

Romney makes her U.S. Senate pitch to Eastside GOP club

By Chip Chapman
Staff Writer

"Sometimes extraordinary things happen to ordinary people," said Republican U.S. Senate candidate Ronna Romney. "That has been the case with me."

Romney, a former member of the Republican National Committee and political commentator on WXYT-AM 1270, told the Eastside Republican Club

March 2 that she never thought she would run for statewide office.

"I was happy with my job (at WXYT)," she said. "I felt it was a service, bringing the truth into people's living rooms. But I decided that unless I ran, we wouldn't win."

Romney stressed the importance of straightening out the national debt.

"Politicians are not telling us the truth," she said. "We know it because of the bottom line."

Private citizens, not professional politicians, should be the ones seeking public office, Romney said.

"We have to take back our country, inch by inch," she said. "Our forefathers wrote the Constitution to shackle government. In 1994, those shackles are not in place."

She told how taxes and regulations have hurt the airline industry and how saving the spotted owl has put 30,000 people out of work.

"The endangered species are the American businessman, worker and family," Romney said.

She believes in a small federal government and "putting our financial house in order."

"We have to rethink some of the laws we have passed,"

Romney said, in reference to the welfare system. "We have created a segment of society that only takes. Is this group better off 30 years later? The answer is, no."

She proposes a solution similar to that implemented in Wisconsin, where welfare recipients are educated and allowed two years to get back on their feet.

Romney calls the universal health care plan "one the great Clinton myths."

"There are about 11 million people who are voluntarily or chronically uninsured," she said. "Do we need a 100 percent solution for a 5 percent problem? No. Government always overstates the problem and understates the cost."

Pointe Democrats seek cable show, threaten lawsuit

By Jim Stickford
Staff Writer

Grosse Pointe Democratic Club chief Paul Donahue's announcement at a recent club meeting that the club would either be on Grosse Pointe Cable or in court by next winter took Grosse Pointe War Memorial president Mark Weber by surprise.

Donahue told club members that he and other club officers had been trying to get a public education show about politics in Grosse Pointe on the War Memorial's local origination channel for months.

He said he was told that the War Memorial could not allow any new shows on the air until more people had been trained to use the equipment. Donahue said he was told last year that classes on how to operate the equipment would begin in July of 1993.

As of March 1, 1994, no classes had been conducted. Without the classes, club members are unable to operate the equipment needed to put on the proposed show.

"I feel like I've been stonewalled," Donahue said. "Our application says that we want to put on a public education show. We do not want to put on a partisan Democratic show. Our proposal forbids us from booking registered candidates. We want to talk about issues of concern to all Pointers."

Donahue cited Proposition A as an example, stating that if he had the show on now, Proposition A would be discussed.

Since the show is supposed to be non-partisan, Donahue said as an example, Park Mayor and Republican Palmer Heenan, if he wanted to, would be allowed to speak to the merits or faults of the proposal. A declared candidate like U.S. Senate hopeful John Kelly would not be allowed to speak on the issue.

Weber was surprised to learn that Donahue and the Democrats felt the way they did.

"I think it's more of a communications problem," Weber said. "We are going to hold equipment training classes. We only have two full-time staffers at our studio, and they have been undergoing a learning curve in relation to the equipment. We've been promising classes for some time, and we should have had them by now, I know. But to say that we are stonewalling, that's not true."

The War Memorial was given the responsibility to produce local origination programming for Grosse Pointe Cable several years ago, said Weber. To that end, a million-dollar studio was built at the War Memorial and opened its doors last year.

The studio contains modern video cameras and video equipment that can be used for local origination programming, said Weber. The shows that are

Woods to allow outdoor dining

By Jim Stickford
Staff Writer

Thanks to the city council, it will now be possible to enjoy a touch of continental dining in Grosse Pointe Woods.

The council last week approved a planning commission proposal to permit restaurants on Mack to have outdoor dining areas, something city ordinances previously forbade.

The change was made at the request of James Champion of the Bar-B-Q-House located at 20515 Mack. Champion plans to add an outdoor cafe section to his restaurant.

The Woods planning commission held a hearing in January and reviewed the prevailing ordinance. After listening to Champion and Phil Jones of the Silver Spoon, the commission asked the council to adopt their recommendation that outdoor cafe dining be approved.

The council took up the question last week. Councilman Thomas Fahrner immediately voiced his objection to the proposal.

"As the councilmember most responsible for finding additional parking on Mack, I must say that this is a bad idea," Fahrner said. "We already don't have enough parking on Mack. The area where the Bar-B-Q-House is located is right next to Mr. Tony's. The two of them are busy. Adding outdoor dining means adding dining

People never ask the price of medical treatment, she said. "They treat it like a buffet, never asking the cost," Romney said. "Medical IRAs will keep competition alive and well." Romney is confident she will beat Spencer Abraham in the Republican primary and Democrat Bob Carr, who she believes will win his party's primary, in the November election. "At 50, many things have come together in my life," she said. "As I've grown older, I know what my core values and priorities are. I am willing to give up the most precious thing — time — to run for the Senate." If elected, Romney said she would not serve more than two terms. "I haven't spent my life trying to get to the U.S. Senate, I will not spend my life there," she said.

County library aids readers with special needs

By Kathleen Ryan
Staff Writer

It's really just like any other library. The latest fiction and non-fiction for both adults and children is available, along with how-to books, cookbooks and magazines. But the main difference is that patrons don't come to this library. In essence, the library comes to them. The Wayne County Regional Library for the Blind and Physically Handicapped is one of 56 libraries in the United States authorized by Congress to provide library services to the visually impaired and physically handicapped. Audio tapes of books and magazines are loaned through the library to county residents free of charge, said regional librarian Pat Klemans. "Congress established this program in 1931," Klemans said. "And it had the forethought to determine that perhaps people who were visually impaired would have problems getting transportation to the library. So Congress passed a law that allows our books to go through the U.S. mail at no charge." Patrons are kept informed of library offerings through catalogs which are regularly mailed to them. Eligibility for service from the regional library is determined through educational, medical, or social service certification. "Our main determination is that someone is 'print handicapped' either permanently or temporarily," Klemans said. "For example, we may have someone awaiting eye surgery, or someone who has been physically injured in an accident or is recuperating from a stroke who simply can't turn pages. "But we are definitely not for people who want to listen instead of read." In the 1960's, library service was extended to children with learning disabilities who found reading standard printed pages difficult. Books for children are available in both large print and on audio tapes.

capacity. "Where are the extra five or 10 parking spaces going to come from? What if more restaurants on Mack want to add outdoor dining? That makes parking along the street worse." Councilmember Peter Gilezan also noted that the restaurant is near a residential neighborhood, and he feared that noise from outside diners would bother homeowners. Mayor Robert Novitke said that before any outdoor dining plan is approved, public safety officers will inspect the layout. He also recommended that an amendment be added that would allow the planning commission to reject any project that it feels would permit too much noise in residential neighborhoods. Gilezan withdrew his objection after the adoption of the amendment. Fahrner's objections were not resolved, but his arguments proved to be unconvincing. The council adopted the planning commission's recommendation 6-1 with Fahrner dissenting.

Public safety reports

Chief dispatcher named in Park

Dawn Roach, 26, was promoted March 3 to chief dispatcher for the Grosse Pointe Park Public Safety Department. She began working for the department in September 1986 and has completed an 80-hour course and other training for dispatchers. She received a commendation in 1987 for successfully talking a suicidal man through a crisis situation to the point where police officers were able to disarm him. Last year, she was commended for talking parents through the proper steps to dislodge food from a choking baby.

Park was burglarized sometime between 10 p.m. Feb. 27 and 10:30 a.m. the following morning. A window pane in the rear door was broken to gain entry. Two TVs, two cable boxes and a stereo were taken. The occupants of the home were in the process of moving and the stolen items were the only objects left in the home at the time.

Signs taken

Nearly a dozen street signs from the Colonial-type lamp posts in Grosse Pointe Shores and City have been taken in recent weeks.

The Shores had six stolen during the evening hours of Saturday, March 5. Several signs were recovered after being strewn throughout the city; however, they were too heavily damaged to repair.

Several signs have been taken in the City. The most recent theft occurred Feb. 21, when four or five youths were seen taking the decorative St. Clair street sign from the lamp post at Jefferson. A Neff resident later found the sign on March 5 in his bushes.

Car stolen

A 1989 Suzuki Sidekick belonging to a Roseville woman was reported stolen March 6 at 8:55 p.m. on Cadieux near Jefferson.

The library also participates in popular children's reading programs like Channel 2's "Rev Up to Read" program and its own summer reading program. "Our patrons literally range from 2 to 102," Klemans said. Library services are also available to schools, nursing homes, senior residences and other qualifying institutions. There is no charge to library patrons; major funding for the library is provided by Wayne County. However, patrons must pass eligibility requirements. For further information or to apply for services, contact the Wayne County Regional Library at 274-2600.

Park lieutenant earns master's

Grosse Pointe Park public safety Lt. John Schulte has earned a master's degree in public administration/criminal justice from Wayne State University. He will graduate in May. Schulte has been with the department since April 1978 and was promoted to lieutenant on Leap Day, Feb. 29, 1988. He attended classes part-time while working full-time as a platoon commander and leader of the Pointes' Special Response Unit. He is married and has two young children. In a bulletin congratulating Schulte, Richard J. Caretti, director of public safety, said, "This accomplishment represents a high level of commitment and sacrifice."

Weber said Donahue wanted to produce the show at night, when the War Memorial crew is off-duty.

That means equipment operation classes are essential, if the Democratic Club is going to produce a show. Weber hopes to have classes in the spring, and has agreed to meet with Donahue to work out some arrangements.

"This is not going to court," said Weber. "I have complete confidence in our ability to work something out that will satisfy all parties."

Animal testing — there's no law in favor of it

"The question is not can they reason?, nor can they talk?, but can they suffer?" — Jeremy Bentham

Product testing is conducted on live, conscious animals to determine the amount of damage various products may have on "living tissues." This is done by overexposing or poisoning the animals. It is in no way related to medical research or drug trials. This is a practice upheld by manufacturing firms who elect to perform these hideous tests on their products before, during and after their sale.

For most consumer products, there is no law requiring testing. Animal testing has repeatedly been shown to be inaccurate, unreliable and very expensive. More important, these tests are extremely cruel. Despite the fact that there are many possible alternatives which are less expensive, more accurate and don't use or kill the animals, some companies refuse to cease testing. It seems it's up to us — the consumers — to help change and put an end to this barbaric practice.

Consumer products are regulated by governmental agencies. The Food and Drug Administration (FDA) controls cosmetics, while most of the remaining consumer products are governed by the Consumer Product Safety Commission (CPSC). The Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) regulates items such as insecticides, fungicides, rodenticides, and even some toxic products like solvents.

No government agency "requires" routine animal testing for health and beauty aids, or household products. The FDA does not require animal tests for any products that are not foods or drugs (like health and beauty aids or cosmetics). The EPA requires those who manufacture insecticides, etc., to register their products. No law requires them to use animal testing in order to determine registration data. The CPSC doesn't require animal tests for consumer products unless mandated by a federal act such as the Federal Hazardous Substances Act and the Federal Insecticide, Fungicide, and Rodenticide Act.

The following are the requirements of laws and regulations enforced by the U.S. Food and Drug Administration: "Although the Federal Food, Drug, and Cosmetic Act does not require that cosmetic manufacturers or marketers test their products for safety, the FDA strongly urges cosmetic manufacturers to conduct whatever toxicological or other tests that are appropriate to substantiate the safety of the cosmetics. If the safety of a cosmetic is not adequately substantiated, the product may be considered misbranded and may be subject to regulatory action unless the label bears the following statement: Warning — The safety of this product has not been determined (21 CFR740.10)."

Essentially, this states that there is no law which requires any testing in general or animal testing specifically. Each individual company is expected to decide for itself what, if any, testing will be done. Companies performing animal testing or contracting with other facilities of the like, do so of their own free will and not due to a law or government regulations. These companies have consciously "chosen" to inhumanely use animals despite the pain, death, expense and avail-

Ado over do's

With the new season coming, many Park residents might be thinking of getting a new hairstyle. With that in mind, the recreation department has scheduled an evening with the hairdressers of Do by Hair. The session will be held on Tuesday, March 22, at 7:30 p.m. in the Tompkins Center, and anyone interested in seeing demonstrations on new looks, cuts and styles should call 822-2812 and register by March 15. ability of alternatives. Perhaps they haven't heard of the more than 500 corporations who've developed, tested and manufactured products without this despicable treatment of living creatures. (I've listed some common brand names below). Companies using animals test everything from shampoo and drain opener, to makeup and crayons. And do these tests make these products safer for humans? No, they don't.

How are products tested on these animals? The test substance is forcibly ingested, inhaled, injected, applied to the skin, or dropped directly into the eyes and ears. Other ways include inserting the substance into the vagina or rectum, mixing with food, adding to water, or force-feeding directly into the stomach through a tube. None of these tests use the products in the function for which they were developed. For example, they don't test shampoo by washing the animal's fur.

Additionally, the expense of animal testing is outrageous. According to the General Accounting Office, the average cost of animal testing is $500,000 a product, as opposed to the average cost for non-animal testing, which is roughly $50,000 a product (one-tenth of the cost for animal testing). And that's not all. Guess who ultimately pays for this generally inaccurate and unreliable information? We, the consumers, do.

Here are some more stats that left me appalled. Every three seconds, a lab animal dies. In a report written by the Institute for the Study of Animal Problems, in the United States alone, more than 100 million animals are used in research labs every year. This figure includes the abuse of 50 million mice, 20 million rats and in excess of 30 million other animals including dogs, cats and horses.

A research lab happily accepts virtually any living animal. You may wonder where the labs get their abundant supplies. The animals arrive mostly through the middleman, better known as a "dealer" or "buncher." Dealers work with small domestic animals or large exotic ones. When small, adorable zoo animals aren't so small or adorable any more, often they're shipped to labs for research.

Another disturbing way labs acquire their inpatients is through pound seizure — where some area pounds or shelters sell or give away their surplus of pets and other animals to dealers or directly to the research facilities. Worse than pound seizure is the practice of pet theft (petnapping), where a dealer patrols neighborhoods and steals loose "pets" or stray animals. Some dealers pay others to bring them stolen pets. Any and all pets are fair game. Loose pets are highly appreciated because the friendlier the pet, the easier the job. Annually, 2.5 million pets are stolen in our country.

If you have pet-related questions or comments, write to Kathleen Ferrilla, c/o Grosse Pointe News, 96 Kercheval, Grosse Pointe Farms, Mich. 48236.

Local vets win D-Day Europe trip

Benjamin Prescott and Lorraine Dieterle were the winners of the Grosse Pointe War Memorial's 50th anniversary D-Day trip to Europe May 31 through June 9.

The drawing was held March 1 at the Grosse Pointe News. To enter, contestants each sent in one or two paragraphs of their D-Day homefront memories.

Highlights of the trip include visits to the D-Day Museum of Portsmouth, Southwick House, Cabinet War Rooms in London, ceremonies at Omaha Beach and Arromanche Museum. If you are interested in learning more about this historic trip, there will be an opportunity to ask questions on Wednesday, March 30, at 5 p.m. at the War Memorial. The trip is open to the public and not limited to veterans.

The War Memorial is still looking for veterans who can tell firsthand what it was like and what they went through in WWII to be displayed at their 45th annual Memorial Day service honoring the 50th Anniversary of D-Day. Please send your memories of the war years to: Homefront Memories, Grosse Pointe War Memorial, 32 Lakeshore, Grosse Pointe Farms, Mich. 48236.

The trip price of $2,700 a person double occupancy includes round trip airfares, transportation, and some meals. Reservations must be made as soon as possible. Call 881-7511 for more information.

Pointers love saying it with flowers and Scanlan's got the message

By Jim Stickford
Staff Writer

Thanks to all-pro football player Merlin Olson, it's all right to send men flowers. That's just one of the changes that Bill Scanlan, owner of Scanlon's Fisher Road Florist, has seen in his 25 years in the business.

Scanlan's, across the street from South High School, has been open 10 years, Scanlan said. He started the business with his brother, who later sold his interest. Before that, Scanlan worked at Allemon's Florist on East Warren in Detroit for 15 years.

"That's the biggest thing I've noticed over the past 25 years," Scanlan said. "It's not just the men who are sending flowers. More women are sending flowers to the men in their lives. I think Merlin Olson had a lot to do with that. I've also had flowers sent to dogs in the name of dogs. Things have really changed."

Scanlan said that he's seen just about every possible message included with flowers.

"People are trying to be much more creative with their messages, but I've seen them all," said Scanlan.

The holidays are big for florists and Scanlan said they look for a holiday every month. Mother's Day is the biggest holiday for flowers, he said with Valentine's Day second. Halloween is becoming a big flower day, he said, probably because adults are throwing more parties these days. Father's Day is not a big flower day.

"We also have a larger variety of cut flowers available," said Scanlan. "A few years ago we might have had 20 kinds of flowers. Now we have 50. We have trucks make deliveries three times a day. If we don't have something here, we can get it by the end of the day. We try to have flowers people can't get at Kroger."

In order to stay competitive in the Pointes, which have 10 flower shops, Scanlan has to offer services. He belongs to several florist associations, including FTD, Teleflora, Redbook, American Floral Services, Carik and Florafax.

"Each group has its own particular strength," Scanlan said. "One is good at credit card processing, another is good at technical services while another has good merchandising."

The store also offers ATM payment services. Customers can use their automatic teller machine cards to pay for purchases. Scanlan puts together gourmet food baskets, and uses on-line computer services to send flowers to just about anywhere in the country.

He also has a 24-hour hotline number, (800) 777-6512, which people can call for flower delivery service. Customers can also send a fax to 885-2608 to order flowers.

Scanlan also provides flowers for weddings in Grosse Pointe.

"We do pretty good with that business, but there are enough weddings in Grosse Pointe to keep most of the florists here busy," Scanlan said. "Grosse Pointers want value for their money. We get a lot of people who belong to flower clubs, and they want to arrange their own flowers, and they know about flowers. We must be able to serve them."

"We also get husbands on Saturdays who get their haircuts near here who stop for flowers for their wives. But they don't know about flowers. We have to be able to help them as well," Scanlan said.

Fans of flowers can usually find what they want at Scanlan's Fisher Road Florist, which has been serving Grosse Pointers for 10 years.

IRA contribution: last chance for '93 deduction

Even though 1993 is over, many people are still looking for ways to save tax dollars as the April 15 tax deadline approaches. The good news is you still may be able to save on your 1993 taxes by contributing to an individual retirement account (IRA).

"Many people don't realize they have until April 15 to make their IRA contributions and, in many cases, their contributions are fully deductible on '93 taxes," said William O'Donoghue, branch manager of the A.G. Edwards Detroit office.

Your ability to deduct your IRA contribution depends on your income level and whether you are an active participant in an employer-sponsored retirement plan such as a 401(k) plan.

If you and your spouse are not covered by such a plan, you can deduct the maximum contribution allowed — $2,000 or $2,250 for married couples if only one spouse works — regardless of your income. If either of you or your spouse is covered by an employer-sponsored plan, your contributions are still fully deductible if your adjusted gross income is $40,000 or less for married couples, $25,000 or less for individuals.

However, your IRA contribution is not deductible if either you or your spouse is covered by an employer-sponsored retirement plan and your combined income is above $50,000 ($35,000 for individuals).

"Even if you can't deduct your contribution, you should consider an IRA," O'Donoghue suggested. "With or without a tax deduction, the earnings from your investment compound year after year without being reduced by current taxes."

For example, assume you earn 7.5 percent on a $2,000 investment and you are in the 36 percent tax bracket. This $2,000 will generate $150 income each year. Outside your IRA, you would pay 36 percent of the $150 earnings in taxes, keeping only $96. However, inside your IRA, all $150 earned can grow tax deferred until you withdraw it.

For a free copy of "IRAs: Shielding Retirement Savings From Higher New Taxes," contact the A.G. Edwards Detroit office at (313) 962-5525.

Salesmanship — be your best

Nothing happens in the business world without a sale being made. Selling is easy once you've learned how to use a few basic sales skills.

Instructor and sales mechanic David Bilbrey teaches the essentials of sales from opening the door to closing the sale on Wednesdays, March 16 to April 13, from 7 to 9 p.m. at the Grosse Pointe War Memorial.

If you don't need this class, send your sales staff (or your newest salesman) to this dynamic workshop. Bilbrey is a sales veteran of 23 years, motivator, teacher and entertainer.

The workshop is $50 and includes a workbook. Call 881-7511 for reservations or for more information.

Extra money in paychecks for some working families

These are typical questions asked by taxpayers and are presented as a public service of this publication and the IRS.

Q. My sister told me that she is getting some extra money in each of her paychecks. She said it was called a "tax credit" and she gets it because she has a job and is raising her daughter. What is the tax credit and how do I get it?

A. Your sister is talking about the Advance Earned Income Credit (AEIC). Basically, it's for people who work, have at least one child and will make under $23,760 this year.

If you qualify to receive the credit, you must fill out a Form W-5 and give it to your employer. Your employer then gives you part of the credit in each paycheck. (You cannot receive the Advance EIC if your only income is from self-employment.)

If at any time during the year your circumstances change and you are no longer eligible to get the payments in your check, you will have to repay the amount advanced to you when you file your tax return. To stop the advance payments, you must fill out a new Form W-5 and give it to your employer.

Q. I think I may qualify for the AEIC. Where do I get more information?

A. Publication 596, "Earned Income Credit," explains all the rules to qualify for and claim the Advance EIC. It is available by calling the Internal Revenue Service at 1-800-829-3676. You can also get a Form W-5 at the same number.

Volunteer Income Tax Assistance (VITA) and Tax Counseling for the Elderly (TCE) sites are open during the filing season to give free one-on-one tax help. They can also tell you if you qualify for the EIC or Advance EIC, and help you fill out the forms. For the location of a VITA or TCE site, or to ask a question of an IRS tax assistant call 1-800-829-1040.

Beauty in the Woods

The Grosse Pointe Woods Beautification Advisory Commission recently elected its officers for the upcoming year. The commission is responsible for encouraging Woods residents and businesses to beautify the city by selling flowers and trees, as well as coming up with landscaping plans for Woods neighborhoods. The members are appointed by the mayor.

Mack to get new traffic signals

By Jim Stickford
Staff Writer

Mack Avenue, from Cadieux to Vernier, has been selected by the Wayne County Road Commission to receive a new traffic light system.

"Once the new traffic signal system is installed, it should be possible for someone to travel along Mack at the posted speed limit and not have to stop for a light," said Wayne County director of roads Robert Mahoney. "Our goal is to have the project completed by the end of the year."

The state must give its approval before the project can begin, Mahoney said. Mack is just one of several traffic corridors that will receive new traffic lights.

