Chico's, a women's apparel store, to open in Village

By Amy Andreou Miller
Staff Writer

What a difference subdued colors make.

White and Navaho white drew smiles and nods of praise from Village merchants and city council members from the City of Grosse Pointe.

Those were a part of the color scheme proposed at the Monday, April 21, council meeting for the storefront of the former Wild Wings Gallery in the Village.

Preparing to open June 15, at location of 16844 Kercheval will be Chico's Casual Clothing store, a women's apparel shop originating in Sanibel Island, Fla. There are now dozens of Chico's stores in several states, including one opened recently in Troy, said Stephen Szumlanski, manager of store planning and construction for Chico's.

The Grosse Pointe store will likely employ about seven sales associates and one store manager, all of whom could potentially be hired locally. Making that decision will be Leslie Emry, Chico's district manager.

The council members enthusiastically praised Szumlanski, who flew in from Florida to present his plan before council, for selecting "tasteful and subdued colors, keeping with the style of the stores of the Village."

Szumlanski presented a plan that shows the storefront boasting the name "Chico's" in nine locations: six times in vinyl appliques along the bottom of two windows, one above each of the two main storefront windows, and one above the door in 1 foot, 8 inches high letters.

All the signs proposed are simple, black, block letters. Only the letters above the door would be lit, and done so individually (like Damman Hardware), which is the preference of both the city council and the Village Merchant's Association.

Yet, the nine "Chico's," fall within the 35 square feet maximum total space allowed on storefronts by the City of Grosse Pointe in its commercial district.

The colors of storefronts in the Village have become a hot issue lately because two other businesses planning to locate in the Village sought council approval last month for brightly colored signs.

As previously reported in the Grosse Pointe News, still waiting for council approval for their signs are Einstein Bagels, which plans to open in the former Walton-Pierce location at 16628 Kercheval, and Blockbuster, planning to locate in the former Banana Republic building at 16822 Kercheval.

Einstein proposed bright yellow-colored fabric for the awning in front of its new location. Councilman Joseph Jennings has asked that the company switch it to "Pouppou Mustard," the name he gives to a more subdued yellow.

Blockbuster proposed using royal blue and bright yellow. City officials seem to particularly dislike the "shocking blue."

Following eventual city approval, Blockbuster expects to open its doors by mid-May.

Einstein has moved its opening day back one month to early July to further work both on its proposed sign and its plans for the optimal layout for its kitchen facilities. City approval of its interior is also needed.

Preparing to open June 15 at 16844 Kercheval will be Chico's Casual Clothing store, a women's apparel shop originating in Sanibel Island, Fla.

Woods council approves Farmer Jack proposal, project to proceed

By Jim Stickford
Staff Writer

Monday night was a good night for those who want bigger and better grocery shopping in Grosse Pointe Woods.

After much debate and confusion, the Grosse Pointe Woods City Council approved a conditional rezoning request that will allow the expansion of the Farmer Jack supermarket on Mack.

The Woods council first held a hearing as the planning commission's zoning board of appeals and considered a variance request by Farmer Jack to allow the building of an eight-foot wooden fence at the property line separating the back parking lot area from homes behind the store. The request was part of Farmer Jack's plans to expand its current store onto the Red Lobster property next door that the company recently purchased.

City ordinances limit the height of fences on commercial property and a variance was needed to build an eight-foot-tall wooden fence.

Thomas Litzler, director of real estate for Farmer Jack, told the council that the fence made sense. It would divert noise away from residents and block their view of the back end of the store and its parking lot. A wooden fence would allow Farmer Jack to keep a row of cedar trees that are between the parking lot and the lot line. The trees would further act as a noise screen.

Litzler also pointed out that there is a three-foot drop at the property line dividing commercial and residential property. The fence would be placed on the three-foot gap. This did not please some of the residents who live by the store. Larry Hurst told the council that it was his understanding that Farmer Jack had originally agreed to build a nice brick fence, not some flimsy wooden fence that would make his back yard look like the wall at Tiger Stadium.

Michael Reins, a Farmer Jack representative who met with neighbors to discuss construction plans, said that a brick fence was proposed at the first meeting. But at later meetings, said Reins, that option was dismissed because in order to build a brick fence, the cedar trees that are between the parking lot and the homes would have to be removed, and Farmer Jack staff felt the trees are an attractive and practical way to protect residential interests.

The council ultimately decided not to grant the variance request and councilman Eric Steiner suggested making the type and height of the fence a part of Farmer Jack's conditional rezoning request, which would be heard next on the agenda.

Mayor Robert Novitke opposed that idea, saying the fence and the rezoning were two separate items and should be dealt with separately. The council rejected the mayor's suggestion and turned down the variance request.

The council then considered the request to rezone a portion of property belonging to Christ the King Lutheran Church from community facility use to commercial use. Novitke said that before the hearings were to proceed that he wanted to dispel some misinformation that had been circulating around town.

Novitke said that Farmer Jack was not getting the Red Lobster liquor license, and that the proposed store was going to be 1 1/2 stories tall, not two, and that the proposed expansion of the Farmer Jack outlet would not make it a superstore, which is usually about 60,000 square feet.

Litzler then spoke to the council explaining what Farmer Jack staff wanted done. He said that there is a small piece of property belonging to Christ the King behind Farmer Jack. Litzler requested that this property, 79 feet by 102 feet, be rezoned to commercial. Farmer Jack would use this property to build a fenced in ramp that would lower into the ground and feed into a loading dock.

This area would be blocked off from the rest of the parking lot and from the nearby residential neighbors. The church would, in turn, be given a part of the Farmer Jack parking lot as a trade. This land would be the same size as the property being rezoned. The property being traded to Christ the King would be closer to the main church building than the property being given to Farmer Jack.

The council was given a letter by David Fabry, chairman of the church's board of trustees, stating that the church had worked with Farmer Jack, and that they had no objection to the plan.

But there were members of the public who did not agree. Dorothy Blohm told the council that a larger supermarket on the Farmer Jack and Red Lobster properties would attract so much traffic as to pose a threat to the children who would have to walk to the nearby schools. She also said that people moved to Grosse Pointe Woods because of its community facilities and once that land is rezoned commercial, it could never be rezoned back.

Novitke said that the Farmer Jack plan called for much more controlled access from Mack to the supermarket and that he doubted that a larger supermarket would pose a greater danger to pedestrians than a grocery store and a restaurant that served alcohol.

Resident Genevieve Caruso told the council that she helped circulate petitions against the rezoning and the reason she did was because she does not think the Woods is a cookie-cutter suburb and the city does not need a 36,000-square-foot Farmer Jack or a Kmart or any kind of superstore.

Margaret Potter spoke up on behalf of Farmer Jack. She said that the rezoning was needed so that a recessed and walled off loading area could be built to keep noise and sight pollution away from nearby residents. If the council did not rezone the land, Farmer Jack could still proceed with its expansion, it just wouldn't have an area with a recessed loading dock.

Steiner then proposed passing the rezoning with some conditions attached. These conditions were approved by the planning commission and included building a fireproof wall, placing coach lights around the parking lot and limiting the type of signs to be placed on the outside of the store.

Steiner also wanted to make the placing of a six-foot wooden fence at the rear property line a part of the rezoning. City attorney George Catlin then told Steiner that a six-foot wooden fence was illegal and that the council could not make Farmer Jack do something illegal as a part of a conditional rezoning.

Farmer Jack would need to get a variance at a public hearing and that the council had already turned down the company's variance request for a fence earlier that evening.

Litzler said that he wanted to avoid another public hearing if possible. He suggested that Farmer Jack contact all of the appropriate residents affected by the placing of a fence and get their written permission for a fence. If they did that, a variance hearing would not be required. The council agreed, and voted to approve the rezoning request.

Litzler said that the next step for Farmer Jack is to actually plan the details of the store expansion. He said that he hopes construction will begin later in the summer, but he does not know right now if the current store will have to be closed during expansion, or if it can stay open. Those details have to be worked out.

Pointer achieves goal of visiting all seven continents

By Margie Reins Smith
Assistant Editor

Al Varga has traveled the world. He recently returned from India, Katmandu and Bangkok. He's been to China, Russia, Australia, Northern Africa, South America, the Arctic and Antarctic.

He's visited most of the major cities of the world. Some, several times.

His favorite city may surprise you. Maybe not.

Varga was born in DelRay and grew up in southwest Detroit. He graduated from Allen Park High School.

"I was always a good athlete," he said. "Good, but not great. I did basketball and track and football."

He joined the army in 1958 and was stationed in Hawaii.

"It was really a hardship," he said, with a smile. "Within a few weeks I was playing basketball; then track; then football. I enjoyed the sports. But we actually had to work every week too. I was with a recon outfit, working with M56s, light track vehicles that could be parachuted out of airplanes."

Varga returned to Detroit three years later and enrolled in the Detroit Institute of Technology. He wanted to be a lawyer. Three years later, he began studying at the Detroit College of Law and eventually graduated from U of D Law School in 1967.

"I began to practice law. I was corporation counsel for the city of Detroit for two years, then assistant prosecuting attorney for St. Clair County for a year, then in private practice for 10 years. I represented the Detroit Police Officers Association and the Police Officers Association of Michigan," he said. He moved to Grosse Pointe in 1972.

"The practice of law was extremely stressful and demanding," Varga said. "I went from one major crisis to the next for 10 years. I could see it would eventually take its toll on me."

So, in 1979, he accepted a position as administrative law judge in the Social Security System's office of hearings and appeals. He hears disability cases, all non-adversarial proceedings.

He's been working there more than 17 years.

"This gives me a real life," he said. "I can travel; play golf; volunteer for organizations I like."

Al Varga collects art and souvenirs from all the cities and countries he visits.

During the '80s, he went to school again, eventually earning three degrees.

"I earned an LLM in labor law from Wayne State University. I worked on a Ph.D. in education at WSU but, in fact, earned a post-master's degree in educational administration. And I earned a bachelor of science degree in kinesiology, the study of the body, its muscles and motion," he said. "I call myself a fitness advocate. I've always been very athletic and I exercise every day. I eat a good diet."

sionally.

He started traveling in earnest in 1985, when he went to Scotland on a golfing trip.

Within a few years he had traveled to every continent and most of the major cities and countries in the world. His most recent trip was to Paris. Last December he went to Antarctica, completing his goal of visiting all seven continents.

He's been to Chili and Peru; he's cruised the Mediterranean; he's traveled to Egypt, Ireland and Australia. Sometimes he travels alone. Sometimes he signs up for planned junkets. Sometimes he travels with Earthwatch, a group of volunteers who help professionals with research.

"With Earthwatch, we do lots of menial jobs, for instance on archaeological digs, but the professionals are grateful for the help. I observed the migration patterns of birds in China. I helped get soil samples in vineyards in Australia. I helped excavate sites near the ancient iron mines near Killarney, Ireland. I photographed and measured cliff dwellings of ancient Hopi Indian tribes in Arizona," he said.

"I usually meet a lot of nice people. People who travel aren't sourpusses. They're friendly."

When he's home in the City of Grosse Pointe, Varga volunteers to help the Detroit Institute of Arts, the Michigan Opera Theatre, the Detroit Symphony Orchestra and the Grosse Pointe War Memorial.

His interest in art is obvious when he talks about the souvenirs from his travels. The colorful collection covers most of the walls and shelf space of his home in the City of Grosse Pointe. He points to icons from Russia; urns from France; oil paintings from Prague and Peru and Moscow and Paris; figurines from Mexico; at least a dozen prints and posters by Diego Rivera, one of his favorite artists; a collage of whalebones, shells and stones from Antarctica; hats from China; an Apache rain stick; a walking stick from Ireland; and a machete from the Far East. He points out many prints by his favorite artist, Frederick Frieseke, an impressionist who happened to have been born in Owosso, Michigan. All the souvenirs are displayed and each one has its own tale.

"I've been all over the world. I've seen every major city, some more than once. What are my favorites?" he asks.

San Francisco, Moscow, Florence and Paris are tied for third place. He can't decide which one is better.

Varga's second favorite is New York City. "It's the center of the universe," he said. "There is always something to do—something high quality to do. I love the Metropolitan Museum of Art and Carnegie Hall. When I'm there I never take the subway or a taxi. I walk the southern tip of Manhattan, all the way to Central Park."

His favorite city? "Metropolitan Detroit," he said, with a smile.

"Don't be surprised. Detroit is diverse ethnically. It's a melting pot."

"Detroit is rich, culturally. We have Orchestra Hall, which I think is the second best hall ever, acoustically. (The best is Carnegie Hall in New York.) We have the DLA, one of the best art institutes anywhere."

"And Detroit is home." Varga plans to travel within the United States for awhile. "I need to do more conventional trips," he said. "I'd like to spend a month in Florida playing golf."

How can we limit pollution of our lake?

The future of Lake St. Clair, one of the prime community assets for all of the Grosse Pointes, will be one of the major topics to be discussed at a public forum at 7:30 p.m. today, April 24, at the Grosse Pointe War Memorial.

The League of Women Voters, the sponsor, has assembled a group of experts to review the continuing pollution of the lake in various ways, including the actions of ICI, a defunct Canadian-based fertilizer company that is dumping chemical byproducts into the lake.

In granting ICI permission to begin dumping into the lake the contents of huge retention basins that contain damaging chemicals, the Canadian government contended that the amount of chemicals involved was too small to be harmful.

However, that is disputed by some of the experts who will take part in the forum tonight. They are supported by reports of canvasses of the shoreline by boat last fall and again this spring that found dead fish containing high levels of the ICI chemicals.

Over the years, the Pointe municipalities themselves have not always been concerned about pollution of the lake. However, in recent years, all the Pointes have halted direct pollution from the use of septic tanks by private residents.

In recent years, their priorities have shifted to the ways to end or at least limit the pollution caused by the runoff into the lake after heavy rainstorms.

The Farms, the last of the Pointes to start improving its handling of the sewer outfalls, has just started to monitor and measure the outfalls from its sewer systems before deciding what it can and will do to improve its control of the storm water pollution.

The Shores is joining in the monitoring project with the Farms but its purpose is to make sure that its recently completed separated sewer systems are working properly.

The Farms' monitoring, requested by the state's department of environmental quality, is likely to continue for six or seven years or until officials are sure that the current pollution can be curbed by separating the city's storm and sanitary sewers or by some other tactic.

Tonight's session at the Grosse Pointe War Memorial, however, will deal with all of the ways in which the lake is being polluted, including the runoff from the melting snow from Lake Superior that is expected to drive the lake's water level to its peak later this spring.

The lake is an asset for all of us, but halting pollution should get a high priority from both home owners and businesses who, in their own interests, should support efforts to clean up our lake.

A view from the sidelines

Stassen at 90 still likes UN

By Wilbur Elston

As a newspaperman who knew him 60 years ago, I still find it difficult to believe that Harold E. Stassen observed his 90th birthday last week at a fancy party at the St. Paul Radisson Hotel.

Stassen was a three-term governor of Minnesota, a World War II naval officer, one of the U.S. delegates to the San Francisco session that wrote the UN Charter, a top administrator in the Eisenhower administration, and a frequent and unsuccessful candidate for the GOP presidential nomination.

But in an interview with a Star Tribune reporter at a Bloomington, Minn., nursing home, Stassen said that his "main achievement" had been "those 10 weeks in San Francisco, getting the original United Nations charter agreed to," back in 1945.

That participation looms large in Stassen's memory because he was an early advocate of internationalism in a state that, like most other Midwest states, had clung to isolationism until Pearl Harbor.

In his third term, Stassen resigned as governor to enter the Navy, serving in the South Pacific as a top aide to Adm. William Halsey. He also managed to be on hand for the Japanese surrender at Tokyo Bay.

When he was discharged at the Great Lakes Naval Training station near Chicago, I was on hand to greet him and report to Minneapolis Star & Tribune readers about his postwar plans.

It turned out he wanted only to run for president, which helped explain why he later rejected the state GOP offer of an uncontested nomination for U.S. senator.

In his article, the Star Tribune reporter, Dane Smith, gave this modern Minnesota evaluation of Stassen on April 13, his 90th birthday:

"Few would deny that Stassen left a wholesome and optimistic legacy for Minnesota and the world, something often lacking in today's leaders." I'll buy that.

Reviving the Whitewater case

We now have the word of Keneth W. Starr, the independent counsel, that his investigation of the Whitewater mess in Arkansas has been "revived" by the sentencing of James B. McDougal, a former Whitewater business partner of President and Mrs. Clinton.

McDougal's three-year prison sentence was described as "a relatively lenient one" for his 18 felony convictions. The sentence came after Starr's comment that McDougal had "truthfully and substantially aided" the investigators, leading to new revelations not yet made public.

In his story, New York Times reporter Stephen Labaton commented that McDougal is the second witness, after David L. Hale, to have challenged the president's denial that he had played any part in the $300,000 Whitewater loan.

That loan was backed by the federal Small Business Administration that was supposed to have made such loans only to members of minorities or the economically disadvantaged.

But then Labaton furnished this additional piece of advice to readers:

"Both men (McDougal and Hale) are deeply flawed as witnesses, as felons who committed crimes involving fraud and deception. And McDougal has had mental and physical illnesses that, his doctor said, have impaired his memory."

So now the question is whether Starr has uncovered further evidence of the president's participation in the Whitewater loan or whether he is going to rely on the words of two convicted felons against the word of the president of the United States.

Under the circumstances, the stories that reportedly link the Clintons to Whitewater still do not appear to be supported by specific evidence, despite Starr's efforts to win more information from McDougal and his wife.

As we have said before, the president and his wife deserve the same treatment guaranteed to all citizens. They are to be regarded as innocent, even by Starr, until proven guilty.

A precedent for 'G.P. Blank'?

A Grosse Pointe resident who wishes to remain anonymous claims that the Pointes once did have a character somewhat similar to Martin, the hit man played by John Cusack in "Grosse Pointe Blank," the current film which claims connections to this community.

The writer said that many years ago he had represented a Grosse Pointer whose son "ran in the fast lane at one of the Pointe's high schools and was the leader of a crowd who was trying everything the dope pushers in this country had to offer."

This person, whom the letter writer called Donald (but that was not his real name), was finally caught transporting drugs from Florida and served some time in jail as a consequence.

"Finally out," our anonymous friend wrote, "and prepared to make a new life, he (Donald) married a young widow who had come into a fortune as a result of a wrongful-death suit."

Our anonymous friend wrote that Donald was "always trying this and that, his wife would tell me. Like Micawber, she always hoped that something would turn up."

"And so it did: She called one day to say that Donald had stayed out all night and when she arose in the morning, she looked out into the driveway and there sat Donald behind the steering wheel. Donald was dead."

"My supposition," our anonymous friend continued, "is that he (Donald) was cheating on some of his drug sources and they gave him some of his own medicine: an overdose."

So maybe "Grosse Pointe Blank" wasn't as inappropriately sited in Grosse Pointe as some of us had thought.

Give the Park a chance

By Mark Barrows

The March 1997 issue of Creekside News and Views, the newsletter published by the Creekside Community Development Corp., contains a keen observation: "It appears as though GPP (Grosse Pointe Park) has embarked on their sewer separation — reportedly a $20 million project."

In his fable about the wolf in sheep's clothing, Aesop taught us that "appearances often are deceiving." However, Creekside News and Views readers can be assured that the enormous pits that have been dug and the lift station under construction at Patterson Park are not just elaborate charades and facades. All that machinery is real, too. Indeed, the work is going forward, finally.

Our Fox Creek friends have long had a legitimate complaint, and their resentment and frustration is understandable. A legally binding, 70-year-old agreement is meaningless when raw sewage flows into your creek and seeps onto your property.

As Mayor Heenan has pointed out, the City of Detroit is partially responsible for the severity of this problem. Fox Creek should be dredged and breaches in the canal wall need to be repaired. It would also be helpful if Detroit would increase the flow of water through the creek.

Grosse Pointe Park has undertaken a $20 million major construction project to remedy this situation. It isn't a scam or a stalling tactic; it's a solution.

Perhaps the words "patience" and "raw sewage" are antithetical. But Grosse Pointe Park is doing its part. The Creeksiders should consider focusing more of their frustration and energy towards forcing the Archer administration to do its part.

Letters

To the Editor:

Your April 10 editorial observed the lack of candidates for the school board. Both candidates have clear ties to the system, and without opposition, are assured of election.

The failure of the community to attract a number of qualified and talented candidates does not bode well for the long-term success of Grosse Pointe schools.

When I ran as a candidate for school board in 1993, my expenses were only about $1,000, and that amount was sufficient to run a competitive race. This last election, special interests and big labor pushed some candidates' campaign funds to about $15,000, not including in-kind contributions.

In my race, local political experts warned me, "Don't even think of getting an endorsement from the Grosse Pointe News — it will never happen." The last three years' endorsements validated their theory: "outsiders" need not apply.

Most disturbing is the "anything goes — just win" strategy displayed in the last two elections. The Hunts and Shields, decent human beings and caring families, were subjected to outright lies and egregious personal attacks.

The lies went beyond any issue at the schools, even to the level of individual religious beliefs and family values. Is this the future of Grosse Pointe?

Trusteeship is a large responsibility with significant demands on personal time and families. It is the ultimate of public service. Candidates now must ask, "Should I and my family suffer for this?" Unfortunately the answer has proven to be, "Thank you, but no."

All of Grosse Pointe is the poorer for it.

To the Editor:

A special thanks to the Grosse Pointe News and the entire Grosse Pointe community for donating over 3.5 tons of food to Gleaners Community Food Bank from the 1997 "Kids Helping Kids" school canned food drive.

This year marks the 20th year that Gleaners has been nourishing the community by distributing surplus and donated food to non-profit soup kitchens, church pantries, shelters and other feeding agencies. We are currently distributing more than one million pounds of food every month.

The Grosse Pointe community has been a great friend of Gleaners over the past 20 years. Grosse Pointers have always responded to our outreach programs like food drives, benefits and fund raisers.

Your support translates into thousands of wholesome and nourishing meals for the less fortunate among us.

Time out

Parents of grown children may not be familiar with the practice of "time out" for young children.

For those who are uninformed, it is offered for preschoolers and early elementary age children as an alternative to spanking. The rule, outlined in my library of parenting books, is one minute of "time out" for each year of the child's life.

So a 3-year-old, for example, would have a three-minute time out — usually spent in an unoccupied room. Wind-up timers are often used to mark the passage of minutes, the bell or buzzer signaling freedom for the incarcerated offender.

For a full-time working mother of a preschooler, "time out" has a different meaning. Let me illustrate:

Last Friday night and Saturday morning I had a time out. A huge block of time of no phones ringing, no televisions blaring, no traffic of any sort in and out of the door or across the carpeted and tile floors.

Before you assume I plopped onto the couch with a stack of rented videos and a pile of junk food at my side or think I ran to the phone and rustled up a "girls' night out," think again.

Do you know how much a full-time working mother yearns for a block of time all to herself? Do you know how infrequently it ever happens?

When I learned I was given an 18-hour respite, I experienced a sudden intense adrenalin rush, as the weariness of the week drained from my body. Want to know what can be done in 18-hours free of interruptions?

