

James J. Williams receives top U of D award Feb. 23

James J. Williams, director of public relations for the Chevrolet Motor Division of General Motors Corp., and a resident of Grosse Pointe Park, received the President's Special Citation for Exemplary Service from the University of Detroit at its 1985 Homecoming Dinner Feb. 23.

Williams received the special award, U of D President Robert A. Mitchell, S.J. said, for his "key involvement and leadership as chairman of the Public Relations Advisory Committee to the university's board of trustees.

Made up of seven marketing and communication executives from the metropolitan Detroit area, the committee has developed a program for building public awareness of the university, especially among its key constituencies.

A U of D alumnus, Williams has been director of public relations for Chevrolet since 1978.

He and his wife, Marilee (Chee Chee) Saylor Williams, who is also a U of D graduate, have three children. Their son, Jerome, is a senior engineering student at U of D.

The university also presented six other major awards during its homecoming festivities.

Alumnus of the Year Award went to former Titan basketball great Dave DeBuschere, who currently serves as executive vice president and director of Basketball Operations for the New York Knicks.

Richard Measelle of Grosse Pointe, managing partner of Arthur Andersen and Co., and the immediate past chairman of the University of Detroit's Board of Trustees, received the Honorary Alumnus Award.

Tower Awards were presented to three alumni: Vito Cusenza of Grosse Pointe, general manufacturing manager for Ford Motor Co.; Freda D'Souza Fenner of Detroit, account executive for Anthony M. Franco, Inc., and Phillip A. DiMam-bro of Bloomfield Hills, vice president of DiMambro Construction Company.

Cleric to be honored Sunday

The Rev. David B. Antonson, associate pastor and head of Christian Education at Grosse Pointe Memorial Church, will be honored at a farewell reception Sunday, March 10, from 4 to 6 p.m. in Fellowship Hall.

He served the church for 10 years. He is leaving to be senior pastor at the Northmont United Presbyterian Church in Pittsburgh, Pa.

At Grosse Pointe Memorial, he worked with youth groups, was active with the Confirmands program and helped to design and develop the Middle Hour Christian Education program. In the community, he worked with the Health Education Council and the Children's Home of Detroit.

Dr. Antonson is a graduate of the University of Minnesota and has a master of divinity degree from Columbia Theological Seminary in Decatur, Ga. He earned a doctorate in 1978 from McCormick Theological Seminary in Chicago.

He and his wife, Judy, have four sons, Stephen, 18, Philip, 16, James, 14, and Paul, 11.

Sisters of Bon Secours open nursing care center

The Sisters of Bon Secours have opened a Nursing Care Center in St. Clair Shores, at 26001 E. Jefferson Ave., between 10 and 11 Mile. The center represents the latest concept in long-term nursing care.

"For a lot of people, this is going to be home," said Gary Gintzig, executive director. "We're trying to create an independent, apartment-like environment around which we can deliver 24-hour nursing care and supervision."

The 200-bed center is designed to blend with the residential character of the area. Residents will live in an environment that includes a three-story atrium and lively interior decorated in coordinated pastel colors.

Respite care will be offered in the future. This is designed for families who plan to be away for a short time and want an elderly family member to stay in a secure and supervised setting.

The center's services include 24-hour skilled and basic nursing care, X-ray, laboratory, recreational, occupational and speech therapy, social work and full dietary services. In addition, a gift shop, pharmacy services, laundry and daily living development are available to all residents.

Each double room has its own lavatory and overlooks landscaped grounds. A fire protection system provides sprinklers throughout the building. It also monitors and protects every room by automatically closing doors in case of fire to seal out smoke. Also, the temperature of each room may be individually controlled.

The center provides rehabilitative care at a lower cost than a hospital setting. For example, instead of remaining in the hospital for about 14 days, after hip-replacement surgery, a patient may transfer to the Nursing Care Center after seven or eight days — at a savings of about $200 per day.

The Sisters of Bon Secours also own and operate Bon Secours Hospital, a Family Practice Center, Internal Medicine Center, Cardiopulmonary and Physical Therapy Center, Health & Fitness Center, Hospice Home Care Program, and jointly operate the Calvary Adult Day Care Center.

M-Star may be on air by the end of March

By Mike Andrzejczyk

Students in Grosse Pointe and Harper Woods public, parochial and independent schools may be watching television in their classrooms by the end of the month.

What they'll be watching is the M-Star Network, quality programming designed for use in grade and high schools to supplement classroom instruction. Grosse Pointe Cable General Manager Michael DuFour said last week the company hopes to begin broadcasting M-Star by the end of March.

Cable company and public school representatives were to have met Monday morning with the Association of the Non-Public Educational Community to discuss the programming and decide how the cable company was to bring in the signal. Monday's meeting, like an earlier meeting in February on the subject, was snowed out.

The company is working on several alternatives for transmitting the programming. Plant Manager T.J. Seckely said. One way is to place an Antenna on the roof of St. John Hospital to catch the M-Star signal.

Because the signal comes in on a frequency already being used, the company will need a processor to change the frequency to an open channel that will be picked up by antennas at the cable company. The picture and sound must then be separated out by using a tunable modulator, and the signal must be run through another series of switches and modulators before being sent over the cable.

The company could eliminate the processor by running a cable from the antenna on St. John's roof to the company, Seckely said. That wouldn't cut much off the price tag, since almost 1,000 feet of cable would have to be put underground to the hospital, he added.

Cost of equipment necessary to transmit M-Star is between $1,500 and $3,000, Seckely said. It could be a little higher, but not much lower than that, he added.

Because the company has no tower on which to place antennas, it uses the roof of St. John. College Cable, which appears 9 a.m. to 6 p.m. Monday through Friday on Channel 19, is brought in in a similar way, DuFour said.

The meeting Monday with representatives from the schools was to decide how to capture the signal, so a final cost estimate could be made, DuFour said. Who will pay for the added equipment was to be determined at future meetings between the parties, he added.

M-Star programming is provided by Central Education Network from Chicago. Through an agreement with the Wayne County Intermediate School District, the Archdiocese of Detroit transmits the M-Star signal on one of its three channels.

The school district and the archdiocese have a symbiotic relationship, according to Dennis Briar of the intermediate school district. While the ISD wanted the programming, it didn't have the facilities to transmit. The archdiocese has equipment to transmit three different channels, but no programming for two of them, he added.

The CEN signal is picked up by the archdiocese's satellite dish located at Sacred Heart Seminary and beamed to its transmitter in Royal Oak Township, according to Michael Strong from the archdiocese. Antennas to pick up the signal are available from the archdiocese, he said.

Within the next two months, a half-dozen cable companies serving nearly two dozen school districts in the county will be carrying M-Star programming.

Four companies who are now carrying the signal or expect to in the next month say they have spent between $500 and $3,000 on transmitting equipment.

Continental Cablevision, which serves Dearborn Heights and environs, will spend about $2,500 on new equipment and between $300 and $400 in labor to install it, according to chief technician Robert Austin. The school system received a grant from the city of Dearborn Heights to pay for the equipment and installation, he added.

After the equipment is purchased, it will take two to five weeks to get the channel up and running, Austin said. M-Star will be placed on a channel dedicated to educational programming, he added.

Wyandotte's city-owned cable television network has been transmitting the signal for just the past couple of weeks. The system put M-Star on a back channel until it works out some technical problems in transmission.

It will then put M-Star on the designated education channel, company representative Dave Beal said.

Because the company has excess space and extra equipment, it cost about $500 for the equipment and installation, Beal said. The school system picked up the cost, he added.

The Wayne Cablevision consortium serving several Downriver communities will spend about $3,000 to bring in M-Star, company officials said. The company and the Taylor school system will pay to put

M-Star on the system's public access channel.

The franchise provides an education channel to each of the school systems it serves. Programming for the channels is handled through the administration buildings for each district. The company would have had to purchase a large amount of equipment to bring in the signal and send it to each of the administration buildings for rebroadcast, company officials said.

Dearborn Group W general manager Gerry DeGrazia said his cable network is "a day away" from transmitting M-Star. The company will broadcast the programming on its educational access programming.

Group W is the same company that provides programming for Grosse Pointe Cable. DeGrazia was formerly general manager in Grosse Pointe.

Dearborn was able to use equipment it had on hand after it received the antenna from the Archdiocese of Detroit, DeGrazia said. The company didn't charge the school system it serves for the installation costs, he added.

Grosse Pointe Cable's situation is different from Dearborn's, DeGrazia said. Dearborn's system is "fairly sophisticated" and has 52 channels available, while Grosse Pointe has only 35. The company can't use channel 1 or 14, Grosse Pointe Cable's DuFour said.

Space has been made available from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. Monday through Friday on Channel 10, which is the Pro-Am Sports System. The company decided not to put M-Star on educational Channel 19 because it was already occupied by College Cable programming, which just began a new semester of programming, cable President John Rickel said.

Public, parochial and independent school programming was limited to 6 to 9 p.m. weekdays last year under an agreement between the schools, cable company and College Cable. The company decided to add College Cable because the schools weren't producing enough programming and the WTVS-provided programming was all that was available at the time, Rickel said.

By the time the M-Star Network came along, College Cable had begun its fall semester of programming. The company didn't want to switch it from Channel 19 because it doesn't like switching channels after programming has begun, Rickel added.

College Cable doesn't pay Grosse Pointe Cable to carry its programming. Dr. Eugene Stroebel, director of educational projects for WTVS, said. Engineers from WTVS worked with the cable company to plan the installation of the equipment necessary to pick up College Cable, and WTVS paid for that equipment, he added.

The company wants to provide M-Star and hopes to work out the details of transmission, cost and division of payments so it can begin broadcasting by the end of March, DuFour said.

More than 15,000 students attend public, parochial and independent schools in the Woods, Farms, City, Park and Harper Woods, the area served by Grosse Pointe Cable. Some parochial schools have yet to be hooked up to the system, according to AN-PEC president Brother Glen Neiner of Bishop Gallagher High School.

Woman loses keys to armed robber

A 25-year-old Park resident lost her car keys to a gun-wielding thief in the 1000 block of Wayburn last week.

The woman told police she had parked her car and was getting ready to go inside her home when a man, whom she described as black, about 5 feet 8 inches, wearing a sweatshirt and black leather cap and carrying a small handgun, confronted her and demanded her purse and money.

The woman told the thief she had no purse or cash and instead turned over her car keys. The man then fled on foot, police said.

Coroner rules drowning is accidental

By Tom Greenwood

Police believe a young St. Clair Shores woman who died in Lake St. Clair Friday night, Feb. 22, may have escaped from her car after it veered from foggy Lakeshore Road and out onto the ice-covered lake.

Police say the victim, Anne Marie Hild, 26, may have been disoriented and inadvertently wandered perhaps 200 feet farther into the lake before she broke through the ice and drowned.

Her body was recovered Wednesday afternoon, Feb. 27, five days after her family reported her missing. According to reports, the family became concerned when Mrs. Hild failed to return home after leaving a restaurant in Detroit's warehouse district Friday evening.

The Wayne County Medical Examiners Office determined that Mrs. Hild died from drowning and ruled her death as accidental. Her blood alcohol level registered .11. A person with a level of .10 is considered to be legally intoxicated in Michigan.

Both the St. Clair Shores and Farms police became actively involved after family friends, searching along Lakeshore Road, found evidence of a recent accident along a retaining wall on Lakeshore near Newberry Place.

The evidence included signs of a black car scraping the wall, a hubcap matching those on Mrs. Hild's 1973 black-over-black Ford Tudor and tire tracks in the dirt leading to the lake.

Farms police officers Clarence Reichling, Donald Dewey and Detective Earl Field were dispatched to the scene and reconstructed the accident. They notified civilian scuba diver Leon Sehoan who located Mrs. Hild's vehicle in 12 feet of water about 50 feet from shore. Sehoan reported the car was sitting right side up on the bottom with the right front door open. A purse containing identification belonging to Mrs. Hild was recovered from the car. The vehicle was examined again with negative results, and a search was begun for Mrs. Hild's body. The search proved fruitless and recovery efforts were discontinued until the next day.

The vehicle was left in the water to serve as a reference point for divers. Mrs. Hild's body was recovered by civilian diver Craig Oshnock, 21, of Bruno's Dive Shop, a little after noon on Wednesday.

It was located face down on the bottom about 200 feet south of the car and 100 feet off shore in about 12 feet of water.

Police used a large crane to pull the vehicle from the water, and the car was towed to the Farms police station for examination. According to Farms police reports, the car showed heavy scrape marks on the right side of the vehicle, and the front right tire of the car was blown out. Police believe the passenger side door of the car was sprung open from the impact of the accident.

"An accident reconstruction specialist from the Michigan State Police was on the scene Thursday and determined that Mrs. Hild's car was traveling about 20 mph when the accident occurred," said Farms Detective Mark Brecht.

"He further estimated that because of the low speed, the car must have skidded out onto the ice before coming to a stop. The vehicle was 75 feet out into the water from the angle of entry. Without any ice, the car would have been traveling at about 100 mph to launch itself that far out into the lake. There were no signs of braking along the path of the accident."

A call to the National Weather Service has determined that between 10 and 11 p.m. that evening, the Lakeshore area was enveloped in a heavy fog with visibility at less than 1/4 mile, combined with a drizzling rain. The water temperature was 34 degrees.

"This is pure conjecture at this point, but it appears Mrs. Hild's car left the roadway, ran along the retaining wall and then veered out onto the lake," Brecht said. "We believe she made it out of her car, then wandered the wrong direction away from shore and broke through the ice."

"Divers on the scene say there was very little current where the body was recovered. The only thing we know for sure in this case is that it was a tragic accident."

