United We Stand benefit planned by G.P. Rotary

The Grosse Pointe Rotary Club invites you to join in a celebration of family, friendship and freedom during United We Stand for the Children, a benefit for children impacted by the Sept. 11 terrorist attacks, Sunday, Oct. 21, from noon to 5 p.m., at Grosse Pointe South High School.

The event was inspired by one Rotarian's efforts to turn mourning into a celebration of life.

Like so many Americans, Kim Towar-Colton, publisher of "the little Blue Book" directories, and editor Lorie Johnson were struggling to get back to business as usual in the week following the attacks. But the haunting images of that dreadful day, and the realization that so many children were suffering, kept pushing the advertising copy they were writing to the back of their minds. So the pair decided to admit defeat and transform their negative emotions into positive action.

To start the ball rolling, Towar-Colton, who is currently the first vice president of Grosse Pointe Rotary, called Rotary District Governor and fellow Pointer John Brooks.

Together they established this free day of food, music, live entertainment and kids' crafts. Proceeds will help to build a trust fund, to be administered by the Rotary District 6400 Foundation, an organization that represents 52 Rotary clubs in Lenawee, Monroe and Wayne counties, and Essex, Ontario, Canada. They will be directed toward long-term support for children and families whose lives have been directly impacted by the attack.

Rotarians have already provided the seed money for the trust. "This will be a Grosse Pointe event, but there is money being raised throughout our district," Brooks said. "We already have $13,500 from private donors within Grosse Pointe Rotary and another $25,000 to $35,000 from the district. The beauty of Rotary administering these dollars is that we have no administrative costs. Every dollar is going to where it is supposed to go, to the children and families affected by the attack."

Rotarians Dr. Roger McNeill and Dr. Thomas Mertz are generating voluntary donations at Bon Secours Hospital which will contribute to this effort.

In addition, Towar-Colton took the initiative to print T-shirts, sweat-shirts, baseball caps and bean-bag bears with bright red, white and blue "For the Children 2001" logos, which are being sold through her office and will be available for purchase at the event.

G.P. Hunt Club plans for spring barn raising

By Brad Lindberg
Staff Writer

By this time next year, a new landmark will have entered the local landscape.

Standing near the lake-side estates and Tudor mansions built by industrialists and financiers of generations three and four times removed, the structure to come would have been as common to our forefathers as it will be a reminder of the days when Grosse Pointers worked the land they lived on, and a symbol of how that heritage endures.

The Grosse Pointe Hunt Club is going to build a barn.

Preliminary work has been assigned to one of the nation's top equestrian design firms, Blackburn Architects of Washington D.C.

By Dec. 1, designers should have completed a master plan to replace the Hunt Club's historic, circa-1890 barn that burned to the ground in July.

"Barring any calamities or difficulties, we hope to commence construction in April or May," said Stephen Brownell, president of the Hunt Club board of directors.

In the meantime, club officials will tack extra stalls onto a temporary, 15-space pole barn erected last summer to house horses displaced by the fire.

Nineteen horses died in the blaze, which is being prosecuted as arson in Wayne County Circuit Court.

The defendant, 23-year-old Stephen Richard Fennell of the Woods, also faces 19 counts of malicious destruction of an animal.

Defense lawyers said their client had no intention of setting the barn on fire nor harming the animals within when he threw fireworks into the hay-filled structure during a 4 a.m. party held at a friend's house across the street from club property.

The defense team has filed a motion with Judge

George W. Crockett III to have all charges dropped. Crockett is scheduled to rule on the motion Friday, Oct. 26 in his courtroom downtown.

The Hunt Club's actions to expand the temporary barn, plus preparations for a permanent replacement, signal happy days.

"It's a sign, in particular, that some of our members who lost horses in the fire have gotten through the difficult period," Brownell said. "They have decided that an important part of closure and moving forward is getting back into the club with horses."

Club membership has risen since the fire, which also means more demand for horse-space.

"The temporary facility is fully committed," Brownell said. "Two horses are ready to move in right away. Others are due in a couple of months."

The pole barn, a prefabricated structure painted traditional barn red, will be taken down when the new barn is finished, according to Brownell.

Blackburn Architects has built barns and equestrian centers throughout the county in styles indigenous to the Blue Ridge Mountains of Virginia, the bluegrass racing heritage of Kentucky and hill country of Texas.

In Michigan, the firm built a barn and indoor riding center in Metamora that mimicked Scandinavian design.

"Blackburn is a highly regarded firm," Brownell said.

Within weeks of the fire, the club scrambled to clear charred debris and animal remains in preparation for hosting two horse shows.

"Things are OK," Brownell said. "The horse shows went well. Attendance was a little small, but that was more a function of the general economy than anything else. We're doing fine."

Woods paving cost overruns take council by surprise

The unexpected need for extra construction materials has bumped up the cost of a local paving project by 20 percent.

The changes mean a March paving contract for $520,700 will cost Grosse Pointe Woods $625,284, an increase of more than $104,000.

"The amount of construction and materials needed to satisfactorily complete the project was for more than originally estimated," said Clifford Maison, the city comptroller. Maison is also standing in for city administrator Ted Bidigare, who is recovering from a heart attack suffered two weeks ago.

"Project overruns are considered changes in quantity of construction items which cannot be avoided in order to facilitate the completion of the project," Maison said. "In other words, the project scope of work does not change, but unforeseen circumstances create increased cost."

Nevertheless, the surprise bill caused Joseph Ahee, the Woods' new director of public works, to revise the way city council members are informed of cost overruns.

■ As soon as an overrun is apparent, the city's engineering consultants will provide an estimate of the total anticipated cost overrun based on work already completed.

■ A copy of the overrun estimate and explanation will be given to the city administrator and finance director.

■ The finance director will state in writing that money is available to complete the project.

■ A special meeting of the city council will take place to review or deny the proposed overrun.

Support from the community has been outstanding. Rotary is particularly

Wheeler leads last meeting in City

By Bonnie Caprara
Staff Writer

City of Grosse Pointe Mayor Susan Wheeler's last meeting before the city council Monday, Oct. 15, was short and bittersweet.

But Wheeler's colleagues were long on sweet accolades for the four-term mayor who has served the City, originally as a councilmember, since 1987.

Before councilmember Dale Scrace moved to adjourn the one hour, 45 minute meeting, he said, "I remember the night our mayor (Lorenzo "Red" Browning) passed away. Everyone said, 'Dale, you and Susan get together and let's decide what's best for the City.' I know we did. Under her leadership, the rest became history."

"You made the cable television sale as simple as that. That's why we have a million dollars for various projects in our budget. There's been the various streetscape projects, the bond issue, the Neff Park project. You also went through a lot of personnel changes in your career — three public safety officers, a judge, a city manager recently and clerks. All of that has been done under your graceful and professional approach to keeping us on track.

"You're a tough act to follow," added Scrace, who will assume the mayoral position in November.

City planning consultant Brandon Rogers added: "Our streets are well paved, our sidewalk replacement program is excellent and she oversaw the installation of our new street signs."

"She's an outstanding leader," said retired city manager Tom Kressbach. "Under her tenure there were a number of things started not just for the City, but the future of the City."

"She's always been very supportive of (assistant public safety chief) Dennis VanDale and I as a team," said public safety chief Al Fincham. "She's a very friendly and open person to have a relationship with."

"This has been a meaningful and positive experience in my life," Wheeler said in her last official comments to the council. "You all come from different areas of expertise, but you're all united in the love for our city."

Wheeler told the Grosse Pointe News earlier that she was not seeking a fifth term so that she could spend more time with her family.

Public safety departments step up security, awareness

By Bonnie Caprara
Staff Writer

Pointe area public safety departments have stepped up their security and awareness following an FBI directive last week.

Grosse Pointe Farms has increased security at its water treatment plant.

"We're increasing our security in our utility locations — the Department of Public Works, the pumping station and the water filtration plant," said Farms public safety director Robert Ferber. "We're reevaluating our total security from the inside out, our procedures and personnel at these locations. We've also increased patrols in these locations."

The City of Grosse Pointe, which gets its water supply from the Farms, has also reviewed its water safety procedures.

"In 1999, we went through a water emergency drill," said Al Fincham, the City's director of public safety. "We have a continuing plan for the water treatment plant as well."

Ferber said the Farms is also working more diligently to make sure utility companies notify the city when they come in to do work.

"Normally the utility companies let us know ahead of time when they'll be doing work in our area," Ferber said. "They give us a general idea but schedules get pushed back because of high priority jobs or the weather. They normally don't notify us the day they come out, but we're asking for a change."

Fincham added that officers of the Pointe's Special Response Team recently returned from one of their monthly training sessions and that individual officers have been briefed on heightened awareness.

Fincham has also briefed lieutenants and dispatchers on anthrax awareness and recommended if anyone comes across a suspicious package or envelope containing a white powder to call 911 and the local Federal Bureau of Investigation field office in Detroit (313-965-2323) immediately.

Grosse Pointe Shores public safety chief Gary Mitchell said his department is updated on a daily basis by the state's Law Enforcement Information Network. He also felt that his department is currently adequately staffed.

Each of the public safety chiefs encouraged citizens to call their public safety departments if they encounter any suspicious people or situations.

Public library's reach goes beyond books

By Bonnie Caprara
Staff Writer

The past year has been an up and down year for the Grosse Pointe Public Library.

Pointers may not be coming to their local branch libraries as often or to check out books like they used to, but they are taking more advantage of audio visual loans and programs.

According to the Grosse Pointe Public Library's annual report, book circulation was down from 351,382 in 1999-2000 to 329,735 in 2000-01. Book circulation was down by 2,700 at the Woods Branch, down by 13,758 at the Park Branch, and down by 5,804 at the Central Library.

However, the increase in audiovisual loans was up by 26,683 at the Woods Branch, up by 8,287 at the Park Branch and up by 18,089 at the Central Library.

Despite the drop in book loans, the increase in audiovisual loans brought the library district's total circulation up to 518,129 in 2000-01 from 487,717 in 1999-2000.

DVDs, which were added to the library in August 2000, made up for some of the audiovisual increase, but library director Vickie Bloom said, "The books on tape are tremendously popular. We try to keep up-to-date with the current titles coming in."

Bloom also said that the decrease in book circulation has been a national trend for public libraries.

DVDs and books on tape aren't the only things increasing in popularity at the libraries. Since August 2000, the library has added several new services and programs.

The library now offers an online book club in which the library e-mails excerpts from books on a weekly basis to about 155 patrons, six e-books with about 20 titles for each hand-held machine, the NetLibrary, book discussion kits and the

Generations On Line

Internet tutorial for seniors. Also new to the library in the past year was the first of the annual Books on the Lake program, which featured visits from three top authors and will be repeated Saturday, Nov. 10, and the Senior Symposium, which offered a luncheon and a series of speakers of interest to senior citizens.

"We have been trying to make an effort to provide additional services," Bloom said. "It's important to keep them growing and alive."

Marter main delayed

Due to approaching winter, replacement of a water main on Marter Road in Grosse Pointe Woods will be put off until next year.

Workers will concentrate instead on completing the installation of a water main on Anita. Plans agreed upon last summer called for both projects to be finished at the same time.

Joseph Ahee, the Woods director of public works, said the Anita job will be finished this fall.

"They will begin work on the Marter Road water main in the spring with completion by June 15," Ahee said.

A representative of the city's engineering consultants wasn't surprised at the change of plans.

"As we had previously discussed with the contractor," said Scott Lockwood of Anderson, Eckstein and Westrick, "inclement weather may prevent sidewalk replacement for the Marter and Anita project. To ensure than sidewalks are not left open throughout the winter, we recommended breaking up the project by street."

Accordingly, a $696,000

contract with Brisco Excavating of Oak Park has been extended.

Shores woman sees goodness come from tragedy

By Bonnie Caprara
Staff Writer

Ironically, as Jackie Fredrick put it, "Out of tragedy came goodness and opportunity."

From her 18th-floor office in Washington, D.C., Fredrick watched one of the most gruesome passages in history flash before her eyes on Tuesday, Sept. 11, as she saw a section of the Pentagon go up in a huge orange fireball flanked in thick, black smoke. It was the third and most visible of her four calls to action that morning as she was in the midst of planning her staff's response to the suicide airliner attacks.

Fredrick is the senior vice president of biomedical services and chief operating officer of the donor enterprise unit of the American Red Cross. Her primary responsibility is overseeing the nationwide blood donor program.

Immediately, she said, people came out to donate blood as "a way to support the country."

"It became part of the grieving process," Fredrick said. "I was at blood drives constantly that first week. People waited hours to give blood. We told them they could come back, but people wanted to be together. We opened up our headquarters and turned it into a huge blood drive. We had people come out of their offices just to talk to people. We were there until 1 or 2 in the morning and we were back at 7 the next morning."

And the calls flooded into Fredrick's office and local Red Cross chapters around the country, from everyone from White House staff to community groups wanting to hold blood drives.

"We had 1,300,000 people contact us to donate blood in a four-week period," Fredrick said. "We couldn't accommodate all of them, but we're asking them to hold out and donate over the next month and during the winter holidays that are coming up."

Fredrick's biggest hope is that the willingness to give will continue. Even before Sept. 11, one of her division's major goals has been to increase the number of blood donors by 40 percent over the next five years.

"Patient need is growing and there are major parts of the country which undergo chronic blood shortages, especially during the summer and around the winter holidays," Fredrick said. "We want to eliminate those blood shortages around the country."

In the meantime, one of Fredrick's major goals is to thank the most recent wave of people who have donated blood and have them return.

Another goal, put on hold because of the events of Sept. 11, has been the screening for the human form of mad cow disease, which went into effect this past Monday after having been delayed a month. The deferral plan is part of several screenings and tests the Red Cross conducts before it accepts blood from donors.

"There's a tremendous amount of uncertainty of mad cow disease in its life cycle in a human being," Fredrick said. "There's no test, so we don't know what the threat is. We don't know how many people have been exposed. We don't know how many cattle have been infected. We know in a laboratory setting that it is transmissible through blood. There hasn't been a case of transmission through the blood supply in the United States or the United Kingdom that we know of. It's a theoretical risk, but we believe it's one we need to take steps to ensure the blood supply is safe before a case is detected."

The conditions of deferrals include anyone who has lived in the U.K. for a cumulative total of three months since 1980, anyone who has lived in Europe for a cumulative total of six months since 1980 or anyone who has received a blood transfusion in the U.K. since 1980.

Fredrick maintained, "There is no compromise between safety and availability."

However, compromise is something Fredrick has made work in her personal life with her weekly commute between her home in Grosse Pointe Shores and the Red Cross in Washington. That compromise has been further complicated with her forced detour through Dulles International Airport in Virginia.

Her commute and moves have all been part of the job since Fredrick joined the Red Cross eight years ago when she and her family lived in Wisconsin. Her family moved with her to Washington, where she worked on the building of the national testing labs. In 1996, she moved to the City of Grosse Pointe when she was called to run the blood program for the Midwest in Detroit.

When Fredrick was promoted to COO of blood services and interim executive vice president for biomedical services at the national headquarters in 1999, she and her family decided to remain rooted in the Pointes. Their decision included a move to the Shores last year.

"We really like the Grosse Pointe community," said Fredrick. "Of all the places we've lived, this is the most family-based community. There's no other place I've lived where the children can get on their bikes to go to their friend's houses. Taking my kids to school and practices is no more than a five-minute drive."

"When I come home on the weekends, it's a very livable lifestyle that allows me to spend good time with family and friends."

The family's decision to stay was also influenced by her husband, Arlyn, who is an economist for DTE Energy and especially her children, Nathan, 15 and Lauren, 10, who are students at University Liggett School.

Much of Fredrick's weekend time is focused on her children's activities. Nathan plays football, hockey and lacrosse at ULS. Lauren is involved in soccer and ballet.

"After those things are taken care of, we golf together as a family and share meals together," Fredrick said. "When you don't have a lot of time, you make those things your priorities."

Even though Fredrick's career seems to defy the typical mother's role in a close-knit nuclear family, she feels it works.

"It's not lost on me as a woman and as a mother the role I play as a role model I play to girls," Fredrick said. "My kids have a greater appreciation for the humanitarian purpose we should have. They have value for the purpose of work and leadership."

First casualty of war — a free press?

By Wilbur Elston

Reading about the events leading up to the attacks on New York and Washington recalled to me the days just prior to the start of World War II when I was still in college.

Then as now most college boys were anti-war, and I recall especially well the huge anti-war rally on the University of Minnesota campus shortly before Pearl Harbor took us into the war.

A wonderful young orator out of the law school gave a terrific speech attacking our political and military leaders because in his view they were obviously leading us into war.

He was given a roar of approval when he finished, but when Pearl Harbor occurred a few days later, he stood first in line to enlist in the Marines. It should be added that he survived the war to become a member of the Minnesota State Supreme Court.

As I read about the oratory and demonstrations on the University of Michigan campus this week, I wondered what political future was in store for the demonstration leaders.

But that wasn't all of the political talk I heard about. Shortly before noon Monday I happened to tune to a TV program on C-Span featuring Norman Solomon, founder of the Institute for Public Accuracy who also writes a newspaper column.

His views corresponded with those of the U-M speakers who were denouncing the war, but he did it on the grounds that the U.S. public was not getting a fair look at both sides of the issues.

As he explained in detail, he thought the U.S. news media were simply rewriting what came out of the mouths of the president and other Washington political leaders and were not offering much if any assessment or critical analysis.

There is something to that criticism of our media coverage of the war, in my view, although as a man who has not served in the armed services I am reduced in this regard to my capacity as a reporter and editorial writer.

Yet I think at least some well-informed observers of what has been happening since Sept. 11 would agree with that assessment. A free press is a free press, even in wartime, and that means it does not have to accept every word from the powers that be in this or any administration as God's truth.

That doesn't mean I have sympathy for the pilots and planners who were responsible for ramming U.S. civilian passenger planes like projectiles into those Washington and New York buildings on Sept. 11.

But this country's plans for retaliation — which apparently include bombing targets that often involve nearby civilians — may be open to question, at least.

The Times reported that "the dissension in a left-leaning house on the liberal Michigan campus reflects the quandary for the fledgling anti-war movement that has been sprouting at colleges and universities across the country since Sept. 11."

The Times quoted one junior from Grand Rapids, Jen Dombrowski, as saying, in reference to the air strikes in Afghanistan, "This doesn't seem right, but what else can we do?"

My suspicion is that many other people would ask that same question if asked to recommend an alternative to the course of action now being followed.

As Eric Sevareid, the distinguished newsman and author, wrote in his postwar book, "Not So Wild a Dream," he had changed his mind about the editorial point of view he had written for the Minnesota Daily during his prewar years.

More than any other one individual, Sevareid had been responsible for the Daily editorials that opposed compulsory military training at the university and had even written a special issue of the paper that was distributed to us as we graduated in 1934.

It told us that the board of regents that day had revised the requirements to make compulsory military training optional.

So why did he change his mind? "Because," as he wrote, "Hitler had cited it as part of his accumulated evidence that the Americans simply would not fight."

Admittedly, the issue today is more complicated than that. The question is: Just how should this country respond to the so-called terrorist attacks on New York and Washington?

Could the public or even civilian advisers come up with more acceptable ways of responding to the enemy to substitute for the bombing runs that frequently kill innocent civilians even while they hit their targets?

Obviously, I have no answers. But that does not mean that freedom of the U.S. press should be suppressed for the good of the country even in time of war.

20th century wars cost lives

By Wilbur Elston

Now that we're engaged in another major war, against terrorism and not against nations this time, it is significant to note that the United States lost 692,855 soldiers, sailors, airmen, Marines and ocean-going merchant mariners in the four major wars this nation fought in the 20th century.

That total included 431,319 lost in battles and another 255,236 service-related deaths, such as the terrible flu epidemic that rocked the armed services as well as the population at the time of World War I.

In other words, the cost of freedom for this democracy has come at a high price and, fortunately, our citizens have been willing to pay that awful price.

I was born in 1913, and World War I started in 1914, but the United States did not get drawn into the war until 1917.

In that first World War, we mobilized 4,734,997 men and lost 53,402 on the field of battle and another 63,114 others from numerous causes.

However, I have a few vivid memories about World War I, chiefly because two cousins enlisted and survived and one of them visited our family farm in Minnesota shortly after his return from Paris.

I was too young to hear or remember much about that war, but I do remember my family took me to St. Paul to watch as the Minnesota portion of our victorious soldiers marched under a replica of the Arc de Triomphe on the main traveled street in 1919.

World War II was something else again for young Americans. I registered for the draft as we all of the age did, but I was deferred chiefly because I was a journalist who was entitled to deferment.

Why defer us? The theory was we writers could serve the home front better by doing our civilian jobs than by being considered as soldier material. That point is still debatable.

Yet, a good many news people volunteered anyway, many (including several of my University of Minnesota schoolmates) served overseas and quite a few were lost in action on various fronts. That was a warning to the stay-at-home journalists that their time might come, and for some it did.

The deaths included a number of war-correspondents, the most famous having been Ernie Pyle, who lost his life in the Pacific theater after covering the European war from the foxholes along with the GIs.

The day FDR died I was covering a meeting of the Minneapolis House of Representatives in the state capitol when an AP reporter ran into the chamber waving a piece of copy and rushed up to the speaker's desk. The speaker then read the first few words of the dispatch to us: FDR was dead and the speaker adjourned the session.

I went home that day to discover a strange coincidence in my mail. It was a letter from Selective Service telling me I had been reclassified 1-A and should report to Fort Snelling for my physical examination. The following week I reported as ordered and passed the physical.

However, I never was called to service because the war in Europe ended shortly after FDR's death, although it went on in the Far East for more months before the U.S. atomic bombs took Japan out of the war.

World War II was by far the largest war ever fought by mankind, and the losses were extremely heavy on all sides. The United States lost 291,557 men and women battle deaths and another 113,842 in other deaths in the battle areas. It actually called up 16,112,586 men and women.

Like World War I, the Second World War supposedly was fought to make the world safe for democracy, but that didn't happen and it hasn't yet occurred, as we all know.

In 1988, the U.S. government conferred official veteran status on all those who had served abroad in U.S. merchant ships during World War II.

During that war, the proportionate losses in the Merchant Marine exceeded those suffered by all the other services, except for the Marine Corps.

Those losses came about because the enemy sank more than 700 U.S. flag merchant ships and altogether claimed the lives of more than 6,300 civilian seafarers. In addition, untold thousands of seamen were wounded and injured during these attacks, and nearly 600 were made prisoners of war.

Several minor wars were to be fought in the latter part of the 20th century.

The Korean War called to service 5,720,000 men and women and cost 30,914 in battle. Other deaths accounted for 3,262 more fatalities.

The war in Southeast Asia, popularly known as the Vietnam War, called into service 8,744,000 and we lost 47,366 on the battle fields and another 10,801 in other deaths. That total does not include five battle deaths in the Coast Guard.

All told, the United States contributed a large number of lives to preserve this country's independence and the democratic way of life in many other countries as well.

Letters

To the Editor:

Thank goodness others are as appalled as we are at the walls in the Village.

We know they were paid for by the Grosse Pointe Foundation, and therefore by charitable donations, but who in the world designed such a monstrosity, and how could it have been allowed on public property? The guilty parties certainly should be named.

It didn't seem possible that the ghastly neo-modern, white additions to the classical and attractive original Cottage Hospital building could have been equalled, but we now have another example showing tremendously poor taste.

Thomas C. Fox
Grosse Pointe Farms

To the Editor:

I agree with the letter writer of "The walls," printed in the Oct. 11 issue of the Grosse Pointe News, who bemoaned the "dungeon walls" now blocking the way on St. Clair in the Village.

The real question, though, is where were we (all of us) who wish there were a way to get rid of this aesthetically embarrassing creation?

when it was in the planning stage?

We did have fair warning when the clock went up. Surely it was discussed and described at city council meetings.

Couldn't someone have come up with a better way to spend $350,000? Or questioned whether the Village needs this much "beautification?"

I would like to hear the justification for this design. The moral is: Attend city council meetings and if they have money to spend, pay attention. Unfortunately, this time it's probably too late.

Jackie McCabe
City of Grosse Pointe

Troubled by the process

To the Editor:

I read with interest that the City of Grosse Pointe has elected a new mayor. On the one hand I am delighted that the apparent mayor-elect, Dale Scrase, is someone I know and like. I strongly suspect that Dale will be a fine mayor.

