St. John celebrates

PHOTOS BY PETER J. BIRKNER

The Guild draws hundreds for fundraiser

During a spectacular 51-year run, The Guild of the St. John Hospital and Medical Center has raised millions to support programs and improve care at the sprawling Moross Road facility.

On June 8, The Guild's fundraiser was successful again - honoring several members of the community, hospital staff and volunteers. Nearly 900 attended this year's event at Penna's of Sterling Heights.

Receiving awards for their contributions to St. John Hospital and Medical Center were:

■ Gretchen Valade of Grosse Pointe Farms, who received the Philanthropic Services award. She is the granddaughter of Hamilton Carhart, who founded Carhart, Inc. She founded Mack Avenue Records and owns two Farms businesses on The Hill, The Dirty Dog Jazz Cafe and The Morning Glory. She also funded a $10 million endowment for the Detroit International Jazz

GROSSE POINTE FARMS — Border patrol agents aren't cruising Grosse Pointe's shoreline for the view.

"We had an interesting run in the last couple weeks a little south of Alter Park of singles coming through from exotic countries," said Gregory Lambert, special operations supervisor, Detroit sector of the U.S. Customs and Border Patrol.

Lambert also is local liaison for construction of a 60-foot video surveillance tower near water's edge at the Grosse Pointe Club in Grosse Pointe Farms.

The private club, known colloquially as the Little Club, is downstream of the Grosse Pointe War Memorial and behind Grosse Pointe Memorial Church.

Record rain swamps sewers

GROSSE POINTE FARMS — The mayor and city manager were among nearly 300 homeowners with flooded basements during last month's burst of rain.

"I've never had that happen before," said Mayor James Farquhar.

Some 288 callers to city hall said their basement flooded May 25. Most calls came from Grosse Pointe Farms' inland sewer district between Ridge Road and Mack Avenue.

If each caller represents a separate property, which is undetermined at this time, roughly 7 percent of the city's 4,000 dwellings experienced water in basements due to seepage through foundation walls or floor drain back-ups.

Sewers in the inland district are combined, unlike the lakeside district, from Ridge east to Lakeshore, where sewage and storm runoff are handled by separate lines.

Moving up

No school year is complete at Our Lady Star of the Sea without the annual "Moving Up Ceremony," held at the last all-school Mass of the year. It allows each student to say goodbye to their teacher and move up to the pews they will occupy next year, greeting their new teachers along the way. At left, parents and administration applaud the kindergarten class of 2011 during its graduation ceremony. Above, third-grader Chloe Dobbs embraces her teacher, Mary King.

New home needed

By Kathy Ryan
Staff Writer

The Grosse Pointe Animal Adoption Society spends countless hours searching for homes for the dogs and cats that come into its care. Now the society is searching for a home of its own in which to hold its bi-weekly adoption fairs.

A longtime fixture at the Neighborhood Club on alternate Saturdays, GPAAS is being forced to find new quarters for its adoption program while the Neighborhood Club shuts down and builds a new facility.

It's proving harder than finding a home for a litter of hungry St. Bernard puppies.

"We need to find a place that can accommodate between 20 and 25 dogs and at least 10 cats for our adoption events," said Corinne Martin, GPAAS' executive director. "Then there are other considerations, such as parking. We have at least 30 volunteers who attend each event, and even on a slow day, we can have as many as 50 people come to the event to look at the animals."

Another concern the Society has is that the facility must be handicap accessible. A local church offered the use of its basement, but GPAAS had to turn it down.

"We have many seniors who come to the adoption events, and many use walkers and canes," Martin said. "We also have many young families with babies in strollers. We really need to be on the main floor."

GPAAS also considered hosting the event at its headquarters on Charlevoix in Grosse Pointe Park, but realized parking would be a problem.

"We also need tables and chairs for volunteers, as well as space for the dogs to be walked," Martin said. "Normally the dogs are brought to the event by a volunteer and are kept on a leash throughout the afternoon, but they need to be able to walk around."

"As you can see, it's not easy finding a facility."

Prior to moving to the Neighborhood Club, GPAAS held its adoption events at the now-shuttered Children's Home of Detroit. Once that facility was taken over by Starr Commonwealth, GPAAS moved to the Neighborhood Club. Now it finds itself looking for yet another home.

The group is facing a July 16 deadline as the Neighborhood Club closes its doors.

Founded in 1997, GPAAS is a non-profit organization that provides foster home-based

Sun never sets on 50-year Sundown Series

By Brad Lindberg
Staff Writer

GROSSE POINTE PARK — Draco sailed through a revolving door to win its class from the start in last week's edition of the Tuesday Night Sundown Series.

Draco is a red-hulled Cal 25

(sail No. 1633) registered to Brian Shenstone.

Her skipper jockeyed nimbly inside a busy starting box off of Windmill Pointe Park marina, in Grosse Pointe Park, to lead the 12-boat Cal 25 division across the starting line.

Drago returned less than 69 minutes later, finishing first in class.

The race Tuesday, June 7, was Draco's first win of the season.

Races are sponsored by the Grosse Pointe Sail Club.

Boats are separated into seven divisions based on variables, such as hull length, design and sail area. Starts per division are scheduled at 5-minute increments from 7 to 7:30 p.m.

Following winds at the beginning of last week's race billowed the sails of 50 competitors. Participants come from municipal marinas and private sail clubs.

Some skippers maneuvered within 20 feet of the Windmill Pointe breakwall while positioning their craft for a running start.

Martha Schroeder, of Grosse Pointe Park, and more than 50 spectators watched the race from the marina's outer breakwall.

Schroeder said attending races is a weekly follow-up to working out in the park's fitness center.

Boats race one of three courses, depending on division, ranging from 4.5 to 6.2 nautical miles in the southwest portion of Lake St. Clair.

Most boats crossed the finish line in about an hour.

In terms of all-out speed, Epic (sail No. 35427) was quickest on the 6.2-mile course. Her uncorrected time of 59:52 was corrected to 54:17. Epic is a Beneteau 42s7 skippered by Ray and Winnie Adams in the PHRF A division.

The quickest boat on the 5-mile course was Critical Mass (sail No. 25071), a Beneteau 32.5 entered in the PHRF B division by Tim Kerr. The sloop's uncorrected time of 54:19 was corrected to 42:19.

Manon (sail No. 4), a Crescent registered to Stephen Hume, had the fastest time on the 4.5-mile course. The boat competes in the Crescent division. She had an absolute time of 54:14, corrected to 37:49.

Racers are within sight of the starting line throughout their runs.

Some courses cross the freighter channel. Skippers are warned, upon penalty, to stay clear of commercial traffic.

Infractions are "subject to protest by the race committee and may be reported to the Coast Guard," according to sailing instructions on the club website, gpssc.org.

As heats stepped off last week, sailors made way for the 690-foot bulk carrier, Herbert C. Jackson. The freighter, having discharged iron ore downstream, honked a salute to the fleet while steaming back to the upper lakes for another load.

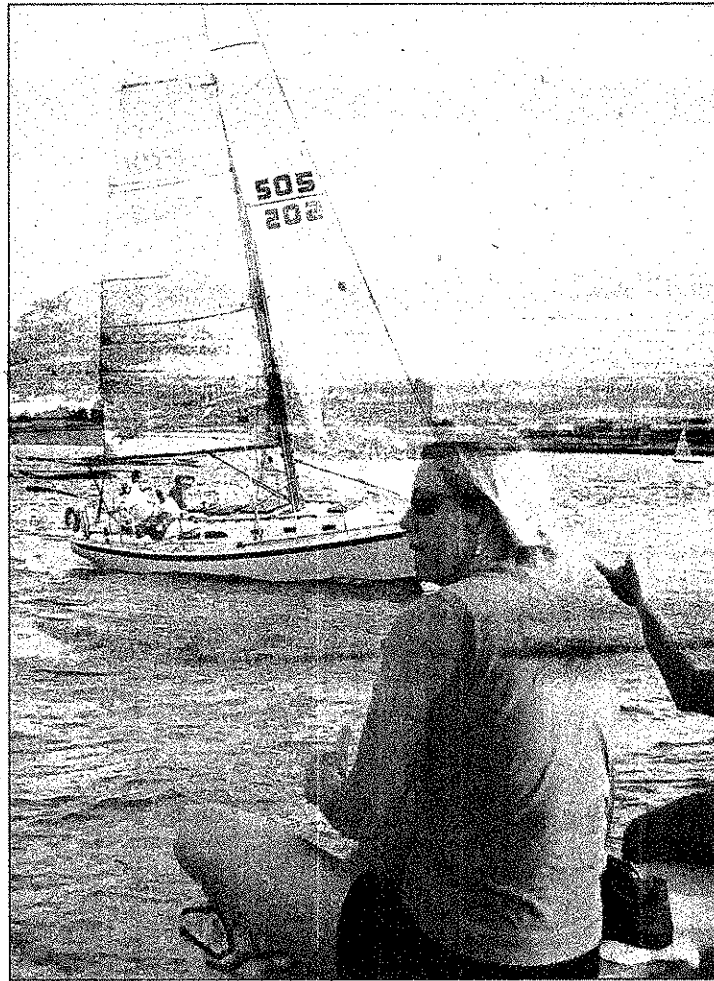

Racers also steered clear of the downbound tugboat, Leslie Foss, towing a barge piled with shipping containers.

This is the 50th anniversary of sundown series races.

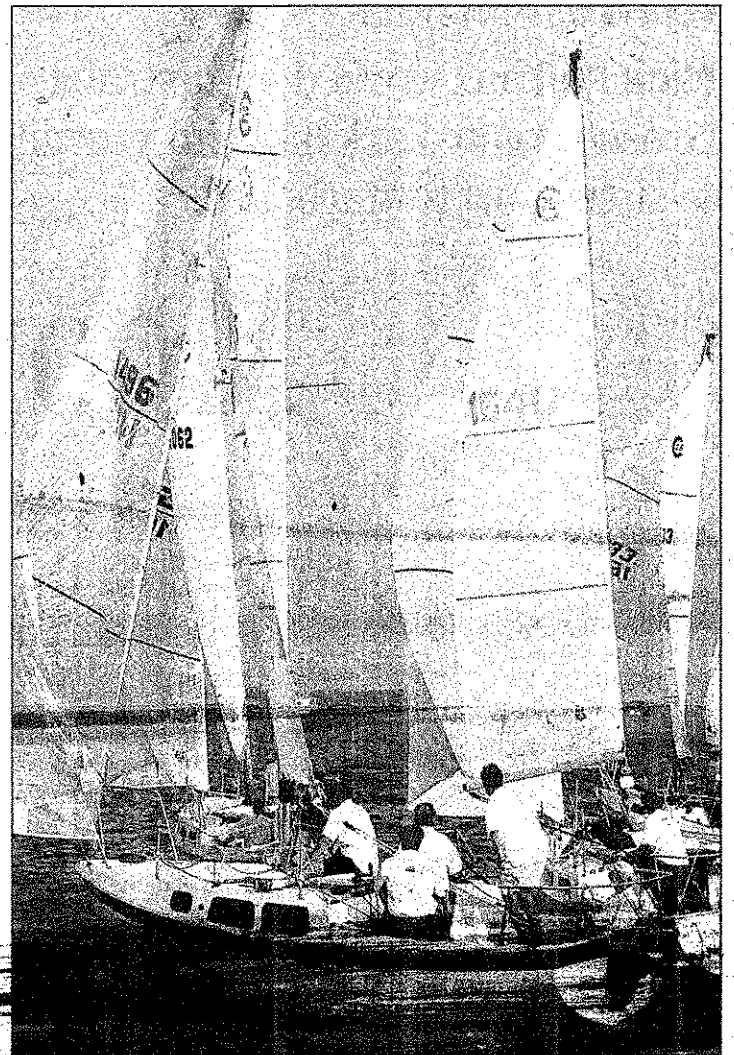

The series is divided into spring, summer and fall series on most Tuesday nights through September.

The schedule is:

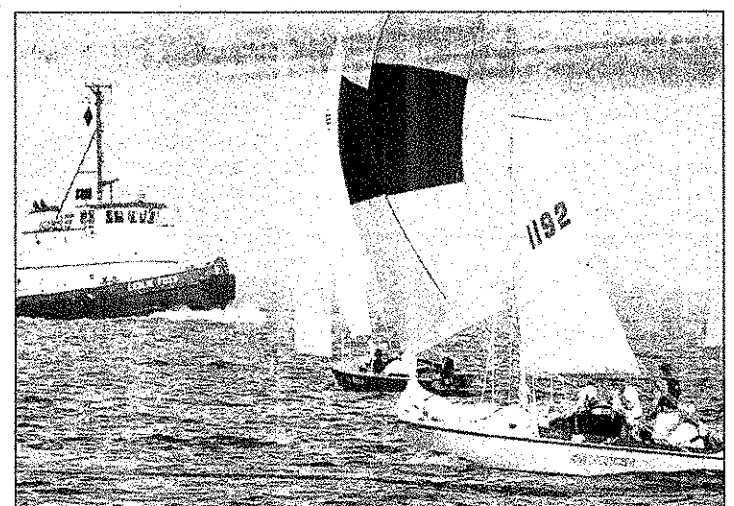

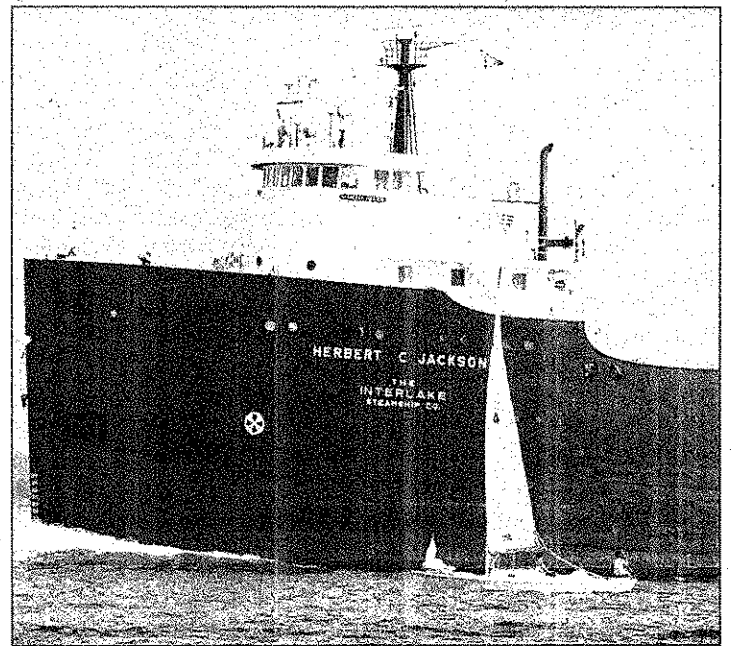

- ◆ June 21 and 28
- ◆ July 5.
- ◆ Aug. 2, 9, 16, 23 and 30.
- ◆ Sept. 6, 13, 20 and 27.
- ◆ Oct. 4.

