

Ex-Pointer on Andrew: 'Total assault on your senses'

By Ronald J. Bernas
Staff Writer

"If you gave humans bombs and guns and whatever else you had, they couldn't do as good a job of destruction as Hurricane Andrew did in less than an hour."

That's what Steve Falk, formerly of Grosse Pointe Park, said about the hurricane that destroyed his house, his city and indeed his whole county.

Homestead, Falk's hometown, was a little nowhere town that no one had ever heard of, he said. But Andrew changed all that.

The hurricane, which tore through southern Florida late last month, destroyed Homestead.

When it was over, 90 percent of the buildings were gone and Homestead Air Force base was left in ruins. Roads were covered with debris and were impassable. More than 17 years of landfill rubble was created. Insurance agents estimate the damage at more than $30 billion.

Within days news crews from every major television station and newspaper across the country converged on the hamlet, as did both presidential candidates.

"I had bought plywood and extra food and stuff, but I wasn't really prepared for this," Falk said. "I don't think anyone was prepared. I went through Hurricane Hugo. That was nothing."

Because Falk's house was directly behind the air force base, which is flat and has nothing to break the wind, Falk knew his house would take a strong hit, so he prepared his family. His 9-year-old son Danny was sent to Michigan to stay with his mother, Falk's ex-wife. His current wife and two daughters stayed at a friend's home a few miles inland.

Falk remained in his home. He convinced a friend who lived in a local trailer park to come stay with him. It was fortuitous. One trailer had been picked up by the wind and was wrapped around the only remaining tree in Falk's yard.

"Those trailers were like missiles," Falk said. "I don't think they're going to allow them in Florida anymore."

At about 2 a.m. Aug. 24, Andrew was in sight. For more than 24 hours all radio and television stations had been broadcasting continuous hurricane updates.

"At first it looked like a thunderstorm, but then you could see the clouds swirling and you could watch it move and come closer," he said.

At 3 a.m. the power went out and half an hour later the hurricane hit full force.

"Winds were clocked at 165 mph in Miami, but I think we must have had closer to 200 mph because the wind just whipped across the air base with nothing to block it," Falk said. "I used to have a row of huge evergreen trees along the back of the lot so I didn't have

Back — for the future

School taxes go up 7.9 percent; board rejects 9 percent proposal

By Shirley A. McShane
Staff Writer

It was news no one wanted to hear. The Grosse Pointe board of education approved a 7.9 percent tax increase Monday night to support its 1992-93 operating budget.

The action followed rejection of a 9 percent tax increase recommended by superintendent

Ed Shine and supported by board president Gloria Konsler, secretary Linda Schneider and trustee Carol Marr.

That motion failed, however, by a 4-3 vote and trustee Carl Anderson suggested the 7.9 percent hike.

"The board has acted responsibly," Anderson said after the lower increase passed 4-3 with treasurer Julie Bourke, vice president Timothy Howlett, trustee Frank Sladen and Anderson voting in favor. "There is a new economic reality; the recession has come home to Grosse Pointe."

Anderson's words echoed those of a handful of taxpayers who addressed the board prior to the vote.

Resident Audrey Taylor objected to the district's practice of looking at the previous year's budget and increasing all numbers when projecting the following year's budget.

"I do not agree that it is true in every instance that by paying more dollars you get better education," Taylor said.

She also was part of a group of residents who circulated a 400-signature petition opposing the tax increase. The petition implored the board to act with "prudence and fiscal responsibility."

"Only one person was aware that you were going to raise taxes," said Taylor about her neighbors' reactions when she was circulating the petition. "And that person was a city official. One woman was shocked and devastated at the thought of taxes going up. At some time this has got to stop."

But a number of taxpayers spoke in defense of the board's actions.

Lois Seyler admonished those who claimed they were unaware of the board's long-time and un concealed consideration of raising taxes. She said taxpayers often are quick to object to solutions to problems they didn't have the time to help solve.

"My question to people who say they didn't know about this is: Where were you when you could have had a hand in preventing this?" she asked.

Timothy Howlett, board vice president, took exception to the tax hike opponents' comments and said the matter was discussed at several board meetings, which are open to the public, and has been featured in three local newspapers.

Shine said that during the district's 11-month process of preparing the budget, the district suffered a $350,000 decrease in interest earnings and a $2.4 million loss when the state announced it would no longer pay the employer's share of FICA (Social Security) for the district.

These losses, coupled with the property tax reduction and education financing measures and proposals introduced by the Legislature this year, have made all school districts' economic futures uncertain, board members said.

The 7.9 percent increase will funnel $4 million into the district, most going toward covering the district's revenue losses and some going toward school improvement projects, Shine said.

The hike will mean a taxpayer whose home has a state equalized valuation of $75,000 will get an increase of $180 in his or her December tax bill, Shine said. That means last year's tax bill of $2,289 on the house cited above will jump to $2,469.

The increase translates to a total tax levy of 32.8422 mills including 31.0165 for the general fund; 1.3 for the library fund; and .5257 for the debt fund, according to Chris Fenton, assistant superintendent of business affairs.

The district's maximum voter-approved millage rate is 36.9 mills. The state-mandated Headlee Amendment forced the district to roll back its millage rate to 35.08 mills. So although the district is increasing its taxes, it is still below the maximum allowable rate.

Konsler, who supported the 9 percent increase, expressed concern about the health of the district's fund equity. If the district does not maintain the fund's balance, Konsler fears the schools' bond rating will suffer.

Although less money will be channeled to fund equity, the 7.9 percent increase is sufficient, Anderson said, because the 9 percent increase was based upon a worst-case scenario that did not materialize.

Tax rates have increased in the last 12 years at an average of 6 percent per year, Fenton said. During that period, only the 1982-83 and the 1984-85 school years failed to experience a tax increase.

Jim Pallas

By Ronald J. Bernas
Staff Writer

Jim Pallas' Grosse Pointe Park home is filled with the images of his active imagination.

They're odd and funny, whimsical and cute, primitive and high-tech and always interesting.

Jim Pallas

Take, for instance, the heart immediately inside the front door. It is filled with what artists describing the work would call "found objects."

There's a tape measure, vacuum cleaner attachments, a computer keyboard, antlers, a battery cleaner, a showerhead, heart-shaped sunglasses and more. A piece from an old electronic alarm clock flashes numbers. It also has a fan and it took Pallas a few minutes of flipping switches before he remembered which one turned it on.

The parts are welded, wired, bolted and glued together using age-old methods that should stand the test of time.

"I was trained as a traditional artist," Pallas said. "Traditional artists put the emphasis on the permanency of their materials. They have to stand up to time. I'm carrying that tradition forward. We artists are given that conceit that what we do matters 200 years from now."

Recycle leftover building supplies

For the second time this year, the Grosse Pointe Citizens for Recycling will host Building Materials Exchange Day at Salter Park on Saturday, Sept. 19.

The event is an opportunity to take unused building supplies that have been stored in basements and garages and pick up items you can use.

"It's another way to recycle," organizer Ed Haug said. "When we held the first exchange day this past spring, we really didn't know what to expect."

More than 500 residents brought items ranging from a garage door to a kitchen sink, he said.

Residents look over doors and windows at the first Building Materials Exchange Day held this past spring.

"People couldn't believe that they could take what they needed, for free," Haug added. "The atmosphere was one of genuine giving, helpfulness and gratitude."

Acceptable material includes lumber, insulation, gutters, hand tools, fencing, cinder blocks, tile, floor covering, plumbing supplies, gardening equipment, bricks, plasterboard, wallboard, doors, storm windows, shutters, screens, roofing, paint, and car and boat batteries.

Hazardous materials, power tools, furniture and appliances will not be accepted.

Bring your leftover, usable materials to the park, located on Harper, three blocks north of Moross, in Harper Woods between 9 and 10 a.m. Take whatever you can use between 10 a.m. and noon. This is a free drop off and free pick up — no money will change hands.

Ford Motorcraft will collect spent lead-acid car and boat batteries for proper recycling.

Planning tips for long-term care

As the population grows older, an increasing number of citizens face the prospect of entering a nursing home or requiring assistance in daily living — either in their own homes or in an adult day care facility.

A seminar on "Long-Term Care and Medicare Essentials" will explain the assistance available through Medicare and Medicaid and other governmental agencies on Tuesday, Sept. 22, from 10 a.m. to noon or Thursday, Sept. 24, from 7:30 to 9 p.m. at the War Memorial.

Instructors Bill Moll and Keith Green of Michigan Financial Group will discuss long-term care insurance and how to evaluate the various insurance policies on the market today.

Informative booklets on Social Security and Medicare, as well as financial and estate planning, will be available.

Tickets at $8 a person or $10 a couple include the seminar workbook.

For more information, call 881-7511.

Woods increases water rates

By Donna Walker
Staff Writer

The price of turning on the tap is going up in Grosse Pointe Woods.

On Monday, Sept. 14, the Woods city council voted unanimously to raise the rate charged for water by 3 percent per unit, which translates into 7 cents per unit.

One unit equals 100 cubic feet of water.

Woods residents are billed bi-monthly, and currently, the minimum charge is $22.72, based on 10 units used over a two month period, said acting city administrator Phillip H. Belcher.

The increase will raise the minimum bill to $23.42, he said.

The average Woods resident uses 15 units every two months and will see an increase of $1.05 in his billing, Belcher said.

"This is basically a pass-through from the Northeast Sewer District," said Mayor Robert E. Novitke.

The Woods is one of several communities that buys its sewage treatment service from the Northeast Sewer District, which in turn buys the service from the Detroit Department of Water and Sewerage.

The sewage treatment rate charged by the Northeast Sewer District is based on water consumption and storm flows in each community. The Woods rolls the fee charged for sewage service into residents' water bills.

Since the end of June, the Northeast Sewer District has raised its sanitary sewage rate twice.

Effective July 1, the district increased the rate by 4.2 cents per unit, and it recently announced that effective Jan. 1, the rate will go up another 5.1 cents, bringing the price it charges up to 57.1 cents per unit.

The Woods is using money from its emergency reserve fund to absorb all but 7 cents of the 9.3 cents-per-unit increase, Belcher said.

The reserve account consists of money set aside from past water and sewage bills to pay for emergencies, he said.

He said that residents can expect another increase in their water bills in January 1994. That will be a pass-through from the Milk River Inter-county Drain Board, to help pay for improvements to the Milk River pumping station and related sewers.

Those improvements are currently under way and will lessen the amount of sewage the pumping station sends into Lake St. Clair every year.

The amount of the rate increase due to the Milk River improvements will be decided upon later this year, Belcher said.

School board to hear library options

On the agenda

- The Grosse Pointe Woods City Council is expected to appoint a new city administrator at its next meeting, Monday, Sept. 21.

The council, sitting informally as the committee of the whole on Monday, discussed the candidates it has interviewed for the position and decided to recommend that the council appoint Phillip H. Belcher to the position pending contract negotiations with him.

Belcher has been serving as acting city administrator since May, when Chester Petersen stepped down. Petersen had retired as city administrator-clerk in December, but continued working for the city part time as interim city administrator.

- The Grosse Pointe Park City Council is expected to review at its meeting Sept. 21 a condominium development plan for Jefferson that has been submitted by local businessman Diamond Phillips, said Park city manager Dale Krajniak.

Joyce Kilmer would have cried

It was a little like when the doctor tries to assure you that he performs hundreds of gall bladder surgeries every year, and you respond, "But this is my ONLY gall bladder!"

Countless numbers of us have lost our large elm trees over the years, but this was OUR 125-year friend and guardian. Once upon a time we had four elms in our front yard and this was the largest and most majestic. We have two left and have been informed that No. 3 will leave us within the year.

We were on our way out of the driveway to begin our vacation when we saw the dreaded truck in front of our house. The executioner had arrived without notice. There was no tag or slash of paint on the tree. We knew it was sick, but had no idea that its demise was imminent and were shocked to realize that the men in front of our house were not there to administer aid to our patient.

On reflection, we realize it was fortunate we were leaving town. It would have been difficult to witness the painful process of slowly taking each branch and limb until only the stump remained. We also were spared listening to the death knell of the power saw that would roar with each attack for the next two days.

I had always said that when that tree went I would go too — harsh words, but strong enough to convey the depth of my feeling for our beloved friend. Of course we won't move, yet. However, when we returned from our trip the flowers in front of the house were dead and the lawn had suffered from lack of shade and was crying with thirst. The living room was flooded with a jarring unwelcome light and although we know we will adjust to this minor tragedy, it doesn't alter the fact that we miss our cool shelter and the graceful arms that protected us.

Our friend was a living thing with roots that spread across the lawn and heaved the concrete of the sidewalk. Its branches arched across the street, reaching out to touch its fellow elms, which met the same fate on the same day. Like members of a family they grew together, weathering storms, providing homes for winged creatures and squirrels and shielding families for over 100 years. It seems fitting to acknowledge their passing as well as the demise of the other living things of beauty that this community has attempted to salvage without success.

We have researched the possibility of replacing the trees; however, the news was discouraging. We learned that to plant a tree of substance, one would have to locate an old tree on land that was being cleared and the expenses incurred would run into thousands of dollars.

When we purchased our home some 18 years ago, the trees played a major role in our selection of neighborhoods. It is sad to realize that we will not see trees of this stature in our area within our lifetime. If we are seeking the positive side of our personal summer saga, at least we can be grateful that the trees were on city property and raking will be easier this fall. But, PLEASE don't replace the elms with spindly Charlie Brown trees like you did last time!

Plans for a boardwalk with scenic overlooks at Grosse Pointe Park's Patterson Park are nearing completion.

Jim Ellison, Park public service director, is finishing up scale drawings of the project, and contracts for the lumber and the construction of the boardwalk are expected to be up for bids by the end of this month, said Park city manager Dale Krajniak.

The project, including landscaping, will cost about $140,000 and is being funded entirely by the Grosse Pointe Park Foundation, a volunteer group that raises money for projects designed to enhance the quality of living in Grosse Pointe Park, he said.

So far, the group has banked about two-thirds of the money, and it is stepping up its efforts to raise the rest, a spokesman for the group said.

The wooden boardwalk will be about 800 feet long, and will follow the lakeshore from the park's westerly property line to an area several feet south of the gazebo, Ellison said.

The boardwalk will be 12 feet wide, about a foot off the ground, and there will be a 3-foot-high wooden railing on both sides of the boardwalk.

The distance from the boardwalk to the lake will vary; at some points, it will be about two feet, at other points, it will be 12 feet, Ellison said.

There will be three to five entrance ramps on the north side of the boardwalk, and there will be a patio on the lake side opposite each entrance, he said.

The wooden patios will jut out over the rocky, weed-filled area within the seawall that is currently fenced off, Ellison said.

Wildflowers will be planted in that area to improve the view, he said.

The patios, which will also have wooden rails, will be about a foot higher than the boardwalk, and ramps will make the patios accessible to wheelchair users, he said.

Also, there will be a bench on each patio so that people can sit and admire the view of the lake, Ellison said.

The Park city council will award the construction and lumber contracts after reviewing the recommendations of the foundation.

"We hope to start construction sometime in October," Krajniak said.

Moran-Beaupre gets stop signs

The Grosse Pointe Farms City Council approved placing a four-way stop sign at the corner of Moran and Beaupre.

The corner had stop signs on Beaupre, but at the request of local residents, the city installed a temporary four-way stop sign in May and conducted a traffic study through July 10.

According to the study, which was performed by Goodell-Grivas, the four-way stop reduced driver's mean speed by 2.6 mph.

Some residents complained about the four-way stop because it meant more noise from cars stopping and starting.

The new signs will be installed as soon as a contractor can be hired, probably within the month.

Neither Bush nor Clinton is a Truman

As a reporter in Washington from 1950 to 1954, I can testify that neither George Bush nor Bill Clinton is a second Harry Truman.

True, Republican Bush can claim some affinity to Democrat Truman because he, too, was faced with a hostile Congress which he is blaming for all of his troubles, just as Truman did when he campaigned against the GOP "do-nothing" Congress in 1948.

Equally true, Democrat Clinton chose Truman's hometown, Independence, Mo., for the Labor Day kickoff of his campaign as the champion of the "great American middle class" in the Truman tradition.

But Bush was reared in an atmosphere of wealth and privilege and while Clinton's family had its troubles, Clinton himself grew up in an economic and political climate that nurtured his educational and political hopes for the future.

In contrast, Truman was only a high school graduate but probably had read more American history and knew more about the previous presidencies than either Bush with his private school and Yale University background or Clinton with his Harvard and Oxford training.

More importantly, Truman truly was a man of the people. In fact, he was such a "common man" that many critics in his day complained that the United States really needed an uncommon man as president.

Truman had practical experience in farming, running a haberdashery (which failed) and serving as a county judge (really a county administrator) in Missouri before being elected a U.S. senator.

David McCullough, whose friendly Truman biography has become a best-seller, reports that during his famed 33-day whistle-stop campaign tour aboard a private railroad car in 1948, Truman often used commonsensical language and made observations that had his audiences cheering.

At one stop he was asked the age of a farmer's horse. Truman inspected the horse's mouth and said, "Six years." The answer was correct and delighted the farm audience.

In the farm belt, Truman had a special reason for attacking the GOP Congress. In rewriting the charter for the Commodity Credit Corp., which makes federal farm loans, Congress for economy reasons had prohibited the CCC from acquiring additional grain-storage bins.

But farmers stood to lose heavily in the event wheat and corn crops were too large for existing facilities to handle. When that possibility became a reality during Truman's tour, he charged Congress had "stuck a pitchfork in the farmer's back."

At press briefings on the federal budget, Truman himself presided and answered most of the questions, even when backed up by several aides and his secretary of the treasury, John Snyder. No president in recent times had attempted that feat before Truman — and none since as far as I know.

However, Truman was a man of a simpler time — his biographer McCullough identifies him as a 19th century man — but he was also the caretaker of FDR's New Deal. In fact, Truman himself claimed no upset in his 1948 victory but said it came from a continuation of the policies in effect for the previous 16 years.

Yet Truman could make momentous decisions, too. He authorized the dropping of the atom bombs on Hiroshima and Nagasaki to end World War II, approved establishment of the Marshall Plan that rescued Western Europe from postwar disaster, and ordered the U.S. resistance that preserved South Korea's independence after North Korea's invasion.

Yet it is obvious that the example he set in that 1948 campaign — and the kind of a man he proved to be as the nation's 33rd president — now make his mantle an appealing one for both presidential nominees to claim in 1992.

So what would Bush and Clinton have to do to improve their claims to be a second Truman?

For starters, Clinton would have to become more candid about the draft and other subjects while the president would have to pay more attention to the facts about his budget proposals — and Clinton's.

So while neither nominee has yet convinced me of the accuracy of his claim, both are paying a belated tribute to that stalwart son of the middle border, Harry S. Truman, by trying to use him as a role model 20 years after his death.

Protests limit school tax hike

By trimming a proposed 9 percent increase in 1992-93 school taxes to 7.9 percent, a divided school board Monday night showed that it had heard the protests of many Pointe homeowners about high property taxes.

It was a divided board that by a 3-4 vote first rejected Superintendent Edward J. Shine's proposed 9 percent increase and then by a 4-3 margin approved board member Carl D. Anderson's substitute to cut the tax hike to 7.9 percent.

In recommending the reduced increase, Anderson said that the "recession has come to Grosse Pointe" and added that since the state had not reduced its aid as much as the board had contemplated in an earlier "worst case scenario," it was appropriate to pass the savings on to the taxpayers.

He also emphasized that the revenue loss from the reduction in the tax increase would simply trim the funds set aside for restoration of the school equity fund, which helps protect the value of the district's bonds.

That also means that the schools' academic and other programs will remain intact for the current school year without changes except for those announced earlier.

The question now is whether the Pointe supporters of a "tax revolt," which exhibited itself last February in the strong opposition to the three-year millage renewal, will be satisfied with the small reduction in the tax increase or whether they will press for further spending and tax reductions.

The board obviously hopes that the cut-back in the increase will answer the public criticism. However, the renewal's victory by only a 309-vote margin, and the proposal's actual defeat in the Woods and the Shores, hint that the future course of school financing here may not be entirely smooth.

The Monday night action came after six Pointe residents and the superintendent had expressed their views, pro and con, about the proposed 9 percent increase.

Much of the opposition came from a Park resident who complained that the board had taken the easy way out by simply increasing last year's budget rather than pulling the future apart to find out where savings might be made.

Last February, after winning approval of the millage renewal, the board had said the outlook was for a tax increase of 5.6 percent to 9 percent when it set the tax rate in September. As a result of Monday's approval of a 7.9 percent rate, the board came down midway in the range.

However, interest from the board's investments as well as several forms of state aid have continued to decline, while teachers' salaries, now in the last year of a contract calling for an annual 7 percent hike, continue to rise.

In fact, more than half, or 4 percent of the 7.9 percent increase, will go simply to replace revenue from various sources that has been lost in the past year.

We think, however, that the board took a responsible position, especially in view of the growing support in the Pointes for property tax reform, by trimming at least slightly the heavy additional tax load that had been proposed.

Cement work

To the Editor:

We had an unfortunate experience this summer, and learned a few lessons.

We engaged a concrete contractor from the area to pave our driveway and garage. The cement work looks fine, but our error was in paying for the job before thoroughly checking the premises.

The contractor or his crew marred a new garage door and broke the automatic mechanism. His people used our neighbor's water rather than ours, and left the street a muddy mess of concrete dust.

The contractor himself placed 4 huge signs in our front yard — rather, two in ours, two in our neighbor's (who was not a customer!) That they also broke our garden hose was the least of our concerns.

After two weeks of unreturned phone calls, the contractor stopped here, admitted to responsibility for the garage door and muddy street and took with him the door parts which needed replacement. Another two weeks have passed, and he has not been heard from. He knows that our only recourse lies in Municipal Court.

We and our neighbor had the satisfaction of throwing those over-sized signs into the trash truck. We should have secured our concrete contractor from the Yellow Pages, the local "blue book" of businesses, or the Grosse Pointe News.

Issues

To the Editor:

In a letter to the Grosse Pointe News a few weeks ago the president of the Grosse Pointe Democrat Club, acting in his capacity as lead surrogate for my opponent's campaign for Wayne County commissioner, attempted to cast in a negative light my experience in the Office of Counsel to the President in the White House under President Reagan.

Isn't it time for us to address the real issues facing us as candidates for Wayne County commissioner rather than making unfounded and mean-spirited insinuations? Shouldn't we be talking about how we can cut taxes and waste in Wayne County government so that families can keep more of what they earn and save? The real issue in this campaign is the new direction and change of leadership we need in Wayne County, unconnected to the excesses and self-interest of our current Board of Commissioners.

Let's start addressing the issues and conducting this campaign in a professional and dignified manner appropriate for our community. We know it's possible — ask Jim Robson, my opponent in the Republican primary, who remarked in a letter to this newspaper following the primary that we ran "one of the cleanest races in the entire country."

Thanks

To the Editor:

The Grosse Pointe Habs Squirt A Travel Hockey Team wishes to thank the Grosse Pointe Community for the wonderful support this past weekend during our Bottle and Can Drive. Many of you gave returnable bottles and cans and then some of you gave cash donations. Your thoughtfulness and support are greatly appreciated.

We extend a thank you to Bob Stemer, from the Oxford Beverage and Deli on Mack Avenue. He not only agreed to help us again this year, but he provided all the collection containers. We collected almost 12,000 bottles.

Thank you for your wonderful support.

Bush finally offers revival plan

Better late than never, President Bush finally offered his economic revival plan to the Detroit Economic Club last week.

The plan was really a repackaging of earlier programs that the president has proposed to Congress or the public, but he added some new campaign promises during his discussion of his long-term economic philosophy.

The president drew a sharp distinction between his own belief in smaller and more efficient government and what could be described as Democratic nominee Bill Clinton's support for broader government action to help solve the nation's problems.

At the same time, however, the president last week himself continued to use his presidential authority to spread more federal pork-barrel largesse around the country. For example, his announcement in St. Louis of more sales of U.S. warplanes abroad will benefit the plane's manufacturer and its workers in that city.

In Detroit, he proposed some increases in federal spending for such purposes as job training and education to improve the nation's work force but he also suggested a federal income tax cut of perhaps as much as one percentage point across the board.

In addition, he recommended a cut in the tax on small business of as much as one-third and repeated his call for a reduction in the capital gains tax.

It was noted, however, that while he also called for spending cuts, he did not say specifically where and how he would make such cuts, reduce taxes and still start a meaningful reduction in the continually mounting federal deficit.

Bush's Detroit speech also has been criticized as being too general and too late in the campaign to be effective but in his speech here he at least began to sound more consistent themes and illustrate the differences between his economic approaches and those of his Democratic rival.

In the end, however, philosophic economic discussions do not answer very well questions about pocketbook and employment issues that bother so many Michiganders and other Americans this year.

The most interesting interview

We were talking about the business of journalism and someone asked me who was the most interesting person I ever interviewed. It was a simple question, but I couldn't come up with an answer.

I thought for a while and began to talk about the Norwegian captain who had come here to sail a wooden ship built by a man in Minnesota in the style of the Vikings. The man's dream had been to sail the ship to Scandinavia to prove it could be done, that the Vikings visited these shores long before Columbus.

The man died, however, before he finished building the vessel, and his family, to honor his memory, hired the captain, who planned to sail it to Oslo.

Detroit was one of the stops on this historic voyage and the captain and crew were to be overnight guests at a boat club near Harsens Island. No members of the media would be allowed to interview them until the following morning. Except me.

A member of the club who wanted to see the local paper get a break arranged for me to meet with the captain at the clubhouse.

It was a memorable interview. He was a natural storyteller, somewhat mellowed by a drink — I forget the name — popular in Norway. I arrived, nervous, because I hoped he wouldn't mind me intruding during his private time, and I left, more mellow than I have ever been after an interview.

The voyage was a success — he and his crew sailed to Oslo. He sent me a couple of photos taken during the trip, signed by him and members of the crew. I had one framed and it hangs in my office, a reminder of an extremely agreeable interview.

But I couldn't say he was the most interesting person I ever met. G. Mennen Williams came to mind. This man, who had been governor during my growing-up years, was a legend. I interviewed him twice, once in his home and the other time in his office, and I was struck by his kindness and his empathy for people.

Months afterward, I was pumping gas into my car at a local station. The attendant, unable to capture her next pump, was the governor filling up his car. That little vignette stands out in my mind.

Then I thought of Gordon Buehrig, who, like the governor, is no longer with us. Called the father of the Corvette, Buehrig also invented the T-top.

I was intimidated because I was interviewing another legend and I didn't know much about cars. Even though he had been through hundreds of interviews over the course of his career, he was patient and kind and spent time explaining things I should have known. He was a genuinely nice man.

And I thought of Judy Adams, program director at WDET-TV. Her energy and enthusiasm for music was bigger than life. I worried that I was able to capture her mere words.

My favorite was Dave Posavetz, photographer for the Macomb Daily. He has a love of life that is absolutely infectious. After talking with him, I knew there was hope for the human race. I think, through his camera, he captures his subjects' souls, absorbs the good stuff and then shares it with everyone he meets.

