Legal search is a wrap

GROSSE POINTE SHORES — A review of municipal legal services by Grosse Pointe Shores officials has ended with the resigning of its current general counsel, plus the hiring of a firm to handle prosecutions.

The Detroit-based law firm Clark Hill remains the Shores corporate counsel. Clark Hill also does work for the Grosse Pointe Public School System.

The two firms survived multi-stage vetting by a trio of attorneys on the city council, the city's top administrator and, finally last week, the mayor and council as a whole.

The Shores review of municipal legal counsel began last summer to save costs.

In July, the Shores sought competing bids from notified 47 municipal attorneys in southeast Michigan.

"Between mailed notifications and online posting of proposed specifications, the result was the submission of 20 proposals, which were received prior to the

Drug bust starts with traffic stop

By Brad Lindberg

GROSSE POINTE FARMS — Two 23-year-old Virginia men with felony criminal histories consuming most of their adults lives have been charged with drug trafficking resulting from a traffic stop Sunday night, Sept. 26, at Mack and Moross.

Each man had narcotics hidden in his pants and possessed cash totaling more than $5,000 combined, according to police.

They were arraigned Tuesday morning, Sept. 28, in Grosse Pointe Farms Municipal Court. Charges consist of possession with intent to deliver cocaine and a controlled substance, Oxycodone, respectively.

Penalties carry up to 20 years in prison.

Judge Matthew Rumora entered not guilty pleas on the defendants' behalf and scheduled them for a preliminary hearing at noon Oct. 6.

Both men requested court-appointed attorneys before being sent to the Wayne County Jail. They can go free by posting $100,000 cash surety bonds, each.

Police said they found five packages of Oxycodone pills weighing a combined 336.6 grams strapped to the upper leg of Andrew Jermaine Collins, of Blacksburg, Va.

During questioning shortly after 4 a.m.

Beauties all

By Brad Lindberg
Staff Writer

CITY OF GROSSE POINTE — Three months of judging which properties in the City of Grosse Pointe are most deserving of beautification awards culminated this week with the naming of houses and businesses that stood out from the crowd.

"You're top dogs for the year," said Derek Stratelak, chairman of the City Beautification Commission.

Stratelak and Mayor Dale Scrace announced this year's winners during a special ceremony Monday night, Sept. 27, at city hall.

Most of the 12 residential and two commercial property winners attended. They each received a certificate, a photo of their winning property plus a Pewabic tile of the City of Grosse Pointe seal.

"Things like this make our community great," Scrace said of residents and landowners who improve their property. "That's part of what helps keep the fabric of our community together. The vast majority work hard to keep the community up."

The commission's 10 members divvied up the city in June to search for winning candidates.

A resulting list of 50 nominees was distributed to each commissioner.

"Then, we go out and review homes on the list," said Stratelak. "The top 12 or so become our (residential) winners for the year. There's lot's of excellent homes out there."

Receiving awards this year are:

Residential winners:

- 545 Fisher, Cynthia Onofrey, Trustee
- 529 Lakeland, George and Tamera Duffield
- 262 Lincoln, Andrew and Theresa Gocsik
- 589 Lincoln, Daniel and Lisa Roma
- 357 Notre Dame, DiFiore Family Living Trust
- 424 Rivard, Michelle Smith
- 357 Roosevelt Place, Francis and Anne Boyle
- 532 St. Clair, Paul and Carol Schaap and gardener Gwendolyn Glass
- 2 Sycamore Lane, Ronald and Kathleen Forster
- 837 University Place, Mark Walz and Monique LaChance
- 530 Washington, Colin Murray
- 847 Washington, James and Flavia Scarsella

Commercial winners:

- Gelato Café, 375 Fisher Road
- Village Grille Great Room & Bar, 16930 Kercheval, owned by Dan Lemanske

Cops: 'Just call us'

By Kathy Ryan
Staff Writer

An elderly Grosse Pointe Park resident did exactly the right thing Thursday, Sept. 23, when she responded to a knock on her door. She was greeted by someone dressed as a utility worker who requested that she come into her backyard with him to check some power lines.

Instead of accompanying him, she closed the door and called police.

"She clearly understood what to do," said Lt. Jim Smith of the Grosse Pointe Park police. "All residents are asked to immediately call the police if suspicious uninvited persons posing as utility workers come to their home."

Smith said at least two other homeowners were victimized that day just across the border in Detroit and based on the description of the suspects and their truck, police are certain it was the same team that approached the Park resident. Police asked the Grosse Pointe News not to print the street where the attempted scam took place.

The suspect is a white male in his 40s with black hair. He was wearing a yellow vest, yellow hardhat and blue work pants. He was driving a silver pickup truck. At least one other accomplice was in the truck.

"Typically the scam artists will wear official work clothing and drive rented new pickup trucks to convince their intended victims they are legitimate," Smith noted. "They will work in groups of two or more to separate the intended victims in order to allow the others to search the homes for money and valuables."

House drives away fee

By Brad Lindberg
Staff Writer

A backdoor tax on minor traffic offenders is being taken off the road.

Legislation ending parts of the Michigan driver responsibility fee sped through the House of Representatives with support from Republicans and Democrats alike.

House Bill 4098, introduced by State Rep. Bettie Cook Scott, D-Detroit, eliminates additional fines of $100 to $200 per year established in 2003 for:

- driving without a valid license,
- failure to provide proof of insurance and
- accumulating seven points or more within a two-year period.

The bill is backed by Rep. Timothy Bledsoe, D-City of Grosse Pointe.

"It's basically a tax on traffic tickets," Bledsoe said.

Assessments for serious offenses stay in effect.

Those consist of:

- Fees of $1,000 per year for two consecutive years for drunken driving, leaving the scene of an accident, fleeing police, causing injury while driving and death resulting from operation of a motor vehicle;
- A $500 fee each year for two consecutive years for reckless driving or committing alcohol and drug-related driving infractions.

In fiscal year 2008, the state collected more than $144 million in driver responsibility fees, according to an analysis by the House Fiscal Agency. Nearly half of $800 million in fees assessed since the program's inception have been collected.

"It was seen as a revenue source when adopted in 2003," Bledsoe said.

The measure has moved to the Senate Judiciary Committee.

If passed into law, fees end retroactive to Dec. 31, 2009.

An amnesty provision lets drivers owing fees at the time of passage to settle accounts at a 50 percent discount.

If the Senate doesn't act and the bill needs to be reintroduced next term, support will come from whomever wins the Nov. 2 election to represent the Grosse Pointes, Harper Woods and part of eastside Detroit in the 1st House District.

"I would have voted for it," said Janice DuMouchelle, Republican candidate for state representative and a City resident. "This is a classic example of why we need to be growing our economy instead of squeezing people with higher taxes. This fee was unfair to everyone, particularly those who could least afford it."

DuMouchelle and Bledsoe support maintaining provisions against serious offenders.

The driver responsibility fee has become a complicating factor in courtrooms, according to City Municipal Judge Russell Ethridge.

"People can't afford to pay them," Ethridge said. "Then, their license is suspended because they haven't paid the driver responsibility fee. Then, they get caught driving on a suspended license and are subject up to 93 days in jail for something that might have been fairly innocuous at the outset and subject only to a fine."

During a judicial conference last week in Grand Rapids, most of about 500 judges in attendance felt the fees have become more about money than justice, according to Ethridge.

The legislation reaped applause when announced at the conference during a traffic update seminar, he added.

"It's burgeoned the courts with a lot of unnecessary prosecution for offenses that in themselves would not have been criminal, but for the fact that somebody can't afford to pay the tax," Ethridge said. "This is an appropriate responsibility fee for more serious offenses, but it had been extended to modest transgressions that complicated everything."

Crook lifts candidate's laptop

By Brad Lindberg

John Hauler, the Republican candidate to represent the Grosse Pointes in Congress, can add to his resume of civic involvement being the victim of a crime.

Laptop computers belonging to him and his campaign aid were stolen last week from the Republican Fix It Michigan office at Pointe Plaza on Mack and Moross in Detroit.

"Unbelievable," Hauler said.

In separate incidents, someone entered the storefront campaign office for GOP candidates and walked out with other peoples' property.

"It gets me more motivated to win this election," said Hauler, a St. Clair Shores businessman. "Crime is going on all the time. We need solutions. To put a Band-Aid on this is not going to help. We need 20,000 police officers in Detroit."

His computer contained campaign data and information relating to work his electronics company does with the military.

"I currently sell to the United States Army research and development department," Hauler said. "When they need something, it has to be on a plane tomorrow to Afghanistan."

An Acre laptop belonging to Hauler's aid was stolen early last week.

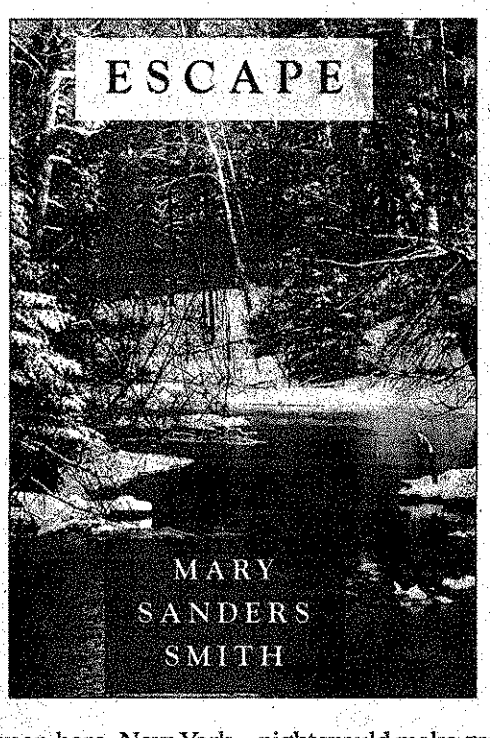
POINTER OF INTEREST

Second career allows author to escape

By Joe Warner
Editor



Before the economy took a bite out of retirement dreams, most would have done anything to fade away from work in their 50s. For Mary Sanders Smith, the 50s marked a new beginning.

She became an author, with three published fiction works since age 50 and another in the making. On Oct. 7, Smith is the featured guest at a reading and book signing event at the Ewald Branch of the Grosse Pointe Public Library.

Smith, 79, is a resident of the City of Grosse Pointe and splits time between here, New York City and a cottage in northwest Wisconsin, the setting for her latest fictional novel, "Escape."

"It took me six years to write 'Escape,'" Smith said. "I spent a lot of time on research, which is the fun part."

Research included getting to know every detail of a minimum-security prison along the St. Croix River six miles from her summer cottage. It's 35 miles from Lake Superior, where the summers are pleasant and the winters brutal. She studied the area history and talked to dozens of current and past employees of the prison, a retired superintendent and prisoners, including a convicted murderer.

"At first, they weren't crazy about me being there, but they learned they could talk to me and trust me," Smith said. "The plot is the escape, the chase and the capture."

Smith said the wilderness setting is unsettling to many of the "city prisoners" held there.

"Many were deathly afraid of it there," she said. "Animal noises at night would make grown men cry."

The retired prison superintendent shared a lot of information for Smith's book. He has a sign in front of his property with a pistol on it and the words "We do not call 911."

"He was a character, but the place was as important as the characters," Smith said. "This area had incredible history and the river controls the people."

Smith has received numerous awards for her writing during her so-far brief second career. "I enjoy doing the research," said Smith, who has started her fourth novel about the downfall of banks during the Great Depression. "I love what I do. To create a world that didn't exist, it is very addictive. Characters become very real."

Smith is a graduate of Marquette University in Milwaukee where she was trained to be a dental hygienist. She has been married to Kinnie, an attorney at Miller Canfield, for 57 years.

"We went through grade school, high school and college together," Smith said. "I caught him because I could run faster. He's been very supportive of my writing and he's contributed to my work."

They raised three children and lived in Chicago, before moving to Grosse Pointe in 1973. While raising their children, Smith was active in their church, Grosse Pointe Unitarian Church. She also serves on the Grosse Pointe Library Board and the Friends of the Grosse Pointe Library. She runs the Classic Books Lecture Series for the library. Her goal is to create an endowment for the library during her newly-appointed term on the library board.

She enjoys spending time with her four grandchildren, teaching them to fish and enjoy the outdoors. It doesn't matter where she is or what she's doing, Smith is thinking about writing.

"The more you use your imagination, the more it works," she said. "To me, human nature is interesting and writing is therapeutic. I'm having a blast."

While active with volunteer work, writing and traveling, Smith has a new passion she developed in January. Less than a year before her 80th birthday, she started piano lessons.

"I'm the only adult my instructor teaches and it's a fun challenge," she said. "It's a wonderful challenge for your brain, just as reading is. You have to do two or three things at the same time. I said I won't be doing a recital though. I'm the oldest by decades."

Smith will begin her program at 7:30 p.m. Thursday, Oct. 7. The Ewald Branch is located at 15175 E. Jefferson, Grosse Pointe Park. The program is free, but seating is limited. Call the library at (313) 343-2074, ext. 220 or register at gp.lib.mi.us.

Author Mary Sanders Smith of the City of Grosse Pointe will tell her storyat the Ewald Branch of the Grosse Pointe Library Thursday, Oct. 7.

In brief

Live with it

Grosse Pointe Woods public safety will kick off Fire Prevention Week with its annual open house this Sunday, Oct. 3 from noon to 4 p.m. The free event takes place at the city hall complex on Mack.

This year's theme, "Smoke Alarms: A Sound You Can Live With" is directed toward those responsible for making sure their houses are equipped with working smoke detectors.

"Smoke alarms are responsible for the reduction in fire fatalities," said Lt. John Ross of the Woods public safety department.

"It is imperative that they be located correctly in a home, with working batteries. They have proven to be a big help to firefighters."

Of more immediate concern to younger visitors will be the chance to climb on the fire trucks, have a hands-on experience with fire equipment and an opportunity to visit with police, fire and ambulance personnel. The smoke house also will be on display.

Refreshments will be available. If it rains, the event will be moved to Saturday, Oct. 9.

Parade time

Applications are being accepted for participation in the 35th annual Grosse Pointe Santa Claus Parade. The parade begins at 10 a.m. Friday, Nov. 26. This year's theme is "Movie Mania."

To receive an application form or for more information, contact parade Director Terri Berschback at BBerschback@comcast.net. Sponsors and donations for the parade are welcome. Also, volunteers are needed for the day of the parade. Contact volunteer coordinator Chelsea Groustra at gpsantaparade@hotmail.com.

Special night

At 4 p.m. Sunday, Oct. 3, "1001 Nights," a presentation by organist Dr. Steven Ball will include his transcription of "Sheherizade."

The performance is at Jefferson Avenue Presbyterian Church, 8625 East Jefferson, Detroit. For more information about the free event, call (313) 822-3456.

CROOK: Candidate thinks heist is a federal crime

Then, at about 8:45 p.m. Wednesday, Sept. 22, six people were at the center when an unknown man entered.

"He asked if we had any (returnable) bottles," Hauler said. "We didn't. He left."

Hauler and the others went behind a curtain to the center's phone bank. When they emerged less than two minutes later, his Dell computer was gone.

"A witness saw the person get into a cab about 100 yards from the entrance," Hauler said. "We filed a police report the last time it happened. Now, they want us to come down to the police station."

His campaign data is backed up on compact discs. Access to his work information is protected by password.

"I called the FBI," Hauler said. "They don't know whether it's a federal crime or not. But, I'm running for federal office. I'm the Republican candidate. I think that would make it a federal crime."

"If I found my computer in a pawn shop, I wouldn't mind buying it back," Hauler said.

PUBLIC SAFETY REPORTS

If you have information on these or any other crimes, call Grosse Pointe Park police at (313) 822-7400.

City of Grosse Pointe

Drug charges

Drug charges against a 17-year-old Grosse Pointe Park man developed from the search of his white Subaru during a traffic stop at 9:30 p.m. Saturday, Sept. 25, on Mack near Rivard.

A patrolman monitoring the area noticed the driver tailgating.

While questioning the driver and a 19-year-old female passenger from Grosse Pointe Woods, police detected the odor of marijuana coming from the vehicle.

"(The driver) stated he smoked in the car Tuesday and Wednesday and this was just leftover smell," said an officer.

Phantom kisser

A 19-year-old Grosse Pointe Woods woman told police that an unknown man hugged and kissed her against her will at about 9:30 p.m., Saturday, Sept. 25, at a service station on Mack and Rivard.

The woman said she was pumping gasoline into her car when approached, which police classified as criminal sexual conduct, fourth degree.

"He came at me and gave me a hug," the woman told police. "I pushed him away the best I could."

Officers learned of the incident while investigating her boyfriend for a driving infraction.

Paint damage

Vandals caused an estimated $50 damage between 1:45 and 3:50 p.m. Sunday, Sept. 19, by smearing orange paint on a garage door in the 800 block of Cadieux.

"A small amount of orange paint was also found on the victim's rear door," said investigating Officer Tony Railling. "An empty paint ball was found next to the garage door."

Grosse Pointe Farms

Doberman attack

A 51-year-old old woman living in the 100 block of Ridgemont reported at 7:50 p.m. Saturday, Sept. 25, being attacked by one of her neighbor's three Doberman pinschers.

Wounds consisted of a 3-inch cut and two puncture wounds on the woman's left hip, according to investigating officers.

"(The victim) stated the Dobermans are vicious and continually bark," said Officer Keith Colombo.

"This agency has received numerous calls in the past for barking dogs" at the dog owner's residence, Colombo reported.

Man with gun

Two Farms officers and a Harper Woods policeman teamed up at 12:44 a.m. Sunday, Sept. 26, to search for a wanted 27-year-old Harper Woods man at his last known address in the 19300 block of Woodmont in Harper Woods.

"(I advised) him to keep his hand away from the pistol," said the officer.

The man complied. It turned out he'd recently purchased the property and wasn't the man police were seeking.

Harper Woods police confiscated the gun, which was unregistered.

Wrong way

A Farms patrolman didn't buy a 22-year-old Detroit woman's claims of sobriety when questioned at 2:34 a.m. Thursday, Sept. 23, for driving a 2002 Buick Regal the wrong direction on Fisher, a one-way street, from Mack.

"She stated she had been drinking, but that she did not have too much," said the arresting officer.

Police arrested the woman for having a .18 percent blood alcohol level. The level is more than twice the state's legal limit to operate a motor vehicle.

She also was cited for never having acquired a driver's license.

Party time

Police found more than they expected when investigating a 64-year-old Grosse Pointe Park woman shortly before 4 p.m. Wednesday, Sept. 22, for suspected shoplifting of liquor at Village Market, 18330 Mack.

A search of the woman's Volkswagen Beetle on Vernier near Newport turned up two unopened bottles of Gilbey's gin, which officers returned to the market.

The search also revealed a 50-count package of napkins from Notre Dame Pharmacy and pine nuts from Trader Joe's, both in the Village district of the City of Grosse Pointe.

Officers also found pumpkin slices, facial cleanser, calcium citrate, Japanese scallops, wild blue shrimp and two brie light domestic cheeses.

"(She) stated she stole the items for a party she was having," according to an account by arresting Officer Antonino Trupiano.

The woman is known to the market.

"(An employee) stated that (she) stole items two weeks ago, but they did not make a report at the time," Trupiano reported.

Threat

An emergency room physician at Henry Ford Cottage Hospital told police he'll press charges against a 20-year-old Grosse Pointe Park man, arrested at 9:45 p.m. Monday, Sept. 20, for disturbing the peace.

The Park man reportedly threatened the doctor when refused permission to check his girlfriend out of the facility.

"I will cut your throat," the man reportedly said to the doctor. "I'll find you later."

"(The man) was instantly confrontational with (me)," said the arresting officer.

Casing cars

At 8:03 a.m., Monday, Sept. 20, a 21-year-old Detroit man with a screwdriver in his back pocket and a history of criminal behavior couldn't explain to police why he seemed to be casing the area of McKinley and Williams.

A resident had reported him walking slowly, peering into parked cars and up driveways.

The man gave police a false name. It turned out he was wanted in 3rd Circuit Court on drug charges, according to police.

Officer Bryan Ford, who arrested a man one morning a few weeks ago in the same area for breaking into parked cars, arrested the man for possession of burglary tools and obstructing police.

Grosse Pointe Park

Recovered weapon

A resident of an apartment building on Alter found a loaded .25 caliber semi-automatic pistol and turned it over to police. Police said it was used in an attempted carjacking Sept. 16 and held it for evidence.

Cash missing

An unknown person removed a window from a building on Jefferson during the early morning hours of Saturday, Sept. 25. The alarm did not work because of a power failure in the area. Money was taken from the cash register.

Not a light sleeper

An officer on routine patrol at 6:30 a.m. Saturday, Sept. 25, heard a smoke alarm sound and smoke coming from an apartment building window on Maryland. Officers forced open the door and found the female occupant asleep. She left a pot on the stove which had been burning for several hours.

Assisting Farms

Grosse Pointe Farms police issued an alert at 4 p.m. Wednesday, Sept. 22, describing a vehicle wanted in a retail fraud case. A Park officer pulled the vehicle over at Newport and Vernor and held the suspect until Farms officers arrived.

