Kids speak out on making Pointes more youth-friendly

By Bonnie Caprara
Staff Writer

Ten middle school and high school kids had their say about what it's like to live in Grosse Pointes: There's nothing to do and we'd like to do something about it.

Their concerns and possible solutions were well received by members of the audience at the first of two League of Women Voters of Grosse Pointe town hall meetings held at Parcells on Thursday, Nov. 4.

Program facilitator Patterson Terry, a psychologist from the Michigan State University Center for Youth and Family, asked the kids what they do in their free time and what usually happens.

Some of the kids said that they attend sporting events at some of the high schools, but most of the other things they like to do, like going to movies, are usually outside of the Grosse Pointes. They said transportation is a problem, especially for kids too young to drive.

Some of the other kids mentioned going to the Hill or the Village or the municipal parks but complained that a lot of these venues close too early or they're hassled by police.

"We enjoy going to the park, but it closes too early," said panelist Claire Yankee, a senior at Grosse Pointe South High School. "It's a problem if you work. Sometimes the police will stop us. The Grosse Pointes have great facilities — they're just not being used to the fullest."

Brownell eighth-grader Mike Pedi said, "There's no place to go. Usually the police will stop you and tell you you're loitering. Mostly we just want to go out with friends and not get hassled for loitering."

Legislature considers headcount or sampling for 2000 census data

By Brad Lindberg
Staff Writer

LANSING — Legislation that Republicans said will make census figures more accurate will end up in court if signed into law, said Democrats who oppose the measures.

"We're going to be embroiled in litigation over this," said Rep. Laura Baird, D-Owosso, in opposition to a set of bills that, if passed, will outlaw statistical sampling during the 2000 census.

"It may be that litigation is inevitable, but that doesn't mean we should shirk our legislative duties," said Rep. Andrew Richner, R-Grosse Pointe Park, who supports the measures.

Bills introduced recently into the Michigan Legislature require legislative apportionments to be based on hard data. The measures require the 2000 census to be comprised of actual numbers, not estimates derived through statistical sampling, as has been done in the past.

Republican backers of the bills said they are codifying a recent U.S. Supreme Court decision that forbids sampling. Democratic opponents said the GOP is trying to protect its turf as term limits kick in.

Both sides agree that the issue is at the heart of representative democracy. Along less lofty lines, census figures are also used to distribute billions in federal funds.

In addition to requiring headcounts, the bills mandate that legislative districts shall be drawn along municipal lines wherever possible, and not designed to accommodate "partisan political advantage."

Richner said the bills could "help prevent legislative gerrymandering."

Five Senate bills passed late last month. The loan House bill has been voted out of committee and is expected to see action on the floor before December.

Sen. Bill Schuette, R-Midland, is chairman of the Senate reapportionment committee. He supports the measures.

"This process is as fundamental as anything we will do," he said. "It ensures fairness and puts in place standards that must be followed no matter who is in the House and Senate."

Hearings on the House bill took place last week before the House Family and Civil Law Committee, chaired by Richner.

"Making sure we count everybody is not outmoded, it's fundamental," responded Schuette. "Sampling is an admission that we've failed to find where people in Michigan live. It's not a fair way to give representation."

Testimony for and against sampling confirmed that the national census historically undercounts millions of people.

In written testimony, Barbara Everitt Bryant, who was appointed by President George Bush to the job of director of the Census Bureau during the 1990 count, said, "It is not possible to directly enumerate everyone. The 1990 national census missed an estimated

4 teenage boys come to the rescue of elderly woman

By Jim Stickford
Staff Writer

Ask an elderly woman who lives in Grosse Pointe Farms about today's youth and she'll tell you about four young men who came to her rescue after she had fallen outside her home and was in need of assistance.

The injured woman, who lives on Kenwood Court, had just returned home with some groceries at about 7 p.m. on the evening of Monday, Oct. 25. She had both the screen side door and the side door open so that she could carry her groceries into the kitchen.

"It was very windy that evening," said the accident victim. "It was about 7 p.m. and the latch keeping the screen door open became unstuck. The wind blew the door open, which hit me and knocked me down."

The woman suffered a broken wrist and a severely bruised back as a result of the fall. She was unable to get up and her cries for help went unheard. After lying on the ground for about 90 minutes, she turned over on her side and made her way toward the street in the hope that someone would see her or hear her cries for help.

It was at this point that several young men walked by. Pat Mansfield, a freshman at South, was the first to hear the woman. He and his companions, Mike Withers, also a South freshman, and Fraser Gaspar, a former Grosse Pointer visiting from Colorado, found her on the ground.

They helped her into her house and sat her on a chair. Withers used the accident victim's telephone to call 9-1-1.

"It took about seven to 10 minutes for an ambulance to arrive," Withers said. "She was very shook up by what happened and told us that she tried 12 different ways to get up. Our friend Danny Keogh came by and talked with her to help calm her down. We were on our way to meet Danny when we heard her calls for help."

Once the ambulance arrived, attending EMS staff asked the youths what had happened and why they were out so late. When they gave their explanations they were told they could leave. One thing they were never asked was their names.

The accident victim's neighbor, Leslie MacKenzie, knew who the youths were. She said they did a wonderful thing and deserve recognition for the aid they provided her neighbor.

"My house is on the other side of where she fell down," said MacKenzie. "We didn't hear her cries for help. It's a good thing those kids came along when they did."

"What they did was so wonderful," the accident victim said. "I'm so grateful for their help. I didn't even learn their names until later. They were so kind."

Holiday cards sought

Grosse Pointe-based groups whose card sales will benefit charitable causes will receive top priority.

Send us information about your organization, including what kinds of cards you sell, the cost of the cards, how readers can place an order and how the funds from card sales will be used. Send us a sample card for illustration, if you wish.

All information must be received by 3 p.m. Friday, Nov. 26. Send to: Margie Reins Smith, 96 Kercheval, Grosse Pointe Farms, MI 48236.

Governor approves proposed charter for his own home town

At a unique ceremony in Lansing Monday afternoon, Gov. G. Mennen Williams affixed his signature to the proposed charter for the City of Grosse Pointe Farms. As far as can be ascertained, this is the first time in Michigan history that a governor has been called upon to approve a charter for his own municipality. Watching Williams sign were Farms President William F. Connolly and clerk Harry A. Furtaw. (From the Nov. 10, 1949 Grosse Pointe News.)

■ Michigan Governor G. Mennen Williams officially approved the proposed charter for the city of Grosse Pointe Farms.

A special election will be held Dec. 12, 1949 in which Farms residents will vote to accept or reject the charter.

■ Grosse Pointe Farms councilman Neil McEachin said he had seen letters from numerous Michigan municipalities that were using fluoride. The letters indicated fluoride greatly reduced the amount of decay in children's teeth.

Yet, neither the state nor federal government would recommend using fluoride.

McEachin said he would contact state health officials to see if their outlook had changed.

■ Both The Tower and the View Pointe, the student newspaper and year book at Grosse Pointe High School, received outstanding achievement awards at a conference of high school newspaper workers.

■ A man wearing a Halloween costume took trick-or-treating to a higher level a the Dobb's House restaurant at 15412 East Jefferson in Detroit.

Police from Grosse Pointe Park helped Detroit officers search for the suspect, an accurate description of whom was hampered because he committed the crime while wearing a face mask and orange dress.

■ A few days after scouring the town for candy on Halloween, a girl from Grosse Pointe Woods broke a candy bar in half and found a sewing needle inside.

Police, unable to find holes in the candy wrapper, concluded the candy had been unwrapped, the needle inserted and then made to look as new.

■ An engineer from the Wayne County Road Commission examined the traffic signal at the Vernier Road entrance to Grosse Pointe North High School and agreed with students that the light cycle should be increased to give cars more time to exit.

The study was done after students blamed after-school traffic jams on the ill-timed light.

Other kids' houses were mentioned by a few.

"We like to hang out at other people's houses and watch the hockey games," said Our Lady Star of the Sea School eighth-grader Angela Theis.

All 10 panelists were pretty much in agreement about wanting a place in Grosse Pointe where they can just hang out and socialize.

"We brought up the idea of the Neighborhood Club," said Yankee. "We could get a lot of kids there. We could have an open gym, a big screen TV for hockey games, we could have dances and bring in college students to chaperone. If there's a problem, you're not going to be hesitant to tell them."

Ladendorf added, "The best way to have this place is to have something new all the time — to have a different committee so it's not the same."

Members of the audience asked about using churches or schools for such gathering places. Yankee said that most kids would feel uncomfortable gathering at a church basement and said certain people would feel left out. She also nixed the school idea saying, "We're looking for a different place to go. We're at school 6-8 hours a day."

Grosse Pointe Board of Education trustee Joseph Brennan, who was in the audience, noted that there was "a real cost to keeping the schools open" for recreational purposes.

South sophomore Grant Heffner suggested opening up the parks to everyone or issuing more guest privileges. Theis suggested planning more activities at the parks during the winter months.

The adult panelists and audience members listened carefully to the kids' ideas and concerned and mostly limited their questions and clarifying comments.

"I think I hear is that you want to hang out with your friends, the place is secondary," said adult panelist and South interim principal Ben Walker.

The youth panelists were receptive to audience suggestions, particularly about setting up a web site for youth to find out what is going on in the community and to discuss youth issues. Yankee noted that lack of publicity was often the reason why some activities like events at the Café, a youth activity center/nightclub held twice a month at the Calvary Senior Center on Gateshead in Detroit, have waned in popularity.

South teacher and coach Dan Greisbaum asked the youth panelists if an activity center would reduce the amount of teen drinking in the Grosse Pointes. While some of the youth panelists said that many teens drink out of boredom, North junior James Brennan said, "Is it going to eliminate drinking? No."

Grosse Pointe Woods municipal judge Lynne Pierce, who was in the audience, later commented, "There are things to do. What's stopping them? What makes a youth choose not to go to a football game and to a drinking party?" She cited a recent incident in the Woods where 70 people between the ages of 14-19 were rounded up at a home, most of them sampling alcoholic beverages, at the time a football game was taking place on a Friday night.

While the youth said they wanted a place where they could hang out, they admitted they would need adult help and supervision — but with a long arm.

"I heard 'We want the adults involved. We don't want them to control everything, but we'd like them to listen.' It's something adults need to listen to," said Judge Pierce.

"The kids were quite articulate and fairly honest," said League of Women Voters town hall meeting chair JoAnn Kelly. "I was a little surprised how far along they were with some of their solutions the kids had with problems.

"I was pleased with the comments from the audience. The adults in the audience listened and processed the information."

The adult panelists will respond in second part of the two-part town hall meeting on Wednesday, Nov. 17 in the Parcells Middle School auditorium at 7:30.

Pointes struggle with question of granting home variances

By Jim Stickford
Staff Writer

Grosse Pointe enjoys a reputation as a first-class community with first-class housing in first-class neighborhoods.

But lately the various Grosse Pointe governments have been confronted with the problem of balancing the need to preserve neighborhood ambiance while addressing the desire of residents to expand their homes.

J.P. Fountain of Johnstone & Johnstone said that in her opinion what people want from an inside home has changed over the years. When most of the houses in Grosse Pointe were built, the philosophy was to have separate rooms with individual functions.

That meant having a formal dining room, a living room, a den, a front parlor. Each separate and apart. Now homes are being built around the notion that areas of the house should flow into each other. Where the kitchen of the past was relatively small and was just meant to be the place where the cooking was done, today it's the center of the house. It's large and airy and is designed with the notion that people will interact socially.

Fountain calls it the "great room" concept. She also said that the size of the average home is growing.

"People want different things from their homes," Fountain said. "Especially in different phases of their lives."

Park city councilwoman Shirley Kennedy who works in the real estate business said that people want to stay in their homes. So they like to build additions, but they can run into problems with city regulations affecting the size of a home.

"When we changed the city's setback laws in 1998, we did so because we wanted to protect neighborhoods," Kennedy said. "We allow people a freer hand when it comes to the back yard, but we're pretty strict when it comes to front and side setbacks. We don't want to alter the flow of a neighborhood and become like some communities where every inch of land is covered. We try to be reasonable, but also tough."

City of Grosse Pointe mayor Susan Wheeler said that in the City, people wanting to build newer and larger garages has become a big issue.

"We want to maintain the character and quality of life in the City," Wheeler said. "We also want to let people tailor their homes to fit their lifestyles. But's it's difficult because the community is pretty citified. We have to be mindful of neighbors when presented with a variance request. What a person does affects the entire neighborhood."

Wheeler said the City's council went on a field trip to Birmingham. She said the lots on the other side of town aren't any bigger, but the homes have grown out of proportion, covering up to the 50 percent of a lot. In the Pointes permissible lot coverage varies from 25 percent to 35 percent.

"I think 50 percent is just too much," said Wheeler. "But the question becomes at what point do you say no variance. If you become too permissive, you really open Pandora's Box."

Grosse Pointe Farms councilman Martin West said that while the Farms council recognizes the trend to put bigger houses on lots, they are also concerned with making them too big.

"We need to maintain a sense of proportion," said West. "It's possible to renovate without needing a variance. We just did some work on my house. I told the architect not to design anything that would need a variance. He went over by one foot, but we were able to make adjustments to be within regulations."

West said that he doubted people would leave the community to build a dream house in an undeveloped part of metro Detroit.

"Remember Grosse Pointe Farms was just named the fourth best community in the country to live in," West said. "We try to preserve values by allowing construction to be proportional to the size of the lot. We are waiting for a master plan report from consultant Brandon Rogers on this. If you have a nice street and someone tears down a big house and wants to split the lot to put up two houses, that can have a huge effect on the neighborhood. We have to take that into consideration when reviewing construction plans."

Woods mayor Robert Novitke said that the Woods council is experiencing handling more variance requests from residents who wish to have houses with larger footprints on their lots.

"We've been confronted with more variance requests and have handed out more variance requests in the past few years," said Novitke. "It creates more problems with the issue of privacy. As the house gets bigger, neighbors are closer together. That creates a greater need for privacy fences. We are looking at this in our committee-of-the-whole. We want a master plan to help us determine what to allow."

Woods councilman Al Dickinson has expressed concerns that if the city doesn't grant variance requests, residents will go elsewhere to get the home they want. Novitke doesn't think that will happen, but the council must come up with standards on what is allowable and, in his opinion, take a hard line. People need to know what to expect when seeking permits. They shouldn't have to guess on what is allowable, he said.

Mary Matuja, chair of the Grosse Pointe Shores planning commission, said the village has a strict policy regarding variances. A few years ago the village revised its building regulations because people were building larger homes on lots. She expects that the board of trustees will further revise the rules because "someone always finds a loophole."

"In the early 1990s we sent out a survey on what residents wanted," said Matuja. "We were told that people didn't want to break up large estates into subdivisions. Because there aren't many unoccupied buildable lots in the Shores, that's just about the only way to build new homes. We have many non-conforming lots in the village, but we try to protect the neighborhood."

What residents who wish to build non-conforming additions have to realize, said Matuja, that a person's home is their biggest investment. If the village allowed a lot of variances, it affects the neighborhood and people have complained about the gigantic houses going up next door to them. The board of trustees must look at what's best for everyone.

66,000 people in Michigan."

The bureau has announced plans to use statistical sampling in the 2000 Decentennial Census to address a growing problem of "undercounting" people.

Some groups, including minorities and children, have historically had substantially higher undercount rates than the population as a whole.

Based on the bureau's 1990 post-enumeration survey, African-Americans were undercounted in greater proportions than whites, -4.4 percent to -1.2 percent, respectively. Likewise, Hispanics, American Indians, Asians and renters averaged a 4 percent undercount, according to Bryant.

Kenneth Darga, Michigan's demographer, is against sampling.

"An adjusted census will tell us many things about how our communities are changing, but some of those things will not be true because no one will know which changes are valid and which are not," he said.

Darga, who has written a book critical of sampling, listed 17 obstacles to producing accurate population data, including busy lifestyles, language barriers, proxy interviews, non-responsiveness.

Sen. Joe Young Jr., D-Detroit, agreed with Republicans that an actual headcount is necessary, but disagreed with the GOP in that he believes sampling should be used as a follow-up count.

"If you feel the count does not reflect the population numbers, then supplement the count (with statistical sampling)," said Young. "But don't start out with a sampling."

Sheila Cockrel, testifying on behalf of her colleagues on the Detroit City Council, said, "Census data is crucial for Detroit. The figures are used to determine the manner in which billions of federal dollars are distributed annually."

Cockrel, along with representatives of Detroit Mayor Dennis Archer and the NAACP, called for more hearings on the bills in Detroit in order to get a more diverse input.

The Constitution's census clause authorizes Congress to direct an "actual Enumeration" of the American public every 10 years to provide a basis for apportioning congressional representation among the states.

As far as the Supreme Court is concerned, the case is clear.

In an opinion delivered in January against sampling, Supreme Court Justice Sandra Day O'Connor said, "The Census Act prohibits the proposed uses of statistical sampling in calculating the population for proposed apportionment."

If sampling were allowed, she said, it would "profoundly affect Congress by likely shifting the number of seats apportioned to some states and altering the district lines in many others."

State Democrats said the bills are less about [illegible] talking and more about the GOP trying to maintain political power in the wake of term limits.

"The Republicans are trying to place in statute the language that will safeguard them against reapportionment," said Young. "They're in power and, like anybody else, they want to stay in power."

Baird said, "The Republicans are in control (now), but they might not be in a year." She characterized the Republican strategy as "make hay while the sun shines."

In 2000, the Census Bureau expects that only 67 percent of households will return the forms, according to an August 1997 U.S. Department of Commerce report called Census 2000.

"To directly enumerate those who don't send back their census forms will require an estimated half million census takers calling on 46 million households," said Bryant.

Phil Ginoti, and administrative assistant for Schuette, said sampling cheats people who turn in their census forms.

"If you're going to do a plan by statistical inference," he said, "you have to essentially shift population from one area to another.

"There's no question about it, when you do a statistical sample or inference, it opens the ability to start cooking numbers."

Farms to spend $204,000 to upgrade water plant

By Jim Stickford
Staff Writer

When your water plant equipment was originally built in 1929, you have to expect costly upgrades from time to time, which is why the Grosse Pointe Farms City Council voted to spend up to $204,000 to purchase new switch gears for the water plant at 29 Moross.

"Right now we have manual switch gears to handle the two power lines to the equipment in the plant," said Farms water superintendent Darrel Schuurman. "That means if one power line goes down, then the other line is manually switched over to the equipment to keep it running."

When asked if that was dangerous, Schuurman said that having people handle lines that carry 4,800 volts of electricity was indeed dangerous.

"The plant dates back to the 1920s," Schuurman said. "It's vintage. So if one of the Detroit Edison lines goes down, the other has to be switched manually. With the new equipment, it can be done automatically without so much danger to workers."

It also makes sense to switch to automatic equipment because the system is so old that finding spare parts for the current system has become next to impossible, said Schuurman.

Now that the council has approved spending $204,000 to upgrade the system, an engineering study must be completed, said Schuurman.

"These parts can't be purchased off-the-shelf," Schuurman said. "They are custom made to order. Once the study is completed and the system is designed, we can expect installation to begin in 2000."

Residents in the Farms and City should not suffer any disruption of service once the installation begins, Schuurman said.

Friends' Gift of Reading book drive, story time set

By Bonnie Caprara
Staff Writer

The Friends of the Grosse Pointe Public Library kick off their Gift of Reading book drive with a story time, sing-a-long and tree lighting ceremony at the Central Library on Friday, Nov. 19.

Friends of the Grosse Pointe Library president Tom Nowinski will read "How Little Porcupine Played Christmas" from 4:30-5:30 p.m. A sing-a-long and tree lighting follows across the street at the gazebo. Each child will receive an ornament to place on the tree. Children are invited to bring an unwrapped book appropriate for children 7-and-under to donate to the Gift of Reading program.

This is the Friends of the Grosse Pointe Public Library's twelfth year participating in the Detroit Free Press' Gift of Reading program. Books and donations may be dropped off at any time at any of the three branches of the Grosse Pointe public libraries.

For more information, call the Friends of the Grosse Pointe Public Library at (313) 343-2077.

Theater loving Circuit Court judge has best seat in house

By Brad Lindberg
Staff Writer

Grosse Pointe is home to a judge who thinks the courts should leave legislating to the legislature.

"Our system of government provides for legislative, executive and judicial functions," said Judge William J. Giovan of the Wayne County Circuit Court.

"The proper functioning of our system demands that the judiciary be independent. It can only be independent if it stays within its proper sphere, namely, that it interpret the law and not bend it out of shape to one's own liking."

Giovan, a resident of the Park, said, "The judiciary is supposed to be above the fray. Once people get the notion that the judiciary is part of the political battle, they will find a way to control the courts. Then you won't have an independent judiciary."

He said, "political questions are not supposed to be decided in court."

Giovan was born in Detroit. He graduated cum laude from the University of Detroit in 1958, where, as a fencer, he was elected to the school's Sports Hall of Fame. The university presents the "William J. Giovan Award" to students accomplished in athletics.

Real fencing isn't like the movies, where swashbuckling adversaries leap over tables and swing from chandeliers while whirling sabers like pinwheels and helicopter blades.

"Fencing isn't anywhere near as exciting as what they stage in a movie," said Giovan. "There's a lot more art to it."

"I was exhausted upon arrival," said Giovan. "The first morning of the tournament I had no energy, my feet were like lead. I was losing to opponents I had beaten during the regular season."

"Get up!" yelled the coach.

"He gave me a workout," said Giovan. "When I responded slowly, he whacked me good with saber ripostes to my helmet. Bam bam! I got mad and came alive so I could whack him back."

All of a sudden Giovan wasn't tired anymore. He won enough bouts to make the 1958 All-America team.

"I owe it all to the coach," said Giovan. "Two years ago I helped organize his retirement party after 50 years of coaching fencing. We are good friends to this day, mostly because we stopped trying to whack each other in the head long ago."

POINTER OF INTEREST

Judge William J. Giovan, right, spoofs the legal profession in parodies of popular songs performed at a fundraising event for the Detroit Bar Association. Giovan is joined by, from left, Joseph W. O'Brien, a resident of Grosse Pointe Park, Andrew S. Savel and Michael L. Donahue. The quartet started singing years ago as a joke, but have had so much fun they continue to perform.

After graduation from the University of Michigan Law School in 1961, Giovan practiced law in Detroit.

"I became a judge virtually by accident. As a young lawyer, I filed for one of several six-week judicial vacancies on the Detroit Recorder's Court that existed because of a quirk in the election laws.

"A lot of things fell into place and I got elected," he recalled. The six-week term was enough to make him eligible to serve as a visiting judge, which he did on-and-off for three years.

In 1973, Gov. William Milliken appointed Giovan to a judgeship on the Common Pleas Court of Detroit, then in 1976 to the Wayne County Circuit Court, where he has served ever since.

Among his professional accomplishments, Giovan has written and lectured extensively, principally in the area of evidence law. He one of the authors of Michigan Civil Procedures, published by the Institute of Continuing Legal Education.

West Publishing Co., a major publisher of legal textbooks based in Minnesota, has asked Giovan to write about civil procedure.

In addition, the Michigan Supreme Court appointed him to a committee whose work resulted in the Michigan Rules of Evidence in 1978. Since 1985, he has been a member of the Detroit Bar Association Board of Directors.

"I've had a lot of great experiences on stage at Grosse Pointe Theatre," said Giovan. "But my favorite would be my role in 'Charley's Aunt,' that venerable but hilarious farce we did in the mid-50's. What made it so gratifying, pure and simple, is that the audiences laughed uproariously.

"That's the thing about comedy," he explained. "In laughter, or, heaven forbid, the lack of it, you have an immediate audible gauge of how well you're doing."

He began acting as a second-grade student at St. Bernard's School.

"I was in the first play I ever saw," he said. "It was an excerpt from Gilbert & Sullivan's 'H.M.S. Pinafore.'"

He played the captain of the Pinafore. "The only reason they gave me the part was that I was the tallest boy in the class."

Opinion

20th century as experienced by a newsman

As the 21st century closes in on us, it is appropriate for those of us who survived most of the 20th century to try to make some sense of what we have lived through.

Looking back, many of us now consider ourselves to be survivors. Accidents, college choices, professional or other career options, marriage and other factors helped make the lives we've lived.

And how we reacted to our tests for survival indicated in part how we would live and whether we would be ready for fresh tests of survival as time went along.

My first test of survival was the fire that destroyed our family living quarters above my grandather's crossroads store as well as the store itself when I was only 4 years old.

My second home was my grandfather's nearby farm, which had been my father's early home as well. The years after World War I were not good ones for farmers, however.

That postwar decline in farm prices led to my family's departure from the farm to the county seat in Hastings, where we went into the chicken business.

Shortly before we moved, however, I encountered my second test of survival when I fell from our moving family touring car and landed on my head in a muddy roadside ditch.

Riding in the left side of the rear seat, I had leaned forward to close a right-hand rear door just as my faher swerved the car to the left to avoid a pool of water in the road.

Out I went, landing on my head in the muddy ditch. I apparently suffered a mild concussion, and had dreams for years of being thrown into a twirling funnel.

Without further trouble, I survived the move and the transfer from District 61 to the Hastings junior high school.

In District 61, a cousin who lived with us and I were the only students in our sixth grade. In Hastings, we were part of two divisions of the seventh grade with about 30 to 40 kids in each section.

In high school, I first became interested in journalism as a career. I joined the staff of the Mocassin, the school paper, as an editorial writer, and discovered I had a vocation.

So I majored in community journalism at the University of Minnesota. After graduation, I worked briefly at my hometown paper, the Hastings Gazette, but then joined the Minneapolis Star to cover a Masonic Order convention.

At week's end, the Star told me that if the Teamsters resumed their strike against Minneapolis warehouse owners, as they were threatening to do, I would have a full-time job.

In fact, I saw a striker killed when he and his colleagues attacked a truck that sought to crack the picket line at one of the warehouses.

In March 1935, I was covering Hennepin County courts when a Minnesota journalism teacher and friend sought me out. He had in tow two publishers of a southern Minnesota semi-weekly newspaper, the St. Peter Herald, who were seeking a new editor.

I accepted their offer. It turned out to be a good move. I met a St. Peter girl, and we were married in 1938.

We moved on to Worthington in 1940, as I sought more experience in community journalism on a daily basis.

With World War II approaching, newspaper editors and publishers sought young men with families who presumably would not be drafted early.

On the same day in 1943, I received offers from the Minneapolis Star and the Milwaukee Journal. Because I had had some experience on the Star, I returned to the Minneapolis paper. I was fortunate in being taken under the wing of a fine newsman, Gideon Seymour, who had held an executive position with the Associated Press in London during World War II.

As the editorial page editor, I wrote editorials, learned how to make up the editorial sections and then was assigned to cover the Minnesota legislative session.

A couple of years later Seymour gave me my first overseas assignment: to accompany a group of newspeople being sent to Europe to help publicize the need for the just-announced Marshall Plan.

That led to another test of survival as our old three-motor Army plane was landing at Terciera, a Portuguese island in the Atlantic used as a U.S. landing base.

As we came in to land, we were quietly informed that our plane's landing gear was stuck, and that while it could be rolled down by hand, it didn't always hold on landing.

Fortunately, we landed safely, and we went on to Berlin the next day for my first view of a war-devasted Europe.

My colleagues and I found a city that had hardly begun reconstruction in the two years since the end of the European War.

We also saw the remnants of Hitler's mountain retreat, flew over Venice and visited Trieste where U.S. and Yugoslav troops faced each other ready, we were told, for the possible start of World War III.

Back at the Star and Tribune in Minneapolis, I was one of four staff members whom the publisher chose to make a trip around the world a couple of years later.

He did so because he felt he had learned so much himself after completing a round-the-world trip after attending a Ford Foundation conference in India.

That trip, too, had its dangerous moments. When we were met by a friend from the U.S. Embassy on our arrival in New Delhi from Pakistan, we were told the Pakistan airline we had flown had such a bad flying record that the U.S. Embassy had banned the American staff from flying on it.

Since I was assigned to make our round-the-world schedule, I had included Vietnam because I had just read a popular book on what was happening in that country.

Fortunately, in Vietnam, I met an old friend from Washington who made it possible for us to interview President Diem, the country's leader.

It wasn't a very productive interview. All I remember is that President Diem was seeking American economic aid with which to get South Vietnam's economy going again.

The rest of the round-the-world trip was uneventful, but I was delighted when we stepped from our plane in Minneapolis after another uneventful flight from the West Coast.

That was my major flying experience abroad until I was invited to tour Communist China, along with 20 other members of the board of the American Society of Newspaper Editors.

It was a curious tour. The Communist Chinese were just beginning to reap some benefits from President Nixon's opening to China.

Everyone was exceedingly polite, although some Chinese thought we should be able to tell them how to improve their production capacity. They obviously had a higher opinion of our mechanical and management abilities than we had back home, where news people are notorious for their inability to perform even the easiest domestic chores.

As we continued our flights back to Peking, now Beijing, several of our editor colleagues worked up bridge games with the Chinese and learned the Chinese were adept at that game, too.

But as our informative trip was ending, a group of Chinese army and trade officials toasted us at a long and liquid lunch, which turned out to be too much for me.

A Chinese physician was summoned, and said he thought he could have me feeling much better by the next morning. To bring about this quick recovery, he recommended a popular Chinese treatment, acupuncture, which did have me feeling much better by the next morning.

Our group's return to the United States occurred without incident; although I had to undergo a good many jokes because of my experience with Chinese medicine.

In reviewing our experiences after arriving home, I concluded that the Chinese were really beginning to adapt to the Industrial Revolution.

However, it wasn't unusual to see a hand-guided plow, pulled by a buffalo, working the same field as a modern tractor-drawn plow.

We saw the inside of only one automotibile plant, but it was producing the first new Chinese model car in 10 years — which turned out to be an excellent copy of the most recent German-made Mercedes.

It also was my impression the Chinese were beginning to move into a more competitive industrial and commercial cycle, which has already occurred since the American editors toured their country.

I retired from the job of associate editor and editorial page editor of The Detroit News in 1978, taught journalism at Wayne State for seven or eight years, and wound up writing editorials for the Grosse Pointe News for almost 20 years.

The year 2000 marks the eighth decade and second millennium during which I've been a newspaperman, and I look as forward to meeting the tests of the future as I and all of us have met them in the past.

Did U.S. spy on China, too?

During the cold war, involving the Soviet Union and the United States as the principal contestants, we often heard stories of Soviet spying on the United States and U.S. spying on the Soviet Union.

In the current flap over U.S. charges of Chinese spying on the United States, we have not read or heard of any instances of U.S. spying on the Chinese, except to verify that the Chinese are using nuclear ideas stolen from this country.

Yet a member of the bipartisan committee, Rep. Norm Dicks, Washington Democrat, urged the committee members and the public to keep the committee's report in perspective. Then he added:

"The United States still possesses overwhelming nuclear superiority over China, with more than 6,0000 strategic nuclear warheads in our inventory compared with China's total of about two dozen."

Energy Secretary Bill Richardson, who oversees our nuclear laboratories, added that "there is no evidence of a wholesale loss of information."

And then he added a warning to those who accept every charge made in Congress as true. Richardson put it this way: "Not every allegation is a proven fact."

The Chinese, of course, are trying to deny every charge of Chinese spying and are accusing the United States of demonizing the Chinese in order to divert attention from the recent U.S. bombing of the Chinese embassy in Belgrade.

"We think some people in the United States insist on clinging to a Cold War mentality," foreign minister spokesman Zhu Bangzao said. "The goal is to stir up anti-Chinese sentiment by spreading the theory of a China threat."

National security adviser Sandy Berger and Attorney General Janet Reno drew the brunt of the criticism for failing to respond quickly enough to the reports of espionage.

But the committee report put the blame on past administrations, Republican and Democratic alike, as well as the Clinton administration, for failing to respond to earlier criticism of security lapses in the nuclear plants.

Texas Gov. George Bush, the leading GOP presidential candidate, commented that he "would do something about it immediately," presumably if elected president.

