

Celebrate the Fourth — and the First, too!

By Margie Reins Smith
Staff Writer

The Detroit/Windsor International Freedom Festival is a giant double birthday bash for two good friends.

Dominion Day, July 1, is a celebration of the Union of the Provinces of Canada 121 years ago, in 1867. And the Fourth of July is a celebration of the adoption of the Declaration of Independence 212 years ago, in 1776.

Detroit and Windsor have been whooping it up together for 30 years.

More than 110 events on both sides of the Detroit River are expected to attract more than three million people this year, according to Louis "Chip" Weil III, president and publisher of the Detroit News and a Grosse Pointe Farms resident.

Weil is Detroit general festival chairman for 1988. Peggy Kainz, bank officer for the Canadian Imperial Bank of Commerce, is president of the Windsor Executive Committee.

Most events are free. Many have already taken place.

The most spectacular event of the huge birthday celebration, the Freedom Festival fireworks, will be tonight, June 30. About a half-million guests will watch eight and a half tons of fireworks launched from three barges anchored in the Detroit River. Hudson's, Stroh's, WDIV-TV 4 and WCSX-FM are sponsors. The 35-minute fireworks display begins at 10:06 p.m.

"For the 1988 display, we're adding new red and green magnesium bursts and a lot more Roman candles (the white balls of fire the audience has enjoyed in the past)," said Jim Sorgi of American Fireworks Company, producers of the display.

Hart Plaza in Detroit and Dieppe Park in Windsor are popular viewing spots for the fireworks. The fireworks will be simulcast by WCSX-FM 94.7 and televised live on WDIV-TV, Channel 4.

For information updates, call the WCSX-FM Fireworks Hotline: 298-6200. Alternate date is tomorrow, July 1.

Pre-fireworks entertainment in Hart Plaza will include the U.S. Army Jazz Ambassadors, from 1:

30 to 2:30 p.m. and from 4:30 to 5:30 p.m. today. A visiting student group from Switzerland, Musikgesellschaft Ostermondigen, will play from noon until 1 p.m. and from 3 to 4 p.m.

The AAA Michigan Fireworks Concert will be held tonight at Historic Fort Wayne's third annual Fort Night. Beginning at 6 p.m., the concert will feature the 126th Army Band of the Michigan Army National Guard, the Ann Arbor Symphony Orchestra, the First Michigan Colonial Fife and Drum Corps and the Windsor Police Pipe Band. They'll perform on the parade grounds of Historic Fort Wayne. "It's an ideal picnic location and we will have refreshments available that evening. It's also a great place to watch the fireworks," said William Phenix, curator of military history for the Detroit Historical Department. Tickets are free, but are required for admission. They're available at AAA Michigan offices, Detroit Renaissance in the Renaissance Center, and at Historic Fort Wayne.

Seven drum corps representing Canada and the United States will compete tonight at 7 p.m. at Windsor Stadium in the Festival's annual Drum Corps Competition. Three classes of competition are based on age and skill. Admission is $5 for adults, $3 for senior citizens and children under 12.

The idea for a joint freedom festival birthday celebration was conceived by a Detroit journalist, Paul Lutzeier. The first International Freedom Festival took

Keeping cool

With temperatures soaring into the 90s, and over the weekend, past the 100-degree mark, residents are finding ways to cool off. At the left, Mark Rosati and Paul Kasily, employed with Vitale Dairy Services, have one of the coolest jobs in town. They deliver ice to a number of Grosse Pointe stores, including this stop at Oxford Beverage in the Woods. At the right, Henry and Maryanne Marchand enjoyed a bike ride along Lakeshore and found a shady spot to take a break. Marchand is a former Woods public safety director.

Local gaming commissioners discuss their votes

By Peter A. Salinas
Staff Writer

The favorable vote is in from the Detroit Casino Gaming Commission, and it looks as though Detroiters will get a chance to vote on an anti-casino proposition on the Aug. 2 primary ballot. There were seven Grosse Pointe residents on the 67-member commission, five of whom voted in favor of casino gambling in Detroit.

They were Ted Gatzaros, Walter B. Ford II, William Cudlip, Al Glancy III, Peter Stroh, Diane Schoenith and Peter B. Spivak. The Grosse Pointe News was able to contact four of the seven to get their views on casino gambling and why they voted the way they did.

Members of the commission were appointed by Mayor Coleman Young, who said Detroit's number-one priority is jobs and casino gambling could create as many as 50,000 jobs. The commission studied the issue for 90 days.

Walter B. Ford II

Farms resident Walter B. Ford II, chairman and chief executive officer of Ford & Earl Design Associates, Inc., and president of the Detroit Institute of Arts Founders Society, voted in favor of gambling in Detroit.

"I think the long-range direction for Detroit is to build itself into a key entertainment center in the Midwest," Ford said.

Professional sports teams — the Pistons, Red Wings, Tigers and Lions — are already popular in and around Detroit. These coupled with large-draw events such as the Grand Prix and hydroplane races give Detroit a good start on becoming an entertainment center, he said.

Expansion of this entertainment environment is not only a logical progression, Ford noted, but has already begun. He said that expansion plans for Detroit's cultural center, like Fox Theatre, Orchestra Hall and the Center for Creative Studies, are already taking place. Without a lot of effort, Detroit could become a jazz center, building on its Motown reputation.

"Gambling is just another dimension," Ford said. "With the proper controls and the right investors (it can work.)"

He said that he didn't feel there would be any negative impact on surrounding communities, like Grosse Pointe.

"I think that all surrounding communities would gain by Detroit becoming a more dynamic place," he concluded.

Ted Gatzaros

Ted Gatzaros, owner of both Pegasus and Pegasus II restaurants in Greektown and the New Center area and president of the Marquette Building Redevelopment Co., is a Park resident.

Gatzaros, who said he went into the commission with an open mind, voted in favor of casino gambling.

"Casinos are very intensive in employment," Gatzaros said. "It also requires a lot of support. The biggest problem in the Detroit metropolitan area is unemployment, and casino gambling would be one solution."

He said that while only Detroiters will get a chance to vote on a local ballot proposal, casino gaming is a metropolitan issue. He said that the services industry, such as linens, trucking, food and even computers, would be positively affected by gaming in Detroit.

"There would be a tremendous impact from the dollars earned outside of Michigan being spent in Michigan," Gatzaros said.

Juliana McMillan

By Pat Paholsky

When Juliana Woodbridge Moring McMillan moves to Florida in August, a big chunk of old Grosse Pointe will go with her.

At 94, blessed with good health, a razor-sharp mind and a wonderful sense of humor, she paints a colorful picture of an era that is far removed from today's reality.

She remembers horse-drawn sleigh rides on a frozen Lake St. Clair. Those were the days before modern refrigeration when everyone had an icehouse where they'd store ice cut from the lake. Those were the days, she said, "when it stayed winter until spring, not like it gets now."

She remembers the dances in the upstairs ballroom in her parents' house near the lake. The house, along with many of the large frame houses built then, are now gone.

And she remembers the beautiful sandy beaches that are no longer. "Lakes clean themselves by their waves and my mother would send the gardener every morning to clean the beach." She said her mother would set up long tables on the beach for dinner parties.

McMillan remembers riding her horse on Jefferson when it was a macadam road lined with chestnut trees. "I didn't like to ride him on macadam, because the stones would get under his hooves and I would have to get off and take them out. I can still hear him pushing the chestnuts out of his way."

Jefferson was called the Front Road. The Back Road was Grosse Pointe Boulevard. "The Back Road was where all the gardeners and chauffeurs began to live."

Growing up in old Grosse Pointe was wonderful, McMillan said, but life changes. "You really have to adjust to that. You can go over in the corner and sulk if you want to and people will just let you sulk."

Now she's preparing for a new life in Florida in a small retirement apartment on a lake. She says it will be hard to leave her home in the Farms where she has lived for 40 years, but she realizes she may require some care in the future.

Most of her contemporaries are gone and the people she socializes with who are younger

Farms, City alert

The Grosse Pointe Farms Water Department will undertake an extraordinary, unexpected maintenance project at its filtration plant Wednesday, July 6, beginning at one minute after midnight when a damaged high-capacity pump will be repaired.

Due to the maintenance project, residents of the Farms and City are requested to reduce their use of water from midnight to noon Wednesday morning.

If repairs are completed earlier, as officials expect they will, notification will be given on Channel 34 of Grosse Pointe Cable TV that normal use of water may be resumed.

The most important element of water usage that should be discontinued during this period is lawn sprinkling, especially sprinkling operated by automatic systems which often are set for early morning. Residents are urged to shut these systems off for Wednesday morning, in order to not over-burden the water delivery system during repairs.

Any other use of water that can be curtailed or postponed would be helpful.

Eating out

People are eating out more than ever — an average of three times a week, according to a recent survey.

The Grosse Pointe area offers a wide variety of restaurants, from Italian to French to Chinese to Mexican to American.

With this issue, the Grosse Pointe News will begin a new feature, Eating Out. It's not our intent to review the food or the service. We will give you some of the restaurant's history, what's on the menu and how much it costs as well as its hours of operation.

Eating Out will run every other week on the business pages. The first in the series, featuring the Cafe Le Chat, is on page 23A.

Fire chiefs warn residents against dangerous paint-removal method

By Peter A. Salinas
Staff Writer

As a result of a number of fires in the Farms and surrounding communities attributed to painters and homeowners removing paint with torches and electric hot guns, the Farms fire department is conducting a study to consider a local ordinance banning the use of such equipment to remove paint.

Farms Fire Chief Sam Candella said that there have been three major fires as a result of the use of torches or hot guns in the last three years — seven in the last five years.

Park Deputy Director Phillip Costa said there have been six fires in that city caused by the use of such equipment in the past two to three years.

Candella said that the problem comes from the torches heating paint to 1,100 degrees to soften and scrape it, and that wood burns at 400 to 500 degrees.

Costa, longtime Park fire chief, said that the hot paint can ignite and ooze into cracks. Inside an attic there is insulation, cobwebs and dry wood which can smolder and ignite when enough oxygen is present.

"Birds can build nests inside these overhangs and they can easily catch fire," Costa said.

Both Costa and Candella said they would never recommend anyone using a torch or hot gun to remove paint. Candella noted that one Farms fire was started by a hot gun because it was used improperly.

"Even the professionals can start a fire," Candella said.

"There is no easy way to remove paint," Costa said. "You must scrape and sand. It is more costly, but you have to look at what can happen if you use a torch."

Costa noted that there are chemicals that can be used to remove paint, but they are caustic and can stain wood or other materials if the chemical drips.

"I would never suggest that people use torches," Candella said. "Even the pros or the handyman can have problems."

Candella said the Farms will be collecting data from other cities about the number of fires caused by paint removal torches over the next few weeks. A report will be prepared for the Farms council, which would have to draft an ordinance if it were decided the city could enforce such an ordinance.

Clean-up begins on $500,000 Farms fire

By Peter A. Salinas
Staff Writer

Thirty-nine firefighters from the five Grosse Pointes and Harper Woods fought last week's fire at the Tompkins residence on Kenwood in the Farms for about seven hours and probably used 500,000 gallons of water to put out the blaze.

Farms Fire Chief Sam Candella said the first call came in at 3:14 p.m. He said painters were on the site when fire broke through the roof.

"There were three painters there who had started scraping paint using torches at 7 a.m.," Candella said. "They were working on the east side of the house and that's where the fire broke out. We estimated that the fire had been burning for four or five hours."

Candella said this was the second such fire in three weeks in the Farms.

A large area of the attic had been smoldering for awhile, before flames broke through the roof, he said. The first firemen arrived on the scene two minutes after the department received the first call.

"The second and third alarms went out within five minutes," he said.

Candella said insurance adjusters estimated damage to the dwelling at $416,000 and loss of contents was set at $100,000. With the fire confined mainly to the upper attic and second floor areas, firefighters opened up window casements, and together with neighbors, moved a lot of furniture, jewelry and other valuables out of the home. "A moving van was there that night to take the stuff away," Candella said. "We try to be as discreet as possible when we fight a fire, but sometimes it is not possible to avoid tearing things apart."

The fire produced a thick gray-black smoke that was reported as far away as the Woods.

There were three layers of roofing on the dwelling, Candella said. There was a layer of wood and asphalt that was covered with tin.

The attic was compartmentalized and had wooden floors, which made the fire difficult to fight, Candella said.

Though the fire was brought under control in several hours, there were still many hot spots. Candella said firefighters had to go inside the building and physically rip down the metal lath and plaster ceiling before the blaze could be entirely extinguished.

"It all had to come down," he said. "It was tough work in that heat."

Candella said he offered thanks to nearby residents who brought ice water, iced tea and pop to the firefighters.

"The police did an excellent job of crowd and traffic control," he said. "We didn't have any problems at all with that."

"Our Lt. Donald Giles was in charge of the scene and did an excellent job," Candella said. "He did a great job of directing the men."

Candella thanked the other departments in the mutual aid pact for their assistance.

Private work crews were on the scene the next day removing burned debris and pumping out a basement full of water.

Workmen began cleaning up the Tompkins home in the Farms last Wednesday, the day after a fire which destroyed their roof and caused extensive smoke and water damage. Water is being pumped from the basement onto the street and into sewers. Farms fire officials said that torches used to scrape paint caused the blaze.

Windstorm knocks out power, downs trees

A large area south of Jefferson in the Park was without power on the hottest day of the year — a record-breaking 104 degrees — when high winds knocked down power lines and trees Saturday, June 25.

Power outages, downed trees and arcing transformers were reported in the City, Woods and House broken in

A home on the 1000 block of Buckingham was broken into between 6:30 and 8 p.m. June 23.

Glass was broken on a side door and the thief reached in to unlock it. Two bedrooms were ransacked. Some $210 in cash was taken along with assorted jewelry.

Park, but the Park apparently suffered the most damage.

Park Capt. William Furtaw said that the dispatcher received several hundred reports of downed lines and complaints about the power outage.

Several wooden fence fires were reported as a result of the downed wires. Furtaw said that these were put out by patrol officers with water extinguishers.

A man sitting in his car on Wayburn escaped injury when an elm tree fell atop his vehicle. The auto sustained considerable damage, police said.

Most of the high wind problems began shortly before 2 p.m. Local weather officials recorded winds of over 20 miles per hour, with gusts into the 40s which blew around 104-degree temperatures.

Furtaw said that the Windmill Pointe Park pool was closed when filters quit running due to the power outage.

City police took numerous calls of downed power lines. At least six separate incidents of downed wires and one report of a downed tree were reported to that department.

The Woods received several reports of downed power lines and large tree limbs.

Most of the calls occurred between 1 and 6 p.m. There were no reported injuries.

Report on hearing next week

The public hearing for the proposed on-site expansion of the Children's Home of Detroit in Grosse Pointe Woods and the hearing to allow operation of an out-patient chemical dependency aftercare clinic was scheduled for Tuesday evening before the Grosse Pointe Woods Planning Commission.

The meeting, however, took place after the Grosse Pointe News went to press. Look for a complete story of the commission's decision in next week's issue.

Final resting place

G. Mennen Williams was buried on Mackinac Island June 20. His body had been temporarily entombed in a crypt in Detroit following his Feb. 5 funeral.

Above, the funeral procession of horse-drawn carriages, led by an honor guard of Fort Mackinac guides in 19th century uniforms, moves up Grand Hotel Boulevard. The family gathers at the cemetery, below, with Nancy Williams in white. To her left are son G. Mennen Williams Jr. and daughters Nancy Ketterer and Wendy Burns.

A longtime Grosse Pointe resident, Williams served six terms as governor of Michigan, was assistant secretary of state for African affairs, ambassador to the Philippines and chief justice of the Michigan Supreme Court.

Search is on for beauty in the Woods

In preparation for the 1988 Beautification Awards Night, members of the Grosse Pointe Woods Mayor's Beautification Advisory Commission are on the lookout for residents and business owners who are contributing to the beautification of the Woods.

Through the month of July, beautification members are scouting the community to find those businesses, churches, schools and residents who have made significant renovations, repairs or additions to their buildings, homes or landscaping between Aug. 1, 1987 and Aug. 1, 1988. Only improvements which can be seen from the street are eligible. Interior improvements are not considered for the awards.

Three Mayor's Trophies and three Honorable Mention Certificates may be awarded to businesses at the discretion of the commission. Also, several awards are given to homeowners and special presentations may be made for outstanding home renovation.

The Grosse Pointe Woods Beautification Awards are given at a reception held in November. The mayor of Grosse Pointe Woods, on a recommendation of the Beautification Advisory Commission, has honored business owners since 1975 for their efforts to keep the city's commercial area neat, attractive and in keeping with the Colonial theme.

In 1979, residential awards were added and in 1984 a distinctive ceramic tile was designed and created by the historic Pewabic Pottery to recognize and encourage major renovation of older homes in the Woods.

The Landmark Award was added in 1987.

Fireworks, pets don't mix

Each year over the Fourth of July holiday, the Michigan Humane Society sees an increase in the number of lost pets that are brought to the shelters — pets lost because they have been frightened by the sound of firecrackers and other fireworks.

Keeping a close watch on pets is necessary all year long, but pet owners should be especially vigilant during July 4th celebrations. Frightened animals have leaped tall fences, broken restraints and gone through doors when frightened by firecrackers.

Lack of unity in the Pointes halts progress

Over the years the Grosse Pointe News has often editorially supported the general idea of a single municipal government for the Grosse Pointes.

One of the arguments has been that a single government for this community of 55,000 people ought to be more efficient and more effective than the five governments that now govern the Park, the City, the Farms, the Shores and the Woods.

It also has been argued that since the Pointes make up one school district, plus a part of Harper Woods, it makes sense to consider Grosse Pointe as one community rather than five municipalities. Some also have contended that a merger into one Pointe would lessen confusion about the residential area among people who live outside the Pointes.

It is true that there already is good cooperation among the five governments in such matters as police and fire protection, but one of the weaknesses of the present system shows up every time a new service is proposed subject to the approval of all five Pointe governments.

In effect, that means that a single community can veto a proposal that is favored by the other four, either by not acting at all or by voting it down. That is, of course, the prerogative of all five governments and we're not arguing against the use of the veto by any specific government in any specific case.

