Road work nixes Rotary Grosse Pointe Run

By Brad Lindberg
Staff Writer

Organizers of a local foot race have, in the parlance of long distance runners, hit the wall.

This year's version of the popular Grosse Pointe Run sponsored by the Grosse Pointe Sunrise Rotary has been canceled due to street construction.

The event normally kicked off at Moross and Lakeshore in the Farms. Due to an ongoing multi-million dollar sewer separation project in the Farms that threatened to turn the road race into an obstacle course, Rotary sponsors tried unsuccessfully to carve out an alternative course incorporating Windmill Pointe Drive in the Park.

As in the Farms, the effort gave way to logistical problems.

"We had a lot more coordination issues in the Park than we anticipated," said Rotary member Chris Flynn.

According to Steve Basile, another Rotarian, organizers looked at starting the race in the Village shopping district and running into the Farms.

"Both locations have construction projects either running or scheduled starts for fall," he said.

Rather than holding what Flynn called a "half-successful" race, he and his colleagues decided to scratch the contest until next year.

"We were better served to set it up for next year in the Farms where we've done it for years," said Flynn.

Basile said, "We are extremely disappointed to be forced to make this decision."

Sidewalk sale Friday, Saturday in Village

By Jim Stickford
Staff Writer

The Village shopping district in the City of Grosse Pointe is gearing up for its annual summer sidewalk sale.

The event starts on Friday, July 28, from 5:30 to 9:30 p.m. The sale starts up again on Saturday at 9:30 a.m. and ends at 5:30 p.m.

Village Association president Michael Kramer said that in addition to the bargains that can be found, those attending the event can enjoy the music of the Balduck Mountain Ramblers at the corner of Kercheval and St. Clair.

There will also be a disc jockey playing music from 6 to 9 p.m. Friday, Kramer said.

"This is the first year that we've been able to have Jacobson's involved," Kramer said. "We're very excited about that. Services for Older Citizens will be selling food to raise money for their programs. Buster Willy's will be selling food as well as an outside vendor providing food service."

The sale, said Kramer, serves two purposes. It allows stores, especially clothing stores, to clear their shelves of spring and summer merchandise to make room for fall and winter merchandise.

Consumers enjoy excellent shopping at bargain prices and store owners get the room they need for fall and winter.

But there is a second bene-

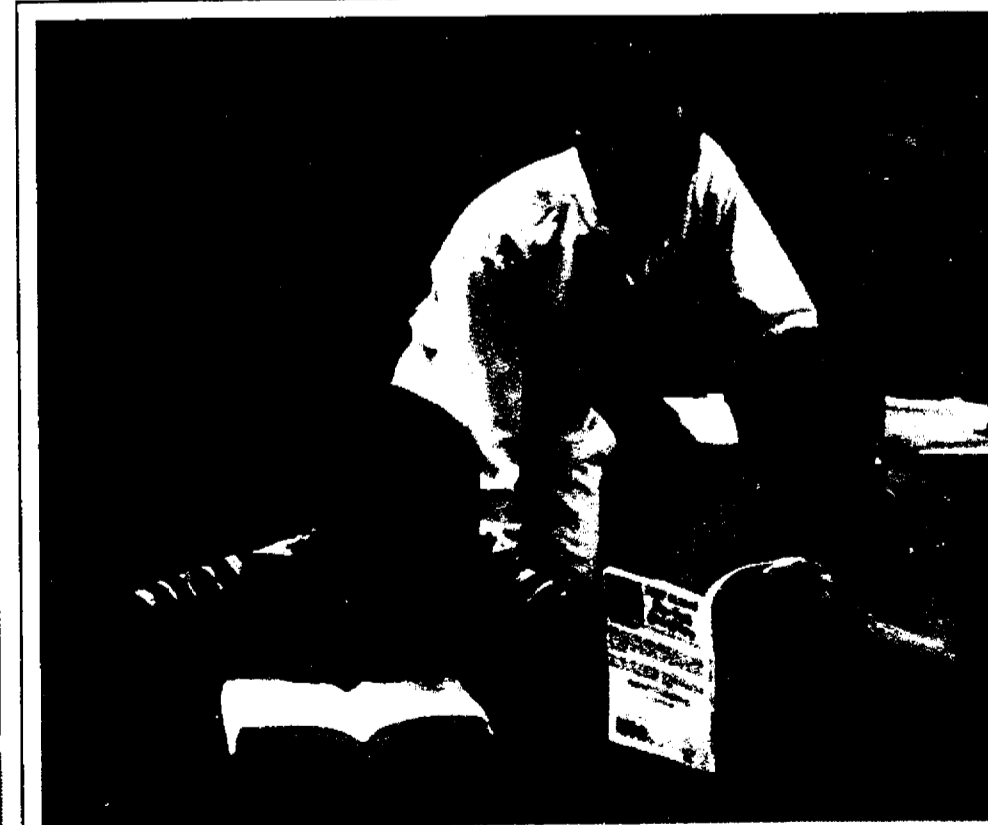

Jimmy and Kevin Bennett of Grosse Pointe Woods certainly enjoyed coming out for last year's Village sidewalk sale. This year's sale promises to be just as exciting.

The sale starts on Friday at 5:30 p.m. and continues on Saturday. The Balduck Mountain Ramblers will perform Friday night and the Grosse Pointe Animal Adoption Society and the Michigan Humane Society will be there as well to promote pet adoptions.

fit, Kramer said.

"This has evolved into quite a community event," said Kramer. "People get to see acquaintances at the sale that they might not see any other time of the year. This is quite a tradition. I've been in the Village for 18 years and the sale goes back farther than this. We encourage everyone to come out and visit. You never know what you might find."

Book it!

The Grosse Pointe Public School System's summer school is having a banner year with its reading clinics, of which reading clinic instructor Paul Booker says, "In many ways this program has superseded or has exceeded the governor's mandate," bringing in a record number of students. Booker is pictured with Poupard Elementary School fourth-grader Joseph Duncan and Monteth Elementary School fifth-grader Patrick Gustin, as they discuss a reading assignment. See story on page 10A.

Library survey shows need for expansion

By Bonnie Caprara
Staff Writer

The advent of the Internet and mega bookstores and a need for more room and parking have forced the Grosse Pointe Public Library to adapt to changing times, but how? The library asked, and residents responded.

In mid-April the library sent a survey to every resident in the library district asking them to rate 47 current services or services they would like to see in their libraries on a scale from 1 to 5 with 1 being the highest rated or most requested and 5 being the lowest rated and least requested.

While the Internet and bookstores like Borders and Barnes and Noble were the main reasons many respondents said they did not frequent the three branch libraries, many did say that they'd like to see facilities and collections expanded at the libraries.

"I noticed that people said they didn't use the libraries because of the Internet especially," said library director Vickey Bloom. "A lot of them said they didn't use the libraries but did support them."

Respondents rated the adult book collection, story times and quiet study areas as the libraries' top existing services or services they wanted.

"I'm not surprised to see books on top, but quiet study areas are something we don't have," said Bloom.

Some of the most frequent comments dealt with the expansion of the libraries at one or more branches.

Younger generation helps produce future beauty

The children of the Vacation Bible School of the Grosse Pointe Congregational Church chose as their community project the purchase and planting of three flowering crabapple trees. The youngsters planted the trees on the lawn outside the children's wing of the church on July 20. The ceremony in which the children participated consisted of the poem, "Thank You Dear God for Trees," read by Janet Westner. Peggy Etling of the Youth Choir sang a solo, "Trees," by Joyce Kilmer. The kindergarten sang, "Who Can Make a Tree." The ceremony closed with a prayer by the Rev. Charles Scheid, pastor. (From the July 27, 1950 Grosse Pointe News.)

"It is shameful for a community with the affluence of Grosse Pointe to have such a cramped, antiquated library. Please take time to visit other library systems (e.g. Troy) that are modern, neat and spacious," said one respondent.

Not only was space a concern with respondents wanting an expanded library, but so was the availability of materials.

"The only thing we use the library for is my children's homework assignments," said a respondent. "It does not compare favorably with some other community public libraries."

Another respondent commented: "I think our libraries are terrible. They never have the books I want and research-type books are always at the schools. Books are old and worn. I buy my books. We also need nicer surroundings and quiet areas."

Several others commented that the library was late in receiving new releases or wait lists for new releases were long.

"That is one thing we're working on," said Bloom. "We tend to use Publisher's Weekly to find out what's new. However, many of the titles they feature are already out by the time we read about them. We're going to find a new way to find out what's coming out new."

Several people suggested a new site at Mack and Moross. A few even suggested combining facilities into one main branch, but Bloom stood fast to the library board's commitment to the branch system.

"That's the way we see the future of the library," said Bloom. "We'd like to find more room at the Woods branch and the Central library."

Parking was also cited as a main concern, especially at the Woods branch where people felt that school parking was taking over the spaces dedicated to the library.

"The Woods branch has a problem with parents picking up their kids at Parcels," said Bloom. "They either park in the library spots or line up through the parking lot. If anything, the Park branch has a bigger problem. If we can find anything with more space in the Park or the Woods, we'll look into it."

Service was met with mixed reviews from the survey, although it was not listed as a formal survey question.

While one respondent said, "Your librarians have been most useful when I have come in looking for some obscure poem that my boss asked me to find for him," another respondent said, "Now that I'm retired I would use the library more, but there seems to be a lack of assistants to help in going through what is available and how to use it. So many changes in the last 10 years or so which are unfamiliar."

Other people praised the librarians for their pleasantness, while others commented they felt that librarians were rude and unfriendly.

"Over the last few years one of our main targets has been to improve customer service skills," said Bloom. "It's something we have to work out on an individual basis."

The survey also asked if respondents wanted new services like a coffee/snack bar, an auditorium or a Friends of the Library gift shop. The responses indicated there was not much need. Some even said they did not want the addition of any or all three.

"The response on these things wasn't as big as we expected," said Bloom. "Quite a few people said 'no way' to the idea of a snack bar or coffee bar, but quite a few libraries are doing it now — to go the same way the bookstores have. Art prints, a gift shop, large print books and a used book sale cart or room ranked at the bottom of services respondents used or wanted at the branches, but received few or no comments.

The survey also revealed that many respondents were not aware of current existing services like outreach services for homebound residents, word processing software on library computers and on-line library services.

Of 26,000 surveys that were mailed, the library received 3,328 responses. Of the 12.6 percent of the residents who responded, 93.3 percent said they used the public libraries, 6.7 percent did not, which Bloom felt was an accurate reflection of the proportion of library use in the community.

■ Fallout from a labor strike at a chlorine company means officials might have to close the swimming pool at Lakefront Park in Grosse Pointe Woods.

With chlorine in short supply due to rationing (water treatment plants have priority), park officials may not have enough of the chemical to purify pool water. In the meantime, city workers are installing a new diving platform at the park.

Last month the hospital nursery hosted five premature babies. The first to be discharged went home this week. Of the two who remain under doctor's care, one weighs three pounds, the other a hefty 4 pounds, 13 ounces.

■ Stone-throwing and beer bottle-tossing vandals have once again targeted Grosse Pointe High School. In the latest incident, 33 windows were broken.

Grosse Pointe Farms police have long been begging the board of education to hire a full time watchman for the valuable property. The building has been broken into on numerous occasions and broken windows are commonplace.

City may get road funding for Jefferson work in 2001

By Jim Stickford
Staff Writer

Wayne County's ability to capture unspent federal money could mean that the City of Grosse Pointe's portion of Jefferson will get paved in 2001 instead of 2002.

County Highway Engineer Kevin Maillard said that recently Wayne County was able to capture for its roads federal money that was originally earmarked for other purposes.

"When you get federal money, you have to spend it," said Maillard. "Because certain agencies didn't spend their federal money in 1999, they lost it. This money is now available for Wayne County to use in 2000."

Maillard went on to explain that the county has about $14 million in federal money earmarked to repair county roads in 2001. With the addition of the extra federal funding, that figure is now closer to $20 million. More money means the county is able to complete more projects in 2001.

So some projects slated to begin in 2002 can now be done in 2001, Maillard said. That's good news for the City of Grosse Pointe. Its portion of Jefferson has been slated for repaving in 2002. Maillard believes that, given its condition, it will be one of the 2002 projects moved up a year to 2001.

"This makes sense financially," said Maillard. "Grosse Pointe Park will be getting county money to repave its portion of Jefferson in 2001. By doing both cities in one year, we're able to save money. Other communities, such as Dearborn Heights, will benefit from this additional funding as well."

Maillard was quick to add that while it looks good for the City of Grosse Pointe, the money has not been officially designated.

"We've been told the money will be available, but I don't want to promise anything until the money is actually allocated by the county's federal aid committee," Maillard said. "The committee meets on Aug. 29, and they're the ones who ultimately decide which projects get funded."

But the committee, said Maillard, is non-partisan and it usually follows the highway department's recommendations because the recommendations are based on engineering studies showing which roads need work the most. The City's portion of Jefferson has been designated, right now, as the fourth worst stretch of county road. The need is there and Maillard believes the committee will recognize that need.

Maillard has received a number of calls from Chris Cavanagh, Grosse Pointe's representative on the county commission. He said Cavanagh has let engineering know that he wants the project done.

Cavanagh said things are changing and it looks good for the City. The Committee of Roads, Airports and Public Services has been meeting and Cavanagh said he's been working with committee members to get the money for the City repaving.

"There are 14 other commissioners on that committee," Cavanagh said. "They would have loved to get that money for their districts. We got lucky because the federal money became available. We got lucky because the engineers rated the road condition in the Park and the City so close. If they had wildly different numbers, then we probably wouldn't have been able to get the money for 2001, but they did match."

In the past, Cavanagh has been criticized by Grosse Pointe officials for not getting county funds spent on county roads in the Pointes. He hopes that this good news will show those officials that he has fought for the Pointes. He said he will continue to work to make sure that the money is allocated at the Aug. 29 meeting.

Muckraking: Packed Park harbor gets regular cleaning

By Brad Lindberg
Staff Writer

An early jump on dredging this spring allowed boaters in Grosse Pointe Park to tie up in the municipal marina without much interruption.

Now packed with boats, the 268-slip harbor at Windmill Pointe Park is culled daily of debris. The main crops are seaweed and dead fish.

Park worker Tim Sintebin said crews drag about 350 pounds of floating vegetation from the marina each day. The harvest can triple after a storm or steady wind from the south, which pushes debris through the harbor entrance.

"We want to make the harbor presentable," said Sintebin. "After a storm we work eight hours straight to take up about three cartloads of seaweed."

The waterlogged debris is dried, bagged and taken away by the city's waste contractor.

Terri Solomon, the city's park director, doesn't want the recovered debris around any longer than necessary.

"Dead fish get ripe after a couple of days," she said.

Sintebin said he and his crew mates enjoy maintaining Windmill's "beautiful environment."

He said, "When you have a good job and good bosses, you give 100 percent."

Park fishing rodeo a big splash; more than 3 dozen kids attend

More than three dozen children shrugged off rainy weather to compete in the 47th annual Grosse Pointe Park fishing rodeo at Windmill Pointe Park.

Everyone won a prize at the June 24 event, including youngster Matthew Steiber, who won a fishing pole for catching the first fish of the day.

"The event went wonderfully smooth. The kids were as wet as the fish," said Phil Costa, a veteran volunteer.

While some parents ran for cover as the rain came down, their kids cast lures hoping to hook whatever swam by.

The event featured hot dogs and watermelon donated by Kroger in the Village. Joyce Present, who runs the Park concession stand, provided free drinks. Adult rodeo volunteers Phil Costa and Tom Kuffel helped cook the food.

"The best part of the rodeo was catching the fish," said Steiber.

Every participant went home with a grab bag prize, including fishing-minded items like a bobber, hook and tackle.

The following children won fishing gear and equipment for winning in categories that ran the gamut:

- Last fish: Billy Dawdlin.
- 47th fish: Rebecca Steiber.
- Biggest fish: Meghan Johnson.
- Smallest fish: John Malefy.
- Longest fish: Jeffery Campbell.
- Unique catch: Ben Wilson.
- Ugliest fish: Chris

McMillan.

• Sportsmanship: Matthew Steinmetz.

Everyone on hand showed good sportsmanship, according to volunteer Ed Kujawa.

"We had a good crowd of children who wanted to be at the rodeo for the fun of it," he said.

Harvard Road freed of commercial parking

By Brad Lindberg
Staff Writer

Residents of the 1400 block of Harvard in Grosse Pointe Park have won their battle against the drivers of commercial vehicles.

Residents had accused the drivers of clogging the neighborhood with on-street parking.

Acting on the advice of the Park director of public safety and city engineer, the Park city council this week banned commercial vehicles from parking on a narrow, one-block stretch of Harvard between Mack and Charlevoix.

The action made permanent a temporary ban instituted last year. The ban grew from residents' complaints last winter that drivers of company vans and trucks had appropriated the block as a combination parking lot, staging area, loading dock, drop-off site and lunch-hour rest stop.

Speaking a few months ago, Park councilman Stephen Safranek said the parking problem stemmed from on-street parking being, in effect, a free commodity.

"(Businesses) are using free parking because it's free," he said. "If (the businesses) went over and bought (parking space) on the other side of Mack, it would cost them money. We have to tell them (the businesses), 'No, parking on Harvard isn't free.'"

Residents took their message to city hall last winter armed with photographs to prove their point. Residents said the vehicles had worn out their welcome by usurping parking spots from homeowners, clogging traffic and endangering children by blocking the sight lines of automobile drivers.

Commercial drivers had been parking in the residential neighborhood because nearby restaurants and businesses lacked adequate parking.

To the approval of residents, Safranek added, "Parking in front of your home is for you, your guests and others who are visiting your home."

He added, "(Parking) is not for commercial vehicles and others visiting commercial sites on Mack. That's not what the front of your home is for."

In other traffic matters, the Park public safety department will work with the Grosse Pointe school system to determine if markings are needed at crosswalks near Trombly School.

Local businessman helps preserve Detroit's history

By Margie Reins Smith
Assistant Editor

Warren S. Wilkinson has lived in Grosse Pointe nearly all his life. He is fascinated by history — the history of his own family and Detroit's history in particular.

Wilkinson's great-grandfather was James E. Scripps, founder of The Detroit Evening News and co-founder of the Detroit Museum of Art.

Wilkinson spearheaded the French Festival of Detroit, a organization formed to celebrate the 275th anniversary of the founding of Detroit. The event, which took place in 1976, included a reenactment of the 1701 landing of Antoine de la Mothe Cadillac and his party of French voyageurs, in canoes, near the foot of Woodward.

Wilkinson played the part of Cadillac.

"There is a plaque at the spot now," he said.

He has worked for many years raising funds for the Detroit Historical Museums and has served as president of the Detroit Historical Society. He was also appointed to the Detroit Historical Commission and served as its president from 1994-1997.

He has put together books documenting his family's past — letters, articles, photographs, anecdotes, writings and journals — as well as several books that he said are the world's best collection of covers. Covers are canceled envelopes with stamps.

"The longer you collect, the

fewer stamps you have," he said. "I have about 5 to 10 percent of the 2,500 existing covers. I have the good ones," he said, with a smile. "You only need one of each."

He has collected stamps since he was 8 years old, and recently won a medal at an international stamp show held in London last May. The medal was for his exhibit of covers illustrating Canada's postal rates from 1851 to 1859.

His collection includes local, interprovincial, United States and European covers. He also has a collection of rare covers that were mailed at a special postal rate during the Crimean War.

"Collecting stamps got me interested in history and geography," he said. "Name any colony," he challenged, "and I can tell you who owned it in 1885."

"I guess I'm an engineer, more than anything," he said. "I like to solve problems. I like to work on a project — usually with a team — to complete a goal or solve a problem. When the project is completed or the problem is resolved, I have one minute's satisfaction, then I want to move on to the next project," he said.

Wilkinson was born in Detroit. He moved to University Place in the City of Grosse Pointe when he was 3 years old. He attended Grosse Pointe Country Day School, then Grosse Pointe High School for a year. He went on to Hotchkiss, then Harvard, where he earned a bachelor of science degree in mathematics.

He studied engineering for a year at Cal Tech before joining the Navy Seabees in 1943.

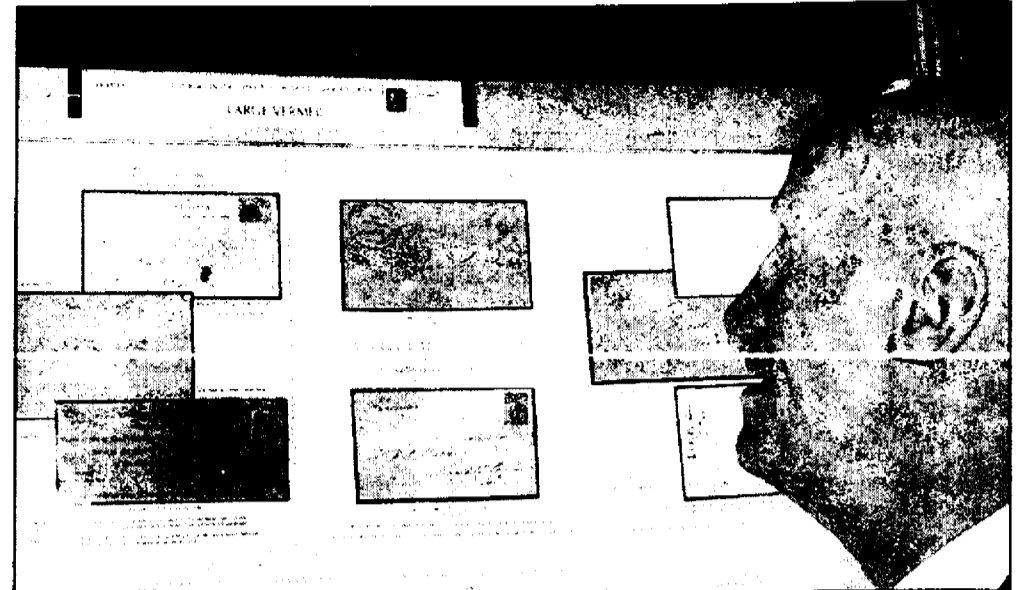

"I was stationed in Hawaii," he said. "We were in charge of maintaining an ammunition depot."