Thirteen other corridors, including Seven Mile from Lenane to Wyoming, McNichols from Five Points to Wyoming and West Jefferson from Eureka to Emmons, will receive similar improvements.

The Mack corridor stretches about 3.5 miles, said Mahoney.

The total cost for the entire project is estimated at about $8.4 million. He had no figures on the costs of the Grosse Pointe portion alone.

Most of the money, about $7 million, is coming from the Federal Congestion Mitigation/Air Quality program. The remaining 20 percent will be paid out of the county's road fund, which is generated through state gasoline and weight taxes, Mahoney said.

He was quick to add that the three Grosse Pointe communities affected, the City of Grosse Pointe, the Farms and the Woods, will incur no expense as a result of the project.

"The lights will be interconnected," Mahoney said. "If people drive the speed limit, they should miss the lights. As for construction time, we will have police there to facilitate traffic when we replace the lights. There will be a brief inconvenience, but we won't work on the lights during peak hours."

Once construction is complete, the only difference drivers may notice is the size of the traffic lights. The new lights, using the standard red, yellow and green colors, will be 12 inches in diameter instead of the current 8 inches. The county will install new pedestrian crosswalk lights as well.

Farms passes cable franchise pact

By Chip Chapman
Staff Writer

Moving a step closer to a new overall cable franchise agreement, the Farms joined Harper Woods Monday night as the second community to pass such a franchise agreement with Grosse Pointe Cable Inc.

As with the new cable ordinance passed last year, the franchise agreement is subject to approval when three of the five communities pass a similar agreement, but it does not legally lock in the other communities that have yet to pass their franchise agreements.

(Neither the City, Park nor Grosse Pointe Woods have passed their franchise agreements.)

"The ordinance was a joint effort between the five cities, and the provisions in the franchise agreement also have been a joint effort between the cities," said Terry Griffin, the Farms cable representative on the council, in his motion to pass the franchise agreement.

The franchise agreement imposes stricter customer service requirements and requires Grosse Pointe Cable to keep up with competition in the surrounding communities.

"I move that we approve the proposed franchise agreement, subject to approval of a similar agreement in at least three of the five communities by the end of March," Griffin said. "If three of the five communities have approved such an agreement by that time, then the mayor and city clerk would be authorized to sign the agreement. If we do not have three communities that have approved the agreement by the end of March, then we would be allowed to re-evaluate the situation at that time."

Woods to purchase new police cars

By Jim Stickford
Staff Writer

The Grosse Pointe Woods City Council last week approved spending $54,842 to purchase four new automobiles for the public safety department.

Director of public safety Jack Patterson, in a memo to the city council, said that two patrol cars needed replacing. The cars, both 1991 Chevrolet Caprice police package vehicles, will have about 80,000 and 95,000 miles respectively when their replacements arrive, he said.

Now is the time to replace the cars because they are in constant use, Patterson said. Unlike a citizen's car, which spends a lot of time parked, patrol cars are constantly on the streets, Patterson said, and waiting another year would significantly add to the cars' mileage.

"The average police car lasts two or three years," Patterson said. "These cars are at the end of their rope. We have a good maintenance program. The cars come in once a month for a checkup. But a car can only be used for patrol for so long."

The department usually buys two or three cars a year, but decided to ask the council to purchase two 1994 Pontiac Grand Prix sedans. One would be used for investigations, and the other would replace the city manager's old car.

One of the cars being replaced, a 1990 Chevrolet Caprice, is expected to have over 50,000 miles on it when the new cars arrive. It also has had mechanical problems.

The other car, a 1989 Caprice, is expected to have over 65,000 miles on it, Patterson said.

"The police package cars are heavier built," said Patterson. "They are designed to be tougher. Everything's beefed up. The other two cars are just regular Caprices."

The city will be purchasing the cars through Oakland County's police vehicle purchasing program. This allows small cities like the Woods to get bulk rates for a relatively small number of cars, Patterson explained.

The city had to have the bids in by March 1, for a July delivery date.

Owner ices beer, not pucks, at popular hockey hangout

By Chip Chapman
Staff Writer

Not many people can claim to have had their picture appear in Town & Country and on the front of the Detroit Free Press sports section.

In fact, it's a fairly safe bet that Jim DePuys, co-owner of Marge's Bar, is the only one.

"I was in my friend Chris Gamble's wedding," DePuys said of his appearance in the September 1992 issue of Town & Country. "I showed up in more photos than the groom."

DePuys, however, is better known for the reason he was featured in the Free Press — his love of hockey.

"I don't know how it happens," he said. "I bumble and stumble, and the next thing I know, I'm on the front page."

During the 1986-87 season, the Red Wings rebounded from one of their worst campaigns in team history to advance to the conference finals.

With the increased popularity of the Wings, business at the bar picked up. In 1987, Detroit Free Press hockey writer Keith Gave featured Marge's in a story.

There were a number of Red Wings who lived in the Pointes at the time, such as Mike O'Connell and Glen Hanlon, who would drop by Marge's. Other Red Wings, such as Harold Snepsts and Tim Higgins, would also stop in the bar.

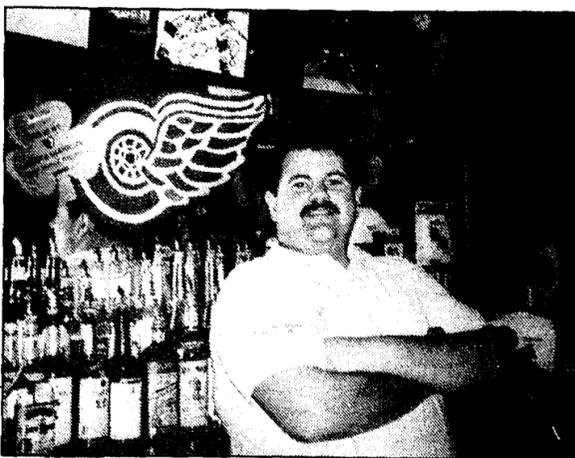

"It was mostly the older players on the team who came in," DePuys remembers.

Autographed sticks, jerseys and other hockey memorabilia began adorning the bar.

These days, current Red Wings and Pointers Steve Chiasson, Ray Sheppard and Steve Yzerman will pop in on occasion.

Ironically, the 1978 Grosse Pointe South graduate had little more than a passing interest in the sport until buying season tickets for the Red Wings soon after the team moved from Olympia Stadium

POINTER OF INTEREST

Jim DePuys stands behind the bar at Marge's to Joe Louis Arena in 1980.

DePuys started playing hockey in the early 1980s in the Grosse Pointe Community Rink's (GPCR) senior open league (ages 18 and up) on a team Marge's sponsors each year.

His parents bought the bar from the Verdonck family in 1966. When they divorced in 1971, the establishment took the name of his mother, Marge, who Jim calls "the backbone of the business."

DePuys went to work at Marge's after a year of college and became co-owner of the business.

He sees Marge's as not just a hangout for hockey fans and players, but as a community stronghold. A number of fundraisers have been held there.

"Mom got it rolling when Vince Brennan ran for judge in the 1980s," he said. "Since then, we've had fundraisers for (Farms Circuit Judge) Matt Rumora, (state Sen.) John Kelly, (Farms council candidate) Erin Barthel, (Wayne County sheriff candidate) Bruce Kennedy and others."

Hockey, however, has been the focus of much of DePuys' community involvement.

Along with Farms resident Costa Papista, who has played in the Ontario Hockey League and at the University of New Brunswick, and Grosse Pointe's Jimmy Carson, who is currently playing for the Vancouver Canucks, DePuys is the associate director of the Great Lakes Hockey Skills School, held during the third week of August at GPCR.

"This will be our fifth season," DePuys said. "Last year, we had 150 kids."

He also runs a clinic for mites (ages 6 to 8) at GPCR between May and July each year.

"It's becoming one of the best around," he said. "(Former Red Wings' assistant coach) Don McAdam helps us out."

This year has marked DePuys' head coaching debut, behind the bench of Marge's Bruins in GPCR's mite division.

"My nephew Craig Onderbeke is on the team," DePuys said. "He got me involved a couple years ago."

With assistant coach Duane Ayoub, DePuys has guided the Bruins to within a game of the finals.

"I've been blessed with good kids," he said. "And good (players') parents."

In April, he will run a one-day hockey tournament at GPCR for players 18 and older.

"This will be our fourth year," he said. "We'll try to have four or six teams play each other and then there will be a buffet at Marge's afterward."

In September, DePuys plans to start a Saturday night hockey league, made up primarily of Marge's customers.

"We will have a draft to make sure the teams are even," he said.

Marge's recently held its annual mixed doubles tennis tournament, which his mother runs, at Eastside Tennis Club.

This Sunday, Marge's sponsors its skeet shooting contest at the Grand Blanc Huntsmen's Club, with four-man teams competing for prizes.

Marge's holds its golf outing at Scalawags Country Club in Mount Clemens in June, and the Monday night golf league at Detroit's Chandler Park course will resume this summer.

"We try to get everyone involved," DePuys said. "My mom is a stickler about taking care of our regular customers."

Last fall, DePuys appeared in the Detroit Free Press again.

He, Gave, Red Wings vice president Jimmy Devalano, Red Wings radio broadcaster Paul Woods, former Los Angeles Kings' coach Tom Webster and Hartford Whalers head scout Kevin Maxwell held a "roisserie league" draft, which Gave featured in a story.

"We wanted to see how many of today's players would actually make it in a six-team league," DePuys said.

For the National Hockey League's first 50 years, the league had only six teams. Today it has 26.

Two years ago, the Red Wings held a team party at Marge's.

"It was packed in here," DePuys said. "Bob Probert was in the kitchen flipping hamburgers."

Red Wings' captain Steve Yzerman has held three press conferences at the bar.

"You can't buy publicity like that," DePuys said.

Marge's popularity even caught the eye of the Chicago Tribune, which in 1992 wrote a story about the bar.

Last year, DePuys was featured in two Miller Lite commercials.

"Three hundred people tried out at the Fox Theater," he said. "There were 28 finalists and I was the first commercial they did."

Hockey and DePuys' community involvement have proven to be assets to Marge's.

"The bar business is tough," he said. "There's a lot of competition."

But being friendly to customers also has a lot to do with the success of the business.

"I've always gotten along with everybody," he said. "And it has paid off."

William P. Rossmann

A memorial Mass will be said at 11 a.m. Saturday, March 12, at St. Paul Catholic Church in Grosse Pointe Farms for William P. Rossmann, 58, who died of a heart attack on Thursday, Feb. 24, 1994, in Portland, Ore.

Born in Detroit, Mr. Rossmann was a former resident of Grosse Pointe Farms.

He earned a master's degree in sociology from the University of Detroit.

Mr. Rossmann was an avid tennis player and traveler.

He is survived by two daughters, Carolyn R. Chi and Patricia R. Herring; two sisters, Mary R. Berg and Martha R. Louisell; and a brother, Terrance P. Rossmann.

Interment is at the St. Paul columbarium.

Memorial contributions may be made to the Capuchin Monastery.

Otto John Solterisch

Services were held Friday, March 4, at the Eppens-Van Deweghe Funeral Home in Detroit for Otto John Solterisch, 88, of Clinton Township, who died Friday, March 4, 1994, at Bon Secours Hospital in the City of Grosse Pointe.

Born in Pittsburgh, Mr. Solterisch was a resident of Grosse Pointe Park for 38 years.

A retired painter, he enjoyed spectator sports and playing cards.

Mr. Solterisch is survived by his wife, Olivia Solterisch; three sons, Kenneth, Ronald and Roy; and seven grandchildren.

AARP to party on St. Paddy's Day

The Grosse Pointe Chapter No. 3430 of the American Association of Retired Persons (AARP) will hold its regular meeting on Monday, March 14, at the Neighborhood Club, 17151 Waterloo, City of Grosse Pointe. The meeting will begin at 12:30 p.m. It will be the annual St. Patrick's Day luncheon.

Entertainment will be provided by the Music Makers, a group of men who have performed for 20 years under the direction of Gus Pallas.

Reservations are required. Call Flo Holzen at 884-6155 by Friday, March 11.

Ann Gray Sherer

Private family services will be held for Ann Gray Sherer, 85, of Grosse Pointe Farms, who died Sunday, March 6, 1994, in Gulfstream, Fla.

Born in Detroit, Mrs. Sherer was a graduate of the Liggett School and Mount Vernon Seminary.

She was a member of Tau Beta, the Detroit Institute of Art, the Grosse Pointe Garden Club, the Junior League of Detroit, the Country Club of Detroit, the Grosse Pointe Club and the Detroit Club.

Mrs. Sherer enjoyed her children, playing bridge and taking long walks in Grosse Pointe.

Her great style and joy in living centered around her profound love for her children and in her many interests, including her garden design and in the thoughtful development of Detroit's waterfront.

She is survived by her husband, Joseph Stolp Sherer Jr.; two daughters, Anne Sherer Paddock and Lydia Sherer Taylor; three sons, Samuel Baldwin Sherer, Stephen Martine Sherer and Myron Gray Sherer; 17 grandchildren; five great-grandchildren; and a sister, Elizabeth Gray Sackett. She was predeceased by a son, Joseph Stolp Sherer III, and a sister, Frances Gray Merkel.

Interment is at Woodlawn Cemetery in Detroit.

Arrangements were made by the Wm. R. Hamilton Co. Funeral Home in Mount Clemens.

Anthony Paul Guaresimo

Services were held Monday, March 7, at the A.H. Peters Funeral Home in Grosse Pointe Woods for Anthony Paul Guaresimo, 73, of Harper Woods, who died Wednesday, March 2, 1994, in Bayonet Point, Fla.

Born in Detroit, Mr. Guaresimo was a former resident of Grosse Pointe Woods.

A graduate of St. Paul high school, he was the former director of public works for Grosse Pointe Woods.

A sergeant in the U.S. Army during World War II, Mr. Guaresimo enjoyed hunting, fishing and carving duck decoys. He was a member of the Elks Club in Alpena.

He is survived by his wife, Lena Guaresimo; three sons, Paul, Andrew and Carl; three grandchildren; three sisters, Evelyn, Betsy and Norma; and a brother, John. He was predeceased by his wife, Virginia Guaresimo.

Interment is at Resurrection Cemetery in Clinton Township.

Memorial contributions may be made to the Kidney Foundation.

Clara Hemmeter White

A private memorial service was held for Clara Hemmeter White, 96, of Grosse Pointe Farms, who died Monday, March 7, 1994, at the Bon Secours Nursing Care Center in St. Clair Shores.

She is survived by two daughters, Winifred W. Tootle and Lynn White; five grandchildren; and two great-grandchildren.

Arrangements were made by the Chas. Verheyden Inc. Funeral Home in Grosse Pointe Park.

Memorial contributions may be made to Christ Church or to University Liggett School.

Susan M. Matta

Services were held Wednesday, March 9, at St. Bonaventure Monastery in Detroit for Susan M. Matta, 97, who died Sunday, March 6, 1994, at Church of Christ Care Center in Clinton Township.

Born in Lebanon, Miss Matta was a resident of Grosse Pointe Woods.

She is survived by four nieces, Adele George, Mary George, Elaine Sauceman and Ruth Yesbeck; two nephews, Robert and Edward; and a brother, John Matta. She was predeceased by a brother, Zakia George.

Interment is at Mount Elliott Cemetery in Detroit.

Arrangements were made by the Chas. Verheyden Inc. Funeral Home in Grosse Pointe Park.

Memorial contributions may be made to the Capuchin Community Center, 1760 Mount Elliott, Detroit, Mich. 48207.

The following was written as an ode to a friend, Grosse Pointe Farms resident J. "Jake" Otis Wardwell, who died Feb. 26.

Adieu, Kind Friend, Adieu

The bright, yet Columbus skies, Suddenly darkened, before my eyes.

Though it was in the darkness of the night, When, I felt the chill of the raven's flight,

That tortured my dream, on that eventful night.

As I fought them back with all my might.

And as my mind came back to me, I knew there was a power, more mighty, that be, To call to you, Jake, that "His" partner be.

And now, you know your flights are trouble free, And you have come to rest, Where, only, are the significant "best."

And I know I'll never walk alone, 'Cause you'll always be looking over my shoulder, Jake — Just for "old time's sake."

God love you,

Clement Wicker

Edward Oscar Goosen

Edward Oscar Goosen

Edward Oscar Goosen, of Grosse Pointe Farms, died Monday, Feb. 21, in Sun City, Ariz. He was 88.

Mr. Goosen was the manager for the Grosse Pointe Farms Pier Park, where he worked for 25 years, until his retirement in 1968. He loved being at the park and he was always at the center of the activities. He had a wonderful sense of humor and was always the life of the party.

Mr. Goosen is survived by his wife, Eva; two daughters, Elizabeth Rogerson and Virginia Wolf; two sons, Marvin and Edward; 10 grandchildren; and one great-grandchild.

Funeral services took place in Sun City.

A memorial service was held Saturday, March 5, at St. James Lutheran Church in Grosse Pointe Farms for Richard L. Leslie, 78, who died Saturday, Feb. 26, 1994, at Bon Secours Hospital in the City of Grosse Pointe.

Born in Tiffin, Ohio, Mr. Leslie was a resident of Grosse Pointe Farms.

He was a 1937 graduate of Wayne University, where he earned a bachelor's degree in chemical engineering, and was a 1938 graduate of the University of Michigan, where he earned a master's degree in the same field.

Mr. Leslie was a professor at Wayne State and also was the director of the chemical laboratory at Vickers Inc. in Troy.

He was nationally and internationally recognized as an authority on hydraulic fluids. He was a member emeritus of the Engineering Society of Detroit, the American Chemical Society and was a past president of the Society of Tribologists and Lubrication Engineers.

Mr. Leslie was a member of St. James Lutheran Church and the Grosse Pointe Senior Men's Club.

He enjoyed sailing, bridge and travel.

Mr. Leslie is survived by his wife, Anita S. Leslie; a daughter, Sherry Eastwood; a son, Stuart Leslie; four grandchildren; and one great-grandchild.

Memorial contributions may be made to St. James Lutheran Church or to the charity of the donor's choice.

THE NATIONAL MS SOCIETY...ONE THING PEOPLE WITH MS CAN BE SURE OF!

Multiple sclerosis is a disease that randomly attacks your nervous system, wearing away the control you have over your body. Symptoms may range from numbness to paralysis and blindness.

MS is a devastating disease because it is so unpredictable. The progress, severity, and specific symptoms of the disease cannot be foreseen. You never know when attacks will occur, how long they will last, or how severe they will be.

Most people are diagnosed with MS between the ages of 20 and 40, but unpredictable physical and emotional effects can occur for the rest of their lives.

Elderhostel: You're never too old to learn — and enjoy it

Among the popular activities of older people these days is going back to school.

Adult education class supervisors in public schools and junior colleges know this well. Classes are filled with eager and lively older students who come to learn about everything from Chinese culture to furniture refinishing, not to mention such social graces as square dancing and bridge.

Because older students have the time and interest to increase their knowledge, a relatively new improvement in education was initiated. It's called "Elderhostel" and the motto became "studying there is half the fun."

The first catalog of courses was relatively small but with each publication the offerings increased. Currently, Elderhostel publishes four seasonal catalogs that list courses offered by a network of 1,800 participating institutions. There are programs in every American state and all Canadian provinces, as well as 45 other foreign countries.

Last year a quarter of a million people enrolled in Elderhostel. The Elderhostel concept was inspired by youth hostels and folk schools of Europe, but was guided by the needs of older people for intellectual stimulation and adventures. It is based on the belief that retirement is not an end of life activity but rather an opportunity to enjoy new experiences.

To participate, students must be at least 60 years old. The accompanying spouse or companion must be at least 50. The location is up to the student. Some will feel more comfortable in a small rural private liberal arts college while others prefer a nationally known university.

Prime Time

By Marian Trainor

The courses will determine which college the student chooses. The courses are non-credit and taught by the faculty of the host institution. There are no exams, no grades, no homework.

Lack of formal education is not a barrier. The professors have found that 60 or 70 years of life experiences create open, understanding, teachable people.

While students attend Elderhostel to learn, each school offers a variety of extra-curricular activities. There is time also for Elderhostelers to explore the area and to become acquainted with each other.

There is one consideration to ponder. College dormitories are not luxury resort hotels. Bathroom facilities are shared, and meals are served in the college cafeteria. The food is wholesome and nutritious, but not up to gourmet standards. In other words, Elderhostel offers typical college accommodations, which many will remember from their college years.

While each is unique, the typical program includes five or six nights, starting Sunday afternoon and ending Friday after lunch or Saturday after breakfast. Three academic courses that meet for 1-1/2 hours each weekday are scheduled so you may take all three.

Although some students will choose to spend one week at an Elderhostel, others will travel from campus to campus, making Elderhostel a longer trip to visit family or to see new parts of the country.

James A. Quinn, a 67-year-old Pennsylvanian who calls himself "most happily retired," has studied at 200 colleges and universities in the last seven years. "I can't imagine a better life," he says. Meticulously organized, Quinn figures that at $300 a week, which includes meals, accommodations, and five days of classes plus extra-curricular activities, Elderhostel is a bargain.

Looking through an Elderhostel catalog is like looking through a seed catalog. There are so many tempting offerings.

Interested readers can write for more information to Elderhostel, 100 Boylston Street, Boston, Mass. 02116.

New wardrobe can boost spirits of older people

Retirement shouldn't mean the end of caring about your personal appearance and wardrobe.

"In fact, sprucing up the wardrobe can enhance the mental and physical well-being of older people," says Shirley Nicholas, a home economist at Michigan State University Extension in Macomb County.

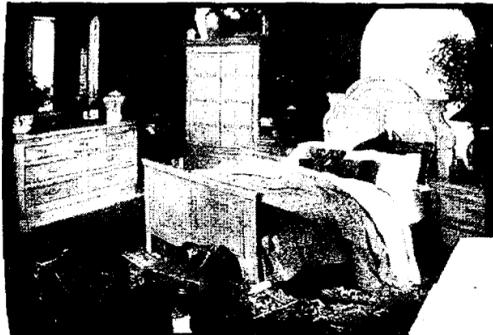

Retirement is a time of adjustment and, for some, can lead to depression. Clothing can give a person an enormous psychological boost. If retirees refuse to buy clothes that make them feel good about themselves, they can become even more depressed, stop caring about their appearance and withdraw from others.

Clothing also affects the way others perceive us. Retired professionals who are used to respect in the workplace should remember that their retirement clothing will affect how people perceive them. Ill-fitting or outdated clothes do not inspire respect or confidence in other people.

Older people should avoid the guilt feelings they may get from buying new clothes by reminding themselves that mental health is as important as physical health. You buy new glasses and medication when you need them, and you can look at a clothing purchase as a prescription for developing a positive attitude.

