

Grosse Pointe's X-file gets attention far and wide

By Jim Stickford
Staff Writer

What started out as a simple report on the Grosse Pointe Woods police blotter has turned into an interstate investigation of UFOs.

A St. Clair Shores couple, who saw the UFO, called the Cranbrook Planetarium to see if anything was prominent in the night sky of Jan. 21. They were told that the planet Mars was very prominent. When they saw the report in the Grosse Pointe News, they were relieved to learn that they weren't the only people who saw the light.

Lakeview, Ohio, resident John P. Timmerman contacted the Grosse Pointe News last week after a reader informed him of a police brief that appeared in the paper detailing a sighting of an unidentified flying object (UFO). The reader had seen the object as well, and was familiar with the Chicago-based Dr. J. Allen Hynek Center for UFO Studies.

Timmerman, a member of the group, said it was started by Hynek, an astrophysicist who consulted with the U.S. Air Force on its Project Bluebook, which investigated sightings of UFOs.

The Hynek group, said Timmerman, is an international agency that looks for rational explanations to UFO sighting reports. It produces scientific journals and tries to be objective over the issue of UFOs.

"We try to keep an open mind," Timmerman said. "Remember, nothing in science is proven, it's just failed to be disproven. When that happens often enough, it is considered a dependable scientific concept. Which is why it's important to always seek a rational explanation when a UFO report is made."

So, Timmerman added, the Hynek group is attempting to offer an explanation for the UFO sighting on the morning of Tuesday, Jan. 21. According to the police report, several witnesses said they saw a red light in the sky drifting west. Timmerman

Woods council ponders joining the local chamber of commerce

By Jim Stickford
Staff Writer

While many Grosse Pointe Woods councilmembers think it's a good idea to join the Metro East Chamber of Commerce, they don't think it's a good idea to pay $3,500 for the privilege.

At a recent Woods council meeting representatives from the chamber asked the Woods council to formally join the group. Donald Housey, speaking on behalf of the chamber, said that the annual fee is $500 and that the chamber is also asking the city to pay a $3,000 one-time initiation fee.

Housey said that the chamber will be approaching other Grosse Pointe city councils later and that the Woods was just the first city they went to. When petitioning the council, Housey pointed out what the chamber does in general and what it could do for the Woods. Recent chamber projects included renovation of Gratiot in Roseville, work on the Nautical Mile in St. Clair Shores and a host of programs and meetings for business people, as well as programs for others, including the Senior Expo held at Assumption Church.

Woods mayor Robert Novitke said that he was a member of the chamber because of his law practice, and he believed that the chamber had programs that provided a definite benefit to the community. But Novitke also said that spending $3,500 to join seemed a little high.

Councilman Eric Steiner, who chairs the council's budget committee, said he would like to see specific programs that would benefit the Woods before voting to spend $3,500.

"I see positives in joining the chamber, but I would like to see what we would get out of it before joining," Steiner said.

Farms boat well fees unchanged until '98 season

By Amy Andreou Miller
Staff Writer

The cost of keeping a boat at the Grosse Pointe Farms Pier Park will increase by 3 percent for the summer of 1998.

The City Council unanimously approved the increase at its Feb. 3 meeting, based on the recommendations from the 10-person Parks and Harbor Committee.

The Farms charges among the highest prices for keeping larger boats at its docks — those are boats approximately 29 feet to 35 feet.

But it offers the cheapest prices for keeping smaller boats at its docks — those are boats that are 15 to 20 feet.

The Farms parks director Dick Huhn said that their low cost rates for small boats are such because, "frankly our system is a little more primitive than some of the other cities."

For example, the Farms offers floating buoys, instead of fixed pylons to which to anchor a small boat. Also, the Farms is not able to offer dock boxes (a box to store boating gear on site) to people who have rented the smaller boat wells.

However, their boat wells for the larger crafts are top-notch, Huhn said.

Farms city leaders also emphasized that its rates, in general, are comparable to the other four Pointes, and much cheaper than most commercial marinas. (See accompanying chart for the boat rates for all five Grosse Pointes.)

The last price increase for having a boat well in the Farms was 1995.

That price increase, as well as this one, are done simply to keep abreast of the costs to provide maintenance to the docks and staff the area, including security at night, said Farms city manager Rick Solak.

Data regarding predictions of rising water are also reviewed to see if money needs to be kept aside "to raise the planking," or elevate the docks, Solak said.

Within the last five years, the lake water levels rose so high that the plank walkways people need to traverse to get to their boats were about a foot below water.

About 335 residents are on one of the two waiting lists. There's a one-time fee of $50 to be placed on the waiting lists. Most of the same names that appear on the waiting list for a boat well for a boat about 23 feet or less, are also on the list for a boat well for a boat as large as 35 feet.

"Since it takes a few years to get a well, people are not sure what size boat they may have at that time," Solak said.

Boaters can expect to wait two to three years to get small boat well, and eight to 10 years to get a large one.

Extra road salt in Woods is the pits for the streets

By Jim Stickford
Staff Writer

It's been a busy winter for the Grosse Pointe Woods department of public works. Just ask director Thomas Whitcher.

Before reordered road salt arrived, said Whitcher, the city was down to about 20 tons of it, which is equal to about two truck loads or trips around the city.

"When we salt the roads, we use between 80 and 90 tons of salt," Whitcher said. "This year we used so much salt that I saw the back of the salt bin since we built it eight years ago."

The bin, said Whitcher, moving into the area, the chamber does provide them with information about the local communities, and that's a service. But the city department heads will meet on Feb. 14 to talk about the budget for the next fiscal year. I don't want to make a decision until we have a better idea of all the city's budget needs."

Councilman Bill Wilson said that he thought joining the chamber was a good idea, but not at a cost of $3,500. Wilson suggested that representatives from the city and the chamber meet to discuss a less expensive initiation fee. Steiner and Novitke agreed, as did councilman Thomas Fahrner.

The council voted to delay acting on the chamber's request until after city budget hearings were held. Housey asked that the council act before the beginning of June, when the chamber's fiscal year begins. Novitke assured him that the council would reach a decision before June.

said that sounds like a red flare drifting in the wind.

"It's very possible that someone shot off a military flare," Timmerman said. "That would explain why it appeared to float, appeared to be shooting fireworks. What our group needs is someone to confirm if that's what happened. It can be the person who shot off the flare or someone who knows them. We're not the police; we keep things confidential."

Anyone with information on what happened in the early morning of Jan. 21, can call Timmerman at (937) 843-3834.

holds 1,000 tons of salt. The department ordered more salt when the storage bin was a quarter full. But the city was only sent a few loads, and they went right onto the roads, so it was touch-and-go for a while, he said. But now the city has about 500 tons of salt stored away.

"We keep someone on stand-by all the time," said Whitcher.

"When it starts to snow, the public safety department keeps watch and notifies whoever is on call if the snow starts sticking. The person on call then decides how many people to bring in to handle the snow."

If the roads, said Whitcher, just need salting, then three people are called in. If they also need plowing, six people are called in. In a very heavy snow, six inches and up, the entire department of 20 people can be called in to handle the situation.

People have to remember, Whitcher said, that plowing and salting all the streets in the Woods in a heavy storm takes time. Crews have to do all the streets, sidewalks, public parking lots and city parks.

In addition to draining the city's salt supplies, the winter weather has played havoc with city streets, said Whitcher.

When snow melts into water, it gets between cracks in the street. When the outside temperature drops, the water freezes, expanding and causing potholes.

"We're filling the potholes with coldpatch as we observe them," said Whitcher. "If residents see a big pothole and report it to us, we will fill it. Mostly, we're getting potholes in streets where there are old patches there already. Winter still has a few weeks to go, so we won't know the extent of the damage to roads until the spring."

Woods council agrees to no pay increase

By Jim Stickford
Staff Writer

The question of whether the job of Grosse Pointe Woods city councilperson is a form of public service or a paid position came up at Monday's council meeting when the city's local officer's compensation committee recommended that the council receive no pay raise.

The position of councilmember in the Woods pays $1,000 a year. The mayor's salary is $1,500. The compensation committee reviews the pay of the council and other elected and appointed positions in city government every year.

This year, as in the past several years, the committee recommended that the council receive no pay increase. Thomas Sullivan, compensation committee chairman, said that the group strongly debated the issue, which boiled down to whether or not the job was one of public service with an honorarium or whether it was a paid political office.

Sullivan also told the council that Woods voters, in last November's election, voted against amending the city charter's provisions on council pay. He said that the committee didn't wish to go against the will of the people.

The compensation commission debated the issue seriously, said Sullivan. In the end it took the position that the job of councilmember is one of public service, and there should be no additional compensation.

This did not please councilmember Thomas Fahrner, who said that the public should understand that the council meets up to 50 times a year as a body. That does not include the time councilmembers spend on committee assignments and on studying the issues.

"I feel the citizens must feel that we are overpaid because they turned down the pay increase," said Fahrner. "They approved the pay increase for the municipal court judge, and I'm delighted to see that go through. But we don't serve on the council for the money, and I feel people don't appreciate the amount of time we put in."

In the end the council declined to overrule the compensation committee's position on raises. Former councilman Peter Gilezan currently serves on the compensation committee. He said that he appreciates both sides of the issue.

"I don't think it's a matter of either/or in regards to the question of whether the position of councilman is a public service or a paid political office," Gilezan said. "I think it's a combination of both positions. We need people committed to the community and to enhancing the quality of life.

But on the other hand, the job is a paid political position. A councilmember can't delegate away his vote or his responsibility to some other city official."

Gilezan also said that with local governments becoming responsible for more and more complicated issues like Milk River, they are entitled to more than just $1,000 a year. If the public had not rejected pay raises just 90 days earlier, he said he would have pushed the issue a little more.

Shores officer to share training with department

By Amy Andreou Miller
Staff Writer

Grosse Pointe Shores public safety officers are receiving some special training this week, and the teacher is one of their own.

Lt. David Younk attended the annual Law Enforcement Training Seminar and Expo two weeks ago, held this year in Buffalo, N.Y.

After 48 hours of classes over the course of five days, Younk said he does not feel overwhelmed, rather exhilarated at the opportunity to have attended the conference and share his new-found knowledge with his Shores colleagues.

"I've never had the opportunity to attend a national-level seminar like this before," said Younk, who has been with the Shores force for 14 years.

"Our police department is very focused toward continual training; it is great to be a part of that," said Younk, who has been an instructor in various police tactics for eight years at Macomb Community College.

In fact, the Grosse Pointe Shores department engages in three training sessions per month — one pertaining to police skills, one for boosting firefighting skills, and one for continual EMS training (Emergency Medical Service).

Considering Grosse Pointe Shores public safety department, begun in 1911, has always been a combined police and firefighting department, it is the oldest public safety company in the country, and has a long history in making sure their officers are receiving continual information pertaining to both fields.

For example, last month, a training session was held at the Shores park so that the officers could brush up on their skills in extracting someone from a car using equipment commonly known as "the jaws of life." Adding to the realism of the training session, it was held at 2 a.m. because most automobile accidents occur in the early morning hours.

So while many people were busy watching the Super bowl, Younk had just returned from the national conference and was organizing a duffel bag full of flyers he received there and copious notes he took during lectures.

He attended 18 classes on a variety of subjects, including use of force and officer survival, vehicle pursuit and stop, ethics, leadership, and use of verbal commands to facilitate better teamwork among officers when fighting a fire.

Find it doubtful that officers in peaceful Grosse Pointe Shores would have an occasion to fire their gun, and reciprocally, receive gunfire?

Younk emphasized, "All police forces, regardless of how peaceful their community seems, should learn such preventive measures. God willing, I hope we never have to use deadly force, or receive it."

However, police statistics for crimes committed within Grosse Pointe Shores during the 1996 show about 80 incidences in which the person(s) committing the crime was under the influence of mind-altering substances, such as various narcotics and alcohol — a condition in which suspects are more likely to act erratically, including aiming a weapon at an officer approaching the suspect's vehicle.

Furthermore, Younk pointed out that, unfortunately, the national monument dedicated to officers killed on duty stretches over several walls. Many officers were from towns categorized as small and peaceful.

Eastside Republicans elect officers

The Eastside Republican Club elected officers for the coming year. Re-elected chairman was John Stempfle. The new vice chair is Alice Baetz. Others re-elected were secretary Bob Cosgrove and treasurer Terry Davis. New directors at large are Mary Kedzeor, Lita McKedhan and James Odell.

Retiring vice chair Susan Gillooly will become chairman of the Eastside Republican Club Political Action Committee (ERC PAC). Retiring directors at large are Alice Baetz, Eugenie Durant and Thomas R. McCleary, Jr. Mr. McCleary will become membership committee chairman and Art Kuehne continues his appointment as sergeant at arms.

ERC PAC treasurer John Petz reported that $7,900 was raised in 1995-96. Most was spent on advertisements in the non-partisan judicial campaign. Twelve of the 13 judges supported were re-elected including all of Gov. Engler's appointees.

The next monthly ERC Forum is Tuesday, Feb. 18, at 7:30 p.m. at the Grosse Pointe War Memorial, 32 Lake Shore in Grosse Pointe Farms. Guests are always welcome. Call (810) 358-7336.

Woods woman extends guiding hand of support to those in need

By Shirley A. McShane
Staff Writer

One of Lynne DeGrande's passions is boating.

She says there is something about pulling away from the dock in a power boat on a sunny summer day with the wind in her face, the lake's watery expanse before her, that reminds her there is a good side to life.

The Grosse Pointe Woods resident also enjoys dance and exercise and keeping active to remind her how important it is to enjoy every moment of the precious gift that is life.

She needs to do this.

DeGrande owns her own mental health consulting and counseling business and works on a consultant basis with General Motors, GMAC, EDS and other large corporations.

She provides an employee assistance program (EAP) to help people cope with the stresses of everyday living in the '90s.

She also does a limited amount of private counseling.

In addition, she is on the American Red Cross' disaster action team, which responds to airline crashes, hurricanes, earthquakes and other sites of massive devastation.

She was part of the Red Cross volunteer corps on hand last month at the ComAir crash site in rural southeast Michigan. A volunteer for the last decade, her first response with the Red Cross was the Northwest Flight 255 crash at Metro Airport.

"At the time, I thought I'd never have an experience like that again," she said. DeGrande's background in working with trauma victims was in a hospital emergency room-critical care unit setting. (She has a master's degree in social work administration from the University of Michigan and worked for many years as a social work administrator.)

Eight years ago, soon after she learned her administrative job was eliminated by corporate downsizing, her husband was diagnosed with cancer and given a year to live.

DeGrande coped on a practical level by starting her own consulting business, providing her an income and giving her the flexibility to take care of her terminally ill husband. He lived a year and a half beyond the initial prognosis, she said.

"My own personal losses have brought something to what I do," she explained. "I come from a big family (she is one of nine children) and we have gone through the death of our parents, the loss of a brother, a sister, my husband and an infant son. (She has a son, Tim, who is studying at Western Michigan University.) Every time we go through our own personal crisis, we learn how much stronger the human spirit is than we realize. Our capacity to endure is deeper than we think."

DeGrande said she is constantly asked how she separates her work from her personal life, and if she carries the frustration, sadness and despair with her.

"Doing this kind of work makes me appreciate the other side of life," she said. "It makes me value every day. Life is a gift — make the most of it."

Wanting to help others evolved from her experiences in growing up in a large family, DeGrande said. She learned early on how to recognize and appreciate people's differences, how to negotiate and how to compromise.

As an EAP consultant, she helps employees and employers cope with the increasing struggles of balancing work and family responsibilities.

"There is a greater incidence of emotional and health problems today," she said. "Unmanaged stress often turns into clinical depression or anxiety, along with physical health problems, such as ulcers."

Employers can reap a good return on their investment with EAPs, she said. It helps resolve employee problems so that people spend less of their time worrying about them at work and can focus on the job. It increases productivity, maintains health care costs, helps employees use their health care system prudently and increases morale.

"Clinical depression is the second biggest factor in why people are not at work or if they are at work, they are not productive," she said. "It is more common than the common cold."

EAPs began initially to address employees' problems with drug and alcohol abuse, she said, and have evolved into programs that educate and prevent problems from turning into illnesses.

As part of her own prescription for keeping active for a positive outlook, DeGrande pursues several volunteer endeavors. She is on the task force with the National Institute of Mental Health in the Washington Business Group on Health, a consortium of Fortune 500 companies conducting a long-term nationwide effort to address depression in the workplace.

Her involvement with the American Red Cross began in the mid 1980s, after she heard about a team of counselors assisting an airline after a plane crash in Texas. She approached the Red Cross of Southeastern Michigan on behalf of a group of social work directors and asked if they wanted a similar response team started in Michigan.

"We have come a long way since 1988," she said, noting that the federal government recently passed legislation that assigns authority to major airline disasters to the National Transportation Safety Board and the American Red Cross.

"One of the things that strikes me the most about disaster counseling is that while the circumstances may be very different, the emotional experience of the families is pretty predictable," she said. "You come to learn that despite the differences in people's backgrounds, personalities and relationships, there's still a commonality in how they react to the trauma and in how they struggle to cope."

When she and other team members arrived on the scene of the ComAir crash, she said, their job was to get with the family members as soon as possible and attempt in the most gentle of ways to support them without interfering with their need for privacy.

"Sometimes people want to talk, so you listen. Sometimes people want a shoulder to cry on, so you sit with them. Some people have a need to get information. Some need a quiet place to reflect inwardly. Some need to connect with spiritual support, so the Red Cross provides pastoral counselors," she said.

"The common element among people (in the initial stages of grief) is they think: I can't believe this, I can't cope with this and I can't live without this person. They are struggling to believe that they will survive this experience."

In a situation such as an airline disaster, the families of the victims have to deal not only with the shock of the events and the loss of a loved one, but with the additional trauma of facing the possibility that the bodies of the victims may not be intact.

That is when the recovery of personal effects becomes so important, she said.

"Grief is one of the most common human experiences we have," she said. "But nobody teaches us how to deal with it until we are in the middle of it," she said. "I encourage people struggling with losses to take advantage of some counseling even if they think they are doing OK. I give people two messages: One, what they are going through is normal. Two, things will get better."

There are a variety of different roles a Red Cross volunteer can play; call the Southeastern Michigan chapter at (800) 552-5466 for more information.

FEBRUARY IS NATIONAL HEART MONTH

FREE CPR Certification American Heart Association
Fighting Heart Disease and Stroke

YOU CAN SAVE A LIFE IN A HEARTBEAT...LEARN CPR.

Heart disease is the No. 1 killer in America. Education is key to survival. The American Heart Association — Grosse Pointe Division, Bon Secours and Henry Ford Cottage Hospitals and public safety officers from the five Grosse Pointes want to make sure that you are prepared. Attend a free CPR Certification session that will teach one-person rescue and the Heimlich Maneuver (for choking):

Thursday, February 13, 6 to 10 p.m.
Grosse Pointe War Memorial Ballroom
32 Lakeshore Drive, Grosse Pointe Farms

- Find out who is at risk for a heart attack. Some of the recently identified risk factors include heredity, diet, stress and gender.
- Learn how to reduce the risk and recognize the symptoms of a heart attack. If you've never suffered a heart attack, you may not recognize the symptoms. Victims often think they are just experiencing indigestion.
- And learn how to save a life by performing CPR. At some time, it may be up to you to assess a situation and save a life.

So call a friend. Educate yourselves together. A life could depend on it.

26-years here win top job for Sue Klein

The big question in Grosse Pointe, especially for the past month, has been whether the Grosse Pointe Board of Education would choose as its new school chief interim superintendent Suzanne Klein or one of the two other surviving candidates.

It turned out that Klein was chosen, not for the reasons imagined by some minority board members, but because in her 26 years in the system she had proved to be an able administrator and teacher.

In addition, Klein had won additional support for the way in which she had handled her new duties as interim superintendent since last July.

Almost everything went smoothly, too, in the Monday night school board meeting at which Klein served the first time as the full-time superintendent.

As the meeting neared its close, Steve Matthews, one of the majority board members, made a quiet plea for cooperation and avoidance of the kind of verbal fireworks that had marked the previous week's meeting.

But Sears Taylor, one of the minority, could not leave it at that. Instead, he expressed what sounded like wounded vanity over the Grosse Pointe News' proposal that the minority be recalled unless it fulfilled its promise to join in the general support for Klein.

Fortunately, however, that was about it and the meeting ended without further verbal exchanges. As we have said earlier, we think that despite the minority's last-minute nitpicking, the board has made an excellent choice.

We also agree with those in both the majority and minority who defended the expenditure of $15,000 for the search, and who said it was money well spent.

The nationwide search served at least two useful purposes:

The first was that the community learned how well Klein stacked up against the outside candidates who sought the job. As board president Tim Howlett said, "The search validated the quality of our school system."

The second was that the board and the community, through cable television, were able to view the board's interviews with the three finalists in the selection process.

As Klein begins her reign, she and her associates will have the task of proving that the Grosse Pointe Public School System not only can live up to its reputation but that it can be even better despite its future funding problems.

As they start out, we think that Klein and her associates already have the community's cooperation and support, and have even won pledges of support from the minority board members.

In fact, we think the public as well as the board, the teachers and the students are now ready for the healing of serious differences and the renewed concentration needed to prepare Grosse Pointe young people for the 21st century.

Klein always had wanted to be a teacher

Suzanne Klein may not be a born teacher, but she is probably the closest to that ideal that the Grosse Pointe school district could have found in the entire country.

Her mother reminds her that when she (Suzanne) was a little girl, just starting school, she would come home from her classes, line up her dolls in school room fashion, and then tell them in specific terms what she had learned that day in school.

Klein tells that incident to support her contention that she always has wanted to be a teacher. Now she has achieved one of her highest ambitions not only to become a teacher but to serve as the superintendent of one of America's prestigious school districts in Grosse Pointe.

Even though she has lived in the area and has taught in the Pointes for 26 years, I had never exchanged a word with her until I talked with her for an hour last week in her office in the Grosse Pointe school administration building.

Engler, Archer see a better '97

Gov. John Engler and Detroit Mayor Dennis Archer gave the Detroit area public their opinions of the outlook for 1997 as well as how well their domains had fared in 1996 in their annual State of the State and State of the City televised reports on Jan. 28.

