Bah humbug!

Last year at this time I wrote a column about how cops celebrate Christmas at midnight Christmas Eve, while you and I are fast asleep. At that time, the cops sent Christmas greetings to neighboring departments and departments at large over the LEIN (Law Enforcement Information Network) machine.

Some of the messages are funny and poke fun at neighboring cities, while others are serious in their wishes for a "white and not red" Christmas for their fellow boys in blue. Some come in poem form, others straight, while some were greetings shaped like Christmas trees or Santa Claus.

I ended by saying that within a few days after those messages of good will were received, another message would flash over the wire warning the police to use the machines for official business only.

Apparently that message came through loud and clear. I checked the Farms police station this year just after Christmas and found no messages tacked to their bulletin board. Apparently some power in Lansing threatened to prosecute any department sending through messages of cheer for their fellow officers.

Perhaps Scrooge has moved from London to Lansing.

P.S. Checked the board again and found one department said "to hell with it" and sent out Christmas greetings anyway. Congratulations and one big "at-ta-boy" to the Romulus Police Department for broadcasting a "Merry Christmas" to cops everywhere.

Is there a problem, officer?

Speaking of cops, Farms patrolman Kathy Leikert got a bit of a surprise the other day. Cruising down Lakeview last Thursday night, she observed a car inching along the road with just its parking lights showing.

Officer Leikert swung around and pulled the car over, intending to tell the driver to put on his headlights, but something seemed strange about the driver.

The entire game was up when she asked for a license. They're hard to get when you're only 13-years-old.

Seems the young man had decided to borrow a car belonging to a friend of the family. Reports say he wasn't doing too good a job of cruising, couldn't find the lights and drove the car up over the curb when ordered to park the vehicle. Officer Leikert parked the car and took the youngster back to the station.

When family couldn't be located, the under age hot rodder was released on his own recognition and a stern warning.

Free offer

Okay, it's time to "fess up." How many of you out there have taken advantage of the advertisement running lately in our paper offering free bumper stickers reading "Grosse Pointe — Land of the Bland."

The tongue in cheek stickers are the work of budding songwriter Tad Miller, who's passed out 500-600 of the stickers in the last few weeks. Tad, 20, created the stickers to garner some publicity for his recently released 45 comedy record called "Santa I Hope You Understand."

According to Tad, the stickers have raised a few hackles, but most people get a chuckle out of them, especially the residents of Grosse Pointe. He also admits he received a call from someone

Betty Ford kicks off series on drug problems

Former First Lady Betty Ford will come to South High's gymnasium Thursday, Jan. 26, to talk about her fight with chemical dependency. Mrs. Ford appears at the invitation of the Substance Abuse Community Council.

Tickets for the 8 p.m. lecture are $3 and go on sale this week at All Pointes Book Store, the Neighborhood Club and the Grosse Pointe War Memorial.

The lecture is a kick-off for an upcoming free series presented by SAC and the department of Continuing Education about adult problems with alcohol and chemical dependency. Chris Dodds, vice-president of SAC, said:

"The lecture is also an awareness-raiser," she said. "Last year, we brought David Toma to Grosse Pointe to talk about problems of young people and chemical dependency. He made us aware that there are young people with chemical problems in the area. Mrs. Ford's lecture is something that will help us understand there are adults with the same problems and maybe help break through the denial."

Mrs. Ford formed her own treatment center after recovery from her dependence. The center has been in the news recently with the admission of such people as Elizabeth Taylor and Johnny Cash.

Mrs. Ford was asked to appear in Grosse Pointe to focus attention on the problems adults have with alcohol and substance abuse. Ms. Dodds said:

"Ours is an organization that deals with substance abuse, but not just for young people," she explained. "In the educational series we're presenting in cooperation with the Continuing Education department and the Neighborhood Club, we try to bring some of the top people in the field in to talk, to encourage people who have a problem to seek help and tell them where they can go to find help."

Mrs. Ford's public figure status and upper-middle class background help show that no one is immune from the diseases of chemical dependency and alcoholism. Ms. Dodds added:

Mrs. Ford will talk about the role the medical community played in development of her dependency and treatment of her disease. Ms.

Dodds said.

The follow-up educational series will begin Wednesday, Feb. 1, at 7:30 p.m. and run consecutive Wednesdays through the end of the month at the Neighborhood Club.

Topics that will be dealt with include drug dependency and the older citizen, drug problems among professionals, adults who grew up in alcoholic homes, solutions in the work place and intervention.

Mrs. Ford will appear at the Feb. 1 presentation titled "What is this Disease? Can Grandma and Grandpa Have It?" to discuss the special problems older adults have dealing with dependencies.

Other speakers appearing that night include Sis Wenger, community education coordinator for Henry Ford Hospital's Maple Grove center, and Carol Zielinski, program supervisor of the Older Adult Mental Health and Substance Abuse Unit of Northeast Guidance Center.

Other lectures in the February series are "Professionals Have Problems, Too" on Feb. 8; "Adults Who Grew Up in an Alcoholic Home" on Feb. 15; "Solutions in the Workplace" on Feb. 22; and "How to Help Your Loved One" concluding the series Feb. 29.

Former First Lady Betty Ford will speak at two meetings in Grosse Pointe in the coming weeks, beginning with a Jan. 26 appearance at South High School. Tickets for Mrs. Ford's lecture go on sale this week.

The Substance Abuse Community Council was formed in October, 1982, with expressed goals of increasing awareness of the drug problem and to research, evaluate and make available education resources and offer guidance in developing and promoting programs for youth and adults about alcohol and other drugs, their uses and effects.

In October, 1982, the group invited David Toma, former New Jersey policeman, to talk to students from grades 7 to 12 for two days. Toma received rave reviews from both parents and students in the two presentations to more than 6,000 students.

Last November, SAC organized a number of town meetings coinciding with the showing of "The Chemical People," a nationally televised series shown locally on WTWS/56. The programs were aimed at raising awareness of the problems of substance abuse in today's world and to offer ways of forming parent groups and using existing alliances to take specific community actions.

Property values:

Assessors predict some increases for 1984 taxes

By Susan McDonald

Most Grosse Pointe homeowners can expect higher property assessments in 1984, according to preliminary studies by the Wayne County assessor's office.

The increase in assessments won't be near the double-digit jumps that were experienced before the recession hit southeast Michigan, forcing home prices to drop. This year's hikes will range from 2.25 to almost 5 percent. And, residents in the Shores and Grosse Pointe City may see a slight decline in their assessments.

The biggest increase is predicted in Grosse Pointe Farms, where values may rise 4.64 percent, according to the county's preliminary studies. In 1983, values in the Farms dropped by 5.6 percent, so the new factors will push assessments up to near pre-recession levels.

Park homeowners can expect an increase of almost 3 percent in 1984. Values in that community dropped by about 3.6 percent in 1983. Woods assessors are expecting an increase of 2.25 percent on residential property, compared to a 4 percent drop last year.

Preliminary figures in Grosse Pointe City show a slight decline from last year, pushing values down about eight-tenths of one percent. Shores homeowners may see a 1.7 percent decline, officials said.

The tentative factors are based on 24-month studies of housing sales including the last nine months of 1981, all of 1982 and the first three months of 1983, according to George McEachran, deputy director of finance, assessment and equalization for Wayne County. Cities also may choose to base assessments on sales studies covering only 12 months of 1983, he said. But trends indicate home prices began to rise in the middle of 1983, which would push assessments higher than those based on 24-month studies. Most cities usually opt for the lower assessments.

Higher assessments will mean higher taxes for homeowners if city and school governments do not change their tax rates this spring. The new assessments will be used on the summer and winter 1984 bills, covering taxes to local cities, Grosse Pointe public schools, the Wayne County Intermediate school district, Wayne County Community College and the Huron-Clinton Metro Parks Authority.

Local officials generally agreed that the county's tentative factors seemed reasonable in light of recent sales. But Farms assessor Carol Lock admits he "can't find a clear pattern" in sales figures this year. "They're scattered all over the place," Lock said. "Some people seem to be paying high prices for property, some are getting pretty good deals."

Woods Comptroller Frederick Hornfisher may argue with county officials over the 2.25 percent increase proposed for his city's homeowners. "I don't think homes have gone up that much," Hornfisher said. "I'll have to study these figures more and find out if it's true."

Assessment notices will be mailed to homeowners by mid-February. A period for filing appeals will be scheduled by each city through the middle of March.

No time like snowtime

There was a hot time on the old hill last week. The "old hill" is the sledding run behind the current Shores Police Station along Vernier Road. Popular with kids and adults alike, the area was busy with sledders last week after all that new snow came down. Among those sledding, or in this case disc-ing, were Jenny Karrer, 7, who did a balancing act with her disc while walking up the hill. The family at top looks like they're ready for a great time, even if the two little ones do look a little dubious about the whole thing.

Woods divorcee makes the 'Woman's Guide'

By Tom Greenwood

While Joe Walker has set himself a lot of goals in life, being listed in the recently released "A Woman's Guide to the Men of Michigan" wasn't one of them. But it happened anyway.

"I've never been the type of person who's sought or ever had any publicity," said Walker, a trim 50-year-old. "My inclusion in the book has been very interesting and lots of fun."

Walker, who's a senior assistant on General Motors' Personnel Administration and Development Staff, met Dana von Weber, one of the authors of the book, and decided to give it a shot. Much to his surprise, he was chosen.

"Well, it seems to me they were looking for people with a little different set of values," said Walker. "Not the kind of people you keep reading about in a girl's column. People with ethics, standards and honesty. Not the kind of thing you'd find in singles bars. I'm a man working hard at doing a good job in whatever I undertake and don't have time to hang out at singles bars."

What Walker does do with his free time is sail his boat the "Flying Scot" over at the Grosse Pointe Yacht Club, whip up some gourmet meals, read, indulge in ballroom dancing and, most importantly, keep in shape.

Walker works out regularly at a nearby health club, so much so, that he just purchased a house in the Woods to be that much nearer the facilities.

He also downhill skis and is learning to cross country ski as well.

"I also try to compete in as many 'fun runs' as possible," said Walker. "At least one every six weeks. It helps keep me in shape and you meet a lot of new, interesting people. It's great to be 50 and feel as good as I do. There aren't enough hours in the day to do everything. I enjoy myself that much."

Walker was one of two Grosse Pointers selected for the book, along with 98 other Michigan men scattered around the state. Besides the usual number of attorneys and engineers, there are professional skiers and race car drivers, disc jockeys, special effects technicians, professional football and soccer players and one inmate at Marquette prison who won't be able to date for another two years.

'Eligible' Joe Walker

Most of the men in the book, excepting the convict, recently met for a party at the Grinopolis Restaurant in Farmington Hills. The atmosphere was strictly black tie but the atmosphere was very congenial, with the bachelors comparing notes on their new found celebrity status.

"The party was lots of fun," said Walker, with a smile. "I even met a guy there I'd gone to college with. Hadn't seen him for years, but he was included in the book too."

Woods fights building at Milk River station

By Mike Andrzejczyk

A Wayne County Circuit judge temporarily halted the construction of a prefabricated office facility at the Milk River pumping station in the Woods last week, pending hearings scheduled to begin tomorrow on the matter.

The Woods city council asked its attorney George Catlin on Dec. 19 to seek the temporary restraining order against the construction of the building, alleging the construction was a capital improvement and by state law needed to be approved by the members of the drainage district, namely the Woods and Harper Woods.

The Woods would have to pay 60 percent of the more than $25,000 price tag for fabricated building, City Administrator Clerk Chester Petersen said. The Woods and Harper Woods pay 95 percent of the expenses of the drainage district, he added. The Milk River Intercountry Drainage Board was given a legal opinion that the building was not a capital improvement but part of the upkeep and maintenance of the plant, Wayne County Drain Commission Charles Youngblood said.

"We don't want to cause any trouble," Youngblood said. "We just wanted to put something nice up there. All of our other plants have the same facilities as we wanted to put there."

