I was 10. I don't remember much television news about it. In fact, I first learned that it was over in my Weekly Reader, our fourth-grade pipeline to the world.

I don't remember any protests, any political rhetoric for or against the war. So look for a moment at 23-year-olds who were 5 when the war ended. Were they shaped, consciously or subconsciously, by the war? I don't think so.

If anything, our psyches were harmed irreparably by the godawful bell-bottomed, plaid polyester, wide-lapel leisure suits our parents made us wear. (I've personally come to terms with that issue because I didn't have any say in what I wore until the latter '70s when things got a little better.)

I buy the fact that television shaped our lives. We were encouraged to watch it to fill the time between school and when one of our two (if we were lucky) working parents came home.

I Say

Ronald J. Bernas

As we watched, we were shown how good things were, and when our lives didn't live up to the images, we felt cheated.

As our families fell apart we watched every family crisis end with a knowing laugh on "The Brady Bunch." As our parents split up and we were forced to choose sides, people fell in love for life every week on "The Love Boat." We watched the Cunninghams enjoy their "Happy Days" — an era 20 years earlier.

Our parents have the luxury of looking back at that time and fondly recalling that the placid, drive-in restaurant, cool-carred '50s was a great time to grow up. We look back and shake our heads at the morals, the clothes and the music we grew up with. They got Ike. We got Nixon. They got a young, exciting Elvis. We got a used-up joke. Later, they got the Beatles. We got the Bee Gees.

It's difficult to reconcile being told repeatedly that the time you remember most fondly is the country's most embarrassing era.

We put ourselves thousands of dollars in debt to make ourselves better educated than previous generations and yet that education doesn't necessarily mean we'll get better jobs. Or jobs that match our skills. Or jobs we like. Or jobs at all.

We're told if we work hard we'll get ahead. But companies have hiring freezes. And are down-sizing. And no matter how good or talented you are, employers don't want you without five years' experience.

But despite all that, we're still dreamers. We want to own a home, yet can't save up the downpayment. We want to get married, but see what divorce did to our families and our friends. We want to have children, but do we want them to turn out like us?

And when we point this out, we're called cynics and whiners.

We're not proud of our cynicism and we're not whining. It's just that no one is willing to listen.

One local critic suggested that the topic for the aforementioned news documentary was manufactured — that there are more important subjects to devote an hour of television air time to, as though the psyche of the next generation that's going to run this country isn't worthy of being dissected.

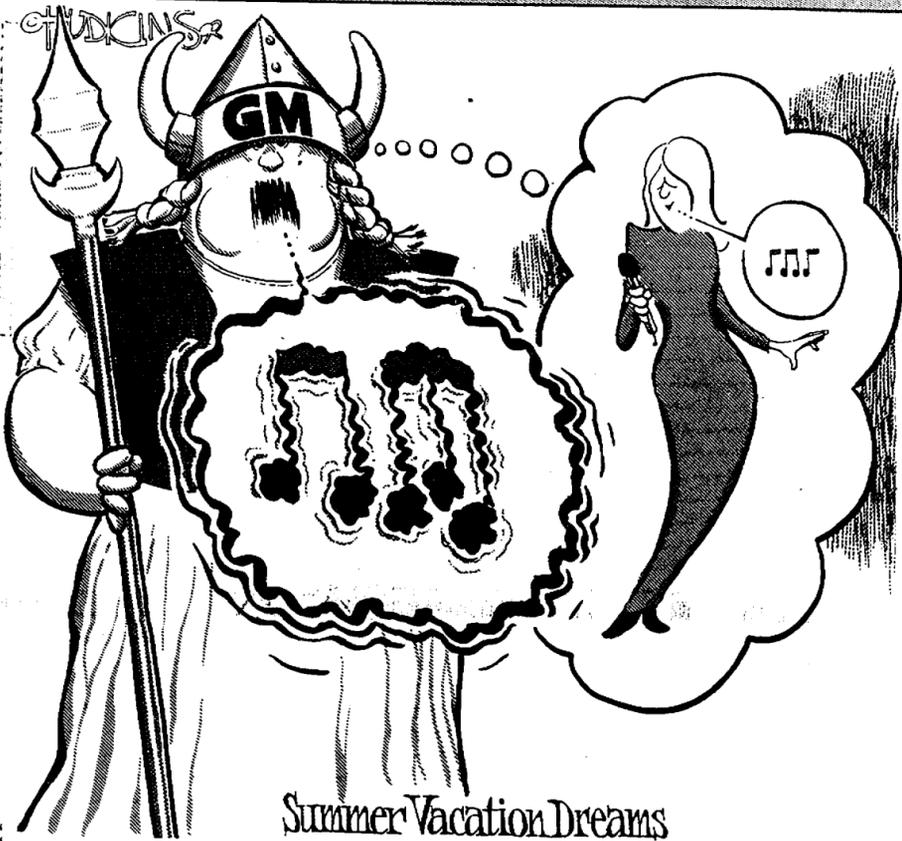

But other twentysomethings I talked to who watched the show — and were depressed by it — took comfort knowing that others feel like we do. That there are a lot of people in the same leaky boat.

We just need to find the right direction to steer it.

Blooming good

To the Editor:
On behalf of the Grosse Pointe Garden Center, I wish to thank the following who made the July Garden Tour such a success: the garden owners who shared their gardens; the many members of the community for their support; the Grosse Pointe News for such excellent coverage and the 150 volunteers who served as hostesses and cashiers.

There were more than 1,600 visitors to our six gardens on tour, 300 or more were from outside the Grosse Pointe area.

Proceeds from our successful event will enable the Garden Center to continue with educational programs, beautification projects for the community, contributions toward the purchase of house plants for the Grosse Pointe War Memorial and maintenance of the Trial Gardens. A scholarship in landscape architecture will be given this fall to a local resident.

Plans are now under way for another tour in 1993. May it be as well attended.

Why?

To the Editor:

Why, for the second time in a year, do you report comments by local public safety officials concerning enforcement of pedestrian laws against street skaters?

Four years of cruising on inline skates, through all the Pointes, Detroit and other suburban areas, allows me to reassure you that the situation between skaters and Police is peaceful. Police officers behave tolerantly toward prudent street skaters, as do most motorists. Why do I sense, Mr. Editor, that you wish the situation were otherwise?

Primary

To the Editor:

Congratulations to the Grosse Pointe News for its endorsement of James Robson in the Aug. 4 Republican primary for Wayne County commissioner.

We are particularly pleased that the News recognized the importance of having a commissioner with Robson's 18-year experience as a Wayne County Sheriff's deputy, in light of the fact that nearly half of Wayne County's budget goes for law enforcement activities.

It should also be noted that Robson is the only Republican candidate with a proven record of leadership. During his seven years as a Grosse Pointe Park councilman he has successfully dealt with issues of crime, neighborhood stability and economic development — issues of vital interest to all the Pointes.

Much is at stake in the selection of our next Wayne County commissioner. We pour millions of our tax dollars into the county's $1.5-billion budget, yet little of that is spent on services in our communities. We believe Jim Robson is the best choice to ensure a fair distribution of our tax dollars.

Can't have trees and fell them too

"Are you sure you want to do this?"

My spouse looked at me with doubt written all over his face. He knows I'm a certifiable tree-hugger. Going out into the forest to see a real logging site was bound to strain my sensitivities.

Nancy Parmenter

But there's the journalist's duty to know, and all that.

The Forest Resources Alliance, an industry group putting out information or propaganda, according to your viewpoint, sponsored a series of bus tours to logging sites and working sawmills a couple of weeks ago in northern Michigan. All the big companies like Georgia-Pacific and Weyerhaeuser operate in the state, along with any number of mom-and-pop (mostly pop) small operations. Oscoda County alone has 37 working sawmills, one for every 100 residents.

Clean-cut young foresters practically saturated the site, dispensing information nuggets and friendliness.

"We just want people to know we're not bad guys," said one.

Gosh, I never thought they were evil. But I've always wished they wouldn't cut down so many trees.

The day was fraught with new insights.

For one, lumbering jobs are certainly threatened as much by advanced technology as by environmentalists. In an industry where the two-man crosscut saw was only replaced by the chainsaw in the 1950s, most logging sites now employ only one man with a saw. All the rest of the work is carried out by heavy machinery.

For another, the amount of logging carried out nationwide or worldwide really isn't a subject to be settled only between loggers and environmentalists. The consumer governs. Until we curb or change our desire for paper, houses, furniture, the demand for more and more logging will continue.

(That, of course, begs the question of logging/encouraging log exports to wood-poor countries like Japan. Let's not get into that right now.)

The technology at a logging site is truly stupendous. Most of us get our ideas about logging from the old days, when huge crews of men with saws and axes cut up the trees and other crews hauled them out.

The almost surreal scene today is this: In the forest, a tree suddenly appears to be taking a walk. It moves, upright, then crashes heavily, felled by a machine that grasps it and cuts it off at the ground with a chainsaw.

The same machine then seizes it, measures it into preset lengths, slices off the limbs, and keeps an inventory. It takes about three seconds per log on an average machine. The fast ones do it in two.

The same piece of equipment gathers the logs in a bunch, carries them to the sorter, which either shreds them, bark, leaves, and all, shooting the fragments directly into a semi trailer, or piles them for the logging truck.

The operation requires two heavy machinery operators, no body on the ground.

The tourists gathered around, their jaws agape in wonder. As pure can-do technology, you can't beat it.

"This is depressing," a woman said. "It just means they can cut it down faster."

I got into an argument with one of the foresters as to whether the implications of logging the Pacific Northwest's old-growth forests are the same as logging in Michigan. He argued that it comes down to visibility.

"In Michigan, we leave trees along the roads and you can't see our logging operations," he explained. "Out there, that doesn't work because of the terrain. And because people can see it, they get upset."

Yikes. That's sort of like the old tree-falling-in-a-forest question. If we can't see it, does logging really exist? We don't care about trees we can't see?

Actually, that does sound a little bit like a weird twist on environmentalist Wendell Berry's argument that people need to feel connected to something before they will take responsibility for it. But I don't think Berry ever meant that you had to be personally connected to an individual tree to care about it.

I use wood as much as anybody. Reading and writing probably fill more of my time than any other single activities — and I do them both in my wooden house.

But what ever happened to the argument that computers would make paper obsolete? Our offices have the most advanced electronic communications imaginable — and we print everything out so we can ignore it and then throw it away.

There's a certain virtue to living in a used house. Old houses offer old-fashioned workmanship, cozy ambience, commitment to an existing neighborhood, continued use of infrastructure. If all the old houses in Detroit could be reused, Michigan's few remaining lumbermen could take an extra day off.

Ross Perot's brief foray into the political limelight reminds me of a shipboard romance. Brief, intense, cosmically significant, then gone.

Who among us could turn away from the siren call of the talk-show electors? If thousands of people pleaded with you, urged you, begged you, virtually anointed you, could you say no?

Like a lover, Perot enjoyed the urging, the fawning, the dalliance — until it didn't suit him any more. And like many a lover, he found it hard to cut off the affair.

"Maybe we can continue to see each other as friends," he seemed to be suggesting to his dismayed followers. Or, "I just need a little space. We should see other people, like Bill Clinton."

The betrayed are not likely to fall readily into someone else's arms, however. More likely, they'll swear off romance for a while.

But they won't forget their fling with Perot, the lover who vanished into the mist, the unattainable one, the white knight who held out so much promise, the one who will live in memory as perfection.

Just like a shipboard romance.

Come to think of it, Perot leaves a little sting behind him. He's more like an incarnation of that lightning-fast '50s prankster, Speedy Gonzalez.

Beware

To the Editor:

We sold our home of 37 years in Grosse Pointe Farms and built a new home in Sewall's Point, Fla. When the sold sign went up in Grosse Pointe, we were approached by a salesman for an agent in Michigan for a moving company in Tampa, Fla. We signed a contract to move our furniture and boxes.

Using our two cars and a small utility trailer, we moved our valuables and breakables ourselves, as the mover suggested. This included our jewelry, fine china, silver, lamps, crystal, china doll collection, etc.

My wife and I, driving separate cars, arrived in Florida two days before the movers. On arriving, we placed our valuables, which were in sealed boxes in our master bedroom closet. The morning the movers were to arrive, my wife placed her jewelry in a cloth bag, placed the bag in her purse and the purse under boxes in the full closet.

When the movers arrived, we learned later, the driver's assistant did not make the trip south. The driver instead picked up two individuals in a truck stop in Vero Beach to assist him in unloading our furniture and 259 boxes. The two individuals he picked up were professional thieves. We believe they are known to the driver, since he informed the police he never secured their names or Social Security numbers. They worked and cooperated closely with each other.

Before the unloading began, the driver gave me a job outside on the driveway, checking off the items being carried inside, against the inventory list. This was done to keep me outside the house.

Then when my wife began bringing in boxes and instructing the movers where to place the furniture, they told her she was putting them out of a job. So she came to help me with the items and numbers, which brought both of us outside the house.

You can guess the rest. We lost all our jewelry acquired over 50 years, also my wife's mother's jewelry she received when her mother died. The jewelry loss was twice the value of all furnishings moved and is irreplaceable.

We were trusting individuals. This was our first and only loss in 50 years. Never carried special jewelry insurance, as we never thought this would happen to us. So if you are planning a move, be careful. Don't have valuable jewelry in the house. Professional thieves know where people hide things and they will find anything you think is safely hidden.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Schulte

Clarification

To the Editor:

Again, please accept my sincere appreciation for the great article (July 23 - candidate profile). Of course, I did not like my picture, but that is the fault of the subject, not yours.

However, I do have concern regarding the abortion issue which is a very important and emotional one for me. I believe that it is very important to include that I am not pro-abortion; rather, I am committed to providing alternatives to pregnant mothers so that they have real choices other than abortion.

By the same token, I believe as strongly in the basic rights of all children, whether born or unborn, to survival, protection and development. Therefore, I do not think that I fit the pro-choice label which does not accept this basic belief.

I know that I did say that if both sides spent more time, effort and resources on providing mothers with real choices (e.g. quality and affordable child care), we would not be as entrenched in the present warfare.

Also too, I am afraid that eliminating the word "aspirant" to Children of Mary Society will deeply offend the members of this organization. I have been aspiring to be a member and must yet fulfill my complete obligations before becoming a full member.

I hope that in some way, without it being too much trouble, you can help me set this record straight. Whether I am elected or not, what I stand for is very important to me.

Recycling

To the Editor:

This is an open letter to the mayor of Grosse Pointe Park and the citizens of Grosse Pointe Park.

The following summarizes the costs of refuse removal from in front of my residence on Harcourt.

Rubbish removal for 1989, $76.66; 1990, $188.85; 1991, $270.20; 1992, $270.20

Total for 1989, $76.66; 1990, $188.85; 1991, $270.20; 1992, $450.20

Average month for 1989, $6.40; 1990, $15.70; 1991, $22.52; 1992, $37.50

Additionally, I am required to assist in this costly removal procedure by:

About noon Tuesday they pick up some rubbish.

About 8 a.m. Wednesday they pick up bottles, cans, plastic, and newspaper.

About noon Wednesday they pick up yard waste.

By this action of our city experts, Harcourt looks like an unkempt urban street from about supper time Monday to about supper time Wednesday.

All this for $37.50 per month - an increase of more than 600 percent in three years.

It is interesting to note that rubbish removal is an item on the city tax bill, whereas recycling is called

RC and billed on the water bill. Do you think anyone in city government has any idea what the total cost of refuse removal is?

What happened to common sense? Up until a couple years ago, several private pick-up people came by on one day a week to pick up steel, paper, copper, brass, etc., at no additional cost to the homeowner. Now with money and sophistication I have no place to go with old brass, copper, wire, etc.

When I was a kid on the east side, pick-up men came by our home several times a day to purchase old rags, bed springs, aluminum, brass, wire, newspaper, etc. The corner saloon (now called a beer joint) sorted liquor bottles by color, broke them in separate barrels for pick up. All this at no billed cost from the city to the homeowner.

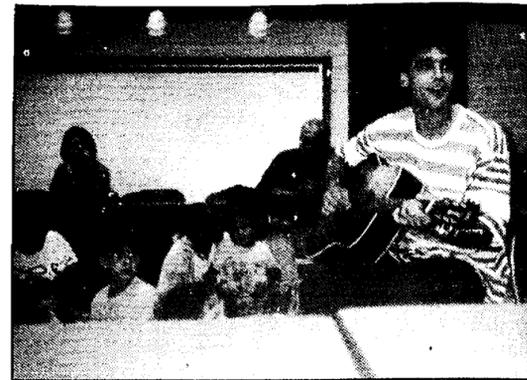

During World War II we washed out vegetable cans, removed the bottom, and flattened them. Then placed them out in a box for pickup.

Where are the thinking people? The poor fellow on the special RC truck spends most of his time getting out and in of his truck. An old-fashioned horse-drawn milk wagon would be much more efficient. After a couple of trips, the horse always knew when to stop without direction of the milkman.

Is there anyone in or outside of government who can improve this situation and reduce the cost to the homeowner without creating a special study commission or blaming it on county or state or federal regulations?

Something as simple as asking homeowners to put newspapers out one week and cans/bottles another week would save time. Some homeowners already do a pre-sort with their neighbors' containers to make it easier for the driver.

The uninvited

For the record, we like houseguests. Most often we love houseguests and welcome them into our home with open arms. As a matter of fact, we have had six guests in the past two weeks — no problems, smooth sailing all the way. They were invited guests. Invited friends one can prepare for, make plans, arrange meals, etc. Uninvited guests are an entirely different matter.

We have recently been subjected to uninvited aliens, who have invaded our home. For longer than we care to admit we have suspected that there were foreign critters living in the attic. We live in an old house and have had a history of squirrels and raccoons breaking and entering. We have had ongoing roof repairs, chimney screen installations, and finally an entire new roof.

