

Volcano blows its top; sun seekers do likewise

By Donna Walker
Staff Writer

If your lawn looks greener than it did last year; if you've forgotten what a dry, sunny, warm weekend is like; and if you've shaken your head in astonishment that stores are once again stocking winter coats when you've hardly broken in your summer clothes, then blame it on a stubborn jet stream.

Or better yet, on Mount Pinatubo, the volcano in the Philippines that erupted last summer, sending tons of ash into the atmosphere.

Bill Deedler, a meteorologist with the National Weather Service in Romulus, said the metro Detroit area had colder than average temperatures in June and July.

The average for June was about 2.2 degrees lower than the normal average of 67.7 degrees. Last month, the average was 3.1 degrees lower than the average of 71.9 degrees, making it the second coldest July in Michigan in the 122 years the National Weather Service has been compiling statistics, Deedler said.

Contrary to popular belief, southeastern Michigan's rainfall was about an inch below the normal of 3.43 inches in June, he said.

However, last month, the metro area received 2.81 inches above the normal average rainfall of 3.10 inches, making it the 11th wettest July on record, Deedler said.

Why has the weather been so quirky?

"The jet stream normally retreats to the north pole in the summer," Deedler said. "But it hasn't done that this summer, which is why we keep getting these blasts of cold air."

OK, so why hasn't the jet stream retreated?

"The biggest theory going around is that ash from Mount Pinatubo is cutting off potential sunshine," he said. "It's reflecting sunshine back into space, so there isn't enough heat to weaken the jet stream and send it up north."

In a fair world, a warm autumn would follow a chilly summer. But nobody ever said the world was fair.

"Our 90-day outlook, which takes us into October, shows more of the same," Deedler said. "Above average precipitation and below average temperatures."

The playscape at Patterson Park in Grosse Pointe Park has been extremely successful since it opened in October, according to Terry Solomon, director of parks and recreation, who added that volunteers have been maintaining the structure regularly. They spent a recent weekend applying a sealant to the wood. Tyler Dowdy, at the right, shows that walking a fine line is no big deal. Woods opens door to day care

By Donna Walker

Responding to the growing demand for child care facilities, the Grosse Pointe Woods City Council has adopted an amendment to the city code that allows child care and pre-school facilities in the Woods' C-2 High Intensity City Center (zoning) District, which is occupied by Pointe Plaza on Mack at Moross.

Voting for the amendment were Mayor Pro Tem Thomas J. Fahrner and councilmen James Alogdelis, Ted L. Bidigare, Peter R. Gilezan and William W. Wilson.

Mayor Robert E. Novitke and councilwoman Jean Rice were absent.

The council decided to consider changing the ordinance in May, after Rainbow Rascals

Learning Center Inc. expressed interest in leasing 5,000 square feet of space on the first floor of the Pointe Plaza office building.

The company was told it could not do so, because child care and preschool facilities weren't allowed in the C-2 High Intensity Center District. Only retail businesses and offices were permitted, Rainbow Rascals was told.

On July 28, the Grosse Pointe Woods planning commission held a public hearing on the proposed amendment, after which it recommended to the council that the amendment be approved.

The Woods council adopted the amendment at its first reading. Usually, the council does not adopt an ordinance until it has had two readings, and has been discussed at two separate council meetings.

But because the planning commission had already held a public hearing on the matter, only one reading was required, city attorney George B. Catlin said.

The amendment goes into effect today, Aug. 6.

Patrick G. Fenton, president of Rainbow Rascals Learning Center Inc. in Southfield, said the company has a tentative lease with the owners of Pointe Plaza, and that its architects are finishing plans for the new child care center.

He said the company plans to open the new center by the end of the year, and that enrollment will be open to children ages 6 weeks to 5 years.

4 Pointes sign up for futuring study project

By Ronald J. Bernas
Staff Writer

There seems to be a lot of talk about the future among local city councils these days.

That's because the five Pointes and Harper Woods are being asked to participate in a project to plan now for their combined future.

The project was initiated by Grosse Pointe Farms Mayor Gregg Berendt, who appointed a committee of three councilmembers — John Danaher, Gail Kaess and Terry Griffin — two residents — Pat Jeffs and Bill Burgess — and city manager Rich Solak to come up with a way for the Pointes to work together toward a common goal.

They brought in Edward D. Barlow Jr., a nationally recognized futurist, to see if there was enough interest among the communities to pursue the matter further. After a meeting in early May Barlow was commissioned to draft a project proposal to present to the cities.

To date Grosse Pointe Farms and Shores have approved participating in the project. Grosse Pointe City has approved it provided a "substantial number" of the other cities participate. The Park said it would join as long as four others signed up.

The Grosse Pointe Woods council is expected to discuss the project at its Aug. 17 meeting. James Leidlein, Harper

'To have four cities say yes, that's terrific. This is a community project and the community will benefit from sharing ideas.'

Gregg Berendt
Farms mayor

Woods' city manager, said the idea is still under discussion.

Both cities have until Aug. 21 to make a decision.

If all six cities participate, the project will cost $60,000 with each city kicking in $10,000 — $5,000 of which will be in cash. The other half will come in the form of in-kind services such as secretarial work and use of city supplies.

The contribution will change if any of the cities fail to participate, but what the difference will be has not been determined.

Barlow's proposal said the project should take approximately 12 months — possibly starting in September if all the cities fall in line soon — to come up with goals and suggestions on how to reach them.

He's created six task forces based on comments at two meetings of city officials interested in the project. Those task forces are: public facilities and services, financial and economic vitality, beautification and preservation, human services, leisure and cultural, and public safety. A steering committee would be appointed to oversee the work of the task forces and Barlow would work directly with that committee.

Danaher, who helped bring Barlow to the Pointes, said the project is important to the survival of the area.

"We in the Pointes cannot continue to go on as we have in this economic climate," he said. "We're going to find it increasingly more difficult to fund our current programs with cutbacks in funding from Lansing. And we can't just keep taxing our residents. There are certain economies of scale that can be realized in all aspects of government."

In agreeing to participate in the project, Park Mayor Palmer T. Heenan told his council, "There may be some reason why we should do this. There may be some cost efficiencies (if the Pointes and Harper Woods combined some services) that should be looked into."

Grosse Pointe Shores president Ed Brady said the Shores

Dave Steele of Grosse Pointe City has always kept his life in balance.

He ticks off on his fingers the five key elements he keeps in balance — family, work, hobbies, exercise and community service.

Steele has been married for 30 years and raised two sons with his wife, Margaret; he's a vice president at Lutheran Social Services of Michigan where he's worked for 18 years; his love of woodworking has inspired him to make most of the furniture in his house; he bikes 14 to 20 miles a day; and he has been a Boy Scout leader, performing community service, for more than 15 years.

"I'm very busy," he said. "But I enjoy being busy and don't feel I'm stressed out because I keep that balance."

Steele credits the Boy Scouts — which he's been involved with nearly all his life — with helping him create that balance.

"I've been with scouting for 45 years," said the 53-year-old

Steele. "Scouting, as much as anything else, was responsible for pointing me toward a service career, developing the morals I cherish, developing an interest in the outdoors and the hobbies that I do indoors."

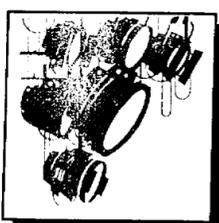

Born and raised in Ohio, Steele also learned about the outdoors from his father, a soil

Jeep stolen

A four-door 1990 white Jeep Cherokee was stolen from the north parking lot behind St. John Hospital between 1:55 p.m. July 30 and 12:25 a.m. July 31, according to Grosse Pointe Woods police.

The Jeep had been locked.

When Woods police entered the vehicle into the Law Enforcement Information Network (LEIN) as being stolen, they learned that Detroit police had seen it near Van Dyke and Merkel, about an hour before the owner discovered the vehicle was missing.

Detroit police said they chased the car, but lost it in that area.

Car robbed

A portable CD player and other items were stolen from a car that was parked in the lot next to the baseball diamonds at Grosse Pointe South High School. The theft occurred sometime between 7 p.m. July 30 and 11:45 a.m. Aug. 1, according to Grosse Pointe Farms police.

The car was parked there by its owner's mother, because her daughter was out of town and there wasn't room in front of their house to park the car on the street.

She told police she thought the car would be safe on school property.

Speeders can wait

A Grosse Pointe Woods public safety officer was parked in front of a home on Lochmoor about 10:50 p.m. Sunday, July 26, conducting radar surveillance, when he received an unusual request.

A woman who lived in the house asked him to help put her sick Collie in her car, so she could take it to the veterinarian.

The officer obliged, and the sick dog may have saved a speeder some grief.

Parking variance granted by Woods

By Donna Walker
Staff Writer

A small company that provides consulting services to financial institutions across the country can move into an office building in the 1800 block of Lancaster, now that it has received a parking variance from the Grosse Pointe Woods City Council.

Under the city's zoning ordinance, Automated Management Systems Inc. needed one off-street parking space on the property it recently purchased on Lancaster.

Because there is no room for off-street parking on the property, the company needed a variance for one space, even though the firm's president, Thomas A. McPharlin, said he had made arrangements with nearby Jiffy Lube to use two of its parking spaces.

Parking variances are hard to come by in Grosse Pointe Woods, because the council does not want to increase traffic and parking problems in the city.

The council agreed to grant the variance in this case because Automated Management Systems Inc. has no retail business.

McPharlin said the firm only has two employees (himself and an assistant), and its clients are out-of-state and will not be visiting the office, which mainly will be used to store files.

"So any increase in traffic will not be because of my business," he said.

Voting for the variance were Mayor Pro Tem Thomas J. Fahrner and councilmen James Alogdelis, Ted L. Bidigare, Peter R. Gilezan and William W.

Wilson. Mayor Robert E. Novitke and councilwoman Jean Rice were absent.

McPharlin also is planning to add a 192-square-foot, second-floor addition to the building.

Currently, the first floor has 650 square feet of useable space. McPharlin said he will lose some room on the first floor when he remodels it to comply with federal barrier-free access rules (which benefit handicapped people). He said the second floor will only be used for storage.

His project was approved by the Grosse Pointe Woods planning commission in July.

A story in last week's paper said Grosse Pointe Shores' echo unit is being stored at Bon Secours Hospital. The paramedics' van is subsidized by the hospital in part, but is housed in the garage at city hall.

Even if Grosse Pointe Woods voters approved on Aug. 4 a .3 mill increase in the .5 mill tax that's currently levied for advance life support services, the city will not automatically raise the tax next year, according to Phillip Belcher, acting city administrator. It will only levy the amount needed to balance the budget.

Volunteers rough it to preserve America's wilderness

By Maureen McNulty
Staff Writer

And how did we spend our summer vacations? If you ask Ann Gillard of Grosse Pointe Woods, she'll tell you she spent hers in the Appalachian mountains, waking up in a tent around six every morning, hiking at least a few miles to work every day and spending eight hours trimming tree limbs and clearing mountain trails.

She had the time of her life. Gillard was one of 426 high school students chosen from more than 2,000 applicants to be a member of a volunteer crew with the Student Conservation Association (SCA).

The association, a nonprofit educational organization, that provides expense-paid volunteer field experiences for high school and college students and adults in national parks, forests and other wilderness areas.

High school student volunteers, ages 16-18, typically spend four weeks working on environmental or ecological restoration projects, such as trail construction and rehabilitation, and a final week hiking, camping and having fun. The students can be placed anywhere from Yellowstone National Park to Richmond (Va.) National Battlefield Park to Denali National Park in Alaska.

Gillard, 18, who heard of the program from a friend who had joined three years earlier, requested placement in the Mount Rodgers National Recreation Area in southwest Virginia.

"I really liked the area. It has the most beautiful, fantastic scenery I have ever seen," said Gillard. "And I especially liked the forest service people and the rangers. They were all really nice. I hope to be working, eventually, for some of the people I met."

Gillard, who plans to start college next month and will receive college credit for participating in the program, said students don't have to declare that they're going into natural resources or environmental fields to be accepted into the program.

"I've always been interested in helping out the environment any way I can, but I just love being outdoors. My crew members felt the same way," she said. "They're just looking for people who really want to learn about everything in general about the outdoors. I've learned more about trees than I ever would have believed."

The high school crews, comprising six to 10 people and an experienced SCA leader, work on maintaining, repairing or even draining old trails and, sometimes, practically building new ones.

"We get up around 6:30 — that wasn't too much fun, but our leader liked to get up early — eat breakfast, pack a lunch and walk to our trails, about 45 minutes away," said Gillard.

The students cleaned up the trails, removing rocks or anything else that might be cluttering them, set up new drainage paths with logs or rocks to redirect the flow of rainwater, and cleared branches from the sides and overhead.

"Surprisingly for an environmental group, we cut down a lot of trees. The trail had to be 4 feet wide by 10 feet high to accommodate people and horses," said Gillard, who said that that was one of her duties for the month.

"It teaches them all the work that goes into all of these trails in our parks and forests and, at the same time, a love for nature," said Debi Monroe, a national coordinator of the program, who just happened to meet Gillard this summer while visiting the Mount Rodgers site.

"That was a great bunch of kids up there. She (Gillard) just worked, worked, worked — but she seemed really happy."

Monroe said SCA has sent mailings to over 17,000 high schools but they find most of the teenagers who are accepted learn about the program through word of mouth.

"The only thing it costs them is getting to and from here and we offer a lot of financial assistance," Monroe said. "We get kids from all income levels and backgrounds — black, white, Asian, Hispanic, Native American, urban and rural. A lot are just interested in the outdoors and want to do something in it."

Gillard said the theme for SCA and most wildlife groups is "No Trace," which means leaving the natural wildlife area looking untouched by humans.

"We had an occasional campfire, but they aren't good for the environment because they destroy the ground, leave ashes and char the surrounding rocks. That impacts the ecosystem because then animals change their habits. We basically didn't do anything the animals would notice," she said.

Gillard said she'd like to return to the program next summer as a resource assistant, a program which sends approximately 1,000 college students anywhere from Hawaii to Puerto Rico to assist with wildlife research, provide visitor information and educational programs and do archaeological surveys and other tasks. Research assistants are also volunteers, but airfare, food and lodging are paid for by the SCA.

Was Gillard happy to return to the real world?

"In some ways, yes. I mean, it's nice to have running water again and a bed to sleep in. But as I was flying in over Detroit, all I could notice was just how flat everything was. It was just so beautiful in Virginia," she said.

SCA is supported by foundations, corporations and more than 12,000 SCA members.

For more information on the program, write SCA, Box 925, Boulder, Colo. 80306.

Promotions in Woods

By Donna Walker

Since the beginning of the year, Louise Warnke has been performing the duties of city clerk in Grosse Pointe Woods.

Now, she has the title to go along with the job.

On Monday, Warnke was sworn-in as city clerk by the Grosse Pointe Woods City Council.

She replaces Chester E. Petersen, who retired as city administrator-clerk in December, but continued to work for the city as interim city administrator through the middle of May.

In April, the council decided to split the city administrator-clerk position in two, and agreed to appoint Warnke as city clerk for one year, starting July 1, on the condition that she and the city agreed on a contract before then.

The two sides are still negotiating, and the latest proposal called for Warnke to have a two-year contract, said Phillip H. Belcher, acting city administrator.

"I talked it over with the mayor, and we decided it would be best to continue negotiations after she was sworn in," he said.

The council is conducting a nationwide search for a new city administrator. Meanwhile, Belcher, the former assistant city administrator, has been supervising the day-to-day operations of the city.

Warnke, of Grosse Pointe Shores, began working for the Woods in 1973, as senior deputy city clerk. Later, she served as deputy city clerk, and most recently, her title was director of administrative services/city clerk.

The new deputy city clerk is Tina Seder, who was appointed to that position on Monday by the council. Seder, of Warren, has been working for the city as an administrative assistant since 1989.

Along with their titles, Warnke and Seder each received a raise to reflect their new official duties.

Seder's salary went from $25,662 to $27,300; and Warnke's salary went from $41,535 to $44,027.

Help unlock Grosse Pointe's history

By Donna Walker
Staff Writer

It would be like the award-winning PBS series "The Civil War," only shorter, and more localized.

That's how members of the Grosse Pointe Historical Society envision the documentary they want to make about the history of Grosse Pointe.

"What I would like to do is open with how Lake St. Clair got its name," and then cover the highlights of Grosse Pointe's history up to the present, said Mike Skinner, co-chair of the society's videographics committee.

Like the Civil War documentary, the video would consist mainly of still photographs.

"We'd pan across the photos, or focus on a person in the photo, and then pull back to show a historic building the person is standing in front of. In those ways, we'd give movement to the still photographs," he said.

Ideally, each photo would be shown for about five seconds, which poses a big problem, Skinner said.

"We'd need about 360 photos or drawings, and we don't have nearly that many," he said.

The society has advertised for historic photos, but so far, the response from the public "has not been good," said Olivia Mandel, president of the society.

"It's hard for people to get excited enough to go through their attics and look through their drawers for old photos, when they don't know anything about the project," she said. "We know there are old photos out there. We just hope people will let us borrow them so we can record Grosse Pointe's history."

The society would also like to borrow old letters, journals and diaries that have entries relating to Grosse Pointe.

"We would select some entries and have them read on the videocassette. They did the same thing in 'The Civil War' when they read letters that were written by soldiers," Skinner said.

Also, the society has an ongoing oral history project, in which residents are encouraged to share their memories about Grosse Pointe on audio tapes. Some of those oral histories may be used in the videocassette, he said.

The society hopes to show the videocassette to classes in the Grosse Pointe schools, to community groups and on cable television once it is finished, Skinner said.

An outline of Grosse Pointe's history has been completed, but the script can't be written until the society receives more photos, Skinner said.