The proposed building, which Youngblood described as something like a mobile home, would contain restroom facilities, record storage space and a ramp for handicapped employees. "We're just trying to correct a problem that's been out there for years," he added.

The drainage board came to the Woods planning commission last January and February asking for the approval to put up the building. The commission asked the board to return with a new site plan for the facility, making changes which were consistent with those asked for by the commission, including a four-foot brick wall.

The commission asked that the building have a mansard roof with asphalt shingles, and entirely bricked exterior or a treatment that was consistent with other buildings and offices in the area, and window architecture to harmonize with the rest of the building.

After a public hearing the next to gum disease

A clear association has been established between smoking and periodontal (gum) disease according to the Journal of the American Dental Association.

A comparison of the smoking and dental histories of groups of smokers vs. non-smokers indicates the gums of people who smoke are in poorer condition than those of non-smokers (people who have never smoked or have quit smoking).

The authors found no significant differences in periodontal health among cigarette, cigar and pipe smokers.

There are beautiful scenic areas, showing the magnificent Fall of Tahquamenon and the Toonerville Trolley, and the Mackinac Lilac Festival.

Among other features are the Birmingham Art Festival, Belle Isle 25 years ago, Tulip time in Holland, Mich., the Vermontville Syrup Festival, and the Cherry Festival at Traverse City.

The public is invited to attend the program. Non-members of the Cinema League will be charged $1 admission.

month, the planning commission tabled the matter until after it received an opinion from the state Attorney General concerning the building's status as either a capital improvement or a part of upkeep and maintenance. The opinion has yet to be given to the city, local officials said.

Without the Attorney General's opinion, it will be up to the court to decide whether the building is a capital improvement or part of the maintenance, upkeep and upgrading of the facilities, officials said.

The pump station was begun in the late 1950s and was completed in 1960, Petersen said, "and all of a sudden, they decided they had to have the extra office space and the handicapped restroom facilities."

Under the opinion the board received, "the Wayne County Drainage Board could decide to move their offices here and put up a six-story office building and we would have nothing to say about it," Petersen added.

The drainage board wanted to correct some problems it has with storage of records at the facility as well as improve the restroom facilities and add the handicapped ramp, Youngblood said. "I don't think the mayor and council have full knowledge of the conditions at the pumping station..." he said, adding they should visit the facilities to see whether they would allow "their wives and daughters to work in such a place. They should go and see first-hand the conditions at the offices."

The Milk River Drainage Basin consists of Grosse Pointe Woods and Harper Woods and contains the pumping station and the retention basin. Because the drainage basin is in Wayne but the Milk River is in Macomb county, the basin has a bi-county board.

All sewage in the drainage basin flows to the pumping station. Sanitary pumps in the station pump dry weather sewage to the Grosse Pointe Interceptor, which runs through a series of pumping stations to the county treatment facility.

In wet weather, flows in excess of the dry weather capacity are pumped to the retention basin. When it fills, the combined sewage overflows into the Milk River and on into the lake.

book had at work? "Oh, I've gotten a little gas about it from some of the guys," laughed Walker. "But Bob, my boss, has been just terrific about it. He thought it was a great idea. He's a very supportive leader."

There's been no discernable reaction from the ladies, although it's hard to tell otherwise.

"The book doesn't list our addresses or phone numbers," said Walker. "Just our pictures and a 'get to know us' story. The authors included a mailing address for people who might want to contact us through the book. There are various drop off spots throughout the state. The closest one to me is over at Northland."

"Maybe there's some messages for me over there, maybe not. I guess the next time I'm in that area I'll stop to see."

In case anyone would like to see what the competition is like out there, "A Woman's Guide to the Men of Michigan," by Dana L. von Weber and Marlea Welton, is available in most bookstores for $6.95. Incidentally, work is already underway for next year's edition with 100 new bachelors.

Sherwin Wine will talk about keeping your cool

Even in January it's good to stay "cool." Staying cool, no matter what the provocation, is an important way of winning in life.

Sherwin Wine, director of the Center for New Thinking, will present a four-part lecture on staying cool beginning Wednesday, Jan. 11 at the War Memorial. The first lecture will focus on disagreement, and how people can be perfectly open without being offensive.

The following week on Jan. 18, Wine will speak about rejection. "Being turned down by people and institutions which are very important to us is often devastating to our self-image," Wine says. "Staying cool in the face of such provocation is not easy. But, it is certainly possible if we learn how."

Intimidation will be the focal point of Wine's third lecture. If the intimidation skills of one's adversary are very good, a person may be reduced to awkwardness and shameful appeasement. Others find themselves doing what they do not want to do. However, according to Wine, there are alternatives.

The final lecture, on Feb. 1, will deal with frustration. There are days when the pressure of commitments make it difficult to stay calm. The person who cannot cope with unscheduled problems may explode, withdraw or become morose — none of which behaviors is a satisfactory response to what is happening. Once again, people have a choice as to how to respond to a situation, even if they have no control over the source of the problem.

All four lectures will be from 9:30 to 11:30 a.m. Admission is $20 for the series, or $6 per lecture. For more information call 881-7511.

GOP convention is coming up

The Michigan Republican Party will be the first state GOP organization in the nation to hold a state convention in election year 1984. More than 3,600 delegates and alternates to the Michigan Republican State Convention will gather at the Amway Grand Hotel in Grand Rapids, Jan. 27-28, to elect delegates to the Republican National Convention, as well as to elect a National Committeeman and a National Committeewoman.

Crime dropped 13% in Park

Grosse Pointe Park experienced an increase in robberies and auto thefts and a decrease in burglaries and larcenies during the last year, according to the latest crime statistics published by the Park police department.

The report, which tracked crime from January through November 1983 and compared it to the same period during 1982, indicates an overall 13 percent decrease.

Reported robberies rose from 31 to 43 while incidents of auto thefts increased from 69 to 90. Aggravated assault and rape figures remain the same at 11 and 3 respectively.

There were 117 burglaries reported in 1982 compared to 78 in 1983 and larcenies followed the same trend, dropping to 368 from 451.

In an effort to reduce crime further, the Grosse Pointe Park Police Department will hold its first Police-Community Relations meeting Thursday, Jan. 12, at 7:30 p.m. in the Park's council chambers.

The agenda for the meeting will include an awards ceremony honoring police officers and citizens for outstanding contributions to the community and a pictorial display of the history of the Park police department.

The monthly meetings will be held the second Thursday of every month. Representatives from other city departments, city officials and guest speakers from various organizations are scheduled throughout the year.

Time will be allotted to give citizens information on crimes the city is experiencing and steps that can be taken to help prevent them. A question and answer period will be included at every meeting and the public is invited to attend.

be selected at county caucuses, Jan. 11, will choose 77 delegates and 77 alternates to the Republican National Convention in Dallas, Texas, Aug. 20-23.

"The national convention delegates will represent Michigan Republicans and will cast Michigan's 77 votes for the 1984 Presidential nomination," said Michigan Republican Party Chairman Spence Abraham.

Three national convention delegates and three alternates for each of Michigan's 18 U.S. Congressional districts will be chosen during District Caucuses on Friday evening of the state convention. On the following day, 23 at-large national convention delegates and 23 at-large alternates will be elected from the state convention floor.

Running unopposed for National Committeeman is Peter Secchia of Grand Rapids, the current office holder. Secchia was elected to his first four-year Republican National Committee post in 1984.

Local GOP picks delegates Jan. 11

The 14th Congressional District Republican convention will be held on Wednesday, Jan. 11, at 7:30 p.m. in the auditorium of Center Line High School, 26300 Arensal, Center Line.

The purpose of the district convention is to select the delegates and alternates the district will send to the Republican state convention in Grand Rapids on Friday and Saturday, Jan. 27 and 28. At the state convention, the alternates and delegates will be electing delegates and alternates to the national Republican convention to be held in August, 1984, and one man and one woman to the Republican National Committee.

At the district convention there will also be a nonbinding straw poll taken to survey voters in the 14th District as to their preference of candidates in the presidential primary.

All registered voters in the 14th Congressional District are eligible to participate as long as they sign an affidavit declaring themselves to be Republican. The 14th District includes Grosse Pointe Farms, Woods, and Shores.

Learn to cook with Continuing Education

Twenty-six cooking classes, many of them popular single-sessions, have been scheduled for adults by the public schools' department of Community Education for January, February and March.

Included are classes emphasizing natural foods, special confections and desserts, ethnic cooking, gourmet specialties, microwave and food processor cookery, as well as the "basics" of kitchen survival.

The roster of cooking classes on Tuesday, Jan. 17 includes a five-week, nine-lesson class by Cheryl Sucek, titled "More Classical French Cooking the Modern Way." A continuation of her successful fall class based on French haute cuisine, students will learn adaptations to make classic recipes that are lighter and less fattening.

Mrs. Sucek's contributions to the winter cooking program continue with a three-week class beginning Feb. 21. Her "Latest Recipes from Europe" is based on her 1983 trip abroad to renew acquaintance with chefs and restaurateurs in France, Belgium, Switzerland, and Germany. Included among her contacts was the legendary Freddy Girardet of LeCrisier, near Lausanne, with whom she spent some time cooking.

Mrs. Sucek's third multi-week class, "Highlights of Fish Cookery," begins Tuesday, March 13, and is a continuation, with new recipes, of her successful fall fish class.

New councilman spent $2,200 in Woods election

By Mike Andrzejczyk
Would you spend $2,228.46 to become a Grosse Pointe Woods city councilman? According to county election reports, Paul Beupre did, outspending his opponents by as much as four to one.

According to post-election campaign spending reports, Beupre, who garnered the most votes in the election, spent better than $2,200 on his first bid for elected office on items like newspaper advertisements, printing costs and mailings. The reason he had the money to spend was because of a campaign fund-raiser that collected more than $2,000, Beupre said. He added he felt obligated to spend the funds raised at the $10 beer-and-hotdog fund-raiser to be elected because of the show of support for his candidacy.

The bulk of spending and fund-raising was done before Oct. 23, according to county election reports. Between mid-July and Oct. 23, Beupre collected $2,215 while spending $1,915.

After Oct. 23 until the end of November, Beupre spent $312 and collected $25 in contributions. His campaign committee ended the election with a surplus of $11.54, according to spending reports.

Four other candidates in the race reported spending less than $500, according to county files. Mayor Pro-tem Robert Novitke, Ted Bidigare and former councilman William Wilson spent less than the $500 needed to file election finance reports.

Former councilman Frederick Lovelace, who was unseated along with Wilson in the November election, said he also spent less than $500 in his campaign. Beupre said the amount spent on the campaign didn't affect the outcome. "I could have spent less than $500 and still gotten elected. I might not have been top vote-getter (but) I don't think it would have changed

Shores will form foundation

By Mike Andrzejczyk
A group of Shores residents will file articles of incorporation in the coming weeks to form a non-profit foundation in the village similar to one formed more than three years ago in the Farms.

Incorporators of the Grosse Pointe Shores Improvement Foundation include members of the village council and Kurt Tech who, with George Bashara, Jr., recommended formation of the foundation.

Tech and Bashara said a non-profit private foundation was preferable to alternatives to handle donations and bequests. The foundation will be better able to raise funds without conflict of interest possible in a publicly-appointed committee, Tech added.

The foundation can help the village beautify, upgrade and preserve municipal parks and medians as well as actively solicit funds, Tech said. The foundation may also be able to provide services to supplement municipal functions and handle bequests to the memory of loved ones and the preservation of historical sites or documents, he added.

A study committee made up of Tech, Bashara, Thomas Candler, William Dahling, Edward Deeb, Marvyn Gaskin and Peter Bogas prepared the articles of incorporation as well as a draft of by-laws, which were presented to trustees. After the signing and filing of the articles of incorporation, the foundation will solicit about 15 residents to become charter members, Tech said. The members will approve by-laws and become the governing body of the foundation. Contributions to the foundation will be tax-deductible.

