South's boys hockey coach jailed

By Brad Lindberg
Staff Writer

The boys hockey coach at Grosse Pointe South High School is in jail and scheduled for a pretrial examination next week on multiple rape charges that could send him to prison for life.

South Coach Robert Walter Bopp, 51, is accused of sexual-Farmington Hills boy, according to Wayne County Prosecutor Kym Worth.

The alleged attacks reportedly occurred from 2007 to 2008 in Taylor, Bopp's city of residence.

There are no victims from the Grosse Pointes, according to various police agencies.

"At this time we are not involved at all," said Mike McCarthy, Farms detective and youth officer.

"As far as we are aware, none of the charges against Mr. Bopp involve past or present students from the Grosse Pointe Public School System," Superintendent Suzanne Klein wrote in a June 19 letter to South hockey parents.

"We will be sending him a letter relieving him of his duties," said Tom Harwood, district assistant superintendent of human resources.

Detective Sgt. Mary Sciabassi of the Taylor police department, the lead agency on the case, said she's heard nothing about Grosse Pointe victims, but added, "The investigation is ongoing. Whatever information we get, we'll follow up on."

School to post position in fall

The arrest and arraignment of Grosse Pointe South High School boys hockey coach Robert Bopp has left his 16-year employer not only with a job vacancy, but also concern for students.

The 51-year-old Taylor resident was charged Friday, June 19, with three counts of criminal sexual conduct and other charges.

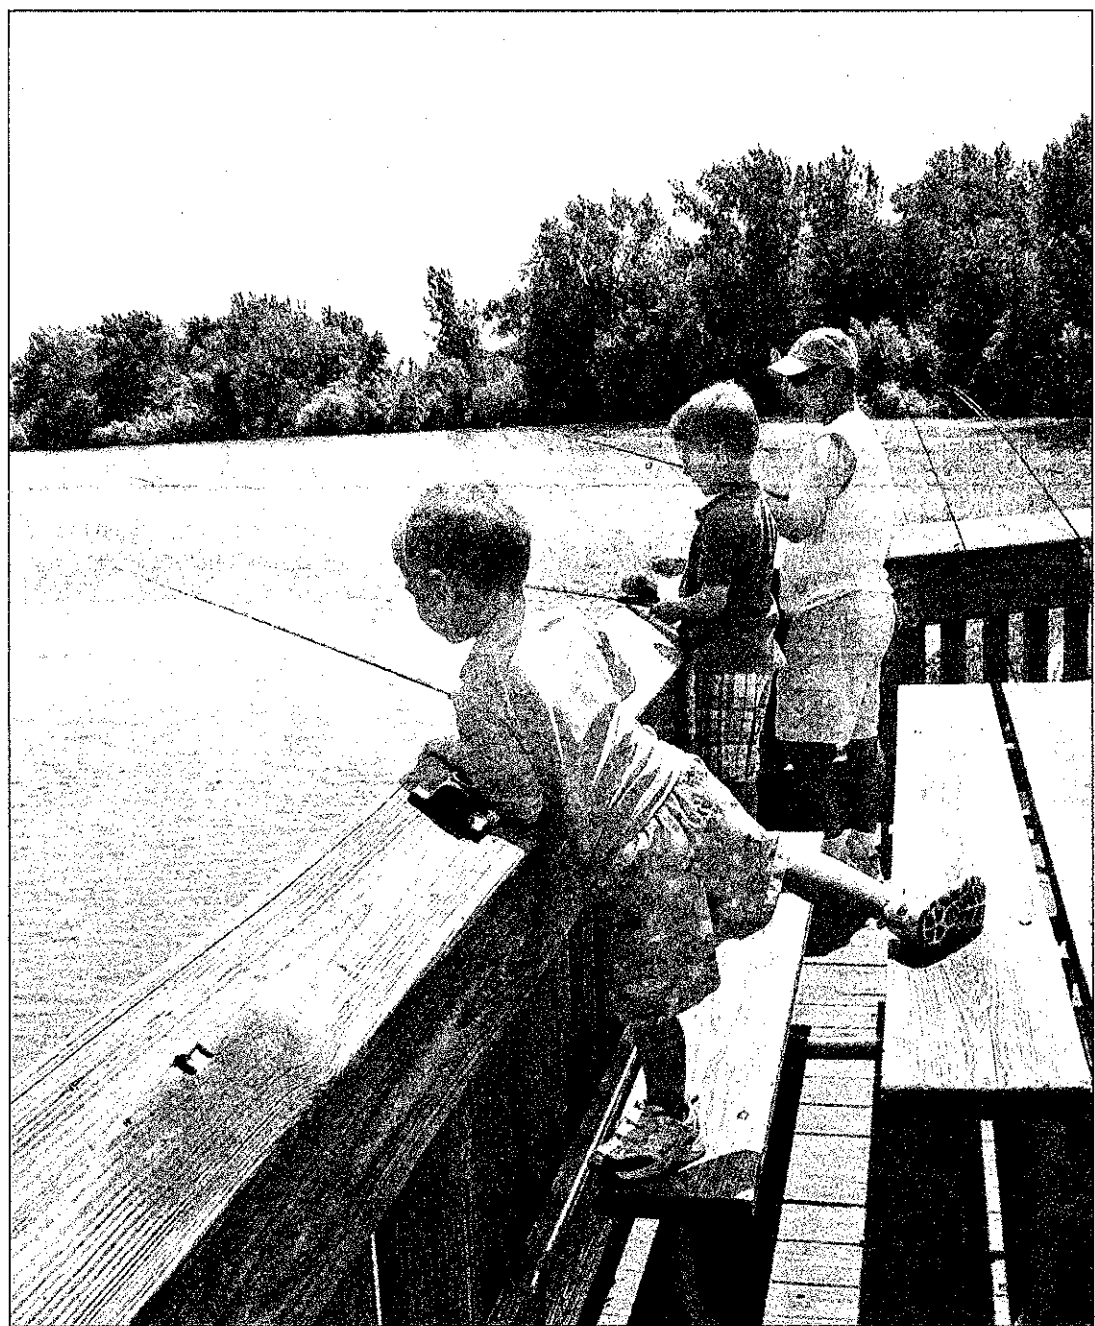

See related story.

Bopp was terminated Monday, June 22, and the vacancy posted on the school website. Tom Harwood, assistant superintendent for human resources and labor relations, said the decision was made because of the "concern regarding the allegations that have been brought forth against him."

"The safety and security of our students is our utmost concern," said Rebecca Fannon, community relations coordinator, adding the district encourages anyone with something to report to call local police or the superintendent's office.

In a letter to the district's hockey parents, Superintendent

Budget balanced with 1 mill added

By Brad Lindberg
Staff Writer

A 1-mill property tax increase took the sizzle off meaty cuts to next year's budget in Grosse Pointe Shores.

The increase caused two of the seven-seat council's new members to vote against the budget. A resident took the podium to propose recalling the other five who did.

Even without the tax increase, the $6,383,675 fiscal year 2009-2010 budget, starting July 1, would balance due to cuts approaching $300,000, or 5 percent.

The extra mill raises the total tax rate nearly 7 percent to 15.89 mills. It will generate an additional $330,894 to be used for road repairs and to replenish fund equity, also called the rainy day fund.

The fund has been depleted for use as a transition budget ◆ UNITARIAN CHURCH GETS OK: The City of Grosse Pointe City Council approved an exception to the zoning law for the Grosse Pointe Unitarian Church. The church's pastor explained the church's need for expansion and the desire to purchase the lot next to the church at 17440 Jefferson Avenue for expansion.

The zoning ordinance states there may be no new or expanded use of property by institutions such as schools or churches below Kercheval Avenue.

◆ WILD DRIVER: A 17-year-old City of Grosse Pointe resident climaxed a speed chase by getting traffic violation tickets from three Pointes and wrecking his automobile.

The chase began at Mack and Berkshire in Grosse Pointe Park when officers spotted the speeding driver. The officers gave chase and it ended when the driver lost control of his vehicle as he approached Dean Lane, crashing into a telephone pole. The driver received a citation from Park officers for reckless driving. City officers for reckless driving and Farms officers for not having the vehicle under control, causing an accident.

◆ RESTAURANT ROBBED: A gunman held up the White Tower on E. Jefferson during the early morning hours and escaped after locking the lone waitress in a back room.

The waitress told police she was alone in the restaurant when a man walked in about 4 a.m. and ordered a cup of hot chocolate and a piece of pie. As she returned with the pie, the man pulled out an automatic pistol and asked for the money in the cash register. She gave him the money and he locked her in a back room. Another customer walked in as the robber was leaving.

Indy cars coming to Hill

Street fair closes roads
on Sept. 2

By Brad Lindberg
Staff Writer

Indy car pit stops will highlight this summer's Racing For Kids street fair on the Hill.

Kercheval will be closed between Hall Place and MacMillan during the free fair, noon to 3 p.m. Wednesday, Sept. 2.

The two-part event includes a fundraiser and auction from 6 to 9 p.m. at Northern Trust. Tickets cost $75. Money raised will be donated to local hospitals by Racing For Kids, a charity founded 20 years ago to help hospitalized children.

"Our mission is to use the exciting world of racing to focus the public's attention on the health care needs of children," said J. Patrick Wright, executive director with offices on the Hill.

The charity's national spokesman, Robbie Buhl, a Farms native who formerly drove Indy cars and now co-owns a team in the Indy Racing League, will be on hand.

Buhl will bring at least one Indy car. He and his drivers will pose for pictures, sign autographs, help youngsters in an out of the race car and explain what it's like to drive 230 mph.

This will be Racing For Kids third annual celebration on the Hill. Drivers who attended prior years include Sarah Fisher, 2004 Indianapolis 500 winner Buddy Rice and Milka Duno.

During the previous two years, the Hill auction raised nearly $90,000, according to Tom Buhl, co-chair of the steering committee, Hill businessman and Robbie's brother.

The event was organized a few years ago in conjunction with the Detroit Grand Prix on Belle Isle. The grand prix is gone. But the street fair is com-

Racing For Kids charity has raised more than $5 million for children's health care since being founded in 1989, according to executive director J. Patrick Wright.

The charity is headquartered on the Hill in Grosse Pointe Farms. National spokesman, Robbie Buhl, is a Farms native.

An auction associated with the charity's street fair on the Hill has generated nearly $90,000 over two years.

"We were able to make substantial contributions to three area hospitals: Henry Ford Cottage Hospital, William Beaumont Grosse Pointe and Children's Hospital of Michigan," Wright said.

If hospitals don't identify a particular need for how donations are to be used, the charity buys playroom equipment.

"Most hospitals don't have a line item in their operating budgets for playrooms," Wright said. "We see that as another part of child recovery therapy."

In addition, celebrity race car drivers visit hospitalized children in cities where races are held in the United States, Canada, and in Mexico, Australia and Japan.

"In 20 years, we have visited over 20,000 sick kids in 450 hospitals," Wright said. "Doctors who care for these children tell us their patients get better faster because the racers take time to visit them. It reminds them of what's going on in the outside world and takes their minds off of often very difficult hospital stays."

ing back bigger than before.

"We want to bring an Indy car transporter," Wright said.

"They're impressive, a racing shop on wheels. Kids love to tour those and see how they work. In order to do that, we need more space."

Daytime activities are being staged by the Hill Association.

"It was so successful the last two years, we're looking forward to the event this year," said Mary Wells, association president.

"It's a community event,"

Tom Buhl said. "The idea is to promote activity on the Hill, create foot traffic and make it a nice place to be for everybody."

Attractions are to include exotic, classic and high-performance cars lining Kercheval. There will be live music, face painting, clowns, play activities and more.

The street closure is intended to provide more space for displays and activities, yet increase pedestrian safety.

"The cars they are bringing are unbelievably exotic and beautiful," said Dan Jensen, Farms public safety director and member of the event's steering committee. "It does create a lot of (people) crossing the street. I'm more than happy to close the street."

Farms Councilwoman Therese Joseph called the fair and auction a "fun family event and a worthy cause. Residents suggested they close the street."

"We've planned to make it not only a great event, but a safe event," Tom Buhl said.

"Last year was fun," said Dan LaLonde, Hill merchant and steering committee member. "It went really well and raised a lot of money for charity."

Fireworks

The ooohs and the ahhhhs are just days away, as Grosse Pointe Woods prepares for its free annual fireworks display Sunday, June 28. The event begins at 8 p.m. on the playing field at Parcels Middle School at the corner of Mack and Vernier with music from the Sun Messengers. Rain date is Monday, June 29. No alcohol, dogs, fireworks or bikes are allowed. Refreshments will be available to purchase. The fireworks begin after dark, about 10 p.m.

Recreation fees among increases for residents

By Brad Lindberg
Staff Writer

If municipal recreation programs were valued in dollars and cents, they wouldn't make sense.

In the City of Grosse Pointe, recreation programs don't turn a profit. Even with some registration fees going up 50 percent.

"If anything, fees are collected to hopefully offset costs the city endures," said Christopher Hardenbrook, director of parks and recreation.

Platform tennis doesn't add up, despite seasonal memberships now costing $75, a 50 percent increase from $50. The same hike takes the non-resident rate to $125.

"The $2,750 we'll get from platform tennis fees this year does not pay the costs," said Peter Dame, city manager.

Non-City residents are eligible for platform tennis because the courts are located at Elworthy Field, owned by the Grosse Pointe Public School System and therefore open to anyone in the district.

"Each year we review our fee structure for all departments," said Julie Arthurs, city clerk. "Adjustments will ensure that revenues are sufficient to cover our operating costs."

Changes announced recently apply to the parks department and city clerk services.

"For parks and recreation, there will be increases in swimming and diving lessons, platform tennis membership, tennis lessons and other fees," Arthurs said.

"Swimming in the Grosse Pointes is like football in Texas. It's big," Hardenbrook said.

"The more quality programming we have to get kids in the pool, the better."

Arthurs said, "In city clerks, we are proposing the amount for a certified copy of a birth or death certificate, and the cost of additional copies to be increased in line with the state and county, and to cover certificate paper and reproduction costs. But, we are eliminating the same day service fee."

Most municipal fees are unchanged.

"Eighty to 90 percent of the fees are staying the same," said Councilman John Stempfle.

Changes are:

Parks and recreation

◆ Aquatic aerobics, adult aquatic lessons, diving lessons and tennis lessons, $40, up $10.

◆ Platform tennis seasonal membership: $75 from $50. (Non residents: $125 from $100).

◆ Bag of ice: $1.75 from $1.50.

City clerk

◆ Birth and death records, $17, up $7. (Additional copies, $5, up $2.)

Arrest made in DiMaggio jewelry heist

By Kathy Ryan
Staff Writer

A 52-year-old Roseville man is being held in the Wayne County Jail following his arraignment on charges he stole money and diamonds from DiMaggio Jewelers in Grosse Pointe Woods.

Michael Charles Tosioian was taken into custody without incident Monday, June 15 at his house. He has been charged with three counts of larceny and one count of concealing stolen property. He is being held in lieu of a $50,000 cash bond.

Grosse Pointe Woods Public Safety officers were notified in late May by the owner of DiMaggio's that he suspected money and jewelry were missing, and an in-house review of security camera tapes showed the suspect taking money and loose diamonds from the safe in the store's office on three separate occasions, May 26, June 3 and June 6.

According to police reports, Tosioian was known by the store owner and it was not unusual for him to be in the office. Police also said Tosioian has a criminal record, but would not release details.

Police obtained a warrant to search his house and car, and said additional evidence was found in Tosioian's car.

A preliminary examination was scheduled for Wednesday, June 24 in Grosse Pointe Woods Municipal Court. The larceny charges Tosioian faces are felonies, each carrying a four-year prison term and/or a $5,000 fine. The count of concealing stolen property is a 10-year felony, with a fine of $15,000 or three times the value of the stolen property.

A pursuit of freedom

By Ann L. Fouty
Features Editor

Citizenship is a goal which John Kozak's grandparents and parents highly prized.

"Citizenship is taken for granted by a lot of people," said Kozak, who lives in Grosse Pointe Farms with his wife, Michelle.

At the age of 67, Kozak, born in Czechoslovakia, vividly remembers what his family endured during World War II and the domination of the Nazis and the Communists. Foremost in his memory is how he, his mother and teenage sister escaped from Communist held Czechoslovakia. The trio walked, waded through cold mountain streams and narrowly escaped being cornered by tracking dogs before they concluded a 24-hour journey.

Kozak's first-hand understanding of freedom begins as he explains how at 11 p.m. his father, Anthony, would pull the radio from between the walls of their home in Prague and listen to the BBC news.

Living in fear was not the life Anthony, nor his wife, Rose, envisioned for their children, Kozak said. Having experienced freedom, Rose urged her husband to emigrate to the United States to create a better life. It would take nearly a decade for the family to accomplish that goal. It would entail the family being separated, deceit, courage, running and hiding.

The beginning

A tintype of St. Michael hangs by the kitchen sink in the Kozak's house. The frame is scratched. But is it the one item Kozak's mother brought out of Czechoslovakia when they escaped in October 1949.

Kozak's story begins when his mother was sent to the old country from Ohio to learn European ways. Her parents were concerned she was straying from the "old country's" ways.

There, Rose met Anthony Kozak. They married and had two children when World War II was raging — and they were trapped in Czechoslovakia.

To keep the family healthy, which included Anthony's elderly parents, Rose took great risks traveling via train north from Prague to friendly farmers. She exchanged hand-knitted sweaters for food. The food had to be well hidden on the return trip or it would be confiscated and she would be arrested.

During a family outing in 1945, Kozak saw his chance of grabbing the flag during a game of capture the flag. His sister, Zdenka, ran toward him, her knee colliding with his hip. He fell and chided his sister for her interference with his chance at winning the game until he saw the look on her face. He glanced down to see his leg was broken.

Anthony wrapped his son in a coat and the family walked a mile and half to the bus stop. The bus driver dropped them at a taxi cab stand for a ride to the hospital.

At the hospital, Kozak was put into a cast from his chest to the tip of his right toes. He bears the scars from the cast today and walks with a slight bend forward.

In less than a week, Kozak had contracted scarlet fever due to the hospital's unsanitary conditions. He was transferred to a sanatorium for contagious diseases. Appropriate medicine was unavailable at the time. With the help of his uncle, an American doctor, and the U.S. Army, Kozak received beeswax penicillin every four hours for eight weeks, he said.