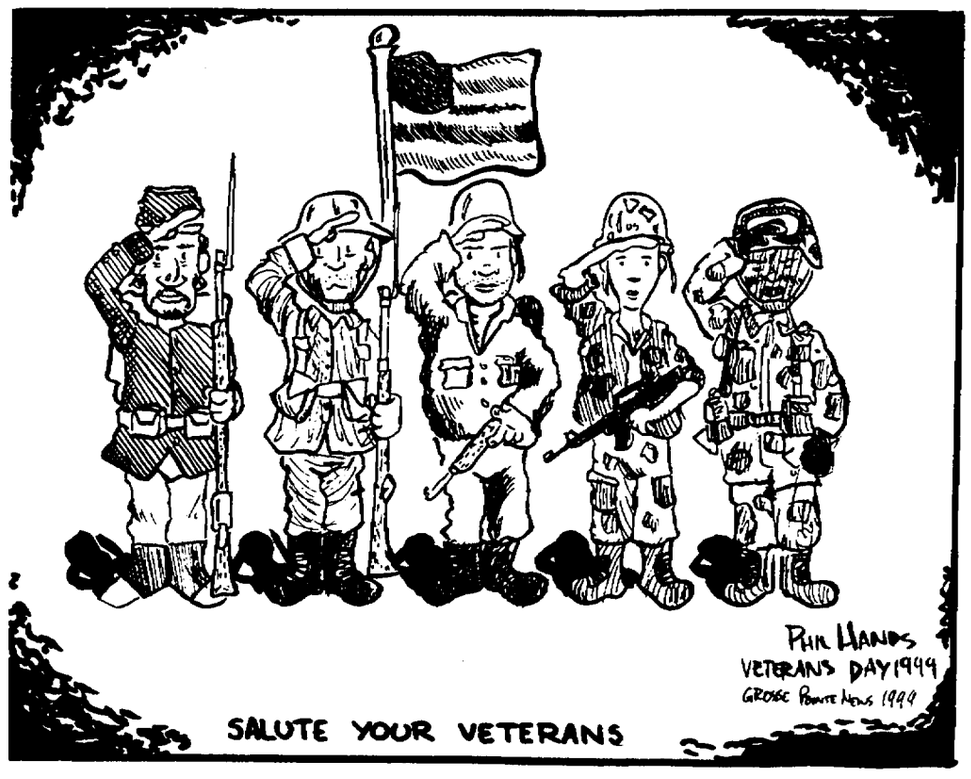

It was noted, however, that Bush didn't explain what he had in mind doing, and Democrats, by and large, defended the Clinton administration on the issue.

Senate Minority Leader Tom Daschle of South Dakota pointed out that "the Reagan administration did nothing. The Bush administration did nothing.

"What's all the more amazing to some of us is that members of the Congress — GOP chairs of Congress — were warned about this as early as 1996 and also chose to do nothing."

It's obvious we'll hear a good deal more of such charges by both sides during the campaign for both Congress and the presidency in the year 2000.

The truth, however, has yet to be determined, although the evidence against the Chinese for their reported spying seems to be mounting in Washington.

The Stickford Files

Thoughts at large

In my last column I wrote about how I love women's magazines like Cosmopolitan because the articles reflect the kind of high-flying lifestyle that has nothing to do with reality as I or my contemporaries know it.

Two things happened. First a lot of women laughed at it and I now have a stack of women's magazines on my desk. They were given to me by my gracious female colleagues.

The second thing that happened was that the women I knew asked me to write about men's magazines. So in the name of fairness, here I go. First off let me say that Playboy and other magazines that feature naked women are porn. I won't talk about them, because I don't read porn magazines. (Unfortunately, Playboy occasionally does feature good interviews with interesting people. No getting around that fact. But take out the naked ladies and watch the circulation plummet.)

The kinds of men's magazines I'm thinking of usually feature some pretty young thing on the cover. She's usually some up-and-coming television star who wants to make the move to movies.

The star is always wearing skimpy clothes or a swimsuit. They are made up in such a way as to resemble every other model who has graced the cover of Cosmopolitan.

I Say

Jim Stickford

The articles seem to have been written by writers who never got over the fact that they had to leave the frat house when they graduated or got kicked out of college. The themes seem to be "how not to grow up and be a real man who takes his duties and responsibilities seriously when you can be a little boy in a man's body and drink beer and have sex with women without taking the act or the woman seriously."

I guess that's what bugs me the most. When I was growing up, men were responsible. You watch the movies from 30 or 40 years ago and men made responsible decisions and were concerned about doing the right thing. They considered consequences and there was a code of respect for life and for women.

Yes, I know that there have always been men who were jerks and that often respect for women meant respect for women as long as they stayed in the kitchen. But I've seen reruns of Ben Casey and they respected their fellow doctors who were women.

But now it seems that men are portrayed as the bad guys who get in the way of heroines. The idea of a modern man being a model of virtue and decency is almost laughable. When was the last time anyone saw a man like that on television?

Even the television show "ER," which is supposed to feature saintly Dr. Mark Green gives men the short shrift. Green, the ostensible male hero, is just a wimpy victim — of his cheating ex-wife, of an anonymous mugger, of the hospital bureaucracy, of sneaky colleagues. How I long for the day when television presented a male protagonist as cool as James Garner's Jim Rockford.

I read somewhere that these magazines feature the soft porn covers because editors believe that is the only way to attract a man's attention when he's at the newsstand. I hope those editors are wrong, because if it's true it's very sad.

That means what it means to be a man, a real man, has degenerated into something childish. It seems to me that a real man is someone who is strong in the sense that he keeps his word, doesn't denigrate people, is a force of good in his community and keeps his eye on the moral bottom line.

Now it just seems a man is someone who can acquire toys, seduce and abandon women and avoid commitment of any kind. That's not what I would call progress.

The miracle of 'Harry Potter'

Dr. Victor Bloom

Topping the best-seller lists for almost a year, the three "Harry Potter" books by the Scottish author J.K. Rowling are making publishing history. Millions of copies have been sold in hardcover around the world. These "Harry Potter" stories have captured the imagination of teachers, parents and children alike.

The miracle is that many children are choosing to be read to by parents or teachers, rather than watch TV or play video games. For once in recent years, words on a page are successfully competing with numerous other questionable distractions.

There is a certain power in great writing that invites the reader to enter another world. Few children's books have possessed that quality. What comes to mind are the classics, the children's stories of E.B. White, and the fairy tales of Grimm and Anderson.

The late famous child analyst, Bruno Bettelheim, wrote an impressive book on the power of great fairy tales that have been carried forward to us from centuries ago to the present. He points out that fairy tales are, for children, an introduction to the real world, a world of evil stepmothers, witches and wolves who eat children. Not that these witches and wolves are to be taken literally. Rather, they are abstractions to be taken figuratively. Evil stepmothers exist, but they don't possess demoniacal powers. Yet in the child's mind, mother has eyes in the back of her head. She has enormous power, and the child feels helpless, vulnerable, dependent, ignorant of the ways of the adult world.

Hansel and Gretel are turned out by an evil stepmother while a hapless and weak father allows this to happen. They become lost in the woods, a primal fear, but use their ingenuity to find their way back home.

Meanwhile, they must outfox a witch who likes nothing better for a meal than a succulent child. The child who listens to the story or reads it has the satisfaction that it is able to protect itself and survive the most drastic situations.

The classic fairy tales do not hide the fact that there is evil in the world, and insists that these situations can and must be dealt with. They let the child know it has potential creative resources to surmount adversity. The fairy tales prove that eventually right will prevail because in the end they will live happily ever after.

To bring about this happy state requires patience, persistence and hard work. The good life does not come easy to fairy-tale protagonists. They must survive many trials which may be at one time physically painful, at another time horribly scary. The child who is familiar with the classic fairy tales begins to take confidence in the belief that for the most part, it will emerge triumphant. If he or she can think it, it can be.

Such is literature. The written word is our key to the outside world. The written word enables the wisdom of the ages to be passed down, so that each successive generation stands on the shoulders of its predecessors. The Bible is full of magic and wizardry, but we accept this as the Word of God. The mysteries must be accepted by faith.

Curiously, some religious zealots are threatened by "Harry Potter." They have been brainwashed to think the devil is always operative, always seeking to undermine what is right and good, that he is trying to establish an evil world based on man's predisposition to follow its instincts with free will. The wizards in "Harry Potter" are labeled "pagan" as if that word condemns it. Will these same parents proscribe the Greek gods? Shall Homer's "Iliad" and "Odyssey" be banned from school curriculums as full of pagan sorcery? What of Apollo and Zeus, Aphrodite and Prometheus? And what of Shakespeare's, "A Midsummer Night's Dream" (real fairies, people turned into animals), "Hamlet" (seeing ghosts) and "A Christmas Carol?" (more ghosts).

"Harry Potter" and his classmates are in a school for wizards. As in ancient fairy tales, Harry is alone in the world, his parents having mysteriously been killed by some evil force. Children fantasize the death of their parents and wonder what would become of them. "Harry Potter" in effect says the death of your parents is a terrible thing, but he still lives on by his wits and his learning wizardry. He uses a magic cloak to remain invisible while he can check out his enemies. What child doesn't enjoy the fantasy of being invisible, so that they can spy on things that are forbidden and curious?

It is too bad that a tiny percentage of religious fanatics are hell bent to prevent their children from being sullied or warped by these excellent modern fairy tales. They may forget this is fiction. Not only do they question the value of the First Amendment, but they try to erode the value of the separation of church and state. These few should not be allowed to dictate curricula or ban books.

Co-ed comes a long way

When the Park's Dr. Dick and Julie Scott returned from Bhutan the last time around, they brought back a memento of the trip unusual even for them: A charming Bhutanese girl as a house guest.

Ken Eatherly

"Her name is Karma Wangmo and she's enrolled as a senior at South High," says Julie, her "house mom" while the Bhutanese co-ed is here in Grosse Pointe.

With their children Abby and Jed, the Scotts first sojourned in the little country high in the Himalayas, east of Nepal and south of Tibet, in 1994. They lived there while osteopathic surgeon Dick worked at a local hospital, and developed a love for the country.

Since then Bhutan has been a regular stop for the Scotts. "This last trip we took over a load of toys donated by Nancy Renick of the Village Toy Company," Julie says. "The children loved them — especially the pop-up books, which they never saw before."

Karma is fluent in English but still has a bit of culture shock in her life as a transplanted high school girl, Julie says. "The Bhutanese national dress covers the whole body and she still can't get used to short-sleeved tops and shorts."

There's no such trouble with the food: "She likes potatoes, bread, ribs, beef stew and pizza," says Julie. "She always takes cheese sandwiches to school — and she really likes the Mongolian Barbecue on Mack."

"My house mom and my house dad are very nice to me," Karma says with a delightful accent that sounds faintly British.

What else impresses her about the Pointes?

"I like the school," Karma says. "In Bhutan we have to study what the state tells us, but here there are so many subject choices."

Her current studies include economics, Japanese, algebra, geography, computers and journalism, and she has already made friends in the Foreign Exchange Club.

"I think I'm the first one from Bhutan at my school," she says. "I like the people here, and the climate too."

Karma is not sure how long she'll be able to stay, but if she's around by the time Dick and Julie finish the vacation house they plan to build up near Cross Village, she'll feel right at home there. The architecture will be Bhutanese.

Some saints are close to home

The Rev. Ed Putnam was giving his All Saints Day sermon with the Christ Church Grosse Pointe church school children assembled in front of the regular congregation, and had asked his small parishioners to name any saints they knew.

"St. Andrew," said one boy.

"St. Francis," said another child.

"St. George," one volunteered.

"St. Clair," another responded.

There was a pause, and then one little tyke came up with the clincher:

"St. Clair Shores."

Shopping is just the ticket

The street signs were still missing in the great Village improvement project, so how could the lady who had parked on Notre Dame just around the corner from Kercheval know it was a no parking zone?

She spotted the ticket on her beige car when she returned after ducking into Sherman Shoes, pulled the offending slip of paper from under the windshield wiper, got in the car and looked at it.

Then, apparently realizing an opportunity when she saw one, she hopped back out, closed the door, put the ticket back under the wiper and headed over to Jacobson's.

When life hands you a lemon, you can shop for a nice lemonade pitcher ... or whatever.

A web site for cut-ups

Back in June FYI alerted Pointers to one of the latest works by Pointe painter Erica Chappuis: her rendition of Samson and Delilah created in conjunction with that month's performance of the opera by the same name at the Detroit Opera House.

Now fans of Erica's art can view samples of this and other creative efforts on her own personal web site at pages.prodigy.net/erica.chappuis/

Letters

The new morality

To the Editor:

Open letter to members of The Grosse Pointe Memorial Church:

On Sunday, Nov. 14, at 3 p.m. in Barbour Chapel, there will be an open discussion on the Session's "decision" to implement changes expressly against the Presbyterian Church doctrine, which in effect change the scriptures to fit modern times.

On Sunday, Nov. 21, at 10 a.m. there will be a vote on these changes at the annual congregational meeting.

It has come to my attention that although the Session may propose and elect changes that affect the entire congregation, the entire membership may vote on Nov. 21 at the annual meeting. It is the decision of the membership not the Session's decision or vote that determines the outcome.

If you want your church, please come and vote.

A challenge for excellence

To the Editor:

I have sat quietly in the background while the Grosse Pointe News and (others) have written slandering articles about the Grosse Pointe South choral music program and my teaching. I also am very aware that positive letters were sent to the Grosse Pointe News that you chose not to print.

However, the letter to the editor, "Learn to lose without giving up," published in the Nov. 4 edition of the Grosse Pointe News, and the reference to me about winning — "takes the cake."

First and foremost, teaching high-quality education and academic discipline is most important to me. The students in South's choir program do well because they are taught sight reading, quality literature, composition, stage presence and good vocal and choral tone. They also have Theory I-IVAP at South where we have had 100 percent passage of our AP theory students for the past four years.

Our music technology lab, which parent Stu Pettitt, a professional architect, and I designed, is state of the art. Our students are composing in ABA, Sonata Allegro, canon and fugue forms their first year. We use the music technology programs Cakewalk Professional and Finale '98 for our compositions and arrangements. These programs prepare the South students for the finest university settings.

In my daily teaching, I take great pride that I teach a blind student who has performed choreography in every show, including the after-school all-school musicals, since she has entered South as a freshman. When she was in need of help with movement, I personally found Dr. Carrie Vigor M.D. and music dance therapist to work with her weekly.

I also teach five autistic students daily, two of whom are mainstreamed in my Pointe Chorus. One of the autistic boys was able to learn and perform in every number of Fall Follies that his freshmen classmates also performed in. This is his only mainstream classroom experience. He is one of my pride and joys.

Yes, I am blessed with students on the other end of the academic spectrum. The Pointe Singers have a 3.8 grade average. I have the student government president, the senior class president as well as the captain of the girls varsity basketball team and captain of the girls cross country team.

Why are these types of students attracted to this elective program? Perhaps because it is academically challenging, because it is creative, because they have been taught to perform well and really enjoy performing for audiences. I really don't know why. Each student has their own reason for participating in the Grosse Pointe South choir program

The students and I have wonderful support from our community members, demonstrated by the sold-out performances and standing ovations for the students' Nov. 4 and 6 Fall Follies performances. Grosse Pointe South Pointe Singers will be featured on the Fox family station performing the Holiday Pops show at Orchestra Hall with the Detroit Symphony Orchestra on national television. This is the only high school program to ever have been given this honor.

I also know that I love education and teaching. Grosse Pointe schools may have many faults, as we all do, but in my 30 years of teaching I find it is one of the best public schools in Michigan. We have a wonderful student body, great support from many parents and friends, and a beautiful community to live in.

Let's all support real excellence in education, our students, the hard-working teachers and our community. Winning is important, we all want to be winners. What's really important in my program at Grosse Pointe South is answering the question; how far academically and personally did each individual student grow this school year?

Ellen J. Bowen
Director of Choral Activities
Grosse Pointe South High School

A gorgeous fall!

Those legendary autumns in New England have nothing on us this year!

Here it is November, and as I look out my window, I see my neighbor's geraniums still in bloom on her front porch. In our own yard, roses are surprising us every day with fresh blossoms. The azaleas are blooming, while the green ivy blanket that covers our house is turning a new color each day and soon will shed its protective coat.

Bright sun beats through our bedroom window each morning and teases us with its glorious hues of pinks and purples against the blue sky, to rise up and seize the day. And though our daylight hours are brief, we have been blessed with the very best of the season's offerings.

Today I rode my bike through the streets of the City and down to the Village. Our community seemed so alive, so many people raking leaves, Roller-Blading, biking and walking and each greeting me with a smile.

It was one more in a long line of crisp, clear days, and I didn't want to go home, so I continued to the City park. I was the only person in the park and was astonished but delighted to have it all to myself. I went out to the end of the pier and watched a solitary sailor enjoying the quiet waters.

The next leg of my journey took me past South High School, where I screeched to a halt when I discovered a stand of four trees next to the parking lot that ran the full spectrum from gold through copper to crimson. It took my breath away.

While I was basking in the variety of fall palates and inhaling the scents of the season, my spouse was enjoying yet one more day on the golf course. When he returned home, he exclaimed about the beauty of the golf course in all its golden splendor.

The temperatures are dropping, but we can still sleep with the windows opened wide and feel snug under a comforter. Weekends bring football games, lingering golf tournaments and hockey in full swing. These are good days to partake of all we are offered.

Guess I'll take another walk around the block and drag my feet in the copper carpet on the sidewalk, savoring every day until it ices over and goes all gray on us. This year we rank up there with the best when it comes to Mother Nature's wardrobe.

— Offering from the loft

Thanks for success

To the Editor:

On Oct. 23 the Grosse Pointe South High School Choir Boosters hosted their first-ever Membership Appreciation Gala at the Oscar Webber mansion in Grosse Pointe Shores. Supporters from near and far, who care deeply about the vocal music program at Grosse Pointe South High School, demonstrated their enthusiastic support for this outstanding program.

The home of Helene and Christ Bertakis was a lovely setting for this event, which raised funds to support the ongoing volunteer efforts of the choir boosters. Such efforts include student scholarships, professional performing arts clinicians, uniforms and costumes, classical and show choir competitions, and enhanced programming for the students of Grosse Pointe South.

The gala was an overwhelming success by any measure.

The success of the gala is due in no small part, to the local businesses that generously donated food and refreshments. We extend our thanks to: Blue Pointe Restaurant, Chicken Shack, The Golden Dragon, Kroger in the Village, The Mongolian Grille, Nikki's Pizza, Pointe Barbeque and Tom's Oyster Bar.

An event of this nature requires the hard work of a dedicated committee. We were blessed to have a gala committee who made the work look effortless with their enthusiasm and creativity. We owe a debt of gratitude to our fellow committee members: Helene Bertakis, Christ Bertakis, Lori Brophy, Anne Maters, Susan Noethen, Sharon Nouhan, Leo Nouhan, Evey Simon and Lisa Steiner.

We were graced with the musical artistry of Mr. Kim McKinney, who entertained our guests on the piano. He did so graciously and without any cost to the boosters. Thank you Mr. McKinney for the donation of both your time and talent.

For jumping in with both feet when any job needed to be done, we are grateful to Cookie Etheridge and Sue Seiter.

To the choir parents who continue to support the program with both their financial support and emotional commitment year after year (even though you no longer have a child in the choir program at South), we send our sincere thanks. You will always be a part of our "choir booster family."

To the choir student alums, who became official choir boosters this year, we say "welcome." We're glad you continue to feel passionate about the outstanding program of which you were once a part.

Finally, we are indebted to the many, many people who wrote a check — from $10 to $5,000 — to show your commitment to the vocal music program at Grosse Pointe South. Whether you are a grandparent, friend, neighbor, relative or simply a fan of the Choir, your contribution is so very much appreciated.

And as our new motto says, we, The Grosse Pointe South Choir Boosters, will continue to support "A legacy of excellence in music into the new millennium."

Pointer

"Pinafore" has always been his favorite Gilbert & Sullivan show, "and you can guess why," he said.

A half-century went by before he performed the play again, which was when GPT staged it last season.

"This time around being tall was not enough to get me the part of the captain," said Giovan. "I was in the sailors chorus and loved every minute of it."

Giovan's first show on stage with the GPT was "Grammercy Ghost," in which he played a spirit. Production took place at the Cannon Recreation Center in Detroit.

"During intermission I ran into Soupy Sales. Always the comic, he looked at my ghost makeup and gave me a wide-eyed grimace of mock horror. Soupy was at the show because the director of the play was Clyde Adler, who is known better as White Fang from the Soupy show."

A few years ago Giovan and his wife, Mary Lynn, were having Thanksgiving dinner at the Trattoria Dell' Arte in New York. In walked Soupy Sales and his family.

"We could hear him cracking jokes, even to them," said Giovan. "I was sorely tempted, but resisted the urge to go over and tell him about the time that he came to see me perform."

Giovan met his bride-to-be, the former Mary Lynn Plopan, at a summer jazz concert at the Renaissance Center.

"Somebody introduced me to her," he said. He planned to follow up with a phone call but "I couldn't find her number in the telephone book," he said. "It took me another two years to run into her again. I made sure I got her number."

Before being elected to a seat on the bench, Giovan played a judge on stage.

"I'll never forget the time one night when we were in the trial scene of 'Inherit the Wind' in 1966, he said. "Strangely enough, I was playing the judge, which turned out to be a precursor of things to come. Bob McKenna and John Peters, two of the best actors we've had in the Grosse Pointe Theatre, were playing the Clarence Darrow and William Jennings Bryan roles.

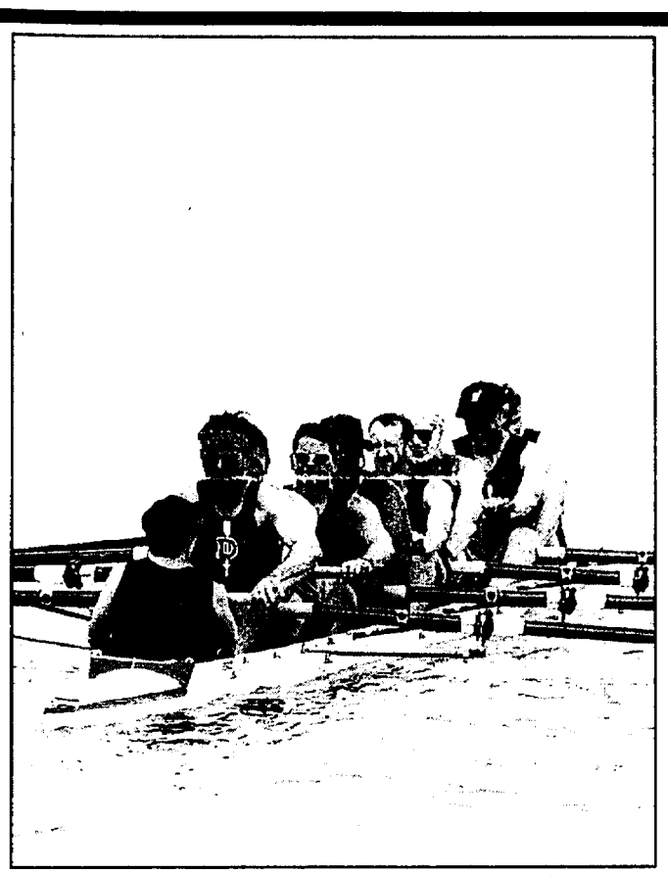

"That night they were really into it in the cross-examination sequence, going after each other with all of the dramatic conflict that was written into those great lines.

"At the high point of the exchange the audience broke into applause. Never before or since have I seen an audience interrupt a dramatic scene with applause. It was a spine-tingling performance, and I had the best seat in the house."

"The worst situation (in court) is when both lawyers are either not good attorneys or are trying to take advantage of the law," said Giovan.

On the other hand, "my job becomes easy when there are good lawyers on each side, each of whom knows the rules, is fully zealous on behalf of their client but doesn't try to bend the rules out of shape," he said.

Judge William Giovan, seated near the bow of the scull and wearing a baseball cap, rows as part of the eight-man scull at the Detroit Boat Club. The team competes in races that range from 1.5-mile sprints to 3-miles tests of endurance. "You have to pace yourself," said Giovan, a resident of Grosse Pointe Park. Rowing is just one of the many activities undertaken by Giovan, who is a judge in Wayne County Circuit Court.

William J. Giovan

As a lawyer in 1971, he attended a legal seminar in London. He went to the National Theatre to see "The Merchant Of Venice." He was lucky to get a ticket.

"Exactly how fortunate I was I didn't realize until I reached my seat, where the couple I sat next to informed me that this evening was Sir Laurence Olivier's comeback performance after a year's absence from the theater because of a heart attack."

"Olivier was magnificent, not to mention the rest of the cast. The set and costumes were lavishly beautiful. I have never had a more enthralling experience attending the theater.

Giovan waited at the backstage door hoping to get a glimpse of Olivier.

"When he finally emerged there were no more than four of us still there. He stopped, shook hands and chatted very graciously for about ten minutes.

"I still have the program autographed by him that night, and sometimes it seems as if I have to look at it to verify that I had that fortuitously excellent experience."

About 10 years ago, Giovan "stumbled upon an interesting extracurricular activity," he said. He and three friends formed a singing group that lampoons the legal profession.

The group had its debut in 1991 at a function sponsored by the Detroit Bar Association.

"It turned out to be lots of fun," said Giovan, who writes lyrics for the quartet. "The audience loved it."

Giovan sings bass, with another Grosse Pointe resident Joe O'Brien on tenor. The group practices at O'Brien's house.

"Joe's wife is a music teacher, so she's like our coach," said Giovan.

In another interest, Giovan is an accomplished photographer. His pictures have been featured in The Detroit News.

"I thought they were a couple of hard-bitten New Yorkers," said Giovan. "But they were as pleasant as could be. It turned out they weren't from New York, but were visiting from California."

Although Giovan doesn't work on plays as often as he used to, other activities have taken up the slack.

He said, "One of my greatest satisfactions is playing hearts, my favorite card game."

He plays once a month with friends.

"With theater, good friends, and shooting the moon once in a while," said Giovan. "What more could I ask?"

Pierce sixth-grader Kalli Rogers and seventh-grader Jimmy Manganello rehearse for the upcoming Pierce all-school musical "Cinderella" showing at Pierce Friday and Saturday Nov. 19 and 20.

Pierce's all-school musical 'Cinderella' set for Nov. 19 & 20

By Bonnie Caprara
Staff Writer

The story is about a princ and a princess told by 72 students at Pierce Middle School.

The Rodgers and Hammerstein musical "Cinderella" comes to Pierce Friday and Saturday Nov. 19 and 20 at 7 p.m.

All of the 72 students who tried out for the production have a role in telling the tale. No one was turned away, according to producer and Pierce music teacher Heather Albrecht.

"They're involved in every aspect of the show — costumes, lighting, crew, chorus," said Albrecht. "We tried to make as many featured parts for kids as possible."

The kids have spent the last 10 weeks preparing for the show. In the days before the opening performance, the cast and crew are working every day after school to put on the finishing touches.

"It's not as easy as it looks," said seventh-grader Jimmy Manganello, who plays the role of the prince. "There's a lot that goes on behind the scenes — learning all the lines and putting it all together."

Albrecht said that "Cinderella" was chosen because, "it's really singable and it's appropriate for middle school. We didn't have to censor that much."

District gets clean opinion on audit

By Bonnie Caprara
Staff Writer

The books are clean and closed on the Grosse Pointe Public School System's 1998-99 fiscal year.

"We feel your financial statements fairly present the financial position of the district," said Walt Kozial of BDO Seidman, the accounting firm hired to audit the district's financial records. "You have a clean opinion and in financial terms it's the best opinion you can get."

Kozial said that the district had all of the significant types of policies in place, that they were consistently applied from year to year. He also said there were no significant auditing adjustments or significant disagreements with district management.

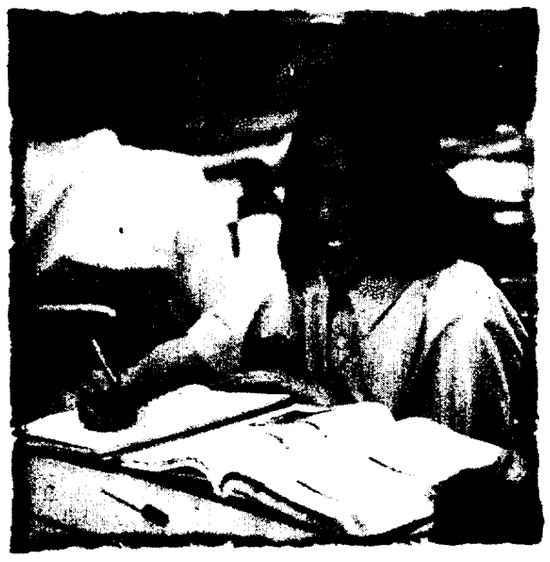

Overall the district's revenue totaled $85,358,485 while expenditures totaled $81,447,922, or 95 percent of the budget.

Not only did district expenditures come in under budget, the district also paid off a $231,750 debt from 1989 in February. The district is now debt-free.

"We have a district that's peculiar in that we have no long-term debt," said board trustee and audit committee chairman Joseph Brennan. "There are only a handful of districts across the country that can say that."

The Grosse Pointe Board of Education approved the 1998-99 audit at its Nov. 8 meeting.

SMALL CLASSES. BIG OPPORTUNITIES.

The single most important characteristic of a University Liggett School education is a caring, nurturing environment. Our middle school classes are small — averaging 16 students — allowing students in grades six through eight to develop at an appropriate pace. ULS middle schoolers enjoy leadership and growth opportunities they might not have in a different setting. You're invited to explore our world ... for the child in yours!

Garage breakins

One case of Coca Cola and a similar amount of beer were stolen from a garage in the 700 block of Berkshire in Grosse Pointe Park between the hours of midnight and 8 a.m. on Wednesday, Nov. 3.

In another case of beer snatching in the Woods, five bottles of Milwaukee's Best were stolen from a refrigerator located in a garage in the 800 block of Hollywood on Sunday, Nov. 7. The incident was reported at 10 a.m.

Fishy order

On Sunday, Nov. 7, at 3:40 p.m., two male suspects ordered fish at a market in the 1500 block of Kercheval in Grosse Pointe Park.

After preparing the order, an employee returned to find the suspects gone and $250 cash taken from the register.

Car vandalism

After hearing a car window being smashed, a resident of the 1000 block of Wayburn in Grosse Pointe Park saw two men running west across Alter. The incident occurred on Tuesday, Nov. 2, at 8:30 p.m.

Rag top trouble

Convertible tops provide car owners with plenty of fresh air in summer but little security anytime.

The owner of a rag top heard strange sounds coming from near her 1990 Chrysler automobile on Wednesday, Nov. 3, at 10:36 p.m. She looked out the window of her residence in the 1000 block of Maryland to see two men running away.

The suspects had entered the car after cutting a hole in the top. They also damaged the steering column in a failed attempt to steal the vehicle.

PUBLIC SAFETY REPORTS

Man takes bike

On Friday, Nov. 5, at 5:15 p.m., a man estimated to be at least 20 years old reached into his jacket pocket to indicate he had a weapon before stealing the bike of a 14-year-old resident of Grosse Pointe Park. The theft took place on St. Paul near Somerset.

The suspect, described as being 5-foot-7, 170-pounds, with corn rows in his hair, a goatee and gold earing in his left ear, rode the stolen bike north on Balfour.

Credit card canceled

A woman from Grosse Pointe Woods has canceled her credit card after receiving a suspicious telephone call at 9:30 a.m. on Sunday, Nov. 7.

The caller asked the woman if she would like to change her credit card's PIN number. The caller refused to answer questions and hung up. Investigation revealed that someone had tried to fraudulently use her credit card a few days earlier.

Wind swept

On Tuesday, Nov. 2, at 3:40 a.m., Woods police who responded to a report of loud music in the 200 block of Lancaster discovered chimes blowing about in a strong wind.

Drinking party

On Friday, Nov. 5, Woods police detained 10 youths caught at an underage drinking party in the 600 block of Sunningdale. Police released the suspects to their parents.

18 suspensions

A 20-year-old man from Detroit with 18 driving suspensions was caught in Grosse Pointe Woods on Friday, Nov. 5, at 9:33 p.m.

The suspect was released a few hours later after posting $857 bail. Police impounded his car.

Highspeed ticket

On Thursday, Nov. 4, at 9:30 p.m., Grosse Pointe Woods police arrested a 25-year-old man from Detroit who was speeding 55 mph on northbound Harper near Allard.

The suspect was wanted on four outstanding warrants totaling $250 and had a suspended driver's license. He was released two hours later after posting a $350 bond.

Downed wire

On Thursday, Nov. 4, at 7:30 p.m., Woods police cordoned off part a downed wire in the alley behind the 19400 block of Mack. Police said workers from Detroit Edison arrived a short time thereafter to make repairs.

In a similar but unrelated incident, a failed electrical transformer in the 1700 block of Hampton in the Woods generated many calls to Woods police on Tuesday, Nov. 2, at 11:11 p.m.

Woods OUIL

A 37-year-old man from Detroit was arrested in Grosse Pointe Woods after police determined he had a blood alcohol content of .267 percent.

On Wednesday, Nov. 3, at 10:43 p.m., police stopped the man on northbound Harper near Allard after seeing him driving erratically. The suspect, who said he was returning home from a hunting trip, told police he was armed.

Officers confiscated the suspect's loaded .40 caliber pistol, which had a live round in the chamber, before taking him to the station.

Forgive us our trespasses

Grosse Pointe Shores public safety officers were called to a home in the 500 block of Ballantyne just after midnight on Saturday, Nov. 6. They were met by the homeowner who pointed out that someone had placed a "for sale" sign on his front lawn.

After taking the report, the officer was preparing to leave the scene when he noticed someone in the back yard trying to sneak away. The officer ran after the figure in the dark and caught up with him when he was unable to scale the back yard fence.

