Cwiek will face Richner for state representative

Pointers a lock in November

By Brad Lindberg
Staff Writer

Patricia Irving Cwiek will represent the Democratic party in the November election for state representative.

Cwiek, a Grosse Pointe Woods resident and first-time candidate for public office, will face Park resident and two-time Republican incumbent Rep. Andrew C. Richner for the right to represent District 1 in the Michigan Legislature.

Cwiek's give-and-take victory over Democratic rival John Patrick Anderson came two weeks after the polls closed on the August 8 primary. The county has two weeks to certify election results.

The official outcome awarded Cwiek a 94-vote victory and corrected preliminary figures that gave the election to Anderson by 17 votes. Both candidates suspected the preliminary results were wrong. Anderson won't seek a recount.

"I wish her well," he said of Cwiek. Cwiek was on vacation and unavailable for comment. Coupled with the two nominees for Wayne County commissioner, the November election virtually guarantees that a Grosse Pointe resident will provide hometown representation in the House and county government.

In the county race, Eric J. Steiner, a Republican city councilman from the Woods, will face two-term Democratic incumbent Christopher F. Cavanagh of the Park.

If Steiner wins office, it will be the first time a Republican has represented the Pointes on the commission since Richner left the board to begin his legislative career.

In the primary election for state representative, Cwiek earned nearly 22 percent of the vote compared to almost 45 percent for Richner, who, like Steiner in the county race, ran unopposed.

Although Cwiek lost the Detroit vote to Anderson, a Detroit resident, she won the suburbs.

Likewise, Richner and Steiner ran strongest in the five Grosse Pointes and Harper Woods.

School calendar set, but contract talks continue

By Bonnie Caprara
Staff Writer

Teachers, office personnel, classroom assistants and administrators are still without contracts in the Grosse Pointe Public School System, but school will start on Tuesday, Sept. 5.

Teachers and the district made a tentative agreement on the 2000-01 calendar on Friday, Aug. 25. The calendar includes some minor changes from the past year.

"We were able to keep our post-Labor Day opening," said assistant superintendent for administrative services Marjorie Parsons. "It will have minimal impact on everyone."

Five minutes were added to the elementary school day and 13 minutes were added to the high school day to comply with the additional 51 hours the state added to the public school calendar.

"We were only short a few hours, less than 10, at the ele-

A rosy retirement

Diane Andreou of Grosse Pointe Farms, (left), enjoys a rosy retirement as a Detroit Public School educator. She concluded her final day of teaching summer school at Anthony Wayne Elementary School with a celebratory meal at Lucy's Tavern on the Hill with her assistant principal Edwina Weiss (right), and 15 dozen roses from family, friends and fellow teachers.

There were one dozen roses for each year Andreou taught in Detroit — 14 years at Wayne Elementary from 1986 to 2000, and one year in the 1950s at Edmonson Elementary School on West Canfield, when she and her husband, the late Dr. Byron Andreou, lived nearby while he was chief resident in pediatrics at Harper Hospital. Andreou kept her favorite, the yellow roses, gave some to Weiss, and the rest to patients at Bon Secours Hospital and St. John Hospital and Medical Center, where her late husband was a member of staff.

Shiner a cure for messy geese

By Brad Lindberg
Staff Writer

A dog is ruffling feathers at the Edsel & Eleanor Ford House.

Thanks to Shiner the border collie, hundreds of geese that used to hang out at the 87-acre Grosse Pointe Shores estate have taken off for greener pastures.

The departure has left behind an unspoiled landscape the likes of which Ford House employees haven't enjoyed for years.

Coincidentally, perhaps, the director of Lake Front Park in the Woods, which is located across the fence from the Ford estate, reports a renewed goose problem.

"We've had twice as many (geese) as we've ever had," said Melissa Warnack, the Woods recreation director and park employee since 1992. "The Ford Estate has the same problem."

Not anymore. At the center of the transformation is 2-year-old Shiner, the newest member of the Ford estate's grounds crew. Slim and muscular with a herding instinct stronger than a radar beam, Shiner's trademark stare puts Cassius' lean and hungry look to shame.

Born to herd, not hunt, Shiner has never bitten a goose, or even a chick, according to the estate's Ann Fitzpatrick.

"He doesn't want to catch the geese," she said.

Julie Oakes, the southeast Michigan goose roundup coordinator for the state Department of Natural Resources, said border collies provide a nonlethal method of controlling geese.

"Nobody's harmed," said Oakes. "It's a form of harassment. The dogs are trying to mentary and high school levels," said Parsons. "The middle schools were already in compliance."

The elementary school day will run from 8:30-11:36 a.m. and from 12:26-3:32 p.m. The high school day will run from 8 a.m.-2:58 p.m. Middle school hours will remain the same from 8:30 a.m.-3:15 p.m.

Other highlights of the calendar include a half day in the morning of the first day of school for elementary students and additional evening conferences for the elementary and middle schools in the fall and spring.

Grosse Pointe Education Association president Rosalie Bryk was happy with the tentative calendar and said the 300-400 members who showed up at the teacher's union membership meeting on Thursday, Aug. 24, were also supportive of the calendar.

"It looks good," said Bryk. "We have some meaningful planning time and the breaks are educationally sound."

Shiner

Shiner, "Most other breeds (of dogs) require the gratification of catching prey to continue their chase behavior. However, a good Border collie is thrilled by the mere opportunity to stalk."

Last year the Ford estate was buried in geese. Fitzpatrick said the birds made it "impossible to walk on the grass and roads."

Within two weeks of Shiner's arrival in April, the geese had gotten the word.

"He's done such a good job that we don't have any geese," said Fitzpatrick. "Occasionally a flock will come and Shiner takes care of them. There's been an incredible difference in the geese population."

The same can be said of Lake Front Park, but in reverse.

"The geese leave a mess," said Warnack, who has dispatched lifeguards to chase geese off the property. "It's just disgusting."

Warnack said she consulted the DNR. Their options included Border collies and an egg replacement program.

Oakes said, "Egg replacement fakes out the birds by taking away real eggs and replacing them with dummies."

Warnack wants to give the egg option a try.

"Tons of babies have grown and they're here, too," she said. The program takes place in the spring.

Until then, said Warnack,

"all we can do is keep chasing geese."

Don Snodgrass, the estate's grounds director and the closest thing Shiner has to a master, said Shiner is a pleasure.

"He knows exactly where to run," said Snodgrass. Under Snodgrass' direction and according to commands obeyed like the pro he is, Shiner patrols the grounds daily. Every once in a while the dog carries the chase into Lake St. Clair.

Snodgrass said Shiner, whose name refers to a black patch around his right eye ("He has a 'shiner,'" said Fitzpatrick.), has a good work ethic, avoids junk food, doesn't complain and listens — "generally."

■ Twenty-four new teachers will be on hand when the Grosse Pointe Public Schools open for 6,000 students on Sept. 7.

Eighteen of the new teachers have been assigned to elementary schools and three each to the junior high and high schools. Three of the teachers are graduates of Grosse Pointe High School.

About 2,500 students are expected to enroll in the community's parochial schools this year.

■ The demolition of an old cottage lying between Memorial Church and the Little Club in Grosse Pointe farms will bring nostalgic memories to many long-time Grosse Pointers.

The cottage is next to the last of the neighborhood's collection of summer places built in the earlier days and the only one left in the Berkshire Place location. The other fronts Jefferson next to the church.

■ Mrs. George S. Patton Jr., the widow of the famous World War II general, has been the house guest of the Harold Tyree family of Provencal in Grosse Pointe Farms.

Patton is in town for the dedication of the Patton Memorial pool in Patton Park at Dix and Lonyo in Detroit.

■ The City of Grosse Pointe has received a $22,900 federal grant to update its 12-year-old master plan.

The City's application for the grant cited the age of the community, its inadequate public open space and old gridiron street pattern as requiring a stepped-up city planning effort.

■ In another federal grant to benefit the City of Grosse Pointe, $26,000 will be used to buy a new sewer pump and reconstruct the seawall at the foot of Lakeland.

■ A 14-3/4-inch sheephead has earned Farms resident Larry Bartoszewicz the biggest fish award at the annual Grosse Pointe Farms-City Fishing Rodeo.

More than 300 anglers took part in this year's event, during which Kurt Smolenski, also of the Farms, caught the most fish.

■ Administrators in the Grosse Pointe public schools have reestablished the Grosse Pointe Administrators Association, a union of administrators which had gone dormant about 10 years ago.

Donald Messing, the association's president and principal of Brownell Middle School, said among topics to be discussed with the school board is merit pay, which he called a "divisive instrument."

He said, "Merit pay breaks the group up rather than bringing it together."

■ Preliminary census data released last Monday shows the Grosse Pointes continuing their two-decade population decline.

The overall reduction during the 1980s has been 5.9 percent, from 50,021 to 48,961. The Woods has suffered the biggest numerical drop with 1,218 (6.4 percent), while the Park took the biggest percentage hit at 6.8 percent (930 residents).

■ James Moon and Donald Pierce Jr. have been awarded Distinguished Service Medals by the Automobile Club of Michigan for actions performed as members of the safety patrol.

The youngsters were patrolling the intersection of Cook and Holiday last November when a car barreled through a stop sign. The two safety patrollers quickly yanked three children to safety and recorded the license plate of the driver.

■ Farms police are hunting a pack of wild dogs that during the past fortnight has attacked and killed numerous local rabbits, pheasants and house pets. Robert Ferber, the Farms director of public safety, said his department has received 32 reports of the dogs this year. The pack is reportedly comprised of four dogs, including two German shepherds.

■ The beach at Pier Park in the Farms will remain closed for the rest of the season. High counts of E.coli bacteria have closed the beach since July 19.

■ Construction will begin soon on the Lakepointe condominium project on Jefferson between Lakepointe and Beaconsfield in Grosse Pointe Park.

The project, proposed by Grosse Pointe developer Diamond Philips, calls for 40 units priced between $150,000 and $200,000.

Pointers down home at the 152nd Michigan State Fair

By Brad Lindberg
Staff Writer

If Amy Liang knocks on your door selling an apple pie, buy it.

Based on her success at the Michigan State Fair, whenever she gets near a bag of flour it turns into something good.

"I've baked ever since I was little," said the 12-year-old resident of the City of Grosse Pointe.

Liang, who sells apple pies on the side, has led a Grosse Pointe blitz on the fair's community arts competitions.

Her chocolate cake won best in show. She won first place for chocolate cupcakes, muffins, blueberry coffee cake and blueberry quick bread. She won second place for muffins and honorable mention for another quick bread.

In the crafts department, Liang won second premium for a pink and white basket, third for macrame, and two honorable mentions for a flower pot and pen holder.

The first-time state fair participant was surprised her bread won best in show.

"I kind of messed up (the recipe)," she said. "I added something out of order."

Liang's sister, Anna, 9, won honorable mention for a white ceramic bowl. Anna decorated the bowl with a black and green spiral that starts at the bottom and circles up the sides to the rim.

The girls' brother, Michael, 15, who is about to enter 10th grade at Grosse Pointe South High School, won two ribbons for photography.

He won first for a picture of a rose, and fourth for a palm tree superimposed over a beach in Cuba.

The Liangs were among many Pointers who entered the 152nd Michigan State Fair. Adult winners include:

- Michael Derbyshire, a professional watercolor artist from the Woods, has won numerous awards at previous state fairs. But this year is the first time he's won first and second place.

"Dancing Barn," the blue ribbon winner, is of an actual house and barn at which a dance was held in Derbyshire's youth.

"A Place in History," which won second, shows a shutterless frame house sitting beside a dirt road amid the farm country of Gettysburg, Penn.

- Cynthia Redlawski, a consecutive two-time first place winner for German chocolate cake, took second this year. Her five-layer cake finished behind a single-layer poppy seed cake with white frosting.

"Oh well, what can you do," laughed Redlawski. "You enter the fair for the fun of it. I have a couple recipes under my hat that I'll introduce next year."

Her only chance for a blue ribbon this year will be at the sandwich making contest on Sunday, Sept. 3, at high noon.

- "Grandma, do you have any of your famous bread?"

It's a request Marlis Greening of the Farms has become used to. About 40 years ago, Greening cut a recipe for banana bread out of the newspaper.

A family staple, Greening's banana bread has won first prize at the state fair more than once. This year, it finished third.

"My grandchildren always call it Grandma's famous bread, not banana bread," said Greening.

- Matthew Callahan of the City of Grosse Pointe has been entering baked goods at the state fair for nearly two decades. This year, his yeast bread won fourth place.

He started baking 20 years ago after checking out a book on breads from the Grosse Pointe Public Library.

"I've learned to bake by trial and error," said Callahan. "I like nothing better than a corned beef sandwich on a loaf of homemade rye bread."

In youth categories, the following won ribbons:

- "When I'm not playing guitar, I'm probably cooking," said Neil Laperriere, a 15-year-old Park resident and sophomore at South High.

The music he and his classmates play in the rock band Bionic Testament is "hard core ambient crossover," said Laperriere, but his cooking is middle of the road.

Laperriere won best in show for a gingerbread house. A two-story structure with a covered front porch, the house is topped with vanilla icing and dotted with Christmas candy.

"I ate more candy than I put on the house," said Laperriere.

Other winners included:

- Robert Redlawski, Cynthia's 11-year-old son, won best in show for a Ninja mountain. The Lego sculpture depicts a multifaceted battle with lots of color and action.
- "I put a lot of detail into it so it would be really cool," said Robert.

- Kristin Ashlee Schultes of the Park won fifth place in the grade 7-9 category for a charcoal still life drawing of a flower arrangement on a table. A teddy bear sits nearby.

- The photography of Annie Chapman of Grosse Pointe Farms won two ribbons in the age 14 to 18 category.

"Circle of Friends," a color photo of seven pairs of feet and legs arrayed like the spokes of a wheel, won second. A black and white shot of a monkey in a swing won fourth.

- Lydia Foller, a Woods resident, won first premium in grades 1 and 2 for her still life painting of a sunflower in a brown, striped vase in front of striped, multi-colored curtains.

- Stephen Hilton, a 10-year-old from the Woods who won awards at last year's fair, earned second premium this time for his clay sculptures of a basket full of animals. The menagerie includes a blue turtle, gray raccoon, green salamander and blue cobra.

Hilton also won honorable mention for a Lego guided missile frigate.

The adult entries are displayed in the community arts building. Youth entries are featured in the youth building, near the family grove.

The Michigan State Fair runs through Monday, Sept. 4.

City purchases carillon for arch clock

By Jim Stickford
Staff Writer

The City of Grosse Pointe Council recently approved the purchase of a carillon system to go with the arch clock that will span Kercheval in the Village.

Longtime Village booster Beverly Leinweber spoke to the council on Aug. 21 and updated members on progress for the beautification project.

Money for the clock and the carillon are being raised by the Grosse Pointe City Foundation as well as by Georgia Valente. So far, said Leinweber, they've raised about $47,000.