On the other hand, I am troubled by the process that led to Dale's apparent election. In a fashion of politics that I more closely associate with small southern towns than middle-class suburban communities, the voters of Grosse Pointe will witness a change in political leadership in which they are denied any voice. It is reasonable to say that Dale was effectively "selected" by just two people, himself and the incumbent mayor.

There is something noble and ennobling about the people of a community coming together in a free and open election to choose a person they wish to represent their community as mayor. In our council-manager government, the mayor's formal powers differ little from those of any council member. It is an office of symbolic or honorific importance. Yet ascending to the office of mayor through the scheming of political insiders cheapens and diminishes the very symbolism that makes the office special.

Mayors and other political leaders are often invited to visit elementary schools and talk to students about local government and how it works. I can imagine the dilemma Dale will face when a young child at Richard or Maire asks him how he came to be mayor.

We want our children to

Thanks, Canada

The United States is the most powerful yet humanitarian society in history. We could throw our weight around anywhere in the world and come out on top. But we don't. Maybe we should.

Although Americans don't need sanction from other nations to confirm our place on the planet, it's nice to know our neighbors up north realize there are worse things than sharing the continent with us.

As many people with Internet access know, the following, nearly 30-year-old commentary from a Canadian broadcaster made the rounds on e-mail following the Sept. 11 terrorist attacks.

Reading the piece makes me feel guilty for hoping, during secessionist rumors from Canada a few years ago, the U.S. would get its hands on British Columbia. It would have been an aesthetic land grab. The Canadian Rockies are in large part more majestic than those south of the border.

Titled "The Americans," by Gordon Sinclair, the 1973 essay is worth remembering:

This Canadian thinks it is time to speak up for the Americans as the most generous and possibly the least appreciated people on all the earth.

Germany, Japan and, to a lesser extent, Britain and Italy were lifted out of the debris of war by the Americans who poured in billions of dollars and forgave other billions in debts. None of these countries is today paying even the interest on its remaining debts to the United States.

I Say

When France was in danger of collapsing in 1956, it was the Americans who propped it up, and their reward was to be insulted and swindled on the streets of Paris. I was there. I saw it.

When earthquakes hit distant cities, it is the United States that hurries in to help. This spring, 59 American communities were flattened by tornadoes. Nobody helped.

The Marshall Plan and the Truman Policy pumped billions of dollars into discouraged countries. Now newspapers in those countries are writing about the decadent, warmongering Americans.

I'd like to see just one of those countries that is gloating over the erosion of the United States dollar build its own airplane. Does any other country in the world have a plane to equal the Boeing Jumbo Jet, the Lockheed Tri-Star, or the Douglas DC10?

If so, why don't they fly them? Why do all the International lines except Russia fly American planes? Why does no other land on Earth even consider putting a man or woman on the moon? You talk about Japanese technocracy, and you get radios. You talk about German technocracy, and you get automobiles.

You talk about American technocracy, and you find men on the moon — not once, but several times — and safely home again.

You talk about scandals, and the Americans put theirs right in the store window for everybody to look at.

Even their draft-dodgers are not pursued and hounded. They are here on our streets, and most of them, unless they are breaking Canadian laws, are getting American dollars from ma and pa at home to spend here.

When the railways of France, Germany and India were breaking down through age, it was the Americans who rebuilt them. When the Pennsylvania Railroad and the New York Central went broke, nobody loaned them an old caboose. Both are still broke.

I can name you 5,000 times when the Americans raced to the help of other people in trouble. Can you name me even one time when someone else raced to the Americans in trouble? I don't think there was outside help even during the San Francisco earthquake.

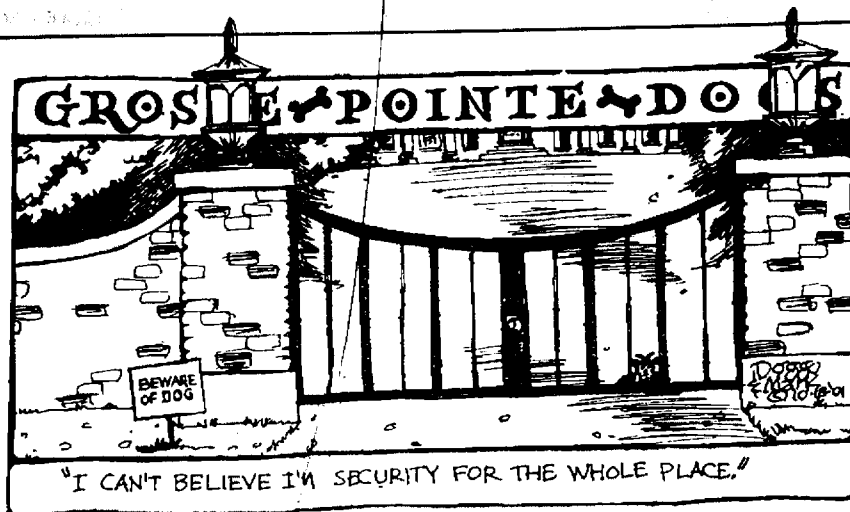

Our neighbors have faced it alone, and I'm one Canadian who is damned tired of hearing them get kicked around. They will come out of this thing with their flag high. And when they do, they are entitled to thumb their nose at the lands that are gloating over their present troubles. I hope Canada is not one of those.

Stand proud, America.

Cuba — the fruit of terrorism

My e-mail correspondents include a wise, old expatriate from Cuba, a physician whose perspective on terrorism goes back to the early days of Batista's fascist dictatorship, whose rule was promoted by the United States.

At one time, Fidel Castro and Che Guevara overthrew the Batista regime, and promptly thereafter, Castro was a guest on Johnny Carson's show, in good humor and bragging of his exploits. Before we knew any better, he was a hero. He sought American aid for his new communist regime, and when it was refused, he angrily turned to the Soviet Union, which was more than glad to have a satellite in the Western Hemisphere.

When he became a thorn in our side and a violation of the Monroe Doctrine, we considered an assassination by the Mafia and ultimately an invasion of loyal Cubans who wanted to bring him down and restore the freedom which once made Cuba a prosperous tourist spot.

The Bay of Pigs was a fiasco and a betrayal of Cuban loyalists. We simply did not come through with the promised military support. President John F. Kennedy apologized, took total responsibility and vowed never to trust the military again. This last bit of tough learning served him well as he weathered the Cuban Missile Crisis and avoided a nuclear war.

Cuba became another communist totalitarian state that suffered the primal mistake of going against human nature — by restricting freedom, eliminating incentive, outlawing the profit motive and brainwashing the people. It was further strangled by sanctions and eventually went further downhill with the failure of the Soviet Union. Now it is one of the poorest countries in the world.

My correspondent was born and raised in the old Cuba, the Caribbean island suffering from the usual concomitants of free enterprise — gambling, prostitution, illicit drugs and organized crime — but it was vital and prosperous, vivacious and free. It suffered the same side effects as the prosperous and free United States, which also lives with corruption.

But looking back on his life and recent history, he makes the profound statement, learning from history (in order not to be compelled to repeat it) that the ills of capitalist society are trivial compared to the evils of communism.

This is what he wrote me only last week:

"In my country terrorists (then called revolutionaries) under the excuse of fighting (?) against the Batista dictatorship placed bombs in cinemas, malls, baseball stadiums, dance halls, cabarets and even in buses. This paralyzed the economy because people stopped going to cinemas, dance halls, avoided buses and what not and created the economic conditions that brought about Fidel Castro and communism in Cuba. Castro and his people accomplished this and by such means in a couple of years. He has been there since 1959, i.e. 42 years, and has created a much worse dictatorship than the one he claimed he was fighting.

"At the same time he managed to ruin a prosperous country, turning it into one of the poorest nations in the world. So as you see, if you frighten people enough, even the stability of governments (including dictatorships that can fight back and do, brutally, i.e. anything goes) get threatened and destabilized. Such things are a real threat to democracy, all of us, our way of life and even our form of government. They are to be taken very seriously.

"Notice that this happens in Israel all the time. Imagine what a few bombs in malls on Halloween, *killing children and adults, let alone the possibility of biochemical or biological attacks, primitive as they may be, could do to our country.

(*This refers to a recent e-mail given wide circulation on the Internet that gave a personal account of contact with one of the terrorists who warned his girlfriend about the Sept. 11 attacks, urging her not to fly on that day, and warning her against going to a shopping mall on Halloween. This warning proved to be a hoax. The FBI was bombarded with this false information from gullible e-mailers.)

"Thus, I took the liberty to send your e-mail to the local FBI after showing it to a few colleagues here, all of whom thought that it was the thing to do. Of course, I am aware that if this were to be a hoax, it will spread quickly, given the state of alarm and be capable to increase fear and damage the economy."

Looking back on the 20th century, and from our point of view and our way of life, the evils of totalitarianism, whether it be Nazi or Soviet, Japanese or Taliban, would be intolerable to us.

The essence of our way of life is freedom, and periodically we have to defend it, even fight and die for it.

Wise men have said that the price of liberty is eternal vigilance, and that the tree of freedom must sometimes be fertilized with the blood of our patriots.

There should be little doubt that this is such a time, and it is hoped that

Carpenters all

There is something about building with your own hands that awakens a deep sense of satisfaction in people. Carpenters, brick masons and construction workers like to point at structures they worked on and say, "I helped build that."

On Sunday, hundreds of a m a t e u r builders and a number of professionals will pony up $35 ($20 for those under 18) for brunch to celebrate their building accomplishments of the past 15 years as part of Habitat for Humanity and to raise money to continue to "rebuild Detroit one house at a time," as fundraising manager Ron Launs of the Grosse Pointe Partners, a coalition of 12 eastside churches, puts it.

The Partners have built more than four houses in the past few years, raised more than $200,000 and provided more than 500 days of construction labor working alongside prospective homeowners putting sweat equity into their new homes.

The homeowner then repays Habitat over a period of years for the cost of the project thus providing money for additional houses. Habitat has upped its goal for the Detroit area from five houses per year a few years ago to 50 houses a year today.

If you want to get in on the good feeling, call (313) 521-6691 today for a brunch reservation at the Grosse Pointe Academy field house. Edsel Ford II, whose family practices what it preaches, will speak. Edsel and Cynthia's sons, Calvin and Sonny, have both worked on rebuilding projects in the city in recent years.

And both said they got more out of the hands-on experience than they gave, which is a good lesson for all of us.

Carpenters II

Right now Sam Smith's basement in the Park is full of birdhouses. It is part of a project the Unitarian Church member calls "Habitat for Ornithology." The goal is to make about 40 birdhouses for table decorations and let children at the Habitat brunch help decorate them.

They will then be donated to new Habitat homeowners. Smith is also working on a special Habitat project to broaden and deepen church involvement in the rebuilding effort. He is reaching out to Jewish, Islamic and Hindu communities as well as additional Christian churches. You can contact him at (313) 824-2702 if you want to get your church involved.

Traveling artists

Susan Tusa, of the City, who recently returned from a photo assignment trip to Cuba, was one of the judges.

Buddy lost

The Park's Joe Trowern did a short eulogy last week on the death of Jim Odell, 79, longtime owner of Pointe Printing in the Park. World War II vet Trowern, who has a helmet with a hole shot in it to remind him of close calls, recalled the death of famed war correspondent Ernie Pyle, whose columns reflected the views of the foot soldier, not the brass.

When Pyle was killed in the South Pacific by a sniper, the men of the 77th Infantry Division put up a sign that said, "We lost a buddy," according to Trowern.

"We had a buddy," Trowern told the Ecumenical Men's Club members. "He provided name tags and anything anyone ever asked of him. Did you ever see the man without a smile? He had a beautiful smile. On Oct. 5, 2001, this group lost a buddy. We're going to miss you, Jim."

Understanding the Islam faith

If you are like most of us and can sum up your knowledge about Muslims and Islam in under three sentences, you might want to take advantage of a Sunday 7:30 p.m. appearance at Grosse Pointe Memorial Church by one of the nation's leading Islamic scholars, Imam Quazwini, and an Oakwood Hospital consultant on medical care and cultural diversity, Najah Bazzy.

The discussion is part of an effort by Grosse Pointe churches to establish understanding of the religious views and tenets of other prominent world religions.

The following Sunday night, Oct. 29, William G. Gepford will speak at 7:30 p.m. on "The History of Islam: What We Need to Know and Where Do We Go Now?" as part of a series of four Sunday night lectures.

Gepford, a consultant on interfaith ministries, develops programs involving members of the Christian, Jewish and Islamic communities for the purpose of promoting understanding, reconciliation and dialogue.

hold dear the democratic principles of free and open elections that we adults learned in our youth. Yet the realities of local democracy apparently fall well short of those ideals, even in a place as otherwise "ideal" as the City of Grosse Pointe.

When Dale is asked by elementary students how he became mayor, I suggest he change the subject and talk about the Grosse Pointe Boat Club sailboat race that he won this past summer. He sailed against stiff competition in a field that welcomed all comers, and he was the first across the finish line that Wednesday evening. Of his two victories this year, that is the one in which he can take pride.

Thankful to all

To the Editor:

Since the heinous terrorist attacks of Sept. 11, America has been faced with enormous challenges.

In each case, the response of the American people has been one of concern, compassion and love for their family, friends and fellow Americans. Thankfully, cynicism about life in America seems to have evaporated.

I can tell you from personal experience, that Grosse Pointe is a microcosm of the best of what America embodies. We've had over 100 friends either call, send a card, or stop by to express their concern and love. They range from current residents who have very busy lives, but found the time to communicate, to former residents as far away as North Carolina who have us in their prayers.

Over 100 families reached out! It's astonishing to think of how many people throughout America weren't connected to their neighbors and friends.

I heard someone once mention that it is not how you handle the good times that counts, but how you handle adversity when it unexpectedly comes your way.

Our whole family has seen the very best of human nature in the faces and actions of our friends in Grosse Pointe and we are sincerely grateful.

We moved to Grosse Pointe 11 years ago hoping to raise our children in an environment with true American values.

We love our "homeland" New York City, and know it will rise again to be The Empire State.

We are truly thankful to all the people of Grosse Pointe for making our lives so full.

Farms' choices

To the Editor:

Our main entry at Mack/Moross never looked better.

Many council aspirants, and some present members, want to do something positive for our seniors — Tom Brokaw's Greatest Generation. But, swearing to uphold and defend the Constitution limits the council, and prevents it from engaging in social engineering. There is a separation between government and social life.

The one thing all city councils (plus the school board) can do is to waive all property and school taxes when seniors reach age 75 to 80.

Seniors want to stay in their homes. Regardless of the level of senior facilities, the common denominator is "no pets, no cats, no dogs, no kids — only old people."

Nobody wants to live like that. (On average, the cost for a senior to stay at home is 50 percent less than in a facility.)

Also, why was $5,000 of Farms money given to a private group? All Pointes were solicited. The Park, Woods and Shores said "no." Why did the Farms say yes? Please, explain in the Grosse Pointe News, so we can vote wisely.

On Friday, Oct. 12, we had 20 families, who in spite of all the rain we had in the 36 hours that preceded the camp out, pitch tents for the night. Not to mention the other 20 families who came to participate in the monthly pack meeting portion of the evening.

It was a wonderful experience for scouts and parents alike and will be an event that will remain in our memories for years to come.

I would like to thank all the persons involved in making this evening possible. Melissa Warnack, the city recreation supervisor, who took our request to the city council for approval; to the staff, who were working at the park that evening, they were friendly, courteous and helpful; and to a guardian angel in a white pickup truck who helped put the finishing touches on our evening by supplying us with dry firewood for our portable fire pits. Craig noticed that our little group was preparing for a camp over and offered us some firewood. Not only did he offer, but he made two more trips to the park to deliver it along with kindling, paper and matches to complete the package. He did all this out of the kindness and goodness of his heart — a complete stranger who made a wonderful contribution to an awesome night.

Thank you one and all for contributing something very special to the boys of our cub scout pack. It makes me proud to live in a community that is so willing to help their fellow residents.

Proposal A

To the Editor:

Regarding the article, "Is Proposal A keeping people in their homes?" printed in the Oct. 11 issue of the Grosse Pointe News, a little arithmetic suggests that the home in the article's example with the Proposal A adjusted tax at $12,000 per year should sell for about $920,000.

The replacement house with its stepped-up tax bill of $13,500 should cost about $689,000. The $231,000 difference invested in inflation protected government bonds would produce (suppose 5

Things that remain right with the world

There are many things at are still right with the world. Did many of you see the Red Wings play the Islanders on Saturday night in New York? The opening ceremonies didn't leave a dry eye in our house as we watched the players on both teams unfold an enormous flag that covered the entire rink and gently fluttered and waved while the fans sang "God Bless America" and the national anthem. Beautiful moment! The game was good, too.

The next morning, as I put aside the Sunday papers and finished listening to the morning news commentaries, I looked across the street and through the gray drizzle came a burst of yellow and crimson. My new neighbor had planted some cheering mums.

They were a welcome addition and lifted my spirits. It was a stark contrast to the pictures we've been seeing on our televisions of deserts, struggle and starvation, and I embraced the change of focus.

Here in Grosse Pointe our flags are displayed with pride, pumpkins and flowers adorn yards and porches. The grass is still green, children are still lacing up their skates, throwing passes and kicking soccer balls into the goals. We move on. Not for a minute do we forget. We look forward, but our heads are up!

There was a marvelous evening of jazz at our church last night, and it was simply the best medicine I can think of for anyone who is feeling down. Music is a language unto itself and touches each of us in intensely personal ways. The people who experienced that time together came away feeling enriched and grateful for the talent shared by singer Barbara Ware and the Matt Michaels Trio. It was the perfect tonic for healing souls, a great combination, jazz in the sanctuary.

Our daughter called one morning last week to tell me she had driven three 4-year-olds to a play date and was listening to their conversation in the back seat. The boys were talking about some planes that had flown into tall buildings and Griffin, our grandson, turned to them and said, "You both have blue eyes, I have brown." I told her they must be doing something right.

Don't we feel like one giant family or a member of the biggest Super Bowl team in the world all with one goal in mind? There are times when you read stories of families or heroics that make you feel their pain or joy as your own. We are particularly blessed that we live in a country where we are able to disseminate information. We are together as never before.

Have you noticed an increase in communication from old friends? This is just one more positive way we are uniting and reaffirming old relationships. It isn't so much a sense of urgency as a reminder of how we should be living our lives at all times. I've had an avalanche of e-mails and phone calls and love the reconnecting. Guess we should make every day a Make A Difference Day.

They cared

John Conway of the Grosse Pointe Rotary Club recently introduced 10 St. John Hospital workers who embodied "Service Above Self" at a noon meeting at the War Memorial. In response to the Sept. 11 World Trade Center tragedy, the hospital loaded a van with medical supplies and these 10 drove it to New York to help.

They were Catherine Kelly, Sharon Aller-Kouki, Rose Caliguri, Paula Lingerfelt, Frank Boks, Jerry Hunter, Chris Barbour, Mike Liagie, Ronnie Vaughn and Lenae Vaughn.

Since there were so few rescued survivors the group mostly treated rescuers injured in working through the rubble.

percent) $11,550 per year. That would adequately cover any increase in real estate tax and a short vacation in Florida. Where's the owner's problem?

The article quoted a local Realtor, "Who will be our allies on this and when will they start coming aboard?" On this what? What campaign are we supposed to join? The arithmetic increases the Realtor reports are a fact of life in our vital economy. Shall we repeal the increases in value?

Proposal A was conceived with the intent of keeping real estate taxes, which have risen much faster than inflation, from driving people out of their homes. It increased the sales/use tax in a fair trade-off against revenue reduction from the real estate tax.

Does the article mean to imply that it is now time to discontinue the homeowner protection intended in Proposal A?

Who is starting a campaign to increase taxes on homes?

Do they plan to ask for a concurrent reduction in the sales/use tax?

What is their intended spending plan for the increased revenue?

Who are these people?

Minimizing the crime

To the Editor:

I read the article "Defense team: Hold your horses" in the Sept. 27 issue of the Grosse Pointe News, regarding, once again, Stephen Fennell.

The exact words of the counsel for the defendant were, "This was a kid who made a mistake." Kid? Mistake? This is minimizing the crime, in my opinion, as if it were a small kid who accidentally broke a window with a baseball.

In addition, I just finished reading the letter, "Forgotten children," in the Oct. 4 issue of the Grosse Pointe News, from a man who works for Children's Protective Services for the State of Michigan. He, "...didn't feel that this incident rose to the level of a 20 year sentence..."

Like it or not, there are laws against animal abuse and destruction of property.

And, this does not minimize what is happening to the children "in the city adjacent" to the Hunt Club.

Yes, it is sad regarding the tragedy of abused children, but does that make the pain that the owners of the loved horses hurt any less?

I feel it is unfair to minimize their pain and the law by comparing the incident to other tragedies. The fire and subsequent deaths of 19 horses was a tragedy in itself.

Altered

To the Editor:

The tragic news of what happened on Sept. 11 was passed on to me that morning by a friend in math class.

At first I didn't realize what was happening, that this was the beginning of a long hour, of a long day, of a long week, of a long year.

The rest of that day passed by in a blur. I went home and sat down in front of the TV. I was stuck in a trance, shock and disbelief were the thoughts running through my mind.

Throughout the week anger began to form inside me. I was angry for what had happened, angry at those who did this to us.

And even now, as I sit here gently wiping away my tears, I understand that the tears will keep flowing, but in time those tears will come to a stop.

As for now, we should continue on with our normal lives. Of course life will never be completely the same, but we can try our best to be good Americans and never, ever give up.

God bless America.

Enlightened

To the Editor:

"God bless America, my home sweet home!" For the United States, these past weeks have been an emotional roller coaster, but we still stand tall.

We have lost many lives in this disgusting act. We, the students of Parcells, mourn for those firefighters, police officers, flight passengers, and families who thought that Tuesday, Sept. 11, was going to be just another day at work.

We respect all those who made heroic efforts to evacuate, rescue and save the innocent people throughout these past weeks. I think that risking your life for the common good of America is the most loyal and patriotic thing to do.

I am only 12, but this event has affected me and even kids younger than me. I almost lost a family member. I am thankful he is alive.

A lot of things have happened to me lately. I don't feel as safe as I did before, I've been angry and upset. But sometimes the bad can bring out the best in you. For instance, I've become more patriotic and I am now learning and understanding our country's symbols and how our economy works.

I've also come to the realization that not all people have what I have, a loving family, shelter, food, clothes, a good education and the most important, freedom.

I have taken a lot of these things for granted. But now that I am understanding all this I will try not to anymore.

Of wisdom

To the Editor:

Just a few days after the tragedy of Sept. 11, I found my 8-year-old grandson, Nathan Hull, sitting quietly. My concern for him and his comment to me, led me in writing this poem.

A Child Too Wise
(A true story)
'What is it the precious child so dear?

You've been so quiet, you've shed a tear.

Your eyes too young to see the sights

That we must see from day to night.

You say Bin Laden's on your mind.

How can we seek and help you find

A place that's free from pain and fear,

What is it precious child so dear?"

His answer came to my surprise

With a wiser soul in a child's eyes,

"I cannot understand," he said

"and yet I know I'm trying

There's one thing that I know for sure

I know that God is Crying!"

Important message

To the Editor:

I belong to Our Lady Star of the Sea Catholic Church where Msgr. Harry is pastor and the Rev. Roger Lumbre is associate pastor. Their homilies are always great and people talk about them well after Sunday.

Rev. Lumbre recently printed a statement in our church bulletin that is so good I want to share it:

"...do not be afraid to those who kill the body...be afraid to the one who after killing has the power to cast into Gehenna." Luke 12:4-5

In these past few days, I got a lot of e-mails related to the Sept. 11 incident. One of them struck me as it was able to trace the image of Satan on the bellowing smoke from the burning north tower of the World Trade Center (WTC). But even if that image would not be visible on the smoke or on the clouds of dust as the buildings collapsed, still it is very obvious that it is the work of the devil and his misled cohorts.

We grieved for those victims and their families, but Satan would not benefit from their demise. We call them innocent victims and when a person is innocent (like Jesus who is an innocent sacrificial Lamb) he/she is pleasing in the eyes of God. Satan was only able to destroy their bodies — mangled and burned, but their soul is intact. So Satan cannot benefit from their deaths.

However, what the devil is expecting to benefit from is how we the living, including the families and the leaders of our country, would react to this situation. This is the trap of the devil. Our response to this situation entails a lot of moral questions, especially if it is taken out of anger or vengeance.

But I thank the Lord for the positive results this negative situation brings. Many people are praying. Not only at Star but many if not all churches are filled with people seeking refuge and consolation from God. Those who are estranged are being united.

