Take a bow

Well, it looks like the cast and crew of the Grosse Pointe Theatre may be taking their act on the road, with a little help from their friends here in the Pointe.

The group was invited to present their award-winning production of "Agnes of God" in Switzerland, Austria and Hungary next spring, if they can come up with $12,000.

To that end, GP Theatre will be presenting a benefit performance of "A Chorus Line" at the Fries Ballroom of the War Memorial on Sunday, Nov. 10.

Tickets for the 1 p.m. matinee performance are $8. For those wishing to go above and beyond for this fine group of actors, tax-deductible contributions toward the trip would be most gratefully accepted. Send them to: Grosse Pointe Theatre, Attention: G. Samuels, 32 Lakeshore Road, Grosse Pointe Farms 48236.

"Agnes of God" won the group first-place honors in the Regional competition of the Festival of American Community Theaters in Holland, Mich. earlier this year, and a fourth place finish nationally.

Break a leg, everyone.

Clean Sweep

Well, it looks like Woods Public Safety Officer Sgt. Michael Makowski hit it big over the weekend.

Last Saturday night, at about 9:30, Makowski observed two teen-age boys on mopeds shoot in behind a church on Mack Avenue and turn off their lights. Naturally curious, the good sergeant made the scene and asked the boys what they were up to.

He noticed one trying to hide something in his pockets and had him fish it out. It proved to be a full bottle of rum.

Upon closer questioning, the teen said he found it at Sweeney Park, and that there were still more bottles of booze stashed at the recreation area. Two full bottles of a popular brand of wine cooler were discovered at the park, plus seven full bottles of beer in the bushes at the church.

It doesn't end there yet. Makowski also confiscated three packs of cigarettes from one boy plus the two mopeds when it was discovered the riders didn't have moped licenses.

Want more? Sgt. Makowski also discovered the moped was equipped with a rather unique optional piece of equipment. A 9-inch, wooden handled knife in plain view secured by a seat strap. The moped's rider said he'd never seen it before.

Both boys were walked to the Woods police station where they were charged as minors in possession of alcohol. Their parents were notified.

Both boys are 15.

Just one more try

Just one more tale from the Woods police department. Officer Richard Elsey had a funny one early Sunday morning.

He pulled over a driver he suspected of having had one too many and decided to put him through a few of the standard drunk driving tests.

The driver easily passed the counting, balance, walking a straight line and finger-to-nose tests but just couldn't recite the alphabet correctly, even though Elsey let him try three times.

Just being thorough, Elsey asked the man if he was a high school graduate. "No," he replied. "I'm a lawyer."

He was arrested for drunk driving and taken to the Woods police station where he blew a .14 and a .15 on the breathalyzer. His wife was called, she posted a $100 bond and took him home.

War Memorial liquor license bid upset

By Nancy Parmenter

The War Memorial has lost its most recent bid for a liquor license. At a hearing Oct. 25 in federal bankruptcy court, attorneys and creditors of the Bronze Door agreed to withdraw their acceptance of the War Memorial's $70,000 bid for the liquor license in favor of a bulk bid for the entire assets.

Standby No. 5, a corporation represented by Woods attorneys Marco, Eagan, Kennedy, Timmis, listing that firm's office as the corporate address, bid $320,000 for the Bronze Door's building and liquor license.

The articles of incorporation filed with the state list George A. Peck, an associate of Marco Eagan, as the incorporator. Neither Peck nor the law firm's spokesman, Michael Owsiany, would name the group of investors backing the bid. Owsiany said he did not know if the investors intend to operate a restaurant if their bid is successful.

The law firm's senior partner, Paul Marco, has taken an active role in spearheading the opposition to the liquor license. He spoke against it at the Farms council meeting in June. At that time he raised enough questions about a lapse in the War Memorial's non-profit status to send center officials posthaste to Lansing to straighten things out. Last week, he charged in newspaper letters to the editor that a license is not authorized under current zoning, that any resultant litigation under the state's dram shop law could involve the city of Grosse Pointe Farms, and asked the War Memorial to withdraw its offer.

Although the final auction has been postponed to Nov. 8, Arthur Miller, attorney for the Bronze

Door, said no bids for partial assets will be entertained. "At this point, a better offer by the War Memorial for the liquor license only wouldn't be accepted," he said. "However, anyone can offer a better bid for the complete assets."

Miller said the auction date had been postponed at his request because of receiving Standby No. 5's bulk bid the previous afternoon.

War Memorial officials were still assessing the damage Monday. "Whether we'll come back with another bid we don't know yet," said center Director Mark Weber. "Obviously we're not interested in a bulk bid."

Center attorney John Rickel made a plea for perspective. "It's important to view the license as a molehill," he said. "It's not a mountain. The issue has been blown completely out of proportion."

Rickel said he expected the War Memorial to continue trying to obtain a license, although most likely not the Bronze Door's. He said the center is confident that most of its constituents favor a license. Owing to what he called "kneejerk" insurance rates, many groups cannot afford the one-day license that must now be purchased if liquor is served.

"I would hope that the council would respond to the overwhelming interest — especially in the context that there's a personal financial interest involved on the part of someone at Paul Marco's business address," Rickel said.

Parochial school students lose in special ed rulings

By Mike Andrzejczyk

Faced with lost class time and less personalized care, almost two of three parents of the near-150 parochial school students eligible for special education and auxiliary services from Grosse Pointe public schools have opted not to participate.

Last year, about 142 students from local parochial schools were eligible for speech therapy, teacher consultant and tutorial services from the public school district. This year, only about 65 of those students receive services, according to public school officials.

Increased loss of class time because of transportation to a public school and less personalized care, with more students per classroom, are the most common reasons given for not sending students into the public schools for aid.

The decision that special education and auxiliary services could no longer be offered by public school teachers at parochial schools, which had been occurring in Michigan since 1965, came after two U.S. Supreme Court decisions this summer that called such arrangements excessive entanglement between church and state and unconstitutional.

Locally, that means that transportation, paid for by the public school system, is provided for students from six parochial schools who are taken to nearby elementary schools where they will meet with social workers, teacher consultants, speech therapists or others.

The school system is spending about $38,000 for its contract with a local cab company to handle the transportation, according to Superintendent John Whittner. It is possible the system is now spending somewhat less, because that $38,000 was an early-on estimate based on projected participation in the program, he added.

At Grosse Pointe Academy, 11 students last year received assistance through the public school, according to Headmaster Sydney DuPont. This year, only two make the trip to Richard Elementary School once or twice a week for care.

The problem is lost class time. When public school personnel were in the building, it was possible for those students at the academy who needed help to spend 15 minutes with a teacher consultant or therapist on site without much loss of instructional time.

Now, students meet once or twice a week to ride to Richard for the services they used to receive on site. That could mean a loss of an hour or more from each classroom instruction, DuPont said.

The academy does have a tutorial program and has expanded it to help three students who once got service from public schools, DuPont said. The two students who do travel to Richard receive speech and hearing therapy that the academy is unable to offer.

DuPont called the rulings "bad decisions for the kids," but added that the public schools have done about as good a job as possible to comply with the ruling.

"(The court) has just made it more difficult for students," DuPont said, adding that local officials "have done a great job putting the program together."

"They have literally had their hands tied and been told what they can and cannot do," he said, adding that a legislative remedy is a possible solution.

The academy was called a parochial school by the state because it didn't pass a 12-question test, DuPont said. Questions asked included whether there was religious instruction on premises, whether there were religious articles at the school and whether members of a religious order were on staff.

At St. Paul school, 32 students were eligible last year for special services, according to Principal Elizabeth Burns. So far this year, only six have opted to take part in the program.

Transportation of children to the public school is not a preferred option by parents because of the lost class time, Burns said. "Students can't afford to lose two or three hours a week out of school for one hour of instruction," she added.

One parent at the school drives her child to receive help at the public school. One parent was forced to withdraw her child from St.

Paul and enroll the child in public school because the child needed special services.

"It is a very sad, agonizing decision for those parents who have yet to decide" whether to send their children to public school or seek other aid, Burns said.

Because the decision to remove special education services came at a time when budgets were set for the school year, it was difficult for the school to try to find extra dollars to hire a special education teacher or speech therapist, Burns said. The school doesn't have any special education or auxiliary services available for its students except through the public school, she added.

The school has not had time to (Continued on Page 28A.)

It's getting hot in the Park firehouse

By Pat Poholsky

A Park firefighter, who received a written reprimand for his behavior at a council meeting, has filed an unfair labor practice charge against the city.

Lt. William Hunt attended the Oct. 14 meeting when the results of the firefighters' telephone survey were presented to the council. According to the survey of more than 500 Park residents, 78 percent of the registered voters polled said they wanted to keep the fire department and emergency medical service separate from the police department.

Mayor Palmer Heenan has made the consolidation of the police and fire departments into a public safety unit the cornerstone of his reelection campaign.

At one point during the meeting, there was a heated exchange between Hunt and Heenan, after Heenan said consolidation would mean an extra 10 officers to the city. Hunt angrily challenged the statement and was verbally subdued by fellow firefighter Joseph Biak, who presented the survey results in his official capacity as the department's union president.

Biak was in uniform. Hunt was not, and he said he attended as a concerned citizen who has lived in the Park for more than 30 years. Fire Chief Phillip Costa said the rules and regulations of the fire department prohibit employees from discussing local politics, religion or race while they are on duty or in uniform.

Eight days after the meeting, City Manager John Crawford summoned Hunt to his office and issued him a written warning that he would be "suspended, demoted or discharged" if he "conducted himself in a manner unbecoming to an officer again." Crawford, attending a convention out of town, could not be reached for comment.

Heenan said he was unaware of the reprimand until after the fact. "A reprimand doesn't cost him any salary," Heenan said. "It's the mildest form of rebuke and it's just a gentle warning."

Biak said the written notice is now part of Hunt's file and after unsuccessfully attempting to get it expunged from the record, they had no choice but to file an unfair labor practice charge. The charge is politically motivated, Heenan said, because "I'm in favor of public safety and he (Hunt) vehemently opposes it."

The charge was filed by Ronald Helveston, of Sachs Nunn Kates

Kadushin O'Hare Helveston and Waldman, who said that Hunt was within his constitutional rights when he spoke up during the Oct. 14 meeting.

"The city has blatantly contravened several provisions of the United States and Michigan constitutions," Helveston said. "(They) explicitly guarantee the right to petition government for redress of grievance. This right applies no less to public employees than to any other private citizen."

"The U.S. Supreme Court has made it clear that an employee's exercise of his right to speak on issues of public importance may not furnish the basis for disciplinary action by the employer," Helveston said.

In another instance, the Park firefighters say they are being isolated from the public until after the Nov. 5 election. Biak said house fire prevention inspections, begun every year in October during Fire Prevention Week, have been suspended until after the election.

The order to "temporarily discontinue" inspection came from Fire Chief Costa Oct. 17. "Because of the political situation, it's best that the inspecting firefighters not be put in a position of answering questions..." the order said.

Biak said that the firefighters have not taken a position for or against any candidate and there are no ballot proposals. The suspension breaks a 30-year tradition, Biak said.

Both Heenan and Costa said the suspension of inspections came about after they received a complaint from a resident that a firefighter in uniform urged her to vote for Heenan's opponent, John Prost, and incumbents Carroll Evola and Mark Valente.

Carolyn Konrad of Nottingham verified that Lt. Lee Fallieres did attempt to change her mind after he saw that she had a Heenan political sign outside of her house. Konrad acceded, however, that she and Fallieres knew each other since they were children and she felt he was talking to her as a friend, not in his official capacity as a firefighter even though he was in uniform.

In the strictest sense, Konrad said he was in violation of city regulations of campaigning while in uniform as Heenan charges. "A free society cannot tolerate government interference with people's voting choices," Heenan said.

Biak said it's likely that the firefighters will circulate petitions after the election to force a special election on the issue of consolidation.

Farms honors Nancy Waugaman

Oct. 21 was Nancy Waugaman's last day of work for the Farms city council. After 16 years on the front lines, she has decided to step down.

The council took time out from its official labors to honor Waugaman with a plaque and resolution, presented by Mayor James Dingeman. He thanked her for pursuing her personal goal of good city planning for the betterment of the whole community.

"You have steadfastly served," Dingeman said. Cautioning her not to relax, he added, "believe it or not, I've already got some special assignments for you."

Waugaman told her fellow council members that she has found the government experience "enriching and frustrating and mostly very rewarding."

The council plans to plant a tree at the city park in Waugaman's honor.

Waugaman told the Grosse Pointe News last spring that the council has accomplished a number of things she is proud of, citing in particular Hill development and Richard Place. However, she said, she has been disappointed that her perspective on ordinance enforcement is not shared. She has favored automatic enforcement, as opposed to enforcement only upon citizen complaint. Another of her interests has been a ban on overnight parking on city streets. Waugaman was instrumental in upgrading Farms ordinances, with the aim of preserving property values in an aging community.

Mack Ave. business group schedules annual meeting

The Grosse Pointe Business & Professional Association of Mack Avenue will hold its annual meeting and election of officers at the Lochmoor Club Thursday, Nov. 14, with cocktails at 7 p.m. and dinner at 7:45 p.m.

Following the dinner, Dr. Edward Kane, Grosse Pointe orthodontist and president of the association, will ask the members to vote on the proposed slate of officers and directors for 1986 and on some changes in the by-laws before turning the meeting over to program chairman Bob Mowbrey, of the Village Locksmith, who will introduce the speaker, J.D. Owens.

Owens is the president of J.D. Owens Inc., a Grosse Pointe public relations firm, and was formerly the director of public relations of Chrysler Corporation. An aggressive and entertaining speaker, he will give some public relations tips that will benefit the small business owner and help him in promoting his business.

Reservations for the dinner-meeting, which is open to members and non-members, must be made by Nov. 7. For more information concerning the meeting, call Kent Schiffer, executive secretary, at 884-8500.

Park to plant 128 trees

Three kinds of lindens, three kinds of ash, plane trees, maples, locusts and sweet gum are scheduled for planting in the 1300 blocks of the Park this fall, according to Doris Miller, chairwoman of the Park Beautification Commission. The planting is part of a city-wide reforestation program. More than 140 new trees were planted this spring.

The commission became involved in street tree planting in 1983, following the loss of more than 300 elms in 1982. That was the greatest Park loss in a single year to date, Miller said, adding that the commission seeks diversity in tree plantings to avoid the catastrophic losses that can occur when a single species may be affected.

Since 1983, the commission has been involved in the planting of more than 1,000 shade and ornamental trees in the Park, including annual tree sales and memorial plantings in Patterson Park.

Plans call for tree plantings in the 1200 blocks in the spring, with other blocks to follow until reforestation is completed.

The Beautification Commission was instrumental in having the Park designated as "Tree City U.S.A."

...the Grosse Pointe News endorses Heenan on the grounds he is an incumbent with a first-rate record and deserves another term to carry out his plans for the Park.

A Message From

Mayor Palmer T. Heenan, Grosse Pointe Park
Dear Friends and Neighbors:

I would like to take this opportunity to thank those of you who supported me in 1983 and who will again support me this year.

During the past two years, much has been accomplished. We have proposed and adopted many constructive programs to help address the needs of our community. Among them are:

- A strong, single family, residentially oriented zoning ordinance
- Improved roads and sewers
- Increased police protection and the introduction of public safety
- Efficiency in government—which has resulted in a $400,000 surplus and no tax increases
- Improvements to our parks and tree stock
- Upgrading of our business district
- Formation of the GPP Foundation

While accomplishing these objectives we have also substantially increased citizen participation in city government. This is evidenced by the representative cross section of Park residents who share our goals and endorse my re-election, many of whom are listed below.

There is much work yet to be done and I ask for your continued support and your votes on Tuesday, November 5th.

The following citizens encourage your support for Mayor Heenan and urge you to re-elect him on Tuesday, November 5th.

Resident joins mates at PT boat reunion

By Pat Paholsky

They were called the Mosquito Fleet, those PT boats of World War II. They operated in darkness, from sundown to sunup, and the men who served on them developed an esprit de corps that continues to this day.

To serve, a man could not be married and he had to volunteer. He also had to train another three to four months following basic training.

Almost all of the PT boats were destroyed by the government, and some 40 years later, the men who served on them have little left except their memories. And they keep those memories alive by reuniting every year in a different city.

carrying the surviving members of his crew was part of his inaugural parade, and the vessel is now housed in a large World War II quonset hut a few yards from the USS Massachusetts. Inside the USS Massachusetts, docked in Fall River near Boston, is the PT Museum and Library.

The all-wood boats were from 77 to 80 feet in length and they were powered by three Packard marine engines, each with 1,500 horsepower or more. Able to hold 3,000 gallons of fuel, the boats could accelerate from eight knots to 40 knots in about 11 seconds.

Hebert said the mechanics could fix them so they could go 50 miles an hour and they were the fastest boats at the time. Equipped with dipping their wings in a salute. Hebert hasn't met anyone who served with him on PT 105, but he's hoping he will one day. He knows it will be a tearful reunion.

The PT Boaters have been meeting for 21 years and the organization was founded by J.M. "Boats" Newberry, a Medal of Honor recipient. Newberry died in January and according to his wishes, his ashes were spread on the waters surrounding the PT Museum.

There were 43 squadrons, each one consisting of about 12 boats, operating during World War II in the South Pacific, Aleutian and Philippine Islands, Panama, English Channel and the Mediterranean.

"Uncle Sam didn't keep any PT boats," Hebert said. "They burned up hundreds in Manila, brand-new boats. We were forced to remove the engines and the radar and they burned them up.

"Boats found an old dilapidated one in Florida and got it on a barge to Rhode Island and our group paid for the renovation," Hebert said.

Restored at a cost of more than $600,000, PT 617 was rechristened at the reunion in Boston and put on display with the one used in President Kennedy's parade.

The Heberts, who have three adult children, have lived on Hawthorne for 18 years.

The PT boaters, as they are called, included Roy and Helen Hebert of the Woods when they met in Boston this past September. Nearly 1,200 former PT Boaters and their families were there. The Heberts have been going to reunions for four years now and look forward to next year's in Portland, Ore.

It's a sentimental journey, they say, as well as one of special camouflage. Hebert's unwavering conviction in PT boats and the role they played in the war is evident.

The PT boat, which stands for patrol torpedo, was elevated in status when the late John F. Kennedy, who was a PT commander, was elected president. A PT boat torpedoes, depth charges, mortars, rockets and heavy guns, the boats weighed 55 to 60 tons.

They were attack boats and they traveled in groups of three to four, searching out enemy craft, such as supply ships, mine sweep vessels and barges. The boats, carefully camouflaged, were equipped with radar.

Hebert's tour was in the South Pacific on Emirau in the Solomon Islands. They would leave in the late afternoon, relieving the Marines who patrolled the skies in their Black Cats (Catalinas) during the day. Then when they returned to the island before sunup, the Marines would again pass over,

CRISSMAN FOR COUNCIL

Grosse Pointe Park

As a councilwoman, I will independently evaluate issues and vote in accordance with the needs of our community.

1. Public Safety — I am in favor of Public Safety, as it is responsive to the needs of citizens and merchants for an enhanced police presence. Increased services will be provided in a cost effective way: (1) rapid and efficient management of fire calls; (2) increased personnel for EMS; (3) additional patrol cars for residential areas, of particular importance at night; (4) foot and/or scooter patrol for protection of commercial areas; (5) radar enforcement and increased traffic patrol to correct traffic abuses. Residents should not be bullied out of better services for their tax dollars by select special interest groups.

2. Protection of Natural Resources — A well integrated elm management program is essential to preserve the character of the Park and our property values. Such a program must include: (1) prophylactic treatment for healthy trees, including insecticide spraying to combat the elm bark beetle; (2) strict sanitation measures for severely diseased trees, including prompt girdling and removal, as well as judicious use of cacodylic acid; and (3) a therapeutic program to save minimally diseased trees, including twice yearly inspections of both public and private trees, trimming, and fungicide injection.

For council in the Woods

With three incumbents and a former member of the council seeking office, it is not surprising that no major issues have emerged during the campaign for three council positions to be filled in Grosse Pointe Woods in the Nov. 5 election.

That doesn't mean that there are no differences among the four candidates. But most of the challenges are being posed by William Wilson, a former member of the council who lost two years ago by a slim three-vote margin. He feels that the council has failed to accomplish some of the things it had set out to do. He mentions specifically the council's failure to solve the boating issue that involves raising the bridge in the city park, the lack of an updating of the 1979 traffic report and the failure to improve traffic control in the Vernier-Mack area.

