Three cheers for Santa Parade

The 42nd annual Santa Claus Parade, presented by the Grosse Pointe Chamber of Commerce, attracted a large crowd along Kercheval the day after Thanksgiving, Nov. 24. Hundreds showed up to watch more than 75 businesses and organizations share their holiday cheer.

Financially healthy

GROSSE POINTE SHORES — Shores City Council received its annual audit report Tuesday, Nov. 21, and things are looking good for the city financially.

"Overall very positive results for the year," said Aaron Stevens, CPA and principal auditor from Stevens Kirinovic & Tucker P.C.

The city was able to add $336,300 to its general fund balance, continuing a five-year streak of adding money to the fund. As of June 30, 2017, the general fund balance sat at just more than $1.8 million, with approximately $1.7 million of that in unrestricted funds.

The $1.7 million represents 30.2 percent of the annual expenditures.

"(It's an) excellent position to be in," Stevens said. "The Government Finance Officers Association recommends maintaining a general fund balance equal to a minimum of two months of operations and two out of 12 months is about 17 percent. You are at 30."

Over the last fiscal year, both revenues and expenditures have increased.

Lake St. Clair water quality in danger

By Anthony Viola
Staff Writer

THE GROSSE POINTES — Lake St. Clair has always been a center of agriculture, commerce and recreation. Native Americans camped on its shores, fished its waters and used its currents for trade. Not much has changed today: Living on Lakeshore is a sign of status, the waters of Lake St. Clair produce nearly 50 percent of all sport fish caught in the Great Lakes and thousands of freighters every year use the channel to ferry materials for industry.

But, with population and industrial growth along its shores and tributaries, the health of the "Heart of the Great Lakes" is in danger.

Keith Matheny, Detroit Free Press environmental,

Great Lakes and science writer, spent three months this year investigating the status of the lake. His five-day series, originally published in October, can be found online at freep.com by searching "saving Lake St. Clair."

Saturday, Nov. 18, Matheny came to Services for Older Citizens in the Farms to present some of his findings. The talk was hosted by SOC and the Grosse Pointe Artists Association in conjunction with its "Our Rivers, Our Lakes" show, which hangs until Friday, Dec. 8, at the Boll House, 158 Ridge, Grosse Pointe Farms.

Almost the entire region uses the waters of Lake St. Clair as its main source of drinking water — approximately 4.2 million people just on the U.S. side, said Saigh said.

assumptions and should not be tolerated."

The numbers Saigh referred to are based on fixed rates imposed on the city by the Great Lakes Water Authority.

"Once you introduce fixed cost to the system you have to introduce equivalent cost for customers that put more demand on the system," Kyle Seidel told the Grosse Pointe News. Seidel is an Anderson, Eckstein and Westrick water and sewer consultant to Grosse Pointe Woods.

The city opted for an equivalent meter ratio five years ago, Seidel said, whereby residents with a 3/4-inch meter or smaller pay one time the fixed fee the city is billed by GLWA. Those with one-inch or larger meters are billed an equivalency rate, ultimately transitioning to 2.5 times the fixed rate for residents or businesses with a 1-inch meter and five times the fixed rate for customers with a 1 1/2-inch meter.

The city is in the fourth year of this transition. This year, those with a

Salvation Army takes hit with Red Kettle theft

GROSSE POINTE WOODS — Two days before Thanksgiving, a thief carried away Salvation Army Red Kettle donations made by shoppers at the Kroger on Mack Avenue. The location typically brings in approximately $500 in donations daily — an amount providing five weeks of meals for a family of four.

At approximately 4:20 p.m. Tuesday, Nov. 21, the Salvation Army employee serving as bell ringer at the location reported to Grosse Pointe Woods police she found the entire Salvation Army Red Kettle pole apparatus missing upon returning to her post from the grocery store restroom. She said she saw a large white sedan exiting the parking lot with the kettle hanging out one of the windows. Though she did not know the amount of money inside the kettle, she said the kettle was completely full.

At press time, no witnesses had come forward with a description of a suspect. Kroger management advised they would attempt to retrieve surveillance footage and release it to the Woods detective bureau.

According to Salvation Army Captain Javier Moreno, shoppers at the Restaurateur restores classic Italian family dining

By Melissa Walsh
Staff Writer

GROSSE POINTE WOODS — The restaurant at 20930 Mack has a new name, but the menu is traditional, old-style Italian.

"We're going back to the theme of being a neighborhood, family-style Italian restaurant," longtime restaurateur and general manager Joe Serventi said.

After managing Andiamo Trattoria since its launch in 1993, Serventi bought the business to reinvent it as Trattoria Serventi, returning the venue and its menu to earlier Andiamo style under the care of renowned old-school Italian master chef, the late Aldo Ottaviani.

"Our concept really was to put on (the menu) a lot of the older dishes, those that were really popular but (Andiamo's) took off corporately," Serventi said.

Offering essential old-world Italian dishes, Serventi is restoring Ottaviani's influence from the kitchen. Executive Chef John Tozzi, who at 16 began his restaurant career busing tables at the location, learned the art of preparing Italian cuisine under Chef Jeff Maiuri, who remains involved with the menu as a consultant. Maiuri mastered his chef skills directly under Ottaviani.

"Working with Jeff is like working with Chef Aldo indirectly," Tozzi said.

Tozzi has worked as a cook and chef at the location 10 years, with some time away to study culinary arts at Le Cordon Bleu College in Minnesota.

With the vision of the restaurant as more of a regular dining spot for locals and less of a destination venue for special occasions, Serventi kept "trattoria" — meaning "eatery" or "tavern" — in the name. He said the name implies a casual and cozy environment where larger portions of traditional Italian food are served.

Tozzi said he and Serventi planned the menu of dishes priced between $15 and $20 with no single dish as a specialty. He said the range of pasta dishes is special and anticipates the calamari and sausage and pepper dishes will be highly popular.

"Being able to accommodate people's diets was an important thing we did in coming up with the menu," Tozzi added.

Serventi said they planned the menu with care to include options for diners with gluten-free and gluten-sensitive needs. Tozzi said about a quarter of the items on the menu are inherently gluten-free.

The restaurant closed as Andiamo Trattoria Sunday, Nov. 19, and reopened as independent from Andiamo's under Serventi's direction Wednesday, Nov. 22. Feedback on the new menu so far, Serventi said, has been "extremely positive."

Serventi said accompanying a new menu will be a new look for the dining room. Remodeling will start early 2018 with new floors and ceiling and a "freshening up."

"We'll do it in increments on Mondays and Tuesdays for a couple weeks," he said. "We'll try to interrupt business as little as possible."

City man promoted within American Red Cross organization

City of Grosse Pointe resident Jeffry Bauer recently was promoted to IT EUS regional volunteer partner for the Central Region of the American Red Cross.

Bauer, a Red Cross volunteer since 1983, has served numerous leadership positions and responded to a range of emergencies and special operations.

As a regional volunteer partner, Bauer will assist and oversee the recruitment, placement, onboarding, performance and retention of IT EUS volunteers. He also will continue to instill Red Cross values in new and existing volunteers by encouraging excellence and participation in multi-faceted volunteer opportunities.

Bauer, a practicing attorney, arbitrator and mediator, became a member of the Red Cross Legacy Society last year through a deferred charitable gift annuity and has supported the Red Cross with not just time and financial gifts, but also as a blood donor. Through the years, he has donated almost 17 gallons of blood.

"When I returned from active duty with the U.S. Navy, I moved into my duplex," he said. "I had a tenant. She worked for the Red Cross and suggested she knew what I would be great at — and I ignored her. She was politely relentless. One day I asked her if I took the class she so much wanted me to take, would she leave me alone? She said yes. So in September 1983, I took Introduction to Damage Assessment, taught by the director of disaster services at the chapter. Since then I have taken many, many more classes."

Bauer also currently serves as humanitarian and disaster information technology manager for the Michigan Region and division disaster associate director for the Crossroads Division.

He has been deployed on several national disaster relief operations, including Hurricane Andrew, where he served as service center manager nearly two months. He has led hundreds of small, local operations of all types.

This past year, he was awarded the Clara Barton Award for meritorious leadership and the Exceptional Volunteer Service Award.

"Revenue is 8.3 percent higher than the 2016 revenues," Stevens said. "Expenditures are 5.4 percent higher than 2016 expenditures."

Public safety drew the most money from the fund, accounting for 40 percent of general fund expenditures at approximately $2.5 million. That is a slight increase from last year's $2.3 million.

Like most municipalities, property taxes were the largest revenue source for the general fund, as $4.8 million was collected last year, accounting for 78 percent of the general fund revenue. Last year, approximately $4.3 million was collected in property taxes.

Mayor Pro Tem Bruce Bisballe said that number will only increase as the village recovers from the recession. He said six years ago the village lost about 25 percent of its revenue because of property tax changes and that money has yet to come back. Next year's tax rate is set to increase 2.1 percent.

But, even with a substantial loss of revenue, Bisballe said the village has done a good job at building up the general fund and maintaining a level of service residents expect.

"I think in the last six years we've done a really strong job of starting with a zero fund balance, adding $1.5 million to it, maintaining the tax rate and putting hard asset improvements into the community," Bisballe said. "I think we've really done a remarkably good job."

"You've maintained a healthy fund balance and that's good to see," Stevens said.

Park celebrates beauty

GROSSE POINTE PARK — On a cold, almost-snowy night, residents of the Park reminisced of warmer times during the Beautification Award ceremony Thursday, Nov. 9.

The annual event is the largest of the Pointes, handing out 30 residential, two commercial and a civic award to people who enhanced their community through meticulous care of their properties.

Mayor Robert Denner thanked the room of residents at the Tompkins Center for contributing to the beauty of the city.

"You are in this room because you are part of making our city so terrific," Denner said.

Denner also thanked the Beautification Committee for the work they put into picking the winners.

"They look at every block of every neighborhood to identify your homes," he said. "They work really hard and I am really proud of the hard work they put in."

The two commercial awards were presented to Fairfax Quality Market, the small grocery store in the heart of the south Jefferson neighborhood and bought by Mike Swanson, Erin Gillis and Chase Manikas last year, and Flowers by Gabrielle on Kercheval.

The civic award was given to Children painted rocks, hid them all over the Pointes and left clues where to find them on social media, creating a fun scavenger hunt throughout the area.

The residential awards were awarded to: Rodger and Kathleen Hunwick, Keith Smith, Jill Woodward, Arnolda Vermet, Ronald and Margaret Breitenbecher, Sandy and Gerry McCarroll, Anthony and Christine Miller, Jim and Suzanne McCuish, Nancy Gonzalez and Richard Magdowski, Harry Morris, Ann Woodward, Joe and Kelly Francis, Michael and Marybeth Haas, Bruce and Janet Wyman, Nicole Brouette and Weston O'Neil, Mark and Lynda Farnen, Jane and John Blahut, Mona Simoncini, Hal and Terrie Augustine, Stephen and Cheryl Ann Winter, James and Veronica Clevenger, Gene and Karen Kohut, Kevin and Melanie Lalonde, Robert Morris and Leigh Solomon, Kelly Gill, Bill and Susan Francis, Brock and Priscilla Bracyk, Colleen and Nick Gracyk, Mark Sanford and Susan Miller, Jim and Suzanne McCuish, Nancy Gonzalez and Richard Berschback.

1-inch meter pay an equivalency charge of 2.2 times the fixed rate and those with a 1 1/2-inch meter pay a charge four times the fixed rate. Next year, the transition will be complete and the equivalency rate shouldn't increase, Seidel said, unless the system incurs new expenses.

The full-transition charges projected for the fifth year still require approval from city council, Seidel said.

"Our question is are we going to get relief from the council based on the facts?" Saigh asked city council.

Saigh referred to his letter to the editor published in the Grosse Pointe News Oct. 12, where he made a case for "an equitable distribution of the fixed cost" among all residents with all meter sizes.

"You people in my opinion are fiduciaries. We put you in office. You're in charge of the dollars. You should look and see where the dollars go and where they come from," Saigh said.

"Why should 959 plus 221 people pay such a distorted amount?" he asked.

The retiree added paying the fixed cost and capital improvement charges amounts to much more water usage he and his wife could use, especially since they reside in Florida part-time. Requesting a "reasonable method, especially for retired people," Saigh said he's lived in his Woods home 45 years and has been a model citizen.

"I've been very proud of the council, very proud of my community," he said. "And now, when this happens, the city says, 'Change your meter.' Why should I change my meter?"

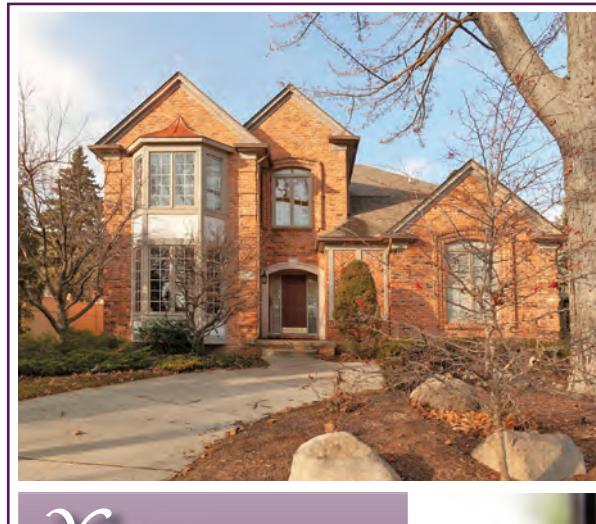

Following Saigh's statements, Mayor Robert Novitke asked Woods Treasurer and Comptroller Cathy

Behrens when water rates will be addressed. During a committee of the whole meeting in April or May 2018, she said.

