GROSSE POINTE PARK — When it comes to creating an off-leash running area for Park dogs and their owners, it appears that a pack of bloodhounds might be needed to sniff out the perfect location.

Nearly 100 dog owners left a Parks and Recreation commission meeting on Sept. 9 with the impression that their wishes to put a park at Patterson Park had been approved by the commission. Imagine their surprise when the minutes of the meeting were issued, showing that after the vote by the commission to recommend creating a dog park at Patterson Park had been recorded and dog owners left the meeting, the commission held a second vote.

That vote reversed the vote taken in front of the dog owners, and instead of the Patterson site, the commission recommended placing the park at a half-acre site at Mack and Wayburn.

And while the Mack and Wayburn site had been discussed at the commission meeting, it was dismissed by dog owners as not meeting their needs for a centrally-located and secure location.

With the dog park on the city council agenda for its Monday, Sept. 28, meeting and with city council members hearing from irate dog park supporters, Mayor Greg Theokas moved the council meeting from city hall to the Lavins Center at Windmill Pointe Park.

It was a good idea, with more than 100 people turning out for the meeting.

Theokas opened the discussion by offering three proposals, but not before he acknowledged there were serious issues with the actions of the parks and recreation commission.

Surplus in the City

By Brad Lindberg

CITY OF GROSSE POINTE — A year-end municipal surplus and brimming rainy day account may allow funding of recreation projects put on hold during the recession.

"I'm sure there are projects we deferred or delayed because we didn't have funds to do them," said Dale Scrace, mayor of the City of Grosse Pointe. "This is an opportunity to look at that in addition to what we have budgeted for five years."

Although the annual municipal audit isn't completed, Finance Director Kimberly Kleinow projects a roughly $875,000 surplus for last fiscal year ended June 30.

Officials question work of new business

By Kathy Ryan
Staff Writer

GROSSE POINTE WOODS — Any homeowner knows that before a home improvement project can begin, especially one involving an addition or major change in design, a permit must be “pulled” from the local building department.

That’s why the installation of a $100,000, seven-ton HVAC unit on the roof of the old Robusto’s Cigar Bar on Mack without a permit or city approval has city officials leveling fines and asking questions.

Paul Weisberg, the attorney for the owner, Churchill’s Cigar Bar, met with the Woods planning commission last week and acknowledged Churchill’s HVAC contractor did not have the necessary permit to install the unit. The city fined Churchill’s $400, with the possibility of additional fines being levied.

Concerns over the unit, which one commissioner described as looking like a “semi truck,” centered on the weight compromising the structural integrity of the building, the type and weight of the enclosure needed to conceal the unit and how loud the unit would be.

Weisberg said the unit is essential to proper ventilation for the building, given the nature of its business.

“This is the same unit

The HVAC unit was installed at the future Churchill’s Cigar Bar without a permit.

we use at our world-class cigar bar in Birmingham,” he told the commission. “We need this type of ventilation because, while our customers like to enjoy their cigars, they don’t want to bathe in their own smoke. This unit is vital to our success.”

He also assured the commission their structural engineer determined the weight of the unit does not impair the structural integrity of the building and there is no danger of the roof collapsing.

But that determination, commission members agreed, would have to be made by the Woods building director, Gene Tutag.

Tutag told the commission the unit was not installed according to the initial plans submitted by Churchill’s, causing additional concerns.

“There are safety concerns,” he told the commission. “The public safety director would not send firefighters into the building if there were a fire.”

In addition to the weight of the unit, Tutag and the commission questioned the additional weight an enclosure would place on the roof. The weight of ice and snow also had to be considered.

“A structural analysis is needed for any type of enclosure,” Tutag said, the cost of which should be paid by Churchill’s.

The question of how much noise the unit would generate also was raised.

The maximum decibel generated range between 94 and 96.

A representative of the company that makes the fans for the unit told the commission the 96 decibel reading was taken on fans that were not enclosed, and enclosing the fans would lower the decibels. He also noted two of the fans will be pointing up, as will the noise generated.

“The noise level will be well below 85 at the property line,” he said, but that was met with skepticism by some commission members.

In fact, Tutag pointed out, there have been problems with the project all along, noting problems with the project have been brought to the planning commission almost monthly since the project began late last year.

Unless and until structural and design issues are worked out, the proposed opening around Dec. 1 does not seem likely.

Of particular concern to commission members was this was not the first time representatives from Churchill’s found themselves defending unapproved design changes.

Commissioner Doug Hamborsky told Weisberg there had been a breach of trust on this project.

“Your approach appears to be, ‘we’ll do what we want then we’ll sort it out later,’” Hamborsky said. “We don’t do that. Your fox can’t rule our henhouse.”

Grosse Pointe South and North hosted their annual Stick it to Cancer event during a field hockey game Saturday, Sept. 26, at Grosse Pointe South. In between the varsity and junior varsity games, athletes and cancer survivors walked to the 50-yard line. Some athletes held signs showing the type of cancer the survivors walking with them overcame, while others carried flowers representing loved ones who lost their battle. Above, a group shot of the athletes and survivors. ## District, police thwart fraud attempt

By Brad Lindberg
Staff Writer

GROSSE POINTE FARMS — Public school authorities cut two people off at the pass trying to sneak a non-resident into the system.

"We stopped it at the get-go," said Christian Fenton, Grosse Pointe Public Schools assistant superintendent for business affairs and operations. "The student never enrolled in school."

A Farms woman became involved by default when a school investigator tried to confirm she's leasing her house to someone else.

"The (fake resident) came in with a lease," Fenton said. "Our person was suspicious. We informed the (Farms) property owner as opposed to the property owner calling us."

The homeowner notified police Monday, Sept. 21.

"(The resident) indicated she is not leasing out the house," Farms Officer Vincent Finn wrote in an initial incident report. "It appears someone turned in a fraudulent copy of a residential lease agreement to the Grosse Pointe (Public) School system."

The suspects' names aren't being published because they haven't been charged with a crime or arraigned.

"It will likely be argued in criminal court," said Farms Detective John Walko. "It is fraud. They're claiming to live somewhere they don't."

The name of the registered homeowner on the allegedly fraudulent lease is a woman with the same last name of the legitimate Farms homeowner, but is listed as living on Bloom Street, near Eight Mile and Mound Road Detroit, according to Finn's report.

The scam extends to the legitimate Kercheval homeowner receiving a voter identification card in the mail Sept. 21 in the name of the Detroit woman having the same last name, yet listing her address on Kercheval, according to police.

"(I) sent an e-mail to the Michigan Secretary of State office regarding the fraudulent address on the driver's license and voter identification card," Finn said.

The money is in addition to an unrestricted general fund balance, or rainy day fund, totaling 20 percent of the upcoming fiscal year's expenditures.

Municipal officials agreed to transfer $750,000 of the surplus to the capital projects fund and $125,000 to the general fund.

Much of the additional revenue came from non-property tax sources, such as permits, including for construction, and unexpected return on investments.

"The last couple years, (investment) values were so bad, we had to take that loss," Kleinow said. "This year, it turned around, so we have a gain.

We anticipated zero."

"It's always nice to see extra money coming in," said Councilman Don Parthum.

"Let's keep it coming," added Councilman Andrew Turnbull.

Over the last eight years, the city had a goal of maintaining the unrestricted general fund balance at 20 percent of the upcoming fiscal year's expenditures.

"We've had a surplus at the end of every year, even during the worst years," Manager Pete Dame said.

Surpluses in recent years were transferred into the municipal employee retiree health-care account.

Last year's $500,000 surplus was divided between retiree health-care ($200,000) and capital projects ($300,000).

Search time, however long it takes to enter the hallway.

Those and untold other works, such as from the Booth and Dodge families, plus 141 from Eleanor and Edsel Ford alone, with Grosse Pointe provenance remain secure at the DIA due to the legal artistry of another townie, Eugene Gargaro Jr., a 50-year resident of Grosse Pointe Shores.

Gargaro, chairman of the DIA, helped draft the grand bargain protecting the collection from creditors during Detroit's bankruptcy.

"Eugene was instrumental, with bankruptcy Judge Gerald Rosen, to come up with a solution that kept the collection intact," said Ted Kedzierski, mayor of the Shores.

Gargaro is a former partner of Dykema Gossett law firm and current vice president of Masco Corp.

Kedzierski presented him the Grosse Pointe Shores 2015 Mayor Award during the Tuesday, Sept. 15, city council meeting.

"It is with high distinction that we are pleased to issue this award," Kedzierski said.

"I get to take a lot of bows, but many other people deserve to be here tonight to appreciate this wonderful recognition," Gargaro said, accompanied by his wife, Mary Anne.

He called the grand bargain a "great story" for Detroit, its pensioners and the museum.

"Twenty-five or 50 years from now, our children and grandchildren will read that wonderful story and, because of the judge and his wonderful people, the DIA will be there for generations to come," Gargaro said.

The award is a swirling, conical, sculpture blown of blue glass by David Helm, a resident of Grosse Pointe Woods and graduate of the College for Creative Studies.

"We collect glass, so this will be a most important addition," said Mary Anne Gargaro.

"We hope to get another Inside|Out piece of art in your honor, so we will always be able to have one at city hall," said City Manager Mark Wollenweber told the Gargaros.

Wollenweber was referring to the DIA's annual summertime campaign of displaying the reproduced highlights from the collection in outdoor locations of metro Detroit.

"I know someone at the DIA, so I'll make that happen," Gargaro said.

Shores leaves leaf rules alone

By Brad Lindberg
Staff Writer

GROSSE POINTE SHORES — It's more of the same for curbside residential leaf collections.

The new pickup schedule, revised last year, worked well enough to repeat this year.

"We pick up leaves on regularly-scheduled garbage days," said Brett Smith, head of Grosse Pointe Shores public works. "Leaves may be placed at the curb any time prior to the garbage day."

Councilman Bruce Bisballe encouraged residents to mulch leaves, thereby reducing money spent hauling them away. Commercial lawn crews must remove their own leaves, not pile them curbside for collection at taxpayer expense.

