By Bonnie Caprara
Staff Writer

Sixty percent of high school juniors who took the MEAP last year will go off to college $2,500 richer.

The Michigan Merit Award scholarships were offered to 381 students at Grosse Pointe North and South high schools.

They qualified for the scholarship by achieving excellent scores on the MEAP math, reading, writing and science tests. Students who took the tests this school year or scored well in two of the four tests plus ranked in the top quartile of the ACT or SAT will be contacted in the fall if they receive scholarships.

"It's really found money," said assistant superintendent for administrative services Marjorie Parsons. "We would have had more if we didn't have resisters."

Only 65 percent of last year's juniors took the state assessment tests. Late last spring, Gov. John Engler signed legislation creating the scholarship program which is funded by a portion of the state's 1998 multi-state settlement with tobacco manufacturers. This year, nearly all of the public high schools' juniors took the assessment tests.

Statewide, nearly 37,000 Michigan high school seniors received the award. Grosse Pointe South High School was the state's fourth-highest scholarship earning school.

The awards may be used anytime within seven years of graduation and may be applied to a variety of education-related expenses including computers and day care for dependents.

Activities building gets rave reviews by Woods residents

By Brad Lindberg
Staff Writer

The reviews are in and the word is out.

The new activities building at Lakefront Park in Grosse Pointe Woods is "cool."

That's what Jamie Radke said following an afternoon workout in the building's air conditioned basketball court.

The teenager was playing one-on-one with fellow Woods resident and classmate at North High, Jeff Bolton.

"There aren't many indoor courts around here," said Bolton. "It's free, too."

Not so free, but Woods officials said residents will get their money's worth out of the park's new $1,030,000 activities center.

Mayor Robert Novitke said the building represents Lakefront "becoming a truly year-round park. It also reflects the emphasis that we place on quality of life in this community."

"I don't think they wasted any money," said Julie Martinbiano, who explored the building last week with her infant.

The 8,400-square-foot structure is centered around half-court basketball and full-size racquetball courts.

City officials hope the building will be used for everything from sporting events to card games, from aerobic workouts to wedding receptions.

"The activities building is for all age groups," said Novitke. Ed Neiman, an architect with the Shelby Township firm of Anderson, Eckstein and Westrick, designed the structure.

"We've tried to make it an open and flexible space by creating a lot of windows that look out both on the play area and water," said Neiman. He designed the building's two-tiered roof "to blend with existing buildings and minimize visual change to the total park."

Full-length glass walls line the building's east and west facades. The panels of reflective insulated glass provide panoramic views of playgrounds and Lake St. Clair while "cutting down on heat and glare," said Don Sztaba, co-owner of Boulevard Construction of Warren. The company won a low-bid contract to erect the building.

Martinbiano said the design will let parents "look out at the beautiful lake and watch their kids, too."

Sztaba said the gym's synthetic floor is "non-maintenance, except for general cleaning. It allows street shoes for general traffic."

Rounding out what Ted Bidigare, the Woods city administrator, called the building's "health club atmosphere," the city has installed aerobic exercise equipment, including stationary bicycles and treadmills. Pool and pingpong tables are located in the airy corridors that flank the gym.

The Woods municipal seal has been installed in a brick mantle above a large fireplace in an activities room that will double in winter as a warming shelter for ice skaters.

The building grew from a mandate about three years ago to upgrade the park's former bathhouse, according to Woods councilman Eric Steiner. The bathhouse rest rooms didn't comply with the Americans With Disabilities Act. The mandate arose about the time residents began pitching their desire for a year-round activities building.

Neiman incorporated the bathhouse into the new and expanded structure.

"This is a big improvement over the old place," said third-year lifeguard Nichole Seleno, 17, a senior at North High who will be stationed on rotation duty in the activities building.

Bidigare said, "We tried to do something with the old building instead of razing it." The decades-old bathhouse dated to when the municipal swimming pool contained lake water and had a sand bottom.

Bidigare expects the building's operating costs to approach $100,000 during its first year. As the building is outfitted, he said, yearly costs should decrease.

The expenses will include paying for five part-time employees, like Seleno, the lifeguard.

Schools, police wary of hazing

By Bonnie Caprara
Staff Writer

In an attempt to put an end to the tradition of end-of-the-year "hazing," school administrators and staff, parents and police will be on guard to ensure a safe last day of school dismissal.

Over the years some of the playful pranks and celebration has turned to "hazing" underclassmen and eighth-graders by upper class high school students — most notably by paddling.

Grosse Pointe Park youth officer Detective Sgt. Jim Smith said, "It's not hazing, it's felonious assault. When you jump out and hit someone with a stick or a paddle, that's a felony and we will prosecute."

Last year, four Grosse Pointe

South students were arrested for pinning down a Pierce Middle School eighth-grader and trying to force him to drink spat-out tobacco juice. The four students are serving sentences under advisement which include assisting Grosse Pointe Park public safety officers in patrolling the area around Pierce on the last day of school.

As a precaution, dismissal times at the three public middle schools will be staggered by grades. Principals at each of the middle schools will supervise the grounds outside of the schools. They are also advising students to go home in groups or have parents pick them up after school and to go straight home. Local public safety departments said they plan to beef up patrols around the schools at dismissal time.

"We're also asking students if they see any undesirable behavior that it gets reported," said Pierce principal Russell LeBlanc.

Grosse Pointe North High School principal Caryn Wells said that hazing has not been an issue in the eight years she has been at the school.

However, South interim principal Ben Walker said, "The hazing incidents of last year brought a different consciousness. When so many kids said it was to be expected or to be done to them, it was frightening. I've tried to talk with and work with kids on a small group basis to tell them how inappropriate and how damaging it can be to younger children."

Richner to address Eastside Republicans

State Rep. Andrew C. Richner, who represents Grosse Pointe and Harper Woods residents, will be the featured speaker at the monthly Eastside Republican Club Forum at 7:30 p.m. on Tuesday, June 20, at the Grosse Pointe War Memorial, 32 Lakeshore, Grosse Pointe Farms.

"We're looking forward to hearing Andrew give us his annual report on what's happening in Lansing," said Eastside Republican Club President Thomas R. McCleary Jr. of Grosse Pointe Farms. "We invite all, regardless of political affiliation, to come and hear Andrew and participate in the question-and-answer session afterwards."

Richner was elected to the Michigan State House of Representatives 1st District in 1996. He chairs the House Committee on Family and Civil Law and serves on many House committees, including Criminal Law and Corrections, Gaming and Casino Oversight, and Insurance and Financial Services.

As a freshman lawmaker, Richner was elected to the party legislative leadership as assistant Republican caucus chair. Bills he has sponsored that have become law include raising the civil jurisdiction of municipal courts, protecting trade secrets, updating state banking and bankruptcy laws, and providing continuity of contracts in Euro currency. He also serves on the Michigan Commission for Uniform State Laws and recently has been named to the National Commissioners Securities Act drafting committee. Richner also is a member of the House Republican Great Lakes Task Force.

Rep. Richner's public service began as an intern in the Office of Counsel to President Ronald Reagan. Before entering politics, he had a private practice as an attorney with experience in corporate securities and commercial law. This included work in Poland assisting lawyers there in government privatization projects and joint ventures.

In 1992, Richner was elected Wayne County commissioner representing the five Grosse Pointes, Harper Woods and part of eastside Detroit — the same communities he serves as state representative. Prior to that, he served on the Grosse Pointe Park City Council.

A native eastsider, Richner, 39, attended the Grosse Pointe schools and graduated from the University of Michigan with degrees in business and law. He and his wife, Susan, a speech therapist in the Grosse Pointe public schools, live in Grosse Pointe Park with their two children, Clark, 7, and Emily, 3.

The Eastside Republican Club forum is held on the third Tuesday of each month from September through June at the Grosse Pointe War Memorial. The speaker at the next forum in September will be political analyst Bill Ballenger of Lansing. Admission to the forum is free and the public is always welcome. For more information about Eastside Republican Club programs, telephone (313) 882-2709.

City art festival paints town red

By Jim Stickford
Staff Writer

For a first-time event, the sponsors of the Grosse Pointe Artists Association Festival of the Arts said the event was a success.

"We originally wanted to have the festival on the baseball diamonds between Waterloo and Charlevoix, but there was a conflict with Little League and Babe Ruth baseball," said association president Chuck Bigelow. "So we got together with the City and moved the event to the No. 2 parking lot, behind the card store at Kercheval and St. Clair. The event was a success and by having it at the parking lot, it was closer to Kercheval and the shops, an added incentive for art lovers to visit."

There were 95 exhibitors at the festival, said Bigelow. That's pretty good for a first year event. It cost $2 to attend and while they haven't figured out total profits yet, association members believe the festival will produce more revenue than previous shows at the War Memorial.

"We estimate close to 4,000 people attended the festival," said Bigelow. "In previous years we've raised about $3,000 from similar events. This year we will almost certainly make more money."

The association supports the fine arts in the Pointes and gives donations to the Detroit Institute of Arts and art programs at North and South high schools. The more they make at such events, the larger the donations they can give to deserving programs, said Bigelow.

"So many people worked to make the festival a success," Bigelow said. "They include event co-chairs Isabelle Goosen and Dick Vogel. Leo Salvaggio also worked hard. He organized the reception held on Friday, June 2, at the Village Borders. Our artwork will be on display at the Borders all this month."

Vogel said that thanks should also be given to Chris Chamberlain for his efforts in getting entertainment for the event, which included live music, as well as a clown and a mime. In addition to getting the entertainment, said Vogel, Chamberlain also played in a couple of the bands.

Assistant City manager Christine Bremer said from the City's perspective, the festival was a success. She heard of no major problems and she added that association people worked well with City employees to provide a safe festival.

"We had our own crew to clean up," said Bigelow. "When City crews arrived to clean up on Monday, they were pleasantly surprised at what they found. We got a nice call from the City public works department thanking us for our work."

Bigelow said the association hopes to hold more festivals in the future. They like the location they ended up with and believe this year's success is a good omen for future festivals.

"We can build on this and produce better festivals," Bigelow said. "When it's more known we should do even better in the future."

A handful of homeowners in Grosse Pointe Woods have accumulated nearly $5,000 in unpaid bills due the city.

Woods officials have taken action to collect the money, up to possibly placing liens on the 16 defaulters' homes.

The bills are a relic of last year's sidewalk replacement program in the area of Cook Road. Outstanding bills range per resident from about $80 to nearly $950.

Clifford Maison, the Woods controller, has unsuccessfully dunned residents by mailing "several" copies of invoices. Sidewalk costs were added to the defaulters' tax bills.

North High School teacher lives for his job

By Jim Stickford
Staff Writer

Guido Regelbrugge has taught French at Grosse Pointe North since that school opened its doors way back in September of 1968 — a considerable achievement by any standard, more so because he's had cancer since 1993.

"I normally am not a seeker of notoriety," Regelbrugge said. "When I was first diagnosed with multiple myeloma seven years ago, I was told that I had between two and 10 years to live. So far it's been seven. There are people who need to know that if they are diagnosed with this disease, they don't need to jump off a cliff. If I can stimulate someone to be strong and not give up, then this is worth it."

Regelbrugge was born in Belgium in 1938, just a couple of years before the Germans invaded and occupied the country during World War II.

"I was a little guy during the war," Regelbrugge said. "I really don't remember a lot of it. I have 10 brothers and sisters. My twin sister and younger brother don't remember a lot of the war either, but my older siblings all lived through the occupation."

Regelbrugge does remember one incident during the war, the day his hometown Eeklo was liberated.

"If I close my eyes I can see it like it was yesterday," said Regelbrugge. "We were liberated by Canadians. Six of them came to the center of the city. One of them was killed by a wounded German who had been left behind. He thought he was going to die anyway, so why not take out one of the enemy. But I really don't remember much about the early years of the occupation when there were bombings. I do know we would go to the basements of the hospitals or even to the town of Brugge."

Regelbrugge came to the United States back in 1961. He expected to study English for a year and then return to Belgium, where he was a teacher.

"I was an elementary school teacher back in Belgium," said Regelbrugge. "I was a second lieutenant in the Belgium Army Reserve and decided to learn English by staying in America for a year. I had a brother who lived in Jackson,

POINTER OF INTEREST

so I came to Michigan."

Regelbrugge ended up teaching at St. Rose High School in Detroit. He found that he loved teaching in America.

"In Belgium, you received your syllabus," Regelbrugge said. "You are totally bound by that syllabus. They had an inspector check on teachers and if they found that the teacher was not where the syllabus said he should be, that teacher was in danger of reprimand or being let go. When I came to the United States, they kept my position for me, but I never did return home."

Regelbrugge said teaching at St. Rose was a joy. He was allowed to make decisions on curriculum and school administration. He could help the poor students who had nothing. But eventually the low pay provided to Catholic school teachers forced Regelbrugge to get a job in the higher-paying public school sector.

In 1966 he joined the Grosse Pointe public school system. He taught for two years at Grosse Pointe High School (now known as South). After two years, he joined a number of his colleagues and moved into the new high school building and became a Norseman.

Though Regelbrugge is a French teacher, he also enjoys sports, soccer in particular. Back in Belgium he was a semi-pro soccer player. When he first came to the United States he played on the Carpathian Kickers, an amateur team consisting mainly of Germans. They were a great team and won the U.S. Amateur Cup in 1962.

"If I had stayed in Belgium, I might have ended up being a professional player," said Regelbrugge. "But I'm not a gambler. I didn't like the uncertainty. Pro sports in Europe has changed since then."

When North started its soccer program back in 1980, it was natural for Regelbrugge to be coach. He kept up with the game by coaching other schools, including Notre Dame You've probably seen us trimming trees and repairing electrical equipment. We've identified the problems and are fixing them right now. Of course with the storm season here there's always the unknown. And, while we do all we can to prepare for whatever Mother Nature has in store for us, not all outages are preventable. But when they do occur, we'll restore your power promptly. So every time you see a Detroit Edison crew, wave. Remember, we're doing everything in our power to give you all the energy you'll ever need.

A farm boy leaves home

Third of four parts
When I was a senior at Minnesota, I hoped to continue to work in journalism, but in fact nothing turned up in the way of job offers until the day I graduated. Then a call from my old friend at the Minnesota daily, John Harvey, then working for the Minneapolis Star, asked me whether I would like to work at least a week.

The job was to cover a convention of the Shriners in Minneapolis. Harvey also raised the possibility of a longer term if the Teamsters Union went on strike. I was no particular friend of the Teamsters, but I was delighted when they did go on strike and my job was assured.

In the next day or so, I was called to go to a meeting of strikers at a strike-bound plant where plant officials were reportedly ready to try to run a truck through the Teamsters picket line. Unfortunately for the plant, the road made a slight turn to the right as its police-escorted truck left the plant. That gave the strikers time to run their own truckload of strikers into the side of the plant truck and halt its progress.

All hell broke loose, or so it seemed, as strikers, armed with clubs, baseball bats, chains and any other weapon, piled out of their truck into the police van that was accompanying the company truck.

Several men died in the battle, and I saw one striker shot in the back by a policeman. I could see the blood widening on the back of his light-colored shirt as he pitched forward on his face.

A view from the sidelines

By Wilbur Elston

My first week on the job and I had already seen a man killed in battle. Fortunately, that was the only victim I saw shot to death in my years in reporting.

Gov. Floyd Olson called out the National Guard, which quickly brought law and order back to the battlefield, and the Minnesota press corps soon arrived to cover the story the rest of the way.

I returned to the office, where I received a couple of thank yous for a job well done on my first real day at work. My work covering the battle between the strikers and police also made it possible for me to retain my job, although I was soon shifted to the courthouse to cover the courts.

There I got interested in covering the trial of a couple of hard-luck kids, Hybziński and Burgoyne, who had killed a street car motorman when they ran short of liquor in a birthday celebration.

What happened to the two youngsters I don't really know, but for years I told myself to go back to check their records and to see what time had done to them.

Without adequate defense counsel, the two no doubt were sentenced to the St. Cloud, Minn., penitentiary, probably for excessive terms. The fact that I never learned their punishment rode on my conscience for years, and is even now a touchy point with me.

The mother of one of the boys washed floors in professional offices downtown and the other mother also did similar work for a living. So what did the harsh treatment of two young boys do for the state? Not much, in my view.

Shortly after the conclusion of the trial, one of my old professors approached me at the courthouse to tell me he had a wonderful new job for me.

I protested that I had a job at the Star and was well pleased with my assignments. But professor Tom Barnhart insisted I at least listen to details of the job offer.

In fact, what happened was that the Weisgerber brothers, owners of the St. Peter Herald, were looking for a new editor to succeed a highly recognized editor who had died suddenly.

The pay became the issue. St. Peter offered me $30 a week, compared with the $18 the Star was paying me.

Since I had majored in weekly newspaper management at the university, I was delighted to accept. The best the Star could do for me to compete was to offer me only $20 a week.

So off to St. Peter I went, riding an interurban bus to my new city of employment, where I was quickly assigned to a room at the home of a nice old lady whose son was a dentist.

I soon became acquainted with the staff, where I discovered a third partner in the business, who had been one of the original owners and had actually recruited former Gov. John A. Johnson as the editor of the paper some years earlier.

The brothers who were now the major owners were printers who saw the publication of the twice-weekly papers as merely one of their printing jobs.

But to their credit, I can recall only one complaint they ever made about my news and editorial coverage.

My biggest thrill in St. Peter, however, was meeting and eventually marrying my wife, Gretchen. She was the granddaughter of a pioneer Minnesota settler, as I was the grandson of a state pioneer, too. And we met after I had spotted her in the Presbyterian church choir.

She has been a loyal and loving partner in my endeavors for more than 60 years, often helping me by correcting my grammar or facts in pieces I wrote.

As World War II approached, I began to get offers from daily papers looking for recruits to fill their staff vacancies. One day I received two offers from respectable dailies, the Minneapolis Star, where I had worked a year earlier, and the Milwaukee Journal, which had hired a number of Minnesota graduates.

So off I went to the Minneapolis Star & Tribune, which provided me with more foreign travel and even a four-year Washington assignment that I had always wanted to have.

The first venture abroad was a group trip to Germany and Austria. But I leave all that for coverage in my final chapter of the career of this Minnesota journalist who wandered far from his Dakota County farm home in his journalistic career.

Wilbur Elston, 86, reached a milestone in his third "career" in May, having served as an editorial writer for the Grosse Pointe News for 20 years. Previously, he taught journalism at Wayne State University and was the editorial page editor of The Detroit News and Minneapolis Star and Tribune. He is also in the Minnesota and Michigan Journalism Halls of Fame.

At this anniversary mark with the Grosse Pointe News, "Bill" Elston, in a four-part series, recalls his career in journalism and looks forward to continued contributions to the News.

Offering from the loft

Does anyone know why?

I'm honestly trying not to overreact. I try to be flexible and not make quick judgments. However, I am disturbed and disappointed by the behavior of some of the members of our community. Some of us are just plain rude, and I have yet to see a valid excuse for rudeness.

The attitudes that are bugging me may seem petty, but we all have days that are smoother than others and, lately, I have seen more than the usual amount of apathy in our back yards.

As an instance, why do some people feel they are so important that they can bulldoze their way through stoplights, checkout lines, movie lines and disobey the rules of the road by not pulling over behind a parked car and waiting when the lane is narrow? Some elected officials are not the only ones who maintain an arrogance that allows them to abuse their positions. Ordinary citizens stampede others for their own benefit. Why?

Horns assault us if we don't sprint from a stoplight. Shoppers line up at express lanes in our supermarkets with many times the allotted quotas in their baskets. Somehow they believe the rules don't apply to them. Why?

If asked, most of us will gladly allow people to move ahead of us if they are waiting with just a few items. And don't we feel better when we help someone by reaching something from a top shelf in a store or by holding a door or returning a shopping cart to a designated area? How many times have we attempted to park a car and found the space has a half dozen carts blocking it? How lazy and selfish can we be?

How often do we see someone bend over to pick up a piece of discarded trash instead of stepping over it? A shiny penny or any empty aluminum can on the ground rarely receives any attention these days. Shame on us.

It's just the little, everyday stuff, but maybe if we paid attention to ordinary kindness and responsibilities, the big irritants would never become so formidable as to overwhelm us.

Moving along with my litany of things that bug me, why are we bombarded with mail from organizations that we support generously? I question the monstrous waste of our donations going to postage. Perhaps if we reduced the size of our contributions, the message might be received.

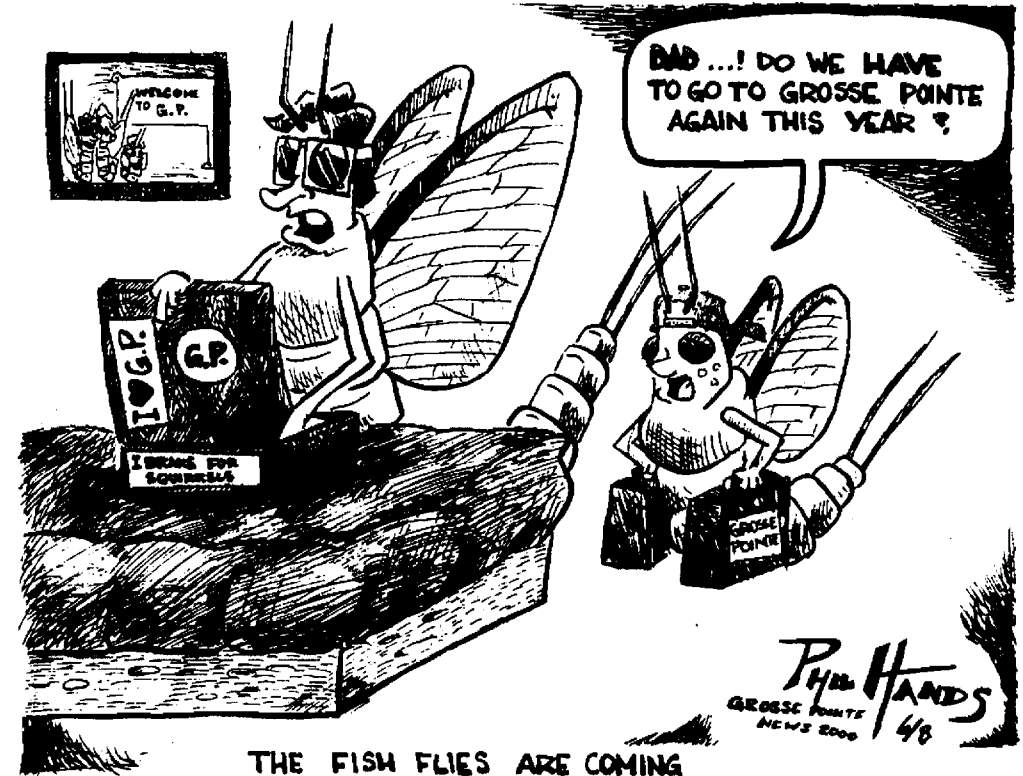

I have complained to several of these charities over the years, yet I have seen no changes. How many mailings do we receive each week from a certain cruise line? Our house averages 10! We no longer look at them.