Then it came to me — the answer to the question about who was the most interesting person I ever interviewed. It's the person I'm talking to at the time. Some stand out more than others, but everyone has a story, everyone is interesting in his or her own way. And I always learn at least one thing I didn't know before. That's what I like.

Mail call

Hampton Road residents had a new letter carrier a few weeks ago.

Guin Mulky, superintendent and acting manager of the Grosse Pointe branch of the post office, 18640 Mack in Grosse Pointe Woods, delivered the mail personally.

Mulky made a deal. If a certain number of postal workers donated a certain amount of money for Jerry's Kids during Jerry Lewis' Labor Day Telethon, she would carry the mail for an hour on a route.

They did. And she did. "She was smiling. She enjoyed it," said Cora Davis, window and distribution clerk for the Grosse Pointe branch. "We're pleased and happy she did it."

The Grosse Pointe branch of the post office delivers mail to the Woods, the Farms, the Shores and Harper Woods and employs 125 letter carriers.

Wonder wedding

lives in Homestead, Fla., and recently worked at an unusual wedding.

Hurricane Andrew had just breezed through town, but the couple went ahead with their ceremony anyway. "With all this confusion, we needed something to bring us all up," the groom said.

The groomsmen's tuxedos didn't match because the supplier's business blew away. There was no telephone, no power, no water.

Their bridesmaids' dresses were perfect, however. The mother of the bride saved the gowns as everyone was running for shelter.

The interior of the church had little damage, according to Falk, except for one stained glass window which was blown out — the face of St. Andrew.

Lost dog

A Grosse Pointe Woods resident is worried about an apparently homeless sheltie-like dog who has been wandering in her neighborhood since March.

He's extremely timid, she said. He won't let anyone get near him.

Neighbors leave food and water out for him, as does the woman who delivers USA Today in the neighborhood.

The dog hangs around Barnes school and Our Lady Star of the Sea School and often shows up on Fairford, Birchtree and O'Mara Court in Grosse Pointe Woods.

He sleeps under a tree at night and often naps during the day near North Oxford and Morningside — in the street.

Many of the neighbors leave food out for him, but he's wary of people and keeps his distance.

If he doesn't get hit by a car, she said, he's got a long, tough, cold winter to get through.

She wants to know if anybody has lost a dog of this description.

Some rose to the occasion, some sank

After a month of hurricane-battering on the nightly news, it's still hard to take it all in.

Storm-tossed refugees refusing to leave the littered patch of ground they once called home. Selfish relief: It wasn't me or anyone I know. People pulling themselves together to rebuild. Children afraid to sleep at night lest the bad storm come back and hurt them.

Nancy Parmenter

No one can accuse Americans of lacking compassion. The public was outraged at the apparent foot-dragging of some relief agencies — and responded with more donations of food and clothing than could ever be used.

But it was shocking to see the excess donations bulldozed as a health hazard. How greatly that clothing must have been needed somewhere else in the world.

The state of Florida desperately needs to upgrade (or enforce) its building code. Anyone who has ever traveled Route 1 to the Keys knows the tickytacky houses and trailer courts. You didn't have to be a building inspector to see it.

Will the authorities landfill or burn the mountains of building debris and broken trees? South Florida already had landfill capacity problems. But that amount of burning would put as much ash in the atmosphere as Mount Pinatubo.

The federal disaster agency, FEMA, is everyone's worst bureaucratic nightmare — and the best argument at hand for limited government. How discouraging that thousands of educated Americans can't find jobs, while FEMA remains a dumping ground for officials so dimwitted that they require titles, deeds, mortgage papers, IRS records and checkbook stubs from people whose entire house has blown away. Anyone foresighted enough to keep papers in a lockbox at a bank has probably seen the bank blow away, too.

Some insurance companies finished a close second to FEMA, telling their customers they had to drive the car in before they could collect — cars that were upside down or squashed under a tree.

It is discouraging that so many people shown on television seemed to have little initiative. Where were the folks who pulled up their socks and began scavenging for supplies? Rigging plastic for shelter and to catch rainwater? They complained that they had no drinking water and that it rained too much; boiled rainwater is safe to drink, the last I heard.

To be fair, people were in shock. And the bureaucracy, public and private, militated against self-sufficiency. Nothing could be cleaned up until the insurance adjuster arrived or the appropriate paperwork was filed.

Further, Americans are so urbanized that the only pattern we know is to drive somewhere to buy supplies. But the result was traffic gridlock — and long lines at the gas station to buy gas to waste in another traffic jam.

One of the saddest aspects of the disaster is that the hardest-hit appear in large part to be those already hard-hit by life: the poor, the elderly, the marginally employed.

These are people who will need assistance over the long term — and one doubts the commitment of the government for that. Sending in the troops is a satisfying dramatic act with a concrete beginning and end. But long-term aid is something else altogether.

The media did a good job of keeping the endless coverage interesting. Let's hope they don't quit when the story gets economically complicated.

The aftermath of the 1989 hurricane and earthquake was also covered in depth, but does the general public really know anything about how California and South Carolina recovered economically? How they rebuilt an employment base? If they ever succeeded in rebuilding the areas (like the little coastal fishing village) that were completely destroyed?

These are not idle questions. Large portions of Detroit, for example, were never rebuilt after the riots.

To its discredit, however, the media also played the blame game to the utmost. Investigate, explain, illustrate, reveal, but let's skip the blaming. The finger-pointing between state and federal officials was not an edifying spectacle.

Couldn't help noticing that some of the disaster victims wanted to come to Michigan for jobs or welfare. Guess the word isn't out that times are tougher here than they used to be. Few jobs, assistance cuts, not enough shelters, cold weather coming.

It doesn't look like a good move to me.

Seeing the old folks wiped out in the storm raises again the old questions about the wisdom of retiring in a place distant from one's lifelong support network of friends and relatives. Choosing a retirement based only on weather and cost of living makes it difficult to cope when things go wrong.

Of course, there are some retirees without family. But many of them have children and friends living in the northern states, too far away to conveniently turn to in time of trouble.

But what kind of government over-reliance have we fallen into when that distant family demands that the feds take care of their parents instead of hustling down there to do it themselves? If your parents or mine had their roof blown off, we wouldn't sit in Michigan and wring our hands. We'd drive down and repair it or bring them home.

Some scientists speculate that the greenhouse effect (expected by many reputable scientists) could result in more severe hurricanes. Florida has a good storm preparation plan in spite of the way it looks now. Radio advisories in advance of hurricanes tell the population to cover their windows, gas up the car, fill the bathtub, buy groceries, or (in extreme cases) evacuate.

So people are ready. But if hurricanes become more frequent and more severe, it's already obvious that no preparation can ever be enough.

And the implications of that are staggering.

Refugees need friends

Refugees coming to America need the help of caring people.

"People coming to this country arrive with nothing but the clothes on their backs and the hope of a new life in their hearts," said Gregory Schaefer, employment coordinator, Refugee Services, for Lutheran Social Services of Michigan.

Schaefer said the needs are:

- a refugee mentor who helps in the first months of resettlement by being a friend, teacher and advocate;
- an education aide who enrolls refugees into the appropriate educational programs and provides tutoring when necessary;

- a job coach who helps prepare a newcomer for the first job in America;
- a donation aide who manages collection and distribution of in-kind items donated to Refugee Services;
- a truck driver who picks up furniture and household items donated to refugees.

Library

To the Editor:

If there ever was a situation where the old saying, "if it ain't broke don't fix it" applied, it is the study of the Library Governance Committee.

It seems to me that it shouldn't take a committee of 12 people a year to discover that there is an enormous variety in public library structures that have evolved in the state and nation.

More to the point is what works and what doesn't. A school district library may not be the correct governing body for public libraries in Kalamazoo, Saginaw or Kansas City, but a school district library such as Grosse Pointe has proven over the past 63 years that it makes a lot of sense.

The political, geographic, and demographic make-up of the Grosse Pointes and Harper Woods are such that affiliation of the public library with the Grosse Pointe Board of Education, the only political entity which serves each of the Pointes and one third of Harper Woods, seems the natural and proper thing to do. In 1929, recognizing the need for an effective public library, the board of education took over the governance of the public library from the Wayne County Library.

Under the board of education the public library has enjoyed considerable growth and success. The mission of the public library as stated in its mission statement is "... to serve people of all ages by actively providing easily accessible information, material, services and programs designed to meet the community's evolving educational, recreational, cultural and information needs."

Our public library is true to its assigned mission. If the library is lacking, it is in housing, not governance.

Would a district library or a library operationally separated from the board of education be more effective in meeting the needs of the public? I think not.

Should a duly elected board of education surrender its responsibility in whole or in part to an appointed library board? It is sometimes argued that the superintendent of schools and the board of education haven't the time to properly supervise the library. Nonsense. We don't have a large urban school district here.

The complexities of governing are not so great that the public library need suffer from inattention. Nor has the board of education failed to support, nurture and guide the public library over the years.

It seems to me that a change in governance of an institution which Superintendent Shine calls, "an extremely valuable community resource" should occur only when the majority of the community demands it or state law mandates it.

I know of no groundswell of support for making any basic changes in what is generally regarded as an outstanding public library.

Fraud

To the Editor:

There are persons who say abortion isn't killing a baby because it's not really a baby — it's just a growth — like a wart.

So why do abortionists fight like wildcats to prevent showing a picture of this growth — this non-baby? One good reason. If it's picture-proven to be a baby, with all vital parts in place and functioning, the courts just might decide it qualifies as a person and therefore has a Constitutionally-guaranteed right to life.

And that would be goodbye to the whole fraud-speckled abortion movement — with all its works and pomps.

Not since the Constitutional Convention in 1787 has this non-person tragic absurdity appeared on the American scene. At that time, in establishing representative government, the South wanted to count their slaves as persons. The North objected. They compromised. Five slaves could count as three persons. A black was three-fifths of a person — except for taxation in which the black was a full person.

Much worse was the Dred Scott decision in which the U.S. Supreme Court upheld a finding that Dred Scott — slave — was not a citizen and therefore could not sue to regain his legal freedom, which had once been legally granted. Most horrifying was Chief Justice Roger Taney's opinion that the U.S. Constitution was made "for white men only." It was held blacks were so far inferior they "had no rights which the white man was bound to respect." Slaves were the property of their owners and "the national government was nowhere given power over the property of the inhabitants of the states of the Union."

Today we regard as shocking the fact personhood was once denied to black individuals, even though born in the United States. That much of this kind of thinking with regard to blacks existed here until 1964 is almost unbelievable.

Unbelievable, that is, until we realize an unborn citizen of the United States may — as you read this in 1992 — be killed on demand by his mother because she had a trip planned to Disney World — and then she got pregnant with little Bill, or was starting an aerobic exercise class, or something. Today any reason is good enough to kill an unborn citizen.

In all American wars we have killed in battle 620,338 American citizens. Since Roe-Wade 19 years ago we have killed 30,400,000 unborn American citizens. Spelled out that's thirty million, four hundred thousand empty cribs. We have wiped out an entire generation of Americans with all their unique genetic potentialities, with all the hope, promise, and expectations to be found in any grouping of 30-million-plus Americans.

No other civilized nation on earth comes anywhere near this record of killing its unborn citizens; all this bloodshed in the name of exercising women's reproductive rights. That very term is in itself a crass fraud. A reproductive right is a right to reproduce one's self by having a baby. To tell America that a reproductive right means a woman has a right to kill her unborn child is to carry language to the outer fringes of absurdity if not insanity — and deliberate, pre-meditated fraud.

W insert

To the Editor:

I was disturbed by the article, "Grosse Pointe — Old Wealth, Vintage Values" included in the "W" insert in last week's Grosse Pointe News.

It is difficult to imagine in these hard economic times when so many around us are suffering that any of us would be proud to learn that "in Grosse Pointe, you are your number, street number, that is..." And if this is not bad enough, a resident is quoted saying, "The smaller the number, the better it is."

Are we really so shallow that we still measure a person's worth by his or her house address or financial standing in the community?

I have lived in Grosse Pointe for 14 years. I believe that real Grosse Pointers, the ones who should have been written about, are the many, many residents who give countless hours to making life better for others. Volunteerism is one of Grosse Pointe's most precious resources. Generosity of time, money and spirit abound here.

Certainly, Grosse Pointe is a beautiful area in which to live. And there is no denying that the wealth of certain individuals, as well as of the community as a whole, have contributed significantly to the cities' appeal. But what is Grosse Pointe without its people?

Hopefully, the attitudes reflected by the "W" article are limited to its author and a few misguided socialites. In an election year when family values seem to dominate the headlines, it is frightening to imagine what values some people, who should know better, are imparting to their children.

My wish is that the things I love about Grosse Pointe and its people will continue to grow and that we will always be a proud model for all other communities striving to be the best.

Amendment gives citizens right to trial

This is the 11th in a series of articles about the Bill of Rights, courtesy of the Commission of the Bicentennial of the U.S. Constitution.

The right to trial by jury in criminal trials is guaranteed by Article III, Section 2 of the Constitution and the Sixth Amendment. The Seventh Amendment was included in the Bill of Rights to meet the concern of the people that civil claims should be decided, not by judges, but by fellow citizens drawn from their own community.

The concept of trial by jury originated in medieval England, and the English system of a "jury of 12 men tried and true" was practiced by the colonists. The Constitution nowhere fixes the number of jurors. The number 12 was once described as a "historic accident," and some states and most of the federal district courts use juries of less than 12 people for civil cases.

Although the guarantee of a jury trial in criminal cases was accepted as necessary by most of the framers, there was considerable debate over extending the same guarantee to civil cases. James Iredell of North Carolina, who would be one of the first six justices appointed to the Supreme Court of the United States, believed that jury trials in civil cases should not be guaranteed, because "it was a complicated business," best left to "future legislatures." Iredell was concerned that juries in federal civil cases might easily become confused by the different systems of legal rules and procedures in the states.

Those who supported the Seventh Amendment wanted the duties of the judge and the duties of the jury clearly divided, because they knew that some judges in England and in the courts of Europe had abused their powers in civil cases.

George Mason of Virginia wrote: "In controversies respecting private property, and in suits between man and man, the ancient trial by jury is one of the greatest securities to the rights of the people, and ought to remain sacred and inviolable."

There is some merit in Iredell's position. Civil litigation sometimes involves facts and issues so complex that they may overwhelm members of a jury. More than a half century ago, England abolished jury trials in most civil cases, making exception only for limited classes of cases, such as claims for libel or slander and fraud.

The Seventh Amendment guarantee of the right to jury trial contemplates a jury representing a cross-section of the community, and every American may be called upon to serve on a jury at one time or another, either in federal or state court, in a civil or criminal case.

Although jury duty may occasionally be inconvenient or time-consuming, it is a duty of citizenship and an important way in which every citizen can become an active participant in the guarantees of the Bill of Rights.

Right direction

To the Editor:

As someone who has been very involved with middle school education in the local area for the past three years, I read with interest the front-page article regarding the recent changes in the Grosse Pointe Public School middle schools.

Research in middle level education and my own experience as head of University Liggett School's middle school certainly support the changes which the Grosse Pointe schools are adopting. Because we enroll approximately 65 students in each of our middle school grades, we have long been able to offer the "team approach" to our students.

The dialogues among teachers at a particular grade level enable teachers to coordinate programs and discuss student progress. We have also found grouping students in small adviser groups of eight to 10 students to be extremely effective in that teachers may identify students experiencing difficulty early on and that parental communication may occur almost immediately if necessary.

Additional components of our success have been the choices available in the foreign language (French, Spanish and Latin) and arts (art, band, drama and chorus) areas. These choices, along with an extensive interscholastic sports program at the middle school level, have allowed our students to pursue areas in which they may experience additional successes.

In the last decade middle school education has become recognized in and of itself, not just as "between" elementary and secondary education. The Grosse Pointe schools should be commended for moving in the right direction.

Water invades Hill businesses, homes

By Donna Walker
Staff Writer

Floodwaters provided added excitement for patrons at the One23 Restaurant last Wednesday, as well as extra work for the employees of that and other establishments on Kercheval on the Hill in Grosse Pointe Farms.

Several businesses and homes in the Hill area flooded about 10:45 p.m. during a thunderstorm that, according to the National Weather Service, spilled 1.86 inches of rain at Detroit-Wayne County Metropolitan Airport in Romulus.

The sudden, heavy downpour caused sewer service lines to back up, which in turn flooded several homes and businesses in the Farms.

Vivian Day, a manager at One23, which is owned by her parents, said the sewer drain in the kitchen started backing up shortly before 11 p.m.

"The drain on the floor turned into a fountain," she said. "Water was just surging out of it."

Within seven minutes, she said, the kitchen, located on the first floor, was awash with 1 1/2 inches of water on the floor.

The water started flowing into the hallway leading from the kitchen to the front dining room, and under the door separating the kitchen from the barroom.

"It was awful," Day said, "because we were still serving dinner at that time."

She said she gathered up the restaurant's old, dirty table linens and put them in the hallway between the kitchen and the front dining room, and near the kitchen door inside the barroom to prevent the water from reaching patrons.

It worked, but the water found another route — it cascaded down the back stairs, flooding the basement and destroying some coffee and other dry goods that were stored in cardboard boxes.

The waitstaff put plastic bags over their shoes, tying them at the ankle, and continued to serve meals.

Day said that at about 11:30 p.m., she began asking patrons to leave.

"I told them we had to start cleaning up, but they said, 'Can't we stay and have one more drink and watch you guys clean up?'" she said.

Employees were vacuuming water out of the building until 4 a.m. and another cleaning crew came in at 6 a.m. to disinfect everything, she said.

"Peter Bologna, the general contractor who built this building, swung by about midnight to seek if we were all right. That was very thoughtful of him," Day said. "And everyone at One23 pitched in to clean this place up. We have a wonderful team here."

Day left at 4:15 a.m. and was back at work at 7 a.m., she said. Although she was tired, she looked on the bright side of things.

"Fortunately, the ceiling tile (in the basement) held up this time," she said. "It didn't in past floods, so we got some sturdier tile."

Since it opened about 3 1/2 years ago, One23 has flooded four times, she said.

The chef's office downstairs was badly hit this time, but employees were able to put plastic over the desk in the office just before the water came cascading in, she said.

Also, the computer system, which contains all of One23's records, was saved, and so was the wooden floor in the bar, Day said.

"I had visions of the wooden planks snapping up, but that didn't happen. We were fortunate, because it could have been much worse," she said.

Despite the deluge of the night before, One23 opened for lunch at the usual time Thursday — 11:30 a.m.

Other Hill businesses that experienced flooding were Connolly Travel, Meade Auto Leasing, Leon's salon, Young Clothes, the Christian Science Reading Room and Perry Drug Store. Like One23, they also opened on time Thursday.

"We're like the post office," said Gerry Connolly, owner of Connolly Travel, which had to throw out a lot of its paper goods because they got wet. "In sleet, snow, hail or flood, we're still selling travel."

Bologna and Farms city manager Richard Solak visited Connolly's business about midnight, she said.

Solak said he was working late at city hall when he heard about the flooding from the public safety department.

"I decided it would be beneficial if I witnessed the damage first-hand," he said.

Kevin Mangus, manager at Perry Drugs, said that when he arrived at work at 6:15 a.m. Thursday, there was six inches of standing water in his store-room and more water on the sales floor at the rear of the store.

The other businesses that flooded on the Hill were more fortunate. The water had gone

Flooding in other Pointes

By Donna Walker
Staff Writer

Grosse Pointe Farms wasn't the only Pointe to experience flooding during the heavy rainstorm last Wednesday.

Grosse Pointe Park city manager Dale Krajniak said residents of five homes on Cadieux, Balfour, Middlesex and Devonshire reported flooding.

More homes would have flooded, Krajniak said, if the Park had not discharged 20 million gallons of stormwater and solid waste from its sewer system into the open Fox Creek drain in Detroit over a three hour period Wednesday night.

The rain was also too much to handle for the Milk River Pumping Station on Marter Road in Grosse Pointe Woods.

The station discharged 40.5 million gallons of chlorine-treated combined sewage into the open Milk River Drain over a period of four hours and 46 minutes on Wednesday, Sept. 9, and about 16 million gallons over a period of one hour and 53 minutes on Thursday.

Philip H. Belcher, Grosse Pointe Woods acting city administrator, said the city received six calls from residents whose homes flooded Wednesday night.

At least 10 residents reported flooding in Grosse Pointe City, and Grosse Pointe Shores also received a few calls about backed-up water, employees of those two cities said.

receded through the sewer drains before workers arrived Thursday morning, but it had left its calling card — soggy carpets, water marks on the walls, and foul-smelling black gunk around the sewer drains.

The basement at Cottage Hospital also got wet, said John Danaher, a spokesman for the hospital.

At least 25 homes throughout the Farms flooded Wednesday night, said Farms assistant city manager Shane Reeside.

One of the homes that was hit belongs to Margaret Harms, who moved to Lakeview Road from Ann Arbor in April.

She said that when she went downstairs about 10:45 p.m. Wednesday to wash some clothes, the area rug in her finished basement was floating on about 3 inches of water.

"I thought the problem was with my house, but when I told the people at work that my basement flooded, they said, 'Welcome to Grosse Pointe. That happens all the time, because the sewers are too old and too small,'" Harms said.

Reeside said, "Some of it (the sewer system) is older, and it's designed to handle up to a certain amount of rain within a given period of time." He said there are two steps homeowners can take to prevent their homes from flooding: Keep their sewer service lines clean by periodically snaking them, and disconnect their downspouts from the storm sewer.

The latter is something that Grosse Pointe Woods residents must do anyway by next July, according to an ordinance that has been passed by the Woods city council.

Gerry Connolly, owner of Connolly Travel, said she was going to throw out most of the paper products by the window at the left because they had been on the ground and had gotten wet.

It's the opening day of school for Jimmy and the first-hour bell has rung. The middle-school student has been searching frantically for his locker. Once he finds it, the lock refuses to yield to the combination. It is now three minutes past the starting bell. Jimmy gives up on the locker and sprints down the hallway to his classroom — if only he knew where it was.

The first days of a new school year are fertile ground for disasters. Although no one has ever died of embarrassment, first-day-of-school blunders and mix-ups, when compounded by the number of students in a school building, disrupt the educational process.

Educators at Brownell Middle School developed a solution this summer to reduce the amount of time they felt was wasted on getting a new school year started.

Principal Donald Messing said the answer was as simple as restructuring the registration policy.

Modeled after high school and college registration procedures, the new system at Brownell allows students to pay user fees, return emergency cards, register for classes and locate their lockers and classrooms before the first day of school.

"The first day of school was a difficult experience in other years," Messing said. "It took us months to get these emergency cards, swimsuit rental fees and other things. We were literally chasing after the students or teachers were collecting these during homeroom."

This year, volunteer parents helped the students plan their school year before classes started. And to the surprise and relief of faculty and administrators, the hallways were empty after the first bell rang last week. Messing said all of the students had successfully located their classes and were seated and ready to begin.

While first-day-of-school chaos has always been part of the process, Messing said a curriculum change two years ago exacerbated the problem. Previously, the first 10 minutes of each school day was devoted to homeroom.

"Homeroom was not an organized or structured program," Messing said. "Students waited for announcements and socialized."

Last year, Brownell instituted a 20-minute advisory period in which students gathered each morning to discuss issues relevant to their peer group. The program is designed to aid middle school students in developing positive feelings toward themselves, their peers and adults.

"When this is interrupted with students bringing their emergency cards down to the office it becomes frustrating to the teachers trying to operate the program," he said. "We wanted more time for teaching and less administrative trivia."

Pinchpenny buyers hit brakes at classic car auction

So many beautiful cars, so little money. That seemed to be the theme of this year's Labor Day Classic Car Auction, staged by Dean Kruse and Associates in Auburn, Ind., the granddaddy of all collector car auctions and by far the biggest in the world.

The recession has hurt the new-car industry badly, because a new-car purchase is one that can usually be put off for another year. But imagine the impact it has had on collectibles, which one can live without entirely, albeit not happily. There were more bargains to be had in Auburn this year than you could shake a certificate of deposit at.

Try this: an immaculate white '77 Jaguar XJ-6 sedan went on the block with no reserve (a reserve is a figure given the auctioneer by the owner as the lowest bid the owner will sell the car for; "no reserve" means the car will be sold to the highest bidder, regardless of how low that bid is) and sold for $3,100. "You can't paint this car for that," the auctioneer chided the audience, but that was the high bid.

As interesting as the auction itself are the tents and lots around the main building where cars await auction or go after failing to sell. A strange car catches the eye, a swooping aerodynamic coupe with right hand drive. Closer inspection shows that it is a '53 Daimler "Silver Flash" sport coupe with body by Hooper of London, built for Lady Docker, wife of the then-chairman of Daimler B.S.A. The one-of-a-kind coupe is powered by a straight-six engine and its interior is finished in red crocodile hide.

Nearby is the only Rolls-Royce pickup I have ever seen, a '67 Silver Shadow with back seats cut away and a pickup bed installed. The truck has 56,000 miles on it and was built by Mitchell Motors, Eastwood, Colo. There are only two in existence and the other was sold twice in the '80s for more than $85,000. But this is the '90s and this time it does not sell.

In the main building, where the auction takes place, a number of spectacular cars are parked in a section away from the block. To get to park in this building, the car must be something out of the ordinary, a car unusual enough to stand out at this many-splendored collection of classic cars.

Standing beside a willow-green 1933 Packard V-12 with special Dietrich body which he owns with other investors, Ray Bowersox, collector and truck dealer from Milton, Pa., said they had set a $1.1 million reserve on the magnificent touring car. Not substantially more than they had paid for it 2-1/2 years ago, about the time the recession got under way.

The Packard, one of only a handful of super-valuable vehicles at the auction, would go on the block the next morning. The collector was doubtful it would sell. "It doesn't look like the market is coming back yet," said Bowersox. He was right. It would have to bring at least $1 million for his group to get its money back. High bid was $850,000. He took the Packard back home.

Only three of those Dietrich-bodied '33 Packard V-12s were made. Bowersox also owns a '34 Packard with body by LeBaron, which was even more valuable. He also had at the auction a "counterfeit" Duesenberg II, a car made in 1983 powered by a Ford 350 V-8 with the styling of the classic Duesenberg.

A very rare '35 Pierce Arrow boattail speedster also went unsold, testimony to the fact that accountants had taken over the collector car hobby. Also unsold were a '29 Isotta Fraschini with body by Cos-tagna and an achingly beautiful '34 Ford V-8 with body by Brewster, which featured the Brewster trademark heart-shaped grille.

Even if you're a fan of Alfa Romeos, you may never have seen one like the '32 6C supercharged convertible with body by Sala of Milan. Since the reserve is not revealed, no one knows if they missed a bargain on this rare one.

Near the Alfa is a magnificent '29 Isotta Fraschini with body by Castagna. The convertible coupe with rumble seat is stately and dignified, even with its orange body and chocolate fenders, one of the finest cars ever built in Europe, and restored by Harrah. The market for this kind of classic is weak and it goes home unsold.

In one tent outside the auction building sits what appears to be a '34 Packard four-door convertible, but its lines are sharper, its body panels made with metallurgical technology unknown in 1934. It looks new because it is. It is a new automobile built in the classic Packard tradition by Packard Bayliff Motor Corp. of Lima, Ohio.

