Series of mishaps more than local boater can fathom

Pongracz thought he'd just take his trawler down to Florida for the winter. Should take about a month down and another month back in the spring. He started out in October 1988 — and just got back last week.

First a raft of things went wrong, and finally Pongracz thought he might as well just chill out and forget about hurrying. Now that he's got the boat back home, he's enjoying thinking about his adventures and misadventures, and starting to plan ahead for the fall trip.

The only change he might make is to leave earlier.

Pongracz bought his 36-foot trawler in '87, selecting it for its wide beam and shallow draft. "It's like a house inside," he said, and so it is, with its queensized bed and high ceilings.

Getting a bit of a late start in the '88 boating season, Pongracz headed for Florida in October. Because he wanted to go down the Mississippi, he had to first go north through the Straits of Mackinac.

"There are about three climate zones between nere and Mackinac," he said. "We ran into those storms where all the lake freighters tied up.

If the lake was too rough for the freighters, it was also too rough for the little "Manatee," which was promptly thrown on the rocks off Cheboygan.

"The shrouds were icing. Fortunately, we settled on the rocks for the night," Pongracz said.

The Coast Guard was called, an icebreaker sent, a dory lowered — but the water was too shallow. A marina sent a rescue boat, but it lost power and washed up on the rocks too. A tow boat came out with a diver in a wetsuit; his rowboat flipped, but eventually they got Pongracz, his crew and the "Manatee" into port.

So there he was, two days from home, with a hole in the boat and a missing rudder. Fortunately, he had bought trip insurance the day before he left.

That was the bad news and the good news. The other bad news was that it took a month to fix the hoat.

"They wanted me to leave the boat there for the winter, but I decided to run for Mackinac,' Pongracz said. "It was only 14 miles away; if conditions were too bad, I could always turn

You can already guess that he didn't turn back. In fact, he kept on going, and about 35 miles out of Muskegon, he ran into another storm. Only this one was

"All hell broke loose," he said. "There were 15-foot waves. The boat was breaking up — the bulkhead was separating from the hull. The shaft was broken. It was so icy you couldn't walk out of the pilothouse.

"I tried lowering 500 feet of anchor rope, but we were in 1,000 feet of water. The Coast Guard in Cheboygan asked us if we had some pairs of trousers we could tie together for a sea anchor - we would have needed 400 pairs of trousers."

The Coast Guard towed him in and Pongracz found a man who retooled the shaft overnight.

That was the bad luck and the good luck. The other bad luck was that 20 miles out of Chicago, three of the four studs that held the shaft on gave up their battle. The engine shifted two inches off the stringers and the transmission was ruined.

Pongracz got it fixed (having spent $32,000 of the insurance company's money at this point),

Blessing of the Fleet

Gary and Marsha Dysert of Grosse Pointe Farms had their boat. "Christmas." all decked out for the May 20 Blessing of the Fleet, an annual event at Pier Park by the Grosse Pointe Farms Boat Club.

The blessing was conducted by the Rev. Jack Mannschreck of Grosse Pointe Methodist Church. The all-day event started with a pancake breakfast, followed by ceremonies recognizing the current and past commodores. The colors were presented by the Coast Guard Auxiliary. Auxiliarists also were on hand to conduct boat safety inspec-

Because the blessing was held earlier than usual this year, there were fewer boats in the municipal marina and the boat parade was postponed.

Realtors' City Airport forum draws crowd; pros, cons aired

By Ronald J. Bernas

Hundreds of local residents gathered last week to show their opposition to the proposed expansion of Detroit City Airport.

What made this forum which was sponsored by the Grosse Pointe Board of Realtors - different, was that those who showed up got a chance to ask questions of the people who want the expansion.

But even after the questions were answered, residents remained opposed to the proposed expansion. Speaking on behalf of the City Airport expansion were William Douglas, executive administrator of City Airport, and Monaid Ricks, a representative of Southwest Airlines.

Douglas told the crowd there are two reasons for expanded airport operations at City Airport. The first being a defined need for a new airport, and the second being that expansion would ensure that Detroit Metro Airport functions properly.

He said the airport would go from 360,000 enplanements people leaving from the airport today to 2 million in 2005.

That increase would mean an increase in funds brought to Detroit from the airport. State figures show the airport brings some $73 million to the area and after the expansion, funds of close to $500 million will be brought annually to the area. The new runway, which is one-third of a mile west of the current runway, would push air traffic one-third of a mile west of their current flight paths and therefore, planes would fly over less of Grosse Pointe.

While there was some confusion over the number of flights that can be expected, Douglas said there are 80 flights per day now (40 take-offs and 40 landings) and in 2005 they expect can not only stop it, but may 170 flights per day, again half arriving and half taking off. The expansion is a major stimulus for the economic redevelopment of Detroit's east side," he

Responses to the concerns of noise pollution were answered by Ricks who told the residents the only planes Southwest uses are the quietest of their types in the world. He assured residents that those are the only planes Southwest ever intends to use.

Additionally, he told those who showed up that the types of planes they use are not capable of dumping fuel — a concern of many residents who have reported what appears to be fuel slicks on their houses. Residents of other communities have reported slicks on their pools.

He said that while he is willing to work with residents to answer concerns about noise and times of flights, he said it's very difficult for a carrier to operate under flight curfews.

But residents refused to be dissuaded from their opposition to the airport. They burst into applause when Warren Mayor Ronald Bonkowski told Douglas and Ricks they "can't measure evererything in terms of economics. there comes a point in time when you have to take into account public safety and welfare."

He urged residents to write their elected officials urging them to oppose the expansion. But that would not be enough, he added, and suggested area residents call friends and relatives in other states to pressure their congressmen to oppose the expansion.

Opponents of the expansion stressed that the project is not a done deal. Loud, vocal opposition even reverse some of the work done. They urged other opponents to write officials and work to oppose the expansion. Others who spoke included Jack King, resident of the Grosse Pointes-Harper Woods Airport Study Committee, the first committee formed as a watchdog for the expansion.

He told residents that although the committee has been in contact with Detroit Mayor Coleman Young's office, it has not received any response from him. He said the committee is urging to city to stop any expansion until the seven-county transportation study currently being conducted by SEMCOG is completed.

The group, he said, is also lobbying the FAA to extend the flight path by 1000 feet making the planes turn around over the Detroit River.

George Killeen, a Macomb County commissioner, also spoke, saying City Airport expansion should be halted and expansion should be instead at Selfridge Air National Guard Base near Mount Clemens, and the airport should be shared with the military.

In other airport expansion news, the state Senate adopted an amendment to the state transportation budget which will stop all funding for an airport expansion unless an environmental impact statement with the finding of "no significant impact" has been completed and approved by the Michigan Aeronautics Commission.

The amendment also states that the commission will not approve the use of funds for expansion of airports within cities of populations of more than 900,000 unless voters in adjacent cities with populations of more than 130,000 approve the expan-

Under such an amendment the Pointes would still not have a direct say in the expansion of the airport.

The amendment was written by state Sen. John F. Kelly.

Kelly has also introduced resolutions asking Congress to enact a bill introduced by Michigan Congressman Dennis Hertel which would block the use of federal funds for the airport expan-

Woods colonial color rule may leave traders seeing red

By Dan Jarvis Staff Writer

An amendment to the Woods building-fronts ordinance limiting businesses to a list of colonial paints could leave merchants seeing red and city officials blue in the face.

The amendment, adopted May 21, revises a 1975 zoning ordinance and limits new and repainted storefronts to a list of 36 Pratt & Lambert "Early Americana Colours."

Included in the list are colors such as flame stitch, Sarah Jordan Brown, stone mill gray, bayberry, cooper shop beige and gristmill brown.

Earl Wakely, director of safety inspections, said prior to the amendment approval, store owners were allowed to paint their shop facades in any color under the rainbow.

In an effort to create a colonial atmosphere in the Woods, council members have stated numer- the building inspector." ous times that bright, fluorescent colors and modern architectural designs simply do not fit into an early American look.

Wakely said the amendment is not retroactive and that current shopkeepers are not required to change their colors to conform to the new color rule.

The problem for Wakely may come when a merchant wants to repainting of the exterior of any an approved color but from another manufacturer.

"If someone wants to paint their store with a different brand and the color comes close, I may be able to approve it. I'm not really sure," Wakely said. "It hasn't been put to the test yet."

According to the building fronts amendment, all paint or repaint with a color similar to building "shall conform to the Early Americana Colour chart which is on file with the office of

Furthermore, in a blanket statement dealing with non-conformance penalties of the city's zoning restrictions, anyone who fails to meet the requirements of the ordinance, upon conviction in the Woods municipal court, may be subject to fines up to $500 per day and may be imprisoned for up to 90 days.

Wakely said he would consult with the city attorney, George Catlin, to determine if non Pratt & Lambert "Early Americana Colours" may be allowed.

Catlin said any similar color could be approved by the building inspector, regardless of the manufacturer.

"We're talking colors here, not companies," Catlin said.

But as Wakely said, a problem could arise if one person feels a particular color is similar to one on the list, and another does not.

Teachers from China visit

Hu Ping Zhang and Suzhen Yang, two English teachers from the Republic of China, visited Grosse Pointe schools recently, teaching students about China and learning more about American schools.

Suzhen Yang spent three days at Grosse Pointe South High and a half-day at University Liggett School, observing classes, giving short presentations about China, and having informal discussions with students and faculty about China and America.

In China she is a high school English teacher in Chiang-Xi Province, near Beijing. Her school is sponsoring her participation in the AFS (formerly American Field Service) Intercultural Programs' Visiting Teacher Program.

She has been in the United States since October, living with a host family in Rogers City, and associated with St. John's Lutheran School there. Her hosts in Grosse Pointe were the John Artis family.

Hu Ping Zhang teaches English at a Teachers' Institute in Shanghai, and will use the information and materials she finds here to improve the quality of teacher training in her city. While in Grosse Pointe, she spent three days at North High School with the English, Foreign Language and Social Studies Departments, and a morning with University Liggett history students.

Also an AFS visiting teacher, Hu Ping Zhang has been associated with Alpena High School Education, continuing its budget discussions, stepped a little closer to adopting a 1990-91 budget.

Working toward a June 12 adoption date, the board's main discussion item was whether to plan the budget for an 8.5 percent or a 9.5 percent increase. The board is still divided on the increase, with at least two trustees expressing concerns over the 9.5 increase. When the site-budgeting process began, the board decided to work from a standstill budget of 8.5 percent, even though former Superintendent John Whritner thought a 9.5 percent increase would be a better target.

In a memo to the board, Superintendent Ed Shine said the extra percentage would allow the district another $464,000 to support new programs and some building and field needs.

School board works toward budget adoption

Included in that $464,000 are textbooks, costs for accreditation, technology, staff development and counseling for at-risk students. Also included is $17,000 to fund the Curriculum Coordinating Committee's activities.

This is the first year the CCC has been funded and the money will be used for visits to other school districts as part of their five-year reviews, the hiring of consultants, and the beginning of a curriculum audit.

There will be $10,000 given for changes in the middle school approved by the board from recommendations made by a middle school study committee, also, and $25,000 to continue the High School of the Future project. The project received a $50,000 state grant earlier this year.

While most of the board was in support of Shine's 9.5 percent recommendation, President Jon B. Gandelot and trustee Carol Marr expressed opposition, with Marr calling the 9.5 percent increase "politically stupid." Gandelot said that adding the additional percentage, after telling the site-budgeting committees the board was committed to an 8.5 percent increase, is like a "shell game.'

He added that the board made a commitment to the voters to cut older programs before adding any new ones. He said he couldn't support adding the percentage "just because it would be nice to have without cutting something else.' The budget, which would be $50,804,758 at the 8.5 percent figure, and $51,344,504 at the 9.5 percent increase is supposed to be adopted on June 12.

According to figures Shine gave the board, the average homeowner with a 1990 SEV of $75,000 would pay $179 more in taxes this year at an 8.5 percent increase and $200 more at a 9.5 percent increase.

Two vie for one seat on the Grosse Pointe public school board

Two people are running for the one seat on the school board which is up for election this year. Board President Jon B. Gandelot who holds the seat, announced earlier this year that he would not seek re-election.

The two candidates, Timothy Howlett and Linda Schneider, both have extensive knowledge of the inner workings of the district through their volunteer work for various boards and committees.

The election is June 11.

Timothy Howlett Timothy Howlett

This is Timothy Howlett's second run for a board position. Two years ago he ran and came close, finishing first in three of the five Pointes.

Since then, he's been involved in more school matters, working on both millage campaigns as treasurer, and the site-budgeting committee at Pierce Middle School. He was a member of the Field Use Committee to determine a site for the new library. He is a member of the recruitment action team for the 1988 school's strategic planning.

Howlett, 42, graduated from Kalamazoo College in 1970 and from the University of Michigan Law School in 1973. A partner in the law firm of Dickinson, Wright, Moon, Van Dusen & Freeman, he is also a coach for Neighborhood Club teams and serves on the board of directors for Family Service of Detroit and Wayne County. He is married and has children in the Grosse Pointe schools.

Generally pleased with the direction the district is headed, Howlett sees a few items which need to be looked at.

"The middle school needs to be looked at and the recommendations made by the committee that studied it were good," he said. "We need to strengthen science and increase the technol-

During the hearings on the site-budgeting, Howlett said most of the schools expressed a need for more computers and technology, that need should be addressed, he said.

He praised the site-budgeting process for its attempt to get the community more involved in the school's decisions.

"The process was terrific," he said. "But it's certainly an evolutionary process and things will need to be worked out. The give and take, especially by the teachers really impressed me. The process allows some experimentation and some opportunities for different approaches to education. It gets parents much more involved than they have been in the past.'

Building a new library is another issue facing the board, it's an issue Howlett knows a lot about, having served or planning committees for it.

"Ît's absolutely clear to me that we do need a library," he said. He believes with dialogue between the board, Grosse Pointe Farms officials and area residents that a proposal for the Brownell site can be worked out.

School finance reform is still in the works at the state level and Howlett said the board needs to keep an eye on the procedures. He strongly opposes any caps on local control. Howlett says he has an edge over his competitor because if he is elected, the board will trade a lawyer for a lawyer. He feels the balance of the board is an important issue in this election. "We're fortunate that there aren't burining issues that divide the candidates, I think that shows general satisfaction with the way the district is going," he

Baldwin, an author who spoke richment, and served on two different committees screening applicants for administrative positions. She also served on the Library Advisory Board, the committee that was formed after the first defeat of the library mil-

For her efforts she was awarded an Outstanding Volunteer award in 1987 and in 1988 was one of only nine people in the United States and Canada awarded for their school service by the National Schools Public Relations Association.

She feels she could bring a unique perspective to the board.

"I feel that I have a perspective not only as a parent, but as a volunteer and also I have a feeling about what the community wants," she said.