I'm beginning to sound like Andy Rooney on a slow night, but my gripes continue. Those people who are consistently late annoy me. Of course, the occasional exception is acceptable, but those who make it a habit to be late send the message that their time is more precious than mine. You attempt to diminish me by your rudeness, and I realize that I am not very high on your list of priorities.

The same goes for unreturned phone calls. For the past month, I have left messages with four businesses who advertise their services, yet cannot respond to my pleas to offer them employment. Why?

Despite what you may glean from this column, I love people. Sometimes I don't like their manners, but I love meeting new people and like to form my own opinions about whom I meet. What I don't need to know is who his family is, what his salary is, and if he belongs to a club! Too often the person doing the introduction feels it necessary to qualify by labeling. I'll do my own research if and when I choose.

Enough of this for awhile, but if you see me around town you'd better be wearing a smile...

Kerby principal on parking plan

To the Editor:

Last week an ad appeared in the Grosse Pointe News from a group named "Friends of Kerby School Playground." Some inaccuracies were stated in the ad and I would like to state the facts.

During my years as Kerby principal, traffic safety has been a priority for our Kerby school community. We have tried many approaches, including working with the Grosse Pointe Farms Public Safety Department, requesting a crossing guard for the corner of Kerby and Beaupre and most recently contracting the services of a traffic safety engineering firm to analyze our traffic situation.

Design No. 6, as it has been referred to, was not sponsored by me. It was a proposal from the Grosse Pointe Farms Public Safety Department and city officials. Our engineering firm was present at the meeting where the city's proposal was suggested, and they subsequently did the drawing and analysis of Design No. 6.

On Friday, May 26, I met with two community members and updated them on the status of our plans. I shared with them that central administration, our architectural firm and I have concerns about Design No. 6. I explained that we had requested cost estimates and architectural drawings for another proposal utilizing the front of the school for comparison.

The community members were told that when this additional study was completed, we would hold a second community forum before any recommendation would be submitted to our superintendent and board of education.

I have met with several groups, including parents, community members, staff and students, over the last several months. All of their input has been extremely valuable and is helpful in making modifications/recommendations. Each of these groups has a vested interest in the safety of our children. This, of course, remains our most important priority.

I welcome any member of the community who has concerns with our traffic safety issue to call or meet with me personally. I believe that we must work together for our children's sake.

Debbie Hubbell, Principal
 Kerby Elementary School

Ritalin use: Past and present

To the Editor:

I'm curious if there is a correlation between Ritalin use in Grosse Pointe before and after 1994.

I was one of the many elementary teachers who took the buyout in 1994. We were not allowed to suggest or diagnose the use of pharmaceuticals. In fact, social workers stressed that kids needed a chance, and encouraged or suggested strategies to modify behaviors, especially in the very early grades.

The generation that replaced us is more in tune with pharmaceuticals.

Toward a civil society

By Lawrence W. Reed

The Mackinac Center first published a version of this commentary in July 1996. As the 2000 presidential election approaches, its re-issuance is especially timely.

"Taxation," said Oliver Wendell Holmes, "is the price we pay for civilization." But a much better case can be made that taxation is actually the price we pay for the lack of civilization. If people took better care of themselves, their families and those in need around them, government would shrink and society would be stronger as a result.

Economist Mark Skousen put it well when he said, "Every time we pass another law or regulation, every time we raise taxes, every time we go to war, we are admitting failure of individuals to govern themselves. When we persuade citizens to do the right thing, we can claim victory. But when we force people to do the right thing, we have failed."

The triumph of persuasion over force, people helping people because they want to and not because government tells them they have to, is the sign of a civilized people and a civil society, Skousen argues. For all people interested in the advancement and enrichment of our culture, this is a crucial observation with far-reaching implications. Cultural progress should not be defined as taking more and more of what other people have earned and spending it on "good" things through a government bureaucracy. Genuine cultural progress occurs when individuals solve problems without resorting to politicians or the police and bureaucrats they employ.

When the French social commentator Alexis de Tocqueville visited a young, bustling America in the 1830s, he cited the vibrancy of civil society as one of this country's greatest assets. He was amazed that Americans were constantly forming "associations" to advance the arts, build libraries and hospitals, and meet social needs of every kind. If something good needed to be done, it rarely occurred to our forebears to expect politicians and bureaucrats, who were distant in both space and spirit, to do it for them.

"Amongst the laws which rule human nature," wrote Tocqueville in "Democracy in America," "there is none which seems to be more precise and clear than all others. If men are to remain civilized, or to become more so, the art of associating together must grow and improve ...."

It ought to be obvious today, with government at all levels consuming a whopping 41 percent of personal income, that many Americans don't think, act and vote the way most Americans did in Tocqueville's day. So how can we restore and strengthen the attitudes and institutions that formed the foundation of American civil society?

Certainly, we can never do so by blindly embracing government programs that crowd out private initiatives or by impugning the motives of those who raise legitimate questions about those government programs. We cannot restore civil society if we have no confidence in ourselves and believe that government has a monopoly on compassion. We'll never get there if we tax away nearly half of people's earnings and then, like children who never learned their arithmetic, complain that people can't afford to meet certain needs.

We can advance civil society only when people get serious about replacing government programs with private initiative, when discussion gets beyond such infantile reasoning as, "If you want to cut government subsidies for Meals on Wheels, you must be in favor of starving the elderly."

Civil society will blossom when we understand that "hiring" the expensive middleman of government is not the best way to "do good," that it often breaks the connection between people in need and caring people who want to help. We'll make progress when the "government is the answer" cure is recognized for what it is — false charity, a cop-out, a simplistic non-answer that doesn't get the job done well, even though it makes its advocates smug with self-righteous satisfaction.

Thoughtful observers are noticing encouraging trends in the country. An article in the Jan. 29, 1996, issue of U.S. News & World Report trumpeted the "revival of civic life." Among the examples it cited was that of Frankford, Penn.

Frankford had become a highly taxed, depressed and government-dependent community desperate for answers. A spark of civil society was lit, and now people are solving problems themselves. They're not sitting back, bemoaning their plight, and editorializing about how the politicians should save them.

"Once you get past the resentment of the government not doing it for you, you get it done yourself," said a local resident.

We can learn a whole lot more from the Frankfords of the world than from those who think charity means spending someone else's money or just pontificating about social needs from behind a word processor.

Restoring civil society requires that we "just say no" to shirking our personal and local responsibilities and expecting Lansing or Washington to do everything for us. It requires us to think creatively about stimulating private initiative, and then just doing it.

Is there a future for Zionism?

Charles Krauthammer's review in the Weekly Standard (June 5) of Yoram Hazony's recent book, "The Jewish State: The Struggle for Israel's Soul," starts with this amazing quote:

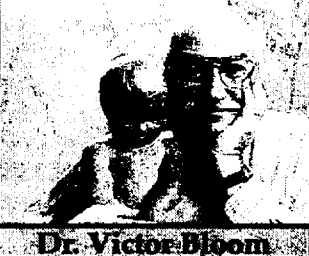

"The most improbable story of the 20th century is the return of the Jews to sovereignty in their original homeland. The establishment of a Jewish state after 2,000 years of dispersion and powerlessness is an idea that just a hundred years ago, at the founding of the Zionist movement, seemed delusional. The only thing more improbable is this: That after merely 50 years of independence, the Jews of Israel would tire of it, lose faith in the enterprise, and forfeit their redemption. As things are progressing now, the collapse of Zionism may be the story of the 21st century."

Hazony is a relatively young director of a Jewish intellectual think tank, a neoconservative who is alarmed at a growing tendency within the Jewish state to question the philosophic and theological basis of its existence. He recounts a history of Jewish philosophic antagonism to the principles of Zionism, promulgated by such thinkers as Martin Buber and Hannah Arendt.

These German-Jewish intellectuals were a hated minority, but as the years have gone by and the conflict with the Arabs is unabated, moral questions have been raised about the use of force by the Israelis to assert their domain and protect their fledgling nation.

At the end of the Second World War, there was little question but that the world owed the Jews a place of refuge. The United Nations voted the partition of the then Palestine, a British mandate, to be a Jewish nation, alongside a Palestinian nation of Arabs.

As we know, this partition never worked out, as the Arabs resisted the concept of a Jewish nation from the beginning. But in the war of independence, the Jews routed the Arabs and gained further lands for strategic security and self-defense. Reference back to this fundamental war and the Israeli victory is now called the "1948 Syndrome," as if all further questions of Jewish hegemony goes back to this original victory. Might makes right. To the victor belongs the spoils. Or so we thought.

More and more the plight of the displaced Palestinians has been sensationalized in the media, along with terrorist acts by the Palestinians and other Arab states on Jewish civilians through the years.

In the famous Six Day War in 1967, the Israelis routed an imminent invasion force commandeered by Nasser, president of Egypt. In this war, the Israelis occupied even more strategic land, but since then has conceded more and more of it in an attempt to bring about a peace with the Arabs.

The Arabs have declared that they want nothing less than the complete destruction of the Jewish state. It is regarded as a thorn in the side of the Arab world, a conflicting advanced technology, a symbol of Western dominance and colonialism, and a provocation of feelings of inferiority, as the Arab world is still largely undeveloped and their people largely poor and illiterate.

A basic Arab code is never to surrender an inch of sand, especially if there is some nearby source of water in the desert. This code has been ingrained as a necessary principle for survival. The Jews are also concerned with survival. And so the conflict has never been resolved.

Deeper yet is the religious conflict. The Moslems consider themselves yet another Semitic tribe, one which does not believe in the primacy of the Jewish tribe to God, so that there is a vicious and bitter underlying sibling rivalry. It is all family, and family disputes are the most bloody, as in Cain and Abel.

Jewish intellectuals are in bitter disagreement among themselves about whether Zionism is truly biblical or truly tenable. The Jewish liberals are following the Western trend toward post-modern deconstructionism and multiculturalism. Just as ultra liberal American academics decry the historic primacy of the white male, discarding Western canon as written by "dead white males" (Plato, Aristotle, Socrates, Shakespeare, Goethe), the new left Israelis are dismissing the biblical prophets and scholars, calling for a secular democratic society that is no longer Jewish, but has citizens of all religions and nationalities.

That would be the end of the Jewish state as we know it, and as it was planned, and without the Law of Return, it would no longer be a haven for displaced Jews from around the world.

American Jews are called upon to give moral and financial support to their beleaguered co-religionists on the other side of the world, but now many Israeli Jews are simply tired, war weary and sad, seemingly wanting peace at any price. They are giving up on the axiom, "no land for peace," no giving in to terrorism, but after a half century of ongoing conflict, surrounded by more numerous enemies who are growing in power, the existence of Israel is in serious question again. It seems there is no end to Hitler's plan for a Final Solution.

Million Moms are reasonable

To the Editor:

In response to Sears Taylor's contention that "they are not enforcing the current (gun) laws already written" ("Control of the Gun," June 1), I would like to point out that most of the current gun laws were ineffective when passed due to the successful lobbying efforts of the (National Rifle Association) NRA.

It is the undisputed policy of the NRA to contest any gun-related legislation. It is in fact incumbent upon the NRA to prevent regulation of guns, because it cannot successfully challenge gun laws in court. This is so because the Second Amendment to the U.S. Constitution has not been found to uphold the right of an individual to bear arms.

In 1939, the U.S. Supreme Court ruled that the "obvious purpose" of the Second Amendment was to "assure the continuation and render possible the effectiveness" of the state militia (U.S. v. Miller, 307 U.S. 174).

Since the Miller decision, lower federal and state courts have addressed the meaning of the Second Amendment in more than 30 cases. In every case, the courts decided that the Second Amendment refers to the right to keep and bear arms only in connection with a state militia. It is constitutional to regulate guns, just like it is constitutional to regulate speech, the press and the right of the people to assemble.

Because it is constitutional to regulate guns, the NRA focuses its efforts on the legislative process in an attempt to ensure that only weak gun regulations are passed.

Two weeks ago, the Michigan House passed four such ineffective gun bills that are endorsed by the NRA:

- House Bill 5781 would require all guns to be sold with a trigger lock, but does not require that the gun owner use the trigger lock. Furthermore, as a "concession" for the trigger lock portion of the bill, all gun manufacturers will be granted immunity from lawsuits by municipalities (like the cases filed by Wayne County and the City of Detroit and 33 other jurisdictions that caused Smith & Wesson to come to the settlement table to discuss the redesign of their handguns!).

- House Bills 5745/5747 purport to establish the civil and criminal liability of a gun owner if a child accesses the gun and causes death/injury; but the burden of proof is higher than what the common law currently provides, thereby making it more difficult for a prosecutor to convict a gun owner under the new law. Additionally, the bill contains a "rebuttable presumption" that the gun owner is exempt from the laws provisions if he can produce a "certificate of inspection" from a safety inspection that is required of pistol owners. This is kind of like being exempt from a manslaughter charge because your car was properly licensed before the accident.

- House Bill 5693 will require gun safety instruction for all public school children in grades K-5, effective this September. The bill suggests that the schools use the State Police; however, they are not limited in their selection of programs. Furthermore, the introduction to the bill mentions that the NRA offers the "Eddie Eagle" program and supplies free of charge. It is not the responsibility of children to learn about gun safety; it is the responsibility of adults to keep their guns inaccessible.

What has made the Million Moms mad, Mr. Taylor, is the fraud and deception that is being perpetrated on the American public at the expense of our children. This week our Senate will be asked to vote on these four bills. They will have to suspend the Senate rules to do so because they do not have enough time before summer recess to hear the bills properly.

But certain forces are not interested in strong, effective laws. They are content with watered down, ineffective laws that allow them to say they addressed the gun problem while still receiving the support of the NRA.

We do not have any intention of taking away from Americans their 200 million guns, but we do want the guns to be designed in a way that will not allow a 3-year-old to pull the trigger. We also want the huge loopholes in existing laws closed to prevent criminals, minors, felons and illegal immigrants to purchase guns at gun shows without background checks and/or through third parties.

We want gun owners to lock up their guns so our kids don't get shot when playing at their house. We want licensing of handguns so that owners will have to take a safety class and learn proper gun handling and storage, and we want registration so that no one can sell their gun to a criminal, a minor, a felon or an illegal immigrant.

The position of the Million Moms is a reasonable one; it is also the majority one. We cannot compete with the gun lobby financially, but we will surpass their numbers in the voting booth and elect representatives who will get the job done.

Gun control legislation

To the Editor:

For all your readers who believe there are too many gun laws on the books, I would like them to check out the latest. These are the kind of laws that the NRA (National Rifle Association) counts, and although these bills deal with guns, there is no way you can say that they make our society safer.

Tax breaks for trigger locks were thrown in as a "compromise" to gun control advocates, but their use is only assumed (by showing proof of purchase) and not mandated. Instead here is what really is being pushed:

H.B. 5745/5747, Gun Owners Protection Act — This is described as "legislation that will create civil and criminal penalties for those who store firearms irresponsibly," when in fact it actually exempts gun owners in six or seven instances where he/she "reasonably" believed that a gun has been secured from a child. This includes instances when a loaded gun is in a drawer next to the sleeping gun owner.

This is insane! This is like having a law on the books that automatically grants immunity to a driver in a car crash because he had a valid driver license and reasonably believed he did all that he could to prevent the accident.

Would we really want such automatic freedom from prosecution, or would we prefer that a law enforcement official evaluate each case on its own merits? Besides, I don't see how guaranteeing legal gun owners immunity in certain situations would encourage them to be more careful with gun storage.

Does anyone else have such protections? Well, as matter of fact, in bill No. 5781, the Michigan House would like to provide the gun manufacturers with immunity from lawsuits at all government levels except the state attorney general.

This is also insane. Does any other industry get such a free ride? And how dare the House waste our tax dollars by forcing the work of Wayne County and City of Detroit officials to be thrown out and re-created by the attorney general's staff. I do not understand why the Michigan House thinks it can overrule the work of our prosecutors and courts.

The Senate will be considering this legislation this week, and it is up to every appalled citizen to contact their state senator and tell him or her to vote no on these bills.

Maire's loss, Brownell's gain

To the Editor:

Our family would like to recognize and give thanks to Maire school's principal, Dr. Mike Dib, who will be leaving us at the end of the school year to take on his new role at Brownell.

Mike Dib is an outstanding principal as well as a terrific person. His charismatic charm, intelligence, sense of humor and leadership abilities have made our experience at Maire school the absolute best it could be. You couldn't go far at Maire without bumping into Mike Dib, because he was always there, lending a hand, crossing kids at the busy intersection, playing soccer at recess, even pinch-hitting for a teacher when he was needed.

I, personally, will always appreciate when I was tearfully walking away from the school after taking my first-born child to her first day of kindergarten and Mike was there to pat me on the back and say that he promised things would get better. She'd be just fine. Of course, he was right.

Dr. Dib, we were so lucky to have you at Maire school. You've been an inspiration to us all, and you're going to be a tough act to follow. My family wishes you the absolute best at Brownell. We'll always be grateful. And to all of you at Brownell, please treat him well. You're getting the best.

and University Liggett School. He had signed a five-year contract with Birmingham Groves.

He had one condition of his own in the deal. That if Grosse Pointe ever got a soccer program, he'd coach for them. He ended up fulfilling only one year of the Groves contract before he left and went to Grosse Pointe.

North's soccer program was successful from the very beginning. Regelbrugge ended by becoming involved with soccer at the state level as well.

"Soccer helped me get my name known for something besides being a teacher," said Regelbrugge. "It also helped me get known outside the community as well. I'd still be coaching if I hadn't gotten sick."

Regelbrugge's cancer affects the bone marrow. He said that he's in the experimental phase of treatment. "The standard treatments no longer work," said Regelbrugge. "So I am taking experimental drugs. Earlier this year I was very sick. I honestly thought I wouldn't make it back to teach. But some new drugs worked and it was almost a miracle. My doctor knows me and knows that if I can walk I'm going to want to teach. He told me to take it easy, so I only have one class right now."

Regelbrugge said he's not ready to retire yet. If he can teach he will teach.

"The support I've received from my students, the administration, my wife Diann, my students, has been great," said Regelbrugge. "Grosse Pointe is a wonderful community. When I look back at my life, I thank God I ended up here."

Regelbrugge is looking forward to teaching next year.

"I plan to rest this summer," said Regelbrugge. "If I'm OK I'll be back next year. I'm living one day at a time. Nothing is given."

"Whatever plans you make, you have realize that's all they are."

New Secretary of State postcard reminds 18-year olds to register and vote

With voter turnout rates for 18- to 24-year-olds hovering around 38 percent for the last election cycle in Michigan, Secretary of State Candice S. Miller announced her department is taking steps to encourage more young people to register and vote.

Every two weeks, about 6,000 Michigan teenagers who have just turned 18 will receive a postcard in the mail from the secretary of state's office reminding them to register to vote.

The postcard's message is simple: The future is yours, so register and vote.

"Our postcard program is designed to encourage young people to register to vote," said Miller. "It is our hope that when the postcard arrives in the mail, it will spark a discussion within the family about the importance of registering and voting. Voting is one of the most cherished rights of our democratic society and one of the most effective ways an individual can make change happen."

The front of the postcard features a photograph of five young people with the tag line,

"Your vote is your voice. Make sure your voice is heard — register and vote." The back of the postcard provides a short explanation of how to register to vote and the department's blue-and-white logo: "Michigan Secretary of State," to identify where young people can obtain further information about registering and voting.

The department estimates the postcards will reach about 156,000 households each year.

Miller explained the postcard was developed because of the low voter turnout among young people.

Voters ages 18 to 24 years have the least representation at the polls based on data compiled by the U.S. Census Bureau. For example, in Michigan's 1996 general election, almost 54 percent of 25- to 44-year-olds went to the polls, compared to 38 percent of 18- to 24-year-olds.

"Young people have an important role in Michigan's political process," said Miller. "The issues that are voted on today affect their future, so it's crucial they have an active voice in making those decisions."

School celebrates with open house Monday, June 12

The school was named after George Defer (1880-1927), who was a trustee of the Village of Grosse Pointe Park from 1914-17 and its president from 1918-26. At the time of his death he was a newly-elected Michigan library and computer labs. "Technology has certainly made an impact," said King. "Now it's common for kids to work on computers to do their school work and do research on the Internet."

Teaching has also changed

The school will celebrate its past and present at its 75th Anniversary Celebration on Monday, June 12 from 5- 8:30 p.m. The event will feature refreshments, tours of the building, clowns, face painting and a DJ and dancing.

Over the next couple of months, I focused on copy work, editing skills and basic writing skills. Most of the work I did was for the school news, which was great because I knew practically everyone I was writing about. I also did work for Pride of the Pointes, a section of the paper that acknowledges the achievements of Grosse Pointe college students.

A little later, classified manager Barbara Vethake asked me to model at a bridal show, hosted by the Grosse Pointe News. What a girl's dream come true! I had to

Screwy logic

On Tuesday, May 30, at 5:30 p.m., a Grosse Pointe Woods policeman ordered a boy to dismount a go-ped before driving him and his vehicle home.

Go-peds, the officer explained to the boy's father after citing the boy for operating an unlicensed vehicle, can be used only on private property that is not open to the general public.

According to the officer, the father said, "Police shouldn't enforce this law until someone gets hurt."

Sammy is in the dog house

Woods police said a 3-year-old male Samoyed dog named Sammy "pounced" on a woman who was walking on Hampton near Wedgewood on Sunday, June 4, at about 8:30 p.m.

The big dog bit the 33-year-old victim on the right thigh. The attack caused "two deep puncture wounds," said the stitches, but the woman refused immediate medical attention, the officer said.

