Bashara to stand trial

Store owner says he was paid to have Joseph Gentz killed

By Kathy Ryan
Staff Writer

Bob Bashara will stand trial on a single charge of soliciting the murder of a witness.

At a preliminary examination Tuesday, July 24, Wayne County District Judge Kenneth King ruled there is sufficient evidence to send Bashara to trial.

Bashara is charged with soliciting the murder of Joseph Gentz, a handyman and acquaintance of Bashara who has been charged with first-degree murder in the strangulation of Jane Bashara, Bob's wife.

A preliminary examination in Wayne County Circuit Court on the charges has been scheduled for Tuesday, July 31.

The ruling came following two hours of testimony from Steven Tibaud, 54, a Detroit appliance store owner who said Bob Bashara asked him to find someone to kill Gentz and gave him a down payment of $2,000 on the hit.

Tibaud told the court that he was wearing a wire during several of his conversations with Bashara, and those recordings were played in court. While they were

Harper Woods, a longtime member of the Grosse Pointe public safety mutual aid agreement, is omitted from a new pact to fight fires.

Harper Woods remains part of the standard mutual aid agreement, but is not included in a beefed-up automatic aid covenant ratified by the five Grosse Pointe city councils.

The new agreement instructs participating agencies to respond automatically to working fires in other jurisdictions without waiting for second or subsequent alarms. Crews also respond immediately to alarms at more than a dozen high-risk facilities, such as hospitals, apartments and some school buildings.

"Automatic aid gets more equipment and manpower on the scene," said Skip Fincham, Grosse Pointe Woods city administrator. "You can reduce property loss and save lives."

Fincham is credited with shepherding the new, heightened fire response strategy through a subcommittee of the Ad Hoc Grosse Pointe Public Safety Committee.

The Pointe-wide committee has representatives from the elected and administrative ranks of each Pointe.

Macomb pilgrims show no progress

By Brad Lindberg
Staff Writer

GROSSE POINTE SHORES — As with the character, Moonshine, performed by a rustic who flubs his lines in the play within the play in the last act of "A Midsummer Night's Dream," some Grosse Pointe Shores officials are weary of waning hopes for progress out of the Move to Macomb Committee.

They wish this moon would change.

Even the committee's defacto head, Councilman Dan Schulte, seems ready to throw up his hands, and not in applause.

"I don't know how much more we can do," Schulte said. "It's like turning around in circles after a while."

The volunteer committee — which has no official chair, but for which Schulte is liaison to the city council — is charged with objectively analyzing the costs and benefits of the Shores remaining within Wayne County or, if possible, shifting jurisdictions to Macomb County.

Supporters of a shift are prompted by purported property tax savings.

"We were told by our finance director that we'd save about 4 mills per household," Schulte said.

Beyond that headline, there's little meat to the story.

Schulte said he and the committee resent being expected to fill in details.

"We feel like we're being played games with," he said. "People ask us to find this out, find that out. It's like throwing a ball to a dog. It's insulting after a while."

His claims of minutia include queries about the costs of a marriage license and library operations.

"Some of the questions are ridiculous," Schulte said. "Are you going to worry about a $5 marriage license if you save $1,000 every year on property taxes? It doesn't make sense and it's tiring. If someone wants every little question answered — how much the library costs are — they're going to have to pay for it."

Hiring a specialist to root out myriad and intertwined legal, financial and political implications of joining Macomb would be costly. A consultant would charge tens of thousands of dollars, Mayor Ted Kedzierski said last month.

Hence, in part, establishing a voluntary, no-cost ad hoc committee of residents.

"We've gotten off to a bad start with this," said Councilman Alex Ajlouni. "Is there an advisory body we can appeal to that can assist us in this? I feel like we're trying to operate a motor vehicle without getting a license first."

"I concur," said Councilman Robert Barrette. "We need to get more facts."

If the Macomb committee has compiled hard data, it hasn't released much.

There's no formal poll of Shores residents for or against a move. It's uncertain if Shores residents can vote their preferences before the matter is decided once-and-for-all by electorate of both counties.

"We just don't seem to have facts," said Councilwoman Kay Felt.

No update

At the Tuesday, July 17, city council meeting, Schulte declined to update his colleagues on committee findings, key issues or a personal recommendation.

"I'd like to see what people say Thursday night at the meeting," Schulte said, referring to the second of two town-hall style Move to Macomb meetings, scheduled two days hence, July 19.

"That's going to pretty much be the last meeting,"

A June 21 committee session, for which a large audience was solicited, drew no representatives of either county and few others.

"We had some residents, but not a lot,"

Schulte said.

Kedzierski expected a "town hall meeting with representatives from both units of government" and a "lively audience" of at least 30 to 40 people, he said.

"After your next meeting," Barrette said to Schulte, "your committee ought to put together the pros and cons either way."

"If you wait until Thursday, you'll see we put together all the pros and cons we can," Schulte said. "We're going to turn in our report to the council and the council can do what it think is best."

No county representatives were scheduled to attend Thursday's meeting.

"Macomb County felt strongly it would turn into a political squabble if they came," Schulte said. "Commissioners of both counties stated the counties should stay out of this. Maybe we should get somebody who can do field work for us because it is a lot of work."

Yet, Wayne County Commissioner Tim Killeen, D-Detroit, attended the Thursday session.

Schulte was asked to have a report ready by the 7 p.m. Tuesday, Aug. 21, council meeting.

Moving advocates show hand

By Brad Lindberg
Staff Writer

GROSSE POINTE SHORES — An objective recommendation by the Move to Macomb Committee can't be trusted because its members are advocating a change in county jurisdiction, not just researching the matter as instructed, according to observers.

"People on the committee are taking a political stance," said Grosse Pointe Shores Councilman Bruce Bisballe.

The council formed the committee to gather and weigh facts about the Shores leaving Wayne County for Macomb County, in which a small portion of the city lies.

According to Bisballe, a committee member crossed the line by advocating a switch rather than researching the advantages, disadvantages and prospect of voters from both counties endorsing a move.

Bisballe didn't name names, but committee member Dr. Robert Lee posted on a web site his willingness to distribute a petition for someone to sign.

Lee could not be contacted for comment.

By engaging in the petition drive, the committee member supports the move, according to Bisballe.

Such action is doubly wrong because the committee meets at city hall, which is supposed to be off limits to political activity.

"We've endorsed this committee, so we're in a roundabout way endorsing that activity as opposed to simply fact-gathering on a neutral basis," Bisballe said. "It appears someone is using a public facility to advocate a political decision to move to Macomb. It's creating confusion in the community whether we're endorsing it or not."

Councilman Dan Schulte, liaison to the Macomb committee and its most public spokesman, said everyone has a right to circulate a petition.

"I haven't seen a petition circulated during the (committee) meeting," he said. "If the meetings are conducted objectively, I don't see a conflict."

"There's a built-in conflict," responded Councilman Robert Gessell. "If they're petitioning to achieve one end, they can't sit there and be objective."

"We don't seem to have balance in how we're presenting the facts," added Councilwoman Kay Felt. "We have to be open and honest about this."

"Any member of that committee is a representative of this city," Gessell said. "I strongly recommend if there is a person on the committee involved in that sort of thing, they should resign the committee or we should remove them."

Schulte characterized criticism of the committee as bias against it.

"I believe there are people that are intentionally trying to obstruct a positive thing we're trying to do," he said. "They're going to wind up succeeding. We won't move and residents can take it up with the people that destroyed a good move."

"So, you think the positive thing is to move?" Felt asked. "Or, the positive thing is the decision?"

"The positive thing is to finish the process," Schulte said.

Report lists pros of moving

By Brad Lindberg
Staff Writer

GROSSE POINTE SHORES — A summary of findings by members of the Move to Macomb committee reconstitutes discussions about Macomb County's lower property tax rate, which would save Grosse Pointe Shores tax payers a combined $1,052,702 per year compared with the rate paid to Wayne County.

The 23-page PowerPoint report, made available to the roughly dozen people attending the committee's meeting Thursday, July 19, personalizes property tax savings at $400 per $100,000 of taxable value.

Council members and residents will consider the report in their decision to pursue switching jurisdictions or leave things as they are.

Shores tax savings come primarily from Macomb County's lower rates for operations, debt and community college, plus no taxes for parks, according to the report.

The report also recounts Shores City Attorney Mark McInerney's statement from October 2011 that Shores public school students would remain eligible to attend the Grosse Pointe system if the city became part of Macomb County.

Realignment "would have no effect on the boundaries of the school district in which our city is located," according to McInerney.

The report re-outlines a handful of additional issues discussed during city council meetings in the months since the idea of leaving Wayne County came up.

Such as:

◆ Moving wouldn't require property value reassessment.

◆ County records, including deeds, marriage licenses, birth and death certificates would be recorded in the new county on a "day-forward basis."

"If anyone needed prior information, they (would go) to the former county."

New information included:

◆ Macomb County's title transfer tax is $7.50 per $1,000, the same as Wayne's.

◆ Marriage licenses in Macomb cost $20, a $3 to

Forever fresh

DETROIT INSTITUTE OF ARTS — At about the time French composer Claude Debussy was co-opting a Zen concept that “music is the silence between notes,” his artistic countryman, Henri Matisse, was sketching a woman wearing a plumed hat.

Or, rather, a plumed hat worn by a woman.

It was the hat, not the woman, that intrigued Matisse most. He wanted to clarify the plume.

In drawing after drawing, about 50 in all, the artist simplified his rendering. He achieved, in a version held by the Detroit Institute of Arts, a breezy snapshot outlined with clean and minimal graphite strokes. Understated panache. The space between the lines.

“Matisse is starting to simplify lines more and more,” said Lisa Levinson, interpretive specialist for the special exhibition, “Picasso and Matisse: The DIA's Prints and Drawings.” “He's hinting at feathers with a few strokes.”

Matisse extends the technique to the woman's face and her attire.