Her work as PTO president shows her capacity for leadership, she said.

The PTO Council was only powerful under my leadership,'

she said. "My leadership has made it a viable organization, it's time to use the knowledge and the experience and the talent I have.'

The 46-year-old Schneider is pleased with the district's directions, and sees some room for improvement.

Site-budgeting hearings have shown that all schools want more technology and computers, and that the elementary schools want a full time library media specialist - two topics the board should attempt to address.

"Site-budgeting has been successful in business," she said. "It can work for the business of education. It's important to get the decisions closer to the classrooms."

She does believe, though, that Program Advisory Committee members should each receive an orientation prior to meeting to develop the school's program from which the budget is based.

While she praises Superintendent Ed Shine's proposed budget for its insight, she also believes the board should start the budgeting process earlier, and define goals and objectives before any dollar figures are discussed. Schneider sides with the board on the library issue, and believes the Brownell site is the best site at this time.

Schneider says state funding of schools will again become an issue and it's an issue the board should pay attention to.

"I don't support any Robin Hood measure," she said of current proposals which would take money from the richer school districts and give it to the poorer districts. "The other districts need money, but not at our expense."

She feels the board should have in place a cyclical review of all programs so that what is being offered to the students is the best, most efficient schooling available

New equipment, modest tax increase in Shores budget will have a rectangular module and sanitary sewers. The road costs include $5 per ton of ash to

By John Minnis
Assistant Editor
The 1990-91 budget approved by the Shores Village Council last week includes a modest tax increase that will cost most homeowners less than $100 more a year, according to the village manager

Included in the budget, which was adopted May 22, includes an approximate 5.5 percent property tax increase. The Village set the 1990-91 tax rate at 13.74 mills per $1,000 of assessed value. Last year's tax rate was 14.85 mills.

"I feel with a rate of 13.74 we're reacting to the needs of the community and being fiscally responsible," said Village President Edmund M. Brady Jr.

Though the new tax rate is SEV is $184.8 million. Revenue to the average 14 percent increase in state equalized values or assessments - in the Shores this spring. While 14 percent was the average increase in SEVs, some residents, particularly those by the lake, saw much higher increases while some of those farther inland saw smaller increases, according to City Manager Michael Kenyon.

The tax rate was first rolled back to eliminate any windfall gains due to rising property values, and then the new tax rate was set to balance the budget.

Last year's village-wide SEV was $161.5 million. The new numerically smaller than the raised by taxes last year was 1989-90 rate, it reflects about a $2.4 million. This year the taxes 5.5 percent increase in taxes due to be collected are estimated at $2.54 million, a 6 percent increase.

> The village budget is balanced at $3.79 million, 9.3 percent higher than last year's $3.47 million budget. $100,000 in past surplus funds was used to balance the budget.

The new budget includes the lease/purchase of many new pieces of major equipment for the Department of Public Works and the Public Safety Depart-

The public safety officers, who are all trained as emergency medical technicians, are getting a new $62,000 ambulance, which on the chassis and will replace the smaller ambulance van now

Public Safety Chief Daniel Healy said the new ambulance will also have room to carry water rescue gear, which will be handy if any motorist ends up in the lake. Brady said the new ambulance was a top priority with him.

The DPW equipment included in the budget are two dump trucks, a garbage truck and a leaf vacuum truck.

Some $350,000 worth of equipment will be added in all.

The budget also includes completion of the work on Colonial Road, which is getting a new water line and separate storm will be resurfaced after the digging is completed.

Brady said the Colonial Road project is a continuation of the Shores' past seven years of major infrastructure improvements.

Increased budget costs also include the escalating expense of disposing of ash at the Grosse Pointe-Clinton incinerator and increased water costs.

Brady said the village's water rate has not been increased since 1982. The cost of water has been increased from $16.75 per cubic foot to $20. "The water increase is something definitely needed," Brady said.

The increased ash disposal be applied toward curbside recycling, which the Shores hopes to implement some time this year. Brady said he wants curbside recycling, but the village has to determine whether to go through the disposal authority or go it

"I'd just as soon get moving on it as long as I'm comfortable with the way we're going about it," he said.

Kenyon was pleased with the amount accomplished in this year's budget and at a modest cost to taxpayers.

"It's a good budget," he said. "It allows us to do a lot of things. It's one of the best budg-

Brownies for Gleaners

The girls in Brownie Troop No. 1173 from St. Paul School visited Gleaners Community Food Bank May 14 and presented a check for $50. This amount represents the weekly dues collected from each girl throughout the school year - money which had been earned by doing extra tasks at home. While at Gleaners, the girls took a tour of the facility and spent time packing donated food that will help to feed needy people.

Two belated arrests after traffic stop

Two people were arrested some time after a traffic stop by Grosse Pointe Park police May

After the stop was made at 1:54 p.m., the two occupants in the vehicle jumped out and ran into a house in the 800 block of Newport in Detroit.

Later, the subjects returned to their vehicle and were arrested. Both were discovered possessing suspected marijuana and one was wanted by Southfield police.

House burglarized

A home in the 1700 block of Littlestone in Grosse Pointe Woods was burglarized May 28.

The incident is the 16th in the area where a burglary or attempted break-in has occurred since April 26.

The burglary occurred some time between 8:45 and 11:45 p.m. The residents had gone out to dinner and returned to find a side door open. The burglar got into the home by pulling out a 1foot by 3-foot window that had been left open 2 inches.

The house was searched, drawers pulled out and jewelry boxes were handled. The extent of the loss was not immediately known.

Fine entries but no issues in school vote wo good candidates but no major issues. That's a capsule report of the campaign picture as the Grosse Pointe School District prepares to elect a new school board trustee to succeed retiring Board President Jon Gandelot at the June 11 school election.

Once again the district is fortunate in having attracted two excellent candidates. Both Linda Schneider and Tim Howlett have been extremely active in public school affairs and community service or ganizations in the Grosse Pointe commun-

With respect to the issues, the candidates appeared to differ chiefly in matters of emphasis in responding to questions put to them in separate interviews conducted by a Grosse Pointe News reporter and an editorial writer.

Both appeared to be strongly supportive of the school superintendent, the administrative staff and the current board of education, although both had suggestions for improvements they would recommend if elected.

Asked for his opinion on site budgeting, Howlett gave it high praise, based on his experience of the Pierce Middle School site budgeting committee this year. He was impressed by the leadership shown by the teachers, the involvement of the parents in the budgeting process and the experimentation and innovative proposals that could benefit the entire district.

Schneider, a bit more cautious in her appraisal, said she thinks it's a good idea to apply site budgeting to the business of education but is not sure we'll know how well it works until the district has gone through the process a few times. On the basis of her experience with it, however, she feels that children's needs can be better served by the site-budgeting process than by decisions made solely by the central administration.

Both were outspoken in their criticism of state proposals to cap local spending in support of local education as well as legislation already passed by the state House of Representatives that would trim state reimbursement for Social Security and pension fund payments made by school dis-

Schneider said she does not support any "Robin Hood measures" that would benefit poorer school districts at the expense of wealthier districts such as Grosse Pointe.

On the same issue, Howlett contended that we don't improve education by capping local spending but warned about possible legislative action because the out-of-formula districts such as Grosse Pointe are in the minority in the state.

Both candidates support the expansion of Grosse Pointe's library facilities and both expressed hope that objections to the Brownell School site plan could be resolved by the school board in consultation with the Farms council and the residents of the

Asked about criticism that the school system has been filling too many top positions with outsiders, both expressed satisfaction with the current superintendent, who was promoted from within, as well as with the new deputy superintendent, who was recently recruited after a nationwide search.

Asked about the value of the Channel One TV news program being offered to public schools with financing by commercials. Howlett said he doesn't like to see too much reliance on television but he does favor improved technology in the schools. Schneider said she doesn't have a firm handle on the issue but favors increased TV use in providing educational services, such as linking programs between the two high schools.

Given the opportunity at the end of the interview, each candidate offered several additional recommendations each would make in the event of election.

Schneider said she would suggest it is time for the board to review the system's master plan. She also recommended that the board follow the practice of the PTO Council, which she has headed, in mapping out its goals and objectives for each year in advance.

Howlett recommended more education about the school system's funds because many people think it has more money than is the case. He also feels the community needs a broad-based board with a balanced membership, pointing out it will lose one of its two members employed in the private sector with Gandelot's retirement.

There is something to Howlett's latter point but it is also true that Schneider and many holdover board members, in addition to attorney Vincent F. LoCicero, have had experience in the private sector.

As we said at the outset, the community is fortunate in attracting two excellent candidates. Both have made significant contributions to the school committees and organizations on which they have served. Schneider has one child and Howlett three in the public schools. And either candidate would make a fine addition to the board.

This is Howlett's second try after having lost by only 49 votes in a four-way contest for two posts two years ago and the News gives him the nod in what could be a close contest between two well-qualified people.

Pointe solons battle airport oth of Grosse Pointe's state legisla-Pointe Woods and Rep. William R. Bryafit of Grosse Pointe Farms, have proposed new and commendable legislative actions to support the community's opposition to the proposed expansion of Detroit's City Airport.

Kelly last week persuaded the state Senate to accept an amendment that would ban spending of either state or federal funds on the project until after a required environmental impact statement "has been subjected to a public hearing in each impacted community" in the overflight area and has been approved by the State Aeronautics Commission as finding "no significant impact." Alles

The amendment was attached to the state transportation budget which was approved by a 28 to 3 vote with only three Detroit senators opposing it. It requires a comprehensive environmental impact statement on any master plan "which may change property values, noise levels, emissions or other quality of life factors for residents in all communities affected.'

In recommending the amendment to the Senate, Kelly told his colleagues that the proposed airport expansion "will come at great human and financial cost to the people of Detroit." He went on to emphasize that people living in communities affected by an airport expansion project should have a say about what happens or what does not happen.

Kelly earlier introduced Senate resolutions asking Congress to enact a measure proposed by Rep. Dennis Hertel of the 14th

District to block the use of federal funds for the airport expansion because of the project's "negative impact on the quality of life" in the Detroit metropolitan area.

Bryant has introduced a House bill with bipartisan co-sponsorship to place new and difficult hurdles in the way of Detroit's plans to expand the airport. The bill would require advance written approval by the Michigan Natural Resources Commission, the appropriate regional planning agency, the Detroit City Council and the Wayne and Macomb County boards of commission-

Bryant pointed out that earlier bills calling for votes by the residents of the communities adjacent to the airport have met with some legislative opposition. The Grosse Pointe legislator still favors a popular vote but stressed the need of an alternative in the event a popular vote fails to gain the approval of the governor and the Legislature.

It is true that Grosse Pointe residents are not unanimously against the expansion of the airport, as several letters to the editor of the News have illustrated, but there is little doubt that the councils of the five municipalities were responding to majority opinion in approving resolutions of opposition to the project.

It is encouraging to see the active opposition to the airport expansion by both legislators who represent the Pointes in districts that also include Detroit residents. Perhaps the juggernaut proposed by the city of Detroit still can be derailed through the cooperation of private citizens and public officials representing the Pointe communities.

Up the bean patch

To the Editor:

The message on lawns from the Rev. Gregory Sammons was a well-taken ecological view, but I feel he did not go far enough.

I would like to comment on "Grass." (No, disciples of Timothy Leary, not that kind.) It is my point of view that if all of the funds and effort devoted to lawn care in the Grosse Pointes were directed differently, we could solve hunger and homelessness in Wayne County.

Since grass is a crop that science has not made into food (though certain things like WASA bread are suspect), we then are devoting a great agrarian effort to aesthetics. Charles Kettering, the inventor, always said that when man can, as the cow, turn grass and water into milk, we really would have something.

Our great Dictators of Diet, Commissars of Cholesterol, Factotums of Fat and Sultans of Sodium have decreed that the lowly bean, be it chickpea, kidney or what have you, possesses all of the great wonders of protein, and free-flowing fiber. Let us then redirect our lawn services, no need for unemployment, to plant beans instead of Kentucky Blue, and we will send the crop to the soup kitchens.

A well-tended garden of beans would certainly look as well as one of crabgrass. dandelion and rye. Not only could a Grosse Pointer point with pride to his garden, but he could brag about his yield per square foot. If these gardens of beans would look aesthetically good to us, think how they would look to the Heavenly Father who would see Grosse Pointe feeding the needy. When harvested, the beans could be turned over into clover.

No empty brown garden ever; clover grows. We'll like clover - and we'd fulfill a prophecy of Mayor Coleman Young: "Those Grosse Pointers sure as hell are living in clover."

This is not a new idea. During World War II, many Grosse Pointe gardeners were directed to grow Victory Gardens, to put on the table food which was in limited supply.

Grosse Pointers, turn your lawns into bean patches. Set the bean loose on the hunger of the world. You have nothing to lose but your edgers.

John W. Coe Grosse Pointe Farms

Big vote in Shores election or the second year in a row, Grosse Pointe Shores held a hotly contested election that produced a big vote but Challenger Barbara Willett almost won election to the council, however, receiving only three votes fewer than the 403 polled by C. Bradford Lundy Jr. in becoming the third of the trustees to be elected. The other victors were John Monahan, who led the trustee ticket with 508 votes, and Patricia Galvin, who received 414.

President Edmund M. Brady Jr. led the overall ticket, polling 633 votes to the 66 cast for Peter P. Werle, who withdrew after the deadline but too late to have his named removed from the ballot.

The Shores clerk, James T. Wright, was also re-elected without opposition and polled 625 votes. Overall, the Shores turnout was 33 percent contrasted with a slightly lower vote last year but much greater than the 72 votes counted back in 1988 when there was no opposition for any office.

The results offer additional evidence that competition spurs interest in local elections as well as those at higher levels of government. So the losers can take consolation from the fact that they served their community well by discussing the issues and attracting an excellent turnout for a local election.

The Shores village election was the first of four elections scheduled in the Pointes this year with the next one scheduled for June 11 when the Grosse Pointe school district will elect one new trustee. The third will be the Aug. 7 primary for state and national offices and the fourth will be the municipal and general election on Nov. 6.

Let's hope the school district and the other Pointes match the Shores' voting participation in the elections.

Grow up girls

The women of Mills College got their way.

On May 18, the board of trustees reversed its irreversible decision, declaring that the 138year old women's college in Oakland, Calif. would remain a single-sex institution.

On May 3, the members of the board had voted to admit men. Mills was on the brink of financial disaster, they said. They needed 1,000 women to make it work, and enrollment was down to 777. Presumably, if they could attract at least 223 men, they could improve that nasty, nagging cash-flow problem.

The women of Mills said nuts.

They said that women's colleges foster leadership qualities in their students.

That's why the women came to Mills.

If men were admitted, they said, the brutes would certainly tromp on their rights, elbow them out of their front-row positions and monopolize all the prestigious opportunities.