Wilson also finds fault with the council for its inability to persuade the Wayne County Road Commission to maintain Mack Avenue properly, with the result that the city itself pays the tab for maintenance. That means, he claims, that the Woods residents are paying twice — once to the city and once to the county — for such maintenance as cutting the grass on the medians, removing snow and leaves and providing other maintenance that the county is supposed to pay for.

The trio of incumbents — Jean Rice, Thomas J. Fahrner and John Sabol — see the major issue facing the Woods and other similar communities as the tremendous increase in municipal liability insurance premiums. Sabol said that insurance costs have risen from $90,000 a year to $300,000 a year, with the biggest increase coming in the liability insurance premiums.

That cost increase means that the Woods has had to pull in its belt and economize on other municipal services to avoid high taxes. Yet the incumbents feel that the Woods has been able to do so up to this time without sacrificing services provided by the public safety department, the public works department and other municipal agencies. They also feel that the problem is one for the state or federal government to deal with since it affects all municipalities in the state in the same way.

Several of the incumbents said that the council had helped to improve Mack Avenue both through its actions to improve maintenance and through use of block grants that led to more rehabilitation of store fronts. Mrs. Rice, in particular, cited the work of the Beautification Committee, in which she has been active, for helping to improve the environment in the Woods. She is proud of the tree planting program, which will achieve the reforestation of the entire city.

Mrs. Rice cited the aging of the housing stock in the Woods as a future problem, as it is in all of the Pointes. The problem is that some homes are 50 years old and still need a good deal of maintenance. Yet older residents can do less work themselves and in some cases have reduced disposable incomes. She said the number of senior citizens in the Woods, as in the rest of the Pointes, continues to increase. She thinks innovative ways are needed to deal with the senior housing problem other than through social programs.

Fahrner cites the improvements in the public safety department and the public works department, the beautification of Mack Avenue and improvements in the environment as major achievements during his eight years on the council. But he sees the need to attract new businesses north of Vernier Road, to make more improvements in the swimming pool in the park and to develop a facility to house meetings both of young people and senior citizens. He also sees the need for more parking along Mack Avenue but says that the council finds the prices go up if the city indicates an interest in any land purchase for that purpose.

Sabol says he is cost-conscious and finance-oriented and feels that as a member of the council's finance committee he has been instrumental in keeping tax rates down. He brings to the council the interest and talents that he exhibits in his employment at Chrysler Corp. in the cost planning group. He emphasized the necessity of economy to offset the rising costs of municipal liability.

The field of candidates is rich in experience. Mrs. Rice is seeking re-election after serving one term. Wilson wants to return to the council after being beaten in his effort to win a second term two years ago. Fahrner is running for his third term and Sabol is seeking a fourth. Whatever the election results, the winners will bring strong backgrounds and extensive experience in municipal affairs to their service on the council.

Overall, it appears to the Grosse Pointe News that the Woods is being served well by its present council members, Jean Rice, Thomas J. Fahrner and John Sabol, and we endorse them for re-election. At the same time, however, we think William Wilson, a former councilman, has shown by his previous service and in his interview with the News that he is concerned and informed citizen who would do a good job if returned to the council.

For council in the Farms

As in the other Pointes, it has been a fairly quiet campaign in Grosse Pointe Farms even though there are five candidates — three incumbents and two challengers — contesting for the four council seats to be filled in the Nov. 5 election.

Not even the two challengers — George J. Baer II and John M. Crowley — are raising major issues. Instead, they are stressing their own backgrounds and qualifications to serve on the council.

Baer says he's running because he is a doer who wants to put something back into the community. He also feels he could be of service as a person willing to hear different points of view and reach compromises as he has to do in his own business. Crowley, youngest of all candidates in the Pointes at 26, feels that age should not be a factor, but says he has been told it would be a good idea to get some new blood on the council. He thinks he could add a fresh perspective to the council. And he has had nine years of service in the Parks and Recreation Department.

Nor would the challengers take issue with the council's actions last week to seek better control of two problems. One was the adoption of a new ordinance to control the use of alcohol and drugs at open house parties. The other was the hiring of two more police officers and purchase of two new patrol cars to monitor driving speeds in the Farms. Both actions won unanimous approval after long study by the council.

Joseph L. Fromm, a veteran of three terms, cites among the council achievements during his period in office the erection of the new recreation building and other improvements in Pier Park, improved parking at the U.S. post office on Mack Avenue, efforts to revitalize business on the Hill, and establishment of the Farms Foundation to help finance community projects such as the new building in and the new entrance to Pier Park. Fromm points out the Farms also has eliminated its debt, has increased taxes only once in recent years and has set up a reserve fund to meet emergencies.

Gael Kaess, after six years of service, believes the economic developments on the Hill, the new traffic bureau just established last week, and the start on beautifying areas of the Farms are among the council's major accomplishments. But she would like to see the establishment of a beautification commission such as those in operation in other Pointe communities. In the future, the council will also have to deal with repair and replacement of sewer lines and renewal of other aging infrastructure, in her opinion.

Bruce M. Rockwell, elected two years ago, also feels that economic developments on the Hill have been important achievements along with council efforts to improve traffic control, especially in the Moran-McMillan area. He points out that balance is needed to make certain that development does not push too much traffic into the residential neighborhoods. For the future, he sees as the biggest challenge the upgrading of the Mack-Moross area in which both the major parking lot and some of the Mack Avenue buildings have been deteriorating.

Baer was mildly critical, in his interview with the Grosse Pointe News, of the council's handling of the development of the Bologna office building and parking structure on the Hill, contending that the council could have given the developer more help in solving problems that delayed start of the project. But he conceded that he felt the Farms by and large is well run except perhaps on minor issues.

Crowley began attending council meetings two and a half years ago when he was serving as assistant director of the Park and Recreation Department, and has continued to attend ever since. So he has an excellent background and good knowledge of the Farms' problems. He believes the overriding problem in the Farms is to maintain its attractiveness as a place in which to live and work within the existing financial restraints imposed by the council. He strongly supports improved traffic control and the continued development of both the Hill business area and the Farms' recreational facilities.

Overall, the five candidates have excellent backgrounds that qualify them for council service. Their business and professional experience also is a council asset. Fromm is assistant treasurer of American Motors, Mrs. Kaess is a part-time aide to state Sen. John Kelly, Rockwell is a senior vice president of the First of Michigan Corp., Baer is president of the real estate firm, Champion and Baer, and Crowley now is employed at Manufacturers National Bank.

The Farms will be well served by election of any four of the five candidates. But the Grosse Pointe News believes all three incumbents deserve re-election on the basis of their records of service and recommends them to the voters on Nov. 5. For the fourth position, we endorse George J. Baer II but believe that John Crowley would also do an excellent job if he were elected to the council.

Toward equality among students

To the editor:

I am a student at Grosse Pointe South who agrees totally with the opinions of Mr. David Loffredo and Mrs. Cathy Holland. Something needs to be done about the GPAs for students who take advanced classes.

I, being a sophomore, haven't yet taken any of the advanced class placement classes, but so far during my first two years at South, I have taken a very heavy load of courses, none of which are considered to be "blow-offs." I know what it is like to work really hard in a class and only get an average grade.

Something the Grosse Pointe Board of Education should consider is doing something Liggett already does. In Liggett's program, students who take any advanced or honors courses during all four years of high school have their grade raised by one-third. For example, a B would be a B+ on the report card and it is averaged into the GPA as a B+. This system would encourage students to take harder classes and really learn something, as opposed to taking easier classes for the higher grade. Also graduating students from Grosse Pointe public schools would have an equal chance for entering college and for scholarships as other "equal" students across the nation.

My suggestion is just one of the many possibilities for making the system better, yet if adopted or not, people must realize something has to be done to be fair to our high school students.

Vote Nov. 5

To the Editor:

I live five houses from Mack on Bishop, in a marvelously built and solidly maintained Tudor-type home. My five children have been privileged to grow up in the Grosse Pointe Park community which is one characterized by intelligence, hearty moral values and a practiced set of commitment to one's basic beliefs.

I am terribly proud of this city and dedicated to its ongoing maintenance, peacefulness and consistency. In fact, for the past two years I have served as a member of the very purposeful Beautification Commission and have voluntarily been responsible for the design, planting and maintenance of the flowers on the City Hall grounds.

However, in the past five years the property value of my home has plummeted from $85,000 to a current $67,000. In fact, I have forfeited an extra $3,600 per year in the past five years as my property value has declined.

I'd prefer to stay in the Park, aside from my realtor's dire predictions. But I wonder why our residents are uninvolved. Statistics illustrate that the elderly and the women are the overwhelming and small voting population in the Park community. Gentlemen, young men and women, the park surely needs your educated vote in this upcoming election.

Should a city with a five-and-one-half million dollar budget and pressing problems be left in the hands of well-meaning amateurs? Grosse Pointe Park now absolutely needs qualified men and women of integrity to bring the Park to the highest level of safety, solid property values and educated stability. For the sake of our community, vote Nov. 5.

Policeman set fine example

We would like to express our appreciation to the Grosse Pointe Woods patrolman who came to the aid of our daughter when her car broke down on her way to school yesterday morning. While there was nothing he could do as far as the car was concerned, he did see to it that we were notified and also the school office. He then stayed with our daughter until her father was able to get there and then he called for a tow truck, which was also most helpful.

It is comforting to know that the police are there in time of need. So often the kids think that the police are "just out to get them," but this was a fine example for our daughter to come to appreciate and respect a police officer. We are truly grateful for his assistance.

Silencing the opposition

Six candidates for municipal office already have it made in the Nov. 5 elections in the Pointes. They face no opposition.

Both Mayor Lorenzo D. Browning in the City and Mayor George Freeman in the Woods are running for re-election without opposition. And so are the three councilmen in the City: James P. Curran, Robert L. Nugent and William N. Montgomery.

The sixth unopposed candidate is Municipal Judge Beverly C. Grobbel in the Park.

There are two general explanations for lack of competition for any elective office. One is citizen apathy. The other is that the public is satisfied with the incumbent's service and sees no reason for change. The Pointe incumbents running for re-election without opposition obviously prefer the second explanation. And so do we.

We reject a third explanation that is sometimes offered for the failure of any opponent to file for office. That is that nobody could be found to run against an incumbent even though he or she may not be too competent. That implies a criticism of the citizenry as well as the officeholder that we find unwarranted in the Pointes.

So we offer our congratulations to the six fortunate incumbents who are already assured of re-election next Tuesday. True, their constituents were deprived of the public discussion of the issues that usually emerges from competition, but the successful candidates can hardly be blamed for that result. Instead, their public service speaks for itself in silencing the opposition.

Column on padding G.P.A.s refreshing

To the Editor:
Mike Andrzejczyk's "I Say — The Educational Triangle" (Grosse Pointe News, Oct. 24) presents a refreshing perspective on the recent Letters to the Editor calling for padded G.P.A.s to reward students who take advantage courses.

I agree with Mr. Andrzejczyk: All students deserve "teachers with the ability and time to teach, a school dedicated to learning and students told they have to learn to get out of high school." Enrollment in anything "tough" should guarantee nothing except the opportunity to meet "tough" standards. A high score on a once-in-a-lifetime test proves little but potential. The achievement (or lack of achievement) on that once-in-a-lifetime test does not insure an individual's performance for the rest of his/her high school program or for the rest of his/her life.

The recent letter-writers seem to suggest that since some schools and/or classes award high grades for less-challenging work; since some prestigious colleges admit students who achieve under less rigorous standards; then Grosse Pointe (or at least some Grosse Pointe students) should now dive in to "the rising tide of mediocrity," float around until safe arrival at the prestigious college preferred, and then . . . ?

Do those parents and students who advocate extra rewards for "tough" classes expect the "tough" colleges to extend the same bonuses once the students are enrolled? Will the students' high S.A.T. scores provide a life raft then? And (although I know the answer) who will be blamed if a reward system yields padded G.P.A.s reflecting actual skills and knowledge that will lower college G.P.A.s?

A simplistic resolution to the controversy might be to bow to the pressure groups and allow a single S.A.T. score to establish a student's G.P.A. once and for all — in all subjects. That would effectively reduce the need for classes and stuff and money and education beyond the date of the big test. Even now, some students cease to learn in any active way once they have been admitted to college, even if the college is their first choice. With a guaranteed high G.P.A., will students quit even earlier?

Like the letter-writers, I have tales to tell if anyone is interested in a veteran teacher's opinion and perspective.

Thank you, Mr. Andrzejczyk, for your concern about the greater goals and responsibilities of education for all students.

Renovate Vernier School

To the Editor:
Grosse Pointe Shores residents recently received a questionnaire from village President Gerald Schroeder seeking citizen input regarding the future of the Vernier School, an Albert Kahn-designed building built in 1916 that is rapidly deteriorating.

The Grosse Pointe Historical Society believes this building is worthy of preservation and has proposed a plan whereby they would underwrite the entire cost of all interior renovations in exchange for a long term lease on a portion of the building.

Shores residents would continue their useage of the building, but it would also serve as a headquarters for the Historical Society and provide a permanent home for their valuable collection of artifacts pertaining to the history of the entire Grosse Pointe area.

objectives for historic preservation and possibly it might become a model for future projects.

The Village of Grosse Pointe Shores has been a trailblazer in historic preservation and Village leaders are to be commended for their strong positive statement in restoring their Municipal Building rather than razing it and building new. Just last week, this building received a design award from the Michigan Society of Architects.

The Village of Grosse Pointe Shores has provided the entire community with an outstanding example of how historic preservation can be effectively utilized to fulfill contemporary needs. Their complete renovation of the Albert Kahn designed Municipal Building has been widely acclaimed and has provided further evidence that historic preservation is not in conflict with the ever changing needs of a progressive community.

Our Board of Directors is urging all Shores residents to respond to the questionnaire in favor of preservation and restoration of the Vernier School as a joint venture with the Grosse Pointe Historical Society.

Food costs rising at North

To the Editor:
In reference to the letter from Mrs. Waikus, of Grosse Pointe Park, I too have a comment to make on the differing prices of cafeteria food in public and private schools.

As a student at Grosse Pointe North High School, I see an enormous waste of food every day. Although a given price is set for lunch items, students as well as cafeteria workers do not give great concern to whether the correct amount of money is paid for a certain item. For example, when purchasing two identical items, I find the cost of these items to vary anywhere between $1.20 and $1.35. Though I do not know exactly how often this happens, I am sure that throughout the course of the school year, the amount of money lost will be substantial.

Is this why the price of cafeteria food differs so greatly between public and private schools? Though it may not be the only reason, I am sure that this negligence is partly responsible for the rising food costs here at Grosse Pointe North.

I say

Rose and I took a trip back in time recently. The occasion was our 20-year high school reunion.

Two decades earlier, the powers that be at Dondero High School in Royal Oak decided I was fit to enter society and more or less pushed me into the hard light of day.

I've been stumbling around blindly ever since.

Out of a class of about 550, perhaps 200 classmates appeared at the St. George Cultural Center in Bloomfield Hills on a rainy Saturday night last August.

We had a ball. We always thought we were a pretty special group. Close and filled with school spirit, we said we could even be the last great class to leave Dondero. After graduation, things seem to get complicated.

Tolerance for authority grew shorter as hair grew longer. School spirit was out and drugs took its place. The war heated up and it seemed you either had to be for or against something just to be heard. Sometimes it was hard to believe what everyone went through during the '60s.

At our 10-year reunion, I remember everyone was pretty laid back. Coats and ties were a rarity and earth shoes replaced high heels.

This time it looked like a bankers' convention. Blue blazers, pin striped suits and subdued ties were the norm. Our class president — always a team player — looked like a Nixon White House aide.

Over all, the women looked better than the men. In good shape and certainly with more hair. I, incidentally, was the grayest-haired graduate there. I know, because I personally checked out every guy in the room.

On one wall was a blown up photo of me with four other fools dressed as cheerleaders. We wore wigs, skirts and had balloons under our sweaters. The event was the junior/senior powderpuff football game — which the mighty seniors won.

Twenty years later those cheerleaders include a physician living in Boston, a bank vice president in Arizona, a newspaper columnist, an executive with a cable TV company and a blacksmith living in Aspen.

Take care of pets this winter

To the Editor:

Protection of our pets from stray, diseased animals is a very important issue. But just as important are the stray animals, most of which have gotten lost or have been let go because no one cares for them.

When this happens, it is true they may become diseased and dangerous, but if they were, or still are pets, they may be in just as much danger.

In spite of the oncoming cold weather, I urge all pet owners to keep their pets on leashes or fenced in at home. Many stray animals do freeze and starve to death in the wintertime. One of those animals may be your pet. So take extra care of them this winter — please.

Meet some memories

Rah rah rah!
Bits and pieces from the party. I met one woman who showed me photos of her daughter, now a sophomore in college. Then I met another who was eight months pregnant with her first. She said the parking lot for old times sake, but he laughed and said he had a bad arm. Thank God.

During the party, one sleazoid into his cups asked the class beauty if she wanted to make out in the back seat of his car. Unfortunately she turned me down.

One guy showed me photos of his 70-foot yacht. I topped him with a photo showing seven feet of daughters — three and four feet tall, respectively.

Chanda Carlson wanted to make up for a political argument we got into in 1960. She liked Nixon and I was a Kennedy man. She still wouldn't admit she was wrong, but wanted bygones to be bygones. I graciously accepted.

Rose came in second in a vote for the graduate who looked the youngest. I won the Kenny Rogers-turning-into-Orson Welles-look-a-like contest.

In the back of the "what your classmates are up to now" booklet, I discovered 14 classmates had died. Most died in the usual manner.

At least three car accidents, some heart attacks and two suicides. One was a hard-driving individual whose life was like a clenched fist. He'd always gotten top grades because he wanted to be a doctor. He made it, then killed himself in his office. I was sorry, but not surprised it happened.

One died in the crash of his private plane last spring along with two other men. Police reports say $70,000 in cocaine was found in the wreckage. I'd known him since I was five. I hope the stuff belonged to the other guys.

Two classmates died in Vietnam. I used to walk home with one — a soft spoken boy originally from Virginia. I remember he said he wanted to be a preacher.

I didn't know the other soldier, but now both their names are etched in marble on monuments in Royal Oak and Washington.

Like I said, we had a ball. Were we really that special? I like to think so.

What really happened to the class of '65?

They got together recently for drinks, exchanged old stories, danced to "Louie Louie," then simply went back to living their lives like everyone else.

Go, blue and white!

women kept coming up and patting her stomach all night long.

I ran into an old nemesis and didn't even recognize him. Jimmy and I must have fought 10 times during our four years at Dondero. He kicked my tail every time. I was afraid he was going to ask me into

October 31, 1985

Dear Neighbor:

On Tuesday, November 5, 1985, the voters of Grosse Pointe Farms will elect a new Municipal Judge.

As a former FBI agent, prosecutor, and aide to a major police department, I have gained the experience in investigating and prosecuting criminal offenses. As a mediator, arbitrator, and judicial referee, I have gained the experience in the settlement of disputes between litigants.

For the past twenty-five years, be it in law enforcement or private practice of law, I have strived to maintain the integrity of the judicial and legal system. Attorneys and law enforcement agencies alike in this community recognize this and support me in this endeavor.

My family and I appreciate the quality of life we have enjoyed for the past twelve years in Grosse Pointe Farms. I am seeking judicial office to maintain and improve it. I ask for your vote on November 5, 1985.

Here it is Halloween, and these lilies are still celebrating Easter. Planted last spring, the lilies are doing their best to brighten up the Woods backyard of Jack and Mary Younke, who admit they're delighted to have the beautiful blooms poking up through all of the fallen leaves.

Doctor Study Proves

New Hi-Tech 'Super Pills' Give Faster Weight Loss

Diet Pills Sweeping U.S. No Dieting—Eat Normally

BEVERLY HILLS, CA (Special)— Good news for overweight people! If you want to lose weight fast, you no longer have to guess which diet product to use.

A recent clinical weight loss study was conducted by a panel of medical doctors in California on groups of overweight people to determine which of the five most popular weight loss products was the most effective. One product, the amazing new "hi-tech super pills" proved to be vastly superior to all the others tested in the study and even gave almost "3 times faster" weight loss than the famous grapefruit diet pills.

All Lost up to 1 lb. Per Day Best of all, the pills allow you to continue to eat all of your favorite foods without changing your normal eating or exercising habits and still lose weight easier and faster than ever before, starting immediately! The manufacturer "guarantees" it. Remarkably, ALL people in the new "hi-tech" super pills clinical test group lost weight (an average of 1/2 lb. per day up to 1 lb. per day or the equivalent of 15 to 30 lbs. per month.) It also helps eliminate bloating and puffiness. "Pills Do All the Work"

According to the clinical study, "the pills alone do all the work while you quickly lose weight with NO starvation "diet menus" to follow, NO calorie counting, NO special exercise, and NO hunger pangs." You simply take the pills with a glass of water before meals.