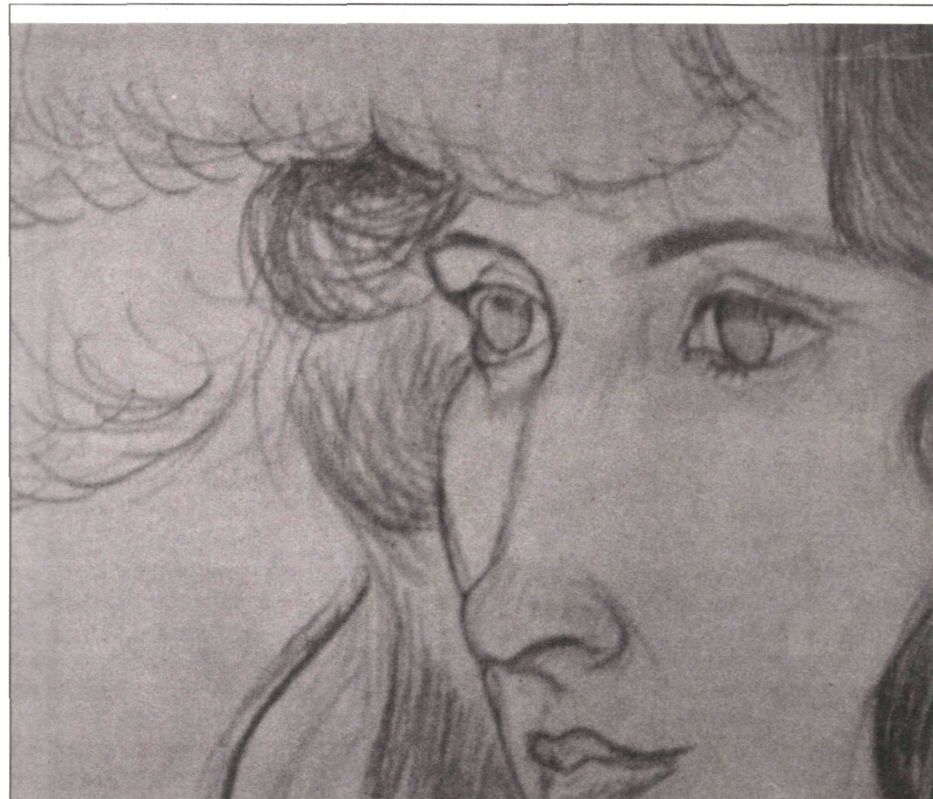

“There's just a couple of lines that hint at curves of her dress,” Levinson said.

“He's started to refine this more and more in works that follow.”

“I think of this as foreshadowing everything Matisse will become and his focused attention of the line as his tool,” said Nancy Soyka, exhibition curator and head of the department of prints, drawings and photographs.

Refinement often is synonymous with substance. “Plumed Hat,” of 1919, the earliest of Matisse's works owned by the DIA, is on the wish list of art institutions worldwide.

“It's one of the most highly requested artworks from this department, but it's too fragile to travel, so we have to turn people down,” Levinson said.

The show is free with regular museum admission through Jan. 6.

“The exhibition is drawn entirely from the DIA's collection and is intended to emphasize the kind of treasures here at the DIA all the time,” said Graham Beal, museum director.

There are 110 objects displayed in two long, narrow rooms. Each has alcoves dedicated to assorted themes, mediums and attitudes, such as the artists' incessant compulsions to try something new.

“These two artists could do it all,” Soyka said. “This show highlights them as people who could draw and make prints of all kinds — etchings, lithographs, pochior, woodcuts. We encourage people to go upstairs and look at our 13 paintings by both artists.”

Entering the main gallery, offset a degree or two left, is Picasso's “Bather by the Sea,” from 1939.

“It has all the characteristics you want in Picasso,” Soyka said. “Picasso was credited with co-inventing cubism in the era of the first world war. You have this eerie sense of that dreamy stream of consciousness, self-providential moment. It's both a work in the moment and a work that looks at the past.”

“Bather” ranks 11th in

“The Director's Dozen,” a pamphlet of Beal's favorite works at the DIA.

All art at one time was contemporary. These works of Matisse and Picasso, only a few generations removed from today, convey energy anew.

Dominating the middle of the first gallery is Matisse's “Jazz,” a book and printmaking project completed in 1947.

“It has the historic attribute of being one of the great printmaking projects in history,” Soyka said.

The DIA owns one of 100 copies.

“Don't miss linoleum cuts by both artists,” Soyka said. “Matisse

Firing back at fireworks in the Pointes

By Brad Lindberg
Staff Writer

The sky's the limit on fireworks, and its driving some people ballistic.

“It was like the wild west,” said Andy Dervan, of Grosse Pointe Farms.

“I keep hearing them pop off,” said Vito Cusenza, of Grosse Pointe Shores.

They want it stopped. Cusenza took a bottle rocket landed in his backyard to this month's city council meeting.

“I've been hearing them at all times of the night,” Cusenza said, the rocket's spent, five-inch charge at the tip of a scorched stick.

“I had a bunch of them in my yard, too,” said Councilwoman Kay Felt.

Fireworks play seemed to go through the roof on and around July 4.

“Complaints were up,” said Dan Jensen, Farms public safety director.

In Grosse Pointes Woods, public safety officers responded to 32 calls for service regarding fireworks between June 23 and July 15, according to Skip Fincham, Woods city administrator.

“That doesn't count the e-mails and phone calls from residents upset that they can't sleep at night and their dogs are traumatized,” Fincham said.

Complaints are shared by the Grosse Pointes' representative in Lansing.

“In my neighborhood, on a couple of occasions,

I've had to close the windows and turn on the air conditioning just to escape the noise,” said state Rep. Timothy Bledsoe, D-City of Grosse Pointe. “My dog is a nervous wreck because of the fireworks.”

The state's new, liberal fireworks law permits citizens to shoot a wider variety of more powerful pyrotechnics.

“This is a terrible law,” Dervan said. “It should be repealed.”

“It's the poorest piece of legislation to come through the system in a long time,” Jensen said.

“Of all the votes I've ever cast, its the one I regret most,” Bledsoe said.

He was among 98 legislators supporting the final draft of the fireworks law. Ten opposed.

Seeing how things turned out, he thinks most of those supporters now feel like him.

Bledsoe opposed the initial bill, which provided “for some really big-bang fireworks,” he said.

A watered down version from the senate seemed acceptable.

“The sponsor (state Rep. Harold Haugh, D-Roseville) came up to me — I remember distinctly — and said it had been changed to just bottle rockets and Roman candles,” Bledsoe said.

Bledsoe played with bottle rockets as a boy.

“They were pencil-sized things that went up and popped,” he said.

He didn't know they'd gotten as big as the ones that pelted Cusenza and Felt's property.

“Those are way too big,” Bledsoe said. “There was a misconception on my part.”

Cities hamstrung

The law also prevents municipalities from doing much about fireworks.

“The statute specifically says municipalities are not allowed to impose any restrictions on the use of fireworks during a three-day window around each of 10 holidays during the year,” Bledsoe said. “That's a total of 30 days we have preempted localities from imposing restrictions on the use of fireworks. That's way to much.”

“It's the concept of preemption,” said Shores Mayor Ted Kedzierski.

Bledsoe doesn't approve of Lansing running roughshod over municipal governments.

“I like the idea of local control and municipalities being given the discretion to regulate things like fireworks,” he said.

“The biggest problem with this fireworks law is there's 10 national holidays,” said Shores Lt. William Nicholson.

The law's 10, three-day windows means it super-sedes local ordinances a total of 30 days per year.

“(The Shores) ordinance has been in effect since 1974,” said Mark McInerney, city attorney. “It can't be enforced on those 30 days we're talking about because state law prevents municipalities from enacting laws regulating fireworks.”

On other than those days, city rules apply.

Some cities are seeking end-runs around excessive firework usage.

“Warren is looking at an ordinance where anything over 20 minutes is excessive,” Nicholson said. “Somebody's going to have to put one of those in place to see if its challenged.”

McInerney doubts pyrotechnics could be controlled through the city's noise ordinance.

Oops

Fincham e-mailed a complaint to Haugh.

“I said, I'm not going to bore you with all the complaints we've had in the Woods because I'm sure they're the same as across the state,” Fincham said. “But, I am particularly concerned, if the law isn't repealed, that you at least allow for enforcement of noise ordinances during a reasonable period of time on those 30 days of hell that are allowed and distances from home.”

Fincham got a response.

“He e-mailed me back and said this was never his intention and he'll be working to change the bill as it exists today,” Fincham said.

Pushing back

Bledsoe wants to stop the issue at its source. He's working on a bill to revise state law and restrict fireworks purchases and usage.

“We have to revise being able to buy fireworks 365 days per year,” Bledsoe said. “You can't let people buy fireworks at any time with the assumption they would only use them during windows throughout the year.”

He also said the number of prescribed holidays are excessive. He proposed retaining fireworks windows for Independence Day and New Years, but not the others.

“At a minimum, we need to give municipal officials the latitude to regulate fireworks more than they are given latitude in the current bill,” Bledsoe said.

“I wouldn't be surprised if the statute looks a lot different next July 4 than it did this July 4,” McInerney said.

The state law expires in two years unless renewed.

$13 savings.

◆ Birth and death certificates cost $15, or $7 less than in Wayne.

One page of the summary lists five Southeast Michigan public school districts occupying more than one county.

Three pages list the Shores and Wayne

County's area in square miles, the city's property tax payments for 2011 and the county's annual property tax revenue that same year.

Six pages reproduce Wayne and Macomb web sites for public health and senior citizen services.

The final page lists one voter concern:

“Q: Wayne County voters will never vote in favor of Grosse Pointe Shores moving to Macomb County. So, why even bother with putting the issue on the ballot?”

“A: The countywide election must be completed before any appeal to the Michigan Legislature or judicial appeal process can be initiated.”

The report doesn't address who pays for seawall maintenance,

Macomb's tax history or its financial forecast.

Councilman Dan Schulte, the council's liaison to the committee and an advocate of moving to Macomb, indicated at this month's council meeting that the committee's job was essentially over.

“That's going to pretty much be the last meeting,” he said of the July 19 meeting.

A smile goes a long way

By Ann L. Fouty
Features Editor

A smile can go a long way. It can brighten the day for a frightened child. It can ease an anxious parent.

In this case, the smiles from a monkey, giraffe, elephant and frog, painted by Meghan Beers, go a long way in reassuring children who are patients of the Meade Pediatric Hematology Oncology Center at the Van Elslander Cancer Center.