Shores will form foundation

The motion to approve the formation of the foundation was made by C. Bradford Lundy, council liaison to the study committee, and seconded by Elizabeth Kuhlman. The action was passed unanimously.

The Grosse Pointe Farms Foundation has been operating since July, 1980, when the city council voted for its incorporation. The Farms foundation is a private, non-profit, tax-exempt foundation funded by donations and bequests, according to its literature.

One of the first projects for the Farms foundation was $330,000 from the estate of the late Benjamin Long, who also bequeathed $150,000 to the Board of Education.

One of the Farms foundation's first projects was the construction of a new recreation center at the Farms Pier Park.

Tentatively, the first project for the Shores foundation will be the landscaping of the municipal grounds around the renovated Village Hall. Village Superintendent Michael Kenyon said.

tions with their own money. Beupre said, noting that his fund-raiser limited his own contributions to his campaign. "In fact, I'll bet I spent less of my own money in the campaign than other candidates did," he said.

Visit Egypt via slides at War Memorial

Stephen Bertman, Ph.D., will present a slide-illustrated, stereophonic lecture series titled "Land of the Pharaohs," Tuesdays, Jan. 10, 17 and 24, at 8 p.m. at the War Memorial.

Participants will travel back to ancient Egypt to hear "The Mummies Speak" in the first lecture. They will learn how the Egyptians preserved their bodies in order to "live forever" and how modern scientists use techniques, like those on TV's "Quincy," to help mummies tell the story of their lives.

The "Mysteries of the Pyramids" will be Dr. Bertman's second lecture. He will discuss how and why the Egyptians built these man-made mountains, and will reveal the secrets... and power contained within these tombs which have stood in the desert for almost 5,000 years.

In the final lecture, "King Tut's Treasures," the story of the richest and most dramatic discovery in the history of archeology is told. Slides of the golden keepsakes of the young pharaoh who reigned during ancient Egypt's most glorious age will be shown.

Dr. Bertman is professor of Classical Studies at the University of Windsor. He is author of "Art and the Romans" and "The Conflict of Generations in Ancient Greece and Rome."

Admission to the lecture series is $19, or $8 for a single lecture. For ticket information, call 881-7511.

Another issue for 1984

Whatever the merits of the legislative reapportionment adopted by the Democratic Legislature in the closing hours of its 1983 session, the plan already shows signs of becoming another partisan issue in the 1984 election.

Rep. William Bryant, Grosse Pointe Republican, became almost apoplectic in writing in the Grosse Pointe News about the first Democratic reapportionment plan adopted by the state Senate. He contended it would have made it impossible for the people of Michigan to elect either a Republican House or a Republican Senate during the rest of the decade that the reapportionment will be in effect.

That first bill was replaced by a more moderate redistricting plan which eventually became law with some Republican support in both houses. But Bryant opposed the second bill, too, on the grounds that it still protected all Democrats and was still a gerrymandered reapportionment that was not fair to the voters of the state.

THE DEMOCRATS, on their side, apparently put the first reapportionment bill through the Senate to pressure Republicans to renounce their support for any recall campaigns against Democrats over the income tax increase. The second and compromise redistricting plan apparently assures the Democrats continuing control of the House for the rest of the decade but leaves the Senate up for grabs with each party assured of about 18 seats and with two swing districts that could determine Senate control.

All of these tactics probably leave many voters confused as well as uninterested. Yet it is true that legislative reapportionment sets the district boundaries and thus determines to a great extent which party will control the Legislature until the next official census when another reapportionment will be required. So the reapportionment process is important to the political parties, and especially for the legislators involved.

That explains not only the strong feelings expressed by Rep. Bryant but also the strong language used by Democratic state Sen. John Kelly in his Grosse Pointe News column attacking Republicans for supporting recalls against Democratic incumbents and thus causing "cannibalism and carnage to state government." Both men obviously are concerned not only about their respective party's positions on reapportionment but what the redistricting does to their own districts.

The new plan will go into effect for the first time in the 1984 elections for the state House of Representatives, but it is not expected to materially affect Rep. Bryant's district. Sen. Kelly and other senators will not run for reelection in their new districts until 1986 because they were elected for four-year terms in 1982. Kelly is one of the Democrats presumably assured of a Democratic district although a somewhat smaller one than his present district which is about 16 percent larger than the size required by the perfect application of the one-man, one-vote principle.

EVEN THOUGH THE state Senate and the governor will not be up for reelection in 1984, Michigan can expect hotly contested campaigns for the House this year. The issues already staked out — which include the 1983 income tax increase, the legislative recall movement and legislative reapportionment — have already evoked harsh words from legislators representing the Pointes but we can expect even tougher language on the political trail in the months until November.

Crime in perspective

Our friends downtown at the Detroit News and the Free Press once again are getting worried about crime in the Pointes. Both papers last week published news stories citing several recent crimes which already had been reported in the Grosse Pointe News. The implication in both stories was that there is a crime wave in the Pointes, and especially in the areas adjacent to Detroit.

It is true that crime, like beauty, is often in the eye of the beholder. If a person is held up on the street or his home is ripped off, he is more likely to think in terms of a "crime wave" than the many other people who have escaped such criminal actions against their person or their premises.

Yet Grosse Pointe Park's crime statistics for the first 11 months of 1983 hardly bear out the contention that crime is on the rise in that community. The total number of serious criminal offenses known to the police during the first 11 months of the year actually declined from 682 in 1982 to 593 in 1983. Burglaries also declined from 117 to 78 and larcenies, excluding auto thefts, went down from 451 to 368 in the same comparable period.

True, auto thefts rose from 69 to 90 and robberies increased from 31 to 43. The big increase here was in purse-snatchings and other strong-arm robberies which went up from 21 to 32, while armed robberies rose only from 10 to 11.

THE PICTURE, in other words, is mixed. One crime is one too many, as far as we are concerned. But as people read the news stories in the daily papers and hear about robberies, burglaries and even worse crimes in the Pointes, they should try to keep the overall crime picture in perspective. On the basis of the statistics in the Park, at least, there is no evidence of a new crime wave even though there also is evidence enough to cause all Pointe residents to be concerned.

When recall is inappropriate

The recall mania continues to spread with a third state senator, Patrick McCollough, Dearborn Democrat, targeted as a recall victim because of his vote in favor of the 38 percent increase in the state income tax voted last year.

The mania also has spread into other governmental units, with a black organization in the city of Detroit proposing to recall County Executive William Lucas because he didn't do enough for the county's black population and with a Grosse Pointe organization still seeking recall of three members of the school board because it disagreed with the board's school reorganization plan.

ALL OF THESE RECALL efforts have one thing in common with the successful recall of two state senators. They are basically single-issue complaints by citizens who insist that public officials be removed because they did not do the bidding of the critics on specific issues. In three cases, the issue is the increase in the income tax, in one it is the supposed failure of the new county executive to give specific benefits to the black population and in another it is the failure of the school board to accede to the demands of a private organization that none of the school buildings in the Pointes be closed.

All of these efforts are similar in another respect. All suggest simplistic solutions to complex problems. Those opposed to the income tax increase simply want their taxes reduced without any consideration for the services that might have to be reduced or terminated. Those critical of the county executive really want special consideration for the black population. And those demanding that all Grosse Pointe school buildings remain open offer no alternatives that address the problems created by the continuing decline in school population.

There is an attitude by single-issue proponents that is reminiscent of the "me" generation that we thought had gone out of style with the advent of the 1980s. That is the view that a person's own personal demands must be met no matter how such demands may affect the community as a whole. "I want what I want when I want it," was a popular theme with the "me" generation. Many of the single issue proponents appear to be following the same slogan.

True enough, recalls are authorized by the Michigan Constitution, although not by the constitutions of all states. We still think, however, that the recall is an inappropriate remedy to use against any public official on the basis of a single issue. A more appropriate remedy is to weigh the record of the public official during his duly constituted term and then determine whether he or she should be reelected or replaced on the basis of his entire record.

That remedy at the regular elections also eliminates the oneness of recall elections. They are essentially negative actions which do not require any alternative proposals or even alternative candidates. Those must come later in the process if and when the official is recalled. In a regular election, however, there is opportunity not only to debate the issues but also to weigh the candidates against each other on the basis of their backgrounds, their qualifications, their experience and their records. And despite the continuing recall mania, we think that following the regular election process tends to provide better answers to issues and serves the electorate better than recall elections do.

Enrollment drop a community problem

To the Editor:

This letter is written from the perspective of a community resident, taxpayer, parent, non-politician — in no particular order. The following observations and comments are offered in an attempt to refocus the issues on school closure and recall.

I have great empathy for members of the school board and what they have experienced in the past 18 months. If one has ever had the opportunity to take a public position on an issue, and then suffer from innuendo and undeserved character and personal attacks, one might understand their recent experience. It might be argued that this is the risk one assumes in performing public service, however, it is none-the-less an injustice when persons who give their time and talents to the community are personally assaulted. I say this from the perspective of one who has not agreed from the beginning with the course the board has taken.

Machiavelli argued the principle that the end justifies the means. This principle is wrong. Even absolute truth, if compromised by the methods used to achieve it, becomes no truth at all.

Amid all the information, hearings, and rhetoric the basic school and community issues have been all but lost. The basic issue is how does a community respond to a dwindling school enrollment. The school board and its committees were forthright and said that their position was elementary schools would be closed. The board has never retreated from that position. The most recent (K-5) proposal in all honesty is an initial step toward the eventual consolidation of the elementary and middle school.

Let's make no mistake, dwindling school enrollment is not simply a school system problem, it is a community dilemma. As others have pointed out in this paper, all members of the community — not simply parents — need to be concerned. One of the fundamental assumptions of the reorganize and close elementary schools approach is that school enrollment will continue to decline in Grosse Pointes and that this uncontrollable. Unfortunately, the removal of elementary schools from neighborhoods appears to be a self fulfilling prophecy regarding enrollment decline through removal of a primary motivation for young families to resettle this community.

God willing, if I am here at age 62, I hope that when I look out my front window I see children playing on the sidewalk. I hope there are many young families in my neighborhood. With the current plan these hopes will likely dwindle with the enrollment.

One writer has asked for alternatives and so the following is offered: In lieu of the assumption that the school enrollment will continue an uncontrolled decline, a substitute hypothesis is suggested. This hypothesis is that the Grosse Pointe community through organized effort can attract increasing numbers of young families with school age children to settle here.

Certainly this would involve intensive community commitment, investment and energy. A community organization to direct such efforts would be needed. Strategies at all levels of community and government would be helpful.

In short, it seems to make more sense to invest in an active plan to confront the problem now while there is time to do so, than submit to a plan which is only reactive.

Others have called for a moratorium on school reorganization and closure. I would add my name to that list.

Failing to achieve a moratorium, it should be understood that the recall effort must not be directed personally at any member of the school board, and should not be perceived as such by anyone. The recall is purely and simply a referendum on the school closure issue and is the only democratic redress available for residents of the community.

First District is outraged

To the Editor:

I can not agree more with State Sen. John F. Kelly's recent radio interview in which he expressed outrage over people who live outside of his district attempting to recall him for voting for the 38 percent state income tax increase.

We, the citizens of the First State Senatorial District, are perfectly capable of recalling him ourselves and plan to begin to do so immediately.

Help when you need it

To the Editor:

Permit me to publicly thank the Grosse Pointe Farms police officer, and the two Grosse Pointe Shores public safety officers who helped me recently when I fell in my kitchen, fractured several bones and was in great pain. I shall always be grateful for the expert and gentle manner in which these officers handled me in getting me into the ambulance and to the hospital.

Thank you very much, officers. You are truly gentle men.

Veteran remembers 'what death touched'

To the Editor:

It has been my custom once each year since the end of World War II to select one fatality from the members of my squadron and pass along some sort of eulogy to a publication near his home. Usually it is timed for Veterans Day, but for no particular reason I have failed to attend to the honor before now.

Perhaps it is because the Grosse Pointe youth was the first of our number to die I have been so long about bringing up his name.