Bike theft

A women's Schwinn bicycle was taken the morning of Tuesday, Sept. 21, from a house on Nottingham.

Grosse Pointe Shores

Wind damage

High winds at 11:58 a.m. Friday, Sept. 24, knocked a tree limb onto a power line behind a house on Briarcliff. Shores personnel notified a DTE Energy repair crew.

Shortly after 10 p.m., a tree branch fell and blocked Deeplands Court. Three public safety officers cleared the roadway.

Garage entered

Six golf clubs and a handheld vacuum are believed to have been stolen within the last month from a garage on Colonial.

The resident said it was common practice to leave the garage door open.

— Brad Lindberg

If you have any information about these or other crimes, call the Grosse Pointe Shores public safety department at (313) 881-5500.

Grosse Pointe Woods

Let go

A Beaufait resident looked out a back window at 1:05 p.m. Sunday, Sept. 26, and saw a stranger riding his son's bike down the driveway. He gave chase and grabbed the thief, a young teen. He let go and the teen fled with an accomplice, sans the bike. Police later received a report from Harper Woods police stating the pair had been reported for suspicious behavior in that city.

Bad apples

Children throwing apples planted the seed for a confrontation between Roslyn neighbors Sunday, Sept. 26.

According to police, children throwing apples landing on a neighbor's property were told to stop.

The children told their mother the neighbor "yelled" at them, and she confronted the neighbor. The neighbor told her because the mother was a renter, she didn't have to worry about her tax dollars being used to clean up the children's mess. Police were called, the children agreed to clean up the apples and the neighbors agreed to not speak to each other again.

Unemployment insurance

Maintaining unemployment benefits until the unemployment rate comes down is not only necessary and the right thing to do; it's also consistent with past practice.

UI benefits stabilize the economy by increasing the demand for goods and services, which at this point in the nascent economic recovery is crucial to saving and creating jobs and boosting earnings.

Unemployment benefits help workers and their families by putting money in their pockets while they search for a new job. During the Great Recession, these benefits have been effective in keeping families out of poverty and helping them keep up with their mortgages during this period of high unemployment.

As of August, the typical unemployed worker has been out of work and searching for a job for 20 weeks, and more than 4 in 10 unemployed workers are long-term unemployed, taking at least six months to find a new job.

For the past half century, Congress has always extended unemployment benefits to the long-term unemployed when unemployment was high, and doing so in this recession should be no different.

Unemployment insurance is just like other types of insurance. It provides protection, in this case, against the involuntary loss of a job. If an employee loses a job through no fault of his or her own, then that individual can receive unemployment insurance benefits. These benefits cover about a third of an employee's pre-layoff weekly earnings while he or she searches for a new job. The benefits are time limited, however, and typically last only six months unless Congress or the states take action to extend benefits for the long-term unemployed.

Unemployment benefits provide much-needed assistance to unemployed individuals and their families while they work to find a new job. The odds are tough for unemployed workers seeking employment right now: There are nearly five job seekers for every new job opening, compared to just more than one job seeker for every job opening in the years prior to the Great Recession.

These benefits are particularly important today because not everyone who wants a job can find one. The benefits help families maintain basic spending — such as paying the mortgage and putting food on the table — and prevent families from slipping into poverty. The Census Bureau reported in September unemployment benefits kept 3.3 million people out of poverty in 2009.

Unemployment benefits are one of the most effective and efficient ways to boost demand — which is exactly what our economy needs right now. Economists estimate the economy grows by $1.61 for every dollar spent on extended unemployment benefits because recipients typically quickly spend all of their benefit payments.

UI benefits also help stabilize the economy by boosting small- and medium-sized businesses all across the United States. Small businesses continue to report their main concern is sales, and many would see even fewer customers without unemployment benefits, as the jobless would have no money to spend. These businesses would in turn have less income from which to invest and make purchases at other establishments, which lowers overall demand.

Unemployed workers apply to their state unemployment insurance program. The regular UI programs are state-run and funded through state taxes on employers. These programs typically provide unemployment benefits for up to 26 weeks. This means an individual who is unemployed can typically receive benefits payments for up to half a year, unless the state or federal government has extended long-term unemployment benefits.

Six months of unemployment benefits is usually sufficient time for the unemployed to find new work. The typical worker during the mid- to late-2000s, prior to the Great Recession, for example, spent eight to nine weeks out of work and searching for a new job.

As of August, the typical unemployed worker has been out of work and searching for a job for 20 weeks, and more than 4 in 10 unemployed workers are long-term unemployed, taking at least six months to find a new job. The share of the unemployed who are long-term unemployed has risen higher during the Great Recession than at any point since the end of World War II.

States that have high unemployment are able to offer extended benefits that provide between 13 and 20 additional weeks of unemployment benefits to the long-term unemployed. These benefits are ordinarily funded 50-50 between states and the federal government, but the federal government has been paying the full cost of this program due to the exceptionally high unemployment rates nationwide. Congress implemented full federal funding for this program in the American Recovery and Reinvestment Act of 2009. This funding is set to expire Nov. 30 unless Congress takes further action.

Congress also used the Recovery Act to provide up to 34 additional weeks of benefits for the long-term unemployed in high unemployment states. This program, called Emergency Unemployment Compensation, is federally funded. But it too will expire Nov. 30 unless Congress takes further action.

The absolute maximum amount of time a person can receive unemployment benefits through the regular Unemployment Insurance program, Extended Benefits and Emergency Unemployment Compensation is now 99 weeks. But only workers in high unemployment states are eligible for the maximum. Workers in low unemployment states are eligible for just more than a year — 60 weeks — of unemployment benefits.

Congress has provided emergency unemployment benefits to the long-term unemployed during every recession over the last four decades. Both Republican and Democratic Congresses have provided emergency UI benefits, so this was not historically a partisan issue. Congress has not once during the past 40 years allowed extended UI benefits to expire when the unemployment rate was above 7.2 percent — 2.4 points lower than it is today.

Not everyone who wants a job can get one, as mentioned earlier. There is only one job opening for every five job seekers right now, compared to just less than one job per job seeker in the years leading up to the recession.

Research by the San Francisco Federal Reserve Bank has found there is only a weak link between unemployment benefits and an unwillingness to job search due to high unemployment and a lack of jobs. Researchers found that unemployed workers who qualify for UI benefits have been unemployed for only 1.6 weeks longer than those who do not qualify for such benefits. This suggests that the persistently high level of unemployment is due to a lack of jobs — what economists say is currently due to a lack of demand — not an unwillingness on the part of unemployed workers to find those jobs.

Unemployed workers are looking for work; employers just aren't very interested in hiring them.

GUEST OPINION By Rich Lowry

In a word: Enough

William Voegeli wrote a book about the ever-growing welfare state in the United States and throughout the Western world titled "Never Enough." In the tea party, we hear the countervailing cry, "Enough!"

Everywhere it's been established, the welfare state has proven itself perpetually self-aggrandizing. Voegeli writes, "The American trend from 1940 to 2007 — steady growth of both the economy and the portion of the economy devoted to the welfare state — is evident in 12 other modern, prosperous democracies from 1980 to 2003."

The tea party bids to stand athwart this long-standing, seemingly inexorable trend. Even Ronald Reagan, whose rhetoric and intentions were forthrightly against big government, only managed to slow welfare-state spending to a rate of 0.9 percent annually over 8 years — a stupendous accomplishment in the context of its otherwise routinely robust growth.

To achieve more than this will require a massive Republican sweep in the fall, followed up by a win in 2012. It will take masterly feats of public persuasion — coupled with countless victories in budgetary hand-to-hand combat — all sustained over time. Liberal defenders of the status quo will have history, inertia and proven scare tactics on their side. But, as Barack Obama likes to say, make no mistake: The rise of the tea party puts the fundamental direction of American government in play in a way it hasn't been since perhaps 1981.

It wasn't supposed to be this way after Obama's election. The financial crisis, though, didn't discredit the free market so much as the government policies that stoked the housing bubble and bailed out the banks and the auto companies. The much-anticipated crisis of capitalism quickly became an impending crisis of government debt, as Washington leveraged itself to the hilt in an era of painful private deleveraging.

With entitlements on an already unsustainable course, Obama added a new one in his health care program, and sold it with every ounce of hubris and dishonesty he could muster. If tea partiers had a plant in the White House on a Leninist mission to make things worse before they can improve, they couldn't have done much better than the "Man from Hope and Change."

Speaker Nancy Pelosi surely knew she'd lose some seats by insisting on passage of the health care law, but she couldn't have known she'd risk displacing the tectonic plates of American politics. If there's going to be a U-turn in American government, the rise of the tea-party movement is its necessary precondition. In retrospect, if $1 trillion deficits and an increase in government spending from 20 percent to 25 percent of gross domestic product didn't bring people out into the streets, it would have been lights out for limited-government conservatism.

It's become a trope that tea-party candidates don't have an agenda. That's not quite fair. "We're in favor of a lot of things and we're against mighty few," Lyndon Johnson said in 1964, on the cusp of the Great Society. Take his statement and turn it on its head, and you have the thrust of the tea-party agenda. Or, in a word: Enough.

I SAY By Renee Landuyt

Making a difference matters in long run

Anthropologist Jane Goodall once said, you can make a difference but you have to decide what kind of difference to make.

The Dalai Lama said it is our collective and individual responsibility to preserve and tend to the environment in which we all live. Hmm, good advice.

We each have our own lives, but we need to be united in a common desire to make a difference, to make the world where we live a better place. Imagine how it would change the world if everyone worked to make their community a better place.

Personally, I do what I can because I believe in it and I know it makes a difference. I have bumper stickers that are to the point, I love a T-shirt with a good message, I refuse to purchase anything tested on animals and sign four to five petitions a week for animal and environmental causes. I speak up when I see someone flick a cigarette from their car window because it amazes me they think it's OK to dirty their lungs, but not their ashtray.

When possible I'll purchase something made of recycled or organic materials from a store or website that gives back. I just switched to a phone company that donates a percentage of its profits to righteous organizations. Making choices like these has been my lifestyle since my early 20's. These changes may seem overwhelming at first, but little steps can be taken, one at a time. Eventually they all add up. I believe it is important to make a difference for the generations to come and those who follow.

When I was in college, I gave a speech — complete with photos and props — about marine life getting tangled in and choking on litter, such as balloons and six-pack holders. I shared the story of a whale that choked to death on a three-foot string tied to a Mylar balloon.

After my speech, a student told me he had no idea how something like litter could have such a devastating and far-ranging effect. He decided right then to switch his major because he wanted to help make change. I was floored; but that was when I knew I was on the right path.

There are many people who are agents of change — some small and some large. One of the larger agents is one of my heroes, Paul Watson, who captains the Steve Irwin, a ship belonging to the Sea Shepherd Conservation Society. Every season for the past few years, Watson and a crew of volunteers head to the Antarctic and risk their lives to save the whales.

Watson's journey began in 1975 when he and another man tried to stop a Soviet harpoon vessel from killing whales. They positioned themselves in a small rubber boat between the whales who were fleeing and the harpoon vessel. When the captain of the vessel came out to the harpoon gunner, he screamed something in his ear, smiled at Watson and his partner in the small boat and made a cutting sign across his neck.

Right then, there was an explosion and the harpoon flew over the top of their boat and into a whale which, when it screams, sounds human. The largest whale in the pod disappeared below only to resurface, hurling himself at the harpooner in an effort to protect his pod. Sadly, the harpooner was waiting for him and sent a harpoon at point blank range into its head.

The soviet harpoon vessel wasn't killing the whales for meat, they were killing them for oil. Whale oil is used for heavy, heat-resistant machinery and in the manufacture of inter-continental ballistic missiles.

Watson was so outraged they were killing these gentle, socially complex, and intelligent creatures for the purpose of making weapons for the mass extermination of human beings. It was at that moment he decided to work for the whales; caring less about criticism and more about doing the right thing. Today, Watson is still saving whales.

Clearly, these are life-long efforts. However, you can still make a difference to any charity you support. Even a small donation like $5 makes a difference. Switch the latte for regular coffee for a week and you might even have $10 to donate.

Many organizations, such as the Sea Shepherd society or the Michigan Anti-Cruelty Society, which is local, operate on a string and a prayer, so $5 to $10 makes a big difference.

In the end, "I don't have time" should not be the mantra of this new decade. It is more about what you do with your time. It is about the survival of our planet and making your community a better place to live.

Humans have an incredible ability to weave the circumstances they have unraveled and overcome much of which they have destroyed. I have always said man is both the perpetrator and the rescuer. Decide to take that first step and make a difference.

GUEST OPINION By Bill Kalmar

Is that your phone number?

This mystery went on for months. It seemed not a day went by someone would call responding to a notice on their pager about my phone number appearing.

If columns in the Grosse Pointe News had a rating, this one would be rated "R" — not suitable for children and squeamish adults. As the story progresses, you will see why.

If you fall into either one of the above categories, it may be time to skip my column for this week and move on.

As you may have surmised from previous columns, I am retired and have been since 2003. Therefore telling this story about an incident while I was employed is outside the bounds of the seven-year statute of limitations.

After retiring from a 30-year career at Comerica Bank in October 2003, I was named Director of the Michigan Quality Council by past Gov. John Engler. The council is a state quality award program patterned after the Malcolm Baldrige National Quality Award Program. It encourages organizations to benchmark against a series of seven different categories such as leadership, customer focus and results to improve one's quality and performance excellence. The awards are presented each year by the president of the United States. During my tenure I had the privilege of traveling to Washington, D.C. for the award ceremony. Once there, I met presidents Clinton and Bush. But enough said about that, let's get back to my phone number.

After a couple months in my position where I was headquartered at Oakland University in Rochester, I began to receive phone calls from people who stated I had called them. Seems my phone number had appeared on their pager and thus they dialed that number to connect with me. In each instance, I informed the callers I did not call them and at times it was a testy conversation because the callers insisted my office telephone number had appeared on their pager, in some cases, several times.

This mystery went on for months. It seemed not a day went by someone would call responding to a notice on their pager about my phone number appearing. I even received a phone call from a fellow in China. You can imagine the tone of his voice when I told him there must have been a mistake because I had no reason to call him and obviously I had no reason to contact someone in China. Wonder what it cost him to contact me?

This whole mystery came to a conclusion after about four months. I received a call from a gentlemen who stated my telephone number had appeared on his pager five times that day. As we talked and tried to determine why this was happening, he finally figured it out. My seven-digit phone number would appear on a pager, but when the pager was turned upside down, the numbers were mysteriously turned into letters and a word that has a scatological derivation would appear. This is where the R rating emerges. Seems the people who were receiving my phone number on their pager were in actuality being sent an alphabetic message informing them they were in fact akin to a horse's behind.

You can imagine the fun I had with this once I unraveled the mystery and began telling people why that phone number was on their pager. In fact, the gentleman who insisted I called him five times in one day stated he had just encountered an upset customer at his place of business and this was obviously the irate customer's way of sending back a message to the store owner that he was upset.

Not being one to let a situation such as this to go unnoticed, this is what I did. Each time I gave a presentation about customer service and performance excellence, I ended each speech by informing the audience, by way of a power point screen, they could contact me with the following phone number, which I would display on the screen. I then stated if they ever forgot that number there was an easy way to recall it. Just think of a disgusting term for the presenter (me), write that word out and then turn over the paper to reveal the number it transforms into. Each time I made that presentation it would elicit loads of laughter.

Now I would give you the phone number, but I just discovered it is still in existence at Oakland University and is the number for a nice guy named Mike. I talked to Mike recently and told him the history of his phone number. Not surprisingly, Mike is still getting phone calls from people who wonder why he called them. Now Mike can give them an answer.

And I realize you Sudoku wizards will probably figure out the number I have been speaking of. But for others, here is a clue — the first four numbers are 3704 — and as mentioned, it is R rated.

I never really discovered why I was given that number or who had it before my arrival at the university. Maybe someone felt I was the one who fell into that scatological category. Oh well, I have been called worse!

Wheel 'N' deal

There were treasures. There were trinkets and even a sink at the annual Grosse Pointe War Memorial's Wheel 'N' Deal flea market event Saturday, Sept. 25. Above, Arinda Mele, of the City of Grosse Pointe, and Lillian Li, of Grosse Pointe Shores, plan to use their proceeds to cover Mele's entry fees for the 3-Day 60-mile breast cancer walk. Mele has collected more than 200 ribbons bearing cancer survivor's names and those who died from cancer and displays them on a hat. She also has collected more than 100 buttons from walks in Washington, D.C., Cleveland, Philadelphia, Tampa and Michigan. Aug. 10 deadline," said Brian Vick, city manager.

Thereafter, Vick, plus attorneys and Councilmen Ted Kedzierski, David Galbenski and Robert Graziani reduced the proposals to six finalists.

"It was the consensus of 'legal' council members that the (six finalists) be invited to come before the city council and provide brief presentations as well as answer additional questions," Vick said.

Each applicant was allowed time before the committee of the whole Sept. 1.

"Each firm was directed to focus on their municipal experience and how that experience would benefit Grosse Pointe Shores as well as clarify their proposals as to what services are and are not included in their (proposals)," Vick said.

Council members considered such factors as cost, staffing levels and municipal experience.

According to Vick, the Shores legal workload since 2006, expressed in billable hours, has been:

General counsel:
2006: 310
2007: 290
2008: 411
2009: 395;
Criminal prosecution:
2006: 184

2008: 139
2009: 173.

STOP:
Traffic enforcement turns into big drug bust

The second defendant, Preston Jermill Steen, also of Blacksburg but a former resident of Harper Woods, had 250 grams of cocaine in his pants, police said.

"It was packaged in a way that would be for delivery — large amounts, separate packages," McCarthy said.

Steen's interrogation ended upon his request to speak with an attorney.

"We believe these people were going to sell these narcotics in the Detroit and or Virginia area," McCarthy said. "This is an example of a traffic enforcement violation that turned into a major drug arrest. I credit officers on the street for being aggressive in areas of concern."

The defendants weren't arrested at the same time or place.

Collins had been pulled over at 9:52 p.m. Sunday for driving a gray 2008 Hyundai Elantra with an expired license plate. Officers took him into custody for violating a suspended driver's license.

Steen was a passenger in the Hyundai. Although his criminal record dates to 2006, he wasn't wanted on any warrants and was let go at the scene.

"They were in cylindrical bags wrapped in duct tape," said Officer Keith Colombo.

Officers also found $1,236 in Collins' pocket.

A short while later, Steen arrived at headquarters asking about bonding out Collins.

"When they advised him of the additional (drug) charges, he quickly left," McCarthy said.

Police followed. They caught Steen and three other men — ages 19, 20 and 29 from Detroit and Harper Woods — leaving the city hall parking lot in a purple 1995 Cadillac DeVille without headlights on.

"As Steen exited the car, he was holding cash later determined to be $3,373," McCarthy said.

A grand opening

The long-awaited Brownell Middle School multipurpose room finally opened its doors Saturday, Sept. 25, to excited students, staff, families and community members. The ceremony included a ribbon cutting by students Matt Fleckenstein, John Loch and Eliza Bourke, top left, and showcased the new stage by featuring instrumental music and choir performances. The concert brought back alumni to join the band and orchestra for selections such as "Funkytown" and "Don't Stop Believin'" and the choir for a decades-worth of Broadway musicals, including "Annie," "Guys and Dolls" and "Fiddler on the Roof." Above: The lobby was decked out with pictures of alumni dating back to 2001.

South students shadow hospital staff

By Amy Salvagno
Staff Writer

South students enjoy real-world experiences in their Investigations in Medicine class.

They've witnessed the Caesarean delivery of twins, the treatment of gunshot wounds and the simple art of stitches — all without medical degrees.

But during the summer, they are future cardiologists, radiologists, obstetricians and researchers.

Enrolled in the Investigations in Medicine class at Grosse Pointe South High School, these seniors are exposed for two weeks to experiences not too unlike those of a first-year medical student.

The semester-long course, led by science teacher Christine Harris, gives students the opportunity to walk in the shoes and scrubs of nurses, technicians and doctors, shadowing different medical professionals through a partnership with St. John Hospital and Medical Center.

In addition, the class features visits from medical professionals, including those in emergency medicine, pediatrics, internal medicine and nephrology.

"We're very grateful to St. John's and the physicians who take time to come here," said Harris. "It's good to be able to offer this opportunity to kids who have worked so hard in school. It adds something that would be very beneficial.

"The class helps them see what areas of medicine there are and all the different types of physician positions."

Students in the Investigations in Medicine class, all seniors, must have already taken honors biology and honors chemistry.

Though the 14-day summer shadowing program is not required, the class does cover the rotations students would experience at the hospital.

They learn about medical terminology, charting, tests and different equipment; follow cases and discuss the physiology, treatment and findings; and find out about the roles and responsibilities of practitioners.

"It's a really informative opportunity because a lot of kids will get into college and realize this either is or isn't for me. This gives them a better idea now," Harris said.

Julianne Grobbel says she's grateful for how the class has better prepared her for her future.

