

Adolescent substance use and abuse: Who and what

By Ronald J. Bernas
Staff Writer

Substance abuse is one of the primary concerns of this election year. What is being done to fight it on the state and national level is widely publicized and discussed often through the media. But there are many local programs and organizations which recognize the need for education about and treatment for substance abusers. This article discusses the problem and ways it is being dealt with on the local level.

Before there is any discussion of treatment, reasons and solutions for substance use and abuse by adolescents, one must first discuss how widespread it is and what drugs are being used.

A survey done at Grosse Pointe North High School in January indicates a trend which, while it may not reflect the country's statistics, shows most teens, by the time they graduate from high school, have tried alcohol, and nearly half have tried illegal drugs.

The survey consisted of 56 questions dealing with three key substances — cigarettes, alcohol and drugs — in three categories: consequences, attitudes and usage. A total of 291 randomly selected students, male and female, from freshmen to seniors, answered the survey.

The figures are:

- 46 percent of the freshmen have tried smoking cigarettes, and 63 to 72 percent of the upperclassmen have;

- 76 percent of the freshmen have tried alcohol, while 96 percent of the upperclassmen have; and

- 17 percent of the freshmen have tried illegal drugs, 28 percent of the sophomores and 40 percent of the juniors and seniors have tried illegal drugs.

According to Dan Koerber, a youth officer for the Woods, who has offices at Parcels Middle School and Grosse Pointe North High, the experimentation percentages are high, but are still within state and national norms. Those surveyed are lower than the state and national norms for cigarette and drug usage, however, and most students say their first experimentation with drugs came between the ages of 13 and 15.

"The drug of choice is overwhelmingly alcohol," Koerber said. "Kids don't see it as a drug, though. That's the problem."

Although there have always been adolescents drinking on the weekend, Koerber says the attitude now is that you either drink to have fun or you don't have fun.

Although the survey shows that more than 90 percent of the students understand that alcohol is an addictive drug, 36 percent of the freshmen and 55 percent of the seniors believe alcohol does not have an effect on their health. More than 90 percent also realize alcoholism is a disease and can be treated.

"Yes, we have other drugs in the school, though. Everything is available if someone wants it," Koerber said.

The second most used substance, according to Charles Stern, Ph.D. a counselor for Eastwood Clinics, is marijuana.

"Today, in the general (adolescent) population, it's acceptable and accessible," he said.

And studies show the marijuana is much more potent — up to 20 times more potent — than the marijuana widely used in the '60s, when the trend of adolescents and substance abuse seems to have begun.

According to "As Parents We Will... A Guide for Grosse Pointe Parents," a pamphlet written and distributed to Grosse Pointe parents by the Substance Abuse Community Council, children are first introduced to cigarettes, alcohol, marijuana and other drugs not by the stereotypical pusher, but rather by an older sibling, a babysitter, a friend's older sibling, a friend, a relative or a parent.

The type of school — private, public or parochial — as well as all types of students — from the academic achiever to the musician to the athlete to the student leader, has no influence on the exposure to or the experimentation with drugs, according to the pamphlet.

The what, where, when, why and how of drug abuse, treatment centers, intervention and prevention is further discussed by local experts in a series of articles on page 13A.

Proposed zoning amendment mobilizes Lakeshore residents

By Margie Reins Smith
Staff Writer

About 50 Grosse Pointe Shores residents attended a village council meeting last Tuesday to discuss a proposed zoning ordinance. The turnout, according to Trustee Patricia Galvin, was the largest she's ever seen.

Most of the residents attending live on the east side of Lakeshore between the Shores park and the Edsel & Eleanor Ford estate. The proposed amendment includes a more restrictive residential building setback from the waterfront and regulations for height, placement and construction materials for accessory buildings.

After more than two-and-a-half hours of discussion, the amendment was tabled.

The council subsequently placed a 90-day moratorium, for this section of the village only, on permits for new structures, demolition, seawall improvements and fill.

The current zoning ordinance specifies that buildings be placed 30 feet back from Lake St. Clair and 145 feet from Lakeshore. The proposed amendment would set minimum lot building lines on the east side of Lakeshore north of Vernier at 145 feet from Lakeshore.

Setbacks from the lake would be computed from a formula based on the average existing setbacks of houses on either side of each lot, or 290 feet from the front property line on Lakeshore.

In addition, the amendment would also restrict lot sizes to a minimum of 20,000 square feet and the main building on the lot to a minimum of 2,000 square feet. Accessory buildings would be restricted to a maximum height of 15 feet and would have required distances from side lot lines. Accessory buildings would have to be constructed from materials approved by the village.

The amendment, under discussion for nearly two years, was sponsored by the planning commission after consultation with Patrick Sterling, of Community Planning & Management, and after a public hearing on May 10.

Residents of the east Lakeshore strip were generally united in their concern about subdividing larger lots and lenient setback requirements that might block views of the lake from existing residences. Many also spoke of concern about the recent accretion — buildup of sand and silt — along the southern portion of the strip, near the Shores park.

All seemed to agree that the existing zoning ordinance was weak, but residents appeared to be divided into two groups. Those north of 870 Lakeshore generally favored preserving the status quo, leaving setback requirements as they are represented by existing buildings.

Those south of 870 Lakeshore were divided into two factions. One group, represented by Bob Roney, wanted the right to build closer to the water, and the other group, represented by Ralph Wilson, wanted to keep lake setbacks as they exist, with the residence at 870 as the benchmark.

Planning consultant Sterling said, "The proposed amendment is good for maintaining the status quo in most areas and it tries to meet the objectives of the village. It increases lot sizes and floor areas and better regulates accessory buildings."

The council unanimously approved the tabling of the proposal — because of the lack of united resident opinion — in order to study the question in more depth.

Village President Gerald Schroeder said, "We've taken a long time because we do move slowly in Grosse Pointe Shores."

Voters asked to approve county-wide mill for special education

By Peter A. Salinas
Staff Writer

Grosse Pointe voters as well as those from across Wayne County will be asked to approve a chartered one mill increase Aug. 2 for the Wayne County Intermediate School District (WCISD) to fund special education programs and services for handicapped students.

The millage would raise $20.4 million county-wide with about $1.3 million of that coming from the Grosse Pointe school district. A chartered mill is one that does not have a specified expiration date.

There are about 6,000 severely handicapped students throughout the 34 school districts which comprise the intermediate school district, according to Kathryn Mathey, special education consultant for WCISD.

Local school districts are mandated by the state to provide education to these students. Funds from the state are used to augment those provided by the local district to teach the 29,000 students who have what are called high-incidence handicaps.

High incidence handicaps include, besides physical impairment, learning disorders and emotional problems. It is the 6,000 students who are severely multiply impaired, such as being blind or deaf or both, for whom the millage would be used.

In 1974 voters approved a chartered mill which provides funds to the intermediate school district and are used to pay local districts for running regional centers to educate these students.

Strike up the band!

It was hot and humid and just a little bit cloudy, but the weather couldn't keep an appreciative crowd of about 125 music-lovers away from the very first performance of the Grosse Pointe Community Summer Band at North High on July 20.

Organized by Ralph Miller, instrumental music director for the school system, the community orchestra numbers more than 50, and includes high school and college students, adults and senior citizens. The orchestra's second and final scheduled performance of the season is set for Wednesday, Aug. 17, 7:30 p.m. in the Greek Theatre Performing Arts Center at North High.

Pointer of Interest Mark Valente III

By Peter A. Salinas

His day actually began the previous afternoon when he boarded a jet for Detroit out of Washington, D.C.

He rented a Chrysler New Yorker at Metro, then drove to a White House staff room set up at a Warren hotel. After a brief stop to make sure everything was running smoothly, he drove to the nearby Ukrainian Cultural Center — the site where Vice President George Bush would address about 700 guests at the center's Captive Nations dinner at 6 p.m. the next day.

Mark Valente III is director of Coalition Development for the Republican National Committee. A Park councilman, Valente works in Washington, D.C., and lives in the Park.

Several hours after arriving in Detroit, after the Warren stops and one at his fiancée's house, Valente did something he hadn't done in over a week — he slept in his own bed at his family home in the Park.

Valente was first elected to the Park council in November 1981. He graduated from University Liggett School in 1974, Villanova in 1978 and from University of Detroit Law School in McNamara seeks support for jail millage, corrections dept.

By Peter A. Salinas
Staff Writer

With more than 4,000 prisoners having been released from the Wayne County jail in the last two years, County Executive Edward H. McNamara has secured a proposal on the Aug. 2 ballot asking voters to approve a one-mill increase in county taxes to pay for construction and operation of adult and juvenile incarceration and detention facilities.

McNamara, who has been speaking before church and civic groups throughout the county seeking support for the proposal, says that the only answer to solving the county's need for more jail space will be with the millage.

One mill at the county level would generate about $20.4 million in the first year, and officials estimate about a 5 percent increase in revenues over the next five years. One mill levied on the Grosse Pointe school district, which includes the Pointes and a portion of Harper Woods, generates about $1.3 million.

McNamara's recommendation for using the millage would include the creation of 1,070 new jail beds, increase the capacity of the County Youth Home from 200 to 260 beds and the creation of a county corrections department which would run the county's jail and youth detention facilities.

"Our jail system is too big to be run by our sheriff's department," McNamara said. "We don't have the professional corrections officers that are needed to properly run a jail. Deputies assigned to the jail are always looking to get out."

Because of the sheriff's department contract with the county, deputies who agree to jail overtime are paid double time, however, those who refuse the overtime but are then ordered to work are paid triple time, McNamara said.

"The union has a tremendous influence in the running of the jail," McNamara said. "A director of corrections would be responsible to me for his budget." McNamara points out that in several cases deputies earned $80,000 because of high overtime hours.

"If you have a base salary of $37,000 and you earn $80,000 because of overtime, you know you have a problem," McNamara said.

Recent polls conducted by the county show that many suburban residents, including those in the Pointes, favor higher taxes to support a county jail, according to the county executive. He adds that county residents are infuriated at the early release of prisoners who have been convicted of a felony.

County Prosecutor John D. O'Hair said that for the past two years no convicted misdemeanants have been housed in the county jail.

"As a prosecutor for Wayne County, the one single policy which undermines our criminal justice system is the absence of jail space," O'Hair said.

He noted that in 1970-71 the county had spaces for 3,000 prisoners, and that today there is a little more than half that space available.

"Crime has not gone down," he said. "The number of arrests has risen dramatically as a result of cocaine and crack cocaine arrests. The Detroit administration has a policy of affecting as many arrests as possible."

O'Hair is firmly behind the millage proposal, and adds that the need for a pretrial and felony conviction is an absolute necessity.

"Over the last two years, the courts have had to release on the average 100 prisoners a month," O'Hair said. "The courts have little discretion in the number of prisoners they must release."

He said it is a difficult task to determine which prisoners are more of a risk to society. O'Hair said if the choice is between a man who is a convicted rapist and a burglar convicted for two dozen break-ins, the courts will hold the rapist since he is known to be violent.

"If you have two beds and two murderers, one rapist and a burglar, you have a very difficult decision as to who to release," O'Hair said. "You know you will release the burglar, but you also know he will go right back out and commit the same crime."

McNamara's recommendations include the construction of a new 840-bed jail facility for misdemeanants and pretrial felons. The cost for the new facility is projected at $26 million. Other new jail beds would come from renovating existing facilities and adding beds to unused recreation and office space in the existing jails.

McNamara's call for a new county corrections department is not fully spelled out. He said although he would be creating a new bureaucracy, the portion of the sheriff's department budget used to run the jail would be used to run the corrections department. Also, dollars generated from the mill following construction and renovation of new jail beds would be used for operations.

Although McNamara supports Wayne County Sheriff Robert Ficano for re-election, he is highly critical of the department's jail operations and the unions.

"If I didn't support the sheriff, everything I said about the department would be construed as political," McNamara said. "By supporting him, I can say it the way it is with credibility."

It is the lack of specifics that has some of local police chiefs skeptical about McNamara's mill request and various recommendations.

Shores Public Safety Director Daniel Healy said he does not support higher taxes.

"I'm not at all sure that tighter administrative controls by the sheriff's department wouldn't solve the problem," Healy said. "But if that is what it takes to get the criminal off the street, then that is what we have to do."

Healy said he blames the poor state of affairs with the county jail on the sheriff's department.

"The administration of the sheriff's department probably causes some of the dilemma we have," Healy said. "I think McNamara is making an honest effort to find the answer. You can't give the sheriff's department a free hand to waste tax dollars."

Woods Public Safety Director Jack Patterson said he recently had to transport three prisoners in two trips to a jail in Bad Axe.

"I have the same problem as the other police chiefs in Wayne County," Patterson said. "I can't get a prisoner into jail. I don't know what this issue will give me."

Patterson said that administrative restructuring of the sheriff's department would go a long way to solving many of the jail overcrowding and cost problems.

"I don't know what to say about this proposal," Patterson said. "I would want to know more about it before I would do anything."

Patterson said he does know that things are getting worse.

"Every court date, we have to find jail space before prisoners are sentenced," he said.

Farms Public Safety Director Robert Ferber said that the privatization of jails is being considered by the state legislature at this time. He said that this and other alternatives should be fully explored before more tax dollars are spent on the problem.

"I would not vote in favor of the proposal," Ferber said. "We need more jail space, but to ask for more money before the issue has been totally explored I think is irresponsible."

City Public Safety Director Bruce Kennedy, a candidate for the Wayne County sheriff, is on record as "reluctantly" supporting the proposal. Kennedy said he favors exploring the restructuring of the sheriff's department and fully exploring jail privatization before spending the dollars realized from the millage if passed by voters.

McNamara said that no Wayne County sheriff has been elected without first having been appointed to the position since 1945. He said there must be consistency in the administration of operating the county jail system. He sees this coming from the county corrections department. McNamara points to four major counties in the United States that have developed a county level corrections department:

Westchester County, N.Y.; Dade County, Fla.; Prince George County, Md.; Kings County, Wash. He adds that large counties across the country are moving from sheriff-run jails to those run by a corrections department.

The friends of Emily Edwards Lockwood recently donated a celestial globe to the Children's Room at Central Library, as a commemoration of her devotion to children. The 16-inch transparent globe (shown here) charts the constellations. Inside, a transparent globe of the earth rotates on its axis, and may be set according to the time of year. A small sunsphere on a separate control may be set in position to indicate time of day. People of all ages can stop by to see the globe, rarely seen outside of astronomy labs. In Grosse Pointe, children as young as third grade begin to study astronomy, so it will prove useful to teachers. Above, Emily and Andrew Woodward, Lockwood's great-grandchildren who came from Baltimore, Md., attended the presentation, and are shown how the globe works by children's Librarian Helen Gregory.

Understanding depth-of-field

For those of you who have taken my classes, you know the importance I place on a thorough understanding of depth-of-field. And as many of you have found out, it's easier to master than you might have thought.

The aperture is the major controller of depth of field. To clear up these terms, some definitions are in order. Depth-of-field is the distance between the nearest point and the furthest point of a picture that appears sharp and in focus. Aperture, also known as f-stops, is the size on the lens opening through which light is allowed to pass.

A small aperture (for example f-16) will deliver a greater depth-of-field than a large aperture (say f-2). Remember, as you change apertures, a corresponding change in shutter speed is required to maintain correct exposure. A small aperture normally calls for a longer shutter speed while a large aperture usually requires a faster speed. On automatic cameras, changes in aperture/shutter speed combinations are done for you. With manual cameras, it's up to you.

When do you want a great or shallow depth-of-field? In scenic shots, you most often will want a lot. You can assuredly improve that picture of the distant mountain by framing your shot with the branches of that beautiful tree in the foreground. Here you would use a smaller aperture.

Reversing our reasoning, in an outdoor portrait, for example, where the center of interest is the subject's face, a large aperture is in order. Remember, a big aperture produces narrow depth-of-field so that what might have been a distracting background behind the subject will become instead a pleasing blur of color.

How can you determine what the depth-of-field will be? There are two ways.

First, use the depth-of-field scale on the lens barrel. The scale will appear as pairs of f-stop numbers with "bracketing" marks. When the lens is in focus, a quick check of where these numbers intersect the feet scale will tell you exactly what your depth-of-field will be and consequently what will appear sharp and in focus in your finished print. Depth-of-field can be maximized by placing the "infinity" mark on the feet scale opposite your shooting aperture. Much greater depth-of-field is available if you focus in this manner, enabling you to be more creative in your photography.

Second, many cameras have a depth-of-field preview control which allows you to actually see through the viewfinder what will be rendered sharp in the final picture before you snap the shutter. Consult your instruction manual to see if your camera has this useful feature.

In addition to f-stop changes, two other things affect depth-of-field. The first is subject to camera distance. The farther you are from your subject, the greater is the depth-of-field at a given aperture. The second is the focal length of the lens you are using. The shorter the focal length (wide angle lenses), the greater the depth-of-field. The longer the focal length (telephoto lenses), the less depth-of-field.

Do you now have a deeper understanding of depth-of-field? If so, you'll add greater depth to your photographs!

Lawrence Buhl

Buhl retires after 22 years with a society

The Detroit Zoo's penguinarium, miniature railroad, animal hospital, and exhibits for the snow leopards, elephants, lemurs and chimps all have one thing in common — Lawrence D. Buhl Jr.

After 22 years of hard work and dedication, Buhl, a Grosse Pointe resident, is retiring from his position as president of the Detroit Zoological Society. During his tenure, the Zoo Society was responsible for providing millions of dollars in exhibits, equipment and wildlife.

In the early 1950s, it was suggested that Buhl get involved in some civic support group for Detroit. His family had always been supporters of the zoo, donating the first pair of African black rhinos in 1930 and two more in later years.

Recently elected president Harry Tauber said, "I am lucky to inherit a society that is strong today because of Larry Buhl. He spent countless hours working for the zoo."

Dr. Robert F. Willson, retired Detroit Zoo director, said, "Larry Buhl's interest, loyalty and real love for the zoo and the society are in no small part responsible for the success, reputation and fame for both of the organizations."

Zoo Director Steve Graham also shares these sentiments. "Larry's commitment to preserve and upgrade the Detroit Zoo is exemplified through his many accomplishments," said Director Steve Graham. "It has been gratifying for me to have had the opportunity to work with him."

The Detroit Zoological Society, a non-profit organization formed to encourage memberships and provide Detroit Zoological Parks with financial support currently stands at more than 18,000 members. The organization helps fund new exhibits, major renovations, educational programs and wildlife purchase.

Guaranteed tuition explained

For months, officials of the Michigan Education Trust (MET) have been canvassing the state to inform people about the state's new guaranteed tuition plan.

On Wednesday, Aug. 3, the public broadcasting television stations of Michigan will link for a one-hour live telecast at 9 p.m. to help gain MET to the entire state. WTVS-TV, public broadcasting channel 56 in Detroit, will produce this special and uplink the signal for satellite transmission to each Michigan public broadcasting television station.

The show in Detroit on WTVS-TV, Channel 56, will begin an introduction to MET by Gov. James J. Blanchard and a brief overview of the tuition plan by Treasurer Robert A. Bowman. The majority of the show, however, will be a call-in question format, similar to the local question and answer sessions held across the state this spring.

Red Cross bloodmobiles will be located at the following nearby locations:

Can the Duke win as part of a troika?

Will the royalty-loving American people who once were ruled by a King now elect a Duke even though a troika appears to be running on the 1988 Democratic ticket?

That is one of the confusing questions that arose after the 1988 Democratic National Convention chose Gov. Michael Dukakis as its standard bearer, named Sen. Lloyd Bentsen as its vice presidential nominee and welcomed the Rev. Jesse Jackson as the third member of a Democratic troika seeking to win the White House for the first time since 1976.

The references above to royalty are based on the little-known fact that former President Gerald R. Ford's family name was King before he was adopted by his stepfather and the better-known fact that Dukakis is popularly known among his admirers as the Duke.

Royalty aside, the basic question that comes out of the Democratic convention is whether Dukakis will be able to preserve the middle-of-the-road stance that he sought by his selection of Bentsen and his control of the party platform or whether he will be pushed by Jackson and his liberal followers into extreme positions that are not supported by mainstream Americans.

The experts are congratulating Dukakis for his management of the convention. And he deserves credit for preventing any major sounds of disharmony that could have disrupted the comparative calm of the Democratic bash. He also deserves credit for winning Jackson's support and overcoming his own gaffe in his late notification to Jackson that he was picking someone else for the vice presidential slot.

Yet isn't it possible that Dukakis made a mistake by giving Jackson the opportunity to address the convention and the nation in TV prime time? For didn't Jackson arouse fears among some viewers about the direction of the campaign and even the philosophy of a Dukakis administration because of his liberal and even radical ideas, even if they were expressed in general and not specific terms and even though he said he sought "common ground?"

And won't some voters wonder just where the Democratic Party stands in the political constellation now that it emerges from the convention with a presidential candidate who has a liberal record but claims to be a pro-business moderate, a vice presidential nominee with a good civil rights reputation but a solid conservative record on many issues and a third leader with inspiring ideals and a commanding platform presence but a leftist caste to his character?

In short, did the unity that apparently was achieved come with too high a price tag insofar as mainstream American voters are concerned?

In his graceful acceptance speech, Dukakis sought to dispel those and other nagging doubts about the success of the ticket and the convention. While we really won't know how well he succeeded until Nov. 8 has come and gone, the early reactions were surely favorable.

Especially notable, we thought, were his promises to lead the nation to "the next American frontier," to "rekindle the American spirit of invention and daring," and to restore "American values, old-fashioned values like accountability and responsibility and respect for the truth."

He emphasized, too, that the election "isn't about ideology, it's about competence," which was his way of stressing his management and leadership capabilities. And in the optimistic tone he took throughout the speech he added, "just as we Democrats believe there are no limits to what each citizen can do, so we believe there are no limits to what America can do."

It is true, however, that he still left the public as well as some of his supporters in doubt as to where he personally stands on such matters as foreign policy, financing and reducing the federal debt, and even creating the additional jobs he says the nation needs. So he was criticized for a lack of specific nostrums as well as a lack of substance.

Yet the Democrats ended their convention on an upbeat note and with unity achieved, at least for the moment. True, Jackson supporters in Michigan and elsewhere are disappointed, but the party appears enthusiastic about Dukakis and its chances against the GOP in November not only in Michigan but nationally as well.

A '92 presidential primary

It was appropriate that as Democrats debated their 1988 ticket and platform in Atlanta last week, acting Gov. Richard H. Austin signed a bill to bring back the Michigan presidential primary in 1992.

The new legislation not only eliminates the confusing caucus system that both parties used in 1988, but also opens the door for much wider participation by the general public in the presidential selection process in Michigan. So the move ought to be widely supported.

Vice President George Bush won a majority of Michigan's delegates in the 1988 GOP caucuses even though the Rev. Pat Robertson and Rep. Jack Kemp had won more precinct delegates. On the Democratic side, the Rev. Jesse Jackson won 74 delegates, Gov. Michael Dukakis captured 55 and U.S. Rep. Richard Gephardt took nine. Yet when Michigan's votes were cast in the Democratic National Convention last week, Jackson and Dukakis each won the support of 80 delegates while two delegates abstained.

The party rules were responsible for the shift. As indicated, only 138 of the state's 162 delegates were apportioned according to the results of the caucuses last March. The remaining 24 were so-called superdelegates, made up of the state's Democratic congressional delegation, the state's party chairperson and vice-chairperson, and the state's 10 members of the Democratic National Committee, who were not bound by the results of the caucuses.

Under the new law, voters in the presidential primary will be required to declare their party preference at least 30 days prior to the primary in order to vote. Prior party registration will not be required to participate in the regular state primary, however.

But even though Michiganders will be voting in a closed presidential primary, meaning that only those registered as party members ahead of time will be able to participate, it still will be a far better system than the closed caucuses which sharply limited the number of people taking part.

The date for the Michigan presidential primary also opens the door for a possible Great Lakes or Midwestern regional primary. It will be on the third Tuesday in March 1992, the same date as the Illinois primary. There has been discussion of a possible Midwestern primary to offset the presumed benefits of the South's 1988 superprimary when 12 Southern states held primaries on the same day.

While the Southern superprimary failed to produce a Southern winner who could stay the course, it did bring to national prominence Tennessee's favorite son, Sen. Albert Gore, who later dropped out of contention. A Great Lakes primary might well serve as a launching pad for a prominent Midwest leader in either party who could go on to the presidency.

Lots of issues, few contests

In what promises to be quiet primary, Wayne County citizens next Tuesday will be voting on a batch of issues but not many contests.

Two Wayne County proposals call for millage increases. One would increase the levy by one mill for a new jail or other form of detention facilities for a 10-year period. The Grosse Pointe News endorsed this proposal in an editorial last week.

The second proposal would double the one-mill levy for the education of the handicapped up to age 26 in the Wayne County Intermediate School District, of which Grosse Pointe is a part. The Grosse Pointe News is withholding endorsement of the measure as the school board also has done.

