Crews prepared for deep freeze

By Melissa Walsh
Staff Writer

GROSSE POINTE SHORES AND WOODS — Before it began, road crews were ready for the heavy snowfall and deep freeze hitting the area this week.

"We're all prepared. Our equipment is ready to go," Grosse Pointe Woods Director of Public Works Frank Schulte told the Grosse Pointe News early Monday for the expected heavy snowfall and falling temperatures that afternoon.

This followed work by his crew Sunday salting roadways and clearing sidewalks of approximately 3 inches of snow. "If you have falling temperatures, I like to clean the walkways so they don't get icy," Schulte said.

More than 3 inches on the roadways initiates plowing, he said.

Following more than 5 inches of snowfall hitting the Grosse Pointes Monday afternoon, meteorologists issued a wind chill warning of 10 to 40 degrees below zero

Marijuana ban written into city code

By Melissa Walsh
Staff Writer

GROSSE POINTE WOODS — Though the Michigan electorate voted in favor of recreational marijuana establishments, many municipalities in the state are opting to prohibit them from setting up shop within their boundaries.

During its meeting at 7 p.m. Monday, Feb. 4, city council will hold a first reading of ordinance amendments banning recreational marijuana businesses and public use of the drug.

The amendment prohibiting marijuana businesses follows 12 minutes of discussion and approval by the Woods Planning Commission during its meeting Tuesday, Jan. 22.

Renting the courts follows the normal court-rental guidelines with reservations required 24 hours in advance with payment on arrival or 72 hours in advance if pre-paying. Craig said they are looking into establishing drop-in times as well.

Craig said the third court will be used if and when the park decides to run larger events such as tournaments or leagues. But for now, only the two are being rented out.

Shores budget amendments approved

By Melissa Walsh
Staff Writer

GROSSE POINTE SHORES — City council approved budget amendments for this fiscal year recommended by City Treasurer Rhonda Ricketts during its meeting Tuesday, Jan. 15.

She called the budget amendment proposal "a housecleaning item that we should do twice a year." Final budget amendments will be addressed by council in June.

Ricketts reported $460,083 in increased revenue to the general fund budget for the fiscal year ending June 30, 2019. This includes previous fiscal-year funds of $227,759 for park renovation costs, a surplus fund of $61,197 slated for retiree health care costs and $100,000 in donation revenue by the improvement foundation for park improvements.

Ricketts adjusted the budget for increased expenditures due to retiree health-care costs and increased park maintenance costs.

"The one large item is the $227,759 that I omitted from the original budget on the revenue

"Checking In" is a casual conversation between the two about books, TV shows, music and events and programs at the library. It can be found on iTunes, Google Play and Stitcher.

"We are just trying to keep it casual," said Kessler, the teen librarian. "Maybe people view the library as super serious or there's some barrier to entry. We just want to change that idea. Librarians are just like regular people. ... Part of ton and pingpong. It is played on a badminton-sized court with a tennis net, solid paddles and a wiffle ball.

"It's what a lot of tennis players like to play," Craig said. "As you start to age and your knees get bad, just normal wear and tear of getting older, this is an easier sport. The ball travels a little less, there's less bounce, less speed to it and the court is a lot smaller. So there's not as much side to side as you would have on a normal tennis court."

But a lot of younger adults are interested in the sport as well, said Craig.

"It's not just older adults transitioning from tennis into it. It's a lot of younger ones as well."

Craig said he's already received many emails and phone calls from younger residents looking at renting out the courts. And that interest was one of the driving factors for offering rentals Wednesday evenings.

Craig said because of the popularity of the sport, especially locally, Patterson Park also is set to get a couple courts in the spring.

Although the plans and layout are still being firmed up, Craig said two pickleball courts will be established after the tennis courts at Patterson are resurfaced in the spring. He said approximately $5,000 has been raised by residents eager to play the sport.

The event Wednesday, Feb. 20, is hosted by certified pickleball instructor Patrick Cardinali. He will give demonstrations and answer questions, said Craig.

"It will be good for even your serious players down to beginners of how you play one-on-one, how you play partners, the do's and don'ts, that kind of stuff."

For more information and to reserve a court time, call the Lavins Activity Center front desk, (313) 822-2812, Ext. 300.

national marijuana establishments are prohibited."

In a memo dated Nov. 20, 2018, Berschback advised council the state "requires the planning commission to hold at least one public hearing before submitting its report/recommendation for a proposed ordinance to the city council."

The commission included the public hearing to amend the city's zoning ordinance to prohibit marijuana establishments on the agenda of its Jan. 22 meeting, beginning at 7 p.m. According to the meeting's minutes, discussion was closed and the motion passed unanimously by 7:12 p.m.

Also noted was, "No one wished to be heard" from the audience.

The ban will be written into the ordinance as Section 50-186 as "Prohibited Uses — Marijuana Establishments. Pursuant to Sec.

6.1 of the Michigan Regulation and Taxation of Marijuana Act (the Act), the city of Grosse Pointe Woods elects to completely prohibit all marijuana establishments as defined by the Act, in all zoning districts in the city of Grosse Pointe Woods."

In addition, Section 28-316 will be amended to make smoking marijuana in public a civil infraction "subject to a fine of $100 and forfeiture of the marijuana."

Approved by city council Nov. 19, 2018, was a land use moratorium currently in effect prohibiting marijuana establishments until the matter was addressed in the city's code.

The act does not authorize operating a vehicle while under the influence, distributing the drug to persons younger than 21, cultivating marijuana plants visible from a public place, possessing marijuana and marijuana accessories on school property and possessing more than 2.5 ounces of marijuana.

In addition to allowing municipalities to prohibit or limit marijuana establishments within their boundaries, the act also does not restrict employers in conducting drug screenings and prohibiting their employees from using marijuana.

Winter in the Woods

Grosse Pointe Woods hosted its annual Winterfest Jan. 26, at Ghesquiere Park. The event included two food trucks, a photo booth, ice skating, pony rides, outdoor games and a princess performance with Elsa and Anna from the movie, "Frozen."

Stay safe in the freezing cold

Dangerous cold temperatures and life-threatening wind chills, along with heavy snow are expected over the next few days for the eastern two-thirds of the country and the American Red Cross has steps to take to stay safe if you are in the path of this winter weather.

Temperatures will be below zero in many locations with wind chills making it feel as cold as 60 degrees below zero in some areas.

Take immediate precautions if you hear these words on the news:

- ◆ Winter Storm Warning: Life-threatening, severe winter conditions have begun or will begin within 24 hours.

- ◆ Blizzard Warning: Sustained winds or frequent gusts of 35 miles per hour or greater, plus considerable falling or blowing snow reducing visibility to less than a quarter mile, expected to prevail for three hours or longer.

- ◆ Wind Chill Temperature: How cold people and animals feel when outside. As wind increases, heat is carried away from your body at a faster rate, driving down your body temperature and making you feel much colder. The wind chill temperature is not the actual temperature, but rather how wind and cold feel on exposed skin.

- ◆ Winter Storm Watch: Winter storm conditions possible within the next 36 to 48 hours. Review your winter storm plans and stay informed about weather conditions.

it is also giving recommendations to people. That's one of the biggest parts of our job. Having a casual conversation with Annie and I may get people interested in stuff that they may not otherwise know."

"Or at the reference desk, sometimes people want our suggestions, but they may not want to interrupt us," said Spence, an emerging adults librarian. "They don't really realize that's part of our job. So we talk about it on the podcast, our book recommendations or what's going on at the library. That's sort of a way for people who may not want to interrupt us to know they can ask us."

Kessler and Spence said it wouldn't just be the two of them either. They are planning on bringing in other library staff and interviewing authors as well.

"We get a lot of good writers that come in here to do readings, so we hope to interview them," Spence said. "We would like to interview the authors for Books on the Lake when they come, give people that may not be able to attend the reading a chance to hear about the author."

Kessler said the idea for a podcast came from Spence, who approached him one day and asked if he would be interested.

"The library is trying to reach people however they can," Spence said, "even if they aren't coming into the library. And people my age and younger, when I mention to them I work at the library or I'll say, 'I got this from the library, I just made this at a library program,' they are always like, 'Oh, I didn't know you could do that there.' So we thought that a podcast would be a good way to let people know all that we are doing because we are doing so much new stuff this year."

The plan, said Kessler, is to release two podcasts a month around 45 minutes to an hour in length.

"We thought we might have trouble getting that far," Spence said. "But it turns out when you start talking about books, you can talk for a long time."