Allow me to unfold my list. See, I even had time to draft a list. On nice paper, using a good pen. The writing is legible — in calligraphy. OK, so I'm exaggerating.

I Say

Shirley A. McShane

Anyway, here's the rundown: Packed daughter's overnight bag for grandma's house. Took daughter to grandma's. Saw my husband off for a short weekend getaway. Went to the corner store to pick up some staples for the house. Did all the laundry. Went to the gym and put in a respectable 45-minute cardiovascular workout. Cleaned the kitchen. Read a short story. Made a simple dinner. Wrote two medium-length articles for the newspaper.

Am I a glutton for punishment? Leader of the local workaholics anonymous chapter? Nah.

You see, having some free time, no matter how blessedly short it is, is a double-edged sword, a Catch 22. If you spend it lounging on the couch or sleeping or in some other form of do-nothingness, all that stuff is still waiting for you.

If you dare to defy it, say, by going to bed, pulling the covers over your head, you will hear duty calling, like the irrepressible beating of Poe's "Tell-Tale Heart."

Those who have the luxury of time or hired help will say oh, let all that go and have some fun. I'd rather get the stuff done and then have fun, without the sword of Damocles hanging over my head.

Time, like money and youth, is one of those things you never appreciate until it's gone. And it's hard to understand what it's like on the other side of the fence.

There are a number of people in my life right now who, through a variety of circumstances, have found themselves all alone in the world. They have too much time and not enough people and things to fill it.

Sometimes I feel envy for their position. Not because they've lost a spouse through death or divorce. But because they are the navigators of their life's daily course. They don't have potential mutineers jeopardizing the voyage, or unforeseen storm clouds on the horizon, threatening to blow the ship totally off course.

Yet, I can recall times in my life when I was the one with too much time on my hands. It's not always that great. When everyone around you is wrapped up in their daily lives, you wonder if your presence is an intrusion. You begin to feel disconnected and without purpose.

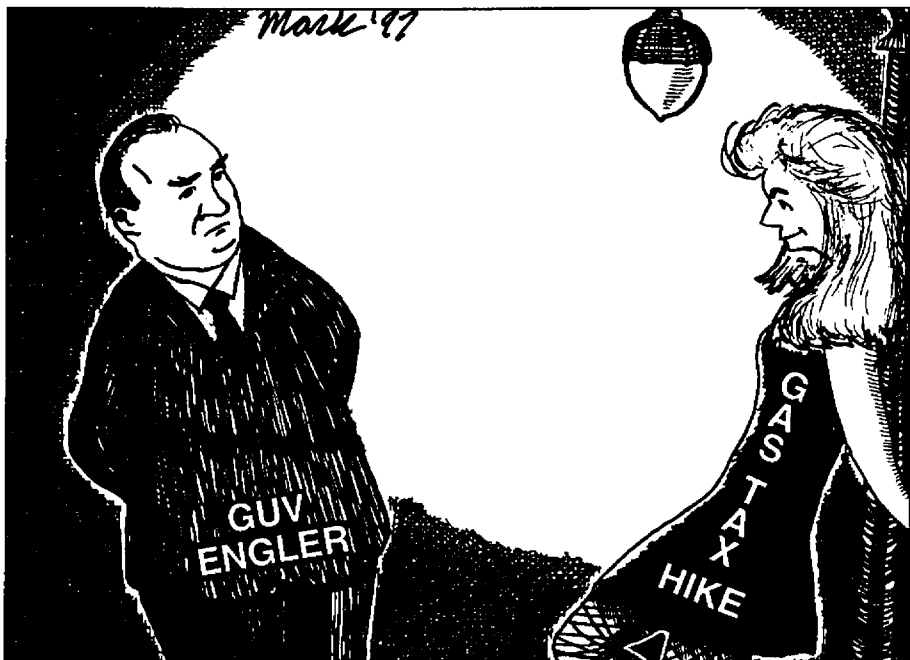

A few moments of freedom are to be savored and appreciated. But let me say this: I was glad when the chaos returned.

Besides — I'm still not sure what those strange clicking sounds were in the attic at 1 a.m. Saturday. Funny how you never hear them when anyone is around...

Drawing more than a blank

It's got a "Pointe High School" and also sports an upscale restaurant called "The Hippo Club." A store displays a familiar sign, saying, "No News or Free Press wanted here," and a convenience store tackler than anything you'll find in the Pointes has been built on the site once occupied by the lead character's boyhood home.

Ken Eatherly

A helicopter pan shows our lakeshore and even a glimpse of the real South High, and there's a storefront FM station called "Radio Free Grosse Pointe."

Just how good, and how realistic, is that movie with the G.P. title just out this month? As they say, the reviews are mixed.

In the Tower, the student newspaper of the school "Grosse Pointe Blank" is supposedly based on, reviewer Adam Bramlage calls the film "one of the better movies out of Hollywood this year," but says there's not much of Grosse Pointe shown in it. He suggests its "dark humor" may make it appeal more to guys than to "members of the female persuasion."

The Detroit Free Press gives it two stars out of four in a review that blasts it for trying too hard to be too cool and also says the scenery only approximates someone's idea of the Pointes.

Detroit's alternative-press Metro Times rates it four stars, just one short of "Don't get no better." Their review lauds the John Cusack film as "a wry and spry update of the suburban teen romantic comedy," while also finding in it the moral that Grosse Pointe's a nice place to live, but you wouldn't want to die there."

An unrated but upbeat review in the New York Times says "G.P. Blank" has "enough wild-card energy to keep it bright and surprising" but admits "the film's exemplary glimpses of Grosse Pointe, the gilded Detroit suburb, were mostly shot in Pasadena."

How much Grosse Pointe is there in the film? The review says such SoCal towns as Monrovia, Duarte and Pasadena impersonate what the film's press describes as the "posh, old money" enclave (is that us they're talking about?).

Taxing the credulity

On his annual nighttime vigil April 15 at the Mack Avenue post office, FYI was all set to tell it like it was and name names of local tax stragglers filing at the last minute.

After all, I was in the clear, having filed hours previously.

But that was before the following people turned up between 8:30 p.m. and the time (about 10 p.m.) that the branch was set to close:

- The head of a large Pointe community organization.
- A close acquaintance who works as a financial adviser.
- Two students from the last writing class I taught at the War Memorial. (I always tell them never to push the deadline.)
- A former senior warden and two priests from my church.

After the last two, I decided mercy is the best policy, so they will remain blessedly anonymous.

Besides, I may need their help when I file my final return.

Halves and half-nots

"We get checks, subway tokens, Japanese yen, car wash tokens, loonies out of Canada, and U.S. cash," says the Park's Joe Trowern, who with his wife, Nancy, serves as a teller for the Sunday collections at Memorial Presbyterian Church. In the past four years, the sharp-eyed Joe has noticed one thing conspicuous by its absence in the big plate with the velvet bottom: no half-dollars.

"You used to see them all the time," says Joe. "Now, no one ever gives you a 50-cent piece."

Curious, Joe started asking around at Pointe businesses. "Everywhere I went, they said they didn't have any," he said.

He finally found someone at American Speedy Printing who said she got a couple, a few months ago. "She had to go to a bank to find them," he says.

Joe figures the missing coins represent millions of dollars hoarded somewhere, never to be spent, and admits he collects them himself.

"I've got three," he says.

You may not find many of those Kennedy halves loose in the Pointes, but we do have an official outlet for the equally unseen Susan B. Anthony dollar coins: It's the stamp vending machine at the post office branch on Mack.

The machine gives the coins out as change on purchases of stamps, and has a conspicuous warning sign about them posted by the change return chute.

It tells anyone who gets them that they're not quarters.

If you have an FYI tip or you got your taxes in before April 15, call Ken Eatherly at (313) 822-4091.

'Training a Tiger' — a good read

By Victor Bloom, MD
Psychiatrist/psychoanalyst

I know many Grosse Pointers who are golfers and who have been avidly following the miraculous career path of young Tiger Woods. There is good reason — the young man shows promise of becoming the greatest golfer of the 21st century, which is no mean feat considering the luminaries of past years, such as Byron Nelson, Arnold Palmer and Jack Nicklaus.

Several sportswriters have already called 21-year-old Woods the No. 1 living golfer and, sure enough, the greats insist he has the most perfect game anyone has ever seen. He is the best driver, chipper and putter ever, and one cannot help but wonder what went into his winning ways.

One need not wonder long. His father, Earl Woods, a former green beret, did most of the parenting, coaching and training. His new book, "Training a Tiger," is aptly named, and he details the process by which a small baby was acquainted with golf and a tiny golf club. This first toy was his immediate delight, and before he could walk he was toddling around on a wheeler-walker with his ever-present golf club. At age 2 he was on the "Mike Douglas Show" and participated in a putting contest with Bob Hope!

At age 4, he won a golf tournament with 10-year-olds. That was the first of his many precocious victories, leading to his unprecedented winning of three successive amateur tournaments, and finally, the amazing "Open," his first professional tournament.

Recently, in the Master's at Augusta, he broke record after record against the top players of the world, who magnanimously agreed in consensus, that he was the greatest player they had ever seen.

The year before "The Shark," Greg Norman, blew a five-stroke lead to fall to Nick Faldo in the Master's. This year, as if completely humbled, awestruck and intimidated by Woods' spectacular performance, Faldo and Norman "choked" and didn't even make the cut.

Woods broke the Master's record in winning by 12 strokes.

Of what interest is all this to a psychiatrist and psychoanalyst?

The answer is simple: All the experts know that golf, probably more than any other sport, is a "head-game." You have to have your head on straight; you have to keep your cool, your concentration, your focus. You cannot be rattled or choke.

To a Freudian it means that you don't have any unconscious, unresolved conflicts.

For example, on a television interview Norman admitted that his father said he would never amount to anything. The interviewer asked if he choked, because Norman is well known to have a history of blowing leads. He is an enormously talented golfer, and has won the most money, and is very successful in business, but it is well known that when it really counts, he can and does, miss an easy putt.

Norman denied, in this nationally televised interview, that this apparent choking under pressure is psychological. He shrugged his broad shoulders and passed it off: "It is just one of those things."

Professionally experienced psychoanalysts know it is not just one of those things, that in all probability his father's admonition that he would never amount to anything is in his unconscious and works to trip him up.

People think we can just shrug off or let go of messages we get from our parents. This is not the case!

The book "Training a Tiger" by Woods' father, Earl, is a case in point.

Unlike the messages

Norman got as a boy, Tiger's father constantly gave him messages of encouragement and support. He was a very creative and determined parent who wanted his son to be a great golfer, and knew he had to start early, but who never, in spite of his wishes, ever pressured the boy.

He always held out golf practice as a reward for doing his studies and chores, and always made it fun and interesting. He set it up so that Tiger would seek out golf practice, rather than have it imposed upon him.

What Earl did to make practice interesting, was to invent games, at first putting games, then chipping and, finally, driving, which suited the developmental abilities of a young child admirably.

At first the ball would be put one foot from the hole, and after he could do that on a regular basis, the ball would be moved to two feet, and so on. So Tiger learned that golf was fun, but that business came before pleasure.

First he had to do his lessons, then he could play. No wonder he was accepted to Stanford. Tiger's mother and father worked as a unified team; there were no differences of opinion, no conflict about priorities or the fantasies of his playing championship golf. And, on top of this, his parents made sure that in addition to everything else, he had a sports psychologist in constant attendance during his high school years. No doubt that had much to do with his winning the amateurs.

Tiger was fortunate to have good genes and the best of guidance. Parents wanting the best of advice about how to optimize child development would do well to read "Training a Tiger" and to heed its advice, regardless of their particular aims for their child or children.

The story is true and inspirational; it is a model for our times.

Dr. Bloom lives and practices in Grosse Pointe Park.

Boat show kicks off SCS merchants season

ST. CLAIR SHORES — The Nautical Mile Merchants Association kicks off the boating season this weekend with its Nautical Mile Boat Show, Open House and Auction. The association consists of more than 75 boating related businesses located on Jefferson between Nine and 10-1/2 Mile.

"The (boat) dealers make it worth the people's efforts," said association promotions director Deb DeBusscher. "There are lots of bargains."

The biggest retail promotion of the year will feature hundreds of new, used or brokerage boats for sale at close-out prices. Every boat dealer on the Nautical Mile will offer special sales and promotions in their showrooms. The participating boat dealers include: Colony Marine, Emerald City Harbor, Miller Marine Yacht Sales, Jefferson Beach Yacht Sales, Jefferson Beach Marine Sales and St. Clair Sailboat Sales.

The dates of the promotion are Saturday and Sunday, April 26-27, from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. The weekend event has been in the works for several months.

"A lot of work has been put into this," DeBusscher said. The weekend will also feature a number of special events:

- Tent Sale at Blossom Heath Park. Under one tent, nautical gifts, new boat displays, personal watercrafts, refreshments, offshore race boats, seminars and more will be available.

"People just swarm to these tent promotions," DeBusscher said.

- Boat Auction Sunday at 2 p.m. at the Blossom Heath tent. This very popular event features best buys on 12 used boats at auction prices. The celebrity auctioneer will be former Detroit Lion football great and Hall of Famer Ron Kramer.

- Raffle and win a free boat cruise. Compliments of Colony Marine, enter to win at any Nautical Mile business or the Blossom Heath tent area during the open house weekend.

- Free Trolley Rides are available touring the area in an authentic trolley car to the Nautical Mile businesses, restaurants and Blossom Heath tent exhibit area. Trolleys will operate Saturday from noon to 10 p.m. and Sunday from noon to 6 p.m.

Whether you like it or not, fish is a healthy, heart-saving food

Consider the fish. Actually, I don't really care to. Probably because as a Roman Catholic, I had to eat it every Friday. Meat on Friday was forbidden. You ate fish whether you liked it or not.

Ergo, the prejudice against fish. If you are made to eat a food in your growing years, as an adult you often have an aversion to it.

There are those who can't stand the sight of oatmeal and refuse to eat what was so often cited as being the best breakfast to warm up your stomach and fortify your body against winter's cold.

However, oatmeal has been given a better press, it is now a food of choice. Food scientists have discovered that oatmeal helps prevent heart attacks.

Perhaps it's not fair to compare oatmeal to fish. Oatmeal is a glutinous mass, although it can come up palatable depending on how much cream you pour on it.

But fish are a living species.

They have lived on the Earth longer than any other back-boned animal. On that score fish deserve respect and also because it has joined the inner circle of heart-saving foods.

Admittedly, fish are pleasing to look at swimming aimlessly back and forth in tanks, their eyes bulging, their fins working.

Some of them are pretty with their silvery coloring and showy markings. Some of them are downright ugly and mean looking.

But fish do have a mystique. The Apostles were fed fish in the biblical account of the loaves and fishes.

Many admirers find peace and solace in spending long hours on a sun-drenched lake fishing.

Hardier souls consider it fun to don cumbersome gear and descend into the deep cold ocean to observe fish in their natural habitat.

A few weeks back a local paper carried a story on a proposed underwater hotel where guests could study the mysteries of the deep. I thought ice-fishing was extreme! It takes a pretty rugged individual to sit on a block of ice in a makeshift shanty with the wind howling all around with a line dropped into a hole hoping for a tug.

Prime Time

By Marian Trainor

Then there are the summer fishermen who get up at the crack of dawn to sit in a boat for endless hours.

Sometimes their solitary vigil is rewarded with a catch but there still remains the chore of scaling and cleaning the prize — a most disagreeable task.

Fishing involves patience, skill and know-how. A fisherman doesn't throw a line in the water and snag a fish. He waits and when the catch surfaces, he must deftly handle the line to capture his prize.

This is particularly true of fly fishing. It is fascinating to watch a fisherman arch the line in circles with the fish still on it. While it is an artistic performance, one wonders about the possibilities of a Jim Carrey episode built around it — the fish would surely win. Formerly fish were never viewed as a prestige food. But that has changed. Fish has now attained a never before preference. As a preferred food, it has come into its own — and so has its price.

Back when fish was a Friday mandate and a low-cost dinner, and before nutritionists gave it status by citing its superiority over prime rib because it didn't clog up the arteries like that marbled, juicy red meat, fish was not an expensive item.

There are some caveats connected with shopping for fish. To be good it must be fresh. The eyes must be bright and the skin firm.

It's not easy to cook fish to perfection. It must flake easily when done.

If overcooked, it becomes dry. It doesn't even have the grace to make the kitchen smell good while cooking and it needs lemon or tartar sauce to make it taste special. After all that, what have you got? A poor excuse for a T-bone.

We are instructed that our diet should include three or four servings of fish per week. That's a lot of fish even for those who like it.

For those who couldn't possibly eat it that often, there are fish-oil supplements. But we are advised that the benefit of fish oil is best secured from the foods we eat.

It follows then that those of us who subconsciously acquired an aversion to fish because we were made to eat it, will just have to revamp our thinking about the Denizens of the Sea.

As we were told back then — "it's good for you." Now there is the added promise that it's good for your heart, and being good to your heart may add years to your life. It's worth a try.

WSU hosts 'Issues in Aging' seminar for health pros

The 10th annual Wayne State University Continuing Education Program on Issues in Aging will take place Monday through Wednesday, May 19 through 21, at the Management Education Center in Troy.

The WSU Institute of Gerontology is host for the seminar, designed for health and human services professionals.

It offers continuing education credits for doctors, nurses, social workers, psychologists and nursing home administrators.

It is not intended for students or senior citizens.

"Solving the puzzle of dementia: Emerging practice in gerontology" will be the topic May 19.

The program will provide information about the identification and cause of Alzheimer's disease as well as specific treatment and management techniques, both for those with the disease and for their family caregivers.

On May 20 the topic will be "New directions for geriatric mental health practice in health care settings." This day will focus on new clinical information on a variety of mental health problems patients encounter, such as alcoholism and depression.

The last day of the seminar will focus on "Stroke: Update on management and treatment."

Stroke is the third-leading cause of death among older adults in the United States, but new medical treatments are improving the outcomes for those who experience it.

Representatives of the Institute of Gerontology, the Rehabilitation Institute of Michigan and the School of Medicine are among those from Wayne State participating in the seminar.

The registration fee for one day is $95, two days $180 and three days $265.

For more information on the seminar, contact Janice Freytag at the Division of Continuing Medical Education, WSU School of Medicine at (313) 577-1180, or e-mail jfreytag@med.wayne.edu.

Get a healthy start on spring at the Senior Community HealthFest

St. John-Bon Secours Senior Community is hosting its second annual HealthFest on Saturday, May 3, from 9 a.m. to noon at 18300 E. Warren, Detroit.

The free event offers older adults a range of health screenings, including assessments of blood pressure, height and weight, hearing and visual acuity, along with eyeglass adjustments.

A screening test will assess the risk of diabetes and stroke. Information will be provided about chronic disease as well as prevention, nutrition and other aspects of good health.

During the program, participants can tour the center and enjoy complimentary refreshments.

The Senior Community offers a spectrum of care, ranging from residential living to assisted living and skilled nursing care. It is a collaborative effort of the Sisters of St.

Buying new or used, same rules apply; but please don't ask us to choose Auto writers are reasonably savvy. But those of us who get to test and write about new cars are also spoiled.

Yes, we examine brand-new vehicles, read technical information, attend press conferences and model introductions, talk with engineers and designers.

Some of us also report on the retail end of the business. We study and write about: new dealership layouts, sales training, the ins and outs of financing, buyer demographics, service and parts departments and improvements in customer satisfaction.

We recognize most models of cars and trucks on the market. We memorize the language. We know the locations of the power window controls and the cupholders.

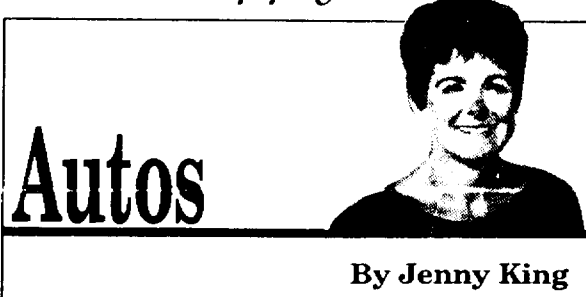

Sometimes we are asked for advice in new-car selections or about whether or not to put more money in an old, faithful piece of transportation. (A wise colleague says when confronted with such a question, he always asks the person what he or she would like to buy, then nods in approval when the answer is out, adding, "good choice.")

But when it comes to actually buying a vehicle, we must discard the facade of "expert." Frankly, we're in the same boat — sorry, sedan — with everyone else.

And so it was with us not once but twice in the last two months. Family members needed transportation. In a hurry. In one instance, a 1980 lemon-yellow-and-rust Pontiac X-body Phoenix gave up the ghost out northbound I-75 near one of the 14 Mile Road exits. Then a child living in a city with a superb public transit system took a new job that requires nothing less than a car or light truck.

It is said that car shopping produces high anxiety similar to that of a trip to the dentist. My own discomfort is founded less in the anticipation of pain or, in the case of car shopping, confusion and humiliation, than in having to pay for both experiences. You know: write checks.

Autos

By Jenny King

Still, we'd like to offer some advice to new or used-vehicle shoppers. Here are things to consider after reading the reviews of your favorite auto writers.

• The dealership experience is critical to the satisfaction most of us are seeking. You want to feel welcome and comfortable. You want to sense that your salesperson knows the product and has time to spend with you. If you aren't getting this kind of feedback, you may want to move on.

• Ask friends and colleagues for dealership and salesperson referrals. I have found in my interviewing travels that dealerships with cordial, conscientious telephone receptionists are most likely to have similar salespeople on staff. That's important to me. When I phone a dealership and can't even understand the name of the business from a hurried operator, or get stranded on hold for a piece of eternity, I am not impressed.

• There is plenty of background information available to you in the form of sales brochures, detailed product comparison stories in automotive magazines, web sites from manufacturers and dealers, etc. If engine size, fuel economy, seating capacity, body styles, brakes and transmissions figure into your shopping, check them out before you head for the local lots.

• I'm a firm believer in test drives. When you have located a new or used model of interest, let your salesperson do a thorough walk-around for you, explaining features. Then get behind the wheel and get to know the car or truck. How is the visibility? Can you live with the seats? Is the engine peppy enough? Have you forgotten how to drive stick-shift? Is there too much engine or road noise? Are there things about the vehicle that bother you? Or is it love at first sit? (This is a good sign!)

• A car purchase generally will take longer and be more expensive than you anticipated. We had to make an unscheduled trip to the bank for one of our recent purchases. In our naiveté, we figured we could write a check for the car or even use our bank debit card. After all, we had enough of a balance to cover the purchase. In an effort to protect customers from themselves, the bank insisted we come in for a cashier's check. That gobbled up much of a work morning. And when you are figuring how much you will owe for your vehicle, don't forget the Michigan 6-percent sales tax becomes a significant tack-on on a $10,000, $20,000 or $30,000 purchase.

