WITH THE PASSAGE of President Kennedy's 394-billion-dollar depressed area bill, the Federal government will enter a new economic field. The House approved the bill, one of the President's major anti-recession programs, yesterday by a margin of 250 to 167 following similar Senate action two weeks ago. Under the new legislation, chronically distressed areas will receive federal aid even in good times.

AMERICAN DIPLOMATS hopefully predicted a new Soviet effort to return to a coexis. tence relationship with the United States that was broken off at the summit collapse in Paris last May. Object of the optimism was a Warsaw Pact communique which included standard communist demands on West Germany, touched lightly on the subject of Laos, and did not include a concen-trated attack on Washington which has been habitual in recent months.

The communique demanded that a peace treaty recognizing East Germany as well as West Germany be negotiated and that West Berlin be converted into a demilitarized city. No time limit

PRESIDENT AND MRS. Kennedy have accepted the invitation of French President Charles de Gaulle and will travel to Paris on May 31 for a three-day visit. In Paris, the announcement was greeted with enthusiasm and all press accounts stressed the fact that Mr. Kennedy had said he would be too busy in the first year of his administration to leave the country. The French welcomed the news as a mark of deference to President de Gaulle and an opportunity to settle outstanding disagreements.

FBI Agents Find Furs Stolen Here In Car in Chicago

Two Suspects Being Held in Connection with Robbery of Kay Anos Store in Woods; One

Two men were arrested in Chicago on Tuesday, March 28, by FBI agents and held for investigation of a March 18 fur robbery in the Woods.

The suspects, still being held by Chicago FBI agents are, traced by fingerprints and license plate number from a 1953 Pontiac believed to have been used by the three bandits who robbed the Kay Anos Fur Store, 19619 Mack avenue, of approximately $50,000 worth of mink furs, mostly stoles.

Car Found in Lot

Woods Director of Public Safety Vern C. Bailey said that the alleged robbery car was found in the Woods Theater parking lot by Patrolman Don Sabel, who recognized it by a description given by a woman witness to the robbery.

The Director said that Officer Sabel used excellent judgment in not touching the car, or disturbing any possible evidence that might lead to the Bailey said that recovery of the car led to the apprehension of Boulas as a suspect in the robbery, and because of Sabel's action and judgment, he will recommend a citation for the officer.

Boulas, according to Woods Det. Sgt. Walter O'Dell and Det. Laroy Tobian, was positively identified by a photo shown to Armen Anusbigian, 26, of 23065 Kelly road, East Detroit, manager of the fur

He called the diversion of the 500,000 gallons of treated water for home and business consumption, "expansion in re-verse." He explained this by stating the Farms will continue to plan expansion of its Water Filtration Plant at Moross and Lake Shore over the years to accommodate future population growth.

The Farms still has some room for future subdivision development, DeBoer said, which means more people will be living in the city, and more homes will need water service. The treated water diverted from the Country Club is that much savings to the Farms, in that it will keep down the filtration plant expansion cost.

DeBoer said that the reason the Farms could not sell raw water to the Country Club is because the Farms has no large water main for the club to tap. He said that for the past few years, the Farms had not needed to enforce water restrictions during peak summer days, but during 1959, consumption of water was greater than in 1960. and for a few days, it almost became necessary to call for restrictions.

DeBoer said that during hotdry summer spells when water consumption reached a dangerous peak, the Farms naturally turned to the Country Club of Detroit, its biggest private consumer, and appealed to the club not to sprinkle during the day,

Thus the eucational, the nostalgic and the humorous mingle in this unique play.

In spite of its light touch the underlying purpose is serious. Mrs. Helen Kopka, author, producer, and moderator of the show remarked: "This show is a graphic picture of what is done at Goodwill Industries in refurnishing discards. It takes the audience off guard. We remind them in an indirect method that handicapped people need clothes that those in the audience have and don't need."

"This approach may be more direct than we suspect. After one performance a man left his ing the auditorium."

All of the models donate their time and talents in the interest of Goodwill Industries. Many of them are professional models. Others are men and women in varied walks of life, who have taken an interest in helping the physically handicapped.

United Foundation Head To Hear Bushong Raps Cancer Fund Drive

More than 50,000 volunteers, I financed by Torch Drive funds. many of them Torch Drive workers, have been organized into a tremendous educational Schools, will be the featured force by the Michigan Cancer Foundation to put cancer-fighting literature into one million Detroit-area homes on April 10 and 11.

At the same time, William M. Day, president of the United Foundation and president of the Michigan Bell Telephone Company, warned of the threat the American Cancer Society's to start next Tuesday.

"The residents of the tricounty area have already made the highest per capita donation to cancer research, education and service of any metropolitan area through their contribution to the 1960 Torch Drive," Day declared in a statement intended for the Torch Drive's 100,000 volunteer solicitors and 1,300,-000 contributors.

"This additional fund-raising campaign by the American Cancer Society is asking residents to give again." The Michigan Cancer Foundation volunteers, headed by Mrs. Alfred R. Glancy Jr., chairman of the Women's Crusade of the Michigan Cancer Foundation, will provide homemakers with ammunition to fight cancer. There will be no fund solicitation. Detroit-area residents. through their Torch Drive, have given $741,400 for the current participating hospitals in the year's fight against cancer.

The Michigan Cancer Foundation is an agency of the United Foundation, a Detroit - area givers' organization. Prior to 1958, United Foundation allocations for fighting cancer were made to the Southeastern Michigan Division of the American Cancer Society.

The Southeastern Michigan Division was regarded by the American Cancer Society as its number one affiliate in its program of research and public education. In 1958, however, the national board of the ACS ruled that the Society would no longer accept money raised by federated fund drives such as the Torch Drive.

The Southeastern Division. backed by industry, labor, its 16,000 volunteers, and the general public, decided to continue with the United Foundation. Its ACS charter was revoked.

The same nationally coordinated program of education and research that had been conducted by the Southeastern Division of the ACS was continued under the name of the Michigan Cancer Foundation and is being

A year ago, the American Cancer Society set up a fundraising organization in Detroit. It raised $104,000 at a cost for campaign of $28,000.

Meanwhile, the Michigan Cancer Foundation received its allocation of $760,000 from the United Foundation, without any cost for fund-raising.

The Cancer Foundation uses this money to house and mainagainst united fund-raising in Itain in its Detroit Cancer Center the Detroit Institute of Canseparate fund drive scheduled | cer Aesearch, the Yates Memorial Clinic and the Michigan Cancer Registry.

The Detroit Institute of Cancer Research is seeking, along with similar centers in other cities, hospitals and universities, information on the dread killer disease. Sixty scientists, technicians and lab aides work with a colony of 25,000 mice.

The Yates Memorial Clinic operates as a model detection clinic, compiles statistics on the prevalence and incidence of cancer in the community and provides for early diagnosis of cancer in patients from this area. More than 6,000 persons are examined annually at Yates Clinic. Approximately 2 per cent of these are diagnosed as positive or suspicious cancer.

The Michigan Cancer Registry serves as a central agency for compiling patient data from Detroit area.

The Michigan Cancer Foundation maintains six information centers in the Detroit area. They are the Cancer Center at 4811 John R., Detroit; the Downriver Unit at 1669 Fort Street, Wyandotte; The Macomb County Unit at 32 Lincoln, Mt. Clemens; the North Oakland County Unit at 66 W. Lawrence, Pontiac; the Western Wayne Unit at / 1112 N. Telegraph, Dearborn; and the South Oakland County Unit at 1739 Coolidge, Berkley.

Through these centers, the Foundation provides 5,000 cancer patients with dresings, sickroom supplies, rehabilitation programs, visiting nurse service through the Visiting Nurse Association of Detroit, another Torch Drive agency, and limited transportation for cancer pa-

Volunteer cancer workers April 10 and 11 will urge knowledge of cancer as a means of protection. Educational films are distributed by the Cancer Foundation for showing before clubs and organizations, schools, busines and industrial groups. Window posters, panel exhibits, paper streamers and all sorts of display materials are available. Pamphlets pointing out the seven warning signs of cancer are being distributed by the volunteers. Speakers on the subject of cancer are available for groups wishing to learn more about the disease. Tours through the Cancer Center may be arranged by appointment.

