His moving speech, "Freedom is not Free," received a tearful standing ovation during ceremonies last Friday.

Star students give back to Grosse Pointe veterans

By Bonnie Caprara
Staff Writer

What started as a classroom project has become a school-wide observance of the contribution of the nation's veterans.

For several years as a history teacher at Our Lady Star of the Sea School, Linda Berger had incorporated the study of U.S. veterans in her classroom. One of the projects involved each student interviewing a war veteran about his or her experiences. The results were displayed in the school hallway.

"They're getting older and their stories have to be told," said Berger, who is the daughter of World War II veteran Jules Staels, who died on Veteran's Day 1997. Her father-in-law, Christopher Berger, is also a veteran.

Last year, a parishioner and veteran commented to Berger, "No one ever thinks about us. No one even asks us what happened."

This year, even though Berger now teaches language arts, not only did her students interview veterans, but the tribute to veterans was expanded and shared with the school, parishioners and veterans.

The stories and photographs her eighth-grade students collected have been brought out of the school hallway and into the church lobby. Her seventh-graders helped organize the Friday, Nov. 4 school Mass which paid tribute to the nation's veterans. Also in attendance was a U.S. Marine Corps color guard and many of the veterans the eighth-grade students interviewed.

In addition, at the closing of the Mass, members of the school's student council presented a $500 check to the Grosse Pointe War Memorial's Legacy Project. The Legacy Project will collect and codify the wartime military experience of over 600 Grosse Pointers in a computerized kiosk at the War Memorial.

Vets can hear Major Tom

This Friday, Nov. 10, Major Tom Rose, USMC, will be the guest speaker at the Grosse Pointe War Memorial's Veterans Breakfast in the Fries Crystal Ballroom.

Rose is a graduate of Grosse Pointe North High School and Eastern Michigan University, where he earned a bachelor of science degree in computer aided design. He served in Saudi Arabia in Operation Desert Shield/Storm, where he was a HAWK missile platoon commander and served as a Stinger missile platoon commander in Operation Restore Hope with the joint task force in Somalia. He is currently serving as the officer-in-charge of Detachment Bravo, located at Selfridge Air National Guard Base in Mount Clemens.

Rose is part of the "Living History Program" sponsored by the Grosse Pointe War Memorial. The educational program utilizes active service men and women and veterans to speak to students in area schools. The veterans, all volunteers, have served in either WWII, the Korean War, Desert Storm/Desert Shield or the Vietnam War. Topics discussed will be the spirit of patriotism, their experience in the war, current events during their time of service, and the new Veterans Legacy Project, which will be unveiled to the public in February.

The Veterans Legacy Project is a unique, hands-on, museum-quality exhibit that will consist of a multimedia kiosk that will enable visitors to instantly access historical and biographical information about Grosse Pointe veterans.

Major Tom Rose

Veterans Breakfast tickets must be presented at the door for admission. Doors open at 7:15 a.m. Breakfast will be served at 7:30 a.m. This event is sold out.

The Grosse Pointe War Memorial serves as a living memorial in honor of those Grosse Pointers who so valiantly served our country in the armed forces. It is a non-profit charitable organization and receives no United Way funding, local, state or federal tax-dollar support.

Former state rep Robert Waldron dies at age 80

By Chip Chapman
Special Writer

Grosse Pointe and the state of Michigan lost a true leader Oct. 20, when former state Rep. Robert E. Waldron died of cancer in an Ann Arbor hospice. He was 80.

Waldron, a Republican, represented Michigan's 1st District, which includes Grosse Pointe, in the state House from 1954-70 and served as speaker during the 1967-68 session.

"It seems like an oxymoron, but he was an honest politician," said attorney and longtime friend Hudson Mead. "He was absolutely dedicated to public service. We were good friends even though we were political adversaries. He could be trusted."

"He was my mentor and good friend through my 26 years in the state House and afterward," said William Bryant, a Republican who succeeded Waldron and served until retiring in 1996. "He groomed me to take his place; he didn't have to do this. He had more friends than anyone I've ever known and he paid attention to them."

Born in Brookline, Mass., in 1920, Waldron enlisted in the U.S. Army Air Corps in 1942 and served in the European Theater during World War II. After leaving the service with the rank of captain, he earned a bachelor's degree from Dartmouth College in 1946 and a law degree from the University of Michigan in 1949. Waldron formed a law firm with partners who included former state Supreme Court Justice Thomas Brennan, former Detroit Mayor Roman Gribbs and former Lt. Gov. James Brickley, before entering the state Legislature.

During the legislative session in which he served as speaker, Waldron presided over the creation of the state income tax and Michigan's fair housing law. "He was always constructive and worked across party lines," Bryant said.

"I got to know him right after I was first elected to the state House," said Andrew Richner, a Republican who currently represents the 1st District. "He took me to dinner, and we talked about legislative issues, his experiences and what I could expect. It was the start of our ongoing friendship. I viewed him as a mentor and role model."

"When friends and colleagues speak of Robert Waldron there is a commonality to their words," read a special tribute drafted by the state Legislature and signed by Gov. John Engler; state Sen. John J. H. Schwarz, president pro tempore of the state Senate; and state Rep. Charles Perricone, speaker of the House. "They include fairness, honesty and compassion. As a public servant he was driven to do what was right, taking into full consideration the effects his actions would have on the citizens of Michigan, keeping fairness and honesty as guiding principles in his actions and decisions."

After leaving the state House, Waldron became the director of the Associated Petroleum Industries of Michigan until retiring in 1990. He remained active in politics after his retirement with the Citizens Research Council and the Mackinac Center for Public Policy.

"I'm currently working on a bill he suggested that would make videotaped wills legally enforceable," Richner said. "How many politicians stay involved in politics after retirement?"

Waldron is survived by his wife, Helen; two daughters, Mary and Peggy; a son, Bill; and five grandchildren. A memorial service was held Oct. 28, at St. Paul's Episcopal Church in Lansing. Memorial contributions can be made to the Mackinac Center for Public Policy in Midland or to the Sparrow Health System Cancer Center in Lansing.

■ The rate of home construction in the Grosse Pointe school district has surpassed previous years.

Some 1,155 building permits were issued for the community during the first nine months of the year.

The figure is nearly twice the number of permits issued during the same period last year, and last year's total of 835 was a record.

■ A new post office is being planned for the Grosse Pointes. Postal officials hope to build the structure near the "miracle mile," located near the intersection of Mack and Moross in the Farms. The facility would handle 58 carrier routes and 12 parcel post routes.

■ Construction is progressing on the addition to Parcells School in Grosse Pointe Woods.

The original structure was built under war restrictions and contained only 18 classrooms.

The addition will double the number of classrooms and include an auditorium and gymnasium.

Popular G.P. Woods officer retires

By Brad Lindberg
Staff Writer

Exactly 26 years after he signed on in Grosse Pointe Woods, a popular public safety officer has earned his retirement badge.

Robert Rabe, who was hired by the Woods on Oct. 16, 1974, retired last Monday despite requests by the department director that he stay on the job.

Rabe, accompanied by his wife Michele, was low-key during a retirement ceremony during which he received a directors commendation for performance at an emergency last summer.

"Thank you, everyone," said Rabe.

"Bob brought a solid tradition of law enforcement into our department," said Mike Makowski, the Woods director of public safety. Makowski and Rabe have known each other for 25 years.

"Bob is a friend," said the director.

After the ceremony, away from a group of supporters, Rabe said, "I made it through 30 years of law enforcement respecting the dignity of other people. I always tried to treat people as I would want to be treated."

Rabe was Michigan's only policeman, fireman, emergency medical technician or public safety officer certified by the Association of Traumatic Stress Specialists.

Time and again, including after a storm a few years ago killed family members at the Farms Pier Park, Rabe helped victims get through traumatic situations.

"I'd look them in the eye, roll up my sleeves and say, 'Tell me what happened,'" said Rabe. Then he'd listen. "The people were able to vent and say what was inside them."

Rabe, who made more than 500 solo arrests in the Woods, worked in law enforcement for 30 years. Before joining the Woods 26 years ago, he was a military policeman in Vietnam and member of the Detroit police department.

"I'm proud of him," said Michele.

Rabe, a Woods resident, anticipates a busy retirement. He's awaiting a grant from Oakland University to teach critical incident instruction.

He and Michele have three sons, Bradley, 25; Jason, 22 and Andrew, 17.

Rabe said he's a little sad to leave law enforcement.

"Thirty years," he said. "That's a big part of me."

Dear Jesus, Mary and Joseph,
who walk the heavens above,
by now you've met our father,
the man we dearly love.
We ask that you welcome him with warmth and calm his fears, and take him to his beloved Connie, who's been waiting fourteen years.

We ask that you watch over him, since we no longer can,
and take good care of our dear Dad,
a truly special man.
He'll make a nice addition, to your already colorful cast, he'll share his many stories, and make poor Mary gasp.

He mentioned you three often so we're sure you know Big Bill,
dear Jesus, Mary and Joseph,
please help our tears be still.

Boaters take advantage of warm weather

By Jim Stickford
Staff Writer

Various marina officials around the Pointes believe that unseasonably warm weather has led some Pointe boaters to try to squeeze a little extra time on the lake. There's just one problem — the Nov. 1 deadline several marinas have for getting boats out.

While the Shores and the Park have Nov. 15 deadlines, the marinas of the City, Farms and Woods were supposed to be cleared out by Nov. 1. But that just hasn't proved to be the case.

As of Monday, Nov. 6, there were still 12 boats left in the City's Neff Park marina. Farms Pier Park also had a couple of boats left. The Woods Lake Front Park was more successful in efforts in getting the boats out. There were several boats still in the marina on Friday, Nov. 3, but residents were able to take advantage of the weekend to get their boats out.

"I think it's connected with the warm weather we've been having," said Christine Bremer of the City of Grosse Pointe. "We have 12 boats still in the marina. That's unusual, but we've been having unusually warm weather. I think that's the reason this year is different."

Bremer said that Neff Park pretty much closes its doors as of Nov. 1. They extended supervision of the park through Nov. 5, but beginning on Nov. 6, the park no longer had full-time guards. Owners received their standard notification from the City as to when they had to get their boats out of the park.

But because City employees have been getting ready for the 2000 election, they haven't had time to personally contact the boat owners who had left their boats in the park. Now that the election is over, they will be able to devote more time to clearing out the marina.

Michele Balke of Grosse Pointe Farms said that on Nov. 1, they had about 40 boats in the harbor, so they sent out personal notices asking owners to get their boats.

"But as I was sending out the letters a number of people got their boats," said Balke. "More showed up during the weekend so on Monday we only had a couple of boats left."

Balke believes that the boaters wanted to take advantage of the warm weather, but they also had to wait in line to get their boats out.

"The winter marinas have been so busy these past couple of weeks," said Balke. "A lot of these boats are heavy and have to be hoisted out of the water. These marinas ended up being very busy and couldn't get to a lot of boats by Nov. 1."

Both Balke and Bremer believe that Nov. 1 falling on a Wednesday didn't help get the boats out any quicker.

Cindy Kummer of the Woods Lake Front Park said that they had several boats in the park at the beginning of the first weekend in November, but by Monday, they were gone.

"We have to get the boats out," said Kummer. "We have a pedestrian bridge that goes up and down to allow boats passage to the lake. But the park is used in the winter by people getting exercise, so it's vitally important for us to get the boats out in a timely fashion."

Terry Solomon of Grosse Pointe Park said they still had 41 boats out of about 250 still in the marina as of Nov. 6. While the boats don't have to be out until Nov. 15, dropping water levels are becoming a problem for boaters. Drop too low and it could be difficult to hoist the boat out of the water.

"I think people are trying to squeeze every last drop of sunshine left," said Solomon. "We've had a gorgeous fall, but it's time to get the boats out."

Well rates go up at Woods marina

By Brad Lindberg
Staff Writer

In contrast to the declining level of Lake St. Clair, marina fees in Grosse Pointe Woods are on the rise.

Starting next spring, boat well rates at Lake Front Park will go up 5 percent. The hike will amount to a $15 to $40 increase, bringing full-season rates to $485 to $750.

The following season, the rental structure will be simplified according to the size of the marina's boat wells. Until then, Lake Front boaters will remain unique among Grosse Pointers by paying municipal mooring fees based on the length of their craft.

The upcoming rate increase marks the first such action since 1998.

Melissa Warnack, the Woods recreation director who oversees marina activities, said, "Two percent (of next year's 5 percent rate increase) will account for an increase in the cost of living. The additional 3 percent will go to the city's future capital improvement fund."

By 2002, rental and other rate increases will generate an estimated $173,300. The figure represents a $17,000 increase over last summer.

"It is my recommendation that this revenue be invested toward future capital improvement for boat wells," said Warnack.

Switching the rental structure from boat size to slip size will simplify Warnack's bookkeeping and make it easier to project budgets.

"Currently," she said, "we cannot accurately estimate yearly revenue for budgeting purposes due to the fact we won't know what size of boats will fill empty spaces."

Dockage fees aren't the only rate increases at the park.

A one-time fee of $154 will be charged to people who rented slips last season. The money will cover the cost of lowering the finger docks to accommodate lower lake levels.

In the future, boaters will be charged $125 to raise and lower docks. The fee will be split between the boaters who share a single dock.

Starting next year, it will cost $10 for a daily boat launch, up from $7 this year. A season-long boat launch pass will cost $70, up from $65.

Lastly, dry dockage and boat rack fees will increase 5 percent to $325 and $130, respectively.

In a rough comparison of municipal harbor rates, Woods boaters pay the second highest mooring fees in the Grosse Pointes. The comparison isn't exact because Woods boaters are charged by boat size, not well size.

When Woods officials put their marina's rate structure in line with the other Pointes in 2002, wells under 21 feet will cost $605, wells from 21 to 25 feet will cost $685, and wells 25 feet and greater will rent for $750.

Last season, it cost Woods mariners $650 to moor a 25-foot at Lakefront Park. At Osius Park in the Shores, it cost $811 to dock a 26-foot boat. At the bottom of the scale, a 26-foot well at Neff Marina in the City of Grosse Pointe rented for $450.

Local park directors have said comparable wells at private marinas cost significantly more and are less convenient for Grosse Pointe residents.

Preparations afoot for holiday parade

By Jim Stickford
Staff Writer

Promising the best holiday parade ever, people are getting ready for the 25th annual Santa Claus Parade in the City of Grosse on Friday, Nov. 24, starting at 10:30 a.m. at the corner of Fisher and Kercheval.

Parade director Cindy Melican said this should be the best parade ever and features several new attractions, including the Budweiser Clydesdales, two horse-drawn sleighs, a horse-drawn carriage and large, inflatable balloons.

"This year we will be having stage and street performers who will be out and about before the parade starts," said Melican. "It will be like a Christmas street festival."

Performers include Jonathan Haglund, who promises to captivate audiences with his blend of comedy, juggling and fire eating. Also on hand will be Twisty the Fun Clown, an expert in the art of balloon sculpturing. John Juretich, a professional magician, will also be out and about entertaining the crowd with tricks.

The day will begin at 9 a.m. with the Grosse Pointe Lions Club Jingle Bell Run/Walk. From 9:30 to 10:30 a.m. stage and street performers will work their magic.

The parade begins at 10:30 a.m., starting at Fisher and Kercheval and proceeding down Kercheval to Cadieux in the Village. Santa Claus will be at Jacobson's from noon to 2 p.m. At 4:30 p.m. the Village Christmas tree will be lit.

The parade itself features a variety of acts. The Grosse Pointe Highlanders Pipe Band will march, as will the Detroit Fire Department Band and Calliope.

High school bands from Allen Park, Anchor Bay, Detroit Finney High, Harper Woods, Lakeshore High in St. Clair Shores, Notre Dame High and South Lake High in St. Clair Shores will mark as well.

There will be several parade floats with different themes. There will be a Nativity float. The Grosse Pointe North float's theme is the "Jungle Book." Grosse Pointe South's float will feature a superhero theme. The name of this year's Lions Club float is "Lions Cage."

In addition to the float there will be the Village Toy Company's antique fire truck. Others participating in the parade include Dan Dan the Choo Choo Man, the Grosse Pointe Woods Mini-Van Moms, the Grosse Pointe North Pom Pom Dance Team, the 21st Michigan Volunteer Infantry, local Boy and Girl Scout troops and antique clowns and animal characters.

W.P. Cyclone's Magnificent High Wheel Band will also be in the parade. Members wear period clothing from the 19th century and play Sousa marches, all while riding high wheel bicycles. There will two real reindeer by the Krogers in the Village for the children to see, she added.

This is Melican's second parade. Work on the parade, she said, begins in January with a critique of the previous parade.

"We then decide on the theme for the next parade," Melican said. "We then pick the bands and seek sponsors to help us pay costs to put the parade on. Once that's done we work very hard until the day of the parade."

Bon Secours-Cottage Hospital is the presenting, or largest, sponsor of the parade, Melican said. This year they have 25 sponsors to help the Village Association defray the costs of the parade.

Parade organizers are looking for volunteers to act as traffic marshalls. Their job will be to stand at the intersections where the parade and the run will go by and to hold off the motor traffic during the events. Anyone interested in being a marshall should contact Melican at (313) 885-4600.

"This is an interesting parade to put on," said Melican. "There are so many people involved in making it happen. Three Grosse Pointe public safety departments are involved. Officials from the City of Grosse Pointe are very generous with their time and so many volunteers. Plus this year we will be having street performers. It will be like a Christmas festival before the parade starts."

G.P. Woods honors organizers of its 50th anniversary parade

By Brad Lindberg
Staff Writer

Still giddy from September's successful municipal 50th anniversary celebration, Grosse Pointe Woods elected officials have rewarded members of the city's anniversary committee for a job well done.

Members of the Woods 50th anniversary committee have received framed tiles commemorating the city's birthday.

"On behalf of the entire community, I personally congratulate you for your service," said Woods Mayor Robert Novitke.

The mayor extended his praise to city administrators and volunteers whose work with the anniversary committee coalesced on Sept. 17 with a flawless parade and related celebrations.

"Things meshed so well," said Novitke. "You combined individual effort for a perfect whole."

Coordinating preparations with the Woods public safety and public service departments, anniversary organizers lined up more than 50 participants for the Sunday afternoon parade.

Novitke praised the residents, community organizations and local businesses that backed the birthday effort.

Allen Dickinson, a Woods councilman, chaired the anniversary committee on which Woods council members Patti Chylinski and Vicki Granger also served.

In addition, the committee included Angelo and Toni DiClemente, Jack Boni, John Hammel, Suzanne Kent, Dolores Remick, Caren Ruttan, Michael Skaff, Joseph Sucher, Steve Vassallo and Sandy Waeiss.

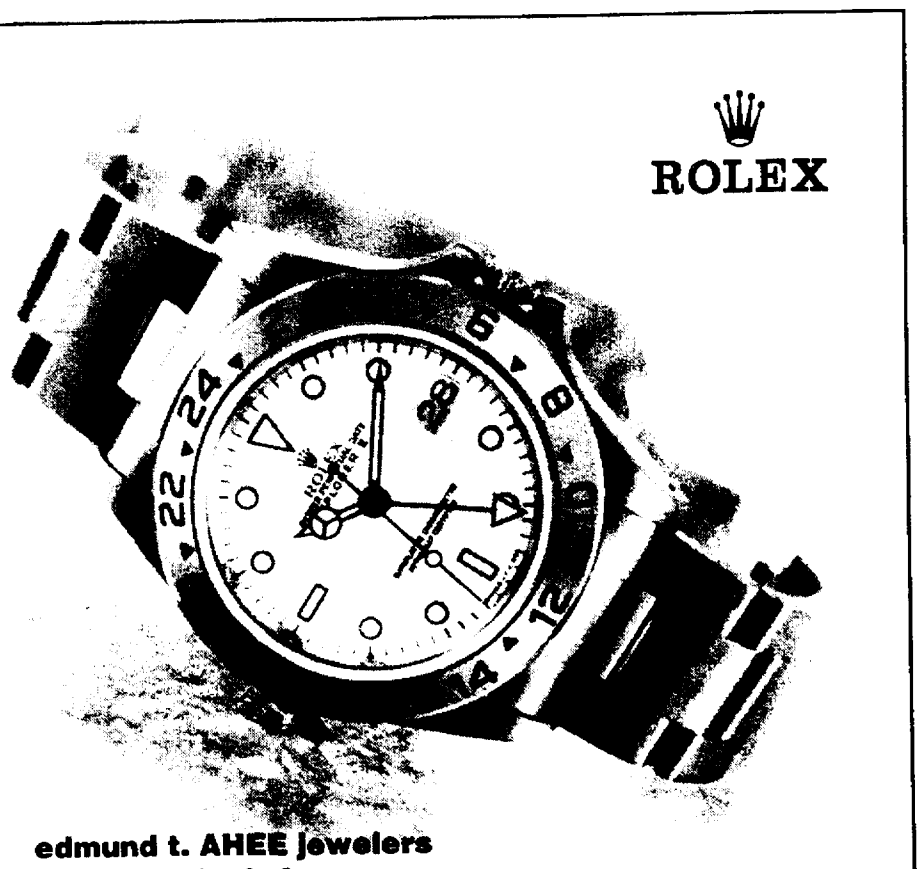

Josef's Bakery provided the birthday cake, while members of the Grosse Pointe Woods-Shores Little League manned the concession stand. The Grosse Pointe Business and Professional Association of Mack Avenue provided refreshments.

Woods veteran chronicles his WWII experience

By Chip Chapman
Special Writer

After reading one American general's account of the Borneo campaign during World War II, Ernest Paquette felt he had to set the record straight.

"All this general talked about was his outfit; he didn't say much about us at all," the Woods resident said. "But 95 percent of his landings were also our landings. He remarked that we weren't the best unit, but we lost the least amount of men and boats. He kept having to borrow our boats because he screwed up."

Paquette decided to write a book, "Our Business Is Beachheads," which chronicles his experience as a member of the 593rd Engineer Boat & Shore Regiment, 3rd Engineer Special Brigade (ESB), which made 74 assault landings in Borneo, New Guinea, New Britain and the Philippines.

"We'd hit the beach and we'd stay there," said Paquette, whose outfit was part of a soldier-seaman unit organized by the Army that played a vital role in landing operations in the southwest Pacific. "Our outfit was special," he said. "We did everything."

Paquette tracked down records and accounts from men in his unit in order to tell the story of the 593rd ESB. "It took about four years to compile everything," he said. "I published about 100 copies, mostly for the men who were there. I just wanted to set the record straight."

Paquette, a native of Detroit's east side, was 18 when he registered to enter the armed services in 1943. "I asked for the Navy, but their quota was filled," he said. "They asked if I'd like to go into the Marines, and I said no."

Paquette had worked at Detroit's Gray Marine Motors, the company that made motors for the Landing Craft Mechanized (LCM) boats he would serve aboard.

"I told them I liked boating, and they told me about this newly created special brigade." During his service in the southwest Pacific, Paquette did everything on a boat from being an engineer to a gunner to a coxswain.

The ESB's primary function was bringing equipment and supplies to amphibian operations, especially landing craft and marine parts and supplies. Once the troops were Ernest Paquette still fits into his uniform.

How 'we' voted on Tuesday

Due to the expected large voter turnout for Tuesday's general election and the consequential increased time necessary to count the ballots, we were unable to delay our press time in order to report the election results in this week's paper.

The good news, however, is that we were able to get the results on our website edition. If you are not already a subscriber, you can sign up in minutes with a credit card at grossepointenews.com.

Since we can't comment on the election results, we thought we would share with readers how "we" voted. In this case, we refer to the "editorial we," which is a consensus of the newspaper ownership and management. Basically, it's the same as an unsigned endorsement or opinion editorial appearing on this page.

For president, we voted Republican for George W. Bush. While the Democrats have been riding a good economic tide, we believe it is due to coincidence rather than design. The last several years' robust economy is more the product of programs set in place by Republican Ronald Reagan than the Democrats' big-government, tax-and-spend policies.

For U.S. Senate, we voted to re-elect Republican Spencer Abraham. We believe Abraham has done a good job trying to keep a tight rein on federal spending. His Democratic opponent, Debbie Stabenaw, smacks too much of liberal policy and government largesse than we could stomach.

We neglected to cast votes for the 14th and 15th Congressional districts. We feel the incumbents, Carolyn Cheeks Kilpatrick and John Conyers, respectively, represent their Detroit constituents exclusively, offering little to Pointe voters. However, little is known about their Republican challengers, and we feel it's foolish to vote for the unknown.

For State Supreme Court, we voted for incumbent Stephen Markman. And to support Markman's outstanding record on the bench, we voted for Clifford Taylor and Robert Young.

For District 1 state Court of Appeals, we were pleased to cast our vote for one of our own, Kirsten Frank Kelly, former municipal judge of Grosse Pointe Park and a current circuit court judge.

We ignored the State Board of Education contest as there were no qualified candidates.

For the 1st District state representative, we voted to re-elect Republican Andrew Richner of the Park for his third and final term in Lansing due to term limits.

For Wayne County commissioner, we decided to go with Republican challenger Eric Steiner.

On the statewide ballot issues, we voted no on both Proposals 1 and 2. One reason we were opposed to both proposals is because they alter the state Constitution. We believe constitutional changes should be rare.

On the specific ballot questions, we felt Proposal 1 was merely a Trojan Horse designed to eliminate the ban on public funding going to private and parochial schools. Further, we believe the school voucher plan as proposed would not achieve its purported goal, and that is to improve education for children in failing school districts.

If students lack the parental support necessary to graduate in poor school districts, what makes people believe the parental support would be there to get poor students through the much more rigorous private and parochial schools?

On Proposal 2, which would make a two-thirds vote necessary by the state Legislature on measures that would affect local governments, we question the motives of those who brought it to the ballot. Why do they want it retroactive? What past legislation do they hope to get rescinded?

Further, under the two-thirds rule, virtually anything the Legislature enacted would be vulnerable to lengthy and costly legal disputes as to whether they affect local government.

On the county level, we voted no on Wayne County Community College's request for a "permanent" 1.5-mill increase for school upgrades and operations. But we said yes to Proposal A, the 10-year, half-mill "art tax" to support cultural programs, including the Detroit Institute of Arts, Detroit Zoo and others in Wayne and Oakland Counties and those in the Pointes as well.

So that's how "we" voted, had the newspaper had a vote. By the time this newspaper comes out on Thursday, you and "we" will know how we did.