City employee Brian Vic said the City will purchase the system on behalf of Leinweber and the others. He said that a regular carillon consists of a series of bells. The musician then plays a keyboard that results in the bells being chimed.

The carillon the City is purchasing is a "modern" carillon, said Vic. It's a computerized box that contains about 100 songs and tunes. It can be programmed to play specific music appropriate for the season. So during Christmas, shoppers might hear "Jingle Bells." Around the Fourth of July, shoppers might hear "Stars and Stripes Forever."

"The carillon can also be programmed to sound off at the hour, the quarter-hour and the half-hour, if we so desire," said Vic.

While the council was generally enthusiastic about the carillon, some expressed concerns about who would control the carillon and what sorts of music, if any, would be played. "I can see where this might get out of hand," said councilman Dale Scrae. "We need some sort of rules and regulations."

One of the prime movers for the clock and the carillon is Valente, widow of long-time Village businessman Jerald Valente, who died in June 1998.

"The Grosse Pointe Foundation came to me during the funeral," said Mrs. Valente. "They said they wanted to do something in Jerry's honor. Well, Jerry and Beverly Leinweber had been talking about some sort of clock. This was during the planning stage of the Village's renovation and we ended up with this wonderful clock and carillon in Jerry's honor."

Valente said that her husband would be pleased with the project because he gave 100 percent of himself to the Village.

"I can't tell you how rewarding it is to see your dreams come true," said Valente. "Jerry cared so much about this community and so much for the Village. When you see the response from friends and the public, it's special. This is a beautiful tribute to Jerry."

Valente said anyone interested in making a donation can contact her at (313) 881-4800. Checks should be made payable to the Grosse Pointe Foundation. Leinweber said they've raised $47,000 so far for the clock and carillon.

Vic said that construction on the clock arch and carillon is expected to begin this fall.

The arch will cross over Kercheval, between St. Clair and Notre Dame. The carillon speakers will be with the clock.

Pointer's love of people includes club and its members

By Margie Reins Smith
Assistant Editor

Evelyn Hansen leans forward, lowers her voice to a near-whisper and waves a forearm across her knee as she imitates the employment agency interviewer she met 22 years ago. Hansen had been out of the job market for a dozen years because she stayed home to raise four children.

"Now, Evelyn," he said, "have you kept up your clerical skills?" Hansen mimicked, with a patronizing smirk.

"I said yes, I had."

"Can you prove it?" he asked me.

"Yes."

Hansen straightened up and grasped both arms of her chair.

"I took his typing test and I'll tell you . . . I made that typewriter sing. He called me two days later and said he had lined up an interview for me at the Detroit Athletic Club."

"He also . . ." Hansen chuckles as she recalls the conversation. "He also suggested that I wear a dress to the interview."

"I got the job and I have been having a love affair with the DAC ever since."

Hansen, who lives in the City of Grosse Pointe, is the assistant secretary of the DAC. She is in charge of club membership and serves as liaison to the board of directors.

"The DAC is an extension of my family," she said. "I have lots of paperwork — no doubt about that — but each piece of paper that comes across my desk represents a person. People are interesting. People are valuable."

Hansen was born in Chicago during the Depression. Her parents were German immigrants and she spoke German until she started school.

The family moved to Detroit in 1934 because her father found a job with J.L. Hudson's. He worked as a tailor at the downtown Hudson's store until he retired.

Hansen remembers downtown Hudson's glory days.

"We used to take the bus downtown to shop. We wore hats and gloves. I remember Christmas on the 12th floor of the department store. It was a fairytale. I also remember going to first-run movies in downtown Detroit."

Hansen graduated from Dominican High School.

"Girls weren't encouraged to go to college when I was young," she said, "unless we wanted to be nurses or teachers. I always did best in business courses."

Her first job was with Michigan Bell Telephone Company, where she worked in the directory department, then in the steno pool as a secretary and finally as an administrative assistant in the personnel department.

She married Terry Hansen in 1955, when she was 21. Their first child was born two years later and Hansen decided to stay at home to be a full-time homemaker and mother.

"There was no day care back then. I tried part-time jobs and did some freelance work for the U.S. Census Bureau, but it was too much."

When her youngest child was 11, she signed on with the DAC and she's been there ever since. She is 66.

POINTER OF INTEREST

Evelyn Hansen has worked for the Detroit Athletic Club for close to 23 years. She is assistant secretary and is in charge of club membership. She also serves as liaison to the board of directors.

"I have no plans to retire," she said.

The 85-year-old DAC has had some lean years, but it currently has a roster of 3,000 voting members and a waiting list for the first time in 30 years.

Hansen accounts for the DAC's resurging popularity by citing four factors: the improved economy, downtown Detroit's apparent "comeback," the club's recent renovation program and the fact that the DAC is in the hub of Detroit's new stadiums and entertainment district.

"The DAC was founded in 1915," she said. It was an era when men had men's clubs; women had women's clubs. It was the natural thing to do.

"It was natural for the DAC to have a women's entrance and a women's wing in those days. It made sense."

"But we have to change with the times. This no longer made sense. The DAC's membership is about 10 percent women now and we worked hard to get that."

Hansen helped plan a cocktail reception in the mid 1990s that was especially for prospective women members. "We went all out to let women know about this club. We repeated the party two years later. It was difficult to dispel the myth that the DAC had no women members."

"Now, the women here said they don't want separate receptions any more. They want to be treated just like everyone else."

Hansen's devotion to the club often involves after-hours work, extra telephone calls and arrangements, some assertive stances and a bit of luck. Members are like her children, she said.

"Some of them even call me Mom."

When actor George Clooney was in town to film a movie, Hansen heard that he liked to shoot baskets.

"The club manager talked to the club president and together they extended an offer to Clooney to use the DAC's athletic facilities while he was in town, even though he was not a member."

"Then the manager told me," Hansen said, "that the DAC president would love to have his picture taken with Clooney."

"So . . . I called Clooney's secretary. Got permission to take the photo. Called the athletic director and asked him to let me know when Clooney was at the club, shooting baskets. Called the DAC president to get a phone number where he could be reached when Clooney showed up. Got my own camera, loaded and ready to shoot."

"I got a call about 2 p.m. one afternoon from the athletic director. 'Clooney's here,' he said. I called the president. He dropped everything and came to the club. I grabbed my camera. They shook hands. I got my photo."

"I had the film developed immediately and the next morning I called the president's secretary and asked her to meet me in front of his office at such-and-such a time."

"It was like a drug drop. I drove by the office, handed her the photo out the car window and drove off. The photo was on our president's desk when he came in to work."

Hansen has also been involved in many of the DAC's parties. For some theme parties, she has dressed as a mime, a witch and as a French street-walker.

She once lost a bet with a member. She had to take him to dinner. She couldn't afford a fancy dinner, she said, so she arranged for a limousine to take them to the downtown Coney Island.

Local newscaster Dwayne X. Riley got wind of the bet and the Channel 4 news camera accompanied them to film a short segment on "Riley's World."

Hansen's associates describe her as outgoing, upbeat, energetic and enthusiastic.

"I try to find a balance in life," she said. "Life deals a lot of tough blows. My husband, who died in 1991, was ill most of our married life. I've had some hard times. I try to balance life with humor and with fun."

"I feel like I'm the luckiest person in the world to work here. It's a pleasure to get up in the morning and come here."

Hansen's four grown children, Scott, Barbara, Stephen and Christopher, live nearby. She has four grandchildren.

She recently vacationed at a dude ranch with her daughter and two grandchildren.

"I got on a horse for the first time in 45 years," she said, "and participated in everything. Life is for living. I believe in being an active participant. I like staying connected and in touch with people."

A new era in philanthropy

By Robert I. Evans

Not since President Roosevelt's New Deal has America witnessed the kind of dramatic changes that have been taking place over the past few years in the way Americans tend to their needy and other communal concerns. If America is going to maintain its legacy as a nation that places a high value on social causes, then the country — and particularly those who run our nonprofit organizations — are going to have to confront a host of new challenges.

When Roosevelt came to power, poverty was so widespread that America decided to allow its government to take over the role of caring for the needy through mandatory taxation and new social programs. Before that time, most of those who received help got it from charities or wealthy philanthropists or from people of more modest means who made one-time, often impulsive donations — all, of course, on a voluntary basis.

As the country became richer, Americans sought to narrow the gaps in wealth, health and education and to promote institutions like hospitals and universities that benefit everyone. Spending for social causes — by both government and the philanthropic world blossomed. Support for the nation's nonprofit agencies, having grown from roots that date to America's earliest days, became a hallmark of the American tradition.

During the past 30 years, charitable contributions have increased along with gross domestic product; nonprofit groups have been raising slightly less than 2 percent of GDP on average from donations each year. During the past 10 years, donations have doubled, topping $190 billion in 1999, according to figures released in May by the AAFRC Trust for Philanthropy, a research group founded by the American Association of Fund Raising Counsel.

It is not, however, merely the impressive increases in donations that have revolutionized the nonprofit sector. The tremendous economic, political, technological and cultural changes that have affected such a large part of our lives during the 1990s have also had a profound impact on trends in the world of giving.

Some of the changes are complex. Propelled by the remarkable growth in the value of stocks, for example, wealth rose quickly throughout the 1990s.

Empirical evidence — and common sense — suggest that as Americans become wealthier, they are more apt to make charitable contributions. But the economic boom does not fully explain the increases in donations. Indeed, even after their gifts are adjusted for the level of the economy, donors last year gave more than they had in nearly three decades; their $190 billion in donations was 2.1 percent of GDP, the highest percentage since 1971.

Similarly, the strong economy has coincided with an improvement in government budgets. Today the debates are over what to do with surpluses, as opposed to what kind of government spending to cut — or taxes to raise — to help close gaps. Yet, pressure has grown to roll back public spending, leaving charitable organizations to pick up the ball. Both Al Gore and George W. Bush have expressed support for providing tax dollars or credits to even religiously oriented charities, because they recognize America's desire to shift social obligations back to the private, nonprofit world.

Technology has also helped revolutionize the field, not only by helping to fuel the economy, but also by providing new ways to make donations. What's more, the Internet has made vast quantities of information readily available. That — along with the publicity surrounding a few high-profile cases involving the misuse of philanthropic funds — has led to greater scrutiny of nonprofit groups and a greater demand for accountability.

Donors have become more active, too. We've witnessed the rise of a phenomenon known as "direct giving," in which donors are no longer content just to write out checks and let institutional bureaucracies decide how their money is spent. Today, increasingly, donors are earmarking their contributions, though with more going for programs and services than for bricks and mortar. Traditional umbrella campaigns are not as popular as they once were, and a rash of new non-profits has mushroomed, creating an intensely competitive situation for agencies that seek funding from the same sources.

Meanwhile, the equities markets have done so well that stocks and other investments have become both a new medium for income for nonprofits and a new vehicle for giving. And with stocks being looked at increasingly as a source for revenue, portfolio management is becoming a more important function even at the smallest agencies. Tax incentives, too, have sometimes been a factor in encour-

'Survivors': Get a 'real life'

To be quite honest, I only watched the last episode of "Survivor." With all the talk I heard about the backstabbing and manipulation going on among the self-proclaimed tribal members, it just wasn't something I was interested in viewing, despite the claims that it reflected a microcosm of what it takes to get ahead in "real life."

"Survivor" was far from "real life." It was an assembly of 16 hand-picked individuals who chose to rough it on a remote island in the South China Sea for 39 days. They knew what they were getting into. They knew what they could bring and had the time to emotionally prepare for the challenge. Besides, I doubt if the show's producers were silly enough not to have a backup plan in case someone got severely injured or ill. It was no different from the hundreds of wilderness camps, military boot camps and adventure travel packages one can volunteer for or pay to attend. Some people are just into that kind of thing. When they start sending "survivors" to live on the Arctic Circle or in the Cass Corridor for 39 days, maybe I'll start watching.

Aside from fending for themselves and battling the elements, the challenges they had to meet to stay on the island were quite contrived. The two immunity challenges the final four had to make were to know intimate details of their fellow inhabitants' lives and to see who could stand the longest holding on to some invented idol pole. I really expected to see some kind of tests of tenacity, skill or endurance. Perhaps the next season of "Survivor" can include some of my family's favorite challenges like who can go the longest without talking or laughing.

Another argument against the case for "Survivor" reflecting "real life": I've found that the way most people get ahead in life deals more with individual diligence and teamwork. In instances in which only one person can win, I'm a whole lot more impressed with someone who can prove they have the ability to be the best, not the ability to cut down and undermine the competition. After all, how far did Tonya Harding get with her pipe plot against Nancy Kerrigan in the 1994 Winter Olympics?

If anything, the only "real life" situation with "Survivor" is the 40 million voyeurs tuned into the final episode to see who would be the hero. I've talked to devout followers of the show that could tell you more about Richard, Rudy, Kelly or Susan than they could about their own neighbors or co-workers. Many people adjusted their social, professional and family obligations to watch and listen to the vile, mean-spirited comments the members of the tribal council made on who they voted to kick off or keep on the island and why, none of whom I saw worthy of earning $1, let alone $1 million or being considered a hero.

Unfortunately, I think this show says more about 40 million people than it does 16 people. I think the 40 million need to get reacquainted with "real life."

Embracing stress

We read about it constantly. In this generation it is painted as the source of all evil. It affects our mental and physical well-being, colors our lives in assorted hues from rage red to cool blue.

It's name is STRESS. In generic terms it means pressure or tension. Because we all experience it we put our personal spins on it, according to its impact on our lives.

I've decided that, for me, stress cannot be a catch-all excuse for the way we choose to live or simply exist. In a grand statement of acceptance, I am proclaiming stress as my new best friend.

Instead of trying to outrun it, I will embrace it. Life will be much less complicated if I invite stress and physical pain into my body and acknowledge they are my roommates for this time in my life. If they are an accepted part of my existence, then they cannot overwhelm me. One day they may just walk out on me and that will be fine.

You know the expression, "Into each life some rain must fall." Some of us have occasionally felt they are in the middle of a torrential downpour.

Each day seems much the same as the last one, and we tend to become more comfortable than we ought to be in our personal ruts. I maintain that if we do all we can do at the moment to alleviate our stress, then we won't have to see it as the enemy and fight it.

I'm not saying surrender and hide in a cave, where the stimuli of the world cannot nourish us, but stress doesn't have to rule our lives. Who gave it permission to become our Higher Power?

Not one of us will escape stress in some form in our lives. That alone should give some degree of comfort. Doesn't misery like company? However, instead of forming a stress sorority, we can draw strength from many of the common obstacles that stand in the way of our acceptable routines. We can alter the routine; we can challenge the problem; we can seek counsel from professionals, friends, churches.

We can declare a truce. The choice is ours.