"The library is for everyone," said Mary Ann Short, marketing and programming director. "This is for the community. We really want everybody to come and take advantage of all the wonderful services that we have. I've only been working here six or eight months and every day I find something else that the library does that I didn't know about. ... With the podcast, it's just one other way to reach out to people and help them understand what's going on and encourage them to come and take advantage."

In 2018, the library was busy. Board Vice President Megan Conrad Sczygielski said there were approximately 500,000 library visits and 500,000 items checked out from the library last year. It also was a busy year with the library going through a rebranding.

"They filled several staff positions, launched a new website, refreshed the library brand," said Sczygielski at the City of Grosse Pointe city council meeting Monday, Jan. 14.

And with the millage passing in November, Sczygielski said the library continues to push ahead with its strategic plan.

"Just in the past month, consistent hours have been implemented at all of the library branches. So all three branches now open up at 9 a.m. All branches are open on Sunday afternoon during the school year as well."

Along with consistent hours, the library also launched its new website, grossepintelibrary.org.

And more people are participating in programs at the library, said Sczygielski.

"One of the biggest increases is our summer reading program participation," she said. "It was a 58 percent increase this summer over last summer. It had more than 1,600 participants."

She said 19,500 children participated in youth programs and more than 30,000 people participated in regular programming throughout 2018.

But the programming and services aren't contained just within the library walls.

Sczygielski said 1,500 home visits were made by the library last year.

"If you're not able to get out, Kathleen (Gallagher) will personally deliver books to you, deliver (library) services, help you with things in your home," she said.

And the library continues to offer myriad services, databases and media online. One new item this year is Lynda, an online resource offering courses in web and software development, design, photography, business and many other topics.

"(Lynda) has a lot of business-related training opportunities," Sczygielski said. "I know some people who are graphic designers and they said they used to have a personal Lynda account that they paid for out of their pocket library. So it's kind of because they use it to neat."

learn new programming languages, and now they can get all those resources through the pointelibrary.org.

Veteran, 95, to be honored for service

By Jody McVeigh
Editor

Eugene Ignasiak remembers his service in World War II like it was yesterday. Those memories are among some of the Grosse Pointe Woods resident's favorite stories to tell.

Ignasiak enlisted in the U.S. Naval Reserve when he was 18. He went to Great Lakes, Ill., "for boots," or boot camp, he said.

"Our country was at war," he said. "Some men were drafted, but a lot of us enlisted. I was in the Naval Reserve, because I enlisted for the duration of the war. If you signed up for four years or six years, you were in the U.S. Navy, but I enlisted for the duration."

Ignasiak qualified for service school and chose to become an electrician.

"After four months of school, I earned the rank of electrician's mate third class and was assigned to PC 1260," he said. "We picked her up in New Orleans."

It was 1942.

Patrol Craft 1260 was assigned convoy escort duty, ensuring convoys of 100 to 125 cargo ships and oil tankers made safe passage.

"We looked like a tiny destroyer," Ignasiak said, noting the ship carried 60 men and five officers. "We only had fuel for eight days, so we had to do it in relays. We would start in Boston or New York ... and five escorts would bring the convoy down to Guantanamo Bay, the large naval base in the Atlantic. We five would take a convoy to Trinidad Island, another group would take it to Recife, Brazil, and from there the convoy would go to North Africa. We were proud of ourselves as we did not lose one of our convoy ships, because we kept the German submarines at bay."

Ignasiak was stationed in the PC's switch room. "I was alone down there, but I knew what was going on," he said. "When the sonar men would pick up a German sub ... I told them the auxiliary engine room was manned and ready.

"They would call for a certain pattern — shallow, medium or deep, which meant 50 feet, 150 feet or 300 feet," he continued. "I knew what was going on when they called for a shallow pattern and I held on for dear life ... because I knew it only takes a few seconds for a few hundred pounds of TNT to drop 50 feet."

Another moment that sticks out in Ignasiak's memory is traveling through the Caribbean.

"People say the Caribbean is a nice place to be — the waters, the cruising — but the flip side of that is called a hurricane," he laughed.

"After we went through a hurricane, I went to the bridge and asked the quarter master, 'How did we do?' He said, 'We did great! The convoy stayed together and we only got pushed back 100 miles in 24 hours!'

Ignasiak served three years in the service before taking his first leave in September 1945.

"By this time in the war, two atomic bombs were dropped — Hiroshima and Nagasaki," he said. "So Japan surrendered and by not having to invade Japan, well, it was estimated we would have had a half million casualties — casualties meaning dead or wounded. When the Japanese surrendered, I was able to get leave for the first time in three years.

"In the three years I was gone, my folks sold their home and moved to Chandler Park Drive," he continued. "I knew through pictures what the house looked like."

Ignasiak boarded a bus in uniform and told the bus driver where he wanted to be dropped.

"He got me to Marlboro and Warren and then I walked the two or three blocks home," he said. "I recognized the house from the pictures. Well, 60 years ago, nobody locked their doors. I went in through the side door and went into the kitchen. I recognized the kitchen table, so I felt a little more comfortable. Supper was being prepared. I went through the kitchen into the living room. My mother was in the living room reading the Detroit News and our fox terrier, Topsy, was at her feet."

Eugene Ignasiak sits near photos of some of his favorite memories: a photo from boot camp, his U.S. Navy discharge papers, a photo of the ship on which he sailed, his good conduct and victory medals and a photo of him on San Juan Hill, "where the rough riders came and took over in Cuba in 1890," he said.

At his greeting, his mother let out a shriek. Right away, he said, "Topsy was on her feet, barking her head off, the hair on her spine was up, protecting her mother. I said, 'Topsy, don't you remember me?' She stopped barking, jumped up to my chest and gave me 100 kisses."

Ignasiak returned to the service only to be honorably discharged a few months later as an electrician's mate first class.

"I was discharged Dec. 24 from where I started, Great Lakes, Ill.," he said. "I got home Christmas Eve about midnight. After all the hugs and kisses, my brother and I went to midnight Mass."

"I was home about 10 days and my mother said, 'You've got to get on with your life now,'" he continued. "I said, 'I've been gone 3 1/2 years.' She said, 'Yes, you came home safely. Now get to Ann Arbor.'

Ignasiak registered and became a student at the University of Michigan College of Engineering in January 1946. During his third year, he met the love of his life, Dorothy.

His younger brother, Norbert, was enrolled at Eastern Michigan University and invited Ignasiak to a picnic at Island Lake. It took some convincing, but eventually he agreed to go.

"I go to the parish grounds and see two buses," Ignasiak said. "You've seen one bus, you've seen them all. So I walked up to one of the two and went aboard. About halfway down the aisle was a young lady, who was very attractive in my eyes, sitting alone."

Ignasiak introduced himself.

"He said, 'I'm Iggy's brother,'" Dorothy Ignasiak said. "Iggy was like the Pied Piper; everybody loved him. So I said, 'Go ahead and sit down.'"

After a successful outing, the two kept in touch corresponding through letters. She would hop on a Greyhound to visit him at U of M for games or dances. His dormitory was behind Michigan Union, "so the bus would come and I'd get a hug and she was off," Ignasiak said. "But we kept in touch."

Ignasiak earned a Bachelor of Science degree in mechanical engineering in January 1950.

"In June, I asked the lady if she would marry me," he said. "She said, 'Yup.' We were married Oct. 28, 1950."

The couple went on to have four children — Susan, Michael, Gregory and Robert.

Ignasiak entered the automotive field, working for Fisher Body, Packard, Bird Co. and Chevrolet before settling into an engineering post at Ford Motor Co., from which he retired in 1987 after 25 years. At Ford, he won awards for cost-saving ideas, opting for a cash reward over a car and using the funds to help put his children through college.

Ignasiak, who celebrated his 95th birthday last month, credits a strong faith and healthy eating for his longevity. Which is not to say Ignasiak hasn't had his fair share of health issues. He had a pacemaker installed nine years ago and an aortic valve replacement seven years ago. He was one of a handful of participants in the then-trial procedure.

"Everything went well," Ignasiak said. "I went in on a Tuesday morning. ... I was home by Friday noon. For two years they teased me about being the poster boy (for aortic valve replacement)."

Ignasiak formerly enjoyed photography and is a life member of the Scarab Club. He used to garden, but currently counts being a father as his main hobby. He regularly takes his son, Gregory, who is mentally impaired, to Boy Scouts meetings, bowling at the Neighborhood Club, Catechism at St. Joan of Arc Catholic Church and other outings.

The Ignasiaks, members of Our Lady Star of the Sea Catholic Church, have always loved traveling and even met Pope John Paul II during one European vacation.

Egypt, Venice, Poland, Africa, Israel, Ireland and England are among other favorite destinations.