The dog's owner, a Woods resident, said his unlicensed pet was up to date on shots.

More bad dogs

In another dog story, two dogs reportedly sprinted from a garage in the 600 block of Lochmoor in the Woods and "blindsided" a woman pedestrian from Grosse Pointe Shores.

The larger of the two rogue animals knocked the woman to the ground before the dogs' owners captured their pets.

X-rays revealed the victim had a broken right ankle that required a cast.

Bad plate, tab

On Friday, June 2, at 8:30 p.m., Woods police pulled over a 45-year-old Detroit woman for driving with an improper license plate and stolen tab.

Police spotted the woman on northbound Harper near Allard in a 1993 Ford with license tab had been reported stolen from a 1986 Oldsmobile. The woman was released on bond. Police impounded her car.

PUBLIC SAFETY REPORTS

Three firebugs

Grosse Pointe Woods police are trying to find three juvenile boys believed to be students at Parcels Middle School.

The three are wanted for igniting newspapers set in a recycling bin in front of a house in the 1800 block of Hampton on Thursday, June 1, at 4 p.m.

Quack call

On the afternoon of Friday, June 2, a Woods policeman plucked 11 baby ducks from a swimming pool in the 19900 block of East Doyal Place. The officer released the ducklings in the yard.

Roof fire

Grosse Pointe Park officers extinguished the beginnings of a roof fire last week in the 15200 block of Windmill Pointe Drive. On Wednesday, May 31, at 6 p.m., officers put out the fire and vented the dwelling.

Express stolen

A Honda Express moped was reported stolen on Thursday, June 1, from the 1300 block of Maryland in the Park. Police are investigating a suspect who was identified as someone who had made overtures to buy the vehicle.

Designer theft

Someone made off with lawn furniture and flowers from the Designer Show House during the night of Monday, June 29. The house, located in the 15000 block of Windmill Pointe Drive, had been open for public tours as a way to raise funds for various charities.

Trade in

Park police recovered a stolen Buick Riviera on Hally Place near Beaconsfield on Sunday, June 4. The car had been reported stolen from Warren in September, 1998.

Officers think the Buick was a drop vehicle that thieves abandoned while stealing another car from the city.

Shores break-in

A family that lives in the first block of Renaud in Grosse Pointe Shores returned home from a four-day trip on Sunday, June 4, to discover the second floor of their home had been ransacked.

Police discovered a ladder by an upstairs bathroom window. The window screen was found inside the bathroom. Despite ransacking drawers on the second floor, the thief or thieves were unable to open two safes. Nothing appeared to have been stolen.

No cigars

On Saturday, June 3, a 19-year-old Grosse Pointe Shores resident of the first block of Lochmoor reported that friends had stolen $3,800 in premium cigars from her house during a party on Saturday, May 27.

She said the smokes were taken by a Farms resident and an Ann Arbor resident who attended her party. She failed to report the incident for a week because she didn't want her father to find out.

Her father found out. Police were told by the young lady that the cigars are being sold at the University of Michigan, where one of the tobacco thieves attends college.

Durango drunk

A 1999 Dodge Durango was spotted heading north on Lakeshore at about 2:20 a.m. on Monday, May 29. A Grosse Pointe Shores patrol officer noted the vehicle was traveling 26 mph in a 25 mph zone. He also saw the Durango cross the center line several times and then strike the curb.

When the officer pulled the vehicle over, he detected the odor of alcohol. The driver, a 50-year-old Detroit man, admitted to drinking "one beer." He failed his field sobriety tests and refused to take a preliminary breath test (PBT). The officer also spotted an open bottle of gin, a bag containing a substance resembling marijuana and a stack of rolling papers.

The driver was taken to Shores headquarters where he agreed to take a PBT. He blew a .21. He is currently free on $200 bond.

Drinker in the Shores

A Grosse Pointe Shores patrol officer spotted a 1997 Yukon cross the center line of Lakeshore several times at about 3:09 a.m. while traveling south. The officer pulled the vehicle over and the driver, a 29-year-old Grosse Pointe Woods man, admitted to having a "couple of drinks." He also failed his field sobriety tests and refused to take a PBT.

This was no problem for Shores police, who obtained a search warrant allowing them to take a blood sample from the driver. He was taken to St. John Hospital, where the blood sample was taken. The driver is free on $100 bond, pending the results of the blood test.

Farms fire

Grosse Pointe Farms public safety received a report of smoke coming from a pool house located behind a home in the 200 block of Grosse Pointe Boulevard at 7:03 a.m. on Wednesday, May 31.

The first officers on the scene entered the smoking building and used fire extinguishers to put out the fire. A cardboard box had been placed on top of a gas-fired pool heater and ignited. The flames from the box spread to nearby wooden shelves and moved from the shelves to the roof rafters. No injuries were reported.

Drink and crash

Grosse Pointe Farms police were notified of an accident in the area of Elm and Lakeshore at 5:02 p.m. on Sunday, May 28.

The first officer on the scene discovered that a 1998 green Plymouth Voyager hit another car from behind. When the officer questioned the mini-van driver, his speech was slurred. The driver, a 23-year-old Brownstown man, also failed his field sobriety tests and refused to take a PBT. He is currently free on $500 bond.

Indecent exposure

A 32-year-old Grosse Pointe Farms woman was walking along the 19200 block of Mack in the Farms at 3 p.m. on Thursday, May 25, when a man called out to her and told her to look at him.

When she did, she saw a man, about 5 feet 5 inches tall, with his pants down around his ankles. He was wearing no underwear and was touching himself.

The woman called the police immediately, but when they arrived the suspect was gone. He was described as having brown hair and looked to be in his early 30s.

Statues limited

On Thursday, May 25, a resident of the first block of Warner in Grosse Pointe Farms reported that over the past several weeks two cast iron statues that were kept in her back yard had been systematically vandalized. The victim said that she had them moved to her garage.

Window smashed

Crossed wire

A Grosse Pointe Park resident reported to City of Grosse Pointe public safety officers on Wednesday, May 31, that someone used his credit card number, left with a video store clerk in the City, to purchase over $300 worth of merchandise from a national department store chain and have $500 transferred via telegraph to an address in Detroit. Police are still investigating.

The Park man discovered a few minutes later that his pocket had been picked. A bank envelope containing over $500 in cash was gone.

I feel very honored to say that I was a part of this team. I have learned much more here than I ever would have in a classroom with a blackboard and book. So far 49 students have applied to Community School for the 2000-01 school year. Thirteen are returning students, 13 are from North and 23 are from South. Kelly did not know how many openings would be available for students next year.

Pointe auto writer discovers thriving industry in Europe

Smart, a small car built in Switzerland by a subsidiary of Mercedes-Benz but with no Mercedes marking on it, is parked barely legally in front of a fashionable apartment house on Rue de Claude Bernard. Controversy over the Smart led, in part at least, to the firing of Tom Stalkamp as Chrysler Corp. president.

A visit to Paris and southern England recently convinced us that the European auto industry is alive and well, inventive and creative and quite different from the North American.

Visitors to France are often surprised at the vitality of the European auto industry, particularly the French. Americans are familiar with German cars, less with British and hardly at all with French.

In fact, the auto industry was born in Europe and the word "automobile" was contributed by the French. Citroen, Peugeot and Renault are among the old and honored automotive makes in the world, but have not been in the United States since Renault sold its interest in American Motors to Chrysler Corp.

Traffic in Paris is horrendous and parking is a nightmare. In short, it's kind of like New York. Except that the cars are all small. That's because gasoline costs around $5 a gallon. The historically high price of gasoline in Europe has caused the auto industry there to develop along quite different paths.

You don't see sport utility vehicles there. Small high wagons, crosses between mini sport-utilities and sedans, are the closest Paris comes. Parisian drivers are surprisingly skilled and courteous. I saw no evidence anywhere of the rudeness often claimed of the French.

We saw only one American car, a Buick Park Avenue, and it looked good on a fashionable street amid Mercedes-Benzes, Jaguars and a Rolls-Royce.

In fact, there were American cars in Paris, but not Detroit American. Mazda is now part of Ford, as is Jaguar and Volvo. General Motors is represented by Opel and Vauxhall and sort of by Fiat. Chrysler Corp., of course, is part of DaimlerChrysler and is on Paris streets in the form of Mercedes-Benz and Smart cars.

We took the Eurostar high-speed train from Paris through the Channel tunnel and got off at the first stop in England — Ashford station. The Eurostar connects Paris with London and with Brussels at speeds around 180 miles per hour, except in England, where it slows down because the rails are not good enough for high-speed operation.

Train travel is excellent in Europe, at a level of convenience and efficiency unknown in this country. Automobile travel is something else. Both France and England have good systems of "interstate-type" limited-access highways. But in Paris, traffic is like New York City, but on narrow streets clogged with parked cars. And in London, it's like New York City on the wrong side of the street.

In England, of course, they drive on the left side. You get used to that quickly, but it never does feel quite right to an American.

We were met at Ashford by friends who formerly lived in Detroit for a few years. Richard and Cynthia Feast. Richard had been editor of AutoWeek magazine at Crain Communications in Detroit until about four years ago when the Feasts returned to their native England.

As it turned out, Feast was taking the Eurostar the next day to Paris to interview Renault Chairman Louis Schweitzer. Renault has recently acquired the Japanese maker Nissan and the Romanian maker Dacia and was in negotiations to acquire the Korean firm Samsung's automotive operation.

The English automotive press was abuzz with reports and comments (not complimentary) about BMW's sale of Land Rover to Ford and its sale of recently acquired Rover and MG cars to Alchemy Partners, a London venture capital group. Alchemy hinted it would cease production of Rover and concentrate on MG sports cars. The largest selling British-built make in Britain is the Rover, so if it is discontinued, that title will fall to GM's Vauxhall.

Feast freelances for a number of publications, most notably Automotive World, a new monthly published in London. He had done a piece on how the major world makers are lining up in the global market, a topic that interested me in light of the confusing array of brands we encountered in Paris.

He outlined the industry as it now exists, relationships which are much more visible in Europe than in the United States, where many of the major players, such as Renault, Peugeot-Citroen and Fiat are not represented.

Here are the major world players and their lines in order of 1999 volume, as Feast reported in Automotive World:

1) General Motors (8.4 million vehicles): Buick, Cadillac, Chevrolet, GMC, Oldsmobile, Pontiac, (all U.S.); Opel (Germany); Vauxhall, (Great Britain); Saab (Sweden); significant holdings in Fiat-Alfa Romeo (Italy), Subaru, Isuzu and Suzuki (Japan).

2) Ford Motor Co. (7.8 million): Ford, Lincoln, Mercury (U.S.); Ford (Great Britain); Ford (Germany); Mazda (Japan); Jaguar (Great Britain); Volvo (Sweden), and Land Rover (Great Britain).

3) Toyota (5.1 million): Toyota and Lexus (Japan); interest in Daihatsu and Hino (Japan).

4) Volkswagen (4.8 million): Volkswagen, Audi (Germany); Rolls-Royce until 2003 and Bentley (Great Britain); Seat (Spain); Skoda (Czech Republic).

5) DaimlerChrysler (4.5 million): Mercedes-Benz (Germany); Chrysler and Dodge (U.S.); Mitsubishi (Japan).

6) Renault (4.4 million): Renault (France); Nissan and Infiniti (Japan); Dacia (Romania).

7) Peugeot-Citroen (2.5 million): Peugeot (France); Citroen (France).

8) Honda (2.4 million): Honda (Japan).

9) Fiat (2.3 million): Fiat,

After a few days on the southeast coast of England in Sussex, we headed to Gatwick to return home. On the way to the airport at Gatwick, the cab driver pulled off near the airport to a garage he thought we'd be interested in. He was right.

In the showroom of West Hoathly Garage in West Hoathly, West Sussex, were two '30s-vintage Packards with right-hand drive. Inside, restored or being restored

This '39 Packard convertible in the West Hoathly Garage near Gatwick Airport had a price tag of £46,500, which is about $74,400. Pretty steep by U.S. market standards, and it has left-handed steering. But, of course, Packards are much rarer in England and are very popular with British collectors.

It turns out that Packard, Detroit's hometown car, is very popular with collectors in Britain.

G.P Farms offers lots to do during the summer

By Jim Stickford
Staff Writer

Now that the 2000 summer season has officially started, Grosse Pointe Farms park officials want residents to know that there will be lots to do during the summer and encourage people to take advantage of the many municipal programs.

Registration for youth swim and tennis lessons are by walk-in only. Registration for the first session of swim and tennis lessons is on Saturday, June 10, between 8:30 a.m. and 4 p.m. at the Pier Park recreation building. Registration for the second session lessons is on Saturday, July 15, between 8:30 a.m. and 4 p.m.

Those interested in signing up for the Farms swim team should call or visit the parks and recreation office between 8 a.m. and 4 p.m. Monday through Friday. They will get a swim team package.

Registrations are handled on a first-come, first-serve basis. The Farms doesn't guarantee that all registrants will get into the program they want and there will be no refunds after the starting date of each program.

The Pier Park will be open from 5 a.m. to midnight until Oct. 1. The municipal pool is open from 10 a.m. to 10 p.m.

The wading pool's hours are from noon to 6 p.m. But starting June 18, the hours will be from 10 a.m. to 7 p.m. The beach is open from noon to 8 p.m. On June 18, the beach will open two hours earlier.

Park officials also want to emphasize that park passes will be required to enter the park. They are for Farms residents only and it's illegal to loan or give away a pass to a relative or close friend to gain entry to the Park.

Those wishing to obtain special group picnic and family picnic passes for the weekday must get them at the public service department offices at city hall, 90 Kerby, during regular office hours. Such passes are only issued for weekdays (no holidays) and group picnic passes require that at least 50 percent of those attending are Farms residents.

Family picnic permits require that the sponsoring person to be a Farms resident and the family members must be a parent, grandparent, son, daughter, grandson, granddaughter, daughter-in-law or son-in-law of the sponsor.

A complete alphabetical guest list, printed or typed, must be submitted when applying for guest permits. Those seeking more information can call the park department at (313) 343-2405.

Because of heavy park use during weekends and holidays, no special passes will be issued for those times.

There are a host of adult recreation programs available this summer.

The adult aquacize program is open to men and women every Monday, Wednesday and Friday from June 19 to Sept. 1. You must pre-register and the fee is $20.

The adult early morning swim starts on June 19, Monday through Friday, until Sept. 1. The class is from 6:30 to 7:30 a.m. The fee is $20 and those interested must pre-register.

There will be a free "discover scuba" program on Sunday, June 4, at 10 a.m. and another one on Sunday, July 16, also at 10 a.m. The program is designed to give participants a chance to experience scuba diving in actual water conditions. It's for those 12 and older. Registration must be in the parks and recreation office by June 25.

Those who enjoyed the free scuba class might want to continue with a scuba diving certification class. Part one is at Pier Park on July 24, 26 and 31, 6:30 to 9:30 p.m. An additional class is on Aug. 2, 7, and 9, during the same hours. The cost is $150. Part two will be taught after the completion of part one.

There are also a variety of adult athletic programs. There is the adult co-ed volleyball league. The fee is $30 and games start in June and are played on Tuesdays and Thursdays. Half of the players on any team must be from the Farms.

There is the adult 3-on-3 basketball tournament, to be held on Saturday, June 24. The fee is $20. The women's tennis league starts the week of June 12. Games are between 9 and 10:30 a.m. The fee is $20. Registration is on a first-come basis at the parks and recreation office.

The men's tennis league starts play on Sunday, June 11. It lasts seven weeks and is for doubles only. The fee is $20.

There are a host of swimming activities sponsored at the park. They include every thing from swimming lessons for youths to a synchronized swim team. They also offer Red Cross lifeguard training, beginning on June 20. You must be at least 15. The cost is $135. Classes are on Tuesdays and Thursdays.

The annual lakefront swim association lifeguard competition is going to be held in the Farms this year on Wednesday, Aug. 2, at 4 p.m. This event is free.

A youth basketball clinic starts on Monday, July 31, and lasts five days. The cost is $30 and it is for kids between the ages of 7 and 9. There is only room for 30 students.

Another five-day basketball clinic for kids between the ages of 10 and 12 starts on Monday, Aug. 7. The fee is $30. It is limited to 30 students.

There will be a Friday youth arts and crafts program for kids between the ages of 6 and 12, starting on June 23. It ends on Aug. 11.

There is a $4 fee for each day attended. There is only room for 24 students and pre-registration is required.

The Adventures in Music class for children between 5 and 10 years old starts on June 22, and runs through Aug. 10. The cost is $42 per person. Class is on Thursdays, from 2:30 to 3:30 p.m.

The Farms Boat Club Regatta is on Saturday, July 1. The event is free to all Farms residents and the rain date is Sunday, July 2. The race will be followed by fireworks, starting at dusk.

The Ice Cream Social is scheduled for Saturday, Aug. 5. The Farms/City Fishing Rodeo is at Pier Park this year on Saturday, Aug. 12. It's open to all kids under the age of 17. The family overnight camp weekend is scheduled for the weekend of Sept. 16.

And the summer concert series continues in 2000. On Sunday, June 11, the band Hits will perform some golden oldies. On June 25, Bobby Lewis and the Crackerjack Band perform. Two weeks later the Heritage Concert Band performs. On July 23, the Grosse Pointe Community Band is on hand to entertain. The series concludes on Aug. 6, with the band Immunity. The shows start at 4:30 p.m. and conclude at 6 p.m., with the exception of the July 23 concert, which starts an hour earlier.

The Farms Pier Park will be a busy place this summer. If there are any questions Farms residents should call (313) 343-2405.

County to smooth section of Lakeshore

By Brad Lindberg
Staff Writer

Wayne County officials hope to smooth the ruffled feathers of motorists who drive on Lakeshore in Grosse Pointe Shores.

In a project scheduled for the spring of 2001, workers will glaze a washboard section of Lakeshore using a new technique called "micro-sealing."

County officials said the process is long-lasting but costs less than resurfacing.

The job should make palatable a section of Lakeshore that has spawned complaints since last year when county workers sealed cracks in the road with strips of tar. Motorists and Shores officials have complained the project produced a lattice of teeth-rat-tlng bumps that are ugly and slippery when wet.

"Micro-sealing will cover the old surface and ride like new asphalt for up to 10 years," said John Roach, a county spokesman.

The job should cost $100,000, according to Cameron Priebe, the county director of public services. He said micro-sealing costs about $25,000 for each mile of lane. The price compares to $500,000 for rebuilding a similar length of road.

Priebe said micro-sealing is a new method of road repair begun last year. The technique replaces the tar technique.

"We're doing a bunch (of micro-sealing) this year on similar-type roads," he said. The results "look good and ride well. We have been very pleased."

Other than Lakeshore's bumpy surface, Roach said the street's asphalt is in good shape.

Bulls 4, Bears 0; NASDAQ gains 19 percent last week

What a week it turned out to be! Deducting the Memorial Day holiday, the week only had four days.

The brightest fireworks came from the center ring, occupied by the tech-heavy NASDAQ Composite.

The NASDAQ sky-rocketed 608 points to close last Friday at 3,813, or a record 19 percent. For the year-to-date, it is still off 6.2 percent, but about 600 points above its recent low last month.

The twin peaks of 5,000, achieved last March, still cast deep shadows over the NASDAQ price charts. Some technicians wonder if this is just another "false start" in an otherwise bear market.

But bullishness ruled last week. The DJI posted a healthy 495 point gain, to close the week at 10,794, up 4.8 percent.

And the S&P 500 Index (does anyone still follow that one?) gained 99 points, or 7.2 percent, closing at 1,477 last Friday.

Most traders interpreted last week's economic data as bullish, a case of bad news is good news for the market.

But both the stock and bond markets kept one eye on the late-June calendar, June 27-28, to be specific.

The Fed's 1.75-point increase in short-term interest rates over the past year appears to be biting certain sectors of the economy.

New home sales in April were down 5.8 percent and construction spending was off 0.6 percent.

Auto sales have been less than robust in certain models, precipitating increases in rebate incentives to move inventory and keep production humming.

Last Friday's employment data was viewed by certain

Chinese restaurant put on back burner

Will plan be junked?

By Brad Lindberg
Staff Writer

A man who wants to open a Chinese carry-out restaurant in Grosse Pointe Woods will have to wait while city officials, like riding a slow boat, deal with waves of bureaucracy.

Wei Kuang of St. Clair Shores plans to open Mrs. V's Tea Shop on Mack in a building occupied previously by the Cheesecake Shoppe.

The building is two storefronts south of the Woods city hall near a municipal parking lot.

Woods officials have denied Kuang's efforts to open the business. His first attempt to obtain a business license was thwarted because the city was at its limit for carry-out business licenses.

"A hardship variance (was) therefore required," said Louise Warnke, the Woods city clerk.

The city building inspector, citing a city ordinance regulating carry-out restaurants in commercial zoning districts, denied Kuang's follow-up effort. Kuang's next step is applying to the city planning commission for a special land use request.

After that, the matter will flow to the city council in a process a council member this week said could take until September.

Let's talk...STOCKS

analysts as hinting the beginning of the long-awaited "cooling-off" period in the economy. The reported 231,000 increase in non-farm employment was well below the 375,000 forecast.

The monthly employment data released by the Labor Department is based on payroll data immediately preceding the 12th of each month. So the May "month" actually covers the period from April 13 through May 12.

The initially released data is frequently revised substantially, either up or down. May is always a troubling month, because the graduating college seniors are still in school, and not yet reported as part of the labor force.

This year's data is skewed by the temporary employees of the U.S. Census, most of whom will be furloughed by mid-year.

The census offered $10 per hour for part-time employees, reflecting how "tight" the labor market has been.

Some analysts said this evidence of "slowing" indicates that the Fed's desire for a "soft landing" was on target and that further tightening at the late June Fed meeting could be postponed.

But is the economy really grinding to a halt? Or is the market typically over-reacting to signals that maybe aren't too distinct?

Maybe the Fed will only bump rates by 1/4 of 1 percent, then wait and see.

On the margin

How much is too much? Margin debt, that is.

Brokerages are required to report their aggregate margin loan balances periodically to the regulators. Much has been said recently about the excessive growth of such debt.

It is generally estimated that individuals account for over half of margin debt, with market professionals responsible for the balance.

Floor-specialist firms and over-the-counter (NASDAQ) market-makers are "long" certain positions, while simultaneously being "short" other positions, with offsetting risks.

