State races no surprise in Pointes

By Anthony Viola
Staff Writer

THE GROSSE POINTES — There appeared to be no surprises brewing in state races relevant to Grosse Pointe as of press time Tuesday night.

Below are the results reported by the Wayne County Clerk's office as of 11 p.m.

With 56 percent of precincts reporting in Michigan State Senate District 2 — comprising all five Grosse Pointes, Harper Woods, Hamtramck, Highland Park and a portion of Detroit — Democrat Adam Hollier led with 75 percent of the vote. He received 37,822 votes to Republican and Grosse Pointer Lisa Papas' 11,974.

Hollier will begin serving immediately winning the partial term as well. That race was uncontested.

In State House District 1, incumbent and Democrat Tenisha Yancey led Republican Mark Corcoran by more than 10,000 votes with 55 percent of precincts reporting. Yancey received 14,565 votes to Corcoran's 3,989. Libertarian candidate Gregory Creswell received 412 votes.

GPPSS bond leads in early results

By Mary Anne Brush
Staff Writer

With 54 percent of votes reported by Wayne County, as of 10:43 p.m. Tuesday, Nov. 6, The Grosse Pointe Public School System bond proposal appeared to have an edge to win with 57 percent voting yes and 43 percent voting no. These did not include late returns from Grosse Pointe Farms, Grosse Pointe Park or Grosse Pointe Woods.

Unofficial results from these cities show strongest support in Grosse Pointe Park, with 3,987 voting yes and 2,507 voting no. The gap was closer in Grosse Pointe Farms, with 3,268 voting yes and 2,889 no, and the City of Grosse Pointe, with 1,793 yes votes and 1,524 opposing the millage. The bond was defeated in Grosse Pointe Shores, with 1,012 no votes and 585 voting yes. Grosse Pointe Woods had not reported as of press time.

Shannon Byrne and Dan Roeske, who chaired the Better Schools, Safer Schools committee in support of the bond, were pleased with early results favoring the bond.

"We are so happy that our Grosse Pointe and Harper Woods community showed strong support for our kids and our schools today," Byrne said. "If it passes, this bond will enable our district to make critical infrastructure, safety and technology upgrades to ensure GPPSS continues to pro-

Grosse Pointe voters take to the polls

THE GROSSE POINTES — On a windy and rainy November day, Grosse Pointers headed to the polls to cast their ballots in the midterm election.

For a lot of people, the Grosse Pointe Public School System bond request was the biggest local issue driving them to the polls. The school district requested residents approve a $111 million bond for constructing secure vestibules, repairing roofs and replacing outdated mechanical equipment, along with updating the technology infrastructure.

Standing in the rain outside Defer Elementary School Tuesday afternoon, Park resident Aimee Fluit said one of the reasons she lives in Grosse Pointe is because of the schools. She said she was surprised at the condition of some of the school buildings.

"A friend of mine posted a picture on Facebook the other day of the boiler at Trombly, which was installed in 1926. It's the original boiler," Fluit said.

"I think it's a no-brainer. It's got to be done. Not only do I support education anyway, but I think from a totally pragmatic point of view, we have to take care of the schools.

It's one of the best things about this community."

Farms resident Jessica Brooks echoed Fluit's sentiments. She said she moved to the Farms in 2013 and one of the reasons she decided to stay was the school district.

"I think this bond is tremendously important for our community," said

Brooks, a nonprofit worker. "... I understand how run down these schools have become over the years and I think it's important to be able to compete statewide and nationwide with other schools. So I think this bond is going to help in terms of bringing the schools up to code and ensuring our children are safe in this world."

Hawthorne house gone

By Melissa Walsh
Staff Writer

GROSSE POINTE WOODS — Late Monday morning, Amanda Wheatley watched the demolition of her childhood home in the 1200 block of Hawthorne.

"I was blindsided by all this," she said. "If I had a neighbor who was struggling, I wouldn't dream of doing this," Wheatley said, accusing neighbors of enjoying the demolition of her home.

The razing followed the decision reached by Wayne County Circuit Judge David Groner Tuesday, June 19, following the nuisance abatement lawsuit filed by Grosse Pointe Woods August 2017 against the homeowners — Wheatley, 60, who inherited the house she lived in since she was 7 years old, and Leslie Hughes, 61.

Shared and mentored workspace available to startups, established businesses

By Jody McVeigh
Editor

Grosse Pointe Farms businessman Ed Lazar has some space to share.

The State Farm agent and owner of the consulting firm Essential Team Resources not only offers shared work space, but also business consulting as part of Start Here! Business Development Center, a community of businesses focused on moving ideas forward in a judgment-free zone.

The space, located at 18348 Mack, Grosse Pointe Farms, includes furnished offices, high-speed internet, a shared kitchenette and conference rooms, free parking and other amenities.

"I dream of filling up with productive people and being their coach," Lazar said. "It's not about the space, but about the community you can develop inside the space."

Space will be accessible via memberships; Lazar is offering drop-in terms, as well as six-, 12- and 24-month contracts.

"Somebody can come in and plop down for a short period of time or they can rent a private office," he said. "A developing startup or a business that's already established can rent as sort of a home away from home. Anybody who rents space can have access to me. I work with other startups and established businesses who want to start new ideas."

Start Here!, sponsored by Essential Team Resources, focuses on three points Lazar said are integral to success: making clear plans, finding excellent people to work and providing support.

"That is what I do for my clients, so why not do it for my tenants?" Lazar asked. "Plus, it's also a safe place to try a new idea. And it's affordable.

"Other shared work spaces are more expensive, but they're fancier," he continued. "We don't need fancy. We have a team environment, a place away from home, access to other team members."

Cost for drop-in businesses is $195 per month; office rentals range from $425 to $475 per month, depending on the size of the office.

"Plus they'll get an hour per week of my time scheduled for the private offices," Lazar said, noting offices are equipped with desks, chairs, whiteboards and lights.

"It's perfect if you want to get your business out of the house or need space to meet clients outside of the house," he said. "I'm excited to create a vibrant new business community out of this building. I like the idea of keeping this intimate and cycling them through."

Lazar said he's seen some interest in the space and hopes to have it full by year's end.

"The idea of being helpful does my heart good," he said, noting the 1,800-square-feet of space entails seven individual offices, as well as a team workroom with four desks and a conference table.

In addition to one-on-one business mentoring time, Lazar said he'd like a weekly meeting with all tenants to bounce around ideas and "talk about successes and challenges," he said. "The brilliance of people who want to start — their ideas — are incredible. They're energized, enthused, about something they've always wanted to try.

"So many people are busy working in business and don't take the time to work on their business," he continued. "When you get people to dream, today becomes so much clearer. You get them going and they do their own work after that. When you see somebody light up with enthusiasm for their own ideas, it's a really good feeling. They get going in a more focused direction and work on as well as within their business."

Home-improvement employee charged with larceny

GROSSE POINTE SHORES AND WOODS — A home-improvement employee charged with stealing from customers' homes was arraigned last week in courtrooms in the Shores and Woods.

The arraignment hearings followed the arrest of Glenn Hempel Jr., 36, by Shores public safety Tuesday, Oct. 30.

The investigation beginning in the Shores linked Hempel to home larcenies in the 10 block of Renaud in the Shores and the 500 block of Renaud in the Woods.

Tuesday, Oct. 16, Shores public safety officers took the report of guns stolen from a house in the 10 block of Renaud, after the homeowners noticed four rifles and a handgun missing from cases stored in a spare bedroom. Also missing from the bedroom were coins and $2,000 worth of gift cards.

A contractor who recently completed work in the home identified Hempel, a former employee, as the suspect.

The contractor said Hempel was working in the house while the homeowners were out of town in July and late September.

He said he also reported missing jewelry from his home in New Haven to the Macomb County Sheriff's Department, suspecting Hempel, who had access to the house late September, of taking the items.

The Shores investigation uncovered Hempel sold one of the missing rifles Tuesday, Oct. 2, and used the identification of a 55-year-old Fraser woman, believed to be deceased, to pawn three more of the stolen guns.

Monday, Oct. 22, Woods public safety received a report of items missing from the house in the 500 block of Renaud, including cameras and jewelry. The investigation linked Hempel as the suspect, who worked in the house over the summer for the same contractor.

The contractor told Woods public safety he terminated Hempel's employment for the suspected thefts. He said Hempel lived in New Haven when he hired him in June.

Hempel was believed to be staying at a motel in Roseville near the time of his arrest. A witness related to Hempel told a Woods investigator Hempel is addicted to drugs.

City awards beautiful homes

By Anthony Viola

CITY OF GROSSE POINTE — As a show of appreciation for the hard work of residents and businesses to keep the City beautiful, the Beautification Commission hands out its Beautification Awards every year.

"It's a pretty hard process because there are a lot of really beautiful homes and sometimes it's hard to make a decision," said Susan Budrys, Beautification Commission co-chairwoman. "But I think this year each and every one of the houses is just so lovely and so deserving of the award."

During late summer, the commission breaks into groups and canvasses the community, looking for the most beautiful homes.

"When we are going around it's just hysterical," said Susan Hartz,

Beautification Commission co-chairwoman. "People get very worried that we're from the FBI or something because we have to stop and take pictures."

The list is whittled down to the deserving few. This year, nine residential homes and one business were selected.

Each awardee was gifted a City of Grosse Pointe Pewabic tile and certificate with a photo of their home.

This year's winners were:

Thomas Stichman, 38 Cranford Lane; Paul and Kathleen Beitz, 551 Fisher; Keith and Susan Jackowski, 801 Lincoln; Nicholas and Rita Bontomasi, 308 Rivard; Dean and Carol Diamond, 571 Rivard; Russell Etheridge and Debra Wright, 293 University; David and Jessica Applegate, 592 University; Ty and Laura Clutterbuck, 501 Washington; Bryan Hill, 947 Washington; and Small Favors, 17125 Kercheval.