However, Grosse Pointe wildlife, having the benefits of our fine schools, libraries, parks, etc., are immensely clever and we have yet to find a deterrent that will keep them from nesting in our comfy condo in the sky. Forget about ammonia-soaked towels and mothballs. They didn't work.

For a couple of weeks we had been vaguely aware of nocturnal noises above our bedroom, but having had a fairly stressful time recently and armed with the knowledge that the area of the attic where we had had previous visitors was safely secured from the living area, it was easy to ignore the problem till a more convenient time.

However, it soon became evident that we could no longer back-burner the conditions going on upstairs. It sounded like elephants moving furniture, a road rally and a bowling convention all taking place simultaneously. Sleep was not an option. We were under siege and tomorrow would not be soon enough. We headed to the local phone directory but were unable to locate anything under "Varmint Control."

After a few phone calls we were directed to a man who promised to capture our critters and take them to saner, safer environs. A roofer with whom we had consulted had offered to return with a .22 and "blow the li'l devils outta there for ya lady." We have very little common sense when it comes to animals. Let's just say we love them all and didn't want any harm to come to them, we just wanted them relocated. The man who came to our aid assured us that the animals would not be hurt and that no drugs would be used. He was certain that we were dealing with a mother raccoon and her babies.

We made an appointment and the humane traps were set. We then learned that it might take several hours for the raccoons to go into the traps. The man who did the dastardly deed located a mother raccoon in the attic who was nursing two large babies. She appeared to be snoring. (We like our guests to be comfortable.) He told us that the animals usually forage for food at night and probably would not be caught until morning. We also learned that once mating season is over, in February, a female will not allow another female or male into her nesting area. She would be expected to remain in our house until August. No way!

We were expecting dinner guests and were not sure if we should inform them of the drama that may or may not take place during the evening. The friends were good buddies, so we decided to share our saga. We had our ears cocked toward the ceiling several times throughout the night, but the only activity we heard was the occasional scratching of one of the dinner guests on the under side of the table. Very funny... NOT. The guests departed, dishes were loaded into the dishwasher and we wearily headed to our beds after a final check of the empty traps.

At 5:30 a.m. the racket began. We were startled from our sleep by a thunderous noise from directly above our bedroom. We knew that at least one of the little darlings was our captive.

We made a call to the answering service of our wild-life savior and were assured that he would contact us when he returned from church. We fidgeted around downstairs, had breakfast, read the papers and cleaned the kitchen. It was time to head upstairs to dress and face the racket again. This time we heard our first whining sounds, almost unbearable for animal lovers. My husband checked the traps in an attempt to placate me with the news that all was well and our friends were unharmed except for their stress levels.

The kindly custodian of the helpless critters returned our call and arrived at our doorstep as promised. We are told that the mother and two babies he removed from their/our/ cozy abode are happily together in a natural setting several miles from here.

Newspapers are constantly besieged by requests that are thinly disguised as free advertising. Therefore they are forced to politely decline most requests. In this case no request was made and no names will be mentioned. However, if one just happens to have uninvited guests on the premises, they might want to call their city offices to learn the name of a very nice man who will accommodate them. Off duty, I've been told, he also leaps around on rooftops wearing a black suit and top hat.

Too much change

A fast-talking con man and his helper confused a cashier in a yogurt shop in the 20300 block of Mack in Grosse Pointe Woods and left with more than $100 in change that they should never have received.

The incident happened about 7:40 p.m. Tuesday, July 7.

A heavy-set black man, with an afro, mustache and eyeglasses, ordered a $1.30 menu item.

He then laid $50 on the counter, and the cashier rang up the sale, giving him $48.70 in change. However, the cashier didn't pick up the $50 that was on the counter.

The store was very busy at the time, according to the police report, and the man's accomplice, described as being a heavy-set black man in his 40s, kept asking the cashier questions about the different menu items.

While the second man was asking questions, the first man laid two $20 bills and a $10 bill on the counter, next to the $50 bill, and asked the cashier for ten $10 bills.

The cashier didn't have them, so the suspect asked for five $20 bills, which the cashier gave him.

The suspects left the store with the yogurt and more than $100 in change.

Why am I seeking public office?

I am campaigning for Wayne County Commissioner because I have seen a disenchantment and disillusionment of the American people with politicians. It would be my goal to provide the people of the First District with a representative who will bring a fresh perspective... an honest and informed Commissioner who has no further political aspirations. I am not part of nor sponsored by "The Good Ol' Boy Political Establishment" and, therefore, not controlled by special interest groups.

What I will do for you when elected?

Although Wayne County Commissioner is a part-time position, as an early retiree, this will be my full-time responsibility... my total concentration will be on representing my constituency, with a focus on finances, accountability and efficiently operated services. I will be totally centered on the business of the Commission.

In my thirty years of administrative experience in finance, forecasting and planning, I learned problem resolution requires positive receptiveness to informed communication from all sources. As your Commissioner, I will respect the ideas of others while maintaining my own integrity and standing firm on important principles.

What are the major problems facing the Wayne County Commission?

- Crime, largely drug-driven, particularly among the youth, has severe long-term broad based implications for all Wayne County communities regardless of their demographics. I would encourage increased utilization of the Wayne County Sheriff's Department in cooperation with local police officials in mutually focused goals.
- Detroit City Airport expansion is the second major problem in this district. The unnecessary and unwanted expansion of City Airport has resulted in unreasonable noise levels without creating tangible benefits. I will oppose any further expansion of this airport.
- Public transportation in Wayne County is in serious trouble. I will encourage cooperation with all governmental agencies in Southeast Michigan to ensure access by county residents to adequate and reliable public transportation.
- We need to assure that Wayne County receives its fair share of Federal and state funds for roads. I will monitor, through SEMCOG, our representative share of the new (1991) Intermodal Surface Transportation Efficiency Act (ISTEA) funds for local roads.

Other goals which will be my priorities in representing you include:

- Maintaining Home Rule
- Initiating new two-way Wayne County and local community working communications and problem solving.
- Insuring all in-kind services... police, social services, roadwork... for all my constituents. Initiating a new Wayne County Health Clinic in this district (Van Dyke and Eight Mile Road).
- Monitoring the proper completion of the Milk River Project, particularly the two-stage Cook Road Gravity Sewer Project in this district.
- Retaining a voice for the smaller East Side Wayne County Communities.

You have to accentuate the positive and eliminate the negative

It's not always the major crises that stir the waters and make a charted course difficult. Sometimes minor challenges cause ripples of frustration.

For instance, boxes of detergent soap with instructions that direct you to "push here to open." Unless you have a well-developed muscular thumb, you might as well be pushing against a concrete wall.

Then there are the plastic strips on frozen juice cans. Halfway around the can, the tape breaks, and you are left to funnel the contents out of a small opening.

Caps and tops that refuse to turn can upset your day.

Topping them all in this department of maddening packaging are the caps designed to keep children and people with headaches from getting at the contents of the bottles.

Happily, some bottles are designed with a self-seeking tab inside a double cap. The tab slips down into a slot allowing the top to be turned.

For some consumers, the inconvenience of wrestling with the tops of products is secondary to the chore of shopping for them — a tedious task that takes up valuable time better spent in a more pleasurable way.

The true "I hate to shop" people would rather do almost anything else — even household chores. They dislike pushing their way down aisles that are often impassable because two friends who haven't seen each other since yesterday are exchanging gossip; or because boxes waiting to be packed defy passage; or because some conscientious shopper blocks three shelves with her body and a cart while she makes a choice.

Then there are the ankle bumpers. Some are more treacherous than others. The real menaces are the speeders who go whirling through the store zipping around corners, crashing into all obstacles, including shinbones.

Prime Time

By Marian Trainor

All things come to an end, including the frustrating ones. The groceries are checked out and packed in the cart. Breathing a sigh of relief, you push the wobbly pile to the car. Leg muscles bulge, shoulders strain with effort, but you make it. It was an ordeal but thankfully you won't have to face it for another week. A sense of accomplishment settles over you that is quickly dispelled when you spot your car.

You've overstayed your time. You have a ticket. So ends the saga of a disconsolate shopper.

There are those who love the challenge of shopping. They never seem to encounter the trials of the reluctant supermarket visitor. It could be because they have a positive attitude toward the chore. Their adrenalin begins to flow the moment the door swings open. They come armed with lists of specials and neatly clipped coupons.

For them it is exciting to beat the system and come out with $6 worth of merchandise for every $5 spent. But that area of shopping is just a prelude to the big-time pursuit of taking on the shopping malls. Here the perils are more marked.

Fitness video for seniors

George Bournias of Odyssey Productions of Grosse Pointe is handling the producing, directing and coordinating responsibilities for "SMILE," a low-intensity exercise program geared towards seniors.

SMILE, an acronym for "So Much Improvement with a Little Exercise," will provide instruction and demonstration on a wide range of upper and lower body exercises specifically designed for elderly and frail individuals.

Bournias/Odyssey will be working in association with professors of The University of Michigan College of Health and members of the Association of Gerontology. An instructional workbook is also being published to accompany the videotape which will be made available to hospitals, community centers, and physical therapists.

Bournias expects the first in what may become a series of fitness videos/workbooks to be available by mid-summer.

Senior dance planned

Michigan Consolidated Gas Co. and Services for Older Citizens will host the third annual dance for senior citizens on Friday, Aug. 28. The "Good Old Days" theme will include music and entertainment by Edna Brown, a comedian and a former Miss Senior Michigan winner.

The dance will be held at Grosse Pointe North High School from 1 to 4 p.m.; doors open at 12:45 p.m.

Tickets are free and can be obtained from the SOC office in Room 105 at Barnes School, 20090 Morningside in Grosse Pointe Woods; phone is 882-9600. Tickets can also be obtained at the door. All senior citizens are invited to attend.

For more information, call Ann Kraemer at 882-9600.

Cars and planes mix well; sometimes they're the same

The guy opening the trunk of the bright yellow "lead sled" chopped '50 Mercury was the right age, no doubt about it — somewhere on the wrong side of 50. The age of one who either had one of these in his youth or wanted one and now could afford it.

It was part of an old car show at Selfridge Air National Guard Base, part of a color guard of vehicles definitely at odds with the drab military machines which usually reside there.

Bright colors abounded, the turquoises, salmons and pinks of the '50s, hot rods and street machines in brilliant blues, yellows and reds and the more sedate colors of the stately cars of the '30s and earlier. But they seemed right, scattered among the airplanes of various vintages on permanent display there.

The mix of airplanes and automobiles has always been a good one and on a recent perfect Sunday afternoon, it reminded us of the many ties between them, both technical and esthetic.

Both aircraft and automobiles travel against the resistance of air and both benefit by lower resistance. A Chrysler Airstream reflects the use of wind tunnels, developed for aircraft aerodynamics testing, for automobiles, as do a 1951 Nash Airflyte (Nash called it the Airflyte, most people called it the bathtub Nash) and Volkswagen Beetle, mildly customized and so of indeterminate vintage.

A number of auto designers used wind tunnels to produce more aerodynamic designs, including Buckminster Fuller, who in 1933 built a strange three-wheel car called a Dymaxion, powered by a Ford V-8 and looking rather like a belligerent egg. The Czech-built Tatra, the American Pierce Arrow and the Italian Fiat Topolino were other aerodynamic cars of the '30s.

In more modern times, Ford Motor Co. reintroduced what it called the "aero" look in the early '80s, an enormous market gamble considering the sales fate of most of those '30s ventures, but it was a resounding success and others followed. The increased concern for aerodynamics in body design has enhanced fuel economy and set the shape of the contemporary automobile.

A number of automobile makers have dabbled in aircraft, including Ford Motor Co. Ford was inspired to develop the Ford Tri-Motor by William Stout, who designed the radically aerodynamic Scarab, of which five were built.

At least three aircraft pioneers, Eddie Rickenbacker, Charles Lindbergh and Amelia Earhart, were also involved in automobiles. In fact, a Rickenbacker car was built in Detroit from 1922 through 1927. Lindbergh was interested in cars and helped promote sales of the Franklin, which used an air-cooled engine, as did his "Spirit of St. Louis" airplane in which he crossed the Atlantic. Earhart drove a Plymouth into Madison Square Garden in 1928 to help launch that new entry from Chrysler Corp.

Aircraft design has had a great influence on automotive styling, in addition to the aerodynamic look. The World War II P-38 twin-fuselage fighter plane is said to have inspired General Motors' styling boss Harley Earl to put small taillight fins on the '48 Cadillac to house the taillights. It started a craze which lasted into the '60s, resulting in some of the most astonishing cars ever built, many of them quite beautiful, many quite ugly.

The 1950 Studebaker had a front end nose cone grille that was clearly patterned after a jet fighter. And some of the Chrysler 300 letter cars of the late '50s and early '60s also had front ends which looked like jet or rocket intakes.

There have even been a few attempts to actually combine automobiles and aircraft. One was a car that could be converted to an airplane called the Arrowbile, designed in the mid-'30s by aircraft pioneer Waldo Waterman. Studebaker became interested in it and seriously considered selling it through its dealers, but decided not to. Only one is known to have been built, powered by a Franklin air-cooled six, not a Studebaker.

Autos

By Richard Wright

The Fulton Airphibian was demonstrated after World War II, a small two-passenger car to which a wing, propeller and body extension could be affixed. The Aircar was a Ford Pinto with Cessna Skymaster wings and propeller, but the first one crashed and ended those dreams.

Molt Taylor, a designer of high-performance, personal aircraft, designed a combination airplane-automobile called the Aerocar. Production was planned to take place in Fort Worth, Texas, but lack of financing doomed it.

The day of the Selfridge show was perfect, sunny and not humid. But it had rained for several preceding days and the grounds were muddy, a fact which cut down on the number of cars exhibited, said an official of the local Buick collectors' club.

"A number of cars pulled in, saw the muddy ground and went back home," he said. The Buick club members stayed, however, and Buicks took a number of trophies in the judging, including a very rare 1930 luxury coupe, a stunning 1938 club coupe finished in black and gray, and a flashy-toothed 1950 with Dynaflo.

The Selfridge aircraft and auto show marked the first time I had been on a military base since I left the Army in 1956 and it spurred some automotive memories. I had the good fortune to be sent to the Army Language School in Monterey, Calif., to study Russian for a year and it was there that I realized there was more to automotive life than hot rods and old junkers.

Two buddies were Cal and Jim Cafritz, from a prominent Washington, D.C., family. Jim had a late model ('53 I believe; this would have been 1954) Chevrolet hardtop, which was the envy of the base. Or most of it.

Cal went downtown into Monterey and bought an old brown '40 Ford V-8 coupe, which was and still is one of my favorites. We took it to the annual road race at nearby Pebble Beach. In those more casual days, spectators were allowed on the track the day before the big race to drive their own cars on it.

We took the old bomb out onto the track, switching drivers after a couple laps. As I drove the winding course, I noticed that the Ford did fine on the straightaways, but the funny-looking little Porsches, Alfas and MGs beat it in the turns.

I went wheel-to-wheel for a while, to that driver's obvious consternation, when I had to brake for a turn and he didn't. To my delight, however, a front wheel of the Porsche came off. My joy was short-lived, however, as I realized that I was right next to a speeding car out of control and I had little more control of mine.

I avoided disaster, largely through dumb luck, which over the years gradually became a "high level of driving skill." (A Jaguar won the real race the next day, nosing out a Chrysler Allard.)

Another buddy, Dan Mordecai, owned a '48 Studebaker convertible, whose performance did not live up to its sleek looks. I drove it back from a party at Mills College in San Francisco, foot on the floor all the way but never coming close to breaking any speed limit. Dan kept urging me to drive faster, but I am sure he knew that 55 was it.

A friend from Boston, George Jackson Hill III, had an old Austin which he parked on a hill outside the Presidio of Monterey because rolling it down the hill was usually the only way to get it started. We drove through the mountains down the coast to San Luis Obispo and it barely made it. It made the Studebaker feel like a hot rod.

After not seeing him for 35 years, I visited with George last summer while attending a conference of journalism educators. A not-very-sharp soldier and a proponent of the gentlemanly C while a student at Harvard, he turned out to be an exceptional civilian. He heads his own advertising agency, Hill, Holliday and Cosmopolis, which numbers among its accounts the Nissan Infiniti. So I assume he no longer has the Austin, but drives something classier.

After graduating from language school, we were shipped to Washington, D.C., for security training. Another buddy, Frank Spalding, lived there, and his sister, who was dating some rich guy whose father owned the Washington Star (now gone), owned a Sunbeam Alpine convertible, a wonderfully beautiful old-fashioned British sports car.

I got an opportunity to drive it and it shattered all my myths about sports cars. It was beautiful, but it had a harsh ride and the performance did not live up to the souped-up Detroit iron back home. It convinced me that American convertibles are the best sports cars.

In Germany, I.O. Johnson, a soldier (the Army might dispute that) from Chicago nicknamed by the locals "Bier King" (the beer king) had shipped his '50 Mercury from home. The sight of that huge, turtle-like car rocketing down a narrow German road near the East-West border at Bahrdorf was startling, particularly on the day he miscalculated, went off the road and rolled it.

Germans working the field ran over, helped him right the monster car and cheered lustily as he drove off. The car was a bit wrinkled, but it ran, proving I.O.'s faith was not misplaced.

My love of automobiles began before I joined the Army. But military service enhanced it and this love affair would keep me strapped for cash the rest of my days.

Research saves lives.

Divers to demonstrate

Volunteer divers with the Dossin Great Lakes Museum and the Great Lakes Maritime Institute will present a diving demonstration at the museum on Saturday, Aug. 1, and Sunday, Aug. 2, from 11 a.m. to 3 p.m.

On July 20, the divers explored the Detroit River in front of the Dossin. The public was invited to talk to the divers while they were in the river by using the communications system video equipment used during the recovery of the S.S. Edmund Fitzgerald anchor. The equipment also allowed the public to see the bottom of the river while the divers were in the water.