Novitke invited Saigh and Skrupski to leave their contact information with city administration to be invited to the COW when water rates will be addressed.

Saigh and Skrupski are concerned rates will increase in the meantime.

"What would happen if 1,100 people came here to complain?" Skrupski asked. "Would that change your mind?"

Love and loss through letters, laughs

First-time author speaks at Ewald Dec. 7

By Jody McVeigh

Editor

The youngest of five children, Annie Spence always had an older sibling around to read to her or help her read, and later to drive her to the bookstore or library. A voracious reader since childhood, Spence fell in love with books at an early age.

Eventually she picked up the pen and found another love: writing.

Spence, a Grosse Pointe Park resident, shares passages from her first book, "Dear Fahrenheit 451: Love & Heartbreak in the Stacks," at 7:30 p.m. Thursday, Dec. 7, at the Grosse Pointe Public Library Ewald branch, 15175 Jefferson, Grosse Pointe Park.

It was a long road

The details

Who: Grosse Pointe Park resident and author Annie Spence

What: Reading from her book "Dear Fahrenheit 451: Love & Heartbreak in the Stacks"

Where: Grosse Pointe Public Library Ewald branch, 15175 E. Jefferson, Grosse Pointe Park.

When: 7:30 p.m. Thursday, Dec. 7.

Info: The event is free of charge, but reservations are recommended. Register online at gp.lib.mi.us or call (313) 821-8830.

checking "published author" off her bucket list.

"I've always written," said Spence, a part-time librarian at the St. Clair Shores Public Library and a substitute librarian with GPPL. "And my family has always been big readers I loved the library. The library made me feel rich in that I could pull whatever I wanted off the shelf and take it home. I remember being very excited when I found the Young Adult section; it sounded so grown up."

Spence majored in creative writing at Central Michigan University, at which time she wrote a middle-grade chapter book. She submitted it for publication, but didn't get far.

She attended graduate school in Chicago, where she earned a master's degree in library sciences before moving back to Michigan. She also married Michael, with whom she has a son, Walden.

"After my son was born, this peace came to me where I accepted the fact I'd never be a published author," she said, "but I really like to write, so I decided I'm going to write for myself."

Spence created a 'zine and wrote a blog about books for the northern Michigan library where she worked.

For fun she wrote several letters to books she'd read. Those letters are what caught the eye of her agent five months later.

"I wrote break-up letters to goofy books we discarded from the library about eight years ago to amuse myself," she explained. "When I met my agent, I sent her a letter along with other book ideas and that's what she grabbed onto. She thought that it would speak to readers. I started writing in earnest in December 2015 and finished my first draft in April."

The first editor who looked at the draft picked it up, "which is rare," Spence said.

Spence found herself reading more titles to inspire her to write more letters — not just break-up letters, but love letters as well — and she came up with suggested titles for various tastes and occasions. Thus, "Dear Fahrenheit 451" was born.

"My agent said she was drawn to my voice. It's something that comes naturally," Spence said. "She told me to find a subject, but keep my voice. The hardest part was the plot synopsis. I wanted to give an idea of what the book is about without giving it away or making it boring."

To make the book entertaining, Spence uses wit and whimsy throughout to describe how well-known and not-so-known books have made her feel.

"A lot of librarians like it, but anyone who has strong feelings either way about reading would be able to identify," Spence said. "It's for people that want to read more. It's an ice-breaker book into reading."

Spence, who prefers literary fiction and biographies, is working on a novel this month, National Novel Writing Month.

"It's a romantic comedy of a book," she said. "A buddy story with romance. I feel like a lot of books are about women who have midlife or quarter-life crises, who just fly off to Jamaica or Italy to find themselves. I thought it would be interesting to have a woman of less means who solves her crisis (closer to home)."

Annie Spence is getting rave reviews for her debut book, "Dear Fahrenheit 451: Love & Heartbreak in the Stacks."

Spence is inspired by her work at the library — "Some of the stories that happen at the library are too good not to write about" — and hopes to finish her next novel soon, whether it's published or not. She also has a few more items to knock off her bucket list.

"I've never learned to swim," she said. "One of these days I'm going to jump off a boat — after I take swimming lessons, of course. I'd like to travel more I've always dreamed about driving across the country."

Spence will experience some travel in her future as she's been invited to tout "Dear Fahrenheit 451" at locations in Kansas City, Toronto and Seattle.

In addition to rave reviews by Booklist and Library Journal, Spence said she's gotten great feedback from readers, who tell her they've added titles from her book to their reading lists.

"That's the point," she said. "I want to entertain, but for someone who likes to read but has fallen out of reading, I want to get them excited about reading again."

Matheny.

While the Pointes don't contribute a large amount of pollution to the waters, the main polluters are just upstream.

The Clinton River, running through Oakland and Macomb counties, has a watershed of 760 square miles, the same area as New York, Chicago, Philadelphia and San Francisco combined. It also is one of the main tributaries into Lake St. Clair and infamously known to be the outlet for combined sewerage overflows from Macomb and Oakland counties. Since 2000, one trillion gallons of CSOs from Macomb, Oakland and St. Clair counties have found their way into the river and subsequently into the lake. It would take more than a week for that amount of liquid to flow through the Detroit River, said Matheny.

Matheny said the Kuhn Retention Basin in Oakland County, used to hold excess combined sewage during large rain events, is designed to spill into the Clinton River when it becomes too full. Matheny said from the moment the ribbon was cut, the capacity was insufficient to handle even moderate rain events. During the historic rainstorm of 2014 when 4 to 6 inches fell in four hours, two billion gallons were discharged into the Clinton River, said Matheny. That amount would take 47 minutes to fall over the Canadian and U.S. Niagara Falls.

It's not just CSOs that cause issues for Lake St. Clair. Chemical Valley, a large industrial area outside Sarnia, Ontario, contributes a large amount of pollution every year.

According to Matheny, there were 700 spills between 1986 and 2000, the most recent data available.

"These factories are spilling nasty stuff all the time into that waterway," Matheny said. "At times they've alerted Canadian water suppliers to shut down their water intake pipe."

Matheny said the factories have not been diligent in notifying the U.S. side and the line of communication between the factories and both state and Canadian officials is convoluted and outdated.

An October report from Bridge Magazine said the factories still use a fax machine to disseminate information about toxic chemical spills.

The solutions for cleaning up Lake St. Clair are costly and require cooperation from every community in the area, said Matheny.

The first step is to separate storm drains and sewerage drains, something most of the Pointes accomplished in the mid- to late-'90s. However, other communities in Macomb and Oakland have yet to do so. According to the Southeast Michigan Council of Governments, $14 billion to $26 billion worth of upgrades still are required for the region, Matheny said.

Separating the sewer system still isn't a perfect solution. Storm drains take runoff from streets directly to the lake or river with no treatment, depositing everything carried from the road into waterways, Matheny said.

Other solutions include green infrastructure, creating rain gardens and other natural barriers to slow the flow of water into the system and alleviating stress on processing plants and retention basins.

Matheny said people should not wait for the government to come up with a solution, however, and should work at the grassroots level to start the momentum.

"I find the higher up in the level of government you go, the more sclerotic and slowly things happen and change and the more political they get," Matheny said. "The solutions have to be on the community level."

Low blood sugar

Officers received calls about and observed an erratic driver on Lakeshore near Provencal around 9 p.m. Wednesday, Nov. 22. When officers initiated a traffic stop, the driver failed to come to a complete stop and slowly rolled down Lakeshore. At one point the vehicle went over the curb, with two wheels on the grass before finally stopping.

When officers approached the vehicle they noticed the driver appeared to be confused and disoriented.

The driver admitted he did not have a license, but denied he had been drinking. He told officers he is diabetic, at which time officers called an ambulance to check the 55-year-old's blood sugar.

After the test, it was determined the man should be transported to St. John Hospital & Medical Center for further treatment, but not before he was cited for driving with a suspended license and lacking insurance.

An officer traveling eastbound on Charlevoix approximately 3:30 p.m. Sunday, Nov. 26, observed a car stopped at the stop sign on Notre Dame. The vehicle proceeded to pull out in front of the squad car causing the officer to hit his brakes.

The officer initiated a traffic stop and ran the driver through the LEIN/SOS system. The officer discovered the driver had a suspended license for unsafe driving and was subsequently arrested.

Public Safety

Nov. 23.

The officer followed the vehicle several blocks before the driver pulled into a driveway on Neff and turned off the headlights.

The officer passed the vehicle, but continued to watch as the driver drove off without using the headlights. After another 10 minutes of observation, the officer made a traffic stop after the driver made two turns without using turn signals.

The officer asked for the driver's documentation and saw the nervous driver drop the contents of her wallet on the floorboards. The officer saw an ID, but when asked for it, the driver stated she only had a school ID. An odor of intoxicants was noted and a field sobriety test was conducted.

The 18-year-old Grosse Pointe Farms woman failed the tests and blew .147 percent blood alcohol content. After arresting the woman for operating while intoxicated, the officer searched her vehicle and discovered the dropped ID to be an Indiana fake.

Woods Kroger location had given $815 the day before. Moreno, who manages 19 eastside Salvation Army Red Kettle sites, said the kettle apparatus, weighing between 75 and 100 pounds, is difficult to remove.

In response to the incident, Kroger donated $500 to the charity and encouraged shoppers to donate more this season.

"We were shocked and saddened to have had a Red Kettle stolen at our local Kroger location," said Kroger Corporate Affairs Manager Rachel Hurst. "We work very closely with The Salvation Army every year and love what they do to help our communities in which we live and serve."

Moreno said the charity is grateful for Kroger's donation and overwhelmed by the financial response from the Grosse Pointe community, which amounted to close to $975 to the Salvation Army Red Kettle campaign the day after the theft.

"We definitely want to express our appreciation for (Grosse Pointers') generosity," he said. "They definitely support their community, and it shows."

The Salvation Army Red Kettle campaign runs Nov. 10 to Dec. 31 each year, raising money for meals, shelter, youth educational and outdoor programs, legal aid clinics and drug rehabilitation programs.

During the Red Kettle campaign season, Moreno advised shoppers to report unusual Red Kettle solicitation. He said Salvation Army Red Kettle locations are set up by volunteers using a Salvation Army van, driven by a Salvation Army employee wearing a jacket with the Salvation Army logo on it. Bell ringers wear a Salvation Army bell-ringer apron.

"If anyone sees anything suspicious, please speak up," Moreno said. "If the person is not easily identifiable as with the Salvation Army, that would be suspicious."

"I think the person was just looking for quick money," Moreno continued. "I don't think he would use (the kettle) elsewhere, but that's a possibility."

The Salvation Army employs bell ringers when there are not enough volunteers, Moreno explained.

"We would love to have more people sign up to volunteer," he said.

To volunteer as a Red Kettle bell ringer, register at ringbell.org. The only requirement for bell-ringer service is a desire to help those in need, Moreno said. An adult must accompany volunteers age 18 and younger. After setting up an account, bell-ringer volunteers may select their preferred community and location to ring the Red Kettle bell.

This year's Salvation Army of Metro Detroit goal is $7.85 million. The Red Kettle campaign typically draws one-third of annual funds raised.

Tax-deductible donations may be made to The Salvation Army, 16130 Northland Drive, Southfield, MI 48075, by texting SALMICH to 41444, calling (877) SAL-MICH or visiting salmich.org.

Officers found the man in the backyard smoking a cigarette, mumbling, with "very dilated" pupils and "very fidgety."

When officers advised the man to go to the hospital for an evaluation, the man "became agitated and combative." A struggle ensued until officers handcuffed the man.

They uncovered a box-cutter/pocket knife from the man's right pants pocket and transferred him to St. John Hospital & Medical Center.

Death investigation

At 10:43 p.m., Tuesday, Nov. 21, a 27-year-old City of Grosse Pointe woman was arrested for driving without a license.

She was found to be driving with marijuana and five pipes — one pipe found on the passenger seat filled with marijuana and four pipes found in her purse.

Officers pulled her over on Mack near Overlake for operating her silver Buick with the headlamps set to bright.

No-carry in schools

The Grosse Pointe Public School System Board of Education did the right thing Monday night: They sent an unequivocal message to the state Legislature and governor that local communities should have the right to decide whether weapons — concealed or otherwise — can be brought onto school property.

The issue is important right now in that the state House is debating Senate Bills 584-586 that permit concealed carry on school grounds, day care centers, sports arenas, large concert halls, taverns, places of worship, hospitals, college dorms or classrooms and casinos for concealed pistol license holders with extended training.

If allowing concealed weapons in schools, day cares, ballgames, concerts, bars, churches, hospitals, dorms and casinos sounds ludicrous, you're right. The bright idea comes from the same intellectuals in the state Legislature that brought us the Michigan Concealed Pistol Licensing Act that prohibits an individual with a concealed pistol license from carrying a concealed pistol on school property but missed a gaping loophole that DOES NOT expressly prohibit individuals who possess a valid concealed pistol license from openly carrying firearms in areas otherwise designated as "gun-free school zones."

