Sing it again

Congratulations to Gretchen Valade, of the Pointe, who is gaining some well deserved recognition for her song "Lights of Detroit." According to a report in the Detroit News, Ms. Valade wrote the song some two years ago and it gained some popularity after it was recorded by the "Tommy Saunders and His Sufside Six" jazz combo.

The number is kind of bluesy and tells about coming up the river and catching sight of the lights of the city. Some clubs are reportedly playing it and it's received plenty of airtime on the J.P. McCarthy's morning program.

It's got to be better than that million dollar turkey, "Do It In Detroit," which can be interpreted in a lot of ways, all of them bad.

Actually, I've toyed around with the idea of a song about Grosse Pointe. I even have the first two lines, set to Billy Joel's "Allentown."

"Well we're living here in Grosse Pointe town, and they're closing all the fern bars down."

You get the idea. If I come up with anything else, I'll contact "Weird Al" Yankovic, of "Eat It" fame.

Potted pot

There's one unhappy farmer in Grosse Pointe Farms this week.

It seems a suspicious horticulturist called Farms police last Saturday night and showed them two plants growing at the rear of a neighbor's yard.

Police took one look and decided they weren't just big weeds, but possibly THE weed: marijuana.

The plants were six and a half feet tall and appeared to have been trimmed and cared for, reports said. The stalks were about four inches in diameter at the base and the plants were supported by tomato cages, according to reports.

Police pulled the two plants from their well-groomed spot, stuffed them in a couple of big baggies and took them to the station for evidence.

While police were checking out the plants, a resident of the house came back and asked police what was going on, reports said. Police asked the resident if he knew what kind of plants were growing there, to which, reports said, the resident just smiled.

I wonder what the fall harvest would have been like?

Battle looms for spot on county college board

By Harriet Nolan

The final race for the District 1 seat on the Wayne County Community College (WCCC) Board of Trustees will be between Dennis Mongoven, of the Woods, who clinched a spot on the November ballot with 3,991 votes in last week's primary election, and Anthony Ambrogio, of Detroit, who trailed with 2,859 votes.

Four of the five candidates who vied for the spot hailed from the Pointe. But on home turf it was Mongoven all the way. Only about 16 percent of the community's registered voters went to the polls, but they gave him a whopping 1,470 votes and an 82 percent lead over his closest rival, L. Renee Ross, of the City, who received 306.

Mongoven credits his victory to family, friends and others interested in quality education.

Lauve aims for voters tired of the status quo

By Harriet Nolan

If you're mad, and aren't going to take it anymore, you may have helped 14th District Republican nominee John Lauve edge out his opponent Joan Rashid in last week's primary election.

"I won because of my clear opposition to politicians who feel that government spending is the way to go and my opposition to Detroit Mayor Coleman Young and the decay, waste and crime he's allowed to flourish under his administration," says Woods resident Lauve.

With a one-third margin lead from Pointe voters and an overall tally of 7,395 to 5,847 votes, he won the nomination on his second try against political newcomer and neighbor Ms. Rashid. Lauve will face incumbent U.S. Rep. Dennis Hertel in the November election.

A similar primary bid four years ago ended in defeat to vic Caputo, a talkshow host at WJBK-TV. Caputo then lost to Democrat Hertel, an attorney and three-term legislator.

But Lauve made it to the finals this time and he credits part of his success to a growing discontent among voters who are tired of elected officials who don't seem concerned about the people they serve.

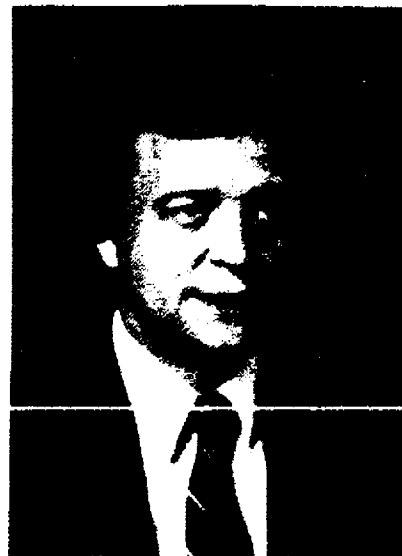

"It's going to be a difficult job, but for the first time Hertel has opposition in his district," says

Lauve. "In Sterling Heights State Senator David Serotkin was rejected by a three-to-one margin when they recalled him, so there is a very heavy anti-tax sentiment there."

"That was part of Governor James Blanchard's old congressional district. And, of course, Hertel and Blanchard are very good friends with similar voting records," he adds.

Lauve, a 43-year-old engineer with General Motors, has recall petitions going against both Blanchard and Young.

"I'm also going to talk about Hertel's record, particularly where he cut the Pointes into two congressional districts without concern for the community," says Lauve.

His opponent, Hertel, says he stands on his past record and emphasizes his attempt to cut waste out of the defense department with a bill he introduced giving government the same right as the private sector to nullify contracts if overcharging for materials to the point of fraud is discovered.

Hill work in progress

Workmen have plowed up the old asphalt playground in front of Richard Elementary School on the Hill and a new parking lot serving the Central Library and lower Hill shops and theaters should be complete by Labor Day, according to city officials. The city is also considering a new plan to create a pedestrian mall in front of the lot, with a gazebo and water fountain, to tie together the lower and upper ends of the Hill. The work would be funded by a Community Development Block Grant from the federal government. City officials said they hope next month to negotiate a new agreement with the Board of Education, which is leasing the lot to the city, to allow mall plans to move ahead.

Yank in the Palace Pointer visits Buckingham

By Tom Greenwood

It's a long way from lunch with mom and dad in Grosse Pointe to dining with royalty in Buckingham Palace, but Peter Jacobus made the transition with a little help from the U.S. Navy.

Jacobus, 20, is the son of Dr. Wayne and Mrs. June Jacobus, of Hawthorne Road. He is also a senior in electrical engineering at the University of Southern California and a midshipman with the Naval Officers Reserve Training Corps on campus.

And therein lies the tale. It seems the U.S. government sponsors a foreign exchange program for officers with 20 other countries, including Great Britain. Jacobus was one of only six midshipmen from more than 2,000 applicants from across the U.S. and the Naval Academy to be selected to serve for two months in a foreign navy in a "hands across the sea" exchange.

The ship he served on was the HMS "Brazen," an anti-submarine frigate that's also the duty ship of His Royal Highness Prince Andrew, of Great Britain.

"The first thing everyone wants to know is, 'What kind of a guy is he?'" said Jacobus, lean and clean cut. "The second is, 'Just how did you address him?'"

"He's a very nice, personable guy. He introduced himself to me in the wardroom. He just came up, stuck out his hand and said 'Hi, I'm H.' 'H' is the way he prefers to be addressed in very informal situations. Semi-formal it's Prince Andrew and in formal situations it's Your Highness. But most of the time on board ship it's just 'H.' Which, of course, is short for His Royal Highness."

Peter's duties included serving as assistant navigator and also included work in the operations division of the ship. Because the British navy is smaller than that of the United States, its ships spend more time at sea. "The British work very hard and play very hard," said Peter, with a smile. "We often worked 80-hour weeks. My very worst was an 89-hour week with nine hours sleep. 'H' was a helicopter pilot and the only one on board. So he put in a lot of hours as well."

Before he came on board the "Brazen," Jacobus was given a quick run-down by the ship's captain on how to behave around royalty. Among the rules were: orders, not to take photographs, don't ask for autographs and treat him like any other officer. "Just like any other officer, except his house is a lot bigger," laughed Jacobus. "There were only 20 of us on board, so we were a pretty tight group. We all ate together in the wardroom, and I might add the food on British ships seems to be a lot better than U.S. ships. He'd sit down right next to you and chatter away. Although I must admit, he was usually the last one there for breakfast."

"He tried to make things easy on people, officers and enlisted men alike, because he knew many of us were nervous," added Peter. "He'd try to put us at our ease. And that included practical jokes. I'm (Continued on Page 2A)

More than 100 seek top local school post

By Susan McDonald

The deadline for filing applications to become Grosse Pointe public schools' next superintendent passed yesterday with more than 100 hopeful candidates on file, according to search committee head Dorothy Kennel.

The school board hopes to have a new man on board by the first of next year to replace Kenneth Brummel who took a job in California in June. They plan to conduct private interviews in October.

The position was advertised extensively in education journals and university placement offices. A consultant from the state school boards association and another from University of Connecticut have been hired to help evaluate the applicants.

"We have received applications from some outstanding individuals," Mrs. Kennel told the school board at its Monday, Aug. 13 meeting.

Insight into what kind of superintendent the community would like to see in the $60,000 a year position was provided to the board in a report by John Brubacher, the Connecticut-based consultant. Brubacher met with hundreds of citizens in small group settings this spring.

Mrs. Kennel released only two pages of Brubacher's more than 20-page report. She said the release of more details may violate the confidentiality promised to citizens who spoke out at the meetings. The school board did review the full report.

Brubacher concluded that citizens want an educational leader who "could bring unity to the school system and the community by establishing personal and district credibility."

He wrote that "there has been too much change for change's sake" and "most groups agreed that it was important to recognize the strengths of the people and programs already in place and to build upon them."

While Brubacher said the school system was fortunate because citizens want to be involved and make constructive contributions, he noted there is "considerable anxiety" about the issue of closing schools.

"Even though the student population has gone from 13,000 to 7,500 and closing schools appears an obvious solution, there is a sizable number of people who want to keep the small neighborhood schools open, particularly since Grosse Pointe can afford to." This spring's school closing battle was a "crisis and many perceive it as deeply dividing the community," the consultant wrote.

"If redistricting efforts are to occur in the future, they must be carefully planned and implemented," Brubacher said.

He noted other concerns were low employe morale, Grosse Pointe's insulation from diversity and a lack of credibility of school leadership.

Farms tables Hill retail ordinance

By Mike Andrzejczyk

The Farms council Monday night voted 4-3 to table until Oct. 1 a proposed "first floor retail only" ordinance for new businesses on the Hill.

About 25 businessmen and properly owners attended the two-hour public hearing, the lion's share in opposition to the zoning change. The ordinance would require new businesses in the front half of the first floor to be retail uses. New service and office uses would have to use the rear half of buildings.

The only significant thing to come from the hearing was a petition signed by about half the property owners on the Hill that forces the council under state law to approve the zoning change by a three-quarter majority vote, of 6 or 7.

The hearing was punctuated once by applause for Ed Pongracz, who urged the council to wait until after the opening of the Richard parking lot to see if customer traffic improves. Two attorneys appeared on behalf of the opposition, questioning the legality of the ordinance and the purpose for its passage.

Mayor James Dingeman characterized the rebalancing of arguments as "blatant" that he had heard "for a long time" since the council first proposed the ordinance to revitalize its commercial area.

The proposed ordinance would require new retail businesses moving into the Hill to occupy the front floor of buildings. New office uses would be relegated to the back half of buildings, unless granted a variance by the council.

The ordinance would not affect existing businesses. The retail use provision would be triggered by a change in use, meaning a dentist could leave his office and another dentist move in, not by a change of occupancy.

Pongracz, the first speaker at the hearing, said the proposed ordinance would "eliminate the basic law of supply and demand" and "financially handicap an owner from getting the best and highest use for his property." His urging the council "let it lay" for a year drew applause from the audience.

The unfair government interference into free enterprise argument was reiterated by a number of speakers, including Robert (Continued on Page 2A) sorry, but I just can't tell you some of the tricks he pulled, but he does have a terrific sense of humor."

And that included poking a little fun at himself and "mum and dad", as he would refer to his parents.

"On American ships, there'd be a portrait of President Reagan in the wardroom," said Jacobus. "On British ships, it is, of course, the Queen and Prince Philip. That's normal, except they're his parents. One day, he accidentally knocked the photo off the wall and made us all laugh by saying 'Sorry about that mum'. Because his parents' picture was up, we were always threatening to put pictures of our parents up there as well. Never did though."

As the only American on board, Jacobus was naturally open to a lot of kidding. "They were always tak-

 Lakes and huge increases in the defense budget, such as for the MX missile which can only be a first strike weapon," says Hertel. "I'm working to reduce spending against our part of the country to subsidize water projects out West. That shouldn't be financed by Michigan taxpayers."

Hertel says he didn't draw up the plan for redistricting, and that he too lost part of his district in the reapportionment. He says he has worked hard in congress to deter crime.

"I worked with neighborhood watch and was the one who got the mandatory sentence passed for crimes committed with a gun. Also, the anti-fencing bill that would require anybody who wants to sell precious metals to register is in committee right now in congress."

"In fact, my greatest proportion of mail on a per capita basis is from the Pointes," he adds.

ing me aside and asking which I liked better if I had to choose, the U.S. Navy or the British Navy," said Peter, with a smile. "How do you answer that without embarrassing someone?"

"They were always telling me the story of an American and British ship passing in the Atlantic. The British ship wires to the U.S. vessel. 'How do you like being part of the second largest Navy in the world?' The U.S. ship wires back. 'Just fine. How do you like being part of the second best Navy in the world?' I was always getting gas because I was the only Yank on board, but they treated me just great. Made me feel like I was part of the family, and I'd do it again in a minute."

One day, 'H' approached Peter to ask the correct spelling of his last name. Later, he received a formal, royal invitation to the "Royal Tournament," an annual British military pageant involving paratroopers, Marine bands, marching and displays of military skill.

"Prince Andrew would often take members of the ship's company ashore on the weekend for liberty," said Jacobus. "This time it was three officers and two enlisted men. We were invited to sit in the Royal Box at the Royal Tournament and stay overnight at Buckingham Palace. We boarded his helicopter, nicknamed 'The Hussy', (Brazen Hussy) and flew to London, about 140 miles away. We flew up the Thames, made a left at Big Ben and landed in the royal gardens. Queen Elizabeth watched us from a window and Prince Edward, his younger brother, came out to meet us. They both then took us on a tour of the gardens. They were magnificent and included a pond with flamingos in it. Also, the Queen's pet Corgis had the run of the grounds."

Peter, Prince Andrew and the others then drove by limousine to the Royal Tournament, where the 10 of them sat in the Royal box.

"The pageant was magnificent," said Peter. "The most amazing part is where a highly trained Army team dragged a 1,600 lb. cannon behind them, would break it down on the run, flip its 900 lb. barrel over a five-foot-high wall, catch it and re-assemble it, all the while on the run. They did this twice, up and down a field the size of our football field, all in a matter of about two minutes."

After the tournament, they returned to the palace for dinner. According to Peter, his room was the size of most houses. "My uniform was laid out, my shoes polished and my bath was drawn," he said. "Dinner was held in the Chinese dining room. It seats about 200, but there were only 10 of us. And 10 servants to wait on us." Dinner consisted of a fish appetizer, roast beef and a magnificent raspberry mousse served in an enormous silver bowl filled with fresh raspberries.

Afterwards, they retired to a sitting room to relax and chat. "Prince Andrew asked me about my parents, schooling and Grosse Pointe," said Peter. "He talked about his family, the new child to be born to Prince Charles and Princess Di and a few sea stories about the Falklands War with Argentina. He didn't say too much, but I believe he was proud that he served."

Peter and the other crewmen had the run of the palace, and were allowed to go anywhere they chose. Peter was fascinated by the aisles of china, silver, paintings and weapons given to the royal family by governments around the world. "The china was just magnificent," said Peter. "The most beautiful pieces I've ever seen. And the original paintings are not to be believed."

The next morning, they were awakened by porters who laid out their uniforms and drew their baths. Breakfast with Prince Andrew consisted by "anything you could think of."

They all then boarded the "Hussy" and returned to the "Brazen," but not before Prince Andrew had taken a photo of the men with the helicopter while it sat in back of Buckingham Palace.

Were there any last messages from the Prince when Peter returned to the U.S.? "Well, yes," said Peter, with a smile. "He wished me luck with my naval career and said I'd make a fine officer. He also asked me if I'd send him an autographed photo of the USC cheerleaders."

"After all he's done for me, it's the least I can do."

Ordinance

 Welchli, representing property owner Robert Edgar.

Welchli said strong retail areas force service industries out by forcing up rents. The corollary of that is weak retail areas can't force out service businesses because they can afford the rents of small retailers, he added.