We do recall, however, that a proposal for a district judge to serve all the Pointes was endorsed by several Pointe governments, but lacked the unanimity required for adoption. And just last week the Grosse Pointe Shade Tree Council abandoned its proposal for a Grosse Pointe shared community forester after three Pointe governments had approved it, one endorsed it conditionally and one never did vote on the issue.

Now there is a new issue that seeks support of the five Pointe governments for a $15,000 study of possible sites for senior citizen housing in the Pointes. Two of the governments, the Woods and the City, have approved the idea, although only the Woods made its contribution and did that with specific reservations. Two others, the Farms and the Shores, have tabled the proposal pending more information, and one, the Park, had not acted as this was written.

The study, to be undertaken by Gerald Luedtke and Associates, Inc., urban planners who have done work for several of the Pointe governments, would only determine possible sites for private development and neither the planning organization nor the underwriting municipalities would be involved in any development that did occur.

The News supported the shared community forester and we also think the proposal for a study of housing sites is a good idea. Earlier we had suggested that the senior citizens themselves ought to be polled to try to learn their desires about any community projects aimed at assisting them. We still think such a study also would be valuable in connection with the housing study.

From our conversation with several city officials, we recognize some of the problems involved with getting a consensus in support of a Grosse Pointe program or study. One of the barriers, of course, is that the municipalities operate on tight budgets and requests for additional funding, especially after annual budgets already have been adopted, must be given hard scrutiny.

Another barrier to unanimity is that individual governments have their own programs that they believe are as effective as the joint effort proposed. That was the argument in at least one municipality against cooperating with the shared forester proposal.

It is also true, of course, that residents as well as officials of the different Pointe municipalities may well have differing opinions about the value of specific projects as well as about any proposal to merge their own Pointe with the other four.

But failure of present Pointe governments to act on, or to veto, proposals that appear to have merit and warrant support tends to revive talk that the Pointes might operate more efficiently, be able to do better planning for the future and might support more worthwhile projects if the five governments could be merged into one.

Still hope for school reform?

It is disappointing that the state Legislature has not yet been able to agree on a new state school financing program in view of the agreements reached on essential parts of the proposed reform.

Both Republicans and Democrats seem to favor an increase in the state sales tax from 4 percent to 6 percent, a boost in state aid to the K-12 public schools of about $500 million a year and a reduction in local property taxes that now serve as a major support for local schools.

A difference of opinion about the timing of any state vote on the program has been ended by the passage of time. Gov. James Blanchard and his Democratic colleagues earlier had wanted the vote at the Aug. 2 primary, but the deadline for putting the issue on the ballot now has passed. However, the question still could go on the ballot in November or at a special election.

What apparently still divides the Republican Senate and the Democratic House now are the mechanisms for distributing the additional state aid as well as the Senate Republican demand that the sales tax boosts to pay for the property tax relief and for higher school aid be separate issues on the ballot.

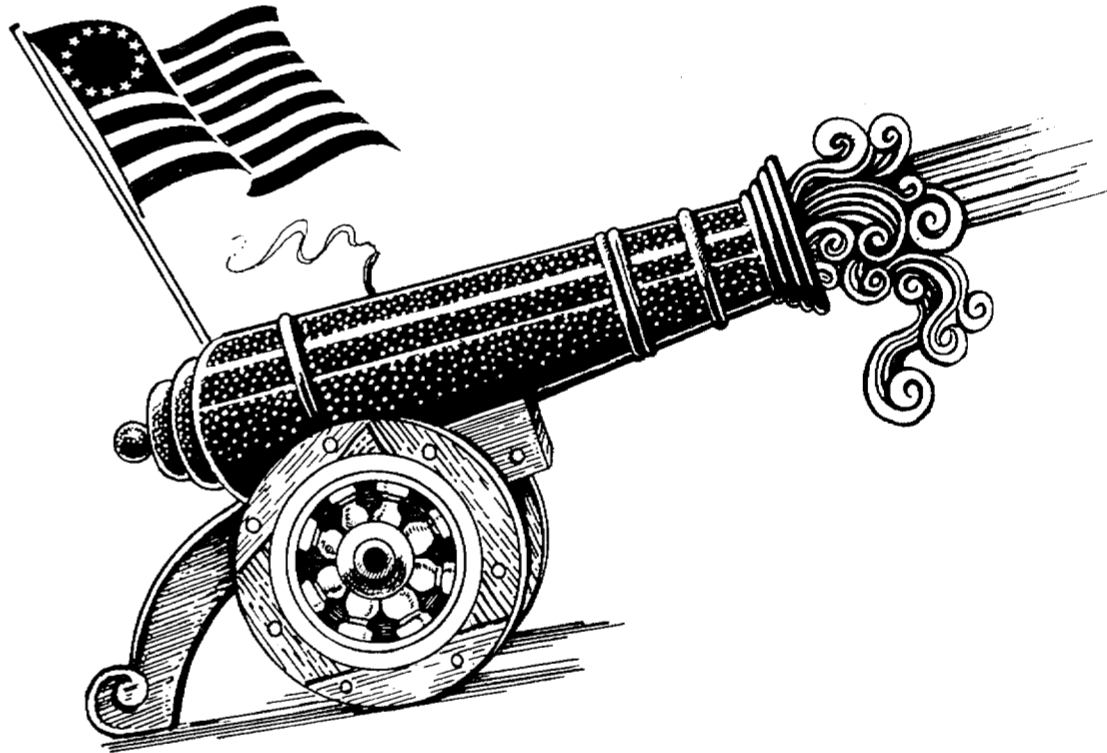

Yet there still is hope for agreement, despite the long wrangling between the parties, which can be blamed in part on the fact that this is an election year in which all House members will face the electorate. A joint conference committee has been appointed to try to work out a compromise that will be acceptable to both houses. If the conferees reach agreement by Sept. 9, the question or questions will go on the November ballot.

Yet the next two weeks are crucial to the negotiations. For the Legislature plans to adjourn for the summer about July 14. Key legislators have said that if an agreement is not reached before the summer adjournment, the school financing reform is likely to die.

In Grosse Pointe, and other out-of-formula districts, the hope still is that the legislation, if finally approved, will not include a cap on local school millage. Such a limitation would also put a cap on spending for innovations and initiatives that lighthouse districts such as ours in Grosse Pointe have been able to provide in their quest for excellence.

As we have said before, any effort to equalize educational expenditures throughout the state at the expense of districts such as ours in Grosse Pointe would tend to create egalitarianism, mediocrity and conformity, which are among the enemies of excellence in education.

Public snubbed on key issues

On two key decisions in recent weeks, Mayor Coleman Young of Detroit has ignored or attempted to bypass the public in the metro area and his constituents in Detroit.

One involved the decision to move the Grand Prix races to the western end of Belle Isle starting next year and the other was the effort to halt the proposed Detroit referendum to ban casino gambling in the city of Detroit at the Aug. 2 primary.

Nobody consulted the city council or the Friends of Belle Isle before the mayor announced that it would be necessary to move the 1989 Grand Prix to Belle Isle, because real estate developers wanted to begin construction along portions of the current course.

And it was clear that the mayor supported, if he didn't cooperate with, the attempt to bar the casino gambling issue from the Detroit ballot on primary day. He also hinted he might seek the needed approval of the Legislature before the issue goes to the voters, assuming it survives a challenge in the courts.

The mayor, of course, does not pretend to seek suburban approval when he makes such plans for the future, even though many suburban residents work, own property and pay taxes in his city. But the mayor's brush-off of public opinion on many issues doesn't stop suburban residents from having their own views about what happens in Detroit and the rest of the metro area.

It is true that we live in a representative government and elect our officials to act on our behalf in making decisions on matters that affect us and our pocketbooks. Government now is far too complicated for us to gather in a New England-type town meeting to make our decisions about what government should or should not do.

Yet officials who act without reference to the public often pay the price in the future. They are defeated on measures that require approval by a legislative body, they offer fuel to their political enemies and sometimes they even lose their bids for re-election.

With his tight control of the political process in Detroit, and the strong support of his constituents, Mayor Young is likely to survive these latest dictatorial moves without much embarrassment. No real challenge has yet appeared to the proposal to move the Grand Prix to Belle Isle even though the organization went on record back in 1985 against any commercialization of the island park. And legislative approval of casino gambling is still a possibility, if not very likely.

However, neither of these moves is a good example of the way elected leaders of a democratic society ought to seek out public opinion as well as help inform it before making judgments on public policy.

Counseling center needed

To the Editor:

I have noted with interest the recent proposal to utilize a portion of the Children's Home property on Cook Road as an aftercare counseling center for young people struggling with chemical dependency. As a concerned father of three teenagers and vice chairman of Brighton Hospital's board of trustees, I am acutely aware of the need for such a facility in our community.

Outpatient counseling is a vital part of a successful recovery from chemical addiction. A counseling facility on the Cook Road site would enable recovering young people and their families to obtain much needed guidance and support at a most critical time.

Local child care needed

To the Editor:

The Grosse Pointe Branch of the American Association of University Women supports the concept of registered family day care homes in residential communities as one step toward solving our local day care problems.

A crucial problem that faces all communities today, including the Grosse Pointes, is to insure the availability of good quality day care. We urge residents to join in seeking creative solutions to our local day care dilemma.

A look at 1980 census figures gives us an interesting perspective — at that time a total of 604 women living in Grosse Pointe Farms, the Park and the Woods, with children under six, were employed outside the home. In percentages: 41 percent of all Grosse Pointe Farms women with children under six worked away from home, as did 33 percent of such women in Grosse Pointe Park and 32 percent in the Woods. The number of working mothers has increased dramatically since then — obviously local child care is needed.

AAUW supports the concept of registered family day care homes because not only do they offer benefits of a home atmosphere as opposed to an institution type environment, but they also accept very young children, unlike many day care centers that do not take children under two.

Both prospective and current residents need to feel that their children are welcome in the community where they choose to live. Our excellent schools and services draw many families to this area, and a variety of available, quality day care offers another service to attract newcomers. Good services tend to raise property values and thus benefit all residents.

True patriotism

John Hancock, Benjamin Franklin, William Floyd, John Adams and Benjamin Harrison are just a few names that come to mind when thinking of freedom. Each of them, along with a slew of delegates to the convention, signed the Declaration of Independence. And from the moment it was adopted by the Continental Congress on July 4, 1776, the complexion of the United States was completely changed.

In four days, we will celebrate Declaration Day. A day of independence and a day to fly the flag proudly off front porches, flagpoles or even cars.

Years ago we used to celebrate the Fourth of July with friends.

My father and his friend epitomized to me the perfect Americans. They would always place their hands over their hearts as the National Anthem played. They would always remember Flag Day, D-Day and Veteran's Day. They would recall all the terror and fright of war, yet be strong enough to be courageous.

They understood the true meaning of independence and passed it down to each one of their kids.

Years ago my father put flags (stickers) on the side of his car. At the time I was too young to get a grasp on why he did that, but as the years passed, my unanswered questions soon became clear.

My father is proud of his country. He fought for the red, white and blue in World War II and came home alive. He lost time as a civilian. I know times were very different from what they are now, but his life was something I don't think I'd like to live through.

When all is said and done, he truly believes that fighting for his country is portrayed through the flag, the National Anthem and a salute.

On the Fourth of July, I will be in Rhode Island on my honeymoon. I will miss my father and will want to tell him that I think of him when I stand proudly in front of the flag. I want him to know that I focus pass without any of us thinking about why that flag is here."

That flag is there because it withstood the test of time and war. Betsy Ross put together some fabrics and Francis Scott Key wrote lyrics for a song that would become our national anthem. Together that combination has given us a symbolic way to represent the greatest nation.

I appreciate this country and it's all due to my father's influence. He never told us to love the flag or always sing songs, but he did teach us to appreciate. My father is from what many call the old school, and I don't think I'd want it any other way. His wisdom and intelligence are just two things I love about him, but most importantly I am thankful I have him.

Fighting in World War II was obviously an indelible experience for him. He recalls some of the good things about it, but mostly the pain and struggle remains in his memory. However, overshadowed by all that is his patriotism — on each one of his lapels on his suits, he wears a pin of the flag.

In just four days, many of us will have the day off from work to celebrate, but I wonder how many of us really understand why. Freedom is something that has been around for a long time, but it's never too late to appreciate the value of the American way.

Flying a flag is only one way to show our love and appreciation for a country built on Americans like my father. It's a time to pay homage to millions of people, such as Adams, Franklin and Hancock, but better yet, why not tell another American that you are proud to see the flag, say the Pledge of Allegiance and sing the National Anthem.

Jeep takes joyride

It was shortly before 10:30 a.m. June 15 when the driver of a Jeep Cherokee took an unexpected jog through Grosse Pointe Farms.

Farms officers Mike McCarthy and Stephen Puckett said the Jeep was parked on Beverly Road, one block east of Fisher. Apparently, the transmission was not properly engaged and when the vehicle's owner turned to look back, he saw the jeep rolling backward down the street.

After crossing Lakeshore, the vehicle veered left. It kept rolling backward and turned down Rose Terrace — with the driver in hot pursuit.

The vehicle continued traveling on the wrong side of Rose Terrace for a distance of about three houses, when it went up over the curb and hit the corner of a house and a tree before coming to a stop.

A woman who was cutting her lawn, came fairly close to being struck, and was walking around the side of the house about the same time the car struck.

"She was very shook up,"

McCarthy said. "Fortunately no one was hurt and property damage was a lot less serious than it could have been."

Murphy's Law

If you say there will be plenty of water, the first thing you have to do is tell residents not to use so much.

Farms water plant Superintendent Darrell Schuurman, who was interviewed for a photostory about the water plant, said just two weeks ago that there shouldn't be any problems getting water to Farms and City residents during this extended drought.

This week he had to issue a press release asking residents to curtail water usage for one day, due to a pump that needs repair.

Open mouth, insert faucet.

Could be cleaner

Received a note from a reader the other day attached to a flyer from the pharmacy of a local hospital extolling the virtues of the sterile conditions there.

The reader was more than a little incensed when he spotted a soft drink can next to rows of drugs.

We're sure hospital officials would like to have that one back.

Take note

While Farms officials are studying the use of torches and heat guns to remove paint and the number of fires that city and other cities have had, there is a law on the books in the BOCA Basic/National Fire Prevention Code, adopted in most municipalities, that people should be aware of.

Any person using a torch or other flame-producing device for removing paint from any building or structure shall provide an approved fire extinguisher or water hose connected to the water supply on the premises where such burning is done. In all cases, the person doing the burning shall remain on the premises one hour after each use of the torch or flame-producing device.

The code also calls for the person who intends to use the device to secure a permit from the local fire official.

While the code does allow for the use of such devices, they can cause fires.

In Grosse Pointe, the city became the last in the Grosse Pointes to cut the working hours of its police officers from a 48-hour week to a 40-hour week.

The Boy Scouts were busy preparing for a "Mammoth Exposition," which was not an exposition of a mammoth, but rather an exposition on scouting. More than 20,000 scouts from around the Detroit area were expected to attend.

Humane Society seeks tuna boycott

The Humane Society of the United States has asked its 820,000 members and constituents to boycott tuna to protest the slaughter of porpoises during tuna fishing.

Although American fleets are regulated by the Marine Mammal Protection Act which states as its original goal "zero mortality" for porpoises, foreign fleets have shown flagrant disregard for these sociable animals.

The Woods police found three homes burglarized and a fourth failed attempt at burglary, apparently all perpetrated by the same person, in five days. Police had no suspects.

A 9-year-old Woods boy died after accidentally lighting himself on fire with a toy chemistry set. The blaze started when the boy spilled alcohol on a bunsen burner and the burning liquid ran onto his clothes.

Two 13-year-old Farms boys burned a neighbor's porch roof when they accidentally lit their toy chemistry set on fire. The boys panicked and threw the burning set out a second story window. It landed on the neighbor's roof.

Burglars ransacked a Farms home while its owners were in Florida, and had been gone for almost a year. Police had difficulty deducing what had been taken, because the owners did not return even after the crime was discovered.

They die exasperating deaths, either by drowning, by being smashed against the sides of decks of tuna boats, by having their delicate beaks and flippers torn off in unyielding nylon netting, or by being dragged alive through powerful net-hauling machinery.

Face lift

As part of its commitment to renovation and rededication, and in preparation of next year's celebration of 75 years of service, the First Christian Reformed Church is getting a new look. The trim outside of the building is being repainted to closely match the original natural limestone, said the Rev. William DeVries, pastor of the church on Maryland in the Park. Larry Hillman and Robert Kenyon of Pyramid Painting have the unenviable job of painting the tower's trim, as well as that of the entire building.

other locations I am not aware of.

The point is why has Wayne County (fifth largest in the nation) decided to fragmentize their offices and to locate themselves in old buildings which have and will need much renovation and remodeling. Did any of the politicians stop to think? Were they concerned about the citizens who had been able to take care of their taxes, deeds, courts, to pay visits and consult with the people they elected into office in the City-County Building?

I find this whole situation deplorable not to mention a real drain on the taxpayer. These moves have been quite costly and also necessitated long waits to the citizens, because of resetting the computers and hi-tech equipment.

True, I no longer live in Wayne County, but I am a concerned citizen and a former city and county employee. I know for a fact that the public liked coming to one building to meet most of its needs.

My feelings go out to the seniors who must grapple with where (which building) to go and for what.

Wayne County reduced its workforce, thus allowing more room in the City-County Building.

Are we next going to be told that the City-County Building will be renamed the Coleman Young Building?

I see no solution to the needless, senseless reorganization, but then who asked any of us.

Good luck to all the Wayne County employees who had little choice but to go along.

Thanks to the community

To the Editor:

On June 21 the firefighters of the Grosse Pointes and Harper Woods fought a difficult and exhausting house fire on Kenwood Court in the Farms.

The extreme temperatures that day increased the risk of heat exhaustion and dehydration among the firefighters. The refreshments brought by members of the community was not only a welcome relief, but probably prevented more firefighters from being overcome.

We would like to extend our thanks and appreciation to all those who brought out cold drinks and food during the fire. The show of support made a difficult job a little easier. Thanks.

Park passes resolution opposing group home

The Park council passed a resolution Monday night opposing the establishment of a state-licensed residential facility at 15800 Mack Ave. The address is also known as 1433 Buckingham, because at one time it was a combination doctor's office/residence.