"It helped me figure out what I'm willing to do in the medical field. Now I know the pressure of medical school would be too much. It helped narrow things down," said Grobbel, who's leaning toward a surgical technician role.

Brooke Champane said she's long known her interest is in the medical field.

"It was cool to be with the doctor, one on one, and see everything. I knew I wouldn't be able to experience that if I didn't do the shadowing program," she said.

Chloe Jacob enjoyed learning from an obstetrician and observing two Caesarean sections.

"It was structured well. (The doctor) would tell us about the patient and their history and then explain it all to them," she said.

"It made me realize the work I would need to do to go into this field. And the perspective — this class is an eye-opener," said Greg Dettloff. "It was different learning about something and not being in a classroom. And how doctors treat their patients is a big thing, especially at St. John. They try to explain everything to them."

And the way they included her and other wide-eyed students.

"Just in general, the experience was really great," she said."

Check out colleges

The 31st annual College Night returns to Grosse Pointe South High School from 6:30 to 8:30 p.m. Wednesday, Oct. 13.

Students have the opportunity to meet with representatives from more than 150 Michigan and out-of-state colleges and universities. The majority of school representatives present materials and answer questions in the main gymnasium as well as the girl's gymnasium.

There are also three, 30-minute sessions for select schools that have opted to make formal presentations. The first session runs from 6:40 to 7:10 p.m., the second from 7:20 to 7:50 p.m. and the third from 8 to 8:30 p.m. These sessions allow students and their parents to receive more in-depth information about particular schools.

This year, schools presenting are American Academy of Art; Amherst College; Eastern Michigan University; International Academy of Art and Design and Technology; Loyola University — Chicago; Michigan State University; MSU Osteopathic Medicine; Northwestern University; School of the Art Institute of Chicago; United States Air Force; and University of Michigan.

College night is open to all students in the Grosse Pointe and Harper Woods communities, as well as those from De LaSalle Collegiate High School, Regina High School, South Lake High School, University Liggett School and University of Detroit Jesuit High School.

Fundraiser for South

The Grosse Pointe South High School Athletic Booster Club sponsors Run the Pointe Run-A-Thon Saturday, Oct. 2, at the school track.

The fundraiser for South's athletic teams, which coincides with the 2010 Homecoming festivities, consists of a 5K and 10K run and a two-mile walk.

The entry fee is $15. Participants can register in advance or after 8 a.m. on race day at the track. Entrants are encouraged to acquire donations of about $50 and designate 50 percent of those funds to their favorite school sports team.

The 5K and 10K races begin at 9 a.m. and the fun walk starts at 9:20 a.m.

Medals are presented to the top three male and female race winners. Prizes are also awarded to those who have raised the most donations.

Sponsors for this year's event include Meade Chrysler, Dodge, Jeep & Ram, a Gold sponsor; and Tivoli Graphics, The Salvage Groups, Small Favors, Xerox and the Grosse Pointe News, Silver sponsors.

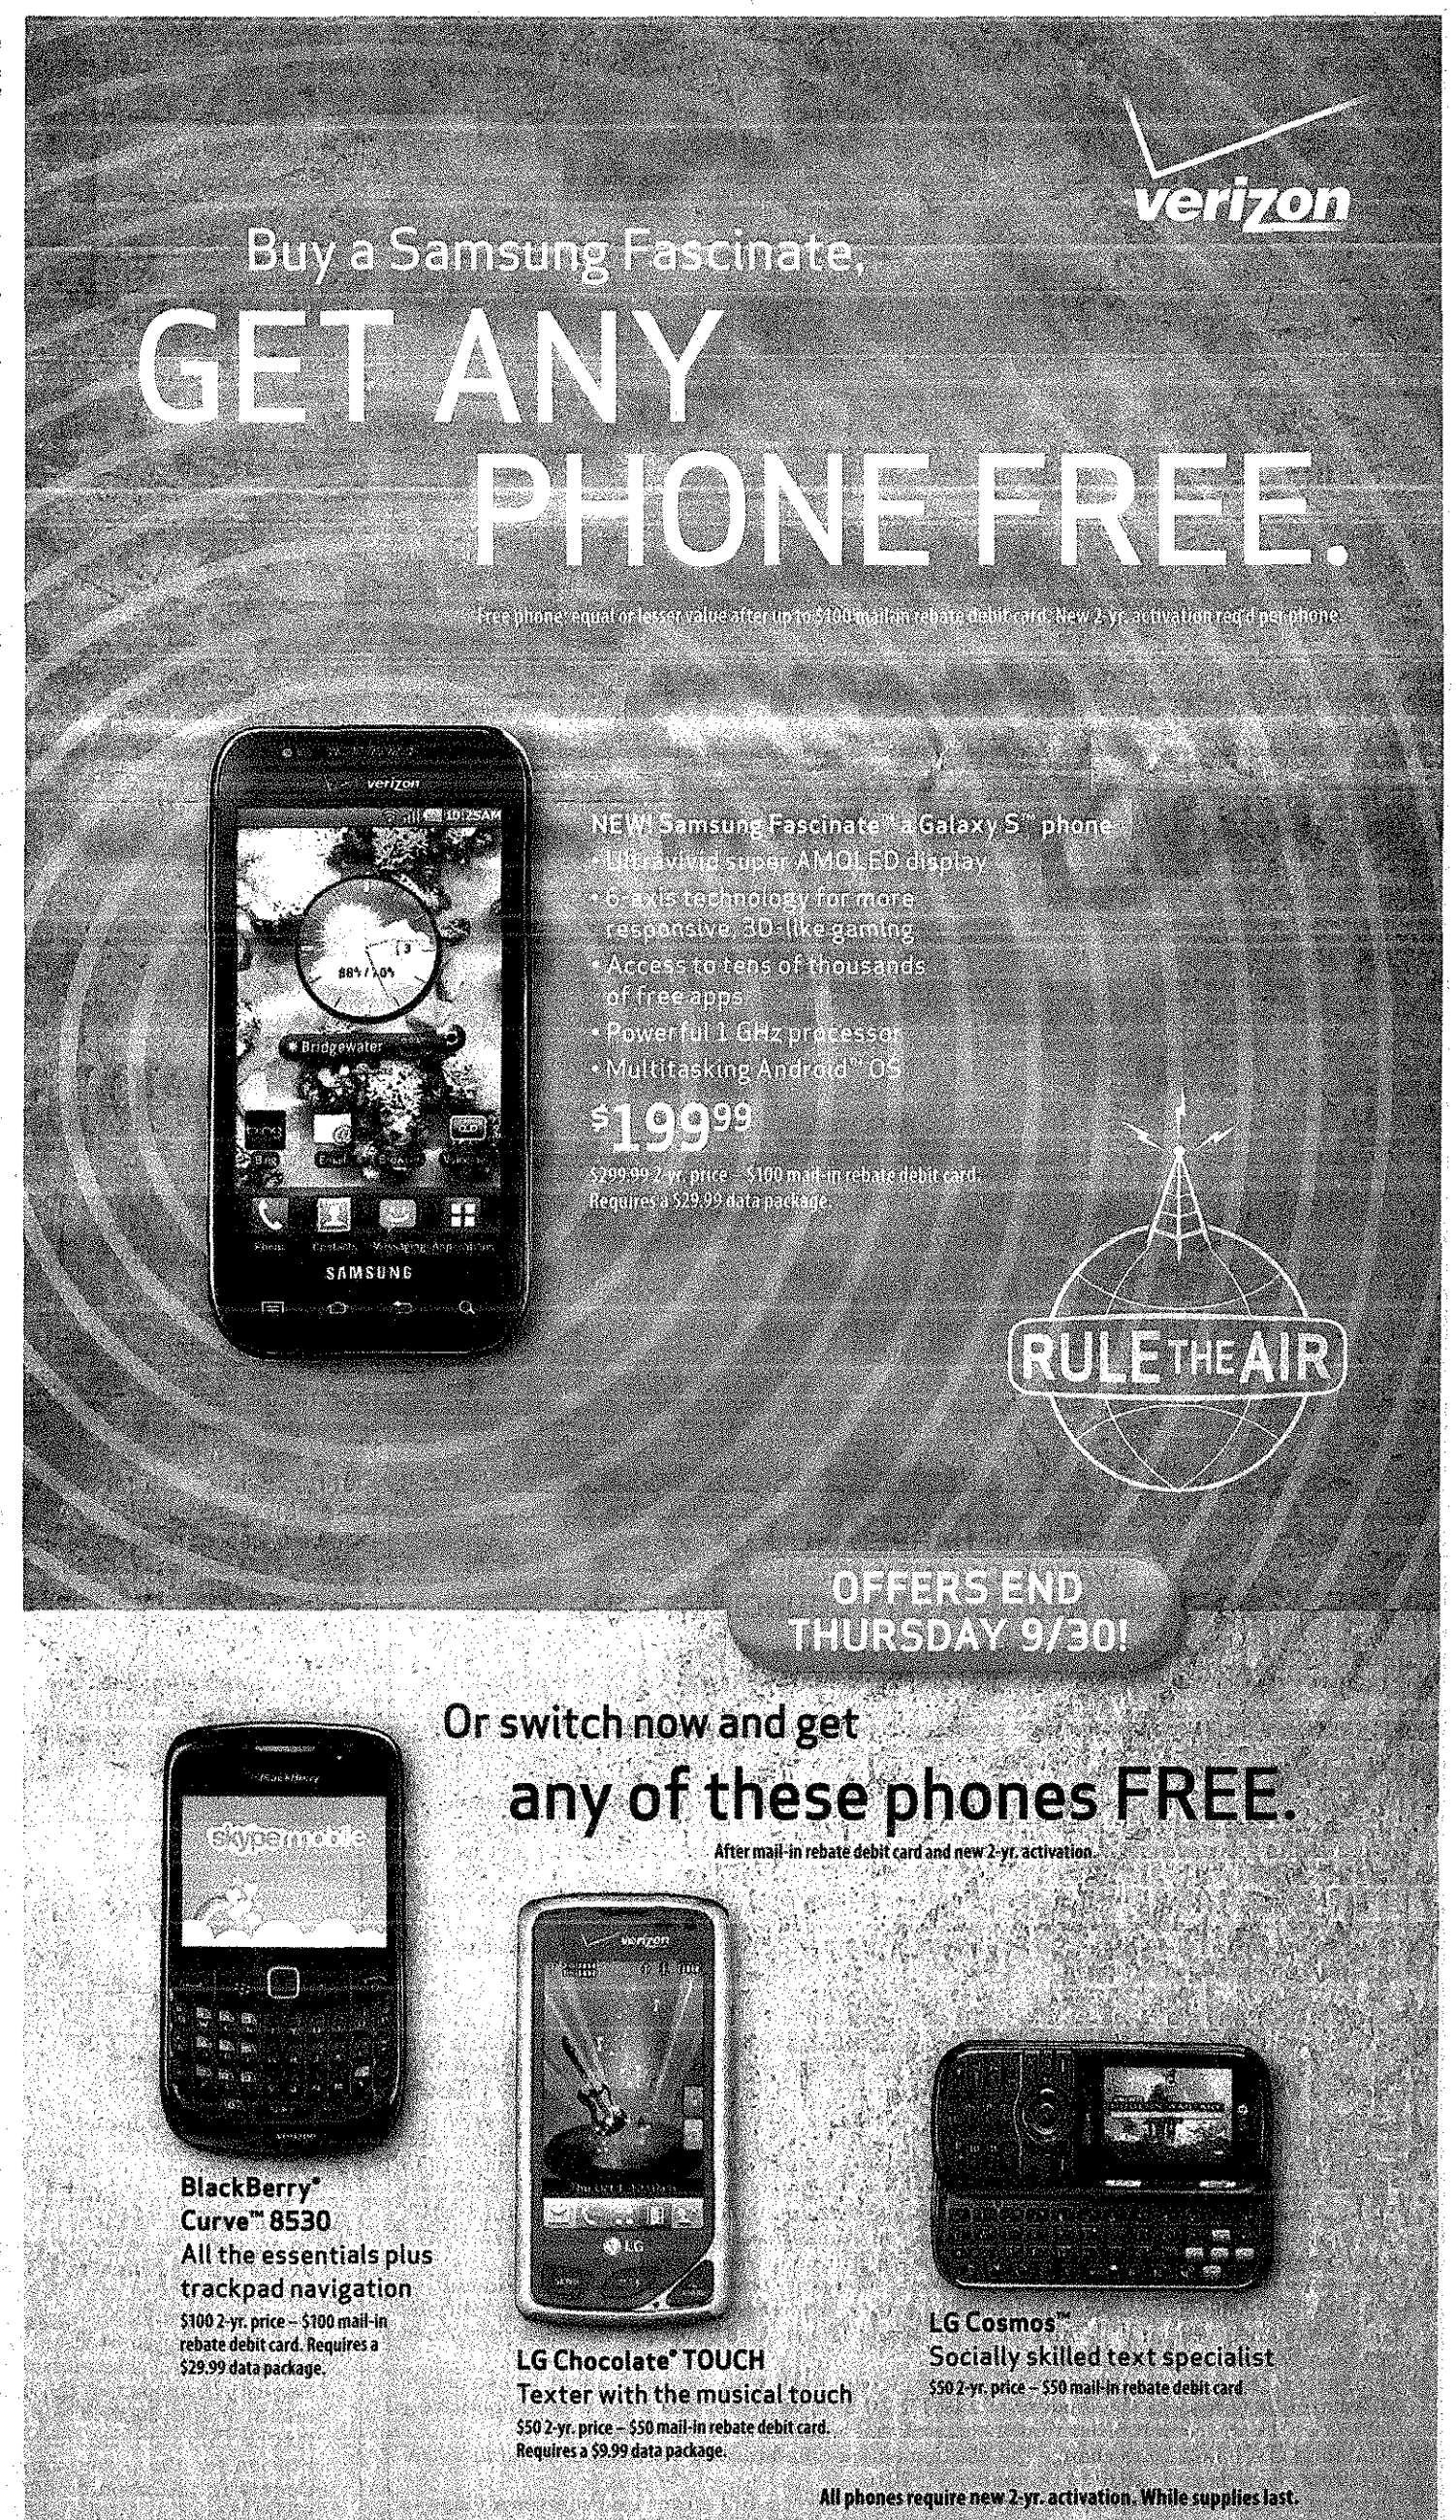
Run-A-Thon applications are found online at gpsathletic-boosters.com/runthep-ointe2010.pdf.

Board candidates meet

The League of Women Voters of Grosse Pointe hosts a forum between two candidates for the open seat on the Grosse Pointe Board of Education from 7 to 9 p.m. Tuesday, Oct. 19, in the Grosse Pointe South High School Wicking Library, 11 Grosse Pointe Blvd., Grosse Pointe Farms.

Incumbent Brendan Walsh and challenger Diane Karabetsos field LWV and audience questions as they vie for the four-year position.

The general election is Tuesday, Nov. 2.



Sharing the stage with Scots

By Amy Salvagno
Staff Writer

They'll be rubbing elbows and sharing sheet music with an international trio whose folk sound is timeless, traditional and a treat for all to hear.

Choir students at Grosse Pointe North and South high schools take part in a one-of-a-kind performance with Caledon, Scotland's Tenors Wednesday, Oct. 6, at the Grosse Pointe Performing Arts Center.

The Pointe Singers and Advanced Women from South and North's Pointe Chorale and Choraliers each have their own time on stage, then join the renowned trio for several songs.

"I love these kinds of opportunities. You can't beat them, they're just wonderful," said South choir director Ellen Bowen. The more professionals they can work with, the better they'll be."

"It's a unique opportunity that they get to sing with some world class musicians who are down to earth," Ben Henri, North choir director, said. "They've worked hard to get where they are and they can show students ways to perform and make music a part of their life, whether as their career or something recreational."

Caledon's legal representation, Grosse Pointe Farms-based attorney Randall Cain, knew the group would be in the area and mentioned the idea to Superintendent Suzanne Klein.

In May, she called together Bowen and Henri with Cain to select a date for the concert.

Bowen said the trio was in town recently and stopped by both schools to meet the choirs. Prior to the concert, Caledon holds a workshop for students, in the morning at South and in the afternoon at North.

"I could tell the men have a great sense of humor. They were joking around with the kids already," she said.

The concert opens with Caledon and the combined choirs singing "Highland Cathedral."

North's Pointe Chorale and Choraliers then perform traditional songs from the British Isles, said Henri, and sets from the nonsensical poem, "Jabberwocky."

The Pointe Singers and the Advanced Medley follow with a Scottish jig and a medley of Scottish tunes from the musical, "Brigadoon," from which came the standard, "Almost Like Being In Love."

Caledon then takes the stage to perform "Scotland Yet!," "Skye Boat Song" and "Amazing Grace."

In total, 120 students are participating in the special concert.

"It's absolutely gorgeous music," said Bowen. "The students are looking forward to it. They're working with three trained opera singers, watching how they work, their stage presence, what's important about being on stage and, of course, the production.

"The more they can hear professional singers, especially men that are trained singers, it's just better for them. I love to bring the women in, but the men especially, as they're all going through the adolescent time, need to hear these guys."

Henri says his students have been focusing on the music since the beginning of the school year.

"It's a lot of stuff to learn in a short amount of time. The music with Caledon, some of it is pretty straightforward, but the kids need the opportunity for it to sink in and get it memorized," he said. "I always seek to challenge them, and each piece presents its own opportunity for teachable moments.

"I'm excited for the kids to work with them, to experience a world class, professional-level performance and to see how music can be made part of their lives."

The concert begins at 7:30 p.m. at the PAC, 707 Vernier, Grosse Pointe Woods.

Tickets are $20 and available at Wild Birds Unlimited, 20485 Mack Ave., Grosse Pointe Woods; Posterity: A Gallery, 17005 Kercheval in the Village of Grosse Pointe; and online at familycenterweb.org.

Fall fun for all

Defer Elementary School drew crowds to its sixth annual Fall Family Fun Festival Saturday, Sept. 25. The Western-themed event featured fun games and seasonal treats. GPFPE gifts welcomed

There's one group the Grosse Pointe Board of Education is particularly happy to see.

The Grosse Pointe Foundation for Public Education is a welcome visitor to the board's monthly meetings, especially with its most recent initiative: a community-wide fundraising campaign to support advanced instructional technology and associated teacher training for classrooms throughout the school district.

The organization has been working to raise $250,000 to be matched with the $500,000 John and Marlene Boll Technology Matching Campaign, which launched in the spring.

This month, the Foundation board approved the presentation of $60,000 in additional funds raised through the challenge campaign, along with the $120,000 match from the Boll Foundation.

The gift of $180,000, which purchases SMARTboards for the middle and high school classrooms, brings the total funds presented by GPFPE to the district for its technology plan to $480,000 against its goal of $750,000.

The school board accepted the donation at its Monday, Sept. 27, meeting.

Additionally, GPFPE delivered a gift of $8,850 for English teachers at the three middle schools to purchase tools to support the writing program.

The software, My Access to Writing Success, has already been piloted and used successfully at the high school level to provide students with immediate feedback on their writing and help gauge improvement in writing skills.

Those in the community interested in helping raise the remaining funds for the technology plan can visit gpfpe.org or call (313) 432-3058.

Thomas Ambrose Carey

Thomas Ambrose Carey died Wednesday, Sept. 22, 2010, in Las Vegas.

A native of Ireland, he was born Dec. 7, 1928, in Mallow, County Cork. Son of John Carey and Hanora Ambrose, Mr. Carey grew up in Limerick with his brother, the Rev. Canon Ned Carey and sisters, Lillian, Vera, Mary and Theresa.

He attended The Model School and St. Munchins College. A proud member of the Bohemian R.F.C., he was a staunch supporter and lifelong fan of Irish Rugby Clubs. He was a member the 49th infantry battalion, Limerick City F.C.A. reserves.

Before emigrating to the United States, he was the manager of Saxone Shoe Company on William Street in Limerick.

Mr. Carey came to the U. S. at age 26 to attend his sister, Lillian's wedding. He became a U.S. citizen and lived in Chicago before settling in Detroit where he met his wife, Alice. They married Aug. 6, 1960, and celebrated their 50th anniversary this year. He was the loving and devoted father of John (Daidre), Eileen, Brian (Anita) and Kathleen and grandfather of Tyler, Madison, Megan, Thomas, Charlotte, Joseph and Michael.

Mr. Carey was a devoted Catholic and defender of the faith. He was a life-long member of the Knights of Columbus and the Knights of Malta and a parishioner of St. Elizabeth Ann Seton Church in Las Vegas. Prior to retirement, he was a parishioner at St. Regis Church in Birmingham and before that, St. Bede Church in Southfield.

Besides his faith and religious devotion, education was Mr. Carey's priority for his children. He sent all his children to Catholic grade schools and high schools and was proud they all attended university. He supported his children's talents and interests.

In the metro Detroit area, Mr. Carey worked as a superintendent for the C.J. Rodgers Construction Company which built many major highways and landmark buildings in the Detroit area, including the University of Michigan hospitals, The Ritz Carlton Hotel in Dearborn, Wayne State University buildings, the I-696 freeway, and Our Lady of Mercy High School (where his daughter, Eileen, later attended). He was a member of the Laborers Local Union 1191 for more than 30 years.