To fix their oversight, our state senators came up with SB 584-586 that allows the same individuals to bring guns onto school property — and churches, bars, day cares, casinos, etc. — only, now, hidden. Problem solved!

The Michigan Association of School Boards takes exception to SB 584-586 and sent a proposed resolution to that effect to member school boards. GPPSS Board President Brian Summerfield had it put on the agenda for board consideration.

Read in its entirety by President Summerfield, the resolution, in part, reads:

"WHEREAS, as a result of numerous school shootings across the nation, including the tragedies at Columbine High School, Sandy Hook Elementary School, and subsequent school shootings involving staff and students, the issue of the presence of guns on school grounds, at school-sponsored activities, or while students are en route to or from school, has become an increasing concern for Michigan public schools; ...

"WHEREAS, a public school district is tasked under the Revised School Code to provide for the safety and welfare of its students and to educate students in a safe and nurturing environment.

"The Board urges lawmakers and the Governor as they debate and enact legislation to declare school grounds as a safety sensitive zone and to allow local school boards to enact policies prohibiting an individual who is licensed to carry a concealed pistol from carrying a pistol, whether concealed or unconcealed, on school grounds, unless statutorily required to permit possession of firearms, such as for law enforcement personnel."

Park third 'Smartest City' in state

Nah, nah, nah, nah! We're smarter than you are! That's what Grosse Pointe Park residents could be taunting now that they have been named the third "Smartest City" in Michigan by Zippia, the career resource website.

Zippia announced its rankings for the Wolverine State on Monday. The only two cities to best the Park were Birmingham and Beverly Hills, Nos. 1 and 2, respectively.

Criteria was limited to cities in Michigan with populations greater than 10,000. The only other Grosse Pointe municipality to qualify was the Woods, which came in 16th out of the 93 cities making the cut.

"One of the many qualities that people look for in a potential location or company is the intelligence of those around them," according to Zippia. "This factor can play a huge role in one's experience at a particular company and can make or break an employee's time there."

To measure "smartness," Zippia used data from the latest American Community Survey of the U.S. Census. Criteria compared were percentage of adults with a college degree and percentage of teenagers who are high school dropouts.

"We thought this criteria was representative of the current state of smarts with the potential for a place to improve the education levels of the next generation," the study's author said. "And, for reference, only about 30 percent of Americans over 25 have graduated from college."

Grosse Pointe Park came in with 64.82 percent of adults 25 and older with at least a bachelor's degree and a 0 percent high school dropout rate. "At a population of 11,343 and almost no high school dropouts, the kids here are studying every night," the study's authors said of its bronze finisher.

So, take a bow, Grosse Pointe Park, and if you choose to taunt the rest of us, go ahead. You deserve it.

The resolution, with a motion by Vice President Margaret Weertz and seconded by Secretary Cindy Pangborn, also called for copies to be distributed to the state House and Senate and Gov. Rick Snyder. It was approved by a 6-0 vote. (Trustee Ahmed Ismail was absent.)

The unanimous vote required no coaching on President Summerfield's part. However, Superintendent Gary Niehaus probably said it best: "It's hypocritical that you can carry a gun into all these places but not into the state Legislature."

We gravely concur and hope the House and Senate do the right thing and simply declare schools, churches and other public gathering places as gun-free zones — concealed or otherwise — except for authorized law enforcement personnel. And if the Legislature fails to do the right thing, then we call on Gov. Snyder, once again, to refuse to sign this wrong-headed, and dangerous, legislation.

LETTERS

The Grosse Pointe News welcomes your letters to the editor. All letters should be typed, double-spaced and signed. Letters longer than 250 words may be edited for length. All letters may be edited for content. We reserve the right to refuse any letter. Include daytime phone number for verification or questions. The deadline for letters is 3 p.m. Monday. Letters to the editor may be emailed to editor@grossepoincenews.com.

Time to make your voice heard

To the Editor:

More guns in more places is a public-safety issue. Earlier this month the Michigan Senate passed legislation that will allow hidden, loaded weapons in schools as well as other currently weapon-free zones. The Michigan House is expected to pass this legislation and get it to Gov. Snyder very soon — all despite the public's overwhelming desire to curtail more weapons in public places.

Mass shootings have become commonplace. Concealed-carry weapons increase the risk that everyday disagreements will escalate into shoot-outs. People carrying hidden, loaded weapons create unnecessary risks of intentional or accidental shootings. Families and communities are devastated.

It is time to say NO to the gun lobby and put our public safety first. I urge you to call or email your Michigan representative TODAY to oppose SB 584-586. (District 1: Tenisha Yancey, (517) 373-0154 or District 2: Bettie C. Scott, (517) 373-1776 or bettiecooks.catt@house.mi.gov).

GPPSS credit rating a turkey

To the Editor:

I share the opinion "Victors, not victims" Ms. Kelly Boll expressed in the Nov. 16 Grosse Pointe News. Positive attitudes help overcome adverse circumstances, which is why children must learn to be victors, not victims.

At the same time, adults must learn it's hard to soar like an eagle when you're surrounded by turkeys like Deputy Superintendent of Educational Services Jon Dean and some other administrators of our Grosse Pointe Public School System.

While comparable districts like Birmingham and Bloomfield Hills continue to enjoy long histories of Aaa credit ratings, Moody's Investors Services downgraded our GPPSS credit rating to Aa3 from Aa2 Jan. 17, stating: "The Aa3 rating reflects recent operating deficits that have resulted in a very narrow financial position." (Aaa credit ratings are preferable because they represent the highest quality and lowest credit risks, making long- and short-term borrowing more obtainable and less costly to borrowers.)

When Moody's downgraded our GPPSS credit rating to Aa2 from Aa1 on Aug. 27, 2013, they stated: "The downgrade reflects the district's weakened financial position following four consecutive operating deficits."

Continuing to support the Aa2 rating are a sizable tax base, strong socio-economic profile and manageable debt burden. The negative outlook reflects the district's modest reserve levels which provide limited flexibility to offset potential budget variations."

Obviously, our GPPSS financial standing with Moody's did not improve between Aug. 27, 2013, and Jan. 17, 2017; it only worsened. We can only wonder what the future might bring. Will our GPPSS credit rating continue falling until it is no longer investment grade? This seems to be the financial track we have embarked upon for many years.

At the same time, stupidity reigns supreme as most voters in our district continue to elect the same caliber of candidate to at least five of the seven available positions on our GPPSS school board. Without positive change, only the worst outcome can be expected. As Einstein famously said: "The definition of insanity is doing the same thing over and over and expecting different results."

No need for bread

she was, most people I know have wonderful mothers and fathers. What could I say about my mom that others can't say about theirs? And I've been fortunate enough to have this job where I have written about my mom in previous I Says in the 10 years I've worked for the paper. She was beautiful inside and out, a determined, positive, fun person to be around and a great mom.

At some point every day, usually more than once, my eyes well up and I work hard not to have them spill over, usually unsuccessfully. I, a normally upbeat person, feel sad. Just so sad. I'm especially sad realizing everything prior to Oct. 25 were lasts — her last birthday, Thanksgiving and Christmas celebrations and all the other things we used to do together. It's especially hard now since we spent so much time together in November and December preparing for and enjoying the holidays. There were days devoted to making ravioli, cannoli shells and cookies. I never, ever thought they'd be our last. Isn't that what all those greeting cards and internet memes say — to live each day as if it's your last? To be fully present in all those moments together?

It's an unusual place to reside right now. Mourning the loss of traditions, but knowing traditions evolve. We still celebrated Mom's birthday — with Moscow mules and pizza. We still made ravioli — we'll find out how good a job we did come Christmas dinner. Thanksgiving came and went and I tried to my daughter asked if I engage my family wanted to go to the cemetery between cooking and cleaning, hoping it won't be our last, but trying to remember it as though it could be. I will attempt cannoli shell- and cookie-making soon.

In the midst of grieving all these lasts I didn't know were lasts, chastising myself for not engaging completely in those activities, I found my "pot of gold" — or sauce in this case. While cleaning Mom's house, I found a bowl of frozen spaghetti sauce and meatballs. I made lasagna and relished every last bite. In the privacy of my own home, I dismissed the slice of bread my husband proffered, put tongue to plate and fully savored that "last."

GUEST OPINION By John Palffy

Trump is no Reagan

I worked on President Reagan's tax reform and, President Trump, yours is no Reagan Tax Reform.

In fact, it has four fatal political and economic flaws.

Promoted as a Tax Cut. Trump has promoted a "huge" tax cut for the middle class. In so doing, he has raised expectations, but by emphasizing "fairness," he seriously mitigates the potency of reform.

Reagan did not make this mistake; the 1986 plan was promoted as revenue-neutral tax reform, not a tax cut.

Notwithstanding the efficacy of "starving" the feds of revenue to reduce spending, Americans are not dramatically overtaxed either by historical (since World War II) or world standards.

Our tax system is, however, in dire need of reform, both to compete with the rest of the world and to drive economic growth at home. The special interests come out in force for any tax legislation, but Trump has raised populist expectations for a tax cut — which will come at the expense of efficient reform and, given the consequent pressure on the deficits, could doom the entire plan.

Doubling the Standard Deduction. Trump's plan doubles the standard deduction (and adds an expanded Child Care credit). This is a mistake Reagan also made in 1986. As a result, millions more will be taken completely off the income tax rolls. This is great populism, but poor politics. A majority of Americans will now pay no income tax — no "skin in the game."

Consider the dynamics when the Democrats want to raise income taxes, next time — the burden will be even more concentrated on those few who most drive the American economy.

Likewise, if the objective is to stimulate the economy, thus generating a higher tax base and reducing the negative revenue impact, then Congress should reduce exemptions, deductions and credits AND tax rates. Deductions just reduce revenue; they have virtually no stimulative effect and are thus a pure revenue loser. Cutting rates, however, generates economic growth and increased revenue to be shared by all.

Raising Tax Rates. Perversely, higher deductions require higher rates to offset the revenue loss. Bottom line, if you want the most bang for the buck (more growth with least revenue reduction), emphasize cuts in tax rates, not deductions. Reagan reduced the top marginal rate from 50 percent to 28 percent (it had been 70 percent just five years earlier) and the share of income taxes paid by the wealthy increased. The current personal reform is largely just a revenue loser.

Hands Off Social Security Taxes. If Congress reduced the standard exemption significantly, it could maintain the fairness of the reform by lowering employee payroll (Social Security) taxes significantly. This provides the stimulus required while focusing cuts on the working and middle class. Why doesn't Congress do this? Both the Dems and GOP have a vested interest in maintaining the status quo.

Democrats protect Social Security by claiming it is an insurance program for which individuals get their taxes back in benefits. Unfortunately, this is a total myth. The Supreme Court has nullified this proposition and mathematically individual benefits have very little correlation with contributions.

Reducing Social Security taxes would require shifting general revenues to the Social Security Trust Fund, putting another dent in FDR's "insurance myth."

On the other hand, Republicans rightly note that the wealthiest Americans pay a grossly unfair percentage of the income tax. Missing in this neat bit of PR, however, is that the middle class pays a much higher rate on Social Security taxes than do the wealthy. Social Security taxes are regressive; reducing them is populist and good economic policy.

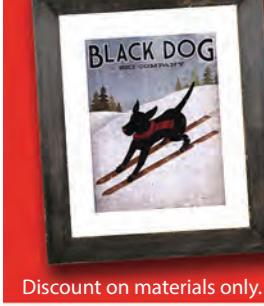

Senior policy wonks in the capital will flat out admit they have little interest in individual reform. They see it solely as the cost of passing corporate tax reform, a plank with bipartisan support just two years ago, but now subject to Democrat demagoguery.

Reducing corporate taxes to 20 percent is vital; it will quickly repatriate billions of dollars and millions of jobs to the American economy and make America competitive in the long run. It will be a shame if a poorly crafted individual plan sinks this opportunity, but this may be the cost of electing a populist president instead of a supply-sider.

Palffy served as chief economist to Dan Quayle, as a senior political appointee of President Reagan, worked on the 1986 tax reform in the Senate and was Walker Fellow for Tax and Budget Policy for The Heritage Foundation.

'We don't want them'

Exhibit provides historical perspective on residential segregation

By Mary Anne Brush
Staff Writer

A traveling exhibit on housing disparities and segregation made its way from Grosse Pointe South High School to Grosse Pointe North High School to University Liggett School, on display at each for a week.

"We Don't Want Them: Race and Housing in Metropolitan Detroit, 1900-1968," a 20-panel display made up of historical photographs, documents and other visual media, opened in Cleminson Hall at South Oct. 30. Created as part of its Race2Equity initiative by the Michigan Roundtable of Inclusion and Diversity, a non-profit civil rights organization in Detroit, the exhibit relays the stories of hardships faced by black, Latino, Asian, Native American, Jewish and Arabic communities, beginning with the early mistreatment of Native Americans and continuing through the civil rights movement and its legacy, with a focus on the effects of government-sanctioned residential segregation on racism in Detroit.

The idea to bring the exhibit to Grosse Pointe grew out of efforts of the diversity task force at Grosse Pointe Memorial Church to tell "the tale of two cities between Detroit and Grosse Pointe," according to task force chairman Howard Hill. Housing the exhibit at the three high schools fit their mission to educate young people.