Engler's report was disappointing for those of us who had expected him to propose a long-delayed gas tax increase in order to finance the repair of the state's badly needed highway system.

Instead, the governor proposed to cut highway costs by limiting lawsuits and streamlining bureaucracy and by persuading the national administration to provide Michigan with more federal funds.

We tend, however, to agree with the critics who felt that the state should at least seek voter support for a boost in the gasoline tax. With some chambers of commerce and some Democrats backing that idea, it just might get on the ballot in the fall of 1998.

The governor also described his School District Accountability Act which would allow a state-appointed trustee to manage school districts in which 80 percent of the students had failed to earn a proficient rating on the High School Proficiency Test or in which 25 percent of high school students have dropped out.

That wasn't very popular with Detroiters who contend they would prefer help from the state rather than any takeover. State education department officials quickly backed away from any direct move to take over the Detroit schools, although that still remains as a state threat.

Whether the governor will run for reelection is still unknown, but he apparently sought to use his speech to keep a high national profile, especially with the extreme right wing of the GOP, in order to be available to run on the national GOP ticket in the year 2000.

Like the governor, the mayor looked ahead to "the promise of a great tomorrow," but rejected the governor's proposal to take over Detroit's troubled public school system. Archer urged, instead, a partnership with the state to improve Detroit's public schools.

Archer pointed to a number of achievements in Detroit over the three years of his reign. They were highlighted by the agreements to build side-by-side stadiums for the Detroit Tigers and Detroit Lions and by voter approval of three gambling casinos for the city.

He added that the city crime rate has declined for the past three years, unemployment is down from 16 percent to 9 percent, and housing prices have seen the largest increase of any of the 10 largest U.S. cities.

But some critics were unimpressed, and with reason. They still have concerns about how many police Archer would hire, or how much he would improve 911 response time, or how many streets would be repaved.

One council member said the mayor should have cited the need for improvement in street lighting, garbage pickup and police response time.

The mayor also has been discussed as a 2000 year candidate for governor, but he didn't even mention the subject so far as we could tell.

True, there's still plenty of time to talk about the future, especially if he does more to improve the handling of the city's present problems.

No mourning for fair racetrack

A couple of smart politicians, Gov. John Engler and his state fair chief, John Hertel, can only blame themselves for the ending of the proposal to convert part of the Michigan State Fairgrounds into a racetrack.

We're not sure the proposal would have been approved, even if it had been explained carefully in advance to the residents of the area. But apparently the sponsors thought everybody would be delighted with the idea, and did little to head off the criticism that arose.

We think we will have more than enough gambling opportunities in the area if the city and state finally agree to the installation of three casino gambling spots in Detroit. That is three more than we would like to see.

Everything that we read about casino gambling reinforces our general belief that there are too many offsets in the form of family problems, gambling addictions, increase in general crime rates, and goodness knows what else created by the advent of more casino gambling.

The same goes for the noisy races on which, of course, a good deal of money would have been wagered. We hope the proposal is permanently dead.

We doubt, however, that the idea succumbed to the wiles of the Ilitch family who were trying to protect their big base on Detroit area sports and entertainment in opposing the idea.

However, that was the contention of Detroit News columnist Pete Waldmeir, who saw the Ilitch family opposing the racetrack because of the competition it would have offered to their entertainment investments.

Maybe so, Pete, but a little evidence would have been useful if the Ilitch family had done the demolition job on the racetrack plan.

Letters

Enough is enough

To the Editor:

This message is intended for the voters of Grosse Pointe. Those who watched the debacle of the century performed by our board of education on Channel 6, Monday, Jan. 27, will know what I mean. Those who missed it can catch it on replay several times in the near future.

I have observed/worked with various boards of education in Grosse Pointe for nearly 50 years and have never witnessed a spectacle such as our trustees just staged while selecting a new superintendent to head the school system. I would hope that most voters will decide that enough is enough, clean house as soon as possible, via attrition, or more speedily, through recall procedures. There can be no confidence in these seven individuals to shape up, and no administration can hope to be successful given a board so inclined to undercut, snipe away at each other, sling mud and/or allegations with or without merit, and otherwise act like 8-year-olds throwing a tantrum.

While on this point, it is my considered opinion that the nationwide search for a superintendent was doomed from the git-go. No self-respecting, well-credentialed, and well-experienced superintendent would enter the lists to compete for a job in Grosse Pointe given the track record of our divided board. Thus, we wind up with applicants who never have had to make the hard decisions and exhibit the courage and intelligence needed to be the top administrator in a district such as ours. This contest between second bananas may well be a first for the Grosse Pointe Public School System. We have always enjoyed the attention of really well-qualified and proven candidates with leadership skills.

Let's get at the business of electing seven trustees with enough common sense to make reasonable adjustments to their personal agendas, who can give and take with fairness and an eye for the greater good, and who understand their policy-making role and aren't inclined to micro-manage or carry on personal vendettas. Our schools deserve better than that. It's our job to see that they get it.

Recall in order

To the Editor:

I have finally reached the conclusion that trustees Mills, Pangborn and Taylor are not serving our school system, nor our community and need to be recalled. The Free Press article, "School Board Vote Turns Ugly," the flier distributed in church parking lots by Mr. Mills and reports about the Jan. 27 school board meeting reveal, more than ever, the absence of sound judgment among the group.

Their fiduciary duty to us, regardless of political persuasion, is to engage in debate on important issues of the day and to support our school system when the vote is final. They have breached both.

Over and over again we hear and read of paranoid allegations arising from mere differences of opinion. This "us against them" mentality is far from enlightened leadership. Allegations of "fraud," "sham" and the like do nothing more than obscure important issues, bring derision and disgrace to our community and, I am certain, result in demoralizing the employees of a school system who, though not perfect, have qualified many of our children to go on to the best colleges and universities in the country.

I'm tired of the assault. The time to talk is over. Our community needs to proceed to recall.

The Stickford Files

Thoughts at large . . . The Green Bay Packers have just won their third Super Bowl. They won the first two Super Bowls and on the 30th anniversary of the creation of that media juggernaut, they returned to the event and won. Everyone from local sports writer/media personality (or is it now media personality/sometimes sports writer) Mitch Albom to David Letterman have made public comments about how great it was to see a team like Green Bay win the Super Bowl. They said it reminded them of a simpler time in sports, and of the Lombardi era when football was played on grass outside, and players and coaches weren't so out of control, and the fans mattered. Jerry Kramer, a guard who played in Green Bay for 10 years, many of them under Vince Lombardi, wrote a column that appeared on the New York Times op-ed page about what it was like to play for Lombardi. He talked about how Lombardi treated every player differently, and how his coaching affected players off the field as well, and about how many of his teammates became successful businessmen after they retired from football. The whole theme of the last few days of SUPER BOWL week seemed to be a harkening to the good old days of sports. Well I don't buy it. I don't think there ever was a good old day of sports. If we look back 30 years ago, players were underpaid, and owners treated them badly. Ideas like player pensions for athletes who sacrificed their bodies for sports was still a fairly new and radical idea. Nowadays people complain that players and owners are both greedy. They jump ship at the first sign of a better deal. I don't like that any better than anyone else.

I Say

Jim Stickford

I once had the honor of interviewing Buffalo Bills owner Ralph Wilson, who said he regretted the fact that teams can leave cities that have loyally supported them through the lean years. I think all owners should feel that way. But let me say this. That's life. I know plenty of people who have worked at a particular place of business for a couple of years, and then when a better offer has come along, left in a New York minute. These are people who learned valuable skills at their old place of work. They were treated well and for the most part paid well. But they have to look out for themselves, that's the way it is, etc.

That's the way it's always been. I think we put too much stock in sports. It's entertainment and it's fun. Playing sports can be good exercise and a perfectly fine way to pass the time. I don't think it's intrinsically character building. I don't think it was ever that way, nor do I think it will ever be that way. Some people are taught to behave honorably, and when they play sports they play in an honorable way. Some people are out for themselves and when they play that attitude is reflected. When George Perles, who claimed to have his dream job as head coach of the Michigan State Spartans, kept getting offers to coach in the NFL, the school kept extending his contract and giving him more money. This despite the fact Perles had a contract with the school. He had a deal, and did not want to live up to it. But to be fair to Perles, MSU went after him when he had a deal with the Philadelphia Stars, a USFL football team. The school induced him to break his deal with another team. You reap what you sow. MSU didn't respect Perles' deal with the Stars. It was the height of hypocrisy for the school to expect Perles to respect its deal. Some of the greatest athletes have been terrible human beings. Ty Cobb may be the greatest baseball player to ever live. But he was not a good person. I remember Bob Talbert writing about how when he first came to the Free Press from a paper in the South in the early 1960s, he wanted to talk to the old-time sports writers and ask them how Cobb really was.

Cobb couldn't be as bad as the stories said. Talbert was surprised to learn that there were no good stories about Cobb. He was the jerk everyone said he was. Denny McLain was just convicted of a felony for the second time. He was given every chance AFTER he got out of prison. He was given a TV and radio show. He was bailed out by friends and fans. McLain was a player from the old days. He played BEFORE free agency is supposed to have ruined the game. For a couple of years he was the best pitcher in the world. Yet being an athlete did not make him a good person. So when we look back at the good old days. Just remember, people are people. Some are good, some are not so good. Sports is like everything else, being good at it doesn't make you a good person. Character comes from how you treat others, and how you meet the demands of a complicated society. We should remember that when watching sports.

The Pointe's talented Leon sisters have changed their location since the time they concertized around here but they're still wowing audiences, according to the Farms' Patricia Dorsey.

Ken Eatherly

At a benefit performance to aid on-strike members of the San Francisco Symphony Orchestra last December in that city's Old St. Mary's Cathedral, Patricia was impressed by violinist Suzanne Leon's solo rendition of the "Winter" segment of Vivaldi's "Four Seasons." "Suzanne was chosen by her peers to perform it," says Patricia, who adds she enjoyed the whole concert tremendously. When she went to chat with some of the musicians afterward, she discovered Suzanne, whom she'd never met before, was also from the Farms.

A little digging here at the paper established that Suzanne's sister, Kelly, is also a violinist with the SF symphony.

Back in the 80's it was no secret that all the Leon youngsters were musically gifted: "Beside Suzanne and Kelly, their sister Stephanie is a concert pianist in Seattle," says proud mom Joyce (Mrs. Harold) Leon, "and their brother, Craig, is also a pianist, although he's now an attorney in Boston."

"From 1985-90 Suzanne and Stephanie were a piano and violin duo," she says. "They lived in Paris and played all over Europe. Everywhere they go, they seem to meet up with someone from Grosse Pointe."

Can't hold a candle to em

At a sparkling dinner for 12 at the Shores home of Dan and Jackie Beck recently, the hostess explained why she had the fireplace in the living room glowing with nearly a dozen big candles instead of the usual logs: "That's the way they do it in Birmingham," says Jackie. (She's been conducting ethnic research across town.)

Fortunately for traditional Pointe types, there was a real wood fire in the adjoining sun room.

So much for culture shock.

End of an era at Christ Church

"One of the great features of Grosse Pointe that I've never seen anywhere else (maybe because we don't have a hotel here) is that people open up their houses to out-of-town wedding guests," said Ted Cobden. "I'd stack up your hospitality against any other community on Earth."

For a parish audience packed into the sanctuary a few weeks ago the retiring rector and his wife, Evie, reminisced about their 15 years at the Episcopal church next door to South High.

There and during their two-week-long goodbye, the couple relaxed and revealed some of their odder moments here, which included:

- Overshooting Michigan and ending up in Chicago the first time they drove in from the East Coast.

- Evie's impromptu Sunday motorcycle ride out Lakeshore with parishioner Chuck Huebner.

- The vegetarian who came to stay for five days when Evie had only one vegetarian recipe.

Sunday a lot of friends wrapped their arms around Ted and Evie in a fond farewell. After many hugs and some tears, they drove off down Christ Church Lane, headed for their home in South Egremont, Mass. They will be missed.

If you have an FYI tip or know why they don't burn wood in Birmingham, call Ken Eatherly at (313) 822-4091.

Cutting through the smog

By Brian Baker
Mobil Oil Corporation

During the holiday season, some good news about the environment was released, but didn't get the attention it deserved. The Environmental Protection Agency's (EPA) "National Air Quality and Emissions Trends Report 1995" confirmed, once again, that our air is getting cleaner and healthier.

Overall, the nation's air is about 30 percent cleaner than 25 years ago. This improvement has occurred while our population increased by 28 percent, gross domestic product grew by 99 percent and the number of vehicle miles traveled rose by 116 percent. Altogether, solid evidence that the environment and the economy can prosper together.

To protect public health, EPA sets National Ambient Air Quality Standards for carbon monoxide, lead, sulfur dioxide, particulate matter, nitrogen dioxide and ozone (smog). It tracks trends in concentrations and emissions of these pollutants over one-year and ten-year time frames. Both concentrations, measured at more than 4,000 monitoring sites, and emissions, calculated as annual tons released, of these pollutants declined over the 1986-95 decade. Ten-year data, for the most part, have trended downward every year since 1990.

There was, however, an aberration in 1995. That year's unusually hot summer provided conditions that produced an increase in smog levels. But even this blip was an improvement over the past because the smog concentrations were lower than those in 1988, another unusually hot year. Southern California, with the nation's highest smog levels historically, recorded its best ozone air quality in 1995, according to a study by Sonoma Technology.

That's the good news. The bad news, we believe, is the negative spin put on this progress. By focusing on a single year (1995) instead of the ten-year trend, EPA seems to do a disservice to the public policy debate on air quality. Despite the long-term improvements to meet federal air quality standards, EPA uses '95 data to point out that nearly 80 million Americans live in areas where air doesn't meet federal health standards.

Consider the facts:

- While EPA's press release states that "...80 million people still breathe air that does not meet existing health standards," its full report notes: "Any individual living in that area may not be actually exposed to unhealthy air." The reason is the way in which air quality is measured. Typically, an area uses multiple air-quality monitors. If smog triggers just a single monitor, it can put an entire metropolitan area into noncompliance. But that doesn't mean air in the entire area is unhealthy.

- Back in 1990, EPA identified 98 areas that did not meet federal standards for smog; five years later, about half were able to reach those goals. The remaining areas are well on their way to achieving those standards.

- What constitutes exposure to unhealthy air? EPA considers exposure for just a few hours a year as "unhealthy."

We should celebrate the good news about clean air and not get diverted from the progress being achieved — with more to come — under current regulations.

EPA is proposing to redefine air quality standards for smog and particles. What concerns us is that many new areas may be reclassified as unhealthy even though the scientific evidence may not support the need for such changes. Meanwhile, as EPA's Trend Report indicates, our nation's air has actually gotten cleaner.

You must still register for draft

Young men who will turn 26 in 1997 will be reaching an important milestone, according to the Selective Service System.

Beginning on Jan. 1, men who were required to register with Selective Service in 1989 will be turning 26, and will no longer be eligible for induction should a draft be reinstituted. Selective Service does not have the authority to accept late registrations after a man reaches his 26th birthday.

Selective Service state director, Arthur P. Tesner warned that with few exceptions, a man who fails to register before turning 26 will permanently forfeit his eligibility for certain benefits, such as federal student aid, job training, and most federal employment, in addition to facing possible prosecution as a felon.

Some states also require registration for state student aid, entrance to state supported colleges and universities, state employment and permission to practice law.

Tesner points out that men age 18 through 25 who have not yet registered can avoid the risk of prosecution and loss of benefits by registering promptly at any local post office. Failure to register is a felony punishable by a fine of up to $250,000, up to five years in prison, or both.

Over 13 million men age 18 through 25 are currently registered. Of those, 484,361 are from Michigan.

Resented attacks

To the Editor:

On Monday, Jan. 27, I watched the school board meeting on TV, hoping to see a positive, exciting announcement about who our new superintendent would be. Instead, I saw the ugliest, most divisive and damaging display I ever hope to witness. I don't expect that all members of the board will always be in agreement with each other. I don't expect the board to be a "rubber stamp" for anyone in the school system.

I do expect that civility and respect for those who have chosen the education of our children as their life's work will be the rule of behavior, rather than behind-the-scenes smear campaigns. I personally resented the public attacks on the character and qualifications of a person who has done a great deal for me, my family and this community and whose integrity and skill I greatly admire.

Our community is lucky to have had someone of Sue

Klein's caliber for as long as we have. It is not necessary for everyone to agree on the outcome of the search for a superintendent, but if we are going to attract and keep quality personnel in this school district, it is necessary that job candidates, even internal candidates, be treated respectfully and honored for their accomplishments. Monday's board meeting looked like nothing more than mean and dirty politics to me.

From the comments of the community members at the meeting, it appears to me that the community is far less divided than the board. Anyone who knows or has worked with Dr. Klein knows that she is gifted at what she does. Most of us are disinterested in how many articles our administrators have published or how many days they spoke at conferences outside of the district. What matters to us is that Dr. Klein has been here, working for and with our kids and lending her considerable talents to the improvement of our children's education.

During her time as director of special education, Sue Klein had to work with parents in varying stages of grief and denial. She handled us and our anxiety over our children's disabilities gracefully and with respect for where we were in the process of acceptance. She made available to me opportunities and information to give me some power over my son's autism, which was a consistent concern for our children and how they fit into the community and affected the lives of their families. A person like this does not deserve to be publicly smeared. That board meeting should have been a celebration.

I hope the members of this school board will learn from Dr. Klein. She has much to teach them about respect for many different opinions and priorities. She can model for them the process of finding a common ground and working together toward common goals. We have a superintendent of schools who is an excellent teacher. Now we'll see what kind of students our board members are.

Liz Priebe

Klein

To me, she is a warm, caring person who also likes to establish direct eye contact with the person she is talking with and respond specifically to questions.

To me, it speaks volumes about her desire for openness that in taking over as interim superintendent after the departure of her predecessor last July 1, she shifted the superintendent's chair so that she faced the audience, rather than the school board, at board meetings.

That shift reflected her desire to show that she was ready to serve the entire community and would try to offer her best answers to questions, whatever subjects they might cover, that residents of the district were entitled to ask.

Klein is the daughter of a Toledo tax and trust attorney who also served as the head of accounting at the University of Toledo.

Klein herself was second in her graduating high school class of 400 in Toledo and was promptly accepted as a student at the University of Michigan. She has been a Michigander ever since.

She started her career in the St. Clair Shores school system as a specialist in pre-school testing. Her B.S. degree at Michigan had been in both regular and special education, because she had always enjoyed working with young children.

When Grosse Pointe began a similar program in 1970, she was invited to join the Grosse Pointe teaching staff to develop it. She also served a year and a half in an administrative program at Pierce Middle School.

She later moved to Parcels and when the principal retired, she was selected for the job. As the years rolled on, she moved steadily upward in the Grosse Pointe administrative system so that she was the logical interim successor to Edward J. Shine when he took another post last July 1.

Asked what she saw as the most difficult problem area ahead for the Grosse Pointe district, she said that "it will be facing the money shortages ahead." That means, she added, that "we (in the school system) should deliver what the public regards as its top priorities while still trying to improve our standards."

Her job and that of the board, she added, will be to work out a healthy relationship with the community. To achieve that goal, she added, we "must have the kind of give-and-take to enable both sides to understand what our programs are and what we are planning to do."

Asked why she lived outside the district, a question that had been raised before her appointment, she responded that she and her husband and son had lived in the Pointes earlier in her career here, with their last Pointe residence having been on McKinley.

"But when my husband bought his own business, after working for other employers, we decided to locate closer to his welding and medical supply business in Charlevoix," she said.

As a result, however, she now has a drive of 37 miles twice a day from her home in Bloomfield Hills, while her 15-year-old son attends Cranbrook.

Klein arrived in the superintendent's job at an opportune time in one respect. Grosse Pointe's teachers, 500 strong, who are represented by the Grosse Pointe Education Association, have just signed a four-year contract renewal.

It includes a 9 percent pay hike to be paid in increments over the life of the contract. Teachers also agreed to co-pay $4 on their health insurance, while elementary teachers gained an increase in their planning time.

The school board is expected to ratify the agreement at an early meeting. To us that agreement sounds like a good deal for both the teachers and the community that employs them.

Dreams of conquering winter and the glory of summer gardening

Winter fun is just that for those who enjoy skiing the slopes, skimming like a graceful swan over the ice on skates, or sitting out on the frozen river with the chill wind attacking them from every angle, waiting for a fish to bite.

But for others, winter fun is a contradiction in terms. They find no enjoyment in cold weather and all that it brings: dark, frosty mornings, icy streets, cars that won't start.

New fallen snow is pretty but it loses its charm when it has to be shoveled. A silver full moon surrounded with twinkling crystal stars against a velvet blue night sky is lovely to look at if you are standing behind a window reinforced with storms.

As for a weekend in northern Michigan to see nature in full-dress winter splendor, just give them an airline ticket to Florida — return date May.

The first gust of north wind sends them scurrying inside only to venture out when absolutely necessary, such as to go to work, to replenish the food supply or to keep social engagements.

While watching winter sports on television, there are times they dream of such daring deeds as giving cross-country skiing a try, putting on a pair of skates or maybe just taking a long walk in the new fallen snow.

Hardier souls might even contemplate more daring adventures in winter's wonderland; maybe getting behind a dog sled in Alaska, braving a course that winds along a historic gold rush trail from Anchorage to Nome, breathing freezing cold air, chancing unpredictable storms and encounters with moose.

If that sounds too extreme, it could be modified. No need to go all the way to Alaska to indulge in make-believe do and dare feats.

How about a make-believe trip to Aspen for some real downhill skiing.

The 8,000 foot altitude will take some getting used to, but after a day spent letting your lungs adjust, you are ready for the spectacular Big Birn, a mile-wide and mile-long course or the great chute-the-chute of Spar Gulch.

There's more to this scenario. You might choose to sail across frozen lakes in a fiberglass boat in Laconia, N.H., or bobsled in the Adirondacks down a mile-long track.

By Marian Trainor

All of these activities are exciting and fun to ponder but not to do. Dyed-in-the-wool true winter haters would never think of doing more than just think about it.