Many are happy how the mayor and the governor of New York, who are reported to have been critical of each others' performance, are being united in this incident. Chasms between family members are bridged and many family relations are strengthened as we realize the value of the presence of each one of us.

Satan is now realizing the flaw of his strategy. America has shown its resiliency in this situation and the strength of our spirit especially in our faith in the Living God.

But this battle is long from over. And I hope you must have realized that the battle has started in our hearts. The battle between the spirit of good and evil.

The civil world speculate about war in terms of soldiers, reservists, tanks, ammunitions, fighter jets, missiles, allies, etc., but the real battle is the battle of the spirit. And we won in the first line of defense.

As the WTC collapsed our spirit soared to a new height. For sure those terrorists are now bursting with anger that our activities are back to normal. This is because our spirit is so strong that though we're wounded, we continue "to fight" — to pray for our persecutors, terrorists and their sponsor organizations, whom we are not a bit scared of and to love one another including these enemies as Christ has commanded us!

Of course we have to support our government in their efforts to bring the perpetrators to justice. Let us pray for our country's leaders that the Holy Spirit will guide them in their decisions.

Let us not allow the devil to win this battle by letting him (anger and vengeance) occupy our hearts! Let us continue to fight the devil and all his instruments with the Love of Christ!

God bless America!

Sound arrest

City of Grosse Pointe public safety officers arrested a 39-year-old City man who had been seen concealing several portable compact disc players in a duffel bag at a store in the 17100 block of Kercheval the morning of Monday, Oct. 8.

The man ditched the bag inside the store, then walked out the back entrance where he was met by City public safety officers.

The suspect's mother posted bond and he was then turned over to the police department in Eastpointe, where he was wanted on a contempt of court bond.

Where's the beef?

Two shoppers watched a 36-year-old Detroit man with 10 packages of steaks valued at $92.89 walk out of a store in the 16900 block of Kercheval in the City of Grosse Pointe on the morning of Monday, Oct. 8.

The man, who made no attempt to conceal the hot steaks, was seen getting into a 1992 Dodge Dynasty, which was reported heading north on Cadieux. He was later stopped by City public safety officers near Alter and Frankfort in Detroit.

The man was arrested and released on $100 bond.

Car vandalism

A Village employee found a flat tire, which he believed to have been slashed, when he got out of work at 9 p.m. on Saturday, Oct. 13.

According to a City of Grosse Pointe public safety report, the car was parked on the top level of the parking deck in the Village between noon and 9 p.m.

The owner of the car said he had seen some suspicious people hanging around the garage after he parked his car that afternoon.

Also on that same day, a Grosse Pointe Park woman reported that her 2001 red Toyota had been keyed while parked on Kercheval Place sometime before 8:15 p.m. The entire hood of the car had been damaged.

Unclean getaway

A $4.35 bottle of shampoo cost a 63-year-old Grosse Pointe Farms woman $100 bond when she was seen and arrested for taking the item from a store on the 16900 block of Kercheval in the City of Grosse Pointe on the afternoon of Wednesday, Oct. 10.

The business owner and an employee saw the woman place the bottle in a white plastic bag and leave the store without paying for the merchandise. The owner had followed the woman out of the store, then called the City public safety department, which arrested the woman and released her on bond.

Not so easy money

City of Grosse Pointe public safety officers arrested an 18-year-old Detroit woman on Oct. 11, who admitted stealing about $6,025 from her employer since July.

PUBLIC SAFETY REPORTS

An internal investigation of the store on the 17400 block of Mack revealed that the employee had been creating fraudulent return slips of approximately $100 each and had pocketed the money.

Equipment theft

A resident of the 900 block of Lincoln reported a red Toro electric start lawn mower and a Craftsman electric start snowblower was taken from his garage sometime between Saturday, Oct. 13, and 11 a.m. Sunday, Oct. 14.

Entry into the garage was believed to have been made from a side door.

Bicycle theft

Sometime between 9:30 and 11:30 a.m. on Sunday, Oct. 14, a black and red Schwinn boys' bike was taken from a garage on the 900 block of Washington in the City of Grosse Pointe.

The homeowner admitted that the garage door was left open, but no other property appeared to be missing.

Car theft

A 1995 purple Chrysler Concorde was reported missing from the 700 block of Neff in the City of Grosse Pointe sometime between 3 and 11 a.m. the morning of Sunday, Oct. 14.

The owner said the car was locked when she parked it in front of the house.

Radio missing

A police radio was discovered missing after a Grosse Pointe Farms public safety administrative car was taken to a St. Clair Shores automobile dealership for warranty repairs.

The car was left at the dealership Monday, Oct. 8, at 9 a.m. and was picked up Tuesday, Oct. 9, at 1 p.m.

An employee and mechanic said they did not see a police radio in the car while it was at the dealership.

According to the Farms' radio repair department, no activity had been reported on the radio since the car was left at the dealership.

Paying attention

A 10-year-old student at a public elementary school in Grosse Pointe Farms helped Farms public safety officers solve a crime by paying attention at school.

The student had seen two youths — a 14-year-old City of Grosse Pointe boy and his neighbor's 15-year-old Grosse Pointe Park cousin — tampering with bicycles at the school's bike rack around 9:45 a.m. on Thursday, Oct. 11.

While the school principal called the high school to let them know two of their students were not where they should have been, Farms public safety officers found the youths and the bike in the driveway in the driveway of the City youth's home.

A Farms public safety officer asked the youths if the bike was taken from the school. They both said, "yes."

The officer spoke with the youth's grandmother, who said the City youth had called in sick to school, but she was planning on taking him to class after fourth hour. The grandmother did not know why her other grandson was not at school.

The officer returned the boys to school, which gave the boys unexcused absences for the time they were gone and said they would deal with the truancy problem.

A parent of the owner of the stolen bike pressed charges against the two youth suspects.

Grinched

The Grinch came early to a charity holiday fundraiser held on Lakeshore in Grosse Pointe Farms the weekend of Oct. 12-14.

A vendor from Birmingham reported a pearl and crystal necklace valued at $40 was taken from her table sometime between 2 and 6 p.m. on Friday, Oct. 12.

A Stuart, Fla., vendor reported a blue ladies handbag with a sail motif displayed for sale was taken from her table around 12:30 p.m. on Sunday, Oct. 14.

Also, a Winnetka, Ill., vendor reported two sterling silver baby rattles valued at $45 each and four sterling silver bracelets valued at $85 each were taken from her table sometime between noon and 1:30 p.m. on Sunday, Oct. 13.

Anthrax scares

A Grosse Pointe Woods woman opening her mail last weekend became alarmed when teal-colored powder rubbed off an envelope onto her skin.

Fearing anthrax exposure, she quickly washed her hands and called police. Local authorities determined there was no threat.

The incident happened on Sunday, Oct. 14, as the 51-year-old resident of the 800 block of Woods Lane opened her mail from the day before. Thinking she may have been a victim of the type of bioterrorism being discussed nationally, she sealed the suspicious envelope in a bag. Officers triple-bagged the evidence and secured it in the property room at Woods police headquarters.

"The powdery substance did not meet FBI criteria for notification," according to officers. Police told the woman to call back if she "noticed any change in her health."

In a similar incident Friday, Oct. 12, at 2:40 p.m., a woman living in the 19200 block of Raymond in the Woods received a suspicious get well card mailed in an envelope, a corner of which had been cut open and covered with a powdery substance.

The woman bagged the card and took it to police headquarters, where officers double-bagged it in a second bag and logged it as evidence. Officers called the FBI who said the evidence described didn't add up to bioterrorism.

Car thefts

Two cars were reported stolen last week in Grosse Pointe Park. One has been recovered.

Sometime during the night of Sunday, Oct. 7, a 1994 Plymouth Sundance was taken from the street in front of a residence in the 1000 block of Audubon. Broken glass found on the street signaled the thieves' method of entry.

One week later, between 3 and 9:30 a.m. on Sunday, Oct. 14, a GMC Sierra pickup truck was taken from in front of a home in the 1400 block of Lakepointe. Police recovered the vehicle in Detroit at University and South Hampton.

Bad interview

A 42-year-old Detroit man who was undergoing a background check for employment as a security officer at a local shopping mall was found to have an outstanding traffic warrant from Grosse Pointe Woods.

On Wednesday, Oct. 10, examiners alerted Woods police to their findings. Woods police arrested the man. He posted bond, was given a court date and released.

North thefts

It appears a thief is loose at Grosse Pointe North High School. At least three thefts took place last week at the school, two on the same day. All victims were 15-year-old girls.

On Monday, Oct. 8, at about 6 p.m., a coed from Harper Woods told Grosse Pointe Woods police someone had stolen her cellular telephone and $5 from a backpack stored in the girls locker room. The incident happened between 8 and 9 a.m.

On Wednesday, Oct. 10, another girl from Harper Woods reported her purse stolen. The theft took place during a third-hour choir class. The purse was found empty and discarded in a girl's lavatory.

The third incident was told to police on Friday, Oct. 12, but reportedly took place on Monday, Oct. 8.

The victim, a girl from Grosse Pointe Shores, said someone took her bag from a dressing room in building C and stole a portable CD player, 24 CDs and headphones. She said the incident took place between 12:20 and 1:50 p.m.

Woman attacks Woods officer

A 47-year-old City of Grosse Pointe woman who was involved in a neighbor dispute in Grosse Pointe Woods was arrested last week for assaulting a police officer. On Monday, Oct. 8, an officer who was responding to a complaint in the 13800 block of Wedgewood had to cuff the woman after she grabbed and wrestled him.

Low-tech cyber criminals

The owner of the building notified police of the burglary when he arrived at the office Tuesday.

The front window had its screen removed, allowing the thieves to enter through a window and force the inner door open. Four computer systems and their monitors were reported missing.

Friends and National Fire Safety Week

The Grosse Pointe Farms Public Safety Department invited elementary school classrooms to the station on Wednesday, Oct. 10, in observance of National Fire Safety week.

Students got to inspect vehicles, equipment and practice a drill in the smokehouse.

Drunken man kills innocent

The repeat offense of a convicted drunken driver killed a man and hospitalized a woman on the night of Oct. 10.

The drunken driver led Macomb County police on a chase down westbound I-94 for several miles before exiting the freeway at the Vernier exit.

The intoxicated driver did not decrease his speed as he entered traffic, and broadsided a car traveling westbound on Vernier, killing the passenger and hospitalizing the driver.

He then fled the scene on foot before being taken into custody. Macomb County police are expected to bring heavy charges against the man.

Double lock pays off

The workers of the dentist's office in the 20800 block of Harper were spared coming to a ruined office on Oct. 2 because of a double keyed lock.

Workers came in to the office in the morning to find one of the windows of the front door smashed out but no one had entered the building. The officers told the owner of the building that the double lock was the only reason that the building had remained secure.

Car theft

The owner of a 2000 Plymouth was shocked to find her vehicle missing from the front of her home in the 19900 block of Roscommon Sunday, Oct. 14.

The woman had the keys, had given no one permission to use the vehicle and had locked the car.

Police entered the vehicle into the stolen car database, but have no suspects at this time.

Stolen car chase

A Harper Woods police cruiser patrolling on Sanilac during the evening of Oct. 14 noticed the driver's side lock had been punched and the handle had been tampered with on a 2001 Stratus.

A check confirmed the car as stolen. The driver fled from police, heading southbound across Moross at speeds exceeding 50 m.p.h. After a short chase the cruiser was able to trap the vehicle in a dead end south of Moross.

The driver of the vehicle, a minor from Detroit, was apprehended and taken into custody, but the passenger escaped.

Moving violation

The driver and passenger of a 2000 Dodge pickup truck were taken into custody at Huntington and Tyrone for stealing a wrought iron love seat and chair to move them to their own backyard.

The vehicle was pulled over under suspicion of the theft, and the Harper Woods officer handling the arrests found the two men had outstanding warrants for alcohol and drug-related crimes in Detroit.

The furniture was returned and the men are awaiting charges.

Pointe students participate in Pledge Across America

By Melissa Walsh
Special Writer

Grosse Pointe students from age 3 to 18 responded to U.S. Secretary of Education Rod Paige's call for a synchronized nationwide Pledge of Allegiance across the United States on Friday, Oct. 12, at 2 p.m. EDT.

Paige had planned the exercise in patriotism as a follow-up on what teachers and parents were doing to help young people cope with the Sept. 11 attacks on the World Trade Center and Pentagon.

In a news release dated Oct. 9 to American school principals, Paige urged that all schools participate in the Pledge Across America, noting the profound contribution by teachers in instructing students of "our proud and rich national history and the foundations of our free society," Paige wrote. "Teachers in every community in America have been working with students to help them understand what happened on Sept. 11 and to overcome their fears and concerns."

Grosse Pointe South High

School's staff hurried to hang new flags in classrooms in time for the event. The flags were received earlier as a gift by South's class of 2001.

Jen O'Brien, Grosse Pointe South senior and student association president, and Brian Fox, sophomore class president, led South students and teachers in the exercise, reciting the pledge to classrooms over the public announcement system.

Students at South seemed to have no difficulty in recalling the pledge from the mornings of reciting it in elementary school. For many, the pledge is no longer merely an exercise in remembering a sequence of phrases, but recalling what was sacrificed for freedom and reflecting on how to preserve freedom.

"I think right now it's especially important because you think about being united in the country," said O'Brien. "It's more meaningful now than it was a couple of months ago."

"You listen to the words of the pledge and it makes you think of what you want to do when you grow up — you want to be one of the leaders in government," said Fox.

"The words, they're a lot stronger than they used to be. You say 'I pledge allegiance to the flag,' but you know that the people and workers in New York and the Pentagon have pledged their allegiance to the country. It's really special."

"After what happened, when you say the pledge you realize how important it is and what it really means," said Andrea Nedeau, junior class president. "When everyone unites and says it together, it's really a good feeling."

South teachers have taken time to consider students' concerns and explain the political and social factors surrounding our nation's tragedy. "When you're little and you first learn the pledge, it doesn't mean that much to you; you're just saying words," said Maggie Collison, freshman class president. "Now you think about it more — we have discussions a lot in class about what happened, and that really helps."

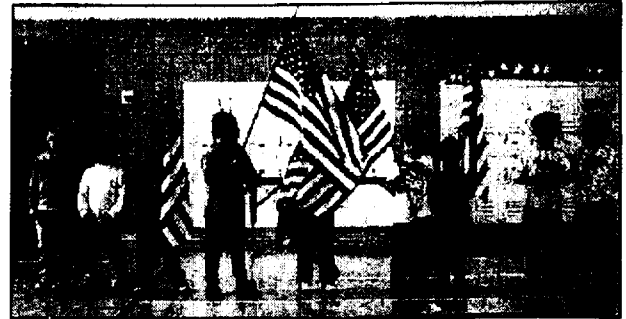

Fox observed that civics and history classes mean a lot more now.

"History has completely changed," said Fox. "We talk a lot about it. When it happened we spent three days watching the TV, we talked about how we shouldn't blame one religion or one group of people, and that really helped because we were angry."

The very youngest students in the district demonstrated their patriotism at Barnes School's first assembly this year that was swiftly planned to allow students to participate together in the Pledge Across America. Students from preschool to early elementary assembled in the gym and proudly recited the pledge while standing, hand over heart and eyes set on the flag. Students were chosen to carry into the assembly the large flags that made up the colors.

Beth Moran, pre-school teacher for children with special needs, noted a sincere reverence for the flag among Barnes students. "The flags that they were carrying were really big," explained Moran. "We told them the flag doesn't touch the ground, and they were working really hard to carry it and keep it from touching the ground."

Moran was proud of her students' patriotism and how well they learned and recited the pledge. "We talked about the Pledge of Allegiance," she said. "I think that, even though they don't totally understand what we were doing and why we were doing it in light of Sept. 11, they still were participating with all the rest of the kids. They knew to stand, they knew to put their hand on their heart, and they recited the pledge. We'll start doing it on a daily basis because they were really picking it up and it was a really positive thing to do."

Teen Read Week a best seller

Jason Sweeney
Staff Writer

Every year, schools recognize Teen Read Week on the event calendar but this year Harper Woods is writing the book on the subject.

Janet Bobak, media specialist for Harper Woods schools, said the weeklong push for reading awareness, Oct. 15 to 20, came at a great time.

"I had already received comments from students about interest in a reading club," Bobak said. This official week of reading awareness has been a great way to showcase the kickoff.

The first meeting of the new Harper Woods Schools reading club, open to students grades 7 through 12, met at 3 p.m. Oct. 15.

The meeting brought in a good number of youth who were hungry for some literature.

Bobak said the first meeting helped the group find some focus, narrow down the field of what books the club will be reading, and get a feel for how the group would operate in the future.

"It (the club) is about reading for fun," Bobak stressed. "The goal is enrichment and enjoyment of the members."

Any other positive effects of the group, Bobak said, would be a great bonus.

Throughout the week, students are able to enter a trivia contest about authors and historical events. The trick, of course, is that students need to read up on the questions in order to answer them correctly.

Everyone who participates will get a small prize, and those who answered correctly will be eligible for the grand prize drawing to be held Saturday, Oct. 20.

The week of events centered around reading and author awareness winds up not in the schools, but with the Harper Woods Public Library.

Harper Woods Public Library Director Dale Parus said he and Bobak share a proactive view of working with youths and reading. This week was a natural way to work together.

Parus organized a pizza party and movie night, open to all Harper Woods children and Harper Woods students. The event, planned for Oct. 18 at 5:30 p.m., will feature a "Goosebumps" movie, part of the spooky theme the library is featuring in October.

Pizza, and of course the chance to talk with librarians and check out a good book, will also be available for the guests.

"We offer a lot of services, and can give kids orientations at the library," Parus said. "But this is more just to make kids aware we're here and we that you can have a good time in the library and with books."

G.P. Academy welcomes new head of school

By Madeleine Socia
Staff Writer

Students at The Grosse Pointe Academy in Grosse Pointe Farms welcomed Phil Demartini, Jr. to his new position as Head of School during an all-school convocation in the Academy Chapel on Sept. 17, 2001.

Demartini, a native of New York City, has a bachelor's degree from Columbia University and a master's degree in Education from Fordham University. During a 30-year career in education, Demartini has held administrative positions at his alma mater, the Elisabeth Morrow School in New Jersey and the Metairie Park Country Day School in New Orleans, La.

He comes to the Academy from St. Francis School, a preschool through grade eight independent school in Goshen, Ky.

During his nine-year tenure as headmaster at St. Francis, the enrollment jumped from 217 to more than 500.

His faculty at St. Francis characterized him as a strong, effective, high-energy leader who delegated authority and empowered his staff. "He believes in investing in his teachers through respect and professionalism," said a former colleague. "And he believes in being a strong advocate for children."

"Choosing the Head of School is the greatest responsibility of the Board and one that was taken with great care and deliberation," said Dr. Patricia West, president of the Grosse Pointe Academy Board of Trustees. Phil Demartini's appointment followed an extensive nationwide search, conversations with many highly qualified candidates and a thorough evaluation and referencing process."

'I knew the day I set foot on campus that there was something very special about the Academy.'

Phil DiMartini
Head of School
G.P. Academy

While the Academy was looking over Demartini's qualifications, the prospective head of school indulged in a little first-hand investigation of his own.

When a friend first told him about the opening at the Academy, Demartini found the prospect enticing. The temptation of a fresh challenge, coupled with the fact that his daughter Kate was considering a relocation to Ann Arbor where her husband Jeff is slated to do an internship in ophthalmology, made him decide to check out the campus en route to his summer home in upstate New York.

"They say don't judge a book by its cover," Demartini recalled. "But when you drive by, the campus is definitely impressive. So we got out of the car and looked around. Then my wife and I sat on the bench and looked out at the lake. She looked at me and I looked and her and said, do you think we could do this?"

The answer was a resounding yes, especially after Demartini met with members of the Board.

"We could see their love and concern for the school," he said. "They really wanted to move it back to where it was and the task of doing that really appealed to me. That is something that I have done before."

The most immediate challenge facing the Academy's new head of school will be to fill what he calls, "the void in leadership," marked by the brief tenures of one head of school, and an interim head of school over the past three years and a dip in enrollment.

The Demartini family, including wife Wendy, now a second-grade teacher at the Academy, and son Judd, a sixth-grade student at the Academy, have taken up residence in a Grosse Pointe Shores home which was purchased by the school as a headmaster's residence. The new address replaces the old headmaster's house on campus which is currently under renovation. Daughter Kate, 25, will soon be moving to Ann Arbor and her sister Kim, 22, is an artist and design assistant living in San Francisco, Calif.

Demartini hopes to work with all of the school's constituencies to rebuild their confidence in the Academy. He also plans to reach out to the community through active membership in area organizations.

Another immediate goal is to establish a technology plan that will feature the use of laptops and an upgraded, interactive website.

Demartini pledges to maintain an "open door" policy and return the warm welcome he has received from the school and community.

"I cannot tell you how fortunate and thrilled I feel to have been selected," he said. "I knew the day I set foot on campus that there was something very special about the Academy."

This unusual pursuit may have been inspired by his childhood contact with John D. Rockefeller. Mr. McMillan was the recipient of one of Mr. Rockefeller's famous dimes and the advice that he should keep his eyes open for the other opportunities to enrich himself. While he took this advice to heart, he spent his life taking care of other people.

Rally closes third week; NASDAQ above Sept. 10 close

Over a month ago, on Monday, Sept. 10, the NASDAQ Composite closed at 1,695.

We all remember the chaos that following morning, Tuesday, Sept. 11.

After the terrorist attacks, the markets were closed for four trading days.

The following Monday, Sept. 17, the markets reopened and sold off dramatically.

The selling continued on record volume all week through that Friday.

The NASDAQ Composite posted an intra-day low below 1,400 that Friday, Sept. 21, and closed that day at a new closing low of 1,423 (see adjoining table).

Technicians use the daily closes to mark their chart movement of the market.

The collapse of the NASDAQ Composite from Sept. 10 through Sept. 21 (only five trading days because of the closure) was 272 points, or a 16.1 percent decline.

The 280-point NASDAQ Composite gain from Monday, Sept. 24, through last Friday, Oct. 12, was 19.7 percent, a most remarkable three-week recovery from its earlier historic low!

review of the NASDAQ Composite and the NASDAQ 100 indices.

Since most analysts concede that the NASDAQ Composite Index is more volatile than the Dow Jones Industrial Index, LTS was endeavoring to determine whether the NASDAQ 100 (symbol QQQ) might provide a more profitable short-term or intermediate trading bounce than the NASDAQ Composite itself.

If the general market showed signs of a possible trading bounce when trading resumed on Monday, Sept. 17, would the purchase of QQQs (a.k.a. "cubes") produce more profitable results than the statistical profits of the NASDAQ Composite, which has no tracking stock yet?

LTS charted QQQ daily since Dec. 28, 2000, using data available from the Internet.

The adjoining table illustrates the NASDAQ Index and QQQ stock closing prices for weeks ending each Friday since the WTC disaster.

Note that the three-week recovery of QQQ was 14.7 percent greater than the recovery of the NASDAQ Composite!

What did you buy?

Remember, "Crisis Equals Opportunity"? And what a crisis it was! All stock trading was halted for four trading days. Unanimous forecasts were for a sharply lower reopening, a la World War I and II.

What did you buy? Did you have your "Five-Stock Buy List" completed? Most analysts and commentators had the same "Sell List": airlines, hotels, cruise lines, casinos, casualty insurance and re-insurance companies, auto and auto parts companies, etc.

Many "buy recommendations" included the old staple defensive stocks: gold and silver, food, soft drinks, pharmaceuticals, utilities, etc.

Midweek that week, while the markets were still closed, the Ex-Dividend Luncheon Club (consisting of retired brokers and a few tired, still-working brokers) met on Wednesday, Sept. 12, for its monthly meeting at the Lochmoor Club.

During dessert and coffee, president Jerry Kelly (a Roney retiree) called the question for each present member to answer: "If you inherited $20,000 cash today, how would you invest it?"

Many retired brokers (average age 76) were understandably very conservative in their answers:

Put it all in the money market account; half in money market, the other half in Treasuries; all in Michigan triple tax-exempt municipal bonds; half in munies, the other half in fixed annuities; blow it all on a six-month vacation; etc.

But the few tired, working brokers were more optimistic, being closer to the market on a day-to-day basis; they strongly recommended their personal favorite local growth stock and also pumped some really beaten-up big-cap NASDAQ tech stocks!

