Snarky awards

Ah, 'tis the end of the year and time to borrow a page from Esquire magazine and bestow a few awards earned over the past year.

Some are bitter, some are sweet, but they're all well-earned. Read on and see if you agree.

The "If the Pigeons Smoke Kools and Eat Coney Islands, It Must Be Detroit" award to Mayor Coleman Young for blaming the 50-plus schoolgirl rapes, 200 plus juvenile shootings, 400 plus Devil's Night fires, tens of thousands plus World Series riot, million dollar plus Beckham-Bowers sludge scandal and multi-million dollar plus People Move fiasco on, you guessed it — the media and/or suburban white folks.

If it rains on Rosa Parks' birthday, you can count on Mayor Young to call a press conference and blame a white man somewhere. He's the only politician in America who rides around in a limo wearing a big button reading, "Blame Whitey."

And Detroit is the only place he could get away with it.

"Sleazeball of the Year" ended in a tie for 1984, with winners John (cocaine is as good as gold) DeLorean and Bob (flesh is as good as gold) Guccione splitting the award.

The "Denny McLain, Marvin Barnes, John Belushie I Had It All and Blew It" award to Vanessa Williams.

"Half an Award" award to Hugh Hefner for turning down Vanessa Williams' photos when they were originally offered to Playboy.

The "Ward, I'm worried about the Bubba" award to Bubba Helms' mother. Bubba, as you may recall, was the potbellied high school dropout who had his photo taken holding a pennant in front of a burning car after the Tigers clinched the World Series.

In a later Free Press interview, Bubba dimly recalled drinking a fifth of liquor, smoking a "few bad ones," trashing some property, climbing fences then waking up face down in the mud on the front lawn of his home. He didn't recall posing for the photo which appeared in papers throughout the world.

Asked what she thought of her son, Mrs. Helms' reply was something like, "Bubba, he's a pistol — ain't he?"

The "Sleazeball of the Year Part II with Dollar-Sign Cluster" award to those selfless lawyers who flew to India to offer their services to the victims in Bhopal after poison gas killed 2,500. Disaster always brings out the best in some professions.

The "For Shame, For Shame" award to the Milwaukee Common Council for voting 8-7 to deny pension rights to the widow of a Milwaukee cop who had the temerity to die of leukemia two weeks before his pension went into effect. So what if he spent 20 years on the force and left a wife and kids. A contract is a contract — right?

This is shared to a lesser degree by the Brighton, Mi. postmaster for firing a 29-year employee who delivered his own 500 plus Christmas cards to the persons on his route. The problem is he didn't place stamps on the cards.

Possibly because of the firing, the postman ended up in the hospital with a suspected heart attack. If the ruling isn't reversed, it's goodbye job and so long, pension. Maybe some of the Schools look back at 1984 as year of change

By Mike Andrzejczyk

There isn't much else that could have happened to the Grosse Pointe Public School System in 1984.

It was the year of School Wars — the unsuccessful attempt to recall three board members for their part in ordering the closing of Barnes Elementary School and moving sixth-graders to the middle schools.

It was the year that saw three men administer the public school system and the choice of a fourth. Dr. Kenneth Brummel left the superintendent's post in July for a job in California and was succeeded by Deputy Superintendent Dr. James Hoeh. After Hoeh's tragic death, South principal Dr. Joseph Spagnoli was named interim superintendent. He will remain in the position until Dr. John Whritner takes the position in April 1985.

It was the year the first extension of a teachers' contract was negotiated between the administration and the union. It was also the year of massive shifts in principals among the elementary and middle schools, and the retirement of 31 teachers and seven administrators under a special bonus offer.

It was, according to school board President Joan Hanpeter, a year of change for the school system.

It was also a year of progress for the system, she said, adding 1984 was punctuated with "peaks and bumps."

One of the nasty bumps was the attempt to recall three board of education members, Mrs. Hanpeter said, but she and Spagnoli agree the effects of the often-bitter campaign have faded.

"I think the school system has reunited in a common purpose . . . to have the best school system," Spagnoli said. While some people haven't accepted the closing of Barnes and the moving of sixth-graders into the middle school, parents appear to be very satisfied with the smooth transition, he added.

One reason parents may be satisfied is because their kids appear to be satisfied, Spagnoli said. Sixth-graders see the chance to experience more and learn more in middle schools, he added.

Aiding the transition was the caliber of teachers who were moved into the middle schools from the elementary schools who helped strengthen the programs there, Mrs. Hanpeter said.

There were a variety of parental fears about the social and educational aspects of moving the sixth-graders into the middle schools, she said and added: "Those fears haven't materialized."

The recall had positive aspects, Mrs. Hanpeter said. It put to rest the notion that the board couldn't take the pressure of having to close a school and it also rallied the community behind the system to defeat the recall, she added.

The assertion that the board has become involved in the administration of the system is baseless, Mrs. Hanpeter said. "As a policy-making board, we say what should be taught. We have never said how it should be taught," she added, noting that sometimes the board was forced to respond to emergency situations, but it doesn't encroach on the administration of the schools.

"There were situations where it was absolutely essential for the board to make decisions rapidly," Spagnoli said. They were necessary to maintain some continuity in the system, he added.

Another accomplishment has been the institution of the seven-period day at the high schools, Spagnoli said. There are still some modifications that need to be made, he said.

Some students who carried five classes under the six-period schedule find themselves carrying seven classes and their grades are slipping slightly. A mid-term evaluation is planned to decide what can be done to make the program work smoothly, Spagnoli said.

"Some modifications will have to be made, but I wouldn't say, 'Let's go back to the six-period day,'" he added.

With the retirement of a number of administrative personnel at the end of last school year, the system was able to consolidate a number of positions in order to save money, Mrs. Hanpeter said. The administrative staff has been stretched thin by the retirements and demands of extra positions, she added.

The retirements of administrators and teachers were bittersweet, Mrs. Hanpeter said. While the system lost a number of able people, there was a new enthusiasm brought in by newly hired teachers, she added.

The number of teaching retirements meant the hiring of new teachers, totaling about 10 percent of the professional staff, Spagnoli said. Math and science teachers came with high qualifications, he added, noting he was surprised at the number and quality of the applicants for the positions.

The board didn't establish new goals for the 1984-85 school year, but was able to close out many of the carry-overs from the previous school year, including the recent elementary education recommendations, Mrs. Hanpeter said.

Two top items for 1985 are next year's school budget and the arrival of the new superintendent in April, Spagnoli and Mrs. Hanpeter said. The budget process has already begun and Dr. Whritner, while not involved in its formulation, will certainly have some input into it, Spagnoli said. Also coming in the next couple of months will be a new

Have snow, will giggle

Ride 'em if you got 'em. This was the scene last week near the Farms water filtration plant on Moross Road as about a dozen youngsters and their parents enjoyed the area's first significant snowfall. Spirits were high and smiles were wide as the kids did their best to recreate the bobsled run of the 1984 Olympics. But those smiles may fade soon, since Grosse Pointe's schoolchildren are due back in the classroom on Monday, Jan. 7. Until then, let it snow!

Park, City review past, look to future

By Harriet Nolan

If resolving to lose 10 pounds or to quit smoking proves too hard a task, try tackling something new. Pick a public safety director for the Park or the four lucky holders of liquor licenses in the City.

These are the kind of dreams (and nightmares) city managers are made of, and like anyone else who rings in the New Year, they take stock of past accomplishments and gear up for the future.

"We resurfaced about 12 miles of streets in 1984 and have 12 more miles to go," says Grosse Pointe Park City Manager John Crawford. "We constructed a municipal parking lot and the first phase of a four-year street improvement plan on Mack Avenue."

A lot has been going on in the 2.1 square mile city, according to Crawford. Bon Secours Hospital completed a showplace outpatient medical building on Kercheval. Two hundred and fifty trees were planted while others received yearly doses of medicine to protect against Dutch elm disease. Pride and enthusiasm of local businesses is evident.

"It's been a highly productive year in terms of citizen input, cooperation and participation with council and the administration on evaluating programs brought before the community," he said.

Some of these include studying public safety (combining police and fire departments) to learn whether or not it would improve efficiency and save taxpayer money.

The results of that study are due this month. According to Park councilmen Mark Valente III and John Prost, the committee charged with studying the plan is in favor of implementing it.

The Jefferson Avenue Street Improvement Program is under way. A public meeting to discuss the architectural plans to install greenbelts and trees and to create a boulevard on Jefferson was held recently. While citizen response indicates the need to go back to the drawing board, Crawford is satisfied that initial plans for improvements have been started.

A Grosse Pointe Park Foundation was established to solicit funds. The hope is that gifts and money from citizens and businesses can be used to purchase trees, more highway lighting, a new bath house, a tennis court and even provide prize money for sailing and fishing events.

"So far, about 20 contributions have been received," says Crawford. "We've also been able to hold the line on taxes, resolve a labor contract with the firefighters and negotiate a three-year contract with clerical and department of public works employees."

Besides making sure these projects continue, the administration has to deal with numerous requests from residents who want streets closed to Mack Avenue traffic.

As a result, a committee has been appointed to conduct traffic studies and then weigh the results against the welfare of the whole community.

Down the road a bit, Grosse Pointe City Manager Thomas Kressbach can survey his one-square-mile responsibility.

"We spent about $120,000 on street resurfacings," says Kressbach. "The intersection at St. Clair and Mack avenues was widened and renovation on the jail, police and fire department work areas scheduled to be finished this month cost $180,000. Also, underground circuitry has been installed behind Dammon Hardware and Hickey's."

A study done last year, with the cooperation of Village merchants, to get ideas, costs and strategies to keep the area competitive will be developed this year.

Some businesses including Revco, Curtis Mathes, Village Cleaners, Tresses Hair Studio, The Willow Tree, and offices on St. Clair are already being updated at owner expense, says Kressbach.

Ellwort. Playfield got attention when the City, Babe Ruth and Little Leagues shared the cost to improve its diamonds, according to Kressbach. The Grosse Pointe Board of Education shared the cost with the leagues and City to maintain the junior varsity diamond.

An ordinance was adopted regulating satellite dish antennas, and the issue of liquor, first raised in 1983, was put to rest last November.

Throughout the year, petitioners worked to get the question put on the ballot while council studied the consequences of approving licenses to sell liquor by the glass.

At the November election 1,877 of the City's 4,829 voters decided to end a 50-year ban on liquor. Now council has to make more hard decisions when it decides who gets any or all of the four available licenses.

New projects for 1985, according to Kressbach, include having sewers in the older section of town cleaned, a computer system to process crime reports for state police and FBI requirements in operation, and a foundation program developed.

"We've been extremely busy the past year and the city, council and staff really worked hard," he says. "We're looking forward to a very good year."

It was a good year, official says

Woods upgrades roads, sewers

By Pat Paholsky

It should come as no surprise that Councilwoman Jean Rice is an enthusiastic booster of Grosse Pointe Woods. She chairs the Council Public Relations Committee, a job that suits her well.

Asked to evaluate the city's programs of the past year and to list the highlights, she responded quickly, accentuating the positive.

"We had over $800,000 worth of infrastructure repair this year," she said. "All over the country, you read of things going to pot. Well, we started about six or seven years ago and have been updating our whole city, repairing sewers that are 60 years old and repaving streets from the ground up."

Mrs. Rice said the Department of Public Safety is preparing to computerize all of its records.

"We're really looking forward to getting into that," she said. "It will help incredibly."

She noted that the Woods is the only city in the Pointes that offers advanced life support with its emergency medical service. Requests for the service were up 22 percent, she said.

"Accidents are down. We receive an award for excellence for being without a pedestrian death since 1957 and for having no pedestrian injuries for four years," she said.

"Fires are down 36 percent," she continued. "I asked the director why and he felt it was attributed to property maintenance standards. As the homes are sold, inspections updating the wiring have a great deal to do with that."

Police assistance to the public is up 300 percent, she said, which includes being locked out of the house and complaints regarding animals.

The senior citizen commission, which Mrs. Rice describes as her bailiwick, has delivered 3,000 packets to most of the senior citizens in the Woods, informing them of services available to them.

"Our taxicab program has been well received and it's a very positive program," she said, explaining that the state will pay any fare up to $3 for a senior citizen, handicapped or impaired person.

"That means they can go to Eastland, a hospital, practically anywhere in the Woods for $3. It makes the people very mobile."

She cited the improvements on Mack Avenue, including rebuilding, facade work, upgrading of sidewalks, and planting of trees.

"This continual upgrading has gone on this year, last year, and will go on next year," she said.

Mrs. Rice says that the city will be completely reforested within three to five years, according to the Tree Commission. The commission was formed in response to the damage wrought by Dutch elm disease.

"The citizens, through their own efforts and through our tree sales, have done much of the reforestation," she said.

She described the reinstatement of the fireworks display as "a very, very positive thing and really community-spirited."

Mrs. Rice said some of the trouble spots ahead for the city include parking problems and the widening of the old Eight Mile Road bridge.

"The bridge causes us incredible traffic problems and something has to be done," she said. "Once you do something, however, it impacts on another area. The problem is not solved by doing one thing."

The Woods is the largest of the Grosse Pointes with a population of 18,866 and a land area of 3.2 square miles.

Shores had a year of rebuilding

By Mike Andrzejczyk

You could say 1984 was a rebuilding year for the Shores. The village renovated its 67-year-old Albert Kahn-designed municipal building, revived the sidewalk repair program, replaced sewers and resurfaced streets.

And 1985 should bring more of the same, according to village Superintendent Michael Kenyon.

The completion of the municipal building renovation and the open house held in September were "probably the biggest things in the last 30 years" to happen in the Shores, Kenyon said.

Hundreds of people turned out at the open house to walk through the modern interior of the building. Representatives of state and federal governments also appeared, presenting flags that had flown over the state and U.S. capitols to village officials.

The renovation of the old municipal building, construction of the elevator tower and new entranceway and parking lot were financed by a $1.3 million voter-approved bond issue. The village budgeted its first debt retirement payment of $151,000 in its 1984-85 budget, approved in March and adopted in May.

Its $2.7 million budget contained money for the Lochmoor sewer project, which involved putting in separated storm and sanitary sewers. The sanitary sewer connects with the county interceptor that runs beneath Lakeshore Road, while the storm pipe empties rain water directly into the lake.

Separated storm and sanitary drains were recommended by civil engineers Hubbell, Roth and Clark, who recently completed a study of the village sewer system and its needs, Kenyon said. That study will set the tone and pace of the village's future sewer work, he added.

In 1985, Lakeshore Lane may be next in line for a new sewer, Kenyon said, adding the work would not be cheap. The Lochmoor project cost close to $250,000 and was partially financed with the village's budget stabilization fund.

In 1984, the Shores was able to revive a sidewalk repair program dormant since 1978 as well as resurface some of its streets. In the coming year, the village will be looking at the condition of its north end streets in hopes of resurfacing some.

Also last year, the Michigan Supreme Court denied an application for appeal of a lower court decision which granted the Edsel & Eleanor Ford House tax-exempt status for 1981 and 1982. The village may be forced to repay the taxes it collected in 1981 with interest, according to village attorney William Killebrew. The Ford House was granted tax-exempt status last year by the Shores because it met the criteria for a charitable institution.

His second full year as village superintendent wasn't as easy as the first, Kenyon said, adding, "if it's not one thing, it's another."

