WE'RE CONCERNED ABOUT YESTERDAY'S NEWS.

News can appear one day and be gone the next. But the paper news is printed on can and should live on.

Last year, more than one third of all U.S. newsprint was recycled. And that number is growing every day.

Recycling is the one way we can all give something back.

Godzilla returns!

Godzilla invaded Grosse Pointe Park last week. No, the B-film monster wasn't the product of the Japanese. Rather, it was lured here by Nora Glenn, of the 1000 block of Whittier. She had the creature set up to startle her husband Gary when he arrived home from work on his 40th birthday.

Dwarfed by Godzilla are son Paul and a neighborhood friend.

A lone bid may have sealed the fate of the Grosse Pointe school system's administrative offices at 389 St. Clair.

The district received one offer last week from a Grosse Pointe builder to buy the historic buildings for $278,000. The district advertised for bids to purchase the buildings and property on July 20. Bidders had until Aug. 24 to submit their proposals.

Superintendent Ed Shine had recommended to the school board earlier this year that the buildings be sold and the proceeds used to relocate administrative offices to North and South high schools and Barnes school. The plan was designed as a cost-saving move.

The board voted in June to put the buildings, constructed in 1906 and 1915, up for sale. Board president Timothy Howlett and vice president Carl Anderson cast the dissenting votes in the 5-2 decision.

Shine said he wasn't surprised the district received only one offer — from local builder Greg Nelson — who could not be reached for comment by press time.

"We hadn't had a great deal of response," Shine said. "There were no requests to come in and walk around the buildings. There was not much interest."

Grosse Pointers lost their cable television service for several hours last Friday and Saturday and bombarded Grosse Pointe Cable with more than 2,000 calls protesting the outages.

Mary Schultz, Grosse Pointe Cable's operations manager, said that at about noon Friday, a power supply unit near Mack and Moross burned out when workers were installing a return laser to the system. It took 3 1/2 hours to restore service.

Despite what some customers thought, the loss of service was not connected to the heat or record power consumption by Detroit Edison customers, said Schultz.

The laser was being installed so that more cable networks could be broadcast over the current cable system. Grosse Pointe Cable will be adding three new cable channels to its lineup, Schultz said.

The Travel Channel will be broadcast on Channel 32, the local origination channel, between 2 a.m. and 5 a.m. The Fashion Channel will broadcast over Channel 20, the local government and local school channel, between 2 a.m. and 5 a.m. as well, said Schultz.

School district gets lone bid for its offices at 389 St. Clair

'I don't think it's enough money to make it attractive anyway. With one bid — a very low bid — it doesn't make sense to keep this an open issue. . .

Tim Howlett
School board president

Shine said the district has had some contact with people in the past year who indicated their interest in the buildings. But those interested parties failed to submit a formal bid within the required time frame, he said.

The buildings and property were valued at $283,000 in 1991 by the Complete Appraisal Co. And since school property is exempt from taxes, the City does not have an assessed value of the property on its tax rolls.

Bon Secours Hospital had indicated its interest with offers as high as $1 million in the past. And that, according to Shine, is what led the district to believe there was significant interest in the property.

The district would have to raise a minimum $895,840 in sale proceeds to make the necessary renovations at North, South and Barnes, build a garage at Parcels and cover moving costs.

Since the district received only one bid that fell far short of the necessary amount needed to pay for a move, Howlett said in his opinion the board will probably reject the offer. The board could act as soon as tonight's conference meeting, he said.

"I don't think it's enough money to make it attractive anyway," Howlett said. "With one bid — a very low bid — it doesn't make sense to keep this an open issue until Oct. 24."

The board has 60 days from the bid opening date to make a decision.

Ready, set . . .

School began in mid-August for all three first-grade teachers at The Grosse Pointe Academy. Teacher Barbara Karle, above, joined her colleagues in organizing their classrooms, unpacking new books and decorating bulletin boards. Each August it is customary for academy teachers to assemble in groups of three or four, or by grade level, and spend several days during the two or three weeks preceding the official start of school working together to organize classrooms. Once the summer cleaning and painting is completed, they are ready to prepare for school. Orientation for students new to the Grosse Pointe Academy, an independent school for children in pre-school through eighth-grade, will be held today, Sept. 2. School opens on Sept. 7.

Mary Beth Swegles has crafted hundreds — perhaps thousands — of Santa Claus figures. People pay from $25 to $450 for them. Each is unique.

Traditional Santa, for instance, is about 17 inches tall with a long, curly goat's hair beard. He's dressed in a full-length crimson coat trimmed with rabbit fur, a matching cap decorated with flowers and leaves and gold ornaments, and warm woolen mittens. He carries a brass bell. The sack at his feet is filled with miniature

Cable

The original Home Shopping Channel, which until recently was on Channel 26, will go out over Channel 9 from 2 a.m. to 5 a.m. Channel 9 is CBET, broadcast out of Windsor, Ontario. The station ends its broadcast day around 2 a.m., and doesn't start up again until 5 a.m., Schultz explained.

"Friday was bad," said Schultz. "It was a Disney Channel free preview day. All the children home for the summer were watching the Disney Channel, and when the cable went out, boy, did we hear about it."

Grosse Pointe Cable received 1,255 calls on Friday, according to Schultz. That's just the number of people who were able to get through. She has no idea of how many people called, but didn't get through.

Adding insult to injury, the unit that was replaced on Friday broke down again on Saturday afternoon and was down for about two hours, said Schultz. The company received 915 calls Saturday.

Schultz said Grosse Pointe Cable scheduled the new channels to be available by Sept. 1. Because the system was down for less than 24 hours on both days, customers are not entitled to a refund.

"First we get the new FCC regulations, then the heat hits Grosse Pointe, now this," Schultz said with a laugh. "It makes you wonder what is going to go wrong next."

389 St. Clair

Howlett and Shine could only speculate as to why 389 didn't attract more potential buyers.

"There are limits to how much you are going to bid on property zoned residential," Howlett said. "The bid specifications said no bid could be contingent on a rezoning. Given those specs, I'm not surprised (at the outcome). It's clear it would limit the number of people interested in bidding; it also probably affected the bid amount."

Publicity also may have contributed to the tepid response, Shine said.

"There has been a great deal of publicity about the issue and the perspective of those who had concerns about the board opening up the property for bids might have been perceived to be a negative climate," Shine said.

A group fighting to save the buildings, Concerned Citizens of Grosse Pointe, submitted a 5,000-signature petition on Aug. 16 asking the board to put the decision to sell the buildings to a vote of the residents. The group also has asked the board to rescind proposals made in support of the sale of the building.

"This is in our favor," said Woods resident Jim Perry, spokesman for the group.

Perry said his group would like to see the district begin renovating the building, adding that many of the group's members are willing to help raise the funds.

WCCC hosts conference on child mental disorders

About 12 percent of the nation's children and adolescents experience a mental health problem severe enough to require treatment. Fewer than one-fifth receive the appropriate treatment.

These numbers are even more tragic when considering that early detection and intervention can prevent the long-term effects of mental disorders on a young person's development and later adult life.

To address these issues, Wayne County Community College will host a two-hour seminar for educators, parents and others called Understanding Childhood Mental Disorders on Thursday, Sept. 9, from 12:45 to 4:30 p.m. at the Northwest Campus, 8551 Greenfield Rd.

Nationally known mental health experts will speak via satellite to present the latest findings on bio-medical, social and environmental factors contributing to various mental and emotional disorders.

The program will also highlight the most effective treatments available and will discuss the need to coordinate services among the different groups and agencies charged with helping children.

To register, please call George Hicks at 496-2763.

Don't sit idly by while state destroys schools

Now that Gov. Engler has signed the bill eliminating property taxes as a means of funding public schools, most Michigan residents, myself included, are waiting anxiously to see just what is going to happen next and whether school superintendents, school boards, community leaders and citizens will be able to influence the process and the final product.

Preliminary indications are that legislators and other state officials are going to find rebuilding a school finance system that they rushed to dismantle in a few short hours this past July more than difficult. In fact, it may well be impossible, given the time constraints they have set for themselves.

For the last 10 years or more, global competition has created pressure on the state and national economies. Responding to this pressure, the state of Michigan reduced its share of education costs from 50 percent of the state budget to the current 32 percent.

Needless to say, the cost of education did not decrease over this same time period, and local taxpayers have had to shoulder the responsibility of replacing lost revenue for schools by approving increases in local property taxes.

State and local media have indicated that the Legislature eliminated school property taxes out of utter frustration. That may be so; in this case, one explanation is as good as another. The fact that this bill came out of nowhere one hot summer day, and legislators rushed to support it without fully understanding its implications, says much about how we deal with problems that defy easy solutions.

At no time last year was the elimination of school property taxes ever mentioned, even as a pie-in-the-sky possibility. Now it's a reality we all must deal with.

The Grosse Pointe Public School System is what it is because residents of the Grosse Pointes and Harper Woods demanded and supported a quality school system. Now that school system is on the brink of a major transformation precipi-

Views on Schools

Grosse Pointe Schools Superintendent Ed Shine

tated by people outside our communities.

Gov. Engler views this crisis as an opportunity not only to reduce taxes but to improve education. There is no guarantee, however, that taxes will be reduced, especially for Grosse Pointe residents, and there is certainly no guarantee that proposals to improve education can be agreed on in the next three or four months when scholars across the country haven't agreed on how best to improve public education.

Everyone has a plan it seems, and school superintendents are no exception. Here are some of the recommendations being made by school superintendents around the state:

On funding:

- An adequate expenditure per pupil must be guaranteed by the state, with full restoration of all revenue lost due to the elimination of school property taxes.

- A reduction in the disparities in per pupil expenditures from district to district is imperative. Leveling up rather than down is preferred.

- A blend of taxes that will eliminate excessive reliance on one source of revenue makes sense.

- An option to permit increased local spending by taxpayers should be available. This is not an option for the Grosse Pointe Public School System; it is critical.

On expenditures:

- Modification of current collective bargaining laws is essential, including a law that prevents teacher strikes and imposes real financial penalties for such action.

- Cost containment of health insurance must be achieved, and bidding for health services is one way to get there.

- Rules and/or mandated programs that are not fully funded by the state of Michigan should be eliminated.

On school organization and structure:

- Technology must be integrated into instruction for all levels of schooling.

- Schools are learning organizations. Financial support for in-service and staff development is absolutely essential. There is no substitute for a good teacher, and there should be no shirking our responsibility for helping good teachers improve.

- Today's problems and solutions do not belong solely to the schools. They belong to society as a whole.

- The school year needs to be lengthened and changed to increase student learning and make more opportunities for teacher in-service and staff development available.

- School district consolidation should be encouraged.

- Efforts to erode local control must be actively resisted.

Local control ensures that schools are accountable both to the students they serve and the taxpayers who fund them. Increasing the distance between those who make the rules and those who must abide by the rules will not make schools better or more responsive. For Grosse Pointe, loss of local control will mean the end of a school system that has functioned successfully for 72 years.

We cannot and must not sit idly by and watch our school system destroyed. The governor and the Legislature need to hear from you if you value the investment you have made in this community.

Students make music

By Shirley A. McShane
Staff Writer

The halls were alive with the sound of music.

A group of 200 students gathered at Grosse Pointe North High School last week as part of a first-ever summer music camp for gifted and talented vocalists.

The students, in grades four through eight, divided into three musical ensembles under the direction of vocal music teachers Mary Garlough, Julie Pelt, Mary Jane Failla and Ellen Bowen.

Each ensemble was then split into smaller groups to work with voice teachers and choreographers. Other professionals working on the project are Barbara Pierce and Sharon Babcock, private teachers; Sara Carlson, a college voice major; Andy Haines, choreographer; and Todd Moses, vocal music teacher and music director.

"Each group has time with these specialists where they get personalized attention," said Barbara Widener, chairman of the school system's music department. "The students study other aspects of vocal music such as choreography and music theory."

The students' experience is not designed to go beyond what other students are being offered during the school year, she noted; rather, they are getting the information in an intensive, one-week program.

"We are trying to identify our gifted and talented students," Widener said. "We have taken the cream of the crop from all our elementary and middle school ensembles."

Students auditioned for the program in the spring and had to be enrolled in either choir or instrumental music.

Students met from 8 to noon Aug. 23-27 to begin their training and practice for a Nov. 11 concert at the Grosse Pointe North Performing Arts Center.

The three ensembles will continue to practice once a week throughout the fall, Widener said. The November concert will be in conjunction with the fall high school choir concert.

"It's been exciting to see them evolve," Widener said at the week's end. "It's been a great first effort."

Widener said the purpose of combining the younger students with the high school choirs is to show the audience the evolution of the students' voices from the fourth grade to the twelfth grade level.

Be it ever so lucrative, there's no place like home

By Jim Stickford
Staff Writer

Reading future business trends, Grosse Pointe Farms resident Glenn Petty quit his job at American Natural Resources (ANR), and became an independent consultant. His first customer was ANR.

"My partner, Dr. Fred Jones, and I saw the handwriting on the wall," said Petty. "It seemed obvious to us that big companies like ANR would be cutting down on staff, and using outside consultants for specific jobs. When our department was moved to Virginia, we decided to leave the company. Later actions bore us out; two years later a department of 25 was down to less than five."

Petty and Jones joined a growing number of white-collar workers, who in the past worked for large corporations, but are now self-employed.

According to Bill Deming of the U.S. Department of Labor's Bureau of Labor Statistics, a May 1991 survey indicated that about 450,000 people in white-collar positions are working at home. Another 280,000 people in the fields of sales and administrative support also work at home.

"Businesses are looking for an edge in the international marketplace," Petty said. "By hiring contractors for specific tasks, companies don't have to pay for health insurance or Social Security."

So Jones and Petty started Cogen Designs. Petty works out of his home in the Farms, and Jones works out of his home in Canton. They stay in touch via the phone, fax machines and computer messages.

Petty said there are advantages and disadvantages to being self-employed and working out of his home.

"I really like the commute," said Petty. "It saves wear and tear on the car, I get to pick my own hours and I avoid the pitfalls of office politics. The downside is that I have to pay for my own health insurance, Social Security and retirement plan."

Petty also said that he has to spend a lot of time finding clients. He and Jones do feasibility studies for companies to see if it is profitable for the company to produce its own power.

"Hospitals, for example, use a lot of power," said Petty. "By producing their own power, they can save money, and use the excess energy for their laundry services, as well as for heating and cooking. It might make sense for a hospital to produce power instead of buying it from a large utility."

Petty is responsible for thermo-dynamic analysis, budget estimates of project costs and the preparation of preliminary equipment layouts. Jones performs economic analysis and writes and publishes the reports.

"Our specialty is esoteric," Petty said. "There aren't that many people who can do what we can. We developed computer software that allows us to do in a day what it might take an industrial architecture firm six weeks to do. That's our advantage. A lot of home businesses fail despite excellent funding because their services aren't marketable or that different from other businesses."

Petty has worked for a number of companies, including ANR and Pratt & Whitney, doing research and marketing product services. Clients of Cogen include ANR, Mobil Oil, U.S. Gypsum and Consolidated Paper.

"We could not have done this 10 or 15 years ago," said Petty. "But thanks to the drop in computer prices, and the availability of fax equipment, working at home is possible. I think we will see a lot more people working at home in the next few years."

Petty and Jones are currently working with Entropic Technologies Corp. of East Lansing on a project that will develop synthetic coal, while at the same time reducing the amount of trash going into landfills.

The project, under way in Pontiac, will turn trash into synthetic coal. According to Petty, trash would be taken to a sorting plant, where recyclable goods would be separated from the trash. Through a sophisticated process, the remaining trash, excluding things like concrete and other inorganic compounds, would be turned into synthetic coal. The coal could then be sold to power companies or businesses that use coal for power.

Items like batteries and heavy metals would be stored in a landfill, as required by law. The coal would be burned off, and its ashes taken to a landfill for disposal. The coal takes up 90 percent less space than the unprocessed trash. The items that can be recycled would be recycled. Landfills would last longer because the volume of trash being disposed there would much smaller.

The Pontiac facility would be able to process 800 tons of trash a day. Pontiac produces only about 600 tons a day, according to Petty. He hopes to sell off the excess capacity.

"I enjoy working at home and being my own boss," Petty said. "But it is hard; we spend about half our time finding business. Sometimes we work 18 hours a day. It can put a strain on other parts of your life. People shouldn't concentrate on business at the expense of their personal life. Plus the refrigerator is a little too close, but overall, I like working at home."

Prepared by the Michigan Association of Certified Public Accountants.

If you are self-employed and do not have a Keogh plan, you could be passing up a valuable opportunity to lower your tax liability, reports the Michigan Association of CPAs.

According to IRS regulations, you are eligible to set up a Keogh plan if you earn self-employment income from a full-time business or from a sideline business. Partnerships may also set up Keogh plans for those involved. If you have employees who meet the eligibility standards for Keogh benefits, you must include them in your retirement plan.

Keoghs are beneficial because contributions are tax-deductible and the funds you invest in Keogh plans grow tax-deferred until they are withdrawn, usually at retirement. Limits on contributions to a Keogh are much higher than those for Individual Retirement Accounts (IRAs) and, with a Keogh, you can deduct up to the amount of your net earned income subject to limitations.

There are two basic types of Keogh plans: defined-contribution plans and defined-benefit plans.

In a defined-contribution plan, the benefit you receive at retirement will depend on the amount you contributed and how well the money was invested. Examples of defined-contribution plans include profit-sharing plans and money-purchase plans.

The profit-sharing plan is the most flexible of Keogh plans because it gives you the freedom to contribute as little as you want, or nothing at all, from year to year. The maximum amount you can contribute and deduct is the lesser of $30,000 per year or 15 percent of your self-employment income. Self-employment income for this purpose is your net self-employment income minus your Keogh contribution. In addition, your net self-employment income generally must be reduced by half of your self-employment tax.

A money-purchase Keogh plan allows you to contribute a larger percentage of your self-employment earnings to your retirement savings, but you lose some flexibility. This type of plan has the same $30,000 annual cap, but allows you to contribute the lesser of that amount, or 25 percent of your self-employment earnings as defined above.

Here's the big difference: Rules governing money-purchase plans require that you contribute a pre-set percentage of your self-employment income each year, regardless of your business's profitability. If you don't contribute the predetermined amount, you face a big penalty.

Defined-benefit Keogh plans are more complex than defined-contribution plans. With a defined-benefit plan, you decide how much you want to receive annually from the plan when you retire. Then you make annual contributions — up to 100 percent of your net self-employment earnings up to applicable limitations — based on how much you need to contribute each year to reach that amount at retirement. This type of Keogh plan, which can be expensive to maintain, is suitable primarily for those who are older and who want to shelter most or all of their income.

A Keogh plan must be formally established in writing by the end of the calendar year in which you want the plan to be effective. You have until the due date of your tax return, including extensions, to make contributions to the plan.

You can set up a Keogh at almost any type of financial institution — a bank, brokerage firm, life insurance company or mutual fund company. Most financial services companies offer master or prototype Keogh plans that are already approved by the IRS. If you choose to work with a lawyer or pension plan expert in preparing a personalized plan, you will have to submit your plan to the IRS for approval.

Profit-sharing or money-purchase Keogh plans may be invested in a full range of instruments, including CDs, stocks, bonds and mutual fund shares. The law forbids investments in collectibles, including gems, stamps, coins, antiques and art. Defined-benefit Keoghs must be invested to conform to the rules of the Employee Retirement Income Security Act (ERISA).