Opponents of the bond said there are other ways to get money to repair the schools and the schools should first address declining enrollment.

As the sun set Tuesday, Shores residents Marlene

Smith and Fran Bachmann stood outside Shores city hall. Smith said she had been there since 7 a.m.

"I'm not for this bond because only 60 cents on the dollar goes toward the schools," Smith said. "I'm for (using) the sinking fund where 100 percent of the money goes towards the schools. I would be for a smaller bond once they right-size the schools and see where exactly the critical needs are and they address those and put them in chronological order. And we need new people on our school board."

Bachmann agreed.

"We need to right-size the schools before you ask for money to fix schools you might not have," she said.

She also added just because she is against the bond, it doesn't mean she is against the schools.

"A lot of people were afraid to put signs out because it feels like you're against the schools," Bachmann said. "I'm not against the schools. I want the schools to do well. Obviously it has a lot to do with our property values.

And I love kids. I want them to have a good education."

For others going out Tuesday, it was the state and national elections motivating them to cast their ballots.

"I think it's a turning point," said Guenter Nyanankpe as he went to vote at Brownell Middle School. "I think with everything that's going on right now, those two spots (U.S. Senate and governor) are where the most difference is going to happen. I think that's where the weight is right now."

State, WCCCD proposals up in early results

By Anthony Viola
Staff Writer

The three midterm ballot proposals — legalizing marijuana, creating a redistricting commission and the addition of voting policies in the state's constitution — as well as the Wayne County Community College District's request for a permanent millage all looked to be heading toward passage as of press time Tuesday night.

With 41 percent of precincts reporting, the proposal to legalize marijuana was passing with 58 percent of the vote, receiving 1.26 million yes votes and 920,000 no, according to the Associated Press.

The proposal will allow individuals 21 and older to purchase, possess and use marijuana and marijuana-infused edibles. It also will allow for the cultivation of 12 marijuana plants for personal consumption, impose a 10-ounce limit kept at residences — 2.5-ounces on an individual's person — create a state licensing system for businesses and change several current violations from crimes to civil infractions.

Proposal 18-2 — Voters Not Politicians — also appeared to be on the path for passage at 11 p.m. Tuesday with 61 percent of voters in favor, according to the AP. With 41 percent reporting, 1.3 million voted yes to 835,000 no.

The proposal will amend the state constitution and establish a commission of citizens to draw district boundaries for state and national offices. The commission will consist of 13 randomly selected individuals — four Democrats, four Republicans and five Independents. It will prohibit partisan officeholders, candidates, their employees, certain relatives and lobbyists from serving on the commission. It also will create new redistricting criteria ensuring no disproportionate advantage to political parties or candidates.

The last statewide proposal — Promote the Vote — received 68 percent of the vote with 41 percent reporting. More than 1.4 million people were in favor of the proposal versus 688,000 against.

The proposal will amend the state constitution and authorize automatic and election day voter registration, no-reason absentee voting and straight-ticket voting, as well as add current legal requirements for military and overseas voting and post-election audits.

WCCCD is requesting a 2.25-mill permanent millage as a replacement of two separate, temporary millages, which will put the community college's permanent millage at 3.25 mills total. The millage would be used for operations, continue building projects and expand offerings.

With 49 percent of precincts reporting for the WCCCD millage request, 64 percent of voters approved. As of 11 p.m. 183,000 people were in favor of the proposal and 102,651 against.

'I just want to tell good stories'

By Anthony Viola
Staff Writer

"I was an only child so I spent a lot of time reading," Kelly Fordon said, sitting in the Grosse Pointe Public Library Central branch on an early-November Monday. "I remember specifically having seventh-grade teachers say, 'See how many books you can read over the summer' and I still remember, I read 106."

"I mean that's kind of sad in a way because you're really not doing anything else except reading 106 books. But, I just loved it. I feel like it's a great way to experience other ways of life and other people's circumstances. It fosters empathy for other people."

Since then, writing has been a major part of Fordon's life — although she says it took a back-seat as she and her husband, Fred Fordon, raised four kids.

Now that she has more time, "I'm just kind of working away," she said.

Since 2011, she's published three poetry chapbooks and "Garden for the Blind," a novel-in-stories published by Wayne State University Press. She currently is working on two new poetry collections, due in 2019 and 2020, a short story collection and a novel.

City of Grosse Pointe resident Kelly Fordon is finding success as an author and poet.

And so far her hard work has paid off. "Garden for the Blind" was chosen as a Michigan Notable Book, a 2016 Foreword Reviews' INDIEFAB Finalist, a Midwest Book Award Finalist, an Eric Hoffer Finalist and an IPPY Awards Bronze Medalist in the short story category.

She also won awards for two of her chapbooks,

"The Witness" and "On the Street Where We Live."

But fiction and poetry weren't always the career path for Fordon. She started off in journalism, first working at National Geographic in Washington, D.C. — where she's from — then WDET as a general assignment reporter after moving to the City of Grosse Pointe in 1993.

She earned her bachelor's degree in international studies from Kenyon College before earning a master's degree in communications from Ohio University.

"Because that was the practical route," she said.

While working at WDET and after having her first son, however, she realized, "I was earning so little money that the babysitter was going to earn more money than me."

So she stopped working as a journalist and worked freelance, writing articles for the Grosse Pointe News and Times every once in a while.

"Then I just really wanted to get into fiction and poetry."

She started attending conferences and workshops and auditing college courses.

"I started taking classes at the University of Michigan with Laura Kasischke and Craig Holden. I just sort of sat in on the undergraduate classes. ... I was 34 and everyone else was 20, so it was a little weird and I had four kids so I was in a completely different space. But it was really fascinating so I kept signing up for classes there until they finally said,

"You either have to enroll or stop."

She went on to earn a Master of Fine Arts degree in fiction from Queens College in North Carolina in 2013.

"I started taking poetry with Vieeve Francis, who is a really well-known Detroit poet," she said. "Then I just decided I'm going to write poetry and fiction, even if I'm not going to make any money. Even if it never gets published."

Her writing, she said, is inspired by what's around her.

"I just want to tell good stories. ... I'm inspired by things going on around me. I've written a lot about raising children and that kind of thing, but I've also written about living in neighborhoods and the different dynamics of the neighborhoods and I've written about the Grosse Pointe-Detroit divide, which I found pretty upsetting when I moved here."

"SNAP," a poetry collection due in 2020, is based on more than 10,000 pages of testimony presented by the Survivor's Network of those Abused by Priests to the UN committee on the Rights of the Child.

And advice for young writers?

"I think it's true, if you can do anything else you should probably do it," she joked.

But, on a serious note, she urged everybody to pursue their passions.

"I just attended a conference in New York and the novelist Ann Napolitano said that you should just pursue your obsessions. They're your unique obsessions and nobody else is going to do that," she said.

She also said writers shouldn't listen too closely to critics or ask for too much feedback.

"I feel like I was discouraged a lot — not discouraged a lot, but a couple times — and it was significant in my early 20s to the point where I stopped writing poetry for 17 years because of something someone said. That's dumb."

Writing, she said, is like training for a marathon. You don't set out on day one and run the entire thing. It takes time and practice.

"It takes 10,000 hours, they say, to become an expert in anything," she said. "That's a lot of time.

"... You just should read as much as you possibly can, practice, practice, practice. Fill at least 10 notebooks before you turn anything in."

And ultimately, she said, "Don't let anyone else make the decision for you."

WHEN TRIAL RESUMED

went to bench trial March 26, followed a string of complaints heard in municipal court. Representing the city of Grosse Pointe Woods, attorney Chip Berschback asked the county court to compel the homeowners to fix property violations immediately or order demolition of the house.

Arguing the house was in severe disrepair and structurally unsound, Berschback called on neighboring residents to testify to the house's exterior condition.

Woods Building Administrator Gene Tutag listed for the court all required repairs to prevent the house from being condemned. An engineering consultant testified as an expert witness to the structural condition of the house.

Groner adjourned trial April 16 to allow the homeowners, who represented themselves, time to retain an attorney and consult a structural engineer.

When trial resumed

May 31, Wheatley appeared with counsel and an evaluation by an engineer. Hughes continued to represent himself and told the court he would not accept resolution offered by Berschback.

Groner ordered the homeowners to bring the house to code by July 31 or vacate it for demolition.

Arguing the house finds that a nuisance exists based on the testimony provided at trial and based on the international property maintenance code provisions regarding unsafe structures (Section 108.1.1) and structures unfit for human occupancy (108.1.3), and is generally so out of repair as to become dangerous, unsafe, unsanitary or otherwise unfit for human habitation for occupancy.

Groner adjourned trial April 16 to allow the homeowners, who represented themselves, time to retain an attorney and consult a structural engineer.

"I guess it's a go," Wheatley told the Grosse Pointe News Friday, hours after she and a friend were escorted from Groner's courtroom following a motion hearing, during which their final motion to stop the demolition was denied.

Wheatley and Hughes could have sold the property to a contractor qualified to correct the house's structural issues or develop the property. However, Hughes went on record during the trial as being unwilling to sell the property.

Asked Friday, if she was willing to sell the property during the window of opportunity to do so, Wheatley said, "I wasn't all that serious about it. I wasn't going to make it easy for (the city)."

Instead, Wheatley and Hughes owe costs incurred by the city, including $9,925 in attorney fees, $3,037 in witness fees and close to $15,000 for the cost of the demolition.

In the meantime, Wheatley is working and staying with friends. Hughes continued living in the house until the weekend before the demolition.

Bank robbery suspect sought

GROSSE POINTE WOODS — A man using a note indicating he had a concealed gun robbed the Citizens Bank in the 19000 block of Mack approximately 12:15 p.m. Tuesday, Nov. 6.

The man was described as a black male in his early 40s, 6 feet tall, heavyset with a medium to dark complexion.