But celebrity still sells, apparently. A '55 Thunderbird once owned by Madonna, a gift from Sean Penn, brought $60,000, a rather high price for this admittedly desirable car. But other more desirable cars, never owned by Madonna or Elvis or anyone else who was somebody, failed to sell.

Like many others, John Gunnell, editor of Old Cars Weekly in Iola, Wis., had thought Auburn would be a turning point. He said the market seemed to be picking up for affordable cars, like those in good condition from as recently as the 1960s. "Cars priced up to $20,000 are selling," he said. "It's when they get as high as $100,000 that they are harder to move."

But stubborn buyers suffered the frequent scoldings of the auctioneers and refused to bid. "The restoration alone on this beautiful 1957 Eldorado is worth $47,000," said one tuxedoed hawk as he chided the crowd for not bidding higher. "The seller has dropped the $60,000 reserve," he teased. When his gavel fell at $28,750, however, it was a no-sale. The reserve was not that low, he said.

The scenario was played over and over. Outside the permanent building, a large "Second Chance" lot held several of the vehicles that had failed to draw bids high enough to seriously interest their sellers. That's where the '47 Chevrolet woody wagon was parked. In near-perfect condition, with a clean body, spotless interior and hand-built wood headliner, the highly collectible car was listed at $25,000, a price that likely would have been considered a steal a few years ago. A few feet away, a rare '48 Packard woody wagon, very rounded and oddly attractive, didn't have any suitors at $34,000.

Bargains abounded in the Second Chance lot. A sparkling white '66 Lincoln four-door convertible had a price tag of $10,000, the best kind of buy because it is not yet a classic but is bound to be one. And at $10,000, you can drive it for your everyday car.

A surprising number of '60s-vintage Chevrolet convertibles bore bargain basement prices after not selling in the auction. Ranging from $4,000 to $8,000, it was hard to see why many of these bargains did not sell. These are certainly the hottest of the hot investments, according to Kruse, almost guaranteed to increase in value.

"I think the turn-around, when it comes, will be with the '50s cars," said Bill Ziegenbein, owner of Prestige Motors, a collector-car retail operation in Madison Heights. Ziegenbein hauled 45 cars down to Auburn, including a Tucker, a low-mileage '67 Cadillac Eldorado, a Rolls-Royce Phantom, a '56 Chevrolet Bel Air convertible, and a couple of Mercedes-Benz 280 SL roadsters, all in like-new condition.

"The big collectors have been in a stand-offish mood," he said. More affordable vehicles — up to maybe the low $30,000 range — are most likely to move, he said.

Greg Grams, of the Volo Museum in Volo, Ill., said his retail business in collector vehicles had a record month in July and another good one in August. "I'm getting people who are investing their CD money in cars instead of putting it back into the bank because the interest rate is so low," he said. "They see older cars as a better investment."

Grams advised prospective collectors to buy "fully restored" vehicles. Unless you can do the work yourself, it costs too much to bring many of them back, he said. The cost of that kind of labor outruns any increase in value in the older vehicle.

His words were reflected in the action at Auburn. Many of the vehicles on the blocks had thousands of dollars of work in them, money their owners would not recoup in this year's market. A '58 Imperial with the coveted Hemi engine had undergone a $51,000 body-off restoration, the auctioneer told registered bidders and curious onlookers. He suggested opening the bidding at $100,000, quickly dropped to $50,000 and then, in the silence of the ensuing split-seconds, began at $20,000. The highest bid was $28,000; the vehicle went home unsold.

Auctioneer Kruse said that from 1969 to 1987, a broad-based "portfolio" of well-chosen collector cars would have appreciated more than 10,000 percent, while the Dow Jones stock market average rose 153 percent in value. Explaining why he is sure the collector car market is on the verge of another rise, Kruse pointed out that interest rates are at record lows, the stock market is at near record highs, the money supply is tight and growth in gross national product is miniscule. These factors combine to make collector cars an attractive investment.

And, he said, "you cannot peel away from the spotlight in a stock certificate and you cannot wave to your friends at the parade on your bonds."

This '77 Jaguar XJ-6 sedan sold for $3,100 without reserve. Better plan to go to Auburn next year.

Heartbreakingly beautiful '34 Ford V-8 with body by Brewster, featuring that body maker's trademark heart-shaped grille.

Turquoise and cream twins, these Nash Metropolitans make a fun pair of pets, but did not sell.

One of the last of the real woodies, this '47 Chevrolet wagon did not sell at $25,000.

Stolen van takes dip in Lake St. Clair

By Debra Pascoe
Staff Writer

A stolen-vehicle chase originating in Grosse Pointe Farms turned into a lesson in aquatic life-saving skills for three St. Clair Shores police officers in the early morning hours of Sept. 9.

Officers Jason Brown, David Pietrzak and Sgt. Bob Chester shed their gun belts and dove into 63-degree Lake St. Clair waters to save two suspects who had driven a stolen Transvan off 11 Mile, through two chain-link fences and off the dock at the Lac St. Clair Marina.

Later that afternoon, Detroiters Lee Woolley, 21, and Roosevelt Martin, 21, were arraigned in Grosse Pointe Farms Municipal Court. Both Woolley and Martin were charged with unlawfully driving away another's vehicle — a five-year felony. Woolley could face an additional two years if convicted of fleeing and eluding police.

A preliminary hearing was scheduled for Sept. 16.

According to Grosse Pointe Farms Lt. Mark Brecht, a Moross resident called police after he saw his van being driven away shortly before 2 a.m.

Grosse Pointe Farms officers spotted the van at the intersection of Mack and Moross, radioed in a report, and pursued the vehicle. St. Clair Shores police became involved when the van was spotted on 10 Mile, heading north on Jefferson.

With the exception of the drive into the drink, all the action in St. Clair Shores was captured by a credit card-sized video camera installed behind the rear view mirror in Chester's vehicle. (See related story.)

St. Clair Shores Inspector Fred Marengo said Chester spotted the suspects at about

1:57 a.m. after they drove over the front lawn of a home on 10 Mile to elude his squad car. After turning his car around, Chester noticed the suspects were being chased by Brown and Pietrzak's unit heading north on Jefferson.

Marengo estimated speeds during the mile-long chase did not exceed 60 miles an hour.

At approximately 1:59 a.m., the suspects turned right onto 11 Mile, sped down the street, misjudged the curving cul-de-sac at the end of the road, drove through two chain-link fences and dropped about eight feet into the lake.

"When they got to 11 Mile, they made a quick turn and said 'Oh wow, a lake,'" Marengo said.

After leaving their vehicles, the three police officers removed their gun belts, slipped under the chain-link fences damaged by the van and dove into the water. On the third try, Chester rescued one suspect who appeared to be drowning, Marengo said. The other suspect attempted to swim away, but was captured by the other two officers.

"Those guys did an outstanding job," he said of his crew.

For 11 Mile resident Dennis Agusti, the incident was definitely an eye opener.

"We had just gone to bed after watching a movie and I heard sirens and a loud noise like thunder," Agusti said. Minutes after going outside to see what was happening, Agusti said he saw the officers walking the prisoners to the squad car.

"They did a good job of getting them out of there," he said.

After the van was pulled from the water, Agusti said there appeared to be little damage to the front end.

"GM should do a commercial on it," he said.

Park Foundation wants project ideas

By Donna Walker
Staff Writer

Now that its plans for a boardwalk at Patterson Park are almost completed, the Grosse Pointe Park Foundation is looking for ideas for future long-term projects.

The foundation is a non-profit volunteer group that raises money for projects to enhance the standard of living in Grosse Pointe Park.

Previous projects have included the bathhouse at Windmill Pointe Park and the beautification of the traffic medians along Jefferson Avenue.

Recently, the foundation's long-term planning committee, composed of chairman Robert J. Hutton and members Bob Denner, Art Getz and Hudson Meade, met to discuss possible future projects.

They kicked around a few ideas — including creating an outdoor ice rink that could be operated Nov. 1 through March 30, replacing all of the street signs in the city, building a "substantial picnic shelter" in both Patterson and Windmill Pointe Parks, and improving the landscaping of the parkway along Windmill Pointe Drive.

"It was difficult for us to come up with any ideas because we almost think we live in paradise," Hutton said.

He said they also discussed creating an indoor playground in the Park after reading about a similar project that a group of mothers tried to start in Grosse Pointe Woods.

"We decided that that kind of playground didn't really seem to be needed here," Hutton said.

Since the foundation works on projects to benefit Park residents, it would like to hear their ideas, he said.

Before a project is chosen by the foundation, it must meet two criteria — it must have broad appeal to the residents of Grosse Pointe Park and not just people on one or two streets, and it must be something for which the foundation feels it can marshal enough contributors, Hutton said.

Anyone who has an idea for a long-term project may write to: The Grosse Pointe Park Foundation, c/o Grosse Pointe Park City Hall, 15115 East Jefferson, Grosse Pointe Park, MI 48230.

Camera tapes action

The video camera inside St. Clair Shores Sgt. Bob Chester's police cruiser will prove invaluable in court proceedings against two Detroiters accused of stealing a Transvan in Grosse Pointe Farms.

And that's the main idea behind the seven cameras the St. Clair Shores Police Department purchased with a grant from the All-State Foundation.

The camera lens turns 360 degrees, allowing the officer to focus on the action, wherever it is, said Inspector Fred Marengo. If the camera isn't switched on at the beginning of a shift, it will automatically turn on when the vehicle's flashing lights are activated.

He said one drunken driver pleaded guilty during the third day of his trial when the video tape of his arrest was played in court.

After one year in service, Marengo said the cameras are definitely worth the $5,500 purchase price. In fact, he said the department is awaiting delivery of seven more units.

Worker sharply differs with critic

By Donna Walker
Staff Writer

A Roseville woman who complained about the service in a take-out restaurant in Grosse Pointe Woods was threatened by an employee wielding a long kitchen knife, she told Woods police.

The incident happened about 1:40 p.m. Sunday, Sept. 13.

The woman said she entered the restaurant, in the 19600 block of Mack, ordered and paid for her food, and then waited while it was being cooked.

Several minutes later, she said, another customer came in, ordered and received his food right away, and when he offered to pay for it, the cashier refused to let him do so.

The woman said she was angered by this and the fact that she had not received her food yet. She said she told the employee that she wanted her money back and that she didn't like the way the restaurant does business.

She also said that she asked for his name to report him to the company for his rudeness and business practices.

The employee, a Detroit man, refunded her money, and the woman walked back to her car, which was parked on Littlestone, and got in.

She pulled up to a stop sign near the restaurant, and as she waited for traffic to clear, the employee came running out of the building wielding a large kitchen knife and said, "If you want trouble, I'll give it to you," the victim said.

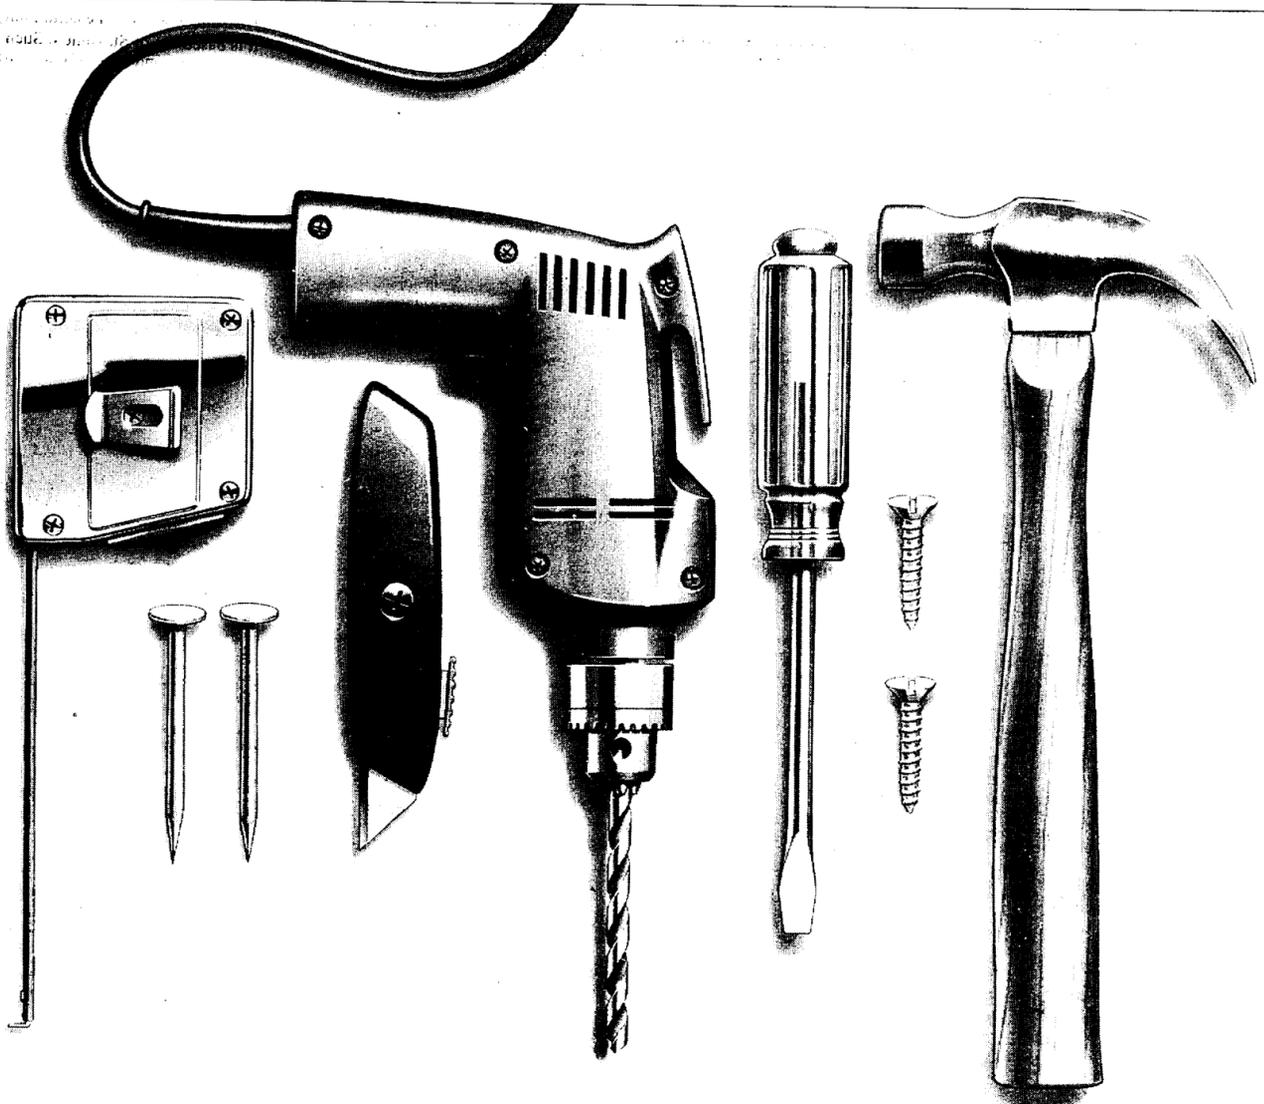

She placed her car in park, got out of the vehicle and asked, "Why are you threatening me?" she said.

The employee went back into the building and the victim drove away and called police.

A Woods officer went to the restaurant and saw an employee who matched the description given by the victim. The employee admitted he was involved in the incident.

He told the officer that he had thrown the knife behind the kitchen counter, and the officer found it there.

The employee was arrested on a charge of felonious assault.

VA information

Q — My husband served on a destroyer in the South Pacific in World War II and wants to be buried in a national cemetery. He has often said that he would like to have military honors at the ceremony. Is he eligible for burial in a national cemetery, and will the Department of Veterans Affairs provide military honors?

A — Veterans discharged or separated from active duty under conditions other than dishonorable who have completed the required period of service, as well as those who die on active duty, are eligible for burial in one of VA's 114 national cemeteries.

Spouses and dependent children of eligible living and deceased veterans and of current and deceased armed forces members also may be buried in a national cemetery. VA does not provide military honors.

Group therapy shows promise in treating cancer, but doctors are wary

It can't hurt. That was the opinion a doctor gave a cancer patient who asked about the benefits of group therapy. He might have given a more positive answer, but many physicians are wary of therapy. They are concerned that patients might abandon accepted methods of treatment, like chemotherapy, in favor of psychological intervention. The point is well taken. What would a person select, given a choice between enduring the side effects of medical treatment or curing a cancer by willing it away? There is also the danger that patients who believe they can will their cancer away may feel they have failed if their condition worsens. Psychologist David Spiegel of Stanford University found, to his surprise and that of cancer researchers around the world, that patients with advanced breast cancer who received psychotherapy did live longer than those not in therapy.

Spiegel is careful to point out that all patients in the study received standard cancer treatment and suggests that the support in some way enhanced the effectiveness of the medical treatment.

Other possibilities are that the support may have lessened depression and thereby improved patients' appetites, leading to better nutrition, or that controlling pain allowed patients to maintain a greater degree of normal activity.

The connection between mental processes and illnesses is being explored by an emerging discipline called psychoneuroimmunology, which draws on the fields of psychiatry, psychology, neurology and immunology.

All the patients in the study had a good prognosis; nevertheless, they were experiencing the distress expected of those confronted by the illness. The patients were divided into a control group and a group that participated in a six-week group therapy program.

After six weeks, the group receiving support was more vigorous and was coping better than the control group. At the six month follow-up, the mood and outlook of the therapy group had continued to improve significantly. Members were less depressed or fatigued and were actively coping better than those in the control group.

To be helpful, a support group must be the right kind. A report from Stanford recommends: "The emphasis in our program was on living as fully as possible, improving communication with family members and doctors and controlling pain and other symptoms. To the extent that this intervention influenced the course of the disease, it did not do so because of any intention on the part of the therapists or the patients that their participation would affect survival time."

Experts in the field agree that this sort of promise should not be made.

It is important, too, that patients steer clear of groups that claim to actually increase survival time or improve their prognosis. Patients should also make sure that the group leader is experienced in working with cancer patients and is familiar with such treatments as chemotherapy and radiation.

While research still isn't at the point where every doctor should recommend a support group as part of cancer treatment, recent findings make it safe to say:

It can't hurt — and it may well help.

Attend the premiere matinee performance of "Phantom of the Opera" on Nov. 28. The price of $99 includes transportation by deluxe motorcoach, reserved seating at the Masonic Temple Theater, a Christmas luncheon and commemorative gift and all taxes and gratuities.

A $25 deposit will reserve your space. Make your reservation by calling Wayne Carson at 779-1352 or B. Schober at 881-8380.

Lake level

Lake St. Clair at the end of August was at elevation 575.19 feet above the mean water level at Rimouski, Quebec, or 35 inches above chart datum.

This was about 1 inch above what it was a year ago, and about 3 inches below one month ago.

The August monthly mean level of 575.29 feet was about 9 inches above the long-term average for August. The lake, however, remained about 21 inches below the all-time high August monthly mean level, which was recorded in 1986.

The forecast shows that at the end of September, the level of Lake St. Clair will be about 5 inches below what it was at the end of August.

The level of the lake is expected to begin its seasonal decline in September. The water level in February 1993 is expected to be about 12 inches above the long-term average for that month, or about the same as what it was at the same time in 1992.

Fundraiser

6 new trustees are named to the ULS board

Six new trustees have been named to the University Liggett School Board of Trustees. They are: (named to three-year terms effective July 1) Ralph H. Booth II, W. Peter McCabe, M.D., David C. Stone, Charles C. Vincent, M.D., and Warren H. Watkins; and Michael R. Fisher (named to a one-year term effective July 1). Booth, president and CEO of Booth American Company, is a member of the class of 1971 and a current parent. He has served as an annual fund drive volunteer for the school. Fisher, president of Fisher Dynamics Corp., is a 1976 graduate and has been a supportive alumnus. McCabe, a past parent, is a plastic surgeon with a record of involvement in the community and in education. Current parent Stone, an attorney with Stone & Biber, has served as annual fund volunteer and in 1990, helped coordinate the lower school family picnic. Vincent, a parent of two ULS graduates, is chief of obstetrics and gynecology at Riverview Hospital and former director of admissions at the Wayne State University School of Medicine. Watkins is a 1971 graduate and a parent. He is a partner/consultant with the Detroit office of Andersen Consulting and in addition to his extensive involvement with the school's annual fund drive Watkins has been active as an alumni class secretary, class agent and reunion chairman.

North to host parent evening

Grosse Pointe North is expanding its invitation list for Ninth Grade Parents' Night to include all parents of ninth, tenth and eleventh graders to meet at 7:30 p.m. on Wednesday, Sept. 23, in the Performing Arts Auditorium. Important information on the new state-endorsed diploma and its requirement of passing the reading, math and science MEAP tests will be shared with parents at that time.

Maire plans welcome back night

Maire School will welcome parents and students to Back to School night on Wednesday, Sept. 23. A general PTO meeting will be held in the gym at 7 p.m.

The students will act as guides, introducing parents to their teachers and taking them around to their classes. There will be time for parents and teachers to talk.

Neighbors of Park city hall project can't wait for it to end

Above: A view of the northwest side of the old fire station. The foundation for the apparatus bay addition can be seen, and the mound of dirt next to the curb in the foreground will be a grassy median. Cars will be able to enter the expanded parking lot through a driveway (foreground) from Maryland (at right).

At right: A view of the southeast side of the fire station from a second floor window at city hall. The two parking lots have been torn up and will be made into a single parking lot, extending from the foreground to where the cars are in the upper background of this photo.

Bobbie Boyd and several other residents who live near Grosse Pointe Park city hall can't wait for the construction that began there in June to end.

But the project — which involves renovating the fire station and turning it into a modern public safety complex; adding a vehicle and apparatus storage wing onto the fire station; building a two-story enclosed walkway and elevator, which will connect the new public safety complex and city hall and make the two buildings handicapped-accessible for the first time; creating more parking spaces and better traffic flow behind city hall; and installing landscaping — won't be completed until June 30, said Dale Krajniak, Park city manager.

Boyd has lived in a house on Maryland, across the street from the north parking lot at city hall, for 12 years.

"I work during the day," she said, "so I'm usually not home to hear the construction noise, but I have the week off and the noise has really been bothersome."

Dust from the construction site has blown all over her neighborhood and seeped into her home, she said. Also, she said that even though she is usually not home during the day, her child and day care worker are there, and tell her about the noise.

However, she said she is willing to put up with the aggravation because she has felt for a long time that the city hall complex, with its small rooms and numerous staircases, should be modernized.

"The first time I went in there, I couldn't believe how old it looked," she said.

Annamae Childress, who lives in the Maryland Park Place apartments, which are right across the street from the Park's fire and police stations, said she felt the same way.

"Yesterday, I don't know what they were doing over there, but it made the whole (apartment) building shake," Childress said. "It's noisy, but the buildings they are constructing are necessary, and you can't construct a building without making some noise."

"It doesn't really bother me and I think that if anyone would be upset about it, it would be me, because I work nights, and I'm still sleeping when they start up in the morning."

However, another resident of the apartment building, who asked that her name not be published, said, "Are you kidding? Everybody here is bothered by the noise. We can't even hear people on the phone because of it. They're always filling those trucks with steel and stuff, and the only time they stop is when they have lunch."

Krajniak said he'll be glad, too, when construction is completed.

"It's pretty noisy here," he said while being interviewed in his office. "But once the foundations and earth work are completed, which will happen in the next month or so, there should be a significant reduction in noise, because they won't have to use the heavy machinery any more."

The approximately $2.3 million project is about 8 percent completed, he said. Costs include:

- $200,000 to Redstone Architects for design and engineering fees.
- $57,000 to Richters Contracting for the demolition and removal of a garage and an equipment storage building behind the fire station and city hall, which was done early this summer.

- $10,000 to Richters for the removal of underground fuel storage tanks on the property, which was recently completed. The Park had initially hired Richters to remove three fuel storage tanks and 2,000 cubic yards of possibly contaminated soil for $63,400.

"We ran into a bit of a problem there," Krajniak said, because a fourth storage tank the city had not known about was found.

An additional 5,000 cubic yards of soil had to be removed with the fourth tank, which added $240,000 to the cost.

However, the Michigan Underground Storage Tanks Financial Assurance Fund (MUSTFA) has agreed to reimburse the Park for all but the first $10,000 of the total cost of removing the four tanks and soil, Krajniak said.

He said the administration considered replacing the tanks, but decided it would be cheaper to fuel city vehicles at a nearby Sunoco station on Jefferson and opened an account there.

- $88,000 for equipment needs, including a new telephone system.

- $1.945 million to John M. Olsen Co. for the remodeling of the fire station; the construction of an apparatus bay addition onto the fire station; building the pedestrian link; installing the elevator; grading, paving and connecting the north and south parking lots behind city hall; installing traffic medians in the enlarged parking lot; widening the driveway east of city hall (next to Jefferson Chevrolet); and landscaping the entire area.

The driveway is being widened so that it can handle outgoing as well as incoming traffic. That's necessary because the pedestrian link will block the exit between the pumping station and the west side of city hall.

The concrete curbs for the traffic medians are already in place; the foundation for the apparatus bay was poured three weeks ago, and the foundation for the pedestrian link should be in place by the end of this week, Krajniak said.

Workers have gutted the fire station and are beginning to remodel it, he said. When the work is completed, the public safety offices will move from city hall to the remodeled fire station, which has, until recently, been used to store fire equipment and for locker and training rooms.

The south parking lot has been closed to employees and visitors during construction, making the two parking spaces in front of city hall (one metered, one handicapped) even more valuable.

Krajniak said Jefferson Chevrolet has been letting Park employees use its parking lot during the construction, and that visitors have been using the north parking lot and metered spaces on Jefferson and nearby side streets.

Krajniak and Daniel Redstone, architect of the project, both said that work is progressing well and on schedule.

As for residents who are bothered by the noise, the Park has an ordinance limiting construction to weekdays, from 7 a.m. to 6 p.m.

However, a clause in the ordinance permits construction to continue past those hours if need be if the work is being performed on behalf of the city for the public good.

Krajniak said the contractors have had to deviate from the 7 a.m. to 6 p.m. rule a few times to speed up the removal of the underground fuel tanks.

"We needed to expedite work on the storage tanks, because that was holding up the people who are working on the apparatus bay and pedestrian link, and we need to get those buildings roughed-in by winter," he said.

The entire project is being funded through $2.3 million in municipal bonds which were recently issued by the Grosse Pointe Park Building Authority. The Park will make payments to the building authority, which will in turn make payments to the investment firm that bought the debt. The Park must repay the loan over 20 years at 5.69 percent interest.

'Utah' to open Cinema League's 38th season

The Grosse Pointe Cinema League's 38th season will begin with a 16mm film "Utah" by Robert Makara, on Monday, Sept. 21, at 8 p.m. in the Fries Auditorium of the Grosse Pointe War Memorial.

The film features Salt Lake City and the mountains of northern Utah, and the infinite variety and splendor of the landscape in Zion, Bryce and the Arches National Parks.

The Cinema League welcomes new members and guests. Single membership dues are $17; $27 per couple. Admission for each performance for non-members is $4 and includes refreshments. For more information, call 881-7511.