The suspect, an 18-year-old Woods man, admitted to having been drinking, but said that he "found" the liquor and declined to be more specific as to the origins of the alcohol. A breath test revealed a blood alcohol level of .10, which is the legal level for public intoxication in Michigan.

A search of the suspect's wallet turned up two driver's licenses — one which stated that the youth was old enough to purchase and consume intoxicating liquors. The suspect was released to his mother's custody and has a Dec. 16, court date. He was charged with being a minor in possession of alcohol, trespassing and carrying forged identification.

Farms vandalism

Grosse Pointe Farms public safety officers were called to Grosse Pointe South High School at about 7 p.m. on Wednesday, Nov. 3. They were met by the school principal and a staffer who had parked his car on Grosse Pointe Boulevard at 7:15 a.m. that day. Sometime during the last 12 hours, someone had keyed the victim's brand new car. Police continue to investigate.

Whine and wine

An employee of a store in the 18300 block of Mack saw a female suspect conceal two bottles of wine on her person and leave the store without paying. When the employee confronted the suspect, she fled to a 1995 Ford Escort and drove off.

The witness was able to get a look at the escape car's license plate. Farms police are currently following up.

Retail fraud

A Grosse Pointe Farms public safety officer was on patrol at about 4:30 p.m. on Tuesday, Nov. 2, when he noticed two men running in a parking lot behind a store in the 18800 block of Mack. The officer recognized the second man as the store manager.

He stopped both men and asked what was going on. He was told by the manager that the first man was seen leaving the store carrying a bag, but did not stop at the check out. When the manager asked the suspect what he had in the bag, the suspect fled.

A search of the bag revealed about $90 worth of Similac. A background check on the suspect revealed that he was wanted on warrants in Romulus and Warren. The suspect was charged with retail fraud and transferred to other jurisdictions to face charges there.

Bird's nest trouble

Grosse Pointe Farms firefighters were called to a bank in the first block of Kercheval at about 10:15 a.m. on Monday, Nov. 1, because smoke had accumulated in the building.

When they arrived at the scene, they were met by a construction crew leader who admitted that while using a torch to bend tar paper, the crew accidentally set fire to a bird's nest which was located right next to a ventilator, which in turn blew smoke into the building.

The construction crew had put out the fire, but the Farms firemen used special fans to clear the smoke from the bank.

Lights out

On Monday, Nov. 1, the owner of a business in the 18500 block of Mack reported that a lamp post in front of his business was stolen sometime over the weekend. The post had three lights attached and a value of several hundred dollars.

Station trouble

A City of Grosse Pointe woman reported on Wednesday, Nov. 3, that her wallet was stolen from her car while she was getting gasoline at a station in the 17800 block of Mack.

The victim said that she left her purse in her car and when she came back to her car from the main station, her wallet was missing.

Altered plates

A City of Grosse Pointe public safety officer saw a woman get into a car and drive off quickly and head the wrong way down a one-way street on Sunday, Nov. 7, at about 4:45 p.m.

The suspect, while driving in a 1986 Dodge, headed from Kercheval down Notre Dame, onto St. Clair. The officer had pulled the suspect over when he noticed that the license plate in the rear window had an altered registration. A background check of the suspect also revealed several aliases and warrants for her arrest in Port Huron and Sterling Heights. The suspect's car had a "crack" cocaine pipe inside and police also found several items of clothing that still had the price tags. There was no receipt for them. The suspect was charged with driving the wrong way down a one way street and was transferred to Port Huron, where she faces charges of uttering and publishing. She is being held on $5,000 bond.

Lawn larceny

A man reported leaving his trailer containing lawn equipment in the driveway of a home in the 300 block of Washington in the City of Grosse Pointe at about 9 p.m. on Saturday, Nov. 6. When he returned to the trailer on Sunday, at about 2:30 p.m., he discovered that a leaf blower and an edger were missing. Police continue to investigate.

Programs enable seniors to enhance education of youth

By Matilda Charles

There is a new activism among retirees and near-retirees who have no intention of letting their hard-won experience and expertise go to seed.

This is the gist of the findings of a survey conducted by the Peter D. Hart Research Associates for Civic Ventures, a non-profit organization that works to expand the social contributions of older Americans to society.

Mark Freedman, president of Civic Ventures, says these findings indicate that "The graying of America has a silver lining."

He goes on to say, "While many policymakers view America's rapidly aging population as a challenge or even a burden to the nation, they (older Americans) may well prove to be an asset. Older Americans are a tremendous and largely untapped resource. They have the skills and energy to contribute to society."

Freedman winds up with an interesting conclusion: "...the changing role of seniors in our society will change the face of work, and community life, in America."

This is a program which is mobilizing Americans 55 and older on behalf of children in some 24 communities around the country.

They volunteer to tutor and mentor youngsters and take on special projects designed to enhance the education of young people.

What I especially like about these projects is the shattering of the negative image so many younger people have of older folks.

Our senior population is not made up of dodderers who lose their life savings at the drop of a lottery mailing or who need to be treated like babies instead of with the respect they've long since earned. Yes, there are sad stories about seniors being exploited, and this column has been alerting people to these situations for years.

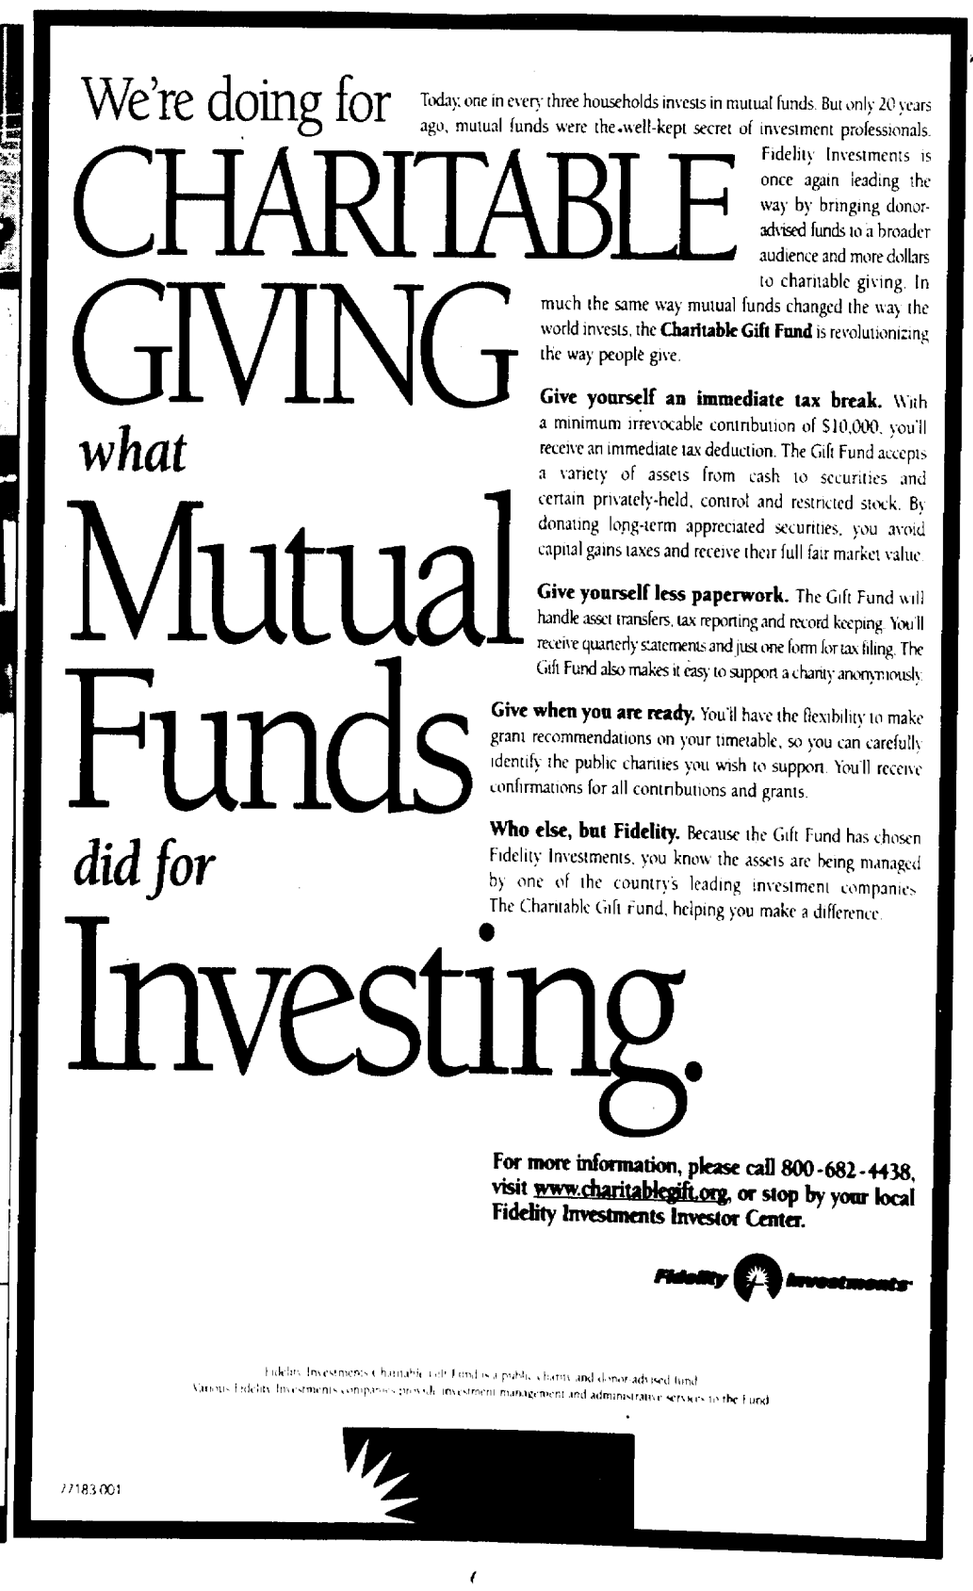

But by and large, our seniors are no different from the rest of the population, except that they're older and, to a large degree, smarter in many ways.

Common sense returns to health care for the eldery

Would you believe that in this day of highly specialized medicine that there is a movement toward self-care?

This has nothing to do with diagnosis which rightly belongs in the realm of professional medical care under surveillance of highly trained doctors in well-equipped sterile offices and hospitals.

Rather it is a return to common sense health care routine that an individual can perform alone. Part of this reevaluation of highly special technical care is a result of impersonal approach and cost. Another factor is that infectious diseases — smallpox, pneumonia and polio — have been controlled by better living conditions, vaccines, better medicines and medical care.

What we have left are chronic diseases like arthritis and heart conditions which represent 80percent of all illnesses today. These chronic diseases lend themselves to the concept of "self-care" and self-help.

It is not an entirely new idea. Most people practice self-care activities as a matter of routine.

Good nutrition, hygiene, dental care and basic first aid, such as cleaning up cuts and cooling off burns, are all forms of self-care.

When we read an article on health or watch a medical show on television or send for a health pamphlet and pick up tips on the benefits of eating more fresh fruits, limiting our intake of fatty foods or the benefits of regular exercise, we are practicing self-care.

However, in the strictest sense, self-care involves taking over tasks usually performed by a professional caregiver such as taking blood pressure, performing irrigation for ear wax or measuring heart rate. We think of these tasks as being performed by a doctor or nurse but studies indicate that non-professionals can do them.

Patients with a chronic disease have been administering to themselves for years. Diabetics test their urine and give themselves medical injections. Angina patients medicate themselves. Patients attend classes that teach self-care skills. Blood pressure cuffs are becoming as common as thermometers as standard equipment in the medicine cabinet.

A widely quoted study of 7,000 Californians documented how closely life span is linked to life style. The study examined seven healthful practices.

- Get seven to eight hours of sleep a night;
- Eat breakfast regularly;
- Don't eat between meals;
- Keep within a few pounds of your ideal weight;
- Engage in some form of exercise;
- Drink moderately or not at all;
- Don't smoke.

In every age group, people who observed all seven of these rules had on the average better health than those who observed six. Moreover, people over 75 who followed all of these practices were generally as healthy as person 30 to 40 years younger who followed fewer than three.

Another form of self-care is self-treatment in emergencies. Guidelines for emergency self-care can be found in first-aid manuals.

Recent books are encouraging readers to take on a wider range of responsibilities. Step-by-step check lists are presented to guide the reader through appropriate self-treatment and signal at what point professional help is needed.

A more comprehensive program involving self-care is the activated patient course. An activated patient is a person who becomes involved in his or her own care.

The person accepts responsibility for his or her own health and enters into a workng partnership with the physician.

Another aspect of self-care is that practiced in groups. Self-help groups are people who share a common condition and who come together to offer one another the benefit of mutual experiences, support and counsel.

Self-help groups have sprung up to answer almost every need. There are groups for stutterers, smokers, patients with ulcers, persons who have had open-heart surgery, arthritis, diabetics, neurotics, the spouses of heart-attack victims and the widowed.

Typically self-help health focuses on behavior modification. A good example of this type is Alcoholics Anonymous. Others are weight control groups and those which help people to stop smoking.

Stressful situations have also become the focus of some self-help groups.

The members offer one another mutual support by sharing coping strategies and advice. One such group is "Make Today Count," organized by and for persons with terminal illnesses.

Other groups target self-fulfillment and self-improvement. One of these is the Senior Actualization and Growth Exploration (SAGE). It was founded by a psychiatrist in 1974 and it is based on the premise that old age should be rich and creative.

Weekly meetings incorporate deep breathing, massage, limbering exercises to music, biofeedback and counseling. SAGE participants reported that the techniques they learned help them control headaches, reduce blood pressure, lift depression, cure insomnia and limit the number of medications they need to take.

Conscientiously observing healthful practices can significantly enhance a sense of well-being as well as the ability to lead an active life.

A pro's active parenting workshop Nov. 20

Are you raising your children on automatic pilot, fixing problems as they come up rather than preventing them from happening in the first place?

A new parenting model, "Parenting From The Heart," helps parents develop skills to move from auto-pilot to conscious parenting.

The program will be presented during a day-long workshop scheduled at the War Memorial Saturday, Nov. 20 from 8:30 - 5:00 p.m.

The concept for "Parenting From The Heart" is based on Steven Vannoy's best-selling book, The 10 Greatest Gifts I Give My Children, published by Simon & Schuster.

The workshop is facilitated by Jill Wrubel, a Grosse Pointe Woods mother of two. Wrubel is one of 20 facilitators nationwide certified to conduct "Parenting From The Heart" workshops.

The program encourages listening with the head and heart and focuses on positive interaction and conversation.

Vannoy's 10 gifts don't cost money but require a change in the attitude, style and focus parents develop through practicing five powerful tools.

Workshop participants will learn the five tools plus ways to put them to use.

In addition, parents will learn three ways to give guidelines, four keys to saying "no," plus gain insight into developing a family mission statement and action plan.

Enrollment costs $55 per person; $35 spouse. A $20 workbook is payable to the instructor. Advance registration is requested as space is limited.

Call (313) 881-7511, Monday through Saturday between 9 a.m. and 9 p.m. MasterCard and Visa are accepted.

Eastside Republican Club to meet on Nov. 16

Michigan Supreme Court Justice Robert Young will address the Eastside Republican Club on Tuesday, Nov. 16, at 7:30 p.m. at the Grosse Pointe War Memorial. A question and answer period will follow Young's presentation.

Gov. John Engler appointed Young to the Michigan Supreme Court in 1999. In 1995 Engler appointed Young to the Michigan Court of Appeals.

The following year he was elected to the Court of Appeals. Prior to becoming a judge, Young was vice president, secretary and general counsel for AAA Michigan. Young was a member of the Dickinson, Wright, Moon, Van Dusen & Freeman law firm from 1978 to 1992.

Young graduated from Harvard College, cum laude, in 1974 and from Harvard Law School in 1977. Among his many professional activities Young was president of the Michigan Board of Law Examiners in 1993 and 1998. He is an adjunct professor of law at Wayne State University and has taught many courses for the Institute of Continuing Legal Education.

Among Young's many public service activities, he has been a trustee at Central Michigan University, Grosse Pointe Academy, Detroit Institute for Children and Vista Maria. He is also a member of the Governor's Task Force on Children's Justice Concerning Child Abuse and Neglect.

Young is a member of the Michigan Bar Association, the Wolverine Bar Association, the National Bar Association and the Michigan Judges Association. He is also the author of several publications focusing on Michigan civil procedure.

The Eastside Republican Club holds its monthly Forum on the third Tuesday of each month at 7:30 p.m. from September through June at the Grosse Pointe War Memorial. Admission is free and the public is welcome regardless of political affiliation.

For more information about the Eastside Republican Club's programs, call (313) 885-0936.

Veterans Day reflects common bond of service

By Alan G. Lance Sr.

What is it about America's veterans that brings us together on Veterans Day? Are we living in the past, attempting to capture a fleeting moment in time that has long since past? Certainly not!

What brings veterans together for Veterans Day is a bond formed in uniform. It is the bond that is entwined within our hearts and minds, which is simply stated: I shall not fail those with whom I serve.

It has been more than a quarter century since the guns fell silent in Vietnam. Longer still for Korea, and nearly a lifetime for World War II. Yet, that bond of military service, which transcends the years, compels us to come together and keep the faith with those with whom we served.

This final Veterans Day of the 20th century will include observances with the youngest generation of veterans, the men and women of the Persian Gulf War. These are Americans who sacrificed for others. These are Americans who continue to serve us in uniform. These are Americans who will gather on many more Veterans Days because they also feel that common bond.

As young American military members spend this day deployed to Kosovo, Bosnia, Iraq, at sea and in distant remote locations, it is appropriate for all of us as a nation to take the time to say "thank you."

Ironically, this Veterans Day comes on the heels of a disclosure by the Pentagon that a drug given our troops might cause Gulf War Illness. It is tragic that it took nearly a decade to make this discovery. Without a common bond between veterans, compelling them to keep the pressure on our government, there would have been no studies. It is this common bond that compels us to continue to struggle to find answers for what is right and demand that our nation provide a strong veterans health care system for those who gave so much when called upon. As veterans we have kept our bond of service to our nation. As veterans we ask that our government keep faith with us.

That is why we gather on this Veterans Day. That is why all Americans should gather with veterans this day. For America's veterans are a special group of men and women bonded through service, committed to the future.

Alan G. Lance Sr. is the national commander of the 2.8 million-member American Legion and the attorney general for Idaho.

There is no quick fix to prevent another Littleton tragedy

Real mental health needs of children must be addressed

By Virgil Bernero

In the wake of the horrible tragedy at Littleton's Columbine High School, students, parents and community leaders from around the country are asking, "could it happen here?" And almost always, unfortunately, the honest answer is "yes." No community in America is immune to the pervasive culture of violence that surrounds and enraptures too many of our young people.

If anything good can come out of such a terrible incident, it is the recommitment by all of us to making our schools and communities safe for our young people and preventing such tragedies in the future. We may even reexamine our society's fascination and glorification of violence in popular media — much of it aimed at young people.

But the bulk of proposals spilling out from Washington and state capitols across the country so far address issues like dress codes, security guards and metal detectors. The majority of proposals are well intended, if ineffectual. Elements of many of the ideas could indeed prove helpful. But even a community police officer in the school is only as effective as the follow-up services available (there was a security guard on duty at Columbine High School).

Our young people today are under pressure. And so are our school systems. We ask our public schools to do much more than teach, and they try to deliver. Every educator knows that the problems of society do not stop at the schoolhouse door; they often bubble to the surface in school, and may explode. It is time for policy makers to face this reality and provide our schools with the resources to deal effectively with vulnerable and at-risk children.

Educators can point out children most obviously in need of special attention — counseling or specialized educational or mental health treatment. But rarely is the mechanism in place to assure proper care and follow up for that student. Many educators are overwhelmed by the increasingly severe behavior and other problems children bring with them to school. They simply cannot address all the needs of today's diverse and sometimes troubled student body.

In the last 10 years, the state of Michigan has closed six of seven psychiatric treatment facilities for youngsters, leaving only Hawthorn Center in Northville, which is usually filled to its 112-bed capacity. Many children who would have received help at these hospitals are overwhelming schools and their families and ending up in youth detention centers around the state. And don't believe the state officials' fiction that private hospitals can fill the gap. Private facilities generally release children as soon as insurance coverage ends, usually one week or less, regardless of the need for continued care.

We are criminalizing children in need of mental health care just as we have the adult mental health system. Children who formerly received mental health treatment at the hands of trained professionals are now warehoused with little to no treatment in places like Oakland County's Children's Village or far worse facilities designed for criminals. What is happening is neither humane nor cost-effective — it is outrageous and unacceptable.

The tragedy at Columbine drives home the point that we must have greater collaboration and coordination — frankly a new, higher level of service from our community mental health agencies than ever before. It is not enough to provide service only to young people who are suicidal or homicidal at this moment. Local mental health agencies and state government must step up to their obligations and not leave educators holding the ball. We ignore the needs of our children at our peril and theirs.

Most communities in Michigan and across the country have been fortunate to avoid a major tragedy thus far. The time is now to put in place a system of care that can assure assessment, counseling and effective treatment for every child in need. The school is the ideal setting around which to build such a system of care. If we continue to bury our collective head in the sand and deny needed mental health treatment we will needlessly imprison more and more youngsters and suffer more Columbines.

Safe handgun storage

By Brad Lindberg
Staff Writer

"Gun safety has to be ingrained," said Mike Makowski, director of public safety in Grosse Pointe Woods.

If people are taught to respect guns, he said, they will know how to handle them safely. Mary Polkowski, a firearm instructor, said, "First and foremost, the safety on any firearm is you, the operator. Mechanical safeties can and do fail. So, just as I teach in my CCW handgun safety course, responsible gun handling and storage is an essential priority."

Polkowski is the first female firearm instructor on the Macomb County Michigan Gun Board list of approved firearm instructors. The National Safety Council said 220 children under age 14 died from playing with guns in 1997.

According to the Handgun Information Center, an organization of law enforcement officers based in Washington, D.C., many of the thousands of handguns stolen each year from law-abiding citizens are used to commit further crimes by the burglar. Other weapons are resold on the black market.

"The decision to own a handgun assumes you are prepared to undertake full-time responsibility for your weapon's safety and security," according to the Police Executive Research Forum. "You must protect yourself and your family members against misuse of the handgun by anyone who is either incompetent or unqualified to handle the weapon. In particular, you must secure your handgun from theft and misuse by children."

Police recommend that guns shouldn't be stored within sight or reach of children or accessible to burglars. Only the gun owner and spouse should know where your weapon is permanently stored. Polkowski, who teaches an anti crime awareness program called "Refuse to be a Victim," promotes the use of trigger locks. She likes "to be able to see, feel and recognize instantly that a gun is locked," she said.

Makowski added, "Not having a gun in the first place is the best protection."

But if you're a gun owner, police include the following advice for storing the weapon safely:

Store your handgun and its ammunition in separate locations. Lock the ammunition away.

Do not store our handgun in a bedside table or under your mattress or pillow. Never dispose of ammunition in the trash.

We love a parade

The annual Village holiday celebrations are just around the corner. The Santa Claus parade begins at 10:30 a.m. on Friday, Nov. 26. At 9 a.m. the Grosse Pointe Lions Club sponsored Jingle Bell Run begins. The two-mile run raises money for the Cystic Fibrosis Foundation. It begins at Grosse Pointe South High School's track and goes down Fisher to Kercheval to Cadiuex and loops back to South High School.

The Christmas tree lighting ceremony is scheduled to take place at the corner of Kercheval and St. Clair at 5 p.m. on Sunday, Nov. 21. It will be preceded by a concert by The Village Brass Quartet at 4:30 p.m.

The parade starts at South High School's parking lot, proceeds to Kercheval via Fisher and ends up in the Village. After the parade, shoppers can enjoy a weekend of Village Thanksgiving specials.

Life and baseball, not necessarily in that order

THE OMNIVOROUS READER

Grosse Pointe Public Library

By Helen Gregory
Grosse Pointe Public Library

Although the 1999 World Series is now a memory and Tiger Stadium is fading into history, my mind is on baseball. After all, the library is bringing Ernie Harwell to speak at Parcells at 7:30 p.m. tonight, Thursday, Nov. 11.

Baseball makes me cry. This might be easy to explain if I were a devoted Chicago Cubs fans, but that's not it. It might be growing up with Lou Gehrig's farewell speech quoted every season ("...today, I consider myself the luckiest man on the face of the earth...") But I think not.

Go figure. No other sport can do this. I asked my friend Saul about baseball's emotional hold. Saul says it's because baseball is like life.

I asked him why not other sports? Why not football? Why not hockey? Simple, Saul tells me. With those sports, the best team is sure to win. With baseball, there are too many variable to guarantee the win.

"What about the Yankees?" I asked him.

"It's complicated," he says. "Anything can happen. That's life. Look, if you want more, read Roger Angell. He'll tell you."

The Roger Angell books "Season Ticket," and "Late Innings," etc., are in the 796.357 with the other baseball books. You can find the history of the Tigers, the Stadium, the stats, the other teams, coaching advice and well-written memoirs.

Baseball has inspired more great writing than other sports.

Other sports have some novels, some poems, some well-written non-fiction. With baseball, the supply of really good stuff seems unending. Roger Kahn's "The Boys of Summer" and "Memories of Summer: When Baseball was an Art and Writing about it as a Game," Bernard Malamud's "The Natural," Mark Harris' "Bang the Drum Slowly," and Doris Kearn Goodwin's memoir "Wait Till Next Year" come immediately to mind.

And movies. Don't even start on movies. If you want them, check through our videos: "Field of Dreams," "Lean on Me," and any number of coaching and history films.

A lot of us grew up playing the game.

When I was growing up I thought it was a prerequisite for living in the neighborhood. We all played ball after school on a diamond the neighborhood took care of. We had no Little League teams. Or if there were, they weren't on our street.

I had faulty depth perception so I was no great asset to the team, but it kept the games going if we could get enough kids to play.

So we all did. Good players and definitely not-so-good players alike. It was like life.

Some of the kids could rattle off stats. They could do that, but didn't relaize they were doing math and were really good at it.

These days, they could use a computer to get their stats off the Web. My favorite Web address for major league baseball is www.majorleaguebaseball.com. To get straight to the Series try www.totalworldseries.com.

But if you're a bush league fan, you might want www.mudhens.com. to search out other addresses you could go to www.yahoo.com, a pretty popular search engine, find "sports" under "Recreation & Sports" on the Yahoo! home screen and follow the selections it offers.

But none of that explains why baseball makes me cry.

I think maybe it has something to do with miracles, strange miracles that freeze-frame youth, keeping Joe DiMaggio, Hank Aaron, Yogi Berra, Ted Williams and the other diamond legends alive in the memories of their fans.

But the miracles aren't about the big names. The really wonderful stuff is about players who aren't stars and may never be stars.

Like Jim Morris who played in the minors and hurt his arm, went through four operations including transplanting the tendon from his knee and retired before he began.

He got married, raised kids, coached high school for 10 years.

He turned out great teams and in catching practice, he burned the holes of the mitts of his catchers with fast balls clocked at 95 m.p.h.

Finally, he told the kids on his team, carpe diem. They told him back, same to you. They dragged him to the major league tryouts and he worked it out with his family. Tampa picked him up.

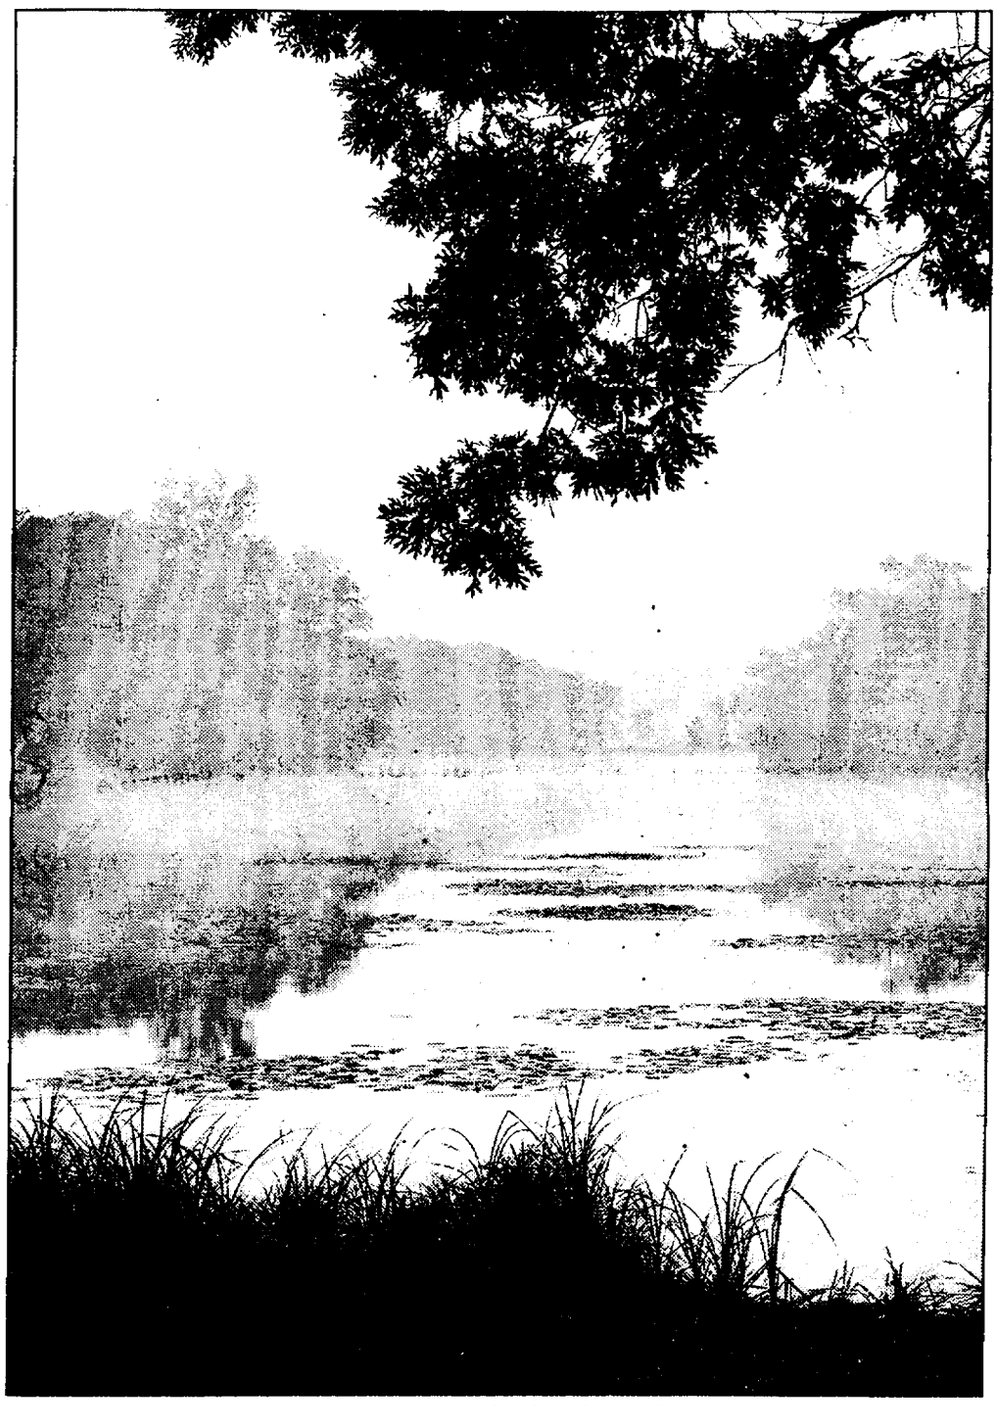

He's been clocked at 98 m.p.h., over the hill, with a bad arm.

But that's not what makes me cry.

I think what makes me cry is the games always start with the National Anthem.

And that always makes me cry.

Put your 'inner lens' to work

By Monte Nagler
Special Writer

One of the best ways to shift from "taking snapshots" to "making photographs" is to realize that the true lens of the camera is in the mind and heart of the photographer. This is the lens that lets us all appreciate the beauty in the world around us.

The lens that looks at a sunset, a flower, a dramatic landscape or the smile of a child and really gets "turned on" is not the lens in front of the camera — rather, it's the lens inside of us.

We all know about grammar in the English language. We know where to place the commas and the periods, just as with our cameras we know basically how to set shutter speeds and lens openings.

What is important is to do as the writer does. He is not as concerned about where the comma goes as to the words flowing from his heart.

The writer makes grammar a secondary thing, just as we have to make the mechanics of photography a secondary thing and concentrate on the importance of what we're feeling and trying to "say" with our photographs.

We can all learn to get proper exposure with our cameras. Photographs speak in a strong language.

They can bring out a person's raw emotions and can make someone happy, sad, even angry.

In short, a photograph and we as photographers have the ability to reach out and touch the nerves of human emotions that often the spoken or written word cannot.

