Two saved by passerby

There was almost another tragedy Sunday night at the lake.

Paul Ashley and his wife, who live on Hampton, were walking down to the water in the early evening. They saw a couple sitting on the grass about 50 yards from the yacht club with their two daughters.

Then everything happened too fast. One of the little girls slipped and fell into the water and her father jumped in after her. The mother and the other child became hysterical.

Ashley ran to the water's edge, knelt and rescued the child from her father. He then grabbed the arm of the terror-stricken man who was unable to hang on to the edge and pulled him out. "There's nothing to grab on there — it's like a piece of teflon for a hundred yards or so," Ashley said.

All he could think of, he said, was the Woods man who drowned there the week before and how easily it could happen.

Thanks to Sheila Knoche for calling in this story. There's a family out there who was extremely fortunate Paul Ashley was passing by at the right moment.

Hot under the collar...

...are Farms residents on Chalfonte and Meadow Lane.

The Meadow Lane contingent has been complaining to council about the condition of their pavement. They succeeded in getting some temporary patches. Now the temporary patches "stick more to your car than they do to the road."

But, be patient, folks, the city is "trying" to get you put on the list for repaving next year. Perhaps the cars won't rust where the tar sticks.

Meanwhile, John Mohnach drowned out council proceedings with a tape recording of the city pumphouse as heard from his house across Chalfonte. He's been complaining about that for years, he says, but the city told him to fix it himself.

"They said, 'You're handy, you do something about it,'" he said.

Since the repair in question is the replacement of steel doors on the inside of the pumphouse, Mohnach hasn't listened to his expertise. So he listened to the music of the pumps.

Where the @!* is it?

It is to be hoped that by now everyone has figured out how to get into the Farms municipal parking lot. Last Thursday when the old entrance was blocked off without warning, there was considerable muttering amongst the commuters.

Contrary to popular opinion, the double-lane newly asphalted driveway from Muir Road is not a private improvement for Cottage Hospital employees. It is the official way in, however unobtrusive it may be.

Even the most diehard anti-progress types would have to agree that the new entrance is an improvement safety-wise. Trying to exit onto that curve on Kercheval was hair-raising at times.

But it would be even nicer if it were marked. The parking sign on Muir doesn't do much good for a driver on Kercheval, who sees nothing except an unattainable parking lot behind the cyclone fence.

Let's hear it for a P sign on the corner of Kercheval.

Farms union blasts city administration

By Nancy Parmenter

The entire Grosse Pointe Farms city administration — with one exception — took a lambasting from an employees' union at a closed council session July 14. Angry union officials had twice asked for a hearing during an open meeting, but were refused.

City Clerk Richard Solak was the only administration member to escape unscathed. "Your efforts, and your efforts alone, are the only reason there is any communication between the city and its employees," union secretary Greg Olcenik said he told Solak in front of the council. Olcenik added, "He's the only one who's worth a damn."

Olcenik said the union's executive committee, representing the Farms local of the American Federation of Federal, State, County and Municipal Employees, charged City Manager Andrew Bremer, city Comptroller/Assessor/Assistant Manager Carrol Lock and various department heads with being unresponsive, retaliatory and discriminatory in their dealings with city employees.

City council members were reluctant to discuss events which occurred in closed session. Several acknowledged hearing out the charges and indicated they would look into them.

"We don't know what will come of it," said Councilman Bruce Rockwell. "(The meeting) was a lot more productive than entering into a two-sided discussion." He indicated that an argument in an open meeting would have been useless before the council had an opportunity to consider the charges.

Mayor Pro Tem Joseph Fromm said, "It's premature to comment because we have to sort out what's fact and what's fiction. That's our first priority."

Olcenik said he, as spokesman for the executive committee, asked the council if it condones the actions of the administration regardless of their consequences. "How many lawsuits have to be filed?" he asked. He said there is a thick file folder of suits filed during the 1980s by employees and residents. Olcenik, a Grosse Pointe Woods resident, is a former Farms employee currently contesting what he calls an unlawful dismissal by the city.

There are "two sets of rules" operating in the Farms, Olcenik said. Rules restricting personal use of office telephones and the conducting of personal business on city time are ignored for the upper levels of management, he said.

City Manager Andrew Bremer can never be reached by employees, residents or the press, Olcenik said. When he is available, he refers matters to someone else.

Employee morale is low, he charged, because problems are never addressed and employees who complain are harassed. People who file grievances are told "we don't need this around here," Olcenik said.

Olcenik said the union executive committee was doing more than blowing off steam. The group requested assistance from the city council in the form of quarterly meetings to discuss problems and to make the city administration accountable for its actions.

The union first tried to be heard at the June council meeting. They were not on the agenda, but asked to make a statement during the "other business" segment, when residents often appear with questions and complaints.

Mayor James Dingeman refused their request on the grounds that the matters were better handled in closed session. Early this month, Olcenik received a letter from the city attorney to the same effect, he said.

Park man convicted of fraud

A Grosse Pointe chiropractor was found guilty July 10 on 39 counts of mail fraud involving fraudulent billings of more than $300,000 to Blue Cross-Blue Shield of Michigan and to Medicare.

Dr. Alan Klein of Grosse Pointe Park was found guilty after a three-day trial in Federal District Court before Judge Horace Gilmore. He had been charged with 40 counts of mail fraud, a federal offense. One count was dismissed for lack of a witness, according to Gilmore's clerk.

Klein, 30, could receive a maximum sentence of five years and/or a $250,000 fine on each of the 39 counts. Sentencing has not been set.

"This is not a case of overutilization," where a doctor pads the bill with additional services not rendered, said Assistant U.S. Attorney Blondell L. Morey. "It's more blatant. These patients had never been to his office."

... These patients had never been to his office.

— Assistant U.S. Attorney

Investigators from the U.S. Attorney's office, the U.S. Postal Inspector, the Inspector General's Office for Health and Human Services and the Blue Cross investigative unit worked on the case, which covered a three-year period from 1982 to 1985, according to Ruth Cain, a spokeswoman for Blue Cross.

The prosecution was not able to establish how Klein obtained the information necessary to file the fraudulent billings. Normally, a doctor gets the data from the patient's insurance card. Information such as the insurance group number, contract number (the same as the individual's Social Security number) and the type of coverage is required for the billing form.

Blue Cross is still looking into Klein's methods, Cain said. She dismissed as unlikely the possibility that Klein had tapped into the company's computer system, which has "good safeguards."

The first indication that Klein had committed fraud came from the anti-fraud hotline at Blue Cross, company officials said. Subscribers began to receive Explanation of Benefits forms showing X-rays and other chiropractic services rendered by Klein. None of the more than 100 subscribers who phoned in knew Klein or had received any services from him.

The trial consisted of a "parade of witnesses" saying they had never heard of Klein, according to Gilmore's clerk. The jury deliberated for one afternoon before finding Klein guilty.

Defense attorney David Griem declined to comment on the case, except to say that he and Klein would decide this week whether to file an appeal.

Park's Ortisi to retire, new comptroller named

By Pat Paholsky

Nunzio Ortisi, city clerk/comptroller for the Park for 28 years, will retire next month, it was revealed at the council meeting Monday night.

Officials were not caught unaware, however. Ortisi has been trying to retire for the past 18 months, Mayor Palmer Heenan said. "We've really been persuading him to stay. If ever there was a man who's indispensable, it's Mr. Ortisi."

Heenan formed a committee earlier this year consisting of himself and council members Vern Ausherman and Carroll Evola to find a replacement, who was appointed by Heenan and approved by the council Monday night.

Dale Krajniak, the city clerk/comptroller at Harbor Springs, will begin his new position in mid-August. Ortisi will stay until Aug. 25.

Krajniak is a certified public accountant, who earned his degree from Walsh College. He is experienced with computers and fund accounting, Heenan said.

"There are not many CPAs who are comptrollers and this is what we were aiming for," he said. "He's young and we're very pleased with him."

Krajniak was born in Alpena. He was a senior accountant with Hill, Woodcock & Schroeder, which audited the city of Harbor Springs before he was hired there. He served the last three years as clerk and comptroller for the resort community of 1,600 whose population triples in the summer months.

He and his wife Sue, who is originally from Roseville, have two pre-school children.

"It was a tough choice," he said. "I love living in Harbor Springs, but it's a nice opportunity."

The council chose to split the positions held by Ortisi. Krajniak was appointed city comptroller and Pam Kondziolka was named city clerk. She has worked for the city for 7½ years, starting as an administrative assistant and more recently, as city treasurer.

She and her husband David and two children live in Centerline. She will assume her new post Aug. 25.

Club-wielding man attacks 3

By Nancy Parmenter

The attacker of three people in the wee hours of Saturday morning has eluded Farms police. The victims described a tall, thin black man with short hair, wielding some sort of weapon, perhaps a small club.

"What frustrates me is that my guys looked up and down the byways and alleys and couldn't find him," said Farms Detective Earl Field.

During the night of July 11-12, the man apparently waylaid three people in alleys behind Mack Avenue, seizing them around the neck and hitting them with the club, in an effort to steal money and cars. One victim was injured enough to require hospitalization.

It is not clear whether he was working alone. After a high-speed chase July 12, police arrested a man who may have been the attacker's companion.

"We'd be foolish if we weren't looking into that," said Police Chief Robert Ferber.

At 10 p.m. Friday, the man attacked a Traverse City woman, 21, as she walked toward her car, which was parked behind a Mack Avenue business. He grabbed at her purse by the strap and hit her on the head when she refused to let go.

When several customers came out of the business next door, he let go and ran down the alley. The woman was taken to St. John Hospital for treatment of a head wound.

Half an hour later and several blocks away, a Woods woman, 23, was walking toward her car, also parked in an alley, when a man approached her, saying, "Come here, someone is robbing the cleaners."

She told police that she was suspicious and tried to go back to the building, where she worked. The man grabbed her and threatened to shoot. She resisted, according to the report, and was knocked to the ground.

The man seized her purse, containing identification papers, credit cards and $40, and ran down the alley, pursued by her employer, who had come out of the building. The man was last seen running between houses on Madison.

At that point, police put out an area-wide broadcast and began to comb the alleys.

Just before 4 a.m., the man resurfaced. A Park man, 40, left his business and was attacked when he got into the car.

The man was in the back seat. He had apparently unscrewed the interior light, according to the reports.

He grabbed the Park man by the throat and threatened to kill him. The two struggled in the car. The Park man escaped from the front seat and ran from the alley.

The attacker caught up with him on Mack and demanded his car keys, holding his hand inside his jacket as if he had a gun, the report stated. At about the same time, a passing car stopped and the Park man threw his car keys at his assailant, who ran back into the alley to get the car.

French mesdemoiselles

These two young women added flavor to the French Market held at the War Memorial over the weekend by walking around in authentic costumes of a specific region. Caroline deFauw, at the left, of Grosse Pointe Park, is wearing the dress of Provence in which her headdress signifies that she is a young lady. Her shawl is pleated by hand and held together by straight pins, from which the French regional expression, "to be pulled together by your four pins," means to be neat. Cecile Herodote's costume of Nice shows the influence of Italian culture. Her headdress, an embroidered straw hat, rests on her back. Cecile, a Woods resident, will enter North High as a freshman this September, and Caroline, also a freshman, will attend South. More pictures are on Page 15A.

Scallen is judge candidate

Assistant Wayne County Prosecutor Timothy C. Scallen announced his candidacy for judge of the Wayne County Circuit Court. Scallen, 35, has filed nominating petitions for the Aug. 5 primary election to fill one of the three non-partisan non-incumbent judicial positions.

As an assistant prosecutor for the past 10 years, Scallen has had a variety of experience. After one year of pretrial experience, he was assigned to the appellate section for three years. His appellate experience included arguing cases before the Michigan Court of Appeals and the Michigan Supreme Court.

Timothy C. Scallen

He has prosecuted criminal cases on a daily basis in Record-ers Court for five years. He is currently supervising the entire criminal final conference docket in Wayne County Circuit Court. Previously, he was a law clerk and attorney with the law firm of Plunkett, Cooney, Rutt, Watters, Stanczyk and Pedersen.

A graduate of the University of Detroit Law School in 1976, he was admitted that same year to practice law by the state bar of Michigan.

A lifelong resident of Wayne County, he is continuing the tradition of public service which began with his grandfather, Judge John P. Scallen, who served as a Record-ers Court judge for 36 years.

Scallen resides in Grosse Pointe with his wife and three children.

Computer stolen from South High

Computers were again the target when Grosse Pointe South High School was broken into July 9. A custodian reporting for work in the morning found the office of the secretary to the principal ransacked and an IBM keyboard, disks and disk drive missing. Computer equipment was also taken, but abandoned outside the building, in a June break-in.

The doors were locked, but a window in the assistant principal's office was ajar, Farms police reports stated. A mailing scale was found outside the window and papers were scattered on the floor. Principal Edward Shine's desk had been rifled and files thrown on the floor.

Police theorize that the thief or thieves left through a window in the medical clinic. The window was left open and medicine jars on the counter were knocked over.

Police continue to investigate the case.

Lake level

Lake St. Clair, at the end of June was at elevation 576.56 feet or 58 inches above chart datum. This was about six inches above one year ago, and the June monthly mean of 576.53 feet was 31 inches above its long-term average for June. The Great Lakes forecast shows that Lake St. Clair is expected to be 57 inches above chart datum or at elevation 576.46 feet at the end of July.

Volunteers help keep hospitals running smoothly

By Peter A. Salinas

Hospital officials admit they would be hard put to carry on day-to-day operations without them. They can be found in nearly every corner of the facility — usually bringing a smile to a patient or an employee.

Most of the adult volunteers at hospitals in the area say they get far more out of their efforts than they put in, which has to be a lot, since some of them have put in more than 10,000 hours of service.

Virginia Sheehan has been a volunteer at St. John Hospital for 12 years. She works in the hospital's volunteer office, helping with the paperwork and organizing schedules.

"It helps the circulation," Sheehan, a Farms resident, said with a smile. "When people get older they tend to settle down. Keeping moving helps the circulation. Sometimes when I come in, I ask if there is anything that has to go somewhere, just so I can get some walking in. Sitting around is no good."

That is one of the sentiments that the volunteers reiterate most often. They want to keep busy — hospitals afford them that opportunity many times over.

Evelyn Skinner, 72, of the Farms has been a volunteer at Cottage Hospital for 17 years. She works in the hospital's gift store where she puts in about five hours every other week.

"The old cliché about getting more out of it than you put in is really true," she said. "It really is."

Cottage Hospital's auxiliary is run by a board, and there are a number of divisions — such as the gift shop — within the auxiliary.

All the proceeds from the gift shop go to the hospital. The auxiliary also sponsors the Cottage Hospital Fun Run. Money raised from the event also goes to the hospital.

"Over the years I've done other things," Skinner said, "but there are so many nice people I know here."

The volunteers often lunch together at the hospital. The bond between volunteers is very tight.

Kathleen Maslanka, director of public relations at Cottage, said the work volunteers do at the hospital is an essential area of patient care.

"We have over 300 active volunteers," Maslanka said. "I am always impressed that these people who could get paying jobs if they wanted, come here just to give of themselves. They are mostly retired, have had very respectable jobs and have good skills and qualifications."

At Cottage those skills are put to use at a variety of duties. The volunteers handle the in-house mail delivery, deliver flowers, take a gift shop cart around to patients, take part in a patient representative program, operate the gift shop, work in the surgical lounge — and are literally found on every floor of the hospital.

Maslanka said that volunteers are very comforting in the surgical lounge.

"For the most part, our volunteers are mature adults," she said. "They, at one time or another, have been through it before. They are very empathetic."

Bon Secours' volunteer service department uses volunteers to add to the services of its employees. There are about 60 various jobs volunteers can take on at the hospital.

One of at least six husband and wife volunteer teams at St. John Hospital, Dick White, 71, and wife Berniece, 69, work in the stock room of the hospital's large gift store.

Volunteers man the front desk, and there is a smile for everyone who enters the hospital.