Powerful Appetite Suppressants The new pills contain a powerful clinically proven appetite suppressant that an advisory panel of doctors have determined to be "safe and effective for weight loss."

In addition, the pills also contain a remarkable calorie-free dietary fiber that expands in your stomach and tends to give you a partially satisfied feeling before you eat. Thus, the new combination of ingredients in the pills act 2 ways to aid in curbing your appetite, causing you to eat less, take in less calories, and lose weight without feeling deprived or hungry.

Pills Contain ALL Daily Vitamins No need to take any vitamins to maintain your good health and energy because the pills are fortified with ALL (100%) of the U.S. Government USRDA recommended daily vitamin requirements.

The amazing "hi-tech" super pills are already sweeping the country with glowing reports of easy and fast weight loss from formerly overweight people in all walks of life who are now slim, trim, and attractive again.

Now Available to Public

You can order your supply of these new highly successful "hi-tech" super pills (now available directly from the manufacturer by mail or phone order only) by sending $14 for a 15-day supply (or $20 for a 30-day supply, or $35 for a 60-day supply) cash, check or money order to: Hi-Tech Products, 717 Central Ave., Dept. Super system a year away, Comcast says

By Mike Andrzejczyk

It may be the end of next year before Comcast Cablevision has put together all the pieces of its "Super System" to serve its 10 Macomb and Wayne County franchises.

vice and channel capacity; centralize warehousing and distribution of materials and supplies; and improve repairs and service while cutting operating costs.

the city could be considered a technical violation of the franchise agreement.

When Cox Cable originally signed the franchise agreements for a system covering St. Clair Shores, Grosse Pointe Shores and Fraser, there was a provision for maintenance of a local office to allow personal contact and convenience, according to William Killebrew, whose law firm, Killebrew & Thrie, represents both St. Clair and Grosse Pointe Shores.

The company has talked with almost all of the councils of franchise cities and has met with those with offices in their cities, Singpiel said. Comcast has been invited to appear at the November meeting of the Shores village council.

The company will open smaller facilities in some of its franchise cities to handle bill payments and equipment returns, Singpiel said. The volume of traffic at some offices doesn't justify their current size, he added.

Only one of two percent of subscribers will make payments for service in person, Singpiel said. Also, the volume of walk-in traffic doesn't justify the expense of a large office, he added.

Most franchise cities have responded with tacit approval of the move as long as services to the municipality aren't decreased, Singpiel said.

However, St. Clair Shores corporation counsel has determined that closing the regional office in

When Comcast bought the Cox franchise, it agreed to abide by the same franchise agreement. The move or closing of the regional office could be considered a technical violation of that agreement, Killebrew said. Company and city officials are planning meetings to work out some kind of compromise to the question, he added.

"We're not trying to make it more difficult for our customers," Singpiel said. "We need to try to do something to cut our operating costs."

There are facets to the centralization that take time to put together, Singpiel said. Comcast wants to have a single radio system, instead of its current three; a single signal distribution center; a maintenance shop to handle repairs to its rolling stock; and repair facilities to handle some minor equipment repairs, he added.

AN ORDINANCE TO AMEND CHAPTER 22, ARTICLE II OF THE CODE OF THE CITY OF GROSSE POINTE PARK TO REQUIRE THAT A CHILD TRANSPORTED IN A MOTOR VEHICLE BE PROPERLY SECURED IN A CHILD RESTRAINT SYSTEM.

THE CITY OF GROSSE POINTE PARK ORDAINS:

1. That Section 22-17 of the Grosse Pointe Park City Code is hereby amended to read in part as follows:

The following sections of the Uniform Traffic Code as adopted in section 22-16 are hereby amended as follows:

Section 5.82 (of the Uniform Traffic Code) is added to read:

Section 5.82. Mandatory Child Restraints.

(1) Except as provided in this section, or as otherwise provided by law, a rule promulgated pursuant to Act No. 306 of the Public Acts of 1969, as amended, being sections 24.201 to 24.315 of the Michigan Compiled Laws, or federal regulation, each driver transporting a child in a motor vehicle shall properly secure each child in a child restraint system as follows:

(a) Any child less than 1 year of age in a child restraint system which meets the standards prescribed in 49 C.F.R. 571.213.

(b) Any child 1 year of age or more but less than 4 years of age, when transported in the front seat in a child restraint system which meets the standards prescribed in 49 C.F.R. 571.213.

(c) Any child 1 year of age or more but less than 4 years of age, when transported in the rear seat, in a child restraint system which meets the standards prescribed in 49 C.F.R. 571.213, unless the child is secured by a safety belt provided in the motor vehicle.

(2) This section does not apply to a nonresident driver transporting a child in this state or to any child being nursed.

(3) This section does not apply if the motor vehicle being driven is a bus, school bus, taxicab, moped, motorcycle, or other motor vehicle not required to be equipped with safety belts under section 710b of the Michigan Motor Vehicle Code or federal law or regulations.

(4) A person who violates this section is responsible for a civil infraction.

(5) Points shall not be assessed for a violation of this section.

(6) The Secretary of State may exempt by rules promulgated pursuant to Act No. 306 of the Public Acts of 1969, as amended, a class of children from the requirements of this section, if the Secretary of State determines that the use of the child restraint system required under subsection (1) is impractical because of physical unfitness, a medical problem, or body size. The Secretary of State may specify alternate means of protection for children exempted under this subsection.

2. This ordinance shall take effect on December 1, 1985.

ORDINANCE NO. 122

AN ORDINANCE TO AMEND CHAPTER 14 OF THE CODE OF THE CITY OF GROSSE POINTE PARK BY ADDING THERETO SECTION 14-13 TO MAKE IT UNLAWFUL TO PERMIT AUTOMATIC ALARM SYSTEMS TO LIGHT UP OR SOUND CONTINUOUSLY FOR MORE THAN THIRTY MINUTES.

THE CITY OF GROSSE POINTE PARK ORDAINS:

1. That the Grosse Pointe Park City Code is hereby amended by adding Section 14-13, which section reads as follows:

Section 14-13. Exterior Audible or Visual Alarm Systems

It shall be unlawful for outside lighting or audible sounding devices activated by automatic alarm systems to remain continuously activated for more than thirty (30) minutes.

2. This ordinance shall take effect on December 1, 1985.

ORDINANCE NO. 123

AN ORDINANCE TO REPEAL CHAPTER 13, ARTICLE III, SECTION 13-40, OF THE CODE OF THE CITY OF GROSSE POINTE PARK AND TO AMEND CHAPTER 13 OF THE CODE OF THE CITY OF GROSSE POINTE PARK BY ADDING THERETO ARTICLE III, SECTION 13-40 TO LICENSE AND REGULATE THE USE OF AUTOMATIC TELEPHONE ALERT SYSTEMS.

THE CITY OF GROSSE POINTE PARK ORDAINS:

1. That Chapter 13, Article III, Section 13-40, as enacted by Ordinance No. 121 of the Grosse Pointe Park City Code is hereby repealed.

2. That Chapter 13 of the Grosse Pointe Park City Code is hereby amended by adding an article and a section, to be numbered Article III, Section 13-40, which article and section read as follows:

Article III. AUTOMATIC ALARM SYSTEMS

Section 13-40. Automatic Telephone Alert Systems.

(a) Definitions:

(1) "Automatic telephone alert system" (ATAS) means a system arranged to respond to an urgent situation or emergency condition by automatically attempting to establish a telephone connection with the City's Police or Fire Department.

(2) A "groundless alert" occurs when an ATAS establishes a telephone connection with the City's Police or Fire Department and no urgent situation or emergency condition meriting Police or Fire Department attention exists. The testing of the ATAS when prior notification has been received by the Police Department shall not be considered a groundless alert.

(b) No person shall install or operate an ATAS within the City unless:

(1) the person first obtains a license from the Chief of Police;

(2) the ATAS is arranged so as to establish a connection with the ATAS response number(s) assigned to that system by the Chief of Police and is not arranged so as to establish a connection with any other municipal department, office, or telephone number; and

(3) that person is in compliance with MCLA 338.1051 et seq.

(c) An ATAS license, valid for three years from the date of issue may be obtained by completing an ATAS license application form and paying a nonrefundable fee to the Department of Police, which fee shall be established by resolution of the City Council. Said license shall be transferred to a new occupant or owner of property upon which an ATAS is installed upon application by the new occupant or owner. Said license shall lapse upon change of ownership or occupancy of the property unless an application to transfer the license is received within ninety days of the change of ownership.

(d) Groundless alerts:

(1) If an ATAS causes three (3) groundless alerts in a calendar year, the Chief of Police shall notify the license holder of that fact and of the provisions of subsections (d) (3) and (4) of the Ordinance.

(2) If an ATAS causes four (4) groundless alerts in a calendar year, the license holder shall notify the license holder of that fact and of the provisions of subsections (d) (3) and (4) of this Ordinance.

(3) If an ATAS causes four (4) groundless alerts in a calendar year, the license holder shall, within fifteen (15) days of the receipt of official notification as required in subsection (d) (2) of this Ordinance, have the system inspected by a licensed alarm system contractor and report the inspection results in writing to the Chief of Police. The license holder shall state in this report the probable cause or causes of the groundless alerts and the steps taken to prevent future groundless alerts.

(4) If a person required to make a report under (d) (3) of this Ordinance makes no report within the prescribed time or if a system causes more than four (4) groundless alerts in a calendar year, the license issued under subsection (c) of this Ordinance may be revoked.

(e) This Ordinance shall not apply to commercial banks subject to regulation under 12 USC Sections 1881-84.

2. This Ordinance shall take effect on December 1, 1985.

Four candidates running for three

Thomas Fahrner

Seeking his third four-year term on the Woods City Council is Thomas Fahrner, a 22-year resident of the city. An employee of the Chrysler Corp., he and his wife Alice have three daughters, all of whom attended North High School.

Singling out his membership of the Woods block grant commission, Fahrner sees the improved image of Mack Avenue as one of his major contributions to the Woods during his tenure on the council.

"We're trying to get new businesses on Mack Avenue, primarily on the north end of the strip, above Vernier Road," Fahrner said. "We're also trying to encourage other businesses on Mack to spruce up. I also think we've made improvements in the department of public works and in the public safety department, although it was in pretty good shape to begin with."

Fahrner also said the council is considering major improvements to the city's municipal park.

"We're considering improving the park," he said, "especially in the area of the boat docks. Although the council voted down the idea of raising the bridge, we'll be looking at the problems again, probably after the elections. We're also considering other major improvements at the park, but it'll be very expensive. The idea will probably have to go up before the people."

Like other candidates for council, Fahrner sees liability insurance costs for the Woods as the major problem of the city faces. "Hitting us quite hard right now is the rising cost of liability insurance," he said. "Risk insurance is getting out of hand. It's the same sort of liquor liability problems that many bars and restaurants are facing right now. There's not much we as a council can do about it. It's up to Lansing to step in and stop this nonsense. They're telling us they're going to hit us hard again. Where are we going to come up with the funds? This is a problem that's creeping up on all the cities."

"I also feel we're going to have to try and improve the parking situation on Mack Avenue," Fahrner said. "We need more of it. The situation they have in the Farms (municipally owned lots off of Mack and Kercheval) is ideal. I wish we had something like it in the Woods. I feel sorry for our businessmen."

Fahrner said he felt the city was providing good services for its senior citizens and youth, although the city did drop Dial-a-Ride services for its older citizens, and did not participate in the Pointe-wide program for youthful offenders.

"We dropped the Dial-a-Ride program because we weren't satisfied with how it was being run," he said. "There were people who took advantage of it, mainly by having their own cars, plus there seemed to be some billing problems. I think it will appear before the council again. We were involved with it along with Harper Woods for about a year."

"I don't think we have too many youth problems here in the Woods, but we did vote for funding the young offenders program that recently appeared before the council. Unfortunately, two other Pointe cities voted against the idea, rendering contributions from us impossible. It was agreed that funding from the Woods would only come about if all the cities agreed to participate."

Jean Rice

Running for her second four-year term on the city council is Jean Rice, who, with her husband Laddy A., has lived in the Woods for 23 years.

They're the parents of two grown children. Her husband is a manufacturers engineer for Chrysler Corp.

Rice attended both Ohio State University and Michigan State University, where she earned two degrees from the master gardening school. She's past president of the Grosse Pointe Women's Club and the Harper Woods Garden Club.

Rice has been active with both the Boy and Girl Scouts of America and was one of the founders of the Grosse Pointe Woods Shade Tree Council and the Woods Beautification Commission. She became actively involved with the beautification commission six years before she was elected to the city council. Rice is also chairman of the council's public relations commission.

She sees her efforts in upgrading Mack Avenue as her biggest contribution to the Woods.

"This started for me six years before I was elected to the council, she said. "It's been very successful. We're on a roll. It should be finished in another three or four years, then it'll be a busy task maintaining what we've accomplished."

"We've encouraged merchants to upgrade their storefronts and we're responsible for all the beautiful plantings you see on the is-

By Tom Greenwood

Grosse Pointe Woods voters will go to the polls Tuesday, Nov. 5 to elect a mayor and three councilmen. Running unopposed for the position of mayor is George Freeman. The three incumbents seeking re-election to the city council are Jean Rice, Thomas Fahrner and John Sabol. Also seeking to be elected is former councilman William Wilson, who served on the council from 1979 to 1983.

George Freeman

Running unopposed for mayor of the Woods is George Freeman, who has been mayor of the city since 1979. Previously he was a 10-year member of the council, serving as mayor pro tem from 1973-79.

A 25-year resident of the Woods, Freeman and his wife Marilyn have five children. He is employed by Offerman and Co. as an investment counselor.

The present condition of Mack Avenue is the greatest source of pride for Freeman. "I think that's the major accomplishment we've achieved since I've been mayor," he said. "Because of our various commissions and our city employees, Mack Avenue is a great place to work or to drive past. A number of years ago we took over Mack Avenue in respect of maintaining it. That's why it looks so good. We put in trees, shrubs, flower beds and a sprinkling system."

"We encouraged businesses to spruce up their storefronts and followed this through to the residential areas of our city. I'm also happy to say we established a historical commission that in the last six years has done a great job of obtaining historical information about our city. We've also appointed an advisory committee to look at the parking problems we have in the Woods."

Freeman said he was also happy with the relationship between the City and its employees.

"I feel we have a great relationship with our workers," he said. "There's currently no problem between the city, the council and the employees. All our union contracts were settled without a fuss in the last year and we won't be looking at another contract for two more years."

"I also think the city is doing a great job in maintaining our streets and sidewalks," said Freeman. "We make sure we don't have any street problems."

Freeman does concede the Woods have problems looking on the horizon, however.

"I believe our number one problem is liability insurance for the city," he said. "It's our greatest concern at the moment. It jumped from $90,000 last year to $300,000 this year. We also anticipate increases in employee health insurance. It took a large jump last year."

"There will also be a large increase in the street lighting program, but I want to emphasize that these are problems that the council can't really deal with on its own. All we can do is budget for them. We will have to contact Lansing about these issues and try to get our legislators to control these problems."

"This isn't just a local concern," said Freeman. "It's occurring in cities all across the state and the legislature is going to have to deal with them."

"Basically, I've always strived to give the best possible services to our citizens for the least amount of tax dollar," Freeman concluded. "The Woods is a model city and we're very proud of it."

Stop smoking in one night

The American Lung Association of Southeastern Michigan will offer the Cigarette Send-Off at South Macomb Hospital at 7 p.m. Wednesday, Nov. 5. The hospital is located in Warren at 12 Mile and Hoover.

The program, which was featured at the Fifth World Conference on Smoking and Health, is the nation's most effective one-session quit program. The comprehensive three-hour stop-smoking clinic combines the three most effective methods of helping smokers kick the habit.

Hypnosis, behavior modification and medical education combine to prepare smokers for withdrawal symptoms, dealing with the urge to smoke or eat and the many problems that arise on the road to becoming "smokefree."

For about the same price as two cartons of cigarettes ($20), participants can take part in the program and go home with a follow-up packet which contains reinforcement materials including a cassette tape for self-hypnosis.

Tickets are available Nov. 5 at the door of South Macomb's Health Services auditorium (in the east wing of the hospital) or by sending a check to ALASEM, 28 W. Adams, Detroit, Mich. 48226. For further information, call 961-1697.

VOTE NOVEMBER 5th

Paid for by Committee to Elect Carroll Evola, 1043 Audubon, Grosse Pointe Park, Michigan 48230 John Fildrew, treasurer.

seats on city council in the Woods lands in the road," she continued. "All the plants, bushes and bulbs were bought by the Beautification Commission with proceeds from our May flower sale. It doesn't cost the taxpayers a cent, except for upkeep. Our next project calls for the installation of 40 park benches along Mack for the benefit of strollers and our senior citizens. We've contacted various businesses along the route and asked permission to locate the benches in front of their establishments. So far the response has been favorable. We hope to have them installed by mid-November."

Rice said the city also intended to install some "decent looking" trash containers as well. Another of her concerns is the reforestation of the Woods, after the community lost hundreds of trees to Dutch elm disease.

"We'll have the city almost completely reforested in another three years," she said. "The city has allocated $20,000 per year to purchase trees. Plus, of course, many of our citizens have purchased trees of their own. We surveyed every street in the Woods to ascertain where trees were needed most, then established a five-year plan for those areas. It's coming along nicely."

While Rice acknowledged that crime is always a concern, she didn't see it as a real issue during the election. "Public Safety Director Jack Patterson is a real street cop," she said. "When he took over, he put his men on the street and he's been very successful in reducing crime. Sure, there's some vandalism and other problems, but we're fortunate in that there's nothing really seriously wrong in the Woods."

Rice believes the Woods faces three major problems in the future: the cost involvement in obtaining municipal liability insurance; response to the resource recovery act; and the aging of the Woods' housing stock.

"Municipal liability insurance is unbelievably costly, even if you don't have any trouble getting it," she said. "But that's really a legislative problem, not a problem of the city council. It's up to us to pressure the legislature to set limits."

"The resource recovery act is going to be incredibly expensive in the areas of trash collection, sewage and water rates," Rice said. "There's going to be tough times ahead. As for our housing, well, the homes in the Woods and all of the Pointes are aging. Some of the homes are 50 years old and older."

"As the home owners get older too, their energy levels and monetary resources lessen, and the homes become neglected. In a 1984 survey, we found we had 3,604 seniors living in the Woods. In 1985, that figure increased by 400. We must think of innovative ways to deal with this problem and others, without resorting to social programs. We must help our senior citizens, and the best way is to help them stay in their homes, utilizing such services as Meals on Wheels and plenty of tender loving care from their fellow citizens."

"I hope to address these problems in the next four years," summarized Rice. "I think I have things to offer that the men don't. I must admit I hate delays and bureaucracies holding things up. I like to get the job done right away. It's fascinating being on the council, but it isn't always a lot of fun. We have to make some tough decisions. I hope to face and solve these problems in the next four years."

John Sabol

A 29-year resident of the Woods, John Sabol is seeking his fourth four-year term on the council. A member of the cost planning group for the Chrysler Corp., he and his wife Marie have two sons.

"I feel my major contribution to the city has been my eight-year service on the financial committee," Sabol said. "I've been instrumental in keeping costs and taxes down. I'm cost and finance-conscious and I feel it's helped our city. Our taxes haven't skyrocketed like other cities. There are no surprises ahead for any of our residents."

"The most important thing is a continuing consciousness of what matters will be appearing before the council. I don't owe anything to anyone or any special interest groups. Consequently I don't get myself into a bind with anyone."

Sabol sees the rapid rise of city liability insurance as one of the major problems facing the Woods.

"City liability problems are completely out of hand in Michigan and in the country," he said. "Everyone is complaining, including doctors and businesses. Some businesses are going under because of it and in some cases, doctors are withholding medical attention because of their fear of being sued."

"As a city there's not much we can do about it. Action has to be initiated at the state or federal level. Our insurance costs have tripled from $90,000 per year to $300,000 per year. We've been able to meet the cost by pulling in our belts here and there and by trying to economize without sacrificing any of our city services, but it's tough. I really don't see any other major problems facing the city."

Sabol said he feels the city has been meeting the needs of its senior citizens and young people.

"There doesn't seem to be any real problems with our youth," he said. "Drug abuse doesn't seem to have gotten out of hand and we've had no reports of any problems from our schools, I'm happy to say."