Divers with the Dossin recovered the mammoth anchor during a live telecast on July 20. The anchor was lost in the Detroit River in 1974, approximately 1/2 mile from Hart Plaza and 800 feet in the middle of the Detroit River. Cleaned and on display in the yard of the museum, the anchor is awaiting a concrete foundation and will be dedicated this fall.

The Dossin Great Lakes Museum is located on Belle Isle at 100 Strand Drive. Hours are 10 a.m. to 4 p.m., Wednesday through Sunday.

Composting project could make use of those pesky zebra mussels

By Debra Pascoe
Staff Writer

A project devised by a local agency may turn pesky zebra mussels into a useful commodity.

The Macomb County Extension Service is seeking a $15,000 grant from the Environmental Protection Agency to conduct a zebra mussel composting demonstration project.

Since the critters began infesting the Great Lakes waterways, a variety of agencies have been trying to find ways to kill or control the mussels, whose females shed up to 40,000 eggs a year each.

But Steve Stewart, district extension sea grant agent, has been looking at safe and economical ways to dispose of them.

Currently, the mussels are taking up a large portion of the already depleted supply of landfill space, which can be costly and "not real smart environmentally," Stewart said.

The project is patterned after compost sites throughout the Great Lakes region that use fish waste as their main ingredient. Those compost piles, he said, are odorless and less costly because of the low-tech methods used.

"It didn't take a great leap of intuition to figure it would work out for zebra mussels," he said.

Stewart said that if the EPA confirms a verbal agreement by sending him a $15,000 check, he will go ahead and construct four compost sites on a 40- to 50-cubic-foot land parcel in St. Clair County. Each pile will consist of alternating layers of the mollusks and wood chips. They will be analyzed daily over a one-year period to determine if the product will meet Department of Natural Resources and EPA guidelines.

Four 55-gallon drums of zebra mussels will be removed from the intake valves at the Detroit Edison plant located along Lake Erie to stock the compost piles.

Stewart said about 200 tons of the mollusks are removed each year from the Edison plant, which costs the company between $16,000 and $20,000 annually to dispose of in landfills.

He isn't sure how long it will take to stabilize the compost piles. But based on the fish-waste studies, he said, it should be about two months before the product sufficiently decomposes.

An agricultural specialist is considering conducting tests on the fertilizer to determine which form of vegetation will most benefit from it, he said.

Results of the project will be released in January during a state-wide zebra mussel conference at Michigan State University.

Grosse Pointe Cable board elects new officers

The board of directors of Grosse Pointe Cable, Inc. recently elected John R. Nicholson to serve as president and director until its next annual meeting in March 1993.

Nicholson replaces John M. Rickel, who has served as a director and president of Grosse Pointe Cable, Inc. since its founding in 1979.

"We appreciate Mr. Rickel's long service to the Grosse Pointe Cable system," Nicholson said. "His untiring efforts have served the community well. He has contributed significantly to building a firm foundation for the future development of a great asset that belongs to all Grosse Pointers."

The board also elected Mark

R. Weber as treasurer and Bruce M. Rockwell as secretary. Mary Schultz continues as vice president and manager of the cable system.

Grosse Pointe Cable, Inc. is jointly owned by the Grosse Pointe War Memorial Association, the cities of Grosse Pointe City, Farms, Woods, Park and Harper Woods, and Comcast Corporation. Its board of directors is comprised of three members representing the War Memorial Association, one representative of the five cities, and one representative of Comcast, the technical manager of the system.

The board, noting that the cable franchise and enabling city ordinances are nearing their expiration dates, said it has entered substantive negotiations with the cities and Comcast for the sole purpose of refranchising Grosse Pointe Cable under terms that will continue to provide service to the residents of the broadcast area.

At its last meeting, the Grosse Pointe War Memorial

Association's Board of Directors reaffirmed its position that, while there had been some discussions concerning the possible sale of its interest in the cable company several years ago, there is no current plan or predisposition on the part of the association to either sell its stock or to acquire Comcast Corporation's interest.

"Our goal is to provide the people of our area with the best possible cable service at the most reasonable prices and to serve as a core communications vehicle for the benefit of the entire community," Richard W. Kay, chairman of the War Memorial, said. "We will continue to work hard to achieve that ideal."

Tight race looms for Collins, Barrow in 15th District

By Maureen McNulty
Staff Writer

Things have changed drastically in two years for candidates hoping to represent in the U.S. House of Representatives the district which now encompasses three of the five Grosse Pointes.

First, the name of the district itself has changed due to recent reapportionment.

Residents of Grosse Pointe Park and Grosse Pointe City are no longer in the 13th District but are now part of the new 15th District, made up of parts of the old 1st, 13th and 14th districts. New additions to the district are: Grosse Pointe Farms, Hamtramck, River Rouge, Ecorse and a larger portion of northwest Detroit.

The 15th District now extends from Greenfield Road in southwest Detroit to the Grosse Pointe Shores border northeast of Detroit.

With the addition of Grosse Pointe Farms to the 15th District, the Pointes now make up 17 percent of total votes in the district, as opposed to 8 percent for two Pointes in 1990.

Not only are the geography and demographics of the new 15th District dramatically different from two years ago, but so is the scope of candidates.

This year, there are only two Democrats running in the Aug 4th primary, vs. four Democratic challengers who split the votes in 1990. Republican challengers number three, the same as two years ago, and one of those three ran as a Democrat in the 1990 race.

Democratic incumbent Barbara-Rose Collins, who garnered about one-third of the former 13th District's total votes in the 1990 election (11,987) but got only 25 from Grosse Pointe Park and City, faces a potentially stiff challenge in the Democratic primary from candidate Tom Barrow. He's no stranger to tough competitions, challenging Coleman Young in Detroit's mayoral race in 1985 and 1989 and receiving a respectable portion of the total vote.

Tom Barrow

AGE: 43
PERSONAL: A life-long Detroit resident, Barrow received a bachelor's degree in accounting and a master's degree in business administration and finance from Wayne State University. He lives in Detroit, is single and has no children.

POSITION: An accountant, Barrow is the founder, president and chairman of the board of his certified public accounting firm, Barrow, Aldridge & Co.

BACKGROUND: Barrow was elected to the Michigan State Board of Accountancy in 1978 and is a former chairman of that board.

He ran for mayor of Detroit against Coleman Young in 1985 and 1989, losing both times but gaining support and recognition in the primaries.

In 1987, he led the campaign against casino gambling in Detroit. In 1990, Barrow ran unsuccessfully against Barbara-Rose Collins and two other Democrats for a congressional seat, losing to Collins but gaining the second-most votes in the 13th District and more votes than any other candidate from voters in the Pointes.

ISSUES: Barrow believes the major problems facing the country are rebuilding cities, stimulating businesses, providing health care to everyone and protecting the environment.

"I believe I need to be in this office (congressional) if I want to make any real change," Barrow said. "The system is stacked against anyone who wants to come in and change power. I've experienced it — some people told me I wouldn't believe it, but I've come to accept it as reality.

Barbara-Rose Collins

"The major problem we face is double-pronged. We need to revitalize and rebuild our cities. To do that, we need to stimulate business by creating incentives to do business here.

"There is also a lack of affordable, quality health care. Institutions have closed due to lack of support. There should be vouchers for the government, the state, the employer and the employee to pay for health care, to make it affordable and to open up institutions and provide jobs."

He said he would support legislation providing full funding to address infant mortality, AIDS education, prevention and health care programs for all Americans.

On the abortion issue, Barrow said he is pro-choice, but as a practicing Catholic, he would counsel women against having an abortion.

Barrow said he also supports the Clean Air Act and wants companies to be held liable for leaving messes behind when they leave an area.

"We should demand that

"Every city is in a financial crisis and would love to be able to borrow at 3 percent."

Barrow said things will start to "rock 'n' roll" for the 15th District once he reaches Congress.

"I'm not a politician. I'm a business guy. If I get inside, things will change drastically. I'm an Afro-American, representing one of the largest, diverse groups in the country, black and white, from some of the wealthiest to the poorest, and I have a unique sense of understanding about the issues facing us," he said.

To help reduce the federal deficit, Barrow said he would not support raising taxes and doesn't believe there should be a tax hike on cigarettes and liquor.

"I would first support across-the-board cuts on the managerial side of the federal government, consolidating positions and making the government run more like a business while recognizing that it is a bureaucracy," he said.

Barrow said he plans on setting up a Grosse Pointe office and would hold a town meeting in his office no less than once a month.

"The Grosse Pointes must unite and come out in bigger numbers now more than ever. They should understand and realize that they can make a significant contribution toward controlling the selection of their next congressman," he said, adding that their vote could make up 31 percent of the total primary vote.

"If they unite, they can break the back of the machine that has controlled politics in this community for the past 20 years."

Barbara-Rose Collins

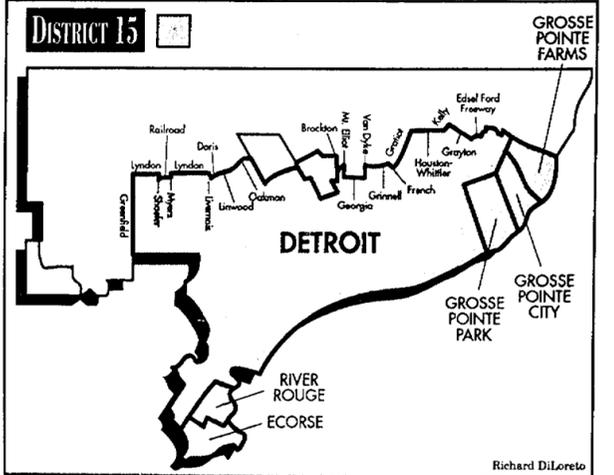

AGE: 53
PERSONAL: A Detroit native, Collins attended Detroit public schools and graduated from Cass Tech High School. She also attended Wayne State University, where she studied political science and anthropology. She is a widow with a young son, daughter and grandchildren.
POSITION: Elected in 1990 to represent the 15th Congressional District.
BACKGROUND: Collins served on the Detroit school board from 1970-73; in the state House of Representatives from 1975-81; and in the Detroit City Council from 1982 to January, 1991.
ISSUES: Collins says key issues facing the district are job training, transportation and infrastructure. "Jobs are desperately needed but it's not unique to the 15th District," Collins said. "But how do you create them? I support the Domestic Marshall Plan initiative to rebuild America. It would take a great infusion of money, 2 percent of the total GNP, or $110 billion over 10 years.

"America's infrastructure is decaying. There are structural defects in bridges and roads. Some cities, like Detroit, have sewers that are made of wood."
She also favors cutting military spending by at least $100 billion annually and taking one half to rebuild America's infrastructure and the other half to go toward the national debt.
Collins said she's garnered $20 million for final engineering plans for a light rail (as opposed to subway) system for downtown and metropolitan Detroit and received a commitment of $400 million from the chairman of the House Transportation subcommittee on Public Works to start construction on the system.
The light rail system, which would extend along the historic spokes on Detroit's city grid —

Gratiot, Woodward, Michigan and Grand River — out to the suburbs, would cost a great deal more than $400 million. To carry the system from Woodward to Eight Mile would cost between $400 million and $600 million, Collins said.
"I would prefer an underground system, because it would last longer, but it would cost about 2 1/2 times more. This will help bring our region into the 20th century, not even the 21st century. We don't have public transportation and this meets our needs."
Collins said she would like to get away from relying on buses because they use non-renewable fossil fuels, they are too dependent on foreign oil and they pollute the environment.
For the Grosse Pointes specifically, Collins said, she encourages county funds to go toward repaving Jefferson Avenue and she supports having Grosse Pointe City and Park removed from the Federal Emergency Management Agency (FEMA) flood insurance plan.
"Victoria Park got itself removed from the flood plan (insurance premiums). Residents now pay up to $500 a year for the premiums and there's no real likelihood of flooding," she said.

She said several pieces of legislation she introduced which are in Congress now include Job Corps 2000, an extension of Job Corps Training centers, which she would like to see increased by 50 by the year 2000, or open five new centers a year retroactive to 1990.
She also wants to increase the age limit to 24; let people apply without requiring them to be a resident of the center; and install day-care in the training centers.
"Some say, by the year 2000, eight of 10 new employees will be female and they should be trained and ready to participate in the job market," she said.
Other pieces of legislation Collins said she introduced include states getting a two-year waiver from the government to pay their share (20 percent) for transit projects.
Another deals with making sure that women's work inside the home or on a volunteer basis has a dollar value put on it and is made a part of the gross national product by the Department of Labor's bureau of statistics.
That bill, she said, stemmed from the United Nation's International Women's Conference, held in Nairobi in 1985. After that conference, Collins said, the UN asked all nations to do the same thing. Many Third World nations eagerly adopted the idea.
Collins said she is the "mother of enterprise zones," and that she introduced such legislation while serving as a chairperson of the Michigan State House standing committee on Urban Affairs.
She thinks the federal government should provide universal health care coverage using both private insurers and a safety net of health insurance for those who are uninsured. Collins also believes hospitals in the same vicinity should share high-cost equipment to help keep health care costs down.

On the abortion issue, Collins is pro-choice.

Paramedics want to meet the community

Ruehle's Paramedics Mike Everett and Steve Burich are spending their off hours teaching the community about the importance of advanced life support. They recently visited with Sandra Lombard's class at Kerby School.
The Paramedics' program is about an hour in length. It stresses the broad-ranging capabilities of paramedics as compared to Emergency Medical Technicians (EMT). Paramedics have the training and equipment to perform critical heart and lung lifesaving techniques which could help save a patient from paralysis or brain damage. In contrast, EMTs are trained primarily to administer cardiopulmonary resuscitation (CPR) and bandage wounds. In some areas, ambulance service is limited to transportation. The St. Joseph's/Ruehle's Paramedic team serves local residents through a contract with the City of Grosse Pointe Farms. It is stationed at Cottage Hospital where the paramedics' skills are continually updated in the Emergency department.
For information on scheduling a program with paramedics Everett and Burich, call Cottage Hospital at 884-8600, extension 2456.

GOP senses opening; 3 candidates vie in 15th District

By Maureen McNulty
Staff Writer

Though the 15th District is still overwhelmingly Democratic, consisting mainly of Detroit with a smattering of six smaller cities, including Grosse Pointe Park, City and Farms, this could be the year for the GOP to take the House seat away from the Democrats, considering the formidable opposition they've fielded.

Charles Vincent, M.D., chief of OB-GYN at Detroit River-view Hospital and vice chief of staff at Hutzel Hospital, ran in the 1990 Democratic primary against Barbara-Rose Collins, Tom Barrow and Alberta Tinsley-Williams. Collins won the race, but not by much. Barrow and Vincent split most of the remaining votes between them.

Running as a Republican this year, Vincent poses the first serious challenge to the traditionally Democrat-dominated district.

Candidate John Savage is also no newcomer to politics, running for mayor of Detroit twice and running for Congress four times, but failing to win any primaries.

A newcomer to the race, Timothy Theodore, distinguishes himself as the only non-Detroiter (he lives in Grosse Pointe Park) and as a member of the baby-boomer generation (he's 44). He is an executive in his family-owned cab company which services Detroit and the metropolitan area and believes that the future of the suburbs and the city is directly linked.

John W. Savage

AGE: 76
PERSONAL: A native of Montgomery, Ala., Savage graduated from Alabama State Sr. High and completed two years of college at Alabama State College in Montgomery studying music. He left school to join a band in New York City in 1936 and was involved in various other bands throughout his life. He moved to Detroit in 1950 and has six children and six grandchildren.

POSITION: Savage is the retired owner of M.K.S. Theatrical Production Enterprises Inc. and president and chairman of the board of directors of Savage-Savage & Associates Inc.

BACKGROUND: Savage attempted to enter the Air Force in 1941 but was refused based on his race. So he "did the next best thing" and became an aircraft mechanic at Wright Patterson Air Force Base in Ohio.

He served during the Korean War and received an honorable discharge in 1951. In 1966, he bought a convenience store in Detroit but closed it after the riots in 1967. He was the first black electrician hired at the Chrysler Jefferson Avenue Plant and at the Bud Wheel Co.

In 1971, Savage was hired as the first black electrical technician for the U.S. Treasury Department in New York. He was seriously injured on the job and retired with a disability pension from the government.

He ran for mayor of Detroit in 1981 and 1985 without winning the primaries. In 1982, he ran for Congress but gave way to another Republican candidate. He ran again for Congress in 1984, 1986 and 1988, unsuccessfully.

ISSUES: Savage, a life-long Republican who was endorsed for Congress in 1988 by then-president Ronald Reagan, believes the 15th District's problems, especially the city of Detroit's, stem mainly from crime and drugs. He says other key issues are health care, education, jobs and taxes.

"We have serious problems," Savage said. "There are young people hanging around the projects, people sleeping in the streets, crime, drugs and welfare."

Savage is in favor of a federally funded National Works Project, similar to the one Franklin Roosevelt initiated during the 1930s, to put people back to work.

"There are 13 million people on welfare and 4.7 million on ADC. That's choking the country to death," he said.

"America is at a crossroads. We're $4 trillion in debt. In Detroit, serious problems are going to happen. I can feel the pulse of the young kids at Hart Plaza and all around downtown. It will take 25 years before Detroit comes back."

Savage said he will fight to bring defense jobs to the district and to Detroit and wants to increase the minimum wage to $5.50 or $7.40 per hour.

"There are a lot of bread winners who are taking care of families and making minimum wage," he said. "But their employers should also get a tax break. There are a lot of jobs out there if people would only look for them."

He also thinks all minimum wage earners should have a comprehensive health plan, along with a better long-term health care plan for terminally ill patients.

Savage supports a socialized health care system, similar to Canada's, and wants the government to pay 100 percent of the cost, not 80 percent.

On the abortion issue, he said he is pro-choice.

The criminal justice system is not working, Savage said, and it has to be changed. He is in favor of capital punishment.