Trees

Fall is the time of year to trim city-owned trees.

"Residents north of Mooreland to Vernier have been notified of tree trimming that will be taking place," Smith said.

Trimming is for functional purposes, not aesthetic.

"We're doing hazard and clearing trimming only," Smith said. "We do not shape trees to make them pretty as we go down the roadway."

GROSSE POINTE FARMS — Police taught a lesson in drug possession at Grosse Pointe South High School Wednesday morning, Sept. 16.

South administrators called officers to campus shortly after 9 a.m. regarding the suspects' smelling of marijuana.

Two patrolmen arrested a 16-year-old Grosse Pointe Park male for having two marijuana brownies.

"The goal is to get him on a better course," said Detective John Walko, youth officer for the Grosse Pointe Farms public safety department. "It's me fighting against every other piece of social media and every song being written."

Another Park male, 16, had narcotics paraphernalia, police said. Although not arrested, he was suspended from South, officers said.

"He has serious accountability at the school," Walko said.

The student had lighters, rolling papers, cigar wrappers, two empty jars smelling of marijuana either in a backpack or his car parked illegally in the student lot off Fisher, police said.

He was "uncooperative" with police and school officials, according to an officer.

During questioning on campus, an officer asked the other student where he got the brownies.

"(He) stated he would rather not say," said the officer.

Upon arrest and transport to headquarters, "(he) stated he bought the brownies from" a 17-year-old male student from the City of Grosse Pointe.

"I know the kid," Walko said.

Walko is concerned about cutting off the source of narcotics.

"It's a lot of follow-up and trying to reach these kids," he said.

Cornwall in Hall of Fame

By Bob St. John
Sports Editor

Grosse Pointe Farms resident Paula Cornwall is ready for her time in the limelight when she is inducted into the 2015 University Liggett School Alumni Athletic Hall of Fame Friday, Oct. 2.

The reception is at 5:30 p.m., followed by the ceremony at 6:30 p.m. at Liggett's Manoogian Arts Wing.

Other inductees are Neil "Shorty" McMillian, 1908 DUS posthumously inducted; William Hummel, 1978 ULS; Peter Monroe, 1961 GPUS; and Jack Foster, 1948, DUS.

The Alumni Athletic Hall of Fame was created to honor and celebrate the rich athletic history at University Liggett School and its predecessor schools.

This is also a kickoff to the homecoming weekend festivities, which include varsity soccer and field hockey games at 4 p.m., followed by the football game under the lights at 6:30 p.m.

"It's a great honor to be among these great men and women at Liggett," Cornwall said. "It was a time in my life when I was on top of the world."

Cornwall, a 1984 Liggett graduate, was an outstanding tennis player for the Knights. She played the sport since elementary school and she played in local tournaments.

"I love tennis and it is my No. 1 sport," Cornwall said. "I worked hard and had a lot of success during my high school days."

As a tennis player at Liggett, Cornwall played four years on the varsity team at No. 1 singles.

She was All-State First Team three times, selected to the Prince All-American Team once, won a state title at No. 1 singles her senior year, was a runner-up once, won two regional championships, was regional runner-up once and was the Knights' Most Valuable Player once.

During her four years on the tennis team, the Knights won four straight state titles, four consecutive regional crowns and ranked in the top 10 in the state for all classes at the end of each season.

Cornwall went on to graduate from the University of Michigan with a degree in history.

She still continued with tennis, coaching at the junior varsity level at Grosse Pointe South and now she is the head coach of Grosse Pointe North girls' field hockey team.

She and North alumna Alexa Quinlan, along with junior varsity head coach Shelby Stone, have turned the Norsemen's program around and it is now heading in a positive direction.

Cornwall has been married for 26 years to Chris Cornwall and they have two children, Alexa and Andrew, who are college students at the University of Michigan.

ing criminal activity involving credit card fraud going on at her bank, the Citizens Bank branch at 21800 Mack in St. Clair Shores. She agreed to help, and on the directions of "Goodman," went to the branch and withdrew $5,000 in cash.

She left the bank, waved her hand in the air to signal she had the cash, drove to a nearby church parking lot where she was met by a man, described only as a black male, who gave her the agreed upon code word, "bingo," and she handed him the cash. She watched him walk north on Mack before losing sight of him.

An hour later, she received another phone call from "Goodman," asking for her assistance again. This time, she was to go to the Citizens Bank branch at 23505 Mack in St. Clair Shores and ask for a cashier's check in the amount of $20,000. If the bank questioned her about the withdrawal, she was to tell them she was going on vacation. After being given the check, she returned to the church parking lot where she was met by the same man. She gave him the check, and he instructed her to wait in the parking lot. An hour later, the man returned and gave her back the check and asked her to cash the check for him. The woman became suspicious, went home, but received another call from the scammer asking if she had cashed the check. At this point, she notified police.

Police believe the scammer was not able to cash the check, which is why he asked the victim to cash it for him.

"People who prey on the elderly are despicable," said Bruce Smith, director of public safety. "The elderly are trusting people. They naturally want to help."

Smith said no police or investigative agency will ask for money as part of an investigation.

"We hear about so many of these scams," he said. "We hear of people getting calls to wire money to grandchildren who are in trouble, or to help federal officials in catching a bank employee. Don't ever send money to anyone you don't know."

"What the parks and recreation commission did won't reflect on what the council will do," he said.

With that, Theokas presented three plans for a dog site.

Two of those plans, including one put together by the citizen committee headed by resident Mike Bannon, put the dog park at Patterson Park. The third, with detailed sketches and plans that was put together by a professional dog park designer for city officials, put the park at Mack and Wayburn.

And it was clear that would be the preferred site, with several council members expressing concerns about allowing dogs in a city park.

Councilman James Robson raised issues ranging from how an in-park site would affect children with dog allergies to something he called "picnic anxiety," asking, "If a fly lands on your hot dog, how do you determine if that fly came from Peché Island or the dog park?"

He also expressed concerns about city liability in the case of a dog bite.

Councilman Dan Clark was concerned about dogs being allowed to run free in the park, fearing that people who are not "dog lovers" will feel uncomfortable coming to the park.

Supporters of the dog park at Patterson Park had submitted plans to the council, showing an enclosure to the left of the gate house. According to Mike Bannon and Jarrod Kudzia who are

Bike stolen

A woman reported her locked Schwinn bicycle stolen from racks at St. Clair and Kercheval between 9 a.m. and 5 p.m. Friday, Sept. 25.

The bike is blue with white stripes.

Asleep at wheel

At 7:40 p.m., Sunday, Sept. 20, police awakened a 66-year-old City of Grosse Pointe man reportedly sleeping in the driver's seat of a gray 2014 Ford Fusion parked with its engine on in the 600 block of Neff.

A patrolman turned off the ignition and conducted field sobriety tests, which the man reportedly failed, incapable of taking a Breathalyzer test to determine his blood alcohol level.

Officers arrested him for drunken driving and possessing a firearm while intoxicated.

No deal

A variation on the shoplifting theme, in which stolen property is returned for a fraudulent refund, failed for two women at CVS Pharmacy in the Village shortly before 10:30 a.m. Friday, Sept. 25, according to police.

Both are in their early 30s and live in Detroit. Officers charged them with third-degree retail fraud, a misdemeanor.

A store clerk told police he saw one of the women remove a $21.19 container of Desitin diaper rash cream from a shelf, then exit the front door in the 17100 block of Kercheval.

"She gave the stolen product to (the second woman), who tried to return the item" for a refund, reported Officer Joe Adams.

Upon being denied the return, the woman reportedly tried to steal a $6.88 container of ORS olive oil cream for hair.

"I cut her off at the door and confronted her about the hair product," the clerk reportedly told police. "She pulled it out of her purse and gave it back to me. She then got into a red van and left the area."

Sgt. Al Gwyn stopped the vehicle, a 1998 Chevrolet Astro van, on Neff near Charlevoix, about two blocks from the store.

Phone fraud

A female resident protected herself from suspected telephone fraud by hanging up on the caller.

She told police about 11 a.m. Wednesday, Sept. 23, of receiving a call from a man purporting to be a detective investigating a theft of $30,000 from her bank account.

The so-called detective claimed the suspected thief was the woman's daughter, which the woman knew wasn't true.

A public safety officer advised the resident "never to give information over the phone" and if the caller tries again, contact police.

Fake $20

Sometime between Friday evening, Sept. 18, and noon Sunday, Sept. 20, someone conducted business at a sandwich shop in the Village with a counterfeit $20 bill.

A store employee "stated the bank advised her there have been a few of these bills passed in the area over the past few weeks," according to a public safety officer.

Wrong direction

A Plymouth woman, 24, driving the wrong way home, was arrested for operating a car while drunk on eastbound Lakeshore near Kerby at 1:15 a.m. Sunday, Sept. 27.

A patrolman monitoring traffic near the foot of Baker Lane logged the speed of her 2005 Ford Taurus at 52 mph.

"(She) stated she was coming from a wedding she thought was in Detroit, as she was unsure where she was," said the officer.

She registered a .19 percent blood alcohol level, police said.

The level is more than twice the state maximum to legally operate a motor vehicle, earning her a citation for having a high blood alcohol content.

Wanted

A traffic stop regarding an expired license plate tab resulted in a 34-year-old Eastpointe woman being arrested on an outstanding warrant from Roseville for disorderly conduct.

A patrolman spotted her driving a white 1990 GMC van on westbound Mack near Canyon at 8:58 p.m. Friday, Sept. 25.

A search of the vehicle revealed a prescription bottle in her name for Hydrocodone. The bottle contained 47 pills.

"It was filled this date and should contain 60 pills," reported the arresting officer.

Farms police turned her over to Macomb County authorities at 10 Mile and I-94.

Reap and sow

A 34-year-old Grosse Pointe Park woman called it a mistake.

Police in the Farms and Woods call it a crime.