They actively resist the lure of picture-perfect post-card scenes of ski lodges nestled in snow-covered slopes looking out on lakes of frozen crystal.

For the dedicated arm-chair winter recluse, these are but temporary safeguards in which only those with souls of Eskimos find comfort. Winter hermits make use of them, but retreat indoors to ward off drafts that sneak through unprotected cracks.

Besides, staying inside in winter is like putting time in the bank for summer. All the projects that have been put aside so as to enjoy summer's munificence can now be completed.

Now is the time to read that book that has decorated the coffee table since June, finish the afghan begun last winter, call a friend who is often remembered in thoughts but never in deed.

The man of the house never needs to fret over winter's inclement weather.

There are numerous activities for him to enjoy. With foot-ball running into basketball and both of them concurrent with hockey and hockey hanging on until winter melts into summer and golf clubs and tennis rackets can be dragged out and polished up for a summer on the courts and green.

Winter is a time also for him to score points as Mr. Fix-it. Chores then seem so small but like the molehills and the mountain have grown in perspective.

A husband and father can be a giant of industry, he can be a leader of the community, he can be renowned and revered by all who are associated with him, but his star will never shine brighter than the day he accomplishes all the household tasks that have been so long neglected.

Of all the excuses for staying out of winter's icy clutches, safe and warm in the comfort of heat radiating from radiators, space heaters, electric blanket and every warming device that can be turned on, is one that fast-forwards us to a time when hatless, coatless, scarfless and bootless, we can step out into the sunshine in our own back yard which will be a living picture of fragrance and beauty and color.

But it won't be there unless we plan it carefully and with due consideration.

So while others shiver away their time out in the snow and cold, we "Polly-sit-by-the fire," will spend hours pursuing garden catalogs and getting ready for better things.

We can see it now — the first heralds of summer, the green shoots, breaking through the soil, later to break into purple and yellow miniature orchid-like blooms.

Later they will be joined by masses of colorful begonias and spiky dahlias.

There will be clusters of phlox and primrose and daisies and gorgeous sweet smelling peonies and then will come summer's most beautiful offering — roses.

One wishes he or she could buy and plant and care for every glorious promise of beauty in the books, but it is an impossible dream — gentler, but somewhat like the one conquering winter's rugged wastelands.

A teleconference on well-being of elderly

A teleconference entitled "Financial Abuse of the Elderly" will be held at 18 down-link sites throughout the state on Wednesday, Feb. 19, from 9 a.m. - 1 p.m.

The co-sponsors are the Michigan Office of Services to the Aging (MOSA), the Michigan Family Independence Agency and Michigan Partnership for Community Care.

Participants will learn how the elderly are financially exploited by family members and others, and how one can work with Michigan Adult Protective Services (MAPS) and resources within the community to combat this serious problem.

The program includes an overview by Donna Spranger, Citizens for Better Care, and a panel comprised of attorneys George Cooney of Bloomfield Hills and Debra King of Oakland County; Terry Harris, detective lieutenant of the Michigan State Police; George Economy, Ingham County probate judge; and Jean Skalski, MAPS, St. Joseph County.

A wrap-up will be provided by John Peterson, MOSA. A local panel of experts at each site will discuss the issues and answer questions from participants.

The registration fee is $12 and four credits toward the state licensee requirement will be provided to administrators of adult residential homes for the elderly.

The public is invited to attend. For a registration form call (517) 373-4229.

Senior Men's Club holds a luncheon

The Senior Men's Club of Grosse Pointe will meet on Tuesday, Feb. 11, at the Grosse Pointe War Memorial. Luncheon will be served at 11:15 a.m.

The featured speaker will be James S. Bernacki, first vice president at Comerica bank. Bernacki is president of the Comerica Community Development Corp. Through his efforts, Comerica makes investments in quality, affordable housing projects and programs which support emerging businesses.

He also manages the Small Business Detroit Group, where a team of professionals provides access to a full range of financial services to small businesses in Detroit's "empowerment zone." He is also a member of the Neighborhood Development Commission for the city of Detroit, board member of Detroit Works Inc., and board member of Michigan Capital Fund for Housing.

Free health programs for people 55 years and up

If you're 55 years of age, or older, Henry Ford Cottage Hospital's "LifeWise 55" discussion series can help you make the best of every year.

These free community programs are conveniently offered in the mid-afternoon, in the lower level boardrooms. Reservations are recommended and can be made by calling (313) 640-2425 at any time.

Celebrate Valentine's Day by learning how cardiopulmonary rehabilitation can improve your quality of life.

"An Introduction to Cardiopulmonary Rehab" will be presented by Cottage Coordinator Patricia Coppola, RN, on Thursday, Feb. 13, 2:30 to 4 p.m.

Included in the program is a tour of the Cottage Cardiopulmonary Rehab area and a free blood pressure screening and body fat analysis.

Gordon T. Ford

A memorial service was held in St. Paul's Ivy Episcopal Church in Charlottesville, Va., for former Grosse Pointe Farms resident Gordon T. Ford, who died in Northern Michigan Hospital in Petoskey on Wednesday, Jan. 8, 1997.

Mr. Ford, 62, was born in Detroit and grew up in Grosse Pointe. He attended Detroit Country Day, Westminster School and the University of Virginia, where he earned a BA in religion and was a member of the Chi Psi fraternity.

A veteran of the U.S. Army, Mr. Ford worked as a broker with the firm Westling-Lerchen Inc. of Detroit. After retiring, he became involved in many civic projects and organizations, including the St. Peters Home for Boys, Christ Church Grosse Pointe, Westminster School and Cottage Hospital. He was a lay reader at St. Paul's Ivy Episcopal Church in Charlottesville.

Mr. Ford also belonged to several clubs, including the Yondotega Club, the Country Club of Detroit, the Grosse Pointe Club, the Little Harbor Club, the Anglers Club and the Farmington Country Club. He enjoyed boating, music and model building.

Mr. Ford is survived by his wife, Linda Knickerbocker Ford; two daughters, Katharine Ford Albers and Dorothy Ford Cadieux; a son, Gordon Jr.; a brother, John B. Ford III; his step-mother, Mary Holland Ford; a step-sister, Elizabeth Stewart; and two grandchildren.

Memorial contributions may be made to the Northern Michigan Hospital Foundation, 501 West Mitchell Street, Petoskey, Mich., 49770, or to Henry Ford Cottage Hospital, Office of Financial Development, 159 Kercheval, Grosse Pointe Farms, Mich., 48236.

Herbert W. Lester

A memorial service will be held in the spring for former City of Grosse Pointe resident Herbert W. Lester, who died in Northern Michigan Hospital on Friday, Jan. 24, 1997.

Mr. Lester, 73, was known to his friends as Bud, and was born in Detroit. He graduated from Grosse Pointe High School, where he was on the tennis and swimming teams. Later in life, he became a teaching tennis professional.

A veteran of World War II, Mr. Lester served in the U.S. Navy Air Corps, flying missions from a base in the Aleutian Islands of Alaska. After the war he had a varied business career, and owned the first FM radio station in Ann Arbor, as well as working as a broker and in the advertising field.

Mr. Lester is survived by three daughters, Barbara Caines, Marjorie Johnson and Peggy Clute; a son, Peter; two step-sons, Jeffrey and James Ford; a sister, Mollie Beyer; and 15 grandchildren.

Funeral services were arranged by the Schiller Funeral Chapels of Harbor Springs.

Jane Alice Hastings

Jane Alice Hastings

A funeral Mass was celebrated in St. Clare of Montefalco Church in Grosse Pointe Park on Friday, Jan. 31, for Jane Alice Hastings, a former sales person at the Valerie DeGalen Dress Shop, a City of Grosse Pointe store located in the Village.

Mrs. Hastings, 80, died on Monday, Jan. 27, 1997, at the home of her daughter Patti in Canton. Born in Chicago, she was raised in Detroit and graduated from Brown County Girls School in Cincinnati in 1933.

Mrs. Hastings was a fashion buyer for the D. J. Healy Co. in Detroit and worked in the Village in the 1970s and 1980s. She attended St. Clare of Montefalco Church in the Park.

Mrs. Hastings is survived by her daughters, Mary Ann Stephens and Patti Cappuccitti; a son, Henry; and four grandchildren.

Funeral arrangements were handled by the Chas. Verheyden Funeral Home in Grosse Pointe Park.

Marie Scavarda

Marie G. Scavarda

A private memorial service will be held on Saturday, Feb. 8, for former Grosse Pointe Park resident Marie G. Scavarda, who died in the home of her daughter in St. Clair Shores on Saturday, Feb. 1, 1997.

Mrs. Scavarda, 80, was living in Port Sanilac at the time of her death. Before her retirement she worked as the outside catering manager for Roumell Catering. In this capacity, she was responsible for catering parties for Motown Records and the opening of the Mackinac Bridge. She also catered many of the debutante parties held in Grosse Pointe many years ago.

An avid gardener, Mrs. Scavarda belonged to the Port Sanilac Garden Club. She also was an avid quilter and enjoyed traveling.

Mrs. Scavarda is survived by two daughters, Joan Boelster and Jean Forton; a son, Rick; a sister, Gladys Gerrity; nine grandchildren; and five great-grandchildren.

Memorial contributions may be made to the Henry Ford Hospice, 23000 Mack, St. Clair Shores, Mich., 48080.

Alice M. DeSmet

A funeral service was held in the A.H. Peters Funeral Home in Grosse Pointe Woods on Wednesday, Feb. 5, for Grosse Pointe Woods resident Alice M. DeSmet, who died on Saturday, Feb. 1, 1997, in the St. John/Bon Secours Nursing Center.

Mrs. DeSmet, 98, was born in Moerbeke, Belgium. She was a housewife.

Mrs. DeSmet is survived by a daughter, Lucy Richter; a sister, Mrs. Palmyre Probst; seven grandchildren; 12 great-grandchildren; and one great-great-grandchild.

Interment is at Mount Olivet Cemetery in Detroit.

Jack Howard Walsh

A funeral Mass was celebrated in Our Lady Star of the Sea Catholic Church in Grosse Pointe Woods on Friday, Jan. 31, for former City of Grosse Pointe resident Jack Howard Walsh, who died in the Bon Secours Nursing Care Center in St. Clair Shores on Monday, Jan. 27, 1997.

Mr. Walsh, 80, was born in Detroit and was educated at the Buckingham Browne and Nicholas Preparatory School in Cambridge, Mass., the College of Holy Cross in Worcester, Harvard Business School and Walsh College.

Mr. Walsh was a veteran of World War II, serving in the U.S. Army Air Corps in a statistical control unit. He was assigned to a post in the Pacific Theater of Operations.

After the war, Mr. Walsh worked for the Ford Motor Co., and after his retirement from the automobile company, he began an association with Higbie Maxon Realtors.

Mr. Walsh is survived by his wife of 50 years, Ethel; five daughters, Susan Johnson, Anne Jones, Barbara Risdon, and Mary and Joan Walsh; a son, Craig; a brother, William; and six grandchildren. He was predeceased by a brother, Robert.

Interment is at the St. Paul Catholic Church Columbarium. Funeral arrangements were handled by the Chas. Verheyden Funeral Home in Grosse Pointe Park. Memorial contributions may be made to the Hospice of Southeast Michigan.

Peter White Dixon

A memorial service was held on Tuesday, Feb. 4, in Christ Episcopal Church - Detroit, for former Grosse Pointe Park resident Peter White Dixon, who died of cancer on Wednesday, Jan. 29, 1997, in Bon Secours Hospital in the City of Grosse Pointe.

Mr. Dixon, 68, was born in Detroit and graduated from Baldwin High School in Birmingham in 1946 and Wayne University in Detroit in 1951. He was a sales manager for the Amplex division of Chrysler Corp. from 1964-1987. After that he founded the Dixon Export Management Co. in Grosse Pointe Park. He served in the U.S. Army from 1951-1953, and received the Bronze Star for service in the Korean War.

Mr. Dixon was a member of Christ Episcopal Church - Detroit and St. Paul Episcopal in St. Clair Shores, where he was a vestryman.

MichCon now pumps its 'Think Links' contest through a new online pipeline

Michigan Consolidated Gas Co. (MichCon) has announced a new incentive for people to visit its Online Pipeline web site (www.michcon.com) with the creation of the MichCon "Think Links" contest.

As of Jan. 1, any Michigan resident visiting the MichCon

Online Pipeline web site will be eligible to register to win a getaway at Michigan's famous Garland Resort. The getaway includes three days and two nights accommodations, plus unlimited golf with cart, valued at $850 and redeemable during the 1997 golf season.

To register for the contest, visitors must complete a survey concerning the web site in the MichCon Means More section of the Online Pipeline before March 31. One winner will be drawn from all entries on April 7.

Garland Resort is a 3,500 acre lodge nestled in the beautiful woodlands of Lewiston. The resort encompasses world-class dining in the largest log lodge east of the Mississippi, 72 holes of championship golf, and a special northern woods charm. Garland is one of MichCon's corporate energy partners.

"We're pleased to expand our energy partnership with a company that understands our principles of ecological and economical management. This contest allows us to show off our golf links while MichCon enhances its links to its customers," says Barry Owens, resort general manager.

"As energy companies like ours face a deregulated future, it is vital we establish a true dialogue with our customers," says Steve Ewing, chief executive officer of MichCon.

Honda Accords, Dodge Shadows are hot — with car thieves, that is

The '94 Honda Accord has made the top of an automotive hit parade, but Honda is not pleased. It was the No. 1 choice of auto thieves in 1996, according to CCC Information Services, an auto insurance claims reporting service.

CCC breaks out its stolen car data by model year and in its report, second and third spots are also held by Honda, 1988 and 1992. In fact, the Honda Accord was so popular with thieves last year, its models were 11 of the top 25 most stolen vehicles.

Only two model years of the perennial favorite of car thieves, the Oldsmobile Cutlass, 1987 and 1986, were among the top 10 in 1996. Rounding out the top 10 were the 1995 Ford Mustang and 1989 Toyota Camry, in fifth and ninth place, respectively.

Have even car thieves turned their back on American cars?

No, says Jim Gavigan, a consultant with LoJack's Michigan operation. LoJack is a vehicle recovery system which sends transmissions to police tracking computers and claims a 95 percent recovery rate.

"Honda is a very popular make and has been for several years, so there are a lot of them on the streets," said Gavigan, a retired Michigan State Police officer who worked with an auto theft task force in Detroit.

Honda agrees that more Accords were stolen because it has been such a big-volume seller. Its rate of theft is not higher than average, a spokesman said.

"The most stolen cars in the Detroit area are much different than the national list," he said, reflecting the fact that foreign cars are less popular here because so many area residents have ties to the American makers.

"The most popular car with thieves in the Detroit area," Gavigan said, "are the Dodge Shadow, followed by Ford Mustang, Plymouth Sundance, Plymouth Acclaim and Olds Cutlass."

How effective are car alarms in preventing thefts?

"Not very," said Gavigan. "We did a test once in which we parked a minivan in a shopping center lot and activated the alarm for hours. We left one door open."

"Only one person paid any attention at all. He approached the vehicle, looked in and walked away. He didn't even close the door."

Autos

By Richard Wright

The main value of the alarm is that if you have a vehicle parked outside in your driveway, it alerts you that your vehicle is being stolen so you can report it, he said. The faster you report a theft, the more likely your car will be recovered.

"Let him take the vehicle," Gavigan advised. "Don't risk injury or worse trying to protect your property." But, he said, let the police know your vehicle has been stolen as soon as possible. Most cars are stolen for parts and it takes a chop shop only 30 minutes to strip a car.

"A kill switch is more effective in preventing an amateur from stealing your car," he said, "but it won't stop a professional thief." And kill switches can cause problems for the owner. It's one more system that can go wrong.

"The LoJack is not an alarm," said Gavigan. "It sends out a radio signal to police tracking equipment. It is a tracking system that interfaces with police agencies."

Obviously, LoJack will only work in areas in which police are equipped to track the device. Detroit is one of those areas.

The LoJack transmitter is hidden on the vehicle and it gives no warning that it is working. It transmits the make, model, color and, most importantly, the exact location of the vehicle. The system becomes operative as soon as the owner notifies police of the theft.

The police activate a computer-aided radio broadcast sequence which activates the LoJack transmitter in the vehicle, allowing police cars equipped with tracking computers to determine the precise location of the stolen vehicle, recover it and often arrest the thief.

Car thefts are a big business — if car thieves were a legitimate operation, it would rank 56th on the Fortune 500 list of largest corporations — and like all business, it changes.

Anti-theft technology has virtually eliminated the "joy-riders" who take a car for a ride and then ditch it somewhere. And the big car-theft rings with large "chop shops" have evolved into smaller operations in which the thieves work for themselves and the chop shops buy cars from them.

In fact, recovery devices like the LoJack played a role in changing the business by leading police to a number of large stripping operations.

"Most thieves now steal a vehicle and sell it to the strippers for drug money. Chop shops typically pay $150 to $200 for a stolen vehicle," Gavigan said.

To keep a LoJack-equipped car from leading police to a chop shop, thieves typically park the car on a street somewhere for a few hours. This is a major factor in LoJack's high recovery rate. If the car is still there after a few hours, the thieves assume it has no transmitter on it and take it to the shop.

"Alarms and steering wheel locks don't appear to deter professional thieves," Gavigan said. "If there is a steering wheel lock on the car, they just cut the wheel."

The fact that Hondas and Shadows top the lists of stolen cars belies the common belief that luxury cars are the most likely target. When all cars are worth about $150 to the thief, he steals what is convenient.

The average stolen car is valued at about $17,000 and it is most likely to be red or black. As for the days of the week, they are about equal in number of thefts, Gavigan said.

The uniqueness of a car is no longer insurance against theft, Gavigan said. After having gone about 12 years without a reported theft, even Rolls-Royce is now a target. "We've had a couple reported stolen," he said.

A candidate for next year's top stolen car in the Detroit area is the Plymouth and Dodge Neon, according to one expert.

Topping the list of favorites of car thieves in 1996 was the 1994 Honda Accord. Honda models accounted for 11 of the top 25 stolen cars.

Children and air bag safety — the back seat is best

The back seat is the safest seat for all children, concludes a study by the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration (NHTSA). The American Automobile Association (AAA), Chrysler Corporation, the American Academy of Pediatrics and Morton International agree.

The organizations have partnered to create "The Back is Where it's At — the ABCs of Air Bag Safety." This is an education campaign to reach more than 30 million day care, preschool and elementary school students.

The campaign, already under way, has been designed so that children and parents can learn about air bag safety and that it's "cool" to be buckled in the back seat.

"Air bags are lifesaving devices, but special precautions must be taken when driving children in air bag-equipped vehicles," says Jerry Basch, AAA Michigan manager of community safety services. "Children risk injury if they are unbelted, improperly belted or otherwise too close to the dashboard when an air bag inflates."

According to Basch, since 1986 there have been more than 750,000 air bag deployments nationally which have saved an estimated 1,500 lives while 54 fatalities have been related to air bag use. In almost all of these cases, the people who were killed were either not wearing or were incorrectly using their seat belt or child safety seat.

According to NHTSA, since 1993, 34 children (9 infants and 25 children) in the United States have been killed in crashes where an air bag deployed.

All nine infants were improperly placed in the front seat in a rear-facing infant safety seat. Of the 25 children killed, 18 were known to be totally unrestrained by seat belts or safety seats, and two were improperly restrained.

Car safety seats position children dangerously close to the air bag when it deploys.

For this reason, AAA Michigan recommends:

- All children 12 years old and younger should be properly secured in the back seat.

- Buckle every child (and adult) in the vehicle properly.

- Never place rear-facing infant safety seats in the front seat of a vehicle with a front passenger-side air bag.

The back of the seat in this position is too close to the inflating air bag.

Hemmings, a publication of the old-car hobby, lists stolen collector cars. Currently listed are such rarities as a '63 Studebaker Hawk and a '53 Willys pickup truck.

"The market for stolen cars evolves to meet demand, just as all markets do," said Bill Geen, senior vice president of CCC. "It is interesting that for the first time in several years a foreign car maker has taken the top three positions. This tells me that thieves don't steal vehicles based upon how simple or hard it is to take them, but on how easy it may be to sell them on the black market."

CCC Information Services, headquartered in Chicago, is the collision repair industry's leading supplier of advanced software and communication systems.

"I think next year's most wanted stolen car will be the Neon," Gavigan said. "It's a sharp little car and there are a lot of them on the road now."

A lot to steal and a lot in need of parts.

Double fines for moving violations at emergency scenes

Because of dangers facing EMTs on the job, state rep. Clark Harder introduced an amendment to the speed limit bill which passed last summer. As a result, motorists are now subject to double fines for any moving violation at an emergency scene. An emergency scene is defined as a traffic crash, a serious incident caused by weather conditions, or another occurrence along a highway or street for which a police officer, firefighter or emergency medical personnel are summoned to aid an injured victim.

The Michigan Office of Highway Safety Planning, in conjunction with SWM Systems, the regional EMS coordination agency for the lower peninsula, is conducting a public education campaign to keep EMS personnel safer on the job, as they treat crash victims and transport patients to hospitals.

The campaign, "Don't make an emergency worse," stresses that motorists yield the right of way to emergency vehicles and to drive safely at emergency scenes.

To avoid injury to themselves and others, motorists should remember the following:

- Drive slowly through emergency scenes.
 - Cooperate with personnel directing traffic.
 - Don't be distracted by the crash — pay attention to driving.
 - Yield the right of way to emergency vehicles — pull off the road to the right and stop when lights and sirens are approaching.
- Signs will soon go up along state highways advising motorists of the double fines.

In recent years, the Oldsmobile Cutlass and Cutlass Supreme has topped the car thieves' hit parade. Even a car as unusual as this '88 Cutlass Supreme Indianapolis 500 pace car would not be immune.

Unloined post prompts probe

The detective bureau of the Grosse Pointe Farms police, the U.S. Postal Inspector's office, and a credit card company have begun investigating a Feb. 2 complaint filed by a Grosse Pointe Farms woman residing on Colonial Court.

From August 1996 through Jan. 15, the woman has had 15 dividend checks allegedly stolen from her mailbox.