A longtime Grosse Pointe resident — they moved to the Pointes in 1964 — Ignasiak also enjoys Patrol Craft reunions.

"Our ranks are getting thinner and thinner and thinner," he said.

Ignasiak will be recognized by his alma mater during a basketball game at U of M at noon Saturday, Feb. 16. His nephew, David Ignasiak, helped make the arrangements.

"I feel very humbled," Ignasiak said.

Several family members are planning to attend the game, where Ignasiak will sit court-side and receive honors at halftime.

With a smile, Ignasiak added, "Our oldest son, Michael, said, 'If you wear your uniform, they will go crazy.'"

◆ Protect pipes from freezing.

◆ Caulk and weather-strip doors and windowsills to keep cold air out. Install storm windows or cover windows with plastic from the inside to provide an extra layer of insulation to keep cold air out.

◆ Stay indoors and wear warm clothes. Layers of loose-fitting, lightweight, warm clothing will keep you warmer than a bulky sweater. If you feel too warm, remove layers to avoid sweating; if you feel chilled, add layers.

◆ Check on relatives, neighbors and friends, particularly if they are elderly or if they live alone.

Outdoor safety

If you must go outside, protect yourself from winter storm hazards:

◆ Wear layered clothing, mittens or gloves and a hat. Outer garments should be tightly woven and water repellent. Mittens or gloves and a hat will prevent the loss of body heat.

◆ Cover your mouth to protect your lungs from severely cold air. Avoid taking deep breaths; minimize talking.

◆ Watch for signs of hypothermia and frostbite.

◆ Keep dry. Change wet clothing frequently to prevent a loss of body heat. Wet clothing loses much of its insulating value and transmits heat rapidly away from the body.

◆ Stretch before you go out. If you go out to shovel snow, do a few stretching exercises to warm up your body. This will reduce your chances of muscle injury.

◆ Avoid overexertion, such as shoveling heavy snow, pushing a vehicle or walking in deep snow. The strain from the cold and the hard labor may cause a heart attack. Sweating could lead to a chill and hypothermia.

◆ Walk carefully on snowy, icy sidewalks. Slips and falls occur frequently in winter weather, resulting in painful and sometimes disabling injuries.

◆ If you must go out during a winter storm, use public transportation if possible. About 70 percent of winter deaths related to ice and snow occur in automobiles.

Grosse Pointe FarmsWrong plates

A 54-year-old Detroit man was cited for improper plates and no insurance at 6 p.m. Thursday, Jan. 24, on Moross at Berden.

A patrolling officer stopped behind a 2003 Chevrolet Tahoe at a red light on Moross and noticed defective equipment. The license plate lights were out and the plate was held on by only one screw.

After running the plate through the Law Enforcement Information Network, it was discovered the license plate belonged to a 2002 Chevrolet Trailblazer and a traffic stop was initiated.

The driver said he purchased the vehicle at a police auction and never transferred the title. He also freely admitted not having insurance.

He was warned on the other violations. The car was impounded and the man and his passenger were released at the scene.

Vehicle stolen

A 2015 Jeep Grand Cherokee was stolen in the 20 block of Kercheval sometime between 6 and 6:45 p.m. Monday, Jan. 21.

The owner said he parked the vehicle legally, locked it and was in possession of both key fobs.

Broken glass was observed on the ground indicating the suspect broke the rear driver-side window. The suspect is unknown.

"Cold weather is always tough, but the snow we're prepared for, as long as there are no unforeseen breakdowns," said Shores Department of Public Works Director Brett Smith.

"We're business as usual," he added. "Our equipment is ready for anything Mother Nature has to offer. With the warmer weather in December, we were able to get everything ready to go."

The Shores uses an older truck, which Smith said is reliable, and a two-year-old truck, which he said "has seen one season, so it has all the bugs worked out of it."

Covering 3.2 square miles, the Woods employs as many as 10 pickup trucks, four 5-yard trucks and two 10-yard trucks. A front-loader fitted with an Avalanche plow does the heavy work in the city's many parking lots and cul-de-sacs.

"We have a lot of ground to cover in a short amount of time," Schulte said, adding his crew breaks into groups of three running routes to cover the primary roads first, including Mack — a Wayne County roadway — before the secondary roads.

Smith and Schulte said the aim is to get the roads plowed and dried before the predicted deep freeze beginning Tuesday.

If that aim isn't met, they warned, then motorists will have to use extreme caution traveling along icy roads.

"Salt doesn't work at all below 10 degrees," Smith said.

"I recommend motorists only go out if they have to," Schulte said.

At press time Tuesday, more snow was falling with temperatures dropping.

OUR VIEW

Up in smoke

With the Jan. 14 action taken by the Grosse Pointe Farms City Council, all five Grosse Pointe municipalities have opted out of allowing retail sales of marijuana following statewide passage of Proposal 1 on the November ballot that legalized marijuana possession, use and sale in Michigan.

While it will be years before legal retail sales of pot will be possible in Michigan, we applaud the five city councils for taking a proactive stance.

Some media outlets have attempted to "shame" municipalities for opting out by listing them and suggesting they are somehow thwarting voters' wishes. Pointe-wide, the measure was approved by some 2,000 votes, a 13 percent margin. Statewide, Proposal 1 passed by a 2-to-1 margin.

Still, as Farms Mayor Louis Theros pointed out, given our proximity to Detroit and Eight Mile Road, Pointers choosing to partake of marijuana will have no difficulty finding same when retail sales become licensed.

Under the 6,000-word marijuana law, the state's Department of Licensing and Regulatory Affairs has 24 months to come up with licensing and potency standards for marijuana products. In the meantime, it is illegal for anyone to sell recreational marijuana in Michigan. Buyer beware!

However, as we have seen with medical marijuana, that does not prevent marijuana entrepreneurs from hanging a shingle — or leaf — and declaring themselves open for business ... until someone shuts them down.

Consequently, we think it is wise to forgo all marijuana sales in the Pointes until such licensing regulations have been adopted and tested over time. If and when such procedures are set by the state and are proven effective in the safe distribution of the drug, then the Pointe municipalities can take a second look at whether such sales should be allowed.

Our vision is that marijuana products be regulated much like alcohol and available only in licensed establishments. And, like liquor, potency should be labeled on the product. In the case of marijuana, levels of THC, the main psychoactive ingredient, would be the measure of "proof."

Meanwhile, the only way to obtain marijuana legally in Michigan and the Pointes is to "grow your own." Under the law, users are limited to 10 ounces and 12 plants at their residence. Plants grown outdoors must not be visible from the street. The grower is prohibited from selling or sharing.

Further, marijuana users are limited to carrying 2.5 ounces on their person in public — about a sandwich baggy full. Of course, it goes without saying that, like alcohol, you must be 21 years of age or older to possess, purchase or use marijuana products. Pot use also is prohibited in public or in public spaces, including schools and playgrounds.