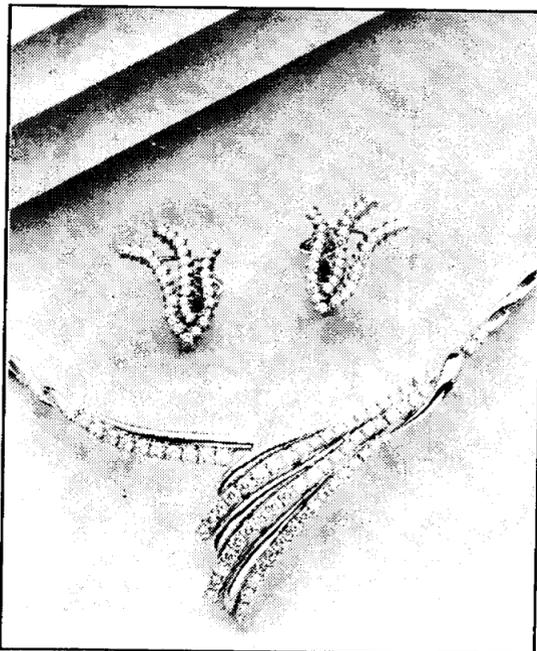

Drawings will be used to depict buildings and former residents if no photos exist. For example, a drawing will show Grosse Pointe's first residence, Grant's Castle, which was built in the 1850s, Skinner said.

The videography would be done in-house by Skinner and the husband of another society member who owns a video production company.

Skinner, who grew up in Grosse Pointe City but moved to Dearborn a few years ago, is the human resources and payroll manager for Technicolor in Livonia, a video company that specializes in duplicating videos for Disney.

The society would like to complete the project by mid-1993, "but then again, our original deadline was mid-1992," he said.

Yes, folks, we can have our beef and eat it too

It's not where's the beef, but what's the beef?

That's a question that might well be asked of Jeremy Rifkin, a Washington, D.C., philosopher-activist who alleges that there is an international conspiracy by the industrial nations to subjugate the world's poor and plunder the Earth of its soil, grain and water by keeping beef a mainstay in the diets of affluent countries.

In his book, "Beyond Beef: The Rise and Fall of the Cattle Culture" (Dutton), he lays out a campaign to convince Americans to stop eating or at least drastically reduce their consumption of beef.

A steer for Rifkin is not so much meat as it is a metaphor for everything wrong with the late 20th century.

A report in the Tufts University Diet and Nutrition Newsletter says the picture he paints is one-sided and the solution he proposes so simplistic that he distorts what are legitimate problems regarding how we produce and eat our food.

According to Rifkin, Americans are fat and dying by the millions of cardiovascular disease, colon and breast cancer and diabetes specifically because of beef consumption. But he never points out that Americans were overweight long before beef became the most popular meat in the United States in the early 1950s, or that they are still overweight now that consumption of beef has been overtaken by poultry in the American diet.

He also blames beef-eating for cancer and heart disease. Eating too much fat has been linked with certain cancers and consuming too much saturated fat and cholesterol is one of the risk factors of heart disease. But together, pork, poultry, dairy products and eggs provide far more of the fat, saturated fat and cholesterol Americans consume than contributes beef.

Rifkin also has another beef about beef.

He claims that beef production is "one of the most destructive environmental threats of the modern era" and provides a disturbing description of the ecological ruin that clearing rain forests for grazing land has caused in Central and

Prime Time

By Marian Trainor

South America.

Pushing the guilt complex further, he says that the production of a single quarter-pound hamburger from a steer raised in Central or South America involves the eradication of 165 pounds of living matter that comes from different plant, insect, mammal and reptile species.

What Rifkin neglects to add is that less than 1 percent of the beef Americans eat is imported from Central and South America, according to the U.S. Department of Agriculture and even that small amount is steadily declining.

As for the impact of cattle production on global warming, steers do exhale methane gas, which rises to the atmosphere where it traps heat escaping the Earth and thus helps to create the "greenhouse effect." Again he forgets to add that cattle are not the only culprit.

Coal mining, oil and gas drilling, the incomplete combustion of fossil fuel, the burning of vegetation and our wetlands all produce large amounts of methane. Rice paddies and termites alone produce almost as much methane as cattle.

Another problem with beef, Rifkin asserts, is that because some people eat it, a billion humans are starving. He maintains that more than half of the grain harvested in the United States is fed to livestock and if we were to reduce our cattle production, we could use our agricultural resources to grow more food for starving humans instead.

He ignores the dilemma that the production of grain in one area of the world does not guarantee that it will be used to end hunger elsewhere, as evidenced by the fact that the U.S. grain surplus has reached 200 million tons.

In fact, in the United States alone, 60 million acres of cropland have been withdrawn from grain production to prevent agricultural surpluses from depressing prices.

The unfortunate reality is that in many areas of the world, hunger is as much a product of politics, civil wars, entrenched wealth, inefficient distribution networks and corruption as it is of inadequate food supplies and production capabilities.

So while we realize that beef should not be the mainstay of our diet, we should not feel that we are digging our graves with our teeth, polluting the air or depriving the hungry if we enjoy a steak, a luscious piece of roast-beef or a hamburger. Beef is not America's favorite meat for nothing. Look at it as one of life's little rewards.

If you still feel uneasy, try cooking a 10-ounce steak for one person by cutting the beef into cubes and placing it on skewers along with peppers and other vegetables. That way you can have your steak and still be socially conscious.

What did we find out from our primary?

Now that the primary is over, the question is not just who were nominated but what did the rest of us learn from it?

By this time, you readers know the answer to the first part of that question, although the writer, facing an early Tuesday deadline, doesn't know the outcome.

During the campaign, however, we learned that it is possible to challenge the cumbersome reapportionment machinery and win.

That is what officials of Grosse Pointe Park and Wayne County did after the county apportionment commission played blatant politics in shifting the Park into a district in which the voters of Detroit predominate.

Pursuing their appeal to the state Supreme Court, the Pointes won a notable victory by forcing the apportionment commission to restore the Park to the 1st commissioner district, thereby giving Republicans a chance of victory in November.

Opinion

That successful appeal also helped attract a primary field of five Grosse Pointe candidates, three Republicans and two Democrats. That means the Pointes ought to be assured of a new commissioner who values their interests, regardless of which nominee wins the November face-off.

We also learned from the primary campaign that challengers who filed in the 14th and 15th congressional districts campaigned hard to displace both incumbents, Reps. John Conyers and Barbara-Rose Collins.

Both are fairly liberal Democrats who were favored to be renominated but neither one has done much for the people back home. And so both were challenged by both black and white candidates who found plenty of reasons to criticize them both.

Both Conyers and Collins are vulnerable, and not just on their lack of performance. Conyers had issued 273 "bad" checks in posting one of the worst records in the House banking scandal. Ms. Collins had overspent a higher percentage of her appropriation for her franking (free mailing) privilege than any other member of Congress.

In both districts, reapportionment provided challengers with an additional incentive because redistricting added territories that neither incumbent had represented in past years.

This is the first time that Conyers has represented the Woods, the Shores and Harper Woods and even though he had opened an office in Harper Woods, he still isn't very well known in those additions to his district.

In fact, his district, which looks like a pistol on the map because it runs from Dearborn Heights across the entire western half of the city of Detroit to Grosse Pointe Shores, encompasses some of the state's poorest people in Detroit and some of the richest in the Shores.

The 15th District, which added Grosse Pointe Farms through reapportionment, had included the Park and the City in Rep. Collins' first term, but she, too, lacks much knowledge of the Pointes, which makes us wonder why she says she wants to represent us.

From even her own comments, she obviously doesn't hear much from the Pointes by mail except for routine questions for information about applications for the military academies and queries about problems with federal Social Security and Medicare services.

If she survived the primary, she may face a tough contest in November. Dr. Charles Vincent, who ran as a Democrat in 1990, conducted a vigorous campaign under the GOP banner this year and was expected to capture the party's nomination.

Even if the incumbents win in November, the primary campaigns have raised hopes that both will do more to bridge the gap in interests and understanding that now divides Detroit from its suburbs.

Perhaps they will even try to satisfy not only the voters who supported them but those who criticized their failure to do very much to represent the home folks, including those in the Republican Pointes.

A view from the sidelines

When President Dwight Eisenhower nominated Harry Blackmun to the federal court of appeals in 1959, Blackmun was described as a "nominal Republican" and a political moderate.

Now, however, Blackmun is often referred to as a liberal because of his 1973 Roe vs. Wade Supreme Court decision that established abortion as a fundamental right and his continuing support for it, including his recent reaffirmation of that right.

In the first place, I doubt that he would accept either of those descriptions, political moderate or liberal, because he is, after all, a man of the law, not of politics.

When he was nominated in 1959 to the federal bench, he was rated highly by both the American Bar Association and the Minnesota Bar. The ABA committee on the federal judiciary gave him its highest recommendation, "exceptionally well qualified."

At the time he was the resident counsel for the Mayo Clinic in Rochester, Minn. A summa cum laude graduate of Harvard and a Harvard law school product, he had taught at the University of Minnesota Law School and had been in private practice with a prestigious Minneapolis law firm.

In view of that record, it was no surprise when a delegation from the Rochester area, including Democrats as well as Republicans, asked the Minneapolis Star and Tribune to help dislodge the nomination from a Senate committee.

The paper quickly agreed. As the paper's editorial page editor, I wrote an editorial calling on Minnesota's Democratic senators, Hubert Humphrey and Eugene

by Wilbur Elston

McCarthy, to back Blackmun, whose nomination had been caught up in senatorial politics.

Lyndon Johnson, then the Democratic majority leader, had held up a batch of judicial nominations because it included a Texan Johnson did not endorse.

The editorial was timely because the logjam had just broken. The Texan to whom Johnson objected had withdrawn and the president had nominated a successor acceptable to Johnson. The committee had cleared 10 other nominations — but not Blackmun's.

Five days later, however, I was able to write another editorial complimenting the Senate as well as the Minnesota senators for responding to the demands for action by confirming the appointment.

Years later, long after writing a 1970 editorial for The Detroit News to applaud Blackmun's appointment to the Supreme Court, I sent him a note reminding him of the 1959 and 1970 editorials.

In his reply, he recalled especially the endorsement of his appellate court nomination, added that the editorial had "dislodged" it from the committee and concluded, "I know the editorial was instrumental in breaking the impasse."

If he was right, I suppose critics of Roe vs. Wade could blame me for starting Blackmun on an illustrious judicial career capped by his Supreme Court opinion for the first time establishing abortion as a fundamental right.

If so, I'll take the blame — and the credit from the other side — even though nobody knows how much longer Blackmun, now 83, will remain on the court and how much longer Roe vs. Wade will stand as the law of the land.

Do negative ads really work?

Negative political commercials got a bad name in the 1988 presidential campaign but since they seemed to work then, they were back with us in 1992, even in the state's primary campaign.

Among the nastiest commercials were the radio ads that were used in the Wayne County sheriff's race, with charges and countercharges about lies and misrepresentations coming from the incumbent, Robert Ficano, as well as from his chief challenger, Wayne County Commissioner Kevin Kelley.

In congressional races, too, negative appeals also were widely used in interviews with the news media as well as in campaign advertising. Some of the most negative showed up in the 14th and 15th congressional districts which include the Pointes, with some of the worst namecalling coming in the 15th District.

Incumbent Rep. Barbara-Rose Collins saw Democratic challenger Tom Barrow's use of different messages to the black and white portions of the district as proof that he was playing the racist card.

Denying that charge, he claimed, in a Detroit Free Press interview, that she had questioned his "blackness" and commented that she "does very little for black people except sponge off them."

In the 14th District, there were some nasty long-distance innuendoes cast at each other by Rep. John Conyers and one of his challengers, state Sen. John Kelly, but their word match paled into insignificance with the reports of what happened in the 11th Congressional District.

There three Republicans running for the GOP nomination to succeed retiring Rep. William Bloomfield went to the airways to seek votes with negative ads on radio and television that blasted their opponents.

From the commercials, the issues appeared to emphasize abortion rights, the public's trust in candidates, the candidates' political ambitions and the influence of PAC funds.

Those matters are not very illuminating, if voters really want to know what the issues are in Washington as well as the kind of people who are seeking to go there from the 11th District.

But we'll know more about the effectiveness of negative appeals, no matter how obnoxious, when all the results are available for study. And if the winners used negative appeals, don't look for any change in November.

Banking logic

To the Editor:
There is something that confuses me about the recent banking scandal our nation experienced.

The Federal Reserve System (FRS) is what is called a "bankers bank." It is stock owned. It has never been audited. No one knows, not even the Treasury Department, how much it costs to operate it. It pays no taxes. It also has its own insurance company (FDIC). Should some bank mismanage its funds, the depositors' funds are insured.

Now while the banks were insuring for larger and larger amounts ($10,000 to $100,000), they were paying less and less into the insurance fund.

My problem is this. If a large number of banks mismanage their business, and the insurance fund is inadequate, then it seems to me the banking industry may have to borrow to cover the shortage.

Yet the exact opposite seems to have happened.

The government (read taxpayers) got stuck with the bill rather than the bankers who mismanaged the banking business. Not only that, but the banks lent the money to the government (read taxpayers) to pay the bill, and the government (read taxpayer) is being charged interest by the bankers to pay off the bankers' debt.

A really win-win situation for the bankers.

I'm sure there's some logic to all this. It just somehow seems to escape me.

Abortion

To the Editor:

The recent Democratic convention was notable for facing the major social issues of the day — homelessness, health, education, national debt, the budget — with few ideas and endless verbiage. But they were definite about one thing. From the podium speakers thundered, "We are the party of pro-choice!"

They shouted it with all the enthusiasm of the ACLU announcing to a convention of secular humanists that the Supreme Court had just overturned the Ten Commandments.

The convention didn't bow very deeply to "choice" however. They denied the podium to the only important Democrat voice: against abortion, Governor Casey of Pennsylvania. But they welcomed as a guest speaker a renegade Republican pro-choice woman who — apparently — preempted Casey's air time.

Let's face it: The moral issue of abortion is going to be, perhaps, the major issue of the Democrat's campaign. With the Democrats, morality is decided by majority vote. And Southern Baptists Clinton and Gore, changed their anti-abortion positions of four years ago, to accommodate what the Democrats perceive as a great vote-grabbing issue.

And for those of us who do not feel proud that our country has approved the killing of a calculated 30,400,000 unborn American citizens since 1973, we had better close ranks. This horror promises to become worse if the newly introduced "Freedom of Choice" act should become law.

Our killing of unborn Americans dwarfs Stalin's record of killing 30 million of his brother Russians. Our record of killing exceeds the tragic horror of

Last of the line

"Are you hyphenating?"
 "Are you keeping your own last name or taking his?"
 "Are you going to be a Ms. or a Mrs.?"

These are some of the questions I've run into on the road to my wedding day.

No, I'm not going to hyphenate my last name, because it would be a pain to write two last names all the time, and because people never know which name to use first when they're alphabetizing their files.

Yes, I'll continue to use the same byline, but when I'm not at work, I'll use my husband's name.

I guess that means people will have to call me "Ms. Walker" at work, since technically I won't be a miss, nor will I be a "Mrs. Walker." I don't like the sur title "Ms.," but it doesn't really matter, since most people at work call me Donna (and sometimes something worse).

I'm quite fond of the last name I've had for 25 years, and that's why I don't want to give it up completely when I get married on Saturday.

Originally spelled Walkere (in the Middle English period), it means "thickener of the cloth, or fuller," according to my mom's old, dog-eared baby name book.

Unless needlepointing counts as "thickening cloth," I haven't lived up to my last name. But being a Walker has had its benefits. Because my name starts with a letter near the end of the alphabet, I was always one of the last students called upon to give school reports, which gave me extra time to prepare. Also, it's easy to spell and pronounce, which substitute teachers seemed to appreciate. The only time I ever have a problem with my name is when

I speak too fast, and run the "ah" sound at the end of Donna together with the "wa" sound at the start of Walker, reminiscent of the late Gilda Radner's "Baba Wawa" (Barbara Walters) impersonation. "You want the public relations director to call Don Locker at the Grosse Pointe News?" the voice on the other end of the phone says.

Arrrrgh. My fiance's pleasant-sounding last name isn't in my mom's baby name book, so I don't know what it means. All I know is that it's Irish, and that it starts with a nice hard consonant, not a wishy-washy "W," which makes it tempting for me to use his last name professionally. But I won't. At least not anytime soon, for three main reasons.

- My contacts at work know me, whether they want to or not, by my last name, and it would be confusing to them if I changed it.
- My fiance's name is difficult to spell and pronounce. I got it right the first time I met him, but I've heard his name garbled too many times by strangers to not know they have a problem with it.

- Unless my parents get busy and give me the brother I always wanted, our part of the Walker line will soon be extinct.

My paternal grandfather had a daughter (who took her husband's name) and two sons who had two daughters each. We don't think the proliferation of girls is a bad thing, or dwell on it the way England's royal family might, but the thought that "this is the end of the line" has crossed the minds of my family recently. So why take my fiance's name at all? Because it's tradition, because I'm proud of him, and because if we ever have children, I want them to have his last name. They won't be thickeners of the cloth. But then again, who is?

The making of a president

Barbie — America's best-known fashion doll — has dabbled in dozens of careers: ballerina, registered nurse, stewardess, astronaut, teacher, fashion editor, surgeon, aerobics instructor, fashion designer, TV news reporter, veterinarian, rock star, dancer, an officer in the Army, Navy and the Marine Corps, UNICEF ambassador, Air Force pilot, diplomat, figure skater, rap musician and chef.

All these careers require a uniform or a specific type of clothing.

Surprise. Now Barbie wants to be president of the United States.

Running for office requires a whole new wardrobe. What should she wear to the convention, to give speeches, to attend fundraisers. Then, the inauguration.

The latest spinoff, called "The President Barbie," sells for about $20 and comes with a business suit and an inaugural gown for starters.

The candidate's platform (put together by a national poll of American boys and girls who were questioned while browsing in Toys 'R Us stores) includes a proactive stand on saving the Earth; a strong focus on bringing peace and harmony to humankind by tackling gang warfare and drug-related crimes; a commitment to improving education; and a promise to work for racial harmony.

Surprise again. Barbie has come a long way, however. Back in 1959, when she made her debut, her career options were a mere three wimpy choices: nurse, ballerina or stewardess.

Is there a Grecian feather formula?

Camille Paradzinski of Grosse Pointe City likes wild birds and invites them to feel free to visit her garden.

She provides several bird houses, a bird feeder filled with yummy hors d'oeuvres, even a bird bath. She sees lots of brown sparrows, she said, and a couple of cardinals. Recently, she's been keeping track of an intriguing pure white sparrow. A senior citizen perhaps?

