GROSSE POINTE WOODS — The numbers are officially in, and the decreasing crime trend continues in Grosse Pointe Woods.

"I'm happy to say we had a 4 percent drop in crime," City Administrator Skip Fincham said. "In the previous report we had a 14 percent drop. We are moving in the right direction."

The 2014 annual report was presented to the city council Monday, April 13, and detailed the activity of the city's public

Mack island updates coming

By Brad Lindberg
Staff Writer

GROSSE POINTE FARMS — Mother Nature gets help this spring with the greening of Mack Avenue.

A $242,180 landscaping effort is on tap to rejuvenate 14 traffic islands from Fisher to just beyond the intersection of Moross.

"Improvements call for the replacement of overgrown trees, shrubs and new irrigation and planting beds," said Shane Reeside, manager of Grosse Pointe Farms.

He wants everything finished by June.

Proposed changes conform to Wayne County and state transportation department standards, he added.

Members of the beautification commission endorsed schemes developed by landscape architects at Grissim Metz Andriese Assoc., of Northville.

Grissim designers planned the Kerby Field dog park, winner of the 2015 Michigan Recreation and Park Association's Facility Design award.

"We recommended more color and to be certain that

Summer roadwork schedule set

By Brad Lindberg
Staff Writer

GROSSE POINTE FARMS AND CITY — Road crews roll out the barrels this summer to provide motorists a smoother ride.

Resurfacing starts after July 1 on the following roads in Grosse Pointe Farms:

- ◆ Charlevoix between Kerby and Vendome Court,
- ◆ Cloverly between Beaupre and Williams,
- ◆ St. James Way, the alley behind Kercheval on the Hill between McMillan and Muir,
- ◆ Mack Avenue alley between Cloverly and Touraine

and ◆ Earl Court.

"We did an evaluation of our streets and looked at areas where pavement is in poorest condition and needs repaving," said City Manager Shane Reeside.

Three companies bid on the job.

Members of the city council this week rewarded the low-bidder, Nagel Paving, of Novi, with a $298,370 contract.

Engineering fees boost total costs to $349,870.

- Work includes:
- ◆ replacing the top two inches of roadway,
 - ◆ full-depth base repairs,

- ◆ reconstructing curbs and fixing drains and manholes as needed.

Crews also are replacing driveway curb cuts "to make smooth transition from road to existing driveway approach," according to a report by Edward Zmich, project engineer with Hubbell, Roth & Clark, the city's consulting engineers.

Although Nagel underbid two competitors by $45,433,50 and $51,904, respectively, construction is costing 4 percent more than engineers anticipated.

"Construction projects have been coming in higher than originally estimated, primarily due to the substantial increase in construction projects in 2015 and the rising costs in trucking and materials, such as steel, concrete and aggregate," Zmich said.

Water and sewer

Water and sewer work also starts this spring.

Improvements consist of replacing mains and relining sewers in the inland district, generally west of Ridge Road:

- ◆ relining a section of the Kerby Road interceptor,
- ◆ Fisher, from Chalfonte to

Flame earns Bryant honor for fifth year

Flame Furnace Company, a Warren-based heating, cooling, plumbing & electrical business was awarded the Tier 3 Medal of Excellence Award, at the annual Bryant dealer meeting. This is the fifth year the company has received an MOE award. Bryant recognizes dealers like Flame Furnace that do "whatever it takes" to improve their business with the MOE award, a business enrichment program. The decision to award a Bryant dealer with the MOE distinction is based on its sales growth, product mix, and customer satisfaction. Additional criteria such as dealer program utilization and the company's self-assessment are also taken into consideration. "We are incredibly honored to earn an MOE award again," said Gary Marowske, president of Flame Furnace Company and a resident of Grosse Pointe Farms. "I believe we owe much of our success to our employees. Our team is constantly learning, improving, and meeting daily challenges head on," he added. Dog escapes yard, attacks woman

By Brad Lindberg
Staff Writer

GROSSE POINTE FARMS — Pale skin frames the jagged cavity that a male pit bull tore, and likely ate, from the rear left calf of a woman taking an evening's walk near her home on lower Moross.

Patrolmen trying to recover missing flesh for possible surgical reattachment found none, leaving her leg open to a shaft of gray bone for emergency room doctors to seal.

"We understand there's only a 20 percent chance the stitching's going to take without her having to go back to the hospital for skin grafts," said Detective Lt. Richard Rosati of the Grosse Pointe Farms public safety department.

Relatively less severe wounds marred her right ankle.

"This wasn't just a simple dog bite," said Lt. Andrew Rogers. "It was more of a mauling."

The dog was quarantined and put down.

Police are seeking charges against its owner, a resident of 77 Moross, for harboring a vicious dog, plus letting it run loose and unlicensed, Rosati said.

Additional charges may come if the victim's condition worsens.

Police said the black and brown animal was a threat to the community, living on a heavily-walked route to and from the municipal lakeside park, Joy Bells Park and sledding hill on the grounds of the water filtration plant.

Officers weren't alone in wanting it dead.

"That's high priority," Rosati said. "The dog owner said she'd probably put it down. That's the only thing the victim wants — and her medical bills paid."

Although records indicate the dog was vaccinated in September 2013, it was quarantined 10 days for rabies at an animal hospital.

The victim, a 64-year-old teacher, was attacked a few minutes into her walk shortly before 8:30 p.m. Wednesday, April 1.

"(She) stated she exited her home and started southbound Moross toward Grosse Pointe Boulevard on the sidewalk," according to an initial incident report by Officer Michael Hodor.

"As she was in front of listed location, she saw the dog run down the driveway and attack her."

"The lady was one hell of a trooper," Rosati said. "She kicked at it and the dog stopped attacking." She remained standing.

"If she would have fallen, we believe she could have died from the dog attacking her upper body or neck," Rosati said.

Officers are amazed she overcame gaping wounds to maintain equilibrium and seek help from a neighbor across the road.

"(I) found the victim in front of (her house)," Hodor said. "The dog was loose in the driveway at 77 Moross, unsecured. (It) presented an aggressive nature when (I) and other officers approached the scene."

The neighbor took the victim to Beaumont Hospital, Grosse Pointe.

The dog's owner wasn't home. She arrived when contacted by a police dispatcher.

"(I), with assistance of the dog owner, secured and transported the dog to (the) animal clinic without incident," Hodor said.

He reconstructed the incident.

"The dog was in a fenced yard, but made his way out through a side entry garage door and then under the overhead door," Hodor reported.

Rogers and other officers searched the area for pieces of flesh.

"We couldn't find anything," he said.

"With the amount of flesh I saw missing, some had to be consumed," Rosati said.

Pit bulls are banned in Grosse Pointe Park and Woods.

A Farms ordinance addresses vicious dogs, but doesn't ban specific breeds.

"If you start naming breeds, what qualifies?" said Shane Reeside, city manager. "German shepherds are the No. 1 dog for biting. We take action when we know there's an issue."

An earlier version of this story was posted Wednesday, April 8, at grossepointenews.com.

St. Clare auction Saturday

On Saturday April 18th Fox 2 anchor Charlie Langton and investigative reporter M.L. Elrick will join St. Clare of Montefalco School as auctioneers for the school's largest annual fundraiser.

The auction starts at 6 p.m. with a silent auction. The event includes a strolling supper catered by leading local restaurants. Beer, wine and soft drinks are included.

This year's auction theme is "There's No Place Like St. Clare." For $25, benefactors may purchase a "yellow brick" with their name, business name, or dedication to a loved one.

The cost of the event is $45 in advance or $60 at the door.

The auction will be held in the church social hall, which is located on Mack Avenue at the corner of Whittier in Grosse Pointe Park.

The live auction starts at 8:45 p.m. and features exotic trips, prime sports tickets and other one-of-a-kind items.

St. Clare is a National Blue Ribbon winning school serving the Grosse Pointes and Metro Detroit. It's motto is "Creating Leaders in Life Since 1927." Proceeds from the auction support the school and scholarships.

Fox 2 Detroit TV personalities M.L. Elrick and Charlie Langton will serve as auctioneers at the St. Clare of Montefalco School auction Saturday, April 18.

Langton and Elrick have teamed for the event before.