After retirement, he and his wife moved to Las Vegas where they lived happily for 13 years.

His family said Mr. Carey was devoted to them and always there in times of need. He was a generous soul who would give you the shirt off his back. He loved talking to people and had vast knowledge of world history, allowing him to relate to anyone he'd meet. A tall man with a captivating and interesting personality, he commanded the attention of any room he entered. Mr. Carey will be missed by his wife, family and friends the world over.

Visitation will be held from 3 to 8 p.m. Friday, Oct. 1, at Chas. Verheyden Funeral Home, 16300 Mack, Grosse Pointe Park. A rosary will be said at 7 p.m.

A funeral Mass will be celebrated at 10 a.m. Saturday, Oct. 2, at St. Paul on the Lake Catholic Church, 157 Lakeshore, Grosse Pointe Farms. Visitation begins at 9:30 a.m. at the church.

Donations may be made to St. Elizabeth Ann Seton Catholic Church, 1811 Pueblo Vista Drive, Las Vegas, NV 89128-2701.

Philip H. Leon

Philip H. Leon, 83, died peacefully Wednesday, Sept. 22, 2010, at St. John Hospital and Medical Center in Detroit.

He was born Sept. 8, 1927, in Detroit to Henry and Lucille Leon. He was a 1945 graduate of Denby High School, where he was the editor of the school's newspaper, The Denby Log. He earned a Bachelor of Arts degree from the University of Michigan.

Mr. Leon was a nationally recognized master bridge player. He was fond of the fine arts, particularly the opera and symphony. He enjoyed painting, was a gourmet cook and liked gardening. At one time he owned his own furniture store and was highly regarded as an interior designer.

Mr. Leon was the uncle of the late Gary Lance Leon Corbin and is survived by Gary's wife, Carol J. Corbin of Englewood, Fla. He also is survived by nieces and nephews, Kristine M. Britton, Gary L. Corbin, David A. Corbin, Carrie A. Habermehl and Kelly L. Justice and cousins, Kenneth Corbin, Donald (Sue) Dungan, Katherine Curry and David (Nancy) Dungan.

He was predeceased by his father, Henry Leon; mother, Lucille Marie Leon Smith; brother, Jack Leon and grandnephew, James P. Corb.

A private family interment has taken place at Forest Lawn Cemetery in Detroit.

Donations may be made to The Michigan Opera Theatre, Attn: Tribute Gifts, 1526 Broadway, Detroit, MI 48226 or The Detroit Symphony Orchestra, 3711 Woodward Ave., Detroit, MI 48201.

George Charles Fuller

George Charles Fuller, 73, passed away Thursday, Sept. 23, 2010. He was professor emeritus, Wayne State University, where he had also served as dean of the College of Pharmacy and Allied Health Professions. He remained active providing leadership service to advisory boards of the PhRMA Foundation and the University of Rhode Island.

Born May 15, 1937, in Detroit to Winifed E. Fox Fuller and George Kendall Fuller, he earned a Bachelor of Science degree in pharmacy in 1959 and a Master of Science degree in 1963, both from Wayne State University, and a PhD in pharmacology from Purdue University in 1966.

Dr. Fuller spent the next 15 years at the University of Rhode Island as professor of pharmacology and toxicology and lecturer in the department of medicine at Brown University.

While a student at WSU, he met his wife of 51 years, Margery Linton. They lived in Grosse Pointe Park the past 22 years and were active members of the Grosse Pointe Memorial Church.

Dr. Fuller's hobbies included playing bridge and reading. He had a love for sailing that started when he taught his family to sail off the coast of Rhode Island. He continued sailing on Lake St. Clair and was an active member in the Grosse Pointe Sail Club, serving as editor of the Anchorline.

Dr. Fuller's memberships were numerous and included the American Society for Pharmacology and Experimental Therapeutics, Society of Toxicology, American Association for Study of Liver Disease, American Association for the Advancement of Science, the New York Academy of Science and the Rho Chi Society, the national honors society for pharmacy. He received distinguished alumni awards from both WSU and Purdue.

During his career, he published 85 original scientific articles and book chapters and held two U.S patents. He was a preceptor for both graduate and postdoctoral students and taught pharmacology and toxicology.

During his deanship at the WSU college of pharmacy from 1988 to 2000, Dr. Fuller's commitment and vision led to the creation of the new pharmacy and health sciences building which opened in 2002.

He is survived by his wife, Margery; his children, G. Mark Fuller of Oregon, Julie (James) Joiner of Olympia, Wash. and Jeffrey (Connie) of Chesterfield; his sister, Dorothy Fortuna of Warren and his grandchildren, Kelly, Ryan, Zachary and Helayna.

A memorial service will be held at 1 p.m. Friday, Oct. 22, at Grosse Pointe Memorial Church, 16 Lakeshore, Grosse Pointe Farms.

Donations may be made to the George C. Fuller Endowed Scholarship at Wayne State University, Pharmacy and Health Sciences, 5475 Woodward, Detroit, MI 48202 or Habitat for Humanity, care of Grosse Pointe Memorial Church, 16 Lakeshore Road, Grosse Pointe Farms, MI 48236.

Steven William Swan

Lifetime Grosse Pointe resident Steven William Swan, 38, died Friday, Sept. 17, 2010.

He was born Oct. 28, 1971, in Oxford, England, and graduated from Grosse Pointe North High School in 1990. He was a member of the swim team at the high school and enjoyed swimming as an adult.

Mr. Swan was an active member of Christ Church in Grosse Pointe Farms.

He is survived by his father, Jerry W. Swan of Wyoming; sister, Susan Swan; brother, Paul (Dana) Swan; niece, Ada Catherine Swan and nephew, Jack Hunter Swan.

Mr. Swan was predeceased by his mother, Phyllis Jan Hunter Swan.

A memorial service was held at Sept. 25, at Christ Church Grosse Pointe, Grosse Pointe Farms.

Melvin William Frederick

Melvin William Frederick, 86, died Tuesday, Sept. 21, 2010.

Born Feb. 13, 1924, he was predeceased by his beloved wife, Rosalind. He was the dearest brother of Jeanette Neu (Jesse Ballew), Sherlock (Teresa), and Aurey (Carol), the late Wesley and the late Edward. He is survived by numerous nieces and nephews.

Mr. Frederick was the checkers champion at Sunrise of Vernier.

A funeral service was held at Christ the King Lutheran Church in Grosse Pointe Woods.

Donations may be made to Christ the King Lutheran Church, Building Fund, 20338 Mack Ave., Grosse Pointe Woods, MI 48236.

Richard Bills Marsh

Richard Bills Marsh, Grosse Pointe Farms businessman and philanthropist, died Saturday, Sept. 25, 2010, at Munson Hospice Center in Traverse City, after a brief illness.

Born in Lansing, he moved to the Grosse Pointe area at a young age. He attended the United States Naval Academy and graduated from the University of Michigan, School of Engineering, where he was a member of the Beta Theta Pi fraternity.

Mr. Marsh was a member of Grosse Pointe Memorial Church and an active usher for nearly 50 years. As a faithful servant, he served on the church's session.

Mr. Marsh served on the executive board of the local Boy Scout Council, now known as the Great Lakes Council, Boy Scouts of America, from 1983 to present. He served in many capacities and as vice president of endowment from 1995 to 2007. He provided a gift to the organization to build the Marsh Wing of the Dauch Scout Center in 2002.

Mr. Marsh's commitment to service was also evident in Harbour Island, Bahamas, where he had a home and served as president of the Harbour Island Day Nursery for the island children for 13 years. In addition, he was a member of Country Club of Detroit, Young President's Organization and Ducks Unlimited, as well as an honorary board member of the Adult Well-Being Services of Detroit.

Mr. Marsh loved to travel and he and his wife were always planning their next adventure. Their summers were spent between homes in Grosse Pointe Farms and "The Cottage" in Elk Rapids. Winters found them in the warmer climes of Palm City, Fla. and Harbour Island, Bahamas.

Mr. Marsh is survived by his wife, Joan; son, Curtis H. (Judi) Marsh of Grosse Pointe Farms; grandsons, Curtis M. Marsh and Richard J. Marsh; and great- grandson, Jack. In addition, he is survived by his sister, Winnifred Marsh Weyhing and seven nieces and nephews.

He was predeceased by his parents, Benjamin R. and Marjorie Bills Marsh, his sister, Francis Marsh Bergman and his brother, Benjamin R. Marsh Jr., who was the first declared officer on the USS Arizona to be killed at Pearl Harbor in 1941.

A celebration of his life will be held at 1 p.m. Wednesday, Oct. 6, 2010, at Grosse Pointe Memorial Church, 16 Lakeshore, Grosse Pointe Farms.

Donations may be made to the Great Lakes Council, Boy Scouts of America, Dauch Scout Center, 1776 W. Warren, Detroit, MI 48208 or to Grosse Pointe Memorial Church, 16 Lakeshore, Grosse Pointe Farms, MI 48236.

Erbin Dunbar Wattles

Grosse Pointe Park resident Erbin Dunbar Wattles, 95, passed away Tuesday, Sept. 14, 2010, at Sunrise Assisted Living in Grosse Pointe Woods.

Born Dec. 1, 1914, in Buffalo, N.Y., to Lucilla and Raymond Wattles, he attended Cornell University and earned a degree in engineering in 1937. While at Cornell, he was captain of the varsity hockey team and a member of Alpha Delta Phi fraternity.

After graduation, Mr. Wattles joined Dunbar and Sullivan Dredging Company. A family firm established in 1844, he spent his entire working career at the firm, becoming the president and chief executive officer.

He served with distinction during the World War II. Maj. Wattles was an ordnance officer and a battalion commander with the 4th Armored Division. His decorations included the Legion of Merit, two Purple Hearts, and a Bronze Star with oak leaf cluster.

Mr. Wattles loved ballroom dancing and gardening. As an avid horseman, he enjoyed riding and fox hunting. He was a past president of the Grosse Pointe Hunt Club and enjoyed managing many of the club horse shows. He was president of the Propeller Club of Detroit and honored by its members as the "mayor of the Detroit waterfront" for his efforts to promote understanding and use of the waterfront.

He was predeceased by the love of his life, Gennette, his wife of 60 years; his sister, Lucilla D. Cook and his brother, Raymond W. Wattles.

Mr. Wattles is survived by his son, Raymond H. Wattles of Atlanta, Ga. and his daughter, Gennette "Annie" Faust of Grosse Pointe Farms. He also is survived by four grandchildren, Harris and Sarah Wattles and Marcus and Gennette Faust.

Michael James Brennan M.D.

Grosse Pointe Shores resident Michael James Brennan M.D. passed away at his home Wednesday, Sept. 22, 2010. He was 89.

He was the beloved husband of Rita and father to eight children and their spouses: Brian and Catherine Molloy, John and Linda Brennan, David and Theresa Klaasen, Timothy and Renee Brennan, Peter and Patricia Sullivan, Howard and Mary Kaplan, Joseph and Margaret Brennan and Kevin and Ann O'Brien.

Born in Detroit to Frank and Catherine Brennan, Dr. Brennan graduated from University of Detroit Jesuit High School and the University of Detroit. He earned his medical degree from Loyola University in Chicago.

Dr. Brennan's professional accomplishments were numerous. He volunteered and served in World War II, as well as in the Korean War. He trained at Cook County and Henry Ford hospitals. During the Korean War, he served as base hospital commander at Fort Monmouth, N.J.

After his time in the service, he and his family settled in Grosse Pointe and he became the founding chairman of oncology and hematology services at Henry Ford Hospital in Detroit. He remained there until his appointment as president of the Michigan Cancer Foundation, now known as the Barbara Ann Karmanos Cancer Center.

Dr. Brennan was professor emeritus of medicine at Wayne State University. He lectured frequently at medical symposia and is credited with numerous published articles and books. Among his contributions were the introduction and implementation of hospice and related concepts to health care, as well as significant developments in cancer treatment and research.

Dr. Brennan's professional achievements were eclipsed only by his personal accomplishments as a husband, father, grandfather and great-grandfather. In addition to his immediate family, he is survived by 25 grandchildren and 15 great-grandchildren.

He was beloved and will be dearly missed by each of them as well as the many others he touched with his goodness.

A funeral Mass was celebrated Sept. 15 at St. Paul on the Lake Catholic Church in Grosse Pointe Farms.

Donations may be made to Loyola University Medical Center, Office of Development, 2160 S. First Ave., Maywood, IL 60153.

Mary Raven

Longtime Grosse Pointe resident Mary Raven, 91, died Saturday, Sept. 4, 2010, at her residence in East Lansing.

She was born Mary Lucille Cavanaugh April 14, 1919, the youngest of eight children. She was married for 57 years to William Raven and together they raised six children in Grosse Pointe.

Throughout her life, Mrs. Raven enjoyed golf, tennis, bridge, gardening and traveling with friends. In retirement, she and her husband moved to Sarasota, Fla., where she remained until four years ago.

Mrs. Raven is survived by her sons, William (Aleks), Terrence, Thomas (Elaine) and Michael (Paula); daughters, Jackie (Carl) Oleson and Kathy (Bob) Rinaldi; 11 grandchildren; 10 great-grandchildren and many nieces and nephews.

Krasl: Michigan's 'west coast' concours

The event? The 6th annual Krasl Concours — the Midwestern version of the famous August concours on the West Coast.

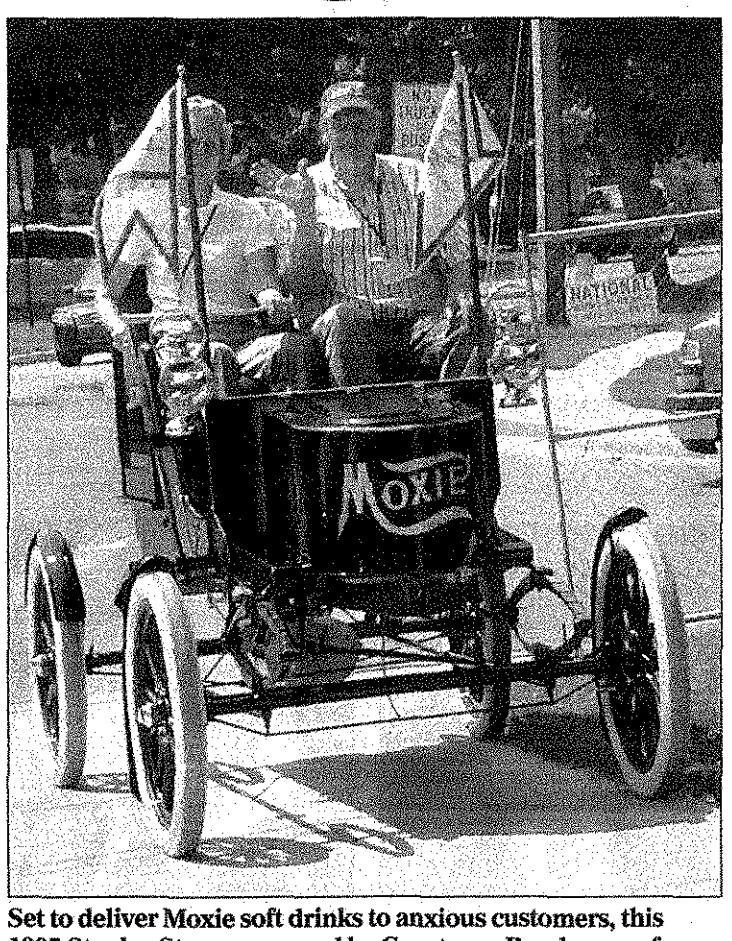
Pebble Beach draws literally hundreds of unusual vehicles, many of them imports, and all of them exotic in one way or another.

The Krasl Concours — a benefit for the Krasl Art Center under the direction of Dar Davis — this year featured more than 80 cars plus a few vintage motorcycles.

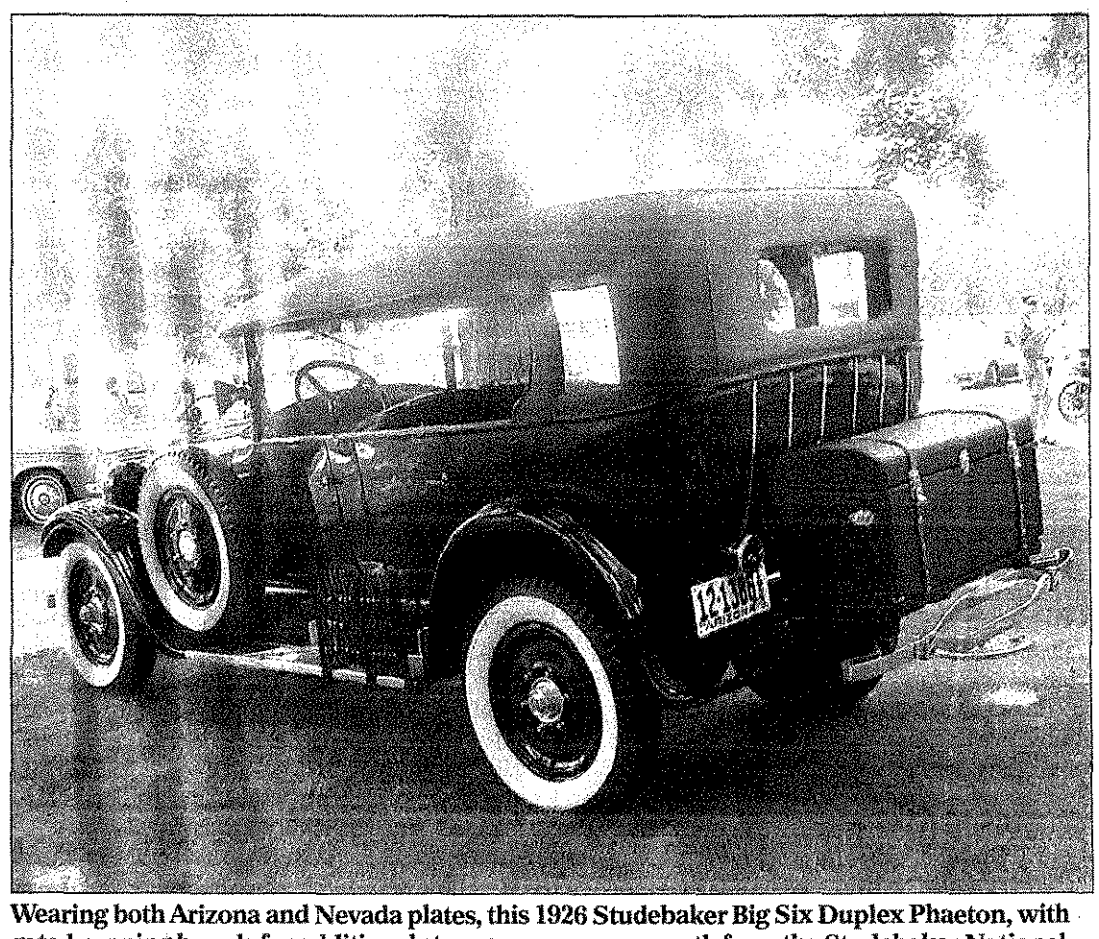
Admission at Krasl: $5 per person or $10 per family. A general admission ticket for the 60th annual Pebble Beach Concours d'Elegance is $150 in advance and $175 on the day of the show. However, that price includes shuttle service, which one needs as parking is horrendous. In St. Joseph, one can park a few blocks away and walk to the bluff.

This year, you could have enjoyed learning about the 1905 Stanley Steamer, a light panel truck owned and driven with its tiller steering by Constance Boudeman, the great-granddaughter of Francis Edgar Stanley. Francis Edgar and his twin brother, Freeland Oscar Stanley, founded the Stanley Motor Carriage Company, manufacturer of Stanley Steamers, in 1902.