Her alleged ill-gotten harvest of pumpkins, roses and potted mums from Kroger on Mack in the Woods shortly before 9:30 p.m. Thursday, Sept. 24, resulted in officers taking her into custody for shoplifting.

A Farms patrolman, monitoring a Woods radio alert of the shoplifting complaint, pulled over the woman driving a silver 2007 Hyundai Azera on westbound Mack near Hillcrest.

"In plain view, (I) could see two large potted plants, one in the back seat and one on the front passenger seat," reported the officer. "The suspect was obviously nervous. Her hands were shaking. (She) claimed she purchased the plants."

No receipt. "(She) claimed it was all a misunderstanding," the officer added. "She became increasingly emotional and cried. She would say she was a good person and she made a mistake."

He searched the car.

"In the trunk were pumpkins as well as several bouquets of roses that were stolen as well," he said, releasing her to Woods authorities.

Bike taken

An unlocked Trek 820 mountain bike reportedly was stolen between 7:55 a.m. and 6:15 p.m. Tuesday, Sept. 22, from racks on the Fisher side of Grosse Pointe South High School.

The bike has a speedometer and is gray, black and red.

Door drilled

Strange damage to the wooden front door of a residence in the 400 block of Champine Place has the homeowner and public safety officers suspecting attempted home invasion.

Late afternoon Tuesday, Sept. 22, the resident showed police a small hole and pry marks near the door handle.

"(I) looked through the hole and observed scratch marks on the metal components inside," said the officer.

The house was unoccupied the prior weekend, the resident told police.

Line cut

An investigation of alleged malicious destruction of property in the 400 block of Colonial Court may explain recent problems on the block with telecommunications and power service.

A male homeowner, 86, admitted cutting a fiber optic cable jury-rigged behind his house due to a sagging electrical power line.

A telecommunications company repairman told police cable service failed about 8 a.m. Sunday, Sept. 20.

"(He) indicated there has been an ongoing problem for eight months with the telecommunications and power lines on this block," said the officer. "The cable appeared to be cut clean through as through it had been cut with a tool."

"That was me," the resident reportedly admitted to the officer. "I cut it with a pair of side cutters."

The cable is near a power line that sags so much it's unsafe to fix the cable, the repairman told police.

"The telecommunications line was temporarily hung offset from the pole so telecommunications service could be provided," said the officer.

"(The resident) felt the line resting on the (power) line to his house compromised the safety of his household," said the officer. "(He) indicated he was frustrated with the lack of action on the part of the telecommunications company to respond to several requests for service."

There was no arrest.

Grosse Pointe Shores

Super drunk

A man claiming, "I have had nothing to drink," registered a .383 percent blood alcohol level prior to being arrested for driving while intoxicated on southbound Lakeshore near Clairview, according to the public safety officer involved.

The level is nearly five times the state legal maximum to operate a motor vehicle.

Per department policy for people with high blood alcohol content, medics took the man, 70, from Hamtramck, to a hospital.

Barking residents

More than a few Grosse Pointe Park residents were ticked when the parks and recreation commission took a second vote on where they suggest a dog park be placed. The first vote was Patterson Park, followed by one after residents left, approving Mack and Wayburn as their suggestion. Now the council has tackled the issue, with the mayor saying the Sept. 9 parks meeting may not have been handled right. We agree. Transparency is important at every level. Stay tuned for more.

Pure Grosse Pointe

It's always a good time when Grosse Pointe South and Grosse Pointe North square off in football. This year, South will have bragging rights after a win Friday, Sept. 25. More about the game on page 1C.

I SAY By Jody McVeigh

A boost in a great community

I've been reinvigorated. I know it sounds silly, but I truly feel like joining the staff of the Grosse Pointe News has brought my career back to life. I'm approaching six months with the paper — six months of getting to know my new co-workers, the community, the readers. It's been a wonderful ride and I feel truly blessed to have this opportunity. I started my career in 1997, hired at Macomb County's Advisor & Source newspapers right out of college. For 18 years, I worked in several capacities, starting as an editorial assistant, spending several years covering the Utica Community Schools and Warren Consolidated Schools districts, then being named associate editor and finally editor for my last eight years on staff. I worked with an interesting cast of characters, from a painfully shy features writer to a boisterous and short-tempered associate editor who didn't know how to use an inside voice. While on staff there, my co-workers and I would have movie nights and game nights and dinners out. I formed friendships at that Macomb County weekly that are still strong today. There are a few former co-workers I still see once a month for dinner and a movie, though we haven't worked together in three or four years. After 18 years, however, the job burnout was overwhelming. Most of my friends had moved on, the job was repetitive and dull and in an effort to streamline, corporate reorganization took away many of the responsibilities I loved, making it nearly impossible for me to be excited about going to work. Little did I know just a few miles down the road, Ann Fouty was mulling her retirement. And her editor, Joe Warner, who was a part of the team who hired me at the Advisor & Source nearly two decades ago, was thinking of once again adding me to his team. There was a phone call, then a meeting, then a job offer and the rest, as they say, is history. During these last few months as community editor of the Grosse Pointe News, I've fallen in love with this community. I am out in it nearly every day, meeting the amazing people who make Grosse Pointe what it is. The words "charming," "quaint" and "welcoming" float in my mind. My first day started with a meeting at Morning Glory on the Hill and I remember needing my GPS to find it. Since then, I've met so many interviewees there, I can find it in my sleep. As a bit of a foodie, I try to acquaint myself with a new restaurant at least once a week and have yet to be disappointed with the fare I've selected. I'm getting to know the businesses and organizations that have been mainstays in the area as the newspaper celebrates its 75th anniversary and we celebrate the longevity of those around us. My new co-workers are fabulous and I've enjoyed getting to know some of them outside of the office, during lunches and at after-hours events. But my favorite part — what really makes Grosse Pointe tick — is its residents. I've met so many thoughtful, interesting, gifted, philanthropic, charming people since starting this job. I've written about their endeavors, dreams and talents. I've enjoyed every interview and I look forward to continuing this path, meeting more Grosse Pointers and sharing their stories with our readers. I am certainly full of gratitude, to the community for its warm welcome, to Joe for the opportunity and to the wonderful people I've met and have yet to meet. I'm excited each morning to come to work, to go on that next assignment and to learn more about what makes Grosse Pointe tick. After all, I've been reinvigorated. REPORTS:

He has two prior drunken driving convictions, making this a felony.

A mess

A man fought police trying to book him at headquarters for drunken driving, they said, adding charges of assault and battery, resisting police and malicious destruction of property. An officer patrolling Lakeshore initially questioned him for exiting his 2000 Pontiac near the foot of Willison at 1:22 a.m. Saturday, Sept. 19. "(He) made statements indicating he stopped to urinate," reported the arresting officer. Upon registering a .15 percent blood alcohol level, the officer put him in custody. "While handcuffing (him), his attitude and demeanor quickly turned into anger," said the officer. At headquarters, the man, wrists cuffed behind his back, removed his pants and shoes, threatening to urinate. "(He) attempted to place his hands in front of his body," said an officer. "However, he became stuck with his hands underneath him. (He) fell to the floor in his puddle of urine."

Hits tree

Police impounded the black 2014 Ford Mustang a 24-year-old hometown man bought prior to getting drunk and hitting a tree in the area of Clairview and Shelden at 1 a.m. Sunday, Sept. 20, according to an initial incident report. Police described it as an "uncontrolled rest into a tree." "(He) indicated he was driving his new auto when he lost control," reported one of several public safety officers on scene. "There was extensive damage to the front end. All air bags were deployed." The driver wasn't injured. He was arrested for having a .14 percent blood alcohol level. A passenger left the scene prior to officers' arrival, the driver reportedly told police.

A Lochmoor resident is credited with helping catch two young bicycle thieves, brothers aged 12 and 14. According to police, at noon, Tuesday, Sept. 22, the resident observed the two boys riding on one bicycle up and down the street. They appeared to be looking up driveways of houses as they passed. At one house, the boys stopped and one walked up the driveway, only to ride back down the drive-

Art students take show on the road

By Mary Anne Brush

Pierce Middle School art teacher Jane Plieth took her students on the road Friday, Sept. 25, for a special class assignment. The seventh and eighth graders rode the Grosse Pointe Trolley, or “K-Line,” to the Grosse Pointe Art Center to view the “Signs and Symbols” exhibition.

“What better way to showcase our small-town feel and community support than to take the trolley just a mile down to our community arts center?” Plieth asked.

Students engaged in a visual thinking strategy session while at the exhibit, with each selecting one piece and writing a brief comment or reaction. The goal, according to Plieth, was for the students to improve their critical thinking skills and build upon their creative palette.

Seventh grader Alex Ware selected a 3-dimensional mixed media construction piece by artist

Tony Skopinski. “I’m really into computers and technology and I really like the creativity (the artist) put into this,” Ware said. “It’s a large representation of a circuit board and an SD drive storing data on the spheres.”

An oil painting of a horse entitled “Horse-Bright Future,” by Lulu Zheng, caught several students’ imaginations. “It looks like something from mythology,” said seventh-grader Demetri Papas. “If it was real, I would ride it everywhere.”

Seventh-grader Autumn Hughes chose “The Cardinal,” an acrylic by Delphine Iwankowski. “It’s abstract,” said

Hughes. “When I first looked at it, I thought about emotions.”

Plieth, formerly a sculptor at General Motors now enjoying her first experience teaching art at Pierce, called it her dream job. “I want the kids to know I love them, I’m here for them and they are free to express themselves,” she said. “These kids are so elevated in their learning and absorbing everything. My philosophy is to think differently, explore and make mistakes.”

Liggett receives grant for history class

University Liggett School’s innovative 10th-grade U.S. history class, which teaches history through the lens of Detroit and the region, was recognized with a $40,000 grant from Boca Raton, Fla.-based Benedict Foundation for Independent Schools.

Liggett was one of only 10 schools in the country to receive the grant, which will be used to further develop and implement the school’s 10th-grade place-based U.S. history class launched last fall.