While the Michigan Cancer Foundation is well financed by the Torch Drive, it also utilizes a vast army of volunteers working without pay. Thirteen hundred sewing groups of women working together in homes, schoolrooms, church halls and workrooms provide 1,500,000 dressings of all sizes every year. Other volunteers, driving their own cars, provide transportation to and from treatment centers for cancer victims who are unable to provide their own transportation.

Although the Michigan Cancer Foundation has a tremendous number of volunteers on its rolls, the importance of carrying its message to every home in the Detroit area made it necessary for an even larger number to reach one million homes next week. The result was an arrangement with the United Foundation whereby volunteers who solicit funds for the Torch Drive in the fall would distribute educational material for the Cancer Foundation. They will remind Detrofters:

"You have given more generously toward cancer fighting, through your Torch Drive, than have the people of any other American community."

Salute to Torch and Al

The Greens have done it again. And if the names Torch and Al don't ring bells, you might just as well stop reading right now. This is likely to be a bit personal.

The Greens had another opening Monday night . . how many this makes we couldn't even guess . . . but this one produced waves of acute nostalgia. The Greens are international in reputation, but to us they will always be two acutely dedicated citizens of the Pointe, and they have just planted another most beautiful root. They opened their "On-the-Hill" restaurant, which to us was just another manifestation of where their true love lies. To others not quite so familiar with the Greens, the new establishment may mean only that they have a delightful new place in which to dine, make merry and find complete conviviality. To us it means Torch and Al have come home.

Lucky are we who knew Torch and Al back in the days of "The Pines." Their only operation then was an ancient farmhouse in Lothrop road north of Ridge, right on the edge of the famed Pine Woods. Torch was the cook and Al was the bartender and every customer loved, not only them, but every other customer, almost. It was a wonderfully happy family deal, to be taken for granted by those who spent so many happy hours there. Those privileged, early friends of the Greens remember horseshoe contests in the side yard, and Fluffy, Torch's adored canine child.

Came the move to East Jefferson and Beaconsfield in 1937. (If we err on dates let's not quarrel. We don't want to desecrate romance with factual data.) The stalwarts of the Pines looked upon it much in the same manner as one who has seen a pertinent page from the records section of the family Bible torn out and tossed in the fireplace. While commuting into Detroit, we stopped each morning at the being-converted building, to remonstrate with Al and watch with interest while the new refrigerators, dish washers, stoves, et al, were being installed.

Al likes to tell how his East Jefferson Avenue establishment is the birthplace of the Grosse Pointe News ... and he isn't far wrong. We used to meet there daily for lunch and compare notes while making a survey of the feasibility of starting a paper here. Al had many helpful suggestions. It was he who introduced us to the Theodore Buhls, co-owners of the News. That was 20 years ago last summer. In the years since, the Green interests have spread far and wide. There has been the development of Al Green Enterprises, the contracts to furnish thousands of meals daily to air line travelers all over the country, concessions at Willow Run and many other airports new restaurants, The Palm Beach Towers, Detroit's new City-County building, Cobo Hall.

During the war years Torch and Al were engaged in a number of other activities which were given no publicity, because they wanted it that way. They took a special interest in the enlisted men who were stationed in this area . . . not the officers, but the youngsters who were far from home and doing the dirty work and detail so necessary behind the battle lines, the lonely and the bored. Pool tables, libraries, music machines, pianos, magazines, newspapers, dinners for hundreds on Thanksgiving and Christmas, personally served by the Greens, were a few of things Torch and Al supplied to the servicemen. They sent countless copies of this paper each week to those in uniform all over the world, so they could keep in closer touch with their home town.

Torch and Al have had more children than a drugstore has pills. They have been more than a little instrumental in bringing up several generations. The places they have run have always been the kind where parents have been happy to take their young, or to have their young go in their own age groups. They always knew the Greens would have them under their watchful eyes, curbing excessive exuberance and emphasizing fine points in courtesy and manners.

Monday night's gala opening offered a fine example of how such associations of the past have worked out through the years. When this paper was quite young there was a social event at Al Green's East Jefferson avenue restaurant. Miss Josephine Ford and Walter Buhl Ford were having an engagement announcement party. They wouldn't think of having it anywhere but at Al's and Torch's. The largest party at Monday night's opening was that given by the Walter B. Fords.

We feel quite certain that even if Wally Ford hadn't achieved national recognition as an industrial designer and decorator, and hadn't created the new Al Green's On-the-Hill, that he and Dodie would still have been giving the party.

Many thanks, Torch and Al, for presenting us with this magnificent new addition to the Pointe. We hope you concentrate on your local interests and hover close, so that many more can enjoy the very special privilege which has been ours through years of friendship and WANT TO CRAM as much as possible into every sixty seconds? All right . . . an immediate visit to "The Hill" will start you right. It's that compact shopping area where you can buy champagne from France . . . cheeses from Switzerland . . . and the best American made merchandise, eat, have a beauty appointment, organize travel and ENDLESS other things. Head for the Hill . . . and you're set for a wonderful shopping experience!

IF YOU SHOULD STOP at 91 Kercheval you'll be greeted by Ed Pongracz. He's handsomely tanned after spending some time in Mexico City near Acapulco. Right now he is waiting for the Spring and Summer brides to come in and sign the Bridal Registry. He might pass along some good tips on where to gor for a honeymoon!

AT NUMBER 115 Kercheval are the bathing suits that every woman dreams about. If you are a petite miss or misses size you might choose the form fitting Helanca knits fashioned by Rose Marie Reid OR the litte boy leg. The very fashionable matron, on the other hand, may prefer the pleated skirt type. Don't wait until the club pool or Lake St. Clair looks inviting enough, because it's our bet that they'll be gone by then. Yes, now is the time to find a bathing suit that fits your figure type at Athony's.

TO VISIT the infants department in Young Clothes is like visiting another place . . . or making a kind of discovery. In it you will find ALL that's ideal for baby. Beauty Operators!

We are pleased to announce the opening of the newest and one of the most Iuxurious beauty salons in Grosse Pointe and invite you to be part of our staff.

Being a noted Grosse Pointe Hair Stylist this will be of the utmost interest and importance to you.

This is the greatest revolution in beauty shop management in the last 20 years. You have probably heard of the Booth Rental System.

In many cities in the United States 80% of the shops are leased to the staff members and are run on this basis with increased earnings for all. In short, booths will rent for $30.00 per week plus $10.00 for maid and receptionist service totaling $40.00 per week. You will purchase your own supplies which amount to approximately 10% of what you gross.

In other words, if you gross $200.00 per week your total expenses for the week will amount to $60.00, leaving you a net of $140.00 per week. The more money you take in per week the more you will benefit because the $30.00 rent and the $10.00 for maid and receptionist remain the same, while your only increase in expenses are for your supplies which are very nominal.

The motiff of the salon is of the highest quality featuring the most beautiful and Iuxurious appointments. Service will be exemplified along with comfort and

The Beauty Salon is located at 19565 Mack Avenue, just north of Seven Mile Road, with very excellent parking facilities. This opportunity gives you three most

(1) Be your own boss; be in business for yourself; work your own hours

(2) Increase your earning capacity while still doing the same amount of work. Working on this system is equivalent to approximately 80% commission which is impossible to get in any beauty salon.

(3) Your ten dollars a week for maid and receptionist tax deductible.

This is your opportunity to obtain all these benefits. Do not let it get away from you. You owe it to yourself to thoroughly investigate this prortunity. There are a limited number of booths available.

Church Board Hears Building Drive Talk

Harold R. Watkins, general representative of the Board of Church Extension, Disciples of Christ, Indianapolis, spoke to the members of the official board of Eethany Christan Church, Cadieux Road at Linville Saturday night, April 1 at a dinner meeting.

He came to help complete a major effort to advance the start of construction of the new proposed sanctuary. The church is engaged in a campaign to obtain a sale of investment certificates to members and friends of the congregation with a goal of $55,000. Reaching this goal will enable the church to expand its loan maximum so the new $175,000 structure can be started this September. The new building in addition to providing a new sanctuary to seat 350 will include six new class rooms. Ray Cundiff is chairman of the investment program and Dr. Virgil Goodman is treasurer. The campaign will be concluded by May 15. Harry Finley is president of the congregation and Rev. Kenneth Brady, pastor.