As with IRAs, you may not withdraw money from your Keogh account without penalty until you are age 59-1/2. So that you can fully benefit from your Keogh savings, CPAs also recommend that you carefully consider the tax implications of withdrawals.

Garage burns on St. Clair

A garage in the 500 block of St. Clair in Grosse Pointe City burned to the ground Aug. 27 in a fire of unknown origin.

City police detective John Drummond said two fire engines responded to the 911 call made at 12:30 a.m. and firefighters worked for an hour and a half extinguishing the blaze.

The Michigan State Police arson unit is investigating the scene this week, Drummond said.

Board asked to levy 2.7% tax hike to carry schools through year

By Shirley A. McShane
Staff Writer

The Grosse Pointe school board will be asked to approve a 2.7 percent tax increase this month to support the district's 1993-94 budget.

The board in June approved this year's budget of $69.1 million, including $62.7 million for the general fund; $1.6 million for the school services fund; $2.9 million for the library; and $1 million for the debt fund.

The board has scheduled a public hearing for 8 p.m. tonight, Sept. 2, in the Wicking Library at Grosse Pointe South High School for the purpose of gathering testimony for or against the proposed tax increase.

The board will vote on the proposed increase at its Monday, Sept. 13 meeting.

An average 7.9 percent increase in school district real estate assessments this year necessitated a rollback of the district's voter-approved millage rate of 37.08 mills to 33.4133 mills.

The rollback is mandated by the Headlee Amendment to the Michigan constitution and calls for school districts to roll back their millage rates when tax assessments rise faster than the rate of inflation.

As a result of the assessment increase and the Headlee rollback, the district's overall millage rate will decrease for the 1993-94 school year. Last year, the school millage rate was 32.8422, with 31.0165 for the general fund; 1.3 mills for the library and .5257 for the debt fund.

This year, if approved by the board, the millage rate will be 31.2953, with 29.7662 for the general fund; 1.2967 for the library; and .2324 for the debt.

The millage rate for the district's debt was decreased this year because the schools paid off a 1978 bond issue of $2 million that paid for the vocational education building at Grosse Pointe South, said Chris Fenton, assistant superintendent for business and support services.

In support of the tax increase, the district announced in June that it expects an enrollment increase of 265 students this fall, a decrease in interest earnings and a loss of $2.7 million in Social Security reimbursements from the state.

Last fall, the school board approved a 7.9 percent tax increase to support the operating budget, an amount slightly higher than the 6 percent average over the last 12 years, Fenton said.

Sen. Kelly acts to block gambling

State Sen. John Kelly, D-Grosse Pointe Woods, has requested that Michigan's attorney general commence action against Gov. John Engler to block the proposed casino gambling compact with Michigan Native Americans.

Kelly requested the attorney general's assistance under a Michigan statute that would require the attorney general to stop the governor's unlawful usurpation of legislative authority.

Wells, 2 assistants head high schools

Grosse Pointe schools superintendent Ed Shine announced in August that North high school principal Caryn Wells will be supervising principal for both North and South high schools for the 1993-94 school year.

Assistant principal Bernard LeMieux will become associate principal at South and assistant principal Thomas Teetaert will become associate principal at North. LeMieux and Teetaert will be responsible for the day-to-day operations at the high schools. Wells, who was named principal at North in January, will work on issues common to both schools.

The decision follows the resignation of South principal John Artis, effective Oct. 1.

Shine said it didn't make sense to look for a replacement when the district could be facing administrative layoffs in the 1994-95 school year.

"This will give us the opportunity to wait and see what resources we will have for the 1994-95 school year," Shine said. "We will try to deal with the organization of the high school administration from that point on."

Injured officer recuperating

Grosse Pointe Park public safety Sgt. Steve Johnson, shot in the hand June 3 while helping Detroit police officers apprehend a carjacking suspect, is reported to be making good progress in his recovery.

Johnson will not need additional surgery on his hand and has begun physical therapy to regain use of his fingers.

Aggressors attack passive park

An unknown number of vandals entered Patterson Park in Grosse Pointe Park after hours on Aug. 25 and cut a path of destruction through the lakefront property.

The vandals uprooted a 10-foot birdhouse and tossed it into the lake, overturned picnic tables and threw a bench into the lake. A charcoal grill was pulled from the ground and thrown into the wading pool along with contents of some trash barrels. Police have no suspects.

Mock rose show

The Grosse Pointe Rose Society will hold a mock rose show at the Neighborhood Club on Wednesday, Sept. 8, at 7:30 p.m. The program is designed to give pointers to people interested in showing their roses in a show but don't know how to go about it.

Questions on how to start, where to go and what is needed to display in a show will be answered. Anyone attending should bring an unopened rose, pruning shears and some Q-tips.

Congressman's actions puzzle WCCC trustee

By Jim Stickford
Staff Writer

For Wayne County Community College trustee Sue Radulovich, the "very unusual" actions recently taken by Congressman John Conyers' office are just the latest in her battle with the college's administration.

Radulovich, of Grosse Pointe Woods, who was elected to the board of trustees last year, has been suing the college on behalf of clients for the past several years.

Earlier this year, federal Judge Nancy Edmunds, citing conflict of interest, ordered Radulovich to either resign as a trustee or stop representing her clients, Milan Chonich and Carmen Pascaretti, in their discrimination suit against the college.

Radulovich is in the process of appealing Judge Edmunds' ruling and has remained on the board of trustees.

But the case took an interesting turn on Aug. 17. Congressman John Conyers' office sent out releases to the press stating that the congressman would hold a press conference on Aug. 18.

The press release stated that "the congressman is expected to demand the resignation of a Wayne County Community College Board of Trustees member." But when Aug. 18 rolled around, Conyers said that he "repudiates any unauthorized releases that went out of my office."

Conyers, a Detroit Democrat whose district includes Grosse

Pointe Woods and Shores and Harper Woods, went on to say that he wanted to mediate the troubles between the college's administration and the board of trustees.

WCCC communications coordinator Rhonda Anderson said that the actions of Conyers' office were a surprise to the college, and Conyers' statements about the school being in financial trouble were false.

"The college is on firm ground in terms of money," Anderson said. "We've balanced the budget for the year."

As for Radulovich, she is trying to find out who and what Conyers was talking about.

"I know no more than what I've read in the papers," said Radulovich. "I am working on finding out who was referred to in the original press release. I have my suspicions, of course, but I feel I can't publicly comment on what has happened until I learn more."

Right now, Radulovich said, she will concentrate, along with the rest of the board of trustees, on getting as much information as possible on the college's financial status. She believes that the administration has been less than forthcoming with financial information.

"This whole incident has been very unusual," Radulovich said. "I'm going to concentrate on my job as a trustee. That's what the college needs."

Workers from Clark Construction Co. are building a new sewage pumping station next to the present Kerby Road site. The $6.45 million price tag to replace the station is less expensive than making repairs to the old site.

The Farms will continue to use the original pumping station, while the Woods, Shores, St. Clair Shores, Eastpointe, Harper Woods and Roseville will use the new facility being constructed next door.

Work gets under way to replace Kerby pumping station

By Chip Chapman
Staff Writer

Deciding that it's less expensive to build a new pump station than repair the existing one, engineers have begun work on the $6.45 million project to replace the Kerby Road sewage pump station.

"You couldn't feasibly do it (repair work) in the existing building," said James T. Murray, director of the Wayne County Department of Public Services. "The building has some historical significance. We didn't want to take that away. It was easier to build a new facility next door."

The original building, which the Farms will continue to use for sewage pumping and as a storage facility, has been recently named to the Michigan Historical Register.

Due to new federal rules, the South Macomb Sewer District, comprising Grosse Pointe Woods, Grosse Pointe Shores, Eastpointe, Harper Woods, Roseville and St. Clair Shores, must replace the station by December 1994.

This is in addition to the $30 million Grosse Pointe Woods and Harper Woods are spending to upgrade the Milk River sewer line.

The Kerby station was built in 1929, and is no longer able to process sewage at full capacity. During heavy rain, the station will overflow and dump raw sewage into Lake St. Clair.

The cost of repairing the existing station was estimated at between $7 million and $8 million, more than the cost of a new facility.

The $6.45 million cost is being spread out over 20 years, with each municipality contributing based on its share of sewage sent through the pump station.

With a 2 percent loan from the state's revolving fund, the estimated cost to each municipality is: $190,214 for Grosse Pointe Shores, $1.1 million for Eastpointe, $1.8 million for Roseville, $2.2 million for St.

Clair Shores, $707,807 for Grosse Pointe Woods, and $412,969 for Harper Woods.

Although this is a federally mandated project, no federal funds will be used to pay for it.

Goss is a corporate attorney specializing in products liability. He is a partner with the Troy firm of Dean & Fulkerson and travels throughout the country defending corporate clients.

Goss and Prost talk about products liability on the program. Goss specifically talks about two cases he defended: Coca Cola Bottling of Los Angeles and Michigan's Tecumseh Products. He demonstrates his extensive use of models in successfully defending the cases.

"Pointers With Prost" can be seen at 2:30 p.m. and 4:30 a.m., Monday through Sunday. It also airs at 7 p.m. on Monday, Wednesday, Friday and Sunday.

Break-in averted

A 23-year-old woman who lives in the 1100 block of Beaconsfield called police when she heard a noise on the upstairs porch at 1:21 a.m. Aug. 21.

The woman investigated the source of the noise and saw a prowler pushing open a screened door. As the woman dialed 911, the prowler jumped off the porch and onto the roof of a van parked below. The woman was unable to give a description of the intruder.

Radical new Volvo 850 GLT runs just $1,000 more

It looks a lot like its big brother, the 9-series, and the former 7-series, which it replaces. But somehow the Volvo 850 GLT is different.

And Detroit-area drivers, with their usual keen powers of automotive observation, noticed right away. You could see their heads turn. And in one instance, at a red light on East Jefferson at Cadieux, a couple in a lovely Saab 900 leaned out the window and asked how we liked the Volvo. They were considering one because they found a new Saab 9000 just too expensive, they said.

This was several days into our acquaintanceship with the 850. A period in which we had gone from exclamations over its beautiful deep blue paint job and luxurious leather seats to dismay when a piece of fake wood trim came unglued from the inside of the driver's door, plus our complaints about the poor over-the-shoulder visibility when backing up.

Instrumentation seems more complex than necessary, particularly the air conditioner controls.

Autos

A quiet, responsive, generally pleasant car to drive, the all-new 850 GLT sedan made its debut last fall. It looks like a Volvo, it handles like a Volvo, and it's a bit radical for a Volvo. It's the first front-drive Volvo and under the hood is a new 2.4-liter, 20-valve five-cylinder engine, which moves the sedan along at a snappy pace.

Volvo Cars of North America says it is "the most dramatically new Volvo since the first Volvo released off the assembly line in 1927."

Anti-lock braking is standard on all new Volvos sold in the United States, complementing the power-assisted four-wheel disc brake system, which is also standard.

All 1993 Volvos feature air conditioning or electronic climate control as standard equipment and these systems will use a non-chlorofluorocarbon refrigerant, R134A. The refrigerant is believed to have no potential for depleting the ozone layer. Volvo has totally eliminated use of freon.

Perhaps the most radical thing of all about the new 850 GLT is that its base price starts at $25,285, which is just $1,000 more than the 740 four-cylinder model it replaces. And less than most people would guess when first driving it.

Volvo 850 is a lot more radical than it looks.

What would you think if . . .

Dave jumped out of a plane without a parachute?

Dave was in the middle of Lake Michigan without a life jacket and didn't know how to swim?

Dave got in the car and didn't put his safety belt on?

You'd probably think Dave wasn't playing with a full deck. It's pretty obvious that a parachute and a life jacket are going to save someone's life, but don't underestimate the protection that a seat belt offers.

Seat belts saved nearly 5,000 lives in 1991 and over an eight year period saved the number of people equal to the entire population of Ypsilanti.

So, don't be like Dave! Buckle up! It could save your life.

'Smart' cruise control under study at U-M

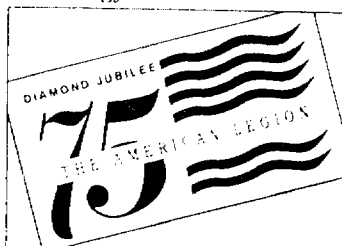

Researchers at the University of Michigan Transportation Research Institute are looking into the feasibility of "smart cruise" control. Using a commercially developed system that automatically adjusts a car's speed by using electronic sensors to detect vehicles ahead, the researchers hope to eliminate the need to constantly adjust cruise to accommodate slower vehicles en route.

With the new system, a driver sets the desired speed, which is kept constant until the car approaches a slower-moving vehicle driving in the same direction. According to U-M, the system, through sensors, measures the distance and relative velocity between the two vehicles and decreases the speed of the faster car to maintain a safe driving distance between them.

If the car in front either moves to another lane or accelerates, the smart cruise system reverts to the pre-set speed. The smart system will bring the first installation of an electronic eye type of automotive component for monitoring the roadway ahead of a moving vehicle, U-M said. The Transportation Research Institute is conducting the research with Leica, Swiss manufacturer of optical, laser and microscopy technology.

St. Paul sets dedication of historical marker

School bells are calling back alumni of St. Paul Catholic School for a reunion. Graduates of the Grosse Pointe grade and high school are invited to the alumni reception on Sunday, Sept. 26, from 2 to 5 p.m.

The reception celebrates the dedication of the historic marker placed in front of the school by the Michigan Registrar of Historic Sites. A marker is an honor bestowed on a building at least 50 years old with architectural and/or historical significance. The school and convent were originally designed by the Detroit firm of Smith, Hinchman & Grills in 1926.

Ground was broken for the school in 1927 and additions to the school were built in 1951 and 1963. The school and convent were nominated by the Grosse Pointe Historical Advisory Commission as part of its celebration of Grosse Pointe's centennial.

The afternoon reception features tours of the school, reunion tables in the gym, memorabilia display, a short dedication ceremony and refreshments. Past use of classrooms will be noted whenever known, and alumni are invited to volunteer any additional information.

Class lists from reunions are being sought so that invitations may be mailed to all alumni. Current addresses of alumni may be mailed to St. Paul Catholic School, 170 Grosse Pointe Blvd., Grosse Pointe Farms, 48236, or phoned in to the school office, 885-3430. RSVPs to the dedication/reception are due by Sept. 17.

Memorabilia of all kinds will be on display in the school cafeteria and display cases. Items for display are still being accepted. Old uniforms, pictures, textbooks, school pennants, newspaper clipping are among the most sought after items. Yearbooks from the 1940s and 1971 are also wanted. Memorabilia will be returned or stored in the school archives as the donor wishes. Donations are being accepted at St. Paul Catholic School, 885-3430.

Neighborhood Club sets full fall for kids

A variety of classes and activities for children will be offered by the Neighborhood Club beginning Sept. 13. A variety of activities gives all age groups an opportunity to participate.

Preschoolers ages 1 and 2 may participate with their mother or caregiver in the Mom & Tot exercise class, which meets Thursday mornings from 9 to 10. Two- and three-year-olds play together, sing songs and hear stories at the popular Play Group, held on Monday mornings from 10:15 to 11. Wednesday afternoons from 4 to 4:45 will find children ages 3 and 4 letting off steam in the Kiddie Gym program.

Gymnastics classes are also available for all ages beginning at age 4. Special small classes for preschoolers and kindergartners are held during the day on Mondays and Tuesdays. Classes for beginners and advanced beginners are held on Monday afternoons, and an intermediate gymnastics class meets on Tuesday afternoons. The program includes balance beam, tumbling, uneven bars and vaulting horse.

Computer based education classes for children ages 4 to 12 offer an opportunity for the child to build academic, logic and problem solving skills. Each child uses his or her own Apple computer using software that has been specially selected for each particular child. Classes are held on Monday or Wednesday afternoons.

Registration may be made in person or by mail at the Neighborhood Club, 17150 Waterloo, Grosse Pointe. All registrants must have a current 93/94 membership. Early registration is advisable as class sizes are limited. Call 885-4660 for further information.

Pointer

toys — a painted rocking horse, a fuzzy teddy bear with a red bow around his neck, a wooden sled, a decorated Christmas package and a tiny pine tree.

Swegles also creates Santas with different personalities, different themes. They have names: Victorian Santa, Northwoods Santa, Old McSanta, Father Fall, Papa Frost, Snowdrift, Heirloom Father Christmas, even a figure she calls Vagabond Santa, a kindly looking bagpiper with a shaggy beard of twisted colored yarn and a string of miniature baskets and bags over his shoulder.

She will teach 42 craft classes this fall, through Grosse Pointe's Department of Community Education, so that people can duplicate her creations. Most are one-session, three-hour classes. Students purchase materials in a kit she has assembled, then learn, step-by-step, how to create a Santa with personality. The completed figure goes home with its creator at the end of the session.

"Anybody can do this," Swegles said. "No previous craft experience is necessary. Honest. I'm a very organized person. Everything is laid out and we do it together, step-by-step."

Just to show that anyone can create these Santas, Swegles is going to help her son's fifth grade class make them. Michael Swegles, 10, is working on a figure now, to prove to his teacher and classmates how easy it is.

Swegles has been what she calls a "crafts person" since she was in her teens.

"My mother couldn't thread a needle. When I was a teenager, I had to take a home economics class. Everybody struggled along, sewing skirts or aprons or whatever. I made 15 different outfits. My teacher said I was wonder woman," she said.

"I asked my mother for a sewing machine. She said no. So my brother bought me an old treadle-powered Singer sewing machine at a rummage sale. I sewed on it until I was 18. When I got my first job, right away I bought a state-of-the-art Singer sewing machine."

"I made my own clothes. I only bought Vogue patterns and by the time I was 18 I was doing tailoring and copying designer outfits from Vogue magazine."

Swegles studied civil engineering for two years at Michigan State University. "I was a math and science whiz," she said. "I left school in 1970 to get married because I wanted to be Donna Reed."

Swegles said she had less time to sew her own clothes after she was married, "but I started making things — upholstery and drapes for instance — just to get the effect I wanted."

She also dabbled in other kinds of crafts and needlework: quilting, cross stitch, petting, needlepoint, felt work, metal work, trapunto, hooked rugs and rag rugs, to name a few.

"I wanted a decorative rabbit, for instance. I didn't want to spend $200 for a rabbit, so I made one out of towels, ribbon and fishing line. He has glass eyes, a stiffened cotton batting tail and he's stuffed with newspapers," she said.

Swegles makes regular visits to craft supply outlets to buy quantities of fabric, ribbon, and decorations when they're on sale. She'll buy a large quantity of rabbit fur for trimming Santa's coat, for instance; yards and yards of wedding gown-quality lace for her Victorian Santa; boxes of high quality miniature toys for Santa's pack when they're 50 cents apiece; oodles of sale-priced burlap, leather, plaid wool, colored yarn and goat's hair for beards.

She stores the supplies in her basement, then uses them to make up the kits that she sells to students in her classes. "I make a small profit on the kits," she said.

She often creates a new Santa character based on sale items she's stumbled upon. She found some good quality miniature farm animals on sale once, then developed a Farmer Santa figure with bib overalls and a sack full of animals.

Swegles is convinced there is a market for craft kits that are high quality and low cost. "Quality — high quality — is the key," she said. "They must look expensive."

