A NEW ARMY COUP in Algeria which could lead to immediate repercussions in France is now considered a serious possibility by observers in both France and Algeria.

Top officers in the French Army in Algeria have been divided since the deep Army purge ordered by President Charles de Gaulle after the abortive Algerian rebellion in early May. They have been described as "confused, dispirited, and sharply divided" over duties toward their country. Some approve of de Gaulle's decisions while others openly accuse him of having destroyed the spirit of discipline and unity among

Woods Residents, Lange Cites Rifts With Councilmen Argue over Fence Construction Halted When Public Safety Committee

Indicates It Will Not Permit Adjoining Driveway Entrance

A hassle raged Monday night at the Woods council meeting between James Lemhagen, attorney for Our Lady Star of the Sea Church, residents living near the church, and the Council itself. Reason for the flare-up was the 8-foot fence being constructed along the south line of the church property to Morningside and the proposed driveway for the new girls' high school.

In a letter addressed to the Council read Monday night Rev.
Ralph V. Barton, pastor of Our Lady Star of the Sea, inquired Lady Star of the Sea, inquired as to what he should do about completing the fence, which is presently completed only to within 30 feet of Morningside.

For June 23

The church halted construcion on the fence when it learned that if there was an Annual Fleet Review Will -foot fence all the way to Morningside the Woods Public Safety Committee would not permit a driveway entrance adjacent to this fence.

Permit Was Issued

Rev. Barton was advised by the Council that he had the option whether to complete the fence or not. The Council, on May 17, authorized the Building Department to issue a permit to erect the fence to the Morningside sidewalk. How-ever, the Council added, if the plete the fence, that is its per-

Big Difference of Opinion As to Matters of Policy and Administration Given As Reason

Woods City Administrator William Lange submitted his resignation to the Woods council on Monday, July 10, to become effective on September 1, or at the convenience of the council.

Lange, who has headed the Woods government since No-vember 15, 1954, stated in his resignation, that he was quitting because of "a big difference of opinion as to matters of policy and administration," between himself and the city council.

The city administrator came to the Woods in 1954, from Marysville, Mich., where he was city manager from 1951 to the time he resigned to take over the post in the Woods. He brought with him a wealth of experience.

Shores Patrolman Ronald Klotz was cited by the Hamtramck council on Thursday, June 29, for aiding in the apprehension of two jewelry store burglars on June 2. Klotz, a former Hamtramck officer who resigned from that force and joined the Shores Department on April 1, was offduty and on his way home, 2339 Yemans, Hamtramck. He stopped in the Hamtramck station to see his old colleagues, and to pay his Fraternal Order of Police dues.

The Shores officer accepted an invitation from Patrolman Norbert Jablonski for a cup of coffee at a drive-in nearby. While drinking the coffee, a call came over the Hamtramck police radio of a burglary at the Warner Jewelry Store, Jos Campau and Casmer.

Since the Haintramek officer vas alone, Klotz decided to go with him. At the store, Klotz took the front and Jablonski went to the rear of the store. Looking in through the store window, Klotz saw a shadow behind a counter. He kicked of 5260 West Chicago boulevard, the front door in, and with gun drawn rushed into the store and captured a 22-year-old man. Jablonski arrested the man's 19-year-old companion at the rear of the place. Both robbers were in possession of considerable loot, and both were under the influence of narcotics, the officers said. The Hamtramck council unanimously adopted a resolution commending Klotz for his assistance in the capture of the burglars. The resolution was given to the officers.

of our Grosse Pointe Public Library is the newly issued three volumes of the Mayflower Index which lists all the descendants of the Pilgrims who came on the Mayflower. It was recent report of school officials. presented by the Grosse Pointe members of the Society

This Society has a chapter in every state in the Union. Although at the end of the first harrowing year at Plymouth, Massachusetts, there were only twenty-three survivors and their wives left to propagate the group, today it is estimated that the twelith generation comprises somewhere between 3,200,000 and 5,125,000 descendants. The early families were arge, but many died young. As ime went on the families gradually decreased in size but more reached maturity, married and raised families. It was necessary for them to go outside their own small group to seek spouses, and they intermarried with the enormous influx of early immigrants coming to New England, so that today it is highly likely that anyone of early New England stock can trace back on some family line to a Mayflower an-

At the present time, 25,660 have established lineage since the society was organized some sixty years ago. This does not include some seven or eight thousand "juniors" who are enrolled. The present national membership approximates 12,-

Many local residents belong to the Michigan chapter. These include:

Mrs. Nicholas Schyler Aagesen of Lincoln Road; Mrs. H. Sanford Brown of Meadow Lane; Mrs. Henry L. Caulkins of Lewiston Road; Mrs. William Henry Coddington of Lincoln Road; Mrs. Charles Frederick Dodenhoff and Miss Helen Dodenhoff of Vendome Road; Mrs. Florence Hickok Dow of New berry Place; Mrs. Orrin Henry Freeland of Washington Road; Mrs. William Bruce Howard of East Jefferson Avenue; Mrs. Ames Wood Howlett of Beverly Road; Mr. Martin Albert Hutchinson of Merriweather Road; Mr. Martin Bell Hutchinson of Merriweather Road; Mrs. Norton Ives of Stanton Lane; Mrs. John F. ## Library Receives Addition at High School Mayflower Index Progressing on Schedule

School is progressing at a very favorable rate according to a

Completion of the addition, which will be known as the quate library and music faciliof Mayflower Descendants in high school mathematics center, the State of Michigan and is expected early in August. If this schedule is kept there will up and other last minute preparations prior to the opening of school in September.

Six classrooms are the nualso be a teachers' workroomsuited for small-group, seminar type instruction. Advanced math students will get much use from this latter facility, school officiais report The total cost of the addition, including a second-floor level, connecting passageway to the main building will be $222,-075.28 Two stairways from ground level to the third floor, one at each end of the building, are also part of the project. This construction is part of

It's their first ride together in their first Cadillac-and we've seen it happen so many times we can tell you in advance what it's going to be like.

First, there will be that wonderful sense of comfort and contentment as they settle back into those deep cushions and stretch out in the luxury of space around them. Indeed, it's quite a thrill to take your place in the "car of cars"-and ride where the world's renowned families ride.