"We're on the front lines and are always under fire," joked Harold "Jake" Jakes, 73, of the Farms. Jake is a patient visitor escort. He wheels patients into the hospital and takes them wherever they have to go.

"I say for a retiree who is looking to fill in his days — looking for something to do — this is it," Jakes said.

But all of the volunteers aren't senior citizens. All three local hospitals have a junior volunteer program, which promotes volunteerism for teens.

Dan Lloyd, 15, of Detroit said he likes offering his services to the community. He is proud of his bright red volunteer jacket supplied him by Bon Secours.

"I transport patients, pass out water, make beds, help nurses when possible and do a whole variety of chores," Lloyd said.

"There are a lot of things I could be doing, but it's just built into me — I want to help."

A strong desire to help is a frequent theme among volunteers, and for Monica Grady, 15, of the Farms, that desire may one day become a career.

She has been a junior volunteer at St. John for just two weeks.

"We had to have a week of training," she said, while working on the hospital's pediatrics floor. "I like to help out, and I'm interested in pursuing the profession. I like the challenge. The kids have a lot of energy."

Amy Hey, 14, of Detroit, who works on the same floor as Grady, said she also likes working with children.

"Most of my summer is spent babysitting anyway," she said. "We make beds, feed patients, distribute water and deliver flowers. The part I like best is when we help discharge patients."

Laverne Finn, who'll turn 72 years old today, has worked at Bon Secours for 14½ years as a volunteer.

She makes many of the same statements junior volunteers make. She likes working with people and visits them often in their rooms.

"I deliver bingo prizes and puppets," she said. "On Fridays I take some 60 magazines to the lounges and on Saturday I answer the phones at the social work desk."

At Bon Secours the fundraising volunteers and the service volunteers are kept separate — although there is a great number of volunteers who work in both areas.

the Men's Guild, raised $608,000 for the hospital.

With those sizeable donations, the hospital is able to provide many services for its patients it would not otherwise be able to.

Fontbonne is well known in the community for its efforts. It holds an annual Christmas Ball, the Fontbonne Fair and puts together and sells cookbooks. The Men's Guild holds a famous stag dinner, and between the two organizations, the hospital's building fund finds some generous donations. Many of the hospital volunteers belong to the auxiliaries.

Barbara Bartley, 66, of the Woods, says she has always wanted to work as a volunteer. She has done that and then some.

"I just wanted to come here because it was a good thing to do," she said. "I started working four hours a week. Now I am working 30 to 40 hours a week in the gift shop and in the shop's office."

"Being with everyone and doing the work gives me a feeling of accomplishment. It leaves me with a good feeling. I can say that the rest of my life will revolve around coming into work here. I miss not working on Friday, because then you have to wait all the way to Monday before coming in again. It helps break up the long weekend."

Dick and Berniece White, of the Woods have been volunteering at St. John for four years. Berniece is a retired registered nurse from St. John, and always thought when she retired she would come back to the hospital.

Why did her husband volunteer? "Because my wife volunteered for me," he laughed.

He said that he likes working with his wife, and they take great pride in the storeroom work they do for the St. John Gift Shop. Berniece said that unless she could find something the two of them could do together, they wouldn't be at the hospital.

"Once we retired, even going to

Cottage Hospital buys school lot

The Grosse Pointe public school system has one less parking lot as of Monday night.

The Board of Education accepted a bid from Cottage Hospital of Grosse Pointe to purchase the lot for $118,000, near the market value of the property.

The lot is currently leased to the Farms for its use as a permit-parking lot. The school system began soliciting bids for the sale of the lots late last year.

Some of the hospital's employee parking was eliminated when the Farms moved the entrance to its municipal lot behind Hill businesses as part of Peter Bologna's development project at the corner of Muir and Kercheval.

The system decided to accept the hospital's bid for the property, which is located next to Messner Field, because the hospital will continue to operate the lot as a parking facility, the offer made was about the market value of the property and the property will now return to the tax rolls, Superintendent John Whritner said.

Responding to a question from trustee Carl Anderson, Whritner said the money from the sale will go into the general fund, but may be designated, by board action, for projects or other accounts.

The board decided to sell off the Messner Field lot and another it owns — behind Kroger's in Grosse Pointe City — last year. Both city governments were contacted about their interest in the properties, which they lease from the school system under agreements that lapsed years ago.

City officials, as of July 1, remained unsure whether they would buy the Kroger property, Whritner told the board.

Trustee Joan Hanpeter said the board "has been more than generous in its allotment of time" to the City and should begin entertaining bids from other concerns.

Park submits proposal to merged department

Officers in the fledgling public safety department in the Park are looking over the first contract proposed by the city. They received it July 10.

The union, which has asked for time to study it, will submit its proposal Aug. 7, City Manager John Crawford said. Until then, it's not known how close or far apart both sides are in the first-time negotiations.

The city is proposing a one-year contract to expire June 30, 1987. Crawford said he hopes an agreement will be reached within the next six months.

Some old business was tied up Monday night when the council, following a closed meeting, voted to approve a one-year contract for firefighters retroactive to July 1, 1985. The firefighters had been working without a contract for a year.

The merged departments are now represented by the Fraternal Order of Police, the union that has represented Park police officers. Public Safety Director Richard Caretti is in the process of interviewing firefighters currently on staff for public safety positions. He said about seven men have been scheduled to take the test for the police academy later this month.

Firefighting equipment has been ordered, Caretti said. "Each day we designate one or two officers on patrol as fire supporters," he said. "When a fire run comes over, they will respond instantly to the fire."

Four police officers are currently in emergency medical technician training, Caretti added. The course will take three weeks and will include working in a hospital and at an EMS station.

When the officers complete the course, they will have to pass a test administered by the state licensing board to be certified, he said.

Two homes robbed

Two Park homes were broken into last week, according to Park police.

A homeowner in the 1000 block of Berkshire reported a break-in July 7. The thief gained entry through a screen window and took cash and keys from a purse, police said.

A Bedford resident in the 800 block reported two break-ins, one July 12 and one the following day. The first time, thieves punched a hole through a screen on a door leading to the rear porch and took a black-and-white television set, police said. The next day, thieves took a typewriter from the rear porch.

Sidewalk sale

Kercheval in the Village between Cadioux and Neff will be closed to traffic Friday night, July 25, as merchants hold sidewalk sales. Kercheval will open to traffic Saturday, July 26, but the sale will continue. There will be music and on-street food sales to add to the festive atmosphere.

The New Reformation Dixieland Jazz Band

Dixieland comes to War Memorial

Dixieland will be the next outdoor offering of the Grosse Pointe Summer Music Festival, Monday, July 21, when the New Reformation Dixieland Jazz Band will sing and play as the audience dances under the stars.

The seven band members are from the Saginaw area, but have appeared extensively throughout the state and are frequent guests in Detroit, having performed at Cobo Hall, The Red Garter, Jim's Garage, The Recess Club and local private clubs including Grosse Pointe Club and Gowan Country Club in Mount Clemens.

The group is also a popular addition to jazz festivals and universities across the country, including the Sacramento Dixieland Jubilee in California and the Bix Beiderbecke Jazz Festival in Davenport, Iowa.

Organized in 1970 by leader Dave Oppermann and his brother, Nick, as a Sunday Dixieland worship service in Saginaw, the New Reformation Band has since performed alongside such jazz greats as Count Basie, Duke Ellington and Woody Herman. They've shared concert stages with show business personalities Pat Boone, George Plimpton, Boots Randolph and others, and have produced three record albums.

The band members' wide range of vocal and instrumental expertise and versatility allow for great flexibility as they move from the New Orleans two-beat to the Chicago style to the full brass sounds of the big bands.

Besides Oppermann at the piano, the group includes Dave Tatrow on coronet, Keith DeWitt on trombone, Dr. Vincent O'Keefe on clarinet and saxophone, Ted "The Animal" Harley on string bass, Rick Bryant on drums and Dave Miller on banjo and guitar.

The program will include Dixieland classics like "Basin Street Blues," "Sweet Georgia Brown," "Alexander's Ragtime Band" and "Take The A-Train." The diversity of moods ranges from "Just A Closer Walk With Thee" to "Slide Frog Slide" to "It Don't Mean A Thing If It Ain't Got That Swing."

The performance is at 8 p.m. on the Alger House Terrace. Grounds open at 6 p.m. for picnicking. Reserved tickets are $10 per person and lawn admission is $6.50. Box picnic suppers are available through the War Memorial at $6.50 each with a paid reservation three days prior to the performance.

The two remaining concerts in the 1986 Summer Music Festival season will be an indoor piano concert by James Tocco on Monday, July 28, and a pops concert by the Grosse Pointe Symphony on Monday, Aug. 4.

Tickets are available at the War Memorial. For additional information, call 881-7511.

Woods man in a coma after accident

A 61-year-old Grosse Pointe Woods man underwent brain surgery and is in a coma following injuries he received when he was struck on his bike by a vehicle driven by a man later arrested for drunk driving.

Maxwell Kaye of Peachtree Lane was riding his bike eastbound on Cook Road July 1 at 8:50 p.m. near the Grosse Pointe Hunt Club, when John W. Schick, 42, of St. Clair Shores exited a driveway in reverse, police said.

Witnesses said Schick sped out of the driveway and hit Kaye, police said. Kaye landed on the trunk of the car, but was hurled off when Schick continued driving on Cook Road. He then realized he had struck the bike and came to a stop.

Kaye was transported to St. John Hospital by a Woods ambulance.

According to relatives, Kaye was returned home after several days, but later returned to the hospital and underwent surgery.

Police said Schick was arrested and charged with operating a motor vehicle under the influence of liquor.

Bryant backs Colleen Engler

Rep. William R. Bryant, Jr. of Grosse Pointe has joined the drive to help raise funds for Colleen Engler's campaign for governor on the grounds that she is "the best qualified candidate" and the GOP challenger with "the best chance" of beating Gov. James Blanchard.

Despite Bryant's all-out endorsement, the fund drive for Rep. Engler may be another case of too little and too late, although her backers are still hoping for a primary upset. With the Aug. 5 election now less than three weeks away, analysts and pollsters believe Wayne County Executive William Lucas and Brighton businessman Dick Chrysler lead the field, with Rep. Engler and Oakland County Executive Dan Murphy trailing.

In his letter distributed by the Colleen Engler for Governor Committee, Bryant cited five reasons — character, intelligence, experience, natural ability and political considerations — why Michigan Republicans should back the Mount Pleasant state representative against her three male opponents.

Bryant really went overboard in his endorsement. He said Rep. Engler is "honest, hard working and independent from undue influence," including independence from her husband, Senate Majority Leader John Engler. She is "highly intelligent" and "one of a small number of legislators who is always there, always interested, always coming up with constructive ideas." She has "the best grasp of all the candidates of issues facing our state." She has "more experience" than the governor and her GOP opponents with state issues.

But that's not all. She "runs circles around the governor and all her Republican opponents in any speaking situation." She "can think and act quickly, under pressure, on her feet and (does) not have to go running for cover at the tough questions." She "knows how weak and vulnerable" Blanchard is. "Only Colleen Engler has any charisma and is interesting and newsworthy," while the others "are all drab and boring compared to her." She is "an out-state candidate" with all the others being from the Detroit metropolitan area. And, she is a woman candidate who will "draw Democrat and independent votes to the Republican side from all over the state."

Bryant did not add a fact he revealed to the Grosse Pointe News earlier that also showed Rep. Engler's good sense. She has talked with Bryant about becoming her running mate as the GOP lieutenant governor candidate in the event she wins the primary. That choice will be made by the GOP state convention and the GOP nominee for governor after the primary.

Detroit political writers have reported that Rep. Engler started a fundraising pitch in ads during morning TV shows last week which could also help bring in badly needed money. She also won a rather backhanded endorsement from a Detroit black attorney who is second vice-chairman of the Michigan GOP and chairman of the Mainstream Republicans of Michigan.

Ed Johnson told political writers his organization is challenging the talk by the Democrats — and especially Blanchard — that the GOP is a captive of the far right. But he said his Mainstream Republican organization, a revival of the moribund Michigan Moderate Conference, may or may not endorse a candidate. The good news for Rep. Engler was Johnson's personal comment: "None would appeal to the body except Colleen."

So maybe she's also a moderate Republican in a party that has moved to the right since the days of Gov. William Milliken.

For Bush, good news & bad

A Detroit News poll last week gave backers of Vice President George Bush renewed hope of capturing Michigan's support in the 1988 Republican presidential race just as they did in 1980 when Bush defeated Ronald Reagan in the Michigan presidential primary. But the poll also raised serious questions for Bush and regular Republicans in Michigan as a result of the strong support expressed for TV evangelist Pat Robertson of Virginia.

The poll showed that 28 percent of the candidates for GOP precinct delegates in the Aug. 5 primary are supporting Bush, 22 percent are backing Robertson and 12 percent are behind Rep. Jack Kemp of New York. But the poll also showed that the early battle for Michigan support for the GOP presidential contestants is far from over. Fully 36 percent of the 295 precinct candidates polled expressed no preference and 2 percent said they were backing candidates other than the three leading the pack in Michigan.

Equally worrisome for the regular Republican presidential candidates — meaning both Bush and Kemp — were the poll results showing that precinct delegates pledged to Robertson are more likely to have a "deep and strong commitment" to him than the delegates favoring Bush and Kemp have to their candidates. The figures showed 64 percent of the Robertson backers with this "deep and strong" backing as contrasted with 33 percent of the Bush supporters and 21 percent of the Kemp followers having the same degree of commitment.

That kind of backing for Robertson helps explain why the regular Republicans who support Bush and Kemp are reported joining forces unofficially to oppose the challenge by the TV evangelist's precinct delegate candidates to their candidates and to their control of the Michigan GOP on Aug. 5. It is becoming increasingly clear that the Robertson forces are interested in more than a possible Robertson candidacy for the presidency in 1988.

In a statement issued in Lansing last week, Robertson said he thought his precinct delegates outnumbered those pledged to Bush and Kemp and that his delegates "have within their grasp the power to select nominees for numerous major offices in the state — including candidates for the state Supreme Court, the entire Michigan school board and delegates to the 1988 National Convention." What he meant was that if his delegates win in sufficient numbers in the Aug. 5 primary, they will be able to play a vital role in nominations made for the state Supreme Court and the state Board of Education at the GOP state convention after the primary.

The Robertson delegate candidates, however, tend to have much less experience in politics than do the precinct delegate candidates backing Bush and Kemp, according to the Detroit News poll. Among the Robertson supporters, only 20 percent have been active in party politics before this year and fewer than 2 percent have previously served as precinct delegates. Among Bush backers, 83 percent have been active in politics and 60 percent have served as precinct delegates. Among Kemp delegate candidates, 64 percent have been active in politics and almost half served as precinct delegates.

The lack of political experience of the Robertson followers could be crucial not only in the primary but in county meetings that will fill precinct delegate vacancies. But the zeal of the people supporting Robertson cannot be discounted. And if they can be persuaded to support other GOP candidates, they could obviously broaden the GOP base since such a small percentage of them had been active in politics before being activated by Robertson's candidacy.

Offsetting the potential benefits of the recruitment of Robertson followers into the GOP, however, would be the confirmation at least in part of the criticism — by middle of the road Republicans as well as Democrats — that the GOP has been moving too far to the right. Nationally and in Michigan, the GOP has been most successful when it has avoided the extremes of either the right or left.

Perhaps as a result of the poll and the new Robertson challenge, Bush announced last week a new drive to endorse his precinct delegates and to raise $750,000 to help elect them. These actions also will help identify the precinct delegates who support the vice president because there is no such identification on the Aug. 5 ballot.

While the precinct delegates to be elected in the primary will not be officially committed to any candidate for president, the amount of time and money being devoted to the GOP contests in precincts throughout Michigan indicates that both the party and the potential presidential candidates are taking the election very seriously. And it is true the outcome could raise — or damage — the hopes of Bush or Kemp or Robertson for victory in 1988.

Amnesty spells tax relief

Michigan's tax amnesty program has turned out to be better than expected. It was so successful that it has given a break to all state income taxpayers and not just to those delinquents who were able to escape penalties by paying up during the 50-day period.