"The high schools were interested in bringing the exhibit so teachers would have an opportunity to have a conversation with their students—not just in social studies, but across the curriculum," said Dez Squire, Michigan Roundtable Race2Equity suburban coordinator,

The exhibit spans history, covering policies as well as "the untold stories," Squire said. "When people are looking at the history of segregation, we look at it from a national perspective. We don't often get an opportunity to look at how that looks here in the north and in a metropolitan area in particular—how federal policies actually shaped how our community looks and how that impacts us today, especially when you look at the metro Detroit region, (which) is considered one of the top four most segregated areas in the country."

A focal point of the exhibit is how housing affects access to resources, outcomes, opportunities and life expectancies, Squire said.

"It was astounding to know that a person's zip code could define their life," she said. "The exhibit tries to capture all that information. It talks about not only the policies and laws, but also about some of the individuals that really tried to fight and advocate against what is structural oppression or racism."

North U.S. history teacher Terri Steimer visited the exhibit at South before it came to North Nov. 6, to help her decide how best to involve her students. She began an in-class discussion by asking students what they knew about housing in Detroit.

"We talked about where people live, why they live there, why schools are all of one culture or maybe they're mixed and what that means about the community," Steimer said.

Students were assigned to look at a culture different from their own and choose two legal cases presented at the display to discuss in class. They also looked into Grosse Pointe's involvement in discriminatory housing practices.

"They were shocked about the point system that realtors used," Steimer said. "We had a big discussion afterward."

According to University of Michigan political scientist Norman C. Thomas, under the point system, realtors would hire a private investigator to make a report on a potential buyer, assigning points based on the extent to which the person was Americanized, their general standing and other factors such as "swarthiness of appearance," friends, dress, religion, education, use of grammar and accent.

Students also reflected in written responses, discussing the similarities and differences between the 1942-43 riots and the 1967 riot; whether these types of confrontations could happen again; and how these challenges continue to affect Detroit today.

"This affects Detroit today in so many ways," wrote one student, "from the stigma we are so desperately trying to erase, to the way neighborhoods are divided, to gentrification."

North English teacher Charles Crimandi debriefed his students after they had a chance to see and reflect on the exhibit.

"We talked about the implications it had on us as metro Detroiter and as citizens of the United States," Crimandi said. "I think it was enlightening to them. I think they were surprised by some of the history of the region. I think they were taken aback by it."

For the final week at Liggett, the student commons room was made into an interactive classroom, according to Shernaz Minwalla, assistant head of school. A range of classes across the curriculum took advantage of the exhibit, from music and literature and a politics and minority art elective to a U.S. history class taught through the lens of Detroit.

Students in a 10th-grade English class had particular interest in the panel on the Hansberry v. Lee case, a famous national court case involving Anna Lee, who brought charges against Carl Hansberry, a black resident who purchased property in a white Chicago community. Lorraine Hansberry, Carl Hansberry's daughter, wrote the play "A Raisin in the Sun" based on her childhood experiences. Students will revisit the case when they read the play in the spring.

In addition to schools, the exhibit has traveled to businesses, universities and community centers. For more information, go to miroundtable.org.

Blue ribbon committee member looks beyond dollars and cents

By Mary Anne Brush
Staff Writer

Michele Lindsay combines her perspective as a parent, former teacher and volunteer in her role on the Grosse Pointe Public School System blue ribbon facilities committee.

Like any parent, Lindsay hopes to provide her daughters—Grace, a seventh-grader at Pierce Middle School, and Alexandra, a fifth-grader at Trombly Elementary School—opportunities to grow and succeed and believes a strong public school system is a vital part of that.

"We strive as a society to create the most educated populace that we can because it's not just for the benefit of my kids," Lindsay said. "I earnestly believe it is for the betterment of society in general that we have a strong educational system. Because this is the next generation. These are the people we want to move forward, whether that's kids who go to a four-year college, whether they go to a technical college, we want them to go out and come back."

Lindsay earned a master's degree in secondary education and taught nearly a decade in Greenwich, Conn., as a middle and high school teacher. She views education as a means to prepare children to move forward in the 21st century as global citizens.

As a volunteer, she served as president of Trombly's PTO, led the fundraising initiative for the Trombly greenhouse restoration and served on the strategic planning committee for the district. She has gotten to know principals in each building and administrators at 389 St. Clair and has been impressed with the quality of staff, starting with the leadership of

Brownell life skills students make sure everybody eats

By Mary Anne Brush
Staff Writer

Students in Taylor Barczyk's life skills class at Brownell Middle School were more than ready for Thanksgiving this year. The sixth-graders learned to clean and prepare turkeys with oil and seasonings, roast and carve them. Turkeys were then frozen and delivered to a soup kitchen in Detroit as part of the "Everybody Eats" program housed at the Spirit of Hope church in Detroit.

Nearly 50 turkeys were donated by community members, Barczyk said.

This is the seventh year Barczyk has incorporated preparing and roasting turkeys into her life skills classes. In that time, she said she has "cooked probably 1,000 turkeys." While previously she worked with Crossroads and Brownell families donated the turkeys, last year she decided to branch out to the larger community and teamed up with Debbie Bellovich from the Everybody Eats program and members of Grosse Pointe Memorial Church.

"I think it's a good cause because we're helping out the homeless so they can eat and have a good Thanksgiving," said sixth-grader George Knowlton, adding he signed up for the elective because he wanted to learn how to cook and sew better.

Sixth-grader Daniel

Allen also wants to learn how to cook and heard the class "was fun and the teacher's really nice and also that you learn a lot of life skills you can use later in life."

Earlier in the year, the class went on a farm-to-table field trip to Blake's Apple Orchard. From the apples the students picked and Blake's donated, they

My students! I feel so incredibly lucky to go to work and share my passion for learning with each and every one. Their energy, enthusiasm and joy is a daily blessing. Describe a teaching accomplishment you're proud of or a "teachable moment" you experienced.

In my 7th-grade pre-algebra class this fall, we explored perfect squares/cubes with models and investigated the prime factorization of these types of numbers. Students had built models of perfect cube numbers with cm cubes in their first inquiry. When we were breaking perfect cubes into their prime factorization using factor trees, a student made an observation of how it was the reverse of building the physical model, demonstrating true conceptual understanding of the properties of these numbers. She shared her "aha" moment with her peers and helped the class construct their own definition of perfect squares and cubes. leading lady in Broadway's longest running show to share lessons she learned along the way.

"Choosing to take risks and being willing to persevere over failure and rejection is what helped me ultimately become successful and continue to take care of what really matters," Joseph said.

In addition to solo performances from "Phantom," Joseph will tell the story of her struggles in New York to achieve her dream. A graduate of Michigan State University, Joseph said she took the risk to move to New York to pursue theater, a journey rife with failure, rejection and struggle until she got the big break that changed her life.

"Unmasking What Matters" is about how we can "fully inhabit the role we are here to play, who we are behind the roles we play in life — maybe as a parent, an executive or business owner or a Broadway performer — but there's a deeper self behind those roles," Joseph said. "My story of that journey to Broadway really taught me so much about how we can blossom into who we're here to be and it comes down in large part to following what's in our heart. It takes a lot of courage to choose the path of love over the path of fear."

The concert will include numbers from North choirs, selected soloists and members of Mack Avenue Dance Center. Proceeds benefit North's performing arts Superintendent Gary Niehaus.

"From day one, Gary has been very honest, forthright. I feel like he is completely transparent in his plans for the school district and the way that he would like to administer and run all the programs," she said.

When Lindsay and her husband moved to Grosse Pointe Park in 2010, they sought a community with a strong public school system.

They looked beyond test scores, athletics and extracurricular activities to the community as a whole and its commitment to education. For example, did the community support additional millages? Other factors that drew them to Grosse Pointe were the neighborhood schools.

Part of the committee's role is to assess the community's values and priorities in determining the best path forward.

"What are the compromises we are willing to make as parents? And what's important to the rest of our community, too? Many of the community members I've met who are without children put such a high value on education. And it's not just because of property values," Lindsay said.

One question she is often asked is whether the committee is looking to close schools as a solution to its financial challenges. While this option is on the table, it is not one she personally supports. She views it as a shortsighted approach with far-reaching consequences, such as a potential increase in class sizes and diminished quality of teaching.

"When you close one building, you have to redistrict the entire community," Lindsay said. "It's not just going to impact just one neighborhood; it's going to impact everyone."

"I don't think closing schools is the right answer," she continued. "I don't think closing schools would be in the best interest of the children in our community and every question the committee is coming up with, it has to come back to that basic tenet: is this in the best interest of the students in our schools?"

Lindsay said she would prefer to see more creative solutions.

"We've got all of these great buildings and how can we either draw people into the neighborhoods or use these buildings in a different way?"

Ideas bounced around at table discussions during the meetings so far include leasing space at 389 St. Clair, creating a sixth- or ninth-grade campus to help with transition years, forming a magnet school or school focused on STEM education or the arts and opening enrollment at elementary schools to even out class sizes.

"Children are not born in 25-child increments," Lindsay said. "We need to have some room and flexibility so how can we do that? Is that a compromise the community is willing to do versus closing a school? Take a look at our neighborhood schools and class size and (ask parents) ... would you be willing to be flexible? How can we work together on that?"

Lindsay looks beyond dollars and cents to the intrinsic value of the schools to the Grosse Pointe community.

"The idea that we're looking for the biggest bang for our buck does not sit well with me, because we're not trying

Woods public safety enjoys positive interaction with students

By Melissa Walsh
Staff Writer

GROSSE POINTE WOODS — Enjoying positive interaction with the community they serve, Woods public safety officers have established a routine of visiting students at Grosse Pointe North High School. The positive interaction offers officers a break from a work day of moving from problem to problem and it gives students the opportunity to engage with officers in a friendly way.

With 1,375 students at the school, Grosse Pointe Woods Public Safety Director John Kosanke explained, "This is one of the largest concentrations of residents that we have access to that we can build relationships with."

In addition to the onsite presence of Woods public safety school liaison Detective Ryan Schroerlukke, additional Woods officers visit the school with the purpose of gaining familiarity with the structure of the building and getting to know the student body and staff.

The public safety interaction with students is not a prescribed program, rather a strategy for building positive relationships between students and officers.

"We've had an ongoing relationship with the Grosse Pointe Woods police department," said Grosse Pointe North High School Principal Kate Murray. "Oftentimes the officers are present during informal times and unstructured times for students, for example, during passing period or in the cafeteria, so that the students have an opportunity to interact with the police officers. I or one of the other administrators often stand with the officers and make introductions with the students and the officers so that they feel that they are approachable and can build a relationship with them."

"We're returning to the routine we established when I first got here," said Grosse Pointe Public School System Superintendent Gary Niehaus, who was hired to lead the district May 2015.

Niehaus said this relationship-building approach between public safety officers and students goes beyond North and is practiced across the Grosse Pointe communities.

"It's about a cooperative level we've established with our police departments," he said.

"We have the same with Grosse Pointe Farms when it comes to South as well."

Among the 30 Woods public safety officers serving the community, four are North alumni. Kosanke said he hopes more young people from the community will want to enter a career within his department.

"You never know where you'll get your next employee from," Kosanke said.

Most people only interact with police when they commit an infraction or become the victim of a crime, he said. The public safety presence at North is a primarily positive interaction with the community.

"This is a good opportunity for us to build that relationship with the school body," Kosanke said.

Kosanke said Woods public safety officers also will interact more with residents at senior facilities, as they have with students, to initiate relationships with the residents they serve.

As for the routine that has been reestablished, Niehaus said, "I think it's very positive. I think it's very proactive. It's about building relationships."

"It's important that you understand the community you police," Kosanke said.

Holiday ball to benefit housing for families of St. John patients

By Debra Kaszubski
Special Writer

Families wish to be near loved ones while they are hospitalized. For some, that means staying overnight near the facility. Finding and paying for accommodations often creates additional stress.

The Fontbonne Auxiliary at St. John Hospital hopes to alleviate that burden by donating profits from its upcoming White Christmas Ball to the hospital's Patient Family Housing Program.

"St. John Hospital & Medical Center recently established a housing program that allows patients' families to stay in a comfortable, fully-furnished home near the hospital while their loved ones recover. These houses will become a healing environment for the families," said Regan Wright, Fontbonne events coordinator.

"The net proceeds from this year's White Christmas Ball will support this unique hospital project, specifically renovating one of the homes so it is handicap-accessible."

The White Christmas Ball takes place 6 p.m. Friday, Dec. 8, at the Detroit Athletic Club, 241 Madison, Detroit. Cost is $300 per person. Your Generation, a band celebrating five decades of pop, rock, dance and R&B hits, is the featured entertainment.

The theme of the black-tie event is "Bringing Joy to the World."

"The timing of the theme is much needed with all that is happening in the headlines each and every day," Wright said.

This is the 64th annual ball and 2017 marks the 70th anniversary of the Fontbonne Auxiliary. The auxiliary, started by the Sisters of St. Joseph in 1947, has raised more than $14 million and helped renovate more than 40 departments within the hospital and/or supply them with new equipment.

Wright said anyone who wants to support the auxiliary and the medical staff at St. John should consider attending the ball.

"St. John Hospital is committed to serving all persons, with special attention to those who are poor and vulnerable," Wright said.

