

Consolidation of police and fire departments

Park launches two public safety studies

By Harriet Nolan

Fulfilling one of his campaign promises, Grosse Pointe Park Mayor Palmer Heenan appointed a citizen committee to study the feasibility of having a public safety department in the Park at the Jan. 23 council meeting.

This fact-finding group follows close on the heels of the newly formed administration committee headed by John Crawford, city manager. On Jan. 18, Crawford held an orientation meeting with officials and representatives from all ranks of the police and fire departments. Dialogue from these meetings will be compiled and referred to council and the mayor's citizen committee within 60 days.

"I informed the mayor that I was going to do this some time ago and he feels good about the idea," said Crawford, who noted that contract negotiations three years ago called for participation by these two groups on any future study committees on public safety.

Mayor Heenan said he expects the citizens committee to work parallel to the administration committee "to contribute some outside and objective input into the situation and then give council the support they need to understand the benefits and burdens of such a transition.

"The rule of thumb is one should get 20 percent more in service or you should cut your budget by 20 percent. The goal of such a reorganization is to increase the efficiency and delivery of public safety services 10 to 30 percent. It's a way of making government more effective and giving more services for the taxpayers dollars.

"That won't come immediately, but over a period of time, hopefully within two years," he added.

Heenan noted that other Pointe communities, the Shores, Woods and the City, already have public safety. He said he spoke on Jan. 20 with Farms Mayor James Dingeman, whose city is currently studying the issue. "They're looking forward to bringing it into effect there," Heenan said.

Last week, Farms city administrators and union officials from the Police Officers Association of Michigan (POAM) confirmed that a series of negotiations have been taking place, but declined to discuss any of it.

By appointing this committee, Heenan is making good on one of his campaign promises when he used the issue of increasing crime in the Park as one of his platforms during the mayoral race last November.

At that time he said police needed to be more visible to deter crime and that some firemen "not fully occupied during the day need to be taken out of the fire station, trained and put into the streets." He named public safety as his No. 1 priority and promised to study it if elected.

The mayor and John Crawford, city manager, don't predict any layoffs if a public safety department is formed. According to Crawford, there are about 10 personnel ready for retirement and this may be "incentive for them."

Mayor Heenan appointed, with council's approval, Stephen Wasinger, attorney with Honigman, Miller, Schwartz & Cohn, chairman of the citizens committee.

Also appointed were Patricia Forster, Park councilwoman; Jerome F. Driscoll, senior vice-president of Ralph Wilson Agency Inc.; David K. Easlick, Jr., attorney with Butzel, Long, Gust, Klein & Van Zile; William Harder, heating contractor; Louis Mleczo, staff reporter for The Detroit News; John W. Hibbard, attorney with the Detroit Legal News; Philip G. Tannian, former Detroit Police Chief, now an attorney with Nederlander, Dodge & McCauley, P.C.; and John Hausner, Wayne County Circuit Judge.

Four other Park residents were also appointed to the committee.

Councilwoman Patricia Forster nominated Camille Peterson, former Park councilwoman and now administrative assistant at the Psychiatric Center of Michigan and James Waterston, vice chairman of Comerica.

Councilman David Gaskin suggested Frederick Olds, from the Internal Revenue Service and Park fire lieutenant William Hunt recommended John Molinari, Ph.D., a microbiologist at the University of Detroit.

What's in a name?

I guess there's not too much in the way of "happy news" over at South High School lately. A letter to the editor in the Jan. 18 edition of "The Tower" took school administrators to task accusing them of "over reacting" when a student public address system announcer wished former president "Dick Nixon" a happy birthday Jan. 10.

According to the letter writers, a school official came on the PA later in the day and apologized to the school for what happened and reported that the offending student would no longer make PA announcements and would be further punished.

The problem? Seems some of the teachers were upset because the student referred to President Nixon as "Dick," instead of Richard. Speaking of names, the letter was written by Tim Vick and Bill Kalaridos, president and vice-president of the "Love Our Country Club."

Do they mean the Country Club of Detroit or the U.S. of A.?

Ain't life strange?

That's some catch, that Catch-22. Anthony and Refka Simon, owners of the building that housed the "Rainy Day Company," the popular artists supply store on Mack Avenue that burned down last month, have applied to rebuild the structure.

Unfortunately, the Woods turned down their request. According to the zoning laws, the new store, which will be the same size as the old store, has a parking deficiency.

But what about the fact that the store had those same deficiencies when it was operating before the fire?

"Unfortunately, that doesn't count," said a Woods city official. "The building was built before the new zoning ordinances went into effect in 1962. As long as the store was there, everything was fine, but now they're a new building and have to meet the newer qualifications."

Ironically, those zoning ordinances were adopted on the recommendation of planning consultant Brandon Rogers. Rogers had brought a 1911 watercolor into the Rainy Day Co. for framing just before the fire started.

Luckily the painting, which was of Rogers' mother and grandmother at a Fourth of July celebration with a group of Civil War veterans, was recovered from the fire unharmed.

Apparently the next step for the Simons' will be to appeal to the Woods Board of Appeals in quest of a parking requirement variance.

On ice

In an effort to shake up my increasingly sedentary lifestyle, I journeyed over to the Farms Pier Park Monday afternoon to substitute ice skating for my usual two Coney Island lunch.

What a mistake. I can tell you exactly the last time I ice skated. I played in a hockey game the evening of March 20, 1968, the day before I left for San Diego and Marine Corps boot camp. You're not likely to forget a date like that.

I'm sorry to say that the only thing rustier than my hockey skates was their owner. The Pier Park has three gorgeous ice rinks, and luckily I was the only person there. I've always preferred to make a fool of myself in private.

Talk about a weird feeling! The skates were so stiff and unbending, it was like putting my feet into two tiny steel coffins. And I couldn't seem to get them tight, like in the old days. The laces were tight at the top and bottom, but bulged in the middle. Perhaps they were just imitating my build.

Just walking from the new boat house to the ice was a trip, to say nothing of skating itself. When I first stepped onto the ice, my feet

A building 'boomlet' on horizon?

By Susan McDonald

If the current upswing in home sales continues, new houses could be rising as fast as crocuses and tulips when spring thaws Grosse Pointe. Three new subdivisions stand ready to build and add a potential 76 homes to the market. It would be Grosse Pointe's first construction boom in years.

Developers of Henry Ford II's condominium Windemere Place, the Sycamores and Briarwood Place all started construction of at least one unit before the big chill set in. And they're confident orders for new homes will pick up when warmer shopping weather comes 'round.

It's the kind of news that makes city fathers smile. The 76 units — priced between $280,000 on Briarwood and $425,000 at Windemere — could add $11 million to the tax rolls. In public school taxes alone, that would raise $350,000 a year.

Three or four requests for new home building permits usually make their way into Farms Director of Public Service John Defoe's office annually. This year he could see 50 requests if both Windemere and Briarwood sell out.

"The last subdivision built in the Farms was 10 or 15 years ago — the Willison sub with eight homes," Defoe said.

Grosse Pointe City manager Thomas Kressbach noted there isn't much room to build in the Pointes, except when an old mansion is split up. "There just hasn't been any available land for young people who want to build new homes," he said. If the Sycamores, built on the former Wesson Seyburn estate in the City, finds buyers this spring, it could not only add to the tax rolls but may help "balance the city demographically by bringing in young people," Kressbach said.

Sycamores is an unusual development for Grosse Pointe City in that lot sizes are a few thousand square feet below normal requirements. Its developers, 1001 Services, Inc., a subsidiary of First Federal Savings, sought permission for the smaller lots because they planned to gear the development to "empty nesters," couples whose children have grown and left the family. Such buyers often prefer the lower maintenance requirements of small properties.

Sycamores, named after the double row of gnarled trees that line the main drive, was started in 1982. Today only two homes are standing. But Hugo Higbie, who with R.G. Edgar is marketing the subdivision, says inquiries have been "very active" in recent months. Three of the 18 lots have been sold and two or three other deals are about to close, Higbie said. And it's not just "empty nesters" who are buying.

"One of the lake lots sold to an empty nester, the other to a bachelor," Higbie said. "It's a broad range of people who are looking and inquiring now — people who want to own a big new house on a small lot that is not a condominium."

Both Sycamores houses have three bedrooms and lots of "extras" like a mezzanine library that overlooks the living room. They have between 2,800 and 3,400 square feet and are priced at about $325,000. The house on lot 17 is open every Sunday from 2 to 5 p.m.

"Empty nesters" are the targets of Henry Ford II's condominium development, Windemere Place, as well. Special zoning consideration was given to developers there by the Farms City Council to allow the "cluster housing" that is linked by a common wall. The two and three bedroom homes range from 2,600 to 3,100 square feet and sell for between $350,000 and $425,000, according to Curt Clauser, one of the developers.

So far, Windemere has not required any marketing effort and 11 lots are spoken for.

"Everything's been done by word of mouth and response has been very good," Clauser said. "If things proceed as they have over the

Cottage tells Hill merchants, deck is near

By Tom Greenwood

Administrators from both Cottage Hospital and the Farms agree that the only real problem currently holding up the construction of the hospital's proposed parking deck is where to concentrate any additional traffic that may be caused by the construction of the deck and an accompanying retail/office building fronting Kercheval.

At a recent meeting of the Hill Merchants Association, hosted by Cottage Hospital, architects from Louis G. Redstone Associates, designers of the deck, revealed two architectural plans to the merchants.

Both plans showed the parking deck built to the east of Kercheval behind the proposed new office building, and running along Main Road across from the hospital.

Both plans were identical, with the exception of the placing of a service area earmarked for the loading and unloading of trucks. Both also showed that Cottage plans to install a new main entrance located midway along the building and facing Muir Road, where hospital offices are now located.

Drive up windows

The plans show an entrance way to the parking lot coming in off Kercheval Avenue located between the Bronze Door restaurant and where the old Standard station now stands.

The service drive would allow in trucks and passenger cars destined for the drive up windows of Standard Federal Savings which will have a branch office on the main floor of the new retail/office building.

The difference in the plans lies with the placing of the truck service area. One plan calls for the service area to be placed adjacent to the parking deck and located between the deck and the office building, thus serving both locations.

The other plan places the service area adjacent to the parking deck, but on the south side of the construction, hundreds of feet away from the new office building.

More traffic certain

Leo G. Shea, president of Redstone Associates and principal in charge of the project, said that a traffic engineer had been consulted about future traffic problems on the Hill.

"Basically, the engineer said there would be more traffic but the situation shouldn't be too bad," said Shea. "The worst time for traffic congestion is when the day shift leaves work and is replaced by the afternoon shift. Add to this truck traffic, people visiting patients in the hospital and banking traffic and you can see what might happen."

"Basically, we're afraid that the traffic may congest on Muir Road in front of the new entranceway, where people will be driving up and dropping off

Rock and Roll

Local cops seek accused con

By Mike Andrzejczyk

A man supposedly responsible for a pile of bad bills, bogus autographs and bilking at least two Michigan women out of cash reportedly walked away from a minimum security prison and into rock-and-roll, police say.

Frederick Norman Bowman, 31, faces examination Jan. 30 in 47th District Court on charges of receiving money under false pretenses in connection with a Farmington Hills woman's claim Bowman allegedly called himself Randy Bachman, of Bachman-Turner Overdrive, and took her for $1,200.

And Grosse Pointe Woods police say they're waiting for Bowman to have his day in district court so they can arraign him on similar charges in municipal court. Police believe Bowman used the Bachman moniker to talk an Algonac woman into removing $1,439 from her Woods bank and turning it over to him.

And there are other cities waiting in the wings to bring Bowman before an arraignment judge, Woods police say. According to Woods officer Paul Crook, Bowman's two-week spree may have begun in late September in the Woods.

The story began in June, 1981.

U.S. cable bill could weaken local control

By Mike Andrzejczyk

Depending on who's doing the telling, the story of cable television deregulation is either happy or horrid.

Cable company operators say the proposed federal legislation, currently before the House Energy and Commerce Committee chaired by John Dingell, D-Taylor, will create a competitive telecommunications industry that will benefit the consumer. Federal legislation will also eliminate over-regulation by local government and give companies some guarantees their franchises will be renewed.

Local officials, the Michigan Municipal League and the National League of Cities charge the legislation would erode home rule, eliminate rate and service regulations and weight the franchise renewal process heavily in favor of the cable company.

The only thing the two sides agree on is that the legislation will probably make its way to the House floor some time this year.

Congress has been trying to form a national policy on telecommunications. Edward Dooley of the National Cable Television Association (Continued on Page 12A)

Film explores life of Jung

The Center for Jung Studies will present "The Story of Carl Gustav Jung," a three-part color film, on Sunday, Jan. 29, from 2 to 4 p.m., at Miller Hall, Christ Church, 61 Grosse Pointe Boulevard. Laurens van der Post, the South African anthropologist, writer and close friend of Carl Jung, narrates the film.

The three parts of the film are shown together as one unit. "In Search of the Soul" depicts Jung's childhood, student years and relation with Freud. Next is "67,000 Dreams" which portrays Jung's work as a psychiatrist, the building of the tower at Bollingen, his travels and developing work on the collective unconscious. "The Mystery that Heals" shows Jung in old age, the Eranos Conference, the death of Mrs. Jung, silence and the silence broken, and the final dream.

Following the film, there will be a discussion and Anne Strang and Helen Waldron will present an introduction to Centerpoint for interested persons. Centerpoint is a small group process, designed for people who feel a need for a context to develop new insights about the meaning of their lives. The program is specifically for people who feel that a psychological framework is valuable for them.

Services for Older Citizens is offering senior citizens basic home repairs at low cost. The project also serves handicapped people regardless of age, and is open to Grosse Pointe and Harper Woods low or moderate income residents.

The non-profit corporation, launched in 1979, offers repair of leaky faucets and plumbing, door locks, caulking and storm windows.

Also offered is electrical work and basic masonry, like concrete or brick step repair. Home and yard tasks like cleaning gutters, removing storm windows, and spring and fall clean-up are also offered.

There is a fee of $4 per work assignment, plus the cost of materials needed. The fee can be discussed at the time of inquiry. The fee covers only part of the costs, however; much of the support comes from the residents of the area and the Wayne County Office of Intergovernmental Affairs and Management.

School recall drive launched

By Susan McDonald

About 225 people braved the minus 21 degree temperature Saturday to send the Board of Education an even chillier message. The Committee for Neighborhood Elementary Schools — Recall started its drive to "obtain a majority on the School Board in June . . . (to) put a halt to the closure of Barnes and the sixth grade switch."

Committee workers met in the ballroom of the War Memorial, decorated for the occasion with balloons and posters, and passed out name tags, instruction packets and recall petitions naming school board members Ernest Buechler, Jon Gandelot and Catherine Brierly.

Gandelot, a Farms attorney, is serving his second term on the board. Buechler, an elementary school principal in Detroit, and Mrs. Brierly, both live in the Woods.

Henry Clay, whose Citizens Against the Recall, (CARE), group is urging people to refuse to sign recall petitions, said "it's a crying shame what (the recall) will do to the corps of volunteers who serve the schools and the community."

"Now the three school board members are going to have to spend time concentrating on staying in office, instead of working on volunteer projects to support the school system," he said.

It will take about 6,700 signatures on the petitions to place the recall question on the ballot. The process could coincide with the regular June school board elections.

Roger Mourad, the only trustee who voted against the school closing plan, and Joan Hanpeter board president, are both up for re-election in June. Mrs. Hanpeter, who is finishing her third term on the board, says she's not ready to say if she will run again. Mourad, who has served one term, indicates he has privately made up his mind, but wants to keep his options open publicly, in case the situation changes.

Recall workers said in their flyer, "The Facts:" that their goal is not to engage in a personal attack on the board members. "We only wish to obtain a majority on the school board in June after the election to replace the recalled parties and Mrs. Hanpeter whose term of office runs out."

"This majority will put a halt to the closure of Barnes and the sixth grade switch," the flyer states.

Barnes school is scheduled to close at the end of this school year and administrators are expected to present recommendations for its future use to the board by April. The administration has proceeded with a schedule of "transition activities" and finished meeting this week with fifth grade parents whose children will be moved to middle school next fall under the reorganization plan approved by the board.

Alfreda Frost, director of elementary curriculum, said the orientation sessions with parents were well-attended. "We heard good, sincere questions and had open discussions. They asked about homework assignments, student-counselor ratios and the new electives sixth graders will have to choose from," Dr. Frost said.

Author Gail Sheehy to visit War Memorial

Gail Sheehy, author of "Passages" and "Pathfinders," will speak at the War Memorial Thursday, Feb. 2, at 8 p.m. The title of her talk will be "Turning Passages into Pathfinding."

"All of us have stood at a point where two roads diverged, and doubted that we had the wisdom to choose," Ms. Sheehy said. "Many of us have chosen by refusing to risk moving at all; others have made a choice by default, or have been unaware that they stood at a crossroads . . . some among us have recognized the crossroads and seen in it the path to another beginning, an opportunity to make themselves more."

"These people, who aspire to their highest possibility, have much to teach us about meaningful journeys: they are Pathfinders."

Roderick MacLeish of CBS News once described Ms. Sheehy as "a first-class generalist who crafts the discoveries of several new and important branches of science into a form that makes them accessible to the rest of us."

Ms. Sheehy received a Bachelor of Science from the University of Vermont and was awarded a fellowship at Columbia University in 1970, where she studied for a year under her mentor, Margaret Mead. Other books written by Sheehy include "Lovesounds," "Panthermania," "Speed is of the Essence" and "Hustling."

The essence of pathfinding, summarizes Ms. Sheehy, comes down to certain aspects of the mind and heart that seem to animate the state of well-being. There are eight of these aspects: a willingness to risk; a sense of timing; a capacity for loving; strong support systems; an accumulation of wisdom with age; a sense of purpose, and recognition of life's spiritual elements. "But all the anticipation in the world cannot shield us from the accidents of life," adds Ms. Sheehy. Hence the eighth vital quality: "the grit to do the tough inner repair work, after a loss, that allows the human spirit to restore itself to spontaneity."

Author Gail Sheehy

Ms. Sheehy's lecture is being co-sponsored by the Grosse Pointe War Memorial and the Detroit Free Press. It will launch the newly formed "Woman to Woman" forum under the direction of the War Memorial's Council of Sponsors. Her speech will be preceded by an optional dinner at 5:30 p.m.

Lecture tickets are $8 and complete evening tickets are $20. For more information call 881-7511.

A new kitchen for Calvary

An evening of trios at Ford House

The Lyric Chamber Ensemble will present the fourth concert in its current series at the Edsel & Eleanor Ford House in Grosse Pointe Shores on Sunday, Jan. 29, at 7:30 p.m.

Detroit Symphony Orchestra members, violinist Ann Ourada and cellist David Saltzman, will be joined by pianist Fedora Horowitz, in a program of trios by Mozart, Donizetti and Schumann.

