

City home chosen for Designer's Show House

After withdrawing a request to have the 1996 Designer's Show House at a home on Bishop in Grosse Pointe Park because of neighbors' concerns, the Junior League of Detroit has selected a home at 340 Lakeland in the City of Grosse Pointe.

The 11th biennial Designer's Show House, co-sponsored by the Ford Motor Co. and Nordstrom, takes place from May 4-25.

More than 25 of metro Detroit's top design firms will take part in transforming rooms of the 9,400-square-foot home, built in 1931, for public showing.

The public is invited to view the Show House, before the designers begin their work, on Sneak-A-Peak Weekend, Feb. 10-11. The house will be open from noon to 4 p.m. both days.

Tickets are 99 cents a person and are available at the door.

Tickets for the May showing are available for $12 in advance and $15 at the door. Advanced tickets for groups of 25 persons or more are available for $10 each. Advanced tickets are available from the Junior League of Detroit by calling (313) 881-0040.

The Junior League of Detroit is a nonprofit, volunteer organization of women committed to enhancing the metropolitan Detroit community through effective action, fundraising and leadership. The Designer's Show House is their primary fundraiser. The past 10 show houses (1976-94) have raised more than $2 million, which has been circulated back into the Detroit community.

Superintendent to study North lights, make recommendation

By Shirley A. McShane
Staff Writer

After almost two years of tossing the ball around the field, opponents and proponents of night football at Grosse Pointe North have decided they need a new game plan.

Accordingly, the Grosse Pointe school board on Jan. 3 directed superintendent Ed Shine to develop a new approach and report to the board in February or March.

The renewed investigation into the feasibility of installing light towers on North's football field marks the third time in nearly two years that the two sides have attempted to reach a compromise.

"The residents support this initiative," said David Maurer, Woods resident and one of two attorneys representing, free-of-charge, about 250 residents opposed to the current plan to install lights at North. "This is the first time the school board has said 'Let's look at this and see if we can resolve it.'"

"I think there is more interest in this now than ever and the interest is more widespread," said Terry

Kasiborski, former president of the North Boosters, speaking on behalf of those in favor of night football.

The board's call came after last week's meeting was dominated by legal discussions between Doug West, the school system's legal counsel, and Maurer, who along with woods resident Thomas Lizza, wrote a letter to the school board on behalf of the residents against the current light proposal.

Surprise

Richard second-grade teacher Nancy Swartz surprised her students Jan. 3 when she came to class dressed as children's book character Amelia Bedelia. Students Torrie Kirk, center, and Michael Dragovic, listen as "Amelia" tells one of her tales. For those unfamiliar with Bedelia, a character in a series of books written by Peggy Parish, she's a well-intentioned woman who makes mortifying mistakes when she takes requests literally. Once, for example, when she was playing baseball, she was told to run home — so she sprinted to her house.

Weekend inferno destroys Windmill Pointe mansion

By Jim Stickford
Staff Writer

Despite the valiant efforts of three local fire departments, the mansion of automobile dealer and entrepreneur Ken Meade on Windmill Pointe Drive in the Park was destroyed by fire Jan. 6.

According to the report issued by the Park public safety department, Meade noticed the faint odor of smoke at about 4 p.m. last Saturday. But because there was a fire in the fireplace, he was not too concerned. But a brief check of the house revealed a heavy haze of smoke on the second floor.

Firefighters were immediately called to the scene, and as they arrived, they noticed smoke coming from three sides of the west wing of the house. They called in help from the City of Grosse Pointe and Grosse Pointe Farms fire departments.

The fire was believed to be between the floors of the house, and interior attacks that punched holes in the second floor ceiling to get at the fire were mounted, said Park director of public safety Richard Caretti. But the house was so well constructed that punching through the ceiling to get to the fire proved very difficult.

"The ceiling was a false ceiling of thick plaster," said Caretti. "Behind the plaster, was wire mesh. The roof was heavy slate. We don't have tools to cut through slate, so we had to punch through the slate before we could cut through the heavy oak beams to get to the third floor, where the fire had spread."

To make matters worse, the roof was icy, and the outside temperature was well below freezing, making the job that much more difficult, said Caretti.

As one section of the fire was extinguished, flames would spread along wood beams to another part of the house, Caretti said. When portions of the slate roof collapsed, interior firefighting crews were ordered out.

Farms firefighter John Walko was temporarily cut off from the second floor exit and was rescued by a ladder raised to a window at the rear of the house, said Caretti.

"It got pretty hairy for a while," Caretti said. "I want to say that everyone who helped from the Farms and the City did a great job. At one point we had crews in the house trying to save as many of the valuables as possible."

Efforts to put out the blaze were hampered by two water main breaks in the neighborhood, said Caretti. Because of the unexpected reduction in water pressure, some lines had to be shut down.

"We did shut down some lines, but the fire was so severe, this did not affect the outcome of our efforts to put out the blaze," said Caretti.

Park city manager Dale Krajniak said that because the water pipes in the Park are old, they can break when a lot of pressure is put on them during periods of extreme cold.

"Because our water department uses a loop design to provide service, residents can get water from another pipe if the one that usually provides water to their home breaks," said Krajniak. "Even with the two water main breaks, firefighters were always able to keep some hoses on the fire at all times."

Caretti said the initial investigation indicates that sparks or embers from the house's fireplace probably caused the fire. The final report has not yet been issued.

"In old homes like this, small cracks that are very difficult to detect can develop in a chimney," said Caretti. "Sparks or embers can go up the chimney, into the crack and ignite materials around the chimney. In this case, old oak ceiling beams. We suspect the ceiling beams smoldered for some time before smoke was detected."

Caretti said that the city's fire inspector and Meade's insurance investigator discovered the charred remains of matted wood fiber around the oak beams and between the

AETs up in smoke

Secretary of State Candice S. Miller reminds motorists in Wayne, Oakland and Macomb counties who are purchasing or renewing license plates that their vehicles are no longer subject to auto exhaust testing (AET) requirements.

"Ending the AET program was among the highlights of my first year in office," Miller said. "For nearly 10 long years, motorists in Wayne, Oakland and Macomb counties have been forced to comply with a program that, by the Environmental Protection Agency's admission, was largely ineffective."

"Not only does the end of AET eliminate a costly inconvenience, it makes renewing and purchasing license plates all the easier."

The AET law requiring annual testing of automotive exhaust officially expired on Dec. 31.

Beginning Jan. 2, no vehicles are subject to AET requirements regardless of when the vehicle registration expired or the vehicle's age.

According to Miller, the only requirement for purchasing or renewing license plates is proof of no-fault insurance on the titled vehicle and a payment for the required registration fees.

Miller noted that branch offices are expected to be busier than usual due to:

- Recent branch office closings for the holidays;
- Motorists who may have waited to renew as a way of avoiding the AET requirement; and
- Motorists who are purchasing Michigan's new Auto Centennial license plate.

The commemorative license plate went on sale Jan. 2 and is a fully reflectorized graphic plate that features red and blue design on an off-white background. Motorists can purchase the Auto Centennial license plate for a one-time fee of $5, over and above the annual vehicle registration fee.

Kaess announces she'll run for 'commish'

By Chip Chapman
Staff Writer

A week after Wayne County commissioner Andrew Richner said he will run for state representative, Grosse Pointe Farms councilmember Gail Kaess announced she will seek to replace Richner on the county board of commissioners.

"It's a very logical step for me," Kaess said. "I'd like to serve on a broader basis. I want to continue in public service."

Kaess, a Republican, has been on the Farms city council since being elected in 1980.

"As a council member, I have represented my community and its interests, not only at the local level, but at the regional, state and national level as well," she said.

Kaess has served as president of the Michigan Municipal League, chairman of SEMCOG

(the Southeast Michigan Council of Governments) and is currently chairman of the Michigan Municipal Liability and Property Pool Board.

"This level of experience with these professional organizations has helped me in promoting sound government policies, both in my community and in others throughout Michigan," she said.

Six years ago, Wayne County Executive Edward McNamara, a Democrat, put partisan politics aside and appointed Kaess to an administrative position with the county. As a Wayne County executive assistant, Kaess deals with intergovernmental relations, such as the Michigan Municipal League and SEMCOG.

"With the knowledge the past six years has brought me, I feel that I can now best serve friends and neighbors by seeking an elected position on the county legislative body," Kaess said. "I know how county government works and feel my background will be useful in making it work more effectively for the Grosse Pointes, Harper Woods and all of District 1."

Kaess' current Farms council term ends in November 1997. If she does not win the county race in 1996, she said she would finish her council term, "but I probably wouldn't seek another term."

Farms Mayor John Danaher applauded Kaess' efforts during her 16 years on the council, noting that "no one has worked more tirelessly in representing the best interests of Grosse Pointe Farms and the surrounding communities as well as the underlying principles of good government. I fully support Gail's candidacy for county commission. I can't imagine anyone matching her qualifications for this office."

Sifting through the ashes: Kenwood home to be rebuilt; cause of fire still unknown

By Shirley A. McShane
Staff Writer

Although the cause of the Dec. 17 fire that destroyed the sprawling English Tudor home on Kenwood in Grosse Pointe Farms is still unknown, the undaunted owner plans to demolish the remains and rebuild.

"There are rumors out there; we have received a couple of inquiries from Realtors about the property," said Mark Kibet, financial controller for American International Co., which is owned by Frank Vallecorsa, who recently purchased the Kenwood home from Tiger first baseman Cecil Fielder.

"We are not intending on selling the property to be subdivided. We plan on rebuilding and replicating the house as close as possible to its original splendor," he said.

Vallecorsa had been in the final stages of restoring the home before it was consumed by flames last month. The house was designed by George P. Mason and built in 1929 for Lynn McNaughton, vice president of Cadillac Motors. It was also home to Benson and Edith (McNaughton) Ford.

Meanwhile, Farms fire department officials are awaiting the arrival of demolition crews, which will use cranes to lift the ceiling beams off the charred remains of the 9,000-square-foot home.

"We'd be out there right now if we could," said Farms fire chief Samuel Candela. "But the beams are too heavy. We will investigate and demolish at the same time."

While Vallecorsa plans to replicate the Kenwood house, Kibet said they have a problem: most of the blueprints and plans were in the house when it burned.

"We are making an appeal to the public," Kibet said. Anyone who has photographs of the interior of the house, or any historical information is asked to call (313) 846-8552.

"We were able to salvage a charred specification book, so we have some things. A lot of people have memories of the house; maybe they visited it as a child. Anyone who has pictures of it, we would welcome a call."

For the second time in less than a month Grosse Pointe firefighters were called to put out a blaze at one of Grosse Pointe's historical houses. This time it was the home of automobile dealer Ken Meade, whose mansion on Windmill Pointe Drive in the Park was destroyed by fire Saturday, Jan. 6.

joint joining the beams and the walls. He believes the wood fiber to be some sort of insulation or protection used by old-world craftsmen when the house was built.

"It was not uncommon for builders to import craftsmen from Europe to build these mansions," said Caretti. "It's possible that when this house was built, these craftsmen used techniques dating back to when castles were constructed, including wrapping beams with wood fibers. The house predates modern synthetic insulation, and the space below the roof and above the second floor ceiling was sealed off, making it likely that no one had been there since the house was first built."

Because the beams apparently smoldered so long, the fire was very advanced by the time firefighters arrived at the scene, said Caretti. No injuries were reported, but the mansion, which was built in the 1920s, suffered tremendous amounts of smoke, water and fire damage.

Construction crews had to use a crane to remove the roof off the pile of rubble remaining from the Dec. 17 fire that destroyed this house on Kenwood in the Farms. Investigators now must comb through the debris looking for clues as to what started the blaze.

Park purchases new truck to clean walks

By Jim Stickleford
Staff Writer

In an effort to provide more efficient snow removal service, the Grosse Pointe Park City Council recently approved the purchase of a $21,600 Ford AF-350 Series truck from Jorgenson Ford of Detroit.

The vehicle will be used to clean up alleys and city parking lots, said Park city manager Dale Krajniak.

"This will free up municipal-owned jeeps to clear off sidewalks," Krajniak said. "It will expedite the clearing of parking lots. We will no longer have to use something as large as the city's front-end loader to clear the lots."

The front end-loader, said Krajniak, is used for large jobs that require such heavy-duty use as digging up streets or loading salt into the city's dump trucks.

By purchasing a new vehicle, the city will be able to deliver snow removal services in a more timely fashion, Krajniak said.

"This purchase is not a replacement purchase," said Krajniak. "We currently don't have any vehicles like this in the city garage. Not only will we be able to have more vehicles on the street, this will save wear and tear on those existing vehicles, extending their life."

Krajniak said that extending the life of vehicles already owned by the city will in the long run save the city money.

Lights

Following a renewed request for lights last fall by members of the North community, the school board asked West for a legal opinion on all the options the school district had available. After the school board accepted an $80,000 gift from the Boosters for the purchase of light poles in May 1994, the Woods city council unanimously turned down a zoning variance request.

As a compromise, the school system last fall drew up a proposed agreement with the residents that would permit a limited number of games using temporary lights, but a majority of board members were not comfortable with the language in the agreement and it never made it to the table.