Air bags and children

This reminder from the Michigan Department of State Police:

If you have a passenger-side air bag in your vehicle, do not use a rear-facing child restraint in the front seat. An air bag could strike and seriously injure a child from the sheer force of its deployment.

A forward-facing child restraint is OK — if the child's age and weight meet the manufacturer's requirements and the seat of the vehicle is moved all the way back to its farthest position.

Safety belts used in conjunction with air bags — this is the best way to protect yourself according to the state police memo. Even with air bags, it's still important to buckle up.

Hospital renovation to affect parking

Two renovation projects at St. John Hospital and Medical Center will affect the emergency center entrance, exit doors and west parking deck.

Non-emergency center patients, visitors and employees who use the emergency center doors will be asked to use the James T. Farley Concentrated Care Building main entrance, facing Moross Road, from 5 a.m. to 9 p.m.

Emergency patients should enter the emergency area as always.

The west parking deck, across from the emergency center entrance, will be closed for repairs for about two months.

Parking will be rerouted to designated spaces in the north parking lot or to the east parking deck.

Patients, visitors and employees are encouraged to use shuttle buses to get from the north parking lot to major points on the hospital campus. Buses run from 11:30 a.m. to 9 p.m., seven days a week (except holidays) from various points in the north parking lot to the north entrance, Professional Building One, Discharge Lobby, and the James T. Farley Concentrated Care Building, facing Moross.

Principles are fine — until they're tested

So the Park is going to declare itself a non-floodplain, just as the Netherlands did. Apparently this will save residents hundreds of dollars annually in mandatory flood insurance.

That's probably ail to the good. Given the fact that the marvels of modern engineering have already come this far in rendering a former marshy verge high and dry and burying the creeks that once laced the area, a few more berms and seawalls won't hurt.

Nancy Parmenter

You might say the damage is done. Calling it "damage" may sound crazy. But Walker Percy, a southern gentleman from the Mississippi Delta, wrote about river engineering a generation or two ago in "Lanterns on the Levee," a lovely book about growing up in the slow-paced South.

Percy didn't have much good to say about the levees along the river. Never mind that they were touted as saviors of the agricultural way of life. The ultimate in flood insurance. Oh, no.

For one thing, with levees along the banks, you can't gaze at the river. For another, once the floods do breach the walls, the water doesn't flow out again for weeks. Let's hope the Park doesn't experience that in the next 500-year flood.

Still, principles are easier to maintain in the abstract than in actual concrete flesh and blood. Inveighing against berms is one thing, but when your own house is threatened, the gut reaction is to do whatever it takes to save it.

I've had some of my own dearly held theories tested in real life and found them emotionally darn hard to hang on to. Examples:

The gypsy moth population explosion should be allowed to run its course without interference from people, which will only make matters worse.

I believe that. But omigod, once I went up North and saw the horrifying globs of worms on the oaks, the occasional road closed because the caterpillars had made the surface too slippery, experienced the frass (that's caterpillar doo-doo) dropping on my head — well, the principle got a lot harder to stand on.

Out in California, they're arguing about legalizing euthanasia. I believe in the principle that the individual should have the right to decide his or her own fate. But trying to imagine myself when it comes to actually carrying it out, I have only to remember my feelings on holding my pet cat while the vet gave her a lethal injection. Thinking of her body going limp and lifeless, I realize how humanly difficult it would be to make the decision.

Here's another: Medical cures should be done by the least invasive method possible. Skip the heroic measures. I believe that, too.

But when a member of your family has a cancerous tumor, it's hard to remember. All you think about is that Thing growing away inside somewhere. Get it out. Fast. Forever. Whatever it takes. Even when personal considerations make it difficult to stick to theoretical rules, you still have to give it your best shot. George Bush has been finding this out about Saddam Hussein.

Saddam seems to outwit Bush at every turn. The cat-and-mouse games he plays have even earned neat little rhyming names at the White House. Saddam's belief that the U.S. will bluster empty whenever he violates the rules is called "threat-and-forget." And his brinkmanship is "cheat-and-retreat."

That's pretty cute. But it doesn't make Bush's position any easier.

A new appreciation of the president's predicament has enveloped me lately, as I watch Bob play out the same roles with his time-honored adversary. The difference is that Bob has been utterly honest and forthright about his goals and single-minded in their pursuit. No false or misleading signals here.

It's the squirrel. He just won't stay off the birdfeeder, gobbling sunflower seeds until his little cheeks bulge.

Like Bush, Bob believed an understated warning was best to start with. So he knocked on the window and waved his fist threateningly.

The squirrel just watched. Postured, even.

Bob escalated, by charging out the door with a stick. Next, he tried a starter's pistol. Brandishing it above his head, he fired into the air.

Saddam-like, the squirrel was unimpressed. He recognizes threat-and-forget when he sees it. Like Bush, Bob began to realize that the only route to the Nazis' slaughter of six million people some five times over! Is it fair to ask how far does pro-choice want to go in wiping out unborn American citizens by the millions?

To me the passive treatment of this moral horror as nothing more than a political issue is the saddest, most despair-provoking commentary I can imagine, as to what has happened to the social conscience, and moral fabric of the country we all love.

Let's look at the reality of Clinton's belief that he's going to harvest pro-choice votes by the truckload by dropping his pro-life stance — as he has — and opting for pro-death — as he has.

Surveys show 86 percent of Americans are anti-abortion when such a practice is perceived as a means of birth control. Yet nearly half of abortions are birth-control abortions. More than 43 percent of abortions are on women who have had one, two — up to nine abortions!

Most persons sense a feeling of shame and guilt associated with abortion today. Major medical schools will not teach abortion technique. Most doctors of any eminence will not perform abortions. Even Planned Parenthood admits that nine out of 10 women who have safe, legal abortions suffer abortion-induced trauma.

This "shame factor" brings hope. Edmund Burke — philosopher, writer, patriot — said: "While shame keeps its watch, virtue is not wholly extinguished in the heart."

Birds of a feather

I suspect a hoax is afoot at the Olympics in the area of female gymnastics. My suspicions are that, with a handful of exceptions, these young woman are all related. Indeed they are almost clones of each other. They appear as a flock of frightened little birds, with piercing blue eyes and tight ponytails. At the beginning of each exercise an inner button is released and we see a quick flash of teeth which approximates a smile, but seems more a brief spasm of panic.

And then the program begins — leap, hop, jump, turn. Oops, you wobbled and you're out, finished. Keep your head high, veil those tears, you're the best at what you do. Nonetheless, you're out. Bye-bye to years of rigorous training, you dared to let a 4 inch beam best you. Shame on you! Your parents sent you to the best coaches and trainers, ripped you from your family womb at age 4 or 5, provided fine tutors and abdicated their own parenthood in the name of sacrifice for you. And you blew it.

No problem, you're 4-feet-7, 80 pounds and 16 years old — all sorts of options are open to you. Now that the pressures are off for a while, perhaps you will be permitted the freedom of choice, which will be especially difficult for you because of your immense discipline. It is my wish for you that you be able to sing and rap with your peers and hear them as they say so succinctly, "Get a life." We're pulling for you and applauding you all the way. The majority of us go through life never even approaching a 10. Who needs to measure one's worth by a point system or a hundredth of a second?

Immigration to replace old cards

Beginning in August, the Immigration and Naturalization Service (INS) will require permanent resident aliens in the United States who carry a green card issued before 1978 to obtain new cards by July 31, 1993.

The old cards, known officially as the I-151, Alien Registration Receipt Card, will expire on that date because the INS is replacing them with newer, more sophisticated cards (I-551s) that may be read by machine, contain more identifying information, and are more resistant to counterfeiting.

The new card will contain the photograph, fingerprint, and signature of the person to whom it is issued. The cards are proof of permanent resident immigration status.

An application form for the new card may be obtained by calling 1-800-755-0777. When the form is completed and two photographs are obtained, they must be brought to the closest INS office.

The application fee is $70. Resident aliens who have been traveling abroad may also file a completed application at a U.S. port of entry upon their return.

Should students be held back?

Children who are held back and made to repeat a year in school often suffer emotionally and academically from the experience, according to Dr. William Irving, a psychologist who specializes in pediatrics and is on the medical staff of St. John Hospital and Medical Center, with an office in St. Clair Shores. "Children are retained more in the earlier grades because of the assumption that it's less harmful," he said. "However, when you interview even kindergarten and first graders, they are very aware that they were retained."

"If you take 100 children who are recommended for retention and 50 happen to go on because the parents decide against the retention recommendation, and you compare them about five or six years down the road, what you find is that kids who went on against the retention recommendation actually do better than kids who repeated a year."

Often a child's problems in school are oversimplified and described as "immaturity," Irving said, when in fact, a more comprehensive evaluation may reveal that the child has attention deficit problems or a hyperactivity disorder.

"Kids with short attention span, kids who have a hard time sitting still, whose work is characterized as being disorganized and sloppy, these kids look on the surface to be immature," he said. "But these kids in a one-to-one, many times, present as very mature."

"The biggest hazard, in my opinion, is the fact that the wrong question is even being asked. Instead of asking the question, 'ready or not?' we should be asking the question, 'if a child doesn't seem to be ready, what are all the possible reasons that might bring that child to our attention in the first place?'"

He contends that children who are held back tend to gravitate toward the norm of their younger-aged peers, while their underlying problems are never dealt with. There are four questions that parents should ask when their child's teacher recommends retention, Irving said.

"It's incumbent upon those recommending retention to explicitly state what their criteria is that they're using for retention. Are they just retaining a child because he seems immature?"

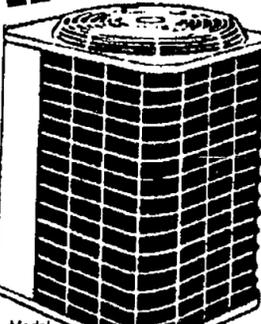

"Secondly, we want that person making that recommendation to be able to, with confidence and reference to documented research, demonstrate what's going to happen when the child is retained. What are going to be the benefits that accrue?"

"Thirdly, we also want the to consider the possible hazard that could accrue to the child that is, emotionally and perhaps even academically, as we know those children do not seem to make as many gains as kids that do go on."

"Lastly, we want them to also ask what are alternatives that could be tried? Are they simply going to recycle the child through the same material again? Is some sort of remedial assistance indicated, whether it be in or outside of special education?"

Information about a booklet concerning retention of children in school is available by calling 1-800-237-5646.

Pointer's at sea, but not in her studies

By Ronald J. Bernas
Staff Writer

Grosse Pointe Park resident Amy Verlinden wants to design boats when she graduates from college. That's why she chose the Maine Maritime Academy in Castine, Maine.

The school is one of five maritime academies in the country and in five years Verlinden will earn a degree in marine systems engineering and receive her license to go to sea.

Most likely, she will also have a job, because placement of graduates from the academy is nearly 100 percent.

As part of the school's curriculum Verlinden must participate in three, two-month "cruises." That may sound nice, but there's no resemblance to "The Love Boat." The 533-foot training vessel on which Verlinden spent part of May, all of June and part of July was a floating school complete with classrooms, drills and a regimented lifestyle worthy of a military academy.

The vessel at one time was a passenger ship that was used by the government to take troops to the Far East during the Korean War. It is still owned by the government but is on loan to the school so it can be used to give students first-hand seagoing experience.

"In order to get your license you have to have lived a military lifestyle," Verlinden said. "We'd have drills — lifeboat drills every week — and we had watch duties and had to work in the engine room. And that was in addition to classes we took every day."

The 300 students on board — of which only 11 were women — also got a look at the world during their two months at sea. The ship, the T/V State of Maine, visited ports in England, Russia, Poland and Spain before returning home in early July.

In England Verlinden visited Stonehenge. In St. Petersburg, hosted by a Russian maritime academy, students saw the circus, ballet, symphony, the Hermitage, the czar's Summer Palace and spent an evening sailing in the Baltic Sea. In Poland, cathedral tours were the main attraction and in Spain the World's Fair and the Rock of Gibraltar topped the agenda.

"We saw a lot more than I expected we would," Verlinden said. "But we also did a lot of work."

Verlinden spent a lot of time in the engine room.

"It can get up to 100 degrees in there, but it's good experience," she said. "And all freshmen get hazed by the upper classmen. They ask us to go get a bucket of steam or some propeller wash. There is no such thing as propeller wash."

The engine room experience will come in handy later when Verlinden starts designing boats.

"I could have just gotten a degree in engineering anywhere, but because I want to design ships it seemed practical to get experience on ships," she said. Next year her classes — which are strictly regulated and leave little room for electives — include engine thermodynamics, applied hydraulics and diesel power I.

But it shouldn't be too difficult for Verlinden, who was an honors student at South and did well during her first year at the academy — even during the firefighting training that was part of the curriculum. She also found time to earn a letter on the school's varsity sailing team.

"That was kind of interesting because I'd never really sailed before," she said, explaining that she was raised on powerboats.

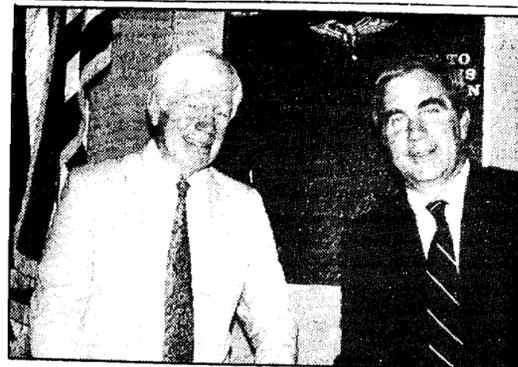

Next year Verlinden will spend two months on another ship, one not affiliated with the academy, and the following year she will spend two months on another academy-run cruise.

Then, if things go as planned, she'll be designing boats for others to travel on when they see the world.

Radio, saw taken

An AM/FM cassette stereo and a green Hitachi power saw and miter box were stolen from a garage in the 900 block of Lakeshore in Grosse Pointe Shores between 9:30 a.m. and 1:30 p.m. July 31.

The garage door was down, but was not locked during that time.

Auto experts explain their lingo in audiotape interviews

Arthur Flax, formerly on the staff of Automotive News, recently introduced the first of what he hopes will be a series of audiotapes for auto enthusiasts and consumers who'd like to know more about the product.

"Mechanical Masters, Modern Machinery" includes discussions between auto writer Flax and a half-dozen auto designers, customizers, racers and involved enthusiasts.

On the 45-minute tape, Flax interviews these experts on the lingo of auto technology and terms like overhead cam, torque, all-wheel drive and anti-lock braking systems.

"Originally I was going to explain these things myself, but then I decided to try what I call a 'magazine format,' one that includes conversations with people like Corvette Sting Ray designer Larry Shinoda and race car builder Bill Stroppe," Flax said in a telephone interview.

These "mechanical masters" express their opinions and describe their roles in derring-do adventures like hot-rodding on dry lake beds in California and driving in the "treacherous" Mexican road races of the early 1950s.

"While cars are gaining in speed, safety and efficiency, they are losing their souls," Flax said. "In the past when a driver set off in something like a Pontiac GTO, he might not have been as certain as we are today that he would make his destination without incident, but he did know if something went wrong he could fix it."

"When we pop the hoods of our modern cars, we haven't a clue," Flax said. "We're more irritated than intrigued."

Music with a beat, plus a hint of roaring engines, accompany Flax's musings and his informative interviews. Although the host's interest clearly is racing, performance and the development of technology (his voice can't conceal his enthusiasm), he eases into modern applications of lessons learned on tracks and dry lakes decades ago for everyday drivers.

For example, he asks suspension expert Dick Guldstrand what development in the last 20 years has had the greatest effect on handling improvements. "Tires," is the reply. "Wide, low-profile tires allow drivers to do more on the track and on public roads."

Flax interjects himself into the endless debate over all-wheel, front-wheel and rear-wheel drive. Which is best? Racers tend to prefer rear drive. "If the front wheels start slipping on wet pavement, you lose control, whereas you can throttle-steer with rear drive," one says. Another owned an Audi with four-wheel drive and thought it an excellent car.

But you'll have to make up your own mind. Auto Lingo 1992, Vol. 1: Mechanical Masters, Modern Machinery ($7.95) is available from Auto Lingo 1992, P.O. Box 557, Southfield, Mich. 48037. You can contact writer Flax at 356-7739.

Chrysler LH sedans bow soon

One of the automotive designers interviewed on the Auto Lingo tape mentions the handsome, practical design of Chrysler's new LH sedans, now being assembled in Canada and soon to arrive at dealerships.

The 1993 Chrysler Concorde bows this summer with a single model. Dodge Intrepid and Eagle Vision share the new LH platform.

Autos

By Jenny King

These all-new passenger cars will be sold as the Chrysler Concorde, Dodge Intrepid and Eagle Vision, and all will feature one of this year's important automotive buzzwords: cab-forward design. Chrysler says cab-forward first showed up on the Lamborghini Portofino 1988 concept vehicle, and Chrysler used the idea on a couple of its show cars the next two years.

Cab-forward moves the entire passenger cabin to the front, extending it over the front wheels. The rear wheels are pushed to the back of the vehicle platform. An "aggressively raked" windshield also extends farther forward (don't lose your sunglasses, or anything else, on the top of the extended instrument panel), its base resting somewhere over the front axle (on the other hand, here's an opportunity for someone to design a special fetch-it tool for lost sunglasses and sandwiches and market it through a place like Sharper Image).

"Traditionally, when a car's wheelbase gets longer, the body has less torsional rigidity," said a Chrysler spokesman. The company determined which of the most aerodynamic sedans of similar design had attained the greatest body strength — it was the Nissan Maxima, reports say — and Chrysler beat it by a wide margin.

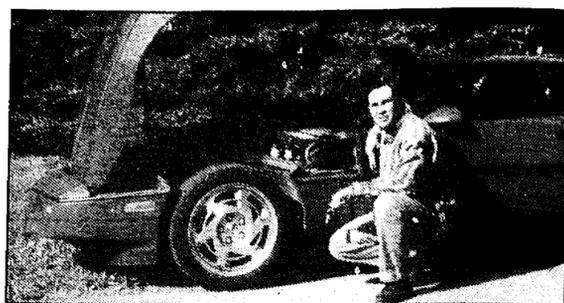

Pushing front and back wheels to the extremes, and thereby extending the wheelbase, should give the sedans a comfortable ride for all those folks in the larger cabin area. The wheelbase of the Dodge Intrepid is 113.0 inches, compared with 107.5 inches for Chevy's Lumina sedan, 106.0 inches for Ford Taurus and (here's a surprise) 107.1 inches for the Honda Accord.