Ms. Ourada, a Pointer, is a graduate of the Interlochen Arts Academy, New England Conservatory of Music, and Boston University, where she studied with Joseph Silverstein. She won the Silverstein Prize at Tanglewood in 1975 and the C.P. Jackson Award in 1978. Since 1980, she has been a member of the first violin section of the Detroit Symphony Orchestra.

Ms. Horowitz is a graduate of the Bucharest State Conservatory in Rumania and made her New York debut in 1974. She is the founder and artistic director of the Lyric Chamber Ensemble, now in its fourth year of performances. Besides the series at the Ford House, the Lyric Chamber Ensemble has a new series of multimedia arts at the Community Arts Auditorium on the Wayne State University campus. Saltzman graduated from Northwestern University as well as Indiana University where he studied with Yanos Starker. He has been the cellist of the Mexico City String Quartet and associate principal cellist of the Mexican Symphony. This is his sixth year with the Detroit Symphony Orchestra and his fourth year with the Lyric Chamber Ensemble.

A charge of $7.50 general admission, $5 for students and senior citizens, includes the concert and tour of the Ford house as well as an afterglow wine reception with the artists.

For information and reservations, call the Lyric Chamber En-

Bloodmobile comes to town in February

Area residents will have a chance to give a gift from the heart with a blood donation during February when Red Cross bloodmobiles will be in the area.

The Bloodmobile will visit Ebenezer Baptist Church, 21001 Moross, on Wednesday, Feb. 1, from 3 to 9 p.m. For an appointment, call Debbie Walinske, at 792-1226. The War Memorial will host a blood drive on Thursday, Feb. 16 from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. Call Shirley Goolsby at 756-8922 for information.

Much of the blood collected by Southeastern Michigan Red Cross Blood Services will be processed into its components — red cells, white cells, plasma and platelets — to be used to help a variety of patients. Through processing of this type, one blood donation can provide platelets for a cancer patient; plasma for a burn victim; red cells for a patient with anemia; and cryoprecipitate, a factor used to control bleeding for a hemophiliac.

Blood can be donated by anyone in good health between the ages of 17 and 65 who weighs at least 110 pounds. Donors are encouraged to bring a friend or relative along to donate with them.

Rock and roll con man

police said. A number of women responded to an advertisement in the Detroit Free Press asking for a house-and-babysitter for a Randy Bachman in Miami, Fla., reports said.

One Algonac woman received a number of letters and cable-grams over the next year, telling her the job was hers if she remained interested. At least two of the letters came from Jackson Prison, a move explained by Bowman as "security measures," police said.

In September, the Algonac woman received a call from a man identifying himself as Bachman, who said he would meet her that day to discuss the job. The appointment was missed but a meeting was set up for later in the week, police said. It was about that time that Bowman allegedly walked away from the prison, reports said.

The woman met with a man calling himself Bachman, and the next day gave him $1,439 from her Woods bank account. The money would be waiting for her in Miami, the woman was told. After not hearing from the man for five days, she called Woods police.

Meanwhile, according to reports compiled by Oakland County Sheriff's detectives, Bowman, using the Bachman name, allegedly took $1,200 from a Farmington Hills woman while running up astronomical bills for accommodations at the Westin Hotel including large florist bills.

During that time, Bowman allegedly autographed photographs he had taken with various women, and even flashed a purchase order for a $22,000 Lincoln he said he bought for a babysitter, reports said.

According to reports, Bowman left the state in mid-October and was arrested in Florida a few days later. He returned to Michigan at an unknown time and was arrested about two weeks ago in Muskegon on unrelated charges, police said.

Crook said Bowman allegedly kept up a smooth front that enabled him to con people. "He was a very smooth talker. To listen to him, you would think he was who he said he was because of his knowledge of the music business," Crook said.

Deli robbed in the Park

The Grosse Pointe Park Police Department reported the Limits Deli at 15023 Jefferson Avenue was robbed at 8:25 a.m., Wednesday, Jan. 18. A man armed with a gun escaped west on Jefferson with $70 and a March of Dimes Canister.

He was described as a 35-year-old white male with medium length brown hair, wearing a dark blue or black navy skullcap, green army field jacket, dark pants and leather gloves.

The same morning, a resident living in the 1000 block of Harvard reported someone had broken into a 1984 Ford parked outside and taken a radar detector.

The next evening, a woman visiting the Sierra Station, at 15110 Mack Avenue, reported someone took her purse which she had put alongside her at the bar. It contained $20 and change plates.

On Jan. 20, a resident in the 1400 block of Lakepointe said an AM/FM cassette was taken from a 1982 Mercedes. A recorder was also missing from the trunk but police found no signs of forced entry.

In all of the cases, there are no suspects, police reported.

the last few months, there really won't be a need for an advertising campaign."

The Windemere condominiums share a gate house, private security system and swimming pool. The homes will be constructed of reclaimed brick and rough cedar shake, according to Clauser. The first house, which is just a shell now, should be occupied by late summer, he said.

Windemere is built on the 7.8 acre site of Henry Ford's former home, which was built by Hudson Motor company president Roy Chapin in 1928. The 18-unit development will probably grow to add 16 more units, if the Farms grants a zoning change to the Weber property next door, which has been purchased by Windemere builders. The two parties are still talking about those plans.

Russell Homes is constructing the condominiums and is also a partner in developing Briarwood, in the Farms, between Grosse Pointe Boulevard and Lakeshore. E.J. Russell and Sons and Robert Knott, cousins, are also building on Briarwood, site of the former Sheldon mansion. There are 24 lots in the subdivision. One house has been sold and two are just being completed on speculation. The first open house is scheduled for Sunday, Jan. 29, between 1 and 5 p.m.

Richard Russell said inquiries about his four-bedroom, 3,400 square foot, custom-designed homes, have picked up dramatically recently. He is expecting families with children to show interest in the homes with large lots. They're listed at between $280,000 and $300,000.

Talking books available at county library

By Ed Ream
South High

Mystery, romance, westerns and Dr. Seuss are just a few of the talking books offered by the Wayne County Regional Library for the blind and physically handicapped.

The Regional library is one of 56 in the United States authorized by the Library of Congress to serve individuals who can't use conventional print material because of physical limitations.

The regional library loans to eligible county residents talking books on records or cassettes and the machines to accompany them.

Eligible people are those who are physically or visually unable to read standard print books.

All books are mailed postage free to and from the library. Participants receive annual catalogs that list the books available at the library. They can learn about new books through "Talking Book Topics," which contains information about the authors, reviews of the books, and announces new books available at the library.

Collections of books and talking book machines are loaned to schools, nursing homes, and senior residences for group or individual use.

Large print books and periodicals are also provided by the Wayne County Regional Library for the blind and physically handicapped.

For more information about talking books, call 274-2600 or 326-8910.

Punch shows anti-nuclear film

The Punch and Judy Theater will present the Michigan premier of "In Our Hands" Wednesday, Feb. 1, through Sunday, Feb. 5.

"In Our Hands" is an account of the historic mass protest against the nuclear arms race in New York City's Central Park on June 12, 1962. The product of a collaborative effort by more than 250 filmmakers, it is a stirring record of a call for peace that the whole world was watching.

Featured in the film are musical performers and movie celebrities such as Meryl Streep, Roy Scheider, Orson Welles, James Taylor, Carly Simon, John Hall, Rita Marley and Pete Seeger. Also appearing are speakers such as Dr. Helen Caldicott, Dr. Benjamin Spock and nuclear freeze campaign founder Randall Forsberg.

"In Our Hands" will show at 7 and 10:20 p.m. Appearing with it, at 8:40 is "The Day After Trinity," a film about J. Robert Oppenheimer, the "father" of the atomic bomb. The Punch is located at 21 Kercheval in Grosse Pointe Farms.

GOP selects delegates

The 14th Congressional District Republican party held its convention Jan. 11, and voted unanimously to support President Reagan for re-election in an informal, straw ballot. Reagan received all 86 votes from the Republicans present, according to Shirley Wohlfield, 14th District secretary.

The convention also selected delegates and alternates to the state Republican convention which convenes this weekend. A committee including Prudence Cole, Elden Andrews, Alana Tilley and 14th District Chairman Terry Gilseman, was appointed to select delegates to the national Republican convention later this year.

Among the Grosse Pointers picked as delegates and alternates to the state meeting, according to Ms. Wohlfield, are Andrews, Mrs. Cole, Charles Baker, Wilbur Brucker, III, State Rep. William Bryant, Barbara Gattorn, Jay Scott Geideman, John Getz, Shirley Hallman, Earl Heenan, III, Janey Kendal and John Lauve.

More are Vivian Massa, Josephine Merrill, James Miller, Robert Pendergast, Myron Raney, Jerome Swan and Gerald Webster.

Freelance writer tells you how

Freelance writer Jeanne Paul will conduct an all-day workshop on the subject of freelance writing "For Glory and Profit," Saturday, Feb. 4, at the War Memorial. The cost for those who register before Feb. 1, is $55. Registration at the door is $65. The 9:30 a.m. to 5 p.m.

workshop includes lunch. The topics to be covered include: How to bridge the gap between wanting to publish and publishing, where ideas come from, focusing the article, finding the right market, overcoming fear of editors, writing a query letter, dealing with rejection slips, getting the "free" out of freelance, and when to copyright.

Seven films will increase awareness

Focus on Family, a seven-film series by Dr. James C. Dobson, will be shown at St. Paul Lutheran Church, 375 Lothrop at Chalfonte, beginning Sunday, Jan. 29 and continuing through March 18 (with the exception of Feb. 26).

The films will be shown at the St. Paul Adult Forum at 10 a.m. and 7 p.m., with a different film each Sunday. A babysitter will be available at both times.

The dates and film titles will be: Jan. 29 — The Strong Willed Child; Feb. 5 — Shaping the Will Without Breaking the Spirit; Feb. 12 — Christian Fathering; Feb. 19 — Preparing for Adolescence: The Origins of Self Doubt; March 11 — What Wives Wish Their Husbands Knew About Women: The Lonely Housewife; March 18 — What Wives Wish Their Husbands Knew About Women: Money, Sex and Children.

Everyone is invited to this free event. For more information, call the church office at 881-6670.

"The difference between professional writers and amateurs," says instructor Jeanne Paul, "is the difference between writing for money and writing for the desk drawer. Pros know what editors want and they give it to them."

Jeanne Paul has been a freelance writer and columnist since 1974. Her work has appeared in the Detroit Free Press, Ann Arbor News, Denver Post, Hartford Courant, Parade, American Educator, Humanities and Savvy. Her book reviews appear frequently in the Detroit News and Louisville Times.

In 1981, Ms. Paul received a Distinguished Achievement Award from the Education Press Association of America. She is a former ghostwriter for Senator Charles Percy of Illinois, and teaches courses in Ann Arbor on writing and selling freelance articles. Ms. Paul also teaches article writing labs at Oakland University.

Governor plays politics

The current reading of the political winds in Michigan is that Gov. James Blanchard could not be reelected if he were serving a two-year term and had to face the voters next November. That estimate, made by Democrats as well as Republicans, explains the governor's switch in his policies with respect to state taxes and state spending. And some critics feel it was a switch justified more by political considerations than economic conditions.

But a major question still remains as to whether the governor's recommendations will ease his problems even two years hence. For one thing, even balancing the budget for the fiscal year that begins Oct. 1 may be a problem in view of the Blanchard recommendations for an early cut in the income tax, increases in state aid for the public schools and higher education, maintenance of welfare spending at current levels, and a lid on overall spending at the current year's level.

IF THE UPTURN that is beginning to brighten Michigan's economic outlook continues into 1985 and 1986, the governor still may be in position to make a strong run for reelection. But if the economy turns sour again about that time, as some economists believe is possible if not probable, then he may not win much benefit from his new conservative position on taxing and spending.

Just as the governor last year supposedly surprised many of his Democratic colleagues, both inside and outside his administration, by his proposal for a temporary 38 percent increase in the state income tax, so this year he surprised many of the same people once again by reversing his field without prior notice to them. In fact, his failure to inform party leaders, Democratic as well as Republican, that he was suddenly going to favor an early rollback of the income tax increase as well as an overall lid on state spending means that he may have more trouble in getting legislative approval for his program this year than he had in 1983. For one thing, it is likely he will lose control of the state Senate to the Republicans in the Jan. 31 recall elections for offices now filled by two Democrats.

Rep. William Bryant, Jr., who represents the Pointes in the Legislature, was one of the legislative leaders who attended a conference with administration officials just before the governor announced his shift on the income tax. The Democratic officials present contended that the governor was still sticking to his position that he would stay the course and the state could not afford an early rollback of the income tax increase which is scheduled to drop automatically from 6.1 percent to 5.35 percent next Jan. 1.

An early rollback already had become popular with some Democrats as well as Republicans at the time of the conference, but the Republicans were preparing to go back to their caucuses to explain that the governor felt the state could not afford a tax cut until the end of the year. There was even talk that the Republicans might be willing to delay taking caucus positions in favor of an early rollback if the governor pledged he would not himself ask for it. In fact, the talk was that an early rollback would be irresponsible.

That very evening, however, the Blanchard administration switched positions and the next day the governor announced in a series of press conferences that he now would recommend a rollback effective Oct. 1. Some legislative leaders got telephone calls around midnight from the governor's representatives informing them of the switch in position. Observers felt that the governor had made a new reading of the political winds and decided to get out in front on what appeared to be a popular issue before either the Republicans or some of his Democratic colleagues made a big push for the early cut.

REPUBLICANS CONTINUE to be unhappy over the administration's finding that the state ended its fiscal year last Oct. 1 with a surplus of only $24.5 million. They contend the surplus was substantially more and, even taking the administration's own figures, should have been reported at $192 million. They also quarrel with the administration's prediction of a $112 million surplus for 1984 and say it ought to be in the neighborhood of the Senate Fiscal Agency estimate of $233.8 million.

Under the circumstances, it is difficult to forecast the reaction in the Legislature to the governor's tax and budget proposals. But one conclusion is obvious and widely accepted. It is that the 1984 legislative session will be a new ball game, with both parties keeping an eye on upcoming recall elections as well as the House election in November. The other conclusion is that the governor still is in trouble with the Legislature and also may be out of step with the people.

Group homes a reality for council

To the Editor:

Your article of Jan. 19, "Parents want kids close to home," which refers to the development of group homes or community residences for disabled adults in the Grosse Pointes and Harper Woods, has the potential to misrepresent the efforts and goals of the Group Home Advisory Council of Grosse Pointe and Harper Woods.

The advisory council was formed in June 1982 to enable the community to better understand the need for group homes and for the community to have a direct link to and from the process of that development. The efforts of the council are directed toward these goals for both privately-developed and publicly-developed group homes because we believe that it is probable that both models will be realities in the near future.

Interested citizens enhance the possibility of appropriate, cost-effective, community-related group home development. Indeed, had such a council been a reality in 1981, I believe such council could have curbed the inappropriate effort by the state in Grosse Pointe Park.

Those members of the Group Home Advisory Council who were present at the Jan. 9 Park council meeting were pleased with the mayor and council receptivity to its presentation and with the interest and astute questions from citizens and officials present at that meeting.

We appreciate the interest your paper has shown in our activity and look forward to your cooperation in the future.

Computer should be requirement

To the Editor:

I am a sophomore attending South High School. I have written and read many stories this school year about computer education.

I am upset that South has not followed state and national recommendations to make a basic semester computer class a requirement for graduation. Knowing there is almost no occupation that you can go into without running into computers, I feel that at least a basic computer course is essential for students to have if they want to get anywhere in the profession they seek.

The reason that South turned down the proposal to make a basic computer course required, was because they thought the course might be too hard for graduation requirements. But South faculty and board members should realize that computers are the working tools of tomorrow, today. South as of now, offers three computer classes, in basic Cobol and Fortran language. And going into the 1983-84 school year, a little more than 25 percent of the student body has either taken or is taking a computer course; so it's not like it is an unpopular class among the students.

The school board has just recently passed a seven-period day proposal which will go into effect next year. So why not fill one of those periods with a computer class?

Students who haven't taken a computer class already should now realize that a job application will look a lot better if it shows that they have formal training in computer operation.

Community will be heard

To the Editor:

No tax savings have been promised Grosse Pointe taxpayers for the closing of one elementary school. The parents of school children are also upset at the transfer of sixth graders into the middle schools. The school board and Supt. Kenneth Brummel have repeatedly denied the citizens of Grosse Pointe a moratorium or a referendum on the latest school reorganization plan.

It's time for the community to be heard at long last and unite behind the recall.

Don't be misled by recall logic

To the Editor:

I understand that people with recall petitions for school board members will soon be appearing at our doors. "Sign the petitions, whether you're for the recall or not," we're told. "The democratic way is to put it on the ballot and let the people vote on it."

That sounds reasonable — and if it's hard to say "no" to a stranger with such a request, it's even harder to say "no" to a neighbor or friend.

But unless you really truly intend to vote for recalls, don't submit to "it's the democratic way" blackmail and sign petitions. Just having an election costs money, but far more important than that is the reality that all too often people who don't really care or who don't really feel the recalls will be successful don't vote when the time comes.

They stay home while the determined minority — and I do believe those advocating recall are in the minority (look at the results of the last school board election) — go to the polls.

If you don't want to see the distraction and the divisiveness of the recall effort continue in Grosse Pointe, if you don't want to indicate to our elected officials that they must bow to every vocal minority, don't work against your own convictions by signing recall petitions just to be "a nice guy."

Just say "no, thank you!" if and when your doorbell rings.

Closings: Let's hear an alternative

Now that the campaign to recall three members of the Grosse Pointe Board of Education is formally under way, the community is guaranteed a continuation of the controversy over the proposed school reorganization plan at least until next June.

With three members of the board facing recall and the terms of two others expiring in June, it is possible that a major reorganization of the school board could occur by next summer. Proponents of the recall obviously are counting on both the recall election and the regular school election in June to shift the balance against the school reorganization plan to which they object.

PEOPLE SUPPORTING the reorganization point out, however, that a change of such magnitude—meaning the replacement of five of the present seven board members—would hardly contribute to the orderly management of the school system. It would mean that there would be only two holdover members with current experience and background in the complicated issues surrounding the reorganization.

The Committee for Neighborhood Elementary Schools/Recall has contended that it really isn't opposed to closing any schools. Instead, in a letter to the editor, we are told the committee is chiefly concerned about keeping elementary schools open. So is it in favor of closing middle schools? The letter hints that it is but doesn't flatly say so. Is it in favor of closing one of the high schools? Again, the letter hints that action would be preferable because it would save as much money as closing all 10 elementary schools. But the committee doesn't say for certain that it favors such a move.

It seems to this newspaper that the recall supporters ought to have some alternatives in mind in view of the drop in school enrollment and the prospects that the decline will continue. Hints at savings to be made by closing a middle school or a high school really are not alternatives. Nor do such hints name specific middle schools or a high school that might be closed. By avoiding specifics, the recall supporters may hope to attract support from families whose children attend either a middle school or a high school. But they are hardly offering the public any alternatives.