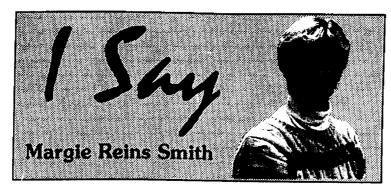

Women flourish, they said, in an educational atmosphere where they're not dominated by Maybe. Maybe not.

The manner in which the women of Mills presented their objections was interesting.

They cried. They sobbed. Network TV cameras panned across throngs of young women as they bawled hysterically and clutched each other.

They produced tears. They wailed. They looked anguished. The whole demonstration looked like a Midol commercial.

The whole flap set feminists' clocks back about 10 years.

Haven't we women been working overtime to distance ourselves from old-fashioned stereotypes? Aren't we trying to shake our reputations as the weaker sex, the ones most liable to be operating with short fuses and wild, fluctuating hormones, the group most likely to behave like emotional dishrags?

Aren't we working to prove and improve - our abilities to stand firm and straight, to look our opponents in the eyes, to state our cases, speak up loud and clear, to assert ourselves in a logical, rational manner?

Aren't we fighting stereotypes that hark back dozens, hundreds, thousands of years?

Aren't we trying to shake off eons of typecasting: the dizzy dame, the dumb blonde, the ditsy housewife, the crybaby, the manipulator?

Hey, women of Mills: wheedling is out; whining and crying is out; pleading is out; grandstanding is out. Blubbering, coaxing, cajoling, teasing and flattering is out.

The rest of us are working on a new assertiveness while you're perfecting your manipulativ-

Come on Mills' women. Girls. If you want to remain a singlesex institution, form committees, write letters, explore solutions, make speeches, march, demonstrate, present logical arguments.

Get moving.

When Harvard and West Point announced decisions to admit women ...did hysterical crowds of men sob on each others' shoulders with tears streaming down their cheeks?

Did the media describe the men who were opposed to admitting women as "devastated" or "hysterical?"

Come on.

It's too late now. You've gotten what you wanted.

But what did you learn? What have you done to help other women assume leadership roles - the very roles you've professed to champion?

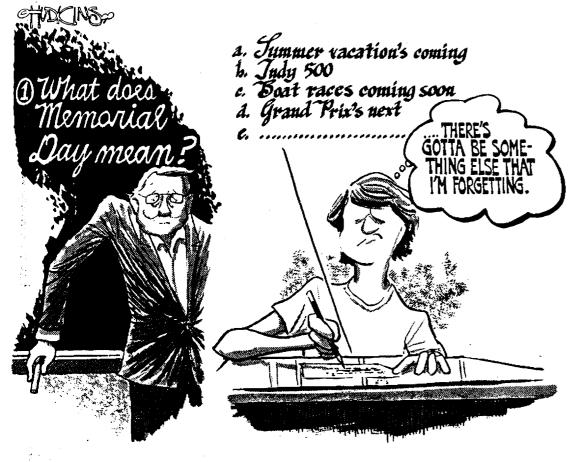

Joan Rivers would say: "Grow up.'

City Airport opposition

Refuse to accept alternative

The threatened Detroit City Airport expansion can be stopped, if we refuse to accept any other result. Through the etforts of many, we are already seeing little glimmers of possible success.

For example, last week the Republican controlled state Senate beat the governor and the Detroit delegation by passing to the House a bill with language proposed and supported by Rep. Roman Kulchitsky of Warren and by me to stop any state involvement in airport expansion unless Warrren voters approve, plus language by Sen. Art Miller to require a state environmental

The Detroit delegation had apoplexy over the inclusion of these provisions in the bill for next year's transportation budget. In addition, no doubt at the governor's request, Martha Griffiths, the lieutenant governor, chairing the Senate session, ruled all the anti-airport language, even that language already in the bill, "not germane," struck from the bill. With gubernatorial candidate Sen. John Engler's assistance, the Senate overrode Griffith's ruling and passed the bill. But this was merely a skirmish. There is much to do.

While the kind of huge increase in flights Detroit envisions as in their so-called master plan is not even supported by Southwest, Southwest does want expansion. It does want the new runway and new terminal. So at least until Southwest forces Detroit to stop the craziness of Detroit's threatened, long-range, master plan, Southwest must be a target for action. "Stop or you lose our business!" we must tell

The real action must be aimed at Detroit and Southwest, outside of Congress or the Legislature, although it might work to say to Detroit, "OK if you want to continue your Utility Tax to help pay for police costs, then back down on planning and spending money on a grandiose airport." I have strongly urged Engler to take just such a position. Merely putting anti-airport language in a state budget will not stop expansion.

Southwest.

What we need most are market pressures on Detroit and Southwest. If you own a business

State Representative in Detroit, tell the mayor that, if he continues to threaten your home and community with a mini-Metro Airport, it may be the last straw for you, concerning keeping those jobs in Detroit. If you or your business, or a business you can influence, uses Southwest, get the message to Southwest plain and simple, "Back off or lose our business."

William R. Bryant Jr.

I have introduced legislation and demanded environmental studies be made by the state and county. I have urged the county to make adequate space available to Southwest at Metro. And I support every community effort to stop the proposed expansion.

We can be successful in this endeavor. It won't be easy, but it is far from over. The issue is far from decided. It may not be decided for years. So, while we must act and are acting now, we need to be prepared for a long and protracted, and potentially expensive, effort.

Eyes right

Is it too early to think about Eyes on the Classics, the Detroit Institute of Ophthalmology's annual benefit which celebrates automobile design?

No. Not if you want to volunteer your services.

Volunteers are needed to sell advance tickets and to sell tickets at the gate, to help with hospitality, to make phone calls and to answer phones at the Eyes on the Classics offices.

Volunteers get free admission to the show — and a free ticket for a friend. So, if you can't volunteer, make friends with someone who can.

Eyes on the Classics will take place on the weekend of July 7 and 8 on the grounds of the Edsel & Eleanor Ford House in Grosse Pointe Shores. Lee A. Iacocca is honorary chairman for the 1990 edition of the fundraiser, which will also include a selection of antique and classic wooden boats.

Woods OKs 1990-91 budget with a 4.9% tax increase

By Dan Jarvis Staff Writer

Despite recent double digit increases on the state equalized value of Woods properties, the 1990-91 budget approved May 21 reflects to an overall property tax increase of about 5 percent.

The approved budget includes a levy of 11.7395 mills ($11.74 per $1,000 in state equalized value) for the city's general operating fund.

Due to an increase in the SEV of property in the Woods, the state Truth in Taxation law provides that the base tax rate for 1990 be decreased to to an estimated 11.1919 mills.

But in order for the city to maintain the present level of service and to provide funds for curbside recycling, incineration and the replacement of equipment, Chester Petersen, city administrator, recommended that the council approve an additional .5476 mills, bring the new millage rate to 11.1919.

The approved increase represents an increase of 4.89 percent in property taxes for residential property owners in the Woods. The increase, according the Petersen, keeps in place city services such as emergency medical services, solid waste and recyclable material removal as well as the general operating fund and debt funds such as recreation, water and sewage and the drain fund.

Also included under the 1990-91 budget umbrella, the general operating fund was set at 7.6330 mills, a reduction from 10.7909 mills per thousand from last year.

The Woods swimming pool bonds were set at .3397 for fiscal year 1990-91, an increase of .0511 from last year's figure of .3908 mills.

Lake level

Lake St. Clair at the end of week April was 573.85 feet above the mean water level at Father Point, Quebec, or 26 inches above chart datum.

This was about the same as the level a year ago, and 1 inch above one month ago. The April monthly mean level of 573.87 feet was about 4 inches above the long-term average for April.

The lake, however, remained about 28 inches below the alltime high April monthly mean level, which was recorded in 1986. The forecast shows that at the end of May, the level of Lake St. Clair will be about 2 inches above its level at the end of April.

The lake is expected to continue its seasonal rise into June. The water level in October 1990 is expected to be about 3 inches below the long-term average for that month, or about 5 inches below the level at the same time in 1989.

According to Farms police reports, a door knob of a rear storm door was pulled out and pry marks were discovered. The perpetrator did not get in the home and the alarm was not set off.

Celebrating our heritage

Students at Pierce Middle School stepped back in time May 17 and studied Michigan's heritage - in a fun way.

Meanwhile, back at the school, the kids got hands-on experience making pioneer folk toys and crafts, learned about geology and mining in the Great Lakes, talked with a Michigan Indian, Paul Bunyan, and learned about pioneerstyle hunting and fishing.

but as time would soon tell, he was still having the same run of luck. Bad.

In a lock above St. Louis, the shaft, which had been protesting loudly and bitterly all the way down the Illinois Waterway and into the Mississippi, broke again. As the water drained out of the lock, Pongracz stood on his deck, screaming at the lock attendant not to open the gates.

"There's a tremendous rapids south of St. Louis and I had no steering," he said. The "Manatee" was towed out again and taken across the river to a marina at East Alton, Ill. where somebody actually fixed it right. It was here that Pongracz learned that the insurance company would pick up all his costs, except for the bulkhead separation suffered during the gale on Lake Michigan. That was deemed to be the fault of the manufacturer.

"Every time I called the insurance company, they'd say, 'Ted, where are you? Now what happened?'

Luckily for him, nothing much else happened. Pongracz and a shifting crew of friends and family sailed on down the Tennessee-Tombigbee Waterway, across the Gulf of Mexico and Florida Bay, around the Keys, down to

Take cover from tornadoes

Each year, tornadoes kill scores of people and damage property valued in the millions of dollars. The National Safety Council urges you to take these precautions when a twister threatens your area:

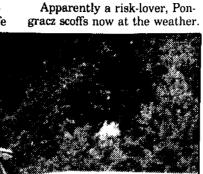

• If a tornado watch is announced, keep your radio tuned to a local station and listen for further information.

• If you see a tornado approaching or a warning is issued in your area, take shelter immediately. The basement is usually safest. In homes without basements, take cover under heavy furniture against a strong inside wall.

 Automobiles and mobile homes offer the least protection. If you're in a car when a twister approaches, abandon the vehicle and lie flat in the nearest ditch or depression. Don't try to outdrive a tornado.

She'll study telecommunications in France

By Ronald J. Bernas Staff Writer

After Teresa Zamboni graduates from Michigan State University on June 9, she will be taking part in what she calls "the opportunity of a lifetime."

Zamboni, a Grosse Pointe Farms resident, will study European telecommunications as a student of the National Institute of Telecommunications in Evry, France.

There she will get an overview of what is being done today to prepare for the 1992 implementation of the European Economic Community, once called the European Common Market.

The program is intensive - all day, nearly every day - and will earn Zamboni six credits toward a master's degree.

Specialists in telecommunications - the field Zamboni has been studying for the past four years - will discuss the problems and concerns facing them in linking European countries both economically and electroni-

"It's a golden opportunity for me," said the 21-year-old. "The information I'll be getting is invaluable. I'm just very happy that my hard work is finally paying off.'

The trip, which will also include visits to laboratories in Brussels and Geneva, was made possible by a partial grant from MCI Telecommunications Corp., which recently contributed $10,000 to the Michigan State University Department of Telecommunications

"Telecommunications is such an exciting field," Zamboni said.

"The technology changes so fast, that there's always something new and exciting going on. I knew when I went into this field that I wouldn't be bored. I haven't been.'

After staying on a couple of weeks longer in France for some traveling, Zamboni will return to the States and start her job as a product coordinator for Rochester Telephone in Rochester, N.Y.

Volunteers honored

Fifty members of the War Memorial's Service League were on hand April 24 at a dinner recognizing their volunteer efforts on behalf of the association over the past year.

In remarks following the dinner, War Memorial President Mark R. Weber thanked the volunteers for their dedication and acknowledged the important role they play in the center's operation. He also introduced Paula Galvin, the center's new volunteer coordinator.

The War Memorial Service League currently has 108 members. The league is made up of four committees, offering a variety of volunteer opportunities. Committees include clerical, docent/historian, host/hostesses and usher and tapestry restoration.

Anyone interested in joining a Service League committee should call Galvin at 881-7511.

One area of immediate need is for a volunteer to care for the War Memorial's indoor plants on a continuing basis. The association is also in need of an experienced projectionist for the Grosse Pointe Adventure Series films which are shown monthly September through May. These duties have been ably handled by Judy Bigelow and Fred Haas.

Rollover accidents in Farms

Two unrelated rollover accidents occurred in the Farms last

A 19-year-old man was cited for drunk driving and driving with a suspended license May 27 after his car struck a parked van on Moran, north of Beaupre at 2:10 a.m.

When police arrived, the driver of the 1986 Merkur was standing outside the car that was lying on its roof 54 feet from where it had struck the parked vehicle. The impact had pushed the van ahead 29 feet.

According to police reports, the car hit the van and rolled over. The driver was the only one in the car.

Police reported the driver failed three times to recite the alphabet, his speech was slurred and his breath smelled of alcohol. He complained of chest and neck pains and was transported to St. John Hospital.

At the hospital, the man refused to submit to tests to determine his blood alcohol level. He was found to have four current driver's license suspensions and was wanted on a misdemeanor warrant out of Harper Woods.

A 37-year-old Berkley woman was involved in a rollover accident on Lakeshore near Moran at 3:07 p.m. May 23.

She told police that she was traveling west on Lakeshore when a motorist traveling east made a left turn on to Moran, causing her to swerve to avoid a collision. Her car struck a curb and rolled over.

She was wearing a seatbelt and suffered minor scratches to her left arm, mouth and chin. She refused medical attention.

The other vehicle did not stop and a license plate number was obtained.

Scholastic Aptitude Test (SAT) sition for grades 11-12, French I preparation courses, review work in the traditional academic areas, and classroom work designed to encourage students highlight this summer's offerings at University Liggett Summer School, June 25-Aug. 3. In addition, an intensive SAT Workshop, with limited registration, will take place from Aug. 6-17.

Other course offerings include math for grades 2-8, pre-algebra, algebra I and II, geometry, study kills for grades 5-12, reading for were only 20 students in the for grades 9-10, advanced compoand II, Spanish I and II, and typing (Word Processing using micro-computers) for grades 4-12.

Tutoring sessions arranged through the ULS Summer School for one-on-one work between students and teachers are also available. The subject matter for these sessions is wider than the Summer School offerings; for example, work in science or trigonometry will be available.

Mathletes

On May 5, 11 Ferry Elementary School students competed in the Mathematics Pentathlon Tournament at Grosse Pointe South High School. There were more than 150 participants in the Division III tournament open to fourth and fifth grade students across the metropolitan area. Competing students from Ferry were Joseph Arnone, Katie Esselink, Argie Floyd, Craig Hadgis, Becky Iskenderian, Christopher Jones, Eric Kim, Becky Owens, Jason Rapp, Brendan Rauss and Taryn Stander, shown above but not in order. This tournament of math games is held in the spring. The event is referred to as a pentathlon because there are five games in each of the divisions. The games focus on active problem-solving and critical-thinking skills. Matched with a different opponent in each of the events, a mathlete attempts to select a best option from a cluster of continuously changing options. Three students received medals for their scores.