"I chose something happy and to bring a smile to the children's faces," said the Grosse Pointe Woods resident.

She knows from firsthand experience. Her 3-year-old son, Blake, was diagnosed with acute lymphoblastic leukemia in May 2011. For months, Beers and her young son were regulars at the plain, white-walled center as Blake underwent treatment.

"From the first diagnosis, I was here almost every day," she said. "The first nine months were tough for him."

In fact, out of 365 days in 2011, Beers spent 250 at the St. John Hospital and Medical Center. Her mother was diagnosed with lung cancer in April and died in July and Blake was diagnosed in May.

Blake is now on maintenance, meaning he returns to the center every 29 days for an appointment.

"Blake is amazing. He is the most loving, wonderful (child) and is funny," Beers said of her son, who plays soccer. "He has a lot of compassion. Blake gave up his pacifier and wanted to bring them here to donate. He has done a lot of growing up in the last few months."

Like her son, Beers is giving back to the patients and their parents by sharing her talent, because everyone is family, she said.

"I've lived in Grosse Pointe my whole life. I'm overwhelmed by neighbors and friends and prayers to the family," she said. "I'm proud to be from such a wonderful place."

Thus, creating the illustrations was her way to repay the kindness.

"I see the murals and feel a sense of accomplishment, mainly because of the hours we have to be here. We (staff, children and extended family members) have become such a family," said 40-year-old Beers.

"It was so plain and bland with big white walls," said clinical office assistant Jeannie Shelton of the office before Beers added the smiling jungle characters.

The only color on the walls, Beers said, was a single large quilt.

The waiting room and hall were changed when the Meade family asked Beers to create the murals.

"I was honored to do that," she said. "The staff here helped me come up with the idea called The Village with a road down the center hall."

With the help of her children, 6-year-old twins, Cameron and Brady, they searched children's books to settle on just the right characters.

Beers started with the monkey and elephant in the waiting room, working four to five days a week between 9 a.m. and 4 p.m., first drawing each and finishing up with acrylic paints.

She livened up the hall walls with big pots of flowers, each one dedicated to the office staff. Street-like signs were added in recognition of the center's doctors, Hadi Sawaf M.D. and Adonis Lorenzana M.D.

Shelton is credited with the idea of a tall giraffe over the wall with the pamphlet rack.

Beers completed the work during January and February when not at her day job. She works with her father at Meldrum and Smith Nursery creating floral arrangements and painting pumpkins in the fall.

A 1989 graduate of Grosse Pointe South High School, Beers said she really didn't have any artistic talent during her school years.

"In high school I was not a great art student. I got by until a few years ago I discovered a love for it," she admitted.

Beers began buying canvases and creating wall hangings for her children's rooms using bold bright colors and changing the scenes as the children's tastes changed.

"Patricia Adams, my aunt, encouraged me to try (art)," Beers said. "She was my only art teacher (and) passed away from cancer. She left me with this gift."

Nearly every morning, Beers is drawing for her children. Animal figures are the most requested by the three.

It seems only natural that Beers went from drawing pictures on paper for her children to sharing her gift with the community.

Despite how cancer has affected the lives of her children, husband, Derek, herself and extended family and friends, Beers said, "I feel grateful to have a wonderful family and my life is blessed people, beautiful children."

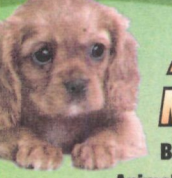

Now there's something to smile about.

PUBLIC SAFETY REPORTS

City of Grosse Pointe

Meth

An arrest warrant is being sought for a 21-year-old Grosse Pointe Farms woman accused of possessing methamphetamines, according to police.

A patrolman reported pulling her over at 2:34 a.m. Friday, July 20. She'd driven a red, 2006 Ford Focus through a flashing red light on northbound Rivard at Mack, said the officer.

"When asked if there was anything, such as drugs, in the vehicle, (she) seemed momentarily confused and then stated she did not have anything," said the officer.

A front-seat passenger had bloodshot and glassy eyes, he added.

The officer searched the car, including the driver's purse.

"(I) found a dime bag in the outside pocket of her purse," he said.

The bag contained an unknown substance, he added.

"(The driver) stated it was 'Molly' (and) said a friend gave it to her for energy, but she was not sure what it contained," said the officer. "A search of the drug nickname, 'Molly,' shows it to be for Ecstasy."

Grosse Pointe Farms

Some pal

A 20-year-old Grosse Pointe Woods man contributed to his friend's arrest last weekend for drunken driving.

The Woods man was a passenger in his friend's silver 2001 Oldsmobile Aurora on eastbound Mack near Kerby when he screamed at officers conducting an unrelated investigation.

"(I) was unable to determine what (he) stated and was concerned that (he) was possibly in distress," said an officer.

The officer pulled over the Oldsmobile on southbound Kerby below Chalfonte.

The driver, a 19-year-old Farms man, had a .124 percent blood alcohol level, police said.

Fist fight

At 3:08 a.m., Saturday, July 21, police broke up a fight between two Farms men on a lawn at the corner of Charlevoix and Touraine.

An 18-year-old was getting the best of a 20-year-old rival.

The 18-year-old said the fight "was over a girl at a house party," according to one of many public safety officers called to the scene.

Police reported catching the 18-year-old fleeing behind a house in the 200 block of Cloverly. He had a .146 percent blood alcohol level, police said.

The victim had a .255 percent blood alcohol level, police said.

He resisted officers and wound up under arrest, police said.

He swore at officers and "began to bang his head on the scout car divider," saying he needed to go home, police said.

"(At headquarters), he tried to pull out of his handcuffs."

Caught with pots

A 51-year-old Detroit man was caught shortly before 10 p.m. Friday, July 20, stealing two planter pots from a business in the 18400 block of Mack, according to police.

A patrolman cruising the Detroit border saw the man load the pots in the back of a 2006 Chevrolet Trailblazer.

Police searching the Trailblazer also confiscated one Bulova watch, a silver ring and two silver bracelets until ownership is confirmed.

Another theft

A resident of the 400 block of Cloverly, who was reported last week tracking down the Detroit man who stole his bicycle and retrieving the bike, now reports the theft of a gasoline powered lawn edger worth $255.

He discovered the tool missing last week and believes it was stolen along with his bike two weeks ago.

Lawn tool theft

Two pieces of commercial landscaping equipment worth a combined $550 were reported stolen shortly before 10:30 a.m. Friday, July 20, from a lawn crew working on Fair Acres.

A Stihl trimmer and RedMax leaf blower were taken from a wheelbarrow in a front yard, police were told.

Open opportunity

A thief cruising the 200 block of Merriweather during the night of Wednesday, July 18, stole a Toshiba laptop computer, briefcase, lockbox key and U.S. passport from an unsecured vehicle parked in a driveway.

Hi, Dad

Police responding at 1:14 a.m. Friday, July 20, to the suspected break-in of a vehicle parked in the first block of Vendome discovered a 19-year-old Farms man having a bad night.

"(He was) vomiting while smacking his fists on the vehicle," said a patrolman. "(He) thought he was at his home (on) Stephens."

The man was cited for a .21 percent blood alcohol level and released to his father, according to police.

Light's out

Someone caused $600 damage by yanking a lamp off a pole in the front yard of a house in the 400 block of Barclay.

The incident was reported shortly before 1:30 a.m. Thursday, July 19.

Power cut

Residents of a northern section of the city were without electricity for about two hours during the early afternoon of Friday, July 20. It was for their own good, according to police.

Power was cut intentionally to prevent an overheated transformer on a pole, off Webster between Kerby and Belanger from igniting.

Fire could have spread to three nearby garages, said a public safety officer.

The controlled outage affected utility customers from Mack to Vincennes and Kerby to Moross.

Lays in wait

At 1:10 p.m. Monday, July 16, a patrolman investigated an unoccupied 2001 Kia Sportage parked on the east side of the Grosse Pointe War Memorial.

Seeing rolling papers in and smelling marijuana coming from the vehicle, the officer backed off to see what was going on.

At 1:49 a.m., a man entered the Kia and drove a short distance on Lakeshore before an officer stopped him in the 100 block.

The man, 30, of Eastpointe, was arrested for possessing two bags of suspected marijuana weighing a total of 8.4 grams.

Aliens

Two suspected illegal aliens, questioned during a traffic stop on eastbound Lakeshore near Moran at 1:32 a.m. Monday, July 16, were turned over to U.S. Border Patrol agents.

Farms officers found rolling papers in the suspect's vehicle, which had a license plate hanging vertically by only one screw.

The suspects, supposedly 17 and 18, listed Detroit as their city of residence.

The passenger admitted being in the country illegally and smoking marijuana recently, police said.

"No violation could be issued (to the driver) due to the fact that (his) name was unable to be confirmed," said a patrolman.

If you have any information about these or other crimes, call the Grosse Pointe Farms public safety department at (313) 885-2100.

Grosse Pointe Shores

Pays the piper

A 49-year-old Okemos woman, stopped at 9:12 a.m. Friday, July 20, for making an illegal right turn on red from Vernier to Lakeshore, was allowed to reinstate her suspended driver's license by making a $45 credit card payment to the appropriate agency.

Tree topped

A resident of the first block of Vernier claims a neighbor on Regal Place acted without permission and hired a contractor to cut 40 feet off the top of tree in her backyard.

The Vernier resident suspects the neighbor arranged the cutting during the last half of June, while the Vernier resident was out of town, according to police.

Rescheduled

A July 19 preliminary hearing for Shirley Nagel, 64, of Grosse Pointe Farms, arrested July 4 for disorderly conduct, a misdemeanor, was rescheduled for 8 a.m. Wednesday, Sept. 5 in Shores Municipal Court.

Nagel is a candidate in the Aug. 7 primary election for Wayne County Commissioner.

GROSSE POINTE WOODS

Hit a house

An 18-year-old Grosse Pointe Woods resident lost control of the Mercedes-Benz he was driving and hit a house at the corner of Morningside and Vernier. The accident occurred at 12:30 a.m. Sunday, July 22. The homeowner reported to police he was in bed reading when he heard a loud crash and realized his house had been hit. Witnesses who assisted the driver from the car told police the car "left the roadway and hit the house."