• For the less-adventurous buyer seeking a used vehicle, we'd strongly suggest looking at ones which still are covered by manufacturer warranties. The typical factory warranty is for three years or 50,000 miles, whichever occurs first. (Some, like Volkswagen's, are longer.) There also are factory-certified used cars available now. These are late-model vehicles which may be past the original warranty. But they have been inspected, have passed a rigorous exam, have been brought up to snuff and are once again certified for a limited period by the manufacturer. They are more

Park council gives honors for being a good neighbor

By Jim Stickford
Staff Writer

At a time when major projects are afoot to bring Detroit and its suburbs together, the Grosse Pointe Beautification Commission and the Park city council recently honored two local organizations for projects that won't make the evening news, but nonetheless reflect a new spirit of cooperation between Detroit and the Pointes.

St. Ambrose Roman Catholic Church and the Phil Pitters Co. received the Park's Good Neighbor award for their efforts in beautification and civic improvements.

The Phil Pitters Co. is a garden center that recently purchased and renovated much of the 22000 block of Alter Road in Detroit.

Pat Deck and Bob Ramsey of the Beautification Commission were on hand to hand out the awards and offer their congratulations to the two organizations.

The Beautification award stated, "the Commission established the 'Good Neighbor' award to honor and promote neighborhood beautification efforts, whether within the city limits or not, that have made a positive impact on the community."

When Pitters purchased the property for his business such an effort was made, said Park mayor Palmer Heenan. The business has truly benefited both Detroit and Grosse Pointe Park, he said.

Pitters said that Grosse Pointe Park has been a big supporter of his business from the beginning.

"The Park council sent the Detroit city council a letter urging them to rezone the property I purchased from residential to business," said Pitters. "Park residents have been great customers of mine and have complimented me for the landscaping we've done around the store. It's been very gratifying."

St. Ambrose was honored by the commission for its new playscape and play field. The Rev. Timothy Pelc, St. Ambrose's pastor, said that the playscape was an attempt to bring the two communities on either side of Alter Road together.

"The idea of improving the neighborhood is what we were after," said Pelc. "As a church, we span Alter, and we wanted a project that would bring the two communities together. That's why we didn't just hire a construction company to build the playground. We got 700 volunteers from both Detroit and the Park together to build the playscape. It's paid off."

Heenan said that the playground and its facilities are the kind of thing that make the Park a great place to live. He said that is something that provides common ground for Detroit and the Park, and it was the council's privilege to honor the people involved with its construction.

Park approves banner placements for '97

By Jim Stickford
Staff Writer

Grosse Pointe Park's policy of limiting banners across Jefferson got its first workout on April 14, when the Park council tentatively approved the requests of four organizations for 1997.

The policy was adopted by the Park city council last year after considerable debate. The feeling expressed by the council was that the banners, which advertise such events as the University Liggett and Christ Church Grosse Pointe antique shows, ultimately detract from the residential ambience of the neighborhood.

The council then established a policy limiting the placement of banners to organizations that have previously placed banners in the Park. The council's new policy also calls for groups to pay a $200 fee to defray the city's cost in putting up and taking down the banners.

Each organization would be allowed to place a banner across Jefferson for one week.

So early this year, Park officials sent letters to the eight organizations that have placed banners in the city in the past. The letters stated that the organizations had until the end of March to submit applications for banner placement.

The city had heard from four organizations by April. They are Christ Church Grosse Pointe for its antique show, University Liggett School for its antique show, the group that sponsors Art on the Pointe and the Detroit Institute of Ophthalmology for its car design show.

Also contacted were the American Association of University Women, who hold a book sale every year, and the Junior Group Goodwill.

The city did not hear from the Junior League of Detroit because they only put up a banner every other year when they show a designer show house.

The St. Andrew's Society of Detroit also did not respond because the Highland Games will not be held in Grosse Pointe this year.

Park city clerk Jane Blahut said that the Goodwill people declined to participate because of the $200 fee.

The Park policy allows up to 10 banners to be placed across Jefferson. Park resident Fred Olds was at the April 14 council meeting and said that he was appalled that the city would allow banners to be placed across Jefferson for an amount of time equal to 20 percent of the year.

Final approval of the banner requests will be granted at the April 28 council meeting.

How to keep your trees healthy this spring

Are your trees healthy? Nature let go its fury this winter, sending tons of snow, torrential rains and gusting winds.

Trees can suffer extensive damage during such a season and can become hazardous. They also can become unhealthy due to severe weather conditions, especially prolonged freezing, flooding or drought.

Storm-damaged trees can be a threat to life, home, vehicles and other personal property.

Property owners could be held responsible for any damage or personal injury caused by a tree on their property.

Homeowners want to have beautiful healthy trees, because they are valuable and pleasant to look at.

Right now is a good time to inspect trees for structural hazards, since the trees are bare and the whole structure can be viewed. Some of the warning signs to look for:

- Wires in contact with tree branches. Trees may become energized when they are contacted by electric wires, or telephone wires in contact with electric wires.

- Cracked stems and branch forks.

- Hollow or decayed areas on the trunk or main limbs, or mushrooms growing from the bark.

- Peeling bark or gaping wounds in the trunk.

- Fallen or uprooted trees putting pressure on other trees beneath them.

Spring and summer give us the best opportunities to identify tree health problems, since a cursory inspection can tell whether the tree "looks" healthy compared to previous years or other nearby trees of the same species.

Diagnosis of the actual cause of the tree malady is a tricky business best left to an expert. As with human illness, prompt detection and treatment can be critical.

If you are unsure whether your tree is healthy or can withstand the next storm, consult a professional arborist who will identify and remove hazards as well as treat the causes of tree health problems.

You can find an NAA member arborist close to you by calling the National Arborist Association at (800) 733-2622, or by a zip code search on the NAA's Web Site: <http://newwww.com/org/naa>

National Arbor day falls on April 25. Plant or care for a tree and give the generations to come a better environment in which to live.

- City Clubs — These are essentially dining clubs, often with guest rooms, and with limited athletic facilities. All university clubs are included in this category.

- Athletic Clubs — These include all clubs with the word "athletic" in their name, as well as racquet, cricket, sporting, beach, and hunt clubs, but not golf clubs.

The survey did not explicitly define the category of yacht clubs, but those interested in winning a platinum ranking from survey respondents would likely have to be full-service yacht clubs, with family and youth activity programs, dining, and tennis and swimming programs.

Sibbald said that all the award-winning clubs are "the best managed and most successful private clubs. In short, those clubs who prestige, vigor, and general excellence of services and management make them the clubs for prospective members to seek to join."

Yet, the general managers of CCD and of the Yacht Club emphasize that winning this award is not going to trigger them to launch a mass marketing campaign to gain new members.

"It is an honor to be listed as a top club by way of our peers," said CCD general manager Edward Linebaugh. "But I actually don't pay much attention to awards; I'm motivated by the fact that I just love taking care of our members," said Linebaugh, who was sent a survey to fill out by the Sibbald company.

Linebaugh praised the club's top-notch golf course; its many activities for all ages, such as swimming, tennis, and skating programs, and its day camp. He said the club has a strong "family atmosphere, where everyone knows and welcomes each other."

Similarly, the Yacht Club's certified club manager Jack

Sullivan said, "Winning the number one award for yacht clubs gives nice recognition and satisfaction to the members of the Grosse Pointe Yacht Club; it allows them to share a pride they already have had for years. The award just encourages them to share that pride publicly as well."

According to Sullivan, a City of Grosse Pointe resident, he has enjoyed a special vantage point that has helped him better evaluate the strengths and weaknesses of private clubs around the globe. From February 1992 through February 1993, he was president of the Club Managers Association of America.

"In serving in that capacity, I had the privilege of traveling all over the country, as well as to several destinations in Europe and Australia. Even if my trip's purpose was to visit a country club or golf club, I always made it a point to visit the area yacht club as well," said Sullivan, who has been the general manager of the Grosse Pointe Yacht Club for 10 years.

Sullivan filled out a survey, and naturally voted for the Grosse Pointe Yacht Club. But his vote alone, of course, did not earn the club its number one ranking.

Sullivan said he is certain the Grosse Pointe Yacht Club earned many top votes from the many other club members, general managers, etc., who come to the Grosse Pointe Yacht Club to participate in sailing competitions that the Grosse Pointe Yacht Club has hosted.

Sullivan is enthusiastic, and beams with pride when he talks about the Grosse Pointe Yacht Club, and its approximately 1,100 families who are members.

He said, "You will not find a yacht club that offers so many different facilities, programs, and opportunities."

Sullivan, whose family has grown up being a part of the Grosse Pointe Yacht Club's sailing and swimming programs, praises the club for its "strong family spirit."

A national survey of 2,530 private club leaders ranked the Country Club of Detroit, (CCD), located in Grosse Pointe Farms, among the top 70 country clubs in the United States.

He said he is not only impressed with the swimming and sailing program, but also the tennis program, the bowling program, the day camp, various other social activities, opportunities for business connections, and the food.

"And not all private clubs enjoy a good reputation for their food. But I think we offer great food and a top-notch dining experience whether it is a meal shared with a few family members or business associates, or a meal within the context of a large wedding party or some other sort of function."

The Grosse Pointe Yacht Club was once again chosen as the site of the Grosse Pointe and Harper Woods' mayors prayer breakfast, which attracts hundreds of attendees.

Similarly, Ted Gillary, executive manager of the DAC, raves about the quality of the food at the club located at 241 Madison in downtown Detroit.

Gillary laughs when he thinks of his wedding cake that the world renowned "Chef Otto" of the DAC created.

"You know how its tradition that you are suppose to freeze the top portion of your wedding cake and eat it on your first anniversary. We couldn't wait."

Indeed, Chef Otto is known for his sugar-spun roses that adorn the outside of cakes that look so real they fool many people; and he is known for using layers of fresh fruit inside his cakes.

The DAC was chosen to host more than 1,000 top movers and shakers last year for dinner prior to the first performance at the grand opening of Detroit's newly-restored opera house. The DAC staff handled the night with flair and grace.

"We're very excited to be included in the top ranking of private athletic clubs. All of them are fine clubs, and it's nice to be included," Gillary said.

He even graciously downplayed that the DAC would have won the best athletic club in the country if the Atlanta Athletic Club in Duluth, Ga., which was ranked above the DAC, was considered instead in the golf club category because it has a spectacular golf course.

The DAC has about 3,265 members, of which at least 10 percent are women, and 6 percent are "intermediate members" (people between the ages of 21 and 30).

"Our membership numbers are constantly growing, particularly among women. Our members are the leadership of southeast Michigan business, non-profit, and civic organizations. The DAC is the focal point of social activity and an anchor in Detroit," Gillary said.

But unlike the general managers of the award-winning private club previously mentioned, Gillary said, "why not look at the award as an opportunity to convince prospective new members of our greatness?"

Yet Gillary emphasized that after anyone spends a short time at the DAC they will easily see why they earned a top award. And, it's not only because of the food.

The DAC earned its votes from visiting private club members around the country.

"We have reciprocity with clubs across the United States, and in four other countries. We have members of a lot of other cities' athletic clubs coming to visit the DAC," he said.

One positively unique element to the DAC is that it is a club where members drive the direction of new activities and social opportunities offered. For example, the DAC has clubs within its club. To name a few recent additions, there's the rod and gun club, a book club, a business roundtable club, and a clergy roundtable club; all formed within the last few years.

While the DAC encourages its members to feel comfortable to form small clubs to suit their niches, the DAC also coordinates many large leagues such as its bowling or basketball leagues, which attract hundreds of participants.

The DAC, which first opened its doors in 1915, also currently boasts 27 hotel rooms; a spa; basketball, handball, squash, and racquetball courts; a pub; several different size dining and conference rooms; and the ability to secure tickets to operas, musicals, and ballets being performed at the four theaters all within a block or two of the DAC.

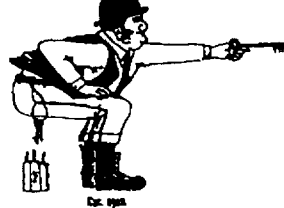

Gillary, who did not have an opportunity to fill out a survey, said if Sibbald continues to offer a survey to identify the nation's top private clubs, specifically athletic clubs, the DAC expects to be a mainstay.

"The next time that survey is given, people will see that the DAC continues to use its time wisely to provide a tradition of outstanding service, and to grow," he said.

be written by an outsider looking in.

The South, in his opinion, is the only identifiable region in the United States with a shared sense of anything. It has its own idioms and accents, its own humor and manners, its own food and, quoting Flannery O'Connor, "a collection of goods and evils that are stimulating to the imagination."

The South has its rich storytelling tradition, its lingering resentment of the "war of Northern aggression" and its strong women — the "steel magnolias."

"I was fortunate to have landed in Savannah, rather than in Penobscot, Maine, where a response to a question would have been either 'Yup'

'Splendor' plates now issued for bikes, trailers

Secretary of State Candice S. Miller announced that the Great Lakes Splendor license plate is now available for motorcycles and trailers. This marks the first time Michigan has offered graphic plates for motorcycle and trailer use.

The license plate, which features a stunning sunrise over the Straits of Mackinac with the Mackinac Bridge in the foreground, is also available in a personalized version for cycles and trailers, with a maximum combination of five letters and/or numbers.

All 118,713 motorcycle registrations in Michigan expired on March 31. Motorcycle owners who wish to purchase the new Great Lakes Splendor license plate may do so at any Secretary of State branch office for a one-time fee of $5, over and above all other applicable fees.

A new license plate can also be purchased by mail or fax when renewing the annual registration. Since Jan. 2, over 500,000 Great Lakes Splendor license plates have been sold.

Motorists who have already renewed their cycle or trailer registration can purchase a Great Lakes Splendor license plate without visiting a branch office by obtaining an order form through Fax on Demand or the Department of State's Home Page.

Motorists can request a form by Fax on Demand by calling (517) 335-4FAX (4329). Using a touch-tone telephone and listening to the recorded message, request the Great Lakes Splendor order form (document 104) and enter the fax number where the form can be sent, anywhere in the United States.

To obtain an order form through the World Wide Web, access the department's Home Page at: www.sos.state.mi.us and download an order form. Once the form is completed, it can be faxed back to the Department of State or returned by mail.

When ordering by fax, motorists must complete the credit card authorization for payment of the $5 license plate fee. License plates will be delivered to the purchaser by mail.

Want to know history of Pewabic?

Grosse Pointe AARP Chapter 2151 will meet at 1 p.m. in the Grosse Pointe Memorial Church, 16 Lakeshore, Grosse Pointe Farms.

The featured speaker is Melanie Bazil, who will give a slide presentation on the history of Pewabic Pottery.

She will speak about the glazing process and some of the better-known sites where Pewabic tile is used.

Refreshments will be served and visitors are invited to attend the meeting. For further information regarding membership, call Howard Winter at (313) 881-7209.

or 'Nope,' he quipped. "A Northerner might say a woman went to the closet to get her coat. A Southerner will say, the woman went to get her coat, you know, the one her third husband gave her before he committed suicide."

Berendt said when he announced his intentions of writing a book about Savannah he was informed that Savannahians didn't take kindly to New Yorkers — especially New Yorkers who were writers. (It had something to do with a certain Civil War era

New York writer who wrote a scathing piece about the slave trade.) He was told that no one would talk to him.

"But they did," he said. "I could hardly stop them from talking."

Berendt said he embraced the tolerance for eccentricity in the South. Each life is a work of art. Everyone is the central character of his or her own movie. The stranger you are, the more you're appreciated, he said, because you give people something to talk about.

This, of course, becomes a vicious cycle. People get weirder and weirder and the talking goes on and on.

A self-described perfectionist, Berendt said it took him seven years to write the book and he's already spotted some things in the hardcover that he'll change when the paperback comes out.

In response to questions from the audience, Berendt said he can still show his face in Savannah, he hasn't been sued, and he has little input on the major motion picture based on the book. Set to begin filming in early May, it is directed by Clint Eastwood and, he said, John Cusack (of Grosse Pointe Blank fame) is cast as him, the narrator.

In fact, the book's popularity has spawned everything from "Midnight in the Garden of Good and Evil" tours, cookies and T-shirts to increased tourism to Savannah.

"Tourism there has more than doubled," he said. "But Savannahians remain impervious to outside influence. If nothing else, I hope I've lifted the 100-year-old curse of 'the New York journalist.'"

And what did Bloom, a Baton Rouge native, think of a Yankee's take on the South?

"I can't say I've ever known people (like the ones portrayed in his book)," she said. "I'm sure they exist, but not among the everyday people I knew."

But she agreed with Berendt's observations about Southern tradition.

"A lot is built on what happened 100 years ago," she said. "A lot of people don't ever think about change."

SCHOOL NEWS

Busy students

Samantha Sommer, a student at Grosse Pointe North High School, has been selected to attend the Washington Journalism Conference to be held April 15-20 in Washington, D.C. Sommer, a senior at North, will be among 350 high school journalists in attendance. The event is sponsored by the Congressional Youth Leadership Council.

Sommer plans to attend Northwestern University in the fall. At the conference, she will participate in a number of activities, including a panel discussion with top journalists, work with the Washington press corps, and as a culmination of the week's experience, the students will produce a student-written "Washington Chronicle."

St. Paul Catholic School fifth-grader Michele Yankson earned a perfect score in the year's second WordMasters Challenge, a national language arts competition.

Yankson competed in the "gold division" of the challenge and was among 23 fifth-graders nationally to achieve a perfect score. She was supervised and prepared for the challenge by teachers Kay O'Neill and Evelyn McShane. She is the daughter of Christiana and Moses Yankson of Detroit.

Richard Elementary School fifth-grader Brian

Biglin earned a perfect score in the second meet of the WordMasters Challenge. He competed in the "blue division" of the challenge and was among 161 fifth-graders nationally to achieve a perfect score. Other Richard students to achieve outstanding results in the meet were Emily Griffin, Christina Jacovides, Clare Porter, Hayley Soltesz, Kimberly Sutton, Peter Forest, Julie Howe and Kirk Willmarth. They were supervised and prepared for the challenge by teacher Karen LeBeau.

Fundraiser

The Brownell Middle School student council is sponsoring a walk-a-thon for cystic fibrosis from 9 a.m. to noon Sunday, May 18, at the Grosse Pointe North High School track.

Funds raised will help support research for a cure for cystic fibrosis. Students will walk in teams of 10 and are currently on a donation drive. To help support the walk-a-thon, make checks payable to cystic fibrosis and send to Mrs. Kranz at Brownell, 260 Chalfonte, Grosse Pointe Farms, or call (810) 791-4077 or (810) 343-2115.

Accolades

The following students were honored by superintendent Suzanne Klein and the school board at the Monday, April 14 meeting:

• Heather Kadrich, a Grosse Pointe North student, for being one of 35 international winners selected by the Foundation for Exceptional Children's "Yes I Can!" program.

• Kyle Swanson, a Parcels student, winner in the 1997 Helen Keller art show.

• Lauren Swanson, also a North student, for qualifying as an alternate for the 1998 Helen Keller Art Festival.

• Gavin Koo and Elizabeth Huebner, both North students, for placing in the top 100 students (out of 16,000 entrants) in the Michigan Mathematics Competitive Exam.

• North students Elizabeth Kissonergis, Jackie McClory and Erin Sutton, for being Scholastic Art Award recipients, along with South students, Meghan Berschback, Danielle Casazza, Joseph Dwaiby, Sara Dykstra, Andy Gould, Karen Khalifah, Julie Krease, Sarah Krueger, Emilia Kwiatkowski, Matt Moran, Jessica Pluhar and Courtney Roth.

It's student art exhibit time again at South high

Grosse Pointe South High School's annual student art festival will run from Tuesday, May 6, through Friday, May 9, in Cleminson Hall.

On display will be a variety of student creations, including drawings, paintings, ceramics, jewelry, sculpture, photography, fibers and metal.

Hours are 7 to 9:30 p.m. on May 6 and 7, with awards presented at 8 p.m., and from 8 a.m. to 4 p.m. and from 7 to 9 p.m. on May 7 and 8.

Purchased art may be picked up from noon to 3 p.m. on Friday, May 9.

Senior Paul Truba is this year's poster contest winner.

Twenty percent of the show's proceeds will be donated to the Robert R. Rathbun Memorial Fund, to go toward scholarships, art awards and enrichment activities for students.

GROSSE POINTE THEATRE PRESENTS

Me and My Girl has the charm and sly innocence of a less complicated time. It is a rags-to-riches story of a Cockney who inherits a dukedom but doesn't want to lose his girl. Full of high energy and optimism with a bubbly score and humor typically British and enthusiastic, the play fairly dances with such numbers as "The Lambeth Walk" and "Leaning on a Lamppost."

Silver medalists

The Grosse Pointe Odyssey of the Mind team, from left, Conor O'Bryan, Kerby, J. T. Gage, Richard; Robert Arcand, Kerby; Andy Sheridan, Richard; Alexandra Huntley, Richard; Rachel Sullivan, Defer; and Rory O'Bryan, Kerby, won the silver medal at the state championship of the Odyssey of the Mind tournament on April 19. The event, held this year at Central Michigan University, is a national competition that rewards teams for working together to creatively solve problems. They were coached by Mike O'Bryan and Karen Sullivan of Grosse Pointe Farms. The Grosse Pointe team competed with 30 other area winners of district elimination tournaments held in March. They also won the Detroit area regional competition for the second straight gold medal win.

Board OKs bids for boilers at Pierce, Defer

By Shirley A. McShane
Staff Writer

If boilers were people, then the aged heating units at Pierce and Defer schools might soon be inducted into Willard Scott's 100th-birthday club.

In other words, according to school administrators, their days are numbered.

"There are scientific bases for determining the optimum life of a piece of equipment and these boilers have outlived their life expectancy," said Larry Yankauskas, maintenance supervisor for the Grosse Pointe Public School System.

Yankauskas was responding to questions posed by the school board on April 7 as it considered the school administrators' request to replace — rather than repair — the two schools' boilers.

Both Defer and Pierce are still using the original boilers installed when the schools were built. Pierce was built in 1940; Defer was constructed in 1955.

The school system has gotten its money's worth out of the boilers, said Chris Fenton, assistant superintendent for business and support services.

"We don't want to get to the point where they are beyond repair," Fenton said. "We are faced with the fact that at some point they will break and we won't be able to get them repaired."

Although the boilers have experienced minimal repairs in the last decade, Yankauskas told the board, the school system is operating them on "borrowed time. We have been lucky."

Administrators warned the board that by doing this it is avoiding a worst-case scenario: the boilers heaving their last breath in the middle of the heating season.

Fenton referred to the time when the district had to dip into its fund equity account to replace a boiler at Ferry Elementary School.

While it would cost less to repair the boilers, (Fenton estimated it would be between $15,000 and $20,000 for repairs), the administration is recommending replacement.

Long-term savings will be realized in the form of energy savings and reduced maintenance costs, Fenton said. The payback value for the Defer boiler is estimated to be 19 years. The payback value for Pierce is estimated at 18 years.

Five companies submitted bids to the district in March and Supreme Heating came in as the low bidder on both projects at a total cost of $352,536.