He returned after the war, in 1946, and moved to New Jersey to work for Hanson-VanWinkle-Munning Co., a firm that had developed an electroplating process. The company eventually manufactured machinery for electroplating and Wilkinson eventually became its president.

"It was sold to the American Can Co.," he said. He moved back to Grosse Pointe.

Wilkinson is currently president of RPI, a company that manufactures furniture for public areas such as airports, shopping malls and schools. His office is in Marlette and the company's factories are in Marlette and Grand Rapids.

At age 80, Wilkinson is actively involved in the day-to-day operation of RPI and has no plans to retire. He plays tennis a couple of times a week; plays bridge; serves as president of the local Neighbors Concerned About Yacht Club Expansion (NYCE), which he described as an environmental organization that is working to keep Lake St. Clair's waters pure and clear.

He is an active member of the Harvard alumni organization. He is on a committee studying the teaching of science at Harvard and was recently recognized for his assistance in raising $300 million for the university.

Wilkinson said Grosse Pointe is the best place — one of the best, anyway — in the country to live. "It was number seven in a list of the top 10 best communities, according to the Robb Report," he said.

Wilkinson is married to Mireille and has eight children who range in age from their 30s to their 50s and live in Maine, Massachusetts, North Carolina, San Francisco, St. Louis and Michigan.

The family gathered recently for a reunion in Canada, near the Muskoka Lakes property that was once owned by his great-grandfather. Some 22 members of the family attended.

Wilkinson has worked for many years to raise funds for the Detroit Historical Society. He served as president of the Detroit Historical Commission from 1994-97. He is also active in the alumni organization of Harvard University, his alma mater. He helped raise $300 million for Harvard.

Woods police save man from cave-in

By Brad Lindberg
Staff Writer

A man could have been buried alive last week when a trench he was digging caved in around him.

A 1 3/4-hour rescue operation ended when Grosse Pointe Woods police, paramedics and the man's co-workers dug with bare hands to unearth the victim from what police feared could have been his grave.

The struggle took place during the morning of Wednesday, July 19, in the backyard of a home in the 900 block of Moorland. The 37-year-old victim was part of a basement waterproofing crew that had dug a trench eight feet deep along the home's rear foundation.

As the sandy soil gave way, a second co-worker was able to bolt out of the pit while soil cascaded inward. The victim wound up covered to his chest. He couldn't move his legs or torso, but his head and arms were exposed.

Police tried to shore-up the trench's sandy walls, but lacking the equipment, they improvised and dug. Medics helped while providing whatever medical aid they could.

The nearly two-hour struggle resulted in the man being pulled to safety. Medics took him to St. John Hospital, from which he was released a short time later wearing a brace for an ankle injury.

Woods police said the trench's sandy walls contributed significantly to the collapse.

Can, should PGA snooker Tiger Woods?

I feel sorry for Tiger Woods. Okay, not really, but in the sense that he really has no serious competition other than himself, I do.

Remember when David Duval was the No. 1 golfer in the world (except for the fact he hadn't won a major championship and still hasn't) and it was going to be Woods and Duval vying for all the titles, like Jack Nicklaus and Arnold Palmer used to?

What happened is that Woods, who was already scary good, got better.

His swing coach, Butch Harmon, said he and Woods believe Woods is only playing at about 75 percent of his capability. Excuse me?

Imagine Woods even 5 percent better — then the tournament directors may have to change the rules for him.

Opinion

Woods joined Gene Sarazen, Ben Hogan, Gary Player and Jack Nicklaus as the only players to have ever won all four major championships — the Masters, the PGA Championship, the U.S. Open and the British Open.

The main difference is Woods did it at the age of 24.

Nicklaus managed the feat by the age of 26.

As for the "competition," Duval, paired with Woods in the final round, ended up 12 strokes behind Woods.

Woods beat runners-up Ernie Els and Thomas Bjorn by a record eight strokes. That's the largest margin of victory at a British Open since 1913.

Already this year Woods won the U.S. Open by a record 15 strokes.

Woods makes the other golfers look like rank amateurs in comparison.

Let's not forget that if you took any one of the golfers Woods smoked this past weekend and matched him up against, say, a top club pro, that golfer would win pretty big.

These are the best golfers in the world and they aren't even close to Woods, not when he's on his game.

These golfers say they don't want to keep praising Woods all the time, but they are forced to every time Woods does something special.

"He is something supernatural," said Tom Watson. "He has raised the bar to a level that only he can jump."

"When he's on, we can't beat him," said Els.

"The guy is simply in a different league," said Nick Faldo.

"He is the chosen one," Mark Calcavecchia said. "He's the best player who has played the game right now. If Jack was in his prime today, I don't think he could keep up with Tiger."

And that's the problem.

How much longer can Woods keep setting goals for himself and competing with himself?

Here's what the bookmakers are doing. Woods is a 6-4 favorite for next month's PGA Championship, the shortest odds for a major ever offered by Ladbrokes, the British bookmakers.

Ladbrokes is considering a handicap for Woods to encourage people to place bets.

"What we may do is handicap Woods with three or four strokes a tournament and then offer odds of something like 5-1," said Ladbrokes spokesperson Ed Nicholson. "It's an alternative to taking bets on who comes second to Tiger."

Or as Els suggested Sunday, maybe they ought to make the holes a little bigger for the "regular" players and a little smaller for Woods.

Primary election vote Aug. 8

August. What a terrible time to have an election, what with vacations and the general laid-back atmosphere of summer.

Nevertheless, here we are, just a week and a half away from the Tuesday, Aug. 8 primary election.

There are no local offices or proposals on the ballot in the Pointes, but there are myriad county, state and federal partisan choices to be made, as well as two county proposals.

Proposition O seeks a 10-year renewal of a nearly 1 mill operating millage for Wayne County. Proposition P calls for a five-year renewal of .25 of a mill for county parks.

Contested races of local interest include Cheryl Watson's Democratic challenge to Grosse Pointe incumbent county commissioner Christopher Cavanagh.

State Rep. Andrew Richner of Grosse Pointe Park has no GOP challengers.

While there are a plethora of candidates vying in the Democratic primary for state representative and for county prosecutor, sheriff, clerk, treasurer and register of deeds, we are unable to cover those races in detail due to the number of candidates and the county-wide nature of the contests.

More primary coverage next week.

Stand corrected

To the Editor:

It is always best to assume good will on the part of others unless one is aware of evidence to the contrary. I prefer assuming good will, but that is hard to do in the case of your editorial ("Wayne Co. Prosecutor Race Aug. 8") last week.

While I agree that George Ward is a very qualified candidate and I have no problem with your endorsement of him, I wonder why you found it necessary to misrepresent my qualifications. Moreover, the fact that you did not call me for comment or to verify your information suggests to me that it was your intent to misrepresent.

For the record, I was not (as you indicated) merely "one of many assistant prosecutors trying cases in the old Detroit Records Court." I was an assistant United States attorney for two years, a division chief in the Wayne County prosecutor's office for eight years (administering four departments in the office: Warrants, Preliminary Examinations, Victim Services and District Courts) and I served for five years as a Detroit police commissioner. Thus I have 15 years relevant experience.

George Ward has 14. I don't expect a retraction or a correction but you certainly do owe me one. Journalistic integrity has always been a high priority of yours. What happened here?

Editor's note: We stand corrected and do apologize.

Stand corrected II

To the Editor:

The Grosse Pointe Shores Sharks swam a great meet against the Grosse Pointe City Norbs on July 5. Unfortunately, the Sharks did not get the credit they deserved in the Grosse Pointe News last week.

The misleading article gave the illusion that the Norbs won the meet, when this was clearly not the case. The Sharks had a score of 322, beating the Norbs, who had a score of 241.

The headline even favored the Norbs. "City Norbs Edge Shores Sharks" does not reflect the outcome of the competition. The other article about the Lakefront Swimming Association says, "Woods Warriors Edge Farms Barracudas in Lake Front dual meet." The Warriors won that meet.

In my dictionary, a definition of edge is "an advantage." It goes on to give the example, "We had a slight advantage over the other team." Obviously, this word fits in the Woods-Farms result, but is completely incorrect to describe the Shores-City meet.

This article does not reflect the Shores team's hard work and growing numbers of dedicated swimmers. I suggest that you print the important facts of the meet rather than insignificant pieces of information covering up for the City's loss to the Sharks. The Shores swimmers need to receive the recognition for practicing hard to win a meet against their crosstown rivals.

Sarah Kurtz, age 14
Grosse Pointe Shores

Editor's note: Again, we stand corrected. Further, sports editor Chuck Klonke has followed up with a corrected story about the Shores Sharks in this week's Sports section. And, again, we do apologize to the Shores Sharks and parents.

School vouchers

To the Editor:

There has been much said and written lately about vouchers destroying the public schools when in fact the opposite is true.

First of all, in neither Cleveland nor Milwaukee where vouchers have been in effect for a number of years, have the best students been skimmed off into voucher schools. The best students are doing so well in the status quo that they have no incentive to leave. But the poorest students have found an alternative and have gone to the voucher schools looking for, and in many cases, finding success. Who would want to deny them that opportunity?

Furthermore, the students who have remained in the public schools have benefited greatly from the competition. A recent study of the Florida voucher project based on public records found that many Florida school districts with "F" or "D" schools have reacted with "a sense of urgency and zeal for reform" in their determination not to lose students and money. In other words, school vouchers have had an uplifting effect on public schools.

I am sure that vouchers would have a salutary effect on Michigan public schools as well.

Second opinions aren't insults

I'd better begin this column with a disclaimer. It is NOT meant to be an assault on the entire medical profession. Without those people, whom I have chosen to advise and guide me through various health problems for many decades, I might not be here to write a column. I have enjoyed a long professional and respectful relationship with my primary physicians and am extremely grateful to them for their time and care. My doctors respond to my phone calls and are approachable. I believe we share mutual respect.

Having said that, there remain concerns and questions that are not new ones, but continue to plague many of us. These are fairly generic in nature; however, some specific examples have been raised for me and some of my friends.

At what point does a patient question his doctor and suggest additional consultation? And, why are so many of us intimidated and hesitant to take these steps? For centuries, we have placed our physicians on lofty pedestals, impressed by their dedication and years of education. Most of this is well deserved; however, there are certain times when we lay-persons become confused and frustrated.

One case that was drawn to my attention recently was when a patient repeatedly asked his doctor if certain symptoms could be a result of the blood pressure medicine he was taking. The doctor said, "Not possible." Yet when the patient stopped the medications, the unpleasant symptoms disappeared. He was told to take the medication again, and the problems returned. He asked his pharmacist for a print-out of side effects, and sure enough, all of the complaints were listed. I ask the question, who is the responsible party — the patient, the doctor, the pharmacist or a computer?

A situation arose for me personally within the past two weeks. On one occasion, I was taken to an emergency room in another city. I informed the admitting staff that I have an allergy to latex. The technician who came to draw my blood had on latex gloves and a rubber hose to put on my arm. I asked for latex-free and she complied, but then put a latex Band-Aid on my arm, and we watched it swell and turn red.

The following week I went to a local lab for routine blood work and experienced the same situation, even though my chart was marked in large red letters, Latex Sensitive. My question is, what if I had been unconscious or had no informed advocate with me?

I was fortunate to be visiting a friend in the hospital last week when her doctor came in. He announced that he was concerned about a blood clot in her leg because the leg was considerably larger than the other one. That leg has been that way for 70 years, and I was grateful that I was able to save this fragile woman from unnecessary tests. She is deaf and when she was admitted, someone didn't notice or note the old phlebitis on her chart.

A family member or friend can save a great deal of time by supplying information.

Most surgeries are necessary, but the average patient needs help in making the final decision, and a tad of psychological massaging wouldn't hurt to allay our fears. Any surgery is scary and carries some risk. Any good doctor or nurse will concur.

In the past six months, I have had four differing opinions concerning a chronic problem; they range from invasive, complicated surgical procedures to acupuncture. When I asked a new-to-me specialist if he would repeat what he was saying so I could take notes, he told me I didn't need to write anything down if I would just listen.

Guess which route I'm trying (the non-surgical one!), but I haven't ruled out what might await me down the line.

The Internet can either be of great benefit or a tool of utter confusion. Once again we need to be educated.

I'm not certain where the answers lie, perhaps a little more patience with the patient. Most professionals will tell us to let our bodies be our best barometer. If it hurts, pay attention and seek advice. We alone know the signals that our bodies send us.

Common sense is fine, but it will never take the place of a good doctor. We have to act responsibly to help our doctors to help us, but don't be afraid to make inquiries concerning your condition and always listen to your own messages.

Wrap stars

Giftwrapping — it's an art. Some people were born to wrap. Others delegate. Some patronize stores that do it free. Others bribe someone to do it for them.

Gift paper and ribbon manufacturers have felt the pain of these all-thumbs types and have responded by manufacturing pain-killers: slick colorful bags, designer boxes and poufy pre-tied bows.

Unwrapping gifts is also an art. Gift-getters may be classified by their different unwrapping styles, which generally reflect dominant personality traits.

Skeptics. These people don't believe they deserve gifts in the first place. They're suspicious, wary, careful.

They tiptoe around the wrapped package, saying things like:

"What is this?"

"What is this for?"

"It's not my birthday."

"You didn't have to get me a gift. I didn't get you anything."

When they settle down, they'll carefully untie the bow, slowly. They peel back the Scotch tape, piece by piece; unfold the paper, bit by bit; ease off the top of the box and bend down to peek inside.

They're usually happy with their gifts and will probably write an effusive, personal thank-you note the very next day.

Preservers. These people savor gift-getting and gift-unwrapping. They exclaim over and prolong every aspect of the event.

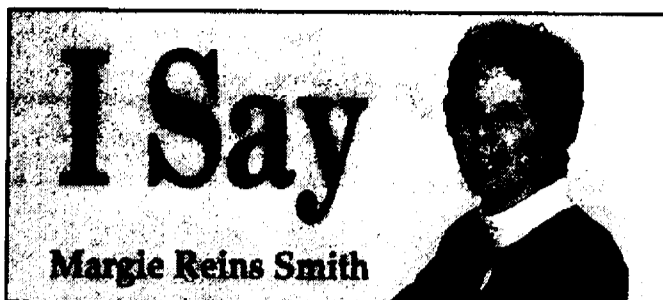

"What beautiful paper," they'll say.

"It's such a shame to unwrap this."

"Where did you find such a gorgeous ribbon and how did you learn to tie bows like that?"

"What could this be?"

They unwrap verrrrrry slowly. They gush and goo over the contents of the package.

They generally like their gifts too, but they love the packages and each step of the unwrapping process so much, they're apt to smooth out the gift paper and fold it carefully for re-use. They gingerly slip gift ribbons off the corners of boxes so the ribbons don't break.

They stack their opened gifts neatly.

They write thank-you notes promptly, on stationery made from recycled paper.

Pessimists. These people don't like gifts; they don't expect them; they are embarrassed by them; and when they get one, they protest.

"I don't need anything," they say.

"Why did you do this to me?" When they open the gift, they're apt to groan: "Oh no. What is this?"

"What am I going to do with another book/scarf/scented candle/pair of diamond earrings/Mercedes?"

These people are natural targets for joke gifts — T-shirts emblazoned with off-color phrases or references to their advanced ages, for instance. Or jars of pickled pig's feet. Or unflattering photographs of the gift-getter, blown up to poster size.

They never write thank you notes.

They don't even say thank you. They mumble, reluctantly.

Rippers and slashers. Small children are natural rip-and-slash gift-openers. They know darn well that they deserve gifts and they can't wait to see what's inside the packages.

They tear into their Christmas morning loot with reckless abandon. If they're allowed to proceed unchecked, they will finish unwrapping their stuff long before the rest of the family has shuffled into the room, settled into their chairs or sipped their first sip of Christmas morning coffee.

After their gifts have been ripped open, these children dash around peering at tags on other people's gifts, just in case they've overlooked something that is rightfully theirs.

Rippers and slashers need to be restrained.

"We open our gifts one at a time," they must be told, "and we take turns."

They will pout, briefly. But like all natural optimists, they're resilient and will pop up again, with enthusiasm.

They also usually love their gifts, but must be tethered to a chair and threatened before they'll produce thank-you notes.

"You can't play with the toys Aunt Lucille sent to you until you write her a note," I used to tell these energetic little creatures.

The very best gifts, however, can't be wrapped and are suitable for all personality types.

These include: loving, caring families; college educations; affectionate nicknames; robust health; good memories; friendships; time; and useful jobs that are so interesting you can't wait to get up each morning to go to work.

Unwrap these. Quickly.

And don't forget the thank you's.

Moderation management?

A few weeks ago, I was in Seattle and a front-page story caught my attention.

A lady who had founded a program called, "Moderation Management," which encouraged some "problem drinkers" to "cut back" without abstaining altogether, was awaiting sentence for vehicular homicide. She had gone the wrong way down an interstate in central Washington and had run head-on with her pickup into a car containing a 38-year-old electrician and his 12-year-old daughter. She didn't even remember climbing into her pickup after a binge drinking episode in March. Her blood-alcohol level was three times the legal limit.

She expressed profound remorse and described herself as "a housewife and mother who woke up in a trauma unit of a hospital on March 25th to find out that I am the cause of the deaths of two innocent people." She added, "I am giving this statement in a public forum because I pray that my story can touch at least one other alcoholic. When I failed at moderation, and then failed at abstinence, I was too full of embarrassment and shame to seek help. In self-pity, I gave up and believed my nightly drinking at home could hurt no one but myself."

She was a controversial figure who appeared on television talk shows. She inflamed a debate over moderation vs. abstinence, her own story being a powerful and ironic example of denial in action.

Proponents of abstinence, usually experienced members of AA (Alcoholics Anonymous), took the opportunity to disprove the wishful fantasy that alcoholics can drink in moderation and do no harm.

The defense mechanism of denial is a common and powerful part of the alcohol-abuse syndrome, in which victims "forget" their previous destructive episodes, and so do not learn from them. In the most severe cases, the forgetting is extreme, called "blackouts," probably a result of the brain being seriously and often permanently damaged.

It is hard for normal social drinkers to conceive of out-of-control binge drinkers consuming more than a fifth of whiskey a day, day after day. Some alcoholics get a kick out of bragging to each other how much they can drink without falling unconscious or throwing up. When highly intoxicated, they think they are able to drive a car safely, having no conception, no insight about their loss of judgment and capacity.

This woman, Audrey Kishline, wrote the now infamous book, which was the basis of her program and which had eager advocates. The title, "Moderate Drinking: The New Option for Problem Drinkers," stands today as the height of irony. She pleaded guilty to two counts of vehicular homicide and faces a sentence of 4 1/2 years, even though the maximum would have been life imprisonment.

Further irony comes from the fact that proponents of her moderation movement point the finger at the failure of AA. After trying moderation and failing, she tried abstinence and failed again. Stanton Peele, a spokesman and board member of Moderation Management and a psychologist in Morristown, N.J., said, "AA didn't have the answers for her, either."

Such severe cases need the benefit of a strict, strong and lengthy detox program and long-term follow-up by an experienced psychiatrist. Oftentimes, the severe degree of alcoholism is a desperate attempt at self-medication for an affective (bipolar, manic-depressive) disorder. It takes a very well-trained and experienced clinician to understand and deal with the depths of despair and/or euphoric frenzy that such people experience.

Like this woman, they are ashamed and embarrassed and don't realize they are out of control and need help. Sometimes a powerful "intervention" is necessary by a unified and coordinated confrontation of friends and family to rescue the person from his or her own self-destructiveness in the desperate attempt to numb themselves from indescribable torment. Alcoholics are more to be pitied than scorned.

If the emotionally tortured person is treated with the newer anti-depressants and mood stabilizers, the craving for alcohol is greatly diminished, and such people become capable of learning from experience and mending their ways.

In those who need it and are receptive to it, long-term, insightful psychotherapy can restore the person's stability and functionality and, most important, improve the quality of their interpersonal relations, whether it be at work or at home. These people are desperately in need of self-knowledge and insight about their maladaptive mechanisms, such as repression and denial.

It is too bad that such a blatant tragedy as befell those unfortunate three in central Washington must happen to get our attention, but, hopefully, Kishline's desire to make amends and spread the word will help other potentially destructive drinkers from doing terrible damage in the future.