Edward Kiska, president of the Hill Association, was only one of two speakers who favored the zoning change. Retailers "are getting out," he said. "As soon as the retailers all get out, the area collapses."

"What do you want people to do?" Kiska continued. "Do you want them to have a retail place, or do you want them to go the Seven-Mack or Eastland?"

Councilman MaryAnne Ghesquire made the tabling motion, which was supported by Councilman Bruce Rockwell. The first motion called for a 30-day tabling, but after discussion, not allowed on a tabling motion under parliamentary procedure, the date was extended to Oct. 1. Councilmen Joseph Fromm, Nancy Waugaman and Gail Kaess voted against the motion.

St. Clair home hit by B&E

Several hundred dollars worth of jewelry was reported stolen from a house in the 800 block of St. Clair Avenue Friday, Aug. 3, at 3:30 p.m.

City police said the thief apparently walked in through an unlocked porch and squeezed through an unlocked kitchen window to gain entry into the home between 1:30 and 3:30 p.m. The house was ransacked and a gold cigaret lighter, valued at $25, Seiko watch valued at $200 and miscellaneous jewelry and change was reported missing.

Residents said they suspected a neighbor was involved because there were two cars parked in the drive at the time of the breaking and entering which they assumed would make strangers believe someone was home.

Thieves go for loot in kitchen

Grosse Pointe Park police say the kitchen is a bad place for people to leave purses and other valuables because it's close to the outside exits.

On Monday, Aug. 6 at about 8:15 a.m., a resident in the 1400 block of Balfour discovered someone had entered her kitchen by forcing a window open. A purse containing $150 was stolen.

Two hours earlier, a thief walked off with a leaded glass door belonging to a resident in the 1100 block of Balfour. The thief gained entry through an unlocked door and drove away with the door in the car that belonged to the homeowner who had left the keys on the kitchen table.

Ferry gets all-day kindergarten

By Susan McDonald

Ferry Elementary will be the location for Grosse Pointe schools' new all-day kindergarten program, school officials announced last week.

The program, which attracted only 23 registrations for this fall, is a pilot plan approved by the board late last spring. Ferry was selected as the site because that school provided most registrations, according to Alfrida Frost, director of elementary curriculum. Registrations did come from all over the system, she said. Administrators originally hoped to offer the program at three locations.

Tuition is $1,250, or about $7 a day, and should completely cover the program's costs, Dr. Frost said. The low enrollment may be due to the fact that the program wasn't adopted until late spring.

"Some parents who talked with interest about the program indicated they had already made other plans," Dr. Frost said. "We are pleased we will at least have a chance to pilot it this year."

Dr. Frost's earlier surveys showed that a third of the parents of 3 and 4 year olds had interest in the program.

Henry Pichla, a Ferry kindergarten teacher, will handle the all-day class. Dr. Frost said the existing kindergarten curriculum will be followed and expanded with enrichment activities.

"We'll treat the existing curriculum in more depth. There will be more time for individualization and creative activities," she explained.

"We will not accelerate the curriculum." Ferry is located at 748 Roslyn

Road in Grosse Pointe Woods. Parents will be responsible for providing transportation to school and back. Children will continue to have the option of going home or staying at school for lunch, according to Dr. Frost.

The Board of Education approved the all-day kindergarten program as a way to further serve local families, many of whom now have two working parents, and to provide new uses for classrooms left empty by declining enrollment. Dr. Frost said her survey indicated the all-day kindergarten will serve as a substitute for some parents to other day-care programs in which they may enroll children.

Businessman Steiner hospitalized

By Harriet Nolan

Long-time area businessman and politician Erv Steiner suffered a heart attack Monday, Aug. 6, one day before he breezed in unopposed as the Republican candidate for the District I county commission seat.

The 61-year old Farms resident was in his office, at the Esquire Theater on Jefferson Avenue in the Park, when he became ill and called for help, said Phillip Costa, Park fire chief.

"He arrested (his heart stopped) once while on the way to St. John Hospital and our men brought him to with cardiopulmonary resuscitation," said Costa. "He arrested again at the hospital where doctors aided him."

Steiner represented the First District from 1970 to 1982 when the county board of commissioners was a 27-member legislative body. But in 1981 voters approved legislature's recommendation of the Michigan Home Rule Charter which reduced the board to 15 members and realigned the districts.

As a result, Steiner found himself challenged by another Republican for his long-held seat and eventually lost to Barbara Gattorn in the primary. She, in turn, was defeated that November by former state senator John Hertel for the seat which Hertel hopes to retain this time around in the November election against Steiner.

Steiner recently attributed his return to politics as the result of GOP officials and civic organizations' encouragement and said his experience and expertise would definitely help the people of the district.

Chip Steiner, his son, said his father is in stable condition and recuperating. He preferred not to comment on any political plans at this time.

Inquiries can be made at 823-1555, he added.

New students sign-up at SHS

New students will be enrolled at South High School during a special pre-school Aug. 27 to 30 registration period.

High school students who are new to the South High School attendance area should call 343-2151 to schedule an enrollment conference with one of the six counselors who will be on duty.

Students who do not enroll during the special pre-school session will have to wait until Tuesday afternoon, Sept. 4, or Wednesday morning, Sept. 5, to do so. At this late date students may have some difficulty in scheduling their preferred course selections.

"We encourage all new students who have not enrolled as yet to do so as early as possible so that they can schedule the classes they prefer," said Dr. Joseph Spagnoli, South High principal.

War Memorial closes

The Grosse Pointe War Memorial will be closed for refurbishing beginning Sunday, Aug. 19. It will reopen on Tuesday, Sept. 4, at 9 a.m.

Anyone wishing to register for an upcoming fall event may send their check and a note indicating the activity it is for to 32 Lakeshore Road, Grosse Pointe Farms, 48236. Mailed registrations will be processed as usual.

South senior takes tall ship to Poland

By Mike Andrzeczyk

It's the chance of a lifetime and one that John Benz isn't about to pass up.

John will spend the next couple months sailing on the Gedania, a two mast stay-sail schooner that was one of two Polish ships to stop in Detroit last weekend as part of the Polish ethnic festival on Hart Plaza.

John, 18, will be one of two non-Poles who will make the trip through the Georgian Bay across the Atlantic and back to Poland's premier ship-building city, Gdansk. Along the way, sail-by stops will be made in Toronto, celebrating Ontario's sesquicentennial, London and other European cities.

The allure of sailing is "you never known what's coming up over the horizon," the South senior said. Sailing on a tall ship, though, combines the elements of "the quest" with the "call of the sea," he added.

John signed on to the crew two weeks ago in Hamilton, Ontario. He had been aboard the Toronto brighten Playfare and missed a week of sailing because of strep throat. He was told afterward to board the Pathfinder and sail to Hamilton, where he would join the Gedania crew.

The Gedania, besides taking part in the parade of tall ships celebrating the 250th anniversary of the founding of Quebec, has other voyages behind it. The 20-meter ship has sailed the Antarctic Ocean and also attempted the Northwest Passage, a journey for which it carried three years of supplies.

The Canadian government stopped the Gedania and asked for $3 million "insurance" in case the Gedania were to become trapped in the ice and needed to be extricated, crew members said. Before being stopped, the ship reached the farthest northerly latitude of any sailing ship. When built nine years ago in Gdansk, the ship was designed to withstand travel through ice-filled waters.

A sailor ever since "he could be carried on the boat," John is part of a sailing family. His father, Edward D. and mother Fran have always owned a boat and enjoyed sailing, Mrs. Benz said.

Thirteen of the current 19 members of the Gedania's crew stopped by the Benz St. Clair Road home last week after enjoying a swim at the Grosse Pointe City municipal park.

They were treated to hamburgers, grilled sausage and potato salad by the Benz family. Half of the 15 men and four women on the crew are between 16 and 25. The tall ships are used in sail training and racing.

Sailing is not all wooden ships and iron men, though. While sailing through Wednesday's heavy weather, one of the ship's masts was struck by lightning, John said.

The allure is there, however. Canadian Anthony Bell, 14, sounded wistful when he said he wouldn't be sailing to Poland with the Gedania, but would be getting off at the Toronto stop.

"When you get a good wind, the sails are set right and you're running at eight or 10 knots, it's the most exhilarating thing in the world," Bell said.

Language isn't much of a problem, Bell said. Often, the crew will perform the drill and speak at the same time, so the next time, non-Polish crewmembers know what to do, he said.

The Gedania spent Friday at the Detroit Boat Club, a victim of neglected details. While the captain was told his ship had to appear at Hart Plaza, no one told him where the ship could be docked. The Boat Club offered its facilities in return for allowing members to tour the ship.

Boaters on Lake St. Clair were treated to a sight when the red-hulled ship headed across the lake to the St. Clair River for a trip to Sarnia. The Gedania ultimately will head to Newfoundland and across to Europe in "15 days to a month and a half," depending on the wind, according to John.

After landing in Poland, he'll fly back and return to school sometime in October. Because he has some year-long courses, John will have to keep up with his studies during the voyage.

There was one thing John asked a reporter to quote him on verbatim before he took off: "May your winds be fair and your job be full." Let's hope it works for him.

Police arrest Detroit man for burglary

Acting on an anonymous tip, Woods police Wednesday afternoon, Aug. 8, arrested a 27-year-old Detroit man in connection with a Sunningdale breaking-and-entering.

Glenn Cole, of Haverhill in Detroit, was arraigned last Thursday by Municipal Judge Patricia Schneider. Bond was set at $5,000.

Police got a phone call Wednesday afternoon from a person who refused to identify himself, who wanted to report a break-in. The caller told police the break-in had yet to occur and gave the address and description of the possible perpetrator.

Detectives and patrol officers went to Sunningdale. At about 1 p.m., a person matching the description given by the tipster was seen walking west on Sunningdale from Fairway, reports said.

Officers took up observatory positions, following the man down the street and passing him when he stopped to look at one of the homes. Officers saw the subject head around the house and look into the rear yard from their position in a neighboring home.

Police lost sight of the man for a few minutes and approached the Sunningdale home, reports said. Officers found a storm door with a cut screen ajar and the inner door open.

Armed with that information, police arrested a man walking on Sunningdale who was later identified as Cole, reports said.

Found in Cole's pants pockets were a three-karat diamond ring, one emerald ring, one gold ring with ruby clusters, one gold bracelet, two gold braided earrings, one plain gold ring, a gold necklace, one man's Ambassador digital watch, a woman's watch and a silver neck chain, reports said. The jewelry was valued at $10,000.

The Willow Tree hit by thieves

Two men walked into the back door of the Willow Tree clothing shop in the Village, grabbed between 20 and 30 fine dresses off a rack and ran to a waiting car parked just outside the door, according to City police records.

The robbery occurred about 10:30 a.m. on Friday, Aug. 3.

Employees estimated the dresses' value at between $50 and $80 each. They described the thieves and the driver as black men in their 40s, and also provided a license plate number that is helping police in their investigation.

The clothing store is located at 16910 Kercheval Avenue.

Income tax a fall issue?

Whether the controversy over the 1983 income tax increase will be an important political issue in November remains a matter of dispute between the Republicans and the Democrats after last week's primary election.

THE TAX ISSUE apparently was not a major factor in the primary defeat of three House members who were voted out of office, since two of them had voted against the 38 percent tax increase that set off the controversy last year. House speaker Gary Owen, Ypsilanti Democrat, said the tax issue was "almost non-existent" in the primary.

But House Minority Leader Michael Busch, Saginaw Republican, had a different view. He predicted the November election would be "a referendum" on Gov. James Blanchard and the Democrats, with the tax hike being a critical part of the campaign. He said the anti-tax and anti-Blanchard feeling "is still there" and said the Republicans had their best chance in 20 years to take control of the House.

The two party chairmen also disagreed on the tax issue. Rick Wiener, Democratic Party chief, said if Busch "wants to make it a referendum, I think he'll lose and lose badly." But State GOP Party Chairman Spencer Abraham said he hopes the Democrats think the tax issue is dead, adding, "We're always appreciative of people dropping their guards."

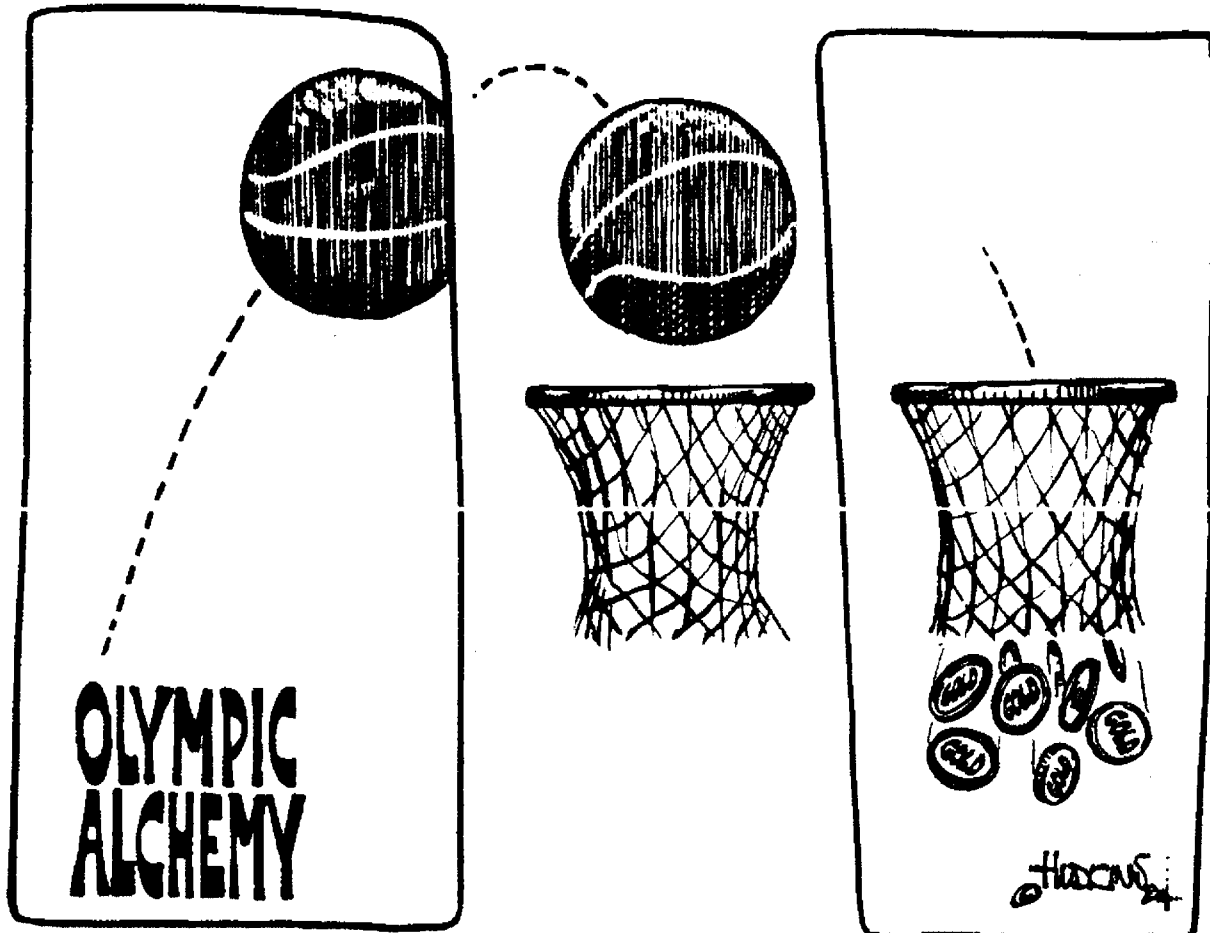

It is true, of course, that the income tax rate, which was hiked to 6.35 percent early in 1983, already has dropped to 6.1 percent and will go down to 5.35 percent on Sept. 1 under recently enacted legislation. But the 4.6 percent rate will not be reached until Oct. 1, 1987, which presumably will give the Republicans something to talk about in the coming months.