Security surveillance showed the man was wearing a white baseball cap, red hoodie-type sweatshirt and blue jeans.

April 18, security surveillance captured an image of a man with a similar description robbing the Chemical Bank in the 20000 block of Mack — a black male, between ages 45 and 50, approximately 6 feet tall and 220 to 230 pounds.

Just a few more blocks

A 22-year-old Park man was arrested for drunken driving 8:45 a.m. Sunday, Nov. 4, on St. Paul and Neff. Officers responded to the area on a report of a two-vehicle accident. When they arrived, officers found one vehicle with heavy front-end damage and the other with heavy rear-end damage.

Park officers also responded to the scene after receiving a report of a vehicle — matching the description of one of the vehicles involved in the accident — on Vernor at Whittier driving erratically with a flat tire.

The Park man, who was driving the vehicle described to Park police as having sustained front-end damage, was standing next to the car when police arrived.

He said he was on his way home from a friend's house in Warren when his tire blew out on I-94. He said he was trying to get to his mother's house on Washington, when he became distracted and hit the car in front of him.

During the interview, officers noted the man smelled of alcohol and had glassy eyes and slurred speech.

A field sobriety test was conducted and a preliminary breath test resulted in .164 percent blood alcohol content.

Two containers with marijuana dust/residue also were found on his person.

OUR VIEW

Election Day at the polls

Early in the morning on Election Day, we saw a post by a mom, Elisabeth Altman Wagner, on Grosse Pointe Woods Gals offering to baby-sit for moms while they went to vote. "I have boys that are 8, 5 and 2, lots of toys. We are a non-smoking, allergen friendly, pet free, safe place. Let me help you get out and vote!" she said.

Curious, we asked on our Facebook page for other Election Day stories and we got some good ones.

Michele Quaranta Lindsay reported that a group of Trombly moms organized a district-wide collaborative of baby-sitting so parents could vote. Susan B said local parents were hosting meet-ups at elementary school playgrounds so "kids could burn off energy with other kids while you vote!"

"It's packed!" said Lauren McGregor in line at 8:33 a.m. at the Grosse Pointe Woods City Hall precinct. The ballot tabulator went down, she reported.

Kristine Theobald said she was at Defer with her 10-month-old and 5-year-old. "They were troopers waiting in line," she said. Evans Tasiopoulos voted in Precinct 4 in the Farms; it wasn't crowded but had a steady flow of people around 9 a.m.

Allison Restuccia was number 200-something at Ferry. There was a back-up due to an issue with the tabulator, but it was resolved. Patty Gieseking Groezinger was voter 263 at Monteith ... the line was long at the tabulator.

Roaming reporter Pete Waldmeir hit the polls at 10 a.m. for a count. Ferry and Barnes each had just under 300 in the first three hours. Barnes had 76 voters in line when the polls opened at 7 a.m.

At 9 a.m., Paula Miller (No. 104) was voting in the dark at Pierce after a transformer blew and lights went out in the gym. "Workers scrambled for lanterns," she reported. "We voters used flashlights on our phones. Not gonna stop the vote!"

Nicole Buffo Scott Horan in the Woods reported the tabulator was still down at 9:15 a.m., "but we were told a new machine was on the way."

Laura Jensen was voter 200-something at 9:45 a.m. at Mason. Kristin Homuth was No. 57 at Monteith a little after 7 and out by 7:50. "The tabulator was having some trouble, creating a back up because people needed sleeves," she reported.

At around 1 p.m. we asked, "How's the lunchtime voting going?" Teresa Welc was at Precinct 5 in the Woods and there were "no lines! Get on it!! Vote!!"

Renee Bennett Ketels, No. 431 at GPW City Hall, reported, "No line just before lunch. All went smoothly."

At 1:45 p.m. Mr. Waldmeir reported: "Lines at Ferry moving pretty well; 35- to 45-minute wait; never saw so many voting stations. Long ranks of voting booths and lines of voters with their kids and reading books while they wait."

Woods City Hall was without power and on generators for a couple hours or so due to high winds. Power was restored by 2:30 p.m.

GUEST OPINION By Pete Waldmeir

The check's in the mail!

Next to the traditional "Merry Christmas" or a generic "Happy Holidays," there's another seasonal greeting from friends of the Detroit Goodfellows that warms my heart: "The check's in the mail!"

Yep, it's that time again. The Goodfellows' annual fundraising campaign once more is in full swing. This year's goal is $1.3 million, which will be used to provide gift packages for some 33,000 needy Detroit area children between the ages of 5 and 13 containing warm clothing, books to help them learn to read, dolls, toys and trinkets.

In addition, a good chunk of that total will go for coupons for new shoes and free dental work so many of them can get to school — and a lucky few will be able to attend one of a handful of urban summer camps.

All that takes cash. But it also takes checks. The larger the better — and arriving well in advance of Christmas.

All those age-appropriate packages, you see, already are packed and ready to distribute. Now it's time for the Goodfellows to pay the bills.

The Goodfellows' annual newspaper street sale day is Nov. 26, traditionally the Monday after Thanksgiving. For more than 100 years, that's been the tax-deductible charity's biggest fundraising event. But over time, a massive letter-writing appeal by some 200 Detroit Goodfellows members has become equally, if not more, productive.

That's why "the check's in the mail" rings like "Jingle Bells" in our ears.

Like dozens of men and women from all walks of life, I've been a Detroit Goodfellows member more than 35 years. I've sold the special editions on street corners in blustery winds and blizzards, in and out of stores and eateries, sometimes door to door in offices all over town.

On foot past cars at traffic lights, I've been handed hurried cash — and I've been ignored by experts. Some folks just stare straight ahead and refuse to even smile when a simple "no thanks" would be so, well, holiday-friendly.

But those are rare examples. One year I was working a street corner in Detroit's New Center area when an elderly woman, bundled up against the biting wind, came slogging through snow and slush to ask for a paper.

As she rummaged through her purse, I told her it was OK, I'd give her a paper and she could donate later. But she was adamant.

"That's just not right!" she scolded and dug until she found a carefully folded $5 bill. "Those children need shoes."

Shortly afterward a man in an expensive leather topcoat came by and gave me a buck but refused the paper. Two examples in a long history of hustling for a charity, neither of which is typical, just anecdotal.

As always, there's one more anecdote. This one involves a visit by a Grinch.

One year I announced in my Detroit News column that I would be selling Goodfellow papers during an outdoor gathering and named the hours and location. Shortly after I arrived and was chatting up a small group of donors, a smiling man approached and called out, "Pete? Pete Waldmeir?"

I said "that's me" and held out a paper for him to buy. But he gently brushed it aside and handed me an envelope. It was a summons to appear for some goofy lawsuit.

Don't ask me where I'll be the Monday after Thanksgiving. But do mail a check if you can. I've learned my lesson.

In remembrance

To the Editor:

Veterans Day is Sunday, Nov. 11. It is a special 100th anniversary since the end of conflict during World War I.

Veterans Day marks an important event in United States history. It was 100 years ago the guns fell silent on the Western Front ending World War I. Originally known as Armistice Day to honor United States veterans of that war, it evolved into Veterans Day to honor all veterans.

Veterans Day is a time of reflection upon our blessings, upon the men and women who wore our nation's uniform and upon their supporting families and communities. And we spend part of the day remembering those throughout the centuries who sacrificed for our country in the defense of freedom of speech, freedom of worship, freedom from want and freedom from fear.

This is offered on the chance that houses of worship in the Grosse Pointes and neighboring communities would simply ring bells at 11 a.m. local time Sunday, Nov. 11, 2018 — "The eleventh hour of the eleventh day of the eleventh month."

Bells should ring, over a period of one minute, 11 consecutive, timed rings, spaced at five-second intervals at a solemn, regular cadence. Those within listening distance should stand, if able, silently at attention, gentlemen's hats removed, hand over heart for civilians, military salute for veterans, with thoughts of remembrance and remorse and with prayers for peace.

Opportunities for special needs adults needed

To the Editor:

I, Chloe Fox, am writing to the Grosse Pointe News in regard to the lack of post-school programming for individuals with special needs.

Young adults with special needs who exit the school system have very limited opportunities for employment. Because of prejudice, stigma and lack of understanding, most businesses are very hesitant to hire those who have a disability. I am a part of Full Circle Foundation, a nonprofit that is trying to change this stigma by providing opportunities for employment.

I hope the Grosse Pointe community will take notice of the lack of opportunities for young adults who exit the school system. I want every young adult to feel the same acceptance and appreciation I do at Full Circle Foundation and that the community will take notice of their actions and support this cause.

U-M fans rooting for MSU? Oh my!

Levi's Stadium.

The Wolverines moved up to No. 4 in both the AP Top 25 and Coaches Poll after demolishing Penn State 42-7 last weekend at the Big House.

The defense once again was dominant, limiting a good Nittany Lions offense to 186 total yards and forced three turnovers, including Brandon Watson's interception return for a touchdown.

The offense did its part, with quarterback Shea Patterson accounting for three touchdowns, and running back Karan Higdon running for 132 yards and one touchdown.

The next three games are at Rutgers, at home against Indiana and the showdown at the Horseshoe against The Ohio State University.

Thanks to a strange twist, U-M fans will be rooting for rival Michigan State University this weekend when the Spartans host the Buckeyes. With wins by U-M and MSU, the Wolverines would have a two-game lead with two games left.

That would mean the home game against Indiana Saturday, Nov.

17, would be for a division title and spot in the Big Ten Championship game, set for 8 p.m. Saturday, Dec. 1, at Lucas Oil Stadium in Indianapolis.

Who would have thought a Wolverine fan would be rooting for Sparty, but it's true. The MSU/Ohio State game is set for noon Saturday, Nov. 10, while U-M kicks off at 3:30 p.m. at Rutgers.

The Wolverines will be big favorites against Rutgers and Indiana. If they clinch the division title Nov. 17, the game with hated Ohio State won't matter in the standings. Before the season began, nobody would have thought that.