And then, of course, they will discover the magic of a Cadillac in motion!

Smooth, soundless and substantial-it takes the road like nothing else on wheels. The car is so flawless in operation and so silent in motion that they can whisper if they wish. And they will ride secure in the knowledge that they are accompanied by every proven safeguard.

And through it all, the man at the wheel will enjoy a very special satisfaction. For he knows that he has introduced his family to the myriad joys of Cadillac ownership at the most advantageous moment of all.

A Cadillac's purchase price is surprisingly modest. The cost of operating it and maintaining it is also rewardingly low. And Cadillac's resale value continues to occupy the summit position.

Absent Voters' Deadline Nears

Voters who will be on vacation, in hospitals, or away from their home towns on business on Tuesday, July 25 this year were urged by Secretary of State James M. Hare to write for their Con-Con delegate ballot at once.

The last day to obtain such ballots is 2 p.m. E.S.T. on Saturday, July 22, Hare pointed out. The deadline for getting the ballot to the city or township clerk is on Primary Election Day, Tuesday, July 25, but voters are urged to get them in before that time as an extra precaution.

"I believe many contests in voter ballots," Hare said.

"There seems to be much apathy among citizens throughout the State. It may be that thoughful voters on vacation in or out of Michigan who remember to apply for ballots will be those who in the end choose the nominees for the September 12 Con-Con Delegate election."

The Golden Days

These are the golden days of the Pointe year, summer when the sun streams down a great deal of the time and the breezes off the lake almost always shield us from the heat waves which too often oppress many other sections of the country.

Every year more and more residents are becoming aware of the fact that there are few places anywhere that can rival their own community as a resort during these months. And ever-increasing thousands are grateful that they and their predecessors and their friends and neightbors have been intelligent enough to preserve and develop the natural beauty and potentials of the area in which they live.

The Pointe today is a great example of teamwork under capable leadership. There are other sections of the country which started out with the same endowments as far as location and climate were concerned. But bad management and a lack of foresight have kept them from achieving what we now have at our doorsteps. Originally farmland, the Pointe has been wisely controlled during the years of its metamorphosis into one of the nation's finest residential communities. Industries, hotels and apartment houses have been banned and carefully thought-out restrictions have dictated the types of homes which could be built in specific areas-A very large percentage of the residents own their own homes. This natural source of pride, tempered with a friendly rivalry to make one's own property at least as attractive as the others in the neighborhood, is a great contributing factor to the beautiful whole which has been achieved.

The love of beauty which our forerunners possessed caused them to plant thousands of lovely trees which are one of the Pointe's greatest assets. Their majestic overhang causes many of us to exert unusual effort to make the gardens and lawns beneath matchingly

Long ago, far-seeing civic officials detected the need to preserve lakefront areas for recreation for the benefit of all residents. Throughout the years wise voters have seen fit to approve bond issues to constantly improve and in many cases enlarge these areas. Today each of the five Pointes has its own magnificent lakefront park, all giving endless enjoyment to thousands of citizens and their guests. Pollution has been taken out of the lake by the construction of interceptor sewers, filter plants have been installed for enclosed swimming pools, piers and mooring facilities have been expanded a thousandfold, tennis courts, barbecue pits, picnic grounds, games areas have been added, and the people love them all.

and those who might be envious of their wealthie neighbors, who have their own swimming pools and private recreation facilities, should keep in mind that they are contributing much towards keeping the public beaches from being congested, as well as paying a large share of the tax bills which provide the sites which are available to all. The private clubs also help greatly toward this same end.

We who call the Pointe home are indeed fortunate. We think even the travel agents will agree with us when we advise all who can, to spend a whole summer right here. There are dreary months ahead, and it is then that the smart residents start buying tickets to far-away places in search of sun and sand, or winter sports in the mountains. But now and for quite some time, we

The Children's Department had an extremely fine year with more than 13,000 boys and books were loaned. Children's use of the three Libraries is best illustrated by the fact that 5,460 children attended summer film programs, 4,670 children in 181 classes visited the Libraries for library instruction and Story Hours. 1,797 children attended 74 Pre-Schooy Story Hours, and 703 attended 41 School Age Story Hours.

With a book collection in the three Libraries of 105,000, carefully selected over the years to meet this community's needs, the Public Library is well equipped. The Central Library has 54,000, the Woods Branch 25,000 and the Park Branch 24,-000. Books are supplemented by excellent collections of Films, Friends of the Library group Records, framed Art Prints, Tools, and a brand new service. Music on Tape.

Special activities included 7 Family Film Nights, attended by 452 residents, 6 Friends Film Forums attended by 533, and 25 Book Reviews and Book Talks by the staff. The Director conducted 2 Book Review classes, and the other members of the professional staff gave a number of speeches to community groups.

Library films were shown over 1,900 times, and seen by 73,000 residents, a remarkable record. It was a record-breaking year in every respect, another year of steadily increasing service to the community. AT LEAST 10 NEW TYPES of warplanes, including a jet fighter which reportedly can destroy any modern plane regardless of speed and altitude and a delta-winged bomber with missiles which apparently cannot miss, were unveiled Sunday by the Soviet Union. The aerial display over an airfield near Moscow was the first Soviet display of military airpower since 1956. More than half a million Russians watched the more than 300 aircraft as they streaked across the skies, some of them flying so fast they were merely a blur to the eye. Speaking for Western observers Col. Melvin J. Nielson, American war attache said, "It was an impressive show. At this time a crowd of about 100 which had gathered to watch the contest, cheered for the AFS'ers. The fans were led by 16 girls wildly yelling "Go AFS". These girls were the other students on the AFS tour. The foreign boys responded by adding to their lead as Gerardo Bogarin-Benvavides, a Costa Rican boy, smashed a point blank shot which the Grosse Pointe goalie was able to deflect, but not quite prevent from crossing the goal line.

Gerardo's goal was a result of the tremendous ball control that this small Costa Rican possessed. He was able to, almost at will, walk around bigger opponents with complete success. Often he would charge in from his position as outside left, hotly pursued by two or more players, then nearly dodge several opposing backs and then suddenly stop, point with his hand to a spot near the goal and are a perfect pass to that spot and an uncovered teammate.