Hug a veteran on Saturday

"Nothing is more important to the soul of America than remembering and honoring those who gave of themselves so that we may enjoy the fruits of peace and liberty,"

— President Ronald Reagan at a Veterans Day ceremony in 1982.

During times of peace, it's easy to take for granted the freedoms that each of us enjoy. But what we should never take for granted are the sacrifices made by the men and women who helped us maintain these freedoms.

Several Grosse Pointers gave their lives for their country and others suffered physically, mentally and emotionally as a result of the horrors of war they experienced.

This Saturday we observe Veterans Day, a time to honor and remember those who fought and died for their fellow citizens as well as for future generations.

Eighty-two years ago, on the 11th hour of the 11th day of the 11th month, "the war to end all wars" officially ended with the signing of the armistice. A year later, President Woodrow Wilson proclaimed Nov. 11 as Armistice Day to honor Allied soldiers who had fought and died in what later became known as World War I. In 1921, an unknown American soldier was buried in Arlington National Cemetery. Since that time, unknown soldiers from subsequent conflicts have been buried there and ceremonies have been held each Nov. 11 to honor and remember American veterans who fought and died in all wars.

Congress eventually voted to make Armistice Day a legal holiday in 1938, just one year before the official beginning of what Winston Churchill labeled the "unnecessary war," because he said it could have easily been stopped before it expanded. Nine years after the end of World War II, President Dwight D. Eisenhower signed a bill that changed the holiday's name to Veterans Day.

Here, we are fortunate to have the Grosse Pointe War Memorial, whose mission includes honoring area men and women who have served the United States during the two World Wars, the Korean War, the Vietnam War and the Persian Gulf War. On the walls inside the entrance are plaques listing the names of those who served. In addition, the War Memorial has embarked on its "Living Legacy Project," a living history exhibit honoring local veterans. The next time you visit the War Memorial, take a look at the plaques.

Chances are you will recognize many of the names listed there. Some of them are your neighbors, friends and relatives. Other names listed are no longer with us, but many of their families are. On Saturday, or any day, really, take time to thank the veterans and their families for the fruits of peace and liberty we enjoy today.

Lions' answer is within

The writing was on the wall for Bobby Ross, who resigned Monday as head coach of the Detroit Lions.

Ross, who has always been an emotional man, was not distressed merely by the Lions' pathetic 23-8 loss Sunday to the Miami Dolphins. Ross clearly felt he had tried every coaching trick in the book and none of them worked with the Lions.

Although the Lions still have a winning record at 5-4, the signs point to the team's being more like the one that lost on Sunday than the one that won at Tampa Bay three weeks ago.

Although most of the players were taken aback by Ross' abrupt departure, they all said they respected his decision and admired him as a person and as a coach.

The task of turning things around and leading the Lions to the playoffs falls to a familiar face to Michiganians — Gary Moeller.

Moeller, the former Michigan head coach, has served as the Lions linebackers coach since 1997.

He has paid for his mistake and now has the opportunity he has been looking for, to be a head coach again.

Moeller, 59, said he would not make too many changes right now since the Lions are in the middle of the season.

Lions owner William Clay Ford gave Moeller a three-year deal and "carte blanche" to do whatever he sees fit.

And Moeller sees the situation as the glass half-full.

"I don't think this team needs to be resurrected in a lot of ways," Moeller said. "I just think we've got to continue on and regain our focus."

In the end, though, it really doesn't matter who answers to the title of head coach. All that matters is how the players respond to the situation at hand. The team is still in the hunt for a playoff berth. Whether they achieve that depends on the performance of the guys on the field.

"Mo is the coach now and we have to get going in a hurry," said linebacker Stephen Boyd. "Forget about the coaching change. Players play and motivation has to come from within."

Within is where all the Lions players should be looking this Sunday against Atlanta instead of over at the sideline at their new coach.

To the Editor:

My house has had at least two breaking and enterings since we moved here five years ago. Considering that the taxes are high and Grosse Pointe is supposedly a safe community this surprises me.

Please print an article on the importance of Neighborhood Watch.

I would like my breaking and entries entered in the paper asking if anyone has been seen on my premises. Please contact Grosse Pointe Park police for the record.

A monopoly

To the Editor:

Since the inception of Grosse Pointe Cable in Grosse Pointe Woods, a cable television monopoly has existed in the city. With the takeover of Grosse Pointe Cable by Comcast, the same situation still persists.

This is in stark contrast to our neighboring cities of St. Clair Shores and Grosse Pointe Shores, where the residents have a choice of either Comcast or Americast. Their rates for cable television are consequently lower than ours for the same service and, in addition, senior citizens receive a discount.

This results in a senior citizen paying approximately $10 less per month in St. Clair Shores for basically the same service.

In my opinion, it is the obligation of the elected officials of the city of Grosse Pointe Woods to see that the need of the residents is properly served. This means that competition should be allowed and encouraged in our community to eliminate the current Comcast Cable monopoly.

I do not see why antitrust laws do not apply in local situations as they do with large national monopolies. Satellite dishes are not a satisfactory alternative for all residents. To avoid competition, Comcast even places advertisements on their cable purporting direct TV dishes are inferior to their services.

Telecommunications include telephones as well as TV cable. The same laws should apply equally to cable companies.

When Grosse Pointe Woods entered into a contract with Grosse Pointe Cable and the franchise was transferred to Comcast, all rights and privileges should not have automatically gone to Comcast Cable and the rights of the community abolished. Comcast should not have been given carte blanche to have the sole right in setting fees and also receive the right to avoid competition in our community.

I would appreciate having this matter addressed and corrective action taken on behalf of the citizens of our community.

Minds future

To the Editor:

I am writing in response to a letter printed in the Oct. 26 issue of the Grosse Pointe News, "Not Gore," as well as the column by Dr. Bloom from the same date, "Is Gore 'in balance?'"

Both the letter and the column speak about the environment and Vice President Gore's plans to protect it. The startling aspect — to me — of both the letter and the column is that the authors of both pieces seem to feel that the environment is not in need of protection.

Dr. Bloom feels that our great-grandchildren can display adaptability and overcome whatever environmental problems they may inherit. It strikes me as selfish to saddle our great-grandchildren with the burdens of our folly. What about

Fast forward

Gen X-ers — people who are younger than I am — are fast. They want what they want instantly. Long-term, for them, is waiting until after lunch.

They're living fast.

I remember that my mother used to tell me I was living too fast, too.

Gen-Xers eat fast food. They drive fast, in the fast lane. They like music that's loud and fast-paced. They like velcro closures, self-cleaning ovens and instamatic cameras; they favor speed dialing and instant Internet connections. They insist on jet travel, quickie photo developing, one-hour dry cleaning service, oil-changes-while-U-wait, drive-through banking and shopping online.

Although I was born a year or six too early, I have always considered myself a Baby Boomer. We number 77 million, the largest generation in the history of the United States. We comprise 29 percent of the total population and we have always demanded attention — from the government, from manufacturers and service providers, from educational institutions, and from big businesses like the automotive industry, the real estate market, and now the Social Security Administration.

We were raised by Depression Era/World War II Era parents who saved string and bacon fat and tin cans; who stretched, made do and repaired old stuff; who claimed they invented the concepts of recycling and taking turns and sharing and doubling up.

My parents had a savings account and a checking account. My dad saved his money and then paid cash for everything he purchased, except our house. He reconciled his checking account every month and if it didn't balance, he said it was most certainly his fault, because back then, banks never goofed up. He spent an evening back-tracking through the check register until he found his error.

We Boomers served as our Depression Era parents' wake-up calls. The economy thrived partly because of our sheer numbers. We needed everything in great quantities. Local municipalities built schools for us; the government created health and educational and retirement plans for us; businesses expanded and catered to our unquenchable thirst for toys and clothes and games and bicycles and cars and houses and vacations and time-saving doo dads.

The most common Boomer metaphor compares us to a bulge inside a snake. Baby Boomers are like a big fat rat that is being swallowed by a python. Through the decades, we have slowly been digested.

We Boomers are about to make our final fuss — this time about Social Security benefits and the outrageously high cost of funerals. In a few more decades we will have passed completely through the snake, finally digested and assimilated.

Gen X-ers are following us through the snake. Quickly.

Roughly defined as people born in the 60s and early 70s, Gen X-ers grew up with Sesame Street, the Brady Bunch, Barbie and Ken, push-button Princess phones, MasterCards, microwaved dinners, frequent flyer miles, cheap disposable toys and clothes, ATM machines, MTV, fast and fattening foods, computers, a booming economy and a shrinking globe.

Their most distinguishing characteristic is that they move fast.

They dash from place to place. They communicate instantly. They get their news via sound bites and video clips. They hold full-time high-profile jobs and raise families while they work out on treadmills, surf the net, travel, volunteer, in-line skate, talk on their cell phones and buy expensive stuff by the minivan-load. All at the same time. With credit cards.

I helped a Gen X-er move last week. I peeked into the refrigerator at her new place — 12 cubic feet of cold space devoted to a bottle of white wine and the label from a box of Godiva chocolates.

She doesn't cook. She orders in, eats out or microwaves.

Another Gen X-er I know thinks the automatic window on the driver's side of my car rolls down too slowly.

"It must take you forever to do your banking at the drive-in window," she says.

She should try doing her banking between 9 a.m. and 3 p.m. Monday through Friday, after standing in the slowest-moving line in the actual lobby of the bank, for Pete's sake.

Instead of going to the web, she should try looking up some obscure bit of information by driving to the local library between the hours of 10 a.m. and 9 p.m. Monday through Saturday, parking the car, flipping through the card catalog, searching for the appropriate books, finding the chapters and pages with the details she needs, then checking the books out and driving home with them. She'd also have to take notes — by hand — and remember to return the books to the library on time.

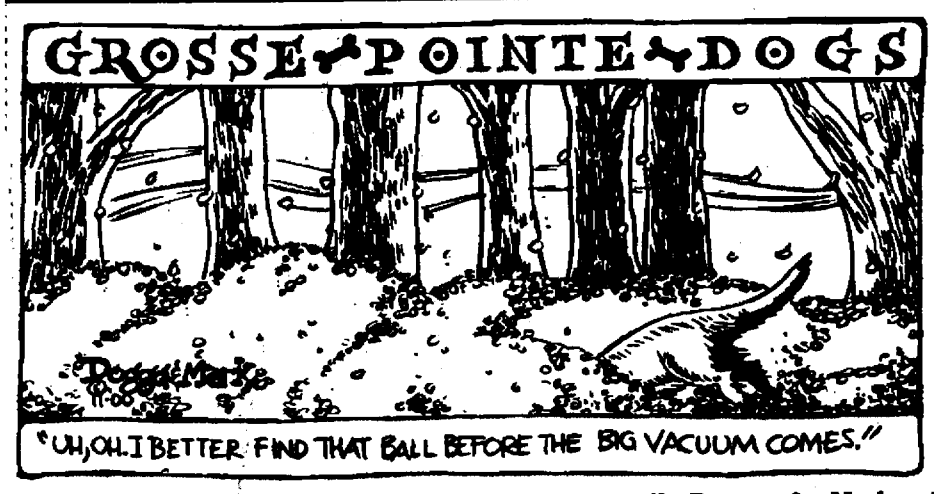

She should try getting out of her chair, walking across the room to the TV set and manually turning a dial to one of the four or five available channels before settling back into her chair.

I'm finally slowing down, like my mother wanted me to. I drive at a moderate speed; often I walk. I forget to pick up my dry cleaning sometimes for weeks and weeks. I like big fat family-saga novels that take a month to read; shoes that lace; homemade soup that simmers on the back burner for a couple of hours; and perennial flowers. I iron.

But don't ask me to give up my microwave, my e-mail or ATM machines. I'm not that old, yet.

Two days after the election

Writing this two days before the election, I will try to predict who will win and by how much.

The media have been full of polls, pols and animated discussions. I have tried to select the most discerning essays and have lighted upon one in the New York Times by liberal pundit Frank Rich, and another from the Washington Post by a more conservative journalist, Charles Krauthammer. Both of these deserve to be taken seriously, and I will quote from each and comment accordingly.

I am struck by the liberal columnist, Rich. He writes:

"Whatever happens on Tuesday, the presidential race remains a contest over character.... Democrats are having fits that Mr. Bush, whom they see as a nincompoop, has a serious shot at winning. But the Texas governor's unexpected prowess cannot be attributed merely o the staggering ineptitude of Mr. Gore's candidacy."

He goes on to write, "Mr. Bush, who applies his selective memory equally to his personal history and the country's, may have actually caught the cultural wave of the moment. Love it or leave it, we just may be living in George W.'s America. It's a happy place for many people, including Mr. Bush, who has governed Texas only during prosperous times. Not only are the skies not cloudy all day, but fewer and fewer Americans remember what clouds look like.

"In George W.'s America, we are inured not only to high employment, low inflation and a high Dow, but also to a whole new faith in economic invulnerability. A company like Amazon need not turn a profit to be a great American success story, and, whatever Napster's fate, many believe that there will always be a free lunch."

In other words, if America elects George W., it is because we are in la-la land. He is said to work banker's hours, while Gore works 24/7s and lets us see the sweat. Rich goes on to describe Gore as a "hyperventilating fount of worst-case scenarios and details we don't want to bone up on, like Dingell-Norwood. He is the truly stupid one, for he has given George W. the opening to embody the contented America that his own administration helped to create, even as he has failed to weave all his endless policy details into an articulate message that might offer more than populist sloganeering as an alternative to don't-worry-be-happy. The vice president hasn't even been able to make his criticism of his opponent coherent. 'I have actually not questioned Gov. Bush's experience,' he lied to Jim Lehrer in his very first answer in the first debate...

"Mr. Bush, by contrast, has never backed away from his consistent critique of Mr. Gore — 'He seems guided by polls and focus groups that drain politics of its courage' — and the vice president's inability to give a direct, unequivocal answer to almost any question put to him made the accusation stick."

Rich goes on to say that "the courage of Mr. Bush's politics is not of greatest-generation caliber, but it befits his America. He calls it the courage to say and do nothing that might disturb the country during one of its longest running naps."

In contrast, Krauthammer said that the last time we had an "amiable dunce" for president (quote by Clark Clifford), he went on to 1) win the Cold War, and 2) launch the longest economic boom in American history. He points out that "official Washington and the mainstream media find it hard not to condescend to successful conservative politicians who do not quite share its vast learning. The liberal wise men find none of their brilliance and erudition in the conservative pol. They fail to understand how a person can hold beliefs so contrary to theirs and still retain any mental acuity."

He remembers that "Gerald Ford was considered thick. Eisenhower, whose syntax was so fractured it made George W. Bush sound like Clarence Darrow, was equally disdained by egghead Stevensonians. Even Franklin Roosevelt, before he became a liberal icon, was famously described by Oliver Wendell Holmes as a 'second-rate intellect, but a first-rate temperament.' Temperament matters. Roosevelt, Eisenhower and Reagan, together with Harry Truman, were the greatest presidents of the century. And Truman, too, the only president of the century with no college education, was disdained for unbearable lightness when he first acceded to the presidency.

"In a country with no inflation, no unemployment, record growth, a huge surplus and unparalleled dominance in the world, the incumbent party should win by 30 points. Given all these advantages, Gore might yet win. But Bush

Pointers for sainthood

Litigation attorneys have a rule that they never ask a question of a witness if they don't already know the answer. Ministers, however, have never had to be quite that careful.

Ben Burns

Last week, when the Rev. V. Bruce Rigdon of Grosse Pointe Memorial was beginning his sermon on All Saints' Sunday, he asked what he may have thought was a rhetorical question during the 9 a.m. service. "Do any of you know a saint?" Instantly two hands went up in the congregation.

The first belonged to Michel Pilorget, of the Park. Michel correctly pointed out that Christians by definition are sainted. Dr. Tom Singelyn, also of the Park, and sitting on the other side of the sanctuary, opted for a specific saint. He nominated Carol Marks, the granddaughter of former U.S. Sen. Homer Ferguson.

For more than a decade Carol has motor-scootered around the Grosse Pointes delivering cheer to the homes or hospital beds of ill parishioners as the Director of Pastoral Ministries at Memorial. She averages 15 visits a week and upwards of 1,000 miles a year visiting shut-ins, nursing homes, hospitals and families with concerns.

Carol, who has been described as "the lady with a 1,000 watt smile" is a one-woman wave of holistic medicine. She simply exudes good feelings. It was obvious that the congregation agreed with Singelyn because the nomination drew a big round of applause.

Cuban Clooney

On our recent U.S. Exchanges Cuban study trip, the group discovered that the only books you could buy in English in that totalitarian state are tour books. The government cranks out thousands of books, but they are primarily propaganda designed to preserve the state. The government also sells thousands of post cards featuring Fidel Castro and his lieutenants in the revolution.

One of our group, who will remain anonymous, after three days of viewing post card racks stocked with '60s military heroes, said, "Isn't it interesting that they have all these postcards with George Clooney on them? Several folks turned and looked at her and one asked if she was serious. "Sure," she said, pointing at the "Clooney" cards.

"That's Che Guevara," her questioner gently advised. But truth be told, Che did look like George Clooney or vice versa. Maybe Che didn't die in Bolivia after all. You be the judge.

By the by, Che's distant cousin Walter Guevara is a retired psychiatrist, who is my neighbor and lives in the City. Walter tells me that he and his cousin were supposed to go on a mountain climbing expedition in the '50s when Che sent word he would be otherwise detained. A few months later, the family got word that their now famous Argentinean cousin, whose image can be found all over Cuba, was involved in a revolution in Cuba.

Revolutionary Che Guevara or George Clooney? You decide.

Chernobyl? Is there any amount of adaptability that can overcome a poisoned environment?

Bloom suggests that if the ocean levels do rise as global warming causes the polar ice caps to melt, our great-grandchildren will have to move to higher ground. Meanwhile population increases and more people have to find a way to live on less usable land — after abandoning many of the United States' largest cities, just as people around the world will have to abandon their coastal metropolises.

How adaptable are the great-grandchildren of the Netherlands' current population?

Gore's "Kampf" for the environment is far more worthy than the plan to which one letter writer compares it; the comparison of a plan to help make the Earth habitable for generations unborn to one man's plan to create a European empire ruled by a master race is offensive.

The simple fact of fossil fuels is this; they exist only in finite quantities. Another fact is that the burning of fossil fuels releases emissions, which harm Earth's air, water and soil — and inhabitants.

Bearing these factors in mind, does it make sense to keep trying to use fossil fuels until they run out? Eventually, it will become extremely impractical — Republicans: it will cost too many dollars — to harvest more fossil fuels, and then what will we do? Will our great-grandchildren be ready with an instant solution? Will they be able to make our air breathable, our soil productive, our much-loved automobiles run?

Yes, automobiles are dear to Detroit, but how important are internal combustion engines to automobiles? Has anyone considered the alternatives? Even an engine that burns clean, biomass-derived fuel is a step toward a cleaner environment, but what about taking the matter one step further? Fuel cells are real and if Detroit wants to remain the world capital of the automotive industry, it will have to invest in research and development to turn The Motor City into "The Hydrogen City."

Somebody will develop the technology of the future, soon, and if Republicans are interested in American prosperity in the future, not just the short-term benefits (whatever they may be) of importing absurd amounts of pollutants (fossil fuels) to the United States, they will realize that Detroit can just as easily be the leader of technology development as Stuttgart or Tokyo can.

I am 19 years old and grateful to no end for the sacrifices my grandparents and great-grandparents made to create the wonderful 20th century in which I was born.

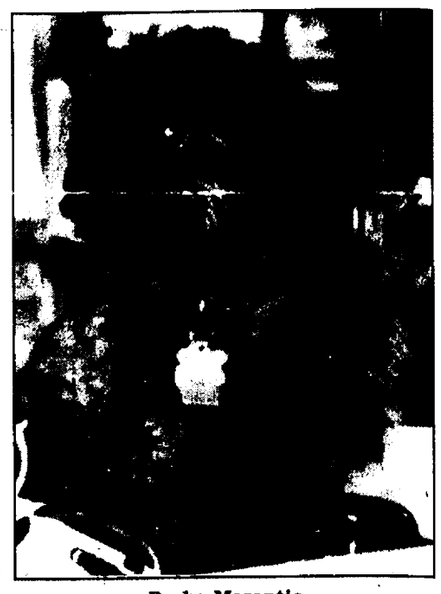

I intend to do everything I can, including casting a vote for Gore, to make the 21st century one where my grandchildren and great-grandchildren are able to live on this beautiful Earth — comfortably, happily and prosperously.

Pasha Marantic

Pasha Marantic

Pasha's occupation: Volunteer, Neighborhood Club Thrift Shop
Residence: City of Grosse Pointe
Age: 11 years old
Type of Pointer: Shih Tzu
Family: Pasha lives with Carol and Bob Claim to fame: Pasha accompanies her owner three to four days a week to the thrift shop where she works as the official greeter to customers. Her good nature and wagging tail brings smiles to all who have come to rely on her being a part of their shopping experience.
Favorite pastime: Watching the evening news and playing with her cousins, Shorty and Possum
Favorite Pointe: Of course, The Neighborhood Club Thrift Shop
FYI: The Shih Tzu originated in the country of Tibet where they were used as gifts to the Chinese. The breed was developed by mixing the Lhaso Apso and Pekingese breeds. The Shih Tzu stands an average of 11 inches at the shoulder and its coat comes in a multitude of colors. Grooming is above average. This breed is great for people who live in small places and is a great companion. (Pets4you.com)

Honored

To the Editor:

A heartfelt thank you to everyone involved in naming the North High Stadium the Thomas A. Gauerke Field. Special thanks to the Grosse Pointe Athletic Boosters Board of Directors who initiated the idea of naming the field in my honor and to the board of education for their approval.

The North High administrators and the athletic boosters planned a very special day for the event that included a dinner prior to the Friday night game with East Detroit High, a half-time dedication ceremony and a coffee following the game.

Everything was perfect as North won the game and qualified for the state playoffs. Even Mother Nature cooperated by providing a balmy October evening.

Special thanks to North's principal, Caryn Wells; board of education trustee, Joe Brennan; and North's athletic boosters president, Dan Koerber for their kind comments during the ceremony.

I would also like to thank board members Linda Farmer and Joan Dindoffer, superintendent Suzanne Klein, athletic booster past president John Staperfenne and North's cheerleaders and pep band for their part in the ceremony.

Naming North High's field in my name is an honor that my family and I will always cherish. The festivities of the day were truly appreciated and will never be forgotten.

ashore, medical supplies, food and ammunition were brought in and the wounded had to be evacuated. The brigades also ran combat patrols to the outskirts of the neutralized area and acted as adviser to the theater and army commanders in amphibian matters and maintained separate radio communications among all of the scattered elements of the brigade.

After training in Monterey, Calif., Paquette's unit shipped out of San Francisco in January 1944 aboard the Sea Flasher. "It was very secretive," he said. "They didn't tell us where we were going, only that we should pack summer and winter clothing." After a stop in New Caledonia due to engine trouble, Paquette's outfit continued to New Guinea to Goodenough Island, where they assembled their LCM boats. LCMs were 56-foot, steel hull boats that carried 60 to 70 troops. They had a four-man crew and were also equipped with two sets of twin 50-caliber machine guns.

"We carried different troops for assault landings, including infantry, cavalry and Australian troops," Paquette said.

In a typical landing, Paquette said, his regiment would hit the beach once the Navy had finished shelling and the Air Corps were done strafing the area.

"We tried to keep the Japanese pinned down before the troops hit the beach," he said. "Then we would pull back as the troops pulled in, in their LCIs (Landing Craft Infantry) and LSDs (Landing Ship Dock). The troop carriers would pull back, but we'd stay there. We used our own LCM not only for the landings but to move our shore battalion, our equipment and everything we would need to survive by ourselves."

Beginning Feb. 2[illegible] 1944, Paquette's unit embarked on missions that would last almost two years without any time off. He volunteered to serve as an engineer aboard a gunboat that was under the direct command of Col. Oliver Van Duberg.

Paquette recalls his 20th birthday, May 1, 1945, the beginning of the Borneo campaign:

"Our ship was laying off the island of Tarakan, Borneo. At 07[illegible] hours the Naval bombardment began, followed by air strikes. Smoke from blazing oil tanks and exploding ammunition dumps covered the beach proper. While the LSD was filling its well with water and its rear ramp down so we could leave the ship, I head a loud bang. Something had hit the side of our ship. I yelled up to a sailor starting on the ship's deck, 'What the hell hit the ship?' The sailor yelled back, 'We are lucky bastards, that was a Jap torpedo that hit us, but it was a dud.' We all looked at one another and just smiled.

"We were ready to leave the ship when Pappy Kruezburger, who was in charge of the gunboat, called my name saying, 'Paquette, today is your birthday. Take these cigars and pass them out to our crew. I want everyone to be smoking these cigars when we hit the beach today. That's my birthday gift to you. Make sure you are smoking it when we go into the beach.' I said, 'thanks, Pappy, for the gift, but what did you think of my birthday gift from God?' Everyone on board just looked at me and nodded their heads.

As we headed toward the beach leading the first wave of LCMs, we were all smoking cigars. This is how the first landing of the Borneo campaign started, on my 20th birthday."

Following the Tarakan invasion, Paquette's regiment prepared for the Brunei invasion. The goal in each of these landings was to drive out the Japanese, take control of the oil fields and rubber plants there and establish air and naval bases for future attacks on the Japanese.

"On June 10, 1945, we received orders for our gunboat to escort an LCT (Landing Craft Tank) to the beach at Brunei Bay. We had orders not to fire unless were we fired upon. We both headed toward the beach. Our boats were about 50 feet apart.

"When we got to the beach, everyone was at their guns waiting for the action we expected from the Japs. Nothing happened. We all looked at the LCT to see what the hell was going on. Then it happened. The LCT lowered its ramp and men came walking onto the beach. I looked and couldn't believe what I was seeing. There were high-ranking Army officers, and in the middle of them, smoking his pipe, was Gen. McArthur. Without thinking, I said so everyone could hear, 'The easiest things to replace over here are young men with muscle. The one thing you can't replace in a hundred years is the brain of Gen McArthur.' Those officers just looked over and smiled. Without a word, they went back into the LCT. I did not believe then or do I today that Gen. McArthur should have been out there on that beach with Japs still in the area."

Borneo was important because it turned out to be the last campaign of World War II. Another campaign was scheduled — the invasion of Japan — with landings planned for Oct. 27, Nov. 1, Nov. 4, 1945, and a final landing on March 1, 1946, in the Tokyo-Yokohama region.