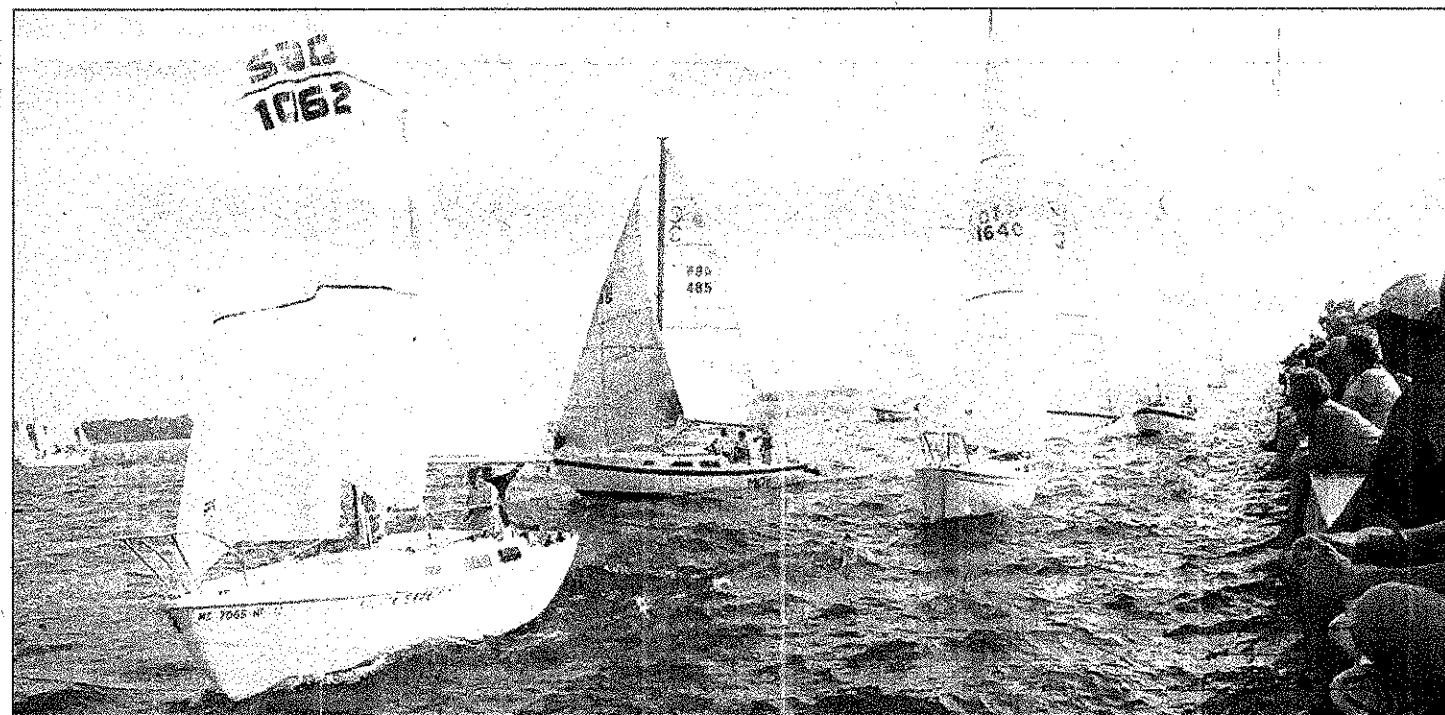

Martha Schroeder, of Grosse Pointe Park, is a fan of Tuesday Night Sundown Series sailboat races off of Windmill Pointe Park in Grosse Pointe Park. The sloop, Kaizen (sail No. 505), an Ericson 35-2 skippered by Edward Belda, maneuvers a few dozen feet from the viewing area.

Above, among Cal 25 boats elbowing their way to the starting line are White Fang (sail No. 1496), registered to John Harper, a dentist, and Voodoo Child (1640), owned by Roy Lamphier. Below, Manon, a Crescent registered to Stephen Hume, keeps clear of upbound, 690-foot Herbert C. Jackson, before last week's Grosse Pointe Sail Club Tuesday Night Sundown Series race off Windmill Pointe Park in Grosse Pointe Park.

Downbound tugboat, Leslie Foss, has the right of way over Pearson Ensign 22 daysailors C.F. Pickle (745), registered to Tom Fraser, and Swordfish (1192), skippered by Dan Wilk.

Jockeying in tight waters for a good start off the Windmill Pointe Park breakwall are Cal 25 division competitors Windswept (sail No. 1062), skippered by Dale Johnson; Voodoo Child (1640), skippered by Roy Lamphier; and Five Guys Named MOE (485), skippered by Rob Boggs.

Capuchin event June 18

When Edmund and Bettejean Ahee created the first Annual Capuchin Souper Summer Celebration 30 years ago, they never dreamed that it would grow to such an incredible fundraiser.

They had set out to raise awareness and much needed monies for the Capuchins for the work the organization does for the city and the less fortunate. The event has grown from about 500 attendees in its first year to thousands since, and has raised more than $5 million for the charity.

The 30th Annual Capuchin Souper Summer Celebration is 7:30 p.m. Saturday, June 18, at Comerica Park. The theme "The Best of the Best" will offer attendees some of their favorites from the last 30 years. Included will be Skyline and The Back Street Horns, Motor City Glee, Anthony Birchett & Company, The Bob Mervak Trio, The Hogans, Super Star Karaoke, celebrity look-a-likes and more. The Big Car court and Brushfire Grille will offer varieties of food and drinks throughout the evening.

The fireworks display will commence at 10:30 p.m. followed by the highly anticipated raffle. This year's raffle includes prizes valued at more than $30,000, featuring fine jewelry and timepieces by Rolex, Cartier, Roberto Coin, Marco Bicego, Mikimoto, Tag Heuer and David Yurman.

Edmund Ahee grew up just blocks from the Soup Kitchen and understood the necessity of such an establishment. He founded the Capuchin Souper Summer Celebration in 1981 with his wife Bettejean and their seven children.

The Best of the Best event is free to attend. Attendees must be 21 years of age or older and dressy springtime attire is required. There is complimentary self-parking and valet parking is also available. Raffle tickets can be purchased prior to the event at edmund t. AHEE jewelers in Grosse Pointe Woods, The Capuchin Soup Kitchen, online at ahee.com/capuchin or at Comerica Park (during the event). Tickets may be purchased with cash, check, or credit card. Tickets will be $1 each and you need not be present to win. All proceeds benefit the Soup Kitchen.

Nick Fell has worked in Australia and Korea, but his new job in Grosse Pointe Park has him learning a new language from bow to stern, port to starboard.

Moored in Park park

By Kathy Ryan
Staff Writer

Nick Fell doesn't describe himself as a landlubber, but his new position as the marina supervisor at Windmill Pointe Park has him learning a whole new language.

"I've sailed, but I wouldn't necessarily call myself a boater," he said. "But I'm becoming more familiar every day with boaters and all those terms they use."

And he's finding the job of marina supervisor for Grosse Pointe Park far easier in summer than it was when he first took over the job this winter.

"I walked every dock in the marina, through the snow and the ice," he said. "There I was, kicking snow out of the way, looking for slip numbers, and wishing summer was here."

And now that it is, Fell, 24, finds himself wearing several hats in addition to the marina supervisor position. As assistant to Parks and Recreation Director Terry Solomon, Fell oversees special projects at both Windmill Pointe Park and Patterson Park. His first project, "The No Engine Initiative," kicked off May 28.

The month-long program will reward residents who make their way to one of the city's parks via any form of transportation that does not require an engine.

"They can come by bike, by foot, scooter, pogo stick, it doesn't matter," he said. "When they do, they will receive a raffle ticket at the gate and there will be a drawing for some great gifts that have been donated by Park businesses."

He sees the No Engine Initiative as a program that will not only benefit the environment, but Park businesses as well, especially some of the newer stores along Kercheval in the Park.

This initiative is also an extension of Fell's passion for the environment as well as his interest in biking. In addition to building his own bike, he has done volunteer work with The Hub of Detroit, a bicycle shop in Detroit's Cass Corridor, including helping children learn to build bicycles.

Fell teaching those budding mechanics comes naturally, as he is a teacher by training, having graduated from Western Michigan University in 2008 with a degree in math education. He worked as a substitute teacher in Kalamazoo and as a line cook in a restaurant before giving in to his desire to travel, which was easily accommodated by taking a teaching position halfway around the world. Fell moved to South Korea where he taught English at Hagwon, a private school for students from pre-K through high school.

"Korea has an interesting age system," he said. "At birth, you are 1 year of age, and on January 1, you turn 2. So even if you were born in November, you would be two years of age just two months later."

Fell focused on teaching young Korean students all aspects of the English language, including speaking, writing, phonics and reading. He worked with teachers from Canada, England and Scotland, and they spent all of their free time traveling.

"If we had a four-day weekend, we would go somewhere," he said. "We were able to go to Japan, China, India, Cambodia and Thailand. It was a great opportunity for someone like me who loves to travel."

Earlier, his travels took him to Australia where he volunteered with The Crossings, a conservation and environmental education program where children would come and spend weekends.

But July 2010 found him back in Grosse Pointe.

"My sister, Erika, was getting married and I promised her I would be back for her wedding," he said.

So he returned to Grosse Pointe Woods, where he grew up with his sister and parents, Joe and Susan Fell. He attended Mason, Parcels and Grosse Pointe North. It was at home where he faced the inevitable question of what to do next?

"I applied for some teaching jobs in the area, and even explored some options outside the teaching profession," he said.

But in November, a phone call from Solomon ended his job search, and he has enjoyed every day he has spent at the park.

"I'm never doing the same thing twice, especially at this time of year," Fell said. And even this nearly lifelong Woods resident will say that Grosse Pointe Park holds bragging rights for having the best recreation facilities.

"I think the Park can easily argue that it has the best parks," he said. "We have the Lavins Activity Center with a great workout center. We have kayaking at Patterson Park. The Grosse Pointe Sail Club hosts weekly sailboat races out of the Windmill Pointe marina. I think it's easy to argue that the Park has the best parks out of all the Grosse Pointes."

Fell readily admits that is what makes his job so enjoyable, even if it is much closer to home than Korea or Australia.

"I've always enjoyed the jobs I've had," he said. "I've always challenged myself to make it a great opportunity."

Piloting through 100 years

By Ann L. Fouty
Features Editor

Ruth Ann Shields can fly a Piper Cub, but she can't navigate a computer.

Celebrating her 100th birthday June 5, the City of Grosse Pointe resident said the highlight of her life was learning to fly at the Wayne County Airport, now Detroit Metro Airport.

"I can't understand computers," she said.

After receiving her pilot's license in the mid 1960s and flying to the Upper Peninsula with a friend; her two daughters, 13 grandchildren, 24 great-grandchildren and great-great-grandchild are the highlights of her life, she said.

Shields was born in Lebanon in 1911 and emigrated to the United States when she was 9 years old. Her family settled in Toledo, Ohio. She married her aunt's nephew, Sam Slayman, at the age of 15 in 1926, giving up high school, under protest, for the arranged union. The couple had two daughters, JoAnne and June. Slayman died in 1958.

Her husband was an engineer for Ford Motor Company and she ran George's Market on Trumbull Street near the old Tiger Stadium.

"My sister had two stores and she couldn't run both. She asked me to buy one," Shields said in a phone interview.

She also worked at Ray's Bridal Salon as a consultant and buyer from 1948 to 1972 and was often a speaker at Mercy College on the topics of weddings, wedding etiquette and planning, said her daughter, JoAnne Buiteweg.

While her husband was alive, the couple were members of Masons, the Eastern Star and Shriners.

Shields and Ruby Shields (the first Mrs. Fred Shields) were Worthy Matrons of their respective Eastern Star chapters and the two traveled together to various Eastern Star functions. Ruby Shields told her husband Slayman was her best friend because she neither smoked nor drank. Ten years later, Fred Shields brought his late wife back to Michigan for her burial and met the widowed Slayman.

"He looked me up on my birthday. I was waiting for my family to take me out to dinner. He went with us," she said. "I dated him one year before he married me. He had a factory that employed 200 or 300 people."

Fred Shields owned Tool Sales & Company and was also a Shriner and Mason.

She has been a Worthy Matron of Star of Zion Chapter of the Eastern Star in Detroit, held several of its national offices, was president of the Fortnighters poker club and a member of the Oriental Shrine.

Shields said for many years she annually rented a bus, transporting young Shriners Hospital patients to the circus and paying for their meals.

Ruth Ann Shields turned 100 years old June 5.

Buiteweg said her mother is known for her cooking skills and growing vegetables for her fresh garden salads.

"She has enjoyed playing cards for many, many years and is considered a card shark. Even to this day, she challenges everyone in the family to beat her — a feat which no one has yet been able to accomplish."

Be honest, be sociable and do charity work, is Shields' advice to the next generation.

PUBLIC SAFETY REPORTS

City of Grosse Pointe

Disorderly

The mother of a 28-year-old Detroit man, arrested last week for disorderly conduct, explained he was schizophrenic and not taking his medication.

An officer questioned the man upon seeing him walk in violation of a traffic signal at 9:40 p.m. Wednesday, June 8, on northbound Notre Dame at Kercheval.

"A vehicle traveling west slammed (its) brakes to avoid hitting (him)," said Officer Joe Adams. "(I) pulled up and asked (him) why he walked in front of the vehicle. (He) refused to speak."

The man became physically uncooperative, according to police.

If you have any information about these or other crimes, call the City of Grosse Pointe public safety department at (313) 886-3200.

Grosse Pointe Farms

No texting

An 18-year-old Farms man faces drug charges resulting from a traffic stop at 3:02 a.m. Sunday, June 12, on Harbor Hill.

An officer pulled over the man for sending text messages while operating a 1999 Acura on westbound Lakeshore from Moross.

"He was staring down at (his phone) as he accelerated the vehicle, not paying attention to the road," said the arresting officer.

The man reportedly hit the curb near Kerby, flattening a tire before turning onto Harbor Hill.

The man smelled of intoxicants and admitted drinking, police said.

Officers searching the car found a drug pipe and .11 ounces of marijuana, they said.

Marijuana scale

A scale with marijuana residue was found in the back-pack of a 27-year-old Detroit man during a roadside traffic investigation at about 3 a.m., Sunday, June 12, at Mack and Moross.

The man also was cited for operating a 2001 Pontiac Bonneville with an expired license plate, having open alcohol in the car and violating 10 driving suspensions.

B&E stopped

At 2:38 a.m. Friday, June 10, homeowners scared away an unknown man trying to break into a Jeep Grand Cherokee parked in the 200 block of Merriweather.

The man was trying to smash through one of the Jeep's windows.

"The suspect was unable to completely break the glass because the window was laminated," said a public safety officer.

An owner of the vehicle yelled at the man, who reportedly ran northbound on Merriweather to eastbound Beaupre.

A police dog from the City of Grosse Pointe lost the scent at Beaupre and Mount Vernon, police said.

Switched drivers

A 17-year-old female from Grosse Pointe Woods was cited a few minutes before 10 p.m. Thursday, June 9, for giving false information to a police officer.

She is accused of switching seats with a 15-year-old girl who'd caused a traffic wreck.

Car recovered

A Toyota Camry, rented early this month from Enterprise Rent-A-Car on Mack and reported stolen in Detroit shortly thereafter, was recovered June 9 in Detroit.

Garage thefts

Two residents last week reported their garages broken into and lawn equipment stolen:

◆ A red $300 Honda lawn mower, model HR215SXA, was stolen between 9 and 9:30 a.m. Wednesday, June 8, from an open garage in the 200 block of Moran.

◆ Sometime between 6 and 11 p.m. Sunday, June 5, an orange $150 Husqvarna leaf blower was stolen out of a closed garage in the 200 block of Stephens.

"The garage is not readily visible from Stephens or Ridge, and would require the suspect to walk up the driveway deliberately," said Officer Matthew Hurner.

Pot possession

A 20-year-old male motorist from the Farms was cited at 1:52 a.m. Monday, June 6, for possession of 1.6 grams of marijuana.

A patrolman pulled over the man on Mack near Moran for operating a silver Chrysler Sebring without headlights activated.

"(He) admitted smoking marijuana in the vehicle and that he was sitting on a bag containing marijuana," said the officer.

Police also released a 20-year-old male passenger from the Farms.

Grosse Pointe Shores

Steps missing

Two Viking brand combination steps-storage compartments valued at a combined $1,400 were reported stolen between Sunday, June 5, and Friday, June 10, from the Grosse Pointe Yacht Club marina.

Trees down

On Thursday, June 9, two fallen trees were reported:

◆ At 6:17 p.m., public works crews were notified to clear a large tree blocking the 1000 block of northbound Lakeshore.

◆ At 3:06 a.m., a tree partially blocked the area of Lakeshore and Briarcliff.

Patrolmen cordoned off the area with barricades.

Grosse Pointe Woods

Assault

A 33-year-old Detroit resident is in police custody following an assault at The Original Pancake House on Mack.

Christopher Deshawn Spears, of Detroit, was arraigned Monday, June 13, in Grosse Pointe Woods Municipal Court, charged with assault and battery and possession of marijuana.