Meanwhile, the Communists wanted Anthony to become a party member. It was not an action either Rose or Anthony would choose.

"They steal your soul," Kozak said his father told him.

While Kozak was recuperating, the Communists trumped up charges against Anthony and would have arrested him when he returned from a business trip. Anthony got a job in Switzerland, where he was the assistant editor of Transport Magazine, a periodical of freight costs.

His mother, he said, was a great believer in fresh air and sunshine as a remedy for nearly everything. As her son regained his strength, she proposed they go northeast, near the German border, for a hiking holiday.

It wasn't an easy project to pull together.

Many trips to various government offices were made, including the Minister of Interior, aka Secret Police. Rose promised when Anthony returned he would discuss becoming a card-carrying member of the Communist party. With that promise, Rose was issued travel papers.

Staying in the same hotel as the Kozaks was a contingent of soldiers, one of whom took a liking to Zdenka. During a single walk, the soldier showed her fire breaks, watch towers and explained border guard assignments. This proved helpful the following day when the Kozaks left the hotel at 5 a.m. Oct. 10, 1949, with a few rations. Kozak only knew that Oct. 10, 1949, they were going to look for deer.

"We were looking for deer because I was interested in deer," he said. "I had never seen one."

They found the fire break pointed out by the soldier the previous day, made a dash down the hill and slipped into a posted restricted area. There would have been no excuse if the three had been caught.

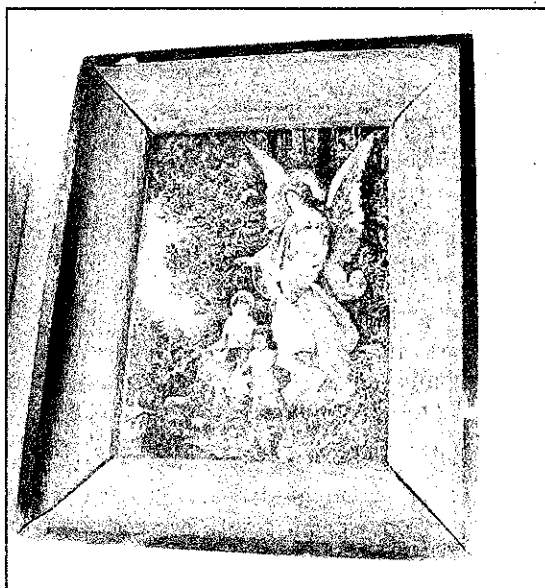

"We crossed streams and rivers, 20 to 30 feet wide, no more than 2 feet deep," he said.

Kozak realized they weren't going to see any deer.

"My mother told me, 'We're going to find your father and to a country with freedom,'" he said. They followed a river until darkness fell.

After a few hours of sleep, voices and a barking dog awakened them. Fearing capture and return to Czechoslovakia, Kozak's mother reassured her children of her devotion, turned from them, clutched the St. Michael picture and prayed.

See KOZAK, page 10A

The tintype of St. Michael hangs in the Kozak kitchen. It is the picture Kozak's mother held as she prayed when Communist tracking dogs were near as the Kozaks escaped from Czechoslovakia. Above right, John Kozak holds a wooden carving done by his father.

All eyes on cars

A 1964 Rolls Royce Silver Cloud III owned by Gail Sidlek of Grosse Pointe Farms was part of last weekend's 22nd Annual Eyes on Design Car show at the Edsel & Eleanor Ford House in Grosse Pointe Shores. Eyes on Design is a fundraising event for the Detroit Institute of Ophthalmology's programs which address the needs of the blind and visually impaired. Many cars had elegant hood ornaments, such as a swan on a 1948 Packard Station Sedan owned by Ed Meurer Jr. The judging in one category is done by young blind people using touch alone. They wear white gloves and, with automotive designers as guides, spend hours comparing the curves of the fenders, the size of the wheels, the slant of the windshields and the proportions of each car in the pre-chosen category. Blind judging by touch is a tradition that goes back to almost the beginning of the Eyes on Design car show. It serves as a visual reminder that the show has a purpose greater than showing cars.

Island landscaping to be clipped

By Brad Lindberg
Staff Writer

Bette Kettelhut didn't go out on a limb when complaining to her city council about overgrown landscaping on Mack Avenue traffic islands. Plantings on the median block her view of traffic when driving through the intersection at Moran. She and her husband frequent the route from their Grosse Pointe Farms home, especially when attending Sunday church services.

"Can it be obliterated?" she said of the bushes and plants. "They don't look good."

Plants at Moran hide a county traffic control box, according to Matt Tepper, assistant city manager.

"The control box is the actual visual obstruction," Tepper said. "We're not expanding upon the obstruction. I've asked the county to relocate it."

Kettelhut's complaint prompted Farms officials to review island landscaping throughout the city.

"Every intersection should be looked at," said Councilman Joseph Leonard.

He said county rules require such landscaping to be no higher than 30 inches above the roadway.

Kettelhut's allies include City Manager Shane Reeside.

"We'll evaluate and cut back where necessary so it meets county standards," Reeside said. "While doing that, we'll make rounds through all traffic islands on Mack and Lakeshore to make sure there's no obstructions and they meet sight line requirements for vehicular traffic."

Questions about overgrowth have come up before.

"It's been an issue from time to time as some ornamental plantings have grown," Reeside said. "Periodically, we go back and trim the plants or, in some cases, remove them and introduce plants that are lower-growing."

Sometimes even bushes that meet county height limits are too tall for certain locations.

"It can still be an obstruction depending how close it is to the intersection," Reeside said. "We'll make sure setbacks are there and landscaping is cut down."

Moor space in harbor

By Brad Lindberg
Staff Writer

Boat owners waiting for small wells at Pier Park can test the waters by renting empty slips designed for larger craft.

The offer is available to Grosse Pointe Farms residents on waiting lists for wells designated for boats 25, 23 and 20 feet long.

Farms officials hope to fill 17 vacant slips built to moor 30-foot boats.

"This is another attempt to try to increase our revenue from the harbor," said Shane Reeside, city manager. "For a one-year period, individuals on waiting lists for smaller wells (can rent) an open 30-foot well where there are no individuals on the waiting list."

Terms are for the balance of the boating season and non-renewable.

"(Boaters) would be charged according to the well on which they are on a waiting list," Reeside said.

Renters will pay the same $950 fee they'd face for the smaller wells.

"It would be better to get $950 for a 30-foot well versus not renting the well at all," according to a proposal from Dick Huhn, director of parks and recreation.

"This is the first year this has been an issue," he said.

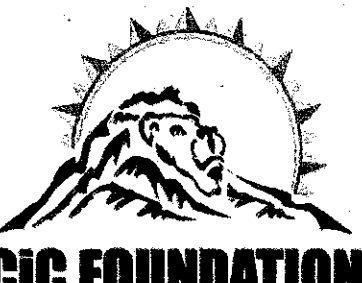

About 20 people are on a waiting list for 25-foot wells, he said.

Reeside doesn't expect to fill all of the 30-foot wells.

"It will just be a way of augmenting income," he said.

"We have no waiting lists of boats in the harbor."

BUDGET: Council adds a mill

during the former village's three-month reconfiguration as a city.

"We decided to dedicate $200,000 (of the additional tax proceeds) for roads," said Councilman Dr. Brian Hunt, head of the finance committee. "Then we decided we need a fund balance, a prudent thing."

He said the budget was balanced despite a 4.9 percent reduction in revenues.

"We can lower your taxes," Hunt told a contentious audience of about 150 attending the June 16 council session in a conference room of the Edsel & Eleanor Ford House, "but the services and things you've come to expect in Grosse Pointe Shores will cease to exist. We have to decide (to) maintain Grosse Pointe Shores as one of the finest places to live, or lower the standards."

Prior to the vote, Dr. Robert E. Lee, a Shores resident and unsuccessful candidate for council in 1999, warned of consequences to supporters of a tax increase.

"Higher taxes equals (a) mayoral and council recall,"

Lee said.

Hunt said the majority of opportunities to cut costs will come in next year's budget.

"That's when contracts go," he said. "The (public works) and police officers understand that they have to give back. They want to keep their jobs. We're willing to work with them and they're willing to work with us."

"Efforts to rein in expenses are inadequate," Lee said. "If we don't hold the line, what happens next year as home values, tax revenues and state revenue sharing returns plummet?"

John Rickel, a Shores resident who, with Lee, was part of the four-candidate Clean Slate Coalition in the 1999 attempt for office, said, "Residents need a reduction in the millage in response to the current economic reality."

The tax increase means 60 percent of Shores homeowners in the coming year will pay higher taxes, while 40 percent will pay the same as now or lower, according to Councilman Fred Minturn, alder of the finance committee.

"The average taxpayer in (the Shores) will pay about $60 more in property taxes for the year," Minturn said. "We will continue to explore all areas of spending, including overtime restrictions, wage freezes, hiring freezes and bidding out all our outside services to find the best pricing in this difficult market."

Councilmen Ted Kedzierski and Dan Schulte voted against the budget.

Kedzierski, a member of the finance committee, said he wants to examine the budget "line-by-line, department-by-department" to reduce spending.

He also called for a wage freeze, pension freeze, possible wage cuts and eliminating overtime without prior approval from the city manager, except for emergency snow plowing and public safety needs.

"Legacy costs are a big concern in this budget," Kedzierski said. "Collectively, the (city) contribution to legacy costs will be almost $900,000 this year. This is almost 15 percent of the budget."

He said post-retirement health care costs were estimated at a finance committee meeting to be $6 million.

"We have $1 1/2 million in the bank," Kedzierski said. "That means its underfunded by $4 million."

City Manager Brian Vick said he might begin renegotiations of labor contracts in the first two months of the new budget.

Road repairs are slated for Lochmoor, Moorland and Crestwood.

Easy Riders

The red-shirted Easy Riders Bicycle Club meets Tuesday and Wednesday mornings at Ghesquire Park in Grosse Pointe Woods, Thursday evenings and for weekend road trips. Rides are planned at Stoney Creek, Metro Beach and the Macomb Orchard Trail. Frank Markey, 81, of Grosse Pointe Woods, joined the group seven years ago after retiring from the Wayne County Circuit Court. "My kids gave me a bike," he said with a laugh, "and now I'm out here at least once a week. It's great exercise and a very friendly group." A two-hour, 20 mile ride is the norm, but don't let that scare you, said Ron Konopka, publicity director for the club. "Speed is not the most important priority," he added. "The emphasis with this group is to enjoy each others company plus reap the additional benefit of moderate summer exercise with a small group." Chrysler's bailout will backfire

The restructuring of Chrysler is likely to fail because it does not address two of the company's shortcomings. First, Chrysler LLC has a surplus of labor and a shortage of customers. Second, Chrysler will need new investment. The Obama administration's bailout terms are vague as to how the company will develop marketable cars, and border on vicious in the treatment of investors, but bend over backward to protect the interests of la-

One way companies reassure lenders they will be repaid is to offer them what is called a secured claim — the lender will have title to certain company property in the event the company is unable to pay its debts. This, a floor on what lenders might lose if the company fails.

bor — which gets the Chrysler hierarchy of needs in reverse. That the deal is generous to organized labor is clear. The Economist estimates that the UAW will receive 43 cents on the dollar from Chrysler for its $11 billion stake in the company, in the form of a majority of the company's stock. Shikha Dalmia, a senior analyst at the Reason Foundation, estimates that when federal guarantees for pensions and health care are added in, the UAW and its members could receive 60 cents or more for their claims against the automaker. This would make sense if worker retention were a problem. But it isn't; if anything Chrysler has too many assembly workers producing too many cars that it can't sell, which is why the company is shutting down its assembly lines for the duration of bankruptcy proceedings. Holders of the company's bonds, however, are expected to receive somewhere around 30 cents for every dollar that Chrysler owes them. To see why this is a problem, one must be ready to set aside the sympathies one might have for workers over bankers — or at least recognize even more workers will lose their jobs if this plan doesn't work.

The basic fact is Chrysler will need investors to finance the development of a new line of vehicles, upgrade facilities and buy materials. But the new Chrysler will be a risky investment — lenders will still be turning money over to a company that is on its second bailout. One way companies reassure lenders they will be repaid is to offer them what is called a secured claim — the lender will have title to certain company property in the event the company is unable to pay its debts. This, a floor on what lenders might lose if the company fails.

In the case of Chrysler, the bondholders had secured claims that took precedence over those of the UAW and its members. Bankruptcy courts are expected to respect secured claims, but in this case lenders with secured claims are being forced to take a back seat to the UAW.

The message for lenders is: Don't bother asking for security from Chrysler; it won't do you any good. This will make it more difficult for Chrysler to get large loans at low interest rates.

All this is a prelude to joining Chrysler with Fiat, a company with little proven ability to sell cars in the United States. Chrysler has already frustrated the designs of Daimler Motors, a company that as Mercedes has had success selling and building cars here. Just four years ago, GM paid $2 billion to break away from buying Fiat.

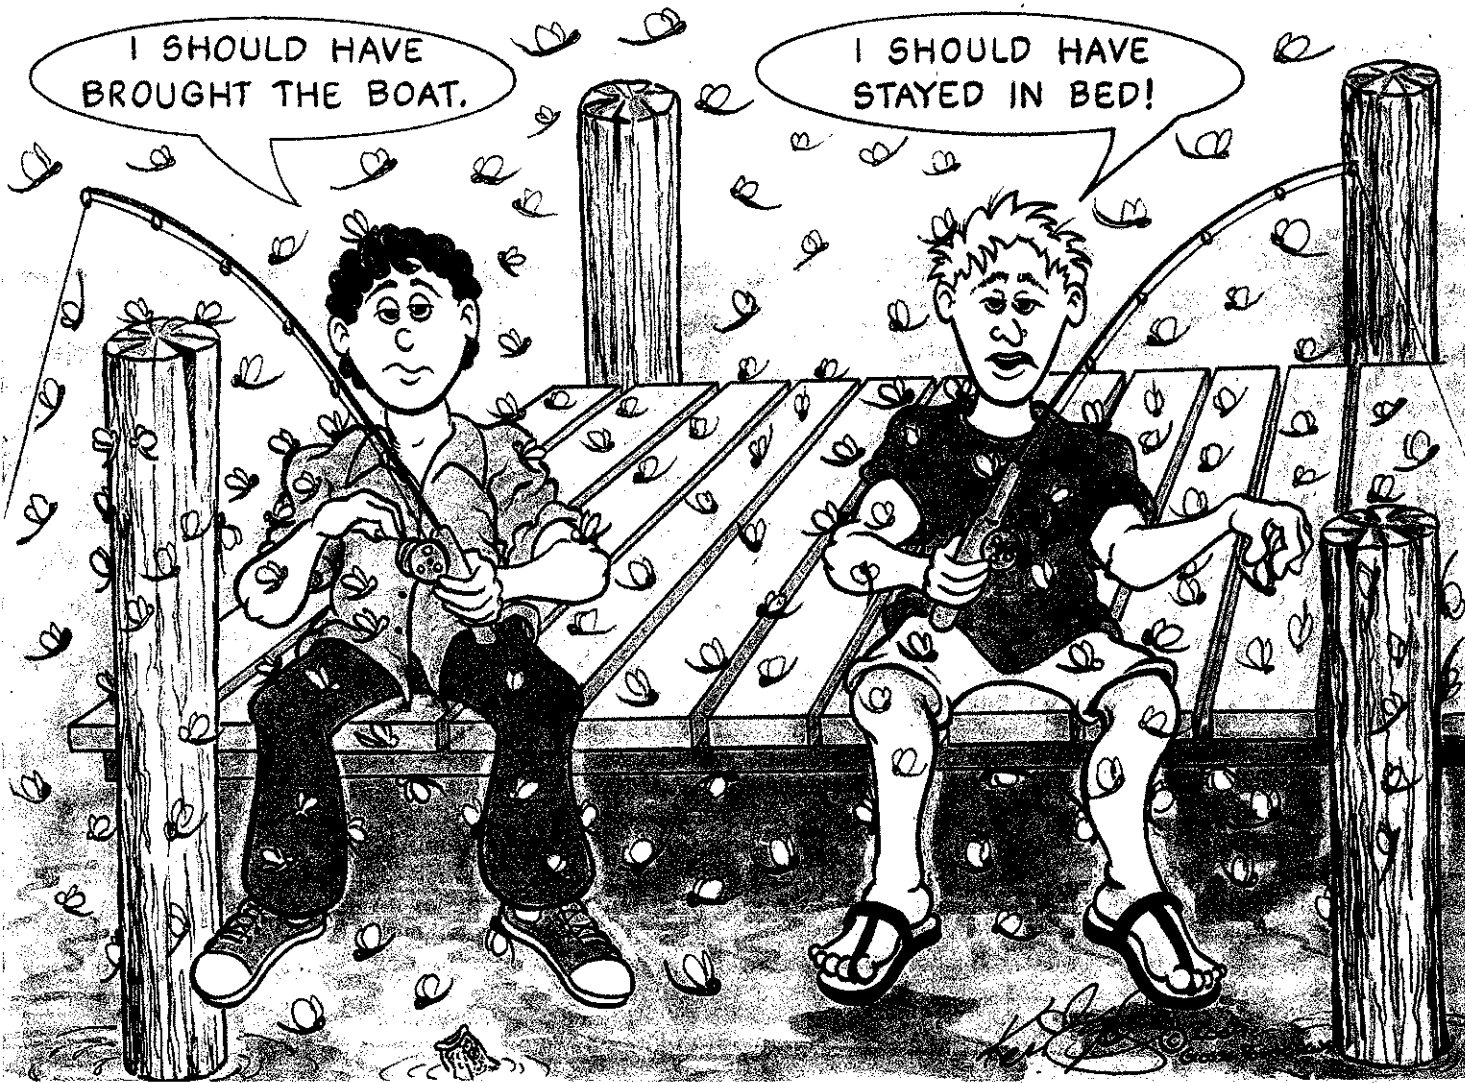

Advocates of the new plan have yet to identify what might have changed since then to make Fiat a good partner for Chrysler now.

Chrysler also missed an opportunity to use bankruptcy to rationalize its distribution system, instead terminating less than a quarter of its dealerships.