YET TWO IMPORTANT tax issues fared well in the primary elections in Wayne County. The renewal of county one-mill levy for a five-year period was approved by a big 112,473 to 72,223 margin and the new one-mill levy to bail out the financially beleaguered Detroit Public Library carried by a two-to-one vote. Those issues involved property taxes, not income taxes, of course, but the votes indicate that people will support higher taxes if they want the services such revenues provide.

If the economic recovery continues in Michigan, it is difficult to believe that the 1983 tax controversy will cut much ice with the voters in November, especially since there is already a date certain for the income tax to return to its former 4.6 level and since the rate by then will have come down a full percentage point since it reached its 6.35 peak. Yet the effectiveness of the tax issue for the GOP also will depend on just how well it is used, a factor that will become more apparent when the fall campaign really gets going after Labor Day.

DEMOCRATIC STATE SEN. John Kelly, whose district includes the Pointes, recently wrote in the Grosse Pointe News, "Hopefully, the signing of this conference report (on the income tax rollback bill) will be the final chapter on the 38 percent tax increase debate." The early evidence indicates he was wrong. The question now is whether the income tax controversy will be as important as the Republicans seek to make it.

More schools must be closed

To the Editor:

A short visit to the Grosse Pointe public school system's administration building and a cursory examination of the system's proposed operating budget for 1984-85 revealed two things about this system:

1. That the Grosse Pointes appear to have a very efficient, very competent and very helpful public school system staff. Assistant to the Superintendent Bruce Kefgen, Business Manager Christian Fenton and Purchasing Director Chuck Harwood were very helpful and straightforward.

2. On the other hand, a brief examination of the proposed operating budget clearly and emphatically points out that the Board of Education's decision earlier this year to close the Barnes School was not only justified, but the board has only done a part of the unpopular job of closing enough schools and ending the tax-consuming waste in our educational system.

Here are a few of the facts. After a long and difficult struggle, the board has succeeded in closing Barnes which had an enrollment of 191 students last year. But the total enrollment in the Grosse Pointe school system, based on the system's projections for this year, will only be 7,185. This is a reduction of 332 students from the 1983-84 enrollment of 7,517. So, even with the closing of Barnes, there will be an additional 141 empty seats and a half dozen more unneeded classrooms this year.

Little wonder that the cost of educating each student in Grosse Pointe has soared from about $1,100 a year little more than a decade ago to a projected $4,949 per student in the upcoming year.

And incidentally, the number of elementary school students declined 551 this year, compared to last year. The 1984-85 projection is for 2,566 students this year, versus 3,117 elementary students last year. That strongly suggests that the decline in enrollment in the middle and high schools is sure to decline on into the 1990s.

Thus, the decline in Grosse Pointe school enrollments is exactly 45.9 percent between 1970-71 and 1984-85 — from 13,282 to 7,185 this year.

Our amazingly well-informed school system has a good fix on this enrollment situation for the coming years. Its census not only keeps track of every man, woman, student and pre-school child in the district, but it also knows pretty well who's pregnant with additional potential students.

Three other factors strongly indicate that the enrollment in Grosse Pointe Schools will probably decline on into the 1990s. These are:

1. The general decline in the birth rate throughout this country.

2. The fact that Michigan is expected to have a further decline in population because of the movement toward the south and other factors.

3. And the fact that there is a population flow from the city of Detroit and the surrounding cities, such as the Grosse Pointes, to the out-state areas.

These facts, plus the recent election in which the recalls were voted down by almost a 2-1 margin, clearly indicate that we must get on with the unpleasant task of closing schools so there's a proper relationship between the number of students and the number of classrooms. A 45-percent school seat vacancy is unacceptable. Little wonder that taxes in Grosse Pointe have almost tripled in the last dozen years.

Bathers need protection

To the Editor:

Last year I made a suggestion to the Grosse Pointe Woods city council regarding some changes in the Park pool that would have done much to improve the already popular facility. I pointed out that the fenced in area around the pool resembles a concrete desert and that most bathers would appreciate it if some shaded areas were created where they could seek shelter from the scorching sun without leaving the pool area. Also sun umbrellas or adjustable shades for the life-guards on their perches would certainly make their duty more comfortable.

My informal poll indicates that most people like the idea. Unfortunately, the city council did not follow up on it.

It would be interesting to see how other readers feel about this matter.

Thank you neighbors

To the Editor:

It's been a long, hot (and dirty) summer on Lochmoor Boulevard for Shores residents and nearby neighbors. However, the new sewer line and storm drain are finally completed, and the road paving is underway.

There have been many inconveniences incurred by all of those people who use Lochmoor Boulevard. Thank you for your patience during this project. Was it worth it? Well, for some of us on Lochmoor, it's been a first summer in several years with dry basements.

Thank you for your tolerance and support.

Tiger fanatics in California

To the Editor:

As one of your more distant subscribers, I wanted to let you know how much I am enjoying your newspaper. I particularly wanted to comment on an article by Peggy O'Connor regarding "Tiger fever."

We have here in California a small but steadily growing band of Tiger maniacs, with caps on heads and banners in hand. But, horror of horrors, folks out here think the "D" stands for Dodgers.

When the Tigers take on the Angels here in Anaheim, rest assured that we will carry on the fine tradition of rooting for the home team.

Phyllis Cunningham

Why the light primary vote?

A primary election ought to be as important as a general election and, in some instances at least, a primary can be more important than a general election. If first-rate candidates don't win in the primary, they do not make it to the fall election and the voters are left with a Hobson's choice of picking one of two undistinguished candidates or not voting at all in November. Yet primary elections in Michigan seldom draw much of a turnout and last week's voting was among the lightest in recent history.

Wayne County officials estimated that only about 18 percent of the registered voters went to the polls and statewide less than 25 percent cast their ballots. Even in Grosse Pointe, where people pride themselves on performing their civic duties, only 16.5 percent of the eligible voters went to the polls.

WHY IS THERE SUCH A small turnout in Michigan primaries?

This year a major cause was the lack of competition for many offices. In fact, there was only one statewide contest, the one between Republicans Jack Lousma and Jim Dunn for the privilege of running against Sen. Carl Levin, the Democratic incumbent, in November. Yet that contest, as bitter as it became, apparently did little to attract votes even in Republican Grosse Pointe.

A second reason is the fact that the Democrats are almost assured of winning most county-wide races. The Democrats are so strongly in control that the Republicans do not offer candidates for some offices or put up only token opposition. And incumbent Democrats seldom are seriously challenged in the primary, with the result that some county officials are reelected time and again without any opposition.

A third reason is that congressional and even some local districts have been gerrymandered in order to prevent the election of Republicans in Wayne County. As an example of gerrymandering, we have cited earlier the attaching of Grosse Pointe Park and Grosse Pointe City to Rep. George Crockett's strongly Democratic 13th District territories in Detroit. The split leaves the Farms, the Shores and the Woods in Rep. Dennis

The funds are essential to balancing the county's $196-million-a-year budget, according to Lucas, and the voters obviously agreed with his opinion.

Lucas also could claim some credit for a third victory for good government in the county primary. He campaigned against County Commissioner Joseph Jurkiewicz who lost the Democratic nomination in the 15th District to W. Curt Bolter, a Brownstown Township supervisor. But in the 12th District, Lucas wasn't as successful in attacking Kay Beard, who won renomination. Lucas claimed both had opposed efforts to reform county government.

YET LUCAS DID win one argument with Ms. Beard. A Wayne County Circuit Court ruling has reaffirmed his power to lease Wayne County General Hospital to end its drain on county resources. Ms. Beard has led the faction on the county board that has tried to keep the hospital under county control.

Nobody ever said it would be easy to reform county government. And it is proving to be as difficult as expected. Many vested interests, ranging from labor unions to companies that have done business with the county, preferred the status quo and the special status they enjoyed. But slowly and surely Lucas and his supporters on the county board are bringing order out of the chaos in county government and reducing its drain on county resources. And important steps to achieve those goals were taken in the primary voting.

Hertel's 14th District, makes the Pointes a smaller proportion of the total vote in each district and benefits the Democratic Party.

In addition to candidates, there were two important issues on the primary ballot for Wayne County. They were the extension of the five-year one-mill levy and the abolition of the Wayne County Road Commission. Both measures passed easily but apparently did little to attract widespread voting, probably because there was little organized resistance to either issue.

Voting will be much heavier in November, of course, because of the presidential election. With President Reagan leading the public opinion polls in this state, Michigan Republicans will be pushing for a huge vote in the hope that Senate candidate Loumsa and perhaps several new GOP candidates for Congress will be able to ride to victory on Reagan's coattails. The GOP also hopes to recapture the state House.

The Democrats have other ideas and have hopes of carrying the state for former Vice President Walter Mondale, Sen. Levin and the incumbent Democratic congressmen as well as holding control of the state House. With Michigan a chief battleground in the national campaign, both parties will be spending vast amounts of time and money. That will mean more votes in both parties.

In addition to the nonpartisan nominees chosen in the primary, the November ballot also will list candidates for state Supreme Court, state board of education and the ruling bodies of the University of Michigan, Wayne State and Michigan State. These nominees will be chosen by party conventions but will run as nonpartisan candidates.

THIS IS A FOOLISH method of picking nominees for these offices, and particularly for the Supreme Court. It tends to favor people whose names are well-known for political success and not necessarily those best qualified as judges. Former U.S. Sen. Robert Griffin, for example, is reportedly seeking one of the nominations from the GOP. A good senator, or a fine governor, may not always be the best qualified person for the court.

Prime Time for senior citizens

By Marian Trainor

It's called payback. Payback is a term used by rather vindictive but basically human individuals who have suffered indignities from others and who, at long last, have an opportunity to even the score. They often are really good people and no one can blame them for gleefully getting their digs in.

This rather less than Christian attitude can work on a general basis as well as on a personal level.

Well do residents of Michigan know this.

For more than nine months of the year they put up with Michigan's petulant, changeable, sometimes downright nasty weather. They slip through ice and snow in the winter. They snuffle in the drizzly spring months. Fall is bearable but one's body has to adjust to rapid changes in temperature. One day may be warm and sunny, the next overcast and chilly, an outward warning that winter is waiting in the wings.

And then there is summer — payback time for Michiganders who have suffered the slings and arrows of intemperate, erratic unpredictable weather.

And what a wonderful time it is. Michiganders can now reap the benefits of the patience and endurance they have shown during the mixed and unmatched days of the other seasons.

It's their turn. It's their turn to enjoy long, sunny days at the beach just lying in the sun watching sail boats glide over sparkling blue swells or power boats churning up waves and sprays as they cut through pliant waters.

It's their turn to take leisurely rides in and about the area, open car windows and savor the lake-washed breezes on a ride down Lakeshore. This tourist attraction is at the doorstep of Grosse Pointe residents — all six miles of lake viewing.

Summer is a time to cross the Alter Road barrier (eastside's counterpart of oft-quoted eight-mile line of demarcation) and view both the old and new sights of Detroit.

One of the oldest is recognized as an outstanding attraction in the midwest. What other city has its own island sitting out in the middle of a river?

Belle Isle is like an old jewel in Detroit's repository of treasures — and there are many. From any point around the island's perimeter, there is a breathtaking view of both the Canadian and Detroit skylines. Try hitting it at a point around the Detroit Yacht Club at sundown. It's memorable and compares well to any mind picture of scenes that have impressed you.

It's reassuring to see how well the island holds its age. Old attractions still lure. People today, as others did in other years, picnic under the spreading limbs of trees grown lush and lovely with time.

They still canoe on the lagoon, play ball on the diamonds, bicycle, visit the zoo and museums just as past generations did. A trip to Belle Isle is like going back in time. Happily Belle Isle is a freeze-frame of what was, and still is.

Cruising farther down Jefferson, the summer sightseer has a view of the five cylindrical imposing towers of Renaissance Center. And they are impressive jetting up against a sky that casts intriguing shadows of purple, crimson or gray, according to the time of day.

Hart Plaza is another sight worth visiting in the summer. Located at the foot of Woodward, named for the late U.S. Senator, it stretches out toward the river. This historic corner of Detroit is just yards from the point at which Cadillac came ashore in 1701.

The plaza is a perfect urban riverfront park, a dramatic and sweeping open plaza. There is an unencumbered view of the river and its colorful traffic.

The Horace Dodge memorial fountain at the plaza's center sends sheets of water cascading over its sculpture, symbolizing the mighty engines the city builds.

All summer long the Plaza bustles with activity — ethnic festivals, concerts, dance recitals and other featured entertainment.

One of the best ways to view the transformation of this section of old Detroit into a vital and determined effort to refurbish the area and assume its rightful place on the river as an outstanding attraction, is to take a ride on the trolley car.

To be sure you will see some familiar sites but rocking along in this colorful, open air trolley you will acquire a new perspective.

The trolley itself is a 16-seat import from Portugal. It offers an exciting experience as it toots along from Washington Boulevard to the RenCen. Images of a "new city" are everywhere.

Another day you might like to drive back down Jefferson and go through the only international tunnel in the world to Windsor. So closely connected are the two countries, U.S. and Canada, it is difficult to think of Canada as a foreign country. Actually in the true sense of the word, it is not. It is a neighboring country, a conception that is fostered and reinforced each July when the Freedom Festival is celebrated.

Windsor has a wonderful riverfront that extends for 10 miles from the Ambassador Bridge to the mouth of Lake St. Clair. Along the way are several parks, the most impressive being Coventry Gardens, directly across the river from the midpoint of Belle Isle. It has gorgeous landscaping but its main attraction is the Peace Fountain, the largest floating fountain in North America. It sprays in 50 variations of light and water patterns and has music and 30 satellite fountains. Coventry Gardens is an especially attractive sight at night with the fountain lighting the darkness with colorful spray, the lights from Belle Isle dancing on the waters and freighters gliding down the river.

Another fun summertime excursion is also a trip to Canada, this time via the Ambassador Bridge. Plan to come home in the dark so you can see the new lights draped over the bridge's spires.

Once on the other side follow Highway 2 to Malden Road, turn right, drive along to Highway 18, follow the bend to Amherstburg. Once in town, go along the river road until you come to where a ferry will take you over to Bob-Lo. You can sit on the open upper deck and enjoy the summer sun as you cruise across the river. While the rides in the amusement park may not be of interest, the trip on the train that takes you around the island is enjoyable. What is commonly known as Bob-Lo Island, the amusement park, is but a small part of the whole island.

Another rewarding trip to the land across the river is one that takes you to Pointe Pelee. This nine by four mile point is famous for good fishing and swimming. There are trails and picnic areas. Depending on which side of the island you visit, you can view a turbulent lake or move to the other side and enjoy a view of the lake at its placid best.

If you like to walk, you'll enjoy the opportunity to walk miles out into a wildlife protected marsh to observe the plants and wildlife. If you'd rather, you can rent a boat and row around the many inlets and outlets. If you go, don't miss climbing the tower at the scene that gives you a view of miles of countryside.

A bonus of this trip is driving along fields lush with melons, peaches, corn and tomatoes. The best feature is the opportunity to buy some of them to take home. There are no melons anywhere that beat Canadian honeyrocks. The tomatoes are special too. Perhaps that is why one of the largest tomato processing plants in the country is located there.

These are the best, but the corn, beans and almost any other fruit or vegetable you want to purchase are good, probably because they really do come from the field to you.

There are many other enjoyable trips and activities that can be part of Michiganders summer in the sun. Even sitting in the backyard enjoying the coolness of the evening after the day's heat can be special.

You don't always have to go somewhere. Many times the greatest pleasure can be had by inviting people to come to you, particularly members of the family.

Summer makes travelling easier for them and entertaining easier for you. Gather the brood, get a supply of paper plates, some cold cuts, salads, slice some of your tomatoes and melons from Canada and you've got a family feast.

I survived my garage sale

By Harriet Nolan

For want of a better term, let's say I was able to act out a dream. I planned my very own garage sale, where hordes of people would storm my yard fighting to be the proud owners of my most valued possessions.

And all I know is if my other fantasies turn out the same way, I'm in a whole lot of trouble. Not that it wasn't successful, it was. But it's a terribly weird feeling having personal belongings picked up, over and then rejected. It's definitely true, what's one person's treasure is another's trash and vice-versa.

First of all, I'm not one of those people who browse, let alone buy at other yard sales. In fact, I hate most any kind of shopping except when on vacation where good weather, good food and good times loosen the old purse strings.