Joe Camel: Easy target for governor

When Gov. John Engler portrays the March 15 referendum on Proposal A as a contest between himself and Joe Camel, it's strictly no contest.

In his appearance at the Grosse Pointe Woods Community Center last week, Engler identified the real enemies of Proposal A as the tobacco companies, their cartoon advertising characters, Joe and Josephine Camel, and "the big bucks" the companies are reportedly spending to defeat it.

Over the weekend, it was reported that the tobacco people are investing approximately $3.3 million in their campaign to defeat Proposal A's tripling of the state cigarette tax at 75 cents a pack but the Proposal A advertising campaign budget is "only $900,000," Engler said.

However, he failed to mention that other critics of Proposal A include a long list of statewide organizations headed by the Michigan Municipal League, the League of Women Voters, the American Association of University Women, the Michigan Rental Housing Association, and the major labor unions as well as his targeted foes, the Michigan Education Association and the tobacco interests.

Instead, he stressed the Proposal A benefits for business and its backing by 18 organizations, most linked to business, that agree, his literature says, that Proposal A is the "best choice for Michigan," if not the grammatical choice.

With both sides stepping up their use of TV commercials and print advertising as the March 15 vote nears, both were guilty of errors ranging from outright falsehoods to major exaggerations in their attacks on the opposition.

The coalition of Proposal A foes, for example, tried to relate the controversial history of the state lottery's support for education to the upcoming vote even though it has nothing to do with either Proposal A or Engler.

Backers of Proposal A, however, continued to attack the fallback plan for proposing the sixth highest flat rate tax in the country, a claim that the facts simply do not substantiate.

Equally disturbing is the continued criticism by Proposal A backers of the fallback plan's income tax rate of 6 percent. They fail to note the plan's boost in personal deductions, to $3,000 for regular income tax filers, and $3,900 for senior citizens, would mean lower taxes for many low-income people.

In answer to a Grosse Pointe News questioner, the governor said that in view of the improvement of the economy, he saw no major problem resulting from the recent revisions he advocated to win more support for Proposal A.

However, proposals to sweeten the appeal of Proposal A by cutting the residential property transfer tax to 0.75 percent, to permit farmers to include rented and leased land in their homesteads, and to enable cities to recapture revenue to pay off TIFA (Tax Increment Finance Authority) bonds for civic improvement would cut state revenues substantially.

The TIFA move is being dictated by hopes of Proposal A backers to enlist the support of Detroit's new mayor, Dennis Archer. If approved, however, it also would benefit Grosse Pointe Park, which used TIFA funds to upgrade its business districts and for other civic improvements.

And over the weekend, another plan to trim state revenues came up in Lansing. It would trim the sales tax on the purchase of a new car by subtracting the value of the trade-in, thus lessening the effect of the tax boost on new car sales.

In Engler's Grosse Pointe appearance, he was given gentle treatment by a respectful audience. Several questioners even commended him for having backed a proposal that would save them money.

But whether that reception reflected the Grosse Pointe audience's conviction that Proposal A is the better of the two school financing plans is not certain.

In fact, it might simply have reflected the traditional Grosse Pointe good manners in welcoming a distinguished visitor and the natural reaction of a largely admiring Republican audience.

Yet, in general terms, the Woods town hall session appeared to have been a triumph for Engler — and at least a stand-off for Proposal A.

Profiting from the schools?

More than 100 U.S. public schools that tried privatization of educational services more than 20 years ago found that hiring private, for-profit companies did not work well.

That conclusion comes from M. William Salganik, former education writer and now editor of the Perspective section of the Baltimore Sun. His report appeared in his own paper Dec. 11, 1993, and was reprinted Dec. 19 in the New York Times.

The story is worth reviewing because of the current interest in Michigan and elsewhere in the theory that privatization of educational services would improve accountability for money spent and that private business can be more innovative and more efficient than big school bureaucracies.

In those days, Salganik wrote, the confluence of these two ideas led to "performance contracting" with companies to teach and be paid according to how much kids learned.

Unfortunately, though more than 100 firms rushed into such contracts in the 1970-71 school year, they ran into difficulties and scandals which the Baltimore Sun man predicts would be likely to occur again if the practice were revived today.

"First, a federal evaluation found performance contracts worked no better than traditional programs," Salganik wrote.

"Second, there was evidence of contractors cheating."

In examining the effectiveness issue, the Baltimore Sun man conceded that education bureaucrats still aren't getting the results we'd like today, but he questioned whether private companies could do any better.

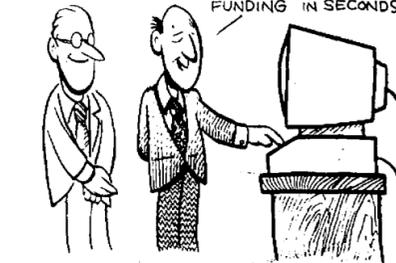

He said private companies have their inefficiencies, too, even though some firms are run better than others.

Salganik believes private enterprise seeking to manager schools should be charged with answering a series of specific questions like those he posed about performance and evaluations.

They include specific rules for bidding, for evaluating programs, for disclosure of personal interests and for answering the question of whether city school officials can do consulting work for a firm doing business in the city.

In short, if businesses are to compete for the responsibility of managing our schools, they should be ready to prove their accountability and be able to offer suitable answers to questions like those the Baltimore Sun writer raised.

6th reason to vote no on ballot plan

To the Editor:
In a recent column, Rep. Bryant suggested five good reasons for voting no on Proposal A. However, he overlooked a sixth, even more compelling, argument.

Four of Bryant's five reasons involving local hold harmless millage, enhancement millage, assessment caps, and the Headlee revenue limit showed how our schools would lose fiscal ground over time under Proposal A. Though it lacks the flexibility of our present property tax system, the statutory plan would at least allow our schools to keep up with inflation more than Proposal A would. Bryant's other reason concerned more funding options for the library under the statutory plan.

The sixth reason to vote no on Proposal A is its daunting requirement of a 3/4 vote of the Legislature to raise school operating millage rates. That means that as Grosse Pointe and 41 other out-of-formula districts inevitably fail to keep pace with inflation under Proposal A, there would be no relief as these districts would be unlikely to marshal sufficient political capital to get 3/4 of the Legislature to allow us to tax ourselves to preserve the quality of our schools.

Those who fear the statutory plan would depress the economy should remember that this could be remedied by a simple majority vote of the Legislature. In contrast, the debilitating provisions of Proposal A would be etched in stone. I would hope that the wealthiest among us who stand to gain the largest tax break from Proposal A will consider this greater community cost.

Teachers should follow Shine's example

To the Editor:
Now that the fact finder, Mark Glazer from MERC, has submitted his report to the Grosse Pointe board of education and the Grosse Pointe Education Association, hopefully, both parties will move quickly to reach a negotiated agreement.

I heard repeatedly this school year that the morale of teachers was low as a result of not having a contract. Past practice has demonstrated that the Grosse Pointe board of education has a positive track record in stable contract negotiations and settlements with employee groups. Unfortunately, the practices of the past may not be the reality of the future. Times are changing. The board of education has had to respond over the past years to repeated "Robin Hood" measures from Lansing. In the future, teacher retirement and FICA payments will be paid by the local school districts, not by the state. The ballot proposal for funding schools remains cloudy.

For the board of education to stand firm on contract negotiations is essential. Allowing an outside fact finder to review the situation was important. However, fact finders are only that. The board and the teachers must now resolve their differences. I wish to commend both the board and the teachers for their patience during this slow process. The teachers continued to work this year on behalf of students without any interruptions to the classroom.

Nevertheless, Grosse Pointe teachers are long overdue for a reality check with the outside world — not only in educational circles but also, in private in-

All competitors were winners

Americans always have been captivated by the figure skating events but a review of the U.S. news coverage of the Olympics surely justifies the complaint that the media overdid their coverage of the Harding-Kerrigan competition.

Overall, CBS deserved some credit for its extensive coverage of the games but the United States was the only nation that had to wait seven hours to get the televised results of most competitive events.

However, Tonya Harding has set the perfect tone for her confrontation with Nancy Kerrigan when she skated her short program to music written to accompany a modern version of Shakespeare's "Much Ado About Nothing."

That's what the results were, with Kerrigan winning a silver medal but being denied the gold by a rising young international star from Europe, while Harding was also-ran in eighth place.

For their behavior as hosts, the Norwegians deserve great credit for their efforts to preserve a spirit of sportsmanship and fair play — and for offering their country's marvelous landscape as an appropriate locale for the winter games.

In fact, it was fitting that Norway, with less than half the population of Michigan, "won" the games with more medals for the top three finishers in each event than any other country.

In the end, however, most competitors from the participating nations, whether they won, captured a medal or simply took part, contributed to the spectacle's success. All were winners.

State still wrong on our levy

Lansing just can't get the current Grosse Pointe school levy right even when Gov. John Engler is using the figures.

In his talk at the Grosse Pointe Woods Community Center last week, the governor cited the property tax savings Grosse Pointers would make if Proposal A were adopted with their support.

Unfortunately, however, the governor used the same erroneous figures for the 1993-94 school property tax that his state officers have been issuing regularly, even though they have been notified innumerable times they are in error.

The correct Grosse Pointe school district levy for the current year is 30.4620 mills, while state officials continue to use the erroneous 33.41 figure. The Detroit News and Free Press' Sunday edition again used the erroneous figure March 6.

That error also perpetuates the state's mistaken view that the 1994-95 levy would be 18.73 mills if Proposal A passes, while it actually would be 13.9 mills under that plan. On the backup plan, the correct levy would be 19.1 mills, while the state's mistaken figure for that plan is 22.1 mills.

Now we shall see whether the governor finally can make the correction which he assured the Grosse Pointe News after last week's meeting in the Woods that he would do.

Advisory committee: 21 reasons for top schools

The Grosse Pointe Public School System has always considered its relationship with the community to be of paramount importance. When our mission statement was developed in 1988 and updated in 1990, that relationship was described as a "partnership with parents and the community."

That partnership is necessary to the success of our students, and we in the school system are trying our best to strengthen and expand our ties to the community.

It has always been easy for us to stay in touch with parents because they are so much a part of our schools. They visit school buildings, participate in school and parent functions, and communicate with teachers, counselors and administrators for and about their children.

We have had a much more difficult time making the partnership work with residents who no longer have or never had children in the schools. Usually the board of education's only real communication with these residents has been about millage proposals at election time. Clearly this was not the kind of partnership the board envisioned, but it was difficult to come up with a plan that would engage some 30,000 adults who are vital to the community but not actively involved in the schools.

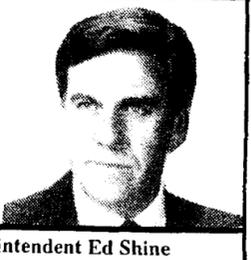

To help fill this partnership void, the board of education asked me to organize a Superintendent's Advisory Committee, made up of a broad cross-section of people from the community who would meet from time to time to share community insights, values, concerns and advice on issues concerning the school system. The committee was formed during the 1992-93 school year and included attorneys, local business owners and executives, Realtors, senior citizens, clergy, physicians, public officials, psychologists and bank executives. Discussions since then have ranged from demographics, staffing, union/board relations, school finance and accountability and the public library to communication, facilities, curriculum, school/community/home relationships, middle schools, and the school calendar, including the length of the school day.

When asked, "What are the 10 most important things the superintendent should do to deal with the financial constraints before us?" the advisory committee responded with the following items in priority order:

- 1) Hold the line on salaries. Implement cost containment on health care benefits.
- 2) Increase class size but increase classroom support to offset larger class size.
- 3) Increase use of technology.

Grosse Pointe Schools Superintendent Ed Shine

4) Classes at the high school level should meet a certain minimum of students to be offered. Increase the sharing between high schools.

5) Increase revenue by increasing tuition for Kids Club, all-day kindergarten, etc.

6) Investigate the privatization of some support services.

7) Charge a student activity fee for all co-curricular and extracurricular activities.

8) Sell 389 St. Clair (not everyone supported this).

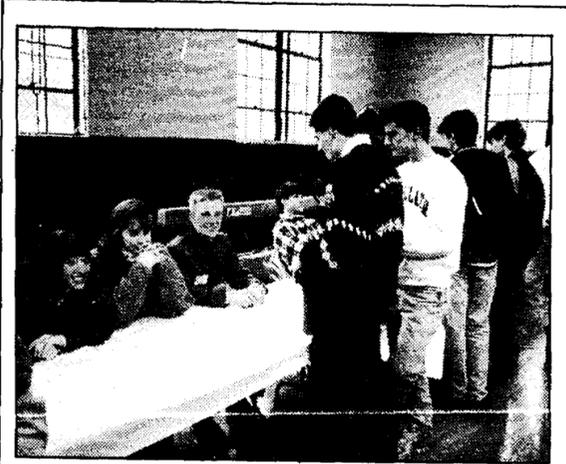

9) Establish a tax-exempt educational foundation.

10) Use more volunteers; use more part-time staff.

Every issue listed above has had more public discussion than it would have had ordinarily because of the existence of the Superintendent's Advisory Committee. The schools are better for it, and so is the community.

The community people who have given so much of their personal time to make this process successful are Dane Lupo, Dr. Walter Schmidt, Nancy Renick, Michael Kramer, Jack Caldwell, Janet Pallas, the Rev. Robert Rimbo, Bill Johnstone, Tom Drummy, Dr. Michael Skaff, Don Badaczewski, Dr. Heather Dickson, Mary McCaughey, Dorothy Kennel, Tom Youngblood, Andrew Richner, Judge Kirsten Frank, Don Sweeney, Henry Heck, Beverly Burns and Dr. Harlan Hagman.

They are 21 reasons why this community is such a good place to live and its schools such fine places to learn.

The real world

Recent graduates of Grosse Pointe South High School returned in December to share their new college experiences with juniors and seniors. The 10th annual Alumni Day was coordinated by South's guidance and counseling department to assist students in making the transition from high school to college. Grads representing 54 colleges and universities fielded questions about college life in general and about their schools.

Trombly Shoppers

Trombly principal Jean Rusing makes a purchase at the newly opened Trombly school store. Created and staffed by students from Lillian Kachadourian's first- and second-grade class, the store is designed to show students how mathematics applies to everyday life. School items such as pencils and notebooks will be available for sale to students and staff. Students will take turns managing and operating the store.

St. Clare student to go semi-finals

Sherita Rankins, a fifth-grader from St. Clare of Montefalco, will tell of her dream of becoming a supreme court justice as she competes in the semi-finals of the McDonald's "When I Grow Up" speech contest.

Christine Sylvester took second-place in the fourth-grade division.

St. Clare essay winners

St. Clare of Montefalco student Jannan Hessen took the school's first-place award in the America and Me Essay Contest, sponsored by the Farm Bureau Insurance Co.

Second-place honors went to Sherry Kolec, while Andrea Tironi came in third.

All are eighth-graders at St. Clare.

St. Clare forensic winners listed

St. Clare of Montefalco's seventh- and eighth-grade forensic team earned the top spot and No. 1 ranking for the year in the Eastside Catholic Forensic league by winning both competitions held this year.

Taking individual first-place honors were team members Tiffanee Phillips in poetry and Nichole Clare in declamation.

Rounding out the team are students Dana Galinato, Anna Gravilla, Meghan Glenn, Kate

Gehrke wins Trombly bee

Hans Gehrke, a fifth-grader at Trombly Elementary School, won first place in the school's geography bee, and now moves to the next level of competition, a written examination to determine state-level finalists.

The National Geography Bee, sponsored by the National Geographic Society, will be held in Washington, D.C., in May. The winner of the national bee will receive a $25,000 college scholarship.

Feed Me!

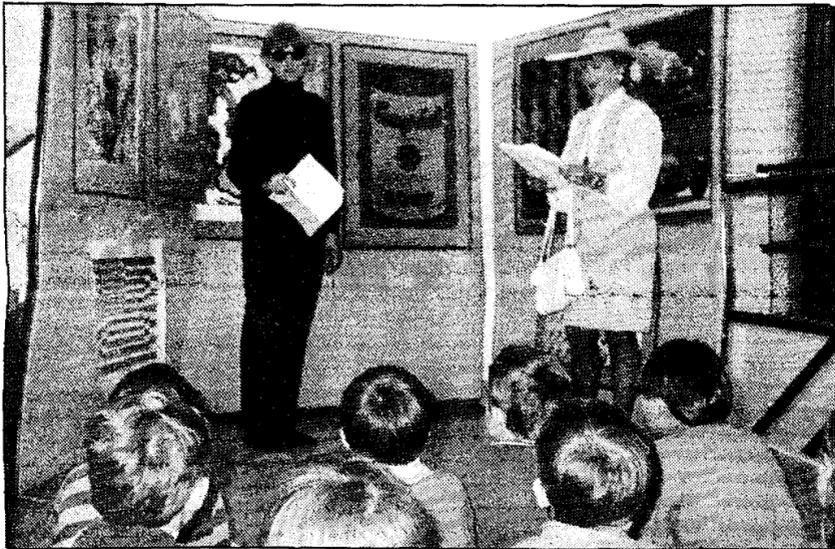

Pat Moltane (Seymour) tries to assuage the plant's appetite as Ali Blatt (Audrey) looks on in the University Liggett School's production of "The Little Shop of Horrors." The play will be presented Friday, March 11, through Sunday, March 13, at the school. For ticket information call 884-4444.

North takes first place

The Grosse Pointe North Academic Quiz Bowl team won first place in the Macomb Area Conference competition, defeating Fraser 360 to 280. This was North's second straight division title. The team will now go on to the state championships to be held in May in Port Huron.

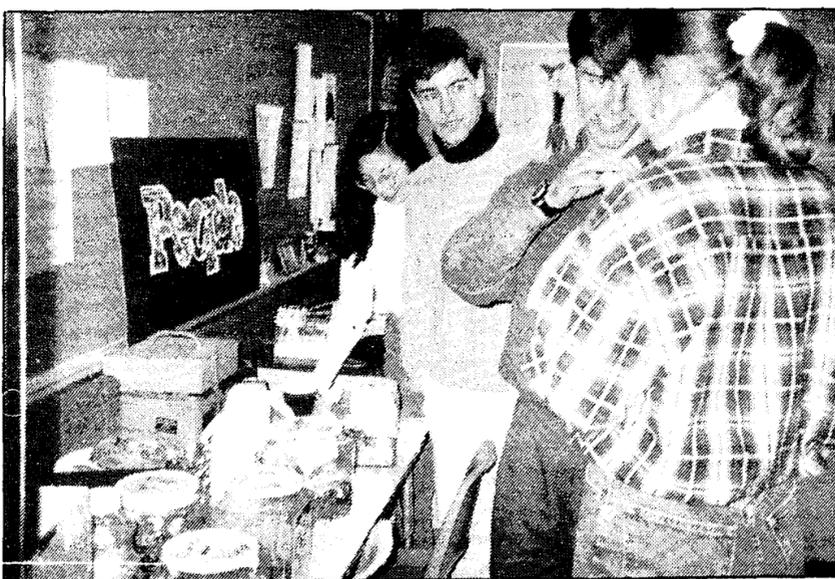

North's all junior squad is led by co-captains Jon Opdyke and Andy Khurana. Team members are Chris Georgendakis, John Gleason, Arul Thirumoorthi, Mike Rogowski, Maureen McGee and Sumeet Karnik. The team is coached by North social studies teacher Herman Weng.

Richard students meet Warhol

Students from Richard Elementary School will gladly explain pop art to you, after Andy Warhol himself explained it to them.

Well, actually it was Richard parent Nancy Wereneken dressed as the infamous pop artist, patiently explaining his artistic concepts to kindly Mrs. McGillacutty, played by Jane Postlethwaite, another Richard parent. Members of the PTO's Art Enrichment Committee recently presented programs to the students on Warhol's pop art and abstract impressionism, which featured a "visit" from artist Jackson Pollack. Students then created their own versions of pop and abstract art.

North students aid quake victims

Students from Grosse Pointe North High School turned their spirit week into a giving week and raised over $1,000 in the process, which was donated to Canoga Park High School in Los Angeles, a school badly damaged in the recent California earthquake. North students "adopted" Canoga Park High and its 1,600 students and through a spirit week bake sale, dance and penny drive were able to donate $1,093 which was sent to Canoga Park's student body.

Giving is becoming a tradition at North. Last year's spirit week activities raised money for a high school in Miami, badly damaged in Hurricane Andrew.

Checking on donations are North students Meredith Chan, Bill Stevenson, Bob Stevenson and Heather Hollidge.

St. Clare raises new flag

St. Clare of Montefalco School has a new flag, thanks to the generosity of parents Marlon and Tom Kittrell. Eighth-grader Meghan McGahey designed the new banner, and is pictured here with the Kittrells and student council president Theresa Franzinger at the blessing of the flag by Fr. Jack Burkart.

Gender gap: hundreds of crannies

"Whatever women do, they must do twice as well as men to be thought half as good," said Charlotte Whitton, former mayor of Ottawa.

"Luckily," she added, "this is not difficult."

Whitton has been quoted often. By Gloria Steinem, for one. And me.

Sally Forth, one of the dozen Freep cartoons I follow regularly, recently ran a story line in which the daughter had to write a school essay about which gender has it easier — boys or girls.

Ha.
I looked up some stuff about this.

Apparently girls start out behind, number-wise. For every 100 girls born, 105 boys get a crack at life on this planet.

By the time this bunch of kids reaches age 20, however, there are only 98 boys left for every 100 girls.

Girls born today can expect to live to age 79; Boys, 72. Longevity, it seems, is a feminine fringe benefit.

Quantity and quality are two sides of the life coin, however. The term "benefit" may be debatable.

I found some facts about this too. And opinions.

Men earn more, for instance. The last I heard, it was about 34 cents more for every dollar women earn.

Take nurses. Ninety-four percent of registered nurses are female. But male RNs earn 10 percent more than female RNs.

Boys get more positive feedback from teachers, like being chosen to speak in class and getting more praise and privileges.

Boys are encouraged to be more competitive. They also get to make more decisions and take more risks. When they grow up, they have better self-esteem, get paid more, get sick less, sock away better pensions, profit more from divorce, tote around less body fat, do fewer household chores, provide less day-to-day care for their children and exercise more control over the remote channel changer.

Women have some advantages, many of uncertain value.

Women are involved in fewer traffic accidents, which is good. Women buy less junk food but receive more junk mail. They have better senses of smell but are more likely to get stuck with diapers, garbage and laundry.

They vote more often; are elected less often.

They buy more greeting cards; are more apt to take dictation; are less likely to be left-handed, nearsighted, dyslexic, color-blind or have attention deficit disorder.

Women have lower self-esteem than men. They use more grooming products, but are more likely to think they're unattractive, overweight or unappealing.