When the question rolled around the table to LTS, his reply shocked most of the members: "I'd put it all on 'QQQ,' buy at the market when trading restarts!" That was about like betting it all on "red" at the roulette table!

So how did LTS' speculative call work out?

(Actually LTS did not place any order for QQQs on Monday, Sept. 17, when trading resumed, because LTS does not recommend individual stocks, and LTS does not discuss personal holdings, without prior disclosure.)

LTS' call did not work out all that great, mainly because LTS told the club he would place a market order at the resumption of trading.

That first day, QQQs closed at 31.20, down 2.90 points from the close the day before the attacks.

Note (from the adjoining table): The stock continued to decline another 3.01 points to its closing low the following Friday.

By rushing in to buy the first day, LTS would have left about half of the potential profits of the bounce on the table.

Nevertheless, LTS' hypothetical purchase would have netted an 11.1 percent gain, assuming a hypothetical sale last Friday's close of 34.55.

A margined transaction would have netted an additional 4.4 percent gain.

The reopening on Monday, Sept. 17, was a slaughterhouse; everything went down the wash tub.

It was like when the sheriff raided the dance hall and all the girls — good and bad — got a free ride to visit the judge at the courthouse!

The selling finally dried up late Friday afternoon, Sept. 24. For that week the Dow dropped 1,370 points, or 14.3 percent.

Percentage wise, the NASDAQ Composite tanked worse, and sank 16.1 percent, on a drop of 272 points (see adjoining table).

But the following three weeks were beautiful.

Once again, it was a joy to listen to the radio and TV reports of market actions each day.

Nothing like a big bounce in the market to bring back the sunshine!

You agree?

For laughs, take my column — please!

One of the nice things about the Internet, and e-mail specifically, is the ability to stay in touch with relatives and friends all over the United States, and even around the globe.

I have many (OK, a few) friends that I communicate with on almost a daily basis. Even though they moved away years ago, I still feel in touch. It's almost as if they never left, and that's a good thing.

What do we chat about? What we're doing. What the kids are doing. And then there are the jokes. In an ongoing competition, each of us tries to find the funniest jokes we can share. I'm pretty good at it, mainly because I know where to find the humor. And no, it's not always in my column, although I do try.

Obviously, there are certain non-politically correct jokes I can't cover, so I won't. But I can discuss locations and categories.

My favorite is www.joke-of-the-day.com. Yes, the hyphens are required. The website offers dozens of categories, including the all-time favorite "Light Bulb" and "Lawyer" jokes. My brother is an attorney, so I am always in search of anything that brings out the humor in the legal profession. Wait, isn't that an oxymoron? Now, you knew you were going to get a sample, right?

There was a lawyer and he was just waking up from anesthesia after surgery, and his wife was sitting by his side. His eyes fluttered open and he said, "You're beautiful!" and then he fell asleep again.

His wife had never heard him say that so she stayed by his side. A couple minutes later his eyes fluttered open and he said, "You're cute!" Well, the wife was disappointed because instead of 'beautiful' it was 'cute.' She said, "What happened to 'beautiful'?" His reply was "The drugs are starting to wear off!"

As you can see, this joke could be applied to any profession. I just wanted to make my brother nervous.

One of my closest friends, who now lives in Connecticut, and I e-chat just about every other day and, like all good friends, talk about our kids. He has an extremely attractive and intelligent daughter who is a nurse.

She also happens to be blonde, so you can now see where this is going. It's too late to turn back. She collects blonde jokes, and has for years. How many blonde jokes does she have? One for every real blonde hair on her head, including one I can use here.

Two blondes were going to Disneyland when they came to a fork in the road. The sign read: "Disneyland Left." So they went home.

I know. I know. You've heard better ones, but I'm trying to appeal to all age groups, genders and sensibilities here.

Naturally, it wouldn't be a proper website without jokes about news and politics, sports, children, red-necks and one-legged chickens. (I'm kidding about the chickens.)

Also, before I forget, I want to point out that there is also a sign-up location on the Joke-of-the-Day website, where you can arrange to have the joke of the day sent to you each day by e-mail. There are several categories to choose from, including a catch-all, if you want to see a buffet table of humor. No food fights, please.

Have you ever had to give speech? No, I'm not changing subjects in mid-column. I think all of us have heard that the best way to start a speech is to open with a joke. This is a great ice-breaker. It can help relax both the speaker and the audience.

We'll ignore what happens if you tell a joke and nobody laughs. Let's just hope there is a podium large enough for you to hide under. The Joke-of-the-Day has speech openers for all occasions.

Have to give a toast? They have you covered. Here's one you can use in Grosse Pointe: Give a man a fish and he will eat for a day. Teach him how to fish and he will sit in a boat and drink beer all day!

Like baseball? (I mean, if you're not a Tigers fan.) I liked this one.

There were two old guys, Abe and Sol, sitting on a bench in a park feeding pigeons and talking about baseball, just like they did every day. Abe turns to Sol and says, "Do you think there's baseball in heaven?"

Solomon thinks about it for a minute and replies, "I dunno, Abe. But let's make a deal: If I die first, I will come back and tell you — if there is baseball in heaven."

Sadly, a few months later poor Abe passes on. One day soon afterward, Sol is sitting there feeding the pigeons by himself when he hears a voice whisper, "Sol... Sol..."

Sol responds, "Abe! Is that you?"

"Yes it is, Sol," whispers the spirit of Abe.

Sol, still amazed, asks, "So, is there baseball in heaven?"

"Well," says Abe says, "I got good news and I got bad news."

"Gimme the good news first," says Sol.

Abe says, "Well... there is baseball in heaven."

Sol says, "That's great! What news could be bad enough to ruin that?"

Abe sighs and whispers, "You're pitching on Friday."

Nice joke to have in a Thursday paper, right? Hope you don't have to pitch tomorrow.

If you have a favorite comedy website, send it to me. As my wife says, I'm always good for a laugh.

Lance Corporal Whitney Mark DeVeroux

Jason Sweeney
Staff Writer

As the nation arms itself for the war on terrorism, steps are taken to freeze Taliban funds, hold together a tenuous international alliance and wage an aerial and ground campaign in Afghanistan, it is easy to forget the personal stories. Stories like the one of Tami DeVeroux and her sons.

The three lived in Grosse Pointe Farms and Grosse Pointe Woods as a family for most of the boys' lives and it is where they ultimately call home.

Ruark and Whitney, both graduates of Grosse Pointe South High School, are leaving before the end of the month to serve their country as members of the armed forces.

Twenty-one-year-old Ruark is an aviation ordnanceman aboard the U.S.S. Abraham Lincoln, the flagship of the U.S. Pacific fleet.

DeVeroux said Ruark was unsure of what direction to take after his graduation in 1998 until he came home one day and told her with no uncertainty, "I'm going into the Navy."

While DeVeroux said she was initially a bit shocked by the seemingly sudden decision, she said the choice has been a very good one for her son.

Ruark entered the service the winter of 1998 and after his training, he was stationed on the aircraft carrier preparing, assembling and loading the missiles onto aircraft during three tours of the Pacific Rim and other ports.

These trips have landed him in the Middle East, Australia, Japan and several other countries, but DeVeroux hopes that the strongest memories of his military career don't come from the mission he is about to undertake.

Whitney, Ruark's 19-year-old brother, graduated in 2000. DeVeroux said that he had so many options when he graduated, but when the time came to make the decision, he didn't hesitate.

"I think that with all the letters and visits from Ruark," DeVeroux said, "all the stuff he heard about Ruark doing, Whitney decided he had to go one better."

Whitney will receive his promotion to Lance

Aviation Ordnanceman Ruark Anthony DeVeroux

Corporal before he leaves for Afghanistan. The award-winning marksman, who passed by officers' training to serve and learn the day-to-day workings of the Marines, drives a M-1 tank.

Whitney is currently on maneuvers in California to train for the mission which he has been unable to tell his mother about, but DeVeroux suspects will be on the ground in Afghanistan.

"He's going to be a gun in the middle of the battlefield," DeVeroux said. "That makes me a little nervous."

DeVeroux said she has faith in the boys, and that she is not overly worried about them. In fact, DeVeroux said it's the small things that make you realize the seriousness of the situation. DeVeroux recently moved to St. Clair Shores and had to fill out address cards for both sons as part of their pre-mission paperwork. The card lists the address a serviceman would report to if one of her sons was killed in the line of duty.

"That little card was scary," DeVeroux said. "But I tell myself it's just paperwork that will never have to be used."

Both her sons had also planned on being home for Thanksgiving, spending the day at the Silverdome, regardless of how well the team was playing.

"I just asked them," DeVeroux said, "What about Thanksgiving? Or Christmas?" Both sons just told her not to count on them being home for the holidays or anytime soon. Another thing that has been pushed back because of Ruark's deployment on the U.S.S. Abraham Lincoln is his wedding.

Nearly a year ago, Ruark began dating Christina Curran of Grosse Pointe Park, one of his classmates and a graduate of Grosse Pointe South.

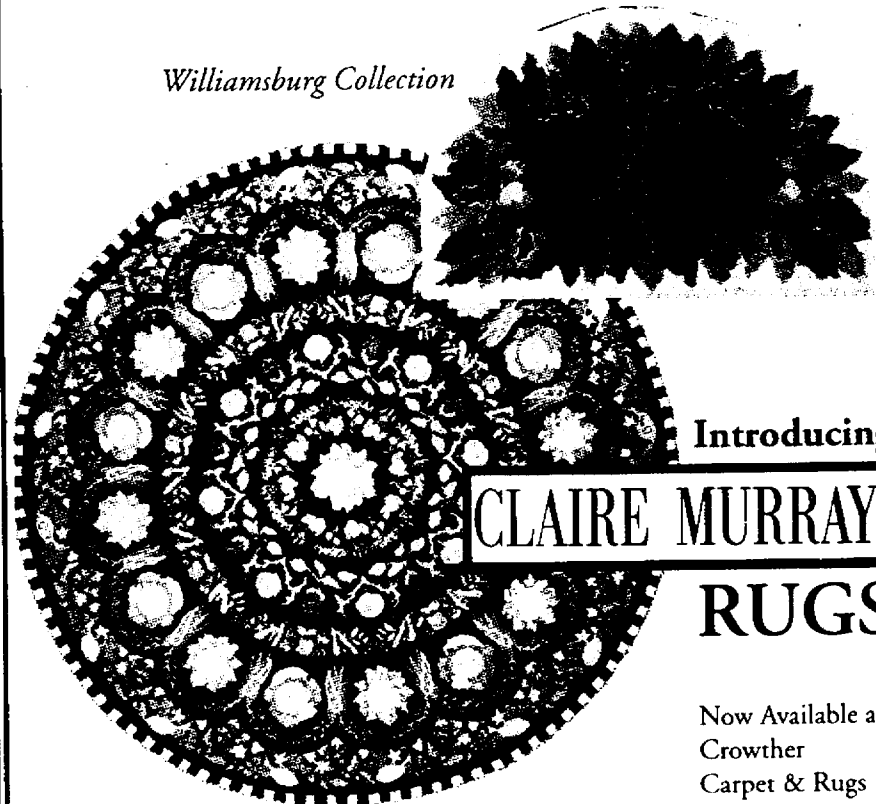

The wedding had originally been scheduled for March 2002, but plans have changed.

Curran said she supports Ruark's and Whitney's decisions to serve and thinks it's very responsible. Regardless of that conviction, she wishes that he didn't have to go.

"We felt we had time and that there was no rush to get married," Curran said. See NATIVE, page 3B

Take the guesswork out of migraine treatment

More than 28 million Americans suffer from migraines. Are you one of them? The National Headache Foundation (NHF) recently launched two new educational resource guides on its website designed to assist sufferers at www.headaches.org.

Both interactive modules, Migraine Headaches and Treatment and Migraine Prevention: A Guide to the Latest Methods and Treatments, provide comprehensive information about migraine headache and were designed as a "one-stop shop" for sufferers and their families. If migraines are a part of your life, or that of someone you know, log on and learn how to reclaim your life.

Migraine Headaches and Treatment is a comprehensive, self-running audio presentation, which provides an in-depth review of migraines. Underwritten through an unrestricted educational grant from GlaxoSmithKline, this section identifies the common myths and facts about migraine focusing on the triggers and causes, as well as medications and non-medication treatment options.

Migraine Prevention: A Guide to the Latest Methods and Treatments enables migraine sufferers to learn more about reducing the number or severity of their attacks through preventive measures. The section, underwritten through an unrestricted educational grant from Ortho-McNeil Pharmaceutical Inc., also provides sufferers quick tips on how to work with their health care professionals to decide if preventive medication is right for them and offers a table of drugs indicated for migraine and those being investigated for treatment.

The NHF web site also provides information about support groups, current headache topics and news, information on patient assistance, other in-depth educational modules and excerpts from the NHF Head Lines newsletter.

The National Headache Foundation is a non-profit organization dedicated to serving headache sufferers, their families and the health care providers who treat them; promoting research into headache causes and treatments; and educating the public to the fact that headaches are a legitimate biological disease and sufferers deserve understanding and continuity of care.

"But after the attack, it's not so easy for him to come home and he can't give me a date for when he'll be back."

DeVeroux said she doesn't know where either of her sons will be once they leave. She said that there will be a few reassuring ties to her sons while they are gone.

One of the newest and most used, said DeVeroux, is e-mail.

"It's very important to have that link," DeVeroux said. "It gives me an immediate, personal link to them."

She said that link makes it much easier to deal with anxiety about her sons, though she wishes Whitney would set up an e-mail address that she could reach more often.

"I can tell Ruark what is going on with his brother, let him know where he is and where he can write him."

Another link to her sons, though much less personal, are 1-800 numbers to a voice recording.

The recordings are done periodically from the commanding officer of their units. The recording gives an account of the situation of the troops and tells the parents and families what has been happening over the last few days, without giving away classified information.

"The frustrating thing about the recording," DeVeroux said, "is that it's not updated as often as many parents would like."

Sometimes days or even weeks go by without an update due to the security of orders or the strenuous level of activity by the troops. It is a priority, but definitely not top on the list.

DeVeroux said she and Curran are fully behind both men and their decisions to serve and will wait as patiently as possible for their return.

"Watching them just sitting there on the couch, watching football and talking to each other with all the army lingo," DeVeroux said, "that makes me so proud of the men they've become."

While she understands that the roles her sons are playing are important and are necessary, DeVeroux said she hopes to see that image of her sons arguing good-naturedly on the couch again soon.

It means her sons safely are back together with her and the rest of the family.

The DeVeroux family isn't alone. There are stories like it throughout the neighborhood and across the country.

DeVeroux said that these stories should be another reason to be proud of being American. Families are pulling together to support their children, parents, brothers and sisters.

The Grosse Pointe News is proud of all those who are serving their country. We are collecting material for a patriotic page of service men and women from the Pointes and Harper Woods.

If you are related to or know someone who should be recognized, send a photo and a letter with his or her name, branch of service, rank, family members and when and where they are deployed to: G.P. News: Hometown Patriots, 96 Kercheval, Grosse Pointe Farms, 48236. Include your phone number or the number of someone to contact for the story.

Topic to be pain management

The program will be presented from 7 to 9 p.m. Wednesday, Oct. 24, in the first-floor conference rooms at Cottage Hospital, 159 Kercheval (one mile south of Moross) in Grosse Pointe Farms.

Adamo will explore the ways psychiatry can work in conjunction with pain management toward the best possible outcomes for individuals who suffer from chronic pain. Disorders such as fibromyalgia will also be discussed. Questions are welcome.

While the program is free, reservations are required. Call (586) 779-7900 between 9 a.m. and 4 p.m. weekdays. Free parking is available in the parking deck on Muir Road. Bring your parking ticket into the program for validation.

The Pastor's Corner

Grace

By a member of the Christian Science Church
Special Writer

Even though the word "grace" is used about 200 times in the Old Testament and frequently in the New Testament, "grace" is a difficult concept to define precisely.

Webster's Unabridged Dictionary defines the word as "beneficence or generosity shown by God to man; favor unmerited by man; the mercy of God as distinguished from justice; a free gift of God to man."

"Grace" means, in other words, God's outpouring, merciful love to us. Moses and other great thinkers in the Old Testament had taught much about God's justice and laws, but it was Christ Jesus who added a wonderful new dimension to the understanding of God. He taught us of God's outpouring love — similar, although far superior, to a parent's love for his children.

As John wrote: "For the law was given by Moses, but grace and truth came by Jesus Christ." (John 1:17)

Jesus' Parable of the Prodigal Son clearly illustrates the nature of God's grace. The son had made mistakes which were self-punishing. When he decided to return to his father (to God, symbolically), his father did not scold or punish him.

Rather, he ran to meet him and welcomed him with the warmest love — with grace.

Grace is God's outpouring love to us all, whether we deserve it or not. And such love is redemptive and healing, even for the most hardened sinner.

Many Old Testament Prophets and Psalmists caught glimpses of the nature of God's grace. One Psalmist wrote: "For the Lord God is a sun and shield: the Lord will give grace and glory: no good thing will he withhold from them that walk uprightly." (Ps. 84:11)

Mary Baker Eddy, the discoverer and founder of Christian Science, wrote: "What we most need is the prayer of fervent desire for growth in grace, expressed in patience, meekness, love, and good deeds." (Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures 4:3-5)

Does not this merciful grace of God manifest itself in our lives in such qualities as patience, humility, forgiveness, and good deeds?

Our focus in expressing such grace should not be on whether those we encounter deserve it, but on expressing God's grace to those around us.

As we pray to manifest the grace of God in these troubled, hurried times, we find ourselves more courteous, gracious, more at peace within ourselves. And we understand and experience more of God's outpouring grace to us all.

As St. Augustine wrote: "The law detects, grace alone, conquers sin."

And Martin Luther said: "Grace is sufficient to enable us to be entirely and completely righteous in God's sight."

Organ concert

John Scott, organist at St. Paul's Cathedral in London, will give a free recital on the new organ at Christ Church Grosse Pointe beginning at 4:30 p.m. Sunday, Oct. 21. A brief dedication ceremony will precede the concert.

The Harrison & Harrison organ has four ranks and more than 3,200 pipes, including a spectacular orchestral tuba. Its carved American oak case was designed by English architect David Graeb. Seven craftsmen and tuners from Durham, England, spent two months in Grosse Pointe installing and voicing the instrument.

Christ Church is located at 61 Grosse Pointe Blvd. in Grosse Pointe Farms. The community is invited. For more information, call (313) 885-4841.

LTA offers teleconference

The Lay Theological Academy will sponsor "What Does It Mean to be Human?" — a free teleconference that can be accessed by home computers. The conference will be from 3 to 9 p.m. Monday, Oct. 22. It will be a panel of 15 scientists from around the world who will reflect and converse together on the spiritual implications of their work. The sponsor is the Harvard Conference on Science and the Spiritual Quest and ECTN. For more information, go to www.ectn.org before the conference telecast.

The Lay Theological Academy is made up of 12 local churches and the Children's Home of Detroit. Its mission is to provide ecumenical educational opportunities for adults so they can grow in knowledge, mature in Christian faith and become better equipped for ministry in the world.

Talk to be on 'Art of Healing'

Complimentary child care will be available.

Surprenant is a Roman Catholic priest, a published expert on oncology programs, integrative medicine and the organization of cancer centers. His vision for healing helped shape the new Van Elslander Cancer Center at St. John Hospital.

The church is located at 61 Grosse Pointe Blvd. To make a reservation for lunch or for child care, call (313) 885-4841.

Topic is 'Islam Misunderstood'

Imam Qazwini, an author and religious leader at the Islamic Center of America, and Najah Bazy, transcultural nurse consultant at Oakwood Hospital will speak at 7:30 p.m. Sunday, Oct. 21, at Grosse Pointe Memorial Church. The topic will be "Islam: Misunderstood: A Faith of Peace."

The evening is sponsored by the Ecumenical Clergy of Grosse Pointe and the talks are part of a series.

SOC Options

Safety is an important consideration for seniors who live independently

By Sharon Maier
SOC Executive Director

In order to remain independent you've got to stay safe. With that thought in mind, Services for Older Citizens invites you to join us for two safe experiences this month.

First, we are sponsoring Safe Senior Day from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. Friday, Oct. 19, along with Smart Bus Transit, A A R P, Wayne and Macomb County Sheriff's Department, R S V P - Catholic Social Services, County Neighborhood Legal Services and Home Depot. The day promises to be loads of fun with entertainment by the Detroit Police Blue Pigs, Sisters in Harmony and a vocal performance by Ike McKinnon.

Maier

More important, it will be a day to learn about safety. Safety takes many forms, from preventing accidents to preventing burglaries. Your home may seem like the safest place in the world, but many injuries occur in the home.

For seniors, the majority of injuries occur in the home.

If you're not already doing the following tips, try them:

- Install grip bars in the bathroom.
- Get rid of throw rugs that you might trip on.
- Install a wide-angle peephole in your exterior doors to get a fuller view of the outside.
- Don't leave a house key under a mat, in the mailbox or in any other hiding area near the door.
- If you return home to find your door open or tampered with, DO NOT enter. Go immediately to a trusted neighbor and notify the police.
- Do a quick check of your home to make sure it's as safe as possible.
- Keep all entrances and garages well lit at night.

For more information about home safety, come to Safe Senior Day or visit the Michigan Aging Services System on the web at www.mich.state.mi.us.

Our second big safety event this month is a visit to SOC at 11:30 a.m. Wednesday, Oct. 24, by Merle Brouer of the Social Security Administration. He will talk about a variety of Social Security issues, especially identity theft. We've all heard the horror stories of someone stealing a Social Security number, applying for credit cards in assumed names and charging large purchases. Brouer will discuss your rights and responsibilities when it comes to identity theft and will offer tips on how to keep this from happening to you. Brouer will also answer questions about other aspects of Social Security.

If you would like more information about identity theft, visit the Federal Trade Commission's web page at www.ftc.gov, or call our office at (313) 882-9600 for a free copy of the publication "ID Theft: When Bad Things Happen To Your Good Name."

Volunteer for 'Make a Difference Day'

"Make a Difference Day" will be Saturday, Oct. 27. Services for Older Citizens needs help on that day to reach out to help seniors in Harper Woods. Last year more than 220 volunteers helped rake leaves and deliver flowers.

The day will begin at 10 a.m. with breakfast at SOC. To volunteer, call Sharon Maier at (313) 882-9600.

Stay healthy this flu season

By Jennifer Foss, R.N.

(ARA) — If you want to avoid the fever, muscle aches and fatigue of the flu this winter, take a few easy steps to help keep yourself healthy. Influenza is a virus that is easily transferred from one person to another through airborne secretions.

For example, your co-worker sneezes into his or her hands and opens the door. As you leave the office, you touch the doorknob, and then rub your eyes. Presto! The flu virus just entered your system.

The flu is characterized by an abrupt onset of symptoms, especially a fever between 100 and 103 degrees in adults (possibly higher in children). Other symptoms may include muscle aches, fatigue, runny nose, headache, sore throat and cough.

Flu season peaks during late winter and early spring, and the virus changes from year to year. Although most adults recover from a bout of the flu in one to two weeks, the very young, very old and those with compromised immune systems can develop serious and potentially life-threatening complications. According to the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention, influenza causes more than 100,000 hospitalizations and more than 20,000 deaths nationwide each year.

There are several ways to help prevent the flu. The two most effective are getting vaccinated each year and boosting your immune system.

Vaccination needed each year

The flu vaccine contains noninfectious killed viruses that stimulate your body to make antibodies, but can't cause you to get sick. The vaccine is 60 percent to 90 percent effective in preventing the flu in healthy adults, according to the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention, and it's best to get inoculated in October through mid-November each year.

The vaccine is recommended especially for those who are at high risk of complications due to flu infection: the elderly, nursing home or other chronic-care facility residents and those suffering from chronic pulmonary or cardiovascular disorders or weakened immune systems.

Pregnant women in their second or third trimesters may want to consider immunization but should consult their physicians first.

The vaccine is not for everyone, so consult your health care professional to determine if it's appropriate for you.

Healthy ideas

Healthy bodies have an easier time fighting off infection. To rev up your immune system, get plenty of rest, eat a well-balanced diet, exercise regularly, decrease stress and cut back on unhealthy habits such as smoking and drinking alcohol.

Other steps to protect against infection include washing your hands frequently; not sharing cups, silverware and telephones; and cleaning high-contact items, such as doorknobs, faucets and phones, with soap and water.