Tree spraying in Park to be reconsidered

By Pat Paholsky

The Park council decided last week to re-evaluate its tree-spraying program and postpone awarding a bid for methoxychlor, the chemical used to spray for Dutch elm disease.

During a discussion of the spraying program, Jerome Abbs, a member of the Beautification Commission, said some communities have abandoned spraying as a means of fighting Dutch elm disease. The practice, some experts believe, only temporarily delays the inevitable. Since the Park spends about $17,000 a year to spray, he suggested it may be more prudent to invest the money in new trees.

He and other commission members, planning to attend a seminar this week, agreed to get more information on the subject and report back to the council.

In a related matter, the council also tabled a request by the Beautification Commission to approve a spring tree-planting program for all of the 1300 blocks between Cadieux and Wayburn.

The trees would replace those lost to disease — 256, according to a survey by commission members in September 1984. The cost would be $25,600.

Clerk-Comptroller Nunzio Ortisi said the city budgeted a total of $142,000 this fiscal year on trees — spraying, trimming, removal and replacement. The amount represents about 3 percent of the total budget.

"What we are doing is playing catch-up because we are behind," Abbs said.

Doris Miller, chairwoman of the commission, said the 1300 blocks were the most devastated in terms of numbers and the other streets did not suffer as much damage. The commission's survey for the 1200 blocks between Cadieux and Wayburn shows 146 trees that need to be replaced. The number then continues to decrease, she said.

In a report submitted to the council, she wrote: One of the goals of the Beautification Commission is to accelerate the replanting process to a point where the annual budget allotment directed to tree replacement will be sufficient to replace trees lost on a yearly basis.

Council members discussed various options, including doing the spring planting with an agreement that the city would not be billed until after July 1, the beginning of the new fiscal year. There was also talk about putting a three-quarter mill request on the ballot.

In the end, the council tabled action until more information is received about the spraying program. The commission also agreed to make another block-by-block survey of trees to be replaced.

What others are doing

To date, the Woods is the only city in the Pointes that has abandoned spraying as a defense against Dutch elm disease.

Jean Rice, councilwoman and member of the Beautification Commission, said the recommendation to discontinue spraying was made in January 1983 after she and Barbara Hayes, who chairs the Tree Advisory Commission, studied the matter.

They received information regarding the disease from other cities throughout the country and mainly from Elmhurst, Ill. Elmhurst, Mrs. Rice explained, kept records of their tree losses for 20 years.

"They had an area of town, heavily populated with elms," she said. "It was a low priority area and they never sprayed there. When they compared with areas they had sprayed, they found the difference was negligible."

Mrs. Rice said the Illinois Department of Natural History, comparable to Michigan's Department of Natural Resources, reported that a city incurred only a one percent additional loss if the trees were not sprayed.

Over the years, the priorities in the Woods have changed, Mrs. Rice said. "Although spraying is recommended, the studies show that you stand a better chance of controlling your losses by quick removal. So this city decided to put its spraying money into fast removal."

She said a tree will be removed in seven or eight days after it's diagnosed as having the disease.

"I know a lot of people got upset when a tree comes down too fast, but in some cases, where you have five or six in a row, it's better to get the diseased tree before it infects the others."

She said the Woods is spending $20,000 to $25,000 a year for new trees.

"We will be reforested in this city in three to four years," she said.

The City, Farms and Shores all have spraying programs.

The City, which recently accepted low bids of $8.58 to spray a city elm and $18 for each private elm, requires residents to spray. City Clerk Jeanne Darlington said notices advising residents of the requirements were mailed this week.

The situation is the same in the Farms, City Clerk Richard Solak said. Residents can contact for their own service or have the city do it for a fee.

Shores Superintendent Michael Kenyon said Grosse Pointe Township sprays only public trees with the residents assuming responsibility for their own trees. The program has been reduced, however.

"Before last year, we sprayed twice a year," he said. "Now it's reduced to once a year."

Building on last year's theme, "Employ the Older Worker," Michigan will celebrate Older Workers' Week March 10-16, with the positive theme of "Experience Works."

Representatives from various groups which administer employment programs for older adults have joined forces to coordinate this year's campaign which will pay tribute to the contributions older workers have made.

Olivia P. Maynard, director of Services to the Aging, comments older workers:

"Older workers have made countless contributions to their respective companies and in turn, to the state's economy."

Joe Forbes, newly appointed director of the Governor's Office for Job Training, joins in the commendation:

"I am especially pleased that this office has projects throughout the state providing skills to older workers that return them to the work force. They constitute a resource that we cannot afford to lie idle."

Recognition of the older worker's value in the work force is important and pertinent.

In an economy where unemployment is still a major problem, the public should know that not only is there room in the work force for the older workers, there is a need for their skills and experience. This need will increase in the coming years. It is predicted that there will be a serious labor shortage in 1990.

This is encouraging news to those who regard retirement as the cessation of all that makes life worthwhile.

It is true that there are those who are ready to call it quits at 65 because their work involves so much physical exertion or undue stress, but those who choose to work should have that option.

The key word is option, not obligation. Older workers are individuals and should not be lumped together surrounded by myths of age by employers.

Even those who are "worn down" by hard manual labor can be kept in the work force if they choose to remain, by restraining.

As the median age increases in the state, older workers will become a commodity because they possess the skills and experience industry needs.

They will be able to provide business with an important training tool as they pass along good work habits and lifelong experience to younger workers.

They are America's New Frontier, a massive resource for the country. Moreover, employers have found that this older worker is a dependable worker.

A five-year experiment conducted by the U.S. Department of Labor in the Portland, Maine area proved the value of the older worker. Older workers, with the cooperation of private businesses, were placed in jobs which fit their physical and mental strengths.

Attitudes of both employers and workers improved and there were no workmen's compensation cases filed by any of the 4,000 workers before the project ended.

If we look at statistics, we can see how important it is for society to learn now to use those who have reached retirement age. In 20 years the population over 65 will double. In Michigan alone, this will account for 10.9 of the population as the state's average age rises to 31.4 years.

Not only will there be more older people but with the improvements in health care, they will be healthier, more alert and more productive. We can't afford to ignore what such a large segment of experience older people have to offer.

Although it benefits the disadvantaged worker at least 55 years or older, that is people who have been laid off from work and are having a difficult time finding a job because of their age, there is a program being instituted which could set the pattern for older workers of retirement age as well as laid-off older workers.

Older laid-off workers are now guaranteed access to training programs under a provision of the Job Training Act which replaced the Comprehensive Employment and Training Act (CETA). It specified that the state set aside job training funds for older workers.

This is important in light of recent unemployment figures of older workers. The Michigan Employment Security Commission estimates that there are 26,800 people at least 55 years old in Michigan who are jobless and looking for work. This doesn't include thousands of discouraged older workers in the state who have quit looking for work and are no longer counted in the labor force data. The U.S. Department of Labor estimates that 70 percent of today's displaced workers are older workers.

Aging and work expert Harold Sheppard of the Displacement Corporation of America in Washington D.C. says older workers who become unemployed are out of work for much longer periods of time than younger workers. He said labor force statistics show the duration of unemployment for workers 45-plus is nearly 21 percent longer than the rest of the labor force.

There is another facet to consider in the plight of the older unemployed worker.

Some companies are now offering incentives to older workers if they agree to retire early. In personnel jargon inducements to take early retirement is called the "golden handshake." It is a far cry from those "golden parachutes" generous employment contracts that compensate executives who lose control in mergers, takeovers and stockholder battles.

Since it is the law of the land that you cannot be forced to retire until age 70, the question arises should anyone who wishes to work until that age worry about being forced out?

I say Go West . . . but leave me here

Every Sunday, I pore over the travel sections in the Sunday newspapers, reading about the joys of faraway places and dreaming of future trips to exotic locales.

Fat chance. I can plan, dream, wish, spend money, make reservations and even get as far as to pack my bags . . . knowing all the while that this kid ain't going anywhere. You see, I don't travel well.

You know how three-day-old babies don't travel well? And how linen suits don't travel well? And how high-strung French poodles don't travel well? That's me, in a nutshell.

It's not that I haven't tried. In my one score and seven years, I've managed to travel more or less extensively through three Canadian provinces, 15 states and the District of Columbia. I've traveled by car and by boat, plane and train. I've gone alone, with friends, with relatives and in tour groups. I've traveled in every season of the year and in the weather conditions that go with them.

My problem? It's twofold, actually. One, I get homesick. I'd love to travel if I could just see the world, then come home in the evening. But I could deal with just being homesick if I didn't have to worry about problem no. 2: Strange things happen to me every time I go on a trip.

I'm not just talking about the odd luggage mix-up or the occasional flat tire. I mean strange stuff, and on every trip. I call my problem "Triptikaphobia."

I should have recognized the symptoms way back when I was 10. That's when my folks packed four kids and four adults into a six-passenger sedan and went south for a weekend. We had a great time, until we reached Lima, Ohio, on the way back and heard radio reports of the 1967 Detroit riots, which just happened to be in full swing. The amusement park rides I'd been on in Cincinnati were nothing compared to the fun we had playing "Dodge the Snipers" on the way into Detroit that night.

gone to a Florida hospital for treatment and the security guard at the gate radios ahead that "a French-fried snowbird" is coming in and 48 chuckling Floridians — including the janitorial staff — meet you at the emergency room door.

Don't get me wrong. I've had lots of fun on many of my trips. It's just that in general, get me more than 100 miles from home and I walk around with a headache, a feeling of displacement and a shellshocked look on my face. And I come home with at least one strange experience to tell people who won't believe me.

For example, no matter what restaurant I'm in while traveling, no matter what city, I always get a bent dinner fork. Or the soup spilled on my lap. Or the seat which faces the Beverly Hillbillies alumnus who has forgotten his store-bought choppers and is gumming a club sandwich to death.

I always seem to get a seat on a train which makes 37 unscheduled stops for repairs, or on a plane where the Fasten Seatbelt — No Smoking sign is lit for 3,000 miles and the flight attendant wears a scared look on her face, or I'm in a car which develops a loud "thunking" noise the moment it hits the interstate.

Sure, I've marveled at Hoover

Dam and the Grand Canyon, walked the busy streets of New York City and gazed at the grandeur of the Washington Monument and Montreal's Notre Dame Cathedral. I've also spent half of my vacation lifetime in strange bathrooms with plugged sinks, in crowded train stations paying for the privilege of having my reservations screwed up, or searching for a "Monsieur Muffler" when the car's exhaust system gives up the ghost in Quebec.

Looking back, I probably wouldn't trade any of it. Even the crummy trips have been good for a laugh or 10. And you know what that says about me.

But I'm getting too old for this. I'd probably be better off pulling a George Pierrot and sitting around in a big, fat, stuffed chair watching movies of people traveling. Or maybe just reading about traveling and memorizing all of those pretty travel brochures from faraway places.

Then when some other weary traveler starts telling me about losing his luggage in London or having a meal massacred in Mississippi, I can nod sympathetically and then close my eyes and visit Maui . . . in my mind's eye. And there won't be a lost suitcase or a bent fork in the place.

Trees offered by Park group

A new flowering crab apple tree that offers four seasons of beauty is one of the trees offered for sale by the Park Beautification Commission.

The tree, a hybrid of a Japanese crab and a native American apple tree, is about five feet tall. Developed at Purdue University, the tree will blossom in the spring and bear a bright red fruit in the winter that remains on the branches. It makes an excellent jelly, according to commission member Jerome Abbs.

The foliage in the summer is dark green, he said, and in the autumn, colorful. The cost is $9.50. Also offered are red oaks and red maples with 1 1/4-inch calipers. They are $36 each.

Order forms are available at the municipal building, 15115 E. Jefferson Ave. The phone number is 822-6200. It is recommended that orders are placed by March 15. The trees will be available about mid-April.

Registration begins

The St. Paul Lutheran Cooperative Nursery School has begun registering three- and four-year-olds for the school, located in St. Paul Lutheran church at Lothrop and Chalfonte.

Overlooked job is vital to Farms residents

By Harriet Nolan

The tiled roof and cathedral architecture make it the perfect spot for a church or library. Inside, sunlight streams through cross-paneled windows and bounces off tile walls, slate floors and a brass rail, all spit-and-polish clean.

But wedged in the deep, dark recesses of the stately 54-year-old building at Chalfonte and Kerby Road, are pipes, large enough to drive a car through, which pump sanitary wastes and excess water to Detroit's sewage disposal plant. "We call ourselves the men of the silent service," says Joseph Fluary, plant operator at Grosse Pointe Farms Sewage Pumping Station. "A lot of people don't know what this building is used for or what we do."

He and co-worker Don Domine perform a vital function for the community. It's their job, so to speak, to soothe troubled waters and keep residents living in a manner to which they've become accustomed — high and dry.

Fluary and Domine had their work cut out for them two weeks ago when a five-day rainy period was accompanied by warming temperatures. They estimated the amount of water that was pumped equaled about 4.5 inches of rain.

"Normally, we pump 2.2 million gallons a day not counting the 30 to 35 million gallons that go into the same mainline from East Detroit, St. Clair Shores and the Woods," Fluary said.

"From noon Feb. 22 to noon Feb. 26, we pumped 113 million gallons of rain and meltdown and about seven million gallons of waste.

This, combined with the other cities, equaled about a quarter of a billion gallons," he added.

Kenneth Hugelier, plant engineer and supervisor, notes it's not how much it rains, but how fast it comes down that signals the severity of the situation.

"We can handle two inches of rain with trouble or ease," he says. "If it's a hard rain in three to four hours, there's no problem. If we get it in one and one-half hours, then it could be trouble."

"It's hard when we get it in a short period of time or storms back to back," he added.

When homeowners find their basements flooded after a heavy rain, Hugelier says the problem, more often than not is a clogged drain. A quick check with neighbors should follow to determine if they have the same problem. If not, then it's possible that tree roots, previously undetected, are the real culprit.