"Just experiencing the live auction is worth the price of admission," Langton said. "Not only is the entire event for a good cause, but seeing M.L. unplugged will inspire you for years to come."

Elrick returned the compliment to his co-worker and co-auctioneer.

"If I think Charlie Langton is pure energy on your TV, you should see him in person," Elrick said. "It is not an act; this man truly is a force of nature. And St. Clare has harnessed that energy to help support one of the best schools in metro Detroit."

Ordinance is man's best friend

By Brad Lindberg
Staff Writer

GROSSE POINTE FARMS — The municipal dog ordinance sat tamely among city codes until, as Councilman Louis Theros put it, "We put some teeth in it."

"The vicious dog ordinance is stringent," said Grosse Pointe Farms Detective Lt. Richard Rosati.

The largest section of the ordinance, No. 198, concerns vicious dogs.

A more than 200-word definition of a vicious dog precedes Section 13, prescribing regulations and penalties.

A boiled-down definition is a dog that "approaches upon any public place any person (or domestic animal) in apparent attitude of attack, or any dog with a

New album continues dream for Park man

Take some funky, blues-inspired rock with killer guitar solos. Add in heartfelt, slow burning ballads. Mix in unexpectedly fresh takes on a couple of classics. This is Chris Emmerson, the Grosse Pointe Park musician's new self-titled album that showcases his rock-influenced, singer/songwriter sound. The album launches at a release party April 24, at the Magic Bag in Ferndale.

For this follow up to 2014's It's So Easy from Far Away, Emmerson turned to producer and engineer Tony Hamera at Tempermill Studios in Ferndale.

The result - a cohesive, polished compilation that highlights Emmerson's strength, sensitivity and range - shines from production to arrangement.

While this collection has a funkier, soulful sound that was influenced by Emmerson's love of Motown and the blues, the tracks are steeped in rock roots with a hint of jazz inspiration and plenty of riffs to showcase Emmerson's guitar prowess. With comparisons to Jeff Buckley, John Mayer and Elliott Smith, the emotion of Emmerson's intimate vocals is perfectly blended with the rich, sultry harmonies of background singers to create a sensual vocal track with a rich melodic sound.

In an example of the trend among musicians seeking new sources to help support album production, Emmerson offered one fan the opportunity to select a song to include on the album through a Kickstarter campaign. Emmerson was not only thrilled to have a supporter invest in his music at that level, but also with the song that was chosen, Bob Dylan's Shooting Star. "I wasn't familiar with that Dylan song, but love his work and think that the simple acoustic

Woods adds K-9 team to department

By John McTaggart
Staff Writer

GROSSE POINTE WOODS — The Public Safety Department officially welcomed its newest member to the force Monday evening when the city council unanimously voted to approve the "hiring" of K-9 Xander.

"We are just so pleased to have this opportunity," Mayor Robert Novitke said. "This is going to be a huge asset to the city and the entire Grosse Pointe community."

Xander, and has partner, officer Dan Schewe, come to the force with a list of impressive credentials.

"Office Schewe is a seasoned veteran," City Administrator Skip Fincham said. "They are a great team. They're ranked No. 2 in the entire state of Michigan. We feel very proud to have them here."

Fincham has been pushing for the addition of K-9 Xander since the hiring of officer Schewe in August 2014, and thanks to the cooperation of K-9 Safety Partners of Grosse Pointes, his efforts have paid off.

The K-9 Safety Partners of the Grosse Pointes donated $25,000 to the department to ensure Xander gets the appropriate veterinary care as well as other needs the department might have in order to add Xander to the force.

"I really appreciate, and have a lot of gratitude for the K-9 Safety Partner of the Grosse Pointes," Novitke said. "The bond between

The Woods city council welcomes K-9 Xander and officer Dan Schewe.

Xander and Schewe is deep and well-founded.

In fact, while the pair were working for the Inkster police, Xander actually saved Schewe's life during a gun battle.

"I've got his back and he has got mine," Schewe said of his four-legged partner. "I'm so happy and proud to have him with me again."

The department gains a "highly skilled and extensively trained K-9," Schewe said.

"There are literally thousands of hours of training for him and I," Schewe said, "and Xander has such a love for the work. It really makes him happy to be working."

Xander is 6 years old, Schewe said, meaning he has several more years of work left in him.

"It depends a lot on how he holds up physically," Schewe said. "But he's in very good shape right now and he's ready to get started. We're very happy to be able to serve the residents of Grosse Pointe Woods and the entire community. It's good to get back to work with him."

known propensity, tendency or disposition to attack without provocation."

Justifiable provocation includes willful trespass, being teased or protecting its owner from unjustified attack.

Public safety officers or the animal control officer investigate complaints. A municipal court hearing may result.

"If the court rules the dog to be vicious, it may order the dog confined to the owner's premises or euthanized," according to the ordinance.

If a vicious dog is allowed to live, its owner must comply with safety provisions.

Requirements include obtaining a vicious dog license, insurance, posting a warning and ensuring secure confinement.

"You have to build a covered pen so the dog can't climb out," Rosati said. "You need a sign on your front door saying you have a vicious dog."

Vicious dog owners must have at least $100,000 worth of liability coverage specifically for the animal.

"The insurance is exorbitantly expensive, like a 100 percent increase in homeowner's insurance," Rosati said.

No deals for handicap parking cheats

By Brad Lindberg
Staff Writer

CITY OF GROSSE POINTE — Usurpers of handicap parking spaces are causing a traffic jam in municipal court.

“The volume is stunning,” said Russell Ethridge, judge in the City of Grosse Pointe. “Officers said they could write 20 violations per day.”

“There are 32 arraignments scheduled for our next court date (Thursday, April 16),” said Officer Joe Adams.

Neither police nor the judge are giving breaks. “It struck a nerve with officers,” said Sgt. Michael Seidel.

Parking a vehicle in a handicap spot without displaying a valid state-issued handicap placard is a civil infraction.

Many offenders prosecuted in the City are able-bodied motorists dishonestly using handicap parking placards issued to someone else.

Misuse of a placard is a misdemeanor punishable by up to 30 days in jail and a $500 fine.

“We’ve been meting out fines and costs in the $300 to $500 range,” Ethridge said.

“A placard may be used by a person other than the disabled person for the sole purpose of transporting the disabled person,” according to section 257.675 of the Michigan motor vehicle code.

Officers discover offenders on-the-spot through in-car computer comparisons of vehicle, placard and driver registrations.

In the lot behind CVS Pharmacy in the Village, Seidel recently checked a placard issued to a woman in a car that a seemingly healthy man parked in a spot reserved for disabled motorists.

“I asked the guy who the woman is,” Seidel said. “He said she was his mother-in-law.”

“Is she with you?” Seidel asked.

“She’s in a store,” the man answered.

“How’s that possible?” Seidel said. “She’s deceased.”

The man gave the look of being caught in a cheap lie.

said. “A 40-year-old person pulls up in a handicap spot, hangs a handicap sign belonging to an 85-year-old and goes in a store.”

Ethridge gets angry at people putting a sense of entitlement above sensitivity to the disabled.

“It’s one of the most egregious kind of statements that, ‘It’s all about me,’” he said.

Concert season closes City begins hydrant flushing April 16

The Grosse Pointe Symphony Orchestra will present its fourth and final subscription concert of the season at 7 p.m. Sunday, April 26, at the Grosse Pointe War Memorial.

There will be a pre-concert talk by Dr. Eldonna May of WSU at 6 p.m. The program features the Michigan debut of the violinist Andrew Sords who will play the Beethoven Violin Concerto, one of the most famous violin concertos in the repertoire. The concert opens with the rousing Fingal’s Cave Overture by Mendelssohn. In effect the piece is tone poem in which Mendelssohn tries to describe in music the ebb and flow of water in the sea cave on the uninhabited island of Staffa, in the Inner Hebrides of Scotland, part of a National Nature Reserve owned by the National Trust for Scotland. It became known as Fingal’s Cave after the eponymous hero of an epic poem by 18th-century Scottish poet-historian James Macpherson.

The concert closes with the Brahms First Symphony.

The Grosse Pointe Symphony Orchestra is supported by grants from the St. John Hospital and Medical Center and the Michigan Council for the Arts and Cultural Affairs.