Theresa Trombley Connor survived the battle of River Raisin, during which many white settlers were massacred by the Indians in 1812, and paddled her two children in a canoe down the Clinton River to Lake St. Clair past the shores of Grosse Pointe to Connor's

There she stayed while her husband was away fighting the Indians. Indian bands frequently visited her cabin, terrorizing this pioneer woman by pointing to the scalps at their belts and telling her that one was her husbands'.

The Connors came to the Grosse Pointe area in 1782 with Morovians who eventually settled at Mt. Clemens. The land these religious pioneers occupied belonged to the Chippewa Indians and they were forced to return it and then moved to Canada and Ohio, but Richard Connor stayed behind. His son Henry, known as White Hair to the Indians, was a famous interpreter, and secured land on the creek bordering Grosse Pointe.

He married a Trombley, who was born on the family lands in the Pointe, and the lands he secured were given to him by his father-in-law in exchange for a home as long as the elder Trombleys lived.

Henry Connor as an Indian agent sold cattle and ponies to the red man, who far outnumbered the white settlers in those days before 1812. Another of his duties was to pay the Indians their annunity from the U.S. government. He would send his young son, Richard, around the territory for as long as six weeks to round up the Indians. When young Richard, who lived to be 91, was just a young boy he watched his father sail away with Governor Lewis Cass to make peace treaties with the red men at Mackinaw.

Richard attended public school in Grosse Pointe, which was then part of Hammtramck. He became a farmer on the vast lands along the creek left to him by his father. His first wife was Theresa St. Aubin, from another French pioneer family. One of their daughters young people.

After the death of his first wife Richard Connor married Catherine Rivard by whom he had eight children. One daughter married Gilbert Moran, another became the bride of a Beaubien, relating the Connors to all the prominent French settlers of the day. Connors, although they had come to the area originally with the Protestant Moravians, were always members of the Catholic church.

Richard Connor was a member of the old parish of St. Anne's Church, whose priest was Father Gabriel Richard. He drew the first stone for the building of that church when it was moved to its new site. He was a prominent member of the Democratic party and a justice of the peace for Grosse Pointe.

The Connor name was associated with all the early pioneer activity in the Pointe and the name is commemorated today by the street which lies outside the present Pointe boundaries.

She began her training for her job in the state's copper country, attending secondary school in Houghton, Mich. Then she went to the University of Michigan where she earned a Phi Beta Kappa key and a master's degree. She taught in the Ann Arbor schools before coming here with her husband, a certified public accountant with a utility company. The couple's only son, Jim, is a GPHS, Dartmouth and U. of M. alumnus, who now lives in the neighborhood and brings two grandchildren to visit his parents frequently.

Her Concern Is For 1100

When Mrs. Flom arrived at the High School there were 650 students, today there are 2250. Her responsibility is for the 1100 girls in grades 10 through 12. She cannot know them and excessive absences, poor adjustances.

"It is a great privilege to work in such a fine community with fine students and parents. In 30 years there has been little change in the mass of students. There is a small fringe whose excessive behavior is disturbing but the majority are most sincere, conscientious, appreciate

Hectic Social Pace

Some of the problems which she meets with such competance, kindness and optimism daily are the result of the accelerated social activity which did not distinguish the high school's first generation. The school administration is constantly trying to raise the intellectual climate and the hectic social pace is an obstacle. Then there is the challenge of persuading the students to work their full capacity. Certain students stay out of school for flimsy reasons—shopping trips, unnecessary doctors' appoint ments. They fail to realize that school is their main responsi-bility. This spring about 8 per cent of the student body left early for vacation trips.

FRED T. GILLEY TELLS us that the Harry E. Thomasons, who live in District Heights, Maryland, heated their house comfortably last winter—for $4.65!—by trapping and storing heat from the sun. The solar-heating system also gives a full-blooming flower garden in early spring and year-round swimming in a 2,000-gallon outdoor pool and air-conditions in summer by trapping and storing "coolness" at night.

Correspondent Helen S. Phillips reports the following curious sight: 200 pheasants belonging to retired optician V. C. Norwood, of Arvada, Colorado, all wearing red spectacles. It seems that pheasants are prone to peck each other to death unless something is done to prevent it, and Dr. Norwood explains that the red blinders spoil a bird's aim. The glasses come with small plastic hooks that slip into the bird's nostrils. "I have less trouble fitting my pheasants than I did my human patients," says Dr. Norwood. "No complaints, either."

The latest slogan of a Hopkins, Minnesota, realty firm is "Sell by Noon or Else!"—Carl H. Noon, that is, new sales manager of the Vincent Else Realty company.

The fathers' group of an organization called Parents Without Partners meets once a month, in Freeport, New York, to discuss in an informal atmosphere the problems that widowed and divorced fathers have with their children.

Imagine the chagrin of Police Officer Fred Kellogg out in Ferndale, Michigan, who stood by as an irate motorist tore up a one-dollar ticket for overparking, right in front of the patrolman, and scattered the pieces all over the sidewalk. Mr. Kellogg didn't panic, however. He simply gave the offender a $5 ticket for littering.

Honor students of the Reading, Massachusetts, high school who get at least three A's, one B, and no grade below B don't have to go to class, says Principal Ara A. Karakashian. The plan is a reward for excellence and requires that the lucky dozen who thus far have qualified must report to school, attend homeroom period, keep current on all assignments, and go to regularly scheduled quizzes and exams—but they don't have to go to class if they decide that independent study would be of greater benefit to them.

The Mercer Island, Washington, fire department needed some practice, so members set fire to a house and went through all the motions while the house burned to the ground. Nobody was arrested for arson, though, because the boys were only doing a favor for

Now, Mrs. David Zauder's sixth-grade class at the Fairfax School in Cleveland Heights, Ohio, wanted an aquarium, but they didn't just sit around hoping someone would give them one-they went to work and earned the money for a five-gallon tank, fully stocked with tropical fish. Their novel fund-raising project consisted of setting up a car-washing business after school in Susan Files' driveway. Bringing rags and soap from home, 23 children washed 13 cars and, with tips, raised $12.36. When they added $7.18 previously collected from tax-stamp collections and penny fines for messy desks and talking out of turn, they had more than enough for the tank and fish. They've even started a bank account in the name of "Moneymakers of Room 208" and plan to save money from other projects to buy a reflector for their aquarium. What's next, Moneymakers?

AMERICAN DAIRY ASSOCIATION

I'd Rather Write Than Be President

BY MAX SHULMAN

From the age of four it was write or bust, says the author of "Barefoot Boy With

The Many Loves of Dobie Gillis" (1,500,000 copies), "Rally Round The Flag, Boys"

DRAWINGS BY MIKE RAGUS

At the Beginning all I knew was that I wanted to write... Correction: had to write. Nothing else would serve; nothing else beckoned. It was write or bust.

So I wrote. From the age of four I scrawled verses and stories which have mercifully not been preserved. And I told stories. I wandered the neighborhood, a kind of Homer in knickers, telling tales to whoever would listen for as long as they would listen.

I was born in St. Paul, Minn., on March 14, 1919, the son of poor but honest parents. My father was a house painter when he worked, which was scarcely at all between 1929 and 1939. My mother was a lady with an agile tongue and a conviction that the Depression was entirely my father's fault. Home life was not tranquil. When I was twelve I got a newspaper route. When I was fifteen I took up snooker and found a job driving a grocery truck.

All the time I kept writing. I did stories and a column for the school paper and magazine, but mostly I wrote poems for the edification of my friends. Commemorative poems, you might call them. For example, my friends and I would spend a jolly evening ogling girls or shooting craps, and I would appear next day with a poem of thirty verses celebrating the event. Often these were set to traditional airs, suitable for four-part harmony.

I know now why I wrote these poems. They gave me status in the gang. I had no money, no clothes, no car, no height, looks, athletic ability, fighting ability. All I had to separate me from the hangers-on was the ability to compose purple verses, and with these I bought prestige.