Also, clogged downspouts can contribute to a wet basement. The water backs up, runs down the side of the house and deposits in the ground seeping into the walls, he adds.

The men compare themselves to firemen, because they too have to perform daily maintenance on the building and equipment. But Fluary notes they get more calls for rain than firemen get fires.

They can also tell what residents are doing at different times of the day, particularly when children come home from school, by reading the department's pressure gauges.

"We can tell when people finish watching the 11 p.m. news, go to the bathroom and then to bed by the drop in pressure," says Hugelier.

Busarow, is in its 53rd season and has logged more than 200,000 miles, including a trip to the Soviet Union in 1980 for the state department, numerous European trips and tours to Africa, Asia and throughout North and South America. On this year's tour through Ohio, Illinois, Wisconsin, Michigan, New York, Pennsylvania and Canada, the program will include works commemorating the 300th anniversary of the birth of Johann Sebastian Bach. Freeman, Rice are Persons of the Year

Grosse Pointe Woods Mayor George S. Freeman and councilwoman Jean Rice shared 1985 Person of the Year honors, presented by the Grosse Pointe Business and Professional Association of Mack Avenue.

The awards committee agreed that both had contributed equally in meeting the requirements of the award — that of adding to the betterment of life in the Pointes in 1984.

Currently serving a third term as mayor, Freeman recently completed his tenure as president of the Michigan Municipal League, is a member of the Michigan Conference of Mayors, a delegate to The White House Conference on Aging, advisory council member to the Detroit Area Agency on Aging and a director of the Michigan Municipal Liability and Property Pool. He has been a staunch supporter of the business association in its commitment to continued growth and development of Mack Avenue, according to the committee.

Mrs. Rice has worked to improve Mack Avenue since 1976, both as a private citizen while serving on various commissions, and as a

Woods council member. She was instrumental in getting council to contract with a professional city planner to fight blight on Mack Avenue and is known as the "tree lady" for helping transform the strip to its present appearance.

Mrs. Rice is a member of the County Block Grant Commission, an adviser to the Senior Citizens Commission and a member and past chairman of the Grosse Pointe Shade Tree Council.

Both recipients were also presented commendations by Senator John Kelly.

Information concerning membership in the association is available by calling Kent Schiffer at 884-8500.

Dogs needed for training

The Leader Dog Program is becoming more important to blind persons everywhere.

As a result of increasing numbers of applications for leader dogs, there is great need for more German Shepherds, Labrador and Golden Retrievers, at least one year of age. Potential leader dogs must be friendly and trainable.

A second need is for puppy-raisers, homes where eight-week-old puppies can be placed for one year. Many youngsters are raising puppies furnished by the school and some have raised puppies year after year.

These children not only learn responsibility, but find joy and gratification when a puppy they have raised graduates with a blind person, especially when they receive a picture of the leader dog with its new master.

For more information, call or write to Leader Dogs for the Blind, Rochester, Michigan 48053, (313) 651-9011.

Science cures eye disorders

As life expectancy increases, so has the availability of therapies for age-related eye problems, according to the National Society to Prevent Blindness. New treatments and technologies prove that science fiction can become science fact.

Among the new technologies, the society points to the great advances in the removal of cataract, making 95 percent of all cataract operations successful.

Less than two generations ago, removal of the cataract lens meant uncomfortable hospital stays, complicated surgery and thick, bottle-like eyeglasses which were needed to replace the removed lens.

Today, cataract surgery can be done on an outpatient basis. Cellophane-thin soft contact lenses or clear plastic lens implants have replaced the glasses.

But this is only part of the story. According to the society, the laser may be one of the single most important tools today in eye surgery and therapy. It can seal leaking blood vessels resulting from diabetic retinopathy — a diabetes-related eye disorder blinding some 4,700 Americans each year. It is also useful in treating certain types of glaucoma and, depending on the severity of an eye injury, can be used to repair retinal holes and tears, preventing retinal detachment.

The laser has most recently been proven important in treating certain types of macular degeneration — an age-related disorder affecting central vision. Macular degeneration is the nation's leading cause of all new cases of blindness, and most often affects people over age 65.

Despite these great gains, it is important that eye problems be recognized and treated in their early stages. To help people check their vision, the National Society to Prevent Blindness has produced a Home Eye Test for Adults.

Developed in consultation with some of the nation's leading ophthalmologists, the society's test can reveal problems that point to signs of macular degeneration, glaucoma or the more common refractive errors one encounters with age. Although the test is not diagnostic, it offers a means of screening for central, near and far vision.

The Home Eye Test for Adults is available for $1 through the National Society to Prevent Blindness, 79 Madison Avenue, New York, N.Y. 10016. The society also offers publications on cataracts, macular degeneration, glaucoma and diabetic retinopathy. Single copies are free with a stamped, self-addressed, business-size envelope.

Prime Time...

If you are really on the list of those management wishes to leave, the company can exert subtle pressure, such as lesser responsibilities. If you notice that a group invited to retire is composed of just older workers, you could sue but it might be costly and possibly a losing battle.

Some of the inducements offered to encourage early retirement, such as severance pay, comprehensive insurance or a pension sometimes are higher than you would get under the usual early retirement terms.

Such inducements should be carefully considered. The salary you earn now probably would be higher if you put in more years. Your pension is based on salary and years of service. With this in balance, early retirement might not look so good.

As for severance pay, it should be enough so that if you invested it, it would add to your estimated retirement income.

If you have some idea that an early pension could launch you into a new business, you should consider the risks. Bankruptcies are at an all-time high.

These are some of the points you will want to weigh. For some the plusses will outweigh all the negatives. The leisure, the ease, the freedom from stress will be worth every cent sacrifice.

Others who do not want to leave full time employment should have that option.

The prospect of being forced into early retirement is not a happy one. Being disposed of is never pleasant.

If you are now retired but would like to work either because you are happier working, you need the added income or you attach status to being employed, there are groups who can give you advice and help. Among them are: the American Association of Retired Persons, the Area Agencies on Aging Association of Michigan, the Department of Labor's Michigan Employment Security Commission, Green Thumb, the Governor's Office of Job Training, The Michigan Office of Services to the Aging, the National Association for Hispanic Elderly, the National Council for Senior Citizens, the Urban League of Detroit, and the U.S. Forest Service.

These organizations will be scheduling experts in the field of older adult programs and employment on various talk-shows prior to the weeklong celebration March 10-16.

Committee members will also be disseminating information materials about various employment programs operating throughout Michigan. Tom Beukema, an employee of The Senior Alliance, Inc., is knowledgeable about programs. He is available to answer questions during weekdays at 722-2830.

Freeman, Rice are Persons of the Year

Grosse Pointe Woods Mayor George S. Freeman and councilwoman Jean Rice shared 1985 Person of the Year honors, presented by the Grosse Pointe Business and Professional Association of Mack Avenue.

The awards committee agreed that both had contributed equally in meeting the requirements of the award — that of adding to the betterment of life in the Pointes in 1984.

Currently serving a third term as mayor, Freeman recently completed his tenure as president of the Michigan Municipal League, is a member of the Michigan Conference of Mayors, a delegate to The White House Conference on Aging, advisory council member to the Detroit Area Agency on Aging and a director of the Michigan Municipal Liability and Property Pool. He has been a staunch supporter of the business association in its commitment to continued growth and development of Mack Avenue, according to the committee.

Mrs. Rice has worked to improve Mack Avenue since 1976, both as a private citizen while serving on various commissions, and as a

Woods council member. She was instrumental in getting council to contract with a professional city planner to fight blight on Mack Avenue and is known as the "tree lady" for helping transform the strip to its present appearance.

Mrs. Rice is a member of the County Block Grant Commission, an adviser to the Senior Citizens Commission and a member and past chairman of the Grosse Pointe Shade Tree Council.

Both recipients were also presented commendations by Senator John Kelly.

Information concerning membership in the association is available by calling Kent Schiffer at 884-8500.

The thief held a .45-caliber handgun to the head of a customer and demanded cash about 8:48 that night. He escaped on foot with an undetermined amount of money. No injuries were reported.

Perfect fit

Learning can be fun, especially when the classroom includes a tour of the Woods police and fire departments. Here, four year olds from the Grosse Pointe Cooperative Nursery learn all about EDITH from Officer Robert Rabe, traffic safety officer for the Woods. According to Rabe, the kids learn that EDITH stands for "exit drill in the home," in which students encourage their parents to stage fire drills to simulate emergencies. The children were taught how to recognize police officers and were encouraged to learn their names, ages, telephone numbers and the number of their police department. Decked out and lost in a fire helmet is Anne Tartaglia. Joining her and Rabe on the back of the fire engine are; front row, from left, Erin Trybus, Laura Morris, David Loflin, Abraham Kinkopf and Mark Tougey; second row, Andrew Strobl, Will Harrah, Jennifer Stephens, Nicholas Gottschalk, Matt McGrail and Katie Szelc.

Bringing science to life for children is foundation's goal

If it flew, hopped, crawled, swam or slithered, the chances are it was probably at Monteith School during a "see and touch" program with the Living Science Foundation last week. Touring science teachers brought numerous animals into the classrooms to give students a hands-on experience with various life forms. Here, Julius Squeezer, an eight-foot Burmese python receives a helping hand from, (left), Tim Joslyn, director of the Living Science Foundation, Connie Kelly, 6, Jay Figurski, 5, Hardy Emery, 6, Abby Oman, 6, and Bruce Keftgen, assistant to the superintendent of Grosse Pointe schools. Coming in for a two-point landing on Tim Joslyn's arm is Kirby, a blue and gold macaw that wowed his student audience by fluttering gracefully around their classroom.

The halls and walls of Monteith School were alive with animals last week. And the same thing is going to happen at each of the system's nine elementary before March is over.

Monteith was the first school visited by the Living Science Foundation, which will bring its programs of hands-on science experiences to every grade school classroom in the system.

This is the first year the program has made the rounds of the elementary schools, Alfried Frost, elementary curriculum director said. The programs were jointly funded by the PTOs and the Foundation for Academic Enrichment.

Among the visitors to Monteith Friday, March 1, were a hyacinth blue macaw named Kirby and Julius Squeezer, an eight-foot Burmese python.

"Living Science brings a hands-on approach to science instruction because it brings living animals right into the classroom," Dr. Frost said.

Living Science Foundation was founded seven years ago by

Timothy Joslyn and Bonnie Neff, who began working with a southwestern Michigan zoo to develop science programs using hands-on animals.

Since then, more than 100,000 students have participated in what has become the largest zoo-based animal outreach program in North America.

The program, based in Novi, has three objectives, according to the foundation's literature. Children are exposed to animals in an entertaining learning situation. The presentations by trained personnel from the foundation, many of whom are teachers, stimulate students' desire to learn about and investigate their world through scientific inquiry.

To aid teachers, materials are provided before and after presentations to help reinforce the lessons.

Teachers are Monteith selected a specific unit from the almost two dozen programs available through the foundation. Before the presentations, faculty used materials provided by the foundation to get the students involved in the subject of the presentation. Students were able to read, research, write poetry and stories and even create animals of their own through art and descriptive writing.

Units presented at Monteith included "Animal Families," "Birds," "Diversity of Life," "Back-Bone Biology," "Amazon Jungle," "Scaly Survivors" and "Animal Senses."

At least five animals were brought into each classroom after the students and presenter reviewed and discussed information from the mini-units from the foundation. Students could choose whether or not they wanted to touch the animal and most opted to cuddle, hold or pet the animals after encouragement by the presenters.

"Of all the assemblies and presentations held at the school, this was one well worth the money," Monteith Principal Joan Kubista said.

Playing the leads in "Snow White" are Roy Hall as the prince and Stephanie Stebbins as Snow White. Michael Schoenith and Tracey Dold will share the roles.

Children's Theatre brings Snow White to Fries stage

Members of the cast and crew of "Snow White and the Seven Dwarfs," the next Grosse Pointe Children's Theatre presentation, are busy putting the finishing touches on the musical classic.

The play will be presented Saturday, March 23, and Saturday, March 31, at the Fries Auditorium of the War Memorial. Curtain both days is at 11 a.m. and 2:30 p.m.

Aside from the 70 members of the cast ranging in age from 5 years old to adult, parents are busy behind the scenes, constructing and painting the magical kingdom, designing and sewing costumes, collecting props and the other things that will bring the story to life.

Playing the lead roles of Snow White are Tracey Dold and Stephanie Stebbins. Michael Schoenith and Roy Hall will play the prince and the wicked queen will be portrayed by Maria Kurz and Susan Mikiel. John Putnam, father of one of the dwarfs, will be the woodsman. Jill Schroeder and Carey Crim will play the witch.

The two casts of dwarfs are Kim Putnam, Laura Wing, Jessica Fortier, Stephanie Shock, Kim Ramsey, Sarah Babcock, Maureen Ryan, Tracey Ganem, Celia Bolger, Victoria Cargas, Amy Gwinneil, Kristine Armaly, Stephanie Serra and Deborah DeFauw. Dandiprat, the court chamberlain, will be played by Charles St. Croix, father of a lady-in-waiting.

Admission is $4 for adults and $2.75 for students and senior citizens. Tickets are on sale at the War Memorial office at 881-7511. For group rates of 10 or more, call 886-6152 after 6 p.m. Birthday and special groups will be recognized.

Bon Secours offers pregnancy class

Bon Secours Hospital will offer an early pregnancy class Thursday, March 21, 7:30 p.m. The class is for expectant mothers up to five months pregnant to help them prepare for a safe and pleasant birth experience.