Wayne Community Living Services had notified neighborhood residents of their plans to open a group home for six developmentally disabled adults. Residents presented a petition to the council two weeks ago, stating their opposition to the facility because they feel it will lower property values and present security problems.

The resolution states opposition to the facility because there are already several state-licensed residential facilities in the Park.

A group home on Lakepointe has been in operation for about two years. Another has been proposed for a building owned by St. Ambrose Catholic Church. In addition, one is in the city of Detroit on Audubon, less than 1,500 feet from the proposed home on Buckingham/Mack.

At last week's meeting, a resident pointed out that a foster care home is also located nearby, on Devonshire.

Mayor Palmer Heenan said, at the last council meeting, that Grosse Pointe Park has no local control or jurisdiction in the placement of group homes. He said, however, that another state-licensed facility would place an unfair burden on Grosse Pointe Park, which already has its fair share.

Water

Water is not only a sign of life, it provides great fun. But it can be a dark, terrible, scary place. The ocean has been a watery grave for thousands of people. Boats and planes have been lost in the ocean's immense waves. I see water as a crystal gem. You can do great things in the water, like waterskiing, surfing, boating, jet-skiing and swim-

Water

Water is a liquid jewel — only no jewel can compare. It was here before the dawn of time. It is used as a symbol of life and in Baptism to welcome a soul into the church. Water is used to cleanse the soul and body. It quenches thirst and is the most precious gift from God to us.

Students re-enact Roman election

University Liggett School eighth-grade students, clad in togas, assembled recently to re-enact the historically controversial consular election of 63 B.C.

The festivities began with a Roman banquet, followed by a procession of priestesses who led in the sacrificial "lamb." Priestesses Paula-Rose Stark, Naomi Katzowitz, Lainie Walker and Sherri Pinch offered prayers and led the "victim" to the altar. The priests, Richard Berri and Peter Megler, performed the sacrifice and assured the popular assembly that the omens were good for holding the election.

In the Forum (Kresge Auditorium at the Briarcliff Drive campus), Cicero (Lila LaHood) announced the two candidates for the consulship, Servius Sulpicius Rufus (Wilson Wehmeier) and Lucius Licinius Murean (Monica Paul), who then took their seats on the dais.

Flanked by guards Pat Hayes, Jewayne Thomas, David Niccolini and Paul Pozniak, the candidates spoke about their achievements, their experience, their military skill, and their plans for Rome's future. After a heated debate, the citizens elected Murena as the new consul.

Plays and athletic contests followed the election. The discus throw for distance was won by Wesley Sims; the throw for accuracy, by Wilson Wehmeier. Richard Berri captured the long jump. The chariot race was a victory for Beth Weyhing, Amanda Poland and Naomi Katzowitz. The team of Laura Skrocki, Mary Fildew and Alexis Wellams took the relay race.

Four win Italian contest

Four Grosse Pointe South Italian students distinguished themselves in this year's National High School Italian Contest, according to Dr. Giuseppe Battista, chairman of the National High School Italian Contest.

Kimberly Taylor earned Honorable Mention in Level I while Simona Cavallo, Francesca Romano and Debby Rossi earned Honorable Mention in Level II.

Lutken named acting headmaster

The Board of Trustees at University Liggett School announced that Peter K. Lutken of Grosse Pointe has been named acting headmaster for the 1988-89 school year.

Peter K. Lutken

Lutken, former assistant headmaster at ULS, replaces John T. Whatley, who returned to Texas to set up an educational consultant business. Whatley was headmaster from 1983.

Lutken is a Phi Beta Kappa graduate of Davidson College. He also has a master of arts in liberal studies from Wesleyan University. At ULS, he has been the dean of faculty since 1986. He also taught English and coached cross country and track and field.

The board set up a search committee, headed by Jane E. Wilson of Grosse Pointe to select the next headmaster. They hope to announce their decision by December.

Stepping up

Seventh-graders at Our Lady Star of the Sea Elementary School participated in a traditional end-of-the-school-year candle-lighting ceremony Friday, June 10 in the church.

Each child got a hug and a candle from his or her teacher and was passed along to next year's teacher. It's called the Stepping Up Ceremony.

Here, seventh-graders (next year's eighth-graders) carried their candles to the front of the church while younger children watched.

Temporary church is permanent for Our Lady Star of the Sea

By Margie Reins Smith
Staff Writer

The church building for Our Lady Star of the Sea Catholic Church, on Ballantyne and Fairfield in Grosse Pointe Woods, was designed as a temporary church. The real church was supposed to be built later, on the corner of Morningside and Fairfield.

"The width, length and height (of the nave) would accommodate a basketball court nicely," said the Rev. Ralph V. Barton, founding pastor of Our Lady Star of the Sea. The community room, off to the side, would have been converted into a boys or girls locker room. "The present church building was to become a gym — or be torn down," he said.

In the '50s, Austin Catholic Preparatory School, a high school for boys, served eastside and Grosse Pointe families, but there was no nearby Catholic girls high school, Barton said. "So in the early '60s we built a high school and a gym for the girls instead of a new church."

The parish was created in 1954, said the Rev. John F. Child, Star's newest pastor. He's

Our Lady Star of the Sea Catholic Church, in Grosse Pointe Woods for more than 30 years, was designed as a temporary church building for the parish. The rectory/administration building, which is directly next door to the church, was originally a model home for the subdivision. Our Lady Star of the Sea High School was built in 1962 instead of a newer, larger church building.

been there about a year. "The Archdiocese of Detroit bought the undeveloped property in the early '50s," he said. "Father Barton went door to door, finding Catholic people. They met in Parcels School for a year and a half," Child said.

Barton recalled that the children called the temporary church-home 'Saint Parcels.' "At the first mass in Parcels," he said, "I announced I couldn't live in my car and I needed an empty garage to live in. A Grosse Pointe couple offered the use of their home until the rectory was built. I used their den as an office and the basement for parish matters, including instruction for 10th to 12th graders."

Barton said the church property was a former apple orchard, full of trees and underbrush with access only by a dirt path when he first saw it. He remembers a run-down barn, a dilapidated silo and an underground smokehouse on the property. A couple of horses from the nearby Grosse Pointe Hunt Club were wandering along a would-be bridle path.

Barton said people were probably glad the archdiocese bought the property and cleared the land, because they wanted to keep the neighborhood kids from playing in the smokehouse. Barton remembered an old farmhouse that was torn down about a year after the church was completed, but the rest of the land was undeveloped, he said. Cook Road ran from Mack Avenue, ending at Chalfonte. Houses and streets in the Woods ended Ballantyne Court and Williams.

When the church building was begun, subdivision developers were just beginning to clear the trees, map out streets, bring in gas and water and paved roads. Many of the homes in the area were built during the '50s and early '60s.

The so-called temporary church was dedicated in September 1955. The grade school for grades 1-8 was completed in 1958, and the high school was completed in 1961.

Today, church membership totals 1,730 registrations. Child said this number is usually multiplied by four to give the actual membership number: 6,920. He said there were 72 infants and eight adults baptized during the last 12 months. There were 33 weddings and 47 funerals during the same time period.

Star of the Sea elementary school has 435 boys and girls, K-8. The all-girl high school has 230 students.

Child said the parish has four areas of involvement: worship, Christian service, education and administration of the parish.

One of the highlights of Christian service, he said, is the Christmas season Giving Tree. The church places more than 1,000 gift tags on a Christmas tree. Each tag has a personalized gift suggestion for a needy family. Church members take the tags and buy the gifts.

"We also have two blood drives each year," Child said.

The name — Our Lady Star of the Sea — is not unique, Child said, for a Catholic church.

"There are others with the same name located near bodies of water. There's a parish in the Netherlands. Others are on the East Coast and in California."

Instead of building a large, permanent church building, Our Lady Star of the Sea parish decided to build a new girls high school. In the fall of 1960, the Rev. Ralph Barton took the ceremonial first shovelful of earth at groundbreaking ceremonies while eighth-grade girls watched the beginnings of their new school with anticipation.

Plans proceeding on Woods city hall renovation

Grosse Pointe Woods is slowly getting closer to having new offices and a more accessible city hall as the Woods Council approved plans for the construction.

"We're all excited about it," said Louise Warnke, deputy city clerk and director of administrative services.

The project has been discussed and planned and replanned since September 1987. The council approved the plans earlier this month.

The amount of space at city hall has long been a concern, especially on Wednesdays when court is in session in the council chambers.

At those times, the traffic in the building hinders work. Lawyers must meet with clients in the hall and probation officers, who have no office, work in the hall.

Not all of the city offices will change. Most will remain as it is and some will need only slight renovations which will result in a more workable area for the city employees, Warnke said.

The main addition — some 1,516 square feet, 68 feet wide — will come on the north side of the building and will include new offices, bathrooms, jury conference rooms, judge's and court clerk's offices and a counter area for serving the public.

"The court is really looking forward to this," Warnke said.

The construction documents and specifications for bids are scheduled for completion by the end of July, with bids due in early August, and construction estimated to begin in late August. Warnke expected the construction to be complete by the end of the year.

Estimated cost of the project is $143,500.

War Memorial short of goals as fund drive nears end

The War Memorial's annual family Participation Campaign, which ends July 31, needs $5,000 to reach its $232,000 goal.

This goal represents about one third of the Center's yearly operating expenses; the remainder coming from programs and catering. A successful Family Participation Campaign is necessary if the association is to continue its current level of service to the community as well as properly maintain the facility.

The War Memorial Association was established as a non-profit civic, cultural and educational organization in 1949 to honor those Grosse Pointers who served in World War II.

Housed in the former home of the Russel, A. Alger Jr. family, the War Memorial sponsors programs and special events throughout the year and serves as the meeting site for dozens of community organizations.

Last year, more than 180,000 people participated in 5,000 War Memorial programs, underscoring the Center's importance to the community.

The War Memorial welcomes Family Participation donations of any size. Checks should be made payable to the Grosse Pointe War Memorial and sent to 32 Lakeshore Rd., Grosse Pointe Farms, 48236. Contributions are tax-deductible. For additional information, call the development office at 881-7511.

One community's water supply

It's the ultimate irony. Below the sun-scorched lawn in front of the Grosse Pointe Farms water treatment plant at Kerby near Lakeshore is 2.5 million gallons of fresh, cool water.

The plant provides water to residents in both the Farms and City. A pumping station located closer to Jefferson sends water to Highland Park. The Park, the Woods and the Shores get their water from Detroit.

Darrel Schuurman, Farms water superintendent, said the Farms pumped a couple of weeks ago at a rate of eight million gallons — several million more than usual.

The extended drought in Michigan has meant the curtailing of water services and low pressure in many communities, but not here — yet.

Schuurman said the capacity of the system is about 12 million gallons a day, and he doesn't anticipate a demand that high.

Water is piped into the plant from a 36-inch intake located about one quarter mile out in Lake St. Clair. During high demand periods, a large booster pump located at Pier Park increases the flow from the normally gravity-fed intake.

Once in the plant, the water is treated with fluoride, chlorine and alum. The alum coagulates suspended solids and the chlorine disinfects. From there the water is filtered. It travels through eight inches of charcoal, three feet of sand and about two feet of coarse gravel before entering the reservoir. The water then travels through water lines to homes and businesses in the two cities.

Schuurman said the Farms plant is a microcosm of what happens at Detroit treatment plants. Because of the huge capacity Detroit has, he said he doesn't anticipate any water shortages for any of its customers.

Last year, Schuurman said, the plant pumped the equivalent of a football field covered with water 2,900 feet high. This year, the overall pumpage will be even higher.

"We have 4,000 services in the Farms and 2,000 in the City," Schuurman said. "We serve a total of about 18,000 people. Our biggest water users are the two hospitals, with Cottage probably our biggest user and Bon Secours the second largest."

During the process at the plant, the water is tested by plant operators and engineers, who look for contaminants, check clarity and make subjective decisions about taste.

They've made the right decisions for the last couple of years — Farms water has won several awards for its quality.

Peak demand occurs around 9 p.m., Schuurman said. He said so far there haven't been any complaints about low water pressure, but it seems that when people finish dinner and do the dishes and turn on sprinklers, demand is the greatest. The next heaviest load occurs around 7 a.m. when residents take morning showers and people turn on sprinklers.

Darrel Schuurman, Farms water superintendent, stands next to the booster pump at Pier Park. The pump is turned on when demand for water is high.

Plant operator Bill Webster tests water for contaminants, clarity and taste.

One of the largest lawns to water is at the golf course at Lochmoor Country Club where sprinklers douse fairways and greens with the equivalent of one inch of rain per week.

The final result of all the effort is cool, clear water at the tap.

Water which has been treated with chemicals is filtered in these huge pools. The plant grows well in the well lit and humid building.

Don't fret!They're not done yet

Those manhole covers that are protruding a little over an inch above the new asphalt on Lakeshore in the Farms will be flush with the pavement when the one-inch thick finish layer is added before the job is completed.

Residents complained that the manhole covers pose a hazard to motorists.

Joe Leonard, deputy director of the Wayne County Department of Public Works, said they are well aware that the manhole covers are protruding.

"What has been put down so far is the leveling course," said Leonard, a Farms resident. "What that does is bring the surface of the road to a uniform contour. On top of that surface, we place one and one-quarter inches of finer grade aggregate asphalt. This is strictly like icing on the cake and makes for a smoother ride."

Once the final layer is put on sometime before July 15, the lakeside curbs will be nine inches high and the median curbs will be six inches.

"Also we are doing something that we haven't normally done on the eastside," Leonard said. "We will be placing thermoplastic lane lines down. This will eliminate us having to send over our line painting truck over from Metro Airport to the eastside for that job."

The dry weather will probably have an effect on this job. Leonard said that because of the extended drought, few sod farms are cutting their product, and the landscaping may not take place until fall. He said the dry weather will not affect adding the finish layer or the lane lines.

The asphalt on the project is being done by Ajax Paving Industries of Madison Heights.

Parade participants will meet at 1 p.m. behind Pierce School at St. Paul and Somerset. The parade will go down Somerset, cross Jefferson and proceed down Westchester to Essex, and continue on Essex to Patterson Park.

There will be a brief program at Patterson Park followed by musical entertainment including barbershop quartet music. Hot dogs and pop will be sold. Residents are encouraged to pack a lunch. There will be games and prizes for children as well as prizes awarded to the best floats.

People interested in participating with antique cars or floats are invited to meet at Pierce at 1 p.m. Children who want to participate should assemble with their decorated bikes, floats, etc. at Trombly School at 1 p.m. For more information, call Patrick McKeever at 885-7829 or Bob Buhl at 886-7488.

Park attorney sentenced

A 57-year-old Grosse Pointe Park attorney, Robert Viewig, was sentenced June 22 to 17 months in jail and ordered to pay restitution of $93,881 after pleading guilty March 4 to two counts of bankruptcy fraud.

Viewig was charged with embezzling funds while in the capacity of a special trustee for the debtor corporation known as the W.J. Rewoldt Company. He was appointed by court order as a special trustee to finish some litigation that had been instituted on behalf of the debtor.

The case was tried before Judge Patrick Duggan in U.S. District Court in Detroit. The investigation was conducted by the FBI, and the prosecution was conducted by Alan M. Gershel, assistant United States attorney.

Light up the skies! It's the Fourth

By Ronald J. Bernas
Staff Writer

It's an old tradition, one rooted in patriotism and pride. A tradition which draws from our past and gives hope for the future. It is a time of coming together and showing love of country and of fellow man.

And the Grosse Pointe Business and Professional Association of Mack Avenue is for the fifth time doing its part to bring people together to celebrate their country's birthday.

On July 3, the skies in the Pointes will be alight with the red, white and blue glow of fireworks, all thanks to the dedication of a few planners and donations from local businesses.

The year of planning includes getting approval from the various municipalities and organizations, soliciting donations from businesses and cities, shopping around and getting the most for the $25,000 it usually costs to put on the event.

But Robbie Curry, chair of this year's event and on the planning committee for the previous five years, said the year of planning is well worth the results.

"It is a nice event because you get families together watching the fireworks, and how often do you get families together anymore?" she said. "And how often do you get to see and spend time with your neighbors?"

Those who show up at Parcels Middle School at 8 p.m. on Sunday will notice a larger fireworks display than in previous years, Curry said, because the committee shifted priorities to create a splashier display.

There are a number of major contributors to the fireworks display every year who help keep this a Pointe tradition, Curry said. They are Empire of America, Lochmoor Chrysler, St. Clair Health Care Corporation and Pointe Electronics. Lochmoor Country Club allow the fireworks to be set up on their grounds and the Grosse Pointe Public Schools donate the school and the grounds.

Curry said a lot of individual help — donated by members of the Mack Avenue merchants and professional people — is necessary to make the festivities run smoothly.

For several years before the Grosse Pointe Business and Professional Association of Mack Avenue took on the project, the skies of the Pointes were dark on the Fourth, after the Kiwanis Club stopped hosting the festivities, and Curry said the response from the people, evidenced by the letters the group receives, is heartening and is what keeps her and the association committed to the celebration year after year.

"Last year we had everyone from newborns to someone who was 92 out there," she said. "Everybody can enjoy this type of show and that's the nicest thing about it."

The festivities begin at 8 p.m. Sunday, July 3. Detroit News columnist Pete Waldmeir is the emcee and the Austin Moro band will perform again this year. In case of r-a-i-n, the event will take place Monday, July 4.

Cottage changes management

Ralph L. Wilgarde, executive vice president of Cottage Hospital of Grosse Pointe, has accepted the position of special consultant to the board of trustees for planning, effective July 1.

Gregory J. Vasse, a vice president at Cottage for the past 10 years, has been named acting executive vice president. Wilgarde will assist Vasse during the transition period.

During Wilgarde's tenure, Cottage Hospital doubled its size and added many new services. A new wing was designed and built in the late '60s and the older part of the hospital was renovated in the early '70s. A 522-space parking deck is currently under construction and due for completion this fall.

On Jan. 1, 1986, Cottage Hospital affiliated with Henry Ford Health Care Corp., making it the community hospital with the specialty connection.

In 1989, Cottage Hospital celebrates its 70th year of service in this community.

Woods officials get bonuses

The Grosse Pointe Woods Council approved performance bonuses June 20 totaling $6,400, payable to two city officials by the end of this month.