The car's air bags were deployed, and while the driver was not injured, police noted "his face was full of blood," so a Breathalyzer test was not given at the scene. However, police suspect alcohol was involved and a blood test was administered at police headquarters.

The driver was released on bond and was to be in court Wednesday, July 25.

The house sustained considerable structural damage, ranging from the attic to the basement.

Don't drink and sleep

Police responded at 4:20 a.m. Wednesday, July 18, to several reports of a car stopped in the middle of the street at Roslyn and Goethe with the driver slumped over the wheel. When police arrived, they found the car running with the gear shift in drive and a driver passed out and drooling with his foot still on the brake.

An officer slowly entered the car and put the car in park while other officers attempted to rouse the driver. After about five minutes, the driver woke up and when police asked him if he knew where he was, he responded that he was parked in his driveway. Police found several open beer cans in the car, and arrested the driver on charges of driving while impaired.

Catalytic converters taken

A woman shopping at Kroger on Mack at 3 p.m. Saturday, July 21, returned to her car and noticed a black mid-size passenger van with a woman in the passenger seat and a baby in the back seat, blocking her car. As she approached, a man entered the van and fled. It was when she started her car and noticed a very loud noise that she realized her catalytic converter had been stolen.

Later that day, an employee of a restaurant on Mack returned to his car parked behind the restaurant and discovered the car's catalytic converter was taken sometime that afternoon.

Wasn't this a movie?

Park public safety officers received a call at 10:50 a.m. Saturday, July 21, that a man had just taken control of a bus which was headed on Jefferson toward Grosse Pointe. Police located the subject and made the arrest. Prior to taking over the bus, the suspect had committed a home invasion in Detroit. The suspect was turned over to Detroit Police.

BASHARA: Recordings, photos and testimony send case on to trial

sometimes difficult to understand in open court, there were snippets of conversations that could be heard, including a tape from June 25 where Tibaud could be heard counting out $2,000 Bashara had given him as down payment toward the $20,000 Tibaud could be heard requested.

The two could be heard discussing a receipt, and Tibaud told the court that he gave Bashara a receipt for the money, indicating Bashara bought "three stoves and three refrigerators."

It was shortly after that meeting that Bashara was arrested in Grosse Pointe Park.

Tibaud testified Bashara expressed concern Tibaud could be wearing a wire and actually patted him down on more than one occasion. Tibaud said in the first instance, the recording device he was using, supplied by the Michigan State Police, was in his pocket. On other occasions, he was wearing a device supplied by the FBI that hung on his key chain. He also said his store, at Warren and Chalmers, had been wired.

On one occasion when Bashara asked him if was wearing a wire, "I told him no, I'm Sicilian. It's against my religion," Tibaud told the court.

He also told the court Bashara whispered in his ear about the hit on Gentz, "This is my life and I have to get this done."

In spite of his suspicions about Tibaud, it appears Bashara wanted to go forward with Tibaud hiring a hit man.

"Bob came into the store and found me on the phone and he demanded to know who I was talking to," Tibaud said. "He grabbed my cell phone and started scrolling through my calls and saw a call from Detective Matouk of the prosecutor's office. Bob was mad and told me, 'This is the detective who is making my life miserable.' I told Bob he had called me."

He also told Bashara he was unraveling.

On another occasion, Bashara told Tibaud, "If you're wearing a wire, just shoot me now."

In addition to the recordings, prosecutors also put into evidence photographs of Bashara meeting with Tibaud outside his store.

It was Tibaud who introduced Bashara to Gentz several years ago. Tibaud had hired Gentz about eight years ago to work in his store and when he heard Gentz was being evicted from his apartment, he asked Bashara, a customer in his appliance store, to help Gentz find a place to live.

Tibaud said he had not had contact with Gentz in several years.

Following his order to send Bashara over for trial in circuit court, King denied a request from Bashara's attorney, David Griem for a pretrial service report and a recommendation on bond.

Bashara will remain in the Wayne County Jail in lieu of $15 million cash bond.

Relatives of Bashara were in the court room, but were asked to leave when the prosecution indicated they would be called as witnesses in the case against Joe Gentz for the murder of Jane Bashara.

In addition to the first-degree murder charge, Gentz faces a charge of conspiracy to commit murder. Though no one has been named as a co-conspirator in the case, Griem said he expects Bashara to be charged with conspiracy to commit murder.

Griem was in court last week, asking to be removed as Bashara's attorney, but his request was denied by King. Griem told the court Tuesday Mark Kriger will be taking over as Bashara's attorney, and he expects Kriger will be representing Bashara at the July 31 examination.

Griem would not give an exact reason why he wanted to be removed from the case. Instead, he cited irreconcilable differences between himself and Bashara.

"I've never bailed on anything in my life," Griem said. "We're just on different pages. We can't tell you why we're leaving, but I will say it was a mutual decision. Bob even wrote me a love letter."

It is probably safe to say Griem won't receive any love letters from Assistant Wayne County Prosecutor Lisa Lindsey. The two had several heated exchanges in court Tuesday morning, one which culminated in Griem telling the judge, "This makes me recall Pinocchio, except in Ms. Lindsey's case it isn't her nose that's growing, it's her hair."

Gentz's next court date is set for Monday, Aug. 13 in Wayne County Circuit Court.

Gentz has admitted killing Jane Bashara at the request of her husband. He said Bashara offered him $2,000 and a used car to commit the murder.

Obama's dupes

Give the "Obama Youth" credit for this: At least they didn't vote their self-interest.

The cadres of college students and recent graduates who swooned and fainted for Barack Obama four years ago will long be remembered for one of the most ill-considered fliers in the annals of self-defeating enthusiasms. In the cold light of day, the youthful idealists, believers and activists of 2008 look like the lamentable saps, patsies and suckers of 2012.

Rarely has a politician owed so much to a constituency he has served so poorly. The president promised young voters the moon, and all they got was their old childhood bedroom back in their parents' house. He fired them up with an inspirational vision that didn't include struggling to find a job to begin to pay off their onerous student loans. He sold a new kind of politics and gave them more debt and more entitlement spending that they will labor to fund all their working lives.

Obama's inability to deliver on a recovery worthy of the name has devastated recent college graduates. By one count, half of them are unemployed or underemployed. More of them are carrying debt from college, more than 60 percent, than have full-time employment. Studies show that graduating into such a weak economy has a long-lasting dampening effect on the earnings of young people. They bear the brunt of the economic failure of their champion.

If man doesn't live by bread alone, neither does the youthful Obama voter. He is attracted to the president's social views, to his supposedly forward-looking progressivism, to what his historic election symbolized in 2008, to his cool and cerebral style. Obama hasn't created the conditions for them to get a decent job, but he can represent their mutual values.

Based on fiscal calculations alone, it would take a clinical psychologist, not a political scientist, to understand the young Obama voter. The basic dynamic of the entitlement state favors the old over the young. It is natural that retirees and Baby Boomers would be fiercely protective of the entitlement status quo that they will benefit from at someone else's expense. It is less natural for the someone else — i.e., the young worker — to volunteer for the privilege of getting fleeced.

They qualify as double victims of the president's Keynesian-inflected deficit spending; they suffer from the still-anemic economy now, yet must pay the $5 trillion bill later. They are Generation Debt. On the current trajectory, they will inherit the country after the locusts have eaten. But, hey, did you see the president "slow jam" the news on "Late Night With Jimmy Fallon"?

Crumbs from the president's giveaways — such as low-interest Stafford college loans — can't possibly compensate for this larger picture. Some young people notice. A New York Times article reported the president is encountering more youthful skepticism than in 2008: "The nation's first-time voters are less enthusiastic about him, are significantly more likely to identify as conservative and cite a growing lack of faith in government in general."

For all that, the president is still performing well among voters under 30. They were fooled once, and will be fooled again. They are Obama's dupes.

GUEST OPINION By Rachel Koresky

With no vote, there's no voice

The right to vote is the single most important individual power we wield as citizens. In 2004, the 18- to 29-year-old electorate cast 20.1 million votes. This rivaled the much-coveted senior vote, whose electorate cast 22.3 million votes in the same election.

There are currently 46 million voters between the ages of 18 and 29 in the United States — at 46 million, this millennial generation is the largest generation in U.S. history, and represents more than 20 percent of the electorate. Political scandals, unpopular wars, and crises such as 9/11 and Hurricane Katrina have shaped this generation's world view, and it has witnessed firsthand how choosing a leader means deciding the direction of our future.

Despite this, in the 2008 election approximately 21

Only building for sale

To the Editor:
"For Sale" signs can be disheartening to see in one's neighborhood.

I was very upset when I saw a For Sale sign on Oxford Beverages & Deli, located on Mack Avenue in Grosse Pointe Woods.

The owner, Jo, and her family, have been great commercial neighbors and supportive community members. Oh, my heart was broken when I saw the For Sale sign.

Today I spoke with Jo and it is to my delight to learn only the building is for sale; Jo and her family will continue to provide the community with excellent service and continue to be good neighbors.

I am sure many other customers of Oxford Beverages & Deli will be as delighted as I. After all, good neighbors are hard to find.

Still a disconnected world

In this world of social connectedness — of Myspace, Google Plus, Facebook, Twitter, blogs and others — where news and views are at our fingertips, from Kiribati to Alaska, faster than tachyons, it's quite amazing — and a bit disturbing — how disconnected we truly are.

Take, for example, last Friday's tragedy in Aurora, Colo. James

Holmes, a 24-year-old Ph.D. candidate in neuroscience before voluntarily withdrawing from the University of Colorado Anschutz Medical School in June, opened fire in a packed movie theater during a midnight screening of The Dark Knight Rises, killing 12 and injuring 58 more.

The shooting happened around 12:30 a.m. At 3:03 a.m., Zach Eastman tweeted "Have just evacuated our theater in Aurora. There was a shooting in our auditorium. I am safe," the earliest such tweet I could find. Soon after, Twitter and Facebook were afluster with rumblings about the shootings at the Century 16 theater. Likely, it reached news media earlier.

Whatever the case, news spread like wildfire, as it typically does in our wired world of social connectedness, and quickly became the top-trending, or most tweeted about topic on Twitter, well before dawn. Which makes the following tweets by the American Rifleman, official journal of the National Rifle Association, and Celeb Boutique, a United Kingdom-based fashion website, disturbing given the amount of online coverage by then.