"We in the Woods have a senior citizens committee and a budget for our older citizens," Sabol said. "We provide city facilities for them and money for trips. We also have a news information service available so they know what's going on in the city. I see no need for a separate community house of senior citizens. They have access to city hall meeting rooms, the bath house at the park and facilities at many of our city churches."

"I've never been in favor of taking federal funds for anything like that, just for maintenance of city streets, curbs, sewers and water lines. We have used block grant funds for some businesses, but those funds are drying up right now. Basically, we're just trying to keep things up in the Woods."

William Wilson

Running for re-election to the Woods council after a two year hiatus is William Wilson, who was on the council from 1979 to 1983. He ran for re-election in 1983 and lost by three votes to present Councilman Ted Bidigare in one of the closest elections in Woods history.

Wilson is a quality control manager for Creative Industries, working with the auto industry and the military. A 40-year resident of the city, he and his wife Patricia have three sons.

Wilson sees control of the Woods traffic situation as the highest priority facing the city.

"Traffic safety is the most important problem right now," Wilson said. "Especially to the residents of the northwest area. There will be horrendous problems there if construction is completed on the Eight Mile Road bridge. We won't be able to face those homeowners in that area if it becomes clogged with traffic. The time to act is now."

"We also need to improve the traffic flow in the Mack-Vernier area. Now if you cross the street and they don't run you down the first time, they circle back to get you a second time. We haven't addressed the traffic patterns in the Woods. The department of public safety has received no direction from the council."

Wilson also has criticism about the department of public works and the Woods municipal park.

"We need a fence up at the DPW yard," he said. "There's trash blowing around and equipment parked all over. That's the first sight that greets visitors when they drive into the Woods."

"As far as the park, are we going to raise the bridge or lower the water?" he asked. "Let's move on it. Don't dangle the idea of a new bridge in front of the voters like a carrot. The city doesn't move on these ideas. Two years ago I requested a sign be put up on Mack Avenue, telling people that it was being maintained by Grosse Pointe Woods, not Wayne County. We cut the grass, plant flowers and collect the leaves and rubbish. Why are we paying twice for the same service? I'd like to see us recover taxes back from Wayne County for doing their job."

Wilson feels the city hasn't done enough for its senior citizens.

"We haven't done much towards senior housing or improving their homes," he said. "Seniors have been asking for years for a place to meet and it's fallen on deaf ears. We had a chance to get into a Dial-A-Ride with Harper Woods and that fell through. Also, it would have been partially funded by SEMTA."

"I love this city and believe in giving it something back," Wilson summarized. "That's why I've given 12 years service to the Woods as an auxiliary policeman, fireman and the EMS. The Woods is a good place to live."

Comments on the General Fund Operation:
For the year under review we report that the School System received no basic per pupil membership allowance under the 1984-85 State Aid Act. Our School System does not qualify for basic membership State Aid because our State Equalized Valuation per pupil is greater than the equalizing factor contained in the applicable distribution formula. The System, however, does qualify for some Categorical assistance in financing special education programs such as Reading Support, Mentally and Physically Handicapped, Emotionally Impaired, Teacher Aides, Social Workers, and School Psychologists. In addition, Categorical assistance is received for the Bilingual program, Vocational, Community Education and Special Education Transportation. The Board of Education continues to be committed to the concept of a balanced budget and continually reviews its financial condition and considers necessary adjustments to finance the educational programs within available income. At June 30, 1985 the method for accruing vacation pay was changed. The School System now accrues 12 months as opposed to 2 months accrual as of June 30, 1984.

These are serial bond obligations financed each year with tax levies and fund equity which are sufficient to meet the annual principal and interest payments. At June 30, 1985 and 1984, the ratio of debt to the State Equalized Valuation of the entire school district was reflected at .78 and .83 respectively.

Doctors alerted to patients who sue . . .

By Nancy Parmenter

It all began three years ago with a 2-by-3-inch ad in the Grosse Pointe News. The time was right for Farms resident Paul Huth's computerized medical malpractice screening service.

Huth's idea was picked up by the metropolitan dailies, the wire services and national publications and, as they say, the rest is history. Doctors in Detroit, Chicago, Los Angeles, New York, Dallas and Houston can ante up $150 for a membership and a mere $10 more per search to protect themselves against what Huth calls "professional plaintiffs."

"The service is based on public information gleaned from court records. Nothing except time prevents individual doctors or you or me from visiting courthouses to find out if patient X has ever filed a malpractice suit. Public record databases are increasingly being used by other groups as well — employers or landlords, for instance.

Huth, an attorney in Detroit, said he was "shocked" to discover the high rate of repeats. He sent people to the courthouses of Wayne, Oakland and Macomb counties to study a three-month period for comparison against other civil actions.

"I found that 35 percent of the people filing had been plaintiffs previously," he said. "It's really a little higher than that, but I've rounded the figure. There is a certain segment of the population that files lawsuits to make money."

The repeaters in question are not the unfortunate people sometimes featured in the media who have been genuinely victimized by a doctor who has accidentally removed the healthy kidney and left the diseased one in, Huth said. "These are people who are filing non-meritorious lawsuits just to get the nuisance settlement."

It costs $20,000 to defend a suit that doesn't even go to court, according to Huth. "So there's a business decision to pay $5,000 or $6,000 just to settle the case," he said. "It's cheaper than defending it."

Huth said his records search turned up many instances of multiple filings — and one woman who had filed 22 previous suits.

"Physicians' Alert" doesn't publish a list. Subscribing doctors can call to check on the records of new patients. Huth said some doctors call for every new patient, some have evolved a system of calling for every third or fifth patient, and some call when they have "a gut feeling" about a new patient. And as the system of health care delivery changes, especially with the increasing popularity of health maintenance organizations, doctors see more and more new patients.

"I was naive," Huth said of his initial shock of discovery. He was prompted in his original plan by family members who are in the health professions.

"It started around the dinner table," he recalled. "It's an unusual situation when a doctor and a lawyer talk frankly about this problem." Huth organized his first records search on a bet with his father-in-law.

The business began with an office in a bedroom and searchers with beepers located in county courthouses. It has since developed its own database, cross-referenced for other cities, that can produce an answer in 15 seconds.

Huth's search hasn't looked into the possibility that some lawyers may be encouraging frivolous lawsuits. "Sometimes it isn't the lawyer's fault," he said. "A lawyer doesn't always have a way to screen his clients. Sometimes he is duped into carrying out the professional plaintiff's dirty work." In any case, Huth said he has "not tracked the source of the problem — I just identified it."

Training for older workers

Job opportunities for 225 unemployed older workers will be available under two new training grants.

Contracts for $349,999 and $143,970 in federal funds have been awarded to the Wayne County Office on Aging and the city of Highland Park to train persons 55 years of age and older, in conjunction with the Private Industry Corporation of Wayne County.

Mayor Robert Blackwell said the Highland Park program will serve eligible residents of Hamtramck, Highland Park, Harper Woods and the Grosse Pointes. They may obtain more information by calling Paul Woods at 883-4450 Mondays through Thursdays.

In Chicago, you can't feed whiskey to dogs, not legally.

Obviously, the service doesn't address the serious malpractice lawsuits either, including those which involve repeating doctors. Studies in Florida and Pennsylvania indicate that multiple offenders are responsible for one quarter of all malpractice claims, according to the Michigan Trial Lawyers Association.

Nuisance suits are monetarily a bigger problem than serious suits, Huth says, because they have forced doctors to practice a different and more expensive brand of medicine. "Defensive" medicine, with its increased emphasis on numerous (and sometimes unnecessary) tests to protect the doctor, is costing up to $80 billion a year by Huth's estimate.

Changes currently under consideration in Lansing won't make any difference, Huth said. "They're not addressing the issue we're addressing. Nuisance cases aren't high enough to be affected by a $250,000 cap."

Huth expects to expand Physicians Alert to every American city with a population of 250,000.

New name for group

The Michigan Foundation for the Arts has changed its name to the Arts Foundation of Michigan.

"There has always been the element of confusion between the Michigan Foundation for the Arts and the Michigan Council for the Arts," said A. David Mikesell, president.

He explained that the foundation's support is directed to individual artists and students rather than to institutions. The grants, awards, scholarships and commissions support excellence by sustaining artists who work and study in the fields of music, dance, theater, literature and the visual arts.

Since 1966, the foundation has awarded more than $1.2 million in grants, awards and scholarships to Michigan artists and students.

Farms voters to elect four

By Nancy Parmenter
 Voters in the Farms will have the opportunity Nov. 5 to select a new municipal judge and four council members. The court term is four years. Three council seats are four-year terms; one is for two years. The council terms are dependent on the number of votes.

There are two candidates for the judgeship vacated after 18 years by Robert Pytell. In the council race, three incumbents and two political newcomers will vie for the four seats. Sixteen-year council veteran Nancy Waugaman has decided to retire.

The council candidates were interviewed by a reporter and the editorial writer at the Grosse Pointe News offices. Court candidates were interviewed by a reporter. Following are the responses of the candidates in alphabetical order. Council endorsements are on Page 6A.

The activities offered by the city, the Neighborhood Club and the War Memorial seem to be a broad enough range to meet the community's needs, Baer said, but "if there's an outcry, the Farms should address it. So far, I haven't heard an outcry."

Baer said he has not heard complaints or questions about the possible liquor license at the War Memorial. "I don't see it as a problem since a temporary license is already available," he said. He said he would have voted against granting a license to the center if he had been on the council at the time.

Baer said he is running for the council because "I'm a doer. I want to be responsive, a good listener. In real estate, you are always dealing with compromise, trying to get both parties to come to a common ground. I think that background would help on the council."

Crowley said he favors the renovation plans announced for the Pier Park. Limiting access to card-carrying Farms residents will increase safety, improve appearances, and reduce the number of loiterers and fence-jumpers, he says.

Crowley has been conducting a door-to-door walking campaign. He says he has received some feedback from the residents — all on traffic congestion. "The nature of where I started (McMillan and McKinley) dictates the question," Crowley said. "They all want to talk about traffic."

Place and Kerby Road, at the old Kerby School area and in the Mack median.

Asked what the city should do to encourage business development, Fromm said the council has already gone a long way to encourage solutions to the parking problems. "I was on the losing side of the effort to restrict the storefronts to retail," he said, noting that he still feels that retail-only would benefit the Hill.

George Baer

George J. "Skip" Baer II is a Farms political newcomer. As a longtime businessman in the community, he feels he can bring a good knowledge and understanding of issues to the council. Baer is the president of Champion and Baer Real Estate. He has been attending council meetings, discussing issues with current council members, and walking door-to-door to introduce himself and talk over problems and concerns with residents.

Baer says the Farms council should feel a responsibility to be responsive to the needs of business "and help people through the rough spots" to encourage business development on the Hill. He said that the resident-council committee approach now being used to solve the traffic problem should be applied to other issues as well.

Business development and traffic problems go hand-in-hand, Baer said. "I wish I had a solution." However, the residents are willing to work with the city, and if the council remains responsive to the residents, Baer said he is hopeful that a solution good for the community as a whole will be found.

Baer said he favors the ongoing improvement program at the Pier Park. He said he had been concerned about the "unsightly" unofficial beach beside the park parking lot, but expects the new gate arrangement to eliminate the problem.

John Crowley

At 26, John M. Crowley is the youngest candidate in the council race. Crowley says that age is probably not a factor. "I do feel I'm offering a fresh perspective, though," he said.

Crowley feels that his objectivity and grasp of the inner workings of the city qualify him for office. Prior to his current employment in the credit department at Manufacturers National Bank, he worked for nine years in the recreation department in the Farms and has spent the last two years attending every council meeting.

Crowley says he is committed to maintaining the attractiveness of the Farms as a place to live and work. To achieve this, he favors solving the residential traffic problem through speed and other safety controls; continuing to develop the business areas, especially on the Hill; and continuing to improve the city's recreational facilities.

The Hill is in a state of flux now, Crowley says. He anticipates that when the new developments are completed, they may act as magnets to offices, leaving the rest of Kercheval first-floor space to retail.

"Office versus retail is not an issue right now," he said. He said the city should encourage retail business, but not to the extent of a retail-only ordinance, as has been

Joseph Fromm

Joseph L. Fromm, 55, has been a member of the Farms council since 1973. He is currently serving as mayor pro-tem. Fromm is the assistant treasurer of the American Motors Corp.

As a 12-year council veteran, Fromm points to many city accomplishments during his tenure. He lists the Pier Park building, the post office parking on Mack, the beginning of the resolution of the Cottage Hospital parking, the success of the city in holding the line on taxes with only one increase in five years, the establishment of an emergency reserve fund, the elimination of the city's debt, tree-planting, the Farms Foundation and the start of Hill commercial development.

Fromm sees current challenge as largely the result of outside influences. Much of the traffic congestion is caused by nonresidents of the Farms, he said. The county plays a role in city affairs, particularly on the issue of eventual establishment of a district court system. Fromm said he also views parking and the city's infrastructure as challenges.

The best approach to traffic control is to control speed for greater safety, Fromm said. "You can't effectively control who uses which streets." He voted for the recent formation of a traffic bureau within the police department and said he also favors a blinker light at Mack and Moran.

Fromm said he would like to see the city get involved in some beautification efforts. "We should do more things like Richard Place," he said. He would like to see plantings at the Pier Park, at Voltaire

Gail Kaess

Gail Kaess, 45, a district representative for state Sen. John Kelly, is running for her third term on the Farms council. She has served for six years.

Kaess lists as greatest council accomplishments the beginning of development of the Hill, Richard Place and the agreement with Cottage Hospital for increased parking. She said the city has done well tying the upper and lower Hill together and that she favors further development.

She conceded that increased traffic congestion results from increased business development. "We need to approach the problem through other ways of control," she said. "The residents need to understand that increased traffic is normal."

The city should continue its current approach of trying to control traffic speed rather than amount, she said. The city may still look at cul-de-sac-ing, but Kaess said she is not sure she favors such a solution. "It just diverts the traffic problem to another area," she said.

Kaess said she has done door-to-door campaigning. "It's so important," she said. "It's our only chance to meet our constituents." She said the liquor license at the War Memorial is the "thorniest" issue people are asking about. "But we as a council put the War Memorial in the position where that was the only way for them to pursue it," she said.

The city has not developed formal criteria for use of the Pier Park buildings, but Kaess said it would be "a wonderful idea" to provide activities for young people and senior citizens there. "It hasn't come up because the War Memorial and the Neighborhood Club provide so many activities," she said.

Kaess listed beautification as her main priority besides continued business development on the Hill. She favors the establishment of a beautification commission to give some attention to areas like the Mack median, tree replanting (now an activity carried out by the city), a tree sale and some signs at the Farms borders.

She warned that the Farms must be prepared to devote some attention to its aging infrastructure, most particularly the sewer system. "We've already had some collapses, and the area around the country club needs to be looked at," she said.

Kaess said she enjoys her council involvement as representative to the Southeastern Michigan Council of Governments and the Michigan Municipal League. She is a member of SEMCOG's regional review committee, which looks at projects ranging from sewers to bus systems and of its council for environmental strategies, which considers problems like acid rain.

Wayne County with the idea of improving roads, and on improvement and beautification of the Mack area. "I'm concerned over the deteriorating buildings and the trash in the parking lots," he said. He suggested that the city could change the parking ordinance to license commercial parking lots. The city also needs to work with the management of the Mack business properties, he said. Rockwell favors plantings in the Mack median and beautification efforts on the Lakeshore median.

As to the War Memorial liquor license, "we'll know more about that after Oct. 25," Rockwell said he has received more feedback on that subject than any other except Lakeshore Road. "The supporters aren't as vocal as the opponents," he said.

The Farms went along with the proposed youth assistance program, and Rockwell said he hopes it will continue to be pursued. "Personally, I think we're making a big mistake if we let it go," he said.

judge should consider legal experience, competence in law, integrity and judicial temperament, O'Rourke said. He also stressed his community involvement in SAC and the Friends of Bon Secours.

O'Rourke's experience includes three years as the chairman of the Michigan Employment Security Appeal board, a stint as chair of labor arbitration panels for the Michigan Employment Relations Commission, and several appointments as impartial factfinder, referee or special master. He is a member of the representative assembly of the state bar association and the author of several articles on real estate law.

Anthony Penta

Candidate for the Farms municipal court Anthony C. Penta Jr., 42, wants voters to consider his wide background as a trial lawyer in district and circuit courts in the tri-county area, as well as his work before the federal bench and in federal and state courts of appeals.

"On the average, I'm in court four days a week," he said. "I have investigated, prosecuted and defended criminal matters. This experience would enable me to be a fair but firm judge."

Penta has served as a police department investigative aide, an FBI agent, and an assistant prosecutor in Oakland County.

Time in the municipal court isn't used efficiently, Penta said. "Until and if there's a full-time court, you will always have a seeming lack of economic use of time." He favors a full-time court.

There are only six municipal courts in Michigan, five in the Pointes and one in East Detroit, Penta said. If there were a district court in the Pointes, as allowed for by the state legislature, it is possible that one judge couldn't handle the volume of cases, so it is Penta's feeling that a clerk/magistrate would likely be required as well.

Under a district court system, there would be some financial assistance from the state, Penta said, but there would also be some accountability to the state, which can be interpreted as loss of local control. But the upper limit of civil suits in municipal court is $1,500; people involved in more expensive litigation already have to go to a district court — in Detroit.

"If we had a local district court, people would get resolution of their cases in a more reasonable length of time," Penta said. "The Detroit docket is clogged."

Penta is a member of national, state and county bar associations, trial lawyers' associations, and the representative assembly of the state bar. He is also a member of the Grosse Pointe Crisis Club, a charitable group, and the American Cancer Society, for which he has acted as chair of the Grosse Pointe branch special gifts program.

Bruce Rockwell

Working out a viable agreement with the developers of the property at Muir and Kercheval was "a real winner for the Farms," according to Bruce M. Rockwell, 46, who is running for his second term as council member.

Rockwell, a senior vice president for First of Michigan Corp., names the development agreement as one of the major council accomplishments during his two-year tenure. "The city has shown an ability to work with residents and is making terrific progress," he said.

The problem of traffic on residential streets is being approached well through the joint committee, he said. "The city has to do a balancing act. The council is enthusiastic about development but mindful of the potential problems. It isn't just three or four streets," Rockwell said the commissioning of the traffic study was a positive step that provided the city with a bank of information for the future.

More retail use of the Hill buildings would be beneficial, Rockwell said, "but I don't think it's something that can be legislated. Market forces will take care of it." The Farms once considered a retail-only ordinance for the Hill.

The current challenges as Rockwell sees them focus on improving the city's relationship with

Peter O'Rourke

A practicing lawyer for 24 years, Peter E. O'Rourke, 51, is running for Farms municipal judge. O'Rourke has been prosecutor for the city for 11 years.

O'Rourke sees several issues facing the court. He favors continuing a strong enforcement of the state's drunk driving laws. "The Farms is one of the toughest courts in the state as far as arrests and prosecutions go," he said. The court is now averaging more than 30 OUI (operating under the influence of liquor) cases per month.

The amount of time the municipal court meets is an issue. At present, the court has sessions twice a month. However, according to O'Rourke, increased numbers of defendants are requesting jury trials, which place additional demands on the court's time.

O'Rourke sees pros and cons to converting from a municipal court system to a district court. He believes a district court would cost more, but the increased jurisdiction would be worth the cost.

"The advantage would be having one court system that could handle almost everything that comes its way," he said. "The disadvantage is that you would lose the personal touch." O'Rourke said he would favor a conversion to district court.

NOTICE OF HEARING ZONING BOARD OF APPEALS

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN THAT THE Zoning Board of Appeals will meet in City Hall at 90 Kerby Road, Grosse Pointe Farms on:

MONDAY, NOVEMBER 11, 1985

at 8:00 p.m. to hear the appeal of Mr. and Mrs. James Soltesz owners of the premises located at 332 McMillan Rd., from the denial of the Building Department to issue a Building Permit for the enlargement of an existing family room, to the rear of their existing dwelling located at the foregoing address. Such permit issuance was denied for reason that:

- The residence located on the foregoing premises is non-conforming for reason that it is in violation of the side yard provisions of Article XIII, Section 1300 of the City's Zoning Ordinance, and in accordance with the provisions of Article XV, Section 1502, Item 4-A of the City's Zoning Ordinance, no such structure may be enlarged or structurally altered unless a variance is granted.
- The new enlarged room will infringe into the four foot required side yard, leaving a side yard of 2.5 feet and therefore requiring a variance from the provisions of Article XIII, Section 1300 of the City's Zoning Ordinance.

The Hearing will be public. Interested property owners or residents of the City are invited to attend.