The problem is that the one mill now raises $1.3 million in the Grosse Pointe school district and the two-mill levy would boost the tax load to $2.6 million. The increased revenues are needed because of the rise in the number of handicapped students being served and the severity of their problems, plus the rise in mandated services and operating costs. However, we question the fairness of collecting $2.6 million a year from the Pointes which, we think, would thus be paying a disproportionate share of the total cost.

In Detroit, the citizens Tuesday also will have the opportunity to vote on a proposed ordinance to ban casino gambling. Grosse Pointers cannot vote on this issue, but the Grosse Pointe News has expressed the belief the metropolitan area would best be served by a "Yes" vote which would ban casinos.

Voters in Detroit also will pass on five bond issue proposals to benefit various institutions and services, a renewal of a one-mill levy for the Detroit public library and a proposed Detroit rent regulation ordinance.

At the local and county levels, most candidates will face no opposition in the primary. Among county officers, only Sheriff Robert A. Ficano and Clerk James Killeen, a Grosse Pointe Farms resident, will have foes on the Democratic ticket with Grosse Pointe City's police chief and public safety director, Bruce D. Kennedy, regarded as Killeen's strongest challenger. The News last week endorsed Kennedy.

One of the two congressmen serving the Pointes also will be running in the primary. Rep. George W. Crockett of Detroit faces three challengers, with Barbara-Rose Collins of Detroit regarded as the strongest in view of her experience on the Detroit city council, Detroit school board and state House of Representatives.

Roddy Ray of the Detroit Free Press said the Aug. 2 primary "appears to be about as exciting as watching a cornfield grow in the drouth." We agree. Two years ago only 21 percent of the registered voters went to the polls and even in the presidential election year of 1984 only 20 percent voted in the primary. Not much improvement, if any, is expected this year.

Argh, Atlanta!

Letters

Chains taking over

To the Editor:

Yesterday when I stopped in the Grosse Pointe Book Village, Gwen Samuel informed me that she was going out of business. This did not surprise me, because I had expected it for three years. Nonetheless it saddened me. She has a nice bookstore with good service.

I suppose it is a fact of life that the chain stores will take over eventually. If Waldenbooks did any kind of a market survey three years ago before they moved in, they certainly knew that the community could not support another bookstore. One of them would have to fail. They could afford to take a loss for a while, if it came to that, because they are a chain. They only needed to wait Gwen out. If they sell their books for less, it is because they are marking them down, another evidence of their hostile tactics. Book prices are clearly marked on them, and books are usually sold for that price. To sell for that price is not gouging, and people pay the list price at most bookstores throughout the area. I am sure that Waldenbooks prices are mostly list price, too, and they certainly are not any better than anyone else's.

Since Waldenbooks has moved in, I have not entered their store in the Village nor any other, nor will I. It may be that other bookstores have engaged in their type of tactic elsewhere, but I do not know of that and I do know how Waldenbooks operates.

The community is losing a good friend to an impersonal chain. I wish Gwen well in her future endeavors.

Setting the record straight

To the Editor:

I applaud Tom Armstrong's letter and article of July 14 based on the premise of wanting to set the record straight. I agree with him that sometimes it is not the inventor who gets the credit, but someone to whom the public attributes that invention.

"Everyone" knows that W.K. Kellogg invented cornflakes. But that is not the whole truth. In fact it is barely truth at all.

My father, Frank Lauhoff, invented and sold to Dr. John Harvey Kellogg (W.K.'s brother) the cornflaking machines used in the production of cornflakes. This fact is documented in "The Cornflake Crusade" by Gerald Carson. Dr. J.H. Kellogg added the toasting, flavorings, etc., to produce an edible breakfast cereal. You can credit W.K. Kellogg with marketing the product.

Lauhoff Corporation, founded by my father in 1882, (since 1938 headed by my brother George H. Lauhoff) still sells grain flaking machinery all over the world. Credit should be given where credit is due.

Where to go for help

To the Editor:

In an otherwise informative by Margie Smith (Park Bench Associates Offers Short-Term Therapy, Legal Counseling, Grosse Pointe News 7-14-88), the writer quotes Associate Clemantine Rice, M.S.N., R.N., as saying: "When a health problem comes to a family -- if it's a psychiatric problem -- they don't know where or how to get started."

While the article went on to pose other "problems" and suggest "solutions," this important issue was never addressed, leaving the impression that people in need of psychiatric care should turn to Park Bench Associates for

Cooled embers

Some things never change. A couple of weeks ago Bob and I went to hear Tom Hayden pitch his new book, "Reunions." Everybody knows that the angry young men of the '60s have turned into Yuppies, cookbook peddlers and other common forms of establishment figures. The only thing different about Hayden is that he's a politician. I have no problem with this. There are times when I'd like to be a politician myself. And I'm not as angry as I once was, either. Like Candide, I cultivate my garden (delicate little meadowflowers this year). What does surprise me is the reaction Hayden still provokes. There were plenty of recognizable Democrats making their obligatory appearance at the lecture. But these old supporters aren't as ardent in their enthusiasm as his detractors are.

Judd Arnett took out after Hayden and his ilk in a column. Vietnam vets marched in protest during the talk. My brother-in-law is still mad. The people who disliked the protest 20 years ago remain hot under the collar, while those who believe that the '60s demonstrations accomplished some positive and lasting things (and I count myself among them), take it all for granted.

Shame on us.

Tom Hayden isn't the only one going to reunions. All of us who came of age in the '60s have 20th or 25th reunions on our calendars. I went to mine in June.

Elbow-deep in lobster, we reminisced about the good old days (are old days ever bad?) And, like the French, all of whom seem to have been active members of the Resistance, everybody manned the barricades in the '60s.

I Say

One woman told animatedly of her grad school days at University of Wisconsin (Madison was one of the places to be in those days, remember?) She occupied an administration office and only escaped the police by leaping out a window.

"And where were you?" she asked me. Uh, oh. Do I tell the truth? Dejectedly, I told her I was a young married in Roseville, at home taking care of a baby.

What the heck kind of revolutionary is that?

The honest truth is that I participated in every '60s act by watching it on television. I apparently wasn't the only one. A poll a couple of years ago of Harvard alumni, made for their reunion, showed that almost none of them had taken part in a sit-in or gone down South on civil rights buses or burned their draft cards or occupied anyone's office other than their own.

The poll's conclusion: Everyone must have been asleep.

Yeah, a lot of them probably were. But there must have been others who, like me, watched and believed. They were good years and terrible years. When else can you remember such heights of passion about government?

I almost forgot: I was in a protest once. It was a silent protest against required chapel at college. Masses of us gathered outside the chapel and stood there for about 10 minutes.

They canceled the requirement.

The Freep ran an outraged letter the other day complaining that people aren't showing enough respect for Jesse Jackson when they call him by his first name.

Au contraire. Calling him "Jesse" is a sign of affection and recognition, a way of showing that much of what he says appeals to us. Jesse may be too much of a free-lance to be a good vice president, his foreign diplomacy successes may have been merely a way for some governments to embarrass our administration and he might not have enough experience to run the government.

But his calls for a more humane social program, a stronger fight against drugs, increased voter participation and an idealistic view of the many good uses of politics and government are a needed antidote to an administration that often seems more interested in cost-benefit than in the greater good.

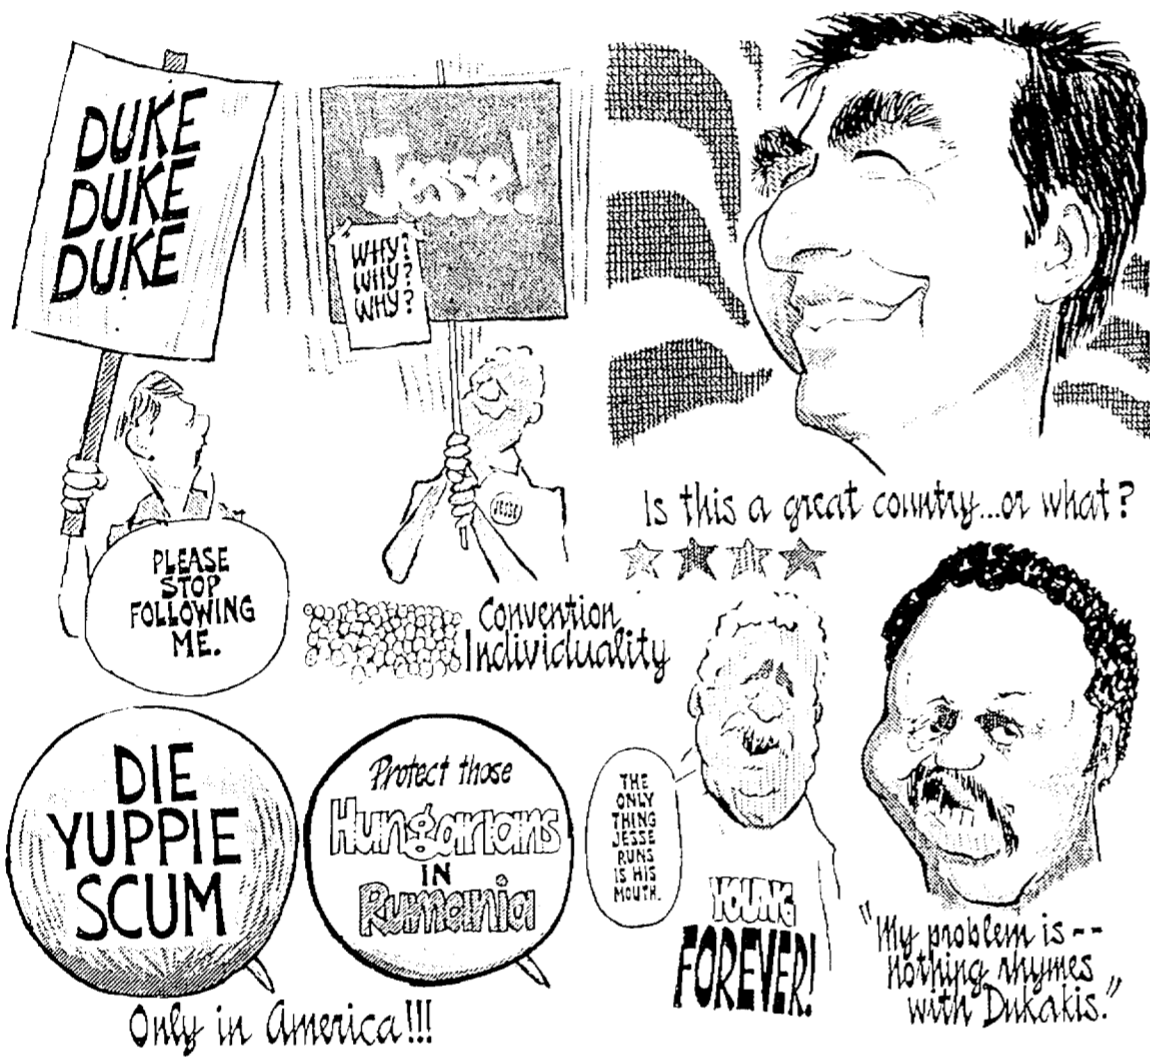

That's what Tom Hayden was talking about.

No rock while rolling

Received a press release from the city of Detroit last week reminding citizens driving through the city that it is unlawful for any person driving in the city and neighborhoods to play car radios loudly or make other disturbing noises.

You've heard Salt n' Pepa, Run DMC and other rap bands blaring from car stereos that would give Pine Knob's music system a run for its money. The other day while driving down I-94, I heard what I thought was an airplane landing, only to realize that one of those impressive stereos was blaring the Beatles "Back in the USSR."

Detroit's ordinance calls for a $100 fine for those ticketed by police for blasting radios. "The enforcement of this ordinance will hopefully sensitize drivers to the fact that they are disturbing other drivers," said Detroit City Council President Erma Henderson.

We figure that if Detroit has such an ordinance, the Pointes do too. So, all you symphony addicts better keep the Tchaikovsky down.

Softball benefit

The Detroit Tigerwives Softball Team will be taking on media personalities in a benefit softball game Friday, Aug. 5, at the Southfield Civic Center.

Among the Grosse Pointers involved in the sixth Detroit Media Softball game to benefit cystic fibrosis are: Red Wing Mike O'Connell, sportscaster Mark "Doc" Andrews, Detroit News columnist Tim Kiska and our very own sports editor Robert "The Long Ball" Fulton.

The 11 a.m. game will be played at the Civic Center, located at 10 1/2 Mile Road and

Do it Dundas

We were getting ready to head out to Lake Huron down the Black River on the press boat Ricochet, when Bayview Yacht Club's Press Chairman Jim Dundas climbed aboard and announced he had to get aboard Crisis, which had already gotten under way.

Our captain obliged, and maneuvered the powerboat along side of the yacht. Things were going along just swimmingly, until a boat decided that it would like to head upriver in between our two boats.

Fortunately enough people shouted, a collision was avoided and Jim jumped aboard his yacht — none the worse for the wear.

Yesterday's Headlines

Aug. 6, 1950 —

The New York Times reported that the North Korean invaders launched a series of attacks against four South Korean divisions holding the northern defense front along the waters of the Naktong River in Hamchang-Andong and pushed forward in patrol actions to test the United States' positions farther south. The North Korean enemies had launched four blows at South Korea and more than 1,000 North Koreans had been killed during the onslaught.

Soviets indicated they would take a roll in the fall United Nations Assembly. Sources from the U.N. reported the Soviet Union would attend the General Assembly and stay for a good part of the three-month meeting to press its fight for Asiatic public opinion. Western opinion, stated by Jakob A. Malik, a Soviet delegate, was that the chief motive behind the Soviet return to a council had been to wipe out the United Nations' unity on Korea. Another incentive was to make the United States appear the leader of Western powers bent on destroying Asian independ-

Atom bomb shelters for New York City were estimated at a cost of $450 million. The plan, made public by Mayor O'Dwyer, would protect New York residents against the atomic bomb and called for construction of shelters under buildings, city parks and playgrounds. In peacetime, the shelters would be used for automobile parking. Due to the bomb threats, it was felt essential that immediate steps be taken to set up a suitable building program.

Forty-six persons were hurt when a Long Island Rail Road passenger train ran through an open switch near the Huntington, L.I. station and crashed into a sidetracked freight train. The accident was apparently the result of a misunderstanding of orders between a rookie brakeman and a veteran conductor of the train.

The Senate Finance Committee voted a $170,000,000 cutback in President Truman's emergency tax program by rejecting a House proposal to impose a 10 percent withholding levy on dividends. At the same time, however, it adopted the Mills plan for stepping up the payment of corporation taxes to bring business concerns closer to the "pay as you go" system.

In sports, the Yankees were beaten by the Indians 4-2 after suffering three straight crushers in Detroit. The Indians had lost 1-0 in their first game with the Yanks, but came charging back to win the second encounter of the three-game series. It was a great game for the Indians and a crowd of more than 61,420 attended.

In Grosse Pointe, making news was a burglary at Christ Church where between $800 to $900 was stolen in cash from a locked cabinet. The money was part of the church's proceeds from parishioners' Sunday offerings and there were no clues to the identity of the thief.

William Clay Ford and his sister, Mrs. Walter B. Ford, gave two substantial gifts to the Grosse Pointe War Memorial. The donations, $2,500 each, brought the total raised in the current drive for funds to between $12,000 and $13,000. With gifts previously received from Mrs. Edsel Ford and Mr. and Mrs. Henry Ford II, it brought the total donations by this one family to $20,000 toward the Memorial Center.

The first Water Festival was held at the Farms Pier. Along with water events, a Queens Ball was planned where 28 Grosse Pointe girls competed for the crown. Following the presentation of a loving cup to one lucky girl, there was a dance that was held on the new pier terrace.

Educators were jittery while they awaited bids on a new Cook Road Elementary School. Architects' estimates for the school were $1,045,000. If the bids were above this mark, it would jeopardize the remainder of the building program, which included completion of the new Kerby School and the building of a new school in a portion of Grosse Pointe Township which was in the Grosse Pointe public school district.

Pointe swimmers enjoyed the best break in years with all the municipal beaches operating without a single interruption. There were no closings. Pointe health commissioner, Dr. Thomas S. Davies, said that tests done at all the beaches had showed the water to be purer that year than ever before. Local swimmers owed their gratitude to officials of Macomb County who used interceptor sewers which run inland and keep drain and sanitary sewage out of the lake.

Coming soon?

This vacant lot will be the site of Pointe Plaza, a project that will include two office buildings, retail space and a parking structure to house the cars the construction will bring in. The development encompasses land in both the Woods and Detroit. Currently, the applicant, Shostak Brothers, is seeking site plan approval from the Woods Planning Commission and a rezoning from the city of Detroit.

VA begins review of radiation claims

The Veterans Administration has begun reviewing disability compensation claims for veterans exposed to radiation while on active duty, and their survivors, according to Gordon W. Clowney, director of the Detroit VA Regional Office.

Legislation signed by President Reagan May 20 authorizes payments to veterans suffering from any of 13 types of cancer, and their survivors.

To qualify for the disability compensation the disease must be rated 10 percent or more disabling and the veterans must have been exposed in one of three active duty situations: participating in a test atmospheric detonation of a nuclear device, serving occupation duty in Hiroshima or Nagasaki, Japan, between Aug. 6, 1945 and July 1, 1946 or exposure while a prisoner of war in Japan.

Clowney said claims involving the 13 cancers already on file with the VA are being reviewed for eligibility. Other claims may be filed from among some 300,000 veterans who were in areas of possible exposure.

He said the diseases automatically assumed by the law to qualify for compensation are the following cancers: leukemia other than chronic lymphocytic leukemia, thyroid, breast, pharynx, esophagus, stomach, small intestine, pancreas, multiple myeloma, lymphomas except Hodgkin's disease, bile duct, gall bladder, and liver except when cirrhosis or hepatitis B is indicated.

The law restricts compensation to those veterans whose disease became evident within 40 years of exposure, beginning on the last date on which the veteran participated in a radiation-risk activity, except for leukemia, which has a 30-year limit.

Monthly compensation payments to veterans range from $71 to $1,411. Additional amounts may be awarded for certain severe disabilities. For survivors, benefits range from $18 to $1,327 a month, depending upon the pay grade of the veteran while on active duty.

Veterans or survivors with claims already on file are being considered for disability compensation. Other veterans in Michigan exposed to radiation should file a claim immediately at the Detroit VA Regional Office. For information and assistance call the VA toll free. Consult local telephone directories under "U.S. Government" for the appropriate number.

this. Yet this group does not include a psychiatrist. This strikes me as less-than-satisfactory. Why accept a substitute when the real thing is available?

For any Grosse Pointe residents who may be in the dark about where to find "the real thing," a psychiatrist, let me describe how they may get to a specialist directly:

Over 40 psychiatrists practice in the Pointes and near east side; an additional 200 practice within a 20-minute drive from here. Psychiatric units in hospitals serving the Pointes include Cottage, St. John, Bon Secours, Glen Eden and others. Each of these, not to mention the larger hospitals dotting the metropolitan area, provide 24-hour emergency and evaluative as well as short- and long-term inpatient treatment.

Almost all of the psychiatrists with offices in the Pointes also serve on the medical staffs of one or more of these hospitals. All of us see outpatients with problems ranging from mild, transient distress to the most severely disabling. Fortunately, no problem is too small or too great that a qualified specialist cannot be found in this community to handle it.

Anyone needing psychiatric evaluation or treatment — including those who only think they might — should have no difficulty finding a fully-qualified specialist simply by looking in the Yellow Pages (Physicians and Surgeons, Specialist, Psychiatry, starting on page 1564) by calling one of the hospitals I have listed or by asking for a referral from the Wayne (567-3933), Oakland (646-5400) or Macomb (463-2101) County Medical Societies or the Michigan Psychiatric Society (552-8666).

A fully-qualified psychiatrist is the medical doctor with four-to-five additional years of training in the diagnosis, treatment and prevention of mental and emotional disorders and who has passed a rigorous qualifying examination leading to certification by the American Board of Psychiatry and Neurology.

He or she usually belongs to the American Medical Association (AMA) and the American Psychiatric Association (APA) as well as the Michigan Psychiatric Society (MPS), the Michigan State Medical Society and a county medical society. These affiliations are important because each of these professional organizations imposes high standards of medical performance on their members. I know that each of them welcomes inquiries and will help your readers find qualified psychiatrists near where they live.

1982. Valente talks about his campaign for councilman in the same terms he discusses Bush's bid for the presidency. He praises his campaign staff — friends, relatives and neighbors. He discusses campaign strategy — drinking coffee with neighbors, distributing flyers door to door and addressing various service organization functions.

"I'm really lucky," Valente said. "I've never lost an election. I've seen a lot of people who have, and it is not something I would like."

Valente's job with the national committee involves overseeing a staff of six. The office is in charge of developing coalitions with various ethnic and public interest groups for the Republican Party. This involves helping candidates — including Bush — write speeches, select events to attend and determine political strategy where these groups are concerned.

Valente was in town last week for several reasons. Southeastern Michigan is Valente's home area, Bush's address was to an ethnic organization and Valente's office had been deeply involved with pulling the event together.

It is never an address, rally, speech or press conference. It is always called an event by the political insiders and organizers. "If Claudia (Valente's fiancée) hears me refer to our wedding as an event one more time, I think she may have second thoughts," Valente said.

After staying up fairly late the night before, Valente got up early to meet with a local reporter. Then he jumped into a car and headed for the Ukrainian Cultural Center.

As he drove discussing the day's work, the background voices of a radio talk show discussed the Democratic National Convention, serving as an appropriate backdrop.

Valente made a couple of stops prior to getting to the center. There was the dry cleaners where he left tickets to the night's event for relatives and the bank where he made a deposit to insure proper cash flow the next two weeks.

"It's these little things that you normally take for granted that you have to take care of," Valente said.

With that it was on to the cultural center. One wrong turn later, he arrived. He was greeted by a friend with whom he had worked about a year ago in Pennsylvania. The two laughed about how both their raincoats turned up missing after the event.

Valente explained the two hadn't seen each other in the past few months because until Bush had secured enough dele-agents — it even rang for the Ukrainian center from a caller who wanted to know when the Ukrainian Sunflower Festival would be held.

The Bush staffer told Valente that there was one minor glitch in the smooth-running program. He had ordered 200 Ukrainian flags from a Sarasota, Fla., vendor and they would not arrive at Metro airport until 3 p.m., just two-and-a-half hours before the vice president's arrival. He put Valente in charge of making sure a volunteer would travel to the airport and have the flags to the center in time.

Valente was in charge of three major details: He had to insure the campaign. Bush had been invited once before but was unable to attend.

"One of the vice president's biggest duties is foreign policy and it would only make sense that he give a foreign policy address at an event such as this," Valente said.

All day long one got the feeling that the dozens of people scurrying throughout the center, at the hotels and at the airports were like musicians tuning up before a performance. All the while they were they pulling together this event, they were planning the night's activities and what would happen the next day, week and month.

House staffers had been at the hall all week, the entire building was swept for bombs with both trained dogs and electronic devices. Even the event organizers who were cleared through a number of security levels had to exit the hall while Secret Service officers checked the room.

Valente talked on the phone during the break.

Everything fell into place when a bus filled with campaign reporters arrived. Valente had been in the press conference room just minutes before their arrival going over what would transpire during the event. Four staffers spent at least four hours making sure that the room would be satisfactory for both the vice president and the reporters.

About an hour before Bush's arrival, Valente donned his earphone which was connected to a radio on his belt. His family, who saw him later in the evening, teased him about the headset, wondering what radio station he was listening to.

That night it was home again, and the next day, it was back to Washington, D.C., then on to Chicago, back to D.C., and back home. It will remain that way for Valente throughout the presidential campaign, and if the Republicans win, things may get even busier.

Photos by Peter A. Salinas

The culmination of weeks of activity by Bush supporters at the Ukrainian Cultural Center in Warren last week was a press conference and speech by Vice President George Bush. Here Bush fields questions from the local and national media.

gates to be assured of the Republican nomination, the national committee had adopted a neutrality act of sorts, which prevented him from working directly on the Bush campaign.

The two discussed the neutrality act, then got down to the business at hand.

The small office at the Ukrainian center served as the headquarters for the vice president.

In fact, anywhere there was an extension phone was a headquarters as well. And the phone kept ringing. It rang for Valente, Bush staffers, secret service that a fax machine was brought to the center; that a gross-and-a-half of hand-held American flags were brought to the site and distributed to the 50 dining tables and that former Michigan Gov. George Romney was transported in his vehicle from a fundraiser in Oakland County which was held following the address at the Captive Nations dinner.

Those were his major tasks. There were dozens of other minor things, such as making sure that tickets were dropped off to a local car dealer, insuring that a White House staffer's briefcase was hand-delivered to Selfridge Air Force Base and anything else that might come up throughout the night.

During one of the many car trips between sites, Valente explained that with the election heating up, there became less distinction between an official event and a campaign stop.

Valente said that this was considered an official event, because it was not an event created by

"You have to put this into perspective," Valente said as he made a right turn onto I-696 on two mid-afternoon errands.