While Mr. and Mrs. Edward Grenard, of Somerset road, were vacationing in California this month, they received word on July 4th that they were the grandparents of a baby boy, Mark Edward Grenard, son of Mr. and Mrs. Jack Grenard, (Jane Leverenz), of Grosse Ile. The senior Mrs. Grenard decided to celebrate the occasion by indulging in her favorite sport, ice skating. After several turns on the ice, she took a spill and suffered arm injuries which necessitated the immediate curtailing of her vacation. Now that the family is back home, it is reported that the new parents, the baby, and the grandparents are all progressing nicely.

A lucky clover patch was discovered last week by Mrs. William T. Clement, of Lakeshore lane, as she was picking up fallen peaches in her back yard. When her eyes fell on a four-leaf clover, she began searching for more, discovered a five-leaf clover, and then her prize, a seven-leaf clover which she believes promises untold good fortune for the future.

Open House For Burglars ... page 6

ACCORDING TO DAVID SKOWRONEK, #75996 in the State Prison of Southern Michigan, no house is broken into by a burglar unless the felon is openly invited by the carelessness of the people who live there. Mr. Skowronek, now serving time for burglary, makes his valuable experience available to you this month and tells, as only an expert can, how you can best keep the crook from your door.

Bennett Cerf has spent a lot of his time, for many years, collecting the witty and profound and pertinent and impertinent sayings of other famous (and some infamous) people. By now, as you can well imagine, he has got together quite a bundle, and as you can equally well imagine, there are many that he wishes he himself had said. This month he shares a few of the best with us.

For I'm A Jolly Good Fellow . . page 14

Distinguished Drama Critic John Chapman is a lucky man, indeed. He can take his best friend along with him, wherever he goes. This month, in a marvelously funny article, he pokes fun at the person he knows better than any other in the world—himself—and reveals that "My Most Unforgettable Character is—Me!"

A Golf Course For $15,000?... page 16

Impossible, you say? Not at all. It just takes the concerted will, determination, time, and effort of an entire community. The people of Sulphur, Louisiana, got one simply because they buckled down and did most of the work—clearing the land and laying out the course—themselves. It took a lot of weekends and a lot of volunteer man-hours, but now, whenever a Sulphur resident tees up, he can be especially proud of his own part in bringing it all about.

CEM

Noted cartoonist-illustrator Charles E. Martin, our cover artist for July, shows us all the promise of summer out-of-doors—brisk hikes, long drives, canters through near-by parks, picnics, and long bicycle tours. There are enough trees and flowers and off-the-beaten paths for everybody to enjoy, says CEM, so let's all get out and find them.

GETTING AROUND

... to Our Pleasant Places and People

THE NEATEST traveling-salesman story we've L heard in ages actually happened to a friend of ours and her husband one hot day not so long ago. They live on the Willamette River in Jennings Lodge, Oregon, and one noontime a snappy outboard tied up at their dock and two handsome young men in swim trunks and toppers came up the trail, greeted our friends, and then proceeded to take bread, tomatoes, oranges, and other items from a large hamper and spread out a picnic for the startled householders. Of course, it turned out that they were salesmen for a cutlery outfit and used this way of introducing themselves wherever there were prospective customers with houses along the water. As they took off with our friends' order in their hands (one of them on water skis, at that), they confided that they had a couple of steaks in the locker and had their sales calls carefully timed so as to arrive at the home of someone with a couple of young, unmarried daughters just about dinnertime.

Mr. Howard Sparber, of Morris County, New Jersey, has come up with a new toy that promises to take the fear and mystery out of giving hypodermic injections to young children. Mr. Sparber designed a stuffed elephant called Shotzie, who is carried around on hypodermic trays by nurses.

The child is given Shotzie to hold before his own shot is administered. Then the nurse gives a mock injection to the elephant. While the youngster is busy comforting Shotzie and showing him how to be brave, the nurse can give the young patient his own injection, with a minimum of agitation.

Thanks for the tip, Mr. Robert S. Searight, of Long Beach, California. Mr. Searight never throws away large, burnt-out light bulbs but makes tiny models of the Eiffel Tower, ships, and other interesting scenes and installs them inside the bulbs. He has done more than 1,000 of them. First he makes his model, then removes the socket end of the bulb and inserts the miniature scene, using a pin soldered to a long piece of wire to get it into position. It's an absorbing hobby, and, we understand, the decorative bulbs make excellent gifts.

Enterprising Mary Alice Baas, ten-year-old entrepreneur and spreader of culture, operates her own library set up in the breezeway of her Troy. Michigan, home. She started with 50 books, but her stock has more than doubled from recent contributions. Mary catalogues her books in a loose-leaf notebook; limits her small customers (at least ten a day, we hear) to five books with a two-week limit; and charges 2 cents a day for books overdue. Mary says science books are fast movers, but one item called "A Chimp In The Family" is the most popular book on her shelves.

Goodness does not go unrewarded for long. Witness the performance of the people of Poland, Ohio, and how they responded when Baz Wellman's greenhouse was destroyed by fire. Baz, for many years, quietly remembered hundreds of sick and shut-in people with flowers, at his own expense. When the people of Poland heard about his misfortune, they immediately took action. Each church in the village held a dinner, which brought in a total of $3,000. Other greenhouses in the area stored his plants, while a number of skilled private citizens chipped in their time and talents to help Mr. Wellman build his greenhouse again.

Pam, a dog who lives on Martha E. Burke's block in Lutherville, Maryland, is one of the most frustrated creatures in the world these warm days. Pam, it seems, likes to bury ice cubes.

A few months ago, Bill Katz, who owns a dry-cleaning store in Plainview, New York, was given a set of oil paints by his mother-in-law, and since then wonderful things have been happening. He'd never painted in his life before but decided to try copying a magazine cover. He liked it, hung it over the fur-storage vault, and in a matter of days had sold it to one of his customers. Pretty soon, still life followed-portrait followed landscape, till his store turned into a cleaning shop-art gallery-and what's more, the paintings began to sell for $35-$60 dollars each. You can get a painting faster now than you can get a suit pressed. When one customer commissioned a painting at 9:00 A.M., "I had it wrapped and ready to go at 10:45," says Mr. Katz.