The use of debt by these professionals is a normal cost of doing business. The NYSE specialist is charged with operating an "orderly market."

Thus the specialist is often the "other side" in transactions with the public. In an auction market, most trades are between brokerage firms representing their clients.

On occasion, there may be a seller on the floor but no visible buyer. Then the specialist steps in, buying for his own account, maintaining the order flow and, hopefully, reasonably level prices.

At other times, the specialist may supply stock, if there are no sellers on the floor, again maintaining market continuity. The specialist uses margin loans to finance his inventory.

Arbitrageurs ("arbs") are large users of margin loans, especially during stock mergers. Company X agrees to merge with Company Y, in a merger of "equals," of course.

The announced deal is 1.7 shares of X (closed at 25 before the announcement) for each share of Y (closed at 30), a theoretical premium of 41.7 percent for Y shareholders.

The following morning, X opens at 24 1/2, and Y is trading at 38 1/2. X is off 1/2, because the street feels X's management made too "sweet" an offer for Y.

Y is up 8 1/2 points, the biggest gainer of the day! The arbs are paying 92.4 percent of the merger price at that time for Y (based on 1.7 times $24.50).

Y is also the "most actively traded" stock of the day, as the arbs suck up most of the "float" not owned by insiders and founders, all financed with margin loans.

If the merger is consummated, the arbs will make millions. But if it's aborted, they will lose a bundle. The arbs play the odds, since most mergers eventually get done, sometimes even at a higher price.

In some cases, the rejected bride finds another suitor in the wings. If the arbs haven't sold their losses, they stand another chance to win.

In these days of mega-mega mergers, the arbs are joined by a host of other players: hedge funds, certain mutual funds, some pension funds, and even day-traders — all using margin loans.

Where's the action?

This week, it's Unilever vs. Bestfoods, with the bride still coyly talking to others before accepting the bid. Stay tuned.

Are margin loans for you? Not if you're adverse to being in debt.

But margin loans give you additional leverage. A given amount of capital controls more shares, giving you the opportunity to 1) make more capital gains, or 2) incur larger capital losses.

But, I hear you say, "I'll sell out early on and pay off the loans before the brokerage sells me out." Famous last words!

On Black Monday, Oct. 19, 1987, the DJI sold off 20 percent in one session. Many speculative and not-so-speculative stocks were halved that day, down 50 percent!

The panic was so sudden, that brokerages couldn't even send Western Union telegrams of margin calls, or even phone customers.

The customer was sold out and told about it later.

Smithsonian model airplane exhibit lands in Detroit

See it before it takes off June 25

Sometimes people don't have time for a full-blown vacation. They have only a day, or half a day to gear up, take off and head home.

If you're looking for something to do, something fun, fast and sleek, head to the Detroit Historical Museum for a special exhibit of model airplanes on loan from the National Air and Space Museum. You might learn something. But if not, so what? You're on vacation.

By Brad Lindberg
Staff Writer

Ralph Mason was exempt from the draft.

A tool maker during the early 1940s, his industrial skills were more valuable to the war effort working in Detroit's Arsenal of Democracy than trading gunfire on a pock-marked battlefield.

But the 24-year-old married father of two signed up. An airplane-lover since watching biplanes dogfight in Howard Hughes' 1930 World War I aviation drama, "Hell's Angels," Mason volunteered for the U.S. Army Air Corps. The Navy wasn't an option.

"I couldn't see myself in bell-bottom pants," he said.

Mason earned a seat in a front-line fighter plane as a member of the Tuskegee Airmen. The all-Black squadron of pilots were nicknamed the "Red Tail Devils" after the brightly colored tails of their aircraft.

Like most veterans, Mason never saw combat. He graduated from flight school in June, 1945, a few months after Germany quit and a month before two atomic bombs updated Japan's no-surrender policy.

The Airmen flew 15,553 sorties and completed 1,578 missions in World War II.

"The premier aspect of (their) legacy in the air was they never lost a bomber to enemy fighters (during) 200 bomber escort missions against some of the most heavily-defended targets in the Third Reich," said Gen. Ronald Fogleman, retired Air Force Chief of Staff.

Mason credited his comrade's battle record to disciplined flying and savvy thinking. The Airmen weren't suckered into abandoning their bombers to tangle with German decoys.

"The Germans would send in decoy fighters to draw the escorts away from the bombers," said Mason.

"Then they sent in another set of fighters to shoot down the unprotected bombers. The Red Tails were noted for never falling for decoys."

On other missions, the Red Tails hunted freely. By war's end the Tuskegee Airmen had shot down 111 enemy aircraft and destroyed another 150 on the ground, according to Fogleman.

Special exhibit

Mason reminisced near a 1/16-scale model of a Red Tail P-51 Mustang on display at the Detroit Historical Museum.

The replica is decorated in the colors of Tuskegee pilot Lt. Clarence "Lucky" Lester, an ace who on a mission over are on loan from the National Air and Space Museum.

"On Miniature Wings" runs through June 25.

Museum organizers have added a "been there, done that" element to the exhibition by having Tuskegee Airmen serve as docents on Saturdays.

Also, a model-making workshop is scheduled for Father's Day, Sunday, June 18.

Members of the Academy of Model Aeronautics will help children and parents assemble their own model airplanes.

The display

"On Miniature Wings" puts aircraft development in historical perspective.

Like the real airplanes they represent, the models span eras, construction methods and purpose.

A 1/16-scale model of the Wright Brothers' 1903 flyer sits near a miniature Lockheed SR-71 Blackbird, which at more than 2,000 mph flies faster than a rifle bullet.

Museum patrons can trace the development of passenger airliners, including a gleaming metal DC-2 from the 1930s, Boeing 307 (based on the B-17 bomber) from the 1940s and Boeing 2707-300 Supersonic Transport designed but canceled in the 1960s.

A 1948 model of a Douglas DC-6, the fastest airliner of its day, features a cut-away fuselage to reveal the pilot cockpit and passenger cabins.

In an example of marketing subterfuge, the model was built to 1/20-scale, but the passengers were made in a smaller scale. Museum organizers said the discrepancy was an airline company's ploy to make the plane's interior look roomier than it really was.

From WWI, there's a 1/16-scale award-winning model of an Albatross D.III painted in the brilliant red of German ace Manfred von Richthofen. Nearby, a Curtiss JN-4D "Jenny" biplane looks ready for takeoff.

The list goes on: An art deco-looking aluminum Northrop Gamma, a monoplane that Howard Hughes piloted to a transcontinental speed record in 1936; a Braniff Airlines DC-8, which during the hippie days of the 1960s was decorated in bold colors and abstract designs by American artist Alexander Calder.

A full-sized copy of the world's first successful radio-controlled model airplane, the 1936 "Gulf" made by the Good Brothers of Kalamazoo.

Some of the models are bulky, like the egg-shaped Stout Scarab that had removable wings.

If developed (which it wasn't), the Scarab would have doubled as an automobile.

Airplanes

Some of the models are sleek, like the Stout bat-wing monoplane. It looks like an early version of the flying wing.

William B. Stout was a 1920's Detroit automotive engineer with a yen for air travel. He caught the eye of Henry Ford who put him to work on what would become one of the most successful airliners of all time, the Ford Tri-motor.

Like the real thing on display at the Henry Ford Museum in Dearborn, the model Tri-motor is made of corrosion-resistant corrugated aluminum. Although it has only a four-foot wingspan, the life-like model lives up to the original's nickname: "Tin Goose."

"I'm amazed at that model," said Mason. "The detail on that thing — the corrugation, the elevators and rudder controls on the outside of the fuselage. If you look on the top (of the wing) you'll see three fuel tank caps. Look at the castings for the landing lights."

The castings contain small jewels to represent landing lights. Windows in the 15-seat passenger compartment have tiny curtains.

The real thing

Some model airplanes aren't for show. They've been designed for testing in wind tunnels.

Three "On Miniature" models are wind tunnel veterans: a triplane flying boat dating to the 1920s; a gull-wing mahogany Vought Corsair from WWII that could pass for a work of art; and a 1/32-scale mockup of a Douglas Skyrocket, a rocket powered research aircraft that flew at twice the speed of sound.

Wind tunnels have come a long way from the early days of flight. The Wright Brothers had a hand-cranked wind tunnel jury-rigged from bicycle parts. It generated a 35 mph breeze.

These days, wind tunnels plummet test models with blasts of air up to Mach 18 (about 13,500 mph at sea level), according to Capt. Tim White of the Air Force's Arnold Engineering Development Center in Tennessee.

America's largest flight testing center, the $6 billion base tests everything from jets to rockets, from air-to-air missiles to satellites.

Civilian airplane manufacturers and governments friendly to the U.S. pay handsomely to have their aircraft tested and fine-tuned at Arnold.

"Arnold is like the Underwriters Laboratory for conceptual (aircraft) design," said White.

Although White said model airplanes have nostalgic value (base personnel have a model airplane club called the Airfoilers), the miniature airplanes he deals with cost millions of dollars. The payoff is keeping America on the forefront of aviation and saving the lives of test pilots who would otherwise have to tinker with aircraft by trial and error.

"A million dollars might seem extraordinary for a model," said White, "but the alternative is brute force testing with a full-size aircraft."

Claude Morse, a retired Air Force officer working at Arnold as a civilian contractor, added, "We reduce the risk before the aircraft are flown."

Unlike the solid wind tunnel models on display at the historical museum, White's test beds are shiny metal shells crammed with space-age "plumbing that records sensory data," he said.

The historical representations in "On Miniature" hint at a process of aircraft development that sees beyond technological horizon.

Like Stout's bat-wing and the Good Brother's radio controlled aircraft, Arnold engineers use model aircraft as telescopes to look to the future of flight.

Morse said, "We're working on stuff that will fly in the future, like the next generation space shuttle."

More down to earth, Arnold engineers have been refining the F-22 Raptor since 1989. By the time the stealthy supersonic Raptor replaces the F-15 in 2004, Arnold scientists will have been studying it for 15 years.

Even more advanced, Arnold engineers are studying models of the Lockheed Martin X-35 Joint Strike Fighter. Not due for deployment until 2010, the versatile X-35 will replace the F-16, A-10, AV-8A Harrier and early models of the F-18.

As a cadet during WWII, the Tuskegee's Mason never imagined that in a few years people would fly at twice the speed of sound.

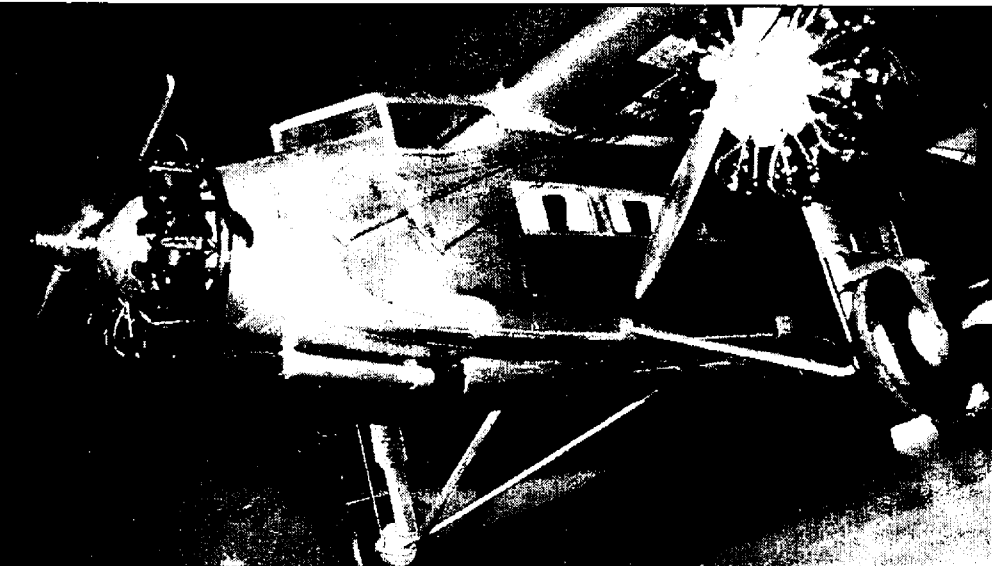

"We didn't know about jets," he said, "until they came up in Germany."

Late in the war, the Air Corps developed in secret the jet-powered Lockheed P-80 Shooting Star.

According to Mason, the P-80 never made it into the war because the engine would quit unexpectedly in what pilots call a "flame out."

Although less common, flame outs still dog jet engines. In an example of the subtleties of model testing, Morse said the Arnold crew recently solved the problem of transonic flame outs in F-111s flown by the Royal Australian Air Force.

"We brought it (a model F-111) to Arnold and ran it up to Mach 2," he said. High-speed testing revealed the creation of a shock wave, or "bubble" of air pressure in front of the jet's air intakes.

"We changed the lift of the engine inlet one inch to solve

Woman's Club

The Grosse Pointe Woman's Club held its annual luncheon May 17 at the Grosse Pointe Yacht Club. The club presented $2,000 scholarships to two Grosse Pointe graduating seniors, one from North and one from South high school. the problem," said Morse.

"On Miniature Wings" continues at the Detroit Historical Museum through Sunday, June 25. The museum, located on the corner of Woodward and Kirby in Detroit's Cultural Center, is open Tuesday through Friday from 9:30 a.m. to 5 p.m., and weekends from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Admission is $4.50 for adults, $2.25 for seniors and children 12-18, and free for children under 12. The museum's guarded parking is on Kirby. Call (313) 833-1805 for more information.

'Eyes on Design' will be June 16-18; DIO will benefit

Eyes on Design planners boast that the annual event is the only car show to focus on the emotion and character of automotive design. The annual weekend dedicated to automotive design benefits the Detroit Institute of Ophthalmology. The show will feature more than 250 of the world's finest vehicles on display from 10 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. at the Edsel & Eleanor Ford House in Grosse Pointe Shores. Tickets are $15 on the day of the show; $12 in advance; children 12 and under are free with a paid adult admission.

On Friday, June 16, an informal social event, "Eve of the Eyes," will preview the exhibition and spotlight automotive art. The evening includes hors d'oeuvres and parking and will run from 6 to 9 p.m. at the 3M Innovation Center in Livonia. Tickets are $25; $15 for students.

Costs are up more than 2 cents a mile

The average cost of driving a car in 2000 will be nearly 50 cents per mile, up 2.1 cents from last year, says AAA Michigan. Driving costs are up due to higher fuel prices and rising new vehicle depreciation and finance costs.

AAA's annual "Your Driving Costs" study reports motorists driving 15,000 miles this year will spend an average of $7,363 on auto-related expenses, up $313 since 1999.

The increase is mainly due to higher operating costs — gas and oil, maintenance and tires — which increased 1.6 cents per mile as a result of rising fuel prices. Since the increase in fuel prices through the first three months of 2000 was not captured by this study, operating costs are somewhat understated in this report.

AAA's cost estimates are based on computations made by Runzheimer International of Rochester, Wis., a management consulting firm specializing in transportation, travel and living costs.

Fixed ownership costs such as depreciation, financing, license, registration and insurance also increased this year, up by 20 cents per day to $15.16. The largest increase in ownership costs for the year was for depreciation, which increased by $56 to $3,492 annually.

AAA's cost figures are based on a composite national average of three domestically built 2000 cars — a subcompact Chevrolet Cavalier LS, a mid-size Ford Taurus SE and a full-size Mercury Grand Marquis GS.

These similarly equipped vehicles include air conditioning, automatic transmission, power steering, AM/FM stereo, dual air bags, anti-lock brakes, cruise control, tilt steering wheel, tinted glass and a rear-window defogger. The costs are based on a four-year/60,000 miles ownership period.

The study also included driving costs for sport-utility vehicles and mini vans. AAA says the cost to drive a 2000 Chevrolet Blazer is 49.6 cents per mile, down 4.2 cents from last year. The driving costs for a Dodge Caravan SE are 44.4 cents per mile, down 4.4 cents per mile from one year ago. The information on the Chevrolet Blazer and Dodge Caravan is not used to determine the composite national average, but is included in the report to help buyers estimate driving costs for these vehicles.

Driving costs in the study are reflective of personal driving and are significantly different from costs typically used to determine reimbursement for business-related use of a personal vehicle.

A pamphlet, "Your Driving Costs," is available at all AAA Michigan branches statewide. Single copies can also be obtained by sending a self-addressed, stamped business envelope to AAA Michigan, Public Relations Department, 1 Auto Club Drive, Dearborn, Mich. 48126.

The Pastor's Corner

Pantocrator

By the Rev. Gustav Kopka Jr.
St. James Lutheran Church

There are The Great Fifty Days of Easter. Believers in the "Orthodox" traditions, Also a few of the rest of us, Know that God rules In and over all of us — and them. Not only in language, it's Greek to us: Pantocrator.

Again Ascension was celebrated on The Fortieth Day of Easter, though carillon Lenten hymns continued On the Hill. Someone forgot to instruct the carillon instructors. On Ascension Day nine congregations From and near the Grosse Pointes Gathered at Bethel to "observe."

We prayed that we, with the ascended Christ, "May also come into your presence." We listened to the Gospel's end of Luke: "The Messiah . . . blessed . . . withdrew . . . Was carried up into heaven." We heard of "two men in white robes" Asking us: "Why do you look up into heaven?"

Why indeed! Return to Where you live and love and work. There you will find Yourself, in the bread and wine, in Your "neighbors," in giving away Yourself, The Other Hidden, hidden, hidden! Look around and be!

Lake Wobegon's Edna Hong once wrote: "As water down rushes steep plunges Falling descending in search of its level — So also He the eternal, living water, who Quenches all thirst forever and forever, Seeks his true level." "If he did not ascend — Could I?"

After life's 30 — and 40 rising days Count to 10 More, the 50th, Pentecost, of Easter. It's God human and divine Again, the Spirit calling, enlightening, Empowering, day by day, Pantocrator!

It's not all Greek to us. Among the many languages there is also Latin: Veni creator Spiritus! This coming Sunday That Fiftieth Day is coming. "Creator Spirit . . . Come!" "Come, Holy Spirit, God and Lord!"

Finding 12-step meetings

By Jeff and Debra Jay
Special Writers

Dear Jeff and Debra:

I am newly in recovery for an alcohol problem. I went through nine days of inpatient treatment and then six weeks of outpatient treatment. My counselors told me I need to go to Alcoholics Anonymous four times a week and I've identified several meetings in the Grosse Pointes. My biggest problem is that I travel on business a lot. I go all over the country and am gone four or five days at a time. I know I need to go to AA meetings when I'm traveling, because I used to do quite a bit of my drinking when I was on the road. My problem is finding meetings in different cities. I call AA, but sometimes get voice mail. Do you have any suggestions on how I could better plan, so I can make meetings even when I don't have much advanced notice?

— Working a Program

Dear Working:

There is a great new web site called Cybersober.com that maps out directions to Alcoholics Anonymous meetings all over the country. Cybersober has paired up with MapQuest, using their technology to offer online driving directions and maps to over 133,000 12-step meetings throughout the United States. They call the service "Maps-to-Meetings." By logging on, you can get door-to-door directions from your hotel to an AA meeting in most cities around the country in a matter of seconds.

The site offers other services as well. It has a service for searching out information on cities/ amenities such as places to see, places to stay and places to eat. It has a news service, a recovery forum and online meetings.

Cybersober.com is new, so some of these services are still under construction. Additional services include maps and driving directions to Al-Anon meetings and other 12-step meetings and a treatment program search. You can share your personal story of recovery or inspirational quotes in the Daily Journal.

Cybersober.com does require a membership fee for using its services, offering 6-month and 12-month memberships. We think this service will be a big help to all recovering people who look for meetings while traveling.

Kids love cookies that look like burgers 'n' fries

The end of the school year is finally near as the little ones count down to their last day. Picnics and parties round out the semester and the moms will be called upon to participate.

Be the hit of your child's classroom party by arriving with a sweet treat that resembles a hamburger.

Mini burger cookies are no-bake. There is some assembly required, however. I tripped into these cool-for-kids cookies at a party a couple of weeks ago. Julie Handley of Saginaw was nice enough to pass along her secret for a dessert that is truly out of the ordinary.

Mini Burger Cookies

Vanilla wafers
Keebler grasshopper mint cookies
1 can vanilla frosting
Shredded coconut (optional)
Food coloring

Spoon some frosting into 2 small bowls. Use the food coloring to mix orange frosting (this will become cheese) and green (this will become lettuce).

If you are a coconut fan, spoon some coconut into a small bowl and toss it with a drop or two of the green food coloring. Either the green coconut or the green frosting can be used for the lettuce on your burger cookie.

Spread a dab of orange colored frosting on the flat side of the vanilla wafer. Top it with a grasshopper cookie.

À LA ANNIE
By Annie Rouleau-Scheriff

Top the grasshopper cookie with a dab of the green colored frosting. Top it all with another vanilla wafer, flat side down.

Gently press the cookie together so the orange and green frosting seep to the edge, creating the look of a cheeseburger.

If you choose the coconut option, spread a bit of plain vanilla frosting on the grasshopper cookie and sprinkle with the green colored flakes. And spread some vanilla frosting on the flat side of the wafer before topping the burger. The extra vanilla frosting will hold the coconut layer of the cookie intact.

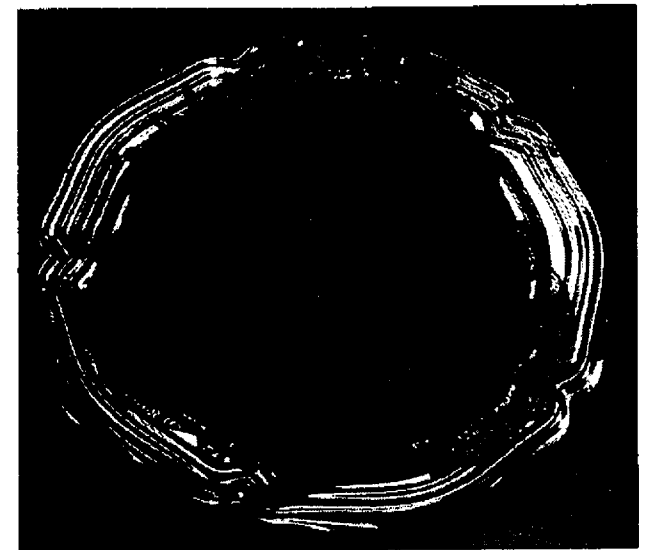

And finally, for the ultimate presentation, garnish your tray of cookie burgers with piles of potato sticks that will serve as the french fries.