Committee reviews student policies

 she added.
 Poupard Principal James Cooper chairs the student discipline subcommittee, which is reviewing policies on corporal punishment, student detention, suspension, probation and expulsion. There aren't any major changes coming out of the committee's work, he added.
 Corporal punishment will remain forbidden, while new policies and guidelines are written for detention and probation of students, Cooper said. In other cases, the current policy will be brought into closer conformance with guidelines set by the state.

Although his subcommittee is setting the penalties for wrong-doing, there is still an attempt to temper punishment with prevention, Cooper said. The combining of the subcommittee reports by the committee-of-the-whole will make that more clear, he added.

Serving on the committee-of-the-whole is board trustee Vincent LoCicero, who said his role is both liaison between the committee and the board and interested parties. While he brings his own opinion to the meetings, the committee may ask for a consensus from the board, LoCicero said. He will then poll board trustees and bring that to the committee meeting, he added.

More emphasis is being placed on prevention in the discussions, LoCicero said. While the schools continue to work to intervene in the case of troubled students, one of the ideas discussed is to strengthen the school's role, he added.

The subcommittees will report back to the committee-of-the-whole by the end of the month, according to the school administration. The committee hopes to have a final draft for Superintendent John Whritner and the board by April 29, so they will be able to review and act on the recommendations this year.

Pursuing tax trivia

Taxes certainly are not trivial. If you treat them lightly, you are bound to be pursued by the government. The Michigan Association of CPAs, however, thought you might enjoy playing a game of tax trivia to help raise your tax IQ. Can you answer the following questions without peeking at the answers at the end?

1. If you don't itemize deductions, but you do give to charity, the maximum amount you can deduct for a charitable contribution: (A) 25 percent of contributions up to $100 (B) 25 percent of contributions up to $300 (C) The full amount of any contribution less than $200 (D) You may only deduct a charitable contribution if you itemize deductions.

2. What is the maximum contribution a single person can make to an Individual Retirement Account (IRA)? (A) $2,000 (B) $2,250 (C) $1,000 (D) Only married persons may contribute to an IRA.

3. Every taxpayer is allowed one of these; but a blind taxpayer 65 or older is allowed three. What is it?

4. True or false: Sixty percent of a long-term capital gain is not taxed, but a short-term gain is fully taxable.

5. Find the pair of deductible items — only one pair is deductible. (A) dog licenses, bar examination fees (B) adoption costs, commuting expenses (C) bad personal debts, investment guides (D) title searches, excise taxes.

6. True or false: If you hold two jobs, the cost of commuting from your first to your second job is deductible.

7. True or false: While interest rates in general have been heading downward, the IRS raised the interest rate it charges on overdue taxes — and pays on overdue refunds — from 11 percent to 13 percent compounded daily.

8. The standard mileage deduction for business-related driving is (A) 14 cents a mile for the first 15,000 miles (B) 20.5 cents a mile for the first 15,000 miles (C) There is no standard mileage deduction.

9. True or false: If a person dies in the middle of the year, no income tax return need be filed for that year.

10. Which three of the following are deductible? (A) cigarette taxes (B) mortgage interest (C) loan finance charges (D) business gifts under $25 (E) bank fees for a personal checking account.

11. Choose one: ACRS stands for: (A) Alimony Credit Reporting Schedule, an IRS form showing compliance with alimony registration rules (B) Accelerated Cost Recovery System, a rapid means of depreciating business property.

12. True or false: The cost of hiring a CPA to prepare your tax return is not deductible.

13. If two working people are married and file jointly, they are entitled to a two-earner deduction. It is worth: (A) $100 off their tax bill (B) 10 percent off the income of the lower-earning spouse up to $3,000 (C) The two-earner deduction was phased out in 1983.

14. The exclusion for interest income from savings accounts is: (A) $100 (B) $200 (C) There is no exclusion on interest income earned from savings accounts.

15. True or false: For the first time ever, Social Security benefits may be taxed.

19. True or false: You can deduct any casualty losses that exceed 10 percent of your adjusted gross income and a $100 exclusion.

Sound Health Advice from your Family Doctor

Saint John Hospital

Put infants in back

Infants and children should take a back seat for the next car trip whether they are being taken a few blocks to the corner grocery or cross country on a family vacation. The back seat is the safest place to be for protection against the nation's number four killer — car accidents. Infants six months or less are the most at risk in car crashes.

Further protective steps advocated by the American Academy of Family Physicians and your local family doctors are: Placing the baby in an infant carrier, positioning the carrier backwards to face the rear of the car, securing the baby in the carrier and buckling up the baby and carrier with a seat belt. These steps will protect the baby from being thrown with great force in case of impact.

Other youngsters in the family, depending on weight and height can be shielded from injuries and death by the use of car seats. Car seats without proper padding and incorrectly positioned straps can provide a false sense of security. The family physician is one of the best advisers on which car devices are safe and how to use the equipment.

Completing the picture of the safety-conscious motoring family, all adults should be buckled into lap and shoulder belts. It is estimated that between 14,000 and 18,000 lives could be saved each year if all car passengers used safety equipment at all times. The current rate of safety belt usage is about 12 percent. The usage rate has been going down rather than up, even though studies have shown that seat belts are between 50 and 65 percent effective in preventing fatalities and injuries.

Two of the most common reasons given for not using seat belts: It is not necessary to use seat belts for short distances and it would be difficult to get out of the car in case of fire or if the car were submerged in water.

The facts are that most accidents happen 25 miles or less from home and only five percent of car accidents involve fire and water.

For the sake of family safety, it is time to Knuckle Down and Buckle Up.

How to prepare fresh seafood

For three days next week, the Village Food Market will sponsor demonstrations on the proper way to prepare fresh ocean fish and shellfish.

Charles Hall, a representative of the Foley Fish Co. of New Bedford, Mass. and an expert in the preparation of fresh seafood, will hold in-store cooking sessions and answer questions beginning Thursday, March 15, from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. He will continue the demonstrations Friday, March 15, from 9 a.m. to 6 p.m. and Saturday, March 16, from 9 a.m. to noon.

The Foley Fish Co., established in 1906, is one of the oldest in the United States. It supplies the Village Food Market with all of its fresh ocean fish.

The cooking sessions are free and customers will have the opportunity to sample Hall's cooking.

The market is located at 18330 Mack Ave. in the Farms.

Support groups formed

As a result of the program, "New Beginnings: Coming to Grips with Grief," four support groups have been formed that will meet on alternate Wednesday evenings at the War Memorial.

Those participating in the groups need not have attended the six-week program that preceded the formation of the groups. The Rev. Russell Manney, the facilitator of the program, will meet individually with newcomers to bring them up to date. A tape is also available to those who did not attend the six-week program.

On March 13, and every other Wednesday thereafter for as long as there is a need, those grieving the death of a child will meet in the Garden Room. Those grieving the loss of a sibling, parent or friend will meet in Room B.

On March 20, two separate groups will meet, one for those grieving the death of a spouse, and the other for those grieving as a result of a divorce.

Each meeting will be from 7 to 9 p.m. and costs $2 for each session.

From Another Pointe Of View

By Janet Mueller

"Can you button a man's shirt wearing a pair of socks on your hands? Or read a page that's printed backwards? How about holding a card to your forehead and printing the numbers 1-2-3-4 on it? That's the way we ask schoolchildren, or an adult audience, to experience a handicap."

The speaker is Jane Peters, in charge of grown-ups who manipulate the puppets and follow a script when they present "The Kids on the Block" to children in the Troy School System.

"Kids on the Block" is a national program designed to illustrate, via puppets, the problems of handicapped children. It is currently being presented by community volunteers to boys and girls in grades three through six in Bloomfield Hills and Grosse Pointe as well as in Troy. Sue Klein is in charge of "The Kids" in The Pointe.

Grosse Pointers, members of the Detroit Review Club and their guests, will be traveling to Birmingham, to the Community House, to rendezvous with DRC members and guests from other metropolitan area communities next Tuesday, Mar. 12, for a luncheon and program featuring the Troy volunteers' "Kids on the Block" presentation.

It's the same one that's being presented in Grosse Pointe by our own community volunteers. It features two non-disabled puppets and four who are handicapped. There's 10-year-old Renaldo, who is blind, and 17-year-old Ellen, a victim of Downs Syndrome. Mandy, 12, is deaf. Mark, 11, has cerebral palsy.

Renaldo uses a white cane and a braille watch. Mandy wears a hearing aid and talks via sign language. Mark uses a wheelchair and wears a helmet for protection. They're all "big" little people — each wears toddler size two clothes and size five shoes — and they're meant to be that way, to appear, because of their size, more life-like to their young audiences.

The purpose of their visits to the schools is to help non-handicapped classroom children better understand and develop a positive attitude toward children with handicaps, who are entering the school systems of communities throughout the United States in ever-increasing numbers. Each skit involves one non-disabled puppet and a disabled one in a "loving lesson" presented in an entertaining and dramatic format.

The "normal" puppets ask the handicapped puppets questions that pave the way for a question-and-answer session following the show. The children in the audience often ask the puppets personal questions. "It works! It really does," says Jane Peters. "The students — adults, too — are more at ease asking questions of 'The Kids.' For the students, it's like talking to one of their peers."

She emphasizes that the volunteer puppeteers are not

Pointer of Interest

By Peggy O'Connor

One of Sister Kinue Matsuzaki's favorite watercolor paintings is of a garden full of anemones, lovely pink, white and red flowers which scatter their seeds in the wind. Sister calls the painting "New Mission." She may not know it, but "new mission" is also a perfect description for "Sister Matsu's" life both as a nun and an artist.

The tiny, energetic member of the Religious Order of the Sacred Heart is on a lifelong mission: opening the eyes of others to the beauty of God's creation, at which she has gazed wide-eyed for many years. She is one of the area's most accomplished watercolorists and the "resident artist" at St. Paul's Convent.

Sister Matsu was born in the seaside city of Nagasaki, Japan, in 1925. She joined the order of the Sacred Heart in Tokyo in 1947 and arrived in New York in 1962 as a "missionary" of sorts, part of an exchange which sent American nuns to Japan. It was the beginning of many changes in Sister Matsu's life.

"It was very difficult for me at first. I had been in a cloistered order in Japan — and suddenly I had to join the outside world, learn English and be an art student, all at the same time. It was also the time of Vatican II, which brought many changes to the church," she recalls.

"I think I was able to deal with these changes because I knew that God was using me to do His work and that with Him behind me, I would succeed."

Sister Matsu found she had little problem taking brush in hand to illustrate God's work in watercolor. She had been attracted to the fine arts as a child and was quite experienced in using a brush to paint the Japanese language characters. Balancing her work as a nun, her art studies as a student in Albany, N.Y., and tackling a new language was a different story.

"An art history class was very hard for me. I thought I knew English ... until then," she laughs.

"When I passed the course, my professor said I'd passed because I was so determined. But what I remember most is my professor saying 'You made it!' I could have cried with joy."

SISTER MATSU was transferred to Detroit in 1967 and began teaching arts and crafts at the Academy of the Sacred Heart, Grosse Pointe, (now the Grosse Pointe Academy) in 1968.

"It was just a small class, but I tried to teach my students then what I still try to teach — that art is something that comes from deep inside you. It is an expression of feeling."

She is a member of the Grosse Pointe Artists Association, Michigan Watercolor Artists Association and International Art Association. Her works are part of many private and public collections. She teaches five art classes each week, has exhibited in various shows throughout Michigan and has an ever-growing clientele.

Sister Matsu spends her days in her studio, a sunny, plant-filled room on the second floor of St. Paul's School, or out observing nature.

"I can see God in flowers and in nature. I have my own garden. I plant the seeds and watch them grow, and that way I know the complete structure of the flower. I keep it in my head and when I paint, I

AAUW focus on economic independence

The Legislative Committee of the American Association of University Women-Grosse Pointe Branch, which has been exploring the subject "Economic Independence for Life, Not a Trivial Pursuit," has scheduled two meetings for the month of March.

Both are free, open to the general public and begin at 7:30 p.m. in the Exhibition Room of the Grosse Pointe Central Library, Kercheval Avenue at Fisher Road.

Tonight, Thursday, Mar. 7, AAUW member Marti Vorhees will chair a program on "Wives-Mothers-Daughters; How Can We Protect Our Economic Security?" Guest speaker is Farms resident Doris Higgins Cole, who has been a practicing attorney in Almont, Mich., for 10 years.

Doris received both her Bachelors degree in Business and her J.D. from the University of Detroit.

The subject for Thursday, Mar. 28, will be "Women's Issues Worldwide." The topic will be addressed by the much-traveled Kimberly Colceman, an AAUW-GP member who was born in Arizona, lived in California, went to high school in Japan, received her Bachelors degree in Business Administration from the University of Maryland, worked for the United States Navy in Italy, the Air Force in Portugal — and is now studying law at the University of Detroit.

Kimberly, an AAUW participant in the 1984 United Nations Conference in New York, will focus on women's issues in both the Third World and the West, in light of the International Women's Conference to be held in Nairobi, Kenya, in July. AAUW member Josephine Casgrain will chair the session.

If it flew, hopped, crawled, swam or slithered, the chances are it was probably at Monteith School during a "see and touch" program with the Living Science Foundation last week. Touring science teachers brought numerous animals into the classrooms to give students a hands-on experience with various life forms. Here, Julius Squeezer, an eight-foot Burmese python receives a helping hand from, (left), Tim Joslyn, director of the Living Science Foundation, Connie Kelly, 6, Jay Figurski, 5, Hardy Emery, 6, Abby Oman, 6, and Bruce Kefgen, assistant to the superintendent of Grosse Pointe schools. Coming in for a two-point landing on Tim Joslyn's arm is Kirby, a blue and gold macaw that wowed his student audience by fluttering gracefully around their classroom.

The halls and walls of Monteith School were alive with animals last week. And the same thing is going to happen at each of the system's nine elementary before March is over.