But my mother moved recently and I had to get some of my long-packed away incidentals out of her basement. The time was right to streamline some extra baggage.

I locked myself into the big event by running an ad in the Grosse Pointe News, knowing then I couldn't back out. However, by the Monday before the big weekend I hadn't begun to mark anything. The only thing I had done was move the stuff around the basement, making it look less cluttered.

Friday night singing "Nowhere to run, nowhere to hide," I began pricing items; slashing and raising the amounts based upon personal feelings.

Bright and early at 6 a.m. on Saturday, I dragged myself out of bed to continue the mostly unfinished job. As I lugged sale items from the basement into the yard, I began to feel like someone planning their first party. Would anyone come? Have a good time? And, most of all, buy anything?

Decisions, decisions. Should I display trash next to treasure, cute along side strange, cheap beside expensive? My concentration was broken by a voice that said, "I know I'm a little early (7:30 a.m.)

but can I just take a peek?" I would meet the first stranger of the day looking for early bird specials.

Four more women tried the same approach before the opening time of 10 a.m. and I began to feel my patience ebb. I refused one woman only to see her return later in the day. I still hadn't made any street signs and I was feeling like I wanted to go back to bed.

My first official customer lifted my spirits as she zeroed in on some mementoes like a mosquito after his nightly Bloody Mary. When the smoke cleared, she had bought a talking key from the Belle Isle Zoo for 25 cents, the kind that activates a recording where visitors can listen to a story about the animals.

I soon discovered she didn't want to hear about the birds and the bees though. She collected elephants and this key was in the shape of a big red one.

While I didn't need to worry about any crush of shoppers, I learned that some are looking for

The department of Community Education of the Grosse Pointe public school system has scheduled a total of 66 new-for-fall non-credit classes for adults, according to Dr. George T. Eddington, Director.

"In addition, the usual roster of tried-and-true popular favorites have been scheduled in aquatics, arts and crafts, careers and vocations, cooking, foreign languages, sports and exercise, and special interest," he said.

"Many of our fall offerings are popular, single-session classes (one-night stands)," he said.

During the summer the department of Community Education was moved from Brownell Middle School, 260 Chalfonte, to Barnes School, 20090 Morningside Drive, where many of the non-credit classes for youth and adults will be held.

Also new-for-fall is an activity co-sponsored with Henry Ford Hospital, "Health Maintenance: Cardiovascular Risk Factor."

Other fall offerings by the department of Community Education are "Hors d'Oeuvres for the Holidays Using Microwave and Food Processor" and "How to Nurture Your Self-Esteem and the Self-Esteem of Others."

Included in the new-for-fall lineup is a series of hypnosis classes with George Todt and Associates. They include "Techniques of Self-Hypnosis" and "Self-Image Development clinic."

Other classes are "Inside In-

Audition call for GP Theater

The fall theater season will be in full swing in a month, and Grosse Pointe Theater is getting ready for its first show, "Once Upon a Mattress."

Auditions for a cast that will include nine principal roles and a chorus that will sing, dance and perform mime, will be held between 1 and 5 p.m. on Saturday and Sunday, Sept. 8 and 9, at the group's headquarters at 315 Fisher Road.

Chorus members will double as knights, ladies-in-waiting, musicians, soldiers and servants. Their audition song is "Finale." Principals include Queen Aggravain, a contralto, who is aggravating and vain and a loud, bossy complainer. Her audition song is "Sensitivity."

Actors auditioning for Prince Dauntless the Drab, a baritone, must sing "Song of Love." The prince is a mama's boy who finally comes of age.

"The Swamps of Home" will be the audition song for contralto Princess Winnifred. She is nutty but sweet and a resourceful character.

King Sextimus the Silent is largely a mute role, until the last scene when he expresses himself through mime and gesture. Auditioners should be ready to improvise. A tenor is needed to play the young, sophisticated Minstrel who serves as narrator. His audition song is the prologue to "Many Moons Ago."

A high baritone is needed for the young and merry Jester, who will sing "Very Soft Shoes" at audition.

A non-singing role is found in the Wizard, who must be middle-aged to decrepit.

Lady Larken, a high mezzo, is the queen's lady-in-waiting and her delicate condition and nervousness push the play's action along. She and Sir Harry, a high baritone or tenor, will both sing "Yesterday I Loved You" in audition.

Ship-shape

United States Coast Guard Auxiliary commander Ted Angott, left, recently presented Capt. Giles Kelly of the presidential yacht Sequoia with an honorary marine examination decal. Angott, with Tappan and Assoc. in the Farms, said the ship appeared to be in "tremendously good condition" for its age. The Sequoia made its stop at the Grosse Pointe Yacht Club recently, sponsored by St. John Hospital.

Start growing for Garden Club show

The Men's Garden Club of Grosse Pointe says it's time to begin grooming entries for the group's annual Fall Horticulture Show scheduled for Thursday, Sept. 20, at Brownell Middle School, 260 Chalfonte.

This year's show will feature specimens of home-grown fruits, flowers and vegetables.

While judging is taking place, Vicki Hayden, first vice-president of the Grosse Pointe Garden Center, will present a program on bonsai, the art of growing dwarfed, ornamental trees or shrubs in small shallow pots.

Interest in bonsai has been sparked by trends toward smaller yards and apartment living. The Mrs. Hayden creates during her program will be given as a door prize. There is no charge for the show or the program.

For information about the show or to enter, call show chairman Joe Scanlon at 884-1913.

Drifter convicted of Pongrace murder

By Tom Greenwood

More than a year of agonized waiting for a Grosse Pointe family came to an end last week when a Montana jury found a 23-year-old drifter guilty of first degree murder in the death of their son.

The 11 woman, one man jury in Missoula, Mont. needed only two hours to find Scott David Steel, of Twin Falls, Idaho, guilty in the July 14, 1983 murder of Frederick Pongrace in Glacier National Park, Mont.

Pongrace, 31, was the son of Otto and Elizabeth Pongrace, of the City. Steel was also found guilty of theft on government property and inter-state transportation of a stolen vehicle. He faces life imprisonment on the murder conviction.

Steel's trial began on Tuesday, Aug. 7, and was concluded on Thursday, Aug. 9 before Judge Russel Smith, according to Special Agent in Charge John Campbell, of the Butte, Montana office of the FBI.

Steel will be sentenced on Friday, Sept. 14, in Missoula. He had been the subject of an intense manhunt by the FBI and police in the western states since Pongrace's body was found at the bottom of a 180-foot cliff in Glacier National Park 14 months ago.

An initial autopsy had established that he was alive when he fell over the cliff, but a subsequent autopsy established that he died previously of stab wounds before being pushed over the precipice. Police officials at that time suspected he had been murdered because the keys to his Volkswagen van, money and travelers checks were missing from his fully clothed body.

The authorities quickly established that Steel was their suspect after discovering that Pongrace had picked up him and his dog while they hitchhiked about 60 miles east of Glacier the day before. Pongrace, who had just been honorably discharged from the Coast Guard, was on his way to the Pacific Northwest to visit friends when he befriended Steel.

The day after Pongrace's murder, a tow truck operator in Pablo, Mont. told police he pulled the dead man's van out of the mud along a roadway and was paid for the job with an expensive camera that later proved to belong to Pongrace.

At that time, authorities believed Steel was driving the van south to California where he reportedly had relatives. Several possessions belonging to Pongrace were recovered from the Los Angeles home of Steel's sister. The van was also recovered in the city when police discovered two men stripping it.

Police were unable at that time to arrest Steel, who was reportedly hitchhiking to Florida to visit a girlfriend. The manhunt came to an end on May 31, of this year, when police in St. George, Utah arrested Steel, who was visiting relatives in the area.

According to Sgt. Mike Dawson, of the St. George Police Department, Steel was arrested without incident when he gave himself up at the urging of an uncle. According to reports, Steel was wearing the same backpack he was carrying when he was picked up by Pongrace a year earlier.

"We're awfully glad he got the penalty that he did," said Mrs. Pongrace, in a telephone interview. "It doesn't make things any easier on our end. We still miss Fred and it won't ever bring him back, but at least no one else will be hurt by this murder. Justice is served."

"I was asked to go out the trial," said Otto Pongrace, "and I was only on the stand a few minutes, just enough to identify my son's belongings and tell of his background. I stayed outside of the courtroom, for the most part. Most of the testimony was too painful to hear. I kept looking at Steel, but he never looked at me. Of course, they had him cleaned up to really beat the band. They made him look very presentable, but the jury wasn't fooled, and neither was the judge. From what I understand, the court appointed attorney tried to plea bargain, but the judge turned them down flat.

"I was also very grateful to the FBI agents that I met," continued Pongrace. "When this first happened, I said some rash things. I felt they were dragging their feet, but I was impressed by their professionalism when I was at the trial. Every thing was documented, every 'I' was crossed, every 'I' was dotted. It was absolutely airtight. There was nothing the defense could do.

"I wanted the death penalty, but I understand that Montana doesn't have one," he summarized. "We miss Fred everyday. Sometimes it seems like it was yesterday that it happened, sometimes it seems like a decade ago. We were watching the Olympics and Elizabeth said 'there's Fred.' There was an athlete there who looked like our son.

"You know what else is ironic? There's an American athlete on our U.S. team whose name is Scott Steel. We both began crying. But what else is new?"

Volunteer for MD telethon

If you're 18 years of age or older, your help is needed to answer phones and record pledges during the 1984 Jerry Lewis Telethon for Muscular Dystrophy, to be held Sept. 2 and 3.

Residents of Wayne, Oakland, Macomb and Monroe Counties are needed to work a five-hour shift of their choice at the Jerry Lewis Telethon Center nearest their homes. Residents of out-state areas should contact their local Muscular Dystrophy Office.

Those wishing to help at a Telephone Center during Labor Day weekend, either on the phones or in a clerical capacity, may register by calling the Muscular Dystrophy offices for Wayne and Monroe counties at 381-3838.

The 19th annual Jerry Lewis Telethon will be televised in the Detroit area on WJBK-TV, Channel 2, and local segments will be hosted by George Sells, Channel 2 News anchorman and J.P. McCarthy, WJR radio personality. The 22-hour telethon begins at 8:30 p.m., Sunday, Sept. 2 and continues until 6:30 p.m., Monday, Sept. 3.

Eastside theater holds auditions

The Detroit Center for the Performing Arts will hold auditions at 7 p.m. Tuesday, Aug. 21, for Milan Stitt's "The Runner Stumbles."

The play is based on the actual turn of the century trial of a priest for the murder of a nun in northernmost Michigan. Auditions will be held in the Eastown Theater, 8041 Harper Avenue. A three-minute, prepared, dramatic monologue is requested. For more information, call 925-7138.

City will hold Neff Park picnic

Grosse Pointe City will host a "Family Night" tonight, Aug. 16, at Neff Park at the foot of University.

Families are invited to enjoy a picnic dinner while waiting for the family games to begin at 7 p.m.

Five honored in the village

Four public safety officers and a Detroit man were honored for their services to Grosse Pointe Shores recently by the village's department of public safety.

Sgt. Dan Healy, Cpl. Chester Fronczak and PSOs Bruce Darlington and Jackie Renard were presented with a unit citation for their work leading to the arrest of three suspects involved in two burglaries in the village last year. Public Safety Director Joseph Vitale said.

Because of the coordination of investigations by Healy, Fronczak, Darlington and then-clerk Ms. Renard the three arrests were made quickly, Vitale said.

Dan Urban received a citizen citation at the recommendation of Sgt. Healy for Urban's volunteer service to the department's emergency medical service.

The presentations were made at the July 17 meeting of the village trustees.

Charles Dickson, publisher, News staffer

By Susan McDonald

Charles Dickson was a man who cared about people. It showed in the way he helped out the young newcomers to the newspaper business who crossed his path when he was publisher of his own paper, the Community News of Harper Woods, weeklies in Cincinnati, Dearborn Heights and the Grosse Pointe News, where he worked for more than 10 years before his retirement in 1983.

"He would come in at 8 a.m. to meet with me when I first started working here and he taught me everything I know about newspaper production," said Jane Simon, an advertising representative at the Grosse Pointe News. "He'd take on a real gruff manner with me, but it was funny and cute because I knew how much he really cared," she said.

Janet Mueller, the News' society editor, recalls that "Charlie was a gentleman.

"If that word sounds old-fashioned today, it's because there aren't that many of them around today — and I think that's a pity. I don't at all mean that he was stiff or staid — nobody enjoyed a joke more than Charlie. But he was concerned about people and that concern showed.

"Everyone who ever worked with Charlie was his friend, because you couldn't work with Charlie and be anything else," Ms. Mueller said.

His concern for others showed in his dedication to Kiwanis, the service organization he was involved with for more than four decades. Mr. Dickson helped found the Denby Kiwanis on Detroit's east side, served as its president and for 45 years maintained perfect attendance, visiting chapters in other cities when his work took him away.

Howard Draper, president of Draper Fine Furniture on Mack Avenue, and a long-time friend of Mr. Dickson, called him "the last of a dying breed."

"Charlie was a master of advertising. He created advertising, rather than just selling space.

"He certainly will be missed," Draper said.

He also was an avid bridge player and a dedicated University of Michigan football fan who followed the team from coast to coast when he had a chance.

Mr. Dickson, 74, died Saturday, Aug. 11, at Harper Hospital.

Funeral services were held Tuesday, Aug. 14, at St. Paul-on-the-Lakeshore Church. The Eppens-VanDeweghe Funeral Home handled arrangements. Burial was in White Chapel Memorial Cemetery in Troy.

A native of Detroit, Mr. Dickson was graduated from the University of Michigan in 1933. He served in the Pacific during World War II. In addition to the Kiwanis Club, he was a member of the Detroit Yacht Club and lived in Grosse Pointe Woods.

He is survived by his wife, Irene; his daughter Mrs. Kathleen Tinney, of Ann Arbor; three grandchildren Michael, Kathryn and Kristen; and his sister Mrs. Elizabeth Miller.

Mr. Dickson posed for this photograph shortly before he retired in 1983.

Heart of Gold winner dies

When she received the Heart of Gold Award from the United Foundation in 1982, Julie Ann Dimercurio said she had "a strong faith that my life has a purpose and that I must do what I can to help others who have cystic fibrosis."

Mrs. Dimercurio, formerly of the Pointe, lately of St. Clair Shores, lost her fight against the nation's number one genetic killer last Friday afternoon, Aug. 10, in Bon Secours Hospital. She turned 27 last month.

The daughter of Alfred and Bernice Van Tiem of the Woods, Mrs. Dimercurio was born and raised in Grosse Pointe. She is survived by her parents, her husband Frank, her mother-in-law Rosalia Dimercurio, and two sisters, Mrs. Nancy Rashid and Mrs. Donna Salvaggio. Four of Mrs. Dimercurio's brothers and sisters were also killed by cystic fibrosis.

Cystic fibrosis is a genetic degenerative disease with no known cure that affects the respiratory and digestive system. The disease usually strikes during infancy and kills its victims before they reach their teens.

Mrs. Dimercurio was one of nine recipients of the Heart of Gold Award in 1982 in recognition of her dedication and community service. She volunteered five to 50 hours a week to the Cystic Fibrosis Foundatation of Metropolitan Detroit as secretary of the board of directors and member of the public relations, administration and resource development committees.

In 1981, she was chairman of "Kiss Your Baby Week." Excessive salt in perspiration can be a sign of cystic fibrosis and the state-wide campaign was to make parents aware of this symptom.

In addition, she was honored as Volunteer of the Month by United Community Services in 1981, appeared on radio and television and was the 1981 poster representative for CF.

Services for Mrs. Dimercurio were held Monday morning at Verheyden Funeral Home and St. Paul Roman Catholic Church. Interment was in Resurrection Cemetery in Clinton Township.

"A long time ago, I decided that I love life, and I plan to help others and also enjoy every minute I can," she said in a 1982 interview. "So far, I've beaten the odds because most CF victims die before or during their teens."

"I want to show other CF patients that life is worth fighting for," she continued. "And if I can help raise money to bring about research to save other children, all my efforts will be worthwhile."