Hence the irony: Chrysler bondholders still may come out of the deal better than autoworkers who might end up holding worthless stock in a company searching for another bailout, in large part because the administration went out of its way to protect the UAW and shortchange investors.

Paul Kersey is director of labor policy at the Mackinac Center for Public Policy, a research and educational institute headquartered in Midland.

Emergency transport

To the Editor:

Each month, volunteer pilots, from Angel Flight Mid-Atlantic, fly patients needing specialized medical care, including chemotherapy and dialysis, to hospitals throughout Michigan.

Many of these patients are from rural areas and would otherwise be hard-pressed to receive the care they need.

These flights are part of general aviation, which includes all flying except the scheduled airlines and the military.

Right now GA is being imperiled by misguided plans in Washington, D.C. If these proposals are enacted, the outlook could be grim for patients who use Angel Flight Mid-Atlantic, as well as for millions of other people throughout the country who depend on GA for services and jobs.

Among the proposals are new costs and regulations. Since Angel Flight Mid-Atlantic pilots already donate their time and planes and pay for their own fuel, these increased costs could ground them. The impact on patients who live in rural Michigan could be devastating, because they would have to drive long distances to receive care.

The new charges and regulations would involve not only medical volunteer organizations.

With an estimated 65 percent of general aviation flights conducted for public service and business, many industries and services would be affected, including agriculture, emergency medical evacuation, law enforcement, aerial fire-fighting, package delivery and the Civil Air Patrol.

Millions of jobs depend on GA, which pumps more than $150 billion into the U.S. economy. Two members of Congress deem GA so essential they formed a caucus to educate their peers on its value to the American economy and transportation system.

Recently, the Aircraft Owners and Pilots Association, the world's largest pilot organization with more than 415,000 members, launched General Aviation Serves America. The goal of this national grassroots campaign is to educate policymakers, opinion leaders and the public about the vital role GA plays in our local communities and the nation's economy.

Actors Harrison Ford and Morgan Freeman, both avid pilots, are volunteering their services in support of the campaign. To learn more about the program, visit gaservesamerica.com.

The importance of GA and its impact on the citizens of Michigan cannot be overstated. For more than 80 years, general aviation has played a significant role in the lives of millions of Americans across the country.

I hope you will join me in our efforts to ensure it's around for another 80 years, and well beyond.

Cut to spend on health care

Where does Newt Gingrich go to get his apology? He proposed slowing the rate of growth of Medicare and Medicaid in the mid-1990s and was clobbered by Democrats and the press for waging war on the elderly and the indigent.

Now, almost every other day, President Barack Obama finds another hundred billion dollars to cut out of Medicare and Medicaid. He just announced the discovery of another $313 billion in savings over 10 years, on top of $300 billion he had already proposed.

Soon enough, he will make Gingrich — who infamously sought $450 billion in savings over seven years in 1995 — look like an extravagantly generous steward of the nation's health programs.

No liberal outcry greeted

Obama's proposed budgetary savagery because everyone knows it's in the cause of more government spending.

Obama must embrace a simulacrum of spending discipline to have any hope of passing a health care program that will cost at least $1.2 trillion over the next 10 years. The game is simple: Pretend to cut so you can spend.

Medicare and Medicaid spending has steadily outpaced inflation through the decades, and accounts for 23 percent of the federal budget. Medicare's unfunded liability is an astonishing $89 trillion.

As Obama put it in his speech to the American Medical Association, there's a risk the programs will "swamp our federal and state budgets, and impose a vicious choice of either unprecedented tax hikes, overwhelming deficits or drastic cuts in our federal and state budgets." Sounds alarming. So why turn around and immediately spend the $600 billion in savings? Shouldn't it be used to shore up the rickety finances of these already-existing health programs rather than to create a dubiously financed, entirely new health program?

Obama's Medicare and Medicaid savings will be sustainable over time only by begging doctors and hospitals. Compared with the private system, Medicare pays only 81 cents on the dollar for health expenses; Medicaid pays only 56 cents on the dollar. Obama relies on the tried-and-true practice of cutting the payments more.

This means there will be fewer doctors willing to accept Medicare and Medicaid patients, and more cost-shifting to the private system to make up for deficient government payments.

When Obama himself says the federal deficit is "unsustainable," and when the chairman of the Federal Reserve warns spending cuts or tax increases are necessary "to stabilize the fiscal situation," it's obviously not the time for a new entitlement program and another $1.2 trillion in government expenditure.

If Obama thinks he can responsibly squeeze a couple of hundred billion out of Medicare and Medicaid, fine, he should do it and pocket the savings to improve the long-run fiscal picture. And we can adopt modest reforms to make it easier for people to get and keep health insurance, reforms with zero risk of tipping the country further toward fiscal ruin.

Obama will then have more time and energy to devote to repairing the government's balance sheet. Newt Gingrich ought to have some ideas how to do it.

GUEST OPINION By Bill Kalmar

It's all going downhill now

There are a number of other items, things and events that have also reached their longevity. Did you see where iconic retailer Eddie Bauer has declared bankruptcy? It doesn't appear all the stores will close but, in my opinion, it manifests another miscue on the part of management.

Since 1920, Eddie Bauer has been a purveyor of sporting goods, outdoor apparel and gear. It was the first company to use quilted goose down to insulate a garment. Many of us I'm sure have seen or even used a down sleeping bag. And I have a Gortex down-filled parka from Eddie Bauer that is more than 20 years old and still in great shape.

In its heyday, Eddie Bauer even had a Ford sport utility vehicle with its name emblazoned on it. Then Eddie Bauer management decided it was time for a change and from

I SAY By Kathy Ryan

Schools are judged during conflicts

Sadly, Grosse Pointe has been all over the news this week. The Grosse Pointe South hockey coach, Robert Bopp, was arrested and charged with criminal sexual conduct and several other charges.

Teaching and coaching are difficult jobs. They never please all the parents involved. Complaints are common if little Johnny's myriad talents aren't recognized and nourished by the teacher, and any coach will tell you that there is no person more difficult to deal with than one who firmly believes their child is far more talented than he or she actually is. Letters and complaints to principals and department heads are common, some justified, some not. But the professionals know how to work with these parents, and they can effectively move the child through the school year or the season with as little damage as possible to all the egos involved.

But when a school official receives a letter describing a situation that is making a family uncomfortable, when serious concerns are expressed, I would like to think that a school official would act very quickly to ascertain if these are the words of a parent or child whose feelings have been hurt or a legitimate complaint that needs to be taken seriously. Let's be honest, parents and children are not always truthful. They know what to say and how to say it with words and innuendo that if they are investigated promptly, produce smoke but no fire. Those parents should be ashamed of themselves.

But a competent, professional school administrator should be able to discern the difference. When a situation is brought to their attention, I would like to think the school official would pick up the phone, call the employee involved and ask them to drop by their office later that day. But by the time that same school official receives a second, third or more complaints, I would like to believe they would immediately pick up the phone and say, "MY OFFICE. RIGHT NOW. And the principal and the director of human resources will be joining us."

But we're to believe, or so the district is telling us, that the higher-ups in the school district knew nothing of these complaints because no one ever told them, and there were no letters of complaint in Bopp's personnel file. And the official reason given is there were at least four athletic directors during the time he was coaching. What? Is the school district going to tell parents, with a straight face I might add, that the only person in the district who knew if there were allegations was the athletic director du jour?

We're to believe that the school principal and personnel officials did not know if there were past issues? Were we all born yesterday?

So, in other words, it was kept a secret.

And isn't that exactly what we tell our children NOT to do, not to keep things like this a secret. Now those same school officials, the ones that somehow allegedly never knew anything about this or, worse, kept these allegations secret for years, are expecting young people to now come forward and tell them details if something happened.

Are they serious?

Renee Beyerlein, president of the teachers union, was interviewed on WJBK Fox 2 Detroit the other night, saying the whole thing was "yucky." Yucky? Yucky? It's not yucky, it's more like felony charges, and where I come from a felony is vicious, heinous and inexcusable.

Where is her outrage?

"Yucky" is the most disgust she could muster? She needs to demand that if any school personnel were involved in even the smallest way of attempting to cover this up, they need to be fired. And she shouldn't care if they are a union employee.

But on the upside, the district is now looking for a new hockey coach. Wooooooo... let's not let the ice begin to melt under our feet, we need to keep moving forward and if we just go ahead no one will remember this yucky affair and life will once again be good.

Bopp was arraigned over the weekend. On Monday, the ad was posted. School officials didn't have the decency to allow some period of contemplation, to review the standards they might want to use in hiring teachers and coaches? Give the situation a bit of a chance to settle? Nah, not us. We have to win!

We all know that everyone is innocent until proven guilty, and he'll get his days in court. He shouldn't be tried in the press, but the Grosse Pointe school district, for which we pay our taxes to support, is being judged, and rightly so.

And so far, it's guilty.

How the area got its name

The following article is from the archives of the Grosse Pointe Historical Society, circa 1930. For more information, visit gphistorsociety.org.

The origin of the name Grosse Pointe seems to be lost, but is the French word, meaning Big Point.

It was given this name as a means to designate its location. We are obliged to assume the Indians called it Big Point as no other name appears to have been given to it by them.

Grosse Pointe was first known by the early French settlers and this name later was applied to all territory contiguous to it. It has always been a settlement apart from Detroit.

Lake St. Clair was named Aug. 12, 1679, by Father Hennepin, a missionary with La Salle and his party on the first vessel (the Griffon) to sail the great lakes. As it was St. Clairs' day, Hennepin proposed the name of the founder of his order be given to this lake.

The Huron Indians named it Otsiketa signifying sugar or salt, referring to the Salt Springs near the Clinton River, which were well-known in the early days of the country.

This little lake also had various names; one was Lac Chandiere, from its round shape. On the Dutch maps it is called Kandekio, on some of the French maps; Ganatchio.

Windmill Point was originally known as Presqu'ile, the name given by the French and pronounced "pres'kil," meaning peninsula.

It is situated at the entrance of the Detroit River and east of the original mouth of Fox Creek where the United States lighthouse and Marine Hospital stood. In the early 18th century, a windmill was built on a high point of land just east of the peninsula. From then on Presqu'ile became known as Windmill Pointe, by which it I known today.

The present name, Gaukler Pointe, was given by Jacob Gaukler about 1876. It was originally called Pointe a Guinoleit by the French, also, Tremble' Pointe and later Milk River Pointe by the English.

It is situated on Lake St. Clair, just south of the entrance of Milk River in Erin Township, Macomb County, and where the home of Edsel Ford is now located.

The early French settler named the Milk River Rivera a Guinoleit, pronounced in English as River Cwinolay. The Milk River rises in the Township of Grosse Pointe, County of Wayne, traverses in a northeasterly direction and empties into Lake St. Clair at the southeast corner of Erin Township.

The Milk River today. This inland waterway was used by Native Americans during bad weather to get to the Detroit River. Grosse Pointe had enough marshlands to take them from the Milk River to Fox Creek.

DOWNHILL: Business management

there it seemed to go downhill. Starting in 2005, the stores shifted its focus and evolved into a predominantly women's clothing brand. And now bankruptcy looms for this once popular outdoor store.

Let's hope management recognizes the error of its ways and starts returning to its roots — or to more goose down.

In the meantime, Cabela's, Bass Pro Shop and Gander Mountain continue to thrive because management understands the needs and wants and expectations of their customers. And their core values have remained unchanged.

The changing focus at Eddie Bauer reminds me of another organization that lost its way — Bill Knapp's Restaurant. The green and white stores along the highway always had that welcoming look. And of course, the tasty cakes one received free of charge on one's birthday were always a treat. And let's not forget one could deduct an amount equal to one's birthday on that special day.

Then something happened. Management determined attracting us senior citizens and families was not in their best interest. Catering to mostly seniors gave the restaurant the nickname, "God's Waiting Room."

I suspect some consultant convinced store management that attracting the yuppies should be the new focus. A total remodeling program began to modernize the store's attempting to make the interior more hip. A campaign of

"That Was Then, This is WOW!" was on all the airwaves.

When we first entered the new stores, we were turned off by the decor and did not return.

In an attempt to woo their customer base back, the company embarked on a campaign of returning to the old standards, stating "The Tradition is Back," but it was too late. Evidently thousands of others felt the same way and thus the company went out of business in 2002.

This is a classic example of management not understanding their customer base. I just hope my favorite highway establishment, Cracker Barrel, never changes!

Well, time to take a trip to the local flea market to locate some long gone favorites along with some other revered items before they too become extinct. I'm referring to Vernor's Ginger Ale, some boat, a Winkelmans dress for my wife, Mary, and a drinking fountain from Hudson's. Oh, for the good 'ol days!

Sanders hot fudge sauce, perhaps a Hughes and Hatcher suit, a Farmer Jack shopping bag, a picture of the Boblo

Veterans helping veterans

The National Veterans Foundation is a help group staffed by veterans who've been there. Its website, nationalveteransfoundation.org, has a wealth of information. Even if you've been a veteran for a long time, it's worthwhile.

The site has veterans news, an events calendar, a resource center, employment info, blogs and a chat room. Veterans can call LifeLine and talk to mental health professionals trained in crisis, trauma and suicide counseling. Check the website's staff list — some have impressive credentials.

The Los Angeles-based NVF has a live help online feature and a veterans hotline with counselors available from noon to midnight. I tested it, and it took about three seconds for someone to respond.

These guys at NVF are out there working for the benefit of veterans, including testifying at Congressional hearings to help bring about needed changes.

To talk to someone about any veterans issue, call the NVF at (888) 777-4443.

Especially helpful on the website is the first step section for new veterans. All your benefits are summarized for you, so you don't miss any. The group also acts as a go-between with the Department of Veterans Affairs, including helping with the often confusing paperwork.

The NVF has a street team program. Twice a week they fan out hooking up with homeless veterans and handing out water, lunches and information. Check the NVF website and donate for a worthy cause.

KOZAK: Pursuing freedom

He said, "My mother said, 'I will always find you.' She knelt with St. Michael, the archangel. She prayed. The dog jumped over us and the dog went for Mom."

The dog was called off by distance soldiers and his mother said, "Run."

"I was filled with adrenaline," he said. "They dragged me for half a mile. We fell into some bushes and fell asleep. At dawn Mom woke us up."

They trudged on until Rose tripped over a border stone placed there during the Hapsburg era. They knew they had crossed the border into Germany.

The sun rose and the Kozaks followed a path until they heard voices speaking in German.

"We weren't looking for deer but I knew we were doing something cool," he said with a slight smile. "Mom walked toward voices. She said 'good morning' in English to guards. They knew we were escapees."

These soldiers pointed them toward town and a mile down the road, the Kozaks heard a song being sung in English — Old MacDonald's Farm. An American teacher, whose husband was a lieutenant in the U.S. Army, was teaching English to German children.

That was Oct. 13, 1949.

From the border town, they were transported to a refugee camp in Munich. Following lengthy paperwork, the family reunited in Switzerland where they lived for two years.

In January 1952, Kozak and his mother sailed on a "rusty old bucket" to New York City. A Greyhound bus took them from New York to Detroit, where he met his grandparents.

Settling first in Detroit, then Ferndale, Kozak urged his father to speak English, especially in front of his friends.

"When I had friends over, my Dad would speak German or Czech. I would answer in English, I thought it was rude to speak in another language. Dad said how will you remember your heritage."

Kozak now realizes his father was right, for only a few phrases roll off his tongue.

Christened Jaroslav, he changed his name to John. His mother went to work for J.L. Hudson selling shoes and his father worked in the transport and export division at Parke-Davis. His sister graduated from Wayne State University, married and moved to Frankenmuth where she became a successful interior designer.

"They became American citizens, their greatest aspirations," he said.

Kozak attended Detroit Institute of Technology, earning a Bachelor of Arts degree to become a parochial school teacher. He later earned a master's degree and began selling art and drafting supplies.

In 1977, Kozak started his own sales business, selling art and office supplies and picture frames. One of his clients was the newly-established Office Max in which he put 10 different lines of products.

"I did quite well," he said.

"We enjoyed freedom with no restrictions. Dreams can come true in the United States. People take it (freedom) for granted and don't realize the struggles (people) went through to make this country."

Kozak encourages people take part in what the country has to offer.

"Educate yourself and grab the opportunity that this country offers. Strive for opportunity. In spite of how people feel with the lack of opportunity, they will find the United States is by far the best place to live in. There is nothing like freedom."

Kozak's story has been recorded in "Through the Eyes of Rose." It has been published by iUniverse, Inc.

Low usage triggers higher water rate

By Brad Lindberg
Staff Writer

When it comes to paying for water service, the less customers buy, the more their money goes down the drain.

Despite reduced consumption by Grosse Pointe Farms water customers, rates just went up.

The increase counters free market theory, where less demand prompts lower prices.

A 6.03 percent price increase approved this month pumps up minimum bills to $75.27 for 1,000 cubic feet of water processed at the municipal filtration plant on Moross.

"The problem in the last couple of years is usage of our water has gone down," said Councilman Terry Davis, head of the Farms finance committee. "The water plant is a fixed cost. Those pumps have to operate 24 hours per day no matter whether cubic footage increases or decreases.

Therefore, we face an increase in water and sewer rates. We tried to keep it as low as we could."

Water department costs also include employee wages and salaries.

"Most personnel costs are going up at or below inflation," said Shane Reeside, city manager. "When you divide those costs by the lower volume of water we're selling, your cost per 1,000 cubic feet increases higher than the rate of inflation."

Last year, national inflation was just under 4 percent.

City officials estimate reduced demand will continue next year. Therefore, they said the new rate will be "reexamined" in six months.

"You have to estimate usage to estimate the bill," Davis said. "Rather than setting a rate for the whole year, we thought we'd look at the volume again in six months and see if we should adjust the rate then."

COACH: Facing rape charges

Bopp and a second defendant, 18-year-old James Ryan McBee of Highland Township, were arraigned Friday, June 20 in Taylor's 23rd District Court.

Charges are:

- ◆ three counts of first degree criminal sexual conduct, a life felony;
- ◆ three counts of sexually abusive activity, a 20-year felony;
- ◆ distributing sexually explicit matter to children, a two-year felony and
- ◆ furnishing alcohol to a minor, a 60-day misdemeanor.

Judge William Sutherland denied bond to both defendants and sent them to the Wayne County Jail.