The program brought in an estimated $102 million in back taxes, double its goal, with the result that Gov. James Blanchard now says it will be possible to make the 4.6 percent income tax retroactive to Jan. 1, 1986.

Under legislation approved earlier, the income tax was rolled back to 4.6 percent effective March 31 with the proviso that the cut could be made effective earlier if the state could afford it. With the receipts from the tax amnesty program now estimated at more than double the original $50 million goal, the lower rate will be effective for the full year. While Gov. Blanchard is taking credit for the tax amnesty, now that it is successful, the idea was originally hatched by the fertile mind of Rep. William R. Bryant Jr. of Grosse Pointe. A member of the House Taxation Committee, Rep. Bryant proposed the amnesty idea and the additional rollback based on the amnesty receipts, and sold the plan to the Taxation Committee. After early objections, the administration eventually accepted it.

There is credit due to all who finally helped get the legislation enacted, but Bryant deserves more credit than he has been getting publicly for first proposing the idea and getting it through the House Taxation Committee. The GOP is unlikely to let the governor forget that important fact during the election campaign.

Our readers say

We all must work together

To the Editor:

I am writing in response to your article (July 3) on the Fox Creek flooding situation. Ms. Parmenter has done an excellent job representing our situation. However, I would like to add a few points as well as comment on Mr. Crawford's statements.

1. Dumping raw sewage into our lakes and streams may have been acceptable in 1931, but in 1986 we are aware of the dangers it presents. Spraying crops with DDT, testing nuclear weapons in the atmosphere, and adding lead to paint are in the same category. The idea is to learn from our mistakes.

2. Being a microbiologist by profession, I am acutely aware of the dangers that untreated waste material presents. Specifically, organisms that cause typhoid, dysentery, hepatitis, cholera and yes, even AIDS, can be transmitted through contact with untreated human fecal matter.

3. Park residents should be aware that Fox Creek flows along the east side of their municipal park on Windmill Pointe. Perhaps they too should be notified the "four to six times a year" that sewage was dumped so that they may avoid the use of the area. Once our seawalls are improved, the waste should stay out of my backyard, but there is no guarantee some of this waste will not flow down the creek to contaminate their marina.

water is a lot easier to deal with than backed-up basement sewage. I have to wonder if the Park authorities have considered a

4. In the spring, 1986, the City of Detroit installed restrictive flow sewer covers on the streets of the flood prone areas. During a heavy rain or canal flooding, the water enters the sewer system at a much slower rate, thus the machinery in place can absorb the extra water. This has all but eliminated any back-up in our basements. It's true, water may linger a little longer at our curbs, but clean rain-similar plan. Certainly if the City of Detroit can afford it, Grosse Pointe Park can also.

In conclusion, I must remind Mr. Crawford that we live on a very small planet and we all must work together if we are to maintain our way of life in view of the rising lake waters - whatever and wherever that way of life may be.

Story, editorial smacks of abuse

To the Editor:

A recent Grosse Pointe News editorial cited a case where a Channel 7 news crew was denied entrance into Windmill Pointe Park because members of the crew were non-residents, while a GP News reporter, also a non-resident, was allowed into the park as a "guest." The story and editorial tried to make a case against Grosse Pointe Park for alleged censorship of the media.

It would appear that the GP News chose to ignore a key fact in the story: The GP News reporter (who was allowed in) was covering a "breaking" story occurring in Windmill Park. The reporter was also an invited guest.

The Channel 7 crew was not covering any breaking story occurring in the Park, but merely doing "background," or a "sidebar" to another story. Furthermore, they were not invited guests.

In no way did the inability of the Channel 7 crew to physically enter the park fundamentally change the focus of their story, or substantially alter its content. Nearly 100 percent of the park can be viewed with a camera lens from the outside, through the fence. If their producer was denied use of the park restroom facilities, this was absolutely correct and in keeping with a policy of non-discrimination.

Your editorial called for the blanket admission of anyone from the media "regardless of the purpose of the media visit." This smacks of the same abuse that has been perpetrated by some press and media people for generations — be it to obtain free admission to sporting events, concerts and the theater, or to "sample" free dinners from restaurants on the promise of a story. This shameful practice is still alive and well, and used practically every weekend by media "luminaries" to avoid standing in long lines at crowded bars, restaurants and nightclubs. It is an abuse of their position, not a constitutionally protected right.

As a Grosse Pointe Park resident and taxpayer, I can understand the need for media to enter our parks for the purpose of covering breaking stories. However, I am not willing to be a party to blatant discrimination against some non-residents by the establishments of "special classes" of non-residents.

The idea that "media non-residents" are "more equal" than other groups of non-residents constitutes discrimination, and is just as reprehensible as any other form of discrimination.

Thank you

To the Editor:

Last Thursday, July 3, while picking up a deli order, I absently left an unmarked envelope of money on the counter of Uncle Harry's Deli on Mack Avenue in St. Clair Shores.

After the holiday weekend, I returned (they were closed on July 4, 5, 6) to find a smiling crew, glad to have found the owner of the cash. Thanks, Rick, for being so honest, and thanks to Uncle Harry — I'll be back.

Board elects officers

Vincent LocCicero is the new president of the Grosse Pointe Board of Education.

LoCicero, in the last year of his first, four-year term on the board, was selected unanimously Monday night after his nomination. He was vice president last year.

Serving as vice president this year is Fred Adams, last year's secretary of the board. Carl Anderson was selected secretary for this, his second year as trustee. Dorothy Kennel was re-elected treasurer for the 1986-87 school year.

Election of officers for the board takes place annually at the first meeting of the school year in July.

Cancer information

Heavy drinking of alcoholic beverages, particularly when combined with cigarette smoking, increases the risk of cancers of the mouth, pharynx, larynx, esophagus, liver and bladder. For information on how to reduce these risks, call the Cancer Information Service of Michigan, toll-free 1-800-4-CANCER.

In turning over the gavel, Jon Gandelot — who for the first time in nine years will not be a board officer — thanked trustees and administrators for "making my year as president a pleasant one."

"I look forward to a smooth administration under Vince," he added. "I will certainly try to continue the excellence of past presidents," LoCicero said. "I look forward to having another fantastic year for the school system."

Trustee Joan Hanpeter, senior board member with 14 years of service, said she could not accept a board office because of her recent election as president of the Wayne County Intermediate School District Board of Education. Hanpeter has been a trustee on the ISD board, which represents the county's school districts, for the past couple of years.

"I consider this a very large responsibility that I have accepted with Wayne County. . . and I will make it one of my priorities this year," Hanpeter said. She added she would not be shirking her duties as a Grosse Pointe school board trustee.

Visit Amish country in two-day trip

In northern Indiana, the Amish maintain their lifestyles as they did 100 years ago, driving horse-drawn buggies and maintaining 19th century agricultural habits. The War Memorial will explore this unique area on a two-day visit Wednesday and Thursday, Aug. 13 and 14.

The center will schedule an overnighter to provide leisurely stops at the Cheese Factory in Middlebury, lunch at the Essenhaus, two hours to shop at the Shipshewanna Flea Market, a tour of the 80-acre historic farm of Amish Acres where a full course family dinner will be served, and lastly, a tour of Notre Dame University.

The group will travel by motorcoach and stay at the Holiday Inn "Holidome" in Goshen, Ind.

Based on a minimum of 35 participants, reservations costs $129 per person for double occupancy and $149 for single occupancy. A detailed flyer is available at the center or call 881-7511.

Lanier returns to inspect elm trees

By Pat Paholsky

The entomologist from New York the Park hired to fight Dutch elm disease was back in town last week.

Dr. Gerald Lanier from the State University of New York inspected elms, mapped their locations, injected diseased trees and checked the status of the traps he set in May.

Inspection was his number one priority this trip, he said, and he completed surveying all of the city's elms — both public and private. The location of every elm more than four inches in diameter was noted at the same time.

While the rain hindered inspections, it didn't stop the cacodylic acid injections which he administered to trees in the Park, City and Detroit. The acid, injected into hopelessly diseased trees, prevents the beetles inside from developing and turns them, in effect, into trap trees.

Lanier said some trees were injected to control root graft, whereby a diseased tree passes the infection along to a nearby healthy elm.

"The majority of losses we have detected are root graft infections and we are trying to do something to eliminate the problem," he said.

Since the treatment eliminates the tree as a source of infection, it can be left standing until it's convenient to remove it. The tree doesn't rot as quickly with cacodylic acid, Lanier said, and it can remain standing indefinitely.

Within 10 days of injection, the tree will turn a copper brown, according to Bob Tarabula, the forester hired by the Park for the summer who is assisting Lanier. "That's what it should do," he added. Nearby trees that have already contacted the disease from an elm that has been injected may show signs of flashback in which its leaves turn brown, Tarabula said.

Lanier said two trees in the Defer schoolyard were injected as well as six along Jefferson. He also treated 15 in Detroit near the border and two in the City.

In May Lanier set 50 traps baited with pheromone in groups of four, with half in Detroit and half in the Park. The pheromone attracts the beetles to the sticky trap.

"We are catching lots of beetles," he said. "The distribution is as expected."

The Detroit traps are yielding 12,000 to 20,000 beetles per trap contrasted to those at Patterson Park, where the count is between 2,000 to 3,000 beetles, Lanier said.

"At this point, there are no barkbeetles in the air," he said. "The second generation will emerge later this month and peak in August."

"I expect to be catching lots of beetles then," he added, explaining that the second generation is two to three times larger in northern climates. The first generation suffers a higher mortality rate, he said. "At the end of the season, some of those traps will be very full."

Lanier also met with groups from the City and Detroit. He expects to be back in August.

Dr. Gerald Lanier, in the hat, and Bob Tarabula inject an elm on Cadieux in the City with cacodylic acid.

A strip of elm bark shows the markings of Dutch elm disease.

Both the Saab 9000 Turbo and the BMW 528e are high-performance European luxury sedans.

Despite the fact that the BMW is more expensive, the Saab provides far more performance and luxury.

Motor Trend reports the BMW's acceleration from zero to 60 as 10.3 seconds, and its standing quarter mile time as 17.51 seconds. Not bad, but not in Saab's class. Motor Trend's figures for the Saab 9000 were 8.2

And while luxury may have many components, a principal one is space. The Saab 9000 is one of only two imports classified by the Environmental Protection Agency as a "large car." The BMW is two classes down from that, among the "compact cars."

Teen pregnancy a continuing problem, agencies say

By Mike Andrzejczyk

Teen pregnancy may not be increasing in Grosse Pointe, but it continues to affect a large number of young people locally and across the east side, according to community agencies that offer help.

Bon Secours and St. John hospitals report teen pregnancies at about the same level as last year. At Bon Secours so far this year, 31 children have been born to mothers aged 13 to 19 — mostly for those aged 17 to 19 — according to a hospital spokesman. Thirty-three births to teen mothers occurred during the same period the year before.

St. John has an estimated 3,000 births a year, with about 250 of those to mothers under age 20, according to the hospital. So far this year, 120 children have been born to teen mothers.

Both hospitals serve areas much larger than Grosse Pointe.

Statewide, the number of births to teen mothers appears to be increasing, according to Loretta Davis, director of information and education for Planned Parenthood. In 1982, there were 15,352 births to mothers aged 13 to 19, with 229 of the total being to mothers aged 10 to 14. In 1983, there were 16,917 births to teen mothers 19 and younger — 13 percent of the total births that year in the state.

Of the 1983 total, about 6,100 were to adolescents 17 and younger. At least 3,350 of those were second births. Twelve of the total were the second or third births for girls aged 12 to 15.

At Center Point Crisis Center, the number of teens seeking help for pregnancy remains about the same, according to Wendy Karougian, a counselor with the center. It does seem to be affected by the season, however.

The number of teens coming in with questions about possible pregnancies usually increases one to two months after a major school holiday or event, Karougian said. When a person calls or comes in fearing she may be pregnant, the center first seeks verification of pregnancy. A counselor will then sit down and talk with the teen about her options.

"At about that time, a girl is usually struggling between keeping the baby and abortion," Karougian said. The counselor will lay out all possible options for the teen, including adoption, and advise her of legal, financial and medical help available.

The center gives the teen all the possible support necessary for her to decide to continue the pregnancy, Karougian said. Should the teen decide on an abortion, she is referred to a Planned Parenthood-approved clinic, where she will receive pre- and post-abortion counseling, Karougian added.

Seeing teens who fear they are pregnant is really solving the problem after the fact, Karougian said. The center would like to meet with clients face-to-face when giving the results of a pregnancy test, so it may continue to counsel the teen on methods of contraception.

The center can discuss all forms of contraception, the effectiveness of various methods and give teens the facts about the risks of becoming pregnant, Karougian said.

The center offers a variety of educational programs about teenage sexuality and pregnancy.

Planned Parenthood's Davis said the organization's mission is three-fold. Besides dealing with the problem of teen pregnancy, the center offers education programs and contraceptive and reproductive health care as well.

The group tries to educate teens through peer programs, including the Male Involvement program, which it takes wherever teenage males are; recreation centers, schools and even halfway houses, Davis said. Planned Parenthood also sponsored families, a teen theater group which portrays a number of sexually related topics in open-ended skits.

The organization also does community education through a variety of programs and is also involved in public advocacy for sexual rights and other reproductive topics, Davis said.

The first step to helping a possible teen mother is to determine that she is pregnant, Davis said. Once the test confirms pregnancy, the agency — through its four centers — tries to determine what the mother wants to do.

If she opts for an abortion, she is referred to a clinic. If she opts to keep the child, she is referred to a prenatal program, Davis said.

Another organization that offers aid for east side teens who may be pregnant is Pregnancy Aid, a profile organization that can offer free medical tests, counseling and clothing for children.

While the agency hasn't really seen an increase in the number of people seeking its services, that could be for a couple reasons, according to Mandy Scranton, president of the Detroit Coalition of Pregnancy Centers.

Many young people, when faced with possible pregnancy, teens try to remain anonymous by heading for clinics on the opposite side of town, Scranton said. Some of Pregnancy Aid's clients have come from Birmingham and Ypsilanti, she added.

Also, because the agency is an avowed pro-life organization, those women who come through its doors have already decided against an abortion and are looking to continue pregnancy, Scranton said. The availability of abortions has cut into the number of teens deciding to keep their children, she added.

The agency sees about 300 teens a year, a number that's far above the number 10 years ago, Scranton said. Many of the agency's clients come from the east side suburbs and Detroit, she added.

The first step in handling a referral is to verify pregnancy. Once that's done, the agency offers the expectant mother information about fetal development, describes the four methods of abortion and also passes out a variety of literature about pregnancy and what to do, she added.

Pregnancy Aid can also make referrals for medical, legal and housing assistance. It also doesn't try to separate children from families, but promotes communication between the expectant mother and her parents.

The average age of a client is between 18 and 24, Scranton said. "They come to us after the fact," she added. "We have to give kids the reason for saying no" to becoming sexually active.

Grosse Pointe public schools have been teaching sex education since the early 1980s, according to school officials. A committee that advises the system on the teaching of such subject matter has recently recommended the schools add sections in its general health curriculum that deal with family planning and contraception, according to Robert Welch, director of secondary curriculum.

The committee's recommendation for the additional information in general health classes will mean that two different classes will be offered — each clearly labeled — in which the contraception information will and will not be included, Welch said.

This isn't the first time the system has offered information about family planning, Welch said. A class offered at the high schools that traditionally draws small enrollment is titled Effective Living, and discusses the issue, he added.

The 15-member committee that advises on sex education represents all segments of the community, according to Welch. It has met throughout the school year discussing the new arrangement.

The two sections of general health is in the talking stage right now, Welch said. The system plans to put the recommendation from the advisory committee through its new curriculum development process, with ultimate decision-making being done by the Board of Education, he added.

The advisory committee also asked health teachers to come up with a course curriculum for teaching contraception and family planning, he added.

While education may help, Center Point's Karougian said she hasn't noticed that today's teens are any more sophisticated regarding sexual activity. At least among those who come seeking help for pregnancy, she hasn't noticed any increase, she added.