I never really had time to get to know him as well as I did several of those who managed to escape the inevitable fate for some extra months or years.

Just recently I came across the lines "It is a fearful thing to love. What death can touch." Apparently the author is unknown. Undoubtedly that message of gloom makes itself known to all creatures, but men in combat discover it all too soon, and suffer its effects too often.

His name was Courtney Derby Allington, Jr. We had been overseas since early in May of that year (1943). Sgt. Allington and I were radio operators on C-47's and had been original members of a newly formed squadron. We spent several months together at such spots as bases in Missouri, North Carolina and Georgia in training operations with the 82nd Airborne Division. (A very elitist organization).

There were 13 fellow radio men in our nuclear group. Most of us were aware of the significance of being a native of Grosse Pointe, and that it generally meant a wealthy background. But Derby, in all my associations with him, never betrayed the least trace of snobbery, and was the most pleasant of companions. We had not attended the same radio schools, and I mentioned that in one class I had sat by Harry Connally, erstwhile member of the Michigan State and Detroit Lions football teams. Somehow I gathered that Derby and Harry were acquainted.

On the night he died, July 11, 1943, our squadron supplied six planes of a total force of 144 making a reinforcement paratroop drop during the invasion of Sicily. The four members of the plane Sgt. Allington was on all were killed as the aircraft was shot down.

I, too, was on the mission, and our plane with a crew of five also was shot down, but all were eventually rescued by a ship from the American Navy. Our successful "ditching" was the result of some mighty skillful piloting by a man who now resides in Elk Rapids, Mich., Eugene Turkelson. At least one of the three remaining crews died in subsequent war action.

Later I visited a cemetery at Ponte Olivia, Sicily to aid in checking grave registration.

Of course, a factor behind this type of write-up is that any possible close member of the family can feel a pride in the citation of a military sacrifice. It is to be hoped that old wounds of the hearts are healed enough to weather a traumatic reminder.

My week in Recorders Court

So you want to be a juror?

By Harriet Nolan

Serving as a juror is looked upon by our judicial system as one of the most civic responsibilities a person can perform and last year I found myself tapped to serve for one of the most unique experiences of my life.

I have to admit when I got the notice from the City of Detroit Recorders Court, my immediate response was unprintable followed by, "Why me, Lord" and "what did I ever do to deserve this?"

My only consolation was already knowing the Vista jury had been picked and I was not one of them. Also, the summons promised the average length of a trial to be about four days, often only one. And while I felt resentment for this unwanted intrusion on my time, I also felt a strong curiosity to learn first-hand how the system under which I live works.

The following week I obediently showed up at the Frank Murphy Hall of Justice and stood in a quickly-growing line with others. Some looked embarrassed being there, others seemed to take it in stride. I would later learn many were repeaters already familiar with the procedure.

I grew impatient standing in line and more so after I registered, only to then be directed to wait in a large room while latecomers drifted in.

A clerk hurried in, thanked all of us for coming and told us to watch a slide presentation explaining why we were there before hurrying out again. Finally a voice over the intercom called my assigned number and I joined dozens of others reporting to various courtrooms.

The serenely lit, wood paneled courtroom complete with robed judge I entered lent formality to the occasion and a welcome contrast from the one I had just left filled with plastic colored chairs.

Looking around, I estimated that 50 others were also waiting for their names to be drawn from what looked suspiciously like a fishbowl. And while I had never won anything in my life, I knew before the bailiff pulled the second slip of paper it belonged to me.

Selecting the jury occupied most of the first day and I often felt embarrassed listening to others air very private reasons why they should or shouldn't be allowed to remain.

The excuses ran the gamut, medical, religious and moral beliefs being the favorites. Other reasons included having relatives or friends who had killed or been killed during violent crimes. Many were relatives of innocent victims.

One slightly-built blond girl clutching a load of school books firmly told the judge she couldn't make a fair decision because of racial prejudice. I felt both a tinge of sadness and an appreciation for her and her honesty.

I listened in disbelief as one woman said her relative's death had gone unpunished due to insufficient evidence. She wanted to be a juror now to "work out her bad feelings toward the system." She was later excused.

One prospective juror had his brother-in-law killed by police minutes after he had killed his own wife. He, like so many others, was thanked by the judge for coming and excused. I silently thanked God that none of the ugliness I was hearing had ever touched my family.

By this time the room had grown uncommonly cool and I began to appreciate the importance of the situation. I silently questioned why I hadn't pled temporary insanity and avoided all of this. But I knew someone other than myself would have to eliminate me. I wanted to serve.

Next came the opportunity for both attorneys to weed out anyone they felt could prove unfavorable to their case. Reasons for dismissal for "cause" might include knowing anyone involved in the case, their family or authorities. "Pre-emptory" reasons for dismissal could be based on personal physical preferences or anything else and were at the attorney's discretion.

I felt my occupation as reporter would sound the death toll for my usefulness as a juror. But after being asked several questions including "could I make a decision based on circumstantial evidence," to which I replied "I don't know," I survived the cut.

Finally 13 people were selected. An extra one in case one got sick, disqualified or had to leave, which happened in our case. Otherwise one would be randomly eliminated before the jury decided the verdict. The panel consisted of seven women and six men.

The case we would hear involved the murder of 71-year-old black businessman, Presley Green, killed during a robbery at his car wash sometime between April 23 and 24, 1982.

When he did not return home, his wife, Mattie Green, went to the car wash looking for him. Instead she found the door open, cash register ajar and splashes of blood eerily decorating the office area. She stopped her search and called the police.

After the officers arrived, they followed the trail of blood through the office area, across the wash bay and into a small bathroom where the blood ended. Green was found on the floor with his face behind the toilet.

Hearing the story, I suddenly felt my nerve endings stand at attention and my eyes get moist. Did I really want to be here, I asked myself?

In subsequent testimony from officers, technicians, fingerprint experts and Green's family, we would learn, among other things, that money, heavy pieces of machinery from the car wash and two guns registered to Green were taken during the robbery. There was no indication of forced entry and Green was not a careless man, the robbery appeared to be orchestrated by someone he knew.

We heard the name Angelo Asbury mentioned, an employee who the day of the robbery had been rehired by Green after being fired several months earlier for alleged theft. While he was named as the last person to probably have seen Green alive, we were not told anymore about him.

We learned that Green's car had been stolen during the robbery and found abandoned the next day. We also learned that several sets of fingerprints were found inside the car, untraceable until over a year later.

We would learn that a series of events triggered by the arrest of a man named Wilmus Smith, for threatening someone with a gun, was the reason the defendant Johnnie Deryl Scott was on trial.

When police arrested Smith on April 7, 1983 they learned the gun he had registered to the victim Presley Green. It took them three months to trace it through five owners, the last one being Scott, whose prints matched those taken from Green's car a year earlier.

I wondered if all this would be enough to prove beyond a reasonable doubt that 20-year-old Scott, who had the demeanor and build of a teenager was guilty. I also wondered what the hell I was doing there.

From the beginning of the trial the judge instructed us not to discuss the case with anyone, including each other. If I worried that that would rob us of conversation, I quickly realized there would be plenty of other things to discuss.

Camaraderie was instant and filled with stories about families, sports, work and Christmas. We planned a schedule of the restaurants we would methodically hit in Greentown.

Finally the trial was over and the moment of decision came for the 12 of us. We would have to base our decision on circumstantial evidence. That means there were no eyewitnesses to the robbery or murder, certainly none who testified.

I was impressed with the level-headedness of the others and their analytical abilities and street savvy. Someone said to remember the victim and his rights. Our votes seemed to be the same, only the paths to reach them varied.

After deliberating almost a day, we found Johnnie Deryl Scott guilty of robbery and murder in the first degree. According to the law, a murder committed during a robbery automatically warrants a first degree murder charge, even for an accomplice in the crime.

We found Scott not guilty of a second charge of possessing the gun during the robbery/murder because we weren't presented with enough evidence that placed him at the scene at the moment it happened.

"Jurors have a heavy burden to decide beyond a reasonable doubt someone's guilt," said 36th District Court Judge Alex Allen. "You have 12 people who based on their everyday experience, background, ethnic and religious origins decide whether a person is guilty, liable or not depending upon the case."

"Jurors have to hear a witness, then wait an hour. I'm often surprised the way they seem to stay on top of everything," he added.

Records Court Judge Michael F. Sapala, in whose court I was a juror, agrees that most people want to serve and do a good job. He says recently they have been rendering verdicts consistent with the evidence presented.

"They're a little tougher and not letting sympathy for either side interfere with their job. I think they're more and more impressed by the seriousness of what they can do," he said.

My fellow jurors later told me they had confidence in the system we used, they felt the evidence spoke for itself and that "you can't fool 12 people."

I felt very proud being part of that group and of our decision.

Who serves

To assemble a 12 person jury panel, many are called, but few chosen, according to statistics supplied by Wayne County Circuit Court Executive Administrator L.M. Jacobs, IV. He said about 100,600 questionnaires were mailed this year to determine that 55,509 respondents met the basic standard requirements to serve as jurors.

Of this group, says Jacobs, 18,418 received a summons for jury selection and 16,057 served. The no show rate is only about two percent and persons who actually refused to serve amounted to less than 10 individuals.

Jobs found for 150 handicapped

The local office of the Michigan Rehabilitation Services, a state and federally funded agency assisting handicapped persons, reports that 150 of its clients found competitive jobs in 1983.

The average weekly wage of those employed was $187.90, according to Linda M. Boone, district manager.

"If these individuals remain employed for one year, they'll earn more than $9,700. As you can see, they have become taxpayers, instead of tax users," she said. Thirty-six of those clients were receiving public assistance before they found work, she added.

Ms. Boone's district office serves the Pointes, Harper Woods and Detroit's east side. The agency provides diagnostic studies, counseling, physical restoration, training, and job placement services.

To be eligible, a client must have a physical or mental disability which results in a substantial handicap to employment and be reasonably expected to engage in gainful employment with help from the agency.

The office is located at 14120 East Seven Mile Road and is open from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. Monday through Friday. It is equipped for communication with deaf persons. For more information, call 372-9400.

What car salesmen mean by "lowball" and "highball": Lowball is a price quotation set low to interest a prospect. It's then jacked up during the deal. Highball is a high offer on a trade-in. It's then whittled down during the pitch.

Get in shape in 1984

Grosse Pointers who have resolved to begin 1984 on a healthy note may consider the offerings in aquatics, sports, exercise and dance provided by the public schools' department of Community Education beginning in January.

For example, new-for-winter are four mini-sessions in aquatics for adults scheduled during the day. These include such two and three-week activities as a learn-to-swim class, a recreational swim, an aquatic work-out, and a safety-in-and-on-the water class.

In addition, the usual complement of recreational and open swims are planned for adults and families, as well as a wide variety of instructional, conditioning, competitive and special swim activities.

Square and round dancing classes, co-sponsored with the Grosse Pointe Council of Square Dance Clubs, are scheduled to begin in January.

Many classes are slated to begin the week of Jan. 9. These include racewalking, which meets twice weekly for 10 weeks and which will again be taught by expert Frank Alongi. Tennis classes, co-sponsored with the Grosse Pointe Indoor Tennis club also begin the week of Jan. 9.

Two volleyball classes are slated to begin the week of Jan. 9. One 10-week session will be held from 7:45 to 9:45 p.m. at Ferry on Mondays, while a 12-week session will be held in the gym at Monteith on Thursdays.

Other options include an open basketball session with no instruction beginning Tuesday, Jan. 10, at South High and Gym-Swim starts on Wednesday, Jan. 11.

The popular Hatha Yoga classes, again taught by Anne Ingalls, also begin the week of Jan. 16, with the Tuesday evening class meeting at Mason School, the Thursday class at Maire School.

Boating Safety, co-sponsored with the Grosse Pointe Squadron, begins Jan. 16 at North High.

Exercise for Arthritis begins on Monday, Jan. 23, at Brownell. A new-for-winter class entitled Juggling for Beginners starts at 5:30 p.m. on Monday, Jan. 23 at Ferry School. Classes in ballet and jazz dance will start on Jan. 26.