We have the ability to make visible what others can only sense — what an exciting concept! But we can only do this when we learn not to underexpose our feelings. Remember, it's not the brush of the artist that produces the painting.

Put your "inside" lens to work for you and become a poet with your camera.

FREE "LIVING TRUST" SEMINAR
"What You Ought to Know About Living Trusts"
(What you don't know could cost your family thousands of dollars!)

If you own a home...or you have assets worth at least $100,000...you owe it to yourself—and your family—to get the facts on living trusts. If you think you're protected with a simple Will...think again... A Will guarantees that your estate will go through probate, which means that your family may not be able to take possession of your estate for many months, or even years!

Plus, if your estate is over $650,000 your family may owe estate taxes which could amount to 37-55% of the value of your estate. This means that your family may have to sell some assets just to pay the estate taxes!

A living trust avoids all this by avoiding probate and minimizing estate taxes. Plus, a living trust will protect your estate if you become incapacitated during your lifetime by avoiding a conservatorship. This means your estate will be managed as you see fit, not as a court-appointed guardian sees fit.

To find out more about the benefits of living trusts, attend one of these free seminars.

Is the Air You Breathe In Your Home Making You Sick?

Your duct system functions as the respiratory system of your home. When it becomes contaminated and congested, it should be cleaned so it can "breathe" normally and efficiently.

If you answer yes to any of the following questions, it may be time to have your air duct system professionally cleaned.

☐ Does anyone in the house have allergies, asthma, or other respiratory problems?

☐ Does anyone in your family suffer from headaches, nasal congestion, or other sinus problems at night or in the morning?

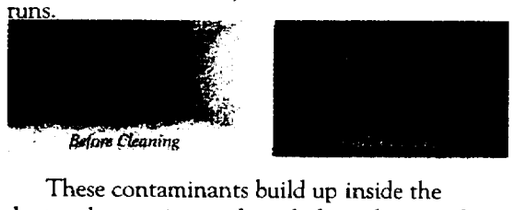

☐ Do you have dogs, cats or other pets?

☐ Do you notice "musty" or "stale" odors when the furnace or air conditioner runs?

☐ Does it seem like there is not enough air flow coming from your vents?

Dirty Duct Systems are a Major Source of Indoor Air Pollution

Dust, dirt, pollen, animal dander and other airborne contaminants are pulled into your duct system every time the furnace or air conditioner runs.

Before Cleaning

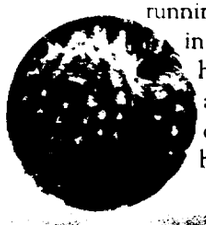

These contaminants build up inside the ductwork over time and can help make your duct system an ideal breeding ground for mold spores, bacteria, fungus, mildew and other microbes.

Each time the furnace or air conditioner is turned on, contaminants are spewed out and circulated throughout your home and affect the health and comfort of your family.

Family members who suffer from allergies asthma or other respiratory ailments as well as children and the elderly are especially vulnerable to the effects of indoor air pollutants.

The removal of contaminants from the entire HVAC system is recognized by industry experts as the most effective way to eliminate air duct pollutants. This is referred to as the "source removal" method of duct cleaning. In addition to the obvious health benefits, duct cleaning can help you maintain a cleaner home. It also helps to restore HVAC system capacity and lessen running time, resulting in lower heating and cooling bills.

Dear Homeowner,

My name is Gabriel Nicholas, owner of Breath of Life Air Duct Cleaning. I would like to take a moment to remind you that the ductwork in your home may need cleaning.

Some companies do a so-called "Duct cleaning" in less than 40 minutes. However, as you can see from the process outlined below, a thorough job requires a minimum of 3 hours in an average home.

My sons and I personally come to your home and perform all the work. We treat each house with the same care as we would our own.

My daughter Josephine, who runs the office, will answer any questions you may have regarding our service. Price is usually determined by the size of the home and the configuration of the ductwork.

Please give us a call for a free estimate and for references of our many satisfied customers.

Sincerely,

Gabriel Nicholas

Important Facts About Indoor Air Quality and Your Family's Health

The quality of the air we breathe indoors has become an increasingly important environmental concern. Following are facts that have been determined by recognized authorities in the fields of health and air quality:

FACT:
50% of all illnesses are either caused by, or aggravated by, polluted indoor air. (AMERICAN COLLEGE OF ALLERGISTS)

FACT:
The levels of some hazardous pollutants in indoor air has been found to be up to 70 times greater than in outdoor air. (USEPA)

FACT:
Studies have shown that two out of three indoor air quality problems involve the HVAC System.

FACT:
One out of six people who suffer from allergies do so because of the direct relationship to fungi and bacteria in air duct systems. (TOTAL HEALTH AND BETTER HEALTH MAGAZINES)

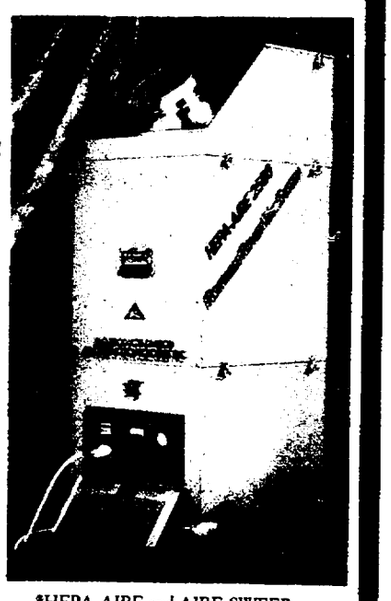

FACT:
Children and the elderly are especially affected by polluted indoor air. (DEPARTMENT OF CONSUMER AFFAIRS)

Our HEPA-AIRE Duct Cleaning System performs State-of-the-Art Source Removal Duct Cleaning

The HEPA-AIRE method used by our company assures you that your ducts are being cleaned with the most advanced source removal equipment available. This high tech, state-of-the-art system is used by leading professional duct cleaners throughout North America, and is widely recognized as the most significant breakthrough in duct cleaning equipment technology in the past 30 years.

The key components of this system are the patented HEPA-AIRE portable power vacuum and AIRE-SWEEP® compressor. This system enables our technicians to reach and thoroughly clean your entire duct system with minimal noise and disruption.

First, the HEPA-AIRE power vacuum is connected to the duct system near the furnace. Next, 1 inch access holes are drilled into the air ducts. Long lengths of air hose with special 360° high velocity nozzles are connected to the compressor and "snaked" through the entire duct system, dislodging debris that has accumulated on inner duct surfaces. The HEPA-AIRE unit creates a powerful vacuum, pulling dislodged contaminants into its filtration system. This filtration system is so efficient that it captures contaminants 1/300th the diameter of a human hair and returns filtered "hospital grade" air to your home. And, it's so quiet you'll hardly know it's running.

The duct system is also brushed with an electric powered AIRE-SWEEP Power Brush System.

This power agitation system effectively removes caked on debris from various types and configurations of ductwork. This consists of a revolving brush with special air nozzle located behind the brush head being snaked through the ductwork. This special air nozzle helps blast the debris loosened by the brush into the air stream of the power vacuum and is operated in both a reverse and forward direction. This unique system enables the simultaneous brushing and air sweeping of the duct system. Once your duct system has been cleaned, we reseal all access holes and your ducts are returned to "like new" condition.

Extended driving also means running the heater or air conditioner, which causes radically different temperatures on the inside and outside of the windshield. Engineers call this temperature stress "thermal shock." Dings call it "growth food."

Fixing a small ding costs as little as $50 to $60. Replacing a cracked windshield can cost hundreds of dollars; on some cars, the cost is much more. Dings that have a cone shape, a circle deep in the glass, or a star shape with points spreading out are the most likely to expand into a cracked windshield.

"Once a ding or star expands, windshield replacement is often the only option," said Leo Cyr, vice president for marketing at NOVUS Windshield Repair.

NOVUS, with more than 2,600 specially trained windshield repair technicians worldwide, was founded 28 years ago. The company has repaired or replaced nearly 20 million windshields in cars, vans, pickups and sport-utility vehicles.

"We repair whenever possible. If necessary, we also do replacement, but that is a last resort. We prefer to fix, not replace," said Cyr.

NOVUS repairs windshields without removing the glass from the car. This benefit of repair work means the job is done faster and the factory installed seal between the windshield and the vehicle body remains intact. Since passenger side air bags deploy off the windshield, preserving the factory seal is an important safety consideration.

Often, a NOVUS repair can be done at no cost to the vehicle owner. Many insurance companies pay the full cost of the NOVUS repair by waiving the policy holder's deductible. Even so, some consumers prefer to pay the reasonable cost of repair directly and avoid filing an insurance claim.

"Windshield repair appeals to cost-conscious insurance companies, because repair is the most economical solution to windshield damage," said Cyr. "The savings generated by windshield repair help insurance companies keep their premium rates affordable and competitive. That means the policyholder benefits twice. Strength and clarity is restored to the windshield, and, repair contributes to the stability of auto insurance rates. Everybody wins."

The key to assuring an effective windshield ding repair is to act quickly. Do not attempt any repair yourself, without special equipment and training, all you will do is contaminate the ding, making repairs more difficult if not impossible. You can "band-aid" patch by putting a piece of clear packing tape over the ding. Make sure the tape doesn't obstruct your vision. The tape won't prevent the ding from spreading, but will protect it from contamination.

Until the ding is fixed, avoid washing the vehicle, the soap and water can contaminate the ding. Also, don't run the defroster, heater or air conditioning on high settings and don't park the vehicle in the sun. Rapid changes in interior temperature or prolonged exposure to sunlight can stress and weaken the windshield, causing the ding to expand.

If you get a ding while driving on vacation, don't wait until you get home to have it repaired. The longer you drive with a ding, the more likely it is to expand into a cracked windshield.

Birthday in the Big Apple

Local auto dealer Joe Ricci celebrated his 50th birthday last weekend by meeting with friends and family in New York City. About 20 guests were invited from as far as Seattle to Clearwater and everywhere in between.

The weekend event included dinner in "Little Italy" on Friday night. Saturday began with a visit to the "Today Show" and a day of shopping in the SOHO district. The weekend festivity concluded with dinner at Sardi's and the play "Chicago."

"Everybody had a wonderful time," said Ricci. "It was a great way to spend an otherwise bleak day."

Towing doesn't have to be a drag

(ARA) — Common sense tells us that taking care of our automobile keeps it running well. It also makes sense that today's hardest working vehicles — SUVs, trucks and other 4x4s subject to extreme operating conditions like towing and off-roading — need extra protection. These powerful engines work harder, but only if you treat them right.

The most important element in maintaining your engine is motor oil. For example, did you know that your oil provides approximately 40 percent of the engine's cooling requirements? Changing your oil every 3,000 to 5,000 miles helps, but there are better ways to protect your engine.

Adding Rislone Upgrade to your motor oil, for example, creates a synthetic blend lubricant that really pulls its weight. Independent laboratory tests confirm that Upgrade substantially reduces friction, improves thermal stability and increases the load carrying capabilities of regular motor oil.

Upgrade is just one way to care for your engine. If you suspect that deposits in the crankcase have robbed engine power, a product such as Rislone Engine Treatment can restore efficiency. It penetrates piston rings and bearing surfaces to remove sludge and varnish, quiets noisy valves and lifters, and then goes on to promote a clean, smoother-running engine. To reduce oil burning and exhaust smoke while quieting noisy engines and cushioning worn parts, try Rislone Ring Seal. Its high-shear polymers increase oil viscosity to seal worn pistons and rings, so you can regain lost compression.

Towing doesn't have to be a drag, and test results prove it. To learn how your can help your SUV, truck or car engine grow long and prosper, ask for a free copy of our informative booklet, "How to Treat Your Engine Right," just call (800) 522-1170 or visit www.Rislone.com.

Mercedes-Benz SLK 230 Kompressor better than it looks — and it looks great

It is not unusual to drive a car a few days and discover it is not as good as it looks. But that is not a problem with the 2000 Mercedes-Benz SLK 230 Kompressor. It's better than it looks. And it looks pretty good.

I walked around the snappy little sportster. It looked awfully small, particularly for what I had in mind — to drive it to the East Coast for several days of business and relaxing.

This little two-seater didn't have much room in it. And it has a trick top that hydraulically folds up and puts itself away in the trunk. That's cool, but it takes up trunk space, and I was hoping to put a few bags in the trunk.

The top mechanism on the Mercedes-Benz SLK 230 is a wonder. By pressing a single button, the top unlatches itself from the windshield frame, a panel opens behind the rear window, the top folds itself into the trunk, closes the panel and lowers the side windows. Instant convertible!

Reverse the process — that is, push the button the other way — and you get a snug, tight hardtop coupe. No struggling to make the top mesh with its connections in the windshield frame, it does it all by itself.

And that's not the only wonder about this car. In the trunk is a vinyl canopy into which the top positions itself. Under that canopy one can stow luggage, but not on it. Four bags of clothing, computer equipment and reading material fit in the trunk under that canopy. It was snug, but it fit.

On the highway, this little car that looks about the size of a Mazda Miata performed, handled and rode like what it is a bona fide Mercedes-Benz.

The 230 in its name stands for the SLK's 185-horsepower 2.3-liter 16-valve four-cylinder engine with variable valve timing, which propels this little rear-wheel-drive sportster with authority to 60 miles per hour in about eight seconds.

The Kompressor in its name means intercooled supercharger, which gives the engine an extra and immediate kick.

New for 2000 are two special Designo editions, which include special paint, trim and interiors in either copper or electric green hues. Our test car was a copper Designo, a bit gaudy for a Mercedes perhaps, but Mercedes is aiming this car at a younger buying segment than it usually gets.

To reach that younger market, Mercedes introduced the SLK roadster in 1997 to an enthusiastic reception. The SLK's big selling point is its exclusive retractable steel roof that, when raised, makes the car as tight and insulated as a sedan. In less than 30 seconds, it magically changes into a cool convertible.

An optional sport package, which our test car had, includes a muscular-looking body kit and thick 17-inch tires mounted to AMG Monoblock wheels.

The Designo editions with special Copper or Electric Green paint and trim are also available this year. Ours was Copper, and it took a little while for an old guy like me to get used to the bright copper, almost orange, interior trim, even on the steering wheel.

Front and side airbags, ABS and automatic slip control are standard safety features. The SLK also has a reinforced A-pillar, integrated roll bars behind each seat and emergency tensioning seatbelt retractors for enhanced rollover protection.

The SLK lets you know how fast you're traveling and what's going on under the hood by means of retro gauges with polished aluminum bezels. Stainless steel, chrome and carbon fiber accents, along with leather upholstery, complete the very attractive interior look.

Bose audio and automatic dual-zone climate controls are standard. Heated seats are extra.

Fuel efficiency, not usually a major concern of Mercedes buyers, is marginally better with automatic transmission than with the standard five-speed manual. The EPA estimates are 21 mpg city/30 mpg highway with manual, 22 city/30 manual with automatic.

The SLK comes with a four-year/50,000-mile warranty on the entire car plus unlimited roadside service.

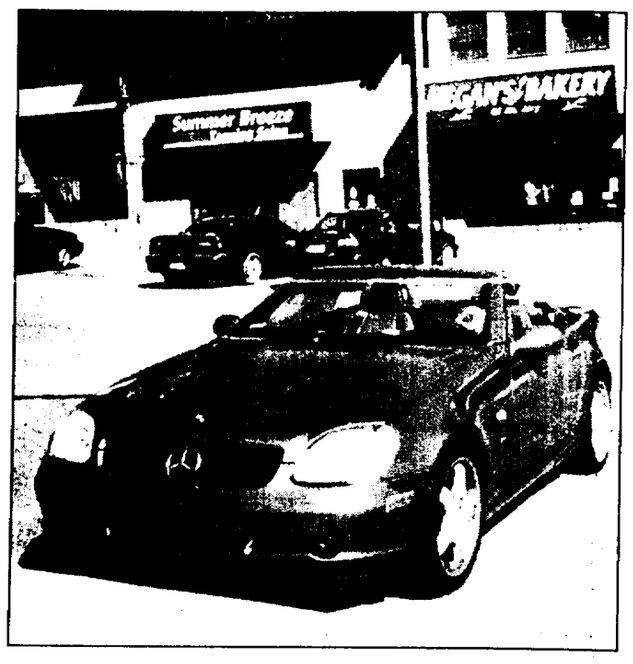

Small sports cars have made a strong comeback after almost fading from the market, so the SLK has plenty of competition. More makers are introducing them and others are upgrading existing models.

Notable rivals for your sports car business include the new Audi TT and Porsche Boxster, along with BMW Z3 and Chevrolet Corvette.

With a base list price that starts at $41,595, the little sportsters such as the Mazda Miata, are not really in the same luxury market.

Opting for a Designo package adds $4,700 for Copper, $4,250 for Electric Green. The sports package tacks on another $4,050. Add $1,795 for integrated CD changer and portable cellular telephone, $900 for automatic transmission and $605 for heated front seats, and you're moving out of the mid-price range into a real Mercedes neighborhood. Our test vehicle stickered out at just over $51,000.

The SLK has quite a different personality than the Corvette or the Porsche and it is the only one to offer the benefits of a hardtop and the pleasures of top-down cruising in a single, easy-to-use package. That might be all it needs.

Winter Hazards Awareness Week slated for this week

Last winter, parts of Michigan experienced the worst storms in many years. Record snowfall and very cold air turned some of the enjoyment of the season to tragedy. To focus attention on winter safety precautions, Gov. John Engler has declared Nov. 7 through 13 as Winter Hazards Awareness Week in Michigan.

"Last winter will be remembered for significant winter weather around the New Year's holiday," says Darin Figurskey of the National Weather Service and member of the Michigan Committee for Severe Weather Awareness.

Most memorable was the blizzard on Jan. 2, which brought heavy snow and wind gusts as high as 65 mph to many areas of Michigan.

In southern lower Michigan, snowfall totals around a foot were common, with a few locations receiving up to two feet of snow.

Many roads remained impassable for days, and some schools were closed for up to two weeks after the storm.

In parts of lower Michigan, this was the most significant snowstorm in 20 years, since the blizzard of 1978.

Lake-effect snow was prevalent in the wake of the winter storm, and very cold air moving over Lake Superior through Jan. 4 resulted in a final snowfall total of 31 inches in Marquette. The very cold air was also responsible for three deaths and 29 injuries in southeast Michigan.

During the early afternoon of Dec. 31, those conditions contributed to a 100-car pileup on I-75 in Crawford County, which resulted in one death and seven injuries. Due to the accident, northbound I-75 was closed for several hours.

Finally, in addition to the snow, a pair of significant ice storms affected upper Michigan, one in east-central upper Michigan on Jan. 23, and another late winter event on April 4 in the Keweenaw Peninsula.

Ice accumulations were up to a half-inch thick and power outages lasted three days at some locations.

According to the Michigan Committee for Severe Weather Awareness, no matter what the winter weather hazard — from extreme cold and snow to ice and wind — everyone in Michigan should be prepared for winter's dangers.

Winter storms can immobilize a region, disrupt utilities, and even cause flooding.

"Now is the time to prepare for the unexpected," says Figurskey. "There is no need to be caught by surprise no matter how winter tries to sneak up on us."

Those supplies should include first-aid kits, battery-powered radios, flashlights, extra batteries, matches, blankets, warm clothes and non-perishable foods.

A winter storm watch indicates that severe winter weather conditions may affect your area.

A winter storm warning indicates that severe winter conditions are imminent and you should take immediate precautions.

A snow advisory is issued for the Lower Peninsula when snowfalls of 4 or 5 inches (average of the forecast range) are expected in a 12-hour period. In the Upper Peninsula, a snow advisory would be issued when 4 to 7 inches of snow are anticipated in that same time period.

A wind chill advisory or wind chill warning may be issued when strong winds increase the danger of exposure to cold air.

If residents have to go outside during severe winter weather, they should wear loose-fitting, light-weight warm clothing in layers.

Outer garments should be tightly woven and water repellent, and they should wear a wool hat and mittens.

It is important to avoid overexertion, such as shoveling heavy snow, pushing a car or walking in deep snow.

Sweating from these activities could lead to wind chill and hypothermia.

During the winter, motorists should take extra precautions on the roads.

First, motorists should clear ice and snow from windows, mirrors, hoods, roofs, headlights, taillights and trunks.

Drivers should slow down when the visibility and road conditions are bad. Remember, if you have anti-lock brakes, you should apply steady pressure — never pump the brakes.

Grosse Pointe Unitarian Church to hold lectures

Rabbi Sherwin Wine will share his reflections on the 20th century in a series of three lectures at Grosse Pointe Unitarian Church.

The public is invited to attend.

The lectures will begin at 7:30 p.m. on Thursdays, Nov. 18, Dec. 2 and Dec. 9, at the church, 17150 Maumee in the City of Grosse Pointe.

A fee of $8 per lecture will be collected at the door.

The program kicks off Nov. 18, when Wine will speak about "War and Depression." On Dec. 2, Wine will discuss "Fascism and Communism." His Dec. 9 topic will be "The Wonders of Science."

Senior Men's Club turkey trot

The Senior Men's Club will hold a Turkey Trot at the Grosse Pointe War Memorial on Wednesday, Nov. 17, from 6 to 10:30 p.m.

This year's event is a special celebration of the 40th anniversary of the founding of the Grosse Pointe Senior Men's Club.

Mel Stander and his Gentlemen of Swing will be performing.

A turkey dinner will be served along with additional entertainment and dancing.

NASDAQ stocks burst 3,000 level, up 41% this year

Last week, technology stocks beat the DJI and the S&P 500.

By Joseph Mengden

For the week, the NASDAQ rose 135 points, or 4.5 percent, to close at a record 3,102.

For the year-to-date, it has gained 41.5 percent, already beating its 1998 full-year profit of 40 percent.

Reported trades on NASDAQ exceeded 1 billion shares each day, averaging 1.27 billion per day.

Since both the buying broker and the selling broker report the same trade, the actual volume of shares traded is about half those reported.

The S&P 500 was up a mere 7 points on the week, as portfolio managers and traders focused their attention on the tech stocks.

Overall, the market, as measured by the Dow, has staged remarkable recovery since its lows of Oct. 15

Many floor traders believe that the market is into its usual year-end seasonal rally, caused by positive cash flow into equities from year-end dividend payments, and bonus and profit-sharing distributions.

The bond markets rallied again last week, on favorable economic news. The bellwether 30-year T-Bond now yields 6.04 percent, up in price and down in yield from 6.40 percent about two weeks ago.

Watch your TV news next Tuesday, Nov. 16. Greenspan & Company will announce its decision on interest rates.

Vox populi

The Dow Jones Industrial Averages are formulated by newspaper editors, the S&P 500 Index is devised by security analysts, but who says what stocks are preferred by investors?

In the early post-war (WW-II) era, Merrill Lynch had a nickname, "We, the People." Some say it reflected the lawyer-like name of the firm: "Merrill, Lynch, Pierce, Fenner & Beane." What a hullabaloo they had when Beane was replaced later by Smith!

Others say that the "We" reflected the fact that Merrill had the largest number of stock brokers — on and off Wall Street — of any firm at that time (and ever since). And they didn't want their brokers called brokers, so they called them "account representatives."

Originally, Merrill was thought of as a "retail house," because they encouraged individuals to invest directly into stocks.

For decades, they did not handle mutual fund investments. Now, of course, Merrill is a powerhouse on Wall Street and Main Street, in all facets of investing and underwriting.

Let's talk...STOCKS

For some time, Merrill has furnished the New York Times the names of "The Favorites," the 16 stocks held by the largest number of its customer accounts.

The Times publishes a daily stock table listing these stocks, yesterday's closing price, the daily change in price and in percent, and the year-to-date price change in percent.

Of the 16 stocks, 13 are listed on NYSE and three on NASDAQ.

And 11 of the 16 are part of the new 30 DJI. All 16 are included in the S&P 500 Index of "big-cap" stocks.

Although many of these stocks participate in many industries, if you listed them under one predominant industry, you'd find nine stocks in the "technical" category of computers and telecommunications.

Another three of the stocks are primarily in health care, with two each in industrial and consumer products.

How many of these 16 "Favorites" do you own?

Remember, these 16 stocks are held by the largest number of accounts at Merrill, listed alphabetically. The stocks may not be the same if they were calculated by market valuation (shares held times market price).

How have these stocks done pricewise recently?

Compared to the three major indices, which all post positive year-to-date results, half of these "Favorites" are "under water" (AT&T, Coca-Cola, Compaq, Disney, Exxon, IBM, Pfizer and SBC Communications). That certainly doesn't speak well for John Q. Investor!

On the bright side, the other eight stocks are in the sunshine, showing year-to-date gains (Bell Atlantic, Cisco Systems, GE, Intel, Johnson & Johnson, Lucent Technologies, Merck and Microsoft).

The new DJI is up 16.6 percent year-to-date, but six of the "Favorites" did better (Cisco Systems, GE, Intel, Johnson & Johnson, Lucent Technologies and Microsoft).

Compared to the S&P 500, which is up 19 percent, the same six stocks did better again.

With the NASDAQ Composite Index up 41.5 percent year-to-date, only one "Favorite" did better, Cisco Systems is up 58.2 percent!

Survey: ATMs R Y2oK

Eight out of 10 ATM/debit cardholders in the United States expect to be able to use ATMs on Jan. 1, 2000, according to a new nationwide Gallup survey.

Furthermore, nearly 79 percent of those surveyed said they expect Y2K to "have little or no impact" on their personal finances, indicating that there is broad-based consumer confidence in the financial industry overall.

"We're excited that consumer confidence is high, since the financial industry has invested so much in Y2K-readiness," said Ronald V. Congemi, president and CEO of Star Systems Inc., which commissioned the study. STAR is the largest electronic banking network in the United States, extending coast-to-coast with the recent merger of the HONOR and STAR networks.

"Clearly, the public is becoming more confident as they learn more about Y2K preparations, including testing, that the financial and electronic funds transfer industries have been making.

"The public is being realistic, however, when it comes to preparing for the possibility of an isolated or temporary interruption of some sort," Congemi said.

About 64 percent of the survey's participants said they plan to "withdraw and set aside extra cash" prior to the millennium, although more than half (52 percent) said the withdrawal amount won't exceed the normal amount planned for a weekday, weekend and/or holiday.

"Hopefully, those people will follow the advice of numerous government and consumer organizations, recommending that people make any withdrawals in small increments well in advance of December 31," Congemi said.

Of the 1,606 adults who completed the telephone survey, 62.5 percent said they normally make ATM cash withdrawals one or more times per week, and 48 percent of them routinely use their ATM/debit card to make purchases in grocery stores, gas stations or discount stores one or more times per week.

The real costs of rent-to-own may not be a good deal

by Lori Z. Bahnmueller

During college, a friend and I shared an apartment and experienced a bare-bones lifestyle.

While our abode was never a candidate for the cover of House Beautiful, it was good enough since we knew our situation was temporary, and that someday, real jobs would provide us with the means to afford something better.

Our next door neighbors, on the other hand, had quite a showplace. We didn't know them well because they weren't fellow students like most of us in the complex but we did occasionally mingle in the hall.

Two delivery men from the rent-to-own store down the street brought in their latest acquisition: a washer and dryer.

Our neighbor couldn't help but brag that rent-to-own not only furnished his apartment but also provided his ticket to never again having to fight with other patrons at the laundromat for the next available washer or feed the dryer endless amounts of quarters to get his clothes thoroughly dry.

We hadn't considered this particular retail establishment and investigated obtaining these same appliances to save us from the laundromat headache.

We determined that rent-to-own was no deals, and the laundromat met our needs.

Rent-to own stores typically lease furniture, appliances, stereos and televisions for weekly or monthly payments with an option to own within an established time frame.

In recent years, these stores have begun to offer a wider variety of merchandise like lamps, vacuum cleaners and even diamond rings.

Financial specialists contend people who cannot get credit or are wary of long-term financial obligations are most attracted to the rent-to-own philosophy but that they aren't usually aware of the high costs associated with doing business with them. The weekly or monthly charges seem small, and service is done at no additional charge.

"People think a 21 percent interest rate for a credit purchase is high, but that may be low compared to rent-to-own expenses," said Judy Wessel, former home management and equipment specialist for Ohio State University Extension. "Those costs could easily compare to a 50 to 100 percent interest rate."

To illustrate this point (excluding tax), there are a number of ways to purchase a $296 microwave.

- Using cash, the microwave simply costs $296.
- Putting the microwave on layaway for three months with a $5 handling fee brings the total cost to $301.
- Buying it with the credit card, paying $19.56 over 18 months yields an interest cost of $56.08, equaling $352.08.
- Choosing the rent-to-own method, 18 equal payments of $59.08 equate to a grand total of $1,063.44 for the microwave — more than three-and-a half times the original purchase price.

With the early purchase option, $59.08 over six months plus a one-time payment of $148 make the $296 microwave end up costing almost twice as much at $502.48.

"These stores can be deadly," said Mark Rosen, community relations manager for the Michigan Credit Counseling Center. "It's important to calculate the risk of financing these stores offer."

Financial specialists also agree that most shoppers believe this method is the only way they think they can afford something they really need or want and can take home immediately with little or no hassle.

Critics believe the rent-to-own industry, along with pawn shops and check-cashing stores, target low-income customers or those with questionable or no credit.

For this reason, they are advocating similar regulations that protect middle-class borrowers from exorbitant interest rates. Despite the controversy, others believe renting makes sense.

"If an individual takes a temporary position in another city, he can rent furniture and appliances and not have to worry about selling the items when he moves from there," said Wessel.

Think about the amount of money you want to spend, the time you want (or can afford) to pay off the item and whether you plan to ultimately own it.

The shorter the time you need the item, like folding chairs for a party, the more reasonable it is to rent than purchase outright.

With the wide range of purchase options available today, consumers should carefully evaluate each one to determine the best deal.

Internet scams can target business, too

Scams against businesses have become much more sophisticated thanks to the Internet.

Computer technology that makes it easier for us to do business also makes it easier for con artists to do their deeds.

The Better Business Bureau suggests the best way to avoid being scammed is to educate your staff how to spot Internet scams and how to avoid them.

- Beware of "techno-scam artists" promising to create and post your company's site, for a very low fee, but never follow through.
- Be cautious about downloading unsolicited E-mail. Some attachment files contain a virus that can wreak havoc on your hard drive.
- Be careful of E-mail messages threatening your company with legal action unless you pay for an overdue account. In many cases such messages request you to call an 809 area code (Caribbean) for more information. If you do, you'll get a recording, and the pay-per-call phone number could end up costing your company hundreds of dollars.
- Be skeptical of offers to list your company's name in CD-ROM, Internet or fax directories. Before listing your company in these types of directories, verify their claimed circulation/distribution and make sure they exist. Ask for a sample CD-ROM or fax Directory. Call references at other companies using these services.

Web site attackers can target your server and change information on your Web page, steal credit card information, enter orders and redirect your shipments. There are also browser attackers who send incriminating electronic mail and make it seem as if it's coming from you.

To combat these and other types of Internet scams, the BBB suggests doing the following:

- Always collect and check references carefully.
- Take steps to protect your office computers. Always run an anti-virus program to help prevent computer viruses.
- Instruct your staff to carefully evaluate E-mails from businesses they do not recognize, before determining whether to respond
- Always check out online companies with an impartial outside organization, like the BBB, before paying for merchandise or services. Contact your BBB for a reliability report or look for the BBBOnline Reliability Seal (www.bbbonline.org) on the company's Web page.

The write stuff

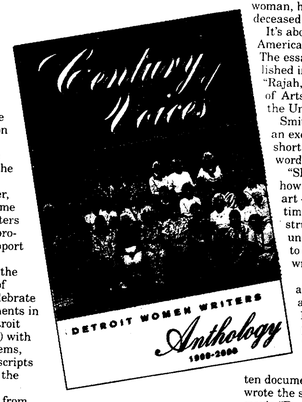

Detroit Women Writers publishes the best of its first 100 years

By Bonnie Caprara
Staff Writer

Thirteen women got together to form the Detroit Press Club in June 1900. Founders were members of the press, who at that time wrote about society and family issues. Others were poets and authors of fiction and non-fiction.

In 1904 a group of male writers took the name of the club and excluded women from its membership roster, so the club changed its name to the Detroit Women Writers Club. They flourished by providing a community of support and education.

Ninety-nine years later, the 160 women and two men of Detroit Women Writers celebrate its century of accomplishments in "A Century of Voices" (Detroit Women Writers, 1999, $16) with an anthology of essays, poems, articles, short stories and scripts from members throughout the years.

Selections include pieces from 87 past and current members whose work ranges from the quaint and proper poems by one of the group's founding members, Alice Elinor Bartlett, to the dark and nightmarish excerpt of a novel by best-selling author and former University of Detroit instructor Joyce Carol Oates.

It's about "what mobile America does to us," Smith said. The essay was originally published in the 1992-93 volume of "Rajah, the Rackham Journal of Arts and Humanities" at the University of Michigan.