Monteith was the first school visited by the Living Science Foundation, which will bring its programs of hands-on science experiences to every grade school classroom in the system.

This is the first year the program has made the rounds of the elementary schools, Alfred Frost, elementary curriculum director said. The programs were jointly funded by the PTOs and the Foundation for Academic Enrichment.

Among the visitors to Monteith Friday, March 1, were a hyacinth blue macaw named Kirby and Julius Squeezer, an eight-foot Burmese python.

"Living Science brings a hands-on approach to science instruction because it brings living animals right into the classroom," Dr. Frost said.

Living Science Foundation was founded seven years ago by

Timothy Joslyn and Bonnie Neff, who began working with a southwestern Michigan zoo to develop science programs using hands-on animals.

Since then, more than 100,000 students have participated in what has become the largest zoo-based animal outreach program in North America.

The program, based in Novi, has three objectives, according to the foundation's literature. Children are exposed to animals in an entertaining learning situation. The presentations by trained personnel from the foundation, many of whom are teachers, stimulate students' desire to learn about and investigate their world through scientific inquiry.

To aid teachers, materials are provided before and after presentations to help reinforce the lessons.

Teachers at Monteith selected a specific unit from the almost two dozen programs available through the foundation. Before the presentations, faculty used materials provided by the foundation to get the students involved in the subject of the presentation. Students were able to read, research, write poetry and stories and even create animals of their own through art and descriptive writing.

Units presented at Monteith included "Animal Families," "Birds," "Diversity of Life," "Back-Bone Biology," "Amazon Jungle," "Scaly Survivors" and "Animal Senses."

At least five animals were brought into each classroom after the students and presenter reviewed and discussed information from the mini-units from the foundation. Students could choose whether or not they wanted to touch the animal and most opted to cuddle, hold or pet the animals after encouragement by the presenters.

"Of all the assemblies and presentations held at the school, this was one well worth the money," Monteith Principal Joan Kubista said.

Members of the cast and crew of "Snow White and the Seven Dwarfs," the next Grosse Pointe Children's Theatre presentation, are busy putting the finishing touches on the musical classic.

The play will be presented Saturday, March 23, and Saturday, March 31, at the Fries Auditorium of the War Memorial. Curtain both days is at 11 a.m. and 2:30 p.m.

Aside from the 70 members of the cast ranging in age from 5 years old to adult, parents are busy behind the scenes, constructing and painting the magical kingdom, designing and sewing costumes, collecting props and the other things that will bring the story to life.

Playing the lead roles of Snow White are Tracey Dold and Stephanie Stebbins. Michael Schoenith and Roy Hall will play the prince and the wicked queen will be portrayed by Marla Kurz and Susan Mikiel. John Putnam, father of one of the dwarfs, will be the woodsman. Jill Schroeder and Carey Crim will play the witch.

she added.
Poupard Principal James Cooper chairs the student discipline subcommittee, which is reviewing policies on corporal punishment, student detention, suspension, probation and expulsion. There aren't any major changes coming out of the committee's work, he added.
Corporal punishment will remain forbidden, while new policies and guidelines are written for detention and probation of students, Cooper said. In other cases, the current policy will be brought into closer conformance with guidelines set by the state.

Although his subcommittee is setting the penalties for wrong-doing, there is still an attempt to temper punishment with prevention, Cooper said. The combining of the subcommittee reports by the committee-of-the-whole will make that more clear, he added.

Serving on the committee-of-the-whole is board trustee Vincent LoCicero, who said his role is both liaison between the committee and the board and interested parties. While he brings his own opinion to the meetings, the committee may ask for a consensus from the board, LoCicero said. He will then poll board trustees and bring that to the committee meeting, he added.

More emphasis is being placed on prevention in the discussions, LoCicero said. While the schools continue to work to intervene in the case of troubled students, one of the ideas discussed is to strengthen the school's role, he added.

The subcommittees will report back to the committee-of-the-whole by the end of the month, according to the school administration. The committee hopes to have a final draft for Superintendent John Whritner and the board by April 29, so they will be able to review and act on the recommendations this year.

Pursuing tax trivia

Taxes certainly are not trivial. If you treat them lightly, you are bound to be pursued by the government. The Michigan Association of CPAs, however, thought you might enjoy playing a game of tax trivia to help raise your tax IQ. Can you answer the following questions without peeking at the answers at the end?

1. If you don't itemize deductions, but you do give to charity, the maximum amount you can deduct for a charitable contribution: (A) 25 percent of contributions up to $100 (B) 25 percent of contributions up to $300 (C) The full amount of any contribution less than $200 (D) You may only deduct a charitable contribution if you itemize deductions.

2. What is the maximum contribution a single person can make to an Individual Retirement Account (IRA)? (A) $2,000 (B) $2,250 (C) $1,000 (D) Only married persons may contribute to an IRA.

3. Every taxpayer is allowed one of these; but a blind taxpayer 65 or older is allowed three. What is it?

4. True or false: Sixty percent of a long-term capital gain is not taxed, but a short-term gain is fully taxable.

5. Find the pair of deductible items — only one pair is deductible. (A) dog licenses, bar examination fees (B) adoption costs, commuting expenses (C) bad personal debts, investment guides (D) title searches, excise taxes.

6. True or false: If you hold two jobs, the cost of commuting from your first to your second job is deductible.

7. True or false: While interest rates in general have been heading downward, the IRS raised the interest rate it charges on overdue taxes — and pays on overdue refunds — from 11 percent to 13 percent compounded daily.

8. The standard mileage deduction for business-related driving is (A) 14 cents a mile for the first 15,000 miles (B) 20.5 cents a mile for the first 15,000 miles (C) There is no standard mileage deduction.

9. True or false: If a person dies in the middle of the year, no income tax return need be filed for that year.

10. Which three of the following are deductible? (A) cigarette taxes (B) mortgage interest (C) loan finance charges (D) business gifts under $25 (E) bank fees for a personal checking account.

11. Choose one: ACRS stands for: (A) Alimony Credit Reporting Schedule, an IRS form showing compliance with alimony registration rules (B) Accelerated Cost Recovery System, a rapid means of depreciating business property.

12. True or false: The cost of hiring a CPA to prepare your tax return is not deductible.

13. If two working people are married and file jointly, they are entitled to a two-earner deduction. It is worth: (A) $100 off their tax bill (B) 10 percent off the income of the lower-earning spouse up to $3,000 (C) The two-earner deduction was phased out in 1983.

14. The exclusion for interest income from savings accounts is: (A) $100 (B) $200 (C) There is no exclusion on interest income earned from savings accounts.

15. True or false: For the first time ever, Social Security benefits may be taxed.

16. True or false: You may be entitled to a tax credit for adding storm windows in your home or apartment.

17. True or false: If you are single and receive unemployment benefits, your benefits may be taxed if your income is greater than $12,000.

18. True or false: You can take an itemized deduction for any medical expenses that exceed five percent of your adjusted gross income.

19. True or false: You can deduct any casualty losses that exceed 10 percent of your adjusted gross income and a $100 exclusion.

He is entitled to deductions for: (select the best answer) (A) The cost of clothing and trip to the union hall. (B) The cost of clothing and laundering it. Put infants in back

Infants and children should take a back seat for the next car trip whether they are being taken a few blocks to the corner grocery or cross country on a family vacation. The back seat is the safest place to be for protection against the nation's number four killer — car accidents. Infants six months or less are the most at risk in car crashes.

Further protective steps advocated by the American Academy of Family Physicians and your local family doctors are: Placing the baby in an infant carrier, positioning the carrier backwards to face the rear of the car, securing the baby in the carrier and buckling up the baby and carrier with a seat belt. These steps will protect the baby from being thrown with great force in case of impact.

Other youngsters in the family, depending on weight and height can be shielded from injuries and death by the use of car seats. Car seats without proper padding and incorrectly positioned straps can provide a false sense of security. The family physician is one of the best advisers on which car devices are safe and how to use the equipment.

Completing the picture of the safety-conscious motoring family, all adults should be buckled into lap and shoulder belts. It is estimated that between 14,000 and 18,000 lives could be saved each year if all car passengers used safety equipment at all times. The current rate of safety belt usage is about 12 percent. The usage rate has been going down rather than up, even though studies have shown that seat belts are between 50 and 65 percent effective in preventing fatalities and injuries.

Two of the most common reasons given for not using seat belts: It is not necessary to use seat belts for short distances and it would be difficult to get out of the car in case of fire or if the car were submerged in water.

The facts are that most accidents happen 25 miles or less from home and only five percent of car accidents involve fire and water.

For the sake of family safety, it is time to Knuckle Down and Buckle Up.

Support groups formed

As a result of the program, "New Beginnings: Coming to Grips with Grief," four support groups have been formed that will meet on alternate Wednesday evenings at the War Memorial.

Those participating in the groups need not have attended the six-week program that preceded the formation of the groups. The Rev. Russell Manney, the facilitator of the program, will meet individually with newcomers to bring them up to date. A tape is also available to those who did not attend the six-week program.

On March 13, and every other Wednesday thereafter for as long as there is a need, those grieving the death of a child will meet in the Garden Room. Those grieving the loss of a sibling, parent or friend will meet in Room B.

On March 20, two separate groups will meet, one for those grieving the death of a spouse, and the other for those grieving as a result of a divorce.

Each meeting will be from 7 to 9 p.m. and costs $2 for each session.

From Another Pointe Of View

"Can you button a man's shirt wearing a pair of socks on your hands? Or read a page that's printed backwards? How about holding a card to your forehead and printing the numbers 1-2-3-4 on it? That's the way we ask schoolchildren, or an adult audience, to experience a handicap."

The speaker is Jane Peters, in charge of grown-ups who manipulate the puppets and follow a script when they present "The Kids on the Block" to children in the Troy School System.

"Kids on the Block" is a national program designed to illustrate, via puppets, the problems of handicapped children. It is currently being presented by community volunteers to boys and girls in grades three through six in Bloomfield Hills and Grosse Pointe as well as in Troy. Sue Klein is in charge of "The Kids" in The Pointe.

Grosse Pointers, members of the Detroit Review Club and their guests, will be traveling to Birmingham, to the Community House, to rendezvous with DRC members and guests from other metropolitan area communities next Tuesday, Mar. 12, for a luncheon and program featuring the Troy volunteers' "Kids on the Block" presentation.

It's the same one that's being presented in Grosse Pointe by our own community volunteers. It features two non-disabled puppets and four who are handicapped. There's 10-year-old Renaldo, who is blind, and 17-year-old Ellen, a victim of Downs Syndrome. Mandy, 12, is deaf. Mark, 11, has cerebral palsy.

Renaldo uses a white cane and a braille watch. Mandy wears a hearing aid and talks via sign language. Mark uses a wheelchair and wears a helmet for protection. They're all "big" little people — each wears toddler size two clothes and size five shoes — and they're meant to be that way, to appear, because of their size, more life-like to their young audiences.

The purpose of their visits to the schools is to help non-handicapped classroom children better understand and develop a positive attitude toward children with handicaps, who are entering the school systems of communities throughout the United States in ever-increasing numbers. Each skit involves one non-disabled puppet and a disabled one in a "loving lesson" presented in an entertaining and dramatic format.

The "normal" puppets ask the handicapped puppets questions that pave the way for a question-and-answer session following the show. The children in the audience often ask the puppets personal questions. "It works! It really does," says Jane Peters. "The students — adults, too — are more at ease asking questions of 'The Kids.' For the students, it's like talking to one of their peers."

She emphasizes that the volunteer puppeteers are not

Pointer of Interest

By Peggy O'Connor

One of Sister Kinue Matsuzaki's favorite watercolor paintings is of a garden full of anemones, lovely pink, white and red flowers which scatter their seeds in the wind. Sister calls the painting "New Mission." She may not know it, but "new mission" is also a perfect description for "Sister Matsu's" life both as a nun and an artist.

The tiny, energetic member of the Religious Order of the Sacred Heart is on a lifelong mission: opening the eyes of others to the beauty of God's creation, at which she has gazed wide-eyed for many years. She is one of the area's most accomplished watercolorists and the "resident artist" at St. Paul's Convent.

Sister Matsu was born in the seaside city of Nagasaki, Japan, in 1925. She joined the order of the Sacred Heart in Tokyo in 1947 and arrived in New York in 1962 as a "missionary" of sorts, part of an exchange which sent American nuns to Japan. It was the beginning of many changes in Sister Matsu's life.

"It was very difficult for me at first. I had been in a cloistered order in Japan — and suddenly I had to join the outside world, learn English and be an art student, all at the same time. It was also the time of Vatican II, which brought many changes to the church," she recalls.

"I think I was able to deal with these changes because I knew that God was using me to do His work and that with Him behind me, I would succeed."

Sister Matsu found she had little problem taking brush in hand to illustrate God's work in watercolor. She had been attracted to the fine arts as a child and was quite experienced in using a brush to paint the Japanese language characters. Balancing her work as a nun, her art studies as a student in Albany, N.Y., and tackling a new language was a different story.

"An art history class was very hard for me. I thought I knew English ... until then," she laughs.

"When I passed the course, my professor said I'd passed because I was so determined. But what I remember most is my professor saying 'You made it!' I could have cried with joy."

SISTER MATSU was transferred to Detroit in 1967 and began teaching arts and crafts at the Academy of the Sacred Heart, Grosse Pointe, (now the Grosse Pointe Academy) in 1968.

"It was just a small class, but I tried to teach my students then what I still try to teach — that art is something that comes from deep inside you. It is an expression of feeling."

She is a member of the Grosse Pointe Artists Association, Michigan Watercolor Artists Association and International Art Association. Her works are part of many private and public collections. She teaches five art classes each week, has exhibited in various shows throughout Michigan and has an ever-growing clientele.