Grosse Pointe War Memorial
... as John Lake remembered it

Shortly before his death in 1984, John Lake wrote of his years as executive director of the Grosse Pointe War Memorial. For those who knew him, it tells the story in a neo-Victorian style they'll well remember — a little confusing at times, but still vintage John Lake. Others will find a nostalgic and useful contribution to the history of our community. These segments have been edited by Charles V. Hicks, but they retain Lake's original language, and they reflect the unique personality of the man who directed and developed the War Memorial Center in its first 30 years.

X. Furnishings and Treasures

(John Lake describes the furnishings of the War Memorial — and some problems attending it.)
Robert Hudson Tannahill, a great patron of the arts and a man who knew so much about furnishings, paintings, art work and art treasures, was a member of the Center's board of directors in the early days. He is responsible for obtaining items of great value to fill the rooms on the lower floor of Alger House. He selected only those things — and accepted as gifts only those things — which would fit into the Italian Renaissance setting of the Center. The beautiful tapestries that hang in the Great Hall, many of the paintings, the old sea chest with the date 1664 carved in it, the spice cabinet and innumerable other handsome objects were obtained by him.

Many, many fine gifts have been contributed. We have procured some marvelous rugs — the lovely runner that came from the Fisher family and a beautiful rug for the dining room.

Mr. Tannahill started a wonderful index file of the inventory of what was at the Center — all the silver pieces, the furnishings, paintings, etc. Unfortunately, there was time when a number of things began to disappear. Since then more secure arrangements have been made.

Meanwhile, a burglar alarm system was installed with an unbelievably loud bell of Lake's bed, along with a fire alarm gong and a flood warning bell. He waited for all three to go off at once, but it never happened.

There were, however, many false burglar alarms due to a window blowing open, a mouse running across the floor or someone forgetting to turn off the switch before entering. The police would arrive and check the exterior for breaking and entering and then, at Lake's invitation, would follow him through the house as he turned lights on. He often shivered in his PJ's with the officers with their guns behind and the unknown in front.

Academy begins campaign

The Grosse Pointe Academy has begun the Second Century Fund Capital Campaign.

Founded in 1885 originally as the Academy of the Sacred Heart, a boarding school for young women in kindergarten through high school, the Academy changed in 1969 to a coeducational day school for children age 2½ through grade eight. Still operating under the school's original charter, the Academy, which was declared a Michigan historical site in 1977, will celebrate its centennial in 1985.

In preparation for the centennial celebration, the board of trustees has announced the campaign to raise $3 million in two phases.

The objective of Phase I, to be completed in 1985, is to raise $2 million to begin restoration and preservation of the historic, century-old Lakeshore building for additional classroom space and for community use, and to fund the establishment of an endowment to support faculty salaries and student scholarships. Additionally, plans include expansion of Michigan's longest-established Montessori Early School to accommodate enrollment of more students.

The goal of Phase II is to raise an additional $1 million to complete the Phase I objectives.

Pointe resident Susan Gehrke O'Rourke, an alumna of the school and president of the board of trustees, and George A. Haggarty, vice president of the board and general chairman of the campaign, report that more than $1 million has already been raised from a limited number of donors. The Academy's board, faculty and staff, as well as a group of the school's parents, have worked since late spring to obtain this significant early support of the campaign.

Members of the campaign steering committee include: Mrs. Keith E. Crain, Mrs. Craig H. Curtiss, Sidney I. DuPont, Ph.D., Mrs. Edward S. Evans III, Mrs. Hans Gehrke, Jr., George A. Haggarty, Wayne C. Inman, Carol A. Kerr, William H. Leith, Mrs. F. Dennis McCarthy, James T. McMillan II, Mrs. Peter E. O'Rourke, Sister Catherine Owens, William C. Rands III, Mrs. Walter B. Robinson, S. MORE than just money

2½-month voyage

Benz settles back into routine

By Mike Andrzejczyk

The first semester of classes ended Friday and John Benz says he's still adjusting to being back to school. The 18-year-old South senior got back to school in October, about six weeks into the school year.

For 2½ months before that, he was sailing the Atlantic and visiting five countries as part of the crew of the Gedania, 20-meter two-mast sail schooner of Polish origin.

The Gedania began its voyage back to its home port, Gdansk, in August. The trip took it across the Atlantic and the Baltic and North seas with stops in England, Scotland, Germany and Poland after leaving Canada, where it took part in a parade of tall ships in Toronto.

John, the youngest of the 15-member crew, joined the crew in Canada after receiving his passport and visa. The ship sailed the Great Lakes before heading through the St. Lawrence Seaway for the Atlantic.

Near the end of the two-week trip through the St. Lawrence, the ship docked in St. John, Newfoundland, where Pope John Paul II was visiting.

Although close enough to take a few snapshots of the Pope and to kiss the Papal ring, the traditional greeting given a Pope, John says he was too awestruck to speak.

That's just one of his lasting memories of the voyage, John says. "The waves, the ocean, hitting a whale, almost losing a man in the North Sea; that's what I'll remember 20 years from now."

It was in the St. Lawrence that the steel-hulled Gedania struck a whale. John was below decks when the ship slammed to a halt for several seconds before getting underway again. The ship avoided serious damage, however.

The Gedania almost lost a crewman during heavy weather. The ship was doing 12 knots through heavy seas when a sheet snapped and a crewman went back to put a line on it. A wave broke over the spot where he was working and washed the crewman over the side. He caught himself on a rail and held on until two other crewmen pulled him back aboard, Benz said.

Benz kept a diary of his 10-week voyage and is putting it into more literary form as part of a directed study project under instructor Robert Button. The piece is more than just about this summer's sailing, he adds.

John is part of a sailing family. His parents, Ed and Fran, are avid sailors and have always owned a boat.

John became part of the crew in August in Hamilton, where he'd been taking part in the Toronto Brigantine sail training class. A bout with strep throat put him a week behind after being aboard the Playfare. He was taken aboard another brigantine, the Pathfinder, and sailed to Toronto where he boarded the Gedania.

When he graduates in June, John says he'd like to spend the summer in the Caribbean and do some sailing, possibly on a 127-foot barkentine. If he doesn't go there he will probably try for a berth on the Coast Guard cutter Eagle, a German-built tall ship.

There are other chances coming up to take part in sailing on the tall ship, John says. There are tall-ship parades scheduled for next year as well as 1988 in Australia that there may be openings in, he adds.

Getting on the crews is a chancy thing, John says. Like any other job, you fill out an application and wait for someone to decide you're qualified, he says, noting he's met quite a few captains of tall ships.

He's also met a number of other people. As he rifles through a stack of color photographs of the trip, he points out a number of ships and people. There's Urick, the Gedania shipmate who almost went overboard in the Atlantic, the owners of a Scottish castle who invited the crew to dinner, and survivors of the wreck of the Marquette, where 19 died.

The Marquette's sister ship, the Inca, remains bottled up in the Great Lakes, he adds.

As he wrote in his journal, "Who would have thought . . . traveling across the ocean with people from other countries can really teach you something about yourself and life."

School stories dominated the news

January

Starting off 1984 was the announcement that former first lady Betty Ford was scheduled to speak at South High about her struggle with drug dependency. Her visit was sponsored by the Substance Abuse Community Council.

Woods resident Joe Walker was one of 98 men in the state included in "A Woman's Guide to the Men of Michigan."

Another Woods resident, Mark Hacula, a Navy corpsman, came home for the holidays. The 21-year-old was serving with the Eighth Marines which lost more than 200 men in the Oct. 23 bombing in Beirut by a Moslem terrorist. Hacula was sleeping in a bunker at the other end of the airport when the tragedy occurred.

Organizers of a campaign to remove three board of education members from office scheduled a kick-off meeting at the War Memorial and announced they expected 300 to 400 persons to attend. The chairman of the Committee for Neighborhood Elementary Schools, David Easlick Jr., said petitions for the recall of Catherine Brierly, Jon Gandelot and Ernest Buechler would be distributed to workers who would begin the task of collecting the 6,700 signatures necessary. The three were targeted for recall because of a Nov. 14 vote to reorganize the district due to a greater than 40 percent decline in enrollment. The board voted 6-1 to close Barnes Elementary where enrollment dropped from 488 to 190 in 10 years and to move sixth-graders into the middle school.

In the City, the council voted Jan. 16 to let voters decide if they wanted liquor served in their community.

February

A Woods resident, Roland Eugenio, president of Eugenio Co., architectural decorators, was hired by the Grosse Pointe Academy to restore the vaulted ceiling surrounding the altar in the chapel. The ceiling was originally painted by Roland's father, Anthony, in 1929.

March

Dorothy Comstock Riley of the Farms announced that she would seek her party's nomination for state Supreme Court at the GOP convention in September.

April

School Supt. Kenneth Brummel announced he would leave Grosse Pointe to accept a similar position in California. The 49-year-old superintendent had served the area for three years.

Members of the Farms council, Hill property owners and retail merchants got into a head-butting contest over a proposed zoning ordinance amendment that would limit future first-floor businesses on the Hill to retail only.

Nearly 30 years of negotiation between the school board and Farms council over a parcel of prime Kercheval land was ended when the board voted to lease the parcel in front of Richard Elementary School to the city. In exchange for a 15-year lease, the Farms agreed to make $50,000 worth of improvements to two playgrounds near Richard. In return, it would gain a 74-space parking lot.

May

A pilot program of all-day kindergarten was approved by the school board. The cost, $1,250 per student, would come to about $7 a day for the optional program.

It was standing room only at the Fries Ballroom of the War Memorial on Memorial Day as hundreds of residents attended the dedication of a plaque of Pointers who served in Vietnam.

John Lake, the first director of the War Memorial, died May 31. He guided the center for nearly 30 years.

June

Voters handed the school board a pat on the back by defeating recall proposals against three members, returning the incumbent president to office and removing the one board member who voted against the majority. The vote was 2-1 against recall.

The Park council set a public hearing on the proposal by Bon Secours Hospital and Detroit Institute of Ophthalmology to construct a $5 million outpatient medical building.

July

The Senior Men's Club of Grosse Pointe celebrated its 25th anniversary. With a membership of nearly 1,100 members, the club operates for charitable, literary, social and recreational purposes.

After an eight-year absence, fireworks returned to the area. An estimated 6,000 people watched the 20-minute display sponsored by the Grosse Pointe Business and Professional Association of Mack Avenue.

The two Kroger stores, one on Kercheval and one on Mack, closed after union members voted to reject concessions the chain said it needed to stay in business. Seventy stores in southeastern Michigan closed.

It was announced that the Sequoia, the presidential yacht that served eight presidents over 44 years, would berth at the Grosse Pointe Yacht Club for two days in August.

August

The former mayor of the City and a prominent member of many civic organizations and social clubs, David Robb, was sentenced to 30 months in prison. He pleaded guilty to embezzling $196,000 from a bankrupt securities firm of which he was a trustee.

At the deadline for applying for the position of school superintendent, applications for more than 100 persons were received.

Ervin A. Steiner Jr., a Farms resident, died. He was 61. He was to face the incumbent commissioner, John Hertel, for the county seat.

September

The Shores municipal building, after undergoing extensive renovation, was dedicated.

Eric Steiner, 21, was selected by the 14th District GOP committee to succeed his father as a candidate for county commissioner.

The more than 100-year-old giant elm in front of the Grosse Pointe News building was cut down, a victim of Dutch elm disease.

Farms resident John Stroh, 91, died. He was the grandson of Bernard Stroh, founder of the Stroh Brewery Co.

The top official of the Grosse Pointe schools, Dr. James A. Hoeh Jr., died after shooting himself in the chest. The 50-year-old deputy superintendent had been the top administrator since Brummel left in July.

October

Joseph Spagnoli, South High principal, was named interim superintendent by the school board.

The state Department of Agriculture reported that the Pointes and Wayne County were the only bright spots in a bleak year of gypsy moth trap results. Seventeen moths were trapped in the area compared to 63 the year before.

The bulk of John Lake's estate, estimated at about $500,000, was bequeathed to the War Memorial, it was announced to directors at the annual meetings by Lake's attorney.

According to the fourth Friday count, the public schools had 208 fewer students than the year before.

November

Voters ended the ban on liquor in the City by approving two proposals. They voted 1,877 yes and 1,234 no for Class C liquor license, and 2,216 yes and 876 no for Tavern license (beer and wine).

The first candidate to be interviewed in public for the position of school superintendent was Dr. John Whritner, superintendent of East Lyme, Conn. schools.

The Park council was faced with a growing wave of citizens who wanted their streets closed to Mack Avenue traffic. The council received their fifth request for a closing.

Durant fights for Legal Services

By Harriet Nolan

W. Clark Durant III, recently elected chairman of the embattled Legal Services Corporation, says key problems facing the board are to re-establish good working relations with Congress and to rework the budget.

Legal Services finances aid for the poor in such civil actions as divorce, landlord-tenant disputes and Social Security benefit cases. President Ronald Reagan has sought unsuccessfully to cut off government funding for the agency for the past four years. Continued conflict over the program appears certain since administration officials say President Reagan will again urge Congress to abolish the corporation and eliminate federal financing of legal aid for the poor.

"To put it mildly, relations have been strained the last three years," says Durant, a 35-year-old Detroit lawyer. "We're a non-political organization and we have to make decisions at the corporation level rather than being micro-managed from the Hill."

Durant cites an example of Congress' micro-management restrictions that the Appropriations Committee in both houses puts on grants.

"The corporation is required to submit any proposed regulations to Congress for review and then wait 15 days for comments before implementation. In the past this kind of review was only required when there were changes in budget allocations."

"Other restrictions include not allowing adequate use of statistics which tell the location of the poor," he adds. "In some instances, more money is given to states such as Alaska, which has a large area, a small population and a growing economy, whereas in Michigan, the unemployment rate is worse."

Durant's appointment has been well-received in political circles. Sen. Warren Rudman, appropriations sub-committee chairman, greeted his election to the corporation and called him "a thoughtful conservative with good credentials."

Durant says he's begun talks with Rudman and Sen. Orrin Hatch, chairman of the committee charged with overseeing legal services, and is confident many of the problems can be worked out. "We receive all our funds from Congress, which is inherently a political body, and they've indicated a keen interest in our programs."

"But Congress has also made us by statute an independent board, and while I want to know what they think, I also want to know what the thinking is in the field, the community of the poor and the private bar," he adds.

Getting the ball rolling, Durant has met with Michigan Legal Service Program directors, the president of the American Bar Association and leaders in the legal services communities.

A two-day brainstorming session held late last month in Washington had agency members revising the budget as well as reviewing existing regulations regarding lobbying, private lawyer involvement and funding priorities for local programs, says Durant.

"The most significant thing decided was to recommend to Congress a $305 million budget which is the same amount as last year," he says. "We're presently recommending an increase for front-line delivery programs with every other part of our budget receiving proportional reductions. We'll review very carefully how these cutbacks impact on particular programs and if we have to make adjustments, we will."

To streamline services and save money, Durant suggests contracting run-of-the-mill cases, such as divorce or landlord-tenant problems, to private lawyers.

"The regular staff lawyer performs an invaluable function, but there's a need to broaden his base. We may be able to do that and save money."

"I want to make sure we're representing individual needs of poor persons, not an amorphous class of poor," he adds.

Other methods to save money, according to Durant, include a massive campaign informing people that contributions to the agency are recognized charitable deductions.

He also suggests putting short-term money from trust funds into special accounts so that the drawn interest can be used for legal services instead of the money being used by banks.