Speed up recovery

If you have the flu, antiviral prescription drugs are available to help quicken recovery. The drugs must be taken within 48 hours of onset of symptoms and may shorten recovery by 24 to 48 hours. Several reputable studies have shown that these drugs help protect healthy people living in close-contact settings, such as households and nursing homes, from getting ill when someone else in the home has the flu. However, none of the four drugs available has been shown to be effective in preventing serious influenza-related complications. Over-the-counter medications will help alleviate symptoms, but will not hasten recovery.

For more information about the flu or to get vaccinated, contact your physician.

Senior Men's Club to meet

The Senior Men's Club of Grosse Pointe will meet at 11 a.m. Tuesday, Oct. 23, for lunch and a business meeting.

At about 1 p.m., the men's choral group will sing. State Rep. Andrew Richner will discuss activities in Lansing as they relate to Grosse Pointe and eastside seniors.

Camera Club

The Grosse Pointe Camera Club will meet from 7 to 9:30 p.m. Tuesday, Oct. 30, in Room C11 of Brownell Middle School, 260 Chalfonte in Grosse Pointe Farms. Visitors are welcome. For more information, call Helen Kosy at (586) 774-9471.

Women's Connection

The Women's Connection of Grosse Pointe will meet on Thursday, Oct. 25 at a private club in Grosse Pointe to celebrate the 300th anniversary of Detroit. Speakers will be Madeleine Socia, writer and editor, and Suzy Berschback, freelance photographer. They will talk about their book, "Pictorial History of the Grosse Pointes." For more information or to make a reservation, call Nancy at (313) 882-1855 or Marcia at (313) 884-4201 by Monday, Oct. 22.

Meetings

Republican Women's Club

The Republican Women's Club of Grosse Pointe will meet on Wednesday, Oct. 24, at the Grosse Pointe Hunt Club, 655 Cook in Grosse Pointe Woods. Chuck Gaidica of WDIV-TV and WNIC-FM will address the group on "What is Leadership?" The cocktail reception begins at 6:30 p.m., followed by a steak dinner at 7 p.m. and Gaidica's presentation at 7:45 p.m.

The community is invited. Send a check for $25 payable to RWCGP to Eugenie Durant, 425 Lincoln, Grosse Pointe, by Saturday, Oct. 20. For membership information, call Marti Miller at (313) 886-3785.

MAMMOGRAPHY

It is the most commonly diagnosed cancer in women and the second leading cause of women's cancer death. And medical experts agree that the most effective weapon against it is early detection.

October is National Breast Cancer Awareness month and the perfect time for women to contact their physician and ask for a referral for a mammogram, a radiological procedure deemed to be the most effective tool for early breast cancer detection. The American Cancer Society recommends an annual mammogram for all women over 40 years of age, or for younger women with a family history of the disease.

With its state of the art digital mammography equipment and its courteous service, Grosse Pointe Physicians X-Ray Center, P.C. offers individualized attention that is not usually found in larger, less personal hospital settings. From the receptionist who greets patients, to the mammography technologists who perform the test, to the radiologist who specializes in mammography who reads the film, women are assured of the highest personal attention to every detail.

With that personal service comes some of the most advanced technology available in mammography today. Grosse Pointe Physicians X-Ray Center, P.C. is now offering digital mammography which incorporates the latest in electronic technology with state of the art mammography. With digital mammography, images are stored directly into a computer rather than on traditional x-ray films, similar to the way a digital camera stores pictures on a home computer. This allows the radiologist to adjust and read an image in ways that were not possible with conventional x-ray technology. For the patient, mammograms performed digitally are shorter and are perceived by women as less painful. Call backs for additional views are less frequent.

Breast Cancer

Awareness

the country as well, according to A. Christine Watt, M.D., a mammography specialist with Grosse Pointe Physicians X-Ray Center, P.C. and the director of the research project.

If state of the art technology and personal attention aren't reason enough to schedule a mammogram, consider this: Over 40,000 women will die this year from breast cancer, and early detection has been shown to be the most effective treatment in helping women survive this disease.

Fatigue may be a signal of anemia

By Dr. Keith Hoffmann
Special Writer

Anemia is the most common blood disorder in the United States, affecting 3.5 million people, most of them women. The condition is caused by a lack of healthy red blood cells, which carry oxygen to the body's organs and tissues. Without oxygen, the brain and other vital organs cannot function properly.

The main symptom of anemia is fatigue - feeling tired all the time. Other signs and symptoms include:

- Weakness
- Pale skin, decreased pinkness of the lips, gums, lining of the eyelids, nail beds and palms
- Rapid heartbeat with mild exertion
- Shortness of breath with mild exertion
- Chest pain
- Dizziness, lightheadedness
- Irritability (in children)
- Numb or cold hands and feet

Initially symptoms may be mild and easy to ignore. As the condition progresses, symptoms become more severe.

Causes

Blood serves as the body's "oxygen transportation system." The red cells contain hemoglobin, the iron-rich protein that enables red blood cells to carry oxygen from the lungs to the rest of the body. Blood cells are produced in the bone marrow, and in order to make more, iron and vitamins are needed from the foods we eat.

Anemia can result when there are not enough red blood cells, not enough hemoglobin in the red blood cells, or when the body destroys red blood cells faster than it can make new ones. When the body is deprived of oxygen, it leaves a person feeling tired and fatigued.

There are several different types of anemia. The common types are:

Iron-deficiency anemia, caused by a lack of iron in the body. Iron is used to make hemoglobin, an oxygen-carrying molecule in the blood.

Vitamin-deficiency anemia, caused by a lack of folic acid and vitamin B-12. The body needs these substances to produce red blood cells.

Sickle cell anemia, an inherited and serious condition affecting mostly people of African descent. The red blood cells take on an irregular "sickle" shape and die prematurely.

Anemia of chronic diseases, which affects people already living with AIDS, cancer, liver disease and other chronic inflammatory diseases. These diseases can interfere with production of red blood cells.

Aplastic anemia, a life-threatening condition which occurs when bone marrow loses the ability to create enough blood cells - red, white and platelets.

Hemolytic anemias, a group of diseases that develop when red blood cells are destroyed faster than the bone marrow can replace them. Causes include blood diseases, autoimmune disorders, and medications.

Risk factors

Anyone with a diet low in iron and vitamins is at risk for developing anemia. Those who have another condition that affects the body's ability to absorb iron or vitamins also are at risk.

Women are at greater risk for developing iron-deficiency anemia than men, because they lose blood each month during menstruation. Pregnant women should take iron supplements, since their iron stores serve their increased blood volume and become a source of hemoglobin for the fetus.

Diagnosis

Anemia is diagnosed with a physical exam and blood test, including a complete blood count, or CBC. If your doctor diagnoses anemia, you may need additional tests to determine the specific or underlying cause. For example, iron-deficiency anemia can be related to chronic bleeding from ulcers, polyps in the colon, or a tumor. Anemia is a signal that you may have another condition that also needs treatment.

If you are at risk for anemia - especially if you have a digestive disorder that prevents proper absorption of iron and vitamins, if you have an autoimmune disorder or a family history of inherited anemia - be particularly aware of the symptoms. If you feel tired and fatigued for unexplained reasons, contact your physician.

Treatment

Anemia can interfere with work and play, leaving little energy and enthusiasm for life's demands and rewards. The disease often is treatable, but it may take the body several weeks or months for red blood cell levels to return to normal. Treatment may be as simple as taking iron supplements for iron-deficiency anemia, or receiving vitamin B-12 injections for vitamin-deficiency anemia.

Prevention

Many types of anemia can't be prevented. But you can avoid iron- and vitamin-deficiency anemia by eating a healthy, varied diet with foods rich in iron, folic acid and vitamin B-12. These include:

Iron: clams, oysters, meat, beans and peas, iron-fortified cereal, whole grain breads and pastas, dark green leafy vegetables, dried fruit, nuts and seeds.

Folic acid: fresh fruits and vegetables, meat, dairy products, fortified breakfast cereals and beans.

Vitamin B-12: meat and dairy products.

Don't assume that if you're tired, you have anemia or that you should load up on vitamin supplements. However, if you are feeling fatigued or exhausted and can't pinpoint the cause, see your physician.

Colleges and communities work to curb binge drinking

A stanza from the poem that a 13-year-old wrote after Brad McCue drank himself to death captures the tragedy of binge drinking: "Now people are sad/Now people are crying/Because of your choices/Because of your dying."

Brad was a junior at Michigan State University when he downed 24 shots of alcohol to celebrate his 21st birthday. His blood alcohol level was 0.44 when he died — more than four times the legal limit.

Unfortunately, Brad's story is one of many sad tales of campus binge drinking. Each year, college students are killed, injured, assaulted or negatively affected in many other ways because of alcohol abuse.

Simply put, binge drinking is drinking too much alcohol in too little time. Researchers define binge drinking as five or more drinks in a row for men and four drinks for women. According to the most recent Harvard School of Public Health College Alcohol Study, two out of five college students are binge drinkers.

Alcohol is involved in two-thirds of college student suicides, 95 percent of violent crime on campus and 90 percent of campus rapes.

Fortunately, prevention efforts are taking place in college campuses and communities throughout the country.

For instance, A Matter of Degree (AMOD) is an Association to curb binge drinking. AMOD established 10 campus-community partnerships comprised of college administrators, elected officials, students, parents, law enforcement, concerned bar owners and community residents to work together to discourage the behavior and practices that help sustain high-risk drinking.

"This project differs from past efforts to reduce high-risk drinking by identifying it as a public health issue," said Tracy Bachman, project manager of the Building Responsibility Campus/Community Coalition formed by the University of Delaware and the city of Newark.

Bachman said that enforcing stiffer penalties, notifying parents of drinking violations and increasing the number of alcohol-free activities has led to fewer policy violations and has reduced the "secondhand" effects that high-risk drinking has on other students and community members.

In addition, Newark has reduced the density of bars on Main Street and lowered the BAC level for DUI to .08. Early results from the Harvard study indicate a five percent drop in binge drinking rates at the University of Delaware; more students are choosing to abstain from alcohol as well. Other AMOD participants have had promising results as well. For example:

- Louisiana State University and the city of Baton Rouge established alcohol-free family zones and non-alcohol beverage stations at all public parades, festivals and fairs.
- The University of Colorado banned beer sales in its football stadium, resulting in a 70 percent decline in arrests and a drop in the number of assaults.
- Florida State University banned alcohol advertising on campus and increased the availability of substance-free housing.
- University of Iowa and Iowa City participants beefed up liquor laws and penalties, eliminated a campus pub and created an alcohol-free tailgate party area.
- Lehigh University in Pennsylvania experienced a dramatic reduction in crime, assault and public drunkenness when it instituted new student alcohol policies.
- The University of Vermont and the city of Burlington developed policies that are included in annual liquor license renewals for bars in the city.
- The University of Wisconsin at Madison agreed not to sell alcohol at sporting events in their new Kohn Center, forfeiting $500,000 in alcohol revenues from one hockey season alone.

"This is a challenge for all campuses," said Sudi Ceglare, project manager of the RWJ Partnership Council in Madison, Wis. "Initially we were seen as this big thing that would take students' fun away. But a real networking has begun and campuses are moving toward common solutions. We're reaching a point where the alcohol industry can't just look at us and turn away. We're too big a neighbor to ignore."

Ceglare said that sororities have also become part of the solution at UW Madison, going 'dry' by not having any alcohol at house parties. "Eventually fraternities do what sororities do," said Ceglare. "Students are learning how to stay safe and have fun at the same time."

Hospitals collect food for better health

In times of economic uncertainty, more people than ever need the services of local food banks. For the fourth consecutive year, Michigan's nonprofit community hospitals are helping to meet that need by sponsoring the Michigan Harvest Gathering, which began its 2001 campaign at a news conference this afternoon at the state Capitol.

Sen. Bill Schuette (R-Midland) was joined by Michigan Health & Hospital Association (MHA) executive vice president David Seaman and Food Bank Council of Michigan executive director Jane Marshall to kick off the campaign to gather and distribute food to the needy.

More than 130 Michigan health-care organizations are participating in the effort by conducting food drives among their employees, medical staffs and volunteers. Since 1998, the MHA and its members have contributed nearly $212,000 and almost 551,000 pounds of groceries to help the people in their local communities who are facing hard times. MHA members have launched the 2001 campaign with a contribution of $25,000, and additional food and funds will be raised at member facilities over the next several weeks.

"Undernourishment not only contributes to poor health, it keeps people — especially children — from reaching their full potential in life. By helping to ensure that individuals get nutritious meals, Michigan hospitals can foster better health and a brighter future for local residents," said Seaman. "Giving to the Michigan Harvest Gathering is a natural endeavor for our hospitals, whose mission is to improve the welfare of their communities."

Since it was initiated in 1991, the Michigan Harvest Gathering has raised more than 4.1 million pounds of food and about $3 million for the Food Bank Council of Michigan. More than 7 million emergency meals have been provided to those in need through Michigan's 12 regional food banks and more than 2,500 local agencies including senior centers, soup kitchens, pantries and shelters.

Seaman noted that the MHA and its members are particularly enthusiastic about the campaign because the food stays in the community where it is donated, helping local individuals and families.

Half of the people served by Michigan's food bank network are the very young and the very old; others are victims of disaster or are underemployed. About 30 percent of the unemployed seeking emergency food were formerly in skilled or professional jobs.

"As we seek to reach out a helping hand to our nation during this uncertain time, we want to also remember those in our local communities who are in need. Michigan hospitals are eager to help," said Seaman. The Michigan Health & Hospital Association, based in Lansing, is a state association representing and supporting hospitals, health systems, and other health care providers through education, advocacy and communication.

Grosse Pointe — from 'Down on the Farm' to 'Pretty Little City'

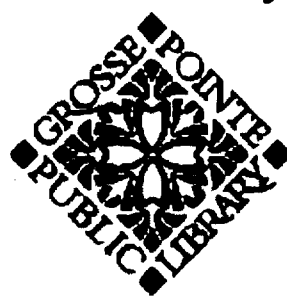

By Helen Gregory
Special Writer

Going through an old photo album can be the stuff of dreams. Grosse Pointers Suzy Berschback and Madeleine Socia have given us a dream trip through the past in "Grosse Pointe 1880 to 1930."

Their book, composed mostly of old photographs, shows a little bit of everything. The enlightening captions, witty and to the point, add a great deal. Even the chapter headings are great fun — they're popular songs of the period.

I must admit guiltily that the rum runners' section caught me. One shot from the '20s shows a Grosse Pointe policeman chasing rum runners in an ice boat. Another gives a great view of a bootlegger's truck, stuck and apparently sinking in the ice of Lake St. Clair after trying to make it across from Canada.

Most fun for me out of this particular set are the "Repeal Rebels, c. 1928," befurred ladies of Grosse Pointe led by Mrs. Frederick Alger, speaking up publicly for repeal. "Her attitude . . . reflected that of many other prominent Pointers who were tired of the violence created by Prohibition. In addition, few Pointers were willing to let the law put a damper on their cocktail parties or nightly nips at numerous area speakeasies."

The blurb on the cover tells us that if "Detroit was characterized as the Paris of the Midwest, Grosse Pointe was the Riviera."

The proof is in the photos: great houses, magnificent yachts, beautiful people, great clothes, the best of show dogs and horses.

You will recognize a lot, though much is gone now. A photo of The Moorings, which belonged to the Alger family, looks much as it does today.

Photographs came from the collections of the libraries, museums, clubs, schools, hospitals and private families not only in Grosse Pointe, but also as far away as the National Archives.

The greatest contributor is the Grosse Pointe Historical Society. The gem of a curator leading them right now is Jean Dodenhoff. You can find out a little more about them online at the library's web site www.gp.lib.mi.us. Click on Library Catalog, click on Title and then type in Grosse Pointe Historical Society for its hours and information. Visiting the historical collection, you can see many of the original photos from the book.

"Grosse Pointe 1880-1930" is part of the extensive "Images of America" series published by Arcadia. The format, length of book and price are consistent throughout the series, which covers Americana. Some of the books focus tightly on a neighborhood ("Chicago's South Shore," for instance) while others focus on an activity ("The Brooklyn Navy Yard"). Still others, like "Grosse Pointe 1880-1930," and "Detroit 1860-1899" focus on an era.

Where there's more land than there are people, the book may cover the whole state ("North Dakota").

The Grosse Pointe Public Library has both circulating and reference copies of "Grosse Pointe 1880-1930," but you can buy your own copy at any number of bookstores and shops in our area. The ladies at The League Shop tell me they have to restock constantly.

If you buy online, they're listed in Amazon.com or you can order direct from the publisher at www.arcadiaimages.com.

If you really want this whole thing to come to life for you, visit the Grosse Pointe Central Library at 7:30 p.m. Wednesday, Oct. 24. The authors, Suzy Berschback and Madeleine Socia, will give a lively presentation, a book signing and photo display. The display includes 400 photos that weren't in the book.

Program is free, but seating is limited, so call (313) 343-2074, ext. 220.

Ahhhh, the comfort of ratatouille

I just can't get enough of Eastern Market these days. At the risk of boring everyone, this week's recipe (again!) makes good use of the bounty of harvest vegetables that will be at the market every Saturday for the next few weeks.

À LA ANNIE
By Annie Rouleau-Scheriff

Ratatouille (ra-tuh-TOO-ee) is a popular dish from the French region of Provence. Eggplant is cooked together with other vegetables on the stove. Warm and hearty (like comfort food) ratatouille will make you feel good because it's also low in fat.

Easy Ratatouille

- 3 tablespoons olive oil
- 1 medium onion, thinly sliced
- 1 garlic clove, coarsely chopped
- 1 lb. tomatoes, sliced 1/2-inch thick
- 1 medium eggplant (about 1 lb.), cut into a 1-inch dice
- 1 medium zucchini (about 1/2 lb.), cut in half, then into 1-inch slices
- 1 medium red pepper, cut into 1-inch pieces
- 1 bay leaf
- Salt and pepper to taste

Heat the oil in a large deep skillet (Dutch oven). Add the onion and cook over moderate heat for 5 minutes. Add the garlic and cook for another minute. Reduce the heat to a moderate low and add the tomatoes, eggplant, zucchini, pepper and bay leaf. Season with salt and pepper and toss together everything in the pot. Cover and cook on low heat until the vegetables become very tender, about 1 hour, stirring occasionally. Discard the bay leaf before serving.

There are many different ways to serve this tasty concoction of vegetables. Ratatouille is delicious hot served over pasta, a baked potato or as a vegetable stew. It's a great side dish for any type of meat or poultry. Serve ratatouille at room temperature on toasted baguette slices sprinkled with Parmesan cheese as a yummy appetizer.

Preparing all of the veggies (slicing, dicing, etc.) will expedite the recipe smoothly. This low-cost, low-fat recipe will fill the air with a flavorful aroma that is sure to please your family.

Ratatouille — think of it as a comfort food. Take comfort in knowing that you can indulge. See you at the market.

Local authors speak

"Grosse Pointe 1880-1930," a pictorial history book by Grosse Pointers Madeleine Socia and Suzy Berschback, will be the subject of a book signing and photo display at 7:30 p.m. Wednesday, Oct. 24, at the Grosse Pointe Central Library.

The display will include 400 photos that were not in the book.

Socia is an award-winning writer, editor and public relations consultant. She works for the Grosse Pointe News and is a trustee of the Grosse Pointe Historical Society.

Berschback is a freelance photographer and a member of the Grosse Pointe Historical Society.

The program is free, but seating is limited. The book is $18.99 and will be available that evening.

Norsemen take first by a stroke in state golf regional

By Chuck Klonke
Sports Editor

First impressions aren't always the correct ones. Especially if you're a high school golf coach.

Grosse Pointe North's

Darren Audia didn't know what his Norsemen were doing at the Division I regional at Partridge Creek last Friday, but after a couple of brief glimpses, he was worst.

"I was following another group and I was about as far away from my kids as I could be," Audia said after the Norsemen took first place, beating Utica Ford II by a stroke and Warren De La Salle by two strokes.

"I had no idea how we were doing. Then our first two scores came in and they were 80 and 87. The next score I saw was Erik Schleicher's 75. Then I watched Ryan Lenahan hit a ball into the water on 18 and I saw Neal Gram triple-bogey 18. I figured it wasn't going to be our day and it got even worse when I heard that Ford shot 309. I thought that was a great score under those conditions."

But it was the Norsemen's day.

Lenahan finished with a 76, Gram recovered to shoot 77 and coupled with Jeff Bolton's 80, the Norsemen finished with a team total of 308. The top four scores count in the team totals.

De La Salle also qualified for the state meet, which will be held Friday and Saturday at the Forest Akers East Course on the Michigan State University campus.

"Those were excellent scores considering how bad the weather and the course conditions were," Audia said. "I guess I saw both Ryan's and Neal's worst holes."

Audia was hoping that the regional, which was delayed a couple of hours, would be postponed until Saturday or Monday. Much of the course was under water so the teams played only the back nine of The Hawk and played the front nine on Partridge's West Course.

"I didn't want to be out there, but the kids wanted to play," Audia said. "It was a miserable day, but it didn't bother them at all."

"And it was a great feeling when all the scores were added up and we had won. That was one of our goals this year, to win the regional and get to the state meet."

North, which shared the Macomb Area Conference Red Division dual meet title with Grosse Pointe South, had its worst day of the year

Knights turn in top effort

By Chuck Klonke
Sports Editor

Coaching high school basketball can be a mind-boggling experience.

Like trying to figure out how a team can play its worst game of the year on Tuesday night and two days later come out and play its best.

"I just don't understand it," said University Liggett School coach Dean Ristovski after his Knights beat Harper Woods 63-43 in a Metro Conference girls basketball game.

"Chemistry-wise, passing the ball, making smart decisions, when you consider all of those things, this was our best game. We clicked on all cylinders tonight. And Tuesday against Cranbrook, we probably played our worst. We only scored 26 points."

That's a total that ULS matched in the first half against Harper Woods and nearly approached in a third quarter in which the Knights outscored the Pioneers 20-5 to take a 45-

LE fall sports teams defeat Hamtramck

By Bob St. John
Staff writer

Head coach Don Justice evened his homecoming record at 1-1 last week, guiding his Lutheran East football team to a 26-12 win over Hamtramck.

Justice told his players not to be overconfident against the winless Cosmos. The Eagles held a slim 12-6 halftime advantage, but all-purpose back Adam Crawford, Robert Carlisle, Dexter Shorter and quarterback Brandon Lostutter helped the home team dominate the second half.

Crawford finished with 74 yards rushing on five carries, while defensively, Erik Cowan had 16 tackles.

The Lutheran East football team improved to 1-6 in the Metro Conference and 2-6 overall.

Coming up for the Eagles is their final regular season game on Saturday, Oct. 20, at 1 p.m. against 6-2 Macomb Lutheran North.

"This is the game of the season for us," Justice said. "North is our rival and it would make our season to beat them."

Basketball

The Lutheran East girls basketball team also hosted Hamtramck last week, winning 46-21.

"I told the girls during the week not to look past Hamtramck (still without a victory)," head coach Carl Gerds said. "I've seen funny things happen when a team is overconfident and homecoming is the following night."

The host Eagles played under control, outscoring the Cosmos 13-3 in the first quarter, 10-6 in the second, 8-4 in the third and 15-8 in the fourth.

"I was happy with the effort," Gerds said. "Everyone played very well and the girls took it right at Hamtramck."

Sophomore Ashley Schult set the tone in the opening quarter, grabbing seven rebounds and blocking three shots, while senior Emily Bellhorn scored five points to lead all scorers.

For the game, Schult only scored two points, but had five blocked shots and nine boards, while Bellhorn finished with 13 points.

As a team, East had 54 rebounds and forced Hamtramck into 28 turnovers.

"Defensively the girls played very well, limiting Hamtramck's shot selection," Gerds said. "It was an overall nice win."

Junior Caitlin Gerds had only two points, but also grabbed nine rebounds, and junior Kelli Zoellner finished with six points and eight rebounds (six offensive).

Junior Shareena Walton and sophomore Brandi Dona each had six points and five rebounds, while junior Sarah Schurig added five points and seven rebounds.

Senior Shoushana Flowers chipped in with four points, followed by junior Stacy Turgeon with two.

The Lutheran East basketball team improved to 2-3 in the Metro Conference and 4-7 overall.

Next for the Eagles is an away game on Tuesday, Oct. 23, against rival Macomb Lutheran North, followed by a Catholic League crossover game on Thursday, Oct. 25.

Points come hard for Blue Devils

By Chuck Klonke
Sports Editor

The defense played well enough for Grosse Pointe South's girls basketball team to win its game against Sterling Heights Stevenson last week.