Last year's open house drew an enthusiastic crowd.

Fort Wayne flea market is Oct. 10-11

Table space reservations are going fast for the Detroit Historical Society Guild's Annual Benefit Flea Market, to be held Saturday, Oct. 10, and Sunday, Oct. 11, at Historic Fort Wayne from 10 a.m. until 4 p.m. The deadline for table reservations is Sept. 20.

Vendors of items ranging from antiques and collectibles to contemporary treasures and arts and crafts items are invited to participate. Those who are interested in reserving a table should call 557-7450.

Table reservations are $25 for both days. Proceeds from the table reservations will be used to support Historic Fort Wayne, which has had to close due to recent budget cuts.

Admission to the flea market is free. Fort Wayne is located at 6325 W. Jefferson at Livernois, two blocks south of I-75. Secured free parking is available on the grounds.

Book sale

Wayne State University Press will sell hundreds of books at reduced prices during the seventh annual Detroit Festival of the Arts.

The sale will be held Saturday, Sept. 19, and Sunday, Sept. 20, near the entrance to the Purdy-Kresge Library on the campus of Wayne State University. Hours on Saturday are from 11 a.m. to 5 p.m. and on Sunday from noon to 4 p.m.

War Memorial's house open again

Come to the Mardi Gras at the War Memorial on Sunday, Sept. 20, from noon to 3 p.m. for the annual open house.

Shermatero's Hot Jazz Combo.

You may even have your face painted, laugh at the clowns, get something from the pocket lady, see a demonstration by the U.S. Coast Guard Rescue Mission, take a pony ride, go for a space moonwalk and see Winnie-The-Pooh Bear cartoons. Wear a Mardi Gras mask and costume and add to the festive atmosphere.

Kids 6 to 16 can buy, swap or sell on the lakeside lawn during the Youth Swap Shop, the biggest yard sale in Grosse Pointe. Rent a table and sell or trade usable toys, books, games or sports equipment.

Each seller's merchandise is limited to what fits on a card table. Reserve a table for $2.

In case of inclement weather, most of the events will be moved inside the Alger House. There will also be caricature drawing, Creole offerings, hot dogs, potato chips, pop and ice cream available for a minimal charge. For more information, call 881-7511.

Antiquarian book fair planned

Thousands of collectible books and print items will be offered for sale at the 16th annual Midwest Antiquarian & Collectible Book Fair, sponsored by the Friends of the Detroit Public Library.

The sale, occurring in conjunction with the University Cultural Center's Detroit Festival of the Arts, is on Friday and Saturday, Sept. 18 and 19, from 9:30 a.m. to 5:30 p.m., at the Main Detroit Public Library, 5201 Woodward just north of Warren Avenue.

Twenty-five private book dealers have been invited to display and sell their wares at the Main Library during this unique two day event. Collectible and antiquarian books and print materials, autographs, graphics, illustrations, posters and reference materials will be available for sale.

Nostalgia buffs, serious collectors, as well as the general book-browser, will find materials of interest with a range of prices. This event affords an exceptional opportunity for the novice collector to examine a wide variety of print materials and to query a number of specialty book dealers on the "ins and outs" of book collecting.

The Friends of the Library will have a sale booth offering more than 1,000 donated items selling at special bargain prices. More than 100 donated treasures will also be on display for a silent auction. Proceeds will benefit the Detroit Public Library.

There is no admission charge to the sale area, located on the Cass Avenue side of the library.

For more information, call the Friends of the Library at 833-4048, Monday through Friday between 9 a.m. and 5 p.m.

Woods plans fall outings

Trips to see harness racing at the Hazel Park Race Track and "Guys and Dolls" at the Fox Theatre in Detroit lead off Grosse Pointe Woods Community Center's fall calendar of events.

The cost for the Sept. 24 trip to the race track is $15.50 per person, and includes transportation and a full-course buffet dinner in the dining room overlooking the track.

Dinner is at 6:30 p.m., post time is at 7:30 p.m., and the bus will return to the community center about 11:30 p.m.

The trip to the Fox will be held on Saturday, Oct. 17, and the bus will leave the community center in time to catch the 2 p.m. matinee. The cost is $27 and includes transportation and first-floor center seating for the performance.

Seats are limited for both trips and reservations are required. To register, call the community center at 343-2408.

Arrangements were made by the Chas. Verheyden Inc. Funeral Home, in Grosse Pointe Park. Burial was in Forest Lawn Cemetery in Detroit.

Officer trains colleagues on how to avoid AIDS, hepatitis

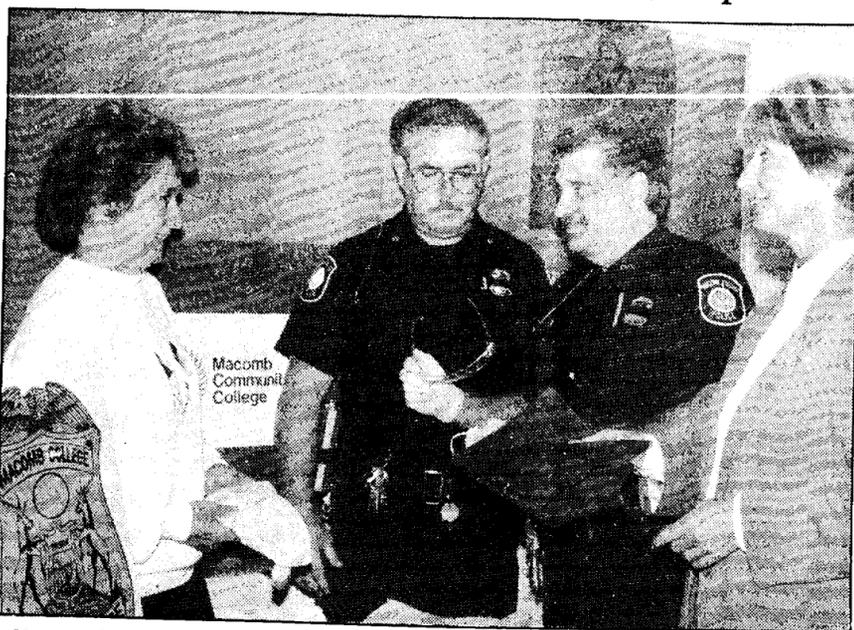

Frank Pesta's specialty is teaching others how to avoid contact with viruses that cause AIDS and hepatitis. Lately, police departments from across the country have been calling him for advice.

Pesta is training and crime prevention officer for Macomb Community College's Police Department. A Grosse Pointe resident, Pesta has a bachelor's degree in criminal justice and certification in everything from first aid to handcuff techniques. He is an adjunct instructor at Macomb's Criminal Justice Training Center and co-owner of a training consulting firm.

Pesta's plate got even fuller last March when Michigan's Occupational Safety and Health Administration (OSHA) enacted a standard for controlling employee exposure to the Human Immunodeficiency Virus (HIV) that causes AIDS and the hepatitis virus.

It applies to any job that places employees in regular contact with human blood or body fluids. Professionals believed to be especially at risk include doctors, dentists, emergency medical personnel, firefighters and police officers. Compliance with the OSHA standard was required by July.

In the past few months, Pesta has helped several law enforcement agencies safeguard their officers and avoid a hefty fine from OSHA. His work has taken him from Lake Superior to Las Vegas, Nevada, and his students have included police chiefs, sheriff deputies, federal officers and security personnel. His subject matter is bloodborne pathogens.

"Bloodborne pathogens are the microorganisms that carry HIV, hepatitis and other diseases," Pesta said. "They are found in blood and other body fluids and they are a hazard to anyone who deals with the sick or injured."

After attending several OSHA-sponsored seminars, Pesta developed a bloodborne pathogens training program for Macomb's Campus Police.

"It is a generic policy that can be used by other departments," he said. The program was then offered at Macomb's Criminal Justice Training Center, at no cost to member departments. As word spread, Pesta began receiving invitations to speak at police gatherings.

Departments found in violation of the OSHA requirements, noted Pesta, could be fined as much as $10,000. But, he added, "The bottom line is protecting the employees."

to look at the air field. But the wind just made toothpicks of them.

"It was a personal hurricane. It got into the house with a vicious, high shrieking howl like a wild animal. And it wasn't steady, it came in gusts. It created mini-tornados in each of the rooms and sometimes the furniture wasn't touched, but everything on it was destroyed."

When the eye of the hurricane passed over, he was able to go outside.

"It was like stepping into a time machine," he said. "I couldn't believe the destruction."

He called his wife — the telephone lines are underground — to see how she and the kids were doing. She told him to get back inside because the other side of the hurricane was coming.

Inside, Falk surveyed the damage. One wall had been torn away and the roof had fallen, and the house was shaking. He and his friend ran into the bathroom where they stayed for the second half of the hurricane. Then they ventured out again.

"It was fascinating — everyone was coming out of their houses and all they asked was how the other person was doing," he said. "I think maybe if we found someone who got hit worse we wouldn't think we were so bad off."

People were helping each other dig out as they assessed the damage.

"It was like walking on the moon," Falk said. "There was nothing. At first we were all in a state of denial. We actually thought we could clean this up. But after a while you have to come to the realization that you lost your home."

Falk had hurricane insurance, but several members of his family didn't. They lost everything.

In the beating rain Falk and his friend ventured out to find his wife and children. Falk's car was buried under a tree so they used his friend's van, which had no windshield.

"It took us an hour to go about a 10-minute drive. There were parts where we could move what was in the road, but other parts we just had to double back and try to take another route because the road was impassable," he said.

The family was scared, but in good shape.

The landscape wasn't the only thing that changed after the hurricane. Nearly all the rental property in nearby Broward County suddenly became more expensive. A $500-a-month apartment was going for $1,400 a month. Because there were no safe dwellings remaining in Dade County, a new class of homeless was created.

Out-of-towners set up shop on street corners selling candles and food at exorbitant prices. One man was selling $200 chainsaws — necessary for digging out — for $2,000.

Looters pillaged what they could despite the words "Looters will be shot" spray painted on the sides of houses. Many houses had their insurance policy numbers painted in a visible area to help the insurance agents find them without street signs or house numbers.

Falk tried to stay a few days in his house, but when the roof collapsed from the heavy rain, cutting his forehead, he decided it was time to get his family out. They have been renting the living room of a friend's house in a nearby city.

"And the government basically ignored the situation for a few days," he said. "I think that's because they didn't know the extent of the damage."

He was impressed with the arrival of Democratic presidential candidate Bill Clinton and his wife, Hillary.

Falk was sitting in a medical tent, waiting for a doctor to look at his foot, which he had hurt when removing debris. He saw the candidate come in the far end of the tent, and didn't think he'd be able to talk to him. Then he turned around and Hillary Clinton was standing near him.

"She sat right on the bed and talked to me and my daughter for 20 minutes," he said. "She was sweet and kind and understanding. Not at all the image people say she is. I almost felt awkward that I was taking too much of her time. Then she brought her husband over and he talked to us for a while. I could tell they cared, it wasn't an act."

It will be a long road back, Falk said. The power won't be fully restored until October at the earliest. The insurance agent said life may get back to normal in about seven months.

And there's been some strain on the family, too.

"There are psychologists all over the place down there trying to help people deal with this," he said. "It's very stressful because it's a total assault on your senses. There's the sound of alarms constantly, and helicopters flying by and constant traffic. The smell of rotting food is everywhere. There's no security — I don't like having to carry a gun everywhere I go. The swimming pools have become mosquito breeding grounds and it's so hot. There's nothing to do, either."

A local church was distributing toys for the children. His 5-year-old daughter chose swords and guns over the dolls and stuffed animals. The psychologists said the children want something that can give them power. They need to feel in control of something.

His wife Robin was able to get her job back, but Falk is an entertainer and not only is there nowhere to play, some parties in nearby cities were cancelled because they didn't want to seem disrespectful to those who were suffering.

"I'm still cleaning up and gathering clothes and other things out of my home, but sometimes I begin to think — is this worth it? If the insurance company says I have to go back to my house, I don't know. I don't know if I want to live in a place that looks like the moon and has the economy of a third world country," he said.

"That place will never be the same again."

Woods company has been paving the way for 51 years

By Pat Paholsky
Editor

From the outside, the handsome, one-story brick building that is the headquarters for Denton Construction Co. on Mack at the corner of Lancaster in the Woods blends in with its surroundings. An office building, like countless others.

Inside, however, the structure that once housed a church is the center of a network that stretches to points throughout the country, building roads and airports.

With about 550 employees, the majority of whom move from state to state, job to job, Denton Construction is no bit player.

The company is building a new runway at an airport in Kansas City and working on a project at the Dallas/Fort Worth airport; it's rebuilding a section of circular highway as well as a section of toll road in Dallas; it's also rebuilding a section of Interstate 80 from Ohio east to Pennsylvania. And employees are involved in highway projects in Uniontown, Pa., and Richmond, Va.

Presiding over the company is Leet E. Denton, whose father started the business in 1941. The younger Denton began working for his father in the summers when he was 16 and able to drive.

Denton said he never wanted to do anything else. "I enjoyed working with my father," he said.

The family lived in Palmer Woods until the late '40s when they moved to Grosse Pointe. Denton went to Detroit University School (now University Liggett), Rensselaer Polytechnic Institute in Troy, N.Y., and Babson College. He began working at the company full time in 1955.

In 1956, during the administration of President Eisenhower, the interstate highway construction bill, responsible for the extensive building of highways throughout the nation, was passed. The Denton company, which had been repairing roads during the war and building residential streets after the war, was ready.

With the auto industry centered in Detroit, Denton said it is no surprise that many innovations in road building began here.

Denton Construction was involved in building many of the roads around Eastland Center and GM's test track in Milford. The 4-1/2 mile circular track was a particularly difficult project since it was seven lanes wide with the top lane at a 45-degree angle "so you could drive 150 miles an hour without your hands on the wheel," Denton said.

The highest profile job the company did, however, was the Lodge expressway. The company recently rebuilt the Lodge, crushing up the old concrete and using it, recycling the material. Denton said the process is relatively new.

The company began bidding for government jobs — interstate highways and airports — in other states, which now account for most of its work. Key employees and supervisors live in trailers and move, with their equipment, to wherever the next job takes them.

Denton likens it to a circus, in which the employees have developed their own traveling community.

"I always say when I come back in my next life, I'll have a soap opera on TV about all the things that happen in this business," Denton said. "It's great drama; there are always things happening."

He cited deadline problems, coping with the weather — particularly the constant rain this summer — and dealing with hundreds of employees with diverse personalities and backgrounds.

Some of the equipment workers move along with themselves includes a portable cement plant which can be assembled on-site. "Our company specializes in high-production work," Denton said. "We can build one mile of a two-lane highway in a day."

During the '70s, construction workers held contests based on how much they could do in a day. Denton's "Hustling Hoosiers," working in Indiana at the time, set a world record in July 1970 for building 13,965 linear feet of road (about 2-1/2 miles) in under 18 hours.

"It used to be a big thing when people built a mile in a day," Denton said. "There was a mile-a-day paving club, then a two-mile-a-day club."

Now there are many changes in equipment and material. It is no longer necessary to use forms in which to pour cement and allow it to harden. The cement is "extruded like toothpaste," he said, and the newly paved road can be opened to traffic in four hours.

Denton traveled to Europe this spring with a group of highway officials. He said

Rotary seeks exchange program applicants

The Rotary Club has openings in its Group Study Exchange program for a limited number of young business people and professionals.

The program offers a person-to-person opportunity for the promotion of better understanding and friendly relations among the people of the world. It provides travel grants for the exchange of teams, enabling them to study the institutions and ways of life of their hosts, to develop personal acquaintance, and to exchange ideas.

Rotary selects teams of five outstanding young people between 25 and 35, representing a cross-section of business and professions, and sends them to another country for a four-week study tour.

The 1992-93 local exchange team will travel to an area in Belgium, France and Luxembourg. It will leave in April 1993 and return four weeks later. Transportation costs are paid by the Rotary Foundation, and food, lodging and travel expenses in Europe are provided by Rotary in the host countries.

People applying to be part of this year's team must live (or be employed) in Wayne, Monroe, Lenawee or Essex (Ontario) counties. They must be academically qualified, and should have special training and enthusiasm for their vocation.

Secretaries to hear nursing home expert

The Detroit Chapter of Professional Secretaries International will hold its monthly meeting on Wednesday, Sept. 23, at City Tavern, 14316 Michigan Ave. in Dearborn.

There will be networking from 5:30 to 6:30 p.m., and dinner will be served at 6:30 p.m. Attorney John B. Payne Jr.

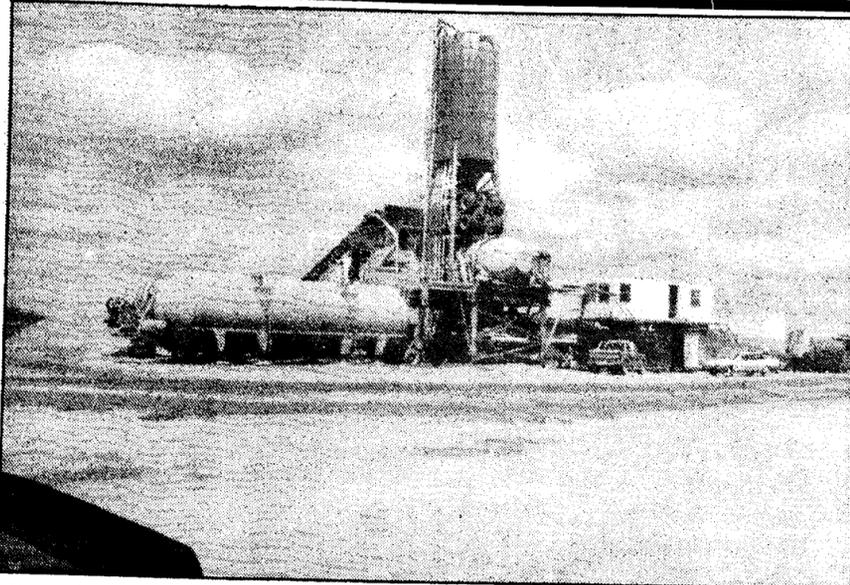

Each team member must be between 25 and 35 years at date of applying.

Applications for positions on the team must be received by Rotary Clubs in this area by Oct. 1, and final selection will be made on Oct. 17. Obtain application forms from the president of the nearest Rotary Club.

For more information, call Albert Ceravolo at 882-3795, Ray Lockhart at 885-2311 or Jack Cobau at 885-1650.

will speak on "Don't Go Broke Over Nursing Home Care." He has an active practice in nursing home care financing.

Cost for the dinner meeting is $14. For more information and/or meeting reservations, call Helen Nichols at 757-1530 during business hours.

A portable concrete plant that employees take with them can be assembled in a day or so, Denton said.

Paving

there's a lot of rebuilding of roads, particularly in East Germany, where proper maintenance wasn't a priority under Communist rule.

He recently drove to Dayton and on to Uniontown, Pa., checking on current projects. While putting 1,200 miles on his car, Denton said he had a lot of time to think. "It really distresses me that we are rebuilding roads but not adding to the capacity."

The roads were originally built for lower volumes of traffic, and as they deteriorate, they're being rebuilt as they were.

"Where's the room for growth in the next 20 to 30 years?" he asked. "Wherever we've built roads, it's led to industry and retail establishments being built. It leads to prosperity in the area, and we're really jeopardizing our future in this country."

Mass transit, he said, is more viable in smaller countries that don't have the vast distances common in the United States. "People are not going to take the subway to Mackinac for the weekend," he said, "and you can't deliver the goods necessary for industry except with trucks."

"If you drive long distances you can see the auto has become the everyman form of transportation. In Europe, cars are more for the elite. Everyone doesn't have a car and the cities are built differently."

Denton is not worried about the future of his company, however. "In my business, if they don't fix it today, they'll have to fix it tomorrow," he said.

Denton Construction has built the equivalent of 3,500 miles of new lane highway, he said.

Of his six children and two stepchildren, a son and stepson work with him. Denton said he doesn't plan to retire. "I enjoy the business. As I get older, I'll work less."

He and his wife live in Grosse Pointe City.

Two Park kids arrested in string of thefts

Two Grosse Pointe Park boys, ages 13 and 14, were arrested by Park police on Tuesday, Sept. 8, in connection with a string of thefts from automobiles that have occurred in the city.

Deputy director William Furtaw said the youths have been linked to at least nine larcenies.

They were caught after a resident of the 900 block of Nottingham called police at 1:12 a.m. Sept. 8 and said that he had just seen two youths inside his truck, which was parked behind his house.

He gave police a description of the youths, and an officer saw the suspects walking in the 1000 block of Somerset. He watched the suspects while other officers sealed off the area.

A car driving by apparently startled the suspects and they ran through nearby yards.

Officers conducted a yard-by-yard search and collared the suspects as they were attempting to hide, Furtaw said.

The youths were arrested and taken to the police station, where their parents — who said they did not know the youths had been out — were called.

The parents found items in the boys' bedrooms that were stolen from parked cars in at least nine separate incidents, Furtaw said.

The youths were released to their parents and their cases have been referred to Wayne County Juvenile Court, Furtaw said.

Architects' tour features six Grosse Pointe houses

by Margie Reins Smith Feature Editor

The Detroit chapter of the American Institute of Architects will present a tour of six Grosse Pointe architectural gems from 11 a.m. to 3 p.m. Sunday, Sept. 20.

Each house was designed by a local architect and built between 1924 and 1938. Several of the homes on the tour have been renovated or expanded recently.

Proceeds from the annual fundraiser are used for scholarships and public awareness programs.

The two smallest homes on the tour were recently redone with the help of local AIA members, and represent unique architectural solutions to the needs of individual families.

The Dohan house

The classic three-bedroom center entrance Colonial was built in 1930 on a 60-by-135-foot lot at 587 Rivard in Grosse Pointe City. The traditional design was an example of the prim, balanced New England style typical of Grosse Pointe in the 1920s. Subsequent owners added a small porch to the back of the house and a bathroom and dressing room above.

When newlyweds John and Deborah Dohan bought the house eight years ago, it suited them fine.

Since then, they've added a son, Patrick, now 2 1/2, and a unique wrap-around addition to the back of their home that nearly doubles their square footage.

"The addition was prompted by Deborah needing kitchen space," John Dohan said. "The old 1930s-style kitchen was inadequate by today's standards. The bathroom off the master bedroom was also too small when both of us were getting ready for work at the same time."

John Dohan is an attorney; Deborah Dohan is an elementary school teacher.

"Deborah is a terrific cook. I certainly support that," John Dohan said, with a smile. "I'm generally hanging out, waiting to be fed. I like being within earshot and eyesight."

The addition to the house features a bank of French doors that fill the rooms with natural light and can be opened in warm weather, enlarging the living space still further into the garden.

The Dohans enlarged and modernized the kitchen, adding an informal eating area. They installed a double-sided fireplace that serves an informal sitting area on one side and a library on the other side. On the second floor, they renovated the master suite and added a modern bathroom—built-for-two.

The third floor attic became a modern family room, full of unusual angles and planes, interesting nooks and spaces.

Designed by architect Joseph Giovannini, the addition is attached diagonally to the back of the house. It incorporates the small sun porch into a library and includes a small, irregularly shaped garden room on the side of the house, with easy access to the garden and features a built-in potting sink.

The original ceiling of the second-floor master bedroom was raised, creating a cathedral ceiling from the former attic space. A natural brick fireplace that was covered has been exposed, and the master bathroom was renovated to include two sinks and a jacuzzi. A dressing room opens onto a second-floor sun deck which wraps around the back of the house.

Giovannini designed the new addition to merge seamlessly into the existing house and set it on the diagonal to capture a long view on the narrow lot. The old portion of the house still faces the street with its symmetrical design, center entrance and formal living and dining rooms.

The Boomer house

George and Allison Boomer's three-bedroom Colonial at 189 McKinley in the Farms was designed by Swedish-born architect Emil Severin and constructed in 1931 as his home and office.

"It was very modern for its day," said Allison Boomer. "The first floor had only a small kitchen in the front and a large living/dining room across the back of the house."

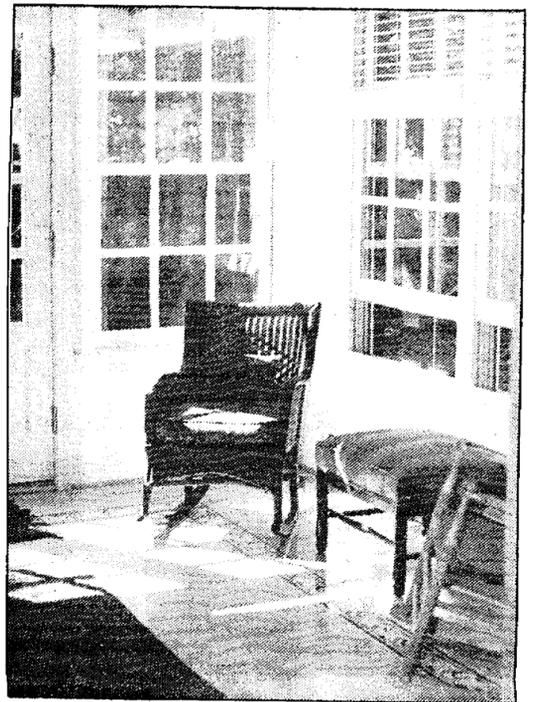

The kitchen was enlarged and renovated in 1985.

WE LISTENED

The condominium homes at Harbor Place are a direct result of listening to your lifestyle needs and desires. Our early sales have been an outstanding success, because we built to your specifications.

Again, we've been listening. The Blake Company is pleased to announce the beginning of Phase II, but this time we're adding a fresh new concept. It's a 2-bedroom Ranch Home with total one floor living. Like in our successful Cluster Home, our Ranch Home has a large kitchen, luxurious bath, storage, security system and attached 2-car garage. We also listened to your price range which is why we can offer the Ranch Home from $244,000 and our Cluster Home from $264,000. Both models are available with pre-construction pricing.

Our Cluster Homes are located in the private, secure gate-house community at Harbor Place. Harbor Place is the Grosse Pointe areas most exclusive condominium development, situated on the shores of Lake St. Clair. Boat slips are also available for purchase or lease.

Stop by our sales office and see the Cluster Homes at Harbor Place, after all, you helped build them. We listened.

The Harbor Place sales office will be open from 1-5 p.m., closed Wednesdays. To visit the site, enter from Jefferson through Riviera Terrace, 100 yds. North of Nine Mile Road, in St. Clair Shores.

Tour

"But we still needed more living space," she said.

The new sun room was also born out of a need for more space to display the Boomer's expanding collection of 20th century art.

The sun room replaced an existing screened-in porch and was designed by architect Jon Sarkesian to harmonize with the rest of the house.

The new room is heated and may be used year-round. French doors open onto a natural brick patio which is covered by a custom-designed cedar trellis that extends the living space still further. The sun room floor is whitewashed oak, matching the floor of the existing living and dining room, but has an added border of blue and white Portuguese tile. A built-in window seat along one side of the room is topped by coordinating tiles. Double-hung 12-paned windows grace three sides of the room and a custom-designed built-in desk and storage cabinets are glazed and stained to match the drapery fabric.