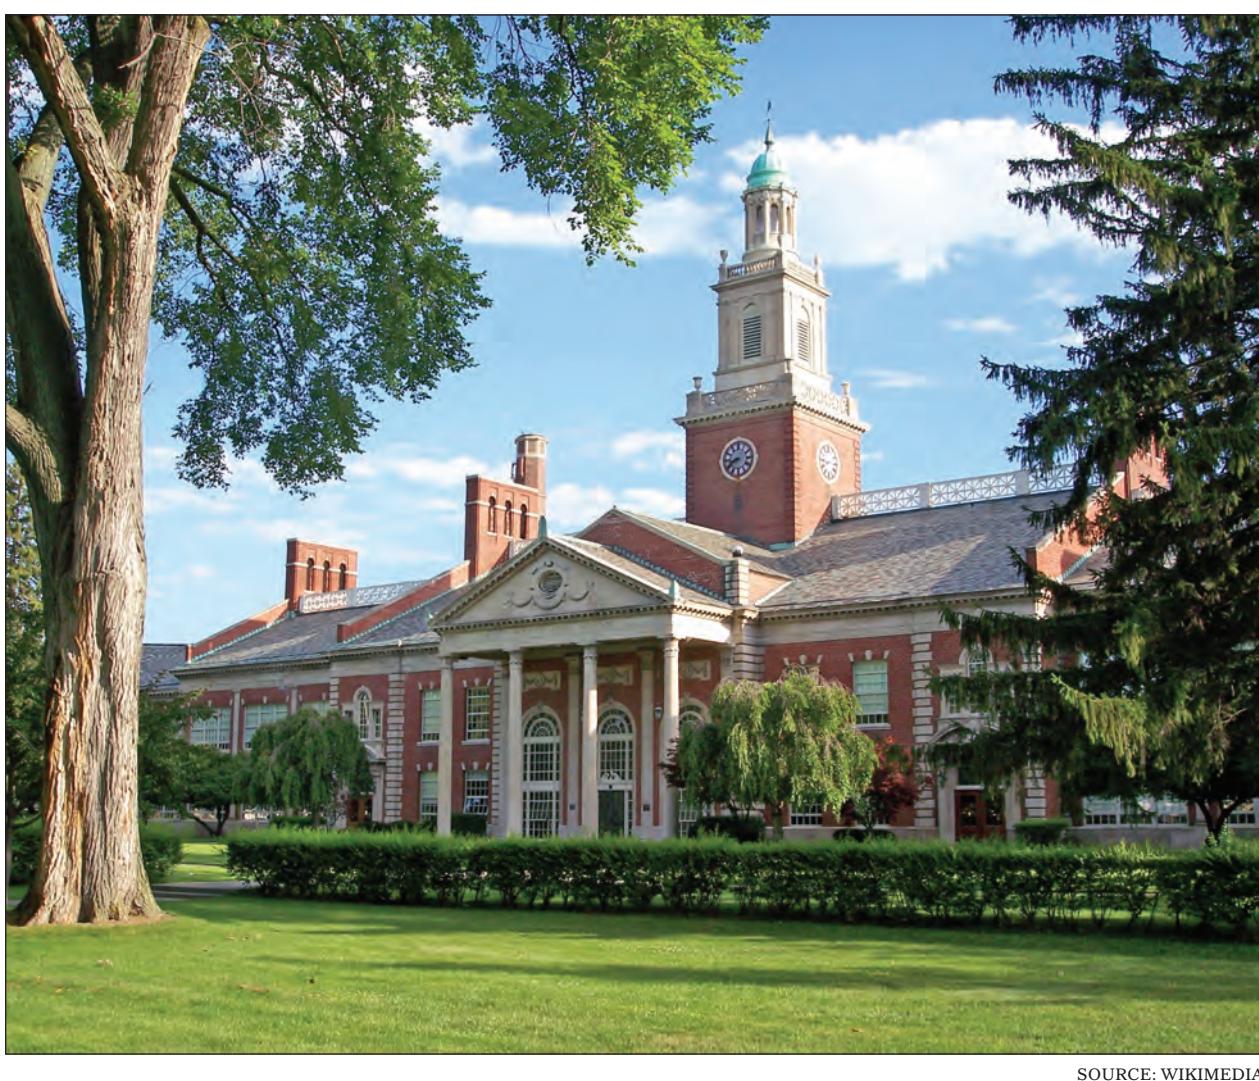

Since marijuana is still illegal under U.S. law, it is not allowed on federal land or in federal buildings, and we definitely would not advise taking it with you when going to Canada. Even though marijuana is legal in Canada, it is illegal to transport it across the border — in either direction.

The legalization of marijuana is perhaps the most problematic for law enforcement officers. First and foremost, it is illegal to operate a motor vehicle with any THC in your system. That's right, as far as driving under the influence of THC, there is a zero tolerance.

Unfortunately, there is not an easy test for THC as there is for alcohol. However, if marijuana smoke rolls out the driver's window during a traffic stop, that's a dead giveaway — as are bloodshot eyes and pot's trademark pungent odor. Also, unfortunately, we are seeing in police reports that marijuana also often is combined with alcohol consumption, posing a dangerous mix behind the wheel.

We did not take a position on marijuana legalization prior to the vote. Our view is, and was, that possession of small amounts of marijuana should not result in jail time. And if regulated properly, marijuana sales and use can be as responsible as alcohol.

True, there will be abuses, as there are in alcohol, and police and school officials must be vigilant. But for safety's sake, don't tote — or drink — and drive!

OUR VIEW

Pointes rank among the best in Michigan and nationally

It's nice to be noticed by outsiders. With the beginning of school in September, Architectural Digest published a slide presentation, "The Most Beautiful Public High Schools in Every State in America." Not surprisingly, stately Grosse Pointe South High School won the honor as most beautiful high school in Michigan. As an added bonus, the cover slide featured — out of all 50 state high schools — Grosse Pointe South.

Mirror, mirror on the wall, what's the fairest high school of all? Grosse Pointe South!

"For most students, summer has ended and schools across America are back in session (to the delight of some, to the chagrin of others). So what better time to take a closer look at the thousands of schools across the United States? While many high school buildings might be rather bland from a design perspective, there are others that are veritable works of art — we wouldn't blame you for mistaking them as universities, private homes, or even castles, in some cases. Representing a vast range of architectural styles, from Gothic to Art Deco, these structures, both historic and modern, often represent the pride of a community. Herein, we've selected the most beautiful public school in each and every state."

And on page 22 under the slide, "Michigan: Grosse Pointe South High School, Grosse Pointe Farms," the author noted: "What was formerly swampland was transformed into the manicured grounds of Grosse Pointe South High School, which features a stunning Georgian Revival main building designed by Detroit-based architect George J. Haas."

As all Pointers know, Grosse Pointe High School opened in 1928, featuring the 134-foot clock tower and 104-foot smokestack and Tennessee marble and Pewabic tile throughout. It remained the Pointes' only high school, "The High," until Grosse Pointe North High School opened in fall 1968.

That Grosse Pointe South's elegant facade has been a popular backdrop for photographers throughout the decades goes without saying. It is nice that Architectural Digest thinks so as well.

Besides recognition for the high school within its borders, Grosse Pointe Farms also was recognized recently as among the Top 10 places to live in Michigan by HomeSnacks.net, an online information source that takes community demographics and puts them into "bite-size" pieces. The ranks were based on "crunching" U.S. Census and FBI crime data.

The author had this to say about Grosse Pointe Farms:

"Grosse Pointe Farms is a suburban town bordering Detroit located in Wayne County in the U.S. state of Michigan. The population was 9,479 at the 2010 census. It is bordered by Canada and Lake Saint (sic) Clair on the south and east, Grosse Pointe on the west, Detroit on the north, and Grosse Pointe Woods and Grosse Pointe Shores on the northeast. Lakeshore Drive begins in Grosse Pointe Farms, where, just east of Fisher Road, the eastbound driver or pedestrian on Jefferson Avenue descends to lake level, following the curvature of the lakefront to the northeast."

Grosse Pointe Woods ranked as the seventh best place to live in Michigan, according to the study, which noted:

"Grosse Pointe Woods is a suburban city in Wayne County in the U.S. state of Michigan, comprising a large portion of the Grosse Pointe communities. The population was 16,135 at the 2010 census. It is located about 10 miles northeast of downtown Detroit in the northeastern corner of Wayne County."

Grosse Pointe Woods also was listed by Alarms.org as among the 25 "Safest Cities in Michigan," ranking 17th, based on the most recent FBI Uniform Crime Report statistics. Grosse Pointe Park came in as the 13th Safest City in Michigan.

Going back to the Farms, HomeSnacks ranks it third among the "Richest Cities in Michigan. The Farms' listed stats were:

- ◆ Median Home: $298,400
- ◆ Median Income: $132,390
- ◆ Median Rent: $1,591

Last June in this space, we reported that Grosse Pointe Shores held the distinction of being the "Richest Town" in Michigan, according to the Delaware-based online newsletter 24/7 Wall St. (247wallst.com).

To determine the wealthiest town in each state, 24/7 Wall St. reviewed median household incomes in every town, city, village, borough or census designated place with a population between 1,000 and 25,000 from the U.S. Census Bureau's American Community Survey.

According to the report:

"Grosse Pointe Shores, a Detroit suburb located on the western shore of Lake St. Clair, is the wealthiest town in Michigan. Franklin, the second wealthiest town in the state with a median income of $150,250, is located just 30 miles west of Grosse Pointe Shores. Across Michigan as a whole, the typical household earns $50,803, about a third of the median income in Grosse Pointe Shores."

Not to be outdone, Grosse Pointe, the city, is the ninth Richest City in Michigan, nestled between Novi (eighth) and Rochester Hills.

All in all, the Pointes earn, and deserve, their fair share of recognition. No surprise there!

I SAY By Mary Anne Brush

Crossing line to empathy, compassion

As a reporter, I am mainly an observer and rarely a participant.

This changed recently when I attended a portion of Challenge Day at Grosse Pointe North High School, held over two days in December. I went to observe and interview a few participants for an article I was writing for the paper.

After I finished my interviews with the two facilitators, one of them, Chris, thanked me for coming and invited me to stay for the activity I had expressed interest in — an exercise called “Crossing the Line” — but said he had one request.