Sometimes discrimination against women is subtle.

When I divorced, I called a local department store and asked to have my ex-husband's name removed from a charge card. I wanted my own name to remain on the account.

The charge account was originally mine. I applied for it before I was married, using my maiden name. When I married, I ADDED my husband's name and changed it to a joint account.

Never missed a single payment. Spent thousands.

The department store insisted I close the account and re-apply for a charge card in my own, single name. It's policy, they said.

I closed the account. Period.

A certain utility also refused to change a joint account called "Mr. and Mrs." to simply, "Ms."

Slam bang, they closed the account without discussion. If I wanted to continue enjoying hot water, they said, I could open a new account in my own name and plunk down a $100-plus good-faith deposit which would be refunded 13 months down the road, after I had proved I was a reliable, prompt-paying customer.

"What about the last 25 years of promptness and reliability on this account at this same address," I asked, "often paid with checks from a joint account, signed by me?"

Sorry, was the answer. It's policy.

What could I say? I needed hot water.

For many years, downtown commuters have seen him peddling his bike to work, but it's not likely Colin Hubbel will bicycle from his Park home to Cobo Hall to begin his new assignment as deputy director in Dennis Archer's realignment of Detroit responsibilities.

Best known as a writer/artist/musician, Colin now will work to keep Cobo Hall, Joe Louis Arena, Cobo Arena, Veterans Memorial, Ford Auditorium, Hart Plaza and the giant underground parking garages filled.

Fitting spot for party

What locale could be more fitting than the Grosse Pointe War Memorial for the Frederick M. Alger American Legion Post's 60th anniversary gathering. Many old-timers will be there March 18, said City of Grosse Pointe councilman Joe Jennings, but tickets remain (885-6228), and some surprises are planned between cocktails, dinner, dancing and socializing in what formerly was the Alger family home.

Kids win

Catherine and Bill Wrobel, of the Park, are a little puffed up. Seems their 8-year-old son, Andrew, was with the winning team at North High School when honors were passed out last week.

Competition in the Odyssey of the Mind's third annual contest among 25 Southeast Michigan schools brought the cherished Creativity Award to the Trombly school finalists in April's championships at Central Michigan University. No adult help was a requisite in dealing with emotions, writing and animals. Pointe teams took three of the four finalist ranks.

Trombly team: Gerrard Martin, Briana Jones, Andrew Yee, Colleen McMillan, Bridget Sullivan, Lauren Hirt and Andy Wrobel. Great.

Ant in dishwasher — spring's near Winter, according to science, ends this year at precisely 3:28 p.m. Eastern Standard Time Sunday, March 20.

At that moment, geographers tell us, the Earth will have orbited around in its annual cycle to a point where its axis tilts neither toward nor away from the sun and our day will be just as long as our night. Only then, and not one minute earlier, does spring happen.

Horse patooties, say I. Winter is a state of mind, like Christmas. And judging from all the holiday decorations that are still up, I figure that, at least for some people, Yuletide is in danger of stretching into July.

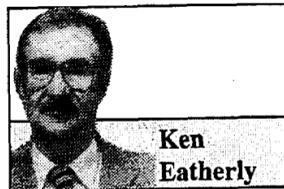

On the other hand, three weeks ago I was in Florida for a long weekend and they don't even have winter there. Which is really too bad for the Floridians, because they never get that wonderful feeling we do when we perceive that winter is over.

Those who have lived through it know that, rather than in one big astronomical bang, winter actually closes up shop in many subtle little signs. Lately I've been staring out the window and peering into the dusty corners of my house, looking for them. So, I'm sure, have a lot of my neighbors in this stretch of real estate along the lake.

Sometimes the signs are deceptive: There have been winters when the icicles were so thick in that shaded corner by the porch that I was certain they indicated the onset of a new Ice Age.

And one starry winter night when I was about 4, waiting with my mother at a bus stop so far from home that the city lights were just a glow on the horizon, the cold of outer space itself seeped into my bones and I took it as a sign that the universe was about to freeze solid.

Finally the bus came, the Universe warmed up a little and we all survived and learned to live with Michigan winters — at least, up to a point.

The last month always seems the hardest. It's when winter can't make up its mind about leaving, like a tiresome guest who is just out the door when he comes back yet again with one more bleak story you've already heard.

These past few weeks brought it all back, and once again winter has overstayed its welcome. So, in hopes of bringing on spring just a little sooner for our inner selves, I'm totaling up the points in Eatherly's Subjective De-Winterization Index.

In my book, winter is going belly-up when:

The ski tracks on your front lawn fade away.

You stop thinking of salt as something you pour from big plastic bags.

You can walk barefoot from your bed to the bathroom without getting foot cramps.

Your chimney cap finally unfreezes and pops open just in time for the end of the prime fireplace season.

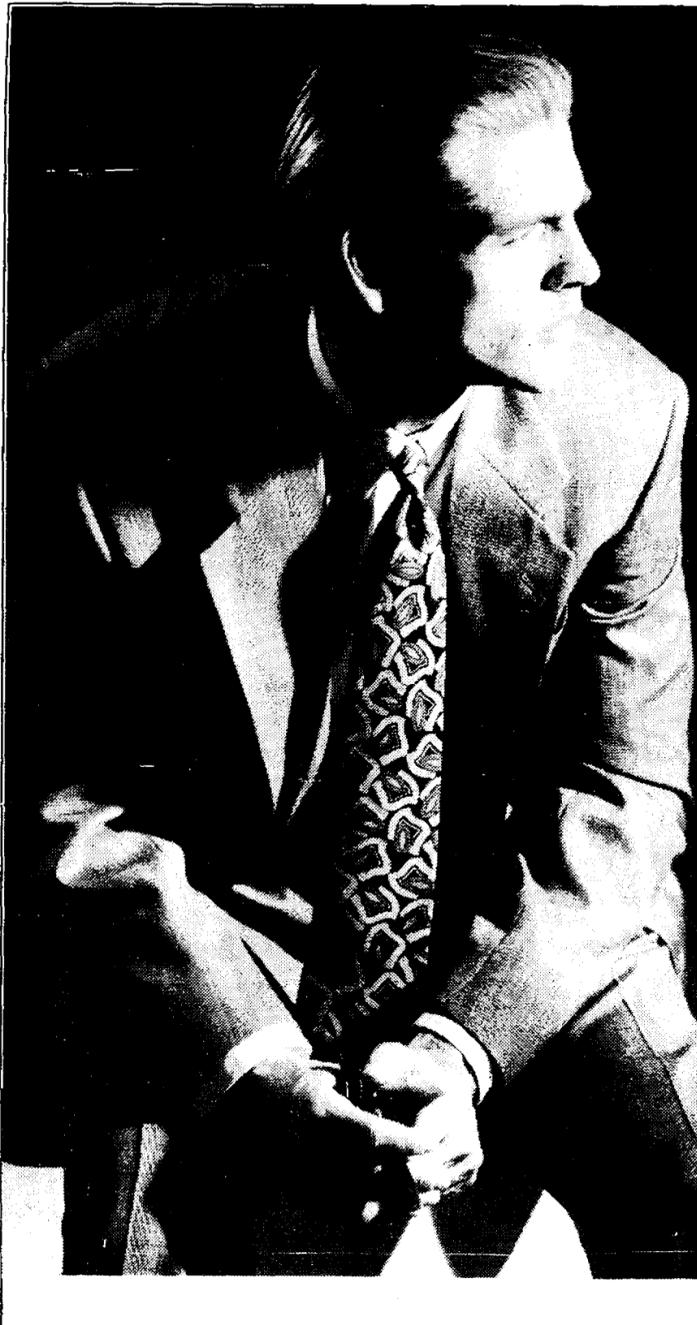

The mannequin outside Village Lock and Home Repair on Mack puts on her grass hula skirt.

You realize that one of these days you're going to have to take the storm windows down.

You stop bringing the milk in right away because it might freeze and start bringing the milk in right away because it might go sour.

Your welcome mat reappears.

dustry. (Working for a Fortune 500 company this past year has been most enlightening. I often wished that our teachers could see "corporate downsizing" at work).

In the past nine years not one employee group has come before the board of education with recommendations for employee cost saving measures or concessions of any kind that could prevent layoffs. The only school employee doing so was the superintendent. Dr. Shine requested a salary freeze for the 1993-94 school year which the board granted. Unfortunately, no other employee group including the administrators followed Shine's example.

I would encourage the school community to come together with reasonable, realistic compromises during budget deliberations and contract talks. If not, there is no predicting what forces might be at work to impact future school elections — i.e., board candidates, bonds or millage — in the future.

Carol B. Marr Grosse Pointe Farms Hold line on teachers salaries

To the Editor:
The front page article in your March 3 edition states that the state-appointed fact finder recommends a teacher salary increase of 2.75 percent.

The justification for this is a comparison with contract settlements in neighboring districts. Did he/she also take into effect present comparable salaries, and the fact that Grosse Pointe teachers received in excess of 40 percent increases in their last two contracts?

Any school board member who votes for any teacher salary increase should be recalled.

G.P. schools respected widely

To the Editor:
As a sales representative in the state of Michigan, I am able to speak with financial administrators of many different school district throughout the state. Whenever a model for excellence in school finance administration is discussed, the Grosse Pointe school system is consistently mentioned.

The Grosse Pointe school system is held in the highest regard for educational achievements. Doing more with less is a charge all of must live with, the community served by the Grosse Pointe school system should be commending our board on its ability to hold down costs while maintaining a high level of educational excellence and fiscal integrity.

In addition, we must be supportive of their efforts in the future, considering the changes in school funding and uncertainty which lies ahead.

So-called school reforms are a cancer

To the Editor:

There is a cancer growing in our community. A small group is attempting to destroy our public schools in the name of reform. Their ruse is to gather factions of dissatisfied citizens, many of whom have legitimate concerns, to form a voting block. These people have already managed to elect one board member who has shown an incredible lack of knowledge, courtesy and an intent to obstruct the administration.

In the past, few voted in board elections and little, if any, harm was done. We were fortunate to have an ample number of candidates whose primary purpose was to ensure that the Grosse Pointe/Harper Woods school district remained one of the best public school systems in the nation. Those days are over.

We are told that our school board, administrators and teachers are a group of morons hell-bent on destroying the educational opportunities of their own children.

What will happen to property values if unprincipled, intolerant, minority thinkers take control and Grosse Pointe becomes the laughing stock of the state? Attend a few board meetings and see what I'm talking about (they are their own worst enemy). To a significant extent, the community's reputation is dependent on the quality of its public schools. I implore the citizens of the Grosse Pointe/Harper Woods school district to watch, listen and vote.

Am I paranoid? I hope so. Am I frightened? You bet. The stakes are high.

Cable re-build?

To the Editor:

John Nicholson's Feb. 17 letter raises the issue of whether Grosse Pointe Cable, which was 100 percent bought and paid for by Grosse Pointe/Harper Woods subscribers, is joining the telecommunications revolution, or is really being franchised for sale so the War Memorial can sell and cash out? If so, subscribers have to buy the $25 million-plus cable system a second time, for the new purchaser, Comcast.

Large and small cable companies will prosper if they are strategically located at point of sale with access to new product subscribers want and to pay for, including telephone/data transmission, and if debt burdens are reasonable.

Only eight U.S. cities in 1994 presently have experi-

The queen of the roost

It had all the earmarks of a made-for-television movie; however, the subject was old hat and not unique. That didn't water down the scene for these grandparents and logic was on sabbatical. It would be honest to say up front that her "other" grandparents are loving compassionate people who adore their grandchildren. Yet, when we had the changing of the guard and our allotted time with our granddaughter was up, the scene was all too reminiscent of the baby Jessica story.

In life's checks and balances it was quite a week and the highlight on the plus side of the ledger was the opportunity to split the caretaking duties of our 7-month-old granddaughter with her paternal grandparents. We snatched the perfect child from the arms of her parents as their plane touched down for a brief layover en route to a ski vacation. It was the first separation of parents and child and a few tears spilled silently as we waved goodbye at the gate.

It was a week of sheer pleasure. We have had "viewings" from various friends and family members who made appropriate remarks and raved about the perfect grandchild.

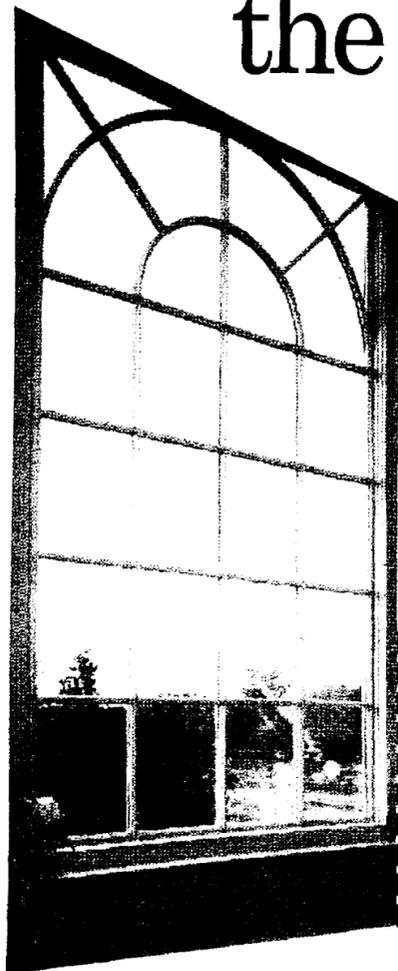

There were daily phone calls from reticent parents as we assured them no tears had been shed and laughter was her response to all questions. Our schedule adjusted to hers and she quickly became an undemanding queen of the roost.

And then it was time to say goodbye. The "other" grandparents were exemplary in their control and lack of demands on us for visitation rights, etc. Fair is fair and we had had her for five of her eight nights' stay; it was clearly their time to coo and fuss. Assorted baby equipment was loaded and transferred. Favorite bunny and blanket were packed and a smiling angel moved on to be worshipped by adoring family members from her daddy's side.

Isn't she lucky and aren't we fortunate to have all the grandparents and so many family members in the same town? Despite the emotional tugs, we know how good it is and we look forward to our next visit. Now, does anyone know the quickest way we can snatch a young lad from his parents in Vermont? We have some serious catching up to do and there will be no favorites in this camp.

Students get things cooking at South

By Kathleen Ryan
Staff Writer

If you want to know what's cooking at Grosse Pointe South high school, just stop by room 145 and ask John Shafer.

As head of the commercial foods program, Shafer serves up lunches and lessons daily for faculty and students.

About 70 students usually opt for Shafer's elective class in commercial foods, a class that has evolved from a home ec step-child to a first-rate restaurant operation.

"When I came to South, kids were making cookies and gingerbread houses," Shafer said. "They were nice projects, but had very little to do with what the commercial food business was all about."

"And if we were going to teach commercial foods, the best place to do that was in a restaurant-type setting."

So Shafer, a former restaurant owner, went to the board of education and was granted funds to outfit a professional kitchen which, while small, offers the commercial basics.

A biology major in college, Shafer initially left teaching to open his own restaurant in Lake Orion.

But after nine years and two restaurants, Shafer decided to return to teaching.

"I got back into teaching because of the comfort it provided," he said. "Running your own restaurant is extremely demanding and I wanted to take a couple of years off. I really only planned on teaching for two years. But after 15 years, I'm still here."

Alerted to the Grosse Pointe opening by the director of vocational education in Lansing, Shafer was hired the day after he applied.

And since the best way to teach restaurant management is to actually run a restaurant, that's what Shafer put in place.

Three days a week faculty and staff from South can purchase lunch in room 145, with menu selections ranging from salads to full entrees. About 50 lunches are served each day, at an average price of $3.50.

Shafer's students are responsible for preparing and serving the food, as well as collecting money, and cleaning up.

Sophomore Allison Stelma measures ingredients for the day's lesson, nachos, which will be the featured entree.

"I teach them all the basic skills for running a restaurant; the cooking, the serving, and the proper storing of food," he said.

"The first part of the year is really spent on the basics, but by the last quarter the kids are operating pretty much on their own."

"And by the last quarter we're producing some wonderful souffles and mousse."

Shafer and his students also cater school-related functions, such as the recent father-daughter dance for Pierce Middle School, with chicken cordon bleu as the entree. They are also responsible for catering a number of the social functions at South.

And while Shafer is delighted that some of his students actually pursue culinary schools and careers, he knows his class is equally important to those students who don't go any further.

"A number of my students have lost interest in traditional education, and some of them are very difficult to deal with," he said.

Teacher John Shafer with some of his students in the commercial foods classroom at South.

"But this is a hands-on class that can really capture their interest. And some of them figure that since they're here for this class, they may as well stay for the rest of their classes."

"This program gives kids who aren't successful students academically the chance to succeed."

"And let's be honest. Not every kid in this school goes to Harvard. Programs like this are very important for a number of our students."

And Shafer will be around to teach the skills students of today need.

"I want all our graduates to be productive, contributing citizens," Shafer said.

Movement

The wind sweeps and twirls the leaves of fall
A cascade of fall drifts to my head:
I can see the smells of leaves as they tumble and then the leaves are raked and fall is no more.

A twirling movement of white showers the ground.
I run and see the flower-like frost form on the ground, and then, suddenly, I see the frost melt away and I see birds fluttering through massive tree wonderlands.

All is aglow once more.
And it is silent no more.
Beautiful songs float in the air and I am happy.
All times of the year there is movement.

The Angry Sea

One day our ship, the Speeder, was sailing peacefully when all of a sudden a horrible storm broke out and threw our boat toward a bunch of rocks, and we all flew overboard into the angry sea.

I found myself clutching a big rock, desperately trying to pull myself on land. When I finally did, about 20 minutes later, I was so exhausted I fell asleep.

I awoke two or three hours later to the sound of my people, the Saganaws, yelling. I slowly rose to my feet and was surprised at what I saw. Our friends the Aleuts, who had come from the Aleutian Islands, were standing there telling us to come with them on their boat to the headland. We agreed and started to pack.

A little later, we were aboard their ship when I heard a little, "wait." I thought it was my younger brother. Quickly I dove into the sea, not realizing I had imagined hearing the "wait."

When I swam to the shoreline, I reached up to the big rock and pulled myself on to the shore. Then I realized that my brother Stevie was far away, not on the island. I was all alone except for my dog Lightning.

Immediately Lightning and I started looking for abalones. After we gathered up a fair amount we walked one whole league until we reached our destination, a nice warm cave. We walked down to the ocean and gathered up some kelp for bedding and warmth.

As we walked back to our cave, I was already fearing wild animals, and wondering what I would do to entertain myself. I need not have worried about clothing, since I had enough clothes to sink a ship.

We finally reached the cave and spread the kelp throughout the cave. "There," I thought, "that should do it for shelter." But I needed to make some weapons. I thought about the weapons as Lightning and I drifted to sleep.

I awoke the next morning, and realized that three weeks had already passed and I wondered if the ship would ever come back for me. I took out some abalones and ate them while in my mind I was thinking that for protection I needed to make some weapons.

When the sun rose, Lightning and I started looking for a sharp piece of bark. An hour later, I found the perfect piece. Then I found a string and a curved piece of wood. I worked on it for a while and made a perfect bow and arrow.

For the next four weeks I entertained myself by playing with my dog and the dolphins.

One warm sunny morning I awoke to the sound of a ship's horn and I stood up. It was the Aleuts, my friends. They had come for me, and I was happy to be with my tribe again.

The Snake That Liked to Wrap Around

Once upon a time there was a mom and baby snake that loved each other dearly. One day baby snake was captured and an evil sorcerer had him. The mom snake looked all over the place. Finally she received a note. It said...Dear Miss Snake, I have your baby in my kingdom. Come and get him if you dare. Signed, Sorcerer.

Well, mother knew she had to save her. She slithered up to the kingdom and she found her baby there. And they all lived happily ever after. The end.

South students win regional art awards

Grosse Pointe South High School art students won 101 awards at the annual South-eastern Michigan Regional Scholastic Art Awards competition. The works are currently being displayed at the Summit Place Mall in Waterford Township.

Several South students were also cited for outstanding achievement.

In addition to two first place awards and one second place, junior Charles Bethell won the Rovin Ceramics award; senior Kristine Mueller won the "best depiction of food" award sponsored by Ruby Tuesday restaurants; and John Jodzio won the Century Camera award for outstanding photography.

South students who produced portfolios that will be sent to the national competition in New York include Kelly Breslin, Andraea Degnone, Tanya Henze, John Jodzio, Peter Mertz and Emily Shapiro.

In all, South students won 36 gold keys, 27 silver keys, 30 certificates of merit and eight special awards.

South students honored are: Andraea Degnone, gold key; Matt Lariscy, certificate of merit-Communication Arts and Graphic Design; Kelly Breslin, Matthew Baka, Charles Bethell (2) and Erin Patrick, gold keys; Charles Bethell and James Hill, silver keys; Kelly Breslin (2), certificate of merit-Ceramics; Paul Dykstra, Sara Dykstra, Emilia Kwiatkowski (2), gold keys; Ben Butler, silver key; Paul Dykstra and Sara Dykstra, certificates of merit-Junior Division Drawing; Terrence Campagna, Andraea Degnone (3), John Jodzio, Peter Mertz(3), Kristine Mueller, Emily Shapiro (3), Mary Sullivan, gold keys; Terrence Campagna, Andraea Degnone, silver keys; Marcia Camero, Jennifer Chopp, Erica Cordier, Alex Fedirko, Tanya Henze (2), John Jodzio (3), Nicole Macdonald, Kristine Mueller, Mary Sullivan, Ann Thomas, certificates of merit-Drawing; Peter Mertz and Emily Shapiro, silver keys; Tanya Henze (2), Peter Mertz, Kristine Mueller (3), certificates of merit-Painting; Kelly Breslin (4), Sara Callanan, Kelly Horri-gan (2), John Jodzio, Molly O'Meara, Nate Smith, Kimberly Wyllie, gold keys; Kelly Breslin, Sara Callanan, Aubrey Elich, John Jodzio, Cecillia Root, Tania Seeger, Nate Smith (4), Kimberly Wyllie, silver keys; Sara Callanan, Jennifer Kuester, Molly O'Meara, Kris Ozar, certificates of merit-Photography; Vanessa Terrell, gold key; Katherine Gowman, silver key-Textile and Fiber.

mental two-way systems, two or three may ultimately be feasible, and CD-ROM, not cable, may be the intermediate interactive step. But cable will multiply again over the next 15 years.

There is no question G.P. Cable's channel/pay-per-view/quality/capacity should be expanded. G.P. Cable was state of the art in 1980, but not by 1982. Immediate installation of digital compression would cost G.P. Cable hundreds of thousands of dollars for up to 350 channels. That's what TCI (formerly Bell Atlantic) is doing, with 40 percent of the cable market — not spending millions of dollars for soon-to-be-obsolete 80 optic channels, as G.P. Cable would like to do.