The school board, of course, could not indulge in generalities. It studied the problem of declining enrollment, and cited specific plans to deal with it. When the community objected strenuously to the first two plans, the board finally accepted a third plan calling only for the closing of Barnes Elementary School, where enrollment has dropped from a high of 488 to 190 in the past decade.

So now Catherine Brierly, Jon Gandelot and Ernest Buechler are facing recall and the terms of Joan Hanpeter and Roger Mourad will expire in June. Neither Mrs. Hanpeter nor Mourad has announced plans to run again, although Mrs. Hanpeter, the board president, had earlier indicated a desire to retire at the end of her third term. Mourad, the only board member who voted against the third reorganization plan, is still keeping his options open.

As the recall supporters circulate petitions in an effort to obtain the 6,700 signatures necessary to put the issue on the ballot, Grosse Pointe citizens will have to consider whether they should sign or not. Some people who oppose the recall think it would be appropriate to have an election to satisfy the foes of the current reorganization and they advise signing. In this newspaper's view, however, a signature on a petition to recall offers evidence of dissatisfaction with the board's decision on reorganization and ought to be viewed in that light by the signers. Since we oppose the recall, we do not support the signing of petitions to support the recall.

Know Your Schools Parents may join new study

By Dr. Kenneth Brummel
Superintendent of Schools

Question: One of this year's Board of Education goals involves the study of future needs for early childhood education in our system. How can parents learn about and become more involved in this study?

Dr. Alfreda Frost, director of elementary curriculum, responds:

Answer: Our study of early childhood education began as a response to parents in the district who felt that a full-day kindergarten program would be beneficial. Full day kindergartens are operative in a number of school systems and private schools across the nation. Over 80 percent of the children entering our current half-day kindergarten have had some pre-school experience. Such experiences make it possible for us to give consideration to a more advanced program.

What we are seeking to discover is the extent to which our parents would utilize a full-day kindergarten if one were to be established in Grosse Pointe. A random telephone survey is being conducted toward the end of this month among parents of current three and four-year old youngsters.

Citizens who wish to become involved in the study may do so in one or more of the following ways:

- Write or call the Office of Elementary Curriculum (343-2022) with your suggestions.
- Participate in the random survey if you are called.
- Attend Board of Education meetings and share your opinions with all of us.

A progress report on our study of the full-day kindergarten program will be made at the February meeting of the board with a final report and recommendations due in April or May. We welcome citizen input at any time before then.

Prime Time for senior citizens

By Marian Trainor

If you were out last Wednesday evening because you had to be — no one willingly ventures into that kind of sub-zero temperature — your discomfort was alleviated somewhat by the sight of a spectacular full moon.

Winter months are not usually a sight that draws attention. Pale and hard-edged, they hang in the sky, brittle reminders of winter's bone-chilling cold and icy winds. Aloof as snow maidens, they neither invite attention nor inspire admiration.

But because of some peculiar atmospheric conditions, that Wednesday full moon rose in the sky like a promise of seasons yet to come; seasons of warm, soft breezes and lovely balmy nights.

It was huge and glowed like a fire. It suffused the winter sky with a ring of burnished light. It was a wonder to behold, but somehow it seemed miscast.

That moon was meant for leisurely strolls down familiar streets, enjoying the sights and sounds of the neighborhood. Instead those brave walkers who ventured out shuffled along, gingerly avoiding icy spots and bundled up in scarves, hats, boots and mittens plus several layers of clothing, trying not to breathe too deeply of the icy wind.

It was a moon meant for driving along the lake, watching the reflection in the waters, distorted and rippling in the barely moving waves. Instead those who travelled that road looked out on an icy forbidding shore that merged with frozen waters. It was difficult to see where the shore ended and the lake began.

It was a moon meant for sitting on a patio, gazing at the magnificence of its splendor. Instead the view was lost on many who huddled close to the fireplace with drapes closed, trying to keep whatever heat generated by the furnace inside.

But there was promise in that unexpected spectacle. Out of place in winter's cold, for those who saw it it was a forecast of better weather conditions for its next appearance.

For those who witnessed it, that January dress rehearsal was something to behold. How and why were we treated to this sight; only meteorologists can say. Practical people will want to know. But some may choose to while away long winter nights theorizing. For instance, maybe the moon, like maidens everywhere, got tired of the pale, drab winter raiment and decided to try on the bright and brilliant clothing of spring.

That's too simplistic. This is the stuff of which folk tales are spun. Your ancestors created a whole branch of literature as they watched and wondered about nature's happenings.

If such a fanciful pastime holds no interest for you, there are other pastimes to while away the dark hours of winter.

If you are a gardener, you might spend some time pursuing those irresistible seed catalogs that arrive with every mail delivery. There's something that dreams of spring and summer are made of. As you turn the pages, bright with pictures of foliage and flowers and vegetables such as you have never seen in anyone's backyard, you can almost feel the warm, summer sun and smell the flowers and taste the first bite of a luscious tomato.

Just turning the pages makes it easier to forget winter's grudging and penurious allotment of bear-shut out the monotony of winter's chill is armchair travel. It's a wonderful way to go — no plane schedules to worry over, no packing to do, no wearing tours of places you didn't want to see. Just plan a personal itinerary. Gather a few travel folders, choose a few books and magazines and sit back in the comfort of your own home and explore any place your fancy takes you.

Most stay-at-home travelers chart their course with the idea that one day they will actually make the trip. This is particularly true if they were reading up on the attractions of our southern states.

Most everyone thinks about Florida when the winds of winter blow in Michigan and many have been there. But even if you have made the trip, perhaps several times, there are off-beat attractions you may have missed. It is a ever-changing area as new residents, mostly retirees, push inland and the coastal areas become more populous and property values escalate there. By the year 2000, it is estimated that it will be the third largest state, behind California and Texas.

Wherever you travel there, you will find that Florida's 1,300 mile coastline encloses thousands of lakes and streams and gathers barrier islands as well. No place in Florida is more than 60 miles from tidal water.

While the most popular places to go are still in Southern Florida, a trip to the more northerly areas will open up new vistas for the traveller.

For those with more exotic plans, and since this is a vicarious trip, go ahead and opt for the warmth and excitement of island hopping in the Caribbean. For instance if you are sports-minded you would enjoy going to the Dominican Republic and staying at the Casa de Campo, a resort where you can play polo, fish in a tropical river, play golf on two championship golf courses, sail, go deep-sea fishing or indulge in any other sport that suits your fancy.

For sheer luxury you might want to visit Barbados and stay at Marriot's Sam Lord's Castle where guests are invited to seven course dinner that was inspired by Queen Elizabeth's visit a few years ago. It is said that it is a feast truly fit for a queen. Sam Lord's Castle is the only hotel this year to receive the American Association's four diamond rating.

Barbados has other attractions. It sits on 72 acres atop a dramatic rise overlooking the Atlantic Ocean. It has a year-round temperature ranging from 70 to 85 degrees with cooling tropic breezes and almost constant sun. Palm trees and giant mahogany trees shade the soft-silk sand.

Reading about such sun-soaked vacation lands while nestled in afghans to ward off drafts is one way of forgetting that winter waits just outside the door, ready to grasp all who venture outside in a chilling grasp.

While some prefer travelling to warmer climates, there are those who prefer colder more threatening weather. Its an inverse reasoning that if you read about places colder, you might not mind what you have to endure so much.

For instance these fortuitous people might enjoy planning a dog-sled excursion into the frigid North of Canada. Snuggled into a 12 foot toboggan, pulled by four to nine dogs travelling four miles an hour, they find relaxation in observing the 227 species of birds and 46 species of mammals, including 6,000 buffalos. They don't mind that accommodations consist of a tent and the menu is made up of hot tea, strips of buffalo meal and "ban-nock" a bread mixture fried in lard.

Another trip that by contrast could make the local cold snap seem mild is a snowmobile trip through Yellowstone Park. This trip also offers an opportunity to get close to wildlife. Elk and buffalo are met frequently along the route. Winter visitors see such incredible sights as geyser basin eruptions more spectacular than in the summer. Mushroom clouds of steam appear to rise several times their normal summer heights. The resulting billows of mist coat nearby trees in white shrouds that move mysteriously in the breeze. The Grand Canyon of the Yellowstone River's two spectacular waterfalls thunder their presence. In winter the spray freezes, building into a concave mass of ice.

These are but a few suggestions to while away the long winter hours until the first softening breeze blows and the first crack breaks the ice in the lake. Everyone has a favorite diversion. The main object is to keep going and interested. It won't be long now.

Just six weeks until spring!

One View from the Capitol

Surplus should be discussed

By William Bryant
State Representative

If there is to be a rollback of the 1982 tax increase, an accelerated reduction faster than originally scheduled or more, or both, there is some agreement the amount of the reduction should be the amount of the budget surplus.

There is disagreement on the amount of that surplus, from the last year and projected for this year.

I claim the starting figure for determining the surplus is $426 million. The Governor says it is about $130 million. How can we be so far apart? Isn't "surplus" a definite figure of revenue in excess of expenditure?

The answer is that it is not that simple. For purposes of this article, let us limit the focus to the budget year which ended last Sept. 30. For that year I claim the surplus figure we must start with, to be honest in the determination, is $192.2 million. The Governor, on the other hand, says the surplus from last year is $24.6 million. That is a difference of $167.6 million.

That difference comes about because I challenge accounting adjustments made unilaterally by the Governor. I insist those changes should be subject to debate and negotiation with the legislature in bipartisan talks. I question which of those adjustments are of a higher priority than the right of taxpayers to a tax rollback.

Other than $5.9 million in miscellaneous adjustments, the details of which I have not even seen, the other items are clearly identified.

About $45.9 million was adjusted for possible liability to financial institutions for rebate of the Single Business Tax paid over the past four years. The tax, as applied to federal paper interest earned under a Supreme Court decision applying to Tennessee, has been called to question. However, Tennessee has yet to pay under the decision, Attorney General Frank Kelley has not given his formal opinion if the money must be paid and the money has not been paid. Blanchard is using the money as a club over the heads of banks to get them to buy into some fancy economic development schemes and Democrats have no intention of allowing a windfall to these institutions and fully intend to change the tax law to get this money back in state coffers if it is ever paid.

About $18.8 million is adjusted to reserve against accrued sick leave and longevity payments which may be paid state employees someday. Such accrual is necessary for a business which may cease and have to pay off the employees. The state will not go out of business. The Auditor General, further, has been unable to determine how this amount was computed in his attempts to verify its accuracy, even assuming the policy was correct.

About $28.2 million was written off as a receivable, most of it owed the state by Wayne County. That the state, or the Governor, may choose to not require Wayne County to pay its debts hardly seems to me to be a proper subject for such unilateral decision affecting the surplus.

A $28.2 million adjustment was made to create a Capital Outlay reserve account. We have accounted for the actual and projected costs of capital outlay, building, projects in various ways in recent years. One way is no more magic than another. There is a large capital outlay appropriation made for this current year and we have no definite data to be able to say it will be needed. The reserve may be totally unnecessary.

About $32 million was deducted from surplus by an adjustment in a category called Long Term Advances. The essence of this item is a payment to Wayne County of $26.5 million the state says it may not collect within 12 months. This is a cousin to the receivable write-off.

I believe these $167.6 million in adjustments are worth discussion. The Governor doesn't think so.

Now you can own Jacobson

By Mark Froelich
South High

How would you like to own Jacobson's? Or the Van Dyke Place? If you answered yes, you might just get your wish thanks to Michael Glenn, of Allen Park.

A few years ago Glenn was broke and trying to find a way to make money in a hurry. Then he got the idea of a board game called "Wheeler Dealer."

"Wheeler Dealer" is a hometown version of the famed "Monopoly" game by Parker Brothers. Sponsors from cities across the U.S. have called Glenn, asking how they can get their city printed into a Wheeler Dealer board game.

The game sells advertisements from a city and then prints the ads on the gameboard. The game is similar to "Monopoly," but a lot more interesting to play because the real estate that you are buying and selling is familiar to you.

Players travel around the board based on the roll of two die, and try to buy properties if they are not owned. Rents are charged based on the number of properties owned within a specific color. There is an additional way of earning money which distinguishes the game from "Monopoly," the players must invest in the commodities market before starting each turn.

The object of the game is to have the largest net worth which would equal the value of all properties owned plus cash on hand.

"The games are being sold out in just a week," said Almareta Thurkow, director of Public Relations for Michael Glenn Productions based in Allen Park. "We have sold these games to about 350 cities already."

Sponsors are usually groups such as the Jaycees, women's clubs, Red Cross, Kiwanis Clubs and various other charity and civic groups.

To participate, a business purchases from the sponsor a spot on the board upon which it can have its "business card" reprinted on the game board. The price may be a bit steep to put an ad on, but well worth the investment. Explained Ms. Thurkow: "It is such an easy way to make a lot of money very quickly. People from all over have called or written to tell us how much they have enjoyed our game, and about all the money they have either raised or made."

In Albuquerque, N.M., the game board spaces sold for $3,000 a spot.

The game was originally introduced in Allen Park, where Glenn now bases his business. Now "Wheeler Dealer" is being produced for cities as far north as Anchorage, Alaska, and as far south as Louisiana, where one was being made for a U.S. Air Force base. Michael Glenn Productions has even had an inquiry about a version for a township in England.

For more information, call Michael Glenn Productions at 946-5400 in Allen Park.

Learn how to raise teens

The Family Life Education Council, FLEC, will offer workshops titled Systematic Training for Effective Parenting of Teens, or STEP/TEEN, beginning Feb. 2 for the parents of teenagers.

The program is an expansion of the STEP program developed by psychologists Don Dinkmeyer and Gary McKay.

The program cost is $15 per person, $25 for couple. A workbook is included. Afternoon and evening sessions begin Thursday, Feb. 2. The afternoon session meets from 1 to 3 p.m. the evening session from 8 to 10 p.m.

For more information or to register, call FLEC at 885-3519. The $6 registration fee will be applied to the workshop cost.

Cold snap fails to nip crime

Last weekend's severe cold snap failed to deter some robbers, reported Grosse Pointe Park police.

On Saturday, Jan. 21, a car parked in the 15000 block of Jefferson was broken into and its contents, listed as clothing, a razor and cassette, were taken about 1 a.m.

Later, police said someone who had keys to the Steak and Egg Restaurant on Jefferson entered the building between 4 and 5 a.m. and stole $300. Police say they suspect a former or present employee.

Tokyo is the city worldwide that has the most traffic jams. Only 9 percent of the city is roadway.

The expression "to break bread" originated in England 700 years ago when bread was leavened in such a manner that it couldn't be sliced but had to be broken.

Saturday is the biggest dollar-volume day of the week at the supermarkets. The second biggest is Friday. Third is Sunday. Fourth is Thursday. And Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday tie for fifth.

Mrs. Mary M. Dimond

Services for Mrs. Dimond, 64, of Yorkshire Road, were held Saturday, Jan. 14 at the Verheyden Funeral Home and St. Paul on the Lake Catholic Church.

She died Wednesday, Jan. 11, at her home.

Born in Detroit, she was active in functions at the Detroit Athletic Club and the Lochmoor Club. She was a life time member of the Christ Child Society and was an avid supporter of the Detroit Zoological Society as well as numerous other charities.

Mrs. Dimond is survived by her husband, Joseph H.; a son, Thomas Scott; three daughters, Mrs. Catherine Kinney, Mrs. Margaret Galvin and Mrs. Mary Ann White; three brothers; two sisters and five grandchildren.

Memorial contributions may be made to the Bon Secours Hospice Program of the Christ Child Society.

Verna M. Bickel

Services for Mrs. Crnkovich, 63, of Beaconsfield in the Park, were held Thursday, Jan. 19, at the A.H. Peters Funeral Home.

She died Saturday, Jan. 14, at Nightingale East Nursing Home.

Mrs. Crnkovich is survived by brothers and sisters.

Interment was in Mt. Olivet Cemetery.

Sheila Barton

Services for Ms. Barton, 52, of the Woods, will be held Saturday, Jan. 28, at 1 p.m. at St. Joan of Arc Church, 21620 Greater Mack in St. Clair Shores.

She died Friday, Jan. 20, in her Woods home.

Ms. Barton was active in the American Association of University Women, the American Cancer Society and Bon Secours Assistance League. She was also a lector at St. John of Arc.

Ms. Barton is survived by two sons, Patrick and Michael; two brothers; two sisters; two step-sisters; two step-brothers; and her father Bruno DePolo.

Memorial contributions may be made to the American Cancer Society.

Ms. Barton willed her remains to the Wayne State University Medical School.

Thailand is destination of travel group

The Senior Citizen History and Travel Group at the Neighborhood Club will head to Thailand Wednesday, Feb. 1 at 1:30 p.m. via a slide presentation by Ray Walk at the club, 17150 Waterloo.

Walk's slides include pictures of Bangkok, the country's capital. In Thai, Bangkok means "City of Angels," and more than 300 Buddhist temples stand in the city.

Some of the sights in Bangkok include the Temple of Dawn, whose tower rises 200 feet above the city; the Wat Trimit, housing a five-and-a-half-ton image of Buddha which is more than 40 percent gold; and the Temple of the Emerald

Buddha, whose two-foot high statue is the most revered image of Buddha in all Thailand.

From Bangkok, the presentation travels through the highlands to Chiang Mai, Thailand's second-largest city, its railroad terminus and the center of its teak industry.

Seniors make Florida plans

Reservations are being taken now for the Neighborhood Club Senior Adult trip to Indian Rocks Beach, Fla., scheduled for March 10 to 17.

The eight-day trip includes round-trip air transportation between Detroit and Florida, condominiums on the Gulf of Mexico, motorcoach transportation in Florida, all baggage handling, taxes and gratuities on items included in the package, admission to many attractions in the area, and optional side trips to Disney World-Epcot Center, Busch Gardens and Seminole Bingo of Florida.

While at the condominiums, travelers will receive coffee, fresh Florida orange juice, morning delivery of doughnuts and a paper to their door, dinner and theater performance in St. Petersburg, and admission to Tiki Gardens for a luau and entertainment.

They also will receive admission to Weeki-Wachee, Captain Anderson's Boat Cruise, John's Pass Village, the Derby Lane Greyhound Track, and an evening of music, entertainment and dancing.

The double occupancy rate is $599 per person. A current Neighborhood Club membership is required for all travelers. Insurance is available. For registration or more information, call 885-4600 or 261-1995.

PWP will hear 'boat bum' talk

Guest speaker at the Friday, Jan. 27 meeting of the Grosse Pointe Chapter of Parents Without Partners will be Jan Therrian, former school teacher, now in the Tele-Computer field. Ms. Therrian will present commentary and slide presentation of her adventures on the high-seas as a "boat bum" when she took a year's sabbatical to work as a crew member on various luxury yachts.