In the class, the Detroit area becomes an extension of the classroom, as students examine local and regional case studies that illustrate the large themes of U.S. history and go on a series of site visits in which they act as historians rather than tourists. While most U.S. history classes begin their study of U.S. history by learning about the English colonists who arrived at Jamestown, Liggett’s class takes a different, more locally relevant approach: It looks at the French explorers who settled among the Native Americans in the region and the founding of early Detroit, as well as gives students an opportunity to explore historic attractions in the region, including St. Anne’s

Church in Detroit and the River Raisin Battlefield in Monroe.

“Why should students from our region be able to speak authoritatively about life in colonial Boston yet know nothing about the French ribbon farms that were thriving at the same time in the very place they live and play?” said Bart Bronk, associate head of school for academics. “Liggett’s place-based U.S. history class replaces the time-worn narrative about New England settlers that students already learned in elementary and middle school with a more relevant and local case study. This grant gives us an opportunity to further develop such regional experiences for the students.”

The grant will help fund opportunities for faculty to seek and attend content- and pedagogy-oriented professional development offerings such as those offered by the National Endowment for the Humanities. The grant also will look at how other 10th-grade classes can further align with the course philosophy, as well as provide opportunities for an overnight trip for the students to further explore the region and the state.

Last year’s site visits included exploring the Sanilac Petroglyphs, Michigan’s only known native rock carvings; the Ford Piquette Avenue Plant, where Henry Ford developed the Model T; and the Guardian and Whitney buildings, two examples of early 20th century architecture indicating the incredible wealth of Detroit.

Students awarded

Columbia Scholastic Press Association, an international student press association, recently announced winners from its Gold Circle Awards program for the 2014-2015 academic year. Five students from Grosse Pointe North High School, out of a total of 11 from Michigan and more than 11,000 entries for all categories from colleges, universities and secondary schools throughout the United States, received top honors.

Placing third were junior Audrey Kam, general humor or commentary and senior Haley Reid, entertainment reviews. All five students served as editors for “North Pointe,” which is produced by advanced journalism students at North.

And the winner is ...

Grosse Pointe's got talent in Mary Reinman

By Jody McVeigh
Community Editor

Mary Reinman has a hard time sitting still. The 16-year-old Grosse Pointe Farms resident has been playing piano since age 3, began writing music in second grade and now performs whenever she has a chance. "I spend so much time singing and dancing and having fun," she said. "Music has become my main passion."

She plays piano and guitar most often, but also dabbles in drums, ukulele, flute, bass, violin and saxophone. She sings with the Pointe Singers at Grosse Pointe South High School and participates in Summer Select and That's Entertainment choir workshops. She also was cast as the lead in South's upcoming production of "Murder in the Wings."

A host of her performances are on YouTube and she, like her parents, participates in the Grosse Pointe Theatre. She won a Michigan Music Educators Association Honors Composition Award two years ago for one of the first songs she ever wrote.

"Because I write music, it's a wonderful way to express myself," she said.

Mary Reinman performed her original song, "Lonely Kid," to win the Grosse Pointe's Got Talent competition during VillageFest.

"There are different cadences in music. You can express so much without words. The theory side of music is what really makes it interesting. Then, you add words to it and it makes it so much more than just speaking."

Most recently, Reinman competed in — and won — the Grosse Pointe's Got Talent competition during VillageFest.

Her decision to enter the contest was "spur of the moment" after a family friend suggested it. Her father uploaded her rendition of "Til There Was You," recorded during a summer choir program. She was selected to perform and took the stage with an original song.

"Once I got there, it was pretty fun," said Reinman, who describes her sound as "punk pop." "Everyone was really unique, performing all types of music. When I was singing, it was really cool. I hadn't sung an original song to a group of people before."

Reinman wrote the song, "Lonely Kid," a year ago. "It came from the heart, but it's more of a fun song. It's where everyone starts: What am I going to be? I just want to have fun and be myself. It's big. It embodies the person I am."

"I'm always nervous wondering, 'Are people going to like this song? Are they going to accept it?' Having such a positive reaction to the song felt amazing."

Reinman said she hopes to get her original music on iTunes, then professionally record it.

"I'd like to be traveling the world and singing to people who like my music, who relate to it," she said. "I want it to mean something to people."

"It's the only thing I can see myself doing," she continued. "I'm in all honors and AP classes. I have a passion for academics, but I can't in a million years see myself going into something that's not music. It's so important to me that I don't really want to do anything else."

Reinman gets plenty of support from her parents, Tim and Marie Boyle Reinman.

"She's constantly singing and dancing. She never sits still," said her father. "We're very proud of her."

Reinman next will perform during the Pinktastic Girls Night Out event Thursday, Oct. 8, in the Village. For information, visit the villagegp.com.

Atkins: Creating human harmony is an inside job

By Jody McVeigh
Community Editor

Elizabeth Atkins is a triumph. She wants to share her successes to help others overcome their struggles. With her cable program, MI Healthy Mind, she's doing just that.

"The show aims to get people talking about issues that are difficult," she said, "issues that make people feel ashamed, afraid, embarrassed .... We're showcasing real people who have triumphed over these problems and also have experts who discuss causes, treatments, action plans and resources.

"The show is very substantive, yet presented in a way that's palatable, easy to understand and engaging."

The Sunday, Oct. 11, episode features former Detroit Lions wide receiver Herman Moore. He'll discuss his involvement in programs for youth that help keep them out of trouble and boost self-esteem.

Team Wellness Center sponsors the show. Michael Hunter, a member of its advisory board, co-hosts with Atkins, a Grosse Pointe Woods resident.

"My mission is cultivating human harmony," Atkins said. It's a subject with which she's familiar.

Her father was a Roman Catholic priest who left the church to start a family. Of French, English and Cherokee descent, he married a black Italian woman. They were excommunicated, Atkins said.

"And then I came along. I believe I was born for a reason—to bring people together, to serve as a bridge. I am the melting pot. It puts me in a position where I can put people together."

It wasn't always that easy, she said. While at the University of Michigan, Atkins struggled with her identity and felt she didn't fit in until she joined a group for mixed-race students. While at Columbia University, she wrote her master's thesis about her struggle, which was published in the New York Times.

After that, she covered

What's An Investor To Do?

Suzanne Antonelli, CFP®
Senior Portfolio Manager

We have anticipated for quite some time that the market would eventually step back and take a breath; unfortunately without a crystal ball it is impossible to predict with any certainty. August proved a very rough month for equity investors, and September experienced similar declines. The returns for August shown in the following table tell the story:

	Month	YTD	12 Months
DOMESTIC STOCKS
S&P 500	-6.03	-2.88	.048
S&P MidCap	-5.58	-1.48	0.01
S&P SmallCap	-5.18	-2.07	1.80
INTERNATIONAL
MSCI EAFE	-7.36	-0.21	-7.47
MSCI Emerging Markets	-9.04	-12.85	-22.95
BONDS
Barclays US Aggregate	-0.14	0.45	1.56

Data: FactSet Research Systems (8/31/15)

The question on many investors' minds is whether the current weakness is a correction or the beginning of a crash. My position is that this is a healthy correction, not a crash, and well within historic norms: since 1950 there have been 22 market corrections (defined as a 10% or greater decline in the index) not including

August 2015; the average correction lasted 4.4 months; the average time between corrections was 14.5 months and -14.2% is the average decline.

The S&P 500 almost doubled in value from March 2009 through March 2013 and offered an average annual return of more than 20%. It would be unrealistic to believe that this kind of lofty double digit return could continue indefinitely without some break. The market has not experienced a correction since 2011 and was well overdue.

Nothing has changed fundamentally in the past several months. Corporate profits are still strong (not stellar, but strong), unemployment and consumer spending continues to improve, auto and home sales remain strong, corporate balance sheets are healthier carrying less debt and increasing margins, interest rates remain low, and the world will continue to grow. It is normal for markets to go up and down, and sometimes the pendulum swings are big, such as we are experiencing now.

I am under no illusion that the market will be able to quickly shake off the negative sentiment that currently exists. As I and my colleagues at Sigma have written extensively in our newsletters and blogs, it is nearly impossible to time these events with any accuracy. You have to be correct on two decisions – when to get out and when to get back in; this exercise nearly guarantees poor performance relative to a buy/hold and reallocation strategy. Thus, I strongly recommend staying the course, selling stocks back to target when the market is advancing and buying stocks during times of weakness. It appears there will be continued declines in the market, but there are good values for long term investors. Patience, diversification, and a strong constitution are the most efficient way to build wealth in the long-term.

All questions and comments are welcome.

Beaumont breaks ground on medical office building

Construction is set to begin on a new medical office building on the campus of Beaumont Hospital, Grosse Pointe. The two-story, 60,000-square-foot structure will house doctors' offices on the first and second floors. A lower level will provide a new home for outpatient services currently located in the main hospital, such as endoscopy, wound care and various outpatient labs.

This relocation of services opens up space to create an additional 20 to 22 private, in-patient hospital rooms, including 11 medical-surgical rooms and six intermediate intensive care rooms.

The building owner and developer is Landmark Healthcare Facilities LLC.

"Anytime we provide additional space for private patient rooms, we improve opportunities for healing, decrease disruption, infection rates and ultimately length of stay, while creating a greater atmosphere of comfort," said Rick Swaine, senior vice president and hospital president for Beaumont Hospital, Grosse Pointe.

Creating space for physician offices on campus will also enhance patient care by improving access for hospital physicians. "Our doctors will be able to take advantage of quicker and more convenient access to hospital services and improved response time for their patients," Swaine said.

The community will benefit as well, said Dr. Donna Hoban, senior vice president and physician-in-chief.

"Patients will now have shorter drives to see their physicians," Hoban said.

A Sept. 23 groundbreaking event, opened with an invocation from Fr. Richard Bartoszek, director of pastoral care, included comments from Swaine, Hoban and Joseph Checota, CEO for Landmark Healthcare Facilities.