Socialized medicine leaves bad taste in patients' mouths

By Lawrence W. Reed

Hospital food is rarely mistaken for gourmet cuisine anywhere, but at least in Michigan it is not an issue over which major political campaigns are waged. In Canada, however, it is — and the lesson it provides for American health care is profound.

Last fall, a colleague of mine visited the Canadian province of Manitoba. With just a few days left before the elections, political campaigning there was at a fever pitch. My friend was astonished to observe that the dominant issue was indeed hospital food.

The patients of Manitoba's hospitals had complained for months about the introduction of "re-thermalized food" — cut-rate meals prepared 1,300 miles away in Toronto, then frozen and shipped to Manitoba, where they are nuked in microwaves and served. Peter Holle, president of the Frontier Centre for Public Policy in Winnipeg, explained that reheating meals was a cost-saving "innovation" of government bureaucrats employed by regional health authorities.

"Never mind that they taste like cardboard," says Holle. "Never mind that individual tastes and circumstances might dictate decentralized food services. Reheated meals became a symbol of efficiency for the supposedly compassionate do-gooders in government. Why pay hundreds of workers in dozens of Manitoba kitchens when we can just zap up frozen dinners from Toronto?"

As it turned out, the incumbent government in Manitoba and many of its supporters went down to defeat. Vile victuals were a key reason.

How does hospital food become a political issue? The same way anything — from the important to the utterly inconsequential — becomes a political issue: socialize it. Take any matter that people normally resolve quickly, peacefully and privately by their own choices, turn it over to government, and watch as factions arise, conflict ensues, and problems appear.

Minor problems become intractable because government decisions are financed by taxes and imposed with police power. Government coercion guarantees that somebody, if not everybody, will be unhappy. If people cannot escape the system because they are forced into it, then they will bicker and fight endless and often silly battles. Politics is simply no way to run a kitchen or a car factory or a whole lot of other things.

But hospital food is probably among the least of Manitoba patients' concerns. According to a national poll, four out of five Canadians are unhappy with their socialized health care system and believe it has worsened noticeably in just the past five years. Doctors in Manitoba apparently agree: Almost half of them — an astonishing 1,800 — have left the province in the past decade alone.

David Gratzer, a Canadian health policy commentator, published a blockbuster book last year titled "Code Blue." Gratzer revealed that the quality of care Canada's system provides to ordinary citizens matters less to its apologists than the quality of care it denies to the so-called rich. The egalitarian impulse that drives Canada's "universal" health care system calls for treating everybody the same; all patients get "free" care in the public system and are generally denied the option of getting faster or better care for a fee in the private sector.

Gratzer asks, "With health care, is our true goal that Mr. Smith, who owns three cars, not be allowed to get a quick (private) cataract surgery? Or is it that Mr. Jones, who just makes rent every month, gets (publicly funded) heart surgery when he needs it? The way [the system's] advocates carry on, you'd think that it was fine that Mr. Jones suffered crushing chest pain after walking three steps just as long as Mr. Smith had to stumble around blindly for six months."

Thanks to this idiocy, an estimated 212,990 Canadians were on hospital waiting lists for surgical procedures in 1998. The average total waiting time of 13.3 weeks was up from 11.9 weeks in 1997 and up a shocking 43 percent since 1993. No wonder that when former Quebec Premier Bourassa was diagnosed with cancer, he avoided "free" care in his home country and instead sought treatment in Cleveland.

Advocates of socialized health care in America — including the Clinton administration and Michigan Congressman John Dingell — would like to move us toward the Canadian model one step at a time. Indeed, Dingell's bill, the National Health Insurance Act (H.R. 16), would take us more than just a few steps in that direction.

But if the sorry state of Canadian health care tells us anything, it is that politicians and their bureaucracies should not be trusted with the care hospitals provide any more than they should be trusted with the food hospitals serve.

Family atmosphere abundant in charming elderly care home

By Darren Donaldson
Staff Writer

He who would pass his declining years with honor and comfort, should, when young, consider that he may one day become old, and remember when he is old, that he has once been young.

—Joseph Addison

These are the words inscribed on the Governor's Quality Care Award given to the Eastwood House by Michigan's Department of Consumer and Industry Services at a recent ceremony. The adult foster care facility, located in Harper Woods, was named one of the best care providers in the state.

The large white house, fronted by a circular drive and dotted with hunter green shutters, sits on an acre and a half of land which only serves to heighten its stately appearance.

Just inside the front door, photographs adorn the walls of the sun-soaked den. Nat King Cole's voice gently fills the house, a fluffy gray cat named Johann strolls past and aromas from the kitchen hint at today's lunch.

In the den, Lillian, 96, sits in a comfy recliner with a Reader's Digest in her lap.

"I read a lot," she said. "It helps me to keep my mind sharp."

Sitting next to Lillian is Merwin, 89. The two spend a great deal of time together each day just talking and enjoying the comfort and camaraderie someone their own age provides. Sitting on the back porch, two other residents, Raymond and Elizabeth, look out over the huge, lush backyard that resembles a small nature preserve with its grass, flowers, trees, birds and squirrels.

The warm, stylishly decorated home belies the label that it bears — adult foster care facility. The Eastwood House sits in the residential neighborhood of Eastwood Drive, showing no outward and few inward signs of the nature of its services.

The proprietors, Thomas and Cassie Boneff, have been in operation for three years. The Eastwood House provides 24-hour care for six residents, which includes home cooked meals, medicine administration, activities, and a family environment.

Both being born to older parents, the Boneffs feel that their entire lives have led them to take on this role. They each faced the task of caring for their aging parents from their teenage years through their marriage and as they raised three children of their own. Elderly care had become a natural part of their daily lives.

"We became very familiar with caring for older people. We are comfortable dealing with anything that arises," Cassie said.

She worked at Bon Secours Hospital in Grosse Pointe as a Certified Nursing Assistant (CNA) before becoming the full-time administrator at the Eastwood House. That is where she started having the dream of opening a little place of her own. A place that would meet a need for the elderly population.

The niche they are trying to fill lies between the assisted care facilities and the nursing homes.

While the residents at Eastwood are not quite up for the extensive independence that an assisted care facility offers, neither are they ready for the nursing home's services: call lights, bed pans and continuous advanced medical care.

Keeping things running smoothly along with the Boneffs are two more full-time CNAs that care for the residents.

The six-bed facility is currently one resident short, soon to be two as one resident will be leaving for extended medical care.

Lillian, in her third year at Eastwood, spent some time in a nursing home and compared the environment to a hospital. She talks ashamedly of the bracelet she had to wear that triggered an alarm if she neared a door.

This gives her intimate knowledge of the industry in which she has become a reluctant commodity. In her authoritative opinion, she speaks very highly of Cassie and the Eastwood House.

"She was like an angel. She saved my life. I have no one and no place to go. I am perfectly happy here," she said.

Doctors and physical therapists come to the house regularly to work with the residents. One of the physicians, Clara Kamath, makes monthly visits to check on the residents' blood pressure and medications.

She describes the house as a "wonderful place with a family

Bomb threat

Woods police were first on the scene last week of a bomb threat to blow up a suite of Social Security offices in an office building on Mack near Moross.

On Tuesday, July 18, at 11:18 a.m., police arrived at the normally busy third-floor offices to find the workplace evacuated — except for a man sitting in a chair claiming to have a bomb in a nylon bag.

Facing police, the man, a Detroit resident, retracted the bomb story and said the bag contained paper.

A Woods policeman coaxed the man to put down the bag and exit the office. As the suspect entered an outer hallway, officers wrapped him up.

A team of federal officers and Woods police stood by as Michigan State Police arrived after 1 p.m. to determine the bag's contents. The all clear wasn't sounded until state officers used X-ray equipment to confirm that the bag held paper.

The suspect faces federal prosecution.

Kid with knife

On Saturday, July 22, at 12:30 a.m., Grosse Pointe Park police stopped a juvenile bicycle rider they suspected of breaking curfew. The subject was charged with carrying a concealed weapon after police discovered he carried an eight-inch kitchen knife.

Woods on-street parking problem

Officers enforcing a parking crackdown on Hunt Club in Grosse Pointe Woods marked the tires of eight vehicles on

PUBLIC SAFETY REPORTS

Saturday, July 22, at 9:52 a.m. Two hours later, three cars remained. All were ticketed.

In a move later that afternoon in the area of Morningside and South Renaud, which is a route for fire trucks, on-street parkers complied with an officer's request to clear their vehicles from the street.

Forged check

Officials of a bank with offices on Mack in the Woods are reviewing lobby videotapes of an as-yet unknown woman who is suspected of trying to pass a forged check.

During the afternoon of Friday, July 21, a keen-eyed bank teller thwarted the woman's apparent effort to pass a forged $494 check. The teller suspected the woman of providing fake ID.

Rebuffed, the suspect, described as a heavy-set black female with shoulder-length hair, drove away in a maroon 1993 Ford two-door registered to a woman living on Nottingham in Detroit.

Ain't no stealin'

On Friday, July 21, at 8:30 a.m., Woods police patrolling the area of Mack and Cook Road investigated a man who was riding a bicycle while carrying another.

The 23-year-old man said he owned the bike he was riding. He said he scavenged the bike he carried, which had two flat tires and cobwebs in the spokes, from the trash.

"I ain't got time to steal no bike" cause I'm gettin' me a car," he said. The man said he worked at a store on Mack. Police believed him and let him go home to Detroit.

Rats visit

On Friday, July 21, at 8:30 a.m., Woods police received a call from a resident reporting a rat on her front porch.

No, it wasn't a solicitor, magazine salesman or religious recruiter. It was a real pest. Police couldn't find the animal and suggested the woman hire an exterminator. As for solicitors, they need a permit from city hall.

Off wanted list

Woods police investigating teenage pranksters in the 1000 block of Canterbury picked up a man standing on the sidewalk who was wanted on state charges for violating parole.

The Michigan Department of Corrections had issued a warrant for the 26-year-old Woods resident on charges stemming from armed robbery.

Loud party

Things are dry in the weekly report of underage drinking parties in Grosse Pointe Woods. However, officers may have broken up a minor-league bash before it got going.

On Thursday, July 20, at 11:05 p.m., officers responding to a noisy gathering in a house in the 1000 block of Canterbury discovered a group of young people with cans of beer nearby. Officers told all underage revelers to leave the dwelling. None appeared to

2000 Toyota MR2 Spider: It's affordable; it's exotic

"By positioning the DOHC VVT-i engine near the center of the chassis, Toyota engineers have succeeded in lowering the polar moment of inertia." So says Toyota's promo-

It is a sports car, for fun, not a family car. If you have a briefcase and a newspaper, that pretty well fills up the car's passenger compartment. And for all practical purposes, wheels are at the corners of the body — and it has a wide track and different sized rear and front tires, so staying firmly on the road is no problem. Its mid-engine design and its speedy steering recovery all add up to lots of fun on curvy roads.

"Spyder" was a name Italian makers began putting on some of their roadsters in the '60s, an Italian spelling of the English word "speeder." The word came back into English with the "y" spelling, pronounced "spider" as an Italian word for fast sports car. At least, I think that's how it went.

The convertible top is well designed and easy to operate. Simply pop two header latches, manually lift the top, get out and it folds down in its well, where it snaps into place and lies flat. A small wind-breaker screen keeps the passenger seats free of blowing from the rear. The MR2 is one of three new vehicles Toyota introduced for 2000 to appeal to younger buyers, along with the Echo and the Celica GT.

The Spyder rides low on a platform with MacPherson struts at each corner. The rear-drive wheels are driven through a five-speed manual and a new electric hydraulic power steering system gives it a precision unusual if not unknown in the '60s.

The body features steel panels bolted onto a high-rigidity unit-body, a natural for customizing.

Sports cars in the '50s and '60s tended to be bare-bones affairs. The MR2 Spyder comes standard with air conditioning, ABS, power windows and doors, tilt steering wheel and a glass rear window in the convertible top with defroster.

As might be expected, fuel economy is exceptional. EPA mileage estimates are 28 mpg city/34 mpg highway.

tional material about its affordable mid-engine sports car, the 2000 Toyota MR2 Spyder.

What does that mean? The MR2 is so well balanced it can take corners as quickly as its styling turns heads.

Toyota bills the MR2 Spyder as the "affordable exotic." And that's a good description.

It goes up against the Mazda Miata in the market, but its looks are more like a tiny Ferrari or Porsche. And its mid-ship engine placement gives it the stability and precise control of that type of car.

But if you want an "affordable exotic," you better not wait too long, because Toyota plans to market only 5,000 of them this year in the United States. By contrast, Mazda sells about 20,000 Miatas a year. And they cost just about the same. Our test car had a sticker price of $23,553.

For that price, you can get a Mazda Miata, but you can't get a Porsche, BMW, or Ferrari.

With its well-balanced mid-engine design, the MR2 scores high on the fun scale, as befits an exotic, affordable or not. And this is affordable.

there is no cargo space in the trunk.

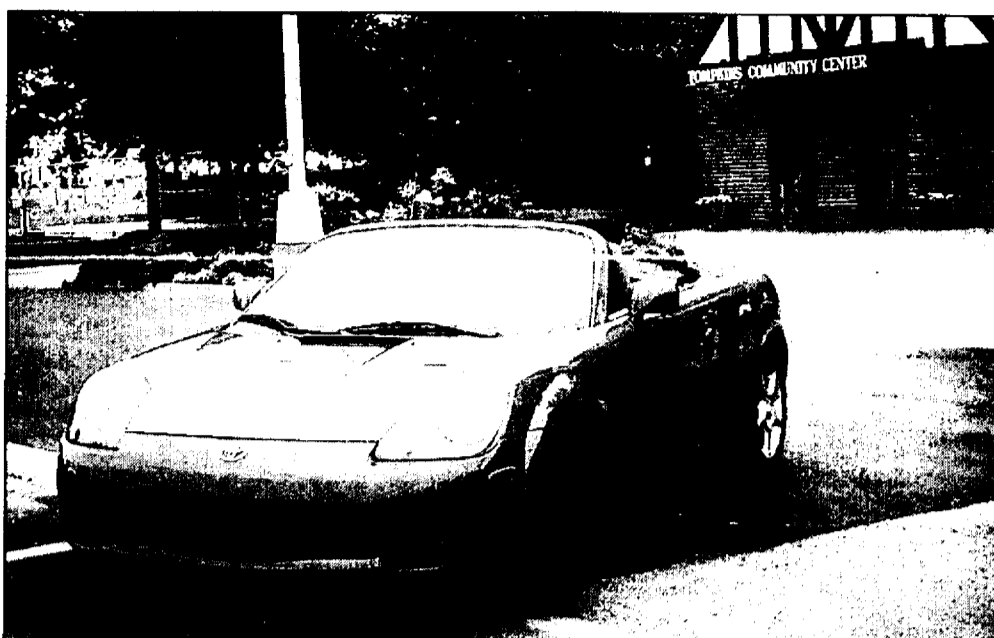

The popularity of two-seat roadsters is on the rise, sparked no doubt by the earlier MR2 but mostly by the Mazda Miata. With the Miata, Mazda consciously tried to recreate the fun and the feel of the small British sports cars of the '50s and '60s — the MGs, Triumphs, and Austin Healeys — but with modern Japanese quality and efficiency.

The Miata succeeded admirably. So does the MR2 Spyder.

One of my first observations upon sitting in the MR2 for the first time was how much it looked from the driver's seat like an MG Midget from the '60s. Unlike the MG Midget, it started quickly, ran efficiently and had more than enough power.

The MR2 Spyder shares an engine with Toyota's Celica GT, a 1.8-liter twin-cam 16-valve four-cylinder unit which produces 138 horsepower. Since the car only weighs about 2,200 pounds, this is more than enough to propel the roadster through its rear wheels like a pocket rocket.

It has a relatively long wheelbase for its stubby size

The new 2000 Toyota MR2 Spyder cuts a rakish figure with its top down. And putting the top down and up is a simple operation.

From the rear, the Toyota MR2 Spyder retains its exotic look. The engine is behind the seats, ahead of the rear axle, which is good for balance, bad for cargo space.

Summer school, reading clinics having a banner year

By Bonnie Caprara
Staff Writer

It's another record-breaking year for the Grosse Pointe Public School System's summer school.

About 1,000 students, 200 more than last summer, are attending classes at Grosse Pointe North High School.

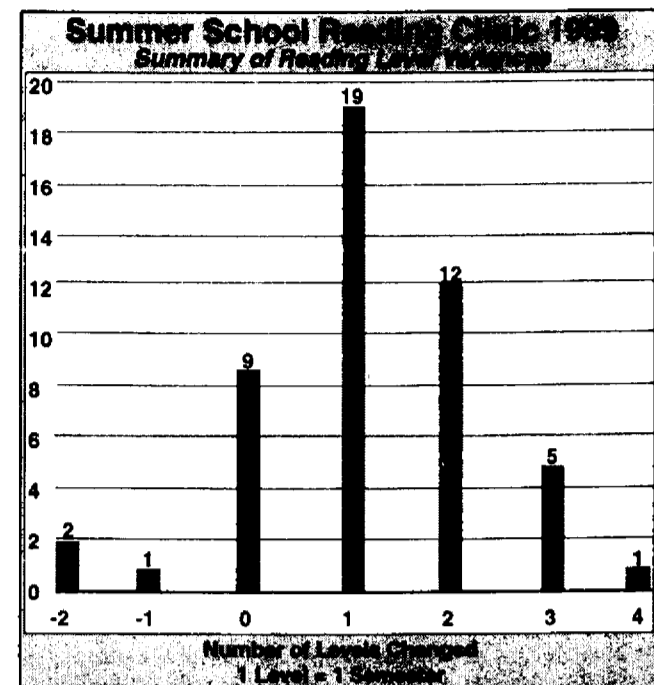

"We have kids from all over the area including students from France, Japan and Poland who are visiting families and friends," said summer school director Lynn Bigelman. "They want to socialize with American kids."

Sixty-three teachers are teaching a variety of subjects from first grade readiness to ACT/SAT testing strategies. New offerings include elementary instrumental classes, middle school TV production and high school desktop publishing.

One of the most popular offerings are the reading clinics, especially for the early elementary grades. The program has grown from five students when it first began five years ago to 85 students this summer.

Bigelman said that most of the students attending the summer reading clinics work with a reading specialist in their schools during the school year. They are encouraged to attend the summer program to keep up the progress.

Students meet three times a week and are given fiction and non-fiction reading assignments. In addition to working on vocabulary and understanding main ideas, reading clinic teacher Paul Booker said that students have assignments to understand facts, make opinions and ask their own questions about the reading materials. Booker believes giving students a chance to respond with their own opinions helps them evaluate their reading materials more effectively. That along with introducing the students to high-interest materials contributes to student success in the program.

"When you build on the creative base, they're able to expand and understand a number of things they're reading," said Booker. "Also, we give the students a chance to respond with their own opinion, which helps in doing the evaluation."

"Early intervention is important," continued Bigelman. "If you can remediate reading skills in the early elementary years, it makes it easier for the kids in the years to come."

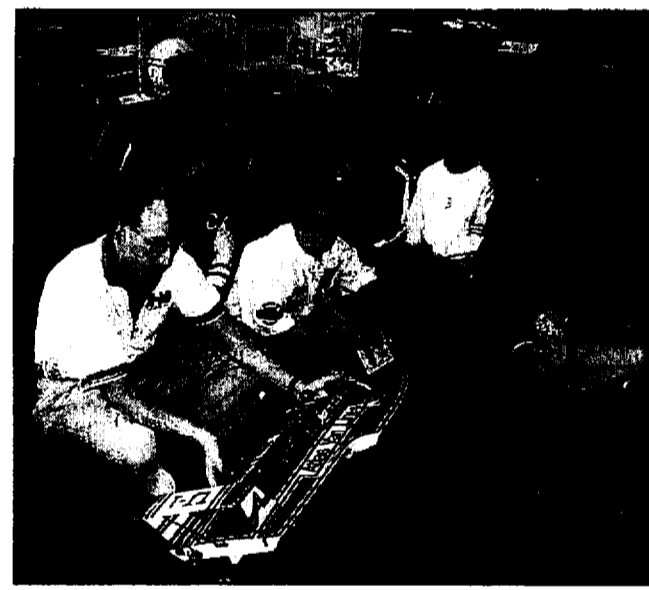

Bigelman also added, "We've gotten credible results since we test students at the end of the program."

Results from last year's post-clinic assessments showed that 75 percent of the students who attended the reading clinics improved by at least one reading level (or semester).

Bigelman said, "It's our goal to keep these kids at their reading level."

The summer school reading clinics could be considered a step ahead and above the Reading Plan for Michigan Gov. John Engler signed into effect in October 1999. Part of that plan calls for a summer reading program to offer intensive help in reading for students.

Booker, who is also a reading specialist at Pierce Middle School and past president of the Michigan Reading Association, said, "In many ways this program has superseded or has exceeded the governor's mandate."

ORDINANCE NO. 353

AN ORDINANCE TO AMEND SECTION 501(3) OF ORDINANCE NO. 200, ENTITLED ZONING ORDINANCE, TO PROVIDE FOR REVISED MAXIMUM HEIGHT STANDARDS FOR RESIDENTIAL STRUCTURES IN THE RESIDENCE DISTRICT, AND TO REPEAL INCONSISTENT PROVISIONS.