To purchase tickets to the White Christmas Ball, call Wright at (313) 343-3675 or email regan.wright@ascension.org.

How to Pick Up Chicks

Suzanne Antonelli, CFP® Wealth Advisor

My apologies for the title, but it struck me as equally amusing and exasperating. There are numerous studies and statistics surrounding the fact that women are controlling more and more wealth in the U.S. and globally, and the trend is on the rise. According to a study released by the Bank of Montreal's Wealth Institute, in 2015 women passed the mark for control of over 50% of the wealth in the United States.

I find my title amusing, because the financial services industry is finally taking notice and it is scrambling to find ways to keep and attract female clients. A quote from a recent article on WealthManagement.com, "Attracting and Retaining Female Clients," "It is now more important than ever for financial advisors to better engage with female investors..." Now it is important?

The lead in to the article was not about working more effectively with female clients, but growing and retaining clientele, particularly among women who "represent a large portion of investable assets." This phrase struck a nerve that people would be considered to represent investable assets, rather than potential clients to assist in planning for future goals. The article goes on to counsel that an advisor should be personable, know and understand what is unique about the female client, be empathetic, etc. There you have it, how to pick up chicks.

I have worked in this industry since the mid 80's, and it has always been male dominated. Several weeks ago, I went to an Evidence Based Investment Conference in New York City and I was struck by how few women attended. Of the more than 200 attendees, fewer than 10 were women (less than 5%). In the almost 30 years I have been a financial advisor, the number of female advisors has hardly increased. According to the Bureau of Labor Statistics, in 2016 only 31.6% of all personal financial advisors were women.

The real issue is not the number of female advisors; it is the way the financial services industry stresses selling a product and focusing almost exclusively on investments.

Building, monitoring, and rebalancing a diversified investment portfolio is a foundation of a strong financial plan, but only one building block.

A financial plan fails if a portfolio is too risky or does not have enough risk to grow to meet long-term goals; if a client's savings rate is too low to support a comfortable retirement; or if a spouse dies prematurely without life insurance, with a mortgage and children to support and put through college. An advisor must counsel a client if they panic in a market decline, or if they continue to fear investing in the market because of a potential correction.

Suzanne has over 25 years of experience in personalized portfolio management, tax and retirement planning, risk management, and estate plan execution and funding. She specializes in the unique financial needs of families, retirees, and women.

work with couples, families, men and women. They all have to address the same financial issues; they simply have differing priorities.

Sleep Out for solidarity

David Balle M.D. recently participated in Covenant House's fourth annual Sleep Out to Support Homeless Youth's event Nov. 16.

The event is designed to raise awareness and funds to support the work of Detroit's largest shelter program for young people ages 18 to 24. The Sleep Out movement is an opportunity for people to unite in compassion, solidarity and action — and make an immediate and lasting impact on the homeless young people who live at Covenant House.

"Each year I sleep out, my appreciation for you grows," Balle said addressing his supporters. "You have helped me raise thousands of dollars in support of the courageous and determined young people I've met at Covenant House Michigan. Each fall, I wonder if I will see a familiar face from a Sleep Out past. Did she get that job? Did he finish high school? I don't know the answers, but I know your gift will increase their chances of success."

Funds raised by Sleep Out participants are put to work immediately, keeping the lights on and the doors open for the thousands of kids who will seek help this year.

The event has raised more than $1 million in Detroit since 2014 and more than $40 million nationwide.

Balle has participated every year since the beginning of Covenant House Michigan's involvement with the event. Donations still are accepted at detroit.executivesleepout.org or by contacting Covenant House Michigan at (313) 463-2000.

Balle is a board-certified dermatologist in private practice at Grosse Pointe Dermatology. He received his medical degree from Wayne State University School of Medicine and was chief resident at Henry Ford Hospital in the Department of Dermatology. A cosmetic dermatologist specializing in minimally invasive non-surgical facial rejuvenation, Balle is on the medical staff of St. John Hospital & Medical Center and Beaumont Hospital, Grosse Pointe.

ASK THE EXPERTS By The Family Center

Q&A with documentary film director Keith Famie

On Dec. 6, The Family Center, in partnership with The War Memorial, Grosse Pointe News, Grosse Pointe Magazine and producer/director Keith Famie, will show a special long-format trailer for the upcoming documentary film in production, "On the Front Lines of Alzheimer's & Dementia." Famie spoke with The Family Center about the film and the devastating illness it highlights.

FC: Why did you want to make this film?

KF: Over the years I have produced a three-part series about aging, all of which aired on PBS here in Michigan: "The Embrace of Aging: Men,"

ASK THE EXPERTS articles

seven parts; "The Embrace of Aging: Women," 13 parts and "The Embrace of Dying: How we deal with the end of life," eight parts. During these productions I encountered many dementia-related stories and in 2003, I lost my father to Alzheimer's. I was his principal caregiver and learned firsthand how devastating this disease is for patients and loved ones. Now, at 57, I felt it was time to produce a film that can help the baby boomer generation on their cognitive aging journey.

FC: What do you want to accomplish by showing the extended trailer to an audience at

The War Memorial?

KF: I want the Grosse Pointe community to understand the significance of this film's production. I am hoping we might find a few individuals who have been touched by a form of dementia in their family who may want to help support our film's production. We will be showing a long-format, 30-minute trailer, which will feature the recent filming that took place in Grosse Pointe. Visit onto daysfrontlines.com/

alzheimers/prod/171108_GrossePointe.html.

The film is slated to be complete in spring 2018 and will be released on PBS here in Michigan. We will be planning a large premier of the 90-minute theatrical release for the Grosse Pointe community in support of local organizations there that help families who are caring for someone with a form of dementia.

FC: Why is this topic relevant to our audience?

KF: Never in our history have we had so many people aging simultaneously. Baby boomers can live longer and healthier if they take care of themselves and each other. We know this film will help thousands who row. What we eat, how regularly we exercise, the friends we keep and how actively we keep our brain engaged will help slow down a cognitive decline.

More information about this documentary can be found at ontodaysfrontlines.com/alzheimers/ or on the Facebook page, Front Lines of Alzheimers.

To register for the Dec. 6, showing, visit warmemorial.org/familycenter.

The Family Center's mission is to serve the community through programs and resources vital to today's families. As a nonprofit organization, it is completely supported by community donations. To learn more, visit familycenterweb.org, call (313) 447-1374 or email info@familycenterweb.org.

PASTOR'S CORNER By the Rev. Jim Rizer

Traditional ham?

A young couple makes a ham together for the first time. The wife cuts the edges off the ham before she bakes it and her husband asks, "Why do that? It seems wasteful."

"I don't know," she answers. "It's what my mother always did."

So they ask the wife's mother, "Why do you cut the ends off the ham before you bake it?"

"Because that's the way Grandmother always did it," replies the mother.

So they ask the grandmother, "Why did you always cut the ends off the ham before you baked it?"

The grandmother replies, "Well, that's the only way I could get it to fit in the pan."

This story is a good reminder of the way things can get codified into tradition. From cooking a ham to holiday customs to selecting the family college, tradition can be a powerful influence. While traditions are not inherently bad, it is wise to examine our traditions and see what is behind them.

This is particularly true for traditions concerning our faith. In Colossians 2:8, we are reminded that at times "human tradition" is at odds with the way of Jesus. Paul warns disciples not to be held captive by tradition.

All of this invites us to explore our faith and practices to ensure they are built on the firm teaching of the Bible and not the pragmatism of a grandmother whose pan was a bit short. Do our beliefs stem from the convictions of our hearts or compliance to the family expectation? Are our rituals and faith habits shaped by biblical counsel or from another's decision that this is good enough for them?

Regardless of where they come from — family, friends or even our church — human traditions not grounded in scriptural truth are always problematic. This season let's make sure we don't cut the ends off the Gospel and risk missing the good news of great joy.

Rizer is the pastor at Living Hope Evangelical Church, Grosse Pointe Farms. Visit livinghopeec.org.

Cardinal Rahi celebrated high Mass at St. Maron's Church in Detroit Thursday, Oct. 19, and presided over a special ceremony where Dr. and Mrs. Rahi renewed their wedding vows.

Joining Cardinal Rahi in performing the ceremony was His Excellency Bishop A. Elias Zaidan, bishop of the Eparchy of Our Lady of Lebanon of Los Angeles; Chorbishop Louis Baz, pastor of St. Maron's Church; Chorbishop Alfred Badawi, pastor of St. Sharbel's Church and numerous clergy from southeast Michigan.

During Mass, Cardinal Rahi surprised Dr. Rahi by bestowing upon him the first and only St. Maron Medal, in recognition of his contributions and devotion to the Maronite Church.

Poets, artists join forces for exhibition, book

Opening reception is Nov. 30

"Call & Response: Poets and Artists in Dialogue" has brought together some of the region's finest poets and artists, as well as several emerging talents, in an exhibition on display through Sunday, Jan. 28, at Grosse Pointe Congregational Church, Grosse Pointe Farms.

Poets and artists were asked to create new works in response to each other, with poets selecting an artwork to write about and artists choosing a poem upon which to create a new piece of fine art. The original art and poems — printed as broadsides — are being hung side by side in a new art gallery space at Grosse Pointe Congregational Church.

The project — which also has produced a book of the artwork and poems that may be purchased at the church — is the work of the Grosse Pointe Congregational Church Arts Ministry, which is capping its first anniversary with this project. "Call & Response: Poets and Artists in Dialogue" is the first exhibition in the gallery. The book and broadsides were produced by Night Cry Graphics of Royal Oak.

The public is welcome to an opening reception 7 to 9 p.m. Thursday, Nov. 30, featuring the R.J. Spangler & T-Bone Paxton Jazz Band, with Matt LoRusso on guitar, Jeff Cuny on string bass and Akunda Lumumba on congas.

Additionally, a poetry reading and discussion forum take place 7 to 9 p.m. Thursday, Jan. 11.

Featured artists include Linda Allen of the City of Grosse Pointe; Sofia Bicego of Warren; Marilyn Derwenskus of Franklin, Tenn.; Laura Whitesides Host of Birmingham; Carol LaChiusa of Grosse Pointe Farms; Matt Lewis of Saginaw; Edward Marsh of Royal Oak; John Osler of Grosse Pointe Shores; Julie Strabel of Grosse Pointe Park; Jack Summers of Detroit; Tamm Whitty of Grosse Pointe Park; Tommy Wilson of Clinton Township; Nobuko Yamasaki of Grosse Pointe Shores and Lori Zurvalec of the City of Grosse Pointe.

Featured poets include Ava Ansari of Detroit, Peter Caborn of Grosse Pointe Woods, Annmarie Erickson of Beverly Hills, Kelly Fordon of the City of Grosse Pointe, ML Liebler of St. Clair Shores, Caroline Maun of Grosse Pointe Park, Dawn McDuffie of Detroit, John Milan of Detroit, K. Michelle Moran of Harrison Township, Ronald Strickler of Grosse Pointe Shores, Mary Stebbins Taitt of Grosse Pointe Farms and Alinda Wasner of Beverly Hills.

Though organized by a Christian church, the poems and artwork appeal to audiences of any background — religious or not.

"Poetry responding to art, called ekphrastic poetry, has been a tradition since ancient times," said Taitt, one of the poetry coordinators for the project. "I am so excited by these events because, while old-time ekphrasia often got bogged down in elaborate description, our Detroit-area poets in this 'Call & Response' program have created incredible work, where they not only react to the art without pomposity, but interpret, confront and inhabit the artworks."

"As a poet and participant, I found it thrilling and affirming to be so deeply seen by a visual artist," Taitt continued.

Although there have been other projects in which poets responded to artworks, having the artists respond to poems as well gives this endeavor a unique twist.

"That dialogue is truly remarkable," Zurvalec said. "I don't see it happening very often."

Whitty, an opera singer as well as fine artist, is director of the Arts Ministry at Grosse Pointe Congregational Church. Zurvalec, an award-winning fine artist, is the GPCC steward of worship and chair of the Arts Ministry Committee. The GPCC Arts Ministry was established in autumn 2016 to provide an opportunity for people within and outside of the congregation to connect to God and each other through the creative process.

"This project astounds me in the communication I see between the artists and the poets," Zurvalec said. "The poets looked deep into the art and the artists studied the poems and found a connection."

The poets and artists range in age from 17 to 80-plus. One of the poems even includes passages in Farsi.

"There's a lot of diversity of subject matter and style," said Zurvalec.

Grosse Pointe Congregational Church is located at 240 Chalfonte, Grosse Pointe Farms. Public hours for the exhibition are 9:30 a.m. to 1 p.m. Monday through Friday, 11 a.m. to 1 p.m. Sunday or by appointment.

Copies of the book, "Call & Response: Poets and Artists in Dialogue," may be purchased with cash or a check at the opening reception or the poetry reading, or from the church office. For more information or to make an appointment, call (313) 884-3075. For additional information, visit gpccong.org.

Prepare your humidifier for added winter comfort computer from getting a little jumpy when I wear wool socks.

There are two basic types of humidifiers — drum style and flow through.

Older models have a rotary drum with a replaceable foam pad that turns in a reservoir of water. As the drum rotates, it carries water up into the path of the furnace air. The reservoir of drum humidifiers is crucial to efficient operation. A float assembly responsible for keeping the water at a certain level is repairable or replaceable, along with the rotating pad.