Joyce Williams, of Lyndon, Kentucky, says she lives next door to a lady who is that most unfortunate of gardeners, a person who loves flowers but whose every attempt to grow them turns into disaster. Finally, this year, the neighbor's garden began, miraculously, to grow. Where there was once despair, there were now little stems and leaves pushing up through the ground. One late afternoon, after about nine hours of gardening, the rains began to fall, so the neighbor ducked into the garage, where her husband and Mr. and Mrs. Williams had also taken shelter. "I'll have to get more fertilizer," said her husband. "We're all out again." "Why, I didn't use it all," she interrupted, pointing to a big paper bag full of white, powdery stuff. "I used a lot just before the rain, but there's plenty left." The two men looked at the bag. then at each other, then at the rain. The bag was full of cement.

A visitor, riding in a taxi through Shelby County, Tennessee, noticed that the driver slowed down twice and even stopped once to let pedestrians get across the street. The visitor was even more impressed when the driver, figuring that such unusual courtesy called for an explanation, turned to his passenger and said, "See, if you hit them you've gotta fill out a report."

Dummertime is vacation time for most people, but it's harvest time for burglars. I spent ten years in that shady profession, and 90% of my work was done in the warm summer months when people are on the move. It's a time when no one thinks twice about a stranger in the neighborhood, and police have their hands full with tourist-swollen traffic.

The houses left empty by vacationers are target number one for the prowler. Much of his time is devoted to locating them, and it pays off well. So well, according to FBI reports, that residence burglaries occur at the rate of one a minute, twenty-four hours

It's not hard for a professional burglar to learn what families are away on vacation. Some spot their intended victims before they leave just by listening to gossip in shopping centers. I used to carry a sample case from door to door, representing myself as a salesman for some such thing as wind-powered rotisseries or instant fertilizer. I never made any sales, but it was a dandy excuse for finding unoccupied houses and asking the neighbors when my prospective "clients" would be home.

Many things can happen to an unoccupied house. Some professional colleagues of mine specialize in large-scale burglary. known in the trade as the "truck hustle." Using the salesman pitch, they locate a number of houses that will be empty for at least a week. Then they rent a large van and start making the rounds, posing as movers and loading up with expensive furnishings. If conditions are right they will completely strip a house.

I never worked in the daytime and I never used a truck. But if I knew for sure a family was on vacation I went back at night when I had plenty of time and privacy. It was no trouble to pack a minimum of $500 worth of merchandise into my car.

THE ONLY ACCOMPLICE I ever had was complacency. Most homeowners consider burglary a rare phenomenon that confines itself largely to jewelry stores. They seem to think there is nothing in their homes to interest a burglar unless they have a wall safe or expensive furs or gems or quantities of loose cash or negotiable securities. Those things are nice, but a burglar who took nothing else would end up on relief, or even have to go straight.

When I break into a house, I am after things that can be easily disposed of, things that are found in every home. I look for new clothes, luggage, sports equipment, typewriters, cameras, radios (the pocketable transistor types), TV sets, power tools, and any other small but expensive appliances. In short, all the stuff I could get from kicking in a store. And I don't have to worry about fancy burglar alarms, barred windows, heavy-duty locks, and safes.

Add to this the fact that suburban areas aren't as heavily patrolled as metropolitan business districts, and you have a burglar's paradise. Especially in the summer.

Of course, all is not open windows and clean getaways. Burglars have problems, too. Dogs, for instance—and sometimes worse. I remember one night finding a ground-floor window unlocked in an expensive suburban home. I knew the place was empty because I'd just spent five minutes pounding on the front door. So I raised the window and hoisted myself in. I was head and shoulders inside when I noticed two glowing eyes blinking at me in the darkness. That's the way cats look at burglars. Usually it's friendly since cats and burglars have much in common.

But these eyes were eight inches apart! Two one-eyed cats, maybe? Feeling a little sick, I turned my penlight on them. Staring me dead in the face was somebody's pet panther. Fortunately, the beast was on a chain— I wasn't, but I still took half the window with me getting out of there.

EVEN THOUGH burglars would rather work on an empty house, it doesn't always turn out that way. Sometimes a burglar doesn't find out it's inhabited until after he is inside. This happens often enough so that every homeowner should be familiar with the etiquette of being robbed—or, what to do until the burglar leaves.

If you're smart, you don't do anything. You don't panic and, above all, you don't jump out of bed and try to apprehend the intruder. There is a popular and dangerous misconception that burglars don't carry guns. Well, you should have seen the one I carried. It was so big and ugly it scared even me, but on at least one occasion it was all that kept 220 pounds of indignant homeowner from clobbering me with a golf club. My gun was never loaded—I'd rather go to prison for burglary than murder—but others in my profession aren't so fastidious.

There is one very effective thing you can do when prowlers go boomp in the night.

Simply make a bit of noise: creak the bed springs or kick the wall. A burgiar listens for these things. Any waking sounds from the occupants mean it's time to go, and he'll be more than happy to climb right back out without making any trouble.

The chief concern of the homeowner, however, should not be getting burglars out of the house but keeping them out.

- You can start by not using spring-type snap locks on your doors. The rankest amateur can open these with a piece of celluloid faster than you can with a key. The best locks are the dead-bolt type that have to be locked manually. Use these not only on the front door but at the rear of the house where most illegal entries are made. And be sure you have good mechanical locks on your windows.
- If you have to hide a spare key use a little imagination when you do it. Try hiding it at least ten feet from the door.
- Never leave your home empty with all the lights turned off. A light burning in the window discourages most burglars, but if you let it burn on into the daytime you might as well send out invitations. A cheap photoelectric switch is good insurance here. The best place to show a light is in the bathroom window. A single light there, no matter how late, will convince most burglars that someone is up and about.
- If you plan on being away over a period of days, be sure to stop all deliveries, and arrange for a neighbor to pick up the mail and tend the lawn. A cluttered front porch and a shaggy lawn are sure indications that a house is up for grabs.
- Dogs are fine burglar insurance, but if you take yours with you on vacation make certain his empty kennel isn't too conspicuous. Taken with other small signs, this can say a lot to an experienced burglar.
- Don't allow the local papers to print one of those vacation items about your leaving. Burglars are great ones for reading the society columns.
- Notify the police when you leave on vacation, and give them the approximate date of your return. You'll be making their job easier because they will know what houses to watch for any suspicious activity.