"This is the fun stuff. I mean the real fun stuff. Most of what I do is at the strategy end — planning for the event, recommending events to attend and reading and editing speeches. All that as opposed to implementing the entire event. If you do one of these a month, it keeps the enthusiasm level up."

Ask Valente what he feels about the Park's refusal to join in a Pointe-wide effort to combat Dutch elm disease or anything else about what his council is doing and he has an answer, indicating a full grasp of the local issue. He speaks with the same level of understanding about such national events as the Iran-Contra affair or the results of the latest Harris poll on the political campaigns.

As Bush's arrival to the large hall grew nearer, the activity level increased. Though White

A Kiwanis honor

Richard Beach, a representative of the Grosse Pointe Kiwanis Club, made the award at the English Department's annual Honors Tea.

Animal Safari Day Camp offered at Barnes School

The Living Science Foundation, in cooperation with the Department of Community Education of the Grosse Pointe Public School System, will be offering its Animal Safari Day Camp at Barnes School Aug. 15.

Animal Safari Day Camp offers children from 5 to 11 the opportunity to experience animals from around the world in a hands-on, interactive, day camp setting. Campers will use maps to plot their journeys as they meet up with crabs from cold arctic waters, birds and snakes from dense steaming jungles, reptiles and plants adapted to desert conditions and marsupials from Australia.

As world explorers, campers will also be meeting some of the peoples of remote regions of the earth and discovering their exotic lifestyles. Some activities include: face painting to be an Australian aborigine, making animal face masks, and sculpting animals out of clay.

The camper/staff ratio of 8:1 ensures that all camp participants get plenty of individual guidance and attention.

Campers should wear comfortable indoor and outdoor clothing and bring a sack lunch. Snacks will be provided.

All activities are created and supervised by the trained science interpreters of the Living Science Foundation, a non-profit, non-governmental science education organization whose in-school science presentations travel statewide to bring birds, animals, ocean life and astronomy presentations to elementary schoolchildren.

Fee for the day camp is $185. For more information about the Animal Safari Day Camp, call 343-2178.

other types of educational programs," Dietiker said.

Chris Fenton, director of business affairs for the Grosse Pointe public schools, said the board of education has not come out for or against the millage request.

Fenton said one mill in the Grosse Pointe district generates $1.3 million. With the addition of a second chartered mill, the district would be funding to the tune of $2.6 million.

Fenton added that last year the district received about $550,000 in funds for services to the 35 severely multiply impaired students educated through these programs.

"The Grosse Pointe School System may get back more reimbursement as a result of the passage of this millage," Fenton said, "but it would be nowhere near the amount of money that the district sent to the intermediate school district."

Grosse Pointe Director of Special Education Claire Hunt said that she will be voting in favor of the millage.

"If you just look at the money that Grosse Pointe puts out and then look at what it gets in return, it is not equitable," Hunt said. "But if you look at what's good for handicapped kids in Wayne County, then it is necessary."

Hunt said that if a smaller school district were to run into a situation where a number of students needed this special care, then it could eat up a large portion of the general education budget. She added that medium-sized districts, like Grosse Pointe, would not run into financial problems.

"You have to look at the problem and decide whether or not you believe in it," Hunt said. "The reality is that Wayne County Intermediate School district cannot afford to operate the programs without additional revenue."

Dietiker said his association is wholly supportive of the ballot question, but he outlined some of the opposition arguments.

He said some school administrators have said that they could not support the question because local millages had failed. Last year Grosse Pointe residents turned down a one-mill request to operate and expand its library system.

Other school districts oppose the measure because their SEVs are growing at a much faster rate than in major cities.

The point here, said Dietiker, is that some outlying areas feel they would be paying an inordinate amount of money into the program and not getting a like sum back in the way of services.

Dietiker stressed that he feels there is no other way to fund the programs than to have the funds raised on a local level. He added that if passed, the $20.4 million realized by the millage would be augmented by an additional $6 million in state funds.

Dietiker argued that while there are more students needing these programs from major cities like Detroit, the percentage of students on a population basis is on par with those in suburban districts.

Another reason for some of the opposition is that more than twice the amount of money needed for next year would be generated if it is passed. Mathey said that officials believe the millage would keep the programs solvent until the mid-1990s.

She added that there are several ways the excess funds could be used. The money could be saved and invested, probably allowing for solvency into the late-1990s or beyond, the money could be used to offset other local special education costs, or less than the full one mill could be levied for the current school year.

Mathey said that in any case, if passed, the superintendents of the local districts would meet to vote on what to do.

Superintendent John Whritner could not be reached for comment at press time.

"You have to be realistic about this," Dietiker said. "The reality is that many areas such as a Canton or a Grosse Pointe pay a disproportionate share to make a program work. It is a reality with the jail, it is a reality with this program."

Court volunteers sought

Judge Roger J. La Rose of District Court 32A, in Harper Woods, needs interested citizens for the Volunteer Probation Department. The necessary requirement is a willingness to assist persons who have come in contact with the district court.

The Volunteer Probation Department was established in 1969 and provides an alternative to jail for youthful first-time offenders with minor convictions, such as marijuana use or petty larceny.

These volunteers interview, counsel and provide reports to the court on the progress of those on probation.

For more information, contact Judith DeKeyser, court administrator, at 343-2590 or visit the court located at 19617 Harper, Harper Woods.

Pierson gift to fund new Henry Ford Medical Center

A new Henry Ford Medical Center, offering families in the eastern suburbs a wide range of specialty services, is scheduled to open in late summer as the result of a leadership gift from the late Lynn Pierson of Grosse Pointe Farms.

A long-time benefactor of Henry Ford Hospital, Pierson died Feb. 13 at 93. He was a former member of Henry Ford Hospital's Board of Trustees, and at his death was an honorary trustee of Henry Ford Health Care Corp., parent of the hospital.

In recognition of the gift, the new facility will be named the Henry Ford Medical Center/Lynn and Elizabeth Pierson Clinic. Pierson's wife, Elizabeth, died in 1984.

The center will be housed in a new professional building at 131 Kercheval (at Muir), across the street from Cottage Hospital. The scheduled opening is late August, and the center will occupy some 18,000 square feet of the building, the entire second floor.

"We're deeply grateful for the foresight of Mr. Pierson in supporting innovative ways of providing the widest possible range of health care options to residents of the Grosse Pointes and other eastern suburbs," says Bruce W. Steinhauer, M.D., chairman, Board of Governors, Henry Ford Medical Group.

The Farms center represents a new direction for the network of Henry Ford Medical Centers, currently numbering 19 in the metropolitan Detroit area, according to Paul Primeau, administrator for Satellite Programs, Henry Ford Health Care Corp.

For the first time, he says, Henry Ford specialty and primary care physician services will be located in a facility adjacent to a community hospital (Cottage) where Henry Ford specialty physicians will admit patients.

Patients using the new center will have the option of being hospitalized at either Cottage Hospital or Henry Ford Hospital.

Grosse Pointe resident Joseph McGoe, M.D., will serve as medical director of the new facility. Carrie Metheny, of Grosse Pointe Park, is the administrative manager.

By the time the center is completed this fall, several specialty outpatient services are scheduled to be offered, including: Allergy, Cardiology, Dermatology, General Surgery, Pulmonary, Obstetrics/Gynecology, Oncology, Orthopaedics, Otolaryngology (Ear, Nose and Throat), and Urology. A multidisciplinary service for diabetes care will also be offered.

The center will also house internal medicine specialists from the present Henry Ford Medical Center in St. Clair Shores. Family practice services and other primary care services, such as pediatrics, will then be expanded at other Henry Ford centers in St. Clair Shores.

Laboratory and radiology services will also be available at the new center, and physicians staffing the facility will be members of the Henry Ford Medical Group.

Joseph McGoe, M.D.

A lifetime of service

H. Lynn Pierson's leadership gift to fund a new Henry Ford Medical Center can be viewed as a highlight in a life rich with business achievements and public service.

In recognition of this gift, the medical center — scheduled to open in late August in a new professional building at 131 Kercheval Ave. — will be named the Henry Ford Medical Center/Lynn and Elizabeth Pierson Clinic.

Pierson, who died Feb. 13 at 93, was a longtime Grosse Pointe Farms resident. His connection with Henry Ford Hospital dates back to his childhood friendship with Edsel Ford at Detroit University School.

Elizabeth Pierson, his wife, died in 1984, although she contracted polio at the age of 23, she was an active wife and mother of a son, Davison, and a daughter, Nancy (Mrs. William Y.) Gard. She served on many service-oriented boards in the Grosse Pointe and Detroit areas, including the Detroit Rehabilitation Institute and the Thompson House.

The Pierson's interest in health care service along with their close friendship with Edsel and Eleanor Ford resulted in Pierson's election to the Henry Ford Hospital board of Trustees in 1955. He was appointed honorary trustee in 1978, and was named an honorary trustee of Henry Ford Health Care Corp., parent company of the hospital, in 1987.

His involvement, however, with Henry Ford Hospital was only one part of an active corporate and civic life.

Born in Detroit on July 13, 1894, Harry Lynn Pierson Jr. attended Detroit University School, Detroit Central High School and Williams College. After serving as a captain in the U.S. Army Infantry in World War I, he and the former Elizabeth Whitehead were married in 1920.

He began his business career with the Packard Motor Car Co., leaving there to become the treasurer of the Detroit Harvester Co. A talented and accomplished businessman, his interests led him into manufacturing, banking and government service.

When his wife sought treatment for polio at the Warm Springs, Ga., Foundation in the 1930s, the Piersons met President Franklin D. Roosevelt, another polio victim and regular visitor to Warm Springs.

This friendship led to Pierson's appointment in 1935 as a state director of the Works Progress Administration (WPA), Roosevelt's historic Depression-era program which provided jobs to hundreds of thousands of the unemployed in constructing countless city and state public works projects.

Pierson was also actively involved in reviving the Detroit Zoological Society, and as a commissioner, was instrumental in the establishment and growth of the currently nationally renowned zoo. At his death, he was a commissioner emeritus.

The national and local corporate boards on which he served included the Eaton Manufacturing Co.; Detroit Bank & Trust (now Comerica); and Parke-Davis. In addition, he was commodore of the Grosse Pointe Park Yacht Club and president of the Detroit Athletic Club, the Detroit Club and the Old Club on Harsens Island.

Talks urge truck safety

Now that the state House and Senate have approved separate truck safety bills, AAA Michigan — which is spearheading a legislative communication program with more than 130,000 motorists demanding safer laws — urges negotiators in the two chambers to work toward an effective compromise package to get dangerous trucks off the roads.

"We are disappointed with the House bills and believe the Senate package is more responsive to the needs of motorists, who are most often victims in fatal car-truck accidents," said AAA Michigan President Jack Avignone. "We hope that the two negotiating teams will develop a truck safety package that preserves the essential elements in the Senate bills."

AAA Michigan's "Dear Legislator" public write-in postcard campaign launched in April urges restricting trucks to the right lane on all freeways, covering those loads, increasing enforcement and requiring annual safety inspections.

The communication program to get dangerous trucks and truckers off the road has reached the "critical stage in Lansing," Avignone noted, with key lawmakers, negotiators and researchers meeting to discuss the three-bill package passed unanimously by the Senate May 19 and a 16-bill House list which garnered near-unanimous support July 5.

One of AAA Michigan's objections to the House bill requiring tarps for trucks hauling loads is an amendment which permits government trucks traveling to or from construction sites to go uncovered. There is also concern that government units hiring commercial sand or gravel haulers for certain jobs could automatically make them exempt, creating circumstances where some vehicles would not be tarped.

AAA Michigan also noted that House legislation on restriction of trucks to the right lane of freeways is too complex and appears unenforceable. It restricts trucks to the two right lanes only on freeways with three or more lanes going in one direction, except when exiting to the left or in the event of an emergency. However, trucks are allowed in any lane on all other roadways having three or more lanes going in one direction.

On stepped-up safety inspections of trucks and increased enforcement of truck legislation, AAA Michigan urges adequate funds to expand State Police Special Truck Enforcement Teams, asserting that the House proposal on inspections does little to remove unsafe trucks already on state roadways.

"AAA Michigan's role from now until the Legislature enters its fall session in September is to press for positive action ensuring that laws will be passed which allow cars and trucks to share Michigan roads safely," Avignone said.

St. Michael's Episcopal Church

— 40 years in G P

By Margie Reins Smith
Staff Writer

This is the twelfth in an occasional series about Grosse Pointe churches.

The Rev. Robert Neily has been pastor for the last nine years at St. Michael's Episcopal Church, 20475 Sunningdale, in Grosse Pointe Woods. He said he believes St. Michael's is known for its participation in the community in four ways.

"Ease of access," he said. "For people with disabilities, we're known as the church they can get into and out of easily." Neily said the church has installed ramps for wheelchairs, has eliminated stairs, and has added hand railings in a continuing effort to encourage people with disabilities to attend services and meetings in the building.

St. Michael's is also the meeting place for a number of community groups. "AA meets here three nights a week. So does Recovery, a self-help group for people with emotional problems. So do several MS (multiple sclerosis) groups," he said.

"We're also known for our outreach into the community," Neily said. "We're actually striving for a balance between in-reach and outreach. We like to get people thinking farther — beyond St. Michael's — it's the focus of my ministry here."

Neily described the church's recent Christmas in July campaign. "Everybody thinks about hunger at holiday time," he said. "But hunger exists year-round. Two weeks ago we had a Christmas tree at church to remind people to contribute food, which is taken to Crossroads. The baskets carried forward on Sundays with the offering were overflowing."

Grosse Pointers who are not members of St. Michael's may know the church best for its Thrift Shop. Shirley Knoll, co-manager (with Margaret Manko), said the shop is celebrating its 30th year. It began in 1958, a modest idea conceived by members of the Women's Auxiliary, after several successful rummage sales during the 1950s.

"About 50 or 60 women work at the Thrift Shop on a regular basis," she said. "They're all volunteers. It's lots of work. But it's rewarding, financially."

The Thrift Shop began with a few donated consignment items in a tiny organ loft with no windows. In 1960, the business had increased enough to build an addition to the building with a new salesroom, a small office, and convertible rooms used by the shop during the week and church school classes on Sunday.

Forty percent of consignment sales goes to the auxiliary; 60 percent is returned to the consignee.

"The problem is getting volunteers," said Knoll, who has been working at the Thrift Shop since it opened. "Younger women are working for money now," she said. She added that the volunteer work appeals particularly to retired women with business experience.

St. Michael's Episcopal Church is the daughter church of Christ Church Grosse Pointe, granddaughter church of Christ Church Detroit. In 1947, as Grosse Pointe Woods was being developed and new families were moving to the area, building homes and schools and churches, St. Michael's was founded as a parochial mission.

The first service was held Sunday, Oct. 26, 1947, at the caddy house (which was converted to a chapel) on the golf course grounds of the Renmore Golf Club (now Lochmoor Club.) By 1949, they had purchased a rectory and were looking for property for a church building.

The five-acre tract of land, part of the old Cook Farm, was purchased through the help of private contributions, the Women's Auxiliary of Christ Church Grosse Pointe, by members and friends, and by a $40,000 loan from the Bishop's Fund. Ground-breaking ceremonies took place in October 1950; the cornerstone was in place by early 1951; and the dedication of the original building for St. Michael's was held on Sept. 9, 1951.

The congregation grew rapidly, as did most church congregations in the 1950s. By 1954, a new wing had been built. In 1956-57, the church was holding two school sessions and had one of the largest church schools in the diocese. It was serving 661 children each week, with 88 church school teachers.

In 1960, yet another addition included new classrooms, the entire thrift shop area, a cloister and a bell tower. The new wing was dedicated in January 1961.

Church membership today, according to Neily, is about 700 members; about 350 households. Neily has been at the church for nine years.

"I came here in March 1980," he said, "during the peak of the auto crunch. Mid-level executives were retiring early."

He said the church had to cut down to one clergyman, with no assistant for awhile. Most families in the neighborhood had high school and college-age children, he said. Grosse Pointers were talking about closing schools. "We took the nursery and made it into a youth room because there weren't any babies.

"During the last four years, it has changed," Neily said. "There's more families with young children now; more babies; infants; births; baptisms. We had to have an assistant clergy. The Rev. Susan Bock became assistant pastor two years ago. Membership is balancing nicely. It was an older congregation in 1980. Not now. We have younger families now."

Bock said the membership today is a remarkable blend of people with a sense of family. "They're elderly and young. They have a desire to be together and enthusiasm for church activities and projects."

Neily also stressed the lay ministry within the church. "A lot of people give a lot of time," he said. "For instance, a retired gentleman, head of the property committee, comes here a couple times a week. He spruces up. Makes the building more attractive. He supervised the renovation of a hallway. He's like a building superintendent."

"Another retired gentleman is head of our mail crew. They're all retired men who put together the mailings. They coordinate, address, stamp, weigh, sort and send every newsletter, stewardship mailing and special mailing the church does."

Neily said the church celebrates St. Michael's Day on the Sunday nearest Sept. 29 by honoring the lay ministry. He announces every parish activity and asks members of the group to stand — from acolytes to blood bank volunteers to Christian education teachers to Thrift Shop volunteers to Sonshiners to ushers.

"At the end of the announcement, almost everybody in the church is standing up," he said.

The Rev. Robert Neily

Before St. Michael's Episcopal Church was constructed, services were held in the caddy house on the grounds of the Renmore Golf Club. The caddy house was later torn down and the golf club is now the Lochmoor Club.

Adolescent drug usage in the Grosse Pointes

Use: Why?

Answers to this question are varied, controversial and not mutually exclusive. One leads to another, and back again.

In short, the reasons for the use and abuse of alcohol and drugs can be traced to peer pressure, parental involvement — or lack thereof — parental example, poor dissemination or dissemination of poor information, and genetics.

Many adolescents use drugs and alcohol for the same reason adults use them: It makes them feel good. The survey at Grosse Pointe North High in January showed 36 percent of the ninth graders, 56 percent of the 10th, 61 percent of the 11th and 72 percent of all seniors reported at least once having five drinks in a row. Having five drinks in a row is considered drinking to get drunk.

"Parental chemical use sets a role model for the kids," said John Andrews, president of the Substance Abuse Community Council. "That doesn't necessarily mean we want the whole community to stop drinking, but parents have to realize that their example affects their children."

If a parent comes home from work and says, "I need a drink," an example is set. If children are "rewarded" with drinks on special occasions, or if the focus of parental gatherings is alcohol, if business is conducted over alcohol or if parents allow their children to go to parties where they know alcohol is being served, an example is set.

"It's ironic that it's considered grown-up when it makes you act like a younger person," said Charles Stern, a counselor at Eastwood Clinics.

Grayce Miller Lyon has a master's in social work, specializing in family treatment at the Grosse Pointe Center for Individual and Family Therapy, an affiliate of Bon Secours Hospital. She says substance abuse is not just one person's problem.

In her 17 years of treating alcoholism in families, there have been just two times when a patient did not have a family history of substance abuse. One person was adopted, and the other didn't know about a family member who had a substance abuse problem because it was a family secret.

"Substance abuse is a family illness and sometimes it's inter-generational," she said. "It doesn't suddenly appear in a vacuum with this person."

She also says if parents deny there's a problem, the children learn denial, too.

"But I don't want to lay all the blame at the parent's feet," Stern said.

And Dan Koerber, Woods youth officer, agrees with that sentiment.

"Kids have to realize that their moms and dads are legally allowed to drink," Koerber said.

"The parents have to look at their drinking, and think through the consequences, they have to look at patterns, and see the implications," Andrews said.

Peer pressure is also a reason for at least the experimentation with drugs, if not regular usage. The Weekly Reader, a national elementary classroom publication, polled 500,000 children in 1983. The survey showed that some 30 percent of the fourth-grade respondents reported peer pressure to drink alcohol.

Other studies show that among American sixth and seventh graders, eight percent have already used marijuana, and four percent are regular users by the time they complete seventh grade. (These figures are quoted in SAC's "As Parents We Will...")

"There is tremendous pressure to be accepted," Koerber said. "I think (they drink because) they're looking to belong. The parents let them drink because they want their children to be accepted."

"They want their children to fit in, but what kind of culture do they want them to fit into?" Stern asked.

Koerber remembers one parent who dropped his child off at a hall party, where he knew there was going to be alcohol. But the father called the police to break up the party, in order that his child wouldn't be exposed to too much drinking.

Parental acceptance of drinking and the attitude that "kids will be kids" is not applicable in the 1980s, the experts agree. Children need to know that there will be consequences for their drinking.

In the survey conducted at Grosse Pointe North, 60 percent of the freshmen surveyed said they thought their parents would be upset if they discovered they had been drinking. Some 40 percent of the seniors thought their parents would be upset.

Until a few years ago, substance abuse would never have been talked of openly, and substance abuse in children would never have been acknowledged. Information, therefore was hard to get, and many people didn't know where to turn.

But today, due to organizations such as MADD, SAC, Family Life Education Council, programs like Nancy Reagan's "Just Say No" campaign, and forward-thinking school districts, the word about the addictiveness of drugs and the damage they cause to the body and mind is getting to more children at a younger age.

The Grosse Pointe school system has formed a Student Assistance Program, designed to recognize a need and offer help to any student in grades K-12, especially family or personal problems, including those problems related to the use of alcohol and other drugs. There are two full-time counselors on staff, one at each high school. Doug Merkle is the substance abuse counselor at North.

"The school's work (on educating about substance abuse) is invaluable. It's through that education that prevention begins," Merkle said.

Prevention: What and How

Not only is the school's Student Assistance Program helping spread the word, the work of MADD, SAC, FLEC and MASADA (Myself And Students Against Drugs and Alcohol), organized events, speakers, and other programs are attempting to show students they can have fun without alcohol or other drugs.

MADD's Project Graduation is a combined year-long effort of specialists in the field of substance abuse, media, businesses and schools aimed at stopping drinking and driving, and making sure everyone makes it to their graduation day.

Barbro Lynton, a Farms resident and president of Wayne County MADD, said plans are being made to continue MADD chapters in all schools and to get the students involved.

"That's the key, I think, getting the students involved," Lynton said.

Studies tend to show that Lynton is correct. Positive peer pressure does work — but the children must be reached first with the facts.

That is SAC's job. "The mission of SAC," Andrews said, "is to increase and heighten the community's awareness and to encourage the community to establish certain norms. We're not prohibitionist, but we want people to understand that nobody should be involved with illegal drugs, and kids should not be allowed to use alcohol."

"Teenagers shouldn't drink. That's it. It's illegal, first of all, and it's dangerous," Lynton said.

Parents should realize that for minors alcohol is an illegal drug, and they should also realize there is a lot they can do to prevent their child from using chemical substances.

Parents need to set consequences with teeth. The consequences should be discussed with the adolescents before anything happens, so they know what to expect.

That, according to the North High survey, is happening and the numbers are encouraging. Eighty percent of the respondents said their parents have talked to them about drugs while 20 percent said their parents have never discussed it with them. Ten percent said their parents had never discussed alcohol use with them.

SAC and FLEC have sponsored speakers and even have a speakers bureau which will provide speakers for any group or organization, aimed at raising adult awareness.

"I believe the awareness first has to come with the adults and the professionals," said Patricia Forster, executive director of FLEC.

FLEC has a referral service for people of any age who want information about or treatment for substance abuse.

"Our role is unique because we're not attached to the schools or government, so people can come here and feel totally anonymous," she said.

Through combined efforts of all these organizations, the schools and the media, the message, or at least part of it, is coming across. More than 90 percent of the students polled said they understand alcohol is an addictive drug, and that alcoholism is a disease that can be treated.

But 36 percent of the freshmen and 55 percent of the seniors polled believed alcohol does not have an effect on their health.

Intervention: What and When

The poll asked whether students were concerned about a friend's use of alcohol or drugs. Forty percent of the freshmen and 66 percent of the sophomores said yes. The other classes fell in between.

Nearly half of the sophomores responded the same way when asked if they were concerned about a family member's use. The other classes' responses were much lower.

But what should one do if he or she is concerned that a friend or family member is abusing chemical substances?

Students regularly come to Officer Dan Koerber and North Counselor Doug Merkle, concerned either with themselves or with their friend or family member's use of chemical. From there, a decision is made as to how to confront the person and how it should be dealt with.

A confrontational approach, which involves everyone who is close to the abuser, may be the best in some cases, but only if worked on with a therapist beforehand, according to Grayce Miller Lyon. If it doesn't actually work in getting the abuser into treatment at that time, the wall of denial has been ruptured, and the family can take a step toward recovery.

Many people don't acknowledge a problem because it means acknowledging their own problem. And for some it's just the opposite.

"It's hard to see if your kids have a problem if you do," said the Eastwood Clinic's Stern.

Parents should be on the lookout for rapid mood changes in their children, increased isolation, a change in attitude and a drop in grades, among other things, as signs that there may be a drug problem.

If a problem is identified, that is the first step on the road to getting help.

Getting help: What and Where

"One of the problems of getting people into therapy is that the parents and kids worry they're going to get blamed," Stern said. "Therapy is not designed as punishment, or finger-pointing." It provides a way of self-analysis.