"Twenty-eight states have approved this concept and approximately $18 million has been raised pursuant to that idea," says Durant. "But it's now under legal challenge and the primary issue is whether or not a state can essentially appropriate that money for public purpose."

While Durant comes from an affluent, politically oriented family, he's no newcomer to the problems of the poor. He served as a criminal defense lawyer who helped indigents during the first four years of his practice while working in his father's law office.

"I intend to do the job and make hard decisions," says Durant. "We have a fiduciary obligation to make decisions without looking over our shoulders to see how it plays and to make sure the money is spent efficiently on the direct delivery of legal services to the poor."

W. Clark Durant III

"But to do this efficiently, we must be open and eager to work with those in the field and in the community who have experience delivering legal services to the poor," he adds.

Durant is a graduate of Tulane University and Notre Dame Law School. He worked as assistant to the president and vice president of Hillsdale College before entering law school.

He's worked on Reagan's 1976 and 1980 presidential campaigns and has been active in local Republican politics as a precinct delegate and representative to state conventions.

In 1983 he was appointed trustee of the Michigan Interstate Railroad Co., the former Ann Arbor Railroad, by U.S. Secretary of Transportation Elizabeth Dole.

In New York City, about 500 people who seek treatment for broken bones each week during the winter, explain the cause with "slipped on the ice" or words to that effect. The medicos call these injuries "snow fractures."

'Sno kidding

No, this is not the Upper Peninsula. This was the view last week along Grosse Pointe Boulevard after most of southern Michigan received a four-inch snowfall. While it was pretty, the snow didn't stay around long as temperatures soared into the mid-50s the next day, melting most of the beauty.

Lose weight, quit smoking

Cottage Hospital will offer free introductory meetings of the Weight No More system for permanent weight loss on Tuesday and Thursday, Jan. 8 and 10, 7:30 p.m. to 8:30 p.m. Free introductory sessions of the Smokeless System, a guaranteed technique for quitting smoking, will be held on Monday and Tuesday, Jan. 7 and 8, 7:30 p.m. to 8:30 p.m.

All the meetings will be held in the Nurses' Residence at the rear of the parking lot, 159 Kercheval Ave., in the Farms.

Weight No More is a unique course that approaches weight control by teaching participants how to prevent and eliminate the desire to overeat. Its behaviorally oriented approach meets with consistent success because it puts the participants in control of their own eating habits and teaches those skills necessary to achieve permanent weight control.

Those persons who enroll in the 10-session program lose from two to three pounds per week — the amount of weight loss that is to be expected from a nutritionally sound program. But most importantly, they keep this weight off and continue to lose additional weight after the program has ended.

The Smokeless System's approach to breaking the smoking habit consists of behavior modification, stress management, cognitive coping skills and eating management. Participants in the program are taught techniques and procedures that have proven themselves to be effective in both preventing and eliminating cigarette urge sensations.

Weight No More and the Smokeless System were developed by the American Institute for Preventive Medicine. For more information, attend one of the introductory sessions or call the hospital at 884-8600, ext. 2390.

Earlier childhood education

New and exciting ideas are being proposed for early childhood education in the public schools in Grosse Pointe and elsewhere in Michigan these days.

In Grosse Pointe, a pilot program of an all-day kindergarten financed by parents is under way this year at Ferry Elementary School with 24 pupils enrolled. Now a state task force has proposed the creation of a state-supported program for four-year-olds to give them "a positive orientation to the social and economic challenges they will face when they start kindergarten."

In Grosse Pointe, the school board will get later this month a report on the pilot program in all-day kindergarten which is being offered in addition to the regular half-day kindergarten. The school administration also has made a preliminary study of pre-school programs for younger children, but no action is expected in that area at least until the new superintendent arrives next spring.

In endorsing the idea of early childhood education, the Governor's Education Summit Task Force called for the appointment of a special Commission on Early Childhood Education to begin drafting a program under the direction of the Michigan Board of Education.

The task force proposes that the commission address itself to adequate funding within current state aid regulations, guidelines for the voluntary inclusion of private programs where public school programs are not available, model curricula, and qualifications of teachers in the programs. It also recommends the commission seek additional input from early childhood professionals in the state.

Two factors have contributed to rising interest in both pre-school programs and full-time kindergarten. One is the increase in the proportion of women working outside of their homes and the second is the fact that declining enrollments in some districts, as in Grosse Pointe, make space available in present school buildings for pre-school programs and instruction.

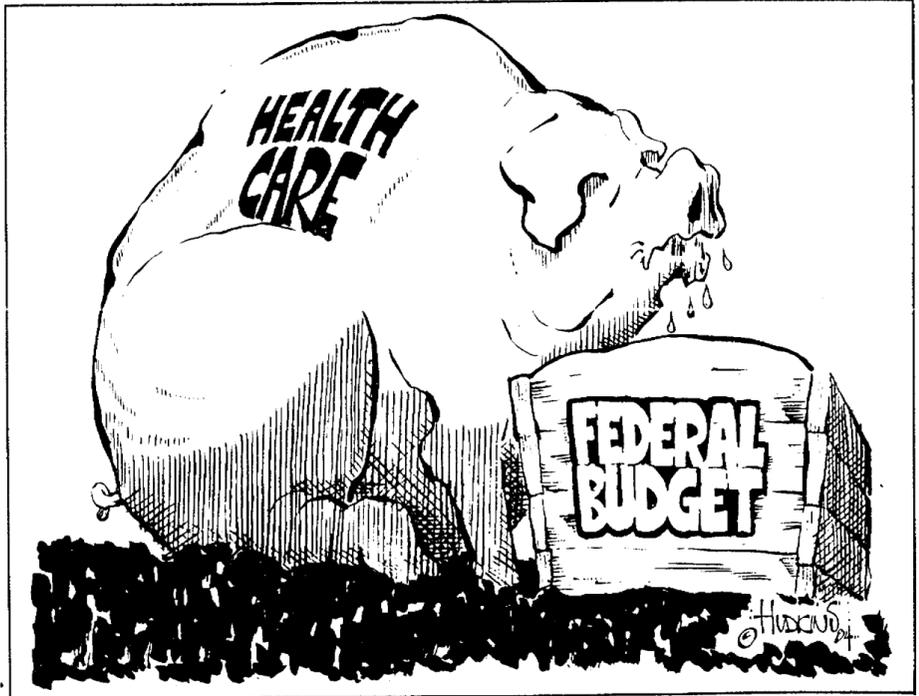

In the Pointes, there already are pre-school programs sponsored by private schools, churches, other groups and organizations of parents and teachers. Costs vary widely depending on the content of the programs offered and the teaching and supervision provided but the current thinking is that early childhood education programs no longer should be regarded as the exclusive province of the well-to-do. That view is growing as a consequence of the good experience reported by many of the families with children enrolled in such programs.

The state report says more than a third of Michigan's school districts "are giving their children a proven boost to adult success by enrolling them in early childhood education programs." In districts which have promoted such programs, it says, the support is "overwhelming." As many as 75 percent of all four-year-olds in some districts are enrolled in various kinds of pre-school programs.

The state report says early childhood classes could be organized to give four-year-olds a chance to explore a wide variety of activities for up to 20 weeks per school year. It recommends state support on the grounds that it would assure that many more youngsters would become involved in programs "which have already proven their value in increased adult wages, productivity and civic responsibility."

Funding of such programs by the state and local districts would put an additional burden on taxpayers but offer some relief for families now picking up the tab for programs provided by non-public sources. There are those who will object to the additional cost, and yet if other districts and other states offer such programs, Michigan must consider whether its children would get a "slower start" if not given the same opportunities.

Such ideas for "earlier childhood education" surely are worth further exploration and testing in the Pointes and elsewhere in Michigan.

Tribute to a pet who served well

To the Editor:
Sometimes I think we believe that people alone are capable of affection for our community. Some pets seem to feel this way, too.

When such a pet dies — particularly one that has lived for a long time — it can be a wrenching experience for those close to it.

This is what the following piece is all about.

Robert F. Agne
Grosse Pointe City

EMU

Emu is no longer Head Cat at our house. He served well and faithfully for more than eight years. Head Cat is sort of an honorary position. It reflects age and apprenticeship. But it also means that the cat apparently is ready. When the time came, Emu was.

Emu's passing will not cause great ripples in Grosse Pointe. He restricted his duties to a small cluster of yards which centered on his own. These he supervised with quiet dignity. He made a daily tour of the area, weather and the intrusion of noisy service people permitting. And then he returned to sit guard on his own back porch or backyard picnic table. No maverick cats from other jurisdictions were welcome. And those ill-advised felines who wandered into our yard were dealt with forthwith.

But Emu was more than a dedicated Head Cat. He was a nice cat. He kept his tan and white fur slickly clean. He was also known to clean the fur of our junior cat — or the eye-brow or nose of a sleeping family member. He had a deep resonant purr — almost like the lung rattle of a pneumonia victim. And he would purr for any reasonable cause — food, brushing, petting, attention, contentment or anticipation.

Emu was a college cat. But he wore the distinction lightly. Possibly it was because college was a problem for him. He was rescued from it by our older daughter. She was attending Eastern Michigan University at the time and Emu was on the receiving end of nasty college pranks. She set up a sanctuary for him in her dorm room, but he was completely unadjusted to such docile life at the time. So he came home to Grosse Pointe — to us and to an apprenticeship under Fluffernutter. He was named Emu after his alma mater.

Fluffernutter had moved to Grosse Pointe with us from Boston. He had acquired his name there because of his tan and white coloring. He resembled the then popular juvenile sandwich of the same name — a concoction of peanut butter and marshmallow. We had shortened his name to Fluff. When Emu arrived, Fluff was named Head Cat and put in charge. Aside from minimal friction over dinner dishes, catnap locations, and first priority out the door, life and training went smoothly. When Fluff died — over eight years ago — Emu was ready.

As the girl at the vet's said, "He was a neat cat." He really was. He was friendly, but he was not a lap cat. He was a beside-you cat. He didn't demand equal space in a chair, but just enough. He loved to squeeze in, half curl against you, and smile himself to sleep — purring. Emu also loved boxes, paper bags and butterflies. Any box, big or small was a challenge to him. He had to sit in it. He liked to beat his way through paper bags, if possible. And he found butterflies a fascinating puzzle. As he got older — and heavier — he gave up pretty much on butterflies and paper bags. But boxes remained his obsession. In his last month of life, he tried to sit in a box that would not have held a kitten a quarter his size.

Emu's final illness was a surprise. He had lived a full life and would have been 15 in January — as closely as we can tell. Since Emu had no papers, and couldn't remember, we went to the Chinese system of measuring age. He would have been one year older with the New Year. By the time we realized something was wrong, Emu's illness was irreversible. He died on the evening of Dec. 16. He is buried in an old traveling case lined with remnants of the soft living room rug he loved to curl up on. The exact spot is a secret, but it is close to the part of Grosse Pointe he monitored so well.

Emu has been succeeded as Head Cat by Taffie, alias "The Pfutz". Even the name gives you some idea of how the office of Head Cat has fallen into question. I'm sure Emu would wish Taffie well in this new responsibility — but she sure has some huge paw prints to fill.

Has solution to number issue

To the Editor:
You had an article in your newspaper Dec. 20 about the problem between the Allors and Giraldo's and Number 7 on Elmsleigh Lane. Why should the city go to court? There is such a simple solution. Do it like they do in Germany: house number 7A and house number 7B.

Yea, Peggy, way to go

To the Editor:
I would like to commend Peggy O'Connor for her column in the Dec. 15th Grosse Pointe News.

Some people have a poor sense of values, and the ones who put high school sports coverage high on their list are especially bad. Newspaper publicity doesn't make a team good; the team does that by itself.

Your column made a lot of people stop and think, including myself.

Thank you.

The county's good example

It can be argued, as Rep. William R. Bryant Jr., of Grosse Pointe, has done, that salaries of state legislators and other elected state officials might be increased to offset the rise in inflation. That presumably is what the State Officers Compensation Commission is recommending with its 5 percent pay hikes for both 1985 and 1986, although one commissioner would have preferred a 4 percent boost.

But the increases recommended for the legislators, Gov. James Blanchard, Lt. Gov. Martha Griffiths and the Supreme Court justices would keep the state pay scales among the highest in the nation unless the proposal is rejected by a two-thirds vote of the House and Senate before Feb. 1.

Since Michigan is a high-pay state, salaries of public officials must keep pace, some people say. Yet in view of the attempts to reduce state costs and to persuade labor unions to reduce their demands, the recommendations of the state compensation still can be regarded as excessive in these times. Michigan's economy still is not exactly thriving, as the high unemployment figures demonstrate.

Perhaps this is one situation in which the state could take a lesson from Wayne County government, long regarded as one of the most costly and wasteful in the state. Under the reforms imposed by the Wayne County charter, commissioners are required to vote on their own pay raises before the election, and they didn't even discuss the issue this year in view of the county's recent deficits. A compensation commission that sets salaries for other county-elected officials did not meet in 1984 and won't meet again until 1986.

While the State Officers Compensation Commission isn't about to follow the Wayne County practice at this time, the commission ought to think about adopting it in the future. We refer specifically to the setting of proposed salaries prior to the election rather than afterward. That would require state officials to justify their votes for higher pay before they go back to the voters to seek renewal of their terms. It might make them a bit leery of approving recommendations such as the ones just made by the state compensation commission.

There is a growing demand to make legislators only part-time public officials, but as the proposed increases will boost their salaries to $36,520 by 1986, there will be a tendency for the lawmakers to spend more and more time in Lansing. They will want to show that they earn their pay, but they will have to improve their performance to prove that to the voting public.

Political recovery in '86?

Public opinion polls about the popularity of political figures offer only current snapshots, and the passage of time usually revises the pictures taken by the polls, as the election results demonstrate.

That conclusion was supported by the new Detroit News Poll which shows Gov. James Blanchard's approval rating now standing at 66 percent. In other words, two-thirds of those interviewed in mid-December approved of the way the governor is handling his job. Yet after the 38 percent increase in state income taxes voted early in 1983 at the governor's request, fewer than one-third of the state's voters approved of his performance. So the governor made a remarkable political recovery in 1984.

The question now is whether he will be able to build on his current up-beat standing with the public or whether, once the 1985 session of the Legislature begins wrangling over the issues, his popularity once again will plummet. That is a possibility in view of the fact the Republicans control the state Senate and the Democrats are still the majority in the House, although with a reduced margin over the Republicans as a result of 1984 election losses.

Reviews of the governor's first two years in office in the two Detroit daily newspapers not only gave him high marks for his political recovery but agreed that he now is gearing up to run for re-election in 1986. Improvements in the state's bond rating and cash flow have stemmed much of the criticism of the big 1983 income tax increase. Even more important, income taxes have been reduced substantially and substantial state surpluses also have been accumulated. In the closing days of the 1984 session, the governor also obtained adoption of his Strategic Investment Fund to benefit small businesses and a Preferred Purchaser Agreement aimed at reducing health care costs. Both were regarded as major accomplishments.

The state's unemployment rate, too, has continued to decline from the 15.7 percent rate when the governor was inaugurated to 11.4 percent in November. That drop reflected improved economic conditions nationally, of course, but Blanchard supporters can claim some of the credit for his administration. His summer Youth Corps and Community Service Corps programs did provide temporary jobs and so did the more than $1 billion in state, federal and local matching funds spent on public works.