City Administrator Chester Petersen received a $4,400 bonus, bringing the total bonuses he has received this year to $9,200, from a total of $10,000 allowed.

In determining the amount, Robert Novitke, chairman of the Evaluation Committee, said the administrator had done a fine job throughout the year, but a full bonus would have meant perfection.

Councilman Robert Beaupre said he felt the city should have awarded Petersen the full amount because this year was one of great change, including computerization, a reassessment of the entire city, bond issues for major improvements at Lakefront park, and having to go part of the year without a comptroller. The council, however, stuck with its decision for the $4,400.

City Comptroller Cliff Maison received a $2,000 performance bonus from the council, the total allowed.

The committee expressed satisfaction with Maison and his performance since he joined the city's employ late in February.

Home burglarized twice in one week

A home on the 1400 block of Three Mile Drive in the Park was burglarized twice in the same week, with the thief getting more than $1,000 in cash and silverware.

Park officials said the first break in occurred sometime between June 21-23. The thief gained entry by breaking out a rear window and reaching through to unlock a rear door.

A search was made of the first and second floor. A mink coat was believed to have been taken.

The second burglary occurred between 1 and 11 p.m. on June 23. The thief searched the basement where he found the cash and silverware.

Police are investigating.

Gaming

He said that he was persuaded that gaming would be good for the city.

"I analyzed this as I would analyze any business deal," Gatzaros said. "I made a list of the credits and the debits and then analyzed them. I determined that the good points far outweighed the bad points."

He said the commission never discussed the gaming issue from a moral standpoint. He said since the state already has a lottery and pari-mutual horse racing, the issue of bringing gambling to the state was moot.

Gatzaros said that outside of property values increasing in the suburbs because at least 40,000 people earning good wages would be looking for housing, he didn't see much impact from gambling in the city.

"It would have a very positive effect on business in Detroit," he said. "Let's face it, Detroit is not Las Vegas or Atlantic City. We lose a lot of convention business to Atlantic City because there is no gaming here."

Gatzaros said that if Detroiters educate themselves about gambling and the possible effects on the city, they would support the issue. He said there are a lot of misconceptions about gambling and the gaming industry.

"There is so much government control of casinos, you would have to be crazy to try anything illegal," he said.

"I have talked to a lot of people including legislators in Lansing," Gatzaros said. "I have not run across anyone who is saying 'absolutely no' to casino gambling. People are open to the idea, and if they analyze it I think they will see the benefits for the city."

Alfred Glancy III

Alfred Glancy, chairman and chief executive officer of Michigan Consolidated Gas Co., is a Shores resident. He voted against casino gaming.

He said that because Las Vegas and Atlantic City are not comparable to Detroit, there was no analogy he could draw.

He said he asked himself if the negative factors, like crime and the loss of new economic development that might occur, outweighed the positive factors, such as jobs and economic development related to gaming.

He said the possibility that new business would not come to Detroit and businesses would move out or not expand because of gambling outweighed the economic impact on the hotel, restaurant and casino industries.

"My focus was on that question," he said. "I looked at it from a business standpoint. I made no moral judgment. I tried to sort through things like the crime issue, but finally made my decision on whether or not I thought gambling would help or hurt the economy and development of the city."

He, too, said he went in without any biases.

"I think there were a number of people who had an open mind," he said. "I think there were some who were firmly committed and some firmly opposed. All in all, I think it was a good commission and the mayor did a good job in selecting its members."

Glancy said that if the people of Detroit vote unfavorably on the August ballot proposal, the issue of gambling in Detroit is dead.

"Even if the issue passes by a significant majority," he said, "it will still be an uphill battle. There is no way the Legislature would approve casino gambling over a negative vote from Detroit residents. Politically, it would be an impossibility."

William Cudlip

William Cudlip, senior vice president and director of operations at Young & Rubicam, is a Farms resident. He voted in favor of casino gambling.

Cudlip said he uses 1967, when Detroit was in a turmoil with its riots, as a benchmark year.

In the last 21 years, Cudlip said, everything in southeast Michigan has grown except for Detroit. "There have been numerous government, private and civic group studies, most recently the Detroit Strategic Plan. All these studies have been well-intentioned, but there has been little in the way of economic development in Detroit."

Cudlip points to strong economic growth in other parts of Wayne County and throughout Oakland County, and only token development outside of the downtown Detroit area.

"I read the other day that there are about 145,000 vacant lots or empty houses in Detroit," he said. "With all these studies, all this thought, what has happened to help reform in Detroit?"

Cudlip said he voted in favor of casino gambling, but his decision doesn't mean much if the people of Detroit vote against it.

"I say if the people of Detroit want this, give it to them," he said. "It could mean 40,000 to 65,000 jobs."

He said the crime issue really isn't an issue.

"Whenever you drop 150,000 people anywhere," he said, "you will see an increase in crime."

He said the commission talked to law enforcement officials, who said they could handle the influx of people and any crime that may result, and he felt satisfied with their answers.

"I bet I changed my mind 10 or 15 times during the hearings," he said. "I finally shifted my thinking when I decided if they (Detroiters) want this, then they should be allowed to have it."

He said he didn't see much impact on the suburbs, including Grosse Pointe. He noted, however, that in Atlantic City, there have been programs implemented, similar to alcohol abuse programs, for people who have become addicted to gambling.

place in 1959, when the United States and Canada celebrated a visit from Queen Elizabeth II.

The festival is a shared production of the Windsor Freedom Festival committee and Detroit Renaissance Foundation. Corporate sponsors, individual contributors and volunteers make the two week-plus schedule of activities happen.

"We expect more than three million people for all events," said Weil. Events began June 8 and will run through July 10. They'll include parades, regattas, live music, carnivals, an antique car show, a tug of war, award-winning films, a photo exhibit, boat races for canoes, kayaks, thunderboats, tug boats and sailboats, a 6-kilometer run, and a variety of food, sporting events, dances, and activities just for young children.

"One event is interesting from a Grosse Pointe point of view," Weil said. "The George E. Van Memorial Regatta, a sailboat race on the Detroit River, open to all, is a brand new addition."

George E. Van was a long-time yachting writer for The Detroit News, the Detroit Times and Hearst Publications. He was nationally and internationally honored for his writing about yachting, sailing and racing. Van was a resident of Grosse Pointe. He died in September 1987 after nearly 60 years of writing about sailing. He also had participated in 92 Port Huron and Chicago to Mackinac races.

The race date for the George E. Van Memorial Regatta was rescheduled for Sunday, July 10, due to some earlier conflicts for some of the racing yachts.

The regatta is sponsored by the Stroh Brewery Company and is expected to attract a minimum of 200 sail yachts of all sizes — from 23-footers to 70-footers — and more than 1,200 crew members. The seven and a half mile race course will begin in front of the Renaissance Center, proceed to the Belle Isle Bridge, then to the foot of 12th Street, back to the RenCen.

Grosse Pointer William J.A. Nagel, past commodore of Bayview Yacht Club, will provide shoreside commentary on the race and will answer questions about sailing during the race.

Two one-ton yachts that are competing for the Canada's Cup are expected to take part in the regatta: Challenge 88, owned by Grosse Pointer Ken Meade, and Trader, owned by Grosse Pointer Fred Detwiler.

For more information about the George E. Van Memorial Regatta, call Detroit Renaissance at 259-5400.

Fourth travel to be heavy

The Michigan Department of Transportation (MDOT) is predicting that a record-breaking number of miles will be logged by Michigan motorists over the Fourth of July holiday period.

MDOT predicts drivers will wheel in 910 million vehicle miles from noon on Friday, July 29, through noon on Tuesday, July 5.

That would be the most ever for a holiday in Michigan, topping last year's record of 870 million miles set over the same period of time by 40 million miles.

The new Welcoming Center for the Edsel & Eleanor Ford House will be built on the site of the original greenhouses. Albert Kahn designed the Ford House in the late 1920s. The architectural firm he founded, Albert Kahn & Associates, designed the new facility. The building is expected to be completed by summer 1989.

Ford House to build activity center

By Margie Reins Smith
Staff Writer

A 12,700-square-foot building will be added to the northeast portion of the grounds of the 86-acre Edsel & Eleanor Ford House at 1100 Lakeshore. Construction will begin in July, and the building is expected to be completed by next summer.

The new facility, called a Welcoming Center, will be used for exhibitions, concerts, receptions, recitals and for orientations prior to tours of the Ford House.

The Welcoming Center will also be available for use by other non-profit organizations and will have facilities for limited food service, according to Paul D. Alandt, president of the Ford House.

The Grosse Pointe Shores Village Council gave final approval for a special land use permit and

Depressive support group to meet

The Manic Depressive and Depressive Association of Metro Detroit sponsors small discussion and support groups twice a month at Cottage Hospital.

The next meetings are Tuesday, July 5, and Thursday, July 21, from 7:30 to 9:30 p.m. The meetings are held in the new conference area. Stop at the information desk for directions.

For more information, call Bob at 885-2795, Joanne at 882-4366 or the MDDA hotline at 559-2070.

granted the request for a building permit at its council meeting June 21.

The original plans, which came before the council in October 1987 were modified to reduce the size of the building by one-third. The Ford House paid the fee required by the Shores ordinance for a special land use permit for tax-exempt properties.

"It's a nice building that will enhance our community," said Michael Kenyon, village manager.

"We are very pleased to announce the construction of our new facility which will be used for welcoming visitors and providing an orientation on the history of the Edsel & Eleanor Ford House," Alandt said.

The new building will be able to accommodate groups as large as 288, and will feature a main assembly room that can be divided into three reception areas. It also will include an outdoor terrace, a tearoom, a courtyard, an executive conference room and a solarium.

The new building will be built on the site of the original greenhouses on the northeast side of the estate. The solarium lounge was deliberately included in the plan, to reflect the former use of the site.

The design of the new facility will be compatible with the original architectural design of the Ford House — a rambling, asymmetrical English manner like those found in the Cotswold region of Worcestershire, England. Albert Kahn & Associates designed the addition. Albert Kahn, founder of the architectural firm, designed the Edsel & Eleanor Ford House between 1926 and 1929.

Walbridge Aldinger has been selected as the general contractor.

The Edsel & Eleanor Ford House was left by Edsel Ford's widow, Eleanor Clay Ford, after her death in 1976 to be used for the benefit of the public. Visitors may tour the house, and it is used for exhibitions — currently the Stroh Brewery Stein Collection, and, beginning Aug. 10, an exhibit of soap tureens from the Campbell Museum.

The Ford House is open to the public for regular one-hour house tours Wednesdays through Sundays from noon to 5 p.m. Tours begin on the hour, with the last tour at 4 p.m. Tours are $4 for adults, $3 for senior citizens and $2 for children under 13.

For information about individual and group tours, call 884-3400 or 884-4222.

depend on her to pick them up whenever they're going somewhere. "Nobody says, 'Let's pick Julie up'," she says with a laugh, and adds: "It's easier to drive than to walk."

Her ties to the area go back to her great-grandfather, William Woodbridge, who was a U.S. senator and a governor of Michigan. She said he was the first governor of Michigan to be elected by the people — Stevens T. Mason was appointed.

Her great-grandmother for whom she's named, Juliana Trumbull Woodbridge, was a New Englander, who came here to Indian territory with her silver, linens and porcelain. She was a homeopathic doctor and a lawyer and she won the respect of the Indians who named her Re-wee Heart McMillan said. "I'm so proud of her."

They lived in the governor's mansion in Detroit near Springwells. McMillan said she believes the house was cut in three sections and moved to Canada where it's now operating as an inn.

Their son (and McMillan's grandfather), Dudley Woodbridge, and his wife Martha were one of two families who built year-round homes in Grosse Pointe. "The Newberrys and the rest — this was their summer home. They thought this was the end of the world."

Her grandfather raised horses, "lots of horses," and she spent much of her childhood riding. "I played tennis and rode horses every day. I think that's why I'm 4,000 years old," she said with a laugh.

Her father, Charles Moring, owned hotels and the family traveled a lot. They lived in Pittsburgh, Chicago, New York and Boston.

McMillan was one of the founders of the Junior League. At that time, the organization was restricted to 100 women. They raised money mainly for the blind and the league employed handicapped people.

"I started a store for them here and we got to be so good," she said. "We started the Newberry House and would hold sales there. Mrs. Newberry gave us the house."

The league held summer sales at different resorts in the state and were quite successful, McMillan said.

"We made hand towels and we used to go to Edsel (Ford) and say, 'You buy from us,' and he'd say, 'All right.'"

McMillan was recently presented with an appreciation award by the Garden Club of Michigan for her 66 years of service. She taught Sunday school for 13 years at Grosse Pointe Memorial Church and is one of its oldest members.

"I'm sure I've lived the most wonderful years," she said.

Fireworks & Musical Event in Honor of the 4th of July

Dear Neighbors,

Since its rebirth in the Spring 1983, the fireworks, Mack Avenue USA, has been a very big Grosse Pointe area event. Along with the Great Garage Sale, Santa Parade, Broom and Blooms, and the Mack Avenue Sidewalk Sale, the event exposes our community in a very positive light.

There's more to Grosse Pointe than beautiful houses, trees and a superb school system; there's fun and a burgeoning community-business district amalgamation second to none. This July 3rd display notifies all that we are a unified force dedicated to our country's ideal of freedom.

Join the Grosse Pointe Business and Professional Association of Mack Avenue for a really positive light July 3rd.

Sincerely,
Your Mack Avenue Business Association Members

Local packaging stores wrap up the business

By Ronald J. Bernas
Staff Writer

The last time you were running around the house with a package to send, cutting up grocery bags to wrap it and looking for that packaging tape you thought you left in the junk drawer, didn't you wish there was an easier way?

And what about that grandfather clock your children (who live in another state) want? Is there an easy way to get it to them?

The answer to both questions is yes, and although it may cost a little more, many people feel it must be worth it, because packaging stores are cropping up all over. The Pointes have two, and owners of both say their business is booming.

Mail Boxes Etc. and The Packaging Store, both located on Mack Avenue less than two miles apart, are both doing fast business. Although they are in the same field, they cater to different aspects of it and both agree there is room for two in this area.

Owners of Mail Boxes Etc. Willa Levin and Leah Schwartz call their business "a postal and business service" and say packaging makes up only 50 percent of their business. The rest is made up of what they call business and marketing services, including doing business mailings, typing, use of copying and facsimile machines, mailbox rentals, answering services and taking passport photos. They have even run errands for people.

Matt Werner, owner of The Packaging Store, said he specializes in the larger, hard-to-ship items like paintings, furniture, deer heads, canoes and even a roll of fabric. The main thrust is custom packing.

"There's not much we haven't touched here," said Packaging Store Manager John Gruel.

The store even shipped a one-of-a-kind experimental motorcycle to Germany, in a specially designed crate.

Mail Boxes Etc. has sent White Castle hamburgers "pickles and all," and one man sent two boxes of fall leaves to his family down south. Nothing surprises either of them any more, they said.

The two relatively young franchises are growing at a rapid pace. Mail Boxes Etc. is one of the top 10 profitable franchises, Matt Werner watches as Tom McMillan, foreground, and Jon Holt carefully pack their boxes. Employees at The Packaging Store are specially trained and all packaging is done to franchise specifications.

Photos by Ronald J. Bernas

Cafe Le Chat: Country French setting, French-American food

By Pat Paholsky
Editor

There is an old-world charm about the Cafe Le Chat, from its country French decor to its unassuming entrance off Notre Dame, a few yards from the bustle of Kercheval and the Village shopping area.

The intimate restaurant tucked behind the Merry Mouse Gourmet Shop seats 36 to 40 people in three homey rooms.

"It has a bit of elegance and charm," said Andrew Moquin, one of the owners, "yet people Mouse in October 1979 with a partner, who was bought out a year later by Murielle Hyland. She, Linda Ford and Moquin are co-owners of the businesses.

Moquin, a native of Wisconsin, worked in marketing and public relations for the Chicago and Milwaukee symphonies, when he accepted a similar position for the Detroit Symphony Orchestra.

The opportunity to fulfill a long-held dream of owning a business came when the Merry Mouse was put up for sale.

"We changed a lot of things," other accessories, if requested. They will serve from 12 people to 500 and have done a number of large, outdoor weddings. The menu lists more than 50 hot and cold hors d'oeuvres, 20 appetizers, 22 salads and more than 50 entrees of fish, poultry, beef, veal and lamb. There are more than a dozen desserts and the catering service specializes in wedding cakes, Moquin said.

Merry Mouse hours are from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. Monday through Saturday, except for Thursday and Friday when it's open until 7 p.m.

The Cafe Le Chat luncheon menu includes a choice of two soups, four salads, two sandwiches, five entrees and a Merry Mouse plate of cheeses and pate served with fresh fruit. Prices range from $2 for soup, $4.50 for a spinach salad, $5.95 for a cafe burger of ground sirloin and $6.95 for a house pasta. Cappuccino and espresso are also available.

Tea is served from 2 to 5 p.m. and there are 10 varieties of tea available. A pot of tea is $1.25 and there are pastries available, made daily by the pastry chef. Reservations are necessary for high tea, which includes a scone of Devon cream, finger sandwiches, a pastry and a pot of tea, for $6.50.

The dinner menu changes monthly. Entrees range in price from $12.95 to $16.95. Reservations are not necessary for dinner, Moquin said, but they are recommended.

The cafe can also be rented for private parties and Moquin said they have hosted corporate meetings and birthday parties.

Moquin's wife, Kaye Healy, is an interior designer who decorated the Cafe Le Chat. They brought back some of the accessories and furniture, including generally feel comfortable. We try to avoid pretension."

The restaurant, which opened in December 1985, serves lunch Monday through Saturday from 11 a.m. to 2 p.m., tea Monday through Saturday from 2 to 5 p.m. and dinner Wednesday through Saturday from 6:30 to 9:30 p.m.

The Cafe Le Chat has a full liquor license and a wine list of 54 wines by the bottle or half-bottle as well as another dozen for purchase by the glass.

The restaurant and the Merry Mouse are three businesses in one, Moquin said, with the Merry Mouse a gourmet carry-out and catering service.

Moquin bought the Merry

he said. "Then when the space in the back became available, we renovated the whole structure (for the restaurant)."

The name, Cafe Le Chat, which means cat in French and is pronounced sh-ah, was suggested by an employee. "We didn't want to call it the Merry Mouse Cafe, but wanted something to tie in with a French flair," Moquin said.