The Sowers house

Architect Louis Rosetti's example of the international style, built in 1938 at 10 Provençal in Grosse Pointe Farms, was designed as a summer home for heirs of the Swift Premium Flour Co.

The asymmetrical facade is smooth stucco over reinforced concrete and features large expanses of glass and low roof lines.

The architect made sure there was a commanding view of the outdoors by using floor-to ceiling glass and including access to a wrap-around balcony from each second-floor bedroom. The kitchen has been expanded by maintaining the integrity of the original design and the original art deco light fixtures are still in use, as are some of the original tiles.

The Urso house

The Tudor-style home was built in 1924 at 854 Edgemont in Grosse Pointe Park by architect Marcos Burrowes.

Timber beams are dominant in the large foyer. The living room, an addition to the original structure, overlooks the front yard as well as a rear courtyard.

Craftsmanship is a dominant feature of the house, especially in the stonework of the bay window in the dining room, the original wood trim around the library fireplace and the masonry details in the brick and stone textures of the exterior.

The Cassin house

The lakefront house at 15410 Windmill Pointe Drive in Grosse Pointe Park was designed by Detroit architect Hugh Keyes, a student of Albert Kahn. It was built in 1925.

Though Tudor in style, the house has Gothic overtones. A formal hall next to the living room resembles an enclosed cloister with a Gothic-style ceiling and a series of arched, leaded glass windows that overlook a central courtyard.

Special features of the design include a charming bay window in the library that opens to a view of Lake St. Clair.

The Golden house

The stately Georgian lakefront mansion at 15530 Windmill Pointe was built in 1929, and was designed by the architectural firm of Smith, Hinchman & Grylls.

It has the air of a great estate, with a formal, landscaped driveway, two wings and a central sandstone entry with Corinthian columns.

The front faces Lake St. Clair and offers a sweeping front yard, a small botanical conservatory and a magnificent view of the lake.

The house is a masterpiece of detail, including brick quoin corners and flat arches above multi-paned windows. Gutters and downspouts are concealed within decorative sandstone cornices and trim. Inside, a marble entry hall leads to a grand open staircase and a two-story library is decorated with walnut paneling and ornate ceiling plasterwork.

Tickets for the tour are $12 in advance; $14 on the day of the tour. Motorcoach/shuttle service for the tour will be available at the Neighborhood Club, 17150 Waterloo, in Grosse Pointe City, between 11 a.m. and 2:30 p.m.

For more information, call the AIA office at 965-4100.

Local resident receives honor from Catholic Kolping Society

The Catholic Kolping Society of America met for its 29th national convention in Philadelphia on Labor Day weekend. The Distinguished Service Award was presented to Thekla K. Abels, a Detroit branch Kolping member, a member of St. Paul Catholic Church and a resident of Grosse Pointe Farms.

The Distinguished Service Award is the highest honor bestowed on the members of the Catholic Kolping Society of America. The award recognizes members who have demonstrated special and extraordinary efforts promoting the ideals and goals of the Kolping Society on the local and national levels.

The Catholic Kolping Society was founded in 1849 in Cologne, Germany, by the Rev. Adolph Kolping. He envisioned the group giving assistance to its members and society as a whole while being a decisive influence in improving society. Father Kolping was beatified Oct. 27, 1991, in Rome.

Children's Home offers workshops

The Children's Home of Detroit Community Services will offer a free parenting workshop, "They Don't Understand Me." Suzanne H. Paille, a psychotherapist who specializes in individual, group and family therapy, will present the workshop. She will explore communication skills and effective ways to use these techniques with teenagers.

The workshop will be held at 7 p.m. Wednesday, Sept. 30, in the boardroom of the Children's Home of Detroit, 900 Cook Road in Grosse Pointe Woods. For information or to make a reservation, call 885-3510.

Association takes steps to ease burden of Alzheimer's

The Detroit chapter of the Alzheimer's Association will hold its 1992 Memory Walk from 8:30 to 11:30 a.m. Saturday, Sept. 19, at the Detroit Zoological Park in Royal Oak.

Memory Walk is a one-day fundraiser to support the chapter's efforts to ease the burden of caring for loved ones with Alzheimer's disease.

Walkers will recruit sponsors to pledge contributions for the two-mile route and all proceeds will be used for the chapter activities involving the more than 70,000 Alzheimers' patients, their caregivers and families in the Detroit area.

Walkers will also be treated to a day of festivities, food, fun and prizes.

"We're calling on residents of the community to put their best feet forward in the battle against Alzheimer's Disease," said Dian Wilkins, executive director of the Detroit chapter.

"We're looking for volunteers, walkers, and most importantly, the support of Southeastern Michigan residents in making the 1992 Memory Walk a big success."

The 1992 Memory Walk national honorary chairman is actress Shelley Fabares, star of ABC-TV's "Coach."

Registration for the walk begins at 8:45 a.m. Warm-up is at 9:15 a.m. The walk begins at 9:45 a.m. A $5 registration fee and a minimum of $25 in pledges is required. Walkers may spend the day at the zoo after the walk.

For more information, call Debbie at 557-8277.

Holiday Spree

Members of the Fontbonne Auxiliary of St. John Hospital and Medical Center are finalizing plans for the fourth annual Holiday Spree to be held from 5 to 9 p.m. Sunday, Nov. 8, at the Roostertail. There will be silent and live auctions. Proceeds will go toward the purchase of infant ventilators for neonatal care at St. John Hospital.

de's Food Systems Inc., WJBK-TV, The Salvation Army and Goodwill Industries have teamed up to help provide children's clothing for low-income families in the Detroit area. All 57 Hardee's restaurants in the area will be collection points through Sunday, Sept. 27, for the 1992 Kids Charity Clothes Closet.

Clean, new or used children's clothing may be dropped off at any Hardee's restaurant and the items will be distributed to needy children in Calhoun, Livingston, Monroe, Macomb, Oakland, St. Clair, Washtenaw and Wayne counties.

Rendezvous: The Great Lakes Bertram Owners Group will hold its second Great Lakes Bertram Rendezvous Sunday, Sept. 20, at the Grosse Pointe Yacht Club.

Last year, the event drew more than 30 owners of Bertram yachts from the Lake St. Clair area. Docking and registration begin at 9 a.m. A cocktail party will begin at 3:30 p.m. on the east lawn of the club, followed by dinner at 5 p.m. in the main dining room.

For information, call 881-0115.

New president: Women of Wayne alumni association at

Carolyn Barth

Wayne State University recently announced the appointment of its new president, Carolyn Barth of Grosse Pointe Woods. She is operations manager in Henry Ford Hospital's pathology department.

Barth earned a bachelor's degree in chemistry from Elmhurst College; a master's degree in medical technology; and a doctorate in biology from Wayne State. She also received the Outstanding Young Woman of America Alumni Merit Award and is the author of many scholarly publications.

SIDS walk: The southeastern Michigan affiliate of the National Sudden Infant Death Syndrome Alliance will hold a five-mile Fun Walk along the streets of Grosse Pointe and beside Lake St. Clair to raise money to find a cause and/or cure for Sudden Infant Death Syndrome (SIDS).

The walk begins at 11 a.m. Saturday, Sept. 19, at St. Paul Catholic Church in Grosse Pointe Farms.

Individuals who collect $25 or more in pledges will get a T-shirt. Other prizes will be awarded, such as a two-night stay at the Ritz Carlton in Dearborn.

Last year, the walk generated $11,000 and $10,000 went directly to SIDS research. For more information about the walk or to volunteer time or money, call Laura Reno at 884-4742 or Mark Titus at 790-2602.

She attended Adrian College as a pre-med student for three years, and graduated from Oakland University with a bachelor of science degree in chemistry. She studied at the Lutheran School of Theology in Chicago and was a teaching parish student at Good Shepherd Lutheran Church in Palos Heights, Ill. She did her clinical pastoral work at Harper Hospital in Detroit, interned at St. Martin's Lutheran Church in Marine City and finished her seminary education in the cooperative master of divinity program at the Ecumenical Theological Center in Detroit.

Gomulka served as an interim associate at St. John Lutheran Church in Romeo in the winter of 1991. She also served as a part time associate in ministry at St. Martin's during her final year of study. She received her master of divinity degree from the Lutheran School of Theology in Chicago in June. Her mission at First English will focus on development of a youth ministry for middle and high school students.

The community is invited to welcome Gomulka and her husband, Val, to First English and to attend a reception and coffee hour after both services in the church lounge. Call the church office at 884-5040 for further information.

Grosse Pointe United Church revamps church school program

In order to keep up with new trends and still keep family values a priority, the Grosse Pointe United Church has established a program that, according to Sara Gagen, church school coordinator, will best serve all age groups.

The first of two services at the church is a family worship beginning every Sunday at 9:15 a.m. Children are invited to attend the family worship for 15 minutes, where they will hear a special children's message before departing with their teachers and heading for classrooms. "Church school has to be a creative and fun environment combined with Christian education in order to succeed," Gagen said.

Gagen has also organized several children's choirs: the Cherub Choir for pre-kindergarten and kindergartners and the Kids' Choir Club for children in first through fifth grades. A special group, Noah's Ark, offers youngsters a chance to participate in short skits every few weeks.

The junior and senior high youths have a choice of attending class or assisting the teaching staff with the church school program for younger members.

Adults will also have educational classes each week as well as special seminars conducted periodically.

Registration for church school at Grosse Pointe United Church will be at 9 a.m. every Sunday in September, but is a continuing process all year long. All ages are welcome. The church is located at 240 Chalfonte in Grosse Pointe Farms. For more information, call the church office at 884-3075.

The Pastor's Corner Lessons in humility

By the Rev. Edward A. M. Cobden Jr.
Christ Church Grosse Pointe

Politicians are not the only ones who have a hard time with Jesus' teaching: "All who exalt themselves will be humbled, and those who humble themselves will be exalted."

The cock-sure, the arrogant, the self-righteous, the intolerant zealots — all get a lesson in humility at one time or another. Since all of us have a measure of pride which can get out of control from time to time, we, too, are inevitably running into lessons in humility.

If you play a sport, you have had a few peak moments when you played better than you ever did before. It's wonderful. Then you spend the remaining 99 percent of your endeavors chasing those peak moments and not reaching them. While the small dimpled ball remains in the sand trap or the fuzzy yellow ball flies off the court, you have to tell yourself, "I'm supposed to be having fun."

Raising children is a lengthy lesson in humility. When our daughter was raising her 2-year-old, she was living some distance away, and she called her mother to ask if she were as difficult to cope with at 2 as her own daughter.

Her mother assured her that she was. (This was a two-sided lesson in humility.)

It's hard raising children. We want so much for them and we have such high expectations that they are bound not to live up to those expectations. Further, we can't always live up to the expectations we have for ourselves as parents.

We have a job-seekers group at our church, and one of the men was telling me how important the support of the group was to him. He explained that as a career executive he wants to work. He has life-long goals for himself which can't be fulfilled unless he finds a good job. But in this economic climate with many companies down-sizing, he is having a hard time finding work. He is doing all that he can to find a job, but the economic forces in the market are against him. He would be daunted if it were not for the support of this group.

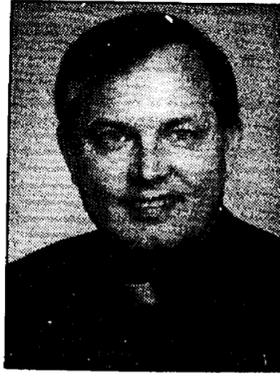

Humility is the opposite of arrogance and pride, but not because humility means we must disesteem ourselves. On the contrary, humility is the strength by which we gain a realistic picture of ourselves with all of our gifts, talents and character assets. At the same time, humility lets us understand the gap which exists between where we are and where we can be at our best.

In spiritual terms, humility is the awareness of the gap between the very best God expects of us and where we are now in our weaknesses and limitations.

Humility is the frank admission and joy that God hasn't finished with us yet. With his grace and help, we've got a long way to go. This makes us a lot more patient with ourselves.

It should also make us more understanding and patient with others. God hasn't finished with them yet, either.

St. James Lutheran has new pastor

The Rev. William Kahlenberg Theology in Chicago.

The Rev. William Kahlenberg will be installed as pastor of St. James Lutheran Church on Sunday, Sept. 27, at 4 p.m. J. Philip Wahl, bishop of the Southeast Michigan Synod, Evangelical Lutheran Church in America, will officiate and preach at the installation.

Kahlenberg comes to St. James from Peace Lutheran Church in Port Clinton, Ohio. He has also pastored congregations in Dearborn; Hamburg, Germany; Deshler, Ohio; and Beloit, Wis.

"The first priority," he said, "is to get acquainted with the members of St. James and the community, then to emphasize outreach in the congregation and be a strong witness to the gospel in this area."

A native of Ohio, Kahlenberg earned a bachelor of arts degree from Capital University and a master of divinity degree from Trinity Lutheran Seminary in Columbus, Ohio. He studied systematic theology at the University of Hamburg in Germany and did post-graduate work at Wayne State University and the Lutheran School of Amy Kahlenberg, his wife, is an artist who displays her work at art shows in Michigan, Ohio, Indiana and Pennsylvania. Her work hangs in homes around the United States and Europe. The Kahlenbergs have a son, Paul, who lives in Santa Monica, Calif., and a daughter, Ann, who is a junior at Wittenberg University in Ohio.

Kahlenberg succeeds the Rev. Robert Rimbo, now assistant to the bishop, Southeast Michigan Synod. The Service of Installation, to which the entire community is invited, will be followed by a dinner in the Fellowship Hall.

To make reservations for the dinner, call the church office at 884-0511 by Monday, Sept. 21.

Nazareth Association meets Sept. 19

The re-organized Nazareth Association, an outgrowth of Nazareth College Alumni Association, is calling a gathering of all those whose lives have been affected by the Sisters of St. Joseph of Nazareth. On Saturday, Sept. 19, from 2 to 4 p.m., they will meet at the Hyatt Regency Hotel at Fairlane TownCenter in Dearborn. For more information, call 1-800-874-6470.

Since Nazareth College closed officially in April 1992, many people have expressed interest in continuing the Nazareth tradition as exemplified by the Sisters of St. Joseph and their century of good works. They are founders of St. John Hospital and St. Francis Home and they educated many metro Detroiters in various parochial schools.

The Nazareth Association is open to all who request membership: alumni, former students, faculty, staff, alumni of their various educational endeavors, parents and friends. The non-profit group was organized for charitable, educational, religious and scientific purposes.

Lay Theological Academy to offer seven fall courses

The Lay Theological Academy consists of six local churches which provide ecumenical educational opportunities for adults. The academy will offer several new fall courses:

- "How to Live a Happier Life Through Acceptance, Forgiveness and Love." The speaker will be Joe Alff, a psychiatric social worker for the Wellness Plan. The three-session program, which began on Tuesday, will be held from 7:30 to 9 p.m. on Tuesdays, Sept. 22 and 29 at Grosse Pointe Memorial Church, 16 Lakeshore in Grosse Pointe Farms.

- "Kerygma: Discovering the Bible." The speaker will be the Rev. Gordon A. Mikoski, associate pastor at Grosse Pointe Memorial Church. The overview of the Bible will run from 7 to 8:30 p.m. on Tuesdays from Sept. 15 through June 8 at Grosse Pointe Memorial.

- "Basics in Faith: Theology for the 21st Century." Monsignor F. Gerald Martin, pastor of St. Paul Catholic Church, will present the 10-week series from 7 to 9 p.m. on Thursdays, Sept. 17 and 24, Oct. 1, 8, 15, 22 and 29, and Nov. 5, 12 and 19, at St. Paul school in Room 121.

- "Points of Light." Presented by the Rev. Peter Smith of Jefferson Avenue Presbyterian Church, the group will have an organizational meeting on Monday, Oct. 5. The rest of the meetings will be arranged with participants.

- "Lectionary Gospel: The Gospel According to St. Matthew." The Rev. John Castlot, adjunct faculty member at Sacred Heart Major Seminary, will present the class from 7:30 to 9 p.m. Tuesdays, Oct. 6, 13, 20 and 27 at St. Paul Church.

- "The First Amendment and the Freedom of Religion." The Rev. Harry Cook, rector of St. Andrew's Episcopal Church in Clawson, will lead the discussion from 7:30 to 9 p.m.

Tuesday, Oct. 13, in Room 205 at Barnes school, 20090 Morningside in Grosse Pointe Woods. The class is co-sponsored by Grosse Pointe Community Education.

- "Islam from a Christian Perspective." The Rev. Edward A.M. Cobden Jr. of Christ Church Grosse Pointe will present classes from 1 to 2:30 p.m. Fridays, Oct. 30 and Nov. 6, 13 and 20 at Christ Church, 61 Grosse Pointe Blvd. in Grosse Pointe Farms.

The Lay Theological Academy is made up of the congregations of Christ Church Grosse Pointe, Jefferson Avenue Presbyterian Church, Grosse Pointe Memorial Church, St. Paul Catholic Church, St. Paul Evangelical Lutheran Church and Our Lady Star of the Sea Catholic Church.

HAVE A PLEASANT TRY AT PERFECTION
BRIDGE BY WOODY BOYD ♠♥♦♣

The hope of fun loving ordinary people when they begin at this game is that with practice and resolution they will develop and possibly experience extraordinary possibilities. Two who did are Nancy and Jerry Cohn from Novi who are also one of the nicest and most precise partnerships we have in our suburban game. Because of their many other preoccupations their play is limited, but what a challenge and pleasure when they let themselves get involved.

I first met them at Dave and Judy's Saturday evening duplicate some two years ago and since that first confrontation I have mounted a major respect for their initiative and intuition. In their playing presence, one perceives an uncommon regard each has for the other's ability and judgement and this is in this one's opinion of striking significance. The immortal Howard Schenken once said, "The most important person at the table is your partner."

The Cohn's have been active duplicate players for a couple of decades attaining their life master rating some fourteen years ago. Since then they have compiled something in excess of two thousand points which is well above most of our local performers. I was pleasantly surprised to learn of their recent transformation from standard American to Edgar Kaplan and Al Sheinwold's exacting bidding methods, but this system is actually best suited to pairs who spend most of their play together.

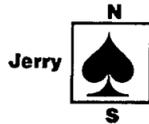

I asked Jerry what was the occasion for their most memorable celebration? His reply was singular. "The London, Ontario regional of '83. We got lucky and won the mixed pair event with two hundred forty tables in session. Nancy played superbly!" Today's hand comes from that game and you'll enjoy their exceptional defensive performance.

Jerry's diamond queen was allowed to hold and that caused him much concern. What was declarer up to? Nancy had played her seven and declarer his deuce. Had East started an echo to show attitude or was it only for count? Jerry concluded to continue the suit which declarer won with his ace. At trick (3) a trump to dummy's king and back to his spade king. Nancy thought that was odd and decided to part with her spade lady! She was giving up nothing and still had secondary control of the suit. Some genius had once told her to be generous (give up your high cards) when it looks like you're being set up for an end play. She wasn't sure, but obviously declarer must have had that in mind otherwise he would have been forced at some stage to guess the club suit. At (5) and (6), declarer drew Jerry's last two trumps. And Nancy echoed in clubs. At trick (7), a diamond to dummy's king and the spade ace. Nancy made another marvelous play, her spade jack! At trick (8), declarer played a small spade from dummy and again the very perceptive Mrs. Cohn played an amazing card; her spade three! Oh! rotten socks, she thought to herself, if Jerry doesn't have the nine. He did and he won it and dutifully led a small club, beating the contract for a tie for a top. The gracious declarer complimented Nancy on her preserving the spade three, otherwise she was end played.

LWV holds open house, lecture

The League of Women Voters of Grosse Pointe will hold its annual membership open house on Thursday, Sept. 24, at 7 p.m. at The Grosse Pointe War Memorial.

Heppner

"The Cancer Dilemma" will be the topic of speaker Gloria Heppner, Ph.D. Heppner is Director of Breast Cancer Programs for the Comprehensive Cancer Center of Metropolitan Detroit and the Michigan Cancer Foundation. She also serves as professor for Wayne State University's Department of Pathology, along with appointments with many other professional societies and editorial boards.

Heppner's experience, which includes years of cancer research, will help her explain the answer to the question on many people's minds — "Why is it so difficult to find a cure for cancer?"

The public is invited to attend the meeting to hear Heppner and to become acquainted with the league program for the coming year.

A non-partisan organization, the League of Women Voters promotes understanding of public issues and citizen involvement in the governmental process. Membership is open to all citizens of voting age.

Baroque scat? Ma, McFerrin mix it up

By Alex Suczek
Special Writer

In the surest sign that fall is here, the DSO opened its '92-93 season Saturday evening with its traditional gala.

And if the tone of the program is any indication, it's also a sure sign of a very refreshing approach to music-making by our orchestra.

Starring on the Orchestra Hall stage with the symphony were the brilliant cellist Yo-Yo Ma and that triple-threat musical phenomenon known as Bobby McFerrin — vocalist, conductor and stand-up comic par excellence. The resulting mix of good music and good fun was irresistible.

The joint appearance of Ma and McFerrin was no whim of a booking agent. The two met and became friends some years back at Tanglewood and cellist Ma enthusiastically joined in McFerrin's madcap musical adventurism. Their congeniality was evident in the spontaneous repartee as they got ready to play, and especially in the unique harmony of Ma's cello and McFerrin's voice as he sang the second cello part for a Vivaldi concerto.

The blend of the two was balanced and beautiful partly through the very skillful use of amplification, with the difference in timbre between voice and string creating an effect actually lovelier and more interesting than just two cellos. Moreover, McFerrin and Ma's cello actually seem to hold a conversation in which the singer draws on his jazz background to render the style, phrasing and embellishments of Vivaldi (and later Bach) in a kind of baroque scat.

It adds a whole new dimension to an old musical tradition.

McFerrin does plenty of fooling around on stage, much to the audience's delight. After conducting a sprightly and original performance of Strauss' "Overture to Die Fledermaus," he noted a few stragglers coming in. Crossing the runway from stage to aisle, wireless mike in hand, he offered to show them to their seats. Impressively, then, he made an instantaneous switch to serious performance with hardly a pause to get in the mood.

It was revealing to hear him repeat his voice cum orchestra treatment of the "Faure Pavane" which he had presented the summer before last at Meadow Brook. McFerrin has since grown considerably in artistic sensitivity and power and gave an even more fascinating and effective performance at Orchestra Hall on Saturday.

And whether the two were spoofing or being serious in their performances, especially in the mid-program excerpts from their recording, "Hush," the art was always uppermost.

Focusing on his role as conductor in the second half, McFerrin gave Ma his time to shine in a more traditional vein. After a satisfying presentation of Mozart's "Eine Kleine Nachtmusik," McFerrin and the orchestra accompanied Ma's performance of two movements from stunning cello concerti, one by Haydn and one by Lalo.

Ma's virtuosity tended to overshadow the fact that McFerrin is also a highly competent conductor. What seems to show through most is his feeling and enthusiasm for music which he succeeds in translating into immensely satisfying performances. Add to that his engaging style of getting the audience to sing along with some of his vocal jazz and ad-libbing and you have a totally unconventional and thoroughly enjoyable opener for what promises to be another great season.

We can look for some of that promise to be fulfilled tonight as Neeme Jarvi returns to the podium with three of the orchestra's truly brilliant musicians as soloists. To open, concertmistress Emmanuelle Boisvert and associate concertmaster John Hughes will perform the Bach "Concerto for two violins in D minor." Principal clarinetist Theodore Oien will follow with Mozart's divine "Concerto in A major."

The concert will conclude with "An Alpine Symphony," Opus 64 by Richard Strauss.

Who could ask for anything more? We wonder if the soloists will tear a page from McFerrin's book and ad-lib some stage asides between movements, or make their entrances with a little buck and wing. Jarvi already has his routines, and those we look forward to eagerly after a long summer away from Orchestra Hall. The concert will be repeated tomorrow and Saturday evening.

For tickets and information, call 833-3700.

Festival of the arts returns

By Ronald J. Bernas
Staff Writer

The Wayne State University Cultural Center becomes the city's biggest art and entertainment marketplace when the Detroit Festival of the Arts returns Sept. 18-20.

It will be the festival's sixth year and once again it will offer something for everyone. There will be free concerts, walking tours of the mansions on East Ferry, poetry readings, dance performances, movies and food.

There will also be a huge display of art.

More than 100 artists from across the country will show their wares in everything from fiber to jewelry to clay to metal to painting. Two Grosse Pointe Woods residents — Tim Harkenrider and Vicki Palazzolo — will display their glass work.

Last year's festival drew more than 175,000 Metro-Detroiters. Planners expect close to 250,000 this year.

The weekend begins with a preview tonight at 5 p.m. with a Bacchanalia of the Arts. For $50 a reveler can explore the mythical world of Bacchus, god of wine, and seven of Detroit's most treasured cultural institutions.

The party begins at Wayne State University's McGregor Memorial Conference Center where guests board a shuttle to the Museum of African American History for appetizers. They will then make the rounds at the Scarab Club, the International Institute, the Detroit Institute of Arts, the Center for Creative Studies, the Detroit Historical Museum and Wayne State's Community Arts Gallery.

Tickets include valet parking, shuttle service, entertainment and food. For information call 577-5088.

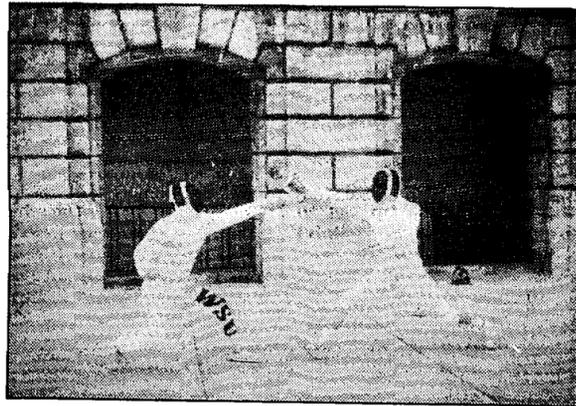

Kids will have their own fair at a festival within the festival featuring concerts, puppet shows and dozens of hands-on activities at The Imagination Factory.

Sesame Street's Cookie Monster will make a guest appearance and WJBK-TV2 will allow little newscasters to produce their own shows at its Mini News Station.

The Detroit Public Library will be the site for poetry readings by nationally acclaimed poets W.S. Merwin (who won the 1971 Pulitzer Prize for poetry) and Al Young.

The Museum of African American History will host jazz cabarets and a coffeehouse; the Detroit Science Center offers an Omnimax film festival; and the library will hold an antiquarian and collectible book sale.

Festival hours are Friday and Saturday from 11 a.m. to 7 p.m. and Sunday, 11 a.m. to 6 p.m. For more information call the University Cultural Center Association at 577-5088.

Wayne State University fencing team members will present a demonstration at the Festival of the Arts Sept. 18-20 in the Cultural Center.

Lyric Chamber Ensemble opens '92-'93 season

The Lyric Chamber Ensemble will open its 1992-93 season on Sunday, Sept. 27, at the Grosse Pointe War Memorial with performances by four Detroit Symphony Orchestra musicians.

"Musical Potpourri" is the 4 p.m. concert featuring harpist Patricia Masri-Fletcher, clarinetist Theodore Oien, oboist Donald Baker and bassoonist Robert Williams. They will perform works by Glinka, Saint Sains, Martinu, Poulenc, Tchaikovsky, Erdeli and Prokofiev.