I know now, too, why I turned early to humor as my branch of writing. The reason is simply that life was bitter and I was not. All around me was poverty and sordidness but I refused to see it that way. By turning it into jokes, I made it bearable.

Today I write humor for quite another reason. Life today is sweet, not bitter, and comic distortion is no longer necessary to protect my bleeding ego. However, I have learned that comic distortion is a difficult and highly paid craft. Having gained this firm foothold in the durable joke business, I would be a fool to leave it now and start as an apprentice in some other department of writing.

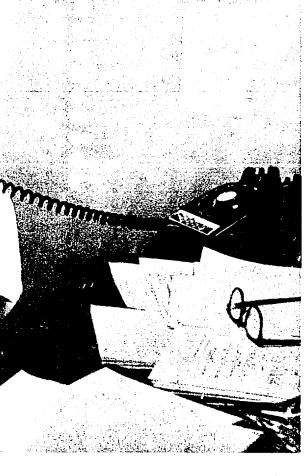

Let me hasten to add that I do not consider that I have mastered the humor business. I don't think I'll live that long. I am learning constantly—not just ancillary bits and pieces to add to my main body of knowledge, but big important concepts that sometimes sweep out and replace what I had previously regarded as basic principles. For instance, I had always thought that the joke was the building block of humor, but today I know that the joke is the enemy of humor. Jokes piled end on end—and I have done it; oh brother, have I done it!—do not make a work of humor. Humor is not jokes; it is reality, it is familiarity, it is identifiability seen through a comic lens. To construct a humorous work, you do not compound incongruities; you tell a story—a serious story about real people—and you infuse it with the comic spirit.

To GET BACK to biographical matters, I entered the University of Minnesota when I was 17. I was still shooting pool and chasing ridiculous girls and writing lyrics, and so I flunked out in my freshman year. I spent the next year working in a grocery store. The hours were so long that many nights I was too tired to go out on the town with my buddies. So I started reading books.

That did it. Books rekindled my literary drive. The next year I returned to the University and this time it took. I got my B.A. in 1942.

College was for me a time of such happiness that today I'm still writing about it. In college I met the girl who is now my wife, I made friends who are still my friends. And I wrote. I did a humor column on-the student daily. I worked four years on the campus humor magazine and ended up as editor.

Cheek" (1,000,000 copies)

In May, 1942, just before my graduation, Ken McCormick, editor-in-chief of Doubleday, came through Minneapolis on a cross-country talent hunt. Somebody showed him my college columns and he asked me whether I would write a book. I would have been less surprised if he had asked me to fly to Mars. However, I was young and dumb and too green to panic, so I sat down and wrote Barefoot Boy With Cheek. Doubleday published the book in 1943 with trepidation—you might say, stealthily—but somehow the college kids turned it into a runaway, making me like the rookie who goes to bat for the first time in the big leagues and knocks it out of the park.

Luckily, I didn't have time to ponder my success. In October, 1942, just after finishing Barefoot Boy, I was inducted into the Air Force as a flying cadet, but washed out immediately for insufficient coordination, faulty eyesight, and morbid fear of propellers.

I was put in public relations and wrote "How T. Fly" manuals in Texas and Oklahoma, but at night, on Sundays, on furloughs, I wrote for myself. I turned out two novels—The Feather Merchants and The Zebra Derby—and a couple of dozen short stories.

After the war, at George Abbott's request, 1 tried my first play—a musical version of Barefoot Boy With Cheek, which opened and closed in the spring of 1947. I licked my wounds and paid my bills with a raft of short stories and a novel called Sleep Till Noon, published in 1950. In 1951 I had a collection of short stories called The Many Loves Of Dobie Gillis.

In 1951-'53 I made a series of daring daylight robberies in Hollywood. I sold them six original stories, some of which reached the screen. The stories were not too bad, but Hollywood in this period was in a state of shock because of the inroads made by television, and the moguls were simply too shaky to make good movies.

In 1954 I wrote a play with Robert Paul Smith, The Tender Trap. It had a good run on Broadway and was made into a fine movie with Frank Sinatra.

In 1955 I compiled an anthology called Max Shulman's Guided Tour of Campus Humor. Then, in 1956, after many alarums and false starts, I finally buckled down to write the book that had been gnawing at the base of my skull for years. It was Rally Round The Flag, Boys, and I still like it. Whatever its faults—and it has plenty—it is the only book I ever wrote that came out exactly as I planned it.

In October, 1959, I made my maiden voyage into television with my old friend Dobie Gillis. I am pleased to report that the show is still around every Tuesday on CBS.

MY HOME is in Westport, Connecticut. My wife's name is Carol and we have been married for 18 years. We have four children: Dan, 17; Bud, 16; Peter, 13; and Martha, 11.

I have no hobbies, except croquet, which I play very seriously. I belong to no clubs except the unions of my trade. I am a Democrat, weigh 136 pounds and stand 5'6".

My future plans are to spend one more year in television, write one more play and one more novel and then hang up the gloves. I'm tired...

Just the same, I know of no happier way to earn a living—provided, of course, that a measure of success attends your efforts. When I began writing I made every mistake in the book. I have a vast store to draw from for the teaching I do now through the Famous Writers School and it is my earnest hope that I have come up with a tip or two which will keep anyone else from making the same mistakes. This is my advice:

• The oldest cliché in the writing business is "Write about what you know about." Like all clichés this is true.

Your own life is your largest source of material. This is not to say that you must live everything you write; as you learn your craft, as you acquire technique, you will be able to handle all kinds of plots and situations of which you have no personal knowledge.

But in the beginning write about yourself, your family, your friends, your home, your neighborhood. Shape the material—give it form and direction. Arrange it as your story requires—but basically write about yourself.

• A plot is simply this: a problem and a solution. Be sure your people are in a real problem. Be sure the solution is plausible.

What you're after in popular fiction is not truth but plausibility. Motivate carefully. Make each event in your story an inevitable outgrowth of preceding events.

- If finding names to suit your characters is difficult, the telephone book is a big help.
- I am never without a notebook in my pocket—nor should you be. You never know when a bright notion for a story will strike you. The mind, being a capricious organ, often lets you forget some truly valuable ideas. If you have a notebook and make your notes instantly, you don't have to rely on your memory.
- Don't show your manuscript to anyone at frequent intervals during its composition. You cannot expect a baby to be born if you pull it out every few hours and pass it around. There may come a point in the composition of a story when you are stuck and need help—but try your best to lick your problem by yourself. As a general rule it's wise not to show a story until it is completed.
- In my early years I was hell-bent on becoming a humorist and so I read the humorists—read them

Max Shulman weighs 136 pounds, stands 5'6", and is a very busy man. Currently he is working on a play and a novel and a humor column and a TV show. He also serves, with eleven other famous writers, on the faculty of the Famous Writers School in Westport, Connecticut, where he teaches his "difficult and highly paid craft" by correspondence to students all over the country.

and studied them. I knew every word of Lardner, Benchley, Perelman, Thurber, Ade, Twain and all the rest.

This is an approach to reading which I could recommend to the student writer. Find the people who write as you would like to and study them. Today my style, such as it is, is formed and I no longer have to read for instruction—I can read for pleasure.

The authors I enjoy most now are Dostoevski and Shakespeare. These are two more writers I would recommend to a beginning writer because they illuminate every corner of the human soul.

• If you are using a character from real life, change him enough so that he can't be identified.

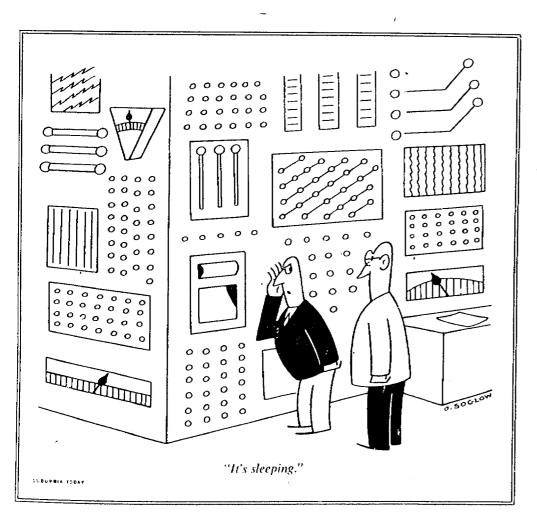

In fact, the very changing of factual characters is an integral part of the writer's art and should give you pride and satisfaction.