After the Borneo campaign, Paquette went to the Philippines before returning back to the United States. He went to Camp McCoy, Wis., to be discharged and on Jan. 12, 1946, was aboard a train back to Detroit. On the trip home Paquette reflected on the past two years and everything he had seen and experienced in the southwest Pacific.

"As I sat on the train from Camp McCoy remembering the changes that took place with me, I broke out into a cold sweat," he said. "I realized that I would have to stop and think every time anything happened to me, to make sure I never reacted first and thought about it later."

Two years outside of civilization had an effect on Paquette and other troops in the region.

"All we saw were Japanese and jungles," he said. "Living over there, you became a savage. We never took prisoners because we knew that Japanese never did. Surrender was beneath them. We acted the way we did because we didn't expect to come home."

When he returned to Detroit, Paquette was all set to attend Wayne University to study law and perhaps go into politics. "I thought to myself, 'I just spent two years in the jungle; I'm going to relax,'" he said. "I was in my middle 40s before I went back to school."

Paquette was a speed skater and spent the next couple years in competitions around the state and in Chicago. He met and married his wife, Audrey, in 1948. "She made a mistake and said yes," he joked.

Paquette went to work for Parke-Davis and later for Saratoga Hospital and St. John Hospital. He and his wife have five daughters, 11 grandchildren and three great-grandchildren.

"At my granddaughter's wedding I danced with four generations of my family," he said.

Paquette remains active; he still enjoys boating and skating.

He has stayed in touch with surviving members of his outfit, attending reunions. Last September, he was in Seattle along with about 50 other members of the 593rd EB&SR, 3rd ESB for the group's 14 reunion. "There are fewer of us each time," he said. "It's hard learning that someone has passed away or is too sick too attend, but I enjoy seeing the ones who make it and also seeing the newer LCMs, which are a bit bigger than the ones we served aboard."

Since publishing "Our Business Is Beachheads," Paquette has continued to write about his own experiences and reflections, as well as those of his regiment, which he hopes to include in a future edition of his book. "I think it's important for people to know not just what we did but also how we felt," he said. "Since I never expected to come home, every day I'm here is a bonus day. I get up every morning and feel good."

Saturday is Veteran's Day, a time to remember people like Ernest Paquette, who fought for this country, enabling all of us to enjoy bonus days.

If you are interested in obtaining a copy of "Our Business Is Beachheads," you can contact Ernest Paquette at: 1870 Newcastle, Grosse Pointe Woods, MI 48236.

With the right united as it has not been since Reagan and the left fractured by Nader's Green insurgency, the gods have lined things up rather evenly. Gore has peace and prosperity. Bush has a congenial personality, a reformist agenda and ideological cohesion."

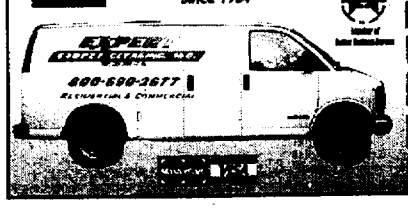

I differ slightly with Krauthammer, who predicts Bush 50 percent, Gore 47, Nader 2. Bloom says Bush 49, Gore 46, Nader 5. I agree with Krauthammer's prediction of Bush by 10 electoral votes 274-264.

Here's To
Of Living

If you're a senior facing a decision about where you will live or if you are making this decision for a loved one — you know it isn't easy. It means giving up what's familiar, it means starting anew, it means change.

That's why St. John Senior Community is focused on enriching the lives of our residents. Here, residents can enjoy gardens, aviaries, aquariums as well as time with our two lively dogs. We encourage our residents to talk to us about what will make them most comfortable...what will make them feel at home. Chances are that we've already found a way to accommodate their requests.

Our residents also take comfort in knowing that St. John Senior Community provides living options and skilled staff for varying degrees of independence. That means should our residents lives change, their home doesn't have to.

Rules for Bidders

1. Bids accepted via telephone and Internet. All bids must be received by 5:00 p.m. ET, Monday, November 13, 2000. Telephone bids will be updated on a regular basis. All bids are taken with a Visa/MasterCard number and must have a daytime telephone number for verification. Multiple bids accepted and more than one bid may be submitted on any item. Sealed bids will be accepted until 4:30 p.m. Monday, November 13, 2000, and will be opened after the auction closes at 5:00 p.m. ET.
2. All bids are binding and must be made in whole dollar increments. Minimum bid increases are in effect the entire auction.

Current Bid	Minimum Increase
$ 1 - $100	$ 5
$ 101 - $500	$10
$ 501 - $1,000	$25
$1,000 - above	$50

3. Bidders must be 18 years of age or older.
4. Winning bidders will be contacted by November 16, 2000, by telephone. All items will be available for pickup at CHILDREN'S HOME OF DETROIT (CHD), 900 Cook Road, Grosse Pointe Woods, Mich. Individual arrangements for delivery of auction item(s) will be made with the winning bidder. Shipping and handling charges are the responsibility of bidder. Bidders are required to make payment when notified of acceptance of final bid. If payment and pickup are not made by 11/27/00, item(s) will be awarded to next highest bidder. Title to item(s) will transfer at the time bidder makes payment.
5. Cash, check, money order, Visa and MasterCard accepted. CHD reserves the right to clear checks or cards before releasing item(s).
6. All items, excluding gift certificates, are subject to Mich. sales tax of 6%. Sales tax will be added to winning bid. Sales tax will be collected by CHD and remitted to the State of Michigan.
7. In the event of a tie, bidders will be notified and may submit a higher bid immediately. The item will then go to the highest bidder. This process may be repeated if necessary.
8. Items are not returnable or exchangeable. A portion of your bid may be tax deductible. Please enjoy the auction items in the spirit in which they were given.
9. All services must be used within the time limits stated or by November 1, 2001.
10. Insulate your home to stay healthy and warm

Prime Time

By Marian Trainor

This year, fall's farewell has been a spectacular display of gold and red leaves, highlighted by the line of rays of the sun. It's been a beautiful presentation, a gift much appreciated after the damp, dreary days that preceded its appearance.

For some it meant one more opportunity to enjoy a game of golf, a walk through the neighborhoods to admire the rich bronze-tinted leaves or a color tour up north.

For the more practical it was an opportunity to batten down the hatches and prepare for the too-swift departure of Indian summer.

Soon the fall winds will grow stronger, the bright sun duller, and winter's chill will have to be dealt with.

This means a few hints on how to keep the cold on the outside and the heat on the inside are in order.

There is more than comfort at stake — money is involved. Energy prices are high.

We just cannot afford, as parents, not to remind our children to close the door after themselves to keep the heat inside.

The Community Services Administration reminds us that older Americans spend more than 30 percent of their total income on energy. It rises to 45 percent for low-income persons.

Older people have been affected more than others by price increases.

The health of some older people depends on comfortable temperatures in their homes. Furthermore, they spend more time in their homes than younger adults. Often their homes are harder to heat because when those homes were built, energy was plentiful and cheap.

There wasn't the concern for insulation that there is today.

However, the main reason that retired people have been hit harder for rising fuel costs is that they were already spending a large share of their incomes on fuel and utilities when prices began escalating.

For many older Americans heating and utility bills have become the dominant item in their budgets.

Consider these points. If you are in doubt about whether or not your home is adequately insulated make a survey of the house. How about the weather-stripping around the windows, doors and joints. Weather-stripping can bring big returns.

When you are doing the evaluation choose a cold, windy day.

Test for a draft around the windows and doors and under the doors and see if there's a draft or beam of light coming through the crack.

A lighted candle can be used for checking leaks. Place it near suspected leak points. Where the smoke deflects, cold air is leaking into the house. Check for drafts where pipes go through floors, walls and ceiling.

Attic leakage can be found by feeling the drafts along the edge of the attic door. If cold air is coming down the stairs, there must be air leaks in the door or ceilings.

Place the palm of your hand against the ceilings. Then against the floors. If they are cold, this is a sign of heat loss.

Correcting these areas of heat loss is not expensive. Caulking and weather-stripping are the most effective improvements that can be made to any home that needs them.

As much as one-fourth of the heat wasted is due to cracks, gaps and spaces any reasonably adept do-it-yourself person can plug.

Simple instructions for caulking, weather-stripping and insulation are available in the U.S. Department of Housing and Development booklet, "Up the Chimney." It may be ordered through the U.S. government office, Washington, D.C.

You may find that your home requires improvements involving some investments of funds. The higher fuel and utility costs rise, the more you can save from increased investment in energy conservation and improvements.

You will get rapid return at today's and tomorrow's fuel prices.

The National Bureau of Standards has said that investment in 6 inches of attic floor insulation for a home that has no ceiling insulation will be returned by fuel savings within one year in a region of relatively mild winters.

Another method for saving heat is to lower the thermostat — that has limitations.

Medical opinions generally agree that older persons can live at 70 degrees Fahrenheit without harm to health or danger of hypothermia. Current opinion seems to be that most older persons can adjust gradually to temperatures as low as 68 degrees without harm to their health. The acclimation should take place gradually by lowering thermostats one or two degrees a week over a period of 30 days.

Just setting the temperature back a few degrees will save a surprising amount of energy. Lowering temperatures at night is also a great fuel saver.

Turning the thermostat down 5 or 10 degrees before going to bed can mean a savings of 7 to 15 percent of your bill.

Don't overdo it. The National Institute on Aging warns that even a mild cold can create serious problems for some older people. Persons with impaired circulation or specific disease of veins and arteries should be wary of hypothermia.

Veterans Club to hold monthly meeting

The Grosse Pointe War Memorial Veterans Club will hold its next monthly meeting on Thursday, Nov. 9, at 7:30 p.m. at the Grosse Pointe War Memorial, 32 Lakeshore in Grosse Pointe Farms. Guests are welcome.

Obituaries

Allen A. Backman

Grosse Pointe Farms resident Allen A. Backman died Sunday, Nov. 5, 2000. He was 46.

Mr. Backman was born in the City of Grosse Pointe and was a graduate of Grosse Pointe South High School and Western Michigan University. He was first vice president of First Federal of Michigan.

"Allen's irreverent sense of humor was appreciated and will be remembered by all," said his brother, Tim. "He loved sports and thrived on any and all types of competition. It just seems impossible that someone with his zest, nerve, spirit and drive could lose this last fight."

Mr. Backman is survived by his wife, Carole; three sons, Kevin, Eric and Scott; his mother, Patricia; three sisters, Susan Kenyon, Barbara Kozicki and Julie Lattimore; and four brothers, Tim, Michael, Andrew and David. He was predeceased by his father, Ignatius; and a sister, Karen Trevillian.

A funeral Mass for Mr. Backman was celebrated Wednesday, Nov. 8, at St. Clare of Montefalco Catholic Church.

Florence Ball

Former Grosse Pointe Farms resident Florence Ball (nee Clark), of Port Huron, died Saturday, Nov. 4, 2000.

Mrs. Ball was born in Greenock Township, Ontario, on Sept. 20, 1907. She came to Detroit in 1928 to be with her sister who was a nurse. She married her husband, Benjamin, in 1929 and the couple moved to Grosse Pointe Farms in 1950. They thoroughly enjoyed the Pointes and their walks along the lake.

Mrs. Ball served the World War II effort by degreasing airplane parts for Continental Motors. After the war, she spent 22 years at Hudson's in downtown Detroit.

Mrs. Ball was a member of the First Presbyterian Church in Detroit where she served as trustee and was head of the Women's Association. After the church closed, she attended services at Grosse Pointe Memorial Church and Christ Church Grosse Pointe.

Mrs. Ball is remembered for being a gracious hostess, a superb cook and her outstanding sense of adventure. She and her husband made several trips to Europe and to Yugoslavia while it was under Communist rule.

Mrs. Ball is survived by two daughters, Elizabeth Schultz of San Francisco and Barbara (Robert) Fochtman of Port Huron; and two granddaughters, Nancy (Daniel) Nieser of Allen, Texas, and Karen (Mark) Hein of Colorado Springs. She was predeceased by her husband, Benjamin, in 1986.

A funeral service for Mrs. Ball will be held Thursday, Nov. 9, at A.H. Peters Funeral Home in Grosse Pointe Woods at 1 p.m. The Rev. Amy Terhune, associate pastor of First United Methodist Church in Port Huron will officiate.

Eleanor B. Climie

Eleanor B. Climie of Grosse Pointe Woods died Friday, Nov. 3, 2000, at St. Joseph Hospital in Clinton Township. She was 88.

Mrs. Climie was born March 23, 1912 in Detroit, the daughter of the late Adam and the late Blanche Andrysiak.

Mrs. Climie was a housewife who devoted most of her time to her house and yard. Her daughters and family will remember her for her love and devotion and the annual Christmas brunch she hosted at her home.

Survivors include four daughters, Jacqueline (Louis) Marcetti of Sterling Heights, Marlene (David) Ruyle of St. Clair Shores, Beverly (Daniel) Temrowski of Warren and Christine (Terry) Jackson of Tennessee; a sister, Geraldine Massie; a brother, Edward Andrysiak; 15 grandchildren; 22 great-grandchildren; and two great-great-grandchildren.

A funeral Mass for Mrs. Climie was celebrated Wednesday, Nov. 8, at St. Clement Catholic Church in Center Line. The Rev. John Hall officiated. Interment is at St. Clement Cemetery. Funeral arrangements were handled by D.S. Temrowski & Sons Funeral Home in Warren.

Ledas Judy Livingston

Ledas Judy Livingston

City of Grosse Pointe resident Ledas Judy Livingston died of natural causes at Bon Secours Hospital on Monday, Oct. 30, 2000. She was 76.

Mrs. Livingston was born in Little Rock, Ark., the daughter of the late Ledas Aubrey and the late Frederick Victor Bott. She was a graduate of Highland Park High School, earned a bachelor's degree in psychology from the University of Michigan and worked in advertising for a metro Detroit firm. Later, she received her teaching certificate from Wayne State University and became a public school elementary teacher. She taught for 17 years in various elementary schools, including Wilde Elementary School in the Warren Consolidated School District, and retired in the mid-1980s.

Mrs. Livingston was a 50-year member of Alpha Chi Omega sorority, was a docent at the Detroit Institute of Arts and was a volunteer at the Grosse Pointe War Memorial. She was a member of the American Association of University Women and Beyond Parish Ministries at Christ Church Grosse Pointe. She enjoyed bridge, tennis, golf and travel.

Survivors include two daughters, Barbara Ledas (Steven) Quart of Bloomfield Hills and Carol Ann (Keith W.) Douglas of Chapel Hill, N.C.; and four grandchildren, Matt, Kathryn, Grant and Allison. She was predeceased by her husband, James John, in 1972.

A funeral service was held Friday, Nov. 3, at Verheyden Funeral Home. Interment is at Woodlawn Cemetery in Detroit.

Memorial gifts may be sent to the Detroit Institute of Arts or to the charity of choice.

Marianne Y. Majewski

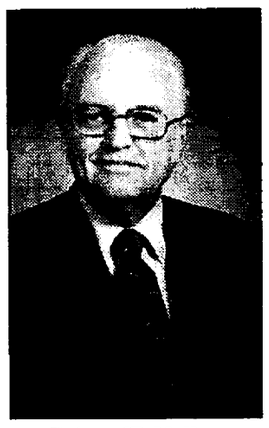

Grosse Pointe Woods resident Marianne Y. Majewski died Friday, Oct. 13, 2000. She was 74.

Mrs. Majewski was born in Chicago and was a 1946 graduate of DePaul University in Chicago. She received her teaching certification from Wayne State University and became an elementary teacher in the Detroit Public Schools for more than 30 years.

Mrs. Majewski was a former president of the Sigma chapter of Alpha Delta Kappa and was a member of the Grosse Pointe Symphony Women's Association and the Immaculata Alumnae Association. She enjoyed classical piano.

Mrs. Majewski is survived by her husband, Arthur. She was predeceased by her son, Mark.

A funeral Mass for Mrs. Majewski was celebrated on Tuesday, Oct. 17 at St. Joan of Arc Catholic Church in St. Clair Shores. Interment is at Resurrection Cemetery in Clinton Township. Funeral arrangements were handled by A.H. Peters Funeral Home in Grosse Pointe Woods.

Robert W. Molloy

Robert W. Molloy

Former Grosse Pointe Park and Grosse Pointe Woods resident Robert W. Molloy, of Waterford, died of heart failure on Saturday, Oct. 28, 2000. He was 87.

Mr. Molloy was born in Grand Rapids where he practiced law after graduating from the University of Michigan Law School in 1937. From 1941 to 1954, he was a special agent for the Federal Bureau of Investigation in New York City, Washington, D.C., and Detroit. One of his most notable occurrences with the FBI was taking the call that Pearl Harbor had been bombed and having to inform the president. After resigning from the FBI in 1954, he was deputy general counsel for the Fruehauf Trailer Corp. until his retirement in 1977.

Mr. Molloy is survived by two daughters, Kathleen (Michael) Sandler of West Bloomfield and Patricia (Michael T.) Matway of Clinton Township; a son, William (Kathryne) of Rochester Hills; 10 grandchildren; five step-grandchildren; and three great-grandchildren. He was predeceased by his wife, Maureen E.

A memorial service for Mr. Molloy will be held Saturday, Nov. 11, at 11 a.m. at St. Paul of Tarsus Catholic Church in Clinton Township. Interment will be at St. Paul Columbarium.

Memorial gifts may be sent to the Alzheimer's Association.

Donald P. O'Keefe

Donald P. O'Keefe

St. Clair Shores resident Donald P. O'Keefe died Friday, Nov. 3, 2000, at St. John Hospital and Medical Center. He was 71.

Mr. O'Keefe grew up in Grosse Pointe Park and graduated from De La Salle High School in 1947. He received his degree in accounting from the University of Detroit in 1951 and enjoyed a successful career as a stockbroker.

Mr. O'Keefe was a volunteer for Meals on Wheels and St. John Hospital and Medical Center; coached Grosse Pointe Park Little League for 10 years and was a past president of the Grosse Pointe South High School Dad's Club. He enjoyed fishing, bridge, gardening and was a dedicated University of Michigan football fan and was a devoted family man.

Mr. O'Keefe is survived by his wife, Mary; two daughters, Kathleen (Tom) McClanaghan and Eileen Hedges; five sons, Kurt (Donna), Eric (Leslie Graves), Mark (Joy), Karl (Carolyn) and Paul; two sisters, Patricia Rauss and Katie (Joe) Littman; two brothers, Brian (Rose Ann) and Robert (Lucille); and 16 grandchildren.

A memorial Mass for Mr. O'Keefe will be celebrated on Saturday, Nov. 11, at St. Joan of Arc Catholic Church in St. Clair Shores, followed by a celebration of his life at the Gourmet House in St. Clair Shores. His body was donated to the Wayne State University School of Medicine.

Memorial gifts may be sent to Pregnancy Aid, 18495 Mack, Detroit, MI 48236 or to Wayne State University, Rheumatology Division, c/o Dr. Felix Madrid, Hutzel Hospital, 4707 St. Antoine, Detroit, MI 48201.

James Samuel Owens

James Samuel Owens, of Venice, Fla. and formerly of Rotunda West, Fla., died Thursday, Oct. 26, 2000. He was 92.

Dr. Owens was a native of Lincoln County, Ky., having been born in McKinney, Ky. and was reared there and in Hustonville, Ky. He first came to the Sarasota area from Grosse Pointe Farms in 1975 for the winter season. He became a permanent resident in 1982.

Dr. Owens earned a bachelor's degree from the University of Tennessee at Chattanooga in 1928. He earned a master's degree in 1930 and a doctorate degree in 1932 from the University of Michigan where he was a university fellow.

Dr. Owens began his career as a research physicist at the Dow Chemical Co. in Midland. He was later a professor and executive director of the Ohio State University Research Foundation. He retired as vice president of Champion Spark Plug Co. in 1973.

President Harry Truman awarded Dr. Owens the Presidential Certificate of Merit for his work in the Office of Scientific Research and Development in 1948. He was also a distinguished life member, fellow and past president of the American Ceramic Society from which he received the Toledo Glass and Ceramic Award in 1969 and the Albert Victor Bleininger Memorial Award Medal in 1978.

Dr. Owens was a Kentucky Colonel. He was a fellow and past president of the Engineering Society of Detroit, past president of the Metropolitan Detroit Science and Engineering Fair and past president of the International Association of Torch Clubs. He was a member of the American Physical Society, the National Institute of Ceramic Engineers, Phi Beta Kappa, Sigma Xi, Senior Men's Club of Grosse Pointe, Rotonda Golf and Country Club, the Wildflower Golf and Country Club. He was also a member of the Community Presbyterian Church in Englewood, Fla. and was a 30-year member of Grosse Pointe Memorial Church where he was an elder, trustee, usher and committee chairman.

Survivors include his wife, Marion B.; two sons, James C. of Pittsford, N.Y. and Donald S. of Williamston; two granddaughters; four grandsons and five great-grandchildren.

A memorial service will be announced at a later date.

The Pishaliskis were longtime residents of Grosse Pointe Farms.

Mr. Pishalski is survived by his wife, Julia; two sons, Fred and Rick; four grandchildren, Michelle Resnick, Zak, Sasha and Matthew; and two great-grandchildren, Eva and Emily.

A memorial service for Mr. Pishalski was held Saturday, Oct. 28.

H. Ford Prince

H. Ford Prince

Grosse Pointe Park resident H. Ford Prince died Saturday, Nov. 4, 2000. He was 79.

Mr. Prince was born in Martin, Tenn., and was a graduate of Detroit's Eastern High School. He served in the 8th Division of the U.S. Army Air Corps during World War II and received the Bronze Star.

Mr. Prince was a licensed insurance counselor who represented New England Life Insurance Co.

In 1966, Mr. Prince created a non-profit organization, Effort, Inc., to create group homes for the developmentally disabled and ran two group homes for over 30 years. In 1999, he created the H. Ford Pierce Foundation so that his work could be carried on. He was also a 50-year member of the Goodfellows and a supporter of Leader Dogs for the Blind. He enjoyed woodworking, gardening and his great-grandchildren.

Mr. Prince is survived by a daughter, Linda L. (Gilbert) Finger; a son, William B., two sisters, Grace Preuett and Hazel Rankin; a brother, Charles; a two grandchildren, Kymberly (Steve) Kinsley and Geoffrey B. (Kellie) Finger; and two great-grandchildren, Dillan Ford Finger and Jacob

Dodge Durango is not ashamed to be a truck

By Richard Wright

The Dodge Durango gets a smaller engine for 2001, but you would never guess it. Last year's 5.2-liter V-8 is gone and the more efficient 4.7-liter V-8 is now standard on both two-wheel- and four-wheel-drive models. It gives the roomy mid-sized Durango plenty of punch.

With its massive but sleek styling, its extra roominess and third row of seats, the Durango would seem to be poised to take advantage of Ford Explorer's tire woes, but it is not clear yet how this is going to shake out. It is possible that those rollover figures for sport-utilities are going to hurt all the entries in this till-now hot market segment.

We liked the Durango, even though it makes no effort to hide its truck parentage. This is not a car dressed up to look like a truck. It is a truck; it looks like it, and it rides like it.

On the other hand, it holds a load like a truck; it can tow like a truck, and it can go off-road and do truck-like work — something you might not want to try with some of the more refined, car-like sport-utes.

Dodge's mid-sized sport-utility gets an electronic transfer case for its four-wheel drive system, plus a new instrument panel, center console, and upgraded stereo.

The Durango shares many parts with Dodge's Dakota, including the platform, but the Durango's frame is much stiffer than the pickup's.

Once you have climbed up into the Durango, you will be impressed with how big it is inside for such a compact vehicle. This is a sport-utility that can be stuffed with passengers, carry up to 88 cubic feet of cargo or tow 7,600 pounds without breathing hard. That's an "or" not an "and" because you can't carry all those people and all that cargo at once.

That rear-most seat folds into the floor and the middle seat is a folds-and-tumbles away, so a huge space can be created without having to remove any of the seats.

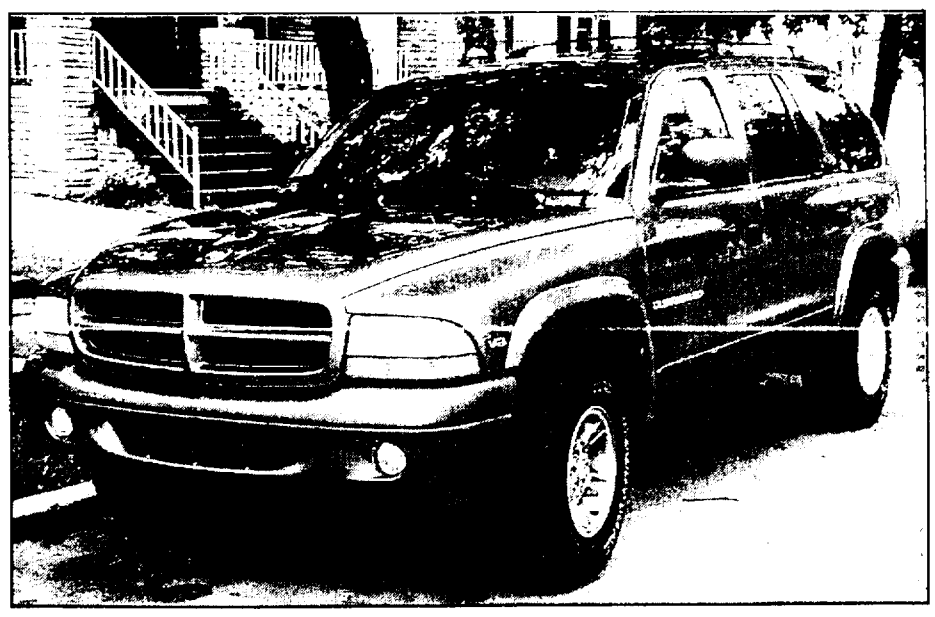

If you opt to use all three rows of seat for people, a standard roof rack expands cargo capacity. If you are taking advantage of the third row, passengers will like the ease of entry afforded by the fold and tumble forward second row of seats. But it will help if the folks in the third row aren't very tall.

There is plenty of headroom all the way back because of the raised roofline. The interior is surprisingly comfortable for a truck and all controls are simple and within reach of the driver. A new instrument panel, center console and upgraded stereo for 2001 help you forget you are driving a truck. But if you like that sense of power which comes from sitting up above traffic, that is there. As more and more of those traffic jams we get into are made up of sport-utilities and vans, that sense of power necessarily diminishes.