The Grosse Pointe Chapter of PWP holds meetings at the War Memorial, 32 Lakeshore Road, the second and fourth Fridays of the month. Coffee and conversation begin at 7:30 p.m., orientation of new members at 7:45 and general meeting and speaker at 8:30. An afterglow at 10 p.m. with dancing to live music follows at the K of C Hall, Ten Mile and Little Mack in St. Clair Shores.

Activities scheduled for February include a Valentine's Day pot-luck dinner, Sadie Hawkins' Day box social (men prepare the food), and family cross-country skiing.

For information phone the hotline 881-5892.

Valentine social for City AARP

The Grosse Pointe City Chapter of AARP No. 3430 will meet Monday, Feb. 13, at 1 p.m. at the Neighborhood Club. An old fashioned Valentine Box Social will highlight the festivities.

Music will be provided by the Peter Baltreuz Trio. Program Chairman Helen Masten requests that members include a sandwich, fruit and a dessert in a box that includes the name of the member on the inside.

Claudia Greenhoe the newly elected president will meet with the Board of Directors at noon preceding the meeting. Florence Loye and the membership committee will be available to receive membership renewals and applications from new members.

For their service to the chapter, past president pins will be awarded to Marie Barbret, Gertrude Harrison and Joseph Staub.

Asked what sort of flowers they'd like planted on their graves, florists said they wanted their final resting places decorated with daisies.

Wagner plays at Fort street

David Wagner, afternoon host at radio station WQRS-FM, will present an organ recital on Sunday, Feb. 12, at 5 p.m. Wagner's program will include works of Bach, Walton, Franck and Gigout, played on the organ in the soaring, Gothic sanctuary at Fort Street Presbyterian Church, Fort and Third streets, in downtown Detroit.

Admission is $5. For reservations or information, call 961-4533. Wagner combines his job at WQRS, Detroit's classical music station, with directing the music program at St. Paul Catholic Church in the Farms.

In addition to appearances with the Detroit Symphony, Wagner has served as a Teaching Fellow at the University of Michigan, where he earned his doctoral degree.

'I Do!' plays at Golden Lion

"I Do, I Do!" the Harvey Schmidt-Tom Jones musical comedy about marriage, the third offering of the season by Dennis Wickline Productions at the Golden Lion restaurant, runs Friday and Saturday evenings through Feb. 18. The production traces the lives of a couple, Agnes and Michael, from marriage to retirement.

"I Do, I Do!" was written by the same team that wrote "The Fantasticks," which is still running in New York and is the longest running play in New York history.

Book and lyrics for "I Do, I Do!" were written by Tom Jones, with music by Harvey Schmidt. The production is based on "The Fourposter" by Jan de Hartog and was produced on Broadway by David Merrick and directed by Gower Champion.

Recreating the roles originated on Broadway by Mary Martin and Robert Preston are Ruth Ellen Mayhall, president of the Michigan Restaurant Association, and Eliza Doolittle in last season's "My Fair Lady" at the Golden Lion, and Dennis Wickline, producer of all productions at the Golden Lion and the Punch and Judy's Theatre For Children. Wickline has also portrayed Noah in "Two by Two" for Grosse Pointe Theatre and Tevye in "Fiddler on the Roof" at Stouffer's Dinner Theater, and recently directed "The Pirates of Penzance" at the Golden Lion.

Ms. Mayhall has appeared as Marian, the librarian for Grosse Pointe Theatre in "The Music Man," and appeared as Polly in St. Clair Shores Players' production of "The Boyfriend." This production is directed by Grosse Pointe resident and Grosse Pointe Theatre member Jane Vreeland, who portrayed

Agnes in a Texas production of "I Do, I Do!" Patrons will be served a prime rib dinner (a fish alternate is available if requested at time of reservation) with the show following dessert. Cocktails are at 7 p.m., dinner is served at 7:30. Price for the evening is $19.50 including dinner, show, tax, and gratuity. Gift tickets are available. Group rates and performances are also available. The Golden Lion is located at 22380 Moross near Mack in Detroit. Call 886-2420 for reservations.

Class aimed at older women

Among the 126 new-for-winter offerings of the department of Community Education of Grosse Pointe public schools is "The Older Woman: Double Jeopardy."

Taught by social worker Mary Ann Collinson of the Northeast Guidance Center, members of the six-week class will seek answers to such questions as:

- Does the song title "Is That All There Is?" describe your reaction to your present life style?
- Have you ever questioned the expectations of being an older woman?
- Do you see yourself dealing with pressures placed on you as an older woman by social stereotypes?
- If you are employed, do you find yourself physically and emotionally drained at the end of the day?
- Do you maintain a home, care for family needs and wonder why you are lonely and feel overwhelmed?

If any or all of these questions apply to you and you want to learn to cope with change, to minimize stress and to side-step some of the hazards of aging, consider enrolling in this class. It will enable you to look at support systems, to assess our responsibilities and to lessen alienations and the depression you may feel.

Call 343-2178 for further information and space availability.

Man with knife robs Valente's

A man armed with a knife robbed Valente's Men's Formal Wear on Mack Avenue in the City last week, according to police.

Valente's manager told officers the man entered the shop at about 12:35 p.m. on Wednesday, Jan. 18, and inquired about renting a tuxedo. The manager said he then made a telephone call to check on availability and when he hung up, the robber hit him in the face, knocking him down, and produced an eight inch knife. The manager said he was ordered to turn over his wallet and open the cash register.

Police said the culprit escaped with a black tuxedo, $50 cash and the wallet. He was described as a black male, about 5 feet 10 inches tall, with a muscular build. He was wearing a blue stocking cap and tan jacket. He made his escape in a burgundy Bonneville, according to reports.

The manager was not injured.

Backgammon club formed

Warren Wilkinson, president of a newly formed Backgammon Club, announced that the club will meet bi-weekly at the War Memorial at 7:30 p.m. Their last meeting was Jan. 25.

Members may enter either the player or novice tournaments.

Membership fee is $30 and checks should be made out to the Grosse Pointe Backgammon Club and mailed to the attention of Mrs. Philip Rahm, Treasurer, 32 Lakeshore Road, Grosse Pointe Farms, 48236.

North and South come together

By Kip Monahan
South High

Thirty-nine student leaders of North and South High attended a half-day workshop last month in South's Cleminson Hall to discuss issues, plan activities and create a bond between students at both schools.

Plans were made to sponsor interschool dances for all of the classes. The group decided to have a junior-senior mixer at the War Memorial later this year. Separate sophomore and freshman mixers are also planned for this year.

The meeting, originally planned by South principal Dr. Joseph Spagnoli, was headed by North and South assistant principals Florence Miller and Bernie LeMieux.

Many issues were raised, and a majority of the students felt the meeting was very successful and should be continued. The students involved took a poll at the end of their discussions and gave their comments on the workshop.

The group also plans to merge for some selected fund-raisers, to join the two schools in efforts to help the less fortunate.

In his minutes sent out to the participating students LeMieux commented, "there is little doubt that the leaders experienced positive feelings about the open discussion period. The opportunity to generate ideas, comments, as well as expressing concerns in a sharing environment is reflected in the rating of this activity."

The student leaders said there is a need also to promote "wholesome fun," meaning non-alcohol related. This may involve dances or parties for the students sponsored by the school.

Most of the students and administrators in attendance, including Kenneth Brummel, superintendent, and the advisers of the classes from both North and South, were very pleased with the outcome of the meeting.

AFTF will hold French testing

By Martha Keane
South High

This March, the American Federation of Teachers of French will sponsor its third annual test open to all French students whose teachers belong to the association.

"The test is designed mainly for students just to be able to break away from the day-to-day class routine and to have something to look forward to," explains South French teacher Rita Richards.

All students who choose to participate must pay $1.25. The money goes toward the test itself, along with various small prizes awarded to those who do exceptionally well.

Students compete first at a local level, which includes all the Grosse Pointes and metropolitan Detroit. From there, those with the highest scores go on to compete regionally with students from six other states. Finally the top six scoring students compete nationally for the top prize, a full-paid trip to Quebec for two weeks.

Last year 64,000 students from schools across the country participated in the test. Not all schools have the same French program, and therefore students from one school may know more or less than those from another. This test thus enables the AFTF to compare different schools, French departments and separates the outstanding from the mediocre.

South's French department has been found to be one of the outstanding. "In the previous two years we have done very well in levels two, three, four and five, and many students have won awards and plaques," Mrs. Richards said.

Some of the students who won awards last year were Lynn Jones, a second-year student who won a national award, and Carla Finger, Katherine Hine, and Dawn Lochnickar, all in French V. Mrs. Richards is confident that this year will prove to be a very successful year for all those students competing.

Tower takes second award

By Jane Kornmeier
South High

A second major award of merit was received by last year's Tower staff for overall publication for the 1982-83 school year.

The contest was sponsored by the Columbia Scholastic Press Association, and the Tower's total score rated the newspaper as a Medalist, the top rating given.

"Considering we had an inexperienced staff and a new advisor, Eva J. Koch, this is a great achievement," said Peter Ecklund, a member of last year's staff.

The Tower was evaluated on its content, coverage, writing, editing, design, display and its creativity, receiving high scores in each category.

The Tower was evaluated with others from around the nation in the same classifications, which are based on type of publication, method of reproduction, and type and/or enrollment of the school.

Mrs. Koch said, "We sent two copies of consecutive Tower issues in order to be eligible for judging. It was a dramatic situation for a rookie staff."

The staff received an award certificate and will be listed in the School Press Review, calling attention to publications granted this honor.

"The feeling of pride is a reward in itself," said Mrs. Koch.

The Tower also was honored by the Quill and Scroll Society.

Math teacher speaks Pascal

He teaches a language, but it's not Spanish or Latin or French. He teaches a language, but he works in the math department.

This baffling set of credentials belongs to Doug Werkema, Park resident and University Liggett School mathematics teacher who specializes in computer science. The strange language he knows is the Pascal language, a particular type of computer language developed in Switzerland about 10 years ago especially for educators.

Werkema developed the Pascal-based course this year at ULS after learning that the College Entrance Examination Board (CEEB) is offering for the first time an Advanced Placement test in Computer Science. The test requires students to know Pascal programming. Students may earn college credits by passing various AP tests after taking advanced courses as high school seniors.

"The biggest difference between Pascal and regular programming is that Pascal demands a carefully organized thought process to build a program," Werkema says. "The programmer looks at his plan in large blocks and then must break them down step by step, never moving out of the logical order. Regular, or unstructured, programming allows the programmer to jump ahead or back, add or delete, at any point in the building process." Even with Werkema's considerable computer skills and teaching experience, developing the Pascal course for his students was a demanding task.

First, he researched the exact CEEB requirements so he could design the course to his students' best advantage. Then he began the textbook review.

"I must have studied a dozen different books before we chose one for our class," Werkema said. "Then I had to work through the book and practice programs all summer." Werkema also attended a summer conference on the Pascal language to prepare for the new offering in the math curriculum.

Currently, the ULS math department has three computer classes plus independent study for more advanced students. Introduction to Computers is an elective study in basic computer literacy. Students may also choose Computer Science or Advanced Computer Science. The advanced class is Werkema's Pascal course.

Students work in ULS' new computer center which accommodates the high school as well as grades one through five with its 15 computer units.

Some officials say cable TV bill will weaken local control

tion said. In 1982, the Senate passed the federal cable television legislation that never made it out of committee in the House, he said.

Last June, the Senate passed 87-9 a bill written by Barry Goldwater, R-Arizona, that would deregulate basic service rates in five years in markets served by four or more over-the-air stations.

Cities oppose bill

The bill would also require the renewal of a cable franchise unless the city finds the operator hasn't fulfilled the franchise, his legal, technical or financial situation have changed in ways that could adversely affect the delivery of service. The bill also caps at 5 percent the payment of franchise fees to the cities.

Two of the Pointes have passed resolutions asking lawmakers to oppose the bill while a third studies the matter. Both the Michigan Municipal League and National League of Cities have taken strong opposing positions.

"Part of our position is the representation of the interests of local government," George Goodman, director of the MML, said. "Basically, we feel that if it isn't broke, why fix it? There's no real competition between cable companies now. We don't bail out companies when they think they might be going broke."

A number of provisions in the Senate bill violate the "philosophy of local control," Goodman said. The bill would take away the cities' right to regulate rates in the 100 top television markets in the country, would allow companies to abrogate portions of the agreement by claiming significant changes in circumstances and make a presumption of renewal of the franchise, he added.

Rate deregulation

Cable operators need some guarantees that their investment in the franchise equipment isn't going to go up in smoke at the end of the contract. National Cable Television Association's Dooley said. "It gives them a sense of permanence for the system" he added.

The renewal process could begin three years before the franchise is due to expire, Dooley said. Cities would have to respond to the application for renewal within 12 months, letting the cable company know whether it still has the franchise so it can borrow money to upgrade if necessary, he added.

Deregulating basic service rates will allow customers to choose a number of competitive telecommunications services, Dooley said. By the time the rate structure is phased out in five years, there will be direct satellite programming available as well as any number of other options, he added.

Deregulating the industry won't make the franchises more competitive, according to Huntington Woods city manager Mark Wollenwebber. "They (cable operators) opened it up to free market competition in the beginning and now they don't want to live with that choice," he said. "No cable companies compete with one another."

Locally, there are two cable television franchises. The first, Grosse Pointe Cable, Inc., serve the Woods, Farms, City, Park and Harper Woods, Grosse Pointe Shores, St. Clair Shores and Fraser are wired by ComCast Cablevision, which recently acquired the franchise from Cox.

Cities control

According to Grosse Pointe Cable Inc. president John Rickel, deregulation will have little effect on the local franchise because the cities and the War Memorial control the board of directors through ownership of the company.

Under the franchise agreement signed three years ago, Grosse Pointe Cable is a private company that provides local cable television, Rickel said. The company grants contracts to cable companies to provide programming, he said.

Should the companies not provide services to the satisfaction of the board, the contracts are not renewed, Rickel said. Because of their ownership of stock through a provision of the franchise agreement, the cities and the War Memorial will retain control over the franchise despite the legislation, he said.

Two communities served by the franchise object to the legislation, however. Woods City Administrator-Clerk Chester Petersen said the council passed a resolution objecting to the legislation last year because of the bill's effect on the local control of the franchise.

Grosse Pointe City also voiced its opposition, asking the House committee reviewing it to "assure reasonable local authority over cable television rates, franchise renewals and access to channel set-asides."

Grosse Pointe Shores' cable committee is currently studying the matter to decide the village's course of action, Superintendent Michael Kenyon said.

A new bill?

Dennis Hertel, 14th District Democrat, said he is studying the legislation to decide the effect it will have on consumers. Because the House committee that will hold hearings on the legislation is chaired by a Michigan congressman, the Michigan caucus can expect to receive a good briefing on the matter, he added.

While both sides are making arguments that say their position protects consumers, Hertel said he is "looking for specifics, not allegations," about the legislation.

What the House passes after its hearings may not be what the Senate passed, officials said. A number of amendments may be made in committee as well as on the floor of the House that will change the legislation, they added.

Five states have no sales tax: Alaska, Delaware, Montana, New Hampshire and Oregon. Six have no income tax: Florida, Nevada, South Dakota, Texas, Washington and Wyoming.

GPN composite of Val Scary, close personal friend of CKLW radio personality Tom Ryan who bears an eerie likeness to Val.

A cool guy from G.P.

By Harriet Nolan

"You're beautiful and you're cool," the smooth masculine voice said, words guaranteed to get my attention every time. My eyes darted to the source, my television, to learn more about this obviously perceptive individual.

His sight nearly took my breath away. I knew immediately this was no ordinary man. He looked so "COOL" dressed in docksiders, a tuxedo and a black cape with a 10 inch preppy alligator perched on his emerald colored lapel.

I felt myself sway under his gaze which, fortunately for me, was muted through his Porsche designer sunglasses. Who was this man? I had to know him.

Using my investigative skills as a reporter, I learned that Val Scary is his name and being "COOL" is his game. I also discovered that while Val is a bon vivant who loves to frequent the trendiest vacation and night spots with beautiful girls on each arm, he's also somewhat elusive.

The location of his home in Grosse Pointe is one of the best kept secrets in town and he has an unlisted telephone number.

Trying to track him down proved fruitless until I heard that Tom Ryan, a radio personality on CKLW, was telling anybody who would listen that he was one of Val's closest friends. So I called him and asked if he would introduce me to Val. He agreed and it was a wintery day last month that I weathered a seven-inch snowstorm to meet the man of my most recent dreams.

On the way there I couldn't help but think about this man, who has a reputation for dating so many beautiful girls! Would I measure up? After all I'm only five-feet, two inches tall.

When I saw Ryan dressed in a preppy pale yellow crew neck sweater, soft brown cords and docksiders I was sure he was Val's best friend, he too looked so cool. But he quickly disappointed me by saying Val was away skiing at St. Moritz.

I had to be content to learn all about Val from one of his closest friends, even though Ryan admitted he has never been invited to Val's home or out with him when he paints the town pink and green.

He said he first met Val about a year and a half ago during a taping of the Count Scary Show at Channel 4. It seems Count Scary and Val are related.

As far as Ryan could tell, the Count and Val are about 312 years old, give or take a decade, and offspring of a very wealthy family who "made a lot of blood money in Pennsylvania years ago."

"They've been educated at Williams of Pittsburgh, one of the finest schools in the east," he adds.

But that's where the similarity between the two ends. It seems Val is the one the Scary family favored best. So much in fact, that they favored him with the family fortune which enables him to be "COOL" for a living, tooling around Grosse Pointe in his blue Corvette with personalized "VAL" license plates.

The Count, on the other hand, is now relegated to working hard just to make ends meet and always seems to be pumping his earnings back into repairing his Scarymobile, a 1957 pink Imperial.

"Val and the Count come from a long line of Vumpires," says Ryan. "The Count is always striking out and Val is always safe at home."

He remembers seeing Val wandering the streets of Grosse Pointe being "COOL" before he met him and says his unlisted address and phone number are for protection against the large number of chicks who would only be calling him all the time.

"Val either lives in a home on Windmill Pointe, Lakeshore or above the police station," guesses Ryan.

"He might also live in the basement of the Esquire Theater because he's such a show biz guy and I've also seen him waving from off the Ford cove property," he adds.

One of Val's favorite Grosse Pointe watering holes is Sparky Herbert's or, as Ryan says Val would pronounce it, "Sparkie Erberts." He also goes out with all the Grosse Pointe debutantes but suggests they might keep it quiet and deny any knowledge of him.

Mostly he likes to be "COOL" and hits the local night spots like Cheeks and Mr. Laff's. He peruses the Val Street Journal faithfully and his taste in music runs from classical, to oldies, to disco, according to Ryan.

Another favorite pastime of Val's, says Ryan, is watching sports, polo being his favorite, and he loves to buy polo clothes from his favorite designer Calvin Scary of Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania.