It was the economic recovery that also contributed to President Reagan's political recovery. Few people may remember today that the president was at a low point in public esteem in 1982. Just before the congressional elections, Reagan's handling of the presidency was approved by only 41 percent of the American people, according to a poll at the time. Yet two years later, he swept to one of the biggest presidential victories in history. It was, as we've said, less than two years ago that Blanchard had less than 33 percent public support before starting his climb back to his current 66 percent approval.

If the economic recovery helped both executives, it is reasonable to assume that if the economy both nationally and in Michigan should turn downward again in 1986, both could be damaged politically. Blanchard, already opposed by a Republican Senate, could face difficulty not only in winning re-election, but in keeping control of the state House. The president might not only have to forget his dream of gaining control of the U.S. House but might even lose the Senate to the Democrats.

So the economic outlook for the next two years could be more meaningful for both the Republican president and the Democratic governor than the current bright snapshots that show both on a roll of public popularity.

Prime Time for senior citizens

By Marian Trainor

So you didn't get a round-trip ticket to Florida for Christmas. It could have been worse. Someone might have given you a one-way ticket and wouldn't that have been a put-down?

Admittedly it's a little hard to take when some of your best friends begin to make plans to leave town as soon as the holiday season is over. It's not easy to smile, in fact sometimes it hurts, when you tell them how happy you are that they are escaping the mean winds, the icy streets and drifting snows of Michigan winter.

Mentally you picture them strolling warm, sunny streets of somewhere, swimming, golfing or "just settin'" on a beach. The joys of summer in winter are theirs.

You think of the dreary short days, the dark silent nights, the endless months of January, February and March and you wish you were flying to warmer, gentler, brighter weather — but not really.

Warmth and sun are wonderful and soothing to the spirit. But it takes courage, fortitude and endurance to meet Old Man Winter on his own terms and come out ahead. Anyone can bask in the sun, but those persons who put on their woolies, pull on their boots, take a deep breath and go out to tramp down winter's first snow, and let the crisp, fresh cold winter air wash through their lungs and brave the icy sting of it on their face — these are strong characters.

There is a certain amount of self-satisfaction that comes from braving the elements. Else why do people go on survival trip to Northern Canada or Alaska? That is a bit much. Enough is enough. There's no need to be too sanctimonious about this matter.

If nothing else, winter gives you something to look forward to — spring.

While you are whiling away the days and nights waiting for that first robin and your lucky friends to return, you can, among other things, do some armchair traveling.

It's not all bad. You don't have to worry about missing a plane or blowing a tire 40 miles from nowhere. You don't have to wonder whether or not your accommodations will be all that was promised or if you'll arrive in a usually warm climate to find that they are having a record cold snap.

And just think of it. You don't have to get up at some unearthly hour to join a tour group to visit a monument that you could care less about when you would rather stay in bed and sleep until noon.

Instead you settle back in your favorite armchair at home with a glowing fire in the fireplace and look through a window framing a lovely snowy scene, pretty as a picture postal card — glistening snow, bright twinkling stars, a waxy moon in a midnight blue sky.

You get out some travel folders and off you go to any place you choose, worry-free, comfortable and completely self-directed; time, space, distance mean nothing. Go where you want, when you want.

How about an auto tour of Florida? If you were to actually make the trip, it would take about two weeks. In the comfort of your home, as the ads read, you can cover the 8,000 miles of coastline in less than an hour.

You can visit the zoo in Jacksonville which houses one of the finest collections of domestic and exotic animals, or, if your taste runs to the finer things in life, wander through the Cummer Gallery of Art, a 1,500-piece collection of Greek vases and tableware.

You won't want to miss the Ponce de Leon Fountain of Youth in St. Augustine and the Shrine of our Lady of La Leche, location of the first Catholic Mass in 1565 and the country's oldest private residence packed with primitive antiques.

The seaside community of Ormond Beach is another sight worth seeing. Here you will find some of the finest examples of pre-1900 wooden structures in the state. You can, if you choose, wander through the vacation mansion of John D. Rockefeller, Sr.

Daytona, where years of use of automobiles have packed the sand hard as asphalt, the mega-attraction of Disney World just beyond Orlando, Epcot Center, and the J.F.K. Space Center should be included in the itinerary. Just think how tiring it would be to actually walk around the Disney set-up or the Space Center. And here you are, taking your time, with no effort, seeing it all.

If you are a horse fancier or on occasion bet on a horse, you will want to take in Hialeah in Miami.

Often called Florida's only real city, Miami is the cultural center of the state. Most visitors spend some time at the Spanish monastery cloister of St. Bernard in North Miami Beach.

Take time out to tour the one-and-a-half-million-acre Everglades Park. Billed as a swamp, it is really a shallow river filled with sawgrass up to 12 feet tall.

If mansions are your thing, you'll want to go to picturesque Gasparilla Island just north of Port Charlotte. The only town on the island is Boca Grande where such families as the duPonts and Rothschilds spend the winter.

Busch Gardens in Tampa, a combination amusement park and zoo boasts a slow-moving monorail that cruises through a makeshift Serengetti Plains for a close-up look at African wildlife.

Not to be overlooked is Tarpon Springs, a Greek fishing community and the sponge capital of the world.

If you've had enough of sightseeing by car, you could always go by plane to balmy climes. Why not? It doesn't cost and the going is easy when you're an armchair traveler.

How about a trip out west, Los Angeles, for instance, where you can visit the museum of your choice? The California Museum of Science and Industry includes exhibits that change daily and display aerospace, economic, media and current scientific discoveries.

The Los Angeles County Museum of Art is a three-structure complex that houses the full range of art history from pre-historic times to the present.

No matter what culture interests you, there are shops, restaurants and food markets that feature the specialties of the country. Chinatown, all along Ginling Way, Little Tokyo for those with Japanese tastes, Larry's California Center for Mexican cuisine.

Lummis House is the headquarters for the Historical Society of Southern California. Here you find Indian furnishings and a fireplace designed by sculptor Gutzon Borglum who is known for his carving of Mount Rushmore.

An unusual site is Watts Towers erected by Simon Rodia, a tile-setter. He spent 33 years embellishing three towers with tile, shells and pieces of glass.

As long as you're so close, go over the Palm Springs. Here you can ride an aerial tramway between Palm Springs and the Mount Jacinto wilderness. It's the world's largest. It carries 80 passengers to a car and is the longest (two-and-one-half mile) single lift tram. No dream vacation is complete without a trip to Hawaii.

Choose your island — Honolulu on the principle island, Hawaii, is a composite of the neighbor islands. Hawaii is called the Big Island to distinguish it from the state, Maui, with its beautiful beaches, or Molokai, a sort of down-home Hawaii.

And then there is Kauai, the most spectacular of the islands. In addition to its beautiful coast and green valleys, it has a canyon as spectacular as Grand Canyon and a central mountain range. Kauai is the oldest of the islands. It was created by a single immense volcano.

While you are visiting, tour the Kauai mission for historical, geographical and cultural orientation. You'll want to see the Waimalea Canyon. Its colors change, depending on the time of day. See also the Olva Pua Botanical Gardens and the exotic flora there, also the Kilavea Lighthouse's tropical bird sanctuary.

Enough for one sitting? Put away the folders and trot off to the known comfort of your own bed. Like the song says, "The weather outside is frightful" but it does have a certain chill beauty.

Sooner than you think, it will loosen its grip and you will be around to watch the snow drip from the rooftops under a more friendly sun, the ice fall from the branches in chunks and the air soften with the first promise of better days ahead.

In the meantime, you can dream a little and plan a lot. Who knows, one day you may really visit all those beguiling places you have read about. And when you do, you'll know what is really worth seeing.

In the meantime, bon voyage — the easy way, in an armchair by the fire. Let it snow; inside your world is delightful.

North Pointe wins award

North High School's student newspaper, North Pointe, was recently awarded a First Class rating by Columbia University's Scholastic Press Association for issues from the 1983-84 school year.

Staff at the paper included Scott Hess, Raoul Rayos and Jennifer Mager, editors-in-chief; Cathy Burns, news editor; Eric Hess, opinion editor; Kathy Bakeman and Mike Skuras, opinion editorial assistants; John Serwach, business manager, circulation manager and layout editor; Jay Gaskin and Julie Emerick, photographic editors; and circulation assistant Michael Jay. Miss Mager was also feature editor and Miss Emerick was also a circulation assistant.

The judges especially praised the special supplement on teenage stress, of which Miss Mager was editor-in-chief.

Pre-Christmas thefts

Two robberies were reported in the Park the weekend before Christmas.

A resident was approached by a gunman at 6:50 p.m., Dec. 23, and robbed of $3, a ring and a wallet, said Henry Counce, Park police chief.

The victim, who was unharmed, described the assailant as a 30-year-old, thin black male, about six feet tall and wearing a black vinyl waist-length jacket and beret.

The White Tower Restaurant on Jefferson was robbed on Dec. 24, according to a waitress.

She told police a man, armed with a gun, entered the restaurant at 5:50 p.m. and demanded money. He got $30 before running north on Wayburn.

Counce said Detroit police arrested a suspect at Newport and Jefferson they believe may be involved in that robbery. The case is under investigation.

I say This space is for rent

Christmas Eve — Since I filled this space five weeks ago, I've been making a list of possible topics for my next 14-inch discourse. There are 24 items on that list and today I can't decide which to write about.

I was going to write about the holidays, but a bit of time lag gets in the way. Although I'm writing this on Christmas Eve, you aren't reading it until Jan. 3. I'm still high over Christmas and you're getting ready for post-holiday depression.

There were a couple of topics concerning the New Year. One was resolutions, but I don't make resolutions. I live by one rule: don't do anything you wouldn't be caught dead doing. Think about it.

I was also going to write about starting the year with a clean slate by apologizing to all the people I've snubbed or talked back to. When I think about it, the people to whom I owe apologies have received them. The rest deserved what they got.

A half-dozen items on my list are about Christmas, but you wouldn't want to read about that. Everyone with access to news space has been writing about Christmas.

There's the time problem again. I haven't enjoyed my holidays yet and you're already through them. And there are still some things I'm looking forward to seeing this Christmas.

Tops among them are the faces of my father and niece when they see their gifts. My father, despite his protests, will be reading about his new boat. My niece will be happily destroying the doll house I spent nine months putting together for her.

I've heard some people say they can't get up for the holidays the way they used to. I had that problem five years ago and found a simple solution. Enjoy each Christmas as if it were the last you would be spending with a particular friend or relative. That notion makes all the lights, carols, crowds and commercial glut fun. Try it next year.

I recently lost a friend myself. It wasn't death, but indifference that ended it. We were high school buddies and enjoyed the years since in that light, almost trivial way you live until you decide on goals.

Like they said in "The Big Chill," being friends then was easy. Well, we've grown apart now. I think I'll call him over the holidays just for the heck of it.

Notice I didn't say "grow up" in

Self-help course for arthritics

A six-session arthritis self-help course will be offered at Cottage Hospital on Tuesday beginning Jan. 8. The sessions will be held from 10 a.m. to noon.

The course emphasizes three basic concepts: 1) Each person with arthritis is different. There is no one correct treatment for everyone. 2) Having arthritis is not a hopeless situation. There are many things a person can do to feel better. 3) With proper education, a person can determine which self-management techniques are best.

The course, developed at Stanford University, provides information needed to overcome the problems of arthritis through exercise, diet, drug information, self-help aids and relaxation techniques.

The fee of $15 includes the cost of the textbook and materials. Pre-registration is necessary. To register, call the Arthritis Foundation at 561-9096.

that last sentence. When people ask me why I'm so childish, I tell them that the Bible says one must be like a child to enter the kingdom of Heaven. Then I stick out my tongue at them.

while under the influence. The only thought that went through my head as I fought for control was "Don't take anybody with you, stupid." I kept it together and got home.

Did I stop drinking? No. Did I stop driving after I had a couple? No. I know I'm beating the odds. When my luck runs out, I just hope I'm not foolish enough to have taken someone else with me. You can save your cards and letters, too, if you don't mind.

Instead, I think I'll write a column about columns. It takes a certain talent to write a column, one which I admittedly don't have. So, in five more weeks, I plan to rent out this space to representatives of community groups who want to write a nice, informational piece about anything at all.

The rent? It's the cost of time to type, double-spaced, about three pages and get them in to me by Monday noon, Feb. 4. That all depends on whether I've survived the holidays. But, hey, take a chance anyway.

Mike Andrzejczyk

I had a couple topical items on my list. One was about drunk driving. I discarded that one because anything you say about it has been said before.

I almost rolled a Camaro at 140 mph last summer on the freeway

Pointers on hospital board

Brighton Hospital Board of Trustees re-elected Frederick E. Harris, III, to a three-year term as first vice president on the board of directors. He is president of Fred E. Harris & Assoc., and lives in the Woods.

Woods resident Robert Wachter, vice president and treasurer of Eastern Box Co., was re-elected treasurer.

Edward J. Bashara Jr., a lawyer with Dykema, Gossett, Spencer, Goodnow and Trigg, was re-elected a director for a three year term. He lives in the Shores.

Wood is consultant

William G. Wood, of the Farms, has been appointed resident representative of Tokyo-based Parker Commercial Ltd. This marks the establishment of a U.S. base for this trading company in Japan. Wood previously worked for 25 years for Kolene Corp. He is currently a consultant for the firm as well as other companies.

Parental involvement as volunteers in science and other instruction, parents' groups sponsoring and co-sponsoring events and the activities of parent-teacher organizations have helped improve communications between the school staff and the community, he said.

Some were originally skeptical about parents becoming involved in instruction in the buildings.

"Now that parents have come into the schools, a cooperative support has been building between the professional staff and the community," Spagnoli said. The support isn't something that started just last year, he added.

Also not really receiving the attention it should is the administration which, although six persons smaller than last year's, is still covering all the bases, Mrs. Hanpeter said. The consolidation of duties helped the district save money, she added.

The district was able to forego a tax increase in the 1981-82 school year by using its fund equity from previous years, Mrs. Hanpeter said. That caught up with the district in the 1984-85 school budget, when the

On the flip side, a plethora of "Good Guy" awards to the following individuals, things and items that brighten our days: the Grosse Pointes own bald eagle who kept dropping in and flying off with squirrels earlier this year; the snowy owl who recently wowed them at the 7-Mack shopping center, Richard Place — the new walkway connecting the upper and lower Hill areas that didn't cost taxpayers one red cent, and the giant American flags being flown by a number of car dealers on Mack Avenue.

And finally, the "Off the Wall but Enjoyable TV" awards to these programs soon to develop cult-like followers: Danger Mouse, Dave Allen At-Large, The Two Ronnies, Seeing Things with Louis DelGrande, The Nature of Things with David Suzuki, the Arab Voice of Detroit, (I don't know what they're saying, but it looks interesting) and Wok with Yan (it's so bad, it's good).

Since 1976 Hill's political and editorial cartoons have served as instruments in shaping public opinion, not only of Detroit-area readers, but of the readers nationally who find his work reprinted in major papers and national news magazines. The Grosse Pointe Cinema League will present "Odyssey to Greece," a 35mm slide program by Mary Ellen Tappan, when it meets Monday, Jan. 7, at 8 p.m. in the War Memorial's Fries Auditorium, 32 Lakeshore Road.

In Athens, the Acropolis is visited both during the day and at the evening "Sound and Light" ceremonies. Colorful scenes are shown in the old Plaka and its flea market. The Grecian countryside is explored, featuring the Temple of Poseidon at Sounion, the Oracle at Delphi, the back roads of Mount Parnassus, and monasteries perched on Meteora's craggy rocks.