"We're pleased and excited to be part of the Grosse Pointe concert season once again," said Thomas P. Rhoades, LCE board chairman. "Support of our concerts has been tremendous, and we think the 1992-93 season will be our best yet." Rhoades said that although the LCE presents concerts that benefit other parts of the Detroit community, "we always have considered Grosse Pointe to be our first home."

The small but thriving arts organization has been presenting concerts here for the past 12 years in a series that began at the Edsel & Eleanor Ford House in 1980.

The series moved to the War

Memorial two years ago to accommodate a rapidly growing east side audience. Concertgoers have been drawn to the innovative programming and the charm of listening to some of Detroit's finest musicians in an intimate "chamber" atmosphere with a beautiful view of Lake St. Clair.

The LCE's 1992-93 Grosse Pointe Concert Series offers four other concerts at the War Memorial — Oct. 25, Feb. 21, March 21 and April 4. There also will be a special holiday concert Dec. 6 at Grosse Pointe Memorial Church.

The Oct. 25 concert will be of particular interest because it will showcase two Grosse Pointers who also are members of the Detroit Symphony Orchestra — Emmanuelle Boisvert and Marcy Chanteaux. Boisvert, violinist and present DSO concertmaster, and Chanteaux, assistant principal cellist, will perform the music of Grieg, Wieniawski, Glazunov and Kodaly. Also appearing will be pianist Fedora Horowitz, the LCE's artistic director.

The September, February and April concerts will feature opening comments by Hona Yoffe, DSO librarian.

The LCE will also present concerts in three other Detroit locations during the 1992-93 season. On Oct. 4, a program devoted to flamenco and South American dances will be performed at the Music Hall. A Nov. 8 program featuring the works of Rossini will be the first of two concerts performed at Orchestra Hall. A second Orchestra Hall program, the

Emmanuelle Boisvert

LCE's fifth annual piano festival, is scheduled for March 7.

New for the LCE this year is a three-concert brunch series at the Gem Theatre on Woodward across from the Fox Theater. The concerts will begin at 11:15 a.m. on Nov. 22, Feb. 14 and April 25 and will feature lighter music from Viennese operetta to Duke Ellington.

With a theme entitled, "When East Meets West," the entire 1992-93 season will feature music by Eastern European composers in honor of those countries which have fought for freedom in the past decade.

Season tickets covering all series are available by mail or phone from the LCE. Grosse Pointe, Music Hall, Orchestra Hall and Gem Theater tickets also can be bought by series. Tickets to individual concerts can be purchased in advance or at the box office.

Individual and group sales information is available by calling the LCE at (313) 357-1111 or writing: The Lyric Chamber Ensemble, 3000 Town Center, Suite 1335, Southfield, Mich. 48075.

Detroit's teens shine in Attic Theatre's 'Runaways'

The Attic Theatre opens its '92-'93 season with the inspiring musical "Runaways" by Elizabeth Swados. Performances will take place at the New Center Theatre from Sept. 17 through Oct. 17.

With a cast consisting entirely of teenagers from 18 different schools, "Runaways" is a collage of songs, monologues, scenes, poems and dances portraying urban youngsters on the run. Selected from over 250 teens who auditioned, the cast is a testimonial to the prodigious talent among Detroit area youth.

"Runaways" received high praise when it was premiered by the New York Shakespeare Festival in 1978. Produced by the Attic in the spring of '92 as the culmination of its work with students in Detroit schools, audiences responded to the show with standing ovations and a flood of letters prompting the reprise.

Swados' lively score employs the musical styles of hip hop, salsa, reggae and the blues to present the exuberant and disturbing world of teen runaways. As contemporary today as it was 15 years ago, "Runaways" is both serious and joyful; an eloquent and mature musical that will touch the hearts of all those who see it.

Directed by Rick Sperling with music direction by Dwight Peterson, "Runaways" is produced in collaboration with Mosaic Youth Theatre of Detroit.

The Attic's New Center Theatre is located at 7339 Third at West Grand Boulevard, directly west of the Fisher Building. To order tickets or for more information call the Attic box office at 875-8285 or any Ticketmaster outlet. For group sales contact Deb McGarvah at 875-8285.

The Match Box is a listing of local events. To be included, fill out the form on this page. Call 882-0294 with any questions.

Now SHOWING

We review movies on a five-point scale as follows: 5-Outstanding, 4-Better Than Most, 3-It Has Moments, 2-Nothing Special, 1-Don't Bother.

2 Batman Returns (PG-13) - The misadventures of the Caped Crusader and his fight for justice against a disgusting Penguin and a once-timid Catwoman is a murky, boring mess. With Michael Keaton, Danny DeVito and Michelle Pfeiffer.

2 Buffy the Vampire Slayer (PG-13) - As a horror movie it fails, as a satire, it fails, but there are some very funny bits in this goofy comedy. If you go to see a movie with a title like this, you know what you're getting. With Kristy Swanson, Luke Perry and Donald Sutherland.

4 Honeymoon in Vegas (PG-13) - When a young man gives his fiancée away for the weekend to pay off a debt, the results are hilarious. Especially in the midst of an Elvis impersonators' convention. With Nicholas Cage, James Caan and Sarah Jessica Parker.

4 A League of Their Own (PG) - This tale of the first season of the All-American Girls Baseball League is the summer's best comedy. It aims straight for the heart and is sometimes cloying, but it's great escapist entertainment, nonetheless. With Geena Davis, Lori Petty and Madonna.

4 Single White Female (R) - Remember "Hand That Rocks the Cradle"? This is a remake, but with a psycho roommate making life hell. Still, the acting raises it a notch above most thrillers. With Bridget Fonda and Jennifer Jason Leigh.

5 Unforgiven (R) - A classic western about revenge and a whole lot more. It's violent, it's well acted and it's a must-see. With Clint Eastwood (who also directed), Morgan Freeman and Gene Hackman.

Charmaine Kaptur offers new palette of art classes at the War Memorial

Charmaine Kaptur, a member of the board of directors of the Michigan Water Color Society, is the new art instructor for several classes offered at the War Memorial.

Her portfolio boasts the Max-Imilian Jaeger Award from the Michigan Watercolor Society, First Prize in Watercolor from the Michigan State Fair, Anderson Winter Show Award, and the Merit Award from the Marygrove College Alumnae Show. She also has a master's degree in painting from Wayne State University and is a member of the Grosse Pointe Artist Association and is currently exhibiting in watercolor and handmade paper. She is instructing "Develop Your Drawing Skills" on Tuesdays, from 1 to 3 p.m., Sept. 29 through Nov. 3. Drawing will be taught as the basic foundation for other art forms. Line, value and composition will be studied, utilizing still life and landscape. Students start working in a black and white medium and progress to a color medium. Individual instruction is emphasized. Fee for the class is $46 for six weeks.

On Tuesdays, from 7 to 9 p.m., she instructs "Beginning Watercolor," Sept. 29 to Nov. 3. In this class, students learn the special fun of watercolor through demonstrations and individual experience. Still life, flowers and landscape are the subject matter. Color and design will be emphasized as well as technique and self-expression. This class is $46 for the six weeks.

"Advanced Watercolor" is also taught by Charmaine on Thursdays, from 9 a.m. to noon, Oct. 1-Nov. 12. This class, designed for the student with some watercolor experience, will focus on continued refinement of skills. Emphasis will be on individual direction. Demonstrations and group critiques are included. Fee for this class is $56 for the six weeks.

Kaptur teaches an "Autumn Leaves Sweatshirt Workshop" on Saturday, Oct. 24, from 9:30 to 11:30 a.m. She demonstrates how to make a lasting impression with leaves on your own shirt.

Create an original work of art you'll be proud to wear. Bring your own T-shirt or sweat shirt (light colors preferred) and plastic gloves. Paints will be provided.

The workshop is $10 a person plus $8 materials fee payable to instructor. For more information, call 881-7511.

Children's Theater begins registrations

Grosse Pointe Children's Theater will register new students and past members on Saturday, Sept. 19, at the Grosse Pointe War Memorial, 32 Lakeshore.

The schedule is as follows: New members in grade school can register from 10 to 11:30 a.m.; junior and high school new students can enroll from 11:30 a.m. to 12:30 p.m.

Former grade school members can register from 1 to 2:30 p.m. and junior high and high school members can enlist from 2:30 to 4 p.m.

Classes will be on Fridays and Saturdays Sept. 25-Nov. 21.

Beginners are introduced to acting by developing sensitivity through rhythmic body movement and creative drama. Improvisation, character development and basic stage directions are included as students progress. Advanced classes emphasize stage presence, basic rules of acting, characterization and use of body and voice in scenes from plays. Music and dance are also a part of the program. Children's Theater founder and director Sally Reynolds will instruct all classes.

The Grosse Pointe Children's Theater is now in its 39th year and presents four plays a season.

Fox presents 'Guys & Dolls'

A dancing ensemble of street-wise gamblers, hot-box cuties and Bible-beating missionaries will converge on the Fox Theatre when the revival of Broadway's "Guys and Dolls" arrives for 16 performances beginning Tuesday, Oct. 6 through Sunday, Oct. 18.

Starring acclaimed Broadway actress Lorna Luft, and directed by four-time Tony Award winner Jerry Zaks, this revival of "Guys and Dolls" recently took New York by storm, winning four 1992 Tony Awards including Best Revival of a Play or Musical, Best Direction of a Musical and Best Scenic Design.

Some 42 years after its historic 1950 premiere, this all-new production of "Guys and Dolls" reopened on Broadway to break box office records for opening day ticket sales, surpassing previous record holder

"Phantom of the Opera." Based on the Damon Runyon short story "The Idyll of Miss Sarah Brown," "Guys and Dolls" is about New York's Times Square of the early 1950's. The plot revolves around four characters - the perpetually engaged Miss Adelaide; her fiancé Nathan Detroit, a likable con-man and proprietor of a floating crap game; Sarah Brown of the Save-A-Soul Mission; and the high-rolling gambler, Sky Masterson.

Tickets are on sale now at the Fox Theatre box office, the Joe Louis and Cobo Arena box offices and all Ticketmaster outlets, including Hudson's and Harmony House. To charge by phone call 645-6666. For additional information call 567-6000.

Audition Notices

The Detroit Symphony Chorus will hold auditions for new members during September. Two prepared solos, one in English and one in a foreign language as well as excellent sight reading skills are necessary. Call 879-9362 between 9 a.m. and 2 p.m. Monday through Saturday to schedule an audition.

Dance registration

Dance Theatre of Royal Oak is offering fall registration by telephone for ballet classes for students of all ages and skill levels.

The studio also offers jazz and tap-dancing classes and acting instruction.

Registration runs through Saturday, Oct. 10. Call 545-6780.

Northwestern cherries are a sweet treat

The United States is one of the world leaders in sweet cherry production. Approximately 70 percent of U.S. cherries are grown in select areas of Washington, Oregon, Idaho and Utah and are identified as northwest cherries.

It's no coincidence that such a beautiful fruit comes from the northwestern United States. The region is rich in varying natural beauty and a study in geographic diversity. Cherries are grown nestled up against hillsides in the shadows of the mountains and in the valleys of irrigated desert terrain. Irrigated with fresh mountain water, this land produces great percentages of a number of America's crops including apples and asparagus.

Cherry varieties in America are a history of accident and destiny. The Lambert cherry first appeared as an offshoot bearing little resemblance to its parent, a large Napoleon cherry.

The Bing was named after a Chinese gardener who found the seedling on a trash heap. And the Royal Anne was a new name given this variety when the man who established the Oregon cherry industry lost its original label in passage.

Rich in both natural sugars and potassium as well as vitamins C and B complex, northwest sweet cherries are deliciously healthy eating year round and enjoy a popularity second to none. They can be enjoyed fresh, frozen, dehydrated or canned.

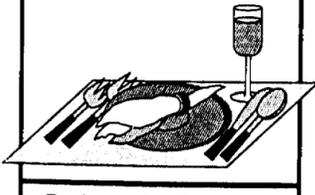

Selection suggestion: Choose cherries that are plump and bright in color. Those cherries that are mahogany or reddish brown are considered to be the most flavorful. There are some varieties, however, that are in prime when much lighter in color. Avoid overly soft or shriveled fruit and cherries with dark stems.

Cherry Jubilee

- 1/2 cup sugar
- 1 T cornstarch
- 1/4 cup each water and orange juice
- 3 cups pitted northwest fresh sweet cherries (canned sweet cherries can be substituted, but use juice from can in place of the water)

Combine sugar and cornstarch. Blend in water and orange juice. Cook and stir until thickened and smooth. Add cherries and orange peel; return to boil and simmer 10 minutes. Gently heat brandy, pour over sauce and flame, if desired. Serve over ice cream. Serves eight. Recipe from Northwest Cherry Growers.

Cherry Pepper Salad

- 1 cup canned or fresh sweet cherries, pitted
- 1 cup each thinly sliced sweet yellow and green peppers
- 1/4 cup thinly sliced mild chili pepper
- 2 T fresh chopped onion
- 2 T white wine vinegar
- 1 T olive oil
- 1 t sugar
- 1 t salt and pepper
- 1 T pickled ginger strips, optional
- 1 quart mixed greens

Toss together all ingredients except greens. Refrigerate 1 hour or longer. Serve on mixed greens. Makes 4 servings.

Cherry and Duck Salad

- 1 (3-1/2 lb.) duck, thawed if necessary
  - 1 cup salt and pepper
  - 2 cups northwest sweet cherries, stemmed and pitted (fresh, frozen or canned can be used)
  - 1 cup pea pods, partially cooked
  - 1 cup jicama cut julienne
  - 8 thin endive or romaine lettuce leaves
- Sweet-Sour Mustard Dressing (see below)

Cherry and Duck Salad

Sprinkle inside and outside of duck with salt and pepper. Roast at 350 degrees for 2 hours or to internal temperature of 170 degrees. Let stand 15 minutes and carve breast. Reserve remaining duck for another use.

Arrange slices of duck, cherries, pea pods, jicama and endive on two individual salad plates. Drizzle dressing over duck. Pass remaining dressing. Serves 2.

Sweet-Sour Mustard Dressing: Combine 2 tablespoons each olive oil and Balsamic or red wine vinegar and 1 tablespoon each chopped chives and hot mustard and 1/2 teaspoon salt. Melt 1 tablespoon currant jelly with 1 small clove crushed garlic and stir into oil and vinegar mixture. Add a few drops sesame oil, if desired; mix well. Makes 1/3 cup.

Cold Cherry Soup

- 3 lbs. tart cherries (canned, frozen or fresh can be used)
  - 1/2 cup wine vinegar
  - 3 T cornstarch
  - 1 t cinnamon
  - 1 cup heavy cream or half-cherry cream
  - 1 cup sour cream or low fat sour cream
- Drain cherries saving liquid. Puree cherries in blender or food processor (pits removed).

Add enough water to cherry liquid to make 2 quarts. Add vinegar, cornstarch, and cinnamon. Cook stirring constantly until slightly thickened. Remove from heat. Add cream. Chill.

Season with salt and/or sugar or more vinegar to taste. Serve garnished with sour cream for soup. For dessert use whipped cream slightly sweetened and dusted with cinnamon or nutmeg as a garnish. Makes 8 servings.

A modern day ghost town

My first summer trip to Colorado was about 15 years ago and one of the most enjoyable day trips from Denver we took that June was to the old gold mining town of Central City.

In 1859, Central City was the site of one of the biggest gold strikes in American history and became a boom town overnight. (It was once known as the "richest square mile on earth.") Today, the surrounding mountains are still riddled with the remains of the many mines dug during those years.

Much of the town was destroyed in a fire in 1874. However, it was revived by members of the Central City Opera Association and gradually restored and turned into a tourist attraction. The old buildings were purchased and, one by one, spiffed up and transformed into shops and saloons. You could pan for gold, ride an old train and visit a real gold mine. The town attracted over a million visitors a year, mostly in the summer.

But that wasn't enough. Keeping up the old buildings was terrifically expensive and there was talk that Central City would become a ghost town after all when some soul suggested that one of the west's oldest traditions — gambling — might be its salvation.

And so it came to be. Last October the citizens of Colorado passed legislation legalizing limited stakes gambling ($5 limit) in the historic towns of Central City, Blackhawk and Cripple Creek. The rationale was that this was the only way these historic areas could be saved.

I'm not sure that anyone foresaw what would happen. The cities are definitely saved, but their history is certainly threatened.

My return visit to Central City a couple of weeks ago was unplanned. We had thought we would be spending the day hiking in the mountains around Estes Park. However, we woke to what would obviously be a day-long rain. So we decided to drive over to Central City to visit the shops, have lunch, ride the train and let my 5-year-old nephew pan for gold. Our three teenage girls looked forward to shopping.

While we knew that gambling had been legalized there, that wasn't what we were planning to do. So we were certainly unprepared for the sight that would greet us when, an hour and a half later, we came around the big curve into the Blackhawk/Central City historic areas. Huge, and I mean huge, casino/saloons loomed over the highway.

We were so surprised, in fact, by the sight of these additions that we missed the turn into town. So we came around and headed back, noting all the way that big chunks of the mountain were being dug out, obviously for the foundations of new casinos. Blackhawk and Central City adjoin one another and as we drove down their joint main street it was obvious that virtually every building had been converted into a casino. We kept looking for the Central City that we once knew, and finally, when we saw the old Opera House and Teller House hotel, we knew that we were in the right place.

We soon reached the end of town and at The Lost Gold Mine (which still offers tours for $3.50) we asked the young parking attendant:

"Where's the train?"
"It's gone. Gambling took it."
"Where are the shops?"
"There aren't any... oh yeah, there is one."
"What is there to do other than gamble?"
"Nothin'."

And that certainly sums it up. We were further stymied by the fact that we had brought along the children and the casinos do not allow anyone under 21 in the gambling areas.

Parking is dear in Central City, so we paid our $5 to park at The Lost Gold Mine and while the 5-year-old took his parents on the mine tour, we and the girls took the shuttle bus to the "downtown" area. (An easy few blocks walk, if it weren't for the rain.) It dropped us off at the Tollgate casino and we got our first good look at Central City-style gambling.

At the Tollgate, there is a video arcade on the fourth floor — the only place in town we could find that kids were allowed other than a nice old-fashioned candy and ice cream store. We all met at the Tollgate and ended up having a rather decent lunch in its restaurant. We adults lost a few nickles and quarters in the video poker and slot machines, but that was about it. Incidentally, the only table games allowed are blackjack and poker. No craps, roulette or baccarat.

Construction is everywhere and it is obvious that Central City's new building boom is not over. And while some of the mom-and-pop casinos are already closing, overwhelmed by the bigger operations, it is obvious that the 4.4 million-plus visitors who have come since gambling was legalized last fall will ensure the future of gambling here. To date, there are 26 casinos in Central City and another 22 in Blackhawk — an area of about three square miles.

Growth is not without problems. The town is going to have to come to grips with its lack of parking and provide something to entertain children. One wonders how its superb summer opera festival will hold up to the pressures of the casinos.

Has gambling been good for Central City? Well, the town will survive, that's for sure, and no doubt it is prospering in its reincarnation. And it is obvious that the area's history buffs are trying mightily to retain what they can. But that little old mining town that was so much fun to visit is no doubt gone forever. And I, for one, will miss it. Think about that when they talk about putting gambling on Belle Isle.

Wine tastings start new season

Join the Grosse Pointe War Memorial's wine seminar group, which will meet at 7:30 p.m. the second Wednesday of each month (in October it will meet the first Wednesday) to explore a wide and varied selection of wines through tastings, lectures, films, and group discussion. Fees vary due to the cost of the wines. Wine connoisseur Bonnie Delsener leads the seminar at the War Memorial. Sample the wines of "Southern France" on Oct. 7 and learn why the magic of the Mediterranean not only offers great food and beautiful vistas, but is currently the hot spot for French wines. Terrific new properties are popping up all over the south of France, producing interesting and exciting new wines. Discover for yourself that great little bottle of red or white wine, sure to become a house favorite. Fee for this class is $17.50.

Find out more about "The Rhines of California" on Nov. 11. Can California's wines rival France's? Find out in this class. The fee is $20.

Advance registration is required. For more information, call 881-7511.

Give a life without diets

Are you ready to focus your energies on losing body fat, and get what it says on the label? Are you convinced that diets don't work? Are you willing to set aside one hour a day to energize your life while you get away from pounds of fat?

A healthful, energized "Life Without Diets" will help you get your mental anguish over your fat to rest on Tuesdays, from 10 a.m. to 11 a.m., Sept. 22, Oct. 20 or on Thursdays, from 7:30 to 8:30 p.m., Sept. 17, Sept. 22 at the Grosse Pointe War Memorial.

and Eydie Reynolds will show you how to become a more educated and selective eater. Fee for this class is $85 for six weeks.

In addition, the American Heart Association will co-sponsor with the War Memorial, the 1992 Food Festival "Turn Down Your Fatostat" on Wednesday, Sept. 23, from 9:30 to 11:30 a.m. by offering a complimentary workshop. In the two-hour workshop, learn 12 steps to cut back your fat intake and still enjoy eating. For more information, call 881-7511.

New gadget could solve downspout problems

By John Minnis

Increased concern over combined sewage overflows into the Great Lakes has caused many municipalities to ban downspout hookups to sewers — and most other cities will follow suit soon.

Residents in Grosse Pointe Woods, for example, have until next July to disconnect their downspouts from the combined sewer system.

But the ban ignores the primary reason downspouts were connected to the sewer in the first place — to prevent flooding.

Combined sewers are those where storm water and sewage are carried in the same piping to the treatment plant. Many of the Grosse Pointes have combined sewers. Harper Woods does not.

When disconnecting their downspouts from the sewer system, homeowners had basically two options — install a downspout extension so the rainwater flows onto the lawn or buy a sprinkler type hose that goes on the end of the downspout and unfurls under water pressure, thus allowing the runoff to drain on the lawn away from the house.

Water seepage near the foundation can cause basement leaks during the summer and cracks when the water freezes in the winter.

An inventor from St. Paul, Minn., however, thinks he has a better idea.

Ken Cotten, vice president of national sales at Beaver Industries, and his father, Bob, faced a downspout problem when the Twin Cities passed ordinances forbidding downspout hookups to sewers.

"For us to disconnect caused a problem with extension pipes running across walks," he said. His father made a prototype of an underground downspout, which was refined to become the product being marketed today.

"We had to contend with severe weather problems," Ken Cotten said. The biggest of which was icing. At first, water would freeze all the way up the downspout, but that problem has been eliminated, he said.

The Cottens also made the device capable of withstanding the weight of being driven over, and sediment deposits and clogging have been remedied.

Once the bugs were worked out, the Cottens began selling the device, called The Underground Downspout Kit, which retails for $24.95.

It consists of two 4-foot PVC pipes to be placed underground to carry the water away from the house and to a "bubbler pot" eight feet from the house, the recommended distance to prevent foundation damage. The bubbler pot has a dinner-plate-like cover that rests at lawn level during dry weather. When it rains, the water pressure from the downspout pushes the cover up and allows water to flow out over the lawn. Drain holes in the bottom of the pot allow water to drain into the soil, gravel or sand beneath.

A 2-foot PVC pipe runs from the underground pipe to the downspout above ground level. A filter prevents leaves and other debris from entering the PVC piping and filling the bubbler pot.

The Underground Downspout Kit's manufacturer, Beaver Industries, claims the system can be installed in about an hour. However, it takes longer if the PVC piping has to be buried beneath a sidewalk.

The system prevents flooding and foundation damage and eliminates unsightly downspout extensions protruding from the house and which have to be removed every time the lawn needs cutting.

So far, some 55,000 Underground Downspout Kits have been sold, Cotten said.

Cotten's advertisements have been noticed locally, where residents are disconnecting their downspouts from sewer systems. Cotten said he's gotten many orders from Grosse Pointe Woods residents alone.

Half a dozen Woods homeowners have ordered or inquired about the Underground Downspout Kit. One happy customer is Bernice Comiskey.

A senior citizen, she had her handyman install the system about two years ago, and even though he had to dig through tree roots, it didn't take him long, she said.

"Anybody could do it," she said.

The reason she ordered the Underground Downspout Kit was because she had a downspout extension protruding into her yard and it had to be moved everytime the grass was cut.

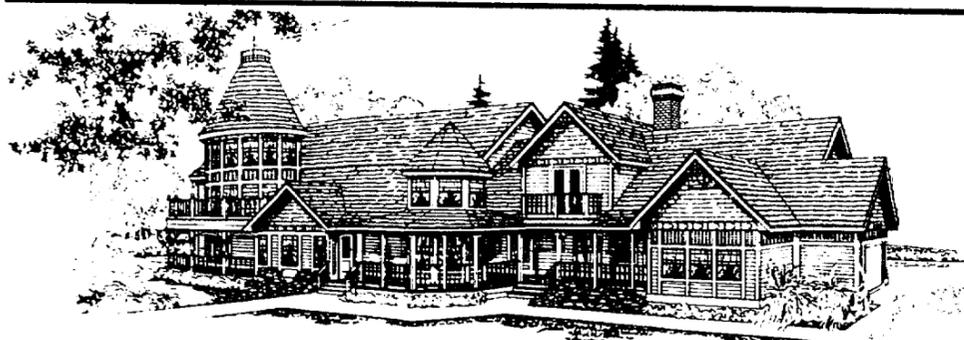

"He (the landscaper) can go right over it with the lawnmower," she said of the underground downspout system. "I've had it for almost two years. It's been working fine. It (the bubbler pot) has never filled to overflowing, even with all this rain. There's really no problem."

She said a friend of hers in Eastpointe bought three for her house and is happy with them.

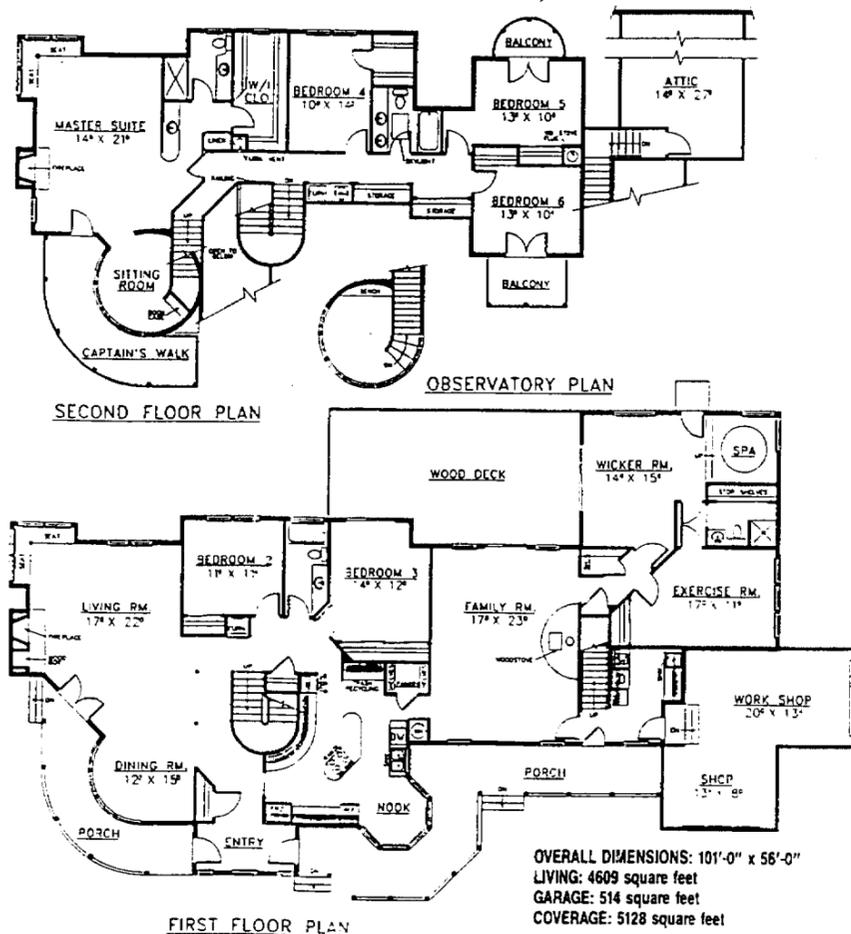

The Underground Downspout Kit can be ordered, or more information obtained, by calling Beaver Industries at 1-800-828-2947.