Tickets are adults $15 seniors $12, college students $5 and elementary and high school students are admitted free. Tickets are available at the door or in advance at the Grosse Pointe Art Center, 17118 Kercheval, City of Grosse Pointe.

It’s common for tap water to be cloudy or discolored after mains are flushed.

Although this water is safe to drink, city officials advise customers to open their basement cold water faucets until the water runs clear.

To avoid potential staining of laundry, customers shouldn’t use their washing machine for 24 hours after flushing is completed, according to city representatives.

Residents and businesses are scheduled to receive a hand-delivered notice prior to flushing on their street.

A schedule and color-coded map is available at city hall or on the municipal website, grossepointe-city.org.

For more information, call city offices at (313) 885-5800.

Parking tickets up, moving violations down

By John McTaggart
Staff Writer

GROSSE POINTE WOODS — It's hard to find someone who hasn't, at one time or another, come out to their vehicle and found a parking meter violation ticket affixed to their door frame or pinched between the wiper and windshield.

According to the Grosse Pointe Woods' annual report on public safety, the city issued nearly 6,800 meter violations in 2014, up from 5,333 the previous year and the highest total for such violations in the previous five years.

Coupled with parking meter violations is moving violation tickets, which actually saw a dip in 2014 to 1,306, down from 1,883 in 2013 and 3,182 the year before.

Computers, updated radar, preliminary breath instruments and the Cogent Blue Check device in patrol cars, has helped public safety officers enforce traffic violations efficiently and effectively, according to the report.

The report also made note of the totals for traffic and pedestrian accidents within the city in 2014, on both private and public property.

In 2014, there were a reported three accidents involving pedestrians, 65 reported incidents on private property and 213 on public roadways.

The total number of incidents dipped from 361 accidents in 2013 to 281 last year.

The report also noted there were no fatalities as a result of these incidents in 2014.

STATS:

safety department.

The report is broken into two categories — indexed and non-indexed crime.

Indexed crimes are considered to be the more serious of all the crimes reported and included aggravated assault, arson, burglary, criminal homicide, criminal sexual conduct, larceny-theft and robbery.

Non-indexed crimes are defined as all other crimes that fall outside indexed crimes, such as loitering, drug abuse, driving under the influence of alcohol, fraud, vandalism and other offenses.

Indexed crime totals fell from 208 crimes in 2013 to 196 in 2014, and non-indexed crimes dropped from 385 the previous year to 372 incidents last year.

The combined numbers fell slightly from 593 reported crimes in 2013 to 568 in 2014.

Major crimes, or indexed crimes, were broken down further in the report, with decreases in every subcategory except auto thefts and criminal sexual conduct, which increased slightly over the past year.

Aggravated assaults fell from seven reported cases in 2013 to six.

Arson remained at zero cases.

Criminal homicide also stayed at zero cases in 2014.

Robbery reported incidents fell from four to three incidents reported.

Auto thefts rose from 19 cases in 2013 to 22.

Burglaries showed a marked decrease from 35 to 24, while larceny theft also fell in the previous year from 140 reported incidents to 137.

"I've reviewed everything here. It's very reflective of the high standards we have set here," Mayor Robert Novitke said. "Our residents should be satisfied with the high emphasis we place on public safety. We're ever-so grateful for the professionals in the public safety department."

Chief: Investigation continues

The investigation into the stabbing of a Grosse Pointe Woods physician last month continues according to director of public safety Bruce Smith.

The event has neighborhood residents concerned given the nature of the crime, which allegedly included the stabbing of the 43-year-old physician with syringes while being held down in his bed by four assailants.

Smith is quick to assure those living in the area there is no need for concern.

"We don't believe there is any reason for residents to be concerned for their safety in relation to this incident," Smith said.

MACK:

plants were salt-tolerant," said Councilman and Commission Chairman Lev Wood.

Work is contracted to Landscape Services.

Its low bid beat three competitors wanting between $9,509 and $171,132 more for the job.

"(Landscape's) bid is comprehensive and consistent with the bid documents as well as with industry standards for unit pricing, and find all to be reasonable and complete per the bid documents," according to a review by Susan Grissim, vice president of the design firm.

New landscaping follows last year's reconstruction of Mack, a county-owned road.

"We had to remove some planting material at intersections (during construction)," Reeside said. "This is a good opportunity to look at the islands in their entirety."

They haven't been updated in about 20 years.

"They've become overgrown and woody," Reeside said. "There's been die-off. The tree canopy has increased. This will be another investment in the Mack Avenue business district and improve the overall esthetics of the roadway."

SUMMER:

Charlevoix;

◆ Moran, from Chalfonte to Mack;
◆ Madison, from Chalfonte to Mack;
◆ Touraine, from Charlevoix to Parcels;
◆ Beaupre, from Lothrop to Cloverly and

Work is tentatively scheduled to start on Provencal.

Construction is funded by up to $3,575,000 in bonds, which, due to the city's new AAA+ bond rating, are expected to cost at least $50,000 less than otherwise.

Many of the mains are old, break frequently and have low water flow due to corrosion build-up.

City of GP roads

In neighboring City of Grosse Pointe, a $433,348 road resurfacing campaign starts this spring on:

◆ Charles Street from Rivard to Roosevelt,

GROSSE POINTE NEWS MISSION STATEMENT

To provide the Grosse Pointes the most relevant, accurate and timely information in our print and online publications.

OUR VIEW

Spring brings special events in the Pointes

Sure signs of spring include dozens of events that fire up in the Pointes. The Grosse Pointe News will be happy to keep you informed of everything going on in the community.

We ask residents, clubs and area groups share information as soon as possible so we can preview the event.

Information is welcome at jwarner@grossepointe-news.com.

Relay for Life

We will feature information in the coming weeks for the Relay For Life of Grosse Pointe event Saturday, May 16.

This year's event will be one day, from noon to midnight. It will again be held at Grosse Pointe Woods' Lake Front Park.

To sign up, donate and for more information, visit the Facebook page or contact Amy Howard at (248) 663-3512.

Prayer breakfast

The mayors of the five Grosse Pointes and Harper Woods will host the 29th Annual Mayors' Prayer Breakfast 7:30 a.m. Thursday, May 7, in the main ballroom of the Grosse Pointe Yacht Club.

Craig DeRoche, President of Justice Fellowship in Lansdowne, Va, is guest speaker.

Support from Beaumont Hospital, Grosse Pointe and proceeds from breakfast ticket sales provide $400 scholarships for one student from each of the area high schools, Grosse Pointe North, Grosse Pointe South, Chandler Park Academy, University Liggett and Harper Woods.

Tickets are $20 and are available at any of the Grosse Pointe or Harper Woods municipal offices. For ticket information, contact Barbara Tate-Renaud at (313) 885-6750 or mayorsprayerbreakfast1@gmail.com.

Next week

We'll begin to explore Proposal 1, the road issue on the May 5 ballot. We welcome input for the editorial page regarding the issue.

We will also look at where the Pointes stand in a listing of desirable Michigan cities for young families. Based on schools and other community features, there are some surprises.

We fared well.

If you'd like to share your thoughts about Proposal 1 or why it's great to live in the Pointes, e-mail jwarner@grossepointenews.com. Include your name and we'll use your comments.

To the Editor:

I recently read your letter from a Fed Up student about the recent drug related deaths in our community. I have been working daily with alcoholics and addicts in Grosse Pointe for over 26-years. We have wonderful 12 step support groups in this area with many successful recov-eries. Six years ago my wife and I started Living Sober House Detroit. We have effected many young men in this and neighboring communities. Helping others with addictions has become a full-time vocation for me. We have had support for our work from many generous local people.

GUEST OPINION By Jarrett Skorup

What the new legislature should stand for — and what it should not

For the first decade of the 21st century, the Michigan Legislature's policy direction was to increase the power of government at the expense of residents. The results were predictable to those who understand incentives and how economies work.

From 2001 to 2010, compensation costs for the average state employee increased tremendously, while incomes plummeted for the taxpayers who pay the bill. When state revenues stagnated, the Legislature took more from individuals and small businesses through higher income and business taxes, and increased excise taxes on goods such as tobacco.