Thanks for support

To the Editor:

The organizers of Parcells' 8th Grade Party and Promotion Ceremony would like to extend a thank you and our appreciation to two local businesses that graciously made donations to our celebration:

Speedi Photo, donated a considerable amount of costly Polaroid film; and Five Pointes Garden Center, loaned us 25 pots of flowers to decorate our stage for the promotion ceremony. Unfortunately, we have learned, that the Garden Center has gone out of business.

We ask that the Grosse Pointe community support the local businesses that support our children.

We would also like to extend a special thank you to Jan McGraw and all of the 7th-grade parents and students who organized, served and cleaned up at the 8th-grade promotion breakfast. You made a very memorable day even more special, and allowed the 8th-grade parents to relax and enjoy themselves.

A special thank you goes out to all of the Parcells' teachers and administrators who wholeheartedly supported the 8th-grade activities and to Mary Fodell and her art class for the great photo backdrop.

Last, but not least, the entire 8th-grade celebration could not have been such a success without the help of the majority of 8th-grade parents who supported the events during the last week of school. Your efforts are truly appreciated.

Celebrity asks for cure

To the Editor:

Labor Day weekend is fast approaching, and I must tell you it's an occasion with special meaning for me. You see, more than 20 years ago I agreed to help the Muscular Dystrophy Association by reading a message for the Jerry Lewis MDA Telethon from a father dying from amyotrophic lateral sclerosis (ALS or Lou Gehrig's disease). His amazing expression of courage brought me to tears, and became a personal source of inspiration that prompted me to again appear on the telethon in 1987.

Many of you saw me in last year's ABC-TV movie "Tuesdays With Morrie" in which I played Morrie Schwartz, another brave man dying from ALS. An incredible educator, Morrie's indomitable spirit has transcended death by serving as a catalyst for living — even when one is being ravaged by disease.

I'm proud that the movie, and the best seller by Mitch Albom on which it was based, have helped so many families. But Labor Day reminds me that we can't stop with Morrie's important lessons. We must find a way to stop ALS, an insidious disease affecting some 35,000 Americans.

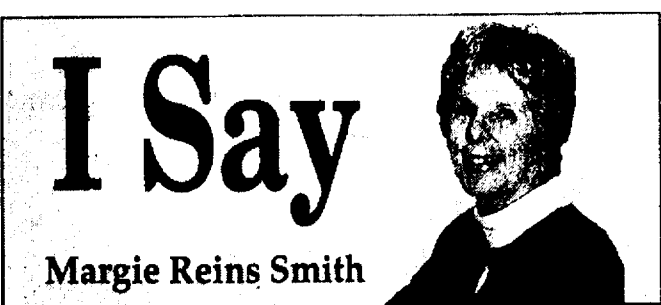

I just completed a message for this year's telethon. It will be part of the chorus of celebrity testimonials and performances you'll see this Labor Day weekend to help families affected by ALS and other muscle-wasting diseases. Like me, they want to accelerate worldwide research seeking treatments and cures and help MDA maintain its network of 230 clinics offering families unparalleled medical services without direct charge. I hope you'll try to make a difference, too.

Birdbrains are early risers

Who wakes birds? It's a question worth pondering. My grandson might want to know the answer to this — later, when he learns to talk. And ask endless questions. I want to be ready with facts. Who sets the alarm clock that gets the birds in my neighborhood up for breakfast? How do these feathered critters know when to get up? Is it the time of day? The sunrise? Does weather have anything to do with it? Season? How about the racket created by other birds? Does one bird wake up and start yakkling, rousing all the others? Do birds even sleep? And in my neighborhood, are they getting enough sleep? On cool mid-summer mornings, very early, just as it's beginning to get light, neighborhood birds wake up feeling bright-eyed, chipper and talkative, like all the annoying morning people I've known. Morning people have the disturbing habit of leaping out of bed refreshed and perky. They dash around, sing operatic arias in the shower, snap towels at each other and listen to the radio. They fry noisy food like bacon and they rustle newspapers and stomp around and hum to themselves and tune the TV volume much louder than it needs to be.

I Say Margie Reins Smith

They slurp their coffee. They talk to household pets and, if you ignore these people, they even talk to themselves. They are eager to awaken everybody else, including dyed-in-the-wool non-morning people. I've never understood what drives these metabolic-impaired individuals. I wake up rumpled and bleary and sluggish. My heart doesn't start beating until about 10 a.m. By noon, I'm ready to face the world. I notice early bird conversations most often on summer mornings when it has been cool enough to sleep with windows and skylights flung open. Just as it's starting to lighten up, a solitary crow gets the conversational ball rolling. He flies around the neighborhood testing his voice — at first a few squawks, then a noisy barrage and a stream of cedar waxwings, and pigeons. Every single bird has something to say. Cardinals are whistlers; blue jays make harsh chee chee sounds; woodpeckers do the rat-a-tats; robins sing carols; doves mumble throaty coos; wrens flit and stutter; chickadees make their trademark chick-a-dee-dee-dee calls. All too early. All too often. All over and over and over and over. The mourning doves are like morning people who hum to themselves. The robins and cardinals are the opera singers. The woodpeckers and wrens are the bacon fryers and coffee slurpers of the bird world. And those annoying crows are the towel-snappers of the bird world.

Crime is down — weight is up

You would think there would be no downside to the healthy economy. Crime is down 10 percent from a high 10 years ago, as predicted by the sociologists. They say as long as people are poor there will be crime, the more poor people the more crime. It only stands to reason, although the relationship of poverty to crime is not so simple. Decreasing crime is the upside to a healthy economy. But the latest news is that accompanying this steadily improving economy, with more money in people's pockets, is a growing tendency to obesity, and with that an increase in diabetes, now said to be of epidemic proportions. Medical research data show a continuing connection between obesity and diabetes. Diabetes, especially the late onset type 2, undiagnosed and untreated can lead to dire complications. These include arteriosclerosis, which affects the heart, eyes, kidneys and brain, and hypertension, which adds a burden to the heart and compromises blood flow to vital organs. Eventually loss of blood and nerve supplies to the limbs can lead to infection and gangrene, necessitating amputation in extreme cases. This dire picture is not common, but can result from lack of treatment over time. Diabetes can be controlled by diet and insulin or oral sugar-lowering medicines. People with diabetes need education as to the mechanism of the disease, which foods to avoid or consume only in moderation, and how to test the blood sugar. The best remedy is prevention, and prevention requires knowledge of the root causes, complex as they may be. What are the causes of obesity? It's a combination of eating too much and exercising too little. That seems simple enough. If you take in more calories than you burn, the excess calories will be stored as fat. Many sedentary individuals gain a pound a year, but after 50 years, that is 50 pounds! Many middle-aged and older people are fighting the battle of the bulge, and there are numerous weight-reducing methods and schemes available. The bookstores are full of books, such as the Atkins diet, and there are such group methods available as Weight Watchers and Take Off Pounds

Sensibly (TOPS). Although most of these work in the short run, most dieters eventually revert to their old habits. It is a difficult problem. It is difficult because food tastes good and food is the great universal comforter. We are raised in a society where food is varied and plentiful and easily accessible. Visitors from other countries are amazed at the sheer abundance of food displayed in our supermarkets. They are also impressed with the sheer number of fast-food outlets and restaurants, the quantity of which seems to grow exponentially. And there is an increasing tendency to consume ever larger amounts of food, for example the double Whopper with cheese and bacon and extra fries. Do you want extra fries with your extra fries? And how about a liter of Coke? Add to the volume, quality and variety of food, the tendency to not exercise. Consider how the automobile has replaced walking. And consider the time spent watching TV and/or sitting in front of the computer, or playing video games. For every person you see walking or jogging, there are 10 people sitting, and sitting for many hours per day. This combination of huge intakes of food and minimal exercise accounts for the increase in the nation's obesity and, thereby, diabetes. Whatever happened to "you can never be too rich or too thin?" Interesting that at the same time there is an increase in eating disorders which leave some people too thin — anorexia and bulimia — the rest of the country is tending to overweight. Many cultures celebrate prosperity with a great consumption of food, and our multicultural society is burgeoning from this cultural tendency. You can never get too much of a good thing? A wise patient once gave me a deeper insight: "You can never get enough of what you really want." That is a clue for the insatiable appetite. People should take heed of this growing trend toward overweight and diabetes and make some lifestyle changes. Everything should be in moderation — moderate intake of food and moderate exercise. The government guidelines for diet include lots of whole grains, fruits and vegetables. If you fill up on those, bulk and nourishment is there and calories are down. Go easy on animal fat and dairy products (steaks, hamburgers, pizza) and substitute fish and fowl whenever possible. Consider more walking and less driving. Limit sedentary activities. See your doctor. Check your weight, blood pressure, cholesterol and blood sugar. If you have diabetes, get educated and follow a remedial program. Often, simply changing your diet, getting more exercise and losing some weight will solve the problem. Prevention is the best cure. aging donors to be even more generous. We often say, "Uncle Sam should be considered as an honorary donor to campaigns, given his tax considerations for making charitable gifts." To meet the new challenges, more and more organizations are turning to outside firms like mine that specialize in strategizing and managing for more effective fundraising campaigns and maximizing donations. As a result, we outsiders are inheriting an obligation that goes well beyond our contracts with our clients. For if the new economy is going to make it easier for Americans to tend to causes they care about, and if government is going to be eschewed as the channel through which surplus funds are to be directed to those causes, then it falls to the nonprofits to carry out their missions more efficiently and creatively. That means "the industry" is going to have to operate in a manner similar to the for-profit world, including maintaining high standards of ethics and accountability. In this modern age, the world of philanthropy is sure to shine as never before. Given the technological tools at our disposal, the unprecedented availability of capital and the new political and cultural climate, the nonprofit sector can show that it can help fulfill America's dream to tend to its poor, build up its research and educational centers and establish strong communal institutions. The philanthropic world has a historic chance to show that a voluntary system of funneling cash to these causes can work well — perhaps in a way that the system wrought by the New Deal never could. Woodward Dream Cruise spawns world-class classic car auction

The Woodward Dream Cruise has grown fantastically in the five years since its inception into a week-long event which draws hundreds of thousands, probably a million or more, to cruise or gawk.

A new wrinkle this year was provided by RM Classic Cars, which in the past decade has put Michigan on the car collector auction map with its spring and fall auctions in the Novi Expo Center and its newer 2-year-old sale at Meadow Brook in conjunction with the Concours d'Elegance.

This year's Woodward Avenue Classic Car Auction at the Michigan State Fairgrounds in Detroit was in the RM tradition — a success right from the start. (RM stands for Rob Myers, founder of the company; CEO is Michael Fairbairn.)

Intended as a market for Woodward Cruise-type cruisers, a well-balanced selection of more than 350 cars from the '30s, '40s, '50s and '60s, street rods, muscle cars and classics were offered, and the parking lot outside the auction tent was a show to rival the best. About 35 percent of the cars offered were sold, a good result for the first sale of what is planned to be an annual event.

We may not get auto racing at the Michigan Fairgrounds, but we are getting a major collector car auction at the site, which is at the southern end of the Dream Cruise route.

In addition to the four Michigan auctions — spring and fall in Novi, the classic car sale at Meadow Brook and the cruiser auction at the Woodward event — RM Classic Cars and RM Auctions stage spring and fall auctions in Toronto, annual events in Scottsdale, Ariz., at Amelia Island, Fla., and at Pebble Beach at Monterey, Calif.

Biggest sale at the Woodward auction was $275,000 for a 1970 Plymouth Hemi Cuda, one of only 18 built, a worthy ride for the Dream Cruise.

Another big feature was the sale of a 1968 Ford Mustang Shelby GT 500 convertible, which was a wedding gift from Madonna to Sean Penn. It sold for $52,500.

There were plenty of bargains realized at the auction also, mainly in no-reserve offerings. A reserve is an amount, unknown to bidders, below which the seller will not sell. In a no-reserve sale, the car will go for the highest bid, no matter how low it might be.

A '65 Ford Galaxie 500 convertible, for example, was sold at no reserve for $675 and a rare '67 Ford four-door

Autos

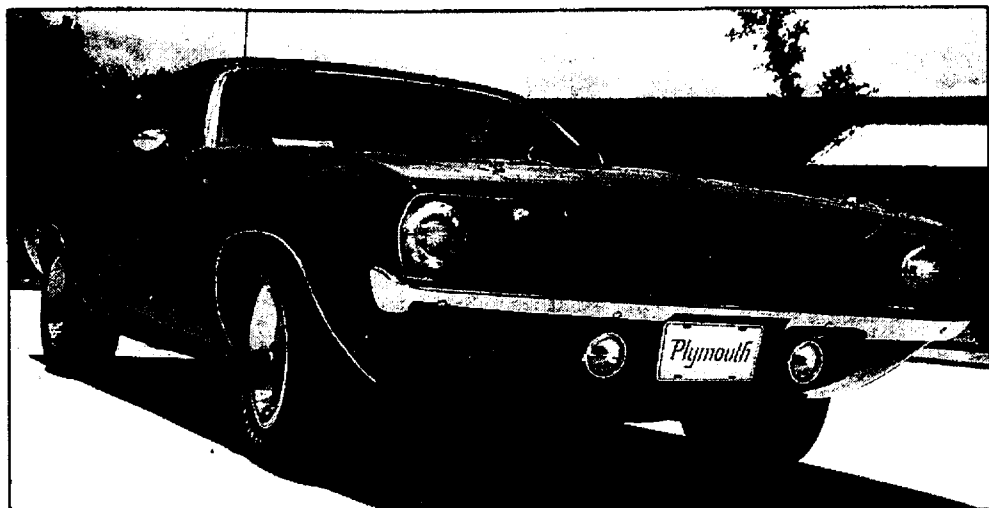

By Richard Wright

Thunderbird changed hands for $900.

A '37 Cord street rod, which looked perfectly stock, but which had been converted to rear drive and fitted with a Chevrolet 350 V-8 and automatic transmission, sold at no reserve for $22,500.

Other no-reserve bargains included a 1928 Durant for $5,950, a '56 Lincoln Mark II for $8,654, a '64 Chevrolet Corvair convertible for $1,150, a '62 Oldsmobile 88 hardtop for $2,400, and a '51 Packard Patrician for $6,100.

Highest sale price of the day was $275,000 which bought this '70 Plymouth Hemi Cuda convertible, one of only 18 built.

Beautiful '56 Lincoln Mark II, a car so expensive to make it is claimed that Ford Motor Co. lost money on each one sold, was sold with no reserve for $8,650.

Summer 'dog days' wind up with Labor Day next week

Wall Street historically goes on vacation for the two weeks prior to Labor Day.

Floor traders, specialists, phone clerks, upstairs personnel, research analysts, portfolio managers, mutual fund directors, all gone!

Mergers and acquisitions are on hold, initial public offerings postponed, volatility decreases and volume contracts (3.9 billion shares last week vs. 4.3 billion shares the prior week).

Last week, the DJI gained 146 points, up 1.3 percent, to close at 11,192. And the NASDAQ Composite romped another 112 points upward, finishing at 4,042, up 2.9 percent.