The Village of Grosse Pointe Shores ordains:

I. Article V of the Zoning Ordinance of the Village of Grosse Pointe Shores, being ordinance No. 200, is amended by repealing the current Section 501(3) and replacing it with the following:

(3) Maximum Height: Thirty (30) feet in height (not to exceed two stories), on all buildable lots of 120 feet or less in lot width. Thirty three (33) feet in height on all buildable lots in excess of 120 feet in lot width, providing the lot contains at least 12,000 square feet, and providing further that the portion of the roof above thirty (30) feet (measured horizontally as viewed from the street), cannot exceed 30% of the width of the structure (measured at the level of the second story), as viewed from the street.

II. Miscellaneous provisions.

a. Inconsistent Ordinances Repealed. All ordinances or parts of ordinances in conflict, or inconsistent with this ordinance are hereby repealed.

b. Effective Date: Publication. This ordinance shall take effect immediately upon publication of this ordinance, or a synopsis thereof, in a newspaper circulated in the Village of Grosse Pointe Shores, which publication shall be within 15 days after passage.

Day care — it's not just for children anymore

The "Age of Aquarius" has long since passed and in its place comes a new era, which might properly be termed the "Age of the Computer."

The "flower children" with their songs of love and brotherhood have been displaced by robots.

They will take people's place in industry, supposedly doing a more efficient job of manufacturing products.

Society will become polarized. Individuals will be educated, they will shop, bank, invest and they will make friends — all with people they will never see. They will be entertained by the computer and a video hook-up.

We will have to go to great ends to maintain personal contacts. Our medical problems will be diagnosed by computer.

We will punch in our symptoms and the computer in its Hippocratic wisdom will sort out what we have fed it and decide what ails us and what the treatment should be.

Hopefully, it will never come to a point where a robot in a white coat with a stethoscope hanging around its neck will pat our hand, tell us everything is fine and to take two aspirin and log in the morning!

It will never work. Sick people and well people, too, need the sound of a human voice, the touch, the smile, the look of a caring person to survive.

Technology has done much for us. It has extended our lives. It has also decided who shall live or die and when. It has made it possible for us to circle the world in less time than it took our predecessors to cross the country, but it has also brought closer to our shores the threat of devastating wars.

It has forced us to deal with ideologies of other countries which are counter to our beliefs.

The depersonalization resulting in theories that nothing is permanent and everything is worth an experiment has widened the gap between generations.

Older people, for the sake of maintaining relations with sons and daughters, have been forced to accept situations that violate their notion of right and wrong.

How many older people are truly comfortable with the life-style of prodigies who opt for "live in" arrangements and quick and easy divorces? How many grandparents miss the contact with grandchildren who are lost to them in divorce or separated from them by distance?

Technology has put us on the Moon, but it has removed us from the rarefied romantic atmosphere where we floated in happy ignorance of the efficient-but-sterile life that technology has created for us.

It came so fast that we are having a difficult time finding answers to the problems that this startling new world has posed.

But accommodate we must. One of the miracles that technology has wrought is longer life for all of us, and with that has come the problem of making the best of those added years.

Various organizations, national, local and private, are working on providing answers for such needs as better health care, adequate housing, easy access to transportation and recreational opportunities.

But there is another segment of society that is also affected by the longevity of relatives.

They are people who are approaching old age themselves. How many times do you read of sons or daughters in their 60s trying to care for parents in their 80s?

Sometimes the caregivers have health problems themselves, and while they are willing, they are unable to do it alone.

Then there are those who must work and have an elderly parent living with them who cannot be left alone. They, too, need help.

Happily, even while many questions arising from our changing times go unanswered, there does seem to be a solution for this problem — day-care centers for seniors.

Such centers can fill the gap between neighborhood senior centers, which are generally not equipped for the infirm, and institutionalization.

For caring families, senior day care provides a welcome relief from the strain of providing full-time care for dependent relatives at home and the guilt of banishing them to a nursing home.

Day-care centers are a blessing, because sometimes elderly people who don't need to be there are put in nursing homes because there is no other alternative.

Day-care centers, besides providing a needed service to older people, such as meals, medication at proper intervals and leisure activities, also keep people living in the community with independence and dignity.

Seniors have a home to go to when the day is over. They have companionship of others with whom they can reminisce, and they are free of worry from accidents that can happen to older people who are relatively helpless and alone, not to mention the possibility of intruders.

Newspaper stories bear out the possibility of violence against an older person alone at home.

Basically there are two types of adult centers. There are health centers, where the focus is providing medical services, such as physical and speech therapy.

The second type is a "social" day-care center, which stresses social and recreational activities, though it also may have nurses and therapists on the staff.

In a busy computer world, day-care centers for seniors provide an answer to what could be a social problem.

atmosphere. The care is excellent with the one-on-one personal attention they provide. I am very comfortable with the level of care being provided there."

While the Eastwood House nicely fills a crack in the system, it is not for everyone. It is a private-pay facility costing between $2,800 and $3,600 a month.

The price tag is manageable on a good pension, difficult on most families and impossible on Medicaid.

Also, Eastwood only takes in residents that can move around (ambulate) on their own.

Constant, advanced medical care cannot be accommodated, but the house will take in residents with mild dementia.

The Boneffs stress that their facility is also perfect for short-term rehabilitation stays for people recovering from an injury or operation who are not quite ready to live alone again.

As they talk about their program and ideals, the Boneffs use words like socialization, long-term care, rehabilitation and independence, terms that many believe are too uncommon in today's elderly facilities.

Lillian often thinks back to the time she spent in the nursing home recovering from her broken hip. The lack of personal care left her lost.

"I didn't think I had interesting things to say anymore," she recalled. "Then I came here and I told my life story and they all listened. You know what? I think I might still be interesting."

Tom and Cassie Boneff stand outside the Eastwood House with residents Lillian Thompson and Merwin Unterhager.

MORATORIUM ON LOT SPLITS

WHEREAS, the Village Council is desirous of reviewing the current ordinance provisions pertaining to lot splits, and

WHEREAS, the Planning Commission and the Council need time to study the matter while at the same time maintaining the status quo; and

WHEREAS, the existing lot split ordinance contains provisions that may not now be in the best interests of residential development which maintains the character of the neighborhoods in the community; and

WHEREAS, the Council believes there is both a possibility and a likelihood that attempts may be made to "split lots" while this matter is under consideration;

NOW THEREFORE, IT IS RESOLVED by the Village Council as follows:

I. There is hereby declared a moratorium on the following activities within the Village of Grosse Pointe Shores:

- The receiving or processing by the Village of any applications for a lot split of any nature whatsoever on any land within the Village.
- This moratorium is effective at 10:00 p.m. on July 19, 2000, and shall terminate at the conclusion of the regular October Council meeting unless terminated or extended by the Village Council prior to that time.
- This moratorium shall not affect any pending applications for lot splits which have been properly filed with the Village prior to July 19, 2000.

Issued effective as of 10:00 p.m. July 19, 2000 by vote of the Village Council

Alice Heminway Wardwell

Alice Heminway Wardwell considered herself the luckiest woman on this earth. Her love and sense of humor were a wonderful inspiration to her family and dear friends who will miss her. Mrs. Wardwell died Friday, July 14, 2000.

Alice Heminway Wardwell

Mrs. Wardwell was born in Watertown, Conn., to the late Buell H. and Agnes T. Heminway. She attended Miss Porter's School in Farmington, Conn., and attended the Residence School in New York, N.Y. Her debut in Grosse Pointe was made in 1939.

Mrs. Wardwell was an active member of the Detroit and Grosse Pointe communities. She served as former president of the Children's Home of Detroit and the Farmington Association of Michigan. She was also a member of the Garden Club of Michigan, the Tau Beta Association, the Junior League of Detroit, the Country Club of Detroit and Christ Church Grosse Pointe.

Mrs. Wardwell's interests included her gardens, art classes, sharing an afternoon of bridge with her friends and spending time with her grandchildren and great-grandchildren. Her family and friends cherish her memory, not with sadness or regret, but with the same joy, peace of mind, appreciation of beauty and good humor with which she embraced life.

She is survived by her five children and their spouses, Alice (George) Haggarty, Suzanne (William) Prescott, Sheldon (Christine), Jeffrey (Deborah) and Jonathan (Cyrenia); 15 grandchildren and six great-grandchildren. She was predeceased by her husband, J. Otis II.

Services were held Monday, July 24, at Christ Church Grosse Pointe. Interment is at the church columbarium.

Memorial gifts may be made to the Children's Home of Detroit, 900 Cook, Grosse Pointe Woods, MI 48236 or to the charity of choice.

Credit fraud

On Wednesday, July 19, a man reported that officials of a local bank informed him that someone had used his Social Security number to apply for a credit card. The man said the application had been made without his knowledge.

Drivers caught

On the afternoon of Wednesday, July 19, a Grosse Pointe Woods detective recognized that a 23-year-old Detroit man who pulled up to a court arraignment in a 1999 Chevrolet Corvette had a suspended driver's license. Police impounded the car and cited the man, who couldn't provide proof of insurance.

In a similar incident the next day in the Park, court officials alerted police that someone with a suspended license was driving away from the municipal building. Officers arrested the subject and found suspected marijuana in the car.

Crime is a pain

A suspected shoplifter with what must have been the mother of all headaches was caught leaving a store in Grosse Pointe Park with what police said were 14 unpaid boxes of pain relievers.

The males suspect gave a fake name but police learned who he was through fingerprints.

The incident took place in the 15000 block of Kercheval on Saturday, July 22, at about 11 a.m.

Drinking in the Shores

Grosse Pointe Shores public safety officers were kept busy last week when they made several arrests in four different cases involving drinking and driving.

On Saturday, July 22, at 6:30 p.m., a patrol officer saw a 1984 Chevrolet pickup truck squeal out from a stop light near Lakeshore and Vernier. When the officer pulled the vehicle over and spoke with the driver, he smelled the odor of alcohol.

The officer asked the driver if he had been drinking and the driver, a 26-year-old Detroit man, said, "yes, I've had some booze." When the driver left his vehicle to perform some field sobriety tests, the officer noticed a plastic cup on the floor. He asked if there had been alcohol in it, and the driver admitted there was.

The passenger, a 27-year-old Royal Oak woman, said the cup was hers. The driver blew a .187 on his preliminary breath test (PBT) and was cited for operating a motor vehicle while under the influence of intoxicating liquors and driving with an open intoxicant. The driver was cited for carrying an open intoxicant in a motor vehicle. He is free on $100 bond.

Earlier that day, at 1:30 a.m., Shores police spotted a 1991 Oldsmobile speeding on Lakeshore. When the vehicle was pulled over, the driver, a 37-year-old Harper Woods woman, had bloodshot eyes and appeared confused and had slurred speech. She admitted to having "a few drinks." The officer also saw an open beer bottle on the passenger side of the car.

She failed her field sobriety tests and blew a .27 on her

PBT. After she was arrested her car was searched and police found four bags containing an ounce of a substance that tests indicate was marijuana. The driver was cited for operating a motor vehicle while under the influence of intoxicating liquors, careless driving, and possession of a narcotic substance. She is free on $100 bond.

On Wednesday, July 19, at 12:41 a.m., a patrol officer saw a 2001 Cadillac driving erratically on Lochmoor. The vehicle was finally pulled over near Provencal. When the officer questioned the driver, a 58-year-old Grosse Pointe Farms man, he admitted to having a "few drinks." The driver failed his field sobriety tests and blew a .22 on his PBT. He is free on $100 bond.

On Tuesday, July 18, at 1:18 a.m., Shores police received a cellular telephone call from a driver who spotted a 1989 Ford Escort driving erratically along Lakeshore. An officer was sent to investigate and he spotted a car matching the description given by the cell phone caller. The Escort was pulled over near police headquarters.

The driver, a 35-year-old Hazel Park man, appeared to have been drinking and slurred his speech when he spoke. He failed his field sobriety tests and refused to take a PBT. Passengers included his wife and two daughters, both under the age of 9. He was taken to St. John Hospital, where technicians took a blood sample for testing. The driver was cited for operating a motor vehicle while under the influence of intoxicating liquors, child endangerment and refusing to take a PBT. He is free on $100 bond.

Drinking in the Farms

Proving that catching drunk drivers is something not limited to Grosse Pointe Shores, Grosse Pointe Farms public safety officers arrested a 19-year-old Grosse Pointe Park resident at 2 a.m. on Sunday, July 23.

A patrol officer spotted a 1996 Dodge van with a burned out headlight while on patrol on Fisher Road. He pulled the vehicle over and when he spoke with the driver, the driver appeared to be confused. The driver also denied drinking at first, but then admitted to having "a beer" at a nearby concert.

He also failed his field sobriety tests and blew a .145 on his PBT.

When the driver was searched, the officer also found a flask that the driver said contained whiskey.

He was taken into custody and charged with operating a motor vehicle while under the influence of intoxicating liquors and driving with faulty equipment.

Farms vandals

Grosse Pointe Farms public safety officers investigated a couple of vandalism cases with similar methods of operation last week.

On Thursday, July 20, they were called to the 300 block of Kercheval. A resident showed them that a window of his van was smashed when someone threw a lawn ornament through it the night before.

On Wednesday, July 19, the driver's side window of a car parked in the first block of Touraine was smashed. The incident took place between 8 a.m. and 2 p.m.

Car larceny

A man was eating in a restaurant near the corner of Mack and Moross at 1 p.m. on Tuesday, July 18, when some people came in and said they saw two men breaking into his truck parked nearby.

The witnesses said they took some tools and last saw the suspects heading north on Hillcrest in a dark "Corsica" type vehicle. The value of the tools stolen is estimated to be close to $1,000.

Shores to fine-tune zoning ordinances

By Jim Stickford
Staff Writer

The Grosse Pointe Shores Village Board of Trustees, in response to several recent variance requests, have or are in the process of fine-tuning zoning regulations affecting lot splits and house heights.

At the July 19 meeting, the board approved regulations affecting house heights. The new rules allow homes with less than 120 feet in width to be no more than 30 feet in height.

Houses on lots that are more than 120 feet wide can now reach a height of 33 feet. These regulations set two height standards — the notion being that larger lots can accommodate taller homes without disrupting a neighborhood's ambience.

This new ordinance came about after a recent variance request from a Shores resident who wished to build a home on a large lot. The house would have exceeded the allowable height regulations by about two feet.

The variance was approved, but Mayor John Huettelman asked that trustee Cameron Piggott, along with the appropriate village officials and planning commission members, review the current regulations to see if any changes could or should be made.

At the July meeting the new ordinance was presented to the board. Piggott said the proposal was made as more of an effort to fine-tune ordinances that were passed in 1995. He added that the goal was to maintain standards, but allow a certain flexibility needed for a community that has lots of different sizes in the same neighborhoods.

Part of the problem in limiting house height by neighborhood is that it's possible to have homes on lots of varying widths on the same block. So the best way to regulate is strictly by lot size.

The board of trustees also voted to approve a moratorium on lot splits until the board's Oct. 20 meeting.

The thinking behind that move, said Huettelman, is that there are a number of irregularly shaped lots along Lakeshore. A recent request for a lot split along the lake brought these lots to the attention of the board.

"We have to decide how we are going to allow these lots to be split," Huettelman said. "Right now we just spent three months going back and forth with Mr. and Mrs. Rankin Peck on a split in the 800 block of Lakeshore. We don't want to do that again. We're talking about a small number of lots, between 10 and 20, where the property lines zig-zag from Lakeshore to the lake."

These few irregular lots really aren't covered well under current law, Huettelman said. So the board has decided to have a moratorium on lot splits for about three months to give members time to consider options.

Village attorney Ralph Houghton said that there are no lot splits before the board currently and the moratorium should be enacted so that no one slips one in while the board considers the question. So if the board agrees to any changes in lot splits, everyone will be starting from the same point.

The board unanimously approved the moratorium until Oct. 20.

Mock drowning in Park

Grosse Pointe Park lifeguards undergo annual review at Windmill Pointe Park. Terri Solomon, the city director of parks and recreation, conducts unannounced tests to see how her guards react to unexpected emergencies. The guards never know when the "drowning" will happen or who will be the victim. In the exercise above, pretend victim Mike Melnyk is attended by guards, from left, Ashlee Linne, Ahmad Maki, Dan Olson and Regan Roth. Lifeguards from the five Grosse Pointes will compete at the Pointe-wide Top Guard competition at Windmill Pointe Park on Wednesday, Aug. 2, at 4 p.m.

Greenspan giveth, but also taketh away

Fed Chairman Alan Greenspan's testimony before the Senate Banking Committee on Thursday, July 20, sent the stock market soaring.

Portfolio managers and traders alike opened their wallets and bought big after the speech. Both the DJI and NASDAQ caught fire on the upside.

The Dow spurted 148 points, or 1.4 percent, and the NASDAQ Composite rose 129 points, or 3.2 percent, both very nice one-day changes.

The chairman's presentation was televised on C-Span, the government channel. Some analysts noted, by comparison with the previously distributed text, that Greenspan either intentionally or inadvertently skirted over passages about economic growth, unemployment, and inflation.

Prepared texts are often distributed to the media shortly before events, with the understanding that there cannot be any premature news leaks. The media can then summarize the text into their 40-second "sound bites" for their later TV and radio news reports.

Not many cable viewers have any idea where to find the C-Span channel on their remote. In a fast-moving market, most portfolio managers and traders rely on news flashes from their financial subscription services: Dow Jones (the publisher of the Wall Street Journal) and Bloomberg Financial Services (not available to the general public).

The media reported that Greenspan indicated "the economy had started to slow," from which one may infer that the Fed won't increase interest rates at its Aug. 22 meeting.

But most Fed watchers know that some of the things left unsaid are more important than what he did say.

Since Greenspan's speech did not explicitly call for any Aug. 22 rate hike, the stock markets took off.

But the party hangover ended Friday morning when the Wall Street economists delivered their analysis of what was said and unsaid to their managing partners.

Friday's selling was an unwinding of most of Thursday's buying. The week ended on a dismal note: the DJI closed at 10,733, off 79 points, basically unchanged.

The NASDAQ Composite was trimmed 3.6 percent for the week, closing again at 4,094, off 152 points.

Greenspan admitted that the economy appeared to have slowed somewhat during the second quarter; although, he said, the data was not yet in.

You don't have to have a Ph.D. in economics in Washington to come to that conclusion. In the "old days," they used to say, "Ask the man who owns one" (a Packard car owner).

If you're not sure that things are slowing down yet, ask your salesperson selling new cars. Ask your barber.

What price growth?

Everyone wants growth stocks, which grow faster than the economy, usually measured by the gross domestic product, currently about $509 trillion-plus.

But you have to be careful which growth rate is being referred to. The "actual growth rate" is defined as a "gross" number, not adjusted for inflation, currently about 4.5 percent, year to year.

The "real growth rate" is the "actual growth rate" reduced by current price inflation to produce the rate of physical growth. But which consumer price index (CPI) should you use?

The Bureau of Labor Statistics (BLS) compiles various inflation indices on a monthly basis. If you want to find it on the Internet, just "search" for "consumer price index."

The first website listed is "URL: <http://11stats.bls.gov/cpi-home.htm>". When you "click" this, it will bring up the CPI home page. Then "click" Line 13 in blue type, which lists the "Table Containing History of CPI-U U.S. All Items Indexes and Annual Percentage Changes from 1913 to Present."

This table shows the CPI-U (for all urban consumers) for all months 1913 through June 2000, base: 1982-84=100.

The CPI-U for June 2000 was 172.3, a 3.67 percent increase over June 1999's 166.3. The July 2000 index will be released on Aug. 16, at 8:30 a.m., EDT.

Some years ago, the BLS decided to smooth out the seasonal and other erratic fluctuations in the CPI. They identified two such sources — food and fuel prices. By eliminating these two components, they established the "Core CPI," which is not as volatile as the regular CPI.

The annual "Core CPI" for June 2000 was a 2.4 percent increase over June 1999, 1.3 percent less increase than the regular CPI, the difference being the annualized inflation of food prices plus oil product prices, which were eliminated.

Many economists, including some from the Federal Reserve, believe that the "Core CPI" gives a truer picture of current prices by eliminating those highly seasonal and cyclical items listed above. Other analysts have an equally strong opinion that only the real prices of all items today indicate the true inflation rate.

Would you determine the winner of a baseball game by eliminating all runs triggered by home runs of both teams? Aren't homers somewhat erratic?

But Greenspan has another word. He testified again Tuesday, July 25, before the House Banking Committee — after our press time. Did he change his tune somewhat from last week, we wonder?

X-Dividend contest

An eagle-eyed reader phoned to ask why the X-D Club changed one of the five contest categories from 1999. The third stock and the fifth category in 1999 had asked for the December 1999 closing price for Kmart (KM, about 7 7/16), but the 2000 contest substituted Masco Corp. (MAS, about 19 13/16).

At the May luncheon this year, an announcement was made that the 2000 contest would be distributed at the June luncheon, and, if no changes were proposed, the same format of the prior years would be used.

Wow, you should have heard the comments! Several members questioned why continue KM, when unsubstantiated rumors have been floating around that the company was "in play" as a buyout candidate because of its depressed market price and that KM stock might not be around on the Dec. 8, 2000, contest closing date.

The comments whirled around the luncheon table.

One member suggested an out-of-state Internet stock, but other members countered that the stock items had always been Michigan-based companies.