Construction begins on Kercheval

Ground breaking ceremonies for the new 131 Kercheval Center, to be the new location for Standard Federal Bank in Grosse Pointe Farms, took place June 30.

The construction site, located at the corner of Kercheval and Muir roads, next to Cottage Hospital, will house approximately 50,000 square feet of retail and office space in addition to the banking/financial facilities.

Kenneth Neuman/Robert Greager & Associates, architects for the project will be working in conjunction with Bologna Contracting Co. and the George W. Auch Co., joint construction partners.

The actual groundbreaking was performed by Peter Bologna along with Thomas Ricketts, president and chairman of Standard Federal Bank.

Presiding at the ceremony were several city officials and local dignitaries, including Grosse Pointe Farms Mayor James Dingeman; Andrew Bremer, city manager; Marianne Ghesquire, council woman; and former Standard Federal Bank Chairman Robert Hutton.

The new branch, to replace the current branch located at Kercheval and McMillan, is expected to be completed in the fall of 1987.

General partners for the project are Standard Financial Corporation, a wholly-owned Michigan corporation and subsidiary of Standard Federal Bank, and 81 Investment Company.

War Memorial will offer day trips

Windsor, Ontario will be the destination of a War Memorial day trip Tuesday, Aug. 5, from 9:45 a.m. to 6 p.m. A tour guide will relate Windsor history on a tour of Old Walkerville, an early 20th century community planned and almost entirely owned by the Walker family.

A tour of the Hiram Walker Distillery will also be included on the trip. The distillery moved to Windsor from Detroit during the Prohibition era.

Lunch will be served at The Rendezvous, an early 1920's speakeasy and one of the few remaining road-houses of its kind still in existence. The false walls, hide-away cupboards and buzzer bar will provide an atmosphere reminiscent of the Charleston, flappers and spats.

After a visit to Coventry Gardens and the Peace Fountain, participants will have time to shop at the Devonshire Mall.

The trip costs $23 per person and includes transportation, local guide and lunch. Proof of citizenship will be required at the border for this trip and all trips into Canada, such as the scheduled trip to Chatham, Ontario on Tuesday, Aug. 12.

Chatham, called the Maple City, is located on the Thames River near Lakes Huron, Erie and St. Clair. The group will board The Lady Thames, a replica of a paddlewheel boat, at Lighthouse cover, and take a leisurely three-hour cruise to Chatham.

Once on land, lunch will be at Rossini's, or at Venus de Milo. There will be a guided tour of the city and free time to shop. Tickets are $30 per person and include transportation, boat ride, lunch and a guided tour. The bus will leave the center promptly at 8 a.m. and return at 5:30 p.m.

Due to the popularity of the Port Stanley/Sparta trip, the center has scheduled an additional bus. Tickets are on sale for the Thursday, July 31, trip, at $33 per person.

Reservations are also still available for the trip to the annual Ann Arbor Street Art Fair, on Wednesday, July 23. Besides the opportunity to experience the kaleidoscope of people, displays and art that exists at the fair, participants can leave their driving and parking cares at home. The trip costs $25 and includes transportation and lunch at the Campus Inn. For information, call 881-7511.

Register early at South High

New students will be enrolled at Grosse Pointe South High School during a special five-day summer enrollment period beginning Monday, Aug. 11, according to Russell P. Luttinen, assistant principal-student services.

High school students who are new to the South attendance area should call 343-2151 to schedule an enrollment conference with a counselor who will be on duty.

The school encourages new students to enroll as early as possible. Students who don't enroll during the early summer sessions will have to wait until Aug. 25 to 28 and may experience more difficulty in scheduling preferred classes.

Iceland trip

Iceland, a land rich in Viking history and exceptional natural beauty, will be the destination Oct. 5-9, of a trip sponsored by the War Memorial. A free information night to discuss the trip will be held at 7:30 p.m., Wednesday, July 23, at the center, 32 Lakeshore.

It is a land of giant geysers, thundering waterfalls, volcanic mountains and shimmering fjords.

A valid passport will be required. The trip will cost $599 per person based on double occupancy. A single supplement costs an additional $39. A $150 deposit is required at the time of the reservation and final payment is due by August 15.

School board will spend $43,000 to implement drug master plan

By Mike Andrzejczyk

The Board of Education Monday night allocated $43,000 to implement its drug and alcohol master plan, recommended last month by a citizens committee.

The $43,000 is the cost for getting the program underway in the coming school year. It will pay for hiring of a facilitator and two secretaries, conferences and expenses, supplies, books and pamphlets and additional training for the system's counselors, psychologists and social workers.

The board decided to hold off its search for a facilitator until after it has a decision from the state whether the person must hold a valid teaching certificate.

The facilitator is to provide assistance to students with alcohol or drug problems or for students at risk, evaluate treatment services, assess needs for referrals, conduct substance abuse education for staff, parents, students and the community, assist in curriculum review to the student assistance program to be set up and develop and facilitate support groups for students at all levels.

Ronald Tonks, director of personnel and labor relations, said the district is bound by its contract with the Grosse Pointe Education Association to hire a person for the new position who has a teaching certificate.

Board members, expressing fears that asking for a valid certificate would limit the field of candidates for the position, said they would rather wait until August, when there may be an answer from the state Department of Education on whether the person needs a certificate for the $33,000 to $35,000 a-year job.

Other employees, such as nurses and social workers, are members of the bargaining unit but do not need certificates, Tonks said. The district may seek a letter of understanding with the union to allow it to hire a person without a certificate, he added.

Union officials at the meeting say they vehemently oppose the hiring of a facilitator who doesn't hold a valid teaching certificate. Part of the facilitator's job will be to teach students, parents and the community, officials noted, saying the certificate was necessary.

The master plan for drug and alcohol education was one of the board's goals for last school year. A seven-member committee, headed by Gail Erickson, worked out an "intervention-to-prevention plan intended to promote a drug-free environment for students, employees and volunteers," the plan reads.

"It is based on the belief that consistent policies and regulations, and education for staff, students and parents are necessary for the formation of effective assistance programs for students and employees," according to the report.

The plan calls for staff, student and community education focusing on the best available knowledge about alcohol and other drugs. For the staff, the education program will help change attitudes toward substance abuse, raise awareness of the problem and help them recognize and facilitate action about problems related to alcohol and other drugs.

No money has been allocated to cover staff education but will be developed by Erickson, who spent a year with the system first as a substance abuse counselor at South High School and then as director of substance abuse programs. She is now coordinator of assistance programs.

The kinks also have yet to be worked out of when the staff will receive the education program, according to Deputy Superintendent Joseph Spagnoli. Options include using release time or planning days of the staff, he told the board.

The master plan also calls for review of the system's K-12 curriculum to check uniformity of information about drugs and to make sure there is some information about them made available at all levels, including special education.

The curriculum hasn't been developed and the school system expects to use its new curriculum development process to get staff involved in developing new teaching tools, Superintendent John Whritner said.

The second of the four-part master plan calls for student and employee assistance programs, which must be able to identify the problem, assess degree and severity, motivate students and staff to seek help, support those in recovery and help families understand the nature of the problem and offer support.

Beginning in the fall of 1986, the system hopes to begin forming core teams, volunteer staff members who have completed a four-phase staff education program, who will be chosen by the coordinator of assistance programs. Core teams will carry out specific activities set by the coordinator. Teams will also serve as liaison between staff and parents to explain the student assistance program, its policies and procedures to parents and convey concerns back to staff.

The core teams will also gather, investigate and compare information to decide whether a student referred to the team because of a behavioral problem — academic or not — can benefit from student assistance programs.

While no appeal process is written into the plan, one is expected to be added, according to Whritner. Many of the district's other policies contain procedures for appeal.

Parents have said they fear the system will be abused, with children with any kind of problem being sent before teams. Referral to a core team can also be used by staff out to "get" a student, they added.

The system hopes to have core teams in place and operating at every school by June 1988.

The student assistance program, for all students K-12 who need it, will identify those with problems, assess their severity, intervene so the student seeks help and provide that help until an appropriate referral to an agency outside the school system is made, support students making lifestyle adjustments, help parents understand the nature of the problem and ensure strict confidentiality, according to the master plan.

Development of the plan will be the responsibility of the coordinator of assistance programs, who will work with the directors of curriculum to review and coordinate education programs and also review materials and educational programs to be used.

The coordinator will have an advisory role, Erickson said. Because of his or her expertise, the coordinator can recommend materials to the curriculum directors or curriculum development committees, but those recommendations needn't be followed, she added.

The district hopes to have its employee assistance program reviewed by January 1987, and a committee and the coordinator looking to implement a new plan.

The third phase of the master plan is forming a committee that will become familiar with community resources available for alcohol and other substance abuse problems and make the information available to those in referral positions.

The master plan also calls for review policies and regulations relative to the master plan which apply to staff and students. They will be reviewed to ensure there is a clear, consistent message about non-use of alcohol and drugs, that there is student or staff accountability for actions, that there is an opportunity for help and that policies are consistent with the law and are applied uniformly.

Among policies that will be reviewed are attendance, open campus, smoking on school grounds, student conduct, organizations and travel/study programs. A policy review committee will be established in September to review the districts policies and regulations until January, when it will make its recommendations to the board of education.

The plan calls for implementation of its various phases over the next three years. Besides helping to deal with substance abuse problems, the plan may also help the district respond to other issues of concern, including suicide, child abuse, sexual abuse, teen pregnancy, children of divorce and children under stress.

According to data contained in the report, the substance abuse counselor at South reported counseling 249 students either individually or in groups for alcohol or other drug-related problems. After duties were extended to North High School in March, another 23 students were counseled for problems.

In its 1985 survey of homes in the school district, 64 percent of those responding said they felt drug and alcohol problems should receive more attention from the school district. Concern about writing and grammar was expressed by 69 percent of respondents.

The second biggest problem facing the school district is drug and alcohol use, according to respondents of the survey. The biggest problem is dwindling enrollment.

The $43,000 allocated for the program comes from the fund equity, Whritner said. Year-end balances on accounts added another $150,000 to the $2 million fund.

Other problems loom for the master plan. Union officials hinted they will ask the district to repost the position of coordinator of assistance program. Failing that, a grievance may be filed, they added.

Officials decided against reposting the job since the duties Erickson performed as director of substance abuse programs are similar to those she performs as coordinator of assistance programs, Whritner said.

Electric van carries flowers throughout the Pointes

By Peter A. Salinas
The ride is a little stiff, but it's so quiet you can hear the hum of tires moving over the roadway. Dick Mahlmeister has been delivering flowers in an electric van in and around the Grosse Pointe area for four weeks. He says the vehicle is fine, although the ride is a little rough and the vehicle can go only about 50 miles on an eight- to nine-hour charge. He's taken the van to downtown Detroit and all through the Pointes delivering flowers for Conner Park Florist which has stores in Detroit, Harper Woods and Grosse Pointe Woods. Owner John Adamo was awarded a month's free use of the van as part of a cooperative, cost-shared effort by the U.S. Department of Energy and Detroit Edison. Powered by a ton of lead-acid batteries in a pay load underneath the van, it is the first electric vehicle to be mass-produced on an assembly line. The vehicle is made by General Motors' Bedford Commercial Vehicle Division in Luton, England. During the early 1980s, Detroit Edison and the DOE entered into a contract to test electric passenger vehicles. The vehicles, Volkswagen Rabbits, were retrofitted with electric power equipment. M. William Tripp, senior engineer, product marketing and electric vehicle marketing, with Detroit Edison, said it was found that passenger vehicles needed at least a 90-mile range to be practical for use as a family second vehicle. DOE and Edison are now involved with testing the economic and commercial use aspects of electric vans and light-duty trucks. A vehicle loan program offers vehicles to businesses, such as florists, plumbing contractors, electricians and others who have a fleet of several vehicles and make a number of short runs from a nearby central office. Edison is currently testing four cargo and two passenger vans. The vehicles cost about $20,000, but Tripp points out there is far less maintenance on an electric vehicle. The vehicle needs at least eight to ten hours to fully recharge, before being able to travel another 50 miles. Tripp said rates for commercial users of electricity vary, but even at the lowest commercial rate of about five cents per kilowatt hour, the vehicle would soak up about $2.50 worth of electricity. At current gasoline prices, cost per mile exceeds that of an internal combustion vehicle, maintenance costs are substantially reduced. Edison would obviously like to see more commercial electric vehicles on the road — more electric vehicles, more use of its power. Tripp said since the vehicles would be used during the day, they would be recharged during Edison's low-use period from about 7 p.m. to 7 a.m. the following day. "Power plants are operating at very low levels at night," he said. "We could provide energy to thousands of vehicles during non-peak hours without having to add to our existing plants. Plus, plants would be operating more efficiently, producing energy at less cost, because the plants would not have to reduce energy output at night." He said that plants having to lower energy output is costly. If plants could keep a higher average energy output, they could provide cheaper energy. Having thousands of electric-powered vehicles on the road is still a long way off, but there is a lot of interest in southeastern Michigan. Edison mailed out questionnaires to 26,000 customers who fit the profile the company wanted. Edison expected only about 260 responses, but got back 2,700 or ten percent. "We will be able to loan the vehicles to about 50 businesses in the two-and-one-half years of testing," Tripp said. Each vehicle is equipped with a meter on a specially built battery charger. The meter is read much the same way a residential meter is, and the customer is reimbursed for the electricity he uses to power the vehicle. Mahlmeister will be asked to fill out a three-page questionnaire when his stint with the vehicle is completed. The questionnaire asks about the ease of driving, its practicality and other important questions about the vehicle's usefulness. "You are a little leery of it at first," Mahlmeister said. "You don't know what the vehicle is going to do. But once you get used to it, it's just like driving a regular van."

Dick Mahlmeister loads the electric van he used for a month to make deliveries.

Tommy C and The Gamut

Early rock next in series

Tommy C and The Gamut will perform at the War Memorial Thursday, July 24, at 7:30 p.m. The group will perform rock 'n' roll hits from the '50s, '60s and '70s as part of the Yesterday's Memories music series of outdoor lawn concerts for nostalgia buffs who are 21 and over.

Tommy C, the group's leader, sax player, vocalist and keyboard player, was a member of the Chubby Checker Band before forming Gamut in 1979. His desire was to have a band of his own that could play varied styles of music and yet retain an identity of its own.

In 1980, The Gamut appeared in Dick Clark's "Good Ole Days of Rock 'n' Roll Show" at the Michigan State Fair along with Freddie Cannon, Bo Didley and the Coasters. The Crystals, The Diamonds, The Shirelles and The Coasters are some of the groups that the Gamut has worked with or backed, as well as The Drifters and The Del Vikings.

The grounds will open at 6 p.m. for those who want to bring a picnic.

Admission is lawn seating only and the center suggests that concert-goers bring a blanket or lawn chair to sit on during the show. Tickets are $5 in advance and $6 on the day of the performance.

Union blasts management

"They want to suppress us," Olcenik said. "I told them then that if going public was the only way to get their attention, that's what we would do."

At the July 14 meeting, Dingeman again denied their request for an open meeting, again on the grounds that employee matters should be heard in closed session.

The state open meetings act does allow for discussion of personnel matters in closed session — at the request of the employee. Susan Iannotti, a state assistant attorney general, who specializes in open meetings questions, agreed that Olcenik's employment dispute with the city puts the question into a gray area. However, she said, if the union executive committee agreed in advance not to discuss personnel problems, a closed session is probably not appropriate.

"Generally, a person has a right to address the body," Iannotti said. "Court cases have restricted open personal attacks on a member of the body, but (permit) discussion of the way he conducts his duties."

Council probably does not have the right to protect administrative employees from charges by holding a closed session. "One of the costs of doing business is that the public may want to express discontent with what you're doing," Iannotti said.

Council members defend the decision to hold a closed meeting, a decision they said was reached on the advice of the city attorney.

"It gave us the chance to hear out the leadership of the group," said Councilman Rockwell.

"It was appropriate to have a closed session because names of personnel did come up," said Mayor Pro Tem Fromm.