WATERBACH

Waterbach: Contemporary interior, Victorian exterior

Richly embellished covered porches weep across most of the front of the home, while turrets and gables treat the eye at every turn.

Inside, only the wicker room reflects the Victorian theme, but this room, too, has a modern twist. Even the grandest of Victorian mansions didn't boast a spa, not to mention an adjoining exercise room. Simulating the moist climate of the tropics, the wicker room provides a natural environment for heat-loving plants, and parrots as well.

Unique to this home, the kitchen and the entryway have vaulted ceilings. Over the octagon-shaped eating nook the ceiling is even higher, stretching up into the window-lined turret overhead. With windows at ground level, and another row above, the light in this room provides such an instant pick-me-up that its owners may be able to give up coffee.

Food preparation space is ample for multiple cooks, with range and oven located in the work island and additional counter space in three other locations. Having a trash recycling center right there in the middle of everything makes recycling tasks easy to carry through.

Fire lovers can indulge their passion in three separate locations — fireplaces in the living room and master suite, and the woodstove in the family room. Corner window seats in the living room and master suite invite you to curl up with a good book.

Another unique area is located in the master suite — a circular sitting room, partially encircled by a captain's walk balcony. Stairs from here lead up to an observatory. The master suite also has walk-in closets and two lavatories, one inside the water closet and the other outside.

Two of the upstairs bedrooms feature wide balconies and the other has a step-in closet.

While the home is designed without an attached garage, it does have a workshop area that could be converted to a garage. A large attic is accessed through a stairway next to the utility room.

For a study kit of the WATERBACH (209-39), send $7.50 to Today's Home, P.O. Box 2832-T Eugene, Ore. 97402. (Be sure to specify plan name and number when ordering.)

Edison offers new-home builders cash

New-home builders can save up to $3,400 up front — plus additional energy dollars in the future — by making their homes more energy efficient.

Detroit Edison customers building new homes can qualify for incentives of up to $3,400 if their homes meet the requirements of Detroit Edison's Energy Efficient New Home Construction Program. This program will be offered first to builders or homeowners who install electric space heating equipment.

The pilot program, for homes equipped with electric space heating systems, is part of a $13-million energy conservation package recently approved by the Michigan Public Service Commission.

"The feedback we gain from the pilot program will help us design programs that will benefit larger groups of our customers in the future," said William Steele, builder/liaison for Detroit Edison.

The new-home program offers cash incentives to customers who meet specific requirements for the installation of energy-efficient electric appliances, lighting, insulation or cooling systems.

"The purpose is to encourage customers to make energy management choices now that will pay off well into the future," Steele said.

The new-home pilot is one of 12 new energy conservation programs Detroit Edison has introduced since last fall to help residential and business customers control their energy bills.

The company recently distributed brochures about the program to builders. For more information about the new home program, call 1-800-477-4747.

L-shaped fence: A great start

Watch this garden wall grow — from sun or wind screen to storage area to a backyard gardening shop — all in easy-to-build stages that can be tackled as you have time, budget, inclination or need.

The first stage is a simple L-shaped fence that can easily be constructed in a weekend. Made from readily-available softwood lumber, the fence is designed to serve as a privacy screen for your deck or patio, or use it to create a utility area in the corner of your yard.

Next you might add a built-in workbench with storage shelves and bins along one wall and hooks and hangers to store garden tools along the outer wall. To protect your outdoor furniture and equipment from the rain and snow, you might add eaves or a simple shed roof. (Be sure to check local building codes for the proper pitch and snow load capacity.)

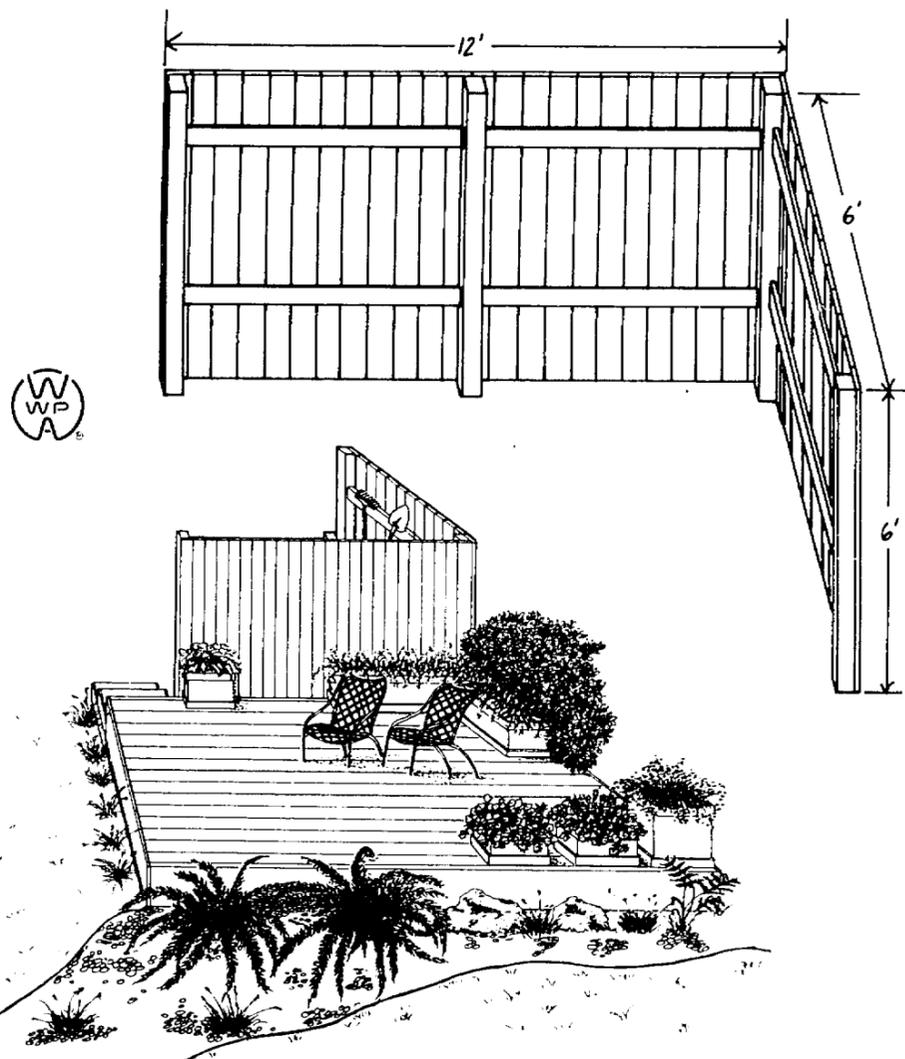

For the first stage, you can use virtually any style of fence, although you might want to alter the space between fence boards to hide garden tools and clutter. In the accompanying illustration, the fence is 6 feet high with 12-foot and 6-foot sides. These dimensions can be adapted to fit the space you have available. A set-back between the fence and your deck or patio will provide a nice bed for flowering shrubs and annuals at the base of the fence. Or, if space is at a premium, simply attach narrow planter boxes to the fence wall.

To get you started, a plan sheet featuring five different designs and detailed "how-to" instructions is available from the Western Wood Products Association (see address below). For enduring good looks, be sure to use pressure-treated softwood lumber for any wood that comes in contact with the ground. To build the fence pictured here you will need:

- 4 8-foot, pressure-treated 4x4 posts
- 6 6-foot 2x4 stringers
- 36 6-foot 1x6 fence boards
- 1 sack 3/4-inch gravel
- 2 sacks dry premixed cement
- An assortment of 10d and 6d hot-dipped galvanized nails
- A shovel or post hole digger
- Hammer
- Hand or power saw
- Carpenter's level

For a complete set of plans and instructions on how to build the fence, along with a list of other do-it-yourself projects (including several to enhance this project) which are easily built with Western softwood lumber, send $1.50 to Western Wood Products Association, Department HI 892, Yeon Building, 522 SW Fifth Avenue, Portland, Ore. 97204-2122.

This L-shaped fence starts out as a privacy screen for your deck or patio, then grows in easy stages into a storage area for garden tools and patio equipment. Add a built-in bench with storage compartments and you have a backyard gardening shop.

Architect rebuilds observatory at Old Miss

By Stephanie Stubbs
AIA News Service

Barnard Observatory, on the University of Mississippi campus in Oxford, spent portions of its 137 years working at a number of odd jobs — it served as a hospital, classrooms, a residence, and a home for the naval ROTC. That all changed in 1979 when William Ferris and Ann Abadie moved their offices into the building's dilapidated east wing.

They brought with them the fledgling Center for the Study of Southern Culture and a dream of returning Barnard Observatory to its rightful glory. At one time slated for demolition, the observatory was listed in the National Register of Historic Places in 1979, and designated a Mississippi landmark in 1986. Two years later, architect Thomas Howorth (then with Mockbee Coker Howorth, now principal of Howorth & Associates, Architects) embarked on the painstaking restoration of the observatory building, which was completed in July of this year.

If this building could talk, it probably would tell you its fascinating life story. It was under construction from 1857-59 at the behest of Frederick Barnard, first chancellor of the University of Mississippi. Barnard dreamed of a world-class scientific research center patterned after the observatory at Harvard (which itself was patterned after the Pulkovo Observatory in Russia). He designed his dream facility, calling on a knowledge of architecture that was a traditional part of any scholar's education at the time. The jewel in the building's crown was to be the world's largest telescope. Before the lens could be delivered to the campus, the Civil War broke out and Barnard's dream was shattered. The lens ended up in the Dearborn Observatory at Northwestern University, where it remains to this day.

The observatory building was spared from destruction during the war, in part because it served as a hospital for soldiers who had fought on both sides. Even when returned to academic use, the observatory was greatly scaled down; the building served also as a faculty residence and eventually became the naval ROTC's base. It was pushed and pulled, added to and subtracted from, until in its sorry state it languished in neglect.

The observatory's 15,000 square feet belie its large and varied volumes of space, which range in ceiling height from 9 to 20 feet. In fact, architect Howorth was most taken with the building's series of volumes as well as the purity of its architectural expression. "In a lot of ways the building is very modern — it doesn't have much in the way of applied ornamentation," he says.

To restore the building, the architect had to repoint all the brickwork and replace the entire roof. The original balustrade, which had been missing for years, was re-created out of concrete reinforced with fiberglass. Many of the changes to the original interior, including tall volumes that had been split into two levels, were removed to recapture the voluminous use of space. A ruined back porch was removed, and its replacement contains a ramp instead of a straight floor to allow access for people with disabilities.

In Barnard's day, his dream of creating a world-class facility in Oxford was backed by the resources of one of the richest states in the country. For a long time, the war and its aftermath put the dream on the back burner, but now, Howorth believes, there is genuine interest in re-establishing centers of excellence within the university. "The Center for the Study of Southern Culture is part of that dream," he says.

In this way, the observatory, to be dedicated in October, seems finally to have found an appropriate use.

Realtors schedule Home Fair

The Grosse Pointe Board of Realtors is sponsoring its 7th Annual Home Fair.

The fair is designed to give homeowners and vendors of home-related products and services a chance to meet and exchange ideas and information.

Vendors will have an opportunity to display their products and services to potential customers, while homeowners have a rare chance to pick up fresh ideas and meet vendors in an informal and neutral setting.

The realtors plan to have approximately 60 vendors showcase their goods and ideas regarding home remodeling, interior design, landscaping, security systems, furniture refinishing, mortgages, and home inspections. Admission is free, and so are refreshments and door prizes.

The one-day only event will be held Thursday, Sept. 24 from 1 to 6 p.m. The fair will be held at the Assumption Cultural Center located at 21800 Marter Road (north of Vernier between Mack and Jefferson).

If you have any questions regarding attending or displaying in the 1992 Home Fair, contact the Grosse Pointe Board of Realtors at (313) 882-8000.

Senior living offers a new array of choices

By Amy Gray Light
AIA News Service

Today's healthier life-styles and advances in medical care allow Americans to live longer than ever, which has spawned rethinking housing for seniors.

A number of innovatively designed retirement facilities are erasing many stigmas that have long been associated with nursing homes. Gone are the sterile, drab one-story buildings with long institutional corridors and small, dimly lighted rooms.

In their place are retirement communities ranging from resorts with high-rise buildings to urban "villages" and community "campuses" that provide all necessary shopping and services right on the site.

These new types of facilities for seniors share certain key characteristics. First, regardless of size or location, they all use building forms and materials that give the living units a residential scale and character and incorporate the design vernacular of the region to integrate themselves into the community.

They all are self-contained, with some kind of central area or "town center" to provide a hub of activity.

For urban villages, this may be a central town square surrounded by a mall with retail shops. An urban tower may have a community center located on its ground floor or perhaps on the penthouse floor to offer views of the surrounding area.

Other characteristics of successful facilities include secure outdoor courtyards and adaptable, barrier-free living units.

Residential units have grown larger than the 200- and 300-square-foot studio apartments of the past. They encourage personalization by providing individual foyers, built-in shelving, and private bathrooms. Some units are "clustered" around shared kitchen, dining, and laundry facilities, with small, flexible nursing stations located unobtrusively nearby.

Many of the facilities offer a full continuum of care to the residents — from independent living to assisted living to skilled nursing — as each need arises.

The Bruening Health Care Center in Cleveland offers an excellent example of a high-rise complex that provides a full spectrum of care. Local architectural firm Herman Galvin Gibans Inc. carefully designed the facility to blend into an urban hillside setting.

The bulk of the building is modulated to create a residential scale, and its structural frame is stacked to allow clear views from the residential units.

A top-floor health pavilion provides the hub of activity and integrates food service, health care, support facilities, and amenities such as a roof terrace and club room.

Residents who need assistance or skilled nursing care live in units that contain clusters of seven beds arranged around nursing stations to maximize personalized care. Owned by the Judson Retirement Community, the 165,000-square-foot facility was completed in 1991.

While the Bruening Center represents a solution to senior living in the city, the Sunrise Retirement Home in Arlington, Va., is a prototypical project located in a suburban residential area. Completed in 1988, Sunrise was modeled after turn-of-the-century Victorian mansions as well as the communal living facilities prevalent in the owner's native Holland.

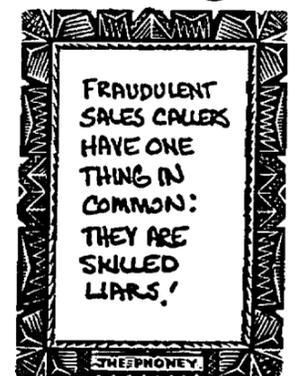

Heffner Architects of Alexandria, Va., designed the L-shaped, 26,300-square-foot house to keep it in scale and character with the surrounding neighborhood.

Sleeping rooms located on all three floors are grouped around shared living spaces that contain solariums, public and private dining rooms, and covered porches. To preserve the feeling of a homelike atmosphere throughout the house, one small office handles all paper work.

These two projects are among the 45 facilities for seniors that received awards in the 1991-92 Design for Aging Review by the American Institute of Architects in Washington, D.C.

The future: Universal design

By Doug Stranahan
Regional Director

Century 21 of the Great Lakes

Today there are more than 43 million Americans living with disabilities. Although many are children cared for by their families or adults with active careers who can live independently, a growing number of our disabled are elderly.

Our life span is increasing: the National Easter Seal Society estimates that 70 percent of all Americans will be disabled to the point where they are temporarily or permanently unable to climb stairs or reach electrical outlets. Therefore, it's time homeowners recognize the growing necessity and benefits of accommodating all members of the family with "universal" or "trans-generational" designs.

Century 21 Real Estate Corp. and the National Easter Seal Society, co-sponsors of the "Easy Access Housing for Easier Living" campaign, say it's important to know the difference between two commonly used terms when referring to universal home design: "accessible" and "adaptable."

An adaptable house has certain structural features that make it possible to modify later for accessibility, if the need arises. Generally, homes that are adaptable have wide hallways and doorways, and at least one bedroom and bath on the same level as the common living, dining and kitchen areas.

An "accessible" home is already equipped with modifications to meet the needs of a person with disabilities — or again, an older adult.

However, it's imperative to note that "accessible" means different things to different people. The needs of a person who uses a wheelchair vary from one who has arthritis or uses a cane.

While all rooms in a home are important for adaptability or accessibility, there seems to be a growing trend in consumers wanting open, universally designed kitchens and baths — the same areas that are typically key to a home's resale potential. Since the kitchen and baths are also the most-often remodeled rooms in a house, think long-term by considering accessible cabinets, pull-out shelves, sinks, faucet levers, electrical outlets and switches, etc., when re-doing these areas.

Of course, before starting any major remodeling projects, you should consult a certified designer on what makes sense for you — and what will widen the appeal and increase the resale value of your home. To educate yourself, there are many informational booklets or pamphlets available on accessibility or adaptability, such as the "Easy Access Housing for Easier Living" checklist brochure. It is available free-of-charge by sending a self-addressed, stamped, business-size envelope to:

"Easy Access," c/o National Easter Seal Society, 70 East Lake Street, Chicago, IL 60601.

This checklist supplies general guidelines for every room of the house and will give you a good idea of how to create a warm, inviting home that every member of the family, from small children to great-grandparents, can enjoy.

Antiques by Ralph & Terry Kovel

Chicken dish — The chicken-on-the-nest has been an obvious idea for a covered bowl since the 18th century. Examples of early English Staffordshire, German Meissen and French porcelains can be seen in museums and in collections. A realistic bird covers the nest-shaped bowl guarding the contents (possibly some boiled breakfast eggs). The idea continued with glass hen covered dishes of the 1860s-1890s.

Copies of the milk-glass dishes are still popular. The milk-glass makers used many types of covered dishes — everything from small battleships and admirals to cats. Early porcelain makers seemed to prefer serving dishes that represented only edible animals.

Q. My dresser is an heirloom from my husband's family. We have been told it was handmade in Europe in the 1700s, shipped to the United States by boat, picked up at a port in Texas as a wedding gift to a great-great-grandmother. All the drawers can be taken out, turned upside down and reinserted, proof, we are told, that it is handmade. It has small blisters and bumps on the finish that we are told is from resin that has been blown through a quill. Can you add to the history?

A. Family legends are charming but often inaccurate. The picture you sent shows a style of furniture made in America about 1840-1850. When figuring the age of an antique, take 25 years to a generation. You are six generations or 150 years removed from the purchase of the dresser.

We have never heard about the "upside down drawer" test. A drawer with no runners, if well made by hand or machine, will pass the test. The "resin through a quill" is a very strange story. The bumps on the finish of old furniture are caused by excessive heat, moisture or improperly sealed wood. The bumps are considered defects, and a finish with these spots is usually sanded smooth and redone.

Q. I collect old punchboards. How long have they been used in the United States?

A. The punchboard was a favorite trade simulator used in grocery stores, tobacco stores and drug stores in the early years of the 20th century. A typical punchboard was made of pressed paper with many holes. Each hole had a coded ticket inside. You paid for the right to punch the ticket out of the hole, and you won the prize listed on the ticket.

By the 1950s, the punchboards were often considered dishonest. Most of the prizes offered were not given away. Punchboards are still made today, but collectors favor those from the 1920s to 1950s with clever graphics and unusual prizes. They range in size from 100 punches to 10,000.

Q. I have a figurine that pictures three naked women holding hands in a circle. I have seen it in metal, in marble and even in pictures. Someone said it is called "The Graces." Do you know who made the original figure?

A. "The Three Graces" is a famous marble sculpture made by Antonio Canova of Italy. He lived from 1757 to 1822. Many of his marble sculptures were copies in pottery and print to be displayed in Victorian times.

Short-yardage play helps South in the long run

By Chuck Klonke
Sports Editor

A short-yardage play turned out to be a lot more than Grosse Pointe South's coaching staff had anticipated as the Blue Devils got off to a good start in the rugged Macomb Area Conference White Division.

Three straight bursts up the middle by fullback Charles O'Loughlin broke a scoreless tie early in the second half and tailback Chad Hepner scored the eventual winning touchdown on a four-yard run midway through the fourth quarter to lead South to a 12-7 victory over Warren Mott.

"Mott came out in a different defense than it used in the first half, so we gave the ball to O'Loughlin on a short-yardage play," said Blue Devils' coach Jon Rice. "He gained 10 yards, so we came back with the same play two more times. It was the situation we wanted and it just exploded."

After O'Loughlin's 10-yard burst to the Marauders' 20, he carried to the 11 on the next play and dashed into the end zone on his third straight carry to break a scoreless tie.

South's extra point attempt failed after a high snap from center.

"We hung in there," Rice said. "We thought we should have scored a couple times off our drives in the first half, but we didn't. Fortunately, our defense controlled the tempo of the game."

Mott ran only 39 plays from scrimmage, while South had 56.

South didn't have long to celebrate the victory over Mott before beginning preparations for Friday's game at Romeo. The Bulldogs are 0-1 in the MAC White after dropping a 20-17 heartbreaker to a strong Fraser squad.

"That was a great game," Rice said. "Romeo has a sound team offensively and defensively and it's well-coached. They're a scrappy group of kids."

Rice figured before the season started that it could be a six-team battle for the White Division crown and he's changed his tune only slightly.

"There might be seven teams in the fight," he said. "L'Anse Creuse North is 2-0. They could be better than people thought."

South's second drive of the second half against Mott took the Blue Devils to the Marauders' 12. Tim Harmount attempted a 30-yard field goal that sailed just wide of the uprights.

But South wouldn't be denied on its next possession. Hepner carried five times for 38 yards as the Blue Devils marched 65 yards in nine plays. Quarterback Scott Lupo, who completed eight of 15 passes, hit Ryan McCartney for 24 yards to the Mott 32 and Hepner broke loose for 23 yards to the Marauders' five. Two plays later, Hepner skirted left end for a four-yard touchdown run.

A pass attempt for the conversion failed, leaving South with a 12-0 lead.

Mott scored on a 17-yard pass from junior quarterback Billy Ramsey to Mike Herndon with 3:16 left and Brandon Borgesser kicked the extra point to cut the Blue Devils' lead to five.

South then ate up all but the last 43 seconds of the game as Hepner, who carried 28 times for 153 yards, had a key first down on a 20-yard run.

"That was a few more times than we'd like to use him, but Chad has prepared himself for a heavy work load," Rice said.

The Blue Devils took a blow on the opening kickoff when running back Steve Bednarchik suffered bruised ribs and didn't see further action. Rice said he expects Bednarchik to be ready for Romeo.

South had a strong performance from the offensive line — tackles Richie Reynolds and Andy Crowley, guards Don Leal and Jesus Graham, center Jesse Culver and tight end Steve Solaka.

"The whole line seems to improve with each game," Rice said.

Lupo threw the ball well and receivers McCartney and Aaron Letscher each made outstanding catches to provide balance to the Blue Devils' offense.

There were several defensive standouts for South. Linebacker Ted Hanawalt had seven solo tackles and two assists and defensive back Corey Geer had seven solos and five assists. Leal, Chris Holley and Bill Gough each had six solos and four assists.

"We tried to contain (Mott running back T.J.) Valente outside and we did a great job," Rice said. "He only had 35 yards in 10 carries before he got hurt in the third quarter."

Lady Knights' streak reaches 21 tournaments

By Chuck Klonke
Sports Editor

The University Liggett School's girls tennis team probably doesn't remember what it's like to lose a regular-season tournament.

"We talk about being successful, but we don't bring up the winning streak," said coach Chuck Wright after his squad won its 21st straight tournament last weekend by defeating three rivals in the ULS Invitational.

"We try to keep the pressure off the girls as much as we can."

The Lady Knights didn't play like they were under pressure as they finished with 19 points to 13 for runner-up Grosse Pointe South. East Grand Rapids was third with 11 points.

The tournament triumph kept ULS ranked No. 1 in the state in Class A.

"There was a lot of good competition in the tournament," Wright said. "A lot of the matches went three sets, but there were no big surprises."

The Lady Knights took the first three singles flights with Shannon Byrne, Heather Heide and Ify Obianwu. ULS also won first doubles, although Grosse Pointe North's Natalia Rodriguez and Monique Laba-die extended the Lady Knights' Carrie Birgbauer and Lauren Gargaro to three sets in the championship match.

ULS' second (Elaine Calderon and Katie Frederick) and third (Bevan Garrett and Meredith Korneffel) doubles teams went three sets before bowing to Grosse Pointe South's Angela Roxas and Alexandra Wehmeier and Missy Kordas and Christy Reed.

Although ULS coaches Wright and Sarah Mayer were pleased with the efforts in last week's tournament, they realize there is still a ways to go.

"We have a lot of work to do to improve and become a legitimate state championship contender," Wright said.

This week the Lady Knights had dual meets with Cranbrook, Toledo Notre Dame and Marian.

Basketball

The University Liggett School girls basketball team opened its season with a win and a loss in last weekend's Greenhills Invitational in Ann Arbor.

University Liggett School defensive lineman Matt Corona is poised and ready to strike the moment Lutheran East center Barry Gray snaps the football.

ULS bows in league football opener

By John Miskelly
Special Writer

A football team that commits 16 penalties for 105 yards isn't expected to win.

Lutheran East defied that logic last weekend as it overcame the officials' flags to spoil University Liggett School's return to the Metro Conference with a 34-0 victory.

The Knights, who are 0-2 overall, visit Metro Conference rival Lutheran North on Saturday for a 1 p.m. contest.

North is 1-1 and the Mustangs won their conference opener against Hamtramck last week 34-6. Quarterback Tom Leinberger completed 12 of 20 passes for 187 yards and two touchdowns. Wide receiver Mark Dahn caught five of those tosses for 74 yards and one score.

North's passing prowess doesn't scare ULS coach Bob Newvine.

"We do very well against teams that pass the ball," he said.

While East passed only once against ULS, North will surely throw much more often.

Last week, the Knights looked good on their first drive, but then disaster struck.

Lutheran East began its first possession midway through the first quarter. ULS stopped the drive on the first series of downs and the Eagles lined up for a short field goal. The snap was bad and East running back George Powell, who had 27 yards on eight carries and scored three touchdowns, scooped up the ball, avoided several tacklers and rambled in for the score.