Only those who want to pay for more channels need buy 300-channel converters and pay monthly programming charges. You watch one channel at a time. Channel capacity is not programming availability.

In the next four years, off-the-shelf telephone/data/cable/optic-fiber systems will incorporate telephone revenue streams to accompany the millions of dollars in optic fiber costs in the system re-build. Retrofitting optic fiber installed now may cost as much as an additional original installation.

Multiple $6 million-plus installations are paid for by our residents/subscribers. Why is it "critically important" to borrow lots of money "as soon as possible?"

The subscribers have to pay those millions back, plus millions of interest. It took G.P. Cable 12 years to pay off the first $9 million "build."

Congress, FCC and subscribers say they are entitled to bargain (not higher) rates (and they are correct that G.P. Cable debt is paid off by community "sweat equity.")

Telephone/cable systems produce six times the $6 million of G.P. Cable revenue — about $30 million-plus in this community — and MCI, for one, has been extraordinarily well-publicized as looking for local cable joint ventures to provide a local system telephone "switch," which could be exclusive or non-exclusive with cost benefits to subscribers. All the other long distance telcos (with about 12 percent profit margins) have the same need. The War Memorial has precluded that telecommunications revolution. Note that Michigan municipal law prohibits the cities from investing sale proceeds, which must be spent annually through city budgets.

The 1994 G.P./Harper Woods Futuring Report articulates long-run financial support for community revitalization, and some control of telecommunications, for this to be a 2020 A.D. world-class community.

Competition will shrink G.P. Cable's 50 percent profit margins. Consider Wal-Mart thus magnified its revenue streams and with telephone, G.P. Cable will too.

Everyone agrees "the survival of G.P. Cable is at stake," but the community/city councils need to decide if the sale of G.P. Cable should end that survival now? Or should the War Memorial's desire to get out of cable management be respected and city councils appoint cable officers and trustees of local equity shares?

It is not yet time to write the G.P. Cable obituary: Call your city council representative.

Park Pharmacy
closing lamented

To the Editor:

It was disheartening to read the report (March 3) of the closing of Park Pharmacy. This is a blow to all of us in the area who have traded at Park Pharmacy over the years.

It is obvious that one of the main reasons for the closure was the decision to locate the traffic island turn between two local businesses rather than where it belonged, at Nottingham and Jefferson. This decision not only spelled the demise of Park Pharmacy but also the inconvenience of all the people who live on Nottingham south of Jefferson and everyone living east of Nottingham who wanted to trade at Park Pharmacy.

All of this inconvenience to serve two business establishments? One cannot help but wonder if money and/or political favors were exchanged and who was involved. Citizens lose again to monied and politically influential special interest groups and the politicians who curry them for economic reasons.

Dismayed over Lakepointe
Olds demolition

To the Editor:

On behalf of the board of directors of the Detroit Area Art Deco Society, I wish to express publicly our dismay regarding the demolition of the Lakepointe Olds building.

One of the few structures in the Pointes to have been designed by Albert Kahn, the former Packard dealership was a testimony to the grand era of the automotive industry. It was precisely that industry that made Grosse Pointe nationally known.

We deplore that a solution through more appropriate zoning could not be found; it deprives the community of its foundations and a sense of continuity for future generations.

We note that two of the most significant buildings of the Art Deco period in the Grosse Pointes were the Packard Olds building and the Esquire Theater. How many are left standing? None. All witnesses to decades of history within the community that have been erased.

Kim Zuccarini
Co-President D.A.A.D.S.
Stupidest mistake ever

To the Editor:

You must be aware that during the Gulf War every able bodied man in Iraq was in the militia and under arms. These are men, when given the opportunity, fired at our troops. They were, and continue to be, people who hate Americans. What then, is a valid reason to bring these people and their families to the United States? Don't we have enough problems already?

I cannot believe our government has made such a stupid and irrational decision. It has to be high on the list of the dumbest things our government has ever done.

Those responsible for this really stupid proposal ought to be promptly removed from any position of authority. Then an apology should be made to all the American servicemen who risked their lives and in particular to the families who lost sons and fathers.

Keep U.S. out of Bosnia

To the Editor:

Warrior Bill supports NATO in its decision to bomb Bosnian Serbs. In this, we give American policy decision to the nightly news, and Boutros-Boutros Gahli, who master minded the Somali adventurer Bill, there is more American killing and suffering each day in urban America than a month in the Balkans. Perhaps you have missed it, but we have far more national interest in solving these problems first. Perhaps Boutros could call in air strikes against the bad guys in New York, Washington, Detroit, Chicago, and Los Angeles.

We know politicians make marvelous military leaders, or did this escape you in England during the Vietnamese War? Be certain when you order the carrier planes in that the pilots are aware of their commander in chief's stand on other wars:

"Because of my opposition to the draft and the war, I am in great sympathy for those who are not willing to fight, kill, and maybe die for their country."

Ask the pilots if they want to risk their lives in a religious war that is centuries old. If so, they can go solve the problems in Northern Ireland. There are lots of places in the world to go, and fight, and die, that do nothing for this blessed land.

Good business

To the Editor:

When Diogenes went in search of an honest person, he should have been as fortunate as my husband and I were.

The manager, Penny Blum, of Harvey's Complete Traveler, was totally honest with us this January after we purchased luggage at Harvey's. The two bags which we bought at regular price went on sale several days after we left the store — and left town. Since we live in Port Austin — 125 miles from Grosse Pointe — we would never have known about either the promotion or the sale unless Ms. Blum had so kindly informed us and refunded the difference between what we paid and the adjusted sale price. We surely will go back to such a reputable business when we add to our luggage.

Albeit imperfect, Proposal A is way to go in school financial crisis

After all I have read and heard about the state's attempt to reform public education financing, I am certain about only one thing: No rational person could have possibly designed such a complex morass of legislation.

But, like it or not, on March 15 we must decide whether to vote for a ballot proposal that, among other things, raises the sales tax or vote against the ballot proposal in favor of a statutory or backup plan that, among other things, hits us with an income tax increase. The status quo, regrettably for some, is no option.

I do not pretend to understand every nuance and innuendo of the two proposals. Nor do I agree with much of what I do understand in either proposal. But based on what I believe are the most salient points of the two alternatives, and given that funding for schools is equivalent under both alternatives, a vote "yes" on Proposal A may be in our best interests in this community.

Most of the public comment seems to have focused on the sales/income tax debate. Although there may be good reasons to prefer the ballot plan's sales tax over the back-up plan's income tax hike (e.g., people who do not pay income taxes, like tourists or drug dealers, cannot avoid paying sales taxes), I believe that the ballot plan's property tax advantage may be a more compelling reason to prefer that plan.

School property taxes in the Grosse Pointes would be at least 30 percent less than if the statutory plan goes into effect. School taxes drop from their current level of 30.23 mills (excluding debt) to 13.7 mills (including a voter-approved "hold harmless" tax of 7.7 mills) under the ballot plan, but only to 19.1 mills (including a "hold harmless" tax of 7.1 mills) if the ballot proposal fails.

Moreover, any of you who own property in addition to your home should also be aware that such property may be subject to a higher tax if the ballot proposal does not pass (e.g., nonhomestead property in the Grosse Pointes would be taxed at 31.1 mills under the statutory plan).

From Wayne County

Andrew C. Richner
District 1 commissioner

Proponents of the statutory plan argue that the assessment caps included in the ballot proposal would limit revenue growth. That may be true, particularly if inflation heats up, but at least from my perspective as a Wayne County official, assessment caps are not all bad. I shudder to think what our county tax burden would be without the Headlee Amendment caps on tax increases.

Wayne County has always grabbed the maximum amount permitted by Headlee. Unfortunately, Headlee is an imperfect cap. We on the east side have seen property values appreciate much faster than the county on average, leaving us with a much greater share of the county's tax burden. The ballot proposal, fortunately, would remedy this defect and more effectively rein in growth in county government by imposing caps on individual property assessments.

Also, some income tax proponents have argued that taxpayers may be better off with an income tax increase because income taxes can be deducted on federal tax returns while sales taxes cannot. But you can't look at the deductibility issue in a vacuum and say that you're better off with an income tax that is deductible. You can only determine that you are better off with the income tax increase if you look at all the relevant tax changes under both the statutory and ballot plans. If you are a homeowner and earning income, you will likely be better off under the ballot plan than under the statutory plan, despite deductibility.

If the ability to deduct state income taxes from our income taxed by the federal government were such a great thing, why shouldn't we raise our state income tax to 100 percent of our income? Then we wouldn't have anything for the federal government to tax. Of course, we also wouldn't have money left to pay for things that some of us consider somewhat important in life, such as food and shelter. I trust you see my point.

One last thing to clear up — thanks to the legislation recently passed, the real estate transfer tax would be 0.75 percent under both plans.

Yes, there are many other personal factors to consider (e.g., are you a smoker?). But, based on the ballot proposal's principle of property tax relief, and goal of encouraging business and job growth, I believe that it may be the better (albeit imperfect) choice for our community.

Woods bans razor wire, junked cars

By Jim Stickford
Staff Writer

By banning the use of razor wire and prohibiting the extended parking of inoperable automobiles, the Grosse Pointe Woods City Council hopes it has taken steps that will protect the pleasant atmosphere of the city.

City attorney George Catlin explained to the council that current city ordinances prevent the use of barbed wire.

"There is currently no location in the Woods where razor wire is being used," Catlin said. "This action is meant to head off its use. Razor wire is being used to protect cars at a Cadillac dealership in Harper Woods. We in the Woods government feel it's not needed here."

The council unanimously voted to adopt the proposal.

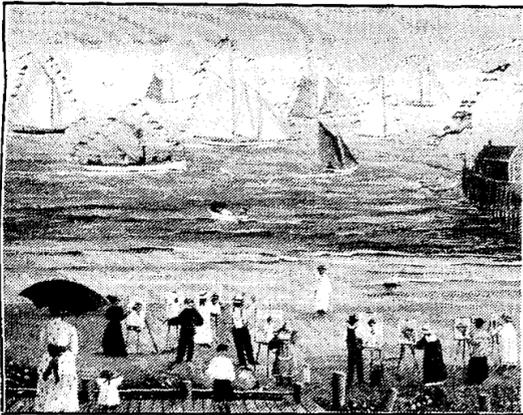

The council also voted to ban the long-term parking of "inoperable" motor vehicles in the driveways of Woods residents.

The proposed ordinance originally called for reducing the period of time a car or truck could stay parked from the current 90 days to 30 days. Several council members complained that even 30 days was too long, and suggested the period be changed to 14 days.

mously adopted the proposal with a 14-day limit. "This ordinance was introduced in response to a number of complaints the public safety department has received over the years," said city administrator Peter Thomas. "Neighbors have complained that broken-down cars or trucks have been left in driveways for weeks. We've had to tell them that the owners of the vehicles had 90 days to move them. That's just too long. Now they have 14 days."

The ordinance does not prevent vehicle owners from parking their cars or trucks in a garage for as long as they want to, Catlin told the council.

We have many painter's works at the Grosse Pointe Gallery.

NOTICE OF SPECIAL ELECTION To Be Held TUESDAY, MARCH 15, 1994

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN that a General Election will be held on Tuesday, March 15, 1994 from 7 o'clock in the forenoon until 8 o'clock in the afternoon, at which time qualified registered voters may vote for the following:

PROPOSAL A

A PROPOSAL TO INCREASE THE STATE SALES AND USE TAX RATES FROM 4% TO 6%, LIMIT ANNUAL INCREASES IN PROPERTY TAX ASSESSMENTS, EXEMPT SCHOOL OPERATING MILEAGES FROM UNIFORM TAXATION REQUIREMENT AND REQUIRE 3/4 VOTE OF LEGISLATURE TO EXCEED STATUTORILY ESTABLISHED SCHOOL OPERATING MILLAGE RATES

The proposed constitutional amendment would:

- 1) Limit annual assessment increase for each property parcel to 5% or inflation rate, whichever is less. When property is sold or transferred, adjust assessment to current value.
- 2) Increase the sales/use tax. Dedicate additional revenue to schools.
- 3) Exempt school operating mileages from uniform taxation requirement.
- 4) Require 3/4 vote of legislature to exceed school operating millage rates.
- 5) Activate laws raising additional school revenues through taxation including partial restoration of property tax.
- 6) Nullify alternative laws raising school revenues through taxation including an increase in income tax, personal tax exemption increase and partial restoration of property taxes.

Should this proposal be adopted?

5,000 Toyota workers build cars in horse country

It was a mostly low-tech kind of day March 1.

A day that featured a flight to northern Kentucky in a wee turbo-prop Piper with room for six, plus crew. A day spent in the Georgetown automotive plant where silent robots and hard-working people labored on lines to build jewel-like Toyota Camry sedans, coupes and wagons. A day in a 6-million-square-foot factory where halloon-tired bicycles and tricycles seemed to outnumber electric vehicles. A day in which a visit to the corporate child-care center revealed infants, toddlers and school-age kids getting along just fine without a television set at which to stare.

"You won't find too much cutting-edge technology here," said Toyota Motor Manufacturing public affairs vice president Jim Wiseman during the first plant tour of the day. Toyota doesn't want to experiment on these products, he said.

The reason for the quick-trip visit was chapter two, job one: a chalk-white 4-door Camry rolling off the end of the line in the newly expanded $800-million production facility. Total employment at Toyota Georgetown has reached 5,000 women and men, currently working two shifts. It may someday expand to 6,000, Toyota said.

The original production facility opened back in 1988. Camrys were the only product, and the one-millionth went out the door just a few months ago.

While only Camrys will ease off the new line for several months, come fall, production begins on Toyota's all-new Avalon sedan. In fact, Georgetown is the only place on Earth the Cressida replacement will be manufactured. At least for now.

The Lexington-area countryside is pretty, even on a gray March day. This is horse country, and both white and black fences run up and down the rolling land, outlining training areas for one of the Blue Grass State's most renowned products. The Toyota Georgetown facility looks much like other modern automotive plants. It hugs the ground and sprawls for acres. It does have the feel of other Japanese-transplant operations: quiet, clean, super-organized, efficient. Everyone has a purpose.

It also has an employee health club and a 24-hour child care facility on site with an astonishing current enrollment of 290 youngsters. It's perpetual motion inside — probably busier than most factory areas much of the time. Day care even is available for older children. Our guide said the local public school bus stops to pick kids up mornings and drop them off after school, if needed.

Back inside the plant, we learned that one-quarter of the staff is female, and 13 percent are minorities. Workers are not unionized, Wiseman said.

"This is not a screwdriver plant," he emphasized, referring to criticism that components are manufactured elsewhere and shipped to Georgetown only for final assembly. There actually is a huge area here where four-cylinder engines are built at a rate of 300,000 a year. Production of new V-6 engines for Camrys and Avalons begins this August in the company's $90-million power train plant expansion.

Stamping, robotic body welding and painting take place right here. Wiseman said the new 12-line assembly area just completed will feature a waterborne paint system. The original assembly area has a solvent-based system — a type which auto makers are having to adapt to meet new Environmental Protection Agency air and water standards.

"Anyone can shut down the line at any time," Wiseman said. Temporary delays are commonplace. Overhead charts signal where the problem is so supervisors can get there quickly. This kind of worker autonomy and responsibility isn't unique to Georgetown. It's a stitch-in-time philosophy that has helped the auto makers catch small problems before they became catastrophes — either in terms of long delays or in poor product quality.

Autos

By Jenny King

Compared with photos of auto plants from the past, with workers swarming around cars along the labor-intensive lines, people seemed few and far between in the Toyota facility. Maybe it was lunch break for many. Speaking of which... there were a couple of authentic Japanese selections in the plant cafeteria where we alighted for a quick noontime meal. A colleague reporting for Time magazine indulged in the thin vegetable soup from the Japanese foods, and then dexterously attacked some blackened mackerel with disposable chopsticks.

Along our pre-lunch tour we saw several pingpong tables and occasional basketball areas for workers. We were told that worker suggestions have resulted in many interesting innovations at the plant. One resulted in the lowering of the floor and addition of a moving seat from which an employee could work in a rear wheel well of a car without becoming a human pretzel. The innovator, Wiseman said, brought in a seat from his fishing boat and rigged up a more comfortable and efficient way of getting a job done.

Another interesting note is the informality in the plant. Navy-blue outfits are available to all employees, and even top management people like Wiseman and Alex Warren, TMM senior vice president, wear blue shirts with embroidered first-name badges on them.

Warren said the recent expansion doubles the plant's capacity to produce vehicles. It will be able to turn out 400,000 a year. Engine production could reach 500,000 — a lot of horsepower coming out of this horse country.

Toyota says its new six-passenger four-door Avalon will be the roomiest sedan ever offered by a Japanese nameplate in the United States. Designed and engineered with lots of red, white and blue influence, the all-new sedan will be built exclusively at Toyota's complex in Georgetown, Ky. Introduced at the Chicago Auto Show last month, Avalon will be built on a stretched Camry platform and will have a more powerful 192-hp version of Camry's 3.0-liter, all-aluminum-V-6. Toyota says. Its interior space is 9 cubic feet larger than Camry, and a full 19 cubic feet larger than the Cressida it replaces in the market. Avalon goes on sale in the fall.

MichCon lists Pointe taxes

Michigan Consolidated Gas Co. (MichCon) paid $22,610,337 in 1993 property taxes in Wayne County, including $363,850 in the Grosse Pointes. Statewide, MichCon paid $46 million in property taxes, benefiting 58 counties throughout the state.

"MichCon's tax payments represent a significant portion of the tax revenue in Wayne County, money that directly supports projects that improve the quality of life in this area," said Richard Zemmin, MichCon's vice president for public affairs. "In addition, more than half of this money directly supports education in Wayne County communities."

MichCon recently paid the winter portion of its real and personal property tax bill to counties, cities and townships in Michigan.

Every baby carries a bit of family history.

Mary Helen Quigg M.D., Geneticist, OB/GYN

When you have a baby, you pass more to your child than blue eyes or brown hair. The genes you give your baby are codes for every body structure and function. These genes can also cause an increased risk for birth defects, hereditary diseases, or the susceptibility for common medical problems like cancer or heart disease.

Fortunately, the genetic code is being unlocked which allows genetic counseling and prenatal testing for a growing number of disorders. Prenatal diagnosis of genetic conditions is available to help rule out possible problems or to better prepare you medically and emotionally for the birth of a special needs baby.

Because genetics is fast becoming an integral part of medicine, and especially obstetrics, Bon Secours Hospital welcomes reproductive geneticist and OB/GYN specialist, Mary Helen Quigg, M.D., to our healthcare staff.

Dr. Quigg's office is located in the Bon Secours Roseville Diagnostic Center where she conducts in-depth risk assessment with family medical histories, prepregnancy counseling, prenatal genetic counseling and screening tests.

Dr. Quigg also has a general OB/GYN practice with Eastside Gynecology and Obstetrics with offices located in the cities of Roseville and New Baltimore.

Woods sets SOC funds

By Jim Stickford
Staff Writer

Grosse Pointe Woods, one of six member cities that sponsor Services for Older Citizens (SOC), last week approved a budget of $27,900, $6,000 over 1993's budget, for SOC for 1994 at the regular council meeting.

The money comes from Wayne County's Community Block Grant Development (CBDG) program, which in turn comes from federal HUD funds, said assistant city administrator Jane Bais-DeSessa.

SOC uses the money to fund its home repair programs, case coordination programs and information services, said SOC executive director Ann Kraemer.

Home repair includes minor electrical and plumbing repairs, snow removal, lawn maintenance and window washing, said Bais-DeSessa. Woods citizens 60 and older are eligible. Those seeking home repair funds must meet HUD's income qualifications.

"SOC member cities include the five Pointes and Harper Woods," said Kraemer. "Each city has a different budget, and each city has different needs. The amount of money available varies from city to city. Harper Woods will vote next on their SOC budget."

SOC also send case coordinators to the homes of the "very frail and elderly," said Kraemer. The coordinators work out health, nutrition and other regimens with the residents to allow them to continue to live at home alone.

Sidewalks begin to look more attractive than the street as paces to walk.

You unplug the humidifier because it's starting to fight with your dehumidifier.

You stop seeing long-haired dogs wearing sweaters.

You go into Sander's on Kercheval and don't automatically order a hot fudge sundae and a cup of cocoa just to keep warm.

The first house fly shows up. It no longer matters that you've got two gloves but they're both for the same hand.

You have to turn your pool over at night to find a cool side.

One day, there are no more fishing shanties.

Little kids playing outside begin to resemble boys or girls instead of Oompa-loompas.

The cat meows to go OUT. You start wondering where your sun glasses are.

The first patch of true green appears at the base of that one special tree in the park by the lake.

The "Spring" banners unfurl from the street lights on The Hill.

You roll down your car window for the first time all year and realize your muffler is missing.

The Honda on the road in front of you disappears down a pothole.

That strange stuff on the kitchen floor turns out to be mud.

You leave the house and forget to take your scarf.

The Family Treat refreshment stand on Jefferson near Nine Mile opens up and sells the first 99-cent frozen custard of the season.

There's an ant in your dishwasher.

You can finally look for the white squirrel of Lothrop without risking snow blindness.

The last person on your block takes down the Christmas decorations.

The wind blows your hat off and it lands in a puddle of water.

You remember that you own a boat.

One morning, there's a really good fog.

You stop thinking about going to Florida, because there's nothing more beautiful than all the many signs of spring right here.

Regular columnist Nancy Parmenter will be back next week. To her, and to all of you, I must say it's been a pleasure filling in for her.

Often the elderly resist leaving their homes, and it's the job of case coordinators to allow those who wish to remain at home to do so when possible by helping arrange whatever aid that's available.

Those interested in learning more about the SOC and the services it provides should call 882-9600. The SOC is housed in the Barnes school in Grosse Pointe Woods.

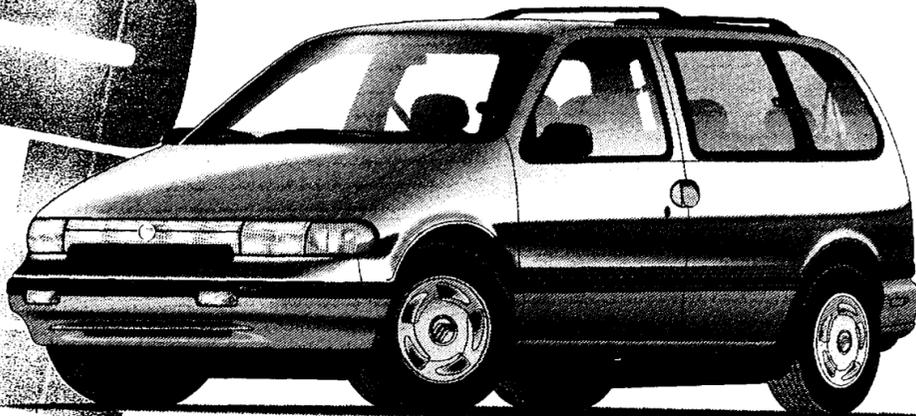

Scouting N. Zealand style

Scheiwe accompanied four Girl Scouts from the United States to the camp, which drew participants from England, Australia, the United States and Malaysia. Scheiwe's scouts taught country line dancing and made red, white and blue friendship bracelets for the camp participants.