West issued a 17-page opinion last November. Maurer and Lizza submitted a 20-page letter in late December explaining their position. The letter was accompanied by two consultant reports gauging sound and light levels during a Sept. 22, 1995, game using temporary lights.

Disagreements center on a number of issues, including a 1965 agreement between the Woods and the school system drawn before North was built, interpretations of Woods zoning ordinances, the definitions of "buildings" and "structures" within those ordinances and whether the residents adjacent to the school are third party beneficiaries of the 1965 agreement.

Those in favor of the lights say that North is entitled to the same athletic opportunities as South and that football would provide a wholesome, family activity for Pointe teens.

Those against the lights have spoken at many school board meetings, telling of the loud noise from the cheering crowds, the generators running the temporary lights, the exhaust from the generators and the light spillover into their yards and houses.

The school system has the following options: install lights without Grosse Pointe Woods city council approval; reapply to the city for a zoning variance, with revisions to the sound and lights plan; enter into a use restriction agreement with the residents that would permit limited games under specified conditions; or petition Wayne County Circuit Court for a declaratory judgment that the city's zoning ordinances are not applicable.

"My recommendation is that the school system make every effort to obtain the acquiescence and/or approval of the City of Grosse Pointe Woods prior to the installation of permanent lights," West told the board.

"I think both sides are saying they want to work this out," Maurer said. "No one wants to go to court. Negotiation is the most obvious approach."

Woods artist shows 'portraits in nature' at Birmingham gallery

By Chip Chapman
Staff Writer

"Nature is a rich field that gives us colors, shapes and textures. With these elements we can build or reveal our thoughts," wrote Grosse Pointe Woods artist Monica Tipitto in a passage about her exhibit, "Building Portraits with Nature," which is now being shown at Start Gallery in Birmingham through the end of January.

"Art implies a physical means of approach, a reproduction of the visible in order to make it true, and a creative power to reconstruct, in visual, the artist's feelings," she wrote in her artist's statement accompanying the exhibit. "Now the object does not stop in the appearance. It shows the interior of it through the eyes of the artist in that specific relation between them, in time and space. In this form, Nature is reborn."

Through painting, Tipitto is able to visualize human life in natural, but inanimate objects. Careful use of texture allows her to go from realism to abstraction and back to realism, all in the same work of art. What at first resembles the face of a cliff may also contain the face of a person or of several people. Another glance may just see rocks and crevices. A third look may only see the human faces.

"My shows are always with a thought," Tipitto said. "With this one, 'Portraits in Nature,' you are there. You assimilate reality, but you have to feel it. I try to see people in different surroundings."

A native of Argentina, Tipitto began what has turned into a career at an early age.

"Children like art from the beginning," she said. "My mother was an artist. She was a painter, but pushed me more toward dance and ballet."

After finishing the School of Education in Buenos Aires in 1979, Tipitto went into teaching for a brief period.

"I decided that I was an artist," she said of entering the School of Interior and Architectural Design in Buenos Aires in 1980. Although she did not plan to pursue a career in architecture, "you look for different things to continue to grow as an artist."

In 1983, Tipitto entered the National School of Fine Arts, also in Buenos Aires. After graduating in 1986, she taught kindergarten and first-grade students.

Working with young children, Tipitto said she "respected their creativity and freedom. There weren't any rules for them."

Tipitto displayed charcoal drawings of the children, as they were sleeping, for a show in Argentina.

"Everything I did before I went to the School of Fine Arts helped me," she said, "especially with structure and colors."

The poor economy of Argentina during the 1980s did not provide many job opportunities.

"Many intellectuals and degreed people left the country to find work," Tipitto said.

While vacationing in 1987 in Los Angeles, Tipitto met Hugh Kuchta, a Harper Woods native who was teaching in California at the time. Tipitto took a job as an assistant art director and illustrator at an advertising agency in Los Angeles.

Tipitto and Kuchta married and lived in Los Angeles before moving to Grosse Pointe Woods in 1989.

She taught painting to students, mostly of high school age, in the basement of her home.

Being a full time mother to the couple's three children put Tipitto's teaching on hold, but she continued her with own painting.

Last fall, she put together an exhibition of her work at the Beanery & Gallery in Rochester. That show enabled Tipitto to meet John Cynar, who opened Start Gallery last year.

"He was very open," Kuchta said. "He is committed to showcasing quality art in the local area, to show that we have some of the best art here in southeastern Michigan."

Tipitto and Kuchta are also pleased to see more galleries in Grosse Pointe.

"Some of the Grosse Pointe galleries are introducing more contemporary art," Kuchta said. "We're happy to see that."

In 1997, Tipitto will be

Storm forces new shutdown in the capital

Congress finally ended the federal shutdown and authorized most federal employees to return to work until Jan. 26 — although there still is no agreement on the major differences between President Clinton and the GOP Congress.

As a result, the postmortems in the weekend Washington talk shows centered on claims by both Republicans and Democrats that the other party was responsible for the shutdown and the continuing disagreements.

However, the terrific blizzard that raked the East Coast on the weekend meant that the government still was shut down on Monday — with prospects that many federal services would not be restored to normal until the end of the week.

Even if a quick agreement is achieved on the budget-balancing issue, the effects of the longest shutdown in U.S. history will be felt for many months, not only by federal departments but among businessmen who rely on U.S. economic indicators to develop their own budgets and other estimated for private enterprise.

From the time the shutdown began in December, the government has delayed or will continue to delay at least 11 economic indicators that private enterprises use for forecasting their own plans.

The reports cover housing starts, balance of trade, personal income and spending, durable goods orders, existing home sales, leading indicators, factory orders, employment, the producer price index, consumer price index and retail sales.

Even though the last three were not due until late this week, there was no assurance they will be available very soon. Collecting the information takes time and personnel, and neither was available this week to do the necessary catch-up work.

These delays do not count the tourists deprived of opportunities to visit Washington institutions, national parks, and other federal properties closed until congressional action and the president's signature reopened them last week.

The New York Times reported that the "paucity of data is almost certain to cause increasingly erratic movement in stocks and bonds." The undersecretary of commerce for economic affairs saw "more volatility in the markets."

And the National Association of Business Economists warned that the lack of information could "prove so inhibiting that companies as well as the Federal Reserve would make poor decisions and even push an already weakened economy into a recession," the Times added.

In the political bickering, the Republicans seems to take the worst of it until the shutdown actually occurred, but then they started a new political offensive blaming Clinton for the shutdown because he had vetoed the appropriations that would have kept the departments running.

House members originally had voted to fund only a handful of politically sensitive programs through Sept. 30. They were mainly Meals on Wheels for seniors, some child welfare programs, unemployment insurance operations, reopening of national parks, museums and similar institutions, passport and visa services, veterans pensions and education programs.

The GOP later added a number of federal functions, including the courts, federal law enforcement functions, FHA loan processing, Medicare contract employees and Medicaid payments to the states, as well as the National Institutes of Health, and the Centers for Disease Control.

Even later, the GOP added Aid to Families with Dependent Children, foster care, and adoption assistance to the states — but only until March 15.

To achieve the agreement, the president had produced a seven-year balanced budget which the congressional budget office certified as being in balance — but that still didn't satisfy some Democrats and Republicans who think the country ought to debate the budget issues during the fall election.

That's hardly a satisfactory solution, if that is what is achieved, but it could be the only one Congress finds it possible to agree on in an election year.

Milliken still a liberal in GOP

The Grosse News publishes today on another page excerpts from an interview with William Milliken, Michigan's longest-serving governor, that appeared in the Michigan Monthly magazine in its July-August issue and are reprinted with its permission.

We think these excerpts and the full interview in the magazine help explain the differences of policies between the liberal Republicans of Milliken's day and today's more conservative party leaders.

Asked "how it is that our society, with such a strong economy and such great overall wealth, has such a disaffected electorate," the former governor responded this way:

"Our elected officials in both parties — perhaps more so from the far right of the Republican Party — have begun campaigns against government. Even those who have done nothing else but hold public office are eagerly trying to be seen as outsiders."

And then he adds:
"Outright hatred of our government, our president, our Congress is preached daily on the radio programs of extremists, with lawbreaking not only condoned but encouraged. An impression is left that everything that is wrong in anyone's life is the result of treachery on the part of our government and our leaders."

He conceded that government has proven to be "impotent" in dealing with many urban and social problems, or like HUD, programs have been "mismanaged." In his view, such failures "build cynicism and a sense of futility and negativism."

He said he differs with Gov. John Engler's efforts to move away from regulatory controls, especially those protecting the environment, and with state and federal reductions in public funding for the arts.

But he also said one of Engler's "most effective" accomplishments "is the role he has played in achieving fundamental educational reform." In Milliken's view, "what has been achieved is much greater equity between districts."

His strongest overall criticism was that "The Christian Coalition — Pat Robertson, Ralph Reed and the like — does not speak for me, nor, I think for the larger Christian community."

We encourage our readers to review other excerpts on page 8A. The full interview can be found in the July-August issue of the magazine published in Ann Arbor and can be obtained by calling (313) 213-4940.

Disappointed at narrow view

To the Editor:

I was very disappointed that the Grosse Pointe News would print an article such as the one that appeared in your paper on Dec. 28. The article "AIDS Epidemic Hugely Exaggerated — and Media Buy It" was full of implied comments that I found very offensive.

It appeared that Mr. Joseph Callahan was stating that people who have HIV or AIDS are less than human and that we should not care if "these" people should suffer or die. I found that the article also was very racist as he was attempting to say that because people in Africa are particularly hard hit that it is not our problem. We are all brothers and if some research will assist a fellow human in Africa, I believe it is our responsibility to find a cure.

I have worked in a hospice organization and have seen the suffering of many wonderful people, their friends and family from AIDS. It is not important as to how they may have contracted the virus — this does not alter the suffering or the need to find a better therapy or cure.

What a sad thing that this article should give the impression that the "main stream" of American society should not be concerned with the spread of AIDS. Let's shout that the young people of today need to be very aware that all it takes is having unsafe sex one time to contract the virus that will end their young life way too soon.

In the 18 months I have lived in Grosse Pointe Woods, I have met many wonderful, caring people who are compassionate, and do not hold this narrow, hatred-filled viewpoint your article supports. I truly regret your paper would promote such a viewpoint that does nothing constructive to find a cure for any disease or health issue facing us today.

What about working stiffs?

To the Editor:

I just finished your (Jan. 4) editorial on "Government: How to Limit and Control It."

You have great compassion for the "... poor and others who cannot care for themselves..." But I'm getting sick of hearing about how much concern we need to have for the non-producers in this country. Reducing the size of government may have an effect on how much income they will receive.

Income? If I am not mistaken, income is earned. What the government gives away is charity. They'll have less charity to live off. They will receive less of what is not theirs to start with.

On the other hand, to enlarge the size of government means a reduction in the incomes of the producers in this country. Every tax increase is a pay cut for working people.

You want to show some compassion, try showing it for those people who have to scrape the ice off their windshield at 7 in the morning, drive with rush hour traffic on snow covered roads to jobs they don't really like. They do this five to six times a week, for eight to 10 hours a day. Then on Friday they get a check that is diminished in value so the federal government will have enough money to give to all those poor people who have slept in every day and been able to stay with their families.

Papers: Cover middle schools

To the Editor:

I think newspapers in the Pointes should also focus on middle schools, as well as high schools.

The newspapers, I would think, would cover events such as volleyball games and basketball games, and also other happenings at our middle schools.

If the newspapers agreed to do this, I would think residents of the Pointes would know what's going on in our middle schools. They would also know what will be happening at the schools, too.

Who will rate candidates now?

Most political ratings in the tri-county metropolitan area now will be available only from partisan or special interest organizations.

That's the real meaning of the suspension of Civic Searchlight, the nonpartisan rating service that after 83 years has bowed out after recent decisions of the organization's directors and members.

True, Women's Voters organizations still offer their services but they avoid candidate ratings, although they do provide metro area voters with important biographical and other information on the candidates. They also offer information on public issues and often offer recommendations about them.

Other rating organizations, unfortunately, usually reflect special interest or partisan viewpoints, both of which Searchlight panels avoided.

The man who kept Civic Searchlight going so well so long is William J. (Bill) O'Brien, who retired earlier this year as the organization's executive director, a position he had held since 1957.

After earning degrees in political science from Grinnell College in Iowa and law from the University of Detroit, he won his M.A. in public administration from the University of Michigan.

He then joined the old Citizens League, predecessor of Civic Searchlight, and serving the public through Civic Searchlight became his lifetime career.

His responsibilities included working as staff director for the Committee on Candidates and Ballot questions, and editor of The Voters Guides, circulated in the three-county area, to inform the public of the panels' recommendations.

But he also was prominent in other good-government moves in the metro area. In 1980, he served as executive director of the Wayne County Charter Commission which drafted Wayne County's first home rule charter which county voters adopted.

Just last year, he served as research consultant for the Citizens Research Council of Michigan which was studying Detroit's charter revision ballot proposal. Among his many other activities were efforts to improve City of Detroit's finances, its public library and its board of education.

In many ways, he has been the indispensable man. Because he still is, we hope that even in retirement he will be available when the community needs him to study, monitor or review an important project.

In suspending operations, Civic Searchlight still preserved its name so that if, in the future, concerned citizens will be able financially to organize a revival, the name will be available to legitimize that effort.