She's not interested in items that require a lot of work, but turn out looking flimsy or cheap. "...like these toilet tissue roll nutcracker figures," she said, referring to a photo in a Christmas crafts magazine.

"These are cute. But they represent a lot of time and effort. They bend; they break; they don't last. The picture shows them hanging on a Christmas tree and it looks wonderful. But if you saw them up close, you'd know right away that they're toilet tissue rolls decorated to look like nutcracker figures."

Swegles also teaches classes for making Halloween figures, such as ghosts and witches.

"But Santa Clauses have become my obsession," she said.

In addition to teaching people how to make Santas and other figures, she markets her creations by displaying them at several craft shows a year and at an artists' market in St. Clair. She said she sold more than 600 Santas last year. "The most expensive one was $450; the least expensive, $25. Most were in the $25 to $50 range. She has also been talking to a publisher about writing a book.

She sees a tremendous market for the kinds of classes and kits she offers in the Grosse Pointes.

"Grosse Pointe is not really a 'craft' area," she said. "But people want to work with their hands. It's therapeutic. Up-scale, professional women want to make something beautiful with their hands. And they want a quality item to show for their efforts."

Swegles said that she can help students create an item that's worth several hundred dollars. They pay for materials, which are generally between $10 and $50; and they pay for the class, which is between $10 and $20. The price of each class is different.

Samples of the figures will be on display at Barnes school, 20090 Morningside in Grosse Pointe Woods, before classes begin.

For more information or to register for one of Swegles' classes, call Grosse Pointe Community Education at 343-2178.

For information about ready-made creations, call 824-3924.

Seniors

Want to be liked? It's up to you

I once wrote a column called "Entrance Examinations to Seniorhood." I should now like to write one about "What Every Old Person Should Know."

As we get older, we become more dependent on others for many reasons. We may take many things for granted. We may become irritated by others' conversations and interests, and we may show it. Let me, an older person, make a list of what I need or would like to have:

1. I would like to have other people like me.
2. I would like to have other people glad to see me.
3. I would like to have other people enjoy conversing with me.
4. I would like to have other people go out of their way occasionally to help me.

It seems to me that No. 1, if accomplished, would probably take care of Nos. 2, 3, and 4.

As we grow older, we may assume that we have, through our age, earned admiration, respect, and, from a more intimate number, affection. How do we keep from wearing affection thin? How do we influence people with whom we have daily contact to be glad when they see us? How do we influence people we have just met to have a positive rather than a negative feeling at first contact?

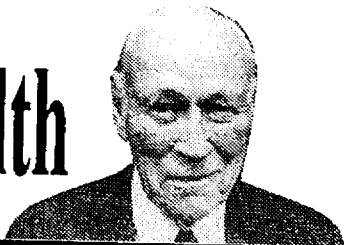

And the answer to all of these is to be interested in other people rather than to expect them to be greatly interested in you. Sometimes this may seem unfair. I certainly don't mean that you should denigrate yourself. Your sense of self-worth is very important to you and to any relationships you have with others. People may be inconsiderate of your status gained through what you have done through the years in your family, in your community, or in a broader sphere. But you want to be liked now, so have at them.

Beginning with those with whom you have an affectionate relationship, continue to appreciate them and the relationship. Show your genuine interest in them. Do they need sympathy? Criticism? Congratulations?

Think a bit about yourself and the people you see repeatedly. Perhaps you are living in the same house with your children. Perhaps you eat half your meals with them. At the table, do you make any noises repeatedly with your mouth, such as sucking between the teeth? Cleaning your ears with your little finger — and then looking to see what you caught? Do you slurp your coffee? Do you have a habitual half-cough which in reality is a tic because you don't have to do it? Are you per chance talking too much?

Repetition may be a useful

Senior Health

By Dr. Roger O. Egeberg

way to emphasize a statement, but there are two types of repetition that deserve a low mark. Repeating the same stories to a group that has heard them before bores the listeners or can stop a pleasant flow of conversation. Sometimes a slight cough from my wife, Meg, will tell me that I am repeating a story. The other irritating repetition is a suggestion or a request which is brought up too often and becomes nagging.

I daresay you readers can think of many more examples of the repetitive actions that drive people wild.

-For those you met casually — in a store, on an elevator, or wheresoever — an "excuse me," a "thank you," your tone of voice, and a smile are four potent weapons. Use them. Waste them. Don't be stingy with them. It's gratifying to see how often a smile wins an answering smile.

An "excuse me" leads to a response, and I'm much aware of how the tone of voice can establish the ambiance within a group. Even though there may be complete silences in a group from time to time, don't prattle. Ask questions.

And then listen to the answers. Young people in their teens are not only surprised but pleased when you ask them questions about themselves — their attitudes, their thinking.

Politeness may be waning. I hope to goodness it isn't. When I was in high school, a delightful woman, not a teacher, came in to give our whole school a talk about manners. It was a good talk, and I'm sure it improved many attitudes.

I do remember her final message: "Politeness is the oil that lubricates social relationships."

Letters

and now you are faced for the first time with the fact that the well is running dry because you took more from it than it had to offer.

Hard times come to the private sector and the private sector has had to deal with it. The Grosse Pointe school board, its administration and teachers, while the community was in recession, took hefty salary increases and benefits. Our system of education needs to be reformed. You better be up to the challenge because the taxpayers in all school districts are saying loud and clear, just do it.

Unfounded complaint

To the Editor:

On Sunday, Aug. 29, a group of Grosse Pointe South High School students were visiting our home.

Since it was a pleasant evening, they decided to visit in the front yard. Both my husband and I were home and welcomed their visit. When we felt they were getting too loud, we asked them to lower their voices and they complied. No neighbors called or complained that there was a problem.

However, due to a citizen's complaint, the police were dispatched to our home because "teens were gathering and drinking." When the officers asked if there were parents home, they were assured yes but the officers chose not to include us. The students said they were not drinking alcohol. After the officers checked the premises with their flashlights, looking for bottles or cans or whatever in our bushes, they determined the complaint was unfounded.

Let's look, however, at the lesson learned: If you are a teenager and having fun, you are assumed guilty of drinking until proven innocent.

Let's look at the lesson taught: Sophomores at Grosse Pointe South High School; some are football and basketball players, cross country runners, and even members of the Grosse Pointe South choir; many of these young people work part time. They are kids having a harmless visit in someone's yard at the close of summer.

In a perfect world, curious citizens would have communicated their concern to either the students or the parents instead of assuming and accusing.

We will continue to have students over; we will continue to be involved. We choose not to give the impression we don't care or that all teens can't be trusted. What a shame students cannot have fun without being assumed drunk. How can we wonder where our children develop their attitudes?

Politicians appreciated

To the Editor:

I wish to take this opportunity to publicly commend some of our local representatives. Whenever contacted, Sen. John Kelly, Rep. Bill Bryant and Grosse Pointe Park Mayor Palmer Heenan all responded in a timely and respectful manner.

We may not have agreed on the issues in question, but at least their commitment to community involvement evidenced by their recent stands on educational reform/funding is unquestionable.

Recently, I enjoyed a video available from our public library titled, "How We Won the Vote," detailing the long struggle women endured to obtain the "right" to be enfranchised as participants in our government. Every member of the feminine gender should become familiar with the history of that "right" finally realized on Aug. 28, 1920. No woman should ever miss the opportunity to vote even if it meant "writing in" an absurd preference to register displeasure with the entrenched political establishment.

In closing, I give special thanks to Sen. Kelly, as his response has always been accommodative and above average in providing useful information and materials.

Give walkers a chance

To the Editor:

Since a great number of Grosse Pointe bicyclists insist on riding on the sidewalks, could they be instructed to be more careful of pedestrians? We walkers do not hear them when they come up behind us. Slowing down and simple shout of "bicycle coming" would help us a lot.

We pedestrians try to remember to walk in a straight line on the far right of the sidewalk, but an inadvertent step toward the middle of the sidewalk at the wrong moment could lead to tragedy.

To be hit by a bicycle poses a mortal danger — not only to pedestrians, but also to bicyclists — especially to those who choose not to wear a helmet.

Schools top jobs as voter concern

Voters cited education reform (including financing) for the first time as the No. 1 state issue in a series of eight statewide public opinion polls spanning three years, according to a recent survey.

The survey, conducted by Public Sector Consultants and underwritten by the Michigan Hospital Association, showed that voters rated job creation (26 percent), traditionally the top concern, as the state's second most important issue behind education (28 percent). Sixty-six percent of the respondents expressed reservations about eliminating property taxes before determining a method to replace the lost revenue.

"Uncertainty about what the Legislature will or will not do in replacing school financing has Michigan voters worried," said William Sederburg, PSC vice president.

According to the survey results, 40 percent said the most important goal of school finance reform should be improving the quality of education, 33 percent said greater equity in funding among school districts, and 15 percent cited school choice. Voters in Wayne, Oakland and Macomb counties called equity in funding the most important goal, while the remainder of the state identified improving educational quality as the top objective.

The survey also showed that 59 percent believed that the local community should decide how much tax to levy for education, 60 percent thought job opportunities would increase with property tax reductions on Michigan businesses, and 74 percent agree that some property tax will be needed to finance schools.

On health care issues, 82 percent of respondents were concerned about their future access to adequate health insurance, mirroring findings from previous surveys. Nine out of 10 respondents said that the current health care system does not meet the needs of most Michigan citizens.

"The residents of Michigan have similar views on educational reform and health care reform," said Spencer Johnson, president of the Michigan Hospital Association. "The public believes that both education and health care require a fundamental restructuring of financing and delivery to ensure quality and efficiency. Likewise, the public believes local control of education and health care is a crucial element in reform actions."

Other survey findings showed a nine percentage point drop in President Clinton's approval ratings, down to 46 percent from 54 percent in the previous survey taken last spring. Six out of 10 respondents said the country was headed in the wrong direction. When asked how they would vote if the 1992 presidential election were held again, Clinton would have a hard time winning the state.

Home burgled

A resident who recently moved to a house on Trombley in Grosse Pointe Park told police that his house was broken into and a number of compact discs were stolen. The house was locked and there was no sign of forced entry in the Aug. 17 break-in.

HEALTH WATCH

Why such a treatable cancer often goes untreated.

A ticklish situation

If it's treated early, it has a high success rate. A simple blood test can often detect it. And yet every year, thousands of men risk the chances of undetected prostate cancer.

It's a sensitive issue for men. They aren't usually in the habit of annual checkups, and they're uneasy about rectal exams. So prostate cancer often goes undetected until it spreads to other parts of the body, when the success rate with treatment drops significantly.

A simple solution

To catch prostate cancer early, men 50 and over should see a physician every year. At these checkups, a digital rectal exam can detect the possibility of cancer. A PSA blood test can also flag prostate cancer, and should be performed every year in men after age 50, or every year after age 40 for black men or men with a family history of prostate cancer.

Prostate cancer, in its early stages, is one of the most treatable cancers. But only if men overcome their resistance to the exams that can detect it.

Time to seek agreement on school funds

Now that the major protagonists in the controversy over financing Michigan's public schools have had their say, we think it is time to seek common ground in order to pass required legislation before Jan. 1, 1994.

One area of agreement is already clear. Everyone agrees that the state's property taxes are too high and that any revenue package to replace the recently repealed property tax must require substantially lower property taxes — state and local — than those that now put an excessive burden on Michigan business and residential property.

While the governor's aides haven't helped solve the dilemma by their criticism of the Michigan Education Association, it is worth noting that Engler spokesman John Truscott also said that agreement would "take some compromise," adding that "we'd like them (the MEA) to come to the table as a willing participant."

In fact, the MEA cited a possible area for compromise in its internal memorandum publicized by the Detroit Free Press last week. The MEA said it would consider district boundary changes as long as employee rights are protected and "there is demonstrable benefit to the students."

Perhaps this suggestion could open the way for consideration of Gov. John Engler's suggestion for more school consolidations. Consolidation is often opposed on the grounds that it limits local control, but if planned carefully, it can be the source of important savings — and improve programs that benefit students.

Surely the MEA should be able to compromise on such hold-the-line requirements as the one promising support for a new financing system only if all districts can spend as much in 1994-95 as they are spending this year.

But such a requirement would be silly in a district that lost substantial enrollment this year, or whose spending is higher than average this year to meet a school or community emergency.

Yet the governor's position that state school costs must be reduced under any new funding plan is equally foolish. Until a more detailed examination is made, neither the governor, nor the MEA, nor anyone else really knows whether it would be possible to achieve such savings in many schools without damage to quality programs that have given districts like Grosse Pointe's their enviable reputation.

Despite the MEA's adamant opposition to any school choice plan, even that controversial issue ought to be subject to discussion and possible compromise, assuming choice is limited to public schools, which Engler now says he favors.

Nor should any worthwhile attempt at privatization of any school functions be ruled out, as the MEA demands. Many municipalities, including several in the Pointes, have made savings by awarding private contractors the task of collecting trash.

Couldn't private contractors supply school lunches and school maintenance at lower cost, too? Wouldn't such innovations be worth a try?

Finally, an increase in the sales tax surely should be included in the discussion of new sources of revenue. The governor has supported it again but the MEA now wants to restrict tax increases to those that earn federal income tax deductibility, which the sales tax lacks. Yet the sales tax does provide one way to tap tourists' spending in Michigan.

Early solution of the issue is obviously important. Unless agreement can be reached before Jan. 1, 1994, the state will enter the new year without the funding required to keep our schools open for 1994-95.

Even more dangerous, legislation enacted after Jan. 1 will require a two-thirds vote of the Legislature to win immediate effect, and, equally important, to start raising revenues to be needed during the year.

But one important obstacle to early agreement is the fear by many school supporters that the governor and his supporters will continue to insist that proposed restructuring and quality reforms be in place before financing can be tackled.

Yet without the knowledge of how we are going to pay for any new programs or extensive revisions, how can we decide how much we can afford to do unless we just accept Engler's attempt to cut overall spending?

What is needed more than anything is a greater willingness on all sides to consider all serious proposals offered, whatever their source. If the participants show such willingness, it should be possible to reach common ground soon and then work out an acceptable plan.

Could cities bail out schools?

Out of Gov. John Engler's recent discussions with the GOP House caucus has come another unusual but longshot proposal to help finance the state's public schools.

As reported by Rep. William R. Bryant Jr. of Grosse Pointe, who was present, the plan would enable the state's municipalities to aid in supporting the schools by levying sufficient funds to purchase educational services to serve their individual communities.

That was the gist of a response that the governor made in explaining how more funds could be made available to school districts, even though he favors taking school boards out of the money-raising business themselves and opposes any imposition of a state property tax.

Earlier, the governor had surprised Bryant and others at the session by saying that in his mind it "wouldn't disturb the equity issue" if some districts spent more than the state's proposed foundation grant of $4,800 to $5,000 per pupil to meet their needs.

The governor's proposal appears to be an effort to answer the criticism he has received from Grosse Pointe and Oakland County communities that he will lose political support in these GOP areas unless the higher-spending districts are given some additional aid.

The Pointe school district now levies more than 30 mills while the Pointe municipalities levy about 10 mills. However, the cities are limited to a maximum levy of 20 mills which would be cut to about 14 mills under the Headlee Amendment.

That would leave the cities with only about 4 mills available for school support. So even if the state provided a $5,000 foundation grant for each Grosse Pointe student, the total raised by the 4 mills and the grant would not match the current per-student spending in our schools.

As Bryant said in explaining the proposal, "While this plan would be better than nothing, it would be very troublesome to have to expand the municipalities' concerns to school district concerns."

It was in answer to Bryant's comment that high-spending school districts would need more annual revenue than the state's proposed foundation grant that the governor said he was "not contemplating any cap on expenditures." He then went on to suggest that local municipalities be asked to help support their schools.

However, such a shift would create difficulties for the five Pointe governments, Lake Township and part of Harper Woods. All are located in the Grosse Pointe school district, and all presumably would be expected to share the burden of financing the school district's operations.

So while this proposal would create new problems by requiring a distinct shift in financing from school districts to municipalities, it does deserve consideration, especially if no better solution can be found.

Schools renew bid to Engler

The Grosse Pointe school board is renewing its bid to Gov. John Engler to take part in a Grosse Pointe town meeting on the school financing crisis.

Carl Anderson, a Grosse Pointe school

389 spared?

A single bid that was lower than expected has apparently spared the Grosse Pointe school system's administrative offices at 389 St. Clair from being sold.

The lone $278,000 bid for the buildings fell far short of the $895,840 the school board had anticipated to finance renovations, moving costs and other expenses of relocating the offices.

As a result, the board probably will soon decide, perhaps as early as tonight, to reject the bid.

However, it appears the governments of the City and Farms now will get the additional time they recently requested — perhaps beyond the municipal elections Nov. 2 to about Feb. 1 — to study alternative uses of the buildings.

If no alternative uses materialize, the board then will have to consider a vote on a possible bond issue to renovate the buildings.

Unless some new development occurs.

district trustee, earlier had issued a telephone invitation to the governor as part of his idea to stage a local town meeting to seek ideas from the Pointes as part of the statewide search for ways to replace the recently repealed property tax.

Not having received a response to the earlier call, the board now has decided to issue a more formal invitation to the governor with the hope that he still might be willing to attend.

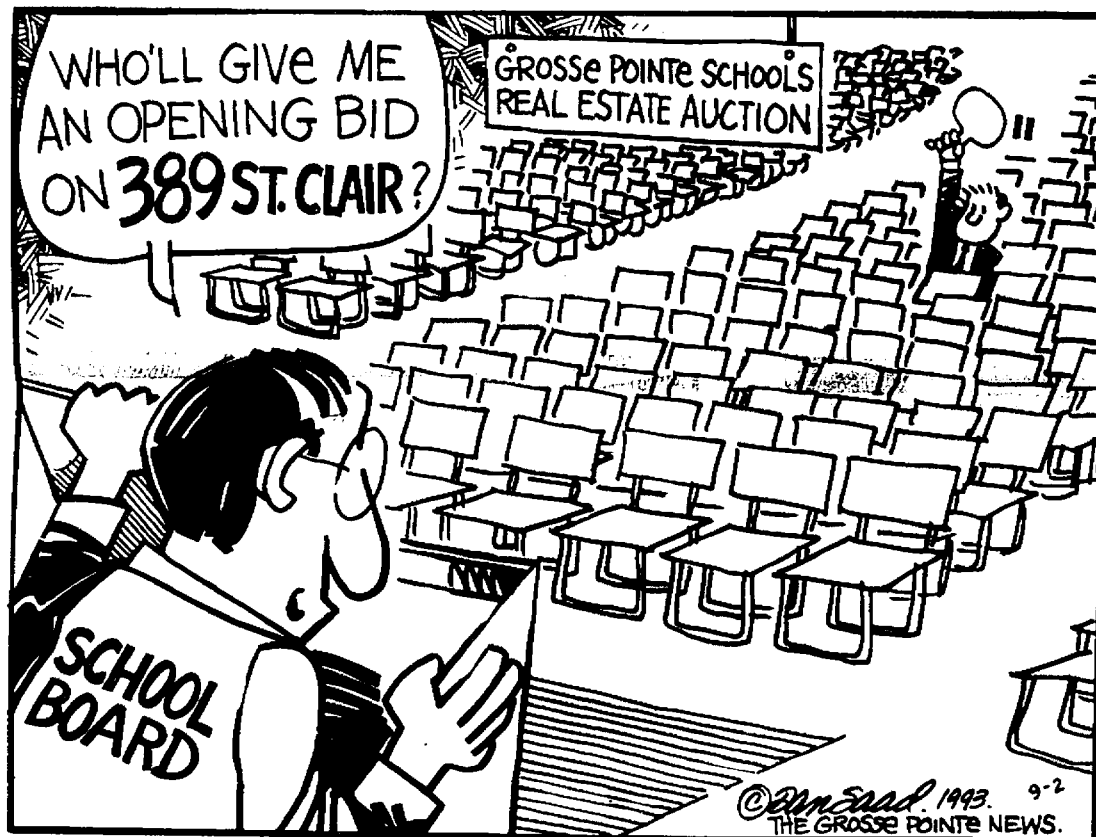

The Grosse Pointe News enthusiastically supports both the idea of a town meeting and the invitation to the governor for several reasons.