I doled out cookie burgers to my friend Mattie Huddock's afternoon kindergarten class at Maire Elementary School, much to the students' delight.

Alana Wilson of Harper Woods sampled the coconut version and responded with "cool!"

Her mom, Suzy, plans to be the hit at Alana's end-of-year school party.

These tasty cookies will fly at just about any occasion. Be prepared for the "ooohs" and "aaahs." Mini burger cookies are a truly unique take on the wafers we grew up on.

Taxed to death. And beyond.

The Death Tax is killing family businesses.

92% of all Americans think the Estate Tax, which is really a Death Tax, is unfair. They know when a family business dies, a piece of their community goes with it. Lost forever, along with long-time jobs, local investment and charitable giving.

Small businesses account for over 66% of net new employment in America. To pay the Death Tax, many are forced to sell. Often to out-of-towners, who substantially reduce local labor forces.

The groundswell for repeal of the Death Tax is growing every day. Americans know there's no good reason why good businesses and strong communities should die.

Tell your Representative in Congress to vote to support Death Tax Repeal. Call 202-225-3121 today.

Let's bury the Death Tax. For good.

AA, 65 years strong, gives hope, healing to millions

When Bill W. and Dr. Bob met in Ohio on May 11, 1935, neither of them guessed that their handshake would lead to an international organization with nearly 2 million members. That organization happened through a combination of single-minded vision and happy accidents.

After Bob gained sobriety, he and Bill began sharing their Twelve Step program of recovery with alcoholics at Akron City Hospital. When one of the patients became sober, Bill and Bob could officially say that they had a support group.

Similar groups sprang up in Cleveland and New York. By 1939, 100 people counted themselves as sober by the grace of a higher power and the Twelve Steps.

It was time to give this collection of groups a formal identity and refine their operating principles. The members chose Alcoholics Anonymous for the name of their organization and for the title of the book they published.

All this happened just in time. After articles about AA appeared in the Cleveland Plain Dealer and Liberty magazine, the organization got hundreds of urgent calls for help. A service office in New York set its staff to answering phones, mailing pamphlets and distributing books.

By 1950, AA's membership was 100,000 strong and the organization staged its first international convention. Dr. Bob made his last public appearance at that event, urging his audience to "maintain the simplicity of our program."

No doubt those words will be quoted this year at AA's international convention in Minneapolis, June 29 through July 2.

AA's most recent membership survey shows how much the organization has changed over the last 65 years. The first members of the group were mostly middle-aged and older men. Today, a third of AA's members are female, and almost half are under age 50.

Behind those numbers is a legacy of social reform. Remember that in 1935, when Bill and Bob met, treatment options for alcoholics were essentially nil.

Active alcoholics lived with socially sanctioned denial of their condition. Some lost homes and jobs, landing in jail or on skid row. Others ended up in locked hospital wards with mental patients.

Dan Anderson, Hazelden's president emeritus, recalls that the conditions of those wards justified their reputation as "snake pits."

During the early 1950s, Anderson and his colleagues at Willmar State Hospital in Minnesota changed that. They unlocked the wards and started informal groups for alcoholics based on AA principles.

Eventually Willmar's program became truly interdisciplinary. Lay counselors from AA teamed up with physicians, psychologists, social workers and clergy members. The result was the "Minnesota Model," the first humane and widely replicated approach to treating alcoholics.

This way of marrying professional expertise with AA wisdom was eventually adopted by over 7,000 treatment programs.

For more than six decades, evidence of AA's effectiveness has come through anecdotal accounts of recovery, membership figures and worldwide expansion.

Today AA includes 98,710 groups with service offices in 42 countries. Now such evidence is supported by research.

One example is a 1998 Project MATCH study of alcohol treatment that compared Twelve Step Facilitation Therapy (TSF) with another approach called Motivational Enhancement Therapy (MET).

A telling difference emerged among recovering alcoholics who came from social environments that supported drinking: After three years, those in the TSF group had 83 percent abstinent days; the MET group had 66 percent.

The study also found that recovering alcoholics from these social environments had higher abstinence rates if they attended AA. This was true regardless of the initial treatment the alcoholics received.

"There is no way that I can adequately thank Alcoholics Anonymous for giving me my life," writes Hamilton B. in his book "Getting Started in AA."

"All that I can do is try to be there for other alcoholics, as recovering alcoholics were there for me in my first scary, wonderful, terrifying, exhilarating days in AA."

Karin N., sober for 12 years with the support of AA, puts it simply: "I've recovered from a seemingly hopeless state of mind and body. The sanity I've been promised has been delivered to me."

Stratford Festival's 'Hamlet' is timeless, yet contemporary

Everyone speculates on why Shakespeare's "Hamlet" is reputed to be the best known theater piece in the world. Actors, directors, critics, scholars and fans dwell — some at great length — on the enigmas of the title role and his flaws, the play's susceptibility to various interpretations and its irresistible appeal as the actors' most challenging role.

They analyze its structure exhaustively and call attention to seeming contradictions in character and plot. They note that it has been made into more movies than any other story except "Cinderella," and that it has been transposed into countless adaptations and modernized versions.

On the other hand, there is universal agreement that with his use of the soliloquy, Shakespeare firmly established what was, in his day, the revolutionary technique of character development through psychological introspection. In this way, Hamlet embodies the confidence of Renaissance humanism and anticipates the anxieties of existential doubt and modern psychoanalysis.

It makes him timeless. Performed with recognition of these qualities, the role can speak to each new generation with fresh impact.

But what is even more important in terms of theater and for an audience, is that Hamlet is really a great ghost story, filled with suspense, humor, revenge, exciting action and human strife. The enigmas are recognizable as the kind of mysteries we face in real life. The drama captures the imagination.

And that is what Paul Gross as Hamlet, and Joseph Ziegler as his director have emphasized in this summer's revival of the Prince of Denmark at Stratford.

It is, in fact, a performance that drives the message home. Gone is the declamatory style of the "great" actor delivering the famous speeches. Restored are the many supporting scenes that are usually cut to keep the show at a standard length.

Gross is every bit a Hamlet or today. He blends energy and action to the performance that fulfills and even enhances the meaning and emotion of the words.

Already in Scene 2, in his first soliloquy — Oh, that this too, too solid flesh would melt, thaw, and resolve itself into a dew — the approach is powerfully effective. He falls to the stage, sobs uncontrollably and delivers the lines haltingly, through tears with overwhelming impact.

Here, clearly, is a soul under stress, a mind in precarious balance. The anguish that we endure with Hamlet throughout the play, because it is an essential theme of his character, is firmly established.

He is contemporary, too, in terms of his style of delivery. It is conversational and modern in accent and pace, only subliminally enhanced by the cadences and occasional rhymes of Shakespeare's blank verse. Moreover, the delivery of the lines is clear and easy to understand. Along with achieving great

State of the Arts

By Alex Suczek

in a voice that sounds almost casual, like any son to his mom. It is startling and funny. It is also strikingly natural.

It is only one example of many odd situations in the play that generate laughter, either nervous or genuinely hearty. They come as welcome relief of tension and they heighten the impact of the building tragedy. Again, the performance helps to mirror the ironies of real life.

There is another facet to Hamlet that can be interpreted from the entire context of the play, but is nowhere overt in the lines. It is important because it makes the role more understandable and believable. Gross brings out that Hamlet is the adoring impression of vacillation through unexplained indecision which must then be chalked up to character flaw.

And Gross is not a star alone. Juan Chioran delivers a stunning triple play. He is easily one of the most imposing ghosts to walk the battlements since Shakespeare himself played the role. Then, as the Player King, he is a superb foil in Hamlet's scheme to trick Claudius into revealing his guilt as murderer of Hamlet's father. And he wins the audience's hearts as the grave digger who introduces Hamlet to "poor" Yorrick's skull. His characterizations are so effective that it's necessary to check the program to be sure he really played all three.

The benefits of a resource-rich company are further demonstrated by Benedict Campbell's Claudius, submerging his guilt in his villainy; Domini Blyth as Hamlet's mother, excruciatingly torn between self indulgence and motherly love; and Jerry Franklin playing Polonius with discreet restraint, pompous enough, yet self-consciously aware.

Behind the scenes, fight director John Stead coached Hamlet and Laertes in a first-rate fatal fencing match. It brings the tragedy to a genuinely moving conclusion.

So for all the times that this remarkable, brilliant play has been produced, here is a production that by unexcelled stage craft and keeping up with changing times and attitudes, teaches us many new and inspiring things about a timeless work of art. It is definitely worth seeing.

It is especially rewarding to see a performance using a script that appears to be as complete and true to the three competing originals as good scholarship allows. Based on this performance, it is also very good theater.

Hamlet plays in repertory at the Festival Theatre through November 5. For a schedule, visitors guide and reservations, call (800) 567-1600.

A trying season has a fine finish for ULS tennis team

By Chuck Klonke
Sports Editor

All's well that ends well. That's an appropriate description for University Liggett School's boys tennis season.

"This was a trying season," said coach Bob Wood after the Knights finished the year by giving Wood his 26th state championship in 35 years of coaching boys tennis at the school.

"We had two juniors who were on last year's state championship who decided not to come back and early on that had a negative effect on the team. We had thought that with so many kids returning, this could be a special year — one where we'd be one of the top three or four teams in the state." But that wasn't to be. Wood, who has won state titles in five decades, had to do some experimenting, especially with his doubles teams.

Usually the team is set when it returns from its annual spring trip to Florida, but Wood said there were a lot of questions left unanswered when the team returned north. ULS struggled in its weekend tournaments and the Knights won only three dual meets during the regular season.

"We had some rough moments but the kids who filled the voids improved tremendously throughout the year," Wood said. "They deserve a lot of credit for overcoming something that had never happened before to the ULS tennis program.

"The kids kept a positive attitude, even though some of them lost seven and eight matches in a row. They never gave up and kept coming back."

Shortly before the regional tournament, Wood gave his annual speech to the team.

"I always tell them, 'trust the schedule,'" he said. "Losing more than you win can be difficult but it prepares our team for the regional and state tournaments."

As usual, ULS had little trouble in the regional. And last weekend in the Division IV state meet at Kalamazoo College, the Knights finished with 31 points to 26 for runner-up Ann Arbor Greenhills.

ULS swept the four singles flights behind Aaron Shumaker, Alex Conti, J.D. Spina and Soudy Kazzi, with the latter three defending their state titles. The No. 1 doubles team of Hunter Huth and Vinay Pallegar also won its flight. Pallegar was part of the winning No. 2 doubles team in 1999.

Wood called the 6-3, 7-6 (7-4) semifinal win by Huth and Pallegar over Greenhills' team of Chris Huey and Aaron Goldstein the turning point of

Two South doubles teams rule the state

By Chuck Klonke
Sports Editor

Folks often say that the state high school tournament is a new season.

That was never more evident than at this year's Division I boys tennis tournament in Midland where Grosse Pointe South took third place thanks to the efforts of its three doubles teams.

The Blue Devils' first two doubles teams — Richard Marsh and Brian Gorski at No. 1 and Ezra Bertakis and Jim Alexander at No. 2 — won state championships and the second doubles team of John Fodell and Justin Isbell advanced to the semifinals before losing.

South's 17-point total edged Ann Arbor Pioneer by a point.

Birmingham Brother Rice defended its team championship with 27 points to 21 for Redford Catholic Central. It was the second straight third-place finish for South.

"I think a lot of people were surprised that we did as well as we did," said Blue Devils coach Joe Fodell.

If there was a surprise to some, it came from the No. 1 doubles team of Marsh and Gorski, who went into the tournament unseeded.

"They lost some matches during the year, but even though they were unseeded, I think they thought all along that they could win," coach Fodell said.

It was the third straight win at first doubles for South and the second for Marsh, only a sophomore, who teamed with John Berschback a year ago to win the state title.

Marsh and Gorski got rolling with a 6-3, 6-3 win over Rochester's Mark Garcia and John Drake.

Their second match of the tournament was the key one as the South pair knocked off top-doubles team of Marsh and

North junior wins first singles crown

By Chuck Klonke
Sports Editor

Grosse Pointe North's tennis program got a huge boost last fall when Anthony Stefani returned to the school for his junior year.

And last week, Stefani lived up to expectations by winning the first singles flight in the Division II state championships at Michigan State University.

"From the quarterfinals up the matches were all very difficult, tougher than the final scores would indicate," said Stefani, who spent last year at a tennis academy in Naples, Fla. "I had to play very well to win."

Stefani is one of the top ten-the tournament.

"Greenhills' strength was in doubles — they won the second and third flights — so it was a big win for us," Wood said. "It was a two-point win because it advanced us to the final, where we also won, and kept them from getting another point."

Huth and Pallegar followed that effort with a 6-4, 4-6, 7-5 win over top-seeded Dave Price and Ben Wolfe of Spring Lake in the championship match.

Huth and Pallegar also won early-round matches against Armada 6-3, 6-4 and Muskegon Catholic Central 6-4, 7-6 (8-6).

"They played their best tennis — like a lot of our kids did — in the state finals, which is a coach's dream," Wood said.

Shumaker beat top-seeded Trevor McLeod of Kalamazoo Hackett 6-2, 5-7, 6-4 in the championship match at No. 1 singles to avenge his 6-1, 6-3 loss to McLeod in last year's semifinal round at first singles.

Shumaker, seeded second, beat Brandon Kelly of Grand Rapids West Catholic 6-0, 6-0; breezed past Armada's Rob Girvan 6-0, 6-1 and came from behind in the semifinals to defeat Ryan Coward of Buchanan 3-6, 6-0, 6-3.

Conti didn't lose a game in his first three matches at No. 2 singles and finally defeated Buchanan's Brycen Coward 6-2, 6-0 in the title match.

Spina's road to the championship was only slightly tougher. He won his first match 6-1, 6-0, then beat Josh Pergande of Essexville-Garber 6-1, 6-4; defeated Fernando Rivas of Parchment 6-2, 6-3 in the semifinals; and won the flight with a 6-4, 6-1 win over Dustin Collins of Buchanan.

Kazzi beat Greenhills' Faris Jafar 6-4, 6-0 in the championship match at fourth singles. Earlier, he beat Almont's Joe Bigger 6-2, 6-4; defeated Chris Phillips of Ovid-Elsie 6-4, 6-3 and downed Ryan Gowen of Buchanan 6-0, 6-4.

ULS just missed a chance to win six of the seven flights when the second doubles team of Sean Griffin and Parth Venkat lost a pair of 7-6 tiebreakers to the Greenhills team of Mike Hamb and Kevin Loh.

"They had the best season, record-wise, of any of our doubles teams," Wood said. "They had a terrific year."

Griffin and Venkat won their first three matches in straight sets, including a 6-1, 6-4 win over Spring Lake's Chad Dushane and Zac Lahrman in the semifinals.

The third doubles team of Jose Carrion and Aron Ellis also gave ULS a couple of points by winning its second-round match 6-3, 6-2 after a first-round bye. Carrion and Ellis then lost a three-set match in the quarterfinals to Parchment's Darrick Gregory and Marc Chappell.

The championship, ULS' second straight and sixth in the last seven seasons, was a national record 33rd for the school.

"They won the first one in 1933 and my dad played on that team," Wood said.

Since Bob Wood has been coaching, the Knights won three titles in the 1960s, eight apiece in the 1970s and 1980s and six in the decade of the 1990s. Now the new millennium starts with another championship.

Wood summed up the season by saying "it was a happy ending after a not so happy start."

Stefani

nis players in the Midwest in his age group. He said that his heavy USTA tournament schedule was a big help at the state finals.

"It helped me tremendously," Stefani said. "I knew all the other players from the tournaments. I've either played them myself or watched them play. There weren't any strangers."

Stefani, who was seeded No. 1 in the first singles flight, drew a first-round bye, then defeated Jared Flick of Muskegon Mona Shores 6-1, 6-4 in his first match.

He beat Steve Srivastava of East Lansing 6-2, 6-3 in the quarterfinals; defeated Mike Brown of Portage Central 6-4, 6-4 in the semifinals and clinched his first state high school championship with a 6-4, 6-2 win over Vinny Gossain of Okemos.

Brown and Gossain were the third and second seeds, respectively, in the flight.

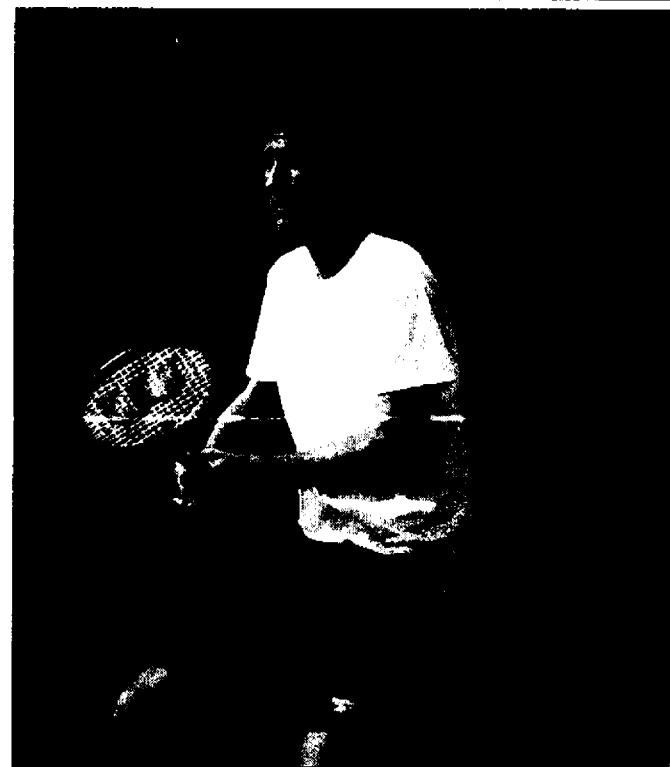

"The problem with being the top seed is that everybody wants to beat you," Stefani said. "They raise their game another level, so you have to make sure that you play your best, too."

Stefani had to overcome some adversity on his way to the state championship. Two years ago he broke both hips in a freak tae kwon do accident.

"I never had any doubts that I could play competitive tennis again, but I lost a year of training so that was something of a setback," he said.

One of Stefani's North teammates also won a match at the state tournament.

Steve Brooks beat Chris Thackberry of Garden City 4-6, 6-2, 6-2 in his second round match at No. 3 singles after drawing a bye in the opening round.

Grosse Pointe North junior Anthony Stefani won the first singles championship at last weekend's Division I state boys tennis tournament at Michigan State University.

ULS lacrosse team beats Country Day

University Liggett School's girls lacrosse team wrapped up its regular season with an 18-12 victory over Detroit Country Day.

Senior captain Emily Bond led the Knights with five goals and an assist to boost her season totals to 55 goals and five assists.

Clare Burchi scored a career-high four goals and picked up an assist and Dusty Taylor and Mary Corona added three goals apiece. Celeste Hubbard's two goals and one by Kay-Kay Uhde completed the ULS scoring.

Freshman goalkeeper Dawn Espy made nine saves.

The outstanding defensive play of Jeanifer Parsigian, Shyla Kinhal, Hubbard, Chris Sims, Jessica Moorman and Adrienne Fragatos kept the Knights on top throughout the game.

Earlier, ULS beat Grosse Pointe North 12-6 with Bond again scoring five goals.

Taylor and Corona scored two apiece and Uhde, Burchi and Parsigian tallied one each. Espy made 13 saves for the Knights.

Corona was second on the ULS squad with 33 goals and four assists, while Taylor had 31 goals and seven assists.

Burchi, who led the team with 11 assists, scored 17 goals. Uhde had eight goals and six assists. Hubbard finished with seven goals and two assists. Lhontu Lockridge collected six goals and two assists and Sims finished with five goals and two assists. Parsigian had one goal and Crystal Ellis had an assist.

Espy made 129 saves in 12 games and Sara Dunbar stopped 31 shots in six games.

North wins

Mark Seppala scored three goals and had an assist to lead Grosse Pointe North's boys lacrosse team to an 11-6 state quarterfinal victory over Notre Dame Prep.

Alex Thomas and Matt Coleman each scored two goals and Andrew Ellis, Jeff Hiller, Tim Bozell and Jeff Dinverno added one apiece.

Brendan Fossee collected four assists, while Hiller, Josh Dry and Dinverno had one apiece. Goalie Don Northey made 21 saves.

seeded Carl Hinshaw and Paul Villalba of Brother Rice 1-6, 7-6 (8-6), 6-4.

Marsh and Gorski followed that effort with a 6-3, 6-3 win over Catholic Central's Jeff Fleszar and Rob Sparks in the semifinals and a 6-3, 6-4 win over Port Huron Northern's Jashan Valjee and Nick Ernst in the championship match.

"The quarterfinal match was the big one," Joe Fodell said. "They were behind 5-2 in the second set and came back to tie it at 6-all. Once they did that, you could see their confidence grow. After that, they felt they could do it."

Marsh and Gorski had lost a similar match to the Brother Rice team when they met earlier in the year.

It was also revenge time for the No. 2 doubles team of Bertakis and Alexander. They came into the tournament as the fourth seed and they beat the top-seeded Brother Rice team of Craig and Chris Brede 4-6, 6-2, 6-3 in the semifinals.

"Ezra and Jim lost a three-set match to the Rice kids earlier in the year but that was their first match together," coach Fodell said. "We felt they would do better this time because they've played together for a while now and this match was on a neutral court."

"They played more consistently this time. They didn't overplay the tough points. They didn't try to make the perfect shot, which they have to guard against. They just kept their cool."

Bertakis and Alexander capped their championship with a 5-7, 7-6 (7-1), 6-4 win over Patrick Fay and David Toronto of Pioneer.

"I didn't tell them that their final match against Pioneer was for third place (in the team standings)," coach Fodell said. "I figured they had enough pressure on them without them knowing they had to win to give the team third place."

"It was a great match. You could sense the momentum shifting with each point."

Bertakis and Alexander, who finished 17-2, began the state tournament with a 6-1, 6-3 victory over Jim Dailey and John Riley of Ann Arbor Huron, then beat Zac Flynn and Alden Hoksbergen of Holland West (Ottawa 6-0, 6-2 in the quarterfinals.