Not much to write home about. During August, the Dow rallied 6.5 percent, but is still 2.7 percent under last year-end.

Since Jan. 1, the NASDAQ Composite has moved up, or down, more than 3 percent in about one-third of all its trading days, but is still about even for the year-to-date.

Computer shares roared last week:

- IBM (IBM, about 129, up 8 5/8);
- Apple Computer (AAPL, about 56 13/16, up 6 13/16) and
- Gateway (GTW, about 66 3/16, up 2 13/16).

But the Loser-of-the-Week Award goes to Bausch & Lomb (BOL, about 34 15/16, off 21 5/8), which lost its contact lenses after warning that this year's earnings would come in at $2.69 to $2.74 per share, compared to analysts' expectations of $3.15 per share.

NYSE trades pennies

Last Monday, Aug. 28, the NYSE commenced trading

Let's talk...STOCKS

seven stocks in pennies, instead of fractions or three-place decimals. The American Stock Exchange also tried out six of its stocks.

Newspaper readers won't notice any changes in the published stock listings, because, for several weeks, the newspapers have printed stock quotations from computer-generated conversions of decimals into pennies, with the third decimal of fractions rounded up if over .005 and rounded down if under .005.

The second phase of the penny pilot program begins on Monday, Sept. 25, with the addition of 57 issues on the NYSE, including America Online (AOL, about 59 7/8), Compaq Computer (CPQ, about 33 5/8), DaimlerChrysler AG (DCX, about 54 7/16) and General Motors, Cl. H (GMH, about 33 15/16).

Why not turn on cable TV on Monday, Sept. 25, to CNBC (Channel 38 in Grosse Pointe) or MSNBC (Channel 59) and try to find the above stocks streaming across on the tape?

Dividend hike?

The trend recently at many companies has been to hold down, or even cut, cash dividends, even when profits were exploding. The excess cash was then devoted to a stock repurchase program (SRP).

These multi-million-dollar SRPs were intended to buy back company shares to be held as "Treasury Stock," available for future acquisitions, or to fund employee (and officer) stock option plans to avoid further dilution.

Most analysts agree that the SRPs work reasonably well. In accordance with SEC regulations, most purchases are made against (lower) or at current market levels. The net effect is that the SRP acts as a "floor," absorbing shares that might otherwise have depressed market prices.

It's really great that some companies acknowledge that there would be no company at all without the shareholders. Old Kent Financial, headquartered in Grand Rapids (OK, about 29 1/16 on NYSE, off 3/8 last week), declared a $0.22 per share quarterly dividend last week, payable Sept. 15.

This represents OK's 42nd consecutive annual dividend hike — imagine 42 years of increased dividends!

It did so by declaring the same $0.22 per share dividend on the greater number of shares now outstanding since the 5 percent stock dividend was distributed July 14.

Old Kent earned $2.15 per share in 1999, and, according to First Call, analysts' expectations are for $2.36 this year and $2.62 in 2001, all adjusted for the 5 percent stock dividend.

The increased $0.88 annual cash dividend still only represents a payout of 37 percent of current year estimated earnings, leaving lots of cash to renew OK's SRP in the near future.

At current prices, OK yields about 3 percent, far above the 1.66 percent yield of the DJI and the 1.07 percent yield of the S&P 500.

LTS recently visited an NBD retired officer, and the conversation very quickly got to BankOne stock (ONE, about 33 9/16).

Ten minutes later, LTS begged pardon and excused himself.

Prime time

Prime time television is an obvious oxymoron. There is no "prime" time. Is anyone watching at all?

Most advertisers define prime time (PT) as 6 to 10 p.m. (Eastern), Monday through Friday. Others add Sunday; Saturdays are questionable.

In the BC days (before cable), PT was home turf to the Big Three TV networks, alphabetically: ABC, CBS and NBC.

In 1978 these three had 91 percent of the viewing audience. By 1999, this share had fallen to 45 percent, a 50 percent decline in 21 years.

On the advertising revenue side, the Big Three today has 32.1 percent, or $14 billion, of the $45 billion advertising pot.

So they have 32.1 percent of revenues and 45 percent of audience.

Don't cry. 1999's $14 billion revenues are $10 billion more than 1978's $4 billion.

Advertisers cut up the general population into small niches — by sex, age and race. Many general merchandisers prefer the male, ages 21-54, predominantly white.

But are these aggressive, upwardly mobile, above-average-income males at home during PT? Is he watching TV (an inactive exercise), or is he on the Internet (an interactive exercise)? If the TV is "on," is he watching one of the Big Three networks, or is he watching baseball on cable?

Your Comcast/G.P. Cable service includes basic reception of 10 local "over-the-air" TV stations, including the Big Three networks, plus PBS, CBC (Windsor), Fox, UPN, Warner Bros., PAX and one independent.

Did you watch "Survivor" or "Millionaire"? Then you were a PT viewer. If you watched the conventions, did you follow CNN cable or one of the networks?

WTWS, PBS in Detroit, can't seem to get anything right. Last week, they "covered up" the political/satirist Mark Russell (Wednesday, Aug. 23, 8 p.m.). And about once every six weeks they cover up "Wall Street Week with Louis Rukeyser," the most popular stock market show in America!

So what is left on the Big Three or PT?

PGA golf on CBS (Saturday and Sunday afternoons) and an occasional baseball or football game somewhere?

They say that advertising doesn't work for the advertiser unless someone is watching/listening. What did you say? Sorry, I was in the washroom!

The invisible cost of vehicle ownership

by Lori Z. Bahnmueller

When considering the costs associated with purchasing a new vehicle — insurance, maintenance, loan interest — don't forget to factor in depreciation.

You won't find it on the sticker price, nor will you be billed for it. You may not even notice it until the time comes to sell your car.

Still, depreciation can cost you big money over the years.

In the first year you own a new car, the vehicle may lose 20 percent of its original value due to depreciation, according to IntelliChoice, based in Campbell, Calif., which provides consumers with data about the true cost of owning cars and trucks. By the end of the fifth year, your vehicle's value drops by an average of 35.1 percent.

It's not only vehicle buyers who pay the price. Depreciation also affects the cost of leasing as well because leasing payments are based in part on what a vehicle will be worth at lease-end. The more a vehicle depreciates, the less value it will have at lease-end.

So, you could lease a vehicle with the same sticker price as your neighbor's leased vehicle but pay a higher monthly lease payment if your vehicle depreciates at a faster rate.

You can't stop depreciation, but you can lessen the impact it will have on your wallet.

Here are a few points to consider from Home & Family Finance Magazine:

Some makes and models depreciate faster than others. Accurately predicting depreciation is difficult because so much depends on a vehicle's continuing popular appeal.

But you can get a rough idea how much your vehicle will depreciate. Consult a "blue book" or other pricing guides to find out how well previous years' models have held their value.

The Credit Union National Association Web site has a depreciation calculator. Go to <http://www.cuna.org>, then hit "calculators."

The pace of depreciation levels off after five years. Hanging on to a vehicle for at least that long minimizes the impact of depreciation on the overall cost of ownership.

It's smart to pick options that will appeal to the next buyer. Vehicles with air conditioning, automatic transmissions, sunroofs, and convertible tops tend to hold their resale value better. Lesser known models, "luxury" or "limited edition" models, and vehicles with odd colors or features tend to depreciate faster.

Vehicles that change dramatically in style from one year to the next tend to lose resale value faster. Last year's model quickly becomes outdated and loses its attraction to potential buyers. Choose a vehicle from a manufacturer that makes only subtle style changes each year.

Depreciation can deal a substantial financial blow to the owner of a new vehicle. But it can work to your advantage if you're in the market to buy or lease a used vehicle. A vehicle model that depreciates considerably in its early years may be an excellent deal as a used car.

Yo ho ho and a bottle of rum

Two Windsor, Ontario, men got into trouble on Wednesday, Aug. 23, when one 35-year-old man took a sweater at a lake-side gift shop in Grosse Pointe Shores. The man and a friend, a 57-year-old man, then got into their boat and sped away after the credit card they were using to pay for their fuel was rejected. The Coast Guard caught their boat and took them back to the dock they fled at 6:25 p.m.

The theft charges were dropped when a deal for restitution was made, but the Coast Guard gave a preliminary breath test (PBT) to the man at the wheel and it came back .15, so he was arrested for drunken boating. He is free on bond.

Strange break-in Grosse Pointe Shores police were called to a home in the 900 block of Lakeshore on Wednesday, Aug. 23, at 5:30 p.m. when a young man told his father that a stranger had broken into a neighbor's house. When police went to investigate they found a 40-year-old Warren man sitting in the house drinking wine. The back door had been broken open.

The suspect told police that this was his new house. Skeptical of the claim, police checked the suspect's background and discovered he had a history of mental problems. He was returned to his real home in Warren. No charges were filed.

Drunk ashore

A Grosse Pointe Shores patrol officer saw a 2000 Lincoln back out of a driveway in the 800 block of Lakeshore at 12:55 a.m. on Tuesday, Aug. 22, causing two cars that were driving down the street to collide.

The driver, a 43-year-old Grosse Pointe Farms man, left the scene without looking back. The officer then clocked his car traveling between speeds of 25 and 45 mph. When he was pulled over the driver said he didn't know how much he had to drink. He failed his field sobriety tests and refused to take a PBT.

A warrant to take a blood sample was obtained and the driver was taken to St. John Hospital. He is currently free on bond.

Painting the town

An employee reported that between Aug. 17 and Aug. 25, someone entered the St. Paul Catholic school building and shot up the place using paint balls.

A search of the building also revealed that a trash fire was set on a metal chair in the boys' locker room. There were no signs of forced entry and police believe entry was gained via an unlocked basement door.

Lawn larceny

A resident of the 300 block of Moross reported that between 9 p.m. on Wednesday, Aug. 23, and 8 a.m. the next day, someone entered his back yard and stole a brand new lawn mower.

Bike gone

A Grosse Pointe Park youth reported to Farms police that his 26-inch mountain bike was stolen between 4 and 9:30 p.m. on Wednesday, Aug. 23. The bicycle was locked to a fence. When the youth returned to the site, the bike and the lock were gone. There was no damage to the fence.

Broken window

The rear window of a 2000 Jaguar parked in an alley in the first block of Kercheval in Grosse Pointe Farms was smashed between 1:30 and 4:30 p.m. on Tuesday, Aug. 22.

Garage trouble

Witnesses saw a 13-year-old Detroit youth enter a garage in the 400 block of Colonial and exit the building with a bicycle at 2:30 p.m. on Tuesday, Aug. 22. They called the police and the suspect was picked up in the area of Huntington and Mack. The bike was stolen and the youth was handed over to juvenile crime authorities.

Bus driver busted

A witness saw a 46-year-old Detroit man take supplies from a supply closet in Grosse Pointe South High School and go to a nearby school bus ment to helping keep the Park a safe community.

"It's comforting to have so many residents concerned about their neighbors' safety," said Caretti.

Commendations have been issued to the following people for their actions in 1999:

• Shawn Drummy, who in November initiated a foot chase with a wanted felon. The suspect had fled into the Park after committing a break-in in Detroit.

• Robert Stanzler, who in August followed two house thieves he saw leaving his belonging to a visiting high school.

When confronted, the driver said he received permission from someone to take the supplies so that he could clean his bus.

He could not give a description of the person who was supposed to have given him permission to take the supplies, nor could he explain why he had also taken light bulbs from the supply closet. He was charged with larceny from a building.

Library larceny

Employees of the central branch of the Grosse Pointe Public Library came to work on the morning of Monday, Aug. 28, to discover that someone broke into the building over the weekend and took a small safe containing about $500 in cash from the main office on the first floor. The desks of employees were also searched.

Police could find no signs of forced entry and the building was last checked on Saturday, Aug. 26, at closing time.

Car stolen

A Grosse Pointe Farms woman reported to City of Grosse Pointe public safety officers that her car was stolen between the hours of 2:30 and 4 p.m. on Monday, Aug. 21. The owner parked her car on the 800 block of Notre Dame, near Kercheval, and went about her business. When she returned, the car was gone. Police found no sign of broken glass at the scene.

Dresses disappear

An employee of a clothing store in the Village reported that on Sunday, Aug. 27, at 3:43 p.m., several items of clothing were taken by a woman, described as "heavy-set with brown, curly hair."

The employee said that the suspect was looking at merchandise and declined the help of a clerk. Witnesses said she kept looking at the cash register and then suddenly left the store. When the aisle she was in was checked, they discovered over $270 worth of clothing was gone.

Drinker caught

On Saturday, Aug. 26, at 2:48 a.m., a Grosse Pointe Woods policeman stopped a van that had been speeding approximately 60 mph on southbound Mack. The driver ran a red light at Moross before stopping near Fisher.

The driver, a 20-year-old man from Harper Woods, admitted drinking. Fumbling to exit his tan 1982 Dodge Rampage pickup truck, the man had to grab hold of the vehicle to keep from falling. A Breathalyzer registered a .28 percent blood alcohol content.

In addition to driving drunk, police cited the man for being behind the wheel with a revoked driver's license.

Penny serenade

A single traffic stop caught two illegal drinkers last weekend in Grosse Pointe Woods.

While patrolling the area of Mack and Vernier on Saturday, Aug. 26, at about 12:30 a.m., a Woods officer tailed a red 1998 Plymouth as it wove along southbound Mack. The car nearly hit the curb as it crossed the center line again and again.

Behind the wheel, a Woods man would soon be arrested for driving with a .132 percent blood alcohol content. The percentage rose to .15 percent upon a second test taken an hour later at police headquarters.

In a sidelight, a penny dribbled from the mouth of the vehicle's passenger during questioning. The 17-year-old youth from Harrison Township explained the penny by saying he "always chews on things."

The arresting officer had a different opinion.

"Through training and experience, I have learned that people often put pennies in their mouths in hopes to deceive a breath test," he said. The passenger was cited for being a minor in possession of alcohol.

Purse taken

On Friday, Aug. 25, at about 1:50 p.m., a woman reported that her purse had been stolen while she shopped at a store in the 20400 block of Mack.

Bold theft

According to a witness, a man cruising the 500 block of Hampton in Grosse Pointe Woods spied an open garage at 11:30 p.m. on Thursday, Aug. 24. The man stopped his van, walked into the garage, took a bike and drove away.

No dogs wanted

The dog days have come and gone at Camp O' Fun at Ferry Elementary School.

In an update to a dog attack that took place at the camp a few weeks ago, a school official told Grosse Pointe Woods police she "plans to cancel 'bring your dog to camp day.'"

The decision stemmed from an incident in which a Doberman named Morgan bit a Woods girl's on the face. The dog was released from a 10-day quarantine upon being found free of rabies.

Tree set on fire

Woods police are looking for four unknown boys seen setting fire to a tree at Ferry Elementary School on Wednesday, Aug. 23, at 8 p.m.

Flames reached 20 feet, police said, and were fed by lighter fluid purchased at a store in the 20900 block of Mack.