The school district tentatively has set aside $375,000 in the 1997-98 budget to fund this project.

The board voted unanimously on April 14, to award both jobs to Supreme Heating. The project is expected to begin in June and be completed by September.

"(If the boilers have gone beyond their expected lifetime, then now is the right time to replace them, not when they break down," said trustee John Mills. "It is significant to point out that maintenance issues are being addressed with funds from the general fund . . . when other school districts are funding these kinds of things through bond issues."

Early birds

Students in Sandy Lombard and Jeanette High's first-grade classes at Kerby Elementary School learned some gardening basics recently when the Grosse Pointe Men's Garden Club visited. Under the guidance of 32 members of the garden club, the children planted seeds that, if cared for properly, will sprout hybrid and pixie tomatoes.

Last week LTS discussed the use of limit-buy orders to "go fishing" for cheap stock in a declining market.

But there are also limit-sell orders, often called "stop loss orders."

Many traders, after purchasing a new position in a stock, will immediately enter open orders to sell that stock, on a descending ladder of prices under the market.

This will, hopefully, limit the trader's loss in case of an unfortunate market decline — for example: when the trader is out to lunch!

Remember, if the market price declines to the limit price, that limit-sell order becomes a market-sell order, which could be executed below the limit price.

On the NYSE, these limit orders are entered in the Specialist's Book, which was originally a "book," but is now computerized.

Limit orders can be either open orders (good until canceled) or day orders (expire at close of trading that day).

Diversification, too little or too much?

LTS found the answer in "Stock Market Logic," by Norman G. Fosback (The Institute For Econometric Research, 18th printing, January 1990).

Fosback says that diversification reduces the risk inherent in all portfolios.

The table below shows the reduction of this risk by increase in the number of stock positions held.

Joseph Mengden is a City of Grosse Pointe resident, and a former Chairman of the Board of First of Michigan.

Tim Hortons to open on Vernier

By Ann L. Fouty
Staff Writer

HARPER WOODS—Need a little nostalgia mixed with today's food fare in a warm and cozy atmosphere?

Tim Hortons, slated to open in mid-June, might be just the spot you're seeking, since it has been described by Tim Horton staff members as reminiscent of the old hotel coffee shops.

Being built on the site of the old Hardee's on Vernier, across from Eastland Mall, it will feature doughnuts, tarts, cakes, pies, muffins and bagels, as well as four types of deli sandwiches, said Eileen Melman, spokesperson for Tim Hortons. "It will be a full service bakery," she said.

It will have a drive-through window, as well as seating for 50 in the 2,815-square-foot brick building.

Tim Hortons first opened in Hamilton, Ontario, featuring premium coffee and fresh-baked goods.

The restaurant chain was founded by National Hockey League hall-of-famer Tim Horton, who played primarily for the Toronto Maple Leafs.

In December 1995, Canada's largest chain merged with Wendy's International, Inc. The first Tim Hortons/Wendy's combination opened in 1992.

The defunct Hardees on Vernier was only one of more than 40 Hardees restaurants purchased by Wendy's International, Inc. Most of these purchases will be converted into Wendy's restaurants, with a few of the former Hardees being converted into Tim Hortons.

The defunct Hardees on Mack at Kerby will be converted into a Wendy's.

The Harper Woods Tim Horton will employ about 30 people, as will the Grosse Pointe Farms Wendy's.

Managers from the defunct Hardee's have been kept on the payroll, Melman said, and one could be brought in as manager of this new restaurant.

In addition to hiring local people, the company sends one or two economically deprived children from the area to one of four 10-day camps in Canada. This is done through Tim Horton Children's Foundation.

It's Action Auction time again at the Grosse Pointe Academy

By Shirley A. McShane
Staff Writer

Along with the history, the tradition and the seemingly endless list of "top drawer" items up for bid at this year's Action Auction, organizers of the Grosse Pointe Academy's biggest annual fundraiser promise something else this year: Fun.

Yes, fun. Co-chairmen Mimi Crawford and Libbie ZurSchmiede couldn't emphasize enough the importance of including fun in the planning of the annual auction. While previewing and bidding on various items at an auction may be exciting, auctions tend to run long, they said.

"We want it to be an entertaining evening," ZurSchmiede said. "We want people to laugh and enjoy themselves."

They hope to liven things up at this year's preview on Wednesday, May 7, and on Saturday, May 10, by adding a Hollywood-academy-awards-type theme. Piped-in show tunes and film clips will accompany the presentation of each item up for bid.

Decorations — all handmade — feature long strips of paper made to look like film strips. The strips feature favorite movie characters for children and adults, along with photographs of various Academy events held during the last year.

The auction will be held at the Grosse Pointe Academy and is expected to draw about 1,500 bidders. Historically, the auction brings in about a half million dollars, Crawford said, pointing out that more than 60 percent of those who attend the auction are from outside the Grosse Pointe community.

On the block this year are approximately 1,000 items, everything from the special projects each academy classroom creates for the auction, to this sampling:

- A 1997 Eddie Bauer, 4x4 Ford Expedition
- A walk-on with Harrison Ford in an upcoming movie to be filmed in New York City
- A cigar party for 50 at the Crescent Sail Yacht Club
- A "Get Physical" party, at the Taylor family's sports pavilion, featuring racquetball, tennis, saunas, food and music

- A party for 24 at the Rattlesnake Club
- A potpourri of art created by both local and national artists, including watercolors, oils and sculpture
- A full-length mahogany mink coat
- A selection of china, silver and crystal
- Hand-painted furniture made by local

- artists
- A trip to Paris, four days in the city and travel by train for a two-day stay in the country
- A Seabourne cruise around the Greek Isles
- Six box seats to the Kentucky Derby

- A three-carat sapphire and diamond ring
- A Sea Rayder F-14 jet boat
- "All of these items are even better than they sound,"

Academy (which closed in 1969 and was reincorporated as the Grosse Pointe Academy).

Both Crawford and ZurSchmiede are Sacred Heart alumnae. ZurSchmiede was a junior when the school closed; Crawford was among one of the last graduating classes.

This year, both of their daughters are graduating from the Academy, so co-chairing the event has a special meaning for both, they said.

Nationally, this is the largest and most successful fundraising auction of its kind," Crawford said. "People have a great deal of respect for it. It's a terrific marketing and exposure opportunity to have donated items put in our catalog."

"Over the years, the auction has become a bridge between the Sacred Heart and Grosse Pointe Academy families."

ZurSchmiede added, "It has become successful enough now that it not only raises money for the operating budget but we have been able to establish an endowment

Crawford and ZurSchmiede couldn't have organized the Action Auction alone. They credit the numerous volunteers on the various committees, the faculty and students, the community at large, the alumni, Ford Motor Co. and Lawrence and Ernest DuMouchelle.

Crawford said, "There are no 'catches' with these items, they are all 'top drawer.'"

The Action Auction was launched in the late 1960s as a fundraiser to help the financially strapped Sacred Heart fund."

The snake is the star in 'Anaconda'

Studio Head: OK, let's combine "Jaws," "Friday the 13th" and "Aliens," but we can't use a shark, a maniac in a goalie mask or a creature from outer space. Oh... and it has to take place in a remote location.

Junior Executive I: How about a rabid dog. Wait, that's been done. A swarm of... No, that's been done, too. Hmm. What do people hate?

Junior Executive II: Bugs, snakes and rats.

SH: That's it. A big snake... I've got it, a boa.

JEII: Too small. What are those really big snakes? Anaconda... something.

JEI: Condors; anacondas.

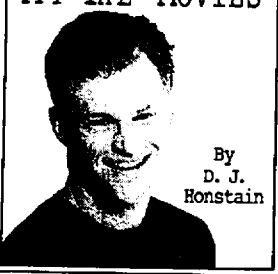

SH: Yes. But its anaconda.

And I think they're in the Nile or the Amazon. That works.

Run with it, boys.

It wouldn't be surprising if that was the studio meeting that sprang the idea for "Anaconda," the latest people-in-jeopardy/disaster film.

AT THE MOVIES

By
D. J.
Honstain

That being said, "Anaconda" is a fun trip. The snake effects are impressive and the cast, which includes Jon Voight, Jennifer Lopez (Selena) and Eric Stoltz, give solid performances in thankless roles.

The snake is the real star. Measuring out at nearly 40 feet, sensing whenever prey is nearby and snatching victims as they jump to escape its grip, this reptile is not to be messed with.

But when a documentary film crew heading down Amazon tributaries in search of remote Brazilian Indians pick up stranded Peruvian snake poacher Paul Sarone (Voight) and the expedition leader (Stoltz) falls prey to a poisonous water bug, they are held hostage by the $1 million Sarone says the snake will bring him.

Mysterious and squinting like he needs a new prescription for contacts, Sarone can't be trusted. But when he saves some members of the crew from a boar attack, then mentions he's found the natives they seek, the crew set aside their fears. A documentary and grant money await them.

Big mistake, of course. As in its predecessors there are two snakes: the reptile in search of prey; and the human in search of money.

In "Jaws," it was the island mayor who needed to keep the beach open for the tourist money. In "Aliens," it was Burke, the weasel who wanted to bring a live alien back for research. In "Anaconda," it's Sarone.

Voight, fresh off last summer's "Mission: Impossible," continues his bad guy ways. Overdoing it a bit, he describes how the anaconda kills and you'd think he was auditioning for Hispanic Tall Tale theater: "It holds you tighter than your true love and you get the privilege of hearing your bones break... (It's) the perfect killing machine." Voight gives us a whacko spin on Captain Queeg. The crew is an anthropological melting pot.

Director of the documentary is Latino Lopez; rapper Ice Cube is the cameraman; there's an English narrator and Mateo, the South American guide.

But director Luis Llosa doesn't give enough time to develop these characters into much more than snake bait, and stereotypes reign supreme.

When the body count rises you pretty much know who the victims will be and who will survive. Even so, Llosa ("The Specialist" and "Sniper") directs the action scenes with a crisp flair. There are some genuine scares — the snake snatching a crew member from the boat and underwater snake-eye views of fleeing swimmers are a few. These are obvious "Jaws" thefts. Or, if we're being kind, homages.

Still, there are some thrills and suspense. As the snake circles and tightens its hold, breaking ribs and bones, it keeps its victims alive — hovering (seemingly for minutes), hesitating before the final strike that is imminent. Try not to jump, at least a little.

There's some gruesomeness, too. After crushing, then swallowing a crew member, the camera follows the snake back underwater to reveal the outlined form inside the snake... seemingly still breathing. Notes on the film say actual anacondas were used for some footage. The largest measured about 18 feet. Other than the obvious 40-footer it's hard to tell the difference.

Filmed in the Brazilian Amazon, the movie plays on our fears of the unknown, shady strangers and (most of all) really big snakes.

Even though "Anaconda" blatantly borrows from a variety of sources, some of its frights are all its own. The visual effects are strong. And its story is believable enough to make us prey to the possibility.

But please, no "Anaconda II: The Revenge."

Women's Council of Realtors

All local Realtors will celebrate May Day with a tour of the newly renovated historic Provençal-Weir House, 376 Kercheval in Grosse Pointe Farms.

Sponsored by the Grosse Pointe chapter of the Women's Council of Realtors and the Grosse Pointe Historical Society, the house will be open from 10:30 a.m. to 12:30 p.m. Thursday, May 1. Tom Singelyn of the historical society will give guests a taste of history, refreshments and a guided tour of the oldest home in the Pointes.

"The Grosse Pointe Historical Society would like to help Realtors understand the rich history of our community," said Singelyn, "so they can educate customers moving to the Pointes from other areas. We are pleased to have an opportunity to acquaint Realtors with the Provençal-Weir House, its history and the tremendous amount of work that the historical society has done to restore it."

Jean Dodenhoff, curator of the historical society, will present a slide show of significant historic homes and an overview of the history of the community at a luncheon at the Grosse Pointe War Memorial after the tour.

All Realtors and their guests are welcome. The price for WCR members is $13; for guests, $18.

From left, are Dodenhoff and Singelyn of the historical society and Myrna Smith and Ann Porter of the Women's Council of Realtors.

Is that golden glow really healthy?

By Dr. Lisa Manz-Dulac
Special Writer

I hear it all the time — "I feel so much better when I have a suntan."

But is that golden glow really healthy? Unfortunately, the answer is "No." In fact, there is no such thing as a safe tan.

Projections from the American Academy of Dermatology and the American Cancer Society show that about one million new cases of skin cancer will be diagnosed in the United States, and this figure is rising annually.

Approximately 800,000 of these new cases will represent basal cell carcinoma (a type of skin cancer that occurs most commonly on the face or neck) and squamous cell carcinoma (a cancer that arises from flattened, scale-like cells in the skin, usually in areas that have been exposed to strong sunlight for many years). Both kinds of cancer have a better than 95 percent cure rate if detected and treated early.

Melanoma is the most common lethal cancer among persons between the ages of 25-29. When melanoma is detected and treated early on, it is highly curable.

This year, more than 40,000 persons will be diagnosed with potentially deadly malignant melanoma. Of these, approximately 7,000 will die.

While these statistics may be enough to make you want to retreat from the sun, that is obviously not realistic. After all, this is Michigan — the "water, winter wonderland," and most Michiganders will want to take advantage of the brief summer months to enjoy outdoor activities like sailing, fishing and water skiing.

Here are some skin-saving tips to help you enjoy the summer months safely:

- Avoid exposure during peak sunlight hours, 10 a.m. to 3 p.m., when the sun's rays are most intense.
- Fifteen to 30 minutes before going outdoors, apply a sunscreen with a sun protection factor (SPF) of at least 15. Reapply the sunscreen every two hours, especially when playing, gardening, swimming or doing other outdoor activities.
- Wear protective clothing, including a hat with a wide brim and a long-sleeved shirt and pants during prolonged periods of sun exposure.
- Avoid tanning parlors. The ultraviolet light emitted by tanning booths causes sunburn, premature aging and it increases your risk of developing skin cancer.

Following these tips can help you enjoy outdoor activities while protecting your skin from damaging ultraviolet rays.

In addition to following these safety guidelines, it's also important for everyone to learn how to perform self-examinations for skin cancer. Like breast self-examination, which so many women are familiar with, skin self-examination is likewise critical to early detection and treatment of melanoma and other skin cancers.

Detection is made all the more easy because the signs are right there and visible on the surface of the skin. In spite of the ease with which a skin self-examination can be performed, however, a recent survey by the American Academy of Dermatology shows that most Americans don't know the warning signs of melanoma and only about one third examine their skin for signs of skin cancer.

To do a thorough exam, use a full-length and hand-held mirror so you can see the back of your head, your back and buttocks. Don't forget places like your scalp, the soles of your feet and between your toes, under your arms and the palms of your hands. During these periodic skin self-examinations, you should be looking for any changes in the size, color, shape or texture of any moles. You should also make note of the development of any new moles, or any other unusual changes in the skin. Any of these signs should be reported to a dermatologist or personal physician immediately.

And don't forget, it's never too early to teach your children about how to enjoy the sun safely. In addition to the tips listed above, a good general guideline for children is to begin using sunscreens on children at 6 months of age, and then allow sun exposure only with moderation.

Remember that sun damage occurs with each unprotected sun exposure and accumulates over the course of a lifetime. So teach your little ones how to protect themselves from the sun while they are young so they can enjoy a lifetime of healthy skin.

On Wednesday, May 14, from 9-11 a.m., Dr. Lisa Manz-Dulac and Dr. Nora Maya Kachaturoff will conduct free skin cancer screenings at the Grosse Pointe Neighborhood Club, 17150 Waterloo.

No appointments are necessary. For more information, call the Neighborhood Club at (313) 885-4600.

Dr. Lisa Manz-Dulac and Dr. Nora Maya Kachaturoff are dermatologists on staff at St. John Hospital and Medical Center. Both are residents of Grosse Pointe.

Select a fitness program that fits your lifestyle

By Dr. Vicki L. Seltzer

President, American College of Obstetricians and Gynecologists

In spite of our knowledge of the benefits of regular physical activity, more than 60 percent of women in the United States do not engage in moderate amounts of physical activity. More than 25 percent are not active at all.

Women of all ages would benefit from moderate amounts of exercise — preferably daily.

A "moderate" activity level is defined as any physical activity that uses 150 calories of energy per day, or 1,000 calories per week. Most people recognize that vigorous exercise for 15 to 20 minutes — such as running a 10-minute mile, shoveling snow, jumping rope or stair walking — qualifies as moderate physical activity.

But did you also know that less intense, even easy-going activity, done for longer periods of time, also qualifies as moderate activity?

You also engage in moderate amounts of exercise if you push a stroller 1 1/2 miles in 30 minutes; walk 1 3/4 miles in 35 minutes; garden for 30 to 45 minutes; or wash windows — even wash and wax your car — for 45 to 60 minutes. If you want to "get physical," here is a suggested plan of action:

Step 1: Find some physical activities that you enjoy. Activity programs are as varied as the people who participate in them. Communities across the nation have worksite activity programs, bicycle and walking paths away from vehicle traffic, and walking programs at schools and shopping malls before or after regular hours.

Some community-based programs include child-care arrangements to assist parents. Or, if you prefer to exercise alone, many exercise books and audio or videotapes are available.

Step 2: Consult your doctor about your plans. Once you have found an activity that you think you might enjoy, check it out with your doctor. Medical consultation is especially important for older women who have not previously exercised, pregnant women, or those with conditions such as heart disease, diabetes or obesity.

Step 3: Start out slowly and build up gradually. Allow your body time to adjust to your new activity demands. Previously inactive women should start with short sessions (five to 10 minutes). A brief warm-up of light activity and gentle stretching prepares the body and helps reduce muscle soreness.

So don't worry if you're not a marathon runner, or swimming is not your thing. There is some activity that will fit your lifestyle, bringing both enjoyment and a healthier you.

Bon Secours offers cardiac, pulmonary rehabilitation

As part of their ongoing pulmonary and cardiac rehabilitation programs, Bon Secours Hospital offers the following classes for strengthening muscles and for endurance training:

Asthma Education Program - This course is offered to asthmatic children and their parents. It's designed to provide information about asthma and how it can be managed effectively. The three-session course will be held Thursdays on May 1, 8 and 15; June 5, 12 and 19; July 3, 10 and 17; and August 7, 14 and 21. Call (313) 343-1594 for more information. There is a $10 cost per family. Adults with asthma, curious about management of their disease, can call the same number for information on adult course offerings.

Pulmonary Rehabilitation Program - A physician referral is required for this educational exercise program for people with chronic obstructive pulmonary disease such as emphysema, bronchitis or asthma. The group meets on the third Monday of the month from 3 to 4:30 p.m. in the Bon Secours Hospital Connelly Auditorium. You may join at any time and there is no charge. For more information, call (313) 343-1594.

Bon Secours promotes heart health

Bon Secours Hospital is offering a new HeartHealth Essentials program to educate individuals on the important aspects of maintaining good heart health and reducing the risk of coronary heart disease.

An estimated one in four adults has some form of cardiovascular disease. HeartHealth Essentials provides comprehensive information on heart healthy lifestyle factors, including cardiovascular disease risk factors, low-fat eating, exercise and physical activity and stress management.

The class will be from 6 to 8 p.m. May 1, 7, 15 and 22; or Aug. 7, 13, 21 and 28 in the Bon Secours Hospital Private Dining Room (lower level). The cost is $40 a person (which includes the HeartHealth Essentials Book).

For more information or to preregister, call Bon Secours Community Health Education at (810) 779-7900 between 9 a.m. and 4 p.m. weekdays.

St. John Hospital physicians host free skin cancer screening

It's the time of year when thoughts turn to white, sandy beaches and lazy days in the sun. Before you head south or to the tanning booth, however, consider these projections from the American Academy of Dermatology and the American Cancer Society:

• About one million new cases of skin cancer will be diagnosed in the United States this year.

• Most of these cancers will be basal cell carcinoma and squamous cell carcinoma; a smaller number will be malignant melanoma.

• Melanoma is the most common lethal cancer among people aged 25-29. When melanoma is detected and treated early on, however, it can be 100 percent curable.

• This year more than 40,000 people will be diagnosed with the potentially deadly malignant melanoma, and of these, 7,000 will die.

As part of Skin Cancer Detection Day, Dr. Lisa Manz-Dulac and Dr. Nora Maya Kachaturoff, dermatologists on staff at St. John Hospital and Medical Center, will conduct free skin cancer screenings on Wednesday, May 14, from 9-11 a.m., at the Neighborhood Club. Appointments are not necessary.

"Screening for skin cancer is not the only benefit of this event," Kachaturoff said. "The screening also provides an opportunity for Dr. Manz-Dulac and myself to educate the public about dermatology, the importance of early detection of skin cancers, and the importance of sun protection." Call (313) 885-4600.

Bon Secours Hospital offers new breast biopsy technique

Surgeons at Bon Secours Hospital have begun using a new, minimally invasive breast biopsy technique that is simpler, less painful and allows patients to resume normal activities almost immediately.

Known as the ABBI procedure, the new approach takes less time than open surgery or core needle biopsy and can be performed under local anesthesia. Because the ABBI system allows surgeons to remove tissue for biopsy in a single pass, patients who have undergone the procedure say there is very little pain or recuperation time associated with the technique. "The ABBI system used highly accurate X-ray technology that enables us to quickly locate suspicious areas and remove a biopsy specimen," said Dr. Mazen Khalidi, Bon Secours chief of surgery. "Because we just numb the area with local anesthesia, patients can leave the hospital an hour or two after the procedure."

Each year as many as one million women in the United States undergo breast biopsies to check for cancer. Although approximately 80 percent of these biopsies are benign, the American Cancer Society estimates that one out of every nine women will develop breast cancer in her lifetime, making the need for accurate, early detection more important than ever.

Current breast biopsy technology

An open breast biopsy currently is a two-step process, which may be performed under intravenous sedation, that begins in the radiology suite with a radiologist manually placing a needle in the breast. The needle leaves a wire marker in the breast, the tip of which identifies the location of the lesion. The wire is left in place outside of the breast, and the patient is moved to a surgical suite where the surgeon, using the wire marker as a road map, finds the specimen and removes it through an open incision.

Because existing technology sometimes makes it difficult to insert the wire marker with a high degree of accuracy, doctors often remove more tissue than necessary, potentially leaving the patient with greater scarring and disfigurement.

The ABBI procedure

The ABBI procedure is a one-step process, performed under local anesthesia, that combines the placement of the wire marker and removal of the tissue sample into one, minimally invasive procedure. The patient is positioned on an ABBI system table with her breast placed through an opening in the table. The breast is compressed between the two paddles. Stereotactic technology (X-rays), incorporated into the ABBI system, allows the surgeon to locate the lesion to within 1 mm of accuracy and insert a marking needle to tag the precise location. Using the ABBI biopsy device, the surgeon gently inserts a cannula (a narrow, tube-like device) into the breast to remove the specimen. The small opening is closed with a few stitches and a bandage.

Patient benefits

"The accuracy of the ABBI system's stereotactic technology enables the surgeon to remove the specimen while minimizing the amount of healthy tissue taken," said Dr. Arun Patel, medical director of radiology. "For most ABBI patients, this means less pain, disfigurement and scarring."