In the first place, it would be courteous to offer the governor a local forum from which to explain his ideas on education reform, several of which which have not been popular in the Pointes.

In the second place, any good ideas that the Pointes could produce as alternatives to the property tax would no doubt win the governor's attention and perhaps even his support.

And thirdly, Pointe school people would have an opportunity to explain why they believe the local schools will need more than a limited state foundation grant to maintain the high quality programs that have helped win the district an outstanding record and reputation.

Why not accept, Governor?

Letters

389 St. Clair not for seniors

To the Editor:

I was present in the board room at 389 St. Clair on Aug. 24 at 5 p.m. when the lone bid received to purchase the school offices was opened. The bid was for $278,000 on a land contract with $15,300 down at 9 percent interest.

We really don't think the board of education will accept this bid as a down payment on the sale of the property and buildings.

The mayors of the City and Farms had asked for a delay in any action at this time so that they may look into options like senior citizens housing at the 389 location. This request was made a couple of weeks ago.

May we suggest that the concerned mayors have a meeting with the mayors from the other Grosse Pointe communities along with their land developers and builders and look for their own land sites to proceed with their proposed concept of a senior citizens housing plan.

We would like to remind each member of the board that we, the Concerned Citizens of the five Grosse Pointes, presented 5,460 signatures expressing our rights according to the Constitution of the United States of America to petition the board of education to put their two proposals on the ballot and let "We the People" vote on this very important issue that will effect the Grosse Pointe school system for many years to come, not to mention our property values.

We also would like to have each board member read each word of the presentation our attorney, Alfred Wilke, made to the board to see if you don't really agree with the information he has provided. We would like to suggest that you print all of the letters from your attorney and our attorney in the Grosse Pointe News so that the citizens can truly be apprised of what is really happening.

The best idea is to honor our request to recind your two proposals, and then make a master plan to bring the two large buildings up to code, one phase at a time. Let's take advantage of the expertise of our volunteer citizens. We can start with the $350,000 that came from the sale of the home which was formerly used by the superintendent.

See you at the public hearing on increasing property taxes on Thursday, Sept. 2, at 8 p.m. The board of education will meet in the South High School library.

To the Editor:

Dear Mr. Shine:

In regard to your report in To the Pointe to the citizens of Grosse Pointe, I simply want to say, "Cut the white washing and face the new reality." Taxpayers want relief and the issues are very simple:

1) Cut the cost of administration by reducing personnel.

2) Freeze teachers' salaries; they are among some of the best paid in the state.

3) Reduce teacher and administration benefits.

This alone will do more to protect the future of the Grosse Pointe school system than any other simple act.

The school board and the administration has had 20 years of cajoling and outright threatening the taxpayers of Grosse Pointe,

'Empty nest' is double entendre

It takes a lot of stuff to keep a college freshman happy.

Daughter No. 3 — my youngest — recently sped away, hurtling toward adulthood via her freshman year at Western Michigan University. The term "empty nest" has a double meaning.

She took clothing: oodles of T-shirts; baggy cotton sweaters; oversized cotton shirts; washable pants; fleece-lined jackets; leather belts; brand new pre-washed, stone-ground, ink-stained, acid-washed, ripped, ragged, wrinkled jeans; and accessories, like purses and earrings and dozens of ribbons and bows for her hair.

And shoes.

She took a different pair of shoes for every contingency: running shoes; walking shoes; aerobic shoes; biking shoes; tennis shoes; sandals; flats; pumps; desert boots; pants boots; ski boots; dress-up boots; western boots; eastern boots; rain boots; snow boots; fog boots; fire boots; back-up boots.

She took appliances: stereos; CD players; woofers; tweeters; tape decks with competition-level volume controls; refrigerators; microwaves; computers; printers; cordless telephones; answering machines; TVs; toaster ovens; steam irons; popcorn poppers.

What's next? Fax machines? Blenders? Food processors? A generator to keep all these appliances up and running in case there's a campus-wide blackout?

She took leisure stuff: in-line skates; tennis racquets; skis; mountain bikes; VCRs; walkmen; a half dozen board games; a stack of CDs taller than she is; and subscriptions to four or five magazines and newspapers.

I Say

She took different kinds of clothing and shoes for each activity: ski jackets and gloves and hats and mittens; bathing suits and goggles and caps; running shorts; biking shorts; spandex thights and thats; warm up pants and hooded shirts to celebrate the completion of each activity.

And furniture: lofts; sofas; chairs; extra dressers; trunks; coffee tables; wall-to-wall carpeting; hampers; bookcases; computer desks; cabinets for the stereo paraphernalia. She took shelves and boxes and bins and crates and baskets and bags to hold all this stuff.

She packed up framed photographs of nearly everybody she's known for the last 17 years. Some of these were hanging on the walls of our nest.

The car was crammed ceiling-to-floor, door handle-to-door handle with stuff. She couldn't have wedged an extra pair of shoelaces into a bulging duffle bag — not even if she had let them hang out a rear window.

I remember rumbling off to Ann Arbor with a new bed-spread, a couple of new plaid skirts and lambswool sweaters, a pair of "school shoes" and three prized high school graduation presents: a new-fangled portable hair dryer with a big plastic hood, a huge new Webster's Collegiate Dictionary and a manual typewriter that fit into its own carrying case.

As I was unpacking, I realized, to my dismay, that my mother had sewed name tags on everything. Every towel and sock and sweater and scarf had my name emblazoned on its margin.

My dorm room came equipped with a bed, desk, dresser and tiny closet. No telephone. Instead, a wall-mounted buzzer rang when somebody called the dormitory switchboard and gave my room number or name. I had to run down the hall to a phone booth to take the call. Phone messages were scribbled on pieces of paper, by hand, and thumbtacked to the outsides of doors.

One TV set served several hundred women in a five-story residence hall. I never watched it.

The bathroom was down the hall — way-y-y down the hall.

I had to get permission from the housemother for my father to help carry suitcases to my room. Before he got off the elevator, I had to cruise the halls yelling, "Man on the floor."

I had to be home at 11 p.m. on school nights. Twelve-thirty on weekends.

On the downside, we were allowed to smoke anywhere — in our rooms, in the bathrooms, the lounge, in bed, in the halls, during meals, in the library, even in classes.

Worse yet, we did.

Since Daughter No. 3 left, I've been rattling around my empty nest, listening to the echo of footsteps and watching dust balls roll across bare floors, trying to recall the photos that decorated the faded rectangles left on the walls, searching for my old Webster's New Collegiate Dictionary.

Speak up, Mr. average guy!

Yoo hoo, is anybody out there?

The silence on the subject of school finance is deafening. I haven't heard a single real person even mention the state's financing vacuum.

Legislators, school personnel, the press, and various lobbies are sweating hard over whatever financing package we ultimately come up with. There's no lack of words on the subject — it's just that none of them are being spoken by, well, the average guy.

Surely people care. Maybe they're just resigned to whatever comes out of Lansing. Or they feel powerless. Maybe they're too wrapped up in summer fun. Or maybe the percentage of Michiganders with kids in school isn't great enough to reach a critical mass of fear and outrage.

Of course, it's just possible that people are proud of the Legislature's bold stroke and confident of a happy outcome. But I doubt it.

All I know is that all summer long, nobody has brought up the subject.

Districts like Grosse Pointe, of course, have the most to lose under an equalization plan, since it's a given that the state will never finance all schools at $8,000 per pupil. But no matter what the district or whether we have school-age kids, providing a good education to everyone should be one of society's most fundamental goals.

Why the silence? If we don't make it clear what we want from education in our state, someone else will make the decision for us.

Other states have had to deal with from-the-ground-up reform of their educational systems in a similarly short time period. Federal courts have ordered reform of financially inequitable schools in at least five states (Kentucky, New Jersey, Montana, Texas, Tennessee).

Nancy Parmenter

But Lansing appears to have an interest in changing not only the funding formula, but also the educational approach. That'll take a long time, and so far the Legislature is ignoring, for political reasons, the potential advice of its two education committee chairs, who had the temerity to criticize the ax-wielders. Worse, it's been reported that the Democrats want to delay action in the hopes of making Gov. Engler eat dirt and lose his next election.

That's hardly a surprise, but, as usual, it's the kids who will suffer. And there isn't any time to spare.

Random reading can take you unexpectedly to the strangest places. Here's an oddity that demonstrates anew that making good use of leisure time can be a challenge. Looks like people in the 15th century didn't have enough to keep them busy.

Louis XI was in need of amusement, so his pal, the Abbe of Baigne, cooked up a little surprise.

In those days, everybody of any substance who didn't actually inherit the manor, went into the military or the church. Unless there was a war or an inquisition on, things could get pretty dull. Hence, the abbe's prank, in which he made an organ out of hogs.

He made a wooden keyboard, and under it, lined up a bunch of pigs, covering the whole business with a velvet cloth, of course, as the organ was to play for a king. Then he put a little spike on the end of each key — with predictable results:

"As he played upon said keys with little spikes, which pricked the hogs, he made 'em cry in such time and consort as highly delighted the king and all his company."

That Louis, what a sense of humor.

This is from the Annales d'Aquitaine, which shows how far Aquitaine could sink after Eleanor left. But would it play in Peoria?

That flap in the Park about the portable basketball hoop is even more ridiculous than a similar one about five years ago over a skateboard ramp in the Farms. At least in the Farms, there was an arguably reasonable objection on the grounds of excess noise.

In both cases, though, a family was trying to provide healthy recreational opportunities for the neighborhood kids right at home. Certainly there is some noise involved; if kids shoot hoops all day, the repetitious bouncing is hard to ignore. But kids always make noise. Should we ban kids?

No one would argue that Grosse Pointe would be better off with junk cars up on blocks in every front yard. But somebody should tell those who seek to impose a particular version of civic beauty that their standard of perfection leads not to a healthy neighborhood, but to a plastic one.

A real neighborhood is bound to have some toys in the yard and bikes in the driveway. It's bound to have dogs barking and kids rollerskating on the sidewalk, and grownups shouting in a back-yard badminton game. It'll smell like barbecue and roar with lawnmowers, and in the winter the snow in the street will turn grimy.

So what? Life isn't a postcard. Would you rather live a little, or just look good?

Key is boat safety

A man often carries the image of something he wants and instantly recognizes it when it arrives.

So it was when Jim and Rita Goss spotted a 32-foot Uniflite sedan cruiser and sent her to a month-long beautyshop for refitting fine boats.

She was the pride of the Vietnam War's Mekong Delta patrols, the Navy's one-piece, fire-retardant, epoxy-fiberglass, no rust, no paint fleet for 10 years.

"Like airplanes in many ways, boats should be bought for safety, low maintenance and high pleasure at reasonable costs," says Jim, who works almost every day in quality control of manufactured products. "When I read the specifications, her pedigree, then checked all the service records and former owners' records, I was following the 'How to Book' for buying boats. And this is good advice for everyone."

Who could disagree? Incidentally, as step two of the Goss summer accomplishments, they'll move from Bishop Road to Rivard next month.

Annual picnic

Folly Farm near Romeo is a country retreat for Charles and Yolanda Turner of Grosse Pointe Farms. It's also the locale for eight consecutive summer picnics for Charlie and Yolanda's many friends of the Fine Arts Society theater group.

About 65 men, women and children flocked to the farm last week (Aug. 22) and feasted on barbecue foods.

Carloads came from all five Pointes and surrounding areas. "A dozen kids and six babies proved to me that our group has gained 60 or more new members, many of them young," said Yolanda.

Special honors went to Norma Gohle, who is moving to Florida after nearly 30 years in the City, 25 with the group. A French music box was her going-away gift, just one of many farewell parties for Norma.

Chit-chat revealed that Liz Aiken, of the Farms received a special ring from the Free Press' Larry Harwood, and present were Laurie Striebel, Sharon and Jim Conti, Roger and Jean Bever, Arme Volkens, Pete and Grete Rettig, Bob and Marilyn Ruthven, Judie Bailey and Greg Owens, plus two dozen others.

People watching

Many reply, "What do you go to those gatherings for?" when I relate to ongoing political fundraisers. It's pure pleasure, harmless, rewarding, citizen-involvement partying (and you learn something).

It's surprising how many are venting dislike of U.S. Reps. Dave Bonior, John Conyers and Barbara Rose Collins, plus Sen. Don Riegle Jr. Word is rampant that two or more will be out of office by '94.

I found some of this talk at the meeting for Wayne County commissioner Andy Richner in the home of Phil and Jean Chaffee on Lakeshore in the Farms. Funding education, property tax, sales tax changes and big federal and county spending were big topics.

Some of those attending: Charles and Sue David, Ed Brady, Palmer Heenan, Judge Kirsten Frank, Sue Radulovich and dozens more.

On the previous night, Marge's on Mack in the Park hosted Farms Judge Matt Rumora, and there were almost 200 there, including Ed and Jean Smith, Joe and Joan Leonard, Tony and Wilma Trokowniak, Jim and Elaine Farquhar and Joe and Angela Crea.

Rumora wants to hold the municipal judge bench five more years, but Eugene Casazza will oppose him.

Mario's search for Polly ends

Mario is a smart cookie. He's eaten, bathed, talked, but only when his mistress demands, so when she slipped up he was ready to fly. Thus, Mario took to the treetops of Kensington Road, loving freedom, but after all the door was open.

Marybeth Mercier scouted the neighborhood for three days, but no Mario, not a word from him. Thus, she relied on the free Grosse Pointe News ad for "missing pets."

Two weeks having elapsed and hopes not high, she talked to Liz Bojalade, a friend of 35 years. Liz said she ran an ad when she lost her favorite kitten, but no one responded, "... but the Farms police said they had a parrot holed up in the Standard-On-The Hill gas station, 66 Kercheval."

Marybeth and daughter Marilyn called her mother and she and Marcel Verstraete jumped into their car with a big fishing net. The Merciers sped from their driveway and all met at the Hill station, net, bathing pan and sunflower seeds in hand.

Service attendants Jake Water and Kevin Opdyke worked with doors shut, a big circulating fan turned off to lessen danger to the parrot and the 95-degree heat was deserving of medals of honor for the two.

Mario came down from the ceiling to eat and bathe, eventually going home under silent protest, thanks to the fishing net.

Editors note: Liz found her kitten asleep in the laundry basket.

Marybeth thanked the superb service of the Grosse Pointe News, then took a tip and some cookies to Jake and Kevin at the gas station (and she thanks owner Tom Onofrey and manager Chuck Emery for hiring two nice guys), and Mario is preening, talking, cracking seeds, but somehow he seems to be smiling, sorta smug, satisfied.

We are now installing Pella windows. Energy efficiency, structural integrity and long-term durability have become hallmarks of Pella products. No wonder more architects recommend Pella windows than any other window.

Grid rivalry renewed

Mike McLeod, who'll coach his first game Saturday at Grosse Pointe South, knows what's important to Blue Devils' followers.

"I'm expected to beat North, that's been made pretty clear," said McLeod with a smile.

"I get the impression that if we go 1-8 and the one victory is over North, it's a successful year. I don't feel that way, but some people do. But that's OK. Rivalries like that are great. We had them at St. Clement, too, when we played Orchard Lake St. Mary and St. Agatha."

South fans are hungry for a victory over crosstown rival Grosse Pointe North. Coach Frank Sumner has guided his Norsemen to three straight victories over the Blue Devils, including a 24-20 thriller last year that knocked South out of a state playoff berth.

"How important is the North game?" McLeod asked. "I'll tell you how important it is. We'll be scouting every one of their games."

The game is also a key encounter on North's schedule.

"It's a fun week preparing for that one," Sumner said. "Both schools want to win so badly. I sat with Mike at a coaches' meeting a while ago and I don't know if he realized then how important the game is."

He does now.

North-South football is high school's equivalent of Michigan-Michigan State, Auburn-Alabama and USC-UCLA.

Emotions run high the week of the game and neither coach has to worry about giving inspiring pre-game speeches to get the players fired up.

The bragging rights to the city takes care of that by itself.

Three years ago, North and South played in the same division of the Macomb Area Conference and the two teams met midway through the season instead of at the end where the game was traditionally played.

That created a difficult situation for each team.

It was hard for the winner to come back to earth after a victory of that magnitude and it was equally difficult for the loser to pull itself together after a devastating defeat.

"If we ever wind up in the same division again I would hope the game's still played at the end of the year," McLeod said. "It's too hard to come back and play the next week, no matter which side you're on."

The North-South football game is a real treat for high school fans. They know they're going to see the sport at its best and the competition at its most spirited.

But let's remember one thing. It's still just a game.

There's going to be a winner and a loser. Enjoy the competition and when it's over, congratulate both teams on a job well done.

New regime in place at South

By Chuck Klonke

Mike McLeod was like a kid at Christmas when he got his first few looks at his Grosse Pointe South football team.

"I have numbers for the first time," said McLeod, who replaced Jon Rice as head coach of the Blue Devils after seven successful seasons at Center Line St. Clement. "I have more varsity players than I did in the whole program at St. Clement and over there I had 50 percent of the boys out. And there are four or five kids who can run better than anybody at St. Clement, and I had some outstanding players there."

"I've been extremely happy with the support I've had from everyone associated with the program. I have the feeling that all I have to do is ask for something and they'll do everything they can to get it."

McLeod's enthusiasm didn't wane when he got his first glimpse of wide receiver Ryan McCartney. McCartney received some All-State mention last year and should make everybody's all-star squad if he stays healthy his senior year.

"He's a great one," McLeod said. "There's no sense hiding him. He's got to get the ball, but he can't be our only receiver. We have some great coaches in this league and they'll take him away if he's the only one we throw to. But if we force teams to single cover him, there's nobody who can stop Ryan one-on-one."

"For a first-year coach, he's a godsend. He has to be a big part of our show and he will be."

McCartney will have some of the pressure on him relieved by receivers like Bill Shepard, Steve Booher, Browe Merriweather and Joe Vlasak.

"We have eight or nine receivers who can play," McLeod said. "We'll throw the ball 50 percent of the time."

One of the questions still to be answered is who will be throwing for South.

McLeod is having trouble deciding between senior Paul

Gentile, who was the backup signal-caller last year, and Todd Drake, who quarterbacked the junior varsity in 1992.

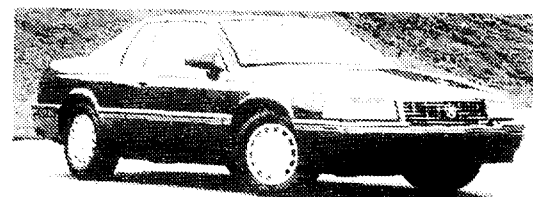

"It's still a battle," McLeod said. "One scrimmage was

Ninth season

Bob Newvine will begin his ninth season as football coach at University Liggett School with a small but promising squad. Newvine has 19 varsity candidates this year and is hopeful of improving on last year's 2-7 record. For a preview of the Knights, see page 13C.