Basic Principles of Sailing will start Feb. 21.

Scheduled to start the week of Feb. 27 are three five-week classes in golf taught at North High by pro Walter Kerchinski.

Full information on the program of classes and activities scheduled by the public schools' department of Community Education is contained in the flyer which will be delivered via U.S. mail to all residences in the school district the week after Christmas. Copies will also be available in the public libraries as well as in the office of Community Education located at Brownell Middle School, 260 Chalfonte.

Thieves weather winter winds

The extreme drop in temperature last week didn't seem to dissuade thieves, according to Grosse Pointe Park police records.

On Monday, Dec. 19, a larceny of a cassette tape and radio was reported from an unlocked car parked in the 1400 block of Lakepointe.

And residents in the 1400 block of Three Mile Drive reported they returned home around 5 p.m., Wednesday, Dec. 21, and discovered that someone had kicked out their dryer covered basement window. Police said they have a suspect who reportedly took guns, jewelry and money in excess of $10,000.

Later that same evening, a woman leaving Verdonck's Bakery at 15046 Mack Avenue had her purse containing less than $2 snatched. Police said they trailed a suspect's footprints in the snow to a home in Detroit and will file charges in juvenile court against him. The woman was unharmed.

The flyer announcing the winter program of classes and activities of the department of Community Education of the Grosse Pointe public school system has been mailed to all residences in the school district.

Although most of the 10-week classes are scheduled to begin the week of Jan. 16, many of the offerings in sports, aquatics, and exercise start the week of Jan. 9.

A wide variety of offerings, including 126 new-for-winter classes, has been planned for the winter term encompassing January, February and March.

Single-session classes and others of three and four weeks' duration begin at convenient times and locations throughout the school district this winter.

Those who have not yet received a winter flyer may call 343-2178 or stop at the public library and its branches to obtain one.

Michigan tops in gas taxes

Michigan motorists became the highest taxed in the nation when gasoline taxes increased 2 cents per gallon Jan. 1, according to the Automobile Club of Michigan.

With the new tax, a gallon of gas priced at $1.26 (based on Auto Club's statewide average for self-serve no-lead), has 28.5 cents tax as parts of the cost: 15 cents state gas tax, 4.4 cents sales tax and 9 cents federal gas tax.

Most of the $65 million raised by the new tax increase will be used to repair and maintain the current road and highway system. Thirty-five percent of the money goes for work on state highways and the remainder for county roads, municipal streets and public transportation projects (bus, rail and subway).

Transportation officials say the tax increase will help them make headway on long-deferred highway improvements and enable Michigan to match federal aid totalling $356 million this year.

"While there are four other states with higher flat rate taxes, Michigan's 4 percent sales tax puts it at the top of the levy list," said Arthur C. Gibson, Auto Club's community relations manager.

States with higher flat rate gas taxes but no sales tax on fuel are Minnesota, 17 cents; Washington, 16; West Virginia, 15.35, and Nebraska, 15.3.

The upcoming increase will be the third in a series of state and federal fuel tax hikes since Jan. 1, 1983. The Michigan Legislature approved two 2-cent-per-gallon increase as a part of a $600 million transportation package passed in December 1982. Meanwhile, Congress approved a 5 cent per gallon increase in the federal gas tax effective last April 1.

Both state and federal tax hikes were prompted by escalating road repair costs and declining gas and weight tax revenues due to lighter, more fuel-efficient vehicles.

In addition to the gas tax hikes, the cost of registering a new car in Michigan increased last Oct. 1 when the state switched from fees based on vehicle weight to a tax based on price. License plate or tab fees for pre-1984 cars, non-commercial light trucks and vans still will be based on weight.

For example, a 1984 Ford LTD, four-door sedan, has a base price of $8,605 and weighs 2,804 pounds. Under the old weight system, the plates would cost $23. Under the new value system, the plates for the first year would cost $43.

"Plates purchased for new cars, trucks and vans jumped at least $4 and as much as $200," said Gibson. "Transportation officials are hoping to raise an additional $32 million this year from license fees."

The tax schedule for a new car starts at $30 for a vehicle whose base price (not including taxes, transportation costs or options) is $6,000 or less. From $6,000 to $7,000, the tax will be $33 and it goes up $5 for each additional $1,000 increase in base price. Vehicles which list for more than $30,000 are taxed at a flat 0.5 percent of the base price.

As the car ages, the registration tax will decline by 10 percent annually for three years and then freeze at that rate for the life of the vehicle.

"Because the new method is a tax, and not a fee as the current charge is, buyers of new cars will for the first time be able to deduct it from their federal income taxes," said Gibson.

Bible study group meets at Memorial

Grosse Pointe Memorial Church will begin its weekly Community Bible Class on Saturday, Jan. 7, from 10 to 11:30 a.m. designed just for the fun and satisfaction of discovering you can become a student of the Bible.

The study is led by The Reverend Stan Wilson and his wife, Marion. Coffee and donuts will be served. The class is open to anyone from seventh grade on. Walk-ins will be welcome at Memorial Church, 16 Lakeshore Road. Call 882-5330 for more information.

men came into the store, ordered a pizza and waited for other customers to leave. One of the pair then pulled a small nickel-plated revolver and announced the hold-up. The pair fled with more than $350 from the cash register and employees.

The two were described as between 25 and 30, one with a reddish colored beard and mustache, the other with a darker colored beard and mustache. Both were about 6 feet, 2 inches tall with large builds. One subject wore a green military type coat with a dark ski cap. The other wore a striped ski cap.

Two men fitting the same description robbed the Miracle Mile gas station, 20069 Mack, Thursday, Dec. 22. The two came around the back of the building and asked the attendant for a gas can.

The two fled on foot with about $90 in cash and change, reports said.

Giving a helping hand

Kerby Elementary School third grader Jack Lighton is pictured above with Lynn Zwickey, who visited the school last month to share some of his life's experiences with the younger generation. Zwickey demonstrated the old art of paper cutting to the class as part of a school system effort to use the talents of local senior citizens in the classroom.

Refresh skills by adult education

Non-credit classes for adults offered this winter by the department of Community Education in the area of careers and vocations include both those designed to refresh unused skills or to prepare students to enter new fields in the world of work.

SEMTA ready for winter snow

Should a severe snowstorm bring traffic to a standstill in the Detroit metropolitan area this winter, the Southeastern Michigan Transportation Authority, SEMTA, is ready with an emergency plan to battle the unfriendly elements.

The SEMTA Snow Emergency Plan is designed to adapt bus schedules in a way that will help commuters reach their destinations safely and as quickly as possible when severe weather snarls traffic," said SEMTA General Manager Gary W. Krause. During a snow emergency, schedules may be altered and some routes combined. However, while there may be some delays and reduced service, passengers will not be stranded, Krause added.

SEMTA constantly monitors weather conditions and when forecasters predict imminent snowstorms or blizzards, SEMTA will quickly move its snow emergency plan into action, allowing ample notice for passengers.

If a sudden snowstorm during the day affects the afternoon rush hour, a SEMTA representative will contact major employers to inform them of bus operating conditions and schedule changes since many employers release workers early. Passengers who work in the Detroit Central Business District can board outbound buses at regular bus stops or at key downtown locations to which they will be directed, according to SEMTA.

At each location, a SEMTA coordinator dressed in a poncho or wearing an identification badge will direct waiting passengers to correct buses. The coordinator will maintain radio contact with SEMTA Offices for up-to-the-minute details on available services.

Riders waiting for outbound buses at locations without SEMTA shelters will be able to wait inside heated buses which will be used as temporary shelters, SEMTA said.

In an afternoon rush hour emergency, SEMTA will make every effort to maintain regular outbound services; however, some bus routes may be detoured to avoid snowbound areas.

Following major, overnight snowfall which would affect morning rush hour schedules, SEMTA will operate bus service on major routes only. Commuters can learn which major routes are in service by listening to radio and television weather emergency bulletins or by calling the SEMTA Customer Information Center.

The SEMTA Snow Emergency Plan will go into effect when a storm or blizzard reaches such serious proportions that a state of emergency is declared by local and/or state government. If snow and traffic conditions dictate, SEMTA itself may declare an emergency traffic condition and put the storm emergency schedules into effect.

A brochure giving details of the plan and snow emergency bus routes can be obtained by calling the SEMTA Customer Information Center at 962-5515.

Sports Week

By Peggy O'Connor

That was the race that was . . .

I wonder if Gallagher Playfield on Detroit's lower east side is still attracting sports-minded kids, just as it did 16 years ago, when this sports-minded kid won her first and only competitive athletic endeavor, a speed skating race.

A cousin of mine lived not too far from the playfield and each winter, she'd encourage me to enter the speed skating races held there. One year, for some reason I cannot fathom, I did. The skating race then became a family event, with everybody piling into the car and accompanying me to the race.

I do remember that I didn't have any speed skates. I was, after all, only 10 and didn't really need fancy speed skates. And expensive skates held little importance when compared with food budgets and medical bills for a family of six. In shorts, my white, size six figure skates would have to do.

When they called for the 12 and under skaters, I lined up with the nine or 10 others like me who wore figure skates or hockey skates . . . except for one girl. She was tall, blond and athletic and in fact, looked like the female version of a picture of Hans Brinker I had at home; right down to the speed skates with the frightening looking blades. And we all know what Hans Brinker did.

My knees were shaking, either from cold or fear, and while I took some comfort from the fact that almost everybody else's knees were shaking, it wasn't enough. One look at Lady Hans and my legs (one's stock-in-trade in the speed skating profession) turned to Jello. While the rest of us stood shivering at the starting line, Lady Hans was putting herself through a series of rigorous warm-up exercises . . . right down on the ice.

Then the final whistle blew and we took our marks. I pulled my knit hat down around my ears and plotted a course around the rink which, I hoped, would, let me finish a respectable fourth of fifth and at the same time, save me from the ultimate disaster: sliding into the frozen ice barriers at the side of the track.

But speed skating, I discovered that afternoon, is not a sport meant for those who like it safe and easy. The gun sounded and we took off. After about 20 strides, I was horrified to find myself in second place. Lady Hans, of course, was first. Skimming along beside me in second place, were two other girls, just as surprised as I to be still standing, to say nothing of actually remaining in competition.

I can't remember the exact distance of the race, only that we had to circle the track twice. At the beginning of the second lap, I was dismayed to find myself still in the second spot. I was neck-in-neck with a girl in a red wool hat when I noticed that Lady Hans was dropping back a bit. "Probably trying to scare us," I thought to myself. "Or maybe, she's going to drop back, then sprint ahead by 50 to 60 yards to make us look worse than we already do."

But Lady Hans were beginning to tire. I don't know if it was the pirouette she'd made at the start of the second lap, or if those pre-race calisthenics were coming back to haunt her. But she was actually slowing down!

My red-capped skating mate was quick to take advantage of the situation. While I was still concerned with staying out of the ice barriers, she moved out of second and with a look of extreme surprise turned outside and sped past Lady Hans.

AT THAT POINT, I allowed myself to sneak a glance at Lady Hans, who was now exactly even with me. Her face was beet-red and she was perspiring more than the rest of the skaters put together. Still, she managed to reach back for one more run at the top spot. I was just happy to see her get away from me.

Neighborhood Club soccer year ends

Another successful Neighborhood Club fall soccer season came to a close with the championship games in the different leagues. Over 830 youngsters participated on 54 teams; overall, more than 200 games were played on soccer fields throughout the community. The tournament finals featured some exceptional soccer and closely fought contests.

In the boys' leagues, the Kicks won three straight games to take the fifth and sixth grade championship. They defeated the Surfs, 2-1, in the finals, after the Surfs had come through the losers' bracket. The only losses the Surfs had in the tournament were to the Kicks. Another close contest took place in the seventh and eighth grade league, as the Headers defeated the Roughnecks, 4-0, in the finals. Again, the Roughnecks lost to the Headers in the opening tournament game and won three straight in the losers' bracket before falling in the finals.