Condo break-in

On Tuesday, Aug. 22, at about 2:15 p.m., someone smashed the kitchen window of a condominium in the 1700 block of Vernier in Grosse Pointe Woods.

The subject crawled into the dwelling and stole a purse and jewelry from various rooms.

A neighbor reported seeing an unknown man walking up and down a driveway looking in windows.

Dog called in

A Michigan State Police tracking dog was unable to find the unknown person who broke into a home last week in the 1400 block of Balfour in Grosse Pointe Park.

The incident took place on Monday, Aug. 21, at about 12:45 p.m. Police credit a burglar alarm with scaring off the criminal.

Shutterbug

Park police are investigating a worker in connection with the theft of a camera from a home in the 1300 block of Yorkshire on Wednesday, Aug. 23.

Second story

A man investigated for carrying a ladder down the street at night was charged with possession of drug paraphernalia.

On Tuesday, Aug. 22, at 10:30 p.m., a Park policeman saw the subject in the area of Jefferson and Pemberton. The man claimed to have found the aluminum ladder in an alley. There's no word on where the man acquired the crack pipe police found in his pocket.

Five pack

Park police rousted a pack of five youths who had been scouting rear yards in the area of Jefferson and Bedford on Tuesday, Aug. 22, at about 10:30 p.m.

The boys fled but four were caught a few blocks away on Harcourt. All were taken to the police station where officers turned over two to their parents and detained the others.

Optimist Club wants to have the last laugh

By Jim Stickford
Staff Writer

Helping out will never be easier. The Lakeshore Optimist Club of Grosse Pointe is holding its fall fundraiser — a comedy night on Thursday, Sept. 21. All you have to do is pay the $10 fee and be prepared to laugh.

"We wanted to have a fall fundraiser," said Douglas Cordier, club co-founder. "We wanted to do something with the War Memorial. A member, Dan Tripp, belonged to the Brighton chapter and he said they had a lot of success with a comedy night, so we decided to try one."

Cordier said the Optimist Club motto is "Friend of Youth." It raises money for a variety of groups and projects, including the Foundation for Exceptional Children, the Children's Home of Detroit, the YMCA, Focus and Joy of Jesus, as well as a host of scholarships for organizations such as the Grosse Pointe South Mother's Club.

"We also wanted an event that the whole family could come out and participate in," Cordier said. "Our spring fundraiser is a Wild Game and Boxing Classic night. It's a real testosterone night. Kids between the ages of 12 and 17 fight in Golden Gloves competitions. We've been doing it for the past five years and it's been really successful. But everybody has needs and we wanted to have a fall fundraiser to help raise money for our work."

The idea for a comedy night, Cordier said, was first floated about a year ago. Once the group decided to have a comedy night, they had to find appropriate acts.

"I really want people to know that the acts we've gotten are funny, but they are also PG-style acts. Parents can take their kids to see them and everyone will have a good time. When we started planning, we went to Mark Ridley's Comedy Castle in Royal Oak. We reviewed the acts we saw and picked three to perform."

The performers are Horace Sanders, Todd Wooster and the Stunt Johnson Theater comedy group.

"Horace Sanders is very funny," Cordier said. "And he uses no swear words. Todd Wooster is also a stand-up comedian and very funny."

Stunt Johnson Theater consists of four performers who grew up in Ypsilanti. Founding member Brian Kruger lives in the City of Grosse Pointe.

"We got our start in 1989 at Mark

Ridley's Comedy Castle," Kruger said. "One of the first guys we opened for was Tim Allen. We've worked in Las Vegas and Los Angeles. There are four in the troupe and we're all the original members."

While they have enjoyed some success in show business, Kruger said, they've also kept their day jobs. Buddy Moorehouse is the editor of the Livingston County News, Larry Koch is a teacher in Belleville, Chris Kruger, Brian's brother, is a policeman in Chelsea and Kruger said he's a software salesman for Baseview. Their act, Kruger said, is a cross between the Three Stooges, SCTV and Monty Python. Even the name of the troupe, Stunt Johnson Theater, is a homage to Monty Python's Flying Circus.

The group has also performed locally. They even opened for the Smothers Brothers when they played at the Fisher Theatre. Kruger said it was interesting to watch two performers who have worked together so long.

"Their timing is amazing," Kruger said. "I also found it interesting to learn that Tommy, who plays the dumb guy, is the stable one. He's been married for, like 30 years and runs a vineyard in California. Dickie, who plays the smart brother, has been married like, five times and lives in Las Vegas. I guess that's what you call acting."

Cordier said that tickets to the show, which starts at 7:30 p.m. in the Fries Auditorium of the War Memorial, are $10. They are currently being sold by Posterity Gallery, the Junior League of Detroit, Grosse Pointe Computers, Something Special and the Big Boy restaurant at Mack and Vernier.

For more information, call Dan Tripp at (248) 373-2100.

They say laughter is the best medicine and the Lakeshore Optimist Club aims to cure some blues with the first of many comedy nights on Thursday, Sept. 21, at the Grosse Pointe War Memorial.

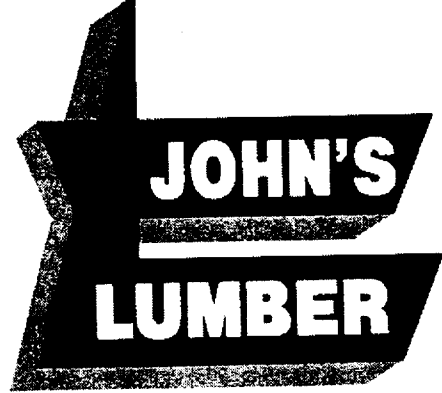

The PG-themed show features local comedians Horace Sanders, Todd Wooster and the comedy troupe "Stunt Johnson Theater."

The Stunt Johnson performers are, from left, Buddy Moorehouse, Grosse Pointe Brian Kruger, Larry Koch and Chris Kruger. They have performed in Las Vegas and Los Angeles and opened for the Smothers Brothers when they performed at the Fisher Theatre two years ago.

Money from the show will go toward Optimist Club projects, which benefit youth.

The show starts at 7:30 p.m. Tickets are $10. For more information, call (248) 373-2100.

The Pastor's Corner

Be patient,
count your blessings

Rev. Fred Harms

St. Paul Lutheran Church

Two weeks ago, I was in Minnesota for a nephew's wedding. After the service and festivities were completed, I managed, together with my family, to squeeze in a brief day and a half hiatus to a cabin near a "Lake Wobegon" area of northern Minnesota.

We arrived immediately after a torrential downpour of rain and a powerful force of straight-line winds had occurred. Evidence of downed trees and flooded ditches were left in the storm's wake.

The calm after the storm was reassuring and peaceful. We were thankful that our arrival had not coincided with the earlier display of nature's fury.

The day was graced with sunshine and rainbows. The evening was ushered in with the sound of the loon's soulful warble. In the morning, the hummingbirds buzzed frenetically around the nectar-filled feeders. The glassy lake invited our best canoeing efforts.

The hours of that momentary respite passed quickly and soon we were back home, once again immersed in the realities of a metropolitan world. The evenings no longer brought the solitude of a secluded spot, but the negotiation of crowded roadways with intervals of orange barrels and yellow flashing arrows channeling impatient motorists into narrow traffic patterns.

The mornings were initiated with the caw of the ubiquitous crow and the beeping of end-loaders moving huge cement drainage pipes on the street below our bedroom window.

But lest I become obsessed with a litany of complaints, encouraging your participation in this negative progression of thought, let us remember our many blessings.

Let us remember the calm after the storms of life.

Let us remember that momentary inconveniences are minor when compared to the bigger picture of life.

Let us give thanks for the times of re-creation and renewal.

And let us practice an extra measure of patience when encountering those annoyances which crop up with regularity in our daily routines.

Remember too, that blessings are to be shared. Smiles and compliments help take the edge off those days when we are tempted to resort to a harsh word or a snap judgment.

May God laugh with us, smile upon us and grant us an extra portion of patience this day.

Jung, Oxford Group helped influence
spiritual roots of AA

In 1961, Bill W., co-founder of Alcoholics Anonymous, wrote a letter to one of the world's most famous psychiatrists, Dr. Carl Jung. The letter described a chain of events that changed Bill's life and influenced the spiritual emphasis of Alcoholics Anonymous — events in which Jung played a key role.

It all began, Bill wrote, in a 1931 conversation between Jung and a hopeless alcoholic named Roland H.

Roland — young, gifted in business, rich — had tried every "cure" for alcoholism available at the time. All his attempts failed.

In despair, he traveled to Zurich, Switzerland, and placed himself under the care of Jung for nearly a year.

Jung was blunt. He told Roland that any further medical treatment was pointless.

Stunned, Roland asked if there was any other hope.

Jung held out only one — that Roland experience a "genuine conversion," a spiritual transformation. According to Jung, such experiences were rare among alcoholics. But alcoholics who had them stopped drinking.

This shred of hope was enough for Roland. He returned home and began his spiritual search.

Bill, in his letter to Jung, told of his first-hand knowledge of conversion. For Bill, it happened in 1934 during his last "detox" at Towns Hospital in New York City. At that time, Bill was also an alcoholic at the end of his rope.

Dr. Silkworth, Bill's attending physician, laid out the options to Bill's wife: She could let the authorities lock Bill up, watch him go insane, or let him die.

Bill knew the doctor's prognosis. "My depression deepened unbearably and finally it seemed to me as though I were at the bottom of the pit," he wrote to Jung. "All at once I found myself crying out, 'If there is a God, let Him show Himself! I am ready to do anything.'"

At that moment, Bill wrote, his hospital room seemed to flood with white light. "I was caught up into an ecstasy which there are no words to describe. It seemed to me, in the mind's eye, that I was on a mountain and that a wind not of air but of spirit was blowing. And then it burst upon me that I was a free man."

Silkworth encouraged Bill to hold on to this experience, whatever it was. Bill did, and never took another drink.

Released from the hospital, Bill immediately began work on two tasks: understanding the "white light," and helping other alcoholics to experience something equally powerful.

He got help with the first task from the writings of psychologist William James. James described conversion experiences in detail — including accounts from recovering alcoholics. Bill read these accounts eagerly, finding direct correspondences with his own experience.

For the second task, Bill borrowed heavily from the Oxford Group, an evangelical Christian movement that Roland also joined. Bill embraced many of the group's principles, which required members to:

- Make restitution to any people they'd harmed.

- Take a moral inventory by listing "personal defects."

- Confess these defects to another person.

- Receive direction from God through prayer and meditation.

Bill and Oxford members later parted ways.

"The Oxford Group got political, endorsing a lot of people for elected office," said Bill Pittman, director of historical information for the Hazelden Foundation. "Also, the Oxford program was too black-and-white. Bill wanted a suggested program — not a list of requirements."

In this spirit of tolerance, Bill started talking about a "Higher Power" as the source of conversion experience. This Higher Power could be the God of the Christians, but it could also be any source of help that an alcoholic would accept. Eventually Bill invited Roland and several more friends to form their own group, one that would focus strictly on helping alcoholics stay sober.

And this group, Bill noted with gratitude in his letter to Jung, became the international movement that we now call Alcoholics Anonymous.

Zinc lozenges shorten colds, according to study

Zinc lozenges reduce the length of time cold sufferers have to endure sore throats, runny noses, sneezing, coughing and fever, according to a study published in the Annals of Internal Medicine by Wayne State University School of Medicine Professor Ananda Prasad.

Forty-eight patients who had colds participated in a random, double-blind study in which about half were given zinc lozenges while the other half received placebos to take every two to three hours while awake. Compared with the placebo group, the zinc group had shorter overall duration of cold symptoms — 4.5 days vs. 8.1 days. The lozenges seemed to reduce coughing.

Prasad, a professor of hematology-oncology, is considered a world authority on zinc deficiency and its manifestations regarding human health. In 1963, while working to establish a university in Iran, Prasad met a 21-year-old man who looked like a 10-year-old. The man's symptoms, which included severe anemia, low iron and growth retardation, proved to be widespread. Commonly, people affected by the syndrome die of pneumonia or parasitic diseases.

Although Prasad suspected these people had iron deficiencies due to poor diet, he wondered whether another metal deficiency would account for the growth retardation.

He found it. Zinc. Studies already had shown that rabbits and mice lacking zinc experienced stunted growth. During the 1960s, Prasad produced several studies, some of them now considered classic in the nutritional medicine field, showing that zinc supplements could counteract the syndrome.

He ended up proving that, at a cellular level, zinc is necessary to T cells, which battle all kinds of infection. Without zinc, the T cells don't function effectively, allowing potentially anything from the common cold to cancer to invade the body.

Prasad believes zinc and iron deficiencies occur in more than a billion people worldwide. One of Prasad's studies has shown one in four Detroiters to be zinc deficient.

Feeding kids right

By Susanne Consiglio, R.D.
Special Writer

Summer is over and it's time to think of school menus and meal schedules built around your children's activities. This can be a challenge for busy families who aren't used to planning meals.

The food guide pyramid is a simplistic tool and is listed on many packaged items. Each meal should include items from at least three of the food groups. Two groups that are typically neglected are the fruits and vegetables. In addition, many children do not drink enough milk and may not be meeting their calcium needs for strong bones.

Starting the day

A nutritious breakfast can improve your child's concentration during the school day. Try these quick breakfast suggestions:

- Hot or cold cereal with a banana and skim, low fat, soy milk, or Fitmilk — calcium fortified.
- Peanut butter on toast, topped with banana slices.
- Yogurt with fruit, homemade bran muffin and juice.
- Melted cheese on toast and a sliced orange.

School lunch or lunch from home?

If the weekly school lunch menu features pizza, hamburgers, hot dogs and french fries, important nutrients can be missing. Your children may still want these foods. Instead of saying no, limit them to one or two items a week and balance the meal with fruit and veggies from home. Popular vegetables for kids are mini carrots, cherry tomatoes or cucumber slices. Encourage your children to drink milk instead of soda pop.

Some children like variety while others can eat the same sandwich filling every day. What's most important is to include choices of fruit, veggies, grains and protein. Favorite proteins are turkey, lean ham or a roast beef slice rolled up in a tortilla or pita with lettuce and a dab of mayo. Other protein sources are cheese sticks, hard-boiled eggs and low fat yogurt. Cold pack containers should be considered to keep the food fresh and free from spoilage.

Most kids like to snack

One of the easiest after school snacks is fresh fruit slices and a glass of milk. "Packaged snacks" do not have to be forbidden, but should be served less often. Keep the sweets simple. Try a small amount of raisins, a homemade oatmeal cookie, fig bars, vanilla wafers or animal crackers. Good frozen desserts are low fat ice cream (avoid Nutrasweet for children), popsicles, Fudgsicles, frozen fruit juice bars or homemade fruit bars.