I thought he was going to tell me not to intrude on private moments among the students and teachers. In fact, the opposite was true.

“I ask only that you take part in the exercise,” he said. “We require everyone in the room to participate.”

He further explained it would be more of an intrusion on their privacy if I stood at the edges of the room and looked on, rather than mingling with the 100 or so students and staff present for this empathy-building activity.

That’s how I found myself shoulder to shoulder with young people and educators from North, most of them as unfamiliar to me as I was to them. No one questioned my presence. In fact, strict silence was expected for this activity as Trish, the other facilitator, listed the various sets of criteria for crossing the line.

If for any reason you fell into a particular category — you or a family member or person close to you had suffered from a life-threatening illness; you or a family member or person close to you had been incarcerated; you at one point in your life were homeless or lived in poverty, for example — you crossed over the line and turned to face the people remaining on the other side. These were the people — many raising their right hand in a gesture meant to signal love and solidarity — who had your back, Trish explained.

There were some categories, such as “Have you ever felt sad or alone?” that prompted nearly every person in the gym to cross the line.

The one with the least number crossing — a category I myself crossed the line on — was “Have you lost one or both of your parents?”

I was saddened to see the number of people who crossed the line because they or someone close to them had considered, attempted or committed suicide.

The final category — which Trish told us to take our time to decide — was: “Cross the line if you’ve ever been a child.” A surprising number of people chose not to cross, resolute in their understanding that, for whatever reason, they had never enjoyed the privilege of a childhood.

Chris and Trish described the activity as planting seeds in these young people. The hope is once the seeds take root they will flourish in the school, helping create a more inclusive and accepting culture.

For the individuals most deeply affected by the day — whose challenges, while hidden, may be greater than those around them will ever know — the most important message they took away was that whatever their struggles, they are not alone.

High school students present dangers of vaping to middle schoolers

By Mary Anne Brush
Staff Writer

Myth: E-cigarettes are safe.

Fact: There have been no long-term studies on vapes and e-cigarettes.

Fact: Teens who vape or smoke are more susceptible to developmental delays.

Grosse Pointe North and Grosse Pointe South high school students from the exploring global issues class presented facts and myths about vaping to sixth- through eighth-graders at Parcells Middle School Jan. 11. Accompanied by CARE of Southeast Michigan mentors Halee Adams and MaryJo Harris, students Sean Bly, Shannon Flores, Lexi Herrell and Hunter Levick spent a full day at Parcells making sure every student heard their message during their social studies classes.

According to Harris, it was the students' choice to focus on vaping to fulfill the service component of the class. They chose middle schoolers as their audience because they believed they could have a bigger impact on them than their same-age peers.

An epidemic

While originally created as a way to help smokers kick the habit, vaping has grown in popularity among young people ages 13 to 17, with twice as many high school students using nicotine-tinged e-cigarettes in 2018 compared with 2017, according to a federally funded survey conducted by the University of Michigan.

"It's a huge epidemic right now," said Herrell, a junior at South, adding the increase among high school students is 78 percent and 48 percent among middle school students.

Some of that increase may be attributable to Juul, an e-cigarette that looks like a flash drive and produces vapor that can go undetected by adults. Introduced in 2016, Juul emerged as the most popular product among teens.

Studies show vaping leads to increased risk of smoking.

"They made (e-cigarettes) so you can quit smoking, but scientists did a study and they're certain that e-cigarettes lead to regular smoking for many teens 12 to 17," said Herrell. "They're twice as likely to start regular smoking after vaping."

For example, one Juul cartridge is worth 200 puffs — an equivalent amount of nicotine as a pack of cigarettes, according to Harris.

"Why do you think teens vape?" Herrell asked a group of seventh-graders.

Their responses — "It's cool"; "To fit in"; "Stress" — were matched against a study showing 53.6 vaped to see what it's like; 38 percent because it tastes good; 22 percent out of boredom; 20.7 percent to relax and relieve stress; and 20.5 percent to have a good time.

Health risks

"When cigarettes were really popular back in the day, no one really knew anything about it," Levick said. "It was a new product, everyone was doing it, no one really thought about the repercussions it could have. But 30 years down the road, it started to have an effect — cancer, people dying. We're experiencing the same thing with Juuling."

"(E-cigarettes) have only been around for about 10 years so they don't really

Hunter Levick and Lexi Herrell worked on a presentation on vaping as part of the service component of their exploring global issues class.

Legislation

While federal law prohibits the sale of tobacco products to minors, including vape products, Michigan does not have any laws preventing minors from possessing these products.

State Rep. Thomas Albert, District 6, plans to introduce a new bill to prohibit minors from using e-cigarettes and other alternative nicotine products. Similar bills, House Bill 4736 and Senate Bill 37, to amend the youth tobacco act were introduced in June 2017 and January 2017, respectively, and referred to the Committee on Regulatory Reform, with no action taken.

have enough data to prove anything, like it causes diseases," he continued. "... We're like the guinea pigs. If we start now, our generation gets addicted, we'll find out in 30 years."

To drive their point home, students shared jars containing products made from the same chemicals contained in e-cigarettes, such as cadmium, sulphur, benzene, formaldehyde, propylene glycol, acrylonitrile, rubidium, toluene and acetone.

They stressed what these chemicals were used for — rat poison, batteries, glue, rubber gloves, cosmetics and preserving dead bodies.

"That's fine for my nails, but I wouldn't want that inside my body," said Herrell about acetone, used in nail polish remover, adding, "Particles from these chemicals are attaching to the inside of your lungs."

Marketing

"Why is vaping trending?" Herrell asked.

One reason is an increase in advertising and a focus on flavors appealing to children, such as cotton candy, sour patch kids and cupcake.

"The more it's advertised, the more you want to do it," Herrell said.

Proposed new steps by the FDA to prevent access to tobacco products, including e-cigarettes, to minors and curb marketing of such products aimed at youth, are a long way from being enacted into legislation.

In the meantime, new data is showing e-cigarettes are "starting to erase decades of progress cutting teen smoking," Herrell said. "In 2016, more than 2 million U.S. middle and high school students used e-cigarettes ... including 4.3 percent of middle schoolers and 11.3 (percent of) high school students."

"That's one in 20 (high school students) and one in five (middle school students)," she added.

Said Harris, "If there are 10 of you between the ages of 10 to 17 using a Juul, statistics have shown that five of you will then go on to smoke because you've become so addicted to the nicotine in the vaping device that you need more and you go on to smoke."

Other dangers of vaping include the vaping device overheating, catching fire and exploding in people's faces, Levick said, citing 134 reports of this occurring.

Code of conduct

In addition to health risks, the students emphasized the use of tobacco products, including smokeless tobacco, e-cigarettes and vaporizers.

"There needs to be more information given out on this, like with cigarettes," said Herrell. "Everyone knows it can give you cancer. ... They need to make sure everybody knows the same thing about vape, but there's not enough data."

Presenting to Parcells middle school students was a start.

"I really believe that we're affecting these kids today and I'm really happy with how these kids reacted," said Levick. "... We taught them something today that they didn't know before. If we could stop these kids when they're in sixth grade from ever thinking about vaping, then that's where it should start."

From the FDA

"The data show that kids using e-cigarettes are going to be more likely to try combustible cigarettes later. This is a large pool of future risk. The policies I'm outlining now strive to strike a careful public health balance between our imperative to enable the opportunities to transition to non-combustible products to be available for adults; and our solemn mandate to make nicotine products less accessible and less appealing to children. The data make unmistakably clear that, if we're to break the cycle of addiction to nicotine, preventing youth initiation on nicotine is a paramount imperative."

—FDA Commissioner Scott Gottlieb M.D., Nov. 15, 2018

"That's why we started with middle school students rather than high school students," said Herrell. "It's good to stop it where it starts, right before they go into high school. Maybe they have siblings who vape. They see it everywhere. We have a bigger impact on them as high school students who see this every single day."

"With the Surgeon General declaring vaping among teens an epidemic, it is extremely important for our students to know both the health risks and consequences of vaping per our code of conduct," said Parcells Principal Dan Hartley, adding having high school students present the information "created additional legitimacy and buy-in."

"The presenters did an outstanding job," he added.

She is the ultimate team player — always pitching in and always with a level of admirable positivity. She's pushed herself to become a nationally recognized teacher. She is a superstar."

What do you enjoy most about teaching?

My favorite aspect of teaching is getting to know students: interacting with them in different contexts, seeing the world through their eyes and sharing ideas with them. One of the things I love the most about students is that they have so many different passions and interests, and the energy and idealism to do something with it. Helping students connect something they care deeply about with a concrete process for doing something with their passions is a richly rewarding experience.