It was the other end of the court that sent the Blue Devils reeling to their fifth straight defeat in the Macomb Area Conference Red Division.

"We had a great defensive effort," said coach Peggy Van Eckoute after Stevenson's 40-27 victory. "But we couldn't get the key basket. We shot 26 percent from the field and we had good looks and good shots. They just wouldn't fall."

Stevenson led 8-2 after the first quarter and the Titans held an 18-11 advantage at halftime. South was within five points on a couple of occasions in the second half but couldn't get over the hump.

"Stevenson did a good job of slowing the game up," said Van Eckoute, whose team beat the Titans in the division opener.

Liz Halpin played well for South as she collected eight points, six rebounds, two steals and two assists. Stephanie Shepard had five points and four steals and Kate See had four points and four rebounds.

South's game last Thursday against Mount Clemens was postponed until Oct. 26 so the Mount Clemens players could attend the visitation for coach Ved Green, who died on Oct. 6.

South's next game is tonight, Oct. 18, at Port Huron Northern.

"We have to get a win," Van Eckoute said. "The kids have been working hard but they need some positive results so they can build up their confidence."

North runners tend to business in duals

There was nothing fancy about Grosse Pointe North's victories over Port Huron and Utica to close out the dual meet portion of the boys cross country schedule.

"We just went about our business," said coach Pat Wilson after the Norsemen beat Port Huron 24-37 and blanked Utica 15-50.

"We're gearing up for the next two weeks."

On Saturday, North will try to defend its championship in the Macomb Area Conference White Division in the division meet at Metropolitan Beach. Romeo was undefeated in dual meets, but that was the story last year, too, and North won the league meet.

"I don't think we've made our move yet," Wilson said. "The following Saturday, North will run in the state Division I regional, also on the Metropolitan Beach course."

In last week's dual meet finale, Chris Tibauda was second overall and first among the North runners. He was followed by Dave Secord, Greg Blackburn, Andy Kapordelis, Roland Vandenbroeck, Aric Minney and Kevin Kwiatkowski.

The two victories gave North a 6-1 record in the MAC White and a 7-2 overall mark. Posting personal records for North were Matt McTaggart, Justin Sudomier, Chris Rizzo and Dan Burleson.

The MAC Red and White boys meet is scheduled to start Saturday at 11:30 a.m.

North qualified for the state tournament two years ago and finished eighth. This will be the fourth state meet for both Schleicher and Lenahan, who qualified as individuals last year.

"We've played all of the best teams in the state," said Audia. "It's going to come down to who plays the best on Friday and Saturday. East Kentwood, Holland West Ottawa, the two Traverse City schools and Bay City Western are all going to be tough to beat."

But I think the Forest Akers course suits our style of play, even more than Partridge Creek."

South didn't qualify as a team, finishing at 313, but the Blue Devils' Mike Follis was the meet medalist with an excellent 71

Harper Woods' girls basketball team dropped its league games last week, losing 47-35 to Lutheran Northwest and 63-43 to University Liggett School.

Athletic director Loren Ristovski played the role of interim head coach against Northwest as head coach Mike Rowinski attended to family matters.

"It was a solid effort on our part, but our poor free-throw shooting did us in," Ristovski said. "Any team won't win many games shooting 6-of-26 from the foul line."

The Pioneers fell behind 24-14 at the half and cut the deficit to six three times in the second half, but Northwest held on for the win.

"It was nice to see a Harper Woods girls basketball team battle against a good squad," Ristovski said. "The girls are making progress."

Senior Sarah Mazzone led the Pioneers with nine points, followed by sophomore Meaghan Huot and sophomore Ashley Marshall with eight points apiece.

Freshman Bridgett Wagner chipped in with six points.

In the ULS contest, Marshall had 13 points as the Pioneers fell to 2-3 in the Metro Conference and 4-6 overall.

Coming up for the Harper Woods basketball team is a home game on Tuesday, Oct. 23, against Bloomfield Hills Cranbrook Kingswood, and a Catholic League crossover game on Thursday, Oct. 25.

Football

The Harper Woods football team kept its slim playoff hopes alive last weekend, beating host Lutheran Westland 23-16.

"We almost let a lead slip away for a second straight week, but the guys played well enough to win and keep our playoff hopes alive," head coach Heath Filbur said. "It was a must-win situation and the kids came through with a nice effort."

Junior Eric Brice has blossomed into the Pioneers' leading tailback, rushing for three touchdowns on runs of 40, 36 and six yards. He gained 139 yards on nine carries.

"Our offensive line dominated the line of scrimmage," Filbur said. "We rushed for 300 yards and passed for another 50."

Senior Anthony DeSantis rushed for 100 yards on six carries, while senior Mike Manning had 50 yards and sophomore quarterback Frank Pietrangelo had 40 yards.

Defensively, sophomore Adam DiGiovanni had 11 tackles and two quarterback sacks, while Adam Gonyeau had six tackles and a sack.

The Pioneers trailed 8-2 at halftime (Jeremy Myers blocked a punt that went out of the end zone to earn a safety).

"We had the ball inside Westland's five-yard line three times in the first half and failed to score," Filbur said. "We turned it around in the second half and defensively we forced Westland to beat us by the pass."

The Pioneers took a 9-8 lead after Brice scored on a 40-yard run on the first play of the third quarter.

Lutheran Westland returned the ensuing kick for a touchdown for a 16-9 lead, but Brice's final two touchdowns (36-yard and six-yard run) were the deciding points.

The Harper Woods football team improved to 4-3 in the Metro Conference and 4-4 overall.

Next for the Pioneers is their season finale at 1 p.m. on Saturday, Oct. 20, against University Liggett School.

A win would give the Pioneers five wins and it would be enough to get them into the playoffs if the required 256 slots aren't filled by squads with six or more victories.

"We have to beat Liggett in order to have any shot to get into the playoffs," Filbur said. "If we lose, then it's over."

ULS

28 lead into the fourth quarter.

"I guess inconsistency is something that you have to expect from a young team," Ristovski said. "Sometimes you forget there's only one senior on the team."

One of the four sophomores on the ULS squad turned in an outstanding game. Beth Sylvester dominated inside to finish with 25 points and 13 rebounds.

Sylvester really took over the game in the second quarter when she scored 12 points and brought ULS back from a 12-7 deficit after the first quarter. The Knights went ahead to stay on a steal and a layup by Sylvester with 33 seconds remaining in the first half that gave ULS a 25-23 lead at the break.

The Knights scored the first five points of the second half, including two baskets by point guard Latia Howard, and they never slowed down.

"Beth played her best game — she really attacked the basket — but the whole team contributed," Ristovski said. "Everybody I put into the game did some good things."

An example of that came late in the third quarter. Sophomore Julie Lieder, who was called up from the junior varsity for the game, and Angela Andrews made their first appearances on the court. With them in the lineup, ULS stretched its lead from 10 points to 17.

Lieder had five points in the final two minutes of the third quarter. Lieder and Andrews combined for nine rebounds and seven points during their limited playing time.

Free-throw shooting, which has been a problem all season for ULS, also came around against Harper Woods. The Knights hit 11 of 16 free throws in the first half and finished 19 for 33.

Maria Lewis finished with 11 points and Dawn Espy scored eight for ULS. Alexa Davenport, Lewis and Joi Light each pulled down six rebounds.

Ashley Marshall led Harper Woods with 13 points and Katie Rhodes had eight.

Cranbrook, which is unbeaten in the Metro Conference, beat ULS 57-26. Sylvester led the Knights with eight points.

The split left ULS with a 3-3 record in the conference and a 6-7 overall mark. The Knights close out the Metro Conference regular season at Hamtramck tonight, Oct. 18.

South ends five-game skid

Grosse Pointe South's football team put together its best offensive output of the season with its top defensive effort and it spelled the end of a five-game losing streak for the Blue Devils.

"Our offensive line dominated them," coach Mike McLeod said after South's 24-0 win over East Detroit in a Macomb Area Conference White Division game. "Tony Krall, Ben Schrode and Drew Kisskalt were fantastic and Peter Furest, Scott Cederwall and Ryan Wagner also played very well. They were very physical."

"We had 240 yards rushing and we threw for 115 yards. It was a very good offensive day."

But McLeod was even more excited when talking about the Blue Devils' defense.

"We held them to minus-16 yards in total offense," he said. "They had one first down and that came in the second half."

"Luke Parchment had a career day with a fumble recovery and two interceptions. Kyle Hacias also had an interception and Haider Samhat did a tremendous job on the edge. We left him alone outside and he made some outstanding hits on the blitz."

South also got strong play from Dan Keogh, Barry Novak, Brett Fragel, Dave Saylor and Furest at the defensive end positions.

"We were worried that their quarterback could hurt us on the bootleg plays, but our defensive ends did a good job of containing him," McLeod said.

Samhat was South's leading rusher, but Mike Schulte and Angelo Tocco also ran well. Matt Reynaert did a solid job blocking and running the ball at fullback.

The Blue Devils' receiving corps also figured prominently in the victory.

"Ryan Rogers did a tremendous job of downfield blocking and he caught a pass, John VanLith had a catch for 45 yards and Steve Pawlowski did a nice job on special teams and had a 38-yard reception," McLeod said. "All our receivers were tremendous blocking downfield. We didn't do a lot of passing because we felt we had the game pretty well in hand."

South nearly got on the scoreboard with the opening kick, which Jason Kline returned 52 yards to the Shamrocks' 40.

"I thought he was going to break it," McLeod said.

South, which led 14-0 at halftime and added 10 points in the third quarter, had another strong kicking performance from Rob Rogers. He kicked three extra points and a 32-yard field goal.

The Blue Devils, now 3-5, close out the regular season Friday at Utica Eisenhower, which shared the MAC Red title with Chippewa Valley and Sterling Heights Stevenson.

Lancers' football shares title

By Bob St. John

For a second straight week the Bishop Gallagher football team pitched a shutout, beating host Allen Park Cabrini 14-0.

"It was the sixth win we needed to get into the playoffs," head coach George Sahadi said. "Everyone played well in a game we had to win."

The Lancers used two interceptions to set up both of their touchdowns, while the defensive line limited Cabrini's running game to less than 100 yards.

In the first quarter, Lonnie Pettway intercepted a pass on Gallagher's five-yard line, which led to a 95-yard scoring drive, and in the fourth quarter, senior Darnell Hood intercepted a pass at the Lancers' nine-yard line, which led to a 91-yard scoring drive.

"We had a couple of touchdowns called back due to penalties, plus we sat on the ball at Cabrini's 10-yard line in the final minute," Sahadi said.

Hood finished with 151 yards on 27 carries and one touchdown, plus senior fullback Damien Brown had 85 yards on 10 carries.

Junior quarterback Brian Seery completed 9-of-16 passes, while senior wide receiver David Jones caught seven passes for 57 yards and a touchdown.

"Everything went well for us and now we can concentrate on Highland Park and the playoffs," Sahadi said.

The Bishop Gallagher football team finished in a three-way tie for the Catholic League Tri-Sectional Division championship with a 3-1 mark.

However, Detroit Benedictine and Waterford Lakes also finished 3-1, but Benedictine gained the berth in the Catholic League Prep Bowl based on the total points in the head-to-head meetings with Lakes and Gallagher.

Coming up for the Lancers is their regular season finale on Friday, Oct. 19, at 4 p.m. at Highland Park (7-1), the Mega Conference Red Division champ.

"It's going to be a tough game against a physical Highland Park team," Sahadi said. "We have to play like we did against DeLaSalle if we're to win."

Basketball

The Bishop Gallagher girls basketball team won a big game last week, beating host Marine City Cardinal Mooney 36-30.

"It was a nice win," head coach Ron Biotti said. "The girls were in control the entire game, even though a couple of our girls were sick."

The Lancers led 26-16 at the half and 31-22 after three quarters.

Cardinal Mooney cut the deficit to six several times during the fourth period, but the Lancers held on for the win.

Senior Bridget Carpenter had 10 points, six rebounds, three blocks, three steals and two assists to lead the Lancers.

Senior Katresha Lee added eight points and five rebounds, while senior Helen Pettway had eight points, eight rebounds, two assists and two steals.

Junior Ericka Canty had one of her best games of the season, collecting five points, seven rebounds and a blocked shot.

"Ericka played well for us and she scored five big points and had seven boards," Biotti said. "It was a team win that allows to get an inside track at the division title."

Earlier in the week, Gallagher lost 38-37 at Waterford Lakes.

"We had the game won, but gave it away in the final 30 seconds," Biotti said. "It was a disappointing defeat."

The Lancers led 37-34 before fouling a Lakes player 65 feet from the basket.

"Lakes made both free throws to trail by a point and (Lindsay) Mecoli did the rest," Biotti said.

Mecoli, Lakes' all-state forward, hit the winning free throws with 0.9 seconds left on the clock. She finished with 22 points, 15 rebounds and eight rebounds.

For the Lancers, Pettway had 15 points and 10 rebounds, while Carpenter had seven points. Lee had six points and nine rebounds, while junior Katie Masserang finished with five points and four rebounds.

The Bishop Gallagher basketball team stands at 4-4 in the Catholic League A-East Division and 7-6 overall.

Next for the Lancers is a Catholic League A-East/A-West Division first round playoff game on Wednesday, Oct. 24.

South runners focus on future

Grosse Pointe South's boys cross country team ran its two meets last week with an eye to the future.

"We ran through both of these," said coach Tom Wise, referring to the fact that the Blue Devils didn't ease up in their workouts the day before the meets.

"The kids were pretty tired, so there weren't a lot of outstanding times in either meet. We're trying to get ready for the regional in two weeks."

Detroit Jesuit — will be either South or crosstown rival Grosse Pointe North.

"North seems to be coming on, so we have to be running our best in two weeks," Wise said.

In last week's dual finale in the Macomb Area Conference Red Division, South lost to Utica Eisenhower 18-41 and lost 19-42 to Macomb Dakota.

Pat Dantzer was second overall in the meet. It was the first time the South senior hadn't won a dual meet this year.

"He had run a hard 10 miles the day before," Wise said.

Bob Hanrahan ran well for South against Eisenhower and Dakota.

Dantzer was fifth overall and South finished 13th as a team in the Oxford Invitational.

"The kid who won the race was way ahead of everyone else but the next four were pretty close together," Wise said. "Pat beat U-D's top runner and he'll be in our regional in two weeks."

Posting personal-best times at Oxford were Mike Hoffman, Dan Houlf, Brian Ginnebaugh, Nathan Horwitz and Kevin Spezia.

Another tough loss for Norsemen

By Chuck Klonke
Sports Editor

Judging from the record, you'd think Grosse Pointe North football coach Frank Sumner is counting the days until the season ends.

Wrong.

"I'm frustrated, sure, but I'm not wishing it was over," Sumner said after the Norsemen lost another heartbreaker, 15-13 to Macomb Area Conference White Division champion Sterling Heights.

"They're good kids and very coachable. I'd like to play four or five more games and get this thing turned around — and I think we could."

But that won't be the case. North concludes the season Friday at Warren Cousino. The Patriots are co-champions with L'Anse Creuse in the MAC Blue Division. The best the Norsemen can hope for is to finish with a victory and end the season at 2-7.

"That'll be our third division champion in three games," Sumner said. "I told the kids to send out the seniors with a victory and to start a winning streak that we can carry into next season."

"People will say that this is the worst season in North history, but I don't feel that way. We've played a tough schedule and we've been in every game."

Sumner feels some empathy for Lions coach Marty Mornhinweg.

"We might not be the Lions, but we're the baby cubs," he said.

Cousino won't be an easy touch for the Norsemen. The 7-1 Patriots are led by running back Bill Koenig, who has set several rushing records at the school.

"They're 7-1 for good reason," Sumner said. "We have to try to contain Koenig and make them beat us with somebody else. They don't throw a lot of passes, but they've been effective because everybody is trying to stop their ground game."

North has been successful in stopping some of the top runners in the MAC for the last few years and the defense has played well this season.

Sterling Heights Stevenson's Mike Gehring didn't get into the end zone a week ago in the Titans' 3-0 victory over North. In past seasons, East Detroit's Tim Gates and Stevenson's Michael Tennessee found yardage harder to come by against the Norsemen than against most other teams.

North got off to a good start against Sterling Heights as Tom Staperferne, who had an outstanding game, returned an interception 46 yards for a touchdown. It was North's first touchdown on an interception return since 1993.

Eric Bertelsen's extra point gave North a 7-0 lead only 1:12 into the game.

Neither team was able to get much going for the rest of the first quarter but in the second quarter an old problem turned up for the Norsemen. A bad snap on a punt resulted in a safety for Sterling Heights.

The free kick after the safety went out of bounds and the Stallions started their drive at the North 45. On third down and eight from the North eight, Sterling Heights quarterback Mitch May ran the ball in for an 8-7 lead. The two-point conversion try failed.

North had a drive stopped by an interception in the waning seconds of the first half and a fumble killed an early second-half drive after the Norsemen had driven to the Sterling Heights seven. The key plays in that drive were a 23-yard pass from Scott Schaft to Jason Koplinger and a 15-yard run by Brandon Foutner.

An incomplete pass from field-goal formation stopped a North drive at the

Sterling Heights took advantage of an interception to score what turned out to be the winning touchdown. The Stallions got the ball on the North 29 and eight plays later scored on a three-yard run to lead 15-7 with 1:55 left in the game.

North started its final drive from its 23 and began marching down the field. Schaft hit Steve Szabo for 12 yards, Aaron Bustillo ran for an eight-yard gain and Schaft found Mike Konwiak for a 15-yard pickup. Schaft then passed to Foutner for nine yards and on the next play picked up the first down on a quarterback sneak. A 15-yard pass to John Coury gave North a first down at the Sterling Heights 17 and on the next play, Schaft rolled out and ran untouched into the end zone.

With 30 seconds left, North attempted a two-point conversion but the Norsemen were called for a procedure penalty. On the second try, Schaft was just short of the goal line.

"Our lineman's hand slipped in the mud," Sumner said of the false start penalty. "He was so intense that when he was in the three-point stance, it was just enough movement that we got the flag."

That's been one of North's problems all season.

"We had five penalties in this game and only one of them was outside of the red zone," Sumner said. "I think the kids are just trying too hard."

Schaft completed nine of 17 passes for 102 yards. North had 173 yards rushing with Foutner leading the way with 74 yards in 15 carries.

Staperferne led the defensive effort with 10 tackles, including four solo stops, and two interceptions.

"He had a great game," Sumner said. "He could have had a third interception but he dropped the ball."

Mike Sheppard and Jon Fischer each made 10 stops and David Neveux continued his solid play with eight tackles.

Trojans don't horse around with ULS

By Chuck Klonke
Sports Editor

Football at Livonia Clarenceville is a happening.

"They make quite a production out of it," said University Liggett School coach Tracy Sewell. "They come out riding this huge horse, they have somebody dressed up like a Trojan, they have new bleachers with the center portion heated and Chem-Lawn does their field."

And the product on the field might be even more impressive than the atmosphere. The Trojans haven't lost a regular season game in four years and they held their No. 1 ranking in the state in Division V after beating ULS 47-0 in a Metro Conference game last Friday.

"It's a great place to be for a football game if you're not on the tail end of that foot," Sewell said. "Our kids weren't any different than any other team. They were awestruck."

Clarenceville is led by running back Tim Shaw, who holds the state record for career touchdowns. He added five more to his total, including an 80-yard scamper on the second play of the game.

"You have to hit him within the first five yards," Sewell said. "If you don't you're in trouble. We didn't and we were. He makes things happen and the other kids feed off of him."

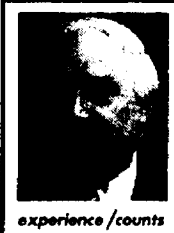

Steven Meadows added

two more touchdowns for Clarenceville, which led 40-0 at halftime. Meadows was also the key to the Trojans' defensive effort.

"The only kids on our team who didn't seem starstruck were Ross (Lewicki), Barre' (Mackie) and Leythor (Williams)," Sewell said.

"But you can understand why. A big crowd for us is 80 or 90 people in the stands. They have about 4,000 folks at every game."

ULS, which is 6-2 and has qualified for the state playoffs, closes out the regular season at 1 p.m. Saturday at Harper Woods.

GPHA Bantam A Bulldogs are first in Cleveland tourney

The Grosse Pointe Hockey Association Bantam A Bulldogs took first place in their division at the recent Sportsweekend Extravaganza in Cleveland.

The Bulldogs won all four of their games, outscoring the opposition 24-2.

Grosse Pointe beat Fairmont (Ohio) twice, 3-2 and 3-0, on the final day of the tournament to win the title.

In the championship game, the Bulldogs got on the scoreboard in the first period on a goal by Brian Vandenbosche, assisted by defensemen Michael Lucchese and Michael Yakamovich.

Michael Grob posted the shutout.

The Bulldogs opened the tournament with a 9-0 rout of Shaker Heights (Ohio). Mac Brookes scored three goals, while Zak Brooks and Ben Morawski added two goals apiece. Thomas Luxton had a goal and three assists and Peralta collected four assists.

Vandenbosche had a goal and two assists, while Yakamovich and Lucchese each collected two assists. Mansfield and Mike Staniszewski each had one assist.

Morawski opened the scoring with 8:18 remaining in a three-goal first period. The Bulldogs also tallied three times in each of the next two periods.

Dan Eckert was in goal for the shutout.

The Bulldogs duplicated their 9-0 victory in their next game against Canton-Akron.

Brooks scored on a breakaway to get the rout going and a little more than a minute later, Karl Baumgarten made it 2-0 with his first goal of the tournament. Brookes also scored in the first period to give the Bulldogs their fourth straight three-goal period.

The Bulldogs managed only two goals in the second period but they scored four times in the third.

Grosse Pointe's defense was airtight as its Ohio opponent failed to get a shot on goal as Grob had an easy time recording the shutout.

Lewandowski and Brookes each had two goals and an assist and Brooks scored twice. Staniszewski had a goal and an assist, while Peralta got the other Bulldogs goal. Lucchese had three assists, while Feamster, Vandenbosche and Mansfield collected two apiece and Luxton and Morawski each had one.

Game 3 against Fairmont proved more of a challenge for the Bulldogs, although once again they scored three goals in the first period.

Staniszewski, assisted by Brooks and Baumgarten, opened the scoring. Feamster made it 2-0 with Derek Gianino and Lucchese getting the assists.

Brooks scored the third goal of the period, assisted by Staniszewski and Lucchese.

Fairmont made some adjustments on defense and held the Bulldogs scoreless in the second period. It was the first time in 10 periods that Grosse Pointe failed to score.

Fairmont scored twice in the second period to cut the lead to 3-2 and that's how it ended as the Bulldogs tightened up defensively in the scoreless third period.

Brooks and Brookes shared the most valuable player awards for the tournament, but the team's success was due to strong team play with every skater on the squad contributing points and solid defensive work.

Joe Lucchese is the head coach of the Bulldogs and his assistants are Dave Pullis, Chris Lewandowski and Peter Feamster.

ND golfers reach state finals

Notre Dame's golf team is headed to the state finals after placing third in Monday's Division II regional tournament at St. Clair Country Club.

"The guys didn't play their best, but not too many kids shot well due to the poor course conditions," head coach Doug Anderson said. "This is great for our program and I'm proud of them."

The Fightin' Irish shot a 344, while St. Clair won the regional with a 326 and rival Pontiac Notre Dame Prep was second with a 329.

"Our kids have worked hard to get to this point and they were rewarded with a trip to the finals," Anderson said.

Dustin Ciccarelli was fourth with an 80, while Nick Dokianos had an 84 to pace the Irish.

Earlier in the week, Notre Dame was supposed to compete in the Catholic League Tournament at St. John's Golf Course.

"We had a breakdown with our team van which made us 20 minutes late," Anderson said. "For whatever reason, we couldn't compete for being late."

Warren DeLaSalle won the tournament with a 314, followed by Notre Dame Prep with a 317, Detroit Catholic Central with a 320, Birmingham Brother Rice with a 329, U-D Jesuit with a 330 and Dearborn Divine Child with a 341.

Coming up for the Notre Dame golf team is the Division II state finals on Friday, Oct. 19, and Saturday, Oct. 20, at Forest Akers Golf Course.

The Irish need to finish in the top 10 on Friday in order to compete on Saturday.

"I'm pumped for the guys, but I firmly believe we can win this thing. Why not?" Anderson said.