Many experts believe teen treatment should be done only on an inpatient basis, but the problem with that is the amount of schooling missed.

Inpatient treatment centers now have certified instructors on staff to keep the kids up to date with classwork. When they are released, many have a hard time catching up on assignments, and adjusting to the mainstream when they need to concentrate on staying clean.

Others say treatment should be decided on a case-by-case basis with inpatient treatment for those who cannot make it on an outpatient basis. Most treatment centers are paid for by insurance companies.

Family therapy, through a counselor, or self-help support groups, such as Families Anonymous or Al-Anon, is also needed.

One family's story

"When I was a freshman, I would take alcohol from the places I would babysit, and go home and drink. I would sit in my room and drink and cry."

Those are the words of a 16-year-old recovering alcoholic. She has been dry for a little more than eight months, and she and her mother discussed the plight of more families than most people would like to believe.

"I didn't want to deal with my problems," the girl said, "and they weren't that bad, either. I just thought they were. I thought the problems were because my parents wouldn't let me drink. But (after I started drinking) I lost total power to deal with them."

The daughter started drinking at 13, as a freshman in high school. When her parents discovered it, they confronted her and she stopped on her own, attending Alcoholics Anonymous. But only for three months. When she started drinking again, it was at a friend's house. And the friend's parents supplied the alcohol.

"A parent supplied the alcohol, but it was still her choice," the mother said. The drinking continued, and the mother said she and her husband didn't realize it was going on, although they were watching for signs of use and for changes in her behavior.

"I decided I was too young to have a problem," she said. But in the summer between her sophomore and junior year she was drinking every day, with older friends and her older boyfriend, who bought alcohol for her. She also said if you're cute enough and blonde enough certain store clerks will not only sell to you, but give you free items such as cigarette lighters, too.

It was during her junior year that the drinking really became noticeable, her mother said. The girl skipped school to drink, and when the school counselor found out, she suggested the family take the girl for an assessment at a substance abuse treatment center. They went to one of the nearest clinics in Toledo. The girl was honest to the counselor who did the assessment. "I told everything I did, and how much I did because I didn't think I had a problem. And compared with what my friends were doing, I didn't think I was doing that much."

But the counselor thought that she was doing too much, and suggested to her parents that they leave her there for treatment, which they did.

"We didn't think they would make her stay," her mother said. But they had to trust the counselors. So they left their daughter there.

When her parents left, the girl said she was angry. She didn't have a problem, she thought, so there was no reason for her to be there. The counselors were mean, and they wouldn't let her smoke cigarettes.

After an initial denial period, she got smart and started telling the counselors what they wanted to hear. "Yes, I have a problem," she told them, but she didn't really believe it. She just wanted out.

"But after lying to them I started to believe it and I realized I did need to be there. I did have a problem."

The parents weren't just sitting at home, waiting for their daughter to return. They, and their other child, a younger son were travelling to Toledo three times a week, on Sunday for a meeting then a visit with their daughter (whom they couldn't visit if they didn't attend the meeting), one day a week for family counseling, and one day a week for a parent support group.

"We learned a lot about her there," her mother said. And they learned a lot about themselves, too. They discovered they were not communicating their feelings well enough, and that was part of the problem. They also had to discuss the fact that the girl's grandfather was also an alcoholic. A fact which, while not hidden, was just not dealt with.

After she accepted her problem with alcohol, her recovery began, and after six weeks in inpatient treatment, she went home, just before Christmas.

Part of the conditions of treatment was the signing of a contract by the parents and the daughter. The girl had to give up some old drinking friends, certain music and clothes which triggered her desire to drink, and attend treatment and AA meetings. The parents must, among other things, continue their treatment through support groups like Al-Anon or Families Anonymous.

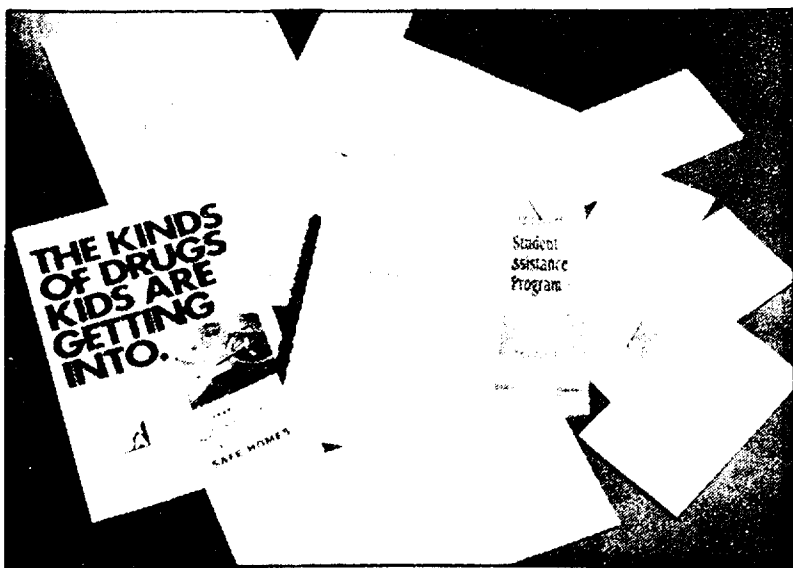

The parents also had to remove alcohol from their house. The mother says "It's interesting to see how unimportant it really is."

While the family is not ashamed of their plight, they realize some people will point at them, and place blame, so not all of their friends know about their daughter's drinking, and not all the relatives know either. "There's still a real stigma attached to it."

"The change in her has been tremendous," the mother says. "She was sulky and hard to get along with, now she's an honor roll student. She's honest now. I can trust her, and I believe her."

The girl discusses her drinking openly, and is a sponsor for an Alateen group. The mother works with area groups which deal with prevention and education.

"What you can do (by way of prevention) is what we did, but it still happened. I think we got to the problem earlier. You think it's the worst thing that can happen to a family, but in some ways, it's a good thing. It's brought us closer, we communicate more. We learned to speak, we're a healthier family." And their younger son, seeing what his sister went through, shuns drugs and alcohol.

Just a few of the growing number of informational materials designed to make the community aware of the hazards of substance use and abuse.

Budget increases will fund projects throughout the district

By Peter A. Salinas
Staff Writer

Along with the motion to approve some $113,000 in improvements for the Grosse Pointe school district's 1988-89 budget, the board of education approved future plans proposed by the Strategic Planning Committee in principle. This will allow administrators to plan future budgets to include the cost of some of the projects.

Earlier this month, the board of education approved $88,000 in expenditures for this budget year to make improvements in four educational areas including the Curriculum Coordinating Council (CCC), Strategic Planning, the Public Libraries and the school system's guidance and counseling programs.

The CCC has been in the process of reviewing the district's curriculum at all three levels on a five-year basis. None of the $88,000 to be spent this year will go toward CCC this current budget year.

What the board did was to accept the five-year curricular plan approved by the CCC. Each year the CCC will make recommendations to the board for improvements. This past year the CCC recommended the purchase of new reading texts at the elementary level at a cost of $100,000.

"By approving the CCC plan administrators will be able to allow the plan to drive the budget," said Edward Shine, principal at South.

Shine, who is heading up the Strategic Planning Committee, said though the board approved the four plans in principle it doesn't necessarily mean the board will have to fund future improvements.

"What we can do is factor the improvements into the budget process," he said. "If in the future there are problems in meeting the bottom line, then we can determine at that time what we can afford to do and what we can't."

Earlier this year, the board of education approved a budget which called for only $100,000 in budget improvements — the new text books.

Because revenues turned out to be about $200,000 more than anticipated, Whritner made the proposal to have these projects, which had been under study in some cases for two years, funded.

Whritner also suggested that two other proposals be funded. Various soccer groups had requested $25,000 from the board to develop Barnes Field for soccer. He also suggested that a district-wide secretarial study be performed, and left open the question of raises for administrators.

The secretarial study was not formally recommended at this time, and there was no discussion about administrator salary hikes.

The most expensive program improvement this school year will come in the guidance and counseling area. A guidance and counseling committee has been looking at the system for two years. This spring the group proposed a number of improvements, including hiring an elementary school counselor.

Though not a formal part of the Strategic Planning Committee, the guidance and counseling committee recommendations have been included in the strategic planning efforts.

An elementary counseling pilot study has been approved. This calls for hiring a new counselor at a cost of about $56,000 and $5,000 in other costs.

Shine points out that not all of the recommendations under the CCC, Guidance and Counseling or strategic planning will cost the district money.

"We have looked at all of our recommendations under strategic planning and determined that 58 percent of all the action plans will cost no additional money," Shine said.

The same is true for the guidance and counseling recommendations. Such plans as developing an evaluation model for the program will cost nothing.

What will cost money, under guidance and counseling for instance, will be counselors, if the pilot study proves successful. Over the five years, it is estimated that all the improvements for guidance and counseling would cost $794,000.

Over five years, the CCC recommendations would total about $1.3 million. Strategic planning projects would total $869,000.

Shine notes that with over 100 action plans recommended by the strategic planning committee, there will be some plans that will be a high priority, and others that would be cut first in the event of insufficient funds.

One of the plans suggested by the strategic planning committee that wouldn't cost much at all is the elementary school curriculum plan. This would include formulating a policy to restrict classroom pullouts, requiring teachers to identify curriculum content overlap, determine when subjects to be learned are introduced, enforced and mastered and improving staff development techniques.

"While these will require a significant amount of work," Shine said, "developing these plans will not require much money."

Over five years, the entire cost of improving the elementary school curriculum through this plan would be about $18,000.

Shine said the important aspect of the board's decision to approve the expenditures this year, is the agreement, in principle, to the various plans. With this approval from the board, the administrators and various volunteers can now plan future activities.

Mama mia, that's cornetti those kids are making!

Photos by Ronald J. Bernas

The Italian-American Cultural Center in Warren looked like the kitchen of Mama Leone last week with only one difference — the cooks were less than six years old.

But the food... ah, the food, it would have made Pavarotti feel at home.

Program director for the center is Farms resident Caroline Bonanni-Bullock, and she recently recruited Park resident Janet Bellanca for a two-week cooking and nutrition program.

The children tried their hands at "Cooking the Italian Way," and made minestrone, zuppa Inglesi and cornetti, or little horns from recipes adapted from Bellanca's book of the same name.

"We thought they wouldn't like the minestrone after they made it and saw all the vegetables in it, but they did," Bonanni-Bullock said. "They ate all their vegetables and liked them."

Zuppa Inglesi (English soup) is actually a rich dessert so named when a chef had to piece together a cake he dropped on his way to serving it. Cornetti are little horns of dough filled with ham and cheese. Both are adaptations of old-world recipes and are included in Bellanca's cookbook which she compiled for the center.

The center provides enrichment and educational experiences for children from the area, Bonanni-Bullock said. The classes offer education in space exploration, sports, art film and music appreciation.

"If you introduce them to things early enough, they take it with them their whole life," she added.

Last year after the music appreciation class, the children were asking to hear Rachmaninov — by name.

This food class had them going home and, if not cooking for the family, at least helping, and eating with newly-acquired manners Bellanca also taught.

Substance abuse series continues

On Tuesday evening, Aug. 2, Brighton Hospital's free education series on alcohol and other drug problems continues with the lecture "The Disease of Chemical Dependence: An Overview." The program will begin at 7 p.m. in the hospital's chapel and is open to the public. Reservations are not required.

Hardee Bethea, M.D., the featured speaker, is the hospital's chief medical lecturer and a frequent speaker on substance abuse at community and professional forums throughout the United States.

After Bethea's talk, Ishmael Rahmaan, a member of the hospital's Counseling Services Department, will answer questions from the audience on the treatment of alcohol and other drug abuse.

The Community Education Program is a free service of Brighton Hospital, which specializes in treating and preventing substance abuse. The program takes place on the first Tuesday evening of each month.

Brighton Hospital is located on Grand River, east of Kensington Road, just off exit 151 of the I-96 freeway. For additional information, contact the Community Relations Department on weekdays from 8:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. at 227-1211, ext. 276.

South enrollment begins

A special four-day summer enrollment period has been established for students new to the Grosse Pointe South High School attendance area, according to Russell P. Luttinen, assistant principal-student services.

A counselor will be on duty at South Wednesday, Aug. 10, Thursday, Aug. 11, Monday, Aug. 15, and Tuesday, Aug. 16, to assist new students with the selection of courses for the 1988-89 school year.

Enrollment hours are from 8 a.m. to noon and from 1 p.m. to 4 p.m. on each of these days with the exception of Aug. 16 when enrollments end at 3:30 p.m.

Students new to the area should call Nancy Nordstrom at 343-2151 to schedule an enrollment conference. Students and/or parents should bring a transcript of grades from the school previously attended or the last report card, if it is not possible to get a transcript in time. Health records are also needed at the time of enrollment.

March against casinos Saturday

The Michigan Clergy Coalition and others will sponsor an anti-casino gambling mass rally and march Saturday, July 30.

The march will start at Grand Circus Park at 8:30 a.m. under the Citizens for Detroit's Future banner and end at Kennedy square.

Miche Braden as the legendary Billie Holiday.

'Lady Day' at War Memorial

"Lady Day at Emerson's Bar and Grill," the Attic Theatre's current production of the Lanin-Robertson off-broadway hit, moves to the War Memorial terrace for one night only, Monday, Aug. 1.

This fifth offering of the Grosse Pointe Summer Music Festival season stars jazz vocalist Miche Braden as the legendary Billie Holiday. The play, essentially a one-woman production, begins at 8 p.m. War Memorial grounds open at 6:30 p.m. for picnicking.

Set in a seedy bar in Philadelphia in 1959 near the end of her career, "Lady Day" portrays the great jazz singer in declining health but still hanging on to her magic. Physically run down from her drug habit and frequent stays in jail, Holiday would die four months later.

Music for "Lady Day," which includes 14 of Holiday's songs, will be played by Harold McKinney as the pianist and Billie's companion, with Thomas "Beans" Bowles on sax, Ray McKinney on bass and Gayelynn McKinney on drums. Braden provides the musical direction along with her portrayal of the late singer.

Braden has portrayed roles in Attic productions, "Holiday Cabaret," "My Name is Alice," and "The 1940's Radio Hour." She also served as musical director for "Ma Rainey's Black Bottom." Other theatrical work includes an appearance in the Detroit Repertory Theatre's "The Colored Museum."

Braden's musical credentials span from the Michigan Opera Theatre to the Montreaux-Detroit Jazz Festival. She is an established performer in local clubs and is leader of an all-woman band, "Straight Ahead."

In "Lady Day," Braden is performing with some noted jazz musicians. Harold McKinney, who has the only other speaking role in the play, recently returned from Los Angeles where he won the National Award in the Hennessy Jazz Search Competition. McKinney was the only soloist (piano) among an initial competition of 500 groups and as part of his prize, was the opening act at the Hollywood Bowl for the sixth annual Playboy Jazz Festival.

"Lady Day" contains strong language and is recommended for mature audiences. The production is directed by Lavinia Moyer, artistic director and co-founder of the Attic Theatre.

Grosse Pointe Summer Music Festival tickets are $10, reserved; $6.50, lawn admission. Concert-goers may purchase picnic suppers, $7 each, or bring their own. If purchasing suppers, reservations must be received by Friday, July 29, 5 p.m. The evening's menu is fried chicken, potato salad, fresh fruit, rolls and butter, pecan pie and beverage.

The performance will be held rain or shine. If held indoors due to inclement weather, reserved seat ticket holders will be seated first. Seating is not guaranteed for lawn ticket holders.

For additional information, call 881-7511, Monday-Saturday, 9 a.m.-9 p.m. MC/VISA are accepted for ticket purchases, Monday-Friday, 9 a.m.-5 p.m. Phone orders accepted for purchases of $20 or more (add 50 cents handling).

Mayors support jail proposal

Wayne County's request for a one-mill increase for jails got some local support last week from the mayors.

The mayors of Grosse Pointe and Harper Woods, who meet informally every month or so, agreed to support the proposal at their last meeting.

"We agreed that the jail situation is so bad and it's something that's needed very badly. Consequently, we all support this request," said Lorenzo Browning, mayor of Grosse Pointe.

At the meeting were James Haley of Harper Woods, Joseph Fromm of Grosse Pointe Farms, George Freeman of Grosse Pointe Woods and Palmer Heenan of Grosse Pointe Park.

The group has been meeting informally for about one and one-half years, Browning said. "We don't have a formal agenda. We just talk about each other's problems."

Park losing fewer trees to disease

Grosse Pointe Park's elm tree losses have dropped dramatically since 1985, according to Al Mazur of the Beautification Commission.

He said that trees that are under stress due to drought are more apt to contract the disease.

Mazur has been active in programs to preserve elm trees since 1980. He pointed out that the Park's losses to Dutch elm disease have dropped significantly since 1986, after hiring Dr. Gerald Lanier of the State University of New York as a consultant for elm preservation.

Mazur said the Park lost 157

elm trees in 1985. In 1986: 110 trees. In 1987: 60 trees. Projected losses for 1988: between 30 and 40 trees.

Not only has the actual number of elm losses dropped, he said, but percentages are dropping as well. "We're approaching a 1 to 2 percent loss," he said, "which is natural."

Mazur said Lanier's program is based on an annual walking inspection of every public and private elm tree in the Park, followed by prompt pruning of infected areas of trees and injection of a fungicide, arbotect.

Mazur added that during the current drought conditions, large elms need to be watered. One method is by soaking the ground that extends to the outer drip-line area of the tree canopies.

"The roots that draw water are the outlying roots," he said.

A new method of watering, he said, is called the deep root watering system, and materials may be purchased at garden supply stores. Deep root watering works best, he said, if the wand is inserted approximately eight to 12 inches below the ground surface, since elm trees generally have shallow root systems.

NOTICE OF PROPOSED AMENDMENT TO ZONING ORDINANCE

City of Grosse Pointe Farms, Michigan

WAYNE COUNTY, MICHIGAN AMENDMENT TO ZONING ORDINANCE ORDINANCE NO. 293

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN that a Public Hearing will be held in City Hall, 90 Kerby Road, Grosse Pointe Farms, MI (885-6600) on Monday, August 15, 1988 at 7:30 p.m. for the purpose of hearing taxpayers, residents or citizens of the City of Grosse Pointe Farms on the following proposed Amendment to the Zoning Ordinance.

AN ORDINANCE TO AMEND SECTIONS 1502, 1504, 1506 AND 1512 OF THE ZONING ORDINANCE, CODE NO. 12-03.

THE CITY OF GROSSE POINTE FARMS ORDAINS:

SECTION 1. The Zoning Ordinance, Code No. 12-03, enacted as Ordinance No. 192 on July 16, 1973, is hereby amended as follows:

1. Section 1502, Paragraph 10 is hereby amended by deleting said Paragraph 10 in its entirety and inserting the following in substitution thereof:

"10. Change of Nonconforming Structure.

A nonconforming building may be structurally altered or extended without the approval of the Board of Zoning Appeals only under the following conditions:

- The use of said building is permitted in the district in which it is located.
- Any accessory building located on the lot conforms to all requirements of this ordinance and the building code.
- The total area occupied by the building after the proposed erection, conversion, or structural alteration and the area occupied by all other buildings on the lot does not exceed the maximum percentage of lot coverage permitted by Article XIII.
- Except with respect to nonconforming structures existing in an R-1-AAA Residential District as of August 17, 1987, no part of the existing nonconforming building encroaches or projects into more than one required open space, and such projection conforms with one of the following:
 - The existing nonconforming building does not encroach upon more than twenty-five percent (25%) of the required side yard.
 - The existing nonconforming building does not encroach upon more than ten percent (10%) of the required front yard or more than twenty percent (20%) of the required rear yard.
- Except with respect to nonconforming structures existing in an R-1-AAA Residential District as of August 17, 1987, the proposed erection, conversion, or structural alteration will not extend over that portion of an existing nonconformity which projects into a required yard and will conform to all other ordinance provisions.
- With respect to nonconforming structures existing in an R-1-AAA Residential District as of August 17, 1987, no part of the existing nonconforming building or the proposed erection, conversion of structural alteration encroaches or will encroach or projects or will project into any required open space for a structure located in an R-1-AA Residential District; and the proposed erection, conversion or substantial alteration will conform to all other ordinance provisions.

If the preceding conditions are not met, the building may not be enlarged or altered unless a variance is granted."

2. Section 1504, Paragraph 9 is hereby amended to change the required parking for hospitals from "two (2) parking spaces for each one (1) bed" to "two and two-tenths (2.2) parking spaces for each one (1) bed."

3. Section 1506, Paragraph 4 is hereby amended by deleting said Paragraph 4 in its entirety and inserting the following in substitution thereof:

"4. Motor vehicles or trailers of any type shall not be parked in any nonresidential district in the City of Grosse Pointe Farms for a period in excess of 48 hours unless parking in a fully enclosed building."

4. Section 1512 is hereby amended by deleting said Section 1512 in its entirety and inserting the following in substitution thereof:

SECTION 1512. ENCLOSURE OF EXTERIOR SERVICE AREAS: In all zoned districts, except one family residential, rubbish that is not stored within a structure shall be stored in an exterior service area in approved containers as specified in Code No. 8-03. Such exterior service area shall be enclosed by a durable screening wall or fence, approved by the Director of Public Service, of not less than four feet nor more than six feet in height so designed and constructed to enclose the exterior service area from public view.

If rubbish is stored in refuse bins, such refuse bins shall be fitted with lids that shall be kept completely closed and latched at all times, except for times of filling and collection, so as to prevent the contents thereof from being dispersed by winds or otherwise. Refuse bins shall be kept in a rubbish collection and service area located and enclosed or screened from public view by an obscuring structural appurtenance as approved by the Director of Public Service, which obscuring structural appurtenance shall, at a minimum, consist of a wall or fence not less than the greater of five (5) feet in height or one (1) foot higher than the height of the refuse bins placed therein and have posts or bumpers installed at the opening and rear of the storage area to prevent damage to the screening walls. The inside dimensions of the enclosure shall be such as will permit adequate access for refuse collection vehicles and the enclosure shall be situated on a reinforced concrete pad at least six (6) inches thick, which pad shall extend at least six (6) feet beyond the opening of the enclosure to support the weight of refuse collection vehicles during collection operations.

Such refuse bins and exterior service areas shall at all times be maintained in good repair and be structurally sound, and shall be kept free of debris and neat and clean in appearance. The name, address and telephone number of the owner of each refuse bin shall be clearly marked on such refuse bin.

"The proposed structure, location and materials shall be acceptable to the Director of Public Service as a prerequisite to the issuance of any building permit, and the Director of Public Service shall not issue a certificate of occupancy unless the provisions of this Section 1512 have been fully complied with.

"Within one year of the effective date of this Ordinance, any outside storage of rubbish shall be stored in compliance with the requirements of this Section 1512."

SECTION 2. Except as hereby amended, Ordinance No. 192, as heretofore amended, shall remain in full force and effect.

SECTION 3. This Ordinance shall take effect twenty (20) days after its enactment, or upon its publication, whichever is later.

The Runaway Skateboard

One day Joey was skateboarding. Then his skateboard went down the hill! He hopped over the fence. Then a doberman pinscher jumped at him. But he was on a leash.

He followed the skateboard into a boarding house. Then the doberman and other dogs were following him. He and the dogs ran through a shopping center. The bully store clerk was after him. So Joey threw a package of Huggies at him and fell back just as a shopping cart hit him.

They were out of the shopping center now. The skateboard went through the jail. Joey and the dogs saw some criminals. The storekeeper was back but the dogs jumped on him. Then Joey finally caught the skateboard.

When Joey got home, Mother said, "What took you so long? It's six o'clock!"

"It's a long story," said Joey.

Up, Up, Up the Magic Staircase

One sunny phenomenal gorgeous Saturday morning (in Boston), Joe, Nancy, myself and Marc went to M.I.T. (his college and means Massachusetts Institute of Technology).

When we went to one of his classrooms, we saw extraordinary things, such as dissected frogs on the back table and the marsupial for a pet was very exciting. Just then Professor Mims came in (I had recognized him by his handsome short brown hair) and started to talk to Marc (he didn't even recognize us). But anyway Joe put his hand like a half-oval and whispered to me, "See that door?"

"Yeah," I replied in a whisper. "Well, maybe we can sneak in there and Professor Mims and Marc won't even notice we're here," Joe whispered.

"But what if we get in trouble?" I whispered.

"Oh, don't worry."

"Well, let's first tell Nancy," I whispered again.

After we told Nancy about the plan, she agreed. (Eventually I agreed too without even thinking about it.) I started to open the door. We were all cautioned of anything that popped out. The door had a creaky sound (I imagined I was about to step in a haunted house with no floor). We all went in at the same time. We sat in an oval-shaped car. The door closed behind us. There was no turning back!

Professor Mims didn't say a thing. Neither did Marc (I guess they were too busy talking.) The car brought us to a staircase and stopped. We got off since it didn't go anywhere else. We started up the staircase and saw Pearl Harbor being attacked. Next we saw World War I (I recognized it because the Americans were celebrating their fighting win). We all suggested we were traveling in time.