And, unlike core needle biopsies, where multiple samples are removed, the ABBI instrument is inserted only once to remove the specimen. By replacing the two-step process with a single, minimally invasive procedure, the ABBI system is easier on the patient and operating room staff and can reduce costs.

Conference will focus on young parents' needs

Being a good parent isn't always easy, but sometimes the difficulties are magnified for young parents.

Macomb Community College will host the 13th annual "Together We Can" conference on Wednesday, May 14, focusing on the needs and concerns of young parents in Macomb County and how they can find solutions to their difficulties.

"Our goal is to provide young parents with a day out that will give them exposure to services, resources, support groups and educational opportunities," said Kathy McNerney, coordinator of Macomb's Single Parent Displaced Homemaker Program. The conference is open to all parents under 25.

It will be from 8:30 a.m. to 2:30 p.m. at Macomb's South Campus, John Lewis Student Center (K Building), 14500 E. 12 Mile in Warren. The cost is $8 for young parents; $15 for professional staff. A continental breakfast and luncheon are included. Advanced registration by April 26 is required to assure a place at the luncheon.

The conference is a collaborative effort between Macomb Community College Single Parent/Displaced Homemaker Program, C.A.R.E., Macomb County Health Department, Macomb Hospital Center, DMH Corporation, Macomb Intermediate School District (MISD), Mount Clemens General Hospital, Macomb County Child Abuse and Neglect Council, Girl Scouts of America-Ottawa Council, Macomb Inter-Agency Council, Fitzgerald High School, Macomb Legal Aid Bureau, St. Joseph's Mercy of Macomb, Macomb County Mental Health, Macomb Family Services, and East Detroit Alternative Education.

For registration or information, call McNerney at (810) 445-7003 or Jan Wilson at (810) 228-3463.

Heart screenings offered

Bon Secours Hospital offers monthly heart-health screenings that include measuring total cholesterol, HDL (good cholesterol), triglycerides and glucose levels using the lipid profile check and the Heart Test™ risk questionnaire.

You will receive your results within minutes, and a health promotion specialist will consult with you to discuss how you can reduce your risk factors. Recommendations will be provided for follow-up programs.

The next two evaluations will be from 8 to 9:30 a.m. Thursdays, May 1 and June 5 in the Bon Brae Center, 22300 Bon Brae in St. Clair Shores. The cost is $25 a person. For more information or to schedule an appointment, call Bon Secours Community Health Education at (810) 779-7900 between 9 a.m. and 4 p.m. weekdays. Please note that a 12-hour fast is necessary for test results to be accurate.

Sister Janet Schaeffler receives national distinction

Sister Janet Schaeffler, director of religious education for St. Paul Parish, was nominated as one of the 25 most influential individuals in Catholic education over the past 25 years. She recently received notification of her Certificate of Recognition from Peter J. Li, CEO of the sponsoring publication, Today's Catholic Teacher.

Schaeffler was rewarded for her contributions to the "growth and success... in Catholic education" for over a quarter of a century.

A member of the Adrian Dominican Sisters, Schaeffler has also been an adjunct professor at Sacred Heart Major Seminary in Detroit, and at St. Mary's College in Orchard Lake. She has conducted hundreds of workshops on religious education throughout the country, including those sponsored by the Archdiocese of Detroit, the Silver Burdett Publishing Co., and Our Sunday Visitor, for which she also serves as a consultant for the religious education division. She is a member of the National Catholic Catechists Society Board of Master Catechists.

Schaeffler is the author of many articles, curriculum materials and professional assessment tools in the field of religious education. Her insights have been published in "Religion Teachers' Journal," "Catechist," "Today's Parish,"

"Pastoral Life" and "PACE." She also created an in-service video tape for catechists. Many of her program designs have gone beyond the areas of religious education to encompass those in liturgy, parish ministry and family life.

Other recognition includes awards for outstanding service in catechetical ministry and outstanding contribution to religious education/catechesis for the Archdiocese of Detroit and nomination as director of religious education of the month for "Today's Parish."

Schaeffler received a bachelor of arts degree from Siena Heights College and a master of arts degree in religious studies from the University of Detroit. She has taught in Catholic schools in Las Vegas, Shaker Heights, Romeo and Detroit. She was director of the religious education and adult faith formation at St. Philomena Parish in Detroit and St. Edmund Parish in Warren, and since 1991, she has been director of religious education and adult faith formation at St. Paul Catholic parish in Grosse Pointe Farms.

Knopf. 494 pages. $23.95

Michael Connelly and Richard North Patterson are old acquaintances of mine — not personally, but through their earlier books which I reviewed. Connelly and Patterson are practitioners of suspense novels, which they write with force and conviction. Their gripping page-turners have boldly delineated characters that literally leap out amid the plot action in such a manner that readers will never forget them.

Thanks to his past experiences as a police reporter for the Los Angeles Times, Connelly is abundantly equipped to expose skullduggery within the police department. His weary hero is Harry Bosch, a LAPD homicide detective, who returns to duty after an involuntary leave of absence. His first case after returning concerns the murder of a Hollywood producer, whose body is discovered in the trunk of his Rolls-Royce. He has been shot in the head twice. It looks like "trunk music" — a Mafia hit.

The deeper Bosch digs, the more convinced he becomes that perhaps there is something amiss in the police department; a good number of police officers are just not performing their duties as they should, which, of course, leads Bosch to some skeptical questioning of certain police procedures. His changing attitude toward a few of his peers and superiors on the force makes Bosch feel like the odd man.

A bit of wistful romance enters the picture when an old flame of Bosch's, Eleanor Wish, unexpectedly reenters his life. Having suffered a difficult period, she turns to Bosch with gratitude, and because of her former career she is able to assist him in his thankless pursuit of the rogue cops. In spite of numerous pitfalls and false trails, he manages eventually to outwit the bad guys with and without badges.

Connelly produces a fast-paced thriller. His people and dialogue are totally credible and ring true and to the point. In spite of its garish dust jacket, "Trunk Music" offers first-grade entertainment throughout, and it is another important step upward for its author.

Patterson is another suspense writer whose latest novel, "Silent Witness," is guaranteed to mesmerize readers past their bedtime. His cast of utterly believable characters carries the story line forward and backward so smoothly that readers will not have difficulty switching from past to present, present to past, as the plot unrolls. Surprises lurk therein to catch unsuspecting readers completely off guard.

Revolving around a high school friendship in small-town Ohio, the book describes the ties between Tony Lord and his closest friend, Sam Robb. On the football field, they share athletic awards and acclaim. However, shortly before graduation, Tony is accused of murdering his teenage sweetheart, Alison Taylor. When a police investigation fails to turn up any proof that because of his own similar dilemma years ago. Although he was never formally acquitted by the townspeople for the brutal killing of Alison Taylor, Tony soon harbors mixed feelings about Sam's case; there are just too many inconsistencies which blur the issue.

Patterson does a masterful job of exploring the similarities between the two murders. Examining the ways youthful friendships can turn into personal mythologies, and thus skew adult judgment, the author leads the reader to face facts with a cold, critical eye. His rich narrative has power and credibility; everything falls into place with crystal clarity at the heart-stopping conclusion.

One of the finest aspects of "Silent Witness" is how it graphically exposes the emotions of its characters, people who are connected by a lifetime of love as well as resentment. These explosive emotions emerge during the trial. Tony Lord finally finds his way to redemption while Sam faces his own twisted destiny.

A courtroom drama and a police procedural are two different sides of the crime coin. Both novels, however, brilliantly accomplish their purposes. The plots throb with action and the characters are drawn with panache, all the earmarks of exemplary fictional talent. There are great differences between a stark courtroom drama in Ohio and a hectic police chase in Los Angeles, but readers will be able to enjoy and appreciate the novelistic magic of Michael Connelly and Richard North Patterson.

he committed such a horror, Tony, gratefully, flees to Harvard where he discovers the double blessing of anonymity as well as an excellent law education.

Twenty-eight years pass. Tony has never returned to his Ohio roots. He is now a noted California criminal lawyer. But at the urgent request from his high school buddy, Sam Robb, and his wife Sue, Tony reluctantly returns to Lake City, Ohio, where Sam is faced with murder charges. Now the vice principal of their old school and a community pillar, Sam is accused of murdering his 16-year-old mistress, one of his own students. Quite naturally, the whole town is torn apart over the scandal.

Taking on the defense of his old friend and team-mate, largely because he feels a sense of obligation, Tony sympathizes with Sam at first

DIA's Art to the Schools program needs volunteers to visit classrooms

The enthusiastic response of educators and students to the Detroit Institute of Arts' Art to the Schools (ATS) community outreach program has been overwhelming.

ATS is a free community service program offered to schools in the tri-county area.

Using slides of the DIA collection, volunteers bring the museum to the classroom.

To meet the demands for speakers, the DIA needs volunteers who are available during the day on weekdays. Volunteers receive training by the DIA education staff, and are rewarded with an enhanced knowledge of art, as well as knowing they have kindled an interest in art in many young minds.

The DIA promotes the "Visual Thinking" approach to art education which encourages students to look at art and it discourages lecturing.

Applications for volunteers for the Art to the Schools program are available by calling (313) 833-9178.

Detroit Symphony Orchestra will tour Europe in May 1998

Along with a first-rate concert program last weekend, the DSO announced details of its European tour in May 1998. The atmosphere at Orchestra Hall, in fact, was electric with excitement over the imposing list of 17 major musical centers where the orchestra will perform, coinciding with the appearance of the world-famous Detroit area sisters who offered the Bach Concerto for Two Violins on the program last Thursday, Friday and Saturday evening.

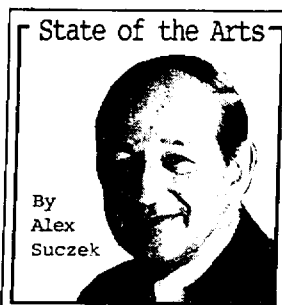

To think of the high level of music-making we heard last weekend being displayed in major cities of Europe as representative of Detroit's and the United States' finest cultural achievements should be a great source of pride to Detroiters. It will certainly provide a gratifying contrast to the mindless sitcoms and shoot-em-ups exported wholesale by our entertainment industry. Many foreign viewers see those as representing what America is really like.

Violinists Ani and Ida Kavafian are well known to Detroiters having grown up here and returned regularly to share their renowned talents with their home town. Their professional and fraternal rapport is a joy to watch and hear and was a hallmark of the vibrant, sophisticated performance they gave of the Bach.

While no one begrudged that it is only a 17-minute work, the audience was obviously thrilled by the generous encore performance of Sarasate's Navarra for two "fiddles" and orchestra. The irresistible Spanish dance rhythms were pure fun and brilliantly played.

Rhythm was a keynote on the entire program, in fact. Opening with Paul Creston's "Invocation and Dance," Maestro Jarvi treated us to a rarely heard and remarkable example of Creston's mastery of fascinating, intricate rhythmic structure. The orchestra executed it with exceptional precision and verve, responding with the remarkable attention to Jarvi's baton for which they have earned major respect. The performance was of an interest level and caliber to deserve inclusion both in the DSO's catalog of recorded American music and in the tour program.

The last symphony of another master of rhythms closed the concert — Prokofiev's 7th — which is sometimes thought of as a retrospective on his life. Jarvi and the orchestra gave it a deeply felt and moving performance rich in reminders of the composer's many stylistic and harmonic signatures.

As though that were not enough variety already, with something to satisfy every possible taste, the eagerly anticipated encore (the audience would not stop applauding) was another great Sousa march in a performance as invigorating as only Jarvi and the DSO seem capable of giving. It rounded off an immensely satisfying program.

This weekend's concerts begin tonight with repeats Friday morning and Saturday evening. Resident conductor Leslie Dunner offers Rimsky Korsakov's Russian Easter Overture, Bloch's Hebrew Rhapsody for Cello (Schelomo), Tchaikovsky's Variations on a Rocco Theme and Ravel's La Valse. The renowned cellist Lynn Harrell is soloist for the Bloch and Tchaikovsky. For times and tickets, call (313) 833-3700.

For anyone interested in catching any of the DSO's concerts in Europe next year, plan now. Here's the schedule.

England: Manchester 4/29, Birmingham 5/1, Brighton 5/2, London 5/3;
Spain: Madrid 5/4, Barcelona 5/5;
Germany: Hamburg 5/7, a concert in Luxembourg 5/9, returning to Frankfurt 5/10, Berlin 5/11, Cologne 5/13, Stuttgart 5/14;
Austria: Vienna 5/16;
Czech Republic: Prague 5/17;
Hungary: Budapest 5/18;
Estonia: 5/18 and 19;
Finland: Tampere 5/21.
Soloists touring with the orchestra will be violinist Pamela Frank and pianist Leif Ove Andsnes. Both are well known in Europe and sure to be major attractions.

"Planting Color Cures for the August Blahs" will be the topic of the Green Thumb lecture sponsored by the Grosse Pointe Garden Center at 10 a.m. Saturday, May 3, in the art wing of the Grosse Pointe War Memorial.

The speaker will be Janet Macunovich, columnist, garden designer and author. The program is free for Garden Center members; $5 for non-members.

Dental X-rays may detect osteoporosis

A study published in the December 1996 Journal of the American Dental Association concludes that dental X-rays may serve as a valuable tool to help dentists screen their patients for signs of osteoporosis.

Researchers at the University of Washington School of Dentistry analyzed dental X-rays of 111 women and found that they are as effective as traditional diagnostic methods in measuring bone density.

More than one million bone fractures occur in the United States each year as a result of osteoporosis, a generalized decrease in bone mass that develops in later life.

Early diagnosis could identify people at risk and enable them to take preventive measures.

Pee Wee AA Bulldogs are the best in the nation

There seems to be no end to what the Grosse Pointe Bulldogs Pee Wee AA hockey team can accomplish. The squad won its third straight state championship a very similar. Each had great team speed, team defense, goaltending and tremendous discipline. "We knew it would be a very difficult game because several and the Bulldogs were staring at a 3-0 deficit during the second intermission. "Most teams would have folded and rolled over," said coach Hackett, "but not this it means to quit or give up. When they're in a hole, they dig deeper and do what champions do — they find a way to win."

Less than two minutes into the third period, Phil Mannino scored on a shot from the blue line with Derek Reece assisting. The Bulldogs kept pressing and with 4:37 to go, Hackett scored on a one-timer after a perfect setup from Neal Gram. A minute and five seconds later, Andy Golitko scored on a hard slap shot from the point after passes from Chad McWilliams and Adam Post. Grosse Pointe finished the third period with an 8-1 edge in shots. Neither team scored in the first 10-minute overtime period, but in the second extra period the Bulldogs' hard work and perseverance paid off. Gram worked the puck to McMahon at the side of the net. He sent it to Hackett, who deflected it past the Winnetka goalie. Hackett was selected by the USA Hockey committee as the

The Grosse Pointe Hockey Association Pee Wee AA Bulldogs celebrate their national championship in Huntsville, Ala. The Bulldogs have won three straight state championships and this year qualified for the first time for the national championship where they won all six of their games. In the background is the scoreboard showing the 4-3 victory over Winnetka, Ill., which came on a goal by Mike Hackett with 8:47 remaining in the second overtime.

few weeks ago and qualified for the National Championships in Huntsville, Ala. And the Bulldogs' success didn't stop there. Mike Hackett scored on a deflection of Willie McMahon's pass at 8:47 of the second overtime period to give Grosse Pointe a 4-3 victory over the Winnetka (Ill.) Warriors. "This was a war between two outstanding teams," said Bulldogs head coach John Hackett. "The two teams were Winnetka players were the most talented we'd faced all year." The Bulldogs got a couple of bad breaks in the first period. Twenty-four seconds into the contest, Winnetka took advantage of a good bounce of the puck and opened the scoring. The Warriors made it 2-0 on a deflection during a power play with only six seconds left in the opening period. Winnetka also scored the only goal of the second period group of champions. The boys knew they had 15 minutes left to work as hard as they could. The third period is always the Dogs' strongest. They seem to get stronger and stronger and this game was no exception. "The boys showed what has earned them three state championships. They played the third period to perfection, displaying the fight, determination and attitude that has made them winners year after year. The boys don't know what tournament's most valuable player.

The Bulldogs opened the national tournament with a 7-4 victory over the Manchester (N.H.) Flames. Chris Cooley scored three goals, Brandon Hanney had two and McMahon and Gram added one apiece.

Kris Macek and Hanney each collected three assists, while Hackett, Post, Joey Santamaria, Reece, Brandon Garlow and Cooley each picked up one.

John Matteson and Jimmy Lalonde shared the goaltending.

In Game 2, the Bulldogs faced the Wasilla (Alaska) Eagles, who had won their first two games.

Grosse Pointe got some outstanding saves by Matteson in the first period and led 1-0. For the second game in a row, the Bulldogs seized control in the second period and rolled to a 6-0 victory.

The defense of Golitko, Mannino, Post, Santamaria and Garlow was outstanding in front of Matteson, who had a fine game in posting the shutout.

Hackett and Trevor Mallon each scored twice. Post and McMahon had a goal apiece. Reece had two assists and McWilliams, Mallon and Gram picked up one assist apiece.

The Tri-City (Md.) Eagles tried to intimidate the Bulldogs in Game 3 with rough, aggressive play, but it didn't work as Grosse Pointe skated to a 4-1 victory.

"The Bulldogs are never intimidated and frequently have the upper hand on the scoreboard and physical play when teams try this," coach Hackett said. "This is a great example of how versatile this team is. It can play any style of hockey — speed, physical, etc. — very effectively when it has to."

McMahon scored twice and Macek and Gram each tallied once. Hackett had two assists and Mallon, Hanney and McMahon collected one apiece.

Mannino, McWilliams and Reece played solid defensive games. Cooley, Post, Hackett, Santamaria, Garlow and Golitko answered the Eagles' physical play with several hard hits of their own.

Matteson and Lalonde each played well in goal.

In the final round-robin game, the Bulldogs skated to a 5-0 victory over the South Coast (Calif.) Sabres.

"The boys played a flawless game," coach Hackett said. "The defense of Garlow, Post, Santamaria, Mannino and Golitko held South Coast to only eight shots in 45 minutes. Our offense peppered the South Coast goalies with 39 shots."

Cooley, Mallon, McWilliams, Gram and McMahon each scored for Grosse Pointe. Reece had two assists and Gram, Hackett, Hanney, Macek, McWilliams and Mallon each collected one.

Lalonde and Matteson combined for another shutout.

The Final Four was set with Grosse Pointe and New Hampshire the top two seeds in the National Division, while Winnetka and the Indianapolis Racers were 1-2 in the American Division.

The Indy Racers were a quick team that lived up to their nickname but the Racers were no match for the Bulldogs, who rolled to a 6-1 semifinal victory.

Mallon and Macek scored less than a minute apart in the first period to give Grosse Pointe a 2-0 advantage. McMahon tallied the only goal of the second period. The Bulldogs wrapped up the victory with third-period goals from Gram, Garlow and Macek. Hanney had three assists, Cooley picked up two, while Hackett, McMahon and Macek added one apiece.

Mannino, Golitko and Santamaria killed penalties very effectively, while Post and Garlow did a good job running the power play.

Matteson and Lalonde again combined for the victory in goal.

Winnetka beat New Hampshire 4-2 in the other semifinal.

Coach Hackett praised the contributions of every player on the squad.

"The lines of Gram, Hackett and McMahon; Macek, Hanney and Cooley; and Mallon, Reece and McWilliams were all tremendous," he said. "Passing, forechecking and backchecking worked to perfection the entire tournament."

"The defense of Post, Garlow, Mannino, Golitko and Santamaria was excellent throughout the tournament. They killed penalties and quarterbacked the power play as smoothly as can be. Matteson and Lalonde showed their stuff, too. You can't win without real stoppers in goal and they proved they were more than capable, holding their opponents to nine goals in six games. They had many key saves during the tournament."

John Hackett's assistants are Rick Gram, Jim McMahon and Bob Cooley. Art Post is the manager.

"The Bulldogs want to thank Don Giffin of Giffin International," John Hackett said. "Not only has he been the sponsor for six years, but he was a tremendous help with the trip to Alabama. He helped defray the expenses greatly. The boys and coaches are very fortunate to have such a caring and generous sponsor."

"Thanks also go to Ted Stahl of Stahl's Inc., Joe Santamaria, Lon Morawski of MP Tool and Bruce Campbell of Bruce Campbell Dodge for their donations to help with expenses."

Mixed golf league

The seventh annual Friday night mixed golf league at the Chandler Park golf course will begin May 2 at 5 p.m.

There will be 17 weeks of golf, ending Aug. 29. There is no golf July 4. The fee is $13 per week.

For more information, call Patricia Simpson at (810) 544-3366 or (810) 753-1498.

The Grosse Pointe Academy seventh and eighth grade volleyball team continued its winning ways with a 25-0 record this season. The Bulldogs have won their last 178 matches and haven't lost since 1990. The squad is coached by Mike Fultz. There's hope for the future, too, because the Academy's junior varsity squad was 8-2 and the reserve team had a 15-0 record.

Academy streak continues

The winning never seems to stop for the Grosse Pointe Academy volleyball team.

It ran its winning streak to 178 games this season as the Bulldogs posted a 25-0 record. They've gone undefeated in volleyball since 1990 under the direction of coach Mike Fultz.

"The reason the team was so successful this year was because it was able to put all of its differences aside and was able to support one another on the court," Fultz said.

The Academy squad posted a 13-0 record in 1990. It followed that performance with season marks of 17-0, 25-0, 23-0, 26-0, 23-0, 26-0 before this year's 25-0 record.

This season's varsity consisted of nine eighth graders and four seventh graders.

Eighth-grade members of the team were Sarah Washabaugh, Brody Dawson, Kirsten Winfield, Brett Crawford, Elizabeth Mason, Casey McFeely, Sylvia Ridgway, Anna Hume and Kelly Gotfredson. The seventh graders were Courtney Schellenberger, Julie Keersmaekers, Sarah Roddis and Maria Lewis.

The Academy's success in volleyball doesn't figure to end anytime soon.

The school's reserve team was 15-0 and the junior varsity posted an 8-2 record.

Aerobics classes start April 28

The Fitness Firm will begin a series of low-impact aerobics classes on Monday, April 28.

The cost for the seven-week class is $42, plus an additional $6 registration fee for new members.

The sessions will be held Mondays and Wednesdays from 9:30 to 10:30 a.m. at First English Lutheran Church, Wedgewood at Eight Mile, Mondays and Wednesdays from 6:45 to 7:45 p.m. at the JFK Library in Harper Woods; and Tuesdays and Thursdays from 6:45 to 7:45 p.m. at the JFK Library.

Seniors are solid for Norsemen

By Chuck Klonke
Sports Editor

Seniors can always be a surprise in spring sports.

Sometimes they exceed a coach's expectations. Other times they're disappointments.

This year Grosse Pointe North coach Pat Wilson has three seniors on his boys track team who have brought a smile to his face.