In addition, the same perpetrators, or possibly others, have obtained the woman's social Security number and applied for credit cards under her name. Since September 1996 through the present, thousands of dollars worth of merchandise have been charged to the fraudulent credit cards.

Library card not checked out

Grosse Pointe Farms public safety officers have launched an investigation, and are holding as evidence an allegedly bogus Michigan identification card and mysterious handwritten note that was found Feb. 1 at the Grosse Pointe Public Library, Central branch.

The identification card displayed a photo of a Caucasian woman, and identified her birth as May 4, 1957, and her address in the 2100 block of Van Antwerp in Grosse Pointe Woods.

The note accompanying the ID card stated that the card was a fraud and the photo inaccurate. The note further stated that the ID was used to commit crimes in the area and that the person whose name appears on the ID card cannot be photographed because "I have a luminous photo type."

The police check of the address revealed a different family residing at the address than the person stated on the ID card.

A name on the phony ID, checked through a computer LEIN search, identified the person on the ID as living in Clinton Township. However, the address the computer gave was that of a municipal building.

Phone trouble

Grosse Pointe Woods public safety officers were called to a cellular telephone dealer on Mack last week to investigate a possible fraud. The incident began when the phone dealer was called by a woman who said that she was sick and was it all right for her boyfriend to buy a cell phone for her, using her identification.

The dealer said yes, and

later a man came to the store to purchase a cellular telephone. When the dealer saw the I.D., he became suspicious and told the man that the phone would be delivered to his girlfriend's home. The dealer then called the Woods police, to check the name on the I.D.

The search revealed that the I.D. was stolen in an armed robbery in Detroit a few weeks ago. So, with the help of police, the dealer called the man and asked if it weren't too much trouble could he pick up the telephone. When the man arrived at the store he was taken into custody by Woods police on Friday, Jan. 31.

The suspect was later remanded to the custody of Detroit police in connection with the armed robbery in which the identification was first stolen.

Mack arrest

Grosse Pointe Park police, along with Detroit police on Thursday, Jan. 30, at about 10 p.m., arrested a Detroit man after a car chase ended with a crash.

The chase began in Detroit when Detroit police began pursuing the suspect who was driving a white LeBaron that was reported stolen. The suspect was fleeing south on Audubon from Warren and turned west onto Mack. A Park patrol unit picked up the pursuit at Three Mile.

At Alter Road the suspect's vehicle collided with another car that was crossing north on Mack. Detroit police officers were able to converge on the scene and captured the suspect, who was taken into the custody of the Detroit Police Department. The driver of the other car was reported shaken, but uninjured.

The suspect's car was disabled, and police discovered a handgun in the front seat.

ALL IN ALIGN(MENT)

With both two- and four-wheel alignments available, how does a car owner know which to choose for his or her vehicle? In the event that a wheel alignment is indeed necessary, the type chosen should be made on the basis of the car's suspension. All-independent suspensions need a four-wheel alignment. As a rule, this includes many, but not all, front-wheel drive cars. With a four-wheel alignment, all four wheels are adjusted relative to one another. Cars without independent rear suspensions, including many rear-wheel-drive cars, can often make do with a front-end alignment because there is nothing to adjust on the rear wheels. All that is needed is to set the adjustable angles of the front wheels with respect to one another. With properly aligned wheels, car owners can assure themselves that their wheels will not counteract one another as they roll down the road.

Alignments not only affect how well your car will steer, they also affect the wear and tear on your tires, so be sure to have them done regularly. At RINKE TOYOTA, you'll find service excellence, friendly personnel, and a willingness to go the extra mile to satisfy customers. You'll never have any regrets once you bring your car to us because we won't let you out the door until you're happy with our services. Visit us at 25420 Van Dyke. Phone: 758-2000. We are glad to explain thoroughly the work completed.

HINT: A thrust angle alignment not only sets the adjustable angles of all four wheels relative to one another, but to the centerline of the vehicle as well.

Pancake supper

Busy students

Students at Monteith Elementary School in Grosse Pointe Woods helped kick off the Quarters for Kids campaign on Jan. 31, sponsored by Little Caesars restaurants and benefiting the Share Our Strength (SOS) national hunger relief organization.

At an assembly, students gathered to learn about good nutrition and the widespread problem of hunger in the United States. Throughout the first week of February, Monteith students brought in donations for SOS. In addition, Little Caesars is helping by donating 50 cents of every $1 from the sale of Little Caesars' products redeemed with special coupons distributed to the students. In 1996, Monteith students raised $600 for SOS.

Grosse Pointe South High School student Kristin Reagan ventured inside the "beltway" earlier this month to witness the presidential inauguration as part of the Presidential Classroom's 1997 program. Reagan joined 300 high school juniors and seniors from 46 states, Puerto Rico and Canada. They spent five days celebrating, meeting with government leaders and learning about the democratic process first-hand.

Events

Brownell Middle School hosts its annual Coney dog night on Thursday, Feb. 13, from 6 to 7:30 p.m. Following the fundraising dinner, the school will be opened for visitors to see classrooms, view student projects and learn more about the middle school.

The Grosse Pointe Academy's winter art show is Feb. 3-7, and features the work of all kindergarten through eighth grade students. Paintings, sculptures, masks and drawings will be displayed from 7:30 a.m. to 5:30 p.m. in the main quad.

Students get dose of reality in tour of Wayne County Medical Examiner's office

By Shirley A. McShane
Staff Writer

There wasn't a lot of chatting and laughing among students on a recent field trip.

The 20 or so Grosse Pointe South High School juniors and seniors who visited the Wayne County Medical Examiner's Office on Jan. 29, along with science teacher Greg Heffner, watched quietly from a glassed-in viewing room as forensic pathologists performed autopsies.

They listened intently on the sidelines as toxicologists explained the nature of their busy laboratory. And their eyes were riveted to an overhead screen in a wood-paneled conference room as a forensic photographer flashed nearly 100 still pictures depicting the many faces of death.

The tour, given to students studying biology and environmental science at South, is something that wouldn't have been possible before the facility relocated two years ago to its new, state-of-the-art building on East Warren in downtown Detroit, said Donald C. Cox, director of administration.

"Our old facility just wasn't very attractive, it didn't have the classrooms, the equipment," Cox said. "We want to expand (the purpose of) this building and make it available to the community. When people hear the 'medical examiner's office' they think they don't want to come here."

But Cox said the response he has received from the student groups who have made the tour is positive. The purpose of the program for students is twofold, he said. It first provides an opportunity for high school students considering a career in forensic pathology or toxicology to see and meet people on the job.

Secondly, the facility has the resources to show students the results of hazardous lifestyles.

The new facility also is open to college programs, including the Wayne State University nursing program, and provides additional training for law enforcement officers.

Although the medical examiner's office is making itself open to the public, the building remains under tight security because, among other things, evidence for criminal investigations is held there, he said.

The tour is tailored for the age and experience of the group, Cox said. Elementary and middle school students wouldn't be taken into the autopsy viewing room. High school students, however, are exposed to some graphic photographs as part of forensic photographer J.D. Douglas' presentation.

His pictures depict shooting victims, the various forms of gang violence — from mutilation of their own and others' bodies to "drive-by shootings," diseased livers and cancerous lungs, gangrene-infested limbs of intravenous drug users, child abuse victims and the grisly results of drunken-driving crashes.

"This is graphic, but it's what you need to know," Douglas told the students. "When you lead certain types of lifestyles, these are the end results."

Douglas said he started the program a year ago and has worked for the medical examiner's office for seven years. He hopes he will have a positive influence on young people "who think these things will never happen to them."

Accolades

Maire Elementary School student Megan Switalski was safety student of the month for January. Her name inadvertently was omitted from the monthly listings featured on the schools pages. She was one of 11 safety patrol students honored in January for excellent attendance and dedication to volunteer duty at the school. Safety patrol students are on duty at intersections near schools to help students cross streets safely. They are at their posts every day, before and after classes and in all kinds of weather.

Elizabeth Nault of Grosse Pointe Farms and Jessica

Wisk of Grosse Pointe Woods were among the top competitors in the 19th annual Scholastic Olympics held Jan. 19 at Regina High School in Harper Woods.

Nault, a student at St. Paul Catholic School, placed first in the art competition; Wisk, a student at Our Lady Star of the Sea, placed first in the forensics category.

The purpose of Scholastic Olympics is to encourage academic excellence and recognize achievement in the following areas: art, English, forensics, math, music, reading comprehension, religious studies, science and social studies.

Taking a little time for children today has long-term rewards

By Shirley A. McShane
Staff Writer

What do 30 minutes mean to you?

The amount of time it takes to get to work? An episode of "Home Improvement" including commercial breaks? A fat-burning session on the Stairmaster?

If you are a parent, it ought to mean the minimum amount of time you set aside at least once a week for each of your children. That's one of the messages that Jerry Moe, children's program director at the Sierra Tucson Center for Addiction Recovery, delivered to an audience of parents in Grosse Pointe last week.

"The greatest gift you can give a child is your time," Moe said. He proposes that parents set aside one to two 30-minute sessions each week for "Sacred Time."

This means nothing interferes with the one-on-one interaction that serves as a relationship builder.

"Parents hesitate, thinking they have to plan something elaborate," he said. "They don't. Make it what the kids want to do. Take a walk. Have a talk. Play with their toys. All you have to do is show up."

Thirty minutes may not seem like a lot until you see the statistics. Moe said research shows that the average time a father spends with his child each day is 8 minutes; working mothers spend an average of 11 minutes a day with their children.

Time is defined not as interaction to clothe, bathe or feed a child, or time spent watching television. It is making-eye-contact, listening-to-each-other, dialogue time.

Why is time so important? "Many kids lack consistent parenting because everyone is so busy," he said. "We are moving so fast these days."

Moe is a children's therapist in an in-patient program for substance abuse, mental health and abuse issues. He's been doing this for 19 years. He's also worked for school districts and has co-written two books. He takes his message on the road about once a month.

He has a theory that if children are given the attention and support they need, and provided a set of values when they are growing up, they will develop the resiliency to avoid at-risk behavior.

"At younger and younger ages, children are making major life decisions that they are not necessarily equipped to be making," he said. "They are exposed to alcohol, drugs, violence and sexual activity at younger ages."

These are tough times to be a kid, Moe said, and equally tough times to be a parent. The irony of parenting, he said, is that it is probably the most important job anyone will ever have and yet it is the task for which we all have the least training.

He knows. Moe has a 15-year-old son and 12-year-old twin girls.

"I'm struggling with these very same issues," he said.

The bottom line, he tells parents, is that they are their children's primary teachers. He asks parents to consciously think about giving their children a set of values. Parents should ask themselves: What three values do I want my children to take with themselves when they leave home? "What we know from research is that it is fascinating how some children grow up in families with (highly stressful situations) and do well, while their siblings do not," he said.

Moe refers to an ongoing study by Dr. Emmy Werner of the University of California at Davis, which began with a group of babies born in 1955. The study group has been tracked from birth to present day.

Everyone can benefit from resiliency skills, Moe said. They help people bounce back from adversity and stress-inducing situations. They instill the ability to communicate effectively, solve problems and provide a sense of purpose for the future.

"What I want parents to hear about this research is that looking back on the adults who have resiliency, they had the presence of adult support in their lives, whether it was a parent, a coach or a teacher," he said. "They had a person who provided support and provided consequences when behavior was inappropriate."

Given the support, attention, guidance and consequences, a child will leave home with a solid foundation on which to measure the many things in life he or she will encounter.

Moe was invited to speak by the Grosse Pointe Public School System, the Grosse Pointe PTO Council, the Grosse Pointe Foundation for Academic Enrichment and other community groups.

His presentation will be broadcast on Grosse Pointe Cable Channel 6 Monday through Friday, Feb. 17 through 21, and Feb. 24

Kerby school library named in honor of Nancy S. Salamas

Nothing could be a more fitting tribute to the late Nancy Salamas than to dedicate Kerby Elementary School's library in her honor.

Salamas died in January 1996 of a rare blood disorder. She had been principal of Kerby school since 1992 and an employee of the Grosse Pointe Public School System for 29 years.

Salamas was known for her love of libraries, books and children. She was instrumental in getting the school's cramped library expanded and redecorated.

The renovated library is twice the size of the original room, has new "kid size" furniture, new carpeting and wall paper and a platform for story times and special presentations.

School board trustee and Kerby parent Cindy Pangborn said Salamas always had contests and special events in the library to generate student interest in books.

Following her death last year, the Kerby PTO president asked the board to consider renaming the school's library as the Nancy S. Salamas Memorial Library.

Board policy states that the school system "shall not take action on the request (to rename a district facility) until one year after the request is received."

One year after the PTO's request, the matter was presented at the board's Feb. 3 meeting and approved unanimously.

— Shirley A. McShane

The new library at Kerby, above, shortly after it was shown to the public in a special open-house in 1995, is a spacious, user-friendly room now dedicated to the woman who made it possible — the late Nancy Salamas, right, school principal from 1992 to the time of her death.

U-M debuts new 'Internet' radio series

A series of radio programs highlighting the various features and capabilities of the Internet has debuted on Michigan Radio, the University of Michigan's public radio service.

"The rapid growth of the internet has focused our attention on the ways in which the use of information can change our own activities and redefine our sense of community," says Maurita Holland, associate professor and assistant to the dean for academic outreach of the School of Information.

This joint project is supported by a grant from the W.K. Kellogg Foundation to the School of Information. Transcripts and audio clips, along with selected "best links" will be available on the "Internet on the Air" home page at <http://www.si.umich.edu/iotla/>.

Internet on the Air can be heard on WUOM-FM at 91.7, serving the Ann Arbor and southeastern Michigan area. Joan Silvi will serve as host of the program on Saturdays, at 8:38 a.m. and 5:28 p.m.

City ordinance gives options for driveway building materials

By Amy Andreou Miller
Staff Writer

If you seek a pleasant driveway, look about you.

Thanks to a newly-passed City ordinance, residents now legally have the right to construct their driveway out of material other than concrete.

However, if the City or utility companies need to break up the end, or apron, of a resident's driveway in order to service a water main, or work on utility pipes or wires, the City will cover the cost of replacing only the concrete in a resident's driveway apron.

That means residents who wish to enhance the beauty of their property with brick pavers, for example, will not have these items replaced by the City if access is needed to the apron of the driveway and disruption to brick pavers is likely.

The City Council, at its January meeting, voted to correct an outdated ordinance that had required driveways to be made of concrete or a comparable material. Many residents already incorporated other materials into their driveway, and according to the new ordinance that is now acceptable, but residents do so at their own risk of replacement costs.

The Council voted unanimously, stating the limits to which the City will pay to restore a resident's driveway following disruption to the apron. The City will cover the cost of replacing concrete, the homeowner pays the difference.

In the event that a homeowner does not have any concrete in their driveway, such as John and Deb Dohan whose Rivard home has a grass driveway, the City would pay for what the cost of concrete would be; the homeowner pays the difference.

"The City Council members definitely do not want to discourage residents from beautifying their property. In fact, they want to encourage it," said administrative assistant Brian Vick. "But a reasonable approach to replacement costs incurred by the City had to be made."

What prompted the Council to examine the issue were several residents who stopped into City Hall throughout 1996, seeking guidelines regarding their options to make aesthetic improvements to their driveway, Vick said.

City of Grosse Pointe Woods, Michigan COMMUNITY DEVELOPMENT BLOCK GRANT PUBLIC HEARING

A Public Hearing will be held on Monday, February 24, 1997, at 7:30 p.m., or as soon thereafter as may be heard, in the Council Room of the Municipal Building, 20025 Mack Plaza, Grosse Pointe Woods, Michigan, to hear comments regarding the 1997/98 fiscal year Community Development Block Grant (CDBG) Proposed Estimated budget as shown below.

In fiscal year '96/'97, the city of Grosse Pointe Woods received a total of $97,000 in CDBG funding. It is projected that the city's FY '97/'98 Proposed Estimated CDBG budget will be $92,150, or 5% less than the current year. Based upon the above projection, the Proposed Estimated CDBG '97/'98 Budget may be allocated as follows:

1997/98 PROPOSED ESTIMATED BUDGET

• Services for Older Citizens (SOC)	40%
• Pointe Area Assisted Trans. Ser. (PAATS)	15%
• Senior Citizen Coordinator	35%
• Administration	10%
Total:	100%

In addition to the above proposed estimated CDBG budget, an estimated $1,000 in Program Income is also projected, and is to be allocated to the city's Housing Rehab Program.

Edit photographs before showing

By Monte Nagler
Special Writer

Be sure to edit your pictures once you get them back from the processing lab.

How often have you visited friends or family just back from a trip and are subjected to slides out of focus or improperly exposed or having too many shots of the same subject? Of course, not all the pictures will be like that, but many people just don't give enough attention to weeding out the unsuccessful or uninteresting ones.

Even good pictures lack impact if they are submerged in a flood of bad shots.

Look at any magazine such as Life or National Geographic.

In a photo spread, the few pictures that have been printed were selected from hundreds of shots.

Begin to edit by discarding those pictures that are badly exposed or out of focus. Next, look at subjects of which you've taken more than one shot. Select one or two that are the most interesting and that give a good overall view.

After this initial editing, decide whether any pictures would be improved by being cropped. With color or black and white prints, you can either trim a picture to a more pleasing size or you can enlarge a portion of the negative. With slides, you can purchase pre-cropped slide mounts or use polyester film tape to block out unwanted parts of a picture.

It is easy to select the best shots from a vacation, but greater care is needed for a series of portraits. Here, look for frames that show your subject in the most flattering and pleasing way.

It may seem wasteful to discard so many pictures, but the results will be that friends and family will look forward to seeing your shots — and people you have photographed will be pleased with being seen at their best.

After careful editing, Monte Nagler selected this photograph to represent the drama and mystique of Stonehenge, located near Salisbury, England.

Local library can help with taxing issues

By The Omnivorous Reader
Grosse Pointe Public Library

Holiday trees and trim were still up when billions of boxes began arriving at libraries, banks and post offices all over the country.

With the tree lights twinkling inside the library, out in the hall we unloaded cartons of things too fearful to consider at length or after dark: tax forms and directives.

Of course, hardier souls get a real kick out of this. These are the same people who swim in Lake St. Clair on New Year's Day, climb the Matterhorn without the ropes and eat raw fugu in months without an R.

Nonetheless, it's a good idea to start the tax work early.

Pressure builds, IRS phone lines get tied up, forms disappear at a rapid pace and copy machines break down.

At your branch of the Grosse Pointe Public Library you can find common federal forms and instruction sheets to take with you. Notebooks with federal master sheets are available for copying.

There are some books with taxpayer information available at the reference desk.

The state forms never arrive at the library before the end of January. City of Detroit forms arrive even later. (You have to fill out a federal 1040 form before you can begin state and city government forms anyway).

The librarians can check the forms for you, but they cannot answer tax questions. If you need forms the library cannot provide, call (800) 829-3676. If your form instructions mystify you, call tax assistance at (800) 829-1040. Hearing impaired callers should dial (800) 829-4059.

If you feel a wild urge to escape all this, pick up a copy of John Berendt's "Midnight in the Garden of Good and Evil." Even though it's a 1994 title, it's still in demand, and the demand will increase this spring. I'll tell you why later. Trust me, it's a great escape.

SCOTT ROBINSON

How can a REIT benefit an income and growth portfolio?

By Joseph Mengden

REIT (pronounced "reet," as in "sweet") is an acronym for Real Estate Investment Trust. A REIT can be organized as a corporation or a trust, and is usually a public company, with stock traded on NYSE or elsewhere.

There are private REITs, which are owned only by institutions. Generally, the corporate format assures investors of their limited liability for the REIT's indebtedness, if any.

Congress created REITs, especially the Equity REIT, to closely resemble stock mutual funds, in that a pool of equity investors could own a diversified portfolio of real estate properties. REITs also mimic mutual funds, in that the cash dividends to shareholders are tax-free at the corporate level, unlike the manufacturing company, which pays dividends out of after-tax income.

Since the corporate federal income tax rate is maxed at the 35 percent level, plus state and local income taxes, the REITs tax-free status enables it to distribute all of its pre-tax income, plus the cash not expended for depreciation and amortization expenses. Note, that mutual funds also "pass through" their net income, if they distribute 95 percent or more of their net income. REITs have the same 95 percent or more threshold. Most pay out 100 percent.

The REIT's cash dividends are taxable to its shareholders, of course, but it avoids the "double taxation" of most other dividends.

If the REIT makes distributions in excess of its taxable net income, the excess distribution is treated as "return of capital" to its shareholders. This excess results from accounting concepts, which are somewhat unique to the real estate industry.

Let's talk...STOCKS

Real estate owners, both corporate and individual, are permitted to depreciate their properties to reflect normal wear and tear. The IRS permits scheduled depreciation expenses as deductions from taxable income, which do not involve cash expenditures.

This excess cash is added back to net income to produce "funds from operations," or FFO. Analysts have further refined this concept to produce "funds available for distribution," or FAD, and "cash available for distribution," or CAD. These highly technical concepts enable REITs to pay out 10 percent to 20 percent of their annual cash dividends as non-taxable return of capital!

Did your eyes and ears just light up?

There are presently over 300 REITs of all sizes and shapes, with over 150 listed on the NYSE. REITs are not limited partnerships. REIT shareholders receive a year-end IRS Form 1099 (like you got from GM), not like the nightmare IRS Schedule K-1 received by limited partnership holders.

REITs are classified by real estate activity and location. The most basic classifications are 1) Equity, 2) Mortgage, and 3) Hybrid.

The Equity REITs own and operate rental real estate, for their own portfolio, rather than for development and resale. Between 1972 and the first quarter of 1994, Equity REITs delivered an impressive average annual total return of 13.3 percent (dividends, plus stock appreciation).

Mortgage REITs lend money to real estate owners and operators, often with back-end "equity-kickers," which earn a percentage of the borrower's gain, if any, if the property is sold at a profit. Most of the problem REITs, that failed in the 1970s, were Mortgage REITs, funded by high debt/equity ratios. Since the same 1972-1994 era, cited above, these Mortgage REITs have produced an average annual total return of 4.0 percent, less than Treasuries. LTS says: Forget it!