This year's girls' soccer program was a cooperative effort between the Grosse Pointe Soccer Association and the Neighborhood Club. In the Western League (grades two to four) the Cougars and Pintos tied with identical 5-2-1 records. The American League (grades five to seven) also saw the championship game end in a tie, as the Cool Dudes and Jets finished with 4-2-2 records. In the tournament for the Senior League (grades eight to 12), the Mustangs defeated the Express, 2-0, for the championship. The Mustangs finished the season with an exceptional 6-1-1 record.

Winning second place in the Giant League for the Roughnecks were players Paul Bartell, John Blake, Matt Frame, Bill Isbey, Bill Jones, Danny Kinsley, Peter Louisell, Mark Mathews, David McCormick, Phil Shore, E. Dale Wilson, Mark Wimsatt, Pat Wright, Matt Austin and Chuckie Weiss.

You can't have 830 players in a soccer league without plenty of help — and the GPSA and Neighborhood Club depend on many volunteers this fall.

Bernard is Muskateer

Grosse Pointe Walt Bernard is a Muskateer.

Bernard, a University of Detroit High School graduate, is a member of the Muskateers, Xavier University's men's swim team. A sophomore majoring in criminal justice at the Cincinnati, Ohio university, Bernard swims the sprint freestyle events for the Muskateers.

He is the son of Walt and Sally Bernard, of Hamilton Court.

Mite Division

The Mite division Kings suffered another setback when they were overwhelmed by the Bruins, 3-1. The Bruins opened the scoring with Jamie Bufalino skating the length of the ice and putting the puck past Kings' goalie Jamie Brock. Bufalino got his second goal later in the period; Chris Gibson assisting.

In the second period, Bufalino completed his hat trick on a goal assisted by Bryan Belanger. The third period saw the Kings get on the scoreboard when Pete Morgan took a Danny Bombich pass and fired the puck past Bruin goal Chuckie Schervish.

The game was highlighted by exciting offensive opportunities and defensive excellence by both teams.

Pee Wee

The Islanders beat the U.S.A. Olympians, 3-1, in a hard-fought game. It was the third time the Islanders topped U.S.A. in as many games this season.

John Olmsted opened the scoring in the first period on passes from Frank Lucido and Brendan Rohan. Lucido scored the second goal, with assists from Olmsted and Rohan. Rohan scored the final goal after taking a pass from Juan Ganum. Islander goalie Chris Stebbins just missed a shut-out when the puck went into the net off an Islander defenseman.

NORTH STARS-SABRES

It looks like the North Stars have the habit — the winning habit. The Stars' 6-3 victory over the Sabres was their fourth win in five games. Jimmy Alderton got a hat trick. Kevin Nugent scored twice and Jamie Osborne added one goal against the Sabres. Jack McSorley contributed to the North Stars' offensive assault with two assists and Billy Chave, Brad Hea and Derek Smith each added one assist.

Hea also played a strong game on defense against the speedy Sabres. Scott Soule, Ron Sables and Aaron Grose played well at both ends of the ice and first-year player Tre Morgeson excelled at tying up the opposition and playing position hockey.

The Sabres, an extremely aggressive-skating team, kept the North Stars on guard all night. Eddie Barbari scored two and just missed a hat trick, while Mike To-

Sports Week

She moved away from me and with about half a lap left, managed to catch up to the girl in the red hat. Red never belonged in first place and she knew it, for at the crucial point in the race... she looked back.

It was a fatal mistake. Most 12-year-old skaters can't look backwards and skate forwards at the same time and Red was no exception. She fell and began to roll. Right down the middle of the track. Directly in front of the speeding Lady Hans.

I don't think Lady Hans ever knew what hit her. She barreled into the Red Wool Hat, hit the ice and she and Red smashed into the dreaded ice barriers.

By this time, I was nearly in a state of shock. The rest of the pack had long since dropped out of the race and now with Red and Lady Hans decorating the scenery, I was in danger of winning the race. I couldn't bring myself to look down at the two girls struggling to get up from the ice... but I did anyway. My legs were aching and my lungs were frozen, but I passed the pair up and looked ahead to where I could see my dad at the finish line, waving wildly.

I struggled over the finish line, lost my footing and slid into the ice barrier. But I didn't care. I'd won the race, beaten Lady Hans, and made my family proud.

I waited around for a while, accepting congratulations from race officials and other racers. I watched as Lady entered and won two other races. There was some confusion, and I didn't get a medal in the awards ceremony. But I didn't care. As far as I was concerned, I had my medal.

The memory of struggling towards the finish line and looking back and seeing someone bigger, stronger and far more talented than I, flopping like a halibut on the ice, is one I'll treasure far longer than any old imitation-bronze medal.

I'm sure even Lady Hans would agree.

Mite Travel

The Grosse Pointe Blue Demons traveled to Icebox Rink Dec. 22 to defeat Woodhaven, 6-3. The win returned the Demons to contention for a possible first-place tie with Southgate in the Adray League. The Demons are 0-2 against Southgate, which lost to Woodhaven recently — a team the Demons beat easily.

Against Woodhaven, defenseman Cullen McMahon opened the scoring when he surprised the Woodhaven goalie on a long shot. Seven-year-old Sean Darke scored next with Kevin Brennan assisting. Mike Klobuchar, Marcel Chagnon (two) and Lanny Tracy scored the other goals.

Demon goalie Mark Tapp played one of the best periods of the season when he withstood several Woodhaven shots at the end of the game. The Demon defense of Joey Provenzano, Steve Solaka, Jumanee Benton and Troy Taylor played well when Woodhaven pulled its goalie twice; as did forwards Mark Primeau, Kip Gotfredson, Brad Eickhorst and Mike Carron.

The Demons join Computware as the two Michigan Mite travel teams accepted into the prestigious Wheatfield Tournament near Buffalo, N.Y., Feb. 25.

 LEE MARVIN
 ANGIE DICKINSON
 ANDREW STEVENS

DEATH HUNT Bronson is a reclusive furtrapper suspected of murder and Marvin is the Royal Canadian Mounted Police sergeant who trails him across the miles of sub zero near-Arctic wilderness. An action-packed, based-on-fact manhunt spanning more than 150 miles of frozen territory. A nifty adventure tale.

MELINDA DILLON JERRY HAUSER WOOOSIE KURTZ

SLAP SHOT Newman is the player-coach of a minor league ice hockey team and he's not getting any younger or any more successful. His team is falling down around him, his wife has walked out, and his job is caving in. Tired of being the more-or-less "nice guy" who finishes more last than first, second or third, he discovers a new and effective playing style that not only has the team performing above its heads, but is also packing fans into arenas around the league. It's called "rough and dirty", and the film is a fast-paced and fun-filled winner with something to say. Directed by George Roy (The Sting) Hit!

9-11:30PM NBC (8 Central/Mountain)

BRONCO BILLY CLINT EASTWOOD SONDRA LOCKE

BRONCO BILLY Clint Eastwood and Sondra Locke reteam for an intelligent and off-beat contemporary western that fans of Eastwood's legendary machismo won't particularly like, but a lot of other viewers will.

MON. JAN 9

BODY HEAT

WILLIAM HURT
 KATHLEEN TURNER

BODY HEAT William Hurt is a sleazy lawyer in a sleepy and steamy Florida hamlet, Kathleen Turner the beautiful young woman for whom he has an overpowering passion, Richard Crenna is the chillingly dangerous and cuckolded husband, and Mickey (Diner) Rourke is an oddly moral arsonist. Ted Danson is featured. Lawrence (The Big Chill) Kasdan's homage to the 1940's film noir of James M. Cain and Raymond Chandler, and suitably simmering with lust, greed and treachery. A terrific movie!

Four retire from schools

The Board of Education last month accepted notification of retirement from four staff members and granted a leave of absence to another.

Josephine Muir, a personnel department worker, and Pauline DiGuisto, secretary to the assistant principal at North High School, both announced they would leave the school system as of Jan. 1. Ms. Muir, a graduate of Grosse Pointe schools, has been employed by the system since 1942, when she began as a stenographer at Trombly Elementary. She has held positions at the high school and personnel department during her 38 years on the staff. Ms. DiGuisto joined the system in 1968 and worked at Richard for a year before she was transferred to North.

Retiring in June will be Defer sixth grade teacher Kenneth Starling and Jane Leonard, business education instructor at North High.

Starring left the Chrysler Corporation to work at Defer more than 22 years ago. He has been active at the school and for several years sponsored its Student Congress, an organization through which students discuss and solve their problems and concerns.

Mrs. Leonard, a former nun in the order of the Immaculate Heart of Mary, came to North High when it opened in 1968 after teaching at several parochial schools, the Santa Teresita School in Puerto Rico and Finney High School in Detroit. In addition to her teaching duties, Mrs. Leonard operates a Ypsilanti restaurant with her husband. She has managed North's bookstore for 14 years.

The school board also granted a leave of absence to Laura Charles, developmental pre-school teacher at Monteith. The leave is effective from now through Jan. 1, 1985. The board also appointed Christopher Julian as new custodian at Barnes Elementary School.

South's Cleminson Hall is rededicated

Cleminson Hall, South High School's original library, was rededicated recently and among the people on hand for the ceremony were (left to right) Mrs. Jane Barry, president of the South Mother's Club, William Yaeger, the artist who painted wall murals in the library in 1936, and Mrs. Walter Cleminson, wife of the man who was South High's principal from 1940 to 1957. South High graduated its first class (of 48 students) in 1928. This year's Student Association also helped enhance Cleminson Hall by donating $3,000 for new carpeting. The gift was accepted with appreciation and thanks to the students at South by the Board of Education at a recent meeting.

NEGC develops older adult drug program

Northeast Guidance Center is developing a program to address substance abuse problems of older adults in Detroit funded by a grant from the Detroit Bureau of Substance Abuse Services.

Adult Service Centers, Inc. and Southwest Detroit Community Mental Health Services, Inc. will work with Northeast to implement portions of the project goals.

The Elderly Substance Abuse Services Project consists of a nursing home component and a community based education and training component. The nursing home component provides assistance to the staffs of nursing homes to help them work with residents who may have or are suffering from the effects of an alcohol or drug dependency problem.

This provides direct substance abuse treatment to the elderly residents by exchanging service agreements with direct substance abuse treatment agencies located in Detroit.

The community-based portion provides substance abuse, aging and mental health information, education and training to both caregivers as well as elderly individuals living in semi-independent and independent arrangements.

Adult Service Centers, Inc. will provide a series of education workshops to senior citizens. Southwest Detroit Community Mental Health Services, Inc. will develop training programs for agencies that provide services to elderly people as a part of their normal programs.

A network of caregivers, community persons, grassroots organization and service agencies of the substance abuse, aging and mental health networks is being organized to assist with the implementation of this project. The project staff is also soliciting the involvement of aging and substance abuse service providers, medical and pharmaceutical professionals, and interested groups or individuals.

Caregiver and senior citizens workshop topics will include: the use, misuse and abuse of illegal and legal substances such as alcohol, prescription drugs and over the counter medications. Included will be information about adverse drug reactions and interactive effects of various prescribed medications. Special efforts will be made to offer the training to those who provide services to the homebound or shut-in elderly.

A newsletter designed to disseminate information on the issue of geriatric substance abuse will be developed and distributed by the project staff.

Project staff includes Carol M. Zielski, M.A., program supervisor, and Carol A. Glidden, M.S.W., project facilitator, both of Northeast Guidance Center; Patricia Knox Johnson, M.S.W., project coordinator, and Alma Ambrosio Chand, M.S.W., director of resource development and community relations, both of Southwest Detroit Community Mental Health Services, Inc.; and Shirley Givens, M.S.W., project coordinator at Adult Service Centers, Inc.

For more information, contact Ms. Zielski at 824-8000, ext. 285.