Crossing to the Peloponnese, the road is taken to Olympia to visit the ancient stadium where it all began, to Pylos to explore Nestor's Palace, to the charming village of Nauplion and the great ruins at Mycenae. On a cruise of the Aegean Sea, the islands of Delos, Mykonos, Patmos, Rhodes and Crete are photographed.

The program is open to the public. A $1 admission charge will be made to non-Cinema League members.

Only about 20 people worldwide are checked out to fly one of those big Goodyear-type blimps.

Among the single people over age 45, the women make more money, typically, than the men.

HOME IMPROVEMENT AND REFURBISHING SHORTS

If kitchen storage space seems skimpy, remodeling may be the answer. The National Kitchen Cabinet Association suggests cabinets that feature such "organizers" as lazy susans and adjustable and pull-out shelves.

To make sure the cabinets you select can take heavy loads and daily abuse, look for the NKCA certification seal.

What's the best style of window above kitchen sinks? Anderson Corporation of Bayport, Minn., a leading window manufacturer, says it's casements, which open out with an easy-to-reach handle.

One of the most important elements of a well-built window is the sash and frame.

Since wood is a natural insulator it will not conduct heat as easily as a non-thermal metal sash and frame. In fact, comparative tests show that wood insulates 400 times more effectively than steel and 1,770 times better than aluminum.

If you wonder where the real wealth of America lies and you're a homeowner, you're it.

Sports Week

By Peggy O'Connor

On a clear day, you can see 1985 . . .

Around this time each year, newspapers and tabloids are full of predictions for the new year. Well, I can make predictions as well as the next person and even if my forecast for 1985 doesn't make the front of the National Enquirer like Jeanne Dixon's does, my predictions are at least suitable for framing. (Except that I'll be the one who gets 'framed' if I've underestimated Grosse Pointe's sense of humor). But here goes . . .

JANUARY: Despite careful monitoring by the Federal Bureau of Weights and Measures, the News' sports section actually prints one word more about South High than it does about North High in its Jan. 10 edition, thus disrupting the complete balance of power in the world, throwing the earth off its orbital pattern and causing an abrupt end to civilization as we know it.

FEBRUARY: Things get back to normal — for a while. Then South's 6-6 senior center Al Ament responds to the taunts of L'Anse Creuse North fans who tease him about his brush cut hairstyle by scoring 156 points and grabbing 88 rebounds in South High's 199-155 win on Feb. 1. Area barbers are sent scurrying back to barber college for refresher courses in buzz cuts when local students stampede shops begging for "Big Al" haircuts.

MARCH: North High cheerleaders mark the one year anniversary of an unfortunate incident which occurred in the girls' March, 1984 preparation for the national cheerleading finals in Florida when one of their number did a flip . . . and never came down. Appropriately, they follow a moment of silence with the traditional "two, four, six, eight, who do we appreciate?" cheer.

APRIL: Two days go by without Detroit Tiger players Kirk Gibson and Dave Rozema appearing in the gossip columns of Detroit's big daily newspapers. Once again, the world is threatened with chaos, until some courageous soul phones in a tip saying she saw the famous pair in a local watering hole, swilling Vernors and assaulting juke boxes. One paper prints the story, then follows up with a correction after finding out that Gibson and Rozema were 1,000 miles away in Lakeland, Fla., at spring training when the alleged incident took place. So there.

MAY: The Detroit Tigers do not repeat their record-setting 35-5 start of 1984, managing only a meager 34-6 beginning in 1985. Resumes come pouring in to Tiger offices from folks who think they can do a better job of managing than Sparky Anderson. One notable example is the letter from a Washington, D.C., resident who lists his qualifications as "likes the game — we are talking about baseball, aren't we?"; and "can change pitchers faster than you can spell Tip O'Neill's middle name, whatever it is."

JUNE: The Grand Prix comes to Detroit. No city residents or downtown workers are inconvenienced, no detours set up, no Grand Prix drivers make statements to the media about "how bad Detroit is as an auto race host and how any city in Europe could do it better," prompting the entire episode to be featured on the TV show "Believe It . . . Or Not."

JULY: The Port Huron to Mackinac Race takes 16 days, 14 hours, four minutes and 38 seconds to complete. First over the line is Roy "One Way" O'Reilly, of Landlock, Ontario. Roy tells reporters he's surprised with the win, since he left most of his navigational aids on the front seat of his 1955 Nash. He also claims the smell of fudge cooking lured him to Mackinac Island and notes that he isn't sure how he'll get his sailboat back home, adding "they don't call me 'One Way' for nothing, you know."

AUGUST: Nothing happens. Nothing ever happens in August.

SEPTEMBER: The always quotable North High football coach Frank Sumbera, striving to be different than most coaches in his comments to a local reporter on the eve of his team's varsity opener, says "We're going to give 99.9 percent and we're gonna take the season two games at a time. And what's more, you'll never catch me saying that another team is 'really tough,' and that we're 'really optimistic.'" Sumbera is immediately voted into the Sportswriters' Hall of Fame for Coaches Who Have Thrown Away Their Cliche Books.

OCTOBER: The Neighborhood Club and the Grosse Pointe Schools' Department of Continuing Education offer Grosse Pointe's Detroit Lion football fans alternatives to sitting at home on Sundays and watching the pro team self-destruct. Among the classes the Club offers are "Learnin' to be a Chicago Bears Fan," "Creating Fashionable Table Decorations from Your Lions' Season Tickets," and "How Not To Have A Stroke While Watching the Lions Try for a First Down in a Third-and-45 Situation."

NOVEMBER: Detroit Tiger relief pitcher Willie Hernandez retires from baseball after winning MVP and Cy Young awards for the 1985 season in which he won 36 games, saved 44 more and served as the ground crew for Tiger home games — all while rejecting a pay increase from the Tigers. Hernandez announces he will sign a contract with the Detroit Red Wings to serve as backup goaltender. "After all, I can make a save as well as anybody," he reasons.

DECEMBER: Entering their third season of varsity hockey, the teams at North and South are ranked No. 5 in the state in the pre-season top 10, they tie each other in the first meeting and fans of both teams have absolutely nothing to complain about . . . except that now the girls at North and South want varsity hockey teams. School officials PROMISE the girls they'll take up the idea at the next board meeting (right after pigs learn to fly).

Right about here, my crystal ball gets cloudy (just in the nick of time, before I can make anybody else mad). Angry callers might want to look up the word "lampoon" in the dictionary before they give me a ring.

1984: Pointe's record-setting year

By Peggy O'Connor
Championships, changes and record-setting achievements — that's what sports in Grosse Pointe was all about in 1984. Here's a look back at all that was said and done in the Pointe this year . . .

JANUARY: Woods resident Jimmy Carson is named MVP in the Mac's Tourney in Alberta, Canada, as his Compuware team becomes the first American squad to win the tournament. Carson scores 14 goals and 17 assists in the seven-game series.

In hockey closer to home, more than 1,000 fans pack the Grosse Pointe Community Rink to watch South High beat North High, 5-4, in the first meeting of the teams at the varsity level. South had entered play in January with a 3-4-1 record. South and North meet again in January, this time in the pool, as South's Ken Baculis touches out North's Tim Monahan in the meet's final event — the 400 freestyle — and the Blue Devils win the event by one-hundredth of a second and take the meet, 87-84.

FEBRUARY: North earns a ranking in the state's top hockey teams in February, then goes on a tear, beating No. 10-ranked Brother Rice and No. 15 Ann Arbor Huron. By Feb. 4, South has won its eighth straight game to run its record to 10-4-2.

South's girls' volleyball team betters its Eastern Michigan League mark to 7-0, 9-0 overall.

On Feb. 9, the University Liggett School boys' tennis team is honored by the Michigan State Senate which votes a resolution of tribute to "honor ULS for capturing a national record 12 consecutive state championships."

"I really was surprised. I had told the team before the game that everyone had to play the best game of his life . . . and they did." — South hockey coach Tim Zimmerman.

South's hockey squad, ranked No. 15, surprised the No. 6 North icers, 5-2, in the rematch of the rivals.

The Grosse Pointe Hockey Association's Squirt Bandits, Pee Wee B Islanders, Bantam AA Blues and Midget A Marlies win District III championships.

MARCH: North's hockey team falls to Fraser, 6-3, in district play to end the year with a 12-7-3 record.

A.J. Gibson's goal at 2:52 of the overtime period gives upstart South a 4-3 win over defending state champ Fraser and more importantly, wins a regional title for the first-year squad.

South's girls' varsity volleyball team wins the EML crown for the first time, but loses to Finney in district play, 15-0, 15-0, to finish with a 22-2 record.

North High diver Mike Reynolds caps his season with a 10th place regional finish and a 19th place in the state finals — both despite suffering from a broken foot. North wrestler Dave Fleming knows how Reynolds feels — he finishes sixth in the state finals, competing with a broken finger.

Dan Follis of South is the only Pointe skater picked for the first Michigan High School All-Stater hockey game. The honor completes a dream season for Follis, who holds the distinction of being South's first goal scorer. His team, however, doesn't fare as well, losing to Trenton, 5-1, in the quarter-finals.

North's cheerleaders return from Orlando, Fla., with a ninth place finish in the National Cheerleading Championships.

"We're really excited to make the states. We're in the top eight in Michigan and hope we can do well in the finals." — North gymnastics coach Gretchen Madison.

North's gymnasts earn a spot in the state finals for the first time as a team, finishing second in regional competition. The girls take eighth place in the state Class A finals.

APRIL: Baseball season arrives, but not before hockey has a final say. The Grosse Pointe Bantam AA Blues finish second in the U.S. at the American Hockey Association Level II Championships in Buffalo, N.Y.

And some familiar names are among the All-State hockey teams: South's Follis earns Class A First Team honors; North's Marc Tiriki and Marc Young, and South's Phil Pitters make Class A Second Team. ULS's Dan Bowen and Rob Wood earn honorable mention.

MAY: A record field of 374 competes in the Fourth Annual Cottage Fun Run/Walk on May 6.

" . . . we're looking to take the league title and in the districts, hopefully it'll come down to just one other team and us." — North baseball coach Frank Sumbera.

" . . . I'll be disappointed if we don't win the EML every year. I feel it's within our grasp if our pitching and defense continue to improve." — South baseball coach Dan Griesbaum.

North's varsity baseball squad wins seven straight and has a 17-5 mark (7-1 league) by May 17. Rival South leads the EML with a 7-1 record.

"This year, we're going to have fun." — Bob Wood, ULS boys' tennis coach.

ULS goes to the Midland Dow Invitational tennis tournament ranked behind others competing teams. The Knights tie No. 1-ranked Class A Midland Dow, beating out East Grand Rapids (No. 2 in Class B) and Ann Arbor Huron (No. 2 in Class B).

South wins the EML and Class A regional boys' tennis title. And the Blue Devil baseball team ends up second in the EML with an 11-3 record.

"Nothing lasts forever. All I can guarantee is that when it does, you'll find us holding our heads high . . . it's going to happen, but we'll be doing our best to keep it from happening next year." — ULS's Wood.

JUNE: ULS takes its 13th consecutive Class C-D tennis title with 34 points, well ahead of runner up Detroit Country Day School's 24.

The Norsemen win the Bi-County baseball crown, but fall in pre-district play, failing to make the districts and finishing the year with a 28-7 record.

"If they got one thing from this season, it's that we can play with anybody. That's the thing I'm trying to instill here. That's half the battle, if you believe you can play with the best, you will." — South's Griesbaum.

Fitness for men

Lakeshore Family YMCA will conduct an Aerobic and Exercise Combination Class for Men Only on Monday and Wednesday evenings from 6 to 7 p.m. beginning Jan. 14.

Designated by the National YMCA, this class will help get the heart, lungs and cardiovascular system into better health. Each class consists of warm-up exercises in preparation for strength, flexibility and aerobic conditioning using progression and resistance.

Fee is $21 for seven weeks. The Lakeshore Family YMCA is located on Jefferson near Nine Mile in St. Clair Shores. Call 778-5811 for more information.

Dimes hosts sports stars

Sports fans from southeast Michigan have the opportunity to meet and greet some of their heroes at the 15th annual March of Dimes Sports Awards Dinner, Tuesday, Jan. 15, at the Main Event in Pontiac.

Among those who will be honored at the $35-per-plate banquet are Detroit Lions' Gary Danielson, Detroit Spirits' Tico Brown, Detroit Pistons' Isaiah Thomas, the Red Wings' Steve Yzerman and Tiger pitcher Milt Wilcox.

Other honorees are Detroit Renaissance President Robert McCabe (as "Sportsman of the Year" for his involvement with the Detroit Grand Prix) and Flint Central quarterback Jim Abbott as "Amateur Athlete of the Year."

Shields Pizza is underwriting the dinner for the third straight year. WJBK TV-2 Sports Director Fred McLeod is general chairman of the endeavor and will emcee.

All proceeds help the March of Dimes fight birth defects via medical research, educational programs and community service projects. For ticket information, call Pam Schwarzkoff of the March of Dimes at 423-3217.

Focus on sports injuries

Prevention and care of Athletic Injuries, a special course for coaches and trainers of athletes at all levels, will be offered at Macomb Community College South Campus at Twelve Mile and Hayes beginning Jan. 14.

Further information may be obtained by calling 445-7417.

Gallagher squad hitless over four innings, but South loses the district final to the Lancers, 8-2, after a six-run fifth inning. The Devils compile a 17-12 record.

"I don't think there's a single team that is stubborn enough to think it can step on the field and run all over Grosse Pointe North . . ." — North girls' soccer coach Guido Regelbrugge.

Guido's girls win a league title and finish at 15-2 — but are eliminated in the districts which follow North's schedule of seven games in 10 days, something Regelbrugge calls "inhuman."

North High alumnus Tom Shook signs a professional baseball contract with the Kansas City Royals.

Our Lady Star of the Sea High School coach and athletic director Margaret Spindler is named to the Catholic League Coaches' Hall of Fame. And South girls' tennis coach Stephanie Prychitko is chosen Record-setting year...

1984's Coach of the Year by the National Tennis Coaches' Association.

JULY: The Park's All-Star team wins the Babe Ruth (14-15) districts. And the Farms-City squad takes the Babe Ruth state title for 15-year-olds at Kerby Field.

AUGUST: The Farms-City state champs finish fourth in the Babe Ruth regional tournament in Superior, Wis.

SEPTEMBER: Pointers Marc Augier, Stu Argo Jr., Tim and David Asken and David Lyons sail in the Canada's Cup Race.

"The whole team is really excited about playing Brother Rice in the Silverdome. And Rice should be every bit as good — even better — than last year." — North football coach Sumbera.

Rice is good, beating the Norsemen, 34-0. South wins its opener, 22-7, over Eisenhower. And for the first time since 1915, ULS does not field a varsity football team, due to a lack of numbers in its football program.

OCTOBER: South's varsity gridders see their string of 25 straight regular season victories end in a 25-24 overtime loss to Mount Clemens. The Devils must share the EML crown with Mount Clemens.

ULS wins a league soccer title, but falls in the second round of state play, 1-0, but not before playing 80 regulation minutes, 30 minutes of overtime and a shootout in defense of its state title.

South's girls tennis team wins its eighth straight Class A tennis title; ULS takes its fifth consecutive C-D crown. North is second in the regional finals.

In cross country, South's girls win the regional over runner-up North. The South boys are regional champs, too.