Six months after the restaurant opened, the catering service was introduced.

"We specialize in customized catering and I'll sit down with the people to plan."

The service can include the chef, waiters, bartenders, china and silverware and flowers and an 18th century armoire, from France.

"Our goal is to serve the finest food at fair prices with friendly, efficient service," Moquin said. He describes the food as contemporary French-American.

"Our next goal," he added, "is to have outdoor service."

There are tables outside, but people have to carry their food themselves.

There are 22 people on the payroll as well as other part-time employees who help with catering. Matthew Bugera was recently named head chef and Keith Supian is sous chef.

Bugera, who graduated from the Culinary Institute of America in New York, worked at the Omni International Hotel, the London Chop House, the Harbor Pier in Harbor Springs and for Justin Rasbid at American Spoon Foods in Petoskey.

Supian is a culinary graduate of Schoolcraft College and has worked for Treats Restaurant in Orchard Lake.

Wedding team sees that practice makes perfect

St. Paul's all-volunteer crew keeps that 'big day' special

By Peggy O'Connor Andrzejczyk
 Assistant Editor/Feature Editor
 Call them St. Paul Church's "I Do Crew."

In a typical year, the seven-member, all-volunteer wedding rehearsal team meets with more than 140 couples, telephones over 70 brides, conducts anywhere from one to three rehearsal run-throughs per couple and attends most of the 70-some weddings that the historic Grosse Pointe Farms church schedules.

It all adds up to a busy, but enjoyable schedule, say participants of the eight-year-old program. Not to mention one less headache for St. Paul pastor Monsignor Francis X. Canfield.

"Priests are so busy these days and this service takes a great deal off their hands. Monsignor and Father Terry have told us how grateful they are for what we do," says group coordinator JoAnne St. Denis.

Because of the demands on what has become a decreased number of clergy, most churches — both Catholic and other denominations — now use the services of a wedding coordinator or coordinators. What makes the St. Paul program unique is its all-volunteer, team approach.

Those who volunteer for the St. Paul program receive a four-page list of instructions to study, then are asked to attend three or four rehearsals in order to observe the veteran coordinators in action.

"When she feels ready to go solo, I'll schedule her to handle a rehearsal alone," says St. Denis, a former coordinator whose leg problems have forced her to the sidelines. She tackles all the program's scheduling and other paper work.

"Really, though, one of my girls has to get right into it and handle a rehearsal before she feels confident."

The other team members include Mary Brookes, Grace Farnen, Helena Porter, Natalie Hogan, Kathleen Disser and Gabrielle Healy. Generally, each works a rehearsal twice monthly, although one, Porter, remembers doing a triple: "That's three rehearsals, 45 minutes apart. And I like to let them go through each rehearsal three times," Porter explains.

SIX MONTHS PRIOR to a wedding, the engaged couple makes its initial contact with St. Paul's. Then two weeks before the scheduled ceremony, a wedding coordinator telephones the bride and goes over the church's list of dos and don'ts.

"We have very specific rules about parking, video cameras and especially, photographs. We go over those, ask if the bride has any questions and check on the number of parents and step-parents to keep everybody in order and happy," St. Denis says. "We remind them to bring the license and we go over the number of attendants, how they want them to proceed down the aisle, who will be doing the readings, etc."

"Then we go over the whole thing again at the rehearsal."

Every wedding is different, St. Denis adds, as is every rehearsal. One constant is that each rehearsal begins with a prayer written by The Rev. Terence Langley of St. Paul's.

"It's a calming prayer. It sort of lets everybody know that this is a solemn occasion and gets them in the proper frame of mind," says Grace Farnen.

"Sometimes, we get some real comedians in here and it's sort of disruptive."

Porter has had her share of comics.

"I had one wedding where the groom and the best man disappeared and came back wearing the red surplices worn by our altar boys. That got everybody pretty wound up," she says.

Over the years, St. Denis and her crew have seen it all. From black dresses on bridesmaids to high-top gym shoes on groomsmen. Then there was the wedding with 22 attendants, the Grosse Pointe North High School Choir and a full orchestra. Or the one that came complete with a producer . . . asking where he could set up his "film crew."

"I told him, 'You can't.' We only allow one videocamera operator and he has very strict guidelines about where he can stand," Mary Brookes says, shaking her head. "That was a first for me."

Experienced as they are, the coordinators have some suggestions to make what is traditionally a very hectic day go smoothly.

"If wedding guests arrive at church at the time of the scheduled start, it's actually very disruptive. I've had late-coming relatives holding up the start of the ceremony, standing in back talking to the bride," Porter says.

"Etiquette says that wedding guests should arrive 20 minutes before the time on the invitation."

MARY BROOKES ENCOURAGES every member of the wedding party to scrape the bottoms of their shoes. "As silly as that sounds, it cuts down on the chance that they'll slip or slide walking up the aisle."

And if you're thinking of asking children younger than 2 to serve as flowergirls or ringbearers, you might want to reconsider.

"There's no age limit, but we really discourage them from having anyone younger than 2. I had a flowergirl who was supposed to scatter petals from a basket. Well, she wouldn't even do it at rehearsal, she was so scared," Natalie Hogan explains.

Despite the hassles and the hectic nature of the work, St. Paul's volunteer wedding coordinators say they wouldn't trade their jobs for anything.

"I do it because I'm an incurable romantic and I believe in the sanctity of marriage. My parents were married here and I was married here seven months ago," Porter says.

"Besides, who wouldn't want to be involved in a happy occasion like a wedding?"

And St. Paul's "I Do Crew" still needs volunteers.

"We could use an extra girl or two," says St. Denis, who affectionately refers to every person in the group as one of her "girls." "So far, we've been able to have somebody at every rehearsal, although we occasionally cut it close when someone is out of town."

The only requirement for the job is that the volunteer be available at least twice monthly and be willing to complete the training program.

"You really have to be versatile and ready for any of a number of things that might come up," St. Denis adds. "And a referee's whistle couldn't hurt, either."

A rose is . . .

Despite the intense heat and drought the area has suffered this spring and summer, organizers said that the June 17-18 Grosse Pointe Rose Society spring show was one of the best ever.

More non-member exhibitors participated than ever before, said the Society's Forrest Geary. And the roses displayed in several categories — from men's arrangement, mini arrangement, cycle of bloom, floribunda and horticultural — looked none the worse for the weather.

Among the top winners in the show, which was held at the Grosse Pointe Neighborhood Club, were Bill Quinlan and Martha Maxon. Quinlan won Best of Men's Arrangements and Maxon, Duchess of Arrangements.

A golden day: Grosse Pointe's Village Garden Club turns 50 with a look back at the past . . . and ahead

By Peggy O'Connor Andrzejczyk
Assistant Editor/Feature Editor
Scott Caskey, Fox, Brink.

The membership rolls of the Village Garden Club are dotted with names familiar to long-time Grosse Pointers. That's probably because the 50-year-old organization has, over the years, seen daughters and daughters-in-law of charter or early members pick up where their mothers left off.

Memories of those early years came flooding back to current members earlier this month when the Village Garden Club celebrated its golden anniversary with a dinner at the Grosse Pointe Club. And last Friday, the group gathered for its annual meeting, the final activity in what was a typically busy season for the club.

Jessie Bernard, who with Kay

Rockwell comprises a duo with the club's longest active membership, was asked to write a history of the club in honor of the 50th anniversary.

"I didn't think that it was my place to do it, but I went along," Bernard says with a chuckle. "I managed to give everyone a laugh when I wrote about what happened during the 1950-51 season.

"I remember that year very well, because it was the year my good friend, the late Margaret Phelps, was president. And because it was the year that we formally decided to discontinue referring to one another as 'Mrs. So-and-so' and address each other by our less formal first name. Isn't it silly, that we went around calling each other 'Mrs.?'," Bernard recalls.

"Now, thank God, we just call each other by our names . . . the way it should be."

Bernard admitted that little rebellion was a bit ahead of its time. But then, the Village Garden Club has prided itself on remaining in the forefront, especially when it comes to horticulture and conservation.

The club is one of the oldest in the state and is affiliated with the Federation of State Garden Clubs. Members support the federation's objectives, which are:

- Horticulture — the study of plant materials
- Conservation of natural resources
- Civic and highway improvement
- Junior Gardens — assisting children in the development of their own gardens

In addition, the Village Garden Club participates in flower shows, various garden club activities within the state and Grosse Pointe — including the Trial Gardens at the War Memorial — and enjoys a wide range of local speakers, workshops, lectures and trips.

"We were involved from the very beginning with the Higgins Lake Conservation Center. I know that we sent a teacher there from day one and at one time, had as many as four teachers attending the center to learn information they could bring back to local schools and clubs.

"That was our chief claim to fame," Bernard says.

The Village Garden Club also supported Camp Oakland. The camp was for disadvantaged young men. It was located on the site of the farm owned by the Lafer family, of Lafer coffee and tea fame. Mrs. Gayard F. Lafer was a charter member of the Village Garden Club.

Bernard says that such community work has no doubt contributed to the continuing interest in the club by a second generation of members. "I think that our record of involvement attracts new members and the fact that our early members' daughters keep coming back speaks well for the club," Bernard adds.

Village Garden Club's involvement will continue in the future, she says.

"I think that we are going to be involved in a very definite way with the environmental situation and it's a very serious situation, too. We're not sure what we as a small local club can do, but we're conscious of the environmental issues the earth is facing and I have a feeling we'll do what we can to help," Bernard says.

Which is part of what attracted Bernard to the club in the first place, she says, and keeps her there today.

"Looking back on the 40 years I've been a member, I have to say it's been a wonderful experience. And there'll be more to come, I hope."

SJH Guild dinner turns out to be a fun fundraiser

Almost 1,700 members and guests of metro Detroit's business and professional community turned out for the 28th annual St. John Hospital Guild Dinner at the Westin Hotel June 2.

Las Vegas performer Shucky Greene, the singing-comedy duo The Gaylords and Detroit Red Wings coach Jacques Demers entertained those attending the $175-per-person fundraiser.

Organizers hoped to surpass the more than $130,000 raised at last year's dinner. The Guild dinners have brought in more than $2.7 million for St. John Hospital patients. Proceeds from the June 2 event will go toward obtaining a kidney lithotripter, which offers kidney patients an alternative to surgery. The equipment is being purchased by Michigan Mobile Lithotripsy, a shared entity between St. John Hospital, Dearborn's Oakwood Hospital and Sparrow Hospital in Lansing.

Sister Verenice McQuade, SSJ, greeted the guests. A cocktail hour, gourmet dinner and a chance to enjoy the music of the Johnny Trudell Orchestra, followed. Entertainment by Greene, The Gaylords, Demers and Red Wing telecaster Mickey Redmond closed out the evening, which included a drawing for TV sets and a grand prize, a 1988 front wheel drive Eagle Premier. The car was donated by Pointe Jeep Eagle, The Meade Group and Ken Meade.

Co-chairing the event were Lawrence Scott of Harper Woods and Gerald Peck of St. Clair Shores. Glenn Wesselmann of Grosse Pointe Shores, president and chief executive officer of the hospital and its parent St. Clair Health Corporation, told the audience, "Be assured that your efforts have helped create a most valuable community resource for your family, friends and members of your community."

Celebration: Since June is the month of weddings, it naturally follows that it would be the month of anniversaries. That was true for Mr. and Mrs. William H. Allard Jr., of Grosse

Mr. and Mrs. William H. Allard Jr.

Pointe Woods, who celebrated their 50th anniversary this month.

Bill and Hazel Allard began the day with a Mass of Thanksgiving at St. Mary's Roman Catholic Church, followed by a brunch at Maxwell's in Windsor. They then greeted family and friends in their home at a reception held in their honor.

The Allards are the parents of Jean M. (Lloyd) Bayer, Judith A. (Pete) Genord and William A. (Cindy) Allard. They are the grandparents of Michele Mataway and Michael and Dana Bayer; and Cindi, Matt and Eric Genord. Great-grandson is James Michael Mataway.

A gourmet cruise: Lovers of gourmet international cuisine, romantic cruising and fine entertainment don't have to wait for an exotic trip to the Caribbean or Mediterranean when they can take a cruise on the "S.S. Bon Appetit," and help raise funds, too.

The occasion is the second annual dining/entertainment cruise benefit set for Wednesday, Aug.

3, at 7:30 p.m. at the Boblo Pavilion. It's sponsored by the Food Industry Council of the Greater Detroit Chamber of Commerce for the benefit of the Gleaners Community Food Bank.

A Boblo boat will be transformed into the S.S. Bon Appetit, an elegant and unique international bazaar of 30 restaurants. Entertainment and dancing on the second deck will be provided by Tim Hewitt and "Feelings." There will also be a comic magic show.

Donation is $125 per person, $250 per couple. Tickets are limited to 200 couples and can be obtained by contacting FIC Executive Director Robert Guerrini at the Greater Detroit Chamber of Commerce at 964-4000, Gene Gonya at Gleaners, 923-3535, or Ruth Ellen Mayhall at 774-5940.

Try to remember: ... to set this day aside in September: Friday, Sept. 30. That's the date for the Metropolitan Detroit Chapter of the Juvenile Diabetes Foundation's fourth annual "Evening of Brilliance."

Mike and Marian Ilitch are honorary co-chairpersons for the event, which will be held at the Hyatt Regency Fairland Town Center, Dearborn. Proceeds will be used to support research in finding a cure for diabetes.

For more information, contact the Juvenile Diabetes Foundation at 569-6171.

The Rashids are coming: It'll be all relative at the Novi Hilton July 8 when approximately 500-600 members of the Rashid family arrive from all over the United States to attend the 60th reunion of the clan.

There are over 1,300 Rashids in 32 states (and in Grosse Pointe) and another 40 families in Brazil. They'll enjoy a week-end which includes a Lebanese dinner and entertainment on Friday; a business meeting, tour of the Detroit Science Center, a tennis tournament and a formal banquet dinner on Saturday; mass and a brunch on Sunday.

Detroit-area Rashids are especially looking forward to the event, since the reunion comes to the metro Detroit area once every 10 years.

Beltaire honored:

Grosse Pointe's Beverly Beltaire, president and chief executive officer of PR Associates, Inc., was honored June 8 by the Camp Fire Detroit Area Council for her leadership and service to the community.

Beltaire was recognized for her work with numerous community and charity programs. She was co-chair of the Image Task Force for the Detroit Strategic Planning project and she serves on the boards of the Detroit Symphony Orchestra, Greater Detroit Chamber of Commerce, Hutzel Hospital, United Foundation, New Detroit, Wayne County Community College, the Governor's Commission on the Future of Higher Education and the Michigan Thanksgiving Parade Foundation.

Junior League plans Sibley House benefit

The World Championship Tennis Tournament is coming to Cobo Hall in Detroit Nov. 14 through 20. The event, one of 29 Super Series events leading to the Nabisco Masters Tournament, will benefit the Junior League of Detroit's Sibley House Restoration Project. Sales of corporate sponsorship packages for the tournament will benefit the project exclusively.

Organizers expect excellent player participation since it is the last chance players have to earn points and prize money prior to the Nabisco event.

The Sibley House Restoration Project is in its third year and is primarily a fundraising effort to properly restore the historic Sibley House located at 976 East Jefferson next to Christ Church. It is the oldest intact residential structure in Detroit and is currently being leased by the Junior League to provide low cost office space for other non-profit organizations.

The Junior League's contribution is $125,000 and its upcoming participation with WCT will help to reach the $500,000 goal.

St. Paul plans Bible School

"Keep God as a Friend" is the theme of the Vacation Bible School at St. Paul School this summer. Sessions with a Bible lesson, music, crafts and snacks will be held each day, Aug. 8-12, from 9 to 11:30 a.m.

In keeping with the theme, each child will be asked to bring in a canned food item daily for the St. Paul Food Program. The items will be displayed in the cafeteria, which serves as the morning meeting place, so that children can see how their caring takes a concrete form.

The program is open to the community for children in kindergarten (those who are 5-years-old by Dec. 1, 1988) through grade six. Registration forms may be obtained at the side entrance of St. Paul Church, 157 Lakeshore Road, Grosse Pointe Farms, MI 48236.

The forms, along with a $10 fee, should be mailed to the Religious Education Office, 170 Grosse Pointe Blvd., Grosse Pointe Farms, MI 48236, before the end of July.

Daily themes for all children expressed on their own levels will be: God Creates, God Cares, God Forgives, God Strengthens and God Saves. The week will culminate with a 10 a.m. paralympics and balloon launch Aug. 12.

Marygrove, Japan dance exchange

Marygrove College will participate in a Japanese-American cultural exchange project 1988-89 between Dance Detroit!, Marygrove's resident company, and Etoile Ballet Theater of Toyota City, Japan.

The planned concerts will take place Sunday, July 24, at 3 and 7 p.m. Highlighted will be works by Etoile Ballet's director and manager Kitoshi Suwa, department chair Penny Godboldo, 12-year DSO Nutcracker ballet master and choreographer Jacob Lascu and guest choreographers-in-residence from New York.

The ninth annual All-Michigan Catholic Charismatic Conference will be held at the Pontiac Silverdome July 29-31. The theme of the weekend will be "The Spirit of the Lord is Upon Me!" The conference will feature several leaders of the Charismatic movement.

Some 6,000 Charismatic Christians are expected for this annual conference. A Youth Conference on July 30 will include children from 3 to high school age.

Real Estate

SHOULD YOU ACCEPT FIRST OFFER?

Many people who sell a house encounter the "first offer" dilemma. It can involve a trying decision. Sellers often turn it down, hoping for something better, only to find it turned out to be the best offer they received.

This is where the advice of a real estate agent can be particularly helpful. The agent can tell you how realistic the offer is and whether the deposit that accompanies it represents good faith.

Since there is no way to know how many offers will be received or the order of value, the offer should be judged on the seller's and agent's knowledge of the house in question and the market. The depth of that knowledge will help protect the seller against the natural reluctance to accept the first offer and against regretting a decision that was not based on sound judgement. Remember, most good offers come early in the selling game. If it's a fair one why pass it up?

AARP focus: Comprehensive, long term health care

By Marian Trainor
Special Writer

When more than 32,000 members of the American Association of Retired Persons gathered in Cobo Hall for AARP's biennial convention, U.S. Rep. Claude Pepper (D. Fla.) at 86 the oldest member of Congress, made clear that the most critical problem facing the elderly is the cost of long-term health care.