"Why should we keep these people in prison for 50 years? Eliminate them. What's the difference? That takes care of the problem," he said.

He is in favor of gun control and believes the parents of young people caught with guns are "absolutely responsible" and should be punished.

He also believes Detroit's 36th District Court "is a disgrace to law and order and to the criminal justice system," he said. "There should be a thorough investigation of the plea bargaining, bribery and corruption and it should be closed."

Savage believes black leadership, especially religious, has failed the black community.

"We will overcome? What's that? Someone said all the power that blacks have lies within the black religious leadership. Maybe that's why it's taken 200 years to overcome," he said.

The federal deficit can be reduced, he said, by eliminating most retirement programs and waste in the Department of Defense.

He also vows to work to reduce the rates at Michigan's three utilities — MichCon,

CHARLES VINCENT FOR CONGRESS

ENOUGH IS ENOUGH!

P.O. Box 14580, Detroit, MI 48214.

15TH CONGRESSIONAL DISTRICT CANDIDATE DR. CHARLES C. VINCENT

Dedicated, committed and hard-working Dr. Charles C. Vincent has spent most of his life in service to the people of this community. He wants to recommit his efforts to representing the people of the 15th congressional district.

During more than twenty-five years in the practice of obstetrics and gynecology Dr. Vincent has been drawn to deeper involvement in solving health and education problems.

In this election, you have a chance to send a neighbor, friend, educator, doctor and community activist to congress. No more business as usual. Enough is Enough! Vote for Charles Vincent for Congress.

Health Care: Why does Detroit has the highest rate of infant mortality in the United States? This is 1992! Why are so many of our people unable to get adequate health care and health care insurance? I intend to work on laws that will ensure everyone access to good health care.

Economic security, better health care and education can be achieved through legislative action. Dr. Vincent asks your support in sending him to congress so that he can deliver to you better quality of life in the 15th district.

Education: Our schools must be strengthened in the critical areas that will prepare our young people for jobs in the real world. We should leverage available resources to strengthen our schools particularly in math and science. We must come up with a reform package that works for all districts.

Crime/Drugs: Building more prisons will not solve the crime problem. The root cause of increased crime in our streets is drugs, education, and unemployment. The single biggest drug problem we have today is crack cocaine. It is spreading throughout our entire younger population. The federal government must treat the crack cocaine issue as a national emergency.

Michigan Bell, and Detroit Edison — and supply free food stamps to all senior citizens below the poverty line.

Timothy Theodore

AGE: 44
PERSONAL: Theodore has lived in the Grosse Pointe area most of his life, graduating from Grosse Pointe High School in 1966. He received his bachelor's degree in political science from the University of Michigan. He is single and has no children.

POSITION: He is executive manager of family-owned commercial properties in Pontiac, Grosse Pointe and Detroit, and manages his family's cab and tuxedo businesses, Radio Cab Co., Grosse Pointe Cab Co. and Peter Theodore Inc. He also became a licensed real estate broker last March.

BACKGROUND: Though he has never held public office, Theodore said he has spent most of his adult life in the transportation business, dealing with Teamsters, dealing with government and dealing with many different kinds of people and situations within the 15th District.

ISSUES: Of primary concern, Theodore said, is Detroit in the metropolitan area. "We can't let the city continue to deteriorate the way it's deteriorating," he said. "I believe strongly in (Secretary of Housing and Urban Development) Jack Kemp's message of developing the center cities through jobs in an upbeat, pro-growth, pro-economic way."

He believes there should be enterprise zones in cities and no capital gains taxes on businesses starting up in the center cities.

Theodore also believes there should be major reforms in the welfare system, allowing recipients to keep some benefits even after finding a job.

"Welfare recipients are told they have more than $1,000 in assets, they can't receive any benefits. Right now, they lose it all and it's such a discouragement, they wonder, why get a job at all if you lose all your benefits?" he said. "People need to be allowed to accumulate some wealth as that first step in getting up on the ladder of opportunity."

While admitting he had not worked out the specifics of the plan, he believes recipients should be allowed to keep food stamp benefits and medical coverage.

"Encouraging economic development and asset accumulation in center cities means growth and that only has good ramifications for families. People get involved in life, in their kid's education. It's just good all around," he said.

Theodore supports projects such as Project Hope, which get people involved in managing their own property, such as federal housing, and eventually owning it.

"The idea is to get people who are out of the system into the system by owning things," he said. "I know when I started selling some of my family's jobs to the drivers I was surprised at how much cleaner and more well taken care of they were."

He said the government needs to get control of the federal budget.

"We're paying other countries enormous amounts of interest to finance our budget deficit and we're giving them a great deal of leverage over us. What are we going to do if other countries stop or threaten to stop buying our bonds?" he asked.

"I was angered and disappointed when I read that all of the additional money raised by the last tax increase went to fund new programs and none went to reduce the deficit.

"We have to get a hold of general spending. It's totally irresponsible. We're spending $100 billion extra just to stay in compliance with government regulations. This is an emergency. By the year 2000, they say the deficit will be over $3 trillion."

He said he wants to know why medical costs seem to rise much faster than inflation and why he wants quality, affordable health care for all citizens.

Theodore said he would like to see Roe v. Wade overturned and the abortion ruling returned to the states. Personally, he said, he is pro-life except in cases of rape, incest or if the mother's life is in danger.

Crime is a major problem in the district, he said, and he wondered if returning U.S. military personnel might somehow be used to augment local police forces.

"I want to let people know, in the center cities, that people in the suburbs really do care about them and their families," he said.

"This year, the party doesn't mean much. It's the message."

Charles C. Vincent

AGE: 59
PERSONAL: Born in Hartshorne, Okla., Dr. Vincent received a bachelor's degree in chemistry from Michigan State University in 1954 and received his medical degree from Wayne State University School of Medicine in 1958. He completed his OB-GYN training at the Detroit Medical Center. He has been a practicing physician and educator in Detroit for the past 30 years. He is married and has two adult children.

POSITION: Vincent is chief of OB-GYN at Detroit Riverview Hospital; senior attending staff and vice chief of staff at Hutzel Hospital; and associate professor of OB-GYN at WSU.

BACKGROUND: Vincent ran as a Democrat in the congressional House race in 1990. This year, he was asked to run as a Republican by the Republican Party.

"They contacted me. They understand my stand on the issues. I'm the same person. I have not changed," he said.

Vincent is also a physician activist; chairman of the Michigan Board of Medicine; president of the Wayne County Medical Society; and member of the Michigan delegation to the AMA.

ISSUES: Vincent lists key issues he would address in Congress as health care, economic development and education.

"My primary reason for running again is health care. Everyone is ready for some type of health care," he said, adding that it should be affordable and accessible to every American.

Vincent left a top position at a large medical center to serve at Detroit Riverview Hospital, a smaller hospital, to help bring down the infant mortality rate on Detroit's lower east side, Area 7, which has one of the highest infant mortality rates in the nation.

The infant mortality rate in Japan is four deaths per 1,000 births; in the United States it is 9 deaths per 1,000 births; and in Area 7, which extends from I-75 to Alter Road and from East Warren to the river, it is 33 deaths per 1,000 births.

Vincent, along with 10 other physicians, saw the shortage of OB-GYNs in the area and together they opened nine new clinics. Since last October, the infant mortality rate in the area has gone down 2.9 percent, Vincent said.

On the issue of abortion, Vincent is pro-choice.

Democrats, he said, propose socialized medicine, similar to Canada's system, which "of all countries in the world it wouldn't work in," he said, "it wouldn't work in ours most of all."

"Most Americans have excellent health care. Where we falter is when it's so expensive, the employer can't provide it, and with the unemployed."

He said the United States ranked 19th in the world in health care provision yet spent $500 billion on it.

"We need to redo the entire tax code. Employers should be able to deduct 100 percent of all health care insurance costs, not 25 percent, which is currently allowed," he said. "That would only cost the government about $60 million per year, which is not a terribly big expense considering the government's budget."

Vincent noted the discrepancy between rules that require a family of three to earn less than $7,500 (one-half the poverty level) per year to qualify for Medicaid yet freely give Medicare to everyone 65 years of age and older, though studies have shown that at least 30 percent of that population is wealthy enough not to need the governmental assistance.

There are other huge areas of waste within our current health care system, he added, such as $500 million per year spent on "practicing safe medicine" which means, he explained, practicing defensive medicine in a hyper litigious area and society. Wayne County ranks third in the nation in malpractice suits filed against physicians.

"For example, a pregnant woman really only needs one ultrasound during her pregnancy, at around 28 weeks of gestation. But now, to practice safe medicine, we have to give two or three or we're open to lawsuits," he said.

There is also great waste with preventive medicine, he said. "About 50 percent of all health care problems are brought on by the individual," he said, citing cigarette smoking, drinking and obesity as three common areas of abuse.

"Everybody cannot have everything. There are certain procedures which can be done, and should be done, but they're still experimental," he said, explaining that a liver transplant costs a hospital about $250,000 to perform.

It costs about $38,000 per year to treat an AIDS patient, he said, and that cost will only go higher.

"It's something we have to think about," he said. "AIDS is going to tremendously affect our health care dollars."

The incumbent's major issue, Vincent said, is jobs. But if you brought jobs to the 15th District, most people wouldn't know what to do with them, he said.

Education, he believes, is much more important. "The drop-out rate in my district right now is 70 percent male and 30 percent female," he said.

"If you have educated people, then everything else takes care of itself."

Vincent strongly endorses Head Start programs and believes they should be fully funded and available to all children.

He also believes parental choice and empowerment in public schools are central to quality education and supports President Bush's Education 2000 agenda.

"The most important thing is to keep the classroom size down to 15 students. No more. Especially in elementary school," he said. "The average Detroit public school child is coming from a single family home with no emphasis on education and approximately $2,600 is spent on him.

Vincent believes in urban enterprise zones and economic development to empower the poor.

His plan for redevelopment of the central cities focuses on encouraging concentrated investment in the inner cities, creating the opportunity for meaningful work and including capital gains reductions, investment tax credits, and tenant ownership of housing.

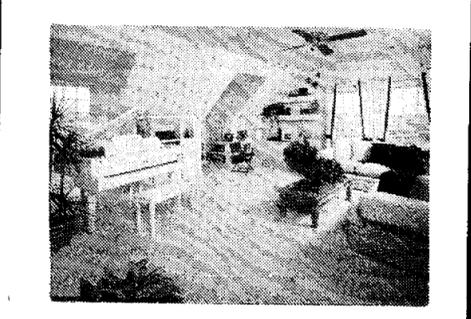

"Only if the urban core is vibrant can the entire community prosper," he said.

World students

Charlie Severn, left, and Tom Rhoades, who will be seniors this fall, represented Grosse Pointe South High School at the 16th annual World Affairs Seminar, held at the University of Wisconsin-Whitewater. More than 1,200 students attended the seminar, representing every state and more than 30 nations. Topics included international economics, Middle East peace prospects, the environment and the future of European politics. The program featured nationally and internationally known authorities on the subjects.

Hoffmeyer Kalogerakos Varchetti Baker Kim Reynolds

6 students awarded Lake scholarships

The John Lake Scholarship committee has chosen three 1992 Grosse Pointe South graduates and three North graduates to be the recipients of $1,500 awards, to be used toward freshman tuition at the universities of their choice.

This marks the twelfth and final year of the Lake Scholarship program. After a July wrap-up meeting, the committee will turn over any remaining funds to the parent clubs of North and South for use in their own scholarship projects.

The North winners are Glen Varchetti, Donald Reynolds and Hardy Kim. Kim plans to go to Harvard, where he will concentrate on two fields of study — political science and chemistry. Reynolds will attend the University of Michigan college of business with plans for an MBA. After Varchetti completes his undergraduate work at Michigan State he hopes to go on to law school, preferably at Stanford.

The South honorees are Gretchen Hoffmeyer, Daniel Baker and Robert Kalogerakos. Hoffmeyer has been accepted at Boston University where her interests will be history and English. Baker will attend Rutgers, while Kalogerakos has decided on the New Mexico Institute of Mining and Technology and hopes for at least a master's degree in science.

The six students are typical of the outstanding students who have applied for John Lake Scholarship funds through the years. All have excellent grades, membership in the National Honor Society, and a high degree of participation in school activities. Most have also taken on part-time jobs.

The funds for the Lake project, initiated as a tribute to the late executive director of the Grosse Pointe War Memorial (1952 to 1982), were raised through benefit events and individual donations. Originally a single annual $1,000 award was given, alternately to a North or South senior. As the treasury grew, the number and value of the scholarships increased to this year's six awards of $1,500 each.

Members of the committee include Mrs. Bruce Bockstanz, Mr. and Mrs. William Bradley, William Dahling, Henry T.

Ewald, Mrs. Joseph J. Marshall, publicity, Mrs. John McKinley, William Peters, John Rickel, Gerald Stoetzer, treasurer, Mrs. Perry TeWalt, chair, and Dr. Mark Weber. Several late community activists also played important roles on the Lake committee for several years — Fred Adams, Mrs. Sterling Sanford, Mrs. John McNamara and Mrs. Alger Shelden.

Enrollment for new

Students who expect to enroll at Grosse Pointe North High School for the first time can do so on Tuesday, Wednesday or Thursday, Aug. 11-13.

This includes students transferring from parochial or private schools or those who have recently moved into the Grosse Pointe school district.

Call the office of the assistant principal, Thomas Teetart, at 343-2205, Monday through Friday from 8 a.m. to 4 p.m., to schedule an appointment.

Those enrolling are requested to bring a birth certificate, the student's Social Security card, and a copy of previous school record. If a school record is not available, a copy of the latest report card would be helpful in making the appropriate course selections.

Students win writing awards

Eric Bonten, a student at Parcels Middle School, was awarded first prize in the May 1992 Cricket League international writing competition.

Entrants were asked to write a story about the May Cricket cover illustration. His story appears in the August 1992 issue of the children's magazine.

Honorable mentions went to Kathleen Clark and Stephanie Ballantyne, both of Pierce Middle School, and Jessica Greer of Parcels Middle School.

The following paragraphs were the result of an assignment in the third-grade class at St. Paul School that called for the use of descriptive language. Jennifer is the daughter of James and Barbara Thomas of Detroit.

Dusty

I am lying on my bed, sleeping. Oof! Dusty! Get off of me! And the bed! Excuse me. I have a dog named Dusty. She is big, fat and has brown fur with a little black fur on her head. She can sit, shake, lie down, fetch, roll over and is still learning to beg. She sleeps almost all day. She greets us at the door with a lick of her wet, sloppy, slimy tongue. When she licks me it feels like an ocean of high, wet, sloppy, slimy waves on my skin. When Dusty has to go to the bathroom, she barks to let us know. She eats, burps and then she goes to sleep, snoring. Dusty knows two words - "squirrel" and "cat." My dog Dusty is great.

My Favorite Pet

My favorite pet is my dog Molly. Molly is black - as black as the night. Molly is very small and fluffy. Molly's bark is as loud as a wolf. Molly's cry is like a car brake. Molly's growl is soft. When I get up in the morning I see Molly in my room or my mom and dad's room, laying there begging to go outside for a walk. I like Molly.

To Taxpayers of Wayne County:
I am a Republican candidate for Wayne County Commissioner because I believe that Wayne County needs a new approach in promoting job and business opportunities and reducing the cost of living in the County.

Residents of the Grosse Pointes and Harper Woods have seen a 75% increase in Wayne County property taxes in the past 5 years. These tax increases have far exceeded the rate of inflation and tax increases in our cities.

While other candidates for Wayne County Commissioner are proposing additional spending projects, I believe that it is imperative that we cut the cost of Wayne County government. Through privatization and other means to increase the efficiency of county government, we can reduce taxes and the cost of living and doing business in the County.

I have been successful in fighting taxes and governmental subsidies while on the Grosse Pointe Park City Council. With your support, I can continue my tax-fighting efforts on the Wayne County Board of Commissioners.

In the interest of lowering our tax burden, I urge you to vote for me on Tuesday, August 4.

Sincerely,
Andrew C. Richner

questions. So we talked," recalled Hush, who said she and the other nun quickly became good friends.

Shortly thereafter, Hush said, she was called into her prior's (superior's) office because Providence Hospital had called the monastery and asked if Hush would like to teach prayer at the hospital and hold private sessions on spirituality.

"At that time, I knew I was ready for it, so I said 'yes,'" she said.

Hush later began to meet with people, mostly married women, to discuss issues such as the meaning of religion in today's world and how that relates to older explanations; how modern psychology and psychiatry interact with spirituality; and the spiritual values of life after death.

"It used to be all married women, but then they would go home and talk about it to their husbands and they asked me if we could schedule Saturday afternoon sessions so their husbands could come and take part in the discussion," Hush said.

"I agreed, but doubted if any men would show up on a Saturday afternoon.

"But every single husband came. They were as eager to discuss these issues as the women were because I think these things are on people's minds but they don't have a forum or outlet in which to discuss them."

One of those couples, Dr. Francisco Rodriguez and his wife, Estela, asked Hush if she would be available to house-sit for them when they went out of town and offered her a carriage house apartment behind their home in Grosse Pointe Shores, which she happily accepted.

With her skill at making others feel at ease about discussing spiritual and philosophical issues, about six years ago Hush began officially teaching classes and holding private counseling sessions. She also heard from psychiatrists who referred people with anxiety-related problems and questions about God, life after death, and learning to cope with grief.

Her life began to resemble less that of a cloistered nun and more that of a ministering nun.

"The community (everyone) at the monastery got together and we talked it out, discussing which direction I should go. They told me, 'It looks like the Lord is calling you to do this. So either give up the ministry entirely or let us send you to graduate school,'" Hush said.

A year later, Hush was attending a five-year graduate program at the University of St. Thomas Aquinas (The Angelicum) in Rome. While there, she stayed in a monastery with Italian nuns of the same Dominican Order.