I also discovered that Val is very considerate of his girls' health. He wears his Porsche designer sunglasses all the time simply for their protection.

"He doesn't want to drive them crazy to see his eyes," says Ryan.

Val has never met a girl who didn't like him, says Ryan, and his philosophy on women is the one for him hasn't been born yet. Those lucky enough to go out with him could expect a date that begins with dinner at an exquisite restaurant, followed by a little dancing and then topped with a nightclub at his place in Grosse Pointe.

"Val leans towards girls who are beautiful and sophisticated," says Ryan. "While the Count likes girls who are beautiful, sophisticated and whose father owns a liquor store."

"The nicest thing Val can say to you is 'you're beautiful and you're cool,'" he adds.

Ryan says Val begs off having photos taken of himself for the sake of the girls. "They're too overwhelmed now and it would only be worse if his photo were in the paper." But there are whisperings around town that there really isn't a Val or Count Scary, that they're the creation of Ryan and Tom DeLisle, who is his sidekick, producer and writer of most of the material heard on the Ryan Company.

Scuttlebutt has it that Count Scary was created as a vehicle to show a 3-D movie on Channel 4 in July 1982. A show, which Ryan says, "grabbed 49 percent of the ratings," and caused them to ask themselves "if we have something here?"

Val Scary, the alter ego of Count Scary appeared on a subsequent show and lives in Grosse Pointe, says Ryan, because where else can you wear pink and green?

It probably didn't hurt the character either that Ryan's wife, Joan, grew up here and graduated from Grosse Pointe High in 1963. Also a brother-in-law lives on Harvard and is often visited by Val when he is in town being "COOL."

Whatever the true origin of Count Scary and Val, the relationship has proven successful for Ryan and DeLisle. They've done six shows with their help and have three more planned for this year. Ryan promised Val will be back from Aspen and Hawaii in time for an appearance.

Merchants told Hill parking deck is near visitors or patients. It would result in more noise and air pollution for the patients.

"On the other hand, the city is concerned about possible traffic congestion on Kercheval adjacent to the new service drive by the Bronze Door," continued Shea. "It's estimated that traffic will increase there about 20 percent."

Shea also told the merchants that a study has shown that the alley-way behind the stores on the Hill and between the municipal parking lot is used by an average of 80 trucks a day.

"Cottage Hospital also receives an average of 20 truck deliveries a day," said Shea, "with three of those trucks being semis." "There's no clear cut solution to the problem, but it's not insurmountable. We just want to make sure it's done absolutely right."

"I think I irritated the city a little when I told them the best thing that can happen to them is to have traffic jams," smiled Earl Heenan, treasurer of the Cottage Hospital Board, who also attended the meeting.

Three stories high

"You see traffic jams in places like Birmingham and Plymouth," he added. "Maybe it would be necessary to hire traffic police. But it's good for the merchants to have all that traffic." Heenan also pointed out that the new retail/office building would employ an additional 100 to 125 persons who would also shop daily on the Hill.

Heenan added that the new office building could only be built if the parking deck was constructed, but that if the office building was not erected, the new parking deck would still be installed.

"The only difference is that we would eliminate one deck of the parking structure," said Heenan. Current plans call for the structure to be three stories high and would provide about 350 parking spaces.

Heenan and Shea said the deck would provide leased parking spots on a monthly basis, plus hourly rates for hospital visitors. Neither man could provide any figures for monthly or hourly rates.

Both Heenan and Shea agreed that construction on the deck could begin "within six months" after a final plan had been agreed upon by the hospital and the city.

"And we're very close to making that decision," said Heenan. "Once the choice has been made, we'll have to re-apply to the state for a certificate of need for the parking deck. The one we had obtained earlier has unfortunately expired."

Heenan also estimated that once construction had begun, the deck would be completed in about a year.

I'm happy to report that I didn't fall, which is probably why Lake St. Clair is still intact. And after a few circuits some of the old skills came back. But it was nothing like when I was young, fit and dumb.

But so what. I'm still going to keep at it during my lunch hour.

They say you can't go home anymore. But I don't think that includes skating.

Three losers

In our "so what do the experts know" section this week is the rather embarrassed tale told by our sports editor, Peggy O'Connor who confessed that she had lost a $5 bet on the Super Bowl last weekend.

She lost the wager to her favorite garbageman, or "sanitary engineer" as Peggy begged me to substitute.

And, speaking of the Super Bowl, what a bizarre two minute slice of television life was that post game interview between Phyllis George and Jane Fonda?

Miss America talks to Miss Hanoi. And they say America has no culture.

From Another Pointe Of View

By Janet Mueller

Last year, it attracted some 400 guests, including many local celebrities, and — more importantly — raised $40,000 for Detroit Public Television. This year, the WTVS/Channel 56 Art Auction at Somerset Mall promises to be even more fun, hopefully, even more successful, according to Grosse Pointe's Dotti Doerer, chairman of the Art Auction special projects committee and co-chairman of the WTVS/Channel 56 on-the-air General Merchandise Auction.

Nearly 150 items from the Fifty-Six Collection of works in many media (paintings, glass, ceramics, lithographs, sculpture, drawings, jewelry, photographs) will go up for bids Saturday, Feb. 25, following a preview, cocktails and dinner.

"The theme of this year's Art Auction is 'O Carnaval,' reflecting the romance and glamour of Rio de Janeiro's annual festival," Dotti says. The evening begins at 6:30 p.m. with cocktails, hors d'oeuvres and a chance to take a leisurely look at the objects you can bid on following dinner, with a distinctly Latin flavor, served at 7:30 p.m.

Among those objects is a mixed media piece created by recent Pointer of Interest Jim Pallas as part of an artists' nuclear arms protest. Other featured items range from an exquisite ivory sculpture done at the turn of the century to a wooden watermelon from the American Folk Art Collection.

Tickets for the evening are $25 per person, and may be obtained by calling 873-7200, Extension 200. If you're interested in previewing prior to the preview hour on Art Auction night, be advised that the Fifty-Six Collection will be on display at Somerset Mall, open to the public during regular mall hours, beginning Saturday, Feb. 18. Pre-bids will be accepted during the week.

Also on display will be additional works to be auctioned on Art Sunday, April 8, during Channel 56's televised General Merchandise Auction, running April 6 through 14.

The Art Auction is the first event of the Channel 56 Auction season. Last year, the Art and Televised Auctions raised 17 percent of the public television station's annual operating budget. Wouldn't it be nice if that percentage could be increased this year?

Speaking of Art . . .

...Did you know that the Art to the Schools Committee of the Detroit Institute of Arts is offering eight free slide presentations this year to fourth, fifth and sixth grade students in the metropolitan area? "Portraits and People" has been added to the "Introduction to the Museum," "Arts of Asia," "Native American," "African," "Art Trek: A Walk through the 20th Century," "American" and "Ancient" art talks.

Hats off to the DSO Radio Marathon

PAT YOUNG (left) will be at the Main Branch Detroit Public Library on Woodward Avenue from 7 p.m. to midnight a week from tomorrow, Friday, Feb. 3. So will STEPHANIE GERMACK, president of the Women's Association for the Detroit Symphony Orchestra. So will LEE HANSON (standing behind Stephanie), vice-president and general manager of WQRS Timeless FM-105, and MIKE WHORF, WQRS program director. Occasion is the DSO-WQRS Radio Marathon Kick-Off Party, "Hats Off to the Detroit Symphony," which will feature musical interludes by DSO and other musicians during the early part of the evening in selected rooms of the library. There'll be a bassoon trio; horn, marimba and cello quartets; flute, oboe and vocal jazz ensembles, as well as solo instruments. There'll be an appearance by Maestro Gunther Herbig, the DSO's new music director. There'll be a celebrity auction, a hat judging contest, dancing to Chet Bogan's Wolverine Jazz Band featuring vocalist Dixie Belle. Food and desserts prepared by The Gnome restaurant will be served throughout the evening. Cash bar service and valet parking will be available. Pat Young's in charge of it all, and she says you're all invited. Tickets, at $20 per person, can be purchased at all Ticket/World CTC outlets and the Ford Auditorium Box Office. Proceeds will be added to 1984 DSO-WQRS Radio Marathon proceeds, used to underwrite the symphony's Outreach, Education and Youth Programs. If there's anything more you want to know, give Pat a call at 886-6829. She'll be happy to answer your questions. Honorary chairperson of the Marathon, to be broadcast from the WQRS studios starting at 5 p.m. Wednesday, Feb. 8, concluding at 11 p.m. Sunday, Feb. 12, is Lieutenant Governor Martha Griffiths. The Marathon is an annual project of the Detroit Symphony League and the Women's Association for the Detroit Symphony Orchestra, to benefit the DSO.

Davis-Boulter rites planned

An early May wedding is being planned by Pandora Ann Boulter, daughter of Susan Chaffee Boulter, of Kentwood and Dr. Thomas R. Boulter, of Dallas, Tex., and Randall Keith Davis, son of Mr. and Mrs. Edmund R. Davis, of McMillan Road.

Miss Boulter, an alumna of East Kentwood High School, holds a Bachelor of Business Administration degree from Western Michigan University, where she affiliated with Alpha Chi Omega social sorority and Phi Chi Theta professional business fraternity.

Her fiancé was graduated from Grosse Pointe South High School and expects to receive his Bachelor of Business Administration degree from Western Michigan University this April. His fraternity is Sigma Chi.

Melinda Leone

Miss Leone will be wed

Mid-June wedding plans are being made by Melinda M. Leone and Andrew M. Campbell whose engagement has been announced by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. A. Gerard Leone, of Mapleton Road.

Miss Leone holds a Bachelor of Science degree in Psychology from Michigan State University and a Bachelor of Science degree in Occupational Therapy from Wayne State University.

Mr. Campbell, son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert M. Campbell, of Ann Arbor, was graduated from Harvard College with a Bachelor of Arts degree in History and received his Juris Doctor from the University of Michigan.

Feature recent photos at DIA

More than 100 black and white and color photographs made since 1960 are on display in "Recent Acquisitions: Contemporary Photographs," running through Feb. 5 in the recently opened Peggy and Albert de Salle Gallery of Photography at the Detroit Institute of Arts.

The show was organized by Marilyn Symmes, the museum's associate curator of Graphic Arts. Subjects range from a Disneyland castle to Salisbury Cathedral, from a portrait of Jackie Kennedy to one of Isamu Noguchi, from scenes in Brasilia to scenes in Randolph, Neb.

witt, Ralph Gibson, Mischa Gordin, Helen Levitt, Joel Meyerowitz, Nick Nixon, Bill Rauhauser, Aaron Siskind, Carl Toth and Brett Weston are among the works acquired by gift and purchase for the DIA's permanent collection.

The nucleus of the exhibit is contemporary work acquired through a 1981 National Endowment for the Arts grant of $5,000 for the purchase of photographs by living artists. This amount was matched in 1982 by the Drawing and Print Club of the museum's Founders Society.

The exhibition is open to the public without charge during regular museum hours: 9:30 a.m. to 5:30 p.m. Tuesday through Sunday.

Gregory Stahl to claim bride

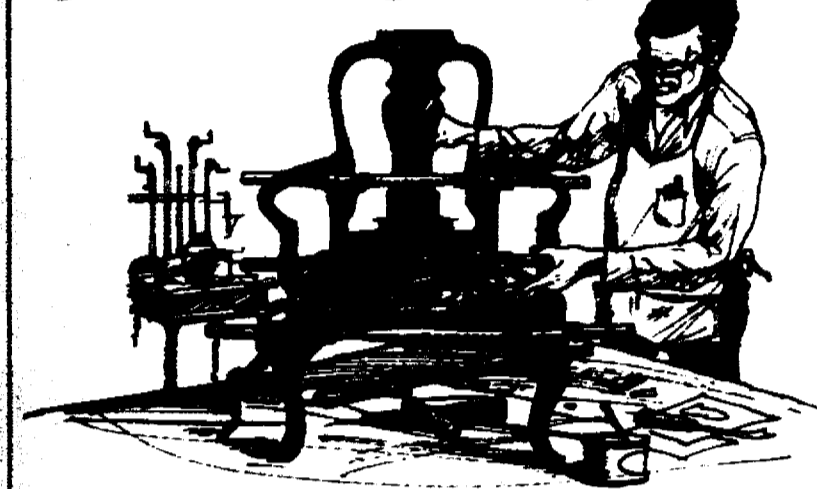

Mr. and Mrs. Michael G. McKeane, of Barrington Hills, Ill., have announced the engagement of their daughter, Melanie Blythe, to Gregory Ian Stahl, son of Florence M. Stahl, of Mapleton Road, and Harry S. Stahl, also of The Pointe. The wedding is planned for early June.

Miss McKeane holds a Bachelor of Arts degree in Communications

Arts and Sciences from DePaul University, where she affiliated with Kappa Kappa Gamma sorority.

Her fiancé, a University Liggett School alumnus, received his Bachelor of Arts/Bachelor of Science degree in Finance from Babson College. He has recently been transferred from Chicago to Houston, Tex.

Miss Scotella is a fall bride

Saint Paul's-on-the-Lakeshore was the setting for the autumn marriage of Lisa Dianne Scotella, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Patrick J. Scotella, of Ridgemont Road, and William Harrison Teska, son of Mr. and Mrs. Wilfred Teska, of Mount Clemens.

Monsignor Francis X. Canfield celebrated the nuptial mass Friday, September 16, at 4:30 o'clock. Lisa's brother, Dennis Magee, of Youngstown, Ohio, served as lector, and her nieces, Laurie, Shannon and Tina Magee, and nephew, Jimmy Magee, presented the offerings.

Margaret Ahee, soloist, was accompanied on the organ by Marcia Bonahoom. The ceremony was followed by a reception at the Gourmet House, after which the newlyweds left to vacation for two weeks on Aruba. They are at home in East Detroit.

The bride wore an Empire-waisted gown of white Qiana, its bodice of Venetian lace studded with seed pearls, its cathedral train edged in matching lace, as was her veil. Her full, georgette sleeves were caught at the wrists with a band of lace and a delicate ruffle. She carried a cascade of 50 white, miniature roses, stephanotis and English ivy, with white satin ribbons.

Honor maid Rosemarie Scotella, cousin of the bride, and bridesmaids Terri Hanna and Jane Teska, sister of the bridegroom, in long, blouson-bodiced dresses of orchid chiffon, wore arrangements of two miniature orchids and baby's-breath in their hair. Each carried two large, purple orchids, with baby's-breath and English ivy.

Robert Teska was his brother's best man. Patrick J. Scotella, brother of the bride, and Richard Imperiale ushered.

The mothers of the bride and bridegroom both selected chiffon gowns, the former's in an apricot shade, with a matching, sheer cape, the latter's rose-colored, styled with a pleated skirt. Mrs. Scotella wore a wrist corsage of two apricot-tinted orchids, Mrs. Teska a wrist corsage of two rose tinted orchids.

Mr. and Mrs. William H. Teska

Karen Schumer to be married

Mr. and Mrs. Donald Schumer, of Fairholme Road, are announcing the engagement of their daughter, Karen Beth, to James Richard Ziemiecki, son of Mr. and Mrs. Thaddeus Ziemiecki, of Van Antwerp Road. An early August wedding is planned.

Both the bride-elect and her fiancé are Grosse Pointe North High School graduates. She attended Western Michigan and Wayne State Universities, majoring in English, and expects to be graduated from Oakland University's Legal Assistant Program this June.

He holds a Bachelor of Science degree in Biology from the University of Michigan, where he is presently in his third year in the School of Dentistry. He is affiliated with Delta Sigma Delta professional dental fraternity and the American Dental Association.

Mr. and Mrs. Philip R. Simon

Simon-Ehrbar rites are read

At home in Mount Clemens are Mr. and Mrs. Philip Robert Simon, who vacationed on Siesta Key, Fla., following their summer marriage in Saint Bernadette Church, Westwood, Ohio, and a reception at the Westwood Country Club.

Mrs. Simon is the former Jane Ann Ehrbar, daughter of Mrs. William Ehrbar, of North Olmsted, Ohio, and the late Mr. Ehrbar. Mr. Simon is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Philip G. Simon, of Shelden Road.

Father James O'Neill presided at the 6 o'clock ceremony Friday, July 29. Daisy appliques trimmed the high-collared, cap-sleeved bodice and chapel train of the traditional, white gown the bride selected for the evening rites.

Matching appliques rimmed her fingertip veil. She carried a bouquet of silk flowers: daisies, white Sweetheart roses, violets and baby's-breath.

Honor maid Jill Ehrbar, sister of the bride, and bridesmaids Barb and Marybeth Simon, the bridegroom's sisters, Julie Stockhausen, the bride's aunt, Shelley Claycomb, the bride's cousin, Cathy Newell and Mary Meehan wore sleeveless dresses of lavender taffeta, accented with ruffles and grosgrain ribbon, and matching, lavender hats. They carried baskets of silk daisies, violets and lavender roses.

Mark Simon acted as best man for his brother. Ushering were two other brothers, Jim and Brad Simon, Jeff Ehrbar, the bride's brother, Mike Colella, Paul Adamo and Dan Jacobs.

Flower girl was Donna Mowchan, the bride's cousin. Ring bearer was Jimmy Simon, the bridegroom's nephew.

The mother of the bride wore a floor length dress of kelly green chiffon, styled with long, sheer sleeves and belted in chiffon, and an arrangement of silk daisies and baby's-breath in her hair. The bridegroom's mother's gown of peach chiffon featured a floral-embroidered bodice. Peach roses, baby's-breath and daisies formed her wrist corsage.

An Opera Event

For the first time since 1978, the Metropolitan Opera National Council has selected Detroit as the site for its Great Lakes Regional Opera Auditions. They will be held at 1 p.m. Sunday, Feb. 5, in Rackham Auditorium, and are open to the public at $3 general admission. Reservations may be made through the Detroit Grand Opera Association, 832-5200, which has been sponsoring Detroit's District Opera Auditions since 1945.

In competition at Rackham will be 12 young singers, from the region which includes all of Michigan, northern Ohio, western Pennsylvania, western New York and eastern Canada, who have advanced from district contests held last fall in Cleveland, Pittsburgh and Toronto as well as Detroit.

The first place winner will receive $800 and the opportunity to compete with top contenders from 16 other regions in the National Council's semi-finals and final auditions in New York. Judges include Lawrence F. Stayer, the Met's assistant artistic administrator and head of its Young Artist Development Program, Dr. William B. Christ, associate dean of Indiana University's School of Music, music theorist, composer and choral conductor, and basso Nicola Rossi-Lemeni, who has performed at virtually every major opera house in the world.

Speaking of Opera . . .

Turn-of-the-century opera personalities, early cabinet photographs, color portraits and recent studies of performers, performances, and audiences will be featured in an exhibition entitled "The Metropolitan Opera Centennial: A Photographic Album," opening Saturday, Feb. 4, at the Detroit Historical Museum, and running there through April 1. The photos cover everything, from Caruso's final performance (and before) to Maria Callas' debut (and beyond).