Another Michigan stock was suggested (name withheld), but the idea never got off the ground because its stock price had been trashed this year.

LTS suggested Masco, and everyone rallied to confirm the substitution.

Lawn care services: who fits your needs?

By Lori Z. Bahnmueller

Having been raised with three brothers, I went 30 years without ever pushing a lawn mower. And then I got married.

Like me, my husband was uneducated in the ways of the lawn. A German citizen who'd only lived in apartments until moving to the states, he still refers to the lawn as the "garden" and has just recently begun to accept the two-inch rule.

If competing with the Joneses wasn't motivation enough, the economic incentive alone could inspire any homeowner to give the neighbor's edger a test run.

According to the Better Business Bureau (BBB), a well maintained lawn and landscape can add 5 to 7 percent to a property's value. Considering the power of curb appeal on home sales, this came as little surprise.

Still, how does one achieve a magnificent landscape without sacrificing every Saturday, and sometimes Wednesdays, of the growing season?

For us the answer ultimately was to contract with a small, local lawn care service that has earned a solid reputation in our neighborhood.

As we learned the hard way, through grub attacks and heated arguments over whose turn it was to mow the lawn, there's much more to growing and maintaining a lush, green lawn than pushing a lawn mower.

When considering a lawn care service, employ the following advice from the Federal Trade Commission (FTC):

- Talk with others in your neighborhood who have used a lawn care service. Inquire specifically about the quality of service. Was service adjusted for weather conditions? In other words, after spurts of heavy rainfall and aggressive growth, did the service respond accordingly? How would your neighbor rate customer service?

- Shop around and obtain estimates. The lowest estimate may not necessarily provide all the services you need.

- Remember that each lawn is different and that your lawn does not necessarily need the same treatment as your neighbor's. Some companies may offer a free lawn analysis. Make sure you are getting "custom" service.

- Even the best lawns have weeds and pests. Ask to see evidence of specific and real problems before you agree to any treatment. The service we employ leaves evidence of insects in sealed plastic bags for our inspection. Further, a written report describes areas where pests are prevalent for our investigation.

- Check to see if the company is licensed with the state. Licensing often requires employees to have special training, especially those who apply pesticides to lawns. Ask what specific lawn care training the employees have.

- Check with your local consumer affairs office or BBB to see if any complaints have been lodged against the company.

- Find out if the company has liability insurance to cover any accidents that might happen while work is being performed in your yard or while pesticides are being applied.

Once you have chosen a lawn care service, secure the deal with a written contract. Peruse the contract carefully; know what specific services and lawn problems are covered and what are not:

- Are there extra charges for special services, such as fertilizing, disease control, or reseeding?

- Is the work guaranteed? If it is, get the guarantee (or warranty) in writing. Know when the guarantee expires, and what is included and excluded.

- What is the cancellation policy? Must you renew annually or is service scheduled indefinitely?

Many lawn care service contracts require written notice to cancel.

Save money on film, processing

In our unpredictable economy, we're all searching for bargain prices on cameras, lenses and other photographic equipment. Our thrifty efforts should apply to film, too.

Where we shop for film, how we shoot it, and where we get it processed can all produce noticeable cost savings.

Here are some ideas that will help you save money on film and processing.

Use the slowest speed film that lighting conditions will allow. In other words, don't always use fast films. Higher ASA films not only cost more to purchase, but colors are not as vivid and grain is more pronounced.

Consider using slide film as your color alternative. The cost of processing a roll of slide film is considerably less than that of a roll of color negative film. You can then have prints made from your best slides.

Think about doing some work in black and white. Black and white film and processing are less expensive than color. Black and white can enhance the aesthetics of many subjects and might just motivate you into doing your own darkroom work.

Shop around for specials. Many camera shops and large discount stores will save you considerably on film. Mail order businesses can also save you a lot. Film that includes processing mailers can save you money, too.

Learn to "short load" film. Here's how it works: As soon as the film leader is attached to the take-up reel, close the camera back and take up the tension by a couple turns on the rewind knob. Advance two more frames and you're ready to begin your roll. Doing this will usually give you a couple extra shots on each roll.

Conserve film by not shooting as many pictures as you are used to. Concentrate on quality rather than quantity. Take your time. Compose more thoughtfully and expose more carefully. Think "making photographs" rather than "taking snapshots."

Take note of the expiration dates on your film. If you think you won't use it all up

Live & Learn Courses & adventures

Enhance your mind, body and spirit by partaking in the courses and adventures offered by the Grosse Pointe War Memorial. Enter August on a high note with a performance by the Brookside Jazz during the final Music Festival Programs, Wednesday, Aug. 2, at 6:30 p.m. Tickets are $6 for adults or $2 for children. Advanced tickets guarantee indoor seating in case of inclement weather. Join in the Centennial celebration of a bigger and better Toledo Zoo during a day trip, Tuesday, Aug. 15, from 9:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. The fee is $24 or $22 for children, ages 2 to 11, and seniors. Make your reservations by Thursday, Aug. 10, to enjoy a wonderful production of Thornton Wilder's The Matchmaker, along with shopping and dining in the quaint Victorian town of Niagara-on-the-Lake, Ontario, Canada, during a Shaw Festival trip, Tuesday, Oct. 17 to Wednesday, Oct. 18. The fee is $249 per person, double occupancy or an additional $115, single supplement. Pre-register for classes using your Master Card or Visa, via fax at (313) 884-6638, e-mail: www.war memorial.org, or phone at (313) 881-7511.

before it expires, place your film in the freezer. This way, it will last indefinitely. Just allow a few hours for thawing out before loading it in your camera.

Finally, take routine precautions with your film to make sure all your shots will come out.

Use X-ray bags at security checks at airports. Make sure when using flash that you are at the proper synchronization speed.

Make sure the rewind knob on manual cameras reverses as you advance the film to assure it is moving through the camera. And, during hot weather, don't leave your loaded camera in a hot car where the heat may spoil those special shots.

To economize on film, Monte Nagler carefully composed and took just a couple shots of this cottage. It's located in Bunratty, Ireland.

Wayne County Prosecutors say, 'Mike Duggan is our choice.'

Dear Wayne County Citizens,

We, the undersigned Assistant Prosecutors of Wayne County, enthusiastically endorse Mike Duggan as the next Wayne County Prosecutor and urge you to vote for him in the Democratic primary on August 8, 2000. There are no Republican candidates in the race so the winner of the Democratic primary will become our next Wayne County Prosecutor.

We have dedicated our professional lives to serving the interests of the citizens of Wayne County as well as the interests of justice. The upcoming election now requires us to put partisanship aside and consider who is best able to lead us in our commitment to public service. Mike Duggan is our choice.

Many of us have worked with or been in court with the other candidates and we cannot support them for this important position. As veteran prosecutors, we know the needs of our community and our Prosecutor's Office. Because of the challenges facing our County, we realize a special person is needed as the next Wayne County Prosecutor. That person is Mike Duggan.

Mike Duggan is a proven leader and a man of integrity. He will aggressively attack the problems caused by gun violence, habitual offenders, crackhouses, the nagging persistence of violent juvenile offenders, family violence, and the looming problems of Internet crime. He is dedicated to working to keep guns from the hands of children. Mike Duggan is the right person to lead our fight against crime in the 21st Century.

Networking group helps business people keep in touch

By Jim Stickford
Staff Writer

Ours is an era of electronic communication. The technology that has created fax machines, the Internet and e-mail has allowed workers to get out of their offices and work out of their homes.

But every silver lining has a cloud. It is easy to be isolated and it is more difficult to meet people and make business connections.

This is why financial adviser Jeff Brayton started the Shoreline Business Network a couple of years ago.

"I started the group because I felt there was a need for people who were owners of small businesses and people who provided personal services such as financial advice, to have a forum to exchange leads and form business alliances."

Brayton said he has belonged to other groups and believes Shoreline is different because of the discussions members have when they meet on Thursday mornings.

"These discussions educate us on topics we haven't been exposed to," Brayton said. "This group is all about human communications and doing business with people you like and people you enjoy being around."

Lynda English, who works in business management services, said she enjoys coming to the weekly meetings because it gives her the chance to have personal contact with others in what she described as the "impersonal electronic age."

Brayton said that 19th century writer Nathaniel Hawthorne got it right when he talked about the "electric chain of humanity." There is a vitality that business people can't get by electronic communications; it can only come from meeting face to face.

The group started in early 1999 with only four members. Since that time it has grown to about 20 members. They meet at

The Shoreline Business Network draws on a variety of people at its Thursday morning meetings. Pictured (l-r) are Lynda English of Business Management Services, Susan Guleserian of Gourmet Parties and Two Sisters Gourmet, Wayne Ensworth of Verizon Communications, Roula Tsapralis of Schroeder, Howell & Trefter P.C., Judy Latcha of Latcha Limited Design Group, Mildred Anthony of A Southern Gardener, Liz Aiken of WorldConnect, Kevin Hickey of Northern Computer Services, Elizabeth Carpenter of Lions Gate Unlimited, Susan Gawel of Republic Bank Mortgage Corp., Jeff Brayton of Raymond James Financial, Kathy Hix of Accurate Insurance Agency and Sandy Harville of the Detroit Brew Factory.

Other members unavailable to be photographed include Barbara Payton of Pointe Fitness and Training, Jennifer Dunbar of Pointe Fitness and Training, Donna Lewis of D&N Bank, Wayne Wegner of Wegner and Associates P.C., Kim Krause of Ad Ink Communications, Mary Bauer of the Bauer Travel Agency, Mary Ellen Van Dusen and Karen Gennari of the Higbie Mazon Agency.

8:30 a.m. on Thursday mornings at the Crescent Sail Yacht Club. Each week there is a formal introduction of members, who say who they are and what they do.

Brayton said that's important because on any given week there might be new members or members absent and it's good to remind those who attend of who everyone is and what they do. There is a $10 monthly fee for members.

"We are independent business people,"

Brayton said. "We're a leads group. Friendships have evolved within the group and this has led to camaraderie that extends beyond business. We enjoy coming to these meetings. We get our business done, but we also enjoy ourselves through our developed friendships."

Brayton said a good example of members benefiting from belonging to the group is the quality of their vacations. Travel agent Mary Bauer is a member and has been able to provide her fellow group members with excellent personal attention and they have enjoyed excellent vacations as a result. You can try to get the best deal on the Internet, but having someone in the business advise you is something that is hard to beat.

"Beyond business referrals, many of our meetings have turned into round-table discussions on business issues and challenges that are common to service industries and self-employed people," Brayton said. "For example, during tax season our meeting focused toward proper tax preparation and planning."

Brayton said he got the idea for the group after attending the meetings of similar groups. He said he thought it would be a good idea to start one of his own.

One thing that surprised him was that group members all share common challenges such as staffing an office. Small firms can't always offer the benefits that large companies do.

With Barbara Payton and Jennifer Dunbar, who both work out of Pointe Fitness & Training, members hear about the importance of physical health.

Other members are in the fields of advertising, marketing, real estate, the law, accounting, entertaining and photography. Each brings his or her speciality to the mix. This allows members to have access to a variety of experts for help and contacts.

Not bad for $10 a month.

Shoreline Business Network is currently looking to have about 30 members. It is looking for people in the fields of dentistry, funeral services, floristry, home cleaning, home improvement, job placement, painting, plumbing and moving.

For more information, call Brayton at (313) 343-0788.

Baetz-Pennings

Cheryl Anne Baetz, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Andrew John Baetz Jr. of Grosse Pointe Farms, married Mark Arthur Pennings, son of Marilyn Pennings of Appleton, Wis., and the late Arthur Pennings, on May 20, 2000, at Christ Church Grosse Pointe.

Mr. and Mrs. Mark Arthur Pennings

The Rev. Bryant W. Dennison Jr. and Deacon Richard Shubik officiated at the 4 p.m. ceremony, which was followed by a reception at the Detroit Yacht Club.

The bride wore a sleeveless ivory gown that featured an embroidered bodice, a jewel neckline, an empire waistline and a cathedral-length train. She carried a bouquet of peach, ivory and purple roses, freesia, gardenias and purple tulips.

The matron of honor was the bride's sister, Michelle Baetz Kunzler of Grand Rapids.

Bridesmaids were Shannon Fairlamb of Minnetonka, Minn., Kimberley Hoskins of Waterford, Sarah Huthwaite of Grosse Pointe Park, Melissa Levi of River Falls, Wis., and Audrey McManus of Hazel Park.

The flower girl was Morgan Levi of River Falls.

Attendants wore two-piece sleeveless violet dresses with jewel necklines. They carried bouquets of lavender and ivory roses, gardenias and freesia.

The best man was Michael Pennings of Milwaukee.

Groomsmen were James Gerrits of Appleton, Wis.; Greg Kukla, Tom Pennings and Michael Perry, all of Chicago; and Steve Stratton of Evergreen Park, Ill.

Ushers were the bride's brother, Christopher Baetz of Grosse Pointe Farms and John Levi of River Falls.

The ring bearer was William Stratton of Evergreen Park, Ill.

The music was provided by the Christ Church Choir of Men and Girls, the organist was Frederic DeHaven, the soloist was Tamara Whitty and the Scripture readers were Shannon Fairlamb and John Levi.

The bride is a graduate of Olivet College. She works in the risk management department of Equity Office Properties Trust in Chicago.

The groom graduated from St. Norbert College. He is an account executive with Winstar Communications in Chicago.

The newlyweds honeymooned in Aruba. They live in Chicago.

Flanagan-Hamilton

Mrs. Rosemary Flanagan of Grosse Pointe Woods has announced the engagement of her daughter, Margaret Mary Flanagan, to Scott Richard Hamilton of Naples, Fla., and the late Elaine Hamilton. Flanagan is also the daughter of the late Charles B. Flanagan. A November wedding is planned.

Flanagan earned a bachelor of arts degree from the University of Michigan and a juris doctor degree from the Detroit College of Law. She is Michigan's assistant attorney general, executive division.

Hamilton earned a bachelor of science degree in accounting from the University of Central Florida and a master's degree in business administration in finance from Wayne State University. He is a senior associate with PriceWaterhouseCoopers.

Anniversaries

Smiths

HAVE A PLEASANT TRY AT PERFECTION BRIDGE BY WOODY BOYD

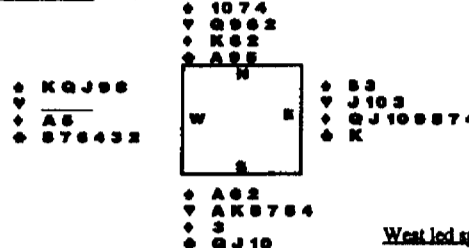

"It is not the going out of port, but the coming in that determines the success of a voyage."

— Henry Ward Beecher

Would you have made the winning play on the following hands? Average or better players should have. The key is to count winners and losers.

I.

BOTH VUL.

W N E S
3S 4H PASSED OUT 3H

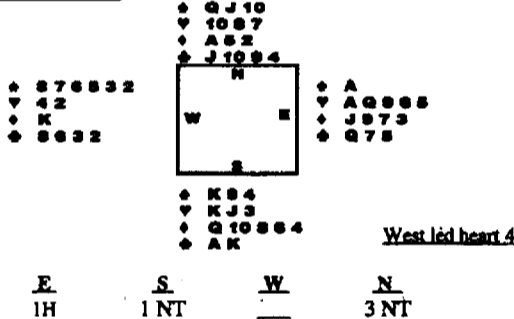

East preempt vulnerable was a bit venturesome, but West had the right tickets to deliver nine winners. Four hearts was tenuous and required careful play facing possibly 2 spades, a diamond and a club loser.

1. Declarer won spade ace
2. Won heart queen
3. Won heart king
4. Won heart ace
5. Lost diamond to West ace
6. Lost spade to West Queen
7. Lost spade to West Jack
8. Won Dummy's diamond king, pitching club 10
9. Ruffed Dummy's last diamond
10. Led club queen and played Dummy's ace, felling East's singleton king
- 11, 12, 13. Won club jack and two trumps

Key play was trick 10 playing Dummy's club ace, dropping East's king. Was Declarer lucky or did she display excellent technique? The latter. After trick 9, Declarer knew West had 10 HCP (Spade K, Q, J and diamond ace) and would have opened bidding if holding club king. She also knew both opponent's shape (West 5 0 2 6 and East 2 3 7 1). East singleton club had to be the king.

II.

NEITHER VUL.

Declarer counts seven winners (2S, 2H, 1D, 2C) and must win two more before opponents win five.

1. Declarer wins East's heart 9 with jack.
2. Loses spade king to East ace.
3. Loses heart ace.
4. Wins East's heart queen with king
5. Wins Dummy diamond ace noting West's king on his 4
6. Wins diamond 8 finessing E.
7. Wins Dummy spade queen.
8. Wins diamond 10, finessing East.
- 9, 10, 11, 12, 13. Wins 2 more diamonds, 2 clubs and Dummy's spade jack for 11 winners.

Key play was trick 6 when Declarer plays diamond eight, finessing East. If West wins nine or jack, no return will hurt as West has no more hearts. If at trick 6 South plays diamond 10, he wins nine tricks. If he plays queen, he is down, winning only eight tricks.

III.

E/W VUL.

E S W N
6S

The opponent's preempts made it a knotty problem for North/ South to find the solid gold contract, but North was well endowed with HCP and when South didn't pass the double, he resolved that a dozen had a play.

1. Dummy ruffed
2. Ace of trumps
3. Queen of trumps
4. Diamond three to Dummy's nine unless honor appears and you then win ace. (West should play low)
- 5, 6. Diamond ace, king
7. Loses a diamond
8. Ruff club jack
- 9 - 13. Wins 3 spades, heart ace, 2 diamonds

Key play was trick 4 when you should play Dummy's diamond nine. (Safety Play). If East can win remaining opponent's diamonds fall under ace, king.

Keeping kids healthy is as good as a shot in the arm

These days the only way most people hear about polio, measles or whooping cough is when older folks tell stories, recalling the health scourges of their youth.

"Most people today have never even seen the diseases that vaccines are designed to prevent," says Dr. Gary Freed, director of the University of Michigan division of general pediatrics. However, just because these diseases aren't seen doesn't mean their potential threat to health is eliminated. The need for timely immunization remains critical. "The next new vaccine that's due out and likely to be recommended late this summer is the pneumococcal vaccine that prevents bacteria streptococcus pneumonia," Freed says. "This is very exciting. Streptococcus pneumonia is the most common cause of invasive bacterial disease in children less than 2 years of age. This germ is now the leading cause of pneumonia and meningitis in the country."

Freed warns that since we now live in a global world, people from different countries come to ours and they might bring different germs, viruses and bacteria with them.

"If the children in our country aren't protected, then those types of diseases and germs can spread like wildfire," he says.

This occurred, he says, in the late 1980s and early 1990s. "We saw pockets of measles in this country when we hadn't seen many cases at all for probably close to two decades. We became complacent," he says.

Freed cites a good example of the toll of complacency. In the early 1990s, Great Britain discontinued the pertussis (whooping cough) vaccine for children.

"Within just a couple of years, there was an epidemic of whooping cough that resulted in the deaths and permanent disability of many children," he says. Mandatory vaccination for whooping cough was soon reinstated there.

Some parents are concerned about vaccines' safety. Many people have the false idea that immunization weakens the immune system, Freed says. In reality, vaccines do the opposite. "Vaccines strengthen the immune system. The vaccine is a weakened piece of a virus or bacteria. When it is placed in the body, the body begins to recognize this as something bad. But in the weakened form, the body easily overpowers it and builds up antibodies and resistance to it," he says. "The body recognizes it and attacks it. The vaccine provides a system for the body to recognize things that don't belong there, so an immune response is much faster," Freed says.

During the first year of a child's life, vaccines are administered at birth, at intervals of 2, 4 and 6 months, and at 1 year of age. Unfortunately, sometimes during this early stage of life, disabilities such as developmental delays, cerebral palsy, autism and other disorders are initially diagnosed. Some parents suspect vaccines are the cause. The perception that vaccines cause these disorders is the result of coincidence, not cause and effect, says Freed.

Furthermore, vaccines are tested extensively before they come out on the market, he says.

"Vaccines are safe. They undergo rigorous testing before they're ever opposed for use or recommended for use in this country. Even after they come on the market they're also tested. They're followed," Freed says.

As an example, he cited a rotavirus vaccine that came out in the past year. This virus causes severe diarrhea that can be fatal in children. The vaccine was introduced into this country and it looked safe in pre-licensure tests, Freed says. However, there were a few reports of bowel problems. "These incidents were very, very rare. And on balance, the vaccine prevented countless cases of this disease, compared to the minor complications it caused. But the vaccine was removed from the market within six months because of the zero or near zero tolerance for vaccine risks," he says.

A vaccine for haemophilus influenza type B (HIB) — the most common cause of meningitis in children — was developed in 1992, Freed says. "I think it was the most significant day, the most important day in children's health in the last 20 years in this country," he says. Before the vaccine, some children were permanently disabled or died as the result of meningitis. "The number of meningitis cases we see in this country has fallen by more than 90 percent, simply as a result of using this vaccine," Freed says.

Freed also stresses the need for adults and seniors to receive timely vaccinations. "Adults need a tetanus booster at least every 10 years, and for seniors, it is very important they receive annual flu shots as well as pneumococcal and meningococcal vaccines," he advises.