Sister Matsu spends her days in her studio, a sunny, plant-filled room on the second floor of St. Paul's School, or out observing nature.

"I can see God in flowers and in nature. I have my own garden. I plant the seeds and watch them grow, and that way I know the complete structure of the flower. I keep it in my head and when I paint, I

AAUW focus on economic independence

The Legislative Committee of the American Association of University Women-Grosse Pointe Branch, which has been exploring the subject "Economic Independence for Life: Not a Trivial Pursuit," has scheduled two meetings for the month of March.

Both are free, open to the general public and begin at 7:30 p.m. in the Exhibition Room of the Grosse Pointe Central Library, Kercheval Avenue at Fisher Road.

Tonight, Thursday, Mar. 7, AAUW member Marti Vorhees will chair a program on "Wives-Mothers-Daughters; How Can We Protect Our Economic Security?" Guest speaker is Farms resident Doris Higgins Cole, who has been a practicing attorney in Almont, Mich., for 10 years.

Doris received both her Bachelor's degree in Business and her J.D. from the University of Detroit.

The subject for Thursday, Mar. 28, will be "Women's Issues Worldwide." The topic will be addressed by the much-traveled Kimberly Colceman, an AAUW-GP member who was born in Arizona, lived in California, went to high school in Japan, received her Bachelor's degree in Business Administration from the University of Maryland, worked for the United States Navy in Italy, the Air Force in Portugal — and is now studying law at the University of Detroit.

Kimberly, an AAUW participant in the 1984 United Nations Conference in New York, will focus on women's issues in both the Third World and the West, in light of the International Women's Conference to be held in Nairobi, Kenya, in July. AAUW member Josephine Casgrain will chair the session.

Hunt Club setting for DSO League

The Detroit Symphony League will hold a general meeting and luncheon on Wednesday, Mar. 13, at the Grosse Pointe Hunt Club. The meeting begins at 10 a.m. Grosse Pointe South High School's Choir will provide the noon luncheon entertainment. Further information may be obtained by contacting Kathy Groustra at 822-1257.

THE PROFESSIONALS WHO CARE

To open Girl Scout Cookie Sale Friday

It's Girl Scout Cookie Sale time! Seven varieties — Juliettes, Chocolate Chunks, Thin Mints, Samoas, Do-Si-Dos, Trefoils and Tagalongs — are offered this year, at $1.75 per package. All proceeds go to support programs which enrich the development of girls.

The 1985 sale begins tomorrow, Friday, Mar. 8, and will run through Mar. 24. Cookies will be available in local grocery stores, banks and other places of business. Home delivery can be arranged by calling 882-9459 or 881-9442.

The cookie sale generates more than 50 percent of the Michigan Metro Girl Scouts' annual operating income. Cookie money defrays the costs of sending girls to the United States Space Camp in Huntsville, Ala., supports the development of special outdoor camp experiences and provides for direct local community contributions through "Project Gift Back."

Project Gift Back is exactly what its name implies: a program designed to give back to the community that has supported more than three decades of successful cookie sales. The second annual Gift Back proposes that each Girl Scout troop commit itself to a gift of "action" to benefit its community.

Mayors will be notified by letter of the Girl Scout Gift Back Project in their communities. Although the commitment to a particular service project is made during the cookie sale, the project will continue through the spring of 1985.

Michigan Metro Girl Scout Council supports a corporate staff of 6,000 adults, most of whom are volunteers, and a clientele of over 25,000 girls in Wayne and Oakland Counties.

Programs such as the Arab Outreach Project, the Latino Program and the Housing Project Program are aimed to serve minority girls in traditionally hard-to-reach areas. The "Come to My Town" project, designed to capture the special character of each community, consists of tours, festival and theme events.

Additional programs include troops for handicapped Scouts, Computer Camp, the previously-mentioned Space Camp, Career Exploration programs and the recently-introduced Daisy Girl Scout program for five-year-old kindergartners.

Another example of Michigan

Metro Girl Scout commitment to community leadership is the National Girl Scout Convention held in Detroit's Cobo Hall last October. Its theme, "Reach Wider Still," emphasized new levels of community outreach and commitment. The convention challenged its more than 2,000 participants to reach beyond their individual concerns and focus on the long-range future of Girl Scouting, exploring the needs of girls in today's and tomorrow's world.

The estimated cost of MMGSC-initiated programs is projected at 50 percent of overall operational expenses. The organization's 1984 operating budget was $2.6 million, a portion of which was spent on camp programs, management activities and fund-raising efforts.

In 1984, more than 130 million boxes of Girl Scout Cookies were sold. The financial impact of the sale is great, and its success directly affects MMGSC's ability to provide programs and services to girls. The United Foundation also contributes to MMGSC. Program fees, interest and grants make up its remaining income.

Try some art in the spring in The Pointe

New sessions of art instruction begin next week at the Grosse Pointe War Memorial, with Daniel Keller offering two oil and acrylic painting classes, both starting Tuesday, Mar. 12.

Beginners, meeting from 9 a.m. to noon, will work from still life in a series of exercises designed to involve them in basic composition values, color and design. Advanced students, meeting from 12:30 to 3:30 p.m., will work from models, costumed and nude.

Individual thinking and self-expression will be stressed in the latter class. Each is offered at $60 for eight weeks.

Marilyn Derwensku will teach two watercolor classes, starting Monday, Mar. 25. "Experimental Watercolor," meeting from 9 a.m. to noon, will emphasize expanded attitudes toward the process of painting: recognizing rules, yet intentionally ignoring them. Still life subjects will be repetitive and visually unexciting, to force students to explore new vistas. "The Wonders of Nature," running from 12:30 to 3:30 p.m., will seek inspiration through studio observation of early spring flowers and on-location landscape painting. This class is open to both beginners and advanced students.

Negri to lead two concerts

Guest conductor Vittorio Negri, noted interpreter of Baroque music, leads the final two performances of this season's Detroit Symphony Orchestra Chamber Concert Series on Friday, Mar. 8, at 8 p.m. and Sunday, Mar. 10, at 3:30 p.m. in Orchestra Hall.

Tickets, ranging in price from $6 to $8 for each program, are available at the Ford Auditorium box office, 567-1400, the Orchestra Hall box office, 833-3700, Hudson's and CTC/Ticket World outlets. Discounts for groups of 10 or more are available by calling 446-0909.

Tomorrow's concert marks the DSO premier performances of four works. Three — Vivaldi's Concerto in A Major for String Orchestra, RV 158; Albinoni's Sonata in G Minor for Strings, Op. 2, No. 6; and G.F. Ghedini's Concerto for Flute, Violin and Chamber Orchestra ("L'Alderina") — are by Italian composers. Featured soloists in the Ghedini Concerto will be two DSO members, principal flutist Ervin Monroe and violinist Ronald Fischer.

Other scheduled works are Handel's Concerto grosso in D Minor, Op. 6, No. 10, and the first DSO performance of Haydn's Symphony No. 57 in D Major.

The Sunday afternoon chamber concert opens with two familiar works: Respighi's Suite No. 3 from "Ancient Airs and Dances" and J.S. Bach's Suite No. 3 in D Major, BWV 1068. The second half of the program presents Benjamin Britten's Simple Symphony, Op. 4, and Mozart's Symphony No. 28 in C Major, K 200. Both the Britten and Mozart pieces are being performed by the DSO for the first time.

Negri, who last appeared with the DSO in December of 1980, has received international acclaim for his recordings of works by many Baroque composers, including Vivaldi and Albinoni. He has also established a reputation in conducting works of the Classical period.

Each watercolor class will run 10 weeks, and is offered at a fee of $80.

Carol Lachuisa will teach "Watercolor Landscapes" on Thursdays, Apr. 11 through May 30, from 9:30 a.m. to 12:30 p.m. The course will, weather permitting, be conducted outdoors. Cost is $64 for eight weeks — or students may drop in when their schedules permit, at $10 per session.

William Bostick is offering an eight-session Beginners' Calligraphy course starting Thursday, Mar. 21, meeting from 1:30 to 3:30 p.m. Cost is $55, plus $17 for text and supplies.

Registration information on all these courses may be obtained by calling 881-7511.

Garden group meets Mar. 6

Mrs. Edward Hathaway assisted as luncheon co-hostess when the Windmill Pointe Garden Club met yesterday, Wednesday, Mar. 6, at 11:30 a.m. at the home of Mrs. Daniel Beck. Reidy Fedus presented a program on "Rock Gardens."

Lakeside Palette Club will meet

The Lakeside Palette Club will hold its regular meeting next Tuesday, Mar. 12, at 7:30 p.m. in the St. Clair Shores Recreation Center Teen Room. The program will be a critique of paintings expected to be entered in the club's spring show. Visitors and prospective members are welcome, for a small donation.

Questers mind their manners

Readings on "Etiquette in the 19th Century" will be presented to Grosse Pointe Quester Chapter No. 147 tomorrow, Friday, Mar. 8, by Quester member Mrs. Robert Palmer. She will read passages from her collection of rare books, enlightening her audience on the manners, customs and charm of the Victorian Era.

Mrs. George H. Bay is opening her McKinley Avenue home for the meeting. Co-hostesses will be Mrs. James Champagne Jr. and Mrs. M.L. Van Dagens.

Chinese women are film focus

"Small Happiness: Women of a Chinese Village" will be shown at Wayne State University in Room 326 State Hall at noon today, Thursday, Mar. 7, under sponsorship of the WSU Women's Studies Program Brown Bag Lunch series.

The 58-minute film illustrates the gradual progress of Chinese women from confinement in the home to becoming more active participants in the economic and political life of the community. Its title, "Small Happiness," refers to a persisting Chinese attitude which favors male children.

The documentary, filmed without interpreters or officials present, also explores the lack of interaction between men and women in rural China. It lets the women of Long Bow Village talk about their lives: the improvements, and the problems that still exist.

The smiles of success

The smiles of success are evident on the faces of MR. and MRS. THOMAS G. SIEBER, honorary chairmen of the Assistance League to the Northeast Guidance Center's Detroit Auto Dealers Association Auto Show Charity Preview, for the evening was a tremendous success, raising a record $18,600 for the community mental health center. Co-chairpersons Judy Rutan and Mickey Kareus are, of course, smiling, too — smiling their thanks to all the Grosse Pointers whose participation in the January benefit made it so successful.

From Another Pointe Of View

speaking as "experts" (doctors, social workers, et al.). The volunteers' aim is to teach children to practice everyday consideration in their dealings with handicapped members of their peer group. "And we are not ventriloquists," Jane adds. "We don't try to throw our voices — but we do try to lip-sync the puppets with our speech."

"Usually, the audience gets so absorbed in the puppets that they almost forget volunteers are there manipulating them!"

Detroit Review Club members and their guests will see for themselves how well "The Kids on the Block" works next Tuesday. Mrs. Robert Gerisch, DRC's immediate past-president, will introduce the program. Mrs. Justin Emery, the current president, will be official hostess at the luncheon and will conduct the business meeting that concludes the afternoon.

DRC members are reminded to check their Club Yearbooks for the address of Mrs. James Bird, who is handling reservations for all DRC luncheons and programs this year, and to send their "Kids on the Block" reservation checks ($10 per person, payable to Detroit Review Club) to her as soon as possible.

Time is short, and this is one program NOBODY should miss. If you're not a DRC member, but you know one, you might ask her to take you along. What are friends for, anyway, if not to share good experiences together?

Direct from France, A Revue

It's not the Follies Bergere, but it's as authentically French as you can get, direct from Paris (well . . . from two suburbs of Paris, but who wants to split metropolitan area geographical hairs? Would we, if the situation were reversed, bill ourselves as "Direct from Detroit" or "Direct from Grosse Pointe?"), and it will be presented next Wednesday, Mar. 13, at 7:30 p.m. in the studio of University Liggett School's Cook Road campus to Grosse Pointe Alliance Francaise members and friends.

It's a musical revue, in French and English, performed by grade school students from Saint-Cloud and Saint Germain-en-Laye who, accompanied by their teachers, Mme. M. de Lascoups and Mme. C. Heuleu, are paying a three-week visit to Dearborn through a cultural exchange curriculum known as "Back-to-Back," which has the cooperation of the French Ministry of Education and Campus International, an organization subsidized by the French Government.

It's been arranged by Pointe Alliance member Mrs. Arthur Rooks, a Farms resident and a teacher in the Dearborn School System. In April, Mrs. Rooks and her bilingual assistant Ruth Bradfield, also of The Pointe, will, under "Back-to-Back" auspices, escort a group of Dearborn school children to the home communities of the current visitors, where the Dearborn children will stay with French families, get acquainted with the French way of life and perform their own musical show for their new friends.

Mrs. Michel Skaff is chairing the reception immediately following the revue. Prior to it, on Sunday, Mrs. Rooks will honor the two visiting French teachers at a brunch in her Farms home.

Pontchartrain topic for Elizabeth Cass

Mrs. A. John Kirsch opened her Whittier Road home at noon Monday, Mar. 4, to members of the Elizabeth Cass Chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution, gathering for their monthly luncheon and meeting.

Mrs. Bernard Seitz, regent of the DAR's Fort Pontchartrain Chapter, presented a program on the original Fort Pontchartrain, built by Cadillac in 1701 on the site of what later became Detroit.

During February, every DAR chapter in the United States has donated funds to help restore the Statue of Liberty. Mrs. Howard Reed, Elizabeth Cass Chapter's American History chairman, prepared a Statue of Liberty exhibit for display at the Grosse Pointe Central Library.

Mrs. Robert Becker, the chapter's recording secretary, reported at Monday's meeting on the amount of funds Elizabeth Cass contributed to the restoration project.