"When I left my monastery five years ago, I was completely new to the world," said Hush, who had not lived outside of a monastery since 1955.

"My sister said 'Joan, (Hush's christened name) you're going to get yourself killed. You're out of it. We're taking you to Europe,' and they took me on a European tour of England, Scotland and Italy. They literally brought me to the door of my monastery.

Hush said it was all very hectic when she arrived in Italy because no one spoke any English, graduate studies began right away, as well as language classes, and she wasn't sure at first whether or not she would be staying at the monastery.

"But all that activity was good for me. It doesn't allow you to dwell on or ponder too much whether or not you've made the right decision," she said.

Hush finished the five-year program in four years and graduated with a master's in spirituality and ecumenical relations, concentrating on integration between spirituality and modern psychology and what other religious beliefs are all about and the truths they hold.

"Gone are the days when Catholics believe that Catholicism is the only way to God. There are many pathways to God. Jesus Christ is the definitive will of God and sums up and carries forward all of God's promises. But Christians believe that God loves all of us," Hush said.

"The cornerstone of the Christian faith is the belief that there is life after death. The notion is literally rooted in us from the dawn of human consciousness. Evidence proves that even Neanderthal man believed in a life after death. It makes Christianity different from all the others.

"Human beings function best with a cosmic directive as to how we relate and our overall view of life. It keeps us in balance with the rest of the universe."

Hush never much thought about becoming a nun while growing up in New York City and then Long Island with her five sisters and parents.

"I went to church once a week. My father didn't go to church too much; he preferred to worship God by setting a good example. My mother was more prayerful and contemplative," Hush said. She was the only one in her family to become a nun.

After receiving scholarships to several colleges, Hush chose to attend a small, Catholic college near Yale University in New Haven, Conn., where she studied music, earned a bachelor's degree in the classics and minored in philosophy and theology.

"I loved studying. I was, and still am, fascinated by learning," she said.

She then spent a year doing graduate studies in theology at Notre Dame University. That year, a girlfriend begged her to accompany her to visit a little monastery in Albany, N.Y., called the Monastery of the Immaculate Conception.

"I turned her down two or three times. Finally I gave in and went," Hush said. "Once there, I felt an extremely vivid calling to be nun. I knew I was being called to a life of prayer, and I've never regretted the decision."

Life as a cloistered nun is very restrictive, said Hush, who was 23 when she entered the monastery in 1955. And, she said, it takes seven years before they allow you to take your final vows.

"It's a very constrained life, but it sustains you because you are called to lift up the world in prayer. What sustains you is your inner-life begins to flourish," Hush said.

But during her early years as a nun, before the easing of some restrictions by Vatican II, there were some days that were so uncomfortable, such as playing a game of volleyball in habits made only of heavy wool, that Hush said she and her fellow sisters could only take comfort in the old maxim: misery loves company.

"Back then we could wear only wool habits, there were more dietary restrictions, such as no red meat, and fasting was more severe," said Hush, adding that today, cloistered nuns wear more light-weight material, nutrition is better and the hours for prayers are not as odd, such as at midnight, as they once were.

Being cloistered, however, didn't mean the nuns were not allowed to converse with one another.

"Oh no. The house was governed by the rules of silence and the monastic ideal of work and prayer, but we had recreation two times a day and we had work to do during the day, such as our photography shop and an area where we made hosts (for Catholic Masses). If we had to say something to one another while working, that was perfectly allowable," she said.

In 1968, the Albany monastery closed down and Hush and the 11 other remaining nuns there were invited by the same order of nuns at the Monastery of the Blessed Sacrament of Perpetual Adoration in Farmington Hills to come stay with them.

The monastery had just moved from Oakland Avenue in Detroit on the order of Detroit's Cardinal Dardonn because of the 1967 riots.

Hush continues to teach classes on life after death, spirituality and psychology and learning how to cope with grief. Many of her classes will be offered again this fall at the Grosse Pointe War Memorial. She is also available for individual and couples counseling sessions.

"I'm here for anyone, of any religion," she said.

She happily reported that Bon Secours Hospital in Grosse Pointe City also recently hired her full-time as part of their educational program to provide workshops and seminars on spiritual health for staff, patients and anyone else in the area.

"There's a great spiritual awakening in this community," said Hush, adding that she is "deliriously happy living in as gracious a community as Grosse Pointe.

ambulance for four years. During the contract period Taylor will provide paramedics and the Shores will train its own public safety officers to become paramedics. At the end of the four years, if the Shores has enough paramedics on staff, the city will stop renting the unit and will run on its own.

The city will pay $40,000 a year for the length of the contract and Bon Secours hospital will help out with an annual contribution of approximately $23,000.

Ambulance

The council hired Ruehle's/St. Joseph's Ambulance Co. to provide the city with a state-of-the-art ambulance to be staffed by one paramedic and one EMT at all times.

Because the ambulance is too big to get through the door of the Farms' municipal garage, the ambulance is housed at Cottage Hospital in the Farms, and the hospital houses and provides training for the paramedics and EMTs while they are on duty.

Last month, the Grosse Pointe Shores Village trustees voted to rent an "echo" unit from Taylor Ambulance Co. for four years, at $40,000 a year.

An echo unit is a van which contains all of the equipment a paramedic needs but it cannot transport patients. The van will be staffed by a paramedic and will respond to emergencies along with the Shores' ambulance, which will be manned by a basic EMT.

The echo unit would not respond to calls for transportation only. It is being housed at Bon Secours Hospital, which has donated $50,000 toward the service.

Motor ran great

While a man was unloading the trunk of his car in the 1300 block of Somerset in Grosse Pointe Park, someone jumped into the vehicle, which had been left running, and drove off.

Two white men were seen leaving the victim's neighbor's house just before the car was stolen, at 2:49 p.m. Tuesday, July 14.

Grosse Pointe Park police broadcast a description of the vehicle and the two suspects.

Detroit police located the car about 2 a.m. July 15 and arrested the driver, who matched the description of one of the suspects.

Grosse Pointe Park detectives located and arrested the second suspect at a home in the 5100 block of Harvard on July 16, and recovered stolen goods from a garage on the property.

Residents to work with girls, women at risk

A group of local citizens will gather at the Grosse Pointe Park home of Kay Gee on Aug. 6 to learn about Alternatives for Girls.

Amy Good, executive director, and Roberta Sharpe, resource and education director, will describe this unique multi-service program for impoverished and homeless girls and young women.

Alternatives for Girls arose out of a grass-roots effort by people in Corktown and Southwest Detroit as a response to growing numbers of young girls in the area becoming involved in prostitution.

In 1986 people who lived, worked and worshipped in the area near Tiger Stadium came together to begin talking about the problems in the neighborhood. They involved Detroit Council President Maryann Mahaffey and various community groups in a Community Coordinating Committee, designed to help identify the needs of this population.

It was discovered that young women were not going to leave the streets unless they had a safe place to stay, and the idea of St. Peter's Inn Shelter was born. The Shelter doors — actually the doors of the Parish House at St. Peter Episcopal Church on the corner of Michigan and Trumbull — opened early in 1988, despite the lack of funds. Dedicated volunteers stayed overnight caring for the young residents.

Now, AFG has a staff that's grown to more than 30; but they continue to rely on the dedication and commitment of a group of volunteers which has developed to more than 100. Commitment of staff and volunteers enabled AFG to serve more than 700 girls and young women last year. Alternatives for Girls has expanded since its inception to include a total of five programs for girls and young women at risk.

The services AFG provides are unique: They operate the only emergency shelter and transitional living program for minors in the city. They have the only residential drug treatment program for indigent youth in Wayne County. In addition, their street Outreach Program is the only one of its kind in Michigan — staff members go directly to the streets to find young women who are risking their health and lives by prostituting to survive.

AFG also provides prevention services to more than 100 girls in Southwest Detroit to help them avoid early pregnancy, school drop-out, and drug addiction.

AFG relies on more than 25 sources for funding, including individuals, churches, government funds and foundations. With the trend away from government funding of many social service programs, however, AFG is seeking individuals to become involved with their programs and their livelihood.

For further information, call Roberta Sharpe at 496-0938.

Concours d'Elegance is spangled with automotive gems

By Tracy Wilson
Special Writer

"Just look at those clouds," said George Hendrie, shaking his head. "And I just finished getting the dust off."

Like many owners of just-washed cars, Hendrie is worried about the possibility of rain.

But the Grosse Pointe Farms resident is, understandably, extra pernickety.

He's preparing to drive his resplendent red 1922 Mercer Sportabout to the Concours d'Elegance in Rochester, where he will compete with more than 250 other classic automobiles.

He says he hopes the car will bring him his second win in six appearances at the Concours.

Mercers were manufactured in the town of Paterson, N.J. — in Mercer County. The Sportabout is the fifth Mercer Hendrie has owned.

"They are just beautiful-looking cars," said Hendrie. "The roadsters were out of this world. My first one I used every day."

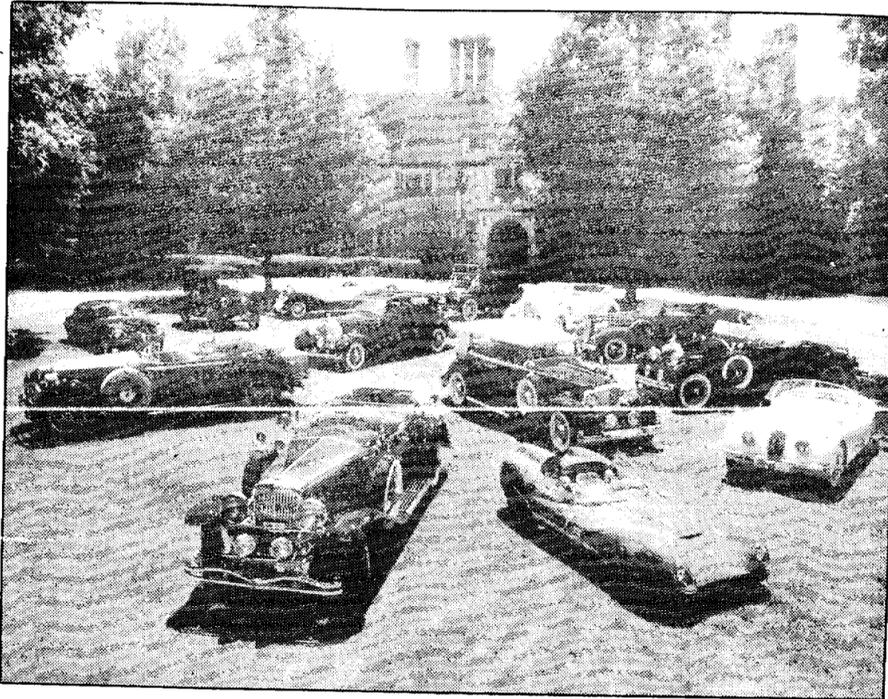

The goal of the Concours competitors is to get each of their automobiles as close to mint condition as possible.

Hendrie said it's anything but easy.

"I've had to do the transmissions," said Hendrie. "Then last year, my gas tank ruptured, so I had to get a new one."

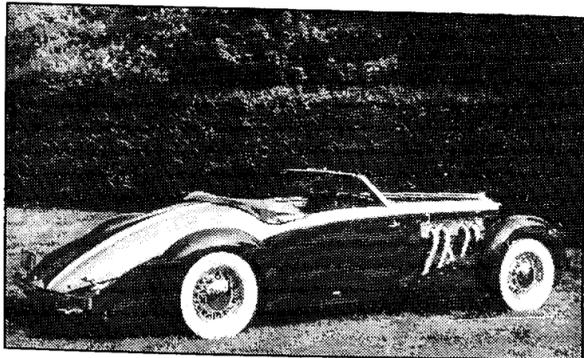

Hendrie has had Mercers since he was in college, more than 60 years ago.

"I was fascinated by the first one I bought," he said. "It was a 1910,

The 1992 Concours d'Elegance at Meadow Brook Hall will feature more than 250 automobiles. The annual event will run from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. Sunday, Aug. 2.

The 1938 Delage D8-120 Torpedo de Villars, at the right, is among the French coach-built cars at the Concours this year.

and I got it for $250. I heard the last Mercer that sold went for $280,000 about three years ago."

La Vern Johnson and Benson Ford Jr. are two other Farms residents who are showing their cars in the Concours.

Johnson owns a 1950 Riley Drop-head, which is a British sports car, and Ford will show a 1929 Lincoln coupe.

One-of-a-kind automobiles with French coach work will be featured at this year's Concours, a show which is modeled after the original French Concours of the 1920s.

Some of the coach builders represented are Figoni & Falaschi, Letourneur & Marchand, Chapron, Saoutchik, Fernandez et Darrin and de Villars.

From Delage to Delahaye, Talbot Lago to Bugatti, many of the world's most exotic automobiles will be on display.

The featured sports marque at the show will be the Aston Martin, including the Aston Martin DB5 featured in two James Bond films.

In addition to the cavalcade of cars, there will be an exhibit of the Richard P. and Linda Kughn collection of radiator mascot/ornaments created by French glass artist Rene Lalique. The show will run from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. Sunday, Aug. 2, at Meadow Brook Hall, on the grounds of Oakland University in Rochester.

Admission is $10 for adults and $5 for children.

For more information, call Meadow Brook Hall at (313) 370-3140.

More than 100 faculty members, administrators, trustees and friends of University Liggett School gathered at a special reception recently in honor of departing headmaster G. Gary Ripple, Ph.D. After three years as headmaster, Ripple left ULS at the end of this school year, accepting a position as director of admissions at Lafayette College in Easton, Pa.

In a brief speech, ULS Board of Trustees president William W. Sheldon Jr. thanked Ripple for his devotion to ULS and his support of the school's mission. Sheldon presented Ripple with a special Trustee's Chair, given to those who have distinguished themselves in serving the school.

Ripple thanked the audience and said he hoped to return to ULS in the future, both to visit and recruit for Lafayette College.

Bridge

"HAVE A PLEASANT TRY AT PERFECTION"
BRIDGE BY WOODY BOYD ♠♥♦♣

Mark Twain once said, "A dish around which I see too many people sometimes doesn't tempt me."

One of the most popular personalities in our wonderful game is east sider Don Curtis. For years Don directed the most handsomely attended duplicate games played in Grosse Pointe and St. Clair Shores. Unfortunately for bridge that dish doesn't tempt him anymore, but now I know we'll see a lot more of him at play. The challenge of performing well is a motivating force which spurs him greatly and the exhilaration of contesting a hand with the best is to his liking too. But I also think he's the quiet kind who enjoys a night by candle light, his book and his dog, I expect, are a part of that too.

The wonderful Win Matchie, before her passing, was one of Don's many favorite partners as is his good friend and fine performer Bob Emke. Needless to say even more today you have to wait in line for his playing calendar is crammed with dates of every rank. This past June, I finally nabbed him at Judy's Friday duplicate and it was a most enjoyable afternoon of play. Don tends to keep his bidding card simple, but I did finagle him into playing a few exotic whatcha-calls which he handled adroitly. Don just isn't by any stretch of the fundamentals a conventionalist preferring the role of an old guard naturalist with a limited list of modern adaptations mixed in. Two of them, Roman Key Card Blackwood and Splinters came in handy on today's hand he played so well.

W led ♠ Q

Don studied the dummy for sometime before he played to trick one. A spade and a diamond were in danger of being lost if the defenders could recapture the lead before he could jettison one of them. The only hope was the club suit and the king had to be on side and breaking no worse than four/two. He won dummy's spade ace and played two high trumps from his hand. That suit wasn't breaking so the situation was still critical. At trick (4), he made the very sage play of the club jack as he didn't want east to cover as that might complicate matters. When it held, he played the club queen and let it ride too. Unbeknownst to anyone participating but Don, his procedure had prevailed. A heart to dummy's king followed and then the club ace ditching his spade jack. Now he had a dozen to run losing only the diamond king to East's ace.

Many would say upon review that we had no right to be there with such modest hands totaling only twenty-six H.C.P. As I have suggested on numerous preceding occasions, hands holding quick taking tricks are much more valuable. In support of hearts, North's hand was worth sixteen plus points and the slam was well conceived and impeccably played.

The Scots are coming! The Scots are coming!

Don't wait, dearie — 'Brigadoon' is leavin' soon

By Marian Trainor
Special Writer

For one enchanted evening, you won't want to miss "Brigadoon" currently playing at the Fisher Theatre through Sunday, Aug. 9. For taste, imagination and style it ranks right up there with such classics as "Show Boat" and "South Pacific."

When it was first produced in 1947 it was awarded the

New York Critics Circle's highest honors. It was given an excellent revival in New York's City Center and has grown more appreciated through the years.

The words and music are by Alan Jay Lerner and Frederick Loewe, who also collaborated on "My Fair Lady." At one time both musicals were playing simultaneously on Broadway. It must have been difficult for theatergoers to choose between the feisty "Fair Lady" and the magic of "Brigadoon," both of which are chock-full of great songs.

The story of the idyllic "Brigadoon" is an unusual one that casts a romantic spell over the audience, much as it does over Tommy Albright, played by John Schneider.

Tommy and his pal Jeff

Douglas (Mark Zimmerman) are hunting in the highlands of Scotland when they lose their way. While pondering which road to take, they hear a chorus of sonorous voices rising out of the mist, and decide to trace the source. They stumble on an old-fashioned village celebrating a wedding. What they don't know is that this Scottish village only comes to life every 100 years and this May morning is the time for its reappearance.

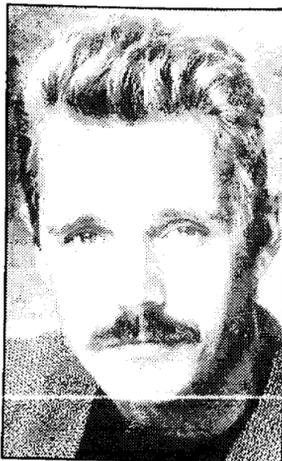

Amid all the merriment and wedding preparations, Tommy meets the lovely Fiona MacLaren (Elizabeth Walsh). He is captivated by her simple charm and she in turn falls in love with him. Tommy wants to know the town's secret, so Fiona takes him to visit an old schoolteacher, Mr. Lundie (John Newton). In reverent tones, he unravels the mystery.