Memorial contributions may be made to: Cystic Fibrosis, 24655 Southfield Road, Southfield 48075.

Bon Secours opens new Park facility

Officials of Bon Secours Hospital formally opened the new Bon Secours Hospital Internal Medicine Center on Thursday, Aug. 9. Located at 15200 Kercheval at Lakepointe, the center is designed to provide the Grosse Pointe Park community with convenient access to quality medical care.

The Bon Secours Hospital Internal Medicine Group, previously seeing patients at Bon Secours Hospital, will continue to serve patients at the new facility. Under the supervision of staff physicians, residents of the hospital's Internal Medicine Residency Program will also care for patients at the center.

David W. Benfer, Bon Secours executive director, opened the ceremony by welcoming 80 guests, including Grosse Pointe Park Mayor Palmer Heenan, City Manager John Crawford and representatives of the business community.

Ralph D. Cushing, M.D., director of the internal medicine residency program, said that the center reaffirms Bon Secours Hospital's commitment to meeting the community's total health care needs.

Other speakers were Sister Patricia A. Eck, C.B.S., the hospital's associate administrator, and Monsignor Francis X. Canfield, of St. Paul Catholic Church, who led the dedication prayer.

Following the ceremony, guests toured the 5,200 square-foot facility. In addition to examination rooms and offices for internal medicine physicians, the center houses the Development and Community Relations department.

A conference room for community education activities emphasizes one goal to internal medicine — preventing disease through patient education. Internal medicine physicians care for teenagers and adults. They stress the early detection of treatable diseases such as hypertension, heart disease, stroke and cancer.

Physicians at the new facility see patients by appointment only. For emergencies, they care for patients at Bon Secours' emergency room. For an appointment, call 823-0004.

Teacher's firing upheld by tenure panel

By Susan McDonald

The state Tenure Commission, in an unusual unanimous decision, last month upheld the firing of Parcels Middle School teacher Frank Creelman on the grounds he was insubordinate and his conduct resulted "in harm to the school, staff and students."

Creelman, a shop and social studies teacher for 14 years, was fired in 1981 after a shouting match with a school administrator. There were 14 charges leveled against him at local hearings on his dismissal, including allegations that he secretly tape recorded conversations with administrators, fought with other teachers and removed school property from the building.

Girl Scouts mark 10th year of service

Girl Scout Troop No. 327 from Grosse Pointe celebrated its 10th consecutive year of service in Mackinac Island this summer.

The troop has been coming to the Mackinac Island Scout Service Camp every summer since 1975 under the leadership of Betsy Martin. Other troop advisors are Mae Gallagher, in charge of food and finances; Margorie Parsons, uniforms; Joyce Payne, first aid; Donna Coad, transportation; and Luda Bakunovich, crafts.

The five-member Tenure Commission, which has been reviewing the case since 1981, ruled unanimously that Creelman's appeal of his dismissal be denied.

Before he was fired, school administrators had sued Creelman in Wayne County Circuit Court because he had secretly recorded their conversations with a small tape machine in his shirt pocket. The court fined Creelman $500 and ordered him to stop the practice.

The Tenure Commission found that Creelman had continued to tape conversations with the school principal in its investigation into his alleged insubordination. It also found he was insubordinate in refusing to answer administrator's questions as to why he showed the film "Guyana Tragedy: The Jim Jones Story" to his seventh and eighth grade social studies classes. The commission also determined that Creelman "instigated... confrontations (with other staff members) with his loud aggressive and baiting comments and actions."

It ruled that Creelman's actions in a scuffle with one female administrator were "serious and culpable." "The incident caused the students present to be fearful and anxious," according to the ruling.

A school board spokesman said they were pleased with the ruling. Creelman was the first Grosse Pointe teacher to be dismissed since 1977, when Elmer Lepp was released.

Creelman could not be reached for comment.

Huron could lose its last marsh

The last big natural marsh along Lake Huron in American waters is on the endangered list, writes Kenneth S. Lowe in "To Save a Marsh, A Special Report," in Michigan Out-of-Doors magazine.

The Maisou Island marsh, located in Saginaw Bay, has suffered losses of more than 2,000 acres from 1949 to 1978, according to Lowe, editor of Michigan Out-of-Doors. Since that time there have been massive dieouts of cattails and the waterfowl area has been greatly reduced, thereby reducing the number of ducks.

In an effort to save the marsh, a resource management team has been brought in to conduct studies aimed at determining the cause of waterfowl habitat deterioration in the island area.

The team, Dr. Frederick Payne and Joel Schaeffer, of Midwest Water Resource Management, plan to investigate a number of possible causes for the marsh destruction, including the high-water theory of the Department of Natural Resources. Other theories are the intrusion of insects, rough fish activity, pesticides or other toxins or diseases, and sedimentation.

According to Lowe, the conventional explanation for the marsh destruction by the DNR has been high water conditions, but Payne and Schaeffer do not believe that would be the sole cause.

The scientists point out that in 1977 and 1978 lake levels were only about a tenth or two-tenths of a foot above the 80-year average lake level and more than two feet lower than the record highs of 1973-74. More importantly, they say, marsh losses were very high in shallow, protected embayment areas.

Payne speculates that sedimentation may be the biggest culprit. "Because the sedimentation problem appears to be a recent development, we suspect it may figure significantly in marsh losses," he says.

To counter sediment deposition, Payne has tentatively recommended that at least two man-made cuts -- Dynamite and Boxcar -- be blocked to halt sediment transport into embayment marshes, which would accomplish several things.

First, he says, it would stop the depositing of silt on the remaining cattails; second, it would protect waterfowl food plants like pond weeds and wild celery; third, it would save fish-spawning areas from becoming covered with silt; and finally, it would even help snails, a food for diving ducks.

Before the scientists can begin their marsh-restoration program, however, DNR approval would have to be obtained and before the DNR would offer a permit, the proposal would have to be submitted to public hearings.

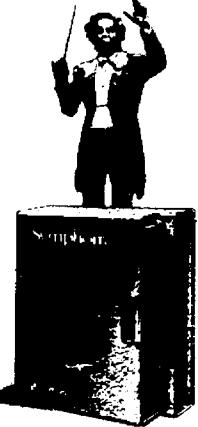

Payne and Schaeffer are being retained by the Saginaw Valley Chapter of the Michigan Duck Hunters Association, who began the Maisou Island project in February 1983.

The Saginaw Valley Waterfowlers have already invested nearly $5,000 in the project. A proposal for a $16,975 grant under the Coastal Zone Management Act has been submitted to the DNR.

Dutch elm casualties decrease in 1984

By Mike Andrzejczyk

There's some good news and bad news about Dutch Elm disease this year in the Pointes.

The good news is, fewer trees will be removed this year than last because they contracted the fungal disease.

The bad news is, there are fewer elm trees around to contract DED, which has decimated the area in the past few years.

There were 580 trees removed last year by cities because of Dutch Elm, but only 407 have been removed or tagged for removal so far this year, a substantial drop.

City residents lost 70 trees last year, but only 63 so far this year, while the Farms took down 88 in 1984, down from 109 last year. The Park tagged 140 trees for removal this year, down from 172 last year. The Shores removed 29 diseased trees last year, but only 16 so far this year. The Woods, which lost about 200 elms last year, removed about 100 diseased trees this year.

Losses to the disease have decreased because there are fewer trees left to contract the fungal disease that attacks the water-conducting system of all native elm species, according to Grosse Pointe Shade Tree Council chairman Al Mazur.

A pattern that has developed in other parts of the country shows that after a decade of steadily increasing losses to DED, the casualties drop off one year and slowly decrease afterward, Mazur said. The Park experienced a drop of about 50 percent in its loss from 1982 to 1983, he added. Mazur is also vice-chairman of the Park's Beautification Commission.

In 1982, the Park lost about 350 trees to DED. The next year, 172 were taken down, Mazur said.

The greater distance between existing elms works in their favor, according to Woods tree commission member Barbara Hayes. The disease can be carried by elm bark of leaf beetles or can be transmitted through the soil, she said. The farther apart the trees, the less likely an elm will contract DED from a diseased neighbor.

Dutch Elm Disease literally strangles a tree. The fungus clogs the water-conducting system within a tree, blocking the passage of liquid and nutrients. The first signs of the disease can be wilting or dying leaves along one or two branches in the crown of the tree. The disease quickly spreads and can, if contracted in the spring, kill a tree by the end of summer.

To combat the disease, a spring spraying to kill the beetles is done. Affected branches are trimmed out as soon as they begin to show signs

Officials suspect this once grand tree, around which the Grosse Pointe News office was built, has Dutch Elm Disease and may condemn it later this year. "With more than 40 percent of it dead, it's an ideal site for beetle debris," says Larry Shock, of Shock Brothers Tree Service. "It's a miracle it's lasted this long, the tree has been starving to death for a number of years in that small area."

of the disease and an injection of fungicide is made to block further spreading of the disease within the tree.

The Shade Tree Council has been following the ravages of DED and collecting information on the losses as well as the methods of treatment and prevention. Last year, the council sponsored a hand-on seminar for residents to show the method of injecting trees, Mazur said.

Spraying programs are done municipally by some cities while others leave it to individual homeowners. Some cities also have reforestation programs to replace lost trees at city expense.

There is no variety of tree that can match the elm in shape, size and the fullness of its crown, Mrs. Hayes and Mazur agree. An elm-lined street can, even in the middle of summer, provide the cool solemnity of a Baroque church nave, Mazur added.

Some research has been done to see why certain elms are attacked while others are not, Mazur said. One hypothesis is that a stressed tree, one not in the best condition, will emit a pheromone, a hormonal attractant, that will draw bark beetles to it.

Stress for a tree, like a person, comes from a variety of sources. Injury, noise, pollution and poor care can lower a tree's resistance. To be in its best shape, an elm should be watered and periodically fertilized and trimmed, Mrs. Hayes and Mazur said.

To water a tree, set a hose on a slow trickle and set it near the "drip-line" of the tree, where rain would normally fall from branches after a rain. Leave the hose running for four to five hours to thoroughly saturate the ground.

As elms have been removed, cities have tried to replace them with other varieties of trees that are more tolerant of urban conditions. Grosse Pointe City offers residents who have lost elms the opportunity to have a new tree planted at no expense to them, according to community development coordinator Chris Matthew.

"Our main objective is to plant the same number of trees that we remove," Ms. Matthew said. Six varieties are offered by the city to residents, including the Sugar maple, Crimson King maple, Marshall Seedless ash, Hybrid Skyline locust, Little Leaf linden and the Pin oak. Other varieties that residents request are investigated to determine their ability to survive in urban settings, she added.

The Woods has a tree-planting program, where city and federal money is used to plant a variety of trees throughout the city. Trees planted are not necessarily in locations where one has been removed, however, Mrs. Hayes said.

The Shores also replants trees lost to Dutch Elm when the budget allows, village officials said.

There are a variety of trees that one can plant to try to replace the elm, according to Mazur and Mrs. Hayes. Both agreed that seedless ash was a good choice, because it was fast growing and offered a large crown for shade.

Another variety is the Northern Red Oak, Mazur said. Although slower-growing than the elm, it closely matches the umbrella-like upper foliage of the elm that makes the elm popular. Another beautiful tree is the Sweet Gum, according to Mrs. Hayes.

The Park has started an arboretum at Patterson Park, where a variety of trees have been planted, Mazur said. While acting as living memorials, the trees also offer people a chance to decide what they might like in their yards, he said.

There are a variety of trees offered for sale in the spring by the Woods tree and Park beautification commissions. Buyers can choose trees for fall color, disease resistance, size, shape and almost anything else desired.

There will always be a place for the elm in the urban forest, Mazur said. About 10 varieties of elm have been developed that are disease resistant, he added, noting that resistance is the same as being immune.

The latest disease-resistant strain is the American Liberty Elm, from which the Elm Research Institute is developing seedlings. The institute said the American Liberty is the first American elm variety to be developed that is not a hybrid of Asian or Japanese species, which have neither the hardness nor the vase-like stature of the American variety.

For more information about trees, contact your city hall or local beautification commission.

Alumni celebrate 30 years of Children's Theater

By Tom Greenwood
 They came from near and far to honor their star. Well, she's not exactly a star in the "spotlight on me" tradition. But Sally Reynolds, founder and director of the Grosse Pointe Children's Theater, has had a starring role in the lives of hundreds of GPCT alumni.
 So much so that many of them returned to the Pointe Aug. 3 from around the country and Europe to honor her when the GPCT celebrated its 30th anniversary.
 Sally's living room, in her comfortable Grayton Road home, still shows the memories of that festive occasion. Congratulatory telegrams sit in bunches on tables, proclamations decorate the piano, helium filled balloons bounce against the ceiling and giant posters adorned with "Peanut" characters about the occasion.
 Sitting in a circle around Sally last week were four GPCT alumnae who lingered to say goodbye to "their" director, the person who taught them how to be disciplined on the stage and at ease with themselves in real life.

They included Sally's daughter, Cindy Reynolds-Connors, who currently works for radio station WHYT-FM; Barbara Gilstorf, who works as a director in Annapolis, Md.; Gwen Humble-McShane, an actress in Los Angeles, who has appeared on such programs as "Remington Steele," "Three's Company" and "Movieola;" and Juliet Mazer-Schmidt, who lives in the Farms and is the mother of 4-year-old Kenny, who's already got three performances in the GPCT under his belt.
 "Juliet is just following the example her mother set for her," said Sally, with a smile. "Her mother, Mrs. John Mazer, has been the musical director of our theater for well over 20 years. We'd be lost without her."
 "Kenny will be 4 next month, but he started with Mrs. Reynolds when he was only five months old," said Juliet. "He's already told me one of the roles he wants to play is that of 'Fagan,' because Mrs. Reynolds said it's a good character part."
 "That's the way we all started," said Gwen. "We've all grown up in the same area and we all started with Sally. I was 13 when I began, Juliet was 5, Cindy was with the theater from ages 4 through 18 and Barbara started when she was 13, like me. People who are unfamiliar with the theater and its reputation think, 'oh, it's just a kids theater.' But Sally really gives it a polished, theatrical look. The kids realize it after they see the finished product. It's not amateurish at all."

 "It's been fun, for all of us, and a lot of work, too," said Cindy, smiling at her mother. "It was sometimes rough for me, because if I got a good role, they'd think it was because of favoritism. If mom yelled at someone, they'd later yell at me, wanting to know 'what my mother was doing?' She always went out of her way to make sure there was no favoritism. That meant I sometimes got lost in the crowd scenes, but I loved every minute of it."
 "You can't always be in the spotlight," said Sally, with a wave of her hand. "I've had 30 years of stage mothers coming up and asking for their child to get the lead role, but I believe in putting children through the gamut. That way they can handle anything."
 "Every word of what she said is true," said Barbara, with a laugh. "I remember once I had the lead in 'Annie Get Your Gun.' The next play was the 'Wizard of Oz.' I got to play the two feet of the dead witch sticking out from beneath the house. Remember that, everyone?"
 They all laughed. Sally reminded them that her actors and actresses over the years were involved with all aspects of theater, from acting to painting flats and helping with lighting. "It teaches them everything in theater, so they can handle anything that comes along," she said.
 "I enjoy working with children. You can mold them when they're young. I believe God gave all of us a talent. We all have gifts from God and they're all worthwhile. I believe God wants us to use these talents to make the world a better place. My talent is that I was given the chance to help children do great things. They, and we, all count."
 While Ms. Reynolds has centered most of her abilities here in the Pointe, she's always been disappointed that there aren't more children's theaters in the country.
 "It's disheartening that there are so few people trained to work with young people in children's theater, anywhere," said Sally. "I'd like to see it expand to other cities, such as Kalamazoo. I'd be willing to work there as an assistant director, seamstress, lighting director, set director or anything else to help get it established. It's such important work."

 "It's rough work, too," said Gwen, as the others nodded in agreement. "The kids today seem rougher than we were. They need more discipline and don't like being yelled at or given direction. But it pays off in the long run."
 "You'd better believe we all got A's in our college speech classes," said Juliet, with a smile.