It won't matter because U-M wants revenge after losing the last six years to the Buckeyes. Michigan leads the all-time series 58-49-6.

Go Blue and go Green, and then U-M blows out Indiana for the division title the following week. U-M fans can feel the excitement.

As for the sorry Lions, it's time to bash them yet again for a dismal showing in Minnesota Sunday afternoon. A 24-9 defeat leaves the Lions at 3-5 and in last place in the National Football Conference North Division.

The Vikings sacked Matthew Stafford a team-record 10 times and he lost a fumble that was returned for a touchdown.

All Detroit fans want is a team that can compete in the NFL and win a playoff game. Everything about the Lions stinks, but hopefully there is light at the end of the tunnel.

Lions, get a good draft pick and build for what fans hope is a promising 2019.

Ismail, O'Connor to present at leadership conference

Veteran school board members Ahmed Ismail of Grosse Pointe and Dennis O'Connor of Novi have been selected to present a work session for school board members from around the state at the Michigan Association of School Boards Annual Leadership Conference, Nov. 1 to 4 in Grand Rapids.

Their work session topic is "Construction Bond Oversight: Making Sure Promises Made are Promises Kept."

"Both Dennis and I were truly humbled by MASB's decision to have us present at the Annual Leadership Conference," Ismail said. "With so many school bonds being passed across the state, it is imperative that school board members understand with whom their fiduciary responsibility lies and what they can do to make sure that the promises they made to taxpayers during their school bond campaigns are memorialized as best possible to assure that future school boards and administrations adhere to the promises made during the bond campaign."

The work session is the first of what Ismail and O'Connor anticipate will be many given by the K12 School Achievement Collaborative by way of webinars and in-person presentations on a far-ranging list of topics facing school board members. Poupart brings new energy to school year

Staff Writer

A principal in his second year, seven new teachers and a reassessment of grade levels for some veteran teachers have resulted in a new sense of purpose at Poupart Elementary School.

"I think we're creating this positive school culture where everybody is learning together," said Sarah Mead, who joined Poupart as a fifth-grade teacher this year.

Other members of the fifth-grade team agree.

"There's something new for each of us this year," said Suzanne Jabara, a 25-year veteran who spent the bulk of her years at Poupart teaching third grade and switched to fifth grade this fall. "We've really been working on bringing some freshness to experiences that we want our kids to have and making sure they have an awesome learning environment."

"All of us, whether we're new to the building or not, are kind of feeling that excited energy of trying new things and taking risks, which is exactly what we want our students to do," said Julie Bourke, a native Grosse Pointer who moved back after teaching in Seattle, Wash. "So it's so cool to see that we're pushing our students to take risks and try new things, but we're also doing it together and with them."

"Without even know-

state academic standards.

"The teachers have been thrilled at the level of support they've been able to receive," Ali said.

This holds true for teachers who feel they have a voice and are given opportunities to collaborate with one another; students whose individual learning needs are met through smaller class sizes and new resources; and parents who are encouraged to be part of their child's learning.

For Principal Hussain Ali, it's all about the culture of the building and "continuing to create a sense of belonging and welcoming atmosphere."

ing it, we're modeling for them what we would like to see from them," Jabara agreed. "Again, to bring it back to the experiences. We're having the experiences that we would like them to have as well."

With support from central administration and Title I funds, Ali said

Poupart is celebrating smaller class sizes this year, allowing for more small group activities and interventions within the classroom to meet his goal of improving students' math and reading proficiency. Title I provides financial assistance to schools with high numbers or high percentages of children from low-income families to help ensure all children meet

"We had everyone return to the school improvement team (except a few who transferred out of the school) and we added a couple more people to that team," he continued.

"That brings in more voices. For example, we added a teacher from our (autism spectrum disorder) classroom. That brings a different component, a different voice. It's nice to have everyone represented at the table."

Ali also is excited about new PTO leadership.

"The PTO is doing some exciting things right now," he said. "Last year's PTO was fantastic as well. They're setting up great events for students and families."

The board also instituted classroom ambassadors, "similar to a room mom or room dad," Ali said. "At our last PTO meeting, we had the largest attendance we've had since I've been here.

Playwright Stephen Gregg and director Meaghan Dunham during a rehearsal for South's one-act plays.

South presents one-act plays

Grosse Pointe South High School's Pointe Players present "Why We Tell Stories," a compilation of four one-act plays by Stephen Gregg, 7:30 p.m. Thursday, Friday and Saturday, Nov. 15, 16 and 17 at South Auditorium, 11 Grosse Pointe Blvd., Grosse Pointe Farms.

South's presentation of these one-act plays is the result of Director Meaghan Dunham responding to a post by Gregg on the Educational Theatre Association's open forum, looking for a high school to workshop his new play.

Gregg chose to work with South's director and students, which resulted in six months of intense preparation, collaboration and an in-depth understanding of what it takes to produce new or revised theatrical pieces, according to Dunham.

The four pieces include the debut of "Something to Keep us Warm"; "Why We Like Love Stories," only performed once before; "This is a Test," the oldest and most popular piece; and "The New Margo." The pieces are set to an original musical score by South student Abe Neds-Fox.

According to Dunham, she and student actors have been invited to perform "Margo" and "Why We Like Love Stories" in front of 1,700 peers at Michigan Thespian Festival in December.

Tickets are $12 for adults and $8 for students and are available in advance at Duffey & Co., 15120 Kercheval, Grosse Pointe Park, or at the door.

Mason lights up for Fall Fest

Mason Elementary School celebrated the success of its Fun Run with a Fall Fest, "Light Up the Lawn" ceremony and "camp out" with Principal Roy Bishop.

The Fall Fest kicked off Friday, Oct. 26, at dusk with a lighting of pumpkins and activities continuing Saturday. Each family received a pumpkin to bring home to carve and return for the celebration.

Meanwhile Bishop set up camp for the night — a promise he made to the students if they achieved their goal of raising $20,000 with the Fun Run.

Bishop read a bedtime story, "The Dot," which he said is "one of my all-time favorites. It is all about recognizing the greatness in each other."

Students also participated in a "Teacher Shout Out" session, with students telling one thing they loved about their teachers.

Families who were unable to attend Friday night were able to participate through a Facebook live session.

"The feedback and comments on the Facebook live feed were amazing," Bishop said.

Throughout the night, staff, families and even police stopped by to bring Bishop food, coffee, tea "and just support."

"It was amazing," Bishop said. "Our community is so awesome."

Living saints

Eighth-graders at Our Lady Star of the Sea School put a little holy into Halloween this year. The students created a Living Saints and Holy Ones Museum. After a month of study, they took on the persona of a saint — or blessed person. On Oct. 31, they dressed like their saints and told their stories to guests. Visitors had the opportunity to talk with Father Solanus Casey, Mother Teresa of Calcutta and Blessed Josephine Bakhita, an enslaved woman on her way to sainthood, among others.

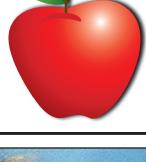

Right, Christina Shea chose Mother Teresa because "she didn't judge people through their appearance ... and she had the ability to put others first."

Above, Michael Slusser chose Father Solanus Casey because "even though he had a disease, he still healed people and despite being poor during the Great Depression, he gave out food and started the soup kitchen." Listening to the story is Michael Roustemis, who wrote about the saints for a school project.

Nominated by: Ann

Tonissen, principal

Principal's quote:

"Sue Reik is our new preschool teacher at St. Clare School. Sue has done a wonderful job opening our new full-day preschool room. Mrs. Reik's ability to create a welcoming atmosphere, as well as showing daily enthusiasm for her students' needs, clearly comes from her heart. Mrs. Reik always smiles and offers hugs to her students, making them feel welcomed, loved and safe. She has created a space where the children can learn through the singing of songs, playing with paint, glitter glue, gender-neutral toys, creating artistic pieces of work and much more. There are five important characteristics to be an awesome preschool teacher: passion, patience, creativity, flexibility and dedication. The St. Clare preschool children and their families are blessed to have a teacher who embodies these five characteristics and many more."

What do you enjoy most about teaching?

I have served St. Clare for more than 25 years in many different positions. Some of my hats include latchkey director, kindergarten technology, religion teacher, music and art special teacher, substitute teacher, puppet ministry and technology support. I enjoy working with the wonderful families at St. Clare School. It is amazing to be teaching my second generation of students. St. Clare has such a great feeling of family.

Describe a teaching accomplishment you're proud of or a "teachable moment" you experienced.

I love keeping in touch with many of my former students who have grown up and are now doing remarkable things in the world. Some have become parents themselves. Others have gone on to be doctors, lawyers, engineers, teachers, Olympic hopefuls and much, much more.

Please share a book or person that has inspired you or your teaching.

I am inspired by many of the teachers who have worked at St. Clare and are currently working with me. These individuals have been great role models to myself and others.

Too young to vote? Not too young to help

Pierce students spend day off in campaign office

By Mary Anne Brush
Staff Writer

On a rainy day off of school while many of their peers may have been home playing video games, Blake Bishop and Lucas Minadeo were at the Grosse Pointe Democratic Club headquarters working the phones.

The 11-year-olds, both sixth-graders at Pierce Middle School and residents of the City of Grosse Pointe, are too young to vote, but they're not too young to make a difference on Election Day. Each placed calls Tuesday, Nov. 6, at the phone bank.

While the two friends see eye-to-eye politically, Bishop finds himself on the opposite side of the aisle from his own family who, at the same time, support his efforts. Minadeo said his "entire family is all Democratic."

"We wanted to help out the Democrats because it's a very important election for Michigan and America's future," said Minadeo. He said he is optimistic for a blue wave — "a big one."