Assistance League recognized

The Northeast Guidance Center board and staff recognized members of the Assistance League for their many years of dedication, volunteerism and fundraising on behalf of NEGC's children's services with a reception and plaque presentation at the children's center in Detroit.

The building that houses the children's center was purchased and built using AL-NEGC funds raised through the Detroit area dealerships' auto show charity preview. The Assistance League produced the "Art on the Pointe" art show for 20 years at the Eleanor and Edsel Ford House, in addition to providing volunteer mailing, secretarial services and other creative fundraisers for the community to benefit the NEGC. The league's work enhanced the services of NEGC and brought crucial awareness to the agency's children's programs from the dollars raised.

In addition to the tribute plaque, which will be installed at the children's center Kelly Road location, Assistance League volunteers were thrilled to know the building will be re-named after their first executive director, Eli Z. Rubin.

Q: I feel like my teen is forever on a screen of some sort: phone, iPad, gaming. It's too much. Why don't kids just go out and play anymore?

A: Teenage years are a time when kids naturally crave that social time with friends as they begin to pull away from their parents and develop their own identity. The familiar story of our generation hanging out on the street until the streetlights came on doesn't seem to hold true for this generation in the same way. Today's kids are far more programmed with sports, activities and homework. Consequently, their "free time" is frequently far more limited. Often one teen's free time does not line up with their friends' free time, but that developmental need to pull away and socialize together has not changed.

Technology, and in particular social media, in many ways is a modern solution to an old challenge. It is extremely popular for many reasons, but asynchronous messaging on social media independent of real-time communication allows for kids to hang out or to join in the "conversation" at their convenience, creating that shared social experience that is a big part of the teen years. The challenge for parents is in guiding kids because we cannot relate to the online experience when growing up. We were more likely to spend hours on a phone that had a 20-foot cord. However, it is important we do not abdicate this responsibility for our kids developing proper use of technology, thinking critically and engaging responsibly, along with going outside to play.

A healing presence yields better care, better health

By Bob Cummings
Describer

"Hello, professor!"

Those two words were all it took to begin the healing process.

The public health care discussion increasingly includes more patient-centered care — care that comforts and heals. Hospitals in Michigan and around the country are giving more attention to what patients want. This care includes more and better listening and increased individual attention.

For example, Beaumont Hospital's philosophy of care includes treating everyone with dignity and respect. It has a Joy Committee that seeks to bring joy to patients and staff.

"It is not enough to just cure the infection or bandage the wound. We must care for the patient," says Dr. Alan Briskin in the book, "Daily Miracles — Stories and Practices of Humanity and Excellence in Health Care," which he co-authored with Jan Boller.

One account in "Daily Miracles" involves Irene Arcibal, a nurse who was caring for an unresponsive patient in the critical care unit. Curious about a black book on the patient's night table she thought might be a Bible, she found it was actually a psychology book written by the patient, who had been a professor at UCLA.

She relates, "I went into my patient's room and softly said, 'Hello, professor!' He opened his eyes, grabbed my hands and then tears started coming out of his eyes. He smiled at me and squeezed my hands." She concludes, "I believe that at that moment, I gave back to my patient his individuality and possibly his whole life."

Briskin says, "A healing presence acknowledges the dignity and humanity of the other." He also talks of "divinity," and of "sacred space" as "places where ... the finite world touches the infinite."

This idea of the divine healing presence in which we feel God's love resonates with many people, including me. It's described by Samuel Longfellow in a hymn I love:

"I feel Thy touch, eternal Love,
And all is well again ...
Thy calmness bends serene above,
My restlessness to still;
Around me flows Thy quickening life

To nerve my faltering will;

Thy presence fills my solitude;

Thy providence turns all to good."

When "Hello, professor" opportunities come, everyone can participate — in some way — in a healing presence.

Grosse Pointe Unitarian Church selects new minister

Members of Grosse Pointe Unitarian Church selected the Rev. Dr. Alexander Riegel as their settled minister in May. Riegel served as the consulting minister for the church since September 2014, following the departure of the previous minister.

Riegel comes to Grosse Pointe Unitarian Church with more than 25 years of experience serving Unitarian Universalist congregations. A graduate of Harvard Divinity School with two master's degrees and a doctorate degree from Andover Newton Theological School, Riegel grounds his religious thinking in Hinduism, Buddhism, Christianity, Sufism, Judaism and Taoism, as well as Western philosophers and poets, especially those who represent the mystical stream that is the source of the world's great religions.

Prior to his service at Grosse Pointe Unitarian Church, he served as minister of the Unitarian Universalist Church of Farmington Hills for 12 years. He also is the founder and director of Return to the Mystic, a center for interspiritual study and practice, and will continue that work along with his ministerial duties at Grosse Pointe Unitarian Church.

"Dr. Riegel has introduced our members to a rich blend of Unitarian Universalism, eastern religions and philosophy during his Sunday sermons. His personal style has attracted new members while engaging long-term members. He has been a real asset to the church this past year and we look forward to many years of his leadership and spiritual nourishment," said Robin Ramsay, president of the church's board of directors.

The church held an installation event for Riegel Sunday, Sept. 27, at the church, 17150 Maumee, City of Grosse Pointe.

"This congregation embraces learning and spirituality. They are giving of themselves to both the church and the community. I've had a wonderful year growing with them and have plans to make the Grosse Pointe Unitarian Church a beacon for liberal religion," Riegel said.

The Rev. Peter Henry recently spoke at the Ecumenical Men's Breakfast.

Henry speaks about recent trip to Israel

A group from Grosse Pointe Memorial Church witnessed the personal losses and the spiral of violence of both Palestine and Israel on a recent trip to Israel.

The 12-day trip was organized and led through the Pilgrims of Ibillin, a group that supports interfaith education in Israel and the West Bank. It included visits to Jerusalem, Bethlehem, the Dead Sea, the West Bank and Ibillin.

"No matter what side you live on, people are not free," said the Rev. Dr. Peter J.M. Henry, pastor of Grosse Pointe Memorial Church, who spoke to the Ecumenical Men's Breakfast Friday, Sept. 11, at the church. "People live in fear. There are strict rules where you can be and what you can do."

King Solomon's temple

still has a rule where only men can pray there, though you will see protests from women, he said. The travel group attended a worship service underneath the separation barrier.

Mission participants met many people who had personal stories.

"People are the living stones," said Archbishop Elias Chacour from Ibillin, a small Arab village in the Galilee region, near Nazareth, where Christians and Muslims have lived together peacefully for hundreds of years. "People of the land have their stories to tell."

The group met two brothers, one an Israeli Jew and the other a Palestinian Christian, who had both suffered the death of a child. They supported one another, becoming true friends and ignoring their religious differences. The group also met a family who lost an 18-month-old child who burned to death in a fire-bombed home.

"Could this galvanize people?" asked Henry. "Israel and Palestine have a long way to go to achieve peace. We came home deeply concerned about the way forward."

Biblical Israel ended in 1948 and modern Israel is built on its ancient ruins, said Henry. However, the 4,000-year-old Jacob's Well is still there. "To this day you can go down steps and draw water from this well."

The Ecumenical Men's Breakfast meets at 7:15 a.m. every Friday at Grosse Pointe Memorial Church, 16 Lakeshore, Grosse Pointe Farms. All are welcome.

Fox Creek Questers tour historic home

Members of Fox Creek Questers No. 216 of Grosse Pointe attended last month's program at the historic Cadieux Farmhouse, hosted by Dr. Leslie Kaye, who lectured on the history of the building and its recent move from Beaumont Hospital, Grosse Pointe property to its present home nearby in the City of Grosse Pointe.

Refreshments and a tour of the home followed. Fox Creek will celebrate its 50th anniversary Thursday, Oct. 1, with a tour of the Edsel and Eleanor Ford House in Grosse Pointe Shores, followed by a luncheon and festivities on the premises. For information about East Area Questers, call Georgie LeDuc at (313) 343-0893.

Family Center hosts popUPprograms

The Family Center, with psychotherapist Megan Gunnell and her husband, Freeman Gunnell, owner of Cornwall Bakery, offers a trio of culinary programs that hone kitchen skills as well as personal growth.

The series, popUPprograms at Cornwall Bakery, begins at 6:30 p.m. Monday, Oct. 12, with "Oil & Vinegar Salad Dressing Class — How to Prevent Separation in Salad and in Life."

"Last winter, I decided to take Freeman's bread-making class as a student to experience it myself instead of working behind the scenes," Megan Gunnell said. "As I was following along in the class, I began to think about the class from the angle of my profession."

From the class, she said she learned a few things:

◆ "It's important to invest in life experiences, especially in the realm of something outside your comfort zone."

◆ "We have poured our hearts and souls into this project and one of the most beautiful and surprising components we both never really created with intention was a sense of community."

◆ "Making artisan bread is quite a process that strikes a fragile balance between art and science."

◆ "It suddenly occurred to me halfway through the evening to combine my expertise with Freeman's and offer classes and workshops that involve a creative component like cooking or bread making with a reflective element for self-development, too."

The couple have co-led wellness retreats and enjoy combining food and mindfulness for insight and discovery, Gunnell said.

"As a therapist, I realize the importance of taking healthy risks. Doing things outside our comfort zone helps us expand our self-esteem and confidence. In addition, the classes also naturally create a beautiful sense of community that I feel most people enjoy taking part in. Whether you attend a class alone or with a friend, you all work together throughout the evening to create something delicious that you may have not been able to do on your own."

The series continues Monday, Oct. 26, with "Bread & Butter — Baking & the Art of Mindful Living." It wraps up Monday, Nov. 2, with "Making a Torte Start to Finish — Confronting Your Challenges Through Buttercream."

"The three classes we have created for this fall take students through a soulful and thought-provoking dialogue about incorporating mindfulness practices into your daily life, enhancing communication in relationships and confronting challenges and fears," Gunnell said.