Rescue mission

The folks at the Belle Isle Nature Center report this Muscovy duck is doing just fine now, thanks to the efforts of Grosse Pointe City Lt. Duncan MacEachern (above) and his partner PSO Skip Fincham, who rescued the bird on Dec. 29. The red-billed duck was found by the officers frozen solid in the ice in the City's boat harbor at the park. The officers broke the ice around the bird and scooped it out with a net. They transported it down to the nature center.

From Another Pointe Of View

By Janet Mueller

Mrs. Frank Welcenbach, program chairman for the Detroit Review Club, will head a group of Grosse Pointe members who will attend the club's first meeting of 1984: a tour of the Detroit Science Center at 9:45 a.m. next Tuesday, Jan. 10, followed by a noon luncheon "across the street," at the Engineering Society of Detroit.

Official hostess is Mrs. Robert Gerisch, DRC president, who will be bringing a contingent of members from her Birmingham-Bloomfield area. Chairman of the day is Mrs. James J. Bird, a former teacher, fascinated by the energy and expertise of the younger generation and particularly interested in the Science Center.

Mary Alice Bird holds a Bachelor of Arts degree from Marygrove College, a Master of Arts degree from Wayne State University and a Library Science degree from the University of Michigan. She's a member of the American Association of University Women, the Women's Association for the Detroit Symphony Orchestra and the Auxiliary to the Salvation Army (a group founded by the late Delphine Dodge Ashbaugh, a past-president of DRC), and a volunteer at the Detroit Institute of Arts.

Art history, needlepoint and clubs are Mrs. Bird's hobbies. Young people are her enthusiasm. "What a heritage they will leave us! What a world they have been born into! The Detroit Science Center is just one of the many outstanding resources available to the younger generation, to help them enjoy and appreciate life to its fullest."

Francis E. Cogsdill, a former Chrysler executive, is the Science Center's director. He will guide the DRC group through the museum that the Dexter M. Ferry Jr. Trustee Corporation (The Ferry Foundation) spent $2.5 million to bring into being. Donations from individuals and corporations followed the original Ferry grant.

Dexter Ferry, a Pointe resident, brings his own advanced ideas to the DSC. He expects, when it is completed, that it will rival the Ontario Science Center in Toronto, which has drawn many local people to Canada.

He claims there are three things needed for a great exhibit. "It has to illustrate basic scientific principles. It has to attract people. And it has to TEACH something." According to Kay Welcenbach and Mary Alice Bird, the Detroit Science Center does all these things right now — and it's not even completed!

Detroit Review Club members are welcome to bring guests to this new year/new world program, but reminded to call Mrs. Bird immediately for reservations. Deadline is today. Cost is $12.50 per person, including luncheon.

Among those who have already sent in checks and are looking forward to a fascinating morning are Mrs. A. Ed-

Artists Market features fabrics in show opening tomorrow

The work of 22 fiber artists will be featured in "Impulse: New Images in Fabric," opening tomorrow, Friday, Jan. 6, and continuing through Feb. 3 at the Detroit Artists Market on Randolph Street in Harmonie Park.

The exhibition, curated by Gerhardt Knodel, internationally recognized fiber artist and head of the Fiber Department at Cranbrook Academy of Art, focuses upon works which extend the tradition of fabric, showing developments in imagery. All of the artists studied in Michigan.

"Impulse" is one of two shows being curated by Knodel as an exhibition in two parts. The second, "The Cranbrook Connection: New Images in Fabric" will be at the Elements Gallery in New York City Jan. 12 through Feb. 11. A catalog with slides documenting both shows will be available for purchase at the Detroit Artists Market.

The shows are running in conjunction with the current Detroit Institute of Arts exhibition "Design in America: The Cranbrook Vision," which documents the emergence of modern American design from 1925 to 1950.

A reception for the artists will be held a week from tomorrow, Friday, Jan. 13, from 5 to 7:30 p.m.

Vows spoken in Virginia

Laurene Marie DuMouchelle and Daniel Joseph McCarron exchanged marriage vows Saturday, July 2, in the garden at the boyhood home of Robert E. Lee in Old Town, Alexandria, Va., where a reception followed the ceremony.

The Reverend David Snyder presided at the 1 o'clock rites for which the bride, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence DuMouchelle, of Elm Court, selected a gown of ivory satin styled with a chiffon overskirt, an off-the-shoulder neckline trimmed in Alencon lace and sleeves of tucked organza and matching lace.

Her headpiece was a wreath of lace fleurettes, with a chiffon bow and streamers. She carried a fan of ivory satin and lace, with pale pink roses.

Honor attendant Debora Ann Martin, a former Grosse Pointe who now resides in Gaylord, and bridesmaids Nanette DuMouchelle, of New York City, and Suzanne DuMouchelle, sisters of the bride, wore dresses of pale pink chiffon crepe, featuring bertha collars of ecru lace. Each carried a single gardenia, with ivy.

The bridegroom, son of Mr. and Mrs. Francis John McCarron, of Tallahassee, Fla., was attended by Major F. Patrick McCarron and D.

Mr. and Mrs. Daniel J. McCarron

Michael McCarron as best men. Joseph and Robert DuMouchelle and Lieutenant Timothy R. O'Connell, the bridegroom's brother-in-law, seated the guests.

The mother of the bride wore an ecru lace trimmed dress of mauve crepe and pinned a cymbidium orchid to her matching purse. The bridegroom's mother chose a dress of lavender silk and a white orchid corsage.

The newlyweds vacationed on the Eastern Shore and in Annapolis, Md. They are making their home in Alexandria.

Varied winter schedule keeps Assumption busy

Assumption Cultural Center, located on Marter Road at the border of Grosse Pointe Woods and St. Clair Shores, is offering an assortment of classes designed to enhance, enlighten and exhilarate lives of men and women, boys and girls, during the long months of January and February.

You can shape up via the popular Kalosomatics exercise program, a nine-week progressive fitness plan which combines aerobics, isometrics, calisthenics, jogging, walking and yoga, all done to the beat of music.

Kalosomatics provides a total workout, with emphasis on building stamina and benefiting the heart and lungs. There are classes for women and men, co-ed classes — even a Kalo in Moderation for seniors and those interested in less strenuous exercise — scheduled throughout the day and evening, including early bird and Saturday classes to accommodate all life styles and commitments.

Winter need not be open season on eating. You can learn how to eat sensibly all year 'round at Assumption's Kalosomatics Nutrition Seminars. Diet Center's Mary Busse will analyze the social factors involved in eating; her six-week Nutrition and Behavior Modification program begins Thursday, Jan. 19. This class stresses the food groups and demonstrates a method for planning and maintaining a diet for better health.

A one-day seminar, "Live a Healthy and Longer Life through Proper Nutrition," will be offered by Dr. Larry Powers, Wayne State University professor and popular television guest, on Friday, Feb. 10.

You can dance in the new year by enrolling in Assumption classes ranging from couples' square dancing to an eight-week ballet program for beginners and advanced students. Modern dance classes are also available.

Arts and crafts programs can teach you how to paint a sweatshirt, do macrame or needlework or draw to keep yourself busy during the winter months. Silk flower arrangements add color and a bit of spring to any home. If you have a wedding ahead, the Wedding Silks class is a grand opportunity to learn how to design inexpensive arrangements of silk and fresh flowers — and add a personal touch of beauty to your special day.

Need a change of hairstyle? A new make-up technique? An assortment of colors that are right for you and your spring wardrobe? Lamia Salon will demonstrate wonderful ways to work with hair on Wednesdays, Feb. 22 and 29. Assumption's Margaret Akars will focus on proper techniques of make-up application Tuesday, Feb. 21. Among other self-improvement possibilities available at Assumption are "Gorgeous Nails" classes, designed to help participants save money while maintaining beautiful fingernails.

You might consider developing culinary skills with Helen Huber, of the Libby Hillman Cooking School in New York. "Elegant Brunches," "February Holiday Luncheons" and "Leap into Spring" are the three featured classes. Instruction is offered, too, in microwave cooking techniques, and you can learn to make your own chocolate Valentines under Irene Rousos' direction at 7:30 p.m. Thursday, Feb. 2.

Baklava, avgolemono and moussaka are among the authentic Hellenic culinary delights you will learn to prepare in Assumption's Greek Cooking classes. Modern Greek language, Greek History and Greek Folk Dancing round out the Greek Culture segment of classes offered at the center. You could take one... or all four, to prepare for an Assumption-sponsored tour of Greece and cruise of the Greek Islands June 23 through July 6.

You can find out more about this Greek trip on Friday, Feb. 3, at a free Travel Information Night. Refreshments will be served.

If you're concerned about keeping young people active this winter, why not enroll your teen in one of Assumption's Ace Driving School sessions? The list of center activities for those in the 7 to 12 age range includes Pre-Teen Kalosomatics, tap, ballet, jazz, "Be a Better Sitter," "Fun with Art," Pee-Wee Karate and La Petite Cuisine, as well as a popular gymnastics program.

Children up to 5 are invited to enjoy Creative Dance, Kiddie Kalo and La Petite Cuisine for Tots. Parents can take a four-week course designed to "Maximize Your Pre-Schooler's Potential."

Assumption Nursery School and Toddler Center is accepting enrollments for the coming year, for children age 12 months to 6 years. Day care, pre-school and kindergarten programs are offered.

A complete listing of winter activities aimed at keeping you and your family physically fit, challenging your creativity and stimulating your mind may be obtained by calling Assumption, 775-6111.

Christmas sharing tradition continues . . .

Santa's Christmas Eve visit was a great success throughout Wayne County, due to the generosity of children in local elementary, nursery and church schools who collected more than 1,700 gifts for distribution to the Department of Social Services' Foster Care Children. Pictured above about to climb in their sleighs on Dec. 15 are "delivery elves" ERICA LINDOW (right), president of LINC — that's Linking Individuals to Needs in the Community, in case you didn't know — and JUDY HATTON, chairman of the Foster Care Children's Gift Program which, each year, helps to provide a brighter Christmas for 2,500 Foster Children in the area.

A new Dance Slimnastics series begins

Keep in shape this winter with members of Dance Slimnastics, Ltd., as a new, eight-week session of aerobic fitness workouts begins the week of Jan. 9 in Grosse Pointe and Harper Woods.

"I'm Alive" classes will be held Mondays and Wednesdays at 9:30 a.m. (baby sitting service available) and Tuesdays and Thursdays at 6:45 p.m. at Christ the King Lutheran Church on Mack Avenue, and Mondays and Wednesdays at 6:45 p.m. at Grosse Pointe Woods Presbyterian Church, also located on Mack Avenue.

Afternoon classes are scheduled for 4 p.m. Tuesdays and Thursdays at St. Michael's Episcopal Church on Sunningdale Park. The J.F.K. Library on Harper Avenue in Harper Woods will be the site for 7 p.m. Monday and Wednesday classes.

The classes involve an updated format, giving fitness-minded individuals the chance to stretch to rock music, warm-up to popular tunes, gyrate to rock and roll and cool-down to a country western sound. Each begins with a series of calisthenic floorwork routines designed to give concentrated toning to waist, hips and thighs.

This floorwork, set to up-beat music, is followed by a series of dance routines which improve the cardiovascular system for overall fitness. The workouts finish with a cool-down and stretch segment.

Dance Slimnastics' "Free Class Option" allows extra workouts at no additional cost per week. The club is again offering its "Recruit A Rookie" feature, enabling eligible students to earn a discount on their class fees by sponsoring new students.

Additional information may be obtained by calling 886-7534 or 882-5783.

Christ Church to host Verna Dozier's talks

Verna Dozier is coming to Christ Church, Grosse Pointe, Tuesday, Jan. 17, and Wednesday, Jan. 18, to speak to the Episcopal Church Women, church school teachers, the parish and community. She will give three addresses in the Christ Church Undercroft.

Her ECW message on Tuesday, "Called to be Saints," at 10:15 a.m. will be followed by a luncheon. That evening, her 7:30 to 9:30 p.m. message to church school teachers will be "Called to Teach."