According to police, at 3:30 p.m. Sunday, June 12, Spears became enraged when approached by an ex-girlfriend, a 28-year-old Clinton Township resident, while he was dining with a female companion. A heated conversation took place, ending with the former girlfriend throwing water in Spears' face. He punched her in the face, knocking her to the floor. She got up and fled to the bathroom. Spears followed, but was restrained by an acquaintance of the former girlfriend.

Spears then began throwing tableware and water and overturning tables. He fled the restaurant, but a customer got a description of his car and his license plate number. Spears was apprehended by police about a mile from the restaurant.

The ex-girlfriend transported herself to a hospital where she was treated and released.

Spears was held in lieu of $1,000 cash bond. Municipal court Judge Ted Metry set a pretrial hearing for 8:30 a.m. June 29. He ordered Spears to have no contact with his former girlfriend.

Suspicious person

Employees of an ice cream store on Mack notified police that a 1991 blue Chevrolet Lumina was often in the vicinity of the store at closing and an employee had been approached by the driver.

The male driver frightened her enough that she ran to another store and he chased her. Police have been on the lookout for the car and when it was spotted again by employees at 10 p.m. Sunday, June 12, police stopped and spoke with the driver, a 47-year-old Grosse Pointe Woods resident. He denied any wrongdoing. Police advised the man that he was not to park behind the store and employees were advised to call police if they have concerns for their safety.

Temper, temper

At 9:50 p.m. Sunday, June 12, an employee at a grocery store on Mack became concerned about the behavior of a customer's children who were disruptive toward other shoppers. When she approached the children's mother, the woman became so enraged the employee felt threatened and called police.

A LEIN check showed the customer was wanted on a warrant out of Madison Heights. She was taken into custody, and her children were turned over to an aunt.

Lucky break

A Prestwick resident heard a knock on her door at 3:30 a.m. Sunday, June 12, and answered to two undercover Detroit Police officers on her porch. They were returning items from her purse that had been taken from her car earlier in the evening. The DPD told the woman they found the purse in the car of two suspects arrested on other charges.

Arrest

Fingerprint evidence taken in a home invasion Friday, June 3, in the 1400 block of Berkshire led to the arrest of a 20-year-old Detroit resident.

Christopher David Wright was arraigned Friday, June 10, on one count of home invasion in the second degree, a felony that carries a sentence of up to 15 years in prison. At the time of his arrest on the Grosse Pointe Park charge, Wright was in custody in Detroit on unrelated charges. He is being held in Wayne County jail on a $50,000 cash bond.

Home invasion

An unknown person entered a house in the 1400 block of Kensington through a rear window sometime during the day Friday, June 10. Jewelry was reported missing.

Copper theft

Copper pipes were discovered missing Monday, June 6, from a bank-owned house in the 1200 block of Balfour. There was no sign of forced entry.

Fire

A homeowner in the 900 block of Bedford reported smoke coming from the attic at 5:45 p.m. Friday, June 10. Earlier in the day, workmen used a blowtorch to remove paint from a window area. The fire was confined to the attic area and was quickly extinguished.

Most anti-flooding options are costly

By Brad Lindberg
Staff Writer

GROSSE POINTE FARMS — Rebecca Edwards thinks her side of town is getting a raw deal on sewers.

She's lived 30 years in the inland, combined sewer district west of Ridge in Grosse Pointe Farms.

Her system is more likely to overflow during heavy storms than neighborhoods within the higher, lakeside district east of Ridge.

During the late 1990s, sewers in the lakeside system were separated. Pressure was taken off the waste water system by installing separate lines to carry storm runoff.

"You spent $10 million for the separated sewer in the rest of the Farms, yet left us with something else," Edwards told the city council this month. "I don't think it's right. I don't feel we're getting the same — I don't know what you'd call it — than the lakeside district."

Her basement was among nearly 300 in which sewers backed up during the May 25 rainstorm. Most flooding occurred in the inland district.

"It's the second time ours backed up," Edwards said. "Maybe if all of the Farms flooded through the sewer system, I might understand the rainfall issue. But, just to have that one area flood doesn't sit well with me."

Erin Elissa, another inland homeowner, said she spent three days cleaning her flooded basement and throwing away ruined possessions.

Elissa doubts initial findings by the city's consulting engineers that the inland system was overwhelmed by a record, once-per-century storm.

Rainfall maxed out at 2.7 inches in one hour, according to the engineers' preliminary analysis.

Readings came from a rain gauge at the Country Club of Detroit. The gauge recorded 4.2 inches of rain in 18 hours.

Totals exceed the proverbial "100-year" maximum hourly stormfall of 2.05 inches, and the 18-hour total of 4.1 inches, according to records from the Midwest Climate Center cited by Thomas Biehl, executive vice president of the Farms consulting engineers, Hubbell, Roth & Clark.

"Combined sewers and the sewage pumping station (at Kerby and Chalfonte) were unable to handle the peak of the event," Biehl said. "This was an extreme storm."

"The findings seem to be it was an act of God," Elissa said skeptically.

There are numerous, if pricey, ways to reduce the odds of inland district flooding.

"Engineers always say, if money's no object, there's always a solution," Biehl said. "But, it gets pretty expensive when you're talking about something that happens once every 100 years."

At the time lakeside sewers were separated, it would have cost $28 million to separate the whole city, according to an analysis at the time, Biehl said.

A less pricey option is building 1,500-foot-long overflow pipes from inland areas to Lake St. Clair. With such a system, inundated pipes would overflow through relief valves to the lake.

The cost comes with digging tunnels under the Hill district, which, as with Ridge Road, is named topographically. Both are much higher than the inland district.

"You'd have to dig through the Hill 50 feet deep," Biehl said. "You're talking $800 to $1,000 per foot."

"You only have about 6 feet of gradient between Mack and the lake elevation," said Councilman Joseph Leonard, the city's former public services director. "At that gradient, you'd probably need a dozen 30-inch pipes."

"In the original (separation) study, you're talking about an 84-inch diameter pipe," Biehl said.

Directional drilling costs less than digging trenches, but is still expensive, he added.

Another option is for Detroit to expand a regional retention basin at the Fox Creek facility, located below Jefferson near Bayview Yacht Club.

A low-tech alternative, used successfully in Grosse Pointe Woods, is covering catch basins with restrictor plates. Plates limit the inflow of runoff. Storm water backs up into streets, entering sewers at a slower pace that doesn't normally overload the system.

"Even though the streets were flooded, I'd think you'd rather have it on the street than in your basement," Biehl said.

"Eventually we're going to have to do the other side of Ridge," said Councilman Martin West.

RAIN: Residents ask for city's help

Water in Farquhar's basement came through the walls, indicating a runoff problem.

"The gutters couldn't handle it," he said.

Deeper into the inland district, about a foot of sewer water backed into Rebecca Edwards' basement in the 400 block of Lexington.

"We've been in the house 30 years," Edwards told the city council this month. "Another time (in 1989) water came up the sewer to the bottom step, about 8-12 inches. Now, the same thing. I'd like to know what the city is going to do about it."

Fellow flood victim, Christina Lawrence, of the 400 block of Champine, asked if the city will help pay damages.

City officials sent letters soliciting complaints to flooded homeowners. Letters returned to city hall will be forwarded to the municipal insurance carrier.

Complaints must be issued to the city within 45 days of flooding, according to City Manager Shane Reeside.

"Our insurance carrier will investigate claims," Reeside said. "The concern is, is this an act of God, or a problem with the facility? They're going to have to make a determination."

A preliminary assessment of sewer backups found the municipal system worked as designed, but couldn't handle a record downpour.

"Rainfall data reveals that for the one-hour peak and 18-hour total, this storm also exceeded the 100-year storm," said Thomas Biehl, executive vice president of the Farms' consulting engineers, Hubbell, Roth & Clark.

Biehl cited a rain gauge at the Country Club of Detroit, the closest to the main flooding area. The gauge registered a maximum hourly rainfall of 2.7 inches for an 18-hour total of 4.2 inches.

"The last time the Farms reported anything like this was in 1946," he said.

That storm prompted installation of two more pumps, for a total of eight, at the station on Kerby and Chalfonte.

"Based on discussions with station personnel, they indicated the magnitude of this rainfall (May 25) caused all eight pumps to operate simultaneously, which is the first-ever instance of this occurrence," Biehl said. "For the first time in 65 years, the sewer system and pump station couldn't keep up with the peak of that storm."

Saturated soil and power surges at the pump station made the problem worse.

"Ten days prior to this rainfall, we had approximately 3.1 inches of rain," Biehl said. "The ground was saturated. Instead of water accumulating into the ground, it runs off to the outlets quickly as it inundated the sewer system."

Also, four, short power surges off the DTE Energy grid triggered pumps to switch to back-up power, Biehl said. When a surge ended and pumps returned to the grid, they took time to gear back up.

"They kick back to Edison when the surge is over," Biehl said. "It reduces their capacity for approximately 3 to 5 minutes, which makes the situation worse."

The station sends water to the Fox Creek retention tank in Detroit, which also was overloaded by rains inundating the region, according to Biehl.

"Manhole covers were blowing, which means Fox Creek was full," he said.

Biehl said he anticipates having a final report within two weeks.

GUEST OPINION By Robert Filka

Housing under assault

Today, the nation faces an unprecedented assault on housing that threatens to derail nearly 100 years of national policy promoting the value of home ownership. The public remains largely unaware of the potential catastrophe that lies ahead, such as a sharply limited availability of long-term, fixed-rate mortgages; a huge jump in the cost of mortgages; minimum down payments of 20 percent or more; and a severe reduction in mortgage credit. One primary target of this unjustified attack on housing is the mortgage interest deduction. This cornerstone of American housing policy has been in place since the inception of the tax code in 1913 and supports the aspirations of families at all income levels to become house buyers. Although Americans overwhelmingly oppose any action by Congress to tamper with the mortgage interest deduction, according to Republican and Democratic polling firms of Public Opinion Strategies and Lake Research Partners for the National Association of Home Builders, many lawmakers have expressed a willingness to eliminate or curtail this vital housing tax provision. Such a move would further depress house values, leaving more owners with "under water" mortgages and fueling more foreclosures. Polling also found people consider owning a house essential to the American Dream. An overwhelming 75 percent said owning a house is worth the risk of the fluctuations in the market; 95 percent said they are happy with their decision to own a house; and 73 percent of renters said owning a house is one of their goals.

Meanwhile, six federal agencies are proposing a national Qualified Residential Mortgage standard requiring a minimum 20 percent down payment and other stricter qualifications. This could keep home ownership out of reach for most first-time house buyers and middle-class households. Complicating the situation, the federal government is looking to trim back the Federal Housing Administration's participation in the market, further limiting the availability of low down payment mortgages. As policy makers debate the housing finance and budget issues impacting job creation and future growth, they must understand the important role housing plays in the U.S. economy. Building 100 average single-family houses generates more than 300 jobs and nearly $9 million in taxes and revenue for state, local and federal governments. The federal proposals under consideration would reverse national housing policies that helped generations of American households own their houses, enter the ranks of the middle-class, build strong and stable neighborhoods and communities and provide a steppingstone to greater long-term financial security. For these reasons, it is important policy makers be fully aware of the depth and breadth of housing's many contributions to American society and that owning a house is a strong core value for most American households. GUEST OPINION By Rich Lowry

Misplaced bailout pride

It's a sign of grim times when the Obama Administration is touting a potential $14 billion loss to the taxpayers as a great economic success. The White House is running on its auto bailouts as courageous acts that saved the industrial Midwest. To critics of government intervention, the administration holds up the revival of General Motors and Chrysler as proof of the efficacy — nay, the necessity — of bailout economics. We can thank Chapter 11, the tried-and-true method for turning around bankrupt companies that still have value.

It's a telling point of pride. In bragging about the bailouts, the See BAILOUT, page 9A

Michigan recalls

To the Editor:
One of the greatest treasures of America is our rule of law, which includes the orderly succession of elected officials. Notice how at the national level, no matter how bitter the election or ideological divide, one president always gives way graciously and helpfully to the next elected one, including those from the opposition party. We'll wage combat in the next election cycle is the ruling principle. However, in Michigan it seems to be recall season, some would say political hunting season, with campaigns of varied degrees of organization and resources under way against Gov. Rick Snyder and a number of members of the Legislature. Michigan is among 19 states, in addition to the District of Columbia, that allows for the recall of state officials. In Michigan, all elected officials are subject to recall except judges of courts of record. These elected officials are not subject to recall in the first or last six months of their current term in office. This explains the timing of the current recall flurry.

Recall of elected officials is a legitimate action when elected officials engage in serious breaches of ethical conduct, the public trust or the law. Our Michigan democracy put this mechanism in place so citizens could address serious, exceptional wrongs. The last successful recall of a Michigan state lawmaker was in 1983, almost three decades ago, reflecting the high bar to recall that should exist. Instead, we are witnessing recalls almost as soon as an elected official takes office. Often, it seems, because that official is pursuing the policies upon which she or he campaigned. These recalls are divisive and cost time, money and effort. Most importantly, they distract all of us, whatever our political persuasion, from the important work at hand which should be reaching meaningful consensus on pressing issues like jobs, the state budget and taxation, business attraction, infrastructure improvement and overall economic growth. Opposition to an elected official's stand on a policy popular or unpopular, can be addressed through many avenues within the system and ultimately during the election cycle. Recall should be reserved for serious offenses such as the unlawful conduct of a public figure, breaking of the public's trust or ethical violations. In short, recalls should be a remedy of last resort, not the first reaction when an elected official doesn't do what we would like. Let's lower the political static, as we raise the level of serious debate and accomplishments. This is not the time for unreasonable distractions to the urgent work at hand. MIKE JACKSON

Changed view

To the Editor:
In January, Michigan state lawmakers introduced a package of bills banning partial birth abortion in Michigan. These bills mirror the Federal partial birth abortion ban, which the U.S. Supreme Court upheld in Gonzales versus Carhart of 2007. On March 1, Barbara Listing, president of Right to Life of Michigan, provided testimony before the State Senate Judiciary Committee representing the unborn. Listing indicated in her March 24 newsletter, "Planned Parenthood and the ACLU (American Civil Liberties Union) also showed up to testify — in support of partial birth abortion..." Read the story of Abby Johnson, a former Planned Parenthood employee, "Unplanned: The Dramatic True Story of a Former Planned Parenthood Leader's Eye-Opening Journey Across the Life Line." It is a riveting story that tells of Johnson's decision to work for Planned Parenthood because she believed she was helping women. Johnson worked there for eight years. The turning point was when she was called in to help during an ultrasound-guided abortion and saw the reality of an abortion. She resigned soon after and became active in the pro-life movement. To the Editor:
The question of whether babies are better than abortions is one not normally asked, but stressed in a Jan. 18 Wall Street Journal article. This article discussed the latest statistics from the New York City Health Department showing 41 percent of all pregnancies, excluding miscarriage, in New York City ended in abortion — double the national rate. For New York City Hispanics, the abortion rate was 41.3 percent — more than double the rate for whites. For blacks in New York City, the situation was far, far worse — for every 1,000 live births, there were 1,489 abortions. The article noted President Clinton in the early 1990s saying abortion should be safe, legal and rare. Obviously the New York City statistics do not show abortion is rare there, and a 20 percent national abortion rate shows abortion is not rare on the national level. The vast number of people, even the most resolute pro-abortion people, agree babies are better than abortions. After all, even they celebrate and support a pregnant woman within their midst announcing she is going to have a baby. Since babies are better than abortions, shouldn't crisis pregnancy centers and pregnancy aid centers receive more government assistance than facilities such as Planned Parenthood? Planned Parenthood receives 350 million taxpayer dollars per year for counseling women to have abortions. In 2008, the most recent year for which it reports statistics, Planned Parenthood performed 324,008 abortions nationwide against only 2,405 adoption referrals. Planned Parenthood now insists all affiliates provide abortions by 2013, a mandatory policy that has led at least one affiliate to leave the organization. Pregnant women, especially lower income women, need encouragement and help in their pregnancies. Common are the reports and websites repeating this heart-rending lament — "If only one person had encouraged me to keep my baby..." The Wall Street Journal article concludes, "And ask yourself this: What kind of America might we have if all pregnant women — especially black and Hispanic women who are disproportionately aborting — could feel from society, that same welcome and encouragement as most other pregnant women receive." Since babies are better than abortions, wouldn't it be wiser and fairer for the U.S. government to fund pregnancy aid centers rather than give 350 million taxpayer dollars per year to Planned Parenthood, which performs more than 320,000 abortions per year now in the U.S.?