"I'm here instead of home because I'm growing up and my whole family is all Republican," Bishop said. "I've seen Michigan and America and I've seen how Michigan is going down-hill and how we need to take another step up. My whole family is denying it. I know with our Democratic nominees, Debbie Stabenow and Gretchen Whitmer, I know they are the ones that are going to step up with Michigan and make it the Great Lakes state again. As Lucas said, this is Michigan's future and America's future too."

Bishop said his top issues are health care and clean water.

"Kids growing up should not have to worry about their drinking water," he said. "They should not have to worry about taking a shower. They should not have to worry about taking a sip of water and worrying about dying from it."

Minadeo said he is worried about people with pre-existing conditions losing their health-care and would like to see government funded healthcare for all.

"And of course the roads," he added.

"I also want to tell my kids, don't be afraid to swim in the Great Lakes and to show that the Great Lakes are actually great."

Both see themselves involved in politics when they grow up — as a governor, senator, or "maybe even president," said Minadeo.

District receives security grant

The Grosse Pointe Public School System was among 188 recipients of a grant from the Michigan State Police, Grants and Community Services Division, receiving an award of $79,593.

In its application to the 2018 competitive school safety grant program, the district requested $1 million to cover a substantial portion of its camera needs, according to Lisa Abbey, deputy superintendent of business and operations.

While less than the request, the award will defray the costs of this security upgrade and the district will review the projects identified in the grant request to make recommendations on how to best use the funds awarded.

According to the award letter, requests for the 2018 competitive school safety grant program exceeded $69 million, making "for very difficult decisions by the review committee."

The review committee included representation from the MSP, the Michigan Association of Chiefs of Police, the Michigan Sheriff's Association, the Michigan Department of Education, the Michigan Association of Non-Public Schools, school security and the Executive Office of the Governor.

The district is responsible for 25-percent cash match of the total project cost and will be reimbursed for 75 percent of selected project costs, up to the maximum award amount.

"It looks like (the program) was very competitive," said Abbey. "We thought there wouldn't be a ton of districts who could do the matching part of it, but people need security and want it and are willing to invest in their schools for it."

They're building some momentum, which is exciting."

Ali said he is starting with some baseline statistics and hoping to build from there. For example, the school achieved 74 percent parent participation at this year's parent-teacher conferences. This fell short of his goal of 100 percent.

"How do we get as many people in as possible and be connected with (their child's) day-to-day learning? Parents want to be involved, but there are challenges presented to all families," he said. "Some parents may work a later job in the evening or work a night shift rather than a traditional 9 to 5 (job). As a building, that is challenging for us to meet the needs of all of our families the best we can. Our school improvement team is doing some cool things right now where we're trying to provide more opportunities for our families to be in touch with their child's learning."

For example, the school is offering the opportunity for parents who were unable to attend conferences to meet their child's teacher during a staff meeting.

"They can come in and hear about their child's progress, set some goals," Ali said. "Even if we get a few parents in that way, that's a success in my eyes. We can bump that (participation number) up to 80, 85 percent."

"We do have to be creative," he added. "We have great minds here. We will continue to try to innovate and stay connected to our families."

Holiday magic

One-night gala offers ‘something new’ for Grosse Pointe Theatre supporters

By Jody McVeigh
Editor

A small troupe of singers is hard at work preparing for a holiday show that promises to turn back time while providing an abundance of holiday cheer.

Nine Grosse Pointe Theatre members present “A Golden Age Holiday” Sunday, Dec. 16, at The ARK at St. Ambrose Catholic Church, 15020 Hampton, Grosse Pointe Park. The gala fundraiser is unlike usual GPT productions in that it’s one night only—but it still comes with a satisfaction guarantee.

The show, the creation of director Don Bischoff, includes showstoppers from the ’30s, ’40s and ’50s, as well as holiday tunes.

“It’s songs everybody knows,” Bischoff said. The audience can expect hits from Irving Berlin, Ira Gershwin, Cole Porter, Rosemary Clooney and the like. “It’s a wonderful tribute to showstoppers of that era. This is something new. It’s going to be a spectacular event.”

The show—which features 34 songs—includes elaborate costumes and dancing, from tap and jazz to Fosse. Bischoff noted the production also includes a video.

“The screen shows the original person singing the songs,” he said. “It’ll be nostalgic. It’ll be an experience, especially for people of that generation or who grew up with that music. They will love it.”

Two 45-minute acts are separated by an intermission, during which time auction participants can place their final bids on silent auction items and enjoy an array of desserts.

“While we’ve done fundraisers before, this is new territory for us,” said

From top, Tom Pagano of Clinton Township, Robby Mullinger of Grosse Pointe, Danielle Caralis of Birmingham and Catie Hauff of Richmond are among the nine-member cast in Grosse Pointe Theatre’s “A Golden Age Holiday” gala.

Patricia Ellis, a member of the planning committee. “We don’t do this on a regular basis. This is a special treat. We’re excited to put it on for our audience and hope to be able to attract other people as well.”

Ellis described the show as a nonstop feast for the eyes.

“Not only will they not be able to take their eyes off the performers—who are animated and alive—but it’s a beautiful show going on visually. It will transport people to the Golden Age of song. It’s a sentimental journey. We’re excited about that.”

The show’s cast includes Bischoff, as well as GPT veterans Danielle Caralis, Stephanie Butler, Christine Campbell-Cormier, Catie Hauff, Lindsey Tycholiz-McKiddy, Robby Mullinger, Tom Pagano and Tom Woodman.

“We’re lucky enough to have a network in this community of highly talented friends,” said

Caralis, president of the GPT Board of Directors. “The musicians are all familiar faces, too. They do a lot of work for Grosse Pointe Theatre.”

The group has been busy rehearsing for the performance not at GPT headquarters, 315 Fisher. Rather it’s found a rehearsal home at the Grosse Pointe Shores residence of Stan Harr and Laura Bartell. Harr is the show’s conductor and music director.

“We’re rehearsing here because our rehearsal studio is being used for ‘Arsenic and Old Lace,’ then auditions for ‘Legally Blonde’ and Youth on Stage in November,” Ellis said. “Laura and Stan have been very gracious to open their home. It’s a family.”

The evening opens with a cocktail hour with hors d’oeuvres and includes a silent auction.

“We brought in a range of experience packages, thanks to some very generous donors,” Caralis said. “There are a lot of opportunities for our guests to bid on a lot of exciting things.”

Silent auction items are as big time as the numbers being performed. Among them are a $500 gift card to London Chophouse, $1,000 Estee Lauder package, a sunset cruise with food and a baseball bat autographed by former Detroit Tiger Victor Martinez.

“If you haven’t finished Christmas shopping, this is a wonderful opportunity,” Ellis said. “You’ll see things at this auction you won’t see anywhere else—like tickets to ‘The Ellen DeGeneres Show’ in California and tickets to Jeopardy! There are really cool experiences. ... We’re really trying to make it fun.”

Ellis said GPT is still accepting donations for the silent auction.

“We’re excited to be able to do this at The ARK,” Ellis said. “The ARK is so intimate. It’s an experience you wouldn’t have on a bigger stage, in a bigger venue. This is one of the hottest tickets around.”

Ambassador's Cup raises funds for Dravet syndrome research

By Jody McVeigh
Editor

Thursdays during summer, Bayview Yacht Club offers off-the-dock, friendly races on the Detroit River as a way to promote sailing in the community. Anyone is welcome to try.

Grosse Pointe Farms resident Charles Bayer said he was hooked on GL70 sailing after an early September sail in which he took 15 guests on his newly acquired ultra-light displacement boat, "Arctos."

He jumped at the chance to participate in this year's Ambassador Cup race, formed a few years ago by GL70 sailors who wanted a fun, non-competitive race among "the biggest race boats on the Great Lakes," Bayer said.

"I'm a Great Lakes 70 owner," said Chris Saxton, a Plymouth resident and owner of "Evolution." "We formed the race to have something to do with other 70 owners. It's a good excuse to get out on the water and have fun."

In September, it also was a good excuse to raise money for a worthy cause. At Saxton's suggestion, this year's Ambassador Cup benefited the Dravet Syndrome Foundation.

Saxton said he remembers watching an episode of "60 Minutes" about Dravet syndrome, a rare form of epilepsy (see sidebar). He said the program held his attention and he remembers thinking the ailment was pretty horrific.

"Six months later, my grandson was identified with it," he said of 4-year-old Logan. "It's been pretty devastating on my family. He requires constant attention. He sleeps with a monitor. He has a helper dog to monitor his seizures."

At Saxton's request, other GL70 boaters took to the water Sept. 13 to make this year's Ambassador Cup carry a little more meaning. Four boats — and dozens of Grosse Pointe residents — participated.

As for Logan, Saxton said he's just being a kid. "Kids are amazing. They only know what they know," he said. "The medications are tough on him. But he's a kid. Kids tend to have better attitudes than adults."

Those interested in learning more about Dravet syndrome may visit dravetfoundation.org.

"The organization struggles to get nationally recognized, so any help people want to give to these kids is greatly appreciated," Saxton said. "This is near and dear to our hearts."

Added Brieden, "As a crew, we stick together in good times and bad. The support from the sailors was overwhelmingly positive. ... It was a nice event and I was proud to be a part of it."

What is Dravet syndrome?

Dravet syndrome is a rare, catastrophic, lifelong form of epilepsy that begins in the first year of life with frequent and/or prolonged seizures.

Previously known as Severe Myoclonic Epilepsy of Infancy, it affects one in 15,700 individuals, 80 percent of whom have a mutation in their SCN1A gene. While seizures persist, other co-morbidities such as developmental delays and abnormal EEGs are often not evident until the second or third year of life. Common issues associated with Dravet syndrome include:

- ◆ Prolonged seizures
- ◆ Frequent seizures
- ◆ Behavioral and developmental delays
- ◆ Movement and balance issues
- ◆ Orthopedic conditions
- ◆ Delayed language and speech issues
- ◆ Growth and nutrition issues
- ◆ Sleeping difficulties
- ◆ Chronic infections
- ◆ Sensory integration disorders
- ◆ Disruptions of the autonomic nervous system, which regulates things such as body temperature and sweating

Current treatment options are limited and the constant care required for someone with Dravet syndrome can severely impact the patient's and the family's quality of life. Patients with Dravet syndrome face a 15 to 20 percent mortality rate due to Sudden Unexpected Death in Epilepsy, prolonged seizures, seizure-related accidents such as drowning and infections. Research for a cure offers patients and families hope for a better quality of life for their loved ones.