To insure that your house will still be secure on its foundation when you come back from that next trip, just look it over from my point of view, and compare it for burglar appeal with those nearby. Professional burglars take the course of least resistance. There are plenty of houses where they can ply their trade, and they always choose the one that is easiest—the one with the open door, the unlocked window, or the obviously absent owners.

They seldom come uninvited.

HORSE-RADISH TONGUE MOLD

TO PREPARE: 45 MIN. TO CHILL: ABOUT 4 HRS.

- 1 21/2- to 3-lb. tongue cooked according to pkg. directions 1/2 cup cold water
- l tablespoon (1 env.) unflavored gelatin
- 13/4 cups vegetable broth (dissolve 2 vegetable bouillon cubes in 134 cups hot water)
- 1 6-oz. pkg. lime-flavored gela-
- l cup very hot water
- 2 cups cold water
- 2 cups cream-style cottage cheese, sieved
- ½ cup chilled whipping cream, whipped
- cup mayonnaise
- cup prepared horse-radish
- I teaspoon grated onion 1. Lightly oil a 3-qt. ring mold with salad or cooking oil (not olive oil).
- Set aside to drain. 2. Cut 24 very thin slices of tongue diagonally from small end of tongue to use for top of mold. Cut 12 uniform thin straight slices through center of tongue to place vertically around outer edge of mold.
- 3. For aspic layer, sprinkle unflavored gelatin evenly over cold water: let stand 5 min. Dissolve over hot water. Stir into broth. Chill in refrigerator, stirring occasionally, until mixture is slightly thickened.
- 4. Spoon one-half of chilled gelatin into mold; arrange diagonally cut tongue slices, overlapping in a ring. Spoon remaining chilled gelatin over tongue; chill until aspic is just set, but not firm.
- 5. Meanwhile, prepare lime-cottage cheese layer. Add hot water to limeflavored gelatin; stir until dissolved. Mix in the cold water. Chill over ice and water, stirring frequently until slightly thicker than the consistency of thick, unbeaten egg white. Blend in a mixture of cottage cheese and last four ingredients.
- 6. Place the 12 uniform tongue slices against the outer edge of the mold. Spoon the lime-gelatin mixture over the aspic layer. (Both gelatin mixtures should be of the same consistency when combined.) Chill until firm, about 3 hrs. Unmold and garnish with water cress.

WHY DIDN'T

The great comebacks—read them and laugh

How MANY or .... remembered gems of wit and repartee actually were coined by the glittering souls to whom they are attributed? I frequently have seen the same classic lines credited to a half dozen different celebrities. In one version, Max Beerbohm said something devastating to H. G. Wells. In another, Dorothy Parker delivered the same bon mot to Hedda Hopper. This spring, so help me, Marilyn Monroe, according to one imaginative columnist, whispered it to Joe Di Maggio!

Any honest celebrity who subscribes to a clipping service will admit he hears some of his cleverest punch lines for the first time when he reads that he has delivered them. Nor does this cause him to complain! If the lines are good enough, he simply adds them to his repertoire forthwith—and modestly accepts the credit for them.

Some of the most widely quoted bons mots of all time arose from Oscar Wilde's feud with James McNeill Whistler. Near the very top is Whistler's "Oscar has been invited to all the best homes of England—once." Another time, Wilde approved a sally of Whistler's and admitted, "I wish I had said that." Whistler's famous rejoinder was, "You will, Oscar, you will."

Wilde's last years were marked by tragedy. When he lay dying, apparently in a coma, his Parisian landlord expressed his concern to the one old friend who appeared at the bedside. "Who is going to put up the money for the poor devil's funeral?" he queried. The friend shrugged his shoulders. Wilde's eyelids flickered, and he said feebly, "I fear, gentlemen, that I am dying beyond my means."

Another proverbial wit was Will Rogers. His humor was straight to the point—but never malicious. When he starred in Florenz Ziegfeld's Follies, he directed many of his sallies at the famous beauties Mr. Ziegfeld assembled for his annual extravaganza.

"In every town we play," observed Rogers, "some millionaire comes along and marries one of those wonderful chorus girls Flo Ziegfeld worked so hard to find. Some of them don't come back to the show for three or four weeks! . . . They're so beautiful," he sighed later. "It's sad to think that twenty years from now they'll all be five years older."

"Is the field of humor overcrowded?" Will Rogers once was asked. He replied, "Only when Congress is in session."

SAY THAT?

At an elaborate, white-tieand-tails banquet he told the assemblage, "I think it might be better if more people worked for their dinners and fewer dressed for them."

If Dorothy Parker originated only thirty percent of the things she has been given credit for, her place among the country's brightest wits is assured. Returning from England one summer, she explained that she had devoted the better part of her time to sliding up and down barristers. A drunk on the boat developed an unrequited passion for her. Miss P. referred to him as "a rhinestone in the rough." At the captain's dinner, her pursuer assured her, "I simply cannot bear fools." "Apparently," snapped Miss Parker, "your mother did not have the same difficulty."

Once, when she entered the dining room alongside a beautiful and catty lady playwright, the playwright stepped aside, saying sweetly, "Age before beauty." "Pearls before swine," responded Dorothy Parker, just as sweetly, and swept into as hearty a dinner as ever she ate.

In the White Plains, N.Y., courthouse the distinguished lawyer, Joseph H. Choate, once drew a local opponent who tried to sway the jury by advocating they "disregard the Chesterfieldian urbanity of the expensive lawyer from Fifth Avenue." Choate's riposte, one of the most widely quoted in legal lore, was that his "Chesterfieldian urbanity" might be decidedly preferable to his opponent's "Westchesterfieldian suburbanity."