The dinner hour

Encourage your children to taste all foods served. It may take a few times to decide if they like something. Stock the house with plenty of staples. Try "make ahead meals" such as chili or reduced-fat casseroles. Spaghetti meals can be combined with cooked sliced veggie burgers or chicken occasionally in place of meat. Children might also like green beans or chopped broccoli with mozzarella cheese over the spaghetti and sauce. Pizza is easy to make using pre-made crusts, bottled sauce, mozzarella cheese and low fat pepperoni. A "Mexican evening" can include turkey tacos or quesadillas.

Healthy meals do not have to be time-consuming. They can be tasty and quick to prepare when the ingredients are in your pantry. It's early in the school year and now is the time for families to get organized and off to a good start.

Many people call their dental offices to schedule their next teeth cleaning appointments. That's great! However, with a new patient it's ideal for a comprehensive examination and oral cancer screening BEFORE the teeth are cleaned.

Here is the logic: Different people need different types or degrees of teeth cleanings. Since the patient is new to the office the dentist does not know the condition of the gums. A patient could have gum disease, gingivitis, or no gum problem at all. If the dentist can examine the patient BEFORE the hygiene appointment, then the office can prepare for the specific needs of the patient. When gum disease is involved, a proper diagnosis by the dentist needs to be made. Then a plan can be put together on treatment and time involved. If a new patient calls the dental office and makes an appointment with the hygienist first and it is determined that the patient has gum disease or needs more time with the hygienist, then the appointment cannot be utilized efficiently.

Spicy food lovers: Start your engines

There's a new spice company in town and it's got Detroit written all over it. The Detroit Spice Company is the brain child of Randall Fogelman, Donald Rafal (Rafal's Spice Company located at the Eastern Market) and Ryan Fogelman.

Jamaican "Jerk" seasoning originated on the Caribbean island that it is named for. While the combination of spices may vary, jerk seasoning traditionally consists of chilies, thyme, spices, garlic and onions.

Jerk Chicken Salad with Tomato-Lime Vinaigrette

2 boneless skinless chicken breasts, pounded
6 cups clean lettuce greens chopped or torn (any variety)
Slices of fresh tomato, cucumber, red onion or other summer vegetables
1/2 cup crumbled bleu cheese

Marinade
2 tablespoons Detroit Jerk seasoning
1/4 cup olive oil
1/4 cup freshly squeezed lime juice
1/4 cup finely chopped green onion

Dressing
1/4 cup chopped tomato
1/4 cup chopped fresh cilantro
2 tablespoons olive oil
1 tablespoon cider

vinegar
1 teaspoon grated lime rind
1 tablespoon freshly squeezed lime juice
1/4 teaspoon salt
1/4 teaspoon ground cumin
1/4 teaspoon chili powder
1/4 teaspoon black pepper
1 garlic clove, peeled

In a medium bowl, whisk together the jerk seasoning, olive oil, lime juice and chopped green onion. Place the chicken breast in the marinade and coat evenly. Cover with plastic wrap and allow to marinate in the refrigerator for at least 1 hour, turning the chicken occasionally. Two to three hours in the marinade is ideal.

Meanwhile, prepare the vinaigrette dressing by placing all of its ingredients (from the tomato to the garlic) in a blender or food processor and mix until smooth. Store in refrigerator.

Cook the marinated chicken breast over a medium to high grill for 6 to 8 minutes on each side, or until cooked throughout.

To assemble the salad, toss the greens with the vinaigrette in a medium bowl. Arrange half of the tossed greens on each serving plate. Sprinkle the greens with the bleu cheese crumbles. Cut each chicken breast into 1-inch angled slices and place on top of the bed of greens. Garnish the outside of the salad plate with fresh tomato, cucumber and red onion slices. Complement this spicy salad entree with an icy cold bottle of your favorite beer!

If you visited the Detroit TasteFest or the Woodward Dream Cruise, chances are you've seen the newly introduced spice line with its auto-inspired labeling. Pointers can purchase Detroit Spice Company products at Mulier's Market in Grosse Pointe Park, the Village Food Market in Grosse Pointe Farms and Merchants Fine Wine in Grosse Pointe Woods.

I met Randall while shopping at Rafal's a few years ago. Rafal's offers a huge variety of bulk spices, teas and coffees, not to mention the endless bottles of hot sauce.

Randall has brought together his love of cooking and Detroit, and bottled it for everyone who enjoys spicy foods. I look forward to cooking with all of the Detroit Spice Company products.

À LA ANNIE

By Annie Rouleau-Scheriff

To date, the spice line consists of six products, including two hot sauces, 3 seasoned "rubs" (dry season mix that can be rubbed directly on meat before cooking or stirred into a marinade) and a curry blend from a recipe from the kitchen of the Peacock Indian restaurant in Dearborn.

I chose the jerk seasoning and created a semi-spicy grilled chicken salad with a tomato-lime vinaigrette recipe that I found in Cooking Light Magazine.

DSO opening night

Woman's Historical Club of Detroit holds essay contest

The Woman's Historical Club of Detroit was founded in 1877 by Mrs. Brearly, "a charming woman, broad of vision and rich in experience."

The 123-year-old club is now based in Grosse Pointe and has 20 members. Marilyn Schorer of Grosse Pointe Park is president of the group; vice president is Elizabeth Williams of Grosse Pointe Farms.

Members are assigned a yearly topic and are expected to present papers to fellow members at meetings in their homes from September through May.

"The Millennium" is this year's theme. It was selected "with a look at history... and the opportunity to choose and describe the historical period and place which... excited each individual's imagination."

Topics included: Elizabeth the First of Russia, (who possessed more than 100 dresses and was a real survivor); American communes in the 19th Century (initially idealistic, some questionable results); and 16th century China (featuring the city of Hangzhou, a veritable Shangri-La.)

Spurred on by the liveliness and enthusiasm of the papers presented, the club is sponsoring an essay contest for the North and South high schools and students at University, Liggett School.

Incorporating the same topic, a $500 first prize and two $100 second and third prizes will be awarded. Jeff Bond will direct the students at ULS and Kathy Roberts will be the liaison for North and South high schools.

The Club is investigating participating in the Detroit's Tricentennial celebration. For more information about the group, call (313) 882-2709.

ECG may not find heart problems in athletes

The use of electrocardiograms (ECGs) to detect heart disease in competitive athletes has definite limitations and its results should be confirmed with other tests, according to a recent study of Italian Olympians published in Circulation: Journal of the American Heart Association.

An ECG measures the electrical impulses produced by the heart, drawing a graph that represents when the heart beats and rests. The 12-lead ECG is a simple, cost-effective test to detect cardiovascular abnormalities. It is part of the battery of tests used at the Institute of Sports Science in Rome, Italy, where all members of the Italian Olympic team are required to undergo an annual medical evaluation.

"Athletic conditioning is responsible for lots of changes in an athlete's ECG," says the study's lead author, Dr.

Antonio Pelliccia, a professor in the department of medicine at the Institute of Sports Science. "Just like any other muscle that is exercised regularly, changes in the heart muscle are likely to occur as a result of athletic training."

Pelliccia says highly trained athletes in particular may tend to have abnormal ECGs as compared to those of non-athletes. His study shows that abnormal ECGs were associated with conditions such as an enlarged heart or thickening of the heart wall that would usually indicate that the individual has a disease that is responsible for sudden cardiac death.

However, Pelliccia says these "abnormalities" may not necessarily indicate disease for athletes. When researchers looked at the structure of some athletes' hearts, they found structural malformations in a very small minority.

"It's important for us to know how reliable the ECG is for detecting whether the changes in an athlete's heart are life-threatening," Pelliccia says.

During a two-year study, researchers compared an echocardiogram, an ultrasound that shows the heart's structure, to an ECG for each of 1,005 competitive athletes. The echocardiograms showed cardiovascular abnormalities in 5 percent (53) of the athletes tested.

ECG patterns were "distinctly abnormal" in 14 percent of the athletes and "mildly abnormal" in 26 percent. Sixty percent of the athletes involved in the study had ECGs that were normal or showed only minor alterations that were considered typical of athletes' hearts.

Echocardiograms showed that 90 percent of the athletes with distinctly abnormal ECGs had an enlarged left ventricle, the heart's main pumping chamber, and increases in heart wall thickness. These athletes participated mainly in endurance sports such as rowing, cycling, long-distance running and cross-country skiing. Follow-up tests for this group over an average of three years showed no evidence of structural malformations.

"It is reasonable to assume that long-term, intensive athletic conditioning substantially alters the ECG in some athletes by as yet undefined mechanisms," says Pelliccia. "In practical terms, our research suggests that when a doctor sees an abnormal ECG in an athlete, further investigative tests such as an echocardiogram should be conducted to rule out actual structural abnormalities."

Athletes with abnormal ECGs were generally younger and male. Pelliccia says that a higher incidence of abnormal ECGs in athletes under 20 years of age suggests that intensive training is more likely to alter the ECG pattern when associated with the body's growth and maturation process.

The study showed that heart abnormalities were twice as common in athletes with distinctly abnormal ECGs (10 percent) compared to athletes with mildly abnormal ECGs (5 percent).

The most common problems were related to mitral valve prolapse, where certain valves don't close properly as the heart pumps and a small amount of blood leaks backward. This group was evenly split between abnormal and normal ECGs.

The study also showed that female athletes were more likely to have normal ECGs than male athletes.

"This is likely due to several factors, including the mild structural changes induced by training in women and their lower participation in certain sports, such as rowing and canoeing, that have a substantial impact on ECG pattern," Pelliccia said.

The researchers are planning a study on the long-term effects of athletic conditioning on cardiovascular health in which they will call back athletes from the ECG study.

Loss of tailback tempers joy of North's opening game victory

By Chuck Klonke
Sports Editor

It didn't even take a half for Grosse Pointe North's football hopes to suffer a severe blow.

It happened late in the first half when tailback Torreon Cleveland was hauled down from behind at the end of a 27-yard gain and didn't get up.

The diagnosis: a broken bone in his leg, just above the ankle.

"That was terrible," said coach Frank Sumbera of the injury that marred the Norsemen's season-opening 28-20 non-league victory over Detroit Finney.

"He's probably out for the season. There's a possibility he could return for the ninth game."

Cleveland's injury has forced Sumbera to look at several different backfield combinations during the first two days of practice this week as the Norsemen get ready for Friday's home game against Macomb Area Conference White Division rival Port Huron.

"We might replace him by committee. John Coury and Bill Dickerman both ran at tailback after Torreon got hurt," Sumbera said. "We're also going to look at Donovan Wright and Scott Schaft."

Wright is a starting line-backer but Matt McCabe saw some action as Wright's backup against Finney and looked impressive. Schaft is North's No. 2 quarterback, but has displayed the quickness and elusiveness that Sumbera is looking for in a tailback.

However it all shakes out, the loss of Cleveland is a costly one.

"We were counting on him for 150 yards a game," Sumbera said. "Now we'll have to get those 150 yards from somebody else. We're hoping for 75 to 80 yards from the tailbacks, another 25 or 30 from the fullback (Jon Thomas) and another 75 or so from K.C. (quarterback K.C. Cleary). A lot of people are going to have to step up."

This is the second year in a row that North has lost a starting back to an early-season injury. Last year it was full-back Brian Vandenberghe who went down in the third game of the year.

North got off to a strong start against Finney, scoring the first two times it had the football.

Thomas opened the scoring when he went up the middle for 32 yards to cap a 10-play, 70-yard drive. Eric Bertelsen added the first of four extra points to give the Norsemen a 7-0 lead.

North's defense stopped the Highlanders on downs after a 53-yard kickoff return by Michael McKinley gave Finney the ball at the North 37. The Norsemen dodged a bullet when Kahari Stewart caught a pass out of the end zone.

North took over on its 31-yard line and marched 69 yards in 10 plays with Cleary going the final 17 on a quarterback keeper around left end.

Finney got on the scoreboard with just under six minutes remaining in the first half. Cleary fumbled when he was tackled by Stewart at the North 10. Deshawn Brooks scooped up the loose ball and ran it in for the touchdown.

North answered quickly, taking only three plays to cover 60 yards. Cleveland picked up 27 yards on the play on which he was injured. After a false start penalty against the Norsemen, Cleary passed 31 yards to Steve Hardin, who was brought down on the Finney one. Thomas scored on the next play.

North increased its lead to 28-6 midway through the third quarter when James Dosmas blocked a Finney punt and Greg LaTour recovered in the South dominates its first game

By Chuck Klonke
Sports Editor

It was a perfect opener for Grosse Pointe South's football team.

The Blue Devils dominated every phase of the game on the way to a 39-0 non-league victory over Detroit Southeastern.

"The defense played really well," said coach Mike McLeod. "But so did the offense and the special teams. There were a lot of positives that came out of this game. And a lot of kids played quite a few minutes."

Southeastern never crossed midfield in the first half. And when the Jungaleers finally got into South territory in the second half it was the result of a roughing the passer penalty on the Blue Devils.

South was so dominant that the final quarter and a half was played with a running clock because the Blue Devils led by more than 35 points.

McLeod said before the season started that he intended to pass more. Southeastern dared the Blue Devils to go to the air, but South didn't take the bait.

"They used three DBs (defensive backs) to cover our two wide receivers," McLeod said. "We couldn't throw as well but it hurt their run support. And we took advantage of that with our running game."

"I don't know if our receivers are too happy with that, but they'll get their chance."

Julian Danko scored three touchdowns, all in the first half, for South on two runs of eight yards and one of seven yards. Matt Jarboe and Dan Broanan scored South's other touchdowns on runs of 11 and 18 yards, respectively.

South scored on its second possession of the game. Mark Peppler recovered a fumble at the Southeastern 20 and two plays later, Danko scored from eight yards out. Robert Rogers kicked the first of his five extra points to give the Blue Devils a 7-0 advantage.

It didn't take long for South to score again. Southeastern fumbled the kickoff and George Kordas recovered on the Jungaleers' 22. Jarboe scored on an 11-yard run on the fifth play of the brief drive.

The Blue Devils increased their lead to 21-0 on the final play of the first quarter. The touchdown was a seven-yard run by Danko, who also had runs of 11 and six yards in the five-play, 35-yard drive that started after a short punt by Southeastern.

South scored again in the first half, staying exclusively on the ground in an eight-play drive that covered 39 yards. Danko went the final eight yards with 5:09 left in the half.

Knights' new coach gets a win in Metro Conference opener

By Chuck Klonke
Sports Editor

New University Liggett School football coach Tracy Sewell didn't have to wait long for his first victory.

It came last Friday night as the Knights opened the Metro Conference season with a convincing 23-0 win over Lutheran East.

"Our defense was very good," Sewell said. "The offense was a little sluggish at first, but it improved as the game went on. It was a good team performance. If we had an individual breakdown, the rest of the team was able to overcome it." Part of that is a result of developing a winning attitude.

The Knights have made the state playoffs in three of the last four years.

"There's a lot to developing a winning attitude," Sewell said. "I know from my playing days because I was on some really bad teams and I was on some super teams. On a really good team, if something goes wrong on a play, the confidence is there that it's going to be fixed on the next play."