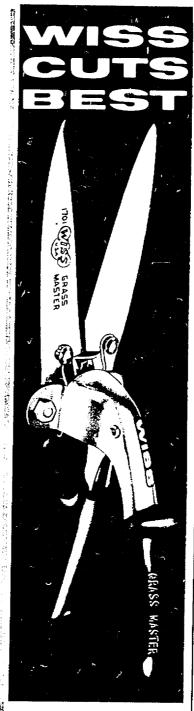

• There is always an unseen attendant looking over my shoulder when I am at the typewriter. He represents the reader I am trying to reach. When I have to make a decision between my taste and his, I always yield to his.

- The background of your story can be of enormous added value. If you can paint an exotic picture, if you can evoke a nostalgic mood, you cannot help but captivate a reader. Beware, however, of piling up detail for the sake of detail. Never let description get in the way of your story.
- The writing of humor in television is not stringing a lot of jokes together; it is telling a story which is plausible, believable, well-motivated, well-plotted and funny. The rules of composition, the rules of fiction, the rules of dramatic writing all continue to apply when you're writing humor. Besides, you have got an additional problem of making your story funny.

Going abroad? Here are a dozen tips for leaving the home fires properly banked and making the most of a wonderful trip

BY LUIS AND JO VILLALON

"HERE'S NO TRICK to sailing," as the saying goes. 1 "You just have to know what to do and do it before it's necessary."

It's the same way with going to Europe. There are some things you have to be forehanded about, some questions you'll want answered now, before you pull down a suitcase or take your first shot. For instance:

Your Homework: On the façade of the Union Station in our nation's capital are graven the words of an old Spanish proverb, "He who would bring home the wealth of the Indies must carry the wealth of the Indies with him" or, to put it in plain English, "You get out of a travel (or other) experience what you bring to it."

So it behooves you to learn or review as much as you can beforehand of the places you plan to visit-something doubly important if you are taking youngsters along. Encourage them to do reports for history or geography on the countries you'll touch, and guide the family conversations to such subjects. Their imagination and interest captured in advance will do much to offset the strangeness and weariness bound to be encountered on the trip. (If you are taking children, make more exact inservations, slow down your traveling pace be prepared to be flexible.)

Consult your librarian—and, by all means, try to get hold of those gems (published both in the language of the country and in English) called the Michelin Guides. What they don't tell you about Chambord or the Sistine Chapel isn't worth knowing, Taking A Chance On Making Reservations When You Get There? You'll be safer, without reservations, if you are driving. You can get out of the center of cities, and even to adjoining towns if necessary. And there is really always an inn. But, in season, prepare to stop early and to waste a considerable amount of valuable time finding the "right" place. And in some cities like Rome and Paris, you often wonder whether there is any out-of-season!

Your best friends are your guidebooks, the countries' own hotel listings-if, like Switzerland, they have oneand the local tourist-information center, where they just may speak English.

Travel Agent-Help Or Hindrance? To be honest, it all depends on which travel agent. There are the real pros--and there are the dabblers. The able travel agent is in constant contact with "the market" and knows lots of things you don't about availability, conditions, fares, and routes. And he doesn't cost you a nickel; he gets his fee from the airlines, ships, and hotels he sends you to.

There are a number of things he doesn't know. Unless he has been there, he can tell you less about the hotels, trains, restaurants, and so forth in a given country than can an up-to-date travel book. And, most important, he doesn't know what you want unless you tell him. Tell him what kind of hotels you like. Be frank about how much you want to pay. It's your trip—not his. Go to him prepared with a firm list of what you really want to see, and don't be diverted. He's an agent—not your alter ego.

There are only two ways to check on his competence. If information he offers doesn't generally agree with what you find in a good travel guide or in the country's own literature, check up and find out who's right. If he's not, be careful of the rest of his advice. And if he is molasses-slow getting answers to your questions, beware doubly.

Sunday Driving Every Day. If you've fought your way in or out of a big city on a holiday weekend, and occasionally beaten out a taxi driver, you can drive in Europe. Not that you'll encounter anything like the volume of traffic, but you'll need confidence, steel nerves, and knowhow to get you there.

As far as the road signs go, you won't believe it until you see for yourself how easy it is to follow the highways and the rules of the road with the help of the graphic little picture markers that are used identically in every country.

Except for rare instances, everything you have ever heard or read about European horn-tooting is horribly true. Somehow your nervous system will finally adjust to the noise, as will your reflexes to the habit of flashing your own lights and blowing your own horn when you're going to pass, and using only your lowest lights in cities—a custom they feel very strongly about, no matter how poorly lighted the city is. Italy is in a class all by itself, and a good thing to do at the border is to offer up a prayer to the patron saint of travelers.

Gas stations are almost as plentiful in most countries as at home, and you'll see many a familiar name (though your U.S. credit card won't be good). Best driver's tools are a good European map (you'd better get one at home and

Is Photography Fine Art?

BY IVAN DMITRI

"Fish Nets" Ken Heyman

Look at the photographs on these pages and judge for yourself

FF YOU ARE A STUDENT of art and you wish to see examples of the finest work produced in the past, where do you go? To the museums, of course. So, too, with prints, etchings, and drawings. Now, if a student of photography wishes to see fine photographs, where can he go? In most cities the answer is nowhere, really. Most museums haven't even got a photography department.

We are aiming to correct this through The Project, as we call "Photography In The Fine Arts." We want to rouse the museum curators to the fact that the best work being done in photography deserves to be hung alongside Renoir and Picasso and Rembrandt and other masters. Incidentally, many photographers need rousing, too.

This project has been a dream of mine for over 20 years. Three years ago I decided to add my efforts to the good work that has already been done, so I left my job as a working photographer.

My first step, and the big one, was to gather together a committee of art experts from all over the country who agreed to judge photographs submitted by a variety of sources such as photo agencies, national magazines, and camera clubsand PFA was launched.

There have been two different touring exhibits since we began. Each year a panel of judges selects what it considers aesthetic photography, works that will stand the test of time . . . that are indeed works of art.

And what makes a photograph a work of art? What qualities do all of these pictures have in common that make them worthy of being hung in museums all over the world? They were judged, first, as any other work of art would be. Form, composition, perspective, technique, movement, and emotion were some of the factors considered. But, as we know, a work of art is more than this.

s one juror put it, each one of these, when As one Jukok put it, cach can be you come upon it suddenly, has such vitality that it "makes the pulse jump slightly." Each is more than just a careful record of reality—is rather an expression of a great moment, a great idea, caught forever on film. They are not all beautiful moments, although in art all that excites is beautiful. Some are tragic, some historical, some even ugly, but never aesthetically ugly.

Our juries receive no instructions other than to seek out the great photographs, those inspiring this sudden shock of recognition, those that they feel will outlive their subject matter, even the memory of their subject matter.

We've had plenty of opposition, often by potent influences in the field of photography. Edward Steichen, a great photographer and director of the Department of Photography at New York's Museum of Modern Art, has called our project "the most damaging thing that has ever happened to the art of photography." He has accused us of being "slipshod" in our methods of collecting photographs for our jury. We've also been attacked by some of the trade publications in the field, one of which published a story after our first exhibit opened, entitled, "The Day Photography Got Kicked In The Head."

Our second exhibit is now on tour in 28 museums around the United States and in several foreign countries. We expect the storm of controversy to increase as the exhibit tours, but this can be good. We welcome all constructive criticism; we learn from it. The more people who come, who see, who talk and argue, the better.

We believe that photography as a fine art must eventually be accepted by almost every museum and gallery in the world. Perhaps it will happen within the next six or seven years. And when it does, we will happily go out of business.