Fromm and Rockwell both indicated that restricting the closed meeting to the union executive committee cut any circus atmosphere that might have developed. Thirteen union members picketed with placards for an hour before the council meeting to dramatize their point. Later they came into the meeting and listened quietly for an hour while other residents debated the fine points of air conditioner variances, before they learned they would be excluded.

Olcenik said the meeting will not mean the end of the matter. He said it is important for the council to become involved to solve the problem.

"The council has to realize that we mean business," he said. "We've exhausted every other means."

Dog shootings questioned

By Nancy Parmenter

When a public safety officer in Grosse Pointe Shores shot and killed three dogs last month, at least one Shores resident was upset.

"That wasn't the first time they killed a dog," said Patricia Merliss. "They could have been more humane."

At the time, Sgt. Daniel Healy explained that the officer felt he had no other option than to shoot the dogs with the department shotgun. "Residents often don't understand that we have to do it," Healy said. "They think we're being cruel."

Following complaints to the police department and to the Michigan Humane Society by Merliss, Shores Public Safety Director Joseph Vitale repeated that the department had no choice.

"The dogs were wild and they attacked the officer," he said. "We had to do what we had to do."

Vitale said the department cannot use a tranquilizer gun without extensive schooling required by the state. He said it also would have been impossible to hold the dogs in the yard until a veterinarian or the humane society could arrive with a tranquilizer. The large, mixed-breed dogs were shot on a Friday afternoon.

"There was just no way around it," Vitale said.

The Michigan Humane Society believes there may have been a way around using a shotgun on the dogs. They are on call seven days a week until 9 p.m., Executive Director David Wills said.

"I'd give them my home phone number," Wills said.

Wills said he did not want to second-guess the police department. "I'm not advocating keeping a vicious dog alive," he said, "but most times, they're ferocious because they're afraid. If you were cornered in a yard, you'd bare your teeth, too."

One of the society's goals is to ensure that animals that must be killed are killed in a humane manner. Wills said he would have liked the police to call him so he could have a society representative on hand to supervise the death.

The society has what Wills says is "a very sophisticated" tranquilizer gun manufactured in West Germany. The gun is used to put down animals temporarily or permanently.

"Even from an aesthetic viewpoint, it's not the greatest thing in the world to have a dog shot to death in your backyard," Wills said.

The Michigan Humane Society receives frequent calls from police departments about deer as well as dogs. Last year, in a publicized case, the society helped capture a horse that had escaped from a truck accident on the Ford expressway.

Wills said the state law governing the use of tranquilizer guns is not clear, but many departments interpret it to mean a user must be licensed. In most cases, a veterinarian should be present, not only to administer the tranquilizer, but to counteract it in cases where live capture is the goal.

The dogs had been annoying Shores residents for two weeks, according to police. They were finally cornered in a backyard, where they were shot.

Highest Money Market Rate Paid By Franklin Savings For 120 Consecutive Weeks

For OVER 2 YEARS Franklin Savings and Loan has paid the highest interest on Money Market Accounts of the major financial institutions in the Detroit Metropolitan area. In fact, Franklin Savings has paid the highest interest for 120 consecutive weeks.

Each week Franklin has published the rates of banks throughout the area. The results of this poll have consistently shown that Franklin pays the highest money market rate of all the major financial institutions in the metro area. Higher than other banks such as NBD, Manufacturers, Federal Savings, First Federal of Michigan, Standard Federal Savings Bank, higher than any other major financial institution in the area.

The trend is clear. Franklin offers its customers a higher return on their investment — the highest in the metro area. For more information on Franklin's Money Market fund, contact the Information Center at (313) 358-5170 or call the new Grosse Pointe branch office at (313) 881-5200.

Lilies and onions are cousins under the skin

Lilies and onions are the "upstairs-downstairs" of the lily family. It is really hard to imagine that the lowly but indispensable kitchen vegetable and the regal flowers of the garden are all related, but such is the case. Grosse Pointe has a generous share of both in vegetable and flower gardens in all directions. The beautiful orange-colored lilies that form almost a hedge at the corner of Edgemore and Lakeshore are notable examples.

At Belle Isle the lilies in the gardens are breaking some rules. Owing to the cool, damp weather we had earlier in the month the lilies that should have bloomed at the end of June are now in bloom a bit late, and the lilies that should bloom next month are blooming a bit early. The result is a lovely display.

Our sources at the Belle Isle greenhouses express gratitude to the Lily Society for the donation of many special bulbs to their collection, and cite Frances Huntington of Grosse Pointe City as a supporter of this gift. She is a longtime member of the Lily Society and a former board member, and her own collection of lovely lilies is legendary. At the moment, among the various hybrid plants in bloom, are her favorite White Trumpet and Asiatic White Prince.

The lily has a romantic past. Since time immemorial the lily, which is native to the Near East, was the sacred flower of motherhood. The symbol of fruitfulness in Sumerian, Babylonian, Assyrian and Egyptian mythology, it was the flower emblem of many goddesses.

According to ancient Semitic legend, the lily sprang from the tears of Eve when she was expelled from the Garden of Eden. In later Christian lore it was said the lily had always been yellow until the day the Virgin Mary stooped to pick it. In Christian symbolism the white lily represents purity, chastity and innocence and is the symbol of the Resurrection and of Easter.

The white Madonna Lily was considered the special flower of the Virgin Mary and during the Middle Ages was almost invariably pictured in scenes of the Annunciation standing in a vase placed by the Queen of Heaven.

The onion, humble cousin of the lily, has an ancient lineage too. It originated in Central Asia in the region of Iran, Baluchistan and Afghanistan and was known to the Chaldeans before the beginning of the Christian Era. In ancient Egypt it was so highly regarded that it was an object of worship, and its culinary use was widespread, as it was in the Greek and Roman worlds. During the Renaissance the onion was a major ingredient in the formulas of many physician-botanists of the time. Its popularity is just as great in our modern world, and there are many varieties and classifications of this edible bulb.

In many old Herbals onions are listed as an ingredient in cosmetics and face creams, an idea which does not find favor with many people today.

The Grosse Pointe Garden Center, located on the second floor of the Grosse Pointe War Memorial, has a number of books about lilies (and a few about onions too) including "Let's Grow Lilies" by Virginia Howie, the classic handbook of lily culter, as well as copies of the North American Lily Society's quarterly bulletins for several years back. The Garden Center is open Tuesdays, Wednesdays and Thursdays from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. and welcomes visitors.

If you have been saving, and drying, flower petals, especially roses, for Potpourri you should by now have enough to make your first batch of Potpourri of the season. Betty Nienstedt of the Farms is one of several readers who asked for recipes and we hasten to oblige. Here are three old favorites:

Bay-Rose Potpourri

To three quarts of rose petals add 12 torn-up bay leaves, two handfuls of lavender flowers and three handfuls of mixed flower petals. Mix in two ounces of powdered orris root; one ounce of ground nutmeg; one-fourth ounce each of cinnamon and ground cloves and one-half ounce of oil of rose geranium.

This makes rather a lot. If you don't have this amount of petals remember the general rule of one tablespoon of fixative (orris) to a quart of petals plus a tablespoon of spice.

Spice Potpourri

Mix one quart of rose petals with one half pint of lavender flowers, one cup of jasmine tea leaves; a teaspoon of anise seed; one tablespoon of ground cloves, nutmeg and cinnamon mixed; and five drops each of oils of jasmine, rose geranium, patchouli and rosemary.

Exotic Potpourri

Combine one quart of rose petals with 1 cup of jasmine tea leaves and one cup of ground sandalwood. Add a heaping tablespoon of mixed ground nutmeg, cinnamon, allspice, mace and cloves. Add one heaping tablespoon of dried and ground orange peel, three drops of eucalyptus oil, five drops of peppermint oil, and one tablespoon of lavender flowers. If you can't get powdered sandalwood use one teaspoon of oil of santal.

Apologies are in order to Trowel and Error Garden Club whose beautiful Wildflower Garden near the Garden Center Trial Gardens at the Grosse Pointe War Memorial is a new and delightful attraction. This column mistakenly attributed the garden to the Grand Marais Garden Club which has a plot in the Trial Gardens. The members of Trowel and Error Garden Club have created a mini-woodland setting for a varied array of wild herbs, flowers and plants which promises to become more and more beautiful as time goes by. Their efforts are much appreciated.

Soroptimists celebrate anniversary

Soroptimist International of Grosse Pointe will celebrate its 30th anniversary July 23 at the Lochmoor Club. The anniversary marks 30 years of service and support to Grosse Pointers and to people outside the community.

Within Grosse Pointe, the club helps to fund the hospice at Cottage Hospital, the Foundation for Exceptional Children, the SOC revolving loan fund, the War Memorial association, the public library and others.

Outside the area, the organization provides clothing and supplies to Turning Point, a home for abused families, and gives financial support to the Shriners' crippled children's fund and to water projects in Third World countries.

The Grosse Pointe Soroptimist Club is composed of professional women and women who own or manage their own businesses. The local club maintains contact with sister groups throughout the world. Membership is open and inquiries are invited.

GP woman is finalist in national frozen food contest

Dona L. Reynolds of Grosse Pointe was selected as one of 100 national finalists in the frozen food industry's second nationwide search for "America's New Traditional Homemakers." She is also one of 20 finalists from the midwest.

Her nomination was selected from the more than 5,000 entries received from all 50 states and the District of Columbia. There were five regions in the search — the far west, southwest, southeast, northeast and midwest — each with 20 finalists.

The search, which ran from Jan.

1 to March 31, originally came from a market research study of consumer attitudes and lifestyles which identified millions of Americans as "New Traditional Homemakers" — active consumers with fast-paced lifestyles who use and enjoy frozen foods as an integral part of their lives.

Reynolds is president of the East-West Publishing Co. and author of the book, "So Now You Own a Food Processor." She claims that her children would rather eat frozen foods than go out to dinner. "Now that I have learned to rely on the frozen food section of my grocery store life runs much smoother."

From the 100 finalists five regional New Traditional Homemaker winners will be named in early June and each receive $2,000 in prize money. A national winner will be selected from the five regional winners and awarded a grand prize of $10,000.

It is recorded that when Cadillac founded Detroit in 1701 he brought with him from Quebec a gardener whose duty it was to lay out orchards and gardens. After a short time each householder at the new settlement had his own private garden, and formal plantings were established — the Military Garden, the Naval Garden, the Garden for the Mess and the Jardin du Roy. There was also a garden for the priest who presided over the Church of Ste. Anne, whose birthday was the day of Cadillac's auspicious landing with his hundred men. Here were many herbs for the use of the parishioners and flowers for use on the altar.

Each householder was required to clear and cultivate his land. In order to assure each one a frontage

Woman's Health

When bones grow older

By William T. Mixson, M.D.

We think of bones as a hard substance that will not change throughout our lifetime. But in reality, our bones are changing all the time through a natural process called "remodeling." With remodeling, the body gets rid of old bone, and then lays down new bone.

In women, this process goes on continuously until about age 35. After that, the amount of new bone deposited begins to slow down, due in part to changes in the body's production of the hormone estrogen. After menopause, when the amount of estrogen produced declines dramatically, so does the production of new bone. For some older women, this decrease is particularly severe, causing the bones to become brittle and thin. This disease is known as osteoporosis and it strikes one in four women over the age of 60.

Women who are most susceptible to osteoporosis are thin, small, fair-skinned women who are inactive, smoke, and have a family history of the disease. The major problem of osteoporosis is the weakened bones and joints, which may fracture under normal stress. The most common fractures are of the hip, spine and wrist. A more obvious sign of the disease is some loss in height. In certain women the vertebrae will compress and curve, causing a "dowager's hump."

Many doctors believe that the best way to prevent osteoporosis or arrest the disease if it has begun after menopause is by taking small amounts of estrogen (usually combined with another hormone progesterone). There are risks and benefits to estrogen replacement therapy that you need to discuss with your physician. There also is evidence that having a diet rich in calcium (or taking calcium supplements) and doing a regular program of weight-bearing exercise (jogging, etc.) will reduce the risk of osteoporosis after menopause.

Osteoporosis itself will not kill you, although it can cause joint or back pain. A broken hip caused by osteoporosis, however, is a major cause of death in older people. Also, any broken bone can be a major disaster for an older person because of complications, hospitalization, and the physical and emotional effects on their lifestyle. Whether you've reached menopause or not, talk to your doctor about building "better" bones for the future.

Single, free copies of "Preventing Osteoporosis" (p-048) are available by sending a stamped, self-addressed, business size envelope along with the name of the booklet to: The American College of Obstetricians and Gynecologists, Resource Center, 600 Maryland Ave., S.W., Washington, DC 20024.

A gourmet treat in shades of ruby

The following recipes are from the low-calorie, low-cholesterol, budget-wise kitchens of Thyra Grey Howard and Helena DeWitt Roth.

Menu:

Sherried Consomme

2-1/4 cups consomme
2 Tbsp. dry sherry
Use diluted canned consomme, chicken broth or bouillon cubes with hot water.

Heat consomme to the boiling point, remove from heat. Stir in sherry wine and while still steaming pour into four cups. Delightful when served with Cheese Rounds.

Calories per cup about 16. Cholesterol about 0.

Ginger Cranberry Salad

1 package low-cal orange or lemon gelatin
1 cup boiling water
1 can (16 ounces) low-calorie cranberry sauce or jelly
2 Tbsp. finely minced crystallized ginger

In medium-sized bowl thoroughly dissolve gelatin with boiling water. Stir in cranberry sauce or jelly. Refrigerate mixture until it slightly thickened. Stir in minced ginger. Refrigerate until well set. Unmold on lettuce cups. Makes six servings.

Calories about 80 per serving. Cholesterol 0.

Shrimp Stuffed Fish Fillets

2 Tbsp. margarine
1/2 cup finely chopped celery
3 Tbsp. finely chopped onion
1 can (4-1/2 oz.) medium shrimp divided
1-1/2 cups soft bread crumbs
1 egg, lightly beaten
4 tsp. Worcestershire sauce divided
6 large (2-1/2 lbs.) fillets of sole or flounder

1 can (10 oz.) frozen condensed cream of shrimp soup, thawed
1/2 cup skim milk
1 Tbsp. chopped parsley
1/8 tsp. salt

In a small skillet melt margarine. Add celery and onion, saute five minutes. Drain and rinse shrimp. Reserve 1/4 cup shrimp for sauce. Finely chop remaining shrimp. Combine chopped shrimp with sauteed celery and onion. Stir in bread crumbs, egg and 3 teaspoons Worcestershire sauce — mix well. Place a heaping tablespoon of filling on each fillet. Roll tightly. Fasten with a toothpick if necessary and place in a 2-quart shallow baking dish; set aside. In a small saucepan combine soup, milk, parsley and salt with reserved 1/4 cup shrimp and remaining 1 tsp. Worcestershire sauce. Mix well. Heat only until hot. Pour over fish rolls. Cover and bake in preheated moderate oven, 350 degrees, for 45 to 50 minutes or until fish flakes with a fork. Serves six.

Calories per serving about 279. Cholesterol 138 mgs.

French Style Peas

1/4 cup thinly sliced scallions
1 Tbsp. margarine

2 cups frozen or fresh peas
1 tsp. sugar
1/2 cup water
1 cup shredded lettuce
Saute scallions in margarine until tender. Stir in peas, sugar and water. Bring to a boil; cook covered until peas are tender, about 5 to 8 minutes. Remove from heat. Stir in lettuce. Makes four servings.

Calories about 90 per serving. Cholesterol 0.

Strawberry Shortcake

2 cups unsifted all-purpose flour
2 Tbsp. sugar
3 tsp. baking powder
1/4 tsp. salt
1/2 cup unsalted margarine
1 beaten egg
1/3 cup evaporated skimmed milk
1/3 cup skim milk
3-1/2 cups sugared fresh strawberries
1 pkt. whipped topping whipped

Sift together dry ingredients; cut in margarine with a pastry blender until mixture resembles coarse crumbs. Combine egg and both kinds of milk; add all at once, stirring just enough to moisten. Spread dough in well greased 8x1-1/2-inch round cake pan, building up the edges slightly. Bake in preheated 450-degree oven for 15 to 18 minutes or until shortcake tests done. Remove from oven; cool on rack about five minutes. Split into two layers; lift up very carefully. Spread margarine on bottom layer. Spoon strawberries and whipped topping between layers and over top. Serve warm. Makes six servings.