NOVEMBER: "We're hoping to make our presence felt... right from the outset." — North's Sumbera.

North shuts out the football Blue Devils, 3-0, in overtime. It is the Norsemen's seventh consecutive win after an 0-2 start and the first shutout in the series' history.

In the cross country finals, North is third and South, eighth. North's girls' basketball team wins its first Bi-County title outright. The girls win 13 games in a row at one point, and allow an average of just 31 points per game.

DECEMBER: Grosse Pointe Academy student Peter Donaldson finishes 24th out of 150 in the TAC Junior Olympics cross country championships in St. Louis, Mo. His top-25 time of 11:58 earns him All-American age group honors.

"A tough schedule like ours gives us a good indication of the type of personnel we have." — South basketball coach George Petrouleas.

The basketball Blue Devils start the 1984-85 season with a best-in-10-years mark of 5-0, including a season-opening win over perennially top-ranked Highland Park.

North and South begin their second seasons of varsity hockey play — this year in the difficult Michigan Metro Hockey League from which 10 of the last 11 state champs have come.

Post-season honors...

University Liggett School senior Samantha DeSmet (in action against Bethesda) is among those to earn post-season basketball honors. DeSmet was selected for the first team of the All-Michigan Independent Athletic Conference Team. ULS Coach Shelly Owens named Phan Lam the Most Improved Player and DeSmet, Most Valuable. DeSmet averaged 14 points and 13 rebounds during the 1984 season.

Sports people

South High School graduate and Oakland University swimmer Jeff Colton, 1983 national champion in the 100 and 200 backstroke, has qualified again in both events for the 1985 Division II nationals. His times in the 100 (52.98) and 200 (1:55.88) will allow him to challenge for the championship title March 21 through 23 in Springfield, Mass. Last season, Colton picked up All-American honors, placing second in the 100 and seventh in the 200.

While his Miami University men's soccer team was improving its 1982 mark of 3-12 to a surprising 10-3-4 record this season, former North High standout Peter Mogk was running his career shot total for the Redskins to 22, with six shots on goal in 1984. Miami scored 48 goals this season, breaking its record of 37 set in 1981. Mogk, the son of William Mogk, of McKinley Road, and Patricia Mogk, of East Ida Lane, is a senior majoring in business-economics at Miami, where he also plays varsity baseball. Mogk earned six varsity letters while a Norseman.

Hope College has awarded its fallsports athletic letters and among the new crop of letter winners is the Pointe's Jerry Bockstanz. For Bockstanz, a football lineman for the Hope College Flying Dutchmen, it marked his third varsity football letter. He is a junior at Hope and a graduate of North High School.

In Squirt Division play, the Sabres topped the Blues, 3-2, at the GPCR. Mike Owens and John Maycock put the Sabres up by two in the first period; Owens' goal was unassisted and Billy Burns and Bryan Cass assisted on Maycock's goal.

The Blues came from behind and tied the game in the third period with Matt Carrier's two unassisted goals. But with less than three minutes to go in the game, Bryan Cass scored on a beautiful rebound shot; Garret Ryan drew the assist. The Sabres' Stephen Wesley and the Blues' Chris Eldridge were outstanding in goal for their teams. Sam Hartson, Bill Cass and Mark Waterman played heads-up hockey for the Sabres.

FLYERS-RED WINGS
The Flyers got back in the win column with an exciting 3-2 victory over the Red Wings. Alex Olmsted opened the scoring in the first period, Jay Berger assisting. The Wings widened their lead in the second period on Berger's power play goal from Olmsted. But in the third period, Peter Antonenko got the Flyers on the scoreboard; Scott Wiczorkowski drew an assist. Then Kris Hognlund scored an unassisted goal to tie the game at 2-2.

Mike Gandelot's first goal of the season for the Flyers proved to be the game-winner in the third period. Danny Bombich drew an assist on the play. Tom Best was outstanding in goal for the Flyers and Gary Olson and Jason Chevalier played major roles in the victory. Flyers Mike Ugval and Bombich played well.

North cagers win first

By Bill Hoover
North High

Following the Norsemen's 44-43 loss to crosstown rival South on Dec. 18, the varsity basketball team won its first of the season on Friday, Dec. 21, beating the Port Huron Big Reds, 48-36, at Port Huron.

"Good team defense," according to coach George Olman was the key to the North victory. The Norsemen allowed the Big Reds just 15 first half points, while scoring 24 themselves.

In the second half, North's "big men," 6-4 Rob Skuras, 6-3 Art Szymanski and 6-5 Kevin Weidinger, controlled the boards and in turn, the tempo of the game, as the Norsemen cruised to the victory.

Weidinger led North in scoring as he had in the South loss, totalling 14 points and 16 rebounds. Szymanski had 14 points and seven rebounds. Dan Kopitzke dished off eight asists; Skuras added seven rebounds.

"We needed this win," Olman said. "We should have been at least 2-2 in 1984, but this win picks up our confidence and shows us that good team defense is better than team offense."

Sophomore Chris "Swish" Dudeck has been a bright spot for the Norsemen so far this season. He found his way into the varsity lineup after beginning the year on the JV squad and played an excellent game against South, dishing off four assists and scoring five points.

North, now 1-3, visits Warren Woods Tower on Tuesday, Jan. 8, at 7:30 p.m.

North honored

The Detroit Free Press has named its All-East girls' basketball team — and the selections have a definite North flavor.

Celeste Sartor was named to the Second Team and Paula Harms, Pam Boesiger and Dawn Cartwright earned Honorable Mention. North coach Gary Bennett was named All-East Coach of the Year.

Bennett's approach to making the Norsemen winners is a different one. He uses praise to help boost players' morale, instead of scolding after a loss. He passes out "Coach's Awards" after each game.

Bennett played for Ray Ritter at North and after graduation from Alma College, he coached eighth grade boys' basketball at L'Anse Creuse Middle School, then coached the JV girls at L'Anse Creuse North, before moving on to the varsity team. Bennett came to North where his teams have collected a 30-11 win-loss record in two seasons (17-4 this year), including two Bi-County titles. (By Ed Comber).

'Y' basketball for boys

South still perfect

By David Loffredo
South High

Still perfect! South's varsity basketball Blue Devils ran their unbeaten mark to 5-0 by beating Sterling Heights, 65-64, on Dec. 21.

The Devils followed their 44-43 overtime win over North with another close one against Sterling Heights. The contest was tied 34-34 at the half and remained a two point game until 2:10 remained in the fourth quarter. Rick Whitney then put South up by three, 65-62, after Al Ament hit six consecutive free throws.

The Stallions pulled to within one with 22 seconds left and retained the ball with 13 seconds to go, but ran out of time when Ament (who scored 29 points) came down with the rebound with two seconds left.

South went into the holiday break with a 5-0 mark, with three of those victories being decided by two points or less.

The Devils will host Fraser Tuesday, Jan. 8, at 7:45 p.m.

Frosh are even

South's ninth grade basketball team evened its record at 2-2 by losing to North High, 51-45, on Dec. 18, then bouncing back with a 62-60 overtime win over L'Anse Creuse North.

The Devils trailed the Norsemen, 29-13, at halftime before rallying for 23 points in the third quarter to pull within one point, but ran out of gas in the final quarter. Mike Paull (14 points, five rebounds) and Doug Lucas (13 and nine) topped the South scoring. Also scoring were Nick Saros (eight), Jim Johnson and Andre Bielski (four each) and Matt Aldrich (two).

Against L'Anse Creuse North, South jumped out to a 26-17 halftime lead, but a 26-point fourth quarter by the Crusaders made it 54-54 at the end of regulation play. The Devils outscored the Crusaders, 8-6, in the overtime session to take the victory.

Bielski (18 points, four rebounds) and Lucas (13 and eight), led South. Also hitting the scoring column were Paull (eight), Mike Finch (six), Saros, Johnson and Marty Saad (four each), and Matt Montagne, Chris Langs and Bryan Jones (four each).

Coach John Jones' freshmen are idle until Jan. 8, when they host Notre Dame in a return match. (Compiled by freshman staff).

Icers fall to 4-3

South's hockey Blue Devils saw their record drop to 4-3, losing to Allen Park Cabrini, 3-1, on Dec. 21.

South's lone goal came on a shot from Rankin Barker, assisted by Anthony Eugenio. Starting goaltender Bill Tecos was forced to leave the game early with a neck injury, but he is expected to return to action soon.

South visits Midland Dow at 7:30 p.m. Friday, Jan. 4.

Swimmers make cut

South's undefeated boys' varsity swim team improved its record to 3-0 beating DeLaSalle and East Detroit in a tri-meet Dec. 20.

Two South swimmers qualified for the state meet in the contest — Rick Leonard in the 100 breaststroke and Matt Smith in the 100 butterfly.

The Blue Devils swim team will resume its schedule on Friday, Jan. 11, at 7 p.m. at Ann Arbor Huron.

Pointers lead Falcons

Former South High varsity hockey assistant coaches Tom McCubbin and Bob Morris have turned their coaching talents over to the Falcons, a Junior "A" team owned by Pointers Maurice Hogan and Carlos Ugval. Morris and McCubbin assist head coach Jeff Jackson.

GPA girls finish at 7-1

The Grosse Pointe Academy's girls' basketball team completed its season last week with a 7-1 record. The girls were coached by Pam Varty.

On Dec. 3, GPA topped Academy of the Sacred Heart, 16-14. Sonja Scott had eight points, including a foul shot in the last six seconds. Joanne Ingrao and Meghan Brady had four points each.

Then on Dec. 6, GPA edged Liggett, 15-12, as Scott scored six points, Brady had four and Jamie Robinson netted two. Scott scored 14 points in GPA's 31-4 trouncing of Kingsbury on Dec. 11. Brady had seven, Robinson, six, and Ingrao, four.

The GPA girls finished their season on Dec. 17 with a 20-18 win over Liggett. Scott and Ingrao had 10 points each.

That masculine name changed most frequently in court action during the last 40 years is Adolph.

Greatest pro football quarterback of all time, some say, was Sammy Baugh. In his best season, he earned $19,000.

On Friday, Dec. 7, the University Liggett Middle School varsity basketball team ran its season record to 3-1 with a 47-27 win over previously undefeated St. Thomas (East Detroit).

Eighth grader Bill Lucken led all scorers with 11 points and four assists. His classmate, Dike Ajiri, added 10 points, eight rebounds and nine steals. Seventh grader Anthony Abiragi contributed 10 points and excellent defense. Eighth grade forward Dan Shanle snared six rebounds and scored six points.

From Another Pointe Of View

By Janet Mueller

Calling all East Side women with baccalaureate or higher degrees who want to begin the New Year by joining an active, mentally-stimulating organization, a group with programs and projects sufficiently varied to appeal to many life styles, from stay-at-homes with small children to full or part-time careerists to recent retirees looking for some post-career discipline!

The Grosse Pointe Branch of the American Association of University Women will hold a Prospective Members Coffee on Wednesday evening, Jan. 16, at 7:30 p.m. at Grosse Pointe Memorial Church.

There'll be a brief overview of the local branch, which started in 1944 with 30 charter members — and now has 450 women on its membership rolls. There'll be a series of displays spotlighting the branch's study groups, in which small numbers of women meet, usually in informal settings, to discuss everything from antiques and art to creative parenting, finance, literature, international relations, stocks and investments, or to pursue such hobbies as gourmet cooking, chorus singing and stitchery.

"We provide a network for women with a wide variety of backgrounds, ages and interests," says Pointe AAUW President Peggy Ptasznik. Proudly.

Her sentiments are echoed by veteran members as well as newcomers like Viki Adik, who moved to The Pointe a year ago and joined the branch last September. "I work part time," says Viki, "and I enjoy meeting, through the AAUW organization, other women in business. Also: AAUW is a great way to become involved in a new community."

Another new member is Eloise Spencer, recently retired from a career with the YWCA. "I've found it most stimulating to work on the Legislative Committee, with a group of equally concerned women, this year," she says. "The legislative Community is my particular focus — but there's something in AAUW to fit almost everybody's needs."

Yours, perhaps? It's at least worth checking out. If you'd like a bit more information before definitely deciding to check in at Memorial Church the evening of Jan. 16, the number to call is 886-3597.

National Cathedral News

Again this year, on the first Sunday of the New Year, Michigan State Day will be celebrated at the National Cathedral in Washington, D.C., where construction of the west towers of St. Peter and St. Paul in the area above the Pilgrim Observation Gallery, only part of the cathedral which remains unfinished, continues. Hopefully, they will be completed by 1990.

For some 60 years, Michigan has been closely associated with the Washington Cathedral. National Cathedral Association committees formed in the '20s in both Detroit and Grand Rapids. Among the three regional NCA chairmen for Michigan is Mrs. Gilbert E. Gove, a recent "Pointer of Interest" in connection with her work for the 1984 Planned Parenthood Holiday Mart. Another Pointer, Mrs. Alexander L. Weiner, is a member of the NCA board of trustees.

This year, the National Cathedral Association of Eastern Michigan has scheduled a membership dessert and coffee for the first Monday of the New Year, next Monday, Jan. 7, from 1:30 to 3:30 p.m. at Thornlea, the estate of Henry Scripps Booth, located by Brookside School and across from Kingswood School on the Cranbrook Educational Complex grounds in Bloomfield Hills.

Reservations, which must be received by tomorrow, Friday, Jan. 4, are being taken by a pair of Pointers, Mrs. Al Ricca, 822-9311, and Mrs. George H. Zinn Jr., 884-5274. Carol Gove is chairman of the NCA-Eastern Michigan board. Marlene Ricca and Mary Anne Zinn are the board's membership chairmen.

Special guest will be National Cathedral Trustee, Mrs. Paul Ignatius, a member of the Episcopal Diocese of Washington's Commission of Inquiry on the Nuclear/Peace Issue, composed of 12 lay persons and three clergy and chaired by Viran Vahy, former Assistant Undersecretary of State for Inter-American Affairs.

The Commission of Inquiry's purpose is to meet with America's decision makers and to study the nuclear issue and the problems of arms control that face them, then to meet with theologians and ethicists who are working to evolve Christian answers to these problems. Nancy Ignatius has consulted with government leaders and arms control experts from the Secretary of Defense to leaders of Salt I and II, Ambassador Gerard Smith and Paul Warnke.

If you can't make it to "the other side of town" to meet this fascinating woman, who went to Russia recently with a group of some 250 representatives of Christian churches in the United States, reciprocating a visit of Russian religious leaders to Washington in May, take heart: Mrs. Ignatius is coming to Grosse Pointe.

She'll be guest speaker for the Episcopal Church Women of Christ Church, Grosse Pointe, next Tuesday, Jan. 8, at 10:15 a.m., following the 9:30 a.m. Eucharist, reporting on the proceedings of the Commission of Inquiry, which will have met with 15 experts before the theologians and ethicists make their report, and on her trip to Russia, and detailing as much of the Commission's final report as is available at this time.

The Episcopal Church Women from St. Michael's Episcopal Church in The Woods have been invited to join the Christ Church Episcopal Church Women for this Very Special Program. Other interested women and men from the community are invited to join them in the Christ Church Undercroft for Mrs. Ignatius' presentation.

They're invited, too, to stay on for the luncheon following her presentation, but MUST MAKE LUNCHEON RESERVATIONS NO LATER THAN TOMORROW, Friday, Jan. 4, through the Church Office, 885-4841. Babysitting service is available by prior arrangement, also through the Church Office.