Veteran line is North's strength

By Chuck Klonke
Sports Editor

Last year's game plans won't be much use at Grosse Pointe North this season.

"Fraser and Cousino are the only teams we played last year that we'll play this year," Norsemen coach Frank Sumbera said as his team got ready for Saturday's opener at Fraser. North and Cousino are the only two teams remaining from last year's Macomb Area Conference Blue Division. Lakeview, Lake Shore, L'Anse Creuse, Mount Clemens, Warren Woods-Tower and Clintondale have dropped down to the new Gold Division and they've been replaced by East Detroit, Roseville and L'Anse Creuse North.

"We're playing all A or AA teams this year," Sumbera said. "With this schedule we'd have made the playoffs last year instead of missing it by two points."

The down side is that the Blue Division has only five teams so more than half of North's schedule will be non-league contests.

"We could go 4-5 and win a league championship," Sumbera said.

The strength of this year's North squad is a veteran offensive line that has five of its six starters back.

All-league tackle Fred Lovelace heads the list that includes center Zac Hubbell, guards Donny Tocco and Tom Fennell and tight end Rob Dallaire. The only newcomer is tackle Dan Vormelker, who played tight end on the junior varsity last season.

"Last year the offensive line got better with every game because the kids were new," Sumbera said. "Now they're experienced and you can see it. They look a lot better than they did last year."

Running behind the solid line is tailback Eric Peters, who came on strong at the end of last season and rushed for more than 100 yards in the Norsemen's season-ending victory over Grosse Pointe South.

"Eric got better with every game last year," Sumbera said. "He ran a 4.6 (40-yard dash) on the first day of practice. He's a tough, strong runner, too."

Peters was the second-leading rusher behind Mike Haskell last year when he gained 510 yards in 87 carries as a sophomore.

Steve Meathe, who started the opener at fullback but went to a reserve role when Haskell moved back to fullback to make room for Peters, should be a fixture at fullback this season.

"He's running very well," Sumbera said.

Emmett DeGuvera has looked good since assuming the starting role at quarterback. He spent the season on the varsity as Scott Spada's backup in 1992.

"I've been pleased with his performance in our scrimmages," Sumbera said. "I have a lot of faith in the kid. He's tall (6-foot-2) and has a decent arm."

DeGuvera's receiving corps includes holdovers Dallaire, Rob Hamilla, Nate Treska, Chris Quarnstrom and Rob McLeod.

"We ran a two-tight-end formation a lot last year, so Dallaire got a lot of experience," Sumbera said. "At 6-6, he's a great target and he has excellent hands and decent speed."

Defense is where North has to do its rebuilding.

Dallaire returns at defensive end, Mike Collins is a returning starter at outside linebacker and Steve Guest is back at safety. The rest of the defense lacks experience.

Joining Dallaire up front are tackles Dave Pierno and Chris Leininger and end Nate Pierantoni. Wayne Ford and Tim Northey are the inside linebackers and Brandon Hacias joins Collins on the outside and is an excellent prospect.

The secondary is still unsettled but Tom Paquin and Hosea Peters seem to be the front-runners to join Guest.

"That's the position we've focused on since the scrimmage," Sumbera said. "Hosea has been sick and hasn't been able to practice recently."

Paquin will handle North's punting while former soccer player Mark Brewster will do the placekicking.

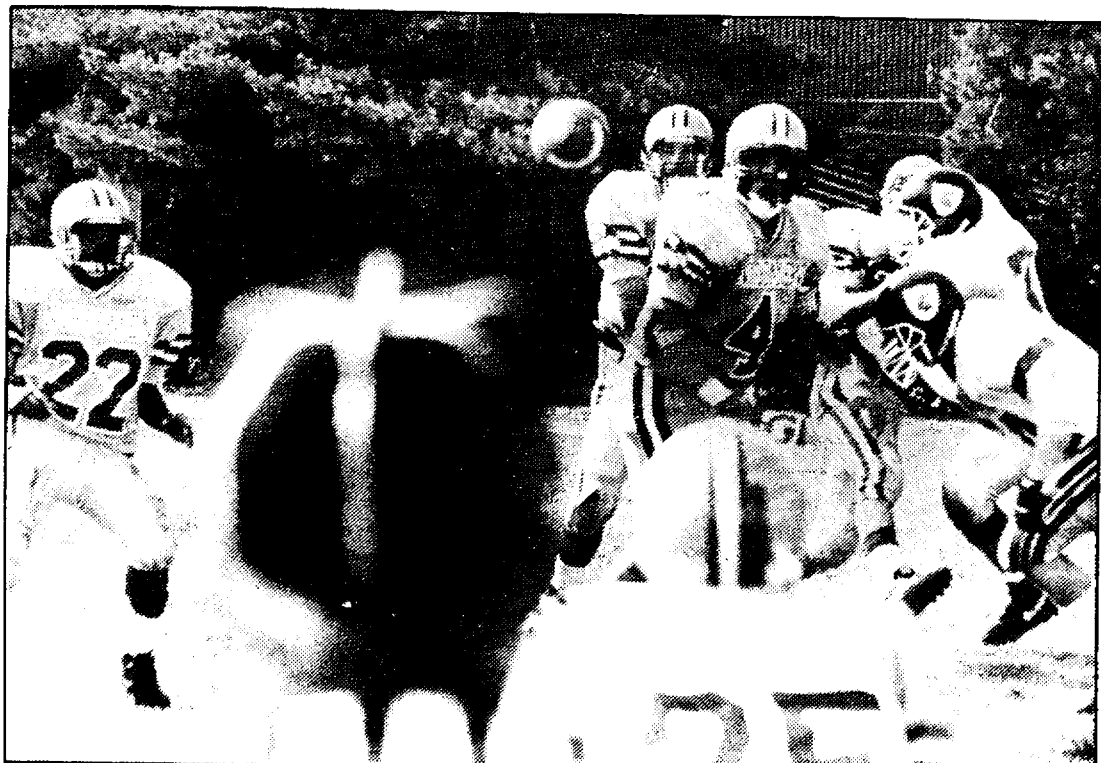

"We have to shore up the defense and make sure we have all the guys in the right spot,"

Sumbera said. "With our 4-4 defense we need a lot of communication and the kids have to be flying to the ball. It's a read type of defense. We don't look for the sack, but we want to get to the ball and make a team second and nine and third and six or seven."

Sumbera expects the revamped Blue Division to be balanced.

"It could be anybody, but we're the defending champs and somebody's going to have to beat us," he said. "Roseville and East Detroit expect to be better since they're no longer in the Red and last year we only beat Cousino by three points."

A quarterback has to be able to stand his ground in the face of danger as this action from one of Grosse Pointe North's 1992 games illustrates.

ULS coach hopeful despite small squad

By John Miskelly
Special Writer

Every season is important to a football coach but the 1993 campaign will be a major challenge for University Liggett School's Bob Newvine.

Last year, in the Knights' return to the Metro Conference, ULS finished 1-3 in the East Division and 2-7 overall.

The toughest challenge for Newvine, who'll start his ninth season at ULS, is fielding a team without the benefit of a junior varsity program. There are only 19 varsity candidates this year, so a JV squad wouldn't be feasible.

"Our middle school program is strong," said Newvine, who stressed that ULS football is in the famine portion of a feast-and-famine cycle.

"We've got a group of hard-working kids. We're stable as a team. A limited number of players is what we're going to have."

The Knights have dropped from Class C to Class DD in the state playoff system.

"The bad things include the depth," Newvine said, explaining the drawbacks of having a small squad.

Newvine knows he has some talented players and that talent is best illustrated in special teams play.

"We realize how important the kicking game is," he said.

Other ULS teams have suffered from low numbers, but those teams neglected the special teams. Some even failed to punt or kick extra points.

Newvine said that won't happen as long as he is in charge and the Knights have scored an average of four or five touchdowns a year as a result of the kicking game.

On one day of practice, when most schools were going over their offensive playbooks, Newvine's squad was setting up kick-return formations.

ULS is also strong in the line, especially on offense.

Seniors Brent Jahnke (6-foot-4, 290 pounds) and Andrew Partridge (6-3, 290) are the two offensive tackles and formidable barriers for a defense to penetrate. Matt Corona, a 6-2, 210-pound junior, will line up at one of the guard positions.

Sophomore Brian LeGree will call the signals for the Knights. Normally a sophomore quarterback would make a coach cringe, but LeGree is something of a veteran after starting five games in 1992.

Among others expected to make solid contributions is senior Jaavon Kuykindall. He sat out the 1992 season after playing his first two years. He will double at running back and in the defensive secondary.

Seniors Robert Listman, Tim Mehram and Jeff Mertz are expected to be two-way starters and Mertz will also handle the Knights' punting.

ULS opens the season Friday at 4:15 p.m. when it hosts Dearborn St. Alphonsus in a non-league game. Last season the Arrows eked out a 14-12 victory in the first meeting between the two schools.

ULS had an eight-game winning streak in home openers snapped last year when Lutheran East beat the Knights 34-0.

The Arrows are coached by Clyde Davidson, who is in his third year. Last season St. Alphonsus finished 3-6. The school has switched from the Catholic League's C Division to the D Division.

There are several seniors in key positions for the Arrows. Bill Fundero is the quarterback and twins David and Dana King anchor the offensive line. Senior defensive back Richard Wolski was an all-league selection in 1992.

St. Alphonsus' ground attack will be paced by sophomore Gino Williams, who rushed for more than 1,100 yards as a freshman.

These 13 Grosse Pointe South players are members of new coach Mike McLeod's Leadership Council. McLeod said that because he didn't know the players well enough to appoint three or four captains, he named the larger group of veterans. In the front row, from left, are Carl Randolph, Corey Geer,

South

Paul's and the other was Todd's so we don't have anything to separate them there. We can't afford not to have either of them playing, but we haven't had the chance to work with them at other positions, because there's such a battle at quarterback."

Gentile and Drake have different styles. Gentile is a sprint-out quarterback, while Drake is a classic drop-back passer.

"We've been working with the offense to fit each of their styles," McLeod said. "We can change up against our opponents and hopefully create some problems."

Returning quick tackle Jesus Graham, a 6-foot-3, 275-pound senior, anchors a solid offensive line. Other members of the line are guards Dave Misch and Eric Dahlstrom, strong tackle Doug Jabara and center Jason Rolka. The starting line averages about 230 pounds per man.

South lost a 1,000-yard rusher when Chad Hepner graduated and they'll try to replace those yards with fullbacks Corey Schroeder and Bob Wortman and tailbacks Peter Mertz, Bob Kazma and Corey Geer.

"A lot of the running backs will be playing both ways, so we'll try to rest them on offense as much as we can," McLeod said.

Geer is the focal point of the secondary at strong safety, where he was a standout a year ago. Either Alex Kerros or McCartney will play free safety and Rob Eranni, a transfer from Notre Dame, will play one of the other backfield positions on defense.

Linebackers include Misch, Wortman, Schroeder and Matt Reynolds. McLeod plans to use eight down linemen in order to keep them fresh. That group includes Matt Markel, Carl Randolph, Dan Fortune, Mike Hendrie, Dan Gutman, Rob Sharrow and Tyler Brownscombe.

Brownscombe has made a special impression on the new staff.

"He doesn't understand what less than 100 percent is," McLeod said. "Unfortunately, he has two bad knees."

The kicking will be handled by Rob ZurSchmiedee, a junior who is also a line candidate, and McCartney will do the punting.

McLeod admits that the pre-season has been a time of adjustment for both the players and the coaches.

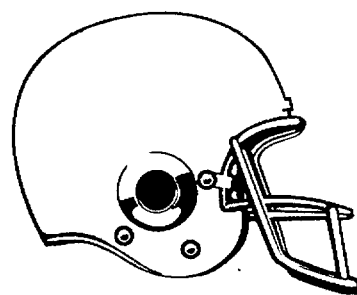

"It's been different for all of us," he said. "We didn't know what to expect from the kids and they didn't know what to expect from us. We've put in a new offense and a new defense and we have to prove that it's going to work."

The team attended a camp at Alma College during the summer and McLeod thinks it was beneficial.

"It really brought the kids together as a team," he said. "We had 20 practices in four days and we woke them up with an air horn. That gave them something to grumble about together. It's good to find a common ground."

Speedy 505s make rare appearance in Midwest

By Chuck Klonke
Sports Editor

John Dohan is hoping Lake St. Clair is at its stormiest this week.

Dohan, a Grosse Pointe City resident and member of the host Crescent Sail Club, is the event organizer for the North American 505 Championships which will be held through Friday on the waters between Crescent and the Grosse Pointe Yacht Club.

"These boats favor a lot of wind," said Dohan, who is the only Midwest sailor competing in this week's event. "If we're lucky, it'll be real windy, even stormy. That's when it gets exciting and the boats skip out of the water. The boats are very light and there's a lot of sail area."

This is the first time the 505 class — a two-person, high-performance dinghy — has held its national championship in the Midwest since the 1977 race in Chicago.

More than 100 sailors, mostly from the east and west coasts, are in Grosse Pointe for the event.

"It was something out of the blue that we got the chance to host the race," Dohan said.

"The last two years it was held in Santa Cruz, Calif., and off Cape Cod, but I think they're trying to fan interest in the Midwest."

Several Olympic sailors, including 1988 gold medalist Allison Jolly of Los Angeles, are in the fleet. There are also several Canadian Olympic team members and world class sailors from Florida.

"You see a lot of Olympic sailors in the 505s when they're not actually campaigning for an Olympic berth," Dohan said. "The boats are geared toward world class racing."

Olympic sailboats are in the 470 class, which means they measure 4.7 meters. The 505s — 5.05 meters — are slightly larger and allow the sailors to sharpen their skills even more than they would in the 470s.

"One of the reasons you don't see more 505s around here is that the boats are somewhat expensive for their size and it takes two very accomplished sailors to race them," Dohan said. "It's a very high-powered boat and you can get in trouble in a hurry if you're not experienced in that type of boat."

Dohan was the captain of the University of Michigan sailing team in 1980, where he sailed the 470s. It was a natural progression for him to graduate to the 505s.

"It was a little bigger, more powerful and more exciting," he said. "It provided a little more of a challenge."

Unlike the Snipe, Lightning and Thistle designs which are most popular at Crescent, the 505s haven't caught on at the club.

"Those boats have been around since the late '30s and early '40s and they're more geared to family and social racing," Dohan said. "The 505 is a more recent design so it's more advanced. It's geared more toward the competitive sailor."

Sailing begins each day at 11 a.m., and will conclude between 3 and 4 p.m., depending on the wind conditions.

South booters stumble in opening tournament

By Chuck Klonke
Sports Editor

Mark Christensen wonders which Grosse Pointe South soccer team he'll be coaching this fall.

Will it be the one that looked so impressive in the pre-season scrimmage with Chippewa Valley or the one that struggled to win one of three games in last weekend's Country Day Invitational tournament.

"We played much better against Chippewa than we did last weekend," Christensen said. "This is our toughest year schedule-wise and we're missing some of the elements that are required to be successful. We need drivers of the bus. We have too many passengers right now."

The Blue Devils are idle until they face rugged non-league foes Brother Rice, Washington Eisenhower and defending state Class A champion De La Salle during the week of Sept. 6.

"We know there's a lot of work to be done before then," Christensen said.

South dropped the tournament opener 2-1 to Farmington when the Falcons scored twice in the last 20 minutes to overcome a 1-0 lead the Blue Devils held since Karl Davids had scored in the first 10 minutes of the game.

"We didn't pursue getting the second goal," Christensen said.

South let a couple of leads slip away in its next game, but beat Birmingham Seaholm 4-3 when Pete McDonald scored in the second overtime period.

The goal was the result of a long throw-in by Andy Ostrowski, a redirected header

All-Stater

Ryan Dloski, who played No. 1 singles for University Liggett School last spring, was named to the Class C-D All-State tennis team. Dloski, who will be a sophomore at ULS this fall, was the runner-up in regional competition. He advanced to the state finals where he won a three-set match in the semifinals, but bowed in the championship match. He is the son of Nancy and Lawrence Dloski of Grosse Pointe Woods.

Sports celebrities are guest bartenders

Jimmy Mack's Olde Pointe Tavern will feature guest bartenders to help raise money for the Salvation Army, during this year's Monday Night Football season, said owner John Carlisle.

Tigers' coach Dick Tracewski will be the first bartender, according to Carlisle. Tracewski will be available to pose for pictures and talk with customers. Profits for the night will be donated to the Salvation Army.

Jimmy Mack's Olde Pointe Tavern, located on Mack in the Park, caters to sports fans. An instant camera will be available to take pictures for $5. All proceeds will go to the Salvation Army as well.

Scheduled guest bartenders include ex-Tigers Jim Price, Gates Brown, Dave Bergman and Jim Northrup and Red Wings' announcer Dave Strader. The guests will be available to speak to customers between 8 and 9 p.m. They will be available to sign autographs and pose for pictures between 9 and 10 p.m.

Carlisle said the guest bartenders will be at the bar for the length of Monday Night Football season, 18 weeks. The bar will also continue its Red Wing promotion, where if the Red Wings are ahead, Molson beers are 50 cents said Carlisle.

Rangers rebound for title

The Rangers roared back from an 0-7 start to win the playoff championship in the Grosse Pointe Farms-City-Park Babe Ruth League Intermediate Division.

An 8-4 victory over the Dodgers in the championship game gave the Rangers the title.

Winning pitcher Rob Bennett scattered three hits over four innings, Chris Farkas pitched two shutout innings and Brian Barrett closed out the victory.

Brian Degnore provided the big hit for the Rangers with a two-out grand slam in the third inning to overcome a 3-1 lead by the Dodgers. Degnore also had an excellent game in the field as he cut down three runners attempting to steal.

Ryan Miller hit a two-run triple, Mike Delmege tripled and Dave Wolking had a single and three stolen bases for the Rangers.

The Rangers defeated the regular-season champion Blue Jays 11-7 in the semifinals.

Farkas pitched five excellent innings of relief to record the victory.

The Rangers trailed 6-0 after two innings, but went ahead to stay in the fifth. Jeremy Burkett led the attack with two hits, while Josh Schmidt and Rob Bennett also had hits.

Other team members who made key contributions during the season were Tom Leto, Chip Jarvis, Mark Zeller and Chris Bissig. The squad was managed by Bill Adlhoch Jr. and coached by Henry Schmidt and Tom Miller.

Tourney a family affair

Our Lady Star of the Sea's Men's Club will sponsor the first Fall Family Tennis Classic at the Grosse Pointe Hunt Club from Sept. 16-19.

The deadline for entries is Wednesday, Sept. 8. No phone entries will be accepted.

There will be competition in men's and women's doubles and singles, men's and women's senior (50 and older) doubles, adult and child doubles and junior singles for players under 15.

All events will be single elimination. Tennis balls will be provided.

The entry fee is $20 for juniors, $30 for adults and $50 for doubles. The fee includes a tennis shirt.

"This is an attempt to get families to come together," said Duane Wisk, president of the Men's Club. "This isn't a highly-competitive tournament, but one where families can have some fun."

For more information and an entry form, call 884-9090.

Pointe Aquatics swimmers shine

Summer was a huge success for Pointe Aquatics coaches Mike O'Connor and Greg Patrell as they had swimmers qualify for several major events.