The other style of humidifier is a flow through. These units use a solenoid valve to control water flow over a media pad. One advantage of this type of humidifier is it always uses fresh water. The disadvantage is it discharges water every time it operates, so drainage can be a minor concern. Over time, the media pad fills with lime deposits, thus reducing surface area for the water to evaporate. The top of the media pad and the drain tank can use a good cleaning every year, like the drum-style humidifier. The pads in these units come in as many sizes as drum humidifiers, so get the manufacturer and model and/or bring the old parts.

To clean old scale and crust off a drum-style humidifier, use a humidifier descaler. Remove most of the water in the reservoir and, using an inexpensive brush, coat all scaled surfaces. Then mix equal parts descaler and water and soak pads and/or belts about 15 minutes. When clean, rinse all surfaces. Note: If this is done in spring instead of fall, it is much easier.

If you don't want to run to the hardware store to purchase the humidifier descaler, household vinegar, which is acetic acid, does a suitable job.

Another note: To make this job easier next time, use a humidifier water treatment every month or so this winter to prevent lime scale buildup. It also inhibits odor-causing bacteria and algae in drum- and wick-type humidifiers.

Send your questions to Mr. Hardware at staff@mrhardware.com or call Gilbert's Pro Hardware at (586) 776-9532. For past "Ask Mr. Hardware" columns, visit mrhardware.com.

Q. Mr. Hardware, do I really need a furnace humidifier? It seems to be a lot of trouble for something I don't think I really need.

A. A humidifier provides comfort while helping reduce heating costs. A clean and running humidifier provides moisture all winter, which keeps noses soft, elbows from getting white, the plants smiling, the furniture tighter and rooms warmer. It also prevents static electricity, which keeps my

Teepa Snow presents on the signs of dementia during "An Evening with Teepa Snow."

Family Center hosts renowned dementia advocate

Teepa Snow, one of the world's leading dementia advocates and educators, discussed the science of the disease, symptoms, what it feels like to live with dementia and how to adjust expectations when interacting with those suffering from the disease Friday, Nov. 10, at The Grosse Pointe Academy.

According to Snow, "Early prevention is critical with the disease of dementia. Yet only one in 1,000 doctors screen their patients in their 40s to get a baseline."

In addition to learning about assessment and prevention, attendees also benefited from Snow's delivery style.

"Listening to Teepa Snow, I realized that this is a topic that should, and can, be discussed," said Alice Oldham. "We all think about it, but we don't really want to acknowledge it. Whether we get dementia or not, we're all impacted in one way or another and it's not just OK to talk about it, it's important to talk about it."

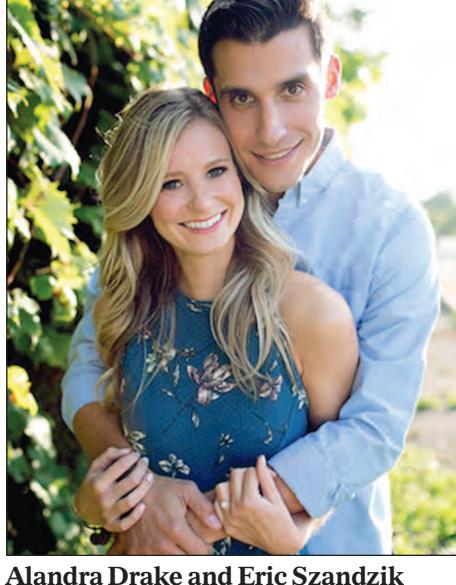

The event was presented by The Family Center in partnership with The Grosse Pointe Academy, Senior Helpers and Friends of the Grosse Pointe & Harper Woods Communities.

The spirit of that bygone era — when the world was at war and pop music meant "Strike Up the Band" and "Boogie Woogie Bugle Boy" — is accurately captured as

UNIVERSITY LIGGETT SCHOOL

Hot start

By Bob St. John
Sports Editor

The University Liggett girls hockey team moved to 3-0 on the young season early last week, beating visiting Walled Lake 10-0.

The game ended via the mercy rule after two periods.

"The girls are really playing well," head coach Anna Kuehnlein said. "We had several girls earn a point, which was great."

The Knights scored four goals in the first period and six in the second on 14 shots on net. Walled Lake had 10 shots, which sophomore goalkeeper Eve Bournias stopped to post the shutout.

Offensively, senior Olivia Yates had a natural hat trick, scoring her three goals in the opening period. She scored on the power play at the 9:43 mark and then at the 2:54 mark and finished the hat trick with a tally with only 30 seconds left.

Sophomore Annette Meraw scored the Knights' first goal in the opening period and added her second goal of the game 46 seconds into the second stanza.

Other goal scorers in the second period were junior Abby Doppke, senior Maddie Hamilton, junior Lucy Barnowske, freshman Kendall Zinn and freshman Gabrielle Anusbigian.

Senior Kate Zinn and

Barnowske had three assists apiece, while Kendall Zinn had four helpers.

Three players had two assists, Hamilton, junior Kate Birgbauer and sophomore Kate Carron, and netting one assist apiece were Yates and Meraw.

The only negative for the Knights was the loss of senior Naomi Yoshida, who is out for the season after suffering a shoulder injury midway through the first period.

GROSSE POINTE SOUTH GIRLS

Blue Devils find success in opener

The Grosse Pointe South girls basketball team opened its season in style last week, beating visiting Chippewa Valley 40-31.

"It wasn't pretty, but it was a well-earned win," head coach Kevin Richards said. "We shot the ball better and defensively we got after them.

We had a lot of intensity tonight and that is what I hoped for. We had the first-game jitters, but that is expected."

The Blue Devils trailed 12-7 after the first quarter and 18-14 at the half.

They tied it 18-18 early in the third quarter, but the Big Reds scored five straight points to take a 23-18 lead.

The momentum shifted when the home team used a 13-0 run to grab a 31-23 advantage with one quarter to play.

"That run was huge, but I knew we had a run in us," Richards said.

The Blue Devils were able to limit their turnovers, force a lot of turnovers and rebound well in the second half.

The Blue Devils outscored the Big Reds 26-13 in the third and fourth quarters.

Leading the Blue Devils in scoring was freshman Alexa Downey with nine points.

Junior Lily Adams scored eight points, followed by seniors Kamryn Tucker and Margot Baer with six points apiece.

Junior Maria Hessburg had five points.

Other scorers were junior Sydni Hall with three, sophomore Anna Stumb with two and junior Savannah Srebernak with one.

Grosse Pointe South is 1-0 overall.

GROSSE POINTE NORTH

Another shutout

By Bob St. John
Sports Editor

Grosse Pointe North girls hockey team improved to 2-1 on the season after a 2-0 win over host Plymouth-Canton-Salem early last week.

Quick and assistant coach Emma Huellmantel watched senior goalkeeper McKenzie Obermok post the shutout.

It is the second straight shutout for the Norsemen.

Offensively, junior Clare Murphy scored an unassisted goal, while junior Hannah Martin also scored, assisted by junior Bella Welke and senior Kylee Banaszewski.

The Norsemen's next game is at home at 4 p.m. Thursday, Nov. 30, against Bloomfield Hills Cranbrook Kingswood.

NORTH & SOUTH

North, South stumble

By Bob St. John
Sports Editor

The Grosse Pointe North boys hockey team traveled to Alpena last weekend, playing in a Thanksgiving weekend tournament.

The Norsemen dropped the opener 8-2 to Alpena as Connor Albrecht scored both goals. Ryan Rokicki and Chris Lorelli assisted the first and Mario Lorelli assisted the second.

They trailed 2-0 after the first period and 4-1 after two as Alpena scored two short-handed goals. Kyle Losinski and Brian Clogg shared net minder duties, combining to stop 32 shots.

"We got ourselves in a hole and couldn't climb out," head coach Joe Drouin said.

In the consolation game, the Norsemen lost 5-4 to Freeland.

"Trying to shore up our lines, we split up our top line and it paid off," Drouin said.

Austin Albrecht scored 25 seconds in the opening period and Thomas Supal tallied five minutes later to give the Norsemen a 2-0 lead.

Freeland tied it 2-2, but Austin Albrecht scored again, assisted by J.D. Allor, to make it a 3-2 game.

Charlie Weiss scored, but Freeland tied it 4-4 after two periods.

In the third period, the Norsemen had chances, but Freeland was able to score early in the stanza and held on.

"After eight hours on a bus, we learned a few things," Drouin said. "Evan Kolinski is a presence in front of the net. We have a group of really good hockey players who are one bounce away from being a really good team.

"Mentally the team is on it, physically we have a couple costly breakdowns a game that end up costing us goals."

Grosse Pointe North is 0-4 overall and hosts U-D Jesuit at 7:30 Friday, Dec. 1, at Fraser Hockeyland.

South results

Grosse Pointe South played at USA Hockey Arena against host Novi Catholic Central last weekend and lost 8-0.

The Blue Devils were out shot 25-9 and couldn't seize any momentum against one of the top teams in the state.

Will Strickler suffered the loss as Grosse Pointe South fell to 0-2 overall.

Next for the Blue Devils is a road game Friday, Dec. 1, against Macomb Dakota, at Surburban Ice Arena in Macomb.

Blue Devils focused

By Bob St. John
Sports Editor

The Grosse Pointe South boys swimming and diving team heads into the 2017-18 season as a favorite to win another Macomb Area Conference Red Division dual meet and league meet championship.

Head coach Eric Gunderson watched his boys take sixth last season in the Division 2 state meet and if his All-State competitors return, look out.

Those underclassmen who made All-State were Ethan Briggs in the 200-yard medley relay, 100-yard butterfly, 100-yard backstroke and 400-yard freestyle relay; Matthew Melican in the 200-yard medley relay and 100-yard backstroke; and Matthew Koueiter in the 200-yard medley relay and 100-yard breaststroke.

Others who competed in the state finals as underclassmen are Thomas Jogan in the 200-yard freestyle, 100-yard freestyle and 400-yard freestyle relay; Khalib Rahmaan in the 200-yard individual medley and 200-yard freestyle relay; Nick Vallan in the 50-yard freestyle, 100-yard freestyle and 400-yard freestyle relay; and Koueiter in the 100-yard butterfly.

The Blue Devils have another two dozen of returning swimmers and divers who will fill roles vital to the team's success.

The Blue Devils won the MAC Red Division with a 4-0 record last winter and took first in the league meet.

Gunderson hasn't lost a division dual meet in his tenure and the Blue Devils as a program haven't lost a division dual meet in more than a decade.

The veterans on the team are talented and eager to not only win division and league meet titles, but earn All-State and try to lead the team to a top five finish in the state finals.

South's division foes are Macomb Dakota, Grosse Pointe North, Romeo and Chippewa Valley. Dakota pushed South to the limit last year and fields a strong team, taking second to De La Salle in the Macomb County Meet.

In non-league meets, the Blue Devils face De La Salle, U-D Jesuit, Ann Arbor Huron, L'Anse Creuse and Detroit Country Day.

They also compete in the EMU Classic Relays, the Pangborn Invitational and Wayne County Championship Meet.

The MAC Red league meet is Friday, Feb. 23, and Saturday, Feb. 24, at Grosse Pointe North and the Division 2 state title meet is Friday, March 9, and Saturday, March 10, at Oakland University's natatorium.

GROSSE POINTE NORTH

New coach leads Norsemen

By Bob St. John
Sports Editor

The Grosse Pointe North boys swimming and diving team has a new head coach, Ben Winn, who takes the reigns from Dan Hafner. His assistants are Tom Mulhern, diving, and Nick Valice.

For the past three years, Winn has been involved in the Grosse Pointe area swim scene by coaching at Lochmoor Club and Pointe Aquatics. During his time at Wayne State University, he was a five-time All-American, a two-time division II national qualifier, an individual conference champion, two-time team captain and selected as the 2015 male Student-

Athlete of the year

He attended Romeo High School where he was an All-State athlete.

The Norsemen finished 2-2 in the Macomb Area Conference Red Division and 6-2 overall a year ago. They were third in the league meet with 197 points.

This season, the Norsemen have many returning seniors, including Thomas Schaden, Samuel Stafford and Jonathan Stander. Juniors Brian Veneri, Hunter Adelson and Thomas Hartzell are also looking to make a splash in the pool this season.

"All three were conference scorers in the past season and have a chance to qualify for the upcoming state meet this year,"

Winn said. "These swimmers compete in a variety of events which will help the Norsemen immensely."

Another athlete to watch for is junior diver Austin Robins, who will play an integral part in point scoring for the Norsemen.

Winn indicates there are many incoming freshmen with a lot of talent but he is looking at swimmers Connor Lefebvre and Owen Schaaf to contribute to the success of the Norsemen.

The Norsemen's division opponents are Romeo, Grosse Pointe South, Chippewa Valley and Macomb Dakota, and their non-league foes are L'Anse Creuse and Utica Ford.

Competitive cheerNORTH & SOUTH

Cheer teams ready for solid seasons

By Bob St. John
Sports Editor

The Grosse Pointe South competitive cheer team is coming off a third-place finish in the Macomb Area Conference Blue Division.

The Blue Devils finished with 594.24 points, behind Anchor Bay and Clawson with 652.94 and 651.84 points.