Chrysler has put the LH's 3.3-liter V-6 base engine and transmission in lengthwise, or north-south, instead of side-to-side, giving the front wheels a chance for a tighter turning radius and improving engine torque. A 3.5-liter 24-valve 214-horsepower V-6 is available.

Prices for the new sedans range from $15,930 for the base Dodge Intrepid to $21,104 for the Eagle Vision TSi. The Chrysler Concorde will be available in only one model, at $18,341.

Air bag update

MGA Research Corp., headquartered in Akron, N.Y., recently sent along a newsletter detailing some of its activities in the area of air bag testing.

Arthur Flax, above, is the host of Auto Lingo 1992, an audiotape for car enthusiasts.

That's a good business to be in these days, because federal legislation requires all new cars to have driver-side air bags by Sept. 30, 1994, and bags on both sides up front by Sept. 1, 1996. Ford Motor Co. said it sold 2.2 million cars with bags by the end of 1991, and last year alone General Motors delivered one million vehicles with supplemental restraint systems.

MGA runs a Crash and Sied Test Center in Burlington, Wis., where the makers of air bag systems components come for product evaluation. Test data obtained in a number of hair-raising head-on, side and angle crashes helps set standards for bag actuation, shaping and positioning. The air bag market could reach $4 billion in North America alone by 1997, according to a spokesman from Allied Signal's Bendix Safety Restraints Group.

The dealer-owned centers are separate from the dealership facilities and are devoted exclusively to the service of Honda automobiles. The first satellite center opened in December 1991 in Madison, Wis., with a second bowing last month in Torrance, Calif.

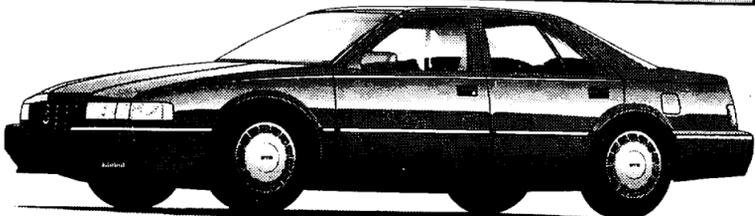

Honda and Acura had their best sales month of the year in June. Accord posted the fourth best-ever month in its history and increased its lead over Ford Taurus as the best-selling car in the United States for the first six months of the year. The company says some 87 percent of the Accords sold in June were made in America. Acura Division sales gained strength and its Vigor sports sedan had a record sales month in June.

How it worked in one city

By Ronald J. Bernas
Staff Writer

In 1988, Farmington Hills officials looked at their city, saw it was 85 percent developed and decided that a plan should be instituted to make sure that the city didn't get over-developed.

They contacted Ed Barlow, a consultant whose work with several companies and municipalities on planning now for tomorrow's needs has earned him a national reputation.

"We looked around and saw that we were at the end of one century and the beginning of a new century and we wanted to know what we could do now to keep our city strong in the year 2000," said Richard Lampi, community development coordinator for Farmington Hills. "We wanted to fine-tune what we have so we could continue in the right direction."

To generate enthusiasm Barlow hosted a kick-off community meeting outlining the proposed project and asking for volunteers. They needed 90 volunteers; 150 joined the effort.

While Farmington Hills planned the project for its own use, representatives from the bordering city of Farmington also participated.

"What we do affects them and vice versa," Lampi said.

The volunteers were divided into six task forces, each of which was to focus on a particular issue. The task forces targeted on beautification and environmental preservation, financial and economic vitality, human services, leisure and culture, public facilities and services, and public safety. Many of the task forces branched off into subcommittees.

Each task force came up with a vision of the future and several goals and objectives to implement now to ensure the vision becomes a reality in 2000.

"They came up with forty-some goals, more than 100 objectives and hundreds of strategies on how to achieve those goals," Lampi said. "One of the difficulties was that we told them not to consider money; just to put down all ideas."

Some of the ideas were simple and inexpensive to implement. One committee suggested adopting a city butterfly. Another suggested creating a warmer city image with use of "Welcome to Farmington Hills" signs at all city borders.

If some of the goals were too expensive — for example one task force suggested the city create a human services department — a cheaper way to achieve the same result was discussed.

And, as happens in all task force projects, the goals of one task force sometimes conflicted with the goals of another. The leisure task force wanted parks; the economic vitality task force wanted development.

The project — including printing of a $30,000 brochure — cost the city $100,000.

Was it worth it?

"We think it was," Lampi said. "What we got out of it, because of the makeup of the volunteers, was a real cross-section document. It addressed the concerns of the seniors and families and businesspeople."

A steering committee, which oversaw the study stage and still meets to discuss progress made on the plan, was appointed. It has input on capital improvement projects and makes recommendations to the Farmington Hills City Council as to whether a proposed development meets the goals of the futuring report.

Lampi said the city is working toward achieving the 530 items the committees recommended.

"We won't implement the whole plan by the year 2000, but if we keep plugging away at it, we'll be in the right direction," he said.

Future

is 100 percent behind the project.

"We Pointes have to cooperate among ourselves in something like this," he said.

Shores councilman John Monahan said the communities will realize a benefit even if nothing else but better inter-city communication results.

"I'm very positive," said Farms Mayor Berendt. "To have four cities say yes, that's terrific. This is a community project and the community will benefit from sharing ideas. And, this is a golden opportunity for residents to get involved in city government."

"This project will work," Danaher said, "because it is citizen-driven."

Staff writer Donna Walker contributed to this story.

VCR taken

Someone entered an upper flat in the 1400 block of Maryland in Grosse Pointe Park, apparently through an unlocked rear door, and stole a VCR while the resident was working outside.

The theft occurred between 11:30 a.m. and 11:50 a.m. July 22. An older model, gold-colored Lincoln or similar make car was parked in a nearby alley at the time and may have been involved in the theft, police said.

Bryant, DiNello join retreat in face of outraged boaters

By Jerome Aliotti
Special Writer

Under pressure from the Michigan United Conservation Clubs and Michigan boaters, the state Senate recently abandoned the idea of using $9.6 million from the Harbor Development Fund to help balance this year's state budget.

Originally, the Legislature passed a bill that would have authorized borrowing the money for several years, but the Senate approved a companion bill by a one-vote margin to return the money by the first of next month.

"The outcry by MUCC and the boaters and others in the state has derailed the effort to use the boaters' fees," said Richard Jameson, assistant executive director of MUCC. "The boaters have prevailed and the boater fund is left intact."

Gov. John Engler first attempted to use the money to balance the budget when he issued an executive order in May transferring the funds. But when MUCC challenged the legality of the move, the order was rescinded.

Consequently, the fund was buried, at the urging of the Engler administration, in the Department of Treasury budget within the $449 million general government appropriations bill HB 5520. The bill involved various programs, including summer jobs for kids.

Both houses of the Legislature passed the bill, thereby snatching the Harbor Development Fund from boaters. State Rep. William Bryant, R-Grosse Pointe Farms, and Sen. Gil DiNello, D-Clinton Township, voted for the measure.

"I only voted for it when it became clear that the passage of our government bill was a way of curing the problem of balancing the budget," said Bryant, whose district includes Harper Woods.

"I certainly oppose such borrowing," he said. "It shouldn't be done and the money should be paid back as fast as possible."

Caving in to angry pressure by boaters, the state Senate recently passed a companion bill that will return the money to the fund by Aug. 1, effectively reversing its decision to use the boaters' fees to balance the budget.

"Since we did get a lobby from many of my constituents — the boaters — I then took a closer look at it the second time and that's the reason I changed my mind," said DiNello, whose district includes St. Clair Shores.

The money for the harbor fund is collected from boater registration fees and is earmarked for harbor and marina development along the Great Lakes.

There are 830,000 registered boaters in Michigan, the largest number of any state, according to MUCC.

Joseph L. Posch, M.D.

Services were held Saturday, Aug. 1, at Our Lady Star of the Sea Catholic Church for Joseph L. Posch, M.D., 76, of Grosse Pointe Shores, who died at home July 30, 1992.

A world renowned hand surgeon, Dr. Posch was a graduate of St. Thomas College in St. Paul, Minn., and received his medical degree from the University of Minnesota. He completed his internship and general surgery residency at Receiving Hospital in Detroit.

World War II interrupted his residency and Dr. Posch served as an Army captain. He was the first doctor allowed into the Dachau concentration camp after it was liberated. For his meritorious service, he was awarded several medals, including two silver stars.

After the war, Dr. Posch opened his first practice in Detroit and joined the faculty of Wayne State University Medical School, where he established a fellowship for advanced training in surgery of the hand. He personally trained over 400 surgeons in this procedure through the fellowship.

In the 1960s, a group of hand surgeons from the program founded the Joseph L. Posch, M.D., Alumni Association, later known as the American Association for Surgery of the Hand, an international professional association.

World renowned as a hand surgeon at the forefront in diagnostic and surgical innovations, Dr. Posch taught all over the world, including Europe and Asia.

He was an adjunct professor on the teaching staff at WSU Medical School and was on staff at Bon Secours Hospital, St. John Hospital and the Detroit Medical Center.

Spending time with his family and relatives in Michigan and Minnesota was Dr. Posch's favorite pastime and, along with his faith, played the most important role in his life.

He is survived by wife, Gerri Jackson-Posch; daughter, Mary Gebeck; son, Joseph Jr.; stepson, Andrew Jackson; nine grandchildren; two sisters and a brother.

He was preceded in death by his first wife, Martha Jane.

Interment was in Resurrection Cemetery.

chambered nautilus shell takes on a dramatic underwater appearance. Nagler accomplished the feat by placing a piece of textured shower door glass between camera lens and subject.

Photography

By Monte Nagler

Shoot through glass

Want to give your pictures a fresh appearance, one that will tilt in interesting effects, of resembling an impressionistic painting? It's easy. It involves only a few dollars and a quick trip to your local hardware store or camera glass dealer.

The trick is to photograph through glass. Not ordinary clear glass, although I'll talk about some clear glass ideas later, but glass that is rippled, frosted, colored, etched or textured in its manufacture, such as shower door glass. All these and more are available in convenient, affordable sizes through any glass dealer.

Simply place the glass you've selected between your camera and your subject and capture the exciting results on film. A tripod will support your camera as you hold the glass upright with one hand and depress the cable release with the other. You can even devise a simple means of supporting the glass if you choose.

If the glass is rippled, frosted or has a strong texture, the subject has to be fairly close to the glass. If it is too far back, the subject will become indistinct or too distorted. Usually, subjects that work well through glass are those with simple shapes which are readily identifiable. A seashell, vase or arrangement of flowers will work well.

Regarding focusing, you have two choices. First, a small aperture will keep both the glass and subject in focus. Second, a large aperture will enable you to focus sharply on either the glass or the subject while blurring the other. Each method will produce quite different results. If your camera has depth-of-field preview, you'll be able to see the depth you want.

Beware of unwanted reflections. You can usually avoid them by making a slight adjustment in the angle of the glass. In some cases, a polarizing filter will work.

Exposure is easy. Just let your camera's through-the-lens meter do its thing. It automatically will take into account any colored or heavily textured glass.

You can create some interesting special effects on your own. Smear some soapy lather on a piece of clear glass for a truly dramatic effect. Or try shooting through a water-splattered window, compliments of either your garden hose or a rainy day.

The important thing is to keep using fresh ideas and imagination in your photography. Shooting through glass gives you an opportunity to do just that.

conservationist. He attended the seminary at Wittenburg University in Ohio and earned a master's degree in social work and theology from Case Western Reserve University in Cleveland.

Although he's an ordained Lutheran minister, he's one of the few who have never had a parish. But he feels both his work and his spare-time activities are a form of ministering.

Lutheran Social Services of Michigan is one of the largest social agencies in the state with a budget of $40 million and a staff of some 1,500 people who run the nearly 50 nursing homes, retirement centers, group homes, foster homes and community centers in Michigan.

He has worked as a group leader and social worker directly with the people for the same agency in Wisconsin and Michigan. As a vice president who deals with human resources he says he's a servant to the people who serve the people.

"And really, I see that as ministry," he said.

That's what he says about his work with the Boy Scouts. He was scoutmaster of Troop 96, which meets at Grosse Pointe Memorial Church, for 15 years.

"Scouting meant a lot to me as a kid and I said early on that I want to stay with it," he said. "It taught me self-sufficiency and promotes physical and emotional well-roundedness. The kids learn to do all this stuff outdoors and then they can easily transfer the skills indoors."

Those skills are taught at monthly camp-outs where the boys must not only learn how to get along with each other, but learn other skills necessary to living a full life.

One of the more important skills the kids learn on the outings is not only how to cook outdoors, but also how to create a menu and shop for the food on a budget.

The troop sometimes bestows the Silver Spoon Award on a patrol whose weekend menu was especially well-planned and prepared.

Steele, for his part, loves cooking outdoors and generally makes what he doesn't get on a day-to-day basis. Things like stews with dumplings and pot pies and — a special favorite — cobbler. He's even cooked a turkey in an "oven" fashioned out of tin foil and four fires.

His two sons — one a music teacher like his mother and the other a law student — also

Because of his ministering background he has served as a chaplain for the last three national scouting jamborees. He

Family Fiesta is Thursday

The city of Grosse Pointe will hold its annual Family Fiesta on Thursday, Aug. 13.

Family picnics are from 5:30 to 6:30 p.m. Games will be held from 6:30 to 8:30 p.m. The describes his function at the outings as that of a low-key minister.

Borrowing another's phrase, he calls it one-legged counseling — the belief that counseling is no good if lasts longer than you can stand on one leg.

His proudest moments, he says, come when he sees former scouts head troops of their own.

"They're passing on something that's important," he said. "That means more to me than anything else."

His duties at work recently started taking up too much of his time and he stepped down as scoutmaster and has become assistant scoutmaster. But that doesn't mean he'll have trouble finding things to do.

His woodworking hobby has evolved into carving duck decoys. He's working hard now so when he retires his skill will be at a level where he can show and sell them. Although he's a long way from retirement, he's living up to the Boy Scout motto: "Be prepared."

"I enjoy everything I do because I keep everything in balance," he said.

Blood drive

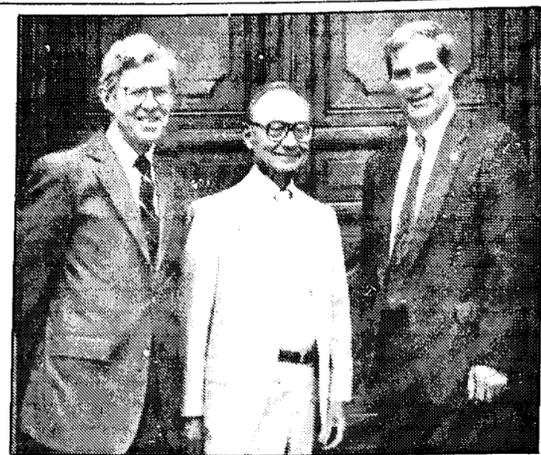

The Neighborhood Club will sponsor a blood drive on Saturday, Aug. 15, from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m.

Anyone 17 or over is eligible to donate blood. People 66 or over may be accepted as a donor after his or her health history is evaluated at the site.

The average adult's body contains from 10 to 12 pints of blood and the body quickly replaces any that is donated.

Call 885-4600 to pledge or stop in at the Neighborhood Club and sign up.

games will include a water balloon toss, pinatas, marshmallow prizes and more. There will be prizes for all ages. Call 343-5257 for reservations or information.

Doctor to conduct

Dr. L. Carl Sultzman, left, of Cottage Hospital, Felix Resnick, Grosse Pointe Symphony conductor, and Mark Weber, War Memorial president, discuss the doctor's appearance as a guest conductor at a concert on Monday, Aug. 10, at 8 p.m. The concert and fireworks are co-sponsored by Cottage Hospital. University Liggett School Headmaster Matthew H. Hanly stands with Lynne D. Myavec, new head of Middle School.

Upper School Head Arthur P. Burke stands with new Dean of Students Dana G. Boocock.

ULS names new middle, upper heads

University Liggett School has appointed new heads of its middle and upper schools, as well as named a dean of students and filled other positions on its faculty.

Lynne D. Myavec is the new head of middle school. A native of Missouri, Myavec holds a bachelor of arts degree in English, magna cum laude, from Fontbonne College in St. Louis. She has also compiled more than 30 hours of post-graduate credits in chemistry, biology and physics at St. Louis University and the University of Missouri.

Myavec comes from the Community School in St. Louis, where she served as assistant head of school for two years, and was also responsible for admissions and financial aid, curriculum coordination and a variety of other duties.

Before that, she worked as a prevention specialist for the National Council on Alcoholism and Drug Abuse.

From 1978 through 1988, Myavec was a member of the faculty and later, administration at the Tower School, in Marblehead, Mass. She taught English, science and history to grades one through eight, as well as algebra and science to grades eight and nine. Later, she served as science department chair and as upper school division head at Tower.

Arthur P. Burke is the new upper school head. Burke has a wealth of teaching, administrative and community service experience. He holds bachelor's degrees in science and education from Acadia University in Nova Scotia, Canada, and from the University of Montreal, as well as a master's degree in mathematics from Concordia University in Montreal.

Burke comes from Fort Worth Country Day School in Fort Worth, Texas, where he served in a variety of capacities since 1978, most recently as dean of students.

His responsibilities included the organization and supervision of student activities, college placement, counseling and discipline, and curriculum development. He also was mathematics department chairman, summer school director and soccer and golf coach at Fort Worth Country Day.

Before that, Burke was mathematics and science department chair and sports coach at Stanstead College (a day-boarding school for boys in grades 7-12) in Quebec. Earlier, Burke served as department chair in mathematics at Cardinal Newman High School in Montreal.

The new dean of students, Dana G. Boocock, possesses a strong background in academics and student activities. She comes from Milton Academy in Massachusetts, where she has served as history teacher, admissions associate, college counselor, academic adviser and choral director since 1986.