Rather than enact reforms that encourage investment and entrepreneurship, legislators turned to central planning. The state's corporate welfare arm, the Michigan Economic Development Corporation, was expanded. This well-paid bureaucracy transferred ever-larger sums from taxpayers to politically connected firms through tax breaks and subsidies. For example, film production subsidies exploded, redistributing about $500 million from state taxpayers to Hollywood producers since 2008.

With many failed promises and little transparency, the MEDC granted long-term deals to favored firms, gifts that keep on taking from Michigan taxpayers. In 2014 alone, the cost was around $860 million, and the budget bleeding will continue for years to come. By nearly all measures, these programs have been a colossal failure.

Regulations and mandates also exploded. The number of criminal statutes continued to grow, while licensure and permit mandates were imposed on more occupations and activities. The state's alcohol regulatory regime maintains a distribution monopoly and price controls, leading to higher prices for consumers. In 2008, Michigan handed back a virtual monopoly to big power companies while slapping a costly 10 percent "renewable energy" mandate on electricity generators — a double-whammy of inefficiency and higher costs for consumers. Michigan is now one of the most regulated states when it comes to employment and has the highest electricity costs in the Midwest.

In 2010, Republicans were swept into office promising reform, taking the state House and governorship and expanding their majority in the state Senate. Over the next two years, the Legislature passed collective bargaining reforms for government employees, enacted education reforms that loosened teacher tenure laws and expanded school choice, cut business taxes, and scaled back some of the corporate welfare. Lansing mostly held the line on spending, eliminated project labor agreements that increase the cost of government construction, ended forced unionization schemes, required public employees to pay more for their health care and shored up public pension systems.

The icing on this reform cake came at the end of the term, when Michigan became the 24th right-to-work state.

Voters returned the GOP to power in 2012, despite President Obama winning Michigan by 9.5 percentage points. In the same election, voters defeated a series of ballot proposals that would have expanded government and union power.

But over the next two years, as the economy turned around, the Legislature strayed from its initial limited-government approach. It expanded a poorly performing welfare program by passing the Obamacare Medicaid expansion. Although the Legislature finally engaged Detroit's fiscal problems rather than "kick the can down the road," taxpayers were forced to bail out Detroit, while city governance reforms were watered down.

Corporate welfare schemes were renewed and expanded at a cost of about $300 million per year, and $50 million in annual film subsidies continued flowing down the drain.

Overall, state spending increased by $2.7 billion from 2010 to 2014. And the Legislature decided to place a proposal on the May 5 ballot that would raise $2 billion in new tax revenue while giving Michigan the second-highest sales tax in the nation.

The new Legislature has a choice in the path it wants to take. It should embrace and promote free enterprise and fiscal responsibility over the next two years.

Pass pension reform to stop piling on unfunded liabilities to future taxpayers. Make good on the previously violated promise for income tax relief. Save money by eliminating arbitrary prevailing wage laws. Stop the failed corporate welfare machine. Eliminate licensing and regulatory barriers that impede entrepreneurs. Enforce the right-to-work law that is being ignored by school districts and unions across the state. Pass budgets that put taxpayers and citizens above the system.

Early indications show a House and Senate willing to tackle some of the tougher reforms. The House GOP "action plan," which lays out legislative priorities for the body, is excellent and would provide real reform.

But now the governing begins, and voters should be watching the Legislature to see which philosophy it decides to embrace.

HEENAN TALES

In the late 1980s, on summer evenings when the Country Club of Detroit golf course had emptied out, I would head out on the long course to practice at my own leisurely pace. On one outing, I crossed paths with another golfer who had the same idea.

After introducing himself ("Palmer Heenan") and learning that I played high school golf, he promised me $100 if he couldn't teach me to hit a great shot out of the sand trap.

After giving me instructions on where to place my feet, where to strike the wedge, etc., Palmer set me up in a trap on the right side of the first green, with the pin placed about 30 yards towards the back left.

Unfortunately for me, (who was very interested, as a teenager in $100), I managed to follow his instructions exactly and I hit the shot within 15 feet of the pin.

It was a great lesson and an experience I have not forgotten, especially after I returned home and my father informed me that it was the mayor of Grosse Pointe Park and the club champion who had just given me a golf lesson.

Car B&Es

While investigating a car break-in reported at about 9 a.m. Thursday, April 9, on Neff near Mack, a patrolman found evidence of an additional larceny from a dark green 1998 Chevrolet Blazer parked overnight in an apartment carport in the 900 block of Neff.

"The door was ajar and the contents strewn about," reported the officer.

The victim, a 25-year-old City of Grosse Pointe man, said stolen items consisted of a:

- ◆ Hitachi coil roof-nail-ergun,
- ◆ Husky tool belt with hatchet and assorted roofing equipment and a
- ◆ JVC in-dash radio and CD player.

The officer found the JVC unit in grass next to the north driveway.

"It was returned to the owner," said the officer.

74 suspensions

Assuming a 45-year-old Detroit man started driving legally at age 16, he's accumulated an average 2.5 suspensions each year since then for a total of 74 as of 12:45 p.m. Thursday, April 9.

A patrolman spotted him on westbound Mack operating a 1999 Ford F-150 outfitted with a license plate having no record.

The officer stopped him on northbound Cadieux at Wallingford in Detroit and took him into custody.

Two for one

Two Detroit men were arrested during a traffic stop on southbound Lakeshore at Provencal shortly before 1 a.m. Sunday, April 12.

A patrolman pulled over the 30-year-old driver of a 2005 Dodge station wagon for speeding 14 mph over the 35 mph limit.

Public Safety Reports

Police arrested him for having .15 grams of marijuana in the vehicle, plus violating seven suspensions of his operator's license.

Officers arrested a 31-year-old passenger on a felony warrant from Marion, Ohio, for drug trafficking.

Ohio authorities picked him up from jail the next day.

Aliens

Border Patrol agents scooped up two illegal aliens that Farms police caught during a traffic stop at Mack and Moross shortly before 7 p.m. Saturday, April 11.

A patrolman stopped them for being in a 2004 Toyota Camry displaying an expired registration sticker.

The driver, a 50-year-old woman, and 28-year-old female passenger from Windsor, Ontario, failed to convince officers they were in the United States legally.

The Camry owner, of Eastpointe, wasn't present, but also is suspected of being in the country illegally.

Walking after midnight

It's one thing for a man to walk westbound on the Grosse Pointe Boulevard sidewalk at 12:53 a.m. Friday, April 10.

It's another when he makes eye contact with a patrolman, does a quick about-face and increases pace.

"Being advised at roll call that two larcenies from autos occurred the previous night, (I) found (the man's) behavior to be suspicious," said the officer.

Police identified the pedestrian as a 20-year-old Grosse Pointe Park resident, although he lacked identification.

He also threw something from a jacket pocket onto the ground near a fence, according to police.

"The object was a glass, multi-colored pipe with suspected marijuana residue," said an officer.

A detective said nothing seemed stolen from cars entered.

Drunken driving

The roadside investigation of a 23-year-old Center Line man for speeding 57 mph on westbound Mack near East Warren resulted in his arrest for drunken driving.

Police said he had a .16 percent blood alcohol level.

Officers impounded his 2007 Dodge Durango, reportedly outfitted with a license plate for a Chevrolet.

Twice limit

At 9:30 p.m. Wednesday, April 8, a Harper Woods man, 39, reportedly sat in the driver's seat of a white 2007 Ford Freestar, parked at the curb of eastbound Mack near Touraine with emergency flashers activated, slurring through a conversation with police.

He admitted drinking "at least six beers" and registered a .18 percent blood alcohol level prior to being arrested for drunken driving.

The level is more than twice the state maximum allowed to operate a motor vehicle.

That's my mom

A 40-year-old Roseville woman was arrested on drug charges in the presence of her daughter, 19, during a traffic stop at 8:05 p.m. Wednesday, April 8, on Calvin near westbound Mack.

A patrolman questioned the woman about an odor of marijuana coming from her car.

"She looked away and covered her face," he said. "After hesitating, and (my) asking again, she admitted there was marijuana in the trunk, but it was not hers."

A search revealed two bags of the drug weighing a combined 38 grams, plus a pipe, according to police.

The woman reportedly denied having anything to do with the drugs, saying she borrowed the car from a friend.

Officers released the car to the daughter, of St. Clair Shores.