The third doubles team of John Fodell and Isbell was seeded second and won its first two matches before losing to Evan Levine and Sean Martin of Pioneer 6-4, 6-3 in the semifinals. Levine and Martin went on to win the flight.

"John and Justin had beaten the Pioneer kids earlier in the year, but I think the nerves of playing in their first state championship might have gotten to them," said Joe Fodell, who is John's father.

"That was only their second loss in 19 matches together. Their other loss was to Brother Rice (which was the flight runner-up). This was the first year starting on the varsity for both of them, so they did well."

Fodell and Isbell beat Trenton's Brett Sebastian and Arthur Switzer 6-1, 6-1 in their first match, then defeated Jacob Kuiper and Andy Bush of Grand Blanc 6-3, 7-5 in the quarterfinals.

Joe Fodell said that the three doubles teams had only been together for about two-thirds of the season.

"We did some experimenting early in the year," he said. "These (pairings) were comfortable with each other. Their personalities and their games matched well. They kept jelling all the way through the season."

"I wanted to put together as strong a group of doubles teams as we could because we weren't tremendously strong in singles this year."

But the Blue Devils got points from Blake Willmarth at No. 1 singles and Scott Dansbury at No. 3.

Willmarth, seeded third, beat Josh Efros of West Bloomfield 6-1, 6-2 in his first match, then lost to Saline's Chris Mitchell, the fifth seed, 6-1, 6-1.

"Mitchell just played a great match," Joe Fodell said.

Dansbury started out with a 5-7, 6-1, 6-3 win over Jackson's Tom Christy but lost in the quarterfinals to Matt Christian of Brother Rice 6-1, 6-1.

"Scott had a big three-set win for us in the first round," coach Fodell said. "He had to play an aggressive match."

North thumbs South out of state tourney

By Chuck Klonke
Sports Editor

It takes more than a dislocated thumb to get Brian Bigham out of the lineup for Grosse Pointe North's baseball team.

"It happened in the game against Sterling Heights (a week earlier)," said North coach Frank Sumner after Bigham contributed a couple of key run-scoring hits to the Norsemen's 6-2 victory over Grosse Pointe South in the Division I district championship game hosted by North. "We set it on the field, then sent him for x-rays, which were negative, but there was some ligament damage. He didn't swing a bat until Friday and then we decided to try it with a wiffle ball."

Bigham didn't feel any pain after taking a dozen swings against the wiffle ball, so he took batting practice against assistant coach Darren Audia and hit a ball over the left field fence.

That assured both Bigham and Sumner that the senior first baseman would be able to play in Saturday's district games.

"I wanted him to sleep well Friday night," Sumner said. "I wanted him thinking that he could play. That's why we didn't wait until Saturday to test it. Mentally, it was more important to know he could play without pain.

"He had a couple of at bats against Kettering (in the first game of the district) and I didn't even talk to him about playing in the South game. He had two big hits and almost hit a home run to dead center but (Andrew) Vlasak made a great catch."

Toughness is a trait that runs in the Bigham family. Brian's sister Beth, who is expected to be one of the starting guards on the girls basketball team this fall, suffered a serious knee injury while playing for her AAU team.

The early prognosis was that she might miss most of the season, but her rehab is ahead of schedule and she could be ready in time for the season opener.

The championship game against South was scoreless until the Norsemen broke through for a run in the third inning.

Rob Higbee doubled and after two groundouts, Scott Koerber was walked intentionally. Bigham followed with his RBI single.

South tied the game in the fourth on doubles by Mark Peppeler and Sean McLeod, but North got all the runs it needed in the fifth when the Norsemen scored four times.

Phil Kozlowski and Koerber

each singled with one out and Bigham broke the tie with an RBI double. Bill Dickerman followed with a run-scoring single. With runners on first and third, North completed a successful double steal. The final run scored on a bases-loaded walk to Brian Vandenbergh.

The Norsemen increased their lead to 6-1 in the sixth on a walk to Kozlowski, a single by Koerber and an error on a ball hit by Dickerman.

South picked up a run in the seventh when Chris Getz singled, Rob Starrs reached base on an error and Adam Novak bounced into a double play.

"Give Koerber credit," said South coach Dan Griesbaum.

"He mixed his pitches well and threw his changeup exceptionally well. He had our hitters off balance. He's an outstanding kid but as an opposing coach, I'm glad to see him graduate."

South stranded two runners each in the first, third, fourth and fifth innings.

Both North and South had easy times against Detroit Public School League opponents in their district semifinal games.

North trounced Kettering 20-1 and put the game away with a nine-run first inning.

The Norsemen got rolling with back-to-back triples by Steve Hardin and Kozlowski. Koerber drove in a run with a groundout. Bigham had an RBI single and Higbee and Hardin each hit two-run singles to highlight the big frame.

North added four more runs in the fourth with two scoring on Carlo Cardani's home run.

Cardani also had a two-run single in the game and finished with four RBIs. Hardin had two hits and three RBIs.

Michael Kasiborski pitched five innings and struck out 12. The only hit he allowed was a home run by Edwin Carter. Kasiborski is now 9-2.

North tuned up for the tournament with a 12-5 win over Eisenhower.

Hardin had two hits, including a bases-loaded triple, and five RBIs. Koerber had two hits, one a double, and drove in three runs.

Koerber was the winning pitcher but Kasiborski and Higbee also saw action on the mound.

North takes a 26-8 record into Saturday's regional semifinal against Stevenson at 12:30 p.m. on the Norsemen's home field.

De La Salle and Detroit King play at 10 a.m. The winners meet in the championship game at 3 p.m.

South edges North in extra-inning final

Grosse Pointe South's softball team took the shutout route to a Division I district championship last week but the two games were as different as night and day.

It took eight innings for the Blue Devils to nip Grosse Pointe North 1-0 in the championship game. By contrast, the 11-0 semifinal win over Detroit Finney was ended by a mercy rule after five innings.

In the win over North, which was typical of the state tournament battles between the two crosstown rivals, South's Betsey Schmitt went the distance and scattered six hits. She struck out only one but had excellent support in the field from her teammates.

Betsey's twin sister Allie started the winning rally in the bottom of the eighth with a two-out single. Katie Van Lith moved her to third with a hit down the right field line and she scored on Dana Etheridge's single up the middle.

Lawren Morawski, Colleen Trybus, Allie Schmitt, Etheridge and Monica Regan each had singles.

Betsey Schmitt gave up one hit, a walk and struck out three in three innings. Abel closed out the game with two strikeouts in two innings.

North girls win soccer district title

The Norsemen outscored their opponents 13-1, capping the tournament with a 5-1 victory over a strong Anchor Bay squad.

North also posted a 5-0 win over Lake Shore and a 3-0 victory against L'Anse Creuse on the way to its third straight district championship.

North clearly commanded all three games, which were played at its home field. The Norsemen set the pace and style of the game early in all three contests.

L'Anse Creuse started the second game of the series very strong and aggressive, but after only a couple of minutes, North was winning nearly every loose ball and controlled the play and field for the rest of the game, outshooting the Lancers 33-3. L'Anse Creuse didn't get a shot on goal until 28 minutes into the game.

North continued to attack throughout the game, but converted on only three attempts. North put pressure on the goal from all the forward, midfield and even defensive positions, including five shots each from seniors Julie Laethem and Kristen Japowicz. North's bench played an important part in keeping the pressure on in the 85-degree heat.

Anchor Bay took the opening kickoff of the final game, very aggressively charging to North's goal in hopes of setting the tempo of the game and getting an early goal. North's defense double teamed the attacker, stripped the ball, made a clean pass to Desiree Michaels at midfield who one-touched it to Katie Myers. Myers carried the ball part way up the midfield, laying off a precise running pass to Leah Cherf, who was charging towards the goal. Cherf was fouled just as she took the pass, setting up a 30-yard direct penalty kick for North. Michaels sent a perfect shot over the defenders and keeper into the far corner of the net, putting North on the scoreboard with only 40 seconds off the clock.

The first 40 seconds set the stage for the rest of the game, with North shutting down the Tars' strong midfield and forwards, forcing mostly weak shots which keeper Meredith Farmer handled easily. North's goals were well distributed throughout the game, breaking at halftime with a 3-0 lead.

Erica Muncy took a nice forward pass from Myers to put the ball into the right corner of the box for the second goal. Michaels repeated her penalty kick goal for the third.

In the second half, midfielder Kelly Harrell took another Myers pass to make it 4-0. Leah Cherf took a Harrell pass to put the fifth goal on the board. Amy Socia led the defense, rapidly running down attackers, adeptly stripping the ball away and launching counterattacks with nicely placed passes up to midfield and the wings.

Anchor Bay never eased up, but it could not mount a dangerous attack until the last minute of the game when the Tars managed to make a nice cross in close quarters and a quick re-direct into the goal. Because of a mix-up with the official clock, the Anchor Bay goal was scored after the game should have ended, so North's very capable defense actually shutout all three teams in the district.

Coach Chip Stencel got dependable support from his deep bench for much of the game. Senior Katie Verb always brings explosive energy and enthusiasm off the bench.

Verb stopped just about any play coming through the right midfield and launched fast counter attacks up the wing.

North has been playing with great confidence, which Stencel feels is the major difference in their dramatically improved play in the latter half of this season.

"Somewhere along the line they gained confidence as a team and have been playing better individually and together," he said. "They absolutely take charge in the first 10 or 20 minutes, and then they don't let go. They've really pushed the pace of the game up too. They attack from the opening whistle, attack quickly and keep attacking through the whole game."

"Our transitions are quick and the entire team participates in the attack. We're using the whole field, and since our home field tends to be larger than others, we've learned to use it to our advantage."

Stencel has enjoyed a great season with a good record and much pleasure watching a lot of individual talent and determination turn into a very exciting team to watch, and is also look forward to next year.

"The whole team is great, and the girls that have been the biggest factor this season, Leah Cherf, Katie Myers, Desiree Michaels and Kelly Japowicz are all underclassmen, as is our outstanding goal keeper, Meredith Farmer," he said. "Most of our very able defense will be back next year, too."

Knights slip past Lutheran North in district title game

By Chuck Klonke
Sports Editor

Kym Shortreed has scored only two goals for University Liggett School's soccer team this year but one of them might be the Knights' most important of the season.

"It was certainly the biggest goal of her career," said ULS coach David Backhurst after Shortreed's tally with about 22 minutes remaining broke a 2-2 tie and gave the Knights a 3-2 victory over Lutheran North in the championship game of the Division IV district hosted by the Knights.

Shortreed got the start at forward in place of Keisha Bahadu, who was in Grand Rapids for the state track championships.

"She made a great run toward the goal and took a perfectly-placed shot inside the post," Backhurst said. "Then we held on for the rest of the game."

ULS was also missing midfielder Beth Sanders, who was injured in a scrimmage against Regina last week.

"Beth has played about 98 percent of the time and has done a great job for us," Backhurst said. "She practiced on Sunday and hopefully she'll be able to play in the regional."

ULS had beaten North twice during the Metro Conference season, including a 4-0 victory the week before to wrap up the league championship.

"From that game to this game, it was like two different North teams," Backhurst said. "They had nothing to play for in the earlier game, but this time they came out all fired up. If they beat us it would make their season. We were flat and they had us back on our heels."

Nine minutes into the game one of the ULS defenders missed a tackle and a Mustangs player broke in on the goal. Knights goalkeeper Caitlin Cory came out to make the play but accidentally clipped the North player, resulting in a penalty kick that the Mustangs converted.

Less than five minutes later, ULS tied the game. The Knights had a long free kick that went to Katie Danaher. North's defense backed off and Danaher moved in toward the 30-yard line and ripped a hard shot into the net.

The tie was short-lived as the Mustangs regained the lead during a goalmouth scramble after a corner kick. During the play, Cory pulled a hamstring and had to leave the game. She was replaced for the rest of the first half by Alex Brown but Cory returned for the second half.

With 19 minutes left in the first half, Lauren Ealba scored on a shot from 25 yards out. "It was a perfect shot," Backhurst said. "She buried it in the upper right corner where no goalkeeper could stop it."

Backhurst felt that the Knights were fortunate to be tied 2-2 at halftime and he let the team know it during the intermission.

"I prevailed on them to play harder," he said. "We lost a lot of 50-50 balls in the first half."

We played much better in the second half."

Both ULS and North had an easy time in their semifinal games. The Knights rolled past Lutheran East 10-0 and the Mustangs posted an 8-0 win over Warren Bethesda.

In ULS' victory, Lauren Ealba and Danaher each scored three times and Erin Ealba had two goals. Betsy D'Arcy and Milie Tompkins rounded out the Knights' scoring.

ULS wrapped up the championship in the Metro Conference with the 4-0 win over Lutheran North.

"It was a game we had to win to clinch the title and they were locked into fourth place in the conference," Backhurst said.

By halftime, the Knights had a 3-0 lead. Lauren Ealba opened the scoring 13 minutes into the contest. Two minutes later, Danaher scored and seven minutes later, ULS got a goal from Bahadu.

Erin Ealba tallied the only goal of the second half. The Knights finished the game with a 21-5 edge in shots.

ULS closed out the regular season with a 6-5 non-league loss to Farmington Hills Mercy. "That was one of the most amazing games I've been a

Erin Ealba took a pass from Sanders and opened the scoring for ULS only five minutes into the game. But Mercy came back with three goals in the next 15 minutes to lead 3-1.

"I think they were thinking blowout, but with four minutes left in the half, Lauren Ealba stepped up huge for us again and made it 3-2," Backhurst said.

Early in the second half, Bahadu tied the game at 3-3 and 15 minutes later, Erin Ealba sent a corner kick to Danaher, who scored to give the Knights a 4-3 advantage.

With seven minutes left in the game, Mercy scored off a nice crossing pass to make it 4-4, but two minutes later Bahadu passed to Lauren Ealba, who put ULS back on top.

"There were only five minutes to go, but we were totally exhausted," Backhurst said. "That's what happens when we play these bigger schools who have a deeper bench than we do. But I think the tough competition helped us in our tournament game with Lutheran North."

Mercy scored twice in the final 3:25 to post the come-from-behind win.

Get On The Road To Good Health

The stresses of work — phone calls, faxes, appointments, mailings, meetings — finally are behind you, now that you're on the golf course, basking in sunlight, fresh air and the soothing expanse of green. Call it an escape, a pastime, an effect of being a golf bum, but don't call it off — this relaxing recreation is fulfilling an essential requirement of good health.

To be in good health is to maintain balance not only physically, but emotionally and nutritionally as well. Whatever the activity — be it golfing, gardening or reading a book — participating in something you enjoy is integral to your emotional well-being and overall health. Regular exercise also is important. A good exercise routine combines a cardiovascular workout (for the heart) with a strength-building workout for the muscles. Weight training is a popular strength-building activity, and is most beneficial to physical health when accompanied by a cardiovascular workout, like running or walking. While good physical health may be the most rewarding benefit of maintaining a regular exercise program, the trim waistline and lean body that you'll achieve in the process may prove just as great a reward, if not an incentive to keep at it.

As for nutrition, there's truth in the adage, "You are what you eat." A balanced diet is key to balanced health.

So, go easy on the sweets and fats, drink plenty of water, and

eat those fruits and vegetables. A glass of milk, thanks to the calcium and other beneficial nutrients, helps to keep bones and teeth strong,

Success And Hope For The Young

Almost two years after beginning a nationwide movement on behalf of the nation's children and youth, General Colin Powell recently said great strides are being made to point our nation's youth in the right direction.

Gen. Powell chairs America's Promise, The Alliance for Youth, a national crusade that works to build and strengthen the character and competence of the country's youth.

"We can turn back the rising tide of school dropouts, illiteracy, drug addiction, teen pregnancy, juvenile crime and gang violence," Gen. Powell said. "In the process, we will recover our sense of community, and feel that we are once again a nation of caring neighbors."

Alliance partners in America's Promise include Big Brothers Big Sisters of America, the United Way of America, the Boys & Girls Clubs of America, Girl Scouts of the United States, The Catholic Network of Volunteer Service, 100 Black Men of America, Junior Achievement and The Salvation Army.

Here are some ways that America's Promise and its Alliance partners are making a difference in the lives of today's youth:

- IBM's commitment is to provide technology and technical services to more than 2,500 health and human-service nonprofit agencies that will directly benefit more than 25 million young people by the year 2000.

- Lion's Clubs International distributed, free of charge, thousands of its award-winning motivational youth volunteer video, "The Future Is Ours... So Now What?" to middle and high schools throughout the country.

- 100 Black Men of America is mentoring 120,000 young people, recently doubling its mentoring relationships nationwide.

Where Can Parents Turn Natural Alternatives For Hyperactivity And Dyslexia

Many parents are reluctant to give their children prescriptions like Ritalin because of the many side effects, including stunted growth. Dr. Richard Podell, M.D., a clinical professor at the Robert Wood Johnson Medical School of the UMD in N.J., believes many of these children have serious nutritional disturbances. "Sugar lowers the nutritional quality of the diet and may aggravate other food intolerance," he says. In fact, several studies have documented the following:

- Attention Deficit Hyperactivity Disorder (ADHD) has reached epidemic proportions in the United States.

- As pediatrician Dr. Benjamin Feingold observed, many hyperactive children became excited after eating foods high in salicylates like apples, berries, oranges, tomatoes and tea.

- British researchers found that 80 percent of the children with ADHD had apparent food sensitivities, which caused hyperactivity. Top allergies were traced to products made from cow's milk, wheat, soy and eggs.

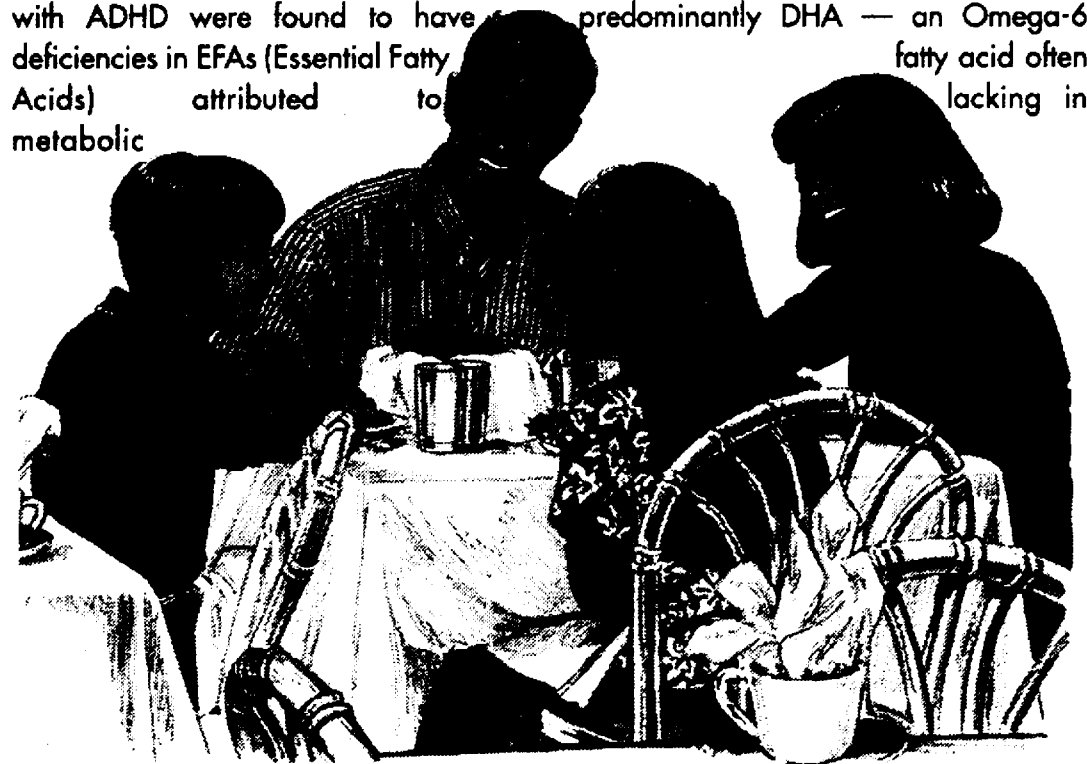

The Green Turtle Bay Vitamin Co. recently addressed these conditions through a salicylate-free, chewable multi-vitamin called Maple Melts™ and an Omega blend, Signal 369™.

In a study at Purdue University, children with ADHD were found to have deficiencies in EFAs (Essential Fatty Acids) attributed to metabolic

Food Supplement May Help Focus

It's not easy for kids to remain focused on their school work. But for children with Attention Deficit Disorder or Attention Deficit Hyperactivity Disorder (ADD/ADHD), it's even more difficult.

As many as five percent of United States schoolchildren have this condition, which is the most common behavioral disorder of childhood. Statistically, that can translate to an average of one child in every class of 20 students. These children are often very bright but have great difficulty concentrating, remaining focused on the task at hand, and are easily distracted. They also may act on inappropriate impulses, and are more likely to have sleep problems, poor motor coordination and suffer from dyslexia. ADD affects a sizeable portion of the adult population as well.

But a rapidly growing body of clinical evidence, including findings recently presented at a meeting of the National Institute of Mental Health (NIMH), suggests that some children with ADD/ADHD may derive nutritional benefits from an all-natural dietary supplement: Efalex. Efalex is for the dietary management of fatty acid deficiency.

Researchers believe that some children with ADD/ADHD are unable to process adequate Essential Fatty Acids (EFA) from their diet, and may develop a chronic deficiency of nutrients necessary for normal brain and eye function. Approximately 20-30 percent of children and adults with ADD also suffer from dyslexia.

To learn more about how Efalex may benefit someone with ADD/ADHD, call toll free 1-888-332-6651. Or visit the Efalex Internet site: www.efamol.com. Efalex, which is produced by EfaMol Inc., is available at most pharmacies, including Wal-Mart, Rite-Aid, Revco, Eckerd, Walgreen's, CVS Pharmacy, Kerr Drug, Hammaford, and many others.

disturbances. When Omega-3 and Omega-6 were introduced, behavior improved, as well as symptoms like skin and hair dryness, brittle nails, and excessive thirst. A recent study of dyslexics reported in the medical journal,

Students Get Chance To Advance

Students who bring extraordinary energy, enthusiasm and a unique vision to a working enterprise, have once again been recognized and rewarded by two corporations that have joined forces with a national nonprofit organization.