As President William J. Adams said, "Reliable voter information and impartial evaluation of candidates and ballot issues are needed more than ever."

And since the Civic Searchlight is only suspending its services, perhaps someone with fund-raising abilities — or deep pockets — will revive it.

Road tales — part two

A while ago I used this space to talk about some of the appalling things I have seen people do while driving.

I pointed out that while drivers ought to be concentrating on the road ahead, many are tending to their personal appearances, their radios, their cellular telephone calls and, seemingly, anything but controlling their vehicles.

Everyone has their distractions. What takes my eye away from the highway are the many roadside oddities I encounter on my daily commute.

The most recent sighting: Mid-morning in an east-side suburb, I saw a middle-aged man striding down the sidewalk, holding a large red umbrella. The sky was cloud covered, yet there was not a trace of snow, sleet or rain falling from above.

But that's not the strange part. The man had wrapped his nose in aluminum foil or a gum wrapper so that it looked like an Idaho spud ready to be baked on an outdoor grill.

Is this a trend? Some new NASA-issue bandage that draws solar heat? Something that skiers use to avoid runny noses on the slopes? I'd like to know.

How about "the tree" on the grassy berm on eastbound I-94 between I-696 and 10 Mile. Anyone else ever see this? I can't identify the species of the tree, but the trunk is spray painted fire engine red and nailed to the bark is a hubcap. I asked other people I know who routinely drive by that part of the Ford Freeway and no one ever seems to know what I'm talking about. I looked for it the other day and it was gone.

Nevertheless, I wonder, is it a tribute to all the orphaned hubcaps littering the shoulders of our nation's highways? Does the red paint symbolize blood spilled in car accidents? Is it free advertising for a local artist who uses trash as his or her medium?

I Say

Shirley A. McShane

Then there's "Casper" — the wooden cutout of the popular comic book ghost — nailed to the front porch column of a house along my route home. Every time I'm stuck in a traffic clog at the intersection near this house, I look over and there he is, smiling and waving his ethereal hand, like some demented Miss America in a never ending parade.

And I wonder: Is he some

Halloween decoration the home owners have forgotten to take down? After at least three years, I think, holiday decorations are elevated in status to household fixtures. Is it an inside joke? Maybe the family who lives there is named Casper? Maybe they're albinos?

How about "the real estate agent's nightmare?" It's actually an attractive little Cape-Cod style house that looks to be a rehab job. Everything looks new, the windows still have the manufacturer's stickers on the glass. Yet, in the three years that I have driven by this place, I've watched a parade of different real estate agency signs march across its weed-infested lawn.

What's wrong with it? Well, to the south, there is a 100-year-old wood frame house that most recently was home to what I think were drug dealers or at least someone on the wrong side of the law. I base this assumption on the number of times I saw not one, but a fleet of police cars in the driveway.

To the north is an apartment complex. To the east, a crumbling, pot-hole-ridden parking lot behind a banquet hall past its prime.

I wonder: Who decided to rehab, or build, this house in this location? Will anyone ever buy it? I'm beginning to feel bad for this inanimate object as if it were some poor abandoned puppy.

In the three years I have been driving past this house, only once did I see someone looking at it. In recent weeks, the latest real estate agent to handle the place has tried to make it look more homey. Sheer white curtains now hang in the windows. Strings of white lights are wound around the trees and bushes out front. Still, it sits empty.

And finally, I've just proven the look-what-my-dog-can-do theory (which is, if your dog twirls on one foot while singing "Amazing Grace" for you, then he'll lie on his back and whimper if you ask him to do it for anyone else).

After I finished the latest version of this column, on my drive home I discovered:

- The "tree" is back. It's now painted canary yellow. It still has the hubcap.

- In ghost-like fashion, Casper has disappeared from his perch on the porch, leaving no forwarding address.

- The real estate agents must be happy because the house is sold.

I'm still waiting to hear about the aluminum foil.

Parking may be bad, but here's the first traffic jam seen inside one of the stores on the Hill: the line-up of over 100 mainly late-model cars and small trucks all around the inside ledges (and on the tables) of the Coffee Grinder.

OK, so the cars are small, too. The shiny, perfect scale models belong to Parcival Lie, son of the Park's Kim and Mado Lie, and the story is supplied by Parcival's sister Tamara, who serves coffee behind the counter.

"It's in honor of the auto show," explains Tamara, who says her big brother's collection will be on display as long as Detroit's big models are.

Is this all he has? I ask. "He started when he was 9 or 10 and he has a lot more at home," says Tamara, taking down a hot little Plymouth Prowler concept car for me to admire.

With brand-new stuff like this right here, why bother going down to Cobo Hall?

Lost and found

'Tis the season for lost things to turn up, at least for a couple of this paper's readers.

First, there's Dick Dossin, a member of the Grosse Pointe Lions Club, invited to join Red Arnold at the offshoot Woods Lions Club for a mysterious presentation a few months ago.

There, the Woods club's president, Chris Goosen, gave Dick an impressive gavel inscribed "Grosse Pointe Lions Club, Phil Skillman, 1945." As the story goes, one of Goosen's friends found the gavel at a local garage sale.

But nobody knew who Phil

Skillman was. Puzzled, Dick followed clues that led off in odd directions: "Someone said he worked at Recorder's Court and I thought maybe he was a judge," Dick says, "then I remembered a guy by this name once played piano at Baker's Keyboard Lounge."

Years back, Dick was there and heard Jan Rinke, wife of Cadillac-famous Roger Rinke's brother, Roland, say that the piano player at the lounge was her father.

"I called Jan and she confirmed that her dad, Phil, was the president of the Grosse Pointe Lions back in 1945," Dick says.

How did the gavel manage to wander away in the first place? "There's a tradition that when a Lion is invited to another club, they 'steal' something so the members of that club have to visit the other club to get it back," Dick says.

Somehow the return visit took about half a century.

And then there's Jim Dahl, who lost his cat Chimu on Christmas Eve, 1992.

"I went out to my van to get some decorations and he must have followed me out, and then wandered off," Jim says. "I put posters up all around, and also put an ad in the Grosse Pointe News."

People had tabbies that looked something like him, but Chimu wasn't among them.

With his hindsight working, Jim sent a list of suggestions on how to keep pets from being lost to Kathleen Ferrilla, who used to write the "Pet Pourri" column here. It was printed Feb. 18, 1993.

Fourteen months later, a man on Courville in Detroit called and said he thought he had Chimu. "Of all the cats I'd seen, he was most like Chimu, but he seemed smaller and I wasn't sure," says Jim, who knew he couldn't take someone else's cat.

"Three weeks later some girls on Courville called after seeing a flier I had posted and said they had my cat under a porch. When I went to see it, it was the same cat," says Jim, who called the man who first had the cat and learned that he had to get rid of it because his girlfriend was allergic to it.

"He didn't want him, so I took the cat home and named him 'Dickens,'" Jim says. Later when Jim was going through some old photos, he found one of Chimu that showed a nick in his ear.

"Dickens had the same nick," he says. "I checked the whisker marks on his nose with the cat in the photo, and they matched up too."

The cat was Chimu. "Now I call him Chimu Dickens," Dick says.

Work off holiday pounds

Start the new year by getting fit with one of Grosse Pointe Community Education's new fitness and training programs offered in cooperation with Pointe Fitness & Training. The program will focus on weight training, exercise, and prevention of low back pain and demonstrate safe and effective practices to be followed when working out at home or in a gym.

Presented by Mark Dolence, a certified athletic trainer, the programs will be conducted at the Pointe Fitness & Training facility, 17243 Mack. Detroit bicentennial — anyone care?

It just occurred to me that Detroit will celebrate its bicentennial this year — and its tricentennial in 2001. That's a pretty neat trick.

The reason it works, of course, is that the 200th anniversary celebrates Detroit's history as an American city, and the tricentennial marks its founding by Cadillac as a French settlement. I reckon they both count.

I just wish there were even one building still standing from either date. Hasn't anything been published about celebration plans, or have I just not been paying close attention? Having just returned from a family holiday visit in Cleveland, I'm privy to the information that the New Year's Eve blowout in Public Square was the kickoff to their bicentennial — and was paid for by a major corporation.

Corporate orchestration may avoid the glitch experienced in their anniversary re-enactment in 1976. The idea was to commemorate the Indians' greeting of Moses Cleaveland as he disembarked from his little boat on the banks of the Cuyahoga. But the Indian re-enactors wouldn't let the white guys out of the boat.

If Detroit re-enacts Cadillac's landing and someone refuses to let the Frenchmen out of the boat, maybe Quebec will stop trading with us. On the other hand, the descendants of the people who met Cadillac on the riverbank are now busy collecting the cash of his descendants at casinos and won't have time for re-enactment nonsense. Who fleeced whom, anyway?

The good news is that winter weather is going to be mild until the end of February. That's according to the Old Farmer's Almanac.

The bad news is that the Old Farmer's Almanac was wrong about the weather up until now.

The forecast for the southern Great Lakes for November and December was for mild weather and below-average precipitation. Gosh, maybe they meant last winter.

Concentrating birds for winter feeding seems to lead to even more fatal bird-window crashes. But last week I learned a way to save some of the victims. Put 'em in a paper bag.

I saw this in action, and it worked.

Even when their heads loll and their necks seem broken, put them in a paper bag and take them in the house.

Within 10-20 minutes, you'll start hearing scratching noises from inside the bag. When the scratching sounds vigorous, take the bag back outside and open it, and your revived birds will fly out.

This is why it works: When they fall, stunned, to the ground, they freeze before they have time to regain consciousness. Putting them in the bag buys them some time, concentrates their body heat in a small area — and keeps them from flying all over your house when they do revive.

Former Gov. Milliken speaks out on GOP

See related editorial, page 6A

The following excerpts from the July/August issue of Michigan Monthly of an interview with former Republican Michigan Gov. William G. Milliken, the state's longest-serving governor, are reprinted with permission.

Michigan Monthly: Is the conservative turn in the country likely to endure?

William Milliken: I believe the country is going to be more economically conservative. There seems to be a genuine desire to avoid spending money we don't have. A majority say they would rather have the deficit reduced than have a tax cut. On the other hand, Newt Gingrich and others, including Republican leadership in this state, want to give tax cuts, too, for the political effect, and I don't see that as either responsible or conservative.

Much of the so-called "Contract With America" sounds like gimmickry, an agenda more for the political effect than substance or progress. How can they talk about large tax cuts — $200 billion in the next four or five years — and at the same time claim they won't touch entitlements and will maintain or increase defense spending? It does not make sense to me.

I also believe the current attempts to mesh religion and government will not be accepted by the citizenry in the long run. The Christian Coalition — Pat Robertson, Ralph Reed, and the like — does not speak for me, nor, I think, for the larger Christian community.

I am appalled by their efforts to merge church and state; by their willingness to abandon the poor; by their crusade to push a school prayer amendment to the Constitution — and all with the acquiescence of Republican leaders like Bob Dole, Phil Gramm and Newt Gingrich.

MM: How is it that our society, with such a strong economy and such great overall wealth, has such a disaffected electorate?

WM: I think it is easy to take economic stability for granted, and economics isn't everything.

Our elected officials in both parties — perhaps more so from the far right of the Republican party — have begun campaigns against government. Even those who have done nothing else but hold public office are eagerly trying to be seen as outsiders.

Outright hatred of our government, our president, our Congress is preached daily on the radio programs of extremists, with lawbreaking not only condoned but encouraged.

The more fragile among us are affected, even incited, by this, and waves of hatred ripple out from it. An impression is left that everything that is wrong in anyone's life is the result of treachery on the part of our government and our leaders.

These same zealots encourage distrust of our media, suggesting the media is the culprit for laws in our society rather than just reporting the state of our current societal affairs.

All of this puts our nation at great peril. The idea that politics and government is an honorable calling has been lost.

MM: Is one reason for these anti-government feelings that government seems to have been so unsuccessful in solving chronic social problems such as conditions in the inner cities?

WM: Yes. Government in many cases has been proven to be impotent in dealing with so many urban and social problems. So many government programs have been mismanaged.

MM: You're pretty unhappy with the country's leadership these days, aren't you?

WM: We need — and it's easy to say this and so hard to find — some courageous leadership, politicians who are not thinking about the next election, who treat the electorate as grown-ups who can understand politics and alternatives if information is given them.

MM: Who on the national scene today seems to have those qualities of leadership and courage?

WM: (laughs) I hoped for it in President Clinton, and I've been disappointed, although I don't think it's too late. We don't need a failed presidency at this crucial time in our history.

But he has not spoken out, not consistently at least, and he's equivocated too often. I don't yet see the qualities necessary in any of the Republican presidential candidates.

MM: Some of your Republican colleagues seem to think these days that you talk more like a Democrat. What makes you a Republican?

WM: Well, first of all, it is not for others to decide my party affiliation. I am a Republican and always have been, even in these times when my party goes off in some directions which I think are wrong.

My core belief is in individual rights and individual responsibilities, we have to control our own lives and destinies.

And I believe in the enterprise system which has created the level of affluence that has made possible so many of our cultural and educational advances.

I've always represented — and still do — the broad center of the Republican Party. I take strong exception to the idea that some in the extreme right of the party — represented by Rush Limbaugh, Gordon Liddy, Pat Buchanan — represent the true Republican Party.