Program costs vary. Cornwall Bakery is located at 15215 Kercheval, Grosse Pointe Park.

Space is limited and registration is required. Register online at cornwallbakery.com/classes or by calling (313) 264-1938.

A LA ANNIE By Annie Rouleau-Scheriff

Long Island Baked Clams

I spent the entire summer on Long Island, N.Y. Seaford Harbor to be exact. I was managing a seasonal seafood restaurant that is nestled in the harbor called Crabby Amy's. I've known Crabby for going on 30 years. Her little seafood shack pumps out more local clams and oysters than you can imagine. Amy gets her clams from Kevin the "clammer," a longtime friend of mine. He hooked me up with clams every time I returned home for a visit. This time was no different.

I've steamed Kevin's clams in tomato wine broth, made Manhattan clam chowder and linguine with white clam sauce. For my final take on the freshest clams I'll be consuming for quite some time, I'm preparing whole-baked clams on the half shell, a la Annie.

Long Island Baked Clams on the Half Shell

3 dozen little-neck or top-neck clams
a piece of cheese cloth
2 tablespoons olive oil
4 oz. finely chopped pancetta
2/3 cup panko bread crumbs
1/3 cup grated Parmesan cheese
1/2 teaspoon dried oregano pinch of black pepper
1/2 cup white wine

Scrub the clams well under cold water. Bring about 2 inches of water in a large pot to a boil. Add all of the clams and cover the pot. Wait 7 to 8 minutes, then check to see if any of the clams have started to open. You want to pluck the clams from the shells as soon as they open, carefully with a large spoon. If none of the clams have opened, be patient; they will. When the steamed clams are cool enough to handle, pull off the top half of each shell, leaving the clams nestled in the bottom half of the shell.

Place the clams in a shallow baking dish, side by side. Pour the cooking liquid through the cheese cloth, then drizzle a bit of the liquid over the clams to keep them from drying out. This will add a natural salt flavor to the clams.

In a medium skillet, heat the olive oil. Add the pancetta and cook for a few minutes, stirring often. Add the panko and cook for a few more minutes. Add the Parmesan cheese along with the oregano and black pepper. Cook for another minute or two, then remove from the heat. If the mixture seems dry, add a bit more olive oil.

Preheat the broiler to high. Spoon some of the mixture over each of the clams, filling the entire shell. Gently pack the mixture around the clams. Drizzle some white wine over the top of the clams, then place on the center rack of the oven. Broil for 5 minutes or so, just until the clams are beginning to brown. Actual cook time will vary from oven to oven. Take care not to overcook the clams.

Serve them hot from the oven with a nice Sauvignon blanc.

Even though your clams won't be as fresh as mine, this is a great way to try something a little different from the seafood department.

It's been over 20 years since I've spent a summer on Long Island. It was like being in the middle of a Billy Joel song. But it sure feels good to be home.

SEVERAL OPTIONS FOR TREATING WARTS

By Lisa A. Manz-Dulac, MD

Warts are non-cancerous viral growths that can appear almost anywhere on our bodies. There are numerous ways to treat warts, taking into consideration the type, the site and size of wart, and the age of the patient.

Warts are usually "destroyed" rather than surgically removed. The most common destruction method is cryotherapy which uses liquid nitrogen to freeze the wart.

Other destruction methods include cantharadin and salicylic acid to form blisters to remove the lesion. Warts may be injected with bleomycin, a chemotherapy medication. Lasers can also be used, although with mixed results. And stubborn or large warts may require excision.

Warts can often be difficult to cure. Multiple treatments are almost always required.

spearheading the drive for a park, concerns expressed by city officials about the cost of a park led them to put together a proposal that kept costs manageable. But it appeared that was not what city officials wanted to hear, with several saying that if the Park is put in a park, it should be better than the one located in Grosse Pointe Farms. The cost of that park was $300,000. With that in mind, they commissioned the designer of the Farms dog park to put together a proposal for the Mack and Wayburn location. Her proposal, incorporating many of the materials and ideas used by the Farms, was estimated to cost $150,000 to $200,000. The proposal put together by Bannon and Kudzia was priced between $20,000 and $30,000. Clark spoke in favor of spending the money for the Mack and Wayburn site. "I don't want to see a low end dog park at our high end park," he said. "We'll make sure our park is of the highest standards and it will surpass the Farms. It will be a wonderful capital improvement." Theokas said the Mack and Wayburn site could enhance the look of the border area and would serve as a complement to the community garden area. He said that the Park could remove a city-owned house to allow for more room. He said there are no concerns with security among the garden members. He also said putting a park at the location would improve the looks of the border area with Detroit. Park resident Paul Schaap, agreed with Theokas. "Let's build a park at Mack and Wayburn, let's be creative," he said. "Let's push our boundaries." Schaap, a long-time donor to Park projects, also said he and his wife would participate in fund raising for the site. Councilman Bob Denner agreed with the Mack and Wayburn site. "It's clear that Patterson Park is everyone's favorite park for everything," he said, "but I think a large portion of our residents will object to us carving it up even more than we already have. We have done a lot of things that, in spite of bad press, have strengthened our neighborhoods.

We have taken risks, which is why we should pursue the Mack and Wayburn site." But even as the question of where a dog park should be located, at least one resident questioned if a park was even needed. Longtime Park benefactor Paul Lavins, whose name graces the building the meeting was held in, voiced his opposition to a park. "We don't need one," he said. "We have streets where people can walk their dogs. We have 11,000 residents and 300 dogs. Only 180 people signed the petition in favor of a dog park. I don't know why the minority should decide this. I don't want my tax dollars to be used to build a dog park. But if we have to have one, Mack and Wayburn is the best site."

After nearly three hours, the council agreed to send the issue to the city's planning commission because of issues with city-owned houses and other property.

The planning commission's next meeting is scheduled for 10 a.m. Thursday, Oct. 15 in the city council chambers in the city hall.

Following the meeting, Bannon said he was disappointed.

"This is not what the dog owners wanted," he said. "We have been beaten ragged and dragged through the mud by the parks and recreation commission.

There are real negatives to the Mack and Wayburn site. Dogs and their owners should not be considered a deterrent to crime. City officials would not even let us see the plans before tonight's meeting. How is that community involvement?"

Woods FD hosts Fire Safety Open House

Smoke alarms save lives. If there is a fire in your home, smoke spreads fast and you need smoke alarms to give you time to get out. The importance of properly locating smoke detectors is the theme of this year's Fire Prevention Week, Oct. 4 to 10.

The Grosse Pointe Woods Department of Public Safety invites the community to learn more at its annual Fire Safety Open House noon to 4 p.m. Sunday, Oct. 4. A rain date is scheduled for Saturday, Oct. 10.

The event is free of charge and provides children and adults with critical information on fire safety and prevention. Attendees have the opportunity to interact with police and fire personnel and learn valuable tips that could save a life in an emergency.

A working smoke alarm cuts the risk of death due to a fire in the home by half. The key message of this year's Fire Prevention Week campaign is to install smoke alarms in every bedroom, outside each separate sleeping area and on every level of the home, including the basement. Larger homes may need more alarms.

The National Fire Protection Association reports that roughly half of home fire deaths result from fires reported between 11 p.m. and 7 a.m., when most people are asleep.

Fire Prevention Week was established in 1922 to commemorate the great Chicago Fire of 1871 that killed more than 250 people, destroyed more than 17,400 structures and burned more than 2,000 acres.

PROTECTING YOUR CASTLE:

Fall Fire Prevention Tips

By Ed Lazar
State Farm® agent

There is nothing more important than the safety of your family. Everyone in your home needs to know how to behave responsibly to reduce the likelihood of experiencing a fire. However, because fires can start at any time without warning, it is also very important that the members of your household know how to react in the event of a fire. It's a good idea to review fire prevention and safety tips with your family every fall, and several other times throughout the year.

- Smoke Detectors – It's a good idea to change the batteries in your smoke detectors once or twice a year. To help remember when to do this, every time you change the clocks (each spring and fall), change the batteries!

- Fire Extinguishers – Similarly to the first tip, make sure your extinguishers are in working order.

- Central Heating – Have your heating system cleaned and inspected.

- Space Heaters – Make sure there is nothing within 3 feet of a space heater and never place clothing on them to dry.

- Chimneys and Fireplaces – Sweep out your chimney each fall before your first fire. Also, be sure to use a screen to keep all debris in the fire place.

- Fall Decorations – Use flashlights in Jack-o-lanterns instead of candles. Also, verify that lights and extension cords have been properly tested for such use.

- Family Safety – Teach your children about the "stop, drop, and roll" as well as how to dial 911 in case of fire.

Make sure your homeowner's policy is up to date so that you will be covered if you ever did have a fire.

South regains bragging rights

By Bob St. John
Sports Editor

One big defensive play turned a potential nail-biter into a convincing 25-6 victory for Grosse Pointe South in the annual rivalry game against Grosse Pointe North last weekend.

A standing-room only crowd attended the game at North under perfect playing conditions.

"This rivalry game with North is great for the fans, the kids and the entire Grosse Pointe community," South head coach Tim Brandon said. "It's a tough week for the coaches. We don't get much sleep getting together a game plan and making sure everyone is ready to go."

"Our coordinators put in a few wrinkles on offense, which helped, and the defense played great."

The play of the game came late in the third quarter with the Norsemen on the move.

South led 18-6, but a North touchdown would cut it to 18-12 and keep it close.

However, the play came when Norsemen fullback Jared Jordan was trying to run for an extra yard with a host of Blue Devils tacklers taking him down.

During the tackle, South senior linebacker Adam Elbadawl ripped the ball from Jordan and raced 60 yards for the touchdown.

Sophomore Cameron Shook kicked the extra point and it was suddenly 25-6 and all the momentum went back to the Blue Devils.

"That was a huge play," Brandon said. "That was a huge stop because North had some momentum going on the drive."

South defensive coordinator Chad Hepner watched his linemen put a ton of pressure on North sophomore quarterback Bjorn Bjornsson, as well as backup, Emanuel Pinkney, who finished the Norsemen's final series.