Hybrid REITs are half fish, half fowl — part Mortgage and part Equity. Their total return for the 1972-94 period, quoted above, was only 8.2 percent, on an average annual basis. LTS says: Don't bother!

Which brings us back to Equity REITs. Some specialize in multi-family housing (high-rise, or townhouse, or mixed), retail, health care (including nursing homes), industrial and office. Within the "retail" sector, there are specialists in shopping malls, "power centers," strip shopping centers, large regional malls and factory outlets. A few years ago a new category has been added:

manufactured housing developments (formerly called "trailer parks").

Why REITs? REITs offer the investor an opportunity to benefit from professional management of a diversified real estate portfolio. Successful managements have been able to grow their REITs, through rental increases, which produces additional cash flow, which produces increasing dividends, at a tax-advantaged rate. REIT stock prices reflect anticipated total return over the near-to-intermediate future, with an ever watchful eye on underlying asset values (appraisals) of the real estate.

This REIT stock phenomenon, created by Congress in 1960, has enabled U.S. investors, for the first time, to securitize real estate ownership for knowledgeable investors, like you and LTS.

Measuring up to home office deduction

If you're among the growing number of people who work from a home office, you've no doubt considered the merits of the home office deduction. And, if you're like thousands of other audit-fearing home office workers, you may have dismissed the idea as too risky. However, the Michigan Association of CPAs said while qualifying for the deduction is difficult, taxpayers who meet the requirements should not pass up this valuable opportunity to save tax dollars.

Understanding the requirements

To qualify for the home office deduction, CPAs suggest you ask yourself the following question: Do you use your home office regularly and exclusively as your principal place of business or as a place of business where you regularly meet or deal with patients, clients or customers in the normal course of your business?

It's important to understand the concepts of "regularly" and "exclusively." Regular use does not imply you have to use your office every day or even every week, but sporadic use probably won't qualify for a deduction. Similarly, the Internal Revenue Service's (IRS) reference to "exclusive" use does not mean you need to maintain an office in a separate room to qualify for the deduction. A clearly defined part of a room is fine as long as you devote that space solely to your business. Case in point: The Tax Court recently ruled a piano teacher who gave lessons and practiced at her piano in a small part of her living room could treat that area as her home office and qualify for the deduction.

The term "principal place of business" is where most taxpayers run into trouble.

According to tax law, the principal place of your business is where your most important or significant business functions are conducted. If this definition does not result in a clear answer, compare the amount of time spent in your home office to that spent in each of your other locations. If you generate most of your income by performing services at other locations (house painters, plumbers, etc.) and use your home office primarily for administrative tasks, it is difficult to qualify for home office deduction. (However, there is proposed legislation to address this issue.)

Even if you don't meet the principal place of business test, you still can qualify if you regularly see or meet with clients, patients or customers in your home office. But an occasional meeting is not enough.

Calculating the deduction

Direct expenses, such as repairs to your home office, are fully deductible. Deductions for indirect expenses, such as the cost of utilities, mortgage interest, real estate taxes, maintenance and homeowner's insurance are based on the percentage of your home used for business. For example, if your home has 2,000 square feet of living area, and your home office occupies 200 square feet of that space, one-tenth of your indirect expenses are deductible. If all the rooms in your home are approximately the same size, and an entire room is used for business, you can make your calculation based on the number of rooms. You cannot use the home office deduction to create or increase a tax loss from your business. For example, if after deducting all other business expenses, your business is showing net income of $1,000 before claiming the home office deduction, your deduction is limited to $1,000. Excess home office expenses may carry into future tax years.

Substantiate your deductions
Individuals claiming home office deductions must file Form 8829, Expenses for Business Use of Your Home. Keeping good records will be helpful in event you are audited. As an added measure, CPAs suggest you keep a log of clients and customers who visit your office and the amount of time you spend at each location.

Lower your taxes: deduct transportation expenses

Virtually every small business owner finds it necessary at one time or another to hop into a car to take a client to lunch, make a sales call or present a proposal. Yet not every business owner keeps track of these driving expenses properly — and that may be costing the business valuable tax dollars, said the Michigan Association of CPAs. That's because qualified transportation expenses can be deducted from your business' bottom line and reduce your overall tax bill.

Commuting or business mileage?

Using a car to commute from home to work and back home again is generally not considered business mileage and therefore is not deductible. Making business calls from your car while commuting to your regular work place does not change the status of your trip. The same rule applies to holding a business meeting in your car while en route from your home to the office. But if you are assigned to more than one office, or if you have a second or sideline job, the rules allow you to deduct the cost of driving from one business location to another. Also, if you are an employee with a regular place of business, you may be able to deduct daily transportation expenses when you are required to work at a "temporary" business location. But should that temporary assignment progress into something more regular, be prepared to pay your own way. For example, an employee working for a lengthy period as a consultant at a client's office is considered to be commuting if the trip originates from home; therefore, he or she cannot deduct the cost of transportation to and from this workplace. If, however, you are self-employed, and your home is your principal place of business, the miles you drive to a client's office may be claimed as business mileage.

Actual Expenses or Standard Mileage Rate?

The IRS gives you a choice of two methods for calculating deductions for the business use of your car: actual expenses or the standard mileage rate.

The actual expenses method allows you to deduct the cost of gas, oil, tires, maintenance and repairs, vehicle registration, insurance, depreciation and other allowable expenses.

To use the standard mileage method, which covers all the expenses outlined above, you multiply the number of unreimbursed business miles by the standard mileage rate (31 cents per mile for 1996). This method may not be used if you claimed a depreciation deduction for your auto in a previous year. Your deduction is determined based on the percentage of miles related to business use.

Recordkeeping and Reporting

You'll need to complete accurate written records to substantiate the extent to which you've used your car for business purposes and to defend your deduction in the event of an audit. It's a good idea to keep a log in your glove compartment in which you can note the details of all your business-related miles. You should record when the trip took place, where and why you went, who you saw and how many miles you drove. If you're using the actual expenses method, you'll also need receipts for gasoline, oil, repairs, car washes and maintenance work to support your deduction. Receipts for tolls and parking should be kept.

The way you report business use of your car depends on whether you are an employee or are self-employed. If you're an employee, you must complete Form 2106, Employee Business Expenses, to deduct your automobile expenses. Employees may claim unreimbursed transportation expenses as miscellaneous itemized deductions, which can be deducted only to the extent they exceed two percent of your adjusted gross income. Self-employed individuals report transportation expenses on Schedule C, where they are fully deductible.

While recordkeeping can be cumbersome, your efforts can pay off in a valuable tax deduction. If you're not sure whether to use the actual expenses method or the standard mileage rate, confer with a CPA to determine the best approach for your circumstances.

FUN FOR ALL!

Ice carving is back in Grosse Pointe! For the third year there will be displays and a demonstration on the plaza at Kercheval and St. Clair in the Village. No need to be concerned with the weather because the carver will work from his refrigerated demo truck with large picture window if outside temperatures are unseasonably warm.

Sculpting is done by artists from the Midwest Ice Corporation. They begin with a 50-inch-by-22-inch-by-11-inch block of ice and carve it into various shapes and figures using a chainsaw and other hand tools. These blocks average 440 pounds each.

Almost a dozen sculptures will be placed around the Village area to be enjoyed by all. Romantic themes will abound since the demonstration falls on the weekend that amorous shoppers scout the Village for mementos for their Valentines.

Members of Girls Club learn to make differences in their own, others' lives

By Shirley A. McShane
Staff Writer

Worried that fifth-grade girls at Defer were focusing too much on materialistic and superficial matters and not on building their own inner strength and skills, counselor Doug Merkle and elementary resource room teacher Andi Cline formed the Girls With New Attitudes Club.

Each Monday at lunch time a group of about 15 girls gathers for a club meeting. The girls talk about what's bothering them: litter on the front lawn or play field, kids getting hassled, problems at home and with their peers. While talking about their concerns, Cline and Merkle encourage the girls to come up with ways to bring about change.

"In a broad sense and in a personal sense I look at the young women today and I see girls leaving here and going over to the middle school and falling into the same old traps: smoking cigarettes, trying drugs and thinking they have to have a boyfriend to be somebody," Cline said.

"We don't want them to develop the 'dependent female personality,'" Merkle said. "We want them to have healthy outlooks and lifestyles." Cline said she grew concerned when she became aware of the fixation some children have with what street some lives on, how many numbers were in their addresses and other external factors.

The Girls Club, as it is sometimes called, strives to help its members to look inward and develop a sense of volunteerism, respect for others and for themselves.

The idea of having student discussion groups is part of the whole student assistance movement, Merkle said. Counselors and teachers are now looking at ways to prevent problems before they occur rather than intervening when the problem has reached a crisis point.

"We help them become active participants in de-emphasizing the negatives and focusing on the positives," Cline said. "We want them to have something to offer."

So what have the girls done this year so far?

They have cleaned up the school grounds. They have hand-crafted cards which were delivered during the holidays to house-bound senior citizens who receive Meals on Wheels packages. They adopted a dolphin. They sang Christmas carols to Bon Secours Hospital patients. They have taken lessons in social graces and they are tutoring the kindergarten through third-grade students who need help with their homework.

"Self-esteem comes from being able to give and being successful," Merkle said. "We give them the opportunity to make things, to do things that will make them feel good about themselves. All the projects are initiated by them."

Merkle and Cline said the club is growing in popularity as more and more girls want to join. There are no dues and the program doesn't cost the school district any money.

"We have fun here," said fifth-grader Blair Lee. "Where else can you adopt a dolphin and help people in the hospital at the same time?"

Fifth-grader Jasmine Kozicki said she likes the club's relaxed atmosphere where the girls feel comfortable talking about their problems.

At a recent meeting the girls were putting together construction paper bookmarks and valentines to be delivered to home-bound senior citizens. As the girls cut hearts and rectangular strips out of the red and green paper sheets in front of them and glued together the pieces to form a book marker, they chatted among themselves about things going on in school and an upcoming dance they are planning.

In addition to developing community projects, the girls also discuss and learn about socialization issues. The girls said they have concerns about how some children in school are isolated and teased, as well as the timeless issue of bullies on the playground.

"We have learned that when you look at people, you shouldn't judge them by the way they walk or talk or by what color they are," said Cherie-Lynne Robb. "We have learned how to be better than that."

The club is operating at Defer this year based on demand. Merkle said there are no plans to form clubs at the eight other elementary schools in the district.

Defer teacher Andi Cline, far left, standing, instructs some of the members of the Girls With New Attitudes Club on how to assemble their latest project — bookmarks that will be sent to seniors who participate in the Meals on Wheels program. Club members in attendance were, Mallory Sabella, Jessica Davis, Blair Lee, Jasmine Kozicki, Michelle Schumacker, Jessica Miroslaw, Missy Keller, Angela Eagle, Natalie Debs, Ashley Voegel and Cherie-Lynne Robb.

Guidance

By a member of the Church of Christ, Scientist
"And thine ears shall hear a word behind thee, saying, This is the way, walk ye in it..." (Isa. 30:21)
How often have individuals, reading these words, longed for such concrete guidance in both small and large decisions.

The "word" which guides us is "behind us," suggesting that we need to pause and listen intently when we need divine guidance. Such listening includes turning wholeheartedly to God, being willing to relinquish our human plans and obediently, quietly praying to know God's will, His wisdom.

The founder of Christian Science, Mary Baker Eddy, wrote the words of a hymn which might be considered a prayer for guidance:

"Shepherd, show me how to go
O'er the hillside steep,
How to gather, how to sow,
How to feed Thy sheep:
I will listen for Thy voice,
Lest my footsteps stray:
I will follow and rejoice
Christian Science Hymnal, No. 304

Christian Science teaches that God is divine Mind, omniscient, omnipresent intelligence. As God's offspring, we are one with His all-knowing wisdom. When we pray to understand our oneness with God, with divine Mind, we find ourselves receptive to whatever intelligent ideas we need to meet our human requirement for guidance.

The daily need for guidance in human experience may range from a simple decision of whom to call for help in a specific job around the house, to when and where to go for a vacation, or how to compassionately handle a relationship challenge.

As brought out above, both the words of Isaiah and Mary Baker Eddy indicate that God's wisdom is always at hand, always available.

Our need is to turn to Him in prayer, to humbly listen for His voice, and to willingly, obediently follow the inspiration which flows to us from our prayerful communion with Him. As Mrs. Eddy wrote: "God gives you His spiritual ideas, and in turn, they give you daily supplies."

How do we know when we are breaking through the mists of human uncertainty and hearing the voice of God?

When we are at one with God's wisdom, we feel at peace, and we feel certain about the rightness of following the intuition we feel.

The Bible promises that "God is our refuge and strength, a very present help in trouble." (Ps. 46:1) We can turn to Him in prayer when we need specific guidance; we can humbly listen to the word "behind us," and we can find that God, like a good shepherd, shows us "how to go" regardless of the decisions confronting us.

Woods Presbyterian Church to hold two-day Lenten retreat Feb. 21-22

The Grosse Pointe Woods Presbyterian Church has invited the community to its series of Lenten offerings.

This year's retreat, led by the Rev. Don Postema, will begin at 6:30 p.m. Friday, Feb.

21, with a dinner. A continental breakfast at 8 a.m. will begin Saturday's session, which includes lunch and ends at 4:30 p.m. with Holy Communion.

The retreat is designed to encourage and develop friendship with God in Jesus Christ.

Through worship, talk, humor, discussion, music, silence and prayer, participants will enhance personal and communal prayer and spiritual awareness.

The retreat costs $10. To register or get more information, call the church office at (313) 886-4301 by Saturday, Feb. 15.

St. Paul Church presents speaker

Marietta Jaeger, a mother and grandmother, will talk about her journey "From Fury to Forgiveness" at 7 p.m. Thursday, Feb. 13, in the Canfield Educational Center, 170 Grosse Pointe Blvd.

Jaeger is a speaker and author who tells of the kidnapping and murder of her daughter in her book, "The Lost Child." She invites people to examine their own beliefs on forgiveness and faith, life and love.

The lecture is sponsored by the St. Paul Parish and the Lay Theological Academy. Registration fee is $5 and pre-registration is suggested by calling (313) 885-7022.

First English plans luncheon, card party

The women of Faith Circle at First English Evangelical Lutheran Church invite the community to their annual Valentine Salad Buffet and Card Party to be held at noon Tuesday, Feb. 11, in the church's fellowship hall.

After luncheon, each table may play a game of its choice to vie for table prizes and door prizes. Tickets are $7.

Call Carol Mackenzie at (313) 881-4874 by Friday, Feb. 7.

St. James Lutheran Church will hold Lenten services

St. James Lutheran Church of Grosse Pointe will begin its series of Lenten worship services at 7:30 p.m. Wednesday, Feb. 12 (Ash Wednesday), with the Imposition of Ashes and Holy Communion.

Worship opportunities will be offered every Wednesday, with special services during Holy Week.

The Lenten series theme, "A Closer Walk," will be a program for meeting the crossroads people face in their lives and will offer hope for all who struggle with temptation and loneliness and who long for a sense of acceptance.

The community is invited to all services.

Christ Church plans 'From Narnia With Love'

Christ Church Grosse Pointe will present "From Narnia With Love," a one-character play about C.S. Lewis, the Christian author of classics like "The Lion, The Witch and the Wardrobe" and "The Chronicles of Narnia."

The one-act play will be presented at 7 p.m. Sunday, Feb. 9, at the church, 61 Grosse Pointe Blvd.

Mark McPherson, actor, playwright and filmmaker, wrote the play and will portray Lewis.

Tickets are $10 and will be sold at the door. For more information, call (313) 885-4841.

Music Hall Center for Performing Arts benefit is Feb. 10

"For the Love of the Arts II" will be held from 5:30 to 9 p.m. Monday, Feb. 10, at Intermezzo Ristorante in Detroit's Harmonie Park. The benefit for the Music Hall Center for the Performing Arts will support the educational outreach activities of the Dance Theatre of Harlem Detroit residency.

Television news personality Katherine Adams will be the celebrity guest auctioneer for the evening and will lead bidders through three rounds of auction items that include:

- A starring role in a Detroit CBS/62 "Punch 62" commercial.

- A studio visit to WOMC during Dick Purtan's morning show.

- Chicago Bulls tickets.
- VIP seating at the Conan O'Brien Show and dinner at Planet Hollywood in New York City.

- Golf getaways.
- A 14k gold bracelet.
- Dinner/theater packages.
- Red Wings tickets.

- Admission and special tours of Detroit's cultural gems, including the DIA, the Henry Ford Museum and Greenfield Village and the Detroit Zoo.
- Memorabilia from the Republican National Convention and the recent summer Olympics.

Also included during the evening: a raffle of a package worth about $900 that includes a box for six people at

Meetings

Questers

The Fox Creek Questers No. 216 will meet at 12:30 p.m. Thursday, Feb. 6, at the home of Marlene Harle. The program, will be "Decorative Tiles," presented by Harle. Members are asked to bring special tiles of their own to the meeting.

Co-hostess will be Ann Van Slyck. Fox Creek president is Rita Brennan of Grosse Pointe Shores.

Garden club

The Grosse Pointe Park Garden Club will meet on Monday, Feb. 10, at the home of Lorraine Lieder. Co-hostess will be Mackie Metzger. A basket weaving workshop will be presented by member Susan Ellison.

Bridge club

A new bridge group, Flight C Duplicate Bridge, will meet at 7 p.m. Mondays, beginning Feb. 10. The group is for players under 300 points. Novices are welcome and do not need a partner.

Mary Lou Moore will direct the group. The cost is $4 for Neighborhood Club members; $5 for non-members. For information, call (313) 885-4600.

Garden club

The Grand Marais branch of the Woman's National Farm and Garden Association will meet at noon Monday, Feb. 10, at the home of Mrs. Kennard Jones.

Members will make valentines for the Children's Home of Detroit.

Garden Center

The Detroit Garden Center will present its 11th annual orchid display, lecture and sale from 11 a.m. to 4 p.m. Saturday, Feb. 8; and from 12:30 to 4 p.m. Sunday, Feb. 9, at the center, 1460 E. Jefferson in Detroit.

Ron Ciesinski of Taylor Orchids will present an orchid slide presentation and will his personal collection of rare orchids and blooming orchids available for sale. The slide presentation will be at noon Saturday; 1:30 p.m. Sunday.

For more information, call (313) 259-6363.

Herb society

The Grosse Pointe unit of the Herb Society of America will meet at 7 p.m. Tuesday, Feb. 11, in Room 201 of Barnes school. After the business meeting, members will make plans for the Lottie Crawley Memorial Herb Garden on the grounds of Grosse Pointe Academy. Hostess for the evening will be Regina Gersch.

ULS Antiques Show

Plans are under way for the 23rd University Liggett School Antiques Show, which will be held next October.

Chairmen of this year's benefit are, from left, Susan Durant of the City of Grosse Pointe, and Lorraine Dillon and Ann Faust, both of Grosse Pointe Farms.

The Antiques Show will be held on Saturday and Sunday, Oct. 4 and 5. For more information, call Lindsay Myers at (313) 884-4444.

The Dance Theatre of Harlem's opening night gala and performance. Raffle tickets will be available at the auction for $10; three for $25.

"For the Love of the Arts" was created as a fundraiser to help the Music Hall expand the educational activities of The Dance Theatre of Harlem while in Detroit. This year the residency will reach 15,000 students through school assemblies, demonstrations and master classes from Feb. 17 through March 9.

Karen Batchelor Farmer is chairman of the event. Other committee members include Grosse Pointe Maria Lucarelli.

Music Hall Center for the Performing Arts is located at 350 Madison in Detroit's Theatre District. It is also home for Youththeatre and produces the annual Ford Montreux Detroit Jazz Festival.

Tickets to "For the Love of the Arts II" are $50 and include admission to three auction rounds, a fashion show by Saks Fifth Avenue, entertainment, hors d'oeuvres and dessert.

Tickets are available at the Music Hall box office. Call (313) 963-2366. They're also available at Ticketmaster locations. Call (810) 645-6666.

Heart Ball: The American Heart Association's

Michigan affiliate will hold its annual Heart Ball beginning at 7 p.m. Friday, Feb. 14, at the Ritz-Carlton Hotel in Dearborn.

Proceeds from the evening will be used to fund education programs and research. The AHA's Michigan affiliate's mission is to educate people about cardiovascular disease prevention.

Awards for outstanding service will be presented at the ball. Dr. Albert Sparrow will receive the Forest Dewey Dodrill Award for Excellence, Dr. Marvin Kirsh will receive the Lifetime Achievement Award, and Thomas Ritter will receive the Cor Vitae Award for Community Service.

Among the Grosse Pointers on the honorary committee for the event are Mr. and Mrs. Randy Agley, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Germack and Mr. and Mrs. Ronald Lamparter.

Patron tickets are $200. Benefactor tickets are $400. For more information, call (810) 557-9511.

Billionaires' Bash:

The Barbara Ann Karmanos Cancer Institute will host its annual east region fundraiser, "Try Your Luck for the Cure — A Billionaires' Bash," beginning at 6:30 p.m. Friday, Feb. 7, at Villa Penna in Sterling Heights.

The evening will include dining, dancing and games of chance. The event will honor Marge Morgan, a Fraser cancer survivor whose dedication to the war on cancer has become a personal challenge.

The benefit is co-sponsored by Binson's Home Health Care Centers and Blue Care Network.

Tickets are $90. Proceeds will provide cancer patients with free medical supplies and patient support services and will help deliver health education programs to the community.

For tickets, or for more information, call (800) KAR-MANOS (527-6266.)

Wild idea: The Detroit Zoological Society suggests the perfect Valentine's Day gift — adopting an animal for your loved one through its Wildlife Preservers program.

The DZS is offering special adoptions for as little as $25. Animals up for "adoption" include trumpeter swans, African lions, king penguins, polar bears, Siberian tigers, African greater flamingos, bald eagles, ring-tailed lemurs and gorillas.

Packages include an adoption certificate, a photograph of the animal, an animal fact sheet and a newsletter. Packages of $50 and more also include chocolates and a stuffed animal. Supplies are limited and sponsorship is good for a year.