Table talk: Local family's gift a Boone to White House

By Margie Reins Smith
Feature Editor

Until recently, a pair of intricately carved drop leaf cherry tables with delicately turned legs were stored in the attic of Grosse Pointe Park residents Karen and Philip Hea.

If tables could talk. . . these would be interesting conversationalists. They were owned by Daniel Boone's sister, Elizabeth.

Pat Nelson

The antique tables were fixtures in the living room of Karen Hea's grandmother, Noel H. Munro of Grosse Pointe Park, until her death on Feb. 7, 1993, at age 99.

The tables were probably crafted in the 1700s. They were identical, each with two extra swinging legs that could be adjusted to support two more leaves. The two tables and two leaves could be joined to form a large banquet-size table that would seat two dozen people.

"Daniel Boone's sister married into my side of the family," said former Grosse Pointe Woods resident Pat Nelson, Karen Hea's mother. "The tables were passed down from Elizabeth and her husband, William Grant, through my side of the family, eventually to my great-grandmother, grandmother, then mother."

Pat Nelson's grandmother, Mary Moore Hosea, was a former president of the DAR and the UDC (United Daughters of the Confederacy).

"My four daughters always knew that Daniel Boone was their seventh great-uncle," Nelson said. "I had to write notes to all their teachers — each one — I don't know how many times — saying yes, it's true. The girls all bragged about it at school."

Nelson's mother always wanted the White House to have the tables. After her death, Nelson said her attorney contacted the White House.

"At first they said no," she said. "But the next day the White House called back and expressed interest. There is a provision in my mother's will that stipulates the tables must be displayed."

Once the family realized the tables would be going to Washington, D.C., Karen Hea planned a birthday dinner for her mother, featuring the two family heirlooms. She set the tables for a birthday party with lace tablecloths, linen napkins, candles, good china and crystal — all in the attic. They celebrated Pat Nelson's birthday last September on Elizabeth Boone's tables.

Pat Nelson and her husband, Earl, and Karen Hea and her husband, Philip, wrapped the family heirlooms in bubble wrap, blankets and packing quilts. They rented a van.

The Heas and their children, Jeremy, 5, and Heather, 2, drove to Washington, D.C., in February to personally deliver a piece of American history to the White House.

"We were warmly welcomed," Karen Hea said. "The White House curator met us, thanked us, gave us all a tour of the White House and of Congress."

The tables, which are valued at about $8,000, were once separated.

"My grandmother gave one to Mother and one to Mother's sister," Pat Nelson said, "but my aunt gave hers back to my mother because she thought they shouldn't be separated. They can be used as one unit or two."

The Nelsons and the Heas plan to visit their family heirlooms, at the White House, often.

Two antique carved cherry tables, shown joined with a leaf in the center, were probably crafted in the 1700s. Once owned by Daniel Boone's sister, Elizabeth, the tables were passed down through a Grosse Pointe family for several generations. The tables were recently donated to the White House, where they will be on display.

HAVE A PLEASANT TRY AT PERFECTION BRIDGE BY WOODY BOYD

Never try to give good advice at the table if you're capable of continually setting bad examples.

Oswald Jacoby

The Neighborhood Club was the setting Feb. 24 for a gathering of east side bridge enthusiasts who were celebrating at play the third annual Win Malchie Memorial Tournament. The numbers participating at either party bridge or duplicate were significant recognition that Win will be remembered. For almost 50 years, her involvement in the east side game was laudable and no one ever made more friends at or away from the table.

I can remember a rare moment 35 years ago when the fabled Oswald Jacoby, the world's leading master point holder at that time, had come to Detroit for the fall Great Lakes Regional in quest of another McKinney Trophy, a prize he succeeded in winning four out of five years between '59 and '63. Ozzie, or Jake, as he was respectfully named by the press, his peers, friends and patrons robed Win in glory by inviting her to partner him in the mixed pair event.

I kibitzed a good part of their game and Win's play that day was impressive. Nervous she certainly was, but it was mind over matter and her performance with the legend almost gained them a victory.

Most in the field never got to game with this one, but the few who did usually failed. Win's brother, Bud Smith (a nationally renowned competitor himself), told me later that Ozzie complimented Win's technique with these words: "Best played hand of the tournament."

As you can see, her objective was extremely difficult, for the master had presented her with a formidable exercise in judgment and technique.

One of Jake's gifts was his uncanny talent at recognizing a hand's trick-taking potential even before the bidding was complete. This was principally due to his experience and lightning-fast mind when deciding partner's holding and the card possibilities that could produce a result. If he reasoned the odds favored such, he would put you there post haste. Even though this was sufficient ammunition for his brilliant play, few could match his flair. This often resulted in failure for the burden upon one less competent was unmanageable.

A word about Ozzie's two club cue bid: It said, "Partner, even though I have passed I have a very good hand, and if you have any kind of a decent overcall, we belong in game."

Win naturally accepted Jake's invitation. When she saw the dummy she showed no expression, but was horror-stricken. There was a spade, probably a trump unless they broke evenly, two diamonds and a club loser. That was bleak. Now what could she do about it? Jake knew his partner had a struggle at hand and as was his habit, he excused himself from the table and with the opponents' permission asked an onlooker to turn dummy's cards. Kibitzers rushed to accept such an honor.

If quick to play without counting, the wrong card at trick one doomed the contract promptly. There were two spades and probably five heart winners. Coupled with a club and a diamond equaled only nine. Certainly a tenth might be found in trumps if lucky, which also left clubs for a potential of one more. At that moment she was nearly inclined to concede. Then she grasped the true value of her club nine.

She played low from dummy on the lead. Her club nine, which east realized she held, forced his jack. This left dummy with the club king, queen, ten for a ruffing finesse against east, but how could Win get there twice and still pull trumps without a loss. She won east diamond king switch at trick two and played her heart ace with some satisfaction when east's jack fell with a crash. If east was three to the queen-jack, there was no hope; but if two or one she could succeed. But it was a guess.

Four out cards in a suit break two/two only 41 percent of the time, so at trick four when she played a trump low to dummy's king-nine and west played the five, she inserted the nine successfully as four missing break three-one 50 percent of the time. At five, the heart king dislodging west's queen. Next dummy's club king; east played his known ace which was ruffed. At seven, a spade to dummy's king; and the club queen-ten fulfilled Win's endeavor with an extra. In all there were two spades, six hearts, a diamond and two clubs. Those going down (and there were many) mis-guessed trumps and at trick one played dummy club king which limited that suit's winners to one.

In all, there were 54 tables in play for this year's tournament and three very good pairs won first prizes. Afternoon E/W Penny Mikesell, Betsy Hester; N/S Don Curtice, Elmer Winkelman. Evening Howell play, Ann and Robert Diehl.

Support group is for Alzheimer's patients' families

Alzheimer's disease is a progressive, irreversible neurological disorder affecting an estimated four million Americans. Most victims are over the age of 65; however, the disease can strike in the 40s and 50s. Symptoms of Alzheimer's disease include: short term memory loss, decline in the ability to perform routine tasks, disorientation, impaired judgment and personality changes. Alzheimer's disease is devastating for both victims and their families.

A support group for caregivers of Alzheimer's patients meets on the second and fourth Tuesday of each month at 1 p.m. in the club room of Henry Ford Continuing Care Center-Belmont. Call Kris Scarfone for more information at 881-9556.

RSVP seeks drivers

The Retired Senior Volunteer Program in Macomb County needs volunteer drivers.

"We are looking for adult drivers with valid driver's licenses and cars to give us at least one day a month," said Jan Geha, RSVP director.

Volunteers drive older or disabled adults to doctor's appointments, to shopping and medical treatments, banking and to other needed services.

For more information or to volunteer, call the RSVP office at 810-468-2616.

Support available for children dealing with problems

Groups offering support for children's (ages 7-13) self-esteem, female adolescence (ages 13-17) and grief for bereaved children (ages 7-13) are offered by the Eastwood/Oxford Network of Care, an affiliate of St. John Hospital and Medical Center.

A lecture series on chemical dependency is also scheduled. For dates, times and locations, call 445-2210.

The Community Conciliation Center is a non-profit community and neighborhood mediation center that serves Detroit's east side and the Grosse Pointes by providing a peaceful, neighborly way to resolve conflicts.

The training course will include mediation techniques and the development of listening and conciliation skills. After training, participants are expected to become volunteer mediators for the center.

For information, call 885-9040.

Use What You Have DECORATING SERVICE

Where we envision your belongings in a totally different way than you've been living with them. Here's how it works:

1. Recognize your home needs help.
2. Call for a consultation.
3. During the consultation we photograph your rooms and do a visual walk through with the client suggesting various possibilities.
4. Our team studies the photos, detailing a make over plan.
5. On the day of your choice our willow lane designs team arrives at 10 am. You and your family depart, plan a day of pure fun and folly, and return at 6 pm.
6. Open the door to a "welcoming home" in a way you never imagined. Each room has been revitalized.

But we don't just close the door and disappear. Unlike other visual coordinators or home makeover artist, willow lane designs is a full scale decorating service. Each ONE DAY HOME MAKE OVER can include suggestions to be worked on as your time and budget allow.

ARE YOU AT RISK FOR OSTEOPOROSIS?

Millions of women suffer from postmenopausal osteoporosis. This condition affects the structure of the bone causing it to weaken and making the bone more vulnerable to fracture. The more we know about this painful disease, the better we'll be able to assist those who suffer from it. Women are needed to participate in a study comparing a new investigational drug and estrogen for the prevention of osteoporosis.

CALL US IF YOU ARE:

- Postmenopausal, undergone a hysterectomy within 15 years, and healthy.
- Not taking estrogen, progestin, anabolic steroids, and calcitonin.

Each participant will receive a free screening bone density test. Those participants whose bone density is low and qualify for the study, will be invited to participate in the project.

Parking is provided. Study conducted by:

The Bone and Mineral Division of Henry Ford Hospital, Henry Ford Medical Center-Lakeside, and Cottage Hospital, Grosse Pointe Farms.

For more information, please call Sandra Spiteri at: (313) 876-7135.

The Pastor's Corner

By the Rev. Michael Foley
Grosse Pointe Memorial Church

Each week the pages of the Grosse Pointe News are filled with stories of young people who deserve recognition. They are our children, grandchildren, brothers and sisters. Somehow you can't help but feel a sense of pride as you read about what they have accomplished as star athletes, merit scholars and gifted musicians.

I would like to take this opportunity to tell you about a little boy whose name will never appear in the paper except for this column and last week's obituary page. His name is Mitchell Shirar. Baby Mitch, as his mom and dad called him, was born Dec. 13, 1993, and died Feb. 28, 1994.

While there is tremendous sadness surrounding his death and a profound sense of unfairness, that is not why I write about him. As his pastor, I want Grosse Pointe to know who he was, even though his 78 days did not allow him sufficient time to do and experience much of what we hope our children will know of this gift we call life.

Baby Mitch was the son of Mitch and Ingrid Shirar, and the brother of P.T. and Christopher Shirar. He was a strong boy. It was evident from the amount of formula he consumed each day that he was going to be a big boy. It was also evident from the way his nursery was decorated and the hand-knit sweaters and hats that he wore, that this baby was loved. His mom and dad had great dreams for Baby Mitch and for each one of their children.

Someone once said that life is not measured by the number of years we live but by the quality of each of our days. In the short span of 78 days, Baby Mitch left more of a mark on my life than some people who live 78 years. He reminded me that life is a gift. Life is precious. Life is short. Many of us waste time and energy complaining about the past or worrying about the future and missing out on the opportunities of today. Grateful to God for this gift, I want to be among those who wake up in the morning and give thanks to God for the day and what I've been given.

The other lesson that I learned is that the point of faith is not to be good or perfect (as if any of us could) or even religious. The point of faith is to learn to trust God and live with a certainty that "nothing can separate us from God's love in Jesus Christ." (Romans 8:39)

Such trust is not easily won. It takes a lot of living and dying with Christ to discover the faithfulness of God in all manner of circumstances. It is easy to understand why many people have a hard time when some of the more painful and bitter realities of life confront them — even break them.

Trusting God does not mean that our life will be easy or pain free, it means that as we rejoice on the mountain tops or grieve in the valleys, God will be with us and will give us strength to get through.

I am grateful to God for Mitchell Petersen Shirar. I pray that God will grant his family peace and bless them with the strength to go on and live each day with meaning and purpose.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Kirk Haggarty

Heitman-Haggarty

Sara Ann Heitman, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Augustus Stone of Grosse Pointe Farms, married Charles Kirk Haggarty, son of Mr. and Mrs. George Adams Haggarty of Grosse Pointe Farms, on Nov. 6, 1993, at Grosse Pointe United Church.

The Rev. Roy Hutcheon and Monsignor Gerald Martin officiated at the 5:30 p.m. ceremony, which was followed by a reception at the Country Club of Detroit.

The bride wore a gown of satin brocade with lace and pearl beading and a cathedral-length train. The bride's mother made the lace in the bride's headpiece, which was also decorated with satin roses and pearl leaves and held a bouquet of white lilies, roses, gardenias and trailing English ivy.

The matron of honor was the bride's sister, Elizabeth E. Schneider of Birmingham. The maid of honor was the bride's sister, Jodi H. Zevallos of St. Clair Shores.

Bridesmaids were Alyson M. Guest and Meghan C. Donnelly, both of Grosse Pointe; Sharon L. Duvall of Richmond, Ky.; and the groom's sisters, Laura E. Haggarty and Sarah E. Haggarty, both of Grosse Pointe Farms.

The flowergirls were Sara Jane Kaye of Harsens Island and Jessica H. Wardwell of Lansing.

Attendants wore floor-length hunter green suits with pearl buttons and carried bouquets of stargazer lilies and English ivy.

The groom's brother, George Adams Haggarty Jr., was the best man.

Groomsmen were John W. Birgbauer of Grosse Pointe Farms; Harry C. Lamberton III of Atlanta; Kurt L. Unverferth of Columbus, Ohio; Edmund M. Brady III of Grosse Pointe Shores; Josh M. Ferry of St. Clair Shores; Mark A. Heitman and Brian W. Heitman, both of Clinton Township; and Ambrose J. Fisher of Atherton, Calif.

The mother of the bride wore a hunter green and maroon tea-length suit.

The groom's mother wore a midnight blue brocade jacket and a tea-length chiffon skirt.

Scripture readers were Kurt J. Schneider and Eugene Gargaro.

The bride graduated from DePaul University with a bachelor of arts degree and is working on a master of arts degree in clinical psychology at the University of Detroit Mercy. She works at Grosse Pointe North High School.

The groom earned a bachelor's degree at Georgetown University and a master's degree in business administration from University of Detroit Mercy. He is an investment banker at Ronney & Co.

It's another weekend of art to benefit the CHD

By Ronald J. Bernas
Assistant Editor

For the second year in a row the Grosse Pointe Artist Association and several Grosse Pointe Park businesses have teamed up to put on a weekend of art to benefit the Children's Home of Detroit.

This year's benefit is March 18-20 and will be bigger and better than last year's.

"Last year was the first time we did this and it was just wonderful to see all the people it brought out," said Nancy Proffit, who chaired last year's event and is co-chairing this year's show with Dorothea Krieg. "More businesses wanted to get involved this year."

Like last year's event, a juried show on display at Gallerie 454 on Kercheval in Grosse Pointe Park is the centerpiece of the weekend's events. This year juror Michael Farrel, a professor of art at the University of Windsor, will choose some 200 pieces to be part of the show. Gallerie 454 owner Mark Doren has again donated his gallery floor space for the show.

The pieces were done and donated by members of the Grosse Pointe Artist Association and 50 percent of all sales go to the Children's Home of Detroit in Grosse Pointe Woods.

"Things will be a little different this year," Proffit said. "For one thing, we asked the artists to donate smaller, lower-ticket items so more people would be able to purchase art." Also, 50 percent of the purchase price is tax-deductible this year.

Last year $5,000 was raised for the CHD; the artist association has earmarked that money for the center's art programs. Founded in 1836 as an orphanage, the CHD is Michigan's oldest child care facility. Its main focus now is helping children with emotional problems.

"This is a wonderful event and we're very happy we were chosen to be the recipient again this year," said Deborah Liedel, director of public relations for the CHD.

The weekend begins at a preview party from 6 to 9 p.m. Friday, March 18, at Gallerie 454. Ticket prices range from $15 to $100 and last year 300 people attended the preview party. Musicians Laurie Strachan, Betty Peterson, Pamela Francis and Sylvain Bowman of the Grosse Pointe Symphony Orchestra have donated their time and talents to the evening and food is provided by Sparky Herbert's.

On Saturday and Sunday, the show is free to the public. Gallerie 454 is open from 10 a.m. to 9 p.m. Saturday for viewing of the show. Other Kercheval-in-the-Park businesses, including Cup a Cino, Sherwood's in the Park and Impact Art, are offering specials for art lovers.

The show continues Sunday from noon to 5 p.m. at the Gallerie with music provided by harpist Nadia Marks and a disc-player grand piano donated by Evola Music.

Also, Sparky Herbert's will offer a special brunch from noon to 3 p.m. and Sherwood's will offer special prices.

Other businesses which have donated their services are King's Florist, Third Coast Booksellers and Gibbs World Wines.

And while the main goal of the event is to benefit the children's home, there are other attractions, too.

"Last year we brought people from the other side of the Pointes down to see what we have to offer in the Park," Proffit said. "It's a great event all the way around."

The Grosse Pointe War Memorial Association is producing a new show for Channel 32, "Conversations with Collectors" hosted by Susan Hartz.

The show will air on Channel 32, Monday through Friday at 1:30 p.m. and Tuesday, Thursday and Saturday at 8 p.m.

The talk show will feature a different collector each week. They will bring interesting items from their collection to show and tell stories about.

"We are going to search out folks with unusual collections from all interests and eras," Hartz said.

The shows for March will feature collectors of vintage clothing, pencils and pocket lighters, sterling silver from around the world, Chinese antiques and antique fabric and lace.

Each week there will be a 5 minute segment at the end of the show called "Mary to the

Earnestine Nimmons

Soprano is featured in concert March 20

Soprano Earnestine Nimmons will be the featured soloist joining the Grosse Pointe Symphony Orchestra at 3 p.m. Sunday, March 20, at Parcels Middle School, on the corner of Mack and Vernier.

The program includes pieces by composers Verdi, Puccini, Leoncavallo, Wolf-Ferrari and Respighi.

Nimmons will join the symphony in performing music of Puccini heroines. Pieces from "Madame Butterfly," "Tosca" and others will be led by conductor Felix Resnick in the concert called "Al Italia."

She has performed in major roles for many orchestras and opera theaters, including the Detroit Symphony Orchestra and Michigan Opera Theater. She has received the Motor City Music Award for outstanding classical vocalist and is a former winner of the Metropolitan Opera regional auditions.

Noah business like show business

Music director Ted Cobden, Meg Sippy, Evie Cobden and Noah, played by John Paul White, rehearse for Benjamin Britten's church opera "Noye's Fludde" to be performed at Christ Church Grosse Pointe March 11-13. For tickets, call 885-4841.

Hilberry stages 'The Heidi Chronicles'

"The Heidi Chronicles" by Wendy Wasserstein, winner of seven major awards, including the Pulitzer Prize and the Tony Award, will open at the Hilberry Theater on Friday, March 11, and run in rotating repertory through April 28.

The play is a moving examination of the progress of a generation, from the socially and politically activist '60s to the success-oriented '80s — a time during which the status of American women underwent profound, and sometimes unsettling, change.

The play traces the coming of age of Heidi Holland, a successful art historian, as she tries to find her bearings in a rapidly changing world. Gradually distancing herself from her friends, she watches them move from the idealism and political radicalism of their college years, through militant feminism and, finally, back to the materialism which they sought to reject in the first place. Eventually Heidi comes to accept the fact that liberation can be achieved only if one is true to oneself.

pany members Roxanne Wellington and Christopher Newman play Heidi Holland and her friend Peter Patrone. Second-year company member Kerry McInerney plays Scoop Rosen-

WSU theaters announce seasons

Classics with a surprisingly modern ring, a 1990s Broadway hit and some of the best-loved plays in the history of the theater are featured in the 1994-95 Hilberry and Bonstelle seasons, announced Robert T. Hazzard, director of the Wayne State University Theatres.

One of the highlights of the Hilberry season is the kind of grand theatrical event that only the Hilberry can offer. Sophocles' master works, "Oedipus Tyrannos," "Oedipus at Kolonus" and "Antigone," have been combined in one spectacular evening of theater in a brilliant translation entitled "The Thebans," by Timberlake Wertenbaker, author of "Our Country's Good."

The Hilberry's Shakespearean offerings include one of the Bard's most popular plays, "Romeo and Juliet," and a play that explores the eternal question of the effect of power on character, "Measure for Measure." This will be the Hilberry premiere of "Measure for Measure," and also the Hilberry directing debut of the new director of the Wayne State University Theatres, Dr. James Thomas.

The Hilberry season also includes the winner of the New York Drama Critics Circle Award for Best Play in 1991, John Guare's "Six Degrees of Separation." This searing comedy was inspired in part by a widely reported incident in Manhattan in 1983, in which a young black man talked his way into wealthy white homes by pretending to be the son of Sidney Poitier, and was recently released as a feature film.

Rounding out the Hilberry season are George Bernard Shaw's timeless classic "Mrs. Warren's Profession"; one of the most popular American comedies ever written, "You Can't Take It With You" by Moss Hart and George S. Kaufman; and a double bill of comic one-acts, "Black Comedy" by Peter Shaffer and "Actor's Nightmare" by Christopher Durang.

The Bonstelle Theatre opens with the smash Broadway musical comedy "Bye Bye Birdie." "Our Town," Thornton Wilder's Pulitzer Prize-winning play that changed the course of the American theater, is next in the season, followed by "Wedding Band" by Alice Childress, a poignant drama that focuses on a black woman trying to find a sense of dignity in a world structured to dehumanize her. Though set in the early 1800s, the play's themes are still relevant today.

Carlo Goldoni's "The Servant of Two Masters" follows the traditional framework of the improvised commedia dell'arte, with its physical humor and stock comic characters. The favorite Agatha Christie "whodunit," "Ten Little Indians," completes the Bonstelle season.