Bopp is due back in court at 8:30 a.m. Monday, June 29 for a preliminary exam.

He was arrested and his Taylor house searched June 16 by Farmington Hills police and federal agents.

"We got a heads up from Farmington Hills that it was going to go down," McCarthy said.

The story was broken by Scott Lewis, WJBK Fox 2 News investigative reporter. Lewis reported that his son nearly a decade ago received at least one inappropriate e-mail from Bopp.

"Bopp has ... no incidents in his personnel file," Klein wrote parents. "The district will cooperate fully with the investigation."

"If families have any concerns or there has been any kind of contact they feel is suspicious, notify their local police agency," said Dave Hiller, Park public safety director. "We'll refer the matter to the prosecutor's office."

Bopp coached the Blue Devils since 1992, winning a state championship in 2007. He also was president of the Michigan High School Hockey Coaches Association.

"Because Bopp has been involved in metro Detroit hockey for many years, coming into contact with hundreds of high school-aged boys, there is legitimate reason for concern," Worthy said in a June 19 release.

Worthy instructed parents to "call your local police agency if your child has been a victim of Robert Walker Bopp."

JOB: Safety top concern

Suzanne Klein said a replacement coach for the next school year has not been finalized. She also noted that since being hired in 1992, Bopp's personnel file hasn't contained any reports of misconduct.

"As far as we aware, none of the charges against Mr. Bopp involve past or present students from the Grosse Pointe Public School System ... His professional record includes leading the Blue Devils to a state championship in 2007 and serving as immediate past-president of the (Michigan) High School Hockey Coaches Association," she wrote. "We wish to remind the community that he is innocent until proven guilty and entitled to a fair trial."

The district will, of course, cooperate fully with the investigation."

At the Monday board of education meeting, trustees approved a contract with Professional Educational Services Group, LLC, for all coaching positions held by non-instructional staff.

Bopp, who falls within that category, was not on the list.

"There is still time to post and hire a coach this fall when our athletic director returns after the summer," said Harwood.

The arrangement with PESG keeps criminal background checks within the responsibility of the district and a second check is provided as part of the contract.

The district weighed the option of contracting with PESG for budget savings: the district doesn't have to pay the state-mandated retirement costs, which have gone up this year from 16.54 percent to 16.94 percent.

According to Harwood, through the arrangement, the district will provide the names of coaches to PESG after all background checks are complete.

During the public comments portion at the end of the meeting, parent Mike Shields spoke up about the situation surrounding Bopp.

"Red flags were ignored," said Shields, who told officials his son played on the hockey team for three years, but quit his senior year because of problems with Bopp. "This issue runs deeper than just the coach."

Local man debuts 'Dear Mr. Fidrych'

By Kathy Ryan
Staff Writer

Michael Cramer knows exactly where he was on the evening of June 28, 1976. Along with 47,854 other baseball fans, he was in Tiger Stadium watching a rookie pitcher named Mark Fidrych talk to the baseball and groom the mound as he pitched the Detroit Tigers to a 5-1 win in a game broadcast to millions on Monday Night Baseball.

So captivated was the crowd with the phenom that had come to be known simply as "The Bird," that the thousands of fans would not leave the stadium until he returned to the field to acknowledge their adulation.

"I went with my friend Marty Frisbie," recalled Cramer, 45, by phone from Chicago where he now lives. "I can still remember so clearly, the crowd chanting, 'We want The Bird,' and not stopping until he finally came out and tipped his hat to the crowd. I'll never forget it."

And the Grosse Pointe Woods native and 1981 graduate of Grosse Pointe North wants to make sure no one else does either.

A lawyer by vocation, but a screen writer by avocation, Cramer had always treasured the memory of that night in June 1976, and then a chance meeting with Fidrych in 1990 sparked an interest in telling Fidrych's story.

"I'm a labor attorney," he explained. "And I had written a speech for my boss who was speaking to a vending machine convention on some new legislation. I went along to hear the speech, and here we were, in a room full of about 100 people, and this guy came in late and stood in the back of the room. I looked over, and his lapel was covering his name tag except for the letters RYCH. I couldn't believe it. I was caught so off guard, but I told him I knew who he was. He was very nice, and my biggest regret is that I hadn't asked him out for a beer."

It was shortly after that chance encounter that Cramer began making notes that were the precursor of a screenplay that eventually turned into an independent movie called "Dear Mr. Fidrych," which makes its debut

Mike Cramer

Friday, June 26 at the Detroit Windsor International Film Festival.

It tells the story of Marty Jones, a 12-year-old baseball player who begins to exchange letters with his baseball hero Mark Fidrych. As he does, his Little League career takes off. Fast forward 30 years, and Marty is now an advertising executive going through some tough times with his career, and his company tells him to take three weeks off. Marty's son has found the box of letters his dad had exchanged with Fidrych, and suggests to his father that they take a road trip to find The Bird.

"This was a real family affair," said Cramer. His wife, Harlene, sons Noah, 15, and Jack, 14, and daughter Michara, 12, were all part of the production, as well as several friends. His production crew consisted of students at a film school, that, as Cramer said with a laugh, "would rather work for free on a project like this than shoot one more wedding video."

Some scenes from the movie were shot in Grosse Pointe Woods, but most were mainly in and around the Chicago area.

The pivotal scenes were shot last fall at Fidrych's farm in Massachusetts. In the movie, Marty and his son, played in the movie by his own son, Jack, find The Bird, and Marty begins to put his life in perspective.

A rough cut of the movie was ready to be seen in April, so Cramer called Fidrych at his farm, leaving a message that he was sending him a copy, along with information on some independent film festivals where he would be submit the movie, with dates he wanted Fidrych to put on his calendar. Fidrych was killed that day in an accident on his farm.

"Three hours later, I received a phone call telling me he was dead," he said, his voice catching. "It was horrible. I had really hoped to introduce Fidrych to a whole new generation of baseball fans. He was so unique."

So this week's debut of "Dear Mr. Fidrych" will be bittersweet for Cramer, but the memory of that night in 1976 will never fade.

"Dear Mr. Fidrych" debuts Friday, June 26 at DeRoy Auditorium on the Wayne State University campus as part of the Detroit Windsor International Film Festival. Additional information may be obtained at the website, dwiff.org.

Budget back in the black

Board OKs '09-'10 financial plan

By Amy Salvagno
Staff Writer

After a tumultuous year of cutbacks, community clamor, layoffs and late-into-the-night meetings, the 2009-10 budget for the Grosse Pointe Public School System is finally out of the red.

Board of education trustees approved the $123 million financial plan Monday, June 22, acknowledging, though, the work is not over as planning begins next month on the 2010-11 school year budget.

"It's likely going to get worse before it gets better," said board vice president Brendan Walsh. "We know we're going to need to have some tough decisions about what we need to do next... we need a realistic solution."

"We can't promise that people are going to be generally pleased with these choices. But let's not go to lengths to villianize anyone locally because of these problems. Lansing has created this and we have to deal with it."

Officials struggled for months with a $5.5 million shortfall, due to declining enrollment and the growing cost of employee health care and retirement costs.

The district receives 65 percent of its revenue from the

"We realize the pain approving this budget represents for some people."

— Brendan Walsh, Grosse Pointe board of education vice president state through per pupil funding. Officials project $7,337 in per pupil aid and $10,184 in the State Foundation Allowance. Another 29 percent comes from federal aid and six percent from the local community and county.

And while declining enrollment is bad news for the district, Walsh says its good news for Lansing because "it's less per pupil they have to pay and it delivers budget alleviation" to the state.

"They've nibbled around the edges, but we're the ones faced with the difficult challenges," he said. "The system does need reform."

Walsh noted that Lansing officials warned they would have further reduced funding if there had not been any federal stimulus money.

Enrollment in the fall is expected to be down 128 students to 8,402. Since the 2006-07 school year, the district has lost 452 students.

Superintendent Suzanne Klein noted, though, the phenomenon stretches across the state: 80 percent of districts are experiencing the same decline.

Another trouble spot is found within the Michigan Public School Employee Retirement System, to which the district is required to pay a fixed percentage of salaries. The rate has jumped from 16.54 percent to 16.94 percent. MPSERS is the second largest expense behind salaries and about equal to health care costs, says Chris Fenton, assistant superintendent for business and support services.

In 2007, it cost the district $7,789 per teacher; in 2008, that number grew to $8,189; and this year, it's projected to jump to $8,238.

Salaries and benefits make up 84 percent of the general fund, a number that has steadily risen over the last five years. It remains an area the district can hardly control, Fenton noted.

And this year, it led to the lay-off of 54.1 full-time equivalent staff positions and 37.5 full-time equivalent teacher positions.

Officials announced, though, they are recalling 17 of those teachers. More could be called back before the fall.

"I don't think anyone at this table is happy with the drasticness of cuts we've had to make," said board president Alice Kosinski.

"I want to reiterate that this is one of those very difficult projects you can derive very little satisfaction from, despite the hard work," said Walsh. "We realize the pain approving this budget represents for some people."

He noted the district is the 30th largest in the state out of 400 traditional public school systems. The district ranks third out of the top 70 for funds spent on teacher salaries, 13th for basic instruction and 35th for special needs instruction.

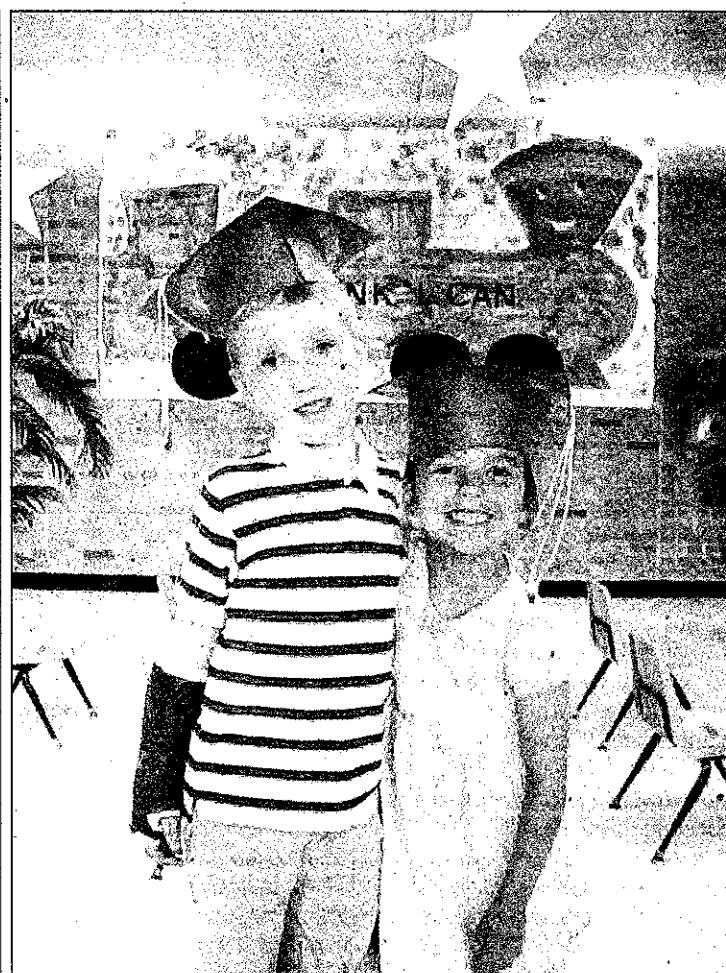

Projected expenditures for the general fund make up $100 million of the total budget, a decrease of $4.2 million, or 4 percent, from the previous year.

It allocates $51 million for basic programs, such as enrichment activities for elementary, middle and high school students; $10 million for operation and maintenance of school buildings; and $8 million for pupil services, including health and guidance programs, psychologists, teacher consultants and attendance services.

Other highlights of the total budget include the capital projects fund, which accounts for $10.3 million of the budget, and the Sinking Fund, which represents another $3.2 million. Fund equity remains the same at $19.6 million.

Fenton said there is one piece of good news: the reduction in taxes of just under $399,000. The hold harmless tax is down because of low enrollment and the sinking fund tax dropped because of taxable value.

Said Kosinski, "When Lansing hands us lemons, we will continue to make lemonade."

Children keep busy with local summer camps

By Amy Salvagno
Staff Writer

Large groups. One-on-one training. The art of summer camp is changing.

Campers no longer leave home, headed for a wilderness adventure. Few live in rustic cabins and make wooden pendants from tree bark.

Instead, camps in the Pointes target children with specific interests and needs — and all offer them the luxury of sleeping in their own beds at night.

At Camp O Fun, they can swim, solve puzzles and win chess games and even take a trip, all before parents pick them up.

The camp, for children between ages 4 and 14, is open all week from 7:15 a.m. to 6:15 p.m. through Aug. 21. Parents can drop their little ones off and pick them up at anytime, said supervisor and coordinator Cheryl Dorman.

"For years, I've watched and it seems like kids really grow up when they have people who really care about them and want to do things for them," Dorman said about the 23-year-old camp. "We try to do every possible thing we can."

For the younger campers, that means setting up inside Kerby Elementary School 17 interest centers — for books, dolls, games and dress up. Counselors, who have at least two years of college under their belts, play alongside the children in whatever session they choose, even if it's outdoor recreation or a cooking experience.

Older campers can hang out in the clubhouse, compete in chess games or checkers or watch a movie and relax.

Dorman said aside from walking to Grosse Pointe Shores park for an hour-long swim, children get out of Dodge every other week for field trips. Other weeks, speakers and interactive groups are brought in.

And all activities are centered

Inside the Viking Treasure Room at Camp Invention, children demonstrate how the wind was another way, other than oars, to help the Viking ships sail across the Atlantic Ocean — in this case, a blow up pool. The camp, which wraps up this week, is one of many places children in the Pointes can spend their summer vacation, still learning and playing.

around weekly themes.

Dorman says because of the ratio of counselors to children, the campers can get all the one-on-one time they want.

"The main purpose is for them to be safe and have fun. We do lots of things with them. It's not like they're on their own, but it's not like a babysitter," she said.

Though it wraps up this week, Camp Invention sends its young explorers home with new discoveries and fun memories.

Offered for the last six years through the Grosse Pointe school district, the day-long activity June 22-26 at Parcels Middle School is meant to instill creative problem-solving and critical thinking skills in the K-5 campers.

"The children have absolutely no idea they're here to learn. They don't think of this as a science class. They think their parents enrolled them in day camp and they have a ball," said director Debra Duffey.

"They come with friends ... it's a week of science, discovery and exploration. Whatever they come up with, it's their invention."

The hands-on camp — held both inside and outside the school — splits up children into five groups, mostly by grade level. The campers travel together and visit five different teachers, each focused on a specific area of science, Duffey said.

"But the teacher differentiates instruction, so the way she presents material to a kindergarten is different from a fifth-grade class. And our adult to student ratio is 1 to 8, so even as these little ones are traveling through the building, their counselor is right there guiding them."

The program, developed by the National Inventors Hall of Fame, teaches children about environmental and "green" science, laws of physics and structural design techniques through creativity, trial and error, and a lot of duct tape, aluminum foil and cardboard.

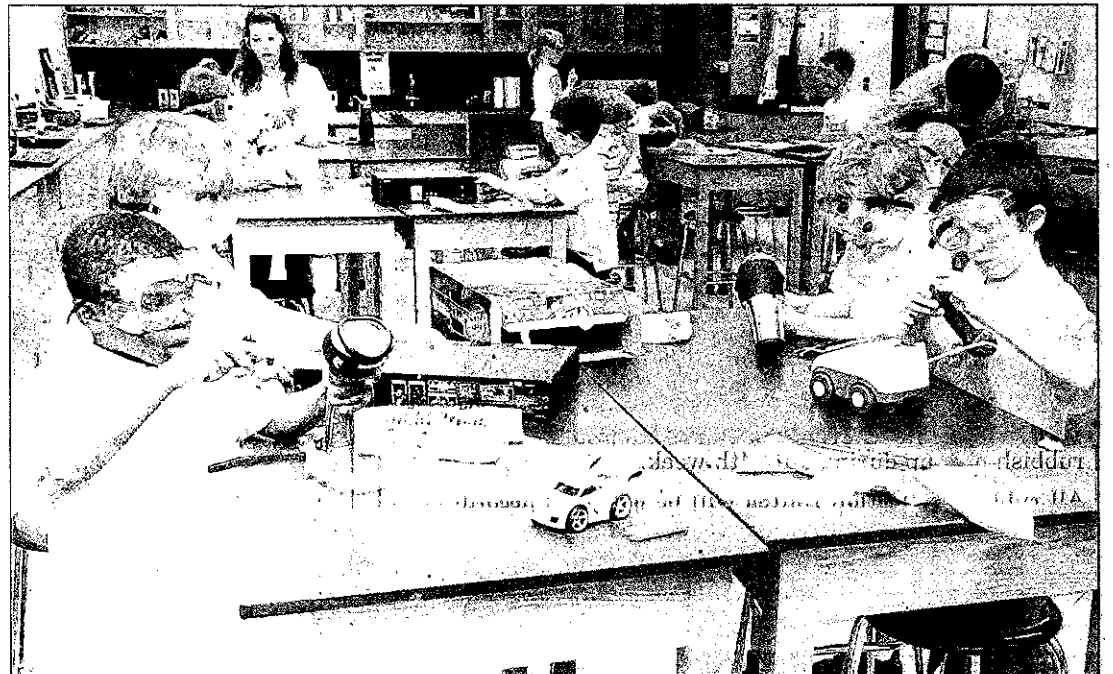

"Their absolute favorite thing is the I Can Invent class," noted Duffey. "They take apart something broken, like an old VCR or TV, and will use the parts, along with other pieces they find in our recyclable room, and try to build a new machine."

She said the campers also enjoy Comic Book Science, in which they create their own comic book superhero. This year, one of the camp's local sponsors, Ford Motor Company, sent executives Monday and Thursday to volunteer invention time with children.

"The kids who have a difficult time sitting still, being quiet or following directions, they what's right. The national program teaches youngsters about traffic and bicycle safety, good citizenship and litter prevention and recycling. Through songs, videos and classroom exercises inside Barnes Early Childhood Center, they learn about correct safety vocabulary, traffic light colors, to "stop, drop and roll" in case of fire

In the I Can Invent class at Camp Invention, children take apart old items they brought in from home, such as VCRs and hair dryers, to create something new and all their own.

don't have to do this at camp," said Duffey. They're discovering, exploring ... they're never wrong."