Smith said the story is also an exercise in developing a short piece of fiction in 1,000 words.

"Short fiction teaches you how to create the piece of art — how to deal with time, perspective and structure. A person has to understand those things to become a good fiction writer," she said.

Smith started writing at age 50 and has been a DWW member since 1987. She has also been published in Arizona Quarterly, Heritage and Tee-Up magazines. She has written documentaries for PBS; she wrote the screenplay for the video movie "Running Free;" and she had an award-winning story published in The Pen Syndicated Fiction Project.

She wrote a novel about a midwestern farm wife whose goals are to produce an heir and to build her dream house. "June" is slated to be released by Lintel in March 2000.

Smith is an amalgamation of the membership of DWW. As DWW member and Voices co-author Corrine Abatt said, "While home and family will always be important subjects for women writers, at this juncture, the approach tends to be more universal, more applicable to the shrinking global environment."

The same could be said for the other Pointe residents who are members of DWW. Leontine Cadieux and Nancy Solak, both of Grosse Pointe Farms, Mary McNair of Grosse Pointe Woods, and former Grosse Pointe Park resident Ruth Cain have their articles published in several area magazines.

Ellen Creager of Grosse Pointe Woods is the health and fitness writer for the Detroit Free Press. Farms resident Ann Dumais McCormick has two novels under her belt. Park resident Josephine Wunsch has published 10 books for young adults, all part of the permanent collection of Michigan literature at Grand Valley State College.

"We're the oldest ongoing professional writers group in the United States," said Cain, who chairs DWW's annual writers conference at Oakland University, the organization's largest event.

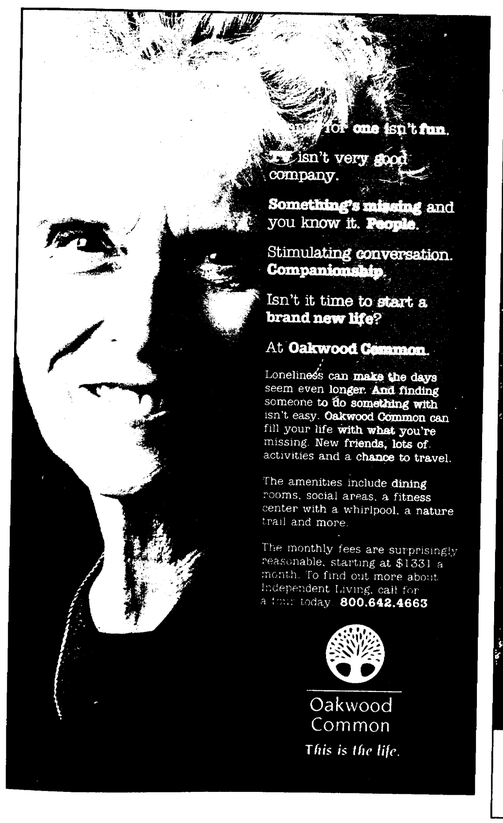

Mary Beth Smith

The conference is held every October.

Members of DWW meet monthly at the main branch of the Detroit Public Library to network and critique work. Some individual members meet on their own to discuss works based on specific styles and genres of writing.

"It is the shared experience of such a moment of creation and the urge to keep repeating and improving upon it that lights the fire and fuels the friendship among writers," said Abatt. "That is what unites the diverse personalities that have in the past and continue to make up the membership of Detroit Women Writers."

Local author Mary Beth Smith will read selections from "A Century of Voices" at Barnes and Noble at the Pointe Plaza shopping center on Saturday, Nov. 20 at 4 p.m. "A Century of Voices" is available at local book stores or can be purchased by calling Detroit Women Writers at (313) 255-6274.

Mr. and Mrs. Eric David Hall

Stumb-Hall

Mary Beth Stumb, daughter of Charles and Patricia Stumb of the City of Grosse Pointe, married Eric David Hall, son of Walter and Ginny Hall of St. Petersburg, Fla., on July 3, 1999, at Our Lady Star of the Sea Catholic Church.

Monsignor Dennis Harrity and the Rev. Robert Gibbons of St. Petersburg officiated at the 6:30 p.m. ceremony, which was followed by a reception at the Grosse Pointe Yacht Club.

The bride wore a white satin and silk organza gown trimmed with white satin and a matching veil decorated with fresh stephanotis. She carried a bouquet of white roses.

Bridesmaids were Kelly Mathews, Bridget Paull, Theresa Sullivan, Kristen Simon, Alyssa Simon and Elizabeth Williamson, all of Grosse Pointe; Lee Hellman and Nancy Fowler of Chicago; Gretchen Clearwater and Danielle Spoor of St. Petersburg.

Groomsmen were the bride's brother, Charles E. Stumb III of Porto Seguro, Brazil; the groom's brother, Peter Hall of St. Petersburg; and Stewart Brew, Derek Casteel, Matthew McNulty and Matthew Moore, all of St. Petersburg; and David Mendelblatt of Dallas.

Musician was Kemmer Weinhaus. Soloist was Julie Testori. The eighth-grade girls' choir from Our Lady Star of the Sea School sang.

The bride earned a bachelor of science degree from the University of Dayton. She is a third-grade teacher at the Canterbury School in St. Petersburg.

The groom earned a bachelor of arts degree from Stetson University in Deland, Fla., and is vice president of Golden Triangle in Florida.

The newlyweds traveled to northern Michigan. They live in St. Petersburg.

Mr. and Mrs. Raymond William Colby

Vier-Colby

Dianne Marie Vier, daughter of Gerard E. and Ann Vier of Grosse Pointe Farms, married Raymond William Colby, son of Raymond L. and Margaret Colby of Grosse Pointe Woods, on July 31, 1999, at Our Lady Star of the Sea Catholic Church.

The Rev. G. Michael Bugarin, Monsignor Dennis Harrity and Auxiliary Bishop Allen H. Vigneron officiated at the 5:30 p.m. ceremony, which was followed by a reception at the Lochmoor Club.

Bridesmaids were the groom's sister, Catherine Colby of Alexandria, Va.; Debra Costner of Hamilton, Ohio; Jennifer Oris of St. Louis; Laura Clark of West Branch; and Sue Juszkowski of Macomb Township.

Attendants were floor-length navy blue crepe sleeveless dresses and carried bouquets of roses, daisies, carnations, statice and ivy in a mixture of colors.

The best man was the groom's brother, Robert Colby of St. Clair Shores.

The mother of the bride wore an ankle-length royal blue crepe dress with a beaded lower bodice and corsage of white daisies and pink carnations.

Holly Smith was the soloist. Derek Vier was the violinist. Readers were John Colby, Janell Vier and Sister Catherine Colby. Program ushers were Raquel Vier, Emily Vier and Elizabeth Vier.

The bride earned a bachelor of science degree in education from the University of Dayton and a master's degree from the University of Central Florida. She teaches elementary school in Bloomfield Hills.

The groom earned a bachelor of science degree in marketing/communications from Xavier University. He is a recruiter with EDS.

The newlyweds traveled to Camden, Maine, and Boston. They live in Royal Oak.

Mr. and Mrs. Ryan James Strowger

Sestak-Strowger

The best man was the groom's brother, Brad Strowger of Somerville, Mass.

The bride graduated from Cortland State University. She is a fifth grade teacher in Fairfax County, Va.

The groom graduated from Colby College. He is a meetings manager for a non-profit trade association in Washington, D.C.

Quilter-Prather

Susan Brady Quilter, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Robert Quilter III of Grosse Pointe Farms, married Kenneth Earl Prather Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Earl Prather of the City of Grosse Pointe, on May 1, 1999, at St Paul Catholic Church.

Monsignor John Zenz officiated at the 2:30 p.m. ceremony, which was followed by a reception at the Country Club of Detroit.

The bride wore a white peau de soie sleeveless gown that featured a bateau neckline and cummerbund, a full gathered skirt accented with buttons in the back, flowers and two streamers over a chapel-length train. She wore her mother's antique Brussels lace veil and carried a bouquet of white roses, stephanotis, lilies and peonies tied with a large satin bow.

Bridesmaids were Elizabeth Drummy of the City of Grosse Pointe; Kelly Jacobs of Bowie, Md.; Peggy Francis and Theresa Ronquillo, both of Chicago; Elizabeth Rogers of Lynnfield, Mass.; Pembe Sowers of Canton; and Neasa Thronton of Pottstown, Pa.

Attendants wore long navy satin sleeveless dresses that featured jewel necklines and dropped waistlines. They carried loose nosegays of tulips, peonies, delphinium, iris, roses and lilies in shades of light pink, light yellow, white and lavender.

Groomsmen were the bride's brother, Tip Quilter of Chicago, and Pat Alle, Peter Bogos, Howard Capponi, Ryan Molitor, Jonathan Sieber and Andrew Stroble, all Grosse Pointers.

The mother of the bride wore a short, blush pink silk dress and jacket.

Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Earl Prather Jr.

The mother of the groom wore a tea-length ice green crepe suit. Both mothers carried small bouquets of white roses in silver tussy mussy holders presented to them by the bride.

Scripture readers were Christina Hinds of Kalamazoo, Meghan Hishmeh of Denver and Deborah Gmeiner of St. Clair Shores.

The bride earned a bachelor of science degree in business administration from Villanova University. She is an assistant vice president with Bank One.

The groom earned a bachelor of science degree in business administration from Boston College. He is a certified public accountant with Plante & Moran.

The newlyweds traveled to Hawaii. They live in Royal Oak.

NEW ARRIVALS OF 1999

Grosse Pointe News and The Connection newspapers are planning their 4th annual special edition featuring the babies of the past year. We hope you (and the little one) will participate by supplying us with a photograph of your child (only 1999 babies, please) for publication in this section.

This tabloid will be published January 27, 2000. Your child's picture, along with other 1999 babies, will be the main attraction! News and advertising about clothing, feeding, educating and caring for your child will also be included. It will be very informative as well as a commemorative edition for you!

Please send a cute, clear photo (color or black & white, home or studio produced, preferably smaller than a 5x7) to Grosse Pointe News & The Connection, 96 Kercheval, Grosse Pointe Farms, Michigan 48236. Attention: Kim Mackey, Display Advertising. Complete the information slip with your child's full name, date of birth and hospital and return it with your photo. Please print the baby's name on the back of the photo so you can pick it up at our office after printing or include a self-addressed stamped envelope.

Your picture must be received in our office no later than Tuesday, December 21st, earlier would assist our production schedule. (Late November and December birth photos may be submitted until January 7, 2000.)

We look forward to producing our annual "Baby Edition" and are sure you want your little one included. A limited number of extra copies will be available for purchase to give to family and friends.

Goodwill Antiques Show will run from Nov. 19-21

The 52nd Annual Goodwill Antiques Show — which happens to be one of the oldest continuously operating charitable antiques shows in the nation — will be open from Friday-Sunday, Nov. 19-21, at the Michigan State Fair and Exposition Center, Woodward at Eight Mile.

Fifty dealers will be on hand to sell their paintings, porcelain, silver, pewter, 18th and 19th century furniture and decorative accessories and more.

The Goodwill Booth is an annual attraction, featuring collectibles, used furs and jewelry, and furniture that has been refinished by volunteers.

Bids on special donated items can be made at the silent auction. The show will also offer professional evaluations of items, a pantry of specialty foods, a boutique of gift items made by volunteers and a cafe for snacks.

The show is sponsored each year by the Junior Group of Goodwill, a volunteer auxiliary of more than 200 members. All proceeds will benefit Goodwill Industries of Greater Detroit, which provides job training and placement services for people with disabilities and special needs. Last year, more than 400 job placements were made through Goodwill programs.

Show hours are 11 a.m. to 8 p.m. Friday; 11 a.m. to 6 p.m. Saturday; and 11 a.m. to 5 p.m. Sunday. General admission is $7; seniors, $6. Tickets are available from Junior Group members or at the door. Fairground parking is $4.

A preview party will be held on Thursday, Nov. 18; tickets to the preview range from $75 to $125 and may be ordered by calling (313) 886-6787 or visiting www.goodwilldetroit.org.

Deck the Halls: The 15th annual Festival of Trees — the single largest annual fundraising event for Children's Hospital of Michigan — is a public display of more than 100 professionally designed holiday trees as well as vignettes, gingerbread houses, wreaths, a gift shop, children's activities and a Secret Santa Shop just for kids.

Festival of Trees will take place from Sunday, Nov. 21 through Sunday, Nov. 28 at Cobo Center in Detroit. All proceeds will benefit the Evergreen Endowment Fund for Pediatric Research at Children's Hospital. In 1998, the event raised $712,000 for the hospital.

A preview party will be held from 6 to 10 p.m. Saturday, Nov. 20. Tickets range from $125 to $225.

Other events at this year's festival include a Teddy Bear Brunch from 11:30 a.m. to 1:30 p.m. and a Swing Dance, from 7 to 10 p.m., both on Saturday, Nov. 27. Brunch tickets are $10 for adults; $8 for children 2-12. Swing Dance tickets are $25 a person.

Tickets to the daily display are $7 for adults; $5 for seniors; $3 for children 2-12. Advance tickets are $6 for adults; $4 for seniors; $2 for children.

For more information about the Festival of Trees and associated events, call (313) 745-0178 or visit www.fot.org.

The Festival of Trees — a benefit for Children's Hospital of Michigan — will be open to the public from Sunday through Sunday, Nov. 21-28 at Cobo Center in downtown Detroit.

Junior Group president Barbara Miller of Grosse Pointe Park polishes an antique English fireplace that will be for sale at the 52nd Annual Goodwill Antiques Show, to be held Nov. 19-21 at the Michigan State Fair Grounds.

Pottery sale: Pewabic Pottery will present its annual holiday show and sale, "Earthy Treasures," through Friday, Dec. 31, at its headquarters, 10125 E. Jefferson.

A members-only preview party will be from 6 to 9 p.m. Friday, Nov. 12, hosted by board members Deborah Goldman and Edie Briskin. (Memberships will be available at the door for $35.)

On Saturday, Nov. 13, the show will be open to the public. Gallery hours are Monday through Saturday from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m.; Sunday, noon to 4 p.m.

More than 100 artists will participate in the largest Pewabic Pottery event of the year. Tiles start at $6 and other merchandise includes T-shirts, sweatshirts, aprons, tote bags, assorted books on ceramic art and replicas of historic Pewabic candlestick holders.

Pewabic Pottery was founded in 1903 by Mary Chase Perry Stratton and is a non-profit organization that serves the community through its classes, workshops, exhibitions and tours. Pewabic also created handcrafted vessels and tiles for public and private installations. Its headquarters are in a registered National Historic Landmark building built in 1907.

For more information about Pewabic or its "Earthy Treasures" holiday show, call (313) 822-0954.

Winners of the costume contest are from left: Charlie Liles, scariest costume; Chip and Suzy Berschback (dressed as a bumble bee and flower), best couple costume; and Leanna Harrouk (dressed as a mermaid), best costume.

The Friends are adult volunteers who plan social events and support the War Memorial's activities. For more information, call Maria Esposito at (313) 881-7511.

Food scouts: Local Boy Scout troops will participate in the 22nd annual Operation Can Do in metropolitan Detroit this month.

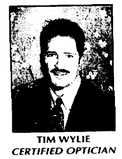

Volunteer Boy Scouts have begun distributing Operation Can Do bags to Grosse Pointe homes. They hope to collect bags bulging with canned goods between 8 a.m. and noon Saturday, Nov. 13. The donated items will go to hungry families in the area.

"Each year, I'm amazed at how generously Detroit area residents give to their neighbors in need," said Tony Michaels, executive vice president of marketing and public relations for Elias Brothers Corp., one of several Can Do sponsors. "Last year alone we collected more than 250 tons of food. We hope the community gives even more generously this year so we can drive that number even higher."

In addition to the Boy Scouts of America, other sponsors are WXYZ-TV, the Hunger Action Coalition, Farmer Jack and Marriott Distribution Services. For more information, call Big Boy Restaurants at (810) 755-8125.

The 52nd Annual Goodwill Antiques Show — which happens to be one of the oldest continuously operating charitable antiques shows in the nation — will be open from Friday-Sunday, Nov. 19-21, at the Michigan State Fair and Exposition Center, Woodward at Eight Mile.

Fifty dealers will be on hand to sell their paintings, porcelain, silver, pewter, 18th and 19th century furniture and decorative accessories and more.

The Goodwill Booth is an annual attraction, featuring collectibles, used furs and jewelry, and furniture that has been refinished by volunteers.

Bids on special donated items can be made at the silent auction. The show will also offer professional evaluations of items, a pantry of specialty foods, a boutique of gift items made by volunteers and a cafe for snacks.

The show is sponsored each year by the Junior Group of Goodwill, a volunteer auxiliary of more than 200 members. All proceeds will benefit Goodwill Industries of Greater Detroit, which provides job training and placement services for people with disabilities and special needs. Last year, more than 400 job placements were made through Goodwill programs.

Show hours are 11 a.m. to 8 p.m. Friday; 11 a.m. to 6 p.m. Saturday; and 11 a.m. to 5 p.m. Sunday. General admission is $7; seniors, $6. Tickets are available from Junior Group members or at the door. Fairground parking is $4.

A preview party will be held on Thursday, Nov. 18; tickets to the preview range from $75 to $125 and may be ordered by calling (313) 886-6787 or visiting www.goodwilldetroit.org.

Deck the Halls: The 15th annual Festival of Trees — the single largest annual fundraising event for Children's Hospital of Michigan — is a public display of more than 100 professionally designed holiday trees as well as vignettes, gingerbread houses, wreaths, a gift shop, children's activities and a Secret Santa Shop just for kids.

Festival of Trees will take place from Sunday, Nov. 21 through Sunday, Nov. 28 at Cobo Center in Detroit. All proceeds will benefit the Evergreen Endowment Fund for Pediatric Research at Children's Hospital. In 1998, the event raised $712,000 for the hospital.

A preview party will be held from 6 to 10 p.m. Saturday, Nov. 20. Tickets range from $125 to $225.

Other events at this year's festival include a Teddy Bear Brunch from 11:30 a.m. to 1:30 p.m. and a Swing Dance, from 7 to 10 p.m., both on Saturday, Nov. 27. Brunch tickets are $10 for adults; $8 for children 2-12. Swing Dance tickets are $25 a person.

Tickets to the daily display are $7 for adults; $5 for seniors; $3 for children 2-12. Advance tickets are $6 for adults; $4 for seniors; $2 for children.

For more information about the Festival of Trees and associated events, call (313) 745-0178 or visit www.fot.org.

Pottery sale: Pewabic Pottery will present its annual holiday show and sale, "Earthy Treasures," through Friday, Dec. 31, at its headquarters, 10125 E. Jefferson.

A members-only preview party will be from 6 to 9 p.m. Friday, Nov. 12, hosted by board members Deborah Goldman and Edie Briskin. (Memberships will be available at the door for $35.)

On Saturday, Nov. 13, the show will be open to the public. Gallery hours are Monday through Saturday from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m.; Sunday, noon to 4 p.m.

More than 100 artists will participate in the largest Pewabic Pottery event of the year. Tiles start at $6 and other merchandise includes T-shirts, sweatshirts, aprons, tote bags, assorted books on ceramic art and replicas of historic Pewabic candlestick holders.

Pewabic Pottery was founded in 1903 by Mary Chase Perry Stratton and is a nonprofit organization that serves the community through its classes, workshops, exhibitions and tours. Pewabic also created handcrafted vessels and tiles for public and private installations. Its headquarters are in a registered National Historic Landmark building built in 1907.

Nonalcoholic drinks for the holidays:

Dear Jeff and Debra:

Thanksgiving is approaching. For most people that marks the beginning of the holiday party season. For AAA Michigan, it means time to publish our "Great Pretenders Party Guide" with the winning nonalcoholic party drink recipes from our statewide Zero-Proof Mix-Off contest.

We've been doing it since 1978 as part of our "First A Friend, Then A Host" program to encourage party hosts to offer nonalcoholic options.

Since this will be the last Pretenders Guide for the 20th century, we decided on "Stars of the Century" as a theme. Everyone submitting a drink recipe in the contest had to name the recipe after an entertainment or sports personality from the 1900s. We received entries named after a wide range of former and current celebrities, from Ronald Reagan and Joe Louis to Julia Roberts and Sammy Sosa.

Here is the recipe for the drink that won first place in the southeast Michigan regional contest held Oct. 7 in Southfield. It's named after Detroit Red Wings player Kirk Maltby and was submitted by Margie Thomas of New Hudson.

Kirk Chocolate
Maltby

1 1/2 cups vanilla frozen yogurt
2 cups skim milk
5 tablespoons chocolate malted milk powder
1/2 teaspoon almond extract

Mix ingredients in a blender until smooth. Serve in a daiquiri glass with a straw. Garnish with whipped cream and sprinkle with shaved chocolate. Makes three to four 8-ounce servings.

Having some interesting alcohol-free drinks available at your party is an excellent way to help guests avoid too much alcohol before driving home.

Other things you can do include:

- Encourage car pooling and give a small gift to each designated driver.
- Slow down the drinking rate with party games.
- Serve protein-rich, starchy foods to help retard alcohol consumption.
- Put away the alcoholic beverages after a reasonable amount of time and let it be known nonalcoholic options as well as coffee and dessert are available.
- If a guest has had too much to drink, ask for the car keys and call a cab, or offer overnight sleeping accommodations in your home.

Last year, 525 people were killed in vehicle crashes in Michigan in which alcohol was a factor. Another 12,758 were injured. As a party host you should do everything possible to see that none of your guests become part of the 1999 statistics.

Beginning the first week of December, our "Great Pretenders Party Guide" will be available free to anyone who wants a copy. You will find them on the counter at all AAA Michigan branches, including the one at 19299 Mack in Grosse Pointe Woods. Or, you can request one by calling (313) 336-1510; or visiting the Internet at www.aaamich.com; or by e-mailing pr@?aaamich.com.

— Nancy Cain
Public Relations Manager
AAA Michigan

Dear Nancy,

Thank you for reminding us of the "Great Pretenders Party Guide" and AAA's entertaining safety tips. We've tried the delicious nonalcoholic drink recipes in the past and look forward to trying this year's winning recipes.

To our readers who plan to serve alcohol this holiday season, remember that one alcoholic drink equals 1 ounce of 86-proof liquor or 12 ounces of beer or 4 ounces of wine.

Generous hosts are appreciated by all, but when it comes to alcohol, generosity can be deadly. One Manhattan could give a 120-pound woman a blood alcohol content of more than .08.

Another guest may believe he's had two drinks over the course of an evening but, poured heavily, those two drinks may have had the alcohol equivalent of four drinks. It's best to have a designated bartender who is instructed to use accurate measurements when pouring drinks and is skilled at diplomatically discouraging overindulgence.

Jeff Jay is director of program development for Brighton Hospital and the president of the Terry McGovern Foundation in Washington, D.C. Debra Erickson Jay is an interventionist and the managing director of "Take Charge! America. "Take Charge" is available at all Grosse Pointe churches and public libraries.

Send questions to Jeff Jay, c/o Brighton Hospital, Dept. GP, 12851 E. Grand River, Brighton, MI 48116; or call (810) 227-1211. Jeff and Debra Jay live in Grosse Pointe Farms.

'Making Strides'

The American Cancer Society's fundraiser, "Making Strides" drew about 3,000 people Oct. 16 for a 4 1/2-mile walk on Belle Isle to raise money for cancer research.

Members of the Grosse Pointe Jacobson's team were, from left, Pamela Bellini of Clinton Township, Grosse Pointer Maureen McKidrick, Betsy Moore of Detroit and Nancy Robin of St. Clair Shores.

Learn how to shake 'the blues'

From time to time we let ourselves get down with negative, depressing or self-defeating thoughts.

St. John Hospital and Medical Center will offer a free program on Thursday, Nov. 11, from 10:30 to 11:30 a.m. called "Shaking the Blues." Discussion will include how to understand the difference between "the blues" and depression and when to seek professional assistance.

The hospital is located at 22101 Moross.

Admission is free, but advance registration is required. To register, call (888) 751-5465 Mondays through Fridays between 8 a.m. and 6 p.m.

Class offers guidelines for low-fat eating

Bon Secours Cottage Health Services will offer a two-session class designed to provide healthy dietary guidelines for low-fat eating. Participants will learn how to follow the food guide pyramid, count fat grams, read nutrition labels and learn low-fat snacking and dining-out tips.

The importance of exercise and stress management in a healthy lifestyle will be discussed. The class will be offered from 6:30 to 8 p.m. Tuesday and Thursday, Nov. 16 and 18, in the Bon Secours Cottage Community Health Promotion Classroom, 22300 Bon Brae in St. Clair Shores.

The cost is $25 a person and includes the "Grocery Shopping Guide Book." For more information or to preregister, call (810) 779-7900 between 9 a.m. and 4 p.m. weekdays.

Individualized nutritional counseling sessions, conducted by a registered dietitian, will also be available to discuss a variety of diets, including weight reduction, low cholesterol, and diabetes and cardiac. Sessions take place at Cottage Hospital, 159 Kercheval, Grosse Pointe Farms. The fee is $45 an hour; $40 for Bon Secours Cottage 55PLUS members. Free parking is available in the parking deck on Muir. Call (313) 640-2664.

"By Word of MOUTH"
Dr. Kevin Prush,

Lately I've been contemplating something related to my field of dentistry and other fields...how we remember our appointments. I think dentistry might be one of the few professions which calls its patients to remind them of their impending appointment. These phone calls are done as a courtesy to the patients and most patients appreciate them; some patients rely on them!

I have forgotten an appointment or two in my lifetime, but it hit me that hair stylists do not call their clients, my dog Trevor's veterinarian does not call us as a reminder, and, in general, none of the physicians I know call their patients as a reminder! Of course, there are exceptions within each profession. But I think dentists are pretty much "flying solo" in this department.

Is this a problem? No. As I said, it is a courtesy some dentists elect to do for their patients. Obviously, it would be nice if reminder calls were not necessary. Dentistry is still evolving and fun changes are still looming. One change that is occurring and implemented as we speak is the ability to e-mail our patients as correspondence instead of traditional mail or phone. I can e-mail my patients from home, thus opening the door to all kinds of improvements in communication between doctor and patient.

... numbers, the all- ...lls the story of ... who met in high ... during the 1950s. The ... auditioned in the ...audio visual depart- ... and part-time jobs and ... Perry Como.

They formed a vocal quar- ... called Forever Plaid, and performed wherever they ...could.

It was a time "when you ...went to the drive-in but somehow never saw the show," said Ron Bernas, as Jinx.

Although talented, the boys were, in the slang of the day L-7: Square. They were the kind of guys who replaced the "yeah, yeah, yeah" of the Beatles' "She Loves You" with "yeserie."

But they had talent and they dreamed of the big time.

"It was a good dream," said Sparky, played by actor Jeff Priskorn, a GPT veteran.

Sometimes dreams die young.

While driving to their first gig at a cocktail lounge in Pennsylvania, the group was killed in a traffic crash by a bus full of Catholic schoolboys on their way to New York to see the Beatles perform on the "Ed Sullivan Show."

"We were slammed by a bunch of parochial virgins," lamented Sparky.

In the years following the accident, the quartet was relegated to the "astral plain," illustrated effectively in the production by silver stars on a stage and backdrop painted midnight blue.

"Through the power of harmony," the boys have been allowed to return to Earth and perform the show they never had a chance to give while alive.

The laughs start during the end of the first number, a Gregorian chant the boys sing elegantly while journeying to Earth. True to their era, the singers punctuate the liturgical melody with an unexpected "shaboom" dating from the early days of rock 'n' roll.

These guys may be nerds, but they have rhythm and a sense of humor.

After a few words to set the scene, the group launches into "Three Coins in the Fountain," complete with clever choreography that mimics the fountain's rippling waters. No laughs this time, just more good singing.

The group swings from one song to another, braced between brief entertaining interludes. The show's pace and variety generates a fluid production that seems shorter than its 1 1/2-hour length. The cast fills the stage with talent, humor and action. There is little angst and no intermission.

Bernas is a lanky tenor whose clear voice fades into a tender vibrato in "Moments to Remember." He sings a refreshingly non hysterical rendition of "Cry." Priskorn pulls off some of the show's funniest lines.

Matthew Bejin, as Smudge, digs deep to yank the low notes from Tennessee Ernie Ford's "16 Tons." Dale Ihrie, playing Francis, sang last season in "City of Angels." His voice and timing are as good as ever.

The quartet shifts smoothly from classic harmonies reminiscent of Glenn Miller's Modernaires, to the well manicured crescendos of the Ray Conniff Singers. The pop rhythms of Sam Cook's "Chain Gang" come courtesy of a spoon pinging against a ketchup bottle.

In the upbeat "Crazy 'Bout Ya Baby," the boys use long-handled plungers to represent floor-mounted microphones. As the singers move from one position to another, they pull the plungers from the stage with a "plop." Big applause.

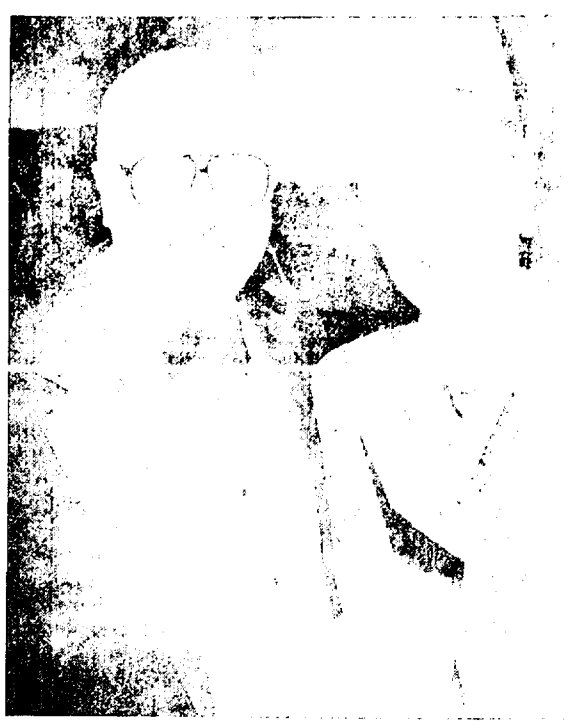

The players pay homage to the "The Ed Sullivan Show" in a hectic and hilarious send up of dancing nuns and fire eaters. While one player spins plates on long sticks, another mimics a seal with a beach ball on its nose. A Swedish opera diva appears, complete with Viking helmet. Here comes Jose Jimenez. Don't forget Senor Wenses and Topo Giggio.

"I wish we didn't have to go," said Smudge, looking around the stage. "I kind of like it here."

The audience felt the same way. But they and the boys can do it all over again because the Grosse Pointe Theatre presents "Forever Plaid" through Nov. 20 at the Grosse Pointe War Memorial's Fries Auditorium. Tickets are $16. Call (313) 881-4004 for tickets and show times.

A warning to the audience: If during the show a cast member asks if you know how to play the piano . . . watch what you say.

Bread pudding warms the spirit

We've been blessed with awesome fall weather as the evenings become just a bit cooler with each passing night. This week's feature is a take on a familiar old dessert that will bring some warmth to your autumn dinner table.

À LA ANNIE
By Annie Rouleau-Scheriff

This simple rendition of bread pudding may even find its way to your Thanksgiving Day feast. Truly a Creole dish, this bread pudding was super easy to prepare and it tasted fantastic. There were no leftovers. You need to allow two hours refrigerator time for the bread to soak, before the pudding is baked in the oven.

I pulled the recipe from the September 1999 issue of Bon Appetit. The recipe calls for cinnamon-raisin bread, thus simplifying the ingredient list.

Bread Pudding with Warm Bourbon Sauce

4 large eggs
1 cup whole milk
1 cup heavy (whipping) cream
1/4 cup sugar
1 teaspoon vanilla extract
Pinch of salt
4 cups day-old cinnamon-raisin bread (crusts on), cut into 1/2 inch pieces
1/2 cup pecans, toasted and coarsely chopped

Bourbon Sauce

1/4 cup (1/2 stick) unsalted butter
1/2 cup sugar
3 tablespoons whipping cream
2 tablespoons bourbon
Pinch of salt

Butter an 8-inch square baking dish (preferably glass). In a medium bowl, whisk together the eggs, milk, cream, sugar, vanilla and salt. Place the cubed bread in the baking dish and sprinkle with the pecans. Pour the milk mixture over the bread and allow to sit for five minutes. Using a spatula, push the bread down into the custard. Refrigerate for two hours, pushing the bread down into the custard occasionally.

Preheat oven to 375 degrees. Place baking dish in a larger metal baking pan. Add enough boiling water to pan to come 1 inch up the side of the pudding dish. Bake at 375 degrees for 50 minutes or until the pudding is puffed and golden brown on top. Remove from oven and remove pudding from water pan and transfer to a cooling rack.

To prepare the bourbon sauce, melt the butter in a small saucepan over medium heat. Whisk in the sugar, cream, bourbon and salt. Continue whisking and simmer for a few minutes or until the sauce thickens. Cool slightly.