The exhibit, made possible by a grant from Merrill Lynch, Pierce, Fenner & Smith, opened at New York's International Center of Photography last fall and will travel across the United States and Canada after its Detroit showing. Local arrangements for it have been coordinated by the Detroit Grand Opera Association, sponsor of the Met's annual appearances here. This spring's Met Week in Detroit is slated for May 28-June 2.

A Quartet of Classics

Any list of popular music's classic performers has got to include Rosemary Clooney, Rose Marie, Helen O'Connell and Kay Starr, whose opening night "New Four Girls Four" performance at the Music Hall a week from tomorrow, Friday, Feb. 3, will honor the late Billie Barak, a leading member of the Music Hall Center's board of trustees.

Three hundred seats are being held for the 8 p.m. performance and a benefit reception, following the last curtain call, which the Four Girls will attend. Proceeds will be used to establish the Nita Zeff Barak Memorial Trust Fund, designed to support future innovative programming at the non-profit performing arts center.

Benefit tickets at $50 per person, $37.50 of which is tax deductible, may be obtained through the Music Hall Development Office, 963-7622. Grosse Pointe's Ruth (Mrs. Joseph A. Jr.) Vance is co-chairing the event, along with Sylvia (Mrs. William) Gershenson, Mrs. Selma Hyman, Shirley Eder (Mrs. Edward J.) Slotkin and Barbara (Mrs. Richard) Tucker.

A gala music night for Detroit

When Gunther Herbig leads the Detroit Symphony Orchestra in an all-Beethoven concert Saturday, Feb. 11, it will be for the first time as the DSO's music director designate.

To mark this important event, WDIV-TV Channel 4 will televise portions of the concert locally in a live 9 to 11 p.m. broadcast, and Radio Station WQRS-FM will air the entire concert, which begins at 8:30 p.m. in Ford Auditorium. Some portions will be simulcast with Channel 4.

The television program will include both live and taped segments. Other festivities contributing to the gala music night in Detroit are a pre-concert dinner at the Renaissance Club, open to the public at $35 per person, and a black tie meet-the-maestro afterglow at the Renaissance Club for $100 patron ticket holders.

The patron tickets, of which $65 is tax deductible, must be purchased through the Ford Auditorium box office. Other tickets for the concert, ranging in price from $10 to $25, and tickets for the dinner are on sale at the Ford Auditorium box office and all CTC outlets, including Hudson's. VISA and MasterCard charge card customers may order by telephone at 567-1400.

The program includes Beethoven's "Leonore" Overture No. 3 and Symphony No. 7 in A major, Op. 92, and his Concerto in D major for Violin and Orchestra, Op. 61, with guest artist Edith Peinemann.

Agape theme for breakfast

All women of the community are invited to breakfast with love and the women of Grosse Pointe Memorial Church next Tuesday, Jan. 31, at their annual Agape Breakfast. Dr. Dhung-Hyun Ro, the church's 1984 Ecumenical Minister, will be the guest speaker.

Dr. Ro, from Seoul, Korea, serves as vice-president of the World Alliance of Reformed Churches and is professor of Public Administration at Yonsei University in Seoul. He was a visiting professor at the University of Virginia in 1977 and received his Ph.D. in Public Administration from New York University.

Seeking 'Anna Bolena' chorus

Michigan Opera Theatre will hold auditions for all chorus positions for its June production of "Anna Bolena," starring Dame Joan Sutherland, on Saturday, Feb. 11. All singers are required to prepare two musical selections: one in Italian and one in English. An accompanist will be provided.

Interested applicants should schedule an appointment by a week from tomorrow, Friday, Feb. 3, through the MOT production office (963-3717 between 1 and 5 p.m. weekdays).

Big day for the Booths...

'Art of Today' Take in-depth seminar slated look at Gandhi

Paula Strickstein, vice-president of the Contemporary Art Institute of Detroit, will present a four-part, slide-illustrated seminar at the Grosse Pointe War Memorial on Thursdays, Feb. 2, 9 and 16, culminating Feb. 23 with tours of several contemporary galleries. The class will meet from 1 to 2:30 p.m.

South Asia historian Peter Grandia will examine the life of Mahatma Gandhi in a lecture designed to go beyond the story of the Indian pacifist as portrayed in the recent movie on Thursday, Feb. 9, at 10 a.m. at the Grosse Pointe War Memorial.

The first lecture, next Thursday, will focus on the specialized view of the Impressionists and Post-Impressionists: the art that shocked 19th century France and thrust the world into the 20th century exploration of modernity.

The University of Michigan professor will talk about Gandhi's political philosophy and how it corresponded to Indian cultural and religious traditions: a point of view representing the saintly side of the man.

The second lecture presents two great 20th Century Renaissance figures, Picasso and Matisse. Their different styles will be explored, together with their influence on the art of today.

He will then consider Gandhi's political philosophy and how it related to the Indian nationalist movement against British colonialism, illustrating the view of Gandhi as a revolutionary.

Post-World War II, New York superseded Paris as the Universal Center for Contemporary Art. An influx of great artists from war-torn Europe enriched the lives of Americans and taught America's artists. The 1980s, a period of energy in the art world, diverse media in touch with a dynamic culture's pulse, will be the topic of the third lecture.

Admission to the lecture, third in a series of five focusing on South and Southeast Asia, sponsored by the War Memorial's Council of Sponsors, is $5 (students, $2). Additional information may be obtained by calling 881-7511.

The Feb. 23 gallery tour includes the option of a pre-tour lunch. The entire series is offered at $28. Single lecture price is $8. Registration may be made and further information obtained by calling 881-7511.

Meeting date for Fox Creek

Mrs. Geoffrey Welsler will assist Mrs. Robert Priest when she welcomes the Fox Creek Chapter of Questers next Thursday, Feb. 2, at 12:30 p.m. Mrs. Priest will present the program, on "Button Hooks."

Ohlsson plays Bartok tonight

Soloist Garrick Ohlsson joins the Detroit Symphony Orchestra for performances of Bartok's Concerto No. 2 for Piano and Orchestra tonight, Thursday, Jan. 26, at 8 p.m. and Saturday, Jan. 28, at 8:30 p.m. in Ford Auditorium. Works by Haydn and Brahms complete the program for Guest Conductor Herbert Blomstedt's second week of subscription concerts with the DSO.

Tickets for both performances, ranging in price from $9 to $18, are on sale at the Ford Auditorium box office and all CTC outlets, including Hudson's. MasterCard and VISA charge card customers may order by telephone at 567-1400. Group rates are available by calling 446-0909.

'Hamlet' joins Hilberry Feb. 9

A bouquet of Rose Society officers...

Short and to The Pointe

Among students enrolled in the fall freshman class at Rensselaer Polytechnic Institute are Mary St. Clair Hayden, of Severn Road, a Grosse Pointe North High School graduate who plans to major in geology at RPI; and Emile E. Ettegui, of Cranford Lane, a Grosse Pointe South High School graduate who plans to major in chemistry.

Among Michigan State University's summer term degree candidates were Robyn C. Eckhardt, of Willow Tree Place, Patrick S. Fragel, of Eight Mile Road, Carolyn J. Jones, of Fairway Drive, Alix A. Kruse, of South Deeplands Road, Thomas J. Martinelli, of University Place, Thomas E. McHugh, of McMillan Road, Robert J. Marshall, of Stanton Lane, Jennifer I. Tewes, of Edgemont Park, John S. Driggers, of Anita Avenue, Charles K. Finley, of Woods Lane Drive, Diane M. Hagg, of Broadstone Road, Colleen S. Nelson, of Van K. Drive, and Dominic J. Orlando, of Saddle Lane, Bachelors of Arts; Susan K. Smyka, of Sunningdale Drive, Cheryl L. Cotichio, of Lakeland Avenue, Barbara Saunders, of Barrington Road, and Charlene A. Fine, of Borunemouth Circle, Bachelors of Science.

Marine Cpl. Timothy P. Thompson, son of James F. and Bernadette M. Thompson, of Roslyn Road, was meritoriously promoted to his present rank while serving with the Second Marine Aircraft Wing, Marine Corps Air Station, Cherry Point, N.C. He received the accelerated promotion in recognition of outstanding performance, duty proficiency and demonstrated professional abilities.

Pointer Milly Neuder, Executive Vice-President from the Detroit Area Council of Camp Fire, attended the youth agency's national congress in Philadelphia Nov. 9 through 13.

Former Pointer Bradford Blazar, a 1979 graduate of Grosse Pointe South High School, co-founded and acts as president of his own oil company, Third Coast Petroleum, in Austin, Texas.

Senior soprano Jennifer Marshall, of Radnor Circle, was among members of the Interlochen Arts Academy Choral which toured Michigan, Minnesota and Wisconsin Nov. 7 through 13 as part of the Michigan Council for the Arts "Outreach: Show-on-the-Road" program.

Thirty-five family members and friends met at the Lochmoor Club Dec. 3 to celebrate the 60th wedding anniversary of Mayor and Mrs. Matthew C. Patterson, of Devonshire Road. The celebration

Art of Poland group presents 'Krzyzacy' film

The Art of Poland Associates, newest auxiliary within the Founders Society Detroit Institute of Arts, presents the Polish-produced film "Krzyzacy" (Teutonic Knights), with English subtitles, this Sunday, Jan. 29, at 4 p.m. in the museum's Lecture-Recital Hall.

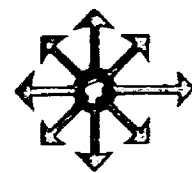

Admission to the historical epic based on a novel by Nobel Prize winner Henryk Sienkiewicz, who also wrote "Quo Vadis," is via the DIA's Woodward Avenue entrance, at $4 for general audience, $3 for senior citizens and students with ID. Special rates are available for groups of 20 or more.

The film, directed by Aleksandra Ford, focuses on the Polish victory over an army of Teutonic Knights on the battlefield of Grunwald in the 15th century. Additional information may be obtained by calling 886-7425 or 352-1968.

The more than 250 members of the Art of Poland Associates are involved in expanding understanding and appreciation of more than 1,000 years of Polish culture and art, and support the Polish Art Gallery at the Detroit Institute of Arts.

Village Garden Club to meet

The Village Garden Club will meet tomorrow, Friday, Jan. 27, at 11 a.m. at the Country Club of Detroit, where a speaker from the Detroit Institute of Arts will address the group. Hostesses are the Mesdames Emil Traun, Walter Simmons and Kenneth Cunningham.

Wiggle away at Youtheatre

"Peter and The Wolf," a Wiggle Club show for families with children ages 3 and up, will be presented by the Chicago-based Marilyn Price Company in the Detroit Institute of Arts' auditorium at 11 a.m. and 2 p.m. Saturday, Jan. 28.

General admission tickets for the hour-long Youtheatre program are $3 for children and adults ($1.75 each in groups of 10 or more), available at the door or by purchase in advance through the museum's ticket office, 832-2730.

Beta Delta DKGs to 'sew' and tell

Members of Beta Delta Chapter of Delta Kappa Gamma international society, an honorary organization for women in education, will meet Monday, Feb. 6, at 7:30 p.m. in the Doyle Court home of Irene Middleton to stuff toys for the School for Exceptional Children.

Irene will "stitch and cut" the toy animals and the other workshop participants will "stuff and sew," all sharing ideas and experiences as they enjoy the project: an annual chapter event for the past five years.

Learn to eat less at Macomb YWCA

A three-session series conducted by the Mini-Bite Diet company, designed to train participants to satisfy their appetites with less food via a simple, holistic method that produces permanent weight loss, begins Monday, Jan. 30, at the Macomb YWCA.

Classes will meet from 7 to 8 p.m. at St. Gabriel's Church, located on Stephens in East Detroit. Series fee is $32. Pre-registration is required; additional information may be obtained by calling 772-4435.

Heartline benefit dance scheduled

The Catholic Alumni Club of Detroit, a singles organization, will hold its annual Heartline Benefit Dance Saturday, Feb. 11, at Bonnie Brook Golf Club. The party begins at 8 p.m. A $7 admission donation includes music by the Windjammers and light refreshments; a cash bar will be available.

Proceeds go to Heartline Home, currently in its 20th year, a residential facility for young women in trouble who have no place to go. Heartline offers vocational and educational counseling as part of its three-part program.

The Community LINC

Although Christmas 1983 is behind us and the new year is pushing ahead, LINC (Linking Individuals to Needs in the Community) would like to take one last opportunity to acknowledge the generosity of the community. The following is a list of schools and churches which contributed to the success of the Foster Children Christmas Gift Program, chaired by Judy Hatton. LINC thanks them, and each individual donor.

Area schools and church schools: Trombly, Defer, Ferry, Kerby, Monteith, Mason, Richard, Maire, Barnes, Neighborhood Club Nursery, Christ Church Co-op Nursery, Grosse Pointe Pre-Kindergarten, Saint Paul Evangelical Lutheran Sunday and First English Lutheran Nursery.

Contributors to LINC's Christmas Gift and Toy Chest Program were Campfire Inc., Metro Wide (225 gifts; 16 food baskets) and Salem Memorial Lutheran Church (numerous hats and mittens), as well as retailers who donated 1,200 pairs of women's and children's shoes, 500 Tiger yearbooks, 100 ET posters and 140 personal care items. All of these donations were distributed by LINC volunteers Karen Townsend and Sara Gagen, and gratefully received by the following 13 Wayne County agencies:

W.O.M.E.N. Center, Brown's Missionary Chapel, Interim House, John Lee Trainable Center, Parents and Children Together (P.A.C.T.), Capuchin Center — Jefferson House, City Airport Renaissance Association, Adult Service Center, Community and Economic Development — Department of the City of Detroit, Teenage Parent Program, Renaissance Health Care, Snow Day Care Center and Neighborhood Services Organization.

As LINC moves ahead into 1984, it continues to learn of new and ongoing needs of area agencies which try to meet the task of helping people overcome daily obstacles. One such agency is the Teenage Parent Program (TAPP), part of the Children's Center of Wayne County.

TAPP is a medical and mental health service for expectant teens and their families. Its purpose is to provide health services and counseling to young women, age 21 and under, who live in Highland Park, Hamtramck and Detroit and who are pregnant. TAPP also provides services for the teen who has a child under the age of 4, and for the teen father and grandparents.

Janice Fialka, coordinator feels that teens are helped by the variety of services offered. Enrollees in the TAPP program can participate in pregnancy screening and counseling, pre- and post-natal health care clinics, pediatric care, family planning and counseling, educational classes, discussion groups, an infant/toddler drop-in center, recreation activities, infant stimulation and nutrition classes.

The program began in 1977 in Highland Park. It moved to its current address at 1047 East Grand Boulevard, Detroit, after vandalism and a fire destroyed the building in which it was located.

Besides providing classes in health care and parenting skills, it offers opportunities for teens to have a variety of experiences which help them to grow emotionally. Recently, five TAPP teens attended a leadership training weekend in conjunction with the 4-H organization. The main purpose of the trip was to expose the teens to leadership concepts, but several "bonuses" included the chance to go on a trip, to be with other teens of varied backgrounds and to have a good time.

The program has many needs, including a van to provide transportation to TAPP headquarters for many of the teen parents and their children. Fialka reports that some teens, in order to participate in TAPP, would have to take up to four different buses — with their children. Anyone who can help with this request is asked to call the LINC office, 331-6700. Other ongoing needs are canning and cooking equipment of all kinds, toys, car seats, cribs and baby equipment, including bottles and winter clothes for infants. Any donations would be greatly appreciated.

Another agency serviced by LINC is the City Airport Renaissance Association (CARA), which began in 1979. Its purpose is to work for the rehabilitation of neighborhoods by organizing neighborhood watch programs to aid in crime prevention, and to improve the appearance of neighborhoods. It also provides information for seniors on how to get help in home repair, emergency food, and how to find services in the area.

Monroe and Ernestine Gordon, residents of Detroit since 1948, helped organize CARA, which now includes approximately 21 block clubs. It sponsors an annual Halloween party for kids in the neighborhood, and a summer recreation program. CARA's current needs include office equipment (chairs, copy machine), clothing, gardening and home repair equipment. If you can help, give the LINC office a call.

Another exciting LINC fund raising event is fast approaching. Mark your calendars for Saturday, March 10, and plan to attend the Monte Carlo party to be held at the Edsel & Eleanor Ford House. Donation will be $25 per person. Watch next month's column for more details.

LINC column space is provided each month by the Grosse Pointe News as a community service. Operation LINC needs your generous contributions and your time. We are a non-profit, volunteer organization which helps numerous Wayne County agencies and depends on your support. To volunteer or donate usable items, please call us at 331-6700. Our office hours are 9 a.m. to 2 p.m. Monday through Friday, throughout the year.

Steps to take for depression

For the eight million Americans who are severely afflicted with depression, therapy and medication may be the best route — but for those of us who hit an occasional downdraft of mild or moderate depression there are a number of self-help remedies that can give a substantial boost.

Joan Heilman, writing in the December Reader's Digest, outlined mood-elevating steps you can take yourself: "uppers," in effect, without the drugs.

•EXERCISE. The very fact that you're taking action instead of just sitting there helps, and exercise actually changes the level of hormones in the blood.

•NUTRITION. Some authorities believe even a single nutritional deficiency can cause depression in susceptible people.

Vitamin therapy, when taken in accordance with a physician's instructions, is harmless, and can quickly have an effect.

•THINK POSITIVE. Depressed people view life darkly. Be aware that your dark feelings originate in your head and may not jibe with reality. Work on converting your negative thoughts into more realistic alternatives.

•SOCIALIZE. The fact that you feel isolated and lonely is an early warning signal of oncoming depression. Make a point of seeing friends and keeping in touch with associates.

•CHECK YOUR MEDICATIONS. Many prescription drugs, Heilman warns, can cause depression as a side effect. Check with your doctor if you're taking medication.

Among those recently elected to the University of Detroit National Alumni Board is Grosse Pointer Peter Mott, of Kidder, Peabody and Company of Detroit, first vice-president. Mott, a 1971 recipient of a bachelors degree in political science, has been a member of the board of directors for two years, and serves on the executive committee of the U of D President's Cabinet.

Cystic Fibrosis fight goes on Cystic Fibrosis is a disruptive inherited disease affecting one of every 2,000 individuals. It robs its victims of breath and engages them in an exhausting battle for their lives — a battle eventually won by the disease. Although no cure exists, the Michigan State Medical Society notes that substantial treatment advances in the past three decades are presently allowing CF patients to live longer, more normal lives.

The basic defect causing Cystic Fibrosis is not known. The disease manifests itself as a generalized disorder of the exocrine glands and is characterized by the excessive secretion of thick mucus. Normal respiratory, digestive and male reproductive functioning become impossible as mucus clogs the ducts and passages of the organs in these systems.