South hosts all-night grad party

Graduation ceremonies for the Grosse Pointe South Class of 1990 will be held on Wednesday, June 13. Later that evening, the Mothers' Club will sponsor the traditional all-night graduation party at the Grosse Pointe War Memorial.

Throughout the night and early morning hours, there will be non-stop entertainment, including movies, dancing, casino games (with prizes) pictures, fortune telling, a hypnotist, a mingling magician, a fantastic disc jockey and the opportunity to record favorite songs with a Star Trax Recording. It winds up with a sunrise service at which the graduates share their last planned time together as a class.

Cost of the party is $20 per person and includes food, door izes and entertainment. In the past this party has been attended by almost all the class. For further information, call Judy Walker at 885-4585 or Carolyn Bonanni at 886-5433.

"We're preserving a very old game," she said.

Pop 'n' Jay is played by shooting blunt-tipped arrows at a rack of colorful wooden birds 65 feet away.

The object is to knock the birds off posts to gain points.

The rack has several rows of birds: several on the bottom and a few on top. The higher the bird, the greater the score.

Park detectives use high tech to close books on cases

noto by John Minnis

Grosse Pointe Park Sgt. James Smith, right, with the assistance of Trooper Daniel Bates, left, and Detective Sgt. Jerald P. Bateman of the state police crime lab in Sterling Heights solved nine burglaries in the Park using AFIS, the Automated Fingerprint Indentification System developed by the Michigan State Police. Detective Sgt. Walter Paton also worked on the investigation.

John Minnis Assistant Editor

Grosse Pointe Park detectives closed the books recently on nine nagging 1988 burglaries through use of computerized fingerprint matching.

The investigations of the burglaries, one of which was at a Windmill Pointe Drive home and the others at commercial properties, had progressed as far as they could, and while the detectives had some good latent prints, they could not match them to individuals.

"The cases were at a standstill," said Sgt. James Smith. "We couldn't have solved them without AFIS."

AFIS, which stands for Automated Fingerprint Identification System, is a relatively new capability by the Michigan State Police to compare a suspect's fingerprints against the more than 800,000 fingerprint cards stored in a computer database.

Searching through the 800,000 cards containing the prints of 8 million fingers takes anywhere from a minute to two hours, according to Trooper Daniel Bateman, a latent print technician with the state police regional crime lab in Sterling Heights. Prior to the computerized matching system, it was impossible to compare prints against all those on file. The best investigators could do was compare prints against those of known criminals in the area.

In the area.

In the Park cases, Smith and Detective Sgt. Walter Paton had already ruled out the usual suspects and were at a loss to go any further. They did have some good evidence though: latent prints prints.

Smith, handling the eight burglaries of commercial buildings, had prints of four fingers and a thumb. The burglar had broken out a storefront window and picked the broken glass out with his hands, thus resulting in nice prints on both sides of one piece of glass, which was processed by police after the burglary.

In the Windmill Pointe Drive burglary, Paton also had a piece of glass that the burglar had picked out of a broken window, thus leaving police with some good prints.

AFIS is so new that in 1988 Park detectives could not avail themselves of the high-tech system. But when the state police began accepting prints from local police departments, Smith took the prints to the state crime lab.

The trip to Sterling Heights was a hit — or rather two "hits."

was a hit — or rather two "hits."
When the AFIS computer comes up with a match to a latent print from a crime scene, investigators call it a "hit."
AFIS came up with hits on both
Smith and Paton's cases.

The prints obtained from glass of the July 6, 1988, burglary of the City Limits Deli were matched with those of a man known to Park police, but detectives were unable to place the suspect at the crime scene. The AFIS hit proved positively that the suspect was the burglar. Other evidence placed the suspect at the other commercial burglaries.

Smith learned that the suspect was already serving time in Marion, Ohio, for armed robbery. Because the suspect will not be eligible for parole until July

Human investigators still key to fingerprinting

By John Minnis Assistant Editor

While the new AFIS system can quickly search through millions of fingerprints, it is still the human investigator who makes the final determination.

"We say yes, it's the guy, or no, it's not the guy," said Detective Sgt. Jerald P. Alexander of the latent print unit of the Michigan State Police regional crime lab in Sterling Heights. Alexander recently helped Park detectives solve nine burglaries using AFIS, which stands for Automated Fingerprint Identification System.

Alexander explained AFIS consists of a huge database in East Lansing containing 800,000 fingerprint cards. Each card has 10 prints and that adds up to 8 million fingerprints that are in the state police AFIS computer.

Connected to the database are "booking terminals" at the state police's seven regional crime labs and at other locations where local police agencies cooperatively purchase and operate a terminal.

Basically, local police obtain a latent print or part of a print at a crime scene and take it to a regional crime lab, such as Sterling Heights. There, one of the six members of the latent print unit will first determine if the print is of good enough quality to begin a computer search.

A technician enlarges the print to about the size of a Polaroid print. The print is then traced to enhance the ridges and unique characteristics, such as ridge endings, ridge islands and places where ridges fork.

Alexander said each individual's fingerprints are unique and courts have upheld the prints as evidence. Even identical twins have unique prints.

The fingerprint tracing is then scanned and the crime lab's booking terminal is used to compare the tracing with prints stored in the central database.

The search can be narrowed to save time, such as whether the print came from a male or female, which finger it is and fingerprint type. There are three types of fingerprints: arch, loop and whirl.

AFIS then compiles a list of "candidates." Alexander is quick to point out that AFIS does not pick out suspects. The fingerprint specialists then compare the candidate prints with the suspect's. It is the human investigator that determines whether a candidate print matches the suspect's. If it does, then police say they have "hit."

It is then up to the local police to use the print identification and combine it with other evidence to get a warrant and an arrest. After the arrest, the suspect is fingerprinted by detectives, and the new print card is compared with the suspect's card in Lansing.

State police print specialists, such as Alexander, then painstakenly compare the print cards and the latent print from the crime scene to determine if they are the same. The same technicians are often required to testify during trials to explain their techniques.

The important thing, Alexander said, is that the computer is merely a way to search the vast number of prints to come up with possible matches. The human specialists then make the determination. Before AFIS, local police would have to come up with their own list of candidates, a list limited to the police department's records or other evidence.

Alexander said police do not go into court and say so-and-so is a suspect because the computer said so. The finger-print technicians make the determination using methods that have been accepted by the courts since 1911.

1992, the Wayne County prosecutor's office decided not to try the case, according to Smith. He said the department will be notified if the suspect is paroled.

Paton's Windmill Pointe Drive case was unusual in that the fingerprints matched with a west-side man who made his first and only trip to the Grosse Pointe area May 19, 1988, and apparently picked the Windmill Pointe Drive home at random. He cleaned the place out, police said, taking such items as televisions, computers and other heavy, bulky items. A resident was upstairs taking a shower at the time of the burglary.

"If it hadn't been for AFIS, we would have never made this guy," Paton said.

But as was the case with Smith's suspect, the Windmill Pointe Drive burglar is serving time in Ionia on four separate felony charges. And because he won't be eligible for parole until 2023, it would be a waste of effort and expense to prosecute him for the Park burglary. Most likely, the sentence would have been served concurrently with his existing sentence so no years would be added to his minimum incarceration.

AFIS has already helped solve two homicides in southeastern Michigan and identified a suspect involved in 18 armed robberies of convenience stores in Oakland and Macomb counties.

Police were without a suspect in the July 1989 murder of a woman at a Clinton Township trailer park. The woman was killed when the murderer rammed a plastic bag down her throat. AFIS matched prints from the murder scene with those of a parolee who, unknown to police, was living in the same trailer park as the victim.

The Clinton Township case is also using other new high-tech crime investigation techniques: laser fingerprint lifting and DNA matching. The murder was the first solved in Michigan using AFIS.

The 1986 murder of an East Detroit man was solved earlier this year using AFIS. The 78-year-old East Detroit man died April 15, 1986, when he was pushed down his basement stairs during a robbery attempt. Earlier this year, AFIS matched up fingerprints preserved from the crime scene with a 24-year-old parolee, who was then arrested when he reported to his parole officer.

A 30-year-old man was finally identified after robbing 18 convenience stores in western Macomb County and southeastern Oakland County. He was known as "The Crowbar Robber" because of his weapon of choice during the robberies.

Following the armed robbery of a Royal Oak convenience store, an alert police officer preserved a pop bottle that the suspect had carried into the store. Using AFIS, prints on the bottle were matched with the suspect.

While the Park cases solved with AFIS were not as headline-grabbing as the homicides and The Crowbar Robber cases, the Park detectives are satisfied to have solved several cases, and they expect more successes through the use of AFIS.

through the use of AFIS.

Print specialist Bateman said the public has always believed that if police have a fingerprint, they can come up with a suspect.

"We've never been able to do that until now," he said.

With AFIS on-line, if a suspect has previously been charged and fingerprinted in Michigan, state police will have the prints on file. And if the suspect leaves his prints at a crime scene in the future, AFIS will make the connection.

Pension increases for top executives may reverse union apathy

A rare thing occurred at the General Motors annual meeting ast week when stockholders booed the chairman, Rober B. Smith, accepting a doubling of his pension to $1.2 million. And we learned something many of us did not know.

The reason for paying a man more to do nothing than most of us make in a lifetime of toil, it seems, is that GM must stay competitive or risk losing top executives to less parsimonious organizations.

Ignoring the fact that the people GM fears it will lose are the people who decided the American motoring public wants a full line of cars that all look alike, that quality is not all that important and that the Cadillac Allante should be sent to Italy for its body even though Americans have never indicated much interest in Italian cars, where is Rober B. Smith going to go? Or other top GM executives?

Through most of the past half century, GM has been the end of the yellow brick road. Few top executives leave GM - John Z. DeLorean and Bunkie Knudsen (with not-so-good results) and Walter P. Chrysler (he did all right) come to mind. Bunkie's father, William Knudsen, left GM before retirement, but that was to help win World War II after the Nazis committed the grave error of invading his native Denmark.

By Richard Wright

The claim that enormous pensions are needed to keep top executives from jumping ship for Ford Motor Co., Chrysler Corp. or Yugo won't be easy to sell to the UAW in upcoming negotia-

Unions have been seeking a way to counter member apathy, to fire members with the zeal that spurred organizing of the industry in the '30s. GM may have solved the union's problem.

Labor and management have had their differences over the years, but they managed to turn out some pretty fine automobiles and a number of them were on display recently at the eighth annual Spirit of Detroit Car Show at Historic Fort Wayne. sponsored by the Detroit Chapter of the Veteran Motor Car Club of American and the Detroit Historical Department.

This year's honored marque was the Lincoln Continental, which was just fine with honorary show chairman William Clay Ford Jr.

"The original Continental was the inspiration of my grand-father, Edsel Ford," he said. "My father, William Clay Ford, oversaw the Continental's revival as the Mark II and there has been a Continental in the Ford lineup ever since.'

In one of those intriguing coincidences that dot automotive history, the Lincoln car was originated by Henry Leland, the same man who launched the Cadillac. The Cadillac was born when Henry Ford split with financial backers in 1902. Leland showed them an efficient one-cylinder engine he had developed for Ransom E. Olds.

Olds had rejected it, but directors of the Henry Ford Co. did not and it powered a new car called the Cadillac, which became part of General Motors in 1909, as did Leland and son Wilfred.

After resigning from GM in 1917 over the building of war materials (boss William Durant didn't want to, the Lelands did), the Lelands formed the Lincoln Motor Co. to build engines for warplanes. After World War I, the Lelands turned to the automobile again and in 1920 introduced the Lincoln - mechanically excellent, but with dull styling and overpriced.

With Edsel Ford's encouragement, Henry Ford bought the financially troubled Lincoln Motor Co. in 1922. Edsel took a particular interest in the Lincoln, so when he had his dream car put into metal, it was natural that it would be a Lincoln, the 1940 Continental designed by Bob Gregorie and powered by the Lincoln Zephyr V-12 engine. In 1941, the Continental became a separate car line. Fewer than 2,000 of this first Continental were built before production ceased in 1942 for the duration of World War II. The car was revived in 1946, largely unchanged except for a more heavily chromed grille. These cars are favorites with collectors, despite their troublesom V-12 engines.

With Ford Motor Co.'s first full post-war redesign for 1949, the Continental was missing. The success of the Cadillac Eldorado, introduced in 1953, and the drive of William Clay Ford resulted in the Continental Mark II, a beautiful two-door with clean and classic lines, long hood and short rear deck. It was an aesthetic success, but did not bring in big profits so was dropped in 1957 after Ford Motor Co. went public.

The Mark III came out in 1958, a huge, chrome-laden hunk of Detroit iron, a gross and overdone insolent chariot (yep, my favorite). For some reason, the '59 model, with only cosmetic changes, was called the Mark IV and the '60 the Mark and convertible, the only fourdoor convertible built in America since World War II except for a few '51 Frazers.

Lincoln confused everyone by reviving the Mark III name in the '69 model lineup for a twodoor personal luxury car based on the Ford Thunderbird, offered in addition to the Continental sedan. This was really more in the concept of the first '40 Contental.

This was followed by a series of similar two-door luxury coupes, the '72 Mark IV, the '77 Mark V, the '80 Mark VI and the aerodynamic '84 Mark VII.

A sampling of these cars were grouped on display at the show, an interesting feature. Next year, Oldsmobile will be the featured car at the ninth annual Spirit of Detroit show.

Volvo drivers are the most arrogant motorists, according to a survey reported by Washingtonian magazine, while Plymouth owners are the least arrogant. I've owned and driven cars of both makes and I agree.

It would be hard not to be arrogant in this '33 Plymouth.

of the ground, which necessitated 20-foot high, concrete walls down 'the sides," said Hertel, chair of the House Transportation Committee, "Stranded motorists are forced to walk along the highway to the next ramp, which puts them at risk."

Hertel had argued that a number of alternative plans were not acceptable in terms of safety and practicality.

"MDOT was promoting a plan to place signs along the freeway, urging motorists with cellular phones to call the 911 police number when they spot an emergency," Hertel explained, "This plan has too many holes in it.

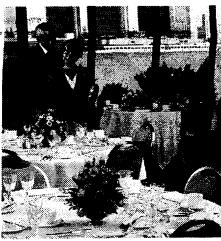

State Rep. Curtis Hertel, D. First, the average motorist trav-with car phones. "The safety of the citizens on our highways is a responsibility This freeway was carved out of the state, not private citizens who happen to have car phones. Our first priority is to ensure the motorists' safety and assure there is access to help should an emergency arise.'