Cut pudding into squares and serve warm with bourbon sauce drizzled on top. Some fresh whipped cream would only add to this wonderful tasting dessert.

Bread pudding can be made ahead and it travels well. Simply bake the pudding and leave it in the baking dish. Drizzle with the bourbon sauce, cover, and you're on your way. Or you can refrigerate the pudding and reheat it at your destination. Make the bourbon sauce and leave it on the side, topping the warm pudding just before it is served.

Any way you choose, this recipe is not a lot of work. I used very hot tap water instead of boiling water and had no problem. I also added 1/2 teaspoon ground cinnamon to the egg mixture because the bread I used (Stahl's) didn't seem to have a lot of cinnamon in it. Otherwise, the bread was perfect. I baked my pudding in a 1 1/2 quart (oblong) white Corning Ware dish, making it a little thicker than an 8- inch square pan would have. Use common sense when choosing the baking dish, especially if you double the recipe.

Bread pudding makes a great brunch or buffet item as it can be served family-style, right from the dish. Serve it with the sauce on, or on the side.

Don't wait for a special occasion to finish a meal with this fresh-from-the-oven, home-baked bread pudding. It will truly warm your spirit.

Wine auction

Approximately 450 guests attended the 18th annual Detroit International Wine Auction Oct. 30. The event, sponsored by General Motors, raised more than $350,000 for the Center for Creative Studies.

28th annual Wassail Feast slated at Detroit Institute of Arts

Tickets are now on sale for the annual Wassail Feast at the Detroit Institute of Arts. Guests will step back 400 years to a re-creation of the Royal Winter Court of Queen Elizabeth I. They'll enjoy an authentic feast from winter goods that would have been kept in a royal pantry, and they'll join the hearty toast with wassail, a mixture of ale and other libations.

Royal Court begins nightly Dec. 9, 10, 11, 17 and 18, with an open bar in the DIA's Kresge Court. Revelry continues in the Great Hall, which is swathed in finery for the event.

The meal features a five-course authentic Elizabethan feast fit for nobility (a vegetarian menu is available too). During the feast, the Master of Revels leads the Wassail toast while mimes, madrigals, dancers, jugglers, acrobats and strolling minstrels perform feats for the guests' delight.

Every detail of the Wassail Feast is scrupulously attentive to authenticity, from music and dance steps to madrigals and frolicking acrobats.

The Wassail Feast begins each evening at 6:30 p.m. and lasts until approximately 10 p.m. Tickets are $150 for Fridays and Saturdays; $140 Thursdays or for groups of 20 or more. All proceeds benefit the DIA's general fund.

Tickets may be purchased at the DIA box office. Tickets may also be purchased by calling (313) 833-4005.

The DIA, 5200 Woodward in Detroit's University Cultural Center, is open Wednesdays through Fridays, from 11 a.m. to 4 p.m.; Saturdays and Sundays from 11 a.m. to 5 p.m.; first Friday of each month: 11 a.m. to 9 p.m. Call (313) 833-7900 or visit www.dia.org.

Help offered for holiday anxiety, depression

The holidays — a time of festivity and celebration — are quickly approaching. But for many people the hustle and bustle often turns to anxiety, and the glitter of the season reflects only sadness and despair.

Holiday anxiety and depression may result from unrealistic expectations or from a void left by lost or distant loved ones. Media projections of the "perfect" home and holiday celebrations often lead us to expect more of our families, and ourselves than is realistic. Feelings of "not measuring up" can take hold and allow depression and anxiety to move in.

Dr. Dan G. Guyer, chief of psychiatry at Cottage Hospital, will discuss mental health challenges that present themselves to many people trying to cope with relentless holiday festivities at a free program titled, "Coping with the Holidays."

Handling grief and depression, coping with loss and seasonal affective disorder (SAD) are some of the issues which will be addressed. The seminar takes place from 7 to 8:30 p.m. Wednesday, Dec. 1, in Board Rooms A & B, lower level, at Cottage Hospital, 159 Kercheval in Grosse Pointe Farms.

The program is free, but reservations are required. Call (810) 779-7900 between 9 a.m. and 4 p.m. weekdays. Free parking is available in the parking deck on Muir. Bring your parking ticket into the program for validation.

South girls finish fifth in state cross country meet

Grosse Pointe South's girls cross country team was in familiar surroundings after last Saturday's state Class A meet at Michigan Speedway.

For the fifth year in a row, the Blue Devils had a top 10 finish in the state, placing fifth in the 27-team field.

"We knew we did not have the multiple All-Staters that many of the teams had," said coach Steve Zaranek. "We knew we had to rely on our strongest trait — team depth."

While teams like Macomb Area Conference Red Division rivals Stevenson and Romeo did produce All-State runners, South finished well ahead of them in the team standings.

No one was close to team champion Rockford, but South was close to second place and only eight points out of third.

"We were extremely happy with the finish," Zaranek said. "Like our strong regional performance, our girls ran very close to one another, a must at a meet of this level.

"Our top five were within 45 seconds of each other. When I saw that, I knew we would place well."

"Heidi has been such a smart runner all season," Zaranek said. "We keyed off her and our girls never lost touch with one another."

Crowley just missed the All-State cutoff by finishing 34th, but she was able to lead the team to its outstanding finish.

"Kirsten and Bridget ran superb races," Zaranek said. "They were smart, focused and absolutely determined to break the 20-minute barrier. Both have been so strong for us all season. They will make great lead runners for us next season."

"With our fourth and fifth runners right at the 20-minute mark, I knew our team was in good shape," Zaranek said. "Kate and Mary finished just ahead of the bulk of excellent runners who come in between 20:20 and 21:00. They made the day for us."

South's sixth and seventh runners — sophomore Maureen Hoehn (20:53) and junior Elizabeth Osburn (21:29) — also had strong races.

"I was very proud of our team," Zaranek said. "They had poise and confidence and were so excited to be at this event. They knew the history of our team at the finals and were determined to show themselves as one of the all-time best South teams. They accomplished their goals."

It was South's 20th consecutive appearance at the state meet, extending a record for both boys and girls teams. The girls are one of only three teams to have five or more top 10 finishes in a row.

ULS booters advance to state semifinals

By Chuck Klonke
Sports Editor

Last week he recruited a couple of the school's faculty members to help the Knights prepare for last Saturday's regional championship game against Bloomfield Hills Roeper.

"Roeper has a couple of tall players who like to stand in front of the net and head the ball on throw-ins and they've probably scored half of their goals that way," Backhurst said after the Knights' 3-0 victory. "We got a couple of our taller teachers from the upper school and the middle school to stand in front of the goal while my assistant (Walter Butzu) whipped some balls toward the goal.

"There were a few times when they got hit in the back of the head by (goalkeeper Dan) Ferrin, so they paid the price. I appreciate their taking the punishment because it helped us win the game."

Backhurst also used some strategy to neutralize Roughriders midfielder Liam Judd.

By Chuck Klonke
Sports Editor

One of Frank Sumbera's offseason plans include taking a long look at the defensive system his Grosse Pointe North football teams have been using.

"The last two times we've been in the playoffs our defense hasn't been real strong," the Norsemen's coach said after his team dropped a 38-28 decision to University of Detroit Jesuit in the second round of the state Division 2 playoffs.

"In both of the games we lost we were ahead at halftime. Two years ago when (Farmington) Harrison beat us, we gave up 50 points. We'll have to take a look at things during the offseason and see what we can do next year."

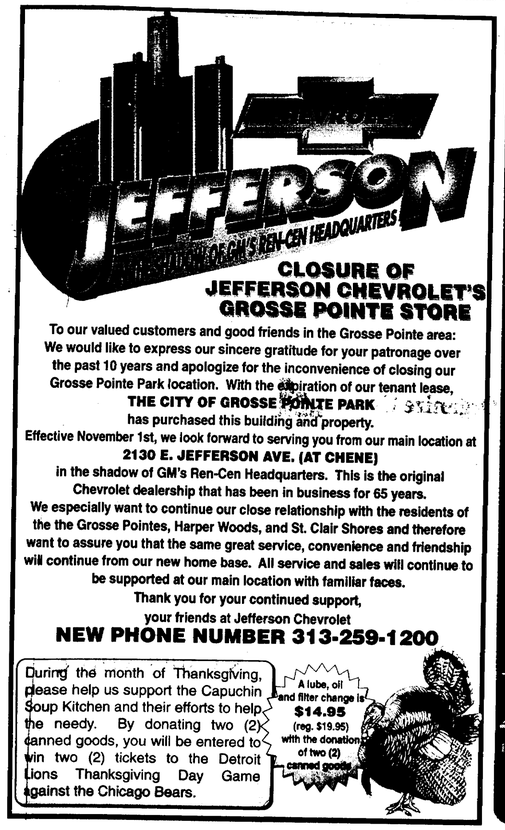

Except for the disappointment of having the season end, Sumbera was pleased with his team's performance in a 9-2 campaign.

"It's hard to feel good about the season right now because it was cut a little short," he said. "But the kids played hard all year and I'm proud of them. The effort was there every game."

North had to overcome some key injuries. Fullback Brian Vandenberghe and defensive end Mike Cataldo each missed a large portion of the season with broken legs. And in last week's playoff victory over Detroit Kettering, quarterback Scott Koerber suffered a broken thumb and was unable to play against U-D Jesuit.

"Not having Scott affected us at three positions," Sumbera said. "K.C. Cleary did a great job at quarterback, but that meant we couldn't use him at wide receiver and we couldn't play him as

League, district champs

Grosse Pointe North's boys soccer team was undefeated in the Macomb Area Conference Blue Division this year and the Norsemen followed that effort with a state Division II district title with victories over Ferndale, Lakeview and Detroit Chadsey. The tournament run ended last week with a 2-1 overtime loss in the regional to Dearborn Heights Crestwood. Brad Drummy scored the North goal in the second half. In the front row, from left, are Byron Scerri, Brian Stopinski, Aris Karabetsos, Endri Xhacka, Jeff Roulo, Jon Kosmas and Brian Johnson. In the middle, from left, are Yianni Kaiafas, Jared Wood, Tom Gassel, Ryan Michael, Nick Sauer, Brad Van Sickle, Jon Sharon and Besmir Bega. In back, from left, are coach Chip Stencel, Jesse Graff, Alex Lentine, Drummy, Joseph Donahue, Adam Burns, Adam Southard and Jeff Dinverno.

South pays price for tough league schedule

By Chuck Klonke
Sports Editor

Grosse Pointe South girls basketball coach Peggy Van Eckoute told her team that the second half of the Macomb Area Conference Red Division schedule would be even tougher than the first half.

Three straight league losses to Eisenhower, Utica and Sterling Heights have left the Blue Devils fighting to keep their grip on second place in the division.

"We have to win at Ford on Thursday to be assured of finishing second," Van Eckoute said. "Maybe the girls didn't believe me when I told them that teams would adjust to us the second time around."

South turned in a strong effort against Utica, which is unbeaten and ranked second in the state in Class A, but the Blue Devils still lost 58-44.

"I wanted to give them a good game and we did," Van Eckoute said. "They had to play four quarters to beat us. That will help them with the tournament coming up."

South, which trailed 30-15 at halftime, made a run at the Chieftains in the third quarter and cut the lead to 36-29 on a three-point play by Ashley Elrod, followed by a three-point basket by Beth Howson.

Another triple by the Blue Devils might have given Utica some serious cause for concern, but Lindsey Pasquinzo hit a basket and a pair of free throws to trigger a 6-0 run by the Chieftains, who came out of the third quarter with a 44-31 advantage.

Pasquinzo, a junior forward, was the difference in the game as she scored 25 points.

"We played better defensively than we did the first time we played them and we solved their pressure," Van Eckoute said.

South's coach said that she had to go against her normal game plan in order to slow down the fast-breaking Utica squad.

"We like to run, but we didn't want to get into a running game with them," Van Eckoute said. "I thought we did a pretty good job of controlling the tempo."

The Chieftains, who start a front line of 6-foot-1 Julie Pagel and 6-footers Pasquinzo and Lori Wild and bring 6-0 Rebecca Pritchard off the bench, were able to control the boards against the smaller Blue Devils.

Pagel and Wild each had 10 rebounds, while Pritchard collected five.

Megan Shapiro led South with 11 points, while Elrod had nine and Scarlett O'Keefe, who played another strong defensive game against Pagel, finished with eight. O'Keefe had six rebounds, one more than Shapiro.

South's 59-57 overtime loss to Sterling Heights a couple of days later was even more disappointing than losing to Utica.

"This was a game where we had opportunities to win but we didn't execute well enough to win the game. And they did," Van Eckoute said.

The Blue Devils had a lead with 20 seconds left in regulation but Sterling Heights hit a pair of free throws with about 15 seconds remaining to tie the game at 49-49.

The Stallions' Sarah Crum, who led all scorers with 32 points, hit a basket at the buzzer in overtime to give Sterling Heights the win.

Howson led South with 17 points and also collected five assists and five rebounds. O'Keefe and Shapiro each scored 10 points for South. Caitlin Carroll scored nine points while Colleen Trybus added eight points and a team-high eight rebounds.

ULS beats Mustangs in overtime thriller

By Chuck Klonke

But that's OK. It was just as exciting watching the film.

"I had four or five calls at home after the game telling me about it," said Bandos, who missed the Knights' 44-38 overtime victory against Lutheran North because he was battling the flu.

"And when I watched the film, that was pretty exciting, too. It was an incredible game. We never led through regulation and the only time we were tied was when Maria Lewis hit a free throw with no time left on the clock."

It looked like ULS' bid to come back from a 10-point deficit was going to fall just short when North went to the free throw line with three seconds left. The Mustangs player missed the free throw and when she went after the rebound she fouled Lewis.

Lewis stepped to the line and hit the first of two free throws to tie the game at 36-36.

They called a timeout to ice her, but Maria hit nothing but net," Bandos said. "You should have seen the way our kids erupted when she made it. That gave us all the momentum going into the overtime.

"I wish I had known what was going through Maria's head when she stepped to the line. It was like she was on an island by herself with the crowd screaming."

ULS jumped ahead early in the overtime and maintained the lead as Courtney Hills scored five of the Knights' eight points and Lewis added the other three.

Hills finished with 14 points and 10 rebounds and made eight of 11 attempts from the foul line.

Lewis had 11 points and five rebounds. Sherma Brown collected eight points, four steals and three assists, Keisha Bahadu had six points and three assists and Tara Terry added five points and pulled down eight rebounds.

Lutheran North went into a delay with 2:28 left and the Mustangs leading 36-33. Brown made a steal and fed Lewis for a layup to cut the lead to a point with 41 seconds remaining.

North led 22-14 at halftime, but ULS whittled the lead to 32-29 heading into the final quarter.

The Knights also played well in their next outing, but dropped a 35-30 decision to Metro Conference leader Cranbrook Kingswood.

"We were down 35-18 with 5:03 left and we went on a 12-0 run," Bandos said. "We got a lot of our points off steals at the end after we switched to a triangle and two defense."

ULS spent most of the game trying to shut down the Cranes' "big two" of Tiffany Rhodes and Lindsay Dunigan. Dunigan had only eight points, but Rhodes scored 24 to lead all scorers.

Lewis led the Knights with nine points, while Brown had seven and Terry scored six. Terry and Hills each pulled down seven rebounds.

Soccer

"We marked up on him with Andrew Byron and Andrew did a masterful job," Backhurst said. "We also moved Eli Binns-Cooley from forward back to defense because of Eli's height and Roeper's taller forwards."

Phil Leaman and Soudy Kazzi also did an excellent job on defense as ULS held Roeper to only three shots. The Knights returned 14 at the Roughriders' goalkeeper.

The victory over Roeper sent ULS into the Division IV semifinals against Lenawee Christian, which won its regional title with a 2-1 double-overtime victory against Plymouth Christian.

It has been a combination of scoring and defense that has carried the Knights to the final four. In four state tournament games, ULS has outscored the opposition 19-0.

The Knights opened the scoring at Roeper about 15 minutes into the game when Eric Krauss came down the left side, passed to Scott Vallee in the middle of the field and Vallee fired a curving shot that went through the goalie's hands.

ULS came out strong in the second half and made it 2-0 on a goal by Krauss, who one-timed a pass from Vallee under the goalie's left hand. The play, which came nine minutes into the second half, was started by Steve Buhalis.

About six minutes later, Buhalis took an indirect free kick from 45 yards out. Mark Gotfredson got the ball at the left of the goalie and headed it to Vallee, who sent it into the lower left corner of the net.

"It was a perfectly placed shot," Backhurst said.

"We took the game to them right from the start but we had difficulty scoring at first," Backhurst said. "Then we got three quick goals early in the second half to break the game open."

The Knights finally broke the scoreless deadlock with about eight minutes remaining in the first half on a goal by Vallee, assisted by Gotfredson.

The flurry of early second-half goals started with Gotfredson scoring from Buhalis. Gotfredson then set up Vallee's second goal of the game and Gotfredson made it 4-0 on a free kick about seven minutes into the half.

With 10 minutes remaining, Buhalis completed the Knights' scoring, assisted by Vallee.

"It was another good solid defensive effort," Backhurst said. "We outshot them 18-1."

A victory over Lenawee Christian would send ULS into Saturday's 11 a.m. Division IV championship game at Lowell High School.

Rugby team being formed

The Michigan Youth Rugby Association, in cooperation with the Neighborhood Club, is forming an East Side Grosse Pointe rugby team for boys 15 through 18 that will begin play in the spring 2000 season.

An information and registration meeting will be held Wednesday, Nov. 17, from 7 to 9 p.m. at the Neighborhood Club.

There will be a 10-game schedule, plus tournaments and playoffs. Practice will be held twice a week during the regular season.

PGSA Mustangs have a perfect start in under-12 travel league

The Pointe Girls Soccer Association Mustangs '88 went through the first half of their under-12 girls premier soccer league season undefeated.

After tuning up for the fall season by winning the U-12 title at the St. Clair Shores Riverfront Invitational, the Mustangs posted a 3-2 victory over the Grosse Pointe Soccer Association Dragons '88.

The defense was led by goalie Meghan Potthoff, sweeper Jenny Bohannon and defenders Elizabeth Galea, Jeannie Taylor and Elizabeth Baxter.

Earlier, the Mustangs beat the Troy Metro Stars 4-0 on two goals by Dipace and one apiece from Galea and Venticinque.

Cunningham, Jost and Caralis collected assists. Goalies Allie Fortune and Potthoff shared the shutout, supported by fine defensive work from Alexandra Ford, Kossak and Bohannon.

Louisell, Cohan, March and Kossak picked up assists.

The Mustangs then beat the Windsor, Ontario, Kickers 3-1. Jost, Louisell and Dipace scored the Grosse Pointe goals, while Louisell, March, Fortune and Galea had assists.

The game turned as a result of fine defensive effort from Potthoff in goal and from defenders Bohannon, Galea, Ford, Taylor and Baxter.

Playing their fourth game in five days, the Mustangs tied the Sterling-Clinton Gators 1-1. Kossak scored the equalizer on a pass from March. Cohan and Jost also helped set up the goal.

Barons unlucky against Shamrocks

The Grosse Pointe Red Barons gave the Northeast Detroit Shamrocks a battle in their recent East Suburban Football League series, but the Shamrocks posted victories in all three games.

The Red Barons varsity dropped a 20-14 decision. Grosse Pointe's scoring came on a two-yard pass from St. Hiliare to Sawicki, a two-point conversion kick by St. Hiliare and a 42-yard pass from John Hinze to Pedi.

Sawicki had five catches for 60 yards. Dempsey suffered a shoulder injury which forced Pedi and Brian Gatliff to handle most of the running. The Red Barons had a chance to win the very physical game, but were sacked with about four minutes left.

The junior varsity lost 13-6 to the Shamrocks.

Brandon Howe scored the only touchdown for the Red Barons. Scott Thurman boomed a 43-yard punt that pinned the Shamrocks deep in their end. Lou Palombit, Ian Frahm, Danny Burkhart and Keith Gillum played well offensively.

The freshmen lost 18-6 as the Shamrocks scored three second-half touchdowns — all on 70-yard drives.

Drew Gaggin set up the Red Barons' touchdown — a short run by Daniel Walsh.

Daniel Dempsey, Austin Ditzhazy and Frank Ferretti did a good job of helping shut down the Shamrocks' potent running attack.

Norsemen win easily in league

The Norsemen posted a pair of one-sided victories over Macomb Area Conference White Division rivals L'Anse Creuse (64-23) and Port Huron (63-33).

"We played pretty well, but not great," said coach Gary Bennett after North improved its record to 12-2 in the division and 15-3 overall.

"It's hard to look real sharp in games like these. And it's tough when you're playing a team a second time after you beat them badly the first time."

North opened up a 38-6 halftime lead against Port Huron and then switched from a man-to-man to zone defense in the second half.

Katie Crowther led a balanced scoring attack with nine points and Jessica Westbrook added eight for the Norsemen, who got seven points apiece from Sarah Smith, Stephanie Rose, Natalie Potthoff and Jill Bramos.

Smith also dished out a game-high seven assists.

Earlier, North outscored L'Anse Creuse 27-9 in the second quarter to pull away from a 6-6 first-quarter tie.

North

much in the secondary. And we missed Koerber's punting, too."

Despite the injuries, North won the statistical battle. The Norsemen had 506 yards in total offense, while the Cubs managed only 298. But U-D Jesuit won where it counted — on the scoreboard.

"That's why they say statistics are for losers," Sumbera said.

But in the second half, U-D Jesuit had too much Robert Perkins.

"I saw where their coach said that they decided at halftime to stop trying to trick us and to just give the ball to Perkins," Sumbera said.

U-D got the second half kickoff at its 36-yard line and marched down the field with Perkins carrying the ball on all but one play. He scored on a 15-yard run on a third down and nine situation to give the Cubs a 24-21 lead.

North failed to get a first down on its next possession, but linebacker Jim Ellis made an outstanding play when he hit the U-D quarterback on an option play and forced a fumble that was recovered by Josh Dry on the Cubs' 35.

But the Norsemen came up empty when Cleary's fourth-down pass to a wide-open Brian Bigham was just a little too low for North's tight end to catch.

U-D threatened on its next possession as Perkins made three straight first downs, but the Cubs' drive was halted by Cleary's interception.

Perkins scored his third touchdown of the game on a five-yard run with 5:53 left in the fourth quarter. The Cubs' outstanding back, who finished with 216 yards in 33 attempts, carried seven straight times.

"The big thing was that they ate up a lot of the clock on those drives," Sumbera said.

But even with the score 31-21, the Norsemen continued to battle. They marched 73 yards in 12 plays with Cleary scoring on an eight-yard option run with 1:50 left in the game.

Cleary was on target during the drive, hitting Luzi for gains of 19 and 15 yards, Bigham for 12 yards, Jason Rutko for 20 yards and Torean Cleveland for a 13-yard gain to the U-D eight.

North attempted an onside kick but the officials ruled that the ball failed to go the required 10 yards before it was recovered by the Norsemen's Joe Hermann.

That gave the Cubs possession at midfield and on the first play, Perkins raced 50 yards for the clinching touchdown.

"We had only 10 men on the field for the touchdown," Sumbera said. "(Steve) Hardin did the onside kick and went off to change his shoe. When he came out, there was a mixup and nobody replaced him. So when Perkins broke through the line, we didn't have a safety back to stop him."

Even after that, North still showed some life.

Cleary completed passes of 15 and 28 yards to Luzi and on a fourth-and-13 he completed a pass to Bigham.

"We actually needed 13 yards and two inches," Sumbera said. "We got the 13 yards but came up short on the two inches."

North opened the scoring on a five-yard run by sophomore fullback Jon Thomas that capped a 71-yard, eight-play drive.

Key plays were an 18-yard pass from Cleary to Bigham on third down, a 26-yard run by Thomas and a 21-yard run by Cleveland.

North came right back after the kickoff. Cleveland broke free for a 75-yard gain to the Cubs' five and moments later, Thomas scored from the one. Mancik's extra point gave the Norsemen a 14-7 advantage.

After North stopped U-D on its next possession and forced the Cubs to punt, U-D got a break when the Norsemen's return man lost the ball in the sun and fumbled. The Cubs recovered on the North 19 and settled for a 27-yard field goal to cut the lead to 14-10.

North began another drive from its 20, with Cleary hitting Bigham for 15 yards and Luzi for 24. But Cleary's pass from the U-D 26 was tipped by a defensive lineman and intercepted by Sean Roland, who returned it 74 yards for the touchdown to give the Cubs a 17-14 lead.

North came right back and marched 80 yards to its final touchdown of the first half. Cleary completed passes of 21 yards to William Sumbera and 19 yards to Luzi before hitting Luzi for the touchdown with less than a minute remaining.

"It could have been 21-7 at halftime," coach Sumbera said. "We handled them pretty well in the first half."

Luzi had a career day with eight catches for 158 yards and Bigham caught five passes for 73 yards. Cleary finished with 15 completions in 30 attempts for 272 yards and a touchdown.

Cleveland was North's leading rusher with 162 yards in 19 carries, while Thomas picked up 45 yards in eight attempts.

Defensive leaders were Hardin and Rob Karlik, who each had 12 tackles, including five solo stops. Ellis, who played his best game, had 10 tackles, four of them solos.

Michael Kasiborski and Donovan Wright each had seven stops, while Dry and Phil Kozlowski had five apiece and Joe Callies, Hermann and Ryan Fried each made four tackles.

Grosse Pointe North running back Torrean Cleveland finds a big hole to run through during last week's state playoff game with U-D Jesuit. Cleveland ran for 162 yards, but it wasn't enough to keep the Norsemen from dropping a 38-28 decision to the Cubs.

ULS finishes fourth in Metro meet

University Liggett School's boys cross country team saved one of its best efforts for the recent Metro Conference championship meet at Schroeder Park in Grosse Pointe Shores.

But several other teams also ran well and the Knights had to settle for fourth place.

One of the highlights for ULS was a seventh-place finish by Blair Foust, who grabbed the final all-conference berth after running a personal-best 17:47.

"Lutheran Northwest (78 points) and ULS had great team efforts," said Knights coach Philip Langford. "We had three PRs (personal records). Ben Szymanski cut 1:27 off his best time. Brad Bohlinger tied the ULS freshman record as his time of 18:17 was good enough for 15th place. Our number three, four and five runners (Bohlinger, fresman Byron Hauck and Szymanski) really stepped up."

Cranbrook sophomore Ben Salvette toured the course in a record 16:29, but it wasn't enough to keep the Cranes from finishing five points behind first place Lutheran Westland, which had 38 points.

ULS achieved its goal of putting its fifth runner in front of Northwest's fifth man, but the Knights' failure to break up the Crusaders' three straight runners cost ULS a third-place finish.

In the first conference jamboree meet at Lutheran North, the Knights strugged to a fifth-place finish without the injured Bahadu.

"We should have fared better," said assistant coach Dave Boynton. "We are a smaller team that misses any runner when they aren't competing. Today we missed two — Bahadu and a freshman that forgot to bring running shoes. We should have run him in his Doc Martens."

Bohlinger was the Knights' second runner, finishing 18th overall. He was followed by Jeff Dunn (28th), DeWald (33rd), Szymanski (37th) and Moya (40th).

In the second jamboree meet at Lutheran Westland, Bahadu and Foust finished seventh and eighth, respectively, to lead ULS to a solid third-place finish.

Bohlinger finished11th with his best effort of the year.

"Bahadu ran with me until the final 400 yards of the race," Bohlinger said. "He told me to stick with him. When he went to try to catch Foust, I was dead and could not stay with him."

Hauck was 23rd, while Moya and Dunn finished 29th and 30th, respectively. DeWald was 35th and Szymanski 37th.

"Our fourth through eighth runners are interchangeable," Langford said. "All of them are new to the team this season. As their conditioning improves and experience grows, they will challenge each other."

Blair Foust finished seventh in the Metro Conference boys cross country meet to become the only University Liggett School runner to make the all-conference first team.

South boys are 23rd at state meet

Grosse Pointe South boys cross country coach Tom Wise had hoped for a better finish at last weekend's Class A state meet, but under the circumstances he was happy to wind up 23rd.

"Our No. 3 runner got real sick before the race," Wise said. "He ran, but not anywhere near what he usually does."

Nick Zerweck was South's leading runner, finishing 58th among individuals for the qualifying teams in 16:51.3. Teammate Pat Dantzer was 80th in 17:05.2

"I thought if we ran like we had been running, we could have finished 19th or 20th," Wise said. "We've had to rely too much on our top five. We have to continue to develop a second group."

North's boys team finished 25th. The Norsemen were led by John Lucido. Scott Serilla, Pat Kenny, Woody Floyd and Bill Ireland rounded out North's top five.

North clinches MAC Red swim championship

101 PRAYERS

IN Thanksgiving to St. Jude for favor received. Pray for 8 days and then publish in this paper. S.V.D.

NOVENA to St. Jude
May the Sacred Heart of Jesus be adored, glorified, loved and preserved throughout the world, now and forever. Oh Sacred Heart of Jesus, pray for us. Worker of miracles, pray for us. St. Jude, helper of the hopeless, pray for us.
Say this prayer 9 times a day. By the 8th day, your prayer will be answered. It has never been known. M.H.

PRAYER of the Blessed Virgin
Oh most beautiful flower of Mt. Carmel, fruitful vine, splendor of Heaven, Blessed Mother of the Son of God. Immaculate Virgin assist me in my necessity. Oh Star of the Sea, help me and show me, herein you are my Mother. Oh Mary, Mother of God, Queen of Heaven and Earth I humbly beseech you from the bottom of my heart, to succor me in my necessity (request here). There are none that can withstand your power. Oh Mary conceived without sin, Pray for us who have recourse. Holy Mary, place this prayer in your hands. Say this 3 times, 3 days, publish it. It will be granted to you.M.T.

PRAYER to the Holy Spirit
Holy Spirit, you who make me see everything and who shows me the way to reach my ideal. You who gives me the divine gift to forgive and forget the wrong that is done to me and you who are in all instances of my life with me. I, in this short dialogue, want to thank you for everything and confirm once more that I never want to be separated from you, no matter how great the material desires may be. I want to be with you and my loved ones in your perpetual glory. Amen. Thank you for your love towards me and my loved ones. Pray this prayer three consecutive days without asking your wish will be granted, no matter how difficult it may be. Then promise to publish this prayer as soon as your favor has been granted. Thank you for favors received. Grace

DAYTRIPPING: WINDSOR'S 'COMMUNITIES'

City gems appeal to shoppers

BY LOUISE DEARDEN

Searching for unusual and special holiday gifts is a lot more fun when you find a cluster of shops tucked away in the back streets of the city or a quaint, old-fashioned main street in the suburbs.

Add a sprinkling of seasonal festivities and special events and suddenly you have the recipe for a day out with family or friends.

Essex County's communities /16

Within the City of Windsor there are a number of communities, each with its own shopping district and personality. During the holiday season, many of these "towns within the city" come alive with their own festivals and shopping attractions for visitors.

City Centre

Concentrated in Windsor's downtown core are more than 300 quality boutiques, fine restaurants and entertainment facilities.

Casino Windsor is a major attraction, offering a total of 100,000 sq. ft. of gaming space. There are almost 3,000 slot machines and over 130 table games, including a premium slot and table game area.

Windsor's city centre merchants are proud of the area's reputation as a safe, clean, vibrant destination. Acres of parkland along the riverfront overlook the spectacular Detroit Skyline, offering breathtaking views.

The Festival Of Enchantment features a display of over 100 glittering Christmas trees. The festival will be held at the central branch of the Windsor Public Library at 850 Ouellette Ave. from Nov. 27 to Dec. 3.

Ottawa Street is the backdrop for a peaceful, romantic stroll on a winter evening amid the hustle and bustle of the upcoming Christmas shopping season. - file photo

Step back in time at Windsor's Community Museum to view A Windsor Winter, an exhibit that includes winter games, modes of transportation and old-fashioned ways to keep warm.

The world of Canadian toys, featuring homemade and factory-made items related to winter sports is another seasonal exhibit currently on show at the museum.

Windsor hosts one of the holiday season's most loved annual events, The Windsor Jaycees Santa Claus Parade. Scheduled this year for Saturday, Nov. 27 beginning at 6 p.m., the parade will travel north from the intersection of Giles and Ouellette to the new Civic Terrace.

Ottawa Street

Via Italia

Via Italia is Windsor's own Little Italy.

The eight-block area surrounding Erie Street abounds with the friendly hospitality and lively atmosphere for which the Italians are famous. Via Italia is the commercial and cultural centre of Windsor's large Italian community.

Take an imaginary trip to Europe along Erie Street, where you can sip an authentic espresso or cappuccino, choose delectable Italian pastries and bread from one of the fine bakeries and browse in the specialty food stores for gourmet cheeses, meats and fresh pasta.

Other districts

Windsor has a number of other communities with bustling shopping districts, each with its own history and attractions. Keep an eye out for Wyandotte, Olde Sandwich Towne, Riverside and Olde Walkerville as you travel along the avenues and byways of Windsor.