Same guy again

A 73-year-old Grosse Pointe Farms man, known by his hometown police for drug and related incidents at his residence, was arrested in Grosse Pointe Shores last week for violating six suspensions of his driver's license.

"(He) said he did have a few active tickets that he is taking care of," reported the arresting officer.

The patrolman pulled him over at 5:51 p.m. Monday, April 6, on westbound Vernier near Morningside for driving a white van between lanes on northbound Lakeshore without signaling.

A check of the van's license plate listed the registered owner as suspended.

The officer also noted the man being wanted on an unspecified charge in 36th District Court.

Yer out

Although the Detroit Tigers began the baseball season with a winning streak, one of the team's fans lost a big one on opening day.

At 9:31 p.m. Monday, April 6, a patrolman questioned a 26-year-old St. Clair Shores man for driving a 2013 Chevrolet Camaro through a red light on northbound Lakeshore at the entrance to Osius Park.

"During conversation with the driver, (I) detected a strong odor associated with alcohol emitting from the driver," reported the officer. "(He) stated that earlier in the day, he was tailgating at Tiger Stadium and did consume alcohol."

Police arrested him for having a .109 percent blood alcohol level.

Parked in the driveway

A woman in the 2000 block of Fleetwood contacted police Monday, April 13, after a vehicle pulled in to her driveway about 5:15 a.m. and shut off the lights, sitting there for several minutes. The vehicle left the driveway only to return at about 5:21 a.m. shutting off the lights again and sitting in the driveway once more. Once the vehicle left again, it did not return.

Dine and Dash

A group of four young males entered a business in the 20000 block of Mack Tuesday, April 7, and sat down for a meal. After serving the group, three paid for their meals, while the fourth did not, according to a police report. The manager of the eatery confronted the patrons outside the building and each said they had paid for their meals. Shortly after, the suspect left in a black 2012 Ford Mustang.

B&E

A GMC Acadia parked in the alley behind a business in the 20000 block of Mack was broken into Monday, April 6, in the early morning hours. Stolen from the vehicle was a GPS/DVD touchscreen from the dashboard. No other items were taken.

GROSSE POINTE WOODS — It's a service that can mean the difference between life and death for children in the city.

The public safety department's car seat inspection program is free of charge and available to residents who make an appointment with the department to have their child seat inspected by experts.

According to the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration, there were 594 fatalities of children 5 years old and older in Michigan in 2013, and of those, nearly 200 were unrestrained with many of the remaining restrained deaths coming as a result of improperly installed or implemented restraint systems.

The program offered by public safety can help ensure the proper seat is installed correctly.

Inspections are conducted by one of the department's two nationally certified child passenger safety inspectors.

old venue and are moving to a larger space at the beautiful MGM Grand Detroit Hotel," said Matthew Pepper, president and CEO of the Michigan Humane Society. "This is not only great news for those who wish to attend, but fantastic news for the tens of thousands of animals that are cared for by MHS every year."

The Bow Wow Brunch will start at 11:30 a.m. Returning as the master of ceremonies will be WDIV Local 4 anchor, Guy Gordon.

Menu options will include chicken and vegan dishes as well as a special dessert created just for the event.

The event also will feature prominent community members who have volunteered to be "in the doghouse" and raise money to get bailed out in order to help animals in our community. Each doghouse volunteer will have a goal of raising $5,000 to get out of the doghouse and will represent a critical MHS program such as adoption, cruelty investigation or low-cost spay/neuter. The participant who raises the most funds will be named the "Top Dog" at the Brunch.

In addition to presenting sponsor MadDog Technology, the 2015 Bow Wow Brunch is made possible by platinum sponsor Strategic Staffing Solutions, and gold sponsors, the Richard and Jane Manoogian Foundation, and Nancy and Jim Grosfeld.

Pay attention: Mom is talking

By Ann Fouty

Listen to your mother. Listen to Grosse Pointe Woods mother Chitra Raman tell a short story about how she handles being the mother of an autistic daughter.

Raman is one of 11 women who read their stories on the topic of mothers during metro Detroit's second annual "Listen to Your Mother" program at 3 p.m. Sunday, April 26, at Saint Andrew's Hall, 431 E. Congress, Detroit.

This year, said co-producer Angela Youngblood of Rochester, a man has been included in the program.

"We are shaking things up," she laughed. "There is a man in the cast."

"The topics are about motherhood — any element from trying to become a mother or missing a mother," she said.

"There is one about a step-mother and not having a good relationship with a mother."

Raman joins a dozen other local writers reading a story about motherhood before a live audience. Her eight-minute short story discusses how she uses humor as a coping mechanism as she and her husband, Shankar, raise their autistic daughter, Divya, who is 24 and a Grosse Pointe South High School graduate. The stories are to be uploaded to YouTube in June.

"Her strongest challenge is communication," Raman said of her daughter. "Her main thing is music."

She went on to say Divya represented South in state solo and ensemble competitions, earning an I rating.

Divya and Chitra Raman of Grosse Pointe Woods. Chitra Raman will be part of the Listen to Your Mother program April 26. She will tell how humor has helped her cope with certain aspects of motherhood.

The young woman, who works at Full Circle, also plays the piano and has won top competition ratings for her performances.

It's obvious Raman is proud of the her daughter's achievements, but it has been a difficult road.

The biggest obstacle for the family was getting people to change their views of autism. Raman and her husband ran into people who see those with autism as incompetent, a subspecies and judge them.

"It takes a lot of trouble and hard work to foster their potential," Raman said of the autistic.

Using her writing and journalism background,

Raman wrote her piece for LTYM, having been introduced to it by a Facebook friend earlier this year.

"I'm a writer, not a entrants. She said she believed her story didn't make the cut.

There were three sets of auditions with more than speaker," she laughed. "I get inarticulate when I speak. But I said I'd give it a shot."

She viewed earlier LTYM shows, a program begun in Madison, Wis. in 2010 and spreading to more than 39 cities across the United States.

"I think I can do this," Raman said after watching other mothers reading from scripts.

She auditioned.

"The following Wednesday I was checking my e-mail every half an hour," she said.

Raman eventually gave up getting a favorable response and chalked it up to the number of 60 entrants, Youngblood said.

On a wintery February afternoon, Raman's cell phone rang while she was in a parking lot during her daughter's voice lessons telling Raman she had, indeed, made the program.

"I'm honored to be in this group of extraordinary storytellers," she said.

As an immigrant from India, Raman said, "keeping in mind the Indian audience, I will reach a lot of people in India who are without a support system and experience."

The first Listen to Your Mother program in 2014 was nearly a sell-out, Youngblood said. "There are lots of mothers and daughters, adult daughters bringing their moms. Lots of men come to see another side of women. This is intergenerational."

"The goal is to connect people through stories and honor all aspects of mothers. It gives people an opportunity to relate, everyone finds one story."

Tickets to Listen to Your Mother cost $15 and can be purchased at livena-tion.com or at St. Andrew's box office. Ten percent of the proceeds go to Cass Community Social Services.

Youngblood explained every city chooses a charity to which to contribute. In 2014, LTYM chose Alternative for Girls. This year's chosen nonprofit was selected, she said, because Cass Social Services has Mom's Place, a site for homeless mothers.

Beal's forthcoming retirement offers an opportunity to invite his reflections on his background, career in museum work prior to arriving at the DIA, experiences at the DIA and observations about the future of museums. The audience will be able to ask questions following the interview.

Abt notes that Beal "has had the most far-reaching impact on the installation of the museum's collections, its public stature and financial stability since the days of its last transformative director, William Valentiner."

Beal has been director, president and chief executive officer of the DIA since 1999. He will retire June 30, after presiding over some of the most significant accomplishments in the museum's history, including a successful reinvention of the way art is presented to the public; passage of a tri-county regional millage to support museum operations and DIA participation in the historic and unprecedented grand bargain initiative, part of the City of Detroit's bankruptcy settlement, which secured the DIA's widely acclaimed art collection for future generations.

Abt is the author of several books and essays, including "A Museum on the Verge: A Socioeconomic History of the Detroit Institute of Arts, 1882–2000" and is co-editor of the Museum History Journal.

DIA Director Graham Beal discusses his tenure at the museum including changes in the museums art presentations and grand bargain initiative which was part of the City of Detroit's bankruptcy settlement. The interview takes place May 2 and is open to the public. Beal retires June 30.