Now that the party is over, and the telegrams are put away for posterity, it's time to get back to work for Sally. She's lost track of the number of plays that she's directed, but another one looms on the horizon.
 "I've had requests from the War Memorial, where we stage our plays, to produce either 'Annie' or 'Little Women.' I suppose we'll start interviewing for the play this month," said Sally, settling back in her easy chair.

 "I've even been thinking of starting to include some of our now grown up alumnae in some of the plays, so they'll be appearing with their own children. Wouldn't that be something?"
 "It's true that I've been doing this for 30 years, but as far as I'm concerned it's only the 'first 30 years.' Now I'll start on my second."

Lights! Camera! Smile!

It's easy to tell from the smiles that it must have been quite a celebration. Sally Reynolds, founder and director of the Grosse Pointe Children's Theater, sits surrounded by just a few of the hundreds of Grosse Pointers she has directed over her 30 year career. From left to right in the back row are Gwen Humble-McShane, Juliet Mazer-Schmidt, Cindy Reynolds-Connors and Barbara Gilstorf.

From Another Pointe Of View

By Janet Mueller

Formal invitations have been sent to members of the Grosse Pointe Hunt Club and Bloomfield Open Hunt Club because it figures that they'd be interested — but all horse enthusiasts are welcome at a black tie reception Wednesday, Aug. 29, in the recently renovated Ulysses S. Grant Residence on the Michigan State Fairgrounds, honoring the officers and horses of the Detroit Mounted Police Division.

It's a benefit for the Detroit Mounted Police, celebrating their 91st anniversary this year. It's being hosted by The Friends of the Fair, a recently formed, non-profit organization dedicated to promoting the Michigan State Fair. It begins at 6 p.m. with a light supper, after which guests will be accompanied by a Mounted Police escort to a horse show in the State Fair Coliseum.

Performance show classes such as Arabian Mounted Native Costume, the Budweiser Single Road Horse to Bike Championship and the Budweiser Arabian and Morgan English Pleasure Championships are included in the evening's program, along with (Did you doubt it?) a performance by the Detroit Mounted Police.

And afterwards . . . "There will be champagne," says Chuck Walby, chairman of the committee planning the evening, "and the benefit guests will be escorted to the State Fair Bandshell for The Lettermen concert." Tickets for all this are $60 per couple. Reservation information may be obtained by calling 362-1660. The 135th Annual Michigan State Fair opens a week from tomorrow, Friday, Aug. 24, and will run through Labor Day, Sept. 3.

'Get That Good Feeling'

Pointe area residents will have a chance to "Get That Good Feeling," as one slogan for Goodwill Industries goes, when an attended Goodwill Industries Donation Center opens at the Grosse Pointe War Memorial next Monday, Aug. 20.

The attendant is there to issue tax receipts to donors. The Donation Center will be located at the War Memorial through Sunday, Sept. 2, open from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Monday through Saturday, from noon to 5 p.m. Sundays. Items requested are clean, usable clothing and shoes, kitchenware, books, tools, toys and small appliances.

They'll be used to stock Goodwill's first retail store in seven years. The store, at 10½ Mile Road and Gratiot Avenue in Roseville, is being readied for a Thursday, Sept. 6, opening.

Goodwill Industries has been in the metropolitan Detroit area since 1921, and has served the handicapped in a variety of vocational and rehabilitation programs. In 1970, Goodwill merged with Detroit League for the Handicapped, and the name League-Goodwill was adopted. That

All Systems Go for Fall Art Festival

The Grosse Pointe Artists Association 25th anniversary Fall Art Festival promises to be an extravaganza, with 148 exhibitors selected from the hundreds of artists from Michigan and surrounding states who submitted their work for display. All types of art will be represented. There will be unusual wood carvings, metalwork, pottery, weaving, elegantly-crafted jewelry and beautiful acrylics, watercolors and oils. There will be baskets, software, inks, macrame and pastels. The Music Makers' talented gentlemen are returning to provide a melodious background for browsers at the Grosse Pointe War Memorial Saturday, Sept. 8, from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. — rain or shine. Parking and admission are free. Light lunches will be served by the War Memorial. The festival's special feature this year is JOE MANISCALCO, pictured above (he's the one with the tie) with his painting of Michigan Supreme Court Judge Mary Coleman, which will hang in Lansing.

"Once upon a time, Operation LINC helped a local college with furniture for a youth counseling room, and the college helped LINC help a youth home by donating beds and dressers from a dorm no longer in use. A drug rehabilitation center sent helpers to move the furniture, and LINC helped the drug rehab center with furniture from a local automotive corporation."

This is LINC's (Linking Individuals to Needs in the Community) own Never Ending Story, and as in the movie, "Never Ending" does not mean that there is no conclusion or Happy Ending. Those who have seen the film found the ending wonderful. The impact of the feature — and LINC — is the interaction of one person with another in such a way that a chain reaction occurs, and the story goes on and on from its original source.

This is the concept of LINC. As our story continues, through your donations or volunteer commitment, effects continue to be felt long after you have forgotten your original involvement or effort. As preparations for fall activities begin, please consider becoming part of LINC's Never Ending Story.

And the story continues . . .

It is difficult during these hot, humid August days for even the most devoted sun worshiper not to wilt a little. It is even more difficult to remember snowflakes, ice skating and Santa's reindeer. Nevertheless, LINC is going to ask the impossible — and urge you to think ahead to Christmas.

As most parents, teachers and scout leaders are preparing for the first day of school, we realize that they must gather ideas for Christmas Service Projects for their children. The Christmas Gift and Toy Chest sponsored by LINC is a worthwhile program to consider.

At Christmas time, the Gift and Toy Chest coordinates donations of toys and gifts for distribution to Wayne County Social Service Agencies. The project evolved because of the numerous gift requests LINC's office receives during the holiday season from agencies it services.

There are 2,500 children in family foster care and another 1,000 children in residential foster care in Wayne County. All have been either neglected, abused or abandoned. The state allocates only $10 per child at Christmas for gifts.

New, used or handmade gifts are requested by LINC to help Santa Claus brighten the season for these children. Please consider this effort as a service project for your group of young people this fall: it is a wonderful way to teach the Joy of Giving. Any individual or group interested in supporting the Gift and Toy Chest may call LINC's office, 331-6700, for information.

In addition to looking ahead, consider a current request received at LINC for recliners which can be used in a rehabilitation center, enabling clients to rest for short periods during therapy before resuming their sessions. Anyone who can help is asked to contact the LINC office.

One final note: a recent Contact 10 item reported that LINC has relocated to a new address. This was in error. LINC continues to operate from 13340 East Warren Avenue in Detroit. Our phone number remains 331-6700.

LINC column space is provided each month by the Grosse Pointe News as a community service. Operation LINC needs your generous contributions and your time. We are a non-profit, volunteer organization which helps numerous Wayne County agencies and depends on your support. To volunteer or donate usable items, please call us at 331-6700. Our office hours are 9 a.m. to 2 p.m. Monday through Friday, throughout the year.

'Galatea' soars in California

When Philip Lewis Lewandowski's daughter, Marcie, came to visit her grandfather, Vincent P. Lewis, and step-grandmother, Ella C. Lewis, of Hillcrest Road, last week, she brought with her from California pictures and tales of her sculptor father's latest work. Galatea, shown above front and side in her pre-cast plaster state, is now the 1,000-pound bronze centerpiece of a multi-acre convalescent hospital and rest home complex in Ventura, Calif. The sea green sea nymph stands five feet tall, skimming over the surface of her "ocean" on a manta ray. She is named for a sea nymph of classical mythology. The original Galatea was sculpted by Pygmalion, who fell in love with his creation. His statue, through the power of his love, came to life. Lewandowski's Galatea was inspired by the woman in Bruce Walter Barton's story "The Tree at the Center of the World," a castaway for years on San Nicholas Island after its evacuation in 1835. Lewandowski, born and raised in The Pointe, studied at the Art Center School of Los Angeles, then worked with a major Southern California statuary casting firm. He decided to go it alone in 1970, moving to Los Osos, Calif., and beginning to create the one-of-a-kind commissioned pieces of which Galatea is his latest example.

The exhibition, organized by Dr. Agnieszka Morawinska of the National Museum in Warsaw, will continue at the DIA through Sunday, Sept. 23. Its 105 works by 20 important Polish artists are from public and private collections within that country. Its 164-page catalogue, only book on the subject in English, illustrates and discusses all works. The catalogue, published by the DIA, is available in the Museum Shop. A separate volume of scholarly essays on historic, literary, philosophical and aesthetic aspects of Polish Symbolism will be published in the fall, before the show closes. "At a time when Poland had no political autonomy, many of her artists focused on images which — at a highly poetic level — reflect the aspirations and melancholy of a suppressed nation," notes J. Patrice Marandel, curator of European Painting at the DIA, who has worked on the exhibit during several years of preparation.

Polish artists altered the Symbolist atmosphere of decadence and escapism with images evoking a sense of national identity during a continuing struggle for independence. This struggle took place throughout the turbulent 18th and 19th centuries which saw Poland, once the largest state in Europe, politically dissected by three successive partitions between Russia, Prussia and Austria.

Estates were confiscated, individuals deported. Polish universities in Warsaw and Wilno were closed. Use of the Polish language was discouraged. Great numbers of Poles went into exile in France, among them composer Frederic Chopin and poets Adam Mickiewicz and Juliusz Slowacki. Efforts to regain independence in 1863 resulted in executions, deportations to Siberia and other measures designed to weaken the remaining Polish gentry. Only in the aftermath of World War I was Poland re-established as an independent state.

Through this long period of foreign domination, the residents of Warsaw and Cracow, as well as Poles in exile, clung to their common language, cultural traditions and dream of a reunited motherland which provide the subject of many paintings in the exhibition.

The former Miss Duross selected a bridal gown of ivory lace. Her flowers were peach cymbidium orchids. She was attended by her sister, Beth Ann Duross, as honor maid, and by bridesmaids Gaye Walker, Anne Ives, Ellen Hogan, Terry Cynowa and Susan Damman, in identical, peach-colored dresses.

Spell, distinguished as an author, scholar and Master Builder of flutes and piccolos, has performed throughout the United States and England. He recently studied with William Bennett in London. Pizanis, in great demand as an accompanist, performs with equal ability on the piano or harpsichord. He recently served as staff accompanist for the Stephen Preston Baroque Flute Masterclass in Little Switzerland, N.C.

Tickets for their performance are $5 at the door, but reservations are suggested, as space is limited, and may be made by calling Village Records & Tapes, 886-6039. The summer Chamber Music Series is co-sponsored by WQRS-FM and Hammell Music.

An Event in Ypsilanti

The Depot Town Freight House, which now functions as an activities hall for Ypsilanti's picturesque railroad district, will be the setting for the world premier of "The Chessie Steam Special," a 25-minute film produced by Grosse Pointe's Stephen M. Stackpole, steam train enthusiast and cinematographer, on Saturday evening, Aug. 25.

The movie captures the sights and sounds of a 484 built in 1941 by the Reading Railroad shops, one of the largest model locomotives ever to ply the rails, as it traveled through Michigan on a ride-by and whistlestop adventure tour in 1979.

"The Chessie Steam Special" is the centerpiece of a festival of old-time flics, slide shows and films, including the feature length "Great Train Robbery," to be shown throughout Ypsilanti's Aug. 24 to 26 Heritage Festival. Showtime schedules are available from any Depot Town merchant. Admission to all shows is free.

Stephen Stackpole will be on hand to introduce his film with a brief explanation of coal burners, their configurations and how they work. He'll also give a brief history of the engine that stars in the movie edited by a fellow steam enthusiast, Grace Garland.

You may not know the name, but you know her work. Mrs. Garland, former film editor for J. Arthur Rank, is most famed for editing "The Red Shoes."

Fall audition dates for DSO Civic players

Young musicians aspiring to professional careers can take advantage of a unique training opportunity by auditioning for the Detroit Symphony Civic Orchestra, a pre-professional training orchestra for career-oriented music students, this fall.

Auditions for the 1984-85 Civic Orchestra will run Sept. 8 through 22 at Ford Auditorium, before a panel comprised of its music director, Michael Krajewski, and selected DSO members. Audition schedules and procedure information may be obtained by contacting the orchestra's manager, Cecile Keith, at 567-9000.

Auditioners will be heard on a first-come, first-serve basis. They will be asked to play a prepared solo and to sight read. Those accepted will participate in a nine-month, three-concert season, with weekly Saturday afternoon rehearsals.

They will receive tuition-free orchestral training through the concerts and weekly rehearsals, sectional coaching sessions with DSO musicians, and rehearsals with such noted conductors as DSO Music Director Gunther Herbig and Conductor Laureate Antal Dorati. In addition, certain eligible Civic Orchestra members receive private lessons from DSO musicians, assistance in obtaining instruments, and scholarships to summer music camp.

A special activity slated for the Civic Orchestra's 1984-85 season is a weekend at Interlochen, Nov. 17 and 18. At the invitation of Bruce Galbraith, director of the Interlochen Arts Academy, Civic Orchestra musicians will participate in master classes and attend a performance by Interlochen students, and will give a Sunday afternoon concert.

Membership in the Civic Orchestra is open to any musician currently participating in a Michigan high school or college orchestra interested in career training.

Safran-Davis
vows spoken

Okemos United Presbyterian Church was the setting Saturday, July 21, for the wedding of Laura Suzanne Davis, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Mackenzie Davis, of Okemos, and John Matthew Safran, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Safran, of Huntington Boulevard.

The 4 o'clock ceremony at which The Reverend Lawrence Farris presided was followed by a reception at The Driftwood in Lansing, after which the newlyweds left to vacation on Mackinac Island. They are at home in Poughkeepsie, N.Y.

Seed pearls trimmed the sleeves and the bodice of the bride's traditional white gown, styled with a flared skirt and train edged in ruffled lace. Her veil was lace-edged, and she carried a cascade of white roses, stephanotis and ivy.

Honor maid Suzanne Kuenzli, of East Lansing, and bridesmaids Susan Green, also of East Lansing, and Diana Cherryholmes, of Okemos, carried cascades of yellow roses, white carnations and ivy. Their floor length dresses, pale lemon yellow in color, featured heart-shaped necklines and off-the-shoulder sleeves.

Eric Safran acted as best man for his brother. Ushers were Kenneth Schuldt and Thomas Walter, both members of Grosse Pointe North High School's Class of 1980.

The bride's mother's floor length dress was pale peach in color. The bridegroom's mother also chose a floor length gown, coral-colored, with a matching jacket. White roses and baby's-breath formed each mother's corsage.

Jeanne Barr wed in July to Mr. Carey

Jeanne Kathryn Barr, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert W. Barr, of North Brys Drive, and Stephen Charles Carey, son of Mrs. Wells C. Carey, of Charlestown, Mass., and the late Mr. Carey, exchanged marriage vows Saturday, July 21, in Lakeshore Presbyterian Church, St. Clair Shores.

The Reverends A. Dale Ihrle, D.D., of Lakeshore Presbyterian, and Donald E. Pikell, O.P., of Saint Gertrude Catholic Church, presided at the 10 o'clock ceremony. The morning rites were followed by an afternoon reception at the Grosse Pointe War Memorial.

The bride wore a gown of oyster-white taffeta, styled with off-the-shoulder ruffles and a floor length, ruffled, side-wrap skirt. Miniature flowers, falling in gathers from a ribboned Juliet cap, dotted her embroidered, scalloped veil. White roses and ivy formed her bouquet.

Susan Elizabeth Barr, of New York City, acted as honor maid for her sister. Bridesmaids were Sheila Frances Barr, the bride's youngest sister, and the bridegroom's sisters, Mrs. James Andrea and Charleen Carey, both of Charlestown. Flower girl was Margaret Elizabeth Kosal, of Brighton, the bride's cousin.

Their dresses of ivory taffeta featured a small, pink floral print and were ruffled in a similar manner to the bride's gown. They carried bouquets of rubrum lilies and ivy.

Philip Carey, of Charlestown, acted as best man for his brother. Ushering were two other brothers, Dennis Carey, of Holbrook, Mass., and John Carey, of Westminster, Calif., and their brother-in-law, Mr. Andrea. Ring bearer was the bridegroom's nephew, Jamie Andrea.