Last year's winner of the Chance to Advance grand prize was Jon Patrick Wagner-Holtz, a 17-year-old senior at Mission Viejo High School in Mission Viejo, California. Jon is the founder of Kids Connected, a national organization that serves as a support group for young people who have a parent with cancer.

According to James B. Hayes, CEO of Junior Achievement, "Jon's efforts exemplified the true essence of entrepreneurialism."

As grand prize winner, Jon received a $50,000 college scholarship. Four finalists received $5,000 college scholarships and 10 semi-finalists were awarded $500 each.

The contest was created and sponsored by McDonald's®—the largest global food service retailer—and Hasbro®—the maker of the Monopoly board game—as part of the The Monopoly Game at McDonald's prize promotion.

A panel of industry leaders assisted in judging each submission in the categories of innovation, creativity, excellence, financial performance and vision.

Junior Achievement, Inc.—the world's largest and fastest growing economic education organization—conducted the contest. The organization links schools and the business community to help students better understand and be better prepared for the world of business. It relies heavily on volunteers from the business community for its programs. The volunteers share their experiences with the students and serve as role models.

Educational programs begin as early as kindergarten, addressing topics like personal economics. Middle school programs address money management and savings techniques as well as the practical aspects of credit and loan applications. By high school, the programs focus on problem solving, management skills and teamwork.

For more information on the Chance to Advance contest or how Junior Achievement can help students prepare for the business world or to volunteer, call 1-800-THE NEW JA or write JA National Headquarters, One Education Way, Colorado Springs, CO 80906. Visit the JA Web site at www.ja.org or contact the nearest Junior Achievement office.

Teens Talk Their Way To Better Grades

Although talking in school is generally frowned upon, many young adults have found that by using speech recognition products, they may talk their way into better school grades.

"Dragon has a product that's not only appealing to parents but also fun to use and can make teenagers positively eloquent without their ever having to type a word," said Chris Shipley, editor and publisher of the Demo Letter, a newsletter for executives and leading thinkers in personal-technology related companies.

Built with the help of school districts, educators, parents and students, one speech recognition system has been specially tailored to the needs and interests of young adults. Dragon's "NaturallySpeaking for Teens" was created to help the creative process by letting students focus on the content of their work, instead of the typing process. Homework can be done faster by eliminating the need to type.

This innovative product features a teen-friendly user interface, which makes it even more fun to use E-mail packages and chat room software. It also features a large vocabulary (more than 230,000 words) and innovative voice models tailored to young adults.

"Dragon's 'NaturallySpeaking for Teens' gives adults a choice gift for the holidays or any other gift-giving occasion. It is not a violent game, which some parents may appreciate. It is more fun and cooler than many reference and utility products. Teens find it valuable year-round," said Roger Matus, vice president of marketing for Dragon Systems.

Planning Your Child's Education

Parents with young children who think that a college education is expensive now may be in for a rude awakening: in 15-20 years it may be even more costly than they imagine.

A report by the New York based Council for Aid to Education (CAE), an independent subsidiary of RAND, forecasts a dramatic funding shortfall in higher education over the next 20 years that may eventually price out some seven million prospective students. That means that effectively half of those who want to pursue a college or university education in the year 2015 will be unable to.

"Student demand, tuition and costs are rising much faster than public funding," said CAE's president Roger Benjamin. "The current trend is unsustainable."

If many politicians and university administrators seem ambivalent about this, though, it's because for the first time in years public colleges and universities are enjoying some real budget increases-6 percent last year and 11.5 percent over the last two. But the more sobering news, according to CAE, is that today's increases barely bring funding levels back to where they were in 1990.

And while the most severe problems may loom seemingly far away, it appears that businesses at least are beginning to get the message loud and clear.

"American corporations are beginning more and more to realize that they have a crucial stake in helping to improve K-12 and higher education, because they recognize that today's students are tomorrow's workforce," said Benjamin. "A college education today is not optional. It's crucial to succeed. And poor education leads not just to economic injustice but to social barriers as well."

RAND researchers have determined in a forthcoming report that the public ultimately saves $2.50 for every dollar spent on education, because if students are encouraged to stay in school and given more opportunities to succeed, the burden on society later in life becomes less. Educated people, moreover, tend to pay more taxes.

"Our analysis demonstrates that an increased investment in education now," said Benjamin, "means greater future tax revenues and less of an investment later in more expensive remedial programs like prisons or welfare."

CAE and its major corporate supporters-which include AT&T, Bank of America, Citicorp, Exxon, Johnson & Johnson, McGraw-Hill, and Shell, among others-are encouraging colleges and universities to restructure, improve productivity and share their resources.

"The enormous deficits facing colleges and universities in the near future are more critical than the much-publicized crisis in the Social Security system," said Benjamin. "Unless America manages to open up the narrowing bottleneck of higher education, there won't be enough economic growth to support any version of the Social Security plans being discussed."

Of particular concern to CAE and RAND are those students who come from economically disadvantaged backgrounds.

"If millions of kids who want to go can't get into college," said Benjamin, "we're afraid that economic and ethnic inequalities will increase even further."

Smart Students Can Help Finance Their College

It can pay for kids to put on their thinking caps! Sure, college tuition is sky-high these days, but the good news is there are all kinds of opportunities for bright students to use their smarts to earn money and scholarships. Each year, a wide variety of academic programs offer thousands of dollars in cash awards.

Students can start entering these competitions as early as kindergarten, leaving plenty of time to build for the future. One of the most popular is ExploraVision-a unique K-12 science contest funded by Toshiba and administered by the National Science Teacher's Association. This program not only gives students an opportunity to help finance their college education (first place winners receive $10,000) but also offers the richest prize of all-a real-life experience in learning. Students work in teams to come up with creative ideas for future technologies.

"My ExploraVision prize money certainly helped toward my college expenses," says Eric Wong, a Stanford University sophomore who won $5,000 in the competition. "But in addition, I wrote about my team's ExploraVision project in my entrance essays-and that helped get me into Stanford. And when I recently applied to be a member of a very selective organization at Stanford, one of the questions on the application was about my experience with teamwork. Once again I was able to draw on my ExploraVision experience!"

"The value is limitless," says a sophomore at MIT, who invested his ExploraVision winnings in a stock portfolio that he plans to use for graduate school expenses.

How To Help Your Kids With Homework

For parents starved for time to help their children with homework, there's now an Internet-based tutoring service to fill in the gap.

Tutornet.com is a new online computer service that lets students share their homework problems with teachers over the Net in real-time. The service offers live tutoring in math and science via the Internet; other courses are to be added soon. Tutoring is available in English and Spanish.

"Many schools no longer have the budgets and resources to support after-school tutoring," says Euburn Forde, company founder and chairman. "Tutornet.com is designed to fill this need."

Forde says over 75 percent of math and science students need help at some time or other, either to stay up with grade-level performance or to truly excel.

1998 and is already seen as the leader in live, interactive Internet education. It has extended facilities in Africa, Australia, North America and the United Kingdom.

The service provides students with virtual classrooms. The tutors are all elementary, high-school and college teachers with advanced degrees. The teachers are on one end, and students are able to reach them with homework problems over the Net.

To view the site, users will need Netscape or Internet Explorer 4.0 or higher. When students log on to the site, they select the

placed in the virtual classrooms with the least number of students.

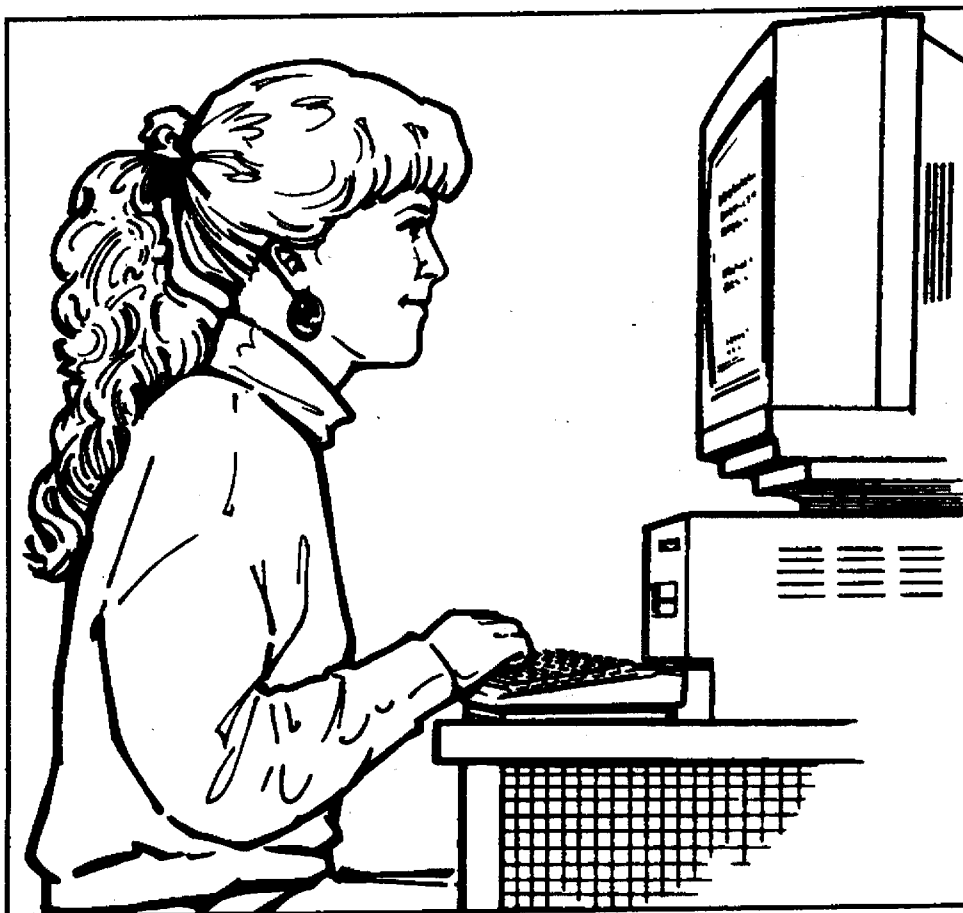

Each class is offered at least twice a day. A schedule of each day's classes is posted well in advance; if a student needs immediate help, he or she could always log on to another class to post a question.

The $30 monthly subscription fee covers unlimited, individual tutoring. Forde points out that it would be hard to find even a day's worth of private face-to-face tutoring for that kind of money. The company offers special pricing for schools.

Tutornet.com holds scheduled tutorials from 1:30 p.m. to 11:30 p.m. EST, allowing students to access the site from school or from home.

"I always thought technology should be brought to the masses," Forde says. "The potential this carries is that for the first time in human history, we have the ability to offer a first-rate education to all children."

For more information about Tutornet, call 1-877-TUTOR-KIDS or click on the company's Web site www.tutornet.com.

Creating a customized family heirloom is easier than ever. With the help of a new book, even people with no artistic ability can learn step-by-step how to make treasured scrapbooks.

Scrapbooking is a major new American hobby, and has skyrocketed in popularity since 1995, with two national magazines devoted to the hobby, each having well over 100,000 subscribers. In 1997 alone, more than $200 million was spent on scrapbook materials and, in California, stores devoted entirely to scrapbooking are opening up all over the state.

A comprehensive guide to this hobby is The Simple Art Of Scrapbooking: Tips, Techniques, And 30 Special Album Ideas For Creating Memories That Last A Lifetime. Created by the experts at The Scrapbook Guild, this volume provides everything hobbyists need to know to begin a personal, beautiful family tradition.

Beginning with a brief history of the craft, the book offers tips on materials, effective storage, cropping, lettering, captioning and design techniques. It also provides suggested layouts and information on such topics as:

Tutoring: A Solution To Better Education

In America today, the race is on for better education for the nation's children.

As both public and private schools continue to set higher standards for graduation, parents are deciding that if they want their children to remain on a college track, tutoring is the answer.

A recent Newsweek poll found that 42 percent of Americans believe there's a "great need" for children to receive private, outside tutoring.

To meet that need, Tutornet.com has formed a foundation which seeks to provide universal access to quality education through the Internet. Tutornet.com is a new online computer service allowing students to share their homework problems with human teachers over the Net.

shows scrapbook enthusiasts how modern scrapbooks, unlike the messy pasted albums of the past, are becoming homemade works of art. It is available now in bookstores everywhere.

"As state legislatures and local boards of education impose higher standards for passing and graduating students," Euburn Forde (Tutornet.com founder and chairman) said, "it is a national priority that our students achieve higher levels of performance in all the core courses in the middle school and high school curricula."

"However, budgets for providing students with the additional assistance they may need to achieve higher standards have been cut, and many families can afford neither the time nor the expense private tutoring requires. Tutornet.com is the solution to that challenge, using the power of the Internet and the technology of computing to make it possible for every child to have personal assistance at a reasonable price."

Caring For A Shark Teaches Life's Lessons

Educators have found an ingenious way to teach troubled boys love and discipline.

Looking over the edge of the 2,000-gallon tank of water, the boy saw a reflection of himself in the slate-gray creature swimming below. He and the young shark shared something in common. Each had come to Colorado Boys Ranch (CBR) in need of care and attention. Each possessed a tough exterior and a reputation for being troublesome. But as Marty the boy watched Fluffy the shark moving gracefully in circles, with far greater freedom than the fish had ever known, he realized for the first time there might be hope for himself, as well.

A few years ago, Fluffy was donated to CBR, a 320-acre ranch located near La Junta, Colorado, where seriously troubled boys ages 12 virtual classroom for teaching love and the discipline of caring.

Though Fluffy's care was the responsibility of boys inexperienced in the process of nurturing-many were emotionally abused and

"There's no question, working with animals large and small helps weaken the undercurrent of anger and hurt that pulls so many of our youth away from society's mainstream," said Thompson.

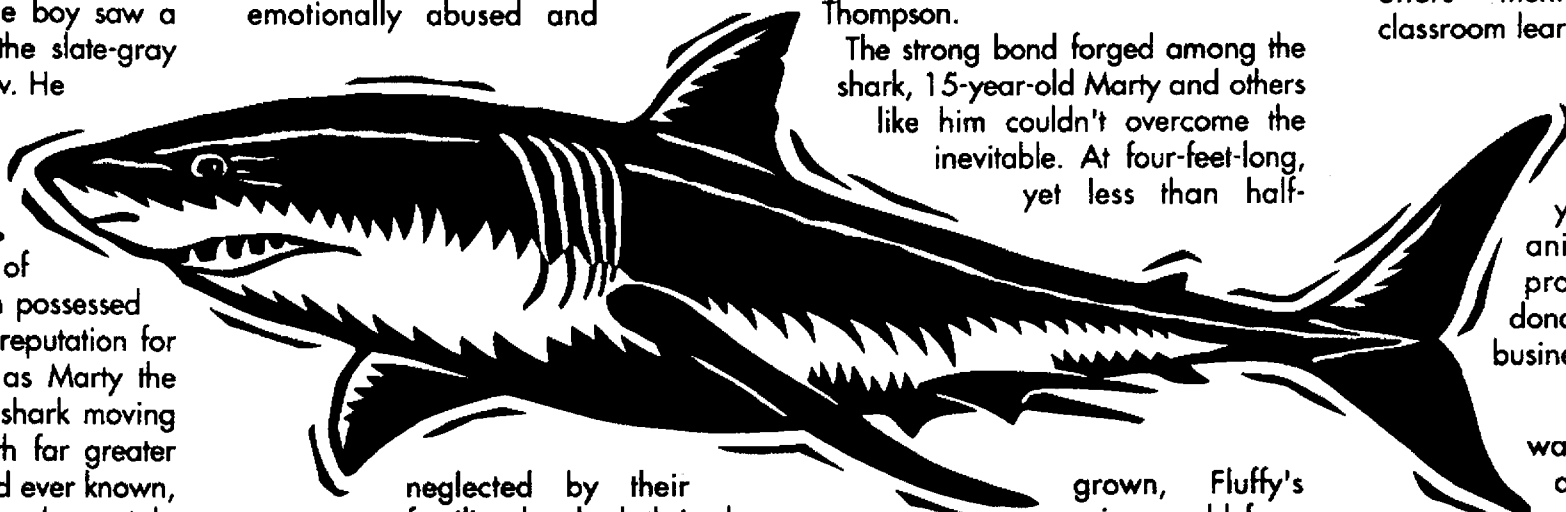

The strong bond forged among the shark, 15-year-old Marty and others like him couldn't overcome the inevitable. At four-feet-long, yet less than half-creatures is ready this spring.

Accredited with commendation by the Joint Commission on Accreditation of Healthcare Organizations, CBR offers mental health services, classroom learning and pre-vocational training. While state and county governments supply most funds for each youth's treatment, CBR's animal-assisted therapy programs depend on donations from individuals, businesses and foundations.

For information on ways to support CBR's animal-assisted therapy programs, write to Colorado Boys Ranch, P.O. Box 681, La Junta, CO 81050; call 1-800-790-4993, or visit the CBR Foundation Web site at www.coloradoboyranch.org.

neglected by their own families-the shark thrived. In less than a year, he outgrew his 110-gallon tank and was moved to a larger one. No surprise to CBR President Chuck Thompson, the hand feeding and attention the boys gave Fluffy nourished their own need to understand compassion and accept responsibility for another's care.

grown, Fluffy's size would force him to move on. But to where? After months of searching, Denver's new downtown aquarium, Colorado's Ocean Journey, came to the rescue. Today, the shark luxuriates in a 2,000-gallon tank-an interim home until the 300,000-gallon tank he'll share with hundreds of other sea

Among the most effective learning tools in the ranch's individualized psychiatric and educational treatment approach is the animal-assisted therapy program that took four-foot-long Fluffy under its wing. ## Create A Bird Garden In Your Back Yard

Backyard bird gardens are taking flight. As a result, a growing number of homeowners are bringing nature to their doorstep. With our natural resources and habitats diminishing, it has become more important for people to recognize the benefits of creating and maintaining an environment that is favorable to birds, butterflies and other small creatures. In addition to nurturing the human spirit, a wildlife garden will nourish nature.

The National Audubon Society and Monrovia, a leading grower of plants, are making it easy for people to create a backyard environment that is friendly to a variety of birds and butterflies, with the Audubon Habitat Collection of plants.

With just a little planning, anyone can create a wildlife garden. Just look for plants in green-colored containers with a special Audubon label in select fine garden centers nationwide.

Here are a few tips for attracting beautiful songbirds, hummingbirds, migratory birds and exotic butterflies to your garden:

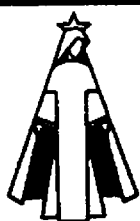

- Plant a variety of trees, shrubs and flowers that produce seeds, berries, fruit and nectar for a steady food supply.
- Plant dense groundcovers and leafy borders to provide birds with ample cover from predators while feeding.
- Offer supplemental food during the winter months, such as seeds, suet and fruit.

• Provide plant varieties that offer shelter from the elements as well as niches for nesting and perching.

• Attract a variety of birds and butterflies to your garden by using a wide selection of plants in your garden.

To find the nearest garden center offering the Audubon Habitat Collection, call toll-free 1-888-Plant-It. For a free brochure about gardening for birds, send a self-addressed, stamped, business-size envelope to: Monrovia Audubon Habitat Collection, Marketing Dept., PO Box 1385, Azusa, CA 91702-1385.

Becoming A Computer-Smart Parent

Fifty percent of United States homes now have a personal computer (PC), according to a poll just released by Dataquest. With the proliferation of the family PC, parents are finding themselves having to learn a brand new set of parenting skills for the "Digital Age."

Properly managed, and balanced with social time with friends and family, the PC is a wonderful tool that can open up a world of literature, geography, and continued education right in your living room. Misused, it can be repetitive, boring or worse, expose children to unsavory Web sites or characters.

In The PC Dad's Guide to Becoming a Computer-Smart Parent, authors Mark Ivey and Ralph Bond redefine the computer book genre with nuts-and-bolts advice on how to use and manage the PC in your home.

The book teaches parents how they can help their kids grow emotionally and compete academically through the use of computers. The guide is filled with personal stories, sidebars with key ideas, fun facts, a glossary of terms and an appendix featuring favorite software programs.

The Authors Also Include Five Easy Tips To Digital Parenting

1. Practice shoulder-to-shoulder parenting. The computer is not an electronic babysitter. Spend time working and playing on the PC alongside your child. Make it a joint experience. Who knows? You might just learn something yourself.

2. Put it where you live. Families spend most of their time in the kitchen or family room, yet the computer is often tucked away in a bedroom or office. Is your computer in a place where the family can see and use it together? It should be as visible as the family TV, or in a study that's easily accessible for the whole family.

3. Create a family software diet. Software is the PC's personality. Establish a software diet that keeps children mentally alert by balancing educational and entertainment programs. Pick software that fits your child's hobbies, interests and educational needs. Avoid "obsessive burnout syndrome" by rotating software-just as you would toys, books or videos-before children overindulge on a single title. And remember, programs are best when they reinforce real-life experiences.

4. Establish house rules. Create and post a list of PC usage rules. This should include the family's cybersafety guidelines, each member's daily electronic allowance, how the PC time will be shared among family members, PC housekeeping rules, as well as activities the family can enjoy together on the computer.

5. Enjoy the ride. Great digital parenting means keeping an open mind. Don't be resistant to change or afraid to learn new things. Your children aren't scared of computers. Why should you be? Go with the flow and embrace technology as one more way to make learning-and fun-a part of your family's everyday life.

Great Finds On The Internet

By Louis Morier

Quickly now, if you can answer these questions: Where is the city of Vicarville? What was the first instant noodle? How do you say "bring me a pound of cheese" in Spanish?

I have found surprisingly like homework questions, you can correct, then see the answers. Answers will be provided at the end of this column.

Meanwhile, if you are like me, you remember the days when homework often required a trip to the library and tedious trudge through cavernous stacks of books. Sometimes, too, a severe librarian would lecture you about feeling bad.

Today, of course, the Internet has changed all that. Homework can really be done at home and parents are finding it can be a great adventure to join the kids in the fun of finding answers to even the most obscure of questions.

Naturally, I recommend starting your journey at the AltaVista search service. Type your query into the "search" option and you will be amazed how quickly you find what you're looking for.