Childhood Comes With An Expiration Date

Suzanne Antonelli, CFP®
Senior Portfolio Manager

The following article appeared in May 2014, but the information is so important that I thought it would be beneficial to share it again this Spring!

Graduation season is in full swing, your children and grandchildren are preparing to graduate from high school and are ready to launch into adulthood as they turn eighteen. But are they? Are you prepared for the child you have nurtured all these years to turn 18? If you are like most parents, probably not, but childhood does come with an expiration date and there are several things, besides worrying about college tuition payments and planning the perfect grad party, that need to be addressed.

I will share a personal story that I have shared with many of my clients through the years in the hopes that they will never be faced with the same situation. In the Fall of 2006 I packed my twins up and moved them to their respective colleges. The oldest was attending school in Chicago and early one morning I noticed I had missed a call and had a message on my cell phone. The message was from the RA at her school alerting me that my daughter had been rushed to the hospital and was seriously ill. Other than that message left at 3:00 a.m. and the name of the hospital, no other information was provided. I immediately called the hospital and was told that given my daughter was 18 they would not release any information, not even if she had been admitted or was a patient in their facility.

I frantically called the school and they provided no information. The RA who left the message did not find it necessary to return my many calls. Ultimately, I drove from Grosse Pointe to the Chicago hospital, imagining the worst, in record time. By the time I reached the hospital she had been treated and released.

The purpose of my story: when your child turns 18 you as a parent no longer have legal access to their health care information or authority to make decisions regarding their health care. Two relatively simple documents prepared by your attorney, a HIPAA Release and a Durable Power of Attorney for Health Care, should spare you the angst I suffered that day. Most states will honor a document executed under the laws of the home state. Had I been prepared, I could have faxed the HIPAA release to the hospital and the health care providers would have updated me on my daughter's condition. A Financial Durable Power of Attorney is also highly recommended to allow you to make financial or legal decisions on your child's behalf.

PASTOR’S CORNER By Rev. Randy Boelter

Don’t stop planting your trees

The story is often told about someone asking Martin Luther the Reformer what he would do if he knew our Lord would return tonight and bring the world to its end. Luther replied he would go into his garden and plant an apple tree. What he meant was even if he knew the Lord Jesus would return today, he would still go about the daily work God had given him to do. He would not stop serving God and others to the best of his ability.

The times we live in seem particularly uncertain and insecure. The economy, global terrorism and radical change are just a few of the things we regularly identify as the cause some of our hopeless feelings. We reason: “Why should I work so hard at maintaining my business, my community and my house of worship if the future looks so bleak?” and “Why should I continue to help others?”

With such seeming uncertainty, far too often we are inclined to despair of life and stop “planting trees.” If only it were possible for us to mirror the kind of faith and hope Luther and others maintained as they faced their challenges.

Easter, we celebrated only days ago, brings an answer to our hopelessness that should not be lost on our lives. It brings us faith to “keep planting.” In the face of His crucifixion, Jesus worked with determination to fulfill God’s plan to rescue us. The resurrection of Jesus Christ offers us faith, strength and hope to keep working, to “keep planting” in life if you will, even under the most challenging circumstances.

Easter reminds us God remains in control at ALL times, not us. Through the living Christ, we have proof of God’s love for us and know He has dealt definitively with sin, death and hopelessness for us. He also comes to renew us with life to live. He still gives us tasks to do. As long as God gives us his strength, we can plant our trees in life to the best of our ability.

The writer of Ecclesiastes encourages us: “whatever your hand finds to do, do it with all your might.” Eccl. 9:10.

In remembering his love shown in Jesus, God gives us strength and asks us to make the best of the present. Easter gives us the hope and power we need to make the best of today, being certain he has promised to make the best of our future.

We are doing our best together today.

Gary Lee Bastian

Gary Lee Bastian, August 29, 1946 - April 6, 2015: Age 68. Born in Williamsport, Pennsylvania and raised in Connecticut, Gary attended UConn and graduated from Wayne State University with a Bachelor of Fine Arts. Gary's peaceful and gentle soul were embodied in his work as an anti-war activist for the Vietnam War and a draft counselor. He also marched with Martin Luther King, Jr. in Detroit in the 1960s.

Gary retired from the Detroit News and then became a Master Woodworker/Carpenter customizing many homes throughout the Pointes. Gary was on the design committee for the new playground now in existence at Defer Elementary School, where his daughter, Morgan, attended.

Gary could be seen in the neighborhood since 1984, riding his bike and walking his many dogs throughout his life in the Pointes. Gary never met a stranger and his gracious smile and flowing silver hair and beard made him highly recognizable to all. His masterful storytelling and deep knowledge of an expansive breadth of topics made conversation with Gary memorable and easy.

Gary's generous heart had no boundaries. His grass roots efforts helped students in need, ex-cons in halfway houses, and homeless men. Gary was a vocational teacher at Oak Park Alternative High School where he taught carpentry/shop and so much more. In his deeply caring approach, Gary offered life skills such as parenting, accountability, and values. He was referred to as a Pied Piper, magnetically weaving his storytelling into his teachings. We will remember Gary as the weaver, the classroom as the loom and his students as the fibers.

Gary was an artist and creator in every sense. His profound love of art led him to support the Detroit Institute of Arts and he took many extension courses through the College for Creative Studies (CCS) including metal smithing, wood working and figure drawing. This allowed him to leave a lasting mark with his furniture, drawings and jewelry creations. His gentle approach to life allowed him to create beauty in his work which was inspired by the family's mountain land in Pennsylvania, where Gary would spend time throughout his childhood and adult life. Gary loved many different genres of music spanning from the 1900s, with the conception of the 78 rpm record, to present time.

Gary introduced his love of nature to his favorite and only daughter, Morgan. From the mountain property to the sea shore, from Georgian Bay, Ontario to the east coast, to Key West, Florida, Gary assimilated the simplicity of nature into his time spent with his family.

Many people from many walks of life will dearly miss Gary, his prismatic smile, his passionate story telling, and his gentle soul.

He is survived by his loving daughter, Morgan Bastian, and her mother, Sylvia Longoria. Dearest son of William and the late F. Irene Bastian. Cherished brother of Sandy Messmore, Jon (Nancy) Bastian, James Bastian, Lisa (Mark) Guetzko, and Kim (Bill) Amsbury. He also is survived by many loving nieces and nephews and great nieces and nephews.

Gary's visitation and funeral took place the weekend of April 11th & 12th, at Chas. Verheyden Inc., in Grosse Pointe Park with a performance by Russ Miller and his son Charlie as part of a quartet.

Donations may be made in Gary's name to the Detroit Institute of Arts, 5200 Woodward Ave., Detroit, MI 48202. Light a candle and share a memory at www.verheyden.org.

Tips to be Earth friendly

Earth day is Wednesday, April 22. Following are some ideas some green ideas to promote a healthy environment.

Green apps

There are hundreds of earth-friendly lifestyle apps -- from PaperKarma, which helps stop the flow of junk, to the Green Gumshoe, which facilitates the reporting of environmental incidents to the correct authorities.

The Environmental Protection Agency is a good resource for finding and locating the best green apps.

Lamp-free projector technology

Replace an outdated projector with a more energy efficient version like Casio's lamp-free projectors which consume one-third less power per unit than traditional lamp-based projectors by using a Laser & LED Hybrid Light Source. For every 6,000 hours of use, up to $800 can be saved.

Solar chargers

It's easy to keep mobile phones, tablets and laptops running without draining electricity, by using solar chargers. Chargers come in all shapes and sizes -- clam shell, tree branches, foldable -- you can even buy a backpack or laptop case equipped with a solar panel.

With so many manufacturers greening their offerings, consider taking stock of your tech gear this Earth Day and making eco-friendly swaps.

Blue Devils sweep double-header

By Bob St. John
Sports Editor

Grosse Pointe South girls' softball team prepped for a busy seven-week stretch with a doubleheader sweep of Birmingham Detroit Country Day.

Sophomore Emma St. John threw a no-hitter in the first game, which ended 10-0 after five innings, and she threw a one-hitter in the second, which ended 25-0 after two innings.