Craig Hadgis and J.R. Hiller are having the best seasons of their careers, while Frank Sumner is out for track for the first time and doing very well.

"Craig is running four events in every dual meet," Wilson said. "He's really filled in well for us. He's stepped up this year and is racing like a senior is supposed to."

"J.R. has been our best sprinter so far this spring. He got seconds in the Fraser and L'Anse Creuse North meets with some nice times. Until this year, he had been basically a high jumper."

"Frank has been a nice addition to the team. He came out because he wants to go out for football in college next fall and he thought the conditioning would help him. He's really helped us and he's not afraid to work hard. That sets a good example for the other kids."

North has won all three of its Macomb Area Conference Blue Division meets.

The Norsemen started the year with a 92-44 win over Dakota.

North had three double winners. Matt Atkinson won both hurdles races, Steve Drader was first in the 400- and 200-meter dashes and Jeff Blumenthal won the shot put and discus.

Other winners for the Norsemen were Sachin Shah, 1,600 run; Vince Meli, 800; Tom Smyly, 3,200; and Hiller, high jump.

North also won three relays. The team of Chris Hirt, Smyly, Shah and Matt Mikula was first in the 3,200 relay. Drader, Paul Mooney, Hadgis and Sumner teamed up to win the 800 relay and Ben Staperfenne, Nick Goerke, Hiller and Hadgis took first in the 400 relay.

Personal bests by Atkinson in winning both hurdles events highlighted North's 79-57 victory over Fraser.

"We've been fortunate to have a top hurdler every year that I've been here," Wilson said.

"Matt came on strong at the end of last season and he's started in right where he left off."

North's other firsts came from Smyly, 1,600; Meli, 800; Mikula, 3,200; Hadgis, 200; and Hiller, high jump.

North swept the four relays. "That might be the first time we've done that since I've been here," Wilson said.

Chris Hirt, Shah, Smyly and Meli won the 3,200 relay; Drader, Hadgis, Mooney and Dave Massaron teamed up to win the 800 relay; Hadgis, Hiller, Goerke and Chris Fici made up the winning 400 relay team; and Sumner, Hadgis, Atkinson and Meli were members of the winning 1,600 relay team.

Smyly led the way in the Norsemen's 76-61 victory over L'Anse Creuse North with firsts in the 1,600 and 800.

Drader won the 400, Hirt won the 3,200 and Hiller was first in the high jump and Atkinson led the way in the 300 intermediate hurdles.

The 3,200 relay team of Mike Novitke, Van Martin, Hirt and Smyly also took a first place.

Last weekend, the Norsemen hosted the Grosse Pointe North Invitational and they earned medals in six events.

The best finish was a first-place tie with Sterling Heights in the high-jump relay. Hiller and Drader jumped for North.

The pole vault relay team of Goerke and David Hirt was second. North had two other runners-up. The shuttle hurdle relay team of Charlie Dallas, Glenn Hawk, Steve Zygmuntowicz and Atkinson was second. And the 4x400 relay team of Drader, Sumner, Hadgis and Meli also took second.

Third-place finishes came from the 4x200 relay team of Drader, Sumner, Hadgis and Meli and from the 4x100 relay team of Hadgis, Hiller, Goerke and Fici.

North competed in a freshman-sophomore meet at Sterling Heights to open the season and several Norsemen did well.

Smyly was second in the 1,600 with a time of 4:43.

"That's a great early-season time for a 10th grader," Wilson said.

Fici was fourth in the 100 with a personal-best time, while Mikula was fourth in the 3,200. David Hirt was third in the pole vault, while Chris Soves was fifth in the same event.

The 1,600 relay team of Martin, Brad Hobart, Josh Dry and Smyly finished fifth.

North girls capture first four track meets

Grosse Pointe North's girls track team is off to a good start with four straight victories, including two Macomb Area Conference Blue Division wins.

The Norsemen began the league season with a 78-50 victory over Fraser.

Katie Horn led the way for North with firsts in the two sprints. She won the 100-meter dash in 13.59 and took the 200 in 27.2.

Anastasia Lianakis won the 400 in 65.0, Katie Powers was first in the 800 in 2:37.2 and Annie Laethem won the shot put with a throw of 27-feet-4.

North followed that effort with an 82-46 romp over L'Anse Creuse North.

Firsts came from Julie Mielke in the 1,600 run, 6:16; Gina Mielke, 300 hurdles, 58.2; Jennifer Spindler, high jump, 4-6; Jennifer Pagel, discus, 83-6; Powers, 800, 2:47; Betsie Huebner, 3,200, 14:00; Lianakis, 400, 66.2; and Horn, 100.

The Norsemen also won the 3,200 and 800 relays.

Big innings carry Blue Devils

By Chuck Klonke
Sports Editor

Grosse Pointe South's baseball team is trying to prove the old saying that "hitting is contagious."

The Blue Devils had big innings in each of their last three games, scoring nine, 12 and 15 runs in a doubleheader sweep of Anchor Bay and a Macomb Area Conference White Division win over Roseville.

"It does seem like it becomes contagious when a couple of guys start hitting," said South coach Dan Griesbaum.

The Blue Devils had a 15-run first inning in a 17-0 rout of Roseville Monday and 11 of the runs scored before the Panthers retired a batter.

Brian Hodgman hit a grand slam his second time up in the first to highlight the big frame, while Ted Swarthout hit a two-run double and Steve Gayman knocked in a pair of runs with a single and winning pitcher Mike Hamers helped himself with an RBI single.

Paul Yeskey hit a double, Dan Griesbaum had two singles and Ryan Ermanni added a double and single. All three drove in runs. Hodgman also had two hits.

Hamers pitched four innings and allowed one hit and no walks, while striking out three. Mike D'Hondt pitched the last inning.

South's bats were booming in the 14-3 and 15-1 sweep of Anchor Bay.

Swarthout's grand slam was the big hit in a nine-run third inning in the opener. Hodgman went 3-for-3 with four RBI and a pair of doubles. Yeskey had two hits, Hamers hit an RBI double, Griesbaum hit a two-run single in the sixth inning and Andy Beaupre hit a solo homer in the second.

Hodgman pitched the first four innings and gave up five hits and four walks, while striking out six. Joe Choma pitched the fifth.

South threw out two Anchor Bay runners at the plate in the first inning.

Matt Vandeweghe hit a three-run homer in South's 12-run second inning in the second game. All of the runs scored after two were out. Nick Arrigo hit a two-run double in the second.

Chris McGratty went 4-for-4 with two doubles and four RBI. Hamers had two hits, including a triple, and drove in two runs.

Pat Howe went the first four innings and allowed one hit and one run to pick up the win. Choma again pitched the fifth.

The Blue Devils opened the MAC White season with an 8-3 victory over Port Huron.

Yeskey hit a two-run homer in the fourth inning and also had an RBI single. Winning pitcher Gayman had two hits, including a double, and drove in a run. McGratty had an RBI single in the third and Harms opened the scoring with a sacrifice fly in the first.

Gayman pitched the first four innings, allowed one hit and no earned runs. He struck out seven.

Swarthout pitched two innings and Hamers pitched the final frame.

Sterling Heights sophomore Brandon Marshall stopped the Blue Devils on three hits in a 2-1 victory for the Stallions.

"We hit the ball but right at people," coach Griesbaum said. "We only struck out twice but (Marshall) didn't walk anybody."

South's only hits were singles by Hamers, McGratty and Griesbaum. Griesbaum scored the Blue Devils' only run when he singled in the sixth and scored when the Sterling Heights left fielder dropped Terry Brennan's flyball.

Three South errors produced an unearned run for Sterling Heights in the fourth and the Stallion scored the winner in the fifth on a single and a double.

Chris Farkas pitched a strong game for the Blue Devils. He allowed only three hits and one earned run. Farkas struck out seven and walked three.

"He pitched a super game, too," coach Griesbaum said.

South is 2-1 in the MAC White and 5-5 overall.

These four Grosse Pointe South runners were on two relay teams that set school records at last week's Port Huron Northern Husky Relays. From left are Sara Crowe, Heidi Crowley, Jonnie Vasse and Kate Crowley. The four set records in the 8,000- and 4,800-meter relays.

Distance depth helps South

Grosse Pointe South had a top 10 girls cross country team last fall and the Blue Devils' strength in the distances is showing up again now that track season has started.

South set two school records at last weekend's Port Huron Northern Husky Relays.

In one of the longest high school track events, the 8,000-meter relay team of Kate Crowley, Sara Crowe, Heidi Crowley and Jonnie Vasse covered the distance in 28:49. That eclipsed the old mark, set four years ago, by a minute.

"Those were four of our top five cross country runners," said coach Steve Zaranek.

Three hours later, the same four girls teamed up to set a record in the 4,800 relay. They covered the distance in 16:27, 20 seconds under the old mark set in 1983.

South opened its dual meet season with a 79-49 victory over East Detroit.

The win was highlighted by an outstanding performance from sophomore Erin Smialek, who soared 16-feet-6 in the long jump to become only the third South girl in history to achieve that mark.

Smialek then won the 100 and 200 dashes and teamed with Colleen Ryan, Isabel Roa and Anne Laperriere to win the 400 relay in 53.5.

The Blue Devils' other firsts came from Janel Zuidema in the 100 hurdles, Vasse in the 1,600 run, Crowe in the 800 run, Meghan McGahey in the high jump and Kate Crowley in the 3,200 run.

South's 800 relay team of Liz Jarvis, Kristin Lorenger, Laperriere and Roa took first, as did the 3,200 relay team of Kate Aiken, Lauren Mardirosian, Kate Crowley and Vasse.

Other point scorers for the Blue Devils against East Detroit were Monika Zielinska, Sarah Krueger, Elizabeth Kwiatkowski, Bridget Horne and Erica Hill.

South, with a squad of 108 girls, will again rely on depth in hopes of repeating a 1996 season that saw the Blue Devils go undefeated in dual meets, win a state Class A regional and set several school records.

"Consistency over the years has been South's key to success," Zaranek said. "We expect to be highly competitive again in 1997."

The Blue Devils have won 10 league championships in the last 12 seasons and three regional titles in the last five years.

"Warren-Mott is the early-season favorite to win the MAC White this year," Zaranek said. "Stiff competition will also come from Utica and Port Huron."

Lansing trip an eventful one

By Chuck Klonke
Sports Editor

It was a pretty eventful weekend for the University Liggett School lacrosse team.

Not only did the Knights pick up a pair of victories on a trip to Lansing, they also made the evening news on television Saturday night.

The latter happened when the team's bus had engine problems and caught fire on I-696. A camera crew showed up while firefighters were extinguishing the blaze and a couple of the ULS players were interviewed.

The Knights fared better on the lacrosse field. They beat Lansing Waverly 9-8 on Paul Huebner's goal at 2:10 of overtime, then rolled to an easy 10-5 victory over East Lansing.

"We lost in overtime 8-7 to Waverly last year," said ULS coach John Fowler. "We played pretty well. We had a two-man down penalty in the fourth quarter, took a timeout and adjusted pretty well. And (goalie) Jason Capen came up with some big stuff saves."

Early in the overtime, Waverly made a run at goal but it was broken up by a fine defensive play by Justin Mackoud, who got the ball to Capen for a clearing pass. Espy passed to John Riddle, who passed to Huebner. It was Riddle's second assist of the game.

"Paul's played enough goal in hockey to know what to do in overtime — put the shot on the cage," Fowler said.

It was the third goal of the game for Huebner, while Sergei Lie also had a hat trick. Espy tallied twice and Blair Ridder had the other ULS goal.

Capen finished with 22 saves.

Huebner and Espy each scored twice against East Lansing, while Bray Miller, Ridder, Ian Fines, Charlie Eldridge, Lie and Riddle picked up a goal apiece.

The highlight of the day for the Knights was a meeting with the Air Force Academy lacrosse team, which played Canisius at Michigan State's Old College Field.

"I know the Air Force coach and after the game their players gave our guys some one-on-one instruction," Fowler said. Earlier, ULS dropped a 13-9 decision to L'Anse Creuse North.

Espy had three goals and three assists for the Knights, while Ridder had three goals and an assist and Huebner collected two goals and two assists. Fines had the other ULS goal.

"They could move the ball well," Fowler said. "They have a lot of good scorers — guys who play lacrosse the year 'round. Most of our guys play more than one sport, so they're coming from hockey or basketball or indoor soccer."

"But we moved the ball pretty well ourselves and we have guys who can score in a variety of ways."

ULS had a strong game from midfielder Berc Backhurst.

"The more he plays, the better he gets," Fowler said. "He's been especially effective in our man-down situations."

Allemon fans 14 in South win

Kim Allemon had her strike-out pitch working Monday and it paid off in the first league victory for Grosse Pointe South's softball team.

The sophomore pitcher struck out 14 and scattered seven hits in the Blue Devils' 8-5 victory over Roseville.

Knights bow in mound duel

It was definitely a day for the pitchers when University Liggett School met Lutheran North last week in a Metro Conference baseball game.

The Mustangs posted a 2-0 victory, despite a two-hit, 17-strikeout performance by ULS' Jeff Mehr. North pitcher Eric Drdle fanned 16.

"These are two of the better pitchers in the conference and the score certainly shows that," said Knights coach Walter Butzu.

"I'm proud of our young guys who played error-free ball in a pressure-packed game. Needless to say, Jeff Mehr is our cohesive force and gives us a chance in any game he pitches."

Butzu was able to find some positives in ULS' 11-0 loss to Lutheran Northwest in its next league game.

"We improved our contact — no walks and no strikeouts — but hit the ball right at their defense. And to their credit, made all of the plays," Butzu said.

"All week we worked on shortening swings in practice and making contact. We did very well in that department but there is no quick cure for failing to throw strikes."

Two ULS pitchers combined for 10 walks and two hit batsmen.

"We enter a critical week of league games," Butzu said, "and we have yet to put all the components of a game together. I hope this week will give the kids some positive returns on their substantial practice investment."

Dinah Zebot led the hitting attack with a two-run single in the third inning and a sacrifice that drove in a run in the seventh.

Sarah Kraft and Deanna Raab each had two singles for South, which is 1-2 in the Macomb Area Conference White Division and 3-2 overall.

Allemon allowed only four hits and no earned runs, but South dropped a 5-1 decision to Sterling Heights.

Kristen Campbell drove in the Blue Devils' only run with a sacrifice. Ann Richard had two hits for South.

South began conference play with a 4-3 loss to Port Huron. Allemon scattered six hits and struck out seven. She also had a single and double and drove in a run.

Alicia VanTol and Kraft each had two singles and Kelly Smythe hit an RBI triple.

Allemon pitched a two-hit shutout and struck out eight in a 3-0 win over Anchor Bay. She also had two hits.

Tricia Moore had a hit and drove in two runs.

Zebot's sixth-inning homer gave the Blue Devils the lead and VanTol's two-run single provided some insurance as South opened the season with a 7-4 victory over Fraser.

VanTol finished with two hits and four RBI. Kraft had three hits, while Allemon and Zebot added two apiece. Richard had a hit and drove in two runs.

Allemon scattered four hits and struck out 10 to pick up the win.

Norsemen win two via shutout route

Shutout victories over Macomb Area Conference crossover foes Dakota and Lakeview have been the highlights of Grosse Pointe North's early-season play in girls soccer.

The Norsemen beat Dakota 2-0 and downed Lakeview 5-0. They dropped a 5-0 decision to highly-ranked Eisenhower, but regrouped to beat MAC White rival Sterling Heights and played a scoreless tie with East Detroit.

North has been led by returning all-MAC players Liz Tymrak and Claire Kotwick. Both have been playing solidly in the midfield, working well together and opening up many scoring opportunities for their teammates.

Harrell, Sarah Rahaim and sweeper Julia Rouls have been successful in keeping the play away from the North goal.

Sophomores Annie Peacock and Amy Nosek have provided strong offensive play, while senior forwards Tina DiLaura and Susie Gebeck have played hard, solid minutes.

Goalkeepers Molly Peters and Erin Carrier have played well. Peters shut out East Detroit and Lakeview, while Carrier blanked Dakota.

Shores ice show

United States World Figure Skating team member Dan Hollander will be featured in the St. Clair Shores Figure Skating Club's 1997 Reflections on Ice production "Cruising the Ports."

Show times are Friday at 7:30 p.m., Saturday at 1 and 7:30 p.m. and Sunday at 2 p.m. at the Shores Civic Arena.

Tickets are $6 in advance and $7 at the door.

Michigan's childhood lead poisoning awareness week

The week of April 21 - 25 is Michigan's Childhood Lead Poisoning Awareness Week. According to the U.S. Centers for Disease Control and Prevention: "Lead poisoning is one of the most common and preventable pediatric health problems today."

Lead-based paint is the most common source of lead for children. Most homes built before 1978 contain lead-based paint. Children may be exposed by ingesting paint chips or paint contaminated dust and soil.

Remodeling homes with lead-based paint can be especially hazardous, to both children and adults, and should not be done without taking the proper precautions. Other sources of lead include drinking water, air, food and folk medicines.

Recent research has shown that blood levels of lead once thought to be safe can have adverse health effects.

Children may be exposed at home, day care, homes of playmates or wherever they spend time. They are at a higher risk for lead poisoning because their bodies are still growing, they absorb lead more easily than adults, and they are more likely to insert lead-containing objects into their mouths.

Lead affects virtually every organ system in the body. The symptoms of lead poisoning include diarrhea, fatigue, stomach ache, appetite loss, behavioral changes and sleep disturbance. However, children may suffer decreased IQ, reduced growth and hearing loss at lead levels that are asymptomatic.

Almost every child in the United States is at risk for lead poisoning. A blood test is needed to identify children with lead poisoning. Contact your pediatrician and have your child's blood tested annually until age 6.

The Macomb County Health Department, with support of Macomb County Board of Commissioners, can offer assistance in identifying sources of lead exposure.

Timing your next move

When you move during the month can affect how smoothly your move goes, says a moving company executive.

"We advise people to avoid moving at the beginning and end of the month and on weekends if they possibly can," says Richard Meyer, president of DMS Moving Systems.

"Moving companies are extremely busy during those times because leases run out at the end of the month and mortgages start at the beginning of the month. Also, many people try to move on weekends when they aren't working."

A particularly difficult time to move is the Memorial Day weekend, which for most movers, is the busiest weekend of the year. "You have all of the other reasons that make weekends busy," Meyer says. "Plus schools are out in most parts of the country."

The advantages of moving in the middle of the month and middle of the week are availability and scheduling. Moving companies have more equipment and manpower available during those

HOW ARMS WORK

Many home buyers avoid Adjustable Rate Mortgages (ARMs) because they prefer certainty about what their housing expenses will be over the years. Today ARMs are predictable enough to warrant serious consideration.

Lenders often lower initial interest rates and then ask the borrower to share some of the risks of future rate fluctuations in the marketplace in order to make ARMs attractive. The initial rate applies for a specific time, usually one or three years, after which time the bank can adjust the rate up or down. The new rate will be keyed to some percentage point above an average rate for a pool of one to three year Treasury notes. Most ARMs now have limits on how much they can go up or down at any one adjustment (usually one or two percentage points per period), as well as over the life of the loan (usually five percentage points). Your Realtor is a great source of information about the various financing options available and can aid you in comparison shopping for the best loan.

ON THE COVER...

It is irresistible. It is charm, elegance, simplicity and it awaits you! Graced by the water's edge, built at a time when gentlemen, ladies, roadsters, and the Black Bottom were in. Light dancing in gothic windows and corridors to echo the distance as one traverse on slate, wood, and stone. The magnificent features of this 10,000 sq. ft. English style country home abound throughout:

- Designed by Hugh Keyes for the Harris family in 1923.
- Circular drive and guest private parking.
- Private hall entrance to spacious foyer.
- Living room or great room cathedral ceiling with exquisite detailing.
- Today's kitchen in hardwood has it all!
- Master suite built in 1928, faces Lake St. Clair and is complete with wardrobe rooms, fireplace and adjacent rooms
- Guest quarters
- Maid's quarters
- Maintained lawns - croquet anyone?

Wildflowers provide us with a natural spring garden

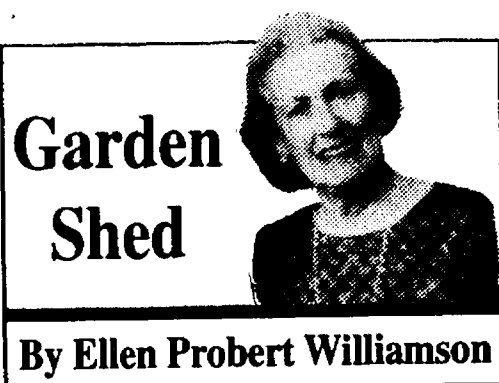

Historical records tell us that when Cadillac first came to Detroit in 1701, he brought with him, from Quebec, a gardener whose duty it was to lay out orchards and gardens.

But in early spring in woods and fields and along the shore of the lake, thousands of wild flowers provided a natural garden which must have been very beautiful. Violets, columbine, dogwood, shadbush and many other plants were prevalent.

One of the pleasures of living in the Great Lakes region of the country is that every spring we have a wealth of wildflowers in our woods and fields. It is worth an expedition to the country to find them.

The first flower to appear is usually the hepatica. You can see them scattered in the woods with their small pink, blue or white flowers and handsome, mottled leaves.

Second is the bloodroot, a white-petalled member of the poppy family. Sometimes these appear in large colonies, but more often are scattered through the fallen leaves which carpet the forest floor. This plant gets its name from the bright red juice of the roots which the Indians used to paint their faces.

Next come the blooms on the cut-leaved toothwort and spring beauties. You occasionally see carpets of these in the lawns of very old houses.

A little later come the yellow wood poppies, bluebells, foam-flower, white rue anemone and red and yellow columbine.

Mayapples and trilliums begin then to poke their heads through the leaf mold, red wakerobin and other varieties of trillium, especially the prairie trillium and the impressive white trillium grandiflora which stands 6 to 8 inches tall.

As the spring advances, wild geraniums and wild iris will appear. Later the yellow lady's slipper will bloom, as well as beardtongue and skullcap.

The wildflowers that appear later in the season are usually much larger and not as delicate as the earlier blooms and some appear in what might seem surprising places. Sometimes wild primroses appear in gravel where an old house has once been, or the butterfly weed will adorn a roadside.

As the summer advances, wildflowers continue to ornament our landscape. Some of them are considered by dedicated gardeners as weeds, but the fact remains that they do have attractive flowers. These can include goldenrod, asters and Queen Anne's lace.

Another late wildflower that is seen mainly in the southern states is wild blue indigo. It is fairly easy to grow in most locations, and has showy blue flowers in early summer and interesting blue-black seed pods which are attractive used in dried flower arrangements.

The Indians of this area gathered fern shoots, called fiddleheads by the first settlers because they resembled the head of a violin. They cooked and ate the shoots using them as a spring tonic and because they thought that they would then smell like ferns and would be able to surprise and capture small game more readily.