Take time out to discover parts of the city you've never visited before and experience all Windsor has to offer its many visitors.

ATTRACTIONS: WINDSOR RACEWAY

STORY BY KAREN PATON-EVANS

With off-track betting available all over the US, you don't have to visit Windsor Raceway to place a bet. But you would be missing out on a great time.

• The new lighting system turns night into day when the horses trot onto the track, chief executive officer John Millson says.

• The refurbished clubhouse seats 900 people for dinner and also boasts two banquet rooms, overlooking the track, that can accommodate 200 guests: the Chuck Wagon on the main level offers a steak and eggs breakfast special for only $2.99 Cdn, midnight to 10 am while in the upstairs dining room, $3.99 Cdn daily dinner specials provide good value along with taste and convenience.

Operated by the Ontario Lottery Corporation, the parlour opened at Windsor Raceway in December 1998. It sprawls over a large, comfortable area on the main floor and boasts 712 slot machines. The aisles are generous, the air well-ventilated and the parlour very clean. Like the rest of the clubhouse, the slots parlour is open 24 hours a day, 365 days a week.

"Windsor Raceway is almost like a little city unto itself." - TOM JOY

In the off-season, races are held on Wednesday and Sunday of every week. The average number of races per day is 10, though on Sunday it can reach 14.

Windsor Raceway: A photo feature

$10 million in improvements

Most horses and drivers are from Michigan, Ontario, Quebec, Ohio and the Canadian Maritime provinces. The last race around the Windsor track usually ends around 10:45 p.m.

"People usually return" to Windsor Raceway
- JOHN MILLSON

For the past seven years, visitors to Windsor Raceway have been able to use off-track teletheatres to bet on live horse races taking place around the world. They can thank Windsor Raceway for developing the software that enables betting between tracks in Canada and the US.

Bettors place their wagers from whichever track they are in, but all bets for a particular race are entered into a tote system that creates one pot.

More than 200 betting centres are in the loop, from Pompano Beach, Fl to Moose Jaw, Sask. Bettors watch television screens to see the horses and drivers warm up and go through their paces, then place their bets and watch the race live.

At Windsor Raceway, there are 700 televisions set into private desks for bettors' use, as well as convenient, automated, self-serve betting machines and an on-site currency exchange.

Windsor Raceway employs approximately 2,000 people. Staff are friendly and helpful and the atmosphere in the clubhouse is very comfortable and welcoming with just the right undercurrent of anticipation.

Eighty percent of bets are made by 20 per cent of bettors; the remaining 20 per cent of the people "make up the fun and excitement," Millson says.

A day or evening spent at the track, placing the odd bet, playing a slot machine and taking advantage of the reasonably priced food is "a nice way to acquaint people with horse racing and the facility. People usually return."

SHOPPING CONTEST: DOWNTOWN WINDSOR

Clue in to the city centre

Windsor's downtown core has always been a fun and exciting place to be, but now mystery and intrigue have become part of the City Centre's allure.

The City Centre Business Association (CCBA) is hosting a contest revolving around the fictional disappearance of the Heart of the City diamond. The free Clue In To It game piece can be picked up at participating businesses downtown, so American visitors can use their deductive powers to reveal who lost the diamond, where it was last seen and, most importantly, where it was found.

CITYCENTRE BUSINESS ASSOCIATION

Correct game cards will be entered in a draw for many great prizes. Grand prize is the Heart of the City diamond, valued at $8,000 Cdn.

U.S. guests to downtown Windsor can make calculated guesses as to the correct solution. Or they can hold on to their game cards and follow the clues that will be revealed on the Internet every week, then mail them in or drop them off downtown Windsor.

The websites that will publish the weekly clues are at www.city.windsor.on.ca\ccba and www.thenewwi.com.

SIGNS OF THE TIMES

The City Centre Business Association (CCBA) installed the new signs at all traffic corners within its area. The signs identify street name, block number and the city centre logo that Windsorites have come to know and identify with the heart of the city.

The CCBA wanted the signs to identify the physical boundaries of the city centre for all visitors. Similar street signs have been noted throughout major cities in Canada and the U.S.

ALCOHOL AND TOBACCO RULES

Visitors arriving in Ontario who are 19 years of age or over may import – duty and tax free – for personal use either:

- 1.1 litres (40 ounces) of liquor or wine; or
- 24 x 355 ml (12 ounce) cans or bottles of beer, ale or their equivalent.

Visitors can import more alcoholic beverages (up to 45 litres or 11.9 U.S. gallons), if they are willing to pay the Ontario fees and taxes in addition to the duties that apply.

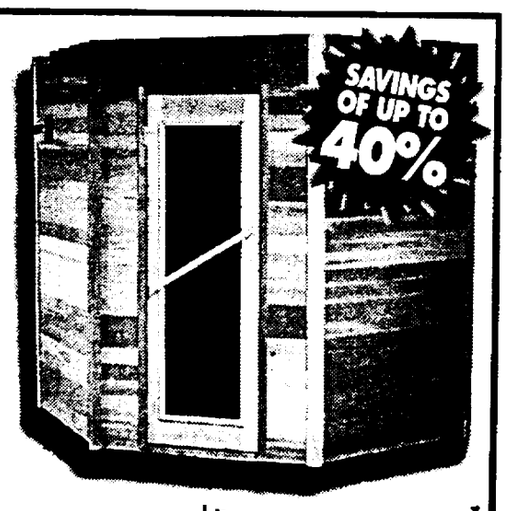

Visitors arriving in Ontario who are 19 years old or older (19 on or after December 1, 1996) may import - duty and tax free:

- 200 cigarettes
- 50 cigars
- 400 grams (14 ounces) of manufactured tobacco
- and 400 tobacco sticks.

Visitors who bring in more tobacco products will have to pay Ontario taxes as well as duties that apply. For detailed information write to: Revenue Canada, Customs and Excise, Public Relations Branch, Ottawa, Ontario, K1A 0L5.

REFUNDS APPLY ON SOME PURCHASES

First, the bad news: Provincial and federal taxes apply to many goods and services purchased in Canada.

The goods news is that U.S. visitors are eligible for tax rebates of seven to 15 per cent. Under revamped rules on February 1, 1999, there are refunds on some or all Provincial Sales Tax and federal Goods and Services Tax paid on purchases totalling $200 Cdn. or more.

Following are some rules to keep in mind:

- If you left Canada in a private vehicle or charter bus tour, receipts must be validated by a participating duty free shop staff member or Canadian customs official to prove the goods were removed from Canada. Accomodation or travel tour package receipts do not have to be validated;
- Most goods qualify for the refund if tax was paid on the item if it was purchased for use outside Canada and was removed from the country within 60 days delivery. Goods include vehicles, eligible accomodation and travel tour packages.
- Items exempt from tax refunds are: meals and beverages; alcoholic beverages; tobacco products; automotive fuels; transportation, such as air, train or bus tickets and car rentals; services, like dry cleaning, shoe repairs and auto repairs; entertainment and parking; professional services such as wedding or funeral services; rentals of travel trailers and other recreational vehicles; cruise ship cabins or train berths; purchases of an interest in a time-share arrangement and; goods consumed or left in Canada.

For more information, call the automated Canada Customs inquiry line at 1-800-461-9999 or check out the website www.rc.gc.ca/visitors.

Lights Sound... Action!

Below, Executive DJ owner Shawn Lippert lays it all out for his audience using new generation DJ equipment like the Pioneer CDJ700 X2 and the CDJ100 witha Pioneer DJM-500 mixer. "DJ's need three things: Coffee, music and a good music dealer – Leone's," he shouts over the sound of his own music. Right, the crowd at Pepper's Bar and Grill on Ouellette Ave. parties to the lights and beat of Lippert, aka DJ Lipp.

TECHNOLOGY: AUDIO-VISUAL EQUIPMENT

STORY BY SUSAN LEWIS

He selects vinyl records from his vast collection to mix and match using high-end turntables being produced just for DJs. It may be surprising news but, the vinyl record has not gone the way of the dodo. Many DJs rely on them just as heavily as they do compact discs.

"Even if you're playing dance music, most of it comes out on vinyl first," says Nomikos.

DJs are as varied as the kinds of music and venues they play: major clubs, little taverns, weddings or raves. Each has his own musical needs.

Nomikos is one example. He uses turntables to "beat mix" or simultaneously spin two songs, as well as a Pioneer CD player with a special loop feature.

"The loop gives you the ability to fuse two songs together, even if there is no really good break in the music where you could mix the songs. You can pick any spot and get a pretty seamless loop. It lets you remix the song on the fly."

Carl Leone of Leone's Music World stands over a CD turntable that's become a hot seller at his Windsor store. "Spinning CDs the traditional way holds no challenge for today's DJ. But the CD turntables simulates a regular turntable by letting you cue up your songs to the exact right spot," he says. Another feature allows the DJ to add special effects.
- photo Susan Lewis

Shawn Lipert, who works at Peppers, another bar in downtown Windsor, says DJs like the hands-on rhythm they can develop beat mixing. "DJs pinch and slide the song to make it unique. It becomes a real experience."

But, he agrees that it's difficult to go right to the exact spot on the record that a DJ is looking for, so he likes using a professional CD player which uses a "clog wheel" - a device which fits over the CD - to do the pinching, sliding and scratching for him.

"There's pros and cons to using the CD player versus the turntable," he says. "The best DJs can use both equally well."

So hot are turntables, that Carl Leone of Leone's Music World says his store is selling more of them now than ever before. The DJs who visit his store prefer the Technic 2000 turntable which retails for $700 Cdn.

CD turntables are also hot sellers, says Leone.

"Spinning CDs the traditional way holds no challenge for today's DJ. But the CD turntables simulates a regular turntable by letting you cue up your songs to the exact right spot."

It also has a feature which allows the DJ to add special effects. CD clubs sell discs with today's most popular songs on them which tell how many beats per minute are on each song. That way, the DJ can mix songs with similar beats per minute - they simply use the CD turntable to adjust the beats per minute so they are the same.

PLEASE SEE VISITORS /14

Lighting has always been good to set a mood. And, to accompany a pulsing dance floor, flashing, multi-coloured laser lights are the choice of today's clubs.

On the other hand, hand-held laser lights start at $99 Cdn - perfect for the person who wants to take the party with them anywhere they go.

"There's all range of lighting. Our party lighting pack includes a fog machine, strobe lights, and a disco light which pulses to the beat of the music for $300 CDN."

Karaoke machines continue to be popular. Leone sells one for $369 Cdn, which offers a tv hook-up so that the words scroll across the screen, one microphone and a free CD to sing to. Also available is a special 10-CD package which comes with more than 180 songs.

DJs are interested in buying in Canada because of the exchange rate with Leone estimating that the merchandise he sells retails for the same basic price in the US. So something that sells for $100 Cdn would only be about $67 US, after the exchange is factored in.

Windsor nightspots are just beginning to appreciate the laser light experience. "Now, about three places have real laser light set-ups," says Leone.

"It's just beginning to catch on here; it's already hot in the US. It's a big thing to get ready to celebrate this New Year's Eve. Some of our lasers do scrolling messages on the wall so that you can count down to midnight."

DJ Lipp flashes a vinyl record from inside his booth at Peppers. - photo Barb Bondy

In addition to laser lighting, Leone's also sells serving trays which illuminate under black light and other trays with a neon bar of light around the perimeter. "That way, it's easy for a manager to see where his or her staff are at," says Leone.

DJs aren't the only ones looking for bargains in Canada, says Leone. "Buying pianos is big. People are able to save between 30 and 40 percent."

Leone's pianos start at $2,495 Cdn for an upright piano, and $8,000 Cdn for a baby grand.

Digital pianos are also popular, and start at $769 CDN. "They give a range of sound like a piano, but cost much less. You can plug in your headphones and play without disturbing others. And, they never need tuning."

WHERE TO EXCHANGE YOUR MONEY

Visitors are encouraged to use Canadian funds when they shop.

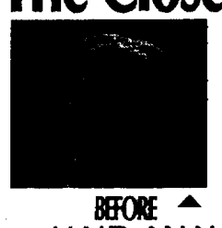

Currency exchange offices, located at most Ontario Travel Information Centres at the U.S./Ontario border, offer a good rate of exchange and are open daily. A good rate of exchange is also offered at all banks, trust companies, credit unions and international airports. Banks are generally open 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. Monday to Thursday and to 6 p.m. Friday. Most trust companies and credit unions are open 9 a.m. to 6 p.m. weekdays and Saturday mornings.

Most major credit cards are welcome in Canada. Debit cards are also being accepted at more and more establishments.

Visitors should also be aware of taxes payable on goods and services, and of tax rebates. For more information, write Visitor Rebate Program, Revenue Canada, Summerside Tax Centre, Summerside, PEI CANADA C1N 6C6. Or phone 1-800-66VISIT (1-800-668-4748), toll free from anywhere in Canada.

DAYTRIPPING: ESSEX COUNTY

Celebrate holidays out in the country

BY LOUISE DEARDEN

Venturing along the miles of shoreline that border Lake St. Clair, the Detroit River and Lake Erie will lead visitors to small towns and villages with a warm country welcome.

The communities of Essex County celebrate the holiday season with everything from carol singing and tree-lighting ceremonies to parades and historical walkabouts.

Join in the fun of Christmas in the country.

LaSalle

A short drive south from Windsor's city centre, the town of LaSalle is situated along the banks of the Detroit River. Known as the fastest growing community in Essex County, LaSalle is close to many regional attractions, great shopping and a number of festivals and events.

Amherstburg

A short ten-mile drive south of Windsor along the Detroit River shoreline on County Rd. 20, Amherstburg is home to a number of historic buildings, museums and galleries.

The Park House Museum, which houses a collection of mid-19th century furnishings and dishes, is celebrating a Victorian Christmas, Dec. 3-5.

The museum will be specially decorated for the season, complete with period decorations, music, food, displays and demonstrations. Costumed interpretative tours are offered and visitors have the opportunity to shop for unusual gifts.

Amherstburg is planning its third annual Christmas walkabout in partnership with historic locations throughout the town. Contact the Amherstburg Chamber of Commerce at 519-736-2511 for details.

Harrow

A few miles further along County Rd. 20 will bring you to Harrow, a quaint community in the heart of scenic countryside.

There are many places for antique hunters to explore.

The historic John R. Park Homestead presents Christmas In The Country, a celebration of 19th century holiday festivities, on Dec. 12. Call 519-738-2029 for details.

Kingsville

East of Harrow, on the north shore of Lake Erie, lies the town of Kingsville. The town's shopping district features the work of local artists and treasures of the past and present.

Lakeside Park will glow and twinkle with the colourful lights of 125 special displays at Kingsville's Fantasy of Lights, on view nightly from Dec. 5 through to Jan. 2.

A Christmas walk-through and marketplace is being held at the Kingswood Inn in Kingsville from Nov. 29 through Dec. 6, from 1 p.m. to 8 p.m. daily. Enjoy the festive decorations, coffee and cookies, local musicians and vendors booths.

Leamington

A few miles east along the Lake Erie shore will bring you to the Tomato Capital of Canada - Leamington.

PLEASE SEE COUNTY /17

Christmas in the county – there's nothing quite like it. Essex County is a treasure trove of sights and sounds – from quiet, out-of-the-way, rural villages and hamlets to growing suburban towns like Tecumseh. Among the sights of the county are the Christmas lights such as this nativity scene which lit up a home on Manning Road near Riverside Drive in Tecumseh.

- file photo

County offers plenty

The town has three distinct commercial areas – uptown, mall shopping and the outskirts.

Uptown Leamington has quaint boutiques, historical buildings, modern stores, unique gifts, quality jewellery, fine china, furniture, books, art, sports, camera and recreation equipment and a complete selection of shoes and clothing fashions for men, women and children.

Near the village of Ruthven, northwest of Leamington, Colasanti Tropical Gardens celebrates the holiday season with a Poinsettia Festival Nov. 28 and Dec. 5. Look for an abundance of poinsettias, Christmas cactus, trees and crafts.

Santa will be in attendance, and there will be plenty of activities for the whole family.

Lakeshore

Travelling north from Leamington will lead to the south shore of Lake St. Clair. Scattered along the lake's edge are a number of small communities under the banner of the Town of Lakeshore, from Lighthouse Cove on the far eastern border of Essex County, through Belle River and St. Clair Beach to the edge of Tecumseh.

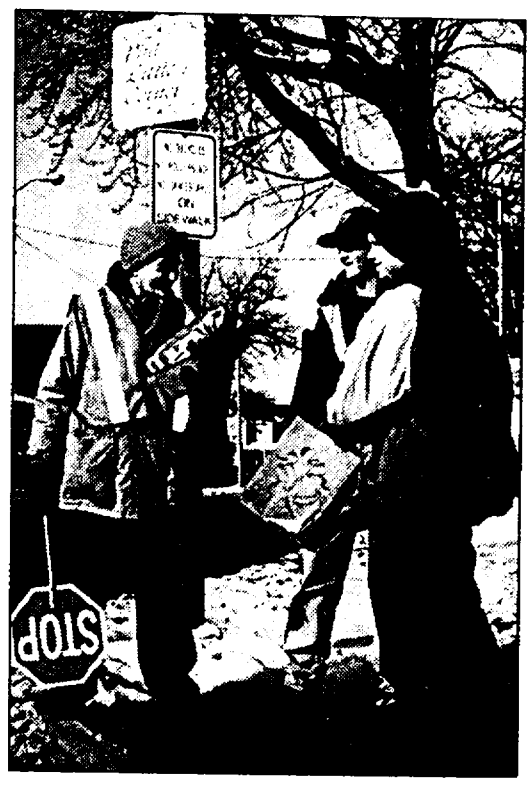

Take a drive along the shore and discover your own favourite shopping place.

Tecumseh

The scenic route along the water's edge leads to Tecumseh's gateway, Riverside Drive and Lesperance Road.

Heading south to the main part of town will bring you to many "one-of-a-kind" specialty stores, clothing boutiques, cafes and a perfumery and chocolate shop.

The town merchants treat their customers to a mix of warm hospitality and old-fashioned values. On Nov. 26, Tecumseh Business In Action hosts An Old Fashioned Christmas which promises to be alive with the sights, sounds and smells of the holiday season.

Essex

While many of Essex County's communities are located on the waterways, the town of Essex is situated right in the centre, truly the "Hub of the County".

Offering the small town atmosphere of days of long ago, an enjoyable day may be spent shopping for everything from fine china to clothing and appliances. Highlights of the town's history are depicted on a series of outdoor murals. The Essex Railway Station has been painstakingly restored to the Edwardian era. The Station will be celebrating a Victorian Christmas on Saturday December 4th, with demonstrations of how to make Victorian decorations.

TRADITIONS: THANKSGIVING

Talking turkey across borders

BY KAREN PATON-EVANS

The first North American Thanksgiving was celebrated in the eastern Arctic in 1578 by a very grateful, very cold Englishman, Martin Frobisher.

Besieged by storms, the mariner and his flotilla of 15 vessels were blown across the entrance to the Hudson Straight till they ran into a deep cove on Baffin Island. With characteristic modesty, the sailor promptly named his landing spot and its surrounding waters Frobisher Bay.

Upon returning to England, Frobisher's patron, Michael Lok, had little to be thankful about as the mariner's ore turned out to be worthless. Lok lost his fortune, but was left with tonnes of useless ore as a souvenir of Frobisher Bay.

Since that year of mixed blessings, North Americans have observed many, many days of thanksgiving. Both the US and Canada have arrived at their national holidays with false starts, sometimes hampered by attitudes of indifference and often urged forward by authentic piety and proud nationalism.

Today's celebrations, albeit honoured in a different month, depending which side of the border your table happens to be, have the common theme of appreciation for living in lands of opportunity, for civil freedoms and rights, for first-world abundance and for the gifts of family and friends.

The Pilgrims who observed the first American thanksgiving appreciated all of these things. The arrivals to the New World had chosen a poor time to land at Plymouth Rock; Massachusetts was a cold place to be on December 11, 1620.

The harsh winter took its toll on the 102 original travellers; by the autumn of 1621, there were only 46 Mayflower passengers left. But the hardy group took heart in its bountiful harvest and were grateful to the native people who had helped them survive.

The feast lasted three days. Governor William Bradford had asked four men to hunt venison, along with ducks, geese and other wild fowl, which the Pilgrims generalized into the one category of turkey.

The Pilgrims had exhausted their stock of flour, but they made fried bread from the corn they had grown. They prepared boiled pumpkin, the forerunner of the traditional pumpkin pie. Fish, lobster, clams, watercress, dried fruit, berries and plums rounded out the menu.

The Pilgrims did not make the occasion an annual event, but in 1623, they were sufficiently awed by God's powers to once more send out invitations to their native friends and share a feast.

The Pilgrims had held a special prayer service, beseeching God to send rain and end the drought that threatened their crops. The Almighty answered their appeal with a long, welcome rain the next day.

The good people of Charlestown, MA adopted the custom of thanksgiving after deciding it was an appropriate way to express their gratefulness for their growing and prosperous community. The council declared June 29, 1676 as a day of thanksgiving.

The holiday stayed within Massachusetts until October 1777, when all 13 colonies rejoiced together. The event also celebrated the colonists' victory over the British at Saratoga.

TRADITIONS: REMEMBRANCE DAY

Lest we forget...

If you happen to be in Windsor at 11 a.m. on November 11, you will no doubt find the bustling city strangely quiet. For it is at this moment that Canadians observe two minutes of silence to honour those who gave the supreme sacrifice for world peace.

Like American Veteran's Day, the date was chosen to commemorate the armistice that ended World War I at 11 a.m., November 11, 1918. A splash of red on the lapels and shirt fronts of people all over the city pays tribute to the memory of soldiers and peace keepers who died fighting for freedom.

Canadians wear the red-flocked velvet poppies to show that they remember and respect the brave deeds of the past. Disabled Canadian war veterans have been making the poppies since 1921.

The poppy was chosen as the symbol of Remembrance Day due to the poignant words of the poem In Flanders Fields by a Canadian military surgeon Major John McCrae, who wrote of the red poppies that swept across the blood-soaked Ypres battlefield in 1915. The war-hardened doctor was shocked by the slaughter:

"I wish I could embody on paper some of the varied sensations of that seventeen days... Seventeen days of Hades! At the end of the first day if anyone had told us we had to spend 17 days there, we would have folded our hands and said it could not have been done."

McCrae vented his horrified emotions in a 15-line poem, which he wrote during a brief respite from tending the wounded and burying the dead while sitting in an ambulance at the edge of Ypres, overlooking a young friend's grave:

In Flanders Fields

In Flanders fields the poppies blow
Between the crosses, row on row,
That mark our place; and in the sky
The larks, still bravely singing, fly
Scarce heard amid the guns below.
We are the dead. Short days ago
We lived, saw dawn, felt sunset glow,
Loved, and were loved, and now we lie
In Flanders fields.

Take up your quarrel with the foe:
To you from failing hands we throw
The torch; be yours to hold it high.
If ye break faith with us who die
We shall not sleep, though poppies grow
In Flanders fields.

SHOPPING OPTIONS: DEVONSHIRE MALL

Big names draw shoppers

Americans who are searching for name-brand stores such as The Gap, Roots, Laura's and Chapters Books, are increasingly coming to Devonshire Mall and the Roundhouse in Windsor.

U.S. customers' interest in these stores has Janet Simpson, Devonshire's marketing director, anticipating a busy Christmas season. "We project about 15 per cent of our sales will stem from U.S. purchasers," says Simpson.

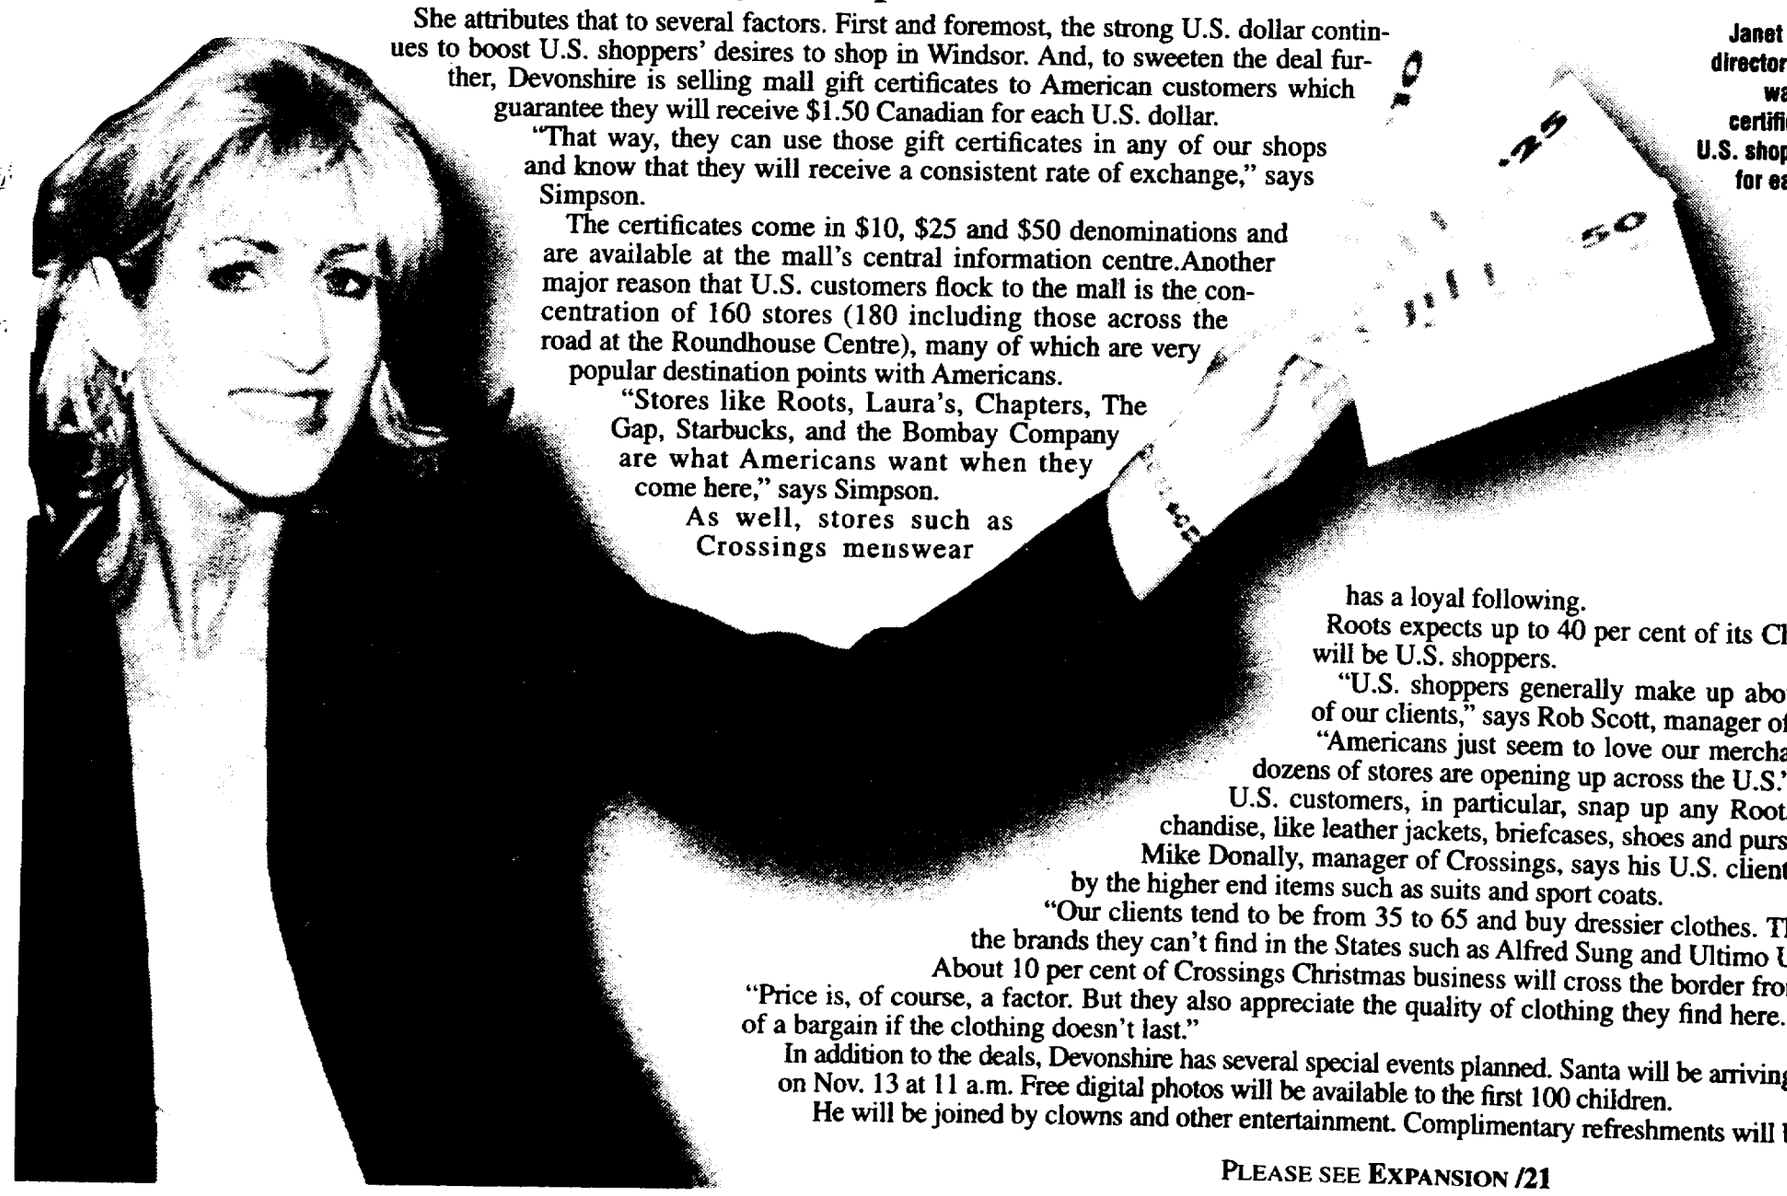

She attributes that to several factors. First and foremost, the strong U.S. dollar continues to boost U.S. shoppers' desires to shop in Windsor. And, to sweeten the deal further, Devonshire is selling mall gift certificates to American customers which guarantee they will receive $1.50 Canadian for each U.S. dollar.

"That way, they can use those gift certificates in any of our shops and know that they will receive a consistent rate of exchange," says Simpson.

The certificates come in $10, $25 and $50 denominations and are available at the mall's central information centre.Another major reason that U.S. customers flock to the mall is the concentration of 160 stores (180 including those across the road at the Roundhouse Centre), many of which are very popular destination points with Americans.

"Stores like Roots, Laura's, Chapters, The Gap, Starbucks, and the Bombay Company are what Americans want when they come here," says Simpson.

As well, stores such as Crossings menswear has a loyal following.

Roots expects up to 40 per cent of its Christmas traffic will be U.S. shoppers.

"U.S. shoppers generally make up about 20 per cent of our clients," says Rob Scott, manager of Roots.

"Our clients tend to be from 35 to 65 and buy dressier clothes. They really like the brands they can't find in the States such as Alfred Sung and Ultimo Uomo."

About 10 per cent of Crossings Christmas business will cross the border from Michigan.

"Price is, of course, a factor. But they also appreciate the quality of clothing they find here. It's not much of a bargain if the clothing doesn't last."

In addition to the deals, Devonshire has several special events planned. Santa will be arriving by helicopter on Nov. 13 at 11 a.m. Free digital photos will be available to the first 100 children.

He will be joined by clowns and other entertainment. Complimentary refreshments will be available.

PLEASE SEE EXPANSION /21

And, on Nov. 26, the Friday after the American Thanksgiving, the mall will be open until midnight for Midnight Madness, with sales galore.

Devonshire Mall is currently in a state of expansion, adding a 59,000-square-foot Cineplex Odeon theatre complex, with 12 state-of-the-art screens, 3,200 high-back seats and a birthday party room.

It is part of a total 110,000-square-foot addition, with 20 new retailers and an upscale restaurant, expected to be completed by summer 2000.

Shoppers are also attracted to the area because of nearby businesses such as Home Depot and The Keg restaurant.

Says Simpson: "What our customers are finding out is that, with such a wide variety of stores, great prices and value, we're worth the trip over. We're the kind of tourist destination that people are looking for."

Thanksgiving traditions

Thanksgiving was not observed en masse again until George Washington shut his ears to opposition and proclaimed a National Day of Thanksgiving in 1789. Thomas Jefferson, inaugurated as president in 1801, did not support the idea of a national Thanksgiving.

The American Thanksgiving may never have become a tradition had it not been for the tireless efforts of magazine editor Sarah Josepha Hale.

She used her writing talents to champion her cause for 40 years, publishing her support of a national observance in Boston Ladies' Magazine and Godey's Lady's Book. At last, in 1863, President Abraham Lincoln sided with Hale and declared that Thanksgiving would be honoured by the nation on the last Thursday in November.