She faced only two hitters over the maximum in the two outings and struck out 11 in game one and three of the six batters she faced in game two.

It is the second no-hitter of the season for St. John, who also was 3-for-3 with a double, two runs scored, and three RBIs in game one at the plate, and 3-for-3 with a hit by pitch, one run and two RBIs in the second game.

The host Blue Devils' offense was on fire against a pitcher they struggled against last season, sophomore Jacqueline Spezizen.

They had 13 hits in game one, including senior Katie Kish going 4-for-4 with a triple, three runs, one RBI and two stolen bases; and senior Eliza Bourke, who was 3-for-3 with a double, three runs, three RBIs and three stolen bases.

Senior Ashley Borowicz was 2-for-3 with two doubles and two RBIs, and junior Christina Ambrozy was 1-for-3 with a double and run scored.

In the second game, the Blue Devils scored an amazing 22 runs in the second inning after sending 28 hitters to the plate.

Kish finished 1-for-3 with a walk, a double, three runs, two stolen bases and one RBI, and Bourke followed with a 3-for-3 performance, netting four runs, two RBIs and one stolen base.

Borowicz was 1-for-2 with four runs, a double, two RBIs and two walks, and senior Andie Anger was 2-for-2 with a double, three runs and three RBIs.

Freshman Lauren Sancya was 1-for-1 with three walks and two runs, while Ambrozy was 2-for-4 with two runs.

Freshman Grace Foster was 2-for-4 with two doubles, two runs and two RBIs to round out the Blue Devils' offensive explosion.

Grosse Pointe South is 3-0 and the schedule gets tougher this weekend when it competes in the Renaissance Tournament Saturday, April 18, and Sunday, April 19.

LIGGETT

8 runs not enough

The University Liggett girls' softball team dropped its season opener last week, 13-8, to Allen Park Cabrini.

The visiting Knights rallied to lead 8-7, but Cabrini scored six runs in the bottom of the sixth inning to win the game.

Despite the loss, the Knights' offense pounded out a ton of hits, but 10 errors led to too many unearned runs.

At the plate, freshman Maddie Hamilton was 4-for-4 with four runs, three RBIs and a stolen base, and senior Kacie Wuthrich was 3-for-4 with a run and two RBIs.

Senior Taylor Slayton was 2-for-4 with two runs and a stolen base, and senior Zarine Minwalla was 2-for-4 with one RBI and one stolen base.

Junior Emily Kanakry was 2-for-4 with two RBIs and started on the mound, going 2 2/3 innings, giving up four hits, four earned runs and five walks.

Minwalla suffered the loss, going the final 3 1/3 innings and giving up five hits, zero earned runs and four walks.

Senior's research published in journal

For her academic research project, University Liggett School senior Jane Ninivaggi spent a year and a half studying militant Islamic extremist groups and their activity on social media. She wanted to prove extremist groups are capable of creating a recruitment system in the United States through the use of today's most powerful tools available to young people: Twitter, Instagram and other social media.

Her research found many examples of jihadist radicalization in all 50 states, and her findings are so impressive her work has been published in Digital America, an online journal supported by the American Studies program at the University of Richmond. The journal focuses on digitization and digital culture with an emphasis on American life. Ninivaggi's first article was published this month and she was asked to continue writing for the journal as a columnist.

"Social media is the most efficient system of communication the world has ever seen and I've learned that its ability to disseminate information so directly makes it a valuable weapon in the war on terror," said Ninivaggi, who plans to attend Barnard College next year to study human rights and eventually attend law school. "In many ways, extremist Islamics are fighting Western marketing with Western marketing, but it is similarly as effective for the U.S. to use social media as a tool for de-radicalization to combat terrorism."

One of the most surprising discoveries of her research, Ninivaggi said, is women are being lured with a romantic narrative to join ISIS despite appalling reports of rape, abuse and enslavement.

Liggett's academic research program is the cornerstone of its Curriculum for Understanding. For their senior-year projects, students think about their interests, then pose and answer a relevant academic question.

Ninivaggi's faculty advisor, Andy Knot, said the project was particularly challenging because of the wealth of information on the topic. "Every day there is something new relating to it and she had to make the tough choice when to stop her research. She's very focused and did an extraordinary job riding through the research."

Like many of the academic research projects at Liggett, Ninivaggi's project evolved. She began developing her research question during her sophomore year while writing a paper on President Carter's response to the 1979 Iranian Revolution and its impact on terrorism and radical Islamic groups in the Middle East. When she posed her research question during her junior year, she set out to study the British Jihadi Network and the potential for a similar radicalization in the United States. But the project began to take shape even further when ISIS began to infiltrate Western media.

"It wasn't long before the videos of beheadings and stories of seemingly unassociated American youths being lured to Syria went viral on social networks," she explained. "Now you can find examples of jihadist radicalization in all 50 states, a development that has been imperative to the relevance of my project."

In addition to studying the social media of extremist groups, she also consulted journals and editorial pieces. "(I wondered) throughout my research process if I would be put on a 'no-fly list' because of how often I used Twitter to track jihadist activity," she said. "I frequently would check hashtags linked to terror groups in order to characterize who their following was. I thought it particularly interesting when coming across a Twitter page run by ISIS, entitled Islamic State of Cat, that seemed to be an attempt to normalize their radical behavior while also using kittens to offer a more vulnerable persona."

The Liggett senior says the project taught her a lot — both as a researcher and as someone with a strong interest in human rights and cultural revolutions. "Going into this process, I was simply excited to gain extensive knowledge on a single subject and to feel like an expert on something meaningful," she said. "Yet, it has developed into something more than that. I have not only gained a wealth of knowledge, but also gained experiences that have highlighted the value in challenging myself academically."

Ninivaggi is the daughter of Kathleen Ninivaggi of Grosse Pointe Farms and Daniel Ninivaggi of Bloomfield Hills.

Three advance
in super raceBy Kathy Ryan
Staff Writer

From a field of 31 applicants, three candidates were selected to advance to the formal interview stage for the Grosse Pointe Public School System superintendent position.

The three candidates, Steven Matthews, Gary Niehaus and Matthew Wandrie, will be interviewed by members of the school board at a meeting scheduled for 5:30 p.m. Monday, April 20. The meeting will be held in the auditorium at Grosse Pointe South and is open to the public.

Matthews, who currently serves as the superintendent of the Novi Community School District, may be familiar to many in Grosse Pointe — he served on the Grosse Pointe Board of Education from 1996 through 2005, as well as a stint on the Grosse Pointe Public Library board. He has a doctorate in education.

Niehaus retired as superintendent of the McLean County Unit District No. 5 in Normal, Ill. He also has a doctorate in education.

Wandrie is the superintendent of the Lapeer Community Schools in Lapeer. He has a master's degree in educational leadership.

Resumes from the three candidates are posted to the district's website, gpschools.schoolwires.net.

The slate of three candidates was announced Monday night following a closed door session where the board met with the consultants from SCHOOL EXEC CONNECT, the search firm hired by the district to screen applicants.

The slate, as presented by David Peterson from

SEC, was approved by a vote of 4 to 3, with Ahmed Ismail, Cindy Pangborn and Lois Valente voting no.

When giving their reason for voting no, the three board members expressed concern over "one candidate," but did not identify the candidate.

According to Peterson, 31 individuals expressed interest in the position, and initial interviews were conducted by Peterson and his partner, Larry Lobert, with 11 applicants. Following those interviews and an in-depth screening, SEC selected five candidates for final consideration. However, two candidates declined to move forward, resulting in the final three named Monday night.

Those three will be interviewed in separate

'Makerspace'
legacy left
by South SeniorBy Kathy Ryan
Staff Writer

"Good ideas are common — what's uncommon are people who'll work hard enough to bring them about." — Ashleigh Brilliant

Grosse Pointe South High School senior Nick Morris had an idea, a "what if," kind of thing.

What if South had a place where students interested in science, technology, engineering, arts and math could interact, create and exchange ideas, a place where students with myriad interests could gather to share common interests? It's a concept known as "makerspace," which has been defined as a community center where technology and manufacturing equipment is located and open to the public.

With that idea, Morris formed STEAM, the acronym for science, technology, engineering, arts and math, but STEAM has now gone beyond the idea stage, and with the help of fellow students, South staff and administrators, STEAM will soon be operating a makerspace within South High School.