He tells the story of how Brigadoon was much-loved by a minister who wanted to keep the town safe from harm, so he prayed for a miracle that would bring Brigadoon to life every 100 years. In that way, he reasoned it couldn't be alive long enough to be tarnished by the outside world.

As the end of the 24-hour life of Brigadoon comes near, Tommy must make a decision. Will he stay with the beautiful Fiona or will he return home to marry a woman he doesn't love?

softly melodic song "Brigadoon" is sung by the ensemble in the forest in the highlands till the last scene when we hear it for the last time, we are caught up in a series of melodies, some of them romantic ballads, others lively background for spirited highland flings.

Everyone in this sumptuous cast, some 40 in all, can really sing, lending an operatic quality to the production.

Schneider, of "Dukes of Hazard" fame, who recently made his Broadway debut as the Duke in "Grand Hotel," has a fine baritone voice that blends well with Walsh's in the show's rich collection of love songs, such as "It's Almost Like Being in Love" and "From this Day On."

Walsh is outstanding as Fiona. She is pretty, charming and enormously talented. A fine singer and a lighthearted dancer, she leads the ensemble in "Waitin' for my Dearie." When she joins Schneider in the love songs, she sings from her heart.

Tenor John Clontz as Charlie Dalrymple is bright and likable as the bridegroom.

give beautiful, breathtaking performances that remind audiences that the production is as much a ballet as a musical. When they are featured with the ensemble in "The Wedding Dance," it is one of the high-points of the show. Beaton's performance with the ensemble in "The Sword Dance" is another.

Zimmerman as Jeff Douglas, Tommy's skeptical friend, deftly delivers one-liners that give the production an added touch of humor. He also earns accolades as a straight man for Meg Brockie (Jennifer Allen), the town strumpet who stirs up a storm with her bawdy songs, "The Love of My Life" and "My Mother's Wedding Day."

Add to the excellent acting and singing the Highland dancing, color, rhythm and grace which all combine to make the square dancing numbers stirring.

A trip to "Brigadoon" is a wondrous theater experience.

Ford house hosts Highland games

By Ronald J. Bernas
Staff Writer

For more than 140 years the St. Andrew's Society of Detroit has gathered once a year to throw the hammer, toss the caber, eat briedies and listen to the pipes.

This year, the oldest Highland Games in North America, have changed venues and will fill the hills of the Edsel & Eleanor Ford Estate on Saturday, Aug. 1.

"It's really one of the best kept secrets in Detroit," said Grosse Pointe Park resident Randall Cain, one of this year's organizers. "We generally average about 3,500 people at the games each year, but we expect it to do much better this year."

The event is a day of traditional Scottish entertainment from dancing to bagpiping and everything in between.

Some 20 bagpipe bands as well as their drum majors and pipe majors will compete for

There's the caber (sort of a miniature telephone pole) toss, the hammer toss and the farmer's walk — a race holding bucket-like weights in each hand.

"These games go back hundreds of years to Scotland and I think one of the reasons the games were started is that they quelled the desire to fight one another," Cain said. "But it's also a way for the Scots to proclaim their heritage and take pride in themselves."

Scottish scenes and landscapes painted by Grosse Pointe artist Nancy Prophet during her last trip to Scotland will be on display and for sale, as will tartans, kilts and other Scottish memorabilia.

Some 30 clans will be represented to help local Scots find their roots. Gerald MacDonald, chairman of Comerica Bank, and Dean Richardson, past chair of Manufacturers bank, both Scots, will be honored for their contributions to the Detroit area.

The day begins at 8:30 a.m., with the athletic competition beginning at 9 a.m. and 1:30 p.m., the dancing competition at 9 a.m. and the pipe band events at 1:30 p.m. It ends at 6 p.m. with a party called a ceilidh (pronounced kay-lee) that carries into the night.

"It's a wonderful day for the entire family," Cain said. "There's something for people of all ages. And it's like St. Patrick's Day is for the Irish — everyone's a Scot for the day."

But will the day answer one of life's greatest mysteries — what does a Scotsman wear under his kilt?

"That all depends on the wind," Cain said with a smile.

Boat tour is exciting new attraction

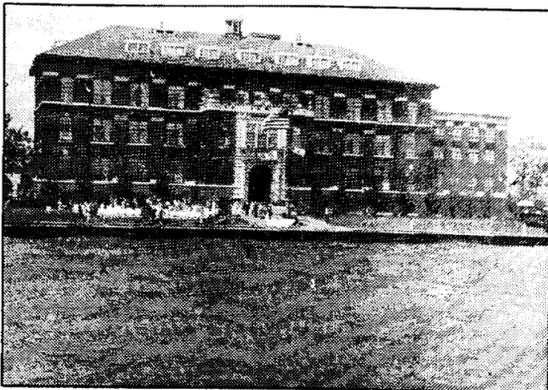

By Ronald J. Bernas
Staff Writer

If you're looking for a new and interesting way to visit Detroit, perhaps a two-hour tour of the Detroit River will fill your bill.

Diamond Jack's River Tours began operation late last fall and resumed this spring. The tours are operated by the Hoey family, many of whom you can see running the boat, operating the concession stand or providing the narration to some of Detroit's most historic and well-known landmarks.

The boat itself is a 65-foot former Mackinac Island ferry docked at the foot of Hart Plaza, where the now-defunct Star of Detroit used to set sail. The ferry was built in 1955 and is in impeccable shape, with an open-air deck for hot, sunny days and an interior cabin area — with lots of windows to easily view the sights — for cooler days.

The two-hour tours are offered Wednesday through Sunday at 2, 4 and 6 p.m. and take sight-seers from Hart Plaza, along Belle Isle's eastern shore, then back down the Windsor side, for a view of the parks, the Peace Fountain at Reaume Park and then under the Ambassador Bridge before returning to Hart Plaza.

Little-known stories about everything from the MacArthur Bridge at Belle Isle to Windsor's Canadian Club plant to Historic Fort Wayne complement the sights, but leave plenty of time for conversation on board.

Light snacks and beer are available from an on-board concession and picnics can also be brought aboard. The boat, which holds up to 200 people, can also be rented for company parties.

Sunny sounds

Past and present members of the Sun Messengers who make up the Sun Sounds Orchestra will perform on Thursday, Aug. 6, at 8 p.m. at the Grosse Pointe War Memorial. The Sun Sounds perform an eclectic mix of jazz, pop and Detroit-based rhythm and blues. Noted for their explosive horns, sizzling electric strings, bold percussion and top-notch vocals, their music features dozens of Motown favorites, such as Santana, UB40, Bob Marley and Stevie Wonder. Prior to the Sun Sounds concert, Ruth Ellen Mayhall will sing Broadway tunes. Bring a picnic supper and enjoy the lakeside ambiance while listening and dancing to the Sounds of Summer on the Grosse Pointe War Memorial's back terrace lawn. The series is co-sponsored by St. John Hospital and Medical Center. All concerts are held rain or shine (in the ballroom in case of rain). If the concert is held indoors due to inclement weather, seating is on a first come, first served basis. The performance will take place on the lakeside grounds of the War Memorial at 32 Lakeshore Drive, Grosse Pointe Farms. Grounds are open at 6:30 p.m. and patrons are welcome to bring their own picnic suppers and beverages. Individual tickets are $6.50 or a package of four is $20. For more information call 881-7511.

Trinidad Tripoli band visits War Memorial

The unforgettably charged sounds of the Trinidad Tripoli Steel Band's oil drums combine with calypso, reggae, big band, and country favorites on Monday, Aug. 3, at 8 p.m. at the Grosse Pointe War Memorial.

Friends, family, and co-workers will enjoy warm summer evenings with picnic suppers, moonlight and music, on the lakeside of the renaissance-style mansion, built in 1910 and surrounded by colorful gardens.

Music lovers are invited to bring their own picnic suppers or purchase them for $7.50 by 5 p.m. the preceding Friday. Tables will be provided for those purchasing picnic suppers who also hold reserved seat tickets. Individual tickets are $12 for reserved seating; $7.50 for lawn admission; and half price for children under 12. Special ticket packages are also available.

You can drop plenty on Cedar Point's roller coasters

We've just returned from our annual jaunt to Cedar Point, that venerable 122-year-old amusement park on the shores of Lake Erie. It was a fun trip because we went by boat, stayed overnight at the marina and were able to share the park with several friends who had never been there.

For the past few seasons, much of CP's money and attention has been paid to adding bigger and better roller coasters. As a result, the park now has 10 coasters (it has had 22 different coasters over the years) and is credited by the Guinness Book of Records for having the largest collection of roller coasters on Earth.

Cedar Point built its first roller coaster, the Switchback Railway, in 1892. It was about 25 feet high and traveled 6-10 mph, much like the kiddie coasters of today. Thus, this season CP is celebrating 100 years of ups and downs.

With our group, riding the coasters was still the favorite activity of those over 12 (with some notable adult exceptions). Evan Busbey, 9, of the Farms was reveling in this first season of being able to ride the bigger coasters now that he topped the 48-inch height requirement. He declared his favorite to be the Mean Streak "because it has the longest drops and is the fastest" — however, he hadn't yet ridden the Magnum XL-200, which has a mind-boggling 205-foot drop and hurtles along at 72 mph.

Needless to say, you'll not find me on the Magnum. The Gemini, which features twin racing coasters, is still my favorite and as high as I need to go.

But as I noted earlier, this year's capital improvements did not go into new coasters. Instead, the old miniature golf course and giant slide that used to be right in the middle of the old park have been removed and in that great location they have built a new and expanded Berenstein Bear Country for the little ones. It has indoor and outdoor activities for parents and kids to enjoy together and there is also plenty of shaded seating so the grandparents can watch.

And to encourage young parents to bring their offspring to enjoy these new attractions, Cedar Point has dropped its junior rate (anyone under 48 inches — meaning, they aren't going to clog up the coaster lines) from $11.95 to $4.95. Children under 3 are admitted free.

So if you also take in the Kiddieland small rides area, the three antique carousels, the petting farm, King Arthur's Court playscape, a visit to Jungle Larry's Safari and the marine shows at Oceana stadium you can have a very full day with your toddlers. (Note: A Lost Person's Center is located in Kiddieland — they think of everything.)

So what about adults, especially the non-coaster fans? The live shows are always popular. Not to be missed is a performance by Kate Prather, the featured singer with the Jazzland Band. Prather just won an outstanding performance award from Down Beat magazine, a publication of jazz musicians. She was one of only two performers chosen nationally for the jazz solo vocalist award.

Prather, 22, is a graduate of Western Michigan University which actually created a special major for her — a bachelor of music for voice in jazz studies. This is her third season of performing at Cedar Point. Her voice, the backup band, and the entire show, are outstanding. The Jazzland Band performs six shows a day, six days a week at the Red Garter Saloon. Don't miss it.

The IMAX movie is also usually popular with adults, although this year the routine is a bit different. Featured is a 1-1/2 hour concert movie, "The Rolling Stones at the Max," for an extra charge. It shows three times a day with an extra performance on weekends. The rest of the time they show "To Fly," for no charge. However, most of us had seen it in previous years.

On a sweltering afternoon, a couple of hours in an air-conditioned movie might be a welcome respite. But you are going to have to really like the Stones and be willing to pay another $6.95 on top of your $22.95 entrance fee. After much discussion, we opted to pass.

If you have seen Cedar Point's advertising this year, you will notice that it is promoting itself as a multi-day vacation destination. That's why the park has been continually upgrading its facilities outside of the park so you will have plenty to do during your extra time there.

A new complex has been developed called Challenge Park which includes Soak City, the water park which opened in 1988, two new miniature golf courses and a go-kart track. All charge separate fees. Entrance to Cedar Point is not required to visit Challenge Park. You can get there from the outer road or through a park exit gate located next to the Magnum coaster.

Also new this year is a concession on the beach which offers para-sailing and rides on water vehicles. It can be reached through a gate next to the Oceana marine stadium.

CP trivia: The most popular ride in 1991 was the Gemini; the oldest operating ride in the park is the Midway Carousel (1946); the Hotel Breakers opened in 1905 with rates of $1-$2/night, and in 1913 Knute Rockne worked as a lifeguard on the CP beach.

Additional ticket prices: Two-day tickets, $34.95; a 2-day combo ticket including Soak City, $42.95; one-day seniors over 60, $12.50; starlight (after 5 p.m.), $12.50; two-day junior, $9.90. Discounted tickets may be obtained through Michigan AAA offices.

The park's usual hours are 10 a.m. to 10 p.m. with extended hours on weekends. Lines for rides are usually shortest early and late in the day and during mealtimes.

Heading for England this summer? A new program called "Royal Britain Welcomes Visa" has been launched by the credit card company and the British Tourist Authority. Under the program, cardholders can receive more than $1,500 in free and discounted offers by showing a Royal Britain Welcomes Visa Passport when using the card.

The 48-page pocket-sized passport contains detailed descriptions of the participating organizations and may be obtained by calling toll-free (800) 847-2511. The program runs through June 30, 1993.

A guide to shopping in Singapore is now available free from the Singapore Tourist Promotion Board. The guide contains information on how to get the most for your money in an array of stores, most of which are open seven days a week from 10 a.m. to 9 p.m.

Included are tips on purchasing such items as jade, antiques, furniture, art, crafts, Oriental rugs, electronic goods and jewelry. A map outlines main shopping areas.

DRT announces 35th season

The Detroit Repertory Theatre will open the 1992-93 season with a lineup of relevant plays selected to challenge and entertain.

The season opener (Nov. 5 to Dec. 31) will be "Homeward Bound," a comedy-drama by Elliott Hayes. Miscommunication and senseless banter are interlaced with the fear of death, and for that matter, the fear of life. First performed at Stratford, Ontario, the Rep brings the Canadian author's play to Detroit audiences.

The second offering is "My Children! My Africa!" (Jan. 14 to March 21) by Athol Fugard, a generational conflict over the effective means for ending apartheid in South Africa leads to an explosive confrontation between a black township youth and his devoted teacher.

Next is "Unchanging Love" by Romulus Linney from a story by Anton Chekhov (April 1 to May 9) about two families; one is greedy and has power, but wants more. The other is greedy and has no power, and is willing to go to extensive lengths to obtain it.

The final play of the season, "Three Card Monte and the Royal Flush," by Daniel DuPlantis is about a self-absorbed Shakespearean actor who is giving his silver anniversary performance as Othello in Cape Town, South Africa. He encounters a clever stranger in his dressing room who plans to enlighten him about the plight of the oppressed in the country, and in the process, alters both their destinies. The play, a comedy-drama, is a metaphor for a change of guard.

Ticket prices this year will remain the same: Single tickets, $12; golden subscriptions for two are $75; ten-ticket bargain booklets are $80; and ten-ticket matinee bargain booklets are $70. Enjoy a season of excitement, challenge and entertainment.

For information about tickets, subscriptions or the season call the repertory offices, 868-1347 and request a season brochure.

All that jazz

Kenn Cox and the Guerrilla Jam Band, perhaps the most consistently innovative of Detroit's leading jazz ensembles, will appear Thursday, Aug. 6, at the Music on the Plaza concert series in the Village in Grosse Pointe. The outdoor performance will begin at 7 p.m. and will be held in the plaza at the intersection of Kercheval and St. Clair. This concert was rescheduled due to rain. The series is presented by the Grosse Pointe Village Association in cooperation with Bon Secours Home Medical and Bon Secours Pharmacy. The Kenn Cox concert is sponsored by Valente Jewelers.

Audition Notices

Paper Bag Productions is holding auditions for "Snoopy" from 11 a.m. to 4 p.m. Saturday, Aug. 15 at the Historic Players Club, 3321 East Jefferson in Detroit. The show will be double-cast with openings for 12 boys and 18 girls. Performances will be most Saturdays and Sundays from Sept. 26 through Dec. 20. All auditioners should be aged 8-18 and be prepared to sing and read from the script. All positions are paid. For more information call 468-2727.

The Purple Rose Theatre Company will hold general auditions for the 1992-93 season on Saturday, Aug. 1, from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. and Monday, Aug. 3, and Tuesday, Aug. 4, from noon to 5:30 p.m. Auditions are by appointment only and will be held at the Garage Theatre, 137 Park Street, Chelsea.

War Memorial tours Cleveland

Cleveland is hot. For years the butt of jokes, the city on the shores of Lake Erie is now grabbing headlines as a model of urban rebirth.

Find out just how hot the new Cleveland is on a day trip sponsored by the War Memorial on Tuesday, Aug. 18, from 8 a.m. to 10 p.m. The trip departs from the Grosse Pointe War Memorial, 32 Lakeshore Drive in Grosse Pointe Farms. With $5 billion earmarked for capital investment projects, Cleveland has attracted delegations of civic leaders to learn if any of its magic could work in their cities. Cleveland's skyline is changing — and so is the city's image. A guided city tour will give us a flavor of "Comeback City."

See the Warehouse District, the Avenue, Playhouse Square Center and the Inner Harbor lakefront. There will be time for shopping in the new Tower City Center. Stop at the Cleveland Museum of Art for an audio tour of its special exhibit on the Egyptian pharaoh, Amenhotep III.

There's time to stroll on the boardwalk and experience "the Flats" — the center of dining, entertainment and recreation. Dinner is included at one of Cleveland's priciest restaurants.

Tickets are $79 and include

All auditioners must present two contrasting contemporary monologues, with a combined time of not more than three minutes.

The Purple Rose is planning to do an original pop-rock musical next season so the Saturday audition is for those interested in doing both the monologues and singing. Singers should prepare eight measures of an up-beat selection; an accompanist will be provided. All auditioners must bring a head shot and resume.