Club members qualified for the Michigan long course state championships, the Central zone championship, the Junior National meet and the Senior National meet.

The latter is the highest honor a club swimmer can achieve.

Kim Higel set a Michigan record at the Senior Nationals in Austin, Texas, for the 17-18 age group when she placed sixth in the 200-meter backstroke with a time of 2:15.94.

Lidia Szabo was 26th in the 1,500 freestyle (17:38.22) at the Junior Nationals in Orlando, Fla., and her time trial effort of 4:30.2 in the 400 freestyle made the Junior cut.

Brett Collins was 28th at the Junior Nationals in the 1,500 freestyle (16:27.28) and had a Junior National cut of 8:38.25 in the 800 freestyle time trials.

Steven Williams was 34th in the 1,500 freestyle (16:33.19) and was 25th in the 800 freestyle (8:32.22) at the Junior Nationals, while Bill James placed 48th in the 800 freestyle (8:44.42) in the same meet.

Suzette and Rachelle Atrasz swam for Pointe Aquatics in the Central Zone championships in Indianapolis.

Suzette qualified first in the 100 breaststroke with a 1:16.95 in the 15-18 age group. She also swam the 50 freestyle and 200 breaststroke.

Rachelle swam in the girls 11-12 group and was second in the 400 freestyle (4:41.53), fourth in the 200 freestyle (2:16.34), fifth in the 100 freestyle (1:03.57) and seventh in the 200 individual medley (2:38.69).

Pointe Aquatics finished fifth in a 40-team field at the Michigan Long Course state championships.

and a slip by the Maples' goalie.

"It was a pretty ugly goal, but we needed it to get that first win," Christensen said. "Their tying goal was much the same thing — a defensive miscue by us and a little bit of luck for them."

Seaholm scored the equalizer with eight minutes left in regulation and South goalie Jeff Goudie made some good stops to preserve the tie.

Ostrowski, P.J. Tannian and Tim Sandercott scored the Blue Devils' other goals.

Christensen hoped the victory would carry over into South's game with Dearborn Edsel Ford, but the Blue Devils suffered a 3-2 defeat when the Thunderbirds scored twice in the last four minutes.

A reversal in an official's ruling turned out to be disastrous for South. One of Edsel Ford's players was given a red card for a foul inside the 18-yard line, but after several minutes of discussion the ejected player was reinstated.

"I really had no problem with that, but as it turned out the kid who was red-carded scored the winning goal on a 40-yard volley with less than a minute to play," Christensen said.

Tannian opened the scoring for South with a goal on a cross from Davids, but by halftime Edsel Ford had tied the game.

Jake Howlett's penalty shot, which was a result of the red-card controversy, gave the Blue Devils a short-lived 2-1 lead with 9 1/2 minutes left.

Christensen said he was pleased with the play of senior Ryan Messacar and McDonald.

"Ryan was our most effective offensive threat during the two games he played and Pete went from a guy who was trying to make the varsity to one of our first 11," the coach said.

G.P. Artists Association will hold annual Fall Art Festival on Sept. 11

By Margie Reins Smith
Feature Editor

Artist Leo Salvaggio settled on collage as his favorite method of artistic expression more than 20 years ago.

Trained as an architect, Salvaggio earned a bachelor of science degree in architecture from Lawrence Institute of Technology; then he attended the Center for Creative Studies.

The Grosse Pointe Farms resident is president of the Grosse Pointe Artists Association, a 300-member group of local artists who present monthly lectures and plan art exhibits, fairs and festivals. He will be the featured artist at the association's 34th annual Fall Art Festival Saturday, Sept. 11, at the Grosse Pointe War Memorial.

More than 100 selected artists will be on hand from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. to display and sell their works. Many will also demonstrate their creative talents during the day.

Salvaggio earns a living by using his architectural training. With two brothers, he owns and operates a development company, a construction company and a 15-acre industrial park in Oxford.

His avocation, however is creating collages.

He often works as many as 20 hours a week creating abstract collages that elicit emotional responses, intuitive feelings and spiritual energy from spectators. He works while listening to music — usually to Detroit's classical radio station, WQRS-FM. Sometimes, he said, he has a theme or a plan in mind, but his collage-in-progress turns and takes him in a different direction.

"Some day perhaps I'll be able to retire and make a living full time doing collages," he said.

Collage is a French word meaning glue. It refers to an artistic collection of paper, fabric, photographs, pictures and other materials arranged and glued on a backing.

"Collage is a very old technique used by such painters as Braque, Picasso and Matisse," he said.

"I've always been interested in this art form and I've tried many different approaches and continue to experiment with new ideas."

His earlier pieces were not as colorful or as detailed as his recent creations. "My collages have become more complex, brighter and more intricate. My techniques vary," he said. "Some are lacquered to a high gloss, while others are completed in a matte finish. Some are painted. Some use paper as paint. Sometimes I use Japanese rice papers to add an extra element, creating a mood or desired feeling."

He mounts the completed collages on painted wood or masonite and often frames them himself with paint. Others are matted and framed. The proper frame is an important part of each piece, he said.

He has sold hundreds of collages. Some have won awards. Many have been displayed at art exhibits and museums around the country, including the Toledo Museum of Art, the Detroit Institute of Arts, the Detroit Artists Market, local galleries, banks, buildings, art fairs and festivals. One of his pieces was purchased by Manufacturer's National Bank for its permanent art collection.

Salvaggio met his wife, Katina, nearly 20 years ago while he was working as an architect for Hudson's. His job was to select art for the managers' offices and have the pieces framed. She worked in the custom framing department of Hudson's design studio.

They've been married 17 years and have three children: Catherine, 15; Leo, 13; and Demetri, 10. All three children are artistic, Salvaggio said.

Early in his career, he got the urge to flex his architectural muscles. He and his wife purchased a 100-year-old farmhouse in Grosse Pointe Farms. He spent three years tearing it apart and re-designing it. He made an album of photographs taken before and during all stages of the work. He moved the entrance, extended roofs, raised doorways, created outdoor and indoor garden areas, combined the kitchen and dining room, added windows and skylights and overhangs. Everything was designed with an eye for the views.

"We loved the neighborhood, the trees, the views," he said. "I took the existing trees into account when I designed the windows."

The resulting house is one-of-a-kind on a street lined with traditional Colonials and ranches.

Like many artists, Salvaggio said he used to have trouble parting with his creations. He photographs every collage and keeps a detailed record of who purchased what. When he's planning an exhibit, he mails invitations to people who have already purchased his work.

"Recently I've had less trouble parting with my work. I like to think ahead — the next collage will be more exciting than the last one," he said.

A variety of artists and their work will be represented at the festival: original art in watercolor, acrylics, oil, pastels and pen and ink; hand painted clothing; original jewelry; leather goods; porcelain; hand-crafted baskets; toys; dolls; and puzzles.

A children's activities tent will give pint-sized artists a chance to create a painting or a craft project or contribute to a mural.

Salvaggio plans to concentrate on the Grosse Pointe Artists Association presidency, a two-year position. "It's a wonderful group, with lots of talented people. I want people to know they don't have to go to New York or Birmingham to buy good art," he said.

One of Salvaggio's creations will serve as the theme for the festival.

Titled "Summer Heat," he described the collage: "It's two eagles sitting high on a bare branch. It has abstract elements of sunflowers and shades of brown, yellow, burnt orange and a touch of green. They combine with abstract images of planets to create a feeling of depth, dimension and emotion."

The design has been reproduced on a T-shirt, which will sell for $12 at the festival.

The Grosse Pointe Artists Association welcomes new members and has recently added an associate membership category for people who enjoy art, but are not working artists.

For information about the association or about its annual Fall Art Festival, call the War Memorial at 881-7511.

It's about time to go wild over rice

Wild rice is the seed of an aquatic grass, related to the rice plant, and the only cereal grain native to North America.

Wild rice is Minnesota's official state grain and the state is the world's largest producer of cultivated wild rice, producing 4 to 6 million pounds annually. Most of its wild rice comes from man-made paddies, 60 percent of which are located in north central Minnesota.

Minnesota wild rice is unique because it has a toasty, nutty flavor. Its uniqueness has earned it the moniker "caviar of grains." Wild rice salads can be dressed up or down to fit your most elegant entertaining or your back yard barbecue. When you're packing your next picnic basket, why not leave that ho-hum potato salad at the deli and substitute a cool, refreshing wild rice salad.

It could be an early fall day and you don't feel like cooking. Join the smart cooks and serve something new and refreshing — wild rice salads. These new fall salads fit today's national trend of no-nonsense healthy eating, offering taste appeal, high nutritional value and ease of preparation. Don't be fooled by "sticker shock"; one pound of wild rice yields 20 to 24 servings.

Minnesota wild rice consumption is sure to be on the rise, especially with the new Food Guide Pyramid recommendation to increase the intake of complex carbohydrate foods from the grain group. Wild rice is a perfect choice to help meet the American Heart Association's and the American Cancer Society's recommended high fiber, low fat diets. It is an excellent source of fiber and bulk, providing three grams of fiber with only 70 calories per half cup serving. It contains very little fat and sodium, with no cholesterol. In addition, wild rice is a good source of protein, carbohydrates, B-vitamins and potassium. (There are many nutritional advantages of wild rice compared to white or brown rice.)

If you need to cook in a hurry there is a quick and easy method to prepare wild rice: Cook a whole pound of Minnesota wild rice at one time and freeze it in airtight containers for ready use. Wild rice thaws quickly, maintaining its texture and quality. So on those days when you must save time, simply take out the quantity of wild rice needed for your recipe and your meal will be ready in a matter of minutes.

One pound of wild rice will yield 10 to 12 cups of cooked rice. Since most wild rice salads call for three to four cups of cooked wild rice, you'll get about four meals from just one package. At $5 a pound, wild rice is only 23 cents a serving.

'Jason' book is finally closed

By Marian Trainor
Special Writer

If you were writing an obit on Jason Voorhees (Kane Hodder) the lumbering monster in the "Friday the 13th" series, you might say he had a long but in no way illustrious career.

Now, in "Jason Goes to Hell: The Final Friday," he presumably caps that career after chalking up some 84 gruesome murders that made headlines and were the subject of eight movies beginning in 1980 and continuing through 1989's "Friday the 13th, Part VIII."

His trademark was a distorted hockey mask and his signature a rather stomach-turning spewing of black goop.

Jason was not a generalist. He specialized in young people who sought out the byways for frolic and sex. He was decidedly not a likable character, but he provoked laughter, even as he set audiences on the edge of their seats in suspense.

And now, like "Pore Jud" in "Oklahoma," he is dead. But no one is singing a dirge.

However, he goes to his just and final end in a spectacular manner and in all fairness leaves the audience laughing with an unusual and surprising exodus.

Prepping the audience for Jason and his particular brand of terrorism, as the credits role, there is a preview of sequences of Jason in action.

It begins with a young and pretty girl entering a dark and gloomy cottage on Silver Lake. She prepares to take a bath and we watch her strip in a scene that right there and then earns the film's R rating. When she gets out, Jason appears.

She takes off running through the woods with Jason in hot pursuit. Just as he catches up to her, a police detail jumps out from behind the trees and starts shooting. Jason falls, his body so riddled it resembles a sieve. But how can he be dead? The film has not even begun.

Never fear. A bounty hunter, Creighton Duke (Steven Williams) appears and solemnly announces, "I don't think so" when asked if that's the last of Jason.

We're ready for the carnage to begin, but first we have to witness in detail the autopsy and Jason's resurgence and his new power not only to appear as his own scary self, but to jump into the bodies of others as he continues his attacks on the young and not-so-innocent.

In a disjointed story by writers Dean Lorey and Jay Huguley, and directed by Adam Marcus, the action centers on four young people en route to Silver Lake to camp out who encounter a bounty hunter at a diner.

Jason might have been given a more auspicious demise than in "Jason Goes to Hell: The Final Friday," but Jason fans will not want to miss this final chapter.

Jason is finally put to rest in "The Final Friday."

A sailboat of your very own

Perhaps the most adventurous way to enjoy a Caribbean cruising vacation is to rent or "charter" your own boat. It can be the simplest of trips — just pack a duffel bag with some T-shirts, cut-offs, a couple of bathing suits and you're off.

Typically, a sailboat or powerboat is chartered by two to six persons. If one of you is a qualified skipper, then you can charter a "bareboat" — that is, without a crew. Or you can rent a crewed yacht, with a captain and cook, and settle back and do as much or as little as you desire.

This kind of trip can give new meaning to the word restful. Enjoy the harbor you are anchored in? Then stay another night. Don't feel like cooking? Then wander ashore to the local beach bar to find out what kind of local fish they're grilling tonight... just don't forget to make a reservation, as you may be the only guests for dinner.

Want to explore? Just climb into your dinghy (that's the little boat that you pull behind you) and head off to a deserted beach for the day. Jump in for a little snorkeling when you feel like it. At night, when you hear the steel drums ashore, you can either motor in to join the festivities or lie back in the cockpit and enjoy the stars.

Believe me, you can get used to this real fast.

Among the most popular areas for chartering are the U.S. and British Virgin Islands. This is because there are many sheltered harbors and a steady wind blowing down Drake's Passage to keep you moving. The Windward and Leeward islands in the Caribbean are also popular, but you can now charter boats in just about every corner of the world (including Wisconsin and Michigan).

When booking a charter, you can work either directly with the chartering company or through a charter broker (an agent who works with many companies). Either method can give satisfactory results; however, if you have already decided where you are heading and your criteria, it's usually best to deal directly with companies that maintain fleets in that area because their on-site employees will be able to provide the most up-to-date information.

Here are some considerations:

- Does the company give sufficient pre-charter support, particularly if you are heading into unfamiliar waters?
- What kind of repair/mechanical support do they give while you are cruising? (While many companies provide chase boats and mechanics, some do not.)

- How old are the boats and what is their standard turn-around time between charters? Longer turn-around times mean the boats are generally cleaner and better-maintained.
- How much cooking do you intend to do? Often it is better to provision your boat when you get there than to buy a package deal that provides way too much very ordinary food. Like lots of canned corn. For example, on the island of Trola, a store called the Ample Hamper can meet all of your needs (it has a very nice wine selection) and you can order in advance.

• What is the background of the crew? Seek references from previous customers and check them out.

• If chartering a crewed yacht, do you want just a captain or a captain/cook team?

• If you are a scuba enthusiast, look for a ship that caters to divers with on-board compressors and a captain that knows the good dive sites.

• What kind of accommodations do the boats have? This is particularly important if several couples are traveling together. Be aware that the aft stateroom (in the rear) is likely to be large, but the "V-berths" in the bow and the fold-down berths in the main cabin are not nearly so comfy.

Or you might consider chartering a large power boat, which offers the amenities of air-conditioning, larger cabins and a longer cruising range.

One of the best sources of information about chartering is Cruising World magazine, available at most newsstands.

Area brokers include Burr Yacht Charters, 32575 S. River Road, Mt. Clemens, 48045, 1-800-248-0095 or 1-313-463-8629; Aurora Yacht Charters, Box 1362, Ann Arbor 48106, 1-313-769-7644 and Meridian Charters, Inc., 348 W. Front St., Perysburg 43551, 1-800-448-4405.

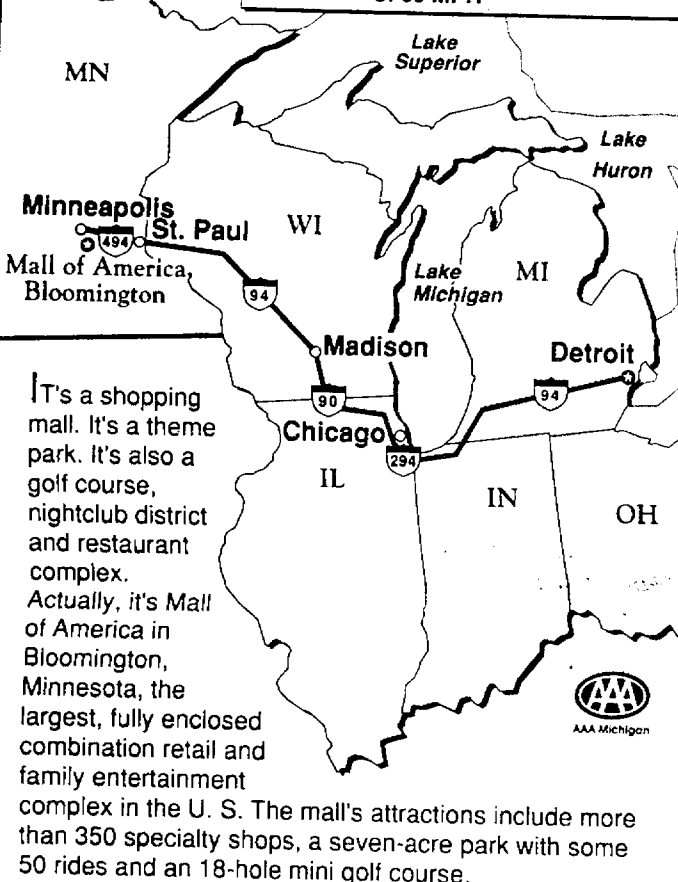

For sailing in the Great Lakes, you can contact Harbor North Charters, 400 Huron St., Huron, OH 44839, (800) 451-7245, or Port Clinton Yacht Charters, 3190 W. Lakeshore Dr., Port Clinton, OH 43452, (419) 734-6207.

If you are chartering for the first time, it's best to stick with the large companies that provide the widest range of services. These include: The Moorings, (800) 437-7880; Privilege Charters (catamarans), (800) 262-0308; ATM Yacht Charters, (800) 634-8822; Caribbean Yacht Charters, (800) 225-2520; and Sunsail, (800) 327-2276.

Mall of America Lures Travelers to Minnesota

AAA Michigan Suggested Route:
Detroit to Bloomington, Minnesota
How far: 695 Miles
How long: 12 hours driving time based on average speed of 60 MPH

Nation's largest mall is a shopper's getaway

Seventy-eight acres of shopping and entertainment draw 40 million visitors annually to Minnesota's Mall of America, AAA Michigan's pick for a summer getaway.

"Mall of America in Bloomington is the most unique retail complex in the U.S. as well as the largest facility of its type," said AAA Michigan touring manager Robert Tellier. "Shopping isn't the only draw at this one-stop mall. Families can enjoy amusement rides and attractions at an enclosed theme park, play an 18-hole miniature golf course, visit a comedy club or choose from 30 restaurants, to name a few activities."

"For an idea of its size, consider that St. Peter's Basilica in Rome would fit inside it 20 times over, and Russia's Red Square five times."

Mall of America is a shopper's dream. Anchored by such popular stores as Bloomingdale's, Macy's, Nordstrom and Sears, more than 350 specialty stores are also located there. The mall is divided into four distinctive shopping "streets," including North Garden, a summertime shopping experience; West Market, an international marketplace; cosmopolitan South Avenue; and East Broadway, a contemporary high-energy avenue. Seven acres at the center of the complex house Knott's Camp Snoopy, the nation's largest indoor family theme park. More than 50 rides and attractions entice visitors, including Paul Bunyan's Log Chute ride and several junior-sized rides. Both adults and children can learn about birds, mammals, insects and reptiles at regularly scheduled shows in the Wilderness Theater.