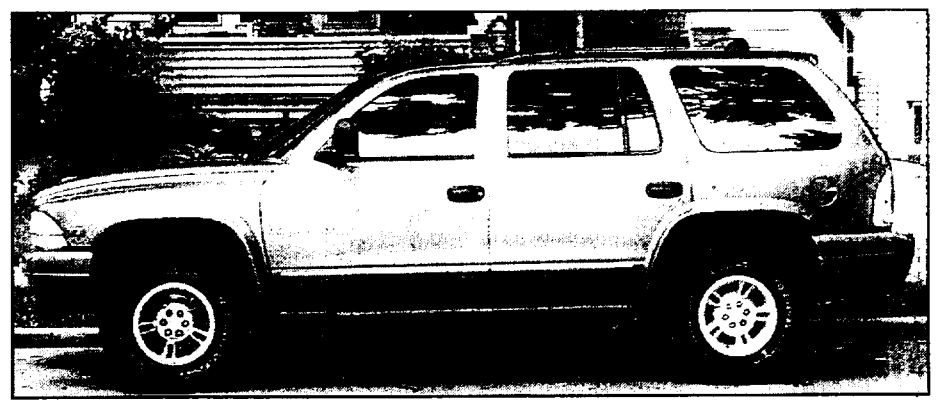

The Durango gets an electronic transfer case for its four-wheel drive system.

The interior of the Durango is attractive and well laid out. Instruments are easy to read and the controls are user friendly.

The 2001 Dodge Durango has a big, bold look, but actually it is a very manageable size and easy to drive.

The 2001 Dodge Durango viewed from the side looks remarkably like a station wagon from the '70s.

Durangos come in either 4x2 or 4x4 configurations, both with the modern 4.7-liter Magnum V-8, a sprightly but more fuel-miserly engine than the other Magnums.

If you will be doing much towing, then the best choice is the optional 5.9-liter V-8. And for muscle-car fans, there is the Durango R/T with 5.9-liter engine, shorter rear axle ratio, 17-inch wheels, sport-tuned exhaust and stiffer suspension.

Off-road, the Durango is capable, but it is also good as an errand-runner. Steering is responsive, it is not hard to park in tight spaces and our test vehicle looked like it had been built with quality in mind.

The Toyota 4Runner, Nissan Pathfinder, Jeep Grand Cherokee and Ford Explorer are Durango's daunting rivals, but none offer that bolted-in third row of seats.

Pricing is very competitive, starting at $27,235 for a basic two-wheel-drive Durango, up to $29,355 for the base four-wheel-drive.

District seeks $9.95 million bond

Bond would fund building improvement projects

By Bonnie Caprara
Staff Writer

The Grosse Pointe Board of Education will determine whether to approve a non-voted bond for almost $10 million for energy and Americans with Disabilities Act (ADA) modifications at 13 of 16 of the Grosse Pointe Public School System's buildings.

Chris Fenton, assistant superintendent for business affairs and support services, requested the board consider a 7 percent bond to be paid back out of the district's general fund over the course of 15 years.

Funds from the bond would finance boilers at Grosse Pointe North and South high schools; Trombly, Richard and Maire elementary schools and the district's administration building. Funds would also fund window replacement at the administration building, Barnes School, Ferry and Kerby elementary schools, Brownell Middle School; energy management projects at both high schools and all three middle schools and elevators at the administration building, South, Pierce and Parcells middle schools and Kerby, Monteith and Richard.

The bond money would replace funds used for the recent window replacement at South, the roof and window repair at Brownell and an elevator project at Barnes that is nearing completion.

Over the past two years, the board has reviewed various options to fund upgrades in its buildings. For the past 12 years, the board has funded these upgrades out of its general operating fund, ranging from a low of $300,000 spent in one year on capital improvement projects, to a high of $2.5 million spent in one year.

"If you do these projects piecemeal, you're always postponing them," said Fenton. "These projects can only be deferred so long, but then you're faced with emergency repair."

The proposed non-voted bond will allow the district to complete these projects within 18 to 24 months.

Payment on the principal would be $667,000 per year and would be paid out of the district's general fund. Payment on the interest, estimated at $267,000 per year, would be offset by savings on current energy and maintenance-related expenditures.

Fenton noted that the district may benefit by economies of time by getting better prices from contractors for doing a group of similar projects at the same time.

The district is currently debt-free. The district paid off its last bond issue, a $2.1 million bond issued in 1989 for window replacements, in April 1999.

Board vice president Joan Dindoffer suggested that Fenton consider offering an alternate proposal of a $7.28 million bond issue for energy projects and having the $2.73 million in ADA related projects to be paid out of the district's Durant fund.

Trustee Joan Richardson asked about the fate of other wish list projects like field improvements, science labs at the middle and high schools and multi-purpose rooms. Fenton said that he was looking at different options to fund those projects.

The board will vote on the bond issue at its Monday, Nov. 13 meeting.

ULS kids put best foot forward

More than 250 first- through fifth-grade students and faculty at ULS participated in a one-mile fun run for Caring Athletes Team for Children's and Henry Ford Hospitals (CATCH). ULS students Tim Boll, Gina Balamucki and Ellie Boccaccio presented a check for $4,043.98 to CATCH representatives Bruce Millen and Lynn Little. "Our physical education teachers worked hard to make this a team effort of students, parents and friends of the school," said ULS Lower School head Margery Morse. "The fun run in support of CATCH was a huge success in terms of the funds we raised for children, showing our school spirit and reaching out to the community."

Middle schools to hold conferences

By Bonnie Caprara
Staff Writer

Middle school parents are marking yet another important date on their calendars this fall: parent-teacher conferences.

The afternoons and evenings of Thursday, Nov. 16 and Tuesday, Nov. 21 are slated for the first middle school parent-teacher conferences. The conferences were added this year as part of recommendations of the district's middle school study. Another round of conferences are planned in the spring to discuss third quarter grades.

"It's an introduction, an opportunity for a face-to-face discussion about how a student is progressing," said Pierce Middle School principal Russ LeBlanc.

Parents will have a chance to meet with their child's teacher of choice for five to seven minutes to get a general understanding how their child is progressing, get the highlights of student achievement and suggest areas of improvement. Teachers will also make arrangements to schedule longer conferences at another time if needed.

Because teachers typically have about 150 students, conferences are available on a first-come, first-served basis. LeBlanc recommended that parents prioritize which teachers they seek to meet with.

The need for parent-teacher conferences stemmed from a middle school study that is nearing completion after hearing that many parents wanted a conference setting to meet with teachers.

The middle school study parent-teacher task force discovered that about 73 of middle schools in the state surveyed held middle school parent-teachers conferences. In districts similar to the Grosse Pointe Public School System — Birmingham, Bloomfield Hills, Forest Hills, East Grand Rapids, Okemos and Farmington — all held parent-teacher conferences in the middle schools.

The task force also visited other school districts to see how they put on their middle school parent-teacher conferences.

"Even though our kids do very well, there is some research that says the more communication and connection parents have with teacher, the better kids do," said director of school and community development, Lee Warras, who is heading the middle school study.

In preparation for National Children's Book Week Nov. 13-19, over 250 students at Trombly Elementary School entered a school-wide bookmark design contest. Entries were judged on original art and creativity. Eight winners will have their bookmarks handed out to students and teachers during National Children's Book Week. Pictured are winners Katherine Halso, Christopher Peters, Holly Fleszar and Julie Griffin, front row; and Laila Hamdan, Claire Jones, Tim Quinn and Bess Owens, back row.

Physics students build a better car

By Bonnie Caprara
Staff Writer

Physics students at Grosse Pointe North High School haven't built a better mousetrap, but a recent project had them seeing who could build a better car.

Supplied with a mousetrap, four rubber bands and 30 inches of string, physics students in Donald Pata's classes were challenged to build a car using those supplies and what they learned about motion, velocity and acceleration in class.

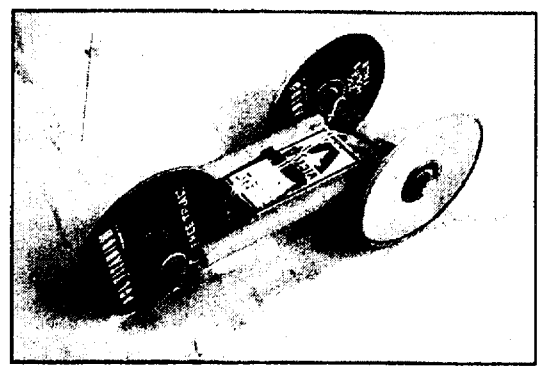

Students showed up with their cars to race them on the third-floor straightaway to see which cars went the fastest, farthest and straightest. They cheered on the cars made mostly of dowels, wood planks, compact discs and other assorted household items. Some cars faltered at the finish line, others started out slow then picked up steam. Some had to be chased down the hallway to be retrieved.

While Pata's classes that day looked more like a hobby meet than a physics class, the students got more out of their lessons than learning about theory from textbooks and lectures.

"They were able to see some application to the theoretical concepts they studied," said Pata.

Senior Kati Ruggiero found that, "It's harder to achieve distance than speed."

Grosse Pointe North High School physics students Renee Bryzik, Tom Charno and Adam Commisso get ready to start the engines on their mousetrap, string and rubber band-powered cars.

Ever wonder what happens to all those free AOL discs? They made perfect wheels for Aruna Fonseka's mousetrap race car.

The secret, senior Maureen Redinger said, "depends how many times you wind the string around the axle."

The race car project also gave the students some insight into what the Big 3 engineers put into designing cars. Before the cars were put to their tests, students had to test designs, make a prototype and complete the actual design.

"They see the road from idea to actual concept is long," said Pata. "It's not easy to build a car — not even a mousetrap car."

Pata said another benefit of the race car project was that this was the first time that many of his students spent significant time with their fathers on a homework project. After all, who knows more about drills and band saws in most families?

After the race, students took the race statistics to plot velocity versus time.

"The project is also a great precursor to force and energy which we'll be studying next," said Pata. "After all, a project is useless if you don't follow up with it."

43 percent of traffic fatalities caused by running red lights

Forty-three percent of all fatal crashes that occurred at signalized intersections in the southeast Michigan region in 1999 could be attributed to red-light running, according to traffic crash data compiled by the Southeast Michigan Council of Governments (SEMCOG).

In 1999, 49,536 traffic crashes took place at signalized intersections in southeast Michigan; 13.9 percent of those (or 6,861) involved red-light runners. Of the 81 crashes that resulted in fatalities, red-light runners were involved 43 percent of the time.

"We at SEMCOG hope that these statistics help to drive home the fact that there are serious problems at lighted intersections," says Paul Tait, SEMCOG executive director. "The good news is that there is a simple solution and we can all contribute — stop when the light is red."

Similarly, in 1998, 32 percent of all fatal crashes occurring at signalized intersections in the seven-county southeast Michigan region were caused by red-light running. That year, there were 50,508 crashes at signalized intersections; 13.7 percent of those (or 6,937) involved red-light runners. Of the 90 crashes that resulted in fatalities, red-light runners were involved 32 percent of the time.

Each year in the United States, more than 1.8 million intersection crashes occur. In 1998, red-light-running crashes accounted for 89,000 crashes, 80,000 injuries, and nearly 1,000 deaths. Public costs exceed $7 billion.

In Lansing, House Bill 4693, which authorizes the installation and use of cameras on a highway or street, was introduced in 1999 and was referred to the Committee on Transportation.

In response to this introduced legislation, SEMCOG's Transportation Advisory Committee (TAC) has organized a Red-Light-Running Task Force to study issues surrounding the use of unmanned traffic monitoring devices (i.e., cameras) as a means of reducing traffic crashes and their severity at signalized intersections. The task force is expected to provide its recommendations to TAC at its Oct. 25 meeting.

SEMCOG is a partner in the Michigan Stop on Red Coalition, an advisory group of individuals from both the private and public sectors, united for a common cause — to save lives. The group is dedicated to making positive changes through education, engineering and stricter law enforcement.

SEMCOG is a regional planning partnership of governmental units serving 4.8 million people in the seven-county region of southeast Michigan.

Sewer inspections in Woods reveal a need for repairs

By Brad Lindberg
Staff Writer

Sewer inspectors have discovered a section of pipe in Grosse Pointe Woods requiring attention immediately.

In response, city officials have appropriated more than $56,000 to repair a one-block section of sanitary sewer line on Hampton between Wedgewood and Morningside.

The repairs were sparked by last month's routine inspection of the Woods sewer system.

While snaking a miniature television camera through an 18-inch pipe on Hampton, public service workers found an 850-foot section needing replacement.

The work, although unscheduled, was not unanticipated.

"We had planned maintenance for next year," explained Ted Bidigare, the Woods city administrator, "but decided to take action this year."

According to Frank Varicalti of the Woods engineering consultants, Anderson, Eckstein and Westrick, repairs will require three days work.

The job has been contracted to Insituform Technologies for nearly $50,000.

An additional $6,000 has been allocated for engineering studies. Insituform, which is currently doing sewer work in the Woods, was the Hampton project's low bidder.

William R. Urbancic II

He was employed in sales and insurance.

Mr. Urbancic enjoyed many outdoor activities such as skiing, fishing, swimming and boating. He was an avid reader and home repair hobbyist.

Mr. Urbancic is survived by his wife, Barbara; his mother, Joan; his father, William; a sister, Joan; three brothers, Frank, Brian and Rick; a nephew, Michael; and a niece, Mary Lise.

A funeral service for Mr. Urbancic was held on Saturday, Oct. 28, at St. Jude Church in Boca Raton. Interment is at St. Paul Columbarium.

Memorial gifts may be sent to the St. Paul Catholic Church Restoration Fund in his name.

G.P. Woods council to yank downspouts

By Brad Lindberg
Staff Writer

According to a proposed ordinance backed by a united city council in Grosse Pointe Woods, public service inspectors could soon begin canvassing the community to root out illegal downspouts.

Patrols will enforce a proposed ordinance requiring downspouts to be disconnected. If the measure passes muster at the council's meeting Nov. 20, it will go into effect in early December.

The ordinance has been proposed in compliance with a state mandate requiring downspouts to be separated from sewer system.

Woods officials said their action will, in the words of the proposed ordinance, "reduce the sudden inflow of rainwater into the Milk River storm water treatment facility during rainstorms."

Taking the load off the treatment facility could reduce the volume and frequency of storm water overflows into Lake St. Clair and the pollution that ensues.

The disconnect ordinance applies to homeowners, schools and churches.

Patti Chylinski, a member of the Woods city council, said about 30 percent of the city's downspouts are already disconnected.

In a related move, city workers have reduced the flow of rainwater to the Milk River facility by placing restrictor plates over residential street drains.

According to Thomas Whitcher, head of the Woods public service department, the plates have up to six openings based on the need to slow storm water drainage. He acknowledged the plates could increase standing water in streets after heavy downpours.

Regarding the downspout proposal, Chylinski said, "The Woods is one of the most progressive cities in the state. We're ahead of the rest of the state in general."

She recommended a phased-in approach to enforcing the proposed measure.

If, as expected, the ordinance passes, violators will be charged separately for each day they are out of compliance.

City officials will establish an appeal board to grant exemptions based on structural hazards or the extreme cost of compliance. Woods Mayor Robert Novitke will appoint the five-member board to three-year terms.

For peace of mind, look to the stars.

Using telephoto lenses

Photography

By Monte Nagler

By definition, a telephoto lens is one whose focal length is greater than that of a normal lens. The longer the focal length of the lens, the greater the degree of magnification. In fact, the magnification is mathematically related to focal length. For example, a 100mm lens produces an image exactly twice that of a normal lens. A 400mm lens gives you an image size eight times your normal lens.

As the lens lengthens, some interesting things happen. The len's angle of view becomes narrower and depth-of-field becomes shallower. A narrow angle of view enables you to isolate a detail in a distant building or eliminate a cluttered foreground.

A shallow depth-of-field is great for blurring distracting backgrounds so that attention is directed towards your subject, such as an outdoor portrait.

By far, the most useful telephoto lenses are those with medium focal lengths — between 85mm and 200mm. Because they minimize facial distortion and allow a comfortable distance between photographer and subject, medium telephotos are ideally suited for portraits. In addition, they are perfect for many other situations in which you have to keep a moderate distance from your subject, such as candid street shots or animals at the zoo.

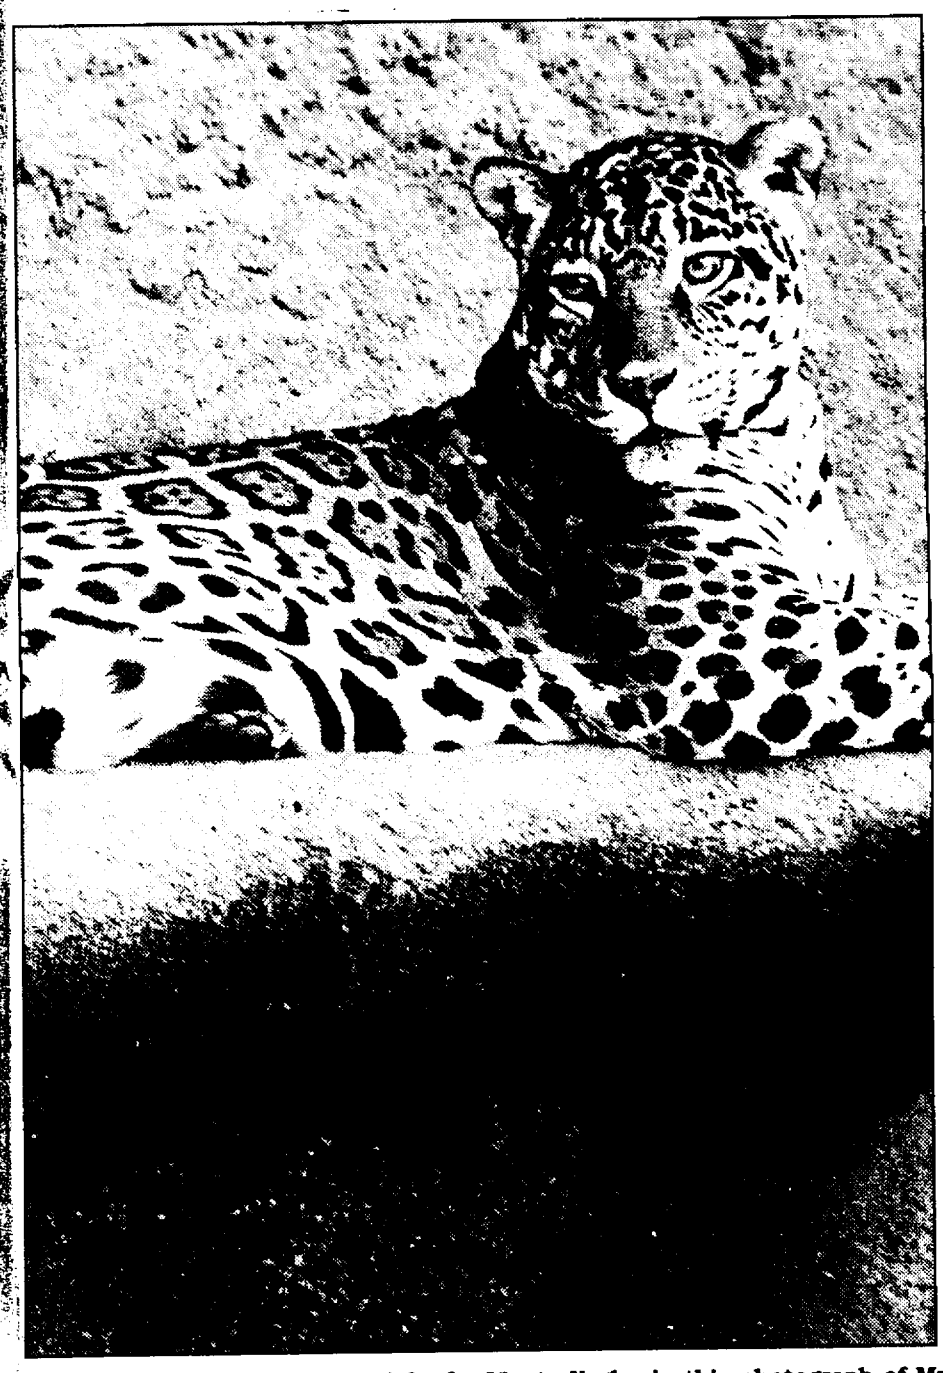

Telephoto lenses of 300mm or longer are usually for specialized demands and would be too powerful for ordinary usage.

However, if you have a keen interest in wildlife photography or prefer huge suns in your sunset shots, then these and longer lenses may be for you. For the occasional "long reach", a teleextender combined with your telephoto will work just fine.

Remember, because the magnification of telephoto lenses accentuates the effect of camera movement, faster shutter speeds are required. To obtain a sharp picture, the rule of thumb is to use a shutter speed closest to the focal length of the lens.

For a 135mm lens, handhold at no slower than 1/125 second. With a 200mm lens, you should be at 1/250 second. If slower shutter speeds are needed because of low light or small aperture requirements, better get out your tripod.

So "reach out" to new and exciting photographic horizons — with telephoto lenses!

A 200mm lens worked just right for Monte Nagler in this photograph of Mr. Jaguar. It enabled him to "reach out" and fill the frame for impact.

Seesaw week ends with Dow and NASDAQ up

Most commentators said the market was marking time before the election, but it ended last week sharply on the upside.

For the week, the Dow climbed 227 points, or 2.1 percent, closing at 10,817.

Meanwhile, the NASDAQ Composite posted a 173 point gain, or 5.3 percent, to close at 3,451.

By Joseph Mengden

Technology was a mixed bag.

Cisco Systems (CSCO, about 56.75, up 6.06, or 9.7 percent for the week) reported its quarterly earnings this past Monday, after press time. Wall Street was expecting 17 cents/share vs. 12 cents a year ago.

On the other hand, WorldCom (WCOM, about 18, sunk 4.06, or 18.4 percent) has declined 70 percent from its high of 51 last March.

Third quarter earnings for the S&P 500 are expected to ring in with an 18 percent gain, but revised fourth quarter estimates have been trimmed again to an 11.8 percent gain over last year.

Election is over

PBS' Mark Russell, the piano-playing satirist, said it all: "We got the best president that money could buy!"

Whichever way the election went last Tuesday, Fed Chairman Alan Greenspan continues in power. The next meeting of the Federal Reserve Open Market Committee is next Tuesday, Nov. 15.

Wall Street analysts expect a neutral stance again by the Fed, and probably no action at the Dec. 16 meeting, since it rarely upsets the apple cart at year-end.

A minority of Fed watchers are hoping for an interest rate cut next week, but with the high price of crude, the Euro problems and the Middle East tensions, that's a wild pipe dream!

Priceline wrecked

We last commented about Priceline.com (PCLN, about 4.72, down 0.91, or 16.2 percent last week) in October when it shut down its web house offspring (See LTS, Oct. 12).

Last week, Priceline reported more bad news: October airline ticket sales were down, their CFO resigned, pink slips were given to 16 percent of their employees, and it was repricing 5 1/2 million warrants previously given to Delta Airlines, from 56 down to about 5!

Can you imagine? Priceline is buying inventory with equity!

If you had personally purchased PCLN last spring at 104, how would you feel about your company repricing a vendor's warrants while you're still stuck at 104?

Senior Men's Club

Almost everyone knows some member of the Senior Men's Club of Grosse Pointe (SMC).

It just celebrated its 41st anniversary of providing festivities, fun and fellowship for its members.

If you are a retired senior male, and a resident or former resident of the five Grosse Pointes, you are eligible to join the SMC.

The club's general luncheon meetings are held on the second and fourth Tuesday of each month at the War Memorial on Lakeshore in the Farms.

Many of its 1,000-plus members also participate in the 14 sub-clubs, including the investment group, which meets at 9:30 a.m. prior to the general meetings.

During the Oct. 24 meeting of the investment group, a questionnaire was distributed to the 50 or so members in attendance. About 40 of the questionnaires were answered and returned.

The results of the two most important questions: "How do you view the current market as related to 'normal' value?" for the Dow Index and for the NASDAQ Composite Index are summarized in the accompanying table.

The Great Wall II

Regular commuters who drive I-94 eastbound between Vernier and Nine Mile tell LTS that the Great Wall of St. Clair Shores is nearing completion.

It was only the end of summer (see LTS, Sept. 28) when LTS described the construction race, or lack thereof, between the noise barrier in St. Clair Shores and the repaving of Grosse Pointe Farms.

There has also been much progress in the Farms' paving projects, including the removal of the orange barrels at the "dodge-em" tunnels in front of the War Memorial on Lakeshore.

In other areas, the remains of former streets remind one of rocky pastures in the hill country.

Four-wheelers are the preferred means of transportation, since the boarding of horses at private residences is no longer permitted in Grosse Pointe.

But other streets in the Farms are mirror-smooth, with new curbs and handicap access to sidewalks at the corners, for the in-line skaters. Since this is election week, why not wander around the Farms, and then drive by the Great Wall.

Which one do you think will be finished first?

Use dish, not WTVS

Last Friday, Nov. 3, WTVS, Detroit's PBS affiliate (Channel 3 on Grosse Pointe Cable) did it again. They "covered over" the 30th anniversary of "Louis Rukeyser's Wall Street Week," a special one-hour celebration at Carnegie Hall. "Covered over" in TV language means "blacked out," not shown!

Instead, WTVS chose to run a classic movie from the 1930s, interspersed with contribution solicitations.

PBS allows its affiliates to run most of its network shows as they wish — live off the satellite, tape delayed, or not at all.

Earlier, WTVS' program director told LTS that they make more money from the movie's two-hour charitable solicitations than they earn from Wall Street Week's 30 minutes with advertisements. Quite a statement from a "non-profit" TV station!

There are two possible solutions:

1) Customers request Comcast Cable to carry a second or third PBS station on their cable (as is done outstate), like WGTE (Toledo), on-air Channel 30, or WFUM (Flint), on-air Channel 28; or

2) Install a satellite dish and receive the PBS signal directly off the "bird," which would completely bypass WTVS and the cable company. Comcast, are you listening?

Tight job market pinches shopkeepers

By Brad Lindberg
Staff Writer

Help wanted signs are sprouting all over town in preparation for the holiday shopping binge.