The Republican Party has always, to me, stood for civil rights, the rights of all people to be treated equally and openly and fairly. It's true I've been accused of being too liberal. It doesn't disturb me one bit, by the way.

MM: Are you estranged these days from the current Michigan Republican leadership?

WM: Well, I try not to second-guess my successors. John Engler and I have known each other for a long time. I worked with him when he was a member of the House.

We do not and have not agreed philosophically on many issues. I do respect him for being an effective and shrewd political operator.

MM: He seems able to run rings about his opponents.

WM: Yes, but the acid test is the degree to which he is able to achieve lasting progress for all of the people of this state, not just Republicans. A governor has to try to represent all of the people.

One of the most effective things he has done is the role he has played in achieving fundamental educational reform. I tried to do that and wasn't successful. What has been achieved is much greater equity between districts.

MM: What do you think of Engler's turn toward a more business-friendly environmental policy?

WM: I would be very reluctant to move away from regulatory controls. One of the things I'm proudest of is accomplishments during my administration involving the environment.

I've often said Michigan has more to lose through improper and more to gain through proper and enlightened environmental approaches than almost any other state in the country.

Now, of course, nationally through the Contract, we are pulling back. I think we need to see that we do not destroy our priceless resources. I think one can go too far in favoring business in environmental disputes, and we may be approaching that now.

MM: Another sharp disagreement you have with Governor Engler is over state funding of the arts. He wants to reduce support of such things as the Detroit Institute of the Arts.

WM: I have been very supportive of the arts. I feel there is a legitimate role for government to supplement private support of the arts. Institutions like the Detroit Institute of the Arts and the Detroit Symphony Orchestra make remarkable contributions to the quality of living in our country. I regret very much that, both nationally and in our state, we feel the need to pull back.

FREE "LIVING TRUST" SEMINAR

"What You Ought to Know About Living Trusts"

(What you don't know could cost your family thousands of dollars!)

If you own a home...or you have assets worth at least $100,000...you owe it to yourself—and your family—to get the facts on living trusts. If you think you're protected with a simple Will...think again... A Will guarantees that your estate will go through probate, which means that your family may not be able to take possession of your estate for many months, or even years!

Plus, if your estate is over $600,000, your family may owe estate taxes which could amount to 37-55% of the value of your estate. This means that your family may have to sell some assets just to pay the estate taxes!

A living trust avoids all this by avoiding probate and minimizing estate taxes. Plus, a living trust will protect your estate if you become incapacitated during your lifetime by avoiding a conservatorship. This means your estate will be managed as you see fit, not as a court-appointed guardian sees fit.

To find out more about the benefits of living trusts, attend one of these free seminars...

Woods is sued for back overtime pay by public safety officers

By Jim Stickford
Staff Writer

The first time Grosse Pointe Woods officials heard about problems concerning overtime pay for public safety officers working 24-hour shifts was when a suit was filed in federal court over the matter.

"I was quite surprised to learn that four public safety officers had filed a suit," said Woods mayor Robert Novitke. "As far as I know, the question of overtime pay for working a 24-hour shift never came up during negotiations with the union."

The workers who filed the suit, public safety officers Charles P. Hamil and Arthur Gekiere, and emergency medical technicians Paul Billiter and Christopher Krotche, maintain that the Woods violates the Fair Labor Standards Act by paying them for 40 hours of work, when they actually work 53 hours.

"We have public safety officers who work nine 24-hour shifts during a 28-day month," said Novitke. "For eight hours, these men are on full duty, and are supposed to be working. Then they have eight hours of free time, where they can do what they want at the station, then eight hours to sleep. Anytime during this 24-hour shift, they can be called out to respond to an emergency."

Brent Snively, a Bloomfield Hills attorney representing the four men, said that they get paid only for the first 16 hours of the shift. They do not get paid for the eight-hour sleep period, even though they can be called out to an emergency during that time.

Because they are at the station, and on call, they must be paid for that time, said Snively.

While this is the first lawsuit in metro Detroit over this issue, there have been several suits across the country in which public workers won back pay for working shifts similar to those in the Woods, said Snively.

"To the best of my knowledge, this question has not come up in labor talks," said Snively. "But the Fair Labor Standards Act takes precedence over a contract. Workers can't agree to a contract that violates the law."

The suit, which was filed on Friday, Dec. 29, is months away from going to trial, Snively said. Before that can happen he said he must meet with attorneys for the Woods, and there is a discovery process.

"This takes time," said Snively. "How much money the four men could be awarded depends on what comes out during the discovery process. I estimate that at the most, the Woods could end up owing them $200,000."

Attorney for the Woods George Catlin declined to comment on the case, saying only that he received all the paperwork involved on Wednesday, Jan. 3, and would have to carefully go over the documents before he could possibly comment.

Novitke said that it is city policy for officials not to comment on lawsuits before they are settled.

Park holds hearings on Beaconsfield

By Jim Stickford
Staff Writer

Well the results are in, and it looks like Beaconsfield will remain a two-way street in the future.

The Grosse Pointe Park Planning Commission held a hearing last month concerning what to do about traffic on Beaconsfield in connection with the closing of the street at Jefferson, and a proposal to place a parking lot at the foot of Beaconsfield and Mack.

"A number of neighborhood residents from Beaconsfield, and the two streets that parallel it - Nottingham and Lakepointe - attended the planning commission hearing on Dec. 19," said Park city manager Dale Krajniak. "The general consensus seems to indicate that residents would like to keep Beaconsfield a two-way street."

The hearing was held after Park officials temporarily made Beaconsfield a one-way street between Mack and Charlevoix. This action allowed for the collection of information on traffic patterns before the street was made one-way and after it was made one-way.

Krajniak said that these figures were also compared to a similar traffic study completed in 1985.

"Much to everyone's surprise, the traffic count for 1985 indicates that traffic actually declined on those streets during the past decade," said Krajniak. "The 1995 study showed that an average of 1,118 vehicles used Beaconsfield before it was temporarily made one-way, which was considerably less than the 1985 figures."

Another two studies taken in 1991 and 1995 showed a marked decline in traffic on Nottingham and Beaconsfield, said Krajniak. These studies showed that traffic during the busiest days of the study as opposed to a daily average, declined.

In 1991, the traffic count showed that during the busiest day of the week, 2,443 motor vehicles used Beaconsfield. That figure was 1,425 in 1995. The 1991 count for Nottingham showed that 1,818 motor vehicles traveled on the street during the busiest day of the study. The 1995 figures showed 1,104 vehicles using the street.

"The study we did in 1991 showed usage based on the busiest day," said Krajniak. "That's different than the average daily figure, which used counts of all the days to determine the average traffic count."

Making Beaconsfield one-way resulted in a large shift of traffic to Nottingham, Krajniak said. The before figures showed an average of 1,118 vehicles used Beaconsfield as a two-way street. As a one-way street 648 vehicles, on average used the street - a decline of 470.

The traffic count for Nottingham before the temporary change on Beaconsfield showed that 554 vehicles, on average, used the street. After the change, 954 vehicles, on average, used the street.

"We expected Nottingham residents to complain about the traffic after the change, but we were a little surprised to learn that Beaconsfield residents also wanted to keep the street two-way," Krajniak said. "The planning commission voted to recommend to the council that Beaconsfield remain one-way."

The commission did not take any position on whether or not to recommend placing a parking lot at Beaconsfield and Mack. That project, said Krajniak, would require adding a small curve at the end of the street around the lot that would be constructed.

"The commission felt that was something best decided by the city council, and so no opinion, pro or con, was expressed by the commissioners," said Krajniak. "This should go before the council at the Jan. 29 meeting."

PUBLIC SAFETY REPORTS

Fiddler on the roof?

A 90-year-old Woods man who is legally blind, along with his hearing-impaired wife, had a strange encounter with a passer-by on Jan. 3.

The couple, who live on Manchester, told police that a man in his 50s, heavy set with dark hair, approached the husband as he was shoveling snow in his front yard and engaged him in conversation.

The husband began talking about his leaking roof and the stranger asked to be invited inside the house to take a look. While inside, the stranger asked the wife to boil some water and a short while later announced he was leaving to get some shingles.

The man never returned. The couple was not able to provide a more detailed description of the man. They could not immediately find anything missing from their home, but reported the matter to police, who suspect a scam was in the works.

with the help of officers from Grosse Pointe Woods, he was placed in handcuffs. No weapons were found, but the suspected substance was tested and identified as marijuana. He was expected to be arraigned on the charges but information was not available at press time.

Don't do this on Lakeshore

An 18-year-old St. Clair Shores man was arrested in Grosse Pointe Shores on Jan. 6 for reckless driving, resisting arrest and possessing a controlled substance, after he caught police attention by driving erratically and refusing to stop.

A patrol officer spotted the man driving about 70 miles an hour and changing lanes erratically on Lakeshore north of Moross. Grosse Pointe Farms officers had been tracking the driver when the Shores officer took over at the village limits.

The driver initially ignored the officer's attempts to pull him over but eventually stopped at Lochmoor and Lakeshore. When the officer ordered the man out of his car, he found a plastic bag containing one-half ounce of suspected marijuana on the car floor. After running a plate check on the car, the officer learned the driver was listed as suicidal and that he may be armed with a gun.

When the officer attempted to search the man for weapons, he became combative and a struggle ensued. The officer called for backup and

Auto show has excitement — and a rare touch of whimsy

As expected, there are plenty of new-vehicle debuts at the North American Automobile Show, now running at Cobo Center through Monday, Jan. 15.

You hear and read a lot of grousing, but pay no heed — this is a great show, the greatest automotive show on Earth. Other shows are great, too Association.

"Tellier quickly saw the importance of this car and said to bring it in, that he would see it gets in the show," said Miller.

"The industry put on a much more elaborate celebration of its 50th year than it is doing for its 100th," said Miller. "More than 300,000

Beetle, a car that looked funny and was marketed with a sophisticated and humorous advertising campaign.

A Mercedes-Benz spokesman said the vehicle — or something very close to it — will be built in Alabama and will go on sale in the United States next summer. He said it will combine off-road ruggedness with Mercedes-Benz luxury and will sell in the mid-$30,000 range, which its rivals may not find funny.

Another whimsical vehicle is on display at the Mitsubishi stand, the GAUS (global adventure utility system) which features a roomy cabin made possible by cabin forward design.

Front and rear curbside doors feature a mechanism that allows part of the door to slide up into the roof while the lower half turns into a retractable step. Other innovative features include front seats that rotate 180 degrees to face rearward and side airbags built into all seats.

The GAUS is powered by a 2.0-liter, 16-valve, turbocharged, four-cylinder engine and a center differential that drives all four wheels with a viscous coupling unit.

Toyota showed its Lexus FLV, a handsome aerodynamic four-door sedan/station wagon/minivan, as a possible successor to all those body styles. Lexus described the vehicle as a "glimpse into the near future."

There are plenty of new production models making their world debut at the show. General Motors unveiled to the world its new line of mid-size sedans and coupes from four divisions for 1997, as well as Cadillac's new Catera.

The '97 Catera will be manufactured in Germany by Adam Opel AG, and is described as a combination of Cadillac luxury and Opel engineering. Built on the same — Chicago, Tokyo, Geneva, Paris, Frankfurt and, yes, Los Angeles — but this show is in the heart of the world's Motor City and this is reflected in the importance placed on it by the auto manufacturers, American and foreign. There are more automotive people at this show than any other.

The Detroit show has become the premier venue for auto makers from around the world to give the public its first glimpses into the automotive future.

But in this centennial year of the American automobile industry, it is not only to the future that the show looks. A 1946 Hudson convertible on display recalls the industry's 50th anniversary that year. The Golden Jubilee Hudson was built, displayed and featured in parades by Hudson Motor Car Co. as part of the 50th anniversary celebration.

Jack Miller, the last Hudson dealer in Ypsilanti, arranged to have the historic car brought to this area and contacted Jim Tellier, of Jefferson Chevrolet and co-chair of the show for the sponsoring Detroit Automobile Dealers people attended the gala opening of the star-studded Jubilee. It was dynamic Detroit proclaiming to the world that it was indeed the Motor City."

The '46 Hudson Super Six convertible at the show, which was featured on the front page of Automotive News in 1946, was awarded as the grand prize to the oldest car driven the farthest distance to Detroit.

Winner was George Green, who drove his 1904 Oldsmobile from Lambertville, N.J. Green owned the Hudson convertible until his death in the early '70s. His widow sold it in 1975 to Glen Johnson, of Brigham City, Utah.

There is an air of excitement and celebration at the show but, in fact, selling cars is a serious business. Humor and whimsy are rare. The automobile is about power, status and sex, in various orders. It is not to be laughed at.

All of which made the Mercedes-Benz AAV (all-activity vehicle) a delightful surprise. This odd sports-utility is evocative of the Volkswagen platform as the highly successful Opel Omega MV6, Catera will be built at the Opel assembly plant in Russelsheim, Germany.

The rear-drive Catera is powered by a 3.0-liter, dual-overhead-cam V-6 rated at 200 hp and mated to a four-speed automatic transmission. Speed sensitive steering, four-wheel antilock disc brakes, dual airbags and traction control system are standard.