The idea for STEAM actually began for Morris in his sophomore year at South when he joined the Solar Car Club, where he worked with upperclassmen on several aspects of the project, including fundraising. He cites the Drone Club and the Particle Physics Club, as perfect contributors to the Makerspace concept.

"The Solar Car Club is a perfect example of something that would benefit from a makerspace location," Morris said. "As it is set up now, we work in donated space away from campus. What if we had a space right here, where we could work before and after school? And students from other groups would be there. We can motivate each other, we can create a community of entrepreneurs. That's just one example, we have a lot more."

The South makerspace won't be limited to the sciences, and will integrate computer design and art concepts as well.

"We see this as a way to get students from several disciplines to come together and to work together in one place," said James Adams, chair of the South science department and faulty moderator for STEAM. "There is enormous potential in a project such as this."

Morris created STEAM with the help of fellow seniors Olivia Lang, Sharon Zeng, Maddie Burgoyne and Cam Kotas. Morris serves as CEO, with Kotas serving as CFO, and their main focus right now is fundraising. STEAM meets weekly and welcomes new members.

Armed with a grant from the Mother's Club, STEAM members have begun converting an old garage-type space at South to serve as the site for the makerspace. By fall, according to Morris, the group hopes to have the 1,600 square foot space painted and ready to house 3D printers, computers, mills, lathes, microscopes, drills and whatever equipment that may be desired by groups using the space.

"We want to create a space with endless possibilities," Morris said.

Grosse Pointe South principal Moussa Hamka has been onboard with the project since his first discussion with Morris about it. Hamka admitted he was "stunned" when the Morris first approached him.

"The makerspace was more than a lofty idea to Nick and the students working on the project. It was a well thought out and researched plan. They were able to articulate the 'why' and not just 'what' they wanted to do."

As the project starts to come together, Hamka continues to be impressed with the commitment of the students.

"I am inspired by the students and their goals," Hamka said. "It is not every day that a student approaches you and says, 'I have ideas to make the school better and the curriculum more meaningful for future students. Although I am a senior, this is important to me and I want to leave a legacy behind once I leave.'"

That is a factor in what makes this project so unique for the students involved. The majority of the students are seniors who will graduate in June and will not be here to enjoy the fruits of their labor.

"I would have loved to have seen an engineering club at South," said Kotas, "and now students will have a place that will allow them to grow and do what they are passionate about."

All of the students involved cite the exceptional education they received at South as their motivation to complete the makerspace for future South students.

"With a school as exceptional as South, this is just a natural extension," said Burgoyne.

"We are seeing the future potential for this project grow with each STEAM meeting," said Lang. "It's a legacy we are proud to be part of."

All the students involved agreed that they wished a STEAM makerspace had been available during their time at South.

In order to complete project, STEAM members are actively seeking donations and community support. They are finalizing plans for a fundraiser, and will be spending most of their summer organizing renovating the space with fresh paint and new flooring before bringing in computers, printers and industrial supplies.

Hamka has pledged the support of South administration.

"The makerspace will be a great opportunity for students to take the theoretical knowledge obtained in courses and apply it to practical applications," he said. "Additionally, it will enhance students ability to critically think, problem solve and be creative through hands on experiences."

STEAM moderator cannot hide his pride in the South students.

"I see this as such a positive thing," he said. "This is student led and student driven. We have had nothing but positive reactions from South staff members. This is a group of students you don't come across very often."

Joseph brings Christine to North Stage

By Kathy Ryan
Staff Writer

GROSSE POINTE WOODS – Broadway is coming to the stage at Grosse Pointe North as one of its most distinguished alumnae is returning to her hometown for a special musical performance. Actress, singer and member of the North class of 1986, Sandra Joseph, best known for her role as Christine Daae in the award-winning Broadway musical "Phantom of the Opera," will take the stage at 7:30 p.m. Saturday, May 9, in a benefit performance, "Night on Broadway." In addition to a solo performance, Joseph will be joined by students from North's performing arts department. The concert, sponsored by edmund t. AHEE jewelers, serves as the inaugural event for the Sandra Joseph Performing Arts Scholarship, which will be presented annually to a North student who plans to pursue a career in the performing arts. Joseph holds the world record for being the longest-running leading lady in Broadway's longest-running show, performing in more than 1,300 performances as the Phantom's beloved Christine. "Working through the inherent vulnerability of performing in front of an audience helps strengthen the courage muscles," Joseph said. "Performing builds communication skills and offers the camaraderie of being part of a team to those students not inclined toward sports. The arts helped me feel a sense of connection and belonging, something every high school student needs. Supporting the next generation is one way I hope to express my gratitude to those who supported me." In 2006, her personal journey from Grosse Pointe North to leading lady on Broadway was featured on an episode of The Oprah Winfrey Show. Oprah called Joseph "one of Broadway's biggest stars" and "an inspiration." Tickets are $20 for general admission balcony and $30 for main floor. There are a limited number of $50 reserved level tickets which will include a pre-show reception and meet and greet with Joseph. Tickets may be purchased in advance at Wild Birds Unlimited, 20381 Mack Avenue, Grosse Pointe Woods, or by contacting Colette McEnroe at wmcenroel@comcast.net.

sessions on April 20. The first session begins at 5:30 p.m.; the second at 7 p.m.; the third at 8:30 p.m. The board will meet again at 6 p.m. Tuesday, April 21, in the South auditorium to discuss the interviews and to select two finalists. Those two candidates will be interviewed by select community groups the week of April 27. Four groups will interview the finalists. The first will be made up of students, parent teacher organization council representatives and parents with students with special needs. The second group will consist of school administrators and principals, the third will be made up of community representatives from the Grosse Pointe Board of Realtors, the Chamber of Commerce, Rotary and Services for Older Citizens, while the representatives of the district's labor unions will make up the fourth group. Board member Cindy Pangborn said she was concerned parents of students with special needs were not adequately represented. Citing four different groups of parents with special needs children, Pangborn said she would be more comfortable if each group was allowed to send a representative. However, board member Lois Valente, who along with Brian Summerfield and Margaret Weertz made up the subcommittee that recommended the interview committees, said she was comfortable with the number of representatives selected. "People can come and make their opinions known," Valente said. "Our community is not shy. They will express their feelings."

New testing program underway

By Kathy Ryan
Staff Writer

It's about to join daffodils and robins as a sure sign of spring. "It" is the M-STEP, the Michigan Student Test of Educational Progress, the new state-mandated assessment for students in grades three through 11. M-STEP replaces the Michigan Educational Assessment Program, which had been tallying student progress for four decades, and will be a marked change for Michigan students. "Of course the biggest difference we're seeing is that the test has moved from the fall to spring," said Maureen Bur, director of secondary instruction for the Grosse Pointe Public School System. Moving the tests to spring, according to Bur, allows districts to more accurately measure student progress based on the current learning year. With the MEAP's fall testing timetable, there was concern about the impact of summer vacation downtime impacting a student's learning level. Another major change is M-STEP is designed to be taken online. However, with this being the first year, the state is allowing districts to opt for the more traditional paper and pencil form, which is how the Grosse Pointe district will administer the test. While Grosse Pointe schools meet the technological requirements for online testing, it was thought there was not enough lead time to work out computer logistics for the tests this year. The M-STEP schedule, as mandated by the Michigan Department of Education, calls for testing to have begun statewide Tuesday, April 14, for grades five, eight and 11, with grades four and seven beginning testing Tuesday, April 28, while grades three and six begin testing Tuesday, May 19. A complete schedule can be found on individual school websites and the state's Department of Education website, mde.gov.

While the test may be new, the methods the Grosse Pointe teachers are using to prepare students is not. According to Bur, teachers prepare their students every day by providing quality instruction. "We are fortunate to have outstanding teachers," Bur said. "These tests come down to four days of assessment, while our teachers focus on educating our children every day of the year." Bur advises parents to make sure their students get a good night's sleep before the test and a healthy breakfast. But most importantly, Bur wants the tests to be as stress-free as possible. "This is a new test, and we're not sure what to expect," she said. "But we can assure parents, the Grosse Pointe schools will continue to provide a quality education for all our students." Bur said she expects the state to have results of the tests back to districts by late summer.