Describe a teaching accomplishment you're proud of or a "teachable moment" you experienced.

I try very hard to make sure students see their own life experiences and backgrounds reflected in the curriculum, and I also try hard to help students see that people from inside and outside their own community have other experiences that make their understanding of the world very different. In my course on the Sixties last year, one of the assignments was an autobiography where students re-imagined themselves as student activists in the 1960s. I was very proud of the candid way students wrote about how their own experiences today related to issues from 50 years ago.

Please share a book or person that has inspired you or your teaching.

Park resident makes giving a priority

By Jody McVeigh
Editor

Ellie Sahutske is loving her new haircut.

The 10-year-old Grosse Pointe Park resident recently visited Chez Loulou Salon in The Village to not only rid herself of 10 inches of light brown hair, but also to donate said locks to Maggie's Wigs 4 Kids Wellness Center and Salon in St. Clair Shores.

"I donated my hair because I thought it would be fun," Sahutske said. "I've been growing it since fourth-grade picture day. ... But I didn't know I was going to grow it out and donate it until around Christmastime (2017)."

The Maire Elementary School fifth-grader said a lot of work goes into growing 10 inches of hair—keeping it clean, braiding it, getting out the tangles. But at the same time, she said, it's the easiest thing to do, "because it's always growing."

"Man, was she ready to get it cut when it was time," said her mother, Beth Walsh-Sahutske. "She has a sweet little heart. She's always thinking of some way to do something to help someone else."

Wigs 4 Kids provides wigs and support services at no charge to children and young adults throughout Michigan experiencing hair loss due to cancer, alopecia, trichotillomania, burns and other disorders.

"Wigs 4 Kids was attractive because they donate all their wigs," for sick children in the Walsh-Sahutske said.

"It's cool to do a local nonprofit. It's a good group to go to."

Although Sahutske said adjusting to a short hairstyle took some getting used to, she said she plans to do it again, though not anytime soon. The donation was just the latest in a string of charitable works the youth has accomplished.

A couple years ago, she fundraised and produced Hummingbird Fun Bags, for siblings of babies in the Neonatal Intensive Care Unit at Beaumont Hospital, to keep them from getting bored. The idea came during Maire's Genius Hour, "where we create something we're passionate about," Sahutske said. "The idea started as a bucket with lots and lots of stuff in it for sick children in the hospital."

But she decided on something a little more economical and made up bags with coloring books and crayons. Each bag included a label featuring a hummingbird—which carries special significance to the Sahutske family.

"My cousin (Clare) passed away when she was 5," Sahutske said. "I never met her. She would make everybody smile. She was sick and couldn't move her arms and legs. On multiple occasions, hummingbirds would land on her."

Realizing the tedious hospital stays can have on patients and families, Sahutske set out to create the bags. An initial Go Fund Me page asked for $50, "but we needed to make it higher," she said. "It got a little bigger than we expected."

Sahutske ended up making and donating more than 1,000 Hummingbird Fun Bags.

"We contacted the person at Beaumont, Grosse Pointe, who said it wasn't a very big Neonatal Intensive Care Unit," she said. "She said we should go to Royal Oak, Beaumont, because they have a big one."

Sahutske was invited to Royal Oak for a tour, where their tour guide took them to a room, "where kids would wait when they have siblings in the Neonatal Intensive Care Unit," she said.

"There were hummingbirds on all the chairs; they were all around us."

"I thought, 'I think we're on the right track,'" Walsh-Sahutske said.

While Sahutske said she'd be happy to grow out her hair again—"it's always growing; I may as well let it grow for a good cause." — the Hummingbird Fun Bag project was a one-time deal.

But certainly not the end of her charitable giving.

From there, she moved on to support Motor City Mitten Mission. Sahutske selected it to receive her donation after being "Caught in the Act of Giving Back," a good-deed program sponsored by the Grosse Pointe Foundation for Public Education in which Maire students participated.

"I was 'caught' and they gave me $200 to donate to a cause," she said. "I decided to donate to Motor City Mitten Mission because I really liked what they're doing."

The nonprofit is dedicated to helping the homeless, needy, sick and those striving for a better way of life through a variety of offerings, including its Mats & Pillows Project, in which recycled plastic bags are used to create mats and pillows for the homeless.

Sahutske and her mom have gone to a few of the organization's plarn parties, during which plastic bags are used as yarn to create the mats and pillows.

For her efforts with the organization, Sahutske recently was awarded Motor City Mitten Mission's Youth Ambassador Award, an honor she was excited to receive.

"I was only the second person to get that," she said. "It feels really good. It's a hard thing to have wear off. I know it's good every time."

"I couldn't be more proud of my Ellie," Walsh-Sahutske said. "She's amazing and impressive with her generosity and creativity. She's an old soul with a perspective I don't expect out of kids her age."

As for Sahutske, as she's settling into her new haircut, she has yet to discover her next charitable project. She's not worried though; she knows ideas are just around the corner.

"Something will pop into my brain while I'm sleeping," she said. "I'll tell my mom and she'll say, 'Great idea!' And then we'll set off on an epic journey."

pates in projects with her Girl Scout troop, hosts lemonade stands in the summer and has even hosted a coffee stand.

"It was too cold for lemonade and too hot for hot chocolate," she explained.

She and her cousin, Annie, also have sold art work as part of their lemonade stands, the proceeds from which she gives to Beaumont, Grosse Pointe.

"She likes the hospital idea," Walsh-Sahutske said.

"Ellie's got that creative, generous perspective that's really wonderful," she continued. "The things they do at school encourage kids to think outside themselves. ... One of the cool things about this area—it's cool that Ellie does things—but there are so many kids that are doing so much. It's nice to be able to support those things that build character and build generosity."

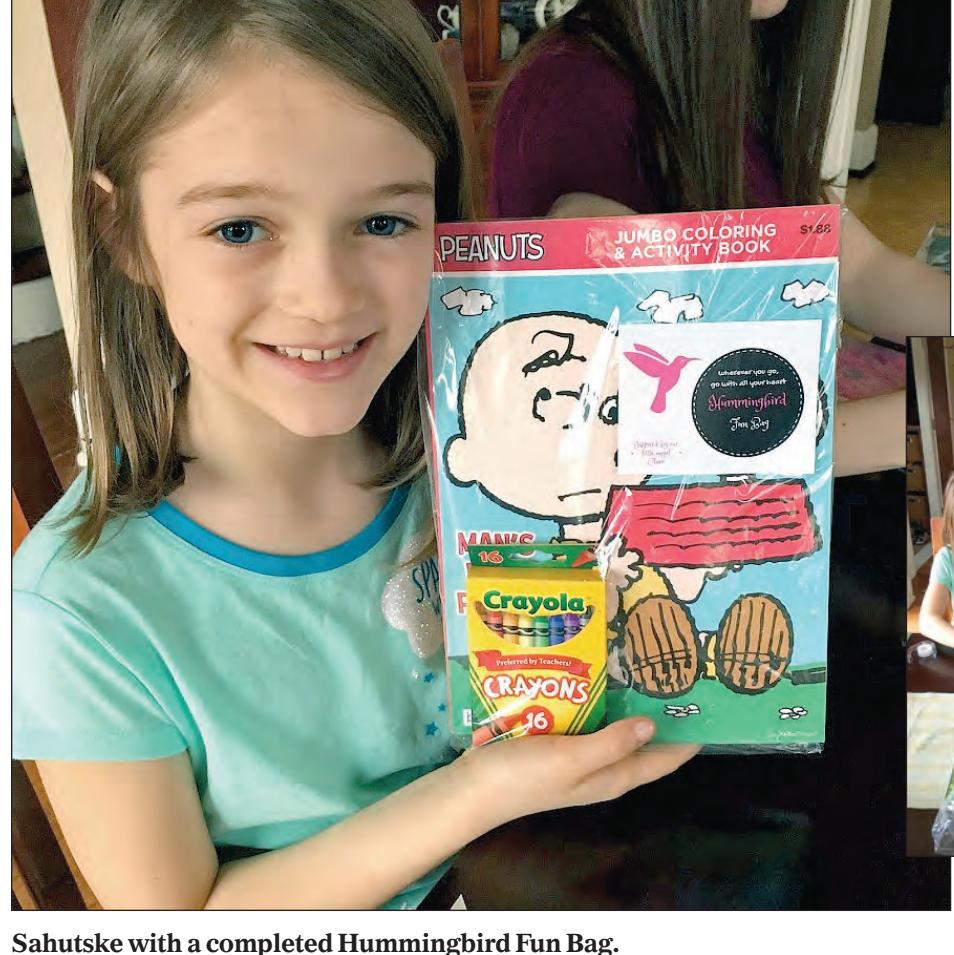

Sahutske said it just makes sense to contribute to so many different causes.