Schools' support
To the Editor:
In response to the article entitled, "A need for improvement," printed in the May 19 Grosse Pointe News schools section, I offer the following comments to the point of view presented.

My parents taught me many good lessons in life, but two which deserve mention in respect to this article are: always remember there are two sides to every story, and remember everyone has their own truth in any given situation. Having worked for the Grosse Pointe Public School System for the past 16 years, I have personally experienced and have observed our dedicated staff be supported by an administration who has provided great vision, excellent guidance and a strong foundation while providing excellent programs and service for all of our students. Simply put, the suggestion in this article that there has been no vision, guidance, foundation and that we have not followed legal mandates is, as my parents taught me...just one side of a story and simply, someone else's truth. Teacher tenure

To the Editor:
I recently read about a proposed law eliminating teacher tenure, meaning teachers can be fired for "reasonable and just cause," changing the language to teachers can't be fired for "arbitrary or capricious reasons." I wondered, what's the difference? It seems like swapping one condition for another with much the same meaning. So what is the difference and why are they supporting this change? Then it hit me — it is a question of who bears the burden of proof. As it stands, school authorities are required to prove they were acting for only reasonable and just causes. In the new language, the teacher has the burden of proving school authorities were acting in an arbitrary or capricious manner. The point is this, read behind the suggested changes to the actual effect. I wonder, has the governor acted in a manner supporting either teachers or education? GORDON MORLAN

Lighted signs

To the Editor:
Since the issue of neon lights in Grosse Pointe Woods has come up again in the letter to the editor, "Neon lights," printed in the May 19 Grosse Pointe News, I would like to express my opinion. Grosse Pointe Woods did not attempt to ban "lighted signs," only "neon signs." There is a difference. When driving down Mack, it's not difficult to see which places of business are open by observing lighted signs. Neon signs do so glaringly. Drive down Warren Avenue and you will see what Grosse Pointe Woods was trying to avoid. M.E. HAELEWYN

The Lone Ranger rides again

"Hi-Yo Silver. A fiery horse with the speed of light, a cloud of dust and a hearty Hi-Yo Silver ... the Lone Ranger!"

"With his faithful Indian companion, Tonto, the daring and resourceful masked rider of the plains led the fight for law and order in the early West. Return with us now to those thrilling days of yesteryear. The Lone Ranger rides again!"

The introduction to the radio series, "The Lone Ranger."

And there they were. The Lone Ranger, Silver and Tonto. Up close and personal. Well, not the original stars, but today's look-alikes making personal appearances in parades, state fairs, theme parks, private parties, church revivals, charities, western events and holiday celebrations bringing a moral message of non-violence, no drugs, no smoking, no drinking and taking responsibility for your actions.

It was a piece of Americana. It was right out the days of yesteryear. It was the Lone Ranger riding Silver and accompanied by the Lone Ranger's faithful Indian companion, Tonto. They made the older crowd giddy with memories and the younger set wondering what their grandparents were about.

This 21st century Lone Ranger wore the light blue attire, black mask and light gray hat of a good guy. He had his six-shooter strapped to a belt lined with silver bullets.

Silver, the 1,200 pound Tennessee Walker, wore showy silver trappings for the Mackinaw City Memorial Day parade. Walking alongside the two was Tonto, dressed in brown and sporting short hair.

It was flashback city for the crowd around me, yelling and waving just like 10-year-olds again. Each senior man and woman remembered Tonto's name for the Lone Ranger, "Kemo Sabe," and felt the need to shout it out. And with heart-pounding anticipation, they were rewarded as the masked man pulled Silver into his famous back leg stance, with the front hooves pawing the air, as if to say, "Let's ride on to get the bad guys."

Today's masked man, now living in Salisbury, Md., told the story of the Lone Ranger to a wide age range of listeners. He was a hero to those who listened to his stories first on the radio beginning in 1933 on Detroit's WXYZ and then seeing them in black and white on television.

In the late 1800s, attorney John Reid became the Lone Ranger after the death of his older brother and five companions, all Texas Rangers, by that devilish Butch Cavendish and his Hole in the Wall gang. The gang ambushed the good guys wearing white hats in the narrow pass of Bryant's Gap.

Though gravely injured, Reid was nursed back to health by Tonto, whom Reid had helped when Tonto's village was attacked years earlier.

guys wearing black hats and vests and living only to create mayhem, the Lone Ranger and Tonto righted wrongs and brought those outlaws to justice each week.

The uncomplicated stories were accompanied by the theme music of the "William Tell Overture," inspiring a young whippersnapper to ride up and down newly-built 1950s suburbia sidewalks on a make-shift stick horse yelling, "Hi-Yo Silver. Away!"

Yes, the Lone Ranger, who revealed only his stage name, and Silver with the black spots beneath his eyes, just like the Silver on television, were surely one of the hits of the 60-minute parade, featuring fire trucks, floats with pretty young queens and their courts and the famous Fort Michilimackinac pageant participants.

As I watched the Lone Ranger, Silver and Tonto proceed past the American Legion building, city hall and the city marina, I was left with the burning question: "Who was that masked man?"

WARNER'S CORNER By Joe Warner

Children are the gift that keep on giving

I used to work with an idiot who told me his dog was like a child. He actually took time off to grieve when it died.

"It's like losing a son," he said. "I'm devastated."

I shook my head and silently said a thank you prayer that this guy and his wife never had children. Chances are high the spawn would have been rife with stupidity.

When he got a new dog, he marveled aloud how wonderful it was to have "a newborn in the house." Again, I was shocked. I understand a lot of people aren't cut out to be parents and I appreciate that. But don't tell me you love your pet as if it were your child. You're not only childless, you're an idiot.

Don't get me wrong; I have loved most of the pets I've had. I shed tears when they croaked in some cases (one was a frog; pun intended). But once they died, I buried them in the yard, flushed them down the toilet, or threw them out to sea.

And when a family dog named Sparky once took a bite out of my rear end for no apparent reason, my dad took him for a walk. My dad came back, Sparky didn't. Lost, I thought.

I've never felt a pet was like a child. And once I had Abby and Molly, now 10 and 6, I realized there is nothing like the love you feel for your children. You can't love your spouse or anybody else the same way. I also realized I could stop going outside and calling Sparky's name with hopes he'd come home. He wasn't coming home. My dad loved me more than our dog who "went to the country to live with nice people."

When Abby was teething and she bit my finger, I didn't take her for a walk and bequeath her to a dairy farmer. When Molly removed a fresh-soiled diaper and painted the wall with fecal matter, I didn't rub her face in it and kick her down the hall, laces out, like a football. If she made noises in the middle of the night, I didn't let her outside to aimlessly roam the streets until dawn.

No, children are much different than pets.

The single most significant thing in my life has already happened. Abby and Molly are as good as it gets for me and this week is special as we celebrate Father's Day together.

I enjoyed being selfish my whole life until my daughters changed my life and me. They taught me, albeit too late in some areas, that I needed some patience. I needed some faith. I needed some discipline. I needed to find happiness, even if it meant some pain. They've taught me things you only learn through experience.

This year a friend walked his daughter down the aisle. I can't imagine how I will feel if I experience that some day. Abby pinky-swore she won't get married until she is out of college and has settled into her career.

And earlier this year, my daughters shared the pain of a good friend who lost her dad. Her dad was my age. The weekend he died, Molly hugged me and wanted me to promise I would never leave. I cried.

Nothing is forever. The bad times, the good times, there are no guarantees.

God has blessed me with Abby and Molly and I love them very much. There's nothing more rewarding than being a dad.

Enjoy Father's Day. Take time to talk to your dad or remember the good times you had with him.

I learned plenty from my dad. Mostly that no matter how much of a challenge I was to parent, there was always love.

Sparky, not so much.

BAILOUT: Automotive revival administration is boasting of a process shot through with lawlessness and political favoritism, not to mention reckless disregard for taxpayer dollars.

Few acts have so powerfully captured President Barack Obama's corporatism.

On top of the bailout, the government has given GM a special tax break that will save it $14 billion in taxes. The government also is trying to induce consumers to buy GM's signature new product, the expensive electric Chevy Volt, by giving them a $7,500 tax credit on its $41,000 sticker price.

With all this support, GM should be the world's greatest industrial concern. It's hardly that — although it's much improved. We can thank Chapter 11, the tried-and-true method for turning around bankrupt companies that still have value.

Writing in the journal,

National Affairs, Todd Zywicki makes a distinction between "economically failed" companies that disappear when they go bankrupt and "financially distressed" companies that can still work. With a skilled workforce, advanced factories and prized brands, GM was the clearly the latter.

"Virtually every major airline has been through bankruptcy at least once, as have K-Mart, Macy's, and a host of other familiar brands still very much in business," wrote Zywicki.

Somewhere in GM there was a viable car company trying to get out. Through Chapter 11, GM pared down wages and benefits, shed uneconomical dealerships and ditched unnecessary brands. This was a classic restructuring. If anything, without government intervention, it would have been more thorough-going and effective.

As an exercise in what Zywicki calls "state capitalism," the bailout was a procedural horror show. It was probably illegal to funnel Troubled Asset Relief Program funds into the companies; they may not have been car companies worthy of the name any longer, but they certainly weren't "financial institutions."

Chrysler's creditors, who held secured bonds and guaranteed repayment first, got forced into taking 29 cents on the dollar. In contrast, the United Auto Workers' pension plan got 40 cents on the dollar.

The creditors of both Chrysler and GM were denied their usual right to have a say in the reorganizations.

The government was in a strong position to bully some of these creditors, because they themselves received TARP funds.

Once they had their hooks in them, the Obama Administration and Congress made the companies do their bidding, insisting they build politically correct hybrid cars and keep open politically favored dealerships.

Ultimately, the moral stature of capitalism depends on a structure of rules that applies to firms large and small, politically connected and not.

By this standard, the auto bailouts fail miserably — and so perfectly distill Obamanomics.

Windsurfers take to Lake St. Clair

By Kathy Ryan
Staff Writer

There will be a some sails of a different sort Saturday, June 18, as the Grosse Pointe Windsurfing Club hosts an exhibition of the sport on the waves off Patterson Park in Grosse Pointe Park.

A freestyle windsurfing demonstration highlights the event and includes such moves as flipping the board on its side, sailing a "rail ride" and a "back-to-sail" demonstration.

"These moves are really fun to watch," said Frank Murray, president of the club. "The pros make it look so easy."

While Lake St. Clair does not produce the same waves and winds ocean windsurfing offers, according to Murray it offers optimum conditions for the sport.

"It's a big lake, without the mountains or hills to affect the winds," he said. "It also has the added benefit of "not having critters that will eat you and your board."

The event is held along with a regatta for club members. Registration begins at 9 a.m. with a captains meeting at 10 a.m. Races are expected to begin about 11 a.m.

According to Murray, the time for the freestyle demonstration depends on the day's wind conditions.

BORDER: Security tightens in Southeast Michigan

June 13, approved construction of the tower. Council approval was needed because the tower exceeds the 55-foot height limit.

Tower location was chosen for a strategic perspective of Lake St. Clair and the mouth of the Detroit River.

The Farms tower links with one on Gull Island. Agents can watch nearly 30 miles of the border with Canada, according to Randolph Gallegos, project manager and chief patrol agent of the customs and border department Detroit sector. "This is a big deal for us," Gallegos said.

His previous assignment was the Arizona fenceline with Mexico.

"We don't put fences up in Michigan," he said. "We put up technology as a force multiplier, which works with agents on the ground to make one person 10 or 100."

Even with the installation of surveillance towers from Port Huron down to the Pointes, the border patrol has boosted staff in Southeast Michigan to combat an alien influx.

"You've seen an exponential increase in personnel here," Gallegos said.

Secret green

The tower resembles equipment installed near the St. Clair Inn, in St. Clair, according to Gallegos.

It will be painted "secret garden green," agents joked, and screened by trees 45 to 50 feet tall.

Nearby Farms homeowner, Mike Monahan, had concerns about living within focus of a federal lens.

"If this can see to Gull Island, I don't know what it can see in my yard," he said. "I'm concerned about privacy."

"I understand the privacy of it," Lambert said. "Looking into someone's house wouldn't happen if it wasn't necessary. Somebody would be punished for that."

Monahan also criticized the structure's appearance.

"It's pretty distasteful for a residential neighborhood," he said. "Soon, we'll have an air force station there of some kind."

Agents rejected alternative locations, such as on the Farms communications tower behind city hall or on range lights marking the lake's navigation channel.

Such placements resulted in coverage gaps or created technical hardships, they said.

No radar

The council refused permission to cap the tower with a 50 kilowatt radar antenna.

"We're trying to get small targets on Lake St. Clair," Gallegos said.

"There's an effort to get more activity and greater awareness of cross border activity."

Radar would have raised the tower to 66 feet. Moreover, agents didn't mention radar when seeking permission from neighboring property owners for a video tower.

"Neighbors are not aware that other things go along with this," said Mayor James Farquhar.

"I have to take care of my residents."

"Radar is a proposal," Lambert said. "It's not definite. We have to (come) back with a radar proposal later, if you'd like."

"Once (you) build the pole for national security," Farquhar asked, "do (you) have the right to put anything on the pole and we don't count?"

"If you're talking about condemnation proceedings, we could have done that in the first place," Lambert answered. "The Border Patrol will not do that, except in an extreme case. We'd do it in partnership with you."

"They'd have to come back to us for any other use," said Councilman Terry Davis.

Integrating technology in the classroom

By A.J. Hakim
Staff Writer

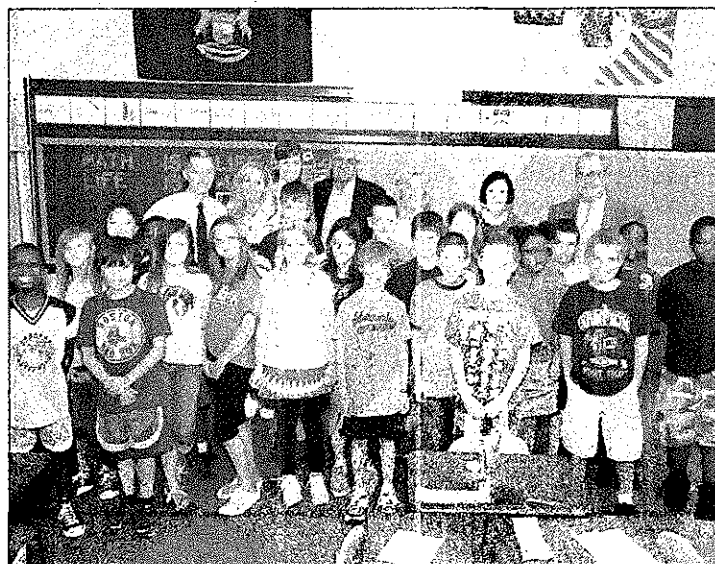

An advocate for integrating technology in the classroom, Trombly Elementary School teacher Susan Howey and her fourth-graders demonstrated last week the educational effectiveness technology has on students.

Using the classroom SMART board, students presented their Prezis, online presentations similar to Microsoft PowerPoint, to classmates, members of the Grosse Pointe Foundation for Public Education and philanthropists John and Marlene Boll.

"The reason I really like Prezi is the multimedia experience," Howey said. "What my kids have actually learned to navigate with the software is, they now know how to add photos, videos, websites, texts, and in a graphically appealing manner that zooms in and out, sort of like an iPhone. It's much more engaging for the audience."

"This can be applied to any grade level or any career. Opportunities to plug it into the curriculum, given the resources to do so, are really endless."