The mother of the bride wore a long-sleeved dress, hyacinth blue in color, its pleated bodice trimmed with pearls at the neckline. The bridegroom's mother selected a dress of pink chiffon, featuring a surplice neckline and tulip sleeves.

The newlyweds are now at home in Boston after their wedding trip to Hawaii and to Los Angeles for the Summer Olympics.

The new Mrs. Carey, granddaughter of Edna M. Klein, of Detroit, and the late Gene B. Klein and Archibald W. Barr, of St. Clair Shores, and the late Florence W. Barr, was graduated from the University of Michigan with a Bachelor of Science degree in Nursing. She is currently a Registered Nurse at Massachusetts General Hospital and is attending New England School of Law, Boston.

Mr. and Mrs. Stephen C. Carey

Her husband, a graduate of Stonehill College, North Easton, Mass., is a Certified Public Accountant, employed by Eastern Gas and Fuel Associates, Boston, and is attending Suffolk University Law School, Boston.

Out-of-town guests included Mr. and Mrs. Stephen Akers, of Boston, Mrs. Mary Hyson, of Bel Air, Md., Mr. and Mrs. Rodney Hyson and Rodney Jr., of Stree, Md., the Frank McKays, of Dorchester, Mass., Mrs. Celia Powers, of Quincy, Mass., and Mrs. Helen Tibbetts, of Charlestown.

Offer historic slide programs

Four historic — and entertaining — slide programs are available through the Detroit Historical Society Guild, a volunteer service organization actively involved with the Detroit Historical Society and the Detroit Historical Department, for adult groups in the metropolitan area.

"One Hundred Years of Fashion" reviews changes in women's costumes from 1830 to 1930. Included are dresses, hats and wraps from the Historical Museum's collection, along with a multitude of period accessories.

"Houses and History" offers a glimpse of the variety of Detroit's residential architecture, from Moross House on East Jefferson Avenue, the city's oldest standing brick dwelling, to the simple clapboard cottage occupied by Ulysses S. Grant when he lived on Fort Street to David Whitney's opulent Woodward Avenue mansion. Information on the personalities who owned and lived in these homes, from Solomon Sibley, Detroit's first mayor, to Henry Ford, is included in the commentary.

"Spires and Stained Glass" provides an armchair visit to 17 outstanding Detroit churches, including Mariner's, Ste. Anne's, Fort Street Presbyterian and Second Baptist, the city's oldest black congregation. Interior views highlight glowing windows and interesting furnishings.

"Dolls on Parade" is the newest program, developed from the Historical Museum's extensive doll collection. It features fine examples of French Jumeaux and Brus, elaborately-dressed German Kammer & Reinhardt's and unusual character dolls in original costume.

Further information and scheduling of these programs may be arranged by calling Mrs. William Scott, volunteer chairman, at 642-9252 or 833-7911, the number of the Old Detroit gift shop operated by the guild Wednesday through Saturday, from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m., in the Historical Museum.

The guild welcomes contributions to assist its volunteer efforts on behalf of the Historical Museum, the Dossin Great Lakes Museum and Historic Fort Wayne.

Cottage trains for the future

Fourteen local high school students, all seniors considering health care careers, were graduated from Cottage Hospital's nurse's aides and orderlies training program in mid-July. They received both classroom and clinical experience at the hospital and the Cottage-Belmont Nursing Center.

"This is a unique demonstration of a hospital and a school district working together to benefit the students and the community," said Joan Hanpeter, president of the Grosse Pointe Board of Education and a speaker at the graduation ceremony. "The school system is very grateful to Cottage Hospital for the training and the practical experience they're providing Grosse Pointe students."

The trainees — Kevin Aardema, Debra Jeanette Addy, Lynn Armbruster, Elizabeth Ann Barton, Katherine Buccinna, Steven Butala, Darby Dettlinger, Michele Gryzenia, Sandra Kiers, Martha Kolojeski, Steven Kostecke, Colleen MacDougall, Nancy Pillsbury and Susan Stroeb — practiced the usual work of a nurse's aide, such as changing bedding and assisting with bathing. In addition, each spent a day in the operating room, viewing surgery.

Pat Gaskell, R.N., and Ann Diehl, R.N., instructed the five-week course. Medical aide coordinators from Grosse Pointe South and North High Schools are Loujane Beynon and Jeanne Bocci. Ralph L. Wilgarde, Cottage Hospital administrator, participated in the diploma and pin presentation.

The Medical Co-op Program is in its 15th year at Cottage. The hospital plans to hire four of this summer's graduates.

Cannon will roar from Fort Wayne

Over 20 cannons from the pages of American and British history will roar over the riverfront parade ground at Historic Fort Wayne this Saturday and Sunday, Aug. 18 and 19, during the fort's annual artillery show.

Authentically uniformed gun crews from Michigan, Ohio, Indiana and Canada will demonstrate 18th and 19th century artillery drill. There will be outdoor

WSU Theatres announce new season's fare

Wayne State University's Hilberry, Bonstelle and Studio Theatres will produce 15 classic and modern plays during 1984-85, including three Shakespearean dramas and two new plays, one to be presented at the Hilberry prior to a planned Broadway production.

Leonard Leone, WSU Theatres director, will open the season Sept. 28 with "Hamlet" at the Hilberry where 1984-85 productions will include the pre-Broadway run of Stephen Taylor's new "Appear and Show Cause," debuting Oct. 5.

Hilberry also will offer Noel Coward's "Blithe Spirit" (beginning Oct. 26), Shakespeare's "Twelfth Night" (Dec. 7), Thornton Wilder's "Our Town" (Jan. 25), Sheridan's "The Rivals" (Feb. 1), Tennessee

Williams' "A Streetcar Name Desire" (Mar. 8) and "Hotel Paradiso" by Georges Feydeau and Maurice Desvallieres (Apr. 12).

Hilberry productions play in rotating repertory, usually with three plays in production at any given time.

The Bonstelle opens Oct. 19 with "Once in a Lifetime" by Moss Hart and George S. Kaufman. This will be followed on Dec. 7 by a new version of Charles Dickens' "Christmas Carol" by WSU Professor Robert Emmett McGill, who will also direct.

The Bonstelle's new play, "Penny Candy" by Laurence Blaine, a murder mystery set in Detroit, begins Jan. 25. "Romeo and Juliet" opens Mar. 1, and the Bonstelle season will close with Paul Giovanni's hit version of a Sherlock Holmes mystery, "The Crucifer of Blood," bowing Apr. 26.

Two productions are scheduled as undergraduate scholarship benefits at the Studio Theatre, downstairs at the Hilberry. "Portraits in Black," two one-act plays by black American playwrights, opens Nov. 8. Aristophanes' rowdy comedy "Lysistrata" takes the Studio stage Jan. 31.

The Hilberry season will be performed by the graduate repertory company in residence at Wayne State. Bonstelle and Studio productions are performed primarily by undergraduate students. Brochures with complete schedule and ticket information will be available in September, and may be requested by calling the box office, 577-2972.

Open historic Guard House

Cell doors will clang and locks turn when Historic Fort Wayne's Spanish-American War Guard House is officially opened to the public this Sunday, Aug. 19, at 3 p.m. The quaint Victorian guard house, built in 1889, once housed soldiers awaiting court martial, or already convicted and serving time.

The gas-lit interior, complete with bunks, rifle racks and spittoons, was restored with grants and gifts from The Michigan History Division, the City of Detroit and American Airlines.

The opening, coinciding with the fort's first annual artillery show, will feature an authentic guard mount ceremony and official ribbon cutting. Fort Wayne is located on West Jefferson Avenue at the foot of Livernois, two blocks south of I-75.

Exhibits and a firing demonstration of the famous Gatling Gun.

The Revolutionary War British Cannon recently raised from the Detroit River will be on display for the first time.

The weekend events begin at 1 p.m. Additional information may be obtained by calling 297-9360 or 297-9364. Fort Wayne is located on West Jefferson at the foot of Livernois, two blocks south of I-75.

Pointers tee off today

For the first time, red blazers will be awarded to the winning foursome in Burning Tree Golf and Country Club's Annual Ladies' Invitational, according to Mrs. Earl Nelson, raffle ticket chairman.

The tourney runs today and tomorrow, Aug. 16 and 17. Breakfast will be served at 8 a.m. each morning, and a luncheon will follow each day's play.

Among Pointers participating are the Mesdames William Briscoe, Arthur Enzmann, Emma Farwig, John Kendall, Stanley Kenn, Georgina LaChapelle, John Moh-nach, Minnard Mumaw, Richard Redmond, Harriet Ulbrick, Henry Van Eckoute, Henry Velasquez and Richard Neale.

Cantata Academy to hold auditions

The Cantata Academy of Metropolitan Detroit, Frederick Bellinger, music director, will hold vocal auditions for the 1984-85 season Saturday, Aug. 25, from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. Audition appointments may be made and further information obtained by calling 271-8946 or 357-0360.

The independent concert choir of 40 voices, recently returned from its sixth tour of Europe, has presented professional vocal programs in the metropolitan area since 1961.

Preview Historical Museum programs

Instructors will demonstrate skills, including stained glass and porcelain doll making, that can be learned in upcoming Detroit Historical Museum workshops on Saturday, Aug. 18, from 1 to 3 p.m. at the museum, located on Woodward Avenue at Kirby Street in Detroit's University/Cultural Center and open from 9:30 a.m. to 5 p.m. Wednesday through Sunday. Admission to the museum is by voluntary donation. The demonstrations, suitable for all ages, are free.

Harvest time in Michigan

Michigan food shoppers will find this August to be one of the most economical months of the year. A wide selection of seasonal state-produced fruits and vegetables is coming to market, beef and pork prices are relatively low, poultry prices are steady and egg prices are substantially lower than they were several months ago.

August means blueberries and peaches to many shoppers. Both crops look good this year, and the carry-over of frozen blueberries is large — so look for more blueberries to be marketed fresh this season. Plan to make volume blueberry purchases during early August, when peak supplies are forecast.

Peach production for the United States is forecast at 2.50 billion pounds, a 40 percent increase over last year's crop. Forty-five million pounds of that crop, a 10-million-pound increase over the state crop a year ago, will be from Michigan.

Peach harvest started in late July, but no real volume occurs until the Garnet Beauty ripens, about Aug. 10. A number of varieties which ripen at different times in various locations around the state lengthen the peach season to mid-September. Peak season for the state crop will occur Aug. 15 to 29, when the popular Red Haven variety is available.

Late summer apples make their debut near the end of August. Paulared (Paula Red) is a relatively new Michigan variety which has received rave reviews.

Pointer of Interest

By Janet Mueller

They're men and women, 56 volunteers from 27 metropolitan area communities last school year. They've been trained in art history and classroom teaching techniques. They're the team that takes the Detroit Institute of Arts into fourth, fifth and sixth grade public, private and parochial school classrooms throughout the metropolitan area, giving 50 minute presentations on such subjects as American, Ancient, African, Native American, Asian and Modern Art.

They're the DIA's Art to the Schools volunteers, and last school year they gave 1,181 art talks to 36,407 children in 61 different communities.

They're people like Ellen Kerfoot, who "saw a little notice in the Grosse Pointe News" a few years back, and decided to check it out.

Ellen, mother of five, married to an M.D. (Dr. Edward Kerfoot), is a Registered Nurse. "I'm not working right now," she says — meaning at her profession. No mother of five could be said to be not working. But she's not tied down to a this-hour-to-that-hour working schedule, which means she can juggle her time: find time for some of the things she never had time for before.

Like Art to the Schools. "It appealed to me because with my background, I felt that this part of my education (art and art history) had been neglected." The notice in the News read: "A background in art is not necessary. All one needs is a desire to learn."

ELLEN LEARNED. Art to the Schools' training is thorough and challenging. It is essentially the same training as that given to volunteers working toward qualification as museum Docents, and Art to the Schools volunteers, once in the program, are also qualified as Docents.

Ellen Kerfoot has been in the Art to the Schools program three years now, and she'll be back again this fall. Her presentation focuses on Native American (Indian) Art. She is committed, like all Art to the Schools volunteers, to give her program one day per week. Sometimes, upon request she gives it more than one.

The DIA's Art to the Schools program is free of charge to the schools. This is especially important today, as many schools no longer have funds available for bus trips to the museum. Art to the Schools presentations are designed as dialogues between the students and the speaker. Slides and reproduction "touchables" of DIA art are part of each presentation, utilized by every Art to the Schools volunteer.

They're people like Inge Vincent, who read about Art to the Schools five years ago in the Grosse Pointe News. Inge is married to George C. Vincent; between the two of them, they have three grown children.

Inge's background includes work as a legal secretary. She still teaches German every Saturday in the German Saturday School. "It's one of the things I enjoy doing, and now I only do the things I enjoy doing." She enjoys working with young people. That, initially, is why Art to the Schools appealed to her.

INGE GIVES Art to the Schools' Introduction talk, and she emphasizes that it is an Introduction to Art rather than to the Detroit Institute of Arts. "I introduce the children to the basics of art, to the elements of line, texture, color, to materials and techniques."

She augments the museum "touchables" with her own pieces — a smooth tile, a textured brocade — to illustrate her points. She gave her first Art to the Schools talk at Barnes School in December of 1981, and has kept the blue folder of student "thank-yous" she received after that talk, adding to it over the years.

Like all Art to the Schools volunteers, Inge, after training, wrote her own program, selecting her own slides and "touchables" from the museum's collection, developing her own theme. Staying, of course, within the area in which she had been trained.

The volunteers are trained in the specific area on which they will speak. They may, after two years, request to be trained in an additional area.

"I loved the training," says Arlene (Mrs. John D.) Lewis, who has just completed it. She goes out on her first Art to the Schools assignments this fall. Her topic is American Art.

ARLENE IS a former high school teacher, mother of three small children. She's the only one of the three pictured above who did NOT discover Art to the Schools through an article in the Grosse Pointe News. (Since she IS and Art to the Schools article in the Grosse Pointe News, we lay claim to her too, however.)

Arlene discovered Art to the Schools at the Detroit Institute of Arts, at a lecture given by Michael Farrell. "Several of the women I met there were in the Art to the Schools program. I became interested in it because it offered something my education hadn't covered."

She's looking forward to her new commitment, anxious to begin, as Inge and Arlene are anxious to begin again. All over the metropolitan area, Art to the School volunteers are gearing up for a new school year. With enthusiasm.

They're men and women, young adults to senior citizens, dedicated to introducing children to the exciting world of people, places and things found in the Detroit Institute of Arts. They're people like you.

Art to the Schools fall training starts in September. Anyone interested is invited to contact Janice Jones, Education Department, Detroit Institute of Arts, 833-7883, between 9 a.m. and 5 p.m. weekdays for an interview.

16 thin slices of sweet onion
8 slices bacon

Wash potatoes and slice almost through in several places. Put slices of onion in each slit. Wrap bacon slices around potato, using a toothpick to anchor. Wrap in foil and bake or grill until potatoes are well-done. Makes 8 servings.
Size of potatoes precludes accurate calorie count per serving.
Cholesterol about 15 mgs.

SUPERLATIVE ONIONS
These quick and easy onions can be prepared early in the day for evening cooking.

Remove any dry skin and stem. Working from the top, core onions generously, leaving a cavity about 1-inch across and almost-to-the-bottom deep. Lightly salt and pepper the cavity; then fill with unsalted margarine. Wrap each onion in foil, making a tight twist at the top. Cook in closed grill about 1 1/2 hours over steady, medium heat. Open foil about 10 minutes before serving and leave on grill for a wonderful, smoky flavor.

Low in calories and cholesterol free.

CURRIED CORN
6 ears very fresh corn
1/4 cup unsalted margarine
1/4 to 1/2 tsp. curry powder
Shuck and remove silk from corn. Steam until tender. While corn is cooking, cream together margarine and curry powder. Cut corn from cob and toss with margarine mixture. If preferred, use mixture to spread on corn so it may be eaten from cob. Makes 6 servings.
Calories per serving about 100.
Cholesterol 0.

The Scoundrels' next event will be a picnic next Thursday, Aug. 23 (Friday, Aug. 24, if it rains on Thursday), at the Shores Park.