Meanwhile Professor Mims and Marc had found that were were missing. They were yelling for us. "Nancy, Nancy, Nancy."

Nancy." They yelled, but we couldn't hear because as the name echoed, it got lower too. After two hours of watching myself go back in time, we got hungry, so we all went downstairs. But when we got to the door, we couldn't open it. So we yelled, "Marc."

Finally Marc opened the door and we were so overjoyed. After we got out of the door, Marc asked what happened and we told him and then he drove us home. When we got home we told mom and the family what happened. That was the most extraordinary time of my life.

NOTICE OF PUBLIC HEARING ON INCREASING PROPERTY TAXES

PLEASE TAKE NOTICE pursuant to Act 5, Public Acts of Michigan 1982, that on Monday, August 15, 1988, at 8:00 o'clock p.m. at a regular session, the Board of Education of The Grosse Pointe Public School System will hold a public hearing at the Administration Building, 389 St. Clair Avenue, Grosse Pointe, Michigan 48230 (313) 343-2010 on the levy of a proposed millage rate of 31.3575 for operating purposes.

The present voted millage of the school district of 34.7000 mills for the General and Library Funds has been reduced by the "Headlee Amendment" to 31.3575. The Board of Education has complete authority to establish that 31.3575 mills be levied in 1988 for the General and Library Funds from the present authorized millage rate.

The maximum additional proposed millage rate for the General and Library Funds would increase revenues for operating purposes from ad valorem property tax levies in 1988 otherwise permitted by Act 5, Public Acts of Michigan in 1988 in amount of $3,207,834 or an increase of 8.3% (The increase will be $3,264,274, or 8.2% for General, Library and Debt Funds).

The figure for increase in revenue for operating purposes is based on the latest estimate of state equalized valuation of property located within the school district.

The purpose of this hearing is to receive testimony and discuss the millage levy. Not less than seven (7) days following the public hearing, the Board of Education may approve any portion of the proposed millage rate.

This notice is given by order of the Board of Education.

Summer days at Academy

Indians, dinosaurs and puppets were the highlights of The Grosse Pointe Academy Summer day camps for over 75 school age children from the Grosse Pointe and surrounding communities.

Children between the ages of 3 and 5 explored the life of American Indians, June 13 through 17. The camp began with the children building a paper and wood teepee. Dressed in hand-made headresses, paper loin cloths and necklaces, participants learned Indian sign language, an Indian dance, how to make clay pottery and heard many Indian tales.

"The Academy day camps are each designed around a theme to make learning fun," said Anne Carson, Grosse Pointe Academy Early School teacher and camp director.

Dinosaurs then "invaded" the Academy grounds, June 20 through 27. "In the dinosaur section, the children examined each dinosaur, including how long they grow, how much they weighed, what they are... all the questions a young mind wants to know," Carson added. Children also made papier-mache dinosaurs, had a fossil dig and drew a 20-foot Tyrannosaurus Rex.

Puppets rounded out the Academy day camp, June 27 through July 1. Children created hand-puppets, each puppet depicting one storybook character, such as The Three Little Pigs and Little Red Riding Hood. On their last day the children gave a special puppet performance.

Village of Grosse Pointe Shores

NOTICE OF PROPOSED CHARTER AMENDMENTS

The Village of Grosse Pointe Shores Village Council, at its regularly scheduled meeting on Tuesday, July 19, 1988, passed the following resolution by unanimous vote:

RESOLVED:

- (1) That a ballot proposal amending certain sections of Chapters III, V, VI, IX of the Charter of the Village of Grosse Pointe Shores be submitted to the electorate at the general election to be held on Tuesday, November 8, 1988, said amendments to be as follows:

I. Chapter III, Part B, Sections 2, 4 and 6 (Elections - Nominating Petitions)

2. Nominations by Petitions.

Candidates for any elective office to be voted for at any municipal election under the provisions of this chapter, shall be nominated by petition in the manner hereinafter prescribed and the names of such candidates for any such office and no others shall be printed on the election ballot, to be voted for at the next municipal election. The names of all candidates for the respective offices, upon whose behalf a petition shall have been filed in the office of the Village Clerk, at least twenty-eight days before the date of said election, signed by not less than fifteen of the qualified electors of said village, shall be printed on the ballot.

4. Petition to be Filed: Requirements.

All nominating petitions shall be filed with the village clerk on or before four o'clock p.m. on the twenty-eighth day prior to any general or special election at which any officer of the village is to be elected. No person shall be nominated to any office in the village unless the petition in his behalf for such office has been signed by not less than fifteen qualified electors of the village.

6. Nominee to File Acceptance.

Any nominee willing to become a candidate for any elective office shall on or before four p.m. of the twenty-fifth day prior to such election, file with the clerk a written acceptance of such nomination in substantially the following form:

I hereby accept the nomination for the office of _____ in the Village of Grosse Pointe Shores.

Signature: _____

II. Chapter V, Sections 2, 3, 5 and new Section 16 (Enactment of Ordinances)

2. Enacting Clause.

The enacting clause of all ordinances shall be: "The Village of Grosse Pointe Shores ordains." All ordinances, except as otherwise provided, shall require for their passage the concurrence of a majority of the council elect.

3. When Effective.

An ordinance shall become effective upon the publication of the ordinance or a synopsis of the ordinance, as specified in this chapter, except that if the ordinance provides for a later effective date the ordinance shall become effective at such later date.

5. Notice of Ordinances.

Within 15 days after the passage of an ordinance, the ordinance or a synopsis of the ordinance shall be published in a newspaper circulated in the village. Immediately after such publication, the Clerk shall enter in the record of ordinances in the blank space to be provided for such purpose under the record of the ordinance, a certificate under his hand, stating the date and place of such publication. Such certificate shall be prima facie evidence of the due publication of the ordinance or the synopsis.

16. Codification of Ordinances (New Section).

The village shall have the power to codify, recodify and continue in code the village's municipal ordinances, in whole or in part, without the necessity of publishing the entire code in full. The ordinance adopting the code and ordinances repealing, amending, continuing or adding to the code shall be published as required by law provided that notification states where a copy of the entire code can be reviewed and obtained. The ordinance adopting the code may amend, repeal, revise or rearrange the ordinances or parts of ordinances by references to the title only.

III. Chapter V, Section 7 (Punishment for Ordinance Violations)

7. Punishment for Violations.

The village shall have authority to provide punishment for violation of an ordinance of the village. Such punishment shall be provided in the ordinance. Such punishment shall be by fine of not more than $500.00, or 90 days imprisonment, or both, in the discretion of the court, together with the costs of prosecution. Such imprisonment may be in the village prison, if any, in the jail of Wayne or Macomb County, or in any other penal institution in the State of Michigan authorized by law to receive prisoners from the village.

IV. Chapter V, Sections 8-11; Chapter VI, Part D, Section 18 (Ordinance enforcement and Court procedures)

Chapter V.

8. Prosecutions, Jurisdiction.

Prosecutions for violation of the village ordinance shall be commenced within two years after the commission of the offense, and shall be brought in the district court or municipal court in the judicial district in which the village is located. That court may hear, try and determine all cases and suits arising under the ordinances of the village, may inflict punishment for violations thereof as provided in the ordinances, and may hear, try and determine such other matters as permitted by state law.

9. Prosecutions; Procedure.

Whenever a penalty shall be incurred for the violation of any ordinance, and no provision is made for the imprisonment of the offender upon conviction of the violation, any penalty may be recovered in a civil action. And when a corporation shall incur a penalty for the violation of an ordinance, the corporation shall be sued in a civil action. Prosecutions for violations of the ordinance of the village may, in all cases except against corporations, be commenced by warrant for the arrest of the offender. Such warrant shall be in the name of the people of the State of Michigan, and shall set forth the substance of the offense complained of, and be substantially in the form and be issued upon complaint made, as provided by law in misdemeanor cases. And the proceedings relating to the arrest and custody of the accused during the pendency of the suit, the pleadings and all provisions upon the trial of the cause, the right to and procedures governing a jury trial, and in procuring the attendance and testimony of witnesses, and in the rendition of judgements and the execution thereof, shall, except as otherwise provided in this charter, be governed by and conform as nearly as may be, to the provisions of law regulating proceedings in misdemeanor cases.

10. Appeal.

Any person convicted of a violation of any ordinance of the village in a suit commenced under the provisions of this chapter may appeal the judgement to the Circuit Court for the County of Wayne, in which the greater portion of the village is located, and the time for the appeal, the proceedings for the appeal, the bond for security on appeal, and the proceedings and disposition of the cause in the Circuit Court, shall be the same as in misdemeanor cases on appeal from the court that tried the ordinance violation. In suits to which the village may be a party, brought to recover any penalty for such violation, either party may appeal from the judgment to said Circuit Court, and the proceedings and the bond or security shall be the same as in appeals in civil actions before the court which tried the ordinance violation, except that the village shall not be required to give any bond or security in connection with such appeal.

11. Execution of Process.

All process issued in any prosecution or proceeding for the violation of any ordinance of the village shall be executed by a police officer of the village, or by any other person and in any manner authorized by law to serve process issued by a district or municipal court.

Chapter VI, Part D.

18. Suit to Collect.

At any time after a special assessment has become payable, the same may be collected in a civil action, in the name of the village, against the person assessed, in any court having jurisdiction of the amount. The special assessment roll and a certified copy of the order or resolution confirming the same shall be prima facie evidence of the regularity of all the proceedings in making the assessment, and of the right of the village to recover judgment therefor.

V. Chapter IX, Part A, Section 1-3 (Contracts)

1. When Specifications and Bids Required.

No contract shall be entered into by the village for the making of any public improvement or for the purchase of any materials, tools, apparatus or any other thing or things, the consideration or cost of which shall exceed Ten Thousand Dollars ($10,000), until specifications shall be prepared therefore, and published advertisement made for sealed bids thereon; Provided, however, that in the event of emergency, the Village Superintendent, with the written consent of the President, may enter into such contracts costing in excess of Ten Thousand Dollars ($10,000), without necessity of specifications or sealed bids. The village shall have the right to reject any or all sealed bids received pursuant to this section.

2. Public Work.

Subject to the provisions of this charter, the village may through its departments, officers and employees perform public work of all kinds or it may let any of such work by contract; Provided, however, that public work provided by officers or employees of the village acting outside of their regular duties and who will receive compensation additional to that which they receive in performance of their regular duties shall be contracted for in accordance with Section 1 of Part A of this Chapter.

3. Plans and Drawings Submitted.

No public improvement costing more than Ten Thousand Dollars ($10,000) shall be contracted or commenced until drawings, profiles and estimates for the same shall have been submitted to the council, and approved by it; provided, however, that drawings, profiles and estimates for public improvements costing $10,000 or less shall be provided upon the request of the Village Superintendent. Such drawings, profiles and estimates, or copies thereof, shall thereafter remain on file in the office of the Village Clerk for public inspection.

- (2) That this matter be tabled for thirty (30) days until the next regularly scheduled meeting of the Village Council at which time this proposal will be voted upon for final approval;

- (3) That a copy of this resolution be published as required by law; and

- (4) That approval of this Charter amendment be obtained from the Governor's Office as required by law.

A 'souper' evening

More than 2,000 people attended the annual Souper Summer Celebration to benefit the Capuchin Soup Kitchen, held at Thomas' Crystal Gardens on July 16. They enjoyed music by the Sun Messengers, a mariachi ensemble and The Smiling Faces, plus food and beverages . . . all for a good cause. Party-goers helped raise approximately $115,000, the most ever. At right, John Ahee and Peter Ahee enjoy the evening with Capuchin Community Center director The Rev. Lloyd Thiel. DNR seeks purple martin info Michigan wildlife biologists are looking for more volunteers to help them complete a five-year study of purple martins around the state.

Through the Department of Natural Resources (DNR) Nongame Wildlife Fund, the Purple Martin Project is being conducted under contract with DNR biologist Dick Wolinski of Dexter. About 250 residents who have active martin colonies in their areas have reported their observations to Wolinski during the project, now in its third year. "We have had a tremendous response from our cooperators," Wolinski said, "but information from only those with active colonies doesn't tell the whole story. We need to hear from people who have martin houses and no martins."

In addition to gathering information on arrival and departure dates of the birds and occupancy rates for each colony, Wolinski is trying to learn more about what attracts martins to specific colony sites.

"What we hope to find out is what is different about those sites that have martin populations, those that have never had, and those that have had them and lost them over a period of years," he said.

People willing to help can provide the information by filling out a questionnaire provided by the Nongame Wildlife Fund.

"It shouldn't take more than 20 minutes to fill out the card," said Wolinski. "This information should allow us to characterize colony sites so that we can begin to make specific recommendations to individuals interested in attracting this very beneficial species to their yards. We hope to turn around the apparent decline in purple martin numbers in Michigan."

Those wishing to help in the project should write to: Purple Martin Project, c/o Richard Wolinski, 2450 Baker Road, Dexter, Mich. 48130.

The DNR Wildlife Division has information available on purple martins and construction plans for martin houses. They can be obtained by sending a stamped, self-addressed legal size envelope to: DNR Nongame Wildlife Fund, Box 30028, Lansing, Mich. 48909.

Property rezoned Drugs

The Park city council, on Monday night, approved the rezoning of the southeast corner of Jefferson and Nottingham from B-1 (local business) to OS-1 (office service.)

The property was the former location of a Gulf gas station.

The parcel is part of a development that will be known as The Pointes Office Centre. Developers are David G. Miles, Inc. and Beachum & Roeser Development Corp.

The Park planning commission held a public hearing and recommended the zoning change.

Councilman Vern Ausherman and Mayor Palmer Heenan voted against the move.

Construction is expected to begin in late August or early September, according to David G. Miles, president of David G. Miles, Inc.

Lyon said users can recover without the family receiving therapy, but it's much harder. And inasmuch as substance abuse is a family disease, it is best for the family to receive some sort of therapy.

FLEC will refer people of all ages to agencies that can help. (See side story.)

"This is a treatable disease. There is recovery," Lyon stresses.

about the dangers involved. "The school's efforts are tremendous," Koerber said. "We need total community involvement. Parents need to set up supervised parties. Nobody likes supervision or chaperones, so we need to start back in the middle schools and elementary schools with parental chaperones. We need a return to family values."

Lynton says that it will take a while for the slew of information to sink in, but ultimately it is hoped that "MADD would like to go out of business."

Andrews said that if education is continued and consistently updated, it will be incorporated into the fabric of life, "Then things will change."

Answering service keeps Grosse Pointers on the line since '48

By Margie Reins Smith
Staff Writer

Mary Jo Moore, manager of the Grosse Pointe office of Answering Service Inc., said the 60-year old company has had its share of tragedy, humor, drama, disasters, emergencies — and routine.

"It's a fascinating business," she said. "Every call is completely different from the one before.

"We've worked with police on threats; we answer federal lines; we've prevented suicides by keeping people on the line until a professional gets on the line; one of our women helped deliver a baby over the phone."

Answering Service Inc. was founded in 1928 by John F. Engerson with one telephone and one operator. Engerson's grandson, James Robinson, sales manager, and third generation partner-owner of the company, said it was the first answering service in Michigan. It's now the largest answering service in Michigan, he said, with 13 offices and more than 200 employees. Nine of the offices offer 24-hour service.

In addition to the interesting and unusual, Answering Service Inc. handles hundreds of calls every day for businesses, doctors, manufacturer's representatives, attorneys, counseling centers, schools, political candidates, interior decorators, veterinarians, CPAs, schools, funeral homes, and just plain, regular private people.

Robinson said his answering service can serve clients in several ways:

- The phone rings simultaneously in the client's office and in Answering Service Inc.'s office; secretaries are instructed either to answer immediately, or to answer on a designated ring. It depends on the client's wishes.
- The phone rings in the answering service's office only. Secretaries take messages and relay them to the client when he wants them.
- Calls are forwarded to another phone number.
- Phone numbers are rented to clients. Secretaries answer the personalized number and take orders or messages.
- Answering Service Inc. also provides beeper service, mail service and wake-up calls for clients.

Offices are in Birmingham, Southfield, Lincoln Park, Livonia, Mount Clemens, Pontiac, Troy, Roseville, Royal Oak and Detroit — as well as the Grosse Pointe office at 17016 Mack Avenue, near Cadieux. The Grosse Pointe office opened in 1948, across the street, but moved to its present location in 1970.

During the day, six telephone answering service secretaries sit in front of switchboards fielding incoming calls for 500-plus clients at the Grosse Pointe branch.

"During the month of June," Moore said, "this office had 42,000 messages come in. We had 9,990 outgoing calls and 886 patched calls." Patched calls connect two callers.

During the 3 p.m. to 11 p.m. shift, there's fewer secretaries. And from 11 p.m. until 7 a.m., one secretary handles the reduced number of calls.

"We've handled heart attacks and suicides," Robinson said. "In emergency situations, our secretaries keep the people on the line until we get in touch with the proper person," he said.

Personal answering machines with recorded messages — a relatively new phenomenon — has cut into their service somewhat,

Robinson said, "but answering machines have their own niche." He said that his clients expect more than an inanimate machine. "Some businesses need a live voice for most calls. Doctors may want to use a referral recording, with other numbers to call — one for appointments — one for emergencies — another to get in touch with the doctor. That's where we come in."

Robinson said his grandfather started the company in 1928 with some basic business principles in mind. Answering Service Inc., he said, has always provided full benefit packages for its employees — which now number more than 200. "We have a choice of three health plans, a dental plan, life insurance, profit sharing and a pension plan based on stock participation," he said. "As a result, our average employee stays with us more than five years." Employees are not temporary.

Moore said the employees are working for a family business. It's not a corporation. Employees have a better attitude.

Moore said that most of the company's secretaries are women. "Grandmothers. Mothers. College students. A lot of empty-nesters. We do our own training," she said. "Telephone answering service secretaries are highly skilled. They can't be hyperactive or easily upset."

Robinson said his company provides good service. "We're higher priced than most. Others offer discounts and customers get that kind of service."

He said the secretaries get to know the customers.

"Our oldest customer has been with us for 25 years," Moore said. "We've seen client's children born, graduated, become doctors like their dads, and the grandchildren born."

"We're human beings here and we can make mistakes," she said. "One time we answered a doctor's line. A woman was on the line because her husband was ill. She insisted on talking to the doctor. Right away. The secretary finally gave the doctor's number."

"She called back a few minutes later and said, 'My husband is sick. Not dead,'" Moore said. "We had given her the phone number of a funeral home by mistake. She laughed about it."

Another time, Moore said, "A doctor lost his beeper. He called us and asked us to keep him so he could find it. It was in the hospital under a pile of towels."

Antonio's

A restaurant like the old country

By Pat Paholsky
Editor

Antonio Scerri turned 28 Sunday and he said the years are going by too fast. But not so fast that he hasn't had time to develop a strong philosophy about food and about life.

Scerri, who owns Antonio's Restaurant along with his partner, Gordon Horton, dreams big but thinks small. He has no plans to expand his 13-table restaurant at 20311 Mack Ave.

"Here you can control everything," he said. "You can control the food, the service, get to know the customers."

"Our philosophy is if you expand, food and service go down. I know it from experience."

And they don't plan to expand their hours to include lunch. They tried it and it didn't leave them enough time to spend with their families, which is a top priority for now, Scerri said. Later, when the children are grown, he says, perhaps...

His reverence for the family is equal to his reverence for the "old country," which he refers to often in conversation, and his roots.

He was born on the island of Malta to a Maltese father and Italian mother. He met his future wife on Malta when she was 10 and he was 12. Her family emigrated to the United States soon after and they were married in 1982 when he had come for a visit.

Scerri, who studied engineering in Malta, came here in 1979. The economy was bad and, unable to find a job, he began working at a restaurant downriver making pizza and washing dishes.

Scerri says, "It triggered me to work harder and do something. It's like a tree that starts from a seed and then it grows."

He applied at various restaurants and received a call from the noted Detroit chef, Douglas Grzech, known as Duglass. Scerri said he was stunned when Duglass greeted him in Maltese. Scerri worked for him for a year and said Duglass helped him immensely.

It was while he was working at an Italian restaurant on the west side that he met Horton. Scerri, who was married and had a son, said he was at a point where he was extremely homesick and decided "to go for it." He approached Horton with his ideas to buy a restaurant and the two formed a partnership.

They bought the former Le

Cafe Francais.

"I remember when I saw this restaurant, I fell in love with it," Scerri said. "It was so European, so like back home."

Other than painting and putting up photos and posters of Italy and Malta, they left the three-room intimate restaurant as is. The center room has a large skylight that gives the illusion of dining outdoors in a courtyard.

Scerri said he wants to dispel a misconception: "A lot of people think we're formal. My message is I want to be a restaurant like the old country, where people, if they feel like coming in a business suit or if they come from the boat, they come in shorts or whatever. What I like is that they come and enjoy the food."

The restaurant is open Tuesday through Saturday from 5 p.m. to 9:30 p.m. and on Sunday from 5 to 8 p.m. It's closed Monday. Reservations are necessary on the weekend. MasterCard, Visa and American Express are accepted.

There are daily specials and the base sauce is tomato, a marinara prepared daily by Horton with Sicilian tomatoes. The menu is Italian with English explanations.

Appetizers range from $3 to $6.75. There are six pasta dishes, including Fettucine Alfredo for $8.95 and cannelloni for $6.95. There are four each fish, veal and chicken offerings. Entrees range from $8.95 to $11.95. There are several desserts and the restaurant serves beer and wine.

Horton prepares most of the food and Scerri spends most of his time in the dining room, talking to customers and making suggestions.

Despite their different backgrounds, the two have much in common. They are both in their 20s and both of their wives are registered nurses. Horton has two daughters, 5 and 2, and Scerri has two sons, 5 and 2. Scerri lives in Harper Woods and Horton lives in St. Clair Shores.

The restaurant, which opened in September 1986, was named one of the best Italian restaurants in the area by Detroit Monthly in December 1986. It has since received favorable reviews from the dailies. The number is 884-0253.

Information about cellular telephones

The Michigan Consumers Council has published a new tip-sheet of interest to consumers on the road or on the water. "Cellular Telephones" discusses what consumers should know before purchasing a mobile telephone or other cellular communications device.

Michigan Consumers Council Director Kent S. Wilcox, in announcing the debut of the tip-sheet, noted that "cellular telephones are the CB (citizens band) radios of today. They've become an important tool for businesses while providing a service to stranded motorists and boaters who need to call for assistance. We hope this new tip-sheet will help Michigan consumers make a more informed decision in purchasing these devices."

Cellular sets have become popular in the past decade due to their convenience. The devices eliminate the need for drivers and boaters to find a public telephone, by allowing the consumer to send and receive messages while traveling.

Among the features of today's cellular telephones that are best-liked by consumers are hands-free operation, back-lit dialing for nighttime calls, and digital readouts of dialed numbers before the calls are completed.

The tip-sheet also discusses what bothers consumers most about cellular telephones. The cost of service and a lack of cellular service availability in some areas are but two of the common complaints encountered by cellular telephone owners.

Free copies of "Cellular Telephones" are available from the Michigan Consumers Council, 414 Hollister Building, 106 W. Allegan Street, Lansing, MI 48933; telephone (517) 373-0947.

The Michigan Consumers Council is a state legislative agency which provides consumer information, referral, and counseling services, and acts as an advocate on consumer issues before the Michigan legislature.

Business Notes

Communications Creative, a full service advertising and communications company, has officially opened its doors in a newly renovated building located at 15324 Mack Ave. in the Park. Founder and head of the company Martin X. Petz said that the mission of the company is "bringing minds together" and it was formed to fill a need in the market place for a flexible group capable of helping clients communicate succinctly and cost effectively. Communications Creative offers print, film/video and sound production, from concept to finish.

Grosse Pointe Park resident Don Rentz has opened the Don Rentz General Agency at 24410 Harper Ave., in St. Clair Shores. Rentz, formerly of AAA's 10 Mile-Kelly branch, will sell auto, home, boat and life insurance products exclusively as well as AAA memberships and auto leasing. Office hours are 9 a.m. to 6 p.m. weekdays. The telephone number is 774-1250.

Cottage Hospital of Grosse Pointe recently was presented with the Apollo Award of Excellence for "The Cottager" magazine. The community publication was honored in the division of hospitals with fewer than 300 beds by the Michigan Hospital Public Relations Association. Accepting the award was Public Relations Manager Janette E. Duster. The Apollo Awards competition recognizes extraordinary achievement in the profession of hospital public relations and communications throughout the state.

A true teacher

Laid-off Pointe instructor will spend a year learning, teaching

By Peggy O'Connor Andrzejczyk
Assistant Editor/Feature Editor

Above all, Annmarie Monahan is a teacher. That much is obvious when she says that her first reaction to her layoff this spring from the Grosse Pointe school system was to try to find something positive about the experience.

The next was to find something to do with her life.

"There were rumors of layoffs in March, so in May, I started to look into teaching programs in Central America. That was something I'd always wanted to do. I want to get married and have children, so now is the best time to do something like this.