Since that time, every president has proclaimed the national holiday, although some have changed the date.

Franklin Roosevelt made the unpopular decision to make Thanksgiving earlier in November so as to extend the Christmas shopping season, but for two years, he received so much flak from the public that Roosevelt ultimately changed the date back to Lincoln's choice.

In 1941, Congress sanctioned the fourth Thursday in November as the legal holiday of Thanksgiving. It also turned out to be a great day for a football game.

Melting pot of cultures

What eventually emerged was a melting pot of the traditions of other cultures: the European peasant harvest celebrations, with its symbolic cornucopia or horn of plenty; the reverent thanksgiving of Frobisher and his Englishmen and the Massachusetts Pilgrims' feast of pumpkin, wild fowl and other indigenous foods.

After Frobisher had expressed his gratitude in 1578, not much happened in Canada in the way of a formal thanksgiving until the 1750s, when the residents of Nova Scotia took up the practice.

In 1763, the citizens of Halifax, N. S. rejoiced with a day of thanksgiving in honour of the end of the Seven Years' War.

Loyalists moving to other parts of Canada brought the idea of thanksgiving with them and spread the tradition, although the date was never consistent.

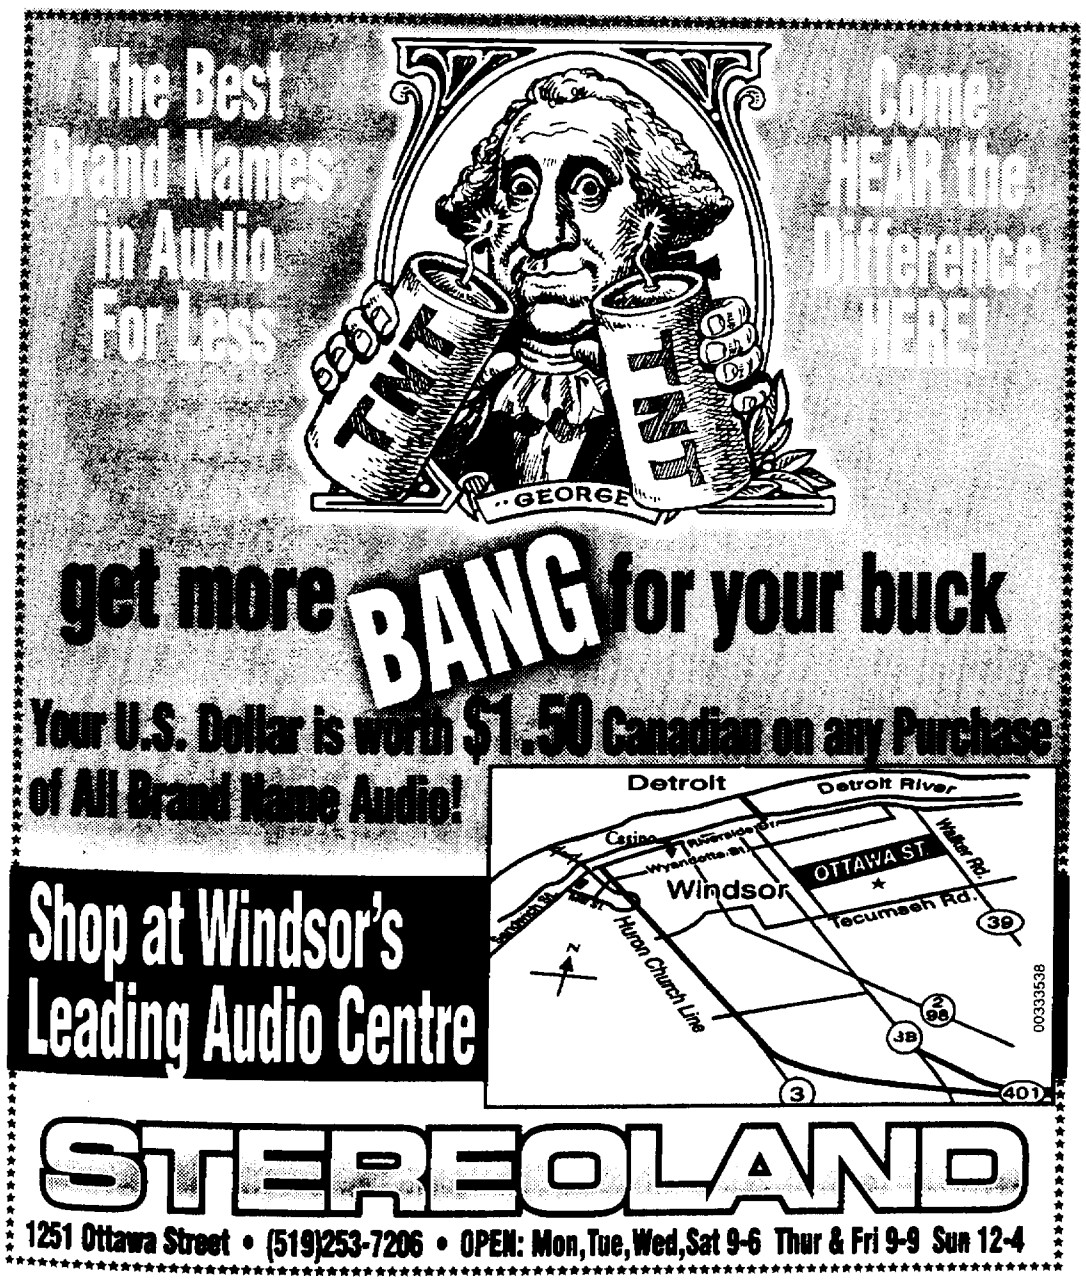

By 1879, the concept of a day dedicated to reflection and appreciation had impressed the Canadian Parliament, which appointed November 6 as a national day of Thanksgiving.

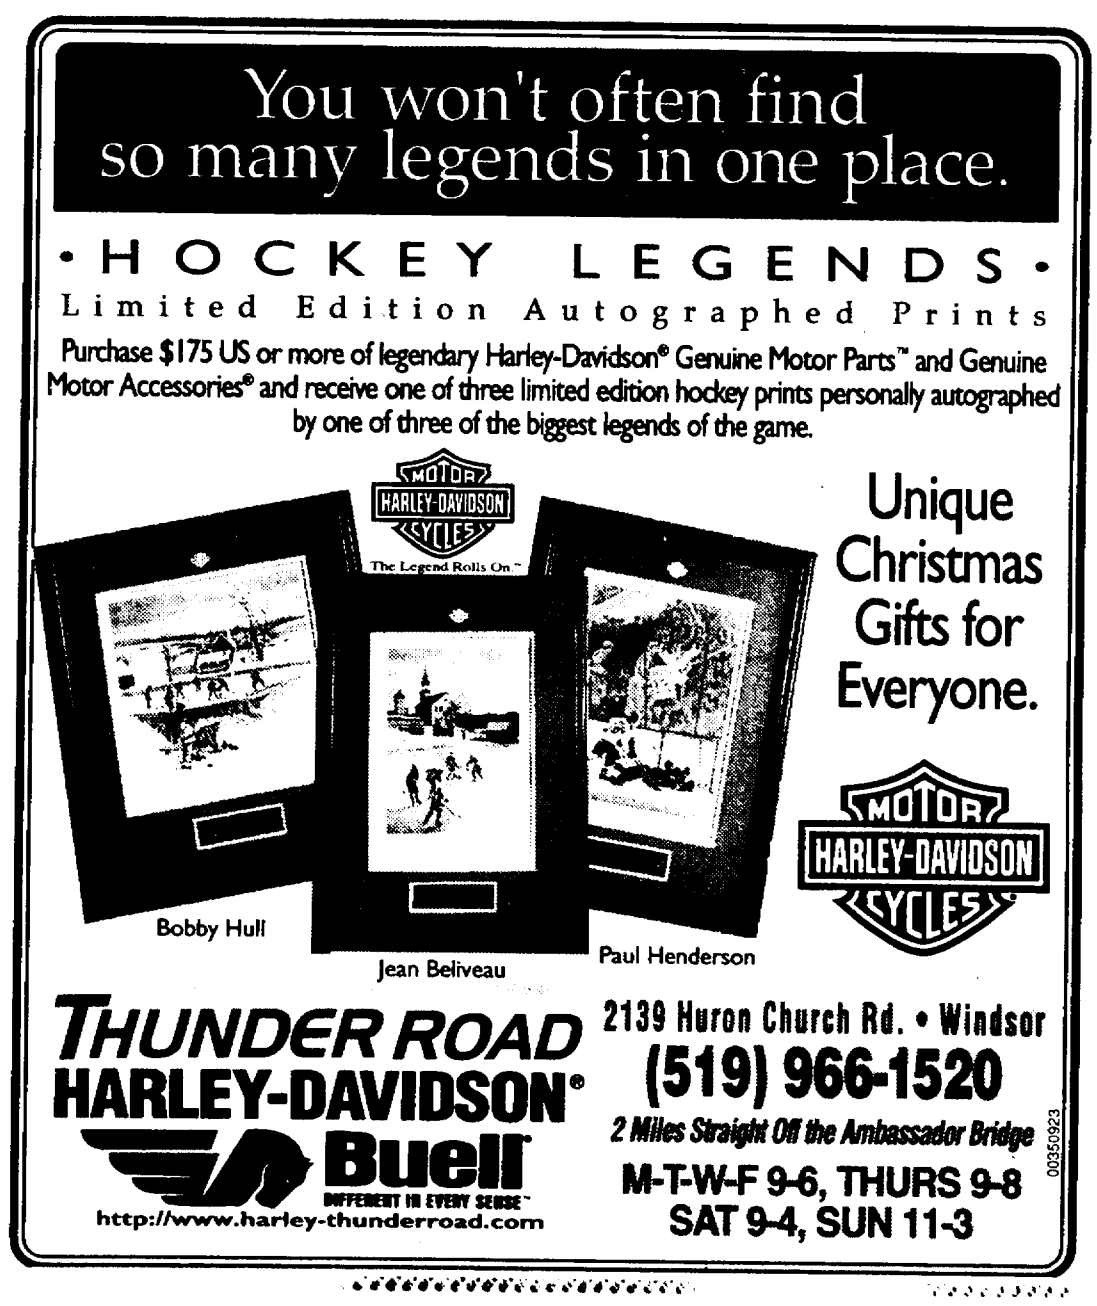

The date fluctuated over the years, with the third Monday in October as the most common, but after the First World War, Thanksgiving was celebrated in conjunction with Armistice or Remembrance Day, which has always been observed on November 11.

The Canadian Parliament of 1957 decided that the second Monday of October was more appropriate for Thanksgiving, much to the chagrin of farmers, who believed the date of the harvest holiday had been changed to an earlier season so city dwellers could enjoy their long weekend in warmer weather.

Though much of the corn is still standing in the fields when Thanksgiving arrives in Canada, the pumpkin crop is at its peak much to the delight of trick or treatin' children who lead parents by the hand in search of The Great Pumpkin.

As a result Parliament has upheld the date for its "day of General Thanksgiving to Almighty God for the bountiful harvest with which Canada has been blessed."

CULTURE: WINTER ART IN THE PARK

Among the exhibitors at this year's Winter Art in the Park is North Vancouver-based Doctor Joy's massage tool.

Fest bigger, better

BY SUSAN LEWIS

If your heart is chilled by the thought of falling leaves and winter winds lurking around the corner, let the sights and sounds of Winter Art in the Park soothe your soul.

The winter art festival, now in its seventh year, draws thousands of visitors to its displays of watercolours, drawings, sculpture, photography and a variety of other artistic creations. "If there is a charity event that assists in heralding the Christmas season in Windsor and Essex County, it is the Rotary Club of Windsor's Winter Art in the Park," says Mary Vicente, project co-ordinator.

The show is carefully planned to offer a broad selection of the best contemporary and traditional artworks, including precious and semi-precious jewellery, hand-made fashions and decorative items made by experts in the blown and leaded glass, pottery, metal and wood industries.

Fine art, such as sculptures, oil and watercolour paintings and prints are also available.

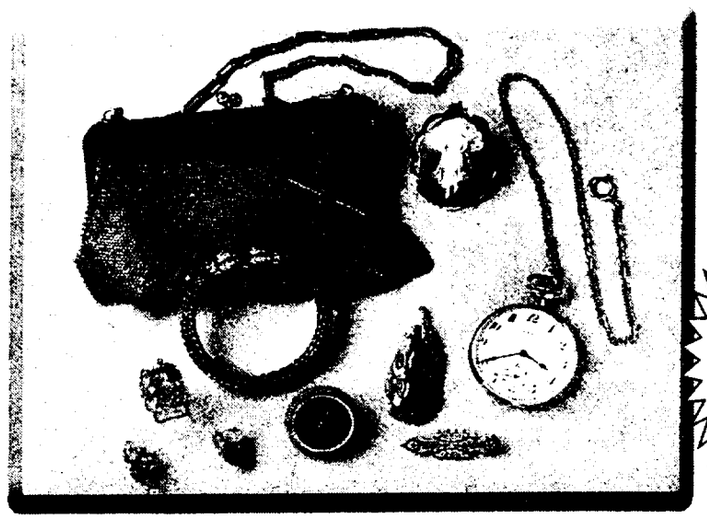

The show features well-known Windsor-area artists, as well as artisans from across Ontario. Some travel from as far as British Columbia, to present their work personally.

The Rotary Club of Windsor (1918) organizes Winter Art in the Park with proceeds benefiting Rotary community projects such as adult assistance, youth services, the Ghana project and so much more.

"I have shown my work at the summer Art in the Park and always enjoyed the high level of artistic quality," she says. "The Winter Art in the Park promises to be just as exceptional."

In addition to the quality works available, the strong U.S. dollar means that U.S. visitors can purchase one-of-a-kind pieces at a substantial discount.

The show was previously held at the Fogolar Furlan Club but has relocated to the St. Denis Centre because the space afforded by the larger venue allows more exhibitors.

While strolling through the show, you will enjoy the sounds of the holidays, performed by area harpists, as well as children's series Cushion Concerts, presented by the Windsor Symphony.

Patrons are invited to visit the holiday entertaining display (Martha Stewart, eat your heart out!), with its selection of linens, dishes and tablecloths, furniture and more.

Santa will also be on hand.

Winter Art in the Park is being held Nov. 19-21 at the St. Denis Centre, University of Windsor (College Avenue at Huron Church Road). The show runs Friday 2 - 8 p.m.; Saturday 10 a.m. - 8 p.m. and Sunday 10 a.m. - 5 p.m.

Wildlife acrylics by Dawn Lavoie, an Essex County artist, are among the works available at Winter Art in the Park.

Admission is $3 Cdn per person; children five and under are free. Parking is also free in designated university parking lots.

J. STEVEN SARVIS
30400 TELEGRAPH RD., STE. 460
BINGHAM FARMS, MI 48025-4541

This message comes direct to you from the 330 women and men who are members of the Old Newsboys Goodfellow Fund of Detroit. It also comes from the 45,000 needy Detroit children who will receive Goodfellow gift packages this Christmas.

In addition, this year for the first time we are adding 2,000 packages to our gift list for needy children in Highland Park. They all join in a rousing, cheerful: THANK YOU!

We can't thank you all individually. That would be impossible. After all, about a hundred thousand of you purchased this special edition of The Detroit News either from a Goodfellows member or a Detroit Police Officer, paying whatever you could afford or thought was fair to help us meet our 1998 goal of $1.5 million. What counts is that you all gave from the heart so that no child or - at least no child the Goodfellows and their many helpers can possibly reach this holiday season - will go without a measure of cheer and happiness this Christmas.

A few charities have been stained with bad ink. Granted, they are in the minority. But even the slightest hint of impropriety seems to rub off on others who play it straight.

It is strange to even have to mention it, but the Goodfellows organization is one of the mainstream groups you can trust. For 85 years they have paired their motto, "No child without a Christmas" with another equally important statement: "Charity without overhead."

It makes no difference if you paid 50 cents, $5, $50 or $500 for today's special edition - your entire donation goes into the packages for the kids. No big salaries and leased cars; no fancy parties and limousines. No board meetings in Bermuda.

This year the Goodfellows will package and distribute 45,000 colorfully wrapped gift boxes containing warm clothing, books, hygiene items, toys and candy to Detroit children aged 5 through 13. If you do the math, that's about one of every three kids in K through eighth grade in the Detroit public schools. And of course, some 14,000 of the children will receive one of the attractive dolls that have been dressed by hundreds of volunteers in the tricounty area.

Carefully planned and spent, the $1.5 million budget goes a long way. Besides the Christmas packages, the Goodfellows also provide literally hundreds of children with free emergency dental care provided by the University of Detroit Dental School and free shoes distributed through the Detroit-area Sibley's stores. There are also a small number of camperships, where children are offered an opportunity to get out into the open for a few days.

And if you feel moved to send an additional contribution, mail it to: The Goodfellows, Dept. 77813 P.O. Box 77000 Detroit, MI 48277-0813.

The Goodfellows are a federal 501(c)(3) charity recognized by the Michigan Department of the Treasury. We're not from the government, but we are here to help you ... as long as you want to help us help the kids.

Cystic fibrosis is the number one genetic killer of children and young adults in this country. A defective gene causes the body to produce an abnormally thick mucus, which leads to chronic and fatal lung infections and impairs digestion.
Foundation supported scientist, however, are writing a remarkable medical success story, They are quickly translating what they learn about the CF gene and and CF cells in the laboratory into promising new treatments.

BEYOND BREAKFAST.

From tempting Chicken Caesar to tangy Santa Fe Fajita or Zesty Pizza bagels, to name just a few. Hearty, homemade soups and crisp salads round out our midday menu for a whole new frontier of fresh alternatives.
All sandwiches available on fresh baked bread, Lavosh wrap, or a bagel.

Bye-bye, bag o'lunch... Hello, bagel lunch!

Window glazing can be putty in your hands

By Blair Gilbert

Q. Mr. Hardware, I have been restoring an old house my wife and I bought last year. The current project is the windows and putty (glazing). Many windows I'm repairing have putty that is cracked and hard. Some of it was easily removed; although most of it adhered to the wood window remarkably well — a little too well because I had to use a heat gun and a chisel to remove it. I'm writing this because I just repaired one of the first windows I worked on in this house. The putty shrunk away from the glass and it was a piece of cake to remove, Is the new putty bad or is there something I've done wrong. Putty Boy, Grosse Pointe Farms.

A. Putty Boy, your problem could be in the product you are using. It could also be in the preparation of your project.

Something as involved as wood window repair merits using quality products. The 30 cents you save on a pint of poor-quality, short-lived glazing does not justify the time it takes to remove it when it fails. The labor required to repair a window from start to finish could be about one hour. What will you gain by purchasing inexpensive products that will fail in several years, at which time you may have to do the job over?

Good, old-fashioned glazing compound, (window putty) is still one of the best products we have found for installing glass in a wood or metal frames. Most glazes require a two-week or longer wait before they can be painted.

For Plexiglas or acrylic window repairs, we use a latex glazing that comes in a caulking cartridge. The benefit of latex glazing is that it cures in a day or less. This is helpful when the material you are installing is flexible and a quick drying glazing is required. Regular glazing doesn't harden for a week or two. When cleaning or simply handling the window, the Plexiglas can push out the still-soft glazing where the more rigid glass won't.

Your 1-year-old putty shrank and pulled off the sash easily because the dry old wood sucked the oil out of the putty before it cured. A trick my grandfather taught me was to coat the wood with linseed oil after removing the old glazing. One of nature's favorite wood preservatives is linseed oil. It hardens the old, soft wood, preserves it, and acts as a bonding surface for the glazing.

On an old metal sash, simply coat the metal with a rusty-metal primer. This also acts as a bonder for the glazing to stick to and helps stop the rust. Remember this: Rust never sleeps and putty won't stick to rusting metal.

Blair sez, "If you can't find the time to do a job right, when will you find the time to do it over?"

Moisture coating keeps the plant evergreen

Q. Last year my evergreens looked fine in the fall but turned brown on one side by spring. What is happening and how can I prevent it?

A. Your plants are losing moisture from the needles or leaves. This damage usually only affects the south side of the plant. When the sun warms the leaves during those warmer winter days the plant will lose moisture from the leaves. Since the ground is frozen it cannot replace that moisture into the leaves as fast. The effect you will see is that the needles or leaves on the south side of the plant will turn brownish. High winds on evergreens can cause the same moisture loss.

This year has been extremely dry. Without much moisture our plants will be even more sensitive to winter's drying effects. Azaleas, rhododendrons and many of our other evergreens, which are exposed to the sun and wind, need watering this fall to help them survive the winter. Newly planted shrubs and trees are the most affected because they do not have a full root system developed yet. Plants in containers are also highly susceptible to drying out because of the limited root space and temperature changes. The sun warms the pot in the day then it will refreeze at night.

To prevent this from occurring you can spray your plants with a product called Wilt-pruf in the early winter and again mid-winter. Wilt-pruf looks like watered down white glue or thick milk and it is water-soluble. Wilt-pruf will help the leaves retain their moisture by forming a protective coating over them. Because it will wash off with time by the rain or snow, you should reapply Wilt-pruf again usually in late January.

Another method of prevention is to make a wind/sun screen of burlap around your sensitive plants. It is not as nice to look at throughout the winter but it is effective. Simply pound some wooden stakes around the plant or row of plants and fasten burlap to the stakes. Treated burlap will last a few years and usually comes in 40-and 60-inch widths.

I prefer the Wilt-pruf method because it is easier to do and less obtrusive to the eye. Don't forget to lightly water those evergreens you planted in containers during the winter. Placing some ice cubes in the pot will give the plant a slow trickle of water on the warmer winter days without flooding the container. This fall keep the soil damp until we start getting freezing temperatures.

Problems occur when the soil thaws during the day then freezes at night. All plants will benefit from some type of mulch over the soil, especially the container-grown plants. A layer of 2 to 3 inches of mulch will help keep the roots protected.

Antiques

Q. I was wondering about the value of my silver "bug" pin from the 1896 McKinley-Bryan campaign. The bug's wings pop out, showing miniature photos of Democrat William Jennings Bryan and his running mate, Arthur Sewall.

A. Your political pin is made of silvered brass with a spring inside that releases the wings. It is the best known of several mechanical shell (stamped metal) badges designed for the 1896 campaign.

There is a companion gold-colored brass pin that pictures the Republican candidates, William McKinley and Garrett Hobart. The silver color symbolized the Democratic Party's support of free coinage of silver. The gold color represented the Republican Party's support of the gold standard. Bug badges were originally priced at a dime each. Today, one that is working is worth more than $100.

Q. My enameled silver belt buckle is marked with the word "Cymric" plus some small pictures of an anchor, a lion and a letter. The buckle is made of ornately worked silver with blue and green enamel added.

A. Your buckle was made by Liberty & Co. of London during the late part of the 19th century. Cymric was one of the trademarks used for Arts and Crafts and Art Nouveau silver designed and made at the famous store. The Cymric designs were made until the 1930s.

Q. My metal leaf-shaped dish has a mark on the bottom that includes the word "Buenilum." Is that the name of a metal?

A. Your dish is aluminum. Buenilum is a trade name coined in 1933 by Frederic Buehner. Buehner was an artist who immigrated to New York from Germany about 1930. The word Buenilum is a combination of the words "Buehner" and "aluminum." Buehner's company, Buehner-Warner, became affiliated with Pfaltzgraff. The company made aluminum, stainless steel and vitreous porcelain giftwares until the 1970s.

Tile it on

Ceramic countertop dresses up kitchen

Replacing your countertops with ceramic tile is a relatively easy kitchen project which will give you a new look without completely remodeling.

"Tiles not only update and improve your room's appearance, but you can install them yourself, saving up to $700 in labor costs alone," says Tony Orozco, an expert with The Home Depot.

For most wall projects, tiles that are six inches in size are the easiest to install because they require less cutting and cover more surface area. Smaller tiles can form more intricate patterns and create striking visual accents and highlights. Of course, the smaller the tiles, the more you'll have to install.

Whatever tiles you plan to use, the walls must be clean, sound and dry. You can't effectively tile over wallpaper or flaking and powdery paint. Make sure the surface is as flat as possible so the tiles adhere firmly.

Since countertop surfaces are often exposed to water, be sure to use moisture-resistant adhesive or mortar and glazed tiles.

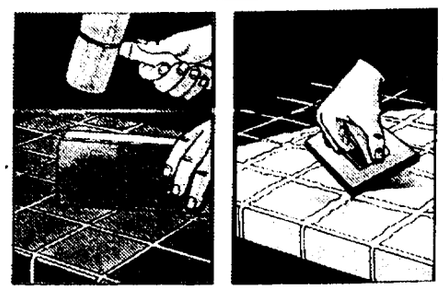

Before you begin to lay the tile, you will need to prep the area.

Cut 3-inch wide frame supports from 3/4-inch exterior plywood. Using 1 1/4-inch wall board screws, attach the supports every 24 inches across the cabinet, around the perimeter and next to the cutout locations. With exterior plywood and cement backer board, cut a countertop core to fit over the cabinet unit and fasten it to the wall and cabinets with wallboard screws driven into the frame supports.

Fill any cracks in the core with latex underpayment, let it dry and then sand it. If the countertop will have bullnose edge tiles, use carpenter's glue and 6d finish nails to attach 1-by-2 buildup strips of exterior plywood edges, attach stained and sealed 1-by-2 hardware strips.

Measure and mark the middle of the countertop core. Dry-fit all tiles and mark the cutting lines on any tiles that must be trimmed. Use a tile cutter to trim tiles and smooth the cut edges with a tile sander. Apply a thin layer of adhesive to the edge of the countertop and the back of the tile, using a notched trowel. Press the tiles into place with a slight twist, and insert the plastic spacers if needed. Spread adhesive, or mortar, along the layout lines and install the perpendicular rows of tiles.

Remember to use your spacers and check the alignment often

Set the tiles by wrapping a short 2-by-4 in a towel and tapping lightly with a mallet.

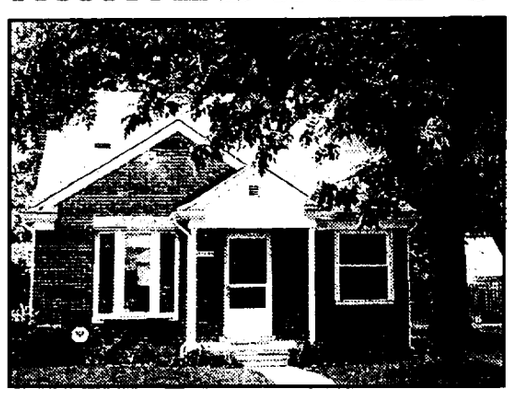

Set the tiles by wrapping a short 2-by-4 in a towel and tapping lightly with a mallet. Apply the grout with a rubber grout float and use a sweeping motion to force the grout into the joints.

Remove the plastic spacers with a toothpick.

Mix the grout and latex additive and apply it with a rubber grout float, using a sweeping motion. Wipe away the excess with a damp sponge, let it dry for an hour and wipe away the residue. Let the grout cure and seal the backsplash joints with silicone caulk.

Let your countertop dry completely and apply two coats of silicone sealer to the grout. Finally, buff the entire surface.

How to make that 'need new roof' decision

If your home is nearly 20 years old or it's been a good two decades since it was last shingled, chances are you may need a new roof.

Autumn is a good time to inspect closely and evaluate the condition of your roof. If the roof has deteriorated significantly, you'll have enough time to get your home re-roofed before winter weather arrives.

The Asphalt Roofing Manufacturers Association (ARMA) suggests that consumers look for the following aging deterioration signs in trying to determine if they need a new roof

• Using binoculars, walk around the outside of the house and look for cracked, severely curled or broken shingles. Never walk on a roof; it can be dangerous and may damage the shingles.

• Check gutters and downspouts for excessive accumulation of the mineral granules that coat the shingles. (It is normal for shingles to lose some of their granules, as an excess amount is applied during shingle manufacture.) These granules provide important weather resistance to your roof. Noticeable loss of granules usually signifies roof aging or deterioration.

• Using a flashlight, inspect your attic space, looking carefully at the underside of the roof deck and rafters for stains or wet spots. Both can be signs of leakage.

If you decide it's probably time to re-roof, you'll quickly discover there's a wide variety of products and options available in today's asphalt shingles. According to ARMA, four out of five homes in the United States have asphalt shingles.

Inspect your roof from ground level using binoculars to look for cracked, curled or broken shingles, which may be a source of leaks.

For the most part, asphalt shingles remain the No. 1 choice of homeowners, because they offer the broadest array of colors, shapes and textures to match most architectural styles at the most affordable price. In addition, asphalt shingles offer a long life-expectancy and low maintenance requirements.

For roofing professionals, asphalt shingles are often preferred because they offer good performance in all types of temperatures and are considered the easiest to apply of the standard roofing materials.

In addition, asphalt shingles are available in a variety of classifications that meet specific fire, wind and hail resistance testing standards. For example, all shingles carry a Class A, B or C fire rating, with Class A providing the highest fire resistance. These fire ratings are defined by nationally recognized standards and tested by independent testing agencies. In addition, many asphalt shingles carry a "wind resistant" label, indicating that they've been tested to meet specific criteria.

Once you decide on the type of roof you're interested in, then color and style questions loom large. ARMA experts recommend that you consider the following basics when trying to decide on a roofing style and color.

• The color of your roof should harmonize with the color of your home's exterior walls. For example, if you have light gray siding and white trim, choose a roof color in the gray family and avoid brown shades.

• Stay in keeping with the neighborhood. You'll be happier with a roof that blends into the background rather than one that differs noticeably from the surrounding homes.

• If you want your home to blend in with the natural environment, pick a roof color that blends together varying shades of browns, grays or greens.

• A small home may be given added dimension with a light-colored roof to direct the eye upward and create a sense of airiness.

• Dark roof colors on tall homes or steeply-sloped roofs will help to recede the roof line visually and seemingly reduce the structure's scale.

To learn more, order the ARMA brochure, "A Homeowner's Guide to Quality Asphalt Roofing," available for $1 by writing to the Asphalt Roofing Manufacturers Association, PO. Box 1532 North Babylon, NY 11703.

Winter home care tips to prevent damage

Winter weather can be just as hard on your house as it is on your car, especially if temperatures reach sub-zero levels. To help homeowners prepare homes for winter now to cope with the cold, AAA Michigan has the following winter home care tips:

• Get your mind on the gutter. Eaves troughs that are blocked with leaves can cause ice dams to form and force water up under the shingles. Clear gutters now and periodically during the winter.

• Trim your trees. Through selective pruning, weak branches can be removed that might otherwise break in high winds and damage your car or home.

• Inspect your insulation. If necessary, add extra insulation to attics, basements and crawl spaces.

• Pamper your pipes. Make sure your water pipes are adequately protected from the cold. If you wish to install "heat tape" on your pipes, hire a professional. Improperly installed heat tape can cause fires. Do not attempt to thaw pipes using an open flame; hair dryers have been known to do a great job.

• Stay warm and safe. Only as a last resort, use alternate heat sources. Kerosene, propane and electric heaters are a frequent cause of home fires. When using them, always follow manufacturer's guidelines and never leave them unattended. Keep heaters away from curtains, corners and walls. Keep electrical cords off carpeting. Refuel kerosene heaters outdoors and use only kerosene recommended by manufacturers.

• Gas ovens should never be used as an alternate heat source.

• Clean your chimney and have your furnace inspected annually. These services can each range between $50 and $100, but could prevent your house from burning down. Change your furnace filter every month to 45 days.

• Do not overload electrical outlets.

• If planning to purchase a wood-burning stove, have it installed by a professional, meeting all codes and manufacturer installation guidelines. Use a humidifier to add moisture to the dry winter air.

• Use ceiling fans to distribute warm air more efficiently throughout the home.

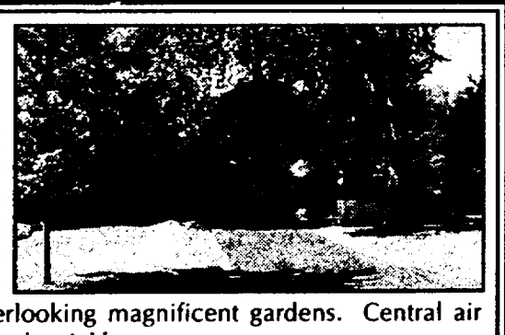

• Install and maintain smoke detectors on all living levels and near each bedroom.

• Keep snow clear from utility meters for easy access.

• If possible, don't pile snow against the side of the home.

"Spending a few hours now looking at roofs to make sure shingles are in place can save homeowners potentially expensive repairs later," said Ric Phillips, manager of homeowner claims for AAA Michigan. "In their search for comfort, many homeowners unknowingly place themselves and their families at risk. Improperly used heat sources, frozen plumbing, dirty chimneys — these are all factors that can leave you, quite literally, out in the cold."