Freed and his colleagues caution parents not to become lapsed about vaccinating their children. He realizes that with so many vaccines in the immunization schedule, it can become confusing. So he advises es that the best way for parents to be certain their children are protected is to review their children's immunization status every time they visit their health care provider.

"Go over their immunization record and find out what they need and when their next vaccines are due," he says.

Facts about vaccines

- Annually in the U.S., streptococcus pneumonia bacteria cause 71,000 cases of pneumonia, 16,000 cases of blood infections and 1,400 cases of meningitis. It also is the No. 1 cause of more than 5 million ear infections.

- The spread of disease is still a real threat because we live in a global, highly mobile world.

- Vaccines go through stringent testing before going on the market and they continue to be tracked after they are administered to the public.

- Adults, too, must be vigilant about their vaccine schedules, especially the elderly or those with compromised immune systems.

Endowed fellowship slated for renal research at St. John

A gift from the estate of a local entrepreneur will enable St. John Hospital and Medical Center to continue as a leader in the treatment and research of renal (kidney) disease.

The family of Alex Manoogian, co-founder of the Masco Corporation, has established the Alex and Marie Manoogian Research Fellowship in Renal Disease, SJH&MC's first endowed fellowship.

The endowment will be used to enhance both the hospital's and health system's reputations as centers of excellence for the treatment of renal disease, dialysis, research, and kidney and pancreas transplantation.

"As stewards of the Manoogian Fellowship, we have a great sense of obligation to the Manoogian family and to the community to ensure that through prudent use of the endowment, we will not only keep Alex and Marie Manoogian's legacy alive, but also make a significant impact on kidney research for years to come," said Dr. Joseph Beals of Grosse Pointe Shores, section chief of Nephrology at St. John.

Alex Manoogian died in 1996 after battling kidney disease for four years. Beals remembers him as a quiet man who was uncommonly humble.

"Alex had deep-seated compassion for the downtrodden of the world," Beals said. "It gave him great joy to see his money used in ways that would benefit mankind."

According to Dr. Robert Provenzano of Grosse Pointe Park, medical director of Transplant and Nephrology Fellowship Program, St. John's Nephrology fellowship program is already one of the most sought after programs in the country.

"The endowment serves to further enhance the reputation of St. John Hospital as a place that provides quality patient care and outstanding medical education," he said.

Alex Manoogian spent his lifetime helping others. Among his many donations was that of the Manoogian Mansion (home of Detroit's mayor), which he gave to the city in 1966.

Alateen gives support to children of alcoholics

"When dad drinks, he becomes a different person. I get scared. What should I do?" asked Tim, 14.

"I never have friends over after school because I don't know if mom will be drunk. I would be so embarrassed," said Susan, 17.

Children who live with an alcoholic are affected by the alcoholic's behavior. They often experience anxiety, anger, denial, broken promises, neglect, and physical, emotional or sexual abuse.

"Alcoholism is a family disease, a disease of relationships," write the authors of "Alateen: Hope for Children of Alcoholics."

"The people involved with the alcoholic learn to react to his/her behavior. Much of the child's time is spent trying to figure out ways of changing the alcoholic, but nothing works."

Children of alcoholics can survive and grow by building on their strengths, changing their attitudes, being kind to the alcoholic, and learning to detach from their loved one's problem.

That's where Alateen, a fellowship of young people whose lives have been affected by a loved one's alcoholism, can help.

"At Alateen meetings, we focus on the solution and not the problem," said Bill, a Minneapolis Alateen sponsor. "We don't try to fix people. No one tells the young people what to do."

Each person talks about his or her own experiences and learns how to make decisions.

They learn they can't control or cure the person's alcoholism. Alateen provides the tools to help young people take care of themselves emotionally.

Alateen is Al-Anon for young people. Like Al-Anon, a mutual-help support group for adult family members and friends of alcoholics, Alateen uses an adapted version of the Twelve Steps of Alcoholics Anonymous as a guide to living.

Meetings are held once a week and last an hour or more. Alateen members range in age from 11 to 19, and they run their own meetings with assistance from a sponsor from Al-Anon.

Most meetings begin with introductions by first name only and a reading from "Alateen A Day at a Time," a book of meditations for children of alcoholics. A modified version of AA's Twelve Steps and Twelve Traditions is read, followed by an in-depth discussion of a step, slogan or topic.

The group then breaks into small groups in which each teenager has an opportunity to talk about what is happening in his or her life; share success stories, strength and hope; and tell how he or she is caring for himself or herself.

"Alateen is the one safe place where I can talk about everything," said Jeff, 15, an Alateen member. "I'm learning how to deal with my problems. At first I was scared to say no to my dad when he was drunk. I've learned how to take care of myself and I've learned I don't have to be a slave to my dad."

"Alateen helped me talk to other kids who understand what it's like to live in an alcoholic home," said Tim. "People care what's happening to you, and you hear other people's problems and their successes. We learn to help each other."

Sponsors Michael and Bill identify several key concepts for Alateen members:

- Anonymity is crucial; what you say stays in the group.
- Young people learn better ways to respond to life and the alcoholic.
- You're not alone in your experiences.
- Most young people think they are part of the alcoholic's problem; this is not true.
- You cannot control another person's behavior; you are not responsible for the alcoholic.
- You learn to detach from the alcoholic. You can hate the disease of alcoholism, but still love the person who drinks.
- You learn to stop trying to fix other people's problems.
- Your job is to accept and take responsibility for your own life.

Charity golf

A charity golf classic will be held on Saturday, July 29, at the Wolverine Golf Club, 17201 25 Mile in Macomb. The event will benefit Joshua's Buddies and children afflicted with spinal muscular atrophy, an inherited neuromuscular disease that affects nearly 20,000 children.

Joshua's Buddies is a nonprofit organization dedicated to the fight against SMA. Joshua Cueter, 2 1/2, is the son of Joseph and Kris Cueter of Grosse Pointe Woods.

The golf event will begin at noon, with registration. The shotgun start will be at 1 p.m. and the entry fee of $125 includes 18 holes of golf, dinner at the Wolverine Golf Club and awards. Sponsorships are available for $1,000 and $500.

For more information about the golf classic or Joshua's Buddies, call (407) 359-7331.

Hospital volunteers are honored

Volunteers from St. John Hospital and Medical Center and St. John North Shores Hospital were recognized recently for contributing nearly 111,000 hours of service last year.

Besides enjoying dinner and dancing, many volunteers were honored for their special contributions.

Also honored were the hospital's 1999 Volunteers of the Month, including Grosse Pointers Mary Ann Giorgio and Jean Puleo.

Know Your Skin

by Lisa A. Manz-Dulac, MD

Frown lines, forehead wrinkles or crow's feet can be made to vanish using a technique referred to as Botox.

Using the same toxin produced in extremely large quantity by the bacteria that cause botulism poisoning, an injection of very small amounts of the toxin was found to make muscles more relaxed. The result is surrounding skin that appears smoother and less wrinkled.

Most effective in the upper third of the face, the most common cosmetic applications of Botox are to remove frown lines and wrinkles on the forehead and around the eyes. The drug is also being used to treat headaches, twitching eye syndromes and even overactive sweat glands.

The effects of Botox, while very effective, are also only temporary, normally lasting 3 to 6 months. When wrinkles return, it is necessary to repeat treatment.

To learn more about cosmetic treatments using Botox, contact your dermatologist or call us at Eastside Dermatology, Dr. Lisa A. Manz-Dulac and Associates (313)884-3330.

NEW ARRIVALS OF 2000

Grosse Pointe News and The Connection newspapers are planning their 6th annual special edition featuring the babies of the past year. We hope you (and the little one) will participate by supplying us with a photograph of your child (only 2000 babies, please) for publication in this section.

This tabloid will be published January 25, 2001. Your child's picture, along with other 2000 babies, will be the main attraction! News and advertising about clothing, feeding, educating and caring for your child will also be included. It will be very informative as well as a commemorative edition for you!

Please send a cute, clear photo (color or black & white, home or studio produced, not computer generated, preferably smaller than a 5x7) to Grosse Pointe News & The Connection, 96 Kercheval, Grosse Pointe Farms, Michigan 48236. Attention: Kim Mackey, Display Advertising. Complete the information slip with your child's full name, date of birth and hospital and return it with your photo. Please print the baby's name on the back of the photo so you can pick it up at our office after printing or include a self-addressed stamped envelope.

Your picture must be received in our office no later than Tuesday, December 19th, earlier would assist our production schedule. (Late November and December birth photos may be submitted until January 5, 2001.)

We look forward to producing our annual "Baby Edition" and are sure you want your little one included. A limited number of extra copies will be available for purchase to give to family and friends.

Stratford presents 'Medea,' classic tale of woman's revenge

The humiliation and rage of a woman whose man leaves her for another have been known to all cultures since time began. But few have endowed them with such powerful meaning as the ancient Greek playwright Euripides, in his play "Medea."

His audiences were stunned by it just as we still watch in awe, thrilled, saddened and sensitized by this 2,500-year-old story.

The Stratford Festival's production this summer uses a script freely translated from the Greek in the 1940s by Robinson Jeffers. It was scheduled this season as a contrast to another play about a woman with vengeance on her mind, Shakespeare's "Titus Andronicus," and the comparison is intriguing. It is interesting to see them back to back.

"Medea," however, outshines that early work of Shakespeare's.

It is partly that Medea is a more focused plot. Unlike "Titus," its conflict arises from a single event and leads to a single, final response.

The tragedy unfolds slowly, only to reach its climax with overwhelming impact at the very end. The tragic catharsis is as complete as it is irreversible.

It is so clear-cut that the title role stands as an archetype of the woman spurned whose love is turned to hate and whose rage is all-consuming.

In its broadest terms her mythical story is age-old. Medea is a princess from an Asian kingdom who helps the Greek adventurer, Jason, capture the Golden Fleece. For his love, she betrays her family and leaves her native land. She bears him two sons.

Once settled as a hero in the Greek city of Corinth, Jason puts her aside to marry the King's daughter. Medea finds herself condemned to exile and a life without status.

Seana McKenna is a Medea of enormous strength and determination. Her performance switches with formance switches with impressive ease from disarming charm and guile, to violent anger and resentment.

When King Creon comes to tell her she must go into exile immediately, her pleas for sympathy and delay wring the heart. Once his back is turned, her fury and scorn surface with equal conviction. She changes yet again into the calculating avenger as she contemplates how to get even with Jason and punish him. Then she portrays the terrible torment of the price she is about to pay for revenge. It is a riveting performance.

The genius of Euripides' creation is that with little action and much talk, it maintains high suspense as Medea's intentions unfold. With deliberate delay, always keeping alive the faint hope of evading her most horrifying revenge, the story creeps toward its terrible conclusion as Medea finally decides that she hates Jason more than she loves her children.

McKenna, along with a superb supporting cast, sustains that suspense with skill. Scott Wentworth, as Jason, trying to persuade her to accept reality provides a cynical kind of comic relief. To call him a cad would be a major understatement. The way Wentworth exhibits a masculine failure to understand Medea's feelings is classic.

Male chauvinists will empathize. Feminists will sneer.

Even in Jeffers' excellent translation, the play is still presented in the context of ancient Greek culture. Three women neighbors serve the function of a Greek Chorus with commentary and advice. At one point they speak in perfect unison with great impact.

From a cultural point of view, Medea's abandonment by Jason and her banishment by King Creon seem routine in the male-dominated society. In another test of modern credibility, Medea, having the reputation of a sorceress, calls on supernatural powers to help wreak her revenge. Her golden veil and wreath endowed with magic power were more meaningful in the distant past. Yet the issue of injustice by husband to wife culminating in the emotional impact of her incredible revenge resounds with today's concern for women's rights.

You're likely to find tzatziki sauce served as a topper for a gyro sandwich on most Greek restaurant menus.

The following version of this pungent dip is a snap to prepare. I pulled the recipe from Bon Appetit magazine and was quite happy with my results.

Cucumber yogurt dip with fresh dill
 2 cups plain yogurt
 1 English (hothouse) cucumber, unpeeled, halved lengthwise, seeded, grated
 2 to 3 teaspoons coarse salt (kosher or sea salt), depending on taste
 1/2 cup sour cream
 2 tablespoons fresh lemon juice
 2 tablespoons minced fresh dill
 1 garlic clove, minced
 6 pita slices, cut into wedges olive oil

À LA ANNIE

By Annie Rouleau-Scheriff

A day before serving, place the yogurt in a strainer or sieve that has been lined with a piece of cheesecloth. Put the strainer in a larger bowl and cover well with plastic wrap. Store overnight in the refrigerator.

In a small bowl, toss the grated cucumber with the coarse salt. Cover and chill for 3 hours.

Transfer the drained yogurt to a medium bowl and stir in the sour cream, lemon juice, dill and garlic. Using your hands and a strainer, squeeze out as much excess liquid as possible from the grated cucumber. Stir the cucumber into the yogurt mix and season with pepper to taste. Chill at least 2 hours before serving.

Brush each pita round lightly with olive oil before cutting into wedges. Place on a baking sheet and cook for 5 to 10 minutes in a preheated 400 degree oven.

Serve tzatziki cold with crispy pita wedges. You can also cook the oiled pita rounds on an outdoor grill.

There is very little labor involved in preparing this wonderful Greek-style dip. Just make sure to plan in advance.

In addition to pita wedges, tzatziki can be served with crackers, fresh veggies, or as a topper for grilled burgers or chicken. Try slicing grilled chicken breasts and tuck the meat into a warmed soft pita.

Top with tzatziki, shredded onion and chopped tomato.

I used fat-free yogurt and low-fat sour cream without sacrificing flavor, making this tasty dip a healthy choice as well.

ORDINANCE NO. 2000-11

AN ORDINANCE TO AUTHORIZE THE COLLECTION OF COSTS INCURRED BY THE CITY OF HARPER WOODS IN PROVIDING EMERGENCY FIRE, HAZ-MAT AND/OR AMBULANCE SERVICES IN SITUATIONS WHICH INVOLVE SPILLS, LEAKS, RELEASES, ACCIDENTS OR RELATED OCCURRENCES OF HAZARDOUS OR DANGEROUS MATERIALS OR SUBSTANCES AND COSTS INCURRED AS A RESULT OF FIRE DEPARTMENT OR EMERGENCY MEDICAL SERVICE (EMS) RESPONDING TO UTILITY FAILURES.

The City of Harper Woods Ordains:

SECTION 1. SHORT TITLE: This Ordinance shall be known and cited as the "City of Harper Woods Cost Recovery Ordinance."

SECTION 2. DEFINITIONS: The following words and phrases as used herein shall have the following meanings:

(a) Cost Recovery: Fees, charges and expenses incurred by Fire or Emergency Medical Services (EMS) associated with response to hazardous materials incidents; false alarms and utility failures. Included, but not limited to, costs associated with the response, mitigation, decontamination, clean-up and stand by for hazardous or dangerous materials and substances; repair or replacement of equipment, apparatus, materials and supplies; expenses incurred to insure the protection of public health, safety and welfare of the City of Harper Woods and the persons therein without limitation; in providing emergency, fire and/or ambulance (basic or advanced life support) services, manpower, mutual aid and outside agency support and/or resources.

(b) Hazardous or Dangerous Materials: Any substance, including but not limited to, alcohol, gun powder, blasting agents, petroleum fuels, refined and crude petroleum products, explosives, corrosives, acids, poisons, insecticides, herbicides, fertilizers, chemicals, combustible or flammable liquids, solids or gases, cryogenic products, or other commodities whose singular or combined mixtures pose a hazard to the public health, safety, welfare, or endanger, cause, or are capable of causing loss, injury or damage to persons, property or the environment.

(c) Utility Failure: The failure, disruption, or disabling of a cable, conduit, wire, pipeline, or other device used to transport electricity, natural gas, communication or electronic signals, water, sanitary or storm water, where the party responsible for maintaining the utility fails to undertake repairs, corrective actions, or maintain adequate security within a reasonable time, not to exceed one (1) hour from the time an agent of the City of Harper Woods arrives and provides notice to the utility.

SECTION 3. AUTHORITY TO COLLECT COSTS: The City of Harper Woods, shall have the authority to collect all costs incurred, as defined in Sections 2(a), 2(b), 2(c).

SECTION 4. PERSONS RESPONSIBLE FOR COSTS: Hazardous or Dangerous Materials and Substances: All costs shall be charged against the owner, operator or persons responsible for the property, equipment, vehicle or container causing, contributing, allowing or failing to keep, store, transport or otherwise handle, or dispose of hazardous or dangerous materials or substances.

Utility Failure: The owner and/or operator of the utility that fails shall be responsible. Such costs shall constitute a debt of the persons responsible and be collectible in the same manner as any legal obligation.

SECTION 5. STATEMENT FOR SERVICES RENDERED: The City of Harper Woods shall submit an itemized statement(s) providing the costs associated with the emergency services described in sections 2(a), 2(b), 2(c), to the person or persons responsible by first class mail or personal service.

SECTION 6. PAYMENT: Persons responsible for emergency services who fails to remit the fees within thirty (30) days of the date of the statement of services rendered shall be considered delinquent unless an extension of time for payment is approved by an agent of the City of Harper Woods. All delinquent accounts shall accrue a late fee of 1% per month and shall be collected as provided by law.

SECTION 7. REPEAL

All ordinances or parts of ordinances in conflict herewith are hereby repealed only to the extent necessary to give this ordinance full force and effect.

SECTION 8. SEVERABILITY

If any article, section, subsection, sentence, clause, phrase or portion of this ordinance is for any reason held invalid or unconstitutional by any court of competent jurisdiction, such portion shall be deemed a separate, distinct and independent provision, and such holding shall not affect the validity of the remaining portions of this ordinance, it being the intent of the Council of the City of Harper Woods that this ordinance shall stand, notwithstanding the invalidity of any article, section, subsection, sentence, clause, phrase or portion thereof.

SECTION 9. EFFECTIVE DATE

This ordinance shall take effect ten (10) days after enactment as provided by the City Charter.

CITY OF Harper Woods, MICHIGAN WAYNE COUNTY

ORDINANCE NO. 2000-12

AN ORDINANCE TO ADD A NEW ARTICLE XIII TO CHAPTER 12 OF THE CODE OF ORDINANCES OF THE CITY OF HARPER WOODS TO REGULATE SHOPPING CARTS.

The City of Harper Woods Ordains:

SECTION 1. That a new Article XIII be and is hereby added to Chapter 12 of the Code of Ordinances of the City of Harper Woods to read as follows:

ARTICLE XIII SHOPPING CARTS

Sec. 12-350 Definitions

"Person" means any individual, business, partnership or corporation.

"Shopping Cart" means any rolling basket or container customarily with four (4) wheels used for the purpose of collecting goods or merchandise in a retail or other outlet where goods or merchandise are sold. "Shopping Cart" does not include the two-wheel variety customarily pulled by a person to transport small items of merchandise from a retail or other outlet to a residence.

Sec. 12-351 Labeling

It shall be unlawful for any person to provide shopping carts for patrons' use on the premises unless such carts clearly bear, in a permanent fashion, the name or other identifying characteristic, such as a logo, to ascertain the name of the owner of the cart.

Sec. 12-352 Shopping Carts to Remain on Premises

Except as provided in Sec. 12-343 below, it shall be unlawful for any person to remove or permit to be removed, any shopping cart from the premises to which it belongs. The premises includes the store or other retail outlet and the parking lot owned by the store or other retail outlet provided such parking lot is immediately adjacent thereto.

Sec. 12-343 Shopping Carts Expressly Prohibited in Residentially Zoned Areas

It shall be unlawful for any person to push, convey or otherwise transport any shopping cart in any residentially zoned area of the City whatsoever. It shall also be unlawful for any person to push, convey or otherwise transport a shopping cart in commercially or otherwise zoned area of the City unless it is within fifty (50) feet of the premises from which cart is owned.

Sec. 12-355 Abandonment

It shall be unlawful for any person to abandon or cause to be abandoned any cart unlawfully removed from any store premises, upon any street, alley, highway, boulevard, sidewalk, parking lot, public place or private property not owned by the store owner.

Sec. 12-366 Impoundment and Disposal

Whenever any shopping cart is found abandoned in any street, highway, boulevard, sidewalk, public place or private property not owned by the store from which the cart originated, the cart shall be impounded by the City. The City shall notify the owner, thereof, who may reclaim the cart by payment of a fee as determined by the City Council. Said fee, however, shall not be less than twenty-five (25.00) dollars per cart. If the cart is not reclaimed within thirty (30) days after such notice to an owner, such failure to reclaim shall be construed as a waiver of ownership of the cart by the owner and the City shall dispose of the cart.

SECTION 2. REPEAL

All ordinances or parts of ordinances in conflict herewith are hereby repealed only to the extent necessary to give this ordinance full force and effect.

SECTION 3. SEVERABILITY

If any article, section, subsection, sentence, clause, phrase or portion of this ordinance is for any reason held invalid or unconstitutional by any court of competent jurisdiction, such portion shall be deemed a separate, distinct and independent provision, and such holding shall not affect the validity of the remaining portions of this ordinance, it being the intent of the Council of the City of Harper Woods that this ordinance shall stand, notwithstanding the invalidity of any article, section, subsection, sentence, clause, phrase or portion thereof.