- 2. For Torte—grease bottoms only of six 8in. round layer-cake pans; line bottoms with waxed paper cut to fit; grease paper. Set aside.
- 3. Beat egg yolks and 1/4 cup sugar together until very thick and lemon colored; set aside.
- 4. Using clean bowl and beaters, beat egg whites until frothy. Gradually add 1/4 cup sugar, beating well after each addition. Beat until rounded peaks are formed and egg whites do not slide when bowl is partially inverted.
- 5. Gently spread egg-yolk mixture over beaten egg whites. Sift one-fourth of the flour at a time over surface and gently fold until just . blended after each addition. Do not overmix! Spoon equal amounts of batter into cake pans and spread evenly.
- 6. Stagger pans in oven and bake at 350°F about 15 min., or until lightly browned. Remove torte layers to cooling racks.
- 7. Carefully and quickly invert layers onto the racks. Beginning at center, tear paper and gently pull it off. Place layers, right side up, on cooling racks and cool completely.
- 8. To assemble torte, beat the chilled frosting until fluffy. Spread 1/8 in. thick on four of the torte layers; stack layers. Add fifth layer, but do not frost top. Spread frosting thinly on sides of torte. Put the five layers and remaining frosting in refrigerator.
- 9. Meanwhile, place the sixth layer on a shallow baking sheet. Mark into 16 to 18 wedgeshaped pieces with back of knife blade; do not cut wedges apart. Grease a small area of the baking sheet around the torte layer (so topping will not stick to baking sheet if it runs off).
- 10. For Topping-stirring constantly, melt confectioners' sugar in a small, heavy skillet over low heat until sugar is smooth and golden brown. Remove from heat and quickly pour onto top layer of torte. Spread topping evenly over layer with a spatula, working rapidly before sugar hardens. With back of knife blade. make indentations over those marked in torte layer. Then cut wedges apart.

11. Remove the stacked layers and frosting from refrigerator. Beat frosting until fluffy. Spread frosting 1/8 in. thick on top of fifth layer and arrange wedges on top of it. Frost sides of sixth layer. Using a pastry bag and a decorating tube, pipe a border of frosting around top edge of torte. Chill in refrigerator until frosting is firm. 16 to 18 servings

HUNGARIAN CHOCOLATE FROSTING

TO PREPARE AND COOK: 30 MIN.

- 4 sq. (4 oz.) unsweetened chocolate. melted
- 8 hazelnuts (filberts)
- l cup firm unsalted butter teaspoon vanilla extract
- l cup sugar
- 1/4 cup water
- 6 egg yolks
- 1. Set chocolate aside to cool. Heat nuts in a 400°F oven 3 to 5 min., or until skins are loosened and nuts are lightly toasted. Remove from oven, cool slightly, and remove skins. Chop nuts finely and set aside.
- 2. Cream butter and extract together until butter is light and fluffy. Set aside.
- 3. Mix sugar and water together in a small saucepan, cover, and bring sirup to boiling over low heat. Uncover pan, set candy thermometer in place, and continue cooking sirup to 230° F (sirup spins a 2-in. thread when allowed to drop from tip of a spoon).
- 4. Meanwhile, beat egg yolks until thick and lemon colored. Beating constantly, pour the hot sirup very gradually in a thin stream into egg yolks. (Do not scrape pan.) Beat egg-yolk mixture until very thick and of same consistency as the creamed butter. Cool completely. Beat egg-yolk mixture, about 2 tablespoonfuls at a time, into butter until just blended. Adding gradually, beat in chocolate and hazelnuts. Set in refrigerator to chill until ready to use. 3 cups frosting

ARE YOU STILL IN THE OVEN, MR. TALBOT?

BY HERBERT BREAN

Interested amateurs by the thousands are thronging to cooking schools for an education in good eating

Joseph Hyde makes a fine point.

R ECENTLY a young man named Joseph Hyde got a letter at his home in Palisades, New York, enclosing a small, poorly made French crêpe, or pancake. With it was a note asking whether, in his valued opinion—he is a teacher of high-level cooking-this crêpe had been correctly made. Hyde replied in the most direct way possible: he made a proper crêpe and mailed it back.

James R. Beard, another cooking teacher, periodically gets longdistance calls from a Houston matron who talks to him for an hour or more about what food and wine to serve at her next party. Beard suggests a menu and discusses preparations, and the matron gladly pays the charges, including Beard's fee for a private lesson: $25.

In Los Angeles a group of epicures take turns cooking elaborate dinners based on historical menus. One couple spent 11 months doing research on how the ancient Romans prepared certain foods, then reproduced a Lucullan feast.

All this points to the fact that the U.S. is in the grip of a new craze: to know good food, learn to prepare it, and eat it-often. "Gourmet" restaurants are springing up everywhere. Herb-and-spice sales are multiplying dizzily: one California concern has increased its gross from some half-million dollars to $10 million annually in the past decade. The sale of such exotica as whisks, copper dishes, and pastry sacks is mounting like the 1929 bull market. All kinds of culinary clubs-eating, learning, or knowledge sharing-stud the country from Boston's Beacon Hill Wednesday Night Buffet (six elegant dinners a year) to San Francisco's YWCA classes in Japaneseand-Chinese cooking, and Dallas's "Happy Pots" Club. Enthusiam is such that one student-a Philadelphia dentist-commuted to New York twice a week for months to take lessons from Helen Worth, who has taught 15,000 students. When Joseph Hyde gave a cooking class as part of the humanities program at UCLA last year, the turnout was unprecedented-342 men and women.

100KING CLASSES divide into J two kinds, demonstrations and group participations. Participation classes are usually smallsix to ten students at a sitting. They are conducted in light, handsome, superbly equipped kitchens. Two of the best known are James Practice—teacher stands behind stove so class can see what's cooking.

Beard's, where 8 lessons cost $125 plus food costs, and that of Dione Lucas, where six lessons cost $100, including food. Students range from fashion models, middle-aged housewives, and big-name actresses to lawyers, advertising men with food accounts, and private cooks, often sent by their employers. Men usually are in the minority, but not necessarily a conspicuous one. Thanks to the charcoal broiler, thousands of American males already know something of the pleasures of being a chef.

The enormously accelerating interest in food is best illustrated by the career of Joseph Hyde, a 32-year-old scion of a well-to-do family and a master of the demonstration technique in cooking schools. He has devoted himself to cooking with the same ardor that leads other scions into Wall Street, law, or banking. Not long after college, he was drafted for the Korean War and asked if he would serve in an army kitchen. He boldly replied he would-if he could be assured a supply of wine to cook with. A warrant officer, badly in need of a cook, agreed to wangle it for him.

What followed constitutes a new episode in Army cuisine which might be entitled, "Tom Swift and his Electric Hot Plate." Hyde's company was assigned to a front-line group in Korea, where the chow was sent up to combat troops in huge thermos jugs that steamed everything—steak, potatoes, spaghetti, hamburger. Cook Hyde decided good stew was better than rubbery steak and so transformed the steak into a subtly flavored ragout. Hamburger became a delicate meat sauce combined with macaroni and cheese in layers. To boiled potatoes, he added parsley, butter, and lemon juice to make parsley potatoes. The amazed front lines never had it so good.

FTER THE WAR, Hyde got a post A as apprentice at $57 a month in the noted Nandron restaurant in Lyon, the culinary capital of France. He was soon introduced not only to a French kitchen but to traditional kitchen hazing. Given a bushel basket of larks to pluck, he was told to work crouched under the sink where he became a target for sloshing dishwater. He plucked the larks without complaining, but the hazing à la francaise continued; some days later, in an effort to get the new apprentice drunk, the chefs put on a wine-drinking contest, drawing on a reserve smuggled from the restaurant's wine cellar. Hyde came through with flying colors; the other chefs got plastered.

His age was a major embarrassment. The average chef's apprentice in France is 13, and under municipal law Hyde had to attend the apprentice's school, where, as some distinguished chef lectured, the 13-year-olds occasionally took to throwing spitballs. For punishment they had to line up facing the wall for long minutes—Hyde, with the rest.

In time he moved from Nandron to nearby Vienne, where he became assistant fish cook at La Pyramide, a world-famous restaurant.

When his apprenticeship was completed, he returned to the U.S. and began teaching. Using the continental demonstration method in his classes, which are growing steadily, he does all cooking in full view of his students, explaining as he goes and climaxing the performance by giving them all a taste of each dish.