"After all, at age 40 with two kids I can't just pick up and go, can I?" Monahan said, grinning.

So she's doing that now, one year after obtaining a master's degree in teaching from Wayne State University and after a year of teaching English at Grosse Pointe North High School.

Through her membership in a Christian movement called Witness for Peace and Justice, Monahan made the acquaintance of Sister Ellen Cavanaugh. Sister Cavanaugh helped Monahan track down a volunteer ministry which most closely met her needs. Most are for three or four years, Monahan said, and she was looking for one.

The one she found was CRISPAZ; in Spanish, Christians for Peace. Monahan made her application to Christian Volunteer Ministries, an arm of CRISPAZ with areas of service in El Salvador and San Antonio, Texas. CRISPAZ accepted her application last week and by July 23, Monahan was headed to Central America.

"I'll be spending three weeks in a language school in Quetzaltenango, Guatemala. I've only had one year of Spanish, so I need the language school. And I'll be putting it to good use right away; I'm going to be working on a repatriation movement as soon as I'm done with the language school," Monahan explained.

'I see myself as a channel. I love to learn and I love to channel that knowledge back to my students.'

—Annmarie Monahan

The movement will see El Salvadoran refugees who have been living in Honduras to escape what Monahan called "the 90 percent unemployment and human rights violations" of their home country, returning to El Salvador on foot.

"North Americans will be present to walk with the El Salvadorans as they return to their homes. Since I won't be too familiar with the language, I'll be calling upon my theater training and using hand puppets to amuse the children and keep them calm as we walk along," she added.

Once the refugees are back in El Salvador, Monahan will return to complete the term at the language school in Guatemala, then go back to rural El Salvador to teach English.

"I don't even know if there's a building called a school. And I won't have any instructional materials. I'll just be teaching by word-of-mouth. They have a 75 percent illiteracy rate there, so I will be needed," Monahan said.

She has a well-established background in teaching, both as a student and a teacher. As a student at Rosemont College, Monahan was a member of "Up With People," and spent a year traveling around the world. Prior to her employment at North High, Monahan directed drama activities for a summer at University Liggett School's day camp, tutored English and spent a year teaching English and speech to students at St. Michael Indian High School, St. Michael, Ariz.

As adventuresome as her career has been to date, this new phase of Monahan's life is a somewhat larger — and riskier — step.

"I'm not suffering from the martyr syndrome. I'm doing this for two reasons: One, I want to inform myself, learn and use a new language and maybe just make one child smile, or help one family get a meal. Two, I want to bring back what I've learned and let my students and friends here know what's going on down there."

She did that in her North

High English class, bringing photos of her Indian reservation experience to show Grosse Pointe kids that their American Indian counterparts were really not so different after all.

"I wanted the kids to look past the way they've grown up and see that there's another side. It's the same thing with El Salvador. I want the people there to know that not everyone in America supports our government's funding of the military regime in El Salvador. And I want the people here to know about what life is like for the people in Central America."

Monahan called her family's reaction to her decision "supportive."

"They are very worried about me. They saw me as a settled person, with a job and a house and a car. So this is kind of scary for them," Monahan said.

"But I am an informed person. I'm not naive. I know the dangers which are present and I have done all I can to prepare myself for this trip."

She'll take very few personal belongings with her and is prepared for the hardships she surely will face while living with and among a very rural, very poor people.

"I feel that there's a reason that this Grosse Pointe-raised person is going down there. I need to go. I want to learn and I can't learn just by reading about it. I have to live it so that I can teach it."

While Monahan is in El Salvador, she'll be communicating by mail with people back in the states. She has set up an informational system that rivals a major TV network.

"Letters I write to (North High English Department chairman) Bob Reimer will be read to my co-workers and the kids at North. Letters to my parents will let all my relatives know how I'm doing. And I'll be writing to an old teacher friend who is a member of Witness for Peace and Justice who will let those people in on my progress; and to a person at the Indian reservation, who will inform my old students there."

Monahan has planned the next year well, right down to the fundraising which must be done. She has budgeted her entire trip and paid for most of it herself, a requirement of the program. She still needs sponsors, however. Interested donors may send contributions (which will help subsidize her stay in El Salvador) to the Sisters of St. Joseph, 1615 Morrell, Detroit, Mich., 48209.

"I want people — my family and friends, co-workers and students — to know that this is something I need to do. I'll be OK and I'm going to come back. "I see myself as a channel. I love to learn and I love to channel that knowledge back to my students," she said. "This is all part of the process."

League of Women Voters sets national priorities

The more than 1,500 delegates to the League of Women Voters of the United States national convention, including Janet Vanderpool and Rachel Webers of the LWV of Grosse Pointe, voted to include a Campaign for a Safer World, Child Care and Housing; Meeting Community Needs, and Tackling Toxics as the organization's national priorities for the next two years. The decision was made at the League's 38th national convention, held in Denver, Colo., from June 11-15.

The Campaign for a Safer

World unites the league's ongoing concerns about arms control, the federal deficit and defense spending. Child Care and Housing encompasses the league's existing positions that poverty can be prevented and cut by increasing the availability of affordable quality housing and child care so more people can work. Tackling Toxics will focus on preventing the contamination of ground and surface water and air by toxic, hazardous and radioactive pollutants.

"The league's national priorities are timely and critical and enable the organization to continue to make a real difference in the lives of people in the world. The league's calm, reasoned and nonpartisan approach to issues is needed here — and we are excited about taking on the challenge," says LWVGP delegate and co-president Janet Vanderpool.

Rep. Patricia Schroeder (D-Colo), a convention keynote speaker, applauded the league's dedication to informing the American electorate. "A democracy only works if you take the time to understand it," Schroeder said.

Schroeder also urged the convention to focus its work on family, economic and nuclear issues, and cited a poll that found these to be the top concerns of average Americans. "A very sensible list, but these are not the 'power issues' in Washington," she noted.

Other League convention speakers included Assistant Secretary of State for European and Canadian Affairs Roxanne L. Ridgway, a central player in the efforts to ratify the INF Treaty, and former Federal Reserve Chairman Paul Volcker, who currently chairs the National Commission on the Public Service, a privately funded organization dedicated to rebuilding respect for public service careers.

'Magical' night proves a sweet success for Assistance League

More than 400 guests attended "A Magical Midsummer Night" at the Edsel & Eleanor Ford House July 8, sponsored by the Bon Secours Assistance League.

Guests had a chance to sample gourmet goodies from over a dozen local restaurants, including Sparky Herbert's, Tom's Oyster Bar, Sweet Temptations, DaEdoardo, Mama Pasta, Shannon's Steak House, Eastside Charley's, Tidewater Grill, Cadillac Coffee, Coney Island, Rigatto Catering, Mulier's Market, Oxford Beverage, Alexander and Polen, Bonmarito's, Mr. C's, Sweetheart Bakery, Baker's Choice, Uncle Harry's, Brownies, Lido and Vie de France. Brian Dey provided gourmet wine.

Highlighting the entertainment portion of the evening were a caricaturist, magician and the dance band Sunrise. Detroit News columnist Pete Waldmeir conducted a silent and live auction which featured such items as a car phone, vacation weekends and a jersey belonging to Steve Yzerman of the Detroit Red Wings.

Chairing the evening were Diane Egan and Sue Seiter. The event was sponsored by Group XIII of the Assistance League. Proceeds will go toward future Bon Secours of Michigan Healthcare System, Inc., projects.

'Tis the season: Well, 'tisn't really, but you'd never have known that last Wednesday evening at The Roostertail in Detroit. The Roostertail was the setting for the 1988 Festival of Trees' "Christmas in July" party honoring this year's sponsors and designers of the fourth annual benefit for Children's Hospital of Michigan.

More than 425 guests were greeted by a Santa in shorts, then enjoyed a sumptuous buffet and listened to Christmas carols played on the harp and piano. The Roostertail ballroom was decorated for the season, including holiday trees, the focus of the fundraiser.

Among those designers recognized at the event were Mr. and Mrs. Robert Ramsey of Grosse Pointe and the local firm of McGovern and Urso.

This year's Festival of Trees kicks off with a preview party on Nov. 22 and runs through Monday, Nov. 28. For more information, call the Festival of Trees office at 745-0178.

The Pastor's Corner

Good government is a gift from God

By The Rev. J. Philip Wahl

Pastor, St. Paul Evangelical Lutheran
What are the overriding moral issues we are facing in the election of 1988? How do we identify them and how do we address them? With one major party convention over and one to go, I want to share a few thoughts with you.

Good and just government is a gift from God. It is also a human task. God sustains and enriches human life through political activities, in spite of their being corrupted by sin. God expects his people to care for their neighbor and the Earth in the political institutions that help shape a society's future.

Our Christian faith does not provide us with an escape from politics; neither does it give us "Christian" solutions to the difficult problems that our nation and world face. We distort the Gospel when we use it as an excuse for passivity or when we identify it with a particular political agenda. The Gospel has set us free to be responsible participants in politics. Informed by the Biblical call to do justice, we are to use our hearts and minds. In the election process, as in all of politics, we are involved in moral issues.

We are inheritors of lively moral convictions that aid us in politically caring for the neighbor. Such phrases as "the dignity and freedom of all persons," "equality," "the common good," "peace," "human rights," "stewardship for creation," "bread for the world," and "trustworthy leadership," express our binding moral commitments.

We are to evaluate policies especially in what they mean for the poor and the vulnerable, in our country and around the world. As we search for the concrete meaning of these convictions in a particular situation like an election, Christians know there is room for differences and need for discussion.

Bound together by the Gospel, we are given freedom in the church to dialogue about the vital questions that humankind encounters.

Enjoy the conventions. Get ready for local, state and national issues. Become well-informed.

Good and just government is a gift from God.

Friends of Bon Secours plan dinner dance

The Friends of Bon Secours are planning their annual fall dinner dance, scheduled for Oct. 21 at the Grosse Pointe Yacht Club. This year's theme is "Moonlight Magic."

The evening will begin with cocktails at 7 p.m., followed by dinner at 8:30 and dancing at 9:30 p.m. The entertainment will be provided by Johnny Trudell and his orchestra.

Honorary Chairperson for the event is Sister Lucretia Gottschall, C.B.S. Sr. Lucretia has been with Bon Secours Hospital for more than 40 years.

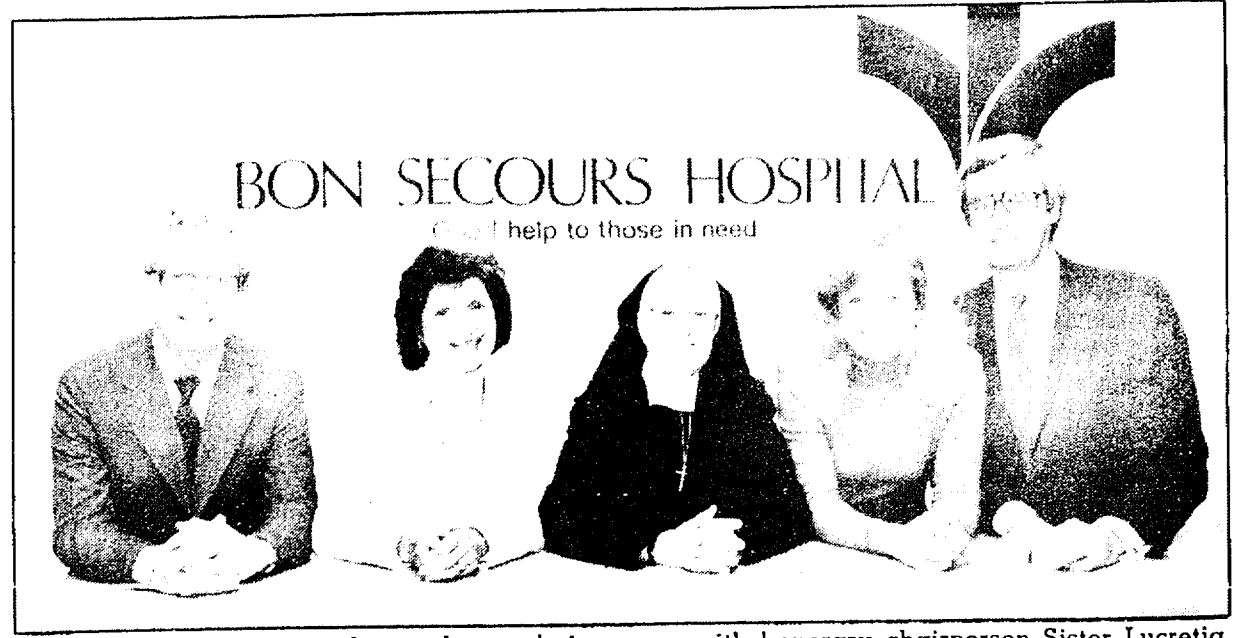

The dinner dance will pay tribute to Francis T. Day, M.D. and Paul M. Zaveloff, M.D. for more than 30 years of service to the hospital. William L. Hurley, vice president of development, is being recognized for his years of service as a special honoree. Hurley has served in his present position for over 10 years.

General chairpersons for the dinner dance are Dr. James W. and Elizabeth Klein. Craig H. and Beverly Curtiss are serving as invitation chairpersons. Curtiss is president elect and vice president of The Friends of Bon Secours. Thomas H. Mercier is president of The Friends of Bon Secours.

The proceeds from "Moonlight Magic" will benefit the Bon Secours Home Care program, a new service bringing Bon Secours quality care back into the home. Home Care will provide assistance in the home, ranging from skilled nursing to unskilled homemaker service. The office is located 18138 Mack Avenue in Grosse Pointe (886-CARE).

Tickets for the evening are $125 per person; $250 per couple. For information or reservations, call Glory Little at 779-7174.

The Friends of Bon Secours are a community support for the Bon Secours of Michigan Health-care System, Inc.

Clergy coalition to rally against casinos

The Michigan Clergy Coalition Against Casino Gambling will march and rally in Detroit, Saturday, July 30. The coalition, composed of clerical, business and civic leaders, will demonstrate and promote its support of an upcoming ballot proposal opposing casinos in Detroit.

Participants will meet at 9 a.m. at Grand Circus Park and march down Woodward to the rally site at Kennedy Square. State Attorney General Frank J. Kelley will be the rally's keynote speaker.

"We know there's a lot of opposition to casino gambling here in Detroit and around the state," said Rev. Dr. Harold Schlachtenhaufen of the Coalition.

"We're working with Detroit councilman John Peoples in an effort to demonstrate that opposition, as well as sensitize Detroit voters about the issue and educate them on how to vote. Voters must remember to vote 'yes' on the proposal to say 'no' to casinos, and our literature campaign emphasizes the 'yes' vote on the second ballot issue."

The Aug. 2 ballot proposal reads as follows: "This proposed ordinance provides if at any time casino gambling is approved by state law that it shall be prohibited within the corporate limits of the City of Detroit including Belle Isle. Shall this proposed ordinance be adopted: Yes or No?"

Mr. and Mrs. Dover Bell

Ganshert-Bell

Laurie Ann Ganshert, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Stephen C. Ganshert of Naperville, Ill., married Lt. Dover Michael Bell, son of Alma Bell and the late Dr. James Bell of Grosse Pointe Park, on June 25, 1988, at St. Mary's Church in Freeport, Ill.

The Rev. John Kraemer officiated at the 1 p.m. ceremony, which was followed by a reception at the Elks Club in Freeport.

The bride wore a satin ball gown with a sweetheart neckline and a pearled lace basque bodice. The extra-full skirt had heavy lace appliques and beading with ruffled layered lifts in front. Cascading satin ruffles flowed into a palais royale train. She carried a cascade of white roses and lily of the valley accented with blue alstromeria.

The matron of honor was Amy Crooks, sister of the bride, Waukegan, Wis. Bridesmaids were Jennifer Nehls, Madison, Wis.; Ann Schwab, Cross Plains, Wis.; and Eva Schlotting, Madison. The flowergirl was Heather Reed, cousin of the bride, Dakota, Ill.

The attendants wore light blue, crystal sheer and satin dresses with ruffled full skirts. They carried colonial nosegays of carnations and lily of the valley accented with alstromeria.

The best man was Lt. James Sisler, Lubbock, Texas. Ushers were Lt. Roy Caldwell, Colorado Springs; Lt. Dean Webb, Lubbock; Lt. Mark Clanton, Del Rio, Texas. Ushers were Lt. Jeffrey Sladko, Columbus, Miss., and Lt. Michael Kirchoff, Lubbock, Texas. The ringbearer was Robert May, cousin of the bride, Orlando, Fla.

The organist was Debby Roush and soloist was Georgia Reynolds. Scripture readers were Robert May, grandfather of the bride, Freeport, and Thomas May, uncle of the bride, Orlando, Fla.

The groom's attendants, all graduates of the United States Air Force Academy in full dress uniform, formed the traditional arch of sabers on the steps of the church.

The bride's mother wore a dress of seafoam chiffon and a corsage of white roses.

The groom's mother's dress was peach chiffon with a contoured over-blouse, with a corsage of white roses.

The bride attended Oakland University and will continue her education at Texas Tech University in Lubbock.

The groom is a graduate of the United States Air Force Academy with a degree in chemistry. He is stationed at Reese Air Force Base for pilot training.

The couple honeymooned in Cancun and will live at Reese Air Force Base in Lubbock.

Mr. and Mrs. Peter Manos

Main-Manos

Jaime Lynne Main, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jim Main of Grosse Pointe, married Peter George Manos, son of Mr. and Mrs. Peter Manos of New Baltimore, on June 25, 1988, at Grosse Pointe Memorial Church.

The Rev. Stanton Wilson officiated at the 5 p.m. ceremony, which was followed by a reception at the Roostertail.

The bride wore a long white satin dress with sleeves appliqued with sequined flowers and pearls. Her eight-foot train was overset with chiffon and lace. She wore a pearl necklace with a diamond pendant, a gift of the groom. Her bouquet was of orchids, pink roses and white mini-carnations.

Matron of honor was Lisa A. Keegan, friend of the bride, St. Clair Shores. Bridesmaids were Pamela A. Blevins, sister of the groom, Glen Ellyn, Ill.; Theresa L. Childs, Joppa, Md., and Jane L. Stewart, Marquette, both friends of the bride. They wore rose-colored slipper satin dresses with lace bodices; the matron of honor wore the same dress in raspberry. They all carried teardrop bouquets of pink elegance mini-carnations.

Best man was Gregory Sweet, friend of the groom, Dallas, Texas. Groomsmen were Daniel Cahill, Atlanta, Ga.; Lindsey Higginbottom, Whitmore Lake; and Kenneth Stewart, Dearborn. Ushers were Kevin Liske, Heron, Mich.; Gordon Lang, Dearborn; Dennis Main, brother of the bride, Castro Valley, Calif.; and Jeffrey Blevins, brother-in-law of the groom, Glen Ellyn, Ill.

Jeffrey Blevins read the Scriptures.

The bride's mother wore a grey chiffon tea-length dress with attached lace jacket and a corsage of white dendrobion orchids.

The mother of the groom wore pale pink chiffon and a wrist corsage of pink miniature roses.

The bride has an associate's degree in marketing from Macomb Community College. She is a senior accounting clerk for Walbridge, Aldinger Co.

The groom is a graduate of the University of Michigan with a degree in electrical engineering. He is vice president of engineering for Thermal Devices in Mount Clemens.

The couple honeymooned in Toronto and the Caribbean. They will live in New Baltimore.

Mr. and Mrs. Sorell B. Slaymaker

Warren-Slaymaker

Stacy Lee Warren, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Warren of Amarillo, Texas, married Sorell Brandau Slaymaker, son of Dr. Adrienne E. Slaymaker of Grosse Pointe Farms and Dr. William E. Slaymaker of Frankfort, Ky., on May 22, 1988, in the All Faiths Chapel at Texas A & M University, College Station, Texas.

The Rev. Norman Irons officiated at the 2 p.m. ceremony, which was followed by a reception and dinner at the College Station recreation center.

The bride wore a Renaissance-style satin gown accented with pearled lace on the close-fitting bodice, sleeves and cathedral length train. A pearled lace crown held the bride's fingertip length veil. She carried a trailing bouquet of pink roses.

The maid of honor was Pam Raymond of College Station, Texas. The bridal attendant was the bride's sister, Wendy Gore of Perryton, Texas. They wore tea length gowns of light blue taffeta and lace. Each carried a bouquet of pink roses.

The best man was Joe Gordon of College Station. Groomsmen was the bridegroom's brother, Wesley Slaymaker of Atlanta, Ga.

The bride graduated from Tascosa High School in Amarillo and earned a bachelor of science degree in computer science from Texas A & M University. She is currently employed by Texas A & M.

The bridegroom graduated from Scott County High School, Georgetown, Ky., and is a senior at Texas A & M, majoring in electrical technology and telecommunications. He is the grandson of Mr. and Mrs. Laurence Einfeldt of Grosse Pointe Farms.

The newlyweds honeymooned at Possum Kingdom in Dallas. They live in College Station.

Mrs. Erik K. Lee

Klingbeil-Lee

Susan Slocum Klingbeil, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Hayward Klingbeil of Grosse Pointe Shores, married Erik Kreston Lee, son of Shurle Lee of Midland and Harry Lee of Midland, on Saturday, June 18, 1988, in 101-year-old Ironton Congregational Church, Ironton, Mich.

The Rev. Harold Kruse officiated at the 4:30 p.m. ceremony, which was followed by a formal dinner reception at the bride's parents' summer home overlooking Lake Charlevoix, The Sequanota Club.

The bride wore an off-the-shoulder gown of ivory silk-faced satin, styled with puffed sleeves, a fitted bodice embellished with lace silk Venice lace and seed pearls, and satin bows at the shoulders and along the cathedral length train. A headpiece of silk apple blossoms and pearls held a veil of French tulle which cascaded over a satin bow matching those on the bride's gown.

The matron of honor was the bride's sister, Martha Murphy of Grosse Pointe. Bridesmaids included Mary Jane Shumaker of Grosse Pointe Farms and former Grosse Pointers Faye Higbie of New York City, Page Klumpar of Minot, N.D., and Gail Koski of Petoskey. Junior bridesmaid was the bride's niece, Andrea Klingbeil of Plymouth.

The attendants wore identical tea length dresses of pastel peach moire, styled with puffed sleeves and ivory lace overlays on the fitted bodices. Mrs. Murphy wore an ivory picture hat with a soft bow at the back. Miss Klingbeil scattered Sonia rose petals from a white wicker basket. Each attendant carried a single, long-stemmed white bridal rose.

The best man was the bridegroom's brother, Dr. Kevin Lee of Grand Rapids. Ushers included two more brothers, Daniel Lee of Ashland, Ore., and Jeffrey Lee of Midland; and Timothy Lyons of Midland.

The wedding brought together family and friends from 16 states. For the ceremony, the church altar was decorated with two large grapevine baskets overflowing with locally-grown white peonies, blue delphiniums, Sonia roses and cascading spring rye.

Following the dinner reception, a luminaria lighted the way for guests to escort the newlyweds down the bluff to the lake for a send-off from the club dock. The newlyweds left for a Toronto, Ont., honeymoon aboard a balloon-filled, 1955 wooden Chris Craft as guests enjoyed a fireworks display. The bride's parents had left their wedding reception in a similar fashion 39 years earlier.

The bride is a special education teacher. The bridegroom is president of Design Natural, a custom commercial furniture firm.

The newlyweds live in Midland.

Volunteer honored

Gerald Lee, director of Guest Services at Harper Hospital, presents Virginia Pehrson of Grosse Pointe with a certificate representing 5,771 hours of volunteer services at a recent banquet honoring Harper volunteers.

Pehrson had the largest amount of hours of any member of the Harper Hospital Auxiliary.

Program focus: Mature intimacy

Community educator Sean Hogan-Downey will discuss "Creating Intimacy in Later Life," at a "Cottage Silver" luncheon program Friday, Aug. 12. Cottage Silver is a series of talks, services and health screenings at Cottage Hospital geared for adults 55 and over.

The luncheon talk is $4.50 per person. Reservations are required and may be made by calling Cottage Community Services at 884-1177 Monday through Friday, between 9 a.m. and 5 p.m.

Hogan-Downey will focus on the factors which contribute to fulfilling relationships like giving and receiving affection, emotional growth and support, common leisure time and interests, sense of humor and communication. She will also address the developmental aspects of intimacy and aging and the need to satisfy "skin hunger."

Hogan-Downey is a certified social worker, marriage counselor and sex educator with a wide range of experience in individual and family counseling.

Future Cottage Silver talks include "Vision: Cloudy or Clear Forecast?" on Aug. 24; "For Women Only: Osteoporosis, Menopause and Estrogen Therapy" on Sept. 21; "Arthritis: Get A Grip On It," Oct. 12; and "Depression: Don't Let It Get You Down," on Nov. 16.

OVERESTIMATING FLAWS

There isn't a REALTOR who has not seen prospects instantly turned off toward purchasing a home by peeling paint on the outside; a lawn overgrown with weeds or littered with debris; a dirty kitchen, worn carpeting or shabby wallpaper.