Woman assaulted on Lakeshore

A Detroit woman was kidnapped at gunpoint Oct. 12 and driven to an isolated driveway on Lakeshore Road in the Farms, where one of her abductors raped her, according to Detroit and Grosse Pointe Farms police reports.

Three men in a rusty, dented, blue car, possibly a Pontiac, stopped the woman as she was walking to a friend's house, ordered her into the car, and drove her to a dark spot. The two in the front seat began to smoke marijuana, according to the victim's statement, while the man in the back seat ordered her to the floor and raped her.

Afterwards, the three discussed killing her to prevent identification, but ended by pushing her out of the car. She then walked to her friend's house and called police.

The victim was treated and released at Detroit Receiving Hospital.

Free diabetes screening at Cottage

In cooperation with the American Diabetes Association, Cottage Hospital will hold a diabetes screening clinic Monday through Friday, Nov. 4 to 8. Free blood tests are offered from 9 a.m. to noon in the hospital laboratory to anyone 18 years of age or over who is not a known diabetic.

The Diabetes Detection Week is an annual effort to identify the estimated 240,000 people in the state of Michigan who have undiagnosed diabetes and, consequently, are not being treated.

Tests are given on an informal, drop-in basis at Cottage Hospital, 159 Kercheval Ave. The test should be done two hours after eating. For more specific information, call the Cottage Hospital Laboratory at 884-8600, ext. 2190.

Shores polls residents about Vernier School

Like its neighbors, Grosse Pointe Shores will have an election in November. Village residents won't be deciding on councilmen or a mayor, but will help their council decide what to do with Vernier School.

A letter sent to residents last week lays out four options for the building: municipal renovation of the building over a number of years; the Village entering an agreement with a non-profit organization for renovation and use of the building; doing nothing with the building; or tearing it down.

Residents are asked to check one of the options and return it, with their comments or suggestions, to the village office by the end of November.

A number of proposed uses for the building have been suggested over the past several years, the most recent by the Grosse Pointe Historical Society.

The society in July asked the village for permission to renovate the building in exchange for a long-term lease. The society will raise the funds to cover the renovation through private donations and grants from charitable foundations.

The village council decided in September to hold off making a decision on the building until it has a chance to poll its residents.

The 60-by-100 foot lot on which the school stands was purchased from the village in 1915. The new building was to replace the old Vernier school at Michaux and Vernier which had become unsafe.

The school was built in 1916 and was used until 1956 when the building was vacated by the Board of Education and leased back to the village for $1 a year.

The village bought the building back from the school system for $25,000. The village uses the building for storage and as a polling place and, in the last two years, during the renovation of the municipal building, as temporary office space.

The school was designed by Albert Kahn, who also designed the Shores municipal office.

The present condition of the building requires extensive interior and exterior repairs, with an estimated cost of bringing the building up to code set at $350,000, according to the village.

The historical society hopes to raise between $250,000 and $750,000 to cover its part of the renovation, but needs a lease agreement with the village before it can begin making proposals to charitable foundations for funds.

The council is expected to decide the fate of the 70-year-old building next year, according to the village.

Does the Addams family live here?

Believe it if anyone tells you the Kenneth Potenga family, of the 700 block of Lakepointe Road, is really, really into Halloween. The Potengas have constructed what is probably the most ornate display of Halloween spirit in all of Grosse Pointe. It took the family about 10 hours to construct the scene, complete with mini-graveyard, witches, skeletons and assorted dismembered bodies semi-buried in the leaves piled in front of their home. Oh yes, the display is lit at night so vampires shunning the light of day can enjoy it too.

State police auction

The Michigan State Police will hold its annual fall auction Thursday, Nov. 7, at the National Guard Armory, 2500 S. Washington, Lansing, beginning at 9 a.m.

In addition to the usual cameras, bikes, radios, stereos, televisions and jewelry offered for sale, bidders will find some unusual items as well. A baby cradle, an antique china hutch, a bean bag chair, a snow blower and two canoes are among the items that will go to the highest bidder. The auction ends when the last item is sold. Terms are cash and the items must be removed the day of the sale.

Last spring's auction netted more than $40,000. Items offered are either lost or recovered property or have been forfeited to the state under the Narcotics Forfeiture Act.

assess the rulings' long-term effect, Burns said, noting the school is doing what it can to pick up the slack and providing what aid it can.

A letter from the Most Rev. Edmund Szoka, archbishop of Detroit, published recently in The Michigan Catholic, blasted the high court's decision. It read in part:

"The vote of the Supreme Court was 5 to 4. Just think of it, the vote of one man means that thousands of children in Catholic schools throughout the United States can no longer receive remedial reading and math in their school because this will somehow entangle the church and state.

"Now our children who need these services will have to be bused to a public school for this special help. That means extra time to get there and back. These students are already behind academically. Why should we make it still harder for them by using precious time in busing? There is also danger in moving young children so much. And how would they be received in public schools, especially if they are wearing Catholic school uniforms?"

Other states have found other solutions to the problem, including asking for a year's grace to prepare a program, according to Szoka's letter. Also, Ohio has set up a system of neutral sites where parochial school students may receive services closer to their schools, sometimes in mobile homes paid for by public schools on parochial school property.

Earlier this week, Runkel approved a plan that would allow children attending Catholic schools in Detroit to continue receiving instruction in their buildings until a system of neutral sites can be developed early next year.

Statewide, it is unclear how many parents have decided not to have their children transported to public schools. Information is still being collected by the Michigan Association of Non-Public Schools, according to a spokesman for the association.

The association represents Catholic, some Lutheran and some Christian-day schools in the state and has been in contact with the state Department of Education to work out some kind of solution. Neutral sites statewide and in local districts has been one of the topics discussed, the spokesman added.

It is unclear what services, if any, parochial school students who once were aided by local public schools are now receiving. Cottage Hospital, which offers a speech and hearing therapy program, says it is too early to say whether there has been increased use of the program.

The Grosse Pointe Learning Center, which offers full tutorial and therapy services, has not experienced an influx of new applicants, according to the company.

But the problem for the 100 or more students who are not yet receiving help they need will get worse, according to one parent.

Often, the first month of the new school year is review of material covered the year before. As November begins, new material begins to be introduced. "There are 120 kids out there who are not getting the help they need to completely understand what is going on in their classroom," he added.

Quit smoking

Free introductory sessions of the Smokeless System for smokers who want to quit will be held at Cottage Hospital on Monday and Tuesday, Nov. 4 and 5, from 7:30 p.m. to 8:30 p.m. The sessions are held in the Nurses' residence at the rear of the hospital parking lot, 159 Kercheval.

Smoking is a complex behavior which is acquired, step by step, over a period of time. It is a multifaceted behavior with physical, psychological and social aspects which are learned and must be unlearned to quit.

The Smokeless System uses stress management, positive rewards and reinforcements, attitudinal transformation, food management, education, motivational tools, and patented negative smoking techniques in an intensive program which will enable participants to get off cigarettes in only five days.

Children's art class

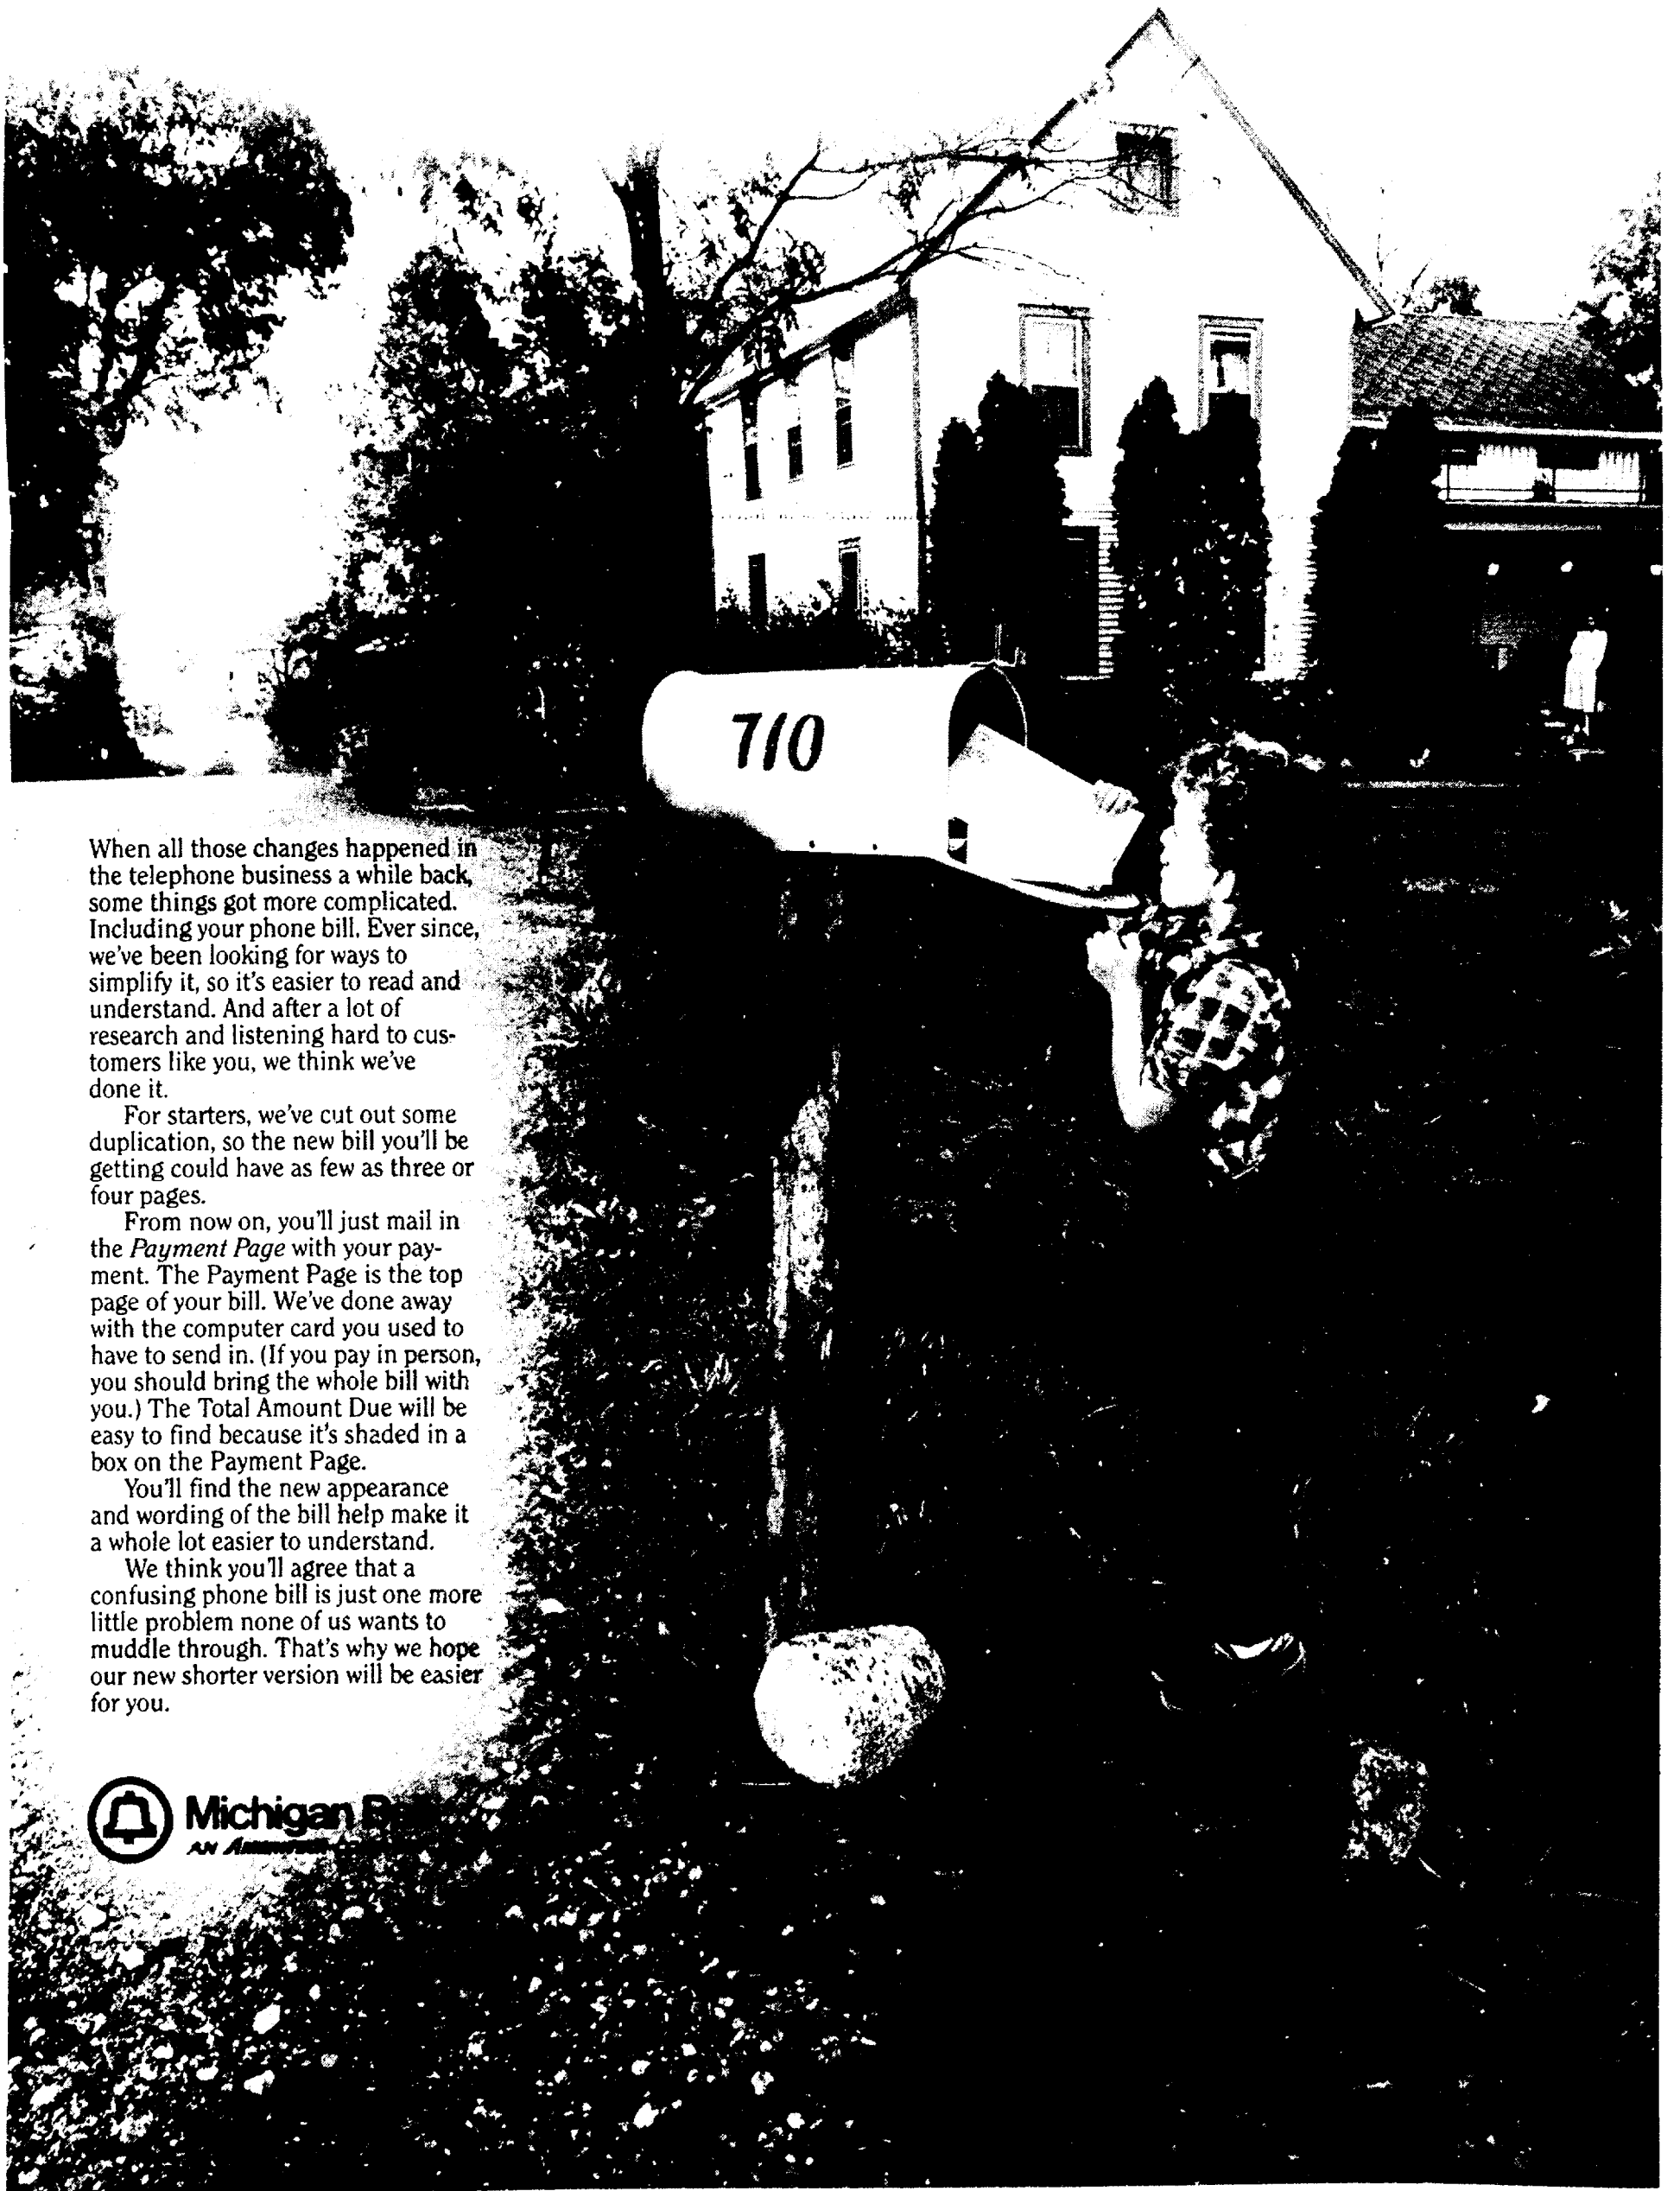

The War Memorial will offer "Drawing and Painting Techniques," for children 6 to 9 years old on Wednesdays, Nov. 6 through Dec. 18, from 4 to 5:30 p.m.

Margaret Hall will teach various processes and media available. The cost of $22 for six weeks includes supplies.

For starters, we've cut out some duplication, so the new bill you'll be getting could have as few as three or four pages.

From now on, you'll just mail in the Payment Page with your payment. The Payment Page is the top page of your bill. We've done away with the computer card you used to have to send in. Parcells Middle School: serving students and community

By Mike Andrzejczyk

You could say that Parcells Middle School has a bit of a split personality. The school, which opened its doors to students in 1951, is planned and built not just as a junior high school, but as a community center adaptable to adults.

The middle school was built on a 16-acre site purchased in 1940 at the corners of Mack and Vernier. The property once belonged to the Van Antwerp family, whose picture is in the archives of the school.

The original building and an addition constructed in 1951 are worth more than $3.4 million. The school on whose site is located a branch of the public library, has a capacity for 1,000 students.

The school was named after Charles A. Parcells, who served 21 years on the Grosse Pointe Board of Education, including five years as secretary and 16 years as president. Parcells died in 1948 at age 60.

This year, the school has 558 students in grades six, seven and eight; a professional staff totalling 39.4 full-time positions; and 17.4 additional full-time positions in support service areas, including secretarial staff, cafeteria and maintenance personnel.

The school's door opened to 10 more students than originally projected, according to Principal William Christofferson. Those students were easily absorbed without major shifts in assignments.

Although the schools served grades seven, eight and nine as junior high school from 1951 through the 1967-68 school year when its peak enrollment came near 1,100, the original building along Sunningdale, often referred to as "old Parcells," operated as an elementary school for three years.

From 1965 to 1968, students who lived from Morningside to Lakeshore north to St. Clair Shores' city limits were bused to Brownell to relieve the school's population crunch, which was routinely over its designated capacity. The population pressure eased considerably when North High School opened in September 1968, and the system reorganized to a K-6, 7-8, 9-12 system.

Some sixth-graders did spend five years at the school. During school years 1968-69 through 1972-73, the middle schools operated a modified 6-8 program. Only Pierce was large enough to house all sixth-graders from its feeder schools.