A 6:20 a.m. tweet from the rifleman read: "Good morning, shooters. Happy Friday! Weekend plans?" Deadspin, an online sports and news blog, reported at 12:10 p.m. that same day the tweet was deleted and at 1:48, the account itself; the NRA director of public affairs responding via Twitter: "A single individual, unaware of events in Colorado, tweeted a comment that is being completely taken out of context."

Maybe so, but the timing was poor and distasteful. Much like Celeb Boutique's tweet last Friday early afternoon in what should be considered one of the most ridiculous cases of disconnect and obliviousness in recent memory. Celeb Boutique tweeted, "#Aurora is trending, clearly about our Kim K inspired #Aurora dress;") of phone calls, not knowing whether to be concerned or comforted by the sound of Matt's voice on his cell phone message.

By noon, most of Matt's life and every prayer I could think of were running together through my mind.

By 10:30 in the evening when my telephone rang for the last time that excruciatingly endless day, I was in tears thinking of Matt, just off a 12-hour shift safe and sound.

My prayers of thanks are coupled now with more prayers for those of us who weren't so lucky.

May the rest of us never take for granted our loved ones and always keep in our hearts and minds how precious every moment together should be.

hancement to mutual aid," said Mark Wollenweber, interim Grosse Pointe Shores city manager.

The difference involves the response of firefighters to fires in member jurisdictions.

Under mutual aid, officers in participating cities wait until called upon to answer multiple alarms in member jurisdictions.

Under automatic aid, officers respond immediately. They don't wait for additional alarms to cross borders. Officers rush to the other jurisdiction as though the fire were in their own city.

"It takes the case-by-case scenario out of the picture for certain incidents," Fincham said.

"With mutual aid, to some degree, you had to wait for the first car on scene to make a determination to call for a second or third alarm," said Dan Jensen, public safety director in the Farms. "This is automatic. If there's a call of smoke in a building, everyone's coming. We don't wait for an officer to arrive and realize there is a working fire and, then, call for a second or third alarm. They're already on the way."

No slacking

Provisions prevent departments from slacking off on manpower or equipment, intending to lean on other cities for fire service.

"The mutual aid agreement addresses that," said Shane Reeside, Farms city manager.

Harper Woods, where a labor problem has resulted in reduced fire fighting manpower, is not included in the new deal.

"The directors of the subcommittee were very concerned about responses," Wollenweber said of being able to depend on Harper Woods for prompt automatic aid. "It is very important, in case of a working fire, that as many people and as much equipment get there as soon as possible to cut it off."

Automatic aid among the Pointes doesn't alter the mutual aid agreement with Harper Woods.

"Automatic aid will be responding to all structure fires," said Stephen Poloni, chief in the City of Grosse Pointe. "Any time a call comes out of a confirmed structure fire — not a false alarm — departments will respond with automatic aid. However, on alarms to designated structures, they will respond immediately no matter what the call is. That's the difference."

Automatic locations

Locations designated for automatic response are, per city:

- ◆ City of Grosse Pointe
 1. Beaumont Hospital
 2. Maire Elementary School

- ◆ Grosse Pointe Farms
 1. Country Club of Detroit
 2. Grosse Pointe Academy
 3. Grosse Pointe South High School
 4. Henry Ford Cottage Hospital

- ◆ Grosse Pointe Shores
 1. Edsel & Eleanor Ford Estate
 2. Grosse Pointe Yacht Club

- ◆ Grosse Pointe Woods
 1. Berkshire Condominium on Vernier near Mack
 2. Grosse Pointe North High School
 3. Pointe Plaza Office Center, including the Van Elslander Cancer Center
 4. St. John Hospital & Medical Center north lot underground receiving docks.
 5. Sunrise Assisted Living on Mack at Brys Drive
 6. Sunrise Assisted Living Center on Vernier near Mack
 7. University Liggett High School
 8. Vernier Grosse Pointe Terraces apartments.

- No designated structures are in Grosse Pointe Park.

"Given that we respond with a minimum of five or six personnel to begin with, we thought that going with the City of Grosse Pointe on a second alarm would be just as effective for us," said David Hiller, Park public safety director.

Pointe officials suspect automatic aid comports with the state Economic Vitality Incentive Program, announced in June 2011.

The program, which replaces state shared revenue payments, requires cities to share services in order to qualify for state funding.

"This agreement may qualify each of the cities under the service partnership funding requirements," Fincham wrote early this month in a memo to his mayor and council.

He said this week, "That wasn't the main focus of automatic aid, but it may be an indirect good result in applying for grants."

A further goal is standardizing fire fighting equipment, such as air tanks and fire hydrant hookups.

"It's a good way to strengthen the mutual aid agreement and allow greater cooperation moving forward," Reeside said.

Horseback riding helps at-risk students

By A.J. Hakim
Staff Writer

For a couple hours Mondays at the Grosse Pointe Hunt Club, a group of students with special needs of varying ages from the Grosse Pointe Public School System ride horseback as part of a new Therapeutic Horseback Riding program.

The program, a partnership between the Hunt Club, Ray Laethem, GPPSS, the Macomb Oakland Regional Center and Community Foundation, uses riding as a therapeutic tool aimed at building a student's self-confidence and socialization skills. It's the brainchild of Patty Sims Sunisloe, project development director at MORC and Grosse Pointe Woods resident, who, having been involved with similar programs for the past 16 years, time and again saw the benefits it can have and dreamed of instituting it in her own community.

"I live here in Grosse Pointe, in Grosse Pointe Woods," she said. "And I've always been familiar with the Hunt Club, and for me it was a no-brainer

— we have this beautiful facility, I know the program works, we just have to do it here."

Funded through an approximately $40,000 grant Sunisloe received from the Community Foundation, the program currently accommodates four students per one-hour session. There are two sessions each Monday from July 9 to August 16, and another two on Thursdays, though GPPSS students aren't involved in a riding capacity.

The one-time grant allows enough funding for 50 riders, 32 of whom have already passed since the program's first session (May 7 to June 18) to now. Sunisloe plans to run it through November, at which point, it'll shut down until next spring, assuming the funding is there to continue running it. She figures this year's program costs are in the neighborhood of $50,000, a lion's share of which the foundation funded.

"(Community Foundation) give you the seed money and you show them what you can do with it," Sunisloe said. "So, we're hoping the more people that see it and jump on board, the easier it will be for us to get funding and keep it going."

Already on board are volunteer coordinator Karen Lawrence and her 22 student and parent volunteers. Each rider requires one lead walker and two side walkers. Volunteers, Sunisloe said, are typically the most critical and most difficult spots to fill. Though, Lawrence had little trouble finding help.

"I had to turn people away, which is wonderful," Lawrence said of the influx of interested volunteers. "And we have a whole other set of moms for the fall."

Karen LaBarge, a Title I specialist in the school district who also helps during sessions, has already seen improvements in some of her students. Some from the first session started talking more in class and were enthusiastic about writing of their experiences riding the horses.

"And it actually has helped them," LaBarge said. "I talked to one child about behavior, that if they can control that big horse, they can control themselves. You see them

Residency a hot topic at board meeting

By A.J. Hakim
Staff Writer

An easy-going, quick-paced meeting of the Grosse Pointe Public School System Board of Education Monday at the Brownell Middle School multi-purpose room met a fiery conclusion, as members of the community spoke out in frustration about residency issues in the schools.

The 20 speakers, most from Grosse Pointe Woods and Shores, voiced concerns about the district's lack of aggressiveness in its pursuit of residency enforcement and the consistency with which it applies its residency policies. Last year, the district conducted 183 investigations that resulted in 42 exclusions, on par with previous years since 2005-2006. To the residents speaking, though, that's not enough of a deterrent, they said, citing a need for more stringent policies, for another re-registration as the district did in 2005 and for restitution, or another kind of consequence, from families whose children are found illegally attending schools.

Another re-registration could cost the district an estimated $85,000 to $90,000, said Chris Fenton, deputy superintendent for business and support services.

A majority also claimed association with the Residents for Residency, a community group made up of residents of the five Grosse Pointes whose primary goal is to ensure students attending district schools reside within district boundaries.

"In that regard, the committee circulated a petition. It consists of over 1,000 signatures," said Joseph Dillon, residency committee member. "The petition calls for a re-verification process of all students enrolled in the Grosse Pointe public schools effective Aug. 12, 2012, with annual residency checks. The petition also calls for restitution for those found in violation of the residency policy."

At Dillon's behest, board president Judy Gafa agreed to a meeting between her, Dillon, superintendent Tom

North to have interim principal

By A.J. Hakim
Staff Writer

A field of 70 applicants in line for the Grosse Pointe North High School principal position, though viable, failed to meet community and administrative expectations. Instead, administration will now look to an interim principal for the 2012-2013 school year.

"We had good candidates," said Jon Dean, deputy superintendent of educational services. "But at the end of the day, the feeling of the staff, the parents, the administrators involved in the process, they didn't see somebody that was that perfect match."

That perfect match, Dean said, was someone who has a background ensuring rigor for all students, including those underperforming; has experience with a comprehensive high school environment; and understands the values of co-curriculars, extra-curriculars and core activities.

"And when we looked at our final candidates," Dean said, "while they were very good people, and I think all of them could've been a very good North principal, the community, the people providing input, just didn't feel the person was that right person."

The process spanned little more than a month. It included a community survey (600 people participated), community profile input meeting, paper screening interviews, screener interviews and several full committee interviews. Approximately 50 stakeholders directly participated in the interview process, along with North teachers and support staff; Matt Outlaw, South high school principal; Aaron Johnson, director of secondary curriculum, instruction, assessment and technology; Dean Niforos, human resources director; Rebecca Fannon, community relations specialist; Deb Jackson, director of student services; Tom Harwood, superintendent, and Dean.

Dean attributed the limited pool of strong candidates to timing. The best season to search for a high school principal, he said, is typically December to March, not during the summer.

"The timing really was not very good," Dean said. "We'll have better luck come winter when we look again."

According to Dean, administration plans to identify an interim principal within the next few weeks.

"Dr. Harwood and I are going to meet on that," Dean said. "We actually haven't had time to talk about that in depth. We talked briefly (Monday). Probably in a couple of weeks we'll have a better answer on that."