Wine to give survival skill lecture series

Sherwin T. Wine, director of the Center for New Thinking, launches a new lecture series, "Skills for Survival," on Wednesday, Jan. 9, at 9:30 a.m. at the Grosse Pointe War Memorial. His four successive Wednesday morning forums will focus on Self-Awareness, Selling Yourself, Making Rational Decisions and Motivating Others.

In the initial program, on Self-Awareness, Wine will explain the myriad psychic devices people erect to shield themselves from reality, and offer some clear procedures to knock down these pseudo-protective shields.

In the second session, Selling Yourself, he will focus on the individual's sense of worth. "Persuading ourselves that we are worthwhile, attractive and useful is important to our survival and happiness," he observes, "but we do not wish to 'sell' ourselves at the price of our dignity or integrity. We want to be both honest and effective."

Making Rational Decisions, the third lecture, deals with the premise that nobody cares as much about our own survival as we do. "In the end, we have to learn to rely upon ourselves," Wine says. "And we have to learn to live with other people without making inappropriate demands on their time and energy."

The final program, Jan. 30, will focus on the art of inspiring others. Group dynamics will be discussed — and why normally successful one-on-one tactics do not succeed in groups. "Whether we are parents, teachers, managers or community workers," Wine maintains, "we need to know how to motivate others."

Fee for the series is $20. Fee for a single lecture is $6. Registration information may be obtained by calling 881-7511.

Bass-Tischler vows spoken

Christ Church, Grosse Pointe, was the setting for the early autumn wedding of Chloe Ann Tischler, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Howard M. Tischler, of Bedford Road, and Keith Howard Bass, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles E. Bass, of Waco, Tex.

Presiding at the 4 o'clock rites Saturday, September 8, was The Reverend Nancy McGrath, of Saint Stephen's Church, Troy, assisted by The Reverend Edward A.M. Cobden Jr., rector, Christ Church.

A reception followed at the Grosse Pointe Yacht Club, after which the newlyweds left to vacation in Toronto. They are at home in The Woodlands, Tex.

The bride's gown of ivory delustered satin featured an Alencon lace bodice beaded with seed pearls, styled with a wedding band collar of re-embroidered Alencon lace and an illusion yoke, leg-of-mutton sleeves and an A-line skirt falling from a natural waistline.

Cameo lace appliques accented with beaded Alencon lace were scattered over her skirt and chapel length train, both featuring scalloped hemlines. She wore a modified picture hat of ivory satin, its brim trimmed with seed pearl-studded re-embroidered Alencon lace.

Her pouffed veil was fingertip length, falling from the center back of the hat. She carried a cascade of stephanotis, pink and white roses and ivy.

Faith Lynn Tischler, who came from Houston, Tex., to act as honor maid for her sister, and bridesmaids Mini McIntyre, their cousin, of Albuquerque, N.M., Denise (Mrs. Gregory) Ward, of Detroit, and Lynn M. Farland and Luann McCoy, both of Houston, wore dresses of burgundy taffeta, styled with sweetheart necklines, three-quarter length sleeves ending in ruffles and full skirts with double tiers of ruffles.

Their matching modified picture hats featured blushers and shoulder length veils. The bridesmaids carried cascades of rubrum lilies, rose-rio alstromeria and ivy. The honor maid's cascade was fashioned of rubrum lilies, alstromeria and red Sweetheart roses.

Flower girls Rebecca Bass, the bridegroom's sister, and Wendy Ward, in dresses identical to those of the senior attendants, carried ivory lace parasols accented with Sweetheart roses.

Best man was Joseph Pearson, of Waco. Groomsmen were Robert Felton and Mitchell Migl, both of Houston, Charles Rosemond, of Spring, Tex., and John Schindler, of Huntsville, Tex. Ushers were the bridegroom's brothers, Charles E. Bass Jr., of Houston, and John Bass, of Grapeland, Tex.

The mother of the bride wore a chemise of dove grey silk jacquard, its collar extending into a bow at the shoulder. She pinned rose-rio alstromeria to her purse. The bridegroom's mother accented her wine-colored dress, long-sleeved and featuring a draped neckline, with a shoulder corsage of pink Sweetheart roses.

Mr. and Mrs. Keith H. Bass

Out-of-town guests included the bride's grandparents, Raymond Poetzl, of Albuquerque, and Dr. and Mrs. Louis Tischler, of Bradenton, Fla., and her aunts and uncle, Susan McIntyre, of Albuquerque, Kim LeVasseur, of Fairfax, Va., Judith Tischler, of Winter Park, Fla., and Mr. and Mrs. Paul Tischler, of Washington, D.C., plus great-aunts and uncles from Florida, Georgia, Illinois, Ohio and Virginia.

Representing the bridegroom's family were his sister-in-law, Mrs. John Bass, who came with her husband from Grapeland, and an uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. Victor Mueck, of Waco.

State's chefs get the gold

Nevada has gambling, California has wine . . . and Michigan is beginning to emerge as the country's center for fine dining.

"If the recent Culinary Olympics are an indicator, Michigan is on its way to becoming a strong force in the world of fine foods," says Reid Ashton, owner of the Golden Mushroom in Southfield and board member of the Michigan Restaurant Association. "Michigan's foodservice education programs are among the best in the country. We prove that constantly in our restaurants, and we proved that at the Culinary Olympics."

The 16th International Culinary Olympics, a competition conducted every four years in which top chefs from around the world vie for gold, silver and bronze medals, was held last October in Frankfurt, Germany. Michigan had more chefs chosen for the Olympics and emerged with more gold medals per chef than any other state in the nation.

Michigan's chefs brought home a total of six gold medals, one gold cloverleaf and one bronze medal.

The 50 United States chefs entered in the Culinary Olympics earned an average of 2.5 medals each, the highest percentage of medals per contestant of any country. Michigan contributed four of the 50 chefs, the largest contingency from any one state.

Milos Cihelka, master chef at Ashton's Golden Mushroom, and Jeff Gabriel, executive chef of the Grosse Pointe Yacht Club, each earned a 'Gold Medal with Distinction,' given only to entries deemed 100 percent perfect in the eyes of all six judges. They triumphed over thousands to receive the coveted awards, of which only five were given worldwide.

Gabriel then went on to earn another gold medal later in the competition.

In the team events, the highlight of the show, the United States cooked its way to two of the three gold medals awarded. Michigan's Dan Hugelier, executive chef of Schuler's, was among the four-member United States National Team. This is a highly coveted honor, since only one team per country is allowed to enter the competition.

Hugelier also won another prestigious award, a gold cloverleaf for his centerpieces of dough sculpted in shapes of wild game.

Another Michigan chef, Kamel Kassem of Detroit's Renaissance Club, also came home wearing medals. He earned both gold and bronze awards for his entries.

Judith Perkins to be married

Mr. and Mrs. Paul T. Perkins, of Warner Road, are announcing the engagement of their daughter, Judith Paull, to Bruce Laine Broquet, son of Dr. and Mrs. Ronald W. Broquet, of Ossineke. A September wedding is planned.

Miss Perkins holds a Bachelor of Arts degree from Michigan State University, where she affiliated with Alpha Phi. She is a member of the Adcrafter Club of Detroit and the Women's Advertising Club of Detroit.

Mr. Broquet received his Bachelor of Arts degree from Albion College, where he affiliated with Sigma Chi. He is a member of the Detroit Athletic Club.

Fall wedding date revealed

The wedding of Kathy Lynn Smith, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Richard W. Smith, of Dearborn, and John Eugene Dunaway III, of Lincoln Road, was followed by a reception at the Henry Ford Estate, Fair Lane.

Presiding at the 6 o'clock rites Saturday, October 13, in Dearborn's Cherry Hill Presbyterian Church was Dr. Frank C. Marvin Jr. The bride wore a traditional gown of silk-satin, styled with an off-the-shoulder neckline and chapel train, and carried an arrangement of white roses, baby's-breath and ivy.

Honor attendant Kirsten Solberg and bridesmaids Nancy Schultz, of Boston, Mass., Karen Calso and Julie Zecchini, in off-the-shoulder dresses of dusty rose taffeta, carried bouquets of roses and baby's-breath.

Mr. Dunaway, son of former Pointer William F. Dunaway, of Battle Creek, and the late Mrs. Dunaway, asked Roger Fitch Jr. to act as best man. Guests were seated by the bridegroom's brother, William Dunaway Jr., and the bride's brothers, David and Jeffrey Smith.

The newlyweds vacationed on St. Thomas in the Virgin Islands. They are at home on Lincoln Road.

New setting for Flemish, German art

Distinguished Flemish and German art of the 15th through 17th centuries has acquired a new setting in four redesigned galleries of the Detroit Institute of Arts.

Over a two-year period, the series of rooms on the third level of the museum's Ford Wing underwent a total transformation, including new carpeting, glass and brass inset wall cases, easy-to-read labels and backlit settings for stained glass. Grey-brown hues now provide a warm, muted background for the objects displayed.

Some of the important works, like the "Portrait of Abbot Johann Ingenray" by Jan van Gossaert (Mabuse), are on view for the first time in recent decades. Others, like a precious Flemish boxwood triptych and Holbein's "Portrait of a Lady," are recent acquisitions or gifts.

The DIA's important collection of Flemish painting includes works by Jan van Eyck, the school of Rogier van der Weyden, Gerard David, the Master of the St. Lucy Legend, Jan Provost, Pieter Bruegel the Elder, Peter Paul Rubens and Antony van Dyke. Many, like Bruegel's boisterous "Wedding Dance" and Van Eyck's exquisitely detailed "St. Jerome in His Study," are longtime public favorites.

The installation includes German paintings by Hans Holbein, Lucas Cranach and Michael Wolgemut and early Dutch panels by Jan van Scorel and Jacob Cornelisz van Oostanen. Among the works cleaned by the museum's Conservation Services Laboratory is the "Holy Family with St. Anne" by Jacob Jordaens. It's extremely yellowed varnish was removed, revealing the true coloration of brilliant pinks and yellows.

Sixteen German and Flemish stained glass panels are built into the walls in a permanent display highlighting this aspect of the collection, which is considered one of the finest in the nation. Among the important pieces is part of a Crucifixion window depicting "The Three Marys," from the Carmelite church at Boppard-am-Rhein. Another is a series of five saints dating back to the early 16th century.

The DIA's German and Flemish sculpture collection also is among the most important in America. It includes major works by Tilman Riemenschneider, Gregor Erhardt and Jorg Lederer and a carved oak "Lamentation," formerly in the Arenberg collection, by a sculptor in the circle of Rogier van der Weyden.

Furniture of the appropriate period is placed in the galleries, along with small scale objects in precious metals, brass, pewter, ivory and other materials. The renovation was funded by a major grant from the National Endowment for the Arts, matched by funds from the Founders Society Detroit Institute of Arts.

The Flemish and German galleries are open to the public during regular museum hours.

Rites in March for Lauri Neill

March wedding plans are being made by Lauri Anne Neill and Dr. Raymond Edward Frank Schmoke, of St. Clair Avenue, whose engagement was announced late last summer at a cocktail party given by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Anthony J. Vernogis, of Chalfonte Avenue. Among the approximately 50 guests were the bride-elect's maternal grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Hebert, of Ruskin, Fla.

Miss Neill was graduated from Grosse Pointe South High School and attended Western Michigan University, where she studied Biomedical Sciences and affiliated with Alpha Phi social sorority and Beta Beta Beta biological honor society.

She holds a Bachelor of Science degree in Microbiology from Oakland University and is continuing her studies in Nursing.

Dr. Schmoke, son of Mr. and Mrs. Raymond E. Schmoke, of Taylor, received his Bachelor of Arts degree in Biology from The Catholic University, Washington, D.C. He studied at the University of Paris and attended Medical School at the Free University of Brussels. He is currently a resident in Internal Medicine at Saint John Hospital.

Royal-Carey troth is told

Mr. and Mrs. Bruce Douglas Carey, of Moran Road, are announcing the engagement of their daughter, Ann Dunwoody Carey, to Mark Cassidy Royal, son of Mrs. Charlotte C. Royal, of Wilmette, Ill., and William J. Royal, of Chicago. The wedding is planned for early September.

Miss Carey was graduated from Grosse Pointe South High School and holds a Bachelor of Arts degree in History of Art from the University of Michigan. She is a member of Pi Beta Phi. Her fiancé is an alumnus of New Trier East High School and attended Northeastern University, Boston, Mass.

May wedding date is made

Mr. and Mrs. William P. Richards, of Wedgewood Drive, are announcing the engagement of their daughter, Anne Marie, to Matthew J. Costello, son of Mrs. James F. Costello, of Edshire Lane, and the late Mr. Costello. An early May wedding is planned.

Both the bride-elect and her fiancé are Grosse Pointe North High School graduates, members of the Class of 1980. She is a nursing student at Nazareth College. He holds a Bachelor of Science degree in Computer Science from Western Michigan University.

A New Year for Phase I

Phase I, the single, young adults, ages 25 to 40, who gather regularly for Sunday evening program meetings at Grosse Pointe Memorial Church, begins the New Year with a program on "Crime Prevention: How Not to Become a Victim" by Detroit Police Officer Michael Sedmak this Sunday, Jan. 6, at 7:45 p.m.

His talk will cover protection of self, car and home, and will be followed by a question-and-answer period.

Cutts' focus is literature

Graham Greene's "A Burnt-Out Case" will be the subject of Dr. John P. Cutts' first program in a series of discussions on classic and contemporary literature. His eight-session winter course meets from 1 to 2 p.m. weekly at the Grosse Pointe War Memorial, starting Thursday, Jan. 10.

Cutts, a teacher of Drama and Literature at Oakland University, will distribute a reading list at the first class — but those who would like to get a head start should note that the following will be discussed: Kesey's "One Flew Over the Cuckoo's Nest," Pirandello's "Six Characters in Search of an Author," Sophocles' "Electra" and O'Neill's "Mourning Becomes Electra."

There will also be two sessions devoted to short stories, and one to the poetry of Eliot and Thomas. Course fee is $40. Further information may be obtained and registration made by calling 881-7511.

Call women to network

Jane Wulf, owner of Carleton's, and Penny Weaver, owner of Penny Jean Cosmetics, will present a creative exploration of make-up and wardrobe options for members and guests of the Michigan Professional Women's Network on Monday, Jan. 14, at Somerset Inn in Troy.

The dinner program, which begins with a networking hour at 6 p.m., is open to the public, by advance reservation. Further information may be obtained by calling 851-9441.

The MPWN, organized to help career women succeed in business, industry and educational fields, seeks to assist women to move ahead in their careers by sharing information, learning from speakers and actively networking together. At the January meeting, Weaver and Wulf will present a fashion showing especially designed for the professional woman.

MOT ready for 15th year

Michigan Opera Theatre is poised for its 15th anniversary season, opening in October of 1985, to be highlighted by the debut appearance of Bulgarian soprano Gheena Dimitrova in the title role of Giacomo Puccini's "Turandot."

This new production of "Turandot" is scheduled for two performances, March 5 and 8, 1985. It will be staged for the Masonic Temple Auditorium and presented in Italian, with English Surtitles.

Dimitrova's appearance with MOT not only marks her company debut, but her first United States portrayal of the Chinese princess. She is scheduled to sing "Turandot" for the Metropolitan Opera a year later, during the Met's 1986-87 season.