Sports Week

By Peggy O'Connell

It's me, back from vacation and happy to be here.

Hey, it's not that I'm a slave to work. Heck no. I'm just glad to be back at work covering sports and getting rid of all those nosy sports spies I inadvertently sicked on myself a couple of weeks back.

See, before I left for vacation, I mentioned in a column that I wanted to stay as far away from sports as I could. So, for the next two weeks, I had dozens of junior-'007's following me around to make sure that I didn't take a peek at a sports section, sports telecast or ball game.

But I fooled them all and, among other things, kept track of the Tigers, watched some of the Olympics and read up a little on what the Grosse Pointe locals were doing in my absence.

The Olympics. I only watched about half of them, but I was able to come up with a list of what I thought were the highlights and lowlights of the event.

The Good: the opening ceremonies, gymnast Mary Lou Retton's smile, Rafer Johnson lighting the Olympic flame and looking like the prototype of the American athlete, the men's gymnastics team winning a gold medal, being able to watch Olympic coverage on both ABC and Canada's CBC, watching Ireland squeak into the medal totals by winning one medal in the Games' final event, having sports to watch on TV at 2 a.m., and South High graduate Dave Grylls being part of the U.S. men's team pursuit foursome which won a silver medal.

The Bad: ABC-TV bleeding red, white and blue for 50 minutes of every hour of its 180 hours of coverage. Wasn't any other country in the Games, ABC? Plus, 40 million reports on what other countries thought of the U.S., Howard Cosell's bad-mouthing of Detroit's Kronk Gym, not enough live swimming, too much basketball.

The Ridiculous: the announcers, plain and simple. It was like the networks sent home all the professional announcers and let kids play with the microphones. But it was sure funny.

If they gave out gold medals for goofs, ABC telecasters would have gone home with broken necks from all their prize-winning blunders. For example:

Jim Lampley, who reported that the atmosphere at the start of the men's marathon was "strangely boosterish." Strangely boosterish, Jim?

And Jim McKay, who couldn't seem to get out a complete sentence without stuttering. Or daytime anchor Kathleen Sullivan, who seemed to never tire of doing her Elmer Fudd imitation for the viewers. And was anybody besides me annoyed by Sullivan's wardrobe choices for the Games? The entire first week, she wore blue and white angora sweaters, all the while telling us that it was 88 degrees and humid in L.A. Sure, in L.A. it was hot, but Sullivan was cool and comfortable high atop Mt. Schreerchlab in central Yugoslavia, which is what she was dressed for. Hey, Kathy, these were the Summer Games, you know, as in HOT?

Anyway, I vacationed in Boston, which is nowhere near Los Angeles, just in case those purveyors of useless information, Jim McKay and Kathleen Sullivan, want to know. So I didn't get in on all the Olympic hoopla. But I do have a souvenir of the Games: an authentic, three-color, professional reporter's notebook sent to the News from McDonald's, an official sponsor of the Olympics. Now all I need is a place to use it where I won't be embarrassed by the golden arches and the two-inch high words "Reporter's Notebook" which leap out from the front cover.

But even though I was in Boston, I never got any closer to Fenway Park than the freeway, so I can't be blamed for the Tigers losing three to the Red Sox in Boston last week. So there.

When I left in July, the home team was 11½ games in front and now, two weeks later, that's shrunk to a mere nine games. That one's not my fault either, since I was the one who recently predicted that the Tigers would lose more than they would win in July and now owe somebody a free lunch. Of course, I'd never predict that they would swoon in August and not July, right?

One more thing about the Tigers: here's hoping they'll miss Rusty Kuntz almost as much as Grosse Pointe (especially the classified advertising department of the G.P. News) does and bring him back in September.

While I'm busy not taking credit for things, let me also not take credit for a couple of nice things that happened around town recently.

Like South High football coach Russ Hepner and former Blue Devil John Mikesell bringing South's winning touch to the victorious East team in the annual Michigan high school football All-Star game in Lansing on Aug. 4.

Or the Farms-City 15-year-old Babe Ruth squad which won the state title and finished fourth out of eight teams in the regional tournament.

Or Al Devine, who was kind enough to write a guest column for me while I was on vacation.

But enough of this nice stuff, it's getting strangely boosterish around here, to coin a phrase.

Babe Ruth

Farms-City state champs fare well in regionals

The recently crowned Babe Ruth League 15 year-old state championship team from Grosse Pointe Farms-City became the Michigan representative at the Ohio Valley Regional Tournament held in Superior, Wisconsin Aug. 3 through 9.

The Pointers returned with many pleasant experiences and a respectable fourth place finish in the eight team, double-elimination tournament. After losing the opening game to Downers Grove, Ill., 3-1, Grosse Pointe bounced back to beat Fairfield, Ohio, 6-2 and Superior, Wisconsin, 11-8, before being eliminated 4-3 in a rematch with tough Downers Grove.

Farms-City manager John Hoben said the team "continued to play with poise and confidence that was so evident when it won the state tournament. Each game provided different heroes... the players were up against strong competition from all teams in the tournament, and with a couple of breaks could have easily won all the games we played."

Other representatives in the Tournament were St. Albans, W. Va., Owensboro Ky., Fort Wayne, Ind., and Janesville, Wisc. The eventual winner of the tournament was Owensboro, which will advance to the Babe Ruth World Series in Niles, Mich., starting Aug. 18.

GAME ONE: vs. Downers Grove

Tournament jitters were at an all-time high as these two teams drew the opening game and along with it the opening day ceremonies, featuring the series' largest crowd and visiting dignitaries. Pitching was the highlight as both teams combined for only three hits. Rick Leonard of Grosse Pointe went into the last inning with a no-hitter and eight strike outs, but Downers Grove capitalized on its two hits to break a 1-1 tie and win 3-1. For Grosse Pointe, the only run was scored as Chris Krogh led off the fourth with a walk and came home on a sacrifice fly by Leonard.

GAME TWO: vs. Fairfield

Local officials considered Fairfield one of the pre-tournament favorites to win it all based on its strong showing as regional runners-up when they were 13 year-olds. However, the poised Grosse Pointe team didn't let any of this bother them as it produced eight hits and received strong pitching from Scott Tucker and Brady Kraushaar in holding Fairfield to only three hits, while eliminating Fairfield, 6-2.

The bottom of the order, Tim Nugent and Cliff Grabowski, each scored two runs, while Grabowski had two bunt hits, reached base three times and provided a sacrifice. Nugent also reached base three times, once on a sharp single. A heavy rain halted play in the fifth inning with Grosse Pointe leading 4-2 and when play resumed three hours later, the Farms-City increased the lead to 6-2, where it stayed thanks to relief pitcher Kraushaar. He came on in relief of winning pitcher Scott Tucker after the rain delay to retire the last nine Fairfield batters in order for the save. Jason Colegrove provided two hits including a long home run and three RBI to pace the winners.

GAME THREE: vs. Superior

This game meant either the host team with its 2,000 screaming and supportive fans or the visitors from Grosse Pointe would be eliminated from the tournament. The first three innings saw an old-fashioned hitters shootout and the last four, a real pitchers' battle. Starting pitcher Mark Belanger, who specializes in the fastball, found his pitches to the liking of Superior as they scored eight runs in 2½ innings. Relief pitcher John Joliet, who specializes in slow curves and getting batters off balance, was at his best allowing no runs in 4½ innings of relief.

Grosse Pointe came to bat in the first trailing 3-0, but Dave Fellows and Jim Dara scored on a Tom Fellows' single, while Belanger and Leonard followed with run-scoring singles of their own to make it 5-3, Grosse Pointe. Batting in the third inning, Grosse Pointe was again behind 6-5, but came back as Chris Krogh and Jim Dara each scored on infield grounders to take a 7-6 lead.

After Superior scored two more in the third to take a 8-7 lead, Joliet came in to shut the door for the rest of the game on Superior. In the fourth inning, Tom Fellows singled and rode home on Belanger's double to tie the score at 8-8 and set the stage for a real pitchers' duel. It looked like one run would be tough to come by as Grosse Pointe batted in the bottom of the seventh. Joliet walked to lead off and Dave Fellows beat out a bunt. With one out and the hour of midnight fast approaching, Jason Colegrove stepped up and hit a two-strike pitch far over the leftfield fence to give Grosse Pointe an 11-8 win, set the stage for a wild home plate welcome for Colegrove and provide still another game in the regional tournament.

GAME FOUR: vs. Downers Grove

After losing to Owensboro, the Downers Grove team joined Grosse Pointe in the losers' bracket rematch for both teams. Downers Grove started out in the first with a single and double for a 1-0 lead. Grosse Pointe took a 3-1 lead in the fourth as Dave Fellows and Dara hits provided the runs. However, fielding problems and one timely Downers Grove hit produced a 4-3 Downers Grove lead after four innings. Grosse Pointe inserted pinch runner Jeff LeFebvre in the sixth and he promptly stole second for the third time in the tournament as a pinch runner, but was stranded there and the 4-3 score held up as the Grosse Pointe team was eliminated. Kraushaar only allowed four hits and eight baserunners while going the distance and striking out seven in a very strong performance for the Grosse Pointe team.

The players spent eight days together living in local homes, met players from seven different states, played for the first time under the lights and even were "asked to sign autographs by local kids," said Hoben, summarizing the group's experience.

Team members included Jeff LeFebvre, Tim Nugent, John Joliet, Mark Belanger, Brady Kraushaar, Tom and Dave Fellows, Andre Bielski, Alex Dillon, Jim Dara, Chris Krough, Jason Colegrove, Rick Leonard, Scott Tucker and Cliff Grabowski, plus Batboy Gary Campbell, Coaches Mike Johnson, Phil Dara and Jeff VonSchwarz and Manager John Hoben.

Fall sports practice. It's in full swing in Grosse Pointe and that means that it's nearly time for the News' annual fall sports preview, coming soon on these pages.

10 Kilometer title theirs

The Motor City Striders Masters' walking team composed of Norman Browne, Jeanne Bocci and Frank Soby, captured the National 10 Kilometer team title, at the National Championship race walk competition held in Niagara Falls, on July 14.

Browne, competing in his first championship, completed the distance in 54:03. Bocci, who placed first in the Women's Masters and fifth in the Open division, clocked 54:17. Soby's time was 56:24 and gave him a second team title. His first was in 1981 with team members Jerry Bocci and Gene Hawthorne, both of Grosse Pointe.

The total time for the trio was 2 hours 44 minutes 44 seconds, an impressive effort besting the New York City Masters team.

The race was held on a 2.5 Km.

closed loop of the Robert Moses Parkway adjacent to the Niagara River. The race featured more than 150 walkers from all parts of the United States and Canada. Temperatures soared to 87 degrees during the competition. The race also featured the appearance of members of the Australian and Canadian Olympic teams.

Bocci was a member of a Women's Masters' team composed of Marilyn Morehead and Pauline Alexander, both of Detroit. This Motor City Striders team fared well in the competition and took the Women's Masters National Team Championship. Morehead's efforts placed her in second place and coupled with Alexander's ninth place finish, swept the field besting teams from New York and Michigan.

Nutritional needs make a difference to athletes

Dr. Irving Glick, Chairman of the Sportsmedicine Committee for the United States Tennis Association has listed 10 nutrition tips in plain, simple terms to provide readers with essential dietary guidelines during the hot humid days of summer.

While Dr. Glick does recommend wearing a hat and light colored clothing, stretching prior to playing and bringing a container of cold water, he believes these aren't the only precautions one can undertake to counter the effects of the sun.

- Maintain a balanced diet. A healthy body is fueled by a proper balance of proteins, carbohydrates, fats, vitamins and minerals.

- Consume plenty of carbohydrates. Carbohydrates, such as fruit, vegetables and whole grain breads, are easily and quickly digested to provide the additional energy which an athlete needs for peak performance.

- Maintain adequate water and mineral levels in the body. Dehydration and cramping may be effectively prevented by consuming one to two cups of water prior to play and by taking short water breaks on a hot summer's afternoon.

- Take time to eat breakfast. Research studies have proven conclusively that both performance and concentration decline without fresh fuel in the morning. Stay clear of caffeine, as it acts only as a stimulant.

- Avoid sugar. Refined white sugar merely raises the insulin level in the blood for a short period of time. An initial burst of energy is followed by a "rebound effect" with its accompanying fatigue and impaired coordination.

- Do not take salt tablets. A common misconception is that perspiration depletes the body of its necessary sodium. Americans consume more than enough salt in an ordinary, balanced diet.

- Have a banana. Bananas are a wonderful source of carbohydrate energy as they are 95 percent water, and provide a healthy supply of both potassium and magnesium.

- Stay away from all that protein. Too much protein taxes the kidneys and while aiding in both tissue repair and muscle growth, does not fuel the body for exercise.

- Enjoy the pleasure of pasta. Pasta does not produce fat, as most people believe; carbohydrates are stored in the muscles as glycogen, which fuels the body much like high octane gas does a racing car engine.

- Count your calories. Learning to make use of an inexpensive calorie counter will help you to fuel yourself with just enough energy to meet your particular needs as an active tennis player.

Michigan's top bass fishing lakes revealed

To catch a trophy bass, an angler must first choose a top lake, according to Tom Huggler, who has pinpointed Michigan's 10 top bass fishing lakes for the Michigan United Conservation Clubs.

But trying to determine the 10 best bass lakes in the state is like trying to douse a barn fire with a garden hose. Even bringing up the subject with two anglers can provoke an argument equally as hot.

To illustrate the problem, Huggler says that 31 of the biggest large-mouths caught in Michigan in the past five years have come from 29 different locations. The 25 heaviest smallmouths taken during the same period were caught in 22 different lakes.

Writing for Michigan Out-of-Doors, Huggler sets out his ground rules for choosing spots. They include lakes with a big population of bass 12 inches or longer, a chance to bust a real "lunker," and public access. He also considers only inland lakes generally underfished, large enough to take added pressure and yet small enough to accommodate anglers with small boats.

Here's a short summation of his conclusions:

Heading first to the Upper Peninsula, Huggler says the U.P. is gifted with several outstanding smallmouth lakes, possibly the best one being the Sylvania Tract's Deer Island Lake in Gogebic County. Test nettings by the Department of Natural Resources turned up 112 smallmouths that averaged 14.7 inches. Access to Deer Island is by canoe or light cartopper

For largemouth bass in the U.P., he suggests Twin Lake in Schoolcraft County. Bass Lake in Marquette County.

In southwestern Michigan, Huggler recommends Guil Lake for the best smallmouth bass and the best largemouth fishing is attributed to Mono in Muskegon County.

Closer to home, southeastern Michigan anglers should head to Cass Lake in Oakland County for smallmouths, Huggler said. And, for largemouths, his choice is Belleville Lake in Wayne county.

Tips for bikers entering Superride

Veteran bicyclist Nick Feldman, a fixture at numerous March of Dimes events, offers the following biking tips to persons planning to enter Superride '84, a 75 kilometer bike-a-thon again taking place this year at Belle Isle on Saturday, Sept. 8.

- Have your bicycle checked by an expert. Make sure your tires are properly inflated and that your brakes work. Different tires take different pressure.

- Stay in medium gear through the bike-a-thon.
- Take frequent rests.

- Do not swerve left or right. That way, you won't be a hazard to persons attempting to pass you.

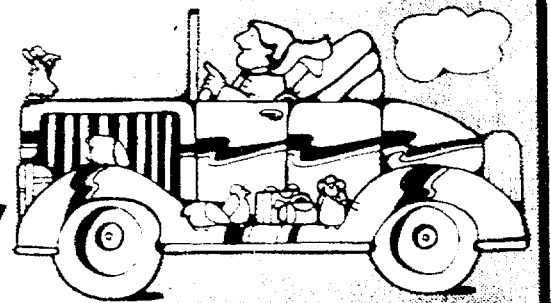

- Train a bit prior to the bike-a-thon. You'll then be in the best possible shape to go the entire distance.

- Be alert, look ahead and avoid potholes.

Superride '84 will also take place at Hines Park on Saturday, Sept. 15 and at Grosse Ile and Stoney Creek Metropark on Saturday, Sept. 22.

To sign up for Superride '84, call the March of Dimes hotline at 423-3232.