Kerby principal update

Dean expects a special meeting early next week or soon thereafter to announce Kerby Elementary School's next principal, as well as a new band director for Pierce Middle School and South High School and possible vocal director at South.

"Earlier (Monday), we conducted interviews — we had 107 applicants," he said of the Kerby position during Monday's board of education meeting. "We've identified final candidates and are currently in the process of selecting and doing reference checks and Dr. Harwood will meet with them (today)."

About the band director, Dean added: "We've offered the position to a candidate who accepted it ... We had parents and students and administrators and staff members interview a variety of candidates last week, found an outstanding candidate. That person will be on the agenda with the Kerby principal."

Interviews for the South vocal director begin next week and Dean plans to have a candidate chosen by week's end, though, whether it makes the special meeting agenda is contingent upon when they decide to meet.

"If I can time it out, if we could delay the board meeting a little bit, I have to figure out how to navigate through all that," Dean said. "I don't want to delay the Kerby search unnecessarily for the South search, so we'll have to figure out how we do that."

'Exotic zoo' comes to Barnes

Harwood and Fenton some time within the next few weeks.

"We'll work on our policies and our procedures to make sure they're stringent enough," Gafa said. "We can come up with new suggestions to find new ways to verify residency and we will try and satisfy this community and make sure we're doing our jobs."

As one of about 10 remaining non-schools of choice districts, residency has been an issue that's troubled Grosse Pointe for decades, more so within the last few years as the community's property lease and rental agreements increased from 8 percent in 2005 to 20 percent this year.

But all the investigations and frustrations and concerns, board treasurer Brendan Walsh said, are moot if Gov. Rick Snyder's "any time, any place, any way, any pace" system gains enough backing.

"The word residency will be a thing of the past if Rick Snyder gets what he wants," he said. "It's not about the school of choice issue of last year. This is a much more dramatic effort Rick Snyder is taking ... which is a complete rewrite of the school aid act."

"There will be no more residency. It will be a completely portable, money follows student. So, bring that zeal and energy to advocacy on that issue on the state level, or at this point a year from now, all of these points that you're making, while we may agree locally, we won't have a say on that."

actually trying harder to do that."

Sunisloe is used to hearing those success stories. In her 16 years, she's witnessed non-verbal people speak, severely autistic children "who don't pay attention to anything" connect with horses and physically impaired children and adults confined to wheelchairs ride horses. But to her, seeing it happen in Grosse Pointe, in her community, carries with it that extra sense of accomplishment she's dreamed of the past 16 years.

"This is a dream come true for me," Sunisloe said. "Because I've gone to work every day for so many years, and I go out to Clinton Township and that's where my office is, and I do all these community programs in all these other areas, and I've always wanted to just do something in my area that would benefit people in my own back yard."

Maintaining proper pool water chemistry

A backyard swimming pool is useless without clean, hygienic water.

Achieving clean water starts by understanding what is necessary to keep pool water clear and safe for swimming, and knowing the terminology related to testing pool water.

There are five different chemical levels with which a pool owner should be familiar. Here are the basics behind each one:

Chlorine

Chlorine serves as a sanitizer that kills off germs and keeps the pool safe.

Chlorine sanitizers are available in the form of a liquid chlorinator, slow-dissolving tablets and powdered forms that must be dissolved in water.

In terms of checking chlorine levels, be familiar with free chlorine, combined chlorine and total chlorine.

Free chlorine refers to the active amount of chlorine in the pool water that is available to sanitize it. Organic matter in the pool as well as sunlight can use up free chlorine quickly. It is good to habitually check the FC chlorine level on a daily basis and add as needed to keep the level adequate for the pool size. It is best to add chlorine to raise FC in the evening when it will not be affected by sunlight.

Combined chlorine is the broken-down amount of chlorine used in the pool — the used-up chlorine. This is what causes the “chlorine smell” many people associate with over-chlorinated pools. In essence, a chlorine smell means the pool likely needs more available fresh chlorine. CC indicates there is something in the pool that the FC is trying to break down. As long as an appropriate FC level is maintained, The CC should remain at near zero.

Total chlorine is the sum of FC and CC in pool water. When you use an inexpensive water test that it can be lowered using muriatic acid.

Total alkalinity is the water's ability to buffer pH changes. This means less product is needed to change the pH. The level of TA needed varies depending on the type of pool material — plaster or vinyl. In general, pH levels between 7.0 and 9.0 are fine for most pools.

Water hardness

Water hardness indicates the amount of calcium in the water. Plaster pools are susceptible to damage from low-calcium levels because the water will tend to dissolve calcium out of plaster, stone, concrete, tiles and other surfaces. Homeowners with a vinyl-lined pool typically don't have to worry about calcium levels.

ly measures one form of chlorine, it is likely TC. This is usually adequate for testing if the water is clear. However, in the presence of algae or another water problem, TC level is useless on its own as a barometer of water quality.

pH and alkalinity

The proper pH, or balance of alkalinity or acidity of the water, must be maintained to prevent irritation of the skin and eyes and to prevent corrosion of the pool equipment. Many pools tend to drift upward to the high level. This may result in eye burning that is often blamed on chlorine levels. The pH is raised with borax or washing soda, and

How long does the home search process take when looking for a new home?

The home search process can be exciting and extensive as buyers take steps toward investing in their futures. The length of time it takes to find that special home varies from buyer to buyer, but on average the search takes about 12 weeks, according to the National Association of Realtors® 2011 Profile of Home Buyers and Sellers.

When beginning the home search, buyers tend to use the Internet to browse preferred homes and neighborhoods. Forty percent of buyers found the home they ultimately purchased on the Internet. This is quite a change over the past 10 years. In 2001 that number was only 8 percent. Nine out of 10 buyers who used the Internet to search then used a real estate agent to complete their purchase.

Finding the right fit...

For 51 percent of buyers the most difficult step was finding the right home to purchase. Talk to a local Realtor® about the home search process. What common issues do buyers encounter when starting out? How does the Realtor® help them navigate the process?

Small wonder: 2012 Sonic

Say hello to the 2012 Sonic. This new sub-compact replaces the Aveo in Chevy's lineup, and shows up its relative handily.

The Sonic is available in two body styles: four-door sedan and five-door liftback. Buyers can choose between two engines: a 138-horsepower 1.4-liter turbo four and the base engine, a 1.8-liter four that also is rated at 138 horsepower. The 1.8-liter comes with a five-speed manual; a six-speed automatic is an option. The smaller, turbo-charged engine can be matched with either a six-speed manual or six-speed automatic.

Ten air bags are standard on each Sonic. They include seat-mounted, side-impact thorax bags for front and rear outboard passengers. There also are knee bags to protect the driver and front passenger in frontal crashes.

Stability control and antilock brakes are standard. Brakes are power-assisted discs up front and drums in the rear. The antilock brakes feature electronic brake force distribution, which balances braking performance based on such factors as road conditions and the weight of passengers and/or cargo. Sonic earned the top five-star rating for overall vehicle score, the result of five stars in all front and side crash tests.

Our test vehicle was a five-door liftback LT with the 1.8-liter four and six-speed automatic. It was painted a bright tomato-red, Chevy calls inferno orange metallic; the interior was a dark pewter/dark titanium. Other Sonic exterior colors are black, two reds, gray metallic, blue and white. All interiors are the deep pewter.

The standard vehicle price for the 1.8-liter LT was $16,935 and included power, heated outside mirrors, 15-inch painted aluminum wheels, a compact spare and a rear roof-mounted spoiler.

Seat trim was described on the sticker as "deluxe cloth." The front seats were manually adjustable. The rear seat had a split back allowing space for both a passenger and pass-through items from the cargo area.

Air conditioning, power windows, power door locks, an armrest for the driver's seat, tilt steering column and a six-speaker audio system that could accommodate satellite radio were included in the LT price.

The test Sonic LT was upgraded with some $1,000 in options — a connectivity package with Bluetooth and cruise control, a wheel and fog lamp package plus $195 extra for the orange metallic paint job.

The bottom line for our vehicle, including destination, was $18,745.

The Sonic looks small enough to lose in a parking lot or structure. That may be, but once you have found it again, inside the vehicle there is loads of space for adults. That includes the rear seat that is very easy to board and relatively comfortable. No need to feel shy about picking up friends for an outing — there is room in the Sonic for four of most sizes.

The Sonic is quiet inside — there was not a lot of engine or road noise. Chevy explains because the rear axle is “essentially a straight axle,” this design helps reduce noise and vibration.

We were impressed with the Sonic's fuel economy — we got a city/highway average of 37 miles per gallon over a week's time.

Standard connectivity in each Sonic includes OnStar with turn-by-turn directions for six months, available Sirius XM satellite radio, USB and Bluetooth functionality.

Rear door handles on the five-door are located high on the C-pillar area, suggesting the style of a three-door hatch.

Sonic is built at GM's Orion plant and the corporation boasts Sonic is the only subcompact built in the United States.

Once Upon A Time: Grimmly Inspired

By Ann L. Fouty
Features Editor

Once upon a time, the boys and girls who lived in Grosse Pointe were invited to a festival at a large stone house beside a shimmering lake.

There they heard stories about wolves, frogs, snakes, hedgehogs, princes and princesses. While seated on tree stumps, they read books with witches enticing children and colored pictures of enchanted forests. They heard princesses singing.

This can all be experienced at Edsel & Eleanor Ford House's "Once Upon a Time: Grimmly Inspired," running from July 28 through Nov. 4, in chapter two of a three chapter story dedicated to fairy tales. Saturday, Aug. 4, the Grimm fairy tales are brought to life from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. with performances, puppets, Grosse Pointe Theatre's youth group, musical performances and multicultural storytellings with Grimm characters taking center stage. The Grimm brothers were chosen in recog-

Local Soroptimist travel to Japan

In response to a friendship link and visit from Japanese Soroptimists in December, four Grosse Pointe Soroptimists traveled to Japan in May.

The local women participated the observance of the 30th anniversary of the Soroptimist International Hikone, Signa, Japan.

Grosse Pointe members gave an evergreen tree to be planted in Hikone honoring Hikone's anniversary.

The Hikone members gave Grosse Pointers a silk kimono embroidered with white cranes and

Birders in competition

For the fourth consecutive year, the Grosse Pointe Woods team of birders won the annual Grosse Pointe Birding Challenge.