"It's fun, because I have things that I can't imagine not having, so when I think about people who don't have it, I think they should have it, so I give it to them," she said. "It feels really good. It's a hard thing to have wear off. I know it's good every time."

Your Old Mansion 2019 begins Feb. 3

Your Old Mansion, an annual fundraiser and lecture series sponsored by the Grosse Pointe Artists Association, features artists, writers, architects and gardeners using their skills to build community pride, revisit the genius of architect Minoru Yamasaki, sustain landscapes and create new housing alternatives.

Each of the four lectures takes place at 2 p.m. Sunday afternoons at The War Memorial, 32 Lakeshore, Grosse Pointe Farms, beginning Sunday, Feb. 3.

"The magic of murals" is the first lecture. It includes community activist and Kresge Foundation Artist Nicole Macdonald, a Grosse Pointe South High School graduate who is currently working with the Detroit Institute of Arts and Grosse Pointe Artists Association on mural projects.

Joining Macdonald are Leah Rutt and Tom Leeper. Rutt, the operations manager for Murals in the Market, has overseen the planning and execution of 125 outdoor murals since 2015.

Leeper has reported on more than 5,000 murals, sculptures and pieces of graffiti in his prize-winning blog, everylinearmile.com. He gathers his information by biking around the city of Detroit on weekends.

The topic Sunday, March 3, is "Looking at

For the fourth and final lecture, the Rev. Faith Fowler of Cass Community Social Services and Leslie Horn, founder and CEO of ThreeSquared Inc., join Angela Wyrembelski of Quinn Evans Architects to talk about alternative housing. Fowler started a tiny homes neighborhood in Detroit. Horn's company fabricated the largest container apartment complex in the country. Wyrembelski has designed a tiny home.

Patrons may attend one or all four lectures. Those who buy a series ticket are invited on a tour of the nearby live-work space of artists Monika Essen and Kurt Kastner after the last lecture. The Detroit News described their home on Mack as "sleek and unique." It also is included in the book, "Weird Homes."

Series tickets for all four lectures and the house tour are $80 for Grosse Pointe Artists Association members and $100 for non-members. Tickets for individual lectures are $20 each for GPAA members and $25 for non-members.

Visit grossepointheadcenter.org to register or call (313) 881-3454 for more information.

All proceeds benefit GPAA programming for promising high school artists, veterans and the community's elderly and their caregivers.

Behind the scenes

Questers take Benson Ford Research Center tour

Pettipointe Questers No. 243 recently visited the Benson Ford Research Center in Dearborn for a behind-the-scenes tour of the facility, which houses millions of historic items related to Ford Motor Co. and Detroit. Each item is carefully catalogued and stored on five miles of shelving.

The center is not all about automobiles; it contains artifacts that pertain to autos in some way. On the tour, Questers learned about the close relationship between Henry Ford, Thomas Edison and Harvey Firestone, who collectively were called "the vagabonds" and traveled together trading ideas to make a better future for the world.

Questers also saw and learned about early lights developed by Thomas Edison, as well as viewed dresses and hundreds of pairs of shoes owned by fashionista Elizabeth Park Firestone, Harvey Firestone's wife.

There were multiple photos of the Ford family, providing insight into their lifestyle as well.

Questers in attendance said they barely "scratched the surface" during the visit; that it would take days to absorb only some of the items stored at the museum. Materials at the center are available on almost any topic of daily living. It is open to the public and often used by historical researchers.

Tour guides for the Questers were Brian Wilson, senior manager of the center, and Sarah Andrus, archivist and librarian.

The Honorable Maureen Pulte Reilly, 84, died peacefully Monday, Jan. 7, 2019, at Tidewell Hospice in Venice, Fla.

The daughter of William J. and Marguerite (nee Lynch) Pulte, Maureen graduated from Dominican High School in Detroit and graduated cum laude from the University of Detroit Law School in 1958. While on the bench, she ordered Detroit Public Schools officials and striking teachers to review the district's finances and return to the bargaining table, leading to a settlement of the 1987 teachers' strike. In 1988, Maureen was elected to one of two newly established seats on the Michigan Court of Appeals, 1st District, where she continued to serve the state with distinction until her retirement in 1998.

In addition to her service in many legal and civic organizations, Maureen was a founding mother and served on the board of trustees of the Michigan Women's Foundation and served on the board of directors of Blue Cross Blue Shield of Michigan. Maureen became one of the first 10 recipients of the University of Detroit Mercy School of Law Alumni Association Time and Talent Award. She also was honored to receive the Fr. Kimberly R. Woodhouse

Kimberly R. Woodhouse, 62, passed away Tuesday, Jan. 29, 2019, surrounded by family in Grosse Pointe Farms, after a decades-long battle with cancer. Despite her illnesses, which she faced with tenacious optimism and resilience, Kim remained positive and enjoyed life. She was a faithful daughter, sister, wife and a friend to many.

Born June 8, 1956, in Grosse Pointe Farms, Kim graduated from Our Lady Star of the Sea High School. She earned a degree in fashion merchandising from Marymount College of Virginia and started her career as fashion director at Saks Fifth Avenue in Detroit.

Kim married John T. "Tim" Woodhouse IV in 1979, and they later moved to Marblehead, Mass., where Tim worked for Hood Sailmakers and Kim worked at Lord & Taylor in downtown Boston. In 1989, Tim became president and owner of Hood Sailmakers and moved the company to Newport, R.I., where they lived the next 28 years.

Their home often was filled with family and friends, many of them sailors—but not required—and a succession of their favorite Vizsla dogs: Chenyi, Chappy, Hamo and Rika. Kim worked for Saks Fifth Avenue in Boston, as director of the 5th Avenue Club. In 1999 she traded in the commute to Boston for work closer to home.

From 2000 through 2015, Kim worked with Farr International/Stagg Yachts on the annual Farr 40 World Championship, liaising with teams, sponsors and event hosts. Her attention to detail and gift for working with people made her a natural fit. Alongside this, and until this past month, Kim managed logistics for a number of professional sailing teams and super yacht owners in the U.S., Europe and the Caribbean.

With her love of sailing and time spent on or near the water, Kim was an enthusiastic supporter and volunteer at Sail Newport. She served two terms on the board of directors at this community-based sailing organization. Kim was a member of the Ida Lewis Yacht Club and New York Yacht Club.

Predeceased by her husband John "Tim" Woodhouse IV; father, Donald Anthony Rosati and stepfather, Dominic Palazzolo, Kim is survived by her mother, Carol Rosati Palazzolo; sisters, Renee Dasaro (Chris) and Sharon Peters (Michael); brother, Stephen Rosati (Dana) and many nieces and nephews who loved to visit, and be visited by, their gregarious and fun-loving "Auntie Kimmie."

Kim leaves many friends of all ages, throughout the sailing world—her style, sense of humor and steadfast friendships will be genuinely missed.

A funeral Mass will be celebrated at noon Saturday, Feb. 2, at St. Joan of Arc Catholic Church, 21620 Mack, St. Clair Shores. Visitation begins at 11:30 a.m. at the church.

A Celebration of Life will take place in Newport in June.

In lieu of flowers, donations may be made to Sail

Clara "Ricki" Wood

Clara "Ricki" Wood, 92, passed away Monday, Jan. 21, 2019.

She was born Sept. 8, 1926, in Providence, Ky., loving daughter of Alan and Velda Conley. She was the last living of eight siblings.

Ricki loved life, black coffee, good conversation and having family and friends around her. She described herself as a "deep thinker," and was energetic and full of life. She enjoyed shopping for clothes, eating out and estate sales, but mostly, she loved people. Ricki was always there to chat and discuss problems and give advice. Invariably people felt better after talking with her.

She raised her family and was in the restaurant business many years. She also was employed by General Motors, from which she retired at age 85 after 42 years of service and having made many good friends.

Ricki is survived by her daughter, Connie Rice Nappo; son, Alan Rice and niece, Tonya Conley Markland, and was predeceased by her son, Gary Rice. PASTOR'S CORNER By the Rev. Jim Rizer

Harder than the alternative

On June 17, 2015, news broke of the tragic shooting at the Emmanuel AME Church in Charleston, S.C., where nine people were killed during a prayer meeting. Two days later the story took an incredible turn as family members of the slain offered forgiveness to the shooter during his arraignment. Their stunning example causes us to wonder how such forgiveness is possible.