Before that, she taught history and French at Gilman School in Baltimore, Md., and has worked for two summers as a teacher, dormitory head and mentor at the summer program at Phillips Academy, Andover, Mass.

Boocock holds a bachelor's degree in U.S. history from Princeton University and is a 1992 candidate for a master's degree in liberal arts from Harvard University. She recently earned her second fellowship from the National Endowment for the Humanities and will study for six weeks in France this summer. Her first fellowship was in 1986 at Colorado College. In 1985, she was a Klingenstein Fellow.

There are six new faculty members — Walter K. Butzu, upper school English teacher; Jessica A. Chiapetta, upper school math/yearbook adviser; Joan Goodman, lower school science; Lisa K. McNally, physical education/coaching; James Pujdowski, upper school art; and Anne S. Yancey, middle school English.

Butzu, a 1987 graduate of ULS, returns to the school to teach after receiving a bachelor's degree in English literature from the University of Michigan. He also attended Wittenberg University and completed his student teaching at Ann Arbor Pioneer High School.

Chiapetta holds a bachelor of science, honors mathematics with a minor in secondary education from the University of Notre Dame. She completed her student teaching at Clay High School in South Bend, Indiana.

Goodman is a certified respiratory therapist who also holds a bachelor's degree in biological sciences from Wayne State University. She taught science previously at ULS, as well as at Grosse Pointe North High School.

McNally is a 1992 graduate of Wittenberg University, where she received a bachelor's degree in health and physical education.

Pujdowski holds bachelor's and master's degrees in fine arts from Wayne State University. He has worked as an art instructor at WSU, Henry Ford Community College, The Art Center and the Center for Creative Studies and has served as a guest critic and art juror at numerous art shows. He also has had his works shown in a variety of exhibitions around the state.

Yancey, a graduate of Limestone College in Gaffney, S.C., where she earned a bachelor's degree in sociology, has taught both gifted and special education students in a variety of schools in North Carolina.

Tall Grass in a Meadow

When the wind blows, the grass wiggles like cattails when a fish swims by. When the sun shines brightly, the blades turn golden. When stepped upon by wild animals, it crashes down to the earth like laying on a blanket of fresh-fallen leaves. Soon the blades will grow strong from the spring showers. The sun shines above and a rainbow smiles at it all.

The Day I Became Principal

One day I woke up and walked to school. When I got to school a teacher told me, "You're the principal. Mr. McMahon, the real principal, is sick."

When I got to the desk, a kid came in to see me. "Why are you so small?" asked the kid.

"Hmhmhmhm. My wife threw me into the washing machine and I shrank, that's why."

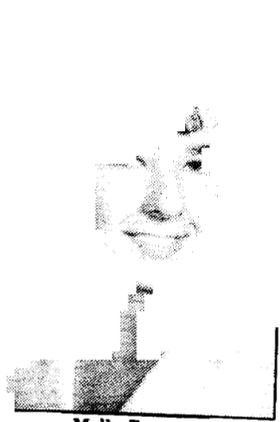

"How come you don't have your glasses on?"

"Hmhm. I forgot them."

"How come you don't have a beard then?"

"Hmhmhm. I shaved it off."

Ding. There goes the lunch bell. Great, I didn't get a chance to talk to him about rules.

Molly Tannian

Scott McGarvey

Tannian, McGarvey receive scholarships

Molly Colleen Tannian and Scott McGarvey, both of Grosse Pointe Park, are among 16 recent high school graduates awarded four-year college scholarships from the H.T. Ewald Foundation.

The presentation by Ted Ewald, president of the foundation, will be made at a luncheon at the Golden Lion restaurant Aug. 8.

Tannian, a graduate of Grosse Pointe South High School, worked as the student athletic trainer for the school's football and wrestling teams. She was the first female student to hold this position. The experience has led her to consider a career in sports medicine, which she will pursue at Eastern Michigan University in Ypsilanti in the fall.

Having lost her mother at the age of 7, she has been a role model for her younger sister. Tannian also has been active on the school yearbook and the rowing team.

McGarvey, also a graduate of Grosse Pointe South, plans to study journalism at the University of Chicago. He has been winning writing awards since the seventh grade, including awards for poetry, essays and sketches. He has also worked on the design and editorial staff of Grosse Pointe South's literary magazine, Imprints, and as a copywriter on the school's yearbook.

His community work includes working with the Boy Scouts (as patrol leader) and the Appalachian GROUP work camp (where he helped rehabilitate houses) to the Greater Detroit Interfaith Roundtable: Building Racial and Cultural Bridges and, more recently, as a tutor of inner-city children through the Tutoring Tree program.

The 16 students selected this year represent all areas of metropolitan Detroit and were chosen based on their financial need, overall scholastic record, personal character and their willingness to share their talents with the community. The amount of the scholarship varies with each recipient; students may attend the college or university of their choice.

The H.T. Ewald Foundation was begun in 1928 by Ted Ewald's father, who was also the founder of the Campbell-Ewald Advertising Company (now Lintas:Campbell-Ewald). The foundation, with headquarters in Grosse Pointe, is presently administered by the surviving members of the family. It has been awarding college scholarships since 1957 and is the oldest privately funded scholarship program in Detroit.

Enrollment open for South students

A special seven-day summer enrollment period has been established for students who are new to the Grosse Pointe South High School attendance area, according to Russell P. Luttinen, assistant principal - Student Services.

A counselor will be on duty at South on Wednesday, Aug. 19, Thursday, Aug. 20, and Friday, Aug. 21, for the purpose of assisting new students with the selection of their courses for the 1992-93 school year. Enrollment hours will be from 8 a.m. to noon and from 1 to 4 p.m. on each of these days.

A counselor will also be on duty at South Tuesday, Aug. 25, Wednesday, Aug. 26, Thursday, Aug. 27, and Friday, Aug. 28. Enrollment hours will be from 8 a.m. to noon and from 1 to 4 p.m. on each day except Friday, Aug. 28, when the hours will be from 8 to 10 a.m.

High school students who are new to the Grosse Pointe South High School attendance area should call Nancy Nordstrom, Records Room secretary, at 343-2151 to schedule an enrollment conference.

Students and/or parents should bring a transcript of grades from the school attended previously or the last report card, if it is not possible to get a transcript in time. Health records are also needed at the time of enrollment.

Co-op nursery accepting applicants

The Grosse Pointe Cooperative Nursery is accepting fall 1992 registration for 3- and 4-year olds.

Teacher Susan Schmitt and assistant Maureen Starrs are assisted by parents who rotate working days.

Children participate in large and small group activities and free-time play to promote positive social experiences. They are given opportunities to do craft projects and paint at easels, to use dress-up clothes, riding toys, indoor gym equipment, puppets, puzzles and blocks.

Facilities include a house-keeping area, workbench, water and sand tables. A number of field trips are scheduled throughout the year.

The nursery is located at Grosse Pointe United Methodist Church, 211 Moross in the Farms. For more information, call Susan Hughes at 884-4212.

Ad firm's 'White Papers' even educate rivals

By Donna Walker
Staff Writer

Why are "baby boomers" divisive?

Why do "baby busters" feel so hopeless?

And how does all this affect the marketplace?

J. Walter Thompson, one of the oldest and largest advertising companies in the world, offers answers to those questions in a series of leaflets it calls "White Papers."

Actually, the White Papers are printed on pastel-colored paper.

"That's just a name we use," said Blaise C. Newman, JWT's vice president of special projects.

"Generally, the term 'white papers' is applied to a strategic statement someone issues."

J. Walter Thompson's White Papers are available, free of charge, to anyone who asks, including schools, clients, and even competitors.

"We've been around for so long, I guess the temptation to see what we have on the various subjects is too great for our competitors, which gives us a chuckle sometimes," Newman said.

The 129-year-old company, which has 134 offices in 60 countries and 6,000 employees worldwide, offers generalized statements about the future based on its marketing research, but competitors have to figure out on their own how to apply those generalizations to specific clients.

"Traditionally, J. Walter Thompson has been known as the university of advertising," Newman said. "That's why we decided to publish this series, to help educate people."

The company published its first White Paper two years ago, and since then, they have been coming out about once every four months.

The first one, titled "People Buy Brands, Not Products," is a collection of excerpts from an address on brand image that was given by Peter A. Schweitzer of Grosse Pointe Farms to a firm that markets Ford vehicles in Australia.

Schweitzer, vice chairman of agency operations for JWT Worldwide, has been with the company since 1975 and is responsible for directing the growth and profitability of all JWT offices throughout the world. He is also in charge of publishing the White Papers.

"We had so many requests for copies of his speech in Australia that we decided to publish it. The idea for the White Papers sprang from there," Newman said.

In the first White Paper, Schweitzer talks about the difference between a product (something that can be made in a factory and easily duplicated by competitors) and a brand (a company's personality and reputation, which make its products unique).

"All too often when companies talk about success, they talk only about products; brands are hardly mentioned at all," he writes.

That isn't good, he said, because people tend to buy brands, not just products.

Baby busters, defined as people born after 1964, may want to cry after reading "The Paradox Papers: Youth in the 90s."

In that White Paper, JWT says that baby busters were born at the wrong time — right after the baby boomers (those born between World War II and 1964), who greatly outnumber them.

"Being part of a numerically small generation should not be a bad thing. Historically, this should mean a shortage of beginning workers, less competition for jobs, higher pay, in other words, a sellers' job market. But for the busters, history isn't working," the White Paper says.

That's because many baby boomers are stuck in entry level jobs for which they are overqualified, clogging the ranks of industry, according to JWT.

Twentysomething people think the way to get ahead is through higher education, but many can't afford it, and 66 percent of people who graduated from college in 1991 left campus without a full-time job, the paper says.

When baby busters do get a job, they have to start saving for the "three-way stretch" — their parent's retirement, their children's education, and their own retirement.

And save for retirement they should, because when baby busters retire in 2030, there will be only 1.9 people working for each person drawing Social Security, compared to 3.4 working persons in 1990.

"Finally, you (the baby buster) are looking forward to this so-called future with a dead-end job, scant hope for advancement until all the boomers die, and at best a 1 percent increase in income per year."

Because of this, and because the majority of baby busters grew up in one-parent homes, or homes where both parents were working, they are looking for security in the products they buy.

They'll stick to established brands like glue, but they'll switch to new brands if the products are better than and different from the older brands, and if they can claim the new products as belonging to their generation, according to JWT.

Many companies think of baby boomers as being one target group, but they should really think of them as being two groups, JWT says in another White Paper, "The Paradox Papers: Marketing in Modern Times."

Older boomers are just about done raising their children, fairly well-off financially, approaching retirement, and loyal to the brands they have chosen.

Younger boomers are just starting their families, struggling to make ends meet, and feel like they've been cheated out of the prosperity older boomers have enjoyed. They are apt to try new brands if the brands "make a compelling argument."

In memory

Grosse Pointe resident and attorney Paul Marco, second from left, recently donated $100,000 to Bon Secours of Michigan Healthcare System to create the Francys D. Marco nursing scholarship program, in memory of his recently deceased wife.
"Mr. Marco's generosity allows us to endow a nursing scholarship that will assist hundreds of nursing students now and in the future," said Vanu Bagchi, vice president of Fund Development and Community Services.
"As the need for nurses increases, this generous donation comes at a perfect time," said Henry DeVries Jr., chief executive officer of Bon Secours. "This is a wonderful way for Mr. Marco to memorialize his wife."
Marco said, "I do this as a tangible expression of loving memory of my wife, Francys, and in appreciation of the compassionate and professional nursing care that she received at Bon Secours."

Store's safe stolen, rifled

Thieves removed the safe from a store in the 20800 block of Mack in Grosse Pointe Woods between 10:30 p.m. Thursday, July 30, and 6:30 a.m. Friday, July 31.
The safe was found Friday morning in the southwest corner of Chene-Trombley Park in the Woods, after police got a tip from a resident.
The contents of the safe were strewn about and there was a handcart under the safe. A number of cash drawers were found on the other side of the park fence, behind a garage in the 2000 block of Hollywood.
A witness said he saw three or four young white males pushing and pulling a large object in the park early that morning, and thought they were hauling a trashcan.
One of the youths had a hammer, he said.
Large holes had been made in the roof and the ceiling, police said, indicating the thieves shimmied up the pipe and dropped into the store through the roof.

Camp Wingford is not arf bad, guests agree

By Margie Reins Smith
Feature Editor

Dogs and cats are referred to as "guests."

Fido's and Fluffy's vacations at Wingford Kennel in Avoca, near Port Huron, may have more in common with a child's trip to summer camp or a two-week visit to a farm than with a boarding facility for pets.

Guests usually arrive with duffle bags packed with well-loved blankets, beds or rugs, toys, leashes, favorite snacks, special food and medication.

Guests choose from indoor, outdoor or combination indoor-outdoor facilities. They get food just like home and lots of personalized affection and attention. They may choose twice-daily exercise times or an educational refresher course, and there's even the option of door-to-door transportation in a specially equipped van.

"We try to make the dogs feel like part of a family. This is very important," said Judith Biggs of Grosse Pointe Shores, who owns the kennel with her husband, Raymond. "The dogs are treated like children at camp. Some people refer to this as Camp Wingford."

Although most boarders are dogs, incoming campers may find cats, some pet birds, a duck or a few rabbits on the guest register.

Wingford Kennel is a boarding and training facility for family pets that promises most of the comforts of home — even emergency medical treatment if necessary. A local vet makes kennel calls.

For some guests, camp Wingford offers more amenities than they get at home: a romp through the apple orchard twice a day, for instance. Or a swim in the pond. A real person to play ball or Frisbee with. Some quiet time to sniff out a few wild rabbits and birds in the adjacent field.

And all guests get a complimentary shampoo, blow dry and manicure before they go home.

Wingford Kennel has been boarding and training dogs since 1932. The facility was built by Emory Ford of the Wyandotte Fords. Raymond and Judith Biggs bought the kennel and the surrounding property four years ago. They're celebrating its 60th year this year.

"It always had a wonderful reputation as a boarding facility," Judith Biggs said. "That's one of the reasons we bought it. And we've made even more improvements."

Manager Julie Nicholson lives on the grounds and often takes campers home with her for the evening. "We think one-on-one time spent with animals helps relieve their stress." She owns a black Labrador retriever named Goose and she is waiting for her turn as a volunteer to raise a puppy for Leader Dogs for the Blind.

Nicholson said Wingford boarded about 10,000 dogs last year. It has space for nearly 100 pets and Biggs said they plan to add about 50 more indoor-outdoor kennels next spring.

Besides boarding, the facility offers two obedience training programs: one for older dogs and a program for puppies that begins when they're about 12 weeks old.

"We teach the puppy to heel and sit. He spends two weeks here," Nicholson said. "Then he goes home and his owner practices with him for six weeks."

"He comes back for another two weeks here and learns to stay and come. Then home for six weeks. "Then he's back here for two weeks to learn to heel, sit, stay and come when commanded when he's off the leash. Then he goes home for good."

Wingford has two full-time dog trainers. "We also teach dogs not to bark incessantly and we teach them to get in and out of a car or kennel on command," Nicholson said. "We have private consultations for specific problems and we have a housebreaking program for puppies."

"We don't teach attack," she said, explaining that the philosophy at Wingford is that pets are companions, not weapons.

Amy Krause, assistant manager, is also a groomer. Some campers get haircuts while they're visiting. Krause said the kennel has some local grooming clients as well.

Guests must have proof of up-to-date inoculations against rabies and distemper as well as a vaccination for a highly contagious, though not usually fatal disease called canine cough.

Each pet's kennel has a prominently placed identification card with the guest's name, owner's name and vet's name; dates of arrival and departure; and special instructions for diet, medication and exercise. Next to many of the ID cards, postcards are stuck between the mesh of the cage. They're addressed to individual pets. Staff members read them to the campers. Some owners even call long distance, Biggs said.

"While I was on a Scandinavian cruise, I called my dog from on board the ship," she said.

For more information about Wingford Kennel, call 385-5335.

Julie Nicholson, left, manager of Wingford Kennel, trained her Labrador retriever, Goose, to retrieve a ball and place it on her tennis racquet. "That's so I don't have to touch the slimy ball," Nicholson said with a smile.

Nicholson gives some special attention to one of her favorite boarders, J.J., a Jack Nicholson terrier, center. Assistant manager Amy Krause, right, spends quality time with J.J. and Sissy.

Homeless will benefit from concert by DSO musicians

Habitat for Humanity is a non-profit organization dedicated to ending homelessness through the construction and renovation of houses and housing projects.

Georgian East Nursing Home, 21401 Mack in Grosse Pointe Woods, will be the setting — and Detroit Symphony Orchestra musicians will be the main attraction — at a fundraiser for Habitat at 7:30 p.m. Saturday, Aug. 22.

"Swing With DSO for Habitat" will feature a quintet of DSO brass musicians performing big band and swing music.

Tickets are $10 at the door. Bring a lawn chair or a blanket to sit on. For more information, call 778-0800.

Family event: The children's hospice benefit committee (part of Hospice of Southeastern Michigan) will hold a family-oriented benefit from 1 to 6 p.m. Sunday, Sept. 13, at Upland Hills Farm in Oxford.

The fundraiser will include a barbecue, hayrides, pony rides, a moonwalk, entertainment, and an auction of items such as a family get-away to Disney World, tickets to Bob-Lo Island and Cedar Point, a family membership in the Detroit Zoological Society, movie passes, autographed celebrity staff and more.

Tickets for adults are $35; for children, $20; patron family tickets, $200; and benefactor family tickets, $400. Prices in-

French Festival donation

The French Festival of Detroit Inc. recently gave $5,000 to the Detroit Historical Society to help complete its exhibit, "Furs to Factories: Detroit at Work: 1701-1901."

The French Festival is dedicated to raising funds to maintain the memory of the French founding of Detroit.

At the check presentation were, from left, Stephen Guittard, honorary French consul; Angie Rooks, president of the French Festival; Maud Lyon, director of the Detroit Historical Museum; Warren Wilkinson, Detroit history commissioner; and Dr. William Phenix, curator of military history at Fort Wayne.