Calories about 298 per serving. Cholesterol about 30 mgs.

Actual calorie count may be higher because tart berries require more sugar.

Variations: Raspberries, blackberries, blue berries, peaches, oranges and other fruits may also be used.

A new musical comedy, "The Ballad of Conrad and Loretta," opens Friday, July 18, at 8 p.m. at the Attic Theatre, Third at West Grand Boulevard. The play will be presented through the end of the summer season.

"The Ballad of Conrad and Loretta," written by Christopher Reed and Ronald Martell, is a whimsical tale of two down-and-outers — a rangy, singing cowboy and an ex-lady-of-the-night — intent on a career in show business. They meet in a diner, fall in love, become country-western stars, fall out of love, face obstacles, fall back in love and live happily ever after — all in six days. The show is interspersed with songs that range from country to rock to old-fashioned show tunes.

Show times are Thursday and Fridays at 8 p.m., Saturdays at 5:30 p.m. and 9 p.m., and Sundays at 2:30 p.m. and 6:30 p.m. Tickets are available at the box office, 875-8284 and all TicketWorld outlets. They may be purchased by phone with Visa or MasterCard.

The best laid plans ...

What I wanted to do this week was a mood piece on coaches' and parents' reactions during a Little League game. So, off I went to find myself a game last Wednesday night.

Well, only a raw novice to this job would go looking for a game this late in the season. That's what I found out when, at 8 p.m., I walked into the Woods' Ghesquiere Park just in time to hear the final cheer of the year at a Woods-Shores game between Miami and Tucson.

So, there I stood, watching Werner Lueckhoff help hand out trophies to the first- and second-place finishers and give the gathered parents, players and coaches a few words about the season.

To tell you the truth, I was so busy watching the faces of proud parents and the looks on the kids' faces as they received their trophies that I didn't find out who took first place. Hopefully, someone — like a coach or parent — will send the paper a round-up of the play-offs in the division.

So, now I had to fall back on Idea Number Two, which is to ask ...

Why don't they ...

Make white tennis balls anymore? Everywhere you go, they are either green, yellow, red or every color in the rainbow except white. The opposite was true a few years ago, though.

Now, it may be that the balls are easier to see. But in that case, hockey pucks — those dull, black discs — should be redone in fluorescent colors.

Personally, I think it's so tennis players can color-coordinate their togs and tennis balls. It's still the only sport — besides golf — where players can dress in clothes that glow in the dark.

And speaking of tennis, why don't they make tennis rackets the normal size anymore? All of the graphite-boron composite racket heads I've seen look like you could use them to cover garbage cans, not hit tennis balls.

I was under the impression that tennis is a game of skill. Having a racket the size of Massachusetts sort of eliminates that, doesn't it?

While we're talking about improvements that may not be so, why don't Little Leagues require kids to begin using wooden bats at, say, the 12-and-up division? Aluminum bats are fine, because they're light and kids can get into the sport sooner. But it throws off the swing. They aren't the same as wood.

Should a kid ever decide to go on to play pro ball, somewhere along the line, he's going to have to learn to bat all over again. Okay, they can use aluminum all the way through college ball, but making the transition early could give the kid a couple of extra money-making years in the pros.

Why doesn't someone organize some friendly adult soccer, rugby and hockey teams in the area? Or, if they're out there, why don't the people who run them get information out to all the weekend warriors (like yours truly) who have some time and some adrenalin that needs burning?

Why don't they make jointed River Runts (a trademark, by the way) anymore? I've seen solid ones in the store for the last couple of years, but can't find a jointed one to save my soul.

The reason I asked, is because my father has a jointed River Runt I've used with moderate success for pike. It has the tooth marks in it to prove it. He says he's used it for walleye and even took a sturgeon on it.

Every time I reach for it in the box, though, I know that, with one fray in the line, one large clump of weeds or one poorly-timed turn, the little guy is going to become a fond memory. So there it sits. Instead of catching fish, it's collecting dust.

Why don't organizations pay a little more attention to what they're sending out? I received a letter from the Michigan High School Football Coaches Association out of Riverview the other day. The letter was sent to the Grosse Pointe News Sport's Department at 99 Kercheval in Grosse Pointe Farms.

Now, one mistake is okay with me. I make 'em all the time. But that many? It makes me wonder whether the sender has been hitting the blocking sled sans helmet lately. Okay, enough of that.

Sorries

I do have a few apologies to hand out.

First one goes to the five Grosse Pointe Yacht Club swimmers who had their names dropped from last week's "GPYC keeps on winning." The swimmers who brought in points for the club at two recent meets included Eric Steiner, Debbie Anderson, Joe Reynolds, David Garvey and Sean Gardella.

My second apology goes to all the people who submitted material for last week's paper that didn't get in.

I had a call from Ron Lucas Thursday (a very friendly, polite call, by the way). He was asking about why the Connie Mack results didn't get in.

Well, after I explained it to him and he thanked me and hung up, it dawned on me that I hadn't really given him a good explanation.

Putting together a page is like putting together a jigsaw puzzle, I told him. You look for a piece that fits and plug it in.

Prep stars find baseball glory elusive

By Peggy O'Connor

When South High graduate Tom Temrowski signed a pro baseball contract with the Houston Astros last month, he joined an elite group of Grosse Pointe high school products who have embarked on professional baseball careers.

Temrowski, a 25-year-old first baseman, reported to the Houston Astros' low-A level farm team in Auburn, N.Y. in early June. One week later, he was promoted to the club's high-A squad in Asheville, N.C. "He wrote us a letter ... and everything was so up, so positive," said Temrowski's mother, Mary. "He said, 'Mom, I've never in my life been so happy.'" Astros' officials have told Temrowski if he continues to improve, he will reach AA level by next spring.

Things haven't gone quite so smoothly for some of the Pointe's other major league hopefuls.

Five other members of North High's 1980 Class A state championship baseball team signed pro contracts in the years following the title. Only three of them are still involved in baseball.

Bill Babcock, the fireballing lefthander who signed a contract with the American League's Chicago White Sox a week after his high school graduation in 1981, has been beset by shoulder problems throughout his minor league career. His best season was in 1984, when he was 10-2 with a 1.89 earned run average with the Sox' AA team in Glen Falls, N.Y.

Among his injuries have been a pulled muscle in the rotator cuff of his left arm, surgery to remove bone chips from his elbow and tendinitis in the rotator cuff. Despite the setbacks, and the fact that several of the players Babcock played with in the 1981 Instructional League — namely Mike Pagliarulo, Otis Nixon, Mark Gubicza, Buddy Biancalana and Jose Calderon — have already made it to the majors, the 23-year-old pitcher is still hanging in there, his mother says.

"He's doing pretty well, just working out every day in Florida, waiting for the doctors to give him the okay to play," Mary Babcock says. Babcock had surgery performed last winter on his shoulder by the same surgeon who operated recently on Detroit Tiger pitcher Dan Petry. Babcock has progressed to the point where he can throw just about anything, his mother says. He's concentrating on staying in shape, working out and throwing batting practice for the Sox' Sarasota team. When he gets the medical okay, he'll join the Sox' AA squad in Birmingham, Ala.

"His manager told him that if he was healthy, he'd be in the big leagues by now. He was depressed for a while after the surgery, but he seems to have his head on straight. He's got a good attitude about it all," Mary Babcock says.

"Billy knows he's a lucky boy, getting picked right out of high school and getting his college paid for no matter what. He's got it made and he's aware of that. Some of these boys have nothing to fall back on if they don't make it."

ONE WHO didn't make it is Babcock's teammate Tom Shook, who helped pitch the Norsemen to that 1980 title. He took the collegiate baseball route after graduation that summer, starting for Michigan State's Spartans for four years and leading the Big Ten with an ERA of 1.01 in 1984, his senior year. After earning his degree in telecommunications from MSU, he was drafted and signed by the Kansas City Royals on June 14, 1984 — four years to the day after the Norsemen were crowned champs.

After three weeks with the Royals' low-A team in Eugene, Ore., Shook was promoted to the high-A club in Charleston, S.C. It was the top team in the best of the southern leagues, but in 1985, after Shook injured an arm, he was released despite therapy which brought him back to nearly 100 percent efficiency.

"The bottom line was that after some coaching changes at that level, Tommy didn't really have anyone in his corner to push for him after his injury," says his mother, Mrs. Jack Shook. "But he told us that he wouldn't have given the experience up for anything."

Today Shook, 24, is employed with the medical products division of Gore and Associates. He is based in Springfield, Ill., but travels throughout the midwest, supplying vascular surgeons with equipment. Shook manages to drop by the minor league baseball scene in Springfield to keep abreast of the activities of former teammates, but his mother reports that he is busy — and very happy — out of baseball.

"It was a great experience for all of us. Sad times, but good times, too. And isn't that what life is all about?" asks Mrs. Shook.

John Hackett's baseball career has done nothing but improve. The lefty compiled a 14-0 record for the championship Norsemen, then moved on to star at Macomb Community College — where he was named to the NJCAA All-American team — and at Birmingham Southern College.

In 1985, he signed a minor league contract with the St. Louis Cardinals' Erie, Pa., team in the A-level New York-Penn League. Again, Hackett was a hit from the start, gaining a spot in the rotation and jumping off to a 2-0 mark against the league's top teams.

This year Hackett, 23, finally found his planned journey to the big leagues stalled, at least temporarily. He was out for some time with arm problems, but his family reports that he is "pretty well, and playing again" with the Erie Cardinals.

John Clem, 23, and Bob Brown, 23, are the other two members of that 1980 North High team to sign pro contracts. Clem inked a one-year rookie pact with the Seattle Mariners last June, and reported immediately to the organization's low-A club in Birmingham, Wash.

At last glance, Clem was batting .268, with 138 at bats, with Wausau. He's had three home runs, 20 RBI and four stolen bases so far.

Brown was recently released from the A-level Lakeland Tigers. He has taken a job with a supply sales company and will soon be transferred to Boston, Mass., according to his former coach, Frank Sumner. Sumner says he had offered Brown a spot as an assistant football coach, which Brown almost took.

"Some of these boys have nothing to fall back on if they don't make it."

Grosse Pointe Little League World Series

Woods-Shores

Webster defines 'perfection' as the quality or condition of being perfect; extreme degree of excellence according to some given standard. "It is a state eagerly sought after at all levels of athletic competition, but rarely achieved on a personal level and virtually never attained at a team level."

The rare instances, although remote, remain indelibly etched in memory: Don Harsen's 1957 World Series perfect game, and the 1972 Miami Dolphins perfect 17-0 season are among the few.

But consider the 1986 major league Reds of the Woods-Shores Little League, a team managed by Jim Rini — coached by Mike McCann and Ted Kirles — and comprised of David Applegate, Kevin Bai, William Duell, Brian Duignan, Mike Haskell, Geoff Kirles, Shawn McCann, Aaron Michael, Britt Pierce, Jay Radloff, Ryan Roules, and Matt Wituski.

The Reds have achieved a rare measure of perfection, and in the process have established new standards against which future teams may be measured.

Success has come both on and off the field. The Reds launched the season on a winning note as they set a league team record by surpassing the $3,000 mark in the spring candy sale as outfielder Kevin Bai raised the individual standard to more than $800. Lady Luck continued to smile on the Reds in the annual bike raffle as pitcher-shortstop Mike Haskell and outfielder Brian Duignan rode home on shiny new red Schwinn 10 speeds.

The records continued to pile up during the season: (1) most consecutive shutouts (four); (2) most runs during a season (220); (3) highest run differential (220 vs. 49); and (4) most hits by an individual player (Pierce — 47) easily eclipsing the old record of 40.

The crowning achievement was the season itself, as the Reds recorded only the second perfect season in the league's history by posting a 21-0 record (duplicating a feat achieved by the 19-0 1977 Reds), and coming back to capture the World Series after losing in the opening game.

But scratch the surface of this team and you will find something more than merely a single, isolated season of athletic achievement. What you will find is a tradition of excellence which has extended well over the past two decades.

The man most responsible for orchestrating the success of the Reds over those years is team manager Rini. Since beginning his coaching career 23 years ago, Rini's teams have averaged a pennant every three years on their way to capturing eight National League championships (yet another Woods-Shores League record), and a fourth World Series championship in the process.

Rini, who this year was ably assisted by coaches McCann and Kirles, is a Little League coaching rarity; he neither lives in Grosse Pointe (he played in the Woods-Shores League as a youth, however) nor has yet to coach his own child (although three-year-old son Jeff is a regular at practices and games). When asked why he makes the almost daily trip from his Mount Clemens home from April to early July, he replied quite simply: "I enjoy it."

The Reds have in fact become a Rini family heirloom, since Jim's father, Nicholas, after whom the World Series runner-up trophy is named, began coaching the team in 1961 one year after its inception. Jim joined his father's team as a coach in 1964 at the age of 15, and began operating the team four years later.

The Reds' manager, who is equal parts task master and teacher, is a strong believer in the adage "practice makes perfect." The fundamentals, which are taught and continually reinforced during practices and exhibition games of April, become reflex actions of a well disciplined team in the games of May, June, and July. It may be difficult for parents and team members to believe, but Rini "once played for a coach who didn't believe in practice."

When asked to compare this year's edition to the excellent Reds teams of the past, Rini replied emphatically that it was "easily my best hitting and fielding team," and possessed "more pitching and overall depth" than any team he has ever coached.

That the accomplishments of the just concluded season have not yet fully registered is evident when he says "I still can't believe that a team can go through an entire season without a loss. It's unbelievable!" There is a cautious optimism when he looks to next year: "I expect to be competitive (eight of the 12 team members return), but all National League teams will be improved. It would be unrealistic to expect another perfect season next year, however."

On paper the World Series appeared a mismatch — the undefeated Reds against the American League champion Yankees, who had not qualified for the series until the final game of the regular season. But the Yankees had been the only team during the regular season to take the Reds into extra innings, losing only after yielding two runs in the seventh on four walks and an infield out.

Fueled by momentum of the tight American League pennant race, the Yankees opened the scoring by parlaying a Jeff Thomas walk and Gary Corona single into the first inning run off Reds ace starting pitcher Britt Pierce.

The Reds answered with two of their own on a walk to Michael, a double by Pierce, and a wild pitch. The apparently familiar scenario took an unexpected turn in the second, however, as the normally redoubtable Reds defense turned porous and the Yankee hitting turned equally timely. Walks to John Maliszewski, Stephen Guest, and Danny Devlin interspersed with singles by Kevin Magee, Terry Thompson, and Corona resulted in four Yankee runs and a 5-2 lead.

The Reds characteristically fought back in the bottom of the second by loading the bases on walks to Bai and Duignan and a Haskell single. In the game's pivotal play, Yankee pitcher Sam Sanom was more than equal to the challenge, however, as he fired a third strike past the dangerous Pierce to retire the side. Although only two innings had been played, it became clear that the Yankees were about to accomplish what no team had been able to do during the regular season. Final score: Yankees over Reds, 7-3.

The second game began with each team scoring a run in the first. Yankee starter Sam Sanom yielded a double to Applegate which scored Haskell who had walked to open the game. In the Reds half of the first, starter Matt Wituski settled down after a Corona RBI single to slip third strike curves past both Sanom and Maliszewski with runs on second and third.

As in game one, the top of the second provided to be the games pivotal inning. Wituski struck out to start the inning, but Will Duell followed with a walk. Singles by Bai and Duignan loaded the bases.