WildLife Preservers is designed to protect endangered species found at the Detroit Zoo, Belle Isle Zoo and Belle Isle Aquarium. Proceeds from the program are used to care for the animals, build and renovate exhibits and provide ongoing education for the zoo staff.

For more information, call (810) 541-5717.

OTT ROBINSON

Getting kids into action

By Patricia Coppola
Special Writer

The number of overweight children in the United States has doubled in the past 30 years. This is partly because today's children are less active and less fit. In fact, less than one half of today's children engage in regular physical activity.

When you consider that children spend an average of 17 hours a week watching TV in addition to the time they spend playing video and computer games, it's not surprising that American children are less fit today.

The long-term risk of cardiovascular disease among these kids is disturbing, particularly since inactive children are more likely than active children to become inactive adults. Parents need to help their children develop good physical activity habits at an early age to help avoid lifelong problems.

While heart attacks and stroke are rare in children, evidence suggests that the process leading to those conditions begins in childhood.

Inactive children also weigh more, have higher blood pressure and lower levels of heart-protective high-density lipoprotein (HDL cholesterol) than active children.

The Henry Ford Heart and Vascular Institute recommends that parents start their children on the road to a healthier heart by setting good examples themselves.

Parents need to be good role models for their kids. Since children imitate their parents, make sure you, too, are physically active. Instead of watching them play, play with them. Climb on the jungle gym with them at the park, swing on the swings and play leap frog.

Tips for encouraging physical activity

- Limit the amount of television, movies, videos and computer games to less than two hours a day. Encourage them to spend the rest of their free time in physical activities.

- Play hide and seek with your kids and encourage imaginative play. Use the upstairs as well as the downstairs if you live in a two-story house.

- Play frisbee golf on walks with your child to make it more fun and active. Throw the frisbee at an agreed upon target, such as a boulder, rock or sign.

- Walk the nature trail at a local park. It's a great activity to do with the kids. In addition to looking for winter birds and animals, you will establish the idea that exercise is fun.

- Go sledding or tobogganing. While it may not seem like exercise at first, wait until you have to walk back up the hill with your sled.

- Take the family ice skating or inline skating. It's a great activity everyone can enjoy and you burn about 200 calories in a half hour.

- Lap it up at an indoor swimming pool. Swimming is a great total body workout that tones most major muscles. Many high schools and community centers offer open swim nights at reasonable rates.

- Observe what sports and activities appeal to your children, then find out about lessons and clubs. Some children thrive on team sports; other children prefer individual sports. Activities like tennis and swimming can be enjoyed for a lifetime, and are much easier to learn during childhood.

- When your kids are bored, suggest something that gets them moving — like playing catch, building a snowman or riding their bikes. Join in the activities with them.

- Give your children some household chores that require physical exertion, keeping in mind their levels of strength, coordination and maturity. Tasks like mowing the lawn and raking leaves not only teach responsibility, but can be good exercise.

Bon Secours Hospital offers nutritional counseling class

Bon Secours Hospital will offer a two-session class designed to provide useful information on healthy dietary guidelines, including use of the food guide pyramid, counting fat grams, reading nutrition labels, dining out and low-fat snacking.

The class will be offered from 6-8 p.m. Tuesdays, Feb. 18 and 25 in the Bon Brae Center Lounge, 22300 Bon Brae in St. Clair Shores.

The importance of incorporating exercise and stress management into a healthy lifestyle also will be discussed.

The cost is $25 a person and includes the "Shopping Guide Book." For more information or to preregister, call Bon Secours Community Health Education

Support group is for children

Most adults don't want to see a child in pain — especially when they can't do much to soothe the hurt and suffering. Adults dealing with children who have lost a loved one are often in this situation. To help understand the needs of these children, St. John Hospital offers a course in support for grieving children.

The course offers instructions on how to understand and respond to children's needs as they adjust to life without the loved one.

The free class will be on Thursday, Feb. 13. Call (888) 767-5463.

Lyme disease is treatable, even curable

By Ann L. Fouty
Staff writer

What disease can you get when the temperature is above 30 degrees?

What disease is caused by a tick the size of a poppy seed?

What disease can lead to other life-threatening diseases?

What infectious disease is No. 2 in the country?

The answer? Lyme disease.

It's not a widely publicized disease, said the president of the Michigan Lyme Disease Association Linda Purdy.

It was recognized 13 years ago and has only been in the news in the last six or seven years. The disease, caused by an infected deer or wood tick, has been around about 100 years, she said.

Many people say not to worry, this disease is confined to the Upper Peninsula.

According to statistics provided by Purdy, the number of cases reported is highest in the Lower Peninsula.

In 1994, Saginaw County had reported 78 cases, followed by Oakland County with 46 and Bay with 40 reported cases. Wayne had reported 20 cases and Macomb 15 in 1994. 50 cases were reported in 1996. (Hot spots, according to Purdy, include Stoney Creek, Kensington State Park and Harsens Island.)

Herself afflicted with the disease, she went for three years from doctor to doctor being diagnosed with multiple sclerosis, arthritis, a heart condition, lupus, epilepsy.

Finally, she was told to see a psychiatrist, who said the only thing wrong with her was that she is tired of being sick. On the advice of her psychiatrist, Linda was tested for Lyme disease and her test came back false-positive.

This is very common, she said, of both being misdiagnosed and having a false test result. It takes four to six weeks for antibodies to be present after the infection occurs, thus allowing the bacteria to disseminate. By then symptoms take on the appearance of other physical problems.

Since she was misdiagnosed, Purdy must now be on constant medication and have it monitored.

In Purdy, Lyme disease caused seizures six or seven times a week, although she has not had one in two years. She has a short span of attention and is hypoglycemic.

In children, the disease can manifest itself as juvenile arthritis or ADD.

As a result of her experience with Lyme, she is trying to educate others about the disease.

Purdy became the second president of the state-wide organization in January and is willing to talk, show slides, distribute handouts to organizations which invite her.

She can also be found at sportsmen's shows where she gives this recent example of a hunter who became infected. He and his friends killed three deer during the past hunting season in the Lower Peninsula. Two deer were put on the top of the station wagon, a third was brought home in the back of the car. A pinhead-sized infected tick crawled on the neck of a hunter and he now has Lyme disease.

"Seventy-five percent of those bitten don't remember being bitten," she said.

Purdy cautions hunters to wear gloves while gutting animals because the tiny tick could crawl onto your body and easily find an open wound.

The bite can itch, burn, sting, or a person could feel nothing.

Most notably, a person may develop the bull's-eye rash, at the site of the bite or anyplace on the body between three days to three weeks. If antibiotics are administered within two weeks of being bitten, a person has a 98 percent cure rate, Purdy said.

Nothing to worry about because the cure rate is so successful?

It usually begins with a slowly expanding red rash that starts at the site of the bite. The rash grows in a circular pattern and looks like a bull's eye because of the red and white concentric circular pattern. However, 40 percent of those infected, Purdy said, do not get the bull's-eye rash.

The lesion may be followed by fatigue, fever, chills, headache, stiff neck, aches in muscles and joints, mimicking the flu or a meningitis-like infection. People may experience migratory pain in joints, muscles, tendons or bones.

The neurologic abnormalities include paralysis or weakness of muscles in the face, arms or legs. People develop an arthritis which comes and goes for a period of several years. Doctors may treat symptoms because those infected may experience a multitude of symptoms but not always at the same time and may not recognize the relationship of all the Lyme symptoms.

About half the people whose Lyme disease remains untreated will develop chronic and severe arthritis in the knees and low back.

The most serious problem, Purdy said, is getting diagnosed because symptoms are so like other illnesses, many doctors lack the knowledge of the disease and many times even a test can bring back false results.

There is no blood test to tell the doctor when all the Lyme germs have been killed.

As the spirochetal bacterial infections caused by the infected tick bite continues its growth in the body, Purdy said, it will burrow into joints and muscles and eat at the nerve roots.

The children are the ones she feels the worst about, she said. There are nine children in her support group, which meets once a month in Oakland County, who are unable to attend school due to their various Lyme disease-caused afflictions.

Her support group has 114 members from Oakland, Macomb and St. Clair counties. There are nearly 200 strains of Lyme disease and Purdy could be reinfected with a different strain. Fear of being reinfected does not keep her confined to her home. But she takes the extra time when returning from a walk in a possible tick infested area to drop her clothes in the laundry room (a trip through the dryer kills the ticks), inspect herself thoroughly, particularly behind the ears, the armpits and the groin areas.

These ticks do not fly, jump or leap. They crawl.

Insect repellent with DEET, a chemical which can be absorbed into the body and cause harm, is the only chemical Purdy knows to repel the tick. Taking a shower and washing your hair, she said, does not dislodge the tick.

She offers suggestions to protect yourself.

- Avoid tick habitats, such as tall grass, bushes and woods.
- Wear shoes.

- Wear light-colored clothing covering from neck to ankles.
- Tuck pants into socks.
- Do a tick check upon returning from each outing.
- If you take your dog on a walk, check it too.

Should a tick be discovered: Use tweezers to grasp the tick as close to the skin as possible. Do not squeeze the tick's body. Grasp it where its mouth parts enter the skin and tug gently but firmly and repeatedly until it releases its hold. Pull it straight out. Wipe the bite area thoroughly with an antiseptic. Save the tick in a covered bottle containing a moistened paper towel with the date, the body location of the bite and the place where the tick was acquired. Refrigerate the tick, if it is still alive.

For more information about the disease or the support group, call Purdy at (810) 771-1872.

In Touch With Your Skin

by Lisa A. Manz-Dulac, MD

While dermatologists do not think of "skin" as a four letter word (it is "dermis" in our language, anyways), there are some real "four letter" words when it comes to skin. One of the least pleasant to anyone is "wart".

Warts are caused by a viral infection of the cells found in the top layer of the skin. For the technically minded, the precise name is "human papillomavirus" or HPV.

Warts come in many shapes and types, including common hand warts, foot or planter warts and flat warts.

Rarely warts disappear on their own. Most will need to be treated.

These viral infections are treated in several ways, including cryotherapy (freezing), electrocautery (burning) and the use of low strength acids and/or cantharidin (a blistering agent). To learn more about treating warts, contact your dermatologist, or call us at Eastside Dermatology, Dr. Lisa A. Manz-Dulac and Associates (313) 884-3380.

Cross-country skiing: One of state's most popular sports

For some folks, cross-country skiing comes easy. Just thrust and glide.

For others, myself included, it is a bit trickier... especially if hills are involved.

But it really doesn't matter if you are totally serious about this sport or if you are a newcomer. It accommodates all levels, from children to grandma, with ease. And in Michigan, cross-country is big, big business.

We hear a lot about the state's big downhill resorts, of course, like Boyne, Schuss, Crystal and Sugarloaf, but few folks realize that all of these have equally aggressive cross-country programs. Plus, there are a number of excellent resorts that are devoted to cross-country alone, like Garland, near Lewiston and McGuire's, near Cadillac.

What I like about cross-country is how easy it is — both on the body and the pocketbook. Anyone can go out for the first time, and after a run-through of the basics (how to stop is important), manage to ski with some success. Maybe they won't tear up the course, but they will feel like they have accomplished something. And this is a sport in which your kids can easily blow you away — the first day.

It is also financially feasible. You can rent skis, boots and poles for a day for about $10, or $25 for a weekend. And you don't have to be on groomed trails (although they are mighty nice, especially for beginners), you can try it out behind your condo or cottage. And there are also many state-maintained trails available for your use.

Travel Trends

By Cynthia Boal Janssens

And I hate to say this, but IT IS GOOD FOR YOU. It offers healthy, aerobic exercise and you can set your own pace. Look at it this way: You will feel so good and noble when you quit.

The best way to get started is to visit any cross-country ski facility, ask them to fit you with equipment, show you the basics and recommend the best trails to try. Do try the groomed trails first; they make it a lot easier. You'll be on your way in no time. And, no, you don't have to start out on "The Grinder" at Boyne Nordic... some day, maybe.

Cross Country Ski Headquarters at Higgins Lake (517) 821-6661 is popular with beginners and experts alike. It is owned and operated by Bob Frye, who is considered by many to be the guru of x-c skiing in Michigan. He is one of the founders of the Northern Michigan Nordic Ski Council and at a recent get-together for the media he announced that Michigan was No. 1 in the country in the amount of x-c ski equipment sold and also had the highest percentage of x-c skiers who had the opportunity to ski on groomed trails (as opposed to just striking out in the woods or across a pasture).

Last year, the name of this association was changed to the Great Lakes Nordic Ski Council and it is expected that prominent x-c resorts like Stokely Creek in Canada and some in Wisconsin may eventually join what is now a coalition of 16 members.

Although all of these resorts are actually competitors, there is a rare spirit of cooperation among the x-c instructors and staff at these resorts. Among them, they offer over 1,500 km of groomed trails. They really do work together to promote x-c skiing throughout the state, and are considered leaders and innovators by other cross-country organizations.

One way they do this is to offer a number of joint promotions. The most popular (and a very good deal) is the ski fest held in January and March. On these dates, basic x-c lessons are free and trail passes are reduced.

This March 9, the Gourmet Ski and Feast will be even more fun because food is also being featured. Such treats as pasties, herbed scrambled eggs, hot apple rings and homemade soup will be served trail-side to participating skiers. Advance reservations are required.

For the second year, the ski council is offering The Glide Card — a pass for skiing at each of 14 properties twice. Approximately a $200 value, the pass is transferable for family and corporate use. Frequent skiers can send a check for $49 per card to GLNSC, 210 S. Lake Street, Boyne City, 49712. Credit card users can call (616) 582-0020.

Senior skiers are honored each year in January during Silver Streak Week, when those over 55 may ski free all week and enjoy special classes and rooming discounts.

Individual resorts also have their own special activities. One of the best-known (and yummiest!) is the Gourmet Glide at Garland. On certain weekend days, skiers start with breakfast in the lodge and then proceed to ski between five trail-side buffets... even stopping to catch a trout along the way. We've done it twice; it's great fun. The event itself costs $45 per skier; packages are available. Upcoming Glides will be Feb. 8, 15, 16, 22; March 1, 8, 15.

If you aren't going to get up north, be aware that there are 68 miles of x-c trails in the eight Southeast Michigan Huron-Clinton Metroparks. Stony Creek offers weekend instruction. For info, call (800) 47-PARKS.

So there's no reason not to get out this winter and try out x-c skiing. This weekend, in fact, the Midwest's premier cross-country event, the NorthMed VASA, will be going on in Traverse City. In addition to all levels of racing, a number of family events are planned. For information, call (616) 938-4400 or visit www.vasa.org on the Internet. The e-mail address is xcski@vasa.org.

For information on any of these programs, contact the GLNSC at (616) 271-6314.

Or go to the Internet. At www.skinordic.org, skiers can check out each GLNSC facility and learn more about trail systems, lodging, dining and other activities. Race applications and registrations are also available. And if you aren't online, you can get up-to-the-minute trail conditions and event information by dialing (800) MI4-SNOW.

Those resorts which belong to the Great Lakes Nordic Ski Council include: Boyne Mountain, Boyne City (800-GO-BOYNE); Corsair Ski Trails, Tawas City (517-362-8643); Cross Country Ski Headquarters, Higgins Lake (517-821-6661); Crystal Mountain, Thompsonville (800-YOUR-MTN); Garland, Lewiston (800-968-0042); Lake View Hills Country Inn, Lewiston (517-786-2000); Grand Traverse Resort, Traverse City (800-748-0303); Marsh Ridge, Gaylord (800-743-PLAY); McGuire's, Cadillac (800-632-7302); Shanty Creek, Bellaire (800-678-4111); TreeTops Sylvan, Gaylord (800-444-6711); Wilderness Valley, Gaylord (616-585-7090).

Another Michigan note: The WestShore Bed & Breakfast Association is offering a brochure featuring its winter packages. The newly-formed group consists of eight B&B's located in Grand Haven, Muskegon and Whitehall. The packages include two nights lodging and a dinner voucher for two at various local restaurants. Prices start at $150. This is just a three-hour drive from Grosse Pointe; it might make a great romantic getaway. Call (800) 303-4090 or e-mail: 2042712@mcimail.com.

New marketing strategy: Classical crossover albums

As most everyone knows, the classical record industry is in deep trouble, with most labels making severe cutbacks in an effort to avoid red ink. Our own Detroit Symphony Orchestra is a victim of this situation and its contract with the Chandos label was recently suspended due to financial strain.

By John Guinn

In an attempt to stem growing deficits, labels are developing all sorts of marketing strategies. One of the most widespread is the crossover album, in which classical performers wander into styles foreign to their usual activities.

Sony Classical recently released three examples of this crossover phenomenon, and while one falls well short of success, the other two are surprisingly effective.

"Appalachian Waltz," Yo-Yo Ma, cello; Mark O'Connor, violin; Edgar Meyer, bassist (Sony Classical SK-68460)

Rating: (out of four)

The 41-year-old Yo-Yo Ma is justly praised as one of the finest cellists of our time, although there is a certain impersonal recitance that sometimes creeps into his playing. Not so here, where he romps through nearly 70 minutes of arrangements inspired by Texas fiddle music.

The style is a close relative of bluegrass, and Ma wraps his art around it successfully, joined by violinist Mark O'Connor (who's steeped in it) and Edgar Meyer (a classically-trained string bassist.) The 16 selections range from traditional Celtic numbers like "The Green Groves of Erin" to the tongue-in-cheek humor of a tune called "Pickles," to the CD's title song, a piece based on Appalachian styles that O'Connor composed specifically for Ma.

Admittedly, there's a certain incongruity in the coming together of these three musicians. It's as if the Waltons had sat down to supper with the Beaux Arts Trio. But there's no denying the artistic rapport that is everywhere evident here, a quality that deepens the listener's respect for the performers, who played some of these selections at President Clinton's inauguration festivities last month.

Bernard Herrmann: The Film Scores; Los Angeles Philharmonic, Esa-Pekka Salonen conducting (Sony Classical SK-62700)

Rating:

American-born composer Bernard Herrmann, who died in 1975, was an irascible genius frustrated at his inability to achieve fame as a "serious" composer. His fame was secured through the music he composed for the films of a series of great directors, including Orson Welles, Alfred Hitchcock, Francois Truffaut, Brian De Palma and Martin Scorsese.

Given the Hollywood connection, it's fitting that the L.A. Philharmonic present this 76-minute collection of suites from eight of the most prominent films Herrmann scored. The surprise is that Esa-Pekka Salonen, the orchestra's youthful, Finnish-born music director, is so conversant with the American cinematic idiom.

Some scores ("Psycho," "Fahrenheit 451" and "Taxi Driver") stand up well divorced from their visual images; others ("Marnie," "Torn Curtain") quickly recede into background status. All are superbly played by an orchestra and conductor respectful of their unique charms.

"Los Tangueros," The Tangos of Astor Piazzolla; Emanuel Ax and Pablo Ziegler, pianists (Sony

Rating:
Argentinean composer Astor Piazzolla, who died in 1992, is credited by some with bringing to the tango form an admirable sophistication and refinement. Others accuse him of robbing the tango of its vital, primitive elements.

There's some truth in both opinions, but Piazzolla's unique brand of tangos has attracted a variety of performers, from Gidon Kremer to Chick Corea to the Kronos Quartet.

Emanuel Ax is the latest classically-trained artist to dip into Piazzolla's music. On this 60-minute CD he joins pianist Pablo Ziegler, a longtime collaborator of the composer, in 12 tangos Ziegler arranged for two pianos.

The result is stilted, overly-formal, academically dry playing that does little justice to Piazzolla's art.

might think impossible, though: In the wrong hands, tangos can sound stuffy.

Off the Record is a new feature by music critic John Guinn, a Grosse Pointe resident. Guinn will review classical CDs every other week in the Grosse Pointe News' entertainment section.

Guinn uses a four-star rating system to help readers evaluate new CDs.

Detroit Symphony Orchestra's newest CD release is Schmidt's Symphony No. 4

With their 24th CD release on the Chandos label, Neeme Järvi and the DSO have made another important addition to the catalog of unfairly neglected music.

The works are Symphony No. 4 by Franz Schmidt and a compressed version of music for a pantomime of the Joseph in Egypt story about the shepherd boy's fatal attraction for Potiphar's wife by Richard Strauss.

Schmidt's symphony is very much in the stylistic tradition of early 20th century Austria. It seems to form a bridge between 19th century German romanticism and the modernists of the early 20th century.

As a cellist in the Vienna Philharmonic, the composer played under Mahler and was certainly well-acquainted with the music of Richard Strauss and Anton Bruckner. The symphony reflects their influence, yet he has an idiom of his own, less the sophisticated than Strauss, more earthly than Bruckner and not so flamboyant as Mahler.

Järvi's irrepressible spontaneity illuminates the wistful feelings of Europe's tragic experiences surrounding the era of World War I with warmth.

The impact is to set aside, once and for all, any inclination to relegate Schmidt to the status of a minor Austrian composer.

The symphony glows with warmth and drama and reflects the sadness of paradise lost. A touching cello solo opening the second (adagio) movement is especially evocative as performed by Marcy Chanteaux. The musical ideas flow with a logic of their own and bring the statement to an impassioned conclusion.

The inclusion of the Symphonic Fragment: "Josephs-Legende" by Richard Strauss on this disc is a fortuitous and surely intentional choice by Järvi. The music has a stylistic relationship to the Schmidt symphony, yet as background for a pantomime story it provides a refreshingly different context. Järvi captures the narrative thread and sensual moods of the episodes with a knack that is peculiar to him alone.

The erotic solo dance of a slave woman, the seductive visit by Potiphar's wife to the sleeping shepherd boy, and Joseph's rescue by a shining, armor-clad archangel come across vividly in this performance.

It makes one wish some resourceful producer would revive the ballet.

South wins a pair of hoops thrillers to stay unbeaten

By Chuck Klonke
Sports Editor

It could be a long time before Grosse Pointe South's basketball team plays two more exciting games than it did last week.

But considering the way the Blue Devils have been performing all year, it might not take long before they top their two buzzer-beating victories over Southfield-Lathrup (55-54) and Sterling Heights (54-53 in overtime).

"It's been fun," said South coach George Petrouleas. "Our kids are at a point now where they think they can beat anyone."