The Purple Rose Theatre Company will present several plays with a wide variety of roles; all age ranges and minorities are encouraged to audition. The company operates under an Equity SPT category 3 contract, using both Equity and non-Equity actors. For more information and an appointment, call (313) 475-5817.

Furniture that doesn't just look good, it feels good

International designer M. Filmore Harty so strongly believes that furniture should feel as well as look good, that he calls his pieces "soft sculpture." His work can be seen Friday and Saturday, Aug. 7 and 8, at Gorman's furniture on Telegraph, just north of 12 Mile.

By Debra Pascoe

Choosing furniture should be like choosing clothing, says internationally renowned designer M. Filmore Harty. It shouldn't only look good, it should feel good.

The flowing lines of his contemporary "soft sculpture" furnishings are an expansion of the human form and are versatile enough to accommodate any lifestyle, he said. "Conceptually its not only the fabric but the form and its ability to meet the people's needs."

With that in mind, the majority of pieces in his Preview line are sectionals of varying sizes which give the interior designer enough latitude to take individual pieces and mix and match to please the customer.

But before the designer starts moving the pieces around, he or she asks the customer about the size of the room the furniture will fill, what type of lifestyle the customer prefers, how many people will use the room and how they entertain.

The resurgence of the sectional, Harty said, corresponds with the '90s concept of improved communication. In fact, he says his pieces actually inspire intimate conversations.

With the typical rectangular arrangement, he said, people are merely sitting next to each other, but with the softer, curvier style they're looking at each other as they talk.

Reminiscent of the 1880s court- ing chair, Harty has designed a set

Antiques by Ralph & Terry Kovel

Wicker's back! Art deco wicker furniture is back in style, and it is even being made again. The wicker of the 1920s was very different from the wicker made in the Victorian styles which favored woven geometric designs of diamonds, squares and more severe shapes. The chairs were often fitted with flower-printed cushions.

Heywood-Wakefield made many wicker pieces in Victorian styles and the art deco styles which were fashionable in 1921 when Heywood-Wakefield purchased the English Lloyd Manufacturing Co. They were the makers of Lloyd loom-twisted paper "wicker" furniture; about 80 percent of the wicker furniture was made of the manmade fiber after that time.

Interest in wicker dwindled, and by the 1930s it was out of fashion, not to be revived until the 1960s. Today, a 1920s wicker chair sells for about $200.

Q. Is my set of triangular-shaped dishes antique? On the back it says "Tricorne by Salem, U.S. patent 94245."

A. The number is a design patent number from 1935. Your dishes are very popular with art deco collectors. The bright orange color and odd shape has special appeal. Salem china was made in Salem, Ohio. A dinner plate now costs from $8 to $10.

Q. I have a glass candlestick shaped like Jesus on the cross. Where and when were these made?

A. Glass candlesticks shaped like crosses were made by many American glass houses. The best-known examples were made by The New England Glass Co. of Boston and the Boston and Sandwich Glass Co. of Sandwich, Mass. They made similar candlesticks about 1850 to 1860.

Other companies made different versions of the candlesticks. The shape of the base, the socket and the size of the stem vary. Atterbury in Pittsburgh made an opal glass stick with a vine trailing over the base. Duncan Glass of Pittsburgh, McKee of Jeanette, Pa., Hobbs Brockunier of Wheeling, W.Va., and Cambridge Glass of Cambridge, Ohio, made crucifix candlesticks. The Imperial Glass Co. of Bellaire, Ohio, made 9-1/2-inch-high crucifix candlesticks from 1906 to the 1950s.

Home Tips

Instant cake carrier — One day I was going to a covered-dish dinner and didn't have a cake carrier to take a cake in.

I called my daughter-in-law to see if she had one I could borrow. She didn't have one, but told me to take a large plastic bowl with a lid, turn it upside down, put the cake on the lid and put the bowl over the cake, snapping it down on the lid. It did the trick!

Vera M., Rochester, N.Y.

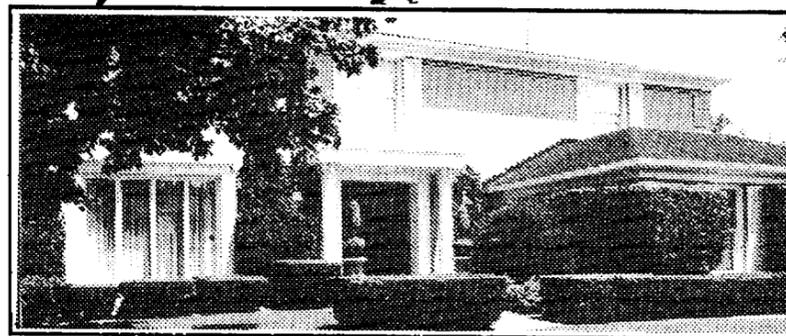

Bananas — When I have bananas that should be used and there's not enough time to bake banana nut bread, here's what I do.

I peel the bananas, place them in a freezer-safe recloseable plastic bag, mash them with my hands and toss them into the freezer.

When I am ready to bake bread, I take the bananas out of the freezer and by the time I get the other ingredients ready, the bananas are thawed.

Easy-to-build composter converts yard debris to mulch

This two-bin composter, easily constructed from pressure-treated lumber, is designed to turn yard debris and vegetable scraps into a rich garden mulch quickly, easily and at virtually no cost (you need add only water). In doing so, it will save you money by reducing your trash hauling fees and it will protect the environment by conserving landfill space.

The advantage of a two-bin system is you can periodically transfer material from one bin to the other, exposing the well rooted compost at the bottom. And because the front panel of each bin is removable, this design allows easy access to the bottom of the pile. Boards on the sides and ends are spaced to provide ample air circulation, helping to speed decomposition. To build the bin, which measures 8 feet long by 4 feet deep and 4 feet high, use this shopping list:

Lumber pressure-treated for ground contact:

- 3 8-foot 4x4s (have the lumber yard saw them each in half)
- 14 12-foot 1x6s (these will need to be sawn into various smaller pieces)

- 3 8-foot 2x4s
- 1 4-foot 2x4

Lumber untreated:

- 8 4-foot lengths of 1x1s
- 16-foot length of 1x1

Assortment of 4d, 6d and 10d hot-dipped galvanized nails.

Small tube of outdoor-use glue

Tools list:

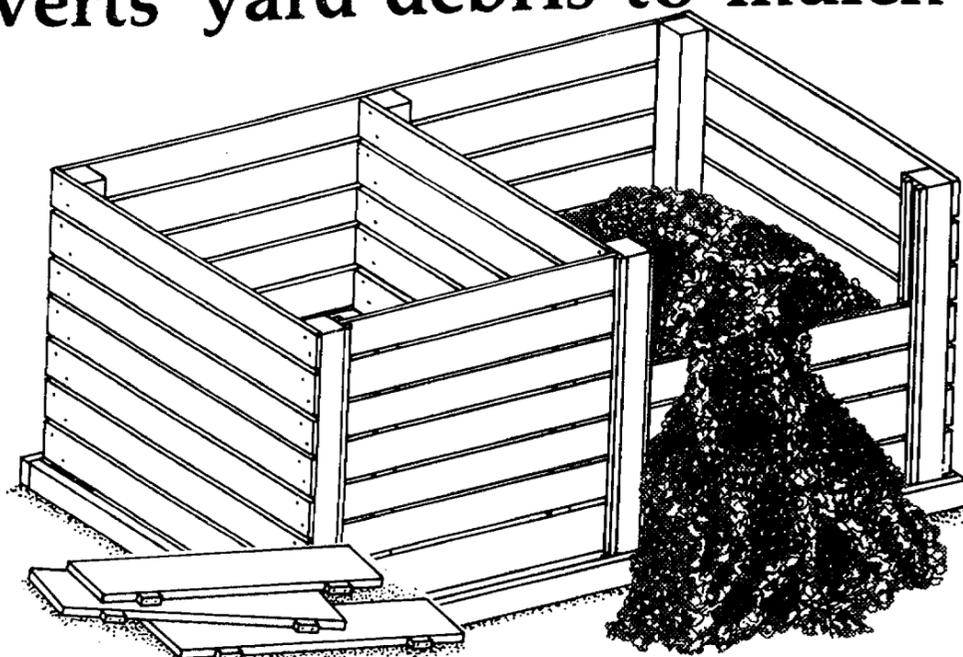

- Hammer
- Portable power saw or hand saw
- Carpenter's level

For maximum durability, be sure to specify lumber that has been pressure-treated for ground contact for the 2x4s and 1x6s. (Note: Always wash hands after handling treated wood and never burn scraps in the fireplace or wood stove.)

Form a frame for the front of the bin by nailing (use 10d nails) an 8-foot 2x4 across the outside face at the base of three of the 4x4 posts. Repeat this step to begin building the back wall. Connect these two frames by nailing 4-foot 2x4s to the outside end faces and to either face of the center section at the bottom. For all steps, use a carpenter's level to be sure the structure is level and adjust accordingly.

Complete the back wall with 7 8-foot 1x6 boards. Space them three-quarters of an inch, level and nail to the outside of the posts with 6d nails. Similarly, complete the two ends and the center piece with 21 4-foot 1x6s. Similarly, complete the two ends and the center piece with 21 4-foot 1x6s. You will need to saw 2-5/8 inches off the end of the seven boards used for the center section.

To form guides for the removable

Save money and landfill space with this sturdy and roomy compost bin. Made from standard-size lumber, it is simple enough to build in an afternoon, using only a saw, a hammer and a level.

front pieces, cut the 1x1s into 8 4-foot lengths. Using two per post and keeping them level, space the guides one inch apart and attach them to the inside of each post, flush with the face, using 4d nails.

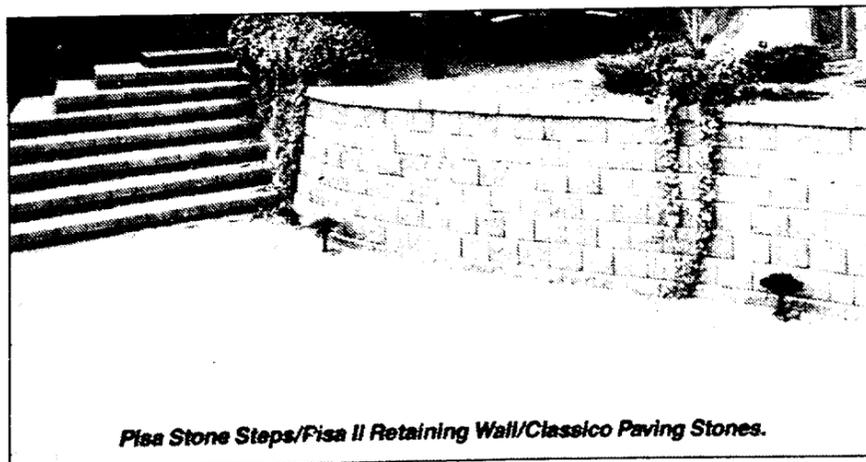

For the removable front sections, cut the remaining 1x6s into 14 lengths, each 42-3/4 inches long. You will also need 24 3-inch lengths of 1x1s for the spacers. Glue and nail the spacers to the bottom edge of all but one of the 1x6s, near the ends, two per 1x6. Slip the 1x6s into place

Tip: To speed the composting process, turn the pile frequently — once or twice a week — cover it and keep it damp.

Dorothy Kender, executive vice president of the Building Stone Institute, said the booklet was written for the average do-it-yourselfer homeowner.

"Building a patio with quality natural stone is an easy way to add to your home's usefulness, appearance and resale value," says Kender. "The satisfaction of doing the job yourself is extremely rewarding and economical as well."

the full-color booklet include:

- How to choose a flagstone pattern.
- A guide to which type of natural stone to use.
- The procedures for building in mild and cold climates.

"By following the easy to read instructions outlined in the booklet," Kender says, "the average homeowner can create a beautiful patio that will provide enjoyment for the entire family for many years, and add substantially to the resale value of the home."

To receive a free copy of "How to Build a Patio," send a self-addressed No. 10 envelope with a 29 cent stamp, to Patio, Building Stone Institute, Box 507, Purdys, N.Y. 10578.

Contrary to popular opinion, Harty said the curved form doesn't take up too much space; rather it can make a room seem larger.

tures, rather than just something to sit on.

Having that open space, again, makes the room appear larger.

"An interior is such a personal thing," he said. "The question is, is it right for you."

Harty will be at Gorman's furniture Friday, Aug. 7, and Saturday, Aug. 8, to offer insights and advice on how to tailor environments to fit individual needs. The store is located at 29145 Telegraph, just north of 12 Mile.

Household Help by John Amantea

Q. I want to install a sheet vinyl floor over my old wooden floor. What should I put over the wood as a base for the new flooring? Someone told me it should be 1/4-inch hardboard, but I'm not sure.

A. Hardboard, commonly known as masonite, is not the answer. You would only use this under flooring that is to be glued around the perimeter and at the seams.

What you need is plywood, at least 1/4-inch thick. It's used as an underlay for thin resilient floor coverings such as the one you are going to install. Check with the flooring dealer to ensure that you use the correct underlay. Using the wrong one could void your warranty.

If you do use hardboard, it should be standard, not "tempered." Install it with the smooth side down so that the flooring adhesive can stick to the rough side.

Q. I need to do some work on my old copper water pipes (rerouting). These were installed many years ago, and I'm sure the solder has lead in it. Can I reuse these fittings if I resolder them?

A. I really can't recommend that you reuse the old fittings. Small amounts of the old lead solder are most likely to remain, and lead leaching into your drinking water is dangerous to your health. Aside from that, it's hard to get the new joint to seal using lead-free solder over the old solder. They will both have different melting points.

It's enough of a pain when you have a leak in your plumbing. By reusing old fittings, you're asking for it to occur again. Your best bet is to replace the old fittings altogether. However, feel free to reuse your old pipes, since they're copper.

Local stars hope to shine in grid spectacular

By Chuck Klonke
Sports Editor

It won't matter whether the defense, offense or special teams are on the field during Saturday's Michigan High School East-West All Star football game. Grosse Pointers will always have a local player to cheer.

"We were talking about that on the way up here," said Mike Whelan, a kicking specialist from University Liggett School. "We're a pretty diverse group. All three schools are represented and we have somebody on offense, defense and special teams."

Joining Whelan on the Grosse Pointe connection in the 12th annual all star game are tight end Chris Harwick of Grosse Pointe South and linebacker Adam Korzeniewski of Grosse Pointe North.

This is the first time all three local schools have been represented in the all star game in the same year.

"It's a great feeling to be among all this talent," said Korzeniewski. "Who knows where all these guys will be in a couple years."

The first day of practice at Michigan State University was spent getting equipment, room assignments, having pictures taken, meeting with the media and renewing acquaintances with other all star players.

"I've only been here four hours and I'm having a great time," Harwick said. "It's good to see some of the guys I played against and got to know during summer football camps."

Harwick, Korzeniewski and Whelan have each received scholarships to Division I schools and they'll be leaving for early drills shortly after their all star appearances.

The 6-foot-4, 240-pound Harwick was recruited heavily by several Big Ten schools, including Ohio State, Michigan State and Indiana, but chose Boston College.

"I didn't know that much about Boston College until my visit, but it's an up-and-coming program," he said. "They have a new coaching staff that impressed me with its determination to build a winning program. The schedule is a tough one, too. We play Notre Dame, Penn State, Michigan and Michigan State in the next few years."

"I roomed with a quarterback recruit from Brockton, Mass., when I was there for orientation and he said they've been saying nothing but good things around Boston about the new coaches. This year's recruiting class was in the top 20 nationally."

Korzeniewski is a 6-3, 225-pound linebacker, who considered Syracuse, Holy Cross and Michigan State before deciding on Western Michigan.

"It's a chance to play close to home and they have some linebackers who are graduating soon so it looked like a good opportunity to play, too," he said. "The coach (Al Molde) has done a good job and he just signed a five-year contract so there'll be some continuity in the program."

Whelan, who was considered the best prep kicker in Michigan last season, had to decide between Michigan, Illinois and Michigan State, but several factors pointed to the Spartans.

"Both of their kickers are going to be seniors this year and it's a good school for kickers. A lot of them have gone on to the pros. And both of my parents went to State," Whelan said.

All three Pointers are looking forward to college careers, but they each have fond memories of their high school days.

"High school went so fast," said Harwick, "but I have quite a few good memories. When I was a sophomore we played Detroit King in the playoffs when they were ranked in the top five in the country. We also had a big win over North that year. Another highlight for me was being named to the Dream Team (a squad of the best high school players in the state regardless of class) last year."

Korzeniewski's fondest memories occurred last season as North was in the running for a playoff berth until the final game of the regular season.

"It was a great moment when we beat Fraser last year when it was ranked third in

Gold medalist has local ties

Edith Diebel's step-grandson kept her up late last Sunday night and he'll probably do it again on Friday, but the elderly Grosse Pointer isn't complaining.

"Here I am, 86 years old and I'm staying up past midnight watching television, but it's exciting," she said.

The excitement was provided by swimmer Nelson Diebel, the first United States gold medal winner in the Olympics. The 21-year-old Princeton sophomore set an Olympic record when he swam a 1:01.5 in the 100-meter breaststroke to beat world record-holder Norbert Rozsa of Hungary.

"I had heard on the radio that Nelson won, but I watched the television anyway," Edith Diebel said. "It came on about 7:20 so I had to wait to go out for dinner. I couldn't go out for lunch either, until I watched the preliminaries."

Nelson Diebel's next Olympic action will be the 400 medley relay, which is scheduled to be shown Friday.

"Most of the experts expected the Hungarian to win and they thought Nelson would come in second or third," said Edith Diebel. "It's all in the mind. He was determined to win. He said he was going to prove he could win even if they had to scrape him off the bottom of the pool."

Diebel's grandmother was impressed by his late-night interview with NBC host Bob Costas.