Head coach Ashley Gerbi is counting on seniors Bobbi Barrett, Maya Ciechanowski, Madison Griffin, Taelor Motley and Arianna Pagenette to lead the way.

Juniors are Erica Fossee and Anna Majni, while sophomores are Victoria Boykin, Martha Dawson, Caroline Kalmar, Rachel Kostrzewska, Anne Muawad, Madeline Ulku and Mirella Villani.

Two freshmen are on the squad, Skylur Henry and Cassidy Kline.

Grosse Pointe North and its head coach Kia Jordan finished a close second to Chippewa Valley in the MAC Gold Division last winter.

The Big Reds earned 679.04 points and the Norsemen had 666.58. Marine City was also within shouting distance, taking third with 621.34.

This season, the Norsemen's seniors are

Demetria Bates, Martzha Hurtt, Olivia Martin, Kaylah McGee, and Reanna Williams; juniors Toniah Eli, Hope Miller, Mya Morris and Taylor Morton; sophomores Dae'Aune Charles, Morgan Cribbs, Lauren Jackson, Breanna Peterson and Joy Taylor; and freshmen Brionna Brooks, May Brown, Amyre Carr-Alexander, Cierra Chatman, Jayia Harlan, Chloe Harris-Thomas, A'Nisha Howell and Morgan Smith.

The Blue Devils and Norsemen compete in three regular season events where total scores are added after each one.

UNIVERSITY LIGGETT SCHOOL

Knights' confidence level rising

By Bob St. John

Sports Editor

It's year No. 2 of the Chris Housey era at University Liggett and the boys basketball varsity team is ready to play at a higher level than a year ago.

"The guys are ahead of the game and they know the drills and the plays, which is a big benefit," Housey said. "Last year was tough because I had to teach everything. Now it's a year later and I can see the guys are more comfortable at practice."

Last year the Knights finished with a sub-.500 record at 8-13.

This year the goal is to get to the .500 mark or beyond and returning seniors Anthony George, Casey Scoggin and Desmond Darby can make that happen.

"I have a lot of leadership from my seniors," Housey said. "They have won on other teams and they bring that attitude to the basketball program. I'm happy to have them and they will contribute a lot to this team."

Other returning players are junior Charlie Amine and sophomores Nolan Ondersma and Anthony Green.

Newcomers to the varsity are juniors Mickey Walkowiak and Davidson Cheng, sophomores Nick Post and Peter Tate, and freshman Cameron Strong.

"We don't have much size, but we have a lot of versatility on the roster with guys who can play multiple positions on the court," Housey said. "We will look to run more and use our speed to our advantage.

"We are not going to be a post-team, but that is OK. We will adjust to what personnel we have and we have good basketball players to work with."

Defensively, Housey wants his players to yield an average of 44 points per game and offensively they are looking to get into the 50s.

They have the speed to trap teams and execute a more up-tempo style of play.

The Knights are in their first season as a member of the Catholic League. They are in the Intersectional A Division with Ann Arbor Greenhills, Royal Oak Shrine, Madison Heights Bishop Foley, Bloomfield Hills Cranbrook Kingswood and Waterford Our Lady of the Lakes.

"We are definitely in a tough division," Housey said. "It's not going to be easy, but I know we will compete against every team in our division."

They play each division foe at home and on the road.

In non-league games, the Knights face Sterling Heights Parkway Christian, Rochester Hills Lutheran Northwest, Warren Lincoln, Clarkston Everest Collegiate and Warren Fitzgerald.

They also compete in the Cardinal Mooney Tournament Wednesday, Dec. 27, and Friday, Dec. 29.

Come state playoff time, Liggett is in a Class C tournament at Warren Michigan Collegiate with Clintondale, Detroit Pershing, Mount Clemens and host Michigan Collegiate.

"Our district is very competitive, but I think last year the guys had a deer in the headlights look when we faced a good Pershing team," Housey said. "That won't be the case this year. Our guys are used to playing that caliber of basketball and it will help come playoff time. We will be ready."

Blue Devils field young team

By Bob St. John

Sports Editor

Head boys basketball coach Troy Glasser knows he has a very young, inexperienced team heading into the 2017-18 season, but what the guys will learn from Glasser is that hard work and hustle can make up for the lack of varsity experience.

"We are very young, but we have hard-working guys on the court," Glasser said. "I know this group will put the time in to become better basketball players."

Returning players are seniors Cooper Lundh, Theodore Niforos, Julian Harrell and Dan Cullen, as well as junior Ryan Downey.

Newcomers to the varsity are sophomore Ryan Buszka and juniors Erington Belyue, Stephen Gulley, Chase Tomlin, Luke Adams, Riley Francis and Josh Simmet.

The Blue Devils finished 10-11 last season with a team of mostly seniors.

They competed in the tough Macomb Area Conference Red Division and are, by far, the smallest school enrollment-wise. Despite that, they held their own last year and finished tied for second at 5-5.

South junior point guard Ryan Downey, right, will have to play a bigger role this season for the young Blue Devils.

Chippewa Valley and Lake Shore play in the second semifinal. Stevenson are the favorites to battle for the division title this winter. Where will the Blue Devils finish?

"We will battle and we will have to play a more up-tempo style of basketball since we really don't have a big lineup," Glasser said.

Macomb Dakota, Utica Eisenhower and L'Anse Creuse North also are in the MAC Red Division. The Blue Devils play each division foe twice and have non-league contests against Dearborn Divine Child at Calihan Hall, New Haven and Grosse Pointe North.

The Blue Devils also host a holiday tournament Wednesday, Dec. 27, and Friday, Dec. 29. They face Pinckney in one semifinal, while Birmingham Brother Rice and St. Clair Shores play in the second semifinal.

"We have a tough schedule right off the bat with Divine Child, New Haven and Grosse Pointe North," Glasser said. "We will definitely be tested before playing our division opener against Dakota before the break."

South plays in the MAC Red/White Division Tournament mid-February and travels to Detroit Western International for its Class A district tournament.

Competitors are favored Detroit Cass Tech, Detroit East English Village Prep Academy, Detroit Martin Luther King, Hamtramck and host Western International.

"All our kids are high-character guys and they're buying into the team, each other and the system. We're excited about this group."

Norsemen have ton of potential

By Bob St. John

Sports Editor

Head boys basketball coach Ron Kochan fields a team of giants this season with eight players standing 6-foot 3-inches in height or taller.

Kochan will use this to his advantage when his Grosse Pointe North boys basketball team takes the floor this season. Big things are expected after last year's 14-8 finish.

The Norsemen shared a Macomb Area Conference White Division title with Utica Ford and made it to a district championship game, falling to host St. Clair Shores Lake Shore.

Returning players are seniors Tyler Hill, Hank Zalewski, Phil Ross, Jarell Stewart and Sheldon Cage and juniors Ryan Webb, Joe Ayraut and Hunter Levick.

Newcomers to the varsity are senior Desmond Taylor, juniors Joe Rheaume and Owen Rossman and sophomore Cameron Perrino.

"We expect to compete for a league championship, as well as a district title," Kochan said. "We feel like we have good depth and versatility with our personnel."

"Our players worked really hard in the off-season and our guys are eager to step into larger roles this season."

"All our kids are high-character guys and they're buying into the team, each other and the system. We're excited about this group."

most games, proving to be match-up problems for the opposition.

Kochan has the luxury of playing a big lineup, working a more half-court offense, or a smaller lineup, which runs more.

The Norsemen's division foes this season are Romeo, Roseville, Warren

Mott, Ford and Utica.

In non-league games, Kochan scheduled Eastpointe East Detroit, St. Clair and Grosse Pointe South.

In addition, the Norsemen compete in the Crusader Classic at L'Anse Creuse North Wednesday, Dec. 27, and Thursday, Dec. 28.

Norsemen look to contend in Red

By Bob St. John
Sports Editor

The Grosse Pointe North girls basketball team heads into the season with a lot of promise, thanks to a roster loaded with veterans, most of which are still underclassmen.

Head coach Gary Bennett's lone senior is Josie Ciaravino.

The team is heavy with juniors, including returning players Julia Ayrault, Evelyn Zacharias, Cari Humphries, Rachel Sexton and Maddie Mills.

Sophomores Michelle Bodnariuk and Christina Braker also return, giving head coach Gary Bennett one of his most veteran squads in several years.

One benefit Bennett has is the availability of Humphries and Braker, who both missed last season due to knee injuries. Both are healthy and ready for the season.

Newcomers to the varsity are juniors Rachel Liagre and Regan Sliwinski and freshman Maddie Kohler.

The Norsemen are coming off a season which saw them win a district title and finish 12-11 overall. They beat St. Clair Shores Lakeview in the district championship game at Roseville in front of a standing-room only crowd.

The Norsemen finished 4-6 in the Macomb Area Conference Red Division, which was fourth place behind Warren Cousino at 10-0, Port Huron Northern at 8-2 and Macomb Dakota at 6-4.

"The Red Division will be tough once again," Bennett said. "I think Port Huron Northern has the best shot at the division title."

"Although they lost some key players from last year, they still return some very good players, and they combine that with a lot of talent from their undefeated JV team. What's more, they are extremely well-coached."

"I think Dakota and Cousino will also have very good teams despite losing several key players to graduation. Both might surprise people. South and Romeo should both be stronger than last year. There is no night off in the Red Division."

North has the potential to be in the division title mix. The returning core is solid and Ayrault is a future NCAA Division 1 player who is a year older and a stronger basketball player.

The MAC Red/White Division Tournament is slated to start Friday, Feb. 9, on the home floor of the White Division foe.

In non-league action, the Norsemen face Sterling Heights Stevenson, Sterling Heights, Utica Ford, Chippewa Valley, Warren Regina, Harper Woods Chandler Park Academy and Utica.

"We hope to be competitive with everyone in the Red Division," Bennett said. "Our main goal is to become a really tight team with great chemistry and a great work ethic, where contributing to the team's success is more important than individual accomplishments."

Blue Devils turn to youth

By Bob St. John
Sports Editor

The Grosse Pointe South girls basketball team looks to rebound from a sub-par 2016-17 season under long-time head coach Kevin Richards.

The Blue Devils are still a relatively young team with only two seniors, Margot Baer and Kamryn Tucker, on the roster.

"We have a lot returning, but that is from a 5-win team," Richards said. "We were very young last year and still very young. We are scoring much easier in practice and I hope that is a good sign."

Other returning players are juniors Savannah Srebernak, Maria Hessburg, Sydni Hall and Lily Adams.

Newcomers to the varsity are juniors Jetwyn Wilson and Maria Beacham, sophomores Anna Stumb and Payton Roy and freshman Alexa Downey.

"We have a very tough division with some really good coaches," Richards said. "My hope is that we can continue to improve and steal some games."

"We are focusing on getting tougher, competing at a high level and shooting the ball every day. I really like the chemistry of this group and they make it fun to come to practice. Our best basketball is still ahead of us."

The Blue Devils finished 0-10 in the tough Macomb Area Conference Red Division, which fields some of the strongest competition in the area.

Port Huron Northern, Macomb Dakota and Grosse Pointe North are the early favorites.

Two-time defending champ Warren Cousino, Romeo and South have young, but improving players.

The Blue Devils play

each division foe twice and has non-league contests against Chippewa Valley, Utica Eisenhower, Utica, Sterling Heights Stevenson and Utica Ford.

They also compete in the MAC Red/White Division Tournament in the middle of February.

South travels to Detroit Martin Luther King for its Class A district tournament in early March. Competitors are host MLK, East English Village Prep Academy, Cass Tech, Detroit Western International and Hamtramck.

New coach teaches fundamentals

By Bob St. John
Sports Editor

John Bandos is at the helm of the University Liggett girls basketball team, taking over for Omar Ahart.

Bandos coached the Knights in 2000, but decided to focus more on coaching at the middle school level since then.

His patience with the players and ability to get the girls to play hard each and every night are two reasons why school administrators signed him to be the head coach.

His assistant is Julie Borushko, who played for Bandos on that 2000 team.

"As you know, coaching sports is a finicky proposition," Bandos said. "Some years your team is up and some years your team is down. Participation in sports is very cyclical like that and the impact is felt at a small school like University Liggett."

The Knights played only a handful of games last season. Extremely low numbers and injuries forced the team to cancel its season.

Five players return, seniors Delaney Bandos and Lauryn Holliday, juniors Maria Pas and Mimi Wujek and sophomore Melanie Zampardo.

Bandos is looking to the returning five to provide leadership.

The rest of the team is composed of sophomores and freshmen. It will be up to Bandos and the returning players to create a fun and fundamentally sound foundation.

Liggett junior Maria Pas is a veteran new head coach John Bandos is counting on for leadership.

It is our hope to competitively compete in all games and to continue the success the program has enjoyed in the past," Bandos said.

Others on the team are senior Teagan Cornell; junior Izzy Brusilow; sophomores Lara Galea, Katherine Gray and Olivia Fetterman; and freshmen Aidan McFarlane, DuJour Johnson, Kaitlyn Gray, Delaney Garvey and Frannie Boyle.

In non-league games, the Knights face Clarkston Everest Collegiate, Warren Lincoln and Rochester Hills Lutheran Northwest.

Liggett travels to Clintondale for its Class C district, competing against Detroit Pershing, Mount Clemens, New Haven, Warren Michigan Collegiate and host Clintondale.