"On a bad team, you wonder what's going to go wrong next."

One of the things ULS has prided itself on in recent seasons is its takeaway-turnover ratio. In Friday's game, the Knights forced two fumbles on hits by Colin Fenton and Charles Lowe and Matt Benca had an interception.

Benca grabbed the ball away from freshman Barre Mackie as the two teammates each had a shot at the interception.

"The senior had a couple of tricks the freshman hadn't learned yet," Sewell said with a laugh.

While East turned the ball over three times, the Knights were turnover-free.

ULS opened the scoring in the first quarter on a 36-yard field goal by Mark Brammer.

The Knights got their first touchdown early in the second quarter on a 45-yard pass from Jeff Legree to Trevor Broad.

Brammer kicked the extra point.

The touchdown was set up by a long punt return by Mackie.

ULS increased its lead to 16-0 with 18 seconds remaining in the first half. Benca scored on a five-yard run to cap a drive that started at midfield.

"We didn't have anything fancy, just a lot of three, four or five-yard runs," Sewell said.

ULS capped the scoring in the fourth quarter when Lowe scored on a 10-yard run.

"We had the ball forever in the third quarter but couldn't score," Sewell said. "We did a good job of controlling the ball. I saw some nice blocking."

Seeing most of the action in the offensive line were guards Leythton Williams and Fenton, tackles Ross Lewicki and Andrew Critchell and center C.T. Chantlon.

Lowe was one of several defensive standouts for the Knights look ready to defend state title

University Liggett School's girls tennis team looks ready to defend the state championship it won last fall.

"We have all but one player back from last year's team," said coach Chuck Wright.

"I thought we played quite well in last weekend's Traverse City tournament. We beat Okemos in three flights and they always have a solid team. Before the tournament we scrimmaged Traverse City (Central) and looked real good."

ULS finished fourth in the rain-shortened season-opening tournament, but Wright was more interested in how the team played than where it finished.

He's also enthused with his trio of captains — holdovers Julie Megler and Katie Maurer and Sejal Parikh, who is new to the role.

"They're all so good with people," Wright said. "They make everyone feel like part of the team. That's one of the reasons everyone gets along so well."

Lauren Ealba won two of her three matches at No. 1 singles, the only flight that was completed.

end zone for a touchdown.

Finney scored a pair of fourth-quarter touchdowns against North's second defensive unit. Quarterback Joseph Brown passed 15 yards to Maurice McClendon for the first touchdown and Brown went up the middle on a 12-yard keeper for the second score with 2:23 left in the game.

The game ended when Dosmas tackled Brown to force a fumble and LaTour recovered at the North 37.

"I thought we played a very solid first half," Sumner said. "We came off the ball really well."

"We had our second team in for most of the second half after we went up 28-6, but they had to keep their first unit in because like most PSL teams, they don't have a lot of players. I never felt that the game was in doubt."

There were several excellent performances on defense from the Norsemen.

"Our linebackers played very well. Joe Hermann played a great game," Sumner said. "He had 11 tackles, two of them solos, and (John) Fischer had 10 tackles."

Dosmas had nine tackles, including two sacks, and blocked two kicks. Wright had eight tackles. Defensive tackles LaTour and Aaron Bustillo also earned Sumner's praise.

Port Huron dropped its opener to Marysville in a high-scoring affair.

"They have good outside speed, they throw well and they have a great running back in Todd Peyrek," Sumner said.

"She beat a real good girl from Okemos and lost in the finals to a outstanding player from Cranbrook," Wright said.

Megler at No. 2 singles, Beth Sanders at No. 3 and Jessica Spriet at No. 4 each split a pair of matches.

Spriet is the only newcomer to the starting lineup as she replaces Amy Silverston, who graduated. Spriet is an example of hard work paying off.

"She has spent six hours a day the last two summers working on her game," Wright said.

The first doubles team of Nayla Kazzi and Maurer had a strong tournament. Liz Campbell and Parikh beat Okemos' second doubles team. At No. 3 doubles, Julie Keersmaekers and Puja Venkat dropped a pair of tough 9-7 matches.

The fourth doubles team of Remi Alle and Katie Jones divided a pair of matches.

Although freshman Callie Shumaker didn't play in the tournament, Wright plans to use her extensively during the season to fill in where needed.

"She'll be our floater," he said. "She'll play some on the varsity and sometimes on the JV."

South

The Blue Devils picked up safeties on two straight Southeastern possessions in the third quarter. Twice Andrew Vlasak dropped punts inside the Jungaleers' five and each time South's special teams unit covered them.

"We spend a lot of time on our kicking game," McLeod said. "Our special teams were outstanding. Vlasak did a great job punting. Peppler did a good job kicking off and Rogers made all of his extra points."

On South's first safety, Sean O'Sullivan tackled quarterback Tory Biggs in the end zone. On the second, Biggs was dropped in the end zone by Mark Frangel.

South capped the scoring on Brosnan's 18-yard run with just over two minutes left in the third quarter.

Linebackers Peppler and Luke Parchment led the defensive effort that allowed Southeastern to cross midfield only twice in the game.

Danko rushed for 63 yards in eight carries, Jason Kline picked up 38 yards in nine attempts, Jarboe and Brosnan each finished with 34 yards in seven carries.

ULS

Knights. Benca made eight tackles and Williams had seven.

Benca and Williams shared player of the game honors.

"Leython was all over the field," Sewell said. "In the second half they started running away from him."

Unfortunately for ULS, Williams injured his shoulder and could miss Friday's home opener against Lutheran Westland.

"We're not going to take any chances with him," Sewell said.

Salvo wins division at tourney

The Grosse Pointe Soccer Association under-11 Salvo won its division at the recent St. Clair Shores Waterfront Invitational tournament at Kyte Monroe Park.

The Salvo posted four straight shutouts, including a 1-0 victory over Macomb-Shelby in the championship game.

Defenders Tim Shield, Jon Nicholl, Arthur Griem, Tim Carron and Kevin Orzechowski and goalkeepers Cale Mannesto and Kyle Drummond were responsible for the outstanding defensive play.

Another factor was the mid-field play of new team members Killian Davis, Jackson Hartman and Cameron Kozicki.

Patrick Gustine led the Salvo in scoring with six goals and two assists. Tommy Vander Schaaf, Anthony Sellors, Sean McLoughlin and Lucas Bonafede combined for the Salvo's other five goals and two assists.

The team is coached for the first time this year by John Mellon, the junior varsity boys and girls soccer coach at Grosse Pointe South.

Getting it right

Two members of the Grosse Pointe Soccer Association Salvo '92 travel soccer team that won its division in the Waterford Cup 2000 tournament were incorrectly identified in the Aug. 24 edition of the Grosse Pointe News.

Their names should have read Chris Shirar and Alex Mager.

Mite AA Bulldogs win division

The Grosse Pointe Hockey Association Mite AA Bulldogs spent a lot of time celebrating championships last season.

The Bulldogs won their division in the Little Caesars Amateur Hockey League with an 11-1-3 record. Their competition included Belle Tire, Mount Clemens, Troy, St. Clair Shores, Port Huron, Great Lakes and Blue Water.

In addition to winning the league, the Bulldogs won the Cleveland Sports Weekend Early Bird tournament and won a tournament in Pittsburgh during the Thanksgiving weekend.

Following the regular league season, the Bulldogs competed in the Little Caesars Tier I playoffs for teams with .500 or better records.

Grosse Pointe posted several thrilling victories, including a 2-1 win in three overtimes against the Hazel Park Vikings, and advanced to the championship game at Joe Louis Arena where the Bulldogs dropped a heart-breaking 3-1 decision to the talented Farmington Hills Fire.

The defeat capped a 30-3-4 overall season for the Bulldogs. Aaron Cisco and Brady Baetens were the Bulldogs' goalies. James Fish, Brett Meltzer, Andy Wybo and Mike Yanis made up the defense corps. The forwards were Bobby Barrett, Johnny Hackett, Lance Lucas, Kevin Lynch, Ben Miller and Jack Sklarski.

John Hackett was the head coach.

He was assisted by Bob Barrett, John Sklarski and Terry Lucas. Art Post was the manager. The team was sponsored by Don Giffin of Giffin International.

Sagging cement may be due to leaky joints

Are there large cracks in your driveway or patio? Are any next to the house? Fill them now for three good reasons:

- First, it is a good idea to keep water from getting under cement. An even better idea to keep it from "flowing" under the cement. Flowing water removes some soil and will cause the cement slab to settle. Also if the dirt below is wet when the frost comes this winter then the frost will heave, or raise, the slabs of cement. The drier the dirt, the less it will expand when it freezes.

- Second, a well-caulked driveway will help keep the basement dry. All the water that collects

By Blair Gilbert

between the driveway and the house could be running down the wall to the footings. The water and some soil drain into the weeping tiles around the basement and carry the water to the city sewer. Eventually the weep tiles fill with clay and dirt and cease to work. This is when most people encounter basement leaks. Don't let this happen to you! Seal up the driveway and send that water to the city storm drain.

- Last, the weather is still nice. Take it while we can Michigan.

One of the easiest ways to seal large cracks is to fill the void with aerosol foam first. It comes in an expanding and a non-expanding type. When you use the expanding, my favorite, you probably will have large mutant tumors of foam oozing out of the cracks you fill. So to minimize this, only fill one third of the crack and let the foam expand.

The aerosol foam can be the messiest stuff you have ever used.

Take your time and don't use too much at once. Put a box or some container at the end of your crack so the foam doesn't drip all over the place. This is also how you can take the foam from crack to crack neatly.

Once hard, trim the expanded foam flush with a razor knife, one with a long and thin blade. Caulk over the foam with gray caulk for that invisible look. It shouldn't take much caulk, only an eighth of an inch or so, thanks to the foam. Use roof tar in a caulk tube if prior repair jobs were done with black crack filler.

Once the crack is filled, trimmed and caulked, your job will be a thing of beauty and a job that will last a long time.

Spray foam tips:

- Before you do the driveway, walk around the house and check for holes around faucets, electrical service cables, and the like. After you foam the cracks in the driveway it's nice to use up the excess on other voids in the house.

Fall into the habit of planting spring bulbs

Have you ever envied a neighbor's yard that overflows with bright tulips and daffodils every spring? Ever wish you had the time, tools and talent to do the same in your own yard? Well, get out your trowel because this year you're going to do it.

Here's the big payoff: A couple of weekend hours this fall means a beautiful springtime yard for years to come. Bulbs are perennials — they come back every year — and some even naturalize, meaning they multiply on their own.

The most popular spring bulbs include anemones, crocuses, daffodils, grape hyacinths, iris, snowdrops and tulips. And while bulbs are traditionally associated with Holland, where most of the world's hardy spring flower bulbs are grown, most bulbs have their origins in the Middle East or southern Europe.

Prized and traded among emperors and kings, many bulbs were first introduced by soldiers returning from the Crusades who wanted to propagate exotic flowers in their native countries.

Bulb basics

Spring-blooming bulbs become available in garden centers and hardware stores in late summer. It is a good idea to buy them early when the selection is best, and plant them as soon as the days get cooler. Assorted bulbs can be purchased in prepackaged mesh bags or individually.

It helps to select bulbs the way you choose fresh fruit, according to Deb Wells of The Home Depot.

"Choose fat bulbs that aren't mushy when they're squeezed," says Wells. "I also like to smell the bulbs. If they have an odor of mildew or rot, the bulbs probably won't make it through the winter."

Gardening 101

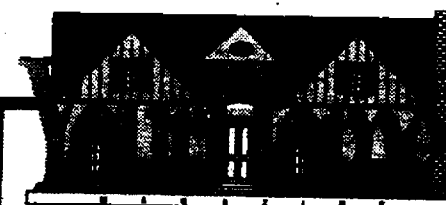

Bulb planting is a relatively simple procedure, provided the gardener has the right tools: a trowel, a gardener's knee pad, bone meal and a sense of good timing. In the north, spring bulbs are usually planted between mid-September and early November, before the ground freezes. Once in the ground, bulbs function like factories, storing and processing their own food through the cold winter months.

In warm climates, spring bulbs can be more challenging to gardeners since the winters are not cold enough to make many bulbs go dormant. So it is best for southern gardeners to store their bulbs, package and all, in the refrigerator anywhere from four to eight weeks before planting. This will give them a chance to "chill out" before going into the garden in early spring.

"Make sure there is no ripening fruit in the refrigerator with the bulbs," says Wells. "The fruit can give off bulb-damaging gases."

Traditionally bulbs are planted by digging a hole about three times the depth of the bulb itself. A mixture of compost and bone meal is added to the bottom of the hole before the bulb is placed into it root side down. Bulbs prefer sunny areas with well-drained soil. If soil appears a little too wet, mix in a little sand to promote more effective drainage.

Planting bulbs in a shady area is fine as long as the trees are deciduous. For a landscaped look, arrange the bulbs in groupings —

Antiques and Collecting

Glass has been made in Italy for hundreds of years. About 1910, there was new interest in the glass-making industry. Totally new, modern designs appeared. The Murano, Italy, glass industry began anew with Carlo Venini in the 1920s. He did away with delicate glass with curlicues and filigree, and turned to plain pieces with clean lines and color. Many creative artists added their designs to the Italian output, and by the 1950s, Murano glass was again famous worldwide. The glass vases and figurines made since the 1950s are selling for high prices today. A vase can cost several thousands of dollars if it is well-made and by a top designer. Bargains are still to be found because most pieces are unmarked and often unrecognized.

Q. I would like to know if dining room furniture by Jacobean is of value. My set is about 80 years old.

A. Your set was not made by Jacobean. It was made in the Jacobean style that first became popular in England in the early 1600s. The furniture was made of carved, dark wood. Large balls were often used as feet. Many of the old styles were redesigned as "Colonial revival" pieces that were suited to the 20th century. Dining room sets included servers, buffets, large tables and other pieces that would not have been used in the 1600s. The decorating styles of the 1950s required straight lines and little carving, so the revival styles went out of fashion. They are just returning to favor, and the dining-room sets are selling well. Price depends on quality, importance of the maker and the condition.

The storage unit available to most people in the 1700s was a rectangular boxlike chest with small feet, narrow drawers at the bottom and a lift-top lid. It must have been difficult for many matrons to bend down to find the linens in the bottom drawers. Consequently, a new design appeared. The chest was placed on a stand that had longer legs and a decorative front. A plain chest often had an elaborately carved and gilded stand. The chest-on-stand soon metamorphosed into the chest-on-chest, and the storage unit had two parts with long drawers that were easy to use.

When builders started putting closets into homes in the late 1800s, the need for storage in furniture lessened. The large chest-on-chest lost favor and the simple chest of drawers became fashionable. A mirror was often hung above the chest. The addition or subtraction of carvings, hardware and elaborate feet, and the color of the wood and other details have taken the 20th-century chest of drawers through Arts and Crafts, Art Deco and the Fifties look, plus other periods of design. The idea still remains. The box for storage has gradually changed to more easily used stacks of drawers at a convenient height.