Admission to the camp is free and guests pay $1 to $2.50 per ride or attraction. Children can flock to the 6,000-square-foot LEGO Imagination Center where they'll find more than 30 giant LEGO models ranging from circus clowns to 20-foot dinosaurs, as well as play areas and a retail section for LEGO toys.

Golf Mountain is one of the largest adventure-style golf courses ever built. Putters of all ages enjoy this two-level, 18-hole miniature golf course lushly landscaped with waterfalls, streams and foliage.

Another enticement of Mall of America is Entertainment, an operating toy train display with more than 30 moving trains speeding along on 3,000 feet of track over five different levels.

Mall of America stands on the former site of Metropolitan Stadium, making it a natural choice for America's Original Sports Bar. Visitors can enjoy their favorite sports on one of many big-screen TVs, while enjoying finely prepared dishes or stadium hot dogs. Gatlin Brothers Music City & Grille is a 23,000-square-foot show bar and restaurant, serving southern fare and featuring live country-western music and big name acts. More than 30 other restaurants and nightclubs are on-site.

Retail hours at Mall of America are Monday-Saturday, 10 a.m. to 9:30 p.m., and Sunday, 11 a.m. to 7 p.m. Knott's Camp Snoopy is open Monday-Thursday, 10 a.m. to 9:30 p.m.; Friday, 10 a.m. to 10:30 p.m.; Saturday, 9:30 a.m. to 11 p.m., and Sunday, 10 a.m. to 7 p.m.

From Detroit, Mall of America is 695 miles or 12 hours of driving at average speeds of 60 miles per hour.

AAA members who show their membership card can receive up to 20 percent discounts at a variety of hotels and motels. Consult the North Central AAA TourBook for listings of lodgings and discounts, available at AAA Michigan branch offices or by calling (800) 482-5300.

Auto club survey shows that U.S. travel is up 3 percent

A survey by AAA Michigan predicts a 3 percent increase in Labor Day travel over last year, with an increase of 3 percent expected for overall summer holiday weekend travel. This is one percentage point less than travel projections made earlier in the season.

Based on 300 August phone interviews with Michigan residents, the study also concluded that forecasts of bad weather will not have a major impact on travel.

"More than 80 percent of those with travel plans said they would not consider canceling a trip after hearing a weather forecast for rain or cool temperatures," said Robert Tellier, AAA Michigan touring manager.

The survey shows that 16 percent of the state's households plan a pleasure trip during the upcoming Labor Day weekend. Once at destinations, 25 percent of respondents are staying at hotels, motels or resorts; 23 percent at rental cottages or houses; 23 percent at relatives, and 19 percent at campgrounds. Nearly 80 percent of all trips will be by automobile.

On average, four people will travel together. Nearly 90 percent of the trips planned will be inside the United States, with three-fourths of the travel more than 100 miles from home. Most of the Michigan travel destinations will be in the Lower Peninsula, with nearly equal numbers traveling north or south of Bay City.

Factors which point to an increase in travel over the 78-hour Labor Day weekend:

- A 14 percent increase in the number of Auto Club routing requests in July 1993, compared to the year before.
- Pent-up demand by travelers who postponed vacations last summer due to inclement weather.
- Mackinac Bridge crossings up 10.9 percent for July.
- Low gas prices. Statewide gas prices average 6.1 cents per gallon lower than this time last year for self-serve regular unleaded (as of Aug. 17).
- Michigan motorists are expected to clock an estimated 975 million miles this Labor Day weekend — 2.5 percent more than last year.

Travel inquiries on the sunside — the Eastern Michigan region from Standish to the Mackinac Bridge and the off-coast counties of Oscoda, Ogemaw and Montmorency — are up 35 percent over last year. The majority of inquiries originate from Metro Detroit, Indiana, Illinois and Ohio. Popular travel destinations include beaches, inland lakes and golf courses.

Officials of the West Michigan Tourist Association also paint a bright picture for Labor Day travel.

Great Lakes trip planned

On Oct. 2-5 the Grosse Pointe War Memorial will host a trip to Wisconsin.

The weekend begins in Milwaukee, the state's primary commercial manufacturing center, famous for its beer. One night's lodging, a tour of the Miller Brewing Co., dinner and a show are included in the stay in Milwaukee.

The tour continues to Manitowish, Wisconsin's leading shipping center, for two nights. There the trip will include a visit to the Maritime Museum which depicts the history of shipping on the Great Lakes and the Pinecrest Historical Village where there is a collection of turn-of-the-century restored buildings.

Rockwell collectors will delight in a visit to the Museum of Norman Rockwell Art. Visits to the Natural Ovens, Beersten's Candies, Schuette Department Store and Old Rock Hill Museum will add a special flavor to the tour. Also included is a trip across Lake Michigan on the S.S. Badger, Michigan's first and only steam-powered, coal fueled car ferry traveling the Great Lakes.

The cost is $449 a person double occupancy. Call 881-7511 for more information.

Small amounts of caffeine may be OK, researchers say

Contrary to popular belief, coffee in small amounts not only doesn't hurt you — it's actually good for you. So says Robin Barraco, professor of physiology at Wayne State University School of Medicine, who recently outlined its positive behavioral effects at the Seventh International Caffeine Workshop in Athens, Greece, June 13-17.

"At low or moderate doses, caffeine actually enhances alertness, well-being and social disposition," Barraco said.

Barraco joined researchers from around the world who reported on the effects of caffeine. According to Barraco, a low dosage — typically the amount of caffeine found in two cups of coffee — is a wise pick-me-up with bona fide benefits besides that early morning jolt.

Just what's so good about caffeine — besides the fact that it's a virtual morning requirement for a large segment of the population?

Its benefits are distinct, Barraco said.

"Caffeine really does affect your brain. The behavioral-activating properties observed with caffeine actually result from its stimulant effect on the central nervous system. The caffeine found in two cups of coffee blocks adenosine receptors in select regions of the central nervous system. This activates the part of the brain that handles brain reward processes and positive affective states such as pleasure and motivation," she said.

Barraco's research indicates that caffeine, in moderation, can increase productivity, energy and provide a general sense of well-being.

To put it simply, a cup of coffee can just make you feel good.

Other findings from the caffeine workshop indicate that, contrary to popular belief, pregnant women may consume moderate amounts of caffeine without fear of fetal damage. Research shows that the caffeine found in two cups of coffee will not cause adverse health effects, either to mother or offspring.

"Caffeine is one of the most thoroughly investigated ingredients in food," Barraco said. "Because of this, it has been widely researched, and the preponderance of evidence now shows that it is safe when consumed in moderation."

Barraco emphasized that it is important to remember that more is not better. Large amounts of caffeine will provide a reverse effect, making the subject anxious, sleepless and generally feeling poorly.

Now celebrating its 125th anniversary, the Wayne State University School of Medicine is one of the largest single-campus medical schools in the country.

Church or synagogue attendance improves psychological health, according to studies

By Dr. Glenn G. Wood
National Institute for Healthcare Research

A new treatment may help provide relief for people who are unhappy, anxious or mildly depressed: attending religious services. So says a review of all the scientific studies on religion in two main psychiatry journals over a 12-year period.

Researchers from the U.S. Department of Human Services and Bowman Gray medical school analyzed all scientific articles which studied religious involvement and its effects on mental health in the American Journal of Psychiatry and the Archives of General Psychiatry in the years 1978 through 1989. The researchers divided religious involvement into ceremony participation, meaning and purpose, social support, participation in prayer and active relationship with God.

Of the 37 published findings which analyzed the effect of religious commitment on mental health, 31 had beneficial effects (84 percent), five had harmful effects (14 percent), and one had no effect (3 percent). Of those religious characteristics which clearly involved active participation, 24 of 26 studies (92 percent) showed beneficial effects on mental health.

The category which was less beneficial involved beliefs (meaning and purpose) as opposed to actions. Even in that category, religion was beneficial in more studies than it was harmful (seven beneficial, four harmful). Researchers postulate that the meaning and purpose category may have lower benefit due to some people who rate religion highly, but have a low participation. The guilt associated with such an inconsistent approach to life might cause a decline of mental health.

Researchers admit that more studies need to be performed to confirm the benefits and to understand why there are occasional risks associated with religious involvement. Although the studies to date establish a beneficial association of religion with mental health, investigating whether religious participation is the cause of the enhanced mental health will require more complex research.

St. John Hospital participates in research for treatment of localized prostate cancer

St. John Hospital and Medical Center is one of approximately 25 facilities in the country investigating the use of cryotherapy for the treatment of prostate cancer.

Dr. Edward Schervish, a urologic oncologist on the St. John staff, is the principal investigator of the treatment.

Cryotherapy of the prostate involves the use of probes filled with liquid nitrogen which freeze the prostate gland to treat the cancer. Traditional treatment methods for localized prostate cancer include surgery to remove the prostate or radiation therapy.

Schervish emphasized that cryosurgery is investigational, but it may offer advantages for certain prostate cancer patients. "As opposed to removal of the prostate, cryosurgery appears to produce fewer complications in the short term," he said. "Additionally, the patient appears to have less discomfort and can leave the hospital within one to three days following the procedure as opposed to seven to 10 days for surgery.

"He can return to normal activity sooner. If patients undergo biopsy of the prostate two years after radiation therapy, about 50 percent will have recurrence of their prostate cancer. Because of these issues, we're trying to develop an effective alternative which also has fewer complications."

Typical candidates for the procedure include men who've undergone radiation therapy in the past and have evidence of recurrence and those who reach an age when a major operation or radiation would not be of benefit. Other prostate cancer patients may also be eligible for the study.

Men who participate in the study will be monitored closely during the two-year trial. Those interested in cryosurgery should call 1-800-237-5646.

Jason Priestly stars in "Calendar Girl," a cross-country-buddy-goddess-worshipping movie about three friends who travel to Hollywood to meet Marilyn Monroe. The comedy opens Sept. 3.

Also opening tomorrow is "Fortress," a futuristic action thriller set in a world "where technology has run amok and mankind is subject to its manipulations." It stars Christopher Lambert ("Knight Moves") and looks laughably low-budget.

Later in the year, Sylvester Stallone and Wesley Snipes star in a futuristic action thriller set in a world where "people don't touch, personal expression has been stifled and a twisted visionary... has designed it all to his own liking." Snipes is always fun to watch, but what's with that blond hair?

"True Romance," opening Sept. 10, is a totally original movie written by last year's cinema wunderkind Quentin Tarantino ("Reservoir Dogs") and starring Christian Slater and Patricia Arquette. It's a bizarre combination of charming love story and the underbelly of organized crime. It's also extremely violent. (A review will run next week.)

The elegant Daniel Day-Lewis has to choose between the exciting Michelle Pfeiffer and the proper Winona Ryder in a film based on Edith Wharton's Pulitzer Prize-winning novel, "The Age of Innocence." It's directed by Martin Scorsese so it should be good, but didn't "Bram Stoker's Dracula" teach him that Ryder's talents are in modern pieces? It opens Sept. 17.

On the same day another intellectual treat opens. "Airborne" is, according to the release, the story of "a cool California teen surfer and rollerblader" who finds difficulty adjusting to life in Cincinnati.

Michelle Pfeiffer and Daniel Day-Lewis have a doomed affair in Martin Scorsese's film version of "The Age of Innocence."

It features "astounding feats of in-line skating."

The lone action flick of the month teams Bruce Willis with Sarah Jessica Parker (huh?) as two hard-as-nails cops tracking down a serial killer.

Perhaps even stranger casting than Parker as a cop pops up in "The Good Son," where Macaulay Culkin stars as an evil little boy who plays with the mind of a young cousin who's been sent to live with him.

Culkin will be seen later in the year as the Nutcracker Prince in a new version of Tchaikovsky's holiday ballet. "George Balanchine's The Nutcracker" is scheduled for a Christmas release and stars the New York City Ballet.

Anthony Hopkins has also been busy and will star in two movies scheduled for release this fall. This time he's sinking his teeth not into flesh, but into parts that suit his talents.

"The Remains of the Day," based on Kazuo Ishiguro's brilliant novel, tells the story of the perfect English butler (Hopkins) and his relationship with his master and the female head of staff, played by Emma Thompson. If the movie is half as good as the book — and it should be, because it's done by the Merchant-Ivory production company which specializes in turning good books into better movies — this will be the one to beat at Oscar time.

Hopkins will also star as writer C.S. Lewis in "Shadowlands," based on the award-winning play. The film tells the true story of his love for an outspoken American played by Debra Winger.

"Batman: The Mask of Phantasm (The Animated Movie)" will be, we hope, less ponderous than its title or the twisted Tim Burton film versions. It's a film adaptation of the current television series.

Another movie geared toward children turns two young Irish boys into heroes after they steal a horse and run away from their father.

Fall Film Fest Something to please every palate

By Ronald J. Bernas
Assistant Editor

This summer Hollywood offered chase movies until they were coming out our ears: "The Fugitive," "The Last Action Hero," "Cliffhanger," "The Firm," and "Jurassic Park" made the hot summer a little hotter for action movie fans.

This fall, however, things will slow down. Well, for the most part. What follows is an incomplete list of what moviegoers can expect in the theaters as the summer blockbusters give way to character studies and period pieces. Opening dates are subject to change at the whim of some Hollywood mogul.

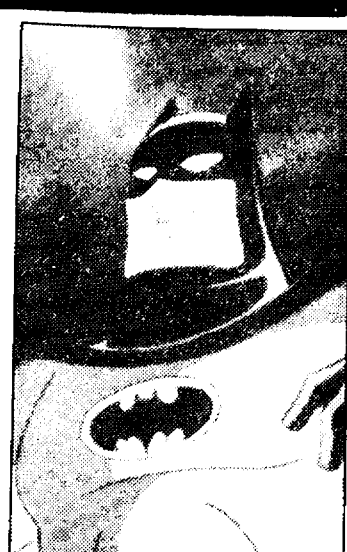

Anthony Hopkins and Emma Thompson team up again in "The Remains of the Day." Look for it, it'll be good.

this fall. Especially because it teams Julia Roberts with Denzel Washington.

And what movie season would be complete without a Kevin Costner or Clint Eastwood movie? "A Perfect World" fills both bills. Eastwood directs this story about an escaped convict (Costner) and a young boy he kidnaps and then befriends. Eastwood stars as the policeman who tracks him down.

How's this for a cast — Robert Duvall, Richard Harris, Shirley MacLaine and Piper Laurie? They star in "Wrestling Ernest Hemingway," a story about failed dreams and new friends.

What's this, a musical comedy? "I'll Do Anything" might also describe the career of

Shores Madrid theater reels in local comedians

By Kathleen Ryan
Special Writer

The film projector gave way to the spotlight last Wednesday night as the Shores Madrid Theater hosted a comedy night featuring three stand-up comedians from the Detroit area.

Located in St. Clair Shores at Nine Mile and Mack, the Shores is best known for its inexpensive movie features.

But, according to Dave Tolfree, the Shores new manager, two recent comedy nights have been such a success that they will become a monthly staple in the theater's presentations.

"We're going to continue offering our second-run movie features," Tolfree said. "But we're also exploring the options of having one week a month set aside for live shows. We would have one night for comedy, another for country-western music, another for rock bands. Basically, whatever the customer would want."

Tolfree, 24, took over operating the Shores six months ago. He had been working as a robotics designer for a Troy company, but soon took on the theater full-time.

"I was raised in Harper Woods and went to the Shores Madrid a lot as a kid," Tolfree said. "It's been around a long time and I'd like to see it continue in operation."

According to Tolfree the Shores has been successful with its $2 movie features, but it's becoming harder for small independent theaters to stay in business.

"We want to continue to offer 'family' type movies and I think we've done a good job of balancing children's movies with the adult action-type films," Tolfree said. "But it's hard to compete against the large chains."

Tolfree also hopes to make some physical changes in the 511-seat theater.

"We hope to improve the appearance of the lobby and upgrade the outside of the building," Tolfree said. "We also want to improve handicap access."

But, like other Mack Avenue merchants, plans for improvements are on hold until the completion of the Mack Avenue renovation project.

"Our business is off," Tolfree said. "Some people don't know that we're even open. And a lot of our patrons who used to walk to the theater don't bother to even try negotiating the construction area. We're anxious to have the project completed."

In the meantime, another comedy night has been scheduled for Wednesday, Sept. 22. It will feature comedians Mark Knopf, Steve Bills, and J.R. Remick. The show begins at 8:30 p.m. Tickets may be purchased at the door for $5.

Further information may be obtained from Tolfree at 775-1023.

Workers are honored in Greenfield Village Labor Day observance

While most Americans are taking the day off from work, Greenfield Village visitors can find temporary employment at a special Labor Day observance on Monday, Sept. 6.

Hands-on activities and first-person presentations will give everyone a chance to explore the experiences of the nation's working men and women in both urban and rural communities.

"In addition to viewing the many work sites preserved at Greenfield Village, visitors can get to know some of the people who worked there," said Dana Sergeant, the program's coordinator. "They'll experience different jobs through two centuries and discover what has changed in the American workplace, and what hasn't."

At the Print Shop, visiting "apprentices" can learn to sort and set type, then print a proof sheet as a take-home souvenir.

Visitors can also lend a hand making ribbon rosettes at a millinery shop and learn about workers in the garment industry.

A special assembly line will be set up for visitors to put nuts, bolts and washers together into a finished product, while a "foreman" supervises and talks about the demands of production work.

Curator Bill Pretzer will greet visitors at the Armington & Sims Machine Shop & Foundry for a look at turn-of-the-century steam-powered machinery and a glimpse into the lives of its operators.

One of the few "respectable" professions for women in the 1870s is highlighted in a special presentation at Scotch Settlement School, where a teacher discusses her numerous duties and reflects on her career.

Plymouth Carding Mill provides the backdrop for an encounter with an 1840s "mill girl," who campaigns to get the work day reduced to 10 hours and to improve the deteriorating working conditions in one of the nation's first mechanized industries.

At Eagle Tavern, innkeeper Calvin Wood talks about tending to the needs of travelers in the 1850s. Around the Village Bandstand, a street cleaner prepares to tidy up after the first historic Labor Day parade in 1882. And throughout the village, the roguish lightning rod salesman peddles his wares with fast talk about the threat of "liquid fire."

Visitors can also lend an ear to music with a working theme. Portraying a lumberjack, Michael Deren will present stories and songs about the history of his trade.

A brass band will entertain crowds at the Village Bandstand with music that has proved popular at Labor Day celebrations over the years.

Admission to Greenfield Village's Labor Day observance is included with regular admission. Village hours are 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. daily.

Henry Ford Museum & Greenfield Village is located at Oakwood Boulevard and Village Road in Dearborn, just west of the Southfield Freeway (M-39) and south of Michigan Avenue (U.S. 12).

and

Lifelong partners since kindergarten, Stan & Dave would like a chance to become lifelong partners with you!

Dave Levy and Stan Schwartz, the owners of Classic Window & Siding, have been friends and partners in business ever since they were little kids. Though, as youngsters, back in the days of Kool-Aid stands, they probably never suspected that they would grow up to be the men behind the East area's most respected name in windows and siding. On the other hand, if their Kool-Aid was any indication of what was to come, on a hot summer day, they knew even then what it meant to be in demand.

For years, Classic Window and Siding has been providing Eastside neighborhoods with the best in sales and installation of vinyl windows and siding. They also specialize in hand-crafted, custom-designed bay and bow windows. With each sale they make, they provide the customer with the "complete package." There are never any hidden additional costs on materials and labor which are covered by Classic's famous 30-year guarantee.