Among the woodland Indians of the eastern heartland and around the Great Lakes, wild rice was a staple crop. It was gathered by traversing the rice fields in a canoe, then bending the rice stalks over the side of the canoe and hitting them sharply to make the rice grains fall into the boat.

Rice is still harvested this way. Wild rice is, to this day, an Indian-owned industry. If you buy a package of wild rice at the supermarket, you will see this clearly stated on the label.

Indians of this area were planting gardens as far back as prehistoric times. Henry Schoolcraft, an early Michigan historian, wrote, "The garden beds and not the Indian mounds are the antiquarian monuments of the state." They planted corn, harvested wild rice and used many of the wild flowers in the woods in foods and medicines.

Researching plants, which originated in this hemisphere, can be a fascinating project. One of the most important things to remember about wildflowers is that they absolutely must not be picked or

Home Tips

EASY UPDATES — I have a habit of clipping special articles of events, deaths, births, marriages, etc., as well as jokes and whatever else catches my fancy. I seemed to be losing track of these items.

I came up with the idea of addressing letters and sending them out to loved ones who live far away. This saves all that writing and keeps these folks up to date. Armella W., Winona, Minn.

FAMILY HISTORIAN — While walking through antiques stores, I'm always struck by the old family photos that no one wanted because they weren't marked as to who they were or what relation they were to their family. This is so sad because this family history is lost forever.

Now is the time to visit with grandparents and other relatives and offer to help them identify their pictures and tell about each person.

If you would like copies, you don't need to pay high prices; just copy them yourself. All you need is a camera and good lighting.

Lay the picture down flat in good lighting, focus as closely as you can, and take the picture.

I did this and now have photos dating back to my great-great-grandparents. Lisa H., Red Hook, N.Y.

ON THE ROAD — When traveling, I put out the "Do Not Disturb" sign when going out for breakfast.

That way, the maid won't be there when you need to go back to your room before departing for the day. Rita K., Lubbock, Texas collected from their natural sites. Many of them will not survive except in their native habitats. Others are on the endangered list.

FILM I.D. — Attach the end label of the 35 mm film box to the back of the camera. With so many types of film now available, it is difficult to always remember what type is in the camera.

It will make for better prints because you will be using the film to its full advantage. Wanda F., Cape Coral, Fla.

If you really want to have a wildflower garden, try to find a nursery or catalog which sells them. Talk to other wildflower gardeners who might be willing to share some plants.

And, of course, there is that famous American native plant called tobacco. While it is not currently in great favor, it has a long and exciting history. Its formal name, nicotiana glauca, is a compliment to Jean Nicot who introduced it to the French court in the early 17th century.

While tobacco is not a food plant, it has long been associated with food. It is often listed with culinary plants and herbs. In 1559, a book published in France about tobacco was titled "Joyful Newes out of the Newfound World."

Antiques

Q. I'm fed up with collecting baseball cards. What other old cards are there to collect?

A. There are many. Try collecting Arm & Hammer bird cards. The company offered the cards free in the 1920s and 1930s. The artwork was done by well-known bird artists.

The back of the cards tell about the birds and baking soda.

At least 10 series ranging from 15 to 30 cards were issued. The numbered cards measure about two inches by three inches.

If you find them at garage sales or flea markets, expect to pay from $1 to $3 each.

Q. The sides of my grandmother's chair are mahogany. They have carved dragons with tails going up each side to the back. It was originally upholstered in black leather. Somebody told me that it's a Karpen chair. What is a Karpen?

A. S. Karpen and Bros. was a furniture manufacturer in Chicago from 1880 through 1952. The company offered mission-style chairs and sofas from 1900 to World War I.

The Karpen line included overstuffed parlor suites, folding bed lounges, Morris chairs and art nouveau and colonial adaptations.

After 1914, the firm used prison labor to produce rattan and reed furniture. It introduced Windsor reproductions in the 1920s. The company also made church and lodge furniture and seats for streetcars and buses.

The company went bankrupt in 1952, and the Schnadig Corp. purchased it. Schnadig has continued to use the Karpen name on a line of upholstered furniture.

Deal With Your Drips: Installing A New Faucet

Plink. Plink. Plinkplunk. If you're a homeowner, don't throw cold water on the idea of replacing a faucet yourself. Rather than lying awake growling at the melodic ping of escaping water into a vacant basin, you can enjoy the reality of no water lost and plumbing perfection.

With a little elbow grease, patience and research the job is almost over! Soon you'll be celebrating your skill and enjoying a beautiful, fully (and correctly) operating faucet. These commonly asked questions about installing a new faucet are answered by experts at Moen, a company whose faucets meet or exceed all national codes and standards for plumbing fixtures.

Q. Do I have the ability to really replace a faucet myself?

A. If you have access to basic, common tools, and can devote a little time and patience to selecting, removing and installing a faucet, then taking a do-it-yourself approach makes sense. In more difficult installations you may choose to call a professional plumber to give you advice and make your plumbing perfect.

In all cases, you should exercise care and good judgment in the installation process to avoid damaging your property or causing personal injury. Moen, for example, provides easy to follow, step-by-step illustrated instructions with each faucet and also offers a Toll-Free Helpline, staffed by representatives who are fully trained and skilled in plumbing, for all the installation advice or assistance you may need.

Q. Will it take me long to install a faucet?

A. The most time-consuming and sometimes challenging step will be removing the old faucet, especially if your water supply connections are corroded (and therefore, stubborn to disconnect). Installing the new faucet, however, should be relatively simple.

Q. What tools should I have handy?

A. Before you leave the store with either your new faucet or the replacement part you need, make sure you have these items to help install the faucet or part easily:

- Phillips and regular screwdrivers in a variety of sizes
- Adjustable wrench (or basin wrench for hard to reach areas)
- Flashlight
- Pliers
- Plumber's putty (not required on all installations)

- Teflon tape
- Water supply lines

Remember, water supply lines come in different lengths with different fitting sizes. Make sure that you have measured the distance from the faucet to the shut-off valve with room to spare and that the fittings are correctly matched to the faucet and shut-off valve.

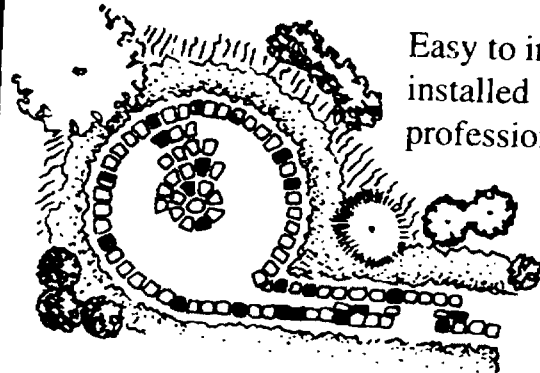

So, roll up those sleeves and get ready to clean up on savings, those plumbers know their stuff and they have been known to charge for their expertise. Having the confidence to tackle this very achievable goal may make you feel like you're ready to control the flow of Old Faithful. But for now the family bathroom will benefit from your skills. Just have the right tools, go slow, follow the directions and make a quality selection in faucets. No problem, you're plumbing!

Free information on faucets, sinks and other plumbing products is available from Moen by calling 1-800-553-MOEN.

Choosing The Right Windows For You

Buying new windows for your home isn't something you do often. Knowing what to look for in a quality window design can save you a bundle of money and a lifetime of regrets.

When having windows replaced, consider the following:

- What is the right window for me? Always consider the architecture of your home. A Victorian farmhouse might call for double-hung windows, while a contemporary home often features picture windows. Another consideration is the material that surrounds your window. The warmth and beauty of natural wood on the interior of your home adds to a room's drama. A leading manufacturer of quality wood windows, Pozzi Wood Windows® (pozze) offers a wide selection of wood windows or custom designs, to help you create your unique environment.

- What kind of wood is best?

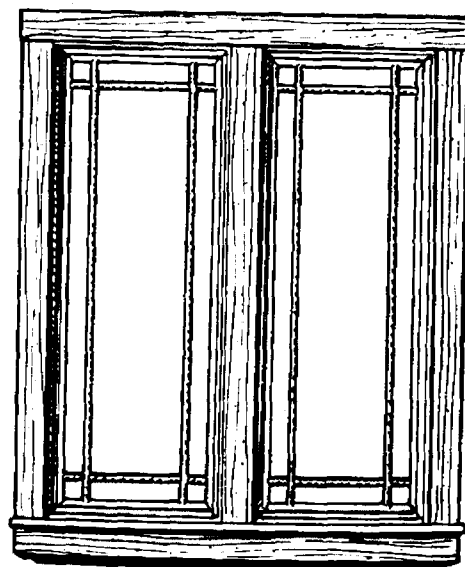

A critical factor in the longevity of a window is the quality of raw material used to craft it. The experts at Pozzi recommend fine-grained, precision milled Western pine for the interior of windows. Windows made of Western pine may cost a little more, but they will pay for themselves in the energy you save. For a window exterior you can go with natural wood, primed wood—which will easily accept paint and stains to match your home's exterior, or you can choose maintenance-free aluminum cladding. Pozzi claddings come in four standard colors: white, bronze, champagne, or hunter green, as well as 27 Designer Choice colors.

- What mood do you want to create in this room? Consider the power and feel of ambient light. For example, eastern and southern windows can bathe a room in warm, golden hues, while west-facing windows admit direct rays of afternoon. Also, the use of full or divided lites help to open a room or create intimacy.

- What about energy efficiency? Windows provide the first avenue of defense against leaking energy. If poorly designed and constructed, windows will drain your money as well as your resources. Windows using a Low Emmissivity (Low-E) coating are your best defense for the most energy efficiency. Pozzi Wood Windows creates windows with a Low-E coating on its glass that has a reflective factor for radiant heat. The result is a warmer interior in the winter and a cooler one in the summer.

Buying new windows can be a positive experience once you've outlined your specific needs. Take the time to consider what's right for your room or home. When the beauty of your new windows shine through, you'll be happy that you made the time.

For help from the experts at Pozzi Wood Windows, contact Pozzi at www.pozzi.com. There you can post questions or comments about Pozzi products and receive an answer within 24 hours. For your own free Pozzi Wood Windows brochure, call 1-800-257-9663.

Put "Good Bugs" To Work For You

When it's time to fight the insects in your garden, who are you gonna call?

How about some "good" bugs?

Bug-fighting bugs are a natural and time-tested way to control unwanted insects in your garden. Whether it's potato worms or aphids, fire ants or whiteflies, Mother Nature has given garden pests some natural enemies of their own.

Tiny wasps no bigger than the dot on this "i" have been recruited to protect cotton crops in Texas and apples in Washington state. Now, beneficial insects are becoming more readily available as handy weapons for the home gardener.

"People are interested in trying to do something to control their environment in a safer way," says Bruce Butterfield, research director for the National Gardening Association. "People may feel there's not a whole lot they can do about acid rain and pollution on a global level, but they can do something in their own back yard."

Gardening help from "good bugs" is just a phone call away.

A four-color brochure available from Farnam Equipment Co. [(800) 267-5211] features a variety of helpful insects, ranging from the ladybird beetle—the most common of all beneficial insects—to the praying mantis and other specialized predators. The brochure is also packed with helpful consumer tips for using "good bugs."

Here are some helpful hints for using insect-fighters in your garden:

- Be sure you know who you're fighting—accurately identify the critters you're trying to control. A magnifying glass and a book with photos of common garden pests can be helpful.

- When buying insects by mail order, carefully follow all of the care instructions when the package arrives.

- Welcome beneficial insects into your garden with adequate moisture and food. Sprinkle the garden area regularly or set out small containers of water to help provide moisture.

- Use "good" insects in conjunction with other earth-friendly gardening techniques, such as hand-picking, trapping and companion planting. Keep your garden free of trash, fallen fruit or other garden debris.

- Don't make the bugs' job any harder than necessary. If you're using more than one type of beneficial insect, make sure they're compatible—the praying mantis will eat ladybugs along with "bad" bugs. And don't spray or dust with pesticides shortly before or after a release.

Be patient. Give the "good bugs" time to do their jobs. It may be two-to-five weeks before you see results.

Dye-Staining Wood, Wicker Offers Colorful Options

If you're looking for a quick, easy way to dress up your home without spending a lot of money, try dye-staining unpainted (and unfinished) wood and wicker surfaces. Dye-staining can turn plain furniture—and even smaller objects—into works of art with just the right touch of color.

All you need to get started are a wicker or wood item, rubber gloves, a paintbrush or sponge, old newspapers or a large piece of plastic, a stainless steel or enamel saucepan and Rit Dye. Rit works as well on raw wood and wicker as it does on most washable fabrics and, unlike paint, lets the wood grain show through. The easy-to-use dyes are available in 22 liquid and 34 powder shades.

For best results, follow these simple dye-staining steps:

- Protect work area with old newspapers or a large piece of plastic to avoid a messy cleanup.

- Before applying dye, strip all paint, varnish or wax from furniture. Also, remove dirt or grease from furniture surface with a warm, sudsy cloth, then rinse well and allow to dry.

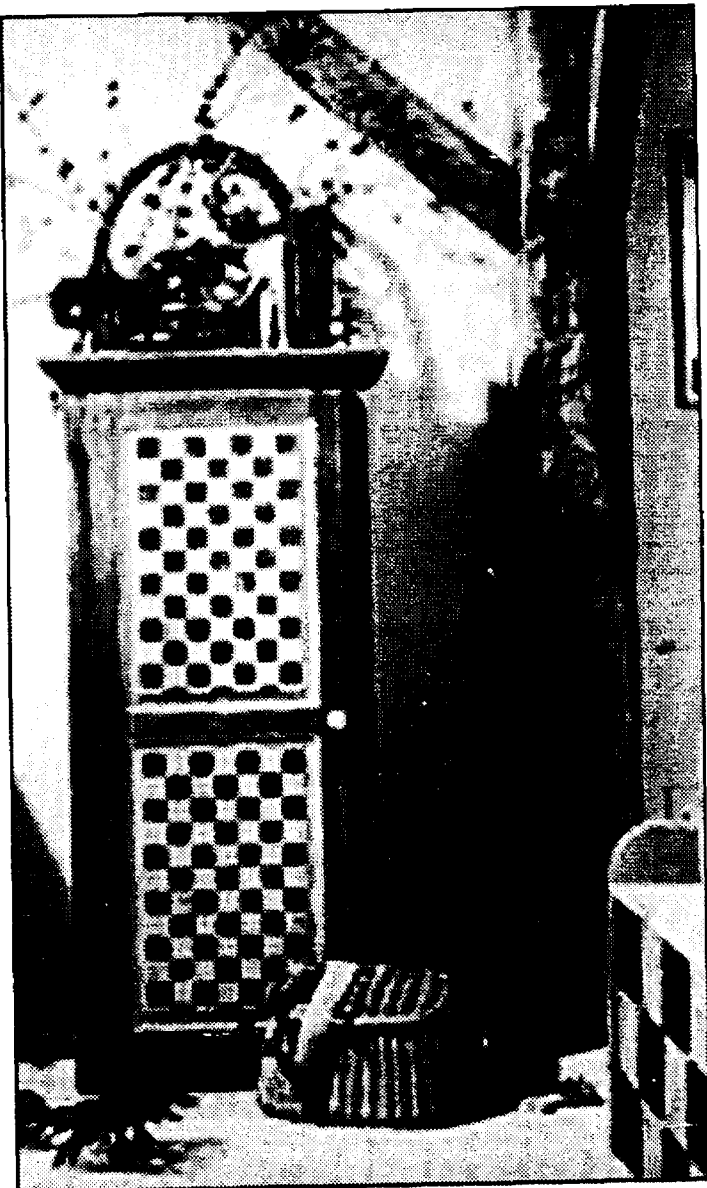

- Dissolve Rit powder in one pint of simmering (not boiling) water in a saucepan on your stove. With liquid dye, combine equal parts dye and water, then bring to a simmer.

- Test the color, using a paintbrush or sponge, on the underside of the item and allow to dry. For deeper color, add more dye. For lighter color, add more hot water. The stained surface will appear slightly darker when wet.

- Apply warm dye solution to surface with a paintbrush or sponge, using even strokes.

- For smaller projects, such as baskets and picture frames, mix the dye solution in a sink or tub and dip items directly into the dye bath. Keep the item in the dye solution, moving it gently back and forth, or rotating it continuously for even color. Then, rinse item in cool water and place it to dry on an old cloth or paper towels, away from direct sunlight.

- If the color appears too light when dry, apply another coat. To make the color lighter, go over the surface of the article with water and a clean cloth.

- To protect and seal in color, coat with polyurethane finish, clear varnish or shellac.

- Clean containers and sinks immediately after dyeing by scrubbing with hot water and powdered cleanser or bleach.

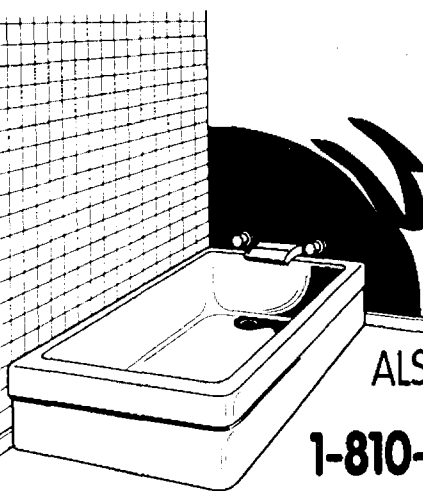

The makers of Rit Dyes are offering a free brochure with more colorful ideas on how to create unique home furnishings. To receive a copy, write: Rit Consumer Affairs, Add Color To Your Life with Rit, P.O. Box 21070, Indianapolis, IN 46221.

Protect Your Skin From Gardening Hazards

While gardening continues to grow as one of America's favorite leisure activities, it can also expose the gardener's skin to many hazards. Here are a few of the risks gardeners face and some easy ways they can protect themselves.

- Sunburn. Studies show exposure to the sun is the primary cause of skin cancer. This year, 500,000 people will develop skin cancer and one in seven will develop it some time in their lives.

Also, the sun "bakes" the proteins in your skin, which can cause wrinkles, dryness, broken blood vessels and age spots.

- Contact Dermatitis is a rash which develops after the skin is in contact with a foreign substance in the garden. It can be the result of an allergic reaction to poison ivy, sumac or oak. Plants found in and chemicals used in the garden might also cause this condition.

- Infections. Bacterial infections can develop in cuts, splinters, insect bites, sunburn blisters or abrasions. These infections are caused by a variety of microorganisms such as ringworm or sporotrichosis. Infections can often be treated by antibiotics, so see your doctor.

- Eczema. Exposure to wetness, cold and wind can cause skin to redden, peel, crack or chap.

- Lyme Disease. Although this is not solely a skin disorder, a rash is one of the earliest warning signs. The disease is caused by a microorganism introduced by the bite of an infected deer tick. A victim may experience flu-like symptoms followed by more severe, long-lasting symptoms if the disease is not treated. The symptoms can vary and a brochure with more details is available from the American Lyme Disease Foundation, Inc. Call 1-800-876-LYME.

To protect yourself from these and other dangers that lurk in home gardens, the American Skin Association suggests the following:

- Stay out of the hot sun between 10 a.m. and 3 p.m. or try to work in shady parts of the garden during peak hours.

- Wear clothing that protects your skin—hats, gloves, long-sleeved shirts, long skirts or pants.

- Use a sunscreen with a sun protection factor (SPF) of 15 or higher.

- Wear light cotton glove liners under rubber gloves to avoid skin contact with rubber.

- Learn to recognize and avoid sources of contact dermatitis including (but not limited to) certain plants and insecticides.

- Be aware of open sores. If you notice one, rinse it clean, treat with an antibiotic ointment and cover the area with a dressing or bandage.

- If you go to a doctor for treatment, remember to mention you are a gardener. This might help in making a proper diagnosis.

- Apply moisturizer every time you work in the garden.

For more information on gardening and skin care, write to the American Skin Association, 150 East 58th Street, New York, N.Y. 10155-0002.

Enesco Digs Into America's Gardens

Enesco Corporation, producers of the Precious Moments Collection, introduces "All Things Grow With Love," a line of garden accessories.

The garden line offers an array of all-weather, terra cotta resinware including plant sticks, pots, lawn ornaments, tool holders, hanging bird feeders and a water fountain. Artwork is based on the Precious Moments "gardening angel" and a variety of animals. Suggested retail prices range from $9 to $100.

"We feel it's only natural to mix collectibles and gardening items to create a line for both indoor and outdoor use," said Michael Mammina, Enesco senior creative director. "As a giftware company, we pride ourselves in creating art that will be treasured for years to come, and we hope these Precious Moments items will make the garden even more comfortable and inviting."

According to research conducted by the National Family Opinion Research in 1995, gardening is America's favorite outdoor leisure time activity practiced by 78 million Americans. Nearly 38 percent of men and 46 percent of women garden, and one out of four consider gardening a hobby. Baby boomers contribute to the rapid growth in the popularity of gardening and account for over 50 percent of the population.

On the flip side, collecting collectibles is quickly becoming America's favorite pastime with over 11 million people participating in a "feel-good" activity that generates $7 billion dollars annually.

The Enesco Precious Moments Collection, which features porcelain bisque figurines of teardrop-eyed children and inspirational messages, was introduced in 1979 and has become the nation's number one collectible.

For more information on "All Things Grow With Love", contact Enesco at 708/875-5300.

Edible Flowers

Variety of Plants Enhance Garden, Dinner Table

One of my favourite gardening mottoes is to get the most out of my garden with the least possible effort. To this end, I like to choose varieties of plants that enhance the garden as much as they do the dinner table and plate. Our ancestors knew all about the culinary and medicinal benefits of flowers, and before the discovery of spices, flowers were used in many early American and Asiatic recipes.

There are a few rules that should be adhered to before you rush out and grab a bunch of toxic bleeding heart to garnish loved one's salad:

1. Never use a flower unless you have checked and double checked that it is safe. Many flowers are quiet toxic.
2. Make sure that the flowers are organically grown. Don't use florist's flowers as they have often been grown using chemicals and treated to preserve their freshness. Roadside specimens are usually covered in dust and exhaust fumes and are not a good idea either. Some varieties may be available at your local supermarket but the best and safest are those you grow organically yourself.
3. With most flowers you should remove the stamens and pistils prior to consumption.
4. Like any other new food, try small amounts at first to avoid any possible allergic reaction.

Here is a list of some of the more common and flavourful flowers that will add more than an attractive garnish to your next meal.

B E E B A L M :

Chosen as the herb of the year for 1996 by the International Herb Association, bee balm is a highly attractive, somewhat invasive, perennial member of the mint family. It effuses a citrusy fragrance and taste and was used as a medicinal tea by the Amerindians. The bright flowers are delicious in salads or as a mild seasoning for desserts and jellies.

BORAGE: Called the herb of gladness and courage, this self-seeding annual is easy to grow and produces beautiful star-shaped blue flowers. Both the leaves and the flowers are delicious, with flavour suggestive of cucumber.

CALENDULA: The pot marigold is a hardy annual that makes almost as good a cut flower as it does a culinary ingredient. Its petals can be used as a garnish, a colouring or an enhancement to flavour stews and soups.