Another of the most widely quoted wits of our time was playwright George S. Kaufman. Kaufman traced his ancestry back to Sir Roderick Kaufman, who, he claimed, went on the crusades—as a spy. A spurious gold-mine promoter once assured him his property was so rich there was no necessity to dig for the gold; it lay around right on the surface. "What?" grumbled Kaufman. "You mean I'd have to stoop over to pick it up?" When informed that an associate's daughter at Vassar had eloped, Kaufman remarked, "Ah! She put the heart before the course!"

This very month, I've come across a dozen pithy lines I wish I had said myself. Probably every reader of this article has made observations just as penetrating or, alas, thought of them too late on the way home from the occasion where they would have made him famous! But who was around to record them? Hear these:

Cynical octogenarian Somerset Maugham: Now that I've grown old, I realize that for most of us it is not enough to have achieved personal success. One's best friends must also have failed.

Bruce Barton: A star salesman needs more than charm and perseverance. He needs imagination. Let me remind you that the stinger of a bee is only three one-hundredths of an inch long. The rest of the twelve inches is pure imagination.

Carl Sandburg: Advice is what the old give the young when they no longer can set a bad example.

Jack Benny: Give me my golf clubs, the fresh air, and a beautiful girl, and you can keep the golf clubs and the fresh air.

Harry Truman: One of our troubles today stems from the fact that too many adults and not enough children believe in Santa Claus.

John Mason Brown: The mind is a wonderful thing. It starts working the minute you're born and never stops until you're called upon to make a few remarks in public.

Groucho Marx: The hardest place to tell the difference between chicken and veal is in a drug-store's tuna fish sandwich.

Sholem Aleichem: If somebody tells you you have ears like a donkey, pay no attention. But if two people tell you, buy a saddle.

William Inge: Flattery is like perfume. The idea is to smell it, not swallow it.

Robert Penn Warren: Poets are terribly sensitive people, and one of the things they are most sensitive about is cash.

Gov. Edmund Muskie: An economist is a man who tells you what to do with your money after you've done something else with it.

Satchel Page: Never look back. Something may be gaining on you.

Chester Bowles: No army is as powerful as an idea whose time has come.

Jean Domergue, French writer: The world belongs to women. When a man is born, people ask how his mother is. When he gets married, people exclaim, "Isn't the bride sweet!" When he is dead, people ask, "How much did he leave her?"

Mrs. Pat Campbell (when a reporter asked: "Why do you suppose women are so lacking in humor?"): "God did it on purpose—so that we may love you men instead of laughing at you."

The quick and witty comebacks of the late George Bernard Shaw have often been printed. I once witnessed one of his sharpest.

We were walking along Piccadilly at his usual gallop when suddenly a man came up to him and said, "Oh, Mr. Shaw. I would like so much to meet you. My name is Rothschild."

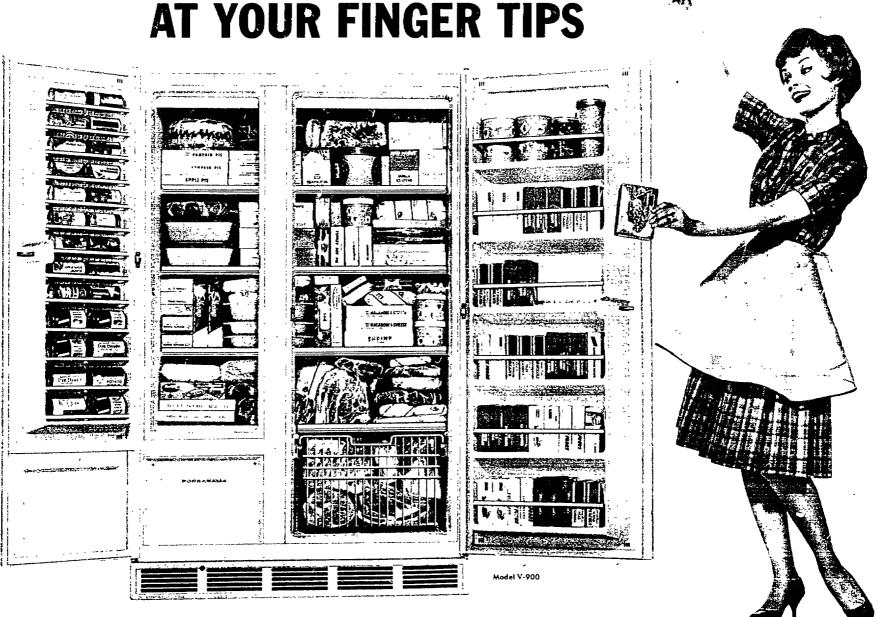

Shaw never stopped. "Good-bye, Mr. Roth-schild," he said

Why didn't I say that!

MY MOST UNFORGETTABLE

CHARACTER IS-ME!

BY JOHN CHAPMAN

And no apologies to Reader's Digest, either—the distinguished drama critic can't think of another performance

THE INTENDED RECIPIENT of this verbal follipop was born on the twenty-fourth anniversary of the Custer massacre. His parents thought he was human and were very good to him all the time he was growing.

In the course of a life which he has managed to prolong by waking up every morning, no matter what the cost, he has met very many fascinating people, including his wife, Charles A. Lindbergh, W. C. Fields, and -in an official seance-the first juvenile-court judge, Ben B. Lindsey. But the most enthralling is himself, for he never knows what he is going to do next. and afterward he doesn't know why he did it.

So far as anybody dares recall, the subject had an undistinguished childhood in Denver. He had only one fist fight, didn't mind school, and never played hookey-but he was an habitual truant from Sunday School. He absconded with the dime for the collection plate, spent half of it on an ice-cream cone and the other-half for a round trip on the Cherrilyn car. This was a horse-drawn streetcar which went up a hill, and when it got to the end of the line at the top the horse would climb on the back platform and ride on down with the rest of the passengers, while the conductor manned the brake lever.

This gruel of a lad-he was too thin to be called a broth-began earning steady money when he was fifteen, stacking books in the public library after school. Unlike the late Fred Allen who found many of his jokes while stacking books in the Boston library by reading the works of the Rev, Sidney Smith and others long dead, this budding intellect didn't learn a thing except the Dewey decimal system, which he forgot long ago.

The summer he was sixteen he joined a U.S. Forest

Maturity—inspired one day by "liquid corn flakes," he decorated his pool.