At Grosse Pointe Safety Town, children learn to do and when and how to call 911.

"It just teaches them vital safety rules they may encounter daily, for example what to do if something happens while they're swimming or if they see smoke in the house," said Katie DeMaggio, program director.

One of the biggest highlights of the program is the Fire Safety House and the Safety Town miniature village, both which help augment classroom instruction. The house, added DiMaggio, teaches the children how to get out if they hear a smoke alarm in their own home, how to feel the door to see if it's safe to continue from 9 a.m. to noon, though extended daycare is offered from 6:30 a.m. to 6 p.m.

The theme for this year's youth camp is "Assumption makes friends with Planet Earth." Children learn about the consumption of natural resources and landfills, begin a recycling program in their classrooms and create artwork with those recycled, but reusable items, and take field trips that incorporate what they are learning, said Chilingirian.

Younger campers participate — through storytelling, games, music and dance — in a science

SCHOOL SPOTLIGHTS

Bye-bye butterflies

First-graders at Our Lady Star of the Sea, taught by Kristen Davis and Julie Borushko, guided their spring project from caterpillars to summery monarch butterflies, marking the accomplishment with singing, dancing and a special blessing from The Rev. Gary Smetank. Then they released the butterflies into the plants and flowers in the school's Mary Garden. Above, Sara Wholihan flutters her wings as classmates sing.

Scholastic writing honors

Pierce Middle School eighth-grader Annalise Bissa traveled to New York City Thursday, June 3, for the Scholastic Art and Writing Awards at Carnegie Hall.

Bissa won a silver medal for her essay, "Insanity is Catching." The writing was also published in the national literary magazine, "Spark," which profiles "the most outstanding work by seventh- and eighth-graders across the nation."

The awards ceremony included appearances by leaders in the literary, art, and acting world, including Lily Taylor from "Six Feet Under," Oscar-winning actor Paul Giamatti, author Thane Rosenbaum, sculptor Philip Pearlstein, and poet Patricia Smith. Bissa was accompanied by Susan Quinn, Pierce English department chair.

Creativity awarded

Three University Liggett School Middle School students were honored by the Grosse Pointe Lions for posters they submitted to the Lions International Peace Poster Contest.

Izzy Sakelaris of Grosse Pointe Farms received first place and a check for $75. Her drawing will be sent to the district level and may be submitted to the international competition, where 23 merit achievement awards of $500 will be presented.

The grand prize winner receives $2,500 and a trip to New York City to visit the United Nations. Noelle Perry of Grosse Pointe Farms and Nicole Rosenberg of St. Clair Shores each received certificates of merit for their entries. Perry also received a check for $50 and Rosenberg, a check for $25. The Lions Clubs International sponsors the poster program to emphasize the importance of world peace to young people.

CAMPS: Children keep on learning theme that explores three different areas: life in the water, senses and the green campaign in which the older campers are involved.

"We plan on integrating groups and having the older children teach the younger children about conservation and the environment," Chilingirian said.

Themes from years past have included careers and hobbies, during which the campers participate in confidence-building activities and matching talents with their interests, and exploring international cultures.

"For the smaller children, our program is a thematic, play-based environment, so we use a lot of play to facilitate their learning. They spend a lot of time outdoors enjoying Michigan summers," said Chilingirian. "Many of our older campers came as smaller children, so it's a chance to reconnect with other campers they knew. They can be more independent in a fun environment while learning about conservation."

She added that parents will appreciate Assumption's facilities.

"We have a nature trail in the back play yard and the children have the opportunity to work with staff here who are very highly educated," she said. "It's just an experience to be able to interact with children they've known and make new friends."

PUBLIC SAFETY REPORTS

City of Grosse Pointe

Woman attacked

A 36-year-old City of Grosse Pointe woman was attacked at 1:15 a.m. Sunday, June 21, behind her house in the 500 block of Neff. She told police she'd parked her vehicle behind the house and was walking toward the door when an unknown man approached.

"(He) put a hand over (her) mouth, told her to be quiet and walked her to a corner of the backyard near the garage," police said.

When the woman fought back and yelled for help, the man grabbed her purse and fled. A state police K9 team trailed the man's route to where a dark colored sedan, possibly a Buick or Toyota, had been parked on the street. The victim noticed the car because she'd never seen it in the neighborhood.

Drunken walking

Police took into custody a 17-year-old Grosse Pointe Park male with a .139 percent blood alcohol level found walking at 1:45 a.m. Tuesday, June 15, on Maumee near Notre Dame.

Police said he was walking home from a party on Webber in Grosse Pointe Shores.

If you have any information about these or other crimes, call the City of Grosse Pointe public safety department at (313) 886-3200.

Grosse Pointe Farms

Thief caught

A 39-year-old Detroit man being chased by police fell off a $200 BMX bicycle he was accused of stealing while parked unattended at a fast food restaurant on Mack near Moross.

Officers caught the man at 1:40 p.m. Friday, June 19, behind the former 7-Eleven store on East Warren.

Won't shut up

An intoxicated 38-year-old Detroit man riding a bicycle across Mack near Kerby mouthed off to police at 8 p.m. Thursday, June 18, and was arrested for disorderly conduct.

"Just wait. I'll get you," he threatened a Farms officer while being driven to Harper Woods police headquarters on an unspecified $350 warrant.

Party girl

Medics took a 17-year-old Grosse Pointe Park girl to the hospital at about midnight Monday, June 15, for treatment of injuries suffered during a single-vehicle car crash.

Police said the girl was drunk when she drove her green 1993 Ford Escort into a 2002 Volvo station wagon parked legally on Charlevoix near Moran.

Officers found the girl in the house of a friend's parent. Her car had front-end damage, hair and blood on the splintered windshield.

"(She was) lying on the couch with an ice bag on her head," said a patrolman. "(She) stated she had drunk a bottle of wine and a few shots."

Officers searching her car found an empty wine bottle, partially empty bottle of vodka and a pipe with marijuana residue. Police confiscated fake identification.

11 suspensions

At 9:27 p.m. Monday, June

15, a 36-year-old female Detroit motorist was investigated for making a lefthand turn from the middle lane of eastbound Mack to northbound Moross.

Officers arrested her for violating 11 driving suspensions and released her to Detroit police on a warrant for forgery.

Sees car thief

A resident of the 200 block of Touraine called 911 at 11:07 p.m. Saturday, June 20, to report an unknown man in the family Chrysler mini van.

The suspect apparently couldn't start the vehicle and was last seen walking toward Brownell Middle School.

Easy pickings

Someone at about 11 a.m. Saturday, June 20, stole a 2007 Honda Accord that a resident left unattended with its engine running in front of her house in the 300 block of Hillcrest.

—Brad Lindberg
If you have any information about these or other crimes, call the Grosse Pointe Farms public safety department at (313) 885-2100.

Grosse Pointe Park

Thanks OnStar

A 2009 Cadillac Escalade was taken Monday, June 15 from a driveway on Three Mile. The OnStar tracking system helped locate the vehicle just a few blocks away.

Attempted car theft

A 2001 Chrysler Sebring parked on Lakepointe Tuesday, June 17 was entered and the ignition damaged. The car would not start.

Lock those lockers

An unlocked locker was entered in the women's locker room at Windmill Pointe Park Tuesday, June 16 between 4 p.m. and 5:30 p.m. A cell phone, digital camera and iPod were taken.

Bike Thefts

A green Trek mountain bike was taken from a garage on Beaconsfield Thursday, June 18.

A Murray mountain bike was taken from its owner at 6:15 p.m. Thursday, June 11 while on a school playground on Kercheval.

Arrest

At 10:30 a.m. Friday, June 19 a witness reported seeing a bike being stolen from a garage on Beaconsfield and gave a description to police, including the truck the suspect used. At 7:15 p.m. June 20, a Nottingham resident notified police that a snowblower was missing from his garage. Police officers noticed a truck matching the description from the bike theft leaving Grosse Pointe Park at a high rate of speed. After a brief chase, the truck collided with another car on E. Warren. Police recovered the snowblower. The driver and passenger were taken to St. John Hospital and Medical Center in police custody.

Scouting cars

At 11:30 p.m. Friday, June 19, officers responded to a report of someone looking into parked vehicles on Wayburn. When officers arrived they found some cars had been entered and found the suspect to be in possession of the items.

—Kathy Ryan
If you have information on these or any other crimes, call the Grosse Pointe Park police, (313) 822-7400.

Grosse Pointe Shores

Drunk driver

A drunken 19-year-old Dearborn man was arrested at 1:57 a.m. Sunday, June 21, for driving on northbound Lakeshore near Fontana Lane.

The man had a blood alcohol level of .12 percent, police said.

Coyote rights

At 11:30 p.m. Saturday, June 20, a Greenbriar Lane resident was concerned for his dog's safety due to a coyote.

"Unless the coyote actually harms a person, the (police) cannot shoot or trap the animal due to federal rules and regulations protecting wildlife," a patrolman told the man.

—Brad Lindberg

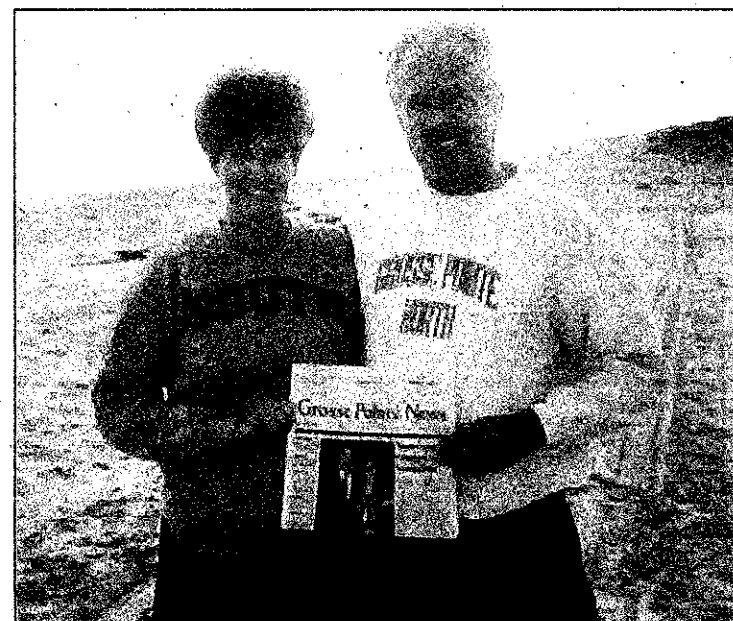

Grosse Pointe Woods

Home invasion

A Woods Lane resident returned home from work at 4:30 p.m. Tuesday, June 16 to find her house had been entered and jewelry boxes had been opened in the master bedroom. Several people, including a cleaning lady and some contractors had access to the house. Police continue to investigate.

—Kathy Ryan

If you have information on these or any other crimes, call the Grosse Pointe Woods Public Safety Department, (313) 343-2400.

Linda Baisch

Grosse Pointe Park resident Linda Baisch, 66, died Thursday, June 18, 2009.

She was born Jan. 27, 1943 in LeRoy to Jane Tate and Lewis Anderson. She graduated from Wayne State University.

Mrs. Baisch worked at the Foundation for Exceptional Children where she had been both a teacher and later the interim director. She had also worked at both Kingswood and Cottage hospitals as a mental health worker.

Mrs. Baisch enjoyed being with her family and her beloved pets. She liked to decorate her home. She also enjoyed traveling.

Mrs. Baisch is survived by her husband, Charlie; daughter, Melissa; nephew, Jim (Myra) Cehula; nieces, Suzy (Tom) Madding and Julie Cehula and grandnieces and nephew, Bobby, Caroline, Kierstyn, Sam and Steven.

A memorial service will be held at a future date.

A. Douglas Dodge II

A. Douglas Dodge II, 88, died Friday, June 12, 2009, at Avon Health Center, Avon, Conn. He died peacefully of complications from Alzheimer's disease.

Mr. Dodge was born Sept. 14, 1920, to Percival and Elizabeth (nee Loomis) Dodge of Grosse Pointe Farms. He was the great-grandson of 19th century Connecticut governor, Marshall Jewell, and great-grand-son of William Earl Dodge, founder of the Phelps-Dodge Corporation.

He was educated at Brooks School, Andover, Mass. and Yale University, class of 1942, where he was president of the glee club. After graduating from Yale, Mr. Dodge served in the Army Air Corps during World War II as a Pratt & Whitney trained aircraft mechanic. Wed to Elizabeth "Libby" S. Thompson of Fall River, Mass. in 1944, he treasured 62 years of marriage until her death in 2006.

A devoted father, Mr. Dodge, along with his wife raised three daughters in Wethersfield, Conn. where he was active in Wethersfield town affairs, served on the inland wetlands commission and chaired "Republicans for McGovern" in 1972. He worked at Veeder Root, Connecticut General Insurance, and retired from The Travelers in 1982 as a financial planner.

After 37 years in Wethersfield, Mr. Dodge and his wife retired to East Falmouth, Mass., where they both volunteered at New Alchemy Institute, a pioneering energy conservation project. As a dedicated member of the Woods Hole Historical Society, Mr. Dodge once spent three years building a scale model of the Woods Hole area. He and his wife returned to the Wethersfield area in 2000 to be closer to family.

His family said Mr. Dodge was a consummate gentleman, a man with a smile for everyone, who made friends everywhere and they will miss him deeply.

Mr. Dodge is survived by his daughters, Deborah of Great Barrington, Mass., Melissa

Vaughan and husband, Richard of Farmington, Conn., and Andrea and husband, Dwight Bramble of Cambridge, Mass.; "fourth daughter," Cordula von Godin of Munich, Germany, who became part of the family as an AFS exchange student in 1962-63; grandchildren, Amanda T. Lloyd of Washington D.C. and Jeffrey M. Lloyd and wife, Suzanne of Auburn Hills; and great-grandchildren, Brendan and Heather Lloyd. He also is survived by his brother and sister-in-law, Murray and Pixie Dodge of Ardmore, Pa.; his sister, Nancy Heenan of Grosse Pointe; his brother-in-law and wife, Ted and Claire Thompson of Swansea, Mass.; sister-in-law, Betty Thompson of Westport, Mass. and several cousins, nieces and nephews.

A memorial service will be held at noon Saturday, June 27, 2009, at the Westminster School Chapel, 995 Hopmeadow St. (Route 10), Simsbury, Conn.

Memorial gifts may be made to the Yale Glee Club Travel Fund, P.O. Box 201929, New Haven, CT 06520-1929.

Arrangements were handled by Ahern Funeral Home in Unionville, Conn.

Charles H. Farrar

St. Clair Shores resident Charles H. Farrar, 82, died Wednesday, June 10, 2009, at St. John Hospital and Medical Center in Detroit with his family at his side.

He was the owner of J & J Burning and Fabricating Co. in Warren.

Mr. Farrar was born March 3, 1927, in Ehrenfeld, Pa. to Henry and Jane Ann Farrar who had immigrated to the United States in 1922. His father was killed in a coal mine accident in 1936 and Mr. Farrar left school at 16 to help support the family. That same year, the family moved to Detroit for new opportunities.

Mr. Farrar enlisted in the U.S. Army in April 1945, shortly after his 18th birthday. He became a staff sergeant and served until he was honorably discharged in March 1947. He then went to night school to learn the tool and die trade.

In 1959 Mr. Farrar joined his brother, John, in business at J&J Burning and Fabricating Co., which is celebrating its 50th year of business. While his children now run the day-to-day activities, Mr. Farrar was active with the business until his death.

Mr. Farrar's greatest joy was spending time with his family. His family said his legacy is how he led his life: treat all people with dignity, be persistent and keep strong your faith in God.

He was a longtime parishioner at Our Lady Star of the Sea and longtime member of Lochmoor Club.

Mr. Farrar is survived by Patricia (nee Sullivan), his beloved wife of 59 years; children, Tim (Kathy), Patti (Ken) Perlin, Sheila, Karen (Mark) Highfield, Gary (Vito Maniaci), Chip (Karen) and Cathleen (Bill) Stief; 20 grandchildren and four great-grandchildren.

A funeral Mass was celebrated June 12 at Our Lady Star of the Sea in Grosse Pointe Woods.

Memorial donations may be made to the American Diabetes Association, P.O. Box 11454, Alexandria, Va 22313 or at diabetes.org.

Jane Nixon Grimshaw

Longtime Grosse Pointe Park resident Jane Nixon Grimshaw, 85, died Sunday, June 21, 2009 at Beaumont Hospital, Grosse Pointe.

She was born May 26, 1924, in Charlotte, Texas, to H.E. and Rosabelle "Mimi" Nixon. In 1940 she attended the Juilliard School of Music and graduated from George Washington University.

She was an accomplished interior designer for the J.L. Hudson Co. in Detroit.

Mrs. Grimshaw adored spending time with her family and friends and she loved them all dearly. She had an extraordinary zeal for life, traveled the world and gave generously to everyone she met. Her family said Mrs. Grimshaw was always humble, eloquent and inspiring, put others before herself and was passionate in her appreciation of people and deeds.

An avid bridge player, antique collector and fine arts appreciator, she was passionate regarding all she did and truly enjoyed spending time with friends and family in her convertible car.

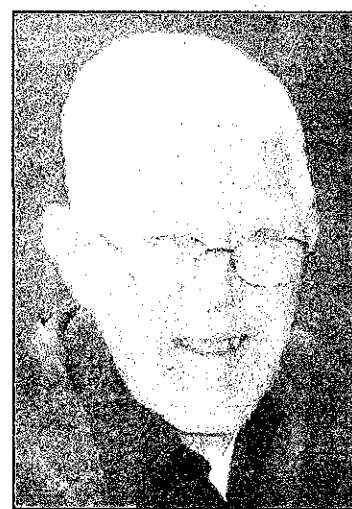

She was a member of Delta Delta Delta, the Grosse Pointe Park Foundation; the Newcomers Club and Grosse Pointe Memorial Church.

Her family cherished her, and she will forever be missed, but they take solace knowing Mrs. Grimshaw is in heaven with her beloved husband, Duke, a West Point graduate, and parents.