Neighborhood Club hosts MLS camp, English-trained coaches

A group of area youngsters got some soccer instruction recently from one of the hotbeds of the sport. The Neighborhood Club hosted the Major League Soccer camp for the fourth straight year with four English-trained coaches providing the instruction for 90 players between the ages of 3 and 14.

The captain of the coaches is Dean Brookes, a graduate student at DeMontfort University. He has spent the last two summers running MLS camps in the South and Midwest. He's a native of Stoke, England. James Barton is also in his second year of working the MLS camps. The Coventry, England, native is a recent graduate of DeMontfort.

The other two, Charlene Chapman and Aaron Milojevic, are in their first year in the MLS program. Chapman is from Sheffield, England, and is a student at Crewe Alsager University. Milojevic is from Oldham, England, and is a student at Manchester University.

The four coaches spent their week in the Pointes with the McCarthy and Weber families of Grosse Pointe Farms, the Wilsons in the City of Grosse Pointe and the Lucas family in Grosse Pointe Park.

Brookes said that he was impressed with life in the United States and said that food, clothing and even gas was cheaper here than in England.

He also said that the American youngsters were more polite and more willing to listen and learn. He said that

Woods lifeguards gear up for Top Guard competition in Park

By Brad Lindberg
Staff Writer

In a non-conference warm-up for next week's all-Pointe Top Guard competition, lifeguards from Grosse Pointe Woods held their own last week in regional competition on Spencer Lake in Rochester Hills.

Guard Nicole Seleno came in first in deep water recovery. Her effort involved swimming 100 yards into the lake and submerging 13 feet to recover a mannequin.

Seleno teamed up with fellow guard Brent Nielubowicz to earn second place overall. The team finished in the top 10 in the competition's five events.

Of the brother-and-sister team of Laura and Tim Edwards, Laura placed third in board rescue. Competition involved paddling a small board 600 yards.

Other teams included head guards Andrea O'Boyle and Andrew Rabe, the all-female team of Andrea Weiss and Kristina Van Beek, and Paul Perzyk and Nick Janutol.

If tradition holds, Woods guards will dominate the local Top Guard competition next week. Woods teams have won the last five out of seven Top Guard competitions.

"It's a pretty intense competition," said Melissa Warnack, the Woods park director.

Top Guard water events center around lifesaving components and include:

- A four-man relay in which each team member swims one length of a 25-yard pool carrying a 10-pound brick.
- A 50-yard swim. Halfway, competitors must carry a brick.

- A 50-yard swim in which guards lug a rescue tube (a long, narrow life tube) and victim.

- Another 50-yard relay in which guards wearing street clothes have to "rescue" victims and return them to pool side.
- A four-man rescue tube relay.

- Guards tread water while holding two 10-pound bricks.

There's no time limit. Competitors tread until they go under. The event requires strength and stamina.

"It's an event you have to practice all summer long," said Warnack.

The Top Guard competition will be held at Windmill Pointe Park in Grosse Pointe Park on Wednesday, Aug. 2. The CPR event takes place at 4 p.m. Water events start at 6 p.m.

Shores swimmers showing their skill

The summer swimming program in Grosse Pointe Shores is growing by leaps and bounds.

"When I started coaching here three years ago we had about 65 swimmers," said Kay Drake, the head coach of the Sharks.

"This year we have 126. Our depth has been a reason we've won two meets and that we've been close in the others. The kids have been working hard and they've shown a lot of improvement in their stroke mechanics."

One of the victories was a 322-241 win over the City of Grosse Pointe Norbs that erroneously appeared in last week's edition of the Grosse Pointe News as a defeat.

"We don't have the first-place swimmers the Pointe Aquatics kids — that some of the other teams have but we're getting a lot of swimmers who place for us," Drake said.

"Our strengths right now are in the 10-and-under and 12-and-under girls, but we're hoping to add swimmers in some of the other age groups, too. I'd like to see more boys get involved in the program, but they have conflicts with other sports, especially baseball."

Although the Sharks finished 2-3, Drake doesn't like to concentrate on the won-lost record.

"I prefer to think of how much we've improved in our dual meets," she said. "Instead of looking at wins and losses we look at the dual meets as getting a step closer to the goals we've set for ourselves."

"One of the things we've been able to do this year is fill out every event. We couldn't do that the first year."

The team won the CYO Eastside Division championship with a 9-0 record.

Among the highlights were a no-hitter by Jamie Sheppard, outstanding catching and clutch hitting by Matt Lombardi and excellent short-stop play from Steve Coates.

There was also solid infield play from Jeff Hawkins, Fred Andary and Danny Rusinow. Antoine Powe, Andy Paglia and Thomas D'Alleva played well in the outfield.

Hawkins and Coates also contributed on the mound.

Coates, Sheppard, Lombardi, Powe and Hawkins each had multiple hit or RBI games. Coates hit a long home run to win a game and Rusinow cleared the bases with a hit in another contest.

Dooner Curis, Brian Flemion, William Bolton, Robert Hathaway, Ben Czerniawski, Andrew Cracchiolo, Peter Fish and Justin Wines all made significant contributions in reserve roles.

The team was coached by Tom Rusinow, Dennis Zak and Gary Lombardi.

Tryouts are held in early March and are open to students at the school or those enrolled in the religious education program at Star of the Sea.

Double winners pace City team

Thirteen Grosse Pointe City swimmers won two events apiece to lead the Norbs to a 382-172 victory over the St. Clair Shores Sea Serpents in a Lakefront Swimming Association meet.

Becca Jenzen, Jeanne Frisby-Zedan, Jack Bernard, Zoe Berkery, Tom Remillet, Erica Schumann, Ben Jenzen, Jamie Morris, Liz Pedit, Michael Balke, Drew Berkery, Chris Vella and Dan Cook each won two first-place ribbons.

Park All-Stars win district title

The Grosse Pointe Park 10-year-old All-Star team won the Little League District 6 tournament for the first time in 10 seasons.

The Park's 10-2 victory over Grosse Pointe Woods-Shores American sends it into the sectional tournament.

But it was a couple of earlier come-from-behind victories that left a lasting imprint on the team's legacy.

"They were calling them the 'heart attack kids,'" said head coach Jim Saros. "I've played a lot of baseball and I've never seen anything like this — twice coming from four runs down with two out in the last inning."

The Park began tournament play with an 11-0 victory over Clinton Valley. Then things got tougher. The Park trailed Woods-Shores National 7-3 with two out and no one on base in the last inning before rallying for an 8-7 win.

Max Pearson, Jay Williams and Mike Herzog triggered the comeback with hits and Mark Riashi followed with a two-run double. Jimmy Saros singled and Alex Rossi capped the outburst with a triple.

The Park's next game was a carbon copy of the first, only this time the victim was the Woods-Shores American squad.

Once again the Park trailed 7-3 with two out in the last inning and came away with an 8-7 win. Walks to Scott Maxwell and Herzog sandwiched around a single by Williams loaded the bases and Riashi cleared them with a triple to cut the Woods-Shores' lead to 7-6. Saros walked and on his steal of second, the ball was thrown into center field, allowing Riashi to score the tying run.

Saros then scored the winning run on Rossi's infield hit.

Patrick Lewandowski, Evan Pearson, Andrew Waller and Max Pearson each pitched well for the Park during the tournament, but the standout was Riashi, who also batted .750.

Rossi, Evan Pearson and Herzog were also among the leading hitters. Saros, Williams, Riashi, Evan Pearson and Herzog were outstanding defensively.

Woods swim team posts fourth victory

The Grosse Pointe Woods Warriors chalked up their fourth victory of the season in the Lakefront Swimming Association by beating the Grosse Pointe Shores Sharks 311-256.

Several swimmers had outstanding performances to lead the Warriors.

Stephen Van Beek, 9, won the 10-and-under 25-yard butterfly and was second by less than a second in the 10-and-under 50 freestyle. He was also the youngest member of the winning 57-year relay that included 17-year-old twins Scott and Kevin Paavola and Danny Sheppard, 14.

Ben Lupo had a strong effort in taking third in the 14-and-under 50 breaststroke.

Dana Grimm has done well for the Warriors all season. She won the girls 10-and-under 25 backstroke and took third in the 10-and-under 50 freestyle.

Melissa Maynard won the girls 10-and-under 25 butterfly with a winning time of 18.89.

State tourney at Harper Woods

The Harper Woods Little League will host the Major Boys (11-12-year-old) state tournament beginning Saturday and concluding with the championship game on Thursday, Aug. 3.

Eight teams will compete for a berth in the Central Regional tournament in Indianapolis.

Sharks

"We'll miss our senior swimmers — John Fodell, Hobie Schleicher, Mike Hadgis, Kelly Monahan and Alison Wynne," Drake said. "They've been good leaders for the younger swimmers."

"And John, Hobie and Mike are each good athletes who participate in other sports, so they're proof to some of the younger boys that it can be done."

Fodell is also one of the assistant coaches, along with Jane Kopf and Isa Salvador.

Strong start for GPSA Dragons '90

The Grosse Pointe Soccer Association Mustangs, Alyssa Carr scored twice and Allison Everett, Kaitlin Graves and Ashley Zappitell added a goal apiece.

Kate Brennan, Everett and Jackie Farber collected assists. Anna Basse and Olivia Stander helped ignite the offense with their accurate passes and dribbling skills. The Dragons controlled the ball much of the game, especially in the second half.

Brennan, Kelly DeFauw,

three goals and Everett two Carr, Davisson, Everett, McPharlin and Stander recorded assists.

Basse, Farber and Zappitell contributed offensively with excellent passing. Brennan, DeFauw, Graves, McPharlin and Zurek shut down the Lightning forwards, especially in the second half. Graves and Zurek played well in goal.

The Dragons beat the Bloomfield Force 3-1 for their fourth straight win.

Grosse Pointe opened the scoring when Everett took a perfect pass from Zappitell at midfield, outran two defenders and blasted the ball past the Bloomfield goalie.

Late in the first half, the Force tied the game on a penalty kick.

The Dragons controlled the ball most of the second half. Basse and Stander each had several quality scoring chances.

Davisson finally broke the tie on a hard shot from five yards after trapping a pinpoint pass from Farber in the box. Carr scored the Dragons' final goal on the offensive play of the game, hitting a bending ball on a corner kick that went over the goalie's head for an assisted tally.

Graves and Zurek played their usual strong game in goal, stopping 10 shots. Graves made her best play of the season when she stopped a break-away with an aggressive play out of the box.

Brennan, DeFauw, Graves, McPharlin and Zurek were outstanding defensively.

Aerobics classes begin July 31

The Fitness Firm will hold a four-week mini-session of low impact aerobics classes, beginning July 31, at the JFK Library in Harper Woods.

Classes will be from 9:30 to 10:30 a.m. on Mondays and Wednesdays and from 6:45 to 7:45 p.m. on Tuesdays and Thursdays.

Registration is $35 plus $3 for new members. For more information, call (313) 886-7534.

Camp

English youngsters were probably more knowledgeable about soccer but also acted like they knew it all.

Kevin Zizio, the assistant recreation director at the Neighborhood Club, has been instrumental in bringing the MLS camp to Grosse Pointe. The number of participants has grown each year.

Brookes said that the program's focus is on fun.

"Kids lose concentration if they continually practice only skills," he said. "Kids love soccer, but they need to enjoy themselves and have fun."

The Neighborhood Club will host the camp again next July. Families interested in hosting a coach should contact Zizio at the Neighborhood Club, (313) 885-4600.

101 PRAYERS

NOVENA to St. Jude May the Sacred Heart of Jesus be adored, glorified, loved and preserved throughout the world, now and forever. Oh Sacred Heart of Jesus, pray for us. Worker of miracles, pray for us. St. Jude, helper of the hopeless, pray for us. Say this prayer 9 times a day. By the 8th day, your prayer will be answered. It has never been known to fail, never. Publication must be promised. Thanks, St. Jude for prayers answered. Special thanks to Our Lady & Mother Theresa G.B.

PRAYER of the Blessed Virgin

Oh most beautiful flower of Mt. Carmel, fruitful vine, splendor of Heaven, Blessed Mother of the Son of God. Immaculate Virgin assist me in my necessity. Oh Star of the Sea, help me and show me, herein you are my Mother. Oh Mary, Mother of God, Queen of Heaven and Earth I humbly beseech you from the bottom of my heart, to succor me in my necessity (request here). There are none that can withstand your power. Oh Mary conceived without sin, Pray for us who have recourse. Holy Mary, place this prayer in your hands. Say this 3 times, 3 days, publish it. It will be granted to you. TMA

THANK you St. Jude for prayers answered. DL, WJM

THANKS St. Jude for prayers answered. Special thanks to Our Mother of Perpetual help. JM

UNFAILING prayer to St. Jude- Glorious apostle, St. Jude Thaddeus, I salute you through the Sacred Heart of Jesus. Through his heart I praise and thank God for all the graces he has bestowed upon you. I implore you, through his love, to look upon me with compassion. Do not dispise my poor prayer. Do not let my trust be confounded! God has granted to you the privilege of aiding mankind in the most desperate cases. Oh, come to my aid that I may praise the mercies of God! All my life I will be your grateful client, until I can thank you in heaven. Amen. (mention your request). St. Jude, pray for us, for all who invoke your aid. Your request will be granted by the 8th day. Publication of thanks to St. Jude must be promised. Say this novena for 9 times in a row for 9 days in a row. Much thanks, S. H.

Bite back against pesky insects and mosquitoes

Q. My shrubs are infested with mosquitoes and small gnats. How do I control these pesky insects?

A. Sometimes it feels like the mosquitoes rule the outdoors and they are out to get us as soon as we step outdoors. Don't worry; you can win the battle against mosquitoes and other pests.

One solution is to eliminate many of the breeding grounds for these pests. Mosquitoes and many other insects like moist areas to breed. If you have low areas around the house or in the yard that retain moisture, fill these spots with soil to raise the ground and let the water drain off. If it is not low but simply wet because Mother Nature is giving us a lot of rainfall, then you need to try another approach.

Malathion insecticide is made by Ortho and will give the longest control of mosquitoes and gnats, as well as flies, ants, crickets and spiders. Follow the directions on the label, noting dilution rates and safety guidelines. Applications should be made to areas around woodpiles, garbage cans, under porches and decks, around patios as well as to shrubs and foundation of the house.

Never use Malathion indoors, on animals or on people. One application should give you weeks of relief from these nuisance pests.

Another product made by Ortho is Outdoor Insect Fogger. This is for use outdoors around patios and planting. Insect foggers will blanket a large area with smoke that kills and repels mosquitoes, flies and gnats. Many people use this product before back-yard parties. Control normally lasts for a few days until the next generation of insects comes around.

Mosquito Beater is an effective product manufactured by Bonide that has been sold for years. There is no mixing or spraying. Mosquito Beater is a granular product that is applied via lawn spreader, hand-held spreader or directly out of the shaker canister. It is labeled to be effective starting one hour after application and will be effective for days, depending on weather conditions. The vapors given off from this product repel the insects but are not offensive to people. It works best when wind speeds are low.

Garlic and citronella have also been touted to be effective against insects. The label on the garlic spray that I sell does not list mosquitoes as one of the pests that it works on; however, there are many people who claim it does work and have homemade mixtures containing garlic.

These products are the ones to try if you are dead set against using any chemical sprays. I have used citronella candles and torch lights, and although they make great atmosphere, the effects were limited as an insect repellent.

Wood-graining over plastic kitchen cabinets

Q. I just read your advice on painting plastic laminate cabinets — great tips! I would like to know if stain would work as well. My cabinets are white and I would like to stain them to make them look like wood. Is this possible?

Also what would you advise to do for a plastic laminate countertop to change the color? Cheryl S@email.msn.com

A. Cheryl, the procedure of inking over a painted surface to make it look like wood is an old one. In fact, it is still very popular on new steel and fiberglass entrance doors to make them look like wood.

A quality wood-graining job calls for a base coat, one or two layers of ink and a sealer to protect the ink. A glaze may even be used to shadow or soften the inking effect.

First the laminate must be prepared so all these products will adhere properly.

Clean the surfaces so the primer will stick. A weak solution of trisodium phosphate, Simple Green or your favorite cleaner and water will do fine. If possible, remove the doors, hinges and handles. This will make the job go faster and look more professional.

Apply the cleaner twice, about five minutes apart to allow the product to loosen up the dirt. Then rinse well and let dry.

Sand all the surfaces lightly with 220 (or so) grit sandpaper. This step doesn't require a lot of elbow grease. Try to contact all the areas at least once. The goal here is not to leave any shiny spots.

Dust everything with a damp towel or a rag moistened with alcohol. A dust-free job is a beautiful thing.

Prime the plastic laminate with a quality primer/sealer/bonder. The oil-based ones will usually have the best durability when painting plastic. We like XIM's Bonder Primer or Bin's alcohol-based primer. The proper latex primers aren't bad; they just aren't quite as good as the oil-based ones. (As of this writing.)

Once the plastic has been primed, the base coat for the graining can be applied. A short nap disposable three-inch roller is ideal for a quick smooth finish.

After the base coat dries you'll be ready to ink-on the graining. This is the fun part — yes, fun! There are tools for applying the ink with a very realistic grain. First blot ink in a moderate pattern on the surface. Then draw the tool from one end to the other slowly changing its angle to the surface.

You'll have plenty of time for experimenting because the ink stays wet up to 45 minutes. If the color seems too light, blot more ink on the door and redraw the grain with the tool. If it is too dark, wipe some of the ink off the surface and redraw the grain.

You don't have to use a graining tool. Thanks to my mother, I learned to use hunks of carpeting and stiff old paintbrushes to produce different styles of wood grain. A good tip is don't look too close to your work. Once it's done and viewed as a complete project, it'll look great. Some of my best graining was done fast and without a care.

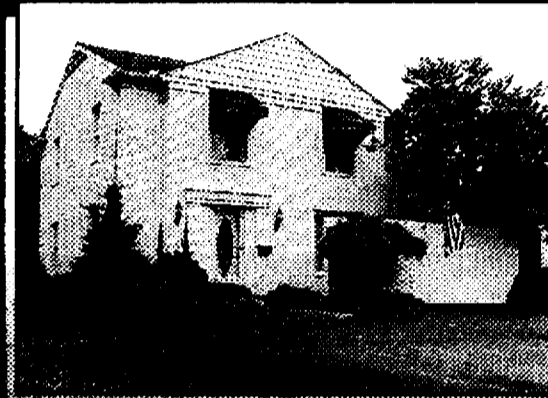

Once the graining is done, the surface will require one or two coats of sealer to protect the ink. Without it, the ink will wear off wherever the cabinets are handled. Usually I spray the first coat so the ink isn't melted and ruined by brushing on a sealer. Then apply the second coat, and your white kitchen is now a woody.

As for the countertops, prep with the same process but finish with an epoxy finish. A two-part product is usually the hardest of available finishes, but it will still be not nearly as hard as the original plastic laminate. It may buy you time to save up for new countertops.

For a change — and profit — consider coin collecting

It's all about money

By Diane Morelli

Every summer I enjoy walking along the water's edge and beach-comb for whatever a particular beach has to offer: smooth beach glass, shells, rocks, an interesting feather or two, whatever — I enjoy collecting things. Since doing a bit of research on coin collecting, I will have to put more effort into combing through my "change" in search of interesting, collectible coins — now I can't spend that odd rimmed dime or "lumped" coin.

My father is a great coin collector. He taught my sisters and me, at an early age, to save "wheatie" pennies, silver quarters, buffalo nickels and Roosevelt and Mercury dimes — let alone how to roll those interesting coins. Back in the 1960s he gave us the blue coin folders collectors use to place our "finds" in. He gave all his precious grandsons special coins at their birth — my son was bestowed a 1987 $5 gold Bicentennial of the U.S. Constitution coin.

These days my father tells us to save the new state quarters — especially Delaware, the first quarter issued back in 1999. He says the U.S. Mint is working seven days a week, around the clock doing nothing but printing these quarters because people are taking them out of circulation. I have a hard time saving them because quarters can add up so quickly — six of them can get me over the Blue Water Bridge.

Prices gotten for coins have, in some cases, soared — an 1804 Draped Bust dollar sold at auction in 1999 for over $4 million!

As with many collectibles, the condition of the piece can determine its high or low grading. Coins that are damaged, cleaned, polished or very worn are worth less. Serious collectors know what part of the coins show the first signs of wear: Indian head cents — hair above the ear and the curl to the right of the ribbon; or the Buffalo nickel — high point of the Indian's cheekbone and the hair near the part.

Indian Head cents, 1859 to 1909, may bring a price of $1 to $10, or possibly up to $30.

Common Buffalo Nickels, 1913 to 1938, may bring a price of 50 cents to $15, up to $100. The rarest are the over-dated 1918/7-D and the famed three-legged buffalo.

Another interesting collectible coin is the dime, winged Liberty (Mercury), 1916 to 1945, yielding 35 cents to $10, to $40.

The silver Kennedy half dollar was produced in 1964. One year later Congress chose to eliminate silver from the dime and quarter, as well as reduce the silver content of the half dollar until it was entirely stripped of silver in 1971. The Kennedy half dollar 1970-D can bring $3 to $5; 1971 brings face value. When traveling out of the continental United States, my father suggests using Kennedy half dollars to tip with — the recipients are always very grateful.