Led by Rosann Kovalcik, the May 14 competition pit teams from the Grosse Pointes in a seven-hour race to find as many bird species as possible between 5 a.m. and noon in their respective communities.

At noon teams gathered to tabulate results, declare a winner and exchange stories. The challenge has become a spring tradition for the Grosse Pointe Audubon members.

The event is held in the spring because of the migrating birds passing through the community.

The Woods team won by spotting 67 species. The Grosse Pointe Farms team finished second with 50 species and the Grosse Pointe Park team finished third with 41 species.

The team from the City of Grosse Pointe saw 34 species.

Kovalcik said she was concerned she could lose this year's competition because she saw considerably fewer species than in previous years. Her birding partner, Jon Stasevish, and other teams had the same problem, as numbers were down for all teams.

Kovalcik started in her yard knowing she could hear the common nighthawk calling from its nesting site on Ferry Elementary School's roof. At the Lochmoor Club she spotted migrating warblers and at Grosse Pointe Woods' Lake Front Park she found a green-winged teal on Lake St. Clair.

Grosse Pointe Farms' team member Mark O'Keefe saw 50 species of birds, including four different species of woodpeckers on the Country Club of Detroit grounds. Mike and Judy Florian and Trina Bresser Matous, the Grosse Pointe Park team, spotted a northern parula warbler in a tree on Westchester.

Bill Rapai of the City of Grosse Pointe team, found 34 species, including a scarlet tanager in his backyard.

A LA ANNIE By Annie Rouleau-Scheriff

Making a simple summer salad

Heirloom tomatoes are everywhere these days and a great option for a simple summer salad. I paired stunning heirlooms with red onion and lemon-herb vinaigrette. A sprinkle of strong cheese (feta, gorgonzola or shaved Parmesan) finishes off this quick-to-the-table side.

Heirloom Tomato Salad with Red Onion and Lemon-Herb Vinaigrette

1 1/2 lbs. assorted heirloom tomatoes (or more)
1 red onion, halved and thinly sliced for vinai-grette

1/3 cup fresh lemon juice
1/4 cup white wine vinegar
1 heaping tablespoon Dijon mustard
1/2 teaspoon coarse salt (or more to taste)
1 teaspoon sugar
1/4 teaspoon black pepper
1 1/2 cups olive oil
2 teaspoons chopped fresh chives
6 basil leaves, chopped
1/4 cup crumbled feta cheese (or other strong cheese)
chopped fresh parsley, for garnish

First make vinaigrette by combining lemon juice, vinegar, mustard, salt, sugar and pepper in a medium bowl. Whisk well. Whisk in olive oil just a bit at a time. Lastly, stir in fresh chives and basil.

Chill for at least one hour before serving. Slice tomatoes about 1/2 inch thick.

Arrange tomato slices with sliced red onion.

Drizzle some vinaigrette over tomatoes.

Sprinkle with feta cheese and chopped fresh parsley.

This lemony vinaigrette is a burst of refreshment on a hot summer evening. If you don't have chives, use green onion.

Any fresh herb combination pairs nicely with fresh lemon.

ASK THE EXPERTS By Karen Adair

Navigating the senior years

My friends and I have shared our concerns about our elderly parents and were comforted knowing we are not alone in these regards. My friends and I are hoping you might be able to offer some additional information regarding our questions.

Q. My 75-year-old father is terrified about having to someday go into a nursing home. What can he do proactively to extend his time at home?

A. This is a complex question and depends a great deal on the health condition of your father. However, in general, ensuring your father stays active physically, mentally and socially will help him maintain his independence as long as possible. Having the regular assistance of a professional caregiver can ensure he is remaining active.

Q. My father is currently living in an assisted living facility and can no longer drive. All my siblings work and the van service is not always convenient. I feel trapped, what should I do?

A. It is natural to feel trapped when mobility becomes limited.

BRING YOUR WHEELS

Car, tractor, bike show

By Ann L. Fouty
Features Editor

Bring your wheels to First English Evangelical Lutheran Church Saturday, Aug. 11.

The free event provides an opportunity for Grosse Pointers to show off their wheels — no matter the size or style. From decorated bicycles and pedal cars to golf carts, automobiles, trailers and tractors, the show is open to any style vehicle from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m.

"We wanted to make this available to all, primarily Grosse Pointe residents," said organizer Tim Olson in an e-mail, "since there isn't a show of this type in the Grosse Pointe area and we know there's a lot of really neat machinery hiding in garages around Grosse Pointe."

The first-time show was prompted by a Facebook conversation between Olson and Jacki Stein.

"We wanted something that would allow participants to bring vehicles other than cars," Olson said. "For example, kids could decorate their bicycles or people could bring a neat trailer, pedal car, tractor. Basically our philosophy has been whatever has wheels that people would be interested in."

Olson will be participating in the show, as well. He said he has two vintage vehicles, a 1957 Thunderbird and a 1961 Ford 250-F. The latter is being restored and won't be on display.

"A 1957 Thunderbird (that my father helped style and develop, which he bought new in 1957)," Olson said.

The event is free for both participants and viewers but donations are being accepted to benefit the Lutheran Foster Care program, chosen because the church has supported the ministry in the past.

Olson said the show's goal is fellowship between the church and the community.

"We have no financial goals. But any funds raised for the charity will be great," he said.

Refreshments will be available for purchase and a 50/50 raffle is planned.

For more information, visit Olliesshop@hotmail.com or call the church office at (313) 884-5040.

The church is located at 800 Vernier, Grosse Pointe Woods.

SENIORS:
Managing the elderly

Thankfully there are services available through companies. They provide caregivers who will drive you wherever you need to go whether it is to church, a friend's house, a social outing or any appointments you may have.

Q. My 86-year-old mother lives in an independent living facility that offers a continuum of care. She needs more help but doesn't want to go into the personal care area of the facility. How can I help her?

A. There are companies that provide supplemental one-on-one assistance in a continuing care facility to enable an individual to remain safely at their current level of care.

In the case of your mom, some extra help from an experienced caregiver with activities like bathing, meals and activities could significantly extend her time in the independent living area of the facility.

Q. I just attended the funeral of my 84-year-old neighbor. His wife was very dependent on him and I am concerned about how she is going to manage without him. What can I do as a concerned friend and neighbor?

A. Many people are not aware of personal and companion care companies who specialize in providing non-medical, in-home assistance to seniors. They can assist with cooking, transportation, light house-keeping, laundry and more. At times like these, most families would appreciate you making them aware of these services as an option as they consider what is best for their loved one.

FAIRY TALES:

to area artisans to submit a piece of art work based on one of nine Grimm stories, some well known, others not so well known, including "The Frog Prince," "Goose Girl," "Hans My Hedgehog," "Little Red Riding Hood," "Hansel and Gretel," "Mother Hulda," "Puss in Boots," "The Spindle, the Shuttle and the Needle," and "White Snake."

The works in pen and ink, watercolor, acrylic, oil, shadow boxes, sculpture and fiber are to be displayed mainly in the South Cottage. More than 60 submissions were received from adults and students both in the Grosse Pointes and other near-by areas for entries to the juried art show.

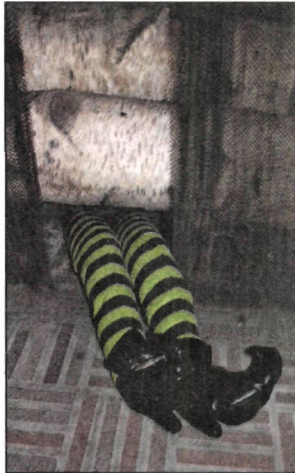

Josephine Shea, Ford House curator, and Amy DeBrunner, director of the Grosse Pointe Artist Association, announce the winners of the juried art at an artists' reception July 28.

In addition to submitted works, reproductions of historic fairy tale illustrations from the Detroit Public Library's collection along with an overview of the Brothers Grimm are displayed.

Art works are displayed in the South Cottage where guests first encounter a room transformed into an area resembling the outside of a castle.

"The room outside the castle will have a wishing well and visitors can write a wish on a gold coin and toss it into the well," said Megan Callewaert, collections manager.

Wishes are later retrieved and hung from the ceiling.

In a corner is an oversized 4-foot coloring book of the "Goose Girl" with illustrations provided by the historical book from the Detroit Public Library. Visitors can color illustrations and write their own fairy tale.

The enchanted forest with an animal theme and decorated with a leafy tree under a blue sky is in the next room. Oversized flowers flank stumps on which to sit and read a fairy tale with books supplied by the Grosse Pointe Public Library.

"We are partnering with the Grosse Pointe Public Library. They bought some books and we are using them first, then give them back. There are nooks to read books, beautiful nooks," said Chris Shires, director of interpretation and programs, of the lagoon and the lake's shores.

Each of the four corners is dedicated to a different Grimm story, "The Frog Prince," "Puss in Boots," "Hans My Hedgehog" and "White Snake."

One of the South Cottage's rooms is a candy-filled bedroom and dedicated to the story "Hansel & Gretel."

Above, a wolf with grandmother's cap is tucked in bed awaiting Little Red Riding Hood. Below, these flowers sprout up in the enchanted forest.

"It will be filled with candy and children can make candy to take home," Callewaert said.

Children will have the opportunity to stuff the wicked witch into her stove and retrieve a treasure from a treasure box as a reward.

Sunlight streams onto a four poster bed with a blue and white bedspread and covering its occupant — the big bad wolf in grandmother's night cap. In this bedroom, children can dress in a red cape or don wolf ears for a photo opportunity. If children get too close to the bed, a voice will make note of how tasty they look, thus discouraging them from getting to close to the wolf.

Josephine Ford's playhouse has been transformed into the house of the seven dwarfs with seven little beds, seven little mailboxes, seven plates on the table, seven dwarf-style hats and seven lanterns.

"There are lots of things in seven," said Callewaert said. "The playhouse lends itself perfect for that."

Advance tickets to the Aug. 4 event cost $12 and $15 on the day of the event. They can be purchased at fordhouse.org.

LIGGETT

Gaggin poised for huge senior year

Liggett's Nate Gaggin heads into the fall as one of the school's all-time leading passers.

By Bob St. John
Sports Editor

University Liggett's Nate Gaggin is ready for the pressure.