Following a bases loaded walk to Haskell and a fielder's choice, Pierce, Applegate and Shawn McCann hit safely to send five more Reds' runs across the plate. The Yankees could muster only a single run on a pair of run producing doubles by MaGee and Thompson in their half of the inning, as the second inning ended 7-2. After Wituski set the Yankees down 1-2-3 in the third; he was replaced by Pierce who completed the game by registering seven strikeouts in the last three innings and helped complete the scoring with the series home run over the center field fence. Final score: 10-2; Reds victorious.

Game three opened under cloudy skies with Pierce pitching for the Reds and Thomas on the mound for the Yankees. Once again, as he had done in the second game, Thompson opened the game for the Yankees by reaching base (third) on a throwing error, this time following a well executed bunt.

The Yankees appeared poised to open the scoring with a runner on third and nobody out. The advantage quickly disappeared, however, as Pierce made a perfect throw to the plate following a Danny Devlin grounder up the middle to retire the sliding Thompson. The Yankee half of the first ended uneventfully as Wituski threw out Devlin attempting to steal, and Pierce retired Corona on a grounder to Haskell.

In the most improbably half inning of the series, the Reds scored five runs without benefit of a hit: five of 10 batters sent to the plate walked. Two were hit by pitches. Once again the outcome had been decided early, but the parade of Red runs continued: three on the second, six in the third, four in the fourth and six in the fifth. The Yankees attempted to make a game of it in the second and third, but were only able to score three runs off Pierce, who went all the way to record a 24-3 victory.

The improbable season concluded with Pierce engulfed in a sea of red uniformed well wishers.

For six of the Reds' 12 team members, however, the season will continue indefinitely. The six, which include Applegate, Haskell, McCann, Michael, Pierce, and Wituski, were named to the National League All Star team, which begins regional competition Saturday at Elworthly field. (By Earl Duignan)

CARDINALS-YANKEES
A seven-run rally in the first inning was too much for the Yankees to overcome as the Cardinals took the World Series Championship Saturday in the deciding game of the three game series.

Ed Dorda had the heavy bat for the Cards with a two-run homer in the first inning and another two-run blast in the fourth, going three-for-three at the plate. Chris Holley also homered in the first for two RBI. Both sluggers will return next year.

Other Cardinals scorers were Chad Schomaker, who had an impressive series defensively at shortstop; Brandon Lulis; Donny DeSerrano; Kevin Barnes; Ryan McCartney; and Danny Commner.

With the bases loaded in its half of the first, Kevin Rauch had an RBI walked scoring Dan Minadeo for the Yankees' only run in the 9-1 game.

Defensively, the Cardinals played errorless ball. Comer was the starting pitcher and was relieved in the third by DeSerrano, who allowed no runs and struck out six.

The game ended dramatically with a double play; DeSerrano to Dorda at first to Kevin Barnes who got the Yankee runner at third for the final out.

Cardinal manager Pat Coffee attributed the win entirely to the boys, but his part and the expertise of coach Larry Harding cannot be overlooked.

Other members of the champion Cardinals who contributed to the win were Danny Paull and Doug Wolff. Jason Kester — with a key hit in the second game — and Jim Dailey round out the squad.

The first game of the series had to be called in the top of the fifth due to inclement weather and darkness. (8-0 Cardinals).

The second game was the most exciting of the series with a 12-11 victory for the Yankees. Matt Recht and Rauch each had three run homers for the Yankees in that contest. Holley homered for the Cardinals.

Congratulations were extended to the 1986 World Series champion Cardinals and the runner up Yankees for fine seasons with the distribution of trophies.

CARDINALS-RANGERS
The Cardinals earned a play-off spot in the division with a 17-1 victory over the Rangers. The Cards were led by three runs from Chris Johnson and two runs each from Jeff Prysak, Matt Spicer, Matt Dakho and Chris Erickson. Brandon Kahlich scored the lone Ranger run on a single by N. Smith.

CUBS-CARDINALS
In a preview of the eventual championship for AAA, the Cardinals came from behind to defeat the Cubs 9-8. Trailing in the sixth by two runs, with one out, four straight hits by Johnson, Spicer, Prysak and Eugene Agnone tied the game. After an intentional walk to Chris Fox, Brian Clute came through with the winning hit, scoring Prysak. J. Rolka earned the pitching victory.

GIANTS-CARDINALS
With 10 hits in the second inning — capped by a Jody Hardingham triple — the Cards broke open the game and went on to a 9-4 win. Prysak and Agnone helped the team with strong pitching performances. Brian Law, Eric Kisskalt and Dan Gutmann accounted for the Giants' runs, while B. Dossin was two-for-two at the plate.

CARDINALS-BRAVES
In the opening round of play-offs, the Cards beat the Braves 15-4. In the hotly-contested match, the Cardinal hitting attack was led by Carl Rashid, Lawrence DeLuca, Clute and Fox. Cardinal pitcher Agnone helped his own cause, fielding a sharp grounder to start a double play — Fox to Prysak at first. Thom Rhoades threw out two Braves attempting to steal to kill another rally.

CUBS-CARDINALS
The AAA championship was decided July 3 at Kerby Field, with a 12-1 Cardinal victory over the Cubs. Combined three-hit pitching performances by Cardinals Rolka and Agnone, coupled with the balanced hitting attack were the margin of victory in the game.

With a season-long rivalry at stake, the Cardinals' Prysak, Fox and Spicer were stand-outs defensively, while Clute and Hardingham had two RBI each.

NOTRE DAME-MICHIGAN
Notre Dame defeated Michigan in the first game of the World Series, 15-7.

Pitching for Notre Dame were Andy Crowley, Cory Schroeder and Kevin Schroeder. For Michigan, pitchers were Ryan McCain, John Rutherford and Dave Cusmano. Mark Campbell, Eric Vreland and Mike Maronate doubled for Notre Dame. Steve Manire hit a two-run homer over the fence and Jason Jodway, Chris Dettmer, Chris Sope and Andy Brewer doubled for Michigan.

Michigan outscored Notre Dame 8-7 in game two of the best-of-three series. On the mound for Michigan were Rutherford and Cusmano. Pitching for Notre Dame were Crowley and Justin Braun.

Michigan's Manire and Dettmer belted out doubles while Rutherford was perfect at the plate with two doubles and a single. His double in the fifth drove in the winning run. Crowley hit a double off the fence for Notre Dame in the third; Schroeder collected two doubles; and Vreland tripled in the third, but was thrown out at the plate.

Notre Dame won the deciding game of the series, beating Michigan 13-0. Michigan's Terry Holusha got the only hit off Notre Dame pitchers Braun and Schroeder. Holusha was later tagged out at the plate by catcher Robbie Bacon while trying to steal home.

Braun got two of the three Notre Dame hits; the other was by Campbell, who turned the only double play of the first inning, with a tag on a runner and a throw to first. Schroeder received the game ball.

Michigan pitchers included Jodway, Holusha, Cusmano, McCain and Rutherford. The two teams ended the season with identical 14-4 records.

Benz heads for Goodwill Games

By Mike Andrzejczyk

When you turn on WTVS from Atlanta, Ga. July 20, to watch the Goodwill Games from the Soviet Union, keep your eye out for Grosse Pointe's Brian Benz.

Benz, 23, will be sculling one-on-one against a racer from the Soviet Union in the single, lightweight sculling division.

"It feels real good. I'm very excited," Benz says of his upcoming race. Unlike other events at the Goodwill Games — the brainchild of media mogul Ted Turner — only the United States and the Soviet Union will have scullers, he adds.

He earned his berth for the games by taking a third place at the men's nationals at Indianapolis three weeks ago. It took a little luck, too, because the first two finishers declined to participate in the games.

The City resident has been rowing for six years with the Detroit Boat Club, which practices daily off Belle Isle at about sunrise. Benz says that, besides the competition, it's the joy of getting out to beautiful places at peaceful times of the day that excites him about rowing.

Benz has been sculling since his junior days at South High School and has the same coach over all those years, head coach Dick Bell.

The single lightweight division calls for the rower to weigh no more than 70 kilos — about 160 pounds, Benz says. The scull conforms to international competition rules, weighing a minimum of 30 pounds and carrying two oars, he adds.

Racing in Moscow is going to mean a few unknowns for Benz. It'll be a scull he's never raced before against a competitor he has never raced against, Benz says.

The second part doesn't worry him as much, because he has friends that have raced against the Russians, who finished sixth in the South drops two, gets two forfeits

Grosse Pointe South's Connie Mack team dropped two games to the Warren Patriots two weeks ago, 4-3 and 4-1. South rounded out its week's action with a double forfeit decision over Anchor Bay on Sunday. Only eight Anchor Bay players were present at game time.

The Blue Devils were held to five hits in the 4-3 loss to Warren on July 1. Bill Adlhoch, Doug Lucas, Rich Cordova, Mark Carl and Tim Nugent notched the safeties, Cordova's hit accounting for two RBI.

Cordova went the distance on the mound, and was tagged with the loss. He yielded seven hits and five walks, while fanning three.

Rick Leonard gave up four runs and five hits in the first two innings on July 3, and that was more than enough as the Patriots came out on top, 4-1. Leonard fanned 11 and walked four in five innings on the hill. Dave Nystrom went the final two stanzas.

Sean Bruce had two hits, while Steve Kinsley, Adlhoch, Cordova, and Nugent notched one hit apiece. Adlhoch drove in the lone GP run.

world championships, Benz says. It's not going to be an easy race, he concedes.

Brian comes from a family of boaters. Younger brother John just got himself a summer sailing job in North Carolina on a 65-footer. Parents Ed and Fran Benz have been boating for years as well.

South played only one game last week because of the weather. The game, against Utica, was suspended after two innings July 8 and completed July 10 with the Blue Devils coming up on the short end of a 9-2 score.

South's hitters garnered only three hits off two Utica hurlers — two by Bruce and the other by Lucas. Lucas netted the team's only RBI of the day.

Loser Leonard allowed seven hits and walked 10, while fanning only four.

With one more week to play, South has an 8-5 record, and are virtually assured of a spot in the playoffs. The playoffs — for teams with a .500 record or better — get underway July 23.

The local team has not been hitting the ball, with their team batting average at a dismal .221 mark. Only two players — Bruce (.308) and Lucas (.303) are over the .300 mark.

The pitchers have a combined 2.59 ERA, but 29 errors have accounted for 22 unearned runs.

GPS meets Mount Clemens today at 6:15 at Kerby Field.

Boating

By Margie Reins Smith

Cooking aboard

Sailors' hearty appetites are legendary. It's something in the water, the wind or the sun.

Cooking for a ravenous crew while underway, however, is something like standing on one foot, patting your head and rubbing your stomach at the same time.

Boat galleys are generally small, with limited cooking equipment and even less storage space. Many have half-size refrigerators, no freezers, and miniscule preparation space. Some carry only an ice box or a portable cooler. The stove top may be two alcohol-fueled burners and there may or may not be a small oven.

Larger boats can hook up to electric power while at the dock. Some even have generators, so that stoves, electric frying pans, microwaves, coffee pots, and toasters can be carried along and used while the boat is moving.

But it's not like home. On longer cruises — even with some sophisticated equipment — you still can't run to the store for a forgotten ingredient. And you must adapt your meals and your style to the pitch and roll of the boat and the type of cooking equipment available.

Pre-planning is important. A lot of galley chefs prefer one-dish casseroles prepared at home, carried aboard, and reheated at meal time.

If your boat has electricity, you might consider a small microwave oven because it can defrost, roast, bake, heat casseroles, make coffee, cook bacon, heat soups and warm up leftovers. It can do it fast, without generating a lot of heat inside the cabin. The designated chef can cook, serve, throw away the paper plates and get the heck out of the galley to join the rest of the crew for the good times up on deck — which is probably why he/she came cruising in the first place.

Use convenience foods and individual-sized packages whenever they're available. Single-serving packages of cereal, boxed or canned juices, and finger foods such as cupcakes, cookies and granola bars are wonderful boating fare.

Use disposable plates, bowls, cups and glasses and canned soft drinks instead of bottles. (Be sure to take a container to hold the empty returnables until you reach port.) Disposable baking pans and throw-away pie plates are great for cooking and serving. But real, heavy stainless steel flatware has no substitute. Plastic knives won't cut anything but butter. Disposable forks and spoons that are sturdy enough to be useful are so expensive and so nice, you're tempted to wash them and use them again anyway. It's not much trouble to wash a few handfuls of flatware and serving utensils in a tiny galley sink.

If you'll be cooking while the boat is underway, remember it's difficult to juggle a large frying pan full of spattering grease and it's even worse trying to hang on to a large pot of boiling water while the captain dodges wakes and crashes head on through four-foot waves.

Pack the refrigerator or ice chest in reverse, with items for the last day of the cruise in the back and food for the first day in front or on top. Ice cream will never stay the proper consistency. Buy it ashore, in cones, as a special treat. Eat potato chips the first or second day out. They get gummy fast.

When you're on a long cruise, use local specialties whenever you can. Buy fresh whitefish directly from commercial fishing boats in northern Michigan and Canadian ports. Pick blueberries on shore in Georgian Bay for blueberry pancakes or pies. They're very small berries, however, so you'll need a battalion of pickers if you're going to make a few pies.

Every Canadian town, no matter how tiny, seems to have a local bakery where you can buy fresh bread, homemade rolls and made-to-order pies. Ask the dockmaster if there's a bakery within walking distance. Even though you plan to catch fish for dinner, it's only sensible to carry a few extra cans of tuna, just in case.

Experienced boaters have learned to carry a good supply of canned and non-perishable staples — enough to make several meals in case they're unexpectedly weathered in for an extra day or two in a remote anchorage. Canned fruit, soups, vegetables and juices, packages of pasta, jars of spaghetti sauce and powdered milk are good times to keep aboard all summer.

Here's a recipe for a hearty sailors' chili that can be prepared at home and reheated as the main meal or a midnight snack for a hungry crew. Nancy Yuhn said this recipe is a favorite with her husband Bob and his 13-man crew aboard Red Apple, a 46-foot Ericson, when they head north for the annual Port Huron-to-Mackinac race.

She serves it with split corn muffins and adds the cheese just before serving. It freezes well too.

NANCY'S CHEESE CHILI

- 6 pieces bacon, browned, drained and crumbled
- 2 cups chopped onion
- 2 lbs. ground beef
- 2 1/2 cups canned tomatoes, undrained
- 1 clove garlic, pressed
- 2 cups kidney beans, undrained
- 2 sprigs parsley (or dried parsley)
- dash thyme
- dash crushed cumin seed
- salt and pepper
- 4 T chili powder

Brown meat. Drain. Simmer together with remaining ingredients, except bacon. Sprinkle bacon on top. Just before serving, add your favorite cheese, cut in cubes. (Cheddar or swiss is good.)

Grosse Pointe clinches spot in Mickey Mantle tourney

Grosse Pointe clinched a spot in the playoffs of the Mickey Mantle division of the Macomb Amateur Baseball Federation with a victory over a surprisingly stubborn Mount Clemens team in the 15-16-year old traveling league.

The Pointers join 16 other teams who finished the regular season with a .500 record or better to qualify for the playoffs that began July 15 and 16 and continue through next week in the double elimination tournament to determine the league's representatives in the district and state competition to be held later this month.

The Pointers opened the final two weeks of the regular season with a tight 3-1 win at East Detroit June 30. Russ Rice started on the mound for Grosse Pointe and went all the way as he held East Detroit to only one run and scattering four hits. Second baseman Marty Saad and left fielder Marc Wysocki led the batting attack with two hits each while shortstop Chris Dudeck contributed several strong defensive plays to help shut down the East Detroiters for the second time this season.

Grosse Pointe continued its winning ways with an exciting come-from-behind victory over Lake Orion in a game played at Elworth Field on July 2. Trailing 5-2 going into the bottom of the last inning, manager Mike Johnson's troops rallied for four runs and a 6-5 win over Lake Orion, narrowing their magic number to 1 to clinch the playoff spot. Marty Saad started the rally with a lead-off single, followed promptly by another base hit by Chris Dudeck.

With runners on first and third, Russ Rice delivered another single, scoring Saad and moving Dudeck to third. After a pop out, right fielder Mark Belanger then delivered with the fourth hit of the inning, scoring Dudeck and moving Rice to third. With two outs and runners on third and second, third-baseman Brian Jones then lined a clutch single to right field, scoring the tying and winning runs, giving the Pointers a 6-5 win.