As in recent years, employers seeking workers this season aren't fooling themselves about who has the upper hand.

A strong economy and shallow pool of qualified labor have put prospective employees in charge.

"I can't afford to be picky," said Rick Claggett of the family-owned Whistle Stop Hobby Shop in St. Clair Shores.

One local proprietor has overcome a personnel shortage through divine intervention.

"The Lord gave me a blessing today and sent me a former employee," laughed Sandy Gillespie, owner of the Something Special gift shops on the Hill in Grosse Pointe Farms. "I'm thrilled."

Gillespie got a jump on the holiday hiring blitz.

"I hire in summer so my employees are well-trained in time for the holidays," said Gillespie. "If you're going to offer good customer service, you have to have employees who know something."

Nancy Watson, a mother of two from Harper Woods, recently started working at Speedi Photo in Grosse Pointe Woods. Her job search was effortless.

"I saw the help wanted sign, filled out an application and walked out of the store with a job," said Watson.

Like Gillespie, Jeanie Soulliere, Speedi's manager, started hiring last summer for extra help this fall.

Soulliere lured workers by promising employee discounts and flexible hours, just the thing for her on-the-go staff of 20, half of whom work part-time.

"I live right around the corner," Watson explained. "It's nice to get my kids off to school in the morning and be home from work by the time they get back."

Claggett hired three employees last week. One was only 15 years old.

"We usually don't go that young," said Claggett. "But the pickings were slim."

The hiring blitz frustrated Claggett.

"It's amazing how many people don't know how to fill out a job application," he sighed. "There were spelling errors and bad grammar."

To attract qualified workers, the Whistle Stop pays greater than minimum wage.

"No one cares about minimum wage anymore," said Claggett. "Kids expect to make $8 per hour."

In addition to employee discounts and competitive wages, the Whistle Stop offers health benefits, including dental coverage, for full-time employees with more than 90 days on the job.

"It helps us keep good people," said Claggett.

Keith Sparks, 18, a freshly hired Whistle Stop clerk from Harper Woods, learned of the job while shopping for a model kit.

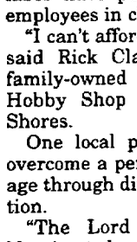

"I saw the help wanted sign and applied," said Sparks.

A week later, he stood behind the cash register ringing up customers.

A legitimate Angel's Night

"Devil's Night and Halloween detail was completed without major incidents," according to police summaries in Grosse Pointe Woods.

Taking less space in the public safety blotter than the average stray dog report, officers itemized two minor crimes during the potentially troubled period surrounding Halloween.

On Monday, Oct. 30, a proprietor in the 20500 block of Mack shooed away a woman who was trying to steal pumpkins from a storefront holiday display.

Later that evening at a house in the 900 block of South Oxford, someone spray painted a pumpkin and littered the front lawn with toilet paper.

On Halloween itself, nothing happened.

Likewise, in Grosse Pointe Park, "there were no serious incidents reported," according to Richard Caretti, the director of public service.

Despite thousands of children trick or treating in the city, Caretti said, there was only minor damage and one larceny reported.

"All officers on duty are to be complimented for their attention to assigned areas throughout the night," said Caretti.

Pornographer

An alleged pornographer has been reported lingering around a Grosse Pointe elementary school soliciting business for an X-rated web site.

Grosse Pointe Woods police have a description of an unknown man seen handing graphic pictures to school children in the area of Mack and Cook Road.

On Thursday, Nov. 2, a student crossing guard for Monteith Elementary School reportedly witnessed the stranger sitting in a red Pontiac Fiero distributing photographs.

The student told an adult crossing guard who alerted police.

Police said the stranger had been "calling kids to his car and handing out" nude photographs with solicitations to a web site. A sketchy description of the unidentified man outlined him as white with long brown hair.

Knifing

According to Grosse Pointe Park police, a career criminal last week slashed a female store employee with a hobby knife as the woman and colleagues tried to detain the offender for suspected shoplifting.

The subject has been charged by the Wayne County Prosecutor's office with assault to do bodily harm and being a fourth-time habitual offender.

The incident unfolded on Monday, Oct. 30, at 9:18 a.m., at a business in the 15000 block of Kercheval. Store employees saw the man allegedly try to leave the establishment with unpaid merchandise.

Employees tried to detain the man until police arrived, but the subject became unruly, pulled out a small knife and struck the woman.

Library lockup

On Thursday, Nov. 2, at 4:23 p.m., a Grosse Pointe Woods policeman tailed a suspicious driver to the Woods branch of the Grosse Pointe Public Library.

Continuing surveillance inside the building, the officer found the man and his female passenger hiding in a closet.

The officer had become suspicious when the man's license plate was registered to another vehicle. The man gave police a false name but was identified later as a 39-year-old Detroiter. He had three outstanding warrants totaling $1,200 from separate communities.

A search of the subject's vehicle revealed three small spoons that a Woods officer said could be used to "dissolve injectable narcotics."

The man was arrested. Police cleared and released his female companion.

Car problems

A resident of the 600 block of Westchester in Grosse Pointe Park reported last week that someone tried to steal the family Oldsmobile. The incident took place during the night of Thursday, Nov. 2.

Moped recovered

Acting on a tip, police in Grosse Pointe Park recovered a stolen moped from a Detroit backyard on the afternoon of Friday, Nov. 3.

The vehicle had been stolen from a Park resident two days earlier.

Wacky cats

Two weeks after a maniac kitten ripped the necktie off the uniform of a Grosse Pointe Woods policeman, a Woods woman sought medical attention for injuries sustained while trying to pet a cat.

On Saturday, Oct. 28, at 4:30 p.m., the woman spotted a large white and gray tabby in the front yard of her property in the 1100 block of Hawthorne. A "here kitty, kitty" later, the woman had sustained 11 wounds to her right forearm. She received treatment at a local hospital.

The woman filed a report with police, she told an officer, "in the event the cat goes on (another) attack rampage."

Hubcap helper

A woman said her car's hubcaps were stolen while the vehicle was parked in a lot in the 20400 block of Mack in Grosse Pointe Woods.

She said the theft took place between 12:30 and 1 p.m. on Wednesday, Nov. 1. Police do not have any suspects.

Go-peds go away

On the morning of Saturday, Nov. 4, a Grosse Pointe Woods officer reminded three boys in the 1100 block of Hollywood of a state law forbidding the use of go-peds on public streets. The boys said they would comply.

Go-peds are motorized scooters lacking lights, mirrors and turn indicators, among other things.

Trick bike taken

During the night of Saturday, Oct. 28, someone stole a green 20-inch "Dyno" trick bicycle from an unlocked garage in the 1300 block of Balfour in Grosse Pointe Park.

Church work

At about 12:30 p.m. on Saturday, Nov. 4, Grosse Pointe Woods police interrupted a Detroit pastor and his four helpers who were soliciting church donations at the intersection of Mack and Vernier.

The pastor agreed to cease operations until receiving a permit from city officials.

Wrong turn

A 27-year-old Detroit man who was caught making an illegal turn from Mack to Vernier in Grosse Pointe Woods was found to be driving while suspended. The incident took place on Saturday, Nov. 4, at 5:50 p.m.

– Brad Lindberg

Lost drinker

A Grosse Pointe Shores public safety officer clocked a 1996 Ford Escort traveling north on Lakeshore at a speed of 51 mph, well over the posted limit, at 11:41 p.m. on Wednesday, Nov. 1. When the officer pulled the vehicle over, he asked the driver, a 23-year-old Warren woman, if she knew why she was stopped.

The driver replied, "because I was weaving" between lanes. She also admitted that she had left a bar on Jefferson in St. Clair Shores an hour earlier and was lost.

She failed her field sobriety tests and blew a .11 on her preliminary breath test (PBT). She is free on $100 bond.

Business break-in

A Grosse Pointe Farms public safety officer, while on patrol, spotted a broken window at a restaurant in the 18800 block of Mack at 2:22 a.m. on Sunday, Nov. 6. When the officer investigated, he noticed that it appeared that someone entered the restaurant through the broken window. When police were able to gain entry to the business, they discovered a rock inside the place near the broken window.

The cash registers also had pry marks on them. The restaurant manager said that no cash was kept in the registers once the restaurant was closed for the night.

Tool thefts

Grosse Pointe Farms public safety officers received two similar reports of tools being stolen from work vehicles in the area of Mack and Moross between Wednesday, Nov. 1 and Friday, Nov. 3.

In the first incident, the owner of a Ford van reported that his vehicle was broken into while it was parked outside a restaurant in the 18800 block of Mack. The incident took place between 11:30 a.m. and noon. Entry was gained by smashing the right passenger window and over $2,000 worth of construction equipment was stolen.

The second incident took place between 1:30 and 2 p.m. on Friday, Nov. 3. An Eastpointe man reported that his van, which was parked near the Mack and Moross intersection, was broken into and several hundred dollars worth of power tools were taken.

Bug squashed

The owner of a 1979 VW Beetle reported that between 6 p.m. on Monday, Oct. 30 and 8 a.m. on Wednesday, Nov. 1, someone vandalized his vehicle by damaging the front bumper and ripping the vinyl roof.

The car was parked in the 300 block of University in the City of Grosse Pointe.

Noted incident

An Eastpointe woman reported that someone scratched her car when it was parked in the area of St. Paul and Cadieux between 11:30 a.m. and noon on Wednesday, Nov. 1. She also found a note on her car in which a witness left a telephone number.

The note also gave a description of a possible suspect. Police are following up on the note.

Farms council approves DAAA multi-year plan

By Jim Stickford
Staff Writer

The Detroit Area Agency on Aging (DAAA) has recently completed a multi-year plan on how the organization intends to meet the needs of metro Detroit's 191,000 older residents.

One of the groups funded by the DAAA is Grosse Pointe's Services for Older Citizens. City of Grosse Pointe resident Jack Liang and Grosse Pointe Farms councilwoman Fran Schonenberg are the Pointes' representatives on the DAAA advisory board. The Harper Woods representative is Robert Queller.

Not all of SOC's funding comes from the DAAA, said Schonenberg, but a good portion of it does.

"The state, which provides funding to the DAAA, requires that the group have a master plan or mission statement looking three years ahead," said Schonenberg. "And SOC is required to look at its mission and come up with a three-year plan."

There are several reasons for review, said Schonenberg. These include changes in demographics, the scattering of families and changes in national attitude toward health care. She cited the rise of HMOs as an example of that.

"SOC was founded over 20 years ago because county efforts toward the elderly concentrated on Detroit," Schonenberg said. "We needed SOC because the needs in the Pointes and Harper Woods were being unmet. The DAAA cities are Detroit, the Pointes, Harper Woods, Hamtramck and Highland Park."

SOC's main programs include food and friendship, which has meals at the War Memorial three times a week. This allows the elderly to get out and meet people in a convivial atmosphere.

SOC also has a home-delivery meal program. The organization also provides information and referrals to those seeking help.

"It can become overwhelming," said Schonenberg. "We get calls from the children of elderly residents. They no longer live in the area and they need help. We also provide case coordination and support for those with multiple problems."

SOC also gets funding for PAATS, a transportation system for the elderly and handicapped.

Another program provides money for simple home repairs, said Schonenberg, but funding for these comes from sources other than the DAAA.

The DAAA provides SOC with over $100,000 in funding every year. This funding is based on SOC's own master plan and priority statements.

Re-enactors make past come alive

By Jim Stickford
Staff Writer

For many, history is dry and boring. It is found in long-discarded textbooks from their youth.

For living historians — sometimes referred to as historical re-enactors — history is something they bring to life on a regular basis.

The Grosse Pointe Historical Society, in conjunction with the Grosse Pointe Farms City Council, is gathering a number of area living historians for a special weekend presentation at the Farms Pier Park next May. The event will be part of the celebration of the 300th anniversary of the founding of Detroit.

Several of these living historians met recently at the Society's Provencal-Weir House to discuss exactly what they do and what periods of history they specialize in.

A living historian studies a particular era in history and then tries to duplicate how people in that time lived.

That means getting the appropriate clothing from, for instance, the year 1750 in Detroit, and it means obtaining the tools and other items some one from that era might have used. Living historians might also try to learn the skills of the people in the era they depict.

Women, for example, might learn how to weave cloth. Men might learn how to fashion metal as it was done in the past. All across the country every weekend there are gatherings of re-enactors who meet and exchange goods and show the public how life looked in another time.

The Farms event will be educational. The public will have the opportunity to visit different camps and talk with the re-enactors about what life was like a couple of centuries ago. Different camps will emphasize different aspects of that life.

Dale Camapini specializes in the late Revolutionary War period to about 1815. Ralph Roth, a mechanical engineer, specializes in the last half of the 18th century. Tom and Diane Dolega specialize in roughly the same period — from 1750 to 1815. Lee Caripidis, a teacher, specializes in a longer era of history — from 1650 to 1815.

All concentrate on Michigan and Great Lakes history. People from different parts of the country are interested in different periods.

"You have more Revolutionary War re-enactors in the states that were the original 13 colonies," Caripidis said. "More people interested in the War of 1812 are in the Great Lakes area and Canada."

"A lot of people who live around a particular site center specialize in the same era," Tom Dolega said. "For example, Fort Niagara or Fort Meigge in the Toledo area on the Maumee River are historical sites and people are interested in the history that went on there."

Some people are interested in the Civil War or the War of 1812 or the Revolutionary War and concentrate their efforts on those periods.

"The War of 1812 era was the only time period where people in Michigan saw a lot of fighting," Tom Dolega said. "Detroit was in the hands of the English until 1796. They wanted to protect their trading base. They wanted to protect their commercial interests and keep the French at bay At that time most of the people in Canada were French speakers. One of the ways they promoted their interests was to flood the market with cheaper goods than the French. They weaned the fur trade away from the French at ports like Detroit and Michilimackinac up north where Mackinaw City currently is."

The British later used this trade relationship to get guns to their Indian allies during the War of 1812, Roth said.

The British took Detroit during that war, Tom Dolega said. It was 500 British soldiers and their Indian allies against about

See RE-ENACTORS, page 6B

Ralph Roth, above, wears clothes of 1750 — brain-tanned leggings, hand-sewn moccasins, linen shirt, spectacles, silver trade earring and waistcoat-style jacket. Even his tattoo is an authentic pattern.

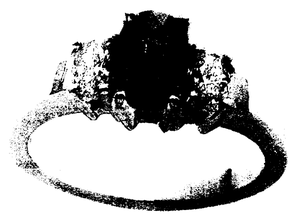

Items that an 18th century settler or fur trader might own are shown at the left — including a trading gun, a bowl of parched corn and peas, handmade powder horns, wampum beads, flint and steel for starting fires, brain-tanned leather goods and animal sinew used as thread.

Amy Blenman, daughter of William and Marianna Blenman of the City of Grosse Pointe, married Michael Ward, son of Norma Ward of Warren and the late Harry Ward, on June 30, 2000, at St. Isidore Catholic Church.

The Rev. Roman Pasieczny officiated at the 4 p.m. ceremony, which was followed by a reception at Wolverine Golf Course.

The bride wore a sleeveless beaded sheath gown with a wrap-around silk-satin cathedral-length train. She carried a presentation-style bouquet of calla lilies.

The matron of honor was Rena Weng of Grosse Pointe Park.

Bridesmaids were the bride's sister, Mary Jo VanWingerden of Manassas, Va.; Reggie Wojtewicz of South Lyon; Emma Hare of Palo Alto, Calif.; and Katie Fyhrie and Adalyn Fyhrie, both of Birmingham.

Attendants wore sleeveless black sheathes that featured white trains. They carried presentation-style bouquets of calla lilies.

The best man was the groom's brother, Matthew Ward of Saginaw.

Groomsmen were Guy DiBella of Clawson, Gary Nacker of Macomb, and Dan Blenman and Chris Blenman, both of St. Clair Shores.

The mother of the bride wore a floor-length blue print voile dress.

The groom's mother wore a tea-length slate blue silk dress.

The bride's sister, Pat Fyhrie, was the flutist. Nick Foresman did guitar and vocals. Wiggie Cetnar was a vocalist. The bride's brother, Jim Blenman, did prayers of the faithful. Scripture readers were Sarah Ward and Rosita Veronesi.

The bride earned a master's degree in educational leadership from Saginaw Valley State University. She is a teacher in the L'Anse Creuse Public Schools.

The groom also earned a master's degree in educational leadership from Saginaw Valley State University. He is a teacher in the Clintondale Community Schools.

The newlyweds traveled to Jamaica. They live in Grosse Pointe Woods.

Mr. and Mrs. James Joseph Yaklic

Cooper-Yaklic

Julie Anne Cooper, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Gary Cooper of Grosse Pointe Woods, married James Joseph Yaklic, son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Yaklic of Clinton Township, on July 28, 2000, at St. Joan of Arc Catholic Church.

The Rev. Brian Cokonougher officiated at the 4 p.m. ceremony, which was followed by a reception at the Grosse Pointe War Memorial.

The bride wore a strapless white silk ball gown that featured a beaded bodice; and a chapel-length veil. She carried a hand-tied bouquet of red roses and coffee berries.

The matron of honor was Barbara Adragna of Warren.

Bridesmaids were the bride's sister, Susan Cooper of Grosse Pointe Woods; Kimberly Yaklic of Bad Axe; Leisa Winston of Waterford; Jamie Christianson of Okemos; Trina Hunt of Warren; and Amy Lumetta of St. Clair Shores.

The bell ringer was Rebecca Yaklic of Bad Axe.

Attendants wore two-piece floor-length embroidered red dresses with straight skirts and carried hand-tied bouquets of red roses and eucalyptus berries.

Internet auction for Children's Home is Nov. 9-13

"Children Have Dreams," is the fourth annual newspaper and Internet auction to benefit the programs and projects of the Children's Home of Detroit.

Here's how it works:

• Read the Children's Home of Detroit's ad in the Thursday, Nov. 9 issues (that's today!) of the Grosse Pointe News, The Detroit Free Press and the Detroit News. Or jump on the Internet and log on to www.bid4kids.org.

• Follow directions to bid on as many things you want, as many times as you want. You can do it on the Web, by e-mail or by picking up the plain ol' telephone.

• Bids will be accepted until 5 p.m. Monday, Nov. 13.

Bid items range from the grand (a week in Keystone, Colo.) to the unique (dinner for two with food critic Molly Abraham) to things to do (tickets to the Holiday Walk at Meadow Brook Hall) to getaways (two nights at the Homestead and lift tickets) to sports stuff (Red Wings games, U. of M. games, Pistons games, Lions games, Tigers games) to items (a lava lamp, a Herend cake plate, a 14-karat gold and sapphire ring, a "Madeleine" doll house) to dining opportunities (Da Edoardo's, the Townsend, Vintage Bistro, Antonio's in the Park).

For more information, call Lisa Mower Gandelot at (313) 886-0800, ext. 20.

Nutcracker event: The Detroit Symphony Orchestra Volunteer Council will present its annual Nutcracker luncheon and holiday boutique on Friday, Nov. 17, at the Dearborn Inn. Shopping begins at 10 a.m.; the luncheon and program is from noon to 1:30 p.m.

The afternoon will include a performance by the Detroit Symphony Civic Orchestra String Quartet, a chance to shop at more than 30 boutiques, and an informal fashion show of furs from Saks Fifth Avenue. Proceeds will benefit the DSO.

Tickets range from $45 to $100. Call (313) 576-5154.

Turkey stuff: Gleaners Community Food Bank will hold its third annual "Gleaners Harvest — Companies for our Community" benefit dinner beginning at 6 p.m. Tuesday, Nov. 14, at the Athenaeum Hotel in Detroit.

Gleaners Harvest is a coalition of businesses addressing the issue of hunger. Proceeds from the dinner will help provide turkeys and dinners for the hungry of southeastern Michigan during the holiday season.

Donations are $300 a person. Call (313) 923-3535, ext. 245.

Rite Aid drug stores will support Gleaners this season by offering paper turkeys to shoppers who donate $1 to Gleaners Food Bank. Gleaners will use the money to purchase real turkeys. Direct donations are also welcomed by Gleaners.

Antiques show: The Junior Group of Goodwill Industries of Greater Detroit will hold its 53rd Annual Antiques Show Friday-Sunday, Nov. 17-19, at the Michigan State Fair and Exposition Center, Woodward at Eight Mile. Michigan's longest running and oldest charitable antiques show will kick off on Thursday, Nov. 16, with a preview party.

Junior Group Goodwill is a volunteer auxiliary consisting of more than 200 members. All proceeds from the antiques show will benefit Goodwill Industries of Greater Detroit, which provides job training and placement services to people with disabilities and special needs.

Offered at the show will be paintings, porcelain, silver, pewter, 18th and 19th century furniture and decorative accessories from 46 different exhibitors as well as the popular Goodwill Booth which contains hundreds of collectibles, gently used furs and jewelry, and furniture refinished by volunteers.

Also featured: professional evaluations of items brought from home; the sale of specialty food items and boutique gifts made by volunteers; and a cafe that serves snacks, lunch and dinner.

The antiques show will be open from 11 a.m. to 8 p.m. Friday; from 11 a.m. to 6 p.m. Saturday; and from 11 a.m. to 5 p.m. Sunday. The cost is $8; $7 for seniors. Parking is included.

Preview party tickets range from $75 to $150 and may be ordered by calling (313) 886-6787.

For more information, call (313) 886-6787.

Beary nice idea: The fourth annual Visions to Remember Antiques Show, a benefit sponsored by the Friends of Vision for the Detroit Institute of Ophthalmology, will be held in February at the Activities Center of the Edsel & Eleanor Ford House in Grosse Pointe Shores.

The show will include a beary special auction of teddy bears.

"We want all of our bears to be dressed or sponsored by individuals, celebrities or local businesses and organizations," said Pat Benz, Friends of Vision president.

Some of the organizations that are participating in the bear dressing festivities are: The Children's Home of Detroit/Foundation for Exceptional Children, Grosse Pointe Artists Association, New Friends and Neighbors Club, the Village Garden Club, the Grosse Pointe Arts Council, the Emerald Sinfonetta, the Grosse Pointe chapter of AAUW and more.

Bears are still available for dressing. Call (313) 824-4710 to adopt one.

Honorary chairmen of the benefit are Howard and Judy Gandelot. Event chairmen are Carolyn Barth and Ellen Chapin. Show manager is Wendy Jennings.

Bargain decorations: The Society of St. Vincent de Paul will offer about $70,000 worth of new and collectible Christmas decorations and toys at garage sale prices on Saturday, Nov. 11, at St. Sylvester in Warren, 12 Mile between Hoover and Van Dyke roads. Hours for the sale are 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. and a $2 host donation is requested. Proceeds from the day's sale will help fund the society's programs such as summer camp for children and food depots.

Shop for Christmas trees, new toys, new dolls, candles, old and new ornaments, holiday lights, wrapping paper and cards.

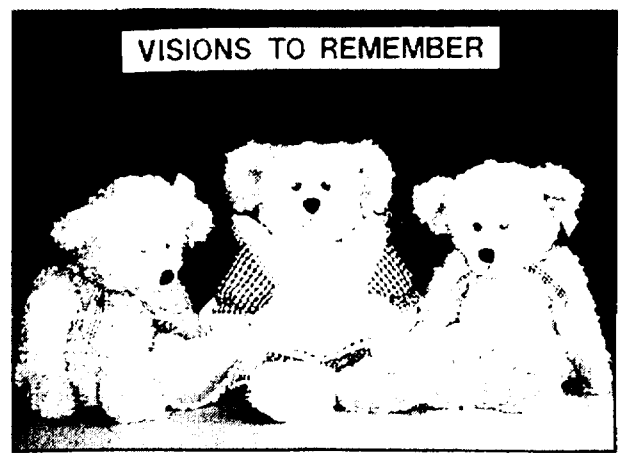

"You could go to the mall and easily pay two or three times the price for the same items we have," said Gerry Bonk, the society's director of warehouse operations. For more information, call (313) 388-3900.

The Pastor's Corner

The power of speech

By the Rev. Timothy A. Holzerland
Christ the King Lutheran Church

Election years, in particular, bring to mind the many wonderful freedoms we enjoy in this country. Of our numerous freedoms, freedom of speech is the most precious to me. I do so enjoy the opportunity to discuss and debate issues that I find important.

An example: As a member of the Grosse Pointe Ministerial Association, each month I sit down with other Grosse Pointe clergy and religious leaders to discuss issues that concern us. As a group, we don't always agree on everything that is said, but we do have the freedom to speak our minds plus the invaluable opportunity to learn from each other.

As citizens, we should treasure the privilege of being able, without fear of reprisal, to speak our minds regarding the issues that affect us. However, when speaking our minds there are "rules of civility" to consider, especially when discussing sensitive and emotion-provoking topics.

We need to avoid attacking people who disagree with our position. We can strongly disagree with someone on an issue without resorting to name-calling or belittling the person who has a different point of view. This happens all too often in group discussions.

Also, should someone verbally attack us, we need to avoid the temptation of retaliating with hurtful words. We should use our ability to discuss and debate without tearing others down.

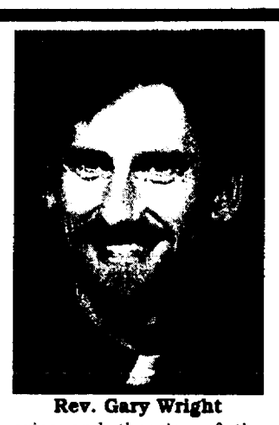

We also need to listen with respect and interest to the opinions of others, even those with whom we do not agree. It is tempting to speak first and ask questions later. When we first listen and then ask questions, we learn more about the speaker. There are times when we forget that the person speaking to us has feelings.

Someone once said to me, "That's your opinion," as if my opinion meant nothing. We need to consciously practice listening to other views with attention and respect.

By remembering to listen before they speak, people can gather to peacefully discuss and debate important issues, no matter how sensitive they are.

Give thanks for the freedom to speak and the

LTA presents lecture

Rev. Gary Wright

The Lay Theological Academy will present a lecture, "Quasars and Quarks, Chaos and Chromosomes: Implications of the New Science for Theology and Spirituality," at 7:30 p.m. Wednesday, Nov. 15, in the Canfield Center of St. Paul Catholic Church.

The presenter will be the Rev. Gary Wright and he will review some of the most important scientific discoveries and theories of the 20th century, then reflect on their significance for Christian theology and spirituality.