Buick's new 1997 LeSabre, Park Avenue and Ultra are introduced at the 1996 show. They will go on sale in dealer showrooms this fall. All are powered by Buick's 3800 Series II V-6 engine and four-speed automatic transmission. The naturally aspirated version delivers 205 hp, while the Park Avenue Ultra's supercharged Series II produces 240 hp.

Chevrolet is unveiling several new vehicles at the show, including the mid-size Malibu and the new S-Series Sportside. Bringing back a heritage name has proven to be a successful strategy for the Chevy folks, as witness the Impala SS and Monte Carlo.

The S Series Sportside is a sharp looker which is now going into production.

Pontiac is showing its 1997 Grand Prix coupe and sedan, which were previewed at last year's show by the Grand Prix 300 GPX concept car. The new Grand Prix will be on sale with the '97 models. Stars of the spectacular Chrysler Corp. display are the production version of the Plymouth Prowler, the corporation's tribute to the street-rod world and a trio of Dodge Vipers, including the Dodge Viper that will pace the Indianapolis 500, the 1997 Dodge Viper GTS Coupe and the 1997 Dodge Viper GTS-R racing car. Also of particular interest at the Chrysler display is the Dodge Intrepid ESX concept car.

Chrysler is also showing its new Jeep Wrangler, the first remake of this American icon in 10 years. It looks different, but it still looks like a Jeep.

Big attraction at the Ford stand are the new Ford Taurus and Mercury Marquis. Taurus has been the top-selling car in the United States for several years, so when it is redesigned it is a substantial roll of the dice. Its styling is generating some controversy, but so did its predecessor.

The new Mercury Mountaineer is making its world debut at the show. It will be the first sport-utility vehicle to be sold by Lincoln-Mercury Division.

Toyota's popular compact sport-utility vehicle, the 4Runner, receives a complete redesign for 1996, which includes new engines, chassis, interior and exterior styling, enhanced safety equipment and added utility. It is being shown for the first time at the show.

Honda's Acura Division is using the show for the worldwide launch of its new CL sedan, the first Acura to be designed, engineered and built in the United States.

Show hours are 11 a.m.-10:30 p.m. through Friday 10 a.m.-10:30 p.m. Saturday, and 10 a.m.-7 p.m. Sunday; and Monday (closing day). Admission is $8 for adults, $4 for seniors (65 and over) and children under 12 are free if accompanied by a parent (otherwise $4).

PROBLEMS THAT COME AND GO

Many car owners have experienced the frustration of experiencing an engine performance problem on the road that cannot be duplicated for the auto technician. The best way to isolate such intermittent problems is to begin with a complete diagnostic checkup. While this is conducted, wiring harnesses, sensors, and relays should be wigged and tapped to see if the fault rests with a loose electrical connection or a defective part that otherwise seems to work normally. Beyond that, a device known as a scanner can be connected to the car's computer. In its snapshot mode, the scanner can be activated (while the car is being driven) to take a "snapshot" of the computer data generated surrounding a malfunction. Reading this information helps reveal the abnormality that leads to a malfunction.

As winter sets in, make sure everything in your car is running well. You don't want to be left at the side of the road. At RINKE TOYOTA, we put the performance back in your car! We're at 25420 Van Dyke, Phone: 758-2000. Hours: Mon. & Thurs. 7:00 a.m. to 9:00 p.m., Tues. & Wed. 7-7:30, Fri. 7-6, closed Sat. and Sun. What you need is peace of mind, and we can help give you that by fixing your car on time and at the price we've agreed on. Enjoy your Martin Luther King, Jr. holiday!

HINT: A scanner in snapshot mode will pick up and store data about malfunctions that do not occur long enough to get a failure code in the computer memory.

A.H. Peters agrees to pay $60,000 settlement for violating FTC rules

By Chip Chapman
Staff Writer

The A.H. Peters Funeral Home of Grosse Pointe Inc., which operates funeral homes in Grosse Pointe Woods and Warren, has agreed to pay a $60,000 civil penalty to settle charges that it violated the Federal Trade Commission's (FTC) funeral rule.

"We allege that they did not provide price lists of goods and services to customers," said Tom Cohn, staff attorney for the FTC. "We also allege that they conditioned the furnishing of certain funeral goods and services upon the purchase of other funeral goods and services."

Cohn would not say who initiated the charges or over what time period the alleged violations occurred.

"We deny the accusations," said David L. Peters, vice president of A.H. Peters. "We settled the charges in order to avoid a trial. We didn't want to bring families into legal proceedings."

The FTC funeral rule, adopted in 1984, is designed to help consumers obtain price and other information about funeral services to make it easier for customers to compare prices and buy only the services they want.

The rule requires a funeral home to provide to customers who inquire in person a copy of the general price list. The list must include not only prices, but other information, such as that a casket is not necessary for cremation.

The rule also prohibits a funeral provider from requiring customers to purchase unwanted goods and services as a condition for obtaining the goods and services they do want.

The FTC voted to authorize the filing of the complaint and the proposed settlement.

The complaint and consent decree were filed Dec. 21, 1995, by the U.S. Department of Justice on behalf of the FTC in U.S. District Court for the Eastern District of Michigan in Detroit.

"This is a settlement with us," Cohn said, "that they violated our rules."

The consent decree, signed in August by David L. Peters, is for settlement purposes only and is not an admission of a law violation by the funeral home.

Accountants offer 10 tips to help increase your wealth in 1996

The new year is the ideal time to take stock of your investment goals and accomplishments, and adjust your approach to increase the return on your investments. The Michigan Association of Certified Public Accountants has 10 easy tips for fine-tuning your wealth-building strategies for this year and beyond.

1. Look ahead. Every year at this time, the financial media spotlights the hottest performing mutual funds of the previous year. Unfortunately, past performance doesn't always translate into future success.

Instead, look for investments that promise long-term growth and income.

2. Go abroad. Investing outside the United States can both diversify and enhance your portfolio. Bear in mind that investing globally can be tricky. Generally, one way to reduce your risk when you invest globally is to buy shares of a mutual fund that invests in international securities.

3. Average out. Dollar-cost averaging is a smart way to invest. Here's how it works. You make an investment in a stock or mutual fund of a fixed dollar amount at regular intervals. For example, you make a $100 investment on the 15th of every month. (Most mutual funds will gladly arrange to deduct a pre-set amount from your paycheck, checking account, or money-market fund.) Your $100 automatically buys more shares when the market is low and fewer shares when prices are high. This strategy has the effect of averaging out the price you pay — so you'll never pay only the highest or lowest price.

4. Buy direct. Now that more companies are willing to sell their stock shares directly to shareholders, you can avoid costly broker commissions. Exxon, Dial, and W.R. Grace are among the "name brand" companies that sell directly to shareholders. Some companies will even automate your investment program by deducting a set amount from your bank account each month. When you decide to sell, most companies will process your transaction for about $10.

5. Reinvest dividends. Dividend reinvestment is an easy, money-saving way to buy more stock in a company. Instead of opting for a dividend check, the company reinvests your dividends to purchase more of its stock. As a bonus, many companies also may give you a discount on the price of the stock you buy through reinvestment.

6. Stick with it. Don't let short-term market swings sway you off course. To make money in the stock market, investors need to stay involved long enough to offset the lows with periods of outstanding returns. The trick is to allocate your assets in line with your financial goals, and then stick to that allocation regardless of short-term market fluctuations.

7. Look into real estate. In addition to securities, consider investing in real estate. One way to make such an investment is through a real estate investment trust (REIT) — a type of closed-end fund that invests in diversified portfolios of residential and commercial properties.

REITs, which issue shares that trade on stock exchanges, give you the opportunity to invest in real estate without the problems of management and poor liquidity that come with buying properties directly. But be careful — rising interest rates could dampen profitability.

8. Take reasonable risks. Allocating your assets among a wide range of inflation-resistant vehicles can help you minimize the risk of loss.

If you're investing for a long-term goal like retirement, time is also on your side. You should be able to ride out the intermediate ups and downs in the market and still come out ahead.

Keep in mind if you try to avoid risk altogether by putting your money only in the safest investments, you run the risk of not earning enough to beat inflation.

9. Know the costs. Market risk is a given, but there are other investment related costs that have nothing to do with risk — commissions, markups and management fees.

Because these costs are not always obvious, it's important to ask about them before investing, and include these fees when calculating the return on your investment.

10. Don't overlook taxes. Keep in mind that many of your investment decisions will have tax ramifications.

To help you make the most of your investments and minimize the tax impact on any gains, it's wise to consult a CPA or another tax adviser.

St. John Hospital and Medical Center's oncology program has received a three-year approval from the Commission of Cancer of the American College of Surgeons.

The commission's approval process demonstrates St. John's ability to provide state-of-the-art, multidisciplinary evaluation and treatment of cancer at a highly comprehensive level.

Instrumental in St. John's approval is its multidisciplinary cancer committee and prospective tumor board. The cancer committee meets every other month to review, oversee and make decisions regarding the many facets involved in treating oncology patients. The committee strives to improve cancer control efforts in prevention, early diagnosis, pretreatment evaluation, staging, treatment, rehabilitation and surveillance for recurrent and multiple cancers, as well as enhancing the care of the terminally ill patient.

Cappuccino Anyone?, has been busy since being started by the Grosse Pointe Farms sister and brother combination, Lara and Jeff Sfire, last May.

After exploring the possibility of having an espresso cart at a hospital, Lara, 18, and Jeff, 14, decided private parties and special events would be more successful.

Their first event, Grosse Pointe's Greatest Garage Sale held in the Village, turned out well. Since then, the pair have served cappuccino at the Hob Noble Gobble fundraiser for America's Greatest Parade at Cobo Hall. The next morning the Sfires served cappuccino at a VIP breakfast for 114 distinguished clowns and their families and friends.

Other events the Sfires have catered include the Grosse Pointe Shores Annual Picnic, the Birmingham Garage Sale, Cruisin' Woodward and private parties and weddings at the Grosse Pointe Yacht Club and the Country Club of Detroit.

Students in Grosse Pointe have been matched with families in France. The exchange begins when French students arrive in Grosse Pointe on March 13 and stay with host families until April 3. Then the Grosse Pointe students who hosted the French students depart for France to stay with the French families. By the time the experience is over, both French and American students have experienced a little bit of each others lives.

Grosse Pointe Academy students collected more than 200 bags of clothing during the holiday season to be donated to the Capuchin Community Center in Detroit. The clothing will be distributed to families in need.

The primary school students at St. Paul Catholic School in Grosse Pointe Farms were thanked recently by Drs. Patricia West and Thad Joos for their donation of 472 books to St. John Hospital for the Rx Reading Program. The books will be used by children waiting for treatment to help them pass the time, which is often lonely and boring.

A cold, icy winter: Season with salt. Pepper with common sense.

Even if you're on a sodium-free diet, don't restrict your use of salt on winter ice. Protect yourself and others from threatening falls and broken bones: apply salt liberally to icy sidewalks, slippery steps and dangerous driveways. And before you and your family brave the elements, the Emergency Department at Bon Secours Hospital offers these winter safety tips:

- Layer Clothing To Avoid Hypothermia: In severe weather, hypothermia can strike fast resulting in uncontrollable shivering, incoherence, slurred speech — even death. Layered clothing — underwear, insulation, outdoor wear and a hat (which can retain up to 50 percent of your body heat) — can help prevent frostbite.
- Shovel Snow Carefully: To avoid overexertion, hypothermia, back strain and possible heart attack (especially in older adults), use snow blowers and ice-melting products when possible.
- Winterize Your Car: Check fluid levels, battery connections, tires and weather conditions before climbing behind the wheel. Pack a blanket for extra warmth... just in case. Handle and store antifreeze carefully. It can be lethal.
- Guard Against Carbon Monoxide Poisoning: Have your furnace checked each year. Install a CO detector near bedrooms for protection and peace of mind.
- Teach Basic Recreational Safety: Make sure ice is solid before crossing, never fish or skate alone, avoid treed areas and horseplay on sleds or skis. Never hitch onto a moving vehicle. Always follow marked trails — and remain alert — when snowmobiling.

With common sense, you can safely enjoy all the winter activities that await this season. But remember, if you do need our help, Bon Secours' Emergency Department is open — and fully staffed to meet your family's urgent care needs — 24 hours a day, 365 days a year.

War Memorial Friends plan 'Evening of Jazz'

New volunteer group will dream up events for the 20, 30 and 40something crowd

By Margie Reine Smith
Feature Editor

The Friends of the Grosse Pointe War Memorial is a new group of volunteers, young adults in the 25-to-50something age group. They're committed to dreaming up interesting events for their peers.

The War Memorial's January and February program of events lists more than 100 different classes for adults, kids and teens, seniors and people with all kinds of special interests.

Club meetings are scheduled for Grosse Pointe veterans, for instance, as well as for sportsmen, skiers, senior ladies, chess players, and more.

Kids can sign up to learn tap dancing or to take driver education. They can get involved with the Grosse Pointe Children's Theatre or attend a Valentine's Day dance for middle school students, for instance.

Adults can select anything from a four-week lecture series on interior design, to several different support groups for people coping with grief, to a series of classes on money management or astrology or parenting or poetry writing, to just about any kind of dancing class imaginable: aerobic, tap, ballet, country and western line, or social.