Her Wednesday evening 7:30 to 9:30 p.m. message to a general parish and community audience is entitled "Called to Make a Difference." The public is welcome at any or all of these sessions, but advance reservations must be made for the Tuesday luncheon by calling the church office, 865-4041.

Ms. Dozier, a native Washingtonian who holds Bachelor and Master of Arts degrees from Howard University and an honorary doctorate from Virginia Theological Seminary, has retired as assistant director of the Department of English of the District of Columbia Schools. As a member of St. Mark's Parish, Capitol Hill, she is a free-lance consultant for Bible Study, experimental education and ministry of the laity, and a retreat leader.

She is a member of the board of the Alban Institute, Council of the College of Preachers, Washington Cathedral. She also serves on the board and is one of the trainers of the Mid-Atlantic Association for Training and Consultation.

She is author of "Equipping the Saints," a handbook for lay Bible Study, a tape, "The Story of the Bible," and "The Authority of the Laity." She will share her provocative ideas, which include emphasis on what lay people should be doing outside of the church structure to help make the world a better place for all, with her Grosse Pointe audiences.

The party is being planned by Lyn and Doug Peoples, chairmen, from whom tickets can be ordered at $16 (885-8253), with assistance from Carol and Joe Bibeau, Charlotte and Phil Adamaszek, Mary and Dick Urisko and Pam and John Fitzgerald.

The Cranbrook Vision on View

The Science Center is part of Detroit's University Cultural Center. So is the Detroit Institute of Arts, where "Design in America: The Cranbrook Vision 1925-1950" is on view through Feb. 19, premiering at-home before embarking on a two-year tour that will include New York, Helsinki, Paris and London.

June Nelson, local art historian and author, has prepared a special class for the Grosse Pointe Public Schools' Department of Community Education. Designed to help those who plan to see the exhibit that traces the influence of Bloomfield Hills' Cranbrook Academy of Art on modern architecture and design from the Fames chair to the St. Louis Arch, it will be held next Wednesday, Jan. 11, at 1 p.m. at the Edsel & Eleanor Ford House.

"The development of the Academy and its artists is explored for the first time in this major exhibition, traced through 240 masterworks from public and private collections," Mrs. Nelson notes. "Included are works by architect Eliel Saarinen and his family, designers Charles and Ray Eames, furniture designer Florence Knoll, metalsmith Harry Bertoia, sculptor Carl Milles, painter Zoltan Sepeshy and other distinguished Cranbrook faculty and alumni."

The Cranbrook Vision was organized by the Detroit Institute of Arts and the Metropolitan Museum of Art, in cooperation with the Cranbrook Academy of Art, and is assisted by grants from IBM Corporation, the National Endowment for the Arts, the National Endowment for the Humanities and the Detroit Institute of Arts' own Founders Society.

It's a terrific show, one you'd get a lot out of, even without Mrs. Nelson's help — but you'll get so much more out of it if you take her class. The $4.50 fee must be paid in advance, at the Department of Community Education, located in Brownell Middle School on Chalfonte Avenue. The number to call for more information is 343-2178.

A Third Symphony Preview

After an afternoon of art, how about an evening of music? The Detroit Symphony League and Village Records and Tapes present the third of this season's Symphony Previews, co-sponsored with WQRS-FM, next Wednesday, Jan. 11, at 8 p.m. at Village Records and Tapes on Kercheval Avenue in (where else?) The Village.

Returning by popular demand is the series' special host, John Guinn, Detroit Free Press critic. He will discuss pieces by Alban Berg and Gustav Mahler.

The five Previews provide interesting and informative background on the DSO's seasonal repertoire. The Detroit Orchestra, under guest conductor Hiroshi Wagasuki, will perform the Berg-Altenberg Lieder and violin concerto and Mahler's Fourth Symphony the weekend after the Village Records and Tapes program.

Guinn's informal review will cover the histories and personalities of the pieces and their composers. It's aimed at everyone, classical music neophyte to professional performer.

Admission is free. Further information may be obtained by calling 886-6039.

Open Saturday at Four music series Jan. 14

"Saturdays at Four," the mostly chamber music series sponsored by Marygrove College, will dedicate its Jan. 14 concert, first of the 1984 season, to the memory of Sister John Clement Hungerman, IHM, killed Nov. 7 in an apparent robbery outside her home.

Performing in Denk Chapman Hall of the Madame Cadillac Building on the Marygrove campus will be professional musicians from the Detroit area. They include a pair of Pointe residents, soprano Roma Riddell and pianist Lawrence LaGore, and the Detroit String Quartet: James Waring, violin, Inez Redman, violin, David Ireland, viola, and John Thurman, cello.

The program begins with Mozart's Piano Concerto in A, K. 414, originally for piano, horn and strings — but according to LaGore, artistic director of "Saturdays at Four," Mozart wrote to his editor that the piece could be performed with piano and strings... which is how it will be presented by LaGore and the Detroit String Quartet at Marygrove.

Riddell will then perform three songs by Samuel Barber and Magda's Aria, "To This We've Come," from Menotti's opera "The Consul."

Following intermission, all the performers will present "Chanson Perpetuelle" by Chausson. The concert will conclude with Beethoven's String Quartet in F minor, Op. 95; this year's "Saturdays at Four" series features works of Beethoven at every performance.

Admission to the concert, partially funded by a grant from the Michigan Council for the Arts, is $5 for adults, $2.50 for students and senior citizens, including a meet-the-artists wine and hors d'oeuvres reception immediately following the performance.

Further information may be obtained by contacting the series' managing director, Sue Ann Vanderbeck, at the Marygrove Music Department, 862-8000, Extension 290 or 316.

Lakeside Palette Club to convene

Lakeside Palette Club members gather for their regular meeting Tuesday, Jan. 10, at 7:30 p.m. in the Teen Room of the St. Clair Shores Recreation Center on Jefferson Avenue. Marilyn Derwenskus, the evening's visiting artist, will give a watercolor demonstration and a slide presentation. Visitors and prospective members are welcome, at a nominal charge.

Concert night for Phase I

Phase I, the organization for single, young adults, ages 20 through 39, who gather regularly for Sunday evening program meetings at Grosse Pointe Memorial Church, attended the Seventh Annual Kenneth Jewell Chorale Christmas Concert at Memorial Church on Sunday, Dec. 18.

The concert always attracts a capacity crowd, so Phase I members gathered in the hallway off the rear parking lot, near the coat racks, at 7 p.m. in order to enter the sanctuary as a group when doors opened at 7:30 p.m. Post-performance, they rendezvoused in the hallway again before going out for refreshments.

Schedule Macomb Secretaries meeting

"Secretary of the Year" will be the program for the Macomb Chapter of Professional Secretaries International's monthly dinner meeting Wednesday, Jan. 11, at the Gazebo on Mound Road in Warren. Cash bar service begins at 5:30 p.m. A dinner buffet, at $10.50 per person, will be served at 6:30 p.m.

Further information on PSI, the Macomb Chapter and/or the January meeting may be obtained by contacting Linda Terzo at 574-3400.

Macomb County Community College, in cooperation with the Macomb PSI Chapter, will offer a series of four Professional Development for Secretaries courses during its winter/spring semester: Jan. 24 through April 19.

The series is designed to help the experienced secretary keep pace with technological advances in business, to assist former secretaries returning to the work force, to challenge specialized secretaries interested in changing career paths and to help secretaries in general. Further information may be obtained by calling 445-7417.

Coupon refund usage is rising

Coupon refund usage is at an all-time high, but the paper blizzard it's created is threatening its existence. The number of coupons distributed by manufacturers skyrocketed from 72.7 billion in 1978 to 119.5 billion in 1982, according to the Nielsen Clearinghouse Division of A.C. Nielsen Company.

This 65 percent increase makes coupons, rebates and refunds the most rapidly growing form of advertising.

High unemployment, inflation and generally poor economic conditions are cited as reasons why coupons have caught on with consumers. Marketers are shifting to coupons, rebates and refunds because the cost of media advertising has increased so dramatically.

Four out of five United States households redeem coupons, and one-fourth of all United States households are frequent coupon redeemers. According to a study by Burke Marketing Research, 36 percent of all redeemers account for 70 percent of all redemptions. Last year alone, shoppers cashed in $1.5 billion in coupons.

How are frequent redeemers different from sometime redeemers? Over 50 percent of frequent redeemers have households of three or more and 41.7 percent have incomes greater than $25,000.

Frequent redeemers are predominantly female. Their average purchase of $31.04 for each store visit is considerably higher than the $16.86 average spent by non-redeemers and occasional redeemers. So coupons influence shoppers to spend more money and thus pay their own way.

Or do they? Tim Hammonds, vice-president of the Food Marketing Institute, says its research shows that consumers now go into a food store not with a shopping list but with a handful of coupons. Hammonds contends that manufacturers using coupons have a very good short-run strategy to increase consumption of their food products.

But in the long run they're encouraging shoppers to switch brands - and that is contributing to the decline in brand loyalty for their products.

Refund offers have been around at least as far back as the 1890s, when C. W. Post sent a penny to anyone who mailed in the top off one of its cereal boxes.

Food stores are still the biggest redeemers of coupons. About 60 percent of liquor, tobacco and clothing are also into refunds and rebates. This is expected to push distribution to 130 billion during 1983.

The rapid growth of offers has created a paper blizzard and problems for manufacturers and retailers. Retailers often have to wait a long time for their reimbursement. Sometimes manufacturers are victims of organized coupon-clipping businesses that run phony supermarkets. This has prompted some large newspapers to keep coupon inserts in guarded warehouses.

Some shoppers contribute to the problem, especially when cash refunds are involved. Some of the most frequent refund redeemers go through trash dumps and use almost any other means to get proofs of purchase without purchasing. They categorize the empty packages, and have them all ready for the next refund offer.

Manufacturers have tried to thwart this by requiring cash register receipts (with the product's price circled) and unusual proofs of purchase.

The rising cost of couponing may turn out to be the solution. Trade groups are suggesting an increase in the handling charge. The increase may make offers too costly for the binge to last.

Child abuse line is open

A child abuse and neglect information line funded by the Michigan Department of Social Services and staffed and operated by DEC, Inc., is now operational. This toll-free, statewide HELP line is designed to help parents under stress find community resources to assist them.

Additionally, community residents who wish to volunteer their time to help parents under stress may call the number: 1-800-942-HELP.

It is not a reporting line. Callers who wish to report suspected child abuse and neglect will be given the telephone number of their local Protective Services office, and supported in their efforts.

HELP line staff will also refer callers to additional, appropriate agencies in their community; agencies that offer services to stressed parents are invited to contact the HELP line to insure that staff have accurate, up-to-date information on these services.

A key to help children who are being abused or neglected is to help their parents obtain the community's concern and resources.

"All of us know that in order to help children who are abused or neglected, we must also help their parents," says Shirley Tate, director of the Department of Social Services Office of Children and Youth Services.

Christmas in Camelot, the Fontbonne Auxiliary of Saint John Hospital's 30th annual White Christmas Ball, has passed into the realm of legend now — but oh! What fun it was to live it! It was, indeed, a magic evening for some 500 guests who found the Great Hall of the Country Club of Detroit transformed into Merlin's Forest... who danced the night away, after a delicious dinner, to the music of Lester Lanin and his New York Orchestra... who took pleasure in every aspect of an absolutely perfect party, including the fact that funds raised from it will help Saint John's Concentrated Care Building, currently under construction, rise higher and higher.

1 tsp. dry mustard
Whole cloves and brown sugar
Chicory leaves for garnish

Drain peach halves, reserving 1/2 cup liquid; arrange cut side up on bottom of 9x5x3-inch loaf pan. Combine reserved syrup with the next 7 ingredients; mix well; press over peaches. Bake in preheated 350° oven for 1 1/4 to 1 1/2 hours. Drain off excess juices; invert on warm serving platter. Stud peaches with whole cloves and sprinkle with brown sugar. Bake 5 minutes. Makes 8 servings.