Share Lenten 'Experience'

The Women's Association of Grosse Pointe Memorial Church invites members and visitors to share a visual and musical Lenten Experience at 9:30 a.m. next Tuesday, Mar. 12, in Memorial Church's Barbour Chapel, where Robyn Beckett, of Lake Orion, and Karen Leskinen, of Troy, will present "His Last Days."

It is the story, in words and music by Dallas Holm, as told by Christ of His last days on earth, from His viewpoint. Songs and accompanying slides help the viewer/listener to feel personally involved in the events and feelings of those who witnessed Christ's last hours on earth. Dr. Louis J. Prues II, Memorial Church's new pastor, will be participating in the narration.

Robyn and Karen became well-acquainted in 1982, when they sang together in Faith Lutheran Church's women's sextet, "God's Rainbow." They auditioned and were accepted as members of Thurlow Spurr's touring chorus, "Festival of Praise."

Hoping to gain financial support for the chorus tour, the two women began planning a simple concert for their own congregation. This led to their current ministry of musical presentations accompanied by interpretive multi-image slides.

Robyn and Karen will be introduced by the Memorial Church Women's Association program chairperson, Julia Keim. Their program will be preceded by a short business meeting in the church lounge. Devotions will be given by Rachel Brake.

The agenda concludes with a noon luncheon in Fellowship Hall, for which reservations may be made by calling 882-5330. Child care is available.

Regina High Guild plans Pot O' Gold

The Regina High School Mothers' Guild will sponsor a Pot O' Gold card party tonight, Thursday, Mar. 7, at 7:30 p.m. in the gym at Regina High, located on Kelly Road in Harper Woods. Admission donation is $3.50. Prizes and refreshments will be featured. Ticket information may be obtained by contacting Nancy Lawicki at 774-9799 or the school office, 526-0220.

Slate Pastoral Counselor talk

The Women's Association of the Grosse Pointe Congregational and American Baptist Church will hear David Hurst, director of the Dearborn Pastoral Counseling Center, explain the philosophy of the center and briefly describe the services it offers at a program meeting next Tuesday, Mar. 12, at the church, located on Chalfonte Avenue.

Dr. Hurst will also discuss the issue of "How to Maintain a Christian Family Life in the Face of Many Distractions."

The counseling center, located at Cherry Hill Presbyterian Church, is an ecumenical venture of four Dearborn churches to meet some of the needs of their community. It is designed to assist individuals with growth and healing. It stresses the concept of renewal: a reorientation of personality that leads to a state of wholeness of body, mind and spirit.

Dr. Hurst, a minister and Certified Pastoral Counselor, organized Pastoral Care Services of Southeastern Michigan in 1974. He will speak at 1 p.m., following luncheon served at 12:15 p.m.

Visitors are welcome. Luncheon reservations should be made by noon Monday, Mar. 11, through the church office, 884-3075.

Campo-Burkli rites revealed

Mr. and Mrs. William Dennis Campo vacationed in northern Michigan following their autumn wedding in Saint Joan of Arc Church, and are now at home in Amarillo, Tex. Mrs. Campo is the former Judith Ann Burkli, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Burkli, of Blairmoor Court. Mr. Campo is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Campo, of East Detroit.

A reception at Lochmoor Club followed the 7 o'clock rites Friday, September 7. Father Charles Morris presided.

The bride's lace-trimmed gown of white organza featured a ruffled lace neckline and long, full sleeves ending in lace cuffs. Her train was chapel length. Her fingertip veil fell from a halo of flowers, and she carried an arrangement of white roses, stephanotis and baby's breath.

Carrying bouquets of lavender Fuji mums, baby's-breath and mini carnations in various shades of pink were Chris Burkli-Bery, who served as her sister's honor matron, and bridesmaids Jennifer Burkli, another sister, and Darlene Campo, sister of the bridegroom.

Their dresses of dusty rose taffeta were styled with short, full sleeves and scoop necklines filled with illusion and applied lace and ending in high, lace collars. Flower girl Lisa Berlenbach, the bride's niece, in a dress of white embroidered eyelet over pink taffeta, sashed in pink satin, carried a basket of flowers in shades of pink.

Best man was Charles Clegg, of Traverse City, a college friend of the bridegroom. Ushers were Ronald Winter, cousin of the bridegroom, and David Stocker.

The mothers of the bride and bridegroom each selected a formal length gown, the former's of pearl grey crepe, the latter's of aqua chiffon, and a cymbidium orchid shoulder corsage.

View politics and women

Dr. Nancy A. Humphreys, director of the School of Social Work at Michigan State University, will talk about "Women and Politics" at the Monday, Mar. 11, dinner meeting of the Michigan Professional Women's Network.

The meeting at Ramada Inn on Telegraph Road begins with a networking hour at 6 p.m. Like all MPWN meetings, it is open to the public — but reservations are required in advance. Further information may be obtained by calling 851-9441.

Dr. Humphreys traveled extensively during her term as president of the National Association of Social Workers, visiting almost all of the association's 55 United States chapters: an experience which gave her in-depth knowledge of her profession and its members.

Appointed by President Jimmy Carter, she served on the National Advisory Committee on Women's Issues in 1979-80. These and other experiences have led her to criticize current federal policies regarding social programs, and she sees a need for women to take an increasing role in achieving gender equity and humanizing the political system.

In her MPWN address, Dr. Humphreys also will discuss the so-called "gender gap" of the 1984 election.

The Michigan Professional Women's Network seeks to bring challenging speakers to its members and guests. By learning from these speakers, sharing information and actively networking together, the MPWN hopes to help career women succeed in business, industry and educational fields.

Sports Week

By Peggy O'Connor

Playoff notebook . . .

While the teams at North, South, University Liggett and Star of the Sea have been toiling in post-season playoff tournaments, I've been filling notebooks with my impressions of the goings-on, both on and off the court, ice and floor.

Trenton High hockey fans must have learned their stuff from New York Yankee followers. They've got a No. 1-ranked hockey team, but their fans wouldn't make the bottom 10. At last week's regional game against South High, the fans spent most of the game taunting Fraser High hockey players who were seated in the stands. And every time Trenton scored a goal in its 9-0 thrashing of the Blue Devils, one Trenton student would take off his school jacket, run to where the Fraser players were seated and shake his jacket in their faces. Nothing like a gracious winner, I always say.

Fraser fans, on the other hand, kept their mouths shut when I watched them beat North. It was a smart move in light of the way the Ramblers were playing, as North was more than able to skate with Fraser for most of the game, despite losing 7-3. I think Fraser and its fans know what it takes to be a state championship hockey team . . . and it doesn't have anything to do with acting like jerks in the stands.

I will say one thing, if regional champ Trenton doesn't win a state title this year, something's wrong. They are big, fast, tough and solid. Unbelievable and awesome are a couple more adjectives I'd throw in there. Would you believe intimidating and frightening? How about juggernaut?

If you are a high school basketball team, you finish out the regular season in anticipation of the "second season" — tournament action. But sometimes, nothing bursts that bubble faster than a look at the district pairings. ULS cagers get the "uh-oh" honors this week. They're slated to face Detroit St. Martin dePorres tonight. The Knights struggled toward a .500 season, playing well in several games, but dePorres won the Catholic League championship, beat the Class A No. 2 team Southwestern in the city title game and are ranked No. 1 in Class C with a 20-0 record. Double uh-oh.

Close behind in that department is my alma mater, Detroit Servite. The Panthers finished their best season in years, only to draw perennial Class D champ Detroit East Catholic in the districts. Which are being played AT East Catholic. Do I here another "uh-oh?"

Don't tell anybody, but I am now a paying supporter of either Michigan High School Hockey or the St. Clair Shores Civic Arena, I haven't figured out which. Imagine my surprise last week when the guy at the SCS Arena door told me that no passes — and he meant NO passes — were to be accepted for the regional hockey tournament. Which meant that I had to fork over $4 in total to watch North and South play. I'm not used to paying my way into prep competition since my press pass usually gets me into events. But I'm not complaining. I'm always happy to do what I can for high school hockey. City arenas, however, are another matter altogether. If the dough went to the arena, I sure hope my lousy $4 is used as a hedge against any future fiscal problems St. Clair Shores Arena might have.

Speaking of high school hockey, the first response to my cry for help in locating Grosse Pointe's Unsung Heroes comes from reader John Szabo. Szabo nominates the parents of North and South varsity hockey players. Amen to that. North and South parents put in plenty of time serving as crowd marshals at games, putting together the great game programs, setting up intramurals, attending home and away games, organizing overnight trips, submitting game summaries to this sports section and in general, serving as the best fans a team could ask for.

In fact, I think we could move the North and South moms and dads up from Unsung Heroes to No. 1 stars.

Dave Fleming ended his wrestling career at North High with a second place finish in the state finals last Saturday. It hasn't been easy for Fleming, playing in the shadow of his brother Greg, who won a state title in 1982, but he has managed to be the class of the North varsity wrestlers for three seasons and set a whole slew of personal and school marks as a Norseman.

It hasn't been any easier for the North varsity basketball team, playing in the shadow of crosstown rival South High (17-3) while compiling a 12-8 mark, reversing last year's dismal 8-12 finish and finishing a very close second in the Bi-County to Clintondale. It's been great watching two talented, winning teams in Grosse Pointe this year.

What hasn't been so much fun is the response from readers who thought the hockey story in the News' Feb. 28 edition was biased against North. The South portion of the story was longer than the North story, which was because the North game was played well after the paper's deadline, leaving time only for a brief summary. It's as simple as that, folks.

Well, as simple as the North vs. South dilemma can ever be, anyway.

ULMS cagers finish at 12-4

University Liggett Middle School's basketball team ended its season with a 47-25 win over Harper Woods. The win brought ULMS's record to 12-4.

Coach Josh Schmidt was delighted with his squad's hustle and determination, as well as its growth and improvement throughout the season.

Dike Ajiri was player of the game for his 15 points, 11 rebounds, five steals, and four blocked shots against Harper Woods. Bucky Drewek had his best game of the year with nine points and seven rebounds. Other scorers were Brad Bartos and Anthony Abiragi, with six; Dan Shanle, Bill Lucken and Mike Barnes with three each; and Mike Cogan with two points.

On Feb. 21, ULMS beat Inter-City Baptist, 44-29. Ivan Monclova, Drewek, Cogan and Bartos had two points each. Barnes scored on three of his five foul shots and Abiragi, the team's leading scorer with 167 points, had five points. Shanle had seven points and eight rebounds and Ajiri totaled eight points and nine rebounds.

Player of the game was guard Lucken, who had 13 points, 10 rebounds and passed four two assists.

Southeastern too much for North

Southeastern's Darren Brown.

Nothing could have been more deceiving than the 9-9 record Detroit Southeastern brought into its district 16 showdown with the 12-8 North High Norsemen on Monday night. Except maybe the way North was able to stay close to the Jungaleers in the first quarter.

Reality, in the form of Southeastern's 20-point scoring edge in the second quarter, settled in and the Norsemen went down to defeat, 74-49.

The Jungaleers, senior guard, Darren Brown led all scorers with 30 points and drew audible gasps from even the partisan North fans with his fancy ball handling and pinpoint shooting. Senior center Art Szymanski had 25 points for the Norsemen.

After a 14-14 first quarter,

Southeastern scored two quick baskets and went on a 28-8 scoring tear in the second quarter. The Norsemen gave the ball away several times and Southeastern's shooting was just too hot to let the Jungaleers have the ball so easily.

"We were very careless with the ball in that second quarter. Then they started pressing and got the ball and made their shots. That was the key," said North coach George Olman.

"Brown is very good . . . second team All-City. And we didn't give the man covering him (Dan Kopitzke) much help. That's just too much floor for one man to handle," he added.

The Norsemen outscored Southeastern, 14-12, in the third quarter, but it wasn't enough to even pull close. North's Kevin Weidinger had 16 points and a couple of key rebounds early in the game.

Southeastern went on to the second round of the district tournament, facing the 17-3 Blue Devils from South High on Wednesday night (after press time). North finished its season with a 12-9 mark.

"Our seniors did a good job this season. We weren't surprised with what we did this year (challenging for the Bi-County title); we anticipated that we would win the league. We had a lot of experience back and we were able to put things together when our injuries finally healed," Olman said.

Spikers' season ends . . .

By Peggy O'Connor

While the high school hockey and basketball teams attracted most of the attention this winter sports season, the volleyball teams at Our Lady Star of the Sea, North and South went quietly about the business of chalking up victories, winning league championships and setting records.

Coach Ann Anderson's North High varsity volleyball team followed last year's excellent 19-9 season with an even better 21-7 record and a Bi-County League championship. Both represent firsts for a North volleyball squad.

"Yes, I was very pleased with the season," Anderson said Monday after her squad had played well in losing to crosstown rival South High in the District tournament at Bishop Gallagher last Saturday. North lost the first game, 15-9, and the last, 15-8, and won the second game, 15-7.

"Coming into the districts, one thing I wanted was for the girls to play in control and I thought we accomplished that. We came back after being down nine points and if it hadn't been for a few mistakes in the third game, we'd have been right in there."

Anderson said she felt the key to North's success this year was its consistent serve reception. "We had the advantage of having three or four consistent hitters, but when you get that serve reception, you are successful," she said.

"Plus, I think we had a very tough team. The girls like one another and were supportive of one another and that's certainly part of why we were successful."

North will lose the excellent hitting skills of seniors Paula Harms, Celeste Sartor and Dawn Cartwright to graduation this June; they have been the mainstays of North's team in recent seasons. But Anderson will have nine returning players — Brooke Bessert, Cindy Bowman, Despi Costopoulos, Amy Domienik, Sharon Edgar, Heidi Jaeger and Virginia Sanders — who will join members of the North JV team which compiled an 18-1 mark back next season.