Announcement of the Dimitrova appearance was made early in the month, during MOT's annual trustee meeting and dinner, held at the Detroit Athletic Club. Lynn Townsend, chairman of the MOT trustees, announced the re-election of 1985-86 board officers Robert E. Dewar, chairman, Dr. David DiChiera, president, Cameron B. Duncan, treasurer, and J. Addison Bartush, secretary.

In recognition of the 15th anniversary season, 15 new trustees were added, including local residents Mr. and Mrs. Alfred J. Fisher Jr. and David Gamble.

Further information on MOT's "Turandot" production may be obtained by calling the MOT subscription hotline, 963-0920.

Heralding the anniversary season, the Michigan Opera Theatre Guild, in cooperation with Pan American Airlines and Chuck Randolph Travel and Tours of Birmingham, will sponsor a 10-day cultural tour of Austria's two music capitals, Salzburg and Vienna, this spring.

Highlights of the March 19-28 tour include a visit to Wolfgang Amadeus Mozart's birthplace in Salzburg and performances of Gounod's opera "Faust" and Tchaikovsky's "Swan Lake" ballet in Vienna, plus concerts in Austrian castles and visits to state museums and other musical and historic sites.

The MOT group will see the Vienna Choir Boys perform at the Imperial Chapel of the Vienna Hofburg, and the Lippizan horses perform at the Spanish Riding School. Reservations are limited to 40 individuals, and must be confirmed no later than Jan. 15. Further information may be obtained by contacting Denise Smith at 642-0669 or Chuck Randolph Tours, 645-5050.

Learn chair seat weaving

"Chair Seat Weaving," taught by Mary Herbert, will meet on Tuesdays, starting at 7 p.m., Jan. 15 through Feb. 12 at the Grosse Pointe War Memorial.

Participants should bring the chair they wish to work on. They will learn caning, pre-woven cane, paper rush, flat splints and wicker repair. Course fee is $40.

Pre-registration is requested, to avoid class cancellation, in person or by mail at the War Memorial. Further information may be obtained by calling 881-7511.

To chair DGOA season

Grosse Pointe's PEGGY FORD (seated) is serving as general chairman of the Detroit Grand Opera Association's 1984-85 season, assisted by fellow Farms resident BARBARA LORD (standing) as co-chairman. Their appointments were announced by Peggy's husband, John B. Ford III, DGOA board president, at the board's annual meeting this fall at Masonic Temple, during which Mrs. Herbert I. Lord was officially voted in as a new director, along with Mrs. Roger Fridholm, of The Park, and Mr. and Mrs. Louis P. Fontana, of Bloomfield Hills. In addition, the Fontanas and Barbara Lord were voted in as members of the board of trustees, which is the Association's governing body, as were directors Peggy Ford and Donald M.D. Thurber, also of The Pointe. Peggy and Barbara share a wide variety of responsibilities in spearheading the DGOA's volunteer committees and coordinating the season's special events. The new general chairman is a former president of the Garden Club of Michigan and has served as a zone chairman for the Garden Club of America and as a director of the Junior League of Detroit and the Detroit Institute for Children. Barbara Lord has also been involved with the Junior League and with the Garden Club of Michigan, for which she was conservation chairman. She is currently a member of the Concern, Inc. Detroit board.

Yachtswomen meet Jan. 10

Yachtswomen begin the New Year next Thursday, Jan. 10, with an 8 p.m. meeting at the Great Lakes Yacht Club in St. Clair Shores. Hostesses will be members of the group's executive board, headed by Bonnie Hernan as president and Ruth Lowmaster as vice-president.

Other executive board members include Marjorie Huggins and Kay Crowe, recording and corresponding secretaries, respectively, Nancy Krantz, treasurer, Jean Bowen, assistant secretary-treasurer, and members-at-large Julianne McDougall and Florence Westby.

This will be the 27th consecutive year that the DGOA has sponsored the Metropolitan Opera's annual spring visit to Detroit. This season, the Met will perform May 20 through 25, 1985, in Masonic Auditorium.

The DGOA's 1984-85 slate of officers is headed by Frank W. Donovan as chairman and Mr. Ford as president and general manager. Richard L. Measelle serves as first vice-president, John C. Griffin as secretary, Gerard H. Spencer as treasurer.

Vice-presidents include Henry Ledyard, Mrs. A.H. Gershenson and Mr. Thurber, along with Melodee A. DuBois, who also serves as managing director. Ferdinand Cinelli is secretary emeritus.

Use woman's work skills

"Women must turn stumbling blocks into stepping stones and take action that will help them move ahead," advised Anne E. Impellizzeri, vice-president, Metropolitan Life Insurance Company, in a speech she made recently before an Ohio women's group.

Ms. Impellizzeri discussed the corporate woman's situation today, explaining that progress has been made but obstacles to career development still exist. Most women are fully aware of this fact, but few think to turn these barriers into stepping stones to more rewarding careers, as Ms. Impellizzeri suggests.

The following are helpful hints on how women can use stereotyped perceptions of themselves to get ahead in the corporate world:

- Women are often labeled as sensitive and perceptive. Use this sensitivity to become aware of the corporate culture. Observe how the game is played and learn how men get ahead as keys to forming your own career paths.
- Women are frequently considered good at helping roles. For success, fill these roles well. Gain recognition for them and find opportunities to convert them into leadership positions.
- Women are believed to be naive and uninformed. Since you are not expected to be knowledgeable, ask questions. Stroke men with respect. Make them feel important, so that you can obtain the information you need. Remember: information is power — both for fulfilling present responsibilities and capitalizing on future opportunities.

• Women are expected to be good with people. Use these interpersonal skills to the utmost; being people-oriented is good management today. Working well with people on all levels is the key to getting things done.

• Try to build support systems through networking. Many of the so-called womanly skills are fundamental to this strategy. Increased confidence will enable you to secure line rather than staff positions. A line position is directly involved in the production and marketing of the company's goods and services, and thus in the company's profitability.

Another way to secure more responsibility is to start your own company, to be an entrepreneur. But one can be an "intrapreneur" inside an already-established company. Intrapreneurs innovate, reach out and take risks to advance a new idea or product. The possibility of failure exists — but the rewards can be great.

Finally, never be afraid to capitalize on your femininity and turn stereotypes to your advantage.

Banish the winter 'blahs' with dance

The Wayne State University Dance Laboratory's winter term of classes starts Saturday, Jan. 12, in Detroit, with classes meeting Saturdays in Old Main, Cass at Warren, through Apr. 20.

Three to four-year-olds meet at 9 a.m., four to six-year-olds at 10 a.m. and seven to 10-year-olds at 11 a.m. A class for 11 to 15-year-olds is also offered at 11 a.m. A dance exercise class for adults is offered at both 9 and 10 a.m.

Fee for any of the 14-week series is $49. This is the 25th year for WSU's movement classes stressing creative, aesthetic and kinesthetic activities, with students working at their own age and ability levels, experiencing movement through imagery, poetry, stories, music and props.

Discounts are available to families and members of professional dance organizations, and some scholarship funds are available. Class size is limited, so early enrollment is suggested. Information and registration instructions may be obtained by calling 577-4273.

A 13-week winter term of WSU Dance Laboratory classes will also be offered in Bloomfield Hills, on Tuesdays, starting Jan. 8. Information on the Bloomfield Hills series may be obtained by calling 542-4275.

Spotlight Arab American life

A reception this Sunday, Jan. 6, from 2 to 4 p.m. in the International Institute of Metropolitan Detroit's American Room will open the Arab American Photo Exhibit by nationally-acclaimed Millard Berry to be featured at the Institute through January.

The 40 framed photographs, taken over a seven-year period, tell the story of Arab Americans in Wayne County. The show, funded by the Michigan Council for the Arts and the Arab Community Center for Economic and Social Services (ACC-CESS), with support from the International Institute, will make a brief stop at the Henry Ford Centennial Library in Dearborn after January, before going on national tour.

For reservations, call 871-8600 by Friday, Jan. 4.

Pointer of Interest

By Janet Mueller

She was coming home from shooting along Lakeshore when she saw THE shot. "I was driving up Kercheval, and I saw the light coming through the elm trees. The leaves, almost fully out, had that fresh, new green color that only comes in the spring."

But Betty was tired. A nature photographer keeps Vampire Hours, up at 5 a.m. to work with the morning light until 9 or so, back again about 4 p.m. to shoot until it's too dark to work anymore. The secret of good pictures, according to Lord Snowden, is getting up early. Betty agrees with him.

But it makes for an interesting schedule. Think of Betty, in the dark before the dawn, parking off-Lakeshore — there's no parking on Lakeshore — unloading her equipment, carrying it a city block or so, setting up, shooting ("about 100 frames for every shot I got; that's a pretty typical average for a photographer") . . . then, four hours later, reversing the process, struggling back to her car with tripod and camera case, loading up, driving off.

So she had every right to be tired when, coming home from work when most people are getting up for work, she saw the light coming through the elm trees on Kenwood Road, the old "Nun's Walk" alley. Kenwood, across Kercheval Avenue from the present Grosse Pointe Academy grounds, was part of those grounds when the Religious of the Sacred Heart founded their Grosse Pointe Academy of the Sacred Heart 100 years ago.

The flesh is weak. Betty saw the light and said to herself, "Self, you should stop." Self said to Betty, "You're much too tired to stop, and you only have about five frames left anyway. You should go home and go to bed."

THE SPIRIT WON. "I said to myself, 'Self, get out and shoot.' Self groaned, but got out, got out the tripod — and I got my Nun's Walk picture."

It's one of five Betty has selected for her Grosse Pointe Greetings post card series. The others are views of Saint Paul's-on-the-Lake, Grosse Pointe South High School, the Grosse Pointe War Memorial's Trial Gardens and a wonderful shot of Spring on Lakeshore featuring a misty Grosse Pointe Yacht Club framed in blossoming branches.

Betty is the series' photographer, publisher, sales representative and distributor. She is, in short, the company: Lions Gate Unlimited.

"I did it myself for the adventure of it, for the fun of doing it, because it was something no one else had done. I tend to get bored with routine. I like challenges.

"I could have sold the transparencies to another company, and gotten money up front. But then I wouldn't have had the feeling that I had created something. I wouldn't have had quality control. I'm not humble: my originals are really stunning, and I didn't want the foliage on my post cards coming out in 'Motel Green'."

Help African violets grow all winter long

If your African violets just sit there all winter, getting tall and straggly-looking and refusing to flower, you may wonder how African violets ever got to be the most popular flowering house plant.

Give yours a fair chance: place them under fluorescent lights for 12 to 16 hours a day for a few weeks. That should burst them into bloom.

Lee Taylor, Extension horticulture specialist at Michigan State University, says low light is usually the cause when African violets fail to flower. These plants need as much light as they can get, short of exposure to direct sunlight, Taylor says.

In response to sufficient light African violets are compact, with leaves on short petioles closely spaced on the stem. From above, a well-grown violet looks like a horizontal rosette topped with a nose-gay of brightly colored blossoms.

Colors available in African violets run the gamut from snowy white through pink and rose to deep purple. Flowers may be solid-colored or one color edged with another: white with pink or purple, for example, or purple with silver. Single flowers, some with frilly edges, and fully double flowers that look like miniature roses are available.

Caring for African violets is easier than many people think. They do best when potted in a prepared soil mix with some added humus, such as peat moss.

Elizabeth Carpenter, with her 'Nun's Walk' photo, now available as a Grosse Pointe Greetings post card: one of five in Betty's Grosse Pointe Greetings series.

It hasn't. Betty selected a Canadian printing company, located in Cornwall, Ont., because "they sounded like they'd take the same pride in doing the job as I had in doing the original pictures." She liked the fact that it was a small shop. "I talked to the same person every time I called. They knew me by name the second time I called."

Then, too, the exchange rate was very favorable. And it was neither the print shop nor Betty's fault that the post cards were seized at the border the first time it was attempted to send them across.

"CUSTOMS SAID there was no evidence they had been printed in Canada." So back the cards went, all 35,000 of them, to Cornwall. And back from Cornwall, with proof of origin, they eventually came, arriving, all 300 pounds of them, at Betty's home on Mapleton Road early in December — on the day she was due to take off for a 10-day vacation in London.

She went, of course. There was no question of conflicting priorities. London was tomorrow; the post cards would be there when she got back, safe in the Lions Gate Unlimited Distribution Center, previously known as Elizabeth Carpenter's Attic.

When she did get back, she took her first really good, long look at them. And she was pleased. "My parents are gone. For the first time in three years, since I quit my job at Hudson's (she'd been manager of the Advertising and Photographic Studio) to go on my own as a photographer, I thought, 'Wouldn't my mom and dad be proud of me!'"

"You're no hero in your own hometown. I suppose a good part of why I did the post cards is to give myself more credibility in the community."

Betty is a Native Daughter, an alumna of Grosse Pointe University School. She is a graduate of Wellesley. She is an artist. "I've been a painter, a lithographer . . . now my medium is the camera. I think not to appreciate nature is almost a sin. I try to capture the wonder of creation with my camera."

She had plenty of time to do that when she first left Hudson's, after 14 years. "I went out without clients. I had a lot of free time and a dog to walk."

SHE FOUND HER shots as she walked the dog, in the immediate world around her. "If you look, really LOOK, you can walk down the same street for years and never get bored. And Grosse Pointe is so beautiful. I don't understand people who think you have to go to Europe to take beautiful pictures. I wanted my pictures to prove that 'here' is beautiful: that there is incredible beauty within a quarter-mile radius of any home in Grosse Pointe."

So she took her Grosse Pointe photos, and from them came the Grosse Pointe Greetings post card series. Doing it, she discovered that business can be very creative. She went through all the steps. She learned. "It was exciting," she says.

The post cards are available through Lions Gate Unlimited, 886-0243, which also will take orders for hand-painted, glossy enlargements of the photos: $25 for an 8x10, $45 for an 11x14 (larger sizes available).

The post cards will also be available in local stores, retailing for 60 cents each. "Retailers tell me the price is cheap," says Betty, "but since nobody's getting a piece of the pie except me, I can live with it."

What she couldn't live with are post cards of less than exceptional quality. She doesn't have to.

Elegant Eating

A selection of recipes from the low-calorie, low-cholesterol — and penny-wise — collection of Thyra Grey Howard and Helena DeWitt Roth featuring, this week, DELICIOUS VEGETABLE DISHES.

STIR-FRIED CELERY WITH BROCCOLI

Typical Chinese seasonings give this dish its savor. The celery provides crunch. The broccoli lends its flavor and the contrast of its bright green color. There is the added asset of low calories, and the dish is inexpensive, with no cholesterol.

- 1 stalk celery
- 1 bunch broccoli (1 lb.)
- 3 Tbsp. vegetable oil
- 1 clove garlic, crushed
- 1 large onion, cut in rings
- 3 Tbsp. soy sauce
- 3/4 tsp. ground ginger
- 1/8 tsp. ground black pepper

Trim stem end from celery; remove leaves (use later in soups, salads and stews). Separate stalk into ribs; thinly slice ribs on the diagonal (makes about 6 cups). Cut broccoli into flowerettes; cut stems in half-inch thick slices (makes a total of 4 cups). Set aside. Heat oil in large wok or skillet. Sauté garlic for 30 seconds over low heat. Increase heat to high. Add celery and broccoli; stir-fry 3 minutes. Add onion, soy sauce, ginger and black pepper; stir-fry until vegetables are crisp tender, 2 to 3 minutes. Makes 4 to 6 servings.