Hertel also stated that he did not believe vandalism was a good enough reason not to install the phones.

"Even though we may incur some extra cost because of vandalism, the help and safety that will be gained, I believe, will far outweigh that extra cost. One tragedy because the phones were not installed is one too many,' Hertel said.

MDOT's objective is to have the emergency phones installed by this coming fall.

'Jesus Christ Superstar' is modern, stirring, superb

By Marian Trainor Special Writer When the 1970 Andrew Lloyd Webber/Tim Rice British rock gospel "Jesus Christ Superstar" opened on Broadway in 1970, it was received with both praise and protests.

There were discussions on talk shows, newspaper editorials and sermons from church pulpits. By 1971 the hubbub had died down and it was accepted and acclaimed as a stirring, luminous and impassioned theatrical triumph. It has survived to become a classic of its kind, one that has been through many pro-

He is the most loyal of the 12 apostles in the beginning, and the most tormented in the end. His "Heaven On Their Minds" is beautifully sung and he stands out in the ensemble numbers.

If all this sounds frivolous in light of the story told, it is not. Adrian Zmed makes us aware of the solemnity of the story. Even as he sings and dances, he effectively delivers his role as Jesus. We see and feel his sorrow at Judas' betrayal, his human fear of the inevitable crucifixion he must endure. The crucifixion scene is beautifully staged. We see Jesus hanging on a metallic cross that seems to float in mid-air, gorgeously lit. It is in sharp contrast to the dark, macabre scene where Judas hangs himself over the pit with his tormentors dancing around him as he is lowered into the pit with them. A brilliant production, an excellent cast and a five-piece electronic ensemble in the pit enhancing score all combine to make a new and shining and pleasing version of a rock opera that has never lost its popular-

Fewer is better, according to Mary Anne Zinn, co-chairman of the Christ Church Grosse Pointe Antiques Show.

The sixth annual antiques show will be held on Saturday and Sunday, June 2 and 3, at Grosse Pointe South High School's gymnasium, with 39 selected dealers.

The limited number of dealers, Zinn said, ensures careful control of the quality and diversity of the antiques. She said there will be something for everybody - a diversity of items and prices.

The four co-chairmen of the annual show and sale, Suzanne Nicholson, Susie Mc-Millan, Wendy Jennings and Zinn were enthusiastic about the quality, variety and selection of antiques that will be on exhibition and for sale, as well as the other activities that will add to the ambience of the

They rattled off a dozen categories of antiques to be available: nautical items, wicker, linens, sporting equipment, porcelain, paintings, silver, jewelry, maps, prints, quilts, collectibles, English and American furniture ... and Quimper.

Joan Datesman, a well-known authority on the colorful French faience pottery, will present a lecture, "Collecting Quimper," at 9:30 a.m. on Saturday, June 2. The price of the lecture is $6, which includes a continental breakfast and admission to the rest of the show afterward.

The three-day extravaganza of antiques opens on Friday, June 1, with a patron preview from 7 to 10 p.m. The public is invited to the preview party, but advance reservations are necessary. Call 885-4841.

The antique show and sale itself runs from 10 a.m. until 6 p.m. on Saturday and from noon until 5 p.m. on Sunday.

In addition to the antiques on display and for sale, the church will feature a relaxing get-away for shoppers - the Victorian Tea Room — located in the Church Undercroft. Shoppers are invited to sip tea in a proper English setting and to choose from an assortment of proper English tea-time accompaniments: freshly baked scones served with Devonshire cream and homemade strawberry preserves or clotted cream; traditional shortbread; Russian tea cakes; lemon tea bread; fudge; tartlets; and assorted tea sandwiches featuring such delectibles as curry, egg, cucumbers or salmon.

Members of the Christ Church Girls' Choir will be dressed in Victorian dresses and will serve Tea Room guests. Harpist Ann Etherly will play music appropriate for the sipping of tea.

There's also free guided tours of Christ Church's stained glass windows.

There will also be a plant sale and a boutique featuring items with Christ Church's familiar angel logo.

Admission to the Antiques Show is $4. Admission to the Tea Room is $5 for adults; $2.50 for children under 10.

Parking is free.

Proceeds from the whole show will go to the music education program and the mission of Christ Church Grosse Pointe.

The chairmen are expecting 2,000 people during the two days.

"We'd like to net $35,000 to $40,000," said McMillan. "All the money goes to the choirs and ministries of the church.'

"We have a fine music education program under the direction of Frederic DeHaven," Zinn said. The Men and Boys Choir and the Men and Girls Choir take turns traveling. Every other year, one of the choirs plans an international tour, a combination of performances and sightseeing. The Men and Boys Choir went to Europe for threeand-a-half weeks in 1989, and the Men and Girls Choir will travel in 1991.

"We'd like these trips to continue," she said. "Ours is probably only one of a dozen church choirs in the United States that travel."

Jennings said she's pleased that eight new dealers will be represented at this year's show. "We have a waiting list for dealers," she said. "Trying to get a good mix is a challenge. Eleven of the 39 have been with us for all six years."

McMillan said the yearly event has become a total church activity. "I enjoy the comaraderie of the dealers and the volunteers. We have about 200 volunteers who work during the weekend and many who work for the whole year."

Suzanne Nicholson said the Tea Room is her favorite part of the two-day event. "It represents an investment by the Girls Choir and volunteer mothers. The girls went to a training session to learn the proper way to

Adjustments had to be made that would neither lower benefits of those retired nor bankrupt Social Security by continuing with high benefits. A system was devised to lower the replace. ment rates over five years for those retiring in the future. Had this alternate benefit not been adopted, benefits for those born between 1917 and 1921 could have been lower than they are However, some Notch babies are petitioning Congress to increase their benefit levels. There are fears that such an amendment would seriously jeopardize the financial stability of the Social Security system.

A total fix of the formula would cost $80 billion over five years, a reserve that is being held in trust for future retirees and their families.

Although it appears on the surface that the Notch babies are the ones making the sacrifice to keep the system solid, the truth is, everyone gave up something. Retirees gave up a sixmonth COLA. The baby boomers or young workers agreed to pay substantially higher payroll taxes and receive a lower level of benefits at retirement in an effort to be sure that Social Security would be there when they needed it.

The Grosse Pointe Artists Association and the Grosse Pointe Village Association will co-sponsor an outdoor art show, "Art in the Village," on Saturday, June 2, from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. on Kercheval and St. Clair in the Village. St. Clair will be closed to traffic during the day.

The event is a celebration of creativity, not just print art, said Ruth Whipple, co-chairman of the third annual event. This year, she said, the committee is introducing the concept of the art of flowers.

More than 50 artists will display the results of their creative endeavors: Paintings, weaving, metals, pottery, stained glass, wood crafts, jewelry, porcelain dolls, dried flowers, basketry and fashion painting are a few.

Corinne Dolega, charter member of the Grosse Pointe Artists Association, will be the featured artist at the one-day

Polly Martin, artist-in-residence at Pewabic Pottery, will be a guest artist. Amy Danforth, of Ohio, children's book author, will autograph her latest books. The Border Cities Violet Club will display some new and unusual species of violets.

Artwork donated by participating artists will be given away at three drawings: noon, 1:30 p.m. and 3 p.m.

Art show browsers will be able to vote for their favorite artist by entering the Shoppers' Choice contest.

Whipple said she hopes for good weather this year. "The first year we picked the hottest day of the year and had high winds. Last year, it rained during part of the day."

Whipple and Dolega are cochairmen of this year's event. Other committee members include Margaret Collins, Norman DuMouchelle, Rosemary DuMouchelle, Rita Ficham, Isabelle Goosen, Carl Hedeen, Robert Kienle, Leo and Tina Salvaggio, Wilma Urban, Kathy Walker, Barbara Wehby and Jim Webers.

The tennis begins at 10 a.m. at several Grosse Pointe parks and clubs. A $20 donation includes a full day of tennis, trophies, prizes and a barbecue at Three Mile Park after the matches.

The third annual event will feature a collection of oils, lithographs, sculptures, prints and etchings from Grosse Pointe Gallerie 454, including the work of Grosse Pointe artist James Kristich.

There will be a live auction and a variety of silent auction items such as restaurant dinner certificates, jewelry, beauty treatments, wine and so on.

For $150 per couple, patrons will enjoy a 5:30 p.m. preview and a light supper. For $50 per couple, the general reception will begin at 6:30 p.m.

Where should we be looking?

By Rev. Bryant W. Dennison Jr. Christ Church Grosse Pointe

Last Thursday, many of our churches celebrated Ascension Day. This is the day the church remembers the account in the gospel of Luke and in the book of Acts where Jesus left his disciples and ascended into heaven.

As told in Acts, this story has one of my favorite verses: "As the disciples were looking on, Jesus was lifted up, and a cloud took him out of their sight. And while they were gazing into heaven as he went, two men stood by them in white robes, and said, 'Men of Galilee, why do you stand looking into heaven?"

They are standing around, gawking, looking into the sky. And the two men say, "What are you doing? Why are you looking up there? There isn't anything to see in that direction. You need to get on with it. You need to get on with your lives. You need to get on with your work."

That raises the question for us of where should we be looking? Where do we find God's presence? Where do we find our focus and direction?

I think in several places. First of all we need to look to ourselves. We need to seek and to find God's presence in ourselves. God is alive in each one of us. Sometimes that is hard for us to do. It's hard to do because it's hard for us to believe that God is in us. It may be a challenge to us to believe that. It may be hard for us to do it. But we need to

We need to look outside ourselves, too. God is not completely within us. God lives in our world. We have to look to our world, to the needs of our world to find God. We look into our cities. We look for God in the oppressed, the homeless, the poor, the hungry. God is there, but we won't find him there unless we look for him there.

Finally, we need to look at each other. We need to look at the people around us, at the people next to us. God lives in them. And if we are going to find God, we need to look to the people closest to us. We need to discover God in them.

The temptation is for us to do what the disciples did: to gaze up into the sky - to see God as only "up there" or "out there." The challenge is to look for God and to find God here: in us, in our world, in each other.

"The dwelling of God is with us. He will live with us, and we shall be his people." (Rev. 21:3.)

Christ Church has Pentecost party

Members, friends, neighbors and community residents of all ages are invited to "Come See The Dove" at the Christ Church Pentecost celebration on Sunday, June 3 at the 10:15 a.m. church service.

"Pentecost is a very special day in the history of the Church and a symbol of its birth," said John W. Coe, chairman of the Christ Church evangelism committee. "We thought it appropriate to ask community residents to join in the festivities and share with us the strength, serenity and good feelings that come from Christian fellowship."

A large banner of a dove the sign of the Holy Spirit who appeared to the apostles on the first Pentecost - has been constructed by Kathie Black, Diane Jahnke, Julie Sutton and members of the senior high youth group. The completion of the dove banner will be the focal point of the outdoor celebration to be held after the church ser-

While enjoying refreshments and the lively music of a Dixieland band, guests will be aided in making a felt cutout of their hands that will be used to form the feathery wings of the dove. Upon completion, the dove will be hung in the foyer of the Christian Education Building. Balloons will be given to children as a memento of their participation in the Pentecost observance.

Ancient, popular flower has rosy image

The most popular flower in the Show. This year, as always, it tiful member of the Rosacrae family, this marvelous flower originated in Asia Minor and is one of the oldest flowers in culti- brids. vation. It was considered a very old bloom 5,000 years ago when on Friday and 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. it was featured in the royal gardens of ancient Asia and Africa.

Roses have been the symbols of civilization, perhaps before written history. From the Biblical Rose of Sharon in the Song of Solomon to this day, they have been symbols of love.

Rose fanciers will have ample scope for enjoying these lovely flowers on Friday and Saturday, June 15 and 16 at the Neighborhood Club, 17150 Waterloo, when the Grosse Pointe Rose Society presents its annual Rose

The Persian poets of the 13th of poetic fantasy since the dawn century praised the beauty of roses. Roses grew in the mythical gardens of Semiramis, queen of Assyria, and Midas, king of Phrygia. In all mythology, the rose is the symbol of beauty and youth as well as love. The Greeks give credit to several deities for the beauty of roses -Chloris, the goddess of Flowers, Aphrodite, Zephyrus, Apollo and the Three Graces, arguing that so beautiful a flower must have effort as it could never have been achieved by one diety alone. Other gods and goddesses presumed to have had a hand in the creation of the rose were Eros, the god of love, and Dionysius, the god of wine, who contributed nectar and fragrance.

Not only the symbol of love and beauty, in time the rose became the sign of secrecy and silence. In ancient times a rose was suspended from the ceiling of a council chamber as an indication that everyone present was sworn to secrecy or sub-rosa, under the rose. The rosette which decorates many plaster ceilings today is a development of this idea.

Rose as an ingredient in perfumes, ancient and modern, has undying popularity. Attar of rose, and rosaceum, an ointment of rose oil and honey, and rose water were the most lavishly used cosmetics in ancient Persia, Egypt, Greece and Rome.

The rose became one of the most popular heraldic flowers in history with the War of the Ro-

Sometimes it almost seems as if other flowers are trying to imitate roses, perhaps out of envy for the prominence of roses in the general flower scheme of things. In making potpourris, Rose Geranium is often substituted for roses because the scent is so similar and oil of Rose Geranium is much less expensive than rose oil. There are many different scented geraniums, but the rose-scented one is the one everyone knows about.

The idea of roses rubs off on other things too. Rose color is always a popular one in household furnishings and dress. The rose shades are the most popular in lipsticks and sunglasses. In the Victorian era the most popular furniture was made of rosewood, a Brazilian cabinet-wood with a reddish color and faint fragrance.

The more one thinks about roses the more associations come to mind. What about the origins of words like rosary?

Even in the field of nutrition, the rose is important. Rose hips, the seed-pods of roses, are marvelous when made into jam. They contain more vitamin C than oranges do, and roses are both decorative and tasteful in salads. Candied rose petals are easy to make and are very glamorous decorations for birthday or wedding cakes or other desserts.

HAVE A PLEASANT TRY AT PERFECTION BRIDGE BY WOODY BOYD THE PASTEBOARD PASTIME

I don't remember a more challenging or pleasurable four days of bridge than those I shared with some fifteen hundred other bridge buffs this past April in Gatlinburg, Tennessee. It was the Mid Atlantic Regional's maiden playing date at Gatlinburg's brand new convention center that could have easily handled again that many. Players came from the four corners of our card playing country... twelve I know of from the Detroit area alone. Seven of last year's top twenty Barry Crane Five Hundred were prominent participants leading a field of many more from this elevated list of experts. The unlimited flight "A" (over 750 points) was the strongest regional field of players anyone could remember seeing in a

The highlight of my eventful playing stay was a patiently awaited date with one of the game's premiere performers. Mark Lair is a majestic technician, a student of assurance and a very thorough provisionist. Add to these talents his ability to spur a superior playing relation and you can well understand why he has been in the top ten of the Barry Crane Five Hundred Race for eight straight years,

It was difficult to pick the best hand from our engagement for today's column. There were two we defended especially well and this one in which the opening lead was the key to the contracts

Over my partner's no trump I had a problem and hoped he would conclude that south had a singleton club and a monstrous heart suit. Four spades was enterprising and Mark accepted my bold invitation with his flat, but fine, hand.