North matmen shine at tournament time

Back in December, North High wrestling coach Larry Aceto knew that tough times were ahead for his squad, dual meet-wise. But he also knew that he had some talent on his team and had some high hopes for his wrestlers making the district and regional playoffs. Aceto was right on target with both those pre-season "predictions."

"I think we did what I expected as far as tournament play. We didn't have enough depth as far as our dual meet record and those who look at that record might say we had a losing season. But we did very well in tournaments and sent four to the state finals . . . I call that a success. Only 90 out of 130 schools with wrestling teams were qualified to send wrestlers to the states and on that first day of the finals, we were seventh, so I guess you could say we did well," Aceto said.

North turned around its sub-par dual meet season by finishing second in the Bi-County to Clintondale, second in the districts to Mount Clemens and third in the regionals. The district and regional finishes are the highest ever for a North team. The Norsemen sent four wrestlers to the state finals, also a school record.

"It was a tough final. Dave Fleming finished second in the state and he was outpointed, 7-3. Steve Taugher lost two tough matches and the kids he lost to finished third and fourth in the state. Ken Werenski lost to the eventual state champion and Pat Armstrong was beaten by the guy who finished second in the states," Aceto said.

The four led North all year setting several school and individual records. That same four will also graduate this June, leaving Aceto with an even more inexperienced squad for next season than he had to contend with this year.

"It's going to be a challenging year, probably our biggest year in terms of rebuilding. We'll be led by Brian Reid, who was a regional qualifier. And we've got a good group to work with, and that makes a big difference," he added.

In action before the state finals, North medalists in the Bi-County League meet included Reid, champion at 98 pounds; Kevin Mack, second at 105; Fleming, champion at 119; Rob Thill, third at 126; Bill Lewis, fourth at 132; Al Thomalla, third at 145; Armstrong, champion at 155; Taugher, champ at 167;

Dave Selmo, second at 198; and Werenski, champion at heavyweight.

In the districts, North was second out of 23 teams and qualified five for the regionals, including Reid, the champ at 98; Fleming, second at 119; Armstrong, second at 155; Taugher, champ at 167; and Werenski finished fourth at 198.

The Norsemen were third in the regionals among 33 teams, qualifying four for the state finals last Saturday at Grand Valley State College. Fleming was third at 119; Armstrong, second at 155; Taugher was champ at 167; and Werenski finished fourth at 198.

"All in all, the team was one of the area's best tournament teams . . . that's what we heard at all the meets," Aceto said. "The bigger the tournament, the better we did. We really came on as the season progressed and that was good to see."

"We may not be as successful as this year, but we'll be tough. We'll be able to serve hard and receive well. We'll be scramblers."

Scramblers who will have a very tough act to follow.

SOUTH'S PROBLEM in the districts was similar to North's: each drew the toughest teams in the district. After coach Jan Hooper's girls beat North, they had to face eventual district champion Bishop Gallagher, losing 15-6, 15-8.

"We didn't play that badly," Hooper said. "But Gallagher is a good team. They have a lot of height. We led in that second game, 5-3, then Jennifer O'Connor served eight straight points — five straight aces — and that took care of us."

South finished the season with a 19-5-1 record and an Eastern Michigan League championship which it won the night before the districts. All of that after losing a 6-0 player and a 5-10 starter to graduation after last year's 22-2 mark.

"We didn't come back with a lot of height, therefore our expectations were not high."

. . .strangely

Our Lady Star of the Sea's varsity volleyball team saw its season end on Saturday, but according to head coach Valerie Johnson, there was more to the Class C district second round loss to Flat Rock than just a 15-10, 15-7 score.

"We had a gentleman officiating who had something personal against Anita Pugliesi. He called her several times during the match on illegal hits and when I spoke to him afterwards, he told me, he 'didn't like Anita, didn't like the way she touched the ball and that if she's the best player we had, then we didn't deserve to win the games we'd won,' Johnson said. "Those were his exact words."

Johnson and Star's athletic director Margaret Spindler filed an official protest with Michigan High School Athletic Association executive director Vern Norris on Monday. Johnson said that the other official witnessed the exchange.

Norris was contacted on Tuesday morning and said he'd hadn't received the protest yet and didn't feel fully qualified to make an official statement. When the situation was explained to him, he responded by saying that it would be "very unique or different if something is done at this time in terms of reversing the final score of the game."

"A protest is to be settled at the event. The game is considered complete," he added. But Norris admitted that his first responsibility

Bandits win league title

The Grosse Pointe Squirt AA Bandits captured the Little Caesar's League Championship on March 3 at the Joe Louis Arena by beating Ray's Rascals of Plymouth, 7-3.

In order to reach the finals, the Bandits had to play several playoff games to determine which team would be the Squirt AA representative. Over the past two weeks, the Bandits eliminated the Michigan Dynamos, 4-0; topped Ray's Rascals, 4-3; beat the Macomb Bulls, 10-0; and shut out the Grosse Pointe Demons, 2-0.

After a scoreless first period in Sunday's game, Andrew VanDeweghe put the Bandits on top when he deflected a shot by Brian Crane. John Gorney also drew an assist. Todd Frederickson made it 2-0 on a pretty pass play from Michael Kuna and Brad Warezak and the Bandits then led 3-0 when Gorney knocked in a pass from Stefan Teitge.

Ray's Rascals rallied for two quick goals before VanDeweghe scored again on a pretty set-up from Gorney and Teitge. After the Rascals scored to pull to within one goal, Frederickson notched his second goal of the game in the third period; Kuna and Warezak assisting. Gorney got his second goal from VanDeweghe and Teitge and Warezak closed the scoring on a hard shot after taking a pass from Kuna. Teitge earned a "playmaker" award for having three assists in one game.

One record, broken

No sooner did the Woods' Jimmy Carson break one record than he set his sights on another. The 16-year-old center for the Montreal (Verdun) Junior Canadiens broke Mario Lemieux' Quebec Major Junior Hockey League's rookie scoring record of 96 points with a goal against Laval on Feb. 20. The QMJHL league record is 125 points and Carson has 106 points on 65 assists and 41 goals with seven games to go. Incidentally, Laval was NHL star Lemieux' junior team. Carson's feat didn't merit much attention from the partisan Laval team, but drew an ovation from the Verdun fans when it was announced at the next game. Carson will be honored for the record following the playoffs which begin this month.

North icers end year

North High's varsity hockey team went down fighting, playing a spirited game in losing, 7-3, to Fraser in the regional hockey tournament last week.

Earlier, the final two North High varsity hockey regular season outings were typical of the cycles of elation and frustration encountered by the team in 1984-85. Coach Mike Manzella's underclassmen-laden team could skate with any team and had its great games during the season, particularly a 7-3 upset of No. 7-ranked Livonia Stevenson Feb. 20.

who played the final two periods. Cormier responded with a remarkable effort, stopping at least three breakaway efforts in the third period.

The Norsemen's final game of the regular season matched them against last year's Class A state champ, Ann Arbor Pioneer. Pioneer (with seven players over 170 pounds) had too much muscle and took a 7-0 win.

North ended the season with a 9-14 record, despite a tough schedule and its first year in the Michigan Metro League.

North was plagued by low scoring, turning on the goal light just 83 times in 22 games for a 3.77 goals per game average. Vento led goal scorers with 16, followed by senior Greg Henchel and junior John Russell with 15 each. Juniors Kevin Tisdale (12) and Casey Quick (seven) and sophomore Rob Koehler (six) rounded out the top scorers.

Top playmaker honors went to Henchel, who set up 14 tallies; Russell had 13 and Vento, 12. Bob Rogers (nine), Tisdale and Quick (five each) were other playmakers.

Manzella will lose his scoring duo of Henchel and Vento, along with fine defensemen Joe Cueter, Jon Spitz, Don Nicol and Rogers, and senior goalie Marc Cormier, to graduation. Returning next fall will be 12 lettermen who have accumulated a year's worth of experience in a tough league and will be counted on to improve the fortunes of the Norsemen.

Senior Frank Vento led the North scoring with a three-goal hat trick and junior John Russell added a pair to pace the attack. Stevenson broke out on top in the game, taking a two-goal lead before North came back with three unanswered goals. Vento started the North scoring when he converted a center pass from Russell. Then Kevin Tisdale sent Russell in alone on the Spartan goalie to tie the score, before Vento intercepted a Livonia clearing pass and scored unassisted.

After Livonia tied the game with the only goal of the second period, North came back with four goals in the third period. Greg Henchel, Rob Koehler, Vento and Russell were the marksmen, with Peter Guzzardo, Bob Rogers, Vento and Tisdale drawing assists. The action was fast and furious with end-to-end skating and fine goaltending. Sophomore Matt Dennis played well, as did senior Marc Cormier

Steve Swan took a first (29.59) in the boys' 12 and under 50 free and All Pointes placed again in the girls' 14 and under 50 with Taylor (22.68) in second. Nora Brooks touched first in the girls' 18 and under 100 free (1:03.55).

Closing it out for All Pointes were the teams of Winger, Candilotis, Brady and Roddis (2:11.52) and Higel, Taylor, Brooks and Higel (2:22.20) placing first and second, respectively, in the boys' and girls' 200 medley relay.

The St. Clair Shores Junior A Falcons will wrap up their regular season this weekend with three games against league-rival Compuware at St. Clair Shores Civic Arena.

The Falcons play Compuware at 7 p.m. March 9, 2 p.m. March 10 and 7:30 p.m. Tuesday, March 12. The first place Falcons need just a tie in their last three games in order to go to the national championships in Chicago, Ill., in April, according to assistant coach Bob Morris, of Grosse Pointe.

Pointer Paul O'Brien plays for the Falcons and John Weber, of Grosse Pointe, is a member of the Compuware squad.

South High's varsity gymnastics team lost two meets recently, falling to Fraser, 123.15-111.35, and to Edsel Ford, 125.75-113.5.

Individually, South's Patty Lepala was second in the vault (8.3), and third on the bars (7.7).

North ends regular season at 12-8

By Bill Hoover
North High

North's varsity basketball team finished the regular season with wins over the Edsel Ford Thunderbirds on 78-57, and the L'Anse Creuse Lancers, 78-63, last week.

The Norsemen opened strong, capitalizing on Thunderbird turnovers while working for, and getting, good shots. At the quarter's end, North held a comfortable 22-12 lead and increased that to 40-24 at halftime.

The Thunderbirds came out gunning in the third quarter but could come within only 10 points. Edsel Ford tried to come back, but the Norsemen were too strong and the quarter ended with a free-throw by Craig Engle which gave North a 58-45 advantage.

Five minutes into the fourth quarter, Dan "Master D" Kopitzke caught fire, hitting three straight shots to give North a 74-54 advantage which allowed time for the "Green Team," North's second and third string players. The Green Team finished up the game and secured North its 11th win of the season.

North was led by Art Szymanski's 21 points. Kevin Weidinger scored 12 points and collected nine rebounds while Rob Skuras finished with 10 points.

Dan Kopitzke, who scored 18 points and dished off 10 assists, broke the record of most assists in a season by reaching the total of 159. The previous record of 150 was set by Morehead.

Against L'Anse Creuse, North used its height advantage to take the lead early on; but the Lancers, behind some tough shots, tied the score with 1:48 in the quarter. Following a lay-up by Weidinger, Skuras crushed a Lancers' shot on the backboard, firing up the Norsemen who finished the quarter strong and led 18-12 at quarters' end.

Szymanski came off the bench to score two quick baskets, building North's lead to 10. The hustling Lancers fought back and trailed by only six at the half, 37-31. The third quarter, which was all North, saw the Norsemen build leads of as much as 13.

The fourth quarter, the last regular season quarter for seniors Paul Kent, Dan Kopitzke, Art Szymanski and Kevin Weidinger, again allowed participation by the Green Team. The Green Team's playing time was highlighted by John Heilscher who sank two free-throws and Dave "Atomic Block" Bryer who scored two points and blocked a shot as the Norsemen ended the season on a 78-68 triumph.

The Norsemen finished 12-8 overall and finished second in the bi-County with 10-2 record.

Swimmers win league

North's swim team was never challenged at the Bi-County Championships last weekend. North won all but two events and finished with 442 points; second place Lakeview had 255.

The 200 medley relay team of Greg Cooksey, Brad Cooksey, Andy Young and John Cobau was first (1:51.34). In the 200 free, Cobau went 1:53.89 (personal best) in beating teammate Jeff Williams. Also in the top six for the Norsemen was Scott Tenkel (sixth place).

Mike Woods and Greg Cooksey took second and third, respectively, in the 200 IM; Tom Mediodia was sixth. A 22.74 was enough for Dave Chadwell to win the 50 free. Jeff Figley and Andy Young took third and fourth in that event. In diving, Mike Reynolds won with his total of 405 points, 118 points more than his closest competitor. Chris Tapper was fifth.

The Norsemen took a one-two-three finish in the 100 fly. Brad Cooksey led the way with a 57.66 (personal best) and Cobau and Mediodia completed the sweep. Chadwell broke a Bi-County record in the 100 free (49.26); the old record was 49.40. Figley was third and Jeff Cornell, sixth in the event.

In the 500 free, Brad Cooksey turned in another personal best (5:07.63) to finish first. Jeff Williams was second and Scott Tenkel, fourth. Placing second in the 200 back was Greg Cooksey, with a state qualifying time of 58.26. Ron Jendretzke and David Farrell were fifth and sixth, respectively.

Mike Woods smashed the Bi-County record of 1:04.06 in the 100 breast by taking a 1:02.69. Ian MacNeil, Rob Walters and Drew Dungan took fourth, fifth and sixth. Another Bi-County mark fell in the 100 free relay when the team of Young, Chadwell, Woods and Figley eclipsed the old record by three seconds with their time of 3:20.57. The time also qualified the team for the state meet, set for March 8.