Bon Secours Cottage offers help for anxiety, depression associated with holidays

The holidays — a time of festivity and celebration — are quickly approaching. But for many people the hustle and bustle often turns to anxiety and the glitter of the season reflects only sadness and despair.

Holiday anxiety and depression may result from unrealistic expectations or from a void left by lost or distant loved ones. Media projections of the "perfect" home and holiday celebrations often lead us to expect more of our families and ourselves than is realistic. Feelings of "not measuring up" can take hold and allow depression and anxiety to move in.

Thomas Mervak, Ph.D., will discuss mental health challenges that present themselves to many people trying to cope with relentless holiday festivities at a free luncheon lecture, "Coping with the Holidays."

Handling grief and depression, coping with loss, and Seasonal Affective Disorder (SAD) are some of the issues he will address. The lecture takes place from noon to 2 p.m. Thursday, Nov. 9, in Board Rooms A & B, lower level, at Cottage Hospital. (A light lunch is provided.) Cottage is located at 159 Kercheval.

While the program and lunch are free, reservations are required. Call (810) 779-7900 weekdays.

Single Way plans dinner

The Single Way, a group of interdenominational Christian single adults, will hold a "Mystery Dinner" on Saturday, Nov. 11. Teens and children are welcome. Dinner prices range from $10 to $14; reservations are limited. Call (810) 776-5535.

PIME Missionaries honors Shores resident

PIME Missionaries (Pontifical Institute for Foreign Missions) will honor Dr. Alphonse M. Santino of Grosse Pointe Shores and Helen C. Daoud of Bloomfield Hills at its 42nd Knights of Charity Award Dinner on Friday, Nov. 17, at Andiamo Italia Ristorante in Warren.

PIME is an international Catholic community of priests, lay missionaries and lay volunteers who have dedicated themselves to service in foreign lands. The Knights of Charity Award was first bestowed in 1954 and is presented annually to individuals who exemplify the philosophy: "Unison in Family Life with Person-to-Person Charity."

The event will also commemorate the 150th anniversary of PIME Missionaries and will include a gourmet dinner and dancing to the music of the Johnny Trudell Band.

Santino is chief of urology at St. John Hospital and Medical Center and president of the Michigan Institute of Urology.

Daoud is involved in many civic and charitable organizations, including the boards of the Alzheimer's Association and Metro Detroit Girl Scouts.

Tickets to the dinner are $150 a person. Proceeds from the dinner will support PIME's educational, medical and social services in Mexico, South America, Asia, Africa and Oceania. Call (313) 342-4006.

G.P. Jewish Council presents health care symposium

Fifteen health care professionals will present a complimentary health care symposium at 7 p.m. Saturday, Nov. 11, at the Grosse Pointe Woods Community Center.

Some professionals have integrated their traditional medicine practice with alternative health care; others are involved in healing with complementary health care.

Beginning at 7 p.m., Rosalie Denenfeld, moderator, will introduce each participant, who will explain his or her practice. Breakout sessions will give attendees an opportunity to meet the practitioners and ask questions, get informational hand-outs and see demonstrations.

Participants and topics will include: Macrobiotics, by Lynn Beckett; Creating Optimal Health, by Joyce Oliveto; Iridology, by Karen Grobbel; Chiropractic, by Patrick Chase; Iyngar Yoga, by Justina Theokas; Magnet Therapy, by Dr. Diane Culik; Pregnancy and Childbirth, by Cathy Holland; Reiki, by Mimi Becigneul and Karen Webb; Holistic Cardiology, by Kirk Laman; Homeopathy, by Greg Kruszewski; Naturopathy, by Yvonne Brown; Anti-Aging Medicine, by Dr. Pamela W. Smith; Energy Psychology, by Pat Yoder, Ph.D.; and Cranial Sacral Therapy, by Theresa Miller.

Attendees will also have a chance to sample healthy snacks and beverages provided by the Sprout House, Healy's Health Hut and Atom's Juice Bar.

The symposium is open to the public; admission is $5 at the door. For more information, call Louise A. Snyder at (313) 884-3871, Rosalie Denenfeld at (313) 521-0663 or Ron Feldman at (313) 886-3078.

Holiday calendars and cards will benefit charities

The Grosse Pointe News and the Connection newspapers will publish its annual list of holiday cards and calendars offered by local charitable groups.

Charitable organizations with strong ties to Grosse Pointe should send us a sample card or calendar and details about how to order. Include information about how the proceeds will be used as well as the price, how to order, and a phone number to call for more information.

Deadline is Thursday, Nov. 16. Send it to Margie Smith, 96 Kercheval, Grosse Pointe Farms, MI 48236.

Cirrhosis . . . and still drinking

By Jeff and Debra Jay
Special Writers

Dear Jeff and Debra:
My dad has been a heavy drinker as long as I can remember. I wouldn't necessarily say he's an alcoholic, because he never drinks so much that he can't function. He's had the same job for nearly 35 years. But he likes to drink. He drinks a six-pack of beer on weeknights and a case or more of beer on the weekends.

He's never been much for going to doctors but my mom finally convinced him to get a physical exam. The doctor said he failed his liver test. My dad has the beginnings of cirrhosis. I can't tell you how shocked we all are. Since hearing the news, my dad has cut back, but hasn't quit drinking. He has two or three beers every day. Will cutting back stop the liver problems?

— Concerned Son

Jeff and Debra Jay

Dear Concerned:
Your father must stop using alcohol. No amount of alcohol is safe. The fact that he continues to drink after such a serious health diagnosis is an indication that he is alcoholic. Alcoholics will continue drinking even though alcohol is causing serious negative consequences in their lives.

Cirrhosis of the liver is a deadly disease that causes a hardening of the liver which, in turn, compromises the liver's ability to filter blood. As the scarring of the liver becomes more severe, the liver will no longer function and death will come quickly.

If your father continues to drink, the cirrhosis will progress. The following list of symptoms clearly illustrates the seriousness of this disease:

- Varices — esophageal veins bulging and bursting due to the overload of blood caused by the blood's inability to route through the damaged liver.
- Ascites — distended, tense stomach caused by massive fluid build-up.
- Edema — water accumulation in the legs.
- Jaundice — yellow skin and eyes caused by a build-up of bile in the body.
- Bruising and bleeding caused by the liver's inability to produce proteins needed for blood clotting.
- Intense itching caused by bile products in the skin.
- Immune system dysfunction, leading to infections.
- Kidney dysfunction and failure.
- Mental confusion, disorientation and personality changes caused by toxins in the blood and the brain.
- Coma and death.

Cirrhosis leads to a terrible death. If a diagnosis of cirrhosis is not enough to motivate your father to quit drinking, he needs professional treatment for alcoholism and a program of recovery in Alcoholics Anonymous. Talk to his doctor and explain your concerns about his continued drinking. Ask the doctor to refer your father to an alcohol treatment center. If your father doesn't follow the doctor's recommendation, learn about family intervention as a way to motivate your dad to accept help.

Dear Readers:
We'd like to announce the publication of our new book, "Love First: A New Approach to Intervention for Alcoholism and Drug Addiction." Published by Hazelden, the book stresses that by using love first, families concerned about an addicted loved one may never have to use tough love. The book is available at Borders or directly through Hazelden Publishing by calling (800) 328-9000.

Jeff Jay is Director of Program Development for Brighton Hospital and the president of the Terry McGovern Foundation in Washington, D.C. Debra Erickson Jay is an interventionist. Jeff and Debra are co-authors of the book "Love First" published by Hazelden. Send questions to Jeff Jay, c/o Brighton Hospital, Dept. GP, 12851 East Grand River, Brighton, MI 48116, or e-mail at jeffjay@brightonhospital.org. Jeff and Debra Jay live in Grosse Pointe Farms.

MOPS

St. James Lutheran Church, 170 McMillan in Grosse Pointe Farms, has received a charter for a Mothers of Preschoolers (MOPS) program. MOPS is an international program designed to nurture mothers of preschoolers while providing child care and Christian educational programs for their children. The St. James program is the first on Detroit's east side.

Mothers join together to discuss issues related to parenting and to women. The group will begin meeting on Jan. 15, 2001. For more information or to register, call the church at (313) 884-0511.

Biopsy procedure is strong predictor of metastasized melanoma

A diagnostic procedure now being tested for breast cancer is being used for detecting the spread of melanoma.

Known as the sentinel node biopsy, the procedure identifies the first lymph node, or sentinel node, that is considered the pathway to the body. This node allows the cancer to spread, or metastasize. By dissecting and examining the sentinel node, surgical oncologists can determine whether a complete lymph node dissection is necessary to stop the spread of cancer.

"Sentinel lymph nodes are a strong markers for predicting disease recurrence and morbidity in melanoma patients," said Dr. Cheryl Wesen, a surgical oncologist at St. John Hospital and Medical Center. "Sentinel node biopsy allows us to examine the first draining lymph node more thoroughly and with special stains."

Up to four hours before the biopsy, the patient is injected with a radioactive isotope in the area around the melanoma. At the time of surgery, a blue mapping dye is injected to identify the drainage route of the primary cancer. A gamma probe is used to identify the sentinel node, which is then removed, sectioned and examined closely for evidence of cancer.

"If the sentinel node is cancer-free, the remaining lymph nodes are presumed to also be cancer-free," Wesen said. "If cancer is found, a complete node basin dissection would be carried out."

Clinical trials around the country have shown that the sentinel node biopsy is more than 99 percent accurate in predicting whether the remaining lymph nodes contain cancer cells. Wesen is also using the sentinel node procedure on breast cancer patients in clinical trials at St. John Hospital. It is hoped that one day surgeons will be able to omit the axillary dissection in selected breast cancer patients based on sentinel node information.

Historical Society sponsors aviation lecture

The Grosse Pointe Historical Society will present a free lecture by John A. Bluth, the author of a book to be called "Detroit, the Aviation Capital of the USA." The talk is part of the society's Bicknell lecture series and will begin at 7:30 p.m. Wednesday, Nov. 15, at the Grosse Pointe War Memorial.

Bluth will tell how automotive pioneers led Detroit to seek and expect to be the aviation capital of the world. In the decade between 1910 and 1920, the creation of the Detroit Aviation society led to Detroit becoming a major supplier of aircraft and its components. Many Grosse Pointers were members of the society. Russell M. Alger Jr. of Grosse Pointe was one of the first men to own his own airplane and was the first man to land a plane on water.

His sister, Josephine, was the first woman to fly in an airplane. Remember the song, "Come Josephine in my flying machine?"

Bluth is a Wayne State University graduate and has worked in advertising and marketing communications. He is also an aviator.

The lecture is free, but reservations must be made by calling the historical society's office at (313) 884-7010.

Wayne County to postpone flu clinics

The Wayne County Department of Public Health has postponed all of its flu clinics because of influenza vaccine shipment delays.

When the vaccine is available, the Health Department officials will notify senior centers and other service sites so that clients can be notified to come for the shots.

"We want to make our residents aware that this is only a delay and not a shortage," said Dr. Donald Lawrenchuk, medical director for the Wayne County Department of Public Health. "We will work closely with vaccine manufacturers to ensure the availability of flu vaccine to minimize any risks associated with vaccine delays."

For more information, call (734) 727-7000.

Smokeout is Thursday, Nov. 16

The American Cancer Society will host the 24th Great American Smokeout on Thursday, Nov. 16. The purpose? Help millions of smokers kick the habit and to help young people understand the importance of never starting to smoke.

This year's Great American Smokeout will focus on the efforts to ensure clean indoor air and the education of the public about secondhand smoke.

On Thursday, smokers will be asked to put down their cigarettes, cigars, spit tobacco or any tobacco product.

3,500 settlers. Gen. Hull was in charge and he was terrified of the British, or more precisely, their Indian allies.

Roth and Dolega became interested in reenacting through different means. Roth said he always loved history and was a shooter. He tried black powder shooting and started reading about the periods in which black powder guns were used. It was a natural progression to become a re-enactor.

Dolega said different people take reenacting to different levels. He enjoys visiting the 18th century, but he also said nothing beats a hot shower.

"We have the best of both worlds," said Caripidis. "We have the romance of the 18th century and the modern conveniences of the 21st."

"I like getting away from faxes and telephones and e-mail," Diane Dolega said. "You can go back and you learn how it's possible to live without that stuff for a while."

Roth said that he found out he could really do with less and still be happy.

One of the things that re-enactors do is research. Michigan offers them a couple of excellent sources of information about life 200 years ago.

"There's the Clarence Burton Historical Collection at the Detroit Public Library," Tom Dolega said. "(Burton) was a lawyer in early Detroit. He did a lot of property law and his records show a lot of the original property divisions. He and his son took up history and they had a lot of old manuscripts."

There is also the Clements Collection in Ann Arbor. It has a lot of manuscripts from the old Northwest Territory days. These include records from traders and early inhabitants.

"I think we've all accumulated a pile of books on the history of Michigan," Caripidis said. "That's not unusual."

"You go from collecting knives and guns to collecting books," said Roth. "You can have only so many beads. With the Internet you can now access so much more material."

Metro Detroit has a fairly active re-enactor community, said Tom Dolega. There are events going on in the state through much of the spring, summer and fall months. Things tend to slow down during the winter. Anyone can become involved in the activity as long as they have a willingness to learn.

"I tell people who are starting off to take it slow," said Roth. "You can dump a pile of cash that's not right for the period you're interested in or that you end up not liking. A lot of the stuff you see us carry is handmade. As you get into reenacting you become more hands on and learn how to make things. What you don't make, you barter, just like they did in the old days."

"That's part of the fun," said Camapini." Learning how things were done back then and getting the satisfaction of doing it yourself.

Diane Dolega said that everyone has a craft they specialize in. Bartering is part of the fun as well.

There are many clubs in the area that those interested in becoming active in the re-enacting field can contact.

The St. Clair Voyagers meet at the Nature Center at Metro Beach. They can be reached by calling (810) 463-4332.

There are also the shooting clubs L'Etoile du Nord and the Clinton River

Turkey eggplant casserole is low-fat, low carb

The weekdays turn into the weekend. You turn around and it's Monday again.

Busy moms will be thrilled with this super quick and easy (not to mention delicious) oven baked turkey and eggplant casserole. With less than 30 minutes prep time and a little over an hour in the oven, this main meal dish is a great mid-week supper choice.

Turkey and Eggplant Casserole

1 1/4 lbs. ground turkey
1 large onion, coarsely chopped
3 garlic cloves, minced
1 large red bell pepper, seeded and diced
1 large green bell pepper, seeded and diced
1 large can (28 oz.) crushed tomatoes
1 large (1 1/2 lbs.) eggplant, skin on, cut in large cubes
3/4 cup Italian bread crumbs
1 teaspoon dried basil
1/4 cup grated Parmesan cheese

Preheat oven to 350 degrees. Prepare the onion, peppers and eggplant and set aside. In a large, no-stick Dutch oven, cook together the turkey, onion and garlic over medium to high heat until the meat is browned — about 8 minutes or so.

Add the peppers, tomatoes, eggplant, bread crumbs and basil. Bring the pot to a boil and cook for just a few minutes, stirring constantly.

Transfer the mixture into a greased 9-by-13-inch glass baking dish and cover with foil. Bake at 350 degrees for 45 to 50 minutes (until the vegetables are thoroughly cooked).

Remove foil. Sprinkle with Parmesan cheese and return to the oven for an additional 15 minutes until the cheese becomes a golden brown. Remove from the oven and allow to rest for 5 to 10 minutes before serving.

This low-fat, low-carb entree is great by itself or served over cooked pasta or rice. The key is to cut the vegetables into larger pieces — otherwise you will end up with a dish of tasty mush.

Try it, you'll like it.

South keeps rolling in state football playoffs; Big Reds next

By Chuck Klonke
Sports Editor

Grosse Pointe South's latest victory in the state football playoffs reminded coach Mike McLeod of something former Michigan State coach George Perles said at a clinic McLeod attended last winter.

"He said, 'boys do what they want to do and men do what they have to do,'" McLeod said. "We have a team of men here. They've done the job."

South got key contributions from the offense, defense and special teams last Saturday in an impressive 19-0 victory over Sterling Heights on the Stallions' home field.

Now the job gets even tougher.

The Blue Devils play at Chippewa Valley on Friday at 7 p.m. and the Big Reds bring a 10-1 record into the game.

"They're an outstanding team. They're big, strong and fast and we'll certainly have our hands full," McLeod said. "But they're going to have to beat us. We can win this game if we continue to play as a team, like we have been doing. People have been stepping up for us in every game."

Chippewa Valley is led by running back Mike Lomasney, who has rushed for more than 2,000 yards this season. The Big Reds also have a fine quarterback in Greg Kastl.

McLeod promised one thing from his team.

"We're going to hit, that's for sure," he said.

That's what South did against Sterling Heights, which had beaten the Blue Devils 27-20 when the teams met during the Macomb Area Conference White Division season. But this time it was all South.

The Blue Devils intercepted four passes, sacked quarterback Kenny Schwinck six times and hurried him on several other occasions, blocked one punt and forced a mistake on another and held the Stallions to minus one yard rushing.

Sterling Heights had only seven first downs in the game and one of those was on a pass interference penalty against South.

"We knew we had to put more pressure on their quarterback this time," McLeod said. "We felt that's what hurt us in the last game.

"We even had some sacks against the three-step drop, which is hard to do."

Matt Santoro, who moved to outside linebacker to replace the injured Haider Samhat, had an outstanding game blitzing Schwinck. He also had one of the four interceptions.

South took advantage of a couple of Sterling Heights mistakes to get on the scoreboard with 7 1/2 minutes remaining in the first half.

Chris Getz blocked a punt and South took over on the Sterling Heights 32-yard line. The Blue Devils were penalized for an illegal formation, but they got that yardage back on a 10-yard run by Jason Kline. On the next play, Julian Danko picked up five yards and the Stallions got a personal foul penalty that moved the ball to the 11.

On the next play, quarterback Andrew Vlasak found Brian Berschback in the corner of the end zone for the touchdown. The extra-point attempt was blocked.

Sterling Heights picked up a couple of first downs on its next possession but Paul Lochirco jumped in front of a screen pass by Schwinck and returned the interception 57 yards for a touchdown. Rob Rogers added the extra point.

"We practiced that a million times last week — every third or fourth play," McLeod said. "The screen hurt us in the last game against them."

That's where South's scout team played a key role in the victory, especially Kevin Barry.

Barry played the part of Mitch May, who is the Stallions' main offensive threat, and turned in an Oscar-winning performance.

"On most teams, Kevin would be a starting receiver, but we have such a strong receiving corps," McLeod said. "He really took a

Week starts well for North

By Chuck Klonke
Sports Editor

A couple of events Monday brought a smile to the face of Grosse Pointe North girls basketball coach Gary Bennett.

One was the district tournament draw. The other was the Norsemen's practice.

"It was a good practice for the first time in quite a while," Bennett said. "The team I know was back, except of course for Stephanie (Rose)."

Rose is out for the rest of the season with a stress fracture in her foot but Jill Bramos, who broke her wrist a couple of weeks ago, resumed practicing for the first time since the mishap.

"Jill doesn't have to score, but it will help to have her rebounding and her defense," Bennett said.

Bennett was encouraged by the practice because North is in the midst of its toughest week of the season.

The Norsemen played Chippewa on Tuesday and they'll host Fraser, tonight, Nov. 9, in a battle for first place in the Macomb Area Conference White Division. The Ramblers' only division loss was to North.

"Those are both games we could lose if we don't start playing better," Bennett said after the Norsemen improved to 18-0 overall and 12-0 in the MAC White with victories over Sterling Heights (41-30) and Roseville (55-50).

"And we didn't play well in either of our games last week."

The district tournament draw pleased Bennett because host Regina and Grosse Pointe South meet on Monday's opening night. North plays Detroit Finney at 6 p.m. in the opener of the doubleheader.

"I'm really pleased because we won't have to play both Regina and South this year," Bennett said.

The district has traditionally been a three-team battle between North, South and Regina with the Detroit Public School League teams offering little in the way of competition.

Sterling Heights, which is struggling this season, played North even in the second half, but the Norsemen's 25-12 cushion they built in the first half was enough.

"Sterling never gave up and in the second half they decided they could compete with us," Bennett said. "They had our lead down to eight points at one time."

Bennett said that the play of Beth Bigham was the difference in both of North's wins last week.

"She scored eight points, but that doesn't begin to tell the story," Bennett said. "If we didn't have Beth last week, we'd have probably lost both games.

"She did an excellent job defensively, especially on the zone press we used against Sterling Heights."

Natalie Potthoff led North with 14 points against the Stallions.

Bigham also had an excellent all-around game against Roseville as she collected nine points, five assists and five steals. Again her defensive work was a key factor.

Potthoff led North with 19 points, offsetting the 19 scored by Roseville's Corisa Ahee. Potthoff made seven of eight from the free-throw line.

Jaime Francis finished with eight points, nine assists and six steals and Margaret McMann had eight points and did a good job running the offense in the fourth quarter.

"If Roseville had played better defense we would have lost this game because we couldn't stop them," Bennett said. "Ahee shot over us and they scored a lot of points off the dribble."

North led 28-21 at halftime but Roseville came back to tie the game at 34-all in the third quarter before the Norsemen regained the lead.

ULS takes Mustangs to OT

By Chuck Klonke
Sports Editor

John Bandos got a chance to showcase his University Liggett School girls basketball team last week and he was pleased with what they showed.

The Knights didn't win the Metro Conference showdown with Lutheran North in front of the largest crowd of the season in the ULS gym — the Mustangs won 56-50 in overtime — but it was a gritty performance by the Knights.

"I know how hard these girls have worked since the end of last season and I wanted to share it with our fans," Bandos said. "They had to enjoy what they saw. I'm really proud of the way they played."

It was a matter of ULS running out of gas against the deeper, faster Lutheran North squad.

ULS led 12-4 after one quarter with Maria Lewis scoring eight of her 13 points.

North tied the game at 19-19 on a layup by Andrea Wingfield with just over three minutes left in the first half, but the Knights scored the last 10 points of the half to lead 29-19 at the break. Alexa Davenport had nine points during the 10-0 run, including a three-pointer that triggered the spurt.

The Mustangs cut the lead to four points early in the second half but ULS came back to outscore North 7-1 in the final two minutes of the third quarter to take a 38-28 lead into the fourth quarter.

With Wingfield and Melissa Manthei leading the way, North cut the ULS lead to 45-44 with 3:10 remaining in regulation.

Kia Williamson, who hit five of six free throws in the fourth quarter for the Knights, gave ULS a 48-46 lead with 2:14 left but a basket by Chrissie Dryer with 1:16 to play tied the game at 48-48.

Neither team scored again in regulation, although ULS had the ball with 13 seconds to play. The Knights took a jumper at the buzzer but it fell short.

Dryer and Lewis traded baskets to start the overtime but Dryer scored again on a layup with 2:25 remaining to put North ahead to stay.

"They're faster than we are and we just got [illegible]

Bandos said. "But until then, we gave them all they could ask for."

Sherma Brown had 12 points, six steals and three assists for ULS. Davenport finished with 11 points. Terry led ULS with eight rebounds and Courtney Hills had six.

Dawn Espy came off the bench again and gave the Knights a lift defensively. She also made all four of her free-throw attempts.

Wingfield led North with 21 points and Manthei had 18 points and 14 rebounds.

The win improved the Mustangs' league record to 15-0 and clinched the outright championship. ULS dropped to 13-2 in the Metro Conference.

Earlier, the Knights beat Harper Woods 48-38 to set up the first-place showdown with North.

The game was tied at 31-all going into the fourth quarter but ULS outscored the Pioneers 17-7 in the final eight minutes.

"We picked up on defense in the fourth quarter," Bandos said. "We didn't have the same intensity as

Knights booters bow out of state tourney in style

By Chuck Klonke
Sports Editor

University Liggett School won't repeat as Division IV state boys soccer champions this year, but coach David Backhurst isn't going to follow in the footsteps of former Lions coach Bobby Ross.

He's proud of the way his team performed, not embarrassed like Ross was after the Lions' dismal performance against Miami last Sunday. The performance bothered Ross so much that he resigned the next day.

"When I heard Ross talk about a team being an extension of a coach, I agreed with him," Backhurst said. "I want my teams to fight to the bitter end and step up for the big games and they always have. I can't ever remember being upset by a weaker opponent."

ULS was beaten 2-1 in the Division IV regional final at Lutheran East by Oakland Christian.

"When I saw Oakland Christian play after our (regional semifinal) game last week, I was impressed," Backhurst said. "They're a top-notch club. I wouldn't be surprised if they win the state championship.

"They're real quick. They have excellent skills and they're well-coached. I thought after seeing them that we could be embarrassed, but they did me proud. The kids went all out and had a chance to win right to the end."

The momentum from ULS' thrilling 3-1 semifinal victory over Saginaw Valley Lutheran carried into the final and the Knights dominated the early part of the game.

But Oakland Christian got on the scoreboard first at 12:53 when Benjamin Pirmann scored on a rebound after ULS goalie Calvin Ford made a good save on Peter Royse's header off a free kick.

"I thought we could be in for a long night after that," Backhurst said. "It was like a track meet for the rest of the first half."

The Lancers outshot the Knights 12-1 in the first half but the score remained 1-0 at halftime.

Only 3:17 into the second half, ULS' Todd Callahan sent a pass to freshman Chris MacGriff, who dropped a left-footed shot over the Oakland Christian goalie to tie the game at 1-1.

With about 20 minutes left in regulation, the Lancers got a free kick. ULS set up the wall, but Royse curled the ball around the wall and into the net.

"He had so much spin on it that it handcuffed Calvin," Backhurst said. "It was a great shot by a great player."

That was all that Oakland Christian needed but the Lancers had some uneasy moments as the Knights had some good chances to tie the game, including a shot by Nick DiLoreto that hit the goal post and deflected out of danger.

"We had the opportunities but we just couldn't get the ball into the net," Backhurst said. ULS outshot the Lancers 11-4 in the second half.

Among the outstanding performances by the Knights was the defensive work turned in by Carl Coughlin on Oakland Christian's Adam Hallett, who moved from forward to attack midfield.

Andrew Yee did a good job of marking Royse, whose only goal came on the free kick. Andrew Byron and Matt Hollerbach also played well on defense as ULS allowed only four goals in four state tournament games.

The loss to Oakland Christian came on the heels of one of ULS' most memorable victories.

"Considering the importance of the game, it was our greatest comeback," Backhurst said of the 3-1 win over Valley Lutheran.