They were able to forgive because they had known forgiveness. In an interview with NBC, Jennifer Pickney, who lost her husband in the tragedy, said the forgiveness is what we were taught. One of the core principles Jesus lived and taught was forgiveness. One of the last words from the cross were words of radical forgiveness: "Father, forgive them, for they know not what they do."

Forgiveness flows not merely because Jesus commands it for his followers, but because it is comprehended. Jesus ties the instruction to forgive to a teaching to better understand it. In the Lord's Prayer, our forgiveness serves as a governor to our reception of God's forgiveness. In the parable of the unforgiving servant (Matthew 18:23-35) we are invited to consider the relative size of forgiveness.

They were able to forgive because they had seen living examples of forgiveness. Polly Shepherd spoke of how watching fellow survivor Felicia Saunders forgive inspired her.

"If she lost her son in the shooting and can forgive, how could I not forgive?"

Later, Shepherd talked about how forgiving actually released her from anger and hatred. Author Philip Yancey writes, "forgiveness alone can halt the cycle of blame and pain."

They were able to forgive because they chose forgiveness. The expected response to such a horrible act and the resulting pain is to burn with anger, stoke hate and seek revenge. But there is another choice. Choosing forgiveness is not easy, but Yancey reminds us, "The only thing harder than forgiveness is the alternative."

May we know forgiveness, comprehend it, be inspired by the living examples we see and choose forgiveness over hatred and anger.

Rizer is the pastor of Living Hope Church. Visit livinghopeec.org.

ASK THE EXPERTS By Gary Abud, Janice Abud and Amanda Be

Managing the behavioral side of ADHD

Q: My 8-year-old son recently was diagnosed with ADHD. Besides following up with his doctor, what else can I do to help him?

A: ADHD is a neurobehavioral condition that, while chronic, is treatable. While working with your doctor is always the first approach to treatment, there are other things that should be considered to make sure your son is managing the behavioral side of ADHD. Here are three important areas to consider:

◆ School — Children with ADHD typically struggle in school. The good news is there are strategies, supports and accommodations that can help. Start by talking to your child's teacher. There are other school support personnel, like the school social worker or special education teacher, who may be able to recommend strategies that may help with focus and behavior. Lastly, your child may be eligible for a 504 plan or an individualized education plan, which can ensure accommodations based on your child's specific needs.

◆ Home — Children with ADHD most often need help with organization and executive functioning skills. At home, you can help your child by creating a structured schedule with clear expectations. You also can set timers and use visuals to remind your child of important tasks. Other things that can be helpful are checklists, daily routines and helping your child set and celebrate goals related to healthy habits and organization.

◆ Life — Children with ADHD can have struggles socially, emotionally or with self-esteem. If your child has difficulty in these areas, it's important to seek help. Counseling and coaching can address these issues and help your child learn to deal with the challenges they may experience as a person with ADHD.

Knights in title hunt

By Bob St. John
Sports Editor

Head coach John Bandos and assistant coach Amanda Amine were all smiles after their University Liggett School girls basketball team beat visiting Academy of the Sacred Heart 48-23.

The Knights, after a slow start to the season, improved to 4-6 overall and 2-1 in the Catholic League.

Next is a showdown for first place with the team that beat the Knights a couple of weeks ago, Austin Catholic.

"The girls played well for the most part, and playing with more consistency," Bandos said. "Our defense has done a nice job creating turnovers and giving the offense more chances to score."

"The thing I love is the girls are playing loose and having fun," Amine said.

The Knights led 13-1 midway through the first quarter before Sacred Heart closed the gap with a 7-0 run.

It was 29-16 at the half and 37-21 after three quarters.

A big part to the success was the Knights' full-court pressure defense, which helped force 37 turnovers. They also rebounded well, netting 40 boards for the contest.

Offensively, sophomore Delaney Garvey led the way with a double-double, collecting 17 points, followed by sophomore Ella Karolak with a season-high nine points.

Freshman Olivia Dickey finished with seven points, followed by junior Maggie Dunn with five, senior Maria Pas-

The Grosse Pointe North girls basketball team is inching closer to winning a Macomb Area Conference Red Division championship after beating Macomb Dakota 57-40 and Utica Eisenhower 47-23 last week.

Both games were on the road and the victories put the Norsemen at 7-0 in the Red Division, three games ahead of second-place Port Huron Northern with three division contests left.

Head coach Gary Bennett watched his seniors lead the way in both games.

Against Dakota, playing without standout guard/forward Cameron Grant, the Norsemen used a combined 40 points from seniors Julia Ayrault and Evelyn Zacharias to cruise to the double-digit outcome.

"We were flat in the first half and only led 20-18 at the half," Bennett said. "We upped our defensive intensity and pulled away in the third quarter."

Ayrault had 22 points and 11 steals, and Zacharias a season-high 18 points against the Cougars.

In the win over Eisenhower, the Norsemen led from the start and built a 31-10 halftime lead.

Zacharias had 10 points, followed by sophomore Maddie Kohler with seven points. Seniors Rachel Liagre, Carielle Humphries and Ayrault each had six points.

Defensively, senior Regan Sliwinski and Ayrault had seven rebounds apiece.

"This was our most balanced scoring game of the year with nine of our 11 players scoring at least two points," Bennett said.

North can earn the division title and No. 1 seed in the upcoming MAC Red/White Division Tournament with a win Tuesday, Jan. 29, at Grosse Pointe South.

Downey, Willard make cut

The Michigan High School Athletic Association has whittled the list of potential scholar-athlete scholarship winners to 120, with those students eligible to win 32 scholarships.

Grosse Pointe South students Ryan Downey and Michael Willard made the cut.

The scholar-athlete program is in its 30th year, honoring students who participated in at least one sport in high school.

The 32 winners each receive a $1,000 scholarship.

Two more at-large scholarships will go to minority students, regardless of school size.

This year, 418 schools submitted 1,645 applications for the scholarship. Those applications were judged by a 65-member committee of coaches, counselors, faculty members, administrators and school board members.

To be eligible for the award, scholar-athletes must have a grade-point average of 3.50, must have won a varsity letter in one sport, must submit two letters of recommendation and must write a 500-word essay on sportsmanship.

Three Norsemen earn Evans

This week, 23 Michigan high school seniors — including Grosse Pointe Woods residents and Grosse Pointe North student-athletes Thomas Jarecki, Samuel Plieth and Joseph Rheaume — have been awarded the Western Golf Association's Chick Evans Scholarship, a full, four-year housing and tuition scholarship and one of the nation's largest privately funded scholarship programs. WGA directors, Evans Scholars alumni and other program supporters interviewed each of the nominees at the selection meeting.

Each caddie has a unique story to tell, reflecting the scholarship's four selection criteria: a strong caddie record; excellent academics; demonstrated financial need; and outstanding character.

The full tuition and housing college scholarship is valued at an estimated $120,000 over four years.

The Oakland Hills Country Club selection meeting was the sixth of more than 20 meetings the Evans Scholars Foundation will hold across the country through the spring. Currently, a record 985 caddies are enrolled at 18 universities across the nation as Evans Scholars, and more than 10,830 caddies, have graduated as Evans Scholars since the program was founded by famed Chicago amateur golfer Charles "Chick" Evans Jr. When the 2018-19 selection meeting process is completed by April, an estimated 280 caddies are expected to be awarded the Evans Scholarship.

The Western Golf Association, headquartered in Golf, Ill., has

Thomas Jarecki

Sam Plieth

Joseph Rheaume

supported the Chick Evans Scholarship Program through the Evans Scholars Foundation since 1930.

"The Evans Scholars selection meeting is the highlight of the year," said Scott Wilson, lead WGA director in the state of Michigan. "Each caddie interviewed tells us about their achievements as well as the obstacles they have overcome."

SHELBY TOWNSHIP

Seniors for softball

The 2019 Shelby Township Senior Men's Softball League is looking for senior men to join their annual league.

Last season, nearly 275 senior men played in the three divisions, which are Division 1, the most competitive consisting of players in their 50s and 60s; Division 2, which is the largest division consisting of players with multiple skill sets who enjoy camaraderie and competition; and Division 3, which allows the experienced player to still enjoy the game of slow pitch softball.

Most players hail from the Metro Detroit area with the majority coming from Macomb, Oakland and Wayne counties. The 9-inning games are played Monday and Wednesday mornings, beginning at 10 a.m. Occasionally, double-headers are played and those games are 7 innings.

All games are played in Shelby Township at Mae Stecker Park, 24 Mile Road east of Van Dyke or Ford Field.

The schedule consists of 20 or more games beginning in mid-May and running to mid-August. Playoffs are planned.