On occasion, overestimating these flaws can be a mistake. Don't automatically let surface shortcomings cause you to reject the house. You may be passing up an excellent purchase. If the location is good and other properties in the neighborhood are valued at a higher amount, it may be worth your taking a longer look. Many of the clean-up, fix-up and paint-up jobs can be done at little cost. In an older house, apparently serious defects may not be so serious after all. Often they can be corrected for a few hundred dollars. Of course, check on the cost of repairs before you buy. Armed with fix-up costs you may be able to negotiate an excellent buy.

'Man's best friend' plays many roles

By Marian Trainor
Special Writer

No one would ever suggest that pets can take the place of people in our lives. But for an older person living alone, a pet can fill a void.

A dog can give a sense of security. Intruders may decide to move on to another victim when a barking dog sounds an alarm. A pet can provide companionship on a day when no one stops by or calls and it can give its owner a feeling of purpose. Pets must be fed, groomed and walked. In the absence of other ties, a pet can play an important role in an owner's life.

Even those who are neither depressed nor lonely may find an outlet through an animal to express their wishes, whims and fancies. Their own self-care may be enhanced by caring for a pet. Owners are more likely to make regular meals, keep the house warm, exercise and go out to shop. Apathy and dependence is rarely present when someone else depends on you. A pet owner remains a provider, planner, decision maker and feels needed. And there are advantages in talking to an animal who does not argue back.

Activity is a keynote to health and pets do provide a source of rewarding activity. A pet must be exercised and who better to provide that exercise than the owner. The question is who benefits the most, since the owner will be exercising at the same time. Besides exercise, walking a pet provides opportunities to make friends.

Dog walkers develop a special camaraderie as they meet and discuss pedigrees, traits and antics of their pets, much as parents do who become acquainted with neighbors because their children play together.

If all this sounds like a good idea, there are some things to think about before making a decision. If you decide to get a puppy it will need to be housebroken. And whether it is a puppy or an older dog, it must be provided with food and water, walked regularly, kept clean and taken to the vet.

Grooming is important to long haired breeds and not for looks alone. Matted and tangled hair creates excellent hiding places for fleas and skin disorders.

A pet needs attention and some companionship. It is a living creature with a constant need for affection and reassurance and needs daily human contact.

Dogs have enriched, strengthened and sweetened the lives of everyone from children to presidents. Lyndon Johnson was devoted to a beagle called "Him" and a collie called Bianco. Him was such a comfort to LBJ that he sat by the President's desk for most of each day.

"He helps ease the pressure," Johnson said.

Prime Time

Then there is the story about a big schnauzer that lived on an island with his mistress, Pegreen Fitzgerald, the beloved radio personality. One day the dog plunged into the water and rescued an elderly woman who was about to drown. The dog received so much praise for this act that he tried to save anyone who went for a swim. Sir Walter Scott had his service in mind when he said, "God has given us the dog to be the companion or our pleasures and toils and has invested him with a nature noble and incapable of deceit."

Even under stressful conditions, a pet can make a difference. One poignant example of how much a difference it can make is that of an elderly woman and her dog Cocoa.

Every morning she puts Cocoa into a baby stroller and takes her to visit a neighbor. Cocoa has arthritis and can no longer walk. They have been making that trip for 14 years. The neighbor has diabetes and has had both legs amputated. Cocoa's mistress has arthritis but she is still able to walk.

The two neighbors talk and have tea together as they have for 14 years.

Cocoa listens and never interrupts, Cocoa's mistress says, "I don't know what I'd do without Cocoa. I think I'd just die."

Her neighbor is more realistic about Cocoa. "I think that someday I'm going to be heartbroken," she said. "That's the trouble with good dogs. They never live long enough."

Comparatively new, the movement to bring pets into nursing homes has gained prominence because of the therapeutic value.

"Pet therapy" utilizes animals from animal shelters in nursing home programs. The programs are designed to bridge the gap between nursing home residents and the therapist. Often the resident's encounter with a pet is the first time in a long while they have been deeply touched by an experience or suddenly recall some happier moment in their youth when they had a pet of their own.

Pet therapy consists of a brief session each month when animal shelter representatives bring a few well-behaved cats and dogs to the nursing home for the residents to play with and hold. The animals are selected by the shelter on the basis of good temperament. Volunteers usually accompany the shelter staff to the session.

Locally, the Michigan Humane Society has a Pet Therapy Visitation Program. They found that as a result of these visitations, there was a significant improvement in activity involvement, verbal communications socialization with non-nursing personnel and other residents.

While owning a pet requires commitment beyond the price you pay to buy it, it is worth it.

Nester scholars

Winners of the 1988 Thomas Nester Scholarship Competition, Harry Patten, French horn, and Norma Fuqua, cello, received their awards at the final Grosse Pointe Symphony Concert May 1 at Parcels School. With the winners are, left, Mrs. Arthur O. Schmidt, chairman of the Grosse Pointe Symphony Women's Association, and Mrs. John E. Young Jr., president of the Grosse Pointe Orchestra Society.

Competition winners will appear with the orchestra this coming season. Judges were Felix Resnick, music director of the Grosse Pointe Symphony Orchestra, and Ralph Miller, chairman of the Nester Fund-Grosse Pointe Symphony Orchestra Society.

Farms Boat Club's 36th regatta this weekend

The Grosse Pointe Farms Boat Club will hold its 36th annual Regatta Weekend July 30 and 31 at the Grosse Pointe Farms Pier. The event is open to all Farms residents and their guests.

The festivities begin with a boat review at 5 p.m. Saturday, July 30. A boat decoration contest, then dancing and listening to band music from 8:30 p.m. to 12:30 a.m. will conclude the evening.

Sunday events include a sailboat race at 11 a.m., followed by a bike parade for kids at 12:30 p.m., children's games at 1:30, a sand castle contest at 2:30 and awards presentation and raffle drawing at 4:30 p.m.

First prize in the raffle is a trip for two to Hawaii, sponsored by Moorman's Travel and American Airlines. Proceeds from the event will go toward park improvements.

G.P. Ski Club

The Grosse Pointe Ski Club will hold its annual summer Cycling and Picnic Party on Sunday, Aug. 14, at 11 a.m. at Point Pelee National Park in Ontario. Cost is $7 for the picnic lunch; park admission is $4 per car.

Participants should bring a bathing suit for a swim after the bike ride. Pointe Pelee, a scenic park located on Lake Erie, features a nature center and a place to take a nature walk on an elevated boardwalk over the marshland.

Pre-paid reservations are necessary. Car pool arrangements will be available upon advance payment, due Aug. 12. Reservations are limited. Send the $7 fee to trip director Nadia Stratelak, 618 Anita, Grosse Pointe Woods, 48236; make check payable to the Grosse Pointe Ski Club.

For more information on that event, call Nadia or Ernie Stratelak at 886-1043 or club president George Peterson at 882-2983 after 6 p.m.

The Grosse Pointe Ski Club is open to all singles and couples. Meetings are held the first Wednesday of the month from September through April at the Grosse Pointe War Memorial. For more information about membership or the club's year-round sports and social activities, call Peterson at 882-2983.

G.P. Singles

The Grosse Pointe Singles host Sunday Afternoon Dance Parties every Sunday afternoon from 5 to 9 p.m. at Pepper's Restaurant and Night Club, 35101 Harper at 15 Mile Road in Mount Clemens.

Grosse Pointe
A Unique Community

Architectural Diversity As the great variety of home sizes and styles suggests, growth has continued slowly over many years. It continues even today. Old estates are subdivided for building contemporary homes, making the mansions that still survive (and many do) all the more treasured by their owners and tradition-minded residents. At the same time, the area includes homes of just about every style and size from townhouses, two-family units and other small homes to gracious English Tudors, colonials, executive mansions, contemporary ranch styles and a variety of modern designs, including condominiums.

This diversity has helped make Grosse Pointe attractive to all who value well-maintained quality which far exceeds its price.

LET US FINISH

FIRST OFFERING

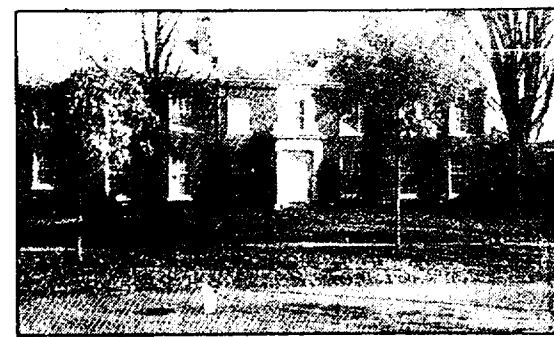

Architectural purity would describe this twelve year old, four bedroom Colonial in the Woods. Excellent floor plan and lots of light enhance a restful color scheme and handsome decorating. Outstanding family room/library with beamed ceiling and wet bar. Formal dining room; large breakfast area; convenient to public and private schools. Very well maintained.

FIRST OFFERING

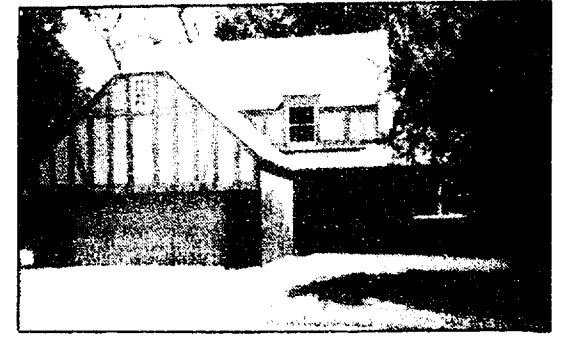

Are you weighing value? Put this on your scale. This immaculate, two bedroom bungalow with large open expansion attic, is just waiting to be completed. First floor features leaded glass, new carpeting and glassed porch. Basement is divided with an additional bathroom, an office and recreation room. All newly carpeted in neutral tones. You'll be impressed at how the scale tips toward value.

ENDURING CLASSIC

The Georgian Colonial you've always wanted. Elegance of years past mixes with today's lifestyle. Unique and quality workmanship is everywhere from the marble foyer, the sweeping staircase, the four master bedrooms, the multiple fireplaces to the four car heated garage with its carriage apartment. Entertaining is a pleasure and your guests will delight in the wonderful gardens which add their grace and serenity to this Grosse Pointe City home.

FAMILY DELIGHT

Take time to look - you'll buy. Cook up a storm in this extra large kitchen, with Jenn-Aire range and oak cabinets. Then serve your guests in the spacious dining room with natural wood floor, antique chandelier and stained glass doors. Four bedrooms, two and a half bathrooms, extra large family room with fireplace, and much more. Brand new, ready and waiting for you to move in.

TOP BUY

Ripe for a quick sale. The owner is anxious and you will be too when you see how much this home has to offer. Four bedrooms, two full bathrooms, newer Oak cabinets in the kitchen. Farms location and a price that can't be beat, $112,900. This home is not a drive-by, and if you're serious about finding a lot of house for the money, this is it.

GREAT LOCATION

This disarmingly different ranch with one floor convenience makes life easier. Country kitchen, family room, a view of the living room with corner fireplace - all in a great location. This spotlessly clean ranch makes summer-time living easy with its central air conditioning and sprinkler system. Call today for more details.

Grosse Pointe A Unique Community

A Cultural Cornucopia: Appreciation of the arts begins at an early age for Grosse Pointe children. The public library, a division of the Grosse Pointe Public School System, offers, at no cost, a variety of children's reading programs at its three locations.

For adults, the library programs range from travel films to informative presentations on subjects of current interest. These too are free to residents of all the Grosse Pointes.

Another great source of local culture is the beautiful War Memorial Center, the former residence of the Rev. Dr. A. Alger family. With its subsequently added ballroom and theater overlooking Lake St. Clair, the center is a community attraction that rivals the many private clubs in the area. Here, open to all residents, are organized art classes and exhibits, lectures, concerts, plays, ballet and social dancing instruction, and children's theater, as well as membership in a long list of special interest clubs whose focus is either cultural, informative or just plain fun.

A more recent addition to public property is the Edsel and Eleanor Ford House. Designed by architect Albert Kahn and supported by a $15 million endowment, this gracious replica of an English manor house is now open for tours and is used for meetings, fund raising events and several series of house concerts.

Elegant Eating

Luau brings a taste of the islands to Grosse Pointe

Bored with summer picnic fare already? Eager to have a few friends over for a special kind of dinner? Try a Hawaiian-style luau for 12. The festive menu can be started well ahead of time and finished as part of the entertainment.

The following recipes come from the low-calorie, low-cholesterol, budgetwise kitchens of Thyra Grey Howard and Helena DeWitt Roth.

Luau Pork Roast

When you purchase your roast, ask the butcher to remove all possible fat before rolling and tying.

- 6-7 lbs. boneless pork loin roast
- 1 jar (7 3/4 oz.) baby food peaches
- 1/3 cup catsup
- 1/4 tsp. cracked black pepper
- 1/2 cup brown sugar
- 1/3 cup cider vinegar
- 1 Tbsp. soy sauce
- 1 tsp. ginger
- 1/8 tsp. garlic powder

Insert spit through center of roast, using prongs to hold meat in place. Insert meat thermometer at slight angle so bulb is centered in roast but not resting on spit. Place on rotisserie and cook over low glowing coals 2 1/2 to 3 hours or until meat thermometer registers 170°.

Meanwhile, in small saucepan, combine remaining ingredients. Bring to a boil, stirring frequently. Remove from heat. Brush roast with sauce several times during last 1/2 hour of cooking. Serve remaining sauce with meat. Serves 10 to 14.

Calories per 3 1/2 oz. serving, about 307. Cholesterol, about 70 mgs.

Deviled Blackeyed Peas and Rice with Broiled Tomatoes

- 1 pkg. (10 oz.) frozen black-eyed peas
- Pinch of salt
- 1 clove garlic, minced
- 1 small onion, minced
- 1/2 small green pepper, chopped
- 1/2 cup celery, chopped
- 1 chicken or beef bouillon cube
- 2 cups boiling water
- 1 can (4 1/2 oz.) deviled ham
- 2 cups hot fluffy rice

Combine peas, salt, garlic, onion, pepper, celery and bouillon cube in saucepan. Add boiling water and cover; cook over moderate heat for 20 to 25 minutes, or until peas are tender. Stir often to prevent sticking. Drain. Stir in deviled ham. Toss pea mixture, rice and margarine together. Adjust seasonings and keep hot. Cut each tomato into three slices (12 in all). Sprinkle with Tabasco and grated Parmesan cheese. Broil until tomatoes are lightly browned on top and hot through.

Arrange tomato slices in overlapping ring around edge of serving platter. Heap deviled peas and rice in center. Garnish with fresh parsley and serve hot to 6.

- 1 Tbsp. margarine
- Pinch of salt
- Pinch of pepper
- 4 medium-sized firm ripe tomatoes
- 2 Tbsp. grated Parmesan cheese
- Tabasco

Combine peas, salt, garlic, onion, pepper, celery and bouillon cube in saucepan. Add boiling water and cover; cook over moderate heat for 20 to 25 minutes, or until peas are tender. Stir often to prevent sticking. Drain. Stir in deviled ham. Toss pea mixture, rice and margarine together. Adjust seasonings and keep hot. Cut each tomato into three slices (12 in all). Sprinkle with Tabasco and grated Parmesan cheese. Broil until tomatoes are lightly browned on top and hot through.

Arrange tomato slices in overlapping ring around edge of serving platter. Heap deviled peas and rice in center. Garnish with fresh parsley and serve hot to 6.

Calories, about 191 per serving. Cholesterol, about 15 mgs.

Baked Bananas

- 6 bananas

- 2 Tbsp. unsalted margarine
- 1/3 cup brown sugar, packed
- 2 Tbsp. lemon juice

Peel and split bananas lengthwise and then split crosswise in half. Place bananas in a low baking dish so that all will be in one later. Combine remaining ingredients and pour over bananas. Bake in 325° oven for 20 minutes. Makes 12 servings.

Calories per 1/4 banana, about 46. Cholesterol, 0.

Corn Salad

- 1 cup water
- 2 cups corn kernels (from 4 ears)
- 3/4 cup light corn syrup
- 2/3 cup red wine vinegar
- 1/4 cup vegetable oil
- 1/2 tsp. salt
- 1/2 tsp. dill weed
- 1 small onion, sliced
- 2 cups cooked, cut wax beans
- 2 cups cooked, cut green beans
- 1/2 cup chopped sweet red pepper
- 2 cups diagonally sliced celery

Heat water in a medium-sized saucepan to boiling. Add corn, cover and cook 3 to 5 minutes or just until tender. Drain, place in a large bowl.

Combine corn syrup, vinegar, oil, salt and dill in medium-sized bowl. Pour over corn. Stir in onion, wax and green beans, red pepper and celery. Toss lightly. Cover and refrigerate overnight. Drain marinade. Serve in large scooped out tomatoes or in lettuce-lined salad bowl and garnish with tomato wedges. Makes 10 servings.

Calories, about 167 for each of 10 servings. Cholesterol, 0.

Cocoa Bundt Cake

- 1 cup flour
- 1/2 cup cocoa
- 1 tsp. baking soda
- 1 tsp. cinnamon
- 1/4 tsp. salt
- Dash of cloves
- 2 eggs, separated
- 1 cup sugar, divided
- 1/2 cup margarine
- 1 tsp. vanilla
- 3/4 cup buttermilk
- Cocoa Glaze

Stir together flour, cocoa, baking soda, cinnamon, salt and cloves; set aside. Beat egg whites to form soft peaks. Gradually beat in 1/4 cup of the sugar, until stiff peaks form; set aside.

Cream margarine and remaining 3/4 cups sugar until light and fluffy. Beat in egg yolks and vanilla. Add flour mixture alternately with buttermilk, beginning and ending with flour, beating well after each addition. Fold in egg whites. Turn into well-oiled and floured 8 1/2-inch bundt. Bake below oven center in 350° for 45 to 50 minutes or until cake tester near center comes out clean. Let cool in pan 10 minutes; turn onto wire rack to cool completely. Spoon on Cocoa Glaze (recipe follows). Makes about 12 servings.

Calories, about 225 per slice with icing. Cholesterol, about 41 mgs.

Cocoa Glaze

- 1/3 cup confectioners' sugar
- 2 Tbsp. light corn syrup
- 1 Tbsp. melted margarine
- 1 Tbsp. cocoa
- 1 tsp. vanilla
- Hot water

Stir together confectioners' sugar, corn syrup, margarine, cocoa and vanilla. Stir in hot water until icing is of desired consistency.

Calories, about 225 per slice with icing. Cholesterol, about 41 mgs.

Fulton for President?

With the Presidential race in full swing, I can't help but ponder about what it would be like to be President.

I know my philosophies vary from what Dukakis and Bush preach, but at times I feel being deceptive, cruel, making poor decisions and spending a weekend at Camp David wouldn't be too difficult. Therefore, I toss my hat in the ring as a contender to become the 41st President of the United States of America.

Making decisions on world affairs, war and drugs wouldn't be my first order of business. Considering my background, I'd promptly put in a basketball court, have my vice-president (Bill Frieder) organize a White House intramural league.

Secondly, I'd have to upgrade some softball fields, put in a track, get the specs on a race-horse course and make a bid for a minor league team to make the White House grounds its home.

Each Monday I'd wake to the smell of frying bacon, hot eggs, whole wheat toast and the morning box scores. As I waited by the pool to hear of any trades, corporate mergers, or managerial moves, I'd quietly read an upcoming issue of Football Digest.

Declaring certain days for national, or even local recognition seems to be part of a President's job. Signing referendums, vetoing bills and making sure the budget increases (excuse me, decreases), are also responsibilities I'm sure I can handle. More importantly, however, I would set up an entire slab of proclamations and push them through Congress.

First, every person born in America would have a replica uniform of their favorite team. Secondly, free tickets would be dispersed to the homeless and the less fortunate for 25 baseball games anywhere in the country. People have to start living a bit, and we all know it's expensive to attend a major league sporting event, so why not cut into the budget and give all the young ones a chance to see a football game, basketball game, or even the Port Huron to Mackinac Race.

I would strive for grass infields for every little league baseball field. No artificial turf football fields could be designed, and tracks across the country would be redone once a year. It seems that the demand definitely outweighs the supply of money, but aren't I just following precedent by spending more than we have?

Pointers sail to top prize in Mackinac

By Rob Fulton
Sports Editor

The word humble took on a whole new meaning for some 3,000 sailors in the 64th Bayview Yacht Club Port Huron to Mackinac Sailboat Race last week.

This is a race which is traditionally over by the end of two days. However, this year's event found over 100 boats needing 24-48 hours more just to find the island settled between Michigan's two peninsulas. Patience had to prevail, as did a quality navigator, an umbrella and a fog horn.

Boats left Port Huron on July 16 under sunny skies and slight breezes, but within 24 hours, many of them switched from spinnakers to white sails, and relaxation turned tense as breezes died and rain intensified.

Reaching Cove Island, the midpoint in the 259-nautical mile race, was not a problem for most boats. It was finishing the race from that point on as the fog thickened and wind was only a memory. For approximately 60 miles (just off the Duck Islands), boats struggled to catch a pant from Mother Nature.

"We tried hard (to deal with the wind)," said Rick Grow, skipper of Walloon which finished second in PHRF G (Performance Handicap Racing Fleet). "I remember for about one to two hours going zero. No wind definitely hurt us."

It wasn't any easier for Bill Quinn's Crisis in the PHRF C division.

"It was a very light air race," said Quinn, a Grosse Pointe out of the Grosse Pointe Yacht Club (GPYC). "I can remember not moving for about 20-30 minutes at a time, for about seven to eight times."

"My patience was definitely tried," Quinn added.

Sassy, a 78-foot maxi owned and operated by Bill Martin, was the first to cross the finish line Monday morning, but with its handicap it finished fifth in the Class A of the IOR (International Offshore Rule).

Fujimo FBF, skippered by Jerry Schostak from host Bayview Yacht Club (BYC), finished fourth behind Pied Piper (2) and Bill Martin's Stripes, but Schostak hoisted the overall winner flag with a corrected time of 40:07.38.

"We had the good fortune of being successful for the fourth consecutive year," Schostak said in reference to winning the IOR A, again. "It was also our second overall win in four years, and that's a unique accomplishment. We are feeling very good about it."

As he should.

Also feeling fine about the finish he took, is Fred Detwiler, skipper of Trader, from GPYC. It was the second straight IOR B win for Detwiler and his crew. Their corrected time was 41:06:20.

Detwiler, who stated it took "forever" to go eight miles (five-six hours), credits his crew for keeping the IOR B flag on his mast.

"We had to be very patient," he said. "We have a very good crew. They're deep and can do anything, anytime. That's why we were successful."

'We were in good shape, but we were more concerned with just keeping the boat going in any direction, and closest to the mark.' — Clune Walsh Jr., skipper of Lunatic.

Lunatic, skippered by Clune Walsh Sr. of BYC, finished first in IMS A (International Measurement System) with a corrected time of 44:52.15, and now owns the overall flag for the IMS division. It was also the 37th Mackinac race for Clune Sr.

Toscana, the scratch boat in IMS A, was a good guide for Clune and his 11-person crew.

"We wanted to finish either seeing them (Toscana, which finished second), or ahead of them because we knew they had to give us some time (for handicap)," said Walsh.

According to Walsh, his PJ 45-footer led for most of the race, but after rounding Cove Island, the wind almost cost them the lead.

"We were ahead of pretty much everybody," said Walsh. "We were in good shape, but we were more concerned with just keeping the boat going in any direction (because of the lack of wind), and closest to the mark."

If some of the boaters thought the wait to reach the Mackinac shoreline was long, maybe they should talk to Bill Alcott and ask what perseverance really is.

Fishing Rodeo saddles up

For the 40th year, Grosse Pointe Farms and City will be hosting the fishing Rodeo on Aug. 20 beginning at 8 a.m.

Started by Dick Graves Sr. and Ed Laver, the rodeo is organized for all Farms and City boys and girls age 17 and under. At 8 a.m., all fisherman and their families are invited to enjoy free coffee, juice and doughnuts. From 9 to 10 a.m., all participants will fish, with prizes going to the first catch-of-the-day, biggest fish, as well as many other categories.

It's a day that begins with plenty of fun and ends with even more fun. After all fisherman have baited the hook and cast the line, hot dogs and pop will be served for lunch — not fish.

At 11:30 a.m., the prizes and trophies will be awarded.

Upon entering the park, pick up your prize tickets. After that, just come in and enjoy what the rodeo has to offer. The fish will be there, rain or shine, and so should all rodeo participants. Registration will be held prior to the start.

Parents, don't think this totally free day doesn't have anything in store for you. During the drawing of the prizes, you will also have your number entered in the adult prize drawing. Good luck!

Auction filled with memorabilia

Autographed jerseys from Detroit's division winning professional sports teams will be up for bid at Detroit Tigers' manager Sparky Anderson's second Sports Memorabilia Auction for the benefit of CATCH (Caring Athletes Team for Children's and Henry Ford Hospitals).