Even when they're not playing their best.

"Sterling Heights outrebounded us and outshot us and when that happens, you're supposed to lose the game, but our defense saved us," Petrouleas said.

Defense has been the key to most of South's victories this season, including the win over Lathrup when the Blue Devils held the Chargers' high-scoring Greg Grays to 15 points.

A pair of sophomores played key roles in the Sterling Heights victory.

Adam Hess tied the game at 50-50 on two free throws with seven seconds remaining in regulation.

Then with Sterling Heights leading by a point in overtime, Jeff See hit a 12-foot bank shot with time running out that gave South its eighth win without a loss in the Macomb Area Conference Red Division.

"We had a timeout with 3.6 seconds left and designed a play with three options,"

Petrouleas said. "Jeff was the third option, but he was open and fortunately we got him the ball and he got the shot away in time."

It was an uphill battle most of the way for South.

"We only shot 30 percent, so that kept us in a hole for most of the game," Petrouleas said.

The Blue Devils trailed 28-20 at halftime and were behind by four points going into the fourth quarter.

South had the ball with the game tied in the final seconds, but a turnover led to a basket that gave the Stallions a 50-48 lead. Then Hess was fouled and made his two crucial free throws.

Steve Howson had 16 points and four assists, while Matt Rudnick, See and Mark Conrad made key contributions off the bench.

Grays had scored 142 points in his previous three outings, including a 60-point effort against a Toledo school.

Gotfredson hasn't put up the impressive scoring totals that Grays has this season, but he's been vital to the Blue Devils' success with his fine all-around game and leadership.

So it was fitting that the outcome of the game between Lathrup, which went to the state Class A semifinals last season, and South would hinge on the heroics of Grays and Gotfredson.

Grays, who struggled all night because of Gotfredson's defense, shook loose long enough to hit a six-foot running jump shot with 6.2 seconds remaining to give the Chargers a 54-52 lead.

That left plenty of time for Gotfredson's counter attack.

He took the ball on the in-bounds play, dribbled to the top of the three-point arc and took a shot that fell dead-center through the basket, touching off a wild victory celebration.

for the Blue Devils and their fans.

"It was fitting that Mike would hit that shot because he's the heart and guts of this team," Petrouleas said. "We had two or three options and you have to take what they give you. Mike was open for the three. We were fortunate we had the last shot."

The amazing thing was that Gotfredson still had the energy to take the last shot. He had to expend a lot of it trying to keep up with Grays, who finished with 15 points but made only five of 19 shots from the field.

"He's a great shooter, but this wasn't his night. It was our night," Petrouleas said. "And Mike's a very good defender."

While Gotfredson had the main responsibility for guarding Grays, he had some help.

"We had some different coding situations for people to help out and I think we might have had him a little confused as to where the help was coming from," Petrouleas said. "It's something we work on all the time — it wasn't just designed for Grays."

The lead changed hands several times during the first quarter and a half, but South went on a 9-2 run, capped by Howson's layup with just under two minutes left in the first half, to open a 27-21 lead. The Blue Devils had a 29-25 halftime edge.

South led throughout the third quarter, but Lathrup tied the game in the first minute of the fourth quarter on a put-back by Damon Allison and a free throw by Myron Brown.

Grays' three-pointer with five minutes left gave the Chargers their first lead since the second quarter.

South immediately regained the advantage, 50-48, on a triple by Hess.

Brandon Barrett's layup with 2:23 remaining tied the game and Brandon Edwards' bucket with 1:58 to go after a South turnover gave Lathrup a 52-50 lead.

Gotfredson hit two free throws to tie the game at 52-all with 54.6 seconds remaining. Lathrup turned the ball over with 29 seconds to go, but South gave it right back 10 seconds later to set the stage for Grays' basket.

Gotfredson led South with 16 points, but Steve Howson had 11 and Mike Hamers added 10. Howson pulled down eight rebounds and Gotfredson and Hess each collected five.

It's togetherness like this that has helped Grosse Pointe South's basketball team win its first 12 games this season. Mike D'Hondt has this rebound, but three of his Blue Devils' teammates were also in position if the ball came their way.

Two Grosse Pointe South players try to stop Grosse Pointe North's Sarah Post during last week's game between the crosstown rivals.

Girls hockey teams a good match

The new girls hockey teams at Grosse Pointe North and Grosse Pointe South seem evenly matched.

In their first meeting of the season, the teams skated to a 2-2 tie. Now they each own a 6-3 victory over the other.

North got the latest 6-3 win as Meg Guillaumin scored four goals and assisted on another. Guillaumin has eight of the Norsemen's 14 goals this season.

Sarah Post had a goal and three assists for North, while Liz Tymrak tallied once. Jaime Taylor had two assists and Rebecca Kelly picked up one.

The Norsemen built a 4-0 lead after one period.

South's goals came from Christin Petty, Christina Bakalis and Elizabeth Moran. Courtney Lytle had two assists, while Bakalis, Katie Kotz, Kelly Birg and Natalie Brewer collected one apiece.

Lisa Christensen played a strong game in goal for North. "The whole team has put in a lot of effort and works very hard," said Post, who is North's captain. "We've come a long way as a team."

Post also acknowledged the efforts of coaches Rod Ritter, Peggy Murphy and Bob Rahaim.

Excerpts from the game will be shown on "Home Games" Saturday at 11:30 a.m. on Channel 4.

In South's earlier 6-3 victory over North, the Blue Devils scored four straight goals after spotting the Norsemen a 1-0 lead on a goal by Post.

Molly Weaver had an outstanding game for South with two goals and three assists. Bakalis and Petty each had a pair of goals for the Blue Devils.

Kristin Simon did a good job in goal for North.

Both teams were encouraged by the fact three new high school squads will be formed next year, making a seven-team league a possibility.

North's next game will be against University Liggett School Monday, Feb. 10 at 4 p.m. at the Oak Park arena. The Norsemen will play at ULS on Feb. 18 at 4 p.m.

Babe Ruth league schedules signup

The Grosse Pointe Farms-City-Park Babe Ruth Baseball program will hold registration for all returning and new players on Feb. 19 and 20 from 7 to 9 p.m. at the Neighborhood Club.

Players between the ages of 13 and 15 by July 31, are eligible. The registration fee is $75. Birth certificates are required for new players.

Grosse Pointe South's volleyball players don't have to keep looking to the bench for guidance from coach Jane Fabian anymore.

Now they get it on the floor from tri-captains Dana Mertz, Meghan McGahey and Heather Riedy.

"We've talked with them about how to be leaders," Fabian said after the Blue Devils beat Grosse Pointe North 15-12, 15-12 in a Macomb Area Conference crossover match last Thursday. "And this year they've learned how to be leaders. They know where people are supposed to be and what they're supposed to be doing and the other players trust them. When times are tough, they look to each other."

The leadership of Mertz, McGahey and Riedy has been instrumental in South's strong start. The victory over their crosstown rivals gave the Blue Devils an overall 14-5-3 record.

There's also another factor in South's success.

"We've learned how to accept roles," said Fabian, who's in her second season at the helm of the team. "Everyone wants to do what's best for the team. They've heard me preach team, team, team and they're buying into it."

The Blue Devils got off to a slow start against the Norsemen, falling behind 8-2 in the first game. South rallied to tie the score at 12-12 and McGahey served an ace to put the Blue Devils ahead to stay.

"We came out too intense because of the rivalry," Fabian said. "We needed some time to relax."

Fabian called a timeout and gave her players a quick pep talk.

"I told them I knew we could do it," she said. "I just tried to take some of the pressure off. I told them to just play our game and not worry about who we were playing."

South jumped out to a 5-0 lead in the second game. North rallied a couple of times to cut the margin to 7-6, 11-9 and 14-12, but the Blue Devils ended the match on a serve by Riedy.

A key to South's victory was the setting of freshman Beth Howson and McGahey, who combined for 12 assists. Howson's development has enabled Fabian to change the Blue Devils' offensive strategy. "We've been able to run a 6-2 offense, which gives us three hitters all the time and better blocking," the coach said.

Riedy had eight kills. Dinah Zebot had eight blocks, while Mertz had nine digs.

Lindsay Simmon and Molly Peters played strong games for North.

Earlier, South beat Port Huron 15-9, 15-7 to improve its record to 4-2 in the MAC White Division.

University Liggett School's volleyball team notched its first Metro Conference victory recently against Lutheran East.

"Our first two conference games were against Clarencville and Lutheran North, the two best teams in the league, so it was good to get that first win," said coach Ken Klenk after the Knights' 15-7, 15-8 win over East.

Emily Crenshaw led ULS in kills, Laura Cassin served the most points and Brooke Wright was the assist leader.

"It was an all-around good game," Klenk said.

In their next outing, the Knights dropped a 15-13, 15-8 match to Lutheran Westland.

"The first game was back and forth until Westland put on a run at the end," Klenk said.

It was a costly match because Wright, the only senior on the team, suffered an injured thumb.

"We have three of our 12 kids out with injuries," Klenk said.

Stephanie Roehl had the most kills for ULS, while Alison Johnson did a good job of passing from the back row. Freshman Katie Danaheer also played a strong game.

ULS hosts Sacred Heart Academy at 4 p.m. Friday. It will be Fan Appreciation day with Pistons tickets and movie passes among the prizes awarded.

North swimmers win MAC Red

A sweep of the 100-yard breaststroke helped Grosse Pointe North's swimming team turn back crosstown rival Grosse Pointe South last week.

The 101-85 victory also clinched the Macomb Area Conference Red Division championship for the Norsemen.

The meet was tied at 78-78 after 10 of the 12 events, but North got a 1-2-3 finish from Jason Knost, Brent Nielubowicz and Dan Leehr to decide the outcome.

"Leehr's swim was the outstanding performance of the meet," said North coach Mike O'Connor. "He dropped more than two seconds in his third-place finish."

Mike O'Connor and Adam Ziegler each won two events for the Norsemen, and David Nielubowicz also took an individual first, but coach O'Connor didn't overlook the contributions of several swimmers who didn't finish first.

"The victory hinged on the battle for fourth and fifth place points in several events," he said.

"Key to the North victory were fourth places by Rory Cleary in the 200 and 500 free, a third by Nick Goerke and a fourth by Peter Paterek in diving, a fourth by Nick Rennpage and a fifth by Chris Damman in the butterfly and a third by Paul Simon and fifth by Joe Ogilvy in the backstroke."

O'Connor's winning times were 5:12.17 in the 500 freestyle and 59.89 in the 100 backstroke. Ziegler posted winning efforts of 2:11.47 in the 200 individual medley and 59.52 in the 100 butterfly.

David Nielubowicz won the 200 freestyle in 1:53.88, while Knost's winning time in the breaststroke was 1:05.97.

South's John McLellan won the two freestyle sprints. He took the 50 in 23.19 and won the 100 in 49.83.

The Blue Devils' other first came from diver Charles Hurd, who had 269.25 points.

North won all three relays. The team of O'Connor, Knost, Brent Nielubowicz and Andy Blazaitis won the 200 medley relay in 1:46.95. The Nielubowicz brothers, Ziegler and Knost teamed up to win the 200 freestyle relay in 1:34.35 and Ziegler, Brandon DeGruvera, David Nielubowicz and O'Connor took the 400 freestyle relay in 3:34.83.

North also posted a 115-70 non-league victory over Dearborn.

O'Connor won the 200 freestyle with a state-qualifying time and he took the 500 freestyle with a state-qualifying and North pool record time of 4:39.63.

David Nielubowicz won the 50 and 100 freestyle races.

Other top performances for the week were posted by Blazaitis and Brian Doyle, 200 freestyle; Ziegler and Cleary, 200 IM; David Nielubowicz, Knost, Brent Nielubowicz and Blazaitis, 50 freestyle; Goerke, Paterek and Chris Mancik, diving; Ziegler, Rennpage and C.J. Fenton, 100 butterfly; David Nielubowicz, Blazaitis, Cleary and Simon, 100 freestyle; Ben DeWitt, 500 freestyle; Simon and Ogilvy, 100 backstroke; and Brent Nielubowicz and Leehr, 100 breaststroke.

Norsemen win twice in league but Champine sprains his ankle

By Chuck Klonke
Sports Editor

Grosse Pointe North coach Dave Stavale's smile wasn't as wide as it should have been last week.

The Norsemen's basketball team picked up two more Macomb Area Conference White Division victories last week to finish the first half of the season alone in first place. But Stavale's excitement was tempered because his best player, Steve Champine, suffered a sprained ankle in the win over Utica and will be lost for at least two weeks.

"I feel worse for Steve than I do for the rest of us," Stavale said. "Everyone looks forward to their senior year and leading their team to a championship — and that's exactly what Steve was doing when he got hurt."

Even though the Norsemen are going to have to play most of the remaining regular season games without Champine, it doesn't mean they're throwing in the towel.

Quite the contrary. "We need other guys to step up and I think some of them are eager to accept the challenge," Stavale said. "We're going to miss Steve. There's no question about that. But I think we'll be all right without him, too."

Champine got hurt with about six minutes remaining in the fourth quarter of North's 54-51 victory at Utica. He took a jump shot and when he came down, he landed on the foot of one of the Chieftain players.

"When he didn't get up, I knew it was serious," Stavale said. "Steve has to be hurt badly to come out of a game."

It was a rugged contest all around. Stavale had to spend a good portion of the night at the hospital waiting for his son, David, to get eight stitches in his head for an injury he sustained in the final seconds of the game. Leonard Harris also had to leave the game briefly after getting hit in the mouth.

The Norsemen had trouble putting Utica away, mainly because the Chieftians were having one of their best shooting nights of the season.

"Rick (coach Rick Radulski) was telling me how much trouble they were having shooting the ball this year so they got out in the first half and shot 55 percent in the first half," coach Stavale said.

The game was tied at 31-31 at halftime and North held a 41-39 advantage after three quarters. The Norsemen stretched the lead to five points when Champine was injured.

"The fact that we held on to win was a great confidence builder for the team," the coach said. "You don't get to 8-2 with just one player. Leonard raised the emotional level of the team and Nick Aubrey, David, Ben Peters and Joe Ellis did a good job of taking care of the basketball."

North also got a big lift from sophomore Tony Strickland.

"This was like Tony's coming out party," coach Stavale said. "He played most of the fourth quarter and got some blocks, rebounds and scored some big points. He was a huge help and crucial to our win."

"It was a game where the kids could have easily lost their composure, but they didn't."

Champine led the Norsemen with 13 points and also collected five rebounds and six assists. Harris had 11 points, six rebounds and six steals, while Aubrey scored 11 points.

The game was played last Thursday, the makeup of the Jan. 17 contest that was postponed because of weather conditions.

Earlier, North rolled to a 66-49 MAC White victory over L'Anse Creuse.

The Lancers made one brief run at the Norsemen in the first half, but North fought off the challenge and Stavale was able to use all of his players for significant minutes.

"That was the best part, getting everybody a chance to play and they all did well," he said. "Chris Mikula is always ready to play, whether we need two minutes or eight minutes from him. We had only six turnovers and all 13 kids played, so that says something about how well they did. Mike Fines came back from a broken finger and Marc Bertelsen and Ben Peters did their usual fine job."

Champine paced the Norsemen with 21 points, five steals and nine assists. Stavale scored 15 points, while Harris and Dave Hermann each collected seven points and seven rebounds.

North closed out the week with a MAC crossover game at Port Huron and the Big Reds came away with a 57-51 victory.

"I think that was a game we all wished we didn't have to play," coach Stavale said. "I was like a zombie because I was at the hospital with David until midnight. And I think the

Balesky bails out Blue Devils

By Chuck Klonke
Sports Editor

Coach Bob Bopp expects Brad Balesky to score a lot of goals before his hockey career at Grosse Pointe South is over, but the sophomore forward will be hard-pressed to come up with more important ones than the two he scored in last Saturday's 5-4 victory over Grosse Pointe North.

"I expect him to have three real good years here, but it might be a long time before he scores two bigger goals than those," Bopp said after the win that moved the Blue Devils back into the East Division lead in the Michigan Metro Hockey League.

Balesky drilled a slap shot from just inside the blue line to tie the game 4-4 at 9:48 of the third period. Then with 2:16 remaining, he tipped in Nick Linn's shot for the game winner.

"I didn't know he could shoot as hard as he did on that first goal," Bopp said.

But the coach wasn't surprised that Balesky came through with the game on the line.

"I picked him as a 10th-grader because I think he has a great future," Bopp said. "He's one of the smartest players we've had here. He just had to wait his turn and when he got the chance he made the most of it."

Another sophomore also played well in the North game. Defenseman Jeff Maxwell picked up two assists and earned the praise of his coach.

"I've been very happy with our defense, which has always been a strength of our team," Bopp said.

"Jeff didn't play much as a freshman last year, but this season he's been one of our steadiest defensemen. I think by the time he's through, he'll fit right in with the best we've had."

South notched the only goal of the first period when Charlie Braun scored at 4:38.

The Blue Devils made it 2-0 at 6:01 of the second period on a goal by Terry Brennan, which was the result of some fine passing by Adam Whitehead and Ben Debski.

North took the momentum away from South when Troy Bergman scored 15 seconds later. Whitehead's power-play goal at 9:58 of the second period restored the Blue Devils' two goal advantage, but North answered with three straight goals.

Gene Baratta made it 3-2 with 3:53 left in the second period. Alex Thomas tied the game at 3:50 of the third period and Tom Pierce put the Norsemen ahead at 8:32.

"We started out well, but then we made two huge mistakes and they capitalized on them quickly," Bopp said. "North took over for a while, but we were able to come back at the end."

Jordan Damm, Pat Manion and Ben Weaver also collected assists for South.

Charles Thomas assisted on all four North goals, while Baratta, Ryan Case and Don Pierce also collected assists for the Norsemen.

In South's other game last week, the Blue Devils played a 3-3 tie with Brother Rice when the Warriors scored the equalizer with 10 seconds remaining in the third period.

South led 3-1 before Rice made a comeback.

The Blue Devils are 6-3-2 in division play.

"If we win our last four games we'll win the division and if we play well, we should win them," Bopp said.

South plays in the Kentwood tournament near Grand Rapids this weekend, then returns home to host Southgate Anderson in a division showdown at the City Sports Arena on Wednesday, Feb. 12, at 7 p.m.

Knights' win is a 'special' one

By Chuck Klonke
Sports Editor

University Liggett School's hockey team posted a "special" victory over U-D Jesuit last week.

Peter Birgbauer scored three goals, two shorthanded and one on the power play, to lead the Knights to a 4-3 victory over the Cubs in a Michigan Prep Hockey League game.

"They were all three the result of good heads-up play," said ULS coach John Fowler. "Our power play is getting better. Eli (Wulfmeier) made a couple nice feeds to Birgby."

Birgbauer picked up a loose puck on a forecheck and beat the U-D goalie on the short side with a high shot at 8:59 of the first period while ULS was shorthanded.

Birgbauer made it 2-0 with 3:11 remaining in the period when he scored on the power play. The Cubs bounced back with 1:27 to go in the opening period.

Birgbauer boosted the Knights' lead to 3-1 at 3:49 of the second period with his second shorthanded goal and Kurt Niemi converted Nick Maitland's rebound with 6:48 remaining to give ULS a three-goal bulge.

The Knights couldn't stand prosperity, however.

U-D scored with 5:57 left and picked up another goal 41 seconds later to cut ULS' lead to 4-3.

"They had us on our heels at the end of the second period," Fowler said. "We got a little loose and they crashed the net hard. Both goals were second-effort goals on their part."

The Cubs appeared to score the equalizer with 3:11 left in the second period, but the goal was nullified because U-D had a man in the crease.

Neither team scored in the final period as ULS tightened up defensively, holding the Cubs to only three shots. The defensive effort was led by veterans Ian Fines and Ian Watt. "We played lock it off in the third period," Fowler said. "Watt and Fines were on the ice most of the time. They did a nice job intercepting passes and breaking up U-D's rushes."

Paul Huebner played a steady game in goal, turning away 22 shots.

ULS ended the week with a pair of one-goal losses to University School of Milwaukee.

The Knights spotted USM a 3-0 lead before getting a goal from Chris Mitchell with 4:35 remaining in the second period. Birgbauer and Fines assisted.

ULS cut the margin to 3-2 with 1:24 remaining when Jason Cooper took a pass from Niemi and scored on a semi-breakaway. Fines also assisted.

The Knights pulled goalie Charlie Eldridge for an extra attacker, but ULS wasn't able to get the equalizer, although they had some good chances.

"We had them on the ropes for the last five minutes," Fowler said.

It was the same story the following day when USM was leading 4-0 with 12:42 left in the third period and escaped with a 5-4 win.

"They were playing their third game in 24 hours so we felt if we stayed close, we could wear them down in the third period," Fowler said. "We wanted to be in a position to dominate the third period and win the game. We dominated the period, but fell just short."

ULS outshot USM 20-5 in the final period. Birgbauer started the comeback with a goal at 4:55 and Mitchell made it 4-2 only 21 seconds later.

But USM scored what turned out to be the winner at 5:27.

"We were thinking all offense after scoring those two quick goals and didn't play defense," Fowler said.

The Knights continued to battle back and cut the margin to one on goals by Birgbauer and Wulfmeier. After Wulfmeier's power-play goal with 1:15 to play, Fowler pulled Huebner for an extra attacker but once again, ULS couldn't get the equalizer.

The Knights, 4-3-1 in the Michigan Prep league, host Flint Powers, ranked eighth in the state in Class B-C-D, Saturday at 6 p.m.

Norsemen clear another hurdle in tough MAC White

By Chuck Klonke
Sports Editor

As soon as Grosse Pointe North's wrestling team clears one Macomb Area Conference White Division hurdle, there's another one standing in the Norsemen's way.

Two weeks ago it was Fraser. Last week it was Center Line. Tonight, Feb. 6, it's a showdown with Sterling Heights.

"It seems like it's one barn-burner after another," coach Art Roberts said after the Norsemen beat Center Line 36-21 to remain unbeaten in the tough MAC White.

"This week's going to be tough too. Both teams are undefeated. Our kids are ready and they're not going to be able to dodge our best kids."