Successful tour: The 19th annual garden tour, sponsored by the Grosse Pointe Garden Center in mid-July, raised more than $10,000. The money will be used for educational programs and beautification and conservation not only in the Grosse Pointe area but throughout Michigan, according to Eleanor Marsh, publicity chairman.

Souper success: Another successful fundraiser, the Souper Summer Celebration marked the 11th annual benefit for the Capuchin Community Center. Sponsored by the Edmund T. Ahee Jewelry Co., the event raised more than $170,000 and attracted between 4,000 and 5,000 people.

"Trust your partners and they will be true to you. Treat them greatly and they will repay you."

Emerson

Within the seven levels allowed a partnership to describe high card content and shape exemplary technique and judgment are mandatory if maximum bidding effectiveness is to be achieved. The consequences if you're not precise are most often consequential. Many of "the old school" of standard American devotees argue that complex systems used by the modern stalwarts have smothered the use of judgment. Not so, but recognize that abuses can destroy bidding systems and ultimately the partnership.

If you have total confidence in your partner's ability, a series of well founded bids tells much. Here are two examples of what I mean.

Sitting south you hold: A K 10 9 8 Q 10 9 8 7 6 4	The bidding <table border="0" style="width: 100%;"> <tr> <td>S</td> <td>W</td> <td>N</td> <td>E</td> </tr> <tr> <td>-</td> <td>-</td> <td>1D</td> <td>-</td> </tr> <tr> <td>1S</td> <td>-</td> <td>2H</td> <td>-</td> </tr> <tr> <td>3S</td> <td>-</td> <td>4S</td> <td>-</td> </tr> </table>	S	W	N	E	-	-	1D	-	1S	-	2H	-	3S	-	4S	-

After North's third call, you know this about partners hand. (1). At least 17+ H.C.P.; (2). Shape is 3451 or 3460; (3). None of your points are wasted. Slam should be investigated by asking for aces.

Sitting south you hold: A 9 7 A 4 A 8 6 Q J 10 9 5	The bidding <table border="0" style="width: 100%;"> <tr> <td>S</td> <td>W</td> <td>N</td> <td>E</td> </tr> <tr> <td>1NT</td> <td>-</td> <td>2D</td> <td>-</td> </tr> <tr> <td>2H</td> <td>-</td> <td>3D</td> <td>-</td> </tr> <tr> <td>3NT</td> <td>-</td> <td>4D</td> <td>-</td> </tr> </table>	S	W	N	E	1NT	-	2D	-	2H	-	3D	-	3NT	-	4D	-

After North's third call, you know this about partners hand. (1). He transferred you to hearts and bid diamonds twice. He must be at least 5-5 in the red suits with strong interest in slam as he passed up a no trump game; (2). Your three aces should guarantee twelve tricks. If you bid six diamonds, you may be missing a grandy. 4NT in this sequence would be ace asking.

Barbara Frank of Southfield is a very trusting partner whose wonderful personality is supplemented by many fine attributes. She's a lady in every way who is well trained and disciplined with an exceptional forty-some years of playing experience. Add to all of that she's a grand mama of a pretty famous Michigan bridge family. Both her husband and celebrated daughter Judy Rankin of New York became life masters in '69, just a few months behind Barbara. Today she holds the enviable total of some seventeen hundred master points which places her high on the Michigan list. Of course, daughter Judy has gone beyond her mother's fondest dreams nudging the ten thousand mark. In fact, Judy is classed as a world master and certainly is one of North America's foremost women players.

Here's a hand from one of our games that epitomizes the garlands I have laid at Barbara's feet.

Four no trump by North on his third turn to bid was unusual for the minors as it was obvious from the bidding that there was a strong possibility of such a fit. Barbara's six club call was aggressive, but motivated by confidence that North had something. Unfortunately not much. True she was lucky to find the diamond honor on side, but West might have bid again with that card in her arsenal. With clubs behaving declarer had no trouble getting to dummy twice which won for her two hearts, a heart ruff, five diamonds and five clubs.

Much can be said for the defense cashing their spade ace against a slam, but West had visions of defeating the contract and abstained from the play.

'Kid' is a grand family romp

By Marian Trainor
Special Writer

Ask any parent — surviving the Terrible Twos is an ordeal that tries the patience and frays the nerves, no matter how cute, lovable and precocious the child is.

The little cherub who was once a helpless, winsome, adorable infant becomes a menace to the household who spends the days breaking things and getting into places he or she shouldn't.

"Honey, I Blew Up the Kid," is the sequel to "Honey, I Shrank the Kids," a 1989 summer hit in which Wayne Szalinski (Rick Moranis), an eccentric inventor, shrunk his kids. In this one, Adam, the youngest child of Wayne and Diane (Marcia Strassman) is typical of the Terrible Twos. (Adam is alternately portrayed by identical twins Daniel and Joshua Shaliker.)

While the film begins with typical 2-year-old behavior and tantrums, viewers who remember the first film know that it is a prelude to what is to come. In "Honey, I Shrank the Kids," Wayne, inventor of contraptions equipped with laser beams that rearrange matter, accidentally shrunk his son and daughter and two neighbor friends to a quarter of an inch. With the help of the family dog, Quirk, who reappears in this sequel, they make their way back to the house across a lawn that to them was a perilous jungle.

Since then, several years have passed. The Szalinskis have moved to a Las Vegas suburb where Wayne Szalinski works for a laboratory which bought his idea of an electromagnetic ray that can enlarge objects.

When Wayne is left in charge of Adam and his older brother Nick while their mother drives their sister Amy (Amy O'Neill) to college, he takes them to the laboratory while he tries to work out some bugs in his invention.

Of course, Adam gets zapped and starts to grow.

By the time his mother arrives he is 7 feet tall, heading for 14 feet and trashing the house and terrorizing the neighbors. Finally a tent-like rope playpen is rigged up and for the time being he is restrained.

Leaving Nick in charge, his parents take off for the laboratory to retrieve the machine which will shrink the kid back to his original size. In the meantime, Adam gets loose and heads for the outdoors. In his travels he comes in contact with electromagnetic fields. He keeps growing until he reaches a height of 112 feet and the fun begins, all of it derived from distortions of perspective.

By this time Adam is a media item and is being pursued by his parents and police across the desert as he heads for the neon-lit streets of Las Vegas.

A sub plot involving Wayne's obnoxious boss, played by John O'Shea, who figured in "Honey, I Shrank the Kids," is back again in this sequel, sabotaging Wayne at every turn.

The twins are adorable with their curly mop of hair, twinkling eyes and mischievous grins.

Strassman plays a devoted mother and patient wife who keeps hoping her husband will run out of ideas that affect the family. Lloyd Bridges, with perfect timing and finesse, makes the most of a minor role. Moranis, with his head in the clouds, is sweet and immeasurably likable.

All in all, "Honey, I Blew Up the Kid" is a thoroughly entertaining family romp and, with the exception of "Pinocchio," the only one around.

What's up with G.P. Summer Stock

Grosse Pointe Summer Stock will perform the musical comedy "Do Black Patent Leather Shoes Really Reflect Up?" at the Grosse Pointe Performing Arts Center at 8 p.m. on Aug. 14, 15, 21 and 22. There is also a 2 p.m. matinee on Aug. 15.

The play is a funny look at growing up in a Catholic school environment. It was written by John R. Powers, based on his book of the same name, and has music and lyrics by James Quinn and Alaric Jans. The play debuted at the Birmingham Theatre in 1981 and moved to Broadway, but enjoyed greater success in regional theaters around the country.

Grosse Pointe Summer Stock is a unique theater company featuring the talent of college-age theater students. The company offers the students the opportunity to continue their growth as actors and technicians during the summer months, while providing the Detroit area with summer theatrical productions.

"I wanted this group to produce near-professional quality theater, so that these students could strengthen their skills and learn from one another," said Mary Martin, the group's founder.

The cast includes several young Grosse Pointe actors and actresses — Geoff Finger, Sarah Lenard, David DeAngelis, Liz Agby, Jay Boyer, Earl Bain, Jennifer Schultz, Heather King, Chris Pearce, Beth Dowdy, Sara Carlson, Kristin Butten, Harmony Beddow and Brittany Faremouth.

The show is produced and directed by Martin, with music direction by Ellen Bowen and choreography by Meaghan K. Dunham. Dan Vicary designed and built the set and Jeff Bruning is the assistant musical director and accompanist. Faremouth is the assistant director, and Robert Laurie is stage manager and assistant producer. Peter Ellison, Scott Wilcox and Blake Arnold are technicians and set builders.

Tickets are $10 for adults and $8 for students and seniors. Matinee seats are $6. Tickets may be purchased at Village Records and Tapes, 17116 Kercheval in Grosse Pointe, or by calling 885-8592.

'Buffy' isn't as bad as you think

By Ronald J. Bernas
Staff Writer

The worst thing about "Buffy the Vampire Slayer" is not the mediocre acting or the slow-moving plot, but the fact that sitting through it means you spent 90 minutes in a theater with a group of loud, rude teenyboppers who showed up just to watch teen dream Luke Perry.

That's not to say "Buffy" is — by any stretch of the imagination — a good movie. It's hilarious in fits, but peters out just when the momentum gets going.

It's what, in an earlier era, might be called the perfect drive-in movie: It's silly, the plot is ridiculously simple and it's uneven, so if it were playing at a drive-in you could talk when it's dull and pay attention when it's funny, which is often enough to make you not too sorry you spent the money. But see it at a matinee.

Buffy (Kristy Swanson) is the queen of Valley Girls — a character straight out of Fox TV's "Beverly Hills 90210" only more vacuous and shallow, if that's possible.

She's a busy modern girl. She has a relationship with the school's dreamiest basketball player, is a cheerleader and is on the school's dance committee charged with the task of coming up with a socially conscious dance theme that isn't depressing.

That's why she really doesn't have time for Merrick (Donald Sutherland), a strange man who appears in the oddest places and tells her she is the latest in a long line of women chosen to be a vampire slayer.

The idea of a one-dimensional Valley Girl on a mission to save the world from a century-old vampire God (played by Rutger Hauer) is ripe with comedic potential.

The script finds most of it, but the direction by Fran Rubel Kuzui and the acting by Swanson and the aforementioned Perry (as Buffy's love interest) leave a lot to be desired.

Like, oh say, timing. While no Carol Lombard (heck, she's not even Madonna), Swanson gets most of the humor out of her lines. Perry, on the other hand, is, well, not a comedian.

The best humor comes from Buffy's triumvirate of Valley friends whose shallowness is hilarious — and goes over the head of most of their contemporaries in the audience.

Paul Rubens, formerly Pee Wee Herman, turns in a spooky, funny cameo as a vampire who's having a bad hair reincarnation.

It's really an intermittently entertaining movie that will probably play better on videotape at home where you have quick access to a fast-forward button. But you really can't complain. Those who see a movie called "Buffy the Vampire Slayer" should know exactly what they're getting.

Blue Lake musicians give impressive concert

By John T. Miller
Special Writer

Having just completed a successful tour through Germany, Denmark, Belgium and The Netherlands over the past four weeks, the Blue Lake International Symphony Band presented a superb concert last Friday in the Parcels Middle School Auditorium.

Music

The audience gave these fine young musicians an enthusiastic response to each of the numbers on the program.

The conductor of the ensemble, numbering nearly 100 players, is John Thomson, from Wilmette, Ill. He demonstrated his directing expertise by guiding his young charges through a difficult and varied program. The group sounded thoroughly professional throughout the evening, demonstrating good ensemble and balance, with a lot of spirited playing.

Drawing on works from the tour repertoire, Thomson introduced each piece with brief, informative comments. He mentioned that countries in Europe do not promote symphony bands, consequently his group was often introduced as a "harmony orchestra." Apparently, though, each European audience revelled in the sound of the Blue Lake band and especially embraced the works of American composers.

The program included such symphonic band classics as Percy Grainger's "Lincolnshire Posy" and Gustav Holst's Suite No. 2, both expertly played. There were also stylish arrangements of Broadway show tunes, recent American overtures and tone poems and two famous marches — Henry Fillmore's "His Honor" and John Philip Sousa's "Stars and Stripes Forever" which has become America's national march and brought the audience to its feet in a rousing standing ovation.

The featured euphonium soloist was Natalie Mannix from Huntington Woods, who also serves as assistant counselor for the group. She gave an outstanding performance of Herbert Clarke's "Southern Cross."

Local arrangements for the concert were handled by Catherine Clark of Grosse Pointe Park. Clark's son Roger is a Pierce Middle School student and plays trombone in the Blue Lake International Symphony Band.

With so many negative news items about young people these days, it was most heartening to see and hear 100 young artists involved in such a noble and uplifting endeavor.

DSO's new CD is a work of art

By Alex Sucek
Special Writer

As each new Chandos CD is released by music director Neeme Jarvi and the Detroit Symphony Orchestra, the remarkable artistic stature of our orchestra is further enhanced. The latest, just out, features all French music by Albert Roussel, Darius Milhaud and Claude Debussy and the quality of this disc, both technically and artistically, is at least equal and possibly superior to any other available recordings of these works.

From a technical standpoint, the richness of the sound achieved by recording in Orchestra Hall is simply magnificent. Careful comparison with recordings made in other halls reveals the remarkable balance of clarity and resonance that our acoustical jewel affords. And Chandos engineers have captured it faithfully. This alone makes Jarvi's latest release a treasure to acquire and cherish.

But one must add to this the fact that the performance is unexcelled. One could hardly ask for more understanding, consistent and inspired interpretations of the four works.

Roussel's Symphony No. 4 has crisp and often surprising turns of melodic and harmonic phrase. It and his "Sinfonietta" Opus 52 are not considered major works. Nor are they programmed very often. Yet they have a high interest level as a result of Roussel's intriguing synthesis of 18th century form and 20th century polytonality. Happily, the DSO's performance makes them highly accessible to the interested listener.

Milhaud's "Suite Provencale," Op. 152b on the other hand, is a readily appealing, lighter work. It provides a refreshing interlude between Roussel's challenging creations.

Concluding the disc with Debussy's three symphonic sketches, titled "La Mer," might seem unnecessary. "La Mer" has been recorded by just about every major and minor orchestra. Yet it provides a satisfying balance to this program of music from the Impressionist era and like the rest, it is a superb performance with elegant orchestral sound and resonance.

The fact that the disc as a whole is also a tastefully balanced concert program is a bonus making this CD an exceptional prize in the mixed choices of the fast-growing CD catalog. Moreover, it could well become a collector's treasure. It certainly is a listener's treat today emphasizing once again the exceptional stature of our orchestra in this wonderful era of Jarvi's leadership.

Kiwifruit — it's brown, it's furry and its taste is dreamy

With the following recipes added to your repertoire, kiwifruit is likely to become your favorite summer fruit.

Is it the color that refreshes, or the flavor? This fuzzy brown fruit from New Zealand has an emerald green interior with jet black seeds and a flavor reminiscent of strawberries, bananas, pineapple and melon. You'll know it's ripe when it is soft to the touch like a peach or an avocado. Great for all kinds of summer treats, perhaps the easiest way to eat kiwifruit is to simply cut it in half and scoop with a spoon.

Kiwis, which used to be called Chinese gooseberries, originated in the Yangtze valley of China. (In China the fruit is called Yang Tao.) Early in the 20th century the fruit was transplanted to New Zealand where it was renamed the kiwi. They called this odd-looking, fuzzy brown fruit a kiwi because it resembled their funny-looking, fuzzy, brown kiwi bird. Growing conditions in New Zealand for the fruit proved to be ideal and soon the fruit became one of that country's greatest exports. In the 1960s the kiwifruit was introduced to southern California and has thrived there and become an important crop, now available year-round.

Dom DeLuise

Comedian Dom DeLuise whips up pasta at Arriva, laughs at Fox

Comedian Dom DeLuise, who's just as much at home in the kitchen as he is on stage, has scheduled a unique August "doubleheader" in the Detroit area.

The veteran Las Vegas showman, who's starred in stage, television and movies in a show business career spanning more than two decades, will bring his sellout nightclub act to Detroit's Fox Theater, on Friday, Aug. 21 at 8 p.m.

The previous evening, Thursday, Aug. 20, Chef DeLuise will indulge his admitted passion for food by hosting a unique dinner party for several hundred guests in a huge, festive tent adjacent to Warren's Arriva Italia Ristorante.

"It's DeLuise's first-ever visit to the Detroit area," said Arriva manager Sam Loericchio, "and he's all pumped up about mixing entertainment with his other fine talent — cooking.

"We're going to do up the outdoor party, decorate the tents and have entertainment by Dom and others. We'll even set up a place where Dom can prepare some of his special sauces for the guests. It's going to be a high-class evening, with black tie optional and premium seating."

At the Fox Theatre performance, DeLuise will be backed by Johnny Trudell's Orchestra and singer-impressionist Bob Anderson. Trudell, Anderson and vocalist Sandra Mandrella will entertain Thursday night at the Arriva party.

Both events have been sanctioned as part of the official Michigan Christopher Columbus Quincentenary Jubilee celebration.

Arriva Italia Ristorante is located at 6880 E. 12 Mile in Warren. Call 573-8100 for "Dinner with Dom" reservations. Fox concert tickets are available from the Fox Theatre box office, 567-6000, or Ticket Master outlets, 645-6666.

DIA seeks poster entries

Michigan artists are invited to submit entries for the poster competition of the 1993 Art and Flowers Festival, sponsored by the Founders Society of the Detroit Institute of Arts.

The design should convey the basic theme of art and flowers and lend itself well to a poster design.

Competition is open to all artists who reside, work or study in Michigan. Deadline for entries is Sept. 16. Entries should be submitted in the form of slides, and must be accompanied by an official entry form.

The winning work will be reproduced as a poster commemorating the festival, scheduled April 21-25, at the DIA. The winning artist will receive $1,000 from AAA Michigan.

The winner and 20 finalists will be included in an exhibition that will travel throughout Metropolitan Detroit from January through mid-March, when the exhibition will return to the DIA for display through April 25.

To request an entry form, which details contest rules, write the DIA development department, 5200 Woodward Avenue, Detroit, MI 48202, or call 833-7969.

"Art and Flowers: A Festival of Spring" was first held in 1985 as a special event to salute the DIA's centennial celebration. It was so popular that the festival has been held every two years since then.