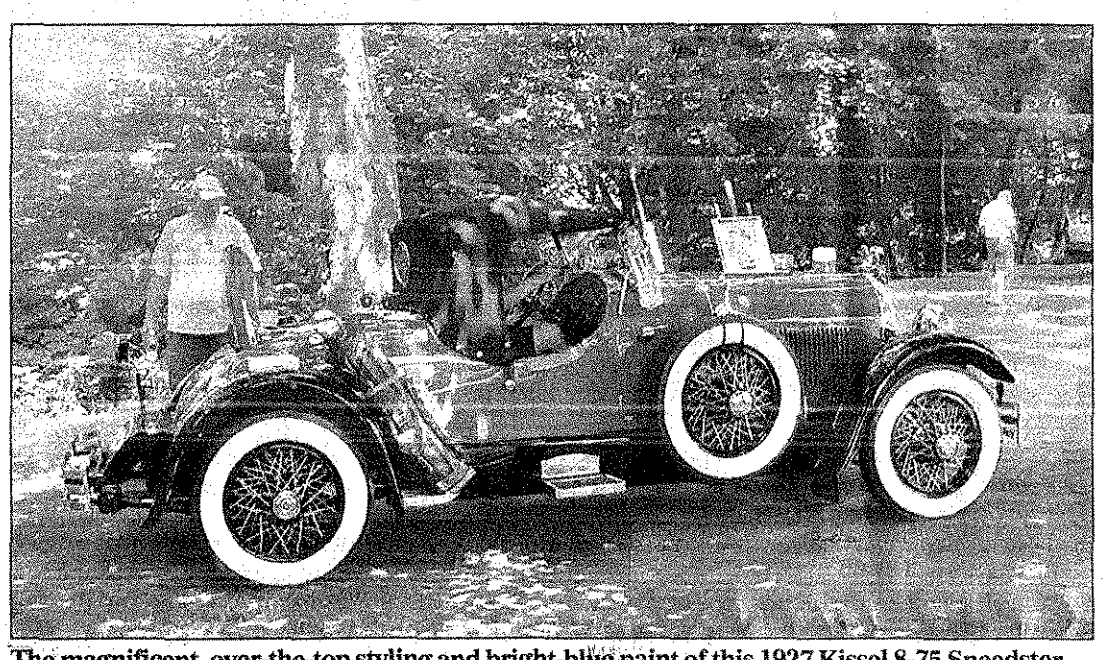
See CONCOURS, page 7A II



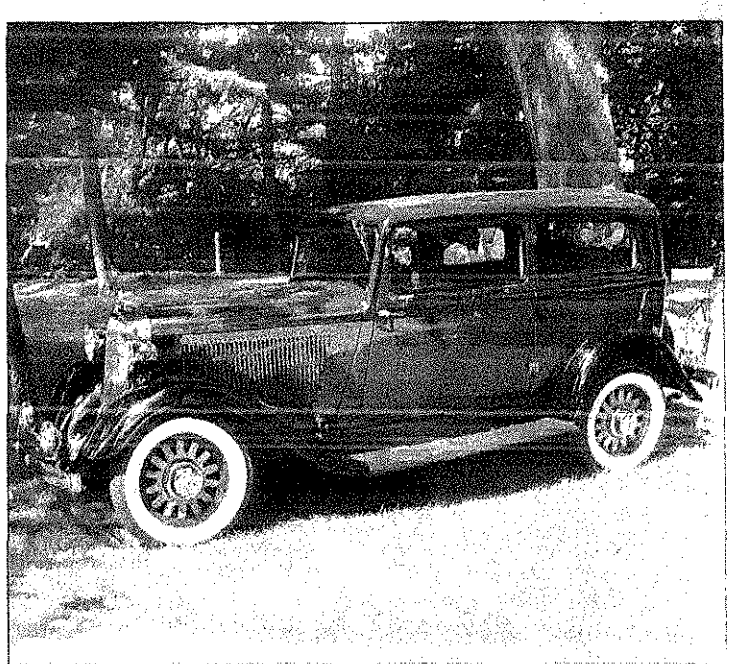
Set to deliver Moxie soft drinks to anxious customers, this 1905 Stanley Steamer, owned by Constance Boudeman of Richland, leaves a trail of water droplets in its wake.



Wearing both Arizona and Nevada plates, this 1926 Studebaker Big Six Duplex Phaeton, with gated running boards for additional storage space, came north from the Studebaker National Museum in South Bend, Ind.



The magnificent, over-the-top styling and bright-blue paint of this 1927 Kissel 8-75 Speedster, owned by Ken MacKinnon of Freeland, made it a favorite among visitors to the 2010 Krasl Concours.



Donald and Marion Hixson of South Haven brought their charming 1933 Plymouth.

Assir DaSilva of South Haven, brought his front drive 1951 Citroen 11 BL to the 2010 Krasl Concours. DaSilva said he had wanted one of the 1930s-styled Citroens since he was a 10-year-old boy growing up in Brazil. DaSilva's Citroen won the "most unusual" award at the Krasl show.

CONCOURS: 1927 Kissel Speedster

The Boudemans' 1905 Stanley, prepared to deliver Moxie soft drinks wherever ordered, is a gear-driven with an ash frame, said Buck Boudeman.

"It gets one mile per gallon of water and 10 mpg of fuel (kerosene)," said Boudeman who, with Constance, owns other Stanleys and old Indy cars in Richland.

Moxie, a bitter-sweet carbonated beverage first produced more than 125 years ago, is the state drink of Maine, Boudeman added. The Stanley Steamer won the "working class" award at this year's Krasl show.

Attracting as much visitor attention as the Stanley Steamer, Ken MacKinnon's 1927 Kissel 8-27 Speedster appeared more intent on heading for the country club than delivering sodas.

Outfitted with two vintage golf bags, the bright-blue Kissel with black fenders and shiny horse collar-shaped grille was ready to show once restoration was complete ear-

The last year of the Nash-Kelvinator-Healey sports car for the United States, this 1954 Nash Healey roadster with Pininfarina styling is owned by Paul Burt of Lake Forest, Ill. The two-seater appears to have its original (now nicely cracked) leather seats; a cord serves as a door handle.

William Waite of Grand Rapids, owns this 1967 Sunbeam Tiger Mark II roadster, which does not look at all ferocious.

CONCOURS: Perfectly restored

lier this summer.

"It was missing some significant parts," said MacKinnon of Freeland, who bought much of the car in a box four years ago. "I've always had a car in pieces that I'm working on.

"I went looking for a Buick, but when I saw it, thought it was too far gone," he said. "Then I spotted at the same place what looked like (part of) a Kissel — which I was familiar with."

MacKinnon said this gentleman's sports car is one of some 36 built by the Hartford, Wis., company between 1920 and 1927. There are only nine "8" models running, he said.

The Kissel won the "people's choice" award.

Taking its styling cues from the decade following the Roaring '20s, Assir DaSilva's 1951 Citroen 11 BL Traction Avant still has the flared fenders Flaminio Bertoni designed for the car in the early 1930s.

DaSilva, of South Haven, said he had wanted one of these front-drive Citroens since he was a 10-year-old growing up in Brazil.

He learned through a work colleague this car was available and five years ago traveled to The Netherlands to seal the deal.

"It was perfectly restored," he said of his Citroen with four-cylinder engine, six-volt battery, unibody construction and independent suspension. Although the car weighs less than 2,000 pounds, it cost DaSilva $5,000 to ship the sedan to his house.

DaSilva pointed out to visitors the gear shift lever is up on the dash and his Citroen has what the underworld described as a one-body trunk.

The 1939 Chevrolet Master Deluxe Town Sedan, owned by Robert and Diane Sovis of Fenton, has a trunk that would accommodate at least one body.

Robert Sovis, who has owned this top-of-the-line Chevy for more than 42 years, said the pristine sedan is all original, except for repainted fenders and new wheels.

The car, with subtle white accents on the grille and a fabulous interior, is pristine because Sovis treats it like royalty.

"I recently washed it underneath and I wax the gas tank every year," he said. "We do drive it," he continued. "I've put 39,000 miles on it over the years."

Built in Janesville, Wis. and priced at $720 new, Sovis' Chevrolet came with a 216-inch six. Features such as arm rests, hood ornament, heater and carpeting were extra-cost options.

Starting with 40 special vehicles back in 2005, this concours continues to grow and prosper. Vehicles selected by invitation must be 35 years old or older and are required to be in working condition, powered by what is or would have been original equipment, said concours organizer Davis.

Jenny King is an automotive writer who lives in the City of Grosse Pointe.

Earl Farr of Belleville, restored this 1953 Mercury Monterey convertible from the ground up, according to his wife, Benny, who said she graduated from high school that year.

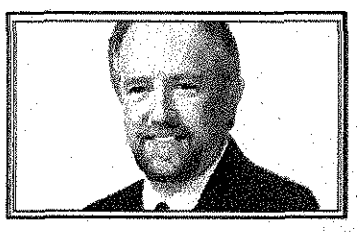
TEST DRIVE By Greg Zyla

Camaro joins Ford Mustang and Dodge Challenger as present day "Pony Car" offerings, a nickname derived from the car's smaller size, long hood, short deck and performance-inspired nucleus.

2010 Camaro SS



This week, we're in retro land as I test drive the new 2010 Camaro SS, fitted with a 426 horsepower LS family V8 engine and a 6-speed manual transmission — base price: $33,745; price as tested: $37,090.

This test drive has more to do with muscle car performance than it does with the safety features and amenities, but rest assured all these modern items are in place. Having owned a 1968 Camaro SS/RS 396/375 with an M22 rock crusher Muncie 4-speed, I can relate well to Chevy's new offering and tell you up front this is an amazing and refined vehicle.

Although the prior 396-454 family of big blocks has long since disappeared from Chevy's everyday car offerings, the new Camaro SS features an impressive computerized fuel injected small block V8 that not only offers the same or more horsepower, it does so while delivering 16 city and 24 highway miles per gallon. My '68 SS got about six in the city and maybe 10 mpg highway if I stayed out of the pedal.

Although the new Camaro does have some past generation design cues, it is the most diverse of today's offerings, as Challenger and Mustang are closer in looks to their respective Pony Car past. Camaro transcends by adding a more contemporary touch via a lower, sleeker look.

Camaro's egg crate grille, which my '68 featured, is good looking as is the large Chevy Bowtie which sits in the middle of the grill. A smaller SS

Toyota announces pricing for 2011

Toyota Motor Sales, USA Inc., introduced the 2011 Highlander and Highlander Hybrid mid-size SUV, along with a change on the suggested retail prices for the Prius mid-size hatchback, Venza mid-size crossover and FJ Cruiser mid-size SUV.

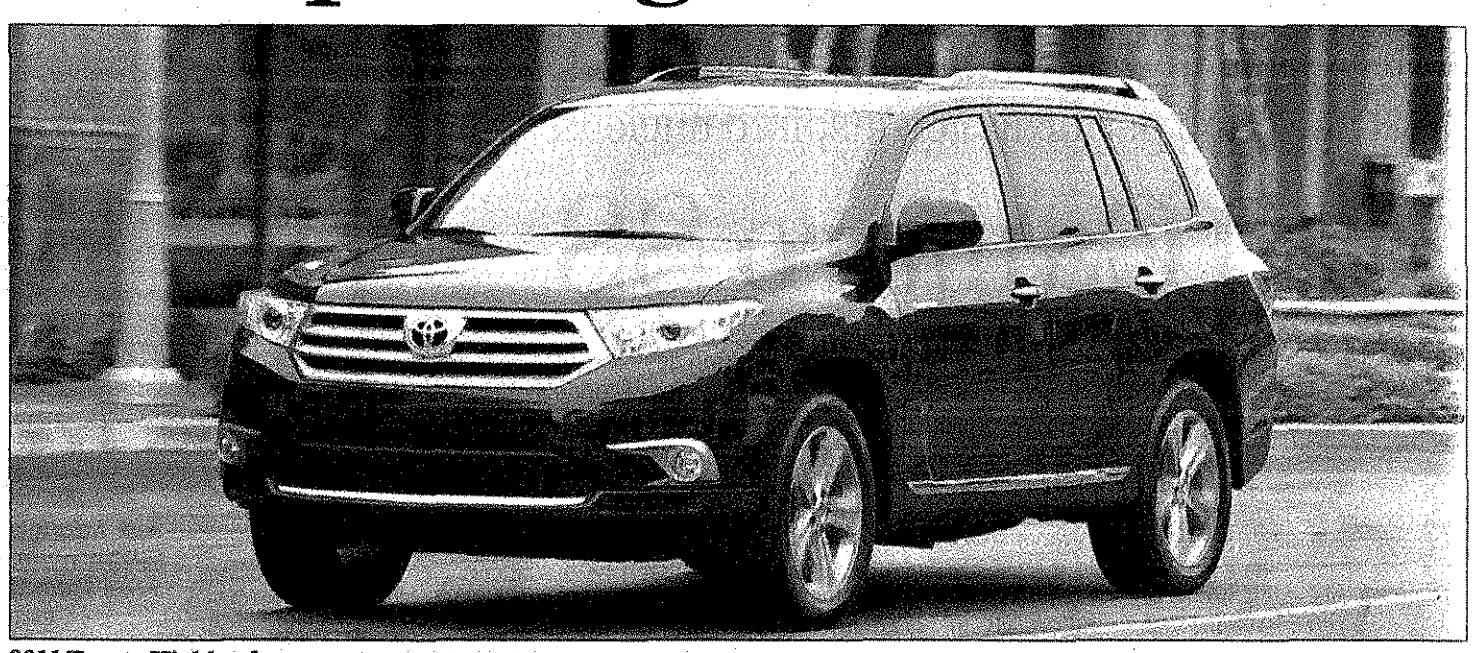
The 2011 Highlander models began arriving at dealers Sept. 24. The 2011 Venza arrives early October, followed by the Prius and FJ Cruiser in late November.

For 2011, standard equipment levels are improved across all Highlander grades to meet customer demand. The Highlander and Highlander Hybrid receive styling changes to the interior and exterior, including an all-new front fascia, hood and fenders.

All models now include a standard 50/50-split third-row with rear climate control, improving both cargo flexibility and passenger comfort.

A new tech audio package includes a USB port, integrated satellite radio and Bluetooth hands-free phone and streaming audio. In addition to featuring the Star Safety System, standard on all Toyota models, the 2011 Highlander receives standard Smart Stop Technology, Toyota's brake override system.

The SRP for Highlander begins at $27,390 for the base four-cylinder two-wheel drive model; the SE V6 two-wheel drive is $33,150, while the Limited V6 four wheel-drive model is $36,345. The SRP for Highlander Hybrid ranges from $37,290 for the base model to $42,945 for the Limited model.



2011 Toyota Highlander

The Prius, celebrating 10 years of sales in the U.S., has a SRP range of $23,050 for the Prius Two model to $28,320 for the Prius Five model, an increase of $250, or 0.9 to 1.1 percent.

The Venza mid-size crossover continues to be equipped with Smart Stop Technology in 2011. The SRP ranges from $26,475 for the four-cylinder FWD model, to $29,750 for the V6 AWD, an increase of $200, or 0.7 to 0.8 percent.

The 2011 FJ Cruiser mid-size SUV features technology and equipment upgrades, along with interior refinements including better passenger ingress/egress and more advanced audio systems.

The enhanced standard audio system includes steering wheel audio and Bluetooth controls, XM Radio (includes 90-day trial), USB port with iPod connectivity, and hands-free phone capability and music streaming via Bluetooth wireless technology.

The 2011 FJ Cruiser also receives Smart Stop Technology. The SRP for the 2011 FJ Cruiser ranges from $25,090 for the 2WD model to $26,680 for the 4WD model with automatic transmission, an increase of $1,110, or 4.3 to 4.6 percent.

CAMARO: Own your dream car

badge sits on the driver's side grille, along with built-in fog lamps on the front valance. The design swoops forward and down in the front, while the old design was indeed upward and boxier. The rear deck has a spoiler, more SS badging, and nice two-group taillights. There's also enough room in the trunk for usual food order trips or a few suitcases.

Styling aside, it's what's under the hood that gets your heart pounding. There sits an LS3 6.2-liter engine that produces 426 horsepower and 420 pounds of torque delivered to a 3.42 rear end through a 6-speed manual transmission — automatic is available. When you depress the accelerator to the floor, which I did several times, thanks to my being allowed to test the car at a friend's IHRA sanctioned drag strip, you are taken from mild-mannered, 24 mpg street driver into Corvette land, with 0-60 times in 4.8-seconds and 100 mph coming in about 10.5 seconds.

These performance numbers come in a highly sophisticated, rear drive manner. The '68 solid rear axle Camaro would start rattling and shaking when you let it all out and hit a bump, while the new Camaro utilizes all of the General Motors know-how in modern day high performance. As for underpinnings and brakes, there is no comparison. The 2010 Camaro features 4-wheel Brembo ABS disc brakes and 20-inch tires that grab the road unlike the tire smoking, non-ABS and poor brake equipped '68. The fully independent suspension with sway bars keeps Camaro glued in the turns, more like a modern day sports car that, in reality, it is.

If there is an Achilles heel, it's curb weight. This Camaro is much heavier than I'd like at 3,849 pounds, which robs potential acceleration and performance. If you order the automatic, weight goes up to 3,902, although fuel mileage increases by one on the highway, thanks to cylinder reduction — V8 to four — technology at highway speeds.

Inside, there's ample room up front with beautiful touches. I really liked the gauges on the console, a direct parallel to 1968. The seats are great, and, according to plan, don't expect rear seat passengers to be too happy if you're making a long trip. It's very tight back there, but the kids will love it. All expected safety equipment is intact, as are all the amenities which your Chevy dealer will show you during your test drive.

Important numbers include a wheelbase of 112.3 inches, SS base price of $30,995, 11.3 cubic-feet of cargo room, and a 19-gallon fuel tank.

Overall, this Camaro is a real head turner, and the new generation of youth still openly give the "thumbs up." Perhaps the best comment came from a 22-year-old valet parking attendant who quipped prior to taking the keys: "That's my dream car. One day, I'm going to own one."

I can't argue with that as the Camaro SS excitement is still here, and better than ever. It's a great bang for the buck.

Dislikes: Some blind spots, not much else.

Pieces are coming together

It may be National Sewing Month in the United States, but for 20 local women in Pieces Be With You, sewing is celebrated every Tuesday.

The women get together at St. Paul Lutheran Church in Grosse Pointe Farms for a few hours of sewing, talk and prayer.

During their hours together they create quilts and pillowcases — quilts are given to members graduating from high school or being baptized. Others are sent overseas to people in distressed areas.

The standard-size pillowcases are taken to area hospitals for use in children's wings.

The women of Pieces Be With You sew 60-by-70 inch comfort quilts for wounded veterans and 60-by-80 inch quilts for Lutheran World Relief.

"Lutheran World Relief," explained the group's founder Cathy Wroble, "is one of the largest and well-recognized charities which receives about 200,000 quilts a year from around the world. They must be made with polyester batting with the outer shells of durable fabric."

Quilts given out by LWR are more than blankets. They are used for walls and shelter from the sun, she said.

"(St. Paul) members have been to Tanzania and Jerusalem and seen the quilts on hospital beds. It is a neat connection," Wrobel said. "A former pastor went to Tanzania and slept under a LWR quilt."

Quilts made for those baptized in the church, no matter the age, are personalized with their name and date of baptism. It becomes a keepsake, said Wroble, of Grosse Pointe Park.

Each quilt given to a graduate is also personalized, but in a different way.

"Graduation quilts can be adapted from a ba-

Special Announcement

"THE ORIENTAL RUG/CARPET: PAST AND PRESENT"

Thursday, October 28th
7:00-9:00pm • $50 per person*

Alan Marschke, one of only five nationally certified Oriental rug appraisers in Michigan, will share his passion for rugs and carpets and the art of carpet making. You'll learn about the types of rug styles, the theoretical origins of pile weaving, the history of dyes, and take a closer look at today's Oriental rugs. Care and cleaning issues will also be discussed. He'll have examples that will take your breath away. Your questions will be encouraged throughout the class.

We will also discuss the recent U.S. embargo of all Persian Rugs from anywhere in the world and its possible ramifications on the value of Persian Rugs going forward.

CLASS LIMITED TO 30 People
CALL (313) 884-1455 TO SIGN UP

Alan Marschke received his M.A. from Wayne State and studied at the Textile Museum in Washington, D.C. He is on the Board of Directors for the Asian and Islamic Art Forum of The Detroit Institute of Arts.

DO YOU NEED DRAPERY OR BLIND CLEANING? ANYTHING THAT HANGS ON A WINDOW CLEANED!!

You know from reading the Shopping Reviews in the past that the professionals at Angott's sell and repair anything that hangs on a window. But they want you to know about the extensive cleaning services they provide. No matter how unusual (or usual!) your window treatments are, Angott's has just the right procedure to clean them! Their Ultrasonic Cleaning for your hard to clean mini blinds will have them sparkling clean again. Or, for those unusual window treatments, they can use the Injection Method, infusing the cleaner into the treatment and then extracting it along with every bit of dust and dirt – leaving those treatments beautiful and clean again. Of course there's always the traditional method of dry or wet cleaning of your draperies, curtains and sheers. Today is a great day to have your window treatments cleaned by Angott's. And the best part is - they have a convenient take down and rehang service that saves you time and effort. Call 313-521-3021

Grosse Pointe News

This one is for you, our valued and future advertisers. I wanted to take the opportunity to draw your attention to this unique form of effective budget-conscious advertising...

SHOPPING REVIEWS BY SALLY

- This column is unique because it is a personal review of your business, product, or service.
- Shopping Reviews are budget-conscious, because each ad in this column is generally less than $30!!
- But most importantly, they are effective! The feedback I have been getting from readers and business owners is people are reading these reviews and patronizing these businesses!! One of my advertisers, a landscape company, ran their ad one time, it cost under $20, and they got immediate response! Within the week the ad ran they received 6 calls and were already cutting 2 new accounts by the time I called to see if they would be running again!
- Shopping Reviews are a great way for small businesses to begin advertising, or as an effective "add on" for a regular advertiser to highlight a special product, service on promotion on a given week.