In cooking classes, most teachers try for an atmosphere of informality. But sometimes things get hectic.

"You have to keep five clocks going in your mind all the time," says Juliette Elkon, watching over half a dozen beginners at once. Under such circumstances, a culinary shorthand emerges. "Are you still in the oven, Mr. Talbot?" she may ask. "I'm afraid you're burning, Mrs. James." Or, "You're rising well, Mrs. Cameron."

Interested amateurs are thronging to cooking school to learn not merely elaborate dishes but also basic-cooking techniques. Thousands are picking up such practical pointers as:

—To test the heat of an omelet pan, apply a wet finger to the side of the pan. It is hot enough if you get a vibrant sizzle. But if the butter you drop in turns brown, it is too hot. Discard the butter and wave the pan to cool it.

—Stock is still the base of many delicious soups, stews, and fish dishes, even if modern stoves have eliminated the old-fashioned stock pot which simmers for days. Collect bones, meat leftovers, and vegetable tops. When enough have accumulated, simmer them and freeze the resultant stock. Fish stock can be made in 30 minutes because the bones are gelatinous and disintegrate quickly, but chicken bones take two hours and veal, six to 12.

—The experienced chef measures cooking wine by glugs—one glug to the ounce. Wines should cook long, especially the reds, to bring out their full flavor. But sherry should be added at the last minute.

—To get the most flavor out of a sauce, reduce it by long simmering. But undercook (by U.S. standards) vegetables as the Orientals do for maximum flavor, nutrition, and appearance.

The new enthusiam for cookery is a result of several factors. First, only 6% of U.S. families today can afford a cook. Also, there is a shortage of good cooks, both private and restaurant, due to tightened immigration laws that bar foreigners, and the social stigma that discourages natives.

MEANWHILE, travel and expense-account living are exposing millions to good food and its happy effect on the spirits, and many are also finding that cooking is absorbing and relaxing when they know how to do it well. As a result, instruction in classic-cooking techniques and the preparation of classic dishes are beginning to take a real hold in the U.S. As Dione Lucas says: "Food in this country is on its way to becoming as important as it is in France."

Proof of the pudding—the cooking class tries the dish after seeing and studying the way it is done.

Table Scraps Can Short-Change Your Dog

Do right by the dog you love...balance each meal with GRO-PUP Ribbon

When you feed your dog table scraps, you can never be sure he's getting all the nutrients he needs. And yet, to stay fit and strong, he should have a well-balanced diet every day.

That's why thoughtful families are adding Gro-Pup Ribbon to every scrap meal they feed. Gro-Pup is an unusual kind of dog food. It contains an extra bonus of vital protein, important vitamins and minerals—far in excess of the minimum levels set by the National Research Council.

Even when fed with large amounts of "unbalanced" leftovers, the high nutrient level of Gro-Pup can safeguard against improper diet. When you feed Gro-Pup every day, you can enjoy the confidence that your dog is getting an abundance of the essentials he needs for a long and healthy life. Why don't you start tomorrow?

Arbors For All

Carefree "summer houses" made of vines and lattice, they add a new dimension to outdoor living

BY JOHN BRIMER

N ARBOR MAY BE a pleasant, shady framework A with ripening grapes overhead, a trellis of climbing roses, or simply an attractive display of architectural woodwork. In any of its shapes and sizes, it adds a new dimension to your home and life. It is a secluded bower for hot summer afternoons, a pattern of light and shade in the evening, an open-air dining room for every meal.

There are many types of vines to knit around an arbor. Fragrant wistaria-pink, white, or lavender-will grow to gargantuan proportions. The bittersweet vine produces brilliant orange pods in autumn. White lacelike clematis is a daintier climber, as are the perennial sweet pea and the delicate canary-bird flower.

The classic grape arbor offers the sensuous smell of grapes late in the summer, and the taste of them if you want to reach out and pluck dessert off the vine. On lower fence arbors, tomatces and cucumbers provide beauty and food.

There is nothing lovelier than the massive climbing rose. Today there is such a dazzling choice among tall and medium growers with such a splendid assortment of colors and blossoms that nearly every kind of arbor can be magnificently outfitted. The everblooming climbers—the Dream Girl, Summer Snow, and American Pillar—are so enthusiastic that they flower not only in June but throughout the season.

If you're putting up an arbor this summer and want quick, showy shade, there is an endless variety of annuals which offer both shade and flowers. Planted each year, their quick-growing leaves and masses of flowers last through the season. Then you pull them up and discard them, to let the winter sun shine in on terrace and house. One of the best growers is the morning-glory with its cheerful sky-blue, red, or white blossoms. It opens with the morning sun and lasts till noon.

If you want round-the-clock blooms, you can plant Heavenly Blue or Blue Star morning-glories alternately with Moonflower Vine. The moonflower blooms at night, and its delicate white flowers give off a fragrance that makes sitting out in the evening unforgettable. Late in the season the moonflower and morning-glory blossoms overlap—the moonflower lasting through the early-morning hours and the morning-glory lasting late into the afternoon. Behind the blooms there is always the thick mat of leaves.

An arbor can provide shelter overhead, or it can screen you so you get privacy in a sitting-out spot. A freestanding latticed trellis, for instance, screens the terrace from neighbors and the street in a friendly, decorative way without interfering with ventilation as a solid fence might. Or an arbor may be used as a gateway to frame the view architecturally or horticulturally.

A FEW CAUTIONS should be observed by the homeowner whether he is a do-it-yourselfer or planning to hire a carpenter to build his arbor.

To begin with, an arbor must be tailored to accommodate the choice of vine. A wistaria, for example, needs a large, sturdy framework—its wood will become very heavy after a few years' growth. Some people adapt old telephone poles as posts under the more massive wistarias. Even morning-glories and moonflowers become heavy with a full season's growth. But clematis and other delicate species need only a skeleton trellis.

Posts should be deeply set in—18 to 24 inches below the ground—treated with wood preservative, and embedded in heavy concrete footings if the soil is sandy or the wind blows hard. Crossbars should be sturdy, but not overpowering. Their size varies according to the arbor and to the kind of vine. A quiet, simple crossbar design is preferable to a nervous pattern that only distracts from the beauty of the leaves and flowers it supports. Enough open space must be left so that vines can interlace easily between bars. If you want a roof on your arbor, a snow fence can be adapted as a handsome cover.

You have a wide variety of designs to choose from and a large selection of vines and flowers. Plan your arbor so it will do the most for your house and your way of living, choose the vine you like best, and then sit back and enjoy it.

MAKE MINE

DIMINUTIVE!

BY JOE E. BROWN

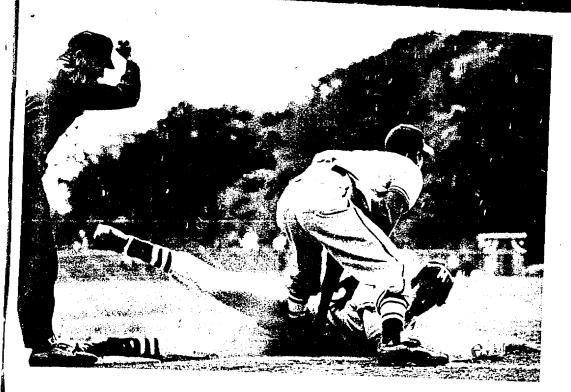

A great entertainer tells what the Pony League means

I'M A BASEBALL FAN from way back. In between one-night vaudeville stands when I was still a kid, I somehow managed to play the game and was a $2 per game semipro at fifteen—that is, until I was permanently benched in 1910 when I broke a leg while playing second base for St.

Paul in the American Association.

Since then, I've been what you might call a "very interested spectator." I even owned part of the Kansas City Blues in 1931. Boy, I remember how I hated to see holiday double-headers then . . . I knew we'd always lose two games.

to him—and to the 100,000 boys on the teams

In 1953, when I was working as a broadcaster for the New York Yankees, I was asked to become president of the newly organized PONY League. PONY stands for Protect Our Nation's Youth. It was started in Washington, Pennsylvania, by Lew Hays, who had helped start the Little League.