Tonight's match against the Stallions will be at Sterling Heights at 6:30. Saturday, North will compete in the division meet at East Detroit, beginning at 10 a.m.

North is 11-0-1 overall and 6-0-1 in MAC White meets. A victory over Sterling Heights will give the Norsemen the dual meet title.

"I don't think we'll have trouble getting the kids ready to come back on Saturday," Roberts said. "They're a pretty savvy bunch. They know what they have to do."

This year's squad is the best team Roberts has had at North and it might even extend beyond that.

"It's probably the best team they've ever had here," he said. "There were some good teams and good individuals in the '80s, but never as good as this one. These kids have worked so hard to get where they are."

Freshman Chris Koscinski and junior Jeff Kalkhoff posted two of North's most important wins in the Center Line match. Koscinski beat the Panthers' Luke Minn 8-6 in overtime at 103 pounds for his first varsity win.

"That's his first varsity match in over a month," Roberts said. "He's a tough, little kid. He doesn't ever think he's supposed to lose."

Kalkhoff avoided getting pinned in his 145-pound match with Justin Causey and battled back for a 16-7 decision.

"Jeff made a move and got caught when (Causey) made a perfect counter," Roberts said. "He almost pinned him, but Jeff did a great job of fighting off his back and came back to win the match."

"If we don't get the seven points from those two matches and Center Line gets nine, they win the meet. In wrestling, a couple of matches can swing a meet."

ULS drops two tough Metro league games

By Chuck Klonke
Sports Editor

University Liggett School's basketball team hit a couple of bumps in the road last week, but coach Bruce Peltio is hoping the Knights will get back on track again soon.

"We can't worry about anyone but ourselves," Peltio said after ULS lost Metro Conference games to Lutheran North (68-62) and Hamtramck (61-55).

"If we take care of our business, we can be right back in the thick of things. Hamtramck (which leads the conference with a 10-1 record) has four of its last five games on the road and they have some tough teams to play."

The Knights didn't play badly against North or Hamtramck. It was simply a matter of good teams evening up the score against a rival that had won the first meeting of the season.

"They're both good teams," Peltio said. "Both games were competitive, but we just fell short."

Shooting was ULS' downfall against North. The Knights made only 19 of 54 shots from the field and only four of 13 three-point attempts.

The Mustangs, who had struggled at the free throw line all season, hit 75 percent in the contest.

"Their coach told me they were shooting 45 percent from the line coming in," Peltio said.

"Besides the free-throw shooting, the difference between this game and the first one against them was that (North) hit the open shots, including some threes. They shot better and we missed some shots we hit last time."

ULS trailed by 12 points going into the fourth quarter but Justin Young came off the bench to spark a Knights' comeback that cut the lead to four points.

"Justin came off the bench and created a nice tempo for us," Peltio said. "He was tenacious on the press and got the ball inside to C.R. (Moultry). He, C.R. and Will Watson all came off the bench and gave us a big lift."

Once the Knights got within four points, they made a couple of mistakes that got the momentum back on the side of the Mustangs.

"We had a turnover, then on our next two possessions we made bad decisions offensively and took poor shots," Peltio said. "That restored the momentum for (North)."

Joel Parrott and Brian Bruenton each scored 16 points to lead ULS. Bruenton also had 11 rebounds. Moultry finished with eight points and five rebounds.

The Hamtramck game was a matter of the Cosmos capitalizing on their opportunities better than the Knights did on theirs.

The game was tied 29-29 at halftime, but Hamtramck seized control early in the second half.

"They scored on their first possession of the half, then we had two straight turnovers and they scored off both of them," Peltio said. "Thirty-five seconds into the half they were up by six points."

The Cosmos eventually stretched their lead to 12 points before ULS made another comeback.

The Knights were within three points in the closing minutes when they opened the door for Hamtramck.

"We missed two free throws — and they scored. Then we made a bad decision on a three-point attempt — and they scored again," Peltio said. "Every opportunity we gave them they took advantage of."

Another factor was free-throw shooting. ULS made only nine of 19 attempts, while Hamtramck connected on 13 of 17.

"We talked about controlling the tempo and, except for one spurt in the second quarter, we did a pretty good job," Peltio said. "But they still outran us down the floor a few times."

Charlie Strong had an excellent performance for ULS, scoring 13 points and pulling down 13 rebounds. Strong scored eight points in the fourth quarter.

"We were getting the ball inside to Charlie, but then we forgot about what got us where we were," Peltio said. "We stopped getting it inside. Sometimes I have a tendency to forget about how young these kids are."

Bruenton led ULS with 24 points. Bryan Wisk and Watson gave the Knights a lift coming off the bench.

ULS fell to 7-3 in the Metro Conference and 9-6 overall.

he's more aggressive."

David Hirt lost 6-4 at 135 in a good match for the Norsemen and Shane Conlan also wrestled well in a 5-1 loss at 152.

North also beat Birmingham Seaholm 66-12 in a non-league match.

The Maples voided in several weight classes, but North also picked up some key victories.

Sophomore Rick Pesta posted a 5-2 decision at 130 pounds and Hirt got a pin in 2:30. Conlan won by a fall in 4:38 at 152 and Ball posted an 11-9 decision at 171. Chad Cooper had the quickest pin of the meet, beating his 189-pound opponent in 36 seconds.

North added two more wins later in the week. The Norsemen beat Ford II 55-9 in a MAC White matchup and posted a 68-6 victory over Grosse Pointe South in a MAC crossover.

"The kids were ready for Ford and Gary (Falcons coach Gary Fettig) had a couple of kids out and had to use subs," Roberts said.

One of North's most impressive wins was Benedettini's pin of Ford's Ed King at 215 pounds.

"Benny won a challenge match with Ryan Stevenson to wrestle at 215," Roberts said. "His record would be a lot better if he hadn't been wrestling heavyweight all year. He's given up a lot of pounds to a lot of his opponents."

Another key win came from Pesta, who beat Alex Winkworth 13-4 at 130.

"Ford was going to void at either 125 (Brandon) or 130," Roberts said. "They decided to wrestle Wentworth at 130 and Ricky did a nice job."

Koscinski, Phillips, Bordato, Cooper and Stevenson won on falls, while North's other winners on decisions were Matt Kellett, Hirt, Wright, Kalkhoff and Ball.

North's win over South featured pins by Koscinski, Kellett, Phillips, Brandon, Pesta, Wright, Kalkhoff and Bordato. Bordato got his pin in only 17 seconds.

The Norsemen's decisions were by Conlan and Ball.

South's Paul Dwaihy beat Hirt 5-1 at 135 pounds and Zach Meyers defeated Cooper 4-0 at 189 pounds.

Grosse Pointe South's wrestling team chalked up a Macomb Area Conference Blue Division victory last week when the Blue Devils edged Stevenson 36-32.

One of the highlights of the Gymnasts win

Grosse Pointe South's gymnastics team achieved its season-best score last week in beating Livonia Clarenceville 125.50-108.80.

"The girls proved in this meet that they have what it takes to be among the best," said coach Jill Mattes. "I'm very proud of the progress they're making."

The Blue Devils' Jocelyn Lorenger had high scores of 8.6 in floor exercise, 8.2 on bars and 8.3 on vault. Jamie Lowden posted scores of 8.6 on floor, 8.0 on bars and 8.2 on vault, while Lindsey White had an 8.3 on vault and an 8.05 on bars.

Courtney Schafer scored 8.15 on floor exercise and 7.65 on the balance beam. Allie Schmitt had a personal best 8.1 on floor exercise.

Mattes said the Blue Devils also got contributions from Catharine Lenard, Emily Mabley, Kristen Schulte, Kim Smale, Andrea Formolo, Corrine Camaro and Julie Champion.

Andrews to talk to South group

The Grosse Pointe South Booster Club and Mothers' Club will present a talk by Mark (Doc) Andrews of WOMC on "The Mental Game."

Andrews will give his presentation on Monday, Feb. 10, at 7 p.m. in Cleminson Hall.

Highlights

Here are some results from games in the Neighborhood Club's co-rec inline hockey league.

KDG. & GRADE ONE

Langone & DiMango Shell 5, Rangers 3

Good strategic play by Langone and DiMango Shell's Tim Dinan, Clarke Drusen, Curtis Fisher, Michael Grady, Christopher Hamadek, Peter Miller, Andrew Peleman, Matthew Smith and Maria Teos was the key to the victory.

Matthew Halso scored twice and Tom Remillet once as the Rangers ended a solid season. The Rangers got fine goaltending from Scott Bahash and Matthew Varga, while Jordan Browne, Andrew Callewart, Eric Hora, Elles Karges and Kevin Macconachie turned in excellent team play.

Sharks 2, G.P. Moving & Storage 0

The Sharks demonstrated fine skating and solid defensive play. Benjamin Alsbach, J.P. Bolton and Michael Demots were the offensive standouts. Alex Domzalaki and Nicholas Fields showed outstanding improvement, while J.D. Krehel, Brian Lockhart, Matthew Pear and Chip Rogers all contributed to the team's success.

Grosse Pointe Moving and Storage players Streeter Warren, Michael Bagby, Peter Blake, James Graney, Christopher Jondoph, Bryan Kirk, Demetri Mitropoulos, Jason O'Connor and Alexander Strek worked hard throughout the game.

Cent. Limo. Red Wings 2, Rangers 1

The Central Limousine Red Wings played well as a team. Jay Creech, Kelly DeFauw and Laura DeFauw kept busy on the defensive end, while Tom Janiak, Doug Johnston and Christopher Leahy were successful in moving the ball into the Rangers' territory.

Other support came from Brendan Lepore, Peter Maniaci and Christian Schulte.

The Rangers had several excellent scoring attempts in the evenly-matched game.

Blackhawks 3, G.P. Moving & Storage 0

The Blackhawks took an early lead and never lost their momentum. Fine defensive play by Alex Kappaz, James Krauss, Ian Muse and Jeffrey Regan held Grosse Pointe Moving and Storage scoreless. Christopher Reno, P.J. Russ, Adam Stevenson, Bryan Ulmer and Kyle Utter also turned in fine performances.

Grosse Pointe Moving and Storage received solid all-around play from Sam Banicki, Ryan Ciesliga and Nathan Monahan. The squad couldn't break through the Blackhawks' defense despite good offensive work by Katherine Olson, Mark Schott and Ryan Silver. Strong support was provided by Kyle Steiner, John Steininger and Alex Velanovich.

Flyers 4, Molar Rollers 0

Flyers players James Brys, Kelly Cooper, Alan Domzalaki, Joe Duffee-Smith, Taylor Flaska, Amywren Miller, Garrett Miller and Will Utley combined tenacious offensive play with solid defense.

The Molar Rollers, who had several good scoring chances, had good games from Austin Hook, Speros Atsalakis, Gregory Carmody, Blake Griffin, Nicholas Hathaway, Matthew Hollerbach, Kevin Kasunic, Paul Manganello and Corbin Vernet.

GRADE THREE

Stars 7, Islanders 3

The Islanders jumped out to a 3-0 lead before John Vinson got the Stars rolling with a goal into the upper corner. Charlie Cooper closed the game with a quick goal and Mike Kittle scored five times on good passes from Jeff Kurtz, George Dallas and Mark Czerwinski. Charlie Johnston played an outstanding game in goal, while Peter Kirchmaier has helped the team all season.

Andrew Bagby, Bradley Davison, Thomas Doherty and Matthew Girolamo had good offensive games for the Islanders, while Andrew Grunyk, Stephen Kosinski, Jeffrey Palms and Brett Torgler turned in excellent all-around performances.

McDonald Securities 9, G.P. Moving & Storage 4

McDonald and Company Securities wrapped up an undefeated season. Joey Halso scored six goals. Halso, along with George Atsalakis and Erich Maurer were the leading scorers. Paul Glenn, Jamie Mackinnon and Joey Rhodes produced fine goaltending, while Will Owen, Brent Parshall and D.J. Rentz were the top defensive players.

Grosse Pointe Moving and Storage players Scott Gawel, Allan Fullerton, Grayson Heenan, Matthew Iwanaki, Matthew McLockin, Natalie Pear, Timothy Schultes, Kyle South and Ankur Verma provided a good game for their opponents.

North

whole team was just realizing they were going to have to play without Steve. And we didn't even have one practice to adjust to it.

"The first half it was like they were looking for him but he wasn't there. In the second half, we played much better. If we'd have played the first half like the second half, we might have won the game."

Port Huron led 33-21 at halftime. North might have been closer except for missing several easy shots in the first half.

Peters and Stavale each scored 13 points for North as part of strong all-around performance by both. Peters hit four three-point baskets.

Harris pulled down eight rebounds and Hermann grabbed six.

"You want to win every game, but we won the ones we had to," coach Stavale said.

The Norsemen will try to avenge their only MAC White loss Friday when they visit L'Anse Creuse North. They return home to face Warren-Mott on Tuesday.

What happens to taxable value when a house sells?

By James S. Mackintosh
Realtor, Grosse Pointe

Tax bills are based on "taxable value." That is, tax bills are arrived at by multiplying taxable value by the community's allowable millage. If the taxable value is $95,000 and the millage is $40 per $1,000 of taxable value, then the tax bill is $3,800 ($$95,000 \times .040 = $3,800$).

Michigan's Proposal A "caps" taxable value; until the house is sold, so that it can go up each year only the lesser of inflation (CPI) or 5 percent. If inflation were 2.8 percent, taxable value would go to $97,660 ($$95,000 + 2.8 \text{ percent} = $97,660$), assuming there were no physical changes to the property, such as a new garage.

State equalized value

In order to more accurately track a house's true value, SEV changes each year by the percentage indicated by sales in that house's area. So if sales in a specific area of Grosse Pointe go up 7 percent, then each house in that area would typically see its SEV go up 7 percent. As an example, if the above house had a SEV of $100,000 in 1997, its SEV would go up to $107,000 ($$100,000 + 7 \text{ percent} = $107,000$) for 1998.

When a house sells

That house's taxable value and SEV remain unchanged for the rest of the year in which it sold. However, the sale "uncaps" the taxable value for the following year and it becomes equal to the SEV of the following year. Remember, SEV is the best estimate of 1/2 of the house's true value.

Let's use the example of the house above which has a 1997 taxable value of $95,000 and a 1997 SEV of $100,000. If it sold in 1997, both figures would remain unchanged for the balance of 1997. But the sale uncaps the taxable value and in 1998 that taxable value would increase to equal the 1998 SEV (go up to $107,000).

When a house sells, neither the taxable value nor the SEV are automatically increased to 50 percent of the sales price. Sales prices are frequently not good indications of true value because properties sometimes sell for more or less than they are really worth, such as a sale between relatives. Also, SEV could go higher than the percentage indicated by sales in the area if the assessor found an error in his records or a change or addition to the house that was not yet recorded.

The State Tax Commission advises assessors and boards of review that "following sales"; automatically setting the SEV to 50 percent of the sales price, is a serious violation of the law.

If you have any questions, call (313) 882-5200 or call your local assessor.

DON'T TAKE IT PERSONALLY!

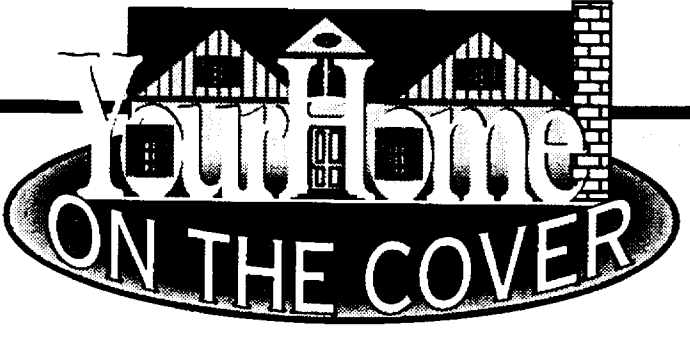

The better your home looks while it's on the market, the more likely it is to sell quickly, and for top dollar. When you have a listing appointment with a Realtor, the agent will provide a detailed market analysis along with the advantages of listing with their company. He or she will then go through your home with you and make suggestions about cosmetic repairs that will help to present your home at its best.

These recommendations can make some sellers uncomfortable and a little defensive because they are reminders of the "little" projects they have postponed. We occasionally encounter a housekeeper who has it "all together," but that's rare! Most sellers need suggestions about repairs that will make their home show well, and providing these is an important part of a Realtor's job.

Laura resides and works in Grosse Pointe as a top realtor for Coldwell Banker Schweitzer covering the Grosse Pointes, St. Clair Shores and Harper Woods.

For professional advice on all aspects of buying or selling, call her at (313) 886-4200 or (313) 201-8070.

February is new beginning, time to think spring

Gertrude Jekyll, the famed English gardener and horticulturist, was also a prolific writer with more than a dozen books on gardening subjects to her credit. In a volume entitled "On Gardening" she wrote, "In February there is always at least one day when one can smell the yet distant, but surely coming summer. Perhaps it is a warm, mossy scent that greets one when passing by the southern side of a hedge bank, or it may be a woodland opening, where the sun has coaxed out the pungent smell of the trailing ground ivy, whose blue flowers will later appear, but the day always comes and with it the glad certainty that summer is coming, and that the good things promised will never fail."

February is a month of commemorations. We mark the birthdays of two notable presidents, George Washington and Abraham Lincoln, and celebrate Saint Valentine's Day with appropriate fanfare. But February is also a prelude to spring when seed catalogues arrive in the mail and the days begin to seem a little longer and the sun a little brighter. Winter does not officially give way to spring until late March, but the flowering witch hazels will soon be in bloom. We are already watching for the first crocus blooms to compete with the snow.

We are getting a little tired of snow by this time although skiers, children and the manufacturers of snow blowers are still delighted to see each new snowfall. We take heart in knowing that snow is helping to ensure green grass, beautiful flowers, lavish vegetables and verdant trees all next summer.

Snow contains nitrates, phosphates and a host of other organic compounds. Some of these come from contact from the soil and others from debris blown on to soil surfaces. Even new-fallen snow is not pure water. It contains nuclei around which flakes first crystallize. These same drifts that are now protecting dormant plants, when melted, will provide essential moisture and nutrients to next summer's crops. Indeed, snow has been called "the poor man's fertilizer."

With air trapped between each snowflake, snow provides excellent insulation. Beneath a few feet of it the ground may be many degrees warmer than the air above it. Daily fluctuations of air temperature do not penetrate snow and the cycle of freezing and thawing does not exist. A deep snow coming early and remaining all season will prevent heaving and act as a mulch for perennial plants, protecting their dormant crowns.

Did you know that a shovelful of fluffy snow weighs about four pounds? Wet snow is even heavier. If you lift 10 shovelfuls a minute that is like walking up three flights of stairs in one minute. If the snow is heavy and wet, that's equal to running up seven flights in three minutes, and you would have to run to get up that many flights in that length of time. No wonder snow shoveling is frowned upon for those with less-than-perfect hearts.

But even though our boots are crunching through snow and the lake is full of mini-icebergs, it is heartening to hear the mourning doves lamenting again and to feel a new warmth in the sunlight. February is a month of new beginnings and efforts put forth now will reap great rewards in the months to come.

In a marvelous book, published in England in 1557, the author, Thomas Tusser, says, "In Fevrell rest not for taking thine ease. Get into the ground with peas and thy beans." This book, "An Hundred Good Pointes of Husbandrie," has the right idea. There is a lot to do in February.

Now is a fine time to paint your garden tools in bright, distinctive colors, to scrub flowerpots and flats ready for seed sowing and to build a bird house for your garden.

This is a perfect time to think of a preview of spring flowers and to start forcing cut branches of forsythia, quince, lilac, and other spring-flowering shrubs and trees. Plunge them in water and keep them near a sunny window.

Home-building seminar offered at Barnes school Building your dream home just got easier! A 24-hour seminar to help people build a house, vacation home or retirement home, on their own or with a contractor, will be offered by Grosse Pointe Community Education, in cooperation with Oakland Builders Institute.

The course will be held on Mondays and Wednesdays, Feb. 17 through March 12, from 6:30 - 9:30 p.m. It will be located at Barnes Middle School, 20090 Morningside, Grosse Pointe Woods.

By learning the process of home building you can make the best return on your investment, potentially saving thousands of dollars. Everything needed to plan and build a home will be covered, including estimating the cost of materials, buying property, financing, building codes, permits, insurance requirements, wood frame construction, concrete, masonry and roofing. The course costs $200 plus a $20 textbook fee.

Preregistration, with payment, is required by Friday, Feb. 14, to Grosse Pointe Community Education. Register in person or by mail. For more information call (313) 343-2178.

The course instructor is a licensed builder with experience teaching builders' classes. He can answer questions related to all facets of home building. Oakland Builders Institute teaches in 50 school districts throughout Michigan.

MAHBs' '97 Winter Convention

Michigan builders are constantly looking for better ways to build a house but seldom have the time to devote to building a better business.

The Michigan Association of Home Builders (MAHB) is assisting builders in preparing to meet the challenges of continued success. Builders will be congregating at the East Lansing Marriott Hotel for MAHBs "Builder of Tomorrow" 1997 Winter Convention. For three days, Feb. 13-15, we will devote our best efforts to helping you extend your financial lifeline into the next millennium.

This year's convention promises to be worth the investment of time, with 20 educational programs conducted by top industry experts. Add to that the chance to network with Michigan's leading builders and remodelers and the stage is set for a rare opportunity.

Some of the educational highlights of the convention include a six-hour program on scheduling, conducted by Michigan State University's Drs. Matt Syal and Tom Burkehardt. The second half of this session will include computer software demonstrations that allow the audience to participate at individual work stations.

Keynote speaker Tim Cusack will use his humorous presentation style to demonstrate how improved communication skills can help every phase of the business. Additional programs and events range from Tom Stephani's upbeat "Clients from Hell" program, to Scott Friedman's "A Funny Thing Happened on the Way to the Sale."

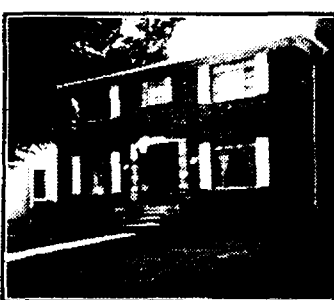

Call (800) 748-0432 for more information, or to obtain a brochure.