The Blue Devils finished with two sacks by senior Patrick Nauert, one fumble recovery by Elbadawl and two interceptions by seniors David Burnett and Andrew Trost.

For South, junior quarterback Logan Mico was 7-of-13 for 110 yards, two touchdowns and one interception and ran for 28 yards on nine carries, while Trost had four receptions for 51 yards and both touchdowns, plus returned three punts for 33 yards.

North head coach Frank Sumner watched his defense, led by coordinator Nick Thomson, give up only 187 total yards and Bjornsson had an interception in the first half.

Senior running back LaTorriss Greer had 74 yards on 26 carries with one touchdown and Bjornsson completed 7-of-10 passes for 150 yards.

South scored first on a 7-yard pass from Mico to Trost and Shook kicked the extra point.

Greer scored on a short run, which capped a 98-yard Norsemen drive in the second quarter.

However, the PAT was blocked by junior George Brophy to make it a 7-6 game.

Shook kicked a 29-yard field goal and the duo of Mico to Trost accounted for another touchdown. Senior Luke Riashi ran in the two-point conversion to give the Blue Devils an 18-6 halftime lead.

The only score of the second half was the fumble recovery turned touchdown.

Grosse Pointe South improved to 3-2 and Grosse Pointe North fell to 2-3.

Honor

Kalamazoo College's George Fishback was recently selected as the Michigan Intercollegiate Athletic Association's Special Teams Player of the Week.

A junior from Grosse Pointe Park and Grosse Pointe South graduate, Fishback averaged more than 43 yards per punt on four attempts in a 61-15 defeat of Concordia (Ill.).

He booted a long kick of 52 yards. Fishback also pinned a ball inside the opponent 20 and forced a fair catch on the day.

Correction

In the Norsemen's game against Fraser, it was Dillon Webb who caught a touchdown pass and not Donald Robinson.

NORTH, SOUTH & LIGGETT

South gets by North in benefit game

By Bob St. John
Sports Editor

Host Grosse Pointe South and Grosse Pointe North held their second annual Stick it to Cancer game last weekend.

With perfect weather and a warm welcome from fans, South beat North 5-0.

"The day's events did not seem to distract the squad," South head coach Monica Dennis said. "We started slow and continued to pick up the pace. North had some solid defense in the center of the field on the backside which we needed to avoid. Once we spread the field out, then we found some success."

"We entered the half with a 2-0 lead. The stroke at the beginning of the second half was invigorating for us. Our entire bench was able to see field time that game and every player contributed to bring home the win which was awesome."

Carson Dennis scored an unassisted goal to give the Blue Devils a 1-0 lead and Allyson Hartz, off a reverse sweep pass from Hannah Voytowich, scored off a penalty corner to make it 2-0.

In the second half, Dennis scored on a penalty stroke after the goalkeeper covered the ball on a scramble and it was 4-0 after Hartz tallied off assists from Dennis and Liesel Lagrou.

The final goal was from Voytowich, with Hartz using hustle and quick ball movement.

For North, each player wore a patch on their jersey with the initials LL for their teammate, Lindsay Lesha, who is a cancer survivor.

"It was a great day for everyone associated with the event," North head coach Paula Cornwall said. "The weather was perfect and the girls worked hard."

Between the varsity and junior varsity games, they held a parade of angels, athletes and survivors.

"I was amazed at the silence amongst the crowd as all the players and honored members' names were read," Dennis said. "To see the flowers being placed for all our angels and to see friends who are currently receiving treatments really hits home."

"The day was emotional for so many reasons. The best is knowing and seeing that we,

North's Jennifer Kusch carries the ball upfield during the second annual Stick it to Cancer game against Grosse Pointe South.

North and South, can work together for a great cause."

Dennis also mentioned the support from Kristyn Lesha, North coordinator, and Margaret Adams, South coordinator, for their many hours of energy and patience to gather all the details and make the day a success.

In other action last week, South lost 4-0 to Dexter to see its record stand at 3-3-1 in Michigan High School Field Hockey Association Division 1 and 4-4-2 overall.

North also played earlier in the week and beat host Warren Regina 2-0.

Caroline Bock and Audrey Ajlouni scored the goals. Olivia Kensora and Bock had assists.

On Monday evening, North won again, beating host Oakland 3-0 to see its MHSFHA Division 2 mark hit 5-0-1 and overall record stand at 5-4.

Bock, from Jen Kusch, scored the first goal and Lora Dobbs also scored in the first half.

Bock scored again, from Katie Lesha, and defensive standouts were Elaina Emig and Aiyana Badih.

Liggett results

University Liggett girls' field hockey team was stuck in neutral during its 1-0 loss to host Detroit Country Day last weekend.

The Knights gave up 14 penalty corners, but still held the Yellowjackets on only a single goal.

Offensively, junior Emma St. John had a goal disallowed, which would have tied the game.

On Monday evening, Liggett traveled to first-place Saline and lost 1-0.

The game was scoreless until late in the second half when the host Hornets scored to win the game.

The Knights had chances to tie it.

With the losses, Liggett dropped to 6-3 in the MHSFHA Division 2 and 7-3 overall.

Norsemen get big victory

By Bob St. John
Sports Editor

Grosse Pointe North girls' golf team played the first of two head-to-head meetings with Port Huron Northern last week.

Both squads entered the match tied for first in the Macomb Area Conference Red Division.

When the final shot was carded, the Norsemen came away with a 194-207 win at Lochmoor Club to improve to 7-0 in the division and clinch at least a tie for the regular season title.

Head coach Brian Stackpoole watched Liz Gallagher earn co-medalist honors by shooting a 44 and Olivia Benoit was next with a 47.

The Norsemen's other scorers were Meghan Gallagher, who posted a 49, and Caelin Micks, who shot a 54. Other varsity players who shot well were Chrissy Martin and Sammy Karowicz.

"It was a special victory as it was senior day and I couldn't be more proud of how these girls have competed," Stackpoole said.

Grosse Pointe North boys' soccer team broke into the win column last week, beating Romeo 1-0 and St. Clair Shores Lakeview 2-0.

In the win over the Bulldogs, Avery Clark scored the lone goal, assisted by Dylan Watts, and against the Huskies it was Clark and Tom Fitzgerald scoring goals.

Jack Streberger assisted Avery Clark's goal and Jack Kennedy assisted on Fitzgerald's goal.

With the wins, Grosse Pointe North improved to 2-4 in the Macomb Area Conference White Division and 2-8 overall.

Head coach Francesco Cilano said fans have to be patient with his Grosse Pointe South boys' soccer team.

He said it would take time to mold these players into the soccer players who will win games.

Cilano was right as the Blue Devils beat Macomb Dakota 4-1 and tied L'Anse Creuse North 0-0 in their last two Macomb Area Conference White Division games.

Against Dakota, Ryan Kotas scored twice, while Seth Carolan and Oliver Livingston also tallied.

In the LCN game, neither team had a good scoring chance in the opening half, but both offenses put it together in the final 40 minutes.

With each possession, each team would get a good shot on net.

Blue Devils' goalkeeper Morgan Clevenger was outstanding in net, making a couple of difficult saves to keep it a scoreless game.

In the final three minutes, the Blue Devils had three great shots on net with Livingston at the 3:00 mark, Jackson Rosati at the 2:20 mark and Kotas in the final seconds.

Grosse Pointe South improved to 2-4-1 in the MAC White Division and 4-9-2 overall.

The University Liggett boys' soccer team won two impressive games last week, beating Allen Park Inter-City Baptist 3-0 and Birmingham Roeper 4-1.

The host Knights scored two goals in the first five minutes against Roeper, playing without its All-State forward Simon Roennecke who is injured.

The first goal came from senior Harrison Wujek off a perfect pass from junior George Thanasas, and the second tally was a penalty kick from junior Christian deRuiter.

The Knights continued to force the play and nearly put two more goals on the board, but a couple of goalkeeper saves and two shots which sailed high kept

Turnovers bite Liggett

The University Liggett football team headed to Fraser High School Friday night to battle Parkway Christian for first place in the Michigan Independent Athletic Conference.

The Knights were able to move the ball well early on, opening the game with a 50-yard pass from junior quarterback Connor McCarron to senior Thomas Jackson.

However, they were unable to come away with points on the drive.

On the Knights' next drive, McCarron threw an interception, which was one of five turnovers on the night for Liggett.

On the first play of the Knights' fourth drive, they were able to go ahead on McCarron's 90-yard touchdown pass to junior Tre Caine.

This would be the only score for Liggett, who lost 18-7.

Head coach Dan Cimini's Knights were unable to get anything going in the second half and the turnovers ultimately did them in.

"It's tough to win when you turn the ball over five times," Cimini said.

The Eagles' pressure from their defensive line was a huge key in the second half, sacking McCarron four times.

"Their line was good and our quarterback had no time to throw," Cimini said.

Three second-half touchdowns were enough for Parkway to come away with the win.

This loss moves Liggett to second place in the MIAC at 2-1 (3-2 overall).

Next for Liggett is its annual homecoming game at 6:30 p.m. Saturday, Oct. 3, against Lutheran Westland.

The game will be the first night game at Liggett as the school is bringing in portable lights.

The football game caps a day loaded with athletic events played on the new turf fields for alumni to see.

Soccer and field hockey teams play at 4 p.m.

Knights run solid races

The University Liggett girls' and boys' cross-country teams competed in two recent meets.

Last weekend they ran in the James Cleverly Invite and took advantage of the great weather conditions and flat course to set their best marks of the season so far.

Competing against mostly Division 1 teams, the boys finished 12th out of 13 teams and the girls 9th out of 12.