Mrs. Grimshaw is survived by her son, Duke (Ellen) Grimshaw and her daughters, Catherine (Phillip) Jewell, Rhonda (Michael) Bueche and Nicky (Ed) Dudgeon. She had five affectionate grandchildren, Kristen Grimshaw, Ross and Sarah Dudgeon and Christian and James Bueche.

A funeral service will be held 3 p.m., Thursday, July 2, 2009, at Grosse Pointe Memorial Church, 16 Lakeshore Drive, Grosse Pointe Farms, MI 48236.

In lieu of flowers, memorial donations may be made to the American Lung Association, 25900 Greenfield, Suite 401, Oak Park, MI 48237 or the Grosse Pointe Park Foundation, 15115 E. Jefferson, Grosse Pointe Park, MI 48230.

N. Margo Mitchell

N. Margo Mitchell died Thursday, June 18, 2009, at her daughter's home in Grosse Pointe Farms.

A former Miss Argentina and fashion model, Ms. Mitchell was born in Buenos Aires, Argentina, and moved to New York City at age eight.

She entered third grade without speaking any English, yet mastered the language and graduated from high school at 14. Being bilingual, she worked at the Village Voice, "La Voz."

Ms. Mitchell attended college in California and graduated summa cum laude from Pepperdine University. She attended Pacific Coast School of Banking while working full time.

She was a retired vice president of Wells Fargo.

Ms. Mitchell was an avid reader and a crossword puzzle aficionado. She was a life master bridge player and served as the treasurer of her condo association for many years. She was a member of the American Association of University Women and the University Valley Women in Los Angeles.

Her family said she will be remembered as an amazing mother, inspirational grandmother, doting great-grandmother, and loyal friend.

In the spirit of her belief that life was to be celebrated, Ms. Mitchell's family and friends gathered June 20 at The Hill in Grosse Pointe Farms to reminisce and look to the future.

Ms. Mitchell is survived by her daughter, Diane Villa McCormack; son-in-law and friend, Bill Allen McCormack; grandchildren Riley Young (Tenelle) McCormack and Erin Mitchell (Christopher) Newkirk and great-grandchild, William Delano Newkirk.

TEST DRIVE By Greg Zyla

The 2009 Chevrolet Traverse is a stylish, well-equipped crossover with great passenger and cargo carrying capability. Traverse earned 2008's Top Safety Pick award from the IIHS.

Traverse a safe, ultimate family mover

This week, we're driving Chevy's new 2009 Traverse LTZ AWD, an extreme 4-door, SUV/Wagon style family transporter that is most impressive — base price: $35,515; price as tested: $39,425.

Traverse also leverages General Motors' crossover architecture, thanks to a unique blend of historic build experience, from modern day Suburban/Tahoe, to 1990 style Blazer SUV, all the way back to a nine passenger 1963 Parkwood (Bel Air) Station Wagon.

Built in Spring Hill, Tenn., Traverse debuted in October of 2008 and expands on the recent success of Chevy's popular Malibu. It competes head on with stalwarts such as Toyota Highlander, Ford Flex and Nissan Rouge, to name a few, and holds its own or surpasses in many areas.

Our test Traverse came equipped with All Wheel Drive and mid-range LT dress, as an entry LS ($28,990 base) and a top of the line LTZ ($39,180 base) bookend the LT.

All Traverse models feature seven or eight passenger seating, depending on bench or captain chair seat arrangements. Our tester came with the seven-passenger premium interior, featuring second row

"smart slide" captain chairs and a third row split bench seat.

All three seating areas are zoned for climate control, while Bluetooth, XM Satellite, AM/FM/CD Bose stereo, universal home remote and rear seat/steering wheel audio controls are all standard. Our tester had only two options, a $1,775 leather and heated seat package and a very impressive dual Skyscape Sunroof for an additional $1,400.

Traverse's interior is big, and I mean really big. If you need to take your children to the ballgame or load it up with items from the area home improvement center, this vehicle delivers. Of course, we look at Traverse more of the family type mover than a lumber transporter, but rest assured, and depending on how you want to arrange your seating, there is room for most every application.

Driving manners are good and the ride is ultra comfortable. What really surprised me most is the power output from the 3.6-liter V6, which puts out 288 horses and 270 pound-feet of torque. When I depressed the accelerator fully in a 40 to 65 mph test on an interstate, it felt more like a V8 than a V6.

This torque is a result of GM's utilization of its 6-speed automatic transmission, which is standard across the Traverse line. Because the Traverse can work with six separate gear ratios, great acceleration and acceptable fuel economy are no longer mutually exclusive.

Additionally, those who need to tow a travel trailer or boat can safely complete the task up to 5,200 pounds.

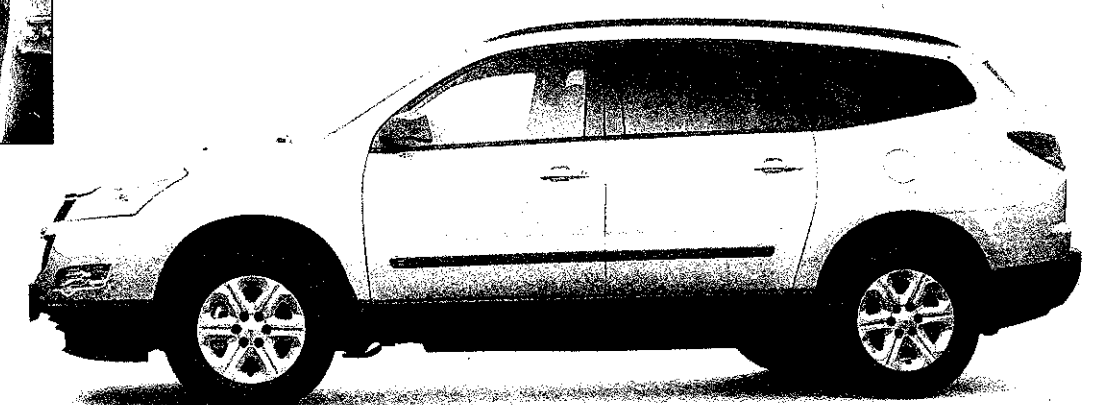

Traverse weighs in at nearly 5,000 pounds in AWD mode, another reason GM's 6-speed transmission is now a necessity for a vehicle like this. The FWD model isn't much lighter (205 pounds), but we don't want our readers to look at this weight as a negative.

If anything, Traverse's overall body mass is a positive when it comes to ride comfort and the ever important safety aspects of building modern vehicles.

Specifically, Chevy's Traverse scored 5-Star ratings for both front and side crash testing for all occupants, thanks to a modern, rollover sensor equipped six air bag system that encompasses the entire vehicle, front and side and head curtain for all three rows. Significant is GM's StabiliTrak electronic stability control system, which adds to the vehicle's overall built-in security.

2009 Chevy Traverse LTZ

Not surprisingly, Traverse earned 2008's "Top Safety Pick" award from the Insurance Institute For Highway Safety, another good reason to have this vehicle on your shopping list if the aforementioned baseball or softball team members are on your "delivery" itinerary this summer.

Important numbers include a wheelbase of 118.9 inches, curb weight of 4,925 pounds, 22 gallon fuel tank and 16 city and 23 highway EPA estimates.

Overall, we give Chevy's new Traverse a strong 8.5 on a scale of 1 to 10 and highly recommend visiting a Chevy dealer if you are shopping in this segment.

Likes: Looks, power, interior room, safety ratings and awards

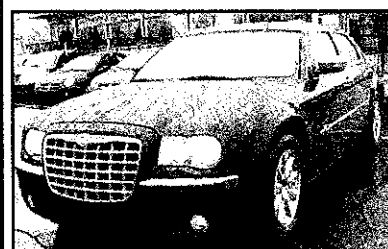

Dislikes: Fuel mileage a bit suspect, especially the city rating.

AUTOS By Jenny King

The new 2009 Toyota Venza is a versatile five-passenger vehicle that couples the styling and comfort of a passenger car with the flexibility of a sport utility vehicle.

Venza fills niche in Toyota lineup

The attendant at the local car wash scratched his head and wondered, as the 2009 Toyota Venza approached, whether to charge the extra $1 required for SUVs and trucks.

We're not really certain, and suggested he could consider it a car and keep the difference as a tip.

Toyota describes its spacious, five-passenger vehicles as having the styling and comfort of a passenger car with the flexibility of a sport utility, "to give customers a stylish alternative to the traditional sedan."

Toyota spokesman Curt McAllister suggested it is either a crossover or "a high-sightline sedan."

The new vehicle — let's call it a crossover — was designed for the North American market. It is being assembled in Georgetown, Ky, on a platform similar to that of the Camry and Lexus ES 350. While production capacity has been pegged at around 70,000 a year, McAllister says a recent sales projection is closer to 60,000 per annum.

Toyota expects the Venza to appeal to "active boomers" and to members of Generation X. The comfortable and spacious vehicle's standard engine is a large 2.7-liter, 182-horsepower four. It can be ordered with a 3.5-liter, 268-horsepower V-6, with which a driver with a light foot can manage an average 26 miles per gallon. Not bad for a crossover.

With room for five and lots of gear, the 2009 Toyota Venza is available with a choice of engines and can be ordered with all-wheel drive.

All-wheel drive is an option with both engine sizes. Front drive is standard. Both engines use a six-speed automatic transmission.

McAllister says at present there are no plans to add a third row of seats in the Venza. "It fits between Camry and Highlander in the Toyota lineup," he added. "It's great for mid-size SUV owners looking to step down into a large sedan or sedan owners looking to move into a vehicle with more utility and spaciousness."

Open the heavy top-hinged rear door by pressing a button on the smart-key fob. A button on the bottom edge of the raised door will automatically lower it. And levers on either side of the rear compartment release seat backs for the split second row.

Anyone with a vehicle designed for a variety of uses likely has in the past struggled with and perhaps cursed over "easy-to-remove" seats and disappearing this and that for greater cargo space or additional room for passenger. Heavy rear doors and obstinate seat backs are truly pains to experience. So the automatic rear liftgate features and cargo area levers for fold-flat second-row seats make a vehicle such as the Venza much more enjoyable to use.

A suggestion: the test Venza had a beige interior, including the carpeting. If you are serious about carrying anything more than the family pearls, select a darker interior such as gray and save yourself some aggravation.

The power rear door is a component of an $860 convenience package that also includes a smart key instead of the traditional ignition key and chrome-accented door handles.

The $32,484 test Venza also included a lighting package ($815) and a security package ($570) with a backup camera and an anti-theft system. The full-color image from the backup camera is displayed on a small, 3.5-inch top-center screen on the instrument panel.

The test Venza with V-6 engine had 20-inch alloy wheels, front-seat dual-zone climate control, lots of center-console storage, a power, multi-adjustable driver's seat and an eight-CD changer with the AM/FM radio sound system.

A double sunroof, including a large stationary panel for rear-seat passengers, is available.

All aspects of Venza's engineering and design were targeted specifically for the North American market, McAllister says. Venza was primarily engineered at Toyota Technical Center in Ann Arbor and designed at Toyota's Calt Design studios in Newport Beach, Calif., and Ann Arbor. Venza will be exclusively assembled at Toyota's manufacturing facility in Georgetown.

D-Day touchstones

By Brad Lindberg
 Staff Writer

The 65th anniversary of the Allied invasion of Normandy was recounted this month with the honor owed its aging participants.

Veterans of World War II are reportedly succumbing to old age at rates approaching 1,000 per day. If a solid source for that somber statistic is hard to verify, so too is it rare to find well-preserved artifacts of the battle and of the war in general.

Tens of thousands of military aircraft were rushed into production during the war. Only a few hundred remain. Hundreds of navy destroyers were launched. Only a handful remain.

Within a few hours drive of the Grosse Pointes is a variety of almost fully restored examples of the type of equipment used on D-Day.

Getting there

Many D-Day invaders were transported to the beach in specialized ships called LSTs. The initials stand for Landing Ship Tank and represent the type of cargo they were mainly designed to carry.

LST 393, a veteran of the Omaha Beach landings, is open for tours in Muskegon. The ship is owned by the Great Lakes Naval Memorial & Museum, which hopes to fully restore the craft and have it designated a National Historic Landmark.

LST 393 is 328 feet long and 50 feet wide, big enough to carry 28 Sherman tanks, hundreds of soldiers and anything else that could be crammed on board. Mechanized equipment was driven off the ship down a ramp lowered between two large, clamshell doors forming the ship's bow.

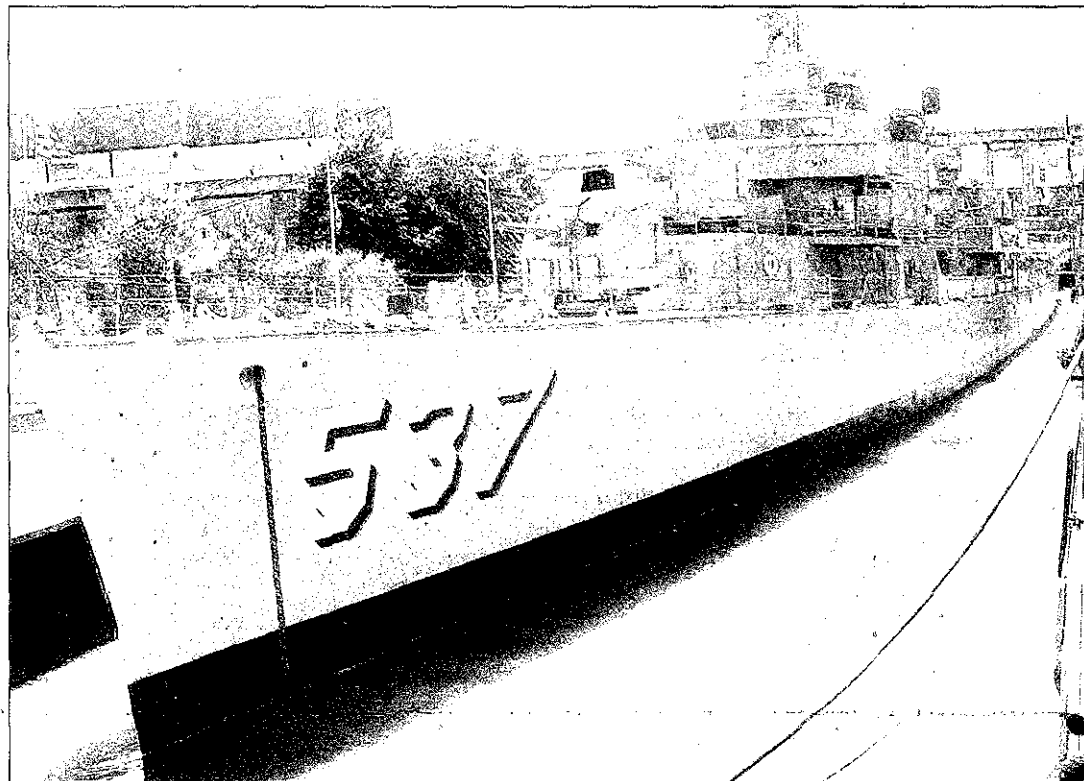

LSTs were slow. They earned the derisive nickname Large Stationary Targets. More than 1,050 were produced during the war. Only two reportedly remain in good shape and open for public tours.

A self-guided tour of LST 393 begins by walking up the ramp onto the tank deck. Visitors are free to roam where they want, but an 11-page tour booklet, included with admission, leads visitors to 50 points of interests on six decks, including crew quarters, up and down narrow steps to officers cabins, the engine room, wheelhouse, galley and more.

Every available space in the cramped ship had a purpose. Corridors lining the main hold doubled as mess halls for soldiers. Wide, round weldments on the foredeck and superstructure reveal where anti-aircraft guns were mounted.

After the war, the ship became a car transport linking Muskegon and Milwaukee.

LST 393 is located at 560 Mart Dock, downtown Muskegon. Hours are 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. seven days per week, May through September. Admission is $5 for adults, $3 for students and free for children under five. For more information, call (231) 703-1477, or visit lst393.org. Driving distance from Grosse Pointe is about 200 miles.

Side trip under the sea

Muskegon also hosts USS Silversides, one of the most storied American submarines of WWII.

Although the LST is docked in the harbor downtown, Silversides is moored a few miles away along the harbor channel near Pere Marquette Park and sandy beaches of Lake Michigan.

Silversides made 14 war patrols against Japan. She sank 23 ships and accumulated the third highest tonnage (90,080) sunk by U.S. subs in the war.

Her diesel engines and most systems are operational. Exterior scenes of the 2002 movie, "Below," were filmed on board. A recent novel, "Descending from Duty," fantasizes about the boat being stolen to threaten Great Lakes shipping.

A true-to-life drama on board Silversides during her fourth patrol near Bougainville was reenacted in the 1943 movie, "Destination Tokyo," starring Cary Grant. A pharmacist's mate with no surgical training performed an emergency appendectomy on a shipmate while the vessel was submerged 100 feet to provide a steady platform against surface waves. The operation took place on a large table in the officer's wardroom, which is open for tours along with almost everything else on the boat.

Silversides is docked next to the Great Lakes Naval Memorial & Museum, a 16,500-square-foot facility scheduled to celebrate its grand opening Saturday, June 27.

Great Lakes Naval Memorial & Museum, 1346 Bluff St., Muskegon. Admission costs between $11.50 and $13.50. Hours May through October are 10 a.m. 5:30 p.m. weekdays, and 10:30 a.m. to 5:30 p.m. weekends. For more information, call (231) 755-1230, or see glmm.org or silversides.org. Driving distance from Grosse Pointe is about 200 miles.

Softening the beach

Hours before the D-Day landings, Allied B-17 bombers dropped tons of bombs on Normandy in hopes of softening up the enemy.

The Yankee Air Museum at Willow Run Airport in Ypsilanti has B-17G and B-25 bombers. The museum is open year-round.

On Saturday and Sunday, July 18 and 19, it hosts the Thunder Over Michigan air show. Gates open at 9 a.m. both days.

The show will feature WWII warbirds including a British Lancaster bomber and Spitfire fighter, U.S. P-51 Mustang fighter and German Messerschmitt BF-109.

Military reenactors are scheduled to stage mock battles complete with machine guns, tanks, half-tracks and strafing runs by fighter aircraft.