For the assignment, which students completed during weekly sessions in the computer lab, Howey required at least two websites, five photos and captions, a video and a title, all about their fourth-grade experiences.

Prezis included memories such as: students' Pringles challenge, in which they packaged Pringles chips, shipped them unscathed to an out-of-state school and Skyped with the school once it received the package; the schoolwide reading of George Selden's, "A Cricket in Times Square," that included Howey's study guide Prezi for teachers for a unified learning experience; photos from both their endangered species research papers and clones of themselves made to surprise parents during back-to-school night; and several videos students enjoyed watching throughout the year.

"I always know I struck a chord with them when we talk about or do something in class and they go home and they either talk about it or they do it," Howey said. "The way this first started was, I started using Prezi in my teaching, and they talked about the book, 'A Cricket in Times Square,' and I had made several Prezis to help us study the book."

"Any time you have that transference, whether it's taking what we're doing here, and the ease of applicability of it, then you know it's bigger than them just saying, 'well, it's something I do at school.'"

"And I really think they would tell you that I really take the time to point out, whether it's a website we visit or whatever it is we're using, I say, 'you can do this at home. This is not just for school, this is not our classroom, this is not fourth grade. This is out there,' and kind of encouraging that home or school, that we're all on the same page."

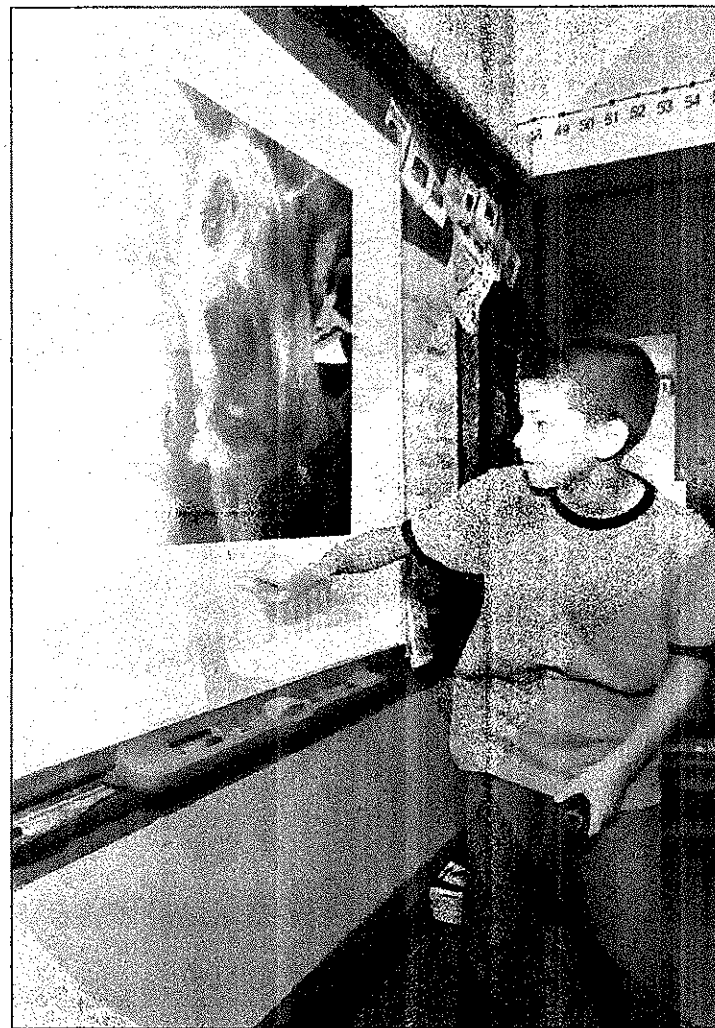

The students' presentations substantiate the foundation's investment in supplying classrooms with SMART boards by offering a glimpse into some of the new learning possibilities for students through the integration of technology.

The foundation, along with the John A. and Marlene L. Boll Foundation, recently raised $830,000 to install the boards in every classroom.

"Technology is an incredible tool that helps bring our world into the classroom and allows our children to creatively explore and take their knowledge and understanding to new levels," foundation vice president Lisa Vreede said. "While the campaign is complete, the needs and opportunities continue, in technology as in all areas."

Howey added: "The kids really are the stars. What they can navigate — the software they've learned to use, how to go on and search for things and save things and e-mail them to me — they're navigating the digital world."

"They're the stars and our Fourth-grader Jeevan Telan scrolls through his Prezi, which featured a video of a talking dog. Each Prezi featured photos, videos and web links exploring students' favorite memories of the school year.

job is to sort of set them up for success in that. There are so many skills behind what you're seeing ... We need to celebrate what the kids are doing and the impact it has now, but also what the future will look like.

"Keeping in mind what they're doing now, we can do more if they have more resources."

Dinner honors visit, supporters

By A.J. Hakim
Staff Writer

The Warm Hearts Foundation recently hosted a dinner recognizing Nehemiah Ndeta's first visit to the United States and honoring contributions from local supporters.

A Nairobi, Kenya, native, Ndeta is the director of Kwa Watoto Center and School, St. Mathew Secondary School, Warm Hearts House orphanage and Lambert House safe house. His visit to Michigan encompassed three cities — Grand Rapids, Ann Arbor and the Grosse Pointes.

Ndeta spoke of growing up the only child in his family to attend high school and graduate college, of opening a school in Nairobi, one of the poorest communities in Africa and of a new bakery, still in its infancy stages, for the Watoto Center.

He also expressed gratitude to those in the community who've supported him and the foundation, one reason he and foundation president, Paul Brink, chose Grosse Pointe as a destination.

For the past eight years, individuals such as Brownell

Middle School seventh-grader Maggie Wright and her mom, Alison Wright, supported the foundation. In 2008, the duo raised more than $10,000 during a fundraiser, in which they walked 10 miles. With the money, they purchased land for a farm in Kenya to provide food for children of the Watoto Center and St. Mathew.

Maggie's inspiration stemmed from a challenge "to do something to help" from Linda Brock, her second-grade teacher at Kerby Elementary School. Brock, also in attendance at the dinner, sponsors a child from the Warm Hearts House and her students exchange letters and pictures throughout the school year.

Others in attendance included: Lori Wood, Grosse Pointe native and founder of the Warm Hearts Foundation;

Against Hunger; and Alicia Carlisle, of Grosse Pointe Public School System SERVE, a student volunteer program that organized three separate

"builds" with the Kids Against Hunger. During the builds, 10,000 dry meals were packaged and shipped to organizations around the world.

Several members of the foundation also attended.

"It was a real treat to meet Nehemiah and hear his story," Morinelli said. "Having returned in February from a mission trip to Honduras, I am reminded, once again, of the wealth we have in this country and our lack of true appreciation; how very important it is to share this with our brothers and sisters around the world.

"I know we cannot do it all, but we choose a bit here and there."

Teacher of the week

They play a key role in every child's development and inspire excellence in and out of the classroom.

This week, it's Ferry Elementary School kindergarten teacher Sharon Gallacher.

She was nominated by her entire class. Marc Mueller, Gabriel Le and Ian MacLachlan said, "She teaches me lots of good things."

Vanessa Ciaramitaro, Alexandria Metry and Anna Czech: "She takes us on field trips we like."

Sofia Barna and Lily Parker: "I love her and she loves me too."

Fatima Jawad, Andre Aliahmad and Braden Campbell: "She makes nice things with us, she lets us play with LEGOs and she has nice parties for us."

Lauren Veitengruber: "She is the greatest teacher in the world."

Years at the Grosse Pointe Woods school: This is the 16th year I have taught kindergarten in Grosse Pointe. This is my second year at Ferry Elementary.

Previous work: I was at Maire Elementary School for 11 years and Barnes Early Childhood Center for three years. I have an early childhood background and taught pre-school for three years. I also taught elementary school in Wales, Great Britain, before coming to America.

Why did you become a teacher: After my Bachelor's Degree, I worked for a large electronics company and then became self-employed running my own store in Wales. It was here that I came into daily contact with lots of local school children and I realized that teaching was what I really wanted to do. My parents were not surprised when I went back to college for a further degree in elementary education as they said that even from the early age of three I had loved school.

What do you enjoy most about teaching: My students and their families. Each year I am able to become part of my students' lives. We share very special memories together as kindergarten is a very wonderful and magical year. I tell my students, 'memories are like warm fuzzies that touch your heart.'

I am fortunate to say that teaching has given me an abundance of 'warm fuzzies.' These range from becoming part of Grosse Pointe schools' history at Maire when I held my American Citizenship ceremony there, to seeing the look of delight on a student's face when they have an 'aha' moment, or are bursting with pride and joy from reading aloud a story that they have written.

Every day in kindergarten has some 'warm fuzzy' moments. I love the fact that I can make a difference in a child's life.

How do you feel about being nominated: I am truly honored to be nominated by all the students in my class. This is definitely another 'warm fuzzy' moment for me.

What's your favorite subject to teach: I enjoy any creative activities that I can share with my students. As an immigrant, I also enjoy teaching my students about other cultures. I have a small stuffed animal called Mr. Bear who goes home with a different child each night and they write a journal page about their adventures with him. It has traveled the world with me and ridden on an elephant in India, climbed the Great Wall of China and has been in a cockpit of a Mt. Everest fly-by in Kathmandu.

It is so much fun for a kindergartner to learn about another country through a favorite stuffed animal's adventures.

What is your favorite book to read to students: At the end of the year, I like to read 'Miss Rumphius,' by Barbara Cooney.

It is the story of Alice Rumphius who had three things in life that she wanted to do: to travel the world, to live by the sea and to do something to make the world beautiful.

Day of fun, exercise

Pierce Middle School held its annual field day for sixth-graders. New this year were three water games, including Jacques Cousteau, in which students use their bare feet to grab toy pieces, one at a time, and place them into a bowl, above. Students also participated in the tug-of-war, an obstacle course, tire roll and shoe kick frenzy, in which the competitor whose shoe travels farthest wins.

New Mustang GT loves open road

We beg to borrow the title of the 1966 Spanish/Italian film "The Good, the Bad and the Ugly" to describe our several days with a powerful, "Grabber Blue" 2011 Mustang GT.

The solid, rumbling coupe arrived just in time for a long day's excursion to and from Indianapolis. With a 412-horsepower V-8 under its bright blue hood, this pony was ready to travel.

Indeed, the first several hours could only be described as "good." The six-speed manual transmission has a convenient short throw and was, on a few occasions, happy to go forward from a stop while in third gear without stuttering or asking for an apology. The shifts are not widely spaced.

Before getting to the "bad," it's time for credit where credit is due. The ground-hugging Mustang GT—riding on 255/40R19 tires and 19-inch wheels—enjoys revised damper tuning and spring rates, Ford design engineers say provide a smooth highway ride.

New rear lower control arms and firmer stabilizer bar bushings improve stiffness and handling for better cornering response over the 2010 model, according to Ford.

Ford says the new 5.0-liter V-8, coupled with either a six-speed manual or six-speed automatic, is at the heart of the transformed Mustang. In addition to the 400-plus horsepower, this new engine rates 390 pound-feet of torque. It features twin independent variable camshaft timing.

Gas guzzler, you say? Not what one might expect. On the straightaway, we were happy with our 25.4 miles per gallon. Careful city driving yielded about 23.8 mpg. Official EPA numbers for the 2011 Mustang GT with automatic transmission are 25 mpg highway and 18 city. This is up from 23 highway and 17 city for the 2010 model. Six-speed manual 2011 GT models are rated at 26 mpg highway and 17 city. Ford says this matches the 2010 model while delivering more horsepower and performance feel.

New tubular exhaust headers were designed to maximize exhaust pulse separation and improve flow. Ford says a Ford team analyst fabricated the tubular headers in his house workshop, bringing the computer-aided design to life.

Ford says electric power-assist steering delivers quicker on-center steering response, increases effort at highway speeds and reduces effort required in low-speed parking maneuvers. Without a belt-driven power steering pump, the electronic power assist provides a quieter vehicle with fewer components drawing engine power.

The new power assist enables new technologies to adjust for driving annoyances, including drift-pull from crosswinds and minor road crowning and shimmying sometimes felt at high speeds when a wheel is out of balance or a brake rotor is warped.

Standard AdvanceTrac electronic stability control, which complements the all-speed traction control and standard anti-lock braking system, helps keep the car under control.

Ford's 2011 Mustang backs up its GT model with a 412-horsepower V-8, available with six-speed automatic or six-speed manual transmission. Ford calls this Mustang GT exterior color "Grabber Blue." There's a matching blue leather inset in the charcoal black seats.

Robotic Plant Laser Technology

Ford Motor Company uses robotic plant laser inspection technology assembly on the new 2012 Ford Focus at the Michigan Assembly Plant, Wayne. Laser vision technology is part of Ford's overall drive to achieve industry leadership in customer satisfaction. Ford workers build multiple models on one or more platforms in the same facility. The Focus Electric zero-emission battery electric vehicle is slated for production late this year at the plant, followed by the new C-MAX Hybrid and C-MAX Energy plug-in hybrid in 2012.

With this product lineup, the plant is the first in the world capable of building gas-powered, electric, hybrid and plug-in hybrid vehicles on the same production line. The company's investment in Wayne is supported by strong partnerships at the state, county and local level and Ford's green partnership with the United States Department of Energy. It is one of 11 Ford facilities in the U.S. participating in the Advanced Technology Vehicles Manufacturing Loan Program initiated by Congress and implemented by the Obama administration.

Be forewarned: this is a sport coupe. So, in spite of all the suspension tuning and efforts to keep vehicle noise, vibration and harshness down, the ride in the Mustang GT bears no resemblance to that of a luxury sedan. It's a sporty ride, hard to some, wonderful to others.

The test Mustang GT with manual transmission had a base price of $32,845. Adding icing to the cake, there were close to $6,000 in options. An electronics package was $2,340, and a Brembo Brake package with 255/40R19 tires and 19-inch painted aluminum wheels ran $1,695. Premier trim, a security package, 3.73 ratio limited slip axle, high-intensity headlamps and rear video camera completed the add-ons.

Final price before destination: $38,830. The Mustang GT is assembled at Ford's Flat Rock plant.

The bad, the ugly

As we approach Muncie, Ind., we notice the needle on the gas gauge is slightly to the left of the half tank mark. A short time later, the gas pump icon on the instrument panel lit with a message: Five miles to empty.

The message read two miles to empty when we spotted a sign for an exit — in two miles. We filled up and were on our way again.

That was the bad. The ugly occurred the day the rains came down. We were trying to get to Oakland County. The freeway was at a standstill.

We ventured through the waters of the service drive, scheming which other route might work. The car stopped in the middle and wouldn't start. We called our emergency service provider and were told a truck would be there in something more than an hour. We sat. Soon enough, other vehicles searching for a way through approached. They passed on either side. Several stopped to offer advice and condolences, then they proceeded, fearing a similar fate for themselves.

Two-plus hours passed. No roadside assistance. A huge tour bus glided around us. Semis, SUVs and, yes, even a beat-up Honda Civic, old Plymouth Neon and modest Ford Escort passed us by. The waves from their wakes were splashing against our sides.

A couple of residents were out with sticks trying to find the sewer covers and remove debris so the water could escape. They offered diagnoses: your starter is wet, electronic control modules are wet, there's water in the intakes. Nice car, they said.

Four hours after stalling, a rescue truck arrived. The driver turned over the engine, but it made loud and unhealthy noises. He power lifted it onto the rear platform of the truck and took it to a dealership.

We await the prognosis.

TEST DRIVE By Greg Zyla

Toyota Highlander Limited Hybrid 4WD

This week, we're testing one of Toyota's most popular hybrids, the 2011 seven-passenger Highlander Limited — base price: $43,145; price as tested: $46,969.

Listed as an SUV/Crossover in mid-size form, Highlander continues to sell well in both gas-only and more expensive hybrid design. Notable, too, is the June issue of Consumer Reports notes its consumer group named the 2011 Hybrid as its top choice in the mid-size SUV class.