My Favorite Sites

•Blast. This is a marvelous site provided by Encyclopedia Britannica. It gives you free access to search "Britannica Online" and the Merriam-Webster Dictionary. Address: www.blast.com

•My Virtual Reference Desk. Quick

links here to encyclopedias, newspapers, quotations, acronyms, newspapers, elements of style, even zip codes. Address: www.refdesk.com/homework.html

•Allexperts.com. What a wonderful idea. Over 3,200 volunteer experts to answer all of your questions. Includes an especially good opportunity to get answers to questions on computers-answers that are often hard to come by.

How about a homework helper site that is edited by the kids themselves? Such a site is "Pinchbeck's Homework Helper" and it communicates to kids in a language they can understand-their own. Started by 12-year-old B.J., the site has won more than 100 awards and has links to 550 other valuable sites for finding whatever you may need. Address: www.bjpinchbeck.com

Of course there is always that rarest of kids-the one who doesn't want to do his or her homework at all. The Web even has an answer for that. Visit disciplinehelp.com to learn how to deal with any of 113 discipline problems with children.

Finally, answers to those thorny questions at the beginning of this column. The answer to how to say "Bring me a pound of cheese" in Spanish is "Traigame una libra de queso." You can find instant translation to many languages on our own AltaVista site.

More lawn care Q&A

Q. Does cutting the lawn after a fertilizing application reduce the results of the fertilizer applied?

A. In most cases, the answer is no. Granular fertilizer quickly works its way down to the thatch layer after it is applied. Cutting the lawn does not pick up much, if any, of the fertilizer applied. Many people are using mulching mowers now, and these machines will recycle the fertilizer in the leaf blades back into the soil, which in turn will help the lawn.

However, liquid fertilizer applications may be somewhat affected if your mower is picking up the clippings, because the fertilizer is sprayed on the leaf of the grass plant.

I prefer granular fertilizer, because most are made to be slow-releasing. Unlike liquid fertilizer that is quick release, a granular fertilizer application will be effective for up to eight weeks after applied.

Liquid application is best left to weed control, which is where weed control is most effective. Well-known weed killers, like Weed-b-gon from Ortho, are made up of different chemicals to combat weeds. Some of the chemicals will work through the soil to kill the weed, but it is most effective when it is applied to the leaf of the weed and left undisturbed for a few days.

Q. I have some wide-blade grass growing in my lawn. Is there something that can be applied to the lawn to kill this grass?

A. Unfortunately, the only products that kill this grass, called quack grass or barnyard grass, will also kill the desirable grass, too. The products which kill quack grass are Round-up or Finale. Both of these products kill the grass, weeds and any leafy plants that it is applied to. Caution is necessary when applying these products around desirable plants. After seven days, you can plant, sod or seed the areas that were treated. Use a piece of plywood or cardboard between the desirable plants and the weeds you are trying to eliminate. This divider will prevent over-spray from drifting.

Q. Within the past two to three weeks, I have noticed large patches of my lawn thinning. I have a bluegrass lawn, and the finer blades of grass are dying, leaving only some green left. What could be causing this to happen?

A. Recently, I have been seeing many lawns developing a disease commonly called leaf spot. This is a common problem in bluegrass lawn, especially when we have a cool wet spring. This disease can be found in most bluegrass lawns, but it does not develop into a problem unless the weather conditions are favorable for it to spread.

Control can be obtained by regularly mowing so that you do not remove more than one-third of the grass blade with each cutting. I have found that it is best also to mow when the grass blades are dry. This will help prevent the spreading of the disease. Keep the lawn fertilized so it stays actively growing, and treat the lawn with fungicide containing maneb or daconil.

In the spots where the grass has died or thinned, seed the lawn with disease resistant varieties of bluegrass to quicken the recovery of the lawn.

When to seal a new deck

Q. I just built a cedar deck. Should I put water sealer on it? If so, how soon, and with what kind of sealer? John M., Roseville

A. All exterior wood benefits from a sealer. Harmful acid rain and rays from the sun encourage the breakdown of the cellular structure of wood.

The product you choose should have two properties. First, it should penetrate into the wood pores and repel water. This helps prevent rot and swelling. Second, it should have some added coloring to filter damaging ultraviolet rays (UV).

Without protection, the surface deteriorates and allows water to penetrate deeper into the wood. As the water absorbs into the wood it accelerates damage. As the wood absorbs water it expands, and when it dries it shrinks. This movement of the wood increases checking, cracking, and warping.

Therefore, it is important to seal the deck as soon as possible. Make sure it dries out first. Trapped moisture will cause the finish to crack. This occurs as moisture in the wood is drawn out by the sun. I don't mean dry to the touch when I say dry. I'm talking about the core of the wood, where the remaining unevaporated sap and moisture are trapped. The moisture content of today's discount lumber is often equal to a living tree.

One note about wet lumber: It will shrink much more than seasoned or dried lumber.

deck will reveal the wetness of a board. If a small, dark oval is visible when looking at the center of a cut-off piece of decking, this is evidence that the lumber is very wet, and you should wait through at least two months of fairly dry weather before sealing.

I'm afraid some "treated lumber" I've used was so wet it could have been alive and growing just 30 days previous. Another giveaway is the weight of the boards. The "greenest" or wettest boards are the heaviest ones. The light ones are what the whole pile should have been if you are purchasing quality lumber.

If you are lucky enough to get dry lumber at a discount lumberyard, or smart enough to pay extra for quality kiln-dried lumber, you should be able to apply seal within a month. Otherwise, don't be in a hurry. Wait for the deck to "air dry" by itself.

Gas heaters in hot water?

Natural gas water heaters provide more hot water faster and less expensively than electric water heaters, according to the American Gas Association (AGA).

Comparing the annual operating costs before buying a water heater can pay off in substantial savings, AGA says, because the water heater is the second biggest energy user in a typical home, after the heating and cooling system.

Water heaters are required by federal law to carry an Energy Guide label that shows the average annual cost of operating the unit. Although electric water heaters are often less expensive to buy, operating a gas water heater will cost about half as much as operating an electric water heater, depending on local utility rates.

To select a unit to meet a home's hot water needs, look at the first hour rating on the label. This shows the most hot water that can be supplied in a one-hour period.

To get maximum efficiency from a water heater:

- Drain a pail or two of water from the faucet located at the bottom of the heater several times a year.

- Set the water heater at "normal," or about 120 degrees, in order to save energy. However, you may wish to set the water heater at 140 degrees if your dishwasher does not have a water heating booster as part of its automatic cycle; the hotter water will sanitize dishes.

- Keep the burners clean.

- If the pilot light goes out, follow the appliance instructions and relight it. If any difficulty occurs, however, turn the controls off and call a plumber or heating dealer. If you smell gas, call your local gas company.

44-star flag dates to 1890 when Wyoming was added

By Diane Morelli

Q. Dear Diane, recently a friend of mine moved. She had lived in the same place for 45 years. In cleaning the garage, she said to take anything that I wanted. In the rafters I spotted a flag; when I took it down I saw that it was quite different and when I counted the stars, there were only 44. The 44 stars appear to be hand-sewn on the field of blue. Checking, I found that Utah was admitted in 1896. There is no other marking of any kind.

I intend to keep the flag but being 85 years old, I expect it will go to my daughter. Is it of any value other than historical? — D.M. of St. Clair Shores.

A. Dear D.M., How wonderful for you to have found such an interesting keepsake. Upon research I learned the Flag Act of April 4, 1818 provided for 13 stripes and one star for each state to be added to the flag on the 4th of July following the admission of each new state.

The 44-star flag became the official U.S. flag on July 4, 1891. The 44th star was added for Wyoming on July 10, 1890, and was to last this way for five years until the 45th star was added representing Utah on July 4, 1896. The presidents to serve under the 44-star flag were Benjamin Harrison and Grover Cleveland.

"Kovels' Antiques & Collectibles Price List 1993" describes an American 44-star linen flag with stitchery, 16.5 x 13.5 inches at $150. "Kovels' Antiques & Collectibles Price List 2000" shows a 45-star flag, 48.5 by 69 inches at $440.

The Flag Code of etiquette describes numerous detailed rules all collectors should become familiar with. For example, the flag should never have any mark, insignia, letter, word, number, figure or drawing of any kind placed on it; it should be raised briskly and lowered slowly and ceremoniously; and it should be displayed only between sunrise and sunset unless it is illuminated.

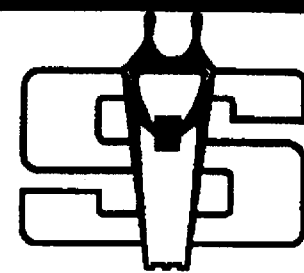

A flag-folding ceremony is observed daily by the U.S. Army and Navy. During the ceremony special care is taken that no part of the flag touches the ground. The flag is then carefully folded 12 times; each fold is symbolic — the first fold is a symbol of life. The 12th fold completes the flag's conversion to the shape of a tricorn hat — symbolic of the hats worn by Colonial soldiers.

The flag I would like to have is the flag I remember honoring as a child. My uncle, a World War II veteran and retired Detroit Mounted Policeman, would conduct flag-folding ceremonies at the close of each holiday weekend at my grandparents' cottage during large family gatherings. I was very young but remember the reverence held by the entire family for the flag during those ceremonies. All my relatives were present, standing below the flagpole watching the flag slowly lowered, silently and reverently paying honor to the symbol of our country. I remember feeling well cared for because I thought if my family took such care of the American flag, I knew they were surely taking good care of me. I also remember sensing the pride my father had of his family during those ceremonies when I would catch his expression given while checking on the behavior of his young chil-

Apply the art of feng shui to your sunroom

Finding success with your career, health and love life may be as simple as rearranging your furniture. The ancient Chinese tradition of feng shui believes that the way a home is decorated and designed affects the fortune of the people living in it. Feng shui, the art of finding harmony in your surroundings, can be applied to your office, home and even your sunroom.

A sunroom is an extension of your home, which is an extension of yourself. Feng shui helps you create an efficient and successful environment through the combination of exterior space, furniture arrangement, light, sound and smell.

"How you decorate your sunroom is as important as deciding which sunroom is right for you," said Rick Jones, president of Patio Enclosures Inc., North America's largest installer of custom sunrooms and solariums. "Since sunrooms are commonly used as relaxation areas, it's important to decorate them just right."

There are five elements in feng shui: Earth, water, fire, wood and metal. Each element has its own energy and should be represented in your sunroom. Fire, for example, enhances positive energy. The sun that pours into your home is one representation of fire. Its therapeutic benefits include more energy and an overall balance of your mood. You can also create the fire element by lighting candles, especially those in deep colors. Stone and marble candle holders or bookends are a way to represent earth in your sunroom, and picture frames made of metal can bring in that particular element. Bring the water element into your sunroom with a rock fountain.

Color is another important aspect of feng shui. Red, for example, is considered auspicious. Try adding red throw pillows or a red

Feng shui practitioners also add the following simple improvements to get the most out of your sunroom:

- Place a plant or flowers in the marriage area of the room (the far right corner from the entrance) to help relationships flourish.
- Position your bed or work desk catty-corner to the door to keep in line with the positive energy and good fortune.
- Evenly distribute photos, art and candles throughout the room.

Place furniture in a way that balances the sunroom and makes visitors feel welcome. Semi-circles make inviting conversation area.

Start with the most important items first and decorate around them.

Hitting your home up for a loan? Shop around!

By Lori Z. Bahnmueller

We haven't seen our neighbors in months.

A friendly pair who has frequently opened their home and tool shed to us, last night we struggled in vain to recall their names (Joe and Marie or Jerry and Maureen?).

Though, judging by the status of the new home addition and renovation project that drove them out of the neighborhood and into their parents' guest room, we won't be crossing paths anytime soon.

It wasn't supposed to be this way, they told us before the contractors assumed residence, stationing an outdoor toilet in the front yard. This was the "starter home."

But when the family began to grow, so did home values and remodeling proved easier than finding a decent house to buy.

They're not alone. Home values are increasing at a record pace across the country, prompting many homeowners to reinvest that newly gained equity back into their homes rather than relocate.

Home equity loans

The practice of borrowing against the value of a home has gained in popularity over the last 10 years.

According to the National Home

Equity Mortgage Association, home equity loans will hit $500 billion this year compared to $34 billion at the beginning of the 1990s.

There are three key reasons for this surge: escalating home values, low interest and tax deductibility.

There are two ways to tap into the home equity of your home. The right choice for you depends on your needs.

If you're looking for a fixed, lump-sum amount, perhaps for a major home improvement project, you're better off with a home equity loan.

With a home equity loan, the term, and usually the interest rate and monthly payment, remain the same over the life of the loan.

If you want the convenience of drawing against your credit line as the need arises, a home equity line of credit — also known as a HELOC's more likely to meet your objectives.

Instead of borrowing a fixed amount of money, you qualify for a certain amount of credit. You then can borrow up to your credit limit whenever the need arises.

The money is accessible instantly, usually by writing checks assigned to the amount or by using a credit card issued by the lender.

Include the following questions when considering a home equity product and lender:

What's the interest?

Interest rates vary among lenders, so query several and compare the annual percentage rate (APR).

Remember, the APR is based upon the interest rate alone. For a true comparison of credit costs, compare other charges, such as points, fees, and closing costs.

If the lender is offering an introductory "teaser" rate, be sure to find out what rate you will be paying after the promotional period ends.

What is the index based on and how often can it change?

The interest rate on a variable-rate loan must be based on a publicly available index.

Most lenders use the prime interest rate. In today's market, you should look for a lender that offers the prime interest rate for the life of your loan. In any case, you shouldn't have to pay more than two points above prime.

It's also important to know how often the lender adjusts the rate.

Can the rate increase?

Under current law, all variable-rate plans must have a cap on how high your interest rate can climb over the life of the plan.

Most variable-rate lines of credit also have a cap that limits how much and how often the interest rate can change during the course of a year.

Closing costs?

Closing costs, which may include (but are not limited to) a title search, appraisal, attorney fees, recording charges, and notary fees, also vary from lender to lender.

With financial institutions vigorously competing for the home equity market, you should be able to negotiate waiving some or all of the closing costs.

But shop carefully as some lenders impose a fee for each time you access the account, and others charge you if you don't use the account.

Repayment terms?

Usually, you repay the loan in regular installments. Paying more than the minimum monthly payment will pay off the loan faster and reduce your costs.

Unless it is absolutely necessary, avoid interest-only repayment options in which you pay on the interest during the term of the loan and the balance is due at the end of the term.

This option can prove much more.

Insulation

and roof concerns

Q. Help! My roof is leaking into the attic. I put a bucket under the water drip, but now what? Do I need a new roof?

A. You probably don't need a new roof, as long as there is only one leak. In fact, you may be able to fix the leak yourself.

First, find the exact area of the leak. If you can see the hole, drive a wire or a long nail straight up through it. Then, make a temporary patch by applying a small wad of caulking compound on top of the wire or nail. Finally, smooth the edges at least an inch around the hole. The patch should last through the end of the rainstorm.

Once the rain stops, head outside and onto the roof (take precautions against falling — that temporary patch won't hold while you're in the hospital recuperating). Look for the other end of the nail or wire that you drove through from inside — be careful not to step on the nail's point! Mark that spot, and then look "uphill" to see if water is trickling down from another leaky spot.

If you have wood or asphalt shingles, you may be able to repair them yourself. However, tile, slate or asbestos shingles require a professional.

A loose shingle is simple to fix: Lift the shingle, remove the patch and nail, and cover the puncture with cement. Then, glue the tile back in place with roofing cement, nail it securely (use galvanized roofing nails) and cover the nail heads with cement.

If your shingle is torn or damaged, it must be replaced. (Asphalt shingles can be temporarily repaired, but must be replaced within a year.) Remove the damaged shingle and cement the puncture. Cut off any torn or damaged pieces (including those of surrounding shingles) to create smooth, sealable edges. Shape patches from replacement shingles and glue them in place; then replace the damaged shingle. Nail the edges and cover both the nail heads and the edges with roofing cement.

Home tips

• I developed a system to remind myself which way to mow the lawn each week — clockwise or counterclockwise. If the lawn needs to be mowed clockwise, I put a small rag over the handle of the mower. If I need to mow counterclockwise, I don't put the rag on it. I do this every week after mowing, and haven't missed yet. — Dale C., San Diego.

• Another use for cardboard toilet paper rolls: I coil electric extension cords and insert them into the cardboard rolls. The cords don't unwind or get tangled, and I can write information — like the length of the cord or where it's used — on the outside of the tube. — Carl L., New Haven, Conn.

American Rhododendron Society seeks members

Clyde Higginson of New Baltimore has been chosen president of the Ann Arbor Chapter of the American Rhododendron Society (ARS). The chapter includes all of southeastern Michigan and draws members from throughout the state and the Toledo area.

The ARS is a nonprofit organization involved with the following goals:

- To share information about rhododendrons and azaleas.
- To operate test and display gardens.
- To register names of the new hybrids under the International Code of Nomenclature.
- To encourage and develop, in all possible ways, interest in the growing and culture of rhododendrons and azaleas.

drons and azaleas.

Higginson, one of few hybridizers in the Ann Arbor chapter, moved to New Baltimore about 25 years ago to an ideal environment for growing rhododendrons — two acres with high shade from both deciduous and evergreen trees including Norway spruce and white pine.

Higginson hybridizes for cold climates, extending the range of color, size and shape of rhododendrons which will thrive in this area.

For more information on the American Rhododendron Society, call Higginson at (810) 725-8744, or visit the American Rhododendron Society web site at www.rhododendron.org.

Antiques and Collecting

Most antiques collectors of the 1930s were well-to-do New England family members who were searching for the antiques of their ancestors. In the 1940s, returning servicemen had discovered the decorative arts of Europe, and they began looking for something to collect at home. Antiques shows were starting in most major cities by the 1960s. The national price books explained what antiques and collectibles should cost. One newspaper survey claimed that one out of every three persons claimed to be a collector, and the interest has continued to grow. Collecting has now become front-page news. A top TV show, information from the Internet and hundreds of new books each year make it possible to learn about almost any collectible. An auction catalog from a foreign country often offers pieces that are unfamiliar. Last year, Quittenbaum Auction House of Munich, Germany, sold many pieces of Wiener Werkstatte pottery made in Vienna, Austria. Roseville, Rookwood and Cowan pottery were made at the same time in the United States. A few of the Austrian artists taught at American art schools, so the "in" designs traveled between the countries. Collectors can now see how each country interpreted the era. There is much that is similar. The playful, appealing, chubby figures made at art institutes in Cleveland, Detroit and Chicago in the 1920s are similar to the earlier pieces from Vienna. It was an international design trend.

Q. My mother is cleaning out her house before selling it. She still has some of my childhood books on her shelves. There are about 10 different Little Golden Books, which I know are still sold new at bookstores. Are the old ones worth anything?

A. Little Golden Books were first published in 1942. Any near-mint copy of the first 35 titles published between 1942 and 1947 is worth $20 to $30. The early editions had blue spines and dust jackets. If your mother has the dust jackets, double the value of each book. If your books are the 1950s or '60s reissues of the early books, they are not valuable.

Q. I have a copper-and-glass sign with gold and silver lettering. It is advertising the N. Thomas Brewing Co. of Dayton, Ohio. The sign is 29 inches in diameter. Can you tell me anything about its history?

A. The Thomas Brewing Co. worked in Dayton from 1880 to 1893. The company changed its name to the N. Thomas Hydraulic Brewery from 1893 to 1906, and it was later changed to Dayton Breweries. An early glass beer sign like yours, that dates before 1893, would be worth more than $1,000.

Modern redecorating site

With the dawn of each new season, Mother Nature redecorates the landscape and people everywhere adjust their closets and lifestyles to match the time of year. If something as simple as exchanging boots for sandals can be a refreshing wake-up call, imagine what updating the look of your home could do. More lasting and rewarding than a seasonal haircut or outfit, redecorating your home can be an effective and dramatic way to reinvigorate your life.

Redecorating doesn't have to mean giving away wads of hard-earned money or free time. A gallon of latex and a couple of great new pieces of artwork for the freshly painted walls can make furniture and flooring look better, maximize light and shadow, or change the personality of a room. Among increasing numbers of people, the incentive to redecorate has strengthened thanks to the popularity of the Internet, which has provided a modern, fun way to find and buy the right piece of art simply and affordably.

Art.com is one of the best online sources for thousands upon thousands of prints, photographs and other beautifully inspired offerings. Since 1997, professionals from the art, framing and interior design industries have provided consumers with a content-rich art e-commerce site that is convenient, fun and affordable. The site features extensive galleries of the world's great art, custom framing and matting techniques and content ranging from terms to events and biographies, all with a 100 percent satisfaction guarantee. With such a range of art offerings, Art.com practically guarantees you'll redecorate successfully.

One of the most exciting parts of shopping at Art.com is exploring the enormous array of prints and photographs to find your favorites. The site is like a giant museum where art lovers can find themselves engaged in looking at print after print and in learning about the art and its creator.

The world's great art comes together — lovers of Impressionism can get lost in the colors of masters like Degas and Monet, fans of Cubism can spend time with Picasso's genius, and photography buffs can whet their appetite with works that range from sports and nature to fashion. And with the expert content on the site, you may discover a love for a genre you never knew about before — and a way to make that piece fit your decor.

For those who get absorbed in the site's cool and sophisticated, yet inviting and accessible world of art and photography, Art.com employs artist, category and keyword searches, as well as a power search function to make finding great art simple. The site presents each print and photograph as a clear image, and makes customizing each work simple with the framing styles, where mats and frames finish the art works that will re-create the look of a home.

What fun my sisters and I had back then with our young cousins playing blind-man's bluff on the cottage's front lawn with the help of the tall flagpole. On remembering, this is why I enjoy the peaceful sound of a flag's gentle flapping in the wind, and the gentle, random clang of a flagpole wisped by a wind-taken rope.

A wonderful friend of mine bought a furnished cottage from an elderly couple on Michigan's Rainy Day Lake several years back. She asked me then if I knew the value of an old 13-star flag she found stored on a shelf there. I told her to take it to an expert for appraisal because I thought it very valuable. This past summer while walking with her at her cottage I asked about that flag. She turned, looked me in the eye and flatly said she doesn't want to talk about it — she thinks it got thrown away. Because I stayed silent she also added she feels sick when she thinks of the "Antiques Road Show" she saw on TV where a 13-star flag was appraised. I respectfully gave her the silence she requested and we both found ourselves reverently quiet together for quite a while longer.

Flag Day is celebrated this coming Wednesday, June 14.