It is a problem that concerns a large segment of our population. By 2010, more than one in four persons will be at least 55 years old — one in seven will be at least 65.

With nursing home cost averaging $23,000 a year, it is obvious that a large majority of those who need long-term care will not be able to afford it. A study released last November by the U.S. Select Committee on Aging found that the average single person 65 or older plunges into poverty after only 13 weeks in a nursing home. After one year, 90 percent of single elderly are poverty stricken.

Last year, both houses overwhelmingly passed legislation to deal with one aspect of the problem: catastrophic illness. Both houses want to cap costs Medicare users face and make it easier for them to get benefits without spending themselves into poverty. Both also want coverage for the cost of prescription drugs and both want more coverage for long-term care.

According to Rep. Henry Waxman (D. Calif.), the bills contain real benefits and meet real needs, but they don't go far enough to help.

Sen. John Chafee (R.R.I.) agreed. He said his greatest fear is that once the bill on catastrophic illness coverage is passed, Congress will think it has solved one of the country's most troubling health problems when we will not have scratched the surface.

The bill provides for costs incurred in such illnesses to be paid by Medicare recipients by premium increases, but it is not clear who would be covered and how much they would pay.

Otis Bower, Secretary of Health and Human Services, does not agree with this form of funding. Seniors are still reeling from January's premium hike of 38.5 percent. Bower says that the current $24.80 monthly premium would double by 1992 and that it employs a user's fee and dumps the entire cost on seniors.

Such legislation doesn't stop with just a flat premium hike; it also imposes a "supplemental premium" — a special bill from the Internal Revenue Service. A senior with an adjusted gross income of $10,000, for example, would be slapped with a supplemental tax of $369.

Ideally, the government should pay for long-term care, but with the deficit topping $150 billion, the government will spend $600 more per person than it takes in.

Thomas Burke, a top aide to Secretary Bowen, believes that much more should be done to cultivate the private insurance market.

Last fall, a special task force which studied private, long-term care insurance policies recommended to Bowen's department a series of steps such as tax incentives, to boost the role of private insurance, pensions and other methods of paying for this type of insurance.

Another idea being looked at is Insurance Medical Accounts (IMAs), a savings plans similar to Individual Retirement Accounts (IRAs). IMAs calls for making a portion of a person's contribution to the plan tax deductible, so that people are encouraged to build a nest egg that could be coupled with private, long-term care insurance.

Former Social Security Commissioner Robert Ball says he is not in favor of the IMA approach because it would be used primarily by those in higher income brackets. Ball favors a broadened Medicare program which would cover long-term care financed primarily by additional payroll taxes.

As for private insurances, such policies are unlikely to be affordable to the majority of the elderly, according to Alice Rivien and Joshua Weiner, authors of the Brookings report. They contend that those who are at greatest risk of needing nursing home care could not afford the policies. They suggest a combination of higher payroll taxes, higher estate taxes, higher Medicare premiums and an income tax surcharge to pay the bill.

Wayne Tanner, a regulation officer in the state insurance bureau, predicts that pressure by senior citizen groups will lead to group insurance plans which carry lower premiums.

It will take time to cure long-term problems. But the proposed legislation is a start and a model for more comprehensive programs later on.

An influential factor in helping bring about a comprehensive program will be the 52 million members of AARP. "With their vast membership, they have vast influence," Rep. Pepper said. "They have money and they have power."

And they can back that up with a "vote jolt." One out of every four registered voters belongs to AARP.

Senior Men honor achievers

Outstanding achievers from Grosse Pointe North and South high schools were honored at the May 24 meeting of the Grosse Pointe Senior Men's Club. Ten seniors from each school were selected for their top accomplishments; each received a plaque and a book on the history of Michigan. Robert Trinklein was the presenter.

RSVP honors local volunteers

RSVP of Macomb (Retired Senior Volunteer Program) honored some 100 volunteers at its recent Recognition Brunch for more than 35,000 hours of service during the past year to the county's 50 nonprofit agencies.

Among those honored for more than 1,000 hours of service was Michele Fortucci of Harper Woods. Fortucci, a volunteer at Mount Clemens General Hospital, devoted 1,432 hours to volunteer service last year. He earned an RSVP gold award.

RSVP of Macomb was established in November 1985 to provide meaningful community service volunteer opportunities for individuals 60 or older. It is sponsored by Catholic Services of Macomb.

Volunteers select their own assignments from more than 150 choices and are reimbursed for mileage. They are also covered by liability and accident insurance.

The program has more than 300 volunteers, but could always use more. The volunteers' 35,000 hours of service represented a savings of at least $117,250 to the agencies for which they worked, according to program director Nancy Spilski.

For information on joining RSVP, call 468-2616 or 573-0530.

Bishop Gallagher High School will hold its first annual fall festival this year on Oct. 1 and 2 at the new Activities Complex located on Utica Road between Moravian and Metro Parkway.

The festival is being called the Bishop Gallagher Family Fun Days. In addition to the many activities being planned is a craft show, and Bishop Gallagher is taking applications now for table space.

Rental for a 10x10 space including table will be $35 for both days. This is strictly a craft show — no flea market, resale items, baked goods or raffles will be allowed. All items for sale must be handcrafted.

Don't miss out on this excellent opportunity to display and sell your crafts. A big turnout is expected, and the show will be sheltered. For more information and an application, call during business hours at 886-2303; or, write to Bishop Gallagher High School at 19360 Harper, Harper Woods, MI 48225.

Notes in a garden

By Lynn Zwickey

From September 1959 to December 1972, Grosse Pointe artist, gardener, teacher and writer Lynn Zwickey, served as editor of "Garden Pointers," the monthly bulletin of the Men's Garden Club of Grosse Pointe. Occasionally, those pieces were reprinted in "The Gardener," the national magazine for the Men's Garden Club of America.

The Grosse Pointe News is pleased to begin reprinting a series of Zwickey's "Garden Pointers," on an occasional basis. Here's the first, titled "My Garden":

Nobody will ever see your garden as you see it, nor mine as I. It is because the mind's view rolls out, now back, now forward, and we see both what was, what is and what will be. We know the history of each patch and each cranny and how this species once sought to intrude there, and then that other, and how we dawdled and wondered whether to "let be" or to intrude with a stern "no" to both and a pat and a welcome for some flamboyant newcomer. And then how the newcomer came to be at last an old friend — maybe even an over-obstreperous old friend, with the confidence to elbow back his flanking neighbors.

We learn at last to know each seedling by its special kind of baby leaves and, in the early morning when the dew is wet and before the clutter of going-to-work noises intrudes from beyond our neighbor's privet hedge, we push aside the leaves of the parent plants, look down with a godparent's ecstasy on some newborn plantlings in which we take a special hostile pride and whose future nursery we project, and whose vague, remote adult glory we envisage.

We mingle this vision, which nobody else can see, with the whistle of a nesting oriole, who is looking down, mayhap, on his nestling oriole heirs with some similar sort of pride of ancestry and possession. And the whistle becomes, in our mind's eye, the brilliant black and orange of the oriole's nuptial garb, as though we saw a sound.

In a garden, thus, in the morning — but in our garden only — we see the sounds and hear the textures and smell the colors and remember and project and transform and synthesize a reality which never was and never will be. But, which, nevertheless, briefly, transiently — for a moment only — beyond question, IS.

Fruit butter — reaping a healthy, tasty harvest

By Gretchen Schumer
Special Writer

When you pop your naked bread into the toaster in a half-awake state in the morning, what is it that you reach for? Butter? Margerine? Jam? Jelly? How about something healthier?

Fruit butters are the bounty of a summer's harvest. Containing no salt and being lower in sugar than traditional spreads, these condiments are an alternative to the health conscious or calorie counters. Simmered slowly until thick and smooth, fruit butters seal in flavor without all the fat present in dairy butter.

Lower sugar means fewer calories. Tipping the scale at 102 calories per tablespoon, dairy butter is a costly dietary choice. The same serving of apple butter weighs in at only 33 calories. And jams have 50 percent more calories than apple butter.

Most health food stores and supermarkets have selections of fruit butters that are made with no added sweeteners. Produce stands along the roadside and farmer markets are also good sources of fruit spreads.

The use of fruit butters need not end at bread, they can be creatively combined with other foods.

- Mix with cottage cheese, yogurt, or ricotta cheese for natural sweetness.
- Smooth over pancakes, muffins, or crackers.
- Fill crepes and omelets.
- For subtle flavor, whisk into salad dressings. Try 2 1/2 teaspoons fresh lemon juice and five tablespoons of safflower oil over greens.

Recipes to try

Cook the fruit until soft, then press it through a sieve to remove skins and seeds. Cook this fine-textured, strained pulp with honey (and sometimes spices) until thick. Fruit butters need less sweetener than jams and jellies because they rely on evaporation during cooking to thicken. Jams and jellies, on the other hand, require a precise ratio of fruit, sugar and pectin to jell.

Peach Butter

Place 1/2 cup almonds with 1/2 cup of water in a blender; process until reduced to a liquid paste. Add 6 peeled, pitted peaches, 1/4 cup honey and 2 tsp. lemon juice. Process again until well blended. Store covered in the refrigerator.

Mixed Fruit Spread

1/2 pound dried pears
1/2 pound dried apricots
1/2 pound dried, pitted prunes
1 cup of raisins
Honey

Rinse fruit and soak overnight with water to cover. Cook the prunes in the soaking water and put all fruit through blender on a fine blade. Stir in enough honey to bind and sweeten.

Easy Strawberry Preserves

1 pint strawberries
1 cup cold water
4 serving size regular or low-calorie gelatin dessert mix

Crush the strawberries in a saucepan. Add the water and the gelatin mix. Cook and stir until gelatin is completely dissolved. Simmer gently uncovered for 2 minutes. Pour into three jelly jars. Cover and store in refrigerator. Makes about 2 cups. Per tablespoon 13.6 calories.

No Sugar Pear Jam

2 pounds medium-sized ripe Bartlett pears, cored.
1 package (1 3/4 ounces) powdered fruit pectin
1 Tbsp. lemon juice
1 Tbsp. sugar substitute or 10 individual packets

In container of food processor fitted with steel blade, coarsely chop pears, drain excess juice. Place in heavy, large non-aluminum saucepan; stir in fruit pectin and lemon juice. Over medium heat cook 15 to 20 minutes, stirring constantly, until fruit is of desired thickness. Remove from heat; stir in sugar substitute. Pour jam into containers; cover and chill. Jam can be safely refrigerated up to three weeks. Servings: 3 1/2 cups. Calories: 5 per teaspoon.

Apple Butter

6 1/2 pounds tart baking apples
3 1/2 cups unsweetened apple juice

Juice and grated rind of 1 lemon

2 1/2 tsp. ground cinnamon

1 1/4 tsp. ground cloves

3/4 tsp. allspice

2 Tbsp. sugar substitute

Peel, core and slice apples.

Place in large pot or Dutch oven with apple juice. Cook covered over medium heat until tender, about 30 minutes. Puree apples, a few cups at a time, in a blender or food processor. Return to pot and add remaining ingredients except sugar substitute. Cook uncovered, over low heat until thick and dark in color, about 2 1/2 - 3 hours. Stir occasionally to prevent sticking.

Spoon into 4 hot, sterilized pint jars, allowing 1/4 inch head space. Process 10 minutes in boiling water bath. Cool before storing. Makes 4 pints. Calories per tablespoon: 15

Sugar-free Plum Butter

2 pounds medium-sized ripe plums, pitted

1 package (1 3/4 ounces) powdered fruit pectin

2 Tbsp. sugar substitute or 20 individual packets

In container of food processor fitted with steel blade, coarsely chop plums to measure about 4 1/2 cups; drain excess juice.

Place plums in heavy, medium-sized non-aluminum saucepan; stir in pectin. Over medium-high heat, cook 15-20 minutes, stirring constantly, until fruit is of desired thickness. Remove from heat; stir in sugar substitute.

Pour jam into containers; cover and chill. Jam can safely be kept in refrigerator up to three weeks. Servings: Makes about two cups. Calories: 5 per teaspoon

Interest Rate

Annual Percentage Rate

...and the option to convert to a Fixed Rate Mortgage later.

With a Convertible Adjustable Rate Mortgage from NBD, you start with the guaranteed low rates of an Adjustable Rate Mortgage for the first year. Then, any time during the next four years, you can convert to a fixed rate mortgage—quickly, easily.

Take advantage of low rates now...

The NBD Convertible A.R.M. gives you interest rates significantly below current fixed rate mortgages of comparable term. Here's how it works: Your rate is set on the day your completed application is received and it's good for one year from your closing date. Then every 12 months your rate will be adjusted up or down with the market. If interest rates go down, your mortgage payments go down accordingly. If interest rates continue to rise, your payments will increase. However, to protect you from any large changes, NBD guarantees that your A.R.M. will never go up more than two percentage points annually or more than six percentage points over the initial rate for the life of your loan.

... Lock in a fixed rate later for only $100.

If rates go down, or you want the security of a fixed rate mortgage, just notify our NBD Mortgage Office and they will convert your A.R.M. to a Fixed Rate Mortgage quickly, easily, and at a cost of only $100. You can even do it through the mail! There are no title searches, no waiting, and you can convert any month between the 13th and 60th month of your loan.

Find out more about it.

NBD's Convertible A.R.M. could help you buy more house than you thought. For more information about NBD's Convertible Adjustable Rate Mortgage, or the other loan options we have available, call or visit the NBD Mortgage Company Office nearest you.

*These estimated annual percentage rates are subject to increase or decrease on an annual basis after the loan is closed based upon the formula set forth in the loan contract.

Grosse Pointe A Unique Community

A Romantic Past As a Grosse Pointe resident, you'll walk upon grounds that were once the swamp, marsh and meadow haunts of deer, buffalo and beaver. It was this profusion of wildlife—plus fish from the 400 square-mile Lake St. Clair—that attracted the French farmers who first settled the area in 1701.

During the century that they fished, farmed and traded with the local Indians, many legends began. And many infamous locations were indelibly named: Fox Creek, graveyard of the Fox Indian nation; Bloody Run, where a company of British soldiers from Fort Detroit were ambushed and killed.

From Pristine to Prosperous After a brief period under British rule, the area began its history as an American settlement. Its beauty and bounty made it an ideal resort area for families from the growing city of Detroit. Between 1875 and 1925, Grosse Pointe became the elegant summer residence—and then permanent home—of families who had amassed fortunes in lumber and automobiles. In the midst of the lavish mansions, farm cottages and resort ambiance, there gradually grew a year-round community of quality homes for families from all walks of life.

Another thought

Got to thinking about some things the other day:

- Does anybody know the Detroit Drive's record?

- I would like to see the Grand Prix come to Grosse Pointe and call it the Tour de Pointes.

- Is it too much to ask that major league umpires don't get dirt thrown on them? Or better yet, is it too much to ask that only adults be admitted into managerial posts?

- Why does it cost a family of four attending a Tiger game, over $70?

- How will 41,000 Pistons' fans fit into the Palace next season?

- Does anybody know who the Detroit Drive is?

- Did anybody notice the impartial commentating during the Lakers/Pistons championship series from Dick Stockton and Billy Cunningham?

- It's nice to know that South's Marcus Wysocki and North's Steve Neiman were selected to play in the East-West high school all-star game at Tiger Stadium.

- Why do people insist on constantly getting up at games and distracting an entire row of energetic fans? Better yet, why do they do it while there's a play going on?

- Do kids still swap baseball cards?

- I still think Grosse Pointe should host the Prix.

- I understand that the major league umpires have their own baseball cards. Think Pete Rose and Billy Martin collect them all?

- When do the Lions start the pre-season?

- Do you really think Stockton and Cunningham knew the Pistons were in the finals?

- If apple pie is so American, why can't I get any at a baseball game?

- I was going to be the first buyer of a Detroit Pistons 1988 World Champions hat, but now all I want is the chance to buy a piece of the court they played on at the Silverdome. What will become of that floor?

- Is there a professional soccer league in the United States?

- Why can't we have a professional softball or basketball league for women? Answer: We can't because of the lack of money that would be generated, not the lack of interest.

- Why have sunflower seeds become the new big league chew?

- Think they'll serve Little Caesar's pizza at the Fox Theatre?

- I think European soccer fans are trying to show us the true brand of Big Time Wrestling.

- Name two running backs for the Detroit Lions.

- Think Kirk Gibson still suffers from razor stubble?

- Hello - Little Caesars? Yes, I'll take two pan pizzas with everything. Delivered? Yes - to section 211 in the Fox.

Pointers enjoy 'once in a lifetime' at Tiger Stadium

Wysocki, Neiman play in all-star game

Marcus Wysocki and Steve Neiman represented Grosse Pointe South and North, respectively, at the Michigan High School Baseball Coaches' Association East/West All-Star Classic on June 23 at Tiger Stadium.

Wysocki, a stout right-hander who batted .420 for the Blue Devils, started the game at third base and later moved to the mound and shortstop where he performed quite well. Neiman, on the other hand, waited out the first six innings and then slipped in behind the plate to catch for some of the finer East All-Star hurlers over the last three innings.

"It's just such a great feeling to be here," said Wysocki. "It's a great experience."

Neiman agreed.

"It's a once-in-a-lifetime chance to play at Tiger Stadium," he said. "I'm just glad to be here . . . even if it's just one turn at bat."

Neiman referred to his only at bat in the eighth inning. It was only one swing of the bat, but drilling the ball off the right field fence on a hop made that plate appearance memorable.

"When you get to the plate, it's very intimidating because the stadium looks so big," said Neiman. "Then after you think about it, it's just another park that's totally enclosed. I just tried to relax and hit the ball."

Wysocki, who didn't have a hit in four trips to the plate, had a similar feeling.

"You get to the plate and everything looks so big that it's distracting at first," he said. "But like Steve said, you just have to realize it's another baseball field."

Playing in Tiger Stadium was very exciting for both players, but something with more impact was meeting some of the finest baseball players throughout the state.

Eagles conclude their season

The Grosse Pointe Eagles participated last weekend in the post-season Waterloo International Youth Soccer Tournament held in Waterloo, Ontario. They finished first in Group A competition with a record of 2-0-1.