New for 2011 is an upgraded gas engine, going from 2010's 3.3 liter V6 that combines with three electric motors for 270 horses to a new 3.5 liter V6 that develops 280 combined horses. Highlander's electric package assures much better fuel mileage, with 28 city and 28 highway EPA numbers, both up one from last year.

Highlander Hybrid also offers a gas-saving "electric EV mode" which allows electric-only driving up to about 25 mph. It works well and definitely saves fuel. The only transmission available is a well-designed continuously variable automatic with an economy mode and hill start assist. Towing is still limited to 3,500 pounds, while non-Hybrid V6 Highlanders can tow up to 5,000 pounds.

As noted in our 2010 test drive, Highlander is situated in an arena that features some stiff competition. Included are Honda Pilot, Hyundai Santa Fe/Tucson, Mazda CX9, Volkswagen Touareg, Kia Sorento, Jeep Grand Cherokee, Nissan Pathfinder, Chevy Equinox/GMC Terrain, Dodge Journey and Ford Flex — to name a few.

Built in Princeton, Ind., all Highlander Hybrids come with 4WD underpinnings; as a hybrid 2x4 is not available. Highlander Hybrid is also available as a base model at $37,490 and is mechanically identical to the Limited. Thus, if you don't need extra bells and whistles, consider the base model first.

With 5-Star government crash ratings in side impact and 4-Star in front impact for both driver and passengers, Highlander continues to deliver top flight safety. Standard for 2011 is Toyota's electronically controlled "Star Safety System" that includes vehicle stability control, traction control and anti-lock 4-wheel disc brakes with electronic brake-force distribution — all run by an integrated management system.

Additionally, Highlander safety includes all the air bags and, most important for me, standard rear backup camera.

As hand-held technology and Garmin-type navigation units are readily available at a fraction of the cost, I do not recommend spending an additional $2,650 for a high tech DVD touch screen Navigation option.

This upgrade features an enhanced stereo with nine JBL speakers and a subwoofer along with an iPod hookup. I feel the standard stereo, which sports six speakers, CD, XM Radio with 90 days free, USB and Bluetooth, does a fine job. Thus, I'd save the bucks unless you absolutely need it or your wallet is a bit wider than the norm.

The standard equipment list is extensive, including all the powers, aforementioned rear backup camera, power lift gate with jam protection, 10 cup holders, sliding 40/20/40 second row seats, leather, heated front seating, wood trim, door panel and console trim, great looking instrumentation and easy to reach controls.

Once inside, passengers will find excellent second-row legroom and a third-row seat that easily folds under for a flat cargo area. The third row is not as "room generous" for passengers as some of the competition, although the children and dog will love it back there.

As for rear cargo space, you'll find 10.3 cubic feet for your groceries behind the third seat. However, if you lower the third seat, cargo expands to 42.4. And if you still need more, dropping the second row expands this number to a very generous 94.1.

Underneath, Highlander offers a 4-wheel fully independent suspension and full-time automatic 4WD system. This all results in a comfortable ride and good corner grip, thanks to 19-inch tires. Beautiful alloy wheels finish off the exterior looks.

Important numbers include a wheelbase of 109.8 inches, 4,762 pound curb weight and a 17.2 gallon fuel tank.

Highlander Hybrid is a winner, be it base model or Limited.

Likes: More horsepower, more miles per gallon, Toyota reliability, hybrid system.

Dislikes: Limited is expensive, some blind spots, third row snug.

EyesOn Design: What a feeling

By Justin Hicks
Special Writer

While most in attendance can simply see some of the world's most magnificent vehicles, a handful must rely on other senses to enjoy the 24th annual EyesOn Design car show.

Five vision-impaired car enthusiasts are in charge of judging the Visionaries Award based on the feel of the car under their white gloves at the Detroit Institute of Ophthalmology sponsored show Sunday, June 18, at the Edsel & Eleanor Ford House in Grosse Pointe Shores.

"Most people judge cars from what you see; do you like the shape, the way the tail lights blend in or the aggressive or passive look?," said Nino Pacini, a vision-impaired judge of the EyesOn Design show for many years. "We have sound and we have tactile. I really look for sleek; I like edges, I like sculpting, even rounded things."

Pacini, 49, began losing his vision to retinitis pigmentosa, a congenital disease, at the age of 7. The Grosse Pointe Woods resident was blind at the age of 22. Though he lost his sense of sight, he said he still holds cars and their design close to his heart. Two of his restored vehicles have made it into the Father's Day show the past 12 years.

"It wasn't my profession or anything, and since I lost my vision very early, all that I've learned about vehicles has come tactually," Pacini said. "I've actually restored vehicles, so I have kind of a more personal approach to the show."

The four-day event kicks off from 6 to 10 p.m. Thursday with the Eve of Eyes — an informal gathering at Lawrence Technological University for young designers and executives.

On Friday, the Piquette Avenue Plant hosts Vision Achievement Award. Honored — a black tie event bestowing Walter de'Silva with head of design, de'Silva is responsible for designing automotive. In his current position as the 2011 Lifetime Design Achievement Award. See CARS, page 8B

The afternoon includes more than 20 decorated tables — each designed to represent a play, movie or musical — luncheon, desserts, a fashion show of 18th century costumes designed and created by Grosse Pointe Theatre members, musical entertainment with song selections related to "Broadway Girls, Ladies, Broads & Dames," a silent auction and a 50/50 raffle. In addition, guests receive prizes for the best hat and tea ensemble.

"We're delighted to be able to bring this exceptional event back, thanks to the generosity of many talented volunteers and donors who make Grosse Pointe Theatre's tea possible," said co-chairwoman Kathy Conlon. "This event is a huge undertaking but well worth it knowing that our guests will see a tea like no other. Our goal is to make this event one of the most enjoyable, entertaining afternoons for our guests, while sharing just some of the creativity that Grosse Pointe Theatre has to offer."

The other co-chairwoman is Ruth Ellen Mayhall.

Ric Selke, of Harper Woods, and Andrea Deck, of the City of Grosse Pointe, model elaborate costumes designed and created by Grosse Pointe Theatre members.

"Grosse Pointe Theatre's tea is a magical event with some of the most fanciful and elegant tablescapes you'll ever see," Mayhall said. "We're truly grateful for all those who, in one way or another, have helped make this year's tea possible. We are all volunteers who love to provide an exceptional theatrical experience for our guests."

Tickets cost $55 and reservations can be made by calling (313) 881-4004. More than half the ticket price is tax deductible. Proceeds benefit the theater.

GPT workshop

The Grosse Pointe Theatre offers a summer workshop for beginning play writing, especially writing fractured fairy tales, 9 a.m. to 12:15 p.m., Monday, July 11 - Friday, July 22, at the theater's rehearsal hall, 315 Fisher, City of Grosse Pointe.

Students perform their works as part of the Fairy Tale Festival at the Edsel & Eleanor Ford House Saturday, July 23.

The workshop is for youngsters who have completed grades 5, 6, 7 and 8. The first week deals with the basics of play writing and the second week studies fairy tales, writing and performing the fractured fairy tales written by the students.

Improv exercises and theater games to increase the student's general knowledge of theater and stagecraft are included.

"We think we have planned an exciting curriculum for the kids and they will learn some skills that will serve them throughout life," said Mary Lou Britton, executive producer of the summer workshop. "We are particularly looking for adventurous children who have creative minds and already know how to think outside the box. The process of 'fracturing' fairy tales encourages the students to think about different perspectives and changed endings for the fairy tales we all knew growing up."

The cost is $275 for children or grandchildren of Grosse Pointe Theatre members; non-members pay $300.

For more information about the workshop, call the theater-box office at (313) 881-4004 or Britton at (586) 779-8974. She can also be reached at mellbee@earthlink.net.

PASTOR'S CORNER

By Michelle Basner-Ketepa

The necessity of a towel

Not long ago, I found myself re-reading, "The Hitchhiker's Guide to the Galaxy," by Douglas Adams. Known as a cult classic, it's one of those books that makes me chuckle no matter how many times I read it. According to the characters created by Adams, one of the most essential things to carry with you — if you intend to hitchhike and live off the kindness of others — is a towel. It's just practical. You never know when you might need a towel.

A towel, according to Jesus, should also be among our standard equipment as a Christian in the world today.

From John 13 (selected verses):

"It was just before the Passover Festival. Jesus knew that the hour had come for him to leave this world and go to the Father. Having loved his own who were in the world, he loved them to then end...so (Jesus) got up from the meal, took off his outer clothing, and wrapped a towel around his waist. After that, he poured water into a basin and began to wash his disciples' feet, drying them with the towel that was wrapped around him."

A towel.

While the disciples likely anticipated a Messiah who would conquer Rome and become an earthly king, Jesus gives us another example of what it means to follow God. Jesus gives us an image of what it means to serve our fellow humans. Wearing a towel and washing dusty feet, humbly serving others, Jesus demonstrates how we are called to serve.

The story continues: "When he had finished washing their feet, he put on his clothes and returned to his place. 'Do you understand what I have done for you?' he asked them. 'You call me 'Teacher' and 'Lord,' and rightly so, for that is what I am. Now that I, your Lord and Teacher, have washed your feet, you also should wash one another's feet. I have set you an example that you should do as I have done for you."

We all can carry a towel, even if our towel is the metaphorical kind. While we may not wash another's feet, we can feed the hungry, listen to a friend who is struggling, comfort someone in pain, or speak out for those who suffer injustice. How will you use your gifts to serve another this week? Where will you lower yourself so that someone else can have dignity?

How will you use your towel?

Basner-Ketepa serves as minister of faith formation at St. Paul Lutheran Church. She has been a professional in youth and educational ministries since 1998.

Sprucing up

Grace Community Church members took advantage of Saturday's summer-like weather to weed and plant flowers around the church. Marleen Leggat, of the City of Grosse Pointe, and her daughter, Aubrey, helped plant 38 flats of annuals and 20 perennials on the church grounds.

Two-wheeled tours of Michigan

Are you ready to indulge your passion for recreational biking? Then, hop on your two-wheeler and take a spin along Michigan's scenic coastline, wooded trails and byways.

Grand Island National Recreation Area is located on Lake Superior, about one-half mile from the mainland community of Munising and 43 miles from Marquette. The island's scenic natural beauty and interesting history make it an attractive place for biking, camping and other outdoor activities. Bike rentals are available on site.

Hiking and mountain biking trails provide wonderful opportunities for day trips and give access via unsurfaced trails to some of the island's most spectacular scenery. Consider your level of fitness and your pace as you make route choices.

Looking for more leisurely biking? Try any of Michigan's State Parks and trailways for a multitude of recreational options including two-wheel fun. The 34-mile Kal-Haven Trail State Park between Kalamazoo and South Haven in West Michigan is one of five linear state parks; four of them are former rail corridors. These paths are ideal for a leisurely ride through wooded areas, farm lands and small towns.

The Betsie Valley Trail is 22.3 miles long and extends from Frankfort through Elberta and Beulah to Thompsonville in Benzie County. From Frankfort to Beulah it is non-motorized. All of it is excellent for bicycles. The trail is owned by the Michigan Department of Natural Resources and is operated and maintained by Benzie County.

The entire family can enjoy a day at the scenic 4,461 acre Stony Creek Metro Park in Shelby Township with hilly terrain and the beautiful 500-acre Stony Creek Lake. Ride a paved 6.2 mile Hike-Bike trail. Pack a picnic meal, visit the Nature Center, take a swim or try out the disc (Frisbee) golf course.

Deerfield Nature Park in Mt. Pleasant offers a 591 acre forest and river setting. Canoe or hike to your rustic campsite with eight miles of biking and hiking. Fish the scenic Chippewa River, which runs through or just relax and enjoy the wildlife. Features include a sandy swimming beach, picnicking, two swinging bridges, two canoe landings and the Fisher Covered Bridge.

Michigan's Department of Natural Resources & Environment has trail maps and more information for safe and enjoyable biking in the Great Lakes State.

Wonderful waters of Michigan

If you work crossword puzzles you may have been challenged to identify "HOMES." HOMES is a mnemonic device that teachers use to help students recall the names of the Great Lakes - Huron, Ontario, Michigan, Erie and Superior. HOMES also means a huge wave of ways to enjoy the fresh water Great Lakes during a Pure Michigan vacation, and learn about the history of these mighty waters.

Michigan's very name is rooted in the Ojibwa (Chippewa) Indian word for "large lake," and its handprint on the earth, the mitten-like Lower Peninsula and jagged-edged Upper Peninsula, is shaped by four of the five Great Lakes: Erie, Huron, Michigan and Superior. Sailors called them the "Sweetwater Seas." Carved by glaciers more than 12,000 years ago, the planet's largest bodies of fresh water are visible from the moon and instantly recognizable on any globe or atlas.

The Great Lakes are so large they can significantly affect Michigan's weather, and are credited with creating favorable environments for growing a wealth of agricultural products. The state is a leader in several crops including blueberries, cherries, asparagus, and grapes for juice and wine; orchards and vineyards are especially successful along the Lake Michigan coast.

Their waters lap against 3,200 miles of Michigan coastline onto sandy beaches and rocky shores, dotted with more than 100 public beaches, and two National Lakeshores that recognize the stunning multi-colored sandstone cliffs of Pictured Rocks External Link on Lake Superior in the Upper Peninsula, and the highest freshwater sand dunes in the world at Sleeping Bear External Link on Lake Michigan in the "Little Finger" of the Lower Peninsula's "mitten."

Nearly 120 lighthouses stand watch over the temperamental inland seas that are alternately an aquamarine picture of calm and a raucous series of surf-worthy whitecaps. The Great Lakes are bountiful waters for sport fishermen, a recreational sailor's dream, a sea kayaker's challenge, and the final resting

SENIOR SCENE By Ruth Cain

Good news for women and pay

A longtime legitimate complaint of women has been the gap between the earnings of women and men, now at 72 cents for women for every dollar paid to men. That's getting better, but still unfair to women.

A recently published book by Mikla Brzezinski, "Knowing Your Value: Women, Money, and Getting What You're Worth," aims to help women close some of that gap.

Some women, she believes, don't know their own worth. They don't take the time to research what male colleagues are making and demand the same. They expect, in a good girl way, employers to be fair about pay. They worry people won't like them if they negotiate too hard, and they get too emotional or apologetic when asking for the money they deserve.

Women also have a tendency to not jump as quickly as men at new opportunities.

Part of the gap is created because women sometimes choose lower paying and more portable careers to support a spouse or allow more time to care for children or elders.

Rana Foroohar, who reviewed the book for Time magazine, believes the most compelling chapter in the book is

"Motherhood: The Game Changer."

The wage gap is largest for working moms. Research shows their earnings decrease for each child they have. In a study by Cornell University, participants were asked to evaluate the resumes of two equally qualified candidates, one a mother, the other not. They consistently ranked mothers as less competent and were offered on average $11,000 less in pay.

Education also affects salaries. In major cities around the world, such as Manhattan, London and Stockholm, a senior partner in the Boston Consulting Group noted "you ask 100 single men and women between the ages of 25 and 30 what they make, and the women make more."

He believes this is the beginning of a generational shift that will snowball as older women retire and younger women, who started out with equal education and more pay parity, rise through the ranks.

A number of economists believe the average woman in the United States and Western Europe will out-earn her male peers by 2024. That's because they are better educated and entering the workforce in greater numbers in the fastest growing industries.

A BCG spokesman estimates women will earn the majority—some $5 trillion—of the world's new income over the next five years.

Major U.S. banks already recognize this growing trend of high wage earning females. Goldman Sachs is starting to rate industries according to the amount of female dollars they are poised to capture. Merrill Lynch is also following this trend, expecting women "to increasingly become the higher income earners of U.S. households."

And what, I ask; will this do to the egos of U.S. males?

Marketers don't always use common sense

Following my illnesses of a year ago, I lost a great deal of weight. Although I had a good appetite, I wasn't gaining as fast as I wanted. I looked to such nutritious drinks as Boost and Ensure. They tasted good and each 8-oz. serving had only 50 calories. I could easily chug three a day without ruining my appetite.

Looking at the label on Ensure I found I would also be chugging 66g of sugar and those 24 oz. Boost were also very high in sugar. Why put so much sugar into nutritious drinks? Surely manufacturers could have figured out a way to cut sugar.