As you can see, a diamond lead, which wasn't likely, beats the contract immediately. A spade gives you very little chance too, but a club which I fortunately got, with the correct guess, brought in the dubious dozen.

Not so surprisingly the field wasn't there, but those that were" went down leaving us almost alone with a shared top with one other pair. My partner was too polite to say much, but his silence was enough to tell me it was a lousy slam. Generally when you're in the company of the calibre of Mark Lair, thoughtful calls and good execution usually produces the desired result.

Robbie Buhl adopts thousands of kids

Power on the high court

I'm not so sure what makes the Grosse Pointe South tennis team so strong, and I'm willing to bet no other team in the state does, either.

Volleys look more like shots being fired. Serves couldn't be caught with a baseball glove, and watching the Devils hit the ball gives a more severe case of whiplash than being hit in the rear by a truck.

Coach Tom Berschback doesn't have an easy job, however. He's got five nationally ranked players, and a few others that should be.

On May 23, South and Brother Rice took part in a preview of the state tennis finals at Elworthy, but it turned out to be no contest as South won.

The most difficult task Berschback has is where to put his guns. Lee Lorenzini, who signed a scholarship to Purdue, was last year's No. 1 singles player, but this year was moved to No. 1 doubles with Matt Smucker. After a loss at No. 1 doubles to Liggett's Doug Wood and Bill Schervish, Lorenzini was pushed back to No. 2 singles.

Playing No. 1 is a top-10 player, Jeff Giraldo, who didn't play last season because he was trying his hand at the circuit. Dilemma? Hardly. Fun? You

The tennis players at South are men wrapped up in babyface, immature bodies. They are 16- year-old players who could last with McEnroe and Krickstein, but have to go through the motions of high school tennis. Nick and Emiliano Lorenzini, who play No. 3 and 4 singles, respectively, will eventually play big-time tennis. Cullen McMahon, who teams with Smucker at No. 1 doubles. is also ranked.

Teams across the state, except for a few, pale in comparison to South. In fact, when a weaker team is scheduled, Berschback won't even take some of his top players. Why? Because they wouldn't have fun, wouldn't have much competition and frankly, would be wasting time. Playing sappy opponents doesn't hone a hightech game.

Guys like Jim Pappas and Steve Carlin, who play No. 4 doubles, and Brian Disser and Chris Schilling (No. 3 doubles), and Craig Kostecke and Bill Wundram (No. 2 doubles) round out South's talent-laden dream

Since the winter when the first tennis rankings came out, South was listed as the favorite to win the Class A title. They have pounded No. 4 ranked Brother Rice, beat No. 3 ranked East Lansing, and took care of Ann Arbor Pioneer, which was No. 2.

Watching these guys play tennis looks easy, but you know darn well it should look easy after years of training and endless days of practice.

South will win the state title because of its talent, but also because of its poise. These players don't get rattled. If a shot goes astray, or a racket pops a string on a base-line shot, it doesn't matter because it's just a matter of time until an opponent is left wondering what just passed him — it's usually a Giraldo serve, or a Lorenzini backhand.

Berschback will probably be the coach of the year, but so could I with players of that caliber. Taking nothing away from the coach, however, he should be. He's made some tough choices and hasn't bruised any egos. He knows the game, teaches the game and enjoys watching his players compete. On June 1-2, South will be in Midland trying to capture a state title and the rest of the state will see just what I'm talking about.

Robbie Buhl became an instant father-figure last week when he took on the added re-race car driving, accepted his new position as official spokesman for the "Racing for Kids" program, which will draw national attention to the hospital and Buhl.

Buhl, the reigning Barber-SAAB Pro Series national champion, is competing in the American Racing Series for the next two seasons, and will donate a portion of his winnings to Children's Hospital.

"This will be a great thing to do," said Buhl. "It'll take more of my time, but it's intended to raise the awareness of the hospital and the need we have to get young kids healthy. If anything, it'll draw more attention to the hospital and that's our goal."

Troy's Dave Bieneman, who drives a top fuel dragster, will also donate part of his winnings to the hospital.

"I've got a 21-year-old son who didn't have any medical problems," said Bieneman, "and because I am thankful for that I'd like to put something back into a hospital with less fortunate

Buhl's family has a longstanding affiliation with Children's Hospital. Buhl's greatgreat-grandfather, Hiram Walker, was one of the original founders of Children's. His grandparents, Theodore and Julia Buhl, helped lead the hospital during its first decade, and Buhl's mother, Faye FitzSimons Buhl, served on the Board of Trustees of Children's for 12

"I think the affiliation gives Robbie another incentive to race," said his mother. "I like the aspect of him putting something back into the community, in fact because he grew up and was always somewhat affiliated I think it's only natural that he would do this.'

Buhl's official initiation will come June 15-17 at the Detroit Grand Prix, where he will carry the unique purple and yellow "Racing for Kids" graphics on his Copper & Brass/Failsafe Magnetics/Infinity Special.

This is an exciting program linking the care of our children with the most popular spectator sport in America," said Thomas M. Rozek, president of the hospital. "What is more, racing sponsors will have an additional in-

And with that, perhaps more money can be raised for Child-

"We know of no other sport like this," explained William W. Finsky, M.D., coordinator of "Racing for Kids." "We hope to make this a national program.

While on the 14-race circuit, Buhl will visit ailing children in the hospital at the venue of the race. In fact, on June 3 he races in Milwaukee and will be there one day early to promote "Racing for Kids.

'We contacted the people up in Milwaukee," Buhl said, "and they are extremely excited about the whole concept. Also, it will be fun to have some of the kids out to the track and show them around. The neat part about that is they don't have to say anything because they are in awe of the car and everything that goes with it. That's what it's all about."

This deal, however, is not a one-way street because Buhl hopes to enhance his racing career, too.

"We cover a lot of venues on the circuit and hit a lot of great markets," he said. "That's what we wanted to do to promote Children's, and when there's attention drawn to it we're (the racing team) brought into it as well. I'm excited to help children and this is the best way because I'll be doing it while I race.'

North's Kerri-Sue Kelly to heat up Lake Superior

North's Kerri-Sue Kelly has earned a shot at playing college softball for Lake Superior State College.

Kerri-Sue Kelly, a proficient softball pitcher at North for the past four years, is headed for the chilling winds and mountainous However, with her heated fastball, Lake Superior State College shouldn't be as cold when she takes the mound next spring.

Kelly, who has not only led North on the mound but also at the plate, has enough grants and scholarship funds available from the university that she has earned the equivalent of a fullride scholarship. "I'm very excited because this is what I wanted all along," said Kelly. "All the work and time I put into softball has now paid off and I'm sure I'll be able to pitch very well up there."

Kelly, who throws strikes approximately 70 percent of the time and entered her senior season with a .425 batting average and 267 career strikeouts, inked the deal two weeks ago.

"I owe a lot to Coach Taylor (Bill, North's coach) because of the help he gave me over the last four years," said Kelly, who received a Certificate of Honor for Outstanding Achievement in Marketing Education from North last week. "I think playing for Coach Meyers (Don, LSSC's coach) will be just like playing for Coach Taylor."

The scholarship allows Kelly to remain on the track to professional softball.

"This means I'll be able to continue with what I've learned since I was young," she said.

"It's also a great opportunity for me to get a good education and perhaps do as well as I did at North. Eventually, though, I'd like to play professional softball."

Central Michigan University, Ferris State and Wayne State tried to entice her, but Kelly found Superior State more interesting.

"The other colleges showed some interest, but they were looking for someone to play a few positions," she said. "I wouldn't have a problem playing another position, but Coach Meyers recruited me as a pitcher and that's what I do best. He also showed more interest in me than the other schools and I liked Sault Ste. Marie is a long way from home, but Kelly knows she will adapt to college life.

"I know it's far from home. but I made the right choice," she said. "I will miss all my friends and the things I do here, but in time I'll make new friends and eventually have a new home up there. The person I will miss the most, however, is my mom because she won't be at all my games."

Norsemen cut off Saddlelites

By Rob Fulton Sports Editor

With two-unearned runs and only two hits, the Grosse Pointe North softball team managed to pull off one of the season's biggest upsets May 25.

Behind the four-hit pitching of senior right-hander Kerri-Sue Kelly (13-3), the Lady Norsemen bounced Regina, the defending Class A state champs, from postseason play, 2-1, in a pre-district game at North.

"It wasn't pretty, but we won," said North coach Bill Taylor. "Both runs were unearned, but we'll take them.'

It was North's 16th win against 5 defeats.

"This win was a big one," said Taylor. "Not only does it keep us alive in the state tournament, but it proves we beat a very competitive team and that we can play at that level."

With the game tied at 1-1 in the bottom of the seventh, and the crowd lining both benches, North's Kelly Kunkel drew a walk. One wild pitch and one passed ball later, Kunkel was standing on third base, representing the winning run. With the help of another passed ball Kunkel scampered home and the Lady Norsemen made sure Regina will not make a return trip to the finals.

"I have to credit the blend of seniors and sophomores we have on this team," said Taylor. "We have four senior captains all in the starting lineup and every one of them have helped the sophomores. The blend has been

"It doesn't matter how you get the runs," Taylor said. "The key is to just get them.'

Downs, Blue Devils advance in postseason baseball play

Sports Editor Junior left-hander Brian Downs lost his no-hit bid in the seventh inning, but it didn't matter as the South baseball team beat Southeastern, 2-0, in a pre-district game May 25.

South, 16-11, will now play defending Class A champion Notre Dame June 2 at North.

"This was a big win for the team," said South coach Dan Griesbaum. " I was disappointed for Brian, but he pitched a very good game. He kept the ball down and Southeastern beat it into the ground and we made the plays.

Darcy Jones was slated to undergo appendectomy surgery, but instead she performed a major operation herself.

Jones, who threw a two-hitter to beat Lake Shore, 12-0, in a pre-district softball game May 25, was going to be operated on just three days before, but took medication that subdued some of the pain.

Instead of suffering pain, she handed it out.

"When it comes to Darcy, there's really not (a problem) because she won't let a lot of things keep her down when it comes to playing softball," said

So, in perfect procedure, Jones struckout nine and walked only one. After striking out her sixth batter of the day, Jones became South's all-time strikeout queen, surpassing Lynn Vismara's career mark of 317. Jones has 320.

"Darcy pitched well, but I also like the way we played," said Bruce. "It was like a perfect surgery out there defensively. Over the last week, we've really been playing some fine softball and this is the time of year you want to play well."

South beat Mount Clemens, 16-0, behind Kim Apple's pitching performance, but lost, 5-1, to North last week.

Not only did Jones do the job on the mound, she led South's 11-hit attack with three hits in four trips, and has raised her average to .378. Becky Wysocki (.302) also had three hits and Jenni Wysocki had two hits, including a two-run triple.

South Lake too tough to handle; ULS loses 2-1

By Rob Fulton Sports Editor

After beating Lutheran East and Lakeview by a combined 12-) score, it was only natural the University Liggett School girls' soccer team would find better competition in the district championship game.

Not better on paper, South Lake beat the Lady Knights, 2-1, May 26 at ULS to advance to the regional tournament.

According to ULS coach David Backhurst, his team proved to be its own nemesis.

"I really feel we hurt ourselves," he said. "I think we should have beaten them because the two goals we gave up shouldn't have been scored.

"The mistakes we made to allow those goals, however, were mistakes based on youth and inexperience."

A defensive lapse led to South

Lake's first goal and failure to clear the ball two minutes later cost ULS a 2-0 deficit at the in- South Lake's lead to 2-1 with 28 termission.

"At halftime I appealed to the kids' innate athletic ability to come out in the second half and play well," Backhurst said. "And was very pleased with the way they played in the second half."

Except when his squad wasted scoring opportunities.

"We probably outshot South Lake 19.9, but we squandered a lot of opportunities," said Backhurst. "After we scored our first goal we had the momentum, but couldn't convert and finish at the other end."

ULS' Peaches Wehmeier cut minutes to play, but that was it in the way of scoring

"We did a great job of creating our own opportunities," Back-hurst said. "But we couldn't capitalize and that was the frustrating part of the game."

ULS, which had 10 shutouts on the season, finished 11-5-2 and allowed only 14 goals.

"It was a fine season," Backhurst said. "We had some injuries to some key people that really hurt, but we're a young team that will be back next Grosse Pointe North has cornered the track market in the Macomb Area Conference.

Both the girls' and boys' teams, coached by Charles Buhagiar and Pat Wilson, respectively, won their third consecutive league title. The girls, led by Laurin Schultz, scored 160 points, and the boys scored 163 1/2 points.

"It was a nice win," said Buhagiar. "Both Romeo and L'Anse Creuse gave us a tough meet. The meet was close until we had stronger performances in the running events.'

In those running events, Schultz, who was named the Most Valuable Athlete in the MAC White Division, took three first places and took third in the Linda Krieg, who's only a freshman, took second in the shot put (32 feet 1 inch) and second in the discus with a personal best throw of 105 feet 6 1/4 inches.

Katie Loeher was a league champ with a run of 2:28.6 in the 800, and Nikki Van Oppens won the 3200 run in 12:06.

Noelle Cormier, Loeher, Monica Rhee and Jane Rice, who placed in both hurdle events, won the 400 relay (53.1), and Loeher, Cormier, Rhee and Anne Scallen won the 800 relay. Samantha Henson placed in the shot and discus.

"We ran better than well and beat them handily," said Wilson, whose team finished 4-1 in the league. "Eisenhower's field events were pretty good, but they couldn't handle our running events.

Scott Collins, who will run in the state meet June 1-2, won the 1600 (4:37) and 800 (2:02) to lead the way. Juan Ganum was a first-place finisher in the 100 dash with a superior time of 10.9, and he also anchored the winning 800 relay team (1:34.9), which included Ed Smith, Amod

Matt Van Coppenolle, Smith, Sarniak and Ganum also won the 400 relay (45.6), and Smith went on to win the 200 (22.9) and place second in the 100 in 11.1. Tom Gauerke was a league champ with a 10:21.9 run in the 3200, and Dave Vier won the high hurdles (15.5), and the intermediate hurdles (42.7).

In the shot put, Bob Thomas (137 feet 7 inches) and Ted Bidigare (131-9) took second and third, respectively.

Reeve Brandon led the pole vault crew with a second place, while Jared Kolleth and Dan Skuce took fourth and sixth, respectively. Hyko Ekmekjian and Dan Papantoniou also placed in the hurdles.