The Eagles first played a 1-1 tie against Aylmer Quebec (goal by Ricky Weinberg), then defeated successfully the Waterloo Marauders, 1-0, on Todd Frederickson's goal and rolled over the Maumee Express (Ohio) by a score of 4-1, on goals from Richard Berri (2), Todd Frederickson and John Woods.

Sunday morning in the semi-final round the Eagles plagued by injury (Ptasznik, Frederickson, and Verlinden) could not contain the strong Bourassa Quebec side. In spite of their gallant effort, particularly by goalie Matt Schultz, the Eagles fell behind 3-0.

The Eagles played very well in spite of the semi-final setback. Coaches Jean Claude Elie and Tom Smith said they represented Grosse Pointe with courage and poise.

Adult tennis program set

The Grosse Pointe Farms Parks and Recreation Department is organizing an adult rotational tennis program for Farms residents.

This program has already proved popular in the other Grosse Pointes. Rotational tennis is set up so that participants play other individuals by rotating players after each match. This allows players a chance to play different players with different abilities.

It is set up to be primarily a recreational tennis program and a commitment to be there every time is not necessary. It is also perfect for tennis players who do not have someone to play against on a consistent basis.

Individuals who are interested in the program may call Dick Huhn at 343-9050. The anticipated starting date is Monday, July 11, at 7:30 p.m. Games will be played at the Pier Park tennis courts.

Fit

Exercising in the heat of summer

Heat illness can be dangerous, and not to only those who are in poor physical condition. Even the highly trained individual can suffer from a heat-related disorder. Both the exercise load and the environment can place a large heat load on the exerciser, resulting in profuse sweating which can lead to dehydration, which can lead to circulatory collapse and death.

Now that I have your attention, let's talk. We're having an unusually hot introduction to summer and many of us continue to exercise during this hot weather.

Be alert to symptoms of overexertion: nausea or vomiting, extreme breathlessness, dizziness, unusual fatigue and headache. As always, listen to your body.

It's difficult sometimes to do that. I know I've suffered some symptoms of heat illness when running during the summer months. One of the symptoms of heat illness is hair standing on end at chest or upper arms. This is followed by chilling, headache or throbbing pressure, vomiting or nausea, labored breathing, dry lips or extreme cotton mouth, faintness or muscle cramping and cessation of sweating.

Of course you want to get in those miles. But if any of the above symptoms occur, stop immediately and get into the shade as the risk for developing heat exhaustion or heat stroke rises dramatically. Seek fluids!

You're also at a greater risk if you've previously suffered heat stroke or you use medications such as antihistamines or diuretics. Also, if you have a heavy hand with the salt and alcohol you're at higher risk of heat injury.

Have you ever pondered whether to exercise when you have a fever? Don't, as your core body temperature could be elevated to dangerous levels.

Here are some suggestions for preventing heat injury:

1. Drink plenty of water prior to activity and frequently during activity.
2. Decrease the intensity of exercise if temperature or humidity is high (76 or above).
3. Avoid a high intake of protein as protein requires a large amount of water for digestion.
4. Increase carbohydrates as they contain a high water content and help maintain fluid balance.
5. Wear appropriate clothing. Light clothing does not absorb as much heat as darker clothing.
6. Expose as much skin surface as possible.
7. Avoid synthetic materials and clothing with paint screens as they do not absorb sweat.
8. Never wear a rubber or sauna suit.
9. Forget using salt tablets and remember high intake of water.

These rules apply to people of all ages. Exercise physiology is not an exact science and is ever changing as research continues. Keep abreast of what's going on and make sure that your children's coaches do as well.

Enjoy the heat. This is Michigan, and it will soon be fall.

Sweating it out: Heat as health therapy

By Gretchen Schumer
Special writer

Sweat bathing is not a new practice. For centuries people believed, without scientific evidence, that sweating was an extremely healthy therapy to cleanse the body of toxins, to stimulate circulation, to convey a fresh and youthful appearance to the skin, and to prevent illness.

Many cold and flu sufferers today still take to the covers to "sweat it out" as a technique to quicken recovery. But the questions remain: Can sweating it out in a sauna or steam bath help you lose weight, reduce stress and condition your heart, or are all these health claims a lot of hot air?

According to reports distributed by Los Angeles Times syndicate, the answer depends on which method of sweat therapy you use. Due to the fact that heat and steam affect the body and skin differently you receive different benefits from each.

In a sauna the air is heated by hot, permeable rocks that emit a constant, long-lasting heat with low humidity. In the sauna the energy is evenly distributed over the body.

On the contrary, in the steam room, it is the air rather than the vapor that carries the heat. Even though a steam bath may feel hotter than a sauna, in actuality it is several degrees cooler: 120 degrees for the steam room versus 170-180 degrees for the sauna.

The dry heat of the sauna may be somewhat less stressful and conceivably more beneficial than the moist, humid environment of a steam room or hot tub. According to recent evidence published in Spring Magazine, rates for both evaporation and perspiration go down as the moisture of the skin rises. In simpler terms, moist surroundings — such as the steam bath or hot tub — somewhat suppress the body's cooling mechanism and pose more potential for overdoing it. At the same time, they stifle the sweat — which is, after all, the whole intention to sweat bathing.

Studies have shown that sweat baths are quite beneficial. Research has demonstrated that the sauna and the hot tub help remove impurities from the blood. The sweat glands assist the kidneys' job of filtering urea from the blood, the problem is that under today's sedentary and air-cooled conditions, we just don't perspire enough to give this sweat-linked purification system an opportunity to work. But when we make ourselves vulnerable to an extremely hot environment, such as a sauna, the amount of urea that is lost can be significant.

Excessive sweating additionally flushes out harmful minerals like lead. In research at the University of Connecticut School of Medicine it was concluded that "sauna bathing might provide a therapeutic method to increase elimination of toxic trace minerals."

While the idea of losing harmful minerals is not on the minds of the general population, losing weight is. It is commonly, and incorrectly, thought that a steam bath is the quickest way to peel off pounds. The problem with this approach is that few calories are used up in the steam room. Most of the weight lost in a sauna is water — weight that will be regained as water is replaced.

One benefit of the sweat bath is the working up of a good sweat. As a person's sweat increases (even if at rest) the body's metabolism also speeds up. The result is that a person burns up calories faster through sweating than by lounging in the comfort of air-conditioning.

How many calories can be melted away in a single sauna? Research done by Army flight surgeon Ward Dean, who has made studies of sweat and energy consumption: "A moderately conditioned person can easily sweat off 500 grams, (approximately 17 fluid ounces) in a typical session, consuming 300 calories in the process."

Dean also states that the body uses up about three calories for each teaspoon of water lost. That does not seem like much, but surprisingly, 10 to 15 minutes in the sauna is equal to the calorie usage of a mile or two of jogging — without all the effort.

A sauna also conditions the heart, especially when separated by cool showers. Each time you quickly change temperature, whether from cool to hot or back again, your heart rate goes up by 60 percent or more, equal to that of moderate exercise.

When you run, swim, or play tennis, your breathing becomes heavier, your heart beats faster, your pulse feels stronger, and your blood vessels expand so that additional oxygen-rich blood can get to the muscles that need it. With repeated exercise your heart and circulatory system, like your muscles, improve in strength and efficiency.

Repeated sweating does almost the same thing. Heat is the opponent now. To stay cool, your breathing becomes heavier, your heart beat steps up, your pulse feels stronger, and the blood vessels in your skin expand in a cooperative effort to get the heat out.

For overall fitness, you can't top good old-fashioned exercise, but, says Dean, the sauna provides an excellent complement to any workout. Sweat baths contribute to cardiovascular conditioning, and the deep heat can help recondition tired aching muscles so you'll be able to add more time and less teeth-clenching toil into your fitness program.

If losing weight or sweating up a storm is not your primary goal, medical research published in Your Health magazine uncovered another benefit of heat. It has been found that under temperature extremes, the body releases hormones called endorphins, the body's natural pain killers. Endorphins, secreted from the back lobe of the pituitary gland at the base of the brain, raise the thresholds of pain throughout the body, which make unpleasant physical extremes more tolerable. The tranquilizing effects of heat and its ability to suppress the pain of arthritis and other ailments may be attributed to a temporary boost in endorphin levels.

Although steamed heat appears to be advantageous to a great number of people and problems, there are those who can't take the heat. Patients who have a history of heart problems should consult a physician before using a sauna or steamroom. The sudden temperature change creates stress and could actually precipitate an attack.

Others who are ill-advised to utilize sweat therapy are people with diabetes, vascular problems, hypertension, kidney dysfunction, metabolic conditions, and pregnant women.

During pregnancy, women would avoid long periods of heat. Animal studies indicate that an elevated body temperature from 98.6 degrees to 101 can induce birth defects, particularly by a decrease in brain size.

As a person adapts to high temperatures blood pressure drops. This shift goes unnoticed for most people, but for some it may cause a period of momentary faintness. If precautions are taken, many find sweat bathing to be a relaxing way to cleanse pores, rid the body of toxins and enhance good circulation. Sauna and steam baths also can rev up your metabolism, improve cardiovascular conditions and suppress muscle cramps.

Tips for safe sweating

- Sauna: Limit exposure to 10 to 15 minutes and always leave sooner if uncomfortable.
- Steam room: Beginners should limit exposure to six minutes or less; 15 minutes for veterans.
- Wait at least 30 minutes after eating or drinking. Alcohol expands blood vessels, as does sweating. The two together can be dangerous.
- Drink plenty of water or fruit juice before or after entering a sauna or steam room.
- Never wear jewelry (to avoid burns from hot metal).
- Prior to popping into a hot tub, make sure it has been chlorinated and has proper pH levels as well as frequent water changes. Hot tubs can become hot beds for bacteria — leading to skin infections.
- Apply a moisturizer before entering the sauna to prevent the skin from becoming dehydrated.
- Take a towel to the sauna to wipe off perspiration and place a cool cloth across your forehead to prevent headaches.
- A cool shower following a sweat bath can enhance effects of circulation and close pores.
- Avoid sweat baths if you are on medication like antihistamines.
- If you are over 50 years of age, make sure a doctor approves physical exercise for you. In physiological terms, sweat therapy is the same as jogging around the block.
- Always make sure an attendant is within earshot who knows when you entered the sauna or steamroom. You could fall asleep or need assistance.

Grains: The 'staff of life'

Grains are the seeds of various grasses, such as wheat, rye, oats, rice, and barley. They are often referred to as the staff of life because they provide the bulk of the world's food supply. Common foods made from these grains are flours, breads, breakfast cereals, and macaroni.

Breads and cereals

The main constituent of breads is flour. Flour is the end product of the milling process, which involves the grinding and sifting of cleaned grains. The type of flour from which it originates determines the color, texture, flavor, and nutritional value of the breads. Cereals can be made from a variety or combination of the various grains.

So what is the big deal about eating "whole-grains," and is that just another "buzz" word to make us all feel guilty for eating white breads? Let's take a look at what whole grains really mean.

Whole grain flour contains the germ of the grain, which possesses the most nutrients, and must be refrigerated to prevent rancidity. The bread from whole grains should either be stored at room temperature, (if used fairly quickly,) or frozen until used. The structure of a whole-grain may be separated into three different parts. The germ is the heart of the grain, which sprouts when the seed is planted. It is rich in the B vitamins, vitamin E and also contains some protein, unsaturated fat, minerals and carbohydrates. The endosperm, which is the largest part of the grain, is composed chiefly of carbohydrates in the form of starch, with some incomplete protein and traces of vitamins and minerals. The bran portion of the grain is the covering. It is composed mainly of cellulose, which gives us the fiber we need from the grain.

Mother Nature, in Her wisdom, provided all the nutrients and the necessary fiber in the way she created all of our grains. But modern man decided to go one better, and perfected the process of separating the whole grain and then "whitening" the flour. This processing made for a more uniformed flour, prevented rancidity, but also aided in the robbing of important vitamins, minerals and fiber, or as grandma called it, "roughage." Around the time of World War II, bread manufacturers were required to "enrich" breads, in other words, put some of the nutrients back in the bread that they had taken out in the processing of white flour.

Then in 1972, a report in the Lancet, a British medical journal, focused on the studies of British physicians, led by Drs. Burkitt, Trowell, Walker and Painter. The report focused on the discovery that southern Africans were free of dozens of illnesses that were major problems to more affluent white societies. This research surmised that the fiber of the South African diet, one made up of high vegetables but low meat, aided the intestines to absorb water, and help the lower bowel tract to function, not only more efficiently, but apparently healthier. Constipation was almost unheard of in the primitive cultures.

So, we began our quest for returning to "natural" foods, and with it, high contents of fiber in the diet. For those of us old enough to remember, we even went through a period of time when some bread manufacturers resorted to placing high alpha-cellulose in their bread product; in other words, wood fiber!

But if you are concerned about all the choices that are now available, just remember to shop for whole foods — this means that your diet should include unrefined grains, beans and fresh fruits and vegetables.

Read, read, read!

When it comes to cereals, breads and pastas, read the ingredients on every package; you will be glad you took the extra time and effort. There are many products on the market that promise you high fiber, and good health, but by reading the ingredients we can become more educated and sophisticated to what the product actually will add to our overall well-being.

With our modern day cooking facilities, don't be afraid to buy the unadulterated, "real" thing. Oat bran cereal, rolled oats, and whole wheat cereals, all without unnecessary added ingredients, can be cooked up in as little as five minutes. Yes, it takes a little longer than throwing together a bowl of dried, prepared cereal, but you will be glad you put in the few extra minutes. You will be in control of exactly what you are eating, less the unnecessary preservatives, colorings and sugars that are part of most prepared products.

A nice and easy method to introduce your family to the pleasure of eating some of these "natural" foods is by mixing up a batch of oat bran or oatmeal muffins. Fresh fruits may also be included for extra flavor and enrichment. Again, don't be misled with the prepared products and fancy packaging on the market today. You can make many of the different kinds of muffins from "scratch," not only cheaper, but better for your health.

Oat bran muffins

- 2 1/2 cups oat bran (uncooked)
- 1/2 cup shredded apple, (skinned)
- 1 tsp. baking powder
- 3/4 cup skim milk
- 1/2 cup honey
- 2 tblsp. corn oil

Spray muffin pan with vegetable spray, such as Pam. Line each cup with paper muffin cup. Blend dry ingredients, mix gently honey and milk. Add to dry ingredients. Blend well. Pour into 12 muffin cups. Bake in preheated 425° for 15 minutes, cool.

Tourney champion

John Yancey, a Prince All-American tennis player who graduated from ULS this spring, won the No. 1 singles flight at the Duke University Inter-Scholastic Tennis Tournament in Durham N.C.

Yancey, who won his first national tournament with scores of 6-1, 6-3, 6-1, finished on top of the field of 64 players.

The 18-year-old champion also won the doubles competition with Jim Rogerson, in straight sets of 6-2, 6-2.

Yancey will be playing at the University of Kentucky this fall, but over the summer, he will be trying out for the Junior Davis Cup Team.

The waves of racing

By Cristina Staats

You have heard the term, practice makes perfect. It's an old cliché, yet one that never grows old. Sailors find that the more they practice sailing, the better they get at it. They also find that racing their boat helps perfect their skills, which builds confidence as well as competence.

In our area there is every level of racing available, from jib and main racing for novices, to crews handling spinnakers; from doublehanded racing to fully crewed yachts. There is something for everyone. Grosse Pointe has a wealth of opportunity for the sailor-racer to fine tune their skills.

Below is a listing of the racing taking place in or very near Grosse Pointe.

Grosse Pointe Farms Boat Club:

This local club sponsors a twilight series on Thursday evenings in June and again in August, just off the Grosse Pointe Farms Municipal Pier. Races are open to anyone. Boats are divided into racing fleets by PHRF handicap system. There is a choice of jib and main, or spinnaker fleets. Contact Sonny or Donna Gorenflo at 882-4417 for more information.

Lakeshore Sail Club:

This club runs races on Wednesday evenings just off the Jefferson Beach Marina. Races are open to anyone. There is no racing in July; racing resumes in August. Boats are divided into PHRF fleets and a MORC fleet. Contact Hugh Livingston for more information at 977-8243.

Grosse Pointe Sail Club:

The Grosse Pointe Sail Club sponsors races on Tuesday evenings at the mouth of the Detroit River on Lake St. Clair, just off the Grosse Pointe Park's municipal marina at the foot of Alter Road. They offer IOR fleets, PHRF fleets, as well as one design and jib and main fleets. Contact John Downs at 823-3178 for more information.

Crescent Sail Yacht Club:

Crescent has inaugurated a new doublehanded series, open to anyone. You do not have to be a Crescent member to participate. Because the series is new, there is a limited race schedule. Racing will be expanded, however, if there is enough interest. Boats are assigned to a fleet based on their PHRF handicap. Contact Jim Haselwood, at 882-8981, or Phil LePage at 337-2624 to discuss the exciting possibilities associated with this new series.

Catalina owners:

The Catalina Fleet 21 race every Tuesday evening just off from Jefferson Beach Marina. Only Catalina sailboat owners participate. If you own a Catalina and are interested in knowing more about this energetic group, contact Frank Kunick, at 1317 Roslyn Road, Grosse Pointe Woods 48236.

Grosse Pointe Boat Club:

The Grosse Pointe Boat Club sponsors a Wednesday night series just off the Grosse Pointe City Municipal Marina, immediately south of Rathbone. These races are also open to anyone. For more information on the 12 race schedule contact Phil or Sherry Allor at 886-7919.

As you can see, there is enough racing locally to keep even the most ardent sailor busy weekday evenings. Each of these groups encourage novice sailors to participate.

Everyone who becomes well known for their racing acumen had to start some place, and there is no better place to learn than close to home.

Grosse Pointers face off in Canada Cup

The one-ton yachts Challenge '88 and Trader will match race in the 1988 Canada's Cup Challenger Series, June 26-July 1, July 23-July 26 and July 31-Aug. 5. The three sessions of elimination sailing, hosted by Detroit's Bayview Yacht Club and sailed on Lake St. Clair, determine the official U.S. challenger for the Canada's Cup — a famed yachting event between the U.S. and Canada that has been sailed on the Great Lakes since 1895.