Kool nights

Dennis White (right center) of Grosse Pointe and his band, the Charm Farm, will hold a Kool Rave from 9 p.m. to 2 a.m. Friday, Aug. 7, at the Industry Club in Pontiac. The event will feature DJs Mister Bill, Urban Kaos and Mark McConnell. The Charm Farm's recent Love in the City party drew hundreds of people and they expect as many this time. Tickets are $5 and you must be 18 to be admitted. For more information call 334-1999.

Environmental art on display

A new show of acrylic paintings, called "Messages from God" by Edward L. Ferguson, recently opened at Urban Park Gallery and will run through Tuesday, Sept. 8.

Ferguson's works represent his concern for social and environmental causes — many with spiritual overtones — and carry messages about the '90s.

His nine-piece "Habitat Series" deals with such themes as industrial pollution, urban violence, domestic abuse, world peace, homelessness, killing of harp seals and rainforest destruction. His style features a collection of highly graphic, intensely illustrative images which convey social commentary.

Urban Park is located at 508 Monroe, on the third floor of Greektown's Trappers Alley. Hours are Monday through Thursday from 10 a.m. to 9 p.m.; Friday and Saturday until 11 p.m.; and Sunday from noon to 7 p.m. Call 963-5445 for more information.

Center Galleries' new season is announced

The Center Galleries has announced its exhibition season for 1992-93 featuring a broad variety of art from across the country.

The exhibitions will range from a showing of recent drawings by eight artists from Detroit, Chicago, and New York to a survey of the portraits and still-lives of renowned Detroit painter Sarkis Sarkisian, culled from public and private collections in California, Virginia and Detroit.

Also scheduled are an exhibition of glass artists celebrating the 25th anniversary of the establishment of the glass program at the Center for Creative Studies-College of Art and Design, and an exhibition of 40 original works by nationally known illustrators organized by the New York Society of Illustrators.

Serving as a resource for the faculty, staff and students of the Center for Creative Studies, as well as for the Detroit/Michigan art community, the Center Galleries' 1992-93 exhibitions will introduce the work of several Chicago and New York artists who will exhibit in Detroit for the first time.

In addition, the talent and creativity of area artists like John Piet, Robert Sestok and Gilda Snowden will also be showcased at the Center Galleries in the upcoming season.

The galleries are located at Woodward Avenue and Kirby Street inside the Park Shelton building. Exhibitions are open to the public and admission is free.

Jazz is offered at the Whitney

The Whitney in Detroit offers a program called Jazz on 3 at 8 p.m. each Sunday evening on the third floor. The following groups are scheduled to perform: Aug. 9, Paul Vornhager; Aug. 16, Alma Smith & Will Austin; Aug. 23, Sasse; and Aug. 30, the Mike Graye Trio. For information, call 832-5700.

ASTOUNDING WEIGHT LOSS WITHOUT DIETING OR EXERCISE

A major development for weight control has finally happened. Clinical studies are completed in the U.S. and Europe and the news of this discovery is sweeping the country. This discovery could eliminate all diets enabling anyone to lose pounds and inches without dieting or exercise.

RESEARCHERS DISCOVER CALORIE BLOCKING FORMULA

While medical researchers were compiling studies on lowering cholesterol levels in humans, they "accidentally" discovered that everyone in the test group lost weight. Significant amounts of weight! One patient lost over 30 pounds according to the published report in the British Journal of Nutrition. Further research concluded that a certain ingredient in the formula they were testing was producing this effect. These findings are published in the American Journal of Clinical Nutrition and ACTA Medica Scandinavia.

"Before taking Kaitrim 2, I weighed 230 lbs. I lost 30 lbs. in 30 days even though I ate anything I wanted. I now weigh 170 lbs. Total weight lost is 60 lbs." Keith Daley, CA

EAT ALL YOU WANT & STILL LOSE WEIGHT

The clinical tests conducted at prestigious universities in Sweden and Finland on this formula led to astounding discoveries. This ingredient bonds with a portion of your food, blocking absorption of calories. This means that substantial amounts of calories pass through your digestive system without turning to fat and in turn your body burns up stored fat. Rapid weight loss is the result. The report further states, "Body weight was significantly reduced even though the patients were specifically asked not to alter their dietary habits." This means that you can continue to eat all of your favorite foods and as much as you want.

WARNING: Since Kaitrim 2 is so effective at removing fat and cellulite and has no side effects some people can lose weight too fast. Don't allow yourself to become too thin. If you start to lose weight too fast, simply skip a day or two of use. Before starting your weight loss program, check with your doctor to be sure you are in normal health.

PROVEN SAFE AND EFFECTIVE

This formula is not a drug and produces no side effects. It is entirely natural, in tablet form, taken before mealtime. It has been proven to induce weight loss without altering normal eating habits. Clinical tests and thousands of satisfied users have verified the safety of this formula for long term use.

A U.S. company has received worldwide exclusive rights to distribute this powerful all natural formula under the name Kaitrim 2.

FAST ACTING

How nice it will be to be able to eat anything and not have to count calories ever again. Just remember to take your Kaitrim 2. Those calories won't mean a thing as the fat cells are being shrunk. It's working for you 24 hours a day and you don't feel a thing except you see the difference in yourself. A slimmer you. A healthier you. Most people comment on how much better they feel! How great you'll feel about yourself in new and sensuous clothes. See the results the very first day! People have reported losing the first 10 pounds within a few days and up to 50 pounds the first month. Even if you want to lose 100 pounds or more Kaitrim 2 can be your answer.

The Bard takes root at Lakeside

By Ellen Probert
Garden columnist

Shakespeare's writings are full of references to flowers, plants, herbs and gardens and gardening in general, and it is evident that he had a great love for them.

He was not alone; gardening was popular almost to the point of obsession among many of his countrymen and women.

MARIGOLD

The purple violets and marigolds Shall, as a carpet, hand upon thy grave While summer-days do last.

Pericles, IV, 1.

This was the period when mazes, topiary gardens and knot gardens were status symbols among the well-to-do, and the cultivation of herb gardens was the delight of many women.

From time to time, renewed interest in Shakespearean gardens surfaces, and we are experiencing such a revival now. Perhaps the annual Shakespeare festival at Stratford, Ontario, has something to do with it.

At Lakeside Mall in Sterling Heights, wonderful things have been happening for the last three months in the creation of several authentic Shakespearean gardens as part of a Shakespearean Festival which will continue until mid-August and includes audience-participation theater, Elizabethan costume workshops, puppet shows and concerts featuring medieval and Renaissance instruments.

To provide a suitable background for the festival, Lakeside is planting two Shakespearean knot gardens with herbs and flowers arranged in intricate patterns. Also, other smaller, single-flower gardens of daisy, rose, marigold, lily and carnation, or, as the Elizabethans called them, gillyflowers, are planted throughout the center.

In all of the gardens, only flowers and plants mentioned in Shakespeare's writings are used. Incredibly, there are more than 500 of them, and each one is labeled with a quotation from a play or sonnet.

Lakeside's resident horticulturist, Tom Petito, recalls being very bored with classroom-required reading assignments of Shakespearean works years ago, but now admits to a growing fascination with the Bard.

"I find myself quoting Shakespeare's sonnets to people," he says. "It's fascinating to find out about all the flowers Shakespeare

the season Are our carnations, and streaked gillyvors*

*The Winter's Tale,

mentioned, how he used them and what they stood for. I think of Shakespeare in a completely different way now."

Also instrumental in creating the beautiful gardens was Karen MacDonald, marketing director for

ROSE

That which we call a rose, By any other name would smell as sweet.*

*Romeo and Juliet,
II, 2.*

Lakeside, who traveled to the Folger Shakespeare Library in Washington, D.C., and to the Stratford festival in Ontario to study their gardens.

The result is the only indoor authentic Shakespearean garden in the world.

Much of the planting in these fascinating gardens is symbolic, with meanings and allusions found in the plays and sonnets. Among these is the flower that fills Shakespeare's world more than any other, the rose — a symbol of love — and in particular the white ones standing for unity, symbol of the Tudor dynasty.

Other symbols growing in the gardens include mint (for virtue), white daisy (innocence), juniper (protection) and marigold (matchless beauty).

Lakeside Mall is located on Hall Road (M-59) and Schoenherr in Sterling Heights.

During the mid-1920s, there was a tremendous interest in Shakespearean gardens in the United States and many large estates had meticulously authentic examples. Often excerpts from the plays were performed in the gardens, or Elizabethan garden parties were held.

At one such event, it was planned to present a performance of "Romeo and Juliet" on an evening in mid-summer. A stage was built against a background of tall junipers and pines, and minimal lighting was installed. Footlights were hidden in the rock garden at the edge of the stage and reflected in the artificial brook.

Much consulting of the Farmer's Almanac and other such sources, and research conducted by an interested astronomer, and meticulous rehearsing and timing then ensued.

The triumphant moment came during the performance when Romeo declaimed the line, "Lady, by yonder moon I swear . . ." and with a sweeping gesture pointed upward just at the moment when the full moon rose into view behind the junipers and pines. It was a sensational effect which was talked about for years.

Many gardeners in Shakespeare's time were experts in topiary and in the planning of mazes and knot gardens. The designs of

LILY

*Like the lily,

mistress of the field,
and flourished...*

*King Henry VIII,

knots were usually very intricate and in some instances copied the patterns of the more geometric forms of lace, which were fashionable at the time. Sometimes they were patterned after the rosettes of "knottes," which were a fashion accessory, and were planned to be green in winter and bright with annuals in summer.

Add color — or seating — with modular planters

Mix, match or stack these easy-to-build containers to provide a multi-level display of plants for your deck or patio. Or, invent them to create sturdy padded benches for extra seating.

Exterior dimensions of all the planters are identical — 15 inches square. Heights will vary, depending on the size of the lumber you select. By stacking two or more together, the variety of arrangements you can achieve is almost limitless.

The containers shown in the diagram use 2x4s for the smallest version, 2x8s for the mid-size planter and 2x12s for the largest. You could also use 2x6s and 2x10s. The bases are made of 1x4 boards. All these sizes are readily available at any lumber retailer.

For economy, durability and good looks it is recommended you use either a naturally decay resistant species, such as cedar, or pressure-treated western softwood lumber. (Note: Always wash hands after handling treated wood and never burn scraps of treated wood in fireplaces or wood stoves.)

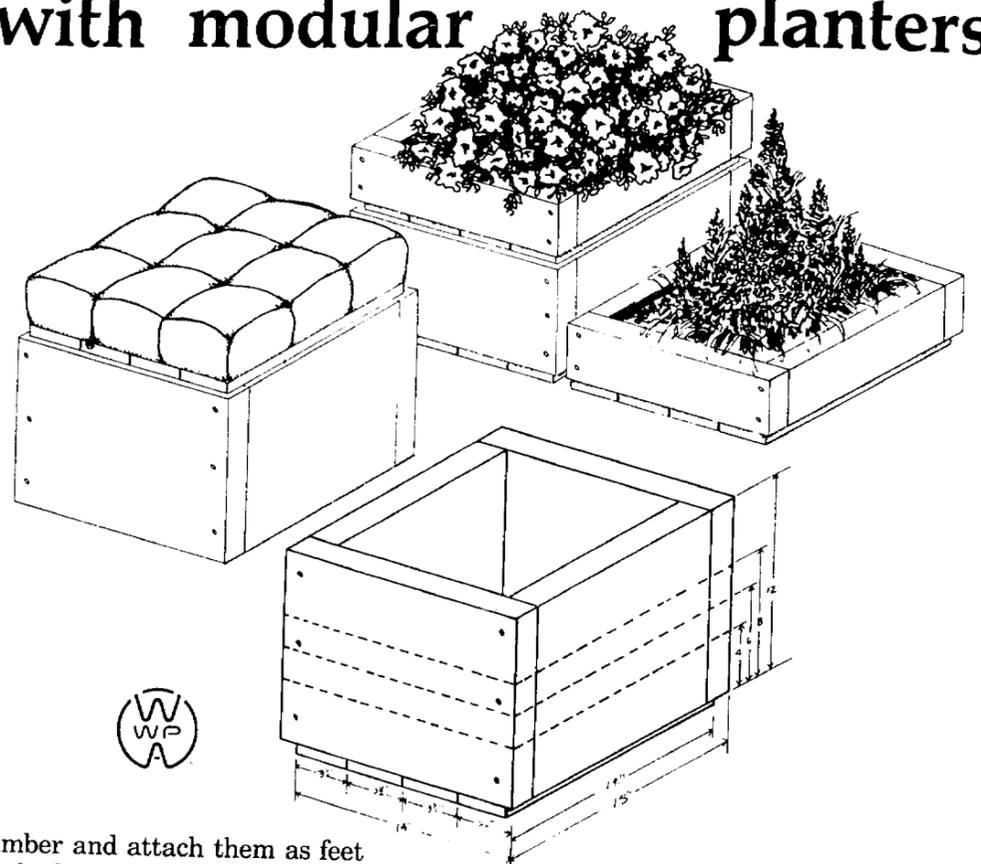

Even if you've never tackled a woodworking project, you should have no trouble completing these simple wood planters. Besides the lumber, all you need is a hammer, a saw, a power drill, a small tube of exterior use glue and about 30 stainless steel or hot-dipped galvanized 3-inch nails.

For each planter, you will need five lineal feet of two-inch dimension western softwood lumber (of any width) for the sides. You will also need a five-foot length of 1x4 for the base.

To make the sides, cut two lengths 15 inches long and two lengths 12 inches long. Place the boards on edge and arrange to form a 15-inch square, then fasten them at the corners with glue and nails, spaced two to three inches apart. To avoid the risk of splitting the wood, you may want to predrill the nail holes for the corner joints. Use a drill bit that is slightly smaller than the diameter of the nail.

For the base, cut the 1x4 into four, 14-inch lengths. Nail them side by side to the bottom of the square so they are inset a half inch from the outer edges on all four sides. Using a half-inch bit, drill six to eight holes in the base for drainage. To help protect the surface under your planters, cut two-inch squares from scrap pieces of lumber and attach them as feet to the bottom corners.

To make a variety of sizes, select several widths of two-inch lumber, from 2x4s and 2x6s, all the way up to 2x12s. If you need extra outdoor seating, simply turn one or more of the deeper containers upside down and add a colorful cushion.

Pressure treated western softwoods may be primed and painted or stained to match your deck or patio, or simply use a clear water repellent and leave the unfinished wood to weather naturally.

For a free list of other do-it-yourself projects you can build with wood, write to Western Wood Products Association, Dept. HI-692, Yeon Bldg., 522 SW Fifth Avenue, Portland, OR 97204-2122.

Home sales strong during first half of 1992

Sales of previously owned homes were notably higher in the first half of 1992 than during the same period for 1991, according to the National Association of Realtors.

The association recorded that existing-home sales totalled 1,703,000 units between January and June, which was 6.2 percent higher than the total of 1,604,000 units for the first six months of last year. The steady activity contradicts persistently gloomy economic news, and indicates that consumers are taking advantage of low mortgage interest rates, said NAR President Dorcas T. Helfant.

"The market is in good shape. Low rates have kept sales consistent," she said. "More and more buyers are deciding that now is the time to make a move."

The Federal Home Loan Mortgage Corp. reported that the national average commitment rate for 30-year, conventional, fixed-rate mortgages was 8.51 percent in June. During the first half of this year, rates started off at an average of 8.43 percent in January, then inched upward to peak at 8.94 percent in March, then steadily declined. Mortgage rates have generally remained at least one percentage point lower than during the same time last year.

"Anyone thinking of buying should get out and take a look at what's available. In markets across the nation, there is a wide selection of homes in a broad price range. People who want to buy, but think they can't, could be surprised at how much they can afford," Helfant said.

The seasonally adjusted annual sales rate for existing single-family homes was 3.36 million units in June, down 3.4 percent from June 1991, when the resale rate was 3.48 million units. Helfant said the year-to-year drop primarily was due to extremely heavy activity in June 1991, as consumers flooded the market in a surge of buying following the victory in the Persian Gulf war. Although the rate fell below that of a year ago, last month's resale rate is "healthy and sustainable," Helfant said.

NAR Chief Economist John A. Tuccillo said the June resale rate reflects a temporary lag in a market that is more robust than it was one year ago.

"We've been experiencing a stall within a rise," he said.

He noted that the June slowdown in sales occurred as new doubts surfaced about the nation's economy. The Federal Reserve Board's action to lower interest rates early this month should boost home sales activity in the months ahead, he said.

"We expect mortgage rates to keep sliding," Tuccillo said.

The national median existing single-family home price for June was $105,100, rising 2.9 percent from one year earlier, when the price was $102,100.

In each of the regions, the January-through-June sales total was higher than that for the same period in 1991.

During the first half of this year, resales totaled 482,000 in the Midwest, up 8.6 percent from the total for the first half of 1991. The resale rate in the Midwest was 860,000 units in June, unchanged from one year ago. The median existing-home price in the Midwest was $82,300, up 4.4 percent from June 1991.

Currently, NAR is predicting existing-home sales to total 3.48 million units this year, rising 8.1 percent from 1991, and reaching the highest level since 1988.

Antiques by Ralph & Terry Kovel

One of a kind? "It must be valuable. I've never seen another like it." This is a favorite saying of collectors. When you look at commercially manufactured advertising signs, toys or dishes, remember no manufacturer ever made just one of a salable item.

An ultra-expensive New York antique-toy shop went bankrupt late last year, and some of its rare toys were auctioned in England for thousands of dollars each. A tin carousel toy made about 1920 by Marklin was expected to sell well. It was in fine condition with bright paint and original transfers, and it was probably the first ever to be offered at a public sale. Most of the auction-goers had "never seen another like it." The carousel sold for $85,100.

After the sale, a woman from London went over to the buyer with pictures of her toy. It was a similar carousel in better condition. We heard that he immediately went to her house and purchased the second rare Marklin carousel. The English woman sold her toy at a good price because she waited until she knew exactly what it was worth. There is always an underbidder at an auction, so she knew that at least two people were willing to pay $85,000.

Q. How old is my grandfather's clock? It is marked "Brass clocks made and sold by Seth Thomas, Plymouth Hollow, Conn." It has two lead weights. One is for the time and the other for the chimes.