Sparky's extravaganza is slated for Saturday, July 30 at the Southfield Civic Center (26000 Evergreen). Doors open at 10:30 a.m., with the auction slated from 11 a.m. to 4 p.m.

Items to be auctioned off include:

Autographed jerseys from Isiah Thomas, Vinnie Johnson, Bill Laimbeer, John Salley, Sparky and Alan Trammell. Jerseys will also be available from the Red Wings and Lions.

Other items include a Pistons's autographed basketball, autographed basketball shoes from Isiah Thomas, Red Wing hockey sticks, Tiger team autographed bats and balls, individually autographed Tiger bats, balls and caps, an autographed ball from Sparky's 800th American League win, and a baseball autographed by Sparky, Jacques Demers and Darryl Rogers.

Autographed bats from Robin Yount (Brewers), Jose Canseco (A's), Paul Molitor (Brewers), Jack Clark (Yankees), and many others will be on the block, along with novelty items like a round of golf with Sparky, dinner with your favorite Tiger, dinner with Demers, and a night in one of three broadcast booths, (WDIV, WJR, and PASS Cable TV).

"We've really loaded up interesting stuff from our four professional teams," said Sparky, who masterminded last year's auction which raised more than $190,000 for CATCH. "We have a ton of sports memorabilia which will be sold for set prices. This auction will have something for everybody."

A $10 donation is requested at the door, which will be used as a raffle ticket for prizes. Children under 12 accompanied by a paying adult will be admitted free.

Bacchus II finishes second

Jim Haselwood, of the Park, skippered Bacchus II to a second place finish in the Huron Doublehanded Challenge which began on July 2.

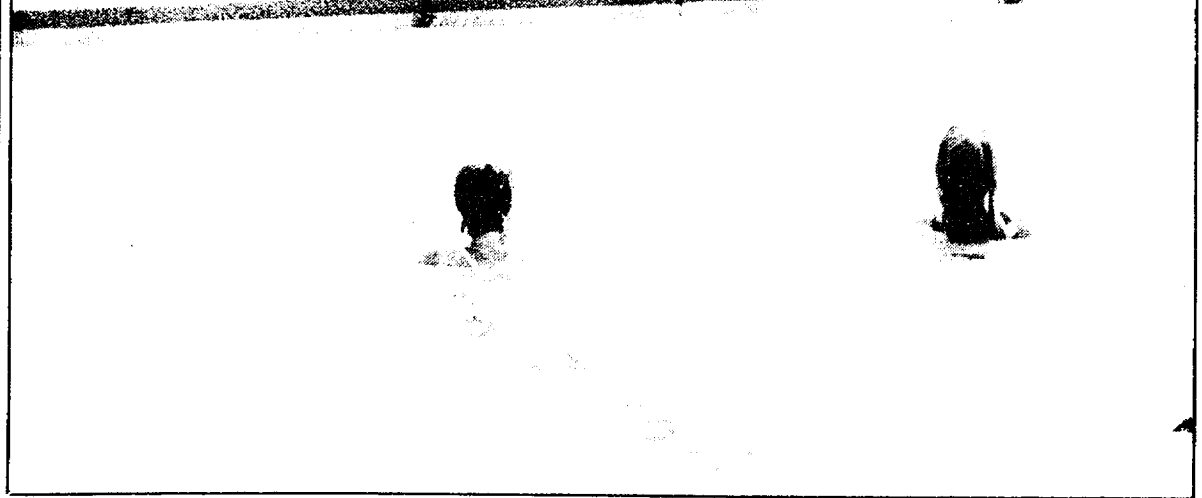

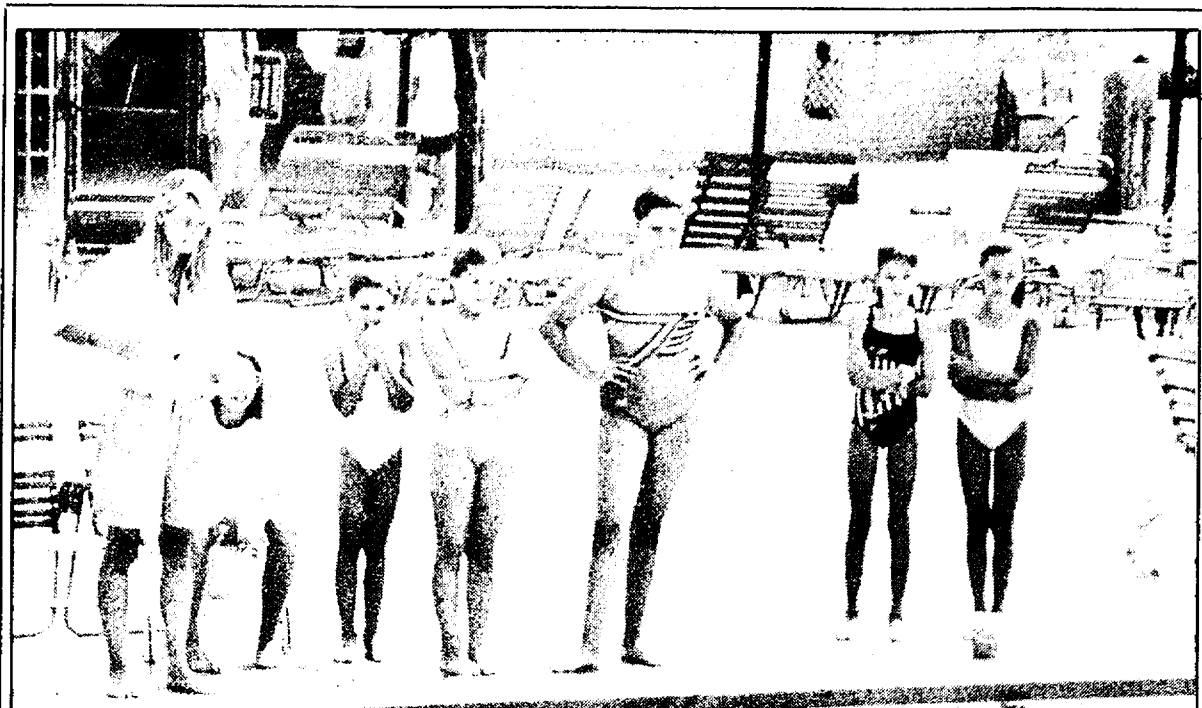

Haselwood directed his 33-foot C & C yacht from Port Sanilac to Rogers City and finished the 205-mile race on July 5 at 6:00.

The distinguishing feature of the Huron Doublehanded Challenge is the requirement of not more than two people on board. The minimum crew size becomes the focal point on all yachts which range in length from 24 to 50 feet. Typically, these sailing vessels carry a crew of five to 15 people depending on size.

The Huron Doublehanded Challenge is sponsored by the Doublehanded Sailing Association. The intent is to serve those who enjoy the sport of making fast, safe passages under sail with a minimum crew.

All finishers received a participation award at the awards banquet in Rogers City.

Synchronizing under the stars

The 1988 Grosse Pointe Farms Synchronized Swim Team will perform its synchronized show, "Time Warp" on July 29 at 8 p.m.

The show, featuring music from the last six decades, will be hosted at the Farms Municipal Pool and is open to all Farms residents.

Instead of looking to the stars for advice, I'd hire Anne Landers or Jimmy "The Greek" Snyder. Gambling wouldn't be allowed. At football stadiums, I'd put a rotating schedule on the private boxes so everyone can watch one football game from it. I would rename the Palace, and would force anybody who boos Chuck Long this season, to play quarterback for one down as Lawrence Taylor and company stampedes the backfield.

Soccer fields wouldn't be a rarity for players. Backstops wouldn't bulge from too many baseballs hitting them, and field goal posts would be intended to be torn down after each win. Basketball rims would give, as they do now, but lights would flicker on and off when a slam dunk registers.

Super Bowl Sunday, Game 7 of the World Series, the NBA championship and the finals of the NHL would all be days off. Nobody should be at work while these games are being played.

The game of lacrosse would be put back on the map. Polo, something I'd try to play once a week, may even find a place on sports pages throughout the country. The road to the Final Four (NCAA's men's basketball tourney) would be televised for women. A women's professional basketball, volleyball, and soccer league would be formed.

The list is endless. I would struggle to find time to deal with Gorbachev, Aquino, and Thatcher, but maybe we could get together at a Euchre Tournament Summit in the middle of Greenland.

The Lions would be given a head start by being awarded two wins before the season begins. The Tigers would be World Champs year after year, Chuck Daly would have a lifetime contract, and Jacques Demers would own half of Detroit.

I would distribute Nerf hockey sticks to all professional hockey players. All football players would be required to wear knee braces, and boxers would have to have more than 20 teeth. Tiger Stadium would remain at the corner of Michigan and Trumbull — domeless.

Running unopposed doesn't necessarily thrill me, but given the facts you have before you, if you can make a better impression on the world of sports, let's travel through the country, stop in each major league baseball city for a game, organize a debate, and after that let the delegates make their choice.

See you in November. By the way, that would be National Football Month.

Mackinac

Rick Grow's Walloon, which won five straight PHRF G races previous to the 1988 Port Huron to Mackinac race, finished second behind Cygnus, skippered by Roy Hawkinson.

After 17 tries in a Mackinac race, Alcott, skipper of Equation, from BYC, can finally suspend a flag from the top of his boat after finishing first in PHRF B in a corrected time of 48:45:00.

They say that a tie is like kissing your sister, but in this case, beating your sister deserves a kiss — possibly from a crew member.

"The thing that made it fun for me was beating six other sister ships in our division," said Alcott. "There were literally seven boats (C & C 41-footers) built out of the same mold. The race was fun, but it was very nice to beat those sister ships."

Upon finishing, Alcott surmised that his boat was first in PHRF B. However, after checking in, he was informed that he was second behind Sorcerer. After taking the second place in stride, one of Alcott's crew members discovered another Sorcerer (IMS A) already docked. A simple error, putting the IMS Sorcerer's time into PHRF B, was corrected, therefore the celebration on Equation could begin.

"We didn't party the way we would have when we arrived," said Alcott, "because we expected to win it."

"When we came in, we knew we had a lead," he said. "It was an easy error to make, I'm just glad it was corrected."

Alcott knew he was first, but what he didn't know — at least until the phone rang — was that his boat was third overall.

"My son Bobby called me from home to congratulate me on finishing third overall," said Alcott. "It was such a great feeling."

Most sailors will tell you that it is great to win a flag, but maybe this year many of them would tell you it was simply nice to finish. According to some sailors, the race was comfortable despite the wait. Some would say it was OK, but on Rick Grow's Walloon, the crew was somewhat dejected.

"Maybe it was the lack of real drama," said Grow, who won five straight PHRF G flags previous to finishing second to Roy Hawkinson's Cygnus this time through.

"I don't know what it was, but something was just missing about the race," said Grow. It was probably the cooperation of Mother Nature. "It was fun, but we had to play games with some of the guys just to keep the excitement going," Grow added. "It's not much fun when you don't have the wind."

Boating

By Cristina Staats

A look from Bacchus II

It was a slow race. The start held promise, but the wind died to a whisper sometime on Saturday. The crew of Bacchus II spent the evening trying to move the boat through the dark evening waters. The boat drifted at times, and the sails hung limp. Crew changed to the lightest sails on board, but nothing changed; the boat went nowhere, slowly.

Sunday morning the wind picked up. The wind and seas built through the day. The six sailors on board felt more wind than they would feel for the rest of the race to Mackinac. The knot meter perked to life. Sails shook out the malaise, took shape and drove the boat toward her ultimate destination — Mackinac Island. Some crew new to long distance racing fell ill to the effects of the never ending motion of a sailing ship. Their bodies, safely wedged on the lee rail, allowed the remaining crew to handle the boat until stomachs calmed.

The wind reneged on her promise though as Sunday faded into Monday, and the fleet was again becalmed with rain.

As Monday passed the small boat should have been approaching the finish line had better conditions prevailed, but the navigator's log showed slow progress, and the little boat was still miles from its destination. Fog rolled in, cleared, then rolled in again. Rain and mist took over. Dreary Monday, the crew dubbed the day.

The crew did have fun watching one small visitor to the ship, a bat, affectionately named Alfresco — Freddy. He arrived shortly after first light on Monday. Alfresco would fly around the boat trying to find a place to land, curl up and spend some time. He tried landing on the stern pulpit, but that was too slippery and he lost his grip. He eventually found the sails flaked down on deck, made his way to an obscure fold and slept, clinging upside down bat fashion. At every sail change, he fluttered around waiting for the crew to settle the sails again so he could go back to bed. He found other places to sleep when there were no sails on deck. Once he folded his wings around himself directly above the helmsman's head clinging to the man-overboard flag. Another time he clung to the mainsail. Eventually he left, finding greener pastures and undoubtedly less activity on a nearby boat.

The rain found every possible avenue into the boat. Drops began appearing on the charts. Everything in the boat was damp. Still little wind.

By Tuesday, one young crew member was wondering if there was any way you could miss Mackinac Island, "Could we sail by it and never see it?" he wondered.

Finally, the end was in sight. The elusive Mackinac Island was there in the distance, its distinctive shape beckoning. The crew could hear other race boats finishing, and wished the wind would pick up and move them toward the end faster.

As clearly as the crew of Bacchus II had seen the island one minute, it was gone the next shrouded in a bank of fog. All that remained was the radio, testifying to the existence of boats crossing the finish line. The fog was eerie. Horns and signals were sounding in the obscurity. Freighters were heard but never seen.

As the day wore on the fog burned off. Bacchus II finished in the early afternoon of Tuesday. Just in time for the awards party. They didn't take a flag in this, their first Port Huron to Mackinac Race, but they learned a lot about Lake Huron, about the boat, and about themselves.

Tim O'Hara and Brian Benz, along with their rowing coach Dr. Richard Bell, will be packing their gear for Milan, Italy, where the World Rowing Championships will be held Aug. 2-7.

Benz, O'Hara row in Milan

Tim O'Hara and Grosse Pointe's Brian Benz of the Detroit Boat Club are ready to fly. Copenhagen was great last year, but this year the tandem will try Milan, Italy.

The two oarsmen from DBC left July 24 for the World Rowing Championships to be held in Milan the first week in August. The two earned their places on the United States Rowing Team by coming from behind in two races to edge out a very determined double from the New York Athletic Club. The lightweight double races, held near Princeton, were won in excellent times of 6:31 and 6:48 for the 2,000-meter course.

This will be the third European trip for both rowers. O'Hara, from Detroit, competed in an eight man in Duisburg, Germany in 1983, and Benz raced the lightweight single shell in the Goodwill Games in Moscow in 1986.

GPYC swimmers beat Birmingham, 553-433

The Grosse Pointe Yacht Club swim team took a M.I.C.S.A. swim match from the Birmingham Athletic Club, 553-433.

Sweeping the top three places in the girls' 9-10 backstroke were, Kathy Storen, Amanda Defever and Brady Schoenherr, respectively. The boys' 9-10 backstroke event displayed the same domination with Mark Bickenbach, Mike Hove and Ryan Zeller taking the top three places.

The winning relay for the girls' medley event consisted of

Other winners included, Sara Volmer, Lauren Kordas, Jenny

The Country Club of Detroit fell victim to the GPYC, 591-401. Blue ribbon winners were, Katie Blake, Jamie Nevison, Lauren Rashid, Scott Gregory, Emarie Demeulemeester, Mieka Teitge, Shera Teitge, Kathleen Storen, Kristen Youngblood, Michael Kirchner, Patrick Kirchner, Ted Stedem, Ashley Moran, Brenn Schoenherr and Stephanie LaFond. Receiving place ribbons in the 13-14 breaststroke were, Courtenay Youngblood, Alicia Cytacki and Jenny Paolucci. Lindsay Youngblood and Susan Cornelle performed well in the girls' 9-10 butterfly. Additional winners were Megan Moran, Carl Rashid, K.C. Hulme, Alex Toledo, Hadley Creech, Kim LaFond, Chris Keane, Peter Graccey, C.T. Brown, Kile Zellar, Dana Mertz, Erin Quinlan and Sean Gardella.

Other swimmers who improved their times were, R.J. Wolney, Kai Bickenbach, Robin Wheeler and Ben Debski.

Tigerwives to play local media for Cystic Fibrosis

How do the Detroit "Tigerwives" spell relief when they beat the "Media" in the Sixth Annual Softball Game? ... R.O.-L.-A.-I.-D.-S (The official sponsor of the event).

On Aug. 5, Rolands asks you to give to a foundation that fights the number one genetic killer of children — Cystic Fibrosis.

It's time once again for the "Tigerwives" to challenge noted media personalities in an exciting softball game to benefit kids battling the disease of cystic fibrosis.

The Southfield Civic Center will host the rematch offering plenty of seating for the fans to enjoy themselves ogling the Tigers and their families. Bleachers will be available, but it would be wise to bring a blanket as there is plenty of room to sit on the grass around the field.

Spend some time cheering on the "Tigerwives" when they try to shutout the media team. Bring the kids to see the clowns, tap your feet to the upbeat Doug Jacobs and the Red Garter Band, or take the opportunity to get your favorite autograph and then have your picture taken with a player.

This celebrated match will start at 11 a.m., Friday, Aug. 5. Tickets are $1 for children and seniors, and $3 for adults.

The Southfield Civic Center is located on Evergreen between 10 and 11 mile.

All proceeds go to the Cystic Fibrosis Foundation.

Van Tassell collects honors

Lisa Van Tassell, a second baseman from Grosse Pointe South High School, was recently selected to join the elite group of 1988 athletes on the All-State All-Academic softball team.

Van Tassell had 16 hits and 10 RBI for Coach John Bruce's Blue Devils. South finished 12-18 overall and 6-8 in the Eastern Michigan League standings.

Crowned Royals

The Grosse Pointe Farms-City-Park Royals were the regular season co-champs and went on to defeat the Orioles, 18-14 to win the playoff championship.

Five players on each team had two or more hits. For the Orioles, Rajt, Lupo, Dorda, Leitch and Hanawalt all had two or more hits. Tom Best, Chad Hepner, Rob Tiede, Britt Stebbins and Tom Rhoades collected two hits each for the Royals in the final game of the year. David Cusmano picked up the win in relief.

The ball players will be on hand to serve and bus tables, while parents and coaches will also lend a helping hand.

'Short Circuit 2' is short-circuited by its script

By Michael Chapp
Special Writer

OK. So Steve Guttenberg and Ally Sheedy aren't around for "Short Circuit 2." So what?

And the biggest star in this sequel to the popular 1986 film is Michael Keaton of TV's "Laverne and Shirley."

And the only returning actor is Fisher Stevens, otherwise known as the Indian with a forked tongue. So what? Does any of this matter?

You bet it does.

It wouldn't, of course, if we were dealing with a unique script and a fresh concept. But this is a sequel, and in this sequel glutted market, viewers can usually take a cue from the main actors in the first picture.

In other words, if the actors see no reason to come back for more, there's little reason for an audience to do so.

Of course, it's hard not to be enamored with Number 5 — the cute and lovable robot who thinks he's a human being. That was the main conflict in the first picture. Guttenberg and Sheedy had their hands full keeping their robotic friend out of trouble and out of the hands of army brass who wanted him for various destructive reasons.

This time around, Number 5 has ... well, grown — by taking the name Johnny and by remodeling parts of his anatomy so that he's always got an umbrella or a toolbox handy. With X-ray vision and Greenpeace stickers on his torso, he's fixed himself up to handle anything that comes his way.

At least until he gets to New York, where he's supposed to help Ben (Stevens) and Ben's partner (Keaton) with their electronics business — the construction and mass distribution of miniature Number 5 robots.

In New York, Johnny gets mixed up with an incompetent band of hoodlums who want to use his unique talents to rob the bank across the street from Ben's warehouse/factory. You know the routine: Naive visitor gets hoodwinked; friends have to come to the rescue before things get really out of hand.

The routine is more than just familiar; it's downright redundant. And there's little incentive here for viewers to forgive the filmmakers for turning out such drivel. Yes, Johnny 5 does have winning personality, but none of his friends do. Most of them are too stupid to be funny.

As was the case in the first film, little ones will be very amused with "Short Circuit 2." Contrary to the first film, however, other viewers won't be.

After numerous complaints from city dwellers, a policeman inspects Johnny Five to see what's behind all the commotion in the fantasy comedy, "Short Circuit 2."

Film

DeNiro, Grodin at their best in 'Run'

By Marian Trainor
Special Writer

For a wild, riotous, fun-filled trip cross-country, grab a ticket for "Midnight Run," the best-scripted, best-directed and best-acted adventure comedy of this summer season.

In it Robert De Niro plays a former cop from Chicago who has turned bounty hunter, a perilous occupation that involves returning bail jumpers to their bondsman. It is a multi-dimensional portrayal that shows him as more than a killing machine. He is also a man with a hard past and memories that haunt the present.

When he is offered $100,000 to find Jonathan Mardukas (Charles Grodin) and return him to Los Angeles before his bail must be forfeited, he reluctantly takes on the assignment, swearing that this will be his last time.

He has had tougher jobs, but he is sick of living on the edge of danger. This one is known as a "midnight run," a mission with no apparent problems. Grodin is neither violent nor armed. He is a soft-spoken accountant who has embezzled $15 million from organized crime and distributed most of it to charity.

Using the tricks of his trade, De Niro traces him to a New York address and picks him up without incident. It is after he takes him prisoner that the trouble begins.

A bondsman, a Mafia kingpin, and a rival bounty hunter are all after him.

Among all of them, the trip becomes a mad, mad chase. They make their way by passenger train, freight trains and cars from New York, Chicago, Flagstaff, Arizona, Las Vegas and Los Angeles dodging ambushes and violent confrontations.

Film

Along the way, the hunted and the hunter become partners as they conspire to dodge their mutual enemies. As they travel, their banter during harrowing circumstances make up some of the most humorous sequences of the film.

Oscar-winning De Niro lives up to his reputation as one of the most talented actors of our time and Grodin is delightful as the other half of the odd couple on the lam. The supporting cast is outstanding.

With laughs and thrills and touching moments, this free-wheeling film is an original, not to be missed.

Comedy school is now in session at Mark Ridley's Laugh Academy

Registration is now open for the second session of Mark Ridley's Comedy Castle Laugh Academy. New classes are scheduled to begin Saturday, Aug. 13 and Monday, Aug. 15.

The school for stand-up comedians opened its doors May 28 to 45 young students looking for ways to improve their chances at making it in the world of comedy performance.

Students in the first 10-week session learned the writing of comedy material, skills in development of comedy characterization, delivery techniques, and an introduction to improvisational skills under Director Jonathan Round.

Registrations are now being taken at the Berkley Comedy Castle location on Woodward at Catalpa (11 1/2 Mile Road).

Fee at registration is $150. For further information, call Round at 543-6485.

Assumption's mini shape-up begins in August

Summer is not the time to take a vacation from being fit, but a great time to watch the diet and pay special attention to shaping up your body with summer sports and exercise.

A three-week mini series of Kalosomatics fitness class will begin Aug. 8 and end on Sept. 1 at the Assumption Cultural Center on Marter Road.

Since 1977, Kalosomatics is Metro Detroit's original three-level, low impact exercise regimen that incorporates aerobics, calisthenics, isometrics, brisk walking, jogging and yoga. Students are encouraged to work at their own pace, building stamina gradually. Every exercise performed in class is geared to increase the student's fitness level every three weeks over a nine week period. Each workout is done to upbeat music. Kalosomatics exercises all body parts with emphasis on the heart and lungs.

Beginner, advanced and moderation level classes for men and women, are taught by certified Kalosomatics instructors. Leading Wayne State University doctors in the field of Sports Medicine and Physiology, evaluate the manuscripts of the class regularly. Program director is Barb Otul.

Along with a mini-series of Kalosomatics, the Assumption Cultural Center is offering a series of Karate classes beginning Aug. 9 and running through Aug. 30. The Karate class will be directed by ITKF black belt instructors, Gus and Chris Panagos.

ADVANCING THE ART OF GRAND TOURING.

THE 1989 V-12 JAGUAR XJ-S

In 1951, Jaguar created the car that for many would define the concept of "grand touring"—the XK-120 fixed head coupe. This remarkable automobile combined the civilized comforts of a luxurious Jaguar sedan with extraordinary sports car performance.

For 1989, the V-12 Jaguar XJ-S advances the art still further. It is sensuous and luxurious, with impeccable road manners and the power to achieve 145 mph on the test track. The S-type's renowned four-wheel power disc brakes are equipped with a new anti-lock (ABS) system. New spoke pattern light-alloy wheels and wider V-speed rated high performance tires accentuate the S-type's confident stance. Within the 2+2 XJ-S cabin, the traditional elegance of handcrafted wood complements new leather sports seats that offer optimum support for spirited driving.

For a test drive of the new XJ-S and information on Jaguar's extensive three year/36,000 mile warranty, visit our showroom. We can provide details on this limited warranty, applicable in the USA and Canada, and on Jaguar's uniquely comprehensive Service-On-Site™ Roadside Assistance Plan.