The Challenger Series is sponsored by The Meade Group, a Detroit-based holding company for auto-related businesses and dealerships. The Canada's Cup, set to follow the series on Aug. 20-28, is hosted by the Royal Canadian Yacht Club (Toronto).

Bayview Yacht Club issued the '88 challenge to the Royal Canadian Yacht Club to reclaim the Canada's Cup, now a symbol of keen competition between two countries. The club's hope to break Canada's 10-year hold on the Cup rides with the winner of the Challenger Series.

The Challenger Series is a point selection series where 30 percent of the points from series A (5-10 races) will be carried to series B (5-10 races), and 60 percent of the points from B will be carried to the final challenger series. The final series will be a best four-of-seven match race between Challenge '88 co-owned and skippered by John Uznis of Grosse Pointe, and Trader, owned and skippered by Fred Detwiler, also of Grosse Pointe. Both one-tonners are approximately 40 feet long, rating 30.5 under the IOR rule.

John Uznis, a Detroit-area builder with numerous international championships to his credit, skippers Challenge '88. Uznis, who recently skippered the boat to third at the One Ton North America Championship, said, "This is the peak of my sailing career. Our team is determined to capture the Canada's Cup. All the necessary resources are going into developing the fastest boat and assembling the finest crew for optimum results." Detroit business leaders Kim McNamara and Ken Meade of the Meade Group join Uznis in the effort, bringing to the challenge their business expertise and enthusiasm for racing.

Fred Detwiler, president of a large barter organization called Michigan Trade Exchange, has owned Trader for two years. Among his sailing accomplishments is first place overall at last year's Chicago-Mackinac race. "Trader has been modified quite a bit over the past year," he said. "She was 2 years old when I bought her, but quite an accomplished racing boat. We are dedicated not only to making Trader as fast as possible but also to making our team unbeatable."

Local swim programs consider merger

In a move that promises to improve the quality and quantity of opportunities available to area swimmers at all levels, the boards of the All Pointes Swim Club and the Grosse Pointe Swim Club have announced that they are developing a plan to merge the two programs.

Committees of the two boards have been meeting both separately and jointly to work out the details of a plan which will be presented to all interested swimmers and parents at a meeting scheduled for 8 p.m., Thursday, July 7, at Central Library, Grosse Pointe Farms, according to Dick Williams and Pandy DeGuvera, the two boards' presidents.

"Our goal is to create a program to provide an opportunity for all interested swimmers to achieve their full potential, consistent with the time and effort they are willing and able to commit to swimming," said Williams and DeGuvera.

The new program will include a schedule of practices to meet the needs of all club members, providing a range of stroke instruction, conditioning and duration. The new club will be affiliated with both United States Swimming — Michigan and the Michigan Metropolitan Winter League, giving members the opportunity to compete in both dual meets, against other teams, and in state, regional and national meets, in the Olympic format. The new club will be sponsored by a board composed of elected parents and the Community Education Program of the Grosse Pointe School System.

The two clubs currently operate independent programs, although this summer swimmers from both clubs are practicing together in a move to share the expense of pool time and to make most efficient use of available coaching.

"Although both programs have been successful," said Williams and DeGuvera, "a single program, building on the strengths in the two clubs, can provide significant advantages while not losing the team spirit inherent in smaller memberships."

Champions — again

An overtime goal by Craig Treppa lifted Shorewood Realty to a 3-2 victory over Jac's Detour Bar in the championship game of the Grosse Pointe Men's Senior No-Check Hockey League. Shorewood Realty, which won its second straight title, played a man short in the final minute, after Mike Rinaldi's stick curvature was ruled in excess of the half-inch allowed. However, netminder Darin Borza held Jac's in check.

Todd Fugiel tied the score for Shorewood after trailing 1-0, but the line of Chris Lewandowski, Tim VanEckoute and Pete Guzzardo carried play and allowed leading-scorer Tony DeFalco to tie the score at 2-2.

After the ceremonial skate around the rink, Shorewood Realty presented the trophy to sponsor Philip Patanis.

The win was the third straight playoff victory, against no defeats, in the double elimination tournament. In earlier rounds, they defeated the Tompkins Terrors and the Maroons to advance to the finals. The Midi-League is comprised of sixth, seventh and eighth grade girls.

The Maroons jumped out to an early 7-0 lead in the second inning, but the Belles settled down and tightened their defense, limiting the Maroons to only two runs in each of the final two stanzas.

From the second inning on, the Belles scored in each inning as they put together an explosive hitting attack. Tied 9-9 in the sixth, the Belles used a three-run spurt to take the lead for good. The Maroons threatened, but the Belles got the final out with the tying and go-ahead runs in scoring position.

Community soccer team heads for Europe

How will Michigan's brand of soccer hold up to Europe's? That question and more will be answered in July when a group of area soccer players travel to Europe for games and history lessons.

David Backhurst, chairman of the history department and varsity coach for both the boys' and girls' soccer teams at University Liggett School, will lead a group of 19 high-school-aged boys on a two-week tour of England and France. The boys are students at North and ULS.

From July 8-23, the American soccer players will engage in six games — one in Paris and five in England.

They will also have an opportunity for extensive sightseeing.

Included on the agenda in France are the Arc de Triomphe, Versailles, the Louvre, the Bastille and the Normandy beach where the D-Day invasion took place. The team will also be in Paris for the fireworks and festivities of Bastille Day.

In England, the group will tour Parliament, Buckingham Palace and the Tower of London. They plan to walk on the famed Hadrian's Wall and will attend a Shakespeare performance.

"This is a wonderful opportunity to learn more about other cultures," said Backhurst. "Not only will we sightsee and play soccer, but we will also get to know people from other countries better. We're excited about the trip."

Lady Day vividly recreates the fading of a star

By Ronald J. Bernas
Staff Writer

"Lady Day at Emerson's Bar and Grill" is a tribute to the life and loves of the legendary Billie Holiday. It is not pretty to watch — it is depressing, it is touching, and ultimately, a satisfying evening of theater.

The one-act play (although play isn't the right word) is set just a few months before Holiday's death from cirrhosis of the liver.

By now, she is no longer the excitable, eager kid who just wants to sing and be heard. She is a defeated soul, dragged down by her heroin habit, time spent in jail, bad choices in love and the ultimate injustice — being a black woman in a white man's world.

The set is Emerson's Bar and Grill in Philadelphia in 1959 at one of Holiday's final performances. Due to time spent in jail, she was refused a cabaret card which would have allowed her to sing in New York, a final blow to the once-proud singer.

As Holiday, Miche Braden fills out a script which must read like the ramblings of a mad-woman, with a mix of despair and tears and laughter, but never with hope. By now, Holiday is too beaten down to express any hope, and her only solace lies in drugs, drink and her music.

But no longer does she sing for the enjoyment; she sings because that's all she knows how to do. Even her music has become a burden for her, especially when, as a condition for her to appear in various clubs, she must sing her cornerstones like "God Bless the Child," and "Strange Fruit."

She tells her story between the songs, her rape at 10, her respect for her predecessors like Bessie Smith, her love for her parents, her marriage to Jimmy Monroe who introduced her to hard drugs, the racism she ran into on her road trips with Artie Shaw's band, and her fight with drug addiction.

The triumphs in her life are somehow hollow, as told by a tired Holiday, springing out of horrible injustices she experienced by virtue of being black, and being a woman.

Braden is mesmerizing as Holiday. The twitching and scratching of her arms, because of her voice is stunning, and just a little deeper than Holiday's. She tries to make her voice sound ragged out, an echo of Holiday's former self, but at times it's like trying to cage a tiger and she's unable to.

The backup music is provided by Harold McKinney on the piano (who also has the job of keeping Holiday together on the stage, making sure she sings what she is supposed to), Gaylynn McKinney on the drums, Ray McKinney on the bass and Thomas H. "Dr. Beans" Bowles Sr. on the saxophone. They provide the right accompaniment for Braden.

The ending, a quiet one much like Holiday's own ending, wraps up the show in a moment of light, then a total void. It makes for a stirring and fitting conclusion.

"Lady Day at Emerson's Bar and Grill" runs through July 31 at the Attic Theatre. For tickets and information, call 875-8285.

Miche Braden plays Billie Holiday in "Lady Day at Emerson's Bar and Grill" at the Attic Theatre through July 31.

Theater

drug habit, and her drugged-out stupor are hard to watch, especially at the beginning when the viewer thinks, "How did she ever let herself get like this?" At the end, however, it's obvious how she got where she did, and in her own words, she makes it all the more heart-wrenching.

Chicago cop teams up with Soviet counterpart in 'Red Heat'

By Marian Trainor
Special Writer

Arnold Schwarzenegger, superhero of the action-adventure

"Red Heat," rivets the attention of the audience with the first shot of the credits.

First we see a pair of legs that resemble small oak trees; then the camera travels upward stopping to give the viewer a close-up of his enormous chest and arm muscles. When it finally comes to rest on his block-like face and piercing blue eyes, we are convinced that he is equal to any confrontation.

To drive home this point, the camera follows him into a Russian steambath where the burly customers stand aside to let him pass. One of them challenges him with: "You don't have the hands of a foundry worker," and presses a hot coal into Schwarzenegger's hand. Without changing expression, he closes his fist on it, grabs the would-be bully and throws him through a glass wall into the snow.

With that, viewers are given a tour of Moscow as a reminder that this is the first American production authorized to use Red Square as a location.

Ivan Danko (Schwarzenegger) is a Soviet policeman assigned to keep drug trafficking out of Moscow. As one character puts it: "Moscow is beginning to look like Miami." Danko manages to track down the international drug goons who are bringing the drugs into Moscow, but they escape in a major shoot-out in which Danko's best friend is killed.

Danko now has two important reasons to find Viktor (Ed O'Ross), head goon of the group. When word comes that they have been arrested in Chicago, Danko sets off for the Windy City to bring them back. When he arrives there, he is paired up with his Chicago equivalent, Art Ridzik (James Belushi).

They make quite a pair. Danko is a disciplined stoic. He can't believe the take-it-easy attitude of Ridzik. He soon comes to realize, however, that his overweight, sloppy partner is his equal.

Although they have different methods and different philosophies, the two are there for each other when the going gets rough as it does most of the time.

Much of the humor of the film is carried by Belushi who masterfully tosses off wise cracks. He is funny when he is frustrated at Schwarzenegger's independence and his dismissal of proper procedures. Schwarzenegger has his comic moments also. When asked how Soviets deal with stress, without missing a beat or changing expression, he answers, "vodka." When Belushi protests his head-smashing method of dealing with criminals, explaining to him that this is not the way it's done in America, he closes the argument with: "The Russian way is more economical."

In a quiet moment, East meets West, as the two get to know each other.

They discover that the life of a police officer is pretty much the same whether it's in Chicago or the Soviet Union. They lament their lack of family life.

Drug busts, car races and killings prevail in Director Walter Hill's script. It is a series of capture, escape, mayhem and demonstrations of Schwarzenegger's amazing physical strength.

This informal remake of Hill's 1982 hit, "48 Hours" starring Eddie Murphy and Nick Nolte, is a lesser version than it's predecessor, but it has a lot going for it with Schwarzenegger and Belushi. They make a great pair.

In an action-packed bus chase, Art Ridzik (James Belushi) tries to pull the wheel away from Ivan Danko (Arnold Schwarzenegger).

'Bull Durham' is entertaining baseball story

By Michael Chapp
Special Writer

The charm of "Bull Durham" is that it takes viewers behind the scenes at the ballpark, behind the scenes and into the heads of the men who play a boy's game for a living.

Though it's a real challenge to pinpoint the main idea of "Durham," it's worth the effort to do so. No film since "The Natural" has put baseball on such a human level. And on such a philosophical level. Indeed, the picture is just as concerned about the metaphysical and religious significance of baseball as it is about the character it follows.

Annie Savoi (Susan Sarandon) is a teacher of sorts. She has an affair with one player on the local minor league baseball team, the Durham Bulls, each season; baseball is her religion and her passion.

"I make them feel comfortable and they make me feel safe," she admits to the audience in the film's early going. Her discipleship in the Church of Baseball consumes most of her waking moments. She has an altar in her home, made up of baseball memorabilia, and she spends her evenings at the ballpark, looking for eligible players/students/lovers.

Film

Her interest for this season is Nuke LaLoosh (Tim Robbins), a rookie pitcher with a fastball clocked at 95 and an IQ to match what he lacks in brains he makes up for in bed, and that suits Annie just fine.

Fine, that is, until she gets interested in Crash Davis (Kevin Costner), a 12-year veteran sent to the Bulls to teach upstart LaLoosh how to pitch well enough to make it to "the show," the major leagues.

Committed to LaLoosh but enamored by Davis, Annie is in a quandary; she wants to hook up with the older, smarter Davis, but it's against her "religion."

That's an interesting plot, to be sure. And it's milked for all the comedy, drama and love interest it can provide. Thrown in for viewer interest are moments of character insight, which allow us to hear the thoughts of a batter facing a tough pitcher and a pitcher facing a tough batter. There are some amusing moments in which we're privy to conversation between player and umpire in a squabble and between infielders and pitcher during an on-the-mound conference.

The real heart of this picture however, is its characters. Though none of them are developed as completely as viewers would wish, there's no denying their endearing qualities.

Annie stays off-center and distant, so we never really figure who she is and what her motives are. Sarandon gives the character a loose, playful quality that is fascinating and seductive.

Meanwhile, Robbins gives LaLoosh such a solid foundation as a smart-alec kid, it's hard to swallow his transformation into a thinking man. Arguably the film's most down-to-earth character, he's also the most one-dimensional.

Davis, conversely, is "Durham's" most fleshed-out, thoughtful character. Costner's reading of the silent sage is credible, though here, as in Sarandon's part, there is something less than a full explanation of what motivates the character.

That's the only complaint though, with an otherwise delightful picture. This is an adult movie, no doubt about that. But for anyone who loves America's pastime and knows there must be more going on behind the scenes than Tony Kubek lets on to, this is a perfect piece of entertainment.

It may confuse you at times. But it'll win you over in the process.

The photo, "Ageless Idol Meets Newman, 1986," is one of about 70 photos in an exhibit at the Detroit Institute of Arts through Sept. 4.

"On Assignment," by staff photographers and photojournalists such as Annie Leibovitz, Douglas Kirkland, Ira Wyman, and Peter Turnley for Newsweek, includes such diverse themes as the presidential campaign trial, life in the Soviet Union, scenes in Chicago housing project, international terrorism and warfare, Americans at work and home, and well-known personalities in off-beat poses.

The exhibit will be shown in the DIA's Red Carpet area during regular museum hours: 9:30 a.m. to 5:30 p.m. Tuesday through Sunday; closed Mondays and holidays.

Midler, Tomlin star

'Big Business' is double fun

By Marian Trainor
Special Writer

It's double the pleasure when Bette Midler and Lily Tomlin play two sets of identical twins in "Big Business" who are separated at birth by a confused nurse who pairs up the wrong babies.

Sadie (Midler) and Rose (Tomlin) Shelton are raised in New York by rich parents. Sadie becomes the overbearing, ruthless head of the family's Moramax Co. Rose tries to become involved but usually ends up confusing herself and everyone around her.

The sisters, Sadie and Rose Ratliff, are raised in a backwoods town called Jupiter Hollow where the livelihood of the residents is dependent on the Hollowmade Furniture Co. Here, Rose is the dominant sister and Sadie sits back waiting for an opportunity to escape.

When the word goes out that the Sheltons are about to sell Moramax to an Italian speculator who plans to tear down the factory and strip mine the town, Rose organizes the workers and nominates herself to go to New York and confront the executives. Jupiter Sadie goes along, taking all of her belongings because she plans never to come back.

A comedy of errors begins when the country twins are mistaken for their city counterparts and taken to an elegant suite in the Plaza Hotel instead of the YWCA where they made reservations. The two are confused but react in different ways to their good luck.

Rose, who has come to wage war, is suspicious that they are being bribed into dropping the protest against Moramax. Sadie just settles in to enjoy the luxury she has always dreamed of.

In the meantime the New York twins arrive after a fiery outburst from Sadie for giving away the suite meant for them, are placed next door to the country sisters.

As the plot becomes more complicated, the logistics of the arrival and departure of the four women becomes even more so. The revolving doors of the hotel's entrance, the lobby, elevator doors and doors to the suites open and shut on cue so that neither twin ever runs into another. It is so efficiently arranged that a addled panhandler in front of the hotel warns a visitor about to enter with: "Don't go in. There'll be two of you when you come out."

Tomlin is funny as the suspicious Rose Ratliff who searches the suite for hidden microphones, disguises herself as a hotel maid and plants notes of protest in the rooms of the board members and is generally defensive. She is both funny and appealing as New York Rose who is out of place in the corporate setting and longs for peace, quiet, good food and to be left alone by her overbearing sister.

Midler is a riot as both twins. As Jupiter Sadie she cavorts around in outrageous clothes, walks the streets of New York as though she owns them, and even yodels accompaniment to a West Indian street band.

But it is flamboyant New York Sadie who really gets our attention. She is tough and rough and quick on the one-liners.

Frenetic and fast-paced, "Big Business" is an uproarious comedy and great summer fun.

Vanden Plas began building coaches at a time when elegance and craftsmanship were hallmarks of exquisite custom carriages. Today, the most honored coachbuilding traditions are carried forward by Jaguar in the 1988 Vanden Plas sedan.

Rich, redolent leather covers the specially contoured Vanden Plas seating. Resplendent burl walnut graces the dashboard, door panels, center console and the fold-down picnic tables fitted to backs of the front seats.

In the best coachbuilding tradition, the Vanden Plas cossets the driver and passengers with a host of special amenities. Fleece-like throw rugs cover the passenger footwells. There are high intensity lamps for reading, heated front seats and computer-regulated climate control for comfort, an 80-watt stereo system for your listening pleasure, an ingenious headlamp washer system, and much more.

The Vanden Plas is the most exclusive Jaguar sedan. It brings together renowned Jaguar performance, handling and luxury with a noble coachbuilding tradition.

To experience all that is Vanden Plas, see your Jaguar dealer. He can provide details of Jaguar's three year/36,000 mile limited warranty, applicable in the USA and Canada, and Jaguar's comprehensive Service-On-Site Roadside Assistance Plan.

From a country rich in royal tradition comes a motorcar born of a noble coachbuilding heritage: Jaguar Vanden Plas.