So how about you? Ready to give it a try? I would love to receive your call and tell you more about this wonderful opportunity. Contact Sally Schuman at (313)343-5586 or sschuman@grossepointenews.com Monday – Friday 8:30-5:00.

Yesterday's Headlines

Editor's note: The following excerpts appear as they were printed in the Grosse Pointe News.

1960
50 years ago this week

◆ PARK BUYS MCMILLAN ESTATE: The Park council approved the negotiation and purchase of the McMillan Estate property adjacent to the proposed Three Mile Drive park site. The cost to the city for the property has been set at $64,300.

A stipulation in agreement is that although the city will have title to the entire property, both fast and submerged lands, Mrs. McMillan will be permitted to remain on the estate until her death; the Park will not take possession until that time.

With the purchase, the city now has a total of 20 to 25 acres of land for the park. Development of the Three Mile park site, formerly occupied by the U.S. Army, has started with the land grades and seeding.

◆ WOODS POLICE PISTOL TEAM CHAMPS: The Farms Police Pistol Team, Metropolitan Club Pistol Champs for the last eight years, bowed out and lost the championship to the Woods police team.

◆ PUBLIC INVITED: The Milk River Flood Control station in Grosse Pointe Woods will be open for public inspection Saturday, Oct. 8.

The pumping station is one of the largest in Michigan and serves both the Woods and Harper Woods by elevating and discharging all of the storm water collected from the Milk River, Girard and Black March Drains, into Lake St. Clair.

◆ MEMORIAL LIQUOR LICENSE IS CLOSE: Officials at the War Memorial have confirmed that they are trying to buy the existing Class C liquor license belonging to the now-defunct Bronze Door.

If all goes according to plan, the license is likely to be in place by Thanksgiving.

◆ DETROIT GROUP FIGHTS POINTE REALTY SPLIT: The minority caucus of black Detroit real estate agents has softened its language in its stand against the Grosse Pointe Real Estate Exchange. Members were quoted as recently as Sunday suggesting that the Grosse Pointe move to split from the Detroit Board of Realtors amounted to "apartheid"; organizers of the group are now saying that their opposition to the split is business-motivated.

◆ CITY APPROVES SEAT BELT ORDINANCE: At its regular council meeting, the City voted 5-0 to adopt an ordinance adding to the state's Uniform Traffic Code to provide for safety belt usage in automobiles.

The adoption brings the City into compliance with the code and allows the City to collect fines from violations instead of sending the money to the state.

◆ CIRCUIT JUDGE PARES NYCE SUIT IN SHORES: Wayne County Circuit Judge Isidore B. Torres eliminated a number of plaintiffs and counts from the lawsuit pending against the Shores and the Grosse Pointe Yacht Club over a proposed expansion of the club's harbor. He also dismissed five counts.

Issues that have yet to be settled include alleged past accretion and efforts to halt future expansion of the Yacht Club and Shores harbor.

◆ FAULTY STREET LIGHTS LATEST WOE IN FARMS: Like so many problems that have plagued Grosse Pointe Farms in the past year, the problem with street lights going out, especially after rain storms, is connected with the massive sewer separation project currently going on.

◆ NEEDS PERMIT: Alerted by a pile of dirt and gravel in the 800 block of Lochmoor, a Grosse Pointe Woods officer has cited a basement waterproofing company for working without required permits. The company also received a ticket for the unlawful deposit of materials in the street.

◆ STATE WANTS SEWER OUTFALLS SEALED: The state and Grosse Pointes are having a falling out over sewer outfalls.

The Shores and Farms have been threatened with fines up to $25,000 per day unless they close sewer outfalls to Lake St. Clair.

Outfalls are the last line of defense against basements flooding by sanitary sewer water during extremely heavy rains.

◆ SHORES DREDGING REQUEST ON HOLD: Efforts are on hold to clear accretion from the shoreline north of Vernier.

State environmental regulators this month confirmed withdrawal of a dredging permit application by two Shores residents.

◆ KITCHEN FIRE: A 13-year-old boy called Grosse Pointe Farms firefighters in time to prevent his family's house from burning down.

The boy told a dispatcher the oven was on fire at this house in the 400 block of Moran. Public safety officers patrolling the community in scout cars beat fire trucks to the scene. Patrolmen used hand-held chemical extinguishers to beat down flames from the stove, microwave, cupboards and ceiling.

1960: Raise another roof

Since ground was broken for the Grosse Pointe Woods Presbyterian Church 13 years ago, expansion has been a constant need. The roof will be on the third addition to the original building in the next few weeks. The $150,000 addition to the sanctuary will provide seating for 250 additional worshippers, increase the choir stalls, include a balcony and a cloak room.

QUILT: Joining ends

sic pattern that can be done in a lot of ways," she said. "We find out what each graduate is interested in, for example swimming or lacrosse or colors they like. It is made specifically for them. We did 10 of them this year."

Wrobel said she started the group in 2002 after observing store-bought blankets given to the church's graduates.

No, she decided, each should have a special, handmade quilt.

A confessed quilt addict, Wrobel enticed a dozen members to join her once a week, year-round, to piece together blankets. Since then it has taken off, gathering members from as far away as Auburn Hills.

One member joined because, while taking her evening walk, she saw lights on in the church basement and stopped to investigate.

Quilting is addictive to more than Wrobel.

"There is no place to send us for rehab," said Kerry Edick of Grosse Pointe Woods.

To feed their habit, some women are planning a retreat where they can indulge their passion.

At least a dozen women headed for Amish country in Berlin, Ohio, to sew for an entire weekend, buy more quilting material and eat Amish-prepared food.

"This is our sixth year. There is a set of four condos set up with sewing equipment, with tables the right height and lighting. We go there to sew. It's in Amish country and they have good Amish food and we shop for fabric. It's Thursday through Sunday for $125 per person. There are six to a condo."

They feed their need to sew. Wrobel has been quilting since high school, though she won't say how many years. She does have a son who is starting college in January.

Yet, it's more than sewing.

"We are sharing individuals. We pray for each other," Wrobel said.

"I've been with the group three years," said Vivian Fritz of St. Clair Shores. "I joined with a friend, Dana Miller. I love to sew. I've been sewing since I was 10. The quilt was something new, something different than clothing. I enjoy the group, mostly the fellowship in what I perceive as quilting bees, the shared and carried (feeling) for each other and play and pray. It's a good Christian group.

"I'm new at this. I'm learning a lot of new techniques."

All levels of sewing ability are welcome to the group, Wrobel said. "In the meeting they thread the ties to do 20 to 50 ties."

All the fabric is donated, but the batting is purchased. To raise funds, Wrobel sells block kits for $1 a block. The blocks are sewn together per an enclosed pattern. In time, all the sewn blocks come together to make a unique quilt and backed by a cast-off, yet usable bed sheet.

"I feel you can never have too many quilts," Wrobel said.

There are always openings in Pieces Be With You. For more information call Nadine Hunt at (313) 821-2166.

Literacy center opens learning labs

The partnership is a collaboration of public and private sectors; designed to enhance learning and to address literacy needs of individuals in the greater Detroit area. The expanded services at Dominican build on existing programs and resources.

The vision is to have an impact not only on students personally but on the economic health of the Detroit area by providing people with skills needed to obtain and maintain family-sustaining employment.

As a participant in the Learning Labs Partnership, the center provides the following: assessment, tutoring and academic support; computer-based,

Holiday Mart benefits Planned Parenthood

More than 30 local and national specialty shops showcase their merchandise at Planned Parenthood Mid and South Michigan's 52nd Annual Holiday Mart Thursday, Oct. 14 — Saturday, Oct. 16, at the Grosse Pointe War Memorial, 32 Lakeshore, Grosse Pointe Farms.

Opening with a Gala Patron Preview Party from 5:30 to 9 p.m. Thursday, Oct. 14, guests can shop, eat hors d'oeuvres and drink beverages donated by local restaurants and businesses. Friday and Saturday hours are 9:30 a.m. to 5 p.m.

Vendors' merchandise include jewelry and accessories, gourmet food items, boutique wear, children's clothing, linens and holiday gifts.

The event benefits the cancer prevention programs of Planned Parenthood Mid and South Michigan, which provides cancer screening, pap tests, breast exams and follow-up treatment for low-income, uninsured and underinsured women.

Honorary chairman and chairwoman for the 2010 Holiday Mart are Mary and Hudson Mead.

"Every year the Holiday Mart offers just the right mix of high quality and beautifully rare items," said committee co-chairwoman Marsha Goan. "It's the perfect place to get all of your holiday shopping done, and for a worthy cause."

Co-chairwoman Mary Kosmalski agreed. "The committee is working so hard to make sure that everyone is aware of the importance of this event. Purchasing your holiday items at the Holiday Mart gives Planned Parenthood the opportunity to make sure that uninsured and underinsured women have access to all of the preventive services that Planned Parenthood offers."

Tickets for the preview party cost $75 and patrons have unlimited mart weekend access.

General daily admission is $5 at the door.

For ticket and vendor information visit holidaymartgrossepointe.com or plannedparenthood.org/midsouthmi/ or call (734) 926-4813.

High school choirs join Caledon in benefit

By Ann L. Fouty

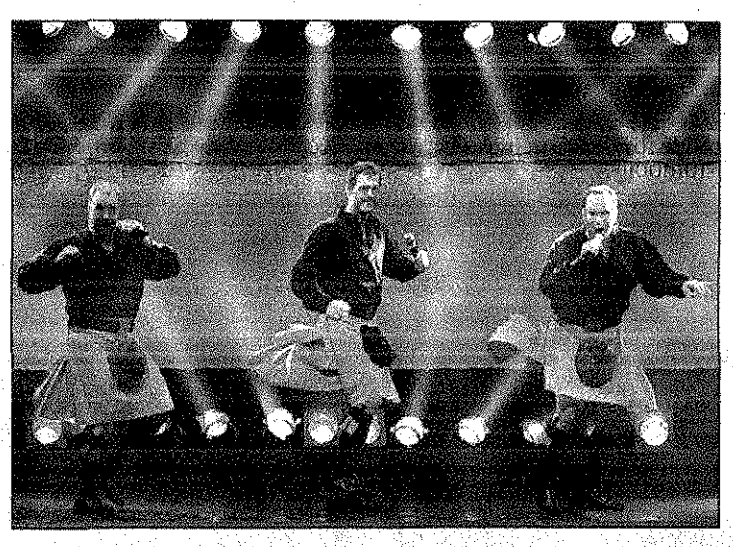
Dressed in Scottish clan kilts, Caledon, Scotland's Tenors sing at 7:30 p.m. Wednesday, Oct. 6, in the Performing Arts Center, Grosse Pointe North High School, 707 Vernier, Grosse Pointe Woods.

The trio, Alan Beck, Jamie MacDougall and Ivan Sharpe, and musical director, Michael Barnett, are joined by the Grosse Pointe North and South High School choirs, for The Family Center of Grosse Pointe and Harper Woods benefit.

Stopping in Grosse Pointe last week on their way to Mexico, the trio met with the high school choir directors and looked at the upcoming concert's venue.

"We met 20 years ago at the music conservatory," Beck said via phone while traveling between South and North high schools of how the men met.

Beck said the trio shares with students its 20 years of musical and stage presentation knowledge prior to the October concert because sharing those experiences are part of their overall package.



Caledon, Scotland's Tenors perform at 7:30 p.m. Wednesday, Oct. 6, at the Performing Arts Center as a benefit for The Family Center of Grosse Pointe and Harper Woods.

They help the choirs learn the application of music, improve their repertoire and explain vocal and choral training, Beck said.

A reception to meet Beck, Sharpe and MacDougall follows the concert.

"We don't just sing traditional Scottish songs. We sing pop songs from the Eurythmics and traditional songs such as 'Auld Lang Syne.' People already know the songs. Some people will think they will hear classical opera and they don't get classical opera but we do fun shows and have lots of hairy knees," Beck said.

Caledon is accompanied by Barnett, who Beck describes as "a whiz on keyboards." Otherwise, the trio is "self-sufficient."

The rousing "500 Miles" is slated to close the show.

"It's very upbeat (but) all bets are off" when it comes to singing in front of an audience, he said.

MacDougall, a baritone, and Sharpe, a tenor, both trained at the Royal Scottish Academy of Music and Drama. They met Beck while studying at Guildhall School of Music & Drama, London, who was the principal tenor with the State Opera Stuttgart from 1996-2002.

WRCJ broadcasts live from War Memorial, Oct. 5

By Ann L. Fouty
Features Editor

WRCJ 90.9 FM hosts a friend raising event Tuesday, Oct. 5, at the Grosse Pointe War Memorial, 32 Lakeshore, Grosse Pointe Farms.

The five-year-old classical and jazz music radio station broadcasts live locally from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m.

The remote serves a two-fold purpose, said Roger Hull, the station's manager, major donors. First, to let listeners know what cultural venues are available in the community and second, to meet listeners, who are invited to stop by during the day. Between the songs, local cultural groups are highlighted with live performances and interviews by station personalities Dave Wagner and Chris Felcyn.

With more than 200,000 listeners, Hull said, Grosse Pointers are well represented in that number, thus the reason for the local appearance.

This is the second remote the station has undertaken. The first was last year at the Ann Arbor Hands-On Museum.

WRCJ call letters mean "we are classical and jazz," Hull said.

The station plays 14 hours of classical music and 10 hours of jazz to a listening audience from northern Oakland County to Ann Arbor, Toledo and southwest Ontario.

The station was provided seed money in 2005 by the Kresge Foundation. Just recently, Hull said, the station signed a five-year contract with the Detroit Public Schools to continue running the station on its behalf from downtown Detroit studios.

"We are the most listened to pubic station in southeast Michigan," Hull said.

ASK THE EXPERTS By RP Rajarethinam, M.D.

There is much to learn about mental illness

The Family Center
Grosse Pointe • Harper Woods

Q. Can mental illnesses be prevented?

A. Although there is an increased interest in prevention of mental illness in recent years, the field is still in its infancy.

Unlike cancer prevention, there is still much to learn. The brain is the most complicated organ, and as yet, we are not clear what the pre-conditions of mental illnesses are and/or how to identify and treat them.

Q. Can anything be done to possibly help prevent mental illness?

A. As to general principles, the following actions or activities may help:

◆ Discipline in day-to-day life can help reduce unnecessary stress and we know stress is a major issue when it comes to mental illness.

◆ Avoiding street drugs will certainly help reduce the risk of mental illness, especially when one is in their teens and the brain is still developing.

◆ Sleep is an important function that helps the brain obtain needed rest and get ready for the next day. When humans do not sleep well for more than a few days, they can have a range of problems.

Q. Is mental illness genetic, something you inherit from parents, grandparents, etc.?

A. Yes, we inherit the susceptibility for mental illness just as we inherit the susceptibility for other illnesses. The odds of developing schizophrenia, bipolar disorder, or depression increase when we have a family member with that illness.

Q. Does it mean that children with a family history need to see a doctor or take medications?

A. Not necessarily — but as mentioned earlier, their odds of developing the illness increases. These children need to be a bit more careful in being disciplined in daily life, including sleep, and should avoid drugs.

If these children have problems or issues, they need to see a doctor or therapist. For example, some youngsters are affected more than others by simple, temporary setbacks and if they are taught to handle stress better through Cognitive Behavioral Therapy, they seem to do well in the long term with a reduction in future mental illness.

Q. If prevention is difficult, is there a program specializing in the early treatment of any serious mental illnesses?

A. Yes, the Services and Treatment for Early Psychoses clinic at Wayne State University specializes in the prodrome of schizophrenia. This includes vague symptoms of false and strange beliefs, aloofness and a decline in school or job functioning which lasts for several months. They may appear depressed, but in general they are not interacting or taking care of themselves well. STEP is staffed by a WSU psychiatrist, psychologist and research nurse.

For further information about STEP, contact RP Rajarethinam, MD, associate professor, Wayne State University, at (313) 577-1396.

Beaumont chief nurse appointed to commission

Beaumont Hospital, Royal Oak vice president and chief nurse executive, Val Gokenbach was appointed to the American Nurses Credentialing Center's Commission on the Magnet Recognition Program.

As a commissioner, she serves a four-year term and is responsible for the governance of program activities, including approving program criteria, designating magnet credentials and evaluating the program's strategic direction.

The program was created in 1994 to bestow national recognition on health care organizations that demonstrate 14 attributes.

Gokenbach, of the City of Grosse Pointe, has held administrative health care positions for more than 30 years. Her leadership responsibilities included management of nursing and other support departments such as radiology, respiratory therapy, radiation oncology, nuclear medicine, oncology services, neurodiagnostic services, employee health, schools of allied health, patient service departments and emergency services.

"ANCC greatly appreciates Val Gokenbach and Beaumont for her service to the commission on magnet. Her experience and expertise will be a terrific asset to the magnet community," says Karen Drenkard, director of the program.

Magnet hospitals have shown better patient outcomes, offer an environment where nursing professionalism is encouraged and is a strong commitment to teamwork,

Symphony performed mini-concerts

Four musicians representing the Grosse Pointe Symphony performed three mini-concerts for patients and caregivers at St. John Hospital and Medical Center and St. John Senior Community.

The musicians were violinists Joe Striplin and Julia Kurtyka; violist James Gross; and cellist Sylvelin Bouwman.

The first concert was in the chapel and broadcast live to patients throughout the campus.

"Patients who tuned in were so appreciative," said the Rev. Corey Kennard, manager, Spiritual Care. "They even asked for the quartet to keep playing because it brought such joy to their day."

The group went to the Van Elslander Cancer Center and repeated its program. Several patients passed through the lobby and one woman stopped her husband's wheelchair for several minutes to listen. She whispered a "thank you" to them as the quartet played.

The group stopped at St. John Senior Community, where the four played for nearly 50 residents and caregivers. Activities coordinator Lisa Gornowicz and her team moved the wheelchair-bound patients into the gathering space.

One woman told the musicians she had wanted to clap so badly, but she and other residents had arthritis and simply were unable.

A man didn't want to go back to his room because he wanted the music to continue. And an associate of 15 years and classical music fan was thrilled to have the group there, and said that she was so looking forward to their arrival.

"Classical music, more than any other kind, can span the entire range of human emotion," said Striplin, music director. "And we know that people enjoy music in their own environment, which is why we came to the hospital and nursing home."

"We are so grateful to them for coming," Corey said. "And word has spread. I've had numerous comments about how wonderful the concerts were."

Funding cancer research projects

Co-chairs and new trustees were named to the board of the Michigan Cancer Research Fund.

Mr. and Mrs. Dainforth B. French Jr., of Grosse Pointe Farms, are the co-chairs.

The new trustees include Mr. and Mrs. Robert G. Liggett Jr., Mr. and Mrs. James B. Nicholson, S. Gary Spicer Sr., and Mr. and Mrs. Michael A. Vlasic.

"The Michigan Cancer Research Fund provides its board of trustees a unique opportunity to actively participate in seeking a cure for cancer utilizing the resources of the American Cancer Society," said Dainforth French. "MCRF trustees are able to take advantage of the society's world-renowned peer-review process, which evaluates the most innovative cancer research projects currently seeking funding."

An initiative of the American Cancer Society and its Great Lakes division, MCRF has awarded more than $300,000 to three researchers since Bill Campbell organized the group in 2008.

"Cancer is one of the most complicated groups of diseases to research and treat," Dainforth French said. "The opportunity to experience cancer research firsthand and become acquainted with the researchers, laboratory procedures and equipment is well worth the investment to me. We may be supporting the next Nobel-prize winning cancer researcher."

According to Jill Elder, senior executive director, American Cancer Society, Great Lakes Division, the society is unable to fund all of its approved grants. As a result, a significant number of potentially lifesaving research ideas are not being pursued. They are approved to pay only if funds become available.

"Each year, MCRF trustees receive a summary of the top three critical projects in need of funding," she said. "At the annual meeting, trustees cast their ballots to select the research grant they deem most deserving. The support from this group of local philanthropists continues to make the many possibilities of cancer research a reality."

The research of Kurt Januszyk, Ph.D., who works in the department of structural biology at the Sloan-Kettering Institute for Research in New York is pursuing "Investigations Into How the Exosome Recognizes and Degrades RNA (ribonucleic acid)," because of a MCRF grant. The research is designed to reveal how the normal process of RNA decay occurs and the potential to understand a cellular mechanism that is relevant to cancer.

For more information, visit mcrf.org and contact Elder at (248) 663-3428 or jill.elder@cancer.org.

continuing education and improving standards for patient care. Magnet hospitals demonstrate excellence in the management, philosophy and practice of nursing; adhere to national standards to improve patient care quality; and understand and respect the cultural and ethnic diversity of patients, their families and other health care providers.

This is exemplified at Beaumont by the Professional Nurse Councils at all three Beaumont hospitals comprised of nurses serving in an advisory and decision-making role to provide leadership in nursing practice, professional development, outcomes and research.

A LA ANNIE By Annie Rouleau-Scheriff

Tailgate party calls for beer bread

I'm heading off to a tailgate party this weekend. Overall I'm not a huge fan of the usual pre-game fare. Too many hot dogs, hamburgers and chips for my taste.