For information on how to save up to 70 percent over single ticket prices by purchasing a season subscription to one or both of the theaters, call the Hilberry Theatre box office at (313) 577-2972.

Grosse Pointe Chamber Music performs

Grosse Pointe Chamber Music will present its monthly concert on Sunday, March 13, at 2:30 p.m. in the Crystal Ballroom of the Grosse Pointe War Memorial.

The program will feature four ensembles. The first will consist of Therese Edelstein, violin, John Miller, who will alternate between violin and viola, and Sylvain Bouwman, cello. They will perform Schubert's String Trio in B Flat Major and String Trio in G Major by Albrechtsberger. Deborah Frontczak, soprano, and Ruth Burczyk, piano, will be heard in songs by Satie, Weil, Schubert, Head and Dvorak. Piano duettists Mary Earle and Arlene Hendrie will present Peer Gynt Suite No. 1 by Grieg.

Concluding the program will be Helen Near, flute, with Martin Burwell, piano, in Introduction and Variations on "Trockne Blumen" by Schubert. Grosse Pointe Chamber Music is sponsored by the Grosse Pointe War Memorial Association. Light refreshments will follow the program. The public is invited. Admission at the door is $5.

Usher in spring with Irish lamb

St. Patrick, born near the Severn in Britain probably in 389, is the patron saint of Ireland. He is always associated with the shamrock because he was in the habit of using its three leaves to explain the trinity.

According to Pennsylvania Dutch folklore, "When you find a four-leafed clover on St. Patrick's Day, you'll be lucky."

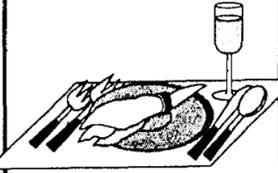

Irish-Americans in New York City, as well as other major cities, have made their annual Fifth Avenue parade on his feast day a major American event.

Among the many other American cities where St. Patrick's Day parades are staged are Chicago, Atlanta, Baton Rouge, Boston and Philadelphia, all with large Irish-American populations. Another is Savannah, Ga., which has one of the oldest annual St. Patrick's Day parades in the South, dating from 1812.

The mainstay of many Saint Patrick's Day dinners has been a hearty lamb stew or a boiled dinner of corned beef and cabbage.

American lamb is versatile and tender and can be used in stir-frys. Lamb is characteristically tender so cuts such as the arm chop or leg steaks make an ideal cut for slicing into thin strips for stir-frying.

The Lamb Asparagus Stir-fry is a treat for this special March holiday dinner and combines lean strips of lamb with tender asparagus in a quick and easy approach to cooking. It is certainly a '90s kind of recipe using traditional green spring ingredients.

This asparagus-lamb combination is a hit when it comes to nutrition. Both asparagus and lamb are sources of iron. Since American lamb is naturally low in sodium, use the reduced sodium broth and soy sauce now found on the grocer's shelf to keep your stir-frying dishes in line with dietary guidelines.

Don't forget to cut your lamb in even strips so it cooks evenly. Freezing always makes it easier to slice. The asparagus needs to be well-trimmed so that there are no tough stalks. If a knife does not cut the stalk easily, either peel the tough outside or discard. Try to use asparagus as soon after purchasing or cutting from the patch as it tends to toughen as it is stored.

Fresh mild green onions create a delightful background for the lamb but any onion can be substituted. Make sure that you do not overcook the lamb to keep it at its tender best and by keeping the other vegetables crisp tender, it will help retain the vitamins and minerals.

Lamb Asparagus Stir Fry

- 12 oz. boneless lean American lamb, leg or shoulder, cut in 1/8 inch strips
 - 1 T oil
 - 1 clove garlic, minced
 - 2 t cornstarch
 - 1/8 t ginger powder
 - 1 T soy sauce, reduced sodium
 - 1 cup chicken broth, reduced sodium
 - 4 cups asparagus, trimmed and cut diagonally into 3/4 inch pieces
 - 1 large onion (1 cup), cut into 1/8 inch strips
 - 1/2 cup carrots, thinly sliced
 - 1/2 cup slivered almonds or peanuts (optional)
- Mix cornstarch and ginger. Gradually add soy sauce and broth blending well. Set aside. Heat oil to medium-hot and add garlic and lamb strips to the skillet or wok. Stir-fry until the lamb is slightly pink. Remove the lamb from the skillet or wok. Add asparagus, onion, carrots and continue to stir-fry until crisp-tender; 3 to 5 minutes. Return lamb to the vegetable mixture. Stir in broth and continue cooking until the lamb vegetable mixture is glazed and heated thoroughly. Serve over rice or ramen noodles and top with nuts if desired. Serves four.

Angels on Horseback

Considered an Irish or British appetizer.

- 8 fresh oysters
- 4 thin slices of bacon
- 2 slices hot buttered toast (cut into four squares each)

Simmer the oysters in their own liquid over low heat for four minutes. Drain and wrap each oyster in half a slice of bacon. Secure bacon with toothpicks. Place under a hot broiler or grill over charcoal until bacon is crisp. Serve on a square of hot buttered toast. Serves four.

Boston's Shamrock Salad

Watercress bears a resemblance to the traditional Irish shamrock. Mixed with Boston lettuce and a few walnuts, it makes a perfect St. Paddy's Day salad.

- 4 t fresh lemon juice
- 2 T olive oil

Lamb and asparagus stir fry

- 1 bunch watercress, coarse stems discarded and the leaves well-washed and spun dry (about 4 cups)
 - 4 cups torn Boston lettuce, washed well and spun dry
 - 6 radishes, cut into julienne strips
 - 1/2 cup walnuts, toasted lightly and chopped
- In a large bowl whisk together the lemon juice and oil. Salt and pepper to taste. Add watercress, lettuce, radishes and walnuts. Toss and serve. Serves four.

Irish sense makes for fine memoirs

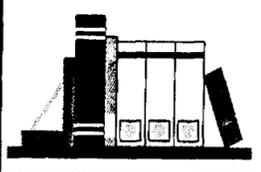

Excursions in the Real World: Memoirs
By William Trevor
Alfred E. Knopf, 201 pages, $23.

Whenever I come across an Irish writer, my Irish blood instantly begins to thrum through my veins, an invariable sign of eager anticipation.

Thanks to my maternal great-grandparents, who emigrated to the United States in the mid-19th century, I have a generous dollop of the Irish in my genes, and I am eternally grateful for this inheritance which has led me to appreciate Irish intellect as well as their own unique brand of humor. Long an admirer of George Bernard Shaw, Sean O'Faolain, Frank O'Connor and many other Anglo-Irish writers, I've recently added William Trevor to this distinguished list — just in time for Saint Patrick's Day.

Born in Cork in 1928, Trevor received his education in Ireland, and he now resides in Devon, England. As the author of 12 novels, eight volumes of short stories, and one play, his work has gathered a number of prestigious awards.

"Excursions in the Real World" is Trevor's finely crafted memoir, a collection of autobiographical essays which carries him from his earliest memories in County Cork, to his growing-up experiences and his numerous travels abroad.

Trevor remarks in his introduction: "Born Irish, I observe the world through Irish sensibilities, take for granted an Irish way of doing things, am marked by small idiosyncrasies of behavior and accent, and am reminded of familiarities of early environment when I'm separated from them."

In one of his early essays, Trevor displays his usual sensitivity toward people, particularly those possessing odd quirks of character. "The Bull" tells of the young Trevor in his Irish school who has encounters with the headmaster, nicknamed the Bull because of his propensity to roar disapproval whenever his small charges made errors in either behavior or schoolwork. In spite of his unfortunate manner, the Bull was eventually revealed to be really a mild-mannered sort who often retreated into his lonely study to escape classroom shenanigans.

Trevor pens a moving tribute: "Years later I was told about the death of the Bull, in his bed in the middle of the night. The boarders rallied round, looking after him in death as they had in life, surprised by the sense of deprivation they experienced. He wasn't one of the world's great headmasters; indeed, he was hardly a headmaster at all. He was a child among adults, even if the adults were sometimes no more than 8 years of age. But his naivete was a great deal more refreshing than those qualities of leadership and purpose more ordinarily associated with his profession. He did no harm. No one was frightened when he roared."

Trevor is also an acute observer of his times. Even though he attended the university in Dublin, he confesses: "I myself have remained a visitor in Dublin for a lifetime. Years of schooling there, of university, of being employed there and living there, have not altered that. It is said that once a city is a capital it is everybody's. Natives and visitors stake different claims and offer different perspectives: muddle makes cities what they are. This may be true, but in this present case it doesn't seem entirely so: Dublin belongs to Dubliners."

His love for England is revealed in many lyric passages, full of warmth and empathy.

"I walk in Dartmoor or Derbyshire," he writes. "I like the English seaside out of season, Budleigh Salterton and Sid-mouth and Lyme Regis. But best of all in England there's Gloucestershire to visit and to stroll through, while pheasants rise elegantly from its parklands and rivers and modestly make their way. No matter how remote or silent a wood may be there's always a road or a person within reach."

Trevor has an incisive grasp of the essential traits of that Alpine land, Switzerland: "Trapped by its mountains, Switzerland has long ago defeated a hostile geography and turned to its own advantage an unenviable position in an often unstable Europe. Cleverness has done it, and the recognition that a daunting landscape is good to look at, that a sunny meadow high up on an alp has a greater appeal than a field. There is no enigma, no contradiction. Sunshine sparkles on the lakes; and as Nature surely intended, the grim terrain becomes a single vast hotel, with full banking facilities, the easiest country in the world to dawdle in."

In "Eldorado," Trevor tells of the sad mass migration of the Irish to the golden land of opportunity, America, during the 1840s: "At that time there was a holocaust without fire: an airy hell on plains and hillsides before starvation made a welcome deathbed of ditches and of hearths. The summer of 1845, the summer of 1846, and the grim seasons that followed: the great hunger that came like a plague to Ireland stacked the odds against survival and went on doing so until 1849. And the harshest irony among many was that even though the hunger so efficiently gathered its human harvest, it left too many behind: the little farms, knocked sideways by misfortune, were unable to sustain the poor relations who temporarily huddled around them, those whose single other hope was to board the coffin ships to America."

"Excursions in the Real World" further establishes William Trevor as an undoubted writer of stature.

Lovely charcoal sketches by Lucy Willis illuminate the text throughout, successfully capturing the mood of each essay. This is a truly delightful book for all Emerald Isle lovers, both Irish and non-Irish.

Guest conductor Jerzy Semkow took the DSO on a rare excursion into baroque music last weekend and transported his audience to the tempo of times past.

Listening to the deliberately measured and serene "Air" from Bach's Suite No. Three was to experience a time long past when life moved more slowly and with equanimity. Semkow held the flow of the music to an elegantly casual pace that commanded relaxation and calm.

It provided, also, a powerful perspective on the frantic pace of life and of our frenetic artistic culture today.

The mood of spiritual calm continued with flutist Jean Pierre Rampal who soloed in Telemann's Suite in A minor for flute and orchestra. Here, the music was embellished by Rampal's beautifully facile embellishments in the baroque style — fast runs and trills that sparkled like diamonds and sang like birds. As fast and elaborate as they sometimes were, they still retained the unflurried atmosphere even while Rampal displayed his most remarkable agility and musicianship.

It proved to be one of the more sophisticated programming devices of the season as it set the listener up for a contrast that was equally impressive. Performing the Ballade for Flute and Orchestra by Martin, Rampal and Semkow used the same instrumentation to generate an entirely different sound texture and mood. There was an insistence and tension to this 20th century music that is absent from the baroque.

They made the transition effortlessly and illustrated dramatically how much emotion and stress has been brought into orchestral music in the 200 years since the era of the baroque. It was a revealing experience and extremely well carried out.

The fullest expression of passion in music came after intermission, although in using all the resources of a modern orchestra, it bore little comparison with the early music. Selected excerpts from Prokofiev's ballet music for "Romeo and Juliet" tells a classic love story in a thoroughly contemporary idiom. From the jarring conflict of the Montagues and Capulets and the lyrical tenderness of the lovers' theme, to the frenzied melee that ends in the deaths of Mercutio and Tybalt, Prokofiev's melodies and harmonies reflect all the harshness and directness of the 20th century.

They may also reflect some of the stress and brutality of the Stalin regime in the Soviet Union which Prokofiev had to endure in order to come home to live and work. Certainly the music expresses in a thoroughly modern style all the tenderness, tragedy and conflict of the story.

If anything, Semkow and the orchestra performed this work of their own age with even more conviction. The beauty of the lovers' segment evoked spontaneous applause at the brief pause between sections. And the drama of the death of Tybalt was tangible in the hall as the orchestra thundered the tragic final chords.

For three evenings starting tonight, and also on Sunday afternoon, Broadway music will be performed in pops format. The classical concerts resume on March 17 when music director

Love of the game drives GPSA commissioner

By Chuck Klonke
Sports Editor

Bill Muse never expected to do anything except watch his kids play soccer when he retired after 11 seasons as head coach at Princeton University. But after moving to the City of Grosse Pointe five years ago, he's been gradually getting back into the sport that has been such a big part of his life for more than 30 years.

After helping coach teams at various levels in the Grosse Pointe Soccer Association for the last five years, Muse is taking on a bigger responsibility this season as commissioner of the GPSA.

"Bill will oversee all aspects of soccer for the GPSA," said David Harris, the travel team director for the group. "He'll be in charge of everything that deals with the playing and development of soccer; in other words, the development of players and coaches."

Muse's resume will impress anyone who knows something about soccer.

He was an All-American at Springfield College and played professionally with the Washington Diplomats in the North American Soccer League. He played in many top amateur leagues and continues to participate in over-30 leagues in the Detroit area.

He holds coaching license No. 12 in the United States Soccer Federation and also has coaching licenses from the U.S. National staff and the Federation International Football Association (FIFA) and is licensed to coach in the Scottish, English and West German associations.

In addition to his duties at Princeton, Muse was the USSF National Youth coach for three years and was on the USSF National coaching staff for 12 years. He was a FIFA coach for the region that includes North and Central America and wrote the instructional book, "We Can Teach You to Play Soccer." He has also written several magazine articles and has been a contributor to several other instructional books on soccer.

"We just had to make use of the resources that Bill provides," Harris said. "We worked on him for a while before he agreed to become our commissioner."

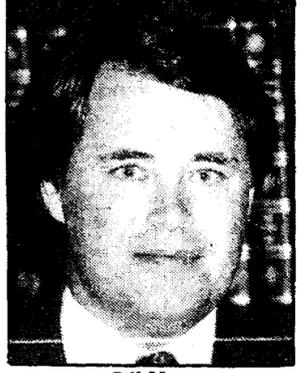

Mark Christensen, the former Grosse Pointe South coach who is now the head coach and player personnel director of the new Detroit Wheels soccer team, was enthused to hear about Muse's new role in the GPSA.

"He's top of the line," Christensen said. "He'll make the GPSA one of the best organizations in the state."

One of Muse's first tasks is to upgrade the level of coaching in the league by offering clinics for the volunteer coaches, who are so important to the success of the operation.

South gymnasts win league

By Chuck Klonke
Sports Editor

Grosse Pointe South's gymnastics team is right on schedule to become one of the best high school squads in the area.

"Our most talented girls are all freshmen and sophomores," said coach Al Trombley after the Lady Devils won the Great Lakes Conference championship and finished seventh in last week's state regional tournament at Rochester High School.

"They're not quite ready to take on the top guns in the state, but next year we could be in the top three in our region."

If that happens, South will earn a trip to the state meet as a team.

This year it has to settle for two individuals earning a berth in the final competition.

Sophomore Marla Cummings qualified with a fifth-place regional finish in all-around with 36.00 points. She won the parallel bars competition with a 9.4 score and was first in floor exercise with 9.5.

"Marla was disappointed with the 8.05 she got in the (balance) beam, but she'll be working to bring that score up in the state meet," Trombley said.

South's other state qualifier was sophomore Carey King, who was eighth in Division II vault.

"It was really nice to see Carey do so well because she just started taking up gymnastics in high school," Trombley said. "She qualified for the state with a handspring to a full turnaround. It was something she's been trying to do all year, but it wasn't until last week in practice that she did it. She hit it perfect in warmups Saturday and that gave her confidence a boost in the meet."

Shannon Keefe scored an 8.10 on the balance beam, while freshmen Jocelyn Lorenalger and Jamie Lowden each scored 8.10 in floor exercise. Seniors Janece Anderson and Hillary Andrei closed out their prep careers with good efforts in the regional. Anderson scored 7.9 on bars and Andrei had a 7.5 on bars and 7.75 on vault.

Sophomore Kip Hepner scored 30.60 in all-around.

Birmingham Seaholm was first in the team standings with 143.1 points to runner-up Bloomfield Hills Lahser's 138.95. Rochester was third.

Trombley had hoped to score 132 points in the regional, but the Lady Devils wound up with 129.95. He wasn't disappointed, however.

"The scoring is tougher at this level," he said. "I thought we did very well. And we're going to get better."

South dominated its league, winning the dual-meet title with a 6-0 record and setting a school record with a 130.85

Panthers 6, North Stars 4

Goals: Calvin Ford 2, Matt Elias 3, Calder Gage (Panthers); Michael Jensen, Steve Maxwell 3 (North Stars).

Assists: Elias 3, Alex Fields 2, Ford 3, Gage 3 (Panthers); Dan Martin, Brandon Baetens, Tom Campbell 3, Andrew Lapish, Meredith Horstkotte (North Stars).
Comments: The Panthers scored three unanswered goals in the second period and held on for the victory. The North Stars came close to tying the game in the final minutes for an empty-net goal sealed the win. John Jagger and Ian Milhouse turned in solid two-way efforts for the Panthers. Matthew Lambrecht played well in goal for the North Stars.

Kings 7, Red Wings 5

Goals: Paul Brady 2, Kyle McMurray, Jimmy Roney, Stephen Ignagni, Andrew Blake, Bryan Peterson (Kings); Blake Goebel 3, Jarrod Champine 2 (Red Wings).
Assists: Peterson 3, McMurray 2, Kyle Swanson, Ryan Bendzinski, Brady (Kings); Remy Fromm 2, Champine, E. Sobczak (Red Wings).

Kings 3, Blades 0

Goals: Bryan Peterson, Stephen Ignagni, Jason White (Kings).
Assists: Jimmy Roney, Kyle McMurray, Kyle Swanson, White (Kings).
Comments: The Kings kept the puck in the Blades' end of the ice for most of the second-round playoff game. Goalie Nate Minnick recorded the shutout with defensive help from Ted Roumell, Paul Brady and Matt Lampkin. Andrew Blake played a strong two-way game. Jim Bogan and Nick Hoban were standouts for the Blades.

MITE HOUSE

Flyers 4, Lakers 1

Goals: Michael Damman, Ricky Soper, Marty Schnurr, Allen Peck (Flyers); Steven Debol (Lakers).
Assists: Allen Peck, Trey Shield 3, Damman, Suzanne McGoey, Soper (Flyers); Brian Carleton, Jordan Wells (Lakers).
Comments: Shield, Alex Alvarez, Soper and Damman had strong games for the Flyers, while Debol, A.J. Staniszewski and J.T. Gage were standouts for the Lakers. Flyers' goalie Tony Alfonsi stopped a penalty shot in the third period.

Flyers 5, Habs 3

Goals: Marty Schnurr 3, Ricky Soper, Michael Mazzei (Flyers); John Simon, Matt Scarfone, Phoebe Zimmerman (Habs).

Assists: Schnurr, Michael Damman, Trey Shield, Allen Peck (Flyers); Paul Simon, Seve Jensen (Habs).
Comments: Zimmerman, Scarfone and Jensen had good games for the Habs, while Peck, Suzanne McGoey and Alex Hands were the Flyers' standouts.

Flyers 4, Lakers 2

Assists: Trey Shield 3, Marty Schnurr, Soper (Flyers); John Ozog 2, Faber, Aris Karabetsos (Lakers).
Comments: The Flyers broke a tie with two goals late in the third period of the first-round playoff game. Hynds and Hands each notched his first career goal. Schnurr, Kristina Alfonsi, Brian Cosio and Mazzei were outstanding for

Flames 2, Habs 1

Goals: Bobby Colombo 2 (Flames); Jesse Schroeder (Habs).
Assists: Jobby Boccaccio, Chris Calandro (Flames); George Murphy, John Simon (Habs).
Comments: Both teams played well in the playoff opener. Team defense was the key for the Flames, who were led by Tom Tavery, Joey Blahut, Boomer Brooks and Jimmy Solomon. The Habs' line of Phoebe Zimmerman, Heather Doughty and Matt Scarfone applied constant pressure on the Flames. Outstanding performances were turned in by Flames' goalie Jimmy LaLonde and Habs' netminder Patrick Schafer.

Highlights

The Neighborhood Club's Men's basketball playoffs are in full swing with three of the league's 22 teams still unbeaten.

Pointe Billiards II, Madame Z's and Metro Cars are the only undefeated squads.

Among the athletes playing in the adult league are former Detroit Piston Bob Quick and several former Grosse Pointe North and Grosse Pointe South players. Quick plays on the Asher's Market team, which is directed by player-manager Richard Asher. Asher has played in the league for more than 20 years.

Metro Cars boasts former University of Michigan players Dave Baxter and Steve Fishman.

Playoffs began in mid-February with nine teams still eligible for division championships. Three of the four teams in the second bracket are from the 30-and-over league.

Pointe Billiards II played its best game of the season in beating Pointe Billiards 83-61.

"I don't think we would have won the game without the excellent defense played by the entire team," said Sean Bruce, who led the winners with 34 points.

Boyd Kroeze led Pointe Billiards with 30 points.

Chris Flynn scored 18 points to lead Madame Z's to a 62-53 victory over Pepsi. Brian Koppin led Pepsi in scoring and rebounding.

"It was a real close game right to the end," said Pepsi player-coach Bill Maniaci. "We might meet up with Madame Z's in the playoffs again this season."

Last year, Madame Z's beat Pepsi in overtime in the playoffs.

Baxter scored 32 points in Metro Cars' 74-56 victory over MDDA in a 30-and-over game. Mark Rutledge scored 19 points in a losing cause.

The top teams are scheduled to play again on March 16 and 17 at 8 p.m. at Brownell Middle School, 260 Chalfonte, Grosse Pointe Farms. The games are open to the public with no admission charge.

Cummings dominated the individual performances, winning every event and leading the way with an all-around score of 36.50. She scored 9.6 in floor exercise, 9.4 on bars, 8.8 on vault and 8.7 on the balance beam.

"She's one of the best in the state right now and she still has two more years," Trombley said.

Hepner was fourth overall in the conference meet with a 31.30 that included an excellent 8.2 on the vault.