The Chargers had taken a 1-0 lead midway through the first half on a goal by Tim Grimpo.

"That was a result of a series of mistakes on our part," Backhurst said.

Although ULS had a slight territorial advantage for most of the game, the Knights couldn't create many good scoring chances.

Valley Lutheran just missed a chance to increase its lead to 2-0 with about 20 minutes left in the game when Ford made a diving one-handed save.

That seemed to spark ULS, which got its first corner kick of the second half with just under 17 minutes to play.

"We've been pretty successful with our corner kicks," Backhurst said.

Valley Lutheran goalie Andy Schwarz made a good save on a header by Scott Vallee with 12:48 remaining, then stopped Vallee again with 10 minutes to go.

Finally the Knights broke through. MacGriff took a corner kick and slipped a short pass to DiLoreto, who fed Vallee in front and he headed it past Schwarz with 7:47 to play to tie the game at 1-1.

ULS had an apparent goal disallowed on an offside with 5:40 left, but with 2:28 to go DiLoreto got an excellent pass from Steve Buhalis and fired the ball in from the edge of the crease.

"He showed great concentration because the goalie came out and leveled him," Backhurst said. "If Nick hadn't scored, I'm sure it would have been a penalty kick."

DiLoreto gave ULS an insurance goal with 33 seconds remaining after being set up by a fine pass from Vallee.

"We saved our best for last," Backhurst said of the Knights' tournament run.

ULS, which had been plagued by injuries all season, finished with an 11-10-1 overall record.

pounding from our first defensive unit during the week. I've always said, you're only as good as your scout teams."

South ate up more than seven minutes at the start of the second half when the Blue Devils took the kickoff and marched to the Sterling Heights five, where a 22-yard field goal attempt failed.

South did a nice job of mixing the running of Kline and Danko with the passing of Vlasak during the drive.

Early in the fourth quarter, Sterling Heights was forced to punt from its 25-yard line but the snap was low and under pressure from the Blue Devils' punt return unit, Bill Scyphers went to his knee to field the ball and South took over on the Stallions' 12.

Five plays later, Vlasak scored on a one-yard sneak.

"Getz blocked the one punt, but it's really a three-man effort between him, (Steve) Pawlowski and (Craig) Freimuth," McLeod said. "You need all three to make it work. Our rush was the reason they didn't get that (punt) off."

Sean O'Sullivan and Jarrett Svendsen each had strong games at defensive tackle, while Danko and Mark Fragel also played well at the ends. Inside linebackers Mark Peppler and Luke Parchment also had solid efforts.

"O'Sullivan had his seventh sack of the season, which is outstanding because of the way we use our inside people," McLeod said.

"Lochirco had his best game and Paul has had a lot of them this year."

Lochirco had two interceptions and Parchment made one to end a Sterling Heights drive at the South 35 late in the game.

"We had a lot of people step up again," McLeod said. "Kline had some big runs when we needed them and Danko did another great job of blocking for him. Vlasak has been outstanding in both playoff games."

South, which hadn't won a state playoff football game since beating Warren Lincoln in 1987, takes an 8-3 record into Friday's game with Chippewa Valley.

we did against North. When we pick up on defense, it makes the offense go."

Lewis led ULS with 24 points and she made 10 of 15 free throws. She also had eight rebounds. Brown had seven points, seven steals and five assists.

Williamson pulled down nine rebounds, one more than Terry collected.

ULS begins state tournament play Wednesday at 5:30 p.m. against Detroit CMA at Dominican High.

Blue Devils pull out an OT win

By Chuck Klonke
Sports Editor

It was Halloween and the offensive performances by both Grosse Pointe South and Port Huron Northern were pretty scary.

"It was a combination of both teams having a lot of defensive intensity and neither team shooting well," South coach Peggy Van Eckoute said after the Blue Devils' 33-31 overtime victory in the Macomb Area Conference Red Division game.

The first quarter ended with the teams tied 2-2. The Huskies hit a three-point basket at the buzzer ending the first half to give them a 10-8 advantage at the break.

Sophomore Liz Halpin hit a basket in the final seconds of regulation to tie the game at 29-29 and force the overtime.

Northern scored the first two points of the overtime but Megan Shapiro, who had an outstanding all-around game, pulled South into a tie with a pair of free throws. Then Judy Turnbull scored on a layup with only seconds remaining in the overtime to give the Blue Devils the win. Those were Turnbull's only two points of the game.

It was the second time this year that a South-PHN game had gone down to the final seconds. In the earlier meeting, Shapiro hit a pair of free throws to give the Blue Devils a 47-45 win.

"Northern switched to a zone this time and it bothered us," Van Eckoute said. "We had open shots but we couldn't make them."

Shapiro led the way with 14 points, all in the second half. She also had six rebounds, seven assists and five steals.

Halpin finished with six points and four steals and Sylvia Ridgway grabbed nine rebounds and had two steals.

Lawren Morawski made three free throws in the fourth quarter to keep the Blue Devils within striking distance.

South followed that effort with a 53-40 loss to defending state Class A champion Utica.

"We were down only nine at halftime and six in the third quarter but then (Lindsay) Pasquinzo got hot and we couldn't keep (Julie) Pritchard off the boards," Van Eckoute said. "We tried all of our post people but we couldn't hold her out. She was the difference more than Pasquinzo."

By the end of the third quarter the Chieftains had increased their lead to 11 points.

Shapiro continued her fine week with 20 points, five rebounds, two assists and two steals. Lauren Harrington had four points and four rebounds and Turnbull finished with three points and five rebounds.

Pasquinzo, who was held scoreless by Mount Clemens in her previous game, bounced back to score 20 points.

South begins state tournament play on Monday at 7:30 p.m. against Regina, which is hosting the Class A district.

The Blue Devils are 5-7 in the MAC Red and 8-10 overall.

North, South swimmers shine

The crosstown rivalry brought out the best in both teams as Grosse Pointe North defeated Grosse Pointe South 106-80 in a Macomb Area Conference Red Division girls swimming meet.

One of the highlights for North was a pool record by the 200-yard freestyle relay team of Melissa Jamerino, Cassy Miller, Kammy Miller and Carly Piper. Its winning time was 1:40.34.

North won all but two events, but South's depth kept the meet close. The Blue Devils picked up some key points in the 200 medley and 200 freestyle relays by taking second and third places in each.

Piper won the 200 freestyle in 1:56.1 and the 500 freestyle in 5:05.66. Kammy Miller had firsts in the 100 butterfly (59.71) and the 100 breaststroke (1:09.41).

North's other individual firsts came from Kristin Shelden in the 200 individual medley (2:20.3), Jamerino in the 100 freestyle (54.48) and Dianna Anderson in diving.

South's Molly O'Loughlin was first in the 50 freestyle (24.86), edging Jamerino in a very close race. O'Loughlin's time was a personal best. Mariana Anderle gave the Blue Devils their other first when she won the 100 backstroke in 1:05.42.

Katie Anderson, Shelden and the Millers gave North a first place in the 200 medley relay (1:54.98). The Norsemen's winning 400 freestyle relay team of Jamerino, Shelden, Brit Otrhalek and Piper was clocked in 3:51.19.

South's Lindsay Rodin was second in both the 200 freestyle and 100 butterfly, while O'Loughlin was runner-up in the 100 freestyle. Maria Dzul gave the Blue Devils a second in the 100 breaststroke and diver Kealy Sloan was also a runner-up in her event.

South does well at MISCA meet

Grosse Pointe South's girls swimming team made a strong showing at the recent Michigan Interscholastic Swimming Coaches Association meet at Eastern Michigan University.

The highlight of the competition for the Blue Devils was a second-place finish in the 200-yard freestyle relay. South's team of Molly O'Loughlin, Amber Rodin, Ashley Wenk and Lindsay Rodin posted a time of 1:39.43, beating their effort of a year ago.

The 400 freestyle relay team also made a good showing as the team of Allison Clark, Wenk and the Rodin sisters finished eighth in 3:44.1.

There were also several fine individual performances for South.

O'Loughlin was fifth in the 50 freestyle in 24.65 and seventh in the 100 freestyle. Her 100 time of 54.24 broke South's varsity record.

Lindsay Rodin was third in the 200 freestyle with a personal-best time of 1:55.8. She also finished eighth in the 100 freestyle with a 54.41 clocking.

Clark has been working toward a state qualifying time in the 500 freestyle and she finally achieved it with a time of 5:18.51.

Amber Rodin was 17th in the 50 freestyle (25.49) and Wenk was 25th in the 100 butterfly (1:02.48) and 28th in the 100 backstroke (1:05.02).

Sophomore Marianna Anderle, participating in her first major meet, did well with a 30th place in the 100 backstroke (1:05.16). Senior captains Julie Mazer-Schmidt and Dianne Upmeyer and sophomore Maria Dzul swam well in relays.

The meet annually attracts the top swimmers from more than 40 schools from around the state. No team scores are kept in the meet, which is designed to provide competition that will prepare swimmers for the state meet.

ULS finishes with 1-0 victory

University Liggett School's field hockey team finished its regular season with a 1-0 victory over Ann Arbor Greenhills.

The win enabled the Knights to finish the season with an 8-3-1 record and gave them the No. 3 seed in the state tournament. Greenhills wound up 7-2-3 and was seeded fifth.

The game's only goal came on a tip-in by Laura Roberts late in the first half. It was Roberts' team-leading 11th goal of the season.

The rest of the game featured some good scoring opportunities by both teams. ULS goalkeeper Jeanifer Parsigian made three key saves to preserve the shutout.

Other outstanding performances came from senior captains Elizabeth Ralstrom, Devin Crumley and Elizabeth Stone.

Coach Kristin Ahlgren said that freshman Brittany Paquette played her best game of the season. Katie Hollerbach and Suzanne McGoey each made several offensive attacks that kept Greenhills on the defensive.

ULS defenders Jonna Oltoff, Clare Burchi and Annie DiLoreto all played well in stopping the Gryphons' offensive attacks.

Ahlgren said that the game reflected her team's improvement in play and confidence and was an excellent finish to the regular season.

Earlier, ULS defeated Livonia Ladywood 5-1.

Roberts started the scoring with the first of her three goals only four minutes into the game. Ladywood tied the game 18 minutes into the first half, but McGoey scored the first of her two goals to give the Knights a 2-1 halftime lead.

The Ladywood goal served as a wake-up call for ULS, which dominated the second half of the contest.

McGoey scored four goals, two in each half, to lead the Knights to a 4-0 victory over Birmingham Marian.

Crumley, Tracey Greene and Paquette each had assists. Parsigian made three saves to earn the shutout.

ULS dropped a 2-1 decision to Ann Arbor Pioneer in a battle of teams that were ranked 1-2 in the league at the time.

Pioneer, which beat the Knights 2-1 in last year's state championship game, had the edge in experience against ULS, which returned only two starters from the 1999 squad.

Pioneer led 2-0 at halftime, despite several good scoring chances by the Knights. With 56 seconds

White Dragons second at Romeo

The Grosse Pointe Soccer Association White Dragons '89 took second place in the under-12 girls division of the Romeo Peachfest tournament.

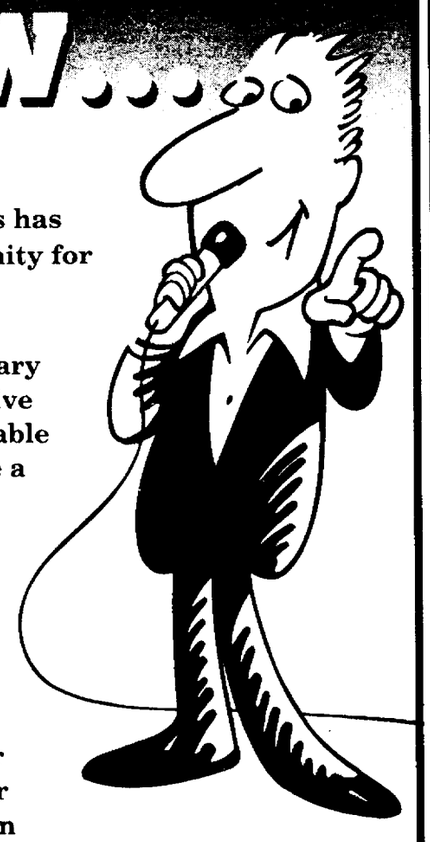

The White Dragons reached the championship game with a 5-3 win over Ann Arbor United in the semifinals.

Forwards Jessie Vertregt, Elizabeth McCaughey and Ashley DeLong were the goal scorers for Grosse Pointe in that contest.

Goalie Grace D'Arcy also played a strong game with solid defensive support from Jenna Lankford, Caroline Sweeny, Kathy Holm and Elissa Bogosian.

Other contributions during the tournament came from forwards Kate Swenson and Elise Arsenault and midfielders Erika Menchl, Danielle Przepiorka, Martha Everett and Danielle Hawley.

Red Barons varsity rolls past two more rivals

With the offensive line dominating, the Grosse Pointe Red Barons varsity scored an easy 41-6 victory over the Warren Jets.

The Barons scored on their first four possessions of the game and finished with more than 250 yards in total offense.

"The offensive line did a great job," said coach Brett Kurily, whose team improved to 6-1. "The holes were huge."

Kurily especially mentioned the play of linemen Mike Rau, Scott Koppinger, Tom Ciotti, Shawn Curran and Graham Carron.

The play that best showed their dominance occurred in the second quarter when Willie Bryant scored on a 20-yard run to make it 29-0.

"On that play, the hole was from hash mark to hash mark," Kurily said. "No one touched Bryant on the play."

The Barons took control of the game early, scoring on their first possession, with Tommy Peltz scoring on a one-yard run. Brian St. Hilaire kicked the two-point conversion.

On the next offensive play, Kyle Debets intercepted a pass at the Warren 42. After a 24-yard run by Cameron Cecchini, Chase Mitchelson scored from the one and St. Hilaire's kick made it 16-0.

St. Hilaire recovered a Warren fumble and Tom Paglia scored on a 20-yard run. Austin McClung ran for the conversion.

After Max Yankley's fumble recovery set up Bryant's touchdown, Paglia completed the first-half scoring with a 50-yard run to make it 35-0.

Bill Matouk capped the Red Barons' scoring with a two-yard run in the third quarter.

In other games against the Jets, the Red Barons junior varsity lost 12-0 and the freshmen team posted an exciting 20-13 victory.

The junior varsity had trouble moving the ball consistently on offense but it turned in one of its best defensive efforts of the season.

The key moments of the game occurred at the end of the first half. With the game scoreless, the Jets intercepted a pass and returned it to the Barons' 10-yard line with 10 seconds left in the half.

After a pass interference call at the five-yard line, the Jets' Eric Vanderbeke caught a touchdown pass as time expired to make it 6-0. Warren scored with two minutes remaining in the fourth quarter to clinch the victory.

The Barons got a solid running effort from Brendan Howe and good defensive play from several players, including Paul Brosnan, Jamie Sheppard, Danny Dempsey and Matt Koppinger.

The freshmen improved their record to 4-1-2 with another solid effort.

Quarterback Mark Riashi again led the offense, demonstrating passing skills that equal some of the league's varsity quarterbacks.

A 40-yard pass from Riashi to Jim Saros set up the first touchdown, a six-yard run by John Guest. After Stephen Reaume's three-yard touchdown run made it 13-0, Warren scored late in the first half to cut the lead to 13-6.

The Barons took a commanding 20-6 lead when Riashi threw a 42-yard touchdown pass to the speedy Saros with 3:24 left in the third quarter.

The Jets launched a late rally to make the game interesting. Warren's Jeff Weeks scored on a 92-yard run with two minutes remaining to cut the lead to 20-13. Warren got the ball back with 30 seconds remaining but the game ended dramatically when Jeff Simon tackled Ben Smith in the open field at the Barons' 35-yard line as time expired.

A relieved coach Jack Monark praised the play of Guest, Riashi, Reaume, linebacker Joey Kurily, guards Charles Thornton and Clayton Carter and lineman Peter Hamann.

Red Barons-Imlay City

To put it mildly, the Red Barons' offense was hot.

Scoring almost at will, the Red Barons defeated the Imlay City Storm 44-0.

"We scored so many times, so quickly," said an amazed coach Brett Kurily.

The statistics were impressive. The Barons ran only 18 offensive plays in the game, yet scored seven rushing touchdowns.

Cameron Cecchini and Bryan Dempsey each scored two touchdowns. Scott Thursam, Max Yankley and Tom Paglia also scored.

Cecchini's touchdowns came on runs of 77 and 10 yards. Dempsey's were both on 36-yard runs. Thursam opened the scoring with a four-yard run, Yankley scored from a yard out and Paglia ran in from 50 yards.

Kyle Debets set up Cecchini's second touchdown with an interception, while Brad Herman's 48-yard punt return set up Yankley's score.

Kurily credited the play of coach Sal Maiorana's offensive line, which opened big holes all day. It was also the second shutout in three games for coach Tom Borland's defense.

In the other games, the Red Barons junior varsity lost 25-0 to the Storm and the freshman team had an easy 38-0 victory.

The junior varsity had trouble moving the ball, picking up only five first downs.

But a spirited defense kept the Barons in the game early. An interception by Kyle South gave the Barons the ball at the Imlay City 15-yard line in the first quarter but Grosse Pointe was stopped on downs.

Imlay City finally scored with 8:17 left in the second quarter to take a 6-0 lead. The Storm took control of the game by scoring with less than two minutes remaining in the half to make it 13-0.

Danny Dempsey had two interceptions for the Barons. Other top defenders were Mike D'Agnese and James Cotzias.

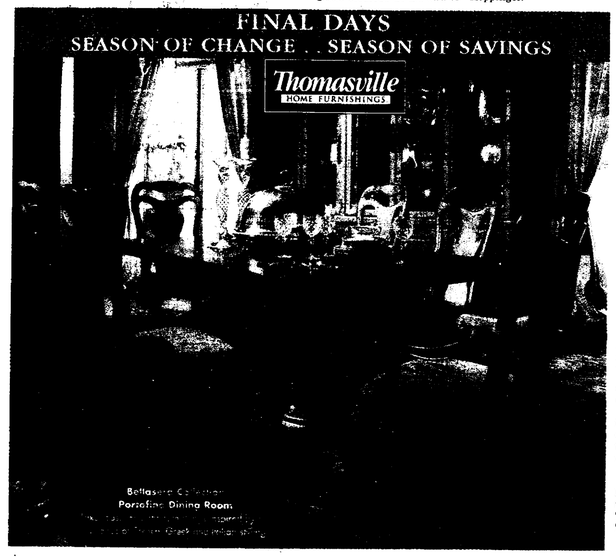

Although it's winless, the junior varsity continues to gain valuable experience each week. Under coach Doug Luttenberger's system, each player receives a lot of playing time.

Meanwhile, most of the JV's opponents play their top players on offense and defense and limit the playing time of their less-skilled players.

In the freshman game, Steve Reaume ran for two touchdowns and Jimmy Saros, Mark Riashi, Jack Monark and Joey Kurily also scored rushing touchdowns.

Reaume scored on a 54-yard run on the Barons' first play from scrimmage. The Barons scored on their first four possessions to take a 26-0 halftime lead.

There were several strong performances for the Grosse Pointe team. Coach Jack Monark singled out the play of Jeff Simon, Ryan Gillum, Peter Hamann, Jeff Burns, Pat Pawlowski, Charlie Thornton, Nick Sterr and Robby Mullinger.

Bulldogs win Ohio tourney

The Grosse Pointe Hockey Association Squirt AA Bulldogs made a clean sweep of the Sylvania (Ohio) Faceoff Tournament.

The Bulldogs capped their tournament triumph with a 5-2 win over the host Sylvania Maple Leafs.

The Maple Leafs returned nearly the entire squad that had won the Little Caesars Amateur Hockey League playoffs at Joe Louis Arena last March but they were not match for the Bulldogs, who combined offensive speed, tight defense and excellent goaltending for a complete team victory.

Most Valuable Players in the qualifying games were Tim Tibaudo, goalie Brittany Ott and Tim Shield. In the championship game, the defensive unit of Mike Zukas, Scott Maxwell, Tony Jacobson, Evan Skorupski and Brady Savage shared the honor.

In their early round games, the Bulldogs beat the Dearborn AFI Thunder 8-2, the Indianapolis Checkers 3-2 and the Jackson Eagles 4-3.

ULS

remaining in the game, Roberts scored the ULS goal. McGoey had the assist.

Roberts and Greene each scored two goals and Hollerbach had a goal and two assists in the Knights 5-0 victory over Dearborn Edsel Ford.

McGoey also had two assists in the game, which featured outstanding defensive play from Ralstrom, Burchi, DiLoreto and McGoey. Parsigian didn't have to make a save in posting the shutout.

Stone and Crumley also played well in the Knights' fifth win of the season.

ULS won 4-0 over a new squad made up of players from Grosse Pointe North and Grosse Pointe South. The Knights scored three goals in the first half.

McGoey scored twice on powerful shots from about 12 yards out. Roberts tapped in a goal on an assist from Paquette.

Crumley scored the final goal on a breakaway in the final minute.

Freshman Ashley Steitz posted the shutout.

ULS also won the junior varsity game with Grosse Pointe 8-0 as Erika Decker scored three goals. Lakeeya Blue had two goals and Hollerbach, Steitz and Sylvie Ngoyi added one apiece.

Macular Degeneration?

The solution is clear.

Henry Ford offers rehabilitation for adults with low vision.

Life doesn't end with diminished vision. That's why there's the Henry Ford Visual Rehabilitation and Research Center of Michigan. It's designed to improve the quality of life for those with low vision due to macular degeneration and other eye conditions. This includes the latest technology and even home visits for advice on lighting and other home adaptations.

PENRICKTON CENTER FOR BLIND CHILDREN

Penrickton Center is a private non-profit five day residential and day care agency serving blind, multi-disabled children ages 1-12. Because no fees are ever charged to families, all financial support is raised from individuals, service clubs, corporations, and foundations.

Penrickton Center was established in 1952 by three families (Penman, Ricker, Wigginton) as a day nursery for blind preschoolers because no such program existed. Over the years Penrickton Center has changed to meet the needs in the community. Currently, we specialize in treating blind children ages 1-12 with at least one additional handicap such as deafness, cerebral palsy, brain damage, developmental delay and mental retardation.

Most of our children stay with us throughout the week and all children return home to their families on weekends and holidays. Children under six participate in our day care program. In both cases an intense program of training and care is provided to help each child reach their potential. We also provide a consultation/evaluation program to serve those families who may not need our regular services.

All of the blind multi-disabled children we serve receive developmental programming; that is, programs designed to meet the individual needs of the special child. This programming includes individualized training in the areas of self care (eating, dressing, personal care), travel skills, motor skills, and language acquisition. Children in our evalution/consultation program receive recommendations in this area by our professional staff.

To help each child achieve his or her maximum potential requires intensive and personalized involvement by our staff. Currently we have a ratio of one child care staff member for each three children. This does not include ancillary staff such as nursing, social work, program planning, occupational therapy, dance and movement therapy.

Volunteers also play an important role at Penrickton Center. We teach our volunteers how to feed, bathe and play appropriately with blind multi-disabled handicapped children. In addition, volunteers assist in outings to the zoo, parks and on picnics.

Since no fees are ever charged for our services, we continue to need the support of many caring people. Penrickton Center for Blind Children is registered with the Internal Revenue Service as a private non-profit charity 501(c)(3) and with the Michigan Department of Social Services as a child caring facility.

For further information please contact Kurt M. Sebaly, Executive Director or Patricia L. Obrzut, Assistant Director at (734) 946-7500, fax (734) 946-6707.

PENRICKTON CENTER FOR BLIND CHILDREN

Dear Special Friends:

Our son, Nicholas, is a living testament to the difference Penrickton Center for Blind Children can make in a

That's why it is amazing to see Nick at age 13 as he leaves Penrickton Center after two years. From a fragile little boy, he has been molded into a fine young man ready to conquer the world.

Through daily help from Penrickton Center's professional staff, Nick progressed and learned. Despite his cerebral palsy, he can walk with assistance. He knows how to care for himself, instead of relying on others to do everything for him.

Best of all, while living and receiving therapy and care at Penrickton Center during the week, Nick was able to attend regular schools with sighted kids. Today he reads braille, uses a computer, swims and even plays drums.

We could not have found a better place to entrust our son's future, but we know all this would not be possible without caring people like Grosse Pointe Lions Club, who contribute so thoughtfully. Please accept our deepest thanks and continue to help Penrickton Center so other children can follow their path to a bright and hopeful lives!

Sincerely,
Mary & Fred Penfield

Plant now for a bloom of spring fragrance, color

Q. I would like to plant some flower bulbs for spring. What do I plant and are bulbs hard to grow?

A. Now is the time to plant your bulbs. Bulbs are easy to grow when you follow a few basic guidelines. Once you have planted your garden with bulbs many will return to bloom the following years. Your garden can come alive with color starting as soon as the snow starts melting. Crocus, snowdrops, muscari, and grape hyacinth are a few of the early flowering bulbs. It is a pleasure to see the crocus flowering since it means that spring is just around the corner.

Other common spring flowering bulbs include tulips, narcissus and hyacinth. The assortment of spring bulbs doesn't stop there. Add some allium to your mix. With its large purple flower ball, allium plants stand high above the other flowers up to 48 inches tall. The bloom produces a dramatic accent in your landscape throughout early summer.

Fritillaria is another tall flowering bulb. Standing about 36 inches tall this plant produces a cluster of flowers beneath a crown of green foliage. Aurora is an orange colored flower variety and Rubra is a variety with reddish-orange flowers. Fritillaria meleagris is a short variety, only 8 inches high, with purple and white colored blooms. This variety is one of the few that tolerate damp growing conditions.

Before planting your flower bulbs, it's a good idea to make a flowering plan for yourself. By taking into account flowering heights and blooming times your garden can bloom from early March through May. As the flower bulbs start fading your annuals and perennials will be just starting to bloom. Try placing some lower flowering bulbs such as hyacinths or the shorter tulips in the front and taller plants like narcissus and taller tulips in the back. This will add more interest to your plantings. Planting crocus in the lawn will create a natural effect and the bulbs will be finished flowering by the time you start cutting the lawn. There are many varieties of tulips and narcissus to choose from. Why settle for one or two varieties when there are so many to choose from?

Try planting a few containers of bulbs for forcing during the winter months or keep them until spring for showy spring color. Pick up instructions on forcing bulbs from your local garden center. Flowering bulbs in the middle of winter will brighten up even the gloomiest days of winter. Amaryllis and paperwhites are popular choices for forcing. If you plant your amaryllis now you should have flowers just in time for Christmas.