"It all snowballed from there," Newvine said.

Within four minutes, East had a 20-0 lead. Quarterback Kareem Binion raced 76 yards around end for a touchdown with 3:25 left in the first half to give the Eagles a 26-0 advantage. Binion ran six

North girls beat 3 rivals

Grosse Pointe North's girls cross country team took on three opponents last week and whipped them all quite handily.

The Lady Norsemen ran to a 15-40 victory over Sterling Heights Ford, an 18-42 triumph over L'Anse Creuse North and a 15-50 shutout of Lakeview in a triple dual competition.

Coach Charles Buhagiar's North squad placed five runners in the top seven spots.

Jessica McLalin was first and teammate Vinnie LaPiana took second place. Nina Misuraca was fourth, Becky Clor fifth and Alissa Zepke seventh in the season opener for the Lady Norsemen.

North's boys team started almost as well, beating two of its three foes in a quadrangular meet.

Ford finished with 22 points, followed by North with 44, Lakeview 72 and L'Anse Creuse North 100.

Basketball

North's girls basketball team opened with an impressive victory over East Detroit, but then the Lady Norsemen ran into a powerful Regina squad.

North jumped to a 14-0 lead and was never challenged by the Shamrocks on the way to a 50-18 victory. The Lady Norsemen led 17-5 after the first period and had a 26-13 halftime advantage.

Alana Hansen led the scoring with 12 points. Alanna Morrison had eight points and eight rebounds and Amy Sacka contributed five points while playing an excellent defensive game.

North stayed with Regina for a quarter, trailing 6-4 after the first eight minutes, but the unbeaten Saddletites stretched the margin to 26-11 at halftime.

Regina went on to a 44-22 victory.

Morrison led the Lady Norsemen with seven points. Sacka played another excellent defensive game, holding Regina's All-Stater, Paula Sanders, to four points, all on free throws.

Tennis

A first-place tie in the Port Huron Invitational and an impressive 4-3 victory over Ann Arbor Huron highlighted North's girls tennis team's first week of action.

The Lady Norsemen tied for first with Bloomfield Hills Lahser in the Port Huron tournament that included Fraser and host Port Huron Northern. North won all four doubles flights behind Natalia Rodriguez and Monique Labadie (No. 1), Sara Grande and Kim Dornbrook (No. 2), Denise Mills and Lauren Fisher (No. 3) and Nicole Kim and Alicia Venettis (No. 4).

The victory over Huron featured wins by Gretchen Szazima in fourth singles, Rodriguez and Labadie in first doubles, Grande and Dornbrook in second doubles and Fisher and Mills in third doubles.

North also wound up third in the eight-team Troy Invitational. Rodriguez and Labadie won first doubles and Grande and Dornbrook finished first in second doubles.

Soccer

Mike McHugh scored two goals and Scott Semple and Dean Balcirak added one apiece as the boys soccer team blanked Utica 4-0 in a Macomb Area Conference White Division game.

Barons open season with varsity victory

The Grosse Pointe Red Barons cruised to a season-opening 28-13 victory over the East Detroit Tigercats last Sunday behind the passing of Kyle McCartney, the running of Chris Morkut and a dominant offensive line.

The little league football team's junior varsity lost to East Detroit 14-0, while the freshman squad posted a 20-19 comeback victory.

The varsity scored on two of its first three possessions and never trailed. The first touchdown was set up by Morkut's 20-yard run and McCartney's 25-yard pass to David Grant. Morkut scored on a five-yard run and McCartney passed to J.R. Hiller for the point-after and a 7-0 lead.

After the kickoff, defensive end Kevin Brandon pounced on an East Detroit fumble and McCartney went to the air again. He completed a 30-yard pass to Hiller and a seven-yard touchdown strike to Steve Gayman.

The Red Barons got two more points when Phil Cataldo and Grant tackled a Tigercats' runner in the end zone for a safety.

On Grosse Pointe's next possession, Gayman galloped for runs of 15 and 25 yards and Morkut scored on a two-yard burst.

The Red Barons got their final touchdown in the third quarter when Morkut ran 29 yards to the East Detroit two and Gayman scored two plays later.

Grosse Pointe controlled the line of scrimmage with outstanding blocking from center Steve Dube and linemen Jason Lorence, Martin Mathews, Eric Neveux, Dan Raymond, Nick Paquin, Jess Thibodeau and Jack Ryan. The Barons also had solid running from Jay Watson and Bronson Gentry. Bryan Mack recovered a Grosse Pointe fumble to keep a drive alive.

On defense, Matt Gorczyca and Mathews recovered East Detroit fumbles, Charlie Ingrassia sacked the quarterback and Lloyd Gentry played well. Jeremy Lutz did well on kick-offs.

The JV defeat came despite some big plays, including a 25-yard pass from quarterback Jimmy Louisell to Andrew Hendrie in the first half and a 20-yard run by Mark Weber in the second half.

The Red Barons had solid running from Rory Cleary and Jon Paquin and strong blocking from linemen Eddie O'Brien, J.J. Kinkel, Chris Profeta, Matt Tocco, Bryan Kupets and William Solomon.

On defense, Cam Lovelace recovered a fumble, Steve Allor intercepted a pass and James Thomas made a nice play to break up a pass. Other defensive standouts were Ricky show any opening night jitters as they rolled to a 45-35 victory over Lutheran West in the semifinals.

Magda Chojnacka had 11 points, Kania Kennedy scored nine and Melissa Buhalis added six for ULS.

"For the girls' first game, they played fairly well," said coach Ann Belloli. "We made some mistakes, but we also had some moments where everything went our way."

The Lady Knights stayed with host Greenhills through three quarters in the championship game, but wound up losing 45-30.

Chojnacka and Julie Grant each scored 10 points against Greenhills.

"Greenhills had a height advantage on us," Belloli said. "They had some good outside shooters and when we went after them, they worked the ball into their big people."

"I was pleased with our press in both games. We're becoming more confident in running the offense."

ULS' next game is at home today, Sept. 17, against Roeper. The junior varsity game starts at 4:30 p.m.

Soccer

Ties often leave a coach with an empty feeling, but University Liggett School's David Backhurst was encouraged by the Knights' 2-2 deadlock with a strong Cranbrook squad.

"We came from behind twice against a good team," Backhurst said. "We've never beaten Cranbrook, but we're looking forward to playing them at home later in the season."

ULS fell into a hole quickly against the Cranes as a handball was called on the Knights with the game only 15 seconds old. Cranbrook converted the penalty shot for a 1-0 lead.

"I didn't think it was a good call because the ball just glanced off our player's arm. He wasn't trying to play it," Backhurst said. "That put a huge weight on our backs."

Cranbrook's 1-0 lead held up through the first half, but ULS got a penalty kick on a handball with 15 minutes left in the game and Jeff Backhurst drilled a shot into the lower left corner to tie the score.

It was the third time this season the Knights have scored on a penalty kick and the senior midfielder has converted all three.

"I always go with the hot foot and Jeff has it right now," the coach said.

The tie was short-lived as Cranbrook scored from a goal-mouth scramble five minutes later, but with less than five minutes remaining sophomore defender Tom Simmonds pulled ULS back into a tie with a fine individual effort.

"We've been encouraging him to get into the attack so he had pushed up at that point in the game," David Backhurst said. "He just drilled a shot from about 16 yards."

ULS had strong performances from senior forward Gary Spicer and sophomore defenders Simmonds and Chris Corneau.

"Cranbrook hit a lot of long balls, hoping that we'd misplay them, but our young kids did a good job," the coach said. "We also got a big save from goalie Vince Harkins, who volleyed a shot over the net right after Cranbrook scored its second goal."

The Knights were also scheduled to play Lutheran North last week, but the game was postponed when only one referee showed up.

With 46 seconds remaining in the first half, a bad snap on a ULS punt gave the Eagles the ball on the Knights' 13. Two plays later, Powell scored from the six and East led 32-0 at halftime.

"We felt we could play with them," Newvine said. "The kids did the best they could."

Although he wasn't making excuses, Newvine pointed out that his team is young. There are seven sophomores and eight freshmen on the varsity roster and only seven seniors. Many of the Knights are still learning the game.

An encouraging aspect of the loss was the way ULS played in the second half. The Knights held the Eagles' offense scoreless and East's only points came on a safety as time expired.

A key play by the defense was a fumble recovery by ULS cornerback Mike Fox. Fox also led the Knights in rushing with 24 yards on three carries.

"I encouraged the kids played well in the second half," Newvine said. "We shut them down defensively."

The defense wasn't entirely at fault for the first-half explosion. Four of the Eagles' five offensive scoring drives began in ULS territory — at the 10, 49, two and 13-yard lines — which put repeated pressure on the young defense.

PGSA teams do well in tourneys

Two teams from the Pointe Girls Soccer Association won championships in recent tournament action.

The Under-16 Pointe Mustangs finished first in the Cherryland Invitational in Traverse City and the Under-12 '81 Mustangs won Division I in the Romeo Peach Festival tournament.

The U-12 squad won the championship with a 1-0 victory over the Royal Oak Strikers when Jenny Sigler, assisted by Carrie Howe and Lindsay Willett, scored with 22 minutes left in the second half. Mustangs' goalie Rebecca Cadaret posted the shutout.

The Mustangs opened the tournament with a scoreless tie against the Birmingham Burners. Forwards Anne Peacock, Beth Howson, Allison Kealer and Holly Wellard had good scoring opportunities, but were unable to put the ball in the net.

The second game also ended in a tie — 1-1 with the Rochester Rockettes. The Mustangs scored first on a free kick by sweeper Julia Rouls after a handball but Rochester tied the game despite the outstanding defensive play of Grosse Pointe's Nicole D'Hondt and Amy Allen.

The winners got fine games from midfielders Lindsay Hawkins, Meg Guillaumin and Allison Dold.

The PGSA '82 Mustangs finished second in the division at the Peach Festival Tournament.

Stephanie Wilhelm and Julie Berschback led the team in scoring, while diamondback Katie Kraft and halfbacks Kyle Barrett, Brenna Mansfield, Rachael Gajewski and Ann Mummaw also played well.

Other standouts included forward Molly Bourbeau, stopper Kristi Freundl, goalie Mo Loy, sweeper Lauren Jahnke, defenders Molly Wimsatt and Leah Norris and Erica Hill and Amanda Lindow.

The U-16 Mustangs won their tournament in Traverse City with a 1-0 victory over the Rochester Raiders in the championship game.

Betsy Grego scored the only goal with an assist to Robyn Maples.

"With only three practices before the tournament I really didn't know how well we could do," said coach Rick Grenzke. "Conditioning was a great concern, however the girls seemed to gain stamina as the weekend progressed and by the time we played the finals, everyone was ready to go."

The Mustangs opened the tournament with a 12-0 victory over the host team, the Jackson Best.

scoring act, including goalkeeper Rebecca Hessen.

Karen Clark scored all the Mustangs' goals in a 3-0 victory over the Beret Blaze of Flint. Maples and Grego set up the goals with some fancy passes.

The Mustangs were challenged early by the Westlake Warriors of Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., but dominated play after the first 10 minutes and went on to a 4-0 victory. The Mustangs beat the North Royalton Bears in the semifinal to advance to the title game.

The defense, which was led by Hessen and sweeper Katie Grenzke, didn't allow a goal. Other defenders were Carla Legwand, Cassie Pangborn, Sarah Prues and Chris Howson.

Midfielders Megan Greenauer, Kathy Schrage, Lana Khalidi and Amanda Spicuzzi helped control play and forwards Maples, Grego, Clark and Robyn Dold kept pressure on the opposition's defense throughout the tournament.

Star JV splits first two games

Our Lady Star of the Sea's junior varsity basketball team beat Holy Redeemer 31-20 to finish its first week with a 1-1 record under new coach Joan Tobin.

Andrea Tomala led the way with nine points, while Shannon Gruca scored six and Tina Bua and Lori Caloia added four apiece.

Earlier, Star dropped a 59-35 decision to Cabrini in its home opener.

The Tunas played well but Cabrini's size was the difference.

Gruca led Star with 15 points, Anne Toelle had 10 and Laura Parsons added six points.

Paul's back

Sophomore Chris Paul, a Grosse Pointe South grad, is back for his second season on defense for the United States Merchant Marine Academy soccer team.

Paul started all 19 games last season at outside back. He collected two assists and was a mainstay on the Kings Point defense that recorded five shutouts.

"Chris started every game for us as a freshman, which gave him some great experience," said Mariners' coach Michael Smolens. "He is a fast and strong player who is a hard worker. I think his understanding of the game has improved with his experience from last year. I know I would hate to play against him."

Fun run

St. John Hospital and Medical Center will co-sponsor the Heart Fest Fun Run and Fitness Walk on Saturday, Oct. 3.

The 10-kilometer run will begin at 9:15 a.m. and the two-mile walk is scheduled to start at 9:30. Registration begins at 7:30.

The course starts and finishes in front of the St. John Professional Buildings One and Two.

Co-sponsors are Pointe Plaza, Schostak Brothers, Inc. and the Eastside YMCA.

Dog show

The Southeastern Michigan Obedience Training Club will hold its annual dog show on Sunday, Sept. 27, at Grosse Pointe North.

Show hours are 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. There is an admission charge.

Runner-up

Marie Luber of Grosse Pointe Woods shot a 54-47-101 to take second low gross in the Third Flight at last week's Women's Metropolitan Golf Association tournament at Heather Highlands in Holly.

Pauline Cody of Detroit won the flight with a 99.

Janina Jacobs of St. Clair Shores took low gross honors in the Championship Flight with an 80.

Rain costs Buhl a win

Grosse Pointe native Robbie Buhl did everything but win during the recent Firestone Indy Lights race at Vancouver.

Buhl finished second for the fourth time this season and extended his season points lead to 19 over Franck Fregon with three races remaining, but he couldn't help thinking what might have been if Mother Nature hadn't intervened.

Until mid-race in Vancouver, Buhl was having the kind of weekend drivers dream about. His Comp USA/Copper and Brass Sales car was the quickest among the field of 15 and he qualified on the pole with a lap record time of 97.468 mph

Red Barons

Pesta, Solomon, Dean Cataldo, Jason Ford, Jack Lucido, Eric Dunlap and Scott Koerber.

The freshmen trailed 19-7 at the start of the fourth quarter, but scored two touchdowns in the period for the come-from-behind victory.

Josh Lorence ran for all three Grosse Pointe touchdowns behind tough blocking from Andy Delmege, John Laga and Joe Gorczyca.

On defense, Justin Urso intercepted a pass and the Red Barons also had strong games from Brandon DeGuvera, Sean O'Sullivan, Jason Rusko, Mike Luzi and Andrew Wrosch.

Buhl had a 24-second lead at the halfway point of the race, but rain turned a stable track slippery. While the rest of the field began to change to rain tires Buhl stayed on the track and in the lead. But as the track became slicker, he was forced to change tires and lost the lead.

Once he got back on the track, Buhl regained first place and built a 27-second lead with 10 laps remaining.

Then the rain stopped and Buhl and his crew were faced with a problem. They had to decide whether the rain tires would hold up on the dry track long enough to maintain his lead over Mark Smith, who hadn't changed to rain tires.

They chose to gamble with the rain tires, but increasing track heat pulled the tires apart and bits of rubber flew off with each lap. Smith closed the gap and passed Buhl with five laps to go.

"My crew gave me the fastest car on the track today," Buhl said. "It was the most comfortable I've felt in the car all year. You can't do anything about the weather, so I'm just anxious to get to Mid-Ohio (the next race on the circuit)."

Buhl, who was named Driver of the Race in a vote by the media, earned a bonus point for leading the most laps. He has 138 points after nine races. His earnings for the year are $73,500.

Norsemen show their resiliency

By Chuck Klonke

Sports Editor

Resilience might be the buzzword for Grosse Pointe North's football team this season.

The Norsemen bounced back from a stunning 35-0 loss to Fraser in the opener, surviving three long touchdowns by Mount Clemens in the second game to beat the Bathers 21-18 in the first Macomb Area Conference Blue Division game for each squad.

"The bus ride home was a lot better this week than it was last week," said coach Frank Sumbera, who has to prepare his North team for Saturday's 1 p.m. game at Lake Shore. "I told the kids to remember how this felt. We had a solid second half against Mount Clemens, but we have to be physical and keep improving."

The Norsemen trailed the Bathers 18-7 at halftime but scored a pair of second half touchdowns, the last coming on a 36-yard pass from quarterback Scott Spada to fullback Mike Haskell with 1:25 remaining. Spada then threw to Haskell, who scored all three touchdowns, for the two-point conversion.

"It's a tribute to this team's character to come back after the way we lost last week and then to have Mount Clemens get three quick scores in about six minutes in the first half of this game," Sumbera said. "We totally regrouped at halftime. Maybe this will be the turn of the worm to get us headed in the right direction."

Sumbera is concerned with Lake Shore, which was a long-time rival of the Norsemen in the old Bi-County League.

"They always played us tough," Sumbera said. "They've lost two tough games, but they have some good athletes. We have to be ready for them."

North's start against Mount Clemens indicated it might be an easy afternoon for the Norsemen. They marched 62 yards in six plays on their first possession, with Haskell scoring on a 14-yard run. Key plays in the march were a 17-yard pass from Spada to Matt Dube and a nine-yard run by Eric Peters. Spada kicked the extra point.

North unveiled a new backfield alignment against the Bathers. Haskell moved back to the fullback position he played last season and Peters took over at tailback.

"Those two complement each other well," Sumbera said. "We had 219 yards rushing and 14 first downs. We did a good job of controlling the ball."

The opening march was especially impressive.

"The first drive was a lot like our first drive against Fraser last week but we didn't take the costly penalties and shoot ourselves in the foot," Sumbera said.

It didn't take long for the Bathers to wipe out most of North's seven-point lead. Darso Thompson returned the ensuing kickoff 85 yards for a touchdown, but the Norsemen blocked the extra point attempt to cling to a 7-6 lead.

Mount Clemens then intercepted on the Bathers' 38 and on the first play from scrimmage, Damian Platt raced 62 yards for a touchdown. North stopped the two-point conversion try.

The Norsemen drove from their own 17 to the Mount Clemens three before getting stopped on downs. Moments later, Platt scampered 86 yards for a touchdown to put the Bathers ahead 18-7.

"He's a very good back," Sumbera said. "We knew we had to contain him, but in two carries he had 148 yards. On his second touchdown he made a spectacular move in mid-air to hurdle a tackler."

"We'd played pretty well except for two plays and a special teams play, but we were still in the wringer," Sumbera said. "We had to do something to contain Platt so we blitzed a little more, tried to hang on to him because he breaks tackles so well and put Haskell on him one-on-one. We managed to slow him down a little because he finished with 195 yards in 16 carries."

North began its comeback late in the third quarter when Haskell went in from the one to cap a 13-play, 63-yard drive. The Norsemen attempted a two-point conversion but were stopped.

North failed to score on its next possession and Sumbera gambled with a punt on fourth down.

"We had 6:50 to go, but our defense was playing so well we decided to take a chance we'd get the ball back in good field position," Sumbera said.

It worked as North got the ball at its own 44 with about three minutes left. Spada hit Dube with a 12-yard pass for a first down, then found Haskell for the winning touchdown.

Haskell rushed for 149 yards in 29 carries and Peters picked up 62 in 11 tries behind strong blocking from Jeff Adams, Donny Tocco, Zac Hubbell, Fred Lovelace and Dube.

Dube had 10 tackles and Chuck Heaphy eight to lead the defense. Steve Guest and Haskell each made six stops and Rob Dallaire had three tackles for losses.

Bieri shines in junior golf

Alex Bieri of Grosse Pointe Park finished second and tied for fourth in the last two Macomb Junior Golf Classic tournaments.

Bieri, competing in the 13-15-year-old group, shot a 38-39-77 to finish second to Mike Pedrys of Canton in the Stony Creek Junior Open. Pedrys shot a 74.

Earlier, Bieri fired a 37-39-76 to tie Brad Crighton of Rochester Hills for fourth place at the Cracklewood Junior Open. Jeremy Mynarek of Sterling Heights won a playoff with Andrew Uthoff of Canton after both shot 73s to tie for first.

Rob Hostetter of Grosse Pointe Farms shot a 41-42-83 to tie for 11th at Cracklewood in the 13-15 division. He tied for ninth with a 42-42-84 in the Stony Creek tournament.

Paul Power of the Farms finished in a three-way tie for eighth place after shooting a 40-39-79 in the 16-17 division at Cracklewood.

8 Hurricanes on select squad

Troy Otto, Steve Howson, Drew Harris, Paul Yeskey, P.J. Stranahan, Shawn Alexander, Vito Pampalona and Niko Grandchamp have been chosen for the squad.

The purpose of the Olympic development team is to identify and train the best young soccer players and give them the opportunity to compete in the regional Olympic development program. They are then considered for one of the United States national or Olympic teams.

The Hurricanes have won their division championship five of the last six seasons. They have competed in six tournaments in Michigan and other states this year and took first place in the 1992 Midland Invitational.

The Hurricanes played in the Dynamo Hoosier Invitational in Indianapolis earlier this month and won three games before bowing to eventual champion Busch of St. Louis in a game shortened by 13 minutes because of lightning.

The Hurricanes beat Dynamo, the Indiana state champion, 1-0; defeated the Jr. Irish Shamrocks 5-2; and routed the Middletown Renegades 7-0.

This weekend the Hurricanes will play in the Marriott Soccer Classic at Oakland University. Their first game will be against Troy Power at 8 a.m. Saturday, Sept. 19. They are also scheduled to play the Brighton Express at 1 p.m. Saturday and will face the London Y Gunners at 9:15 a.m. Sunday at West Middle School in Rochester.

Under-13 boys semifinal games will be at Oakland University at 1 p.m. Sunday with the final scheduled for 4:15 p.m.

The Hurricanes are coached by Mark Christensen, who also coaches the Grosse Pointe South boys team.

The Grosse Pointe Soccer Association has some 550 players registered for the fall season, including 440 in the house program.

GPSA teams range from 6-year-old squads in the Michigan Youth Soccer League to Under-14 Premier travel teams.

Lady Devils' tennis team wins first league outing

By Chuck Klonek
Sports Editor

Grosse Pointe South's girls tennis team got off to a good start in its first Macomb Area Conference Red Division match.

The Lady Devils dropped the first singles match, but won the rest in straight sets to hand Stevenson a 7-1 setback.

Kelly Cavanaugh took a 6-3, 6-3 victory in second singles; Christy Schumacher posted a 6-0, 6-2 win in third singles; and Sarah Brenner breezed to a 6-0, 6-0 triumph in fourth singles.

South's Molly Katchmark and Lauren Kordas defeated the Titans' Sheila Patel and Heather Pranzaro 6-1, 6-0 in No. 1 doubles; Christy Reed and Missy Kordas won 6-0, 6-0 in second doubles; Robin Wheeler and Ashley Wolter took a 6-0, 6-0 victory in No. 3 doubles; and Erin Coyle and Lindsay Youngblood won fourth doubles.

The Lady Devils finished second to the host team in last weekend's University Liggett School Invitational.

South had three flight winners, Angela Roxas and Alexandra Wehmeier in No. 2 doubles; Missy Kordas and Reed in third doubles; and Wheeler and Wolter in No. 4 doubles.

Blue Devils a 1-0 lead against Romeo on a strong individual effort after taking a long throw-in from Andy Ostrowski, but that was the extent of South's offensive production.

Romeo scored its goals in the first half and the Bulldogs then went into a defensive shell for the second half.

"Since we've had some success, people are pointing for us," Christensen said. "You'd have thought Romeo had won the Super Bowl the way they celebrated after the game."

South dropped a 3-2 non-league decision to Chippewa Valley, despite a strong second-half performance by the Blue Devils, who trailed 3-0 at half-time.

"We were flat in the first half, but we dominated the second half," Christensen said. "We scored two goals and hit a couple goalposts."

Mike Reynaert scored both South goals, one on a penalty kick and the other on an assist from his brother, Tim.

"There was about 18 minutes left when we scored the second goal and we were knocking on the door, but our inexperience hurt," Christensen said.

and dished out four assists, while Sarah Foley had seven points and four assists.

South had a few bright spots in the Regina game. Coddens collected 13 points, eight rebounds and three assists; Drake scored nine points; and Shannon McGratty pulled down eight rebounds.

Cross country

South's girls cross country team didn't get lost in a 60-team field at the West Bloomfield Invitational last weekend. Anyone looking for the Lady Devils could find them close to the top.

South wound up second in the 20-team field in the Class A division as five Lady Devils earned medals. Berkley won with 62 points. South had 68. "Our objective in this meet was to develop a strategic style of running," said coach Steve Zaranek.

Senior Heidi Wise led the medal-winning group with a fourth-place time of 20:59. Sophomore Melissa Wise was seventh (21:17), senior Sandy Dierkes 12th (21:29), junior Rachel O'Byrne 21st (22:03) and senior Amy Balok 24th (22:10).

The other Lady Devils' runners in the 140-runner field were sophomore Katie Weed 41st (22:59) and junior Heather Whitten 64th (24:04).

In the junior varsity race, South was led by Sarah Gordon, Mary Rowe, Katie Quinn, Maria Ksenzenko and Lisa McCurdy.

Zaranek has 51 girls on the team, his largest squad ever, which began defense of its Macomb Area Conference White Division championship this week against Fraser and Anchor Bay.

South will compete in the De La Salle Invitational on Saturday at Stony Creek Metropark.

Junior standouts

Two Grosse Pointers were among 12 junior golfers who were named to the Macomb Junior Golf Classics all-tournament team for the 13-15 age group.

Alex Bieri of Grosse Pointe Park had an average score of 77.6 for the five tournaments in the series and Rob Hostetter of Grosse Pointe Farms finished with an average score of 79.

Hostetter won the tournaments at Cedar Glen and Hickory Hollow.

More than 600 players participated in the series.

Kelly Cavanaugh got Grosse Pointe South's girls tennis team rolling in its first Macomb Area Conference match when she beat her Stevenson opponent 6-3, 6-3 in second singles.

NOVENA TO ST. JUDE

May the Sacred Heart of Jesus be adored, glorified, loved and preserved throughout the world now and forever. Oh, Sacred Heart of Jesus, pray for us. Worker of miracles, pray for us. St. Jude, helper of the hopeless, pray for us.

Say this prayer 9 times a day. By the 8th day your prayer will be answered. It has never been known to fail, never. Publication must be promised. Thanks St. Jude for prayer answered. Special thanks to our Mother of Perpetual Help. E.A.S.

101 PRAYERS

PRAYER TO THE HOLY SPIRIT

Holy Spirit, you who make me see everything and who shows me the way to reach my ideal. You, who give me the Divine Gift to forgive and forget the wrong that is done to me and you who are in all instances of my life with me. I, in this short dialogue want to thank you for everything and confirm once more that I never want to be separated from you no matter how great the material desires may be. I want to be with you and my loved ones in your perpetual glory, amen.

Thank you for your love towards me and my loved ones. Pray this prayer three consecutive days without asking your wish, after third day your wish will be granted, no matter how difficult it may be. Then promise to publish this prayer as soon as your favor has been granted. Thank you for favors received. T.H.