Football

For the first time since the opening of the 1999 season, the Notre Dame football team has a four-game losing streak, thanks to last week's 32-12 loss to playoff-bound U-D Jesuit.

"We gave U-D all it could handle," head coach Ed Belcrest said. "Our guys played hard, but U-D made some big plays offensively that put the game in their control."

Junior tight end Chris Nielsen (four receptions) caught a pass from senior quarterback Kyle Smith that brought the ball to U-D's one-yard line.

On the next play, Smith dove in for a 6-0 lead.

The Cubs scored the next three touchdowns to grab a 20-6 halftime lead and extended the margin to 32-6 early in the fourth quarter.

"Our kids never quit," Belcrest said. "They fought until the end and we had a shot to get a couple of more touchdowns."

Senior wide receiver Padraic Timmons caught a 50-yard touchdown pass from Smith, but the two-point conversion was missed.

"We drove the ball on U-D, which hasn't been done on them in a few games," Belcrest said. "I was proud of our players."

Sophomore tailback Jonathan Johnston gained 86 yards on 18 carries, while Smith played well in his final home game.

The Notre Dame football team dropped to 3-5 overall.

Next for the Fightin' Irish is an away game on Friday,

Oct. 19, against 7-1 Lowell. "We've battled every team on our schedule and our 3-5 record could easily be 5-3 or 6-2," Belcrest said. "We're making positive strides, but we are disappointed with our finish."

"Our game against Lowell is our playoff game. We want to end the season on a positive note."

Soccer

The Notre Dame soccer team helped head coach Marty DeClercq beat his former squad last week, defeating Royal Oak Shrine 3-0.

"We fell behind 3-0 the first time we played Shrine, but came back to gain a 3-3 tie," DeClercq said. "We should have won 6-3."

The host Fightin' Irish wasted no time getting past Shrine as senior Lirjon Lllusha scored two goals and added an assist.

Junior Mike Maltese chipped in with a goal and an assist, plus junior Brandon Janness recorded the shutout.

"This team is capable of playing well," DeClercq said. "We will use this week as a prep for the state playoffs."

The Irish also played Madison Heights Bishop Foley and Waterford Lakes last week, losing and winning.

Standouts were senior Chris McKeon and junior Anoop Patel.

The Notre Dame soccer team finished the regular season and the Catholic League Double-A Division 6-2 overall.

Upcoming for the Fightin' Irish is a Division II district semifinal game on Wednesday, Oct. 24, at the winner of the Grosse Pointe North/Warren Woods-Tower match.

Red Barons' defense shines

The Grosse Pointe Red Barons varsity used excellent defense and special teams play to defeat the Macomb Mustangs 16-13 at Dakota High School.

On a day when the offense was stymied by penalties, the defense was outstanding as the Barons evened their record at 2-2.

"The defense just had a great game," said Barons varsity coach Brett Kurily. "It was the difference, along with the two extra points."

The extra points Kurily referred to were the two kicking conversions by Alex

Symonds. In junior football, teams receive two points for kicking the extra point and one point for running or passing for the conversion. Symonds' kicks, which provided four points, were both boomed through the goal posts.

"It's a good weapon to have," Kurily said.

On Macomb's first series, Richie Beebe ran 60 yards for a touchdown. The Barons' Danny Burkhart blocked the extra point.

Brad Herman returned the ensuing kickoff 75 yards for a touchdown and Symonds kicked the conversion to give the Barons an 8-6 lead.

The game became a defensive struggle until the Barons' Max Yankley scored on a 12-yard run with 7:01 left in the game. Symonds' kick made it 16-6.

Macomb, which is 3-1, narrowed the lead to 16-13 when Beebe ran 40 yards for a touchdown and passed for the conversion with 4:24 remaining.

The Grosse Pointe offense was able to control the ball for the rest of the game. The big play was a 55-yard run by Herman on third down from the Barons' 20-yard line. Grosse Pointe then ran out the clock.

"Offensively, our quarterbacks, (Kurt) Tech and (Brendan) Howe played well but we had a couple of penalties at bad times," Kurily said. "That is what kept Macomb in the game."

Bill Matouk and Curt Mumaw each had four tackles. Matouk, Mumaw and David DeBoer also recovered fumbles. The defense, which is coached by Tom Borland, also got outstanding performances from Travis Haring, Nick Durham and Burkhart.

Junior varsity coach Doug Luttenberger was ecstatic after his team's 26-7 victory over Macomb.

"This football team played as well as it could have," Luttenberger said. "They prepared hard and it showed in the game. It was a 40-man effort. Everyone did his job. It was super."

The offense was led by the hard running of Dan Walsh and Michael D'Agnes. D'Agnes opened the scoring with a 12-yard touchdown run in the first quarter.

Macomb took its only lead, 7-6, on a 20-yard run by Jordan Yoder and a successful running conversion.

D'Agnes returned the second-half kickoff 80 yards for a touchdown and Walsh caught a pass from Mark Riashi on the conversion to give the Barons a 13-7 lead.

Walsh scored on a 39-yard run late in the third quarter, then caught the conversion pass to make it 20-7. Stephen Reaume scored on a one-yard run with 4:56 to cap the scoring.

There were several defensive stars for the Barons. Linebacker Marc Reno was in on nearly every important tackle. Harry West recovered

South tennis team breezes to victory in Division I regional

By Chuck Klonke
Sports Editor
Grosse Pointe South girls tennis coach Mark Sobieralski knows that this weekend's Division I state meet isn't going to be as easy as last weekend's regional that was hosted by the Blue Devils.

"We only lost 14 games in 24 matches," Sobieralski said after South swept all eight flights and finished with 32 points to 21 for runner-up Utica Ford II. It wasn't even difficult in No. 1 singles, where the Blue Devils' German exchange student, Cora Graneist breezed into the state finals, which will be held in Midland.

"All three of Cora's matches were over in under 30 minutes," Sobieralski said. It was just as easy for the rest of South's singles players. Susan Merrill lost only three games at No. 2, Brette Carroll lost four games at No. 3 and Stephanie Manos dropped only one game at No. 4.

South's first doubles team of Vicky Seiter and Margaret Batten didn't lose a game in winning their flight. The rest of the doubles teams — Carolyn Gorski and Hadley Brink, Meghan White and Sunny Jeffries and Carolyn Rohde and Emery Brink — also won in straight sets. "I expect us to be seeded first at No. 2 and No. 4 doubles and second at one and three," Sobieralski said. "It's going to be a battle at the state. There are so many good singles players in this division there could be a lot of first-round upsets. I'm glad that we're strong in doubles. The field isn't quite as deep there." South will go into the state tournament ranked fourth in the state in Division I behind Midland Dow, Ann Arbor Pioneer and Troy. "And we've beaten or tied each of them in tournaments this year," Sobieralski said. "We're going to be ready. We have scrimmages this week with (University) Liggett (School) and (Farmington Hills) Mercy." South closed out the dual meet season with impressive wins over Ann Arbor Huron

Knights nip Country Day in Division IV net regional

By Chuck Klonke

University Liggett School's girls tennis team can usually waltz into the state tournament with as much as a mild challenge in the regional. That wasn't the case this year.

The Knights won another Division IV regional title but it came by the slim margin of two points over Detroit Country Day. "I knew they'd be tough," said ULS coach Chuck Wright. "We beat them in a dual meet (8-0) but they were missing three starters."

ULS had 25 points to 23 for Country Day. Country Day will be among several teams trying to dethrone the state champion Knights in the Division IV finals at Michigan State University this weekend.

"The key is to avoid upsets in the early rounds," Wright said. "If you lose your first match, you don't get credit for a first-round bye."

In addition to Country Day, Wright figures that Bloomfield Hills Academy of the Sacred Heart, Almont and Muskegon Catholic could stand in the way of the Knights' ninth straight title.

ULS won four of the seven flights, including No. 1 singles where Lauren Ealba beat her opponent from Monroe St. Mary Catholic Central 6-0, 6-2 in the title match.

"Lauren used a strong cross-court forehand that pinned the St. Mary girl in the corner and forced her to go to her backhand," Wright said.

Beth Sanders won 6-0, 6-2 against Country Day, winning more easily than the 6-3, 6-3 victory in the dual meet at No. 2 singles.

At third and fourth singles, ULS' Jessica Spriet and Devon Crawford lost to Country Day players in the finals.

"Jessica had split six previous matches with the Country Day girl and Devon did a good job getting to the finals," Wright said.

The Knights' No. 1 doubles team of Nayla Kazzi and Lizzie Campbell posted a tough 6-3, 6-3 win over Country Day.

At No. 2 doubles, Julie Keersmaekers and Puja Venkat lost 6-3, 7-6 in the final against Country Day but they came from a 4-1 deficit in the second set to force a tiebreaker.

Katie Jones and Callie Shumaker won 6-2, 6-3 against Country Day in the final at No. 3 singles. They also had a tough 6-4, 6-3 win over Ann Arbor Gabriel Richard in the semifinals.

"They were down three-love in the second set against Richard and then won six straight games," Wright said. "They played a good, patient match against Country Day in the final."

Earlier, ULS dropped a 6-

2 decision to Grosse Pointe South with Ealba and the No. 1 doubles team of Kazzi and Campbell posting the Knights' victories.

Last week, ULS split two dual meets. The Knights blanked Rochester 8-0 and lost 5-3 to Grosse Pointe North.

The Rochester meet featured a 6-2, 6-1 victory by Crawford at fourth singles. Rachel Costello and Chrissie Keersmaekers played well in winning at No. 4 doubles.

The loss to North was the Knights' first dual meet defeat of the season.

ULS' victories came from Ealba and Spriet in singles and from Kazzi and Campbell in doubles.

North got wins in No. 2 singles from Tracy Dornbrook and at No. 4 from Ayesha Soares. North's doubles victories came from the teams of Erin Tobin and Molly Gaydos, Beth Versical and Natalie Victor and Katie DiMaggio and Sara Kurtz.

The 5-7, 6-1, 6-4 win by Versical and Victor at No. 3 doubles was the only three-set match of the meet.

South wins last two duals

Grosse Pointe South's girls cross country team added a pair of dual meet victories and a second-place finish in the Oxford Invitational to its impressive record this season.

The Blue Devils beat Macomb Area Conference Red Division rivals Macomb Dakota 18-45 and Utica Eisenhower 15-50 to finish the dual meet portion of the schedule with a 7-1 record.

South took 11 of the top 14 positions and seven of the first eight spots at the double dual meet at Stony Creek Metropark.

Megan Zaranek and Heather Whiteley finished 1-2 in the meet. Close behind were Mary Gibson, Lauren Sullivan, Moe Hoehn, Liz Petit and Jenny Gerow. All seven finished within 50 seconds of each other.

Others in the top 20 were Emily Gordon, Liz Baxter, Molly Damm, Jessica Palffy, Rachel Walters, Robin Callas, Emily Meza, Cristin Brophy and Kathleen Sholty. Also running season-best times were Erica Jost, Megan Miller and Natalie Novak.

Among the top offensive linemen for the 2-2 Barons were Mike Sheehy, Karl Tech, Mac Topper and Justin Mallouf.

The Red Barons freshmen allowed a touchdown with 1:16 left and suffered a disappointing 20-13 defeat at the hands of unbeaten Macomb.

Trailing 13-6, the Barons tied the game with 5:18 remaining when John Guest, who had an outstanding game, scored on a 20-yard run and ran for the conversion.

Macomb drove to the Grosse Pointe five-yard line with 1:30 to go but the drive stalled there when Clayton Carter recovered a fumble. The Barons, however, fumbled the ball back on the next play and Macomb's Joe Zuccaro scored the winning touchdown on a five-yard run.

North wins but loses another key basketball player

By Chuck Klonke
Sports Editor

The losses keep piling up for Grosse Pointe North's girls basketball team.

So far, they haven't appeared on the scoreboard. North is 11-1 overall and 9-0 in the Macomb Area Conference White Division, but the Norsemen's lineup is taking some serious hits.

First it was Stephanie Rose going out with a knee injury. Then in last Tuesday's 48-46 win over East Detroit, Jill Bramos suffered a broken right wrist.

The injuries to Rose and Bramos are like déjà vu for coach Gary Bennett. Last year, Rose had a stress fracture in her foot and Bramos missed time with a broken left wrist.

"The difference this year is that our bench isn't as deep in terms of experience as it was last year," Bennett said. "It's going to be a lot tougher for us to keep going this year."

And tonight, Oct. 18, the Norsemen have a key MAC White game against Sterling Heights at home. The Stallions share second place in the division with Fraser — both teams are 7-2 — and Sterling Heights has improved since North's 59-46 win earlier in the season.

"If we can win both of our games this week (the Norsemen played Warren-Mott on Tuesday) we'll be in pretty good shape," Bennett said. "But it's not going to be easy. We scored a lot on the fast break in our first game against Sterling Heights and Steph and Jill were big factors in that."

Despite the loss of Rose and Bramos, some other North players stepped up in last Thursday's 48-37 win over Warren Woods-Tower.

"Katie Kaufmann came off the bench and shot 5-for-5 from the field, including a big basket at the end of the first half that put us up by two," Bennett said. "She gave us a big lift when we needed it with her perimeter scoring and she played with poise and confidence."

Megan Warren started for Jill and although, she didn't score, she did a good job on the boards and on defense. She really competed, which is why we kept her on the roster as a freshman this year."

Bennett was also happy with the performance of senior Meredith Farmer, who had 13 points, six rebounds, three assists and three steals.

"She really asserted herself in this game," Bennett said. "Meredith is a very good athlete and when she asserts herself like this, she's one of the best players on the floor."

A strong second half carried the Norsemen to the victory over the Titans. The two-point halftime lead ballooned to 16 points with about three minutes remaining.

"It was all keyed by the defense," Bennett said. "This win felt just as good as the Fraser win. We got contributions from a lot of people who hadn't had a lot of opportunities before this game."

In the first half, North was not only missing Rose and Bramos but defensive catalyst Beth Bigham was on the bench with foul trouble most of the half.

Bigham played most of the second half and finished with 11 points and four assists.

Bennett wasn't quite as pleased with his team's performance in the East Detroit game.

"We were flat," he said. "I guess that might have been expected after the emotional week last week (with wins over Chippewa Valley and Fraser). We didn't have a good practice on Monday and it carried into the game. We didn't have the enthusiasm we had the week before and East Detroit played exceptionally well."

"Matt (Shamrocks coach Matt Joseph) had them ready for us. They didn't let us run as much as we did the first time we played them."

North's biggest lead in the second half was seven points, but East Detroit kept coming back and cut the margin to two before Lindsey Koerber hit two free throws with 29 seconds left to give the Norsemen a 48-44 advantage.

Bramos, who was injured early in the third quarter, remained in the game and played a key role in the fourth quarter with five points. She finished with 13 points and eight rebounds.

"I didn't even know she was hurt until after the game," Bennett said. "She didn't say anything. It's a shame because she's a senior. She was pretty bummed out."

Shelby Simmon led North with 15 points and four assists. Koerber also pulled down eight rebounds.

Regina swims by East Detroit, Shrine

By Bob St. John
Staff writer

Regina's swim team won its meets last week, beating Eastpointe East Detroit 111-75 and Royal Oak Shrine 123-60.

"We're getting better with each meet," head coach Frank Bruneel said. "After our loss to Marian, I told the girls we needed to make it a goal to win the rest of our meets."

So far, so good for the Saddlelites.

In the East Detroit meet, junior Meredith Kotas won the 200-individual medley, while senior Jackie Babich was first in the diving competition.

The Saddlelites used a sweep of the 100-butterfly to take control of the meet. Senior Erin Blair, freshman Holly Hanzaruk and senior Corinne Roskopp placed first, second and third, respectively.

In addition, the 200-medley relay team of Roskopp, sophomore Natalie Deponio, Hanzaruk and senior Sherri McIntyre placed first.

Babich was one point shy of breaking her own record set last year in the diving competition, earning 251.20 points, while McIntyre and senior Nikki Bruneel won the 100-freestyle and 500-freestyle with times of 1:05 and 6:10.

Blair, freshman Jackie Sheridan and senior Krystyna Iwanski placed first, second and third in the 50-freestyle that put the meet out of Shrine's reach.

Bruneel also set his 400-free relay with all seniors as McIntyre, Bruneel, Blair and junior Nicole Sorensen (filling in for a missing senior) won the event, while Roskopp, Kristen Davis, Megan Miller and Michelle Cybulski placed second.

The Regina swim team improved to 2-2 in the Catholic League and 4-3 overall.

Coming up for the Saddlelites are away meets on Monday, Oct. 22, against Fraser (which won the Macomb County championship), and Thursday, Oct. 25, against Madison Heights Bishop Foley at Lamphere High School.

Tennis

The Regina tennis team fell two points short of making the state finals, finishing tied with host Fraser with 16.

First-year head coach Ann Yochim was hopeful her Saddlelites could get to the finals, but it would be critical for her girls to win as many matches as possible.

Grosse Pointe North was the only squad to make it to the finals, winning the regional with 28 points.

It was a close race for second between Regina (16 points), Fraser (16), Warren Cousino (15) and Warren Mott (14).

As has been the norm for the Saddlelites throughout the season, singles players Sarah Markiewicz, Angela Kuznia, Ali Glowacki and Lauren Maloney-Egnatios earned a majority of the points.

A lack of success by the doubles teams kept the Saddlelites out of the finals. Earlier in the week, Regina beat South Lake in a regional tune-up.

"It gets the girls a chance to play a competitive match before the regionals," Yochim said. "The girls need the competitiveness to stay focused."

The Regina tennis team finished its season 5-5 overall.

Basketball

The Regina basketball team, after a one-year hiatus, earned a spot in the Catholic League Central/Double-A Division playoffs last week, beating host Redford Bishop Borgess 50-38.

"It was an ugly game, but we were lucky enough to just well enough to win," head coach Diane Laffey said. "I only hope this is the last time I see the team play this lethargic."

The Saddlelites trailed 21-15 at the half, but outscored Bishop Borgess 27-3 in the third quarter to take a commanding 42-24 lead.

"We had a good halftime chat and the girls came out with a lot of intensity in the third quarter, scoring 27 points," Laffey said.

It was one of the Saddlelites' most productive quarters this season and it was what won the game for the visitors.

Senior Rachel Cortis scored 14 points to lead the Saddlelites.

Later in the week, Regina traveled to Dearborn Divine Child, who upset Livonia Ladywood earlier in the week.

"We know this will not be an easy game," Laffey said. "I feel confident we can win if the girls play well."

Divine Child made it two big wins in a row, beating Regina 61-53, despite Cortis' season-high 25 points.

The Saddlelites also hosted Utica Eisenhower last weekend, winning 66-48 as sophomore Angela Jimines had 11 points.

The Regina basketball team is 5-3 in the Catholic League Central Division and 9-4 overall.

Upcoming for the Saddlelites is their final league game on Friday, Oct. 19, against rival Birmingham Marian, followed by the first round of the Catholic League playoffs on Wednesday, Oct. 24.

Cross country

The Regina cross country team won its first dual meet of the season last week, beating Pontiac Notre Dame Prep 22-37.

"It was by far our best meet of the season," head coach Gregg Golden said. "From top to bottom, our girls ran well."

The Saddlelites' top runners were Lauri Eisen, Catherine Vaughn, Katie Eisen and Sara DeMars.

Othe standouts who had personal bests were Ashley Couture, Andrea Paradise, Emily Delmotte, Bailee Cieslak, Sarah Popp, Laura Simpson and Sara Dzierziewicz.

Golden sent six runners to the Grosse Pointe North Senior Invitational.

"It's a meet for seniors only and they put on a great meet," Golden said. "It's a chance for the upperclassmen to earn a medal in one of the last meets of their high school career."

Lauri Eisen and Catherine Toronto placed seventh in the two-woman team event, while Beth Brune (personal best) and Erin Kenney were 11th.

Catherine Rinehart (personal best) and Kristin Budde finished 15th.

The entire Regina squad competed in the Ann Arbor Gabriel Richard Invitational, finishing 17th out of 23 teams in Division I.

"It's the most competitive meet we compete in during the season," Golden said. "We were 22nd out of 25 teams last year, so this was an improvement."

Vaughn, Alecia Kulka, Paradise, Karon Walter, Delmotte, Cieslak, Popp, Molly Daudlin and Xiomara Okonkwo all posted a personal best.

The Regina cross country team improved to 1-3 in the Catholic League and overall.

Up next for the Saddlelites is the Catholic League Championship Meet on Sunday, Oct. 21, at Stony Creek, followed by the Operation Friendship meet on Tuesday, Oct. 23.

Nature provides solace and hope

One month ago from the date that I write this, our nation faced the challenge of the tragedy that befell us at the hands of terrorists. Later that day as I drove past the Whittier Towers on Jefferson, I noticed a bird that was unusual to those that I often see.

Birder that I am, I was compelled to take a closer look. I was rewarded with the sight of not one, but two, peregrine falcons as they raced around in the sky after each other. Falcons have a tendency to fly just for the sake of flying as they can do this so well. These birds were obviously enjoying their skills and as I watched them, I was transported to another place and time far away from the horrors being shown on the news.

The natural world has the ability to be life-affirming. Nearly 40 years ago, Wallace Stegner wrote of America's natural heritage as our "geography of hope." We know the healing and wisdom that comes from the enduring rhythms of the seasons — the marvels of migrating birds and the renewal of life each spring. Every time that we plant a seed in the spring or fill our feeders for the birds that pass through in migration, we express our faith in the future and do our part to create our shared geography of hope.

We should also be aware that conservation is all about caring for our community, a community that is built on shared values and not similar ethnic origins and backgrounds. Now, more than ever, we need the prescription described by Henry David Thoreau as the "tonic of wildness." We can feed our soul by stepping out of doors and appreciating the beauty of the sun rising over Lake St. Clair, by feeling the wind in our face as we watch the colorful autumn leaves scurrying ahead of us down the street or by listening to the cries of the blue jays as they gather in flocks for their journey south. Being reminded of the things in life that transcend human atrocities can lift your spirit, mend your heart and bring comfort as well as providing the hope that you need to face the challenges ahead.

President Lincoln knew the value of wilderness, setting aside the Sequoia Grove and Yosemite in 1864, during the midst of the Civil War. All of the natural places that we have worked so hard to protect can now come to our rescue. There is a comfort in knowing that the sights and sounds of nature in those places will always exist.

Just as I did not have to travel far to experience the awe of those peregrine falcons, you can stay at home and find solace in the birds that come to your feeders. With the advent of cooler weather, it's a great time to set out your feeders for the fall and winter season. Return to nature in your yard as you teach your children about the joys of chickadees flitting back and forth between feeders and branches as they eat seeds, the uniqueness of woodpeckers as you watch them eating suet, the brightness of cardinals on even the dreariest of days. At times of uncertainty and fear, it is worth remembering that the Earth and its creatures abide. As author Wendell Barry stated so well, "When despair for the world grows in me and I wake in the night at the last sound in fear of what my life and my children's lives may be, I go and lie down where the wood drake rests its beauty on the water, and the great heron feeds. I come into the peace of wild things who do not tax their lives with forethought or grief. For a time, I rest in the grace of the world, and am free."

Take a moment in these trying times to set yourself free from the stress and to rest in the grace of the world in your yard. Enjoy your birds.

Rosann Kovalcik is a certified bird-feeding specialist and owner of Wild Birds Unlimited, 20485 Mack Ave., Grosse Pointe Woods; (313) 881-1410.

Scare up some easy treats this Halloween

(ARA) — Let your cauldron boil over with tasty treats from Mr. Food that are perfect for Halloween parties and other fall get-togethers.

Have a frighteningly good time when your hungry little "monsters" help you make some special Halloween treats using Mrs. Smith's Pumpkin Pie. With a few simple tricks and some added treats, you can use Mrs. Smith's Pumpkin pies to create with. "You and your kiddies can make a ready-to-bake pumpkin pie into your family's own creepy creation," said Mr. Food, the popular TV chef who appears in cooking segments nationwide.

Halloween is a really big party time, so Mrs. Smith's has come up with some fun ideas for turning a pumpkin pie into favorites that your gang will be "goblin" up in no time — and each starts with a Mrs. Smith's Pumpkin Pie baked according to the package directions and cooled.

• Jack-O'-Lantern Pumpkin Pie: With a paring knife, carve out a jack-o'-lantern face from the pie, removing the cutouts (these are a great bonus for the carvers). Mix whipped topping with a drop or two of yellow food color and spoon into a plastic storage bag with a corner snipped off. Squeeze the mixture into the cut-out areas so that, with its yellow glow, your edible jack-o'-lantern looks illuminated from inside! Place a miniature candy bar at the top to create the look of a stem for a realistic finishing touch.