The idea is to give boys of 13 and 14 a chance to play some kind of organized ball, using a smaller-than-regulation diamond and equipment suited to their age and physical limitations. The Little League diamond is 60' between bases. In the Pony League the boys play on a 75' diamond, which they can easily handle.

Well, I'm proud to say I'm still the president, and this summer we'll have 100,-000 boys playing ball in the League on fully uniformed teams in towns all over the country, with the PONY World Series climaxing the season. We're a going concern -the kind boys like to be associated with,

NEVER MISS a game if I can help it, but it's what you might call the fringe benefits of the League that mean the most to me. Over the years I have seen how the chance to play ball has given a rugged purpose to kids who might otherwise not have known what to do with themselves. There was a time, as I well remember, when a boy had no doubts about his place in the world. Splitting kindling, dumping ashes, and running errands were among the many necessary operations that ran largely on boypower, but today such chores are out of date or handled by machine. In a sense, a community has not as much use for a boy as it once did. To be on his town's Pony squad gives a boy the recognition he needs and teaches him the right way to earn it, too, because baseball is a game that can be played only one way. It takes hard work and sportsmanship.

There is also hard work for the families and neighbors who have to organize and maintain a team, but it helps bring people together.

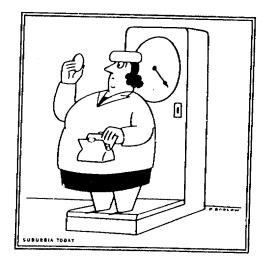

"We get as much out of it as our son does," a Santa Monica father once told me. "It gives us a common bond and a sense of belonging."

GOOD FRIEND of mine, comic Jerry A Lewis, is proud as a peacock about his oldest son Gary who is the leading hitter and star shortstop on the Beverly Hills Pony League team.

Jerry gets out to as many games as he can and has even signed a $1 per year scouting pact with Chicago White Sox president, Bill Veeck, to assure the major league of his son's future services.

The pay isn't much," Jerry admits, "but wait till they get my expense account!"

I love a good ball game, but I hope I've been able to make it plain why, for me, there's more than that to the Pony League. And gosh, you get the ball game, too!

New Weedone

with Silvex Kills more lawn weeds than any other weed killer!

Don't be puzzled about weeds! GET

> If you can't identify the weeds in your lawn by name, stop worrying about special weed control formulas. Get Weedone! New Weedone with Silvex kills chickweed, henbit and prostrate spurge, in addition to dandelion, plantain and more than 100 other weeds and woody plants.

You save labor, save time because Weedone does the job requiring two or more ordinary weed killers. It actually costs you less than many ordinary weed killers.

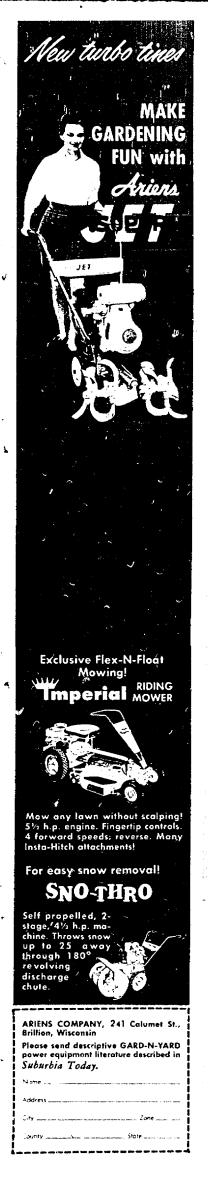

You can depend on Weedone! For a weed free lawn insist on NEW WEEDONE with SILVEX. Made by AMCHEM PRODUCTS, INC., originators of 2,4-D and 2,4,5-T Weed stady—you won't get them free over there anyhow) and a good navigator families can decide who will do the best job). Don't, don't, don't count on members of the local constabulary to speak English. It seems to be almost a requirement for their employment that they don't! Incidentally, one of the happiest by-products of this mode of travel is the chance it offers to have at least one meal a day on the road, picnic-style—which is cost-, calorie-, and digestion-saving.

EASY TO APPLY-LIQUID OR DRY! Still the same low price—8 oz, can (liquid) only $1.00; 5 lb. bag (dry) $2,25 (larger sizes available).

Keeping The Homes Fires Banked. Aside from stopping the milk and all those other cartoon subjects, there are quite a few musts if you expect a happy home-coming. If your house is to be occupied, leave a list of all service and professional people and where things are, such as the thermostat, extra blankets, etc. If the house is not rented, arrange for someone to have a key and to look at your mail, notify your friendly local police force to check the premises regularly (even if it means an extra ticket to the ball or the fireworks display), and see that a responsible person has a copy of your itinerary. The American Express offices are numerous and good for mailing addresses, as are top hotels in various cities, whether you stay there or not. Weather permitting, you would do well to turn off the master electric switch. And don't forget to make reservations for Rex and Tabby at the local kennel some time ahead, as you can bet other travelers are pet

Have you a will and a record of where your important papers are? The answer should be "yes," whether you're at home or abroad.

How Heavy Is 44 Pounds? Plenty heavy, if you have to carry it—and you will on occasion—which is why the airline minimum is fair enough, no matter how you go. Even if you can find a porter, the less you carry the better; one of the surest sources of travel ulcers is luggage handling—feeling dependent, then feeling overcharged, then feeling hacked at fighting about it. You can get a weight check by balancing the bag with your fingertips on the bathroom scales.

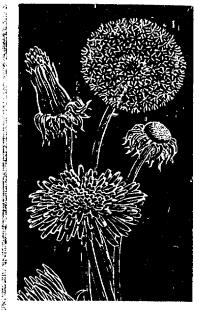

One way to keep from forgetting what you're taking along is to devote a room, or at least a closet, exclusively to packing and your travel wardrobe. And a good rule in packing is: When in doubt, don't!

Cash, Credit, And Conversion: There's no need to change money at home, except for a small quantity of the currency of your first-stop country. Best friend overseas is a wallet full of credit cards. They won't get you everywhere and everything—as at home—but they are wonderful for expensive purchases and for the better hotels and restaurants. Best of all overseas is American Express; you can charge at their listed places, and you can use your card in the American Express offices themselves, for such items as air and rail travel, guided tours and car rentals.

Carry a flock of personal checks; in France you can use them to buy at a discount from prices you would pay if you used cash, and elsewhere they are often easier to use than at home. And,

Do You Have To Know The Language? No-but it certainly helps.

However, unless you're really good at a country's language, better not try to spout it. Your safest interpreter is still that little old phrase book—as much a joke as it has been. It certainly came in handy for us, for instance, to be able to point to the words, "My auto won't start," one Sunday morning in a small town, where our car stopped dead in the middle of the street at a traffic light and we got only bewildered headshakes or irritated horn blasts when we spoke our mother tongue.

Who Says It's A Bargain? If you're going to Europe just to shop, you'd do better to stay at home. The truth is, with our smart import buyers and discount houses, you can find almost everything just as inexpensively here and not have to lug it all over Europe.

Among the few exceptions are French perfume, the liquor of the country, real objets d'art, and good Swiss timepieces.

If you feel that you must bring home foreign gifts-if for no other reason than being able to say casually, "This came from Edinburgh-" buy them from good specialty stores. Enquire about outlets for handwork, cottage industries, and work done by the blind. They often have unusual and lovely things.

You're Off! Get to the airport or pier well before time. (You will find it is even more important, when in unfamiliar European situations, to be ahead of time for all departures.) The timetables aren't kidding when they try to get you there early. They know more about big-city traffic than you may—and, besides, there's lots to do over and above the bon voyage gaiety. Travelers' insurance, for instance . . . and have you some money changed and ready for porters' tips and the first taxi ride in the country of your arrival? Don't neglect the opportunity you have only once to buy tax-free U.S. liquor and cigarettes to be delivered to your plane or boat.

Of course, if you speak French, Italian, German, and Spanish fluently-have all your reservations made (and paid for) through a reliable agent like Cook's or American Express—have intelligent and hospitable friends scattered conveniently around Europe—are leaving the house and children in Grandmother's capable care—you didn't need to read this article. You're set! (But don't cut the time too close, getting to that boat or plane!)