The degree of respiratory impairment is the most significant factor affecting the ultimate prognosis of a patient; thus major therapeutic efforts are directed toward control of pulmonary infection. Mucus blockages in the airways of the lungs cause severe shortages of breath and chronic coughing. CF victims are also frequently plagued by episodes of bronchitis (inflammation of the mucus membranes of the bronchial tubes) and are particularly susceptible to pneumonia.

These problems may be somewhat alleviated or prevented through the use of antibiotics, aerosol medications, nocturnal mist tent and routine chest physiotherapy (treatment by massage, exercises, beat, etc.).

Blockage of the ducts of the pancreas results in an inability to adequately digest and absorb food in more than 85 percent of all CF patients. Though they have voracious appetites, these individuals are unable to gain weight easily as proteins, fats and certain vitamins are maldigested. This defect may, however, be partially corrected through the administration of pancreatic enzymes produced in pigs or cows.

Infertility is common in male CF patients, again because of mucus duct blockages. At present, little can be done to prevent or rectify such fertility loss.

And while it is not possible to determine whether a person is a CF carrier, physicians and scientists do understand the genetic make-up which can lead to CF. A person with one CF gene (a carrier) will be normal, as will his other children unless the other parent is also a carrier. When both have a CF gene, the chances are one in four that any child will be affected, and two in four that any child will be a carrier.

Thirty years ago members of the medical community took it for granted that Cystic Fibrosis victims would die in early childhood. Today more than half the patients survive to reach 21 years, and many are adults pursuing active, productive lives.

But, the Michigan State Medical Society concludes, continued aggressive research is essential to effect further advances in the fight against CF: the most common inherited lethal disease.

Enjoy a Meadow Brook Hall break

Are you looking for a special winter day trip that's close to home... educational for children... an interesting journey into a bygone era... a comfortable, gracious experience?

Meadow Brook Hall, a 100-room mansion full of priceless antiques and irreplaceable wood, plaster and stone carvings, located on the campus of Oakland University in Rochester, is open to the public Sundays, from 1 to 5 p.m., for tours and buffet dinners.

Tour tickets are $4 for adults, $3 for senior citizens and $2 for children 12 and under. Group tour reservations may be made. The dinners, with a choice of three entrees, are priced at $6.95 for adults, $3.50 for children 12 and under.

Knole Cottage, a mini-mansion playhouse located in the woods near the hall, is also open, weather permitting, with admission 75 cents for children of all ages. Additional information may be obtained by calling 377-3140.

Among Kalamazoo College students honored at the school's annual Honors Convocation Oct. 28 was David J. Farina, son of Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Farina, of Moorland Drive who was awarded the Cooper Prize in Physics. The Cooper prize is given for excellence in the first year's work in physics.

Jim Pagel, son of Dr. and Mrs. John F. Pagel, of Lakeland Avenue, was recently elected president of Delta Tau Delta fraternity at Hillsdale College, where he is a sophomore.

Freeze affects food outlook

Citrus fruits are headliners in the food world this month: literally overnight, orange and grapefruit production for the 1983-84 season celebrating a different decade each month.

About 70 percent of Texas' lower Rio Grande Valley citrus and 80 to 90 percent of the Florida citrus crop was still on the trees when the freeze occurred. It looks like Texas sustained more damage than Florida, but both Florida and Texas have placed an embargo on fresh citrus products not harvested before the freeze. No more fresh citrus will be shipped from Texas this season.

It is too soon to know how much more of the fresh Florida crop will still be produced. Damage was much less in the southern and eastern parts of the citrus belt; orange shipments will be affected more than grapefruit because grapefruit are much rarer.

Time and temperature will determine how much of the damaged fruit can be salvaged as frozen orange juice concentrate. Retail prices of concentrate should not rise, however, because carryover stocks and Brazilian imports will supplement shortages.

Other fresh produce items greatly affected by the freeze include tomatoes, bell peppers, lettuce, onions and spinach, broccoli, cabbage, carrots and cauliflower are more resistant to cold and probably suffered less. One "plus" on the fresh vegetable front is that California has had a very good year.

Meat prices continue to run well below last summer's levels, but look for them to edge upward in coming weeks. More dramatic increases will occur this spring. Poultry prices increased some months ago. Prices for broiler-fryers are expected to rise during the second and third quarters, along with meat prices.

Egg prices are likely to stay up and even increase in an already tight egg market.

Pointer of Interest

Connie Hammes, on duty at the Grosse Pointe Yacht Club

She knows things you can't put down on paper. "Don't put that drink in that glass," she'll tell a new waitress. "That's for Mr. —. He likes his drink in a glass with a stem." And: "If that order is for Mrs. —, remember: she likes her soup served WITH her salad." All of which is, if not taken for granted, expected by members of the Grosse Pointe Yacht Club, because Connie Hammes is on duty.

Call Connie. Leave it to Connie. Connie will take care of it. Now, finally: What will we do without Connie? "I feel," said a young woman who recently came to work at the GPYC, "as if I'm losing a mother."

When Connie first came to work at the Grosse Pointe Yacht Club, 38 years ago, what she felt was scared. Born in Appleton, Wis., she was one of many young women who gravitated to Detroit during World War II. "I had a sister living here. I worked at Ford for about two years; then the war ended, and I got laid off."

A roommate, Emma Dittmar, was a waitress at the GPYC, and suggested that Connie try her luck there. "Basically," says Connie, "what Emma wanted was a ride to work." What Connie wanted was an interim job. "I didn't plan to stay. That first day I was scared to death, afraid of everybody and everything. And, at first, I couldn't figure out why everybody catered to the Commodore. Who — what — WAS this Commodore, anyway?"

Soon enough she found that out. And more. She made friends. She liked the atmosphere of a private club. "It's different. It's interesting. You get to know all the people, and their families." Five years after she came to work at the GPYC as a waitress, Connie Hammes took up her station at the entrance to the Main Dining Room. It's been her place ever since.

Planning a party? Call Connie. "I especially liked arranging weddings." This despite the fact that, because of her job, Connie missed all her own family weddings. "There was always something going on here." The hours were long, 12 to 15 (sometimes more) per day at first, less now... "but you still have to plan on about 12 hours on days when there are a lot of parties."

Assertiveness, speed reading classes slated

Marilyn Semonick will teach two separate courses at the Grosse Pointe War Memorial on Tuesdays, Feb. 7, 14 and 21.

Her morning program, "The Challenge of Assertiveness," meets from 9:30 to 11:30 a.m. Goal of this class is to teach students how to express their opinions and claim their rights in an honest and direct manner, without violating the rights of others. Topics to be covered include how to reduce fears and anxieties, how to shift from reaction to action, how to increase ability to get the job done, how to develop and maintain good personal relationships, how to build self-esteem and how to respond to difficult situations.

Her afternoon course, "Reading, Writing and Remembering," is designed to cut time spent on reading. It was developed for people who want to increase their memory power, zero in on vital information, take notes more effectively, organize thoughts and materials quickly and "hear what's really being said by others."

Each course is offered at $30. Further information may be obtained by calling 881-7511.

Elegant Eating

A selection of recipes from the forthcoming low-calorie, low-cholesterol — and penny-wise — cookbook by Thyra Grey Howard and Helena DeWitt Roth featuring, this week, SUPER SUGGESTIONS for SQUASH.

Winter Squashes (Banana, Acorn, Hubbard, Canada Crookneck, Mammoth, etc.) are the hard-skinned varieties that are usually baked, steamed or peeled and boiled. The flesh is used in many recipes. One variety of this squash was growing in the cornfields when the Pilgrims landed at Plymouth Rock; another is believed to have originated in the tropics of Asia.

Nutrients: Vitamin A (high), Potassium, Carbohydrate, Iron, B-complex (in small amounts).

Calories: One cup, cooked — 125. Suggested Seasonings: Chervil, Mint, Allspice, Nutmeg, Anise, Cardamom, Citrus Peel, Pepper.

ORANGE-BUTTERED ACORN SQUASH

2 medium acorn squash
4 tsp. brown sugar, packed
4 tsp. margarine
1/4 cup orange juice
Wash squash, halve and seed. Bake cut side down in 350° oven for 40 minutes in 13 x 9 x 2-inch baking pan which has been lined with foil. Turn cut side up. Sprinkle each half with 1 tsp. packed brown sugar; add 1 tsp. margarine to each half and 1 Tbsp. orange juice. Continue baking until tender, 15 to 20 minutes. Makes 4 servings. Calories per serving about 140. Cholesterol 0.

SAUSAGE STUFFED ACORN SQUASH

2 medium acorn squash (about 1-1/4 lb. each)
Salt
Water
1 lb. very lean bulk pork sausage
1 cup fresh bread crumbs (2 slices bread)
2 Tbsp. minced parsley
Pepper
Halve squashes lengthwise; discard seeds. Place cut side down in deep skillet in 1/2 inch lightly salted boiling water. Steam about 15 minutes or until almost tender. Drain well; place cut side up in baking dish. Cook sausage in skillet over medium heat, breaking up pieces with spoon, until brown. Drain off excess fat. Stir in crumbs, parsley, 1/2 tsp. salt and 1/8 tsp. pepper, or to taste. Spoon into squash cavities, pressing down lightly. Bake in preheated 425° oven 10 to 15 minutes, or until filling is lightly browned and squashes are heated through. Makes 4 servings. Calories per serving about 390. Cholesterol about 48 mgs.

SPICED WHIPPED SQUASH

2 medium acorn squash
1/4 cup orange juice
2 Tbsp. margarine
2 Tbsp. firmly packed light brown sugar
1/2 tsp. grated orange peel
1/4 tsp. ground cinnamon
1/8 tsp. ground cloves
1/8 tsp. ground nutmeg

Split squash; remove seeds. Place skin side up on greased baking sheet. Bake in preheated 400° oven about 30 minutes, or until done. Scoop out pulp and mash with orange juice, margarine, brown sugar, orange peel, cinnamon, cloves and nutmeg. Whip until well blended. Serve immediately, or place in small casserole and reheat in preheated 350° oven for 30 minutes, or until hot. Makes 4 servings. Calories per serving about 155. Cholesterol 0.

ACORN SQUASH WITH APPLESAUCE

2 1-lb. acorn squash, halved
1 cup unsweetened applesauce
2 tsp. brown sugar
2 Tbsp. raisins
2 tsp. margarine

Remove seeds from squash. Add water to approximately 1/2 inch in baking dish. Place squash cut side down in water. Bake about 1 hour, or until squash is tender but still firm. Turn squash over and fill cavities with mixture of the applesauce, brown sugar and raisins. Dot with margarine. Return to oven for 15 to 20 minutes, or until applesauce bubbles. Makes 4 servings. Calories per serving about 195. Cholesterol 0.

Tea at Burtha Meet minds Fisher Feb. 16 in the stars

The Saint Joseph Auxiliary of the Little Sisters of the Poor will hold its annual membership day tea at the Burtha Fisher Home for the Aged, Southfield Road at Outer Drive, on Thursday, Feb. 16, at 1 p.m. The party in the home's lounge is open to all auxiliary members, prospective members and guests. Funds raised by the auxiliary directly benefit the Sisters and the home's aged residents.

Astrologer Pat Lowe will speak on "A Meeting of Minds" at 1 p.m. today, Thursday, Jan. 26, following a 10 a.m. parliamentary lesson on Nominations and Elections and a brown bag luncheon at the Federation of Women's Clubs of Metropolitan Detroit clubhouse on Fenkell Avenue in Detroit. Members and guests are invited to enjoy cards during the remainder of the afternoon.

Sports Week

By Peggy O'Connor

What do you do with a frozen sailor?

It's winter time and the living definitely ain't easy. The ground is frozen, the air is frozen, Lake St. Clair is the world's biggest ice cube and there's not a sailor in sight. Makes you wonder, doesn't it?

I mean, think about it. Where do sailors go and what do they do in the winter? Does anyone ever see sailors in the winter? Sure, you can't find the lake for the sailboats from April through October, but come winter, there's never a sailor around when you need one.

Where are they? And what are they doing there?

I wouldn't worry so much if I saw men wearing navy blue, double-breasted jackets and white captain's hats, walking down Kercheval Avenue in December... or a bunch of salty sea dogs raising spinnakers in the snow behind Krogers, but I don't. If all those sailors haven't been kidnapped and aren't being held on Zug Island for ransom, then what do they do in the winter? And why can't we see them do it?

I've got my own suspicions:

The sailors are there, we just can't see them. Now, not all of them can go to Florida and none of them can become invisible, so I think they just assume the identities of everyday, normal people during the winter — sort of a combination Gilligan's Island-Invasion of the Body Snatchers type of deal. It's tough to hide those tanned faces, those sinewy arms and that glint of the sea in their eyes... but they do it. I think they use Cover Girl.

Or...

...all the sailors get together at midnight, then fan out to local yacht clubs and marinas for bubbling watch. They find the places that use the bubbling system that protects boats left in the water all year round by bubbling warm water all around the boats. Now, I know that those systems employ several failsafe, mechanical backups, but I'm not totally convinced that there aren't 50 or so winter-crazed sailors who take up their posts all around the boats, whistles at the ready for when and if the bubbling ever stops. All I know is, it wouldn't surprise me.

Maybe...

...there are Sailors Anonymous meetings. I can just picture a bunch of nervous-looking guys sloshing through the snow to gather at some bar with a nautical atmosphere. They all stand around, eyeing each other, mumbling things about how "they could quit sailing any time they wanted to," until one guy finally stands up and starts yelling. "Okay, okay," he says. "I admit it. I've sailed the Port Huron to Mackinac 12 straight years and never made it past Alpena."

Then the kindly group leader prys the guy's fingers off a copy of "The John Paul Jones Story," and leads him to his seat, telling him something like, "Good for you Mr. Smith, now we can help you."

Or else...

...every time the temperature goes over 30 degrees, these sailors run down to Lakeshore to see if the ice is breaking up yet. They also ask a lot of dumb questions, like: "What's the earliest the shipping lanes on the Great Lakes ever opened?" Or, "I don't think it's going to snow anymore. Do you think it will snow anymore? I don't think it will snow anymore..." And, "Did anybody ever hear of a December thaw?"

But the people I really feel sorry for are the wives and families of these snow-bound sailors. I mean, even if we don't know where sailors go in the winter, their families usually do.

Families know right where their favorite sailor is... every time they are roused out of the sack at 1 a.m. because Dad wants everybody to run through the Coast Guard safety drill.

The families know because they're the ones who have to pick up wayward sailors who won't leave the Brodhead Naval Armory museum even when it's past closing time.

And spouses, families and visitors know that when the only bathroom in the house is occupied for 6½ hours, it's because the resident sailor has commandeered Junior's plastic sailboat and is playing Cal 20 sailor in the family bathtub.

I guess it's tough here in the winter wonderland for those boys of the bounding main. And I suppose we'll never really know where sailors go in the winter and what they manage to do during those long, dark, cold months.

And maybe we'll just decide we don't want to know, when the annual race to the lake begins in March and we start hearing excuses like: "Sorry, I can't pick up my Nobel Prize, I'm working on the boat this weekend."

No, we'll probably never know. But come to think of it, maybe it's better that way.

Hepner speaks to coaches

South High football coach Russ Hepner will be a speaker during the Michigan High School Football Coaches Association 12th annual clinic, Friday and Saturday, Jan. 27 and 28, in Battle Creek.

Hepner will discuss the "Wing T Offense" at the clinic, which will feature such coaching luminaries as Michigan State University's George Perles, Hope College's Ray Smith, and Penn State's Frank Doway.

More than 100 college, high school, grade school, little league and CYO coaches usually attend this clinic. Pre-registration is $20 and may be made by sending checks payable to the Michigan High School Football Coaches Association, to Terry Rose, M.H.S.F.C.A. Clinic, 915 Pleasant, St. Joseph, MI 49085. Registration at the door is $25. A free lunch will be served to the first 500 pre-registrants.

Art Van Pro/Am is Jan. 28

Michigan's best tennis professionals will be in competition Saturday and Sunday, Jan. 28 and 29, at the Wimbledon Racquet Club, when the club hosts the Art Van Pro/Am. Play begins at 5 p.m. Jan. 28; finals are at 1 p.m. Jan. 29. Admission to the event is $1 at the door.

Among the pros scheduled to play, according to the tennis club, are Joe Rodell and Joe Shaheen.

Cooperation key to Club's successful '83

By Peggy O'Connor

Counting the number of people who didn't participate in Neighborhood Club sports activities in 1983 might be easier than totalling up those who did. More than 7,000 people took advantage of the Club's sports and recreation programs last year, despite a trend by Grosse Pointe parents to be a bit more selective in choosing their children's sports activity.

Neighborhood Club program director Greg Brynaert noted that while the total number of participants has increased, participation in some sports has dropped off, particularly in the youth program.

"What I think is happening is that parents are starting to be more selective," Brynaert said. "We're seeing some kids staying in one sport through several seasons — like a child playing spring soccer, fall soccer and indoor soccer — rather than participating in several different sports."

A total of 3,412 boys and girls participated in the Club's youth sports programs in 1983, according to Neighborhood Club figures. Those youths played on 251 teams in seven categories of sports and activities, including basketball, floor hockey, handicapped sports, soccer, softball, T-ball and play, swim and craft.

The Neighborhood Club also conducted sports programs for 3,739 men and women on 295 teams in men's basketball, three-man basketball, men's volleyball and softball, women's softball and volleyball and co-rec softball and volleyball.

"The total number of kids participating in the programs has increased, despite the falling school enrollment," Brynaert said. "It's just that in our program, some sports see an increase and some a decrease in participation."

The youth soccer program enjoyed the greatest enrollment in 1983, with 1,296 players. The Club's cooperative effort with the Grosse Pointe Soccer Association was one of the Club's 1983 successes, as well.

"Our cooperation with the GPSA worked out better for the community — and us — than we thought it would. We had good ideas and they had good ideas. It worked because we were able to combine the Association's expertise in the sport with our resources as a full time recreational agency," Brynaert said.

"It really has benefitted the community."

The Club has also combined efforts with Gordon Preston's Lakeshore Soccer Dome on Marter Road at Jefferson. "That's working out well, too. Indoor soccer is a very fun game and the kids are really excited about playing. It's an expensive activity, but Gordon Preston has been very good about helping us out costs."

The Grosse Pointe School system also helped the Neighborhood Club cut costs in 1983.