DAY LILY: This prolific perennial has large flowers that last but a day, hence its name. Open flowers can be stuffed and deep fried. The buds should be picked just as they begin to show colour and included in salads or stir fries. They can also be pickled or served with a sauce.

JOHNNY-JUMP-UP: My all-time favourite, this cheerful flower is one of the first to appear in the spring. Its violet and yellow face, with a flavour reminiscent of wintergreen, will brighten up any salad. They self-seed readily and are extremely hardy perennials.

LAVENDER: Known primarily for its aromatic qualities, this tender perennial (hardy to zone five) is also at home in the kitchen. The flowers can be used in desserts, salads or teas and used to flavour jellies and vinegars. Use it sparingly as it imparts a very strong flavour.

NASTURTIUM: If you like watercress, you will love nasturtiums. These annuals will grow in the worst of soils. All parts of this plant can be eaten and the flowers are particularly beautiful. Their peppery taste will liven up any salad or sandwich.

The above is but a smattering of some familiar edible flowers. Others include: chives, English daisy, forget-me-not, fuchsia, geranium, hollyhock, impatiens, lilac, mint flower, portulaca, red-bud, snapdragon and sunflower.

Once you are sure that a flower is edible, be daring and include it in a meal! Reprinted from Cognition, the quarterly magazine of Canadian Organic Growers. COG is a national

Very Smart Tips For Decorating a Dorm Room

With a little study, a college student's dorm room can go from a "D" (dull and dismal) to an "A" (actually attractive).

A creative touch can bring the bare necessities to life and give these temporary homes a dose of instant personality.

"College students strapped for cash can convert their dorm rooms into campus castles," said interior design consultant Jodi Anger.

A recent graduate herself, Anger, 24, was hired by Kmart to decorate a 12- by 18-foot dorm room at Eastern Michigan University (EMU) in Ypsilanti, Michigan. Combining her creativity with great products, the room offers book-smart organization and the comforts of home. EMU's Admissions office is now showcasing the room during campus tours as the epitome of dorm living. Anger suggests coeds accept the old dishes and worn-out couch from the basement that their parents offer.

"Stash your cash for those just-got-to-have-it items that will make your fellow dorm-rats envious," said Anger. Below are some decorating tips based on Anger's work in the dorm room at EMU:

- Purchase space-saving containers to conveniently store your most prized possessions. Examples are Rubbermaid Keepers snap cases and stacking drawers and Rubbermaid's handy 10-gallon storage totes.

- Invest in a Multi-Use Cart with storage bins. Anger selected one equipped with wheels so that it could easily be moved around the room. She placed the microwave on the top of the cart and stored food and supplies in the bin.

- Coordinate a student's work area with a desk organizer lamp that has compartments to hold desk supplies such as pencils, pens and post-it notes.

- Consider a futon, which serves as a couch by day and bed by night. Kmart stocks a steel-frame futon with a reversible mattress in solid black or plaid with a bonus storage drawer that is perfect for keeping extra linens or bulky sweaters.

- Use the colors of your comforters as a starting point to color coordinate your room. Decorative pillows, bed rests, area rugs, picture frames and framed art can all share the same color scheme.

- Easily transition a dorm room decoratively with an area rug and accent rugs. Anger chose a neutral natural Berber-style rug and a jewel tone Berber-style accent runner rug from Kmart.

- Change the curtains supplied by the housing office, but be careful not to break housing codes.

Anger used a black finish decorative rod and hook-shaped finials as fixtures for the new curtains. She hung panel curtains in hunter green from the fixture.

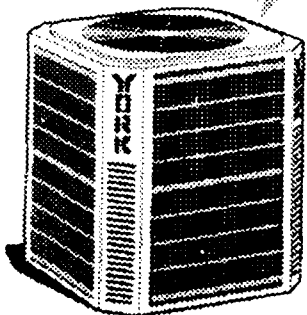

- A dome-touch lamp with a three-way lighting feature sheds just the right amount of light, especially when one student burns the midnight oil while roomies sleep.

- When it comes to appliances and electronics, pool your resources.

"College students most definitely appreciate a bargain," said Anger, "and they rightfully expect quality with every purchase."

Higher education costs are on the rise, limiting a college student's disposable income. They shop garage sales, accept hand-me-downs and visit their local discount store to decorate their living quarters.

Fasten Items Safely On Plaster With These Guides

Many times people purchase picture frames, artwork and other pieces to go on their walls without determining if the wall can support the weight of the object. Plaster and plaster board walls present a greater challenge and steps should be taken to ensure the safe hanging of your objects.

Lightweight Object/Pictures

Extremely lightweight objects can be supported with a piece of tape or glue on a picture hanger. The walls must be smooth, clean and dry with the paint adhering well. The glue is affected by humidity and aging and may let loose, so do not hang anything that will break with this kind of fastener. Objects with a wide variety of weight can be supported by a metal hook on a long tapered nail driven at an angle into the plaster. These come in packages of different sizes depending on the weight to be supported.

Medium Weight Objects

Some kind of insert, plastic, fiber, wood or lead can be used with a sheet metal screw. Drill a hole just large enough to be able to tap the insert into the hole. Tap the insert into the hole until it is flush with the surface. Turn a sheet metal screw into the insert. Usually these inserts come packaged with the right size screw for the particular insert. It will also tell you what size hole to drill.

Heavier Objects

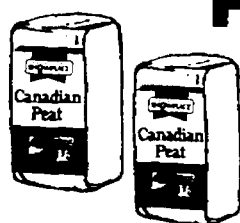

Heavier objects can be supported with a molly style hollow wall fastener, a spiral threaded fastener, to a toggle bolt. And you may need a flat hook attached for picture wire. Drill a hole through the wall to fit the size of a hollow wall (molly) fastener—be sure not to get the hole too big or you may have difficulty turning the bolt without having the connector turn. If the only drill is too small, use a small screwdriver, knife or round file to ream out the hole until the fastener will slide in snugly. Push it in and turn the bolt clockwise until it feels tight and flush to the wall. Now the fastener has expanded and should stay tight. Remove the bolt and attach the object screwing the bolt in tight. Do not over tighten or you may pull the fastener loose. Remember plaster is soft. A spiral threaded fastener cuts its own hole, and uses a separate screw into its center. Do not use these overhead. A toggle bolt can be used similar to a molly bolt but with less care taken when installing. But, unfortunately, it requires a bigger hole. Select a bolt long enough to include the object plus the wall plus the length of the toggles when folded up. Drill a hole through the wall. If you do not have a drill, drive a nail through the wall. Wiggle it until it comes loose and you can pull it out. Put a small screwdriver, knife, or piece of metal into the hole and carefully enlarge it until the toggle will slide through. Assemble the object on the bolt and push the toggle into the hole until you can feel it spring open. (Now you cannot remove the bolt without losing the toggle in the wall). Tighten by turning clockwise.

A toggle bolt should be used where the object will be drawn up tight to the wall because the hole must be large enough to receive the toggle. The object should be large enough to cover the large hole that is necessary, unless of course, you want an art deco "look." In that case, the large hole may come in handy and create the "look" you want.

Keeping Spots Out When Spot Is In

Muddy paws. Clumps of fur on carpet and upholstery. Pet emergencies. If you are a pet owner, these are just a few of the frustrations you probably face when keeping your home clean. A regular carpet maintenance program can take care of most pet-related problems. However, pet accidents, if not taken care of, can permanently discolor your carpet. Acting quickly when a pet accident occurs will help keep your carpet looking and smelling great. Follow these quick carpet clean-up steps from Stanley Steamer Carpet Cleaner to help with your next pet emergency.

1. Remove as much of the accident as possible.

2. Mix one teaspoon white vinegar and two teaspoons cold water.

3. Apply a teaspoon of the mixture to the spot and gently work it from the outer edges of the spot toward the middle with a clean, white unstarched cloth.

4. Blot up moisture with a dry cloth. Then let the entire area dry completely.

5. Next mix one cup cold water and one tablespoon baking soda or one tablespoon ammonia.

6. Apply this mixture in the same manner as was done before. This solution is especially good for acidic spots.

7. Odor can be a problem with any pet stain. Apply an enzyme deodorizer, found at most pet supply stores or by calling Stanley Steamer, to the surface of the carpet. Note: Urine can get into the padding, causing a more serious odor problem. If this happens, consult a carpet cleaning technician. They will usually recommend cleaning and deodorizing the carpeted area.

8. If a color change has occurred, be sure to call Stanley Steamer immediately for instructions.

According to Stanley Steamer carpet and upholstery cleaning experts, no matter what procedure you use, there is a possibility spots will reappear. The phenomenon is called wicking. To help prevent spots from reappearing, place a thick layer of white paper towels over the spot and place a heavy object on top of the towels. Leave the towels in place until the carpet has completely dried.

Cleaning Paneled Walls & Woodwork

When you go about your daily, weekly or monthly cleaning, a item that tends to be overlooked is the paneled walls and woodwork. Although the walls are right there in front of you every day, it's easy to overlook the fact they need to be cleaned occasionally.

But before you break out the scrub brushes and ammonia, consider the type of wall you're cleaning, because if you're working with wood, you could do more harm than good. A few tips:

Real Wood

Regular removal of dust with a soft cloth or a vacuum cleaner brush is all the cleaning needed for most real wood paneled walls and woodwork. Occasionally, if soil sticks to the surface, clean with a commercial cleaner made for wood paneling, or a cleaning wax made for wood, following directions exactly. Always test a cleaner you have not tried before on a small inconspicuous area to be sure it does not damage the finish of the wood, before starting to clean.

In cleaning wood, the type of wood is not important, except when color is a consideration. Wood paneling and woodwork, with heavy, longtime buildup of grease and dirt may need stronger treatment. Moisten a cloth with mineral spirits and test by rubbing on a hidden spot to be sure it doesn't damage the wood finish. If satisfactory, use to rub on a small area of the soiled woodwork, turning the cloth. (Caution: most solvents are very flammable and dangerous to breathe.

Tips On Setting Posts Properly

Setting a post is one of the most common do-it-yourself projects involving concrete. Posts are used for fences, lamps, decks, and many other outdoor projects. To get started, you will need the following products and tools: fast-setting concrete mix, all-purpose gravel, a long-handled shovel, and a level. Gloves and goggles should be worn for protection. Follow these easy steps for setting posts from the experts at The QUIKRETE Companies. (These instructions are based on using a fast-setting concrete mix. If standard concrete mix is used, refer to mixing and setting instructions on the packaging.)

Preparing The Base

Dig a hole about three times the diameter of the post and deep enough to encase one-third of the post's length. Save the dirt from the hole. Tamp the bottom and sides of the hole until firm. Place the post in the desired position within the hole and pour six inches of all-purpose gravel in the hole. Use the level to make sure the post is straight. When installing a basketball goal or other equipment requiring a solid footing, follow the equipment manufacturer's recommendations concerning hole depth and size.

Pouring The Concrete

Pour dry fast-setting concrete mix into the hole until it is approximately three or four inches from the top. Two 50-pound bags of fast-setting concrete mix will set a four-inch by four-inch (or four-inch diameter) post in a 10-inch diameter hole that is two feet deep. Next, pour water into the dry mix and allow it to soak in. Use at least one gallon of water per 50-pound bag of concrete. Fill the remainder of the hole with soil dug from the hole. The cement around the post will set in about 20 to 40 minutes, but allow four hours before placing a heavy load on the post.

Save Money, Have Fun Unfinished Furniture: A Versatile Option

Acquiring truly unique furnishings can be more fun and cost a lot less money than you might think. All it takes is a little creativity and some unfinished furniture.

Few people realize how easy—and satisfying—it is to make a piece of furniture unique by using techniques like staining, texturizing, ragging, sponging, combing and antiquing.

So why settle for a cabinet or chair that anyone could have when you could own one that's unique? These tips from the Unfinished Furniture Association can help you decide which way to decorate:

- What's Your Style? Do you prefer a definite style, such as Colonial, or an eclectic blend of things? Unfinished furniture is available in a variety of styles, from Shaker to Mission to Country French.

- What's Your Finish? You can paint furniture brightly for max contrast in a modern decor or subtly antique it to coordinate with family heirlooms.

Techniques such as ragging and sponging are simple ways to add interesting texture.

- Is Natural Your Favorite Look? Unfinished furniture is usually so beautifully made that it can seem a shame to cover it up. Since unfinished furniture was carefully crafted with quality woods such as aspen, oak, maple and pine with their own distinctive grain, a clear finish may be all it takes to bring out the natural beauty of the wood. With unfinished furniture you can decide what you want to do after you see the piece of furniture in the room where you want to keep it.

- Will You Finish It Yourself? Stores will advise you on how to pick the best products. They know which stains work best on certain woods and can walk you step by step through the finishing process so you can achieve the results you want with a minimum of effort. If you decide you love the furniture but don't want to do it yourself, some stores will finish pieces for you.

Raised Beds Give Gardeners A Lift

It may take a stage magician to levitate a person, but a weekend gardener can raise a bed—and the results can be almost as amazing.

Raised bed gardens have become a popular way to grow vegetables and flowers. There are several reasons for this popularity. Raised bed gardens are ideal where the natural soil has high clay content, since you can supply your own soil mix for the beds. Furthermore, because soil in raised beds warms earlier in the season than does ground soil, gardeners can get a head start on planting. You can also work in wetter weather without getting your feet muddy or compacting the soil. And you save your back because you can tend your plants and pick your vegetables with less bending.

A typical raised garden consists of long beds, six inches to three feet high. Beds need be no broader than you can reach and can extend as far as your property lines allow. The path between beds does not have to be wider than 12 inches or so. To prevent mud, top the paths with gravel or build a wood walkway.

The walls of the beds should be built of durable material. For its long life and workability, pressure-treated wood is a common choice. Available at nearly every lumber yard and home center, this wood has preservative protection against termites and rot.

Despite widespread commercial use for decades, stories have circulated that treated wood will contaminate plants. EPA conducted an eight-year review of data on pressure-treated wood and put no restrictions on its use in gardens.

Once the walls have been constructed, the beds can be filled with soil and compost. Then you're set to plant.

The efficiency of raised garden beds makes it likely that you'll have plenty of food to share. For more information about pressure-treated wood, call or write, American Wood Preservers Institute, 1945 Old Gallows Rd., Suite 150,

Vienna, Virginia 22182-3931,
Tel: 800-356-AWPI.

Making Great Tools Gardener-Friendly

Ergonomics is finally making its way to the home garden. The science of developing techniques and tools that maximize human efficiency and comfort has led to the creation of computer-engineered hand landscaping tools.

These tools can offer countless benefits and are expected to make gardening easier and less tiring.

With 127 years of toolmaking experience under its belt, V&B Manufacturing Company has modified existing landscaping tool designs to provide easier power for a host of gardening and groundskeeping chores including turf breaking, trenching, clearing, planting, weeding, chopping and cultivating. The company's Ground-breakers™ line of landscaping tools have been ergonomically designed to make garden work easier for professional and amateur gardeners as well as for seniors with limited mobility.

In fact, the American Horticultural Therapy Association has credited the light weight and interchangeability of these designs as "positives for wheelchair gardeners and others with mobility impairments."

Here are some other "user-friendly" features to look for in the new garden tools:

- Curved handles increase power and control of tool head.
- Computer balancing allows smoother, easier swing requiring less muscle and energy.
- Reversible tool head doubles each tool's function and makes for quick job changes.
- Various handle lengths allow you to change positions such as standing, bending, kneeling or sitting while gardening.

These new tools are available at home and garden centers. For an informative catalog, write: V&B Manufacturing Company, P.O. Box 268, Walnut Ridge, AR 72476, or call 1-(800) 443-1987.

Let The Sun Shine In! Skylights Create Light, Bright Interiors

Letting the sun shine in—with a skylight—can be an affordable yet dramatic way to transform your living space.

Light and outdoor views make a small space appear larger, draw attention to a special location, and create an open spacious atmosphere.

Skylights capture abundant sunlight and outdoor views because they open a home to much more light than vertical windows and doors. They provide beautiful clear views of the sun, moon and stars while preserving privacy. Ventilating skylights can add to comfort and proper moisture balance in a home by allowing fresh air to circulate and releasing the warm, moist air generated during cooking and bathing.

The key to having complete skylight enjoyment is a water-tight installation. Flashing is the waterproofing material, usually aluminum, that prevents the entry of moisture from around skylights and other roof openings. For the most weathertight skylight installation, L-shaped step flashing pieces are interwoven with the roofing material around the skylight for a completely water-tight seal without the addition of caulk or mastics.

Companies such as Velux offer flashing systems and roof curbs for practically all roofing materials and pitches including asphalt or fiberglass shingles, Spanish tile, metal roofs and flat roofs.

Insulated glass skylights offer a number of practical advantages. Available with Low-E coatings and laminates, insulated glass offers excellent energy efficiency for comfort in any climate.

Unlike plastic-bubble skylights which react to ultraviolet light by clouding and hazing, glass skylights do not react to the sun's rays, thus preserving a perfectly clear view.

Even if there is a ceiling and attic space between the room and the blue sky beyond, a skylight can still bring in light and ventilation with the simple construction of a skylight shaft.

To make a skylight shaft, openings are cut in the roof and ceiling below, then framed, insulated and finished. By making the ceiling opening larger and flaring the shaft, light is distributed evenly throughout the room.

For a free copy of The Complete Guide to Roof Windows and Skylights, call 1-800-283-2831 or write to Velux Roof Windows and Skylights, Dept. M, P.O. Box 5001, Greenwood, SC 29648-5001.

Hardboard & Simulated
Hardboard panels are often made to look like wood or other building materials and have a plastic coating which can be easily washed with detergent solutions and rinsed like painted walls. If very dirty, use a stronger solution, testing the cleanser first in a hidden spot to be sure it doesn't damage the finish; or use a commercial household cleaner whose label says it's safe for painted walls, and be sure to rinse thoroughly. Do not use solvents on hardboard or particle board panels, as it may irreparably damage the surface. Don't forget to test the cleaner on a hidden spot. If you don't and have a cleaner that damages the wood, you will regret starting this particular project.

Home Cleaners Safe Alternative to Commercial Products

One of the best ways to be safer in your home is to use safer alternatives to commercial cleaners whenever possible. There are many time-honored recipes and suggestions to help you make the switch toward safer household products. Ingredients followed by instructions guide you through an array of easy-to-make, easy-to-use safer alternatives. Some ingredients recommended as alternatives are safer but not non toxic and are noted by an asterisk (*).

Air Fresheners

Most commercial air fresheners do not freshen the air at all. Instead, they mask one odor with another, coat your nasal passages with an undetectable oil film, or diminish your sense of smell with a nerve-deadening agent. For a safer alternative, you may wish to try one of the following:

- Ventilation—Open windows or doors in the house for at least a short period every day. This will also help to reduce toxic fumes that may be building up indoors.

- Vinegar—Distribute partially filled saucers of vinegar around the room or boil one tablespoon of white vinegar in one cup of water to eliminate unpleasant cooking odors.

- Cinnamon & Cloves—Boil these spices for a fragrant smell. For ease of cleaning, make a cheesecloth bag to contain the spices, and boil the cheesecloth bag. An excellent alternative when entertaining is to steep spiced tea or cider.

- Potpourri—Buy or make your own potpourri from your favorite herbs and spices. Place the potpourri in a small basket or jar or in small sachet bags.

Kitchen & Food Odors

- Vanilla*—Place pure vanilla on a cotton ball in a small saucer. Place the saucer in the car or refrigerator to remove odors. It is highly recommended to remove even skunk odors. Keep the cotton ball out of reach of children; vanilla has a high alcohol content.

- Baking Soda—Place a partially filled saucer of baking soda on the refrigerator shelf. Replace every two months and when you do, pour the contents of the used box down the drain to remove odors and keep the drain clean. Baking soda can also be used to deodorize bottle by filling them with undiluted baking soda and allowing the bottles to soak overnight. Then wash as usual.

- Borax*—Empty the garbage frequently and clean the can as needed. To inhibit growth of odor-producing molds and bacteria, sprinkle one-half cup Borax in the bottom of the garbage can.

- Vinegar or Celery Stalk—To avoid or remove onion odors from your hands, rub white vinegar on your hands before and after slicing. Rubbing hands with the end of a celery stalk will also remove the odor.

Cleaners

- All Purpose Cleaner—Mix vinegar and salt together for a good surface cleaner. Another useful cleaner is baking soda. Dissolve four tablespoons baking soda in one quart warm water. You can also use baking soda on a damp sponge to clean and deodorize all kitchen and bathroom surfaces.

- Carpet & Rug Cleaner—If you plan to shampoo your carpet, first try a pre-cleaning treatment. Sweep the carpet, which will make the nap stand up and loosen the imbedded dirt. Next vacuum. With this work alone, the rug should show a noticeable improvement, so much in fact that you may decide to delay the shampooing. To neutralize odors use Borax* and cornmeal. Sprinkle the carpet with a mixture of one cup Borax and two cups cornmeal. Let this mixture stand for an hour before vacuuming. Another alternative is baking soda. Making certain that the carpet is dry, sprinkle baking soda liberally over the entire carpet. Wait at least 15 minutes, or overnight if the odor is particularly bad, before vacuuming.

- Decal Remover—Use vinegar to remove no-slip decals from the bathtub. Saturate a sponge or cloth and squeeze hot vinegar over the decals. Vinegar also removes stick-on hooks from pointed walls. Saturate a cloth or sponge with vinegar and squeeze the liquid behind the hook so that the vinegar comes in contact with the adhesive. In addition, vinegar can be used to remove price tags and other decals, from glass, wood, and china. Paint the label or decal with several coats of white vinegar. Give the vinegar time to soak in and after several minutes the decal can be rubbed off.

- Disinfectant Soap—Regular cleaning with plain soap and hot water will kill some bacteria. A key element to preventing bacteria is to keep things dry. Mold, mildew and bacteria cannot live without moisture. Borax has long been recognized for its disinfectant and deodorizing properties. Mix one-half cup Borax into one gallon hot water and clean with this solution. Isopropyl Alcohol* is also an excellent disinfectant, sponge with it and allow to dry (it must dry to do its job). Use in a well-ventilated area and wear gloves.

- Drain Cleaners & Drain Openers—To avoid clogging drains, use a drain strainer to trap food particles and hair; collect grease in cans rather than pouring it down the drain; pour a kettle of boiling water down the drain weekly to melt fat that may be building up in the drain; or weekly put some vinegar and baking soda down your drain to break down fat and keep your drain smelling fresh. A time-honored drain opener is the plunger. This inexpensive tool will usually break up the clog and allow it to float away. It may take more than a few plunges to unclog the drain. Do not use this method after any commercial drain opener has been used or is still present in the standing water. Another way to avoid clogs is to use baking soda and vinegar. Pour one-half cup baking soda down the drain. Add one-half cup white vinegar and cover the drain if possible. The combination of baking soda and vinegar can break down fatty acids into soap and glycerine, allowing the clog to wash down the drain.