For a change of pace, I baked a loaf of basil beer bread to be paired with extra sharp cheddar cheese and sliced hard salami. Spicy mustard compliments the trio.

The basil beer bread has a texture similar to soda bread. It's easy to prepare, easy to tote and even easier to enjoy. Really.

Basil Beer bread

1 teaspoon olive oil
3 1/4 cups all-purpose flour, plus more for work surface
1 .25 oz. package active dry yeast (baking aisle)
1 1/2 teaspoons coarse kosher salt
1/2 teaspoon black pepper
3/4 cup grated parmesan cheese
1 12-oz. ale (beer)
1 cup chopped fresh basil

Preheat oven to 400 degrees. Spread olive oil over a bake sheet and set aside.

In a large bowl, combine the flour with the yeast, salt, pepper and parmesan cheese. Stir in the ale, just long enough for the mixture to become a dough. Using floured hands, transfer the dough to a lightly floured surface. Gently knead in the chopped basil using as few strokes as possible. Shape the dough into a round loaf and place on the oiled bake sheet. Bake at 400 for 40 to 45 minutes, until golden brown and the loaf passes the clean toothpick test.

Transfer the loaf to a wire rack to cool for at least 10 minutes before slicing.

FOOTBALL

South finally beats North, 14-6

By Bob St. John
Sports Editor

Grosse Pointe South's football team rode a strong defensive effort to beat city rival Grosse Pointe North 14-6 last weekend.

The annual grudge match was the pinnacle of the Grosse Pointe communities' Victory in the Pointes celebration and played in front of an overflow crowd at Grosse Pointe North.

The last time the Blue Devils beat the Norsemen was 15-13 in 2002. The current players from both teams were in elementary school.

"Our defense was outstanding and coach (Rob Wozniak) Woz deserves a lot of credit for getting his unit prepared for this effort," South head coach Tim Brandon said. "We knew we had to stop (Jimmy) Guest and their running game. We did for the most part.

"This is a big win for us and now we have to keep the focus and get after our next opponent because we have a long way to go in this season."

"We got some things going, but every time we were in position to score, we would get a big penalty," North head coach Frank Sumbera said. "It was a hard-hitting game and a tough loss. I knew our kids would come out fired up and they were, but once again mistakes killed us."

After a scoreless first half, the Blue Devils jumped out to a 7-0 lead on the first possession of the third quarter.

Senior quarterback Ben Fry ran around the left end for a 52-yard touchdown and junior Jon Parker kicked the extra point.

The Norsemen put together a strong drive early in the fourth quarter, but junior quarterback Dylan Balicki's fourth-down pass off a reverse play fell incomplete.

On the ensuing possession, the Blue Devils put an insurance touchdown on the board when junior running back Eddy Mollison ran through a stacked box to race 51 yards into the end zone.

Balicki and the Norsemen didn't give up and made things interesting, using a nine-play drive to get into the end zone.

Junior Anthony Sarkis ran five yards for the TD on a fourth-and-goal play with 30.9 seconds left.

On the drive, Balicki scrambled for a 15-yard run and completed a 25-yard pass to senior Nolan Rozich. In addition, the Blue Devils were whistled for four penalties for a total of 40 yards.

LIGGETT

Comeback falls shy

By John McTaggart
Special Writer

A trio of first-half turnover led to 21 points, putting University Liggett's football squad in too much of a hole to overcome Sterling Heights Parkway Christian last weekend, 27-19, despite a valiant fourth-quarter comeback effort.

"I think we were hurrying and rushing things on offense in the first half, for sure, and we didn't get into any rhythm," Knights coach Dan Cimini explained. "That really put our defense in a hole. I really think we left a lot of plays on the field offensively in the first half. That was disappointing."

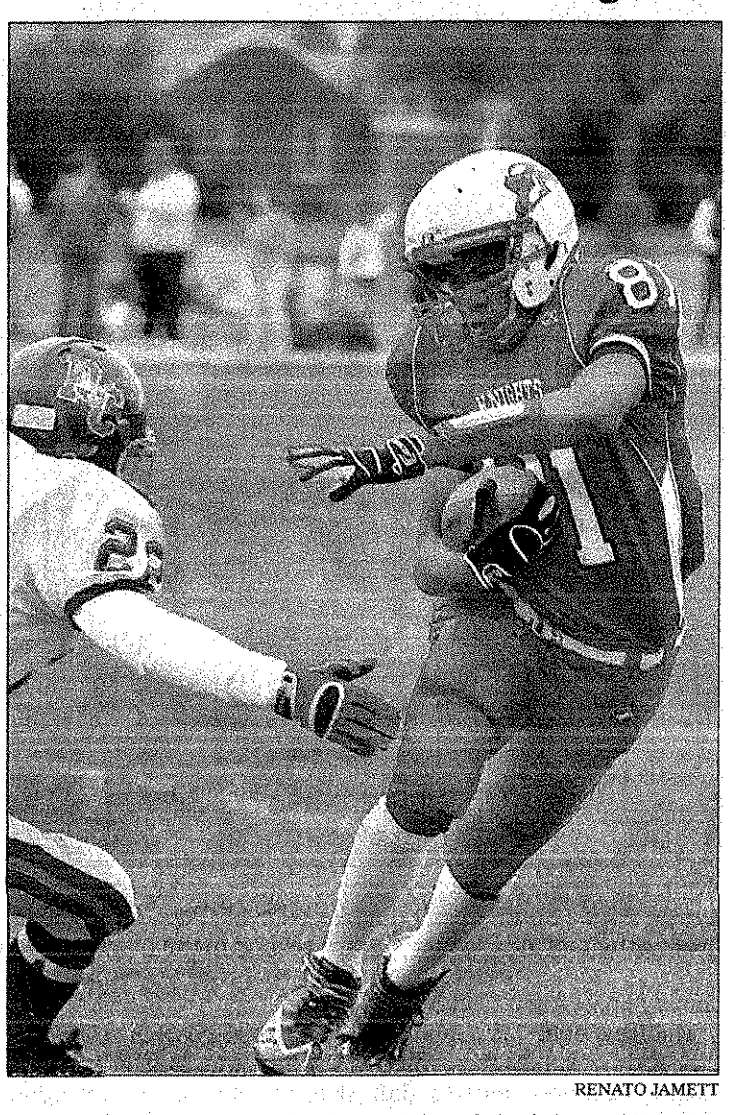
The three scores yielded to the Eagles in the opening two quarters put Liggett down 14 points, 21-7, heading into the break. Once the second half kicked off, however, the Knights simply outplayed one of the Michigan Independent Athletic Conference's favorites.

"I was very proud of how we battled back," Cimini admitted. "I was very proud of the intensity we came out with too and how hard we fought against a very good team in the second half."

Liggett held a potent Parkway Christian offense to just a pair of field goals in the closing two quarters, and outscored the Eagles 12-3 in the final 12 minutes of the contest.

The first of the team's fourth quarter scores came thanks to the feet of quarterback Nathan Gaggin (12-of-19 for 167 yards), who scrambled in from 2-yards out for the score. The touchdown pushed the score to 24-13 early in the closing quarter.

Liggett's second scoring drive was capped off with a 14-yard pass from Gaggin to wideout KeVaughn Jackson, moving the score to 24-19.



RENATO JAMETT

That's as close as the Knights would get, however, as Parkway Christian capitalized on a late-game interception and eventually ran out the clock, sealing the victory.

With the loss, Liggett fell to 2-1 in the MIAC, 3-2 overall.

"I think we might have come out a little nervous," Cimini explained. "We're a young team overall, and we might have come out a little hesitant, maybe. That cost us. But we'll learn from this and move forward."

The turnovers were crucial in the outcome of the game, Cimini says.

"When we don't turn the ball over we're very tough," the coach said. "If we do turn it over, well, then we can really put ourselves in a hole. That's what happened today."

Despite the loss, Liggett fans can find solace in the fact that the squad is young and still improving, and, in all honestly, ahead of the curve in regard to most young and inexperienced football teams.

"I think our young guys are ahead of the curve," Cimini explained. "You have to remember, these guys are already football players coming in, though. Most of them played Red Barons and stuff, so they're coming in here ready to go. We're only going to get better, and that's something to be excited about."

South beats North to top division at 8-0

Junior Ella Pendy led the Blue Devils with a 38, followed by freshman Lily Pendy and junior Claire Boyle with a pair of 41s. Freshman Tenley Shield was also in on the scoring, posting a 42 as the Blue Devils clinched the title under first-year head coach Peter Kingsley.

The following day, South beat city rival Grosse Pointe North 162-192 to complete the dual match part of the schedule with a perfect 8-0 mark.

"We played a decent match, but we weren't close to a very talented South team," North head coach Brian Stackpoole said. "Peter has his girls playing very well and playing with a lot of confidence.

"However, I like the attitude my players have and they're improving. We gained some confidence with our league win earlier in the week."

Grosse Pointe North's Jenna Paglino watches a shot during her match against Grosse Pointe South.

In the city rivalry match, South was led by Ella Pendy with a 39, followed by Lily Pendy with a 40, Boyle with a 41 and Shield with a 42.

For North, Courtney Wickham had a 45, followed by Katlin O'Shea with a 46, Paige Micks with a 50 and Ali Scoggin with a 51.

The Norsemen were able to get that elusive division victory with a close 198-200 outcome over Utica Eisenhower.

"We have played Eisenhower four times this season and each time we have been very close with them," Stackpoole said.

"I'm sure we will be close again in the division tournament with us coming out on top, I hope."

The Blue Devils also played earlier last week, beating Port Huron Northern 154-163 as three of the four girls posted a sub-40 round.

Boyle was the medalist with a 37, followed by Ella Pendy with a 38, Lily Pendy with a 39 and Shield with a 40.

Grosse Pointe South finished 8-0 in the MAC Red Division and overall, while Grosse Pointe North was 1-7 in the Red and 2-7 overall.

Coming up for both teams is the MAC Red Division Tournament Thursday, Sept. 30, in Port Huron.

College notes

Grosse Pointe South graduate and Loyola University Chicago freshman Carey Farley tied for 50th overall with a 36-hole score of 169 (82-87) while competing as an individual at the Chicago State Cougar Classic in Hammond, Ind., Sept. 20 and 21.

As a team, Loyola placed third in the 14-squad tournament.

RIVALS

South 2nd, North 3rd, ULS 5th in tourney

By Bob St. John
Sports Editor

University Liggett's boys' tennis team hosted its long-running tournament last weekend.

Cooler temperatures greeted the players. Ann Arbor Pioneer won it with 23 points, followed by Grosse Pointe South with 17, Grosse Pointe North and Ann Arbor Greenhills with 13 and Liggett with 12.

Dearborn Fordson, Dearborn and St. Clair Shores Lakeview finished in the bottom three.

"It was a nice day of tennis with some outstanding matches from all of the players," Liggett head coach Chuck Wright said.

South head coach Tom Berschback watched his No. 2 singles player, Matt Keane, win the flight with a 6-2, 6-1 victory over Grosse Pointe North's Matt Slavik in the championship match.

The Blue Devils' other singles players, John Willard at No. 1, Charlie Miller at No. 3 and Matt Clune at No. 4, each won two of the three matches they played.

The Blue Devils' No. 1 doubles team of David Harris and Will Quinn won 2-of-3 matches. The other three doubles squads also won 2-of-3 matches to help the team take second place and earn a trophy.

Ted Berkowski and Henry Brophy played No. 2 doubles, while Alex Padilla and Colden Gosselin were at No. 3 doubles and Alex Gosselin and Dan Garberding played No. 4 doubles.

For head coach Drew Mascarin and Grosse Pointe North, Dan Amato and Slavik won 2-of-3 matches at No. 1 and No. 2 singles, while Bryan Butts and Michael Kain won 1-of-3 matches at No. 3 and No. 4 singles.

In the Norsemen's four doubles flights, Michael Fayad and Jeremy Harr won 2-of-3 matches at the No. 4 slot.

Michael Maas and Patrick Hastings finished 1-for-3 at No. 1 doubles, as did the No. 2 doubles team of Jeff Irving and Michael Plouffe and the No. 3 doubles tandem of Bobby Mulpuri and Jason Vismara.

For the host Knights, George Mallires won 2-of-3 matches at No. 4 singles and has been one of the team's most steady performers this fall.

In addition, the No. 2 doubles team of Boris Canzano and Robert Stanley won 2-of-3 matches, as did the No. 3 doubles squad of Alec Petitpren and Patrick Thomas.

Each of the Knights' other flights won one match, including Alejandro Blake, Ian Quinlan and Alec Petitpren at No. 1, No. 2 and No. 3 singles.

Wright's other doubles teams, George Park and Garrett Redding at No. 1 and Chris Monsour and Anthony Palleschi at No. 4, won 1-of-3 in the tournament.

One of the Knights' best wins came against the Norsemen's Irving and Plouffe 7-5, 7-6, whom they lost two earlier in the season.

In recent dual matches, the Knights played two ranked teams in Division 3 and 4, Beverly Hills Detroit Country Day and Ann Arbor Greenhills, losing 7-1 and 6-2.

"The competition was outstanding and good for our kids to play against with regional's coming up," Wright said.

Mallires beat his Country Day and Greenhills foes, while Austin Petitpren earned the Knights' second victory against Greenhills in three sets.

Liggett stands 2-5-1 overall.

The Blue Devils beat Sterling Heights Stevenson 8-0 last week to finish second at 4-1, while the Norsemen defeated Romeo 6-2 to finish third at 3-2. Port Huron Northern won the division title with a 5-0 mark.

School to host athletic forum

The 75-minute program is about college admissions and athletics and is held from 7 to 8:15 p.m. in the Manoogian Arts Wing Dance Studio. Liggett is located at 1045 Cook, Grosse Pointe Woods, MI.

The event reviews how can athletic participation assists a student seeking admission into college; how academic achievement makes a student a better fit for a college athletic program; how students know they are being recruited by college programs; what roles the high school and college coaches play in the admissions process; and how students prepare themselves to learn and compete at the next level.

Scheduled speakers are Brian Fitzgerald, Pittsburgh Penguins scout for Michigan and Ontario; David Greer, Wayne State University men's basketball head coach; Jamie Meyers, Hillsdale College softball head coach; and Elizabeth Jamett, Liggett's director of college guidance.

RSVP by Oct. 1 to Ted Alpert at (313) 492-4649 or talpert@uls.org. Register as early as possible because space is limited.

Volleyball

GROSSE POINTE SOUTH

Blue Devils rock and roll past Big Reds

By John McTaggart
Special Writer

A dominating three-game victory over a worthy Chippewa Valley squad kept Grosse Pointe South's volleyball squad a perfect 3-0 in the division and moving in the right direction.

"I think this was our best win to date," head coach Ryan Welser admitted. "The fact that we came off a tough game against Eisenhower, we're moving through the division now, and we were playing with some pressure tonight. If you allow yourself to have any let down, a team as good as Chippewa Valley is going to beat you. We didn't do that tonight though."

The Big Reds' offense is potent, and plain-and-simply, South shut it down.

"They've got a lot of offensive weapons," Welser said. "But tonight, we really took control of the game. We totally took them out of their offense. We served the best we've served all year. We serve-received the best we had all year. You do those two things well and we're going to be OK."

That brand of volleyball is the name of the game at South — solid, disciplined, and precise.

"We were clicking in every facet tonight," the coach explained. "And for that to happen, our service-receive game has got to be sharp. Mary Kate Kramer was unbelievable in serve-receive tonight. That really helps to set up our offense."

Along with Kramer (nine service points and 12 digs), setter Ann Buslepp (24 assists, seven kills and five blocks) and Karen Schumann (eight blocks) were also stellar in the victory.

"We had some girls really stand out, but it was really a team victory," Welser said. "But that's what we play as, a total team. We had some girls come off the bench tonight and there wasn't any drop off at all."

This type of play is key for South, and will have to continue if the team hopes to knock off Macomb Area Conference Blue favorite Sterling Heights.

Currently, both squads sit atop the division with a showdown looming Oct. 5 at home.

Before that, however, the squad has to deal with Utica and Grosse Pointe North.

"We've got to continue getting better," Welser said. "I think we have a very good team here, but we have to continue to improve."

Knights are infuego

By Bob St. John
Sports Editor

The girls' volleyball team at University Liggett battled former Metro Conference foe Livonia Clarenceville last week.

"It is great to see that we can still be competitive against an old foe," head coach Dan Sullivan said after the Knights beat host Clarenceville 25-19, 25-21, 25-18. "Though is was a solid victory, we still were mediocre, at best, in our 'free ball' situations and did not convert to an offensive posture as well as we will need going forward into the season."

The combination of Carrie Chouinard, Grace Edmonds and Ashley Rahi combined for 15 blocks and four blocks for kills.

In addition, Chouinard had nine kills and Tori Wuhtrich added eight to go wth five serve aces and 18 total service points.

Last weekend, Liggett finally played a home match, beating Franklin Road Christian in three straight games, 25-14, 25-13, 25-11, to improve to 3-0 in the Michigan Independent Athletic Conference and 9-4-3 overall.

Since starting the season 0-3-2, the Knights have been on a roll, winning 9-of-11 matches with one tie in the mix.

At the halfway mark, Rahi is 2-for-2 serving for 100 percent, followed by Colleen Klimek at 117-for-124 for 94.3 percent.

Wuhtrich leads the Knights with 66 serving aces and 82 kills, while Klimek has 35 aces and Chouinard has 70 kills.

GROSSE POINTE NORTH

Norsemen play well, but can't close out Dakota

By Bob St. John
Sports Editor

Head coach Kim Lockhart watched her Grosse Pointe North girls' volleyball team endure a plethora of emotional rollercoaster's during last week's grueling 27-25, 25-20, 20-25, 25-27, 8-15 loss to Macomb Dakota.

"This was two young teams fighting for every point and unfortunately, we came out on the losing end," Lockhart said two-and-half hours after the first serve was struck. "We had some great moments and some not-so-great moments. We're learning with every match and playing hard."

The host Norsemen came out flat and trailed 22-10 in the opening game. Just like that, the Norsemen found some momentum and carried it to a thrilling 27-25 win.

After trading side outs, the host team was able to win a point on its serve to take the game.

It was all Norsemen in game two with senior Micaela Liddane anchoring the efforts. Her serve receive and defense was stellar, while the combination of Matthews to Reveley for the kill gave the home team a 2-0 lead in games.

Dakota put its game in high gear as senior Kelsey Snyder, junior Alyssa Kuzatko and freshman Carli Snyder led the way, digging out sure Reveley kills to keep points alive for Carli Snyder to hammer out her way to 25 kills.

"We're mirror-images of ourselves with a lot of good athletes and younger squads," Lockhart said. "We made that huge comeback in the first game and won the second, but we weren't as aggressive in the final three games and it showed. It's a tough loss."

Matthew nearly set a single-game record in assists, collecting 55 (58 is the mark) and Reveley was close, too, netting 33 kills (36 is the mark). Liddane also had 20 digs to lead the Norsemen.

North was back at practice the following day, preparing for a road trip to perennial state power Marysville, which brought a 20-0-2 record into the match.

Unfortunate for the Norsemen, they were the first opponent to play in Marysville's new gymnasium.

The bigger venue wasn't as loud as the old, smaller version, but the home crowd still had an effect as the Norsemen lost 25-16, 25-17,25-18.

Grosse Pointe North dropped to 0-3 in the MAC Red Division and 11-12-1 overall.

Coming up for the Norsemen is an away match Thursday, Sept. 30, against city rival Grosse Pointe South.

Ladies make it 3-for-3

The South girls' cross country team won its third major invitational title of the season last weekend, taking first place honors at the annual Catholic Central Invitational.

Rounding out the top five were Plymouth Salem, Rochester Adams, Farmington Hills Mercy and Farmington.

South was led by the 1-2 finish of Hannah Meier and Christina Firl. Meier and Firl led from start to finish on the hilly course at Cass Benton Park in Northville, finishing with times of 18:38 and 18:41, respectively.

"We had an outstanding week of practice and we asked all of our girls to step up and improve various parts of the race," head coach Steve Zaranek said.

The Blue Devils were without Haley Meier, who was out ill.

"Haley is such a valuable part of our team," Zaranek said. "We knew it would take the efforts of all seven varsity girls to make up for her loss in this race."

The Blue Devils did exactly that. Junior Kelly Langton ran a season best 20:26 to place 6th overall, while Natalie Gay (11th), Margaret Levasseur (12th), Sydney Burke (15th) and Alexa Calas (28th) were close behind.

All seven South runners earned medals.

"Kelly, with her best performance to date, and Sydney, moving up to varsity, made a huge impact on the results," Zaranek said. "We were extremely pleased with how we raced."

South was very impressive in the junior varsity race, taking eight of the top 10 and 16 of the top 20 positions.

South was led by the second place overall finish by freshman Meghan Dziedzic. Following in the top 10 were Nicole Keller, Carolyn Sullivan, Gen Hummer, Ivana Kakos, Mary Hennessy, Christy Finkenstaedt and Erika Bade.