Service crew of seven, including cook, who were building a road in the Pike National Forest. They did it the hard way, with dynamite and two horses. One of the horses, Bill, was locoed and thus slow in the head. It took our hero a generation to learn that locoweed was marijuana.

The minute the new forester reported for work the crew boss said, "All right, kid, you're the dynamite man"—and from five yards tossed him a stick of dynamite. Never did Di Maggio make so desperate a catch. It took a while for him to get used to dynamite, which is like an eight-inch section of broomstick wrapped in oiled paper. But erelong he was carrying several sticks in his left hind pocket and several yards of fuse in the right one. No fool he, he carried a batch of fulminating caps in a front pocket where he couldn't accidentally sit down on them. He had remembered Mark Twain's story of the Virginia City miner who crimped a cap on a fuse with his teeth and blew his nose.

Not until nearly the end of a backbreaking summer did this prehistoric Seabee learn that he was given the honor of carrying the dynamite and stuffing it into the holes drilled by hand in rock because Alfred Nobel's invention made all the others of the outfit sick. Just touching it or smelling it after it went off gave them monumental headaches. The young dynamite man didn't have enough brains in his head to ache.

A T 17 he applied for a summer job at Estes Park in the Rockies. They asked him if he could drive, and he said sure, so they gave him a 13-passenger White bus with four monstrous cylinders and a four-gear shift, and for a trial run sent him up to the end of the Fall River Road at timber line with a load of barb wire.

This was a new road being thrust over the continental divide—one lane clambering up a sheer canyon with hairpin turns often requiring switchbacks. When he delivered the wire and returned, they gave him a job driving tourists up there and elsewhere amid the Rockies. Little did they wot that their chauffeur had never sat behind the wheel of an automobile before he took the wire up the hill. He had learned to drive by reading a boys' instruction book.

After he had had enough of college and considered himself a grownup, this spindly fellow we are talking about occupied several abodes in New York, and then he spent three years in Paris with his bride. The most fascinating thing about this period is that he never met Hemingway.

In one of Chaucer's Tales is the apostrophe, "O belly, foul bag, full of corruption, what labor and cost to provide for thee!" The possessor of this character's belly always spoke to it kindly and gave it anything its little heart desired—as a reward for its once having saved him from death or severe injury.

He was going to take the noon train from Paris to Calais to spend a few days at Cap Gris Nez with Gertrude Ederle, who was training for her first try at the Channel. But he always gets hungry at noon sharp, and he remembered that the restaurant in the railroad station was noted for its snails. So he stunk himself up with garlic during a fine two-hour lunch and got the 2:30 train.

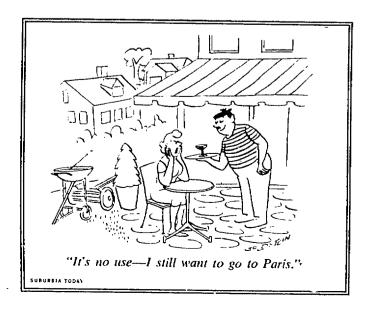

There was a long delay at Amiens, for the noon train had been wrecked there and burned from end to end. The casualties were scored by the hundred. This character took advantage of the delay by wandering into town and asking a man in a photo shop if he happened to have any souvenir postcards of the wreck. He did indeed, and he sold a set for a few francs. From Calais these pictures were sent on to the fellow's picture syndicate in London, where they made a clean beat on a sensational story. Foul bag indeed!

Twenty-five years ago our subject bought a house in Westport, Conn., and began learning how to be a suburbanite. The process continues. There is the dog next door, for example. This bee eye double-itch continually barks at anything, anybody, or nothing at all. This character has cured her of barking at him by sneaking up on her a few times and barking at her first.

E HAS A SWIMMING POOL. One time, after he had painted it a nice, cool green, he was inspired by some liquid corn flakes that happened to be handy to spend an extra hour painting an enormous black octopus with baleful green eyes on the bottom of the pool. This octopus was preserved for years during many repaint jobs, for it scared the bejabers out of liddle children, and they didn't want to go swimming there. Liddle children don't belong in pools anyway.

How did he get into the theatre? The late Burns Mantle, beloved dean of the critics, needed an assistant and asked him if he wanted the job—which he did, indeed. And why had Mantle picked on him? Because long ago Mantle had worked with his father and met the lad a few days after he was born.

Perhaps the most remarkable, most inspiring thing about this unusual character is his complete, unswerving, unquestioning loyalty. He is his own best friend and least severe critic.

FOR $15,000

PETE LEDOUX looked across the top of a 20-inch log and grinned at the man on the other end of the crosscut saw.

"We'd better take a breather," he said. Pete's regular job was clearing right of ways for a pipeline construction outfit.

His partner, George Louviere, jeweler, flopped down on the log and wiped sweat from his indoors face.

"Thanks," he said. "I'll get the swing of it soon, I hope. This is the first real muscle work I've done in 30 years. You don't exactly build up stamina leaning on a watchmaker's table or selling jewelry over the counter."

Both men were volunteer workers on the golf course at Sulphur, Louisiana, being built by Calcasieu Community Center and Playground District No. 2. Out of a bond issue of $350,000 voted for recreation facilities throughout the district, $15,000, and not a penny more, had been set aside to build a nine-hole golf course.

It was plain that the $15,000 had to go a long way. Men with experience in laying out golf courses looked at the site, deep in the heavily timbered lowlands, and shook their heads. "It can't be done. Not for $15,000. Not for $30,000." Estimates ran as high as $15,000 per hole.

It was up to the citizens of the district either to forget their dream of a community golf course or to get together and, by doing as much of the work as possible themselves, get the maximum mileage out of the money.

In August, 1953, golf enthusiasts held a meeting to discuss ways and means. At this gathering, Rex Deaton was named chairman of a committee to plan and lay out the golf course on land donated by a chemical company, with a 99-year, nomoney lease. Dan Ramsey headed a committee to organize and carry out work on the course. R. L. Nelson, chairman of the finance committee, launched the first phase of the program by mailing letters to every golfer in the area, asking for donations of equipment, material, and labor.