Author forms foundation to expand ‘giving back’ experience

By Jody McVeigh
Editor

The last few years have been a whirlwind for Jayne Rose-Vallee.

The Grosse Pointe Farms resident went from first-time author with “Dinosaurs Living in my Hair,” published in 2015, to motivational speaker, traveling the country to discuss her book and its sequel, “Dinosaurs Living in my Hair 2.”

She recently added staff to help as she takes the DLIMH movement a step further. Heather Mertz, also of Grosse Pointe Farms, shares office space on The Hill, where the two collaborate to expand their mission and debut the Rose-Vallee Children’s Foundation.

“Every time I do an event it increases brand awareness,” Rose-Vallee said. “The reason we’re starting the foundation is, so much of what I do is giving back and I’m OK with that. But if one person can do what I’ve been doing — and there’s such a need for it — by starting the foundation and getting more people involved, we’ll be able to give back even more.”

The giving back part began with Rose-Vallee’s first book, which teaches children about acceptance and inclusion, and subsequent school visits.

The pop-up event was based on Rose-Vallee’s book, “Dinosaurs Living in my Hair.”

The sequel touches on Awards.

bullying and what community is. While Rose-Vallee doesn’t discuss bullying during school appearances, she focuses on building community.

“Once they understand, ‘You are a community,’ they start to understand you may not look the same or think the same, but you have something in common,” she said.

“Rather than touch on bullying ... I do tattling vs. telling. Sixty to 70 percent of kids don’t tell an adult because a lot of them think it’s tattling. We’ve created a form that shows the difference between tattling and telling. It needs to be talked about.”

The book and its sequel have won numerous national awards, including three Moonbeam Children’s Book Awards and two Dragonfly Book

Additional lessons the books provide — which are what the DLIMH brand is all about — are imagination, creativity, beat, rhythm, poetry and community. Rose-Vallee and Mertz recently created a video to aid their school presentations.

“One of our goals is to spread where we’re reading,” Rose-Vallee said, noting she’s always chosen diverse locations to speak and donates books to school libraries. “We want them to know poetry is in so much of life that they don’t even know about. If they’re on a swing set, swinging, the movement in that — that’s poetry.”

Currently, Rose-Vallee is scheduled to visit University Liggett School Wednesday, Nov. 7. She has presentations booked this year and into next in Wyoming, New Hampshire, Florida and New York.

“It’s exhausting,” she said. “I don’t know how teachers do it, but it’s fun for the kids to have visitors to school. They love when someone comes in and makes eye contact. They want to show their world to an outsider.”

Rose-Vallee and Mertz are launching a new website to bring the books, school visits, foundation and all other facets under one umbrella.

“That will give us a chance to do blogs, newsletters, schedule events,” Mertz said. “People can see our products, shop, buy books.”

The foundation takes Rose-Vallee’s passion for working with children and sparking their imaginations and unites it with a broader group of participants, donors and partners.

For example, Mertz is working on a book about autism that will be added to the foundation’s repertoire.

“There aren’t any really good books that cover the topic of autism,” Mertz said. “Autistic children are thrown into the public school setting and expected to make it one happy family. There are no children’s books to teach other children about children with autism. This fits in with our whole theme of community, awareness, tolerance.”

Added Rose-Vallee, “The idea is to partner with other things like that, grow and help us spread the word.”

Other ideas include mailing a children’s publication such as a magazine or newsletter.

“I’m a big believer that print for children is important,” Rose-Vallee said.

“We’ve got some exciting things coming up,” Mertz said. “It’s so fun to see what’s coming and we’ve already come so far. ... There’s always more, always something we can do. Our brains never stop working.”

Rose-Vallee has a third DLIMH book written and soon to be published. She also wrote a young-adult novel for boys.

“(Rose-Vallee) should be retiring, but she’s doing this and giving back,” Mertz said.

Children decorated cookies during the event, which followed a dinosaur theme.

“But I think it’s time for this village to help,” Rose-Vallee added. “If it works well with the two of us, there are other ambassadors out there.”

Program focuses on climate change, recycling

The League of Women Voters of Grosse Pointe holds an open education session on environmental concerns 7 p.m. Thursday, Nov. 15, at the Grosse Pointe Woods Community Center, 20025 Mack Plaza.

The public is invited to hear Mary Garton, a member of Citizens Climate Lobby and Climate Reality, who has been active in education and climate lobbying. Garton will explain legislative approaches that could drastically reduce emissions and stabilize climate change and address what individuals can do to help in the fight. There also will be a short presentation on the status of recycling. Many residents are recycling the wrong items, which can hurt the effort and add to the costs of these programs.

The Grosse Pointe League of Women Voters has long had a strong interest in environmental policy. Members have been active in the Lake Erie Inter-League Organization, which helped mobilize citizens to back policies in states bordering Lake Erie to improve existing conditions and avoid further pollution. The league is looking for members with an interest in environmental policy to represent it at the Lake Michigan ILO and keep the organization informed of local environmental issues as they appear. Information on league membership will be available at the Nov. 15 meeting.

James Lyle Webers

Grosse Pointe Park resident James Lyle Webers, 90, died Tuesday, Oct. 2, 2018.

Born June 9, 1928, in Racine, Wis., to Martin Leo and Theresa Brehm Webers, Jim graduated from Washington Park High School in June 1946, where he wrestled and played football earning three letters in each sport.

Jim enlisted in the U.S. Army during World War II and served from August 1946 until December 1947. His duties in Tokyo, Japan, included clerk typist, athletic instructor and officer's swimming pool lifeguard. Jim graduated from Lawrence College in Appleton, Wis. in 1952 with a Bachelor of Science degree. He continued to play football for the Lawrence Vikings, where he was affectionately known as "Moose." Like his high school days, he received athletic letters in both football and wrestling. Jim's college fraternity was Phi Delta Theta.

On July 5, 1952, Jim married Rachel Henrietta Hermsen from Little Chute, Wis. The couple soon moved to Clintonville, Wis., where Jim taught English at Clintonville High School. Their daughter, Cynthia, was born in Clintonville the following year. The Webers family moved to Grosse Pointe Park in 1954 after Jim was recruited by the Grosse Pointe Public School System for a position as English teacher and athletic coach at Parcells Junior High School. Jim and Rachel's daughter, Emily, was born in Grosse Pointe the following year.

"Mr. Webers" taught English and occasionally art at Parcells 29 years and a portion of time as a guidance counselor at Grosse Pointe North High School. During his teaching career, he earned a Master of Education degree from Wayne State University in 1957. He enjoyed taking many more classes.

In addition to teaching, he was an avid vegetable gardener and wild flower collector. Some years he started tomato plants on the window sills of his Parcells classroom which faced Lochmoor Club golf course. He was known as "Tomato King" throughout his neighborhood.

Jim trained at Pewabic Pottery and after retirement became a multi-state known potter and ceramicist. He especially enjoyed finger sculpting innovative, quirky animals. He was a wordsmith, writing poems, doing crossword puzzles, playing Scrabble, recalling and singing songs from his youth; the puns were endless and displayed his witty sense of humor.

Jim was a skilled fisherman and hunter, befitting his longtime Michigan residency and wooded, family property in the Upper Peninsula. He especially enjoyed searching for and collecting morel mushrooms each spring at his cabin near St. Ignace. He loved to travel, covering most of the United States camping, as well as many foreign countries, bringing his family on trips around the world.

In his later years, he enjoyed sitting on his front porch, chatting with friends, observing the neighborhood and counting the people who walked by. He sat in the sunshine to read letters from his special phone and penpal friend, Audrey McMahon, of Harrisonburg, Va.

Jim positively affected many lives. There were two families he "adopted" and considered his children and grandchildren and to which he contributed educational funding. Jim loved each one of them and was proud of them all.

Jim's family extends its thanks to the caring staff at Beaumont Grosse Pointe and Ascension St. John Hospital and ER facilities, plus the wonderful people at Beechwood Manor.

JULIE WEBB CORBETT 1941-2018

by, who called her "Honey." They added a whole new meaning to her life. She also is survived by her many caring nieces and nephews. Julie was predeceased by her loving spouse, Dr. John Vincent Corbett and first husband, Frank James Goetz.

Julie was born on the 4th of July, 1941 in Frankfort, Kentucky during World War II while her father was stationed in the South Pacific. The country has been celebrating her birthday ever since! She graduated from the University of Kentucky where she was a student tutor for the Wildcat Football team.

There she met fellow classmate and football player, Frank Goetz. They married in 1963 and moved to Detroit, Michigan where Julie became a teacher of Exceptional Students.

In 1976 she married her soul mate, Dr. John V. Corbett, an orthopedic surgeon. They lived a very beautiful and active life together at their happy home known affectionately among Grosse Pointers as "Toad Hall." They took great pride in their home and hosted wonderful parties and events for their many friends and family over the years.

Julie was a graduate of the University of Kentucky and earned her Master's Degree from Wayne State University.

Never wanting to rest and always up for a challenge, Julie went back to school and earned her Doctorate degree in Instructional Technology with a specialty in Instructional TV and Communications from Wayne State University in 1985. She began teaching as an Associate Professor at the Wayne State University Communications Department, while also teaching and coordinating the Video/Media Department for the Grosse Pointe Public School System until her retirement in 2003.