The 25-to-50 age group seemed neglected, said Barbara Denler, program director for the War Memorial.

"I've always wanted to offer something more for this group. The War Memorial is not just for children and seniors."

Denler said she got on the phone and gathered a bunch of 20, 30 and 40somethings for a meeting.

ular members who meet on the first Tuesday of each month for a social hour from 6:30 to 7 p.m., then a meeting from 7 to 8:30 p.m. No dues.

"We wanted to target people who are about 25 to 50 years old, married, single, new to the community, old-timers, whatever," said Dr. Mary Sue Stonisch, co-chairman of the Friends. "We wanted to introduce them to this wonderful Memorial. The evening will include music by the Jug Horn Jazz Ensemble, hors d'oeuvres, soft drinks and set-ups. Guests may bring their own beer, wine or alcohol.

Stonisch said the group expects some 200 people to attend.

"We don't want to call it a dance," she said. "It will be in the three main rooms of the ple; for people to get together for an inexpensive evening out."

Tickets are $12 a person in advance; $15 at the door.

Other events in the works, according to Stonisch: a road rally on Friday, March 1, trips to Toronto and Cleveland, a summer concert series in addition to the regular Wednesday concerts, and a masquerade party to celebrate Halloween.

Governing board members are Chip Berschback, Barbara Denler, Mirv Hayes, Kevin Simon, Stonisch, David and Susan Tobbe and co-chairman Joe Reed.

"In a year, I'd like to see a base of 100 strong members in the group. I'd like to see an activity scheduled every six weeks or so," Denler said.

"It's a great way to meet new people, to get together with friends and to enjoy an evening out that's close to home."

Anyone who would like to participate in the Friends of the War Memorial, volunteer to assist with future events, or purchase tickets to "An Evening of Jazz," should call (313) 882-2000 or the War Memorial at (313) 881-7511.

"I called some people I knew, the children of some of my friends, my daughter," she said.

The group decided to call itself the Friends of the Grosse Pointe War Memorial. So far, there are about 35 reg-resource at their fingertips — the Grosse Pointe War Memorial."

"An Evening of Jazz," the first event planned by the Friends, will be from 8 p.m. to midnight Saturday, Jan. 27, at the War

Alger House and we'll have entertainment and food, mixes and we'll set up some small, cabaret tables. It's a wonderful opportunity for a group of friends to come together; for newcomers to meet new peo-

The Pastor's Corner

G.P. Jewish Council

By Roger B. Skully

Cantor, religious chairman, Grosse Pointe Jewish Council

The Grosse Pointe Jewish Council had its beginnings at a party in 1989.

Several people put out the word that there would be a gathering to light candles and celebrate the holiday of Chanukah. This festival commemorates the miracle of the rededication of the Temple after the victory of the Maccabees. As it is said in Chanukah prayers, "A great miracle happened there." The army of Judah Maccabee was triumphant over the idolatrous Antiochus. The temple was cleansed and rededicated to God.

A great miracle happened here too. More than 100 people came to light candles and exchange gifts.

The Grosse Pointe Jewish Council was born.

Our charter begins, "The object of this council is to preserve and promote the heritage and traditions of the Jewish religion and culture for the benefit of its membership and the community of Metropolitan Detroit's East Side and to offer an educational and social forum for its members."

Educationally, we have established an active Sunday religious school and have regular lectures and discussion groups that are open to the public as well as to members.

Socially, we have an annual picnic, break-fast dinner after the fast day of Yom Kippur, a book club, a movie club, and gourmet club. We hold religious services for the High Holy Days, Rosh Hashana and Yom Kippur.

There is a congregational Seder for Passover (the Last Supper of Jesus was the Passover meal).

Purim (the feast of Esther) is celebrated with a party and Bar and Bat Mitzvah ceremonies (the religious coming of age of a Jewish child, usually at age 13) combined with Sabbath Services. And, of course, there is Chanukah. For more information, contact the Grosse Pointe Jewish Council at P.O. Box 25031, Detroit, 48225.

For all of our community — every faith and persuasion — we invoke the ancient prayer: Blessed is the Lord our God, ruler of the universe, for giving us life, for sustaining us, and for enabling all of us to reach this season. Amen.

Great Women

She dedicated a lifetime to perfecting the body's surface.

Career options were not abundant for women in the 1800s, yet Harriet Goodhue Hosmer chose to be a sculptor. Her education in the art had many roadblocks, but by 1852 her accomplishments enabled her to study in Rome. Within a few years, she had earned enough success to receive a public commission for the colossal statue of Senator Thomas Hart Benton.

Harriet Goodhue Hosmer is considered the first successful woman sculptor in the U.S. Missouri's Mt. Hosmer is named after her, perhaps the ideal tribute to a woman who created such beauty in stone.

Fear of dentists

By Kevin D. Prush, D.D.S.
Special Writer

Does the thought of going to a dentist make your palms sweat?

Unfortunately, this is a common occurrence. Millions of people have some degree of dental anxiety or fear. Studies show that apprehension itself can increase the likelihood of pain and complications during treatment.

Most dental procedures these days are painless, which should put fears to rest. But if you anticipate pain, you are more likely to experience it than if you have a positive attitude. Fear and anxiety can make your body release the hormone epinephrine as a reaction to stress.

This hormone creates an out-of-control feeling of nausea and nervousness that people experience when they're scared. You may even feel tightness in the chest, a pounding heartbeat, or excessive perspiration, which only makes the dental visit more fearsome.

Instead of becoming obsessed with dental fear, acknowledge it and channel your energy into positive actions.

Here are some suggestions:

1. Choose a dentist you feel comfortable with. Ask friends or relatives for recommendations or call the Michigan Dental Association for a referral (517) 372-9070. The MDA can give you the names of dentists in your area who will understand your feelings.
2. Set up an examination and discussion appointment. Set up some time to meet the dentist and staff, initiate discussion and schedule a preliminary examination. Ask questions about methods and procedures. The more informed you are, the more in control you will feel. Remember that dentists and their staffs are used to patients who feel anxious and they want to relieve their patient's worries.
3. Cut down on caffeine before an office visit. The caffeine contained in coffee, tea and cola drinks can stimulate instead of relax you, adding to your apprehensiveness and may even magnify the situation in your mind.
4. During dental treatment, use headphones to listen to your favorite music or radio station. Dental-office sounds will be muffled by the music, and will help to distract you and relax you.

Women should make New Year's resolutions to plan a healthier, happier, more active 1996

By Dr. George D. Wilbanks
President, the American College of Obstetricians and Gynecologists

Now that the holidays are over, many of us are feeling guilty about the quantity of calories we consumed or are worrying whether we can keep those New Year's resolutions. Here are a few women's health resolutions that are worth keeping:

1. Walk. Don't feel that you have to run for hours every week to improve your fitness and shape. Studies show that lesser amounts of moderate exercise, such as 30 minutes of walking each day — even if done in 10-minute spurts — can help prevent conditions like heart disease and osteoporosis.
2. Eat more fruits and vegetables. Eating more of these foods provides you with essential vitamins and nutrients and makes it easier to keep within dietary goals. Since they help fill you up, you'll crave less of the high-fat or high-sugar foods. They also help protect against conditions like heart disease and colon cancer.

3. Schedule your annual doctor's visit. If you are 18 or over (or younger if you are already sexually active), schedule your annual appointment for a Pap smear, pelvic exam and breast exam. Talk to your physician about whether you should be tested for sexually transmitted diseases. Some other tests you may need:
- Mammogram. If you are over 50, have one each year. If you are in your 40s, talk to your doctor about what is right for you. The American College of Obstetricians and Gynecologists recommends taking this test every one to two years during your 40s.

- Blood pressure. It should be checked every one to two years. Cholesterol levels should be checked every five years after age 18.
- Rectal exams. Have one each year after age 50, earlier if you have a first-degree relative with colon cancer.
- 4. Check your immunizations. Make sure your shots are up to date. Some important shots include an annual influenza vaccine for women 55 or older; a pneumococcal vaccine, needed each year if you are 65 or older; and a tetanus-diphtheria booster, taken once between the ages of 14 and 16, then every 10 years after that. All non-pregnant women of childbearing age should have the rubella/measles vaccine, unless they are already immune. Have the shot at least three months before trying to conceive a baby.

5. Make this the year you stop smoking. If you are a smoker, ask your doctor about new treatments that can help you quit.

Stress classes offered at Bon Secours

Is it a dance class or a fitness program?

With Motor City Funk, you get both. This energetic dance exercise class meets from 4 to 5 p.m. Saturdays, through Feb. 24 at the Grosse Pointe War Memorial.

It's fresh and fun. Motor City Funk puts the hip-hop dance steps made famous by Motown into a beneficial aerobic workout for adults. The class is designed and taught by Ross Fazio, certified personal trainer and dance exercise instructor. The fee is $42. No prior dance experience is necessary.

Grosse Pointe Woods Community Center. Dr. Ken Hutcheson will be the lecturer. For reservations, call (313) 881-7677.

Aerobics offered at Woods Center

A mid-tempo aerobics class will be offered from 6:30 to 7:30 p.m. on Tuesdays and Thursdays from Jan. 23-Feb. 29, at the Grosse Pointe Woods Community Center.

The instructor of the six-week session for people of all fitness levels will be Joan Thornton. The cost is $26. Call (313) 343-2408.

Great Choices

Our understanding goes even deeper.

A blemish on the surface of a statue is one thing, on human skin it's quite another. After all, skin is the largest organ of the body. And just like any other organ, it can develop health problems that need expert medical care. Many times a skin condition is caused by simple irritants, but occasionally the affliction can be a symptom of a more serious health problem within the body.

The dermatologists at Henry Ford Health System on the East Side, like Dr. Catherine Nordby and Dr. Marsha Chaffins, specialize in conditions of the skin while possessing a complete understanding of the rest of the human body and its functions. Their comprehensive approach to dermatology helps ensure a more accurate diagnosis, which means you can be feeling like a work of art again in no time at all.

'Yooper' tales a 'Northern' delight

Northern Reflections,
Northern D'Lights,
Northern Passages
By Jerry Harju.
Avery Color Studios.
Marquette, MI. 123 pages, 151
pages, 147 pages. Soft cover.
$11.95 each.

This picaresque trio of raucous and humorous sketches of the growing-up years of a young man in Michigan's Upper Peninsula are guaranteed to provoke delighted guffaws from amused readers. The author of this light-hearted saga, Jerry Harju, was born in Ishpeming in 1933, and received his grammar and high school education there before going to Ann Arbor where he earned an engineering degree at the University of Michigan in 1957. Although he has spent most of his adult life in California, Harju retains many fond, colorful memories of his old stamping ground which he frequently revisits, seeing relatives and old friends, and to roam nostalgically through the woods where he once hunted, trapped and fished.

"Northern Reflections" has a wonderful passage about reading or the lack of it. Since books at that time and place were not particularly plentiful, Harju explains that "comic books were new in the Upper Peninsula, but they had taken hold like a forest fire. Every kid had become intimately familiar with the exploits of Superman, Captain Marvel, Batman and Robin, Captain America, and the like. The price of 10 cents a copy made it too expensive for everybody to buy the latest monthly edition of their favorites, so there was a lot of trading of used comic books."

Harju's lively sense of humor and his sense of the ridiculous induces a lot of laughs. In another episode, he describes how his "mind drifted back to fond recollections of some of my earlier academic struggles. Miss Barbosa, our first grade teacher, no doubt a direct descendant of the Spanish Grand Inquisitor, had a novel teaching technique: while patrolling the room during penmanship class, if she didn't like your Palmer Method ovals, she would rap the offending hand with her ruler. The ovals became doubly challenging as your fingers went numb."

Speaking of Michigan's favorite winter sport, the author says: "You see, every year during early November, Michigan's sleepy, remote, and usually forgotten Upper Peninsula experienced a phenomenon which was blessed by a few and cursed by most — the influx of deer hunters from Lower Michigan, Wisconsin, Illinois, Ohio, Indiana, and other points south. These were the appleknockers, and they came by land and sea. They roared up from Green Bay, Milwaukee, and Chicago, and they steamed across the Straits of Mackinac on ferry boats which provided the link between the Lower and Upper Peninsulas. During the 1950's the State of Michigan saw fit to abet the invasion by building them the longest suspension bridge in the world across the Straits."

In "Northern D'Lights," the author as a youngster was awed and fascinated by the ski jump used by the Norwegians in Ishpeming, and he finally decided to try the jump. In breathless language, he tells us that "as I rocketed down the hill toward the bump, sitting on the backs of the skis, I quickly assessed the situation, opened my mouth and screamed. As he admits, "my whole life passed before my eyes — taking only a fraction of a second since I hadn't done all that much in six and a half years. I scrunched my eyes shut and braced for sudden death. I shot over the bump — a screaming, large, woolly cannonball with madly gyrating appendages of maple skis and mittens on strings. I had so much backspin that when I first hit the landing I bounced off to the right, churning up snow, disintegrating several sticker bushes, and pulverizing old man Heikkinen's mail box. Fifteen pounds of snow jammed up my nose and into my mouth."