This team was outstanding all season long," Wilson said. "All season long they competed as best they could and did nothing less than that.'

The Gold Cup: The "Superbowl" Of Hydroplane Racing

Gold Cup racing in Detroit celebrates 75 years of gold and thunder this year – and what a glorious history! From gentlemen sportsmen just after the turn of the century to today's professional drivers, the Gold Cup races have thrilled generations of Detroiters.

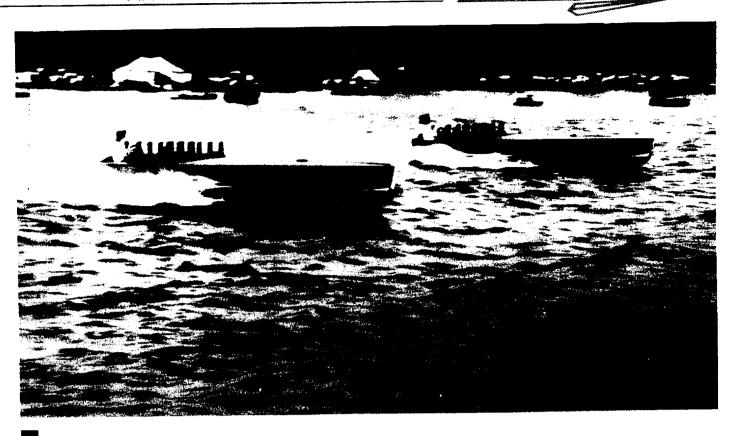

The Gold Cup is hydroplane racing's answer to the Kentucky Derby, the Davis Cup and the Superbowl. But you don't need a mint julep, tennis whites or a neck as big as a giant sequoia to enjoy the mighty engines as the boats tear up the challenging waters of the Detroit River.

The Gold Cup race and its majestic trophy came on the scene in 1904. In those days, the races were day-long, or even week-long regattas, in which the Gold Cup race was the highlight. The course was similar to today's loop, but the boats raced clockwise in three heats of 30 miles each. There were yacht races between powerboat heats. The early racers were often sponsored by their yacht clubs, and the winner's club hosted the next year's race.

Among the highlights of Gold Cup racing in Detroit:

"Miss Detroit," the winner of the 1915 Minneapolis Gold Cup brought the thunderboats to Detroit in 1916, but alas, not to stay. Miss Minneapolis took the Gold Cup right back to the Twin Cities.

Gar Wood, sponsored by a syndicate from the Detroit Yacht Club, dominated Motor City Gold Cup racing from 1917 until 1921, with Miss Detroit II, Miss Detroit III and Miss America, setting speed records that stood until after World War II. He was the sport's first superstar, winning the Gold Cup five times as driver, four times as owner.

Rule changes in the early '20s broadened the field, but Detroit continued to supply strong contenders, including Horace E. Dodge, whose "Delphine IV" brought the Gold Cup back home in 1932. Dodge also won the cup in 1936. The following year, Fisher Body heir Herb Mendelson sponsored the winning boat, "Notre Dame."

The late '30s were an exciting time for glamor boats and their drivers in Detroit. In 1938, Count Theo Rossi di Montelers, Italian heir to the Martini & Rossi vermouth fortune, raced and won under the flag of the Detroit Yacht Club in "Alagi." The same year, Horace Dodge fielded an experimental hydroplane that raced with only three points touching the water – a forerunner to today's thunderboats – but it failed to make a strong showing.

Racing languished during World War II. In 1946, the Detroit Yacht Club revived the Gold Cup series. Bandleader Guy Lombardo bought the 1941 Gold cup winner, "My Sin," renamed her "Tempo VI" and swept to victory, smashing Gar Wood's 26-year old speed record.

1950 was the year that revolutionized boat racing, with true three-point hydroplanes. It was also the beginning of a fierce four decade rivalry between Detroit and Seattle that still rumbles on.

The '50s and '60s found many Detroit families in the pits with such famous speedsters as Jack Schafer's "Such Crust," the Schoeniths' Gale boats, and the Dossin brothers "Miss Pepsi." Boats regularly reached 150 mph.

▲ Miss Detroit brought the thunderboats to Detroit in 1916

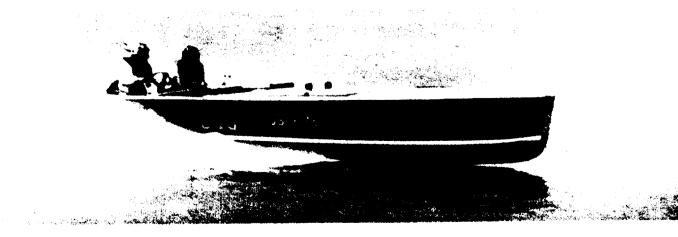

No history of the Gold Cup in Detroit is complete without Royal Oak's Bill Muncey, "Mr. Gold Cup." The most successful driver of all time, he won 62 major races in the unlimited class between 1956 and 1981, including eight Gold Cup victories. Only race films settled the winner in his first Gold Cup victory. And in 1972 on the Detroit River, Muncey swept all four heats in Joe Schoenith's "Atlas Van Lines."

In 1976, SODA hosted the Bicentennial Gold Cup, the largest single-day event of the Bicentennial year, with a crowd of 500,000. Since then, the number of fans who watch Gold Cup racing in Detroit has grown to over 750,000 daily spectators.

In 1986, the latest running of the Gold Cup in Detroit, Chip Hanauer scored the fifth of his seven consecutive Gold Cup wins in "Miller American."

This year, 10 to 12 unlimited hydroplanes are expected to return to the Motor City to compete for the gold. Hometown racers Tom D'Eath in "Miss Budweiser" and Mark Tate in "Oh Boy! Oberto" will battle the course against a field of top contenders including Jim Kropfeld driving the "Winston-Eagle," Chip Hanauer and "Circus-Circus" and Mike Hanson with "Miss Madison." It's a race certain to score once again in the history books!

▼ Miss America IX, the first boat to break the 100 mph barrier

Artist, Jim Clary, Turns His Brush From Maritime History To Gold Cup Racing

When Jim Clary, a respected local marine artist, was approached to do a painting suitable for reproduction as a poster for the 1990 celebration of 75 years of APBA Gold Cup racing in Detroit, his reply was, "It's about time! I have been hatching a hydroplane painting in my head since I was a kid and first took my dad's ladder down to the banks of the Detroit River to watch the races."

The poster depicts, in historic detail, all 26 Detroit Gold Cup winners since 1916 – the first year Gold Cup racing came to this area. Twenty-two different boats in all, from the 1916 "Miss Minneapolis" to "Miller American" in 1986, the last year a Gold Cup was run here. Several Detroit boats are featured, including the "Miss Great Lakes" driven to Gold Cup victory by Danny Foster in 1948 and Bill Muncey's 1972 winner, "Atlas Van Lines." Both Foster and Muncey hail from Detroit.

Early local boat builder/drivers Gar Wood and Chris Smith, the "granddaddies" of powerboat racing, are featured along with historic likenesses of the Detroit Yacht Club, the old time/scoring clock and the Belle Isle Bridge. The Gold Cup, the oldest championship trophy in American Motor sports, provides a dramatic backdrop for the winning boats.

Clary was chosen for this once in a lifetime project not only for his talent but for his reputation as an expert on marine history and his dedication to detail and accuracy.

When the folks at SODA heard the glamour stories about Clary's having been chosen as the expedition artist for the "Titanic" and "Edmund Fitzgerald" searches, and his ability to bring "ghost" ships to life through art, they saw the project as adventuresome and exciting. What they weren't prepared for was that part about 'dedication to detail and accuracy.' Although Clary did much of his own research, he wasn't satisfied until SODA produced photos and confirmation on color and other details from at least two additional reliable sources. The SODA staff learned more about the history of Gold Cup winners in Detroit than they wanted to.

A couple of collectors of Clary's work have expressed an interest in purchasing the original art which bears a price tag of $25,000. However, Clary says, since the 1990 "Miss Budweiser," racing into the future, is depicted at the bottom of the painting, the trick is for Bud to win the Gold Cup in Detroit in June so that he can add "Miss Budweiser – 1990 Winner" to the original and offer it to Bud owner, Bernie Little.

Capturing the sights and excitement of hydroplane racing on film is a snap! We asked professional photographer and hydroplane racing fan, Bruce Hubbard for his 10 best photo tips.

- 1. Bring plenty of film. If the weather is sunny, use 100 or 200 ASA film, whether you're shooting color prints, color slides or black and white prints. If it's overcast, use 200 or 400 ASA film. The slowest film (with the lowest ASA rating) usually makes the highest quality pictures.
- 2. Check your camera batteries before leaving home, and pack an extra battery in your gear bag.
- 3. Use a tripod. It cuts out camera vibration and helps you follow the boats easily. For stop action shots, use a shutter speed of 250th, 500th or 1000th of a second. Try a slow shutter speed 1/8th to 1/15th of a second while you pan for experimental effects.
- 4. Vary your lenses. Pick a wide angle lens 28 mm or 24 mm for overall views or tight crowd shots. For a powerful portrait, shoot your subject behind an interesting foreground.
- 5. Want a dramatic close-up? Choose a 300 mm to 1000 mm telephoto lens on a 35 mm camera. For the best action shots, use a 500 mm to 1000 mm lens.
 6. Increase the magnifying power of your zoom lens with a Tele-extender, but remember to use a slower shutter speed. Try zooming in and out while the lens is open for special effects shots with the slow shutter. A 2X Tele-extender will double
- 7. On a sunny day, a polarizing filter on your lens makes colors brilliant. A sunshade on your lens eliminates flare. (But remember that sometimes flare can be a great special effect when it's deliberate.)

the telephoto effect.

- 8. Glare on the water may fool an automatic camera. Try to take your reading off the boats rather than the water, if you can. Best of all, test your camera and film during trial runs, before race day.
- 9. Shoot low, shoot high, vary your point of view. Get boats at water level they'll thunder off the photo, so your viewers can share the thrill of hydroplane racing.
- 10. Don't leave your film in a hot car, especially in the glove box. Excessive heat will ruin your prize pictures.

One more thing: On Thursday and Friday, during qualifying days, you can shoot great photos of the boats and their racers in the pits.

Call (313) 771-7333 for pit pass details.

Shop Talk

Nothing gives spectators greater credibility than mastering thunderboat talk. Here are a few buzzwords to get your conversation tuned up:

Airing it out: when a boat is at proper planing altitude and going as fast as possible.

Back off point: the spot where drivers let up on the throttle to enter a turn.

Cab-over: boat design with the driver's seat (cockpit) ahead of the engine.

Chute: the straightaway section between turns on the race course.

Dead in the water: what happens when the engine quits and the boat stops on the course.

Exit pin: the final course marker in a turn, or the beginning of the chute.

Goes in the drink: the driver jumps into the water when the boat is on fire or sinking.

Honking: hitting top speeds down the chute.

Hot footing it: driver is going through a turn as fast as possible without flipping.

On the step: when a hydroplane is going fast enough to lift out of the water and begin riding on top. A boat must be on the step after the one minute gun is fired, one minute before the start of the heat.

Pit lizards: fans, usually young women, who hang around the pits to engage drivers and crews in pre and post-race fun.

Sticky water: when the water is flat and waveless and the boat doesn't plane as well as it should.

Timing run: driver rehearses time check from the exit pin to the starting line.

Why would anyone voluntarily leave family and friends in order to scurry madly about for four days, parking cars, directing traffic, selling tickets and managing the general mayhem that 750,000 people can bring to the banks of the Detroit River during the Gold Cup race?

The 400 volunteer members of the Spirit of Detroit Association (SODA) will tell you that it's because they want to be a part of the sport they love – the sport called hydroplane racing.

SODA is the all-volunteer group dedicated to keeping the Detroit power boat races the premiere event on the hydroplane racing circuit. They're definitely not the "on the shores" types with sun umbrellas, yachting caps and a picnic basket.

In real life, they're from every occupation and every part of the Detroit and Windsor areas.

During race week, they work in the pits with the owners and drivers of the powerful thunderboats.

Volunteers man the judges stand, rescue boats and time & score the event. They provide security and credentialing, help park cars, sell tickets and act as host and hostess to the spectators.

After it's all over, they start planning for the next year. It isn't just because they have fun doing it. It takes time to get together a bunch of neighborhood kids to throw a party for 750,000 of their closest friends.

SODA must be fun – membership has doubled since 1977, and many families volunteer generation after generation. The group has been in action since 1962, when three Detroit thunderboat enthusiasts laid plans for a new approach to unlimited hydroplane racing in Motown. Prior to that time, the races were funded by area yacht clubs. It was time for the races to become professional and to make them a truly Detroit-wide event.

Over the last 28 years, thousands of Detroitarea men and women have helped SODA promote and stage the Gold Cup series and other Detroit powerboat events. In 1990, this dedicated civic-minded group continues its commitment to perpetuating powerboat racing on the Detroit River for the city of Detroit and its people. After all, it's their favorite sport and their favorite city.

Anyone is welcome to become a member of the Spirit of Detroit Association as a volunteer or as a booster. To join write SODA at P.O. Box 24380, Detroit, Michigan 48224 or call (313) 771-7333. Membership includes, subscription to the "Signal Flag," an opportunity to purchase tickets before they are offered to the general public and other membership perks and privileges.

fleet of 12 unlimited hydroplanes will line up on the Detroit River the second week in June for the annual hydroplane races – each with the hope of taking home the most prestigious trophy in all of powerboat racing, the APBA Gold Cup.

However, according to thunderboat racing historian Fred Farley, "Unlimited races are not won on the race course, but at the boat shops during what is ironically called 'the off season.' The main ingredient of a successful year is the dedication and the ability of the crews. Once the racing starts, it's all a matter of fine-tuning."

We don't know how the rest of you feel about this, but, we'll go along with that theory, if you'll let us toss the size of the budget and the ability of the driver into the pot. Even so, these aren't the fixin's that make hydroplane racing cook for us. What gets us is the pageantry of it all – the beauty and roar of those huge boats with their 20 story high roostertails flying across the water. It's also fresh air, fun, sun, picnics and memories with friends and family.

Sure, it's the excitement and danger of the race itself – but it isn't who wins or loses what heat or which event with what engine that captivates us. To most of you motor sports purist out there, this is heresy, so what follows is some of that other stuff.