As the answers came back to Recreation Director Robert Bornscheuer (who had agreed to act as coordinator), they were processed and classified and then given to Ramsey, whose job it was to use the proffered labor and equipment to best advantage. Women volunteered to get on the telephone and call workers.

As the job progressed, as many as 200 volunteers worked on Saturdays and Sundays-doing everything from driving bulldozers to picking roots out of the scoopedup earth that eventually would be greens.

COCIAL AND ECONOMIC barriers faded as Soon as the workers hit the site. A car dealer worked side by side with a mechanic's helper from a competitor's service department. A chemical-company vice president manned one end of a saw that was pulled at the other end by a day laborer.

"And if anybody tells you the Old Man's soft, don't you believe it," the laborer declared. "After a couple of days, he could take stroke for stroke with me-and that work is my regular job."

The only paid worker on the entire project was the operator of certain heavy equipment. One contractor donated his equipment to excavate, load, and unload 40 carloads of sand for the tees and certain fairway areas. The district paid only for the actual cost of the sand and transportation.

Some estimates ran as high as $15,000 a hole, but the community determined "it could be done"

BY RUEL McDANIEL

The largest financial outlay went for pulling stumps from the tee areas and fairways. This cost $1,800, mainly for wages for specialists who did not live in the area.

"When the work began to lag," Robert Bornscheuer says, "Dan Ramsey would come to my office and we would call men far into the night on Friday and Saturday to get crews for the weekend. When some of those who promised to work failed to show, we got on the phones again and wheedled others into taking their places. I never saw a man work as hard as Dan on any project, even for pay."

Although it was a monumental job to lay out the work to be done from day to day and particularly on weekends and then assemble the men for the jobs, Dan Ramsey often swung a pick or manned a saw in place of some man who could not come.

When a promised bulldozer failed to arrive, a doctor who had valunteered for a fairway-clearing crew used his own station wagon to push down the underbrush.

Several men who had no interest in golf volunteered because they felt that the community needed a good golf course.

"The course will be a community asset anyway," one man said. "Besides, I enjoy getting out there and sweating and making calluses on my hands."

The committeemen were not at all modest about asking for donations. As a result, they not only obtained virtually all labor for nothing but much of the materials, such as the thousands of feet of pipe for the sprinkler system.

Of the $15,000 allotted for the golf course, half went for materials necessary for operating the course after it was built—grass, sprinklers, sand, valves for the pipe, cups for the greens, and equipment for maintaining the greens and fairways.

"The secret of our success in building this course with so little money, if there is any secret," says Bob Bornscheuer, "was in taking full advantage of people's desire for recreation. They recognized the value of a golf course, and once they saw that we could really build one with the money we had, they pitched in with enthusiasm."

By common consent Dan Ramsey was delegated to drive the first ball off the No.1 green on February 9, 1956, two and one-half years after the first golf course meeting.

In 1960, 426 people played 21,630 rounds on the nine-hole, 3,162-yard, par 36 course. Early in 1961, the same oil and chemical company that donated the land for the first nine holes turned over another 29 acres on which to build nine more holes.

"We're dusting off our work cards and equipment lists," says Robert Bornscheuer. "Here we go again."

Take A Strong, Tall Tree

...and you can practically live in it

TF YOU'RE AS LUCKY AS Mark and Barry, I there will be one quite near your house -and your father will be an expert builder, besides. Their dad had a tree house when he was young, so he knew how important it was for boys to have a place all their own, where no one could get at them, where they could hold their meetings and hatch their plots and carry on their business of the day and, sometimes, just get together and talk.

One of the very first things the men in the family did when they bought the place was to go looking for The Tree. They found it about 500 feet from their house, a strong 80-foot hickory with an 18-inchthick base. It was close enough to be within earshot, and yet when the tree house was finished, 40 feet up the hickory, it was a whole new little world unequalled anywhere, with a three-mile view on one side (right to the top of the water tower) and a six-mile view in the other direction, straight down the valley, and no boy ever made could want a better hideaway.

For builder's diagram and suggestions, write to: Box TH, SUBURBIA TODAY, 60 East 56th Street, New York 22, N. Y.

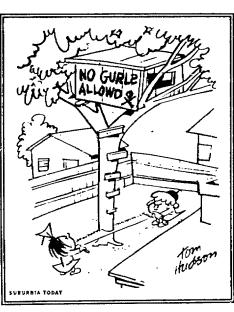

Since this tree house is so high, the no-standing rule is strictly enforced, but it could be built much closer to the ground and still be great fun.

Retreat is reached by trap door and has rails all around; below - boys set out for tree to make a night of it.

The Greatest LAND BOOM in Our Nation's History!

The investment opportunity of Hawaiian real estate is unique, due to the tremendous growth that is taking place in our 50th State. The unprecented land boom is accounted for in part by recent statehood and the increasing popularity of Hawaii as a tourist attraction and retirement haven.

In addition, the scarcity of land is due to the fact that a very small percentage of all the land in Hawaii is available for private ownership. The ideal climate, average year-round temperature 72°, and tremendous future opportunities have already enticed thousands of mainlanders into purchasing homesites in Hawaii.

Why You Should invest in HAWAII Now!

If you have ever dreamed of an Island Paradise, a place of your own where you could "get away from it all," you will want to own land in Pacific Paradise Subdivision. Hawaii is the land of opportunity, a place where you can live and raise a family under ideal circumstances; perfect climate, wonderful people, and tremendous opportunities for the future.

Hawaii is the answer to any sportsman's dream; deep sea fishing, hunting, boating, water skiing, golf—it's all readily available.

Now you can own a homesite in a beautiful, new subdivision called Pacific Paradise for just $20.00 down and only $20.00 per month with a total purchase price of $1295.00. Your taxes are less than $2.00 per year; there are no assessments; all homesites have road frontage. You receive a deed and title insurance policy free of charge.

The property is sold on a six-month money-back guarantee. It is located one mile from the town of Mountain View and just 16 miles by highway from downtown Hilo, the largest city on the Island of Hawaii.

You can lease out your homesite, build on it or hold it as an investment for your future. Invest in Hawaii now—use the coupon below to buy beautifully located Hawaiian land for the present and the future.