As chair of strategic planning for technology in the Grosse Pointe Public Schools beginning in 1986, Julie was active in planning and implementing technology throughout the school district. She served as a television teacher, producer, and director of educational productions. Julie had many beloved friends and former students whom she taught throughout the years in the Grosse Pointe Public School System and Wayne State University, as well as a consultant with the Wayne County Community College District.

One of the most important facts to mention about Julie's life is that she influenced many students over the years as a teacher and professor and fostered and encouraged their talents in filmmaking and media. Julie was given the nickname "Doc" by her many students who became beloved lifelong friends. It is very important to note that many of Julie's students in her video/media arts classes went on to be extremely accomplished professionals in television, animation, films, and corporate-related media.

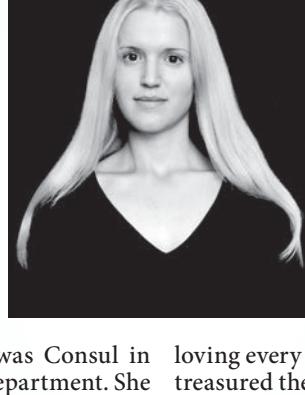

Julie never retired and preferred to work at enhancing her careers, creativity, piano playing and painting during her wonderfully full life. That was her passion and her legacy - never give up! She would never have stopped....

There will be a Celebration of Life gathering for family and friends of Julie Corbett in lieu of a church or funeral service. This event will be held at the Country Club of Detroit in Grosse Pointe, Michigan, on Friday, November 9, 2018, 3:30-6:30pm.

In lieu of flowers, to preserve the memory of Julie Corbett, her family is requesting that friends make donations in the name of, Julie Corbett, to: GPFPE (Grosse Pointe Foundation for Public Education) memo: The Julie Corbett IT Fund. 389 St. Clair Ave. Grosse Pointe, MI 48230.

Elise Camitta Keating

Every beginning must have an ending. Unfortunately, some endings arrive too soon. After courageously battling cancer for nearly a decade, Elise Camitta Keating, 40, of University Heights, Ohio, died peacefully on October 31, 2018. Her was smarter and better looking than Grant, but their complimentary senses of humor led to an unbreakable bond. They enjoyed stand-up comedy, traveling and dining with friends, but Elise and Grant were most comfortable sitting on the couch with their dogs making fun of everyone on TV.

Professionally, Elise worked in all aspects of special education. She started as an Applied Behavioral Analysis therapist for autistic children and finished her career as an education attorney before being forced to retire due to her illness. Elise's true passion, however, was dog rescue. She adored dogs - loving every single one she ever met - and treasured the rescue dogs she had over the years: Oliver, Max, Winston, Arnie, Bodie, Dugan and Britt.

Donations in Elise's name are welcome and appreciated to Canine Lifeline, the ASPCA or the charity of your choice. Friends, colleagues and family are cordially invited to a celebration of Elise's life at the First Unitarian Church of Cleveland, 21600 Shaker Blvd., Shaker Heights, OH 44122 on Thursday, November 8, 2018 at 1:00 p.m. Following the celebration friends may share memories of Elise with the family from 3:00 p.m. to 7:00 p.m. at 22712 Rye Road, Shaker Heights, Ohio, 44122.

PASTOR'S CORNER By the Rev. Ben Van Arragon

Loving lies

Recent studies reveal an unprecedented breakdown in trust within our culture. Voices in science, politics and the media, once considered authoritative, are dismissed immediately as partisan or biased. Ironically, our problem is not a scarcity of information, but an unhealthy abundance. We have the luxury of picking and choosing our truth; and we choose our truth on the basis of what we already think, feel and do.

The Book of Jeremiah chronicles the inexorable degeneration of God's people, the Israelites. At the heart of their national demise is an addiction to untruth. The Lord God says, "The prophets prophesy lies ... and my people love it this way. But what will you do in the end?" (Jeremiah 5:31).

This propensity to love lies is a ubiquitous human problem. Centuries after the Babylonian Exile, the Apostle Paul warns the Christian church of another impending cultural unraveling: "The lawless one will use all sorts of displays of power through signs and wonders that serve the lie and all the ways that wickedness deceives those who are perishing. They perish because they refused to love the truth and so be saved" (2 Thessalonians 2:9-10).

There is no hope for people who deliberately build their lives on lies. We see this at work in individuals who ignore well-substantiated research into the destructive effects of certain addictive behaviors or habits of diet and inactivity. We see this in societies who privilege the powerful, ignore the poor and maintain prosperity through violent and oppressive means. Human beings naturally tune in to voices that placate while tuning out information that confronts. Are all human beings doomed to the downward spiral of choosing luxurious lies over challenging truth?

We approach the season of Advent, during which we recall God's promised rescue of a world enslaved to the powers of sin, death and hell. That rescue came in the person of Jesus Christ, about whom the Apostle John writes, "In the beginning was the Word, and the Word was with God, and the Word was God. The Word became flesh and made his dwelling among us. We have seen his glory, the glory of the one and only Son, who came from the Father, full of grace and truth" (John 1:1,14).

We have all avoided truths that can save us. We avoid them out of shame for mistakes made and bad habits maintained. We avoid them out of fear for what the truth will force us to face or forsake. But truth is transformed from punisher to liberator when tempered by grace. Jesus came not only to reveal God's truth, but to absorb God's condemnation. Jesus came to liberate humanity from its lies and deliver us into life and life to the full. Confess the lies you have loved; assess the truths you need to hear; embrace the Word made flesh, whose truth — and grace — represent salvation.

Concert remembers victims of gun violence, hate crimes

Music at Memorial's 2018-19 season continues Sunday, Nov. 11, with "Duruflé and Bernstein," a performance of the Duruflé Requiem and Leonard Bernstein's Chichester Psalms. This concert is being offered in remembrance of victims of gun violence and hate crimes.

Leonard Bernstein

French organist Maurice Duruflé completed his Requiem in 1947. Contemporary audiences heard the piece as a memorial to the victims of World War II. Leonard Bernstein, born 100 years ago, composed the Chichester Psalms in 1965. A hymn to world peace, the work concludes with the words, "How very good and pleasant it is when kindred live together in unity."

The Grosse Pointe Choir is joined by soloists Lisa Agazzi, mezzo-soprano, and Andrew Lipian, countertenor. Instrumentalists are harpist Lydia Cleaver and percussionist Dan Maslanka. Wei Yu, Detroit Symphony Orchestra principal cellist, is a guest for the cello solo in the Duruflé "Pie Jesu."

The concert begins 3 p.m. in the sanctuary. Tickets are $10 in advance, $15 at the door, and are available at the church reception desk or online at eventgroove.com.

Holley Institute turns 25

The Holley Institute celebrated its 25th anniversary Oct. 4 at the Grosse Pointe Yacht Club.

The Holley Institute has served thousands of deaf, blind and hard of hearing people and their families through the years. It has screened for hearing loss more than 60,000 newborns at Ascension St. John Hospital with trained volunteers. All of its services are a result of community support.

Moving into 2019, a new initiative is on the horizon — the Family Literacy Program. With this program, highly trained mentors visit children's natural environments, usually their homes, and work with the family as a whole on early intervention and literacy.

'Disney's The Lion King, Jr.' takes the stage Nov. 17-18

Lions and other animals take the stage when Grosse Pointe Theatre's Youth on Stage performs "Disney's The Lion King, Jr." Saturday, Nov. 17, and Sunday, Nov. 18. Lions, hyenas, zebras, rhinos, elephants, birds, a warthog and a meerkat, led by a wise and mysterious mandrill, bring to life the adventures of Simba from lion cub to adulthood completing the "Circle of Life."

The nearly 35 children participating in this production are enjoying becoming African jungle animals. They also have learned some African language in their musical numbers and have assimilated the culture as well as physical movements of the creatures they portray.

"Many of the actors are assuming double or triple roles in this production to transform from animals to lead characters to scenery.

We have asked them to stretch artistically and, like the animals they portray, they have adapted beautifully," said Director Merrie Gay Ayrault of Grosse Pointe Park. "The vitality and spirit of these young people will inspire the audiences to share their joy onstage."

"This was different from the other plays I've done," said Jillian Nixon, who plays Zazu. "I liked singing songs in a different language and I learned new African words and some things about the people. The costumes are really cool."

Performances take place 2 p.m. both days at South Lake High School, 21900 E. 9 Mile, between Harper and Mack, St. Clair Shores. Tickets are $10 for adults, $5 for students. Order tickets online at gpt.org or call (313) 881-4004.

used to cover operational expenses for GPT production as costs are always increasing, Caralis said.

"The goal for our fundraiser is $50,000," said Theresa Salvaggio, development director of the GPT board and gala planning committee member. "We are planning to sell out the very limited 300 seats for this special one-night-only event.

"Most people are not aware that our royalty fees and theater rental fees are almost $100,000 a year and rising," she continued. "Grosse

Pointe Theatre has not increased its ticket prices, so we're focusing on this benefit event and increasing costs. We also other fundraising efforts learned that if you don't to help with these ask for support, you don't get it.

"We are very transparent regarding our needs and we're inspired by our volunteers who are so thrifty and creative with every production to keep a careful watch on expenses. We also work hard to raise the bar on our productions. At times that means we may need to spend a bit more on a costume, a new microphone, a new sewing machine or other items to make sure we provide the highest quality experience for our patrons' investment."

Cocktail hour begins 4:30 p.m. Sunday, Dec. 16, at The ARK, followed by the performance at 5:30 p.m. Cocktail/holiday attire is suggested.

"Whenever members of Grosse Pointe Theatre come up with an idea, it's amazing how quickly everyone is ready and willing to step up to the table," said Terri Turpin-Amato, secretary of the GPT board and co-chairwoman of the event. "To me, the fact that everyone is so willing to help shows the positive impact of our theater group and how important it is to the community that Grosse Pointe Theatre continues to thrive."

"A key component to driving the success of our event was to create a collaborative partnership with some of our most dynamic members who have brought an energy and urgency to the table that has yielded some really exciting auction items," said Marie Boyle Reinman, vice president of the GPT board and co-chairwoman of the gala.