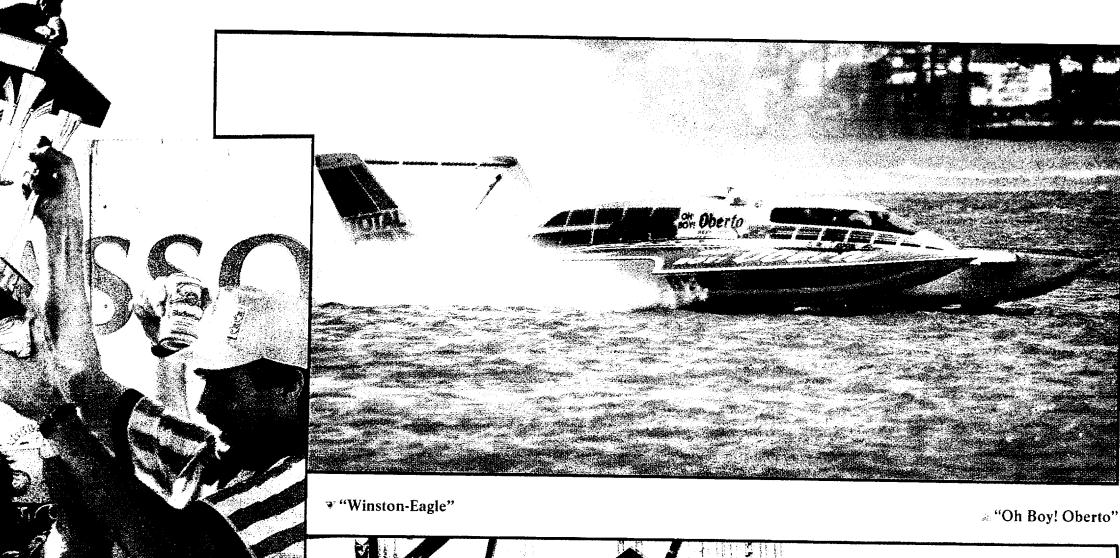

"Miss Budweiser" - Tom D'Eath (Fairhaven, MI),

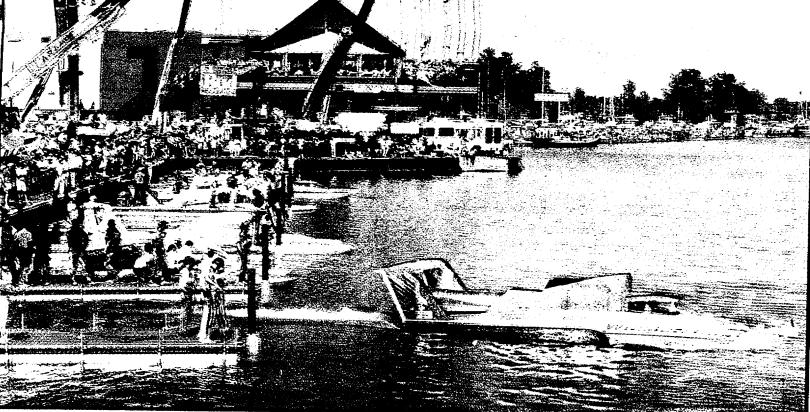

1989 and 1976 Gold Cup winner and defending World High Point Champion will be a favorite. The team is determined to win the gold in Detroit. A win could make it a first Detroit Gold Cup for owner Bermie Little.

D'Eath tells us he will test two "Miss Bud's" prior to the start of the season. A decision will be made in Detroit whether to run the hull they ran in Miami or the backup hull. The two hulls will appear identical to the average race fan.

"Circus Circus" - Right next to D'Eath is Chip Hanauer (Seattle, WA). Hanauer has won six of the last eight races on the Detroit River. With Hanuaer in a new hull - which is touted as being different from anything unlimited racing has ever seen, – "Circus" is an important contender. Chip has won seven Gold Cup trophies, and needs only one more to equal legendary Bill Muncey's mark of eight.

Other turbine powered hydroplanes to watch are the "Winston Eagle," driven by Jim Kropfeld (Cincinnati, OH), last year's "Miss Bud" driver, and "JIF presents Mr. Pringles" with George Woods (Seattle, WA), in the cockpit. The 1988 Rookie of the Year, Steve David (Ft. Lauderdale, FL) will drive a yet unnamed 3-point turbine two-seater owned by Bob Fendler! Ok, one is for Steve David. Who's the second one for?

Along with the "whoosh" of the soaring turbines will be the "roar" of the big reciprocating engines. The "Oh Boy! Oberto," driven by rookie Mark Tate (Canton, MI), will not only be the loudest boat on the Detroit River, it is expected to be the most consistent performer on the circuit. Mitch Evans (Lake Chelan, WA) will pilot the "U-3" out of Evansville, IN and Mitch's brother Mark Evans (Lake Chelan, WA) will drive the brand new "U-40" Evans Racing team automotive powered boat.

The "Holset/Miss Madison" driven by Mike Hanson (Madison, IN) will also be among the entries. The "Holset/Miss Madison" is unique in all of sports. This boat has the distinction of being the oldest ownership in all of unlimited hydroplane racing. The boat debuted in 1961 and is owned and sponsored by the small community of Madison, Indiana.

One of this year's exciting racing "sights" will be Ed Cooper's boat, the U-9, a piston powered boat sponsored by Richard Golden of D.O.C., Detroit Optometric Centers. Add the U-7, "Thor Racing" and Brian Keogh's (Grosse Pointe, MI) formerly "Stroh's" into the pot, along with the possibility of Jerry Schoenith's (St. Clair Shores, MI) U-88 entry, and the Detroit River will be cooking with action throughout the week.

On Course With Detroit Silver Cup Grand Prix

Father will drive against son in this year's Detroit Grand Prix Silver Cup race – but it's a friendly rivalry for Bob and Jimmy King of New Baltimore, Michigan. Jimmy is the reigning national champion. He'll be driving "Alternative Glass Block," which he owns with his father, Bob, who will drive "Defiance," another King boat. The Kings are one of the top teams on the circuit.

At least 20 Grand Prix hydroplanes will compete for the Detroit Silver Cup. Powered by 500 cubic inch supercharged Ford or Chevrolet engines, the 20 to 24 foot boats approach 150 mph on the backstretch and average 120 mph around the 1-1/4 mile course.

Qualifying heats will be run on Saturday, June 9. The final heat will be on Sunday, June 10. Eight boats per heat will roar past judges, scorers, timers and spectators. Prize money will go to the drivers with the five fastest times overall.

The thunder and speed of these boats are thrilling to experience. In the past two years, the Grand Prix race was decided in the final lap. This year, the parity on the Grand Prix circuit should be just as exciting. Insiders predict there won't be a 5 mph difference separating the finalists in the time trials.

Grand Prix racers are beginning to attract commercial sponsors, as do the unlimited class of hydroplanes. However, it costs about a third as much to put a Grand Prix rig together. Nevertheless, it is still expensive. The cost to develop a Grand Prix team is about $100,000.

Besides the King father-son team, this year's top Silver Cup contenders include:

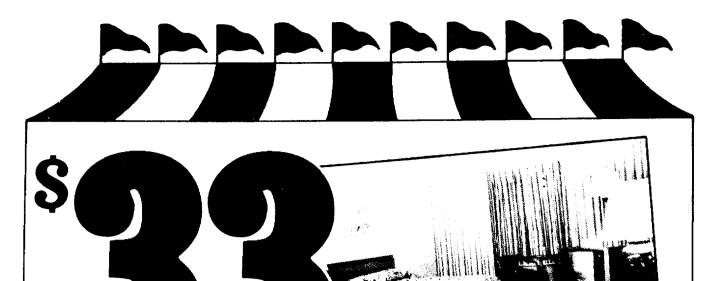

Elias Bros. "Big Boy," is sponsoring a Grand Prix hydro owned by Rich and Jo-Ann Goulah of Grand Island, N.Y. 1990 will be the Goulahs' debut as Grand Prix owners and driver, Frank Richardson's first full season since a major crash in 1987.

Look for Quebec based defending champion "Executiff V" to churn up the Detroit River course in June. Last year, it set an American speed record of 95.119 mph.

But if you like to root for a home team, watch Paul Smith of West Bloomfield, Michigan who will be driving "Square Wall Construction." The Smith Racing Enterprises team has 11 years of experience in drag boat and hydroplane racing. Smith "tested" a new safety cockpit recently by hitting a concrete wall during a qualifying heat in Toledo and walked away unhurt. What we want to know is, "Did they name the boat "Square Wall" before or after the collision?"

Kids 12 and under tour free with an adult; older kids and grown-ups pay just $5 for a tour. Tours are conducted by Unlimiteds Detroit, a hydro-hep fan club dedicated to spreading the word about the fun of hydroplane racing. For further information call (313) 771-7333.

"New Kids on the Course" – Saturday, June 9 11:00 a.m.-3:00 p.m.

"Big Boy Saturday" – Saturday, June 9, All Day
For the first time in local hydroplane racing history, Detroit will be staging official Unlimited Hydroplane competition on Saturday. The giant boats will make a formal showing along with the usual great show put on by the popular and gusty Grand Prix Hydros who will be racing on the Detroit River for the coveted Detroit Silver Cup once again. What this all means is: "Big Boy Saturday" will be a great day to enjoy exciting hydroplane racing competition.

Thanks to Elias Brothers, Inc., Saturday's reserved seating is free to anyone with a coupon from a Big Boy restaurant. With the coupon, kids and their parents can enjoy the best seats in the house with free viewing in the general admission areas along the north shoreline. Saturday tickets are normally $5 per adult. Just stop by your local Big Boy Restaurant, before the race, for information and coupons.

"The Pringles Family Fun Park" – Sunday, June 10, All Day

Located in Memorial Annex, Area 7, The Pringles Family Fun Park has a supervised play area for kids, with games, prizes and the "Mr. Pringles" display hydroplane boat. Members of the racing team will be on hand to answer kid's questions about the racing and boats. Special ticket prices are available for families. Two adults and up to four children can save on ticket prices with any JIF or Pringles proof of purchase. Call (313) 771-7350 for details.

U.S. Coast Guard – Search & Rescue Demonstration: Saturday, June 9, 4:00 p.m.

The U.S. Coast Guard's floating and flying units will stage a dramatic human rescue from a burning boat on the Detroit River. Safe towing, fire fighting and rescue swimming will be demonstrated. A Coast Guard helicopter will be deployed to save "survivors" floating in the water. Call 568-9524 for further information:

And remember. Be sure your children have basic "kid" equipment to enjoy their day: a back pack or snap pocket to carry name and phone number, just in case they're separated from their pals; sunscreen if it's a bright day; and a favorite toy or boating game. Young race fans must be accompanied by an adult at all times.

Everybody Loves The Gold & Thunder!

Who are Detroit's Gold Cup racing fans? Practically everyone in the metro-Detroit area, from Grosse Ile to Grosse Pointe, from Point Pelee to Grand Bend and beyond. You don't have to buy season tickets, be a hydro-nut or come from a family of boaters to join in on the fun that is Gold Cup racing.

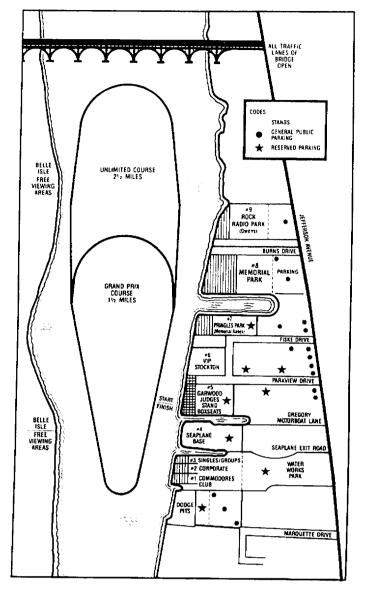

Just do a little people watching when you come down to the races. You'll see men and women of all ages, families old and young, 750,000 of them and growing. It's a spectator sport that combines the thrills of hydroplane racing with a sunny day of picnics and parties.

Where else can you see 150 mph turbine and piston-powered vehicles grab the track and roar down the length of a football field? And you can see it all from a great and safe ringside seat.

Free viewing areas are everywhere from Belle Isle to Gabriel Richard Park. If you are lucky or know someone, you can see the race free from area marinas, apartment complexes and busy restaurants along the north shore.

There are nine general admission areas to choose from. Tickets to these controlled parks range in price from $5 to $90. Each has its own unique or special atmosphere and offers individualized services and entertainment. All parks are fenced, secured, provide PA, concessions, sanitation and excellent viewing. Most parks have on-site, easy-in/easy-out parking. Those that don't have parking lots on the premise, have lots within easy walking distance.

Once a sport for the yacht club set, today's powerboat race fan comes from every walk of life. You'll see kids, mids and seasoned boat race followers on the banks of the Detroit River race week.

Anybody who enjoys fresh air and sunshine (although some areas are covered for the timid) and is savvy enough to combine it with the excitement and fun of watching this spectacularly beautiful and unusual sport, will be there.

So why not join in the fun? For general information or to order tickets call the Spirit of Detroit Pit Office at (313) 824-9020. Tickets for most areas are also available at all Ticket Master outlets.

Watching... Wet And Wild Racing: A Spectators Guide To A Spectacular Sport

There are really two hydroplane racing events at this year's Gold & Thunder event: The APBA Gold Cup race and the Detroit Grand Prix Silver Cup race. The Spirit of Detroit Association expects 12 unlimited class thunderboats to compete in Detroit's Gold Cup race. The Budweiser APBA Gold Cup is just one race event of the "HFC Hydroplane Series." About two dozen Grand Prix hydros will compete for the Silver Cup this year. Racers will come from throughout the U.S. and Canada.

Here's some facts to help you enjoy the races more.

Gold Cup thunderboats are literally unlimited in the ways their mighty engines can be modified for racing. They're 28 to 40 feet long, powered by turbine, airplane or automotive engines. The top boats will average 130 to 150 mph on the 2-1/2 mile oval course.

Silver Cup contenders are slightly shorter in length than the Gold Cup powerboats. Grand Prix boats have 500 cubic inch supercharged engines powering 20 to 24 foot hulls. The top Grand Prix boats average speeds of 115 to 120 mph on the 1-1/4 mile course and can reach up to 150 mph on the backstretch.

Both races are sanctioned by the American Power Boat Association, the group which represents the United States in the Union of International Motorboating. To be sanctioned, a race must be run under APBA class rules and safety precautions. Drivers must be APBA members.

All drivers leave the pits for the oval course about five minutes before the start of the heat. Each driver has the same aim – to cross the starting line at precisely the same moment as the clock hits zero. This is called the "flying start." If they cross the line too soon, they must run an extra lap to be scored.

Leading the pack "off the line" is more than a psychological boost. The leader also avoids the waterlogged traffic jam at the first turn, as a dozen boats share space and spray. And it's no picnic steering a thunderboat over the wakes of a dozen others.

Once through the critical first turn, keeping close to the buoy line offers the best chance of winning. The leader has an unobstructed view of the course and solid water that hasn't been rolled up into a mass of air pockets by the other boats – an advantage because the propeller has a better "bite" in smooth water.

Rivals who don't have the leader's advantages can still win, but they must run faster on the straightaway, deeper into the corners and wider on the course to find solid water.