"All the stories had portrayed him as something of an odd character and a rebel, but I was pleased with the way he handled himself in his interviews. He gave his coach credit for helping straighten out his life. He came across as a very nice young man. He was brought up that way, then rebelled for a while, but now he seems to have changed again," she said.

Nelson Diebel's father, Nelson Diebel Jr., is a Grosse Pointe native, who moved to the Chicago area after college to take a teaching position at a community college.

His grandfather is the late Dr. Nelson Diebel, who had a practice in Grosse Pointe and was on the staff of Bon Secours hospital.

The Grosse Pointe Farms-City-Park Babe Ruth 14-year-old All-Star baseball team is going to Effingham, Ill., for the Ohio Valley Regional next month.

The local team won the state tournament last week at Ghesquiere Park by breezing through the six-team field without a defeat.

Grosse Pointe is scheduled to play its first regional game Friday, Aug. 7, at 2 p.m.

The Farms-City-Park squad beat Alpena 7-2 in the state championship game as Brandon Curtis and Joe Schmitt blanked Alpena through the first five innings. Kevin Schroeder finished to preserve the victory.

Chris Nelson, who reached base in all three at bats, drove in a run with a suicide squeeze and scored once. Nick Rutan scored twice for Grosse Pointe. Mike Shepard, Schmitt, Charlie Bockstanz, Stuart MacKenzie and Rutan collected the winners' hits.

Farms-City-Park opened the tournament with an 8-3 victory over cross-town rival Grosse Pointe Woods-Shores. A seven-run fourth inning broke open a scoreless game.

Shepard had three hits, while Ian McMillan and Schroeder added two apiece. Bockstanz, Schmitt and Schroeder handled the pitching with Bockstanz and Schroeder combining for four scoreless innings.

Josh Prues scored two runs and squeezed in another.

Robbie Buhl combined his trademark dash at the start with a healthy dose of deft driving to finish second in the Firestone Indy Lights Championship race in Toronto and reclaim first place in the season point standings.

The Grosse Pointe driver has finished among the top three in each of the seven races this season. He has 105 points and earnings of $56,000.

Car set-up problems seemed to plague Buhl and his Leading Edge Motorsports crew all weekend and were a factor in his disappointing fifth-place starting position after qualifying.

The race, however, was anything but disappointing. As he had done in Detroit, Buhl charged hard at the start, then tucked inside the pack and came out of turn one in second place.

"I saw a little light inside and was able to get past three cars ahead of me under braking," Buhl said. "You have to take those opportunities when they present themselves."

When leader Mark Smith spun on lap five, Buhl took over the lead. He maintained it through 22 laps and several crashes and spinouts that eliminated a third of the field by mid-race.

Buhl's lead didn't last. Bryan Herta, in a visibly faster car, made several abortive attempts to pass before finally easing by Buhl with 15 laps remaining. Buhl then focused his attention on holding second place.

"I have to hand it to my crew, Burke Harrison and Ron Smith, who have provided a car that has run every lap of every race," Buhl said. "That's a major reason we are in first place in the series (standings)."

Buhl plans to visit England to meet with several Formula 3000 teams and to visit the Lola chassis factory before returning for the Aug. 9 Indy Lights race in Cleveland.

ESPN will show the Toronto race on Saturday, Aug. 15, from 3 to 3:30 p.m.

beat Alpena 4-1. Rutan scored two of the Grosse Pointe runs, while Schroeder, Shepard and Tim O'Laughlin had the winners' three hits.

Grosse Pointe played an errorless game, led by Rutan who made several outstanding catches in center field and threw out a runner at second base.

Schmitt pitched a scoreless seventh to record the save.

Farms-City-Park reached the championship game with an 8-3 victory over Plymouth-Canton. Bockstanz pitched five scoreless innings of relief, allowing two hits and striking out two, to pick up the victory.

Prues and Shepard each scored two runs, while Schroeder had two hits.

Other members of the team are Peter Messacar, Dan Gough, Chris Tiede and Nick Joseph. The Farms-City-Park manager is John Hoben; the coaches are George Ghazal and Joe Schmitt.

Winning relay

The names of the winning girls 57-year relay team were omitted from the report on the Grosse Pointe City Norbs swimming team's victory over the Grosse Pointe Sharks.

Members of the relay were Christine Shine, Yvonne Krywyj, Liz Cugliari and Abby Long.

Park resident has skaters on a roll

By Chuck Klonke
Sports Editor

A little more than a year ago, 40 inline skating enthusiasts were among the first members of the City Rollers.

Now the club has grown to more than 600 members and Mark Farnen, a Grosse Pointe Park resident who organized the group, sees no end in sight.

"It's the fastest growing participant sport in the country," Farnen said. "We get new people out for our Monday and Sunday skates every week. People are so health-conscious these days and this is a good way for them to get their exercise and it's fun, too."

"It's easy to pick up. Anyone who's skated shouldn't have any trouble learning."

Inline skating, or rollerblading, has become something of a problem for local law enforcement agencies because skaters use the sidewalks and streets.

"We stress the rules of the road to our members," Farnen said. "We have our road patrols keep an eye on approaching traffic and we get to the side when a car is coming. All our sanctioned activities come under the rules of the International Inline Skating Association. We stay single file and obey the rules, just like a car."

One of the regular events put on by the City Rollers is a Sunday night skate through the streets of the Grosse Pointes. A typical skate will begin at Rustics bar and continue down Lakepointe to Windmill Point, to Three Mile Park, to Mack, to Outer Drive, to Warren and back to Mack where the skaters will take a break at National Coney Island. Then they'll cross Mack at Moross, take Chalfonte to Cook, to Woodland, to Lakeshore, where the group will take another break. Then it's over to Provençal, to Country Club Drive to Ridge and back to Rustics.

"The skate is about 14 miles," Farnen said. "It's a nice way to see Grosse Pointe and at 5 p.m. on Sunday, there's very little traffic on those roads."

Farnen doesn't recommend the Sunday skates for the novice.

"The Monday night skates in Detroit are for the beginners to intermediates," he said. "If the group stretches out more than a quarter-mile, we stop and let the slower skaters catch up. One of the things the club is proud of is our instruction and the way we bring along new skaters."

Safe skating seminars are held regularly at Joe Louis Arena. Novice skaters are given instruction in stopping, starting, braking and turning.

"Bauer has also donated 40 pairs of skates that new skaters can rent before they commit themselves to the $200 it costs to buy their own," Farnen said.

The City Rollers often incorporate theme parties into their skates and have made excursions to Mackinac Island and Chicago.

The club also sponsors a racing team that has done well in several competitions this year.

"This all pretty much happened by itself," Farnen said. "It's been a lot of work for me, but when you love doing something, you don't frown on the work."

Whelan recalls kicking his way into the state record books.

"I'd have to say tying the state record with four field goals against Lutheran Northwest was my highlight," he said. "Another good memory was kicking a 52-yard field goal against Columbus Academy at our homecoming last year."

None of the three All Stars have forgotten the people who helped them achieve the status few high school players attain.

"The North coaching staff and my family had a lot to do with my success," Korzeniewski said. "My parents taught me responsibility and the coaches gave me the opportunity to become a good player."

Harwick said South coach Jon Rice began influencing him from the time he joined the squad as a freshman.

"He told me what I could accomplish if I was willing to work for it," Harwick said. "I also have to credit my own self-motivation for getting me into the weight room to work out before school, sometimes by myself."

A kicking coach who he worked with during a clinic at Albion College made a huge contribution to his success, Whelan said. "Russ Klaus taught me the mental aspects of kicking. He taught me how to keep my head in the game."

All three players have their special dreams for Saturday's game, which begins at 1:30 p.m. at Spartan Stadium.

"I'd like to win, kick a field goal and not miss any extra points," Whelan said.

Harwick has an even loftier goal.

"I'd like to play the perfect game," he said. "I want to get all my blocks down and catch a few passes. It would really be nice to catch a touchdown pass."

Korzeniewski has only one dream.

"Just winning," he said. "Everything's perfect if you win."

Hornets sting all five foes on way to tourney triumph

Several area players made key contributions earlier this month when the Joe Ricci Jeep/Eagle Hornets took first place in the Steele's Firecracker Classic.

The Hornets, who played in the Macomb Amateur Baseball Federation, beat the Toledo Trojans 5-3 in the championship game. Jim Thornton's two-run homer helped stake the Hornets to an early 3-0 lead. It was his second homer of the tournament and fourth of the season.

Toledo cut the lead to 5-3 in the seventh inning, but Hornets' center fielder Tom Hayman made a leaping catch at the fence to end the game with the tying run at the plate.

Jay Ricci pitched five strong innings to record the victory.

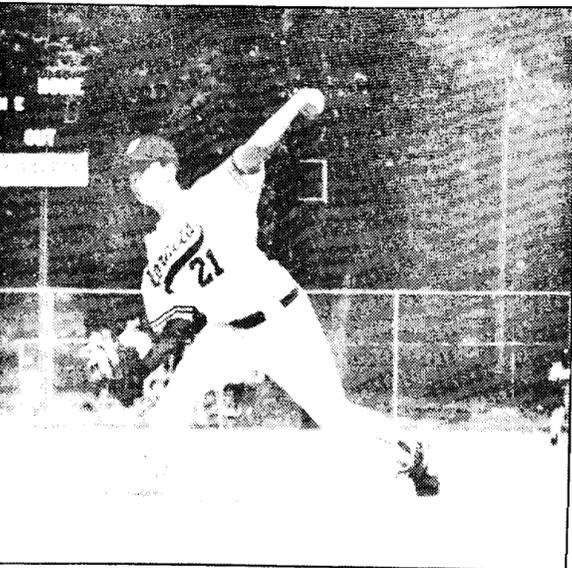

The Hornets opened the tournament with a 9-0 romp over North Farmington/West Bloomfield as Thornton and Nick Capoferi combined on a no-hitter. Randy Vasser and Jason Broyble paced the offense.

In Game 2, the Hornets held on for a 7-5 victory over the South Macomb Lakers. Jason Vinci opened the scoring with a long home run in the second inning and Chuck Melnyk added a three-run double in the same frame as the Hornets took a 5-0 lead. The Lakers tied the game at 5-5, but Capoferi's run-scoring groundout in the fifth broke the deadlock and he sealed the win by striking out six in 2 2/3 innings of shutout relief.

Thornton's grand slam capped a seven-run second inning as the Hornets pounded the South Farmington Sox 9-1. Dave Rosenow pitched a one-hitter and struck out nine.

Chris Wilson's two-run single in the bottom of the seventh capped a three-run rally as the Hornets nipped Toledo 5-4 in the semifinals.

Jay Ricci, a Grosse Pointe resident and student at University Liggett School, was the winning pitcher for the Joe Ricci Jeep/Eagle Hornets in the championship game of the Steele's Firecracker Tournament in Warren.

Joanne Davies, who tied for fifth in the Junior Women's regatta, rigs her Laser before a clinic on tactics in racing the sailboat.

Feldman first in Junior regatta

Christin Feldman of Grosse Pointe Park won three times in a five-race series to take first place in the fourth Detroit Regional Yacht Racing Association (DRYA) Junior Women's Sailing Championship at the Crescent Sail Yacht Club.

Feldman sails out of Bayview Yacht Club and the perpetual trophy will be held there for a year.

Lila LaHood of Grosse Pointe Shores was second; Gretchen Uznis of Grosse Pointe Farms was third; Bridget Murray of the Farms finished fourth; and Joanne Davies of the Farms and Shera Teitge of the Shores tied for fifth place.

Katie Hutton of Grosse Pointe Woods won the sportsmanship prize, a duffle bag donated by Mike's Marine Supply of St. Clair Shores.

Races were conducted by principal race officer Herb Mainwaring of Grosse Pointe Shores. He was assisted by his wife Marie, Maynard Rupp, Chuck Collins, Bernie Tomowski and Harold Kolter.

The jury was chaired by international judge Lynn Stedman of Grosse Pointe Farms, along with senior judge Ted Everingham of Grosse Pointe City and veteran women's sailor Maggie Wake of Bayview Yacht Club. Stedman and Everingham recently umpired the America's Cup defender and challenger finals.

Regatta chairman Mary

Bauer was assisted by Cara Scheibner and Beth Nix. Kay Baubie, a U.S. Sailing Junior Women's Committee representative, was co-chairman.

A feature of the regatta was a laser clinic sponsored by Rolex U.S.A. Julie Easom of Milwaukee, a former Tufts University Outstanding Women's Sailor, and Sunny Swarthout of Grosse Pointe Farms instructed the 18 sailors, ages 13-18, in racing tactics and rigging a laser sailboat.

Several of the medal winners, including the six medal winners, will visit Chicago Aug. 10-14, for the national U.S. Sailing/Rolex Junior Women's Sailing Championship.

Ten-year-old Holly Helin, the daughter of former Grosse Pointers Wallace and Jeanne Helin of Austin, Texas, and the granddaughter of former Lochmoor Club professional Chick Rutan, poses at the scoreboard after finishing third in the Junior World Optimist Tournament in San Diego.

Ten-year-old Holly Helin is a natural when it comes to golf.

"It's in her genes," said Holly's mother, Jeanne Helin of Austin, Texas, a former Grosse Pointe resident.

Jeanne Helin's father, the late Chick Rutan, was the head professional at Lochmoor Club for several years.

Holly recently finished third in the Junior World Optimist Tournament in San Diego and won an expense-paid trip to the Japan Cup which will be held from Aug. 24-30 in Nagoya, Japan. Her third-place finish was highlighted by a hole-in-one.

"Everybody says Holly's a natural golfer," her mother said. "She has a mellow temperament, just like her grandfather. If she hits a bad shot, she doesn't let it affect her next one."

Holly has been golfing since she was 7.

Holly's father, Wallace, is also a native of Grosse Pointe. The family moved to Texas nine years ago.

City to hold net tourney

Entry forms are available at the Elworthy Field tennis courts for the City of Grosse Pointe's annual tennis tournament, which will be held Aug. 1-9.

The tournament is open to all Grosse Pointe school district residents.

There will be singles competition in the men's, women's and children's divisions. Doubles competition will be offered for men's, women's, mixed and parent/child teams.

Preliminary matches will be held from Saturday, Aug. 1, through Friday, Aug. 7. The finals and semifinals will be Saturday, Aug. 8, and Sunday, Aug. 9.

Entry fees are $3 per person for singles and $5 per team for doubles.

Trophies will be awarded to the top two finishers in each division.

Tourney title caps Mustangs' year

A championship in the Westlake (Ohio) Invitational and a second-place finish in the Little Caesars Premier Soccer League capped an outstanding spring season for the Under-14 Pointe Mustangs of the Pointe Girls Soccer Association.

The Mustangs beat the Medina (Ohio) Stingers 2-1 in the final at Westlake that offered few scoring chances for either team. Fifteen minutes into the first half, the Mustangs' Carey King received a beautiful crossing pass and scored the game's first goal.

The defense, led by sweeper

Kim Hepner and the fullbacks, kept the pressure off goalkeeper Anne Corona until Medina tied the game with about a minute left in the first half.

Superior conditioning paid off for the Mustangs in the second half and with 10 minutes remaining in regulation, Katie Spicer scored on a breakaway created by a crossing pass.

After taking the lead, the Mustangs continued to play tight defense and kept the ball in the Stingers' end of the field.

The Mustangs beat three Ohio teams, Jackson Best of Massillon, the Berea Blaze and the Westlake Warriors, in the preliminary rounds and rolled past the North Royalton (Ohio) Bears in the semifinals.

"It's hard to keep your intensity for five games over a two-day period," said Mustangs' coach Rick Grenzke. "The girls really surprised me by increasing their intensity with each game we played. They should be proud of what they accomplished this year. I know I am."

The Mustangs posted shut-outs in all three of the preliminary round games. Goals were scored by halfbacks Emily Grenzke, Abby Heck, Maggie Durant and Julianne Zuchowski and forwards King, Shera Teitge, Abby Tompkins, Spicer and Missy Kordas.

The defense was sparked by goalies Corona and Ruth Hensen, Hepner, Kathy Storen, Emily Fleury, Dana Mertz and Melanie Lewis.

The family of the late Kathleen Schwaller would like to thank Kathleen's neighbors and friends for their sympathy and understanding before and after her recent death.

A series of unfortunate circumstances, including the death of Kathleen's nephew and the hospitalization of Kathleen's sister, meant that friends and neighbors had to bear a burden normally borne by family members, including hospital visits, routine care of her home and support and guidance to Kathleen.

The Burton and TeKamp families thank you for your assistance.

PRAYER TO THE HOLY SPIRIT

Holy Spirit, you who make me see everything and who shows me the way to reach my ideal. You, who give me the Divine Gift to forgive and forget the wrong that is done to me and you who are in all instances of my life with me. I, in this short dialogue want to thank you for everything and confirm once more that I never want to be separated from you no matter how great the material desires may be. I want to be with you and my loved ones in your perpetual glory. Amen.

Thank you for your love towards me and my loved ones. Pray this prayer three consecutive days without asking your wish, after third day your wish will be granted, no matter how difficult it may be. Then promise to publish this prayer as soon as your favor has been granted. (Thank you for favors received. B.G.)

NEARSIGHTED?

R.K. could pull your world into focus

"Ever since I had R.K. surgery something is missing in my life — 'MY GLASSES' — I can live with that!"

- Dr. Mark E. Bernthal

Don't let nearsightedness (myopia) or astigmatism limit your ambitions or restrict your lifestyle.

If you are nearsighted, you know how difficult it is to see without glasses. Radial Keratotomy (r.k.) may be your answer to better vision... without glasses.

R.K. is a precise microsurgical procedure to correct nearsightedness and astigmatism. With state-of-the-art equipment, it is both proven & predictable.

IS R.K. FOR YOU?

Discover for yourself. Come & find out why many patients have chosen r.k. as their vision alternative.