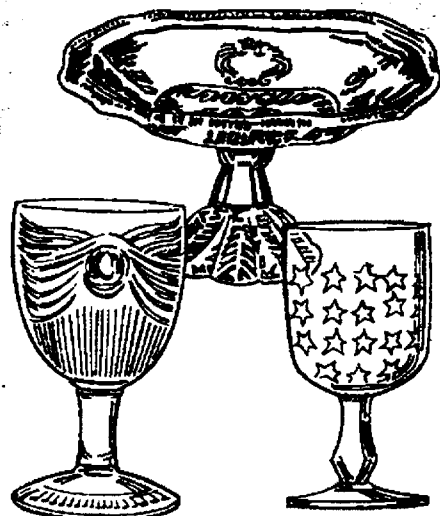

Q. My two Eskimo dolls are wearing boots marked "Ko" and "Klee." They have composition faces, cloth bodies and furry Eskimo clothes. What can you tell me about them?

A. You have some advertising dolls made by Effanbee in the 1920s for the Cliquot Club company. The dolls were named Klee and Ko for the company. Each doll is worth about $100 today.

Tip 1. Avoid salt water and chlorine when wearing good jewelry. They can erode the metal and dim the shine on the stones. Hair spray and perfume also make many gemstones dull.

Tip 2. Doormats at every door catch dirt and keep it from creating dust and pollution in the house. Shake out, wash or vacuum the mats frequently.

Pesticide safety tips offered by the NAA

Many homeowners are entering a dangerous period as they begin to care for their lawns and landscapes. A survey of homeowners by the Virginia Cooperative Extension found some alarming gaps in knowledge and safe practices of do-it-yourselfers. A beautiful lawn, shrub or tree isn't worth the trade-off if pesticides are not being used properly.

According to the survey:

- Sixty percent of homeowners reported they don't wear any protective clothing or equipment when applying pesticides.

- More than 40 percent don't remove toys, pet dishes and lawn furniture before applying pesticides.

- Just 45 percent follow label directions about when it is safe to re-enter an area sprayed with pesticides.

- Fewer than 5 percent bothered to warn their neighbors when they were applying pesticides.

Many people don't have to use pesticides at all. Professionals may be able to solve landscape problems without pesticides, by choosing nonchemical alternatives, such as sanitation procedures and selecting shrubs and ornamental trees that are less susceptible to disease and insects.

For example, an infestation last year may only require all the old plant material to be cut out. Often, cultural practices (pruning, raking leaves, etc.) will go a long way toward solving pest problems.

If a homeowner decides to use pesticides, follow these suggestions:

- Identify the pest first. There is no use in applying a pesticide that won't address your pest problem.

- Buy ready-to-use pesticides. They're more expensive, but are less toxic than concentrates and eliminate the chance of exposure during mixing. In addition, they can be purchased in the smaller quantities that homeowners realistically need.

- Buy no more material than you can use in one season. Buying more creates storage problems and potentially expensive disposal problems.

- Don't be tempted to use agricultural chemicals. They aren't designed for use by homeowners. A small miscalculation in the mixing of a small batch could result in drastic overdosing.

- Buy the least toxic chemical. Most chemicals available to homeowners use the signal words "caution," "warning," or "danger" on their labels. Try to avoid those with the warning and danger labels, as they are more hazardous.

- Never mix herbicides with other kinds of pesticides, and never use the same equipment to spray herbicides and other pesticides. You could unintentionally kill the plants you are trying to protect.

- Always follow label instructions on mixing, application, storage and disposal of pesticides.

- Don't mix or store pesticides in food containers, and don't measure pesticides with the measuring cups and spoons you use in the kitchen. Always store pesticides in the original container with the label intact.

All these are common sense precautions, but sometimes people do things without thinking. The best choice of all may be to consult a professional who can diagnose pest problems and recommend chemical or nonchemical alternatives.

For treatment of trees and shrubs, contact the NAA, a 62-year-old public and professional resource on trees and arboriculture. It has more than 2,500 members who recognize stringent safety and performance standards, and are required to carry liability insurance.

An easy way to find a tree care service provider in your area is to use their Locate Your Local National Arborist Association (NAA) Member Companies program. You can use this service by calling (800) 733-2622 or by doing a zip code search on their web site at www.natlarb.com.

Get into action with time-saving tech tips

Warm-weather cleaning is always a priority, but how many of us really want to spend our time inside when the sun is shining and the birds are chirping? There are some ways to save time while cleaning, or even make it fun. Best Buy can help put a jump in your step.

Are the only bunnies you're seeing these days dust bunnies? Fantom's Cyclone XT vacuum can solve your cleaning woes with its dual cyclones that have maximum power to pick up the most embedded dirt. The handle converts into a 10-foot cleaning wand to conquer hard-to-reach areas, making cleaning easier and faster.

Don't neglect your computer when it comes to spring cleaning. Why not get rid of old files or clean up that desktop. Now it's easier than ever with software such as Symantec's Clean Sweep 4.1. Just pop in the CD-ROM and there's no scrubbing required.

Listening to music is a good way to make cleaning jobs go faster. Create your own mixes to play back on a portable mini disc player. You can dust to Dixie Chicks or mop to Metallica and make the time fly.

Warm-weather showers can also catch us off guard and lead to potential problems. "People need to protect themselves and their electronics when spring storms arise," says Laurie Bauer, a spokesperson for Best Buy Co. Inc. "Weather radios can provide an early warning for potential inclement weather and can give people time to prepare."

Surge protectors prevent electronics from being damaged by power surges produced by storms. Best Buy recommends using surge protectors on computers and home entertainment components, such as TVs, VCRs, DVDs and stereo components, since they are more likely to be affected and more expensive to replace. Spring is also a good time to check batteries in household electronics, smoke detectors and flashlights to ensure all are in working condition.

After cleaning the house and braving the storms, people want to take advantage of the great weather. MP3 players provide great sound during a bike ride around the lake. With the capability of downloading music from the Internet, MP3 offers a smooth listening experience with no skipping and you don't have to change disks.

Family radios can help family members keep in touch while they participate in favorite summer activities. The radios, known as the successor of the walkie-talkie, are the size of a cell phone, have about a two-mile range and are available with several different channel features.

You can stay connected to the office with the Palm VII, the latest handheld Personal Directory Assistant (PDA), that sends and retrieves e-mail and runs computer programs. The PDA works anywhere, whether it's from the lake or the golf course.

This summer, technology can help you spend less time on dreaded tasks, keep you connected and give you more time to have

Small appliances: The toaster makes a statement in design

Small kitchen appliances like toasters tend to look alike: almost always rectangular, usually white and with two slots. There are choices, however, for the style-conscious person who craves something different in the kitchen. Striking designs are showing up in the normally mundane kitchen appliances that are part Art Deco, part architectural, and chock full of state-of-the-art functions plus real design appeal.

One new style is the Avante toaster from T-Fal, the non-stick cookware manufacturer and maker of innovative small electrics. This style sets the standard for smart looks in kitchen electrics. The angular design of the toaster — flat back and curved face — means it occupies less space, yet makes a dramatic and eloquent design statement.

There is a choice of four function-packed versions of the Avante toaster. Two are 950-watt, four-slice toasters: one model in chrome and black and another in white with chrome accents. These striking models are engineered with four extra-wide angled slots to accommodate a variety of breads, from thick to thin, bagels to muffins.

There are two 950-watt two-slice Avante models, one in chrome and black and one in white with chrome accents. Both feature two extra-wide, 1-inch angled slots to hold even the thickest slices of bread.

The four toasters are equipped with six-position precision electronic browning and the roomy slots have T-Fal's exclusive self-centering mechanisms to position bread so they toast evenly and consistently. The Avantes are crafted with T-Fal's exclusive Hi-Lift function that raises toast above the slots for easier-than-ever removal. Other popular convenience features are the cancel function that lifts toast mid-cycle and the reheat and defrost functions to warm previously toasted bread or for toasting frozen breads.

Thermal-insulated housings ensure that the T-Fal Avantes are always safe-to-the-touch. The user-friendly toasters are designed with pull-out crumb trays for easy cleaning and back handles for portability. Avante toasters retail from $49.99 to $79.99.

Simple ways to experience spa pleasures at your home

Many only dream of a chance to indulge in the relaxing, revitalizing treatments of a professional day spa. When asked what prohibits this dream from becoming a reality, more than 45 percent of Coming Home with Lands' End survey respondents cited high costs, followed by 30 percent saying lack of time.

Coming Home spa expert Steve Capellini has traveled across the world to professional spas learning the best in techniques and treatments. Based on his experiences, he has created simple, time-efficient ways to practice these sensational spa indulgences at home.

"You no longer have to escape to a spa to be pampered," said Capellini. "Today, there are ways to bring these essential spa experiences into your home."

He offers the following tips on how to set the stage and experience top-notch spa treatments in the comforts of home:

Spa essentials

No need to invest in fancy products to create a home spa experience. Capellini provides a list of simple items necessary to indulge in favorite spa treatments.

- Spa thermal unit: Use a miniature cooler to store hot towels. Simply immerse the towels in steaming hot water, wring them out, and then store them in the cooler where they'll remain hot for 10 to 15 minutes. You can also microwave wrung-out towels for a minute or less and then place them in the cooler.

- Spa bowls: Have a quart-sized plastic or glass bowl on hand to hold water, body baths, salts, algae and other spa ingredients.

- Wrapping sheets: Use a sheet to help the process of purifying herbs, creams or oils as well as to protect furniture and other surfaces in your home. The best choices are natural muslin or pure, unbleached cotton sheets.

- Insulating sheets/blankets: To stay warm while cocooned in rich seaweed or while absorbing pure essential oils, use warming wraps. The best choice for blankets is, of course, wool, but other fabrics will insulate sufficiently as well.

- Skin brush or loofah: Exfoliation is a key word in the home spa experience. To exfoliate the skin, a dry skin brush or a loofah is a must.

- Towels: Towels, towels and more towels. Spa treatments can be towel intensive and it may be best to invest in a set just for home spa use. Many of the treatments may require two or three towels and it is important to keep one towel on reserve as your designated "spa towel" to wipe up any mess and clean away excess oil during massage.

- Robes: A robe and slippers are suggested dress-attire at most professional day spas. It's also a good idea to have a robe hanging on a nearby hook when you are pampering yourself at home. This is one area to splurge on as nothing feels quite the same as a high-quality bathrobe.

- Cotton pads and cotton swabs: For application and removal of just about any product, especially around the face, large circular pads are the best.

Spa-ahhhh treatments

From masks and foot scrubs to hydrotherapy baths and herbal inhalation, Capellini offers these tips on how to achieve sensational spa treatments at home:

- Spa Foot Treatment: To create your own divine foot treatment, you'll need a place to soak your feet (bathtubs do nicely), nail clippers and files, a cuticle tool, two hot towels, and some skin lotion. Start by soaking your feet in hot water for five minutes, adding some bath salts and two drops of peppermint essential oil to the water if you'd like. Then, while one foot soaks, clip and file the nails of the other, cleaning the cuticles too. Repeat on the other foot, then dry the feet and wrap them in a hot moist towel that has been sprinkled with your favorite essential oil. After a few minutes, unwrap one foot at a time, bringing it up to your lap for a 10-minute mini massage. Finish with a light application of skin lotion to each foot.

Q. I recently had a leak at the base of my toilet bowl and decided to replace the wax ring due to the bowl's age. The wax seal lasted for about one month and then mysteriously leaked again. Once again I replaced the seal. This time, it lasted only a bit longer before leaking again. The wax ring is standard sized, and I even checked out the problem with a qualified employee from my local home center. Can you tell me if I'm doing something wrong? Is there an alternative method of installation?

A. Only a tight seal will prevent any water or moisture from escaping. After removing the old wax seal from the bowl flange, make absolutely sure that there are no traces of wax residue on the base. Any thin layer of debris will prevent the ring from completely sealing. You must also be sure that the closet flange is not cracked and secured tightly to the floor.

A last alternative and also a possible cause for water to leak may be the need to add an additional wax ring. Carefully press both wax rings together until they meld, install them on the bowl's flange and gently twist the bowl down until it seats. If you sit on it and press your body weight to the bowl, you will create a good seal. Finally, secure the closet bolts and use caution not to crack the porcelain.

Q. My 8-year-old dishwasher has been making some noises lately, especially in the rinse/drain cycle. I've also noticed that almost an inch of water remains in the bottom of the tub after the wash cycle is completed. The sound I sometimes hear is a gurgling noise when the cycle is rinsing. Can you tell me what's causing this?

A. Before you call in a professional for service, make several simple checks first. Also, even the newest dishwasher will sometimes have trouble completely draining all food wastes if the particles are large and solid. Be sure to wipe off most of the food left over on dishes.

Begin by checking the filter in the dishwasher's tub for any built-up food debris. The location of the filter is generally at the base of the tub surrounding or possibly at the back. If the screen has food waste on it, carefully remove all of the particles by hand. With some models, it may be necessary to remove several screws which hold the filter screen.

Another common problem relates to the drain hose itself. First turn off the circuit breaker or unplug the dishwasher if it's easier. Remove the lower access panel to expose all of the components. Locate the drain hose and remove the hose clamp. Next, you can check the hose for any blockages by blowing air into it. If the hose is still not clear, look for any bends or kinks. Even a partially-twisted hose will restrict the water flow and cause a gurgling sound. A length of pipe cleaner will clear out any food waste that might have lodged in it.

Finally, one more culprit can cause drainage problems. Many dishwashers have a drain valve which prevents water from flowing back into your dishwasher. If your appliance has a drain valve, locate the valve bracket and push on it lightly to see if it moves on its own. If the valve appears to be rigid, you'll need to find an appliance parts center and purchase a new one. If the valve moves freely, install everything back in place and run the dishwasher cycle to test it.

• Hydrotherapy Bath: For a complete relaxation experience, re-create a spa hydrotherapy bath at home. First, you'll need to create your escape. Surround the tub with candles and the essentials, including towels and a bath pillow. Add the peaceful sound of soft music. Fill the tub with hot water; 104 degrees is the maximum. Next, add ten drops of special essential oils such as lavender or juniper for a calming effect. Step in and soak for twenty minutes, remembering to breathe deeply and enjoy the moment. When finished, pat yourself dry with a towel, leaving some of the bath's moisture to soak into skin. Now is a perfect time to slip into a comfortable robe and do nothing for 20 minutes.

• Herbal inhalation: This quick "pick-me-up" is a great way to revitalize and even ward off a cold. Place a pinch of herbs, such as eucalyptus, in a porous pouch. Immerse it in steaming hot water in the bathroom sink. Drape a towel over the back of your head, bend over and hold it above the sink in a tent shape. Leave the hot water running and breathe in the herb-laden steam that floats up to your face for approximately 10 minutes.