From 1973 through 1984, the middle schools operated as a grade seven and eight only program. Last year, the district added sixth-graders to the middle schools as part of a reorganization plan that closed Barnes to students. This is the second year that middle school students are in middle schools. Parcells' remains the district's largest middle school by more than 100 students.

This is also Christofferson's second year at Parcells, coming to the school after 19 years at Brownell. There are many more similarities between the two buildings than there are differences, he added.

"It was exciting for me to come here after so many years at Brownell," Christofferson said. "The move does give you the ability to get a fresh perspective on middle school education."

Christofferson is the third principal at the school in 35 years. Vincent Peterson served for 19 years in that capacity, from 1951 to 1970. Morris Hanzek spent 14 years at the school beginning in 1970.

Originally, middle schools had a Dean of Boys, a Dean of Girls and three counselors. As enrollments fell, cutbacks in counseling and administrative services whittled the administrative/guidance staff to one principal, one administrative intern and two counselors at Parcells.

Middle schools have the unique task of trying to teach their 11- to 14-year-old charges not only about reading, writing and arithmetic, but about how to deal with life and the changes they are beginning to experience in their lives, Christofferson says.

"Middle schools take students from where they are, build on their basic skills and ... provide them the kind of support base they need to make that transition from childhood to approaching adulthood," Christofferson added.

Parcells is uniquely equipped to serve its students and the community. Symbols of its dual commitment to excellence are on the walls of the main office; beautification awards from Grosse Pointe Woods hanging alongside certificates of recognition from the state Board of Education for performance in the Michigan Education Achievement program.

Other signs of the close working relationship between school and ci-the Community Education Department, the facility, one of three built as part of a bond issue when Brownell was opened, is often open before and after school evenings and Saturdays for various groups.

The athletic fields at the school underwent major renovation during the fall, including regrading to provide better drainage for the fields. New grass seed has been sown, ball diamonds have been rebuilt and the fields will be ready for use next spring. The fields have been the public viewing site for the last two years for the Mack Avenue U.S.A. fireworks to celebrate the Fourth of July.

The cafeteria program is considered the best in the system by some. Bea McKheen heads the program and provides attractive and nourishing meals for staff and students. She's also called on to supply other school functions with cookies, cinnamon rolls and bran muffins.

Parcells is the only school in the system to hold a Holiday Bazaar, now in its 11th year. Proceeds from the bazaar go to the PTO to fund a various program at the school.

One estimate of the successful program figures that, given more room, the school could easily add another 100 exhibitors to the affair.

Parcells is first and foremost a school. Its teaching staff collectively holds 82 college degrees, including 36 masters, one educational specialist and one doctorate. They have earned many hours beyond masters' requirements at 50 institutions located in 17 states and four foreign countries.

Programs for high ability students are in place for sixth-, seventh- and eighth-graders and a high ability social studies program is being developed. The school offers a Chapter One tutorial program for students with trouble in language arts and learning resource centers are also available for those with learning difficulties.

The three-year program at the middle school has rekindled the interest of parents in their children's education, Christofferson said. Because the program was once only two years, some parents fell away. The additional year has meant more interest and more involvement by parents, which can only mean more interest by their children, he added.

The school counts among its alumni current Board of Education President Jon Gandelot. Former music teachers at the school, Donald Simmons and Len Riccinto, are now professors at Ohio State and Eastern Michigan universities, respectively. Dr. Tom Ryan, a former social studies teacher at the school, is dean of Georgia State the reading and writing skills center and get your camera ready. January is the month the cedar waxwings return to Parcells, like Vernier and Mack in 1940s.

University's college of education.

The student newspaper, The Parcells Post, has won a number of awards from the Columbia Scholastic Journalism Review. Naming the paper was one of the first real problems students faced. A committee of students chose The Parcells Post and The Piper and deadlocked on a final name, throwing the choice open to a student election, in which the Post won out.

And, if you happen to be around the school in January, walk back to the swallows return to Capistrano.

The birds gorge themselves on berries from nearby trees and become disoriented by the juices from the fermented fruit. They then fly smack into the windows of the reading and writing skills center, stunning themselves for a moment or two before flying off. The bouncing birds tend to break up the business-like goings-on in the building.

This is the 15th story in a series on the schools of Grosse Pointe.

Society gives $2,000 to GPS foundation

The Grosse Pointe Historical Society has donated $2,000 to the Grosse Pointe Shores Improvement Foundation to continue its beautification project on Lakeshore Road, according to society President Lisa Gandelot.

The amount, presented to the foundation at its Monday night meeting, is enough to cover the rest of repairs to a structure at Oxford and Lakeshore, on which the village performed major structural repairs this summer.

"We would like to commend the village for its forward thinking renovation," Gandelot said. "The society is pleased to provide the funds for completion of the project."

Renovation of the structure "enhances the quality of life in the Shores and for the community as a whole," Gandelot said.

"Through the efforts of individuals, community groups and local units of government working together, we can enhance the quality of life for the entire community," she added.

The structure was included in an August 1984 newspaper article and was then called the only major sin in the village by planner Gerald Luedtke, who said in the article,

"the shelter itself was once beautiful. It has a huge crack in it now and it's out of alignment. It's at the entrance of one of the most beautiful streets in Grosse Pointe Shores. It should be repaired."

Those interested in supporting preservation and beautification in the Shores may make donations to the improvement foundation, 795 Lakeshore Road, Grosse Pointe Shores, 48236. The historical society is located at Room 105, Monteith Elementary School, 1275 Cook Road, Grosse Pointe Woods, 48236, Gandelot said.

The society recently took delivery of the lintel from the Old Kerby School Building, razed to make room for a parking lot at the Farms municipal offices.

The lintel was delivered by Charles Bailey and Bernie Lewis of the Kerby Construction Co.

The society's exhibits are open to the public from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. Tuesday and Wednesday in the school. The society's headquarters contain a variety of artifacts, maps, pictures and other memorabilia of the community.

For more information about the society, call curator Jean Dodenhoff at 884-7010 during the hours the headquarters is open.

The structure at Oxford and Lakeshore in the Shores has undergone major structural renovations this summer. The Grosse Pointe Historical Society has donated $2,000 to help complete the work.

Incumbents on City ballot

By Pat Paholsky

All indications are that it will be a quiet election in the city of Grosse Pointe Tuesday, Nov. 5. The mayoral and three council seats that are expiring are being sought by the respective incumbents with no challengers.

Lorenzo D. Browning, who has served as mayor for about three years, has filed for another term because he feels he is contributing to the community.

"Our community doesn't have a peer anyplace. I think it's great and I want to keep it that way," he said.

Browning, who served about 12 years as a councilman before he assumed the mayoral position, said the job is demanding, but he enjoys it.

He was president of Boblo until it was sold in 1979. Browning is retired. He and his wife Elizabeth Anne have seven children, six of whom are living.

James P. Curran is seeking his second four-year term on the council because "I have enjoyed it, I learned a great deal and I think I have made a contribution."

Curran, who is special assistant to the director at the state Department of Management and Budget, said he is concerned with maintaining the level of service and maintaining the quality of the village.

"We do those two things and we will have a strong, viable community," he said.

He and his wife Carolyn have lived in the city for about 10 years. They have three sons.

William N. Montgomery has served on the council for six years. He is running for another term "because I think I can contribute to the city government."

Montgomery, who is a retired Michigan Bell executive, said he has been able to help the city in its forward planning and city administration.

He and his wife Evelyn have lived in the city for 28 years. They have four adult children.

Robert L. Nugent, who has served on the council for 14 years, is seeking another term because he enjoys it. "And I think it's the least I can do for my city," he added.

"I'm the only engineer on the council and I think it's a skill the council can use, particularly because the city is getting old and we have a lot of work on our pumping station and sewers," he said. "I think I can add to that."

Nugent, who has lived in the city for about 33 years, is assistant vice president and manager of engineering and construction for Detroit Edison.

Teflon was invented by various scientists at the U.S. Navy's Naval Research Laboratory. They wanted a coating for machine guns.

Milsap concert to benefit blind students

Ronnie Milsap to give first fundraiser at Music Hall in Detroit

By Elsa Frohman

The newly formed Ronnie Milsap Foundation has chosen Detroit for its first fundraising concert which will provide scholarships to help visually impaired students complete college. Planned for Thursday, Nov. 14, at the Music Hall at 8 p.m., promoters hope to raise at least $20,000 to be distributed in scholarships on the night of the concert.

"We want to show that a visual handicap does not prevent intellectual development," said S. Gary Spicer, president of the executive board of the Ronnie Milsap Foundation.

Spicer is one of five Grosse Pointers involved in the Milsap Foundation and the upcoming benefit. Spicer became involved through his law firm which serves the country singer through its Tennessee office. Other Pointers include Ben Chapman, an account executive for Roney & Co.; Keith Crain, vice chairman of Crain

Communications, Inc.; William Power, executive vice president of Young & Rubicam; and Circuit Judge Paul Teranes.

The Milsap Foundation was established this summer to provide educational assistance in the form of scholarships for talented blind students in all fields of study; to provide financial aid in the area of eye research and to develop and expand career opportunities for the blind and the visually impaired.

Milsap was born blind and abandoned at birth, according to Spicer. He attended the Morehead School for the Blind in Alabama and first discovered music at the age of six. He was considered a classical piano prodigy, but soon turned his talents to popular music, particularly rhythm and blues. He turned down a scholarship to Emory University to pursue his career in country and western music.

In his early days in Memphis, Tenn., he sang backup for Elvis Presley and other popular singers.

But 10 years ago, he moved to Nashville to develop a solo singing career.

"He has become one of the most successful pop-country singers in the world," Spicer said.

Spicer explained that Milsap's appeal cuts across category lines in music. He has a lot of "cross-over" following among rock and pop music listeners. He has won Grammys, and other awards from Billboard, Cash Box and many other organizations.

Milsap became interested in helping other visually impaired people some five years ago.

"We found there wasn't a national spokesperson for the blind," Spicer said. "It took four and a half years of research to make this foundation a reality."

Spicer pointed out that there are more than 500,000 blind or visually impaired people in the United States. Each year, due to accidental and birth defects, that population increases by 12 percent.

Only 35 percent of the blind people of working age in this country are employed, according to Spicer. Of those, the largest percentage work in specialized employment settings for the blind.

"Most work in the 'blindness system'," Spicer said. "There is a philosophy that if a blind person can manufacture brooms, then the system is a success. We do not agree."

New technology is being developed to make it possible for the visually impaired to compete successfully in a sighted world. The devices include voice synthesized computers, braille transcribers and many other machines specialized to a particular field. However, these machines are expensive and it is difficult to convince a manufacturer to build them in quantity when only a very few will be sold.

"Economically, it doesn't pay," Spicer said. "You can't spend $3 million for research if only a small segment of the population will acquire the equipment. We want to develop business reasons for Three Grosse Pointers on the board of the Ronnie Milsap Foundation are, from left, Ben Chapman, Circuit Judge Paul Teranes and S. Gary Spicer. manufacturing this equipment." Spicer admits that Milsap's music, since it is classified as country and western, may alienate some of the people the fundraiser is trying to reach.

"There is a bias and that is unfortunate," Spicer said. "But the good news is that many people may be exposed to his music because of his humanitarian work. It shouldn't have too much of an effect."

The Milsap Foundation chose Detroit for its first concert because of the Detroiters on the foundation board and because of the warm reception Milsap has received in this area in the past. Next year, a televised concert in Nashville is in the wings. The Nashville Network has agreed to cooperate. After that, the group has a major entertainment event in the first stages of planning.

Spicer emphasizes that the Milsap Foundation is not a short-term project.

"We are being bombarded with benefit concerts," he said. "There was Live Aid, Farm Aid, Band Aid. We're more interested in a steady, long-term effort. We don't want to go out in one loud bang. We want to be more quiet and steady."

The Milsap Foundation will be giving out scholarships twice a year, with the first presentation given on the evening of the benefit, Nov. 14. The application period for the scholarships will be March 1-20 and Nov. 1-20 each year.

On Nov. 14, five to 10 scholarships will be handed out, depending on the amount of money raised by the benefit. Each award will be for $2,000. Eventually, the group would like to give out 10, $10,000, scholarships each year. The applications for this year's recipients are currently being reviewed.

Tickets for the concert can be purchased through the Milsap Foundation, 567-1920, Monday through Friday, or through Ticket World or the Music Hall box office. Black tie benefit tickets are $100 each. Five hundred will be sold. General admission tickets are $15 and $10.

"We're not only interested in the musically talented," Milsap said. "Our concern is in locating those people with the talents, initiative and desire to succeed in all fields. If the students have the talent and the desire to succeed, the foundation will be there to provide the direction and the financial aid. Then, together we can help to expand the frontiers in all these areas and make a better world for us all."

Antiques Affair benefits Goodwill

What would you most like to have? A gorgeous fur coat at a nominal price? A cookbook full of old and new favorites? A prize winning edible to serve guests? A special antique piece to add to your collection? An elegant tea service at a fraction of its cost?

Chances are that you will find all that and more when the 38th Annual Antiques Show and Sale "Antiques Affair" by the Junior Group of Goodwill Industries opens its new setting at the Michigan State Exposition and Fairgrounds in the Michigan Mart Building, Woodward Avenue, south of Eight Mile Road, in Detroit. A preview will be held from 7 to 10 p.m. Nov. 7, with the Show continuing through Nov. 10.

A Salute to Michigan is the theme of the show. Honorary Chairmen Governor and Mrs. James Blanchard, governor of the state of Michigan; and Mr. and Mrs. Robert Dewar, chairman of the Executive and Finance Committee, K mart Corporation, will greet guests in an old time country fair setting.

Mary Jane Watkins, president of the Junior Group of Goodwill Industries, Donna Anderson, general chairwoman, and Ellie Jorgensen, dealer chairwoman, are enthusiastic over all the exciting preparations going on to transform the event into an exciting Salute to Michigan.

The Goodwill Booth, always a favorite, this year, in addition to the usual antiques, collectibles, and items of quality gathered by the Goodwill during the year and available for sale, has an exciting new addition. There are more than 45 beautiful fur coats for sale. These range from glamorous mink to fur-lined raincoats and jackets. To say that they are great bargains is the understatement of the year. Due to a long-standing, iron-clad rule, no items are sold before Opening Night. All items will be available.

The Antique Dealers will present outstanding exhibits. More than 47 dealers will exhibit choice articles from all periods and all styles.

The Boutique is the perfect place for gift shopping. If you want a novel doorhanging, this is the place. Straw hats in all colors with the word, "Welcome", lettered across the top, are made for door hanging. Decorated in seasonal ornaments, the red and green straw for the upcoming holiday season decorated with teddy bears and tree ornaments are sensational.

These are some of the attractive items to be found in the boutique at "Antiques Affair" by the Junior Group of Goodwill. The fair will be held Nov. 7-10 at the Michigan State Fairgrounds. Many of these items were made in the workshop of Mary Schroeder in Grosse Pointe. From left to right Helen Huber, Mary Schroeder, Jerry Sickels and Joann Zuchowski.

There are also Christmas calendars with movable teddy bears so the children can keep track of the dates; grapevine wreaths, lined baskets for dolls, and lacy pillows.

The appetizing aromas are probably issuing from the Country Store which will carry out its Michigan theme by home baked pies of Michigan — cherry and apple. There will be all kinds of home made breads and candies, cheese and pecans, plus home made jams and jellies — and, of course, those old standbys — chili sauce and pickles.

Did you know that the Junior Group's Dilly Beans (they make novel swizzle sticks and additions to salads) won a first prize blue ribbon in this year's State Fair Canning Competition? In order to meet the demand, extra batches have been put up.

Also available this year is the Junior Group Goodwill cookbook titled "Potpourri." This is a choice collection of recipes donated by our members. Yes, the recipe for Dilly Beans is there, also our fame Broccoli Bisque. There are recipes for everything from hors d'oeuvres to brunches and luncheons — also a helpful chapter on household hints. Attractively bound in beige and red, it would make a great gift.

There will be a raffle of a hand-made schoolhouse quilt.

A silent auction will also have among its items a magnificent silver tea service which would cover a small tabletop. Light lunches and dinners, coffee and desserts will be served during the show.

Tickets for the Preview Party are $22.50 each or $45 couple, (tax deductible). Admission on show days is $4 at the door or $3.50 in advance. For information call 76-1230.

Memorial Christmas Fair

Working to put together the Grosse Pointe Memorial Church Christmas Fair are, from the left, Anne Parcels, Barb Fordree and Bette Targosz. The fair will be held on Saturday, Nov. 9, from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m.

Memorial Christmas Fair

This is the year to experience Christmas shopping inside a beautiful Gothic church overlooking Lake St. Clair. Enjoy Christmas carols played on the organ by William DeTurk while examining handmade unique gifts and wonderful services all under one roof. This paradise is the Grosse Pointe Memorial Christmas Fair, Nov. 9, beginning at 10 a.m. There is no admission charge, ample parking and elevator service for senior citizens and the handicapped.

Twenty-two booths will be offered, spanning the church from the ground-level Fellowship Hall to the third floor Sunday School rooms. Fair patrons will find something for every taste and pocket-book.

A year-round fair project that is a highlight of the fair is Bids 'n' Prices in the Donated Services Booth. Items range from a condo for the weekend to a cheesecake for the table, with minimum bids set for some items and firm prices on others. Theater tickets, chauffeuring within a 50 mile radius, someone to clean your silver or polish the brass are only a few of the eclectic items offered.

Potichomania — decoupage on glass which looks like hand-painted china; personalized Christmas cards (a Foundation for Exceptional Children offering); Appalachian crafts including quilts, pillows, clothespin dolls; Candy houses; a Santa's workshop; doll wardrobes to suit the most discriminating Cabbage Patch and other popular dolls; "Second Chance" booth; Variety corners displaying dough art and hand-made candy are some of the offerings at the fair.

Other items include hand knit sweaters for the entire family; smocking from elegant dresses, pinafores to heirloom tree ornaments; wood crafted items, painted or stenciled; and pine cone wreathing.

And should the energy run down from this shopping, a Country Cafe will be available to re-charge the flagging system and give an opportunity for a second shopping whirl.

Chairpersons for the fair are Anne Parcels and Barb Fordree. Proceeds are earmarked for missions in our metropolitan community, outstate and world-wide.

Holly Fair

Holly Fair, the Christmas mart of the Grosse Pointe Unitarian Church, will be held Nov. 11 and 12 at 17150 Maumee Ave. in Grosse Pointe.

The Country Kitchen will fill the air with the smells and tastes of Christmas jellies and jams, and savory chili sauce will line up on the counter.

Pies, cakes and cookies — coffee cakes and candies will make your choice difficult. Mrs. Paul Barbour chairs this booth.

The Boutique will be overflowing with handmade needlepoint made by Virginia Jeffries. There will be Christmas ornaments cleverly needlepointed with animal faces and stuffed calico cats. Wooden cat baskets are emerging from Dr. Charles Jeffries' jig-saw. Cat faces will be painted by Mrs. Alden Smith. Frances Pascoe and Harriet Lally are Santa's helpers here, along with Mrs. Joseph Calouette and Betty Bacon.

There will be ladies' scarves to dress up that special suit. And cloth cactus plants to decorate a dreary corner. Mrs. Haig Tarpinian and Mrs. Gerald LaVoie are in charge here.

You'll find aprons, and gifts bags to tuck a treasure in — crocheted snow flakes stocking ornaments and other wondrous things. Mrs. Nelson Frolund's bibs and mittens are a tradition. Irene Muir's dolls are collector's items.

Don't overlook the White Elephants. These are special — and at the right price.

Mrs. Miller is in charge here, assisted by Mrs. Creighton Lederer, Mrs. Charles Fossati, Alice Campbell and Mrs. Kenneth Harle.

Mrs. Donald Hines will serve a holiday luncheon assisted by Mrs. Sam Smith and Beth Sanders.

Occurring on Sundays at 7:30 p.m., the first concert on Nov. 24 presents the Memorial Church Festival Choir and Orchestra performing Vivaldi's "Gloria" and J.S. Bach's Cantata #192, "Nun danket alle Gott" (Now Thank We All Our God).

The second concert on Dec. 15 presents the Detroit Symphony Chorale (formerly the Kenneth Jewell Chorale) in its annual Christmas concert at Memorial Church. The featured work will be Britten's "A Ceremony of Carols" accompanied with harp.

The third concert on Feb. 2, entitled "The Great Organs of Europe" and presented by Lowell Riley, will bring the sights and sounds of the great European organs into the Sanctuary of Memorial Church via state-of-the-art electronic equipment. Organs of all sizes, shapes, designs, tonal colors and ages will be experienced, including the oldest which was built in 1390. The two programs to be shown are "Organ Sampler" and "The Organs of Klais," the highly respected contemporary German organ builder.