But Dave and Stan will tell you "an excellent product alone does not make a great business." What distinguishes Classic Window and Siding from the pack is their unwavering commitment to their customers. Dave, Stan and the staff at Classic make themselves available to their customers on a 24-hour basis to answer any questions or to assist with any service.

Classic's experience in serving homeowners has enabled them to anticipate the concerns of new customers. Often, they can answer questions before they're even asked. For example, to assure their new customers they are getting the finest in windows, siding and service, they maintain a computerized list of all their previous customers to be used as references. Once the work on a house is completed, Dave and Stan inspect it themselves to insure that the job not only meets the customer's expectations, but lives up to Classic Window and Siding's reputation as well.

In the past year alone, Classic has earned the total satisfaction of over 1600 residential customers. In addition to quick, responsible and dependable service, much of their success is due to making their windows and siding affordable to almost every budget. "We believe that the bottom line is providing our customers with exactly what they want, at a price they can comfortably handle," says Dave.

For more information, call them at 776-0060.

Home buyers: Inspect property for potential hazards

By Doug Stranahan
Regional Director
Century 21 of the Great Lakes

Buying a home is a substantial investment which requires careful consideration of many details.

Before you decide to make a final purchase of the "house of your dreams," make a careful inspection of the entire property to certify that the home will provide a safe, comfortable environment and a solid investment.

Your initial inspection of the property doesn't have to be a difficult, scientific study. An easy inspection can be made for many common problems which can make living in your new home uncomfortable. For example, spend some time on the property listening for any loud noises resulting from construction, nearby expressways, noisy neighbors, factories or air traffic. If the home is within 10 miles of an airport, contact airport officials to determine if the property is in the vicinity of any current or intended flight patterns.

If you notice a road construction project under way, call the local government to check on the type of project and its expected completion date. The construction could be simple road repair — or you may discover that your new neighborhood is the site for a major expressway.

You should also determine if any additional noise can be buffered by adding trees, shrubbery or fences to the property. As you tour the inside of the house, try to imagine how the outside noises would affect you during different times of day and night.

Certain defects inside the home may be the result of normal wear, settling or structural design. Buyers should carefully consider whether these conditions are serious and will affect the home's investment potential. A noticeably leaking roof, flooded basement or broken fixtures usually are obvious problems, but many defects are not so easily detected.

A thorough professional examination of the home's condition and replacement cost should be conducted before the final purchase of the property. A home inspector is best qualified to make a detailed inspection of your potential home and identify any major defects. In addition to investigating all of the individual rooms for any structural problems, an inspector will also check the home's heating, ventilation and air conditioning system, plumbing, electrical wiring, roof, chimney, foundation and walkways.

A good home inspector will deliver a cost estimate for defects and recommend repair for items that can become major problems in the future. If you intend to purchase an older home, don't be surprised if the home inspector recommends additional testing for radon, lead or air quality.

Many real estate companies have affiliations with home inspectors or can recommend one for you. Most home inspectors charge according to the size and estimated value of the property. An inexpensive condominium, for example, usually costs less to inspect than a large single-family home with several rooms.

Your new home should be a comfortable environment which can meet your needs for many years, and possibly yield an investment return when you are ready for resale. Therefore, your initial inspection and a professional home inspector's review are worth the time and expense in making your final home purchase decision.

Home Tips

Conserving water — With all the talk about a water shortage, here's what I do to save. I keep a gallon ice-cream bucket in the sink and when I run either hot water to get it hotter or cold to get it colder, I catch it in the bucket. When the bucket is full, I water the flowers with it. I make sure no water goes to waste.

Mary A., Hopewell Junction, N.Y.

Recipe files — I clip lots of recipes, but I didn't know how to organize them. I came up with this idea: I bought a simple accordion file with 12 slots and labeled each of the slots: main dishes, desserts, salads, breads, etc.

Now when I clip a recipe, I just slip it into the appropriate slot. When I want to try a new one, it's very easy to pull out my file and look through it. After trying a recipe, if I like it, I place it in my permanent folder and if not, I throw it out.

Liz H., Lyons, Colo.

Rust rings — I solved a friend's problem very inexpensively. She complained that her husband's shaving cream can marked up the bathroom vanity. I suggested using a coaster to put under the can. It can even be color-coordinated with the bathroom to add a pretty touch.

Maria T., Los Altos, Calif.

Housing affordability conditions favor home buyers

The purchasing power of both first-time and repeat home buyers continued to grow during the second quarter of 1993, resulting in the fourth consecutive quarterly advancement over the past year, according to the housing affordability indexes released by the National Association of Realtors.

Economic conditions affecting all home buyers are measured by NAR's Composite Housing Affordability Index, which was 132.6 for the second quarter of 1993, compared to 118.9 for the same period last year. The current quarterly figure is the highest posted since the fourth quarter of 1973, when the composite index measured 137.2.

When the index measures 100, it means a family earning the median income has exactly the amount needed to purchase a median-priced resale home, using conventional financing and a 20 percent down payment. The median is the midpoint, meaning half would have at least 100 percent of the income needed to qualify for the purchase of a median priced home, and half would not.

The current composite index and supporting figures show that half the families in the nation during April, May and June of this year had at least 132.6 percent of the income needed to qualify for the purchase of a home listed at the median price of $107,000 — and half did not.

"The economic conditions for purchasing a home have been improving steadily for a year now. With the lowest interest rates in two decades, a recovering economy, and healthy home sales, this is the time for consumers to be in the market," said NAR president William S. Chee.

Another NAR index shows the ability of the rental population, prime candidates for first-time home purchases, to qualify for a mortgage on a starter home. When the First-Time Home Buyer Index registers 100, the typical first-time buyer can afford the typical starter home under existing financial conditions. The first-time buyer median income represents the typical income of a renter family with wage earners between the ages of 24 and 44.

During the second quarter of 1993, the affordability index for first-time home buyers reached 86.7, compared to 78.5 during 1992's second quarter. Like the composite index, this index also experienced its fourth consecutive quarterly rise over the past 12 months.

The first-time buyer index shows that the qualifying income needed for conventional financing covering 90 percent of a $91,000 home during the second quarter of 1992 was $27,514. Yet the median income of prime first-time buyers was $23,861, a difference of $3,653. Additionally, the gap in affordability between repeat and first-time buyers during the second quarter of 1993 measured 34.6, compared to 1992's second quarter gap of 34.0.

While median incomes for both first-time and move-up buyers have increased, thereby contributing to overall affordability, the influence of low interest rates has had an even greater positive influence on home purchases.

NAR chief economist John A. Tuccillo said repeat buyers typically have a financial advantage over first-time buyers. "Trade-up buyers have the advantage of investing their equity into another home, while first-time home buyers still have to figure a way of crossing a difficult threshold of homeownership — the down payment. The good news, however, is that a first-time buyer can consult a real estate agent about home financing that requires lower down payments, such as Federal Housing Administration and state housing finance programs," Tuccillo added.

According to the Federal Housing Finance Board, the national average effective mortgage rate, which measures the weighted average of adjustable and fixed-rate mortgages on loans closed on existing homes, was 7.26 percent during the second quarter of 1993, compared to 8.46 percent in the second quarter of 1992. The effective interest rate has not been that low since 1968, when the annual effective rate was 7.03 percent.

Under current affordability conditions for all buyers during the second quarter of 1993, a family earning $20,000 a year would have sufficient income to qualify for a $76,300 home with a $61,000 loan. A family earning $30,000 would qualify for a $114,000 home using a $91,500 loan. For a family earning $40,000, qualifying for a loan of $122,000 would enable them to purchase a $152,500 home. Finally, a family earning $50,000 annually would be able to buy a $190,600 home after qualifying for a $152,500 loan.

Upscale River Pointe Estates opens in St. Clair

Five D Building Co. is a relatively new name around St. Clair, however, builder Richard Dworkin is far from unknown. He has already completed other major housing communities that are spectacular. One is Harmon Estates Condominiums in Roseville, and the other is Oak Knoll Subdivision in Chesterfield, plus other fine homes.

River Pointe Estates will offer the highest quality of homes available in the St. Clair area. When finished, the community will have 100 beautiful homes. There will be nine facing the water on River Road. The two homes that are completed are a sample of Dworkin's ability and experience in finding out what new custom home buyers are striving to obtain.

The home at 2222 River Road is 2,668 square feet. The main floor consists of a dramatic great room, lovely dining area and executive library. The floors are all hardwood, the French doors into the library have beveled glass, and the double mantel on the hand made solid oak fireplace is the focal point of the room. With the entertaining family in mind, there is as a stunning wet bar.

The kitchen also has all oak cabinets with lighted soffits and all appliances intact and ready for use, along with a full pantry.

The master bedroom is elegant. With its location on the main floor for convenience, it also features a full ceramic bath with separate shower stall enclosed with glass blocks, a walk-in closet fully equipped with built-in shelves and a lighted vanity.

The remaining three bedrooms are located on the second floor, also with its own full ceramic tile bath. Both homes offer spacious three-car garages with entrances into the home affording accessibility to the laundry room, another half bath and to the full basement that has the same square footage as the main floor of the home.

The home located next door at 2162 River Road is larger at 3,130 square feet. It also contains a library, spacious living room, formal dining room and an open kitchen and family room. This kitchen has a more contemporary feeling with all white cabinets. It also has lighted soffits and comes complete with all General Electric appliances.

It also contains a center work island for extra room preparing those gourmet meals or just a quick bite. The kitchen also has a built-in secretary. The crown molding in this home is so intricately done that your family, friends and guests will be instantly impressed at the detail of your new home.

The detail and meticulous planning that went into the interior of these homes also went into the exterior. Each home has been professionally landscaped, from brick paved entrance walks to trees, shrubs, and flowering perennials.

The prices of these homes mixed with the utmost care and skill in creating them, make them the best buy in the area. The home at 2222 River Road is only $329,000, and the larger home is just $369,900.

For a personal showing, call 1-313-329-4771 and ask for Cindy Anglin at Blue Water Real Estate Better Homes & Gardens located in St. Clair.

SAY YES TO ANTI-LOCK BRAKING SYSTEMS (ABS)

Studies show that the average driver could benefit from anti-lock brakes in a panic situation more than 12 times per 100,000 miles driven.

WITHOUT ABS
By preventing lockup, ABS keeps wheels rolling, providing the ability to steer and brake safely. Squeeze braking can provide the same results, but most drivers are not able to use this technique effectively in emergency situations and may lose control.

Dormers and porch add to country charm

By W.D. Farmer

Romantic, old fashioned and spacious living areas combine to create this modern home.

The two-story entry foyer connects either to the formal living room, formal dining room, master bedroom or up to four bedrooms, two baths and a bonus room with office. An additional bonus room stair is also provided adjacent to the family area.

Daylight floods the country kitchen/breakfast/family room. All are open, and located one next to the other. The family room is embellished with a vaulted ceiling, false beams, fireplace and access to the rear deck or sun room.

The master bedroom suite is complete with a private sitting room (also with deck access), two walk-in closets and a luxury bath with garden tub and separate shower. A central powder room is provided in this area for daytime use and the basement stair is nestled under the second floor stair for greater space utilization.

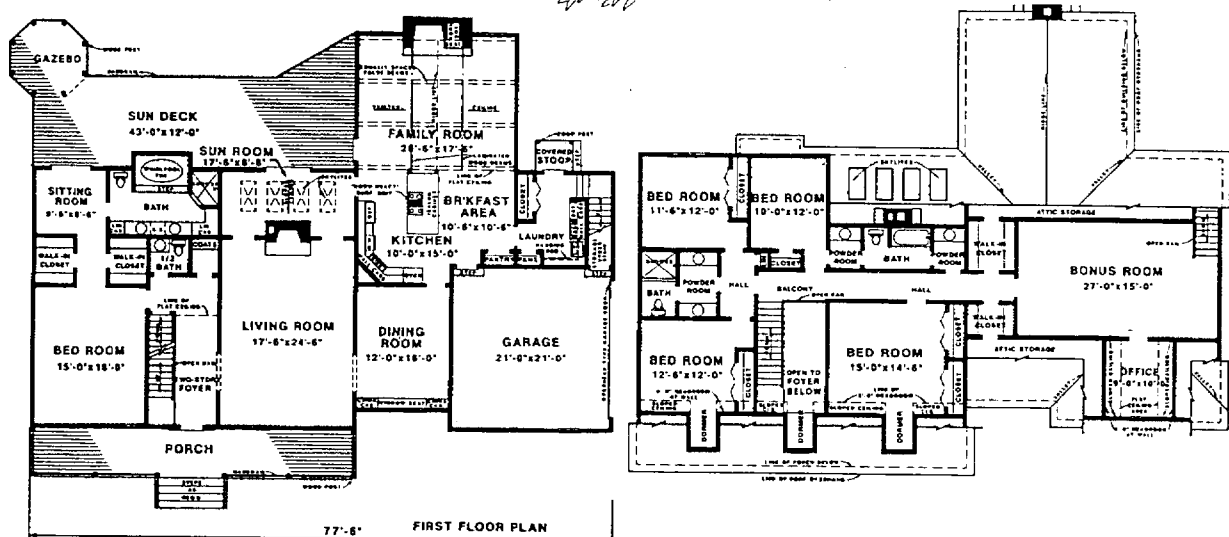

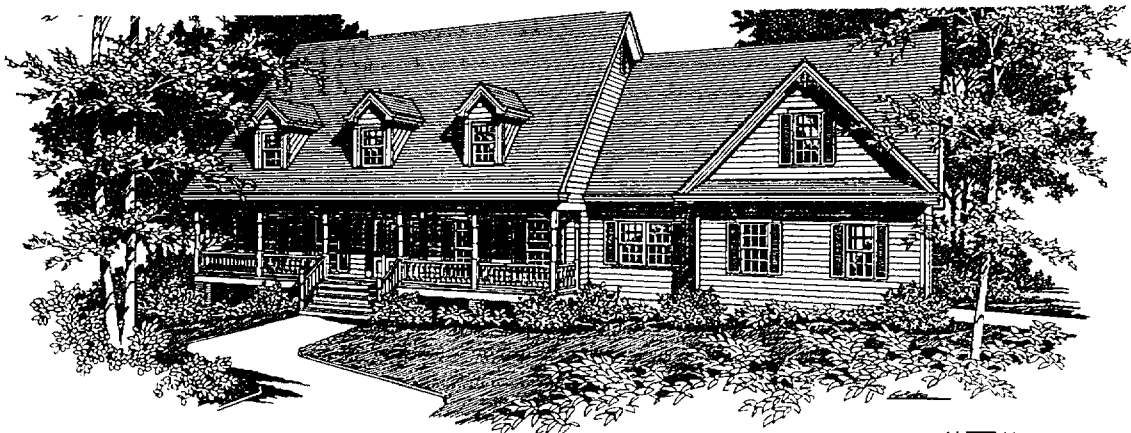

Good design decisions combine the extensive front porch with wood rail and columns, horizontal wood siding for exterior finish, three dormers and a steep gable roof to make this an appealing home.

The plan is No. 4009. It includes

4,092 square feet of heated area. In addition, there are 545 square feet of bonus room above the garage.

All W.D. Farmer plans include special construction details for energy efficiency. For further information

Schools in the United States: Are they on borrowed time?

By Dennis Smith
AIA News Service

Many architects are concerned that if children truly are products of their environments, then the futures of millions of American youngsters are being placed in jeopardy by inadequate and decaying conditions in their schools.

Three-fourths of the nation's school buildings are "living on borrowed time," according to a report released this year by the American Association of School Administration (AASA), an organization that represents 18,500 superintendents and other top school officials. The American Institute of Architects (AIA) served as a consultant on the report, which includes a survey of more than 15,000 school administrators nationwide.

The study, "Schoolhouse in the Red: A Guidebook for Cutting Our Losses," reports that one school building in every eight, of 13,200 schools across the country, is an inadequate place for learning because it is too old, too small, or had not received appropriate maintenance or updating. In all, more than half of the school administrators participating in the survey said their school districts needed new construction right now.

Nearly one-third of schools in operation today were built before 1950. Another 44 percent were built during the '50s and '60s to keep up with the enormous influx of students from the baby boom generation and were not intended to last more than 30 years. Replacement of these buildings is long overdue, according to the study. Some of the major causes for concern include poor indoor air quality, inadequate energy efficiency, lack of maintenance, outdated design, and deteriorating structures.

"Amid the signs that our nation's education 'infrastructure' is crumbling, none is more alarming than the appalling condition of our nation's public school facilities," states the report. "Our laws demand that children go to school. But is it humane that these laws require children to spend time in buildings that are unsafe and harmful to their health? Still, nearly 5 million children are subject to substandard schools every day."

So what's preventing school systems from replacing their inadequate facilities? Lack of funding. On the average, local school systems obtain 50 percent of their revenues from state governments. With 37 states suffering budget shortfalls in 1991, many school districts have been required to slash budgets. Often, a school's physical condition becomes the least important of its problems.

To compound this problem, the nation is experiencing a "baby boomlet," in which the children of baby boomers are approaching school age. In addition, many of these new or prospective students live in areas that have experienced tremendous growth during the last decade and where existing school facilities, whether in good or bad condition, simply cannot handle such dramatic growth in student enrollment.

Richard W. Hobbs, the AIA's group vice president for practice and education and a conferee on the report, cites the importance of long-term planning.

"Long-range cost-effectiveness is critical," he says. "We must move beyond 'first cost' and consider costs over the lifetime of the facility."

Already, some educators and architects are meeting this challenge. A key word in school design today is flexibility, and in a number of locations, architects have worked with school officials to develop various modular approaches that permit cost-effective expansion or adjustment of school facilities to meet the needs of ever-changing student bodies.

As this crisis in education continues to grow, the futures of our children and, ultimately, our nation rest upon the ability of architects to join forces with school and government officials to develop cost-effective, long-term solutions that provide and maintain a sound learning environment and quality education for all students.

Mighty Oak

"Golden Oak" is the collector's name for light-colored heavy oak furniture made in the United States from about 1880 to 1920. The term included not only the honey-colored pieces but also the darker oak. This was one of the first mass-produced furniture types made in America. Early pieces were made from solid wood while the later examples were made with oak veneer.

Typical Victorian styles included round dining-room tables with pedestal bases, asymmetrical cabinets and practical bedroom sets with mirror-topped chests of drawers. Sears, Roebuck's catalog, office-furniture stores and department stores featured the Golden Oak pieces. By the 1920s, the public had tired of the Victorian oak pieces, but they regained favor in the 1980s and are being reproduced today.

From a reader: "I used to scrape the hog with the shaft of hogscraper candlestick serving as a handle. We used it after the hog had been placed in a barrel of scalding water. The tool was very efficient. It was used in the 20th century until the day of the frozen-food locker when a locker plant truck came to our farm to do the butchering."

Q. My Hall teapot has a spout on either end. It has a "wall" inside that forms two separate parts. The tea pours from one side or the other. How was it used?

A. The Hall China Co. of East Liverpool, Ohio, made many unusual coffeepots and teapots. In the late 1940s, it marketed the Twin-spout, a double pot with a round body, and the Teataster, a double pot with an oval body. The design was made so tea could be served from one side, hot water from the other. Two different kinds of tea were often served.

Tip: Test a small piece of the fabric before you try this. To remove yellowing and stains from old textiles, soak them in dental cleaner and water mixed according to the directions on the package. Rinse several times.