A. Seth Thomas originally used wooden movements in his clocks. Brass movements were first introduced in 1838. The company started using springs instead of weights in 1850. The clock was probably made in the years before those two dates.

Q. How can I tell if my figurine with the crossed blue lines on the bottom is really Meissen china?

A. You can't tell from the mark. More than 25 different factories listed in recent ceramic-mark books used the "crossed swords" mark. The blue crossed lines were well known, easy to draw and added a touch of glamour to the works of minor factories. The laws about trademarks were not as strict as they are today. The quality of the porcelain is the best indication of the maker.

Home Tips

Cool off — After paying really high utility bills for several years, we called our local electric company for some tips on cutting costs. Some of the things suggested were simple, and we would like to pass them along. Please be aware these tips apply to central air conditioning because that's what we have in our home.

- Turn the thermostat up. It shouldn't be set below 78 degrees.
- Move the thermostat up by 5 degrees at night.
- Close drapes on the sunny side of the house. It keeps the heat out.
- Clean or replace the air conditioner filter every few weeks.
- If you're leaving for more than 24 hours, turn the air conditioner off.

Doing these things really helped us with the electric bills, and this summer has been no exception.

Nail polish container — I made my very own travel-size nail-polish-remover container by using a small, plastic trial-size bottle.

I inserted a small piece of sponge and added just enough nail polish remover to be absorbed into the sponge.

This works very well. I dip a finger into the container to remove polish when I need a quick touch-up.

Jill H., Vista, Calif.

Wrap it up — When I use a stick of butter or margarine in a recipe, I save the outside wrapper to grease the pan.

There's always enough left to sufficiently grease an eight-inch brownie pan or loaf pan.

Ginny T., Blue Bell, Pa.

Musty odor — One of the bedrooms in my house had a terrible musty odor from a plumbing leak that got the walls and floor of the closet wet.

I tried everything to get rid of the smell, but nothing seemed to work until I used cat litter. I filled a pan with litter and set it on the floor in the closet. I kept the door closed and changed the litter every three weeks.

After a week, the odor was completely gone. The litter absorbed it all!

Deviled eggs — Here is a hint for the upcoming season of picnics, cook-outs and outdoor fun.

I serve deviled eggs in mini-muffin paper cups. They don't roll around on the plate and a special deviled egg plate is not needed.

Local trio treasures time in prep grid galaxy

By Chuck Klone
Sports Editor

Chris Harwick, Adam Korzeniewski and Mike Whelan have a better idea of what to expect when they take their football talents to the college fields this fall.

"Everyone who played in this game is going to get off to a better start in college," said Harwick, a tight end from Grosse Pointe South, who'll be heading for Boston College later this month.

The three Grosse Pointers saw action for the East squad last Saturday in the 12th annual Michigan High School Football Coaches Association All Star game at Michigan State University's Spartan Stadium.

Except for being on the losing end of a 20-0 decision, the three local players agreed the experience was one they'll treasure.

"The time went by so fast," said Korzeniewski, a linebacker from Grosse Pointe North, who'll attend Western Michigan. "We worked hard, but we also had a lot of fun."

Harwick agreed. "It feels like it should only be Tuesday," he said with a smile.

Although Whelan, a kicker from University Liggett School, didn't have the chance to boot a game-winning field goal, he'll be remembered by everyone who heard the talk he gave at the All Star banquet the night before the game.

"He did a tremendous job," said Dennis Zbozen of Romeo, a vice-president of the coaches association. "He has a future as a speaker."

Whelan accepted the praise modestly.

"I just explained what we did during the week we were here," he said. "I guess being a kicker I was able to take a little different perspective of practice."

Whelan will attend Michigan State in the fall so the All Star selection was especially meaningful to him.

"Everybody who played in this game will be a week ahead of the freshmen who didn't have a game like this," he said. "The conditioning alone will be a big help. It was especially good for me because I had the chance to kick on artificial turf for the first time. This is going to be my new home, so it was exciting to be out here in front of a good crowd."

The local players were impressed by the level of competition compared to what they experienced in high school games.

"The talent level is amazing," Korzeniewski said. "Everything happened so much faster than we were used to having it happen."

Harwick noted that there were no weak links on either team.

"In high school you have some good players and then there are always a few weaker spots," he said. "Here everybody's good. I'd say the level of competition is up tenfold from what it is in high school. That's why it will give us a better idea of what to expect from college."

The three local players all had key roles in the game.

Harwick began alternating at tight end with Pete Chryplewicz of Sterling Heights Stevenson, who was one of Notre Dame's prize recruits, but Chryplewicz suffered a slight shoulder separation early in the game and Harwick was in the rest of the way.

The 6-foot-4, 240-pound Harwick had three receptions for 14 yards, including an 11-yarder in which he dragged several defenders until he reached first-down territory at the West 48.

Harwick also made a fingertip catch for a four-yard gain in the second half and had another reception for no gain. On that one he also had to reach for the pass.

"I was open on the right flat all game," Harwick said. "I probably could have caught a few more balls but they didn't go to me right away and there was one pass where the quarterback hit one of my teammates in the back."

Korzeniewski alternated at linebacker and had one solo tackle, one first hit and one assist. He also called the defensive signals for the East.

"I felt like I was part of the game," he said. "The only downer is the scoreboard."

Whelan kicked off to open the game and put the ball inside the five-yard line. His only other appearance on the field was to attempt a 39-yard field goal with 26 seconds remaining in the first half.

The snap was high, the holder had to reach for the ball and Whelan's kick was blocked.

"They had good penetration and the high snap threw off my timing a little," Whelan said.

Four Blue Devils make All State tennis team

Four Grosse Pointe South tennis players were named to the Class A All State team selected by the Michigan High School Tennis Coaches Association.

Cullen McMahon and Emiliano Lorenzini were named to the team as singles players and Chad Yates and Shawn Coyle were selected as a doubles team.

McMahon, who will be a senior at South, was the Blue Devils' only state finalist in last spring's meet. He is one of only two players to earn All State honors from the No. 2 singles flight. He also made the All State squad as a freshman at first doubles.

Lorenzini, a June graduate, played first singles the last two seasons for South and was a state finalist or semifinalist all four years he played as a member of the Blue Devils' squad. He received All American honorable mention last year and has been nominated for the All American team again this season.

Yates, who graduated in June, and Coyle, who will be a senior, reached the semifinals of the state tournament in first doubles despite playing together for only about half the season.

"They are both great examples of the team spirit exemplified at South," said Tom Berschback, who completed his fifth season as coach of the Blue Devils. South has finished in the top five in the state in each of the last four years.

Ken Gutow of Grosse Pointe North was named regional coach of the year by the coaches association.

Red Barons' sign-up at Kerby school

Registration for new players and cheerleaders for the Grosse Pointe Red Barons football teams will be held Saturday, Aug. 15, from 9:30 a.m. until noon at Kerby school in Grosse Pointe Farms.

The school is located at Kerby and Beupre.

No late registrations will be accepted.

Player registration is open to residents of the Grosse Pointes and Harper Woods who were born between Aug. 1, 1978, and Dec. 1, 1983. Players must weigh between 65 and 150 pounds.

Youngsters wishing to play must have a valid birth certificate at the time of registration and must have completed a physical examination with a signed note from a physician by Monday, Aug. 17.

The fee is $30 per player. Helmet, pants, jersey and pads are furnished by the team.

The Red Barons are divided into three squads: varsity, junior varsity and freshmen. Age, weight and ability will determine which squad a child will play on. Each squad will include up to 40 players.

The Red Barons are a member of the Eastern Suburban Little Football League. They will play teams from St. Clair Shores, Sterling Heights and Eastpointe. Home games will be at Grosse Pointe North.

Eight games are scheduled for the 1992 season and will be played on Sunday afternoons in September and October.

Players must be available to begin practice Monday, Aug. 17, at 5 p.m. at Kerby field, which is behind Hardee's in the Mack and Moross area.

"We practice five days a week and all players must be committed to that kind of schedule," said Rick Moore, president of the Red Barons' board of directors and head coach of the varsity squad. "If a child is involved in hockey, soccer or other sports during our season we recommend against their playing for the Red Barons. It would just be too much."

For more information on the football teams, contact Moore at 881-7675 or Doug Luttenberger at 885-6485.

Registration for cheerleaders is $30 per participant and is open to residents of the Grosse Pointes and Harper Woods, who are between the ages of 6 and 13. Outfits are furnished by the team.

The cheerleaders will also be divided into varsity, junior varsity and freshman teams and each squad will participate in home and away games.

Siblings of football players will be given preference on the 45-member squad.

Cheerleading practice begins Monday, Aug. 17, at 5 p.m. at Kerby field.

"We practice for three weeks prior to the season's first game and we are especially looking for sisters — or brothers — of the football players," said Betsy Moore, the varsity cheerleading coach and member of the Red Barons' board of directors. "It makes for a real nice family involvement."

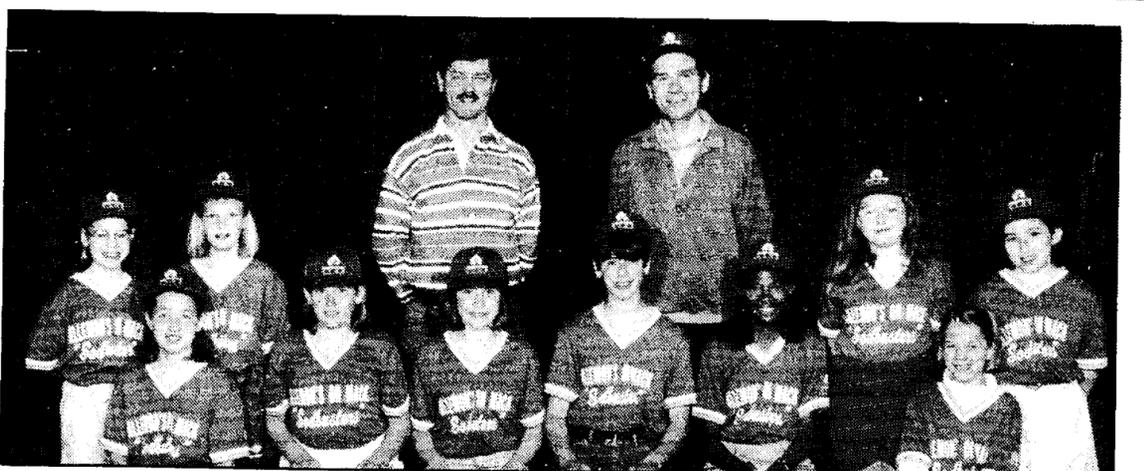

For more information on the cheerleading squad, contact Betsy Moore at 881-7675.

Expos are best

The Expos won both halves of the Grosse Pointe Woods-Shores Little League Class AAA season, posting a 9-1 record in the first half and a 7-3 mark in the second. Steven Drader led the Expos with a .565 batting average. Other top hitters were Jason Vesey (.459), Jack McHale (.442) and David Kraft (.442). Vesey had the most hits (34) and runs (31). Brian Bledsoe led the squad with an on-

Steady improvement throughout the season highlighted the Allemon's on Mack Sodbusters' championship year in the Neighborhood Club Midgie (4th and 5th grade) softball league. The Sodbusters also went undefeated in the playoffs. In front, from left, are Kelly Addison, Amanda Shelton, Emily Hacker, Dinah Zebot, Chris-

Tigers' first season is marked by success

The Grosse Pointe Tigers had a successful debut in the Macomb County Fastpitch League's 16-and-under division.

The Tigers won their last two regular season games and one playoff contest to finish with an overall 13-7-1 mark.

Grosse Pointe opened the playoff with a 13-8 victory over L'Anse Creuse II. The game featured an 11-run second inning by the Tigers.

Julie Kudzia had two singles, Laura Stuckey hit a double and Sarah Provenzano smashed a triple for Grosse Pointe. Beth Bertelsen also had a key hit, while infielders Ana Sarcheck, Tori Buckner and Provenzano played well defensively.

The Tigers dropped an extra-inning 2-1 decision to St. Lawrence in the second game of the playoffs.

Grosse Pointe snapped a scoreless tie in the top of the seventh, but St. Lawrence came back with two runs in the bottom of the inning for a 2-1 victory. Kristen Apple, Provenzano, Amanda Defever, Stuckey, Hope Durant, Kudzia, Bertelsen and Sarcheck had the Tigers' hits.

Bertelsen pitched a strong game and had excellent fielding support from Sarcheck, Buckner, Sue Khalifah, Ann Halpin and Kudzia.

Eastpointe eliminated the Tigers 12-7 in a see-saw battle. Grosse Pointe trailed 6-0 after two innings, but fought back to take a 7-6 lead. Eastpointe answered with three runs in the bottom of the third and added three more in the fifth.

The Tigers finished the regular season with a 12-3 and 8-5 doubleheader sweep of L'Anse Creuse II.

Grosse Pointe scored three times in the first inning and never trailed in the opener. A key defensive play was Sidney King's fine stab of a grounder to first and her throw to third baseman Sue Khalifah to complete the double play.

The baserunning of Sarah Booher, Apple, Stuckey, Khalifah, Sarcheck and K.C. Smith was a factor in the victory. Halpin played an outstanding game behind the plate and Bertelsen had a strong pitching performance.

The Tigers battled back from a 5-0 first-inning deficit in the second game. Good baserunning by Apple, Stuckey and Bertelsen helped Grosse Pointe score three runs in the bottom of the first. Kudzia had a strong game at bat and in the field. Booher's single drove in Helen Bommarito and Moe Ryan to put the Tigers ahead to stay.

Pointers tie for sixth place in Junior event

Two Grosse Pointers tied for sixth place in the 13-15 age group at the recent Pine Valley Junior Open golf tournament.

Rob Hostetter of Grosse

Pointe Farms shot a 38-40-78 and Peter Feldman of Grosse Pointe Park matched his total with 39s on the front and back nines.

Hostetter won the division in the first two tournaments sponsored by Macomb Junior Golf Classics.

Jared Zalewski of Ray Township won the division with a round of 72 on the par 70 layout.

The next tournament in the series will be the Cracklewood Open on Monday, Aug. 17.

Local golfers best in flights

Two Grosse Pointe Woods golfers turned in winning performances in last week's Women's Metropolitan Golf Association outing at Bruce Hills in Romeo.

Nancy Young shot a 52-48-100 to tie Ruth Massey of St. Clair Shores for low gross honors in Third Flight.

Elaine Jenks shot an 89, with a corrected score of 73, to post the low net score in First Flight.

Five local boats are at the head of their class

By Chuck Klonke
Sports Editor

A quick start and an alert crew was a winning combination for Grosse Pointers Paul Van Tol and Bruce Vande Vusse in the recent Port Huron to Mackinac race.

Van Tol and Vande Vusse's Eliminator was one of five boats owned by Grosse Pointers to win their classes in the recent race, sponsored by Bayview Yacht Club.

They took first place in the Performance Handicap Rating Factor (PHRF) G class, finishing in 50:30.54 with a corrected time of 35:37.21.

"We did well during the first part of the race, and hitting the Cove Island buoy well ahead of everyone else gave us a big advantage," said Van Tol, a member of the Grosse Pointe Sail Club. "We beat all but two boats to the buoy."

It wasn't quite as easy as it sounds, however, because blowing fog hampered visibility. Eliminator was relying on its computer instruments to guide it through the fog, but sometimes the human eye still holds the upper hand over technology.

"The buoy is sunk in deep water so there can be a 200-foot swing where it might be," Van Tol said. "If we had relied on the computer we would have missed it, but one of our crew saw the buoy and we had about 30 seconds to navigate further right. One other boat missed it and spent about an hour coming back."

Van Tol said the weather reports his crew received were also helpful.

"They were extremely accurate and we put our faith in the reports," he said. "They predicted a northwest shift in the wind on Monday morning so we just stayed along the north shore (of Lake Huron) and didn't have any problems."

This was the seventh Port Huron to Mackinac race for Van Tol and Vande Vusse and their first championship. They finished third in their class two years ago.

"It's always an interesting race," Van Tol said. "You learn something new every year and you realize just how much of a team sport it is. Every member of the crew plays an important part in your success."

Among the other class champions from Grosse Pointe was Warren Jones' The Great Whisper out of Bayview. Jones had an elapsed time of 49:05.30, corrected to 36:08.30 to earn the first-place trophy in PHRF E.

Windy, William Bresser's boat sailing under the colors of the Detroit Yacht Club, won PHRF F with an elapsed time of 51:18.39, corrected to 37:16.54.

Veteran skipper Charles Bayer, sailing in his 47th straight Mackinac race, took first place in PHRF K. His Old Bear had an elapsed time of 47:54.41 which was corrected to 46:53.29. The 64-year-old Bayer elected to sail the new shore-line course instead of the Cove Island course — the only one used since the 1971 race. Earlier Mackinac races were run along the shorter shoreline route.

Bayview's Sensation, owned by Grosse Pointers Thomas, Thomas and Chapman, won IMS A with a corrected time of 39:08.51 after finishing in 43:28.43.

Grosse Pointe South's girls tennis team will report for its first practice at 7 a.m., Monday, Aug. 10, on the courts at Elworthy Field.

All candidates for the varsity and junior varsity squads should attend the opening workout.

Athletes honored

The athletic commission at St. Clare of Montefalco church has selected Katie Berschback and Tim O'Loughlin of Grosse Pointe Park as recipients of its Falcon Award. The award is presented annually to an eighth grade boy and girl involved in athletics at St. Clare school. The coaches base their decision on sportsmanship, commitment to the team, desire to improve and contribute and attitude toward teammates, coaches and opponents. Berschback is the daughter of Don and Ann Berschback and O'Loughlin is the son of Charles and Mary Louise O'Loughlin. Katie and Tim are both honor students and plan to attend Grosse Pointe South in the fall.

NEARSIGHTED?

R.K. could pull your world into focus

Don't let nearsightedness (myopia) or astigmatism limit your ambitions or restrict your lifestyle.

If you are nearsighted, you know how difficult it is to see without glasses. Radial Keratotomy (r.k.) may be your answer to better vision... without glasses.

R.K. is a precise microsurgical procedure to correct nearsightedness and astigmatism. With state-of-the-art equipment, it is both proven & predictable.

IS R.K. FOR YOU?

Discover for yourself. Come & find out why many patients have chosen r.k. as their vision alternative.