Again this summer, with white slacks and white shoes back in style, I looked for white earrings.

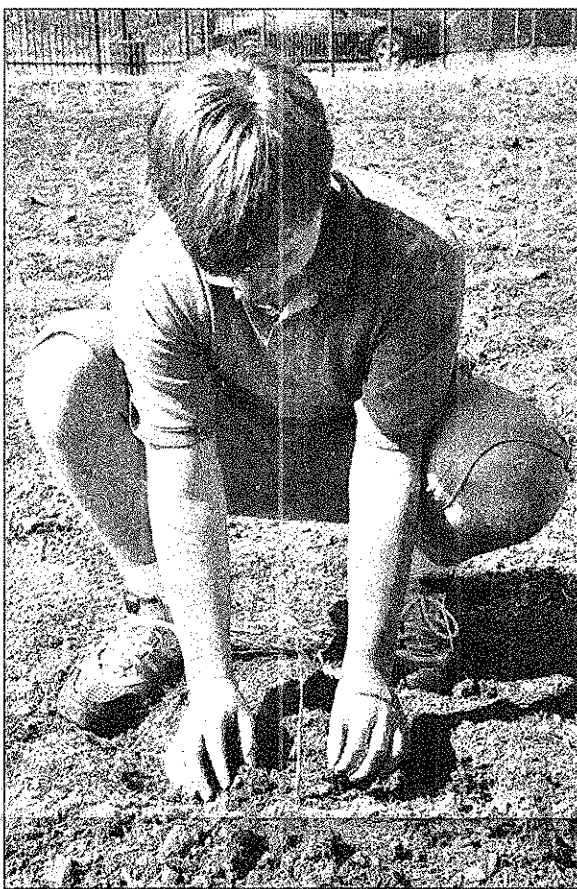

I couldn't find any last year in any price range, and this year is no better. Wouldn't some jewelry maker have figured out that casual is how we dress in the summer and white earrings can be worn with any color outfit? I might even have bought a couple of pairs if I could find some nice ones. So I'm not buying any earring this season.

Planters

Volunteers from Services for Older Citizens dug around in the dirt June 4, planting a variety of fruits and vegetables to supplement the Meals on Wheels program. Supplies, land and plants were donated by the Riverview Senior Community on East Warren. Right, Clay Brock, of Grosse Pointe Farms, and student at Grosse Pointe South High School, plants cantaloupe.

Some 400 plants were set out, including beans, tomatoes, cucumbers, carrots, cauliflower, lettuce, celery, strawberries, corn and watermelon. Finishing up are Grosse Pointe Farms resident Clay Brock, SOC's Director of Volunteer Services Deanne Arendoski, Brett Withers, of Grosse Pointe Park, and SOC Executive Director Sharon Maier.

ASK THE EXPERTS By Marla K. Ruhana

Carve out time for you and your spouse

Q. I adore my husband, he treats me very well and I have so much to be grateful for. But we bicker and get on each other's nerves. How do we stop the petty bickering?

A. We all know the saying, "we only hurt the ones we love" and it seems there is truth to this statement. However, bickering can wear us down and often becomes a new bad habit. If you find yourself bickering daily, it is wise to explore what else might be going on.

Q. I've been very stressed out and most has nothing to do with my husband. My stress is how to find the time to complete my daily tasks and how to find energy for our children. I start feeling irritated with my husband who seems so calm and relaxed. I feel like I'm drowning sometimes.

A. I recommend prioritizing and limiting some things that contribute to you feeling so overextended.

Q. With ill parents, my job and the children, it seems there is nothing to get rid of. All I really want is time with my husband and when we're together, there is so much to do, we're really not together.

I have ideas for fun things my husband and I can do with the children or alone, but I'm often too tired. Then when I'm energetic, he is tired or has his own projects to complete.

A. It is imperative you carve out time for your marriage so you both feel energetic and are able to enjoy one another's company. As we get comfortable in our relationships, many say their partner has become too lax or complacent.

An 80-year-old gentleman told me his secret to a happy marriage was he never, ever stopped chasing his bride. It seems all women want to be romanced, made to feel special, cherished and adored in their marriage.

Weekend get-aways are a good idea. Breaking free from our daily lives with our spouse is very healthy. A change of scenery also instills a sense of new things, more to converse about and an element of fun.

Nights out with friends can also do the same, as conversations with others can refresh your relationship.

If finances are limited, have a family member watch the children and simply take a walk.

Kind words and gestures are also beneficial in marriage. Effort is the key. It is important to understand and respect our partner's needs and vice versa and compromise

For a night at home, try watching the film, "Fireproof," together to validate any struggles you might have or want to prevent. Seeking out a couple's therapist or attending a couple's retreat is also very beneficial to keep your relationship fresh.

St. John renames neuroscience program for its benefactor

The St. John Providence Health System neuroscience program is re-named to honor one of its supporters and a Michigan philanthropists — Art Van Elslander.

The SJPHS Van Elslander Neuroscience Center of Excellence treats neurological disorders. Specialists perform advanced procedures ranging from stroke treatment to minimally invasive spine procedures and endoscopic skull base surgery.

The center also offers four advanced primary stroke centers in southeastern Michigan: St. John Hospital and Medical Center, St. John Macomb-Oakland Hospital, Providence Hospital and Providence Park Hospital.

One of the foundational pillars of the neuroscience program was a 2009 gift from Van Elslander, invested in technology and equipment at Providence Park Hospital in Novi.

"Neuroscience is a primary area of growth for our system in the coming years, and we expect to be announcing further expansions and partnerships that will bring even more expertise and leading-edge practice to the COE," says Patricia Maryland, president and CEO, SJPHS and Michigan market leader for Ascension Health. "Our new name will help us build name recognition and brand awareness for this outstanding network of services, physicians and spiritually-based, coordinated healing."

"If ever there was an example of healing in body, mind and spirit, the neuroscience COE will be a standard of holistic care in the region."

STATE OF THE ARTS By Alex Suczek

'Camelot' is eye-filling experience

With dazzling sets, costumes and stage effects rendered by the creative technical staff of the Stratford Festival, this summer's "Camelot" is an overwhelming eye-filling experience of Lerner and Loewe's Broadway smash hit musical.

The fabulous set designs by Debra Hansen, costumes by Mara Blumenfeld and lighting by Alan Brodie bring the legendary world of King Arthur to a stunning reality. In that unreal environment, the outstanding performance gains hypnotic power. It is an advantage that few productions enjoy to such an extent.

As the lights come up, a wizard-like figure is standing by an impressionistic gnarled and gilded tree. A live falcon wings down from the darkness of the balcony to land first on the tree, then, in response to a whistled command, hops down to the wizard's gloved arm. The scene is indelibly set. They exit and we are in the mythical world of early history where witches and magical powers reign along with the idealistic dreams of King Arthur and his queen, Guinevere.

Geraint Wyn Davies, as the King, thoughtfully meanders through ornate gilded gates of his fabled palace and takes a perch in the tree. As he makes himself known, Guinevere, his betrothed queen, wanders in. They meet for the first time and as their acquaintance grows, conceive their plan for a kingdom where only goodness reigns, defended by a corps of knights in shining armor.

The passage of time is marked particularly by Davies' treatment of Arthur first in his youth, then as he matures as king and finally in the adjustment and disillusionment of the failure of his ideal.

The Knights are a glowing spectacle in themselves with elegant suits of mail and an idealistic oath of loyalty to Arthur and Guinevere. They also provide grim evidence of the idealistic kingdom's decay with their number, Fie on Goodness.

The plot unfolds as other picture book characters appear: Brent Carver, bearded and gowned as the wise Merlin, is a valued mentor to the king. Carver appears again as the life-long friend, King Pellinore, providing a gentle source of humor and the comforting figure of a reliable counselor.

Jonathan Winsby, as Lancelot, brings, along with his appearance as the perfect Knight of the Round Table, a hint of arrogance and superiority that warns of trouble to come. But the conflict of his all too human emotions and his knightly purity is emphasized by his powerful treatment of the famous love song, If Ever I Would Leave You.

The real trouble is brought about with the sinister appearance of Mordred, played with smarmy evil by Mike Nadajewski. He is easily the villain you love to hate.

Intent on taking over the kingdom, he enlists the help of his aunt, the witch Morgan le Fey. Lucy Peacock makes her a happy-go-lucky, but obviously malevolent, figure. Her intervention enables Mordred to expose the illicit love between Guinevere and Lancelot, and as the famous story goes, bring down the peaceful haven of Camelot.

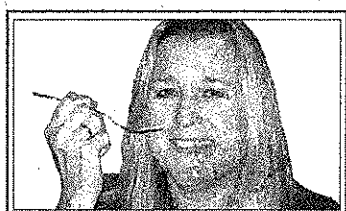

As the action progresses, dance numbers enhance the fanciful aura of the story with Warren Carlyle's exciting choreography. The overall effect is of a fabulous fairytale and our sympathy goes out to Arthur as he is inexorably forced back into the world of fallible humanity.

This production of "Camelot" is breathtaking in its ability to conjure the dream-like image of that ideal world, which like many dreams, finally succumbs to reality.

"Camelot" is presented in repertory at the Festival Theatre through Oct. 30. For reservations and more information, call 800-567-1800 or visit stratfordshakespearefestival.com.

A LA ANNIE By Annie Rouleau-Scheriff

Serve Dad potato salad loaded with his favorites

Father's Day is this Sunday. Parks and patios, porches and yards will be filled with families gathered to honor Dad.

It's barbecue day for sure. I'm bringing the potato salad. Fingerling potatoes tossed with all the things we like to load onto a baked potato are in this recipe. Bacon, cheddar cheese and chives give this potato salad familiar flavors. A big enough to please crowd. Really.

Potato Salad with Bacon, Cheddar & Chives

1 1/2 lb. bag fingerling potatoes (or small red skins)
2 tablespoons olive oil
salt and pepper to taste
1 cup sour cream
1/2 cup mayonnaise
1/4 cup Dijon mustard
2 tablespoons white wine vinegar
1 lb. bacon, cooked and chopped or crumbled
2 cups shredded cheddar cheese
1/3 cup chopped fresh chives

Dad will have seconds of this potato salad loaded with bacon, cheddar cheese, sour cream and chives.

2/3 cup chopped fresh parsley

Place potatoes in a large pot of water and bring to boil. Cook until potatoes are just fork tender. (Start checking about 15 minutes into boil. Don't overcook.) Drain potatoes and cool completely before proceeding with recipe. (I cooked the potatoes and bacon the night before to save time.)

Cut chilled potatoes into bite-sized pieces and place in a large mixing bowl. Drizzle with olive oil and season generously with salt and pepper.

In a small bowl, combine sour cream, mayonnaise, Dijon mustard and white wine vinegar. Whisk until smooth and pour over potatoes and gently toss.

It will seem like too much dressing, but it's not. Add bacon, cheese and chives and toss until all ingredients are well incorporated. Taste and season with additional salt and pepper, if needed. Chill until ready to serve. Transfer potato salad to a festive serving bowl or platter and garnish with fresh chives.

CARS: Distinctive, impressive

mobiles for the Volkswagen group, which includes Audi, Bentley, Bugatti, Lamborghini, Skoda and SEAT.

"What's interesting about Vision Honored is the institute is giving a lifetime design achievement award and that's the most important award given in the U.S. — or worldwide actually — to automotive designers," said DIO president Dr. Philip Hessburg.

The award is distinctive, as only past winners can vote, meaning deSilva's achievements have impressed fellow designers.

The three-story Piquette Plant, located on Woodward south of Grand Boulevard, housed the production line for the Ford Model T from 1904-1910 and is now home to a collection of vehicles.

"It's an unusual place to have a black tie event," Hessburg added.

Continuing into the weekend, Ken Lingenfelter, honorary chairman for EyesOn Design, opens his Lingenfelter Collection of 190 cars to ticketholders from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. at 7819 Lochlin, Brighton. The collection is 30 percent muscles cars, 30 percent exotic cars and 40 percent Corvettes and vehicles produced by his company — Lingenfelter Performance Engineering.

"I've been collecting for the past 20 years and it's been pretty successful," Lingenfelter said. "My passion and drive goes for all vehicles; I like them all."

The weekend wraps up with the EyesOn Design show on Father's Day at the Ford House, 1100 Lakeshore.

"It's probably one of the top 10 car shows in the United States," Hessburg said.

It's unique in that it focuses on the design of vehicles, rather than who owns them or their rarity or their restoration.

More than 250 vehicles are chosen by the vehicle selection committee based on specific design and brought to the show by invitation only. This year, the main theme is the future of design.

Like the human eye's ability to refract light, show awards are made of crystal.

Tickets are required for all events and proceeds fund research, education and support group programs for the visually-impaired community.

"It's pretty traumatic to go from a sighted world to a less than perfectly sighted world," Pacini said.

"Funding and sponsoring support groups not only at the (Detroit Institute of Ophthalmology) location on East Jefferson, but at some of the senior centers around the area is very important."

Tickets for the Lingenfelter Collection cost $15; a $20 ticket allows entrance to both the Lingenfelter Collection and Sunday's show at the Ford House; EyesOn Design tickets cost $20.

Liggett baseball, South soccer claim titles

Knights use clutch plays to win title

By Justin Hicks
 Special Writer

Despite allowing the first four Shrine batters to reach base in the first inning, senior Nate Weiss and the Liggett's boys' baseball team bounced back to claim the regional championship title, beating Royal Oak Shrine 6-1.

"I thought it was a great game and I'm really proud of our guys," said head coach Dan Cimini. "I thought it started a little shaky, but we got out of the bases loaded jam, got the momentum, our pitcher settled down and we got some timely hits throughout the game."

The only Shrine run to cross the plate came in the first with no outs, but Liggett's defense got out of the jam with a force out at home, followed by a double play.

Liggett claimed the lead in the second inning when a double off the bat of senior Joseph Simon scored three. He would come around to score on an RBI single by sophomore Mark Auk.

Blue Devils defense shines bright

By Bob St. John
 Sports Editor

Grosse Pointe South's girls' soccer team won its first regional title since 2004 last weekend, beating Ann Arbor Pioneer 2-0 at Dearborn Edsel Ford.

"Our key was defense," head coach Gene Harkins said. "We tightened up in our own end and Joanna (Manos) made three huge saves to lead us to the win."

Senior Chelsea MacGriff, juniors Meg Galea and Maddie Ethridge, and sophomore Claire DeBoer were the defensive leaders in front of their senior goalie.

While the veterans led the back row, it was freshmen Gretchen Dettlinger and Dani Manning who provided the offensive fireworks, scoring a goal apiece.

In the regional semifinal, the Blue Devils edged Canton 1-0 on a goal by senior Sarah Ventimiglia. Manos was stellar in net, posting another shutout.

"Once we got the lead, we really tightened up defensively,"

GROSSE POINTE SOUTH

Division foe ends South's season

By Bob St. John
Sports Editor

Grosse Pointe South's dream of winning a second state championship ended with a 7-4 eight-inning loss to division rival Sterling Heights Stevenson in a Division 1 regional semifinal game.

The Blue Devils had momentum and home-field advantage in their favor, but in the end it was three inches between a win and a loss.

The Blue Devils trailed 4-3 entering the bottom of the seventh inning, but they plated the tying run on senior Ross Muniga's double, scoring pinch-hitter George Fishback, who reached on an error.

Sophomore Carmen Benedetti was intentionally walked, putting runners on first and second with one out.

Up steps junior Tim Kramer. He rips a line shot down the left-field line, but the ball is foul by just three inches. He eventually became second out and junior Cam Gibson hit the ball right on the nose, but the Titans' first baseman made a nice play on the ball to keep it a 4-4 game.

"If Tim's ball is fair, we win the game, but it just went foul," head coach Dan Griesbaum said. "It's a tough loss, but our kids battled back and had a chance to win it in the end."

Senior Joe Aliotta started, pitching the first five innings. Junior Kevin Reck was the pitcher of record, taking the defeat after yielding the three runs in the eighth inning.