Grosse Pointe scored its other two runs in the fifth inning on three walks, a single by Saad and Rice's sacrifice fly. John Joliet was the starting pitcher for Grosse Pointe and held Lake Orion to one run until a four run outburst in the top of the fifth inning.

Dino Vento relieved Joliet to shut the Lakers down for the last two innings. Center fielder Church Thomas robbed a Lake Orion batter of a home run and prevented three runs from scoring with a sparkling over-the-shoulder running catch in the 3rd inning.

Lake Orion avenged the loss with a 4-0 shutout over Grosse Pointe in a game played at Lake Orion July 3. Outfielders Rusty Knowles and John Joliet and third-baseman Jones collected the only four hits for Grosse Pointe as the Lakers dropped the Pointe record to 10-6. Mark Belanger, starting for Grosse Pointe, struck out three, walked four and gave up only four hits in the losing cause.

Manager Mike Johnson's troops needed only one win in a scheduled double header against the Sterling Heights Mets July 6 to clinch a playoff berth, but their hopes were dashed when the umpires failed to show up after a 2 1/2 hour wait for them in a sweltering humidity.

Grosse Pointe took the disappointment out on a good Mt. Clemens team July 8, winning 2-0 behind Wysocki's two-hit shut-out to clinch the playoff spot. Wysocki struck out eight and walked three batters in the rain-shortened game that was called in the bottom of the 6th inning.

Grosse Pointe scored both their runs when Jones opened the fifth inning with a double and Wysocki followed with a triple up the gap in right center field. Catcher Mike Paul then drove in Wysocki with a sacrifice fly. Grosse Pointe's other hits were collected by Belanger, Saad, left fielder Matt Montagne, and pinch hitter Marty Van Allman.

The Pointers entered the post-season playoffs with a 13-8 overall record, ranking just behind Utica TSI and Sterling Heights Team Tire in the final standings of the American Division of the federation. Johnson hopes to have all his players available and healthy for the tournament which features very high caliber competition and the top 15- and 16-year-olds in the region. League officials meet Monday to determine seeds and playing sites for the tourney.

The Grosse Pointe team is composed of players from the Park, Woods, Farms and City, many of whom played on the 1985 Park Babe Ruth All Star team that won the state championship and the 1984 Farms team that accomplished the same feat.

Mercedes featured this year in Concours d'Elegance

More than 12,000 spectators and 194 prestige autos from 17 states and Canada will arrive Sunday, Aug. 3 for the Eighth Annual Meadowbrook Concours d'Elegance, held on the rolling lawns of Meadowbrook Hall at Oakland University.

An enlarged automotive art exhibition and art auction will again be a major attraction at the Concours. The creator of the 1986 Concours Official Poster — always a "must" for collectors — is N. Gray Counts, one of the world's top automobile artists and a noted car designer who was selected by the Concours Art Committee.

Mercedes is this year's featured automobile — appropriate since in this hundredth year of the motor car we salute a company which in 1886 created a three-wheeled engine-driven vehicle. Honorary Chair Keith Crain, vice-chairman of Crain Communications, Inc., and Chairman Richard Hinson, associated publisher and editorial director of Autoweek, are expecting a spectacular array of Mercedes automobiles.

Visitors will see a 1939 Mercedes 540-K Convertible Coupe, reportedly the last car produced by the plant in World War II — and rumored to be the exact car ordered by Hitler as a gift to Stalin. Another spectacular vehicle will be the Mercedes S-Touring.

Beautiful cars to be displayed on Meadowbrook's rolling lawns and its golf course include a selection of vintage Auburns and Buicks, as well as examples of the Marques, the Packards, the Duesenbergs and Rolls Royces.

Jaguars, Bugattis and Cords will decorate the landscape. From the midwest will come a 1911 Oldsmo-

Sandhogs focus of Breslin's latest

By Marion Trainor

Table Money By Jimmy Breslin
"Table Money" is a novel like no other. It's a portrait of a world and a way of life that most readers know little about — the sandhogs who risk their lives drilling tunnels through subterranean rocks.

At the end of the day, they go to the local bar. There they down shots and beers while their wives wait at home with the children. When they finally make it home, the money left is put on the table.

Light opera auditions

The Light Opera of Michigan, under the direction of David Pulice and musical director Felix Resnick of the Birmingham Bloomfield Symphony, will hold auditions for the 1986-87 season.

The operas will be staged at the Marquis Theatre in Northville. Auditions are Saturday, July 19, from noon to 6 p.m., and Sunday, July 20, from 12:30 to 2 p.m. at The First Presbyterian Church of Dearborn on Brady Street. Singers are paid per performance, and all roles are available.

Operas to be staged are "The Barber of Seville" (in English) — October; "Side By Side By Sondheim" — January; "Iolanthe" — March; and "The Desert Song" — May.

Audition in English. An accompanist will be provided. Strongest attention will be on the first two shows, since auditions will be held again in November.

'Club Paradise' worth checking out

by Michael Chapp

There's something about Chicago in the wintertime that just naturally makes people want to be someplace else. Two weeks ago in "Running Scared," Billy Crystal and Gregory Hines played Windy City policemen who yearned to quit their jobs and headed to Florida to open a bar. And in "Club Paradise," Robin Williams plays a Chicago fireman who leaves his job in the cold, cruel city to buy a resort on a warm, beautiful island.

He should have stayed in the cold, cruel city.

Before Williams can say "Welcome to Club Paradise," he's got more problems than a stray chicken at Colonel Sanders. The island — property of England but home to scores of black natives — is on the brink of civil war. The club is falling to pieces, and, as a result, the guests want to see Williams similarly disassembled. The farcical setting is perfect for the comedic wit of Williams, but the script, alas, is not. Yes, Williams gets a number of prime lines in the film, rattling out one-liners like a machine gun in battle, but the laughs are spread thin, and during the last half hour of the picture, they are almost nonexistent.

Frequency of laughs notwithstanding, the picture still hits the mark hard in the comedy department. The spattering of guests at the resort include many of TV's "Saturday Night Live" and "Second City." Among them are

Eugene Levy and Rick Moranis as womanizing wimps trying to get lucky in the sun; Robin Duke and

Mary Gross as conservative — if not downright prudish — girls who just want to have fun, and Steven Kampmann and Andrea Martin as a couple near divorce who hope the vacation will save their marriage. In the film's best role is Peter O'Toole as the British governor of the island who has a definite pessimistic attitude toward its political future, but who still manages to come up with a barrage of insults and observations that are funnier than anything Williams does in the film.

And, let there be no mistakes, Williams does quite a bit in the film. Among the more memorable hijinks are the ad campaign that he puts together with his girlfriend/partner (Twiggy), the trouble he gets in with his buddy/co-owner (musician Jimmy Cliff, who also performs some great new songs in the film) and the hot water he gets in when he misplaces his guests on a nude beach.

Among the least memorable happenings in the film is the civil war, which starts when a corrupt travel minister (the late Adolph Caesar) orders the natives of the island to take up arms against Williams. The sequence is almost totally void of comedy, and tacks on an extra 30 minutes to a film which would do better without the extra running time. In films of this sort, where vacation hijinks are the main raison d'etre, anything over and above the standard schtick is usually unnecessary and unfunny. Herein lies no exception.

Most of the characters are, unfortunately, underdeveloped. They serve their purpose for a selected scene and are then discarded for someone else. Too bad, too, because the Levy-Moranis team has style and charm. One would not mind seeing the two of them together in their own film sometime in the future. Likewise, Joanna Cassidy, who plays a travel reporter for the New York Times, is on screen so little, viewers almost forget who she is when she reappears at the end of the film. In short, there's too many talented people here and not enough funny lines to go around.

Still, the comedy level in "Club Paradise" is leaps and bounds above most other films of the genre, and viewers will laugh heartily more than once. Williams, though given less-than-usual material to work with, manages to pull a few comedic rabbits out of his hat, and O'Toole, one of the most under-rated actors working today, is brilliantly sublime in the reading of his character.

"Club Paradise" is worth checking into, but only at reduced rates.

Reggae music star Jimmy Cliff, actor-comedian Robin Williams and multi-Oscar nominee Peter O'Toole come ashore in "Club Paradise," a comedy about a rundown island resort.

Gymnasts may enjoy 'American Anthem'

By Marian Trainor

Looking at the title — "American Anthem" — of the glitzy, lack-luster film, the first thought is that it has something to do with patriotism, the American way and all those sentiments that are running high this year, fanned by the Statue of Liberty extravaganza.

Not so. It is the story of two gymnasts, Steve Tevere (Mitch Gaylord) and Julie Lloyd (Janet Jones), and their struggle to win a place to represent America at an international meet.

As far as the "anthem" part goes, not once do we hear what has come to be expected as part of the opening ceremonies of the elimination run-off. Instead we are beset with what has become a staple of made-for-teenager movies — booming rock 'n' roll or solemn music intended to accent the more dramatic scenes.

Directed by Albert Magnoli, who did last year's "Purple Rain," it stretches out a rather well-worn plot with hyped-up lighting and such added touches as people wearing halos.

In spite of its reliance on such stylistic props, "American Anthem" does present some first-rate gymnastic performances by dozens of gymnasts led by handsome Olympic star Mitch Gaylord, making it attractive to enthusiasts and those who have come to appreciate the sports from watching television.

There's no denying the appeal of watching these young people as they contend for a place on the winning teams, whether on television or in this film. It is fascinating to see how they have disciplined and controlled their bodies to perform amazing feats not to mention to grace and beauty of the choreographed numbers performed to music.

In a balance of so-so acting and an uninspired script, the chance to view close-up the performers doing what they do best, "American Anthem" merits applause for its presentation of what it takes and what it means to participate in this demanding competition.

It's a competition much more demanding and nerve-racking than a team sport, such as hockey. Gymnasts stand on their own as solo performers. There are no assists.

When we first meet Steve, he is moping around a gym watching others perform. At one time he had been one of them, but in a moment of anger, his unemployed father (John Aprea) broke Steve's arm. His arm healed but his frustration and disappointment with his father had broken his spirit. His father had been his inspiration, but now his father not only discourages him from competing but insists that he not even try.

Goaded by his pal, Arthur (Andrew M. White), he goes against his father's wishes and returns to training where he meets Julie, another gymnast who also has parental problems. Her parents aren't interested in her interest in competitive gymnastics.

In spite of the objections at home, Steve and Julie train under the guidance of Coach Saranhoff (Michael Pataki), who gives them quite a bit of attention.

Either to stretch out the storyline or to try to make the audience aware of why a good relationship with his father is important, some clips of Steve's former athletic achievements and his father's pride in them are thrown in.

The most satisfying parts of the film are the scenes showing the amazing performances of Gaylord and the other gymnasts.

He attends a couple of AA meetings but when the boys gather at the bar at the end of the day, he goes along.

The story of Dolores and Owey speaks to the heart of a man and woman caught up in a net woven of tradition and, in a way, necessity.

Readers go below the busy streets of New York where a worker may be blasted away by dynamite left behind in the rocks or where if he makes one mistake, he could fall into a 900-foot pit and be brought up as a mangled piece of human flesh in a plastic bag.

Breslin, who recently won the Pulitzer Prize and the George Polk Award for his column in the New York Daily News, frequently chronicles the lives and happenings of characters who live in Queens. Is it an area where he learned his trade as a newspaper man and no one tells those tales quite like him.

In this, his fifth novel, he breaks into the storyline to relate incidents in the lives of minor, but colorful, characters. There are poetic scenes, too.

Jimmy Breslin has always been a compelling writer. His talent for telling a good story and telling it well is aptly displayed in "Table Money."

The Presidential retreat, before it became "Camp David" in honor of President Dwight Eisenhower's grandson, was called Shangri-La.

HOME AT A LOSS
 I am a 75 year old white, hard working, highly successful businessman, along with my older sister, both under heavy medication, whose unprecedented philosophy is in the congressional record in Washington D.C. in May of 1958. Yet, somehow the United States government has bluntly and unhumanly missed the boat. I am treated as a Communist, which is utterly false. I associated with Communists in my school days. I ask in God's name whom of us haven't associated with Communists. As has been said, if we don't learn to live together surely we shall die together. Due to deliberate vandalism, I have moved from home to home. Even moved to Arizona where I developed 80 acres of industrial buildings out of barren sand and cottonfields. Yet, even there, a bomb threat was falsely placed against me. Our new era, which is my Hobby, are deeds — not propaganda. I have $85,000 invested at 5222 Marseilles in the Cadieux/Moross area. In the rear of his most humble showplace his once cherished dream is covered with black tar and must be sold at a loss. Home includes: three bedrooms, finished basement, two enclosed patios, enclosed front porch, fireplace, new 3 car garage, two 10x16 storage garages, complete new driveway and his lifesblood in landscaping — said MOST HUMBLE showplace.

Farms-City earns state finals berth

The Farms-City 13-year-old Babe Ruth All Stars won its district tournament and a trip to the state finals in Dowagiac by beating a scrappy L'Anse Creuse entry twice, 8-1 and 12-3.

Outstanding pitching by DeBets, Downs and Oliver was turned in for the all stars. Graves, Leins and Bellanca led the strong hitting attack. Defensively pearls were contributed by Malloy, Grambling, McMillan and Khoenle. The championship game ball went to David Vier.

Park Orioles win

John Whelan pitched five no-hit innings to get the Orioles into the finals, beating the Red Sox 7-5 June 30.

Fishing rodeo results

The 33rd annual Grand Fishing Rodeo was held June 28 in the Park, with more than 60 participants battling to catch a prize-winning fish.

Tanya Brewer and John Rodini tied for largest-fish-caught honors. The smallest fish were caught by

In the final, the Orioles collected 10 hits — six for extra bases — off three Tiger pitchers to win 12-5. The Orioles rallied, put together a great defensive effort behind Van Schwartz's three-hit effort.

Tim Harmount and Billy Faber. Catching the first fish of the rodeo was Ramon Safadi. Last fish caught in the rodeo was reeled in by Mike Killian.

Edward Safadi caught the most fish and John Wise won the craziest-catch prize — a metal rod and clams.

Local girls play well in soccer tourney

Three players from the Pointe Eagles under-12 girls soccer team recently played in the Wolverine Invitational Soccer Tournament in Livonia.

Ashley Moran, Courtney Dritson and Sarah Foley participated as transfer players on the St. Clair Shores Strikers for the tournament. The Strikers won two games and lost one in what may be the most competitive youth soccer tournament in the Midwest.

Moran, who also swims for the Grosse Pointe Yacht Club, scored one goal and assisted on another in the first game — a 4-1 victory over Cincinnati Sycamore Arsenal. Dritson and Foley played mostly defense and were very effective as the Strikers limited their opponents to two goals in three games. Moran played right wing and defense.

The Strikers lost to the London, Ont. Southwest Optimists 1-0, and defeated the Troy, Mich., Bonanza Express 1-0. Eventual winner of the girls' under-12 division was Cincinnati S.E. 74 Cardinals, who are the Ohio state girls' under-12 champions.

Overall, the Wolverine tournament drew 180 teams from throughout the Midwest and Canada. Tournament officials estimated more than 25,000 people attended.

The Shores Strikers, coached by Marj Slesak, won first place in the girls' under-12 Major Division of the Michigan Youth Soccer League.

Cycling race

The Health Care Network Greektown Cycling Classic will race through the streets of Greektown at 7:30 p.m. on July 25. Cyclists from around the world will compete for $10,000 in prizes. Pedal yourself over to share in the fun at this free spectator event. For additional information, call 354-7450.

Sports Week

Well, I should have added a couple of other things.

I try to choose a variety of items from different sports to fill open spaces. That's why you read about swimming and the Stony Creek biathlon, even though one wasn't very local. I also don't like doing things like cutting kids' names out of stories. They, after all, are the reason there are sports.

Anyway, this is it for me and my sports column days. Next week, it's back to the school beat and all the burning issues there. Be seeing you.