Planting bulbs is easy. The general rule of thumb is to plant bulbs twice as deep as they are high. You will find planting depth guidelines on the box or package of bulbs when you buy them. Buy bulbs that are firm. Your soil should be loose with good drainage. Add compost, manure or peat moss to heavy clay soils or sandy soils to improve the soil consistency. After planting the flower bulbs, you should water the soil well. A layer of mulch will also protect your bulbs during the winter months.

How to silence buzzing bulbs

A dimmer switch is the ideal way to control the lighting levels in each room of your house, but in some circumstances, it can cause light bulbs to produce an irritating buzzing sound. If you've ever experienced this phenomenon and wondered how you can eliminate the buzz, here is some advice:

According to the Leviton Institute, an educational branch of the Leviton Manufacturing Co., the source of the buzz can be either your light bulb or your dimmer. In either case, the problem is simple and inexpensive to correct.

First, try replacing your existing light bulbs with higher quality bulbs from a different manufacturer. In many cases this will resolve the problem.

The reason this simple step can often stop the buzzing has to do with the quality of the two main components inside the bulb, the support posts, and the fine coils of wire, called the filament. When the bulb is turned on, the electric current running through the filament turns it into a magnet (just like the grade-school science experiment where a wire is wrapped around a nail and then connected to a battery, turning the nail into a magnet).

A dimmer switch works by varying the amount of current going to the bulb's filament. When the dimmer is turned all the way up, the bulb gets full power. However, when the dimmer is turned down, less power goes to the bulb, and this causes the magnetic field in the filament to get stronger. As a result, the filament vibrates against the support posts.

If the posts inside the bulb are flimsy, they may "buzz" from the vibration, but if they are sturdier, like those used in most high quality light bulbs, no vibrating sounds will be emitted.

If, after changing the bulb, you still hear the buzz, consider upgrading your dimmer switch. Typically, dimmers in the price range of $25 to $35 will not cause light bulbs to buzz because they do a better job of altering the current going to the light bulbs.

Fall is an excellent time to prune most trees

You may think that the approach of the end of the growing season means you can stop worrying about the trees in your landscape. Think again!

Fall is one of the best times to examine the safety and health of your trees, say experts in tree care. Why?

1. With the leaves off, cracks, defects and deadwood are easier to see.

2. With winter storms approaching, hazards should be removed now — before they damage property.

"Most trees can be pruned year-round," says Robert Rouse, staff arborist for the National Arborist Association (NAA), "and certain operations are easier to do in the fall, when dead branches are easily seen and removed."

Some homeowners worry that arborists will not be able to determine deadwood on a tree when the leaves are off. On the contrary, this is the best time for an arborist to locate deadwood by looking for changes in color, fungus growth, cracks and other symptoms, which help them make this determination. Since the leaves are off, the view of the entire tree's architecture is clear and a thorough check can be performed.

Pruning is much more than the simple act of sawing off limbs. Proper pruning is an art based on scientific principles of plant physiology. At its most basic level, pruning trees involves removing damaged, dead or structurally weak limbs, which will improve a tree's health and reduce the chances of personal or property damage caused by falling limbs.

Professional arborists have the capability to make the tree safer and more attractive looking by pruning live growth as well. Proper pruning encourages growth, increases flower and fruit production, improves plant health, repairs damage and helps add aesthetic appeal to a tree. Pruning at the right time and in the right way is critical, since it is possible to kill a tree through neglect on the one hand, or over-pruning on the other.

If you are unsure about your tree's health or safety, consult a professional arborist who will identify and remove hazards as well as treat the causes of tree health problems. Contact the NAA at (800) 733-2622, or by doing a zip code search on their web site at www.natlarb.com.

Antiques and Collecting

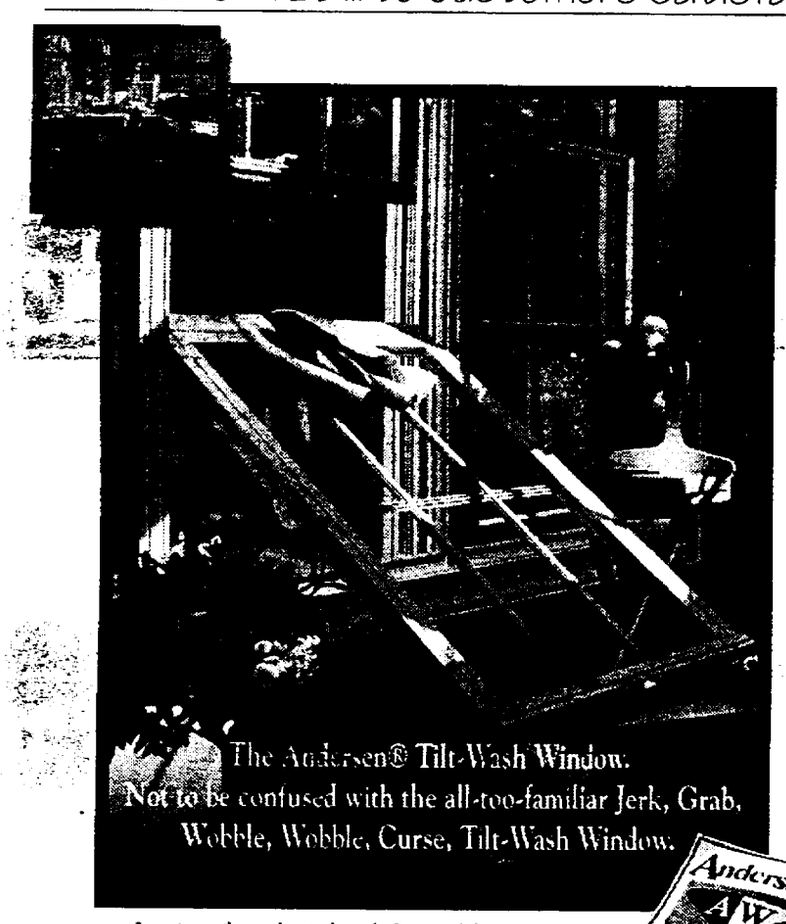

Desks from past centuries were designed to solve problems of the past. Where to place the inkwell? Could there be a locked drawer or a hidden compartment for valuable papers? Could papers be filed in some meaningful way? Would there be a way to hide work and still have an attractive piece of furniture?

The desk of the 1830s used a "fall front." It looked like a large drawer, but it opened into a flat writing surface in front of a section of small drawers. The clever design hid drawers, a space to store messy work and a writing surface that protruded so you could use it without bumping your knees. The closed desk could be kept against a wall, where it took up less space. The fall-front desk, which often had small posts as decoration on the front, was popular in the eastern United States and Midwest for about 20 years. Later, larger and more ornate Victorian pieces came into style. The roll-top desk of Victorian times hid the drawers and writing surface behind a roll-up, slatted top. The Victorian Wooten desk closed two side sections of the desk and all the drawers into a locked "cabinet."

Today's desk must hold a computer monitor, printer and hard drive. It could also have a series of small shelves on top and a few drawers and more storage space on the bottom. Holes are necessary for electrical connections. Like most desks, it is designed to take up as little room as possible. But in the 21st century, it is proper to have the machines and even the papers exposed.

Don't let loose screws or hinges get you down

Q. Mr. Hardware, our heavy French door has several stripped hinge screws. We have replaced the screws with longer and thicker screws and still can't keep them tight. This problem is causing the door to rub at the threshold and on the side near the top. Should I try plastic wall anchors? — Help, Phil.

A. Phil, your problem is not knowing how far the door jamb is shimmed away from the 2- by 4-inch studs in the wall. The door jamb is a 3/4 board, about 6 inches wide. It consists of two sides, a header or top, with a threshold at the bottom. The hinge side is what I want you to visualize.

When the carpenter hangs a door he plumbs the hinge side with tapered wooden shims. This must be done accurately for a door to be properly hung. Sometimes the rough opening is very rough. That is why the guys assembling the first framing of a house are called "roughers" — sorry, guys.

This means the amount of shims between the jamb and the 2- by 4-inch rough opening could exceed 3/4 of an inch. What does all this have to do with a loose hinge? Plenty.

If your door jamb is 3/4-inch thick, with a shimmed air space of 3/4 inch, a 2-inch screw will only penetrate the 2- by 4-inch one half of an inch.

If I'm going to hold up a heavy door, I want the screws to penetrate the 2- by 4-inch at least 1-inch. My choice of a screw for the top hinge is a 2.5-inch screw with a No. 10 diameter. A No. 9 diameter screw is the most common standard with door hinges, but usually a No. 10 does fine.

If you aren't getting a good "bite" with a 2.5-inch screw, don't be afraid to go longer. Three to 3.5 inches is not uncommon for success with a very heavy door.

By Blair Gilbert

As for the plastic anchors, leave them for plaster and cement. They are too slippery to get a grab into wood. If the hole gets too large for a screw, try plugging the hole with a dowel.

Find a wooden dowel with a diameter slightly larger than the damaged hole. Drill a hole in the jamb that is the same size as the dowel. Coat the hole with carpenter's glue and drive the dowel into the hole. Let the glue dry and then trim the dowel flush with the surface. Drill a pilot hole and reinstall the screw. Now this baby should never come loose again.

Send your questions to; Mr. Hardware c/o Gilbert's Pro Hardware at 21912 Harper in St. Clair Shores 48080; call (810) 776-9532, e-mail blair@mrhardware.com, or visit www.mrhardware.com to review some of my columns.

Free home buying seminar offered Nov. 18

Standard Federal Bank will hold a free home buying seminar on how to select and finance a home.

The seminar will be held from 10 a.m. to noon on Saturday, Nov. 18, at the Immanuel Lutheran Church, 13031 Chandler Park Drive in Detroit. The seminar is co-sponsored by U-SNAP-BAC N.P.H.C.

An experienced lending officer will provide tips on understanding credit reports, defining home and neighborhood checklist and the mortgage application process.

Upon completion of the seminar, participants will receive certificates entitling them to apply for a mortgage loan under Standard Federal's Community Home Buyer's Program. The program is designed to make home ownership more affordable for people with low to moderate incomes and offers many benefits such as modified guidelines, smaller down payments and other less restrictive terms.

Lighthouse Cove wall mural from Environmental Graphics guides new decorating trend.

For centuries, the bright burning lights and mystical horns of lighthouses have guided wayfaring sailors from the perilous sea to the comforts of land and home. These towering structures have reassured captains and seamen alike, and are now directing interior designers to utilize their guiding lights in creating and complementing the design and ambience of rooms in homes everywhere.

On foggy nights, lighthouses usher in ships and sailors home, and during the day, they stand as pillars of seaside communities and beacons of hope. Environmental Graphics, a Minnesota-based company, is giving homeowners the opportunity to bring the calming and reassuring feeling of a lighthouse and its surroundings into everyday life, whether you reside by the sea or not. With the help of inspired artist Jacqueline Penney, Environmental Graphics has created a new wall-sized mural depicting a quiet day in a seaside neighborhood that surrounds a lighthouse on the waterfront.

"Our new Lighthouse Cove mural is so moving that homeowners can almost taste the salty air and feel the ocean's spray," says Todd Imholte, vice president of Environmental Graphics. The serene blues of the water and sky combined with the surreal view of sailboats gliding along the water, makes the presence of the Lighthouse Cove mural an escape from the rest of the world. The quaint cottage homes and fields of green give the mural greater contrast, making it a perfect way to brighten any room in your home.

Georgene Hatch, manager of the furniture and design store Schneiderman's, says that the popularity of lighthouses has encouraged them to provide customers with lighthouse accessories and designs, as well as items that give a room a nautical theme. Some of these items include striped awnings, rope knots and even wooden carvings of lighthouses.

"We also advise using materials and colors such as blue and white to encourage and complement a room's nautical theme," says Hatch.

The lighthouse trend has inspired other stores to stock their shelves with items depicting these structures. At the Home Depot in Newport News, VA, "Lighthouse decor is the single most requested item," says Carole Frost, department head of the design center.

While some may think that creating this nautical theme in your home is an expensive undertaking, murals such as Lighthouse Cove and these small accessories can transform a living area without putting a strain on your wallet. Placing seashells in a clear lamp is another easy and inexpensive way to incorporate the beautiful and unique sights of the sea into a room.

Using lighthouses in your home can guide you to a classic nautical theme and give your home a refreshing look and feel. These beacons of reassurance will add charm and character to a room and leave you feeling like you're spending a day on the shores of an ocean bay.

The Lighthouse Cove mural is available nationwide at retailers including Home Depot. You can view the mural and other mural designs on the Internet at, www.egproducts.com. To request a free color brochure and a list of local dealers, call (888) 205-3441.

Coldwell Banker Schweitzer Real Estate is proud to introduce

Riverside

COMMON

a David Jensen Development

RIVERSIDE COMMON is a neighborhood, a community... drawing people together through the living patterns of simpler times... enjoying the excitement and relaxation of waterfront living... capturing the architectural traditions of early Michigan.

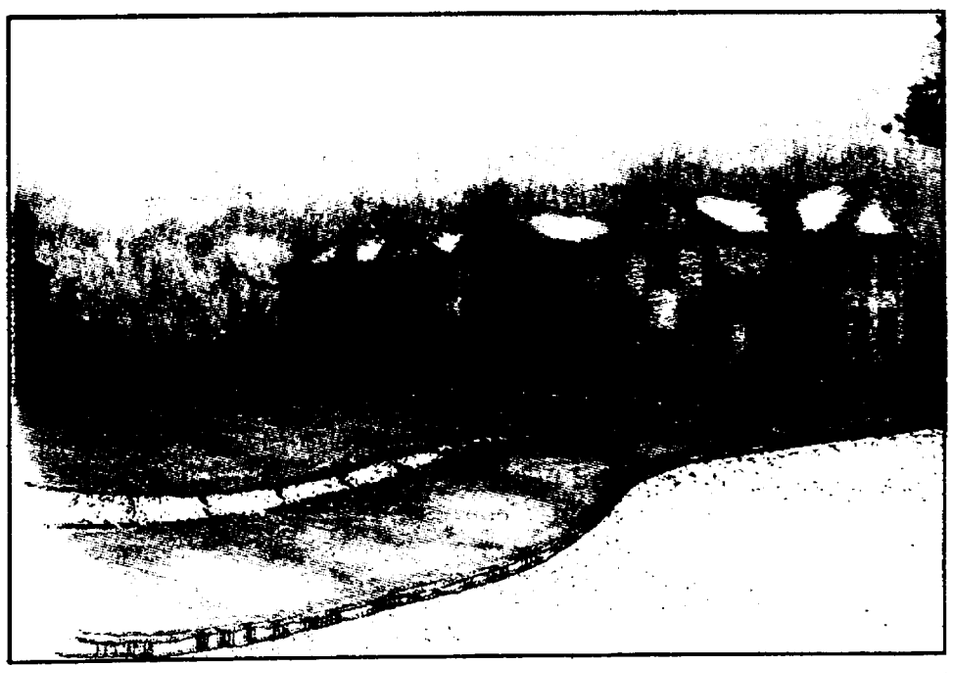

A SENSE OF PLACE

All of the elements of RIVERSIDE COMMON combine to create a sense of place. The setting has an intimate, human scale. People have the option of relating to each other and to the neighborhood. Singles and married adults, children and retirees meet and mix beside white picket fences or on the "Common". All of the homes have front porches within conversational distance of a sidewalk, encouraging neighborly interactions.

There is visual continuity, visual coherence. The homes boast unique, yet complimentary forms. Each faces a "Common," enjoys a view of the river and has at least one boat slip on the water. A series of natural and manmade lines introduces the gradual transition from common areas to private spaces. These include the sidewalks, fences, shrubs and plantings. Mature walnut trees dot the neighborhood, again serving as gathering places for young and old, again reminding residents of the area's historical roots.

Nothing sculpts the neighborhood, charms the senses or restores the soul like the river. The river endlessly plays the main stage of RIVERSIDE COMMON. Boats outfitted with neighbors and yet-to-be friends flow in and out of view of front porches and multi-paned windows. Waves lapping hulls and motors churning wakes form the neighborhood's acoustic backdrop. And, the forever-mesmerizing blues and greens of the swift current somehow are reflected in everyone and on everything.

THE HOUSES

RIVERSIDE COMMON offers a limited number of homes that stand in harmony with one another and the site. Each house is designed on a theme compatible with the original farmhouse, which has been preserved and included in the neighborhood. The new homes resonate with its simple, elegant form. In a world where history is too often sacrificed for convenience, the 108-year-old landmark dwelling makes a statement for the relevance of good planning and design while also setting the tone for neighborliness, intimacy and efficiency.

This rich architectural heritage expresses itself in a neighborhood populated by four complimentary home designs - cottage home, garden home, village home, and estate home.

LOCATION

RIVERSIDE COMMON provides an exceptional location. The site, once a farm, rises from the banks of the Clinton River with beautiful Lake St. Clair just around the bend. Nestled in Harrison Township, consistently ranked among Michigan's best places to live, between Detroit and Port Huron, RIVERSIDE COMMON is only a walk, drive or boat ride away from fine schools and places of worship, stimulating cultural events, unsurpassed recreation, fine restaurants and excellent shopping.

Tips for choosing a child's playground

Fall is here and children are thrilled to spend time on their backyard playgrounds after a long day of school. While parents and children only think of the fun they have on the equipment, playgrounds can assist in the development of a child's coordination, imagination and social skills.

Many parents today are building backyard playgrounds. Choosing a backyard playground is not as easy as it seems. There are many important factors beyond a slide and swings to consider:

• Safety: There are no enforced safety standards for residential playgrounds, so look for equipment that meets American Society for Testing and Materials (ASTM) voluntary standards. ASTM compliant playgrounds have safety features such as, rounded corners, recessed hardware and vinyl safety sleeves on the swing chains and avoid overlapping play zones, head or finger entrapments and choke hazards.

•Age appropriateness: Playground systems are meant to grow with children. Buy a system large enough to keep children interested as they grow. Modularity of units is a plus because components such as monkey bars can be added as children's abilities increase.

• Quality: Find a playground system made from a quality lumber, such as redwood, which is aesthetically beautiful, resistant to decay and insect infestations and requires minimal upkeep.

• Installation: Base-to-height ratios and protective anchoring and surfacing are among the many guidelines that must be followed to ensure a safe playground system. Look for professional installation to be sure.

There are many different sizes, options and accessories available for backyard playground systems. For more information, call (800) 886-5509 extension 2995, or visit www.heartlandind.com for a free Heartland Industries product catalog.

Pet Care

By Sam Mazzotta

Keeping lonely pets calm

Here's a bit of pet behavior you probably already knew about: According to British biologist Rupert Sheldrake, dogs, cats and birds may actually "sense" when their owners are coming home, and begin preparing for their return up to an hour ahead of time.

I can't say that my pet can sense, telepathically, when I'm packing my briefcase for the drive home. However, my cat is always curled up faithfully on the welcome mat when I arrive home each evening. And I've seen the neighbor's dog peeking out the window at regular intervals in the evening, waiting for his master to show up.

The longer he waits, the more agitated he becomes. And the same is true of Dodge, who is quick to voice his displeasure on those nights I work overtime. I've come home to shredded carpets, carved-up furniture, and — the ultimate expression — little "gifts" left well away from the litter box.

To keep Dodge calm, I try to get home around the same time every night. I also leave a couple of lights on, tune the stereo to a jazz station and make sure he has plenty of food and water. And as soon as I get home, I spend about 30 minutes playing with my cat. He's still not happy about my work schedule, but my carpet and furniture are no longer in danger.

Send your pet tips or questions to Paw's Corner, c/o King Features Syndicate, 628 Virginia Drive, Orlando, Fla. 32803.

7 tips to make cleaning fun for the family

Did you know there is a direct correlation between watching more than four hours of TV a day and obesity? There is a solution. Now, you can break your children's television habit, help them stay healthy and get a clean house all by making chores fun.

The best way to fight obesity is aerobic activity. The Maids, one of the nation's foremost maid services, has found that many cleaning activities double as aerobic exercise. In fact, vacuuming can burn as many as seven calories a minute. So, the solution to combating obesity and a dirty house — enlist your children's help with chores.

You say your children won't trade the remote for a mop? Make cleaning a game. The following tips will sweep your children off the couch and into cleaning:

• Musical chores: Designate a project (dusting, scrubbing the floor, picking up toys) to each child and start the music. Every time the music turns off, the children switch chores.

• Mow the carpet: Young children can mimic what you are doing. If you're vacuuming, give them a toy lawn mower to use in the house. Then they can "mow" the carpet while you vacuum.

• Puppet dusters: Make sock puppets for dusting and start a contest to see whose puppet gets the dirtiest.

• Puppet shiners: You and your child each wear a sock puppet to clean the patio door window. You're on the outside and he/she's on the inside. Make it a game to follow one another's hand movement as you clean the window.

Courtesy of Artic[illegible] Association

• Baseboard race: Start two children next to one another in the same room. The child that gets to the end of the room/house first wins a prize.

• Dash for trash: Designate a laundry basket for each child. Start a timer for 30 seconds and see which child can put the most in his/her basket before the timer goes off.

• Hide and seek: Hide five spoons in various spots (under cushions, on windowsills, under pillows) and see if your child can find all of them by the time he/she is finished cleaning.

By turning cleaning chores into fun and games, your kids are off the couch, helping with housework and having fun with the family.

Fight autumn allergies with housecleaning

Sneezy, itchy, watery, runny, sniffily, coughy and scratchy: These are the telltale symptoms of autumn allergies. As you brace yourself for a round of seasonal allergies, take the time to review some basic but sensible measures you can take to reduce your exposure to fall allergens. According to Dr. Mary Lasley, pediatric allergist:

• Keep windows closed to prevent pollens and molds from drifting into your home. Air conditioning also can help reduce your pollen exposure.

• See your doctor: Use this fall as an opportunity to learn more about allergies. Take your medications as prescribed by your doctor in the recommended dosage.

• Minimize your early morning activity (between 5 and 10 a.m.) when pollen counts are higher. Stay indoors when pollen counts or humidity is reported to be high.

• Don't hang sheets or clothing out to dry. Pollens and molds may collect on them.

• Keep your home's relative humidity level at or below 50 percent by using heat and/or air conditioning equipment consistently and using a dehumidifier when necessary. This will discourage dust mite and mold growth.

To avoid sniffling through autumn, take a good look at your house and how you maintain it. Take control of your allergic symptoms by observing the following guidelines:

• Carpet and Flooring: Allergens are easily removed from carpet and floors by regular vacuuming with an effective vacuum cleaner. The Carpet and Rug Institute (CRI) recommends vacuuming floor coverings in the house at least once a week — high use areas should be vacuumed twice weekly. If you have pets, you may need to vacuum some areas daily.

But, it is important to make sure you use effective equipment. Use a vacuum with strong suction, adjustable brushes and high-efficiency filtration. The CRI developed an easy way to ensure that you are purchasing a vacuum cleaner that performs to the industry's highest standards when it introduced the Indoor Air Quality Vacuum Cleaner testing program. In partnership with vacuum cleaner manufacturers, the program helps consumers identify vacuum cleaner models that have been evaluated by an independent testing laboratory and have met the carpet industry's standard for soil removal, dust containment and carpet appearance retention. The CRI green label appears on vacuums that meet this standard.

• Family, living and dining rooms: Vacuuming upholstered furniture is just as important as vacuuming every room in the house. Clean hard furniture with a damp cloth. But furniture is not the only place dust accumulates — remember window treatments, blinds and louvered shutters, windowsills and window frames, ceiling fans, light fixtures and storage units. Make sure you wipe all of these items regularly with a damp cloth to remove dust. Dust also can be minimized by storing books and other knickknacks in closed cabinets.

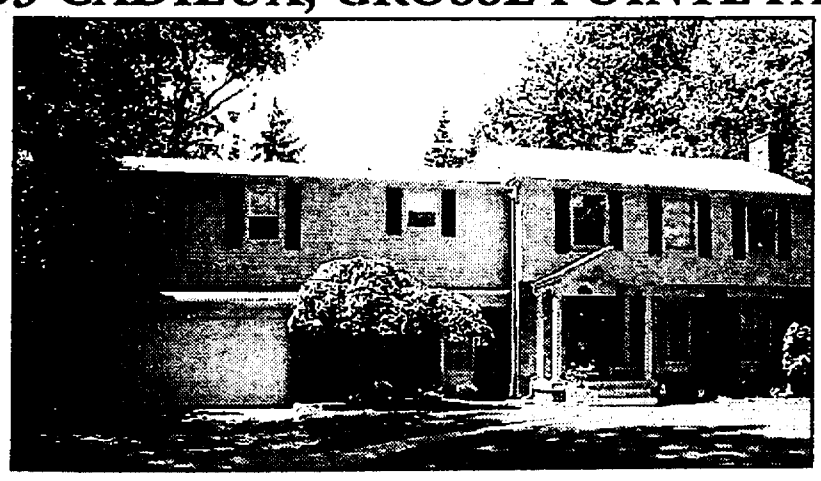

• Bedroom: Since most of us spend eight or more hours per day in our bedrooms, it makes sense to maintain these areas of the home to avoid prolonged contact with allergens. Controlling dust in the bedroom is more important than anywhere else in the home. Dust mites, the tiny creatures that thrive in warm, moist surroundings, are more likely to be found in the bedroom than any other room in the house, because they feed on invisible skin flakes in pillows, bedding and upholstery. To minimize mites, encase pillows, mattresses and box springs in "allergen-barrier" covers. Wash bed linens in hot water (at least 130 degrees) weekly to kill dust mites. Comforters, blankets and curtains should be washed often too. Vacuum and dust regularly.

• Kitchen and bathroom: The wet, warm conditions of these rooms provide the perfect condition for mold and mildew to thrive. Repairing leaks and cleaning kitchens and bathrooms weekly with a disinfectant designed to kill mold and mildew is the best way to combat their growth. In the bathroom, concentrate on cleaning the shower stalls, bathtubs, floors and toilets. Wash bath mats, towels and area rugs weekly to avoid the growth of mold and to remove dust. To avoid attracting insects to the kitchen, clean all grease and food from around the stove daily, seal cracks around cabinets, and store food in closed containers.

For more information, call the Carpet and Rug Institute's consumer information line at (800) 882-8846 or visit their web site at www.carpet-rug.com.