Thunder Over Michigan air show, sponsored by Chrysler Jeep Superstores, is at 9 a.m. Saturday and Sunday, July 18 and 19, at Willow Run Airport. Tickets cost $20 ($25 at the gate). Parking costs $5 per vehicle ($10 at the gate). Children 15 and younger are free. For more information, call (734) 483-4030, or see yankeearmuseum.org. Driving distance from Grosse Pointe is about 45 miles.

barded the Normandy beaches. Destroyers played the role of sharpshooters, firing relatively point-blank at enemy positions.

The destroyer, USS The Sullivans, named after five Sullivan brothers killed when their ship was sunk by the Japanese early in the war, is displayed in Buffalo, N.Y.

The ship is a National Historic Landmark and one of four Fletcher-class destroyers preserved as museum ships.

She isn't a Normandy veteran, but she earned nine WWII battle stars and took part in the Cuban missile crisis blockade.

Self-guided tours range throughout the 376-foot vessel. Visitors can climb around the decks, enter a five-inch gun turret and walk along corridors to imagine what life aboard was like for its crew of 290 sailors and 20 officers.

The Sullivans is moored next to the cruiser USS Little Rock and submarine USS Croaker.

Buffalo and Erie County Naval & Military Park, One Naval Cove, Buffalo, N.Y. Hours are 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. daily from April through October; shorter hours in November; closed from December through March. Admission is $9 for adults, and $6 for seniors and youngsters 16 and under. For more information, call (716) 847-1773.

A LA ANNIE By Annie Rouleau-Scheriff

Top pasta with grilled shrimp

This time of year I enjoy meat, poultry or seafood with the grill paired with side dishes prepared indoors.

This week I'm bringing a simple yet flavorful pasta (that's prepared in my kitchen) outdoors where it will be topped with shrimp from the grill. Yummy.

Pasta with Tomato-Basil Sauce and Grilled Shrimp

1/2 pound cooked pasta (angel hair, spaghetti or linguine)
3 tablespoons olive oil (plus more for tossing with the cooked pasta)
1 large onion, diced
1 to 2 tablespoons minced garlic
1/2 cup white wine
1 15oz. can diced (or

Shrimp, hot off the grill, tops off a pasta to be eaten on the deck.

stewed) tomatoes, with juice
1/2 cup chopped or torn basil leaves (packed)
1/2 teaspoon each salt and pepper (plus more to taste)
1/2 lb. raw shrimp, tail on, slightly butterflied (21-25 per pound size)

Cook the pasta to package directions for al dente. Toss with a bit of olive oil and set aside. (Cover so the pasta doesn't dry out.)

Heat three tablespoons olive oil in a large skillet over medium heat. Add onion and cook for 7 minutes, until onion becomes soft and is just beginning to brown.

Add the garlic and cook for a few more minutes. Add the white wine, tomatoes (with juice) and the basil leaves. Bring to a low simmer. Stir in the salt and pepper.

Turn the heat to low and cover while you grill the shrimp.

Heat grill to medium-high. Toss raw shrimp with a tablespoon or two of olive oil and season with 1/2 teaspoon each salt and pepper. Scatter the shrimp on the hot grill and cook on each side for about 3 minutes or so. (Don't overcook the shrimp!)

To the tomato mixture, add cooked pasta and toss until heated throughout. Taste and season with more salt and pepper if you wish. Remember, the shrimp has also been seasoning before grilling.

Transfer the pasta and sauce to a serving bowl, walk it outside and top with the freshly grilled shrimp. Garnish with fresh basil and grated parmesan cheese.

The broth-like tomato sauce boasts a fresh flavor that won't weigh you down. Sliced chicken from the grill will also sit nicely on this mound of tasty pasta.

With a partner in the kitchen, you can pull off this spectacular meal in less than 30 minutes.

Ford House lecture series begins today

The first of four lectures in support of Edsel & Eleanor Ford House's exhibit, Different by Design: The Styling of Edsel Ford, begins Thursday, June 25.

All lectures begin at 7 p.m. and are free and open to the public. Space is limited and reservations are recommended.

Automotive Design through the Lens of a Photographer kicks off the series and features New York photographer Michael Furman discussing his book, Curves of Steel and upcoming publication, "Spirit of Competition."

Furman shares the creative process of looking through a lens to discover the features of automotive design and style, including proportion and purpose. Copies of his book are available for purchase.

Other lectures and dates include:

July 9 — Curatorial Close Up: The Emergence of Modernism.

The streamlined look associated with modernism marked a conscious break with the past to become one of the dominant expressions of design practice, production and theory in the early decades of 20th century. Ford House curator Josephine Shea explores the modernism movement and offers examples of its influence on Edsel Ford's design of the Ford House buildings and grounds, as well as in his automobile styling.

July 23 — Streamlines and Dreamlines: The Design Inspiration of Aerodynamics for Automobiles.

Phil Patton, automotive design writer for The New York Times, discusses how streamlining served as inspiration for some of America's iconic automobiles, focusing on how aerodynamic principles evolved into an aesthetic that persists today.

Aug. 6 — Streamline Synergies: The Automotive Give-and-Take of 1930s Industrial Design. The streamline design revolution of the 1930s impacted consumer products — from aircrafts and cars to radios and telephones. Automotive author Terry V. Boyce utilizes period advertising and contemporary images to explore how streamlined automotive forms reflected popular mass-produced products manufactured during the 1930s and early 1940s.

Julliard students perform at DIA

New York City is coming to the Detroit Institute of Arts June 26 as four students from The Julliard School perform during Friday Night Live.

Performances are at 6:30 and 8 p.m., and the students, with varying specialties, will perform mostly collaborative works.

As part of the Detroit Arts

Immersion Program, created by Julliard students who wanted to invest time and effort in Detroit, the night includes dance, drama and jazz music.

Pablo Ziegler Trio for New Tango also performs at 7 and 8:30 p.m. that evening. Ziegler, a Latin Grammy Award winning pianist born in Buenos Aires, goes beyond the traditional tango boundaries with his trio, as it blends classic tango rhythms with jazz improvisations.

For a complete schedule of Friday Night Live activities, visit dia.org.

The DIA is open from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. Wednesdays and Thursdays; 10 a.m. to 10 p.m. Fridays; and 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Saturdays and Sundays. Admission is $8 for adults, $6 for senior citizens, and $4 for youth ages 6-17.

DIA members are admitted free.

Youth theater camp scheduled

The Young Actors' Studio of the Grosse Pointe Theatre is enrolling youth aged 12 to 16 years for a summer camp.

The camp runs from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. July 7-9 and July 14-16 at the Grosse Pointe Theatre rehearsal facility, 315 Fisher Road, Grosse Pointe Farms.

The fee is $75 for children of Grosse Pointe Theatre members and $100 for all others. There is an optional lunch fee of $25. For more information, call director Harry Burke at (313) 885-1393 or e-mail him at GPTEducation@aol.com.

Highlights of the program include improvisation, scene study, playwriting, monologues and memory exercises. Students will create and develop their own short scenes with the use of video feedback.

Students will also gain technical awareness in the areas of make-up, costumes, lighting, sound, properties, set design and construction.

Taught by theatrical veterans, all Young Actors' Studio students will receive a DVD of their final production.

Neighborhood Club

Basketball and soccer summer camps are taking place at the Neighborhood Club in July.

The soccer camp, run by professional NSCAA-licensed coaches, is from July 6-10. The staff offers well-structured, practical coaching sessions while keeping the needs of the children as their primary focus.

The times and fees are as follows: Children 4 years old, 9:15 or 10 a.m., total instruction time for the week 3.75 hours, fee $40; children 5-6 years old, 9 or 10:45 a.m., total instruction time for the week 7.5 hours, fee $75; children 7-8 years old, 9 a.m., total instruction time for the week 15 hours, fee $135; and children 9-14, 1 p.m., instruction time for the week 15 hours, fee $135.

All players receive a T-shirt and an evaluation from the coaches. Children 4-6 years old also receive a soccer ball.

The camp is held at Elworthy Field, across from the Neighborhood Club. Registration deadline is June 25. No annual registration fee is required.

Fundamental Basketball Camp for boys and girls in grades 2-8 is from 9 to 11:15 a.m. July 13-17 at Pierce Middle School. The camp focuses on improving the fundamental skills of dribbling, passing, shooting and rebounding. Players also work on pivoting, footwork, speed and agility.

Participants are grouped by grade, ability and skill level.

The camp director is James Cleage who has worked for the Neighborhood Club for more than 12 years as a youth basketball instructor, youth and high school basketball official and youth softball umpire.

The fee is $100 and includes a camp T-shirt and an evaluation from the coach. Registration deadline is June 25.

Registration for either program can be done online at neighborhoodclub.org or in person at the Neighborhood Club, 17150 Waterloo, City of Grosse Pointe from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. Monday through Friday. Call (313) 885-4600 or visit neighborhoodclub.org for a complete description of this and other activities, leagues and classes.

Music on the Plaza

The Motor City Brass Band performs at 7 p.m. Thursday, July 2 at the 2009 Music on the Plaza jazz concert series, on the Village Festival Plaza in downtown Grosse Pointe.

Rain location is at Maire Elementary School, 740 Cadieux.

Kids on the go

Kids on the Go, a summer educational program for special needs children, holds an open house at 9:30 a.m. Friday, July 10, at Assumption Cultural Center, 21800 Marter Road, St. Clair Shores.

"Kids on the Go provided free therapy to dozens of children last summer," said Kristy Piana Schena, St. John Macomb-Oakland Hospital speech-language pathologist. "This therapy helped them retain what they learned during the school year and teaches them new life skills."

Schena launched Kids on the Go in 1999, bringing an interdisciplinary approach to creative education. The program provides occupational therapy for children ages 3-6 years for six weeks during summer months. Services are provided free to participants through scholarships. Costs are covered by fundraising and through donations from local businesses, charitable organizations and private residents.

The program uses individualized education plans, helping children maintain their current skills throughout the summer months. Each classroom is staffed by certified physical, occupational and speech therapists, and one adult volunteer is assigned to each session.

Groups are limited to nine children, providing a 1:3 therapist-to-child ratio. The children are placed into classrooms according to their goals and skill level.

Donations of $500 provide a scholarship for one child; donations from $100-$499 go to matching another sponsor to create a scholarship, and donations of $5-$99 provide equipment and supplies. For more information, call (248) 967-7917.

Two earn rank of Eagle Scout

Boy Scout Troop 96 awarded two of its members the rank of Eagle Scout, scouting's highest honor June 1.

Richard A. "Drew" Hove Jr. of the City of Grosse Pointe and Sean Carroll of Grosse Pointe Park were presented with the honor and a tribute from Gov. Jennifer Granholm by Rep. Tim Bledsoe, D-City of Grosse Pointe.

To achieve the rank, boys must fulfill several years of participation, achievement, education, training, leadership, community service and complete a community service project devised, coordinated and led by the prospective Eagle Scout.

Carroll's project was organizing and staffing a clothing drive to benefit St. Vincent DePaul.

Hove's project was creating an outdoor classroom area at the Belle Isle Nature Zoo. He cleared and mulched the classroom area, rebuilt the fence and gate and built and placed interpretive signs.

His parents are Richard A. "Andy" and Sherry A. Hove. He attends school in New Hampshire where he is a member of the golf, ski and mountain biking teams.

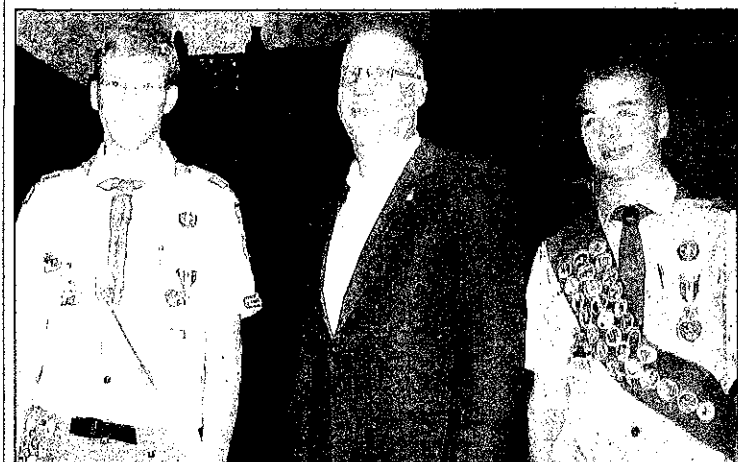

He said his best scout memories are two trips to Philmont Scout Ranch in New Mexico.

Carroll is the son of Kevin and Donna Carroll.

In his project of collecting clothing, Carroll directed and organized a staff of volunteers.

"The greatest part of scouting was camping in general," he said. "There were a few trips that stood out like Philmont (New Mexico), the Pennsylvania caving, white water rafting trip, summer camps, the Silversides trip, the Pinery trip, and canoe trips."

Carroll attends De La Salle Collegiate High School where he takes honors and advanced placement classes.

The event has since increased to more than 7,000 people and has raised more than $5 million for the soup kitchen.

Grosse Pointe Unitarian minister retires

By Ruth Cain
Special Writer

A retirement party for Grosse Pointe Unitarian Church Rev. John Corrado was held recently.

During his 25-year ministry, he established an adult religious enrichment program including seminars, forums, lectures, Movie Nights and book discussion groups; a Care Committee; and a religious education program for the children.

The formal program included a blessing from The Rev. Douglas Ward Gallagher, retired minister from the Birmingham Unitarian Church and a longtime friend of Corrado.

The choir paid a musical tribute to Corrado, directed by the church's music director, Joseph Palazzolo.

The Rev. William Sinkford, president of the Unitarian/Universalist Association in Boston, spoke of Corrado's qualities.

SENIOR SCENE By Ruth Cain

Overpopulation may not be a bad thing

When I read about ways to live 100 years and still remain active, my first thought is who can afford to, especially if they are in need of a nursing home.

People are convinced there are too many people in the world as they fight for parking spaces, beachfront property, and most importantly, jobs.

But according to Phillip Longman, overpopulation is not the greater concern facing the human race, it's depopulation.

In Europe, Russia, China and Brazil, the average couple is having fewer than two children — and the population is shrinking in the U.S. also. Twenty percent of Baby Boomers did not have any children.

Birthrates in Africa, the Middle East and Asia are falling, although genocide, starvation and never-ending wars surely are important contributing factors.

Longman attributes the falling birth rate to the spread of modern values and couples learning to see children as an "avoidable liability."

That's a dangerous attitude he says, because as the world's existing population grows old, there will be fewer children to keep the economy humming and to pay for senior citizens' medical care, pensions and other benefits.

In China, he points out, each child moving into the workforce will soon have to support two parents and four grandparents. I see a worst case scenario as a young married couple, both coming from long-lived ancestors, supporting four parents, eight grandparents and 16 great grandparents.

So if many of us seniors live to be 100, children are not a burden, they're an investment in the future. With too few of them, Longman believes, our species' future will be grim.

Speaking of long-lived seniors, this summer's concert calendar is dominated by rockers in their 60's. On tour are Crosby (67), Stills (64), and Nash (67); Joe Cocker (64); the Rolling Stones (Mick Jagger is 66); the Doobie Brothers (co-founder Patrick Simmons is 60); and Loggins & Messina (both 61).

All, I might point out, doing their bit to make lots of money, ours, unfortunately.

If we doubted that obesity is a growing threat, one in five military-age Americans is too fat to join the armed services.

Recruiters are scrambling to fill quotas, but the military has had to turn away 48,000 overweight applicants since 2005. That number is greater than all the U.S. troops that have been fighting in Afghanistan.

I'm always reading tips that will help jog my memory. Here's one which brought me up short.

How to remember several items when you don't have pencil and paper: Say you need to get lettuce, salmon, coffee, eggs, milk and apples from the store. Create a sentence with the first letter of each of these items. L, S, C, E, M, and A.

Now create a sentence with words that start with the first letter of each item. You might try "Lucy Saw Camels Eating Milk and Apples." Repeat that phrase to yourself a few times, or visualize a girl Lucy watching camels eat a mixture of milk and apples.

Now all I have to do when I get to the store is repeat that idiotic statement, if I can remember what it was, then scan the sentence for the first letter of each word, then remember the six letters and what each letter is supposed to remind me. By this time, I've forgotten why I even wanted to go to the store.

Anybody who can complete this exercise successfully doesn't have a memory problem.

I loved this joke because it reminded me of Abbott and Costello.

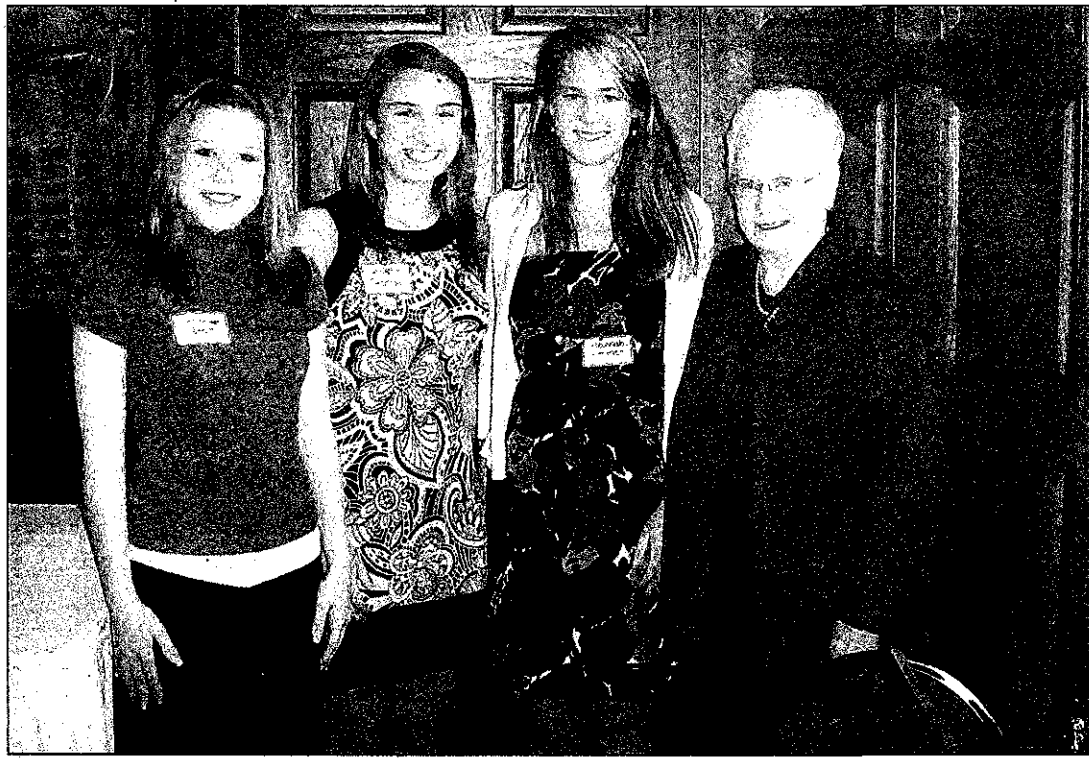

The wife says to the husband, "whatcha doin today?"