At the gawky age of 15 1/2, Harju bought a Charles Atlas instruction book on how to develop a magnificent torso. As he describes it, "I stood in the middle of the bedroom in my BVD's — feet apart — arms locked in a duel — left hand clasped around the right wrist, pushing down mightily — right forearm resisting this force by pushing upward — my whole body vibrating like a tuning fork. Even my upper and lower teeth were clicking together like castanets."

In "Northern Passages," the third of this madcap trio of funny tales of life up north, has more than its share of ribticklers. Harju, in 1945, moved to a new school where softball was popular:

"Catching a ball in streetball was simple. It was soft and spongy from old age and layers of tape and was extremely sticky from the adhesive. You couldn't drop it if you tried. Even if you totally misjudged the ball's trajectory, you still had a second chance by snagging one of the pieces of unraveled tape that were trailing along behind the ball. But the softball — a gross misnomer — was big, hard, and slick. There was no margin for error. My problem wasn't helped a bit by the regular first baseman, Gertrude Schultz, a sturdy, rosy-cheeked Wisconsin farm girl with the physique and temperament of a rhinoceros. She didn't appreciate being sidelined while I tried out for her position. She sulked behind first base, pawing impatiently on the grass as she critiqued my play."

Harju has a comic portrait of a minister who came to call at the household: "The minister was on the plump side — an occupational hazard of consuming pastries during his many unannounced forays into the congregation's households. However, ice-blue eyes glinting between folds of fat were indicators of the real Xarppi personality. It was well-known that those eyes could bore right into your soul, ferreting out unLutheran-like thoughts and deeds with such speed and precision that your only recourse was to fall on the floor, sobbing out confessions."

Jerry Harju's wit and characterization of the many people he knew in Ishpeming has established him as a writer who can paint in vivid words all the antics and experiences he had in his youth. He has captured the mood of that era of the mid-20th century in all its romantic nonsense and robust humor. The many cartoon drawings gracing the pages of his book display marvelous depictions of Harju and his friends in all their hilarious escapades.

Arts abound this winter in the Pointe

By Carol LaChiusa-DiSanto

As we greet the new year, the Grosse Pointe Arts Council serves up a full plate of goodies for the art lover in us all: dance, theater, music and painting.

An Evening of the Arts is scheduled for Thursday, Jan. 18, at 7:30 p.m. at the Ambleside Gallery, 375 Fisher Road, City of Grosse Pointe, by owner Tom Mayshark.

He will discuss the art of contemporary England using his collection as illustration. His daughter, Ana Mayshark, will explain the cultural dance of India, and her mother, Caroline Mayshark, will accompany her with the carnatic style of vocal music.

Tom Mayshark will then compare the Eastern and Western philosophies of the arts. As usual, there is no charge for the Evening of the Refreshments will be offered at 7:30 p.m.; the program begins at 8 p.m.

Everyone needs a good laugh this time of year, and the Grosse Pointe Theatre's production "I Hate Hamlet" is just the ticket. The comedy will run Jan. 16 through Feb. 3, at the Grosse Pointe War Memorial.

If good music is your forte, The Tuesday Musicale has scheduled a concert on Tuesday, Jan. 16, at 10:30 a.m. The performance will be in the Crystal Ballroom at the Grosse Pointe War Memorial.

To ward off the winter cold with more music, attend the Grosse Pointe Symphony Orchestra concert on Sunday, Feb. 4, at 3 p.m. in the Parcels auditorium. The featured artist will be Detroit symphony flutist Philip Dikeman.

The Grosse Pointe Chamber Music group has concerts planned for Sunday, Jan. 21, and Sunday Feb. 18, each with three different ensembles.

COUNCIL CORNER

Both concerts begin at 2:30 p.m.

As of Jan. 1, season tickets for five concerts are available for $10; single performance, non-member tickets are $5.

Mack Avenue Framing Gallery will feature artist Sandra Cardew in January. She is a celebrated artist and photographer. The exhibit will feature her hand-colored silver prints. In February, the featured artist will be Laura Rodin, who does quilted pictorial art. Stop in at the gallery located at 18743 Mack, south of Moross.

The marvelous Lyric Chamber Ensemble will perform on Sunday, Feb. 25, at 3:30 p.m. at the Grosse Pointe War Memorial. They will feature the Miraculous Chanteaux Sisters.

The Grosse Pointe Arts Council wishes all of you a happy and melodious New Year. May you benefit from the resources of our wonderful community.

The Grosse Pointe Arts Council is the "link between the arts," serving as the catalyst for these groups and helping them to interact with each other.

Swim classes offered for all levels by Community Education

If your New Year's resolutions included a promise to get fit (or stay fit) in 1996, or if you simply want to have fun, Grosse Pointe Community Education has a swimming program for you.

Program supervisor John Fundukian said everyone from novices to master swimmers, including swimmers with special needs, will find a class to suit their ability level and interests.

For the adult with no swimming experience, Community Education's beginner class for adults (Saturdays, starting Jan. 20, 8-9 a.m., Parcels pool) offers a convenient way to learn basic swimming and water safety skills. This morning program is reserved for adult beginning swimmers only. Taught by George Bay, who has helped countless novices overcome their fear of water and their fear of failure, this class is an ideal choice for the adult beginner. The course fee is $54 for nine weeks.

Swimmers of all ages and skill levels can participate in drop-in recreational swims at the Parcels pool starting Jan. 19. Friday swims are available from 7:30 to 9 p.m.

Saturday swims are available from noon to 1 p.m. No instruction is provided, and admittance is on a first come-first served basis. All drop-in swims are $3 per person.

Swimmers with special needs (such as a physical limitation, developmental disability, or recent surgery or illness) will enjoy Community Education's special needs swim, held Thursday evenings (6:30-7:30 p.m.) at the Brownell pool. One-on-one assistance is provided in this instructional and recreational swim program, which begins Jan. 18. The course fee is $60 for 10 weeks. Parents of special needs children may swim with their children at no extra charge. Instructors for the special needs swim are George Bay and Diane Zedan.

Looking for a summer job as a lifeguard? If so, you'll want to take Community Education's lifeguard training class, beginning Wednesday, Jan. 17, at the Grosse Pointe North High School pool. Instructor Tina Higel will teach preventive lifeguarding techniques and revised equipment rescue procedures. Students must be at least 15 years old and must successfully complete a preliminary swimming test during the first class meeting. Professional Rescuer CPR and First Aid certification is included in this course. Tuition is $160 for 10 weeks (payable to Community Education); book fee is $33.81 (payable to American Red Cross).

Lifeguards seeking certification as water safety instructors will want to take Community Education's water safety instructor course, which begins March 6 at the Parcels pool.

Taught by Diane Zedan, this course is open only to registrants with current Lifeguard Training certification. (Students must be at least 17 years of age by March 1, 1996, in order to register.)

The course fee is $100 for 10 weeks (payable to Community Education); book fee is $85 (payable to American Red Cross). The water safety instructor course is conducted on Wednesdays from 6 to 10 p.m.

Course catalogs describing these classes and other Community Education programs are available at the Community Education office in Barnes School (20090 Morningside Drive in Grosse Pointe Woods), the Pointe Plaza branch of Barnes & Noble, the Grosse Pointe Woods Community Center, all Grosse Pointe public libraries, the Jefferson Branch of the Detroit Public Library, and the public libraries of St. Clair Shores, Harper Woods, and Eastpointe.

If you wish to register for a class, you may do so by mail or

Spurr sparks Blue Devils

Nat Spurr won a pair of freestyle races last week to lead Grosse Pointe South's swimming team to a 119-49 victory over Fraser in its first Macomb Area Conference Red Division meet.

Spurr won the 200-yard freestyle and came back to take first place in the 500 freestyle.

Other individual winners for the Blue Devils, 2-1 overall, were diver C.J. Hurd, 189.30 points; Tim Kimmel, 100 butterfly, 1:07.34; Cory Winingier, 100 backstroke, 1:03.9; and John McLellan, FAX at any time or in person Monday through Friday from 8 a.m. to 4 p.m., at the community education office.

For additional information about Community Education's swimming programs, call John Fundukian, program supervisor, Department of Community Education, at (313) 343-2178.

100 freestyle, 53.95.

South won two relay races. The team of Scott VandeVusse, Pat Spain, Kimmel and McLellan won the 200 medley relay in 1:53.14, while the 200 freestyle relay team of Paul Dykstra, Kimmel, Martin Linclau-Miller and Nat Spurr took first.

Other good swims were turned in by freshman Charlie Gauss, who finished second in the 500 freestyle in 5:36.1 and Spain, who was runner-up in the 100 breaststroke in 1:10.87.

North pair wins twice

Jeff Sheldon and Mike O'Connor each won two events last week, but Grosse Pointe North's swimming team still dropped its Macomb Area Conference Red Division opener to Ford II 94-91.

Sheldon achieved a state-qualifying time in winning the 200-yard individual medley and also won the 100 butterfly. O'Connor's firsts were in the 200 freestyle and 100 backstroke.

Adam Ziegler gave the Norsemen a first place in the 500 freestyle.

North had good efforts from divers Joe Ogilvy, Chadd Bender and David Caldwell, who finished second, third and fourth, respectively.

Other good swims came from Paul Simon, 100 backstroke; Rory Cleary, 100 butterfly; Jim Malinowski, 100 backstroke; John Finkelmann, 100 freestyle; David Nielubowicz, 100 freestyle; and Brent Nielubowicz, 200 freestyle relay and 100 breaststroke.

South does well

Grosse Pointe South's gymnastics team opened the season with a 121.70 loss to Royal Oak Kimball last week, but the Blue Devils had a lot to be happy about.

Jameson Lowden had an outstanding meet. She received regional qualifying scores in all four events.

Jocelyn Lorenger also performed well, especially in floor exercise and vaulting.

Freshman Lindsey White competed in all four events and received regional qualifying scores in vault and balance beam.

said. "That's where you get the chance to pick up some medals."

South wound up fifth in the nine-team field.

Earlier, the Blue Devils rolled past a pair of non-league opponents, crushing Highland Park 70-12 and defeating Warren Woods-Tower 63-15.

In the Highland Park match, Dwaihy won by a decision at 125 pounds, while Hill (140), Corey Schrader (145), Rob Riethmiller (171), Meyers (189) and Dan Roth (215) each won on falls.

All but one of South's victories came on pins against Woods-Tower.

Winners by falls were Dwaihy, Matt DiPonio (135), Hill, Kris Cernok (152), T.J. Mooney (161). Meyers won a decision.

In both matches, the Blue Devils picked up several victories on voids by their opponents.

South dropped a 56-24 decision to Brother Rice in a non-league match.

Kevin Messacar (103), Dwaihy (119), Hill (140) and Cernok (145) were the Blue Devils' winners and they each got pins.

Meyers wrestled well in losing a 4-3 decision to one of the Warriors' top wrestlers.

South begins Macomb Area Conference Blue Division action tonight, Jan. 11, when it hosts L'Anse Creuse at 6:30.

"They're going to be tough," Carr said.

"They took pretty good care of Cousino last week and we thought Cousino would have a decent team."

Big Reds a tough test for South

By Chuck Klonke
Sports Editor

Chippewa Valley's Kevin Voss has one of those problems every high school basketball coach would like to have.

"Our kids might almost be too talented," said Voss, whose Big Reds improved their record to 6-0 last Friday with a 58-47 victory at Grosse Pointe South.

"Sometimes when you have as much talent as we do, you don't concentrate on doing all the little things. You rely too much on your talent."

Among the Big Reds' starters are 6-foot-6 twins Mark and Matt Loughhead. Matt was one of the top quarterbacks in the state this year and has made a verbal commitment to play football at Central Michigan. And 6-3 guard Omari Gordon is being recruited by several NCAA Division I basketball programs.

Even with that talent, Chippewa Valley had to work to beat South. The game was tied at 23-all with less than a minute and a half to play in the first half.

"We wanted to control the tempo and make them play our game, not theirs," said Blue Devils' coach George Petrouleas. "We did a pretty good job of that, but we didn't take real good care of the basketball. We can't give a team like that the easy baskets."

The Big Reds took advantage of some costly South turnovers to end the first half with a 9-0 run that sent them to the locker room with a 32-23 lead. The Loughheads and Gordon combined for all nine of the points.

An 11-0 run late in the third quarter boosted Chippewa Valley's lead to 47-31 after the Blue Devils had sliced the margin to five points midway through the period.

Once again it was the Loughheads who led the way with nine of the Big Reds' points in the surge.

Mark Loughhead finished with 19 points, Gordon had 16 and Matt Loughhead added 11.

Charlie Wascher led South with 21 points and 10 rebounds. Chad Defever added six points filling in for starting forward Joe Kaiser, who suffered a broken hand in practice during the holiday break.

"We've made some progress since the start of the year," Petrouleas said. "We hope to keep making progress and we'd like to get the 'Ws' while we're improving."

The defeat left South with a 2-3 overall record. The Blue Devils open the Macomb Area Conference White Division season Friday at Utica.

Pointers do well in family fun run

Several Grosse Pointe residents finished among the leaders at the 26th annual Detroit Edison Belle Isle New Year's Eve Family Fun Run/Walk.

Bridgit Scallen of Grosse Pointe Park was second in the girls 12 and under mile run with a time of 7:04. She was one second behind winner Joanne Fleming of Sterling Heights.