"Our members and community partners have been extremely generous, with both food and libations as well as auction items. Combine that with the outstanding entertainment and fabulous auction packages, this will be an evening you won't want to miss."

Tickets for "A Golden Age Holiday" start at $75 per person. Star Supporter tickets are $125 per person and also include two tickets to a 2018-19 Grosse Pointe Theatre production and recognition in event signage.

"I'm proud to be a part of this group and represent this group in the community," Caralis said. "Patrons, donors and the community in general will really enjoy this energetic, beautiful show. We can't wait to welcome everybody."

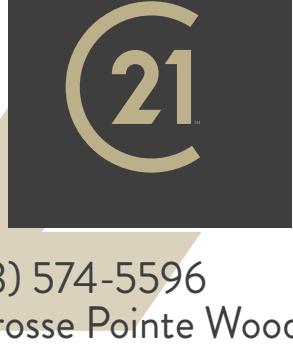

Seating is limited. For more information or to buy tickets, visit gpt.org or call (313) 881-4004.

Blue Devils, Knights win district

Blue Devils beat North, WWT

By Bob St. John
Sports Editor

Grosse Pointe South spikers knew they would have a tough match against Warren Woods-Tower to win another district championship.

But first they would have to get past hometown rival, Grosse Pointe North.

After nearly two hours of spikes, serves, digs and sets, the Blue Devils prevailed 16-25, 25-23, 25-15, 25-23.

"We were expecting this district-type atmosphere, and we got it tonight," South head coach Krysta Kreyger said. "We were a little nervous in that first game, but the girls settled down and played well."

"We knew there would be pressure, and we prepared for this. North gave us a great match. I'm proud of our girls. They played well under pressure and now we get

Knights sweep way to title

By Bob St. John
Sports Editor

The University Liggett School girls volleyball team entered the state playoffs with something to prove, and they did just that by sweeping Detroit Edison Public School Academy and host Detroit Cristo Rey to win a Division 3 district championship last week.

Head coach Dan Sullivan and his Knights first had to take care of Edison, who eliminated them from the state playoffs a year ago.

This time, the Knights earned the win, 25-15, 25-23, 25-13, to advance to the title match.

"The girls played very well, and they earned a nice victory," Sullivan said. "They wanted to beat them this year, and make the finals."

two aces.

Next up was Catholic League division foe Cristo Rey.

Sullivan watched his Knights play one of their best matches of the season as they crushed their host 25-12, 25-16, 25-18 to claim the crown.

"It was nice getting up 2-0 in the finals so that I could start all four seniors in the final game," Sullivan said.

Freshman Olivia Dickey led the team with eight aces, while senior Nicole Rivera posted the best stats for the game.

Other contributions were posted by seniors Lucy Barnowske, Alyssa Hamilton and Allie Quint.

"We played some of our best volleyball at the districts," Sullivan said. "Now, we have our work cut out for us in the regionals, but if we play smart, we can win it."

ULS plays its regional tournament at Madison Heights Bishop Foley High School.

Abigail Gretkierewicz was eighth in diving for the Norsemen, earning 202.85 points.

The Norsemen's 200-yard relay team of Sophia Vitale, Michaelson, Victoria Treder and Fly placed fifth with a time of 1:48.70.

Michaelson was sixth in the 100-yard breaststroke with a time of 1:14.20. The 400-yard freestyle squad of Vitale, Treder, Jaden Payne and Fly took third at 4:01.52.

Up next for several Blue Devils is the Division 2 state championship meet Friday and Saturday, Nov. 16-17, at Oakland University Aquatic Center.

Grosse Pointe North's Helen Michaelson had a good day for the Norsemen.

been different if a couple of key points went our way."

It was all Norsemen in game one. They jumped out to a big lead and kept their foot on the gas pedal. They never let the Blue Devils get any momentum.

Seniors Regan Sliwinski and Maria Zaki, as well as junior Christina Braker, led the way in kills, while seniors Evelyn Zacharias, Jamie Brewer, Rily Puscas, Sara Schaden and Rachel Liagre were stout defensively.

For the Blue Devils, they played on their heels the entire game and before fans could blink it was 1-0 North.

Kreyger was able to get her players refocused and their play was better in game two.

They were more aggressive and senior setter Gretchen Brockway got the ball to their hitters — senior Charlotte Brecht, juniors Caroline Zrimec, Cody Conlan and Elizabeth Hall and freshman Jada DiVita.

The Blue Devils built a 23-19 lead late in the second game before the Norsemen made an attempt to take a commanding 2-0 lead.

They got a side-out to get to 23-20 and Zaki's three straight service points tied it at 23.

DiVita put down a kill to give the Blue Devils the lead, and Brockway served the final point to even the match 1-1.

The Blue Devils played their best game of the match in the third one. Their serving was strong, as was their offense. DiVita was unstoppable at the net.

The game ended quickly, and it was the Blue Devils who entered game four with all of the momentum.

Kreyger watched her girls bolt out to a 16-9 lead, and it looked like the match was going to be over.

However, Brozo called a timeout and got her girls to take it one point at a time.

They chipped away, got their home fans back into it, and started making plays.

Senior Camryn Simon served six straight points to cut the Norsemen's deficit to 16-15 before a side-out made it 17-15.

Braker had a couple of key blocks, and a perfect set from Simon set up Sliwinski for a kill to help the Norsemen tie game four 23-23.

The gym was rocking and rolling with a game five a possibility.

The Blue Devils were able to get a side-out to earn point No. 24, and Brecht's final kill of the match sent them to the district championship match.

For the Blue Devils, DiVita had 11 kills, followed by Brecht with 10, Conlan with five and both Zrimec and Hall with three.

Senior captain Cynthia Hogan was the defensive leader in digs and serve receive, and Brockway had more than 40 assists.

For the Norsemen, Braker had eight kills, followed by Sliwinski and Zaki with five apiece. Zacharias had 25 digs, and Simon finished with 35 assists.

Grosse Pointe North finished its season 13-26 overall.

Brozo loses Brewer, Liagre, Puscas, Schaden, Zaki, Sliwinski, Simon and Zacharias to graduation.

As for South, it headed to the title match against Woods-Tower.

After a day of practice, the Blue Devils took care of business and won another district championship, beating Woods-Tower 25-19, 25-22, 25-21 to improve to 25-12-8.

"We expected a tough match since they are a well-coached team," Kreyger said. "Our girls played with urgency and played well. They earned this district championship."

The Titans pushed the Blue Devils in each game, but in the end Kreyger's squad had too many offensive weapons with Brecht, DiVita, Conlan, Hall and Zrimec.

In game one, the Blue Devils trailed 13-12 before Brockway served five straight points, and they never looked back.

They trailed 18-13 in game two before Hogan rang off nine straight service points for a 22-18 advantage. The Titans closed the gap to 24-22 a couple of minutes later, but a DiVita kill gave the Blue Devils their 25th point.

The Blue Devils cruised to a 19-10 lead in game three before the Titans made a comeback. They closed the gap to 23-20, but Conlan's couple of kills put them into the regionals.

On the defensive side, Hogan led the way in digs, and their play at the net was solid as they had a dozen blocks. The Blue Devils also had nine serving aces.

Grosse Pointe South competes in a regional tournament at Utica Ford High School.

If the Blue Devils beat Fraser in the semifinals, they advance to the regional championship match at 7 p.m. Thursday, Nov. 8, against the winner of the Stevenson/Dakota semifinal.

In the team standings, Plymouth won the title with 122 points.

As for the Norsemen, Montgomery was look-

Finalists

Grosse Pointe North's Sara Michalik, left, and Grosse Pointe South's Devon Krasner competed in the Division 1 girls cross-country state finals meet last weekend at Michigan International Speedway. Krasner finished 51st with a time of 19:06, and Michalik was 102nd with a time of 19:40. Michalik earned Academic All-State by finishing in the top half of the field and having a 4.0 GPA. Krasner also earned Academic All-State Honors as she maintains a GPA of 4.2. Krasner will continue running in college and is looking at Princeton, Bucknell and Michigan.

ing for a top 10 finish, but they settled for 12th.

Preston Navarre led the team by earning All-State with his time of 16:09.0. Navarre, 15th overall, is the first Norsemen to make All-State since 2006.

William Hofmann took 35th with a time of 16:28.9, and Kuvin Satyadev finished 36th with a time of 16:29.1.

The team's other two scorers were Garrett Schreck and Ben Seagram, who placed 67th and 158th with times of 16:49.3 and 17:53.8.

Noah White and Jack Day also competed for the Norsemen, and ran times of 18:12.8 and 18:43.4.

Earning All-Academic All-State for the Norsemen were Day, Schreck, Satyadev and Hofmann.

"Overall, we had a goal to finish in the top 10, but were very pleased with our 12th place finish because of the surprise factor in a couple of teams," Montgomery said. "You never really know what is going to happen in the state finals. That is why we always talk about what you can do on that day."

"All season, whenever runners didn't race as they would have hoped, my only questions have been: did you give the best you could give today? Did you fight or did you give up?"

For the Knights under head coach Lindsey Bachman, all underclassmen competed.

Junior Maggie Dunn led the team by taking 101st with a time of 21:49.0, and freshman Gracie Govier-LaParl was 123rd with a time of 22:21.9.

Freshman Emilia Bronk placed 153rd with a time of 23:31.2, and junior Margaret Hartigan placed 158th at 23:50.0.

Sophomore Sophia Ma also scored points in the meet, taking 160th with a time of 23:52.5.

Junior Ava Henness also ran and was 180th with a time of 25:38.3.

In the boys' meet, another underclassman, junior Ashton Pongratz, competed for the Knights and placed 102nd with a time of 17:44.5.

Caro senior Yami Albrecht won the boys' meet with a time of 15:40.8.