King was fifth in vault (8.1) and sixth in floor exercise (8.15); Anderson was fifth on bars (8.0); Lowden was sixth on bars (7.95), fifth on beam (7.75) and ninth in vault; Abby Burrows was seventh on bars (7.9); Andrei was third in vault (8.2) and ninth on bars (7.65); and Lorenger was sixth in vault (8.05) and 10th in floor exercise (8.05).

"I'm real happy with the way the season went," Trombley said. "Everything went right according to plan. Now we just have to do the little things to add two-tenths of a point to everybody's scores. Our weakest point is the beam and we'll work to improve that."

The Grosse Pointe Hawks Bantam AA hockey team will play in the state tournament this weekend at River Rouge.

The Hawks, who won the District 3 championship, open the tournament against the District 5 winner at 6:30 p.m. Friday, March 11. They also play Saturday at 11:30 a.m. against District 7 and on Saturday at 7 p.m. against the District 6 champion.

Semifinal and championship games will be played Sunday, March 13.

The River Rouge rink is located at 141 East Great Lakes. The phone number is 842-0670.

South spikers shade North in district thriller

By Chuck Klonke
Sports Editor

Grosse Pointe South's 1993-94 volleyball team took a huge step in establishing its own identity last weekend.

"I think they've stepped out of the shadows now," said Lady Devils' coach Cindy Sharpe after her team defeated Grosse Pointe North 14-16, 15-3, 15-11 in the championship match of the Class A district hosted by South.

"I still have to keep reminding them that they're good."

She'll continue to do that this week as the Lady Devils get ready to host the Class A regional. South will meet Detroit Cass Tech in its first match Saturday at 10 a.m. Roseville plays Detroit Central at 9 a.m. The championship match is slated for 11:30.

South lost three All-State performers — Stephanie Codens, Angela Drake and Sue Faremouth — from last year's team and it has taken a while for the remaining players to step into more important roles. The team has a different personality than last year's, but Sharpe has turned that into a positive.

"There are no superstars, so we don't have to count on one or two people," the coach said. "This team is the closest team I've ever coached. They're so tight they're able to run off emotional points. I think that closeness was one of the differences today."

Where there's a winner, there's also a loser, although it's difficult to put that label on North after its fine performance.

"I couldn't be prouder of my girls," said Lady Norsemen coach Leslie Harwood. "Every sub I put in did her job. All it came down to were four little errors at the end — and they weren't really errors. It was a great team effort. Give South credit. They worked hard and played well, too.

"Two great things happened with this team. They beat South for the first time in five years and they beat Regina for the first time. I'm going to remind the kids how well they played and tell them that everybody loses the last game except the team that wins the state title."

North and South took opposite routes to the district championship game. South breezed past Detroit Southeastern 15-1, 15-0, while North outlasted Regina 15-8, 4-15, 15-8.

"I was worried because my kids looked sleepy against Southeastern," Sharpe said. "I was hoping Regina would take North to three games. I think the intensity of that match helped pump up my team. I wouldn't have minded Regina winning because they're not as good defensively as North."

Harwood felt the draw might have been a factor in the outcome of the championship match.

"If we hadn't played three (games) against Regina, I think we would have beaten South," she said. "We were tired in that third game."

Harwood was puzzled by North's failure to win the second game of each match.

"I don't know if they subconsciously relax after winning the first game, or what it is," she said. "It's something I'll have to figure out by next year."

North battled back from 8-4 and 13-7 deficits in the first game with South, but the Lady Devils dominated the middle game with outstanding hitting by Kate Grenzke, Jeneane Farr and Amanda Defever.

Sharpe said she was concerned in the third game when North came back from an 8-4 deficit.

"They went ahead 11-10 and I could feel it slipping away from us but Chris Howson made some great defensive plays to help us counterattack and Grenzke had some big hits," she said.

After North went ahead on a kill by Erin Schneider, South scored the next four points to take a 14-11 lead, but it was far from over. There were eight consecutive sideouts before Jenna Nutter served the Lady Devils' final point.

"Jenna had a tough time in the first game with North and I almost subbed for her, but she collected herself and made some crucial passes in the second and third games," Sharpe said. "Michelle Dumler also did a great job of distributing the ball."

Kristen Loeher had an excellent day for North with 23 serving points and 10 aces in the two matches. She was also 68-for-70 setting with 25 assists.

Loeher had three consecutive ace serves in the final game against Regina to boost North's lead to 13-8.

Anne Maliszewski had seven points, two blocks, 13 passes and seven saves against the Saddlelites. Tricia Morrow had five points, two aces, seven hits, two kills, 23 passes and 19 saves, while Maureen Zolik collected six kills among 14 hits and had 11 saves and 23 passes. Schneider had 10 hits, five kills and four blocks; Erin Peters had seven hits and two kills; and Betsy Gebeck was 26-for-27 setting with four assists. Erin Peacock also did a good job setting.

In the South match, Morrow, Lynette Pone and Laura Kramer each served five points. That trio also combined for 24 saves, with Morrow collecting 16.

Zolik had seven kills in 14 hits and was 35-for-40 passing with 16 saves. Peters had five kills among 14 hits and was 31-for-31 setting with five assists, while Gebeck had 24 good sets and four assists.

Schneider was excellent up front with 10 hits, five kills and eight blocks. Adriane Salomon had 12 hits, two kills and four blocks.

North finished the season with a 17-9-4 record and the Lady Norsemen return all but co-captains Morrow and Maliszewski.

"We'll certainly miss those two, but everyone else returns and we'll be getting some good players off the JV team," Harwood said.

Jeneane Farr (9) and two Grosse Pointe South teammates go after the ball during the Lady Devils' thrilling district championship victory over a tough Grosse Pointe North squad. The victory sends South into the regional round of the state tournament where they'll meet Detroit Cass Tech at 10 a.m. Saturday on the Lady Devils' home court.

ULS takes district volleyball title

Victories over Detroit DePorres and Harper Woods gave University Liggett School's volleyball team its first Class C district championship last weekend.

The host Lady Knights swept DePorres 15-2, 15-6 in the first round, then beat Metro Conference rival Harper Woods 15-1, 15-7 in the title match.

ULS will play another Metro Conference foe in Saturday's regional at Goodrich when the Lady Knights face Clarenceville at 11 a.m. ULS takes a 22-4-4 record into the regional.

Earlier, ULS played Clarenceville in the Metro Conference tournament final and dropped a 12-15, 15-9, 15-11 decision to the Trojans.

The Lady Knights beat Cranbrook Kingswood 15-11, 15-8 in the semifinals after finisher first in pool play. In the pool action, ULS beat Lutheran East 15-7, 15-13; downed Lutheran Northwest 15-9, 17-15; and split with Lutheran North 5-15, 15-6.

"We're definitely a tournament team," said ULS coach Ann Belloli. "It was a great match against Clarenceville, but I think one of the more exciting moments for the team was defeating Lutheran Northwest, who we lost to earlier in the season."

ULS closed out the regular season in the Metro Conference with a 15-9, 10-15, 15-7 loss to Lutheran North.

The Lady Knights beat Lutheran East 15-11, 15-2 to improve their overall record to 15-2-3.

"The team had been playing somewhat sluggish and it showed in the first game against Lutheran East," said Belloli. "The girls got their act together for the second game, though."

Earlier, the Knights lost to a strong Clarenceville squad 15-3, 15-12.

"Clarenceville simply dominated the court," Belloli said. "Not that we played poorly, they were just the better team that night."

Belloli said that balance is one of the factors in ULS' success this season.

"We have 12 very talented young athletes and there isn't one standout. They're very equal overall," she said.

Muse

and they're doing the best job they can, but we want to help them do an even better job by teaching them more about the sport," Muse said.

"These people have big hearts and they're the backbone of the association. We want to give them a few helpful pointers so that they can enjoy soccer and coaching even more. If you haven't played the sport, it's difficult to demonstrate. You can't pick up these skills overnight."

Muse has clinics scheduled for April 13 and May 11 to teach the fundamentals of coaching youth soccer. The sessions are open to anyone in the area, not just coaches in the GPSA.

It was by accident that Muse got back into coaching soccer.

"I left the game 10 years ago and stayed away from it for five years to build another career. Then one day, my neighbor invited me to watch his son play," he said. "Eventually, I started helping coach the team. Then I took over a team of 16 and 17-year-olds and won three league championships. A lot of those kids were the top high school players in the area and some of them are playing in college. It's been very rewarding to see their success."

Muse would like to bring some of those former college and high school standouts back into the program as coaches, similar to what has been done with the GPSA officials.

"Somebody who's played the game at a higher level will be a welcome addition to our program," Muse said. "Cheryl Gawel, our head of referees, has done a good job of bringing young officials into our program."

All of Muse's decisions as commissioner of the GPSA will be made with one thing in mind.

"Everything we do will be done to help everyone associated with the GPSA to love and enjoy soccer," he said. "I still love to play the game. I'm in a 30-and-over league and I look forward to Sunday mornings when we play. And I plan to keep playing until I'm 60."

ULS wins hockey crown

That empty feeling is gone for the University Liggett School girls hockey team.

For years the Lady Knights have been the only girls squad in the state, but when Cranbrook Kingswood started a team this year, ULS finally had an opponent to play for the state title.

The two played last week at Joe Louis Arena and the Lady Knights emerged with a 7-2 victory as Jenny Slone and Shera Teitge each scored two goals.

"The girls were pumped for this game," said coach Joe Ricci. "They wanted to win and really drove to the net."

Karin Saldin, Kristin Wright and Becky Simpson also tallied for ULS. Maureen O'Brien scored both Cranbrook goals.

The Lady Knights' defense, led by Michele Kryszak, Sara Mitchell, Allison Ridder and Angie Campbell held Cranbrook to only 21 shots and goalie Abby Tompkins turned away 19 of them.

ULS finished with a 9-5-1 record.

Starr receives hockey honor

Jonathon Starr of Grosse Pointe Farms, a third-grader at St. Paul Elementary School, has been named Little Caesars Pizza Player of Tomorrow — an award given to young hockey players who demonstrate hard work and discipline on and off the ice.

He was honored last Sunday during the Red Wings' game with Buffalo.

Starr, 9, is in his first season as a goalie for the Grosse Pointe Jaguars Mite AA travel team. In 20 games he recorded a save percentage of 90, a 1.5 goals-against average and three shutouts.

Starr swims competitively during the summer, plays baseball and is an avid golfer.

ULS gets share of Metro title

By Chuck Klonke
Sports Editor

Chuck Wright didn't talk about Xs and Os when he addressed his University Liggett School basketball team during halftime of its game with Cranbrook last week.

"We just had the kids come into the locker room and lie down," Wright said after the Knights' 49-29 victory over the Cranes gave them a share of their first Metro Conference championship. "We talked more about the mental stuff — about how far we've come in the last year. We told them just to relax and play their game and enjoy themselves."

The victory gave ULS a 12-2 league record and tie for the championship with Lutheran East.

The game was tied 18-18 at halftime, but the second half belonged to ULS. The Knights outscored the Cranes 18-6 in the third quarter and held Cranbrook to only 11 points in the second half.

"We were very tight in the first half," Wright said. "We were more worried about winning the championship than playing good basketball."

Knights' 13 first-half turnovers.

Junior Joe Grant led ULS in scoring with 18 points, including a 10-for-11 performance from the free-throw line. Grant also had seven rebounds and five steals.

Vernon Pernel posted another double-double with 10 points and 14 rebounds.

ULS also received a strong effort from Brad Cassin.

"He guarded one of the big guys from Cranbrook that we were concerned about and did a good job," Wright said. "But all eight or nine guys who played did a great job, especially in the second half.

"Joe and Vernon have the most impressive numbers, but we wouldn't be where we are without our depth. The role players have made a big contribution to our success."

ULS played for the Metro Conference championship three times during the 1970s, but never won.

"This championship, even a piece of it, is truly incredible," Wright said. "We started the season 0-3 and were simply trying to improve every game. It's a tribute to this team's work ethic; perseverance and togetherness."

South struggles in league finale

By Chuck Klonke
Sports Editor

Back-to-back losses to Ford II and Utica wasn't the way Grosse Pointe South coach George Petrouleas wanted his team to prepare for the state high school basketball tournament.

"We played very uninspired basketball in those two games," Petrouleas said. "That isn't the way to prepare for the tournament. You want to show consistency and the improvement factor and we didn't."

Falling behind early by big margins has been the pattern for South in its recent skid that left the team with an 11-9 regular season record.

"In our last four games (three of them defeats) we've trailed by double digits in the

Knights swim past Cranbrook

University Liggett School took first and second place in the 200-yard freestyle and the 200 individual medley as the Knights beat Cranbrook 106-60 in a high school swimming meet.

Hank Ackerman and Ali Barsani finished 1-2 in the 200 freestyle, while Sarah Burnham and Becky D'Arcy grabbed the first two spots in the 200 IM.

Andrew Dempz, Liam Ryan, Ackerman and Barsani gave ULS a first in the 200 freestyle relay, while the 400 freestyle relay team of Betsy Belenky, John Turnbull, Dempz and Anne Magreta was also victorious.

Nia Hord, Prachel Tiwari, Zhen Zhu and Melanie Buhalis also swam well.

first half," Petrouleas said. "We've always picked up the defense in the second half, but we make things too difficult."

The Blue Devils jumped ahead 7-0 against Utica in the Macomb Area Conference White Division finale, but the Chieftains went on a 39-20 run for the rest of the first half and led by 12 points at the intermission.

Utica eventually led by 26 points in the third quarter and the game ended with the Chieftains ahead 72-55.

Nearly everything that could go wrong did for South.

"We shot 31 percent to their 57 percent, we didn't do a good job of protecting the ball, we had some defensive breakdowns and we were outbounded again," Petrouleas said.

The most encouraging performances came from Ben Harwood, who had six points and 10 rebounds, and Jake Howlett, who came off the bench to hit seven straight free throws.

Lee Rupert led the Blue Devils with 13 points and Jim Dailey added 11.

South made a strong comeback in its 46-43 loss to Ford but it wasn't quite enough.

"Disappointing" is the way Grosse Pointe North coach Dave Stavale described the end of the Norsemen's Macomb Area Conference Blue Division season.

But he isn't the least bit discouraged with the club that finished with a 5-15 record after losing last week's games with Clintondale (76-63) and Lakeview (50-33).

"The end of the season has been disappointing, but I still feel good about these kids," Stavale said. "They're all coming back next year and they'll be much better players for the experience they gained. Kids like Ryan Rouls, Dan Vormelker and Steve Champine and the others will have a lot of games under their belts when next season starts."

Third quarters have been disastrous for the Norsemen in recent games. Clintondale held a 35-32 halftime lead, but by the end of the third quarter the Dragons were up by 11 points.

It was the same story against Lakeview. North missed 10 of its first 11 shots in the game and trailed 12-2 after one quarter but the Norsemen cut the margin to 18-16 at halftime. Instead of continuing its surge in the second half, North was outscored 22-10 in the third quarter.

"We went into the fourth quarter with no confidence and no momentum," Stavale said. "We haven't been shooting well lately and the kids are pressing. They're not patient on offense. We're trying to get from point A to point B too fast. We're not holding screens long enough, we're trying to create shots out of context of our offense and we're not in the rhythm we were in when we were playing well a few weeks ago. The kids are frustrated and trying to play beyond their capabilities."

North's game against a much-improved Clintondale squad saw the Dragons shoot 70 percent from the field in the

Champine led North with 15 points, Mike Melhem and Vormelker had 13 apiece and Rich Winsininski added eight. Winsininski had six rebounds, one more than Vormelker.

The Norsemen, who had beaten Lakeview by 21 points in their first meeting of the year, were led by Melhem's 11 points against the Huskies.

101 PRAYERS

THANKS to St. Jude for favors received through Novena. W.M.

NOVENA TO ST. JUDE

O Holy St. Jude, Apostle and Martyr, great in virtue and rich in miracles, near kinsman of Jesus Christ, faithful intercessor of all who invoke: your special patronage in time of need, to you I have recourse from the depths of my heart and humbly beg to whom God has given such great power to come to my assistance. Help me in my present and urgent petition (here mention your request). In return I promise to make your name-known and cause you to be invoked. St. Jude pray for us and all who invoke your aid. Amen.

PRAYER TO ST. CLARE

Pray nine Hail Marys, once a day for nine days. On the 9th day, publish this Novena and 3 wishes will be granted. Even though you don't have faith, your prayers will be answered. M.M.

NOVENA TO ST. JUDE

May the Sacred Heart of Jesus be adored, glorified, loved and preserved throughout the world, now and forever. Oh, Sacred Heart of Jesus, pray for us. Worker of miracles, pray for us. St. Jude, helper of the hopeless, pray for us. Say this prayer 9 times a day. By the 8th day, your prayer will be answered. It has never been known to fail, never. Publication must be promised. Thanks, St. Jude for prayer answered. Special thanks to our Mother of Perpetual Help. J.K.

THANK YOU

St. Rita of Caras, blessed Mother of Mt. Carmel, St. Philomena, Holy Spirit, St. Jude, Holy face of Jesus for favors past, present and future. B.M.

March is an awakening to wonders of spring

March is known in the Native American calendar as the awakening moon, recognizing it as the month the first stirrings from winter dormancy of flowers, animals and trees occurs.

It won't be long before the buds will be appearing on the trees and it will be possible to bring in branches of lilac and forsythia for forcing indoors. We can hardly wait.

If you happen to have a cedar tree in your garden, you may have noticed that the squirrels are stripping bits of bark from it. This is the time of year when baby squirrels make their appearance and the parent squirrels prefer to line their nests with cedar bark in the early spring as a cushion for their little ones.

The bark remains in the nest all through the summer and is similar to the human use of cedar as a moth preventive. The squirrels may be smarter than we think in using an insect repellent to keep their homes clean.

Winter does not officially give way to spring until late March, but the early flowering witch hazels are already in bloom. The formal name for witch hazel is hamamelis. They are attractive hardy winter-flowering shrubs or small trees. The leaves fall in the autumn and late winter and in very early spring the flowers of varying shades of yellow appear.

Hazels grow wild in most of North America, China and Japan, with the oriental specimens being the most decorative. The name comes from Greek words meaning "together" and "fruit" because flowers and fruit often appear on the plants at the same time. The Japanese hazel, called japonica, was enormously popular in decorative motifs during the arts and crafts movement in the early years of this century, and became almost a trademark for some artists and designers of that time. The flowers are extremely fragrant, with yellow, twisted petals.

Many gardens in this area include witch hazels, which grow easily in this climate. They thrive in moist woodlands and in ordinary garden soil. They may be planted at any time of year and will bloom from March to October.

An ancient craft using witch hazel twigs or branches is dowsing, or water witching. This is a method of locating the presence of underground water. The dowser, or water witch, holds a wishbone-shaped forked branch of hazel straight out before him and walks up and down, back and forth, searching for a water source. When the dowser is over a place where there is underground water the hazel branch will turn downward in his hands, pointing toward the earth over the water no matter how hard he tries to hold it up.

Garden Shed

By Ellen Probert

This method of locating water was used by the early settlers in this country when they dug wells on their new homesteads in the wilderness.

Witch hazel bark is used to make the astringent lotion familiar in everyone's medicine cabinet. This is made from the bark of hamamelis virginiana, the least decorative of the many varieties, because this type contains more of the medicinal oil needed for witch hazel lotion.

The oldest living things on Earth are trees. The famed cedars of Lebanon are still as the Bible describes them. But the oldest of all are the bristlecone pines native to the American southwest, which have been dated back 5,000 years.

For centuries people have been fascinated by bonsai, the tiny trees and miniature landscapes which are considered to be a living art form and which were developed in the Orient many generations ago. These are the smallest trees in the world. On the other side of the coin, there are the largest trees, the giant sequoias and redwoods along the Pacific Coast of the United States and the baobabs of Africa.

All this brings Arbor Day to mind.

Because climate differs so much in such a huge area, the celebration of Arbor Day varies widely. In Alabama it's in the last week in February. In Hawaii, it's in November and in Nebraska it's on April 22.

But when you think about it, Arbor Day is any day you plant a tree. For more information about Arbor Day and how to observe it, write to the National Arbor Day Foundation, Arbor Lodge 100, Nebraska City, Neb. 68410.

Vinyl Concepts and Premier Cellars of St. Clair Shores and Bishop Gallagher High School in Harper Woods will be exhibitors at the 76th annual International Builders Home, Flower and Furniture Show, which opens Saturday, March 19, at Detroit's Cobo Conference-Exhibition Center.

Vinyl Concepts will display vinyl windows and doors and Premier Cellars will feature wine and wine-related products. Bishop Gallagher will hold a school fundraiser.

More than 400 exhibitors will showcase the latest technology, products and services for kitchens, baths, doors, windows, yards/gardens, remodeling, financing, arts and crafts, decorative accessories,

Save time, effort by composting

Attend a free walk-through seminar on the how and why of composting and pick up some lawn and garden hints presented by the St. Clair Shores Yardeners.

The Yardeners, a group comprising master composters, master gardeners, Earth Patrol members and members of the beautification commission, has planned two workshop presentations this spring, the first on Monday, March 14, and the second on Monday, April 11. Both will run from 7 to 9 p.m. at the Civic furniture, appliances, heating and cooling.

The Builders Show will be open through March 27 from 2 to 10 p.m. Monday through Friday; noon to 10 p.m. on Saturdays; and noon to 6 p.m. on Sundays.

Admission is $5.75 for adults; $3.50 for seniors and children 6 to 12; and free for children under 6. Family tickets for two adults and accompanying children are available at Farmer Jack/A&P for $8. Discount admission coupons were mailed to homeowners in their Detroit Edison bills. Free admission coupons for Monday, March 21, are available at all Builders Square stores.

For more information, call (810) 737-4478.

Arena, 20000 Stephens Road, St. Clair Shores.

The workshops will focus on the use of compostable materials in soil enrichment and will address the what, where, when, why and how of turning your kitchen and yard waste into the valuable mulch and soil amendment, compost.

For further information contact Joyce Janicki, 778-0443, or Jim Williams, 778-0885, between 6 and 9 p.m. or on weekends.

Back yard fruit pruning demo

Do you find that you have to give up a good portion of your berry harvest just because you can't get to them? Did those dwarf fruit trees get a little taller than you expected them to? If this sounds familiar to you, you would do well to observe the proper methods of pruning and maintaining tree fruit and berry plantings.

Plan now to attend the back yard fruit pruning demonstration on Saturday, March 26. Observe tree fruit pruning from 10 to 11:30 a.m.; from 12:30 to 2 p.m. raspberries and other small fruit will be the main focus. District horticulture agent Bob Tritten will present the demonstration in cooperation with the Macomb County Michigan State University Extension at Coon Creek Orchards, 78777 Coon Creek Road in Armada.

The cost is $10. Contact the extension office by calling 469-6440 to request a registration form on or before March 18. Call now; registration is limited to the first 60 people.