Elena Sutut of the Park was third in 7:29 and Hillary Miller of Grosse Pointe Woods took fourth in 7:30.

Three Pointers were among the top 10 in the boys 12 and under mile run. Evan O'Donnell of the Park was sixth (7:44), Robbie Porter of the Park eighth (7:49) and Danny Majeski of Grosse Pointe Farms ninth (7:52). Thirteen-year-old Natalie Potthoff of the Woods was fourth in the women's open mile in 8:52. Michelle Ross of the City of Grosse Pointe was 10th.

Pat Butler of the Park was third in the men's open mile with a time of 5:07.

PLEASE DON'T DELAY! SPAY or NEUTER YOUR PET TODAY!
An altered pet is a healthier and happier companion. Also, it spares you the grief and pain of having puppies and kittens destroyed when no homes can be found. Countless numbers of sweet, innocent little ones are euthanized every day in shelters across the country because a pet wasn't spayed or neutered. If we cut down on the number of unwanted litters being born, we will also cut down on the number of abandoned, lost and unwanted animals to destroy.

WE WILL BE HAPPY TO PROVIDE ADVICE as well as a LIST OF ECONOMICAL SERVICE SOURCES

VOL. 5, NO. 1

January 11, 1993

Seed catalogs help you think spring this winter

January is seed catalog time. A wonderful way to spend a cold January afternoon is to peruse the brilliant, colorful pages and dream of next summer's garden.

Looking at pictures of perfect roses, phenomenal vegetables and fruits and perfect lawns, we can almost feel July heat and smell summer fragrance. What does not come to mind, however, are insect bites, debilitating humidity and garden blights. We don't want to think about all that. July will be soon enough. Now is the time for wishful thinking.

Seed catalogs are really more than just wishful thinking and collections of pretty pictures. Skilled gardeners know that the best ones are also growing manuals that contain valuable information on gardening methods, new developments and products. Many catalogs also offer free growing guides with any seed order. Many companies also have staff horticulturists who are available all year to answer questions and give valuable advice.

Most catalogs are free, but even the ones who charge a small fee are worth it, if only for the contrast with cold and snow in this dark month of the aftermath of holiday excitement. They are a nice change from the facing of end-of-the-year bills and beginning-of-the-year taxes.

House plants come into their own in January too. This includes Christmas poinsettias, which have a way of lingering on for months until they begin to look dated in competition with the onset of spring blossoms.

Greenhouses take on a new importance in mid-winter. In the 18th century many large houses had orangeries, designed in a simple, classical style located a short distance from the house.

The idea was that a short walk would enhance the delight of their tropical atmosphere as one came in out of the cold. (Indeed, this would still be true. Nothing could be more glamorous than to look up through the glass roof at snow drifting down while basking in warm, and fragrant summer air.)

Early in the 19th century

greenhouses were called conservatories and were attached to the house.

It was recommended that a vista be created by attaching a conservatory to the drawing room and placing a large mirror at the end of the leafy bower to create a "flower tunnel."

A noted landscape designer in 1816 advocated a sort of lobby between the conservatory and the drawing room "to prevent the damp earth smell," but the Victorians happily threw this advice to the winds.

In many smaller houses, the only window in the drawing room opened directly into the subtropical atmosphere of the conservatory, thereby ensuring a dark room in winter and an airless one in summer.

Later in the century the Edwardians changed the name of the erstwhile orangery-greenhouse-conservatory again and called it a "winter garden."

Potted palms wore the most popular plants found in winter gardens. If the winter garden was large enough, it was a popular place to entertain, with the hostess serving afternoon tea.

Houseplants also have a very long history. In fact, they were important in the houses of Pompeii. Horticulturists have studied the ash-preserved plants found there to determine much information about house plants of that time.

Most of the citizens of Pompeii had extensive gardens at their country estates and farms, but had houseplants in their town-houses.

Houses have an affinity to plants anyway. Anyone familiar with medieval customs in Europe and England knows that there has long been a custom of placing a green shrub or bush at the pinnacle of a new house to ensure good health and good luck for the people who will inhabit it.

Throughout the Dark Ages it was a common belief that a leek plant should be placed on a new house as the best protection against lightning, fire, witches and evil spirits.

Charlemagne, king of the Franks and first emperor of the Holy Roman Empire, issued a law in the 8th century forcing every householder and innkeeper to place a leek plant on the roof of his dwelling.

All of this shows what diverse trains of thought can result from the reading of seed catalogs.

Money available for home improvement grants

Most homeowners are unaware that regardless of their income there are federal, state and local programs that will help them repair and remodel their homes.

Government at all levels recognizes that neighborhoods are the basis of life in our country. When a neighborhood deteriorates, many things happen both physically and socially. When the homes look shabby, a neighborhood seems more attractive to crime and criminals.

As homes become shabby looking and in need of maintenance, the residents lose their desire to keep up the neighborhood.

Streets become receptacles for trash, schools lower their standards and very quickly the selling price of homes in the area drops sharply. This accelerates the cycle of degeneration.

In order to keep and maintain the nation's housing and neighborhoods, government at all levels has programs to give homeowners money (that does not have to be repaid) for repairs or to lend them money at below market levels or at no interest.

In many areas utility companies will either do energy conservation work free or at low cost and in other places will lend homeowners money at no interest to pay the contractor of their choice for the necessary work. In addition there are tax incentives to promote efficient energy use.

These programs are not restricted to low-income people, slum areas or urban neighborhoods.

Owners of single or multi-family dwellings are eligible. While the grants to not have to be repaid, most of the loans offer low or no interest, long terms and low payments.

Some of the other home improvements covered under these programs are attic and wall insulation, new windows, outer wall siding, security doors and locks, window guards, sidewalks and masonry work, bathrooms and kitchens, electrical and plumbing, new roofs, gutters, and downspouts.

Consumer Education Research Center, a national non-profit consumer group formed in 1969, has just published the 208-page, 1994 edition of "Consumers Guide to Home Repair Grants and Subsidized Loans" ($16.95 plus $3 postage and handling from CERC GRANTS, 1980 Springfield Ave., Maplewood, N.J. 07040, or 1-800-872-0121) which lists over 7,000 sources of loan and grant programs offered by federal, state and local government, utility companies and others; typical programs offered and how to qualify. Form letters for inquiries to these loan and grant sources are included as well as detailed instructions on determining your debt-to-income ratio for eligibility.

"Some programs have no income ceiling and others allow income of as much as $50,000 per year or more," said Robert L. Berko, executive director of CERC. "There are even programs for which tenants are eligible and many allow loans to poor credit risks. In many areas, people with disabilities can receive grants to pay for needed repairs such as access ramps and widening of doorways."

Since it is important that the work be done properly, the book includes a section describing the rough cost of many jobs as well as advice on picking a contractor, negotiating a contract, and ensuring that the work is done properly and for a fair price.

And to help you communicate with your contractor, lawyer and lender, the book includes a dictionary of terms used by these professionals.

Michigan triples number of aerosol can recyclers

Less than a year after kicking off a statewide public information campaign to increase the number of aerosol containers being recycled, Gordon Guyer, director of the Michigan Department of Agriculture (MDA), says "Michigan Recycles Aerosols!" is a success.

"The number of Michigan recyclers accepting aerosol containers has increased from 20 programs last fall to 60 today, serving nearly three million Michigan consumers," said Guyer. "Today there are programs in more than 40 counties, including 200 cities, 15 townships and five villages recycling aerosols as part of their steel collection efforts."

"Michigan Recycles Aerosols!" is an environmental education program sponsored and supported by a coalition of government, industry, academic and environmental organizations.

Coordinated by the Michigan Department of Agriculture, its goals are to reduce reliance on landfills, prevent groundwater contamination, conserve energy and expand steel recycling by increasing the number of empty aerosol cans being recycled.

The Michigan program began at the suggestion of the manufacturers who produce specialty chemical products and the steel industry, which needs recycled steel to make new steel. About 1,200 communities across the country, including Philadelphia and Houston, were already including aerosols in their recycling efforts, but no statewide program had been attempted until the Michigan Department of Agriculture agreed to create and implement such an effort.

Aerosol container recycling began in earnest after the U. S. Environmental Protection Agency, only a few years ago, endorsed and encouraged the recycling of empty aerosol containers, including those that contained pesticides.

With funding from fees paid by specialty pesticide manufacturers to the Michigan Groundwater and Freshwater Protection Fund, Michigan's collaborative effort began Feb. 6, 1995, at the Southeastern Oakland County Resource Recovery Authority (SOCRRA) materials recovery facility in Troy.

Representatives from the program's sponsors, including MDA, the Steel Recycling Institute, the Chemical Specialties Manufacturers Association, Michigan State University and the Michigan Department of Natural Resources attended the kickoff.

The Michigan Environmental Council was also on hand to endorse the project.

The public information campaign included clever public service announcements, created by a Detroit ad agency, for radio, television and newspapers.

Actor Tim Allen supported the campaign by placing a "Michigan Recycles Aerosols!" recycling bin on the set of the hit show "Home Improvement" and wearing a logoed T-shirt on the Feb. 21 episode.

Information about the program appeared on the Internet and in the national and international media, attracting inquiries from around the world. The Chemical Specialties Manufacturers Association and Steel Recycling Institute now consider "Michigan Recycles Aerosols!" a model for other states considering similarly ambitious programs.

"Until we recycle every scrap of steel, including the high quality steel in aerosol cans, our work isn't really done but we've had a tremendously successful start," Guyer said.

He added that if every Michigan resident had access to aerosol recycling, Michigan could collect 2.1 million pounds of aerosol cans each year, providing more steel to make valuable new products while protecting the environment.

"Every few years we discover new ways to become better stewards of the earth," said Guyer. "Recycling aerosol containers is a new and easy way to expand that commitment."

For more information about "Michigan Recycles Aerosols!," call MDA at (517) 373-1104. For information about aerosol recycling, contact the Steel Recycling Institute at 1-800-876-7274.

Ten free trees from the Arbor Day Foundation

Ten free flowering trees will be given to each person who joins The National Arbor Day Foundation during January 1996.

The free trees are part of the nonprofit foundation's Trees for America campaign.

The 10 trees are: two white flowering dogwoods, two flowering crabapples, two golden rain trees, two Washington hawthorns and two American redbuds.

"These compact trees were selected for planting in large or small spaces," said John Rosenow, the foundation's president. "They will give your home the beauty of lovely pink, white and yellow flowers."

The trees will be shipped postpaid at the right time for planting, between Feb. 1 and May 31, with enclosed planting instructions.

Members also receive a subscription to the foundation's bimonthly publication Arbor Day, and the tree book with information about tree planting and care.

To become a member of the foundation and to receive the free trees, send a $10 contribution to Ten Free Flowering Trees, National Arbor Day Foundation, 100 Arbor Ave., Nebraska City, Neb. 68410, by Jan. 31.

Recycling is not a new idea. Our ancestors were thrifty and careful about throwing anything away that could be reused. Cigar boxes, bottle caps, tin cans, colorful cigar bands, Popsicle sticks, broken dishes and matchsticks were all "recycled" to make decorative or useful objects for the home.

Broken china teapots were mended. Quilts were made from small scraps of cloth. Toys and decorations were made by stringing bottle caps or cutting tin cans. Cigar bands were pasted inside clear glass vases to make designs that looked like decorated china. Broken dishes were pasted into mosaics on vases or planters.

Most tedious of all to create were the boxes made from burnt matchsticks. Hundreds of matchsticks were glued on a wooden box to make a pattern of lines. The finished piece looks as if it were made of more expensive inlaid wood. Matchstick boxes are sold today as examples of folk art, because each was a one-of-a-kind creation by an ambitious amateur.

Several readers have sent additional information about the Cape Cod Shop and the brass container and rod it made.

The rod had a stone wired on the bottom. It was advertised as a Cape Cod Lighter. The cylindrical container was filled with kerosene. The stone absorbed the fluid, and you could light the stone and, holding the metal rod, put the fire under the logs.

Many of the lighters have been made and sold in gift shops in the past 50 years.

We have a tin "Centennial Torch" that is similar. A porous stone is attached to a rod with a wooden handle.

The instructions say, "Fill the tin with two inches of kerosene or combustible fluid ... roll in ashes, then light with a match."

After the fire is lit, the instructions say to "extinguish the torch by holding the fire end from you and blowing hard along the torch."

The instructions also suggest that the torch is good for "thawing out frozen water pipes, destroying caterpillar nests in fruit trees or burning brush piles." The lighter was patented in 1876. Similar fire starters were used earlier.

We hope no one carelessly put the still-hot stone into the kerosene container.

The Cape Cod lighter looks very much like a mulled cider set, but the cider set has an all-metal poker, not a stone.

Q. My mother has some brown glass flasks. They have raised designs of George Washington and the American flag. The tops screw on.

A. General Foods packaged Log Cabin syrup in special bottles commemorating the American Bicentennial in 1976.

The flask-shaped bottles were decorated with a cornucopia, the "Spirit of '76," marchers, the Liberty Bell, Mount Rushmore, an eagle or a log cabin. Most of them had "1776" on the front of the bottle.

The screw-top lids were made to resemble corks.

Tip: Nuts and bolts on old furniture hardware should be removed carefully. Wrap pliers with masking tape to protect the brass. Old brass is often soft.