The Titans used three walks, a hits batsman, one hit and a couple of sacrifices to score the three runs.

In the first inning, Benedetti hit a solo homer and a sacrifice fly in the third inning to put the Blue Devils ahead 2-0.

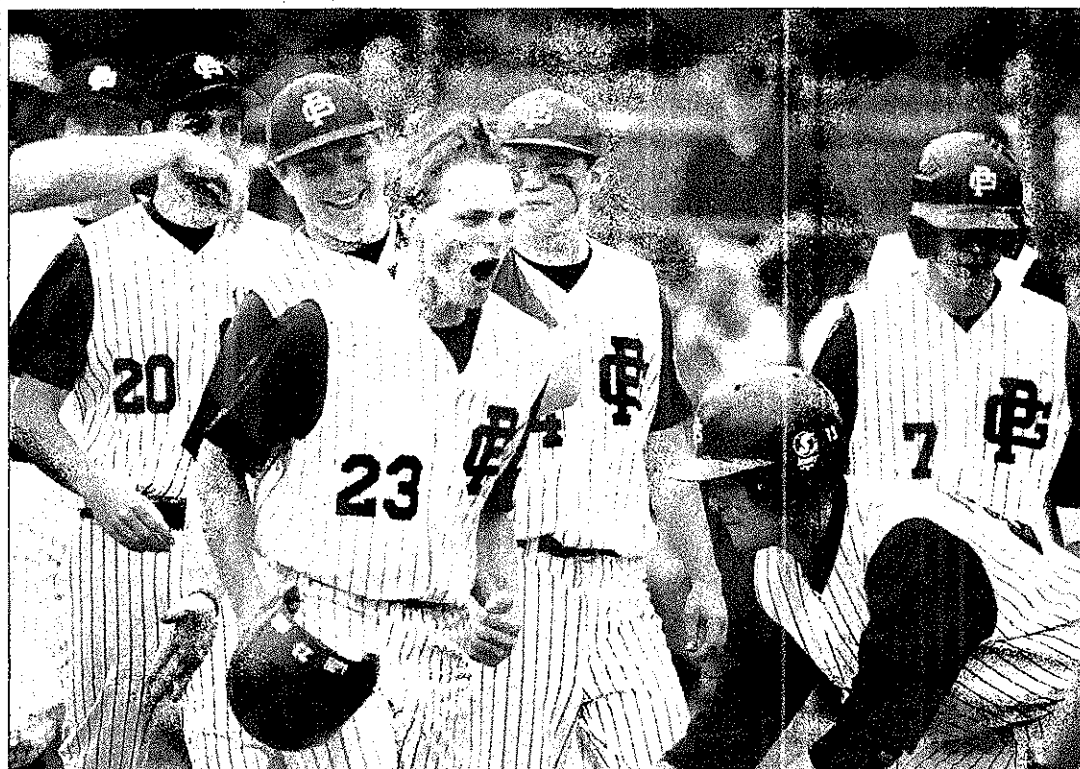

The Titans scored four runs in the fifth inning, but Gibson's homer in the sixth inning made it a 4-3 game.

The rest is history.

South finished the season 28-9 overall, including 8-2 in the Macomb Area Conference Red Division, one game behind Stevenson at 9-1.

In the division games, South lost 3-0 and won 12-2.

Junior Cam Gibson, center, and his teammates celebrate after he hit a homer in the sixth inning that cut the Blue Devils' deficit to 4-3.

Taylor says goodbye after defeat

By Bob St. John
Sports Editor

For hall-of-fame head coach Bill Taylor, the end of an illustrious career has come.

The Grosse Pointe North girls' softball team lost 10-2 to Sterling Heights Stevenson in last weekend's Division 1 regional semifinal at Grosse Pointe South.

Taylor's final season at the helm ended 12-16, but he was not disappointed.

"I was very happy with the girls this season," he said. "The team exceeded expectations, despite playing all those one-run games, too many of which we lost."

"The girls played hard and went out and won a district title against a good Lakeview team."

Taylor led the Norsemen to several league, district and regional titles and made it to the Final Four a couple of times.

"I had the fortune of coaching some great softball players who provided many memorable moments during my time as head coach," Taylor said. "This year's team battled Stevenson close for five innings, but we just couldn't hang on in the end."

"I have many lasting memories and now it's time for someone to step in and take over a program that will be good next spring."

Taylor was inducted into the Michigan High School Softball Coaches Hall of Fame in 2000, along with Pam Lee Campbell of Brighton, Kent

Griffith of Lakeland, Howard Stuart of Richmond and Ted McIntyre of Mount Pleasant. He was also inducted into the Grosse Pointe North Coaches Hall of Fame.

North catcher Sarah Richardson has enjoyed a successful season defensively, as well as offensively.

MIDDLE SCHOOL

Pierce track and field athletes enjoyed success in '11

The 90-member Pierce Middle School track and field team had another record-setting year.

The girls' team finished undefeated for the third consecutive year at 7-0, while the boys' squad finished 4-3.

The team set 14 new school records.

The girls' team was led in points by Elise Grever with 92, Katie Kish with 69 and Spencer Graczyk with 43. They had 28 athletes who scored points during the season.

Grever set a new school record in the 70-meter dash with a time of 9.4. She was undefeated in the high jump with a season best mark of 4-feet, 4-inches.

In the sprints, Grever ran the 100-meter dash with a season best time of 12.82 and took first place in the 100 and 70 in every meet but two.

Kish set three school records, posting a time of 64.0 in the 400-meter dash, 27.2 in the 200-meter dash and cleared 15-feet, 7 1/2-inches in the long jump. She was undefeated in the long jump and the 200.

Graczyk placed in the mile and 200 hurdles in every meet. This was her first year on the team. Other standouts in the sprints were Libby Erickson, Addie Walsh, Ebony Davis, Alexis Mellos, Olivia Wouters, Hope Adams, Shanelle Jackson and Taylor Peters.

Pierce outscored other schools 202-144 in the sprints. The distance runners were just as strong. Lizzy Langenberg, Olivia Lang and Kelly Beardslee ran great with consistent times all season in the eighth-grade 800-meter run.

Seventh-graders Ally Stapleton, Emily Fleming and Wouters all ran great 800 times and the mile run was led by Abby Carrier with a season-best time of 6:36. Catherine Stapleton and Graczyk made Pierces' milers hard to beat. Pierce outscored its opponents 136-54 in the distance events.

The mile relay team of eighth-graders Taylor Wouters, Mellos, Lang and Langenberg set a new school record with a time of 4:58. The sprinting corp was led by Jermaine Hennson, who set new school records in the 70, 100, and 200. He ran an 8.45 in the 70, 11.95 in the 100, and 25.3 in the 200.

Hensen also anchored the 400- and 800-meter record-setting relay teams, joining Robert Durand, Dallian Burnett and Jordan Maxwell. They ran 48.9 in the 400-relay and 1:44.6 in the 800-relay.

These boys helped Pierce outscore other schools 211-109 in the sprints.

Pierce boys also set or tied new records in field events, including Burnett, who tied the school record in the high jump with a height of 5-feet, 4-inches.

Maxwell broke the long jump record with a mark of 18-feet, 2-inches, and Jaylen Barrett broke the shot put record when he threw it 41-feet, 4-inches.

Pierce outscored its opponents 105-73 in the field events.

Jason Sommerville ran strong 800's all year with a season-best time of 2:41, while Earl Allard ran both the 800 and mile, placing in both events in 5-of-7 meets this year.

Nick Morris battled through injuries all year, but ran the best mile time of 6:20.

Other standouts were Jason McWhorter, who set new hurdle records with times of 9.18 in the 55-hurdles and 29.2 in the 200-hurdles, while Caleb DeBerry was right behind McWhorter in the hurdle events.

Kareem Muhammad, O.J. Jones and David Burnett all ran great times as seventh-graders and are going to challenge the new records next year.

Pierce was coached by Novak, Brian Benz and Jillian Stelma.

"This team was joy to coach, not because of the times or wins, but because everyone wanted to improve and they all worked hard to do that," Novak said.

Correction

The order for Grosse Pointe South's 3,200-meter relay in the state finals Saturday, June 4, was Carmen Engel, Lily Pandy, Haley Meier and Hannah Meier and the girls in the 1,600-meter relay were Caitlin Morre, Veronica Schacht, Haley Meier and Hannah Meier.

LIGGETT: Weiss gets title victory

Senior catcher Dominic Jamett capped off his career at home with a two-run homer to give the team a couple insurance runs in the fifth inning, stretching the lead to five runs.

"It was nice," he said. "I spent four years here and I've been going here since I was a little kid. To end it with a two-run homer to give us some cushion in the regional finals; that was nice."

Picking up the win in his last start at William P. Hindle Field was Weiss, who gave up one run on seven hits, striking out three and walking three in seven innings.

"(Giving up four hits early) is not like Nate, and he settled down," Cimini said. "He's 10-0 for a reason. He throws strikes and has been a great senior leader out there."

The team improved to 28-4 this season, according to Cimini, and will head to Adrian College to compete in the state quarterfinals Tuesday at 2 p.m.

"We have to do the same thing we did today," Jamett said. "If we come out and hit the baseball, we can't be stopped."

Game one

In their semifinal game, the Knights beat a familiar foe in the division, rival Lutheran Westland, 3-1, though it did not come easy.

Liggett didn't need long to get on the board, picking up the game's first run on a lead-off solo shot over the left field fence by Simon.

The Knights picked up a run in the third on a single by sophomore Connor Fannon and in the fifth on an Alex Daar single, but the story early was Daar's pitching.

The junior had a no hitter broken up in the bottom of the fifth on back-to-back singles by Matthew Sylvester and Thomas Handschumacher. Westland got on the board on a fielder's choice to cut the lead to just two runs.

Daar got out of the inning, but was tested again in the bottom of the seventh.

A leadoff single and a bunt single to start the inning brought the game-winning run to the plate and Cimini to the mound.

Liggett players and coaches won two regional games to claim a spot in the Elite 8 in the Division 4 baseball playoffs.

"I just said go have fun and get these guys out," he said. "I had confidence in him and he did the job for us."

Daar recorded his fifth and sixth strikeouts of the game before the last batter of the game grounded out to end the threat. He earned the win, giving up one run on six hits in seven innings.

Opposite Daar, Westland

pitcher Jakob Andrzejewski gave up three runs on nine hits, striking out five and walking four in seven innings.

SOUTH: Freshmen score two

Harkins said. "We made sure nobody got behind us and rode that goal to a win."

The last time the Blue Devils won the regional, they beat Troy 1-0 in the semifinals and Rochester 2-1 in overtime in the championship game. That year, the Blue Devils lost 2-1 to Grand Blanc in the Final Four game played at Troy.

This year, South gets one of the top ranked teams in the country, Novi.

Grosse Pointe South improved to 16-4-1 overall.

If the Blue Devils win the semifinal game, the Division 1 state championship game is scheduled for Saturday, June 18, at a site and time to be determined.

Playing in the other semifinal is Troy against Grand Rapids Forest Hills Central.

Making the finals are Troy,

Utica Ford and Warren DeLaSalle, shooting a 306, 311 and 313, respectively.

"We did not play as well as we wanted," South co-head coach Rob McIntyre said.

Other than Hyde's 75, senior Conrad Tech and Geoffrey Welsher each shot a 79, while sophomore Joe Becker had an 81. Troy also had three players shoot in the 70s — Christian Harnishfeger, James Heichel and Jeff Holmes — while Ford and DeLaSalle combined to have five individuals fire in the 70s.

Grosse Pointe North was also in the regional tournament, finishing 11th with a 354.

Seniors Steven Demers and Zack Hannah each shot an 87, followed by senior Mike Gula with an 88 and junior Steven Zak with a 91.

By Bob St. John

The road to the finals ended a week short for University Liggett's golf team.

The Knights failed to finish in the top three in last week's Division 4 regional tournament at Westwynd in Oakland Township.

Auburn Hills Oakland Christian won the tournament with a 318, while Ann Arbor Greenhills and Lutheran Northwood earned the automatic bids, posting a 327 and 353, respectively.

Individuals who also qualified for the finals were Nick Ward, of Franklin Road Christian, with a 76, Dan Lamprecht-Carson, of Adrian Madison, with a 78 and Ray Spencer, of Royal Oak Shrine, with an 82.

Head coach Dan Sullivan and the Knights finished eighth with a 373. The four scorers were Caleb Ninivaggi with an 86, Robert Stanley with an 88, Chris Monsour with a 97 and Jake Soyka with a 102.

Other teams competing in the regionals were Southfield Christian, Adrian Madison, Everest Collegiate, Sand Creek, Shrine, Hudson, Plymouth Christian and Petersburg Summerfield.

EGR ousts South in semis

The Grosse Pointe South boys' lacrosse team played in the state semifinals last week for the second time in program history.

Head coach Don Wolford's squad used senior leadership and a stifling defense to win a regional title.

Unfortunately for the Blue Devils, the mojo ran out in a 16-5 loss to East Grand Rapids in a Division 2 semifinal played in Howell. In 2008, South lost 12-8 to Grand Rapids Forest Hills Central in the Final Four.

Since becoming a MHSAA-sponsored sport in 2005, East Grand Rapids has been in the Division 2 championship game five of the six years, winning in 2007, '08 and '09.

The Blue Devils, led by seniors Connor Ray, Brian McAllister, Michael Bertakis, Sam Effinger, Mitchell Vermet, Walter Bridgeforth, Thomas Shields, Jeff Blazoff, Chris Smith and Nick Diehl, finished the season 15-5 overall.

Wolford will count on returning varsity players Dan French, Peter Cozad, Austin Jones, Andrew Ciesliga, Nolan Monforton, Ed Bridgeforth, Cliff Dirksen, James Champane, Sam Hartman, William Callewaert, Patrick Sasttelmeier, James Webster, Matthew Bove, Liam McIlroy, Stuart McKay, Zac Vaneslander, Charles Milligan and Christian Alber to continue the program's success.

South junior Dan French had a solid 2011 season and will be counted to help lead the offense in 2012.

GPLA

Jays look for newcomers

This is the 16th season for the Grosse Pointe Lacrosse Association Middle School Lacrosse program.

It is organized and operated to provide young athletes with the fundamental skills required to play lacrosse and to promote the spirit and sportsmanship of the game of lacrosse.

The program includes teams at the third/fourth, fifth/sixth and seventh/eighth grade levels and is open to boys in those grades who predominantly live in the Grosse Pointe school district.

Participation on GPLA teams involves a significant commitment by the player and his family to the sport and team.

In past years, indoor practices have started in early March.

The Grosse Pointe Jays enjoyed success and the program is for those who want to get better.

Games start in April and continue until early June. Attendance at practice is mandatory and absences will impact playing time.

The teams play squads throughout the metropolitan area, such as Cranbrook Kingswood, Birmingham, L'Anse Cruese, Bloomfield, Walled Lake and Clarkston, as well as teams from the western side of the state.

A new league was formed in 2010 within southern Michigan called the "Suburban Youth Lacrosse Association."

It is the official amalgamation of the teams and communities mentioned above plus many more.

The 2010 7/8A Grosse Pointe Jays won the inaugural tournament and followed up by winning this year's tournament Sunday, June 12.

LITTLE LEAGUE

Perfection

Grosse Pointe Woods' 12-year-old Dillon Webb threw a perfect game early last week, leading the Harper Woods Little League Majors Tigers to a 20-0 victory over the first-place National League Pirates. Webb threw only 54 pitches of which an amazing 43 were strikes. His 10-year-old brother, Ryan Webb, made three sparkling plays at first base, catching a line drive and a looping fly ball, to help his older brother achieve a rare pitching feat at any level of the game. Tigers head coach Mark DiMambro watched another perfect game when his pitcher, Robbie Knight, threw the gem in 2000. Catching the masterpiece was Michael Ciaravino. Team members are Ryan Mazzola, Michael Duquet, Brenden McEvoy, Jared Jordan, Matthew Mazzola, Brendan Genzman, Anthony Stone, Owen Rossman, Daniel Duquet and Ryan Webb. By the way, Webb struck out 11.