The City of Grosse Pointe resident thrives on producing whether it is at quarterback for head coach Lou Ray's Knights' football squad or catching for Dan Cimini's baseball team.

"I enjoy the pressure of playing both positions and I love both sports," the 17-year-old senior-to-be said. "I am looking forward to my senior year because we should have a good football and baseball team. It's going to be a great year."

Gaggin's ability has drawn collegiate interest for both sports. What will he pick to play in the fall of 2013?

He has an entire year to make a decision. For now, he is working out and playing summer baseball for the Redbirds.

"I'm doing everything I can to stay in top shape and get stronger and faster for football," Gaggin said.

"It's been a pleasure to watch Nate develop as a leader on the field over the past few years," said Gaggin's father, Brian Gaggin. "It seems that he has always been in leadership roles going back to Red Barons, but his experience at Liggett over the past few years has provided a unique opportunity for him to not only lead by example on the field, but also learn how to convey the things he knows that need to be said as well as done."

He heads into his final year as a four-year starter. Jake Goldberg started at quarterback the first couple of games Gaggin's freshman year, but then Cimini, who was the head coach his first two years, made the change to put in the frosh behind center.

He has improved each season and last fall led the Knights to a 9-0 regular season record and Michigan Independent Athletic Conference championship.

Last year Gaggin completed 95-of-152 passes (62.5 percent) for 1,403 yards and 19 touchdowns. He threw eight interceptions and had a 110 quarterback rating. He rushed the ball 60 times for 527 yards and seven touchdowns.

In his three-year career, he is 318-for-512 (62.1 percent) for 4,340 yards and 51 touchdowns with 22 interceptions and a 114 quarterback rating. On the ground, Gaggin has 144 attempts for 1,462 yards and 19 touchdowns, giving him 70 scores for his career.

Nate Gaggin also exceeded expectations as the starting catcher in the spring. His numbers should rise next spring.

He earned All-State honors from the Detroit News, All-East by C&G News and All-MIAC First Team (for a second straight season).

"Nate was fantastic last year given the circumstances," Ray said. "I could not have expected

Several players from the three Grosse Pointe high schools earned All-State honors this season. University Liggett, runner-up in Division 4, had four selections on the First Team, senior Alex Daar, pitcher; junior Nate Gaggin, catcher; junior Mark Auk, outfield; and freshman Nick Azar, infield. For Grosse Pointe South, senior Cam Gibson and junior Carmen Benedetti (pictured above, who also made the prestigious Dream Team) made Division 1 First Team All-State. Jack Doyle made All-Region, which earned him an All-State Honorable Mention. Grosse Pointe North also had a representative, sophomore Sal Ciaravino, who made the Division 1 Second Team. On the softball diamond, Grosse Pointe North senior Amy Zaranek made the Division 1 All-State Honorable Mention, and Liggett junior Amber Baldwin made Division 4 All-State Honorable Mention.

Words of Wellness

Summer's my favorite season. It's not for the weather or the family barbecues, but because summer is hockey's off-season. For me, it means I'm busy working with a herd of hard-nosed, high-level hockey players for their coming season.

Through the rigorous early-morning lifts and intense conditioning regimen, these professional athletes endure. They not once complain.

They arrive at each workout as eager as their last; they know at summer's end they have positions to secure and careers on the line – the carrot dangling to motivate them throughout the summer.

My plight: Trying to convince the average Joe or Jane to train with the same fervor as these professionals. Whether it's to win a game, finish a big race, or make a team roster, athletes have a clear-cut reason for training.

Within a few short months, it's not uncommon for professional athletes to improve physique and performance; but that's due to prioritizing exercise.

The good news is that the common exerciser can do the same, but your reasons for exercise must be held as high as the pro athlete.

Whether it's to fit into pre-pregnancy jeans or shed a few pounds for an upcoming wedding; find a goal that's specific. Write it down. Place it somewhere you will see it every day and let this goal ignite a sense of urgency to your workouts.

Train like an athlete. Athletes with a well-defined goal will push beyond comfort zones to improve fitness.

Likewise, you must keep that goal for which you train on the forefront of your mind and let it manifest as a sense of importance to your workouts.

Train with the mentality that temporary pain and discomfort from exercise is sustainable if it'll pay off.

There is meaning to your sweat and exertion; for the professional athlete it is their livelihood, for you, it's a fuller life.

I often fear that some people don't work out (at all or with the proper intensity) because it hasn't provided them any positive feedback.

But that's the problem. It's backwards thinking. Instead, we should look at exercise from the positive: The shape you are in today will always be better than you were in yesterday; the shape you are in tomorrow will be better than today.

Isn't it more productive to not dwell on shortcomings and think optimistically that the best is yet to come?

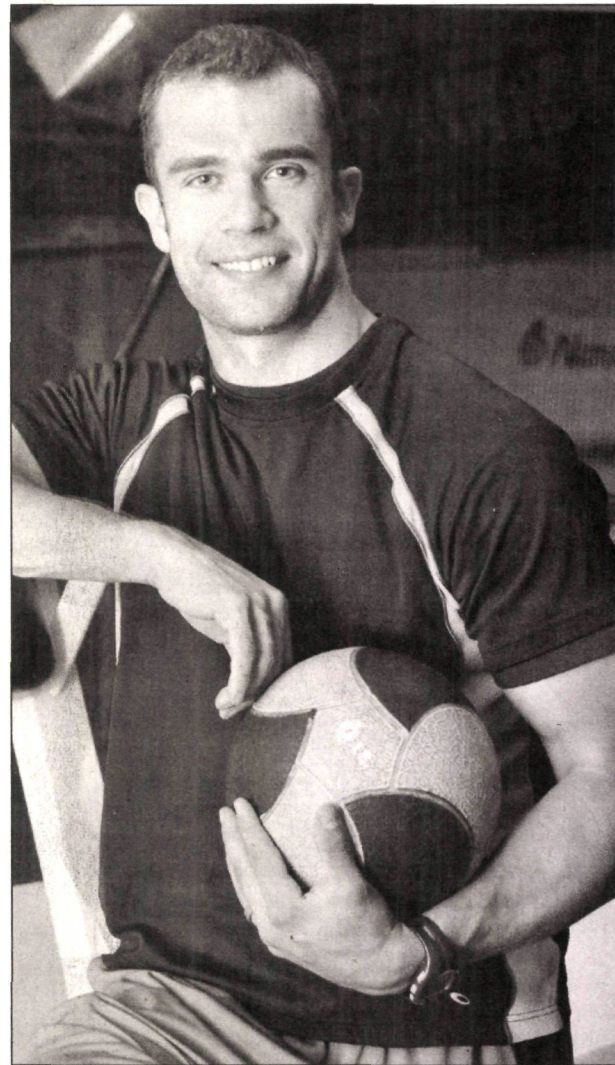

You must find a way to make yourself believe that what you're doing in the here and now matters; believing so will provide you the faith needed to endure - if not enjoy - the process.

Like an athlete, you must have confidence that your workouts will help take you to the next level. The idea is to remain positive and steadfast.

You must view life as something worth training for. You are an athlete and life is your game. And just as athletes may not know if they'll win or lose their next game, they'll prepare themselves to succeed at every chance given.

You will do the same. You must believe that every day you exercise you are improving your life ahead. Live well.

more. This year we designed the offensive attack to utilize my senior QB.

"He will have the offense in his hands and I expect him to protect the ball with great decision making and produce big numbers.

"We are planning on running a no-huddle modified spread with auctibles built in. Nate will be able to capitalize on whatever the defenses are giving us. We are working hard together to ensure he had a great grasp of our offensive scheme."

During Gaggin's tenure at QB, the Knights have made the state playoffs two consecutive seasons, but are 0-2 in the playoffs, losing in 2010 to Warren Michigan Collegiate and in 2011 to Royal Oak Shrine.

"We want to go 9-0 again, win our division and make it deeper in the state playoffs," Gaggin said. "I want to do well, personally, but it's more important to win as a team than it is to put up individual numbers.

"We need all of us to work together to be successful and I believe we can do that this season. Coach Ray believes in me as his quarterback and believes in us as a team."

Gaggin plans to take the winter off for a second straight season. He played hockey for several years as a goaltender, but did not play for the Knights in order to focus on baseball.

He was moving from outfield to catcher, a tough position. He replaced All-State catcher Dominic Jamett.

"I knew I had to work out more to handle catching, so I didn't think I could play hockey and improve as a catcher at the same time," Gaggin said.

"I enjoy hockey, but not as much as baseball and football."

The extra focus made a big difference in Gaggin's performance on the diamond this spring.

The extra work paid off as Gaggin hit .456 (39-for-79) with an .861 slugging percentage. He hit .392 with runners in scoring position and had a .590 on-base percentage.

As the Knights' lead off hitter, Gaggin had 13 doubles, two triples and five home runs, plus stole nine bases and drove in 44 runs. Defensively, he threw out nearly 80 percent of runners attempting to steal.

"He overachieved what I thought he could do offensively and defensively," Cimini said. "He was a main reason we made it back to the state championship game."

"I look forward to what Nate can do his senior year. It's up to each player to work hard and I know Nate works very hard to improve. His stats improved each year and I can't wait to see what numbers he puts up his senior year. I know Nate can play college baseball."

Gaggin earned All-State First Team, All-Conference First Team and All-Region First Team at catcher. He led the team in several statistical categories.

He had the game-winning hit to lead the Knights to the 2011 Division 4 state championship.

"We had a lot of success my first three years at Liggett and winning the state title last year was great," he said. "It was tough to lose in this year's title game, but we lost to a good team."

"I want to improve my stats, but more important is I want the team to win another title. Coach Cimini has a lot of confidence in me and I appreciate it."

Gaggin has received offers from MAC schools, as well as Division 2 and 3 colleges to play baseball.

"I know I'm not the typical college quarterback who is 6-foot, 4-inches, and can stand tall in the pocket," Gaggin said. "I'm 6-foot, 195 pounds, but I love to play football."

"Eventually I will make a decision that best fits what sport I play in college and what profession I want to pursue. Thankfully I have time."

Gaggin continues to work out and run in anticipation of the Knights' opening day of football camp, Monday, Aug. 6.

"I can't wait for practice to start," he said.