Also running to season-best performances were Claire Zimmeth, Erin Ivers, Allie Fowler, Katie Savinov, Zita Barnette, Emily Matthews, Natalie Murphy, Abby Sohn, Tatum Bristol, Anna Niforos, Chelsea Bowman, Abby Grobbel, Emma Hintzen, Gerte Mulier and Caitlin Rose.

The meet is named because it is run more like the race of old. No assigned box at the start, just grab a place on the starting line. Logs and bales of hay are placed in the way to jump over and a river has to be crossed twice.

"There was also a bee hive in the middle of the course that had to be dealt with," head coach Scott Cooper said. "This was held at the Wolcott Mill working farm so the smell of cow was also a factor in the race. This makes this race unique and quit fun.

"I always worry going in that someone will get hurt, but the girls always have fun here. The race is also divided into four separate races, one for each class so the freshmen get to run against just freshmen, and the same for the other classes."

There were 22 teams competing with the Norsemen finishing in the middle of the pack.

Top five freshmen runners were Natalie Schaefer, Sarah Rustmann, Maddie Gafa, Julia Rustmann and Brigitte Smith; the top five sophomores were Maria Vasquez (top overall on the team), Hailey Ferguson, Savannah Ransome, Emma Abessinio and Rachel Cullen; the top five juniors were Alyse Victor, Steffi Shenouda, Amy Cooper, Chrissy Steigelman and Natasha Eklund; and the top five seniors were Katie Lazar, Rachel Brock, Paige Monforton, Maddie Lacey and Bridget Surmont.

Running personal best times were Cullen, Marie Bourke, Emily Griffith and Grace Tallarek. Cooper said running a PR on this course is amazing because of the barricades, river crossings and the ton of mud created from more than 100 runners coming out of a river and running on a dirt trail. Runners are slipping, sliding, crashing and doing odd sorts of balancing acts to keep their footing.

"It was cold, overcast, a tough course, and muddy," Cooper said. "I was proud of the girls for running hard, gutsy races and not complaining but jumping in there and fighting all through the races."

Next up is the Hanson's Invitational in Sterling Heights.

Grosse Pointe North's boys' cross country team captain, Ed Surmont, and his teammates finished second with 73 points in last weekend's Detroit Catholic Central Invitational at Cass-Benton Park in Northville. LIGGETT

Runners perform well in small-school invitational

Liggett joined 13 small schools from across the region at Auburn Hills Oakland Christian School last week for an invitational designed especially for them.

Varsity races included only five athletes per team with the top three scoring, instead of the traditional seven and five format used in most races. This format favors teams with strong front runners and little depth.

With only eight boys on the team, the invitational went well for the Liggett boys' squad. The girls' team boasts more runners, but with illness and injury impacting some top varsity runners, the smaller team commitment was welcome.

Team results placed the Liggett girls in third place out of 14 schools. Royal Oak Shrine won the meet with host Oakland Christian coming in second.

Bre'Nae Andrews had a solid day on the course, finishing fourth overall and first for the Knights.

Haleigh Ristovski and Katarina Goitz finished in 11th and 12th place, respectively, earning medals and improving on their times from last year on this same course.

Once again Royal Oak Shrine won the event and Ann Arbor Greenhills placed second.

Kevin Allen finished in 15th overall to lead the Knights and was followed closely by freshman Tony Giorgio and sophomore Joe Renzi in 21st and 23rd, respectively.

Rounding out the top five for the Knights were Nick Diloreto and newcomer Jacob Soyka. Robert Hammond had a good day in the junior varsity race, finishing among the top 20 to lead the combined JV team to a sixth-place finish.

The sprawling athletic facilities offered a variety of trails, hills and open fields for athletes and few seemed to notice the higher than normal temperature on race day.

The team returns to this course in mid-October for a MIAC jamboree.

The Liggett runners enter MIAC competition at Spencer Park in Rochester where they hope to improve on their team score in both divisions.

GRIDIRON: Defenses dominate

Mollison had one of his best-ever varsity games, gaining 109 yards on 16 carries with one touchdown and Fry rushed for 86 yards on eight attempts with the one score and threw for 56 yards on six completions.

However, Fry was not on the field during the final three minutes after leaving with an ankle injury.

"We will know more after he gets X-rays," Brandon said. "We hope he doesn't miss any time, but if does, (Robby) Kish will get the start and he will be ready to lead our offense."

Senior Victor Mattison caught two passes for 25 yards and Cimmarusti had three catches for 21 yards. Parker also caught one pass for 11 yards.

For the Norsemen, Guest was held to only 66 rushing yards on 22 carries and senior fullback Jadon Cook had 20 yards on four attempts. Balicki rushed for 44 yards and threw for 46 yards.

Leading the Blue Devils' defensive charge were seniors Reggie Lewis, 11 tackles and a quarterback sack, and Will Reeves, 13 tackles and a sack; and sophomore Jack Doyle, 15 tackles.

"This is a huge win, but we have to stay focused because we haven't won anything yet," Lewis said. "We have to practice hard and prepare hard."

"Beating North was one of our goals this season," Brandon said. "We also want to win the division and we have a big game coming up with Anchor Bay, and make the state playoffs."

Grosse Pointe South improved to 3-2 overall, while Grosse Pointe North fell to 1-4.

Coming up for the Blue Devils is a 7 p.m. homecoming game Friday, Oct. 1, against Anchor Bay. The winner grabs sole possession of first place in the Macomb Area Conference White Division.

Norsemen beat Lancers

The Grosse Pointe North girls' swimming and diving team evened its division record at 1-1 last week, beating L'Anse Creuse 106-79.

The host Norsemen only won four events, but their depth was more than enough to overset the Lancers' first-place finishes.

The Norsemen won the 200-yard medley relay as Emily Turnbull, Katelyn Kohler, Carly Mellos and Emma Mathews posted a time of 2:04.20 and the 200-yard freestyle relay squad of Carrie Rakowicz, Julia Ellis, Devon McKinley and Mathews won with a time of 1:52.13.

Mathews and Turnbull also won individual events, taking the 50-yard freestyle with a time of 27.06 and 100-yard backstroke with a time of 1:06.53, respectively.

Head coach Mike O'Connor recorded season-best times in the 50-freestyle by Ellis, Rakowicz, Sarah Sherer, Jenna Isherwood and Alison Alexsy; 100-freestyle by Mathews, McKinley, Mellos, Leslie Jacobs, Paige Castile, Gabrielle Shimko, Rachel Brennan, Sophia Avouris and Caroline Schulte; 200-freestyle by Gabby Burchett and Jacobs; 500-freestyle by Rakowicz and Jacobs; 100-backstroke by Katie Buda; 100-breaststroke by Kohler; 100-butterfly by Castile and Blake Moncur; 200-IM by Mellos, Allison Fly and Moncur; and diving by Nikki Walton.

Blue Devils win two-of-three

By Bob St. John
Sports Editor

Grosse Pointe South's girls' swimming and diving team had little resistance from division foe Chippewa Valley last week, winning 122-64.

The Big Reds held their own, winning several events, but the Blue Devils' depth was too much in the end.

Senior Ali DeLoof and freshman Gabby DeLoof each won two individual events. Ali DeLoof won the 50-yard freestyle and 500-yard freestyle with times of 24.76 and 5:30.34, while Gabby DeLoof won the 200-yard freestyle and 100-yard freestyle with times of 1:58.93 and 55.41.

The best finish of the meet came in the 100-yard breaststroke when three Blue Devils finished within .16 of each other, which is about a hand length.

Sophomore Ellen Neveux won with a time of 1:15.66, followed by freshman Jordan Kavanaugh at 1:15.72 and sophomore Meredith Tulloch at 1:15.84.

In diving, head coach Eric Gunderson watched the trio of Aubryn Samaroo, Madi Kaiser and Elizabeth Clevenger take second, third and fourth with scores of 167.05 points, 167.00 and 150.80, respectively.

The Blue Devils also won each of the three relay events.

The 400-yard freestyle relay team of senior Ellen Henrichs, freshman Cassandra Morse, senior Caroline Wilkinson and Gabby DeLoof won with a time of 3:48.62, and the 200-yard freestyle relay squad of Gabby DeLoof, Henrichs, Morse and Ali DeLoof won with a time of 1:46.68.

Both relays were approximately three seconds ahead of the runner-ups.

The Blue Devils opened the meet by winning the 200-yard medley relay as Ali DeLoof, Tulloch, junior Jessi Kaminski and Henrichs posted a time of 1:57.14.

Last weekend, South's competition stiffened as it traveled to Saline to compete against the host school and Ann Arbor Huron.

The Blue Devils edged Huron 94.5-91.5 and lost 129-57 to Saline.

The Blue Devils opened the meet by winning the 200-medley relay with Ali DeLoof, junior Megan Brooks, freshman Anne Crowley and Gabby DeLoof posting a time of 1:52.57, which was a little more than one second ahead of Huron.

Gabby DeLoof was third in the 200-IM with a time of 2:14.24 and Ali DeLoof was second in the 100-freestyle at 53.91. Gabby had another state-qualifying time of 5:17.32 to win the 500-freestyle and the Blue Devils' 200-freestyle relay team of Morse, junior Jessi Kaminski, freshman Kate Van Pelt and Henrichs took third with a time of 1:48.06.

Ali DeLoof was runner-up in the 100-backstroke with a time of 59.62 and Brooks duplicated the finish in the 100-breaststroke with a time of 1:11.85.

Grosse Pointe South improved to 2-0 in the MAC Red Division and 4-2 overall.

RED BARONS

South JV squad continues to win

For the second week in a row, the Red Barons South junior varsity quarterback was knocked out of the game, but once more the replacements stepped in big to lead the team to victory.

Mac Cimmarrusti moved from blocking back to QB and was 10-of-12 for 141 yards and three touchdowns in the Red Barons' 35-12 win over Warren.

In addition, emergency QB Sam Genna threw a 25-yard strike to Will Poplawski. Genna also caught two passes, intercepted another, caused a fumble and saved a TD with a crushing tackle at the 2-yard line.

Behind the outstanding pass blocking of Bobby Weiland, Evan Gillooly, Ryan Keating, Nick Shankie and Nate Barbish, Cimmarrusti opened the game with completions of 9 yards to Poplawski and 17 yards to Genna.

Starter Adam Elbadawi then completed two passes to Kareem Muhammad before having to leave the game due to injury. Muhammad took his second reception to the house for the Barons' first score.

After some outstanding defensive line play by Jon Martinuzzi, Charlie Denison, Connor McCarron and Jon Gough, and several terrific hits by linebackers Ryan McWood, Andrew Trost, Sam Jones, and Michael Calcaterra, South's offense went to work again.

On the third scoring drive, Cimmarrusti completed passes of 15 yards to Romari Ennis-Rogers and a 9-yarder to Muhammad for his second score of the afternoon.

Muhammad would finish the game with 155 receiving and kick return yards.

Sean Fannon led the fourth Baron drive with receptions from Cimmarrusti of 7 and 44 yards for the touchdown.

The final scoring drive was commandeered by running backs Poplawski and Ennis-Rogers, who alternated catching passes and blasting off tackle. The drive was kept alive on a perfect pitch and catch from Charlie Kruse to Max Miller.

Victory puts end to losing streak

By John McTaggart
Special Writer

After a rough stretch that saw the team drop five division games, Grosse Pointe South's boys soccer team turned things around Sept. 22 against Macomb Area Conference White rival L'Anse Creuse North, winning 3-1.

"In the past we had leads and we kind of let down and teams got some weak goals and got back into the game," head coach Stephan Harris said. "It was nice to see us not let that happen tonight. This is a big win for us. It really is."

A second-half goal off the foot of sophomore Mark Adamaszek gave the Blue Devils a 2-1 lead. Adamaszek's go-ahead score was set up beautifully by junior Henry Fildes, who also added a goal in the final half of play, pushing the lead to two, 3-1.

"I think what you saw out there was a team that worked a lot harder out there today," Harris admitted. "We had a few days of really good practices, and the effort was a lot better tonight than it has been over the last few games — a lot better."

Particularly in the second half, the game got a little chippy, by most standards, with several players from both squads staring each other down and even a shove or two came about as a result of the intensity.

Whatever snapped the Blue Devils out of their slump doesn't really matter. What is important is the squad is starting to play up to its potential once again.

"We've got a lot of things to work on and get better at," the coach said. "But it all has to start with effort. We got that tonight and that is something I'm very pleased to see."

Communication, defending the outside, finishing on offense are just a few of the things on the coaching staff's list of things to work on. That said, these are things the team can most definitely improve, according to Harris.

"We'll keep working, keep progressing, and keep getting better," Harris said. "Hopefully this can be a stepping stone for us this season."

Norsemen battle hard, but fall to Chippewa Valley

By Bob St. John
Sports Editor

For the second time this season, Grosse Pointe North's boys' soccer team lost 3-2 to division-leading Chippewa Valley.

Playing on the grass soccer field instead of the turf football stadium, the host Norsemen grabbed a 1-0 lead.

"We traded mistakes for a while and got another goal to make it close at the half," head coach Chris Alston said. "Our kids battled, but we just couldn't get the tying goal.

"We had our chances."

Senior Ben Schreiber scored on a penalty kick and senor Louis Saravolatz scored off a corner kick for the Norsemen.

In other action, the Norsemen lost 7-2 to Utica Eisenhower, dropping to 1-5 in the Macomb Area Conference Red Division and 2-8 overall.

ULS wins twice

Liggett junior Haleigh Bolton has played well this season for the Knights.

Turn around is fair play.

This time around wasn't close, as the host Knights blasted Saline 4-0 as senior captain Nozomi Yamasaki scored two goals, including the game-winner early in the opening half.

Senior captain Annalisa Provenzano and junior Abby Belcrest also scored a goal. Other standouts were junior Haleigh Bolton and junior Kassidy Olson.

The win also snapped a mini two-game losing streak, both of which came against division opponents.

Liggett also hosted Birmingham Detroit Country Day last week, playing a scoreless tie.

Despite the outcome, it was almost a victory of sorts for the Knights who played without senior captain Keegin Fisher, who was injured, and Provenzano was injured during the game and did not return.

In their absence, Belcrest stood tall playing center halfback. She helped neutralize the Yellowjackets' offense and kick-started the Knights' attack.

Liggett improved to 1-2-1 in the Michigan High School Field Hockey Association Division 2 standings and 3-2-1 overall.

The Knights have a shot to win the Division 2 championship, but they have to run the table.

In the final three weeks, the Knights travel to Country Day Thursday, Sept. 30, host Ann Arbor Greenhills Monday, Oct. 4, travel to Farmington Hills Mercy Wednesday, Oct. 6 and Greenhills, Tuesday, Oct. 12, before ending the regular season with a home game Thursday, Oct. 14, against Livonia Ladywood.

North nets win

By Bob St. John

Melissa Carron earned her first win as a head coach last week when the Grosse Pointe North girls' field hockey team beat the Washtenaw Whippets 2-1.

"It was a nice feeling to come out on top after some tough losses to start the season," Carron said. "The girls played a strong game and they're starting to come together."

The combination of sophomore Anna Giordano and senior Olivia Ajlouni accounted for both goals. Giordano tallied twice with Ajlouni drawing both assists.

Giordano scored in the Norsemen's tough 2-1 loss to Novi two nighs later. Her goal at the 20:41 mark of the second half tied it and she had two more solid shots that were stopped.

Unfortunately, Novi scored the game-winning goal during its only real attack of the second half.

North improved to 1-3 in the Michigan High School Field Hockey Association Division 3 standings and 1-5 overall.

GROSSE POINTE SOUTH

Blue Devils tie

The last time the Blue Devils beat or tied Pioneer was 2004.

Host Pioneer scored at the 7:52 mark off a corner penalty shot, but the Blue Devils tied it when Andrea Marshall tallied a penalty stroke.

The Blue Devils were putting a ton of pressure on Pioneer's goalie, who eventually covered the ball, resulting in the penalty shot.

Once again the home team took a one-goal lead and once again the Blue Devils stormed back and tied it after Carmen Engel played a loose ball and took a shot on net.

The goalie made the initial save, but Julie Wittwer corralled the rebound and scored.

Other standouts were midfielders Maddie McMahon, Katie Rappacchietta, Shelby Stone, Lydnesey Walworth and Allie Warren.

In other games, the Blue Devils lost 2-0 at Birmingham Marian. The game was played on Marian's long-grass field, creating difficult field conditions. The slow game favored the Mustangs.

Grosse Pointe South stands 0-3-1 in the Michigan High School Field Hockey Association Division 1 standings and 5-3-1 overall.

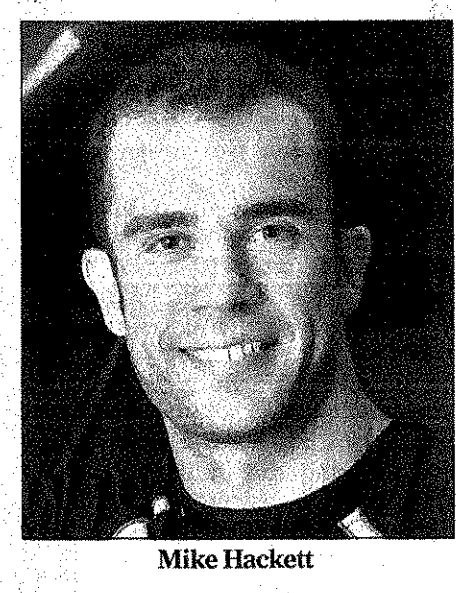
Words of wellness



Mike Hackett

I before E, except after C. Elementary mnemonics can be helpful with spelling but they can also be a friendly reminder of diet moderation. You see, we often let our diet, healthy or not, become our way of life. An unwavering abidance under a dietary deity. Such blind faith can be dangerous, so beware.

The demise of most diets can be traced to how they were approached. It is important to avoid falling into one of two categories, either having a very rigid diet or having no concept of diet what-so-ever.

Now the obvious downside to not having any education to what you put into your mouth is that, in fact, you will put anything into your mouth. This kind of reckless engorging on fried foods and sugar-laden sweets will ultimately take its toll on your body.

But hold on a second pious practitioners and self-righteous carb-counters, you too walk to the same beat!

This extreme way of eating, hyper-awareness of the ills of poor nutrition, may cause you to engage in fad diets or tabulate tablespoons only to become unbalanced and dangerously restrictive, not to mention miserable.

Maybe we need to blur the lines a little bit. Yes, we need nutritional education, and in many respects, live by it. But, we do not need to be shackled by the dogma of diets that offer temporary satisfaction or a long life of obsessing over numbers.

Your diet should be something you enjoy and develop into a lifestyle; something you love. Because then it too, will love you back.

If you're considering a diet, it is important to keep the following in mind:

It's simple math — keep it simple

Burn more calories than you take in. Calories are fuel for your body and if you take in more than you need, your body will store it as fat. The average person only needs to consume somewhere between 1,600 and 2,600 calories per day. The more active you are, the more calories your body requires. This is why exercise is so important.

Hire a professional

Everyone has his or her Dr. Oz to follow, but it is best to find a professional that actually knows you and your health history. Doctors, nutritionists and dieticians alike can take your special needs and formulate a dietary plan to help put you on the right track. This is not only safer, but it will be much more effective than following a generic regimen found in the media.

Think long-term

The word diet itself is misleading. Most people think of it as a temporary phase in which they follow strict eating patterns until they reach their desired weight. This mentality misses the goal completely. Isn't the aim to take the weight off and keep it off? If your diet changes are not long-lasting, the weight loss won't be either.

Think short-term

A truly effective and permanent weight loss requires patience. As a general rule of thumb, any weight loss greater than two pounds per week can be dangerous. Simply put, the quicker you take it off, the quicker it comes back. That being said, do not be discouraged by the slow process of a diet done correctly, it will pay off.

Fad diets, bad diets

We love instant gratification. We want the quickest results for the least effort. Crash diets that require you to deprive your body of vital nutrients are never a good idea. You may see the numbers on the scale head south, but so will your health.

Cheater, cheater

It sounds counter-intuitive, but if it keeps you honest, have a cheat day. Treat yourself to that one day a week you indulge by eating a thick juicy cheeseburger or a fresh slice of pie. Emergency indulgences can help you keep your sanity and watching your diet never means you can't have fun by enjoying great food.

Sticking with a proper diet is easier if you know not to set yourself up for failure. Do not follow a dietary deity. Through education and moderation, we are capable of a well-rounded and enduring nourishment.

It is important to be cognizant of the food we eat, but it does not need to rule our lives. Keep living, keep learning. Until next month, live well.

Coaches offer instruction

Baseball players of any age can receive personal instruction on all aspects of the game from Grosse Pointe South's baseball coaches.

South coaches are available for inside or outside instruction throughout the year. Players may choose to have one or more coaches at a time and can focus on hitting, pitching, fielding, catching or any specific element of the game they prefer.

"We will continue to run the camps we have for years at South in January and March and at Defer in June," said South's long-time varsity baseball coach Dan Griesbaum. "Now, we are responding to the demand for private instruction throughout the year by offering instruction to individual players, a group of players or teams as a whole."

All Michigan High School Athletic Association rules regarding out of season participation will be followed.