"Nothin," he says.

"That's what you were doin yesterday."

"I wasn't finished."

Cottage Hospital Auxiliary 2009 scholarship recipients are from left, Kathleen Grant of Warren, who attended Warren Woods Tower High School; Kristin Peterson of St. Clair Shores, who attended University Liggett School; and Hannah Reimer of Grosse Pointe Park, who attended Grosse Pointe South High School and scholarship chairwoman Joan Curto.

Henry Ford Auxiliary scholarship winners

The Henry Ford Cottage Hospital Auxiliary awarded three area high school graduates $2,000 scholarships to Kathleen Grant of Warren, Kristin Peterson of St. Clair Shores and Hannah Reimer of Grosse Pointe Park.

The annual contest is open to high school seniors who live or attend school in specific Zip codes served by Henry Ford Cottage Hospital and plan careers in the health care field. Applications are judged on academic standing, a 500-word essay and the student's extra-curricular activities.

"It's very refreshing to be a part of the selection committee," said Joan Curto, committee chairwoman and auxiliary past-president.

"The committee combed through more than 30 excellent applications and had a difficult time narrowing their selection down to only three recipients.

The focus and drive these young students have regarding their careers, combined with their broad extra-curricular activities, is a tribute both to their schools and also their parents."

Online screening tool measures heart disease risk

A free online screening tool created by Henry Ford Hospital enables users to measure their risk for heart disease with a simple click of a computer mouse.

The tool, called Know Your Numbers, takes users through a 10-minute interactive personal health test and provides a four-page assessment of their results, including the risk factors they can manage to help lower their lifetime risk of having a heart attack.

Heart disease is the leading cause of death for men and women in the United States, and more than a 1 million Americans suffer a heart attack annually.

"This interactive screening tool is not a replacement for visiting your health care provider," said Diane Klingler, a nurse practitioner at Henry Ford's Heart & Vascular Institute who helped develop Know Your Numbers.

"What it does is help educate users on their risk for heart disease, offers ways to control their risk factors and provides information about certain wellness programs available at Henry Ford for those who want to develop a personal action plan for improvement. By decreasing your risk factors you can improve your overall health and possibly reduce your health care costs now and later in life."

After logging on to henryford.com/knowyournumbers, users are greeted by a Henry Ford physician who guides them through the site, explaining risk factors and results along the way. While it would be helpful for consumers to know their blood pressure and cholesterol levels, they're not required to complete the screening, as the computer will use average readings.

Once completed, consumers can download their results and learn how to make lifestyle changes to reduce their heart attack risk. The results also should be shared with their physician as part of their care management plan.

ASK THE EXPERTS By Glen Clark, M.D.

Is the favorite swimming hole contaminated?

Individuals with diarrhea should refrain from swimming until symptoms are non-existent.

Before jumping into your favorite swimming hole, consider the condition of the water and the surroundings. In addition to asking the attendant about pool policies and cleaning schedules, there are a few things you can do.

The sides of the pool should not be sticky or slippery. The water should be clear and free of odor. If there is a strong chemical smell, it indicates there are maintenance deficiencies. A well-chlorinated pool has no odor. Chlorine and pH levels should be checked twice a day. Ask what grade the health inspector gave the pool at the last inspection.

Natural bodies of water can be contaminated by animal waste, sewage spills and runoff from rainfalls. Pay special attention to posted "no swimming" signs.

To help protect against RWIs, practice healthy swimming behaviors. Do not swim if you have diarrhea; shower with soap before and after swimming; wash your hands after using the bathroom while swimming; and most importantly, do not swallow any pool water or get pool water in your mouth.

If you have a backyard swimming pool, check chlorine and pH levels often. Allow only approved swim diapers and do not allow the family pet in the pool.

Swimming is an all-time favorite summer pastime. Keep it safe by being a smart swimmer.

Event supports postpartum depression awareness

When new mothers find themselves overcome with "baby blues," the effects on their families can be overwhelming and the stress of postpartum depression can be dangerously debilitating.

The Tree of Hope Foundation, a non-profit organization that promotes research, education and awareness of postpartum-related mood disorders, is sponsoring its fifth annual Step Up for Hope 5K Run, Walk & Stroll Saturday, June 27, at Metro Beach Metropark.

This all-ages event is open to those of every fitness level to run or walk in support of Tree of Hope's efforts which include free weekly support groups for struggling mothers and community health and educational events.

Advanced $15 registration is available at treeofhopefoundation.org. Onsite registration is $20, beginning at 8:15 a.m. Rain or shine, runners will take the starting line promptly at 9 a.m., with walkers to follow at 9:20 a.m. Advanced registrants receive a T-shirt and refreshments are available for all participants throughout the morning.

Various raffles for cash and prizes are held after the walk with winners announced at 11 a.m. in the Metro Beach Activity Center.

For more information on Tree of Hope, visit treeofhopefoundation.org or call (877) 467-3311.

GROSSE POINTE SOUTH

Conway's hustle leads to scholarship

By Bob St. John
Sports Editor

If you're a basketball coach and you're building a team from scratch, you would want to add Clare Conway.

The 18-year-old Grosse Pointe South graduate used her trademark hustle and determination to earn most valuable player honors this season in the Macomb Area Conference Blue Division.

Conway and her teammates won the Blue Division after beating host Mount Clemens.

During the season, Conway averaged 10 points and nearly eight rebounds as the Blue Devils' starting forward. However, head coach Kevin Richards utilized her talents and played her at other positions on the court.

One night she would be called upon to guard the opposing team's center, the next game it would be the shooting forward or even the shooting guard. Her versatility was vital to the Blue Devils' success.

Get her stats in the Mount Clemens game and against north.

"I love playing basketball and I had a lot of fun during my senior season," Conway said. "I wish we could have won a couple of games we lost, especially to (Grosse Pointe) North and Cousino, but overall, I think we had a nice season."

Clare Conway

Conway held North All-State center Ariel Braker to eight points in the first game of the district tournament and had a team-high 18 points in the division-title winning game at Mount Clemens.

Conway played several sports during her four years at South. She played volleyball, track and cross country, which she said she liked the best, other than hoops, because it kept her in shape.

"Running cross-country helped me get in the best shape of my life and for that, I think I had a better basketball season," Conway said. "It seemed as if I never was winded because of that awesome training."

"I liked cross country, but basketball is still my favorite." Conway began playing sports as a child, thanks to her athletic parents, father, Bob, and mother, Mary.

"Both of my parents are athletic and my brother played a lot of sports growing up," Conway said. "We're a sports family, that is for sure."

Bob Conway is also the athletic director at St. Clare of Montefalco, where Clare attended grade school and began her athletics as a member of CYO squads.

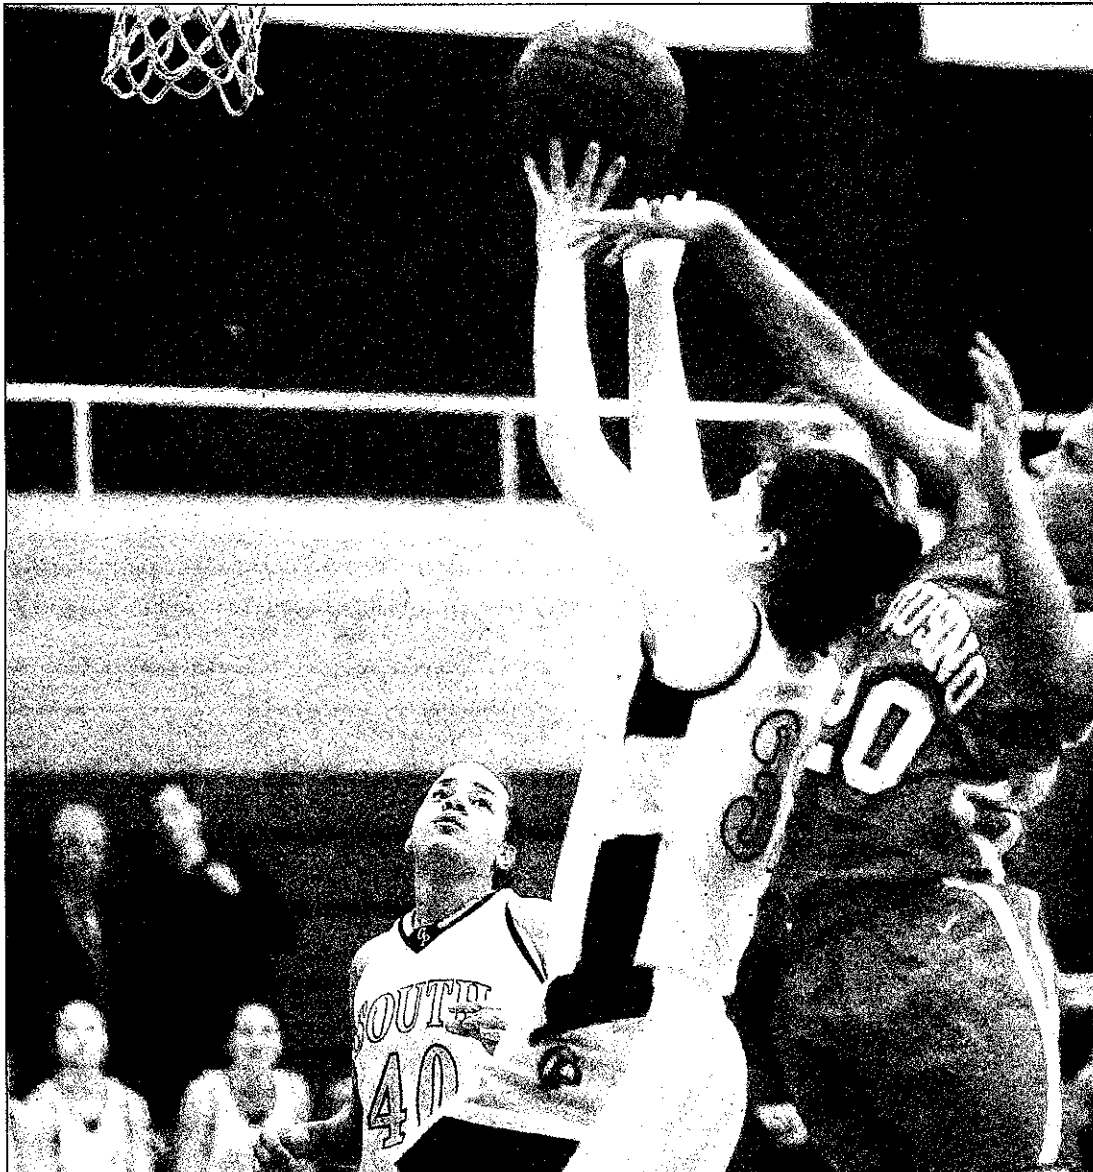

While in middle school, Conway played travel softball for the Michigan Bulldogs, but decided to give it up midway through high school to focus on basketball.

After years of tough practices, the hard work paid off when Conway accepted the invitation to play college basketball at Aquinas College.

"I received some money through several scholarships, which will help pay for tuition and I will be a part of the women's basketball team, which is great," Conway said. "I'm excited about this opportunity to continue playing the game I love."

Conway will play for head coach Linda Nash, who is in her 14th year at Aquinas. This past winter, the team finished 19-11 overall and 10-4 in the WHAC, Wolverine-Hoosier Athletic Conference.

Defending champs

Lochmoor Club's swim team began its dual meet schedule last week. The team, under head coach Kevin Hafner, has won the Michigan Interclub Swimming Association title seven consecutive seasons. The league meet is scheduled for July 24 to 26 at Birmingham Athletic Club. Hafner said his squad will be in the top three and Detroit Golf Club and the host team has a shot to beat the champs.

GROSSE POINTE NORTH

Heading to Hope

Grosse Pointe North will be well-represented at Hope College in the fall when several of its student-athletes will compete on the football and basketball teams. From left, Paul Brucker, football; Matt Blunden, basketball; Andrew Horne, basketball; Gregg Blunden, basketball; and Paul Bramos, basketball, will each don a Flying Dutch jersey. The football team finished 3-7 last year, including 3-3 in the MIAA, while the basketball squad was 22-7 and 14-3 in the MIAA.

LOCHMOOR CLUB

Several golfers 'beat the pro'

Lochmoor Club recently hosted its annual Ladies "Beat the Pro" event and several were able to defeat golf head professional Jim Wilson using their score combined with their handicap. Beating Wilson were Karen Mourad, Bunny Rentschler, Jan Hadgis, Mary Jankowski, Jan Lesha, Linda Boyle, Mary Ann Merollis, Sharon Tusa, Nora Lovisa, Jo Ann Russell, Gloria Kotas, Diane Dillon, Allison Baker, Beth Flynn, Beth Jaskolski, Peg Rohrkemper, Mary Rogers and Kathleen Emery. In other club news, the men competed in the "Jim Picard" Cup contest and the flight winners and runner-up were: Nelson Flight — Keith Schatko, first; Michael Stavale, runner-up; Nicklaus Flight — Norman Merollis, first; Bruce Campbell, runner-up; Jones Flight — Joe Impastato, first; John Vrana, runner-up; Palmer Flight — John Vitale, first; Atsushi Yoshida, runner-up

CYO SPORTS

Boynton honored

Jeannie Boynton earned the winter CYO Scholar Athlete Award. Boynton, who recently graduated from Brownell Middle School, played for St. Paul's CYO athletic programs while attending middle school. She has carried a 3.8 or higher grade point average and was a key contributor to St. Paul's eighth-grade basketball team that advanced to the CYO Finals, which the squad hasn't Jeannie Boynton accomplished since the 1950s.

THE GROSSE POINTE ACADEMY

Athletic honors

The Grosse Pointe Academy athletic department announces winners of the 2009 spring sports awards for the boys' varsity and junior varsity lacrosse teams and the girls' tennis and soccer teams. For the boys' varsity lacrosse team, the award winners are eighth graders Liam McIlroy, most valuable player; Meade Maxwell, most improved; Richie Cieszkowski, courage under first - goalie award; and James Counsman, team bulldog. The rookie of the year award went to seventh-grader Michael Blake. The junior varsity lacrosse team award recipients are sixth graders Jared Brush and Mac Carroll, most valuable offensive players; McCalla Mecke, most valuable defensive player; Sam Williams, most improved; and fifth grader Robert Whitaker, team bulldog. The awards for the girls' tennis team went to seventh grader Kate Krueger, most valuable player; and Kate Van Pelt, most improved; eighth grader Katherine Woodward, team bulldog; and fifth graders Anna Crane and Grayson Cieszkowski, best doubles team; and Grace Scarfone and Leonie Leslie, most improved doubles team. The awards for the girls' varsity soccer team went to eighth grader Abigail Boll, most valuable player; sixth grader Brianna Roe, most valuable defensive player; seventh grader Lauren Mattes and eighth grader Julia Kaiser and Kate Wacker, most valuable offensive players; and seventh graders Allison Mobley and Kara French and eighth graders Micah Lee and Shavon McSwine, team bulldogs. A special award was given to eighth grader Kate Wacker, who was named Iron Woman for achieving perfect attendance for three consecutive soccer seasons.

The Saints finished 5-2 both home and away during the league slate. "I love the campus and the students have the same beliefs as I do," Conway said. "I enjoyed my time at South, but now it's time to move on with my life and I can't wait to go to Aquinas." She said the one big thing that will be missing in the fall is not homesickness, but the trip home for the traditional Conway family Thanksgiving. "Our family Thanksgiving is the best," Conway said. "We always play football and of course, someone always gets hurt, and then there is being with the family and with grandma. "It's a time I will miss, but we will be out of town playing games for Aquinas." The highlight of Conway's hoops career took place during an eighth-grade basketball game at St. Clare. Conway was injured early in the game and had to be helped to the locker room for treatment. A couple of minutes later, she had a big bandage on her head and was back in the game. "I finally had to leave at half-time to go to the hospital and after the game, her teammates visited her in the hospital. I was an act of kindness and togetherness and I'll never forget that group of Falcons from St. Clare." Conway never let her immense athletic load get in the way of volunteering or school work. She finished high school with a 3.3 grade point average and volunteered many hours to coaching basketball at St. Clare and spending time with family and friends, especially her best friends, Chloe Srebernak and Stephanie McShane. Conway is going to major in political science or sports management and hopes to one day coach basketball and be a mother of five children. "I can't wait to get to college and earn a degree," she said. "I want to have four boys and a girl and my family would be set." During her time off this summer, Conway continues to train hard for her upcoming freshman year of college basketball and spend as much time as possible with family and friends. She reports to Aquinas for freshman orientation Aug. 20 and her classes start shortly after.

Soaring

Paul Bonhomme of Britain won the Red Bull Air Race World Championship Sunday, June 14, over the Detroit River. He edged Austria's Hannes Arch to capture his ninth career victory and inched him to one point behind Arch in the standings. Bonhomme posted a winning time of 1:08.16 on the 15-gate course with Arch finishing at 1:09.31. Hometown hero Pete McLeod was 11th and received some of the louded cheers among the estimated crowd of 215,000. During the Saturday competition, American Kirby Chambliss won, edging Bonhomme to earn a point in the standings. Pictured above is Russia's Sergey Rakhmanin, who is currently in seventh place in the point standings.

DOUBLE SHUFFLE
© Jim Reis 2009
RULES: Reshuffle six letters to form a new word. If a word is given, find an anagram of that word. Place letters in boxes next to shuffled letters. After all six words are solved, find new 6-letter words shuffled in the six columns or two diagonals.
HINT: There might be more than one answer hidden in the six columns or two diagonals. Can you find 4 words? Happy Hunting!