• Goblin's Delights: Grab your Halloween cookie cutters and cut ghost and goblin shapes out of the pie, pushing firmly to cut through the crust. Cover the shapes completely with hard shell ice cream topping, such as Magic Shell. Decorate with candy corn, black licorice, and your favorite candies, using prepared chocolate frosting as the "glue."

• Pumpkin Ghosts: Cut pie into eight wedges and frost all the way around and the top of each wedge with whipped topping. With the top as the point of the ghosts' heads, use M&M's and candy corn to make fun ghostly faces.

These great decorating ideas are sure to stir up a happy Halloween.

Safety tips for four-legged trick-or-treaters

(NAPSI) — Are your "little monsters" gearing up for Halloween? How about the four-legged ones? While it can be fun to bring the family pet trick-or-treating, don't forget that safety precautions apply to them as well your children.

Consider these tips for your pet before heading out:

- Make sure your pet is visible. Reflective collars will call attention to your pet in the dark.

- Trick or treat? If your pet's involved, opt for a trick. Chocolate is harmful for dogs and cats and should not be consumed under any circumstances.

- Some pets may be uncomfortable seeing elaborate costumes. Make sure your pet does not go to a stranger's door if you're worried this may be the case.

- If your pet is staying home with you to help answer the door, and is prone to getting excited around strangers, make sure you keep him or her contained.

While safety is of chief importance, you may also want to revisit your flea treatment regimen. Your pet should always be on a monthly flea preventive, but there are times when that's just not enough. Outdoor dogs and cats are likely to pick up "hitchhiker" fleas from infested areas.

"Hitchhiker" fleas are adult fleas that can jump from an infested area to your pet. There's a medication available that kills these adult fleas, called Capstar (nitenpyram) Tablets. This medication, from Novartis Animal Health, U.S. Inc., is available in a convenient oral tablet and leaves no pesticide residue on the pet or in the home. In addition, there is no mess, no odor and no drying period to interfere with your enjoyment of your pet.

Capstar Tablets start working within 30 minutes of administration, killing more than 90 percent of fleas on dogs within four hours and on cats within six hours. The medication has no side effects and is proven safe and effective for both dogs and cats. It can be used with puppies and kittens as young as four weeks of age, weighing at least two pounds, as well as with pregnant and nursing dogs and cats.

Winter garden eases those winter blues

(ARA) — As the days get shorter and the weather more gloomy, many of us tend to get the winter blues. Easing those doldrums can be as simple as adding a little sunshine to your life by creating a wintergarden in your home.

A wintergarden, also commonly known as a sunroom, is a glass-enclosed room that creates a sunny haven in which to relax and revitalize. A sunroom offers homeowners a chance to reap the benefits of natural sunlight when cooler temperatures keep them indoors for extended periods of time or when heading south for the winter isn't a viable option.

A lack of natural sunlight can sometimes cause the winter blues, leaving some individuals fatigued and depressed. Their increased need for sleep may often lead to a feeling of hibernation.

Scientific studies have shown that natural sunlight can actually improve our mood, our health and boost our energy level 24 percent more than artificial light, according to Men's Health and Current Health magazines.

Designed with insulated glass and optional glass roofs, Wintergardens provide a comfortable retreat that can be enjoyed year round, according to Patio Enclosures, Inc., the nation's largest manufacturer and installer of sunrooms.

In addition to soaking up natural sunlight, homeowners are discovering the many ways these light-filled rooms can provide an invigorating and energizing experience for the whole family.

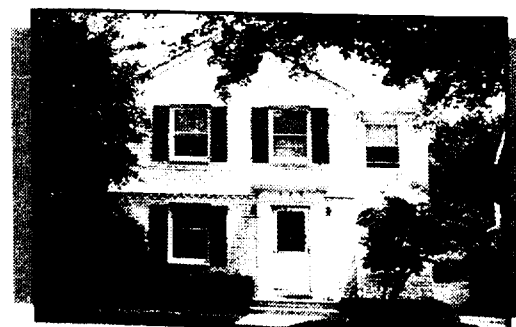

As a large, open family room, the sunlight and tranquil environment attract the entire family and enhance the valuable leisure time they spend together. Children, who seem to be naturally attracted to sunlight, enjoy using a wintergarden as a play area to escape the harsh effects of cold, wind, rain and snow.

Wintergardens also are used as enclosures for hot tubs, creating a romantic getaway for wintertime star gazing, or as a place for plants and gardens to thrive. Surrounded by soft, casual furniture and sunlight, blooming flowers help create a warm, springtime feeling even in the dead of winter.

Many homeowners create their wintergardens by enclosing an existing porch, an open carport or a patio overhang. Others add one to an outside wall of their home, often constructing an enclosure with an insulated foam roof or an all-glass solarium on an existing deck or concrete pad.

For a free "Homeowners Guide to Sunrooms," write to Patio Enclosures Inc., P.O. Box 186, Macedonia, Ohio 44056.

A full-scale addition may be best solution

Q. Is an addition the only way to add space to an existing kitchen?

A. When faced with small kitchens and trying to decide between a one-wall layout or a galley, maybe now is the time to ask yourself if this might not be the time to add on space. Just keep in mind that this doesn't necessarily have to involve constructing a full addition. Instead, look to space you already have.

Can the kitchen be extended into an attached breezeway? Is there space in an adjacent room that could be annexed? Even something as small as an unused closet in an adjoining room can add invaluable space to a kitchen. And who says the kitchen has to stay where it is? Converting another room into the kitchen can be a viable option.

But if none of these options solve your space problem, a full-scale addition might be the best solution.

Besides giving you the larger kitchen you want or need, an addition can also include a family room, a larger dining area, perhaps even a first floor laundry room. For families with growing children or people who simply love to entertain, an addition can greatly increase the social environment of the kitchen and help to make it the center of the home. Also pay close attention to the exterior design of the addition. A deck or patio off the kitchen can add additional space during the warmer months, as well as enhance the exterior appeal of your home, a definite asset in its resale value.

If you decide that a full-scale addition is the answer to your kitchen problems, the planning process is the same as a kitchen remodel. Assess your needs and wants and sit down with a kitchen designer to work out the best plan for your budget and lifestyle.

Know what's in that bottle

When consumers face a giant wall of water products in the supermarket, however, it can be hard to know what to choose. Reading labels doesn't always make the selection easier, according to water expert Arthur von Wiesenberger, founder of bottled-waterweb.com.

How to choose the best water product? Von Wiesenberger's advice: source matters.

Von Wiesenberger says consumers should pay attention to what the vendor says — or doesn't say — about the water's source and its processing.

Companies that bottle processed spring water may have multiple sources and may ship their water to another site for processing.

In contrast, he says, the highest quality water products are bottled directly from one pure source, keeping the natural mineral content intact.

Most premium water products provide consumers information about their spring source on their product label.

Fresh ideas herald vibrant fall decorating

(ARA) — If you're looking for a room with a view when there is none, and can't afford to move or renovate, check out the latest in affordable decorating trends, including wall mural graphics, accent pillows, throws and rugs and greenery.

It's easy to change accent elements in a room to make the transition to fall decor. If your larger pieces of furniture are covered in solid or tone-on-tone fabrics, you can add flair with pillows, throws and even area rugs. Pillows can be warm and cozy chenille, elegant damask, stylish satin or handsome wool.

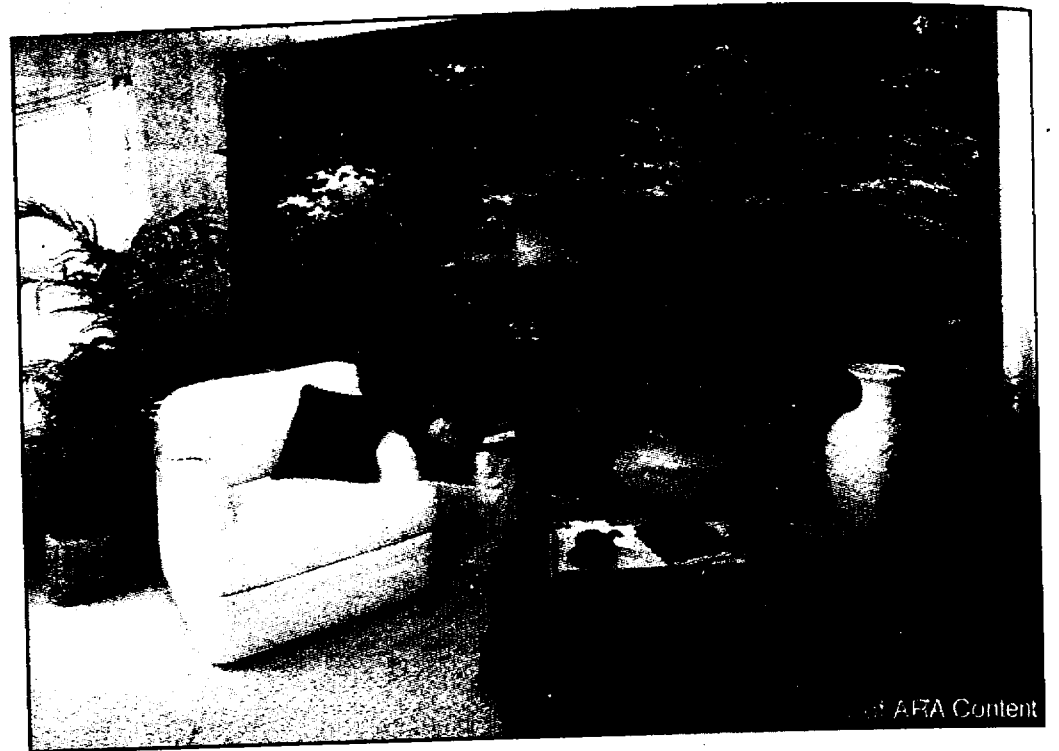

Throws also are available in many styles including tapestry-backed velvet, long-fringed chenille, or soft, fuzzy acrylic. Area rugs can be found for as little as $250 for a 6- by 9-foot, which is the ideal size to use as an accent, even over wall-to-wall carpet. Pillows, throws and rugs are great ways to make a quick change without investing too much.

Adding greenery to a room also changes its look and adds a feeling of life. Silk plants are fine and with proper cleaning they can last for years. When decorating with plants, keep it simple. You should limit floral arrangements to no more than one per room, but you can be more generous with green plants. Bookcases benefit from a plant on every third shelf or so, and the top of an armoire is also a good candidate. It's especially easy to buy ready-made containers for your plants or arrangements, in styles ranging from bright brass, silvery aluminum, sparkling glass, to more casual ceramic or terra cotta in stores.

Wall-sized murals also can transform a space, quickly and easily. Whether you want to create the illusion of a garden vista, a soothing seascape, or even an island paradise, your options are wide open with the many views available.

If a photo mural isn't your preference, try an original artist's rendering, which can be far more cost-effective than a wall of original art. Don't forget that kids' rooms also need a change. Because their style preferences change as quickly as their shoe size, wall murals are an easy way to redecorate as their tastes and interests change.

Wall murals can even be changed seasonally. You can enjoy a warm tropical view during the winter, and change it to the cooler, crisper look of a peaceful mountain lake during the summer. Environmental Graphics has been designing these home-enhancing vistas for 30 years, and mastered an easy installation method that even the most craft-challenged can complete successfully.

Keeping your home up to date will lift your spirits and improve your energy, and may provide a perfect excuse for a party. Greet the fall and holiday season with gusto!

Now is the time to winterize your deck

(NAPSI) — If the summer has taken a toll on your deck — or if you've just invested in a new one — now is the time to clean, restore and protect the wood from possible moisture damage during the winter months ahead. Here are some tips for "Winterizing" your deck from the experts of Wolman Wood Care Products:

- Clean the deck thoroughly to remove dirt, fungus, growth and gray surface wood with a formulated deck cleaner like Wolman Deck & Fence Brightener. Weathered gray wood, rust spots and stains from mildew, moss, algae and tannin bleed can ruin the look of your deck. Even newly built decks can require cleaning to remove invisible surface barriers that prevent the adhesion of stains and sealers. Wolman Deck & Fence Brightener removes surface barriers, ground-in dirt, gray wood surfaces and even the toughest of stains and restores the wood to its natural beauty without bleaching or yellowing, like chlorine bleach can.
- Strip any deteriorating or unwanted finish. If the colored stain on your deck has seen better days, now is the time to strip your deck's finish. Products like Wolman DeckStrip Stain & Finish Remover remove both oil and latex solid or semi-transparent stains and clear finishes and prepare the wood for the reapplication of protective finishes and stains. For really stubborn, hard-to-strip acrylic or latex stains and paints, Wolman makes a product called DeckStrip A&L, which can strip multiple layers in as little as 15 minutes.

- Seal your deck with a water repellent finish before the onslaught of winter. Water repellents stop rain, sleet, snow and ice from penetrating the wood surface, which can cause warping and cracking. Look for products like Wolman RainCoat or F&P, that offer a guarantee on water-repellent longevity, as they will provide longer lasting protection so you won't have to apply a new coat every year.

Clocks that automatically 'fall back' for daylight savings time

(ARA) — The atomic clock maintained by the National Institute of Standards and Technology (NIST) in Boulder, Colo., is the official time for the United States and the most accurate measurement of time available.

Now there are wall clocks, desk clocks and wristwatches that synchronize with the official clock to simplify your life as well as keep you on time.

Atomix brand clocks, from Chaney Instrument Co., synchronize with the official clock in Boulder to keep accurate time. In addition, this signal resets the clock when the time switches to and from daylight-saving time, making it easy to set all your clocks accurately and eliminating that panicked feeling of waking up two Sundays each year and not being sure what time it really is. The clocks run for up to two years on a single AA battery.

Atomix clocks not only spring forward and fall back automatically for daylight-saving time, they also receive the NIST signal at least once a day to maintain accuracy. This technology has been used for years by NASA, the military and the broadcast and aviation industries, and is also now crucial for Internet service providers, cellular communications and power grid regulators. Advances in timekeeping technology have made it more accessible to consumers, who can now have the same degree of accuracy in their timepieces as astronauts and aviators. Although Atomix clocks are high-tech, they can fit into the decor of any room of your home. They are available in a variety of designs, including analog and digital wall clocks with wood, metal or acrylic frames, as well as desk-top clocks and wrist watches for men and women. (Atomix's wrist watches will reset to different time zones at the touch of a button, making them ideal for anyone who travels across the country.)

Whether you're setting your VCR to tape a show, picking up your child from day care or catching a flight for an important meeting, you can be sure you have the correct time on your clocks.

Atomix clocks are available at more than 2,500 retail outlets. Suggested retail prices start at about $30.

To learn more about the United States official atomic clock, visit www.nist.gov.

Insulate and ventilate to prevent ice dams

Q. Mr. Hardware, we had ice dams last year and I am now preparing to prevent it from happening again. How much and what kind of insulation should I use? Dick H. of New Baltimore.

A. Dick, if your home is more than 10 years old, chances are that the level of insulation in your attic is insufficient and below today's local building standards. Your minimum attic insulation should be an R-30 rating, about 12 inches deep.

R-value is a measure of ability to resist the flow of heat. The higher the R rating of insulation, the greater its ability to prevent transfer of heat.

In terms of energy savings, adding insulation to the attic returns your investment the quickest. If you do it yourself, adding 6 inches of attic insulation to a 1,000-square-foot home could cost about $300.00. If you use air conditioning, you could save that much within two years. As a bonus, your home will be more comfortable once better insulated.

When using rolled or bat fiber glass insulation over old, always use unfaced. Unfaced insulation without a vapor barrier attached to one side. Only use faced, (with paper or foil), in new construction when the facing can be directly against the heated area. A vapor barrier from the facing is something you do not want between layers of insulation.

Blown-in insulation, also known as cellulose (a chopped up, fire-proofed paper), is good if there are many obstructions in the attic. Be careful not to blow insulation into the overhangs. It will clog the soffit vents, causing more damage than good.

Another thing to prevent with installing insulation is packing too much at the outside walls. Do not let it touch the bottom of the roof. If the insulation touches the roof, it can prevent airflow, thus trapping warm air. The use of baffles or chutes installed between the rafters create a cavity for airflow.

Homes without soffit vents are candidates for an ice dam. Warm air from the house will be stagnant if cold air cannot vent in from the fascia. Soffit vents let air flow from the overhang vent into the attic. As warm air rises, it will draw fresh air from the overhang keeping those roof boards cold. Airflow also removes any moisture that does get into the attic area.

If you do not have an overhang, you can still vent through the fascia. One way is to drill holes in the fascia, and cover with a fascia vent. Install an extended drip edge and yes, the over-hang-less bungalows can be vented!

Ice dams form when snow on the roof melts during the day, then refreezes at the gutters after dark. Several days of the right conditions and an ice dam can become six inches thick and extend up the roof two feet or more. It is when temperatures rise and the ice dam starts to melt that problems occur.

Melting snow that cannot get over the ice dam weeps up under the shingles and into the attic. The water will cause paint to peel, rot roof-boards, rafters, and the fascia. It may also be the cause of why gutter nails keep coming loose.

Coffee has been a popular drink for centuries. It was introduced to England, Holland, France and Germany during the 17th century. At first, brass or bronze spice grinders and mortars and pestles were used for grinding the coffee. In 1620, the Mayflower carried coffee and a wooden mortar and pestle to grind coffee beans.

Coffee grinders or mills for individual use were used a few years later. The first patent for a mill was issued in 1798. It was not until about 1873 that roasted and packaged coffee was offered for sale in stores. The Enterprise Manufacturing Co. began making large coffee mills for stores as well as small ones for home use. Electric motors were added to the coffee mills about 1900.

Hand-operated mills continued to be made for use in areas with no electricity into the 1930s. Enterprise was one of the largest companies that made coffee mills. They usually had the name "Enterprise" molded on the base or on the large wheel that was turned to grind the coffee. The counter and floor-standing machines were made with a number that helps to indicate the date of manufacture.

The price today depends on rarity and the condition of the painted surface. Most of the mills were painted red and black with gold trim. Store mills range from $400 to more than $4,000.

Q. What is a butler's desk?

A. The term "butler's desk" is not found in most furniture dictionaries. It refers to a piece of federal furniture that looks like a chest of drawers. What appears to be the top drawer is actually a fall-front writing surface. A butler's desk was originally used as a side-board or storage piece in a dining room or butler's pantry. The butler used the fall-front desk to handle the household's accounts.

Q. Do pearls come in colors, or are they dyed?

orange pearls in nature. There are also artificially colored pearls in these colors and in shades of bronze.

Desks from past centuries were designed to solve problems of the past. Where to place the inkwell? Could there be a locked drawer or a hidden compartment for valuable papers? Could papers be filed in some meaningful way? Would there be a way to hide work and still have an attractive piece of furniture?

The desk of the 1830s used a "fall front." It looked like a large drawer, but it opened into a flat writing surface in front of a section of small drawers. The clever design hid drawers, a space to store messy work and a writing surface that protruded so you could use it without bumping your knees. The closed desk could be kept against a wall, where it took up less space. Later, larger and more ornate Victorian pieces came into style. The roll-top desk of Victorian times hid the drawers and writing surface behind a roll-up, slatted top. The Victorian Wooten desk closed two side sections of the desk and all the drawers into a locked "cabinet."

Today's desk must hold a computer monitor, printer and hard drive. It could also have a series of small shelves on top and a few drawers and more storage space on the bottom. Holes are necessary for electrical connections. Like most desks, it is designed to take up as little room as possible. But in the 21st century, it is proper to have the machines and even the papers exposed.

— Ralph and Terry Kovel, Cowles Syndicate

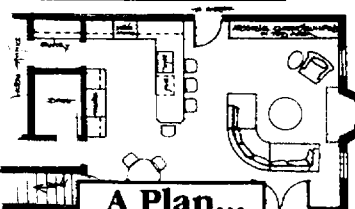

Tips: If you find an old lamp with part of a light bulb still in the socket, try this: Push a fresh potato or a wine cork into the old socket. Turn it, and it will probably unscrew the old light-bulb base.

Never put a collector plate in a dishwasher or a microwave oven. The glaze might become damaged.

Become a master of illusion with wallpaper

(ARA) — Trompe l'oeil, or "deceive the eye," is a time-honored decorative effect for adding architectural details, textures and even furnishings or whole scenes where they do not really exist. Today, thanks to sophisticated printing techniques, trompe l'oeil images once achieved only by master painters are available on wallpaper.

So realistic looking is the stone wallpaper in the First Class Male collection by S.A. Maxwell Co., that without touching it, most people would never detect that it's actually a pattern printed on washable, durable, matte-finish wallpaper.

A great tool for creating or enhancing popular lodge and mountain cabin looks, this wallpaper can turn a simple fireplace into the focal point of a room. Install it on both sides of the fireplace or use it to create a faux stone chimney. Add a rustic wood beam mantel and hang your favorite catch above it. You can hang art or objects on this stone wall without a heavy-duty drill bit. And unlike the real thing, the stone on this fireplace can be wiped clean with just a damp cloth.

To add the drama of stone pillars to your mountain retreat, measure the width and height of the wall. Then determine a sequence of alternating stone pillars with open space between them. Cut around the edges of the stone shapes on strips of wallpaper the height of your ceiling and hang each strip vertically the full height of the wall, allowing equal space between each strip. For a different variation on the rustic theme, use the stone pattern along the lower portion of the wall to create a chair rail. Or add a touch of country to your kitchen with a stone soffit above the cabinets.

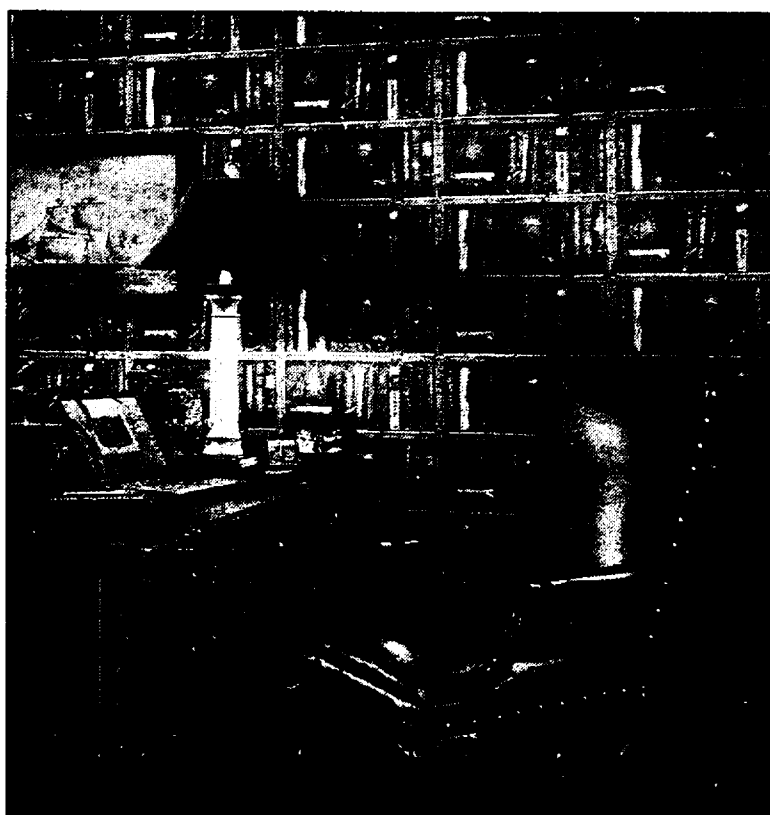

City or country, this faux stone wallpaper makes a great fortress in a child's room. Install it 36 inches up from the floor, trim the top edge to outline the stone shapes, and put cloud wallpaper above it.

An entirely different feel is achieved with the trompe l'oeil bookshelf in Maxwell's First Class Male collection. It brings warmth and tradition to any room and when used at the end of a hall or stair landing, actually seems to extend the space.

The same pattern can define different areas within a large room. On the far wall of a master bedroom it can signal a separation between the sleeping area and the entry to the master bath. Use it to warm up the living area of a great room in which the kitchen, dining and family room are all open to each other.

The ultimate English library can be achieved with the addition of faux bookshelves on either side of a fireplace or up to chair-rail height along the bottom of the walls. As a finishing touch, install a subtle textured or striped wallpaper above it. Set the right tone for your home office by installing a faux bookcase or two on the wall behind your desk. And in any room, disguise a door by turning it into a bookcase.