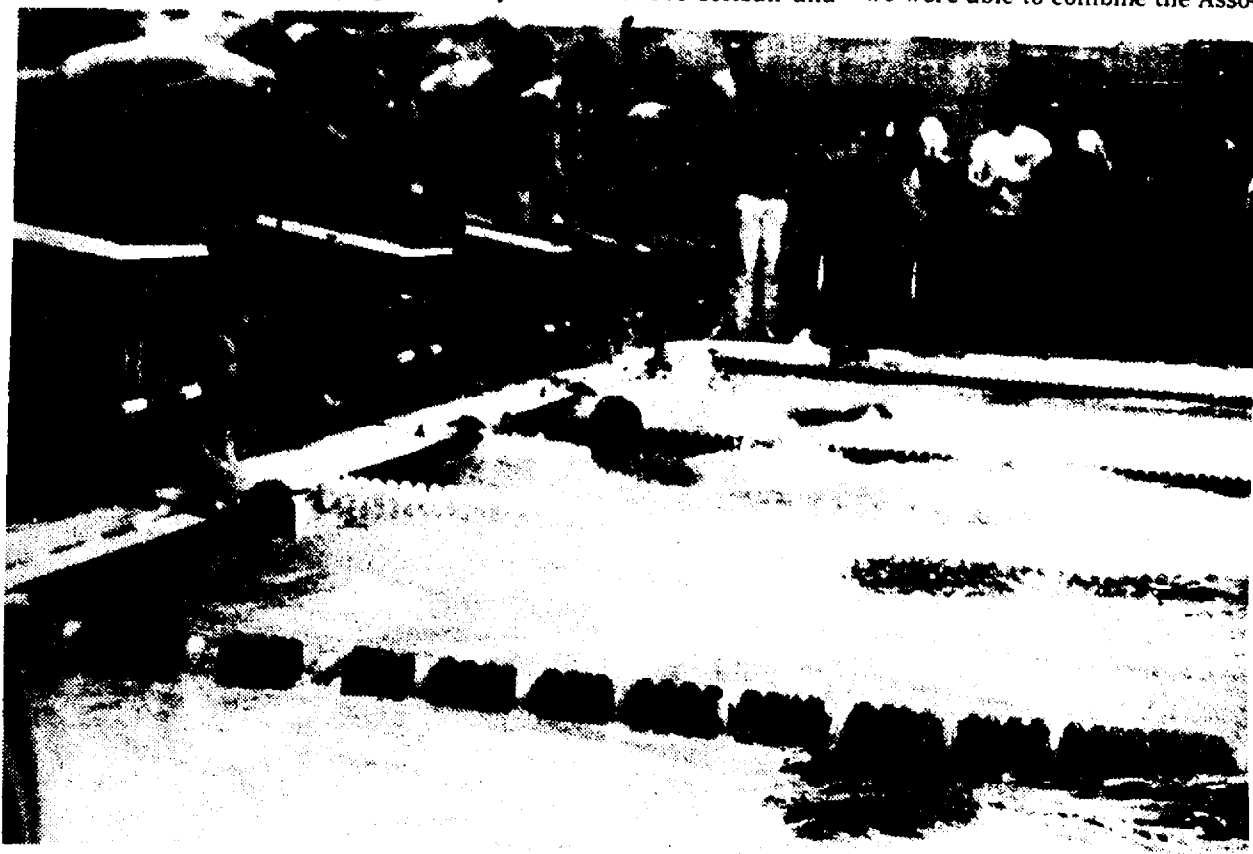

The schools eliminated custodial costs for the Club's 22-team high school basketball program, enabling the Club to cut costs around $50 per team. According to Brynaert, that's just part of what the schools do to assist the Club's programs.

"The schools should be commended for their cooperation with the community. They keep their gyms open, they provide places for kids to play..."

That type of community concern extends to the many volunteers who donate time to the Neighborhood Club's programs. Volunteers and volunteer coaches are keys to the Club's continued success... and existence.

"These programs would not be as large if it wasn't for these volunteers. Without them, we'd have to pay for coaches and then our program fees would be outrageous," Brynaert said.

"Some of these people help out with six or seven sports per year. I once asked them why and they told me they'd given up their weekends when they decided to have children. That's what kind of people these volunteers are."

South's Ken Bachulis touches out Tim Monahan to win the North-South swim meet for the Blue Devils.

South swim team wins thriller

By David Loffredo
South High

Once a year, the best male high school swimmers in Grosse Pointe meet in the North-South swim meet. These boys practice and swim together all year round, so the annual meet is an exciting one. Last year, South edged North. When the meet was decided in the last event, the 400 freestyle relay, Tom Bartsch touched out Tom Cobau to give South the victory. For the last year, North has prepared to avenge its loss, and it all came down to last Saturday's North-South meet.

Brown is first

For the fourth consecutive meet, Michigan State University diver Mike Brown finished first on the one-meter and three-meter springboard. His 305.175 on the one-meter, and a season best of 346.80 on the three-meter, helped MSU to a 62-48 victory over Cleveland State.

Barker is MVP

South High student Rankin Barker was named Most Valuable Player by tournament officials for his play during a recent four-day tournament in Peterborough, Ontario. Barker plays for the Michigan Hylanders in the Midget A.A.A. division of the Michigan National Hockey League.

Coast Guard sets boating course

The United States Coast Guard Auxiliary will offer a 13-week safe boating course covering basic boat handling, rules of the road, piloting, first aid, CPR and general legal and safety requirements.

Classes will meet at Warren Middle School, 12 Mile and Schoenherr. Registration and first class is Tuesday, Feb. 7, from 7 to 9:30 p.m.; classes run from 7:30 to 9:30 p.m. every Tuesday.

The first event, the 200 yard Individual Medley Relay, set the stage for the meet. The South team of Jeff Clark, Hans Brieden, Matt Smith and David Billy, edged the Norsemen and gave South its first lead in the meet.

Then came the 200 freestyle. South's Jack Nelson jumped out to an early lead and held off Jeff Figley from North and teammate Dickie Clarke to win the event. In the 200 Individual Medley, South's Ken Bachulis stopped Tim Monahan from North to take the victory. Rick Leonard from South finished in third.

Next came the 50 freestyle and North's first win, with Blair Schoof at the helm. Rich Soltis and Billy finished second and third for South. At the time of the diving break, South had a 12-point lead.

But the lack of divers hurt South. The Blue Devils only had one diver, Peter Nicholson, who finished second behind Mike Reynolds from North. But the third and fourth place points hurt South, and it led by only one point going into the second half of the meet.

South's Ken Bachulis got the second half rolling for South with a win in the 100 freestyle, but the lead wasn't to last. In the 100 butterfly, North took the lead in the meet for the first time, thanks to a win and second place finish by Tim Monahan and Bill Luberto from North.

Center Ice in the Grosse Pointe Hockey Association

Mite Division

The Blue Dragons came out fired up, but ended up losing to the Black Hawks, 6-1. C-liner Ryan Meier opened the scoring on assists from Nate Cook and Chris Lembach. Andy Baskel added the second goal after taking passes from David Pulis and Bradley "The Magician" Merten.

Meier scored two more goals in the second period; Cook and John Solobodowski assisting. The Dragons' Bryan Cass put his team on the board with help from Bill Cass and Andy Calandro. Baskel's unassisted goal and Nathaniel Weid's score from Jimmy Andary and Michael Anway closed out the scoring. Goalkeepers Andy Brewer and Todd Dunlap played well.

RANGERS-BRUINS

The Rangers and Bruins played a 1-1 tie in this hard fought contest. Goalies Galen Dossin of the Rangers and Jeff Adams, making his first start for the Bruins, turned in great performances.

Shanth Enjeti, James McMillan, Greg Ryan, John Wise, Bryan Belanger and Jamie Buffalino excelled on offense and defense. C-liner David Gracey put the Bruins on top in the third period; Danny Magdowski and Frank Zimmer drew assists. Pat Kerwin and Bill Conway then helped hold the Bruins off the board.

With less than two minutes to play, Chris Regier, Marty Hage and Mike Owens battled Amy Kendall and Sam Hartson for the puck — and won. Teammate Mike Hendrie took the puck and scored the tying goal for the Rangers.

BLUE DRAGONS-SEALS

The Blue Dragons skated to a win over the Seals, 3-1. First period action saw a strong defensive game on the part of both teams. It wasn't until the final 10 seconds that Tony Marl broke in on the Seals' goal on a perfect pass from linemate Todd Dunlap to make the score 1-0.

Second period action started with Dragon goalie Bryan Cass making a great save on a Chris Crain breakaway, but Crain came back on another to tie the score. The Dragons' Marl broke in alone to put his team up 2-1 going into the third period.

Both teams played exceptionally well in the third period. It wasn't until late in the period that Pat Brennan, dug the puck away from a Seal player and passed an "on the stick" puck to Bill Cass who whistled it past goaltender Tommy Best, to notch the win for the Blue Dragons.

BLACK HAWKS-KINGS

The high flying Black Hawks skated past the Kings in a 4-0 shutout last weekend. Meier opened the scoring in the first period on a pretty passing play from Cook. Second period action had Pulis connecting for his second tally of the season; Cook made it 3-0 after two periods, assisting on the play was Lembach.

Third period saw end to end action with the Kings' goalie making several key saves. Andy Baskel finally popped home a Weid rebound to round out the scoring. Stephen Wesley played a strong game in goal for the Hawks as he recorded his first shutout of the year.

MAJOR MAGICS-BLUE DRAGONS

The Major Magics skated to a 9-0 shutout over the Blue Dragons. Omar Sawaf started off and finished the scoring for the Major Magics by notching a hat trick with a goal in the first, second and third periods. Assists went to Scottie Wiczorkowski, Matt Spicer, Chris Fox and Robbie Wiczorkowski.

Spicer took passes from Robbie Wiczorkowski in the first and third periods and scored two goals and Fox added a goal to the tally, drawing assists from the Wiczorkowski brothers.

C-liners Lucien Hudson and Booth Platt earned their goals in the third period assisted by Kevin O'Malley. Jon Paul Sweda played exceptionally well in the net.

MAJOR MAGICS-RANGERS

The Major Magics shut out the Rangers 6-0. Sweda opened the scoring for the Magics in the top of the first period, assisted by Carl Rashid and Joe Pierce. One minute later Brad Klein scored a goal, assisted by Rashid.

Lucien Hudson earned a hat trick in the second and third periods, drawing assists from O'Malley, Leo Salvaggio and Brian Everham. Fox closed the scoring on a pass from Justin Braun. Scottie Wiczorkowski was responsible for many excellent saves.

Pee Wee Division

The Sabres topped the North Stars, 3-2, in the opening game of the mid-season tournament. Rob Phillips scored the winning goal with just 2:30 to go, on assists from Cecil Lepard and Mike Torrice.

Sabres' goaltender Anthony Slusser and the Stars' Jeff Blum played well. Blum ventured close to the blue line twice to rob the Sabres' Eric Shellum on breakaways.

The Sabres had opened the scoring on Torrice's unassisted goal. The Stars came back on a goal from Scott Soule. Kevin Nugent assisting. William Chave's goal, with Jim Alderton and Aaron Grose assisting, gave the North Stars the lead before Eddie Barbieri tied things up. That goal, on assists from Paul Bogos and Torrice, set the scene for Phillips' dramatic game-winner.

SABRES-USA

Six different players scored for the Sabres as they beat USA, 6-2, in the final pre-tournament game. The win gave the Sabres third place going into the mid-season playoffs.

Scoring for the Sabres were Bogos, Kris Rust, Torrice, Barbieri, Shellum and Phillips. Torrice, Barbieri and Lepard had three assists each, while Shellum and Bogos had two each, and Phillips added one assist.

Slusser played another outstanding game in the nets for the Sabres.

ISLANDERS-USA

The Islanders took the first two games of the mid-season tournament, beating the USA 4-1, and walloping the Sabres, 10-1.

In the tourney opener against USA, Andy Vyletel scored first on a pass from Shannon Nowiecki. Gabe Benvenuto got the second goal. Peter Masouras assisting. After a USA goal, John Olmsted made it 3-1 on a good set-up from Vyletel. Nowiecki closed out the scoring, with Vyletel and Brendan Rohan getting the assists.

ISLANDERS-SABRES

In the 10-1 win over the Sabres, Olmsted scored four goals, Nowiecki had three and Vyletel, Benvenuto and Peter Masouras each scored once.

Juan Ganum led the Islanders with his three assists. Frank Lucido, Dan Grundman and Rohan had two assists each and Peter McDermott and Olmsted as each and Chris Stebbins had one each. Stebbins also played well in the nets; he allowed only two goals in two tournament games.

Today many people are involved in some form of athletics or exercise. Whether they're high school students on a football or track team, joggers who rise at the crack of dawn or people involved in aerobic exercise workouts, many people are trying to keep fit through exercise.

Those who are serious about athletics often wonder if there is any way they can improve their performance by altering their diet. Many questions are raised about the benefits certain nutrients may hold for athletes. One nutrient that is often overlooked, however, is water.

Why is water so important? We all need water to cool our bodies. If you exercise, your body temperature increases and this makes you sweat. When the sweat evaporates from the skin, your body cools down.

If you start an athletic event without having enough water in your body or if you sweat during practice and don't replace the water lost, you may become dehydrated. Once you become dehydrated, you can no longer sweat and get rid of the heat that continues to build as you exercise. The first symptoms of dehydra-

ISLANDERS-ULS

Nowiecki's goal with 26 seconds left in the game gave the Islanders a 3-2 victory over University Liggett in a Jan. 17 exhibition game.

The Islanders had led 2-0 going into the third period on goals by McDermott and Olmsted, who each assisted the other on scoring plays. After ULS had tied the game in the third period, Ganum and McDermott assisted Nowiecki on his winning tally.

NORTH STARS-USA OLYMPIANS

After dropping a heartbreaker in the GPHA district playoff opener, the North Stars bounced back to take a 5-2 win over the Olympians. Ronnie Sables scored his first two goals of the season; he opened the scoring while Nugent and Kelly Reed kept the pressure on the USA zone.

Alderton then broke through the USA defense and scored after taking passes from Brad Hea and Jamie Osborne. Hea then set up Derek Smith, who scored on Jimmy Bunn in a shorthanded situation.

The Olympians got on the board with Raffael Elledge's goal. Blake Crawford and Eric Ryan assisting. But Nugent added an unassisted second period goal, then Rami Hanna scored for USA with Jimmy Pappas and Crawford drawing assists.

Sables closed out the scoring for the Stars on assists from Alderton and Smith.

Mite Travel

The Grosse Pointe Blue Demons Mite travel team has had a successful January, with four victories in the Adray League, over Dearborn, Fraser, Woodhaven and Allen Park.

The first game, on Jan. 6 at the Adray Arena saw the Demons' domination of Dearborn continue as they chalked up another one-sided win, 7-1. Mike Klobuchar scored a hat trick and Marcel Chagnon had two goals. Kevin Brennan scored once and Sean Darke, assisted by Joey Provenzano, scored once.

It may be a fact that the Demons require adversity to perform at a peak level, because their game against the Fraser Raiders at GPCR on Jan. 9, was an example of intense skating and aggressive backchecking. Defensemen Cullen McMahon and Jumanee Benton frustrated the Raiders' offense.

Chagnon scored on a shot from an impossible angle after almost losing his balance and the puck on his way to the net. Klobuchar assisted on the goal and Mark Tapp did another outstanding job in goal, making an incredible save in the last minute of the third period and earning himself another shutout, 1-0.

On Jan. 10, at GPCR, the Demons won another spine-tingling contest over Woodhaven, 3-2. Top performers Chagnon and Klobuchar each scored a goal and an assist, and Lanny Tracy fired such a perfect centering pass from the corner that the puck ended up in the net for the third Demon goal.

Against Allen Park, the Demons had an easier time, winning 12-1. Brennan and Kip Godfredson each scored hat tricks, and Chagnon and Troy Taylor scored two goals each. Brad Eickhorst and Klobuchar were credited with a goal apiece. Tracy and Steve Solaka earned assists and Sean Darke was named a playmaker.

On Jan. 17, at GPCR, the Demons took a 9-1 win over Trenton. Chagnon chalked up a hat trick and Tracy was a playmaker. Klobuchar was responsible for two goals, one assisted by Mike Carron. Tracy, Darke, Brennan and Mark Primeau scored the other goals.

The Demons could certainly cite the flawless performance of goalie Mark Tapp for their 4-1 victory over the Michigan Dynamos. In this exhibition game played at McCann on Jan. 21, Tapp saved his team by making one acrobatic stop after another, as the Dynamos outshot the Demons, 20-7.

Tracy scored the first goal on assists from Kevin Brennan and Sean Darke, who earned a playmaker. This line employed excellent teamwork throughout the game, setting up two goals with precise passing. Chagnon, scored two goals, the other goal was Brennan's, with assists by Tracy and Darke.

Water and exercise: a good mix

tion include thirst, chills, clammy skin, throbbing heart beat and nausea. You may later develop a headache, cramps, shortness of breath, dizziness and/or dryness of the mouth. Very severe dehydration can result in hallucinations, deafness, visual problems, swollen tongue and/or kidney failure.

An athlete can avoid dehydration by drinking plenty of cool plain water before, during and after practice and competition. Even if you don't feel thirsty, it's important that you drink one or two cups of plain cool water 15 minutes before practice or competition. You should also drink 1/2 cup water every 10 to 15 minutes during the event.

Some athletes wonder about the benefits of commercial beverages such as Gatorade. They feel they need to replace electrolytes that are "lost in sweat" during a competitive event. Beverages such as Gatorade supply these electrolytes (usually sodium and potassium). The problem with these beverages, however, is that they are hypertonic, meaning, they are more concentrated than the blood and can't be absorbed immediately. These beverages must be diluted before they can be absorbed so they actually draw body fluids into the stomach to dilute them. This process takes some time and can be prevented by diluting the beverages or simply by drinking plain water.

Water remains the best and most easily available fluid replacement beverage, experts say. Usually it is not necessary to replace electrolytes especially if you have eaten a balanced meal prior to the event.

So continue to play football, run track and exercise but remember to drink plenty of cool refreshing water!

Brownell wins thriller

"A thriller," is the only way to describe the game in which Brownell defeated L'Anse Creuse North, 30-29, last week.

Brownell was out in front throughout the game until North came back to take a one point lead, with 19 seconds left in the game. But Brownell's Mike Calcaterra took the ball the length of the court to score the Bullets' winning basket and North missed a final field goal attempt to give Brownell the win.

Tim Fellows led the Bullets with 12 points. Calcaterra scored five and Andre Bielski, Mike Finch and Kirk Lowry each scored four points.

Later in that week, Brownell lost to a good Pierce team, 39-32. Brownell made a strong comeback in the fourth quarter as Bielski scored 13 of his 15 points in that quarter, but it was not enough as Pierce took an easy win.

Others scoring for Brownell included Fellows with six, Lowry with four and Matt Aldrich with three points. Andy Walker and Dan Rashid scored two points each.

G.P. Ski Club will meet Wednesday

The regular monthly meeting of the Grosse Pointe Ski Club will be Wednesday, Feb. 1, at 8 p.m. at the War Memorial.

Following the meeting an "after-glow" Bon Voyage Party will be held at a local pub for the group departing Feb. 3 to ski Switzerland.

There is still one opening for the Jackson Hole excursion leaving Feb. 25 and returning March 4. Inquiries may be made by contacting Bob Moreillon at 259-2511.