Time needed for adjustment

South senior Lauren Kramer led the Michigan Metro Girls High School Hockey League in scoring last season.

By Bob St. John
Sports Editor

Grosse Pointe South girls hockey program is the most successful in the 20-year history of the Michigan Metro Girls High School Hockey League.

Bill Fox was the first head coach and led the Blue Devils to numerous state titles. Joe Provenzano was next and his squads won a couple of titles and the latest at the helm was Chris Booth.

Booth recently stepped down as head coach after one season and in stepped John Weidenbach. The Grosse Pointe resident has a long, successful hockey background, so the Blue Devils are in good hands entering the 2017-18 campaign.

Weidenbach coached the Michigan Icehawks

U12 girls team, as well as the Grosse Pointe Bulldogs boys. He also coached the Birmingham Unified boys squad and Bloomfield Hills Cranbrook-Kingswood junior varsity team.

He played prep hockey at Cushing Academy in Ashburnham, Mass., and then spent three years as the goalie for the Michigan State Spartans.

Weidenbach took over the team at the end of October, so he is playing catch-up when it comes to personnel and style of play.

"It's been a little bit of a whirlwind since I took over a few weeks ago," Weidenbach said. "We're making the most of our time on the ice and getting to know each player."

The coach is leaning on senior captains Lauren Kramer, Erin Brannagan and Hannah Miller. Kramer led the league in scoring last year and Brannagan played well, despite missing half of the year with an injury. All three are ready to roll.

The goaltenders are junior Madeline Kelly and sophomore Emily Desnoyer.

Other players on the roster are seniors Cailey Paull and Solana Bryson; juniors Rose Williamson, Alice Williamson, Anna Mary Moody, Alyssa Czech, Madison Ryszewski, Keely Benz and Charlotte Martinez; sophomores Kelsie Francis, Natalie Clextion and Lauren Benoit; and freshmen Veronica VanRossen and Regan Sherry.

South plays 14 league games.

The Blue Devils should be one of the top teams in the state and winning the state title is always a goal. They have the players to get it done.

UNIVERSITY LIGGETT SCHOOL

Knights ready to challenge

By Bob St. John
Sports Editor

The University Liggett girls hockey team is ready for year No. 2 under the tutelage of head coach Anna Kuehnlein.

Last year, the Knights won a Division 2 state championship. They have a lot of returning players, so the goal is to reclaim their spot as one of the best teams in Division 1.

Captain Olivia Yates leads a group of veterans, including assistant captains Kate Zinn, Maddie Hamilton and Marika Vreeken. Other returners are Abby Doppke, Lucy Barnowske, Kate Birgbauer, Eve Bournias, Annette Meraw, Anika Vreeken, Kate Carron, Maisie Melican, Nicole Rivera and Naomi Yoshida. Yoshida missed most of last year with an injury and played three games this season before re-injuring her shoulder.

Newcomers are Kendall Zinn and Gabby Anusbigian, as well as assistant coaches Mark Zasucha and Brock Dunn.

"Olivia Yates and Kate Zinn are our steadfast leaders who have a lot of knowledge of the game and a ton of skill," Kuehnlein said. "Our goaltender Eve Bournias is in her second year of being a goaltender and has far exceeded any expectations of anyone in her position. She has been working extremely hard at that with her natural athleticism and goaltender mindset."

Kate Birgbauer and Abby Doppke are also fairly new to the game and continue to impress me every time they take the ice.

"I could not be more excited about our incoming freshmen. Zinn and Anusbigian have amazing attitudes and work ethics, combined with a lot of talent is making for a really smooth and welcoming transition to the team."

The Knights struggled with the upper-tier teams last season, but finished strong and was near the .500 mark.

They rallied from a huge deficit to beat Ann Arbor Pioneer 8-6 in the D2 title game.

"I'm most excited about the players who were new to the game last year and a little coy about taking the ice each shift last season, due to nerves and lack of confidence," Kuehnlein said. "They are not just girls who are trying to play hockey. They are strong, skilled hockey players and play such an important role in this team."

Kuehnlein's assistant coaches are Zasucha, Dunn and Jackie Zarb.

Casey Quick takes over at the helm of the Norsemen and Emma Huellmantel, a North

Quick brings a wealth of hockey knowledge to the position. He coached USA Level 4 officiated men's and women's hockey, as well as boys and girls at every level, as well as coached at Honeybaked AAA and GPHA travel teams.

He also played football and hockey at North in the mid-'80s, so he is familiar with the school and its student-athletes.

His hockey philosophy is about being strong defensively, especially in front of the net, and to keep proper gap control or pressure on the attacking team.

He wants his players to create scoring opportunities off turnovers, finishing around the net by scoring goals, be positive and have fun.

He has a master's degree in finance from Walsh College and an undergraduate degree from the University of Michigan.

"I am very lucky to have Emma (Huellmantel) as an assistant coach," Quick said. "She is a former goalie at GP North who played all four years on varsity. In addition, she is an out-

Key veterans for the Norsemen are senior captain Kylee Banaszewski and assistant captains Lindsey Ramsdell, a senior, and Bella Welke, a junior.

Others to watch include junior Clare Murphy, who will be counted on to provide scoring, junior Maddie McIntyre and junior Hannah Martin.

Madeline Winsininski, sophomore Mackenzie Stockwell and junior Lily Gleeson also are on the varsity squad.

"I believe we have good team chemistry and good leadership," Quick said. "If it stays that way, we can become a team later in the season that nobody will want to play."

Freshmen Erin Murphy and Mia Cassar made the team. Murphy can play center and defense and Cassar is a goalkeeper. Both goalies return. They are seniors Erika Benoit and McKenzie Obermok.

UNIVERSITY LIGGETT SCHOOL

New coach, new system for Knights

By Bob St. John
Sports Editor

The University Liggett boys hockey team has a new head coach this season, Mike Maltese, who takes over for Mike Hamilton.

Maltese coached the Grosse Pointe North varsity hockey team for a few years and was a junior varsity hockey coach at Warren De La Salle before that. He played high level hockey as a teenager and college hockey at Northern Michigan.

The Knights have enjoyed a lot of success the past decade and won a state title a few years ago. They fell in a regional semifinal last year, but big things could be in the works this season.

Senior captain Dylan Paulsell leads the way. The assistant captains are seniors Sean Detloff, Spencer Stefani and Matt Moroun.

Other leading returning players are seniors Spencer Warezak, Nathan Alcantara, Mason Campau, Alex Johnson, Charlie Fruehauf and Ferg Roby, juniors Dan Bowen and Caden Lewandowski and sophomore Will Nicholson.

Liggett senior Spencer Warezak, right, is a key component to the Knights' hopeful success this season.

Lindsay is slated to be the goaltender.

Rounding out the roster are juniors Darcy Huang, Luke Zinn, C.J. Morris and Dace Potas; sophomores Nolan Allaer, Dakota Jones, William Nicholson, Tristan Reilly and Townsend Meredith; and freshmen Will Bowen, Tommy Campau, Alec Leonard, Ryan Warezak and Reilly Thierry.

"Looking forward to what should be an exciting season for Liggett hockey," Maltese said.

"It's really enjoyable to come to this amazing facility and a school where these players are working hard every single day, great attitudes and dedicated to becoming better hockey players.

"I've been telling the boys since I started that this year is a year they can do something special and the expectations are high. Our end goal is to make it out of our tough regional where state champ De La Salle is in."

The Knights lacked consistency last season and it showed with slow starts, followed by solid second halves of games.

Maltese expects a complete effort.

Liggett competes in the East Division of the Michigan Metro Hockey League, along with Detroit Country Day, Dearborn Divine Child, Riverview Gabriel Richard, Wyandotte Roosevelt and Allen Park.

In non-league action, the Knights face Allen Park Cabrini, Ann Arbor Gabriel Richard, Royal Oak and Royal Oak Shrine.

They also host two invitatorials Friday, Dec. 21, and Saturday, Dec. 22, and Friday, Jan. 26, and Saturday, Jan. 27, plus travel to Traverse City for a three-game tournament.

The Knights play in the Michigan Interscholastic Hockey League Showcase Thursday, Feb. 1, and Friday, Feb. 2, in Trenton, as well as play a crossover game against the OAA Jan. 20.

"If we pay attention to the little details and compete every night, there is no reason why we shouldn't have success at the end of the year," Maltese said. "But it's a process and it's not going to happen overnight."

"It's my job to keep these guys focused and task oriented and just take it one game at a time."

GROSSE POINTE SOUTH

Young team heads to tough MIHL

By Bob St. John

Sports Editor

The Grosse Pointe South boys hockey team will take a different approach this season.

Head coach Bobby McKillop lost a ton of seniors off last year's state-ranked squad. He had some talented kids return, but these veterans have to fill those big shoes.

"We are going to struggle early, but we will get better," McKillop said. "The guys need to learn to play the game within the game to win. They can't turn over the puck and they play sound hockey in all areas of the game."

The Blue Devils' roster includes forwards Alex Strehlke, Giovanni Lutfy, Conor McKenna, Ben Roraff, Adam Strehlke, Evan Theros, Scott Miller, John McShane, Andrew Vyletel, Garrett Benoit, Keegan Spitz and Dean Therriault; defensemen Drew Maccagnone, Nick Remelius, Zach Passamani; and goalkeepers Will Strickler and Camden Mills.

South senior Garrett Bollenbacher, No. 20, is a veteran head coach Bobby McKillop needs to step up this season.

Jimmy Rauh, Bradley Burdick and Nolan Remelius, Zach Passamani; and goalkeepers Will Strickler and Camden Mills.

"We have a few guys who will put the puck in the net and they will lead the offense," McKillop said. "We have to be tough in our own zone and my goaltender has to be solid."

The Blue Devils moved from the Michigan Metro Hockey League to the state's toughest, the Michigan Interscholastic

Hockey League.

"Our new guys are going to be in for a shock when they play the tough competition in the MIHL," McKillop said.

"Playing the Brother Rice's, Catholic Central's and Cranbrook's all the time will be tough if they don't play hard nosed hockey every night."

"It's as simple as that. This is a young and inexperienced team, but the potential to be a good team is there."

The Blue Devils face South Division foes Warren De La Salle, Trenton, U-D Jesuit and Grosse Pointe North twice, plus Birmingham Brother Rice, Novi Catholic Central, Port Huron Northern, Orchard Lake St. Mary's and Bloomfield Hills Cranbrook Kingswood once.

In non-league games, McKillop scheduled Macomb Dakota, Livonia Churchill and Utica Eisenhower.

They also compete against a team from the Kensington Lakes Activities Association Friday, Dec. 15, the Liggett Tournament Friday, Dec. 22, and Saturday, Dec. 23, and the MIHL Showcase Friday, Feb. 2, and Saturday, Feb. 3, in Trenton.

Drouin takes over Norsemen

By Bob St. John
Sports Editor

Joe Drouin is the new head coach of the Grosse Pointe North boys hockey team.

He played hockey in high school at Harper Woods Notre Dame, as well as football and track and field. He also played college football at Adrian College.

He has coached football at Grosse Pointe South, Grosse Pointe North, St. Clair Shores Lakeview and Roseville, plus South lacrosse and softball, as well as North baseball.

The Norsemen struggled the past four years and are searching for a .500 finish.

Look for seniors Austin Albrecht, Thomas Supal and J.D. Allor, plus juniors Connor Albrecht and Chris Lorelli, to lead the team.

Newcomers include senior defenseman Charles Weiss, and sophomores Evan Berger and Michael Burns. They are role players who will grind out shifts for the Norsemen.

GROSSE POINTE UNITED

Majority of team is back and ready

By Bob St. John
Sports Editor

The Grosse Pointe United gymnastics team heads into the season with a wealth of veterans, including several who are back for their second year with the program.

Head coach Kristin Remillet has senior captain Maggie Bowers to lead the young team and junior Elizabeth Byarski can compete in each event. Also, senior Sydney Dugan is a captain, who excels on the balance beam.

Sophomore Emma Burney competes in all four events, while injured competitors Emma Andreoli, a junior, and Kaleigh Wu, a sophomore, are back and healthy. Other contributing sophomores who return are Amanda Nguyen, Bella Cameron, Lexi Poulus and Claire Yee.

Seniors Kiyla Harris and Aundrianna Boles also return and add a veteran presence to the program. Junior Emma Scott returned to the team after missing her sophomore year to pursue the sport at the club level. She was on the GP team as a freshman.

Look for freshmen Cate Gagnier and Kate Ennis, as well as sophomore Callie Kersten, to add a lot to the team. They have club experience.

"I'm very optimistic about our upcoming season," Remillet said. "With new additions and returning athletes, our lineup will contain more depth than last year."

"A slightly larger team, complete with girls who have rejoined our team or come back after injuries, in addition to our three talented new freshman, will prove to be an asset for sure."

"I'm also looking forward to working alongside Maria and Izzy Nguyen in their new coaching roles. They're already bringing a new dynamic to the coaching staff with their strong gymnastics background and positivity. Having Courtney Hamidi assisting frequently this season will also be vital as she is the coach with the most experience and knowledge of high school gymnastics."

Grosse Pointe's division foes are Fraser, Birmingham Unified, Port Huron, Troy and Dearborn.

The league meet is Wednesday, Feb. 14, and the regional meet is Saturday, March 3, both on the road.