The fourth concert on March 16 will again feature the Festival Choir and Orchestra (program to be announced).

The fifth concert on April 20 features the finest male chorus in the world, Wayne State University Men's Glee Club conducted by Dr. Harry M. Langsford. Last July this Glee Club won, for the third time, the international musical "Eisteddfod," the 809-year old Welsh men's songfest that draws entrants from around the world.

The annual Summer Series of Carillon Recitals will occur on Tuesdays at 7:30 p.m. and will be extended to include June, July and August in co-ordination with the World Carillon Congress to be held at U-M in Ann Arbor July 5-8. Carillonists from around the world will be in Michigan next summer and will be a very active part of the recital series here.

Walter Belenke: Helping children hear, from Grosse Pointe to Greece

By Elsa Frohman

The child had been deaf in one ear since the family's Greek physician lanced her eardrum as treatment for an ear infection. It's a common treatment — the physician was puzzled when the child screamed with pain during the procedure and lost her hearing afterward.

The family went from one specialist to another, first in their native Greece, then in Switzerland, then in London, looking for help for the 4-year-old.

Then, through connections in the medical world, the family brought her to Dr. Walter Belenke at Children's Hospital of Michigan.

"It was a simple problem," Belenke said. "When the doctor lanced her eardrum, he knocked loose one of the bones in her inner ear. We were able to fix it (surgically), and her hearing came back."

That case established Belenke's reputation in Greece as a man who could work near miracles for deaf children. It led him into a major project to help profoundly deaf Greek children.

Belenke, a long-time Grosse Pointe, is a pioneer in a practically new sub-specialty of medicine, pediatric otolaryngology. Otolaryngology, specialization in the ear, nose and throat, has been around for a while, but few doctors have narrowed the specialty to children.

"About 50 percent of the patients seen by otolaryngologists are children," Belenke said. "But kids represent a special entity. They're not

Dr. Walter Belenke examines Irini Skitzakos of Greece at Children's Hospital of Michigan. Irini is 6 years old. Dr. Belenke's reputation brought her to Children's Hospital. She has been determined to be a good candidate for a cochlear implant.

Called a cochlear implant, the operation places a small electrode inside the inner ear. The implant bypasses the inoperative nerve endings and gives some measure of hearing to previously deaf patients. The hearing is not complete or perfect, but it allows the patient to have a better awareness of his surroundings.

Most implants have been performed on adults so far. Belenke explained that there are serious reservations about using the technique on children.

"The research is advancing fast. They are working on multi-channel implants. But once the government gives the go-ahead, everyone is going to be jumping on the implant bandwagon. Even the really good medical groups sometimes get carried away. We don't know the long-term effects of the surgery. We're putting an electrode right inside the bone and stimulating it. It might produce bone formation. We have to exercise caution when we are doing children."

Questions about the appropriateness of the procedure for children led the government to declare a moratorium on licensing medical centers to perform the procedure on children. Children's Hospital is not one of the hospitals licensed to perform the operation, however, Belenke is heading up a team to begin doing implants as soon as the questions have been answered and the moratorium has been lifted.

Currently, he does the pre-surgical evaluation and sends the patients to one of the authorized medical centers. Afterward, they will return to Children's Hospital for the rehabilitation process, the longest, and one of the most important parts of the procedure.

Since Belenke returned to the United States after the Greek meeting, the families of the children he saw have been making their way to the United States for a follow-up examination at Children's Hospital.

"We're doing investigations to see which of the children are good candidates for the implant surgery. Then, in a year or two, they can come back for the procedure," Belenke said.

The trip to the United States is a difficult undertaking for many of the parents. Some can afford the expense, others can't. Several Greek Orthodox churches over here are helping them out financially and with support after they arrive.

The Greek children arrive unexpectedly. The hospital often receives a call just a week or two before the child appears at the airport.

"They call, and often they don't even speak English. Luckily, we have some people at the hospital who speak Greek," Belenke said.

The visits don't always represent success stories. Many of the children aren't good candidates for the implant surgery. Some of the children don't need anything as drastic as surgery. In one case, Belenke recommended a different hearing aid for the child. He was wearing one that had been given to him and it didn't work.

"Even then, the parents were grateful," Belenke said. "They are desperate to help their children." To help the Greek families, Belenke doesn't charge for his services.

Belenke said that Greek medicine isn't really backward, but the hospitals and physicians lack equipment for many of the advanced tests performed in the United States. He said he would like to make a special trip to Greece, taking along his own equipment, to evaluate more of the children.

There is a political component to Greek medicine, Belenke said. About half the doctors in Greece were trained in the Soviet Union. The Soviet-trained doctors encourage their patients to travel to Moscow for specialized services.

"I saw advertisements telling people to come to Moscow," Belenke said. "I don't think they can do anything (in this field) that we can't, so I thought we ought to bring them to the United States."

The need for Belenke's specialty, pediatric otolaryngology, has grown with improvements in other specialties. Infants that once would have died, now survive, thanks to the skills of neonatologists. But often, the children have traumatized airways, because of the necessary tubes and breathing apparatus. This creates a need for an ear, nose and throat specialist who specializes in small children.

Belenke said he chose otolaryngology because of the variety of cases it presents.

"It's not just doing the same things over and over again," he said. "I haven't seen a child with AIDS yet, but I expect to."

Belenke lives in the Farms with his wife, Cassandra, and his three children, Jeremy, 15, Betsy, 8, and Mikey, 5.

Pointer of Interest

just little people. That's why we have children's hospitals."

Eighteen months ago, Belenke went to a medical meeting in Greece. Because of his success with the first Greek child, he was asked to take a look at several other children.

"I didn't expect so many," he said. "There were 15 or 20 profoundly deaf children. These were children who weren't being helped by hearing aids. Some were deaf since birth, others had had meningitis."

Belenke knew of a new technique that might help some of those children, however, it is still considered experimental and only a few medical centers in the United States are allowed to perform the operation on children.

Shellfish are an elegant source of nutrition

Shellfish contain generous amounts of all the essential amino acids which are needed to construct body proteins. A rich source of many minerals, seafood is nature's greatest source of iodine. However, the greatest source of calories in many seafood dishes is not in the seafood, but in the rich sauces.

Shellfish contains cholesterol and should be limited to one or two servings per week. If you are a seafood lover, you could possibly enjoy an extra shellfish meal by eliminating an egg from your weekly allowance.

Crab Stroganoff

A perfect delight to the eye ... and truly delicious eating. Crab Stroganoff served on green noodles, accompanied by broiled tomatoes, and a tossed green salad — what a dinner.

1 can (7-1/2 ounces) crab meat, drained
1 large onion, chopped fine
2 Tbsp. margarine
1/2 pound mushrooms, sliced
2 tsp. flour
1 cup plain yogurt
1/4 cup dry sherry, or to taste
1/4 tsp. salt, or to taste
1/8 tsp. pepper
Minced parsley
Hot cooked green noodles

Carefully remove all the cartilage from crab meat, keeping chunks as large as possible; set aside. Sauté onion in margarine in skillet over low heat until tender, about five minutes. Add mushrooms and cook for five minutes, stirring occasionally. Blend in flour, then add yogurt and stir until slightly thickened. Gently stir in crab meat and sherry, and heat. Season with salt and pepper. Add parsley. Serve over noodles. Serves four.

Calories per serving about 168. Cholesterol about 53. Three-quarters cup noodles 147 calories, no cholesterol.

Baked Shrimp

2 pounds medium shrimp
1/2 tsp. dried tarragon
1 Tbsp. dry white wine
Fresh ground pepper to taste
3 Tbsp. unsalted margarine

With sharp knife or kitchen shears split shells and shrimps down the back, almost but not quite through, butterflying them. Peel off body shells, leaving on tails. Devein shrimps. Arrange shrimps in single layer (some with tails up) in lightly oiled 10 to 12-inch round baking dish with 1-inch rim (fluted quiche dish is perfect). Sprinkle with tarragon mixture and pepper. Drizzle with melted margarine.

Bake in preheated 350-degree oven 10 minutes or just until tender. Excellent with brown rice and mushrooms and green salad. Serves eight.

Calories per serving about 140. Cholesterol about 125 mgs.

Lobster a la Marinara

4 frozen lobster tails
1 medium chopped onion
1 Tbsp. margarine
2 or 3 medium garlic cloves, minced or crushed
Few shreds of saffron
1 Tbsp. vinegar
1 Tbsp. soft bread crumbs in fine pieces
1/4 cup minced parsley
1/4 tsp. salt
1/2 cup dry sherry
1/2 cup water

Cut lobster tails into thirds with scissors and cut away undershell. Sauté onion and garlic in oil until soft but not brown. Add the lobster, vinegar, parsley and salt. Cover pan, cook for 3 minutes. Do not add liquid. Add bread crumbs, stir to absorb oil, add sherry and water. Simmer gently uncovered for 5 minutes. Lobster meat should be a clear, creamy white throughout, shell bright red. Makes four servings.

Calories per serving about 181. Cholesterol about 83 mgs.

Baked Scallops in the Shell

8 medium mushrooms
2 medium tomatoes
1 pound sea scallops, washed and well drained

1/4 tsp. salt
1/4 tsp. pepper
1/4 cup sherry
4 tsp. margarine
Minced parsley or fresh dill
1 lemon wedges

Preheat oven to 375 degrees. Wash and dry mushrooms; cut in half. Cut each tomato into six wedges.

Mound scallops in center of each of four scallop shells on individual baking dishes. Overlap four mushroom halves on one side of the scallops and three tomato wedges on the other side.

Sprinkle each with salt and pepper. Pour one tablespoon sherry over each. Top each with one teaspoon margarine. Sprinkle with parsley or dill.

Cover tightly with foil. Place shells on cookie sheet. Bake 25 minutes or until scallops are done. Remove foil and serve baked scallops to four with wedges of lemon.

Calories per serving about 277. Cholesterol about 53.

Rock Shrimp in Beer

2 quarts water
2 cans (12 oz. each) beer
2 Tbsp. chopped chives
1 Tbsp. basil
1 Tbsp. parsley flakes
1/2 tsp. celery salt
1/2 tsp. garlic powder
4 pounds cleaned rock shrimp
Melted margarine

Bring to a boil in a large kettle, water, beer, chives, basil, parsley flakes, celery salt and garlic powder. Drop in rock shrimp. Cook for 20 seconds. Drain and serve hot to eight with melted margarine.

Sports Week

Norsemen have all the right ingredients

I was freezing my tail off on the sidelines last Friday night, watching North win a Bi-County championship. The Norsemen were running and passing and scoring almost at will . . . but all I could think about was my mom's cherry pie.

One time, my mother baked a cherry pie. I remember that she took a lot of time with that pie, making sure that she used only the most perfect cherries, that the pie didn't burn and that the crust was just right. She presented the pie at dinner and everybody drooled appropriately. A bite or two later, we discovered the one thing my mom hadn't done right: she'd left out the sugar. It sure was a great-looking pie, but not much in the flavor department.

What does cherry pie have to do with football, you ask? Only that for both to be a success you have to have all the right ingredients. If not, a football season, like a sugarless-cherry pie, can be the pits.

Watching North disassemble what had been a pretty good football team — Clintondale — proved to me that North has all those ingredients this season. Pre-season prognosticators had North pegged as a young, aggressive and large football team. But North has played in the shadow of crosstown rival South for the past two seasons, going 7-2 last year and nearly making it into the playoffs the year before that . . . only to lose to South by 23 points on the last day of the season. Would this be another year the Norsemen wouldn't quite live up to their potential?

This year though, it was South which didn't get untracked until the third game of the year and North, which has swept by all opponents, seemingly, without even breaking a sweat. But that's not quite true.

One week before the Clintondale contest — the biggest game in North's 17-year history — the Norsemen lost Mike Miller. All the talented junior fullback had done this season was run circles around his opponents, racking up nearly 1,000 yards in 6½ games. Then midway through North's win over South Lake two weeks ago, Miller broke his collarbone and you could almost hear the anxiety build among North fans.

One week before the game which would decide a league champ and maybe win one of the teams a spot in the state playoffs and North loses its top runner not to mention one of its most respected and well-liked players. Panic time, right? Wrong. Not this year.

At a team meeting the Monday before the Clintondale game, coach Frank Sumbera sat the squad down and presented them with this idea: that the whole is bigger than the parts. The kids thought about that for a while and went out and had one of the most spirited practice weeks of the season.

On Friday night, they came out sky-high and before the Dragons knew it, North had built a 26-zip lead going into halftime.

What I wondered, standing there on the sideline shivering and thinking about cherry pies, was: what is it about this team that has made the difference? After all, Miller was such a big part of the offense yet in what was the most important game in North's history, even his obvious abilities were barely missed.

"Most teams would miss a guy like Miller. But the guys who opened the holes are still there. And if you've got good blockers — and North does — you've won half the battle," says South coach Russ Hepner.

But even that's not it.

"It's character. I've been saying it since we started this thing Aug. 12. These guys are intelligent, they love to play, they're willing to put the extra effort into everything they do, and they're physical, they love to hit. Add to that some great leadership . . . and we're able to do things that give us that tremendous advantage," says North's Sumbera. "But not without that character."

In other words, North's got a great mix of just what it takes to go out and win in high school football. And that's harder than it looks, no matter how weak North's region may be (and there's a big debate going on about that) or how many Class B teams the Norsemen face on their schedule.

It's just the sort of mix that South High has had for the past two seasons, and still has, judging from some recent victories. It's what enabled the Blue Devils to run off a string of 25 consecutive victories over two years and what has accounted for the Norsemen's current streak of 15 straight without a loss.

It's a combination that almost any prep coach would give a mint for: ability, intelligence, size, speed and a little bit of courage thrown in for good measure. It's what North has displayed this year and part of the reason the 1985 Norsemen will go down in the books as one great North High team no matter what the final outcome of the year is.

And hey, maybe they even know how to bake pies.

The 'Battle of Grosse Pointe' resumes

By Peggy O'Connor

Here we go again.

The annual "Battle of Grosse Pointe" is this Saturday and as usual, there's a lot more on the line for the varsity football teams at North and South than just the bragging rights to the city.

And, as usual, "THE" game will probably be less like a football game and more like a war. Which is exactly what the players, coaches and fans of the two teams have come to expect in the 17 years since the traditional rivalry began.

Actually, both teams have plenty to brag about . . . even before they play a down on Nov. 2. North enters the game undefeated, in possession of a league title and in great shape as far as the state high school play-offs are concerned. The Norsemen were the top-ranked team in their region this week, with the top four teams making the playoff cut.

Enroute to their perfect 8-0 mark, North has outscored opponents, 241-48. That's a scoring average of 30.8 points per game against the opponents' anemic 6 points per game. North has racked up 15 consecutive wins dating back to the third game of 1984 and including the last three games of this season: all shutouts.

South lost its first two contests this season before roaring back to take the next five of six. The Devils have given up more than nine points in a game only once and have outscored opponents, 88-67 through seven contests.

"I'm more concerned about Grosse Pointe South than I was about Clintondale," says North coach Frank Sumbera. "I knew that sizewise, we had the advantage over Clintondale. South is big and steady. And they're laying low after last season, waiting for a big ambush."

Last season, North shut out the 7-1 Blue Devils, 3-0, in overtime, to put an end to South's playoff hopes.

"I think it'll be a defensive struggle. They've got kids who can run, a defense that has come through for them. Face it, they're a blueprint of all Hepner teams. Intelligent and well-disciplined. "It'll be a war."

Which is why Sumbera has been cringing for weeks at the sight of the TV commercial promoting the upcoming television miniseries, "North vs. South." And why he won't have to worry about his players being "up" for this one.

"They've been thinking about it all year. I don't have to mention it at all. They are gentlemen, players who know what they have to do and go out and do it. That's what's been so good about this season."

WHAT'S BEEN so good about South High this season is that the Devils didn't give up after losing their first two games. A highly-rated Utica Eisenhower team beat South in the opener, 7-0, and a couple of deep passes let East Detroit surprise South in the second game, 25-0. Other than that, South has been just about perfect.

"Our perimeter is coming along well. We haven't gotten beaten deep since that East Detroit game," Hepner says.

"How can we beat North? We have to combat their size. They're big and people haven't been able to score on them. You can't run through them, that's for sure. And, we have to stop their running attack."

South surprised league-favorite Port Huron three weeks back and would like to do the same against unbeaten North this year. They've been concentrating on the league race for the past three weeks, but quarterback Tim Overbey, tight end Dave Arnold and tailback Don Berschback have peaked just in time for the North game, Hepner says.

And this Saturday's contest is more than just a game. There are a few marks sure to be broken in this one:

- The visiting team has won the game 10 out of 16 times.
- The two teams have each won 8 games.
- The largest margin of points was 23, the smallest was 3.
- No team has been shut out on its home field . . . and never twice in a row.
- North has only gone into the game undefeated once. And they went home losers, 36-21, in 1973.

So each team is equally motivated for the 1985 edition of THE game.

"There's a big difference between a team that finishes 5-4 and one that finishes 6-3. We're striving to make that difference up," Hepner says.

"Right now, we're hitting on all cylinders . . . couldn't come at a better time," Sumbera adds.

Racewalk championship is Nov. 2

The 1985 5K men's and women's state championship racewalk will be held this Saturday Nov. 2, at noon at the North High School track. Among last year's top finishers were Pointe area residents Jeanne Bocci, Kathy Wood and Elizabeth Kraft.

The championships are being held in Grosse Pointe because of the area's great interest in walking, organizers say. A number of clinics and walking classes hosted by the Assumption Cultural Center in St. Clair Shores and by the Grosse Pointe Continuing Education Program have been successful.

For the first time, a 2K Novice Walk will be held at the time of the championships. Beginning walkers are invited to participate.

Race director is Barb Otul, program director at the Assumption Cultural Center, which is sponsoring both the 5K and 2K walks this Saturday.

Further information or registration information may be obtained by calling the center at 779-6111.

Alpine ski clinic offered

The United States Ski Coaches Association (USSCA) and the United States Ski Team coaching staff will conduct an Alpine Skiing Program on Jan. 17, 18 and 19, 1986 at The Homestead in Glen Arbor. The clinics are open to all alpine skiers, coaches, competitors, interested parents, ski shop personnel and instructors and is designed to teach ski coaching and ski instructors the latest skiing techniques.

Information is available by calling the USSCA at (801) 649-9090 or by calling Peter Edwards, director of skiing at The Homestead, 616-334-3041, ext. 2142.

Big game, big score: Norsemen win title, 39-0

By Mark Moore
North High

North High, now 8-0 and ranked No. 7 in Class A, overpowered Clintondale, 39-0, to win the Bi-County title and set a school record in winning its 15th consecutive game, in what was the biggest contest in both schools' history.

The Norsemen opened the scoring on the first play of the second quarter on a 9-yard pass from Craig Como to Rob Olds. Como added the extra point. "In the beginning, both teams seemed shaky but the defense forced some turnovers and we were able to capitalize on them," Olds said.

North took over on the Clintondale 42 after a poor punt and scored seven plays later on a 3-yard run by Como, whose extra point try was blocked. North's defense again forced a punt, setting up a 47-yard drive which ended in a 4-yard scoring run by junior Dave Kopitzke. Kopitzke filled in for the injured Mike Miller. North failed on the two-point conversion attempt.

With just 55 seconds left in the half, North took over on its own 21. On the first play, Como and tailback Bill Smith combined on a 62-yard pass play. Two plays later, Como hit Jon Palazzo in the end zone on a 4-yarder and after the extra point, the Norsemen took a 26-0 lead into halftime.

Midway through the third quarter, North struck again on a 69-yard pass from Como to Olds, capping an 87-yard drive in five plays. Five minutes later, Palazzo recovered a fumble on a punt, setting up a 19-yard touchdown run by Smith. The extra point attempt failed and after a scoreless fourth quarter, North took home the shut-out win against a team which had until that night, allowed just 16 points in seven games.

Offensively, Kopitzke rushed for 75 yards in 15 carries, including one touchdown, and Smith ran for 85 yards and one score in 9 carries. Como was 10-for-16 for 233 yards and three touchdowns; he also ran for a touchdown.

North's defense played an excellent game, allowing only two first downs and 40 total yards of offense (17 passing and 23 on the ground). The Norsemen also recovered two fumbles. Palazzo's and one by Joey Craparrotta, who was filling in at cornerback.

Dave Justice led the team in tackles (11) followed by Greg Guest and cornerback Brian Francis (5-3). A win will assure the Norsemen of a state playoff berth and will clinch the team's first undefeated season in 12 years.