In the girls' varsity race, Izzy Brusilow ran a new best time of 20:30, 18th place, and Annelies Ondersma managed to hang on after a solid first two miles for a season personal-record time of 21:29, 31st place. Julia Zehetmair also had a breakthrough day, almost matching her all-time best with 21:51 (38th). Maddie Wu and Sarah Galbenski earned course PRs and completed the scoring in 54th and 71st. Galbenski, who has been recovering from a rolled ankle during the race at Holly, has steadily improved and set a season PR of 25:25, just 20 seconds away from her best time ever.

The boys' race finished with somewhat mixed results on the day, but was highlighted by two outstanding performances from Michael Ellis and Nick Brusilow. Ellis, who had yet to break 20 minutes this season, skipped the 19-minute range all together and led the team with an 18:46 (60th), with Brusilow just behind in 18:55 (63rd). It was each boy's first time under 19 minutes in their running careers. Next were Alex Johnson (71st), Anthony Galea (79th), Andrew Loner (82nd), and Tate Kuelling (88th).

In the girls' varsity race, Brusilow continued to pace the Knights, running to a fifth-place finish. Ondersma followed soon after in 10th, and the group of Zehetmair, Madison Jerome and Wu, who held to the plan to stick together as long as possible, claimed 13th, 15th and 16th, respectively.

Freshman Mila Filipof put in another solid performance to run near her best time and take 32nd place.

The varsity boys were led by T.J. Dulac, who ran a strong first race of the season and led the Knights with his 10th-place finish. Brusilow followed next, placing 15th overall.

Next were Galea, Billy Kopicki, Michael Ellis and Johnson, who finished 23rd, 27th, 36th and 47th.

Norsemen, Blue Devils fall

By Bob St. John
Sports Editor

The Grosse Pointe North girls' volleyball team played well last week, but not well enough to prevent two close division losses to Marysville and Macomb Dakota.

The visiting Norsemen lost in four games to the Vikings and then hosted the Cougars before dropping three close games.

"We were right there in both matches and couldn't get the big points to push us over the top," head coach

Chelsea Brozo said.

In the home match against the Cougars, the Norsemen were in position to take the first two games before falling 25-22 and 25-21. They struggled a bit in game three, which turned into a 25-16 defeat.

Leading the way for the Norsemen were junior hitters Katie Snow and Mackenzie Simon, and sophomore setter Kirstin Bessette.

"All of these division matches are getting us ready for the state play-offs," Brozo said. "I'm glad we get to play the likes of Marysville and Dakota because these opponents make us a better team."

Grosse Pointe North dropped to 1-2 in the Macomb Area Conference Red Division and 12-8-3 overall.

South results

Head coach Kevin Nugent said his Grosse Pointe South girls' volleyball team would be challenged with two road games against two of the top squads in the Macomb Area Conference White Division.

He was right and the Blue Devils came up short, losing 25-18, 25-16, 25-13 at Anchor Bay and 25-21, 25-21, 25-13 at Utica Eisenhower.

"We are figuring out some things and we're young, so going on the road against two experienced teams was tough," Nugent said. "We learned some things and played better at Eisenhower, which is encouraging as we move forward."

Senior Kayli Johnson was the Blue Devils' setter against Eisenhower and played well, according to Nugent. It was her first time at the position.

The Blue Devils get both teams on their home court during the second round.

In recent action, the Grosse Pointe North boys' cross country team finished eight out of 38 Division 1 squads in the Michigan State Spartan Invitational Green Race.

Leading the way was senior captain Connor Sickmiller, who finished in seventh place overall with a time of 16:48 and sophomore Mike Ciaravino was next in for North in 24th place with a time of 17:10. Both Sickmiller and Ciaravino won medals for finishing in the top 30.

Rounding out the scoring was freshman Will Hofmann, junior Ryan Race and senior Ryan Kolp.

Other strong performances went to senior captain Josh Fischer and sophomore Calvin Riley.

On the following afternoon, the rest of North's team competed at the Autumn Classic at Stony Creek.

North's JV runners beat seven varsity squads from area schools, finishing seventh of 15 teams (Warren Mott also only ran JV runners as its varsity attended MSU).

Leading the way was freshman Garrett Schreck, who finished in 16th place in 18:05, followed by senior Adrian Carmer, who was 24th with a time of 18:22.

Rounding out the scoring was junior Will Ferguson, sophomore Sean Panilio and freshman Jake Fischer, who all finished in the top 50 out of the more than 200 runners in the race.

"I'm incredibly pleased with our progress so far this season," head coach Diane Montgomery said. "Our biggest strength is going to be our depth, especially through our top 12 runners."

St. Paul students react to anti-bullying message

By Mary Anne Brush
Staff Writer

The Jewish Ensemble Theatre, an award-winning professional theater company based in West Bloomfield, visited St. Paul Catholic School Thursday, Sept. 24, to present its anti-bullying message in the form of two plays and a “talk back” session designed to elicit a discussion of the issues. The presentation, created to support Michigan’s anti-bullying legislation, augmented St. Paul’s ongoing focus on building a positive school climate by giving students the tools they need to address a range of aggressive behaviors.

Girls in grades 5 through 8 watched “Mean Girls,” by Maddee Sommers, which showed the interactions of four middle school girls in a popular clique. One girl, the “queen bee,” set the rules and directed her friends to embarrass, ostracize and humiliate others. Her friends did her bidding and engaged in other mean antics to vie for her favor and jockey for their position in the group. The victim, the group’s ultimate target, was devastated by the way her best friends treated her.

through 8 watched “Word,” by David Anderson and Gabe Burnstein. This play also used four actors to tell the story of a bullying incident from three different perspectives: the bully, the victim and a witness.

“I think it is a good idea to separate boys and girls because the nature of bullying does differ between the two,” said A.J. Hakim, who teaches grades 6 through 8. “There’ll be some form of bullying or teasing almost anywhere you go for school, so it’s important to have these presentations and other such productions or assemblies to open discussions and awareness. (It’s) a way to offer an outlet for anyone who might be facing a similar situation but is scared of speaking out. That person needs to know there are people around to help.”

Before the plays, students were instructed to think about which character they identified with and why. Afterward, they were asked by a show of hands whether they had ever been the victim of a bully or witnessed an incidence of bullying. Students offered views on what happened, what they witnessed, how they handled the events and what they might have done differently.

One student asked Kristin Thompson, who played the victim in “Mean Girls,” how it felt to be bullied.

“When I play Jill, I have to go back to my own personal history when I was bullied,” Thompson said. “Even when I’m pretending, I remember what it was like.” Lessons she learned as a result of the experience were to “stand up for yourself, learn to love yourself, respect yourself, know you are worth something, don’t let people push you around and stand up for other people.”

Students were encouraged to join clubs and find activities to develop their interests, build confidence and create friendships based on trust.

“When I was in middle school, I went from club to club to meet different people,” said Katie Kajula, who played the queen bee. “Finding your passion helps you discover who you really are and meet people who share your interests.”

“You are a strong group of girls with strong values and morals,” said fifth-grade teacher Karen Reese. “I am very proud of you. You are very empowered girls. But know you can always go to a teacher if you need anything.”

Seeking out adults when dealing with a bullying situation also was strongly recommended by the presenters.

Seventh-grader Sophie Smith got this message. “I learned to always go to an adult and to keep my good friends close,” she said in response to the play.

Honesty and directness also proved to be the best policy.

“I learned to not make up rumors,” said classmate Ava Rauch.

“I learned if you have a problem with someone, it’s best to go straight to them and tell them,” said seventh-grader Dionna Johnson.

Students also were taught about the role of the bystander.

“The bystander has the most power to change the situation,” said Maggie Dillon, who played the part of the witness in “Word.”

“It can stop with me,” said Dionna Roberson, who played one of the friends in “Mean Girls” who did not initiate but participated in the bullying. “I can be the person who changes the direction of these relationships.”

The JET plays will be followed up by a visit from Marcia McEvoy Ph.D., a licensed psychologist who hosts staff in-service and student and parent presentations on helping students get along. McEvoy, who has visited St. Paul before, will meet with all students Tuesday and Wednesday, Oct. 6 and 7, and speak to parents the evening of Oct. 6. For the teachers, McEvoy’s presentation and the JET plays serve as a refresher. For the students, they help start the year off right, according to Reese.

“We want the students to know this is a safe place.”

Liggett hosts homecoming game on new field

University Liggett School will shine a spotlight — literally — on its newly completed athletics fields during the school’s homecoming game Saturday, Oct. 3.

Liggett will host homecoming festivities beginning at 4 p.m. on the school’s new football field, one of eight recently completed fields that were completely realigned, rebuilt and converted from grass to artificial turf. Kickoff is 6:30 p.m., with halftime around 7:30 p.m. under bright lights that will illuminate the field. This is Liggett’s first evening game in the school’s history.

The fields project, part of the school’s Sure Foundations campaign, is the largest single installation of high school synthetic turf fields in the country. It is the first of a two-phase athletics and classroom facilities project that will culminate with the construction of the new John A. and Marlene L. Boll Campus Center adjacent to McCann Ice Arena.

The Boll Campus Center will serve as a school welcome center and provide additional classroom space, state-of-the-art gym and fitness center. Construction of the Boll Campus Center is dependent upon gifts to the Sure Foundations campaign.

“Our investment in the fields and the Boll Campus Center through our Sure Foundations campaign demonstrates our commitment to investing in our school and the community,” said Kelley Hamilton, associate head of school for advancement. “We are looking forward to welcoming our families, alumni and the community to homecoming this year to celebrate with us under the lights.”

Homecoming festivities also will include bounce houses, pumpkin painting and an alumni cook tent. A parade will be held around the field before kickoff and the school’s annual “Red vs.

Blue Tug of War” takes place at halftime. The school choir will perform the national anthem and the pep band will perform during the game.

Dozens of golfers took to Grosse Pointe South High School’s front lawn Saturday, Sept. 19, for the inaugural Urban Golf Classic, a fundraiser for South’s choirs. Awards were handed out for closest to the pin, longest drive, best golf clothes and lowest score in this twist on the popular sport. Choir students worked the concessions, beverage cart and raffle in addition to reseeding any divots left behind.