Coin production errors such as center strikes — coins incorrectly centered with part of the design missing — may bring high prices:

- Lincoln cents, copper, 1909 to 1982 — $5; zinc, $2.
- Jefferson nickels — $3 to $5.
- Buffalo nickels — $200 to $300.
- Mercury dimes — $50 to $200.
- Roosevelt dimes — $5 to $10.
- Washington quarter, 1932 to 1964 — $70 to $150; 1965- up to $25.
- Kennedy half dollar — $35 to $400.

Other rare production errors that yield higher prices are:

— Cracks and lumps: cracks appear as raised irregular lines that can distort the coin's design. It's caused by dies prone to extreme pressure. Coins struck by damaged die reveal a raised lump where the design is missing.

— Lamination errors: A coin with a fragment of metal missing or peeled off the coin's surface.

— Unplated (copper) Lincoln zinc cents, 1982: Cents have a silvery-looking surface on part or all of the coin. Coins completely unplated are worth more than those 50 to 10 percent plated.

— Broad strikes: If the coin ordinarily has a distinct edge it will be missing and the coin will appear larger than normal. Wide and well-centered pieces will bring higher prices than these estimated prices: Indian cent — $50; copper Lincoln cent, $5; Jefferson nickel, $6; silver Roosevelt dime, $10.

The new State Quarter errors bring a hefty price: Lamination, $15; clipped side, $50; 180 degree turn, $50; off center, $150; and double struck, $1,000. My father says three or four circulated State Quarters with mistakes on them have already been found. For more information on the State Quarters, visit the web site usmint.gov/50States/

Who ruined my tree?

Every day across the country, homeowners return home from work to find that the beautiful shade trees by the street in front of their houses have been drastically pruned. Instead of a thick, symmetrical canopy of leaves, there is a gaping, V-shaped hole through the middle of the tree that reveals the overhead electrical conductors.

Consumers may not be aware that while trees add significantly to the beauty of our communities, they are also responsible for costly property damage as well as dangerous power outages. In fact, tree failure is by far the leading cause of electrical outages nationwide. The tree that grows into electrical conductors presents a potential hazard to property owners and others in the community if it becomes energized or wipes out a power line. This is why we see utility line clearance contractors trimming trees in our neighborhoods.

Some residents get irritated and feel that these trees are needlessly damaged. "The National Arborist Association (NAA) receives a lot of calls from homeowners complaining that their utility company 'drastically' cut trees near power lines," says Peter Gerstenberger, director of safety and education for the NAA. "While it is vitally necessary for utilities to trim trees, sometimes severely, it is nevertheless important for them to follow tree care standards of practice."

When one is evaluating the quality of line clearance tree trimming, it's important to consider that the utility's primary objective is to prevent outages as well as electrical hazards. Minimally, the tree should be left in a healthy state, with at least some aesthetic value. If this cannot be accomplished, the utility may opt to remove the tree rather than create an eyesore and future problem.

Why the gaping hole in the canopy?

The utility company specifies a certain amount of clearance around its wires, depending upon the voltage, the tree's growth rate and other characteristics, and the pruning cycle (how frequently it will be pruned). Furthermore, scientific research has proven that it is better from the standpoint of tree health if the trimming crew removes whole limbs with a relatively small number of large cuts vs. making numerous small cuts and leaving stubbed off branches. Finally, utilities have found that removal of entire limbs helps to train the future growth of the tree away from the wires, keeping maintenance costs to a minimum while helping to ensure that the tree needn't receive the same drastic pruning in the future.

Trees that will inevitably grow into power lines should not be planted under or near utility lines. Smaller, ornamental trees work best near power lines. Larger trees should be planted far enough away from lines that they will not need drastic pruning ten, 20 or 30 years later.

The NAA is the Secretariat for the ANSI A300 Standard, a national standard that governs tree pruning operations, including line clearance. An easy way to find a tree care service provider in your area is to use the National Arborist Association's "Locate Your Local NAA Member Companies" program. You can use this service by calling the NAA at (800) 733-2622 or by doing a zip code search on their Web site, www.natlarb.com.

How to use electricity wisely during summer

With sweltering weather upon us, we find ourselves running for the comfort of an air-conditioned area to keep cool. During such hot days, Michigan's electrical system is used to the maximum (usually in the mid- to late afternoon) with all possible generating equipment operating, and utility companies buying power from neighboring states and Ontario.

The Michigan Public Service Commission (MPSC) encourages all customers to share the responsibility of helping to avoid a power "crunch" that could occur during the summer months during times of peak electricity usage. Just a few minor adjustments to our leisure, personal and business lives will help ensure adequate electric capacity in the state this summer and, in many cases, help consumers and businesses save money on electric bills, too. If every household and business does just a little bit to help, short-term electric supply problems may be avoided.

Here are some tips home, business owners can practice:

- Use electric ovens, dishwashers, clothes washers and dryers and other large appliances or office equipment in the early morning or late evening hours whenever possible. These are big electricity users and shifting the time of use will reduce the potential stress to Michigan's electric system at peak times.

- Keep the outside of air-conditioning units free from leaves and other debris that can clog vents.

Keep cooling systems well tuned with periodic maintenance by service professionals.

- Set the air conditioner thermostat as high as possible — 78 degrees is often considered a comfortable indoor temperature and can result in big savings.

- Close off unoccupied areas and shut air-conditioning vents; also, turn off the air conditioner when the area is not in use.

- Turn off lights, equipment or appliances in any room not in use.

- Keep out the daytime sun with vertical louvers or awnings on the outside of windows. Indoors draw draperies, blinds and shades.

More business tips:

- Set fax machines and printers for sleep mode when not in use. Also, network one printer for several users.

- Make sure the power management feature is enabled on computers and set to the shortest acceptable time for your operation. Also, use laptops in lieu of other personal computers.

- Turn off copiers at night and during the weekends.

For more information regarding energy saving tips, contact the MPSC at (800) 292-9555 and request a copy of the brochure, "Tips for Energy Savers."

The MPSC is an agency within the Department of Consumer and Industry Services.

Add color, texture, form to your yard with foliage

Shade presents homeowners with some interesting challenges with their lawn and gardens. Integrating perennials into the landscape is a great way to deal with a shady situation.

"Foliage is often a forgotten part of the plant," says Gordon Oslund, president of Shady Oaks Nursery. Gardeners should plan on incorporating interesting foliage and textural combinations to brighten the border and create additional interest throughout the growing season.

Consider foliage, as well as flowers, and the garden comes alive with color and texture, even when not in full bloom. Combine fine textured Dicentra eximia or Corydalis with broad-leaved hostas for a textural contrast. The broad leaves of Ligularias are striking when combined with ferns. Use lance-leaved plants like Iris or grasses to create vertical interest. In wooded areas where trees create a strong vertical influence, softer shorter vertical impressions create a feeling of continuity through the garden.

Remember color as well as texture. Colorful foliage helps carry a color theme through the garden or brings season-long color to a special spot. Burgundy-leaved plants, like Euphorbia "Chameleon," Ajuga "Mini-crisp Red," and many of the heuchera, are bold complements to blue-or-yellow leaved hostas. Yellow leaved hostas, laminums, lysimachias or saginas are bright ground covers for dark areas. Silver foliage of artemisia, cerastium, and pulmonaria, used throughout a planting, helps the garden's cohesion.

Large perennials, such as ligularias, veronicastrums and astilboides are excellent background plants for shorter shrubs and perennials. They screen unwanted views, frame a special area, are economical for filling large spaces, and great for keeping weeds down. Large perennials and grasses can also create additional shade for smaller perennials, and serve to scale down portions of a large garden into more intimate spaces.

Medium sized perennials (those with heights 15 inches to 24 inches) are good for incorporating into traditional borders. Try mixing them in the shrub border for added color, to create interest, or to draw attention to a particular spot — perhaps a favorite sculpture, pathway, or view. Use them as edgers along paths and to hide the bottoms of large woody shrubs. Many of these plants don't need a lot of space to grow, so it's easy to tuck them into almost any border. Try one or two tucked in for a surprise of color in an intimate garden.

Small perennials (under 15 inches) work as edgers, ground covers, and mass plantings. When planning to use these small perennials in an area, remember that their petite stature means they can easily be overgrown by larger plants around them. Using larger numbers of the small perennials, allowing ample room for all plants to grow, and using additional short stature plants close by helps. Use short plants in the front of the border so that they can be seen and appreciated. Dwarf, containerized, and rock gardens are well suited for these petite perennials.

Ferns thrive in the shade while adding their unique texture and form to complement the garden. "They are not just for hiding a house foundation anymore," adds Oslund. Medium-sized ferns are great along shaded steps or a pathway. Small ferns add a nice touch to shady rock gardens or other dwarf gardens. Japanese Painted Fern (Athyrium goeringianum nipponicum "Pictum") has a beautiful metallic-gray in the center of green fronds with red petioles and veins.

Hostas look elegant on their own or mixed into a perennial or shrub border, as background plants, specimens, ground covers or edging plants. Ferns, dicentras, corydalis and other fine foliaged plants make good companion plants with their delicate foliage. Shrubs, tall perennials and architectural obstacles that can be challenging are softened with the use of hostas. Use them to outline a pathway or encircle a tree trunk.

"Perennials are not maintenance free," says Oslund, "but neither is a lawn." Most perennials reach their mature size in two to three years. Mulching and spacing plants so that they just touch or overlap a little at maturity helps make weeding easier. Used appropriately, they are beautiful and well worth the little extra care they need to be happy.

Foundation blues; need a mantel for the fireplace?

Q: I have a 20-year-old home that has had significant settling due to water seepage. I've dug a deep drainage ditch uphill to drain off any water that flows onto the property. Now I have the task of raising the home.

Half of my home is on a foundation with a crawl space, and the other half is on a slab. What do I need to do to get the house level and onto a non-settling foundation? Do I need to dig around the slab? After I raise the home on the crawl space side, do I need to pour a new foundation? Should I dig pylons for better support and to prevent further settling?

A: I'm sorry, but this is one project for the experts. You can find them in your Yellow Pages under "Foundation Contractors."

From experience, I can tell you there are a couple of ways to handle this project: You can jack the house straight up in the air, giving enough room for equipment to work underneath it, or you can move the house to the side of the project.

If you are in an area where water will be a constant battle (such as an underground spring), perhaps you could move your house to a new location on the property. If the water is seasonal (surface water), consider putting in a full basement with a complete drainage system around the foundation at the footing level to drain water away from the foundation.

Additionally, seal the foundation (including the footings) with waterproof membrane. The foundation could be poured or a CMU (concrete masonry units) block foundation wall could be built. You can read about this method in my new book by Craftsman Book Co.: "Build Smarter with Alternative Materials." You find the book at your local book store or up on our website, <http://www.asktooltalk.com>.

Keep one thing in mind: If undisturbed soil cannot be reached at a reasonable depth, a geotech report will be required to determine what is needed to provide adequate support for the footings to support the building. Be sure to check with your local building department before starting this project.

Q: I bought my house about a year ago. It has a very nice tile surround corner fireplace but no mantel. I am having a hard time finding any information on how to build a mantel for this type of fireplace. I would rather not have just a "shelf" above the fireplace opening. The space for the mantel would have to be shaped like a flat bottomed "W." Do you have any suggestions?

A: It's hard to tell by your description whether you are talking about a fireplace located on an outside corner or one built into an inside corner. I will assume that you are talking about an outside corner where the fireplace can be seen from two different rooms. If this is the case, a mantel would only stick out into the rooms. Is the surround tile bordered with a finish tile? It may be possible to finish around the tile with an accent tile or, better yet, use real wood that would lay flat up against the wall bordering the tile. Use a semi-wide profile detail moulding and paint it in two or three colors to set off the tile and fireplace all at the same time. Sometimes the simplest approach is the best one to take.

Book reviews

Even though I haven't read the following book, you may be interested in some of the reviews I picked up from www.AMAZON.com: "Step-By-Step to Classic Mantel: A Complete Guide to Building a Classic Fireplace Mantel from Stock Material," by Steve Penbethey, Schiffer Publishing, Ltd.

• Review: March 20, 1999 — "Building the classic mantel."

— This book cleared up a lot of questions I had about building a mantel. Written clearly so that most anyone could understand the sequence to get a very professional job. This was money well spent.

The Joy of Living Your own island getaway close to home.

The Man And The Boy... ...Behind The Bob-Lo Dream

Originally it was planned as a day trip, a boat ride out to the Island to look at an old roller-coaster with his son, but it turned out to be a more profound experience than either expected. Inspired by the incredible potential he saw there on Bob-Lo Island on that summer's day in 1994, John Oram began making inquiries soon after arriving back on shore and six months later he not only owned the roller-coaster, but the entire island.

Today Bob-Lo is the center of Oram's world. He lives there with his family and has devoted his life to creating a vibrant new resort community. His passion and remarkable vision are the driving forces behind this ambitious project.

Oram parlayed his initial business success in retail into a diversified and highly prosperous real estate development company.

Working with Oram is a team of top consultants and professional contractors, including in the U.S.A., Smith Group Co., Johnson, Johnson & Roy, architect Alex Bogard & Assoc., Abbott, Nicholson, Quitter Eschaki & Youngblood, P.C., Bassett & Bassett, and Plante & Morand. In Canada, Deloitte and Touche, Wilson and Walker Hochberg Slopen, and architect Joseph P. Toth.

They and hundreds of designers and tradespeople involved in the development of Bob-Lo Island share Oram's dream and have made it a reality that will capture your dream as well.

A Still & Serene spot ...In the Rushing Currents of History

Some yearn for a peaceful, pristine place to get away from the big city for the occasional week or weekend. Others imagine a sanctuary that offers them a tranquil year-round retreat.

A 24 hour private service runs 365 days a year between Amherstburg and Bob-Lo Island at the exclusive beck and call of Island residents

Bob-Lo Island fulfills both desires, in a natural setting unrivaled in its security and serenity.

Sit back, relax and watch a spectacular sunset on the island's sandy western shore. That's all it will take to convince you that you've found your own private paradise at last.

Founded over two centuries ago, today the Town of Amherstburg is a thriving hamlet which has moved into the modern world while proudly retaining its colonial charm and Victorian-inspired architecture.

Lying just off shore - and long playing an integral part in the area's history - is Bob-Lo Island.

The island was originally named "Bois Blanc", meaning "white woods island", by the first French explorers - a reference to its thousands of white-barked birch trees.

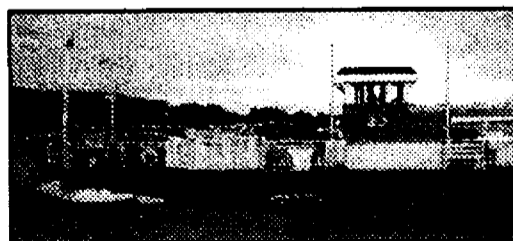

With its strategic position between borders, the island alternated under French, British, American and Canadian rule for years. But by the turn of the 20th century, it had become a holiday destination which drew people from both sides of the border, all eager to enjoy the lawn tennis, fishing, boating, picnics and other entertainments of the day.

Many affluent families owned summer homes on the property and the area's famous steamboats - the Ste. Claire and Columbia - brought thousands of visitors to the island each summer, to what had grown into a full-fledged amusement park. It was around this time too that the Island was becoming more widely known as Bob-Lo Island.

The Island's appeal has endured and has set the stage for its modern day transformation from an amusement park into a fabulous year-round resort, residential and commercial community.

Antiques and Collecting

By Ralph and Terry Kovel

Gardens and houseplants were always an important part of the 18th- and 19th-century home. In the 18th century, a homeowner would plant a garden with medicinal and cooking herbs. Many gardens had some of the same flowers we plant today for enjoyment.

In areas with mild winters, some plants were potted and moved inside, even though their care was more complicated than it is today. There were no bug sprays, no prepared potting soils, no special plant foods. But the 19th-century housewife prided herself on her plants, and plants were kept on window ledges, plant stands and terrariums in suitable windows.

Bulbs that could be forced to bloom in the winter were especially popular. Many of the plant stands and baskets were made in a rustic style with parts that resembled actual trees and leaves. Potted plants, especially palms and ferns, were part of the decoration of a middle-class Victorian home. The plant room had trailing vines and tall plants that were kept together in a jungle-like atmosphere.

Today, plants are easy to buy and even easier to grow. Collectors buy all types of plant stands, vases and accessories. But when a rare majolica jardiniere on a stand rises in value to thousands of dollars, the collector is forced to decide if it is worth the risk of damage by filling it with plants.

Q: My pack of cigarettes is so old it does not have the warning on the side that says smoking is dangerous. When was that word added?

A: The warning label was first used in January 1966.

Tip: Some disciplined collectors have a rule: Only add a new piece to your collection if you can get rid of a less-desirable old one. Most of us just keep adding.

Apartment Association of Michigan's (AAM) Property Management Council (PMC) will sponsor a professional maintenance course on Friday, Aug. 11.

The course fulfills the requirement for Educational Standards Corp. (ESCO) Institute Certification for Maintenance Professionals under the Federal Clean Air Act. The act requires that maintenance professionals who maintain, service, repair or dispose of appliances that contain regulated refrigerants be certified in proper refrigerant handling techniques as of November 1994.

The class will be held from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. at Building Industry Association of Southeastern Michigan (BIA) headquarters, 30375 Northwestern Highway, Suite 100, in Farmington Hills. Registration fees, including lunch, are $85 for AAM, PMC or Building Industry Association members, non-members and guests. For registration information, call (248) 862-1004.

Trying to stay cooler this summer, particularly when it comes to making dinner? Think about simplifying by using more foil and disposable plastic containers when cooking and storing food.

You can make easy one-dish meals, either in the oven or on the grill, by piling all of the ingredients in a cooking bag, then sealing it, setting the timer and walking away.

Check out reynoldskitchens.com for dozens of recipes and cooking ideas, ranging from Honey Dijon Chicken to Salmon with Rainbow Peppers and Yellow Squash, Tomato and Onion Packet. Here's an easy recipe from their Web site for Barbecue Pork Chops and Spicy Potatoes:

Salt and pepper six, 1/2-inch thick pork chops. Arrange chops in a foil baking bag. Combine 1/2 cup barbecue sauce and 1 tbsp. flour and spoon over chops. Top with onion slices. Combine four medium potatoes, peeled and cut into cubes, with 1 tbsp. vegetable oil, 2 tsp. chili powder, 1/2 tsp. ground cumin and 1/2 tsp salt. Layer over the pork chops and bake for 40-45 minutes in a 450-degree oven.

And now, for this week's savings:

- Reynolds offers a $1.50-off coupon for two packages of Reynolds Wrappers pop-up foil sheets, $1 off any package of Hot Bags heavy-duty foil bags or 75 cents off on Extra Wide Plastic Wrap. All coupons expire Sept. 30.

- Save 75 cents on Hefty Sandwich Bags, good for storing small amounts of food, or 75 cents on Hefty Jumbo Bags, which can be used for large items. Expires Aug. 30.

- Gladware is producing disposable plastic containers in various sizes that can be used for taking food to a picnic or packing a child's lunch for summer camp. (These containers also can be used in the microwave and the freezer and can be washed and used again.)

Save 40 cents on any package of Gladware containers. Expires July 31. Save 75 cents on Gladware's new lines of deep-dish container, 8-cup capacity, and divided dish containers for chips, or veggies, and dip. Expires Aug. 31. Glad also has a 55-cents-off coupon for Glad Stand & Zip bags, which are easier to fill. Expires Aug. 31.

JOHN'S LUMBER

We're MORE... than just lumber!

We're DEDICATED... to customers satisfaction!

If your patio doors have always stuck, squeaked or leaked, these could take some getting used to.

Imagine, hinged patio doors that open easily and close tightly...gliding patio doors that actually glide. That's the kind of performance you can expect year after year. Which is why choosing Andersen® patio doors is a decision you'll never lose sleep over.

G.P. Realtors 'clean up'

To the Editor:

On Saturday, May 20, the Grosse Pointe Board of REALTORS spearheaded a community effort to help an older citizen with her spring cleanup around her home on Nottingham. Twenty members of the Grosse Pointe Board of REALTORS provided the labor to scrape and paint doors, windows and house trim, as well as cut the lawn, trim bushes and trees and fix some crumbling bricks and mortar.

Allemon's Landscape Center on Mack Avenue was outstanding in their contributions of pulling out the old, overgrown shrubbery in the front of the house, as well as donating all the new plantings to replace them: small trees, bushes and flowers. They even came back later in the day with yards of mulch for the new flower beds.

Likewise, Harrison Paint on Mack donated the necessary paint for the project, stopping by the house before the work date to match colors. They also gave us brushes and buckets to help with our chores! What they didn't provide, we were able to buy with a generous donation from the Grosse Pointe Sunrise Rotary Foundation.

Even the neighbors should be thanked, too, for helping out with a hose connection to water the new plantings and for an electrical hook-up for our tools.

Several of our members need to be especially recognized for their hard work in putting this project together. First, the two chairs for this project are Wayne Manchester and Peter Schueler.

Secondly, Janie Burkey and Kim Fuhrmann chair our Community Services Committee, and they planted bushes and cleaned up the back yard all day.

We're pleased to have been part of this community effort to help one elderly resident stay in her own home as long as possible. Services for Older Citizens (SOC) does a tremendous job all year round for our elderly and disabled neighbors and we're happy to be partners in this effort. What a great community we live in!