"South has the biggest defense we will face all season, but if we keep up the intensity, we'll do fine," said coach Sumner. Game time is 1 p.m.

The JV and freshman football teams did not fare as well against Clintondale. The JV fell, 42-12, on Oct. 24 and the frosh dropped a defensive battle to the Dragons, 6-0, on Oct. 23.

Freshman Chuck Schultz scored both JV touchdowns. Other bright spots for North were Danny Return and Jim DeYonker's outstanding game at cornerback. The 5-3 JV host crosstown rival South High at 4 p.m. today, Oct. 31. The freshmen were led by John Baal, who made 16 tackles against Clintondale. The frosh tackled South on Oct. 30 (after press time). (By Josh Abbott).

Vankers over No. 6

Victories over No. 6-ranked Ann Arbor Huron and Lake Shore raised North's girls' swim team's record to 6-0.

North squeaked out an 87-85 victory over an excellent Ann Arbor Huron team Oct. 21. Kathy Kish won three events and set a school record in the 100 butterfly. Sandy Smith and Helen Mikelic each won two events.

Two days later, North defeated Lake Shore, 122-49, winning nine of 11 races and sweeping the top three spots in six of the nine wins. Kish, Smith, Nora Brooks, Ellen Nelson, Camey Mader, Lynn Benson and Nancy Woods all won individual events.

North's girls qualify

North's girls' and boys' cross country squads won the Bi-County championship, competed in the regionals and qualified for state competition last week.

The girls ran away with the league title on Oct. 22, sweeping the top six spots and nine of the top 10. It was the Lady Norsemen's sixth straight league title and for the third straight year, Christy Drummy won the individual championship.

The boys defended their title the same day, edging Lakeview by three points. John Van Syckle took first for the second year in a row.

On Oct. 26, the girls finished third and the boys, second in the regional competition at Metro Beach. Both have qualified for the state finals on Nov. 2.

Sandy Smith finished eighth in the region, tops for North, and Drummy was 13th. The Lady Norsemen have reached the state meet every year in their seven years of competition and coach Charles Buhagiar says his girls are "hoping for a top 10 finish in the state." (By Josh Abbott)

Cagers sweep

North's girls' varsity basketball team won both of its games last week, raising its record to 4-2 in the league and 7-6 overall.

The Lady Norsemen beat Brablec, 33-30, on Oct. 22. "We had trouble scoring but we kept playing hard," said coach Gary Bennett. Missy Preston pulled down 13 rebounds, Barbie Locher chipped in with 11 points and 8 steals and Leslie Talos scored 8 points and had 10 rebounds.

The girls topped South Lake, 36-32, on Oct. 24. Preston led North with 10 points. Talos had 11 rebounds and Gina Grammatico had seven assists.

North travels to Clintondale today, Oct. 31.

The JV squad remained unbeaten with a pair of wins last week, topping Brablec, 60-10, on Oct. 22 and beating South Lake, 38-24, on Oct. 24.

North jumped out to a 29-4 advantage at halftime against Brablec and cruised to the win. Nicole Didur led all scorers with 14 points. Janet Dunlop and Amy Brennan had 11 and 10 points, respectively.

Against South Lake, North fell behind, 17-15, at halftime, but improved on defense the rest of the way. Monique Van Assche scored 15 points. Didur added 10 points and Brennan had 7.

The JV faces Clintondale Oct. 31.

North's girls' freshman basketball team raised its record to 12-2 with a pair of blow-outs last week. The frosh breezed by Fraser, 58-18, Oct. 22, rushing out to a 22-6 halftime lead and pouring it on in the second half with 24 points. Heather Mergos paced North with 15 points and 9 rebounds. Kris Salive added 12 points and 10 rebounds. Kelli Gianunzio had 8 steals.

The Lady Norsemen then bounced Anchor Bay, 59-24, as Gianunzio had 20 points and 6 steals. Lallura Chipped in with 13 points and Saira Bova added 10. Mergos played an excellent game, with 8 rebounds, 4 assists and 8 steals in addition to her 12 points.

Ski areas ready for '85 season

Michigan's public ski facility operators are banking on good weather and improvements to help continue a two-year upward trend in business, according to AAA Michigan.

Lift tickets sold last season at 26 facilities surveyed by the Michigan Travel Bureau were nearly 9 percent above the 1983-84 season and rose 37 percent over the 1982-83 season, which was plagued with below average snowfall and warm temperatures. If that trend continues, ski revenues could match or exceed the record $145 million collected during the 1978-79 season.

AAA Michigan's 1985-86 guide to downhill ski areas lists 51 facilities, four less than last year. Closed this year are Timberlee Mt. near Traverse City, Black Forest near Port Huron, Mt. Grampan in Oxford and Big Valley in Newberry. Lift ticket fees for weekend skiing range from $3 to $22 and average $12.66 per day at the 43 facilities reporting prices in AAA Michigan's pre-season survey. The price range was $2 to $20 last season.

One-third of Michigan's downhill public ski facility operators reported improvements for the upcoming year in a AAA Michigan pre-season survey. The $6.6 million in projects includes major renovation and expansion of ski facilities, but some of the projects are aimed at luring visitors throughout the year.

In southeast Michigan, $500,000 is being invested at Mt. Holly for a triple chair lift, improved snowmaking equipment and enlarged rest rooms. Riverview Highlands has invested $45,000 to improve snowmaking equipment, add a rental shop and for new equipment and expanding the ticket sale area.

Mt. Brighton has installed a 1,500-foot triple-chair lift to serve a recarved back bowl, regraded a 1,500-foot hill, created an outside ticket window, expanded the lodge and rental area and added rental skis and ski boots.

Pine Knob has redesigned a slope, added snow cannons and will open a year-round restaurant at the Clarkston facility. Milford's Alpine Valley has improved snowmaking capacity, expanded the lodge and added rental skis. Highland Recreation Area at Highland has added lighting for night skiing and has cut new trails.

Sports people

Albion College student-athlete Suzanne Carty, of Grosse Pointe, is a member of the 1985 Briton field hockey team. Carty, a junior, helped the Britons to a 4-5-3 record (5-8-3 overall) and a fourth place finish in the MIAA last year. She had one assist in MIAA league play last season.

single sculling competition in Boston, Mass., last week. Pfaendner, of the Detroit Boat Club's junior rowing team, was one of three DBC individual rowers who placed high in the competition. Former Olympic rower John Welchli finished third in his event and the Park's Olympian, Chris Richard, finished eighth in his, according to junior coach Chuck Kregler.

Skating benefit

The St. Clair Shores Figure Skating Club will sponsor a Las Vegas Night Friday, Nov. 8, at the St. Clair Shores Recreation Center, East Jefferson between 9 and 10 Mile roads. The event runs from 6:30 p.m. to 1 a.m.; admission is free.

Money raised will help defray the cost of ice for the St. Clair Shores Figure Skating Club skaters, some of whom are Grosse Pointe residents. The club is a non-profit organization.

Those championship smiles (below) belong to North High's Christy Drummy and John Van Syckle, who won the individual league championships for their cross country teams in North Bi-County team championship victory at Metro Beach last week. Drummy ran a 19:57 and Van Syckle, a 16:36, on a wet, muddy course. Sandy Smith was second for the girls and Adrian Weyhing was fourth for the boys. Drummy is a junior who has won the league title three times; Van Syckle, a junior, is a two-time champion.

'Jagged Edge' keeps viewers on edge

By Marian Trainor

The story has been told before: a young man without money marries a rich woman who makes a will leaving him in control of her fortune. It follows that when she is found murdered, the person who is most likely to benefit by her death is her husband.

With this basic plot, writer Joe Eszterhas and director Richard Marquand take off on a fearsome murder mystery that keeps the audience gasping and guessing as suspense and shock weaves in and out of the story at every turn.

The viewers' attention is grasped in the opening scenes as they witness a brutal murder of a young woman asleep in the bedroom of what the newspapers term a "summer retreat." The fact that the summer retreat somewhat resembles a mansion and is located in a megabucks area has nothing to do with the crime except to establish the fact that the victim is rich.

The crime is so brutal and nasty that it seems incongruous to think that the husband, Jack Forrester, played by Jeff Bridges, could have committed it. He is the ultimate of the personable, bright executive type. And while he did benefit by his wife's position (she owns the paper where he is editor), it is unanimously agreed that he was an asset to the paper and that it flourished under his direction.

The prosecutor, Thomas Krasny (Peter Coyote), is out to nail him because he has written some derogatory editorials about Krasny's questionable tenure as prosecutor.

Forrester is put through the usual preliminary interrogation concerning his marriage. Did he and his wife have arguments? Did he cheat on her? Was she contemplating divorce? Nothing damaging surfaces until an attendant at the country club comes up with a wicked jagged-edge hunting knife that he claims was found in Forrester's locker.

Teddy Barnes (Glenn Close), a dynamite-looking lawyer who once was an assistant prosecutor but now is a corporation lawyer and wants nothing to do with criminal law, is persuaded to take the case.

Teddy and Krasny are at odds to begin with because she blames him for a miscarriage of justice in a case she worked on while she was assistant D.A.

Adding to the situation, she and Forrester are attracted to each other and become romantically involved.

A little levity is injected into these tangled affairs by a rough and tumble but shrewd private investigator, Sam Ransom (Robert Loggia), who works with Teddy on that case.

The stage is set and the trial begins. The locker room attendant swears that he found the knife in Forrester's locker. Surprise witnesses show up. One is a brassy, well-dressed matron who says that Forrester's wife told her that she was planning to divorce him. Another attractive witness claims to have had an affair with Forrester. A loud-mouth tennis pro goes into detail concerning his seduction of the victim and so on.

Forrester's case begins to look bad and even worse when Teddy gets the idea from the testimony that he is a manipulator and has been using her to win his case.

But all is not lost and it is really worth a trip to the theater to see how it all comes out.

It was definitely a media event last Thursday as dozens of beagles and beagle look-alikes appeared at the Michigan Opera Theatre offices to audition for a part in the company's upcoming production of von Flotow's romantic comedy "Martha." No previous stage experience was required and none seemed to be evident as the happy hounds and their owners did their stuff for theater officials, TV and newspaper cameras and each other. Soprano Sharon Cristman seems to be enjoying her equal billing with a four-legged ham with a cold nose.

'Marie' lacks energy, heart

By Marian Trainor

"Marie" is based on a true story about Marie Raghianti, who single-handedly exposed high-level corruption in Tennessee and brought about an investigation that ended in jail terms for the governor of Tennessee and his aide.

It is adapted from a book by Peter Maas, "Marie a True Story." Although the book had all the ingredients needed to produce a tension-packed drama, the film lacks energy.

"Marie," as played by Sissy Spacek, is appealing but she is almost too perfect to be viewed as a real-life human.

As the mother of three children who is willing to sacrifice her hard-earned government position in the cause of justice, she never arouses our indignation or even sympathy for her ordeals. Perhaps it's because she accepts them so calmly. There are incidents where loss of control and rage are called for, but our heroine never raises her voice.

When we first meet Marie, she is being thrown out of the house by her husband because she has refused to keep the beer coming for him and his friends who are gathered around the kitchen table. Convinced that escape from her marriage is the only salvation for herself and her three children, she packs up and moves in with her invalid mother.

Working as a barmaid by night and attending classes at the university by day, she graduates 10 years later with a double major.

A former classmate, Eddie Sisk (Jeff Daniels), who is an aide to Gov. Ray Blanton (Don Hood) is impressed with her diligence. He gives her a job as extradition officer for the state of Tennessee and later as a chairman of the Board of Pardons and Paroles.

Marie makes the mistake of approaching her job with the attitude that justice is dispensed according to the facts presented. What she doesn't know is that justice has more to do with the amount of money paid to those in power. She is outraged and resolves to set matters straight.

Marie is supported in her resolve by her friend, Kevin MacCormack (Keith Szarabajka), who urges her to go through with her expose. As an inspiration he quotes: "Evil flourishes when good men do nothing."

Looking for all the help she can get, Marie relays information to the FBI. In an effort to save face and direct attention away from himself to Marie, Gov. Blanton, in a pompous statement to the press, announces her dismissal citing all sorts of trumped-up charges.

Although Marie knows the opposition has the power to humiliate and destroy her, she decides to sue to get her job back.

She finds that it is not easy. People in high places know how to fight and how to hurt. She is followed in a car bent on running her off the road, her records disappear, former associates avoid her, police give her a hard time and her friend Kevin, who has managed to get his hands on some damaging evidence, is murdered.

She hires Fred Thompson, (played by himself). He was chief minority counsel of the Senate Watergate Committee.

Thompson is spectacular in his role. The courtroom scenes are some of the best in the film.

Marie is an interesting film but not an entertaining one. Sissy Spacek is an accomplished actress and she is supported by an excellent cast. But the sequences move too fast. Marie's rise from an impoverished unknown to one of the highest-ranked state jobs is too swift. We would have liked to get to know her better in her struggling years. We only have glimpses of her with her family although we know they were an important part of her life. Her reaction to the terrible death of a friend who had given up his job and his life to help her, should have called forth a more intense reaction than concern for her own safety.

The story line is great. The cast is excellent, but the film lacks heart and as a result, empathy.

Tuesday Musicale to present 'heavenly' concert with seven harps

On Tuesday, Nov. 12, at 10:30 a.m., at the Detroit Community Music School, Boughton Hall, the Tuesday Musicale will present a harp concert celebrating the 100th birthday of harp composer Carlos Salzedo and the centennial year of the Tuesday Musicale. The concert is open to the public with no admission charge.

Playing will be seven harpists of a level of skill seldom seen performing together on any stage. Rounding out the program will be soprano Ernestine Nimmons and piano accompanist Fontaine Laing.

The program will include works by Ravel, Salzedo and Bach.

Salzedo was born in Arcachon, France, April 6, 1885. He died in Waterville, Maine, in 1961.

At the time Salzedo entered the music world, the harp was held in low regard by most composers and musicians. "Finding a harp in an orchestra is a little like finding a hair in your soup," composer Carl Nielson is reported to have said.

Salzedo embraced the instrument and changed musical history. He was a prolific composer, writing for voice and chamber instruments, conducting, teaching, playing chamber music and teaching untold hundreds of students who went on to solo careers and to populate the leading symphony orchestras everywhere. He made innovations in both the appearance of the harp, redesigning its contours, and in the way it was played, that revolutionized its techniques and its acceptance as far more than a decorative instrument.

"The harp is in my opinion the least understood instrument," conductor Leopold Stokowski once said. "Even the greatest geniuses in music have not understood that instrument. They write for it as if it were a piano. It's a totally different kind of instrument. Therefore, what they write doesn't sound at all natural to the harp. Sometimes, it's even impossible to play it. Salzedo was the first and the only composer in the world who knew how to compose for the harp according to its true nature."

Salzedo had a special connection with the Tuesday Musicale concert group. One of the pieces to be played is "For Elyse Introspection," written specifically for Elyse Ilku, who will play it in the concert.

Ilku has been principal harpist for the Detroit Symphony Orchestra since 1958. She is a graduate of the Curtis Institute of Music in Philadelphia and also studied under Salzedo himself. She has also studied at the Tanglewood summer Music Festival in Massachusetts.

During her career, Ilku has played principal harp with the New Orleans Symphony and the Philadelphia Orchestra. She once had a weekly radio show on TransCanada and has appeared on national television with Frank Sinatra, Paul Whiteman and Ed Sullivan.

Ilku has been principal harpist directors as Leopold Stokowski, Sir Thomas Beecham, Paul Paray, Pierre Monteaux, Antal Dorati and Seiji Ozawa. She has taught at the University of Michigan, Oakland University, Wayne State University and the Salzedo Harp Colony of America in Camden, Maine.

Joining Ilku in the performance will be six other distinguished harpists. Christa Grix, a member of the Tuesday Musicale, has a bachelor's degree from Michigan State University. She has studied under Velma Froude, a student of Salzedo. She continued her education at the Tanglewood Institute and Boston University, where she earned her master's degree. She has also studied under Lucile Lawrence.

In 1983, Grix was invited to Halifax, Nova Scotia as a Young Artist for the Scotia Chamber Music Festival. She is on the music faculty of Mercy High School in Farmington Hills and Detroit Waldorf School. She is the harpist for the Birmingham-Bloomfield Symphony and performs in the Detroit area.

Jane Rosenson is the second harpist for the Detroit Symphony. She was first introduced to the harp by her mother, a music teacher and harpist with the Saginaw Symphony. She has earned both bachelor's and master's of music degrees and has studied under Ruth Clark and Elyse Ilku. She is an active freelance harpist and chamber recitalist.

Patricia Terry-Ross is another student of Velma Froude. She holds both bachelor's and master's of music degrees from the University of Michigan. A graduate of Cass Tech, she did additional graduate harp work with Lucile Lawrence at Tanglewood Institute. Currently, she is the harp, piano and vocal instructor at Cass Tech and an instructor of harp at Wayne State University. She is the principal harpist for the Michigan Opera Theatre, the Dearborn Symphony and the Michigan Chamber Orchestra.

Suzann Young-Davids has come from Indiana to perform in the concert. She is a graduate of Oberlin Conservatory, where she studied under Lucy Lewis. She studied with Carlos Salzedo from 1953 until his death in 1961. She has performed with the Denver Symphony Orchestra, the American Ballet Theater and many other groups. Young-Davids has taught master classes in Los Angeles, Milwaukee and in Central and South America. She is currently on the faculties of University of Indiana at South Bend and Notre Dame University.

Ellen Grafius was another student of Velma Froude at Cass Tech. She earned her bachelor's degree at Michigan State and is currently an active performer and teacher in the Lansing area. She plays second harp with the Greater Lansing Symphony.

Karolyn Verble is a recent graduate of Cass Tech. She has studied at Oberlin Conservatory and is currently a student at Wayne State University, studying under Terry-Ross. She has performed with the Macomb Symphony, the Dearborn Civic Theatre, the International Youth Symphony and the Detroit Metropolitan Orchestra. She has been solo harpist at the Lansdowne Restaurant in Detroit.

The Tuesday Musicale was formed in 1885 by a group of 12 women who wanted to hone their musical skills by playing for each other. Today, 100 years later, it has members from throughout the Detroit area. Active members are performers and must audition for membership. Associate members perform support activities. The group puts on two concerts a month on alternate Tuesdays. Many internationally famous artists have started out in Tuesday Musicale or its Youth League.

"I think this is a wonderful group," said active member Johanna Gilbert, a vocalist. "It's networking. The women in this group are concerned about helping mothers and housewives keep their skills performance-ready."

The self-centered actor-hero is played by Carl Schurr, a native of Port Huron and executive director of Pennsylvania's Totem House Playhouse. Broadway, television and movie actress Jane Lowry will portray the actor's understanding ex-wife.

Israel: yesterday, today

No other nation in the modern world has sparked more controversy, passion and criticism than Israel. Home not only to the Jews, but Christians and Moslems alike, this tiny Mediterranean land remains a tourist center as well as a shrine to members of many religious faiths. Israel is sustained by four seas: the Mediterranean, the Galilee, the Red Sea and the Dead Sea, but the Israelis must still fight to conquer the desert.

A filmed presentation, narrated live from the stage by its producer, Clay Francisco, will show how Israelis live today, both in modern cities such as Haifa and Tel Aviv, and on the communes in the desert on Sunday, Nov. 3, at 2:30 p.m. in the auditorium/theatre of The Detroit Institute of Arts as part of the World Adventure Series season.

Tickets are $4 at the door, or in advance by calling The Detroit Institute of Arts Ticket Office at 832-2730 during business hours. The "Grandparents Ticket Plan" remains in effect; buy one ticket at regular price, and be allowed to purchase up to four tickets at $1 each for grandchildren up to 18 years of age.

Soloists are Karl Heinz Multhaup and John Leffield. The German-American Cultural Center Band will accompany the chorus and play for dancing after the concert.

REPORT TO ADVERTISERS:

Ver-i-fi-ca-tion

(ver-ə-fə-'kā-shen) n. act or process of establishing the truth.

It is essential for a newspaper to stand up to independent verification of its reporting practices, and its circulation claims. The trust of readers and advertisers is vital to the newspaper's success.

To ensure the truth and accuracy of our circulation claims, we open our records to a periodic inspection by a specially-trained field auditor from the Audit Bureau of Circulations, the world's oldest—and largest—circulation auditing organization.

The resulting report is an open book; an objective reporting of facts and figures you can trust. Facts upon which you can confidently make your advertising decisions.

Before you buy any advertising, ask to see a copy of the latest ABC Audit Report. We'll be glad to show you ours.
